ANNA LAURA AND MOTHER, MRS. WENDELL ROOKS
The Tiny Tot Was Born Only Nine Minutes After Midnight.

Rook's Child Wins Post Baby Contest

Anna Laura Rooks was the first little miss to put in an appearance at the Fort Benning Army hospital in 1952 and was named winner of the Ninth Annual Fort Benning Baby Derby.

The seven pound, four ounce girl arrived when the New Year was exactly nine minutes old. She is the daughter of Cpl. and Mrs. Wendell A. Rooks, 1959 Hamilton road, Columbus.

A raft of prizes valued at more than $100 will go to little Miss Rooks and her parents. The prizes were donated by Columbus merchants to the first child born to an enlisted couple at Benning this year.

Anna Laura was the first child born to the Rooks. Her father is 19 and her mother, who is the former Ruby Cooper of Tifton, Ga., is only 17-years-old.

Cpl. Rooks, another Georgian who is from Cordele, is in Company H, Airborne Battalion, Infantry School detachment. A Benning jump graduate in 1950, he now packs parachutes in the Airborn department here.

According to Anna Laura's father, she arrived two weeks after the doctor had predicted but she was late enough to capture the title and valuable prizes.

The gifts include everything from free diaper service to full course dinners for the parents, and seat covers for the automobile.

But Cpl. and Mrs. Rooks are pleased about the whole thing whether jumping or becoming a Cpl. Rooks couldn't decide father was more exciting.

Admiral Ulusan will be accompanied by Lt. Col. Hayri Saner, Turkish army, and U. S. naval escort Commander Walter Maclallen.

The Admiral, who was invited to the United States by the Joint Chiefs of staff on NATO matters, will be orientated on general army activities while at Benning.

Draft Call for 55,000 Announced for February

WASHINGTON — (AFPS) — A February draft call for 55,000 men has been announced by the Department of Defense. Of this number, 41,000 will be assigned to the Army and 14,000 to the Marine Corps.

The February group will bring the total number of those drafted since the outbreak of hostilities in July, 1950 to 849,330.

West Pointers Await 150th Anniversary

Although removed from the scene of the 150th anniversary celebration, local graduates will watch the opening exercises with keen interest. Speakers at the event will be Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Gen. Lucius B. Clay and Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of the National Guard Association.

At Fort Benning, all West Point alumni will celebrate the birthday of the Academy at a dinner Mar. 16 at the Officers' Mess. This annual affair is in the nature of a reunion since it attracts not only those officers on the post, but many retired officers who have settled in nearby civilian communities.

Oldest West Pointer in this vicinity is retired Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel of 1130 Lockwood avenue, Columbus, Ga., who graduated in 1908. Youngest graduate is 2nd Lt. Frank M. Bashore, 22, who also lives in Columbus. He graduated in 1951. Frank Willis Bashore of 701 1-2 East End avenue, Lancaster, Pa.

Claims Majority

Fort Benning claims a majority of the Academy graduates every year. Most of the young officers choose the infantry as their branch and come here to take the company officers course at The Infantry School. This course is designed to familiarize newly commissioned officers with the basic fundamentals of duty in an Infantry company, including instruction in weapons, tactics and technique.

West Pointers, however, get their first glimpse of Fort Benning in their final year at the Academy. As first classmen, they come here to see how the Infantry trains. They get a three-day tour of post training facilities and watch demonstrations presented by The Infantry School.

The lighter side is not overlooked, either. While on the post, the cadets are usually entertained at a round of parties, suppers and dances. Highlights of their visit comes with the commanding general's reception at which time they meet Infantry Center staff officers, The Infantry School staff and faculty and major unit commanders.

Hold Variety of Jobs

Among the graduates here are Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, class of 1927, assistant commandant of the School; Col. James F. Torrence, Jr., class of 1923, Infantry Center G-4; Col. Daniel H. Hundley class of 1924, Infantry comptrollers; Col. Ralph N. Woods, class of 1929, Combat Training Command commander; Col. George Mullner, class of 1924, director of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School.

413 Reenlist In December

A total of 413 reenlistments during the month of December made that month the peak month of the past year in total number of reenlistments.

This brings the total number of reenlistments for the current recruiting drive which began on July 15 to 1,665 for Fort Benning.

The Student Brigade is second with 90, followed by Combat Training Command with a total of 91. The Infantry School Detachment had a total of 62, Provisional Medical Group, 19 and Separation Detachment 19.

The 506th Airborne Regimental Combat Team had a total of nine and Army Field Forces Board No. 3 had 2.

Korea Vets Teach Reserves Lessons In Combat Methods

Korean returnees here are using their combat experiences to teach Army Reservists in the Third Army area the lessons they learned while fighting Communism.

Three-man teams, composed of two battle-wise officers and one enlisted man, each month visit Military Districts to display captured Communist weapons and to talk to members of the Organized Reserve Corps and National Guard about the type of enemy UN forces face in Korea.

Use of instructional teams to keep ORC and NG personnel informed of the latest developments in Infantry weapons and tactics is not new, but the scope of instruction has increased considerably since the outbreak of the Korean war. In addition to demonstrating the use of U. S. Army weapons, the instructors also describe the capabilities of Communist weapons captured by UN troops.

Other Subjects

Other subjects covered by the instructional teams include camouflage, maintenance of vehicles and the 60 mm mortar.

The three members of the team also draw heavily on their personal experiences while in Korea to provide a clearer picture of the nature of the North Korean and Chinese Communist armies.

They describe tactics the enemy uses in an effort to force UN troops to expose themselves to Communist fire, and warn Reservists, expecting a call to duty, against falling into an enemy trap if ordered to Korea.

Employment of small units in combat and tips given to newly arrived troops in Korea also are included in the discussion period.

Answers Questions

Following the lecture and demonstration, the instructors answer questions of the Reservists and National Guardsmen.

In January a Fort Benning instruction team will lecture and demonstrate their captured Communist weapons in eight Mississippi cities, including Meridian, Hattiesburg, Gulfport, Jackson, Vicksburg, Clarksdale, Oxford and Starkville.

Troops Clothed For Cold Winter On Korea Front

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Top military leaders in the Far East Command have given assurance that troops in Korea will be well clothed and protected from the elements in the second winter of fighting.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway Commander-in-Chief, Far East Command, and Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Commanding General of the Eighth Army, both reported on the winter clothing situation.

"I can state that the American fighting man in Korea," Gen. Ridgway said, "is better prepared than ever before in the history of the Army to withstand the rigors of winter in the field."

Gen. Van Fleet said, "I can assure the man of my United Nations Command that they will be fully equipped against the rigors of [illegible] temperatures [illegible]

First Ten Stories Reveal Unrest Was Year's Theme

(Editor's note: The following is a brief summary of the 10 big stories of 1951 according to the Armed Forces Press Service.)

HIGH COST; HIGH TAXES

The high cost of living and taxes spinning on the merry-go-round of inflation, continued their mad whirl in 1951. Individual income tax rates taking effect Nov. 1 increased withholding taxes from 18 per cent to 20 per cent. The excise (sales) tax also took a bite and was felt immediately in higher prices for cigarettes, gasoline, beer, wine and liquor.

A guide to the nation's 1951 spending program was made public Jan. 15, when President Truman laid before Congress a budget calling for $71.5 billions for expenditures in the fiscal year beginning July 1, to meet what he called "the compelling demands" of the national security "in a period of grave danger."

INVESTIGATIONS

Better known among the 82nd Congress' 130 investigations and consistent with 1951 headlines was the Senate Crime Investigation Committee, more often called the Kefauver Committee.

A direct result of the committee was the groan that went up from the nation's bookies when Congress slipped them a mickey in the new tax law which went into effect Nov. 1. The law provides that all bookies buy a $50 federal stamp to practice their trade. Before the windows closed on the final day to purchase stamps, less than 1,200 bookies in the entire nation had complied.

Said one bookie: "The odds are against me."

PEACE TREATY

Nine years and 274 days after the "day of infamy" at Pearl Harbor, the Land of the Rising Sun resumed its place among World capitols.

The occasion was the signing of the Japanese Peace Treaty at the Memorial Opera House in San Francisco, Sept. 8, 1951.

Fifty one members of the United Nations had gathered there at the invitation of the U. S. Most of them believed the Japanese people were ready to follow the road to an "honorable existence as an equal and free member in the family of free nations."

A PEACE TRY

Peace in Korea, strengthened by an honorable armistice, has been the elusive goal diligently sought by United Nations negotiators for the last six months.

Korean hills are still cold, bleak, death traps, filled with lurking snipers squatting in a never-ending vigil; the whine of rifle bullets, the boom of artillery, and the staccato chatter of machine guns are just the same.

Actually, little territory changed hands during the year. Early in February the Reds were entrenched in a defensive position six miles below the Han River, south of Seoul.

ROYAL VISIT

The Princess and the President extended their hands almost simultaneously.

"It's wonderful to be here, Mr. President", Princess Elizabeth said with her prettiest smile.

"Welcome to the United States, Your Royal Highness" President Truman replied.

With that simple, folksy greeting, the girl from Buckingham Palace and the Prince who is her husband met the family from Independance, Mo., at the Washington airport, Oct. 31, 1951.

HAIRBREATH FINISH

Baseball's thrill-packed 1951 National League pennant race is history but the memory still lingers on.

Trailing the league - leading Brooklyn Dodgers by 13 games on Aug. 12, the New York Giants snapped back with a 16 game winning streak, precipitating a pennant panic in Flatbush from which it never recovered.

By Sept. 25, the Giant "miracle team" had whittled the Dodger lead to two and a half games when Manager Leo Durocher made the understatement of the year.

"The boys are playing for all they are worth. And anybody who thinks this pennant race is over is just crazy."

Durocher was right. The Giants galloped to an electrifying finish, and won the 1951 National League flag.

MIDDLE EAST TROUBLE

A double-barreled threat to world peace, pointing toward nationalism, exploded in two middle Eastern areas during 1951.

The prelude to violence began April 28, when the Iranian parliament voted unanimously to sanction the taking over by the state of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's holdings within the country. Impetus was given the edict when Mohammed Mossadegh was named premier of Iran.

OLD SOLDIER

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur's first recollection as a child was that of a bugle call.

The son of a soldier, he was born at Little Rock Barrack, Ark., Jan. 26, 1880, and since has seldom been far from that bugle call.

Graduating from West Point as the top student, June 11, 1903, he plunged immediately into a military career which ultimately was to become global in stature.

The climax of a brilliant career came on June 25, 1950, when he was named Commander in Chief, United Nations Command. He was the first man in history to hold this title and served in this capacity until relieved from command April 11, 1951, by Presidential proclamation.

ATOM BOMBS

The two chief contenders for world supremacy in atomic research, the USA and the USSR, produced startling developments during 1951. The USA, unofficial count, racked up its 21st atomic explosion by mid - November, while the USSR managed to detonate her second and third nuclear bomb during November.

In a one-sentence statement Aug. 21, the Navy's Bureau of Ships revealed that a contract "for the first nuclear - powered submarine" had been awarded to the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn.

In the meantime, extensive plans were being made for a series of atomic tests at the Atomic Energy site in Nevada.

NEW GOVERNMENT

A gloomy atmosphere prevailed at Labor headquarters in London on the morning of Oct. 26, 1951.

"Our vote is running lower than we had hoped", one Laborite official explained.

By Friday night there no longer was any need for speculation. Winston Churchill and his Conservative Party had won a closely contested battle of the ballots from Clement Atlee's Labor Party.

Said Mr. Churchill: "There lies before us a difficult time. I have seen worse and had to face worse. I do not doubt we shall come through . . . ."

Army Aviation Expands 200 Per Cent In 1951

By Armed Forces Press Service

Army aviation is growing faster than it can turn out pilots and mechanics.

Having expanded its aviation program about 200 per cent in the last year, the Army has had to ease certain qualifications for officers to attend flight training. Previously a new officer had to serve one year of line duty before he was eligible. This is no longer required.

It is possible, therefore, for an officer to apply while he is still in OCS and attend immediately upon graduation. All the rules and regulations are spelled out in SR-605-95-1 as amended.

When an officer is accepted he receives 18 weeks basic flight training at San Marcus AFB, Tex., and 13 weeks advanced training and tactics at Ft. Sill, Okla.

After he has mastered the rudiments of fixed-wing aircraft, a selected number of the class is chosen to undergo about five week of helicopter training. The he goes back to Ft. Sill for two to four weeks of advanced helicopter training and tactics. As in the Navy and Air Force, pilots are entitled to full flight pay privileges.

Opportunities in aircraft maintenance work with Ordnance are increasing, too, thus opening new fields for enlisted men. Mechanics who work with helicopters are allowed flight pay since they must spend a great deal of their time in the air.

In the not-too-distant future every Army division will be equipped with 10 helicopters. In addition, the Transportation Corps will soon form cargo-copter companies similar to transportation truck companies.

Carrier's Planes Hit Reds Again in Korea

OFF KOREA (AFPS)—The first carrier to launch planes in the Korean conflict, the USS Valley Forge is once again carrying out air attacks against the Reds.

The 27,000-ton flattop returned to action for the third time since July, 1950, after having completed flight operations training in Hawaiian waters. Aircraft from the carrier celebrated the occasion with a slashing attack on Red supply centers and battle lines.

MORTALITY LOWERED

The mortality rate from tuberculosis has been forced down 85 per cent in the last 50 years, but TB still leads all other communicable diseases as a cause of death.

NEW EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Capt. Carl H. Abbott has been named assistant executive officer of the First battalion, Second Student regiment. Other assignments include Capt. Charles K. Hagan as regimental S-2.

Chaplain's Corner

Every Man Has Power Reservoir Chaplain Says

BY CHAPLAIN (MAJ.) PERRY RALEY

When Cicero spoke, men gathered round and said, "what a wonderful speaker is Cicero!" But when Demosthenes spoke, they stood at attention and said, "let us go out and fight". When Rubenstein was in the United States, he was asked by a friend if he would like to go to church on Sunday morning. Said he, "I will go if you will take me to hear a man who will tempt me to do the impossible". We need to hear a man today who can tempt us to accomplish the myriad of seemingly impossible tasks — a leader to whom we will stand at attention and take our orders and go out in the wake of those holy men of old of whom it was said "by their strength they did what they could not".

In every personality touched by the hand of God there is a Dynamo waiting to be harnessed, a Niagra running to waste, a reservoir that has never been tapped. In spite of this vast resource of power, men are failing. They fail not because they lack opportunity, not because they lack education, nor because they lack equipment. They fail because they lack pep and power. They wont let themselves go — they won't tap the reservoir. There is a giant, staggering task before our generation, a task that requires the utmost of all of us. We have leaders, but we are yet waiting for THAT LEADER who will compel our supreme loyalty and energy.

If we feel that these are critical moments in the affairs of the world, we must be brought to realise that the spritual affairs of the world are also facing critical moments. In the midst of this boiling cauldron of chaos and confusion that is our world, God is looking for a MAN to lead us in right thinking and right living. A foolish question was once asked by the followers of an idol called Baal, Where is the God of Elijah? The question of the day is not "where is Elijah's God, but where is Elijah, the prophet who dares? Where is Moses, the servant of the Lord, new seas must be crossed and spiritual territory gained for God. Where is Joshua, the man of faith; the hard cold walls of materialism and unbelief must fall. Where is Peter, the courageous man; men must feel their sins and be brought to Christ.

God, give us men. The time demands strong minds great hearts, true faith willing hands. Men whom the lust of office does not kill; Men whom the lust of office cannot buy. Men who possess opinions and a will — Men who have honor —Men who will not lie — Men who can stand before a demagogue and damn his treacherous flattery without winking. Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog in public duty and private thinking, for while the rabble with their thumb worn creeds, their large professions and their little deeds, mingle in the selfish strife, Lo, freedom weeps, wrong rules the land, and waiting justice sleeps.

Some years ago, during a London peace conference, the King of England was to speak a message of peace to the world. It was discovered that a connection was broken. With no time to repair it, Mr. Vivian, an electrician in the station, "filled in the gap". The Kings message went through the body of Mr. Vivian and on to a listening world. The King of Kings has a message of peace to speak to the world. He is looking for a man to stand in the gap, to fill in the broken connection, through whom He may speak.

New Year Begins As Korea Fighting Continues

The new year is the big news this week and it's this time of the year that people everywhere renew their hope and faith for a better world.

In Korea, United Nations forces ushered in the new year with a tremendous artillery barrage which discouraged the Reds from launching more than a single probing attack.

The Reds staged a minor celebration of their own, however, they sent three or four ancient single-engined biplanes over the Allies' Kimpo airfield, near Seoul, and neighboring Inchon harbor under cover of darkness.

One of the planes dropped a string of eight mortar shells on Kimpo, but missed its target and caused no damage.

Meanwhile, United Nations and Communist truce negotiators opened the new year with an agreement to release all interened civilians after an armistice.

The Reds also agreed to supply all possible information on 50,000 Allied war prisoners known to have been in their hands but missing from their latest list. The total includes 1,058 Americans.

But a second set of negotiators trying to work out means of policing an armistice ended its first meeting of 1952 in what a U. N. delegate called a "dead stalemate" over an Allied demand for a ban on airfield construction.

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, who was commandant of The Infantry School from 1945 to 1948 has been promoted to Lieutenant General, the Defense Department has reported.

At the same time, Gen. O'Daniel was confirmed at I Corps commander in Korea.

On The Bookshelf

BY HOYD HINTON

THE ROOSEVELT TREASURY, Edited by James N. Rosenau, (Copyright 1951, Doubleday and Company, $5) . . . . The 449 page book compiled by Mr. Rosenau is a collection of writings about and by Franklin Delano Roosevelt. No less than 53 authors, including FDR himself, are responsible for the material in this rare volume about one of America's greats.

The articles and sketches contain many things. Many of them were written by his critics and political enemies like Wendle Wilkie, While the others were authored by his friends, admirers, fellow workers, and loved ones.

Whether you are a Roosevelt admirer or not, this volume is a must for those who are interested in world and national affairs. Certainly the man from Hyde Park exerted a profound influence on the times, as well as on political, military, and humanitarian theories.

The book, which contains more than 100 pieces about FDR, begins long before he was to become world famous. His own mother penned a letter early in the book addressed to . . "Dearest Franklin and Dearest Eleanor" which was dated Oct. 14, 1917.

She says, in part . . . ." . . . . .but if we love our own, and if we love our neighbor, we owe a great example . . . . . .".

Whether or not this motherly bit of advice made much impression on FDR, we shall never know, but certainly those feelings were shared by his philosophy which is reflected in the many articles about the man.

But the book isn't simply a collection of articles to satisfy the curosity of the public about a famous man.

The second section in the book entitled, The Young Legislator, includes a sketch by Frances Perkins, who was later to become Roosevelts Secretary of Labor. Miss Perkins first met FDR in 1910 at a tea dance shortly after he was elected to the New York State Senate. She later helped him carry out many of his social ideas that he had not evolved at the time of the first meeting.

But it's sketches like the one by Miss Perkins that make this book a must for every library and for every thinking person.

In a sense, it is a hodgepodge of fragments, but in reality, it is a portrait which is a whole made up of fragments.

The articles show the many sides of Roqsevelt. It shows his ability to shoulder responsibility and his ability to laugh and enjoy the good life. It demonstrates his skill as a politician and gentleman of the old school, as well as his boyish love for ships and the chase.

The book reflectes his interest in other people, and his sympathy to their problems. He was a complex man, and therefore, a book about him is a complex thing.

And yet the book is amazingly easy to read. The people who wrote the articles were interested in a side of Roosevelt. Even his critics, and in some of the articles he writes about his concern for their criticisms, recognize Roosevelt as a great impact on the United States as well as the world.

Perhaps it is still too early to judge the man, but maybe this volume can help the reader understand many of his problems.

Being a president is a difficult thing and involves many things. But after all, and the book clearly shows it, the president is a man with man's failings as well as man's greatness.

Roosevelt the man, is the real theme of the book. The editor chose his selections carefully, but yet with sincerity and fairness. It is a book worth reading.

Service Presents Channukah Festival

The Special Festival of Channukah was celebrated at the Hospital Chapel, Friday.

Services were conducted by Chaplain (1st Lt.) David Raab, who recently returned from the Chaplain School at Fort Slocum, N. Y. He also preached on the subject, "The Beauty of Holiness." Captain William White read from the book of the Maccabees.

Channukah means "dedication" and refers to the re-dedication of the ancient Temple by Judas Maccabeus and his army on the twenty-fifth day of Kislev in the 165 B. C. E., after they had defeated the Syrian army, under the leadership of Antiochus.

The festival of Channukah lasts for eight days. Each day an additional candle is lit until all the eight candles, lit by the "shamosh" are burning.

The eight days are explained by the legend that when the Macabees entered the Temple to cleanse it, they found only one small jar of sacred oil for the Eternal Light. It was thought that this oil would last only a single day. Instead it burned for eight.

MAJ. ROBERT SONSTELIE, INSTRUCTOR, USES TERRAIN BOARD FOR CLASS
Capt. R. E. Woodring, Left, And Lt. Vern Peters, Right, Listen To Explanation

Tactical Department Uses Scale Model Terrain Boards

The Defense group instructors are old hands at bringing "the mountain to Mohammed"-and all within a ten by fifteen foot space.

This unusual feat is accomplished by means of a terrain board which is one of the training aids in use by the Defense group of the Tactical department.

On this scale model terrain board is the two by three and one half miles of Savage Hill area with contour lines. The whole stage of a theater is covered by the board, which is tilted at an angle. This gives the student an almost aerial view of the whole area and the problem pertaining to this vicinity.

The board, which is the brain-child of a former instructor, has been in use since 1945. Capt. Jesse Ugalde made the plans and actually constructed the board. Last year on a visit to Benning, he reworked the board and added wings.

It is built on a fly screen base which is porous. It can be blown through, poked through and seen through. Making use of this characteristic, the instructor can present a problem with the atmosphere of realism which is difficult with other training methods.

To make it more natural the shade of green on the side that normally would be shaded from the light. All defense areas and boundaries are painted with white enamel. The trees are branches from pine dipped in green enamel. Fire fights are represented by small flashlight bulbs protruding half way through the screen.

A battery of behind-the-scenemen operate the board for a more realistic presentation of the problem. One man has charge of a piano-like key board made of tongue depressors which controls all the lights on the board and also operates the giant clock which sets problem time. Two mmer work on the movable parts and another man is located above the board and concentrates on the spotlight which is used to call attention to a particular part of the terrain. The other man has charge of the records of battle noises and the recorded conversations that set the problem. Four officers take part in the skit and three of them have speaking parts in the actual demonstration.

Previous Instruction

Prior to this class, the student has spent approximately 28 hours in this area working with the component parts of the battalion setting up the defense of this battalion area.

In this four hour problem on the conduct of the defense of a front line battalion, there are 15 situations presented each designed to bring out certain phases of the defense. The situations are presented as recorded conversations between various members of the battalion. These conversations leave the student with certain decisions to be made and problems to be solved. The students make these decisions and solve these problems with the minimum of guidance from the hills and valleys are a darker instructor on the platform.

As the problem progresses, by means of engineer tape, he sees the outpost overrun, and by giant red arrows is shown the main line of resistance and the fire plan. Actual combat situations are developed according to his reasoning and learning.

This class participation serves a two-fold purpose for it gives the student officer a chance to make a decision and then by opinions from others find if his is the best solution to the problem. It also enables the instructor to see just how much of the previous instructions has been absorbed by the student for the correct solution to the problem is based on the tactics learned in previous classes and his power to apply this knowledge.

From private to master-sergeant in six months is the story of 24 year old Wayne Wiley, a member of Military Police Detachment, Section I, 3440th Area Service Unit. He received his promotions while fighting with the United Nations Troops in Korea.

Entering the Army in 1948, Wiley led a usual Army life, attended leadership school after completing military Police basic training and was finally sent to Japan to serve with the Eighth Army.

In August, 1950, he was assigned to taking A.W.O.L. Korean soldiers who were slipping in to Japan to dodge military service back to Korea along with captured North Koreans.

February 1951 found him with the 17th Infantry Regiment, Seventh Infantry Division, a private first class and a Browning Automatic platoon member.

In May, fighting on Hill 479, Wiley was awarded his first Silver Star. With the whole outfit pinned down, one third of the men wounded, Wiley led a squad of men, knocked out a machine gun emplacement, killing seven. He was wounded in the right leg before the rush but continued just the same.

He won the Bronze Star for capturing 35 prisoners. Guarding a platoon of tanks in a valley north of Chunhoun, a North Korean came up, hands over his head shouting surrender. Wiley wouldn't capture him unless he brought his buddies. The Korean left, only to return in a short while with 34 other North Koreans.

His second silver star was for carrying his platoon sergeant and three men of a 60mm mortar crew that were wounded to safety under heavy artillery and small arms fire. After carrying them to safety, nearly a half mile away he strung communication wire from the company command post to the platoon command post, a mile and one half away, all done under small arms fire.

On September 5, 1951 he was made master-sergeant. He was offered a field commission, shortly there after, but he turned it down.

He returned to the states on October 17, 1951. Sgt. Wiley also holds the Korean Campaign Service Medal, Korean Presidential Citation, Occupation of Japan Medal, and Purple Heart.

SFC. FRANKLIN H. BUTLER, of the 15th Finance Disbursing detachment, is this week's SOLDIER OF THE WEEK.

Sergeant Butler, who recently returned to the U.S. from Korea, formerly served in Seoul with the Seventh Infantry division on occupation duty.

He participated in the Inchon landings in September, 1950, and reported that he "hardly recognized the city — was all flattened out."

Butler, section chief for the travel pay branch here, claims that his job "is the most interesting and complicated set-up" he's ever seen.

A finance clerk from Sauk Rapids, Minn., has been selected as MISS BENNING this week. She is PVT. BETTY L. LEZER, who claims she joined the WAC because there wasn't much to do around her home town and she was curious to know what the WAC was like.

After completion of basic training at Fort Lee, Va., she attended finance school at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., then came to Benning.

LUIS M. DOMINGUEZ

Rudd, who has been at Benning for nearly a year, is presently assigned to riding trains and checking passes and permits. He was selected for his outstanding military bearing and equipment during the M.P. Detachment inspection.

PFC. ROBERT L. RUDD

CANDIDATE OF THE WEEK IS CHARLES K. MAKANUI, a young Hawaiian who has always dreamed of being an infantry officer.

Candidate Makanui graduated from a military school in his native land with the rank of cadet sergeant, and enlisted in the Army on July 11 this year.

He was sent to Fort Ord, Calif., for basic training and his first visit to the United States. Upon completion of basic he attended leadership school, and later was an instructor on a light weapons committee.

After receiving his commission, the candidate hopes to return to Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Eight-Year Man Spends Only 5 Months in States

With eight years and four months in the Army, Cpl. George L. Montgomery, 148th Transportation Truck company, has spent less than five months on "Stateside" duty.

Entering the service in 1942 he started his basic training in the United States and completed it in Burma in the China-Burma-India Theater of Operations, as a mmeber of the Combat Engineers. His job was to operate the diesel generator used in the construction work.

An illness brought him back to the states for treatment. A month later found him delivering Prisoners of War to Nuremberg, Germany from P.O.W. camps here.

Later he became mess sergeant for the entire Nuremburg Prison, cooking for Goering, Goebels and the other Nazi prisoners awaiting trial. Cooking there had its drawbacks — he was almost a prisoner himself since none could leave or enter without special permission and the place was heavily guarded.

Newsmen were looking for stories and orders were to keep all outsiders from entering the prison. Stories would be released by the Public Information Office.

Whenever he wanted to go out, two military policemen would enter the prison and two would leave, he being one of them, having changed clothing with the military Policeman.

In 1948, re-enlisting again, after an 11-day furlough, he again saw duty overseas, this time on Okinawa with the 29th Infantry Division as Generator operator. Fifteen months later, he was sent back to the states, took a 30-day furlough and reported to Korea assigned to the Second Signal Company, Second Infantry Division.

Participating in the battles at Pusan, Marlang, Seoul, Suwon, and Chosen, while attached to duty with the 38th Infantry Regiment Wire team, he received four battle stars and was finally rotated to the states arriving here in July 1951.

THE LC-126 IS A MUCH USED LIGHT AIRCRAFT
Capt. J. C. Evans Boards The Plane Before A Flight

Light Airplanes Perform Variety of Army Tasks

World War II taught senior Army officers the value of light aircraft, capable of landing on short strips under conditions unsuited to reglar combat planes. These light planes were used originally to adjust artillery fire. But soon they were put to other uses for which they were equally suited. These included reconnaissance, speedy delivery of key personnel, documents and material.

Fly Out Wounded

In addition they were used as flying ambulances, used in the evacuation of seriously-wounded soldiers from front line foxholes.

The little - known section at The Infantry Center is composed of four pilots, four light planes and a handful of maintenance personnel.

The planes, three L-19s (two passenger) and an LC-126 (four passenger) are used both for courier service and for demonstration work conducted by The Infantry School.

Under courier service comes flying military personnel on important missions and rushing urgently - needed documents, equipment and material to their destinations.

For school demonstrations the section flies missions showing students at The Infantry School how the planes may be used for message pickup flights, wire laying and other communication roles, control of vehicular and march columns and surveillance of forward tactical elements.

50 Per Cent Demonstration

It is estimated that 50 per cent of the section's time is spent with School demonstration work.

Capt. George E. Bean of Birmingham, Ala., officer in charge of the section, says that his crews flew 10,000 miles last month during which time his pilots logged a total of 103 hours.

This may seem a short time for the four officers in the section to fly over a 30-day period, but Captain Bean said that about five hours must be spent in preparation for a one-hour flight.

The be - ribboned Captain Bean, who sports a Distinguished Flying Cross with three clusters and an Air Medal with 18 clusters for his exploits in Korea, returned to the United States in September of this year. He served in Korea with the 25th Infantry Division Air Section.

Another pilot in the section with know-how is Capt. James C. Evans of Columbus, who served with the air section of the Seventh Infantry Division.

Captain Evans also picked up more than his share of decorations while in the Far East. They include a Silver Star, a Distinguished Flying Cross with one cluster, a Bronze Star for valor with one cluster, an Air Medal with 13 clusters and a Purple Heart with one cluster.

Two other captains, William D. Proctor of Decatur, Ga., and William A. Hash of Asheville, N. C., complete the roster of pilots in the section.

Captain Hash, formally in charge of the group, now is in Atlanta undergoing a course in instrument flying at Southern Airways Company.

An Episcopal Mission at Fort Benning believed to be the only organization of its kind has been accepted into the Diocese of Atlanta by unanimous action of the standing committee of that diocese meeting in Columbus.

The mission has been actively engaged in raising funds for the benefit of Korean orphans and the Episcopal mission in Pusan, Korea.

Known as Saint Michael's Mission, the organization was first begun by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) A. V. Muray, shortly before he left Benning. The idea was picked up by Chaplain (Maj.) Lewis B. Sheen, was is presently in charge.

The announcement was made that the ninth annual Baby derby for Fort Benning is to be a thing of reality for 1953. Each year the first baby born to an enlisted couple at Fort Benning receives a large collection of gifts. The contest is sponsored by the Columbus merchants and the Bayonet.

A branch office of the Georgia Motor Vehicle License unit has been opened at 101-10th Street in Columbus.

The unit is open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday for the convenience of the public. The deadline for the purchasing of Georgia tags is March 1, 1952.

Fort Benning personnel who have their vehicles registered in another state do not have to register their cars in Georgia, unit officials reminded. Nor is it necessary for Army personnel to obtain Georgia license plates, provided their cars carry legal plates from their home states.

Twelve fighting men from Greece will become students at the Infantry School Jan. 9. With their arrival, 21 nationalities, not including the United States, will be represented at the school.

The officers will be members of the associate Infantry officer advanced course learning the latest fighting methods and training techniques.

ASU Team Tops 6 Feet Per Man

Coach Tom Bubanich is making no rash promises, but he is smiling over the fact that his starting lineup for Area Service Unit Provisional Group in the Benning Basketball League opener will average just over six-feet in heighth.

Also noteworthy is that eight players on the 12-man squad were listed among the ten top scorers in the recently completed A.S.U. unit league.

Bubanich called off practice for the remainder of the holidays, but first revealed his probable starting lineup will read like this:

Paul Steele and Clayton Tolson, forwards, Ervin Johnson, center, and Bill Hahn and Leslie Kemp, guards.

Hahn, former William Jewell college six foot-one inch guard, averaged 23 points per game in A.S.U. play as he rolled up 185 points in eight games. He is a set-shot artist.

Kemp will man the other guard position if he recovers from a broken hand received in the sixth game of the league play. Trainer Henry Coleman says he should be ready to go by game time. He averaged 17 points a game by scoring 93 points.

Tallest man on the squad, six foot-three inch Ervin Johnson, will probably get the nod at center. A good rebound man, Johnson has scored 104 points in nine games for a 12 point average.

Height will be a disadvantage under the basket with Steele, five feet-11 inches, and Tolson, five feet-10 inches. They are expected to overcome this disadvantage though as both are ball-hawks.

The loss of Dale McClain, six foot-one inch, and Val Asey, six foot-two inches, came as a blow last week. McClain is attending a service school at Camp Gordon, Ga. and Asey is being discharged.

There's no place like home and there's no place like Fort Benning when it comes to having recreation facilities.

Fort Benning is not only a center for the Infantry but also the center for nearly any sport or recreation that can be had.

Four Gymnasiums, located at Sand Hill and Harmony Church with the largest two, the Old Post Gym, now an indoor skating rink and the modern two and one-half million dollar Bryant Wells Field House has indoor basketball courts, handball courts, swimming pool, and volleyball court.

Outdoor recreation can be had since 40 softball fields, 12 tennis courts, two golf courses—nine and 18 holes, eight fish-stocked lakes with row boats available, are present on the reservation.

Doughboy Football Stadium is capable of seating 13,500 fans while Gowdy field holds 5,500.

Three bowling alleys having a total of 16 lanes can be found at Sand Hill, Lawson Field and at the Main Post.

Five service clubs, six libraries, one hobby shop and one photography shop along with six theatres that show the latest in Hollywood films can take care of nearly all of the pastime desires of personnel stationed here.

Tom Bubanich Of ASU Gets Coach Of The Year Name

Coach of the year honors in the Area Service Unit Provisional Group goes to Tom Bubanich, basketball coach for Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section One. The soft-spoken Ohioan has been named coach of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group Raiders for the Infantry Center Basketball League scheduled to open Jan. 10.

Bubanich, forced to take the sidelines due to a big wound received in Korea while serving with the First Cavalry division, refused to take the count of ten.

A star athlete in football and basketball at Rayen High school, Youngstown, Ohio, Hiltron college, Ohio and the First Cavalry division, where he was picked on the All-Army football team and selected as the most valuable player in the Far East in 1949, the 25 year old sergeant took to coaching which kept him near his first love, sports.

with the Seventh Cavalry regiment, First Cavalry division, feels that he is still part of the game while coaching and lives the sport that is in season every minute of the day and night.

Bubanicks's free-wheeling Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section One basketball team made a run-away for the championship in the ASU league that just ended as they outclassed everything in the league with 10 straight victories.

The championship five rolled up 490 points for an average of 55 points a game while holding their opponents to a 30 point average per game.

This is not the first year of coaching basketball for the Ohio express. In 1949 as player-coach, he guided the Seventh Cavalry regiment team to the division championship.

In all, Bubanick has played nine years of varsity football and basketball in high school, college and the Army. He is no newcomer and has the qualifications of being just as outstanding in the coaching profession as he was on the gridiron and hardwood, even though a Red shell cut his active career as a player short.

Second Lt. Henry H. Ubowski, of Battery B of the 320th BA Bn. and coach of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team basketballers, is a rarity in Army court circles.

He claims he never was a basketball star. He only claims he played with the Loyola University of Chicago team which defeated Kentucky in the 1949 National Invitation in New York's Madison Square Garden.

That was the Loyola team which featured Jack Kerris and Ralph Klerich, two basketball greats of the last decade. Second-string to those men was to be top-drawer almost anywhere else.

His top assistant will be M-Sgt. Fred Jones of the 320th's Headquarters Battery. "Both of us may not play too much," figures Lt. Ubowski, "because a coach sees more on the bench than on the floor."

LT. HENRY H. UBOWSKI

Men in Stockade Give Blood Too

Prisoners in the post stockade here are giving their blood to help soldiers fighting in Korea.

More than 100 inmates volunteered to go to the local blood donating center, after hearing stockade administrative personnel discussing the urgent need for the live-giving plasma.

Thirty-one men reported to the center during the first part of the month and 20 more gave their blood this week.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

(Editor's Note: Cpl. Charley Johnson is on holiday leave. So guest writer this week is 1st. Lt. Robert W. Feeney, athletic and recreation — public information officer for the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. Lt. Feeney, a World War II paratroop OSS agent, has more than ten years' sports-writing experience with the Buffalo (N. Y.) Evening News.)

No one ever accused the paratroopers or being modest.

But if it isn't leaping to conclusions, indications are that for the second straight athletic season, a company from the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment may capture the Fort Benning unit citation for the company doing the most in voluntary off - duty sports.

The Summer season — April 1 to Sept. 30, 1951 — crown went to Support Company of the 508th for besting three companies in the post physical fitness championships on Set. 26. This brought a Third Army Certificate of Merit.

Now, pushing to the fore is the most sports - minded company in the 508th — Company I, commanded by that former TIC physical instructor, Capt. Keith E. Harsh. Name your sport and it's Company I's proud boast that it can field a team. Even for tiddly - winks!

Back on Sept. 12, 1951, TIC published Circular No. 115 and backed up by Third Army and Department of Army circulars, it specified a unit citation for the outstanding companies in voluntary off - duty sports participation. Judging was to cover two seasons: Summer, April 1 to Sept. 30 and Winter, Oct. 1, to March 31. Our Northern cousins wouldn't agree, but we're in the winter season now. Judges will consider top achievements in touch football, basketball, boxing, volley ball, wrestling, handball, soccer, table tennis and bowling.

So the race is on! And a strong contender is Company I of the 508th.

Bear in mind that the young Red Devil paratroopers cite leaping from airplanes in flight—or is it fright—as only a small part of their duties. That there are endless hours in the field, hiking and skirmishing, that they're just finished a two-week maneuver at Camp Rucker, Ala.

Bear all that in mind, and that sports is just an off-duty function for the troopers. And then get a load of what goes on in Company I.

First off, there's the first soldier of Company I — M-Sgt James L. Parkinson, a perennial cigar - smoker and former Nazi POW. A dynamic 5-foot, 5-inch, 125 - pounder with 173 parachute jumps behind him. M-Sgt. Parkinson sometimes is suspected of extending his company punishment for wrong-doers to making them go out for sports.

Himself the 508th's singles champion in table tennis (ping pong to you, dearie), M-Sgt. Parkinson is the mainspring of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team's bowling quintet in the Fort Benning Post Bowling League.

Right along with him on the first team is Sfc Alfred M. Anderson, Company I's supply sergeant who is sporting a 171-average, and Pfc Robert E. Morthorst. Sfc Anderson was the fourth ranking bowler at Benning in 1951 — when he was in the Airborne Department — and was a member of the Benning Bowling team that won the Third Army title.

Three more Company I men are the backbone of the 508th ABCT No. 2 team in the post bowling league. They are: Pfc Joseph F. Pisconere Jr., a 175-kegler; Cpl. Lawrence Adams and Sgt. Frank C. Grysho, who also caught for the 508th post - champion softball team last Summer.

Company I has a standing challenge: "We'll challenge any company - size bowling team in the Third Army Area, in a match-game series!"

How about basketball?

Company I sets the pace for the 508th Infantry Regiment there, too. First off, there's 6 foot, 3 inch Sfc Chuck J. Cooke, forward for the Wingate (N. C.) Junior College team that won the national junior college title in 1947-48. Sfc Cooke, along with company clerk Cpl. Manuel Marquez, also was runner-up in the 508th table tennis doubles tourney. Sfc Cooke coached and captained the 508th's champion cage team from the 3rd Battalion and captained the 1951 court squad in the 325th AIR.

Come Spring and Company I will field a professional baseball player — Cpl. Jack L. Bacon of Los Angeles, a promising shortstop in the St. Louis Cardinals chain before he came to the troopers. During the just - ended football season, Company I suited - up these 508th gridders — Pfc William E. Bean, defensive tackle, and Pfc. Norm Mueller, defensive guard. Led by Lt. Francis Howard, Company I also set the pace when the 508th won the post swimming crown last Summer. And Pfc Ed Carberry was a Sand Hill Life Guard.

On top of all this, Company I also is one of the finest rifle companies in the 508th. A tribute to the leadership of Capt. Harsh, 205-pound football tackle for Michigan State in 1940 and a World War II paratrooper with the 551st Parachute Battalion and the old 508th AIR.

NO, NO . . . In excitement of scoring knockdown over Leon Hall, of Combat Training Command, Bill Frank, (left), almost registers illegal blow. Referee Arthur Hyman rushes in to give the count to downed CTC fighter. Hall got up, however, and punched out decision over Frank in final bout of last Wednesday's prep ring match at Briant Wells Field House.

Boxing Team Works Hard For Tournament Jan. 21

After holiday leaves, the 18-man Area Service Unit Provisional group boxing team is working overtime in preparation for the Infantry Center tournament scheduled Jan. 21.

Coach Larry Jones states that plenty of rough work will be on the menu as most of the fighters look to be out of condition due to eating so many rich foods and the 10 day lay-off.

Jones was not too pleased with the showing the Raiders made in its first test as they defeated the Combat Training command before Christmas, but feels that the experience would help.

"Some of our novice fighters made many mistakes that will need correcting before tournament time and that calls for lots of work," sayd Jones.

The Raider squad, which has dominated boxing since World War II, didn't look as strong in its tussle with the Combat Training command according to boxing authorities on the post. They do admit that the team has possibilities and will get stronger with experience.

Only one of the 1951 Raider team is returning, Third Army Bantamweight champ George Alest, from the championship squad and it is realized in the ASU camp that this could be the year to be de-throned.

Boxing authorities say that it is impossible to replace fighters like Fort Benning Featherweight champ Oran Garrison, Fort Benning Lightweight champion.

Boyd, Fort Benning light heavyweight king last year, is still

Messes, PX Set To Place Boxes For Crusade

Coin boxes for voluntary contributions to the Cusade for Freedom will soon be placed in post exchange branches and officers and non-commissioned officers' messes throughout the post.

The crusade is a non-government project supporting Radio Free Europe, which beams freedom broadcasts to countries behind the Iron Curtain.

The drive has been approved by the Secretary of Defense, and is headed by General Lucius D. Clay, national chairman.

Combat Men Asked To Hold Pay Back

WASHINGTON —(AFPS)— In an effort to hold down the flow of U. S. money circulating in the combat zone, the Army Chief of Finance Maj. Gen. Bickford E. Sawyer has encouraged soldiers to take advantage of the "carry-over plan."

This plan, outlined in SR 35-2000-1 as amended, allows a soldier to decide how much of his monthly pay he wants to draw. The rest of the money is carried over and added to that of subsequent months.

Then at any future time he can draw all the cash that has been held for him by notifying his personnel officer of the amount he wahts to draw.

PLATTER CHATTER

This is your former dee jay . . . Okie Al starting to spout off about the platters again. With the thoughts of most people being on—how much a pound of butter is going to cost in 52' —will Taft or Eisenhower run for president on the Republican ticket—is the earth round . . . or are there some people who believe that it should be square . . . and have set their goal in life trying to shoot the four corners off??

Let's spin a record or two and try to enjoy life?? For a look at 1952, there are some mighty fine waxings about to come your way. Hope that the first shipment to your local record store isn't all sold out of the pressings you'll want.

Available - under the Decca label-December 31st was a new waxing of Jalouise. On the reverse side of this platter you'll find "I'LL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS, this latter was featured in the MGM picture of the same name. Recording artist for both of the fine numbers was Jessee Crawford. Does the name throw you? He's an organist . . . not a new cherper.

Also available on the day that ended 1951 — one platter by Russ Morgan and his orchestra . . . "Music in the Morgan Manner" and the other in two numbers by the Ray Charles singers. Russ Morgan's platter consists of DANCE ME LOOSE and on the reverse side is RIVER IN THE MOONLIGHT. Numbers by the Ray Charles Singers are . . . MOTHER, AT YOUR FEET IS KNEELING and backing it up is GOOD NIGHT, SWEET JESUS.

Jerry Gray and his orchestra have recorded an album "A Tribute to Glen Miller" for Decca that should prove to be an all time great seller and collectors item. This album will be available for 78 and 45 RPM record players. For a brief run down, this album will consist of the following elections:

is a graduate of the University of Alabama.

Lt. Spence served with the 35th Infantry regiment, 25th division, from the days of the Pusan perimeter until last spring. He is a veteran of the hard fought battles both north and south of the 38th parallel. While in Korea, he was awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge and Distinguished Unit Citation. A native of New York, he has been in the service six years. His mother, Mrs. Mae Joanna Spence, resides at 807 E. 242nd street, The Bronx.

Sgt. Wenzel, only enlisted member of the team, was an assistant squad leader in the intelligence and reconnaissance platoon, Ninth Infantry regiment, Second division, from July to December, 1950. While in Korea, he was awarded the Purple Heart medal and the silver star to the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

on the post, but will represent the First Student regiment.

George Allen, bantamweight; Leanders Ray, lightweight; Rudolph Chles middleweight; Robert Cotton, heavyweight; and Freeman Thatcher, middleweight, looked impressive in winning the five bouts that gave the Raiders its win over the Combat Training command and should go a long way in the tournament.

William Frank, a newcomer, lost his first bout since arriving here to Leon Hall of the Combat Training command, but should give someone trouble in the tournament in the welterweight division. Hiss loss to Hall was the third in his career out of 30 starts.

The Raiders ace, Clifford "The Poor Private" Wilborn, didn't have an opponent against Combat Training command and will probably see his first action in the tournament

25th OC Company Chief Is Basketball Coach Too

CAPT. W. C. HACKER

Coaching the Third Student regimental basketball team is Capt. William C. Hacker, commanding officer, 25th Officer Candidate company. Capt. Hacker has played basketball in high school, college and in the Army.

While a high school student in Paragon, Indiana, he participated in basketball, baseball and track, winning letters in all three sports.

In 1938 he attended the University of Indiana, where he played baseball and basketball for one year. Scheduled for the baseball team's spring tour that season were two games with Fort Benning.

It was during the final game of this series that Capt. Hacker broke his leg sliding into third base. This injury ended his athletic career at College. During his senior year, however, he coached the University's high school team at Bloomington, Indiana.

In 1943 Capt. Hacker joined the Army, and was integrated into the Regular Army in 1946. During the 1949-1950 basketball season Capt. Hacker coached the Camp Carson team and in 1950 coached the Camp McCoy baseball team until he received orders to report to the Far East Command. He served there with the 2D Logistical Command for 11 months.

Concerning his team's chances this season, Capt. Hacker chooses to remain silent. "Let's just call them a dark horse," he said.

CALCULATOR PUT THREE DOWN AND CARRIED ONE
The Dog Wandered On The Post And Found A Home

Post Visitors See Site Of Monument to a Cur Dog

Visitors at this vast army post sometimes are startled upon learning that a well-constructed monument adjacent to the beautiful Infantry School building here is dedicated to the memory of a cur dog.

Inscribed in bronze on a carved white stone block are these words:

"Calculator, Born? Died Aug. 23, 1923; He made better dogs of us all."

Calculator, so named because of his peculiar manner of "putting down three and carrying one" leg, first put in an appearance one day prior to 1923. He wandered about the post, decided he liked it and made it known that he had come to stay.

Soon he became the unofficial mascot of the post and regarded all ranks from private to general as his friend. During duty hours he could be seen trotting all over the post.

But once evening rolled around he would knock off for a few hours in nearby Columbus where he toured the spots with one of his enlisted friends.

Usuaully, however, just prior to curfew he would hotfoot it on all three cylinders to a well-known hotel and catch a ride to the post with some colonel or captain, having found that a private automobile was much more comfortable than a bus for a lame dog.

When Calculator died, the entire post mourned and personnel contributed to a fund for the monument in his memory.

Sec. Pace Rejects Army Pay Holdout For Combat Men

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A plan to regulate the amount of cash to be paid to combat personnel has been rejected by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr.

The plan had been recommended by a three-man team from the Army Finance Office after returning from an investigation of the finance situation in Korea.

The Secretary said he thought the answer should be increased amounts set asdie for family allotments, larger "soldier deposits" allotments on which there is four percent interest, and more bond buying.

Shields Receives WOJG Promotion

Sfc. Billy F. Shields, Tutwiler, Miss., has been appointed a warrant officer, junior grade here and assigned to the First Student brigade.

He was sworn in by Lt. Col. John J. Lavin, commanding officer of the Infantry School detachment, at an informal ceremony Dec. 28.

Shields is a native of Water Valley, Miss., and graduated from high school at Webb, Miss., in 1942. He attended Jacksonville (Ala.) State Teachers college.

He entered the Army in May, 1943, at Camp Shelby, Miss., and served in Japan in 1945 and in Korea from May, 1948, until June, 1949. Shields was stationed at Fort Benning as operations sergeant on the Operations Training committee of the Infantry School in 1947-48. He returned here in February, 1950, from the G-3 at Fort Bliss, Tex.

SUPERIOR RATING

The mess staff of the 116th Company, Second Student Regiment has received a rating of superior for December by Lt. Col. Howard F. Haberman, regimental commander.

Statistics Prove They Can Be Wrong

Fort Benning personnel have proven that statistics can be wrong.

The Post Safety Office originally announced that they expected a total of four deaths and 30 injuries to personnel of the reservation over the holiday period.

From Dec. 21 to Dec. 30 inclusive there have been a total of 15 injuries with only one fatality recorded.

The initial prediction was that approximately 75 per cent of all accidents over the holidays would involve motor vehicles. As of Dec. 30 seven of the injuries were incurred in motor vehicle accidents.

The great reduction and low accident rate over the holidays has been attributed to top command interest demonstrated to the personnel of their commands.

DISCHARGED

Pvt. James F. Harahan, 33rd Transportation Truck company, was honorably discharged last week and has returned to his home in New York.

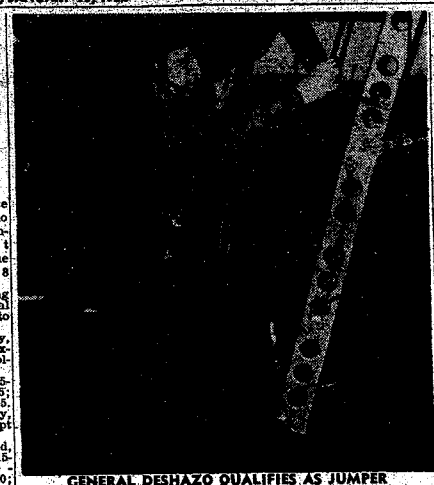
OC Selection Studied Here

Dr. Marshall N. Heyman of the Army's Personnel Research Section, Washington, D.C., has arrived here to study the methods of selecting students for the Infantry Officer Candidate School.

He will be here until Jan. 10, studying statistical information on students compiled by The Infantry School.

Dr. Heyman will investigate officer candidates' test score values, age and educational qualifications. These studies will be used for research planning in the future.

Dr. Heyman, also has visited the Signal Officer Candidate School at Fort Monmouth, N. J., the Armored Officer Candidate School at Fort Knox, Ky., the Artillery Officer Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla., and the Engineer Officer Candidate School at Fort Belvoir, Va.



GENERAL DESHAZO QUALIFIES AS JUMPER
He Is Slated For Command Of 11th Airborne Divarty

World Military Men See Training Here

Military leaders from all over the world saw the U. S. fighting man in training at The Infantry School here during the past six months.

One hundred and forty one visitors from foreign countries, including war ministers and royalty, watched the Doughboy studying the latest Infantry weapons and tactics.

One of the most colorful guests was Prince Mishaal Bin Abdul Aziz, son of King Ibn Saud and Saudi Arabian minister of defense. The prince who was here last November was accompanied by a party of 10.

Prince Mishaal loaded up with American products while in the U. S., but probably his most impressive purchase was six Cadillacs.

At Fort Benning, he saw the power of Infantry might, training and weapons and received reassurance that "Arabia has put its trust in a country that has the power and potentialities to back up its promises."

Another name in the news, Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, valiant commander of the French forces in Indo - China, toured Fort Benning in September and pronounced it the best training camp in the world, both "technically and psychologically."

The general, wearing a black arm-band in mourning for his only son killed fighting Communists in Indo-China, said:

"Only precious youth can preserve freedom and peace by willingly doing rude, quick and gallant things."

In his whirlwind visit here, Gen. de Latire impressed Infantry School personnel with the acuteness of his observations on the training.

Also here in September was Lt. Gen. Ole Berg, chief of the Joint Norwegian Defense Staff who came to The Infantry Center on his way to a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Canada. The general proved he is an accomplished diplomat as well as a military man when he was questioned on Norway's part in the defense on Europe. He smiled and answered:

South and Central America sent their fair share of representatives here to see U. S. defense preparations, too. Among the top brass were Gen. Leonidas Plaeda Maldonado, acting minister of war of Honduras; Maj. Gen. Zenon Norlega A., Peruvian minister of war, and Gen. Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, commanding general of the Colombian armed forces.

Joining this nation's civilian business, industrial and religious leaders here for the 10th and 11th Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences in October and November were NATO newspapermen making a tour of the U. S.

Also attending the October conference was Lt. Gen. Marcel Carpentier, French Army chief of staff for logistics and administration, SHAPE.

Other important visitors were Brig. Gen. Pietro Riccardi, deputy chief of the Italian Army General Staff, and Lt. Col. Jacinto T. Gavino, commandt of the Philippines Infantry School, in October; and Maj. Gen. C. D. Toet, commanding general of the Royal Netherlands Army's Second Division, Lt. Gen. Theodore Gregoropoulos, chief of national defense, General Staff of Greece, and Lt. Gen. Sudhi Sudhisan Ronakara, chief of the Thai Army staff, in November.

General Wins Jumper Status

Gen. T. E. deShazo Slated For Airborne Artillery Command

A record has been set for jumping generals with the graduation here of Brig. Gen. Thomas E. deShazo from The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

The general, who recently returned from the battlefields of Korea where he commanded the Second Infantry Division, has only six days of preparatory training before he started making his five qualifying jumps. The regular course presupposes at least two weeks of ground and tower training before students start jumping.

Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander and Infantry School commandant, presented Gen. deShazo his wings at a ceremony Jan. 5.

New Job

Gen. deShazo's next assignment will be commanding general of the 17th Airborne Division Artillery at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Although his only previous contact with an airborne unit had been fighting alongside troops from the 187th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team in Korea last May, the general said he had few qualms about hiting the silk.

Training at The Infantry School is "so comprehensive," he stated, "that it resolves any uneasy doubts one might have about jumping. After completing the schedule of progressive training, your mental attitude is such that jumping is almost automatic."

Gen. deShazo has been stationed overseas much of the past 10 years. He was with the Sixth Armored Group in Italy, France and Germany from July, 1943, to November, 1944, was an origianl member of the Mission for Aid to Turkey from November, 1947, to March, 1950, and was with the IX Corps in Korea from August, 1950, until assigned to the Second Division last March.

Artillery Graduate

He is a graduate of the Artillery School Command and General Staff College and National War College. He was assistant commandant of the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla. from November, 1944, until November, 1947.

His decorations and awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit and Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters.

Chief Of Staff From Belgium Arrives Today

Lt. Gen. J. B. Piron, chief of staff, Belgian Army will arrive at the Infantry School today for a three-day visit.

On his arrival at noon, the Belgian leader was greeted with a Guard of Honor by troops from the Combat Training Command. A 17-gun salute was fired by the 41st Field Artillery battalion and music will be by the 122nd Army Band.

During the afternoon the general will meet the Infantry School commandant, Maj. Gen. John H. Church, former commander of the 24th Infantry division in Korea, and see Infantry School facilities. Tonight he will watch students taking night training in the field.

Tomorrow General Piron will see officer candidates and paratroopers in training and visit the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat team now stationed in the Sand Hill area for the Post. He will also witness firing of 57mm and 75mm recoilless rifles.

Before leaving Fort Benning for New Orleans, La., Saturday morning the general will visit the communications and automotive departments of The Infantry School.

On his tour in the United States the general is scheduled to visit New York, Washington, D. C., Fort Monroe, Va., Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

Colorful Posters Help Reduce Liquor Sales To Minor Soldiers

Bright red-and-white posters in local retail beer outlets reflect the latest cooperative step between the brewing industry and military authorities to prevent minors in uniform from passing as adults.

Col. Richard S. McConnell, Fort Benning provost marshall, reported that the posters have been on display in this area for about a month. "The appearance of the posters here in this short time," he said, "has indicated that they will prove effective in stopping the sale of beer to minors in uniform."

William I. Truby, director of the Georgia division, U. S. Brewers Foundation, said the posters have been distributed to 2,000 outlets patronized by servicemen and he urged all retail dealers to display the poster in a prominent place.

The poster reproduces the new Army identification card carried by all servicemen with shows their age and description. The poster acts as a reminder to both the retailer and serviceman that beer cannot be sold to persons under 21 years of age, and the cards must be checked where age is doubtful.

The posters have been distributed throughout the United States to establishments frequented by servicemen.

Colonel McConnell, speaking on the posters, said "I am pleased with the appearance of the

508th S-2 Has Confusing Army Career Up to Now

A former captain who was just promoted to first lieutenant in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat team holds the Distinguished Service Cross, two Silver Stars, three Bronze Stars, and four Purple Hearts.

He is 1st Lt. Howard E. Williams, who was assigned to the 506th recently.

Lt. Williams has had such a fantastic Army career that we might just as well stop right now. For you won't believe it. Furthermore, many of the missions he went on still are top-secret.

But it's not too secret that Col. Joe S. Lawrie is overjoyed to have the former Guerilla School expert as one of his 508th Red Devil paratroopers. Happy to have him as Assistant S-2.

LT. HOWARD E. WILLIAMS

Only last October, 1st Williams as a master sergeant received decorations to several 508th officers and enlisted men. That's when he was an instructor in the TIC Ranger School.

With nine years' service in the Army, Lt. Williams served more than half of it operating behind Japanese lines all over the South Pacific. As an Alamo Scout, his missions endured from three days to several months. Once he was declared "missing in action" for 108 days around Formosa not long after Japan made its infamous sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

On another of his "lone ranger" forays, he was slipping up on a Jap sentry. Suddenly, he was hit from the side by another Jap. His knife dropped. In a flash, the Jap picked it up and slashed at Lt. Williams: But soon, two Japs were left quivering corpses.

Quite hair - raising (and his is very thin these days) for a guy who led a quiet life as a commercial photographer in New York City before the Army got him in 1942. And you'd think a fellow with that background would constantly be bothered with bursting shirt buttons.

But not the modest Lt. Williams.

He's worried about being able to measure-up in the 508th.

"After all," he worries. "Most of my jobs were in small bands or all by my lonesome. This is the first time I've ever operated in a regiment and I've got a lot to learn!"

So how about the rest of us?

Ex Sergeant Now On Duty As Captain

James D. Williams, formerly a master sergeant in Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, Combat Training Command, last week was called to active duty in his reserve grade of captain. Col. Ralph N. Woods, commanding officer of the 30th and CTC, made the announcement.

Captain Williams has been reassigned to the 47th Infantry Division, Camp Rucker, Ala. He had been on duty in the adjutant's section here.

A soldier for 15 years, Captain Williams was commissioned in 1943. He was in Korea with the 1st Cavalry Division for a year, and during World War II served twenty-two months in the Southwest Pacific with the 24th Division.

His decorations include the Silver Star with one cluster, Bronze Star with two clusters, Purple Heart with three clusters, and the Combat Infantry Badge.

EM Receives Bars For Second Time

Sgt. William J. Allison, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Student Regiment, was called to active duty as a First Lt. Jan. 3.

Lieutenant Allison first received his commission in March, 1943, as a member of the Army Air Corps. He left the service in January, 1946 and reenlisted in April, 1950. He was assigned to Fort Knox, Ky.

Lieutenant Allison was assigned to Fort Benning last March as a member of the personnel section of the First Student Regiment.

On Jan. 7 he reported to the Second Student Regiment to attend a 15 week Associate Company Officer course.

Chaplain Says Chinese POW's Reluctant to Rejoin Commies

Many Chinese prisoners-of-war in Korea want to join Chiang Kai-Shek's forces on Formosa, according to Chaplain (Capt.) Alexander Lewis, who was until recently chaplain at the main United Nations POW camp there.

Chaplain Lewis, who has joined the Combat Training Command chaplain's staff, said the prisoners did all sorts of things to keep from being returned to Communist forces.

To impress authorities with their determination to stay away from the Communists, he said, many of the Chinese prisoners tattooed themselves as anti-Communists, signed their names in blood, and promised suicide if they are forced to return.

Most of them claim to be former followers of Chiang in the Nationalist army, forced to join Mao's Reds. They do not blame Chiang for his failure on the mainland, believing that he was simply over - powered through no fault of his own, the Chaplain continued.

There were three compounds in the PW camp on an island off southern Korea. The Chinese occupied one, North Koreans the second, and South Koreans the third. South Korean prisoners of war were men who had refused to join ROK forces and had been swept up in Communist advances, forced to fight for the North Koreans, and finally captured by the United Nations.

Of the three groups, Chaplain Lewis said, the Chinese were the model prisoners, cooperative and hard-working, and grateful for treatment which was better than they had received in their own army. Despite Red indoctrination, they believed in the American way of life.

Only somewhat more than half of the North Koreans were anti-Communist. The captured South Koreans made the most trouble, complaining that they should not be held, the chaplain reported.

Chaplain Lewis was in charge of coordinating the work of twelve certified Korean pastors and eight missionaries used as Army chaplains. Religious response was tremendous. "It was not uncommon to have 30,000 to 40,000 prisoners at one service," the chaplain estimated.

Many of the prisoners were at first non-Christians — Buddhists and Confucionists. Several thousand of the Chinese requested conversion and became Christians, Captain Lewis recalled.

"The Americans lived up to the Geneva Convention to the letter," he declared. "When I left, the camp had requested a Buddhist chaplain. . . Regulations of the convention were posted, and the prisoners knew them, sometimes demanding rights to which they were entitled."

During his service at the prisoner of war camp, Chaplain Lewis was on detached service to the 60th General Depot from the 93d Engineer Construction Battalion, which he joined at Guam in 1949, and accompanied to Okinawa and Korea.

508th Troopers To Get Training In Intelligence

Paratroopers of the 508th Airborne Infantry will benefit from a special appearance of a Third Army intelligence instruction team at Theater 6 next Monday, (Jan. 14) Instruction will be sugar-coated in that a two-hour stage will dramatize techniques of military intelligence operatives in the field.

Actors in the intelligence show are members of the 525th Military Intelligence Service Group, of the XVIII Airborne Corps, stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C. The same team appeared at Fort Benning about two months ago to stage its "road show" for most units of The Infantry Center.

The special performances have been arranged for the 508th Airborne, however, it was stated today, because of the unique role played by airborne fighting men in gathering intelligence in their back-of-the-lines raids in combat.

The paratroopers will be divided into groups to see shows at 0800, 1000 and 1300 next Monday.

Army Unveils Lightweight .30 Cal. Rifle

By Armed Forces Press Service

The Army has unveiled a new lightweight rifle capable of firing a new type .30 caliber cartridge at the full automatic rate of 700 rounds per minute.

The rifle weighs 8 lbs., about 1 3-4 lbs. less than the M-1. It is gas-operated and at the present time at least two variations in the mechanical design have proven satisfactory.

The new cartridge, called the T-65, looks like the present standard round but is shorter and lighter in weight. This makes it available for use in rifles and machine guns having mechanisms shorter and therefore lighter than is possible with the standard .30 caliber ammunition.

The new rifle is now at the stage of development as that of the M-1 when it was adopted in 1936. More than a million rounds of T-65 ammunition have been fired.

From the tests it has been determined that the new rifle in the hands of a skilled marksman will deliver 46 hits per minute at 100 yards on a man-size target.

FA Group Joins Post CTC Unit

Big guns of the 198th Field Artillery Battalion have moved into Fort Benning from Camp Polk, La., to join the Combat Training Command.

Col. Ralph N. Woods, commander of the Combat Training Command, was on hand at Fort Benning junction to greet the officers and men of the newly assigned 155 Howitzer Battalion last Monday.

The 198th Field Artillery Battalion, a National Guard unit from Louisville, Ky., was called to active service May 1, 1951. The unit dates back before the Indian Wars—at that time, it was the 138th Field Artillery Regiment.

During World War I, it was with the 38th "Cyclone" Division in France, and the South Pacific was the battalion's battleground during World War II. In four years of action, the battalion supported, among others, the 27th, 96th and 7th Divisions in the battles for the Philippines and Okinawa. For action in the Philippines, the 198th was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation.

Major Christopher H. Bonnet, on temporary duty from the 816th Field Artillery, reported to Colonel Woods as the battalion's temporary commanding officer.

Major Bonnet is acting for Lt. Col. William J. Takacs, newly assigned commander, who is enroute from the Far East Command.

One of the smoothest-voiced radio announcers we have heard in a long time is now assigned to the Radio Branch, PIO-TIC. His name is Pvt. John Silaman, and he's been in the Army only a short time. Prior to joining Uncle Sam's Army, he worked in radio stations in the northern states. Also assigned to the Radio Branch, PIO-TIC, is Cpl. Harry Newman, ex-radio announcer from AFRS outlets in Panama. Listeners to Fort Benning radio shows aired from Columbus stations will be hearing both the announcers mentioned much in the coming weeks.

Speaking of AFRS, that branch of the Department of Defense got a salute on "Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM, 12 to 12:15 p.m. Sundays) last weekend. Featured on the program were the actual announcers at Fort Benning's AFRS outlet, WFBS in the U. S. Army hospital here.

"Musical Memory Room" (Channel 3, WFBS, 8 to 9 p.m. Fridays) will start a new year tonight, with yours truly at the microphones and turntables. As usual, the show will feature platters from out of the past, and historical notes to go along with the ancient biscuits.

Things should start humming in the 1st Student brigade, now that Capt. Louis Holtz has a brand-new Magnacorder tape recorder. But Captain Holtz won't be around long to direct its operation; he leaves for a service school soon, and 2nd Lt. John Graves will fill in until the captain returns in a few weeks. The brigade plans to increase their turn-out of tapes to hometown stations of members of the brigade, and to intensify their output of material for local use. Production will take place in the PIO of the 1st Student brigade.

If you haven't heard "Benning News Parade" (WDAK, 7 to 7:15 p.m. Saturdays) lately, you'd better tune in and hear the new format being used on that program. The news of Fort Benning is not only reported on the show, but dramatized as well. We think you'll like the new style of news reporting now being used on "Benning News Parade."

Does the reader remember Sgt. Sam McCracken and the Pine Lodge orchestra? If you do then you'll be interested in knowing that the sergeant and his aggregation is now in Germany with the 4th Inf. Div., and the orchestra is now called the "Militaires." The group recently played for a big talent contest in the Lamgarten Service Club, Frankfurt, Germany. While at Fort Benning, Sergeant McCracken and his band were heard on many radio shows from stations in Columbus.

It's farewell and good luck to singer Pvt. John Medenos, formerly assigned to the TIC Chaplain's section. We wish the best of luck in his new assignment AND on his TV program.

Almost one-third of the annual budget of the American Red Cross — about $26,800,000 —was spent serving the Armed Forces throughout the world during the past fiscal year, it was announced recently by E. Roland Harriman, President of the Red Cross.

In the first 12 months of the Korean conflict, cases and requests from Servicemen and women handled by the Red Cross at all stateside and overseas posts averaged 316,100 a month, 50 percent more than the preceding year.

This included $5,107,400 in financial assistance and an additional $5,021,700 made available for emergency needs of Service personnel and their families.

In Korea during an 11-month period over 2,000,000 articles, such as razors, soap, toothbrushes, toothpaste, towels, cigarettes, tobacco and candy, were given out free to wounded Servicemen in immediate need of them.

The American Red Cross is now operating a service club at Pusan, large stationary canteens at four Korean air bases and a fifth at Sasebo, Japan; all serving coffee and doughnuts free to fighting men. They serve more than 30,000 men daily.

10 Per Cent Pay Raises Urged

Legislation and public support for a 10 per cent pay raise, combat pay, and Universal Military Service and Training were urged recently by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace in address before the New Orleans, Louisiana, Chamber of Commerce.

"We want the Army to attract our best young men and women—we feel that only by having the best can we do our full share of the work of the Nation in the years to come," Mr. Pace said.

He added, "But there are certain specific things which remain to be done . . . things by itself. Legislaton is needed to initiate them, and the understanding of the public is needed to support them, once they are initiated."

The Secretary of the Army, in support of a 10 per cent pay raise, noted that the Consumers Price Index has increased 10.5 per cent between October 1949 and November 1951, and that during that period most workers had received several pay raises.

The manufacturing industries have seen pay raises of 17 per cent in the period, Mr. Pace observed, and then listed the "hidden expenses" peculiar to service life which have increased in recent years. He mentioned the frequent station changes and "prohibitively expensive" housing, to highlight these expenses.

Observing that while most men weren't motivated to come into the Army for money, he warned "there are certain sacrifices we cannot ask them to make indefinitely."

In urging combat pay, Mr. Pace stated that inasmuch as Congress has long recognized the principle that those who brave extra hazards should receive extra pay, "we are asking for the logical extension of that principle to include those in the Armed Forces who engage in the most hazardous duty of all—actual battle."

Hope Is Ingredient of Religious Individuals

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST LT) DAVID RAAB

Hope is an ingredient of every individual who has a religious outlook and philosophy of life. It sustained the American people in times of difficulty, in days of danger of body and soul. Without hope a spirit of cynicism, pessimism and despair hovers about us, but with it darkness fashioned out of chaos, peace made possible instead of war and love abides in the human heart instead of hatred.

In beautiful majestic language, Lord Byron in "The Bird of Abydos", said of hope:

"Be thou the rainbow to the storms of life,
The evening beam that smiles the clouds away,
And tints tomorrow with prophetic ray".

These prophetic words emphasize that with hope life becomes meaningful, for there is something to look forward, to yearn for, to aspire and to achieve. Hope is the anchor of all time, the Rock of all ages. When all fails, it is there to smile and encourage you. It seems to say, "Don't give up! Strive! Do not yield!"

Religion teaches us that life is not all sweetness. Life has its moments of joy and sorrow, of happiness and anguish, of anger and glee. But where hope is present even sorrow becomes joy, anguish turned into happiness and anger is replaced by glee. Life without hope is not life but an illusion. Life with it is life where God's spirit hovers, where beauty abounds, where people emerge out of despair and out of the depths of misery.

Hope causes cynicism to disappear. It drives away melancholy, announces the clarion call for a new dawn, a new Spring Season and the possibility for a world where "the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man" will reign supreme as prophetic ideals put into practice.

Where there is hope, we find ourselves inspired to greater creativity. We become poets and we put into writing the greatest ideals for which humanity is still striving. Optimism radiates confidence in each of us. It enables us to look forward to happiness—to the goal of religion—when "the lion and the lamb shall walk together," and when each individual "shall dwell under his vine and under his fig tree and none shall make afraid".

In whose heart hope abides there is happiness and there is anchorage of the soul unto eternity. In whose soul it will dwell, that person will always feel that "'tis always morning somewhere in the world." Even though the future may be locked, religion and hope will unlock it. People will hope in their hearts were sustained in the past. Hope will sustain and guide us unto the future in these turbulent years of the Atomic bomb. Without hope there is no future, but with it there is a future and a beginning, for it is truly the throbbing impulse of humanity. Hope does not look backward, but has her eyes ever toward the unborn and better days.

According to a Greek fable, we are told that when all miseries were scattered among men, man was still permitted to retain hope for without it the world would be in a state of despair.

No doubt you are familiar with the story of the sage who lived stop a mountain and was reputed to be able to answer any question put before him. A young man who thought he could make the sage fail to answer one of his questions, was walking one day in the fields and noticed a struggling little bird. He picked it up. "Ha, ha", he exclaimed, "I shall take this bird to the sage, place it behind my back, and ask him, "O sage, what do I have in my hand?" If he says, 'it's a bird, I shall continue to ask him, 'is it dead or alive?' If he says that it's dead, I shall open my hand and show him that it is alive. But if he says that it is alive, I shall crush it, and show him that it is dead." The next morning the young man approached the sage and asked him, "what do I have in my hand, O sage?" "You have a bird, my son", answered the sage, "That's correct, answered the boy. "Is it dead, or is it alive?" The sage hesitated for a moment, looked at the boy and said: "It is as you will it."

Similarly, it is in our hands, whether we are going to have a bright world or a dark world; whether the young men and women in our armed forces will cover themselves with glory and bring honor to our country, or be a symbol of cowardice and shame before the world. It is also in our hands whether our young people will grow up to be tomorrow's world where peace and good fellowship will reign or whether the boys of today will make a mess of the world of tomorrow. It is also in our hands whether we are to look at the dark side of life or look at the sunny side of everything and make our ideals come true.

It is in our hands whether we are going to become optimists or pessimists. Religion shows us the way to optimism. Let us follow its teachings. It is the path which leads to light, and a better tomorrow.

General Ike Says He Will Take Nomination

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced Monday that if drafted he would run as Republican presidential candidate this year. He emphasized that he would not seek the presidential nomination under any circumstances, nor would he engage in any campaign for convention delegates. But he gave his boosters in the U. S. the go-ahead to try and win him the draft. "A clear-cut call to duty", as he put it.

Congress reconvened in Washington Tuesday, and administration leaders aimed for a brisk session so that Congress could adjourn before the major political conventions convene in July. But Rep. Martin of Mass., Republican leader in the House predicted a long session extending beyond the July conventions.

He doubted there would be much legislation, but told reporters, appropriations bills and investigations are likely to delay adjournment.

On The Bookshelf

BY PFC. LEE COHN

More than forty-five generals were discovered in Sand Hill on a typical day last week. And, believe it or not, such old-timers as George Washington and Robert E. Lee were among them. The younger set was also well represented by such vigorous soldiers as General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It was an informal gathering, with the generals telling both enlisted men and officers their innermost secrets, from boyhood to old age, from grand strategy to prep school pranks.

West Point reunion? No, Seance? Certainly not.

The generals were gathered on the book shelves of Library No. 2 in the Combat Training Command area of Sand Hill.

Among the American generals represented by biographies and autobiographies are Kenney, Wainwright, Grant, Andrew Jackson, Houston, MacArthur, Marshall, Billy Mitchell, Patton, Pershing, Sherman, Taylor, and Harrison.

Generalship is an international profession. Buck privates and their comrades in arms browsing in Sand Hill meet Chiang Kai-shek; Cortez, the cruel conqueror of Mexico; De Gaulle, leader of the Free French and now a French political power; and Garibaldi, Italy's great unifier.

And there's Toussaint, the almost legendary revolutionist of Haiti; Wellington, the gentleman who kept his appointment with Napoleon at Waterloo; Petain, the World War I French hero and the World War II traitor; Romulo, the Filipino general and statesman and Goering, the German air lord who cheated the Nurnberg hangman with a vial of poison.

Also classified as generals, though their main interests lie elsewhere, are Churchill, Stalin, Hitler, and Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia.

Generals' stars are important, but so are the bars, birds, and leaves of lesser military lights. YANKEE FIGHTER is the story of an American lieutenant in the French Foreign Legion.

A colonel, Lawrence of Arabia, was one of the world's most colorful soldiers. Teddy Roosevelt, of Roughrider fame, was another colonel. RANGER MOSBY is the story of a Confederate guerilla who wore a dashing plumed hat and made life miserable for the Yankees.

And there's also the Navy, with such luminaries as Magellan, the first hardy soul to sail around the world, between book covers in Sand Hill.

Of special interests in these days of an expanding Army is CAPTAIN RETREAD, the tale of a World War I officer who returns from civilian life to fight another, essentially young man's, war a quarter century later.

The ladies get in a word or three about military life with TOGETHER: ANNALS OF AN ARMY WIFE.

To Amuse You Today

Annoyed at a slow - moving motorist, the bus driver leaned on his horn until his passenger's ears rang. A ten-year-old boy seated behind him glared witheringly at the driver and piped: "What else did you get for Christmas?"

Doctor (self-satisfied): "You cough more easily this morning."

Patient: "I should! I've been practicing all night."

As the lady of the house was showing the new maid the dining room, she said, "This dining room table goes back to Louis the Fourteenth."

"That's nothing," interrupted the maid. "My whole living room set goes back to Sears the fifteenth."

French lawyer pleading for an attractive client: "Gentlemen of the jury, shall this charming young lady be cast into a lonely cell, or shall she return to her beautiful little apartment at 22 Rue Neuve, Phone 88-39-547"

The difference between in-laws and outlaws is that the in-laws promise to pay it back.

"I'm fed up on that," cried the baby, pointing to the high-chair.

First Cannibal: "Was that your wife I saw you with Sunday?"

Second Cannibal: "No, that was my supper."

Captain: "How long have you been working in this office?"

Private: "Ever since I saw you come in the door, sir."

Funeral Director: "How old are you?"

Prospect: "18."

Funeral Director: Hardly worth going home, is it?"

Electrical Waste Too High On Post

Colonel James F. Torrence Jr., Chairman, Post Utilities Utilization Board has warned that an unnecessary amount of electricity is being used on the post.

This misuse of electricity has been noted primarily at the quarters of personnel living on the post who often allow porch and exterior lights to burn when not required.

In the interest of economical utilization of utilities, personnel are directed to insure that such lights are utilized only when required, Colonel Torrence said.

It has also been pointed out that burning lamps during daylight hours, or during hours of sleep, is unnecessary and wasteful.

Jump Boots Really Belong To Airborne, Troopers Say

BY 1ST LT. ROBERT W. FEENEY
PIO—508th Airborne RCT

Jump boots belong to the paratroopers!

Others in the Armed Forces may wear them, but the shiny, dark "cutie - booties" are the original trademark of the Army's glamour boys, dating back to those pioneer days of 1941-42 when paratrooper boots were a passport to immortality.

Here at Fort Benning, the stronghold of the paratrooper boot is in the Sand Hill area, home of the famous 508th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team and the only combat training organization on the post. The doughty 508th Red Devil swingsters flash all the dash and verve that marked paratroopres of yesterday.

Chief drum - beater for the saga of the jump boot in the 508th is its dynamic little commander, Col. Joe S. Lawrie, a graduate of the fifth jump class in 1941. At 37, the former Louisiana State University football star matches the enthusiasm of his 18 - and 19 - year old enlisted men when it comes to the paratrooper boot.

Pioneer Trooper

Early pioneer paratroopers like Col. Lawrie wore ordinary Army shoes. Some even used tennis shoes.

Then someone devised a leather ankle-top boot with a big metal buckle across the top of the arch. But every so often, after the parachute opened, a trooper would come hunting down like a struggling spider, one leg over his head because a suspension line had hooked the buckle. Same trouble came when jumping the present - day two-buckle combat boot.

Next came a boot called the Corcoran, most beloved of the several brands of jump boots which jammed the market. More or less the official paratrooper boot, the Corcoran sold in Quartermaster Stores for $4.44 in 1943, was upped to $5.15 in 1944, and can be had today for $14.75.

Another popular, well-appearing boot is the Skymaster, which has the same thick sole and slash heel of the Corcoran, but it doesn't quite have the snub, up-turned hard toe of the famed C-boot.

Early Fad

An early fad was to replace the manufacturer's eyelets with huge, brass grommets, and many a trooper made a pocketful of jack re-stamping boots for that brassy look. Brass grommets called for a nightly ritual of removing the 72-inch leather laces and running a blitz cloth through the big eyelets —all 48 of them. It was a ritual so rigid that oldtime jumpers like Lt. Joe Wasco, a 101st Division Screaming Eagle of Normandy fame and recently ordered to the Far East, found it an unbreakable habit when recalled to duty after five years of civilian-itis.

First thing a paratrooper usually does when he gets to a new pair of boots is to stand them in a tub of water for a couple of hours. Then he'll squish them on and hike and hike until the boots are dry and a perfect form-fit to his feet.

Next steps are: 1-Polish, 2-Lace and 3-Blouse the pants.

Some of the foremost professors of polish may be found in Company G of the 508th. Twenty-two-year-old Pfc. Anthony J. Listi, a bugler and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Listi of Patterson, La., spends from two to three hours daily shining his cutie-booties.

Cpl. Bobby Kinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Siedenburg of Batesville, Ark., kept his Corcorans glistening even in the mud and rain during the Camp Rucker maneuvers.

Like Glass

Cpl. Eddie E. Armijo, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Cruz Armijo of Springer, New Mex., and a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, spent nights at Rucker raiding the 47th Infantry Division and days shining his jump boots until they looked like polished glass.

Pfc. Roberts S. Nagey, 20-year-old Company G rifleman whose father, Anthony Nagey, lives at 742 West Grand Boulevard, Detroit, Mich., belongs to the school of thought that deems it a cardinal sin to use anything but the fingers to apply polish. Nagey dilutes a can of Esquire mahogany stain with water and spreads it evenly over the leather. Then he wipes the polish to a high, dark brown gloss with a rag, bringing out the final sparkle with a sprinkling liquid called Glisten. Nagey never uses a brush on his boots.

Veteran jumpers like Lt. Aldo Bettell, Headquarters and Headquarters Company commander and former first sergeant in the original 508th, disdain any polish but Kiwi dark brown, spreading it with the fingers, wiping it down with a strip of nylon or silk and then topping it off with a coating of lustre cream or even auto simonize. Bettell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Bettell of Canyon City, Colo.

Dark Brown

Some airborne commanders, like Col. Lawrie or Brig. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland, first commander of the reactivated 508th, specify that all boots in their outfits will be dark brown. This often is accomplished by dying the boots with a mahogany or dark brown dye, usually Esquire or Lincoln Marine liquid.

Lacing also is the bane of many a commanding officer. Most insist upon the orthodox civilian-type cross lace, specified for the 508th. But a few die-hards from the old days lean towards the lateral lace, which is a series of loops straight across, from eyelet to eyelet, with the cross laces hidden underneath.

Box Lace

Most comfortable and practicable of all is the lateral box lace, a series of loops up each row of eyelets with the cross lacing passed through the loops over the tongue of the boot.

The box lace enables the boot to be drawn snugly around the ankles—a boon when a jumper is nursing sore tendons after a hard landing—yet prevents the cross laces from biting into the arch because the slack in the loops gives and yields with each bend of the ankle.. This is a blessing, too, when the boot laces become soaked. The loop absorbs the swelling and eliminates blisters on the arch.

Only drawback of the box lace is that it is apt to make a trooper late for reveille because it takes twice as long to fashion. But the added comfort is well worth the extra time.

Late in 1944, the Army announced that it would stop issuing jump boots to paratroopers when the supply on hand was gone. This was for a number of reasons, the main one being a shortage of leather.

Once, boots were scarcer and more precious than they are today. In 1945, when Quartermaster stopped issuing them, they sold for $40 a pair right here at Fort Benning. Many a trooper went to sleep with his jump boots chained to his bed.

When paratroopers occupied Sondai, Japan, after World War II, jump boots sold for $100 a pair at the very same time a stray pair in the Quartermaster still sold for $6.90.

So, at least keep them shined. Huh?

Turnage, assistant post recruiting officer, congratulates Cpl. William N. Dennis, Fort Benning's first 1952 reenlistee. Sfc. 30th Infantry Executive Is Ex-Guerilla Instructor

Left jabs are irritating, but it takes a Sunday punch to demolish an opponent. One of the big jobs of World War II was coordination of guerillas' jabs at the enemy with the haymakers of the main Allied war effort.

Maj. Benton M. Austin, the new executive officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment, Combat Training Command, had that assignment as a member of OSS, the Office of Strategic Services, working with guerillas in France and China.

Major Austin, who had been commanding officer of the Third Battalion, 30th, succeeded Lt. Col. Robert M. Booth in regimental headquarters on Jan. 2, Col. Ralph N. Woods, commander of the 30th and of CTC, announced.

Parachuted In France

In June, 1944, Major Austin parachuted into Southern France in command of two other American officers, a French captain, and an American radio operator. There they joined the famed French Maquis.

The OSS team helped organize, train, and equip the Maquis, and furnished communications between the guerillas and Supreme Headquarters. Coordination with the main Allied war effort increased the guerillas' effectiveness and helped ease the way for more orthodox fighting units to do battle with the Axis.

Maquis, with Major Austin's team, demolished railroads and bridges, attacked enemy communications, ambushed convoys, and raided German operations, weakening the invaders of France for major Allied pushes.

Conditions for men fighting this war in the shadows ranged from the highest to the lowest. At one time, Major Austin had a fine chateau for his headquarters; at others, he slept on the ground.

Headquarters Raided

When he was sick, the Germans raided his headquarters. Friendly French carried him off and protected him. In general, Major Austin recalls, the French were hospitable, despite the dangers hospitality to Allied forces involved.

Flitting around France, often just a bare step ahead of the baited Germans, Austin and his comrades used an "odd collection of vehicles, from charcoal burning trucks to alcohol sedans."

The assignment in China was similar to operations in France, "except that we were on foot," the Major remembers wryly.

For his World War II escapades, the Major won the Bronze Star, French Croix de Guerre with palm, and "a Chinese decoration I can't pronounce."

He has been in the Army ten years. Since the war, he has taken the Infantry Officers Advanced Course at the Infantry School, and has been graduated from the regular course at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He has also been a National Guard instructor, and was with the 82d Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., before coming to the 30th at Benning in November, 1950.

A native of Savannah, Ga., Major Austin attended North Georgia Junior College and the University of Florida. His wife and two sons live with him on the post.

14,000 Women Join Services In Big Drive

By Armed Forces Press Service

The Armed Forces today are recruiting 72,000 women to augment their forces and plan to have the quota filled by mid - 1952.

Since the campaign started Nov. 11, more than 14,000 young women have joined the Services and are now in some phase of their training.

To find out how our sisters-in-arms fare during those first critical weeks, AFPS asked some pertinent questions of our distaff members who recently completed their training.

Not unlike their brothers - in-arms, the girls had some definite reactions. Tall, dark and pretty Tina Bagalini, 22, a WAF sergeant from Pittsburgh, Pa., took her basic at Laidland AFB, Texs, and was trained to be a radio operator.

"It's funny when you look back on it," she said, "but at the time we all felt like 'puppies' and knocked ourselves out to do the right thing."

New Course Begins At Eustis Center

Fifty officer and enlisted students of the 31st Infantry Division will form the nucleus of a new centralized training course at Fort Eustis, Va.

Designed to satisfy the aerial transportation training requirements of all branches of the Army, the course will be conducted by the Transportation Corps Training Center.

Purpose of the course is to train and qualify unit officers and non-commissioned officers to serve as instructors for the aerial transportation training of their respective organizations.

ASSIGNED TO 508TH .

Two brand-new warrant officers joined the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team this week. They are WOJG William C. Newton, who was named ARCT Assistant Adjutant under Major Horst K. Joost, and WOJG Joseph E. Kadzis, Food Service. Both were M-Sgts. in the Airborne Department here at Fort Benning.

The play, which will be presented on Feb. 21 and 22 at the Main theater, will be directed by Moria Sheen.

200 EXPECTED FOR COURSE

TELL ME WHY (Four Aces on Decca). If platter buyers liked the Four Aces' version of "Sin," then they're sure to like "Tell Me Why." This recording is on just about every juke-box in the nation, and Deejays are plugging it from eleven at night until dawn on their platter shows. After you hear it we think you'll understand why; the recording is terrific. Featuring the voice of Al Albert, this is easily the best version of the tune on the market today. Flip side is "Garden In The Rain," only so-so in quality. Both sides are excellent for dancing or listening, however.

CHARMAINE (Gordon Jenkins, his chorus and ork on Decca). In the early '30s, a motion picture entitled "What Price Glory" was filmed in Hollywood, and following a trend of the times, a tune entitled "Charmaine" was used as the film's "theme song." This is the same ditty, done up in the inimitable Gordon Jenkins fashion, and its bound to be a big hit all over the country. Although the oldsters will like this recording best, we think the younger generation will love it as much as Mom and Pop did back in 1930. Flip side is "When I Grow Too Old To Dream," featuring a piano solo by the maestro himself. Gordon Jenkins. Incidently, Bob Carroll is soloist on the "Charmaine" side.

HOLD ME, HOLD ME, HOLD ME (Kay Starr, Dave Cavanaugh's Music on Capitol.) If the reader thinks he sees a resemblance between Kay Starr and Beatrice Kaye, the Gay Nineties singing star, he's right; Kay Starr and Beatrice Kaye are one and the same person. Under the name of Beatrice Kaye, the singer made some of the most authentic Gay Nineties on record. Under the name of Kay Starr, she made an entirely new career for herself doing popular and hill-billy tunes. "Hold Me, Hold Me, Hold Me," is from the current Broadway success, "Two On The Aisle," and we think you will like Starr (or Kaye, have it your own way) doing this. Flip is a Jimmy Van Heusen - Eddie DeLange song, "So Help Me."

IN THE MOOD (Jerry Gray and ork on Decca). Do you remember those smooth recordings made by Glenn Miller and his band in the late 'thirties? Well, Jerry Gray arranged quite a few of those old Miller masterpieces. Now the Gray boy has himself a band, and we think the aggregation sound as good (if not better) than the original Miller orchestra. You'll have to decide for yourself on this though. Including in this album is: "In The Mood"; "A String Of Pearls," "Night and Day," "What Is This Thing Called Love"; "Dancing In The Dark"; "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes"; "Desert Serenade"; and "Minuet In G."

COMMUNICATIONS COURSE STARTS

The Infantry Enlisted Communications Course No. 3, which opened January 7, is being held in 16th company, First Student Regiment.

Alaskan Guardsman Here For TIS Infantry Course

An Alaska National Guardsman attending The Infantry School here claims that his home is a land of opptunity for people who want a good — but hard — living.

He is 2nd Lt. Robert R. Blodgett, of College, Alaska, who is presently a member of the 103rd company, Second Student regiment. Lieutenant Blodgett said "The guard is my full-time hobby. I just wish every man in my unit could attend a course here at Benning."

The Iowa native went to Alaska in 1946 to attend a mining engineering course at the University of Alaska, after serving as a radio-gunner in the South Pacific during World War II.

A year later, he lay aside is books and took a job with a construction firm exploring a 35,000 square mile area north of the arctic circle.

He was at Point Barrow, 550 miles north of Fairbanks, when he joined Company C, First Alaska Scout battalion. One hundred and seven members of the unit were Eskimos, used as scouts in patroling the barren coast.

Blodgett reported that the sled-riding Eskimos are strictly by-the-book when it comes to soldiering. They abide by all Guard regulations and are on the same footing as other members of the National Guard.

Blodgett claims College as his home now, for he has many interests there, including a vice presidency in Blodgett and Eidem Mining and Investment company and partnerships in a general store, cafe, apartment building and a launderette.

"In Alaska now," said Blodgett, "the sun would rise about 9:30 in the morning and set at 2:30 in the afternoon. On the other hand, in the summer, it is daylight almost 24 hours. I've even played golf at two in the morning.

"Laborers up there are paid $1.87 an hour, three-room apartments, rent for $160 a month when available, that is gasoline is 42 cents a gallon, and bread is 50 cents a loaf.

"I've seen the temperature drop as low as 68 degrees below zero — but there are four frost-free months every year, and in that time all sorts of crops are produced. Of course the land must be cleared with tractors that cost $14 an hour, then sweetened with fertilizer for about three years. But after that you can grow lettuce, potatoes, carrots and all sorts of crops.

"I couldn't be pulled out of there with a caterpiller tractor," the lieutenant concluded.

508th RCT Emphasizes Supply Economy Program

Take care of what you've got!

That's the latest slogan in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, in line with the Department of Army's emphasis on Supply & Economy.

Not only are the 508th Red Devils interested with lightening the load they expect to jump into combat, but the swaggering soldiers of the sky also are stressing operating with the minimum of luxuries which go to make the U. S. infantryman the world's best equipped warrior.

First of the luxuries to be sliced away is vehicular traffic. During the past month, truck traffic from the 508th's Sand Hill Area to the main post of Fort Benning has been cut in half.

"Now, all daily 508th messenger-runs to the main post are put on the post bus which visits the Sand Hill Area several times a day," points out Capt. Edwin F. Riley, 508th Assistant S-4 who is directing the Scrimp-N'-Save Campaign. "Our normal monthly gasoline consumption has been about 15,000 gallons. We're trying to shave that to less than 10,000 gallons—and that'll be a big saving."

"Another item stressed is the salvage of waste paper and of scrap iron. Frequent inspections are made to keep windows screens locked and furnace-room doors closed to prevent their being damaged during windstorms."

Maj. Archibald L. Hamblen Jr., new 508th ARCT S-4, added, "All officers and enlisted men of the ARCT, including the 508th Infantry Regiment, the 230th Field Artillery Battalion and the 508th Engineer company, are in the midst of an 11-hour lecture-conference on Supply and Economy. Holiday training, run on a roster system, included training films on how to take care of what we've got.

"To provide a goal, a contest is being conducted by a committee, headed by Capt. Riley, to determine the outstanding company battery in the 508th ARCT on Supply & Economy. The winner will be named this Saturday," Maj. Hamblen stated. (Jan. 12).

A good bet to win this unit citation is Headquarters & Headquarters Company of the 508th, commanded by Lt. Aldo Bettelli. A huge display board has been erected in the company's mess hall, listing the price-list for common articles. Such as:

Blankets, $16.09; mattresses, $13.41; sheets, $2; field-jacket hood, $1.47; entrenching shovel, $2.85; etc.

Lt. Bettelli also has had the price-list mimeographed and posted throughout the company area.

FORMER NBC ENGINEER PLANS AIRBORNE HAM STATION
Pvt. Dawson S. Sunter And M-Sgt. Roger Carbajal With Radio Unit

Ex Undertaker Organizes Short Wave Radio Group

A former undertaker and an ex-National Broadcasting Company radio-engineer are rounding up all the "hams" in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team these days.

And "hammy" or not, within a fortnight, the 508th ARCT probably will be short-waving messages all over the U. S. from its own station in Fort Benning's Sand Hill Area.

In fact, Pvt. Dawson S. Hunter, 22-year-old ex-NBC engineer and a licensed commercial radio-telephone operator from Smithtown Branch, Long Island, N. Y., regularly exchanges dots 'n' dashes with another "ham" in Sur La Marne, France.

Pvt. Hunter, who'll operate the 508th station initially under his own call-letters of W2YPA, is organizing the Red Devil "Hams" in collaboration with his immediate boss, M-Sgt. Roger Carbajal, the 508th communications chief. The Sergeant was an undertaker for two years in San Francisco before the Army drafted him in August, 1940.

Lively Head

M-Sgt. Carbajal has a lively interest in setting up a Red Devil short-wave station because he's on the verge of getting his own "ham" license. He and Pvt. Hunter have the long-range plan of providing home-town contact with the family of any member of the 508th whenever and wherever the ARCT may locate in the future.

As Pvt. Hunter says, "Why, we can have a message home in, say, an hour to a man's family even though he may be thousands of miles away by relaying the message through "ham" stations around the world. We could maintain almost daily service."

Own Experience

"From my experiences with the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe during World War II," points out the handsome, 6-foot, 172-pound master-jumper, "it'll prove to be a wonderful thing if we can short-wave messages home to the families of our troopers after we get overseas."

"Short-wave radio will just about complete the full scale of communications for the 508th here in the Sand Hill Area. "All we'll lack is pigeons. And we'll probably see them overseas.

"Right now in Sand Hill, the 508th has more than 60 miles of fieldphone wire and inter-communication wire system strung up, including public-address systems. In fact, the 508th is entirely self-sustaining for communications within the ARTC. Only reason the regiment actually needs the public-telephone for is to contact the main post here at Benning.

"On the recent Camp Rucker, Ala., Maneuvers, communications sections of the 508th laid more than 257 miles of wire during the four-day problem against the 47th Infantry Division," Lt. Morris recalled.

"But as soon as we get started under Pvt. Hunter's station-call," Lt. Morris concluded, "we'll apply for the 508th call-letters under MARS (Military Radio System).

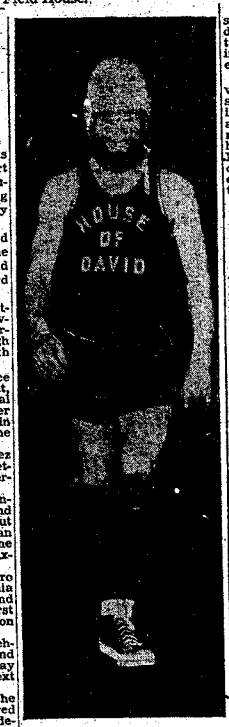
Twin Bill Launches Cage Slate Tonight

BY CHARLES JOHNSON

The first major sports action on the post since the close of the highly successful football season gets under way tonight with the opening of the 1952 Fort Benning Basketball League.

Second Student Regiment meets 508th Airborne Infantry at 6 p.m. and A.S.U. Provisional Group meets Provisional Medical Group immediately following in a doubleheader at steam-heated Briant Wells Field House.

Three Post Boxers Cop City Bouts



FORMER Michigan cager, Bobby Roth, (above), is one of the top mirth and point makers with the House of David basketball team which will meet the Infantry School Detachment five at 8 p.m. Sunday at Briant Wells Field House. Roth played professional basketball in Detroit before joining House of David.

With his bride of two weeks watching from ringside, Fort Benning's Larrupin' Larry Mujica made short work of Young Alvarez in the star bout Monday night at the Columbus Arena.

Referee Chick Liddell stopped the melee at 10 seconds of the fourth round after Alvarez had absorbed brutal second and third round punishment.

Alverez, a late substitute, spotted Mujica some 15 pounds, however, which made a vast difference in the outcome, although Larry was very sharp with both hands.

In a much better bout, Vince Murray, 508th welterweight, fought one of his smartest local fights as he gained a TKO over Havana's Pablo Rodriquez in 1:50 of the seventh round of the semifinal.

Murray spotted Rodriquez height and reach, but boxed better and was sharp as a counterpuncher.

Vince Merollo, a new Benning boxing entry from Second Student Regiment, started out like a whirlwind against veteran Kid McCoy, of Macon, but the latter rallied to cop a close six-round decision.

Merollo, a veteran of 73 pro bouts who calls Philadelphia home, re-opened an old wound over McCoy's eye in the first round and that kept the Macon battler in trouble all the way.

Vince was walking into punches late in the fight, however, and otherwise tired badly. He may show to better advantage next time after more conditioning.

Larry Jones, coach of the 3440th A.S.U. ring squad, showed his pupils how as he handily decisioned Charley Clark, of Detroit, in another six-rounder.

In the night's opening bout, Jimmy Humphreys decisioned Jo Tunney, of Atlanta.

Mujica and several other of the Benning sluggers are slated to appear on Promoter Fred Ward's next card Jan. 21. Wrestling matches are slated at the Arena tonight and next Thursday.

In recent games in the 2d Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, Combat Training Command, Company H scored a hoop victory over Headquarters and Headquarters Company, and Company E dumped Company G.

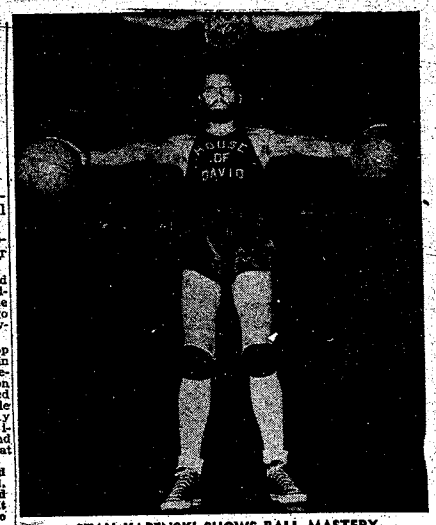
Company H breezed to a 51-39 win, handing the Headquarters team its first defeat of the season. At one time, Company H led by 22 points. Brodie and Danner led the victors' attack with 13 and 12 points respectively.

Company E had to battle through two overtime periods to whip Company G, 33-29. The victory was Company E's fifth against one loss. Harold McBride led the way with twelve points.

Searchlight Unit Joins Benning CTC

Its "lights on" in Fort Benning this week as the Combat Training Command's 530th Engineer Searchlight Platoon swings into action.

The platoon, commanded by Lt. Peter D. Migaleddi, was activated on Dec. 24, 1951. It is attached to the 40th Engineer Company. The platoon will follow its motto, "We Light The Way" during night demonstrations for units throughout the post.



STAN KAPENSKI SHOWS BALL MASTERY

House Of David Due Here Sunday

The clowning, high scoring House of David professional basketball team invades Fort Benning for a single game Sunday at Briant Wells Field House. The Infantry School Detachment five, paced by Herb Lindsay, veteran pro cager himself, has been selected to meet the bearded quintet.

The touring House of David clan has lost less than 30 of over 2,000 games in the past 12 years, than one team is Combat Training Command. CTC's Team One will be called the Commanders and mentored by Kopp while Team Two will be the Rifle coaches by grid star Frank Spaniel.

However, their big crowd appeal is trick ball handling and clowning which includes take-offs on baseball and football.

One of the sparks of the team is Stan Karpenski, six-foot, five-inch center who was a 20 gama winner with Macon, Ga., in the Salley League two years ago.

Biggest man on the team is Toss Heavner, six-foot, six-inch guard, who tips the scales at 215 and sports a size 14 shoe. He also starred as a cager at Syracuse University and also is a pro baseball player.

One of the David's best scorers is Bill Allen, six-foot, three-inches, who is the team's best set shot and rebound artist. The team is managed by Ham Hamilton who has played in 1,743 consecutive House of David games in the past ten years, probably the best iron man record in professional basketball.

Game time is 8 p.m. and a single admission fee of 75 cents will be charge. Another pro exhibition game, featuring Hazel Walker's all-girl team against the 508th Airborne Infantry quintet, is slated at 8 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 20, at Briant Wells.

Another twin bill is carded same time and same place Friday night. The remainder of the ten very eager unit quintets go into action in games slated every night next week.

Like in football, the cage loop will play a double round robin schedule with the champion being determined by the best won and lost record for the combined rounds. Starting Monday, double headers will be played every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night at Briant Wells and every Tuesday and Thursday at the Harmony Church gym.

The courts at both field houses have been sanded, painted and otherwise spruced up for the 90-game action. It is planned that admission to all games will be free.

Picking a favorite among the ten squads is nearly impossible. Holiday leaves disrupted the practice of all squads and for their first games most will be leading with a prayer and any men who claim experience.

There are a few teams which can be put on the "watch out for" list, however.

Among these is ASU's Raiders, who meet Coach Halstead Stone's PMG squad, in the after piece of tonight's opening card. ASU conducted a highly successful intramural cage loop and picked their highest scorers to form the unit team coached by Tom Bubanich. Big guns for the Raiders probably will be Bill Hahn and Leslie Kemp.

In the 6 p.m. game Friday night, Infantry School Detachment faces Coach Harold Command Team One. Hot shot of Coach Erwin Fleet's I.S.D. five will be Herb Lindsay, noted Presbyterian College's best all 'round athleto a few seasons ago.

Lindsay, playing for Special Troops, was top lineman of the football season, but his pet sport is basketball which he played professionally in Carolina industrial leagues after finishing at Presbyterian.

Good Coaching

Still another team to watch is Third Student Regiment which probably will have a team height advantage over all other squads. The Third also will enjoy the coaching guidance of William Hacker, veteran service mentor who played and coached at the University of Indiana.

Third Student Regiment will be only one of three teams entered from the powerful First Student Brigade. The First Regiment team, also regarded as a threat, will be coached by Bob Kinard and the Second Regiment quint by Bob Morrow.

Only other unit entering more

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.
JANUARY 5,1952

YOU KNOW how crazy Fort Benning got over football: imagine half of a state being completely agog over anything which at all looks like it might have a sports flavor! That's South Florida—sunsational!

Just a couple of a dozen shy of 40,000 fans turned out to see the North-South Shrine charity game Christmas night at Orange Bowl Stadium. And what everybody in Miami wants to know is how-cum Vanderbilt with Bill Wade didn't win the SEC crown hands downs.

In the first 20 minutes of play, the Commodore's senior quarterback completed 11 of 17 passes for a staggering 225 yards. After this there was never any doubt that the Rebels would down the Yanks, which they did, 28-7.

Wade's team mate, End Ted Kirkland, was the top receiver of those helmet-high shots, along with Georgia's Zippy Morroco and Texas A & M's Billy Tidwell. Morroco and Tidwell are great backs, or played so here anyway.

Capt. Frank Teague, who helped coach Special Troops Rams, would have enjoyed the game, however, even though he is a Yank. Halfback John Turco, of Holy Cross turned in the North's best job. Teague quarterbacked Holy Cross' 1939 team.

But old West Point grads like Lt. Col. Tom Mesereau and Lts. Gil Stepehenson and Bruce Ackerson would have weeped along with their old mentor, Col. Red Blaik. Blaik sat quietly in the press box as his son, Bobby, expelled from the Point and now of Colorado, had one of his poorest nights quarterbacking the Yanks.

Maj. Harold Kopp would have weeped, too, with Herman Hickman, who coached the Yankee gridders. Kopp was line coach for Hickman for three years and was an assistant at this same North-South Shrine game in 1949. Both Hickman and Kopp would have had solnce two nights later, however, as Yale's basketball team beat the U. of Miami quintet, 70 - 68, with two minutes to play, before 2,000 fans at Coral Gables Coliseum. That's good news for Kopp's son, visiting at Benning for the holidays, who is on the Eli freshman cage squad.

Fred Ward, the Columbus promoter, and some of the others have been talking about getting Larry Mujica a shot at Miami Beach Auditorium which is the arena of Chris Dundee, the nation's best independent fight promotor. Larry would have to be in top form to mix with the sluggers here. I saw Sonny Luciano, who beat Larry and Vince Murray handily, get knocked all over the ring by Armand Savoie, Canadian lightweight champ.

Incidentally, Ward would be tickled pink to have an arena in Columbus like this. It's double decked, a miniature Madison Square Garden with 4,000 roll-back, felt seats like you find in the best movie houses, and completely air conditioned. Tuxedos and mink coats are common place in the first ten rows. Boxing in Miami Beach is quite a social event; Walter Winchell, Martha Raye and other celebs, too.

Got out to beautiful Tropical Park and it's just a coincidence that they had their biggest betting day of the season, although I did contribute a few hard-earned soldier dollars to improving the breed. Horse betting set an all-time record in New York this summer and so far is up 30 per cent over last year in Florida. Three dog tracks are in operation, and betting the canines is the quickest way I know to unload excess cash. I speak from long previous experience.

There were plenty of other sports here in these hectic holidays including the Orange Bowl game which was a sell-out with 61,900 fans. No spectacle in America tops this one for color and pageantry and Georgia Tech fans will tell you there are football thrills, too. Anyone who talks of abolishing bowl games for being too commercial, etc., is merely looking for a scapegoat to hide other evils in the sport. A bowl game is the biggest sports thrill of the year for players and fans in the city where it is played.

When it came to getting a qualified man to be secretary of The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League there was no need to look any further than M-Sgt. Stanley Sokolowski, of the Third Army Area Food Service School.

Sokolowski has been splitting maples for 27 years or since he joined an industrial league in Detroit at the age of 18.

A regular army man for over 20 years, he started improving his bowling after staying with the game a short time. The last 9 years he has an average of 186 playing in 270 games a year in league bowling.

Assigned to Anchorage, Alaska with the Third Infantry division in 1940, Sokolowski began to hit his peak. Here he rolled his all-time high of 286.

In 1949, he had a 720 series in league bowling. In these three games he had a 200, 265, and 255 for the night, which gave him membership in the 700 Club of America. He has rolled six 279 games. He also won the singles championship of Alaska in 1949 in a round robbin tournament at No. 2 Court Avenue, Benning Park Homes, Columbus, they have two children, Caolyn Lee 10 and Nancy Ann 8.

While serving in Alsaka, Sokolowski met and married the former Betty Mae Thomas of Ketchekon, Alaska. Now residing

Railroads Extend Furlough Fares Until June, 1952

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —The nation's railroads have extended reduced furlough fares for military personnel traveling at their own expense until June 30, 1952. The fares were due to expire Jan. 31, 1952.

This means a continuation of the tax-exempt round-trip fares for military personnel on furlough at the rate of 2,025 cents a mile or less, constituting a saving of up to one cent a mile. The fare is good in coaches only and includes regular stop-over and baggage privileges.

The furlough fare is a voluntary gesture on the part of the nation's railroads. After discussions sponsored by the Military Traffic Service, Department of Defense, between military and railroad officials, the furlough rate was put into effect Dec. 15, 1950.

Grizzard Brings Top Sports, War Record To ASU Athletics

Stock in athletics in Area Service Unit Provisional Group rose last week with the assignment of Capt. Lewis M. Grizzard, former post basketball coach, as athletic and recreation officer.

Grizzard, who piloted the 1948 Doughboys to the runner-up spot in the Third Army basketball tournament, took his first look at the current Raider squad in practice last week and was well pleased.

The serious minded athletic director entered the Army as a private June 6, 1942 at Indiantown Gap, Pa. and was assigned to Company K, 110th regiment, 28th infantry division. He held all enlisted grades up to first sergeant and received a battle field commission Apr. 19, 1945 at Achen, Germany. He served with the 28th Infantry division until it was deactivated at Camp Shelby, Miss. in Sept., 1945, including 24 months in Europe.

He arrived at Fort Benning Oct. 4, 1945 and received the assignment of athletic officer for all school troops. Grizzard was honored by being selected Doughboy basketball coach in 1948 due to his outstanding record while head of athletics for school troops.

In June, 1948, he departed for Camp Chaffee, Ark. as athletic director of Combat Command B and won the post basketball and baseball championship in his only year there. His baseball team place third in the Fourth Army tournament.

The war in Korea interrupted Captain Grizzards' reign in the sports field when he reported to the First Cavalry division Sept. 5, 1950 in Korea.

He and one enlisted man were captured after being wounded Nov. 3 and held captive in a cave for 26 days by a Chinese soldier. On the 27th day, the Chinese took the two and returned to the Allied lines with them at night where he surrendered.

Grizzard states that they were hit by a hand grenade but the soldier bandaged their wounds before taking them to the cave. In the 26 days, they ate only three times.

He saw the little soldier when evacuated to a field hospital for the last time. Wounded, undernourished and suffering from frozen feet, Grizzard returned to the states Jan. 3, 1951 and remained in the hospital until May 18.

After seven months as Senior Organized Reserve Corps instructor in Tallassee, Fla., he asked for re-assignment and is now back to his first love of sports.

Grizzard is married to the former Christine Ward of Moreland, Ga. They have one child, Lewis Jr. five, who is known as Skipper and some athlete himself.

Grizzard has been awarded the Bronze Star medal with one cluster, Purple Heart medal with three clusters, Commendation medal, Good Conduct medal, American Defense medal, European - African-Middle Eastern Campaign medal with five battle stars, Combat Infantry badge with a star, World War II Victory medal, Korean Service medal with two battle stars and Presidential citation.

OC Has Worked At Many Trades

Candidate John H. Wilson, a 26-year-old veteran of World War II, is a living example of "the jack of all trades."

Although he was inducted three days after he graduated from high school in 1943 he has at various times in his life held jobs as a calender artist, tavern owner, furniture salesman, and steel mill machinist.

Wilson served in Europe during World War II, and was in Paris when Axis forces in Europe surrendered. "That celebration was just one of many that made it hard to settle back into civilian life," he said.

He was discharged in 1945 and became a bartender. He soon owned a tavern, but hi-jackers made off with his entire stock one night so he abandoned that trade.

He next went to work in a steel mill, and from there entered the Chicago Academy of Art. He attended the Academy for one year and then turned to selling office furniture and managing an apartment building, while practicing commercial art at the same time.

He reentered the Army last June, and said "Compared to my hectic life before, I find OCS

Vets May Avoid Income Taxes If War Casualties

Military personnel who have been in continental hospitals as a result of wounds or injuries received in Korea may be eligible for income tax refunds, according to a release from the Department of Defense.

The 1950 tax law, as amended, provides an income tax exemption for such servicemen during the period in which they were hospitalized. It is retroactive to June 24, 1950, and applies to hospitalization in the United States as well as in the Far East.

Under the original law, only the pay earned while in a combat zone was exempted in the case of enlisted men and warrant officers, and $200 monthly for officers. The amendment last October extended the exemptions to time spent in hospitals as a result of service in a combat zone.

Since November 1, 1951, finance officers have been applying the law to monthly income tax withholdings. In view of the retroactive features of the amended legislation, however, it is estimated that thousands of Korean veterans are entitled to cash refunds. These may be obtained when servicemen file income tax returns for 1951, if accompanied by certificates from unit personnel officers showing the period of hospitalization and the amount of pay earned during that time.

Individual application must be made for the certificate.

Personnel who may be in line for refunds on 1950 income taxes are advised to consult local internal revenue collectors as to filing procedure.

Curved Gun Barrels Real But Not Very Practical

You've heard the joke about the curved barrel gun. Well it's no joke. Although a curved barrel gun was patented by an American in 1918, the Germans came up with it on the battlefield in WWII. They put a gun into combat on a small-scale that could shoot around corners.

The idea was to put a curved barrel machine gun on the turret of a tank and spray all the blind spots on the surface with bullets while the gunner remained concealed. It also could be used to deliver horizontal fire from a foxhole or barricade.

The reflector type of optical sight was used employing the same principal as a submarine periscope. The barrel was curved 30 to 90 degrees.

In 1945 the Army had a similar device. They called it the M-3 Deflector for medium tank M4. They wanted to develop something that would afford protection from an enemy climbing aboard the tank and throwing gasoline into the engine compartment, holding magnetic mines against it or trying to pry open the hatch.

A submachine gun was designed to be fired from the tank commander's periscope opening. The deflector resembles a steel blue tube that fits over the barrel of the submachine gun M-3 and is bent 90 degrees around a large radius at the opposite or deflector end.

During the later months of WWII, it was subjected to intensive tests and found not suitable for reasons of accuracy and practicability. Further research and development was recommended.

A new "tenant" is coming to make its home at Camp Atterbury, Ind., according to THE CARDINAL. The 31st Infantry division, a former National Guard unit from Mississippi and Alabama, will move into Camp Atterbury sometime in April, the Army announced last week. The 31st, known as the "Dixie" division, now stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., will participate in "Exercise Long Horn" at Fort Hood, Tex., before coming to Atterbury.

During December when the Ice Review was playing in Dallas some 1500 Seventh Bomb Wing airmen and their families saw the 1952 edition of the Sonja Henie Ice Review as guest of the Dallas Ice Arena and Miss Henie. Reports from the lucky 1500 were that the whole group exerted every effort to make their trip as pleasant as possible.

THE BLUE DEVIL, published by Trieste United States Troops, reports that members of the command are now being screened for tuberculosis as part of an anti - TB campaign conducted by the TRUST Surgeon's Staff. The TB screenings are being given free of charge to the Army by the Centro Schermongrafico, a TB search unit of the Italian Red Cross.

Engineers Again Open Benning Ponton Bridge

The engineer ponton bridge across the Chattahoochee River at Lawson Air Force base connecting the Georgia and Alabama areas of Fort Benning is now open for traffic.

The bridge, wide enough to span the river at the usual eight foot level, was impassable with the rise of the water following the recent rains, and was closed temporarily.

OC Tac Officer Has Seen Duty in 2 Wars; 2 Armies

LT. C. E. WYLIE

First Lieutenant Charles E. Wylie, tactical officer, Fifth Officer Candidate company, Third Student Regiment, is a veteran of war across three continents and service with a foreign army in the early stages of World War II.

Lieutenant Wylie volunteered for service with the American Volunteer Group in early 1941 and joined the British Expeditionary Forces at Durban, South Africa. Continuing to Fort Said he joined 200 other volunteers who were assigned to the British Eighth Army as ambulance drivers.

In the thick of the desert fighting, he became a stretcher bearer and combat medic. He was later transferred to the British Ninth Army and went to Palestine where he served on border patrol.

The young soldier of fortune returned to the United States in May, 1944, and was drafted into the U. S. Army three months later. Upon completion of basic training he went to France with the Eighth Armored Division as a rifleman. He fought through Belgium, Holland, and Germany until he was wounded and evacuated to England.

Receiving his commission in 1945, Lieutenant Wylie was assigned to the Fifth Regimental Combat Team in Hawaii. Soon after the hostilities began in Korea he served in that action as a platoon leader and battalion S-3 until returned to the states in February.

Lieutenant Wylie's decorations include the British African and Italian Stars, British War Medal, British Middle Eastern campaign ribbon and the Volunteer group medal; Purple Heart, European Theatre ribbon with three battle stars, Combat Infantry Badge, and the Korean Service Medal.

Dog Tag Wearing Regulations Set

"Dog tags", more properly referred to as identification tags, are to be worn by all army personnel during training hours and that all personnel of units undergoing command inspections will wear tags for those inspections.

Paragraph 25, SR 600-33-1 states the times when identification tags will be worn:

"Identification tags will be worn by each member of the Army at all times when in the field, when engaged in field training, when traveling in aircraft, or when outside the continental limits of the United States. Inspections for completeness will be required only when in the field, on field training, at 'full field' inspections."

New Army Songs Due With Visit Of Top Musicians

The Army's marching men are to have music. Top-flight song-writers, Oscar Hammerstein, Irving Caesar and Samuel Stept will visit the Infantry Center Jan. 18 as part of the orientation the writers are receiving before writing some new songs for the Army.

While they are at the most complete Infantry post they will observe training and talk informally to Infantry officers and men of the Infantry Center.

In announcing the forthcoming visit Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., said he felt that "good Army songs provide a tremendous stimulant to Army morale and spirit" and that he hoped the songwriters would produce a song that would be "a counterpart to the Marine Hymn, the Air Force Song and Anchors Aweigh."

The party will be accompanied by Lt. Col. Bryce F. Denno and Lt. Arberg, Special Service Division.

VOL. 10 NO. 17 THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1952 Published by The Ledger-Enquirer Co. for America's Most Complete Army Post Twenty-four Pages

Church Drive Begins Here January 27th

The 1952 Armed Forces Preaching Mission will begin at The Infantry Center on Jan. 27 and continue to Feb. 1, with three outstanding clergymen presenting services at Sand Hill, Harmony Church and the man post throughout the week.

The mission is sponsored by the joint department of Evangelism of the National Council of Churches and by the General Commission on Chaplains.

So far, 70 Army camps and 12 Navy bases have requested preaching missions, calling for 148 speakers. Clergymen will participate in teams of two to three each.

During the week the mission will preach here, services will be held every night at Sand Hill chapel No. 3 at 7:30; Harmony Church chapel No. 5 at 7:30; the Airborne chapel at 6:30; and the Main Post chapel at 7:30. Speakers will be Reverend K. Owen White, pastor of the First Baptist church, Little Rock, Ark.; Reverend Harrison McMains, First Christian Church, Atlanta; and Reverend Frederick H. Olert, Second Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Va.

President Truman, expressing hope for the program's success, wrote that in building up America's military strength, "We must be equally diligent to strengthen the moral and spiritual life of our Armed Forces."

General George Marshall lauded the program for its effective "efforts to bulwark the spiritual strength not only of our men under arms but of the nation as a whole."

The theme for the 1952 program will be "Christ Is The Answer."

Rangers Ready Training Site

Soldier students in the Infantry School's Ranger Department here soon will be taking to the hills in the wilds of north Georgia.

Under a revamped, rougher, rugged training program the Rangers will spend two of their eight weeks training in a camp near Dahlonega, approximately 20 miles west of Gainesville, Ga.

In this area, the southern extension of the Great Smokies, the rugged fighters will get experience in mountain fighting. The wild, rough, sparsely inhabited area is said to be ideal for training small patrols under simulated combat conditions.

Forty-five members of the Ranger Department are already at Dahlonega preparing the camp site, rehearsing problems, installations and stringing wire—both barbed and telephone.

An additional 80 men will join the group Jan. 21 to build the permanent camp. The first group of students will train at Dahlonega between Feb. 18 and 28.

Training Tough

Training in the mountains is going to be tough, according to Col. H. G. Learnard Jr., Ranger Department director. In some cases, he says, combat would probably be easier.

Many of the operations at the Dahlonega camp will involve "rapelling", the art of crossing cliffs and crevices using ropes. (Standard equipment for all Ranger trainees will be a short toggle rope with pegs at each end.)

In addition to the climbs over steep and rocky gorges where one misstep means instant death there will be other "courage tests": drops into deep water while carrying heavy equipment, and the "slide for life" down a rope from the top of a tree, across a gully to a bank 60 feet below. Any man who doesn't accept the challange doesn't be-

Student Officer Testing Experimental Uniform Here

A new uniform that may become an item of standard issue was in evidence here last week on the person of 1st Lt. Robert J. Watson, who arrived here to attend an associate advanced course at the Infantry School.

Lieutenant Watson is assigned to the Third Infantry "Old Guard" regiment the only unit so far to be equipped with the experimental uniform.

Of a greenish-gray, partially nylon material, the uniform is designed as a general winter garment. Tests on the uniform are expected to last through this winter season and possibly the next one.

Lieutenant Watson emphasized the fact that the uniform is strictly experimental, and whether or not it will be adopted to replace or supplement present uniforms would depend on the tests.

He said that everywhere he goes, he is the object of stares. "Many people think I'm a foreigner of some sort," he said.

"When Col. William Jenna, our commander, gave us instructions before leaving the post," he related, "he told us to wear these experimental uniforms as much as possible. A lot of officers want to know if this uniform will replace the 'pinks and greens'. While I can't say, we were told it will not, but will be optional for dress wear. As I understand it, the plan is to replace the ODs, so they can be used strictly for field wear."

LT. ROBERT J. WATSON

Lieutenant Watson explained that the enlisted men's uniforms was the same as the officers' except that it did not have gold bands on the sleeve or cap.

A veteran of the Korean war, Lieutenant Watson served with the 35th Infantry regiment of the 25th division. His home is in Watertown, N. Y.

G-4 To Hold Supply Test

Winning Company-Level Unit To Get Supply Economy Award

Under a new program designed to emphasize supply economy, inspection teams from The Infantry Center G-4 section will conduct tests to determine what company-size unit was outstanding in economizing during 1951, Col. James F. Torrence, Jr. Infantry Center G-4, reported.

The winning unit will be presented with a pennant inscribed "Outstanding Company In Supply Economy, The Infantry Center, 1951," by Maj. Gen. John H. Church, TIC commander.

"The year 1951 witnessed the inauguration of an extensive supply economy program here," said Colonel Torrence. "The practice of conservation of material and the growing cost consciousness of all individuals within the command has been developing throughout the year.

"It is becoming a habit, a money-saving habit tending to conserve materials and lighten the load on our national economy and the taxpayers' pocket book."

Through a series of inspections, training, and follow - up inspections, and establishment of turn-in points throughout the post, Colonel Torrence said, many thousands of dollars worth of excess and surplus property has been returned to regular supply channels with a resultant saving.

"Preventive maintenance, supply economy, supply procedures and cost consciousness has been stressed to the maximum degree throughout the command," he said. "As a sequel to this program, each of the six major commands here has conducted tests to determine their outstanding company-size unit with respect to all phases of supply economy.

"Beginning on Jan. 21, these units will compete against each other for the possession of the pennant," Colonel Torrence concluded.

The schedule for inspections is Jan. 21, Provisional group; Jan. 22, Infantry School detachment; Jan. 23, Combat Training command; (date to be announced for the 508th Airborne RCT); Jan. 25, Provisional Medical group; and Jan. 28, First Student brigade.

The inspections will begin at 8:30 on the dates mentioned above in the individual company areas. The only personnel required to be there will be the unit commander, supply officer and maintenance officer.

The inspection will not interfere with scheduled commitments of the units selected.

508th Liaison Planes Sport Distinctive Decorations

This one is a caricature of an L-19 with a huge Red Devil head where the propellor should be, with the landing gear wheels grasping a big pair of binoculars. The Red Devil, with horns, jet black hair, mustache and goatee, seems to be hovering in the sky, searching out prey beneath.

The paratroopers in the 508th Airborne RCT are known as the Red Devils and wear circular Red Devil patches over the left breast of their fatigue uniforms. The nickname began when the first 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment paratroopers yelled "Diablo" when the 508th was activated at Camp Blanding, Fla., in 1942.

The caricature, or decal, was designed by Pvt. Alfred M. Diaz, Headquarters Battery of the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion of the 508th ARCT, and Capt. Robert H. Parks, chief of the ARCT pilots. Capt. Parks, former paratrooper with the 501st Regiment in the 101st Airborne Division in World War II is leaving soon for a helicopter school. The other ARCT pilots, both from the 320th, are: Lts. Earle E. Strong and Joe W. Wald.

Army Training Includes Atomic Missiles Courses

The subject of the tactical employment of atomic missiles has been incorporated in all phases of Army training, General Mark W. Clark, Chief, Army Field Forces, has announced.

As Army training keeps abreast of changes in weapons capabilities, all Army personnel, from the individual rifleman to field army staffs, are being indoctrinated in the offensive and defensive tactics of atomic warfare.

Atomic warfare concepts have been integrated with standard training programs and staff functions.

The Army Service Schools have incorporated atomic warfare subjects in their curricula. To assist troop commanders in individual and unit training, atomic warfare doctrine has also been included in field manuals, training circulars and pamphlets.

In major field exercises and maneuvers, maximum consideration is being given to the training of field forces of the Army in the offensive and defensive employment of atomic weapons, with particular attention being paid to the following factors:

1. Individual and unit training in atomic warfare.
2. Combat intelligence required to identify remunerative targets for atomic weapons.
3. Atomic weapons delivery methods.

Using its maneuvers as an opportunity to study atomic capabilities as well as a means of training troops, the Army will continually examine its current doctrine and proceedures with an eye to making appropriate organization, training and logistical revisions as required.

Army atomic weapons tactics will be employed down to include division level in Exercise Snow Fall, the joint Army-Air Force maneuver scheduled for Feb. 9-15, 1952 at Camp Drum, N. Y., and in joint Army-Air Force Exercise Long Horn, scheduled for March-April, 1952 in Texas.

Atomic weapons simulation in these maneuvers will be as realistic as possible short of actual employment. Consideration of atomic weapons capabilities will be a normal part of staff functioning. Troop commanders will test techniques and proceedures required to employ atomic missiles offensively, and will take active measures to reduce vulnerability to atomic attack. The over-all effect of the theoretical use of atomic weapons in the maneuvers will be carefully checked and analyzed.

Present scale of Army training in atomic weapons tactics results from continuing staff studies and field experiments phased to the development of the weapons themselves.

Army Field Forces plans covering atomic weapons training are being closely coordinated with the Tactical Air Command, Langley Air Force Base, Va. Lessons learned at Snow Fall and Long Horn will be further tested, and additional troops will be field-trained in atomic tactics, in future exercises.

The second production of the Barter Theater this year, under the sponsorship of the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce is "Light Up The Sky." The play will be presented at the Jordan auditorium, Jan. 18 at 8:30 p.m.

The Barter Theater is America's oldest and largest professional touring company and the Jaycees feel they are indeed fortunate to bring such a company to Columbus audiences.

A brief history on the Barter theater shows that James Hilton, author of "Goodbye Mr. Chips," and "Lost Horizon" and "Random Harvest" is one of its most active supporters, and the board of directors contains such theater notables as Katherine Cornell, Helen Hayes and Margaret Sullivan.

Woodrow Romoff, who plays the role of Sidney Black, the theatrical producer in "Light Up The Sky," recently won acclaim in the world premiere of "The Thing" by Mary Chase, who won the Pulitzer Prize for "Harvey" in 1944. Romoff has been with the Barter Theater for five years. He has appeared on many network television shows, including "Studio One."

Owen Phillips the director of this play, has been with the Barter Theater since the days when patrons actually bartered chickens and jam for tickets. He serves as director and actor with the Barter theater.

CTC Does Problem For Other Post Units

Units of the Combat Training Command last week presented "the rifle company in defense" for the benefit of members of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat team and 15 classes of students.

About 300 men from Companies E, F, G, and H of the 30th Infantry regiment; Battery B, 41st Field Artillery battalion; 406th Engineer Combat company, and 30th Infantry Medical company, presented problem 3422N, the reinforced rifle company in defense against an attack on a 1,000 yard frontage.

Among the other spectators was Lt. Gen. J. B. Piron, Belgium Army chief of staff.

Each of the weapons in the company was first demonstrated individually, then as the attack began, the combined fire power went into action.

In addition to the basic M-1 rifle, the weapons employed included the Browning automatic rifle, machine guns, recoilless rifles, rocket launchers, rifle grenades, mortars, and 105 mm. howitzers.

THREE OFFICERS PROMOTED

Three second lieutenants have been promoted to 1st Lts. in the 508th. They are George W. Fussell, William S. Gilliland and James A. Lattimore.

QM Restrictions Off on Clothing

Restrictions on the sale of certain clothing items has been removed, the Fort Benning Clothing Sales Office has announced.

The reason given is that Quartermaster supplies that were depleted with the outbreak of the Korean situation have been brought back up to meet the demands.

Principle items on the list include service shoes, lowquarter shoes, cotton khaki shirts, cotton khaki trousers, combat boots, fatigue trousers, and fatigue jackets.

In most cases the items have also been reduced in price. Most notable reductions have been in the lowering of low quarter shoes from $7.50 to $6.50; and combat boots from $11.90 to $10.85.

Fatigue jackets have gone up twenty cents from the old price of $2.90 and fatigue trousers have had a ten cent increase over the old price of $3.10.

The removal of these restrictions permits purchases to meet personal needs but enlisted personnel should not be required to purchase items in excess of mandatory allowances.

Rabid Foxes Invade Area Near Benning

Muscogee and Chattahoochee County Officials have reported that rabid foxes have attacked people and dogs near the Fort Benning reservation.

All pet owners are advised to have their pets vaccinated against rabies, if it has been 11 months or over since the date of the last vaccination.

Clinic hours at the Veterinary Station Hospital are from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Benning Born Major Now Assigned Here

Benning-Born Major William D. Clark, son of Gen. Mark W. Clark has returned as a student at the Infantry School.

Major Clark was born at Fort Benning March 31, 1925, and revisited the Infantry post last year when he graduated from the Airborne Department of the Infantry School.

The major arrived here from Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., where he has been recovering from mortar fragment wounds received in Korea in October, 1951.

A veteran of nine months of Korea action, this represented his third wound in that theater.

At that time he was serving with the Ninth Infantry Regiment, Second Division near Hearbreak Ridge.

Polio Fund Drive Is Now Underway

The 1952 March of Dimes campaign, an annual nation-wide drive, is being conducted here throughout the month of January.

The campaign will be on a strictly voluntary basis, and no drive, as such, will be conducted here. However, on Jan. 31, containers for accepting the funds will be provided at all pay tables where troops are paid; at the cashier's desk in each officers' mess; and at the tobacco counter of each exchange branch.

Similar containers will be provided for organizations and activities employing civilian personnel at the January payday falling closest to Jan. 31.

Prob 2117 Shows Combined Inf. Firepower Effects

Pillboxes are no match for the aroused Infantry when she marshalls her deadly weapons.

Infantry School students see the infantry in one of her most devastating displays of problem 2117. Problem 2117 shows a reinforced rifle platoon reducing a fortified position.

Recently at Anzio Trail, an officers' course class watched the 550th Tank Company and Companies C and D of the 30th Infantry Regimental Combat Team run the problem.

It was a reinforced platoon with the accent on force.

After heavy weapons on a ridge had centered up the objective and the assault team moved in. Flame throwers seared the pillbox and demolitions men placed their charges.

The objective was made ready for mopping up by reserve units. Later, the engineers moved in to render the pillbox useless to the enemy.

Prior to starting the operation, the platoon leader outlined the mission to the students, and his men. As the demonstration progressed, the students listened to a running commentary, designed to drive home the lesson for future situations.

March of Dimes Is Good Cause

Have you ever seen a child in the first stages of infantile Paralysis? If the child was your own, then you remember the sick feeling that came over you when you first noticed that the child could not stand on its feet, and was running a high temperature. You recall the terror and dread you felt when you suspicioned that it might be polio. Then you reflect the awful moment when your doctor told you that the child had polio. You stood helplessly by and watched your child go through tortures as the disease settled in his body.

The chances are that you have never gone through the above mentioned ordeal. But if you have you will remember how you asked yourself: "Where will the money come from to make our child well again?"

Here is your answer to that all important question about the needed money — The March of Dimes has provided for the treatment of your child at such places as the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis patients, at Warm Springs, Georgia.

Thousands of polio victims have regained their health at the Warm Springs Foundation, and many thousands more will be brought back to physical health there in the future, if we support the March of Dimes.

Not only are polio victims treated at Warm Springs but also in other localities in the United States. The treatments are now immeasurable better than in previous years due to research made possible by the dimes that were given back in the "thirties.

The March of Dimes was initiated by Franklin D. Roosevelt—himself a polio victim—not long after he first went into office as President of the United States. He inaugurated a "President's Birth Ball," which was held yearly in the White House, and in cities and towns all over the country. The proceeds from these balls went to the March of Dimes campaign.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is dead now, and the country no longer celebrates his birthday with dances. But the March of Dimes goes on — to the eternal thanks of the polio victims who walk today because of those Birthday Balls, and the March of Dimes.

Every military leader in this country has enthusiastically endorsed the March of Dimes campaign for 1952. We of Fort Benning are being asked to contribute to the March of Dimes, and we can contribute to no better cause than by giving our money to this wonderful cause.

Give generously to the March of Dimes. And if you need convincing that the cause is a worthy one, visit the Warm Springs Foundation. It is only 35 miles from here. If you do visit there, you will leave with a lump in your throat. For you will see some of the most amazing sights of your life. You will see people regaining their health, when twenty years ago they would have gone through life crippled, or else they would have died.

'Serve-A-Camp' Program Here

Fort Benning is one of five military posts in the Third Army area that has been adopted by a local group of the Women's Organization Division, of the National Jewish Welfare Board.

The group has revived its World War II "Serve-A-Camp" program, which is designed to provide useful gifts for men and women in uniform. During that war, the organization provided three different "serve" programs — "Serve-A-Hospital", "Serve-A-Chaplain", and the camp program.

Following the end of World War II, the groups concentrated their activity on the hospital program, but with the advent of the Korean war and the corresponding build-up of military forces, they have revived their "Serve-A-Camp" program.

The five Third Army posts now being served by the program are Fort Benning, adopted by the Baltimore, Md. committee; Camp Rucker, Ala., by the St. Louis, Mo. committee; Fort Bragg, N. C., by the Cleveland, Ohio, committee; Camp Gordon, Ga., by the Great Neck, Long Island, committee; and Camp Stewart, Ga., adopted by both the Toledo, Ohio and the Essex County, N. J. committees.

Primarily, the purpose of the program is to meet the extra-curricular morale needs of men and women stationed in areas far from home. By providing useful gifts and services to such personnel, the Jewish women's groups not only seek to meet a practical need but to remind service personnel that they "have not been forgotten by the folks at home".

When a post is adopted by a local committee of the WOD the members of that local group, working through the area director of the National Jewish Welfare board, seek to ascertain the needs and desires of military personnel at that particular base.

It may be found that certain small items of athletic equipment would fill a specific need; reading materials, games, and other items for recreational purposes; gifts and prizes for unit or post parties; items of comfort for hospital patients; decorations or other items for WAC detachment dayrooms; smoking items; toilet articles; phonograph records; cameras and film; art supplies; and many more items have been and are now being supplied.

Sometimes items provided by the committees provide an emergency need. Such was the case last year when floods forced evacuation of some areas of military posts in the midwest.

BY CHAPLAIN CHARLES F. POWERS

A Soldier struggling up a hill in Korea, a hand grenade comes bouncing down the slope and lands at his feet—A Jet Pilot attempting to pull his plane out of a dive sees a mountain rushing in upon him—A parachute fails to open—A Sailor crossing the deck looks up to see a huge wave about to break. For each, death is only an instant away. It is certain and sure, nothing can be done now to stay the inevitable hand of death. Each man now has but a split second to make his peace with God. The Life of his body will soon end, he can no longer do anything to protect his friends or fight for his country. This last moment is his, it belongs entirely to him, it is a moment when his thought should be about his own immortal soul.

It is strange that a person only a clock's tick away from death should consume that entire time thinking about something he never gave much thought to during his life. But Our Lord Himself has told us, "What does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and suffers the loss of his soul." And so a soldier's last thought should be of his own soul.

But can that be done in the instant between the time a hand grenade is a bouncing ball and a mass of flying steel? Can a life of sin be lived over, can the evil of ten or twenty years be undone? Is there yet time, even then, to regain the friendship of God, and to obtain the forgiveness of our Creator?

At that moment the life and happiness of our immortal soul is at stake. That moment is one we can use to turn once again to our Divine Friend and obtain his forgiveness. The forgiveness of God is infinite and He is always waiting to forgive the penitent sinner, the one who, even in the instant of death, turns to him for forgiveness. As the Good Thief found out, all is not lost until they take the body down from the cross.

In the instant before death strikes, there is an opportunity to make an act of perfect sorrow for the sins we have committed. That sorrow need not be expressed in any long prayer, but it must include an act of sorrow for our sins because they have offended God—not because we will be punished, for that sorrow would not be perfect, but selfish. The sorrow must be perfect, we must think only of the goodness of the God we have offended, in that instant we must see Gods Goodness and be sorry only because we have offended the Good God.

The Good God who has made us and watched over us, the Good God who was willing to give life on the Cross that we might have life everlasting. This perfect act of sorrow, if made with a sincere heart, with hatred for the evil committed and the intention to amend our lives, will free us from the bonds of sin, restore us to the friendship of God, and open for us the gates of heaven. The sincere simple statement, "I am sorry, because You are so Good," would do the job and mean the difference between a life of happiness and a life of hell.

This act of perfect contrition seems so simple, appears so easy that we are tempted not to realize its value. And yet this act by which we are sorry for our sins, because sins offend God whom we love above all things for his own sake, may be the most important thing we do during our entire life. This act can mean the salvation that a life of worldly success could never achieve.

This act of perfect sorrow should be made at the moment of death but we should not limit our sorrow to that instant of confusion and pain. The sorrow for sin should be a part of our daily lives, and each evening should find us asking the pardon of our Good God. In our daily prayers should be one such as this,

"O my God I am heartily sorry for having offended Thee, I detest all my sins because of Thy just punishments, but most of all because they offend Thee my God who are all good and deserving of all my love, I firmly resolve with the help of Thy Grace to sin no more and to avoid the near occasions of sin."

This is an act of perfect sorrow, an act which if said daily will keep us right with God, so that even if we do not have a split second to make our peace with Him, we will go to meet him as a friend.

36 Escape Death As Airliner Misses Airfield

A fog-shrouded airliner, groping for a radar landing, undershot LaGuardia field Monday and crashed into the East River, but all 36 aboard were rescued. Only two passengers were seriously injured. Surface craft plying the river were at the scene moments after the crash, and had rescued all passengers within 15 minutes. If the plane had been approaching the field from any other direction, it would probably have crashed in thickly-populated areas.

A double deadlock and a rash of name-calling threatened Tuesday to collapse the shaky Korean armistice conference. Talk of disbanding the truce talks broke through the surface layer of diplomatic bargaining. Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho blandly implied that Rear Adm. R. E. Libby was a liar, whereupon the American challenged the Communist to prove it or eat his words. Lee told Libby that "if you do not want to continue negotiations you will have to take responsibility"—the same line the Reds followed before they broke off the talks last August.

The Western Big Three powers, meeting in Paris, proposed that the surprise new Soviet atomic control proposals be turned over to the new United Nations Disarmament Commission. The 12-nation disarmament commission is slated to begin operations before Feb. 10. A French delegate argued that "agreement in language" is not necessarily "agreement in substance" and said there seemed to be a Soviet move toward the Western position in two points: A simultaneous atomic arms ban and control system; and an agreement on "continuing" rather that "periodic" inspection.

In New York, crew members of the sunken Flying Enterprise criticized Capt. Kurt Carlsen and the Isbrandtsen company at an inquiry into the sinking of the ship. Three crew members, testifying before a Coast Guard board, raised three questions: Why didn't the skipper send a distress signal immediately after the ship's deck and sides were cracked? Why didn't the injured vessel head for the nearest port after the seas had calmed? Why was a heavy cargo of pig iron loaded into two holds, while a third hold contained only light cargo? Capt. Lewis H. Shackelford, chairman of the inquiry board, said Captain Carlsen will be called as witness after he returns to New York from London.

On The Bookshelf

BY BOYD HINTON

WE ALWAYS LIE TO STRANGERS, By Vance Randolph (Columbia University Press, 1951) The Ozark mountains are a physical reality but the Ozark attitude is a state of mind. And a tall mind at that, because the tales that come out of the region are tall enough to make the mountains look silly.

To say that the inhabitants of Ozarks are liars, however, is a bigger lie than some of the stories they often tell—to be overheard by any stranger who happens by and is mouse-trapped into listening.

Vance Randolph, who sometimes adopts the role of the people about whom he writes, has put together a marvelous collection of tales that he sometimes says are exaggerations, but more often than not, he leaves the reader to judge for himself whether the story is true or not.

But to the book itself, which is no exaggeration when it comes to being one of the funniest books this reviewer has ever read.

The volume begins with some of the more often told tales of steep hills and razorbacks from which stems a great portion of the native humor of the region.

Many of the fabulous tales are built around the difficulty of tilling the rocky and rugged country that the natives swear would "be bigger than Texas if it were straightened out."

The telling of the tales is probably the most important consideration since it reflects the nature of the people. Of course everyone who lives in Arkansas is no hillbilly, but the backwoods culture has apparently seeped into the character of the storytellers at least.

The better tales are a result of a fine spirit of comradeship among the natives. The most popular method of getting into the story is to "allow" the stranger to overhear what is apparently a private conversation.

And even when the stranger asks a native, who has no idea what the story was, he backs up to the limit the "windy," as they are called.

Radio comedian Bob Burns, who is the most famous of the story tellers, is frequently quoted in the book but probably few of the windys are original with him. He's only repeating what is a very native humor.

Of course, the tall tale isn't exclusive with people from the Ozarks, but the particular brand surely originates there.

But the exaggeration isn't the only key to many of the stories. The understatement is very effective too.

One of the more famous tales concerns the hog who swallowed a few sticks of dynamite and wandered up to the kitchen door. An ill-tempered farmhand came out and soundly kicked the razorback. After describing the tremendous damage done by the ensuing explosion, the story teller winds up with "we had a mighty sick hog on our hands for a few days."

The telling of such stories is at least half the joke, but Author Randolph manages to carry the salt of the humor onto the printed page.

The book is illustrated by Glen Rounds but no illustrations are needed with the Randolph technique.

Other chapters include accounts of fabulous monsters like the gowrow which is a hillbilly version of a dragon but with some notable exceptions. It never steals pretty maidens — it just storms around creating general havoc.

In a chapter on rich soil and big vegetables, one of the favorite stories concerns large fruits. . . "it only took four of them to make a dozen."

Other chapters run the gamut from large snakes and animals to backwoods supermen, weather stories, fish stories, and many, others.

The book probably has no social significance nor is it a sociological study, but it's jampacked with rousing good entertainment.

AAA Unit Here Exclusive Type

Battery Utilizes Many Weapons For Training

BY LT. ROBERT W. FEENEY
PIO—508th Abn RCT

The only unit of its kind in the U. S. Army!

That's the claim of the 27th AAA AW Btry (SP) which locates just past the MP outpost in the Sand Hill Area of Fort Benning. Spelled out, the unit's full name is: 27th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battery (Self-Propelled).

That's quite a name. And it's quite an outfit, too, especially when it comes to weapons. Reactivated 6 April 1951 to support the 41st Field Artillery Battalion for The Infantry School field problems, the 27th AAA AW Btry (SP) has the following conglomeration of weapons:

Four 105-mm howitzers, field artillery.

Two M16's, 1-2 track self-propelled with quadruple 50-cal. machine guns.

Two M15's, 12-track self propelled with a single 37-mm gun and twin 50-cal. machine guns.

In addition, the 121 enlisted men and four officers in the 27th are armed with carbines or .45 cal. "grease" guns.

Can you imagine what an Einstein an NCO or an officer must be in such an outfit to keep pace with the daily pattern of instruction, operation or even just ordinary care and cleaning of materiel.

But let First Lt. James W. O'Connor, the 27th's Wisconsin-born battery commander, tell the tale of his alphabetical outfit:

"We're supposed to be an anti-aircraft battery, but the closest we've come to ack-ack fire has been high-angle fire with our field artillery pieces, the 105-mm howitzers, on Infantry School problems.

"The 27th AAA AW Btry originally was activated in May 1948 at Puerto Rico and had Puerto Rico enlisted personnel. It was deactivated July 1950," Lt. O'Connor was S-2 of the 98th AAA Gun Battalion to which the 27th AAAAW Btry was attached in Puerto Rico.

"Then the 27th AAA AW Btry was reactivated last April 6 here at Benning and the (SP) was added for self - propelled 1-2 tracks. Now we often are confused with and sometimes get mail intended for, the 27th AAA AW Battalion which is stationed at Camp Stewart, Ga. That (SP) makes us different. Besides they don't have 105-mm field artillery howitzers," added Lt. O'Connor.

"The 27th was reactivated as a self - propelled automatic weapons battery, less one platoon, with the mission of supporting the 41st FA Bn. This made it necessary at the outset to train all our personnel on the 105mm. howitzer. We fired the field pieces after only eight hours instruction.

"You mean that although an anti - aircraft outfit, you got field artillery pieces first," queried the paratroop officer talking to Lt. O'Connor.

"No, we first got M- 5-A1's. But before we could train on them, the 105's arrived and we had to use them for TIS first," replied the 30-year-old World War II veteran who served in the Gilbert and Marshall Islands and at Tarawa with the 755th AAA Bn. "Then our M-16's arrived, heavily coated with cosmoline. We got those on a Thursday about 1700 hours and fired them the next day at 1400 hours for a TIS without a 'hitch'. Our M-19 tanks rumbled in last. We use them for battalion and company-size attack problems.

"When not firing automatic weapons in direct ground - support of infantry problems, we turn to the 105-mm howitzer in conjunction with the 41st FA Bn." The TIS problems we usually work are: Problem 2660, "Types of Artillery Fire," and Problem 2354, "Battalion in Attack Using Automatic Weapons," concluded Lt. O'Connor.

One of the busiest officers in the 27th AAA AW Btry (SP) is 1st Lt. James D. Jones Jr., who hails from Selmer, Tenn. Called "white lightning" because he's "hot" at operating a field artillery fire direction center, Lt. Jones thumbs through a mountain of manuals nightly, studying for next day's instruction.

Biggest joy for the former U. S. Navy underwater demolitionist, however, comes when he commands the M-19 tank as it tows the 105-mm howitzer.

"Because the M-19 has rubber tracks, we can run it down a highway. You should see the cars pull off the road in surprise when we trundle along Custer Rd. and through the No. 1 Gate," chortles Lt. Jones. "To see a tank towing a field artillery piece is about as rare as the proverbial battleship coming up to the post."

"Our M15A1's — that's the self-propelled jobs with the 37-mm gun and twin 50's — saw extensive use in North Africa," points out Lt. Jones. "The M-15A1 was the forerunner to the M19 tank with the twin 40's, now used in Korea."

"It's an awesome display of fire-power when we fire all our AW weapons for TIS Students," Lt. Jones added. "The M-19 twin 40's stream off 240 rounds per minute, the M16 quad 50's 2000-2200 rpm and the M15A1's 37-mm and twin 50's about 120 37-shells and 1000 MG rounds."

First sergeant of the 27th is M-Sgt Joseph M. Bilhar, 47-year-old New Yorker. Nineteen of the 27th's top-ranking NCO's have been to Korea as well as half of its corporals. One of these is M-Sgt. Johnny J. Mills, motor sergeant, who will be awarded the Bronze Star for heroism in Korea.

An ex-Marine is the field first sergeant for the 27th — M-Sgt. James W. Ayers, 32-year-old 6 foot, 3 inch Asheville, N. C., veteran of the Guadalcanal, Bougainville, Guam, Saipan, Peleliu-and-Iow Jima campaigns. He says: "I've never seen an outfit like this with ack-ack and field artillery pieces. In the marines, I studied ordnance, artillery and was a shop foreman after duty as a combat rifleman."

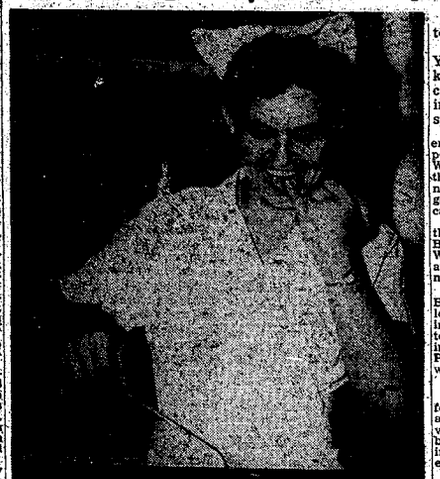
Benning Wacs Enjoy Future, Friends



TASTE IT—BE SURE IT'S GOOD—THAT'S THE TEST
Pfc. Helen Salmay, First Cook At the 3440th WAC Detachment

You'd be accepted for what you are and what you can do. You'd enjoy comradeship truer and deeper than you've ever known. You'd have an open road ahead of you in your Wac career, just as a man has when he's a soldier. You'd have an interesting job, and you'd be entrusted with military responsibility.

You'd be happy and healthy, enthusiastic and moderately prosperous. Nobody gets rich in the WAC, say the young women of this Army branch at Fort Benning; but Wacs who have had good jobs in civilian life say they can save more in the Army.

There's no better example than the parking area at the Fort Benning WAS detachment. Many Wacs drive their own shiny new automobiles, not pretentious, but nice.

If you were a Wac at Fort Benning you'd rate 30 days' furlough each year, and you'd be in a strategic spot. You could go to Miami Beach or New Orleans in summer, for example; or to Pinehurst or New York in the winter.

Big City Week Ends

Atlanta would be close at hand, for enjoyable big-city week-ends, and any of Fort Benning's many still attract that Georgia and nearby Alabama abound in interesting landmarks for off-duty weekends and three-day passes.

Top officers of The Infantry Center have only one fault to find: there are not enough Wacs. Apparently this plaint is common throughout the Army, for the Department of Defense is campaigning now to enlist 35,000 recruits to bring the rolls of the Women's Army Corps to 30,000 instead of 11,000 as at present.

If you started as a Wac at Fort Benning you might, if you were able and wise, rise to high commissioned rank. Major Elsie L. Weible, of Los Angeles, Calif., is a shining example to all the girls in her WAC command. The detachment commander her duties call for her to exercise judgement and understanding in the million-and-one problems her Wacs bring to her for advice. She must regulate discipline and maintain the efficiency of her service at Fort Benning. She is always busy, but efficient, dignified and contented.

Needs 19,000

"The Women's Army Corps needs another 19,000 women and needs them now," Major Weible says. "But it's quality we want—not quantity. To be a Wac in today's Army a girl must meet standards of intelligence, health and character that cannot be compromised. That kind of girl will find the Army has rich rewards awaiting her, in satisfaction, adventure and success."

Or, the neophyte Wac might look for example to First Lt. Ellen de Beruff, the assistant detachment commander. This attractive young woman, from Savannah, was chosen for officer candidate training and graduated No. 1 in her OCS class. It is Army policy to offer a Regular Army permanent commission to the highest-ranking member of each OCS class—but Lieutenant de Beruff had to wait!

She wasn't 21 yet! On her 21st birthday she was commissioned in the Regular Army. This last summer. Already she has gained promotion and wears a first lieutenant's silver bar.

COMPLETES SERVICE SCHOOL

Sfc. Ralph K. Ludlow, Third Army Food Service School, recently completed the Food Service Specialist course at Fort Lee, Va., with a grade of excellent.

320th Parades For Officer Who Is Leaving

While the officers are away, the enisted men will parade!

At least that's what happened in the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion in the Sand Hill area of Fort Benning last Saturday morning.

Lt. Col. John W. Grady, likable commanding officer of the 320th, and his staff and battery officers attended a class given by Col. Joe S. Lawrie, commandant of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, of which the 320th is an important part.

So while the "brass" was away, the non-commissioned officers of the 320th got together and held a review in honor of one of their departed officers, Capt. Stanley J. Lindberg.

Capt. Lindberg, former Service Battery commander who suffered a badly broken leg Aug. 22, had to "miss breakfast" to come out and see his paratroopers review him. "It was one of the best reviews I've ever seen, said the 34-year-old Silver Star winner, leaning on crutches. "And I've seen a lot!"

The "acting colonel" of the 320th NCO's was the sergeant-major, M-Sgt. Russell A. Steinkuehler. His "staff" comprised: Executive — M-Sgt. Daniel J. Quinn; S-1—Sfc. Charles L. Birdsuel and S-3 — M-Sgt. Wayne V. McGrady. Battery "commanders" were there 1st sgts.—A, M-Sgt. Joseph Chickini; B, Sfc. Alvin L. McWilliams; C, M-Sgt. Harlen E. Eulon; Headquarters, M-Sgt. Kenneth S. Brucei and Service, M-Sgt. Harold D. Richards.

To Amuse You Today

Sergeant to recruit with a single button unfastened: "Sun bathing, eh?"

SA: "I see you've grown a mustache. Must have trouble eating soup now."

Salt: "Yeah, quite a strain."

Panhandler (to passer-by): "Say, will you let me have $100 to buy myself a dinner?"

Passer-by: "One hundred dollars?"

Panhandler: "Yes, I'm putting all my eggs in one asskit."

"Should a mother of 40 get married again?"

"No. That's enough children for any woman."

A remarkable record of 618 night parachute jumps in five hours without a serious injury, a sterling example of mental alertness, and the priceless value of the reserve parachute all were written into the record-books of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team last week.

On Jan. 11, the Third Battalion of the 508th ARCT jumped 618 enlisted men and officers on Drop-zone 2 at Field between the hours of 7:15 o'clock and three minutes past midnight.

When it was all over and Lt. Gen. John P. Piron, Belgian Army Chief of Staff, had motored away, it was found that the 508th medics had treated only the following:

Pfc. Guy Tanney of Company M bruised back. He was sent to the Station Hospital for precautionary check-up and released after 24 hours.

Sfc. Joseph Wolfe, riser burn on the neck, and Pfc. Tracy Furlong, slight sprained ankle, both of Headquarters Company, Third.

Only other excitement was when Cpl. Glenn B. Rehmel of Company K plummeted more than 700 feet with less than one-third of his main canopy open before he pulled his reserve parachute.

Cpl. Rehmel, jumping from the 12th load as the fourth man in the left stick of a C-46 aircraft, galvanized into action when he failed to get that "hurt that feeling good," the terrific shock of the 25-foot canopy popping open.

Rehmel looked up. He saw his main canopy wasn't supporting him. He held his head back, and yanked on the handle of his reserve chute, strapped to his chest. The 28-foot chest-chute cracked open, about 250 feet above the ground.

Rehmel landed with a thud at the feet of the medical officer, First Lt. R. G. Venables, barely missing a small attack and alighting not more than three feet from a medical jeep.

Rehmel's first words were: "Boy, that was close!"

Then he quickly leaped up and slowly walked away. It was the 11th jump for the 20-year-old ex-Ranger. He still held the metal reserve handle in his right hand when he landed.

BENNING RADIO NEWS
MSgt. BOB GROOVER

The 508th "Red Devils" got top billing on the "Fort Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM, Noon Sundays) last Sunday, and will get even greater attention next Sunday. First Lt. Robert Feeney gave a run-down on last Sunday's show on how the paratrooper feels when he jumps from an airplane, and next Sunday members of the 508th will relate some of their airborne experiences on the "Feature Page."

Not only are the two programs important to the paratrooper, but to all people interested in Fort Benning as well. Because the programs highlight the excellent training that goes into the making of a paratrooper.

Spanish Major Caul and Italian Major Volarie gave their impressions of America on "Benning News Parade" (WDAK 5:30 p.m. Saturdays) on last week's program, and it was gratifying to know that these two foreign officers enjoyed themselves highly over Christmas holidays. They were guests of Colonel James Woodbury, himself a student at The Infantry School, at the colonel's home in Baltimore, Maryland, and on their way to Baltimore from Fort Benning, had the opportunity to see many sights they had never seen before.

The thanks of the writer goes to Sergeant Red Jennings of The Infantry School's Sound Group, for making available to "Musical Memory Room" (WRBS 8 to 9 p.m., Thursdays) last week, some of the best transcriptions of jazz concerts we have ever heard. We have had many favorable comments from WRBS listeners on this particular program, so more will be forthcoming in the near future.

One of the most interesting discussions on Airborne Supply and Packaging Delivery service we have ever heard was given by Captain C. W. Holborn on "Benning News Parade" (WDAK 5:30 p.m. Saturdays) on last Saturday's program. The captain recently returned from Japan, where he was a member of the 311th Quartermaster Airborne Supply and Packaging company. He is in the United States now to attend a course at Fort Lee, Virginia, and at the present time is on detached duty to the Quartermaster General's Office in Washington, D. C.

The captain related one story that will bear repeating. It seems that an airborne soldier pulled the wrong strap while delivering a load of supplies over Korea, and went out with the load. Fortunately, the paratrooper had his 'shute on, and was at an altitude where he had time to pull his emergency cord, so he landed without difficulty. However, when he landed below, and made his way to an airfield, authorities there refused to let him go any further before he presented orders stating that he was authorized to be there. Suffice to say the paratrooper did, eventually make his way back to his unit!

Training at The Infantry School will be given a starring role on Fort Benning radio shows aired from Columbus radio stations in the future. Members of The Infantry School's various departments will be seeing members of the Radio Branch, PIOTIC, complete with tape-recorder, many times in the coming months. Chances are they will be hearing their voices on the air as well.

Two members of the Fort Benning WAC Detachment have been featured on taped radio shows, and their voices will be heard throughout the south in the coming weeks. They are: PFC Leona Ehly and 1st Lt. Ellen DeBerruf. The two Wac's are helping the current drive to recruit more Wac's into the service.

PARTING SHOTS: Pvt. John Sliaman of Radio Branch, PIOTIC, "loves his work" interviewing Wac's in the current WAC recruiting drive. Congratulations are in order to Phil Brown, WGBA staffer, for his excellent work in interviewing principals in recent Phenix City bombing . . .

Ex-Airman Joins Troopers After Six Plane Crashes

This is about a guy who was in six airplanes crashes when he quit the air force because his wife was "so dangerous," and then joined the paratroopers.

He's in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team right now. His name is M-Sgt. Robert S. Bemus. He's first sergeant of Medical Company in the 508th Infantry Regiment and will make his 47th parachute jump next week.

"When I was in the Air Force," recalls Sgt. Bemus, "I'd ride a crashing plane down every time rather than jump. In fact, I did. Six times, in a B-17, C-47, AT-6, B-25, C-46 and a C-54. But now that I've been a paratrooper since April 1948, I'd rather jump than ride 'er dowal"

"My last crash — in the C-54 at Heneda Air Base in Tokyo, Japan—was a lulu," says the former Air Force first lieutenant. "There were 32 men in the plane when it pan-caked in. But I was the only one hurt.

"My safety belt snapped—I was in the engineer's compartment—and I sustained a fractured chin, fractured left arm and three fractured ribs. I was hurt so bad I didn't feel it and-helped evacuate 27 others who were trying to get out on the burning side of the plane.

"That's when my wife, Sue, put her foot down in our first exchange of letters. So I quit the Air Force," laughed the 30-year-old, 5 foot, inch 190-pounder from Fort Atkinson, Wis. "and volunteered for the paratroopers. On my fourth jump, I suffered a broken right leg, waited around six weeks, then made my fifth qualifying jump."

Came the inevitable question. Are you sore scared of jumping from a plane crashing in it?

"I'm scared to death of fire in a plane," snapped Sgt. Bemus, "if ever I'm in another ship that has any trouble at all, I'll jump, without hesitating!"

M-Sgt. Bemus, a master-sergeant for nine years and with 13½ years' service, said his first plane crash was a B-17 that returned to Ireland "all shot up" from a raid over France.

Deposits Total $6,445 By 508th

A total of $6445 was deposited during December by the enlisted men of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, it was announced by Headquarters, The Infantry Center. The 508th paratroopers rang up a percentage of deposits of 11.3 to lead Fort Benning. Second was 1st Student Brigade with 1.6%.

A breakdown in the 508th Airborne RCT disclosed that the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment deposited $4915 while the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, part of the ARCT, banked $1530. Strangely enough, the thrifty young troopers must have felt the pinch of Old Nick because they usually averaged soldiers deposits of more than $10,000.

Third, with a percentage of 1, was the Combat Training Command, and fourth, ASU Provisional Group, .9%. The Provisional Medical Group, Army Field Forces Board No. 3 and the Infantry School Detachment had no soldiers deposits to speak of.

The thriftiest soldiers in the 508th Airborne RCT belong to Company F of the 508th Infantry regiment and Battery A of the 320th Airborne FA. Company F soldiers handed savings of $825 over to Capt. Donald H. Seibert while Battery artillerymen deposited $770 through their commander, Capt. Charles G. McKee.

Next in line were: Third, B Company, $615; Headquarters & Headquarters, $490; Service Company, $530; C Company, $435; and B Battery of the 320th, $395.

Record individual soldier deposit thus far in the 508th ARCT was $2000 in November by Sfc. Ralph Israel who re-enlisted.

Post Soldier Once Hon. Guard Member For Gen. Van Fleet

A former member of Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet's Honor Guard in Korea has been assigned to the 148th Transportation Truck company.

He is Pfc. James Schoenfelder, who served General Van Fleet for more than five months in Korea.

He was originally assigned in Korea to the 38th Infantry regiment and took part in the breakout from the Pusan beachhead. He was wounded in November 1950 and sent to the hospital.

He returned to his unit a short while later and was assigned in March to the Honor Guard unit.

Schoenfelder holds the Korean Service medal with five battle stars, the Purple Heart, and Republic of Korea Presidential unit citation.

COMMO TEAM AT DAHLONEGA

Twenty communications men of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, are in Dahlonega, Ga., to lay wire for a communications system in the mountain training area. The project, expected to take seven days, is for the Ranger Training Committee.

EQUIVALENT OF EIGHT HUNDRED MILLION CANDLES
Pfc. R. F. Abbott (L) and Sgt. A. L. Gray Man One of the 530th's Lights

Night Turns to Day Here With 530th's Searchlights

Night hides nothing from the 800 million "candles" glowing in each of the 530th Searchlight Platoon's eight giant "moons".

Activated the day before Christmas, the platoon has begun its mission of lighting the way for Infantry School problem demonstrations by Combat Training Command, its parent unit. About 200 missions will be accomplished by the unit, WOJG Mack J. Hubbard, acting platoon commander, estimated last week.

The versatile searchlights are used to light targets, uncloak hidden enemies, and illuminate night demonstrations of infantry tactics for spectators in the stands.

Experience in Korea, Mr. Hubbard said, has proved the usefulness of searchlights in ground fighting. During World War II, the big lights were used almost entirely in anti-aircraft tactics.

Hidden behind a hill, a searchlight can cast artificial moonlight on a battlefield by diffusion or by reflection off clouds. With the aid of sights, crews can zero in for direct beams on targets.

Light from the carbon arcs is multiplied by the silver-plated reflector. It is possible to read a newspaper up to twenty-five miles from the 800 million candlepower light source, although the effective illuminating distance is set at ten miles, Mr. Hubbard explained.

The General Electric lights are five feet in diameter. Crews almost effortlessly rotate the lights a full 360 degrees and tilt them up and down. Each light and its mounting weighs 2,540 pounds. The platoon's equipment is worth about one million dollars, Mr. Hubbard said.

Cooling systems make it possible to burn the lights indefinitely, with periodic replacement of carbons.

The platoon's twenty-one men keep the lights, generators, and other equipment in top working order and operate them with three men to a light and generator unit.

Korea Returnees Get Awards Here

Five Bronze Star Medals and one Commendation Ribbon were awarded to six Korean returnees last Thursday in First Student Regiment Headquarters.

Col. Kenneth D. Macomber, regimental commander, made the presentations. Receiving the Bronze Star Medal with the "V" device were 1st Lts. Homer D. Simpson, and Benjamin L. Guntner Jr. 1st Lts. Francis X. Therrien Jr., and Albert R. Moses, also received Bronze Stars.

All officers are students in advance class No. 1.

A Bronze Star was also presented to M-Sgt. Henry A. Hicks, Service Company, First Regiment.

NEW EXEC

Second Lieutenant Henry P. LaForce Jr. has been named executive officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Student Regiment. A recent OCS graduate, Lt. LaForce replaces 2nd Lt. Joseph B. Murphy who has been ordered overseas.

Stork Greeted Graciously, Frequently at Post Hospital

The Fort Benning Army Hospital takes care of many patients, but sends home more people than it takes in.

There isn't anything wrong. It simply admits a soldier's expectant wife and returns a whole family.

"It's the simplest thing in the world for a woman to have a baby here," said Lt. Col. John S. Zelenik, chief of the obstetrical and gynecological ward.

"While the hospital cares mainly for military personnel and their dependents — and by this I don't mean just Army personnel stationed here—no one would ever be turned away in an emergency.

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "when ambulance drivers pick up a woman who appears about ready to deliver, they don't even bother to take her by the receiving station. They bring her directly to the obstetrical ward, where we do whatever is necessary and ask questions later.

"It would be impossible for a doctor to refuse to treat a woman in labor just because she was not the wife of a serviceman," he concluded.

Should Have Cards

While all dependents should have medical treatment cards, which may be obtained in the billeting office in the Infantry Center Annex, no one has ever been refused treatment because she didn't have such a card, according to Colonel Zelenik.

The procedure for obtaining the cards is simple. If the dependent's husband is here, he should apply to the billeting office. In the event the husband is overseas, the wife may obtain a card on almost any identification serving to prove she is married to a serviceman.

Mrs. Mary Dinsmore, who is in charge of issuing the cards, said that even a letter from a woman's husband would be sufficient in certain cases.

"I'm sure," said Mrs. Dinsmore, "that no one at the hospital wants to make it hard for anyone to receive treatment. I know that they'll bend over backwards to help in emergency cases.

The obstetrical section has a doctor on duty 24 hours a day to take care of any emergency cases.

"We have every necessary piece of equipment to insure the best care for mother and child," Colonel Zelenik said. "We deliver an average of 175 babies a month and conduct a pre-natal clinic for about 1,200 pregnant women each month.

Would Never Refuse

"We would never refuse to accept any woman who came in here ready to deliver. After it is all over, of course, we would have to investigate. If it turned out that the woman was not entitled to our services, we'd just have to bill her for it, that's all."

Col. Zelenik reported one case on record where the O. B. ward gave pre-natal care to the wife of a soldier for almost nine months. Her husband was discharged about a week before her delivery time, but "since we were familiar with the case, we handled the delivery anyhow.

"The registrar had to bill the couple, but I'm sure that everyone was satisfied with the arrangements."

Mrs. Doris Selby, a patient in the O.B.G. ward, as the hospital staff refer to it, has three sons, the latest one three weeks old. She is the wife of 1st Lt. Alton E. Selby, and has had two of her children in military hospitals.

"I had my first son, Larry, in a civilian hospital," she said, "but Mike, 18 months, and Steve were both delivered in military hospitals. I've certainly received the best of treatment here and at Fort Riley, Kansas, where I had Mike. Members of the staff here go out of their way to make everything as simple and efficient as possible for you."

Eight Officers Get Assignment Change

Changes in assignment for eight officers in the Third Student regiment have been announced.

Capt. James C. Billings has been assigned as assistant regimental personnel officer. His former job as adjutant of the First Officer Candidate battalion, will be filled by 1st Lt. Charles R. Baldwin, former assistant battalion S-3.

First Lt. John B. Lea was named assistant S-3 of the Second O. C. battalion.

Second Lt. Charles B. Monson was assigned to the Third O. C. company; 2nd Lt. Gerald J. Carlson to 14th company; 2nd Lt. Richard E. Cavazos to 13th company; 2nd Lt. Bowman S. Tighe to First company; and 2nd Lt. Eric F. Antila to 13th company.

Information Digest Tells Wealth of Service Facts

By Armed Forces Press Service

Have you ever heard how the Signal Corps replaced a jeep with a mosquito?

How long can a Navy blimp remain aloft?

If you were responsible for increased conservation for the whole Department of Defense would you substitute nylon for hog bristles in paint brushes?

If your new bunkmate happens to speak with a heavy accent, who is he and how did he happen to get there?

These are only a few questions about new developments or matters of late interest to all of the services that are answered in detail by the Army Information Digest.

For those who can't answer the quiz program, the mosquito actually is a light airplane the Signal Corps has used to establish "the world's biggest little airline" in Korea — replacing jeep delivery of mail.

And the huge new Navy blimp theoretically can remain aloft indefinitely.

The question of nylon and hog bristles is a minor headache that the Munitions Board is called upon to solve. Others include high priority questions involving uses and substitutions for steel, tungsten carbide, high - velocity armor-piercing shells and many others.

How the Army now is absorbing the vanguard of 2,500 non-resident aliens being recruited in the United State zone of Germany also is told in one of the articles.

THE LITTLE WHITE CLOUD THAT CRIED (Johnny Ray on Columbia). Johnny Ray, Columbia Records' "Mr. Emotion," has a smash double-play hit with "The Little White Cloud That Cried" and "Cry," now past the three-quarter million sales mark. In two meteoric months the Ray recording has climbed to the top of the nation's best-seller lists according to both THE BILLBOARD and VARIETY, capturing the No. 1 spot for three straight weeks. Johnny's career parallels his phenomenal success on Columbia records. Six months ago Ray was working in small clubs around the country, earning less than $100 a week. Today, with a crowded schedule of top nightclub, theater, radio and television appearances, Johnny's salary is in the fat four-figure class and, like his "Little White Cloud," steadily rising.

STREAMLINED CANNON BALL. (Tennessee Ernie, Dining Sisters on Capitol). Advance publicity on this platter said that the flip, "Rock City Boogie" was the "A", or hit side. Certainly the "Boogie" number has received enough plugging from such people as Nashville disc jockey Joe Allison. But for our money, the "Cannon Ball" side is the best thing to come out of hill-billy circles in many a moon. You may not think so at first, but listen to it a second time, then give your opinion. We think you'll agree with us that it is an unusual tune, and that it should be done by our "pop" artists.

PUT THE BLAME ON MAME (Janette Davis on Columbia). Millions of Americans daily hear Janette Davis on Arthur Godfrey's program, yet very few have ever seen the gal. She happens to be one of the country's best vocalists, and, incidentally, one of the best-looking singers in the business. Vocalist Davis has been recording for some time now, and this listing is an old platter. But it can still be had by dent of a little research at your favorite record shop. Flip side is "Just A Shade On The Blue Side," and both are excellent from the dancing and listening viewpoint.

"I'LL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS (Ray Anthony ork on Capitol). One of America's best bands at the present time is that of Ray Anthony. Originally, maestro Anthony turned out some weird platters that had a definitely limited sale. But lately, he has been doing some fine recordings. This is his latest Capitol release, and could easily be his finest to date. Flip is "At Last", the oldie—magnificently done by the Anthony orchestra with a Glenn Miller UNDERTONE.

"RECORDS AT RANDOM: Kaye Wyman's Decca release, "I Love That Feeling," coupled with "It Was Nice While The Money Rolled In"; Lynn Murray Decca album, "Snow White Overture"; Record collectors must: Glenn Miller RCA-Victor album, Vol. 1—some of Miller's best; "Swinging Down The Lane," Jan Garber on Capitol; "Sensational," Ella Mae Morse on the best in Side Of Town, Capitol; Dick Haymes, Decca; "Don't Cry," Savannah Churchill's follow-up to her sensational platter of "Sin."

Up in the Air

Former Circus Performer Now 508th Paratrooper

Since he was 15 years old, Pfc. Jack O. Murphy of Bloomington, Ill., has been up in the air.

For seven years he was a trapeze artist in circuses all over the U. S. and Canada. Now, at 22, he's a paratrooper in the 508th Airborne Engineer Company, workhorse of the 508th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team here.

Murphy has incorporated some of his trapeze technique into jumping out of airplanes, with at least two startling results.

First, by the dangerous and not recommended trick of shooting his feet ahead of him when he exits from the door of a plane in flight, Murphy has reduced to a comfortable minimum the plague of every paratrooper: the opening shock of the parachute.

Second, because shooting his feet forward puts him in sort of a sitting position as he slides under the tail of the moving plane, Murphy is able to watch his parachute whip past his head until a split second before it pops open.

This is a thrill — watching the parachute open—denied most troopers because of the danger of a cracked skull if the head is not down as the metal connector-links which attach the parachute to the harness snap past the head.

"Some day I may wait a little too long watching the 'chute pop open," smiles the six-foot one inch, 170-pound dare devil. "Maybe that'll teach me a lesson."

"But I still have the knack of relaxing from my trapeze days and so far all of my nine parachute landings have been like a feather. When taking the airborne course last July, I had to guard against being too confident and casual in jumping from the 34-foot tower or I would have been washed out for not doing it in the orthodox manner. I guess most fellows get jittery flying through the air."

Murphy, now a jeep driver with the 508th Engineers, became interested in the circus because he lived in Bloomington, home of the flying acts. He started on the road with the circus when he was 15 and toured every major city in the U. S. and Canada as a member of the Flying LaMarr troupe.

Murphy lived with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. August Krull, at 1308 West Market Street, Bloomington, before entering the Army. He is the son of Patrick O. Murphy of Channute Air Force Base, Ill., and Mrs. Murphy of 606 Magnolia Street, Compton, Calif.

Sgt. Barrigar Receives Commendation Letter

Sgt. Robert A. Barrigar, supply sergeant, 497th Army Post Unit, received a letter of commendation from General Church as a result of the annual IG inspection last month.

Especially noted were the careful arrangement of supplies and the condition of the supply records maintained by the former Saginaw, Mich., mail carrier.

TEXAS POLL TAX DUE

Residents of Texas serving in the Armed Forces must pay a poll tax of $2.75 before Feb. 1 if they wish to cast an absentee ballot in elections during the present year.

Regulations Told For Army Voters From Four States

Voting information governing elections in four states has been revealed by Third Army Headquarters for voters sponsored. The four states, Louisiana, Minnesota, Illinois and New Jersey, are holding elections early in 1952.

The main elections in each state are primary elections to be held this spring to nominate candidates for various offices.

Members of the Armed Forces and Merchant Marines who desire to send in absentee ballots must make certain they are registered voters in some states. Registration may be accomplished in a majority of cases by mailing application forms to the county clerk of their home county. The application must be received within a certain time period before election that varies in different states.

However, some states, including New Jersey, do not require registration by voters in the Armed services.

Form 76 may be obtained by unit commanders by submitting a request through channels to the Adjutant General Post Publications Stockroom, The Infantry Center.

Three Regimental Cadre Promoted to Silver Bars

Three cadre officers in the Second Student regiment have been promoted from second to first lieutenant.

The 3448th Area Service Unit Separation Detachment claims that units have on many details to perform as the average enlisted man . . . and they have the work to substantiate it.

The detachment worked at top speed to separate all records that were on inactive status when recalled to service, and concurrently discharging personnel whose enlistments expired.

The detachment is now set up to function as a small scale reception center, handling recruits and enlistees from Columbus and vicinity.

The unit functions in accord with the Columbus recruiting office and draft boards, providing barracks and mess facilities for the men while they await their physical examinations and begin their processing for induction into the service.

The unit is organized to handle 150 men daily.

Hobby Shop Tells Revised Schedule

Special Services Hobby Shop is operating on a new schedule.

The shop is open on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday from 8 until 10 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday it is open from 1 until 5 p.m.

The Hobby shop offers the Benning camera bugs and the would-be-carpenters a chance to pursue their favorite hobby with the best and most modern equipment.

The Photo lab especially is prepared to give the camera fans all types of equipment for developing prints. There is a large dark room which will accommodate about nine people, then there are the printers, washers and driers. An instructor is on duty to lend a helping hand with any problem.

In the woodwork section, the machinery and tools can be used for constructing anything from a drop leaf table to a small wall cabinet.

There is also a plastic and leather craft section in the shop. At the present, this section is undergoing a reorganization. When the reorganization is completed this section will also offer more and better equipment.

All material needed to make the desired item, with the exception of lumber, can be purchased from the Hobby shop.

Telephone Service is Growing, too!

and the cost is up far less than prices in general!

"LADIES" already! My, how they have grown! And you can say the same for Georgia's telephone service.

IN JUST EIGHT years in Georgia, the number of telephones you can call has more than doubled.

BEST OF ALL, the price of this bigger, better "package" of service has gone up on the average far less than prices in general . . . and less than our cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS a bargain, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of the family budget.

LAMAR HUBBARD, Georgia Manager

LONG DISTANCE CALLS go through faster when you give the operator the out-of-town telephone number.

Benning Candidate Is Fearless Of Poisonous Georgia Snakes

To Officer Candidate Royce M. Powell, 4th OC Company, Third Student Regiment, the thought of coming face to face with a snake on the reservation, causes him no concern whatsoever.

Working in close association with Yale University's Dr. M. L. Bishop, a pioneer in snake venom research, and the Florida curator, Ross Allen, they netted 450 live reptiles, which Powell believes is a record in reptile catching.

In addition to collecting snakes, Powell has engaged on several nation-wide lecture tours, demonstrating to college and high school audiences the latest techniques in snake husbandry. He also lectured in the proper safety factors involving in handling live, venomous reptiles.

During one of these demonstrations, Powell's assistant, Joe Dolde, was bitten in the face by a rattler and died shortly after.

Admitting to the dangers involve in his work, Candidate Powell feels that this danger is more than offset by the satisfaction he has received in helping to reduce the annual snake bit toll.

In estimating the number of snakes that he has caught, Powell figures that laid end to end they would extend from Harmony Church to the Main Post.

Gen. Piron Sees Old Friend Here

An old friendship was renewed when Lt. Gen. J. B. Piron, Belgian Army chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Clare Armstrong, commander of the Third Army Anti-Aircraft Training Center at Camp Stewart, Ga., met here.

Gen. Piron, who is touring U. S. military installations first met Gen. Armstrong when the American officer was with the Antwerp X Command organizing defense against the V - in Luxemburg during World War II. Gen. Armstrong later was assigned as military attache to Belgium and Luxemburg from 1946-1950. This is the first time the two generals have seen each other since Gen. Armstrong's return to the U. S.

The Belgian chief of staff arrived at Fort Benning Friday and spent the remainder of the afternoon receiving an orientation on Infantry school activities. He also discussed various military institutions with Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander.

The general and his party saw several Infantry School demonstrations ad visited the Officer Candidate School and the 508th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team.

Gen. Piron also toured The Infantry School's Communication and Automotive Deuartments.

OC's Hometown Changes Name

"Sorry, there is no city by that name in New Mexico."

That could very easily have been the answer Pfc. James Syling of 17th OC Company received when he tried to buy a ticket to his former hometown of Hot Springs, N. M.

When Syling enlisted last January the name of the city was Hot Springs — when he went home on leave the name had been changed to Truth or Consequences.

This switch of names was the result of a publicity stunt by the radio show of the same name and the Hot Springs City Fathers. Truth or Consequences' 10,000 inhabitants are being accustomed to their city's new name but Pfc. Syling states that questioners do a double-take when asking him the name of his home and receiving his answer.

"It's merely a matter of becoming used to it", he explains.

Profits Returned From PX Sales

Have you ever wondered just how post exchange profits are turned back into activities that benefit every individual soldier?

Actually, it's a simple procedure. Profits are forwarded to the Regional Office of the Army and Air Force Exchanges.

Each base commander in that area requests funds each month based on the personnel strength of his command. The minimum exchange profit returned each month is $1.10 per man; the maximum, $1.35.

Exchange profits are broken down each month like this:

Major command welfare fund, 10 cents; unit fund, 40 cents; and central base of post fund, 60.85 cents, depending upon strength. Posts with a large number of personnel get a smaller percentage than posts with a limited number of men.

Once the request for funds has been forwarded a check from the regional office is returned within two days to the base commander.

These funds provide soldiers with athletic equipment and facilities, libraries, hobby shops, day rooms, service club activities, service shows, and many other special events designed to help soldiers spend their spare time profitably.

Well attended by both officers and their ladies, the group was treated to an array of some 90 color slides. Winners in the slide competition included Col. Harry L. Bennett, Lt. Hamilton Ackerman, Lt. Joseph Eagers and Lt. Ruhus B. Spain.

Plans were announced by Capt. Wesley Fisher, club president, for the next meeting to be held on 28 January at the Country Club. That meeting will be devoted to home portraits.

Blood Drive Totals 20,617 Donations

Blood Collections during the 16th week of the Armed Forces Blood Donor Program were the smallest since the start of the drive, Sept. 10, 1951. The Department of Defense and the American Red Cross made the joint announcement.

A total of 20,617 pints of whole blood was collected during the week of Dec. 24-30, 1951.

The temporary closing of several donor stations for the Christmas—New Year holidays, delays in reporting collections, and vacations are believed to be the cause of the slump.

Of the 16th week's total, the American Red Cross and cooperating blood banks collected 17,545 pints and the Armed Forces Blood Donor Center, 3,072 pints.

Collections for the period September 10-December 30, by periods of four weeks is as follows:

Sept. 10-Oct. 7, 147,026
October 8-Nov. 4, 277,731

Five Quintets Battle For Lead

Like Ol' Man Ribbler the Fort Benning Basketball League keeps right on rolling along this week, but the ol' man would be hard put to keep step with the soldier cage capers.

Any present selection of possible champs would have to include five of the ten competing quintets despite some clean cut decisions in the first four days of firing.

CTC No One, ISD Star In Openers

The amazingly well-conditioned fast breaking teams of Combat Training Command No. One and Infantry School Detachment and the individual performances of Bill Hatchett, for Second Student Regiment, highlighted the opening week-end of the Fort Benning Basketball League.

The season got under way before moderate crowds with double headers Thursday and Friday night at Briant Wells Field House.

A favored I.S.D. quint was almost caught redhanded by the alert CTC Commanders, but rallied behind sure-shot Truman Medders in the final seconds to tie the score, 71-71, then won in overtime, 80-73, with Medders three field goals providing the margin.

Medders, who played three seasons with Fashanda A. & M. of Oklahoma and also stars in track, outshot such other I.S.D. lights as Herb Lindsay and John Yaldikian. Lindsay and Medders tallied 18 points each and Yaldikian got 15 before fouling out.

The Commanders employed fancy strategy as well as midseason physical conditioning to lead for most of four periods. They held edges of 17-13 at the quarter, 34-27 at the half and 53-41 going into the final frame.

Arthur Green, 20-year old six-foot, one-inch forward, was rated the most impressive for CTC with his eagle floor play, fancy shooting and his sportsmanship. Despite scoring 15 points and being in action for almost the entire game he incurred only two personal fouls.

Bob Brown, 20-year old greenhand from Lincoln U. before entering service, led the CTC scoring with 27 points as he turned in a sparkling performance.

Calvin Edwards, Bryson, six-foot, four-inch holdover from the grid team, tallied nine six points, but completely dominated the back boards, until he fouled out in the last period. I.S.D. was able to close the scoring gap and take

BIG BILL HATCHETT
All-American cager

Two of the title teasers, Third Student Regiment and the Billy Hatchett scoring machine called Second Student Regiment match buckets at 6:30 Friday night at Briant Wells in the week's most promising games.

The entire First Student Brigade probably will ogle this intra-unit feud.

Then the tall, terrible Third has to face C.T.C.'s Commanders at 6:30 Tuesday night at Harmony Church Field House in another headline maker.

Meantime, other games, all played as twin bills at Harmony Church Tuesday and Thursday nights and Briant Wells on other weekday evenings, will be by way of separating the grownups from the children.

That goes through Tuesday when the hoop havoc will be shelved for the week in favor of the post boxing tournament. Action resumes Monday, Jan. 28.

Here's the week's schedule!

Thursday (BWFH)—Ord Student Regt. vs. 2nd Student Regt. and CTC No. Two vs. FARC Medics.

Monday (BWFH)—AF Board Three vs. Inf. School Det. and 508th ARCT vs. First Student Regt.

Tuesday (BGFH)—3rd Student Regt. vs. CTC No. One and CTC No. Two vs. Armd Prov. Gp.

(No games Wednesday, Thursday and Friday due to boxing tournament at Briant Wells.)

In the first game of the first full week of action, appropriately enough, Third SR's Generals established themselves as first-rate contenders by beating C.T.C.'s Rifles (Team Two), 87-47, Monday night.

Coach Bill Hacker was able to keep in action a squad which never averaged under 6'1" and every man had a blank lease covering any backboard property he might encounter.

Bruce Mahon, 6' 2" four-year veteran at Gettysburg, Pa., College, rattled the irons for 20 points closely followed by 6-6 Center Gillingham with 16. Guard Bernard Gill, an exceptional ball handler with speed to burn, had six field goals.

Most impressive factor about the Generals was their coordination as a team featuring deceptive passing under the enemy bucket. This was in contrast to the Rifles who showed that they had practiced together only several times.

The difference was that 508th had two new men, gridders Gary Mattocks and Dick Sarter, while ASU was missing Big Dale McClaf, who fouled out early, and Center Ervin Johnson was getting reckoned in his usual style.

Bill Hahn carried the Raider attack with 19 points while Forward Fran Rice's 20 was high for the Red Devils. Guard Bob Borror played a heady game for the winners and tallied 16 points.

Mujica Boxes Monday Night

Fort Benning's Larry Mujica will risk his Georgia welterweight boxing crown in a return 10-rounder against Jose Diaz, of Havana, Monday, Jan. 21, at the downtown Columbus Arena.

Larry copped a split decision from the Cuban Jan. 7 bout, one of the supporting bouts. Wince Merolla, veteran pro stationed at Fort Benning, will be rematched with Al (Kid) McCoy.

McCoy copped an equally close decision from Merolla, who has had 76 fights and holds a knockout win over former champ Lew Jenkins.

Second SR Rockets

The Second Student Regiment basketball team today was officially nick-named "Rockets." The monicker was suggested by Cpl. Calvin Jones, Headquarters, 2nd Battalion, in contest to give the camp squad an identifying title.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson

WHAT HAVE I seen thus far in the basketball league? This much anyway: If the other six teams don't hustle the only way they will wind up beating Infantry School Detachment, Second and Third Student Regiments and Combat Training Command No. One is with a whip.

The long and the short of it in height and name with the Third SR's Generals is Bill Gillingham (6-6) and Bernard Gill (5-10). Don't laugh, brother. Gillingham has homesteading rights on the backboards and Lil' Gill's fancy floor work and dead-eye shooting earned him all-city and all-state high school honors in Norfolk and All-Southern laurels with Virginia.

Most colorful combination in the league is the Commanders Arthur Green and Bob Brown (end of pun!) whose fabulous fast break will make some other teams feel mighty black and blue. They scored a total of 42 points in their first game and so smooth was their work that they incurred only three fouls between them. And as soon as towering Sylvester Bruten rounds off the rough edges which fouled him out Friday CTC No. One will have a combination hard to beat.

Coach Ervin Fleet has John Yaldizian, Truman Medders, Garland Pinholster and Bob Dougherty, but if he can work out a better lend-lease arrangement for Herb Lindsay his I.S.D. Professors will educate some of the other contenders.

Lindsay, best lineman of the late lamented football season, might be top man of the hoop season, too, except for arduous duties as a Ranger physical training officer which demand long hours. Six-foot, three-inch Herb played semi-pro basketball with mill teams in South Carolina after graduating as Best All 'Round Athlete at Presbyterian in 1949. He prefers basketball over other games, but soon may be called on for a Ranger training stint in Florida. With him will go a lot of the hopes of I.S.D.

And anyone who hasn't already heard what former Rutgers All-American Billy Hatchett is doing for Second Student Regiment isn't interested in basketball anyway. 'Nuff said?

EVIDENCE THAT we had a good football year: Sports Officer Bill Fannin already has a letter from Fort Jackson asking to be included on our 1952 grid schedule.

NEWEST ADDITION to Benning's growing collection of sports celebrities walked through the main post gate almost at the same time this was scheduled to go to press. He's Jack Elphaugh who has won as many amateur wrestling titles as anyone we know of. Jack has been tapped to organize an off-duty hours course in grappling at Briant Wells. Call Bill DeLong at the sports office (2256) for details.

Inducted only 14 weeks ago and a volunteer for airborne training, Elphaugh captained the University of Oklahoma's 1951 national collegiate grunt and groan champs. He was on the team which placed third in the 1950 NCAA wrestling championships, fourth in the 1952 NCAA meet and second in the 19511 NAAU meet.

Jack won the 1949 Oklahoma AAU wrestling crown in his weight division and the Big Seven Conference title in 1951 and captained the American team which made a good will tour of Japan last summer.

BEHIND UN-COOPERATIVE weather golf is apparently in high gear at Fort Benning Country Club. Matt Tatum and Devert Moore have swapped first place on the golf ladder several times in recent weeks. Tatum registered an eagle two on the par four tenth hole while Jock McQuarrie did same on the eleventh. Young Gordon Hammond, Jr., former Colorado collegiate links ace, challenged and beat Ed Mann and Jim Root for fifth place on the ladder.

Lt. Col. Herman Rabinowitz, chairman of the golf committee, reports a number of upcom g inter-city matches for the 20-man Benning team. Among opponents will be North Fulton C. C. of Atlanta and LaGrange, Ga., C. C. Pro Charlie Harper and Mac McDowell, who select the Benning teams, are glad to hear of the return from Korea of Fred Weyand and Bill Caldwell, who shot in the low 75's.

Other good news for post golfers is that no entry fee will be charged for future tournaments at the club. Prizes will be arranged by the golf committee which is planning an open hole-in-one tourney this spring for duffers and pros alike. Ray Strong won the first blind bogey event of the new year.

Benning-To-Olympics Run Is Planned By Indian

Fort Benning, already scheduled to be host to the Third Army Area Track and Field championships, this week added another cinder ace who has an Olympic tryout gleam in his eyes.

He is Sgt. Lionel F. Finn, much-decorated battle veteran of World War II and Korea, who is a full-blooded Micmac Indian and a distant relation of Jim Thorpe one of America's all-time great runners.

The 29-year old Boston-born star has been assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, C.T.C., after returning from duty with the 38th Infantry, Second Division, in Korea where he was wounded for the third time.

Finn last summer defeated Yon Bik Soo, the sensational South Korean runner, who in 1947 set a world's record of two hours, 23 minutes and 22 seconds for 26 miles in the Boston Athletic Association Marathon.

"I beat Soo by three minutes over a 10-mile course in an informal challenge at Taegu," Finn admitted modestly. "It's hard to say when an athlete reaches his peak, but at 29 I feel like I have more speed and stamina than ever before. My biggest ambition now is to get a shot at the 1952 Olympics. Whether I get it or not, this is my last season of regular competition."

Along that line, a letter requesting permission for Finn to represent the Army in the Olympic tryouts has been submitted through Third Army to Department of Army, according to Maj. Charles Jackson, C.T.C. sports officer.

As it stands now, post fans will not get a chance to see Finn in action. Third Army and All-Army track and field competition does not include the gruelling marathon event.

"We apparently have half a dozen or more distance runners on post now. If that holds true next spring, we may stage a marathon race of our own, in connection with the Third Army meet there."

Finn, who holds the Silver Star, Bronze Star with cluster and V, and the Purple Heart with two clusters, has been running since he was nine.

"Being an Indian, I was brought up in distance running on the Micmac reservation in Nova Scotia." He received coaching and encouragement from Jim Thorpe and scored his first major victory in a five-mile St. Patrick's Day test in Boston at the age of 17. Only 29 years old now, he has ten years Army service and is making a career of the service.

Married and the father of an 11-year old boy, Finn has run in numerous big competition, against such distance names as Tarzan Brown, Gerard Cote and Johnny Kelley. He was 12th behind Yon Buk Soo in the record-shattering 1947 Boston Marathon.

Apparently preferring the longest runs he can get, Finn finished third in the 45-mile Washington State Centennial meet in 1948. A veteran of the Sixth Rangers which liberated the famed Cabanatuan American prison camp on Luzon, in 1945, he also is proficient in other sports.

He swam with the Sixth Army team which won the Zone of Interior swim crown in 1949. He also has toured as a roller skater.

Army Pushes Sports With Eye to Olympics

Sports for Army personnel will be a priority item in the future, according to information received from several higher headquarters, and for some Fort Benning athletes may lead directly to the Olympic Games in Finland.

In line with this policy, announcement of dates has been made for the revival of Third Army and All-Army tournaments in major sports with the possibility of Olympic tryouts for outstanding teams or individuals in these sports.

Fort Benning has been awarded the Third Army Track and Field meet which will be held at Doughboy Stadium May 9-10. The Fort Benning track and field championships are scheduled April 19.

The 1952 All - Army track and field meet is set for May 30-31 in the Sixth Army Area, probably in California.

The winners from this will then go on to represent the Army in the Inter - Service meet June 6-7. Inter - Service champs will represent the Armed Forces in the National Invitational Track and Field Meet June 27-28 at Los Angeles Coliseum.

The Benning basketball play which got under way this week similarly may lead to much larger prizes. The post cage champions will go to the Third Army Basketball tournament March 25-29 at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The All - Army hoop meet will follow April 7 - 13 in the Fourth Army Area. Only teams of regimental or comparable units — will be eligible, which is the basis on which the Benning Basketball League is organized.

It also is significant that 12 teams from the Third Army Area will be eligible for the All-Army meet. The winning team of the All - Army meet will probably play in the Olympic tryouts.

The Fort Benning Boxing tournament is scheduled to open Jan. 23 at Briant Wells Field House. Winners in the ten weight divisions will enter the Third Army ring melee at Camp Gordon, Ga., May 7-10.

From the latter meet, winners will go into the All-Army ring tournament in the First Army Area, probably at Fort Dix, N. J. Ten of the finalists will then be selected to represent the Army in the National Invitational Boxing tournament June 16 - 18 at Kansas City, Kans., which will determine the United States team for the 1952 Olympics in Helsinki, Finland.

Only amateur boxers holding A. A. U. cards will be eligible for the All - Army tournament.

Most recent information on the increased emphasis on sports is a circular from Headquarters, Third Army, which states in part: "Maximum participation in recreative sports will be emphasized on an intrapost and interunit level—

It adds: "No objection will be interposed to the formation of teams or individual participation in interpost, interservice, or community sports competition (where such competition is further community relations)."

BENNING TRACK STAR & OLYMPIC HOPEFUL HONORED
Maj. Gen. Church (left) this week gave M-Sgt. Richard Ellis French Army General Staff championship medal as member of U.S.A. Pentathlon team which finished fifth in military meet in France last October.

Playing Sports Officer Outlines Tourney Setup

A man who can practice what he preaches visited Fort Benning this week to have a look-see at the post's sports program.

He is Maj. Jesse Link, recently appointed sports officer for Third Army's stepped up athletic program, and a well qualified hand with a first baseman's mitt.

A varsity player in baseball and basketball at Western Kentucky State Teachers College, Maj. Link has just returned from 20 months duty in Guam where he produced tournament winning teams in those sports and volleyball.

He declined comment at this time on Benning's sports program, but pointed out that under recent Third Army directives individual units are allowed "the widest possible latitude" in making their own programs.

He discussed plans with Col. Kenneth Grimes, Special Services officer, and Capt. William Fannin, sports officer, for the coming Third Army Track and Field Meet which will be held at Doughboy Stadium.

He also revealed that two new weight divisions — light welterweight and light middleweight — have been added in boxing which means that Fort Benning will send a 10 instead of eight sluggers to the Third Army mill melee at Camp Gordon, Ga.

Maj. Link said directives will be forthcoming this week which will fill in details for the track and boxing events.

Meantime, post fans may see Maj. Link in action this spring with Fort McPherson's baseball team. He has appeared against Benning there several times and will be looking for a berth on the McPherson team.

Maj. Link was slated to sign with Indianapolis of the American Association upon graduating from Western Kentucky in 1941, but instead he was "asked" to ink a pact with Uncle Sam. He has been in service since.

QB Must Run Now

Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns, says the day of the T-formation quarterback who calls signals and passes only is coming to a close. He said spread formations which "loosen" the game demand a quarterback who can run, too.

Church Encourages Post Sports Stars

Any effort by Fort Benning athletes to win honors in All-Army and other tournaments leading up to the 1952 Olympics will have the hearty backing of The Infantry Center Commander, Maj. Gen. John Church.

Asked by Sports Editor Charlie Johnson to comment on the many coming sports events, Gen. Church said:

"The chance for Fort Benning teams and individual athletes to take part in such a venture as the 1952 Olympic Games provides us with both a rare opportunity and a strong challenge.

"I hope we may be fortunate enough to develop and turn out some athletes who will be able to carry high the name of Fort Benning in the coming Army and inter-service sports competitions which lead to the Olympics.

"It's an ambitious goal which I heartily endorse."

Wilt Sets Record

Fred Wilt, running FBI agent, was ready for the Olympic games this week after breaking the world's record for a two-mile flat track. Wilt ran it in 8:59.5.

HERMAN NAMED COACH

Billy Herman, former manager of the Pirates, has been named to replace Clyde Sukeforth as coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Brigade Golf Tourney Set With 8 Teams

The First Student Brigade golf tourney got under way this week with amateurs competing with professionals on an equal basis, each team is slated to play one match a week.

All cadre officer personnel and student members who hold athletic memberships in the officers Mess are eligible. Only students anticipating assignment to Fort Benning for at least seven weeks will enter.

Teams included are: Brigade headquarters, one team; First Student regiment, three teams; Second Student regiment, two teams and Third Student regiment, two teams. F. G. A. rules will prevail with handicaps to be established on a 3/4 basis.

Rebuilt WAC Cagers Play Heavy Schedule

Sgt. W. E. Burgess is starting his second year as coach of the WAC detachment basketball team and faces a tough task with only Helen (Red) Swenson and Johnnie Windberry returning from the 1951 squad.

The 1951 team was highly successful against military opposition by defeating Fort Jackson, S. C. and the Camp Gordon WAC's twice in their only games against service teams. They won nine out of 16 in the first year of organized basketball at the detachment.

A member of the Women's Industrial League, sponsored by the Columbus department of recreation, which ends Feb. 21, the WAC basketeers were handed their first loss of the year by the Service Stamp team.

Hope for another successful year lies in the return of Swenson and Winberry and newcomers Frances Wilson, Pauline Doulin, Betty Schwarz, Eunice Auweiss, Mary Waltman, Barbara Harvey and Sonia Stacy.

Games with WAC teams in the Third Army area are being scheduled according to Capt. Lewis M. Grizzard, athletic and recreation officer for the A.S.U. Provisional group.

Spring Drills Okay; Bowls to Be Studied

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has voted against banning spring football drills, but has announced it will make a one - year study of post-season bowl games.

The NCAA also voted against any school signing bowl contracts carrying beyond Jan. 2, 1953, declared any athlete receiving financial help other than from the school is ineligible and raised scholastic standards for athletes.

Five College Cage Teams Yet Unbeaten

The Kansas Jayhawks, rated the top basketball team in the nation, went into action again this week still sweating from their narrow squeak past Missouri, 60-59.

Only five major quints remained unbeaten at the start of the week after Florida and Seton Hall were dumped by Kentucky and Siena College respectively. The unbeaten are Kansas, Iowa, Illinois Duquesne, and St. Bonaventure.

Illinois, rated the number two team, easily defeated Michigan, 67-51, and Iowa trampled Indiana, 78-59.

According to the experts, ten players now figure in the battle for All-America hoop honors. They are:

TUNE TROUBLE

National anthems of each participating nation are usually played at the Olympics, but the Norwegian band which will play them in Helsinki is dubious about playing for the East German team. The only anthem the Germans have had for years is Deutschland Uber Alles (Germany Above All)

Carleton, McNeese Top Officer Keglers

Maj. Linwood Carleton rolled high-game of 233, third best of the season, and Capt. Bill McNeese had second best game of 227 and high individual series of 630 this week in The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League.

Thanks to McNeese's heady maple splitting, which also included a 225 game, Advance Class No. Two pulled into second place in the league's second section.

His 630 series stands as high of the season.

Capt. L. G. Hofstetter, Jr., had second best series of 22 and third best game of the week of 225 which sent him into a tie with Capt. Wesley Fisher for first place in season's individual averages. Each has a 181.

Fisher had the week's third best series of 565 which included a 225 game.

A's Grab Prize

John McGroarty, 18 - year old Detroit high school pitching sensation, has been signed by the Philadelphia Athletics and sent to their Savannah, Ga., farm club in the Sally League. He pitched four high school no - hitters.

The Infantry Center Bowling League roared back from a holiday layoff this week to record 18 games of 200 or better and two 600 series.

Joseph Bitala, of 508th ARCT Team Two dumped 625 pins for the fourth highest set of the season.

Edwin Knuth, of Army Field Forces Board Three, had the week's second best series of 606 followed by J. R. Freeman, of Hospital Team One, with 606.

High team games abounded, too, with I.S.D. Team Four rolling a 948 and 508th ARCT Team Two splitting 932 pins. The I.S.D. figure was the second highest team game of the season.

Although the 508th's second team is only in fifth place they have the league's best team average of 845 and rolled the top team series of the week of 2,762 which closely follows their season's high team series of 2798.

The week's high individual game of 246 was rolled by Broach, I.S.D. Team Four with Freeman recording second best of 236.

Clements Hits Winning Goal—For Rival Team

Famed Wrong Way Corrigan has met his peer—minus airplane.

Roland Clements, playing for Headquarters and Service Co. 773rd Tank Battalion, scored the field goal which gave Headquarters Battery, 41st Field Artillery Battalion, a victory over his squad, 32-34.

To make matters worse, it was the final game of the intramural schedule to decide the Combat Training Command basketball champions.

Clements need not feel too badly, however. The champs had played a solid game all the way with Ted Williams setting the pace with eight goals for 18 points.

The Field Artillery quint had beaten Companies K and M to gain the CTC finals. The Tankers had downed Headquarters Co., 30th Infantry, and Headquarters and Service Company, 78th Engineers.

What Do You Know About Basketball?

How good a basketball fan are you?

The Fort Benning Basketball Officials Association passed out a check sheet of 100 questions to coaches in the Benning league just before the season started.

Below are ten of those questions. If you answer all ten right you know as much as the coaches (about rules, that is). If you get from seven to nine right, that's excellent and if you get five or six right you know what you're watching on a cage court.

But if you correctly answer less than five you need a refresher course, pal. They can all be answered true or false.

1. The clock shall be stopped at all times when a jump ball occurs.

2. When a player throws a field goal into his opponents' basket, it is added to the opponents' score.

3. A multiple foul is a situation in which two or more team mates commit personal fouls against the same opponent at approximately the same time.

4. On free throws following double fouls, players shall line up along the free throw lines.

5. A goal does not count if a player knocks the ball into his basket with his fist.

6. It is not "traveling" if a player falls to the floor while holding the ball unless he makes progress by sliding.

7. Certain personal foul rules may be set aside by mutual agreement between the coaches and officials.

8. In starting a dribble after receiving the ball, a player may not lift the pivot foot from the floor before the ball leaves his hand.

9. A player is out of bounds when he touches the boundary line.

10. A pivot takes place when a player who is holding the ball steps once or more than once in any direction with the same foot, the other called the pivot foot being kept at its point of contact with the floor.

Answers:

1. True. 6. True.
2. True. 7. False.
3. True. 8. True.
4. False. 9. True.
5. True. 10. True.

GRID TEAM RUMORED

Gordon McLendon, president of the Liberty Broadcasting System which features sports events, hinted this week that Dallas will be in the National Professional Football League next season. He declined to elaborate.

FIGHTS NIXED

James J. Braddock, Jr., six-foot, three-inch, 205-pound son of former heavyweight boxing champ, Jim Braddock, is in the Army, but he wants a straight service career with no boxing which he says doesn't appeal to him.

PROFESSIONAL . . . Statuesque Margie Arends is professional model in Chicago when she's not playing professional basketball with Hazel Walker's all-girl team. Her charms and charming shots will be on display in an exhibition game against 508th Airborne RCT at 8 p.m. Sunday night at Briant Wells Field House. Who has the heart to beat a team with players like Margie?

The 508th Airborne's basketball warriors venture "above and beyond the call of duty" at 8 p. m. Sunday at Bryant Wells Field House when they take on Hazel Walker's all girl professional quintet in an exhibition basketball game.

It's natural enough that an amateur team (the 508th) should lose to pros (Hazel's hotshots), but for a hardy parachute gang to be beaten by a ladies' team—well, gunners, this is the 508th's most "crucial" game of the season.

The girls, calling themselves the Arkansas Travelers, have been a sensational attraction because of their deadly shooting accuracy and fancy floor work against bigger and stronger male teams.

By the way, of important statistics, Miss Walker has led on five amateur championship teams, won the national free throw title years and oh, yes, says the average age of the girls is 20, height is 5 feet 11 inches and weight 150.

During the halftime intermission, Hazel challenges all comers to a free throw contest from standing, kneeling and sitting positions.

Admission is 75 cents for all seats.

David Quintet Out Puns ISD

With Little Bobby Roth as playing narrator and master of mirth the House of David basketball team clowned its way to win over Infantry School Detachment, 58 - 44, Sunday night.

Some 1,000 spectators crowded Briant Wells Field House to see the exhibition contest.

The game was featured by six - foot, three - inch Bill Allen's fancy backboard work which netted him 19 points, and the fabulous long shots of Stan Karpenski who threw one from center court which went high into the rafters and down in the basket.

I. S. D. was paced by John Yaldizian and Bob Dougherty with 10 points each. Truman Medeiros and Ray Blankenship each scored six.

Halftime clowning by the bearded visitors also was well received.

Shooting Set On Wednesday

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's indoor smallbore range will be open each Wednesday evening from 6:30 to 9 p.m. instead of Monday evenings as in the past.

Full information can be had by contacting Capt. Charles Stevens at 4-1190. The range is located on the top floor of Army Field Forces Board Three, third courtel, main post.

The annual meeting of the club for the election of officers is slated at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21., in Brown Hall, according to announcement by Capt. James McCubbin.

CTC Track Squad Being Organized

Coach Lawrence Williams, former athletic director and track coach at Bishop College at Marshall, Tex., began interviewing prospects this week for the 1952 Combat Training Command track and field teams.

Among the early hopefuls reporting were milers Clifford Williams and Oscar Gonzalez, and James Bell, a broad jumper from Ohio State.

Williams, who coached the 1943 Second Army champion Fort Lee, Va., team, said work outs for the CTC squad will start about Jan. 21.

TAG MATCH TONIGHT

A tag team match will be featured on the weekly wrestling program at 8 o'clock tonight at the downtown Columbus Arena.

COACHES SIGNED

Mike Kazmaier and Billy Hickman have been added as assistant football coaches at North Carolina State College.

ROOKIE . . . Making her debut with Hazel Walker's All-Girl pro team, which plays 508th Airborne RCT basketball squad at 8 p.m. Sunday at Briant Wells Field House, is 5" 3" Betty Lou Johnson, of Edgarton, Ohio. She's an expert ball handler. And, fellas, she has a sister, Pat, who also plays on the team.

PHILS CRACK DOWN

No wives, automobiles, swimming, card playing, dining out, or dog tracks, but plenty of hard work is the order put out this week by Manager Billy Sawyer for the spring training of the Philadelphia Phillies at Clearwater, Fla.

ASU Bands Still Hop For Sports

Doughboy Stadium was filled with jumping jive during some of the football games that were played the past season. Now, fans are again entertained with the same type of music at the major sports events. Last week, the Provisional Group band performed during the boxing matches held between the Area Service Unit Provisional group and the Combat Training command teams.

The band was organized at the de-activation of the 198th Army band in November 1946 and assigned to the 25th Infantry Combat team for the purpose of providing music in unit parades.

CWO. Harry Hollowell, bandleader and approximately 54 members were assigned to the band; all had worked with bands in civilian life.

In February 1948, the Band was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section II, 3446th Area Service unit for duty with the Infantry center.

For entertainment, two orchestras were formed and served at all Service Clubs, Officers Clubs, and Non-Commissioned Officers Clubs on the post. Because of decrease in personnel and scarcity of musicians, two combos were formed to carry out the same purpose.

At present there are 29 members in the band with half of the personnel playing more than one instrument. Often they combine with the 122nd Army band on troop parades, reviews and other military commitments.

Cage Opens

the lead after Bruten went to the showers.

Along with I.S.D. and C.T.C., Hatchett in action.

Voted All - America cage honors at Rutgers four seasons ago, he bucketed 25 points as the Second downed 508th Airborne RCT, 57-39, in the first game of the year.

Hatchett moved the ball cleverly, setting up numerous other scoring plays and controlled rebounds. A natural athlete who captured Rutgers 1948 grid team, and coached and starred for the Fort Dix team which won the First Army track title last season, his performance overshadowed some good team work by the Second. Prominent among the others was the 18-point effort of Forward Bob Stiles.

Francis Rice scored 15 points for the 508th which showed results of not having had much practice as a unit.

Working behind the steady shooting of Center Ervin Johnson and the opportunist play of Dale McClain, 240-pound forward, A.S.U. Provisional Group was severely tested to gain a win over Provisional Medical Group, 47-43.

Johnson hooped 13 points and worked the back boards handily while McClain povially used his weight and height advantage well for 10 points. Forward Bill Fallon scored 15 points for the Medics and turned in a smooth all 'round performance. Six-foot, one-inch Harry Zeigler scored nine points as P.M.G. proved it can be dangerous for the title contenders.

The league's defending champs, First Student Regiment, weren't called on to show too much as they dumped in inapt Army Field Forces Board Three, 98-20.

Bob Karpinski led the scoring with 13 points while four players scored 10 as the Generals used 14 of their 15 men.

50,000 Men Await Blood To Heal Battle Wounds

BE ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE)

It seems much longer!

Just a little more than a year ago two companies of U. S. Infantry were transported from Japan to Korea. They were young soldiers trained chiefly for occupational duty.

In a matter of minutes after they tumbled from their planes they engaged a full division of North Korean Reds.

For the United States the Korean fighting had begun.

Many months have passed since the Korean outbreak. Months of campaign hazards, months of expecting sudden attack by fresh Red troops in the hundreds of thousands. Months of "all quiet" that suddenly disintegrated into full-scale combat.

We've learned a lot since that day. We've learned that warfare is downright dirty business. That a soldier must be prepared to fight with his fists or his bayonet, knife or anything else that is handy.

We've learned about the effect of shells, and bombs, and bullets on human flesh. We've learned more about shock, surgery, and treatment of wounded men than ever before in our history.

We've learned because at this moment there are more than 50,000 men waiting to be healed.

But even modern science has certain limitations. Miracle working drugs and surgical skill are of no avail if a wounded man dies before he can be brought to a hospital.

We are referring to the vital need of blood and to the present critical shortage.

We are referring to you—and asking for just one of the 13 available pints in your system—to insure the healing of those 50,000 wounded men.

If one American in 50—servicemen, and civilians — would donate a pint of blood we could meet our present monthly quota.

Will you be that one American?

Committee Gets House-Approved GI Pay Measure

WASHINGTON — — First bill passed by the House this year, an 832 million dollar serviceman's pay raise measure was before the Senate Armed Services Committee today, with an apparently clear road ahead.

It would give every member of the armed services, from the lowest private to the highest generals and admirals, a flat 10 per cent cost-of-living boost in present pay and allowances. It would apply also to retired personnel.

Unlike other pay raises voted recently by Congress for non-military personnel, the service pay boost is not retroactive. It will not go into effect until the first day of the month following the enactment.

The pay raises will range from $58 monthly for a buck private to more than $100 for top brass.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee promised early action on the bill. There is a possibility that the Senate will change the measure and return it to the House.

Bowling Tourney Is Being Planned

A Fort Benning Association bowling tournament will be held in April according to plans made this week at a board meeting of The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League.

Competition is planned in singles, doubles and for teams, according to Maj. Mark Jensen, secretary. Capt. Wesley Fisher is working out details for the event.

A.B.C. membership cards have been issued to members of the Officers League, and will be issued following the submitting of complete team rosters.

Two Servicemen are making names for themselves in the big leagues of baseball and anti-racket. Sgt. Ken Lehman of the 40th Division has been pitching for the American All-Stars on tour in Japan. He has relieved such stars as Charles Schanen, Mel Parnell and Edi Cereghino.

Pvt. Jim Davies, who led the Indianapolis Speedway pace for 23½ laps last spring, has moved to the front in West Coast racing. A tank corpsman at Camp Roberts, Davies has used his off - time chasing such established stars as Tony Bettenhausen.

Another Serviceman, M-Sgt. Lew Jenkins, 36, former lightweight boxing champ, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action with the Second Division in Korea.

A rare feat in the present era of high - scoring games was the 1951 achievement of the Yankee pitching staff in tossing 24 shutouts. Allie Reynolds led the mound crew with a total of seven, including two no - hitters, tops in the majors.

Do You Remember?

DO YOU REMEMBER when Benning went all out to welcome a group of soldiers? Most of the time the arrival of new troops goes almost unnoticed but not this time for they were Benning's first recruits. The Bayonet, Aug. 19, 1948, carried the following story:

"The arrival today of 260 recruits from Camp Kilmer, N. J., will swell the total number of men now taking basic training at Sand Hill to 1,134, Infantry Center officials have announced.

"The first group of 250 new men, all of whom were three-year volunteers, detrained here Friday afternoon. They were followed later in the afternoon by another contingent of 250, and that night by still another of 126.

"Following assignment to barracks, the recruits were served cold drinks and fruit at the company mess hall, and then were issued blankets, sheets, pillowcases and footlockers.

"Saturday the volunteers were issued rifles and taught how to clean and care for them. They were also provided with the remainder of their army equipment needed for the eight-week basic training course.

"A training highlight in the recruit's schedule is a post tour which is planned for today and Friday. According to an announcement made Monday by battalion officials, the recruits will be conducted on a supervised tour of the main post. Harmony Church and Sand Hill, designed to familiarize them with the activities and facilities of greater Fort Benning.

"The new troops will be off duty on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, but no passes will be issued until after the first two weeks of training have been completed.

"Meanwhile, a recreational program has been established to provide the men with entertainment during their off-duty hours. This program includes swimming, athletics, movies and transportation to baseball games."

Ranger

come a Ranger, Colonel Learnard warned.

Self-sufficiency will be a byword with this hardy group. They will handle live snakes and learn about the venomous and non-venomous varieties, including the rattlesnake (and know what to do in case of snakebite).

While on patrol they will live in the open, killing, cleaning and cooking their own meat, and building their own temporary shelters.

As fighting men they will have no equal, training under live fire and receiving instruction in the art of self defense, ju-jitsu and hand-to-hand fighting.

Throughout the course emphasis will be placed on the small patrol as a fighting unit. Leaders will be entirely responsible for their own missions. All routes and withdrawals, weapons and supplies will be planned by the student Ranger themselves. Instructors will act solely in an advisory capacity and as umpires, observers and aggressor forces.

Current plans call for the Dahlonega camp to be in operation approximately 16 days out of every five weeks.

Veteran Soldier Planning To Continue Army Career

M-Sgt. Jake Cantrell, a veteran of 14 years Army service, has been wounded in the South Pacific and Korea, but intends to stay in the Army until he retires.

Sergeant Cantrell enlisted in the Army in 1937, because he couldn't decide on a civilian occupation that he wanted to make a career of.

The Rosman, N. C., native first saw action during World War I with the 77th Infantry division. The unit was committed in the battle for Guam, and from there went on to take part in the Leyte campaign and the bloody battle for Okinawa.

Cantrell received his first wound on Okinawa, and for his part in the four campaigns there was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Purple Heart.

When the Korean war broke out, he was one of the first U.S. troops to be committed. A member of the 19th regiment, 24th division, his position was overrun just 12 days after landing in the "Land of the Morning Calm".

For seven days, Cantrell and his men wandered behind enemy lines. Cantrell had been wounded, and the men had no food for the entire week, until a friendly farmer gave them some rice.

They finally returned to friendly lines, and Cantrell was sent to Japan to be hospitalized.

Officer Has 2 Jobs In As Many Weeks

Capt. John F. Gale, of the Third Student regiment, has been named to his second job in as many weeks.

Last week, it was announced in the Bayonet that he had been assigned as executive officer of the First Officer Candidate battalion. Since that time, he has been appointed executive officer of the Second Officer Candidate battalion of the regiment.

Recovered from his wounds, he went back to Korea in September, and returned to the States in May, 1951.

Cantrell's present assignment is as first sergeant of the Separation detachment, 3440th Area Service unit, Provisional group.

Retirement Now Claims Benning's Little Train

The little train "that could" is enjoying a well earned rest under a specially constructed shed at the Maintenance Section.

The $15,000 engine, which is about one-tenth the size of a standard gauge railroad engine, and its cars, was retired in November 1946, after 25 years of service in France and at Fort Benning.

Designed and manufactured by the Davenport Locomotive Works of Davenport, Iowa, this little train was first put to work in France. The absence of good highways and the constant rain and mud caused American Army officials to seek a way of carrying troops and materials to the front. The gasoline driven vehicles were of little use. The Army detailed personnel to lay the tracks for the narrow gauge railroad and the miniature train started its career.

The end of the war in 1918 brought to a close its short war role. Recognizing the valuable part the train played in the war, military officials did not forget the railroad.

In the early twenties, Benning was just getting on its feet as a military post and there was a big task of building to be carried on. The "Chattahoochee Choo-choo," so named for the river which flows near Benning, was brought to the post. From then on, the engine and cars were a familiar sight as they puffed and strained along under a load of logs or bricks.

After Benning took its place as a permanent army post and was established as a training center, the tiny railroad continued to play an important role. The passenger coaches were used to transport troops to and from firing exhibitions and day and night problems, while the freight cars were used to haul equipment and supplies from Benning rail head to the warehouses.

In the late thirties, when Benning began to gear her activities to the approaching war, the world's longest narrow gauge railroad again proved its worth. Every area of the reservation became familiar with the sound of its shrill whistle, and the chugging as it puffed to a halt to unload. It was estimated that in one three months period the Chattahoochee Choo-choo hauled 130,000 troops.

During its busiest year, the Benning railroad boasted a rolling stock of 32 coaches, 33 flat cars, 105 gondolas, four tank cars, and one work car. Each engine weighed only 17 tons, and was constructed with six driving wheels, two pilots, and two trailer wheels. They operated exactly like standard gauge engines, except the braking powers were furnished by live steam.

Over the 34 miles of track, the train averaged more than 25,000 miles per year. The tread of the railroad was approximately 23 and five eights inches between tracks.

Most engineers would throw up their hands in disdain if asked to run an engine over track with no clock or semaphore system, but not the engineers of this railroad. The whole system had only telephones placed at strategic intervals along the track, and the trainmen would call the dispatcher from these boxes before entering a new stretch of track.

The Benning "soldier" rests at the Maintenance Section and a plaque tells its story. "Original locomotive, car and section of track of the Fort Benning railroad. This railroad served the Infantry School from 1921 to 1946, a period of 25 years, its main mission being transportation of students of the Infantry School."

GEN. MARK CLARK WATCHES CANDIDATES TRAIN

General Clark Leaves After Two-Day Visit

Army Field Forces Chief Sees OC School, Rangers, 508th

Gen. Mark Clark, chief of Army Field Forces, returns to Fort Monroe, Va., today after a visit highlighted by tours of the Officer Candidate School, the Ranger Department and the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

The general arrived at Fort Benning Monday evening. Tuesday morning he attended an orientation conference with Officer Candidate Director Col. J. F. Reed, and, afterwards, ignored rain and mud to see classes in machine gun marksmanship and firing procedures.

Later in the afternoon, while speaking to ranger trainees from the 31st and 47th Divisions, General Clark said:

"You are the Infantrymen—the Doughboys—with a bellyful of guts and a courageous heart, who will die, if need be, in the defense of your country."

The general, who fought alongside Bill Darby's Rangers in Italy during World War II, commended "the Rangers had made a "very legitimate place" for themselves in Korea.

The new concept of training Rangers as individuals instead of units was developed, declared Gen. Clark, because Rangers in the Far East "were a group of leaders to begin with, and eager to get into combat. As units they took heavy casualties and it was hard to get replacements," he added.

"It is hoped similar training will raise the combat efficiency of the senior commanders, too," he said.

The general, who watched Ranger trainees receiving schooling in hand-to-hand combat, stated he was impressed with the quality of the first group of 60 students and reminded the group, "You are the seed from which will grow other Rangers."

After leaving the Ranger Department the general talked to the combined advance classes of The Infantry School.

Yesterday he visited the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team and the 30th Infantry Regiment. During the afternoon he made the principal address at the annual meeting of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

Fellenz Assumes New TIC Position

Lt. Col. Walter Joseph Fellenz has been named deputy chief of staff of The Infantry Center. He replaced Lt. Col. Robert Runyan Linvill who has been ordered to the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

Col. Fellenz comes to Fort Benning from the Personnel and Administration Division headquarters in Heidelberg, Germany. Before being assigned to his present job he was connected with The Infantry School Weapons Department.

Col. Fellenz has served overseas 54 months. During World War II he commanded the First Battalion 222nd Infantry Regiment, 42nd Division and participated in the Alsace-Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns. Since the war he has been stationed in France, Germany and Austria.

He wears the Silver Star medal, Bronze Star Medal with an oak leaf cluster, the Purple Heart medal and Combat Infantry badge.

Col. Felenz was commissioned at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., in June, 1940. He has attended the basic and advanced courses at The Infantry School, the advanced course at the Tank Destroyer School, Camp Hood, Texas, and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Col. Linvill came to Fort Benning in July, 1949, and was an instructor in the Tactical Department of The Infantry School before he became deputy chief of staff.

Planner Addresses Inf. School Classes

Lt. Col. Melvin R. Blair, planner in the Office of the Chief of Psychological Warfare, addressed classes at the Infantry School Jan. 16 and 17.

In his talks, Col. Blair gave accounts of late developments in plans for wartime conduct of guerrilla operations.

Born in Baltimore, Md., he was active in athletics during his college days at Lynchburg College. He played football for three years, basketball and tennis for four years, and was a member of the track team one year.

He is Cpl. Bill Carmichael of the 3440th Area Service Unit Provisional group. He served in Korea with the Fifth Regimental Combat team and holds the Combat Infantry Badge and the Korean Service Medal with three battle stars.

Carmichael returned from Korea last June and was assigned here in November.

Bishop Arrives For Post Visit

The services were held at the Main Post Chapel at 7:30 p.m.

At this service, the candidates undertook for themselves the vows which were made for them at their Baptism by their godparents or sponsors.

Bishop Walthour, who was consecrated Bishop Jan. 9, served as Chaplain for the Military Academy at West Point from 1943 to 1946. From West Point he came to the Cathedral of St. Phillip in Atlanta as Dean, and served in that capacity until his election to the office of bishop at a special Diocesan Council held last Oct. 9 at Trinity church, Columbus.

This was Bishop Walthour's first opportunity to preach at Fort Benning since he assumed his Episcopal Office and his second service of confirmation.

The American Red Cross at Fort Benning serviced 21,000 cases and gave $93,661.31 in financial assistance to 2,373 individuals during 1951.

The mechanics involved in servicing these cases included approximately 50,000 letters, telegrams, and long distance phone calls.

Among other Red Cross activities carried on here during the year included visits from the Atlanta Red Cross Bloodmobile unit. The unit collected 4,178 pints of blood during its visits here. In addition to the paid staff of the Red Cross connected with this activity, 2,859 hours of voluntary time were donated by members of the Fort Benning Red Cross auxiliary.

As a result of a special national appeal by the Red Cross for funds to relieve the sufferers in the Midwestern flood areas last spring, the Fort Benning Community Chest donated $1,000.

At the Fort Benning Army Hospital, Gray Ladies and other workers volunteered 7,486 hours of their time in presenting 1,458 recreation activities in wards and in the recreation building.

508th Chief to Address OC Graduation Class

Col. Joe S. Lawrie, commander of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, will speak at the graduation of Associate Infantry Company Officers Class No. 10 in Chapel No. 11 the morning of March 1.

Post Helps College Center Defy National Averages

Fort Benning has been credited with helping the Columbus center of the University of Georgia to defy the national trend among colleges by showing an increase in enrollment for Winter quarter over the same period of last year.

In addition, the center has 15 per cent more students this quarter than it had last quarter, another novel situation, Director Rembert C. Houser, declared.

These feats have been achieved, according to Mr. Houser, largely because of 31 students enrolled for the first time at the center and attending under the Army's special program.

The Army's special plan accounts for a total of 48 students, although the total number of Fort Benning personnel has not been determined, Mr. Houser said, because statistics on occupation of the entire student body has not been completed.

Winter quarter registration figures, just completed by university officials, showed a total enrollment of 285 students in the local unit of the University of Georgia.

This is the highest number, Mr. Houser said, since the summer of 1949, when the center had 209 students. There were 247 students this past Fall quarter, normally the largest quarter in the school year.

Although the Columbus center had fewer students Fall quarter of 1951 than in Fall quarter, 1950, the drop was less than seven per cent, or nearly one per cent less than the national decline.

Winter quarter registration in 1952 went even further in reversing the national trend by piling up an increase of 28 per cent over that of Winter, 1951, when there were 222 students at the Center.

"The new students from Fort Benning," Mr. Houser said, "were especially helpful in building up such a large increase over last year's figures."

He pointed out that the 31 new students from Fort Benning, one from Lawson Air Force base, and the other military personnel not attending under either the Army or Air Force program comprised more than a third of the new students this quarter.

The second largest group of new students is attending a special real estate course which meets every Tuesday night.

MUSIC IN THE AIR (Al Goodman, Jane Pickens on RCA-Victor). During World War II vocalist Jane Frohman toured the fighting fronts in Europe as a part of the USO. The plane on which she was traveling crashed shortly after take-off from Lisbon, Portugal, and Miss Frohman was almost fatally injured. She did recover, but could not walk.

Nevertheless, the plucky singer went on to gain even greater importance in the musical world, by singing from a wheel - chair in nightclubs around the country. This is an album of the best songs ever done by Jane Frohman, here done by Jane Pickens and the Al Goodman orchestra. The songs will all be heard in the forthcoming motion-picture, "Music In The Air," starring Susan Hayward. Miss Frohman will do the actual voice work for actress Hayward. Incidently, Jane Frohman married the pilot of the plane in which she was travelling at the time of her accident.

A GOOD MAN IS HARD TO FIND (Dorothy Loudon, The Honky-Tonks on RCA - Victor). Can you imagine a vocalist that combines the styles of Sophie Tucker, Beatrice Kaye, and Ethel Merman, in her rendition of tunes? Well, Dorothy Loudon does it - and if you have not heard this platter yet, do so at your earliest convenience. This Loudon gal is tops! Flip side is "I Wanna Say Hello," good, but not like "A Good Man Is Hard To Find."

I'LL SEE YOU IN MY DREAMS (Doris Day, Danny Thomas, Paul Weston ork on Columbia). Columbia Records' Doris Day stars in a new album of songs from her latest motion picture, "I'll See You In My Dreams." In the newly-released film biography of songwriter Gus Kahn, Miss Day is seen and heard as Kahn's inspiring and patient spouse. Kahn is portrayed by comedian Danny Thomas, who is heard in this Columbia album with Doris. This album is the fourth in a highly successful series which included "Young Man With A Horn," "Tea For Two," and "Lullaby of Broadway." If you saw and liked the film, you can not help but like these recordings. They are tops in the pops.

MY DOWNFALL (Bob Savage on Capitol). Hottest bet to arise in the crooner corner is Capitol's Bob Savage, Sophie Tucker's protege. Savage, 29 years old, has been held under wraps the past few months in order to debut him at the most opportune moment. He makes an auspicious wax bow with a dramatic pair, topside titled "My Downfall," and reverse, one of his own compositions, "Jungle." The brilliant composer - conductor Johnny Richards scribbled arrangements and conducted the orchestra.

Fly-Weight Paratrooper Just Gets 'Chute Open

Pvt. Nelson R. Hernandez Rivera weighs 109 pounds.

Just nine pounds more than the required 100 pounds tensile strength required to snap the break-cord loop that ties a parachute to the end of a static-line of a paratrooper jumping out of a plane.

"The parachute, she have open on every one of my eight jumps," gestures the little fellow from Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. "Only on my first jump, I was the second man out of the plane but I was the last of 30 jumpers to land. Guess I was almost too light to come down."

A private and an ammunition bearer in Company F of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat team, the short-time resident of New York City will be the lightest, smallest entrant in the Fort Benning Boxing Tournament. The 20 year - old Hernandez-Rivera, at 5 feet, 2 1-2 inches, is barely taller than a M1 rifle with a fixed bayonet.

He will box in the fly-weight, or 112-pound class of the Fort Benning Boxing Tournament in April.

Tankers Begin Field Training

Companies C and A of the 773rd Tank battalion will move into the field this month for extensive tactical training.

The units follow Company B, which will return to garrison after three weeks in bivouac.

The bivouacs are designed to teach the tankers "just what they would do in combat," according to 1st Lt. Marion E. Bailey, Company B. executive officer.

Tactics practiced by the companies while in the field include advance guard combat formations, attack through woods, delaying and defensive actions and night movement. The units maintain tactical security during most of their field stay, including use of camouflage and setting up defense perimeters.

SCRAP CONTRIBUTIONS

The 41st Field Artillery Battalion of the 30th Infantry Regimental Combat Team turned in an estimated 2,500 pounds of scrap during the week ending Jan. 19.

Operation 'Pinch Penny' Helps Cost Consciousness

Operation "Pinch Penny" is in full swing at The Infantry Center.

As Col. Daniel H. Hundley, TIC Comptroller, puts it: "This project, officially tabbed 'Cost Consciousness,' is aimed at educating all military personnel and civilian employees to insure efficient and economical operations through the conservation of manpower, material and fiscal resources.

"It also seeks to soften the impact of our military requirements upon our already heavily-burdened national economy, thereby furnishing this nation with both 'guns and butter.'"

During fiscal year 1952, the estimated cost of military services represents about sixty cents out of the Federal budget dollar.

In pointing his gun to Army personnel recently, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., said: "This is quite a sizeable load to put on the shoulders of the American taxpayers, of which you are one. Accordingly, you must help build the most effective fighting force for each dollar expended."

Colonel Hundley, who as TIC comptroller is responsible to the commanding general for advice on and for formulating policies dealing with budget, statistical, audit and management engineering activities, gave these reasons for the new program:

Non Profit

One — The Army does not operate on a profit basis, as does industry. It is understandable, then, that personnel in governmental service are sometimes likely to be less cost conscious than those in private enterprise.

Two — During World War II greater stress was placed on performance than on economy. It is a natural and unfortunate tendency for some, inadvertently, to carry over this attitude of peacetime operations.

Three — It is the opinion of some strategists that any future enemy's aim is victory, not through an all-out "fighting" war but through an economic war which would bankrupt the United States. If this be true, anything which contributes to waste should be looked upon as aid to the enemy.

To combat this possibility the Army is approaching the problem in a new way. Economy of supplies is not new to the Army. But previously such economy measures originated at top-level and each commander was responsible that all material and equipment at his disposal be used properly.

Now the emphasis has been shifted so that by an educational approach to cost consciousness it is believed that full cooperation can be enlisted at all levels down to and including the newest private in the Army.

One approach already has been to remind all personnel that they are taxpayers and as such any waste they allow is hitting them in their own pocketbook.

This new program, Colonel Hundley emphasized, while pointing toward effecting economics is not to be interpreted as aiming at curtailment of efficiency.

With the new approach in mind, current Army requirements outline the indoctrination to be given basic trainees. This includes having each trainee memorize the specific cost of at least ten items of individual equipment, such as the rifle, bayonet, mess kit, blanket and gas mask.

Another practice is to include in lectures and discussions stressing the cumulative effect to an organization of the loss or distruction of one item of equipment along the lines of "for want of a nail the shoe was lost." The trainees also will be given lectures on the total money appropriated by Congress for the Army program and the ways in which it will be spent.

Costs Stressed

During unit training costs of unit exercises, maneuvers, gasoline and transportation will be stressed.

Older soldiers are not exempt. Instruction at all army schools and courses will include the cost of important items of equipment. Even officers will be expected to know certain cost figures during quizzes or exams.

During the performance of everyday military activities and operations commanders and supervisors will emphasize the cost of equipment, supplies and overall cost of operations. Every effort will be made to induce each individual to look for ways in which his job can be performed more efficiently and at less cost, by the elimination of waste.

Overseas theaters and combat zones haven't been overlooked by the program. In those areas consciousness program, the Comptroller's office gives assistance to all commanders and chiefs of sections.

As an example the post motor pool recently asked the Comptroller's Office to lend its assistance.

Since the Korean outbreak the motor pool staff went from all military personnel to all civilian and back to its present half and half basis. Added to the woes of the motor pool officer was the fact that only 10 per cent of the persons there last year are now there, and during the interim the number of vehicles jumped one hundred per cent. Obviously administration problems inherent with this expansion were baffling.

Improved Methods

Recognizing his growing need for improved methods especially in the procedure of filing trip tickets, the officer in charge called in the Organizational and Methods Analysis Section to study his organization. Some 26 man days valued at $482 were expended.

It found that 11 persons were engaged in sorting and filing these tickets at a cost of $22,680 a year, and yet there was a backlog of some three weeks work which was stacking up higher each day.

By revising the filing system, and installing new equipment costing some $352, the survey crew organized the department so that now it only requires about 1-3 manhours per day compared with 11 manhours per day previously. The net yearly saving is $13,508 and all personnel released were placed on jobs outside the motor pool where vacancies existed.

This is not an isolated instance. Throughout the post similar streamlining jobs are being accomplished with the assistance of the Comptroller's staff. Many of these projects represent a yearly saving of thousands of dollars.

Church Praises 78th Engineers

In a recent citation from General Church, the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion was cited for "outstanding performance of duty by guards" during the last six months of 1951.

Several field officers of the day, the general said in his letter, have praised the engineer guards in their reports.

The letter which was sent to Lt. Col. Thomas E. Cuttino says: "It is pleasing to receive reports of this character concerning a unit of this command. It indicates attention to duty, effective, wholesome discipline, and a noteworthy respect for your own organization. It has been noted that units which perform their guard duty in an outstanding manner are sound and effective in their other functions.

"I wish to congratulate you for winning the commendations from several Field Officers of the Day, and wish you and your command a thoroughly satisfactory and successful year in 1952," the citation concluded.

Chamber Helps Housing Needs

(Editors Note: the following article was prepared by Clayton D. McLendon, Executive Director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.)

The past year found the housing situation anything but good at Fort Benning and its neighboring communities, Columbus and Phenix City. From time to time it was termed "bad", "acute", and "critical." And indications now point up the fact that the housing pinch will be felt both on the reservation and in the nearby communities for some time to come.

But it must be kept in mind that despite the ever-increasing number of military personnel who are without adequate housing for their families, the accommodations offered in this area far outstrip those at most Army installations.

Post housing facilities are geared to accommodate some 1075 Army families totaling about 2780 dependents. These are broken down as follows: 437 officers, 629 enlisted men of the top three grades and 10 lower grades.

In addition there are some 3116 officers housed in bachelor officers' quarters who either are unmarried or do not have their families with them.

Another 800 officers and their families are living in Battle Park and Custer Terrace housing projects, which, although they are on the reservation, are controlled largely by a private concern under provisions of the Wherry Act.

Thus the remainder of the some 37,000 officers and enlisted men at Benning who want homes for their families must look to Columbus and Phenix City for assistance. It is currently estimated that 5870 inilitary personnel and their families are housed in these two cities (2086 officers, 2428 sergeants and 1348 lesser grades)

From time to time the nearby communities have done a magnificent job towards providing housing for Benning soldiers.

For example last August some 400 officers began pouring into Fort Benning to attend the advanced eight-months course at the Infantry School. Most of them were married and many just had returned from combat duty in Korea. Naturally they desired to have their families with them, but adequate housing facilities for that number were not available.

Spurred on by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, "Operation Housing" was launched and off-post quarters were found for the majority of those needing them.

The turnover of military personnel is large, constant and not reliably predictable. The bulk of the post's population stems from the some 10,800 students enrolled at The Infantry School. These students are taking various courses ranging in length from four weeks to 31 weeks. No one will say how fast or how far school enrollment will grow so it is difficult for private builders to plan ahead.

One heavy strain on the already-burdened housing picture was precipitated by the movement to Korea of the 3rd Infantry Division in August, 1950, and of the 4th Infantry Division to Germany in May, 1951. When these units departed Fort Benning many of its members left their families here in rented homes and apartments, thus making them unavailable for use by other incoming personnel.

In 1949 a survey indicated a need for 1,655 more units off post. Since that date private builders have built more than twice that number and still the need exists.

Eleven years ago, according to the census, Muscogee County had 19,906 homes. Last year this figure was placed at 31,716. More homes have been built in Phenix City. A total of 7,192 dwelling units have been built in Muscogee County since 1945—5,721 of them since 1948. It is building or planning to build nearly 2,917 more.

In addition an additional 200-unit housing project, to be known as Upatoi Terrace is under construction just east of the Fort Benning cemetery. Add to this another 100 units which the federal government has just authorized since declaring the area a critical defense area.

But add all this up and you will find a dire need still existing—especially for furnished apartments which will admit small children.

Early this year a downtown billeting office was opened by military officials to assist incoming Benning personnel locate housing for their families.

At present the billeting office estimates that 825 persons each month contact it and the Custer Terrace and Battle Park offices in search of housing.

The office says its monthly average on finding persons a place to live totals 675. Thus it can be seen that with 825 requests pouring in per month and just 675 being filled, a backlog of 150 requests go unfilled each month.

Actually it nearly always is possible for military personnel to locate housing if proper steps are taken. Incoming personnel have been warned not to bring their families with them when reporting to Fort Benning. Rather these people should first come to Columbus alone, begin a search for housing and then send for their dependents when adequate accommodations are found. This usually takes from two to six weeks.

President Asks Congress for $85 Billions

In a 33,000 word message, President Truman urged Congress to spend more than $85 billion in fiscal 1953 as the heavy price for peace. He announced plans for doubling the nation's capacity to produce "fantastic" new atomic weapons. The chief executive outlined the third largest budget ever submitted by an American President — the biggest came during World War II. "In the current world crisis," Truman said, "the price of peace is preparedness. In terms of the sacrifices which this involved, it is a heavy price, but when freedom is at sake, it is a price which all of us will gladly pay." Meanwhile, Republican Congressmen charged that Truman had "gone wild" in submitting the budget, and some influential Democrats joined with them in demanding cuts of $7 billion or more. Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee Walter F. George said bluntly, "The President's budget is $5 to $7 billion dollars too high, and he might as well realize it."

The Georgia House Monday put teeth into the drive against selling narcotics to minors by making the maximum penalty for such an offense death in the electric chair. The Senate, in a similar move to protect Georgia children from the evils of dope peddlers and drug addiction, passed a bill making the maximum penalty life in prison. The present penalty is one to 10 years, or a jury may decide the offense was a misdemeanor and let the accused person off with a small fine.

The Communists Tuesday flatly rejected an Allied offer to accept the full Red proposal for policing a truce if the Reds would agree to ban construction of military airfields in North Korea. Earlier, it had appeared there was no hope of breaking the deadlock unless some major shift of policy was made in Washington, Moscow or Peiping. Another point on which the two sides had as yet not reached an agreement was that of voluntary repatriation of prisoners. The Reds said they would never give in to voluntary repatriation.

It was disclosed this week that President Truman is considering an order granting draft deferments to industrial apprentices similar to those enjoyed by college students. Government officials said the order has been approved by the Labor Department, Selective Service, and the Labor-Management Policy Committee of the Defense Mobilization Administration.

People Treat Religion Like a Food Cafeteria

BY CHAPLAIN R. A. MALLORY

We are all familiar with the famous American institution of the cafeteria restaurant in which a person walks past a display of food and picks out that which he likes and rejects that which he does not like. This is a very fine custom to follow IN A RESTAURANT AND IN REGARD TO FOOD. However, when we extend this practice of choosing what we like and rejecting what we dislike to the Law of God, we are entirely out of order. Yet this is precisely what many people are doing today. How often do we not hear such expressions as "I think—", "As I see it—", "It is my opinion—", etc., prefixed to a purely personal interpretation of the Law of God. The voicers of the opinions then proceeds smugly to do just what he wishes now that he has forced the Law of God into the narrow framework of his own personal likes and dislikes.

What we must always remember about the service of God is that religion is not a democracy in which the laws come from the people, but it is a theocracy in which the law come from God. God is the Creator of all things including man. Man is a creature, that is, something created by a higher power. From this relationship of Creator to creature, of God to man, there ensues a relationship of dependency on the part of man. Man not only owes his actual being to God, but he owes his very continuance in existence to the sustaining power of God. Therefore, God, as the Creator, has the right to demand the way in which man, His creature, will serve Him. A creature that tries to rule his creator is a Frankenstein, a monster.

There are too many religious Frankenstein in the world today. They walk through life as if it were a cafeteria picking and choosing the laws of God that they like and are willing to keep and rejecting the "hard sayings" and those laws that it is not convenient for them to keep and which do not fit into the way of life which they wish to lead. It is one of the outstanding truths of life that man is made in the image and likeness of God, but the cafeteria minded Frankensteins of religion want a God that is made in their image and likeness. They want a God that is no better than they want to be, and so they whittle God down to their size, and the result is a horrible caricature of what should be Almighty God.

Religion means only one thing, and this is the service of God IN THE WAY THAT GOD WISHES TO BE SERVED. Only when man knows what God wants, and then DOES it, can he be said truly to be practicing religion. Man is free, yes, but he is only free to be a child of God when he operates according to the rules that God has laid down for him. When he tries to write his own rules, when he makes his likes and dislikes the standard of religion, then he becomes a Frankenstein gone mad in a Cafeteria.

On The Bookshelf

BY SGT. JOE SIMMONS

DEEP IN MY HEART (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, Inc. 1949) while it is not a new book, "Deep In My Heart" is a book that will be enjoyed by any lover of Sigmund Romberg's music. Written by Elliot Arnold, who has produced such works as "Two Loves", Tomorrow Will Sing" and "Everybody Slept Here", the book is a departure from his usual style.

Although essentially a biography covering the life of Romberg, the book has been romanticized and humorized in a number of places and ways.

The book tells how Sigmund, at the early age of ten, was already beginning to develop his business acumen by organizing musicians in his school into sizes of different groups, which he then hired out to ardent young swains who desired to serenade their loved ones but lacked the musical talent.

Sigmund himself, even at that age, showed signs of musical talent that were later to carry him to the top of his field. His early life and environment in Belisce, a tiny village in Austria, and his maturing in Vienna, center of the singing gypsy music that set his blood to racing were all echoed in his later compositions.

He came to the United States in 1909 for a "short visit" and was so impressed with New York that he adopted it for his home. He only returned to this native land after that for visits.

Through various jobs, each a step upward in the musical field, Romberg finally came to his first resting place working for J. J. Shubert, one of the leading producers of musical revues of that time, who presented at least three shows a year in his Winter Garden.

Working for Shubert, he wrote some of the tunes and operettas that are still as popular today as they were when they were first written.

Such deathless favorites as "The Student Prince", "The Blue Paradise," "Maytime" and "The Desert Song" sprung from Romberg's prolific pen during this period, along with countless lesser melodies, that, although hits for the time, soon dropped from the public fancy.

When he agreed for "The Desert Song" to be made into a sound movie, something astoundingly new at the time, he was a trifle nervous about the outcome. But when the producers arranged a private showing for him, he was so entranced by this new entertainment medium that he decided then and there movies were here to stay.

He proceeded to Hollywood, and began work there on a long line of successes. But the pallor of Hollywood life began to tell on him after months of doing nothing and getting paid for it. The call of Broadway, where he had spent his happy youth up to his armpits in work almost constantly, had too strong a hold on him so he returned to his first love "real, honest show business".

The book closes as Romberg, who has completed a full cycle from unknown to fame and proven with his "Up In Central Park," written in 1945, that he could still produce a bit show, is planning a world tour with his wife, as they sit in their New York apartment while a blizzard rages outside.

"When do we start?" his wife asked.

"Just as soon as it stops snowing," replied Romberg, ready to go out and prove to the world at large that his genius had not died with old age.

And even when Romberg dies, his spirit will be carried on with the beautiful music that still brings joy to the hearts of millions.

Benning Candidates' Wives Seldom Can See Husbands

Wives of officer candidates at Fort Benning often feel like the "lost brigade," since one of their chief problems is how to get a date with hubby.

For the first four weeks of a candidate's training, he can't leave the company area. Wives and friends may visit the men at the company during specified periods, but these meetings could hardly be described as intimate.

After the fourth week, though, the candidate may get a pass if he hasn't racked up more than eight demerits and if he's one of the lucky half in his squad.

Not only is the training schedule rugged, but much of a candidate's supposedly off-duty time is taken up with the care and cleaning of his equipment and barracks.

Mrs. Marion Boyden, whose husband Walter is in Class No. 10, was queried regarding how the wives feel about this problem.

"I can only speak for myself," she said, "I work at the Main Post Exchange from 8:30 in the morning to 6:30 at night, and after 10 hours on my feet, I'm not in the mood for many social obligations. I just go home, sometimes read or write letters, then hit the hay."

Mrs. Boyden's attitude towards her husband's restriction is a mixture of good-natured resentment and a philosophical understanding of the aims of the OC program.

"It's not too pleasant to have an undatable husband," she said, "but I think it will make him a better officer in the long run. The restrictions imposed on him have indicated to both of us the seriousness of the program."

Several times a week, other "candidate widows" and Mrs. Boyden get together to play bridge or just sit and talk. Generally, their chief subject of discussion is, naturally, their husbands and the problems they have in getting to see them.

However, they don't get discouraged. The chief feeling seems to be, "after all, it's only 22 weeks, and a weekend every now and then is better than nothing during that time."

Spaces Available In Trailer Camp By February 1

Sites in the Fort Benning Trailer Camp will soon be ready on a "first-come first-served" basis to applicants on the waiting list.

Twenty-three additional sites in the enlisted men's section and 21 in the officer's section will be completed by Feb. 1.

Every effort is being made to expedite approval of plans and early construction of a second major addition, consisting of 99 sites for enlisted personnel and 48 for officers.

A branch post exchange is also scheduled to be opened in the trailer camp in early date.

In view of these developments, all personnel now living in overcrowded trailer courts or otherwise unsatisfactory facilities are urged to visit the post trailer camp, inspect it and, if desired, place their names on the waiting list for trailer space.

No deposit or fee is required until trailer space is actually assigned.

The Fort Benning Trailer Camp is located on Eighth Division Road, one mile east of the superhighway, in the Harmony Church area.

Further details may be obtained by calling the trailer camp officer, phone FB-63280.

Ex-Junkman Soldier Knows Supply Economy Works

The current program of supply economy and discipline that is sweeping Fort Benning is an old story to ex-junkman Sgt. Jim Abrantes of the First Student Brigade.

Sergeant Abrantes has made, and lost, a literal fortune in junk.

Abrantes, an ex-Dartmouth college student, was introduced to the field of junk dealers by his father who started out with $61 and a lot of determination some 15 years ago. Today, his father's assets are valued at nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

Citing a few examples of good and bad luck with junk Abrantes recounts how, in one day, he bought and sold a truckload of automobile batteries at a profit of better than $2,000. He also sadly remembers the day he started a fire to burn trash and it spread to a stockpile of 4,000 tires that six months later would have sold for $16,000. The part that hurts, however, is that the fires cost nothing—they represented a three year collection.

Estimating the money value of rigid supply discipline in his own company Headquarters and Service, First Student Brigade, Sergeant Abrantes believes that as much as $2,000 per month could be cut from the expense budget of the unit.

"Discarded pencils and paper, wanton use of lights, materials, machines and office equipment are common examples of needless waste," Abrantes said. "Nothing should be thrown away. A one hundred percent awareness that 'Saving Is Your Responsibility' should take top priority," he added.

S-3 ASSIGNED IN 2nd REGIMENT

Mr. Robert M. Lorens, former S-3 of the 18th Infantry, First Division, has been assigned as assistant S-3 of the 2nd Student Regiment.

A three-way reunion between an unheralded hero and two men he saved from possible death took place last week in the 23rd company, First Student regiment.

The picture showed Capt. Seibert receiving the Silver Star from Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander.

"My God," exclaimed Marible, "I though he was dead!"

He explained that when he last saw the captain, he had been on the way to a hospital in Korea with a serious neck wound. He had later talked to patients in the hospital, and they had told him the captain had died from his wounds.

When informed that Capt. Seibert was very much alive, Marible rushed over to 23rd company to see him. Marible told the captain that he had thought he was dead, and Seibert replied "I guess I would be if it hadn't been for you, sergeant."

"That goes for me, too," added Sgt. Everette Tyler, another former member of Capt. Seibert's unit in Korea, now a cook in 23rd company.

The story goes back to August 6, 1950 when Capt. Seibert's company of the 34th Infantry regiment was dug in on a hill in the central sector of South Korea. In the action that followed, Capt. Seibert was shot through the neck.

Sergeant Marible heard his call for help, and crawled over to him. "The fire was pretty heavy," said Marible, "so I dragged him over the side of the hill and bandaged his wounds. I got some men to carry him down to an aid station, and that was the last time I saw him until I got to Benning."

Sergeant Tyler then told his story of Marible's heroism.

"I was preparing chow in the mess tent one day," he said, "when a gasoline lantern exploded and set my clothes on fire. The explosion blew me out of the tent and knocked me out.

"I later learned that Marible, who had been in the chow line, rolled me over in the dirt and beat the flames out."

Tyler was evacuated for serious burns and after recovering in a Stateside hospital was assigned to Benning.

"My turn for going to the hospital came a few weeks later," Marible said. "I was wounded and returned to the U. S." he concluded modestly.

2nd Regiment Party Fetes Former Leader

Officers and ladies of the Second Student Regiment feted Lt. Col. and Mrs. Howard F. Haberman at a going-away party held last Friday night at Victory Lodge.

Colonel Haberman, commander of the regiment, is slated to assume duties as a National Guard instructor at Hilo, Hawaii, on Mar. 1.

A graduate of Ripon College, Wis., he began his commissioned service in 1937. From 1943 to 1945 he was G-3 of the Tank Destroyer Replacement Center at Fort Hood, Texas.

Colonel Haberman is a graduate of the tank destroyer school at Fort Hood, the Associate Infantry Officer's course at The Infantry School, and the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

WOMAN BARBER TRIMS PFC. PETER PAUL PORGES
Miss Estelle Woolfolk Clips Hair Daily In PX Barbershop

Woman Barber Clips Hair In Benning Barbershop

Students in the First Student regiment are being clipped regularly by a lady specialist, but they love it.

The "southern clipper" has been shearing them for two years and when asked if she has ever had any trouble with the customers replied, "They don't bother a woman with a razor in her hand."

Miss Woolfolk, a 21-year-old girl, has been a barber at the PX barber shop since last September. Eventually she plans to open her own shop.

Normally, you would expect to find a woman operator in a beauty parlor, but Miss Woolfolk feels that she would rather cut men's hair than women's since it requires less gossip on her part.

Explaining how she began barbering, she said, "I began at the Super Barber Shop in Columbus, where I had special customers who let me practice on them until I was ready for the regulars."

Miss Woolfolk was born in Tuskegee, Ala., and has been living in Columbus for the past six years. Before entering her present profession she worked as a stenographer-typist. Perhaps the most dated girl in the 1st Regiment, she has a weekly date to clip the soldiers for Saturday inspection.

Dogs Assume OC Training

Those hairy animals crawling around on four legs out in Harmony Church these days aren't officer candidates imitating dogs, they're dogs trying to imitate officer candidates.

Capt. John W. Nance's 11th OC company has been adopted by a herd of animals led by a huge, shaggy monster that answers to the name "Big Red". Undisputed leader of the pack, Red leads his hounds wherever the candidates go.

During troop movements, Big Red usually posts himself well in front of the company as a forward security agent. The rest of his crew brings up the flanks and rear, investigating every bark and challenging all enemy dogs.

Despite some company members' efforts to dissuade the dogs from impersonating future officers, the dogs will have none of it. They've found a home in the 11th company.

3440th Men Hold Many Varied Jobs

Members of the 3440th Area Service unit claim to have held more than 80 different types of civilian jobs, and at present hold 85 different jobs in the Army.

Many men, before they enter the Army, often wonder if any attention will be paid to their desires and former experience in assigning them their Army duty.

Once they enter the Army, skepics often receive the surprise of their lives when they find themselves taking batteries of tests designed to indicate what they are best suited for. They are then assigned accordingly.

For instance, a truck driver in civilian life may find, through these tests, that he is well suited to be a cook, or a salesman may discover he would make a good mechanic. The Army tries to place every man in a job that will suit him, and in a place where he will do the most good for the Army.

The jobs held during civilian life by the 3440th ASU members range all the way from accountant through glass worker and livestock checker to nurse.

Naturally there is very little demand for a glass worker in the Army, or a cow-puncher or professional fisherman—all listed by ASU personnel as former positions. All the men that hold these jobs, though are now doing an Army job for which they are well adapted.

CALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY

M-Sgt. Charles E. Whetstine, operations sergeant for Headquarters Company, 1st battalion, 30th Infantry will be called to active duty as a second Lt. Feb. 1, and assigned to the 31st Division at Fort Jackson.

By MSgt. BOB GROOVER

"Benning News Parade" (WDAK 5:30 to 5:45 p.m. Saturdays) for last week featured an array of interesting people. Telling about new Ranger training activities both at Fort Benning and off-post was Col. Henry Learnard, director of the Ranger department, The Infantry School. Under new plans, the Rangers will train at Dahlonega, Georgia, and in Florida, during their eight weeks course. Following the colonel, members of the 30th Searchlight Platoon, Combat Training Command, to tell of their unit, formed at Fort Benning less than a month ago. The Searchlight platoon members says their lights can be seen as much as 25 miles away.

Maj. Barney Schwank, Automotive department, The Infantry School, did an on-the-spot bit for "Benning In Review" (WRBL AM-FM 6:15 p.m. Saturdays) last week, describing operations of the department and interviewing a student taking the motor officers' course. Next week on "Benning In Review," the Communications Department, The Infantry School, will be spotlighted, with an on-the-spot recording, made in the department's radio code section.

A snappy salute to WRBL's Jim Stewart for doing such a good job on "Beaming For Benning" (WRBL AM-FM, 6:55 to 7 a.m. Monday through Saturday).

Radio stations throughout Georgia will soon be hearing the voices of three Fort Benning WAC detachment members, interviewed by Pvt. John Silaman, Radio Branch, PIO-TIC, for recruiting purposes, were: Maj. Elsie Wehle, Cpl. Sonia Stacy, Pfc. Leona Ehly, and from the Columbus Army and Air Force Recruiting station—1st Lt. Sarah Ann Harris. The Wac's gave a good accounting of the Corps, and their voices should do much to recruit volunteers for the WAC.

When a company of United States Marines arrived at Fort Benning last week to attend courses at The Infantry School, they were met by representatives of press, radio, and television. The marines, some of them just out of boot-camp at Parris Island, S. C., seemed just a little startled to see so much activity. They were greeted on their arrival by Col. Kenneth McComber, commander of the First Student regiment, and the 122nd Army Band was on hand to give them a musical salute. TV shots made on their arrival were forwarded to Washington, D. C., and tape-recordings made at the same time were aired at 6 p.m. the same day by Bill Grammer on his WGBA AM-FM, 6 p.m. newscast.

At high-noon last Sunday, the "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM noon Sundays) brought Columbus radio listeners some interesting stories from members of the 508th RCT. The paratroopers gave an accounting of the first jump to be made over a body of water. It was an experimental jump made by Col. Joe S. Lawrie, commander of the 508th RCT, made for the purpose of testing airborne equipment.

Continuing on "Benning In Review" (WRBL AM-FM 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. Saturdays), the Pfc. Dave Johnson combo weekly makes just about the best kind of music you would want to hear. Incidently, the combo features: Rct. Paul Zahtilla, bass; Cpl. Richard Fischer, drums; Sgt. Carl Zahtilla, clarinet; Pfc. Pat Curtis, accordian; and Pfc. Dave Johnson, piano. The combo is joined by vocalist Pvt. Larry Gordon on the regular "Benning In Review" sessions.

Parting Shots: Ex - Pine Lodge vocalist, Bobbi Burgess, says she might accept bookings in this area, after a return in Washington, D. C. . . Warm-up sessions for Dave Johnson combo for recording "Benning In Review" start at 9 a.m. Fridays in Radio Branch, PIO-TIC . . . No "quiet spectators, but the band warms up" on some fine boy . . .

Disabled Veterans May Get Special Type of Insurance

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of four articles prepared by the Veterans Administration to answer the most asked questions about Government Life Insurance.)

A special type of Government life insurance is available to veterans of U. S. Armed Forces who were disabled in active military service anywhere in the world since June 27, 1950, the start of the Korean campaign.

These veterans must meet two requirements (under Section 620 of the National Service Life Insurance Act):

1. They must have been released or separated from active service on or after April 25, 1951, under other than dishonorable conditions; and,

2. They must be found by Veterans Administration to be suffering from a Service-connected disability or disabilities for which VA compensation would be payable if 10 percent or more in degree. Further, they must not be suffering from a non-service - connected disability or disabilities that make them unemployable.

These veterans must apply for the special NSLI to Veterans Administration within one year from the date that VA finds their disability or disabilities to be Service - connected. Applications, with medical examinations and the required premium, should be mailed to Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

If the necessary requirements are met, totally disabled veterans may apply for a waiver of premiums the time they file application for the insurance. However, all such applicants should include the required premium with their applications and continue to pay this premium on time until they are notified by VA that waiver has been granted. Premiums paid under waiver will be refunded.

This special insurance for totally disabled is a form of National Service Life Insurance, and several types of policies are available term, ordinary life, 20-pay life, 30-pay life, and endowment. For the totally disabled, no endowment plans may be issued; however, all others may be issued.

The amount of any policy may range from $1,000 to $10,000, less any other Government life insurance in force at the time of application.

These policies, in general, are the same as regular NSLI policies, except that the premium rates are on a different basis and the policies do not earn dividends. There are other differences, but most of the conditions are the same.

Although eligible disabled veterans must apply for this special insurance within one year from the date that VA finds their disabilities to be Service-connected, they may make application immediately after separation or release from active service and thus set the machinery in motion for a ruling on the Service-Connection of their disability or disabilities.

(Next: Government Term policies Under Waiver).

Accidents at The Infantry Center during 1951 cost 42 lives and more than a million and a half dollars.

Injuries to military personnel were 2.4 per cent above the average and to civilian personnel, .98 per cent. The motor vehicle accident rate was .29 per cent above the average.

Accident losses in terms of cost were more than double what they were in 1951. In 1950, accident costs were estimated at $748,520 while in 1952 the estimate was $1,506,640—an increase of 102 per cent. Forty military personnel died as the result of injuries received in accidents, while two civilians were killed.

According to the report, the major source of deaths and injuries for military personnel were the operation of private vehicles and airborne jumps.

Military personnel lost 42,105 days in the hospital due to accidents during the year, at a cost of $842,100. This was the largest single cost item in the report. Fatalities, the next highest item, cost only about half that, $420,000.

Smallest cost item in the report was $2,310, charged against three aircraft accidents. Damage cost from miscellaneous accidents took an extreme drop this year. In 1950, these accidents cost $97,739, and in 1951 dropped to $9,820.

Benning Sergeant Was Pfc. Less Than Four Months Ago

It took Eugene Wood less than four months to climb from private first class to master sergeant. The 22-year-old soldier has been in the Army only 14 months, and for four of them has been at the top of the enlisted heap.

Sergeant Wood made his rapid climb in Korea, where he was twice wounded by shrapnel from enemy fire. He landed in Korea March 22, 1951, and was assigned to Company F, Ninth Infantry Regiment, Second Infantry division as a rifleman.

He first went into action near Chungchong, during the ill-fated Chinese Spring offensive. Here he received his first wound, a shrapnel hit in the hip.

He became a squad leader as a private first class, then was promoted to corporal in June. On August 2 he was upped to sergeant, and six days later to sergeant first class. He made the last step to the top on September 24.

On September 1, after almost a month of fighting at "Bloody Ridge" a burst of shrapnel hit him in the face. Aid station treatment was all he could get at that time, since his unit was surrounded by North Koreans. The next day, though, Republic of Korea forces broke through and relieved the men.

At "Heartbreak Ridge" he became platoon sergeant, since both the platoon sergeant and his assistant were killed.

Sergeant Wood holds the Purple Heart with one cluster, the Korean Service Medal with two battle stars, and the Combat Infantry Badge.

He returned to the U. S. on an emergency furlough in October.

Book Dept. Aids TIS Operations

It's likely that Fort Benning's Infantry School couldn't operate without its Book Department which sells training and instructional material to faculty and students.

From a humble beginning in one room of a wooden shack, the department has grown steadily until today it operates a Main Sales Store and two branches. The main store occupies a spacious $95,000 structure adjacent to The Infantry School headquarters. The two branches are located in student areas, one in Harmony Church and the other on the Main Post.

Operation of the Book Department costs the Army nothing since all operating expenses are derived from sales.

Infantry School personnel couldn't get along without the field manuals, military books and instructional material stocked by the Book Department, since they aren't available in civilian book stores, points out Lt. William G. Barrett, Lima, N.Y. who heads the activity.

In addition to its stock of normal school supplies, it carries an inventory worth thousands of dollars which includes charts and problems taught in The Infantry School.

This material also is sold to Army units all over the world. It's a life saver for Army personnel charged with training troops of Allied nations, says Lt. Barrett who lives on the post with his wife, Jean.

The shipping section, he reported, does a mail order business amounting to several hundred dollars each month.

Brigade 5's Hold Balance

The Fort Benning Basketball League was enjoying a breather this week, but a full week's action will resume Monday night with ten games laden with upset prospects.

Meantime, a recounting of the first two week's of action offered some interesting facts.

One of them is that First Student Brigade, with three powerful entries in the ten-team league, may control the final outcome in one way or the other.

Two of their teams, First and Third Student Regiments, remain unbeaten in four games. The third, Second Student Regiment, will be a threat to other contenders as long as they have All - America Buddy Hatchett boarding points.

But the Brigade teams may not corral individual honors. Current high point man is Combat Training Command Team One's Ben Brown, former pre-med student at Lincoln University of Maryland, with 72. CTC's fast break is made to order for the dead-eye hooping of the 20-year-old six-footer.

Tied for second place in scoring are Bruce Mahon, heady field general for Third Student Regiment, and Francis Rice, busy-bod forward for 508th Airborne. It is significant that of players who have scored 40 points or more First Student Regiment has two and Third SR has a pair.

The usual schedule will prevail of Monday, Wednesday and Friday games being played at Briant Wells with the Tuesday and Thursday twin bills at Harmony Church gym on Axton Road. First games start at 6:30 p.m.

Players who have scored 40 points or more:

Generals Bounce Two Unbeatens

Any doubts that undefeated Third Student Regiment is going for all the marbles in the bouncin' Benning Basketball League were dispelled last week as they unfrocked two other title contenders in rapid order.

The rangy Generals, who have scored 241 points in three straight wins, downed Infantry School Detachment, 87-50, and previously untainted Second Student Regiment, 67-53.

Complete domination of both back boards spelled success in the ISD tilt. The Generals led at the intermission, 21-11, 46-28 and 63-37. Scoring was led by Forward Bruce Mahon with 26 and Guard Bernard Gill with 18.

The Third had a bit rougher time with their intra-unit rivals, Second Student Regiment, but caught up early in the second period and maintained a slight margin the remainder of the game.

Period scores were 14-18, 40-28 and 52-45. Mahon, heady strategist from Gettysburg, Pa., College, again starred with 16 points to bring his total in three games to 63.

The Generals' success is largely a three-way proposition with a good, six-foot supporting cast. Coach W. C. Hacker teaches the short passing, move-the-ball strategy he learned playing for Indiana and Mahon quarterbacks it on the floor, and, with Bill Gillingham, 6-6, to get most of the rebounds, what else is there to worry about?

"If you keep the ball moving and can make one-handed shots when the opportunity presents itself, you're in pretty good shape," admits Hacker, who for a veteran basketball and baseball player still gets a case of "nerves" before a game.

Hacker smiled wryly when questioned about the possibility of extending the team's winning streak, but he conceedes that the teams he has to beat are unbeaten First Student Regiment and Combat Training Command Team One.

Whatever happens, the teams has several case aces. One of them is 6-8 Ed Kilby, who played at Wisconsin, not much of a shot, but a terror on rebounds as a sub for Gillingham.

Another handy man is Bernard Gill, All-Southern Conference guard from Virginia. Despite being shortest man on the team at 5-8, he has poured 42 points through the net, most of them in spectacular fashion. Joe Koepke, a steadying influence, has tallied 30.

First's Rally Tops 508th Bid, 51-38

First Student Regiment's defending post champions met their first serious tests of the Fort Benning Basketball League season Monday night and responded handily by beating 508th Airborne ARCT, 51-38.

The black-suited First, which features genuine team work and a snappy passing game, had to come from behind. They trailed at the quarter, 8-11, and at the half, 21-24.

With no mystery left in the 508th defense after the intermission, Vince Dickherber, Fred Wilcman, Vern Griffin and Jay Drake keyed the attack into a 39-32 advantage by the end of the third quarter.

The game illustrated one of the few remarks Coach Bob Kinard has offered about the team, namely: "The other team's defense determines our offense."

Kinard, with three veterans from last year's champs — Al Constance, Terry Scott and Griffin—likes the underdog role and compares this year's squad with his 1951 champs only by saying: "We've got a little more height. We'll need it against Third Student Regiment, which looks to me like the best team in the league."

Despite the outcome, 508th is a much improved quintet. Coach Henry Ubowski has five very dependable starters in Evan Rice, Dick Sartor, Chuck Cooke, Jack Borror and Gary Mattocks. Cooke and Rice play the boards well and Borror and Mattocks are ball hawks.

Hap-hazard shooting in the second half hurt them against the First, but they showed their potential earlier last week by upending Combat Training Command Team One, 50-46.

ISD Tips AFF, 87-50; Climbs To Third Place

A somewhat revitalized Infantry School Detachment quint took over third place in the Fort Benning Basketball League by beating Army Field Forces Board Three, 59-32, Monday night.

The Professors were removed from the unbeaten list earlier last week by Third Student Regiment, 87-50.

With Herb Lindsay unable to play because of duties, John Yaldisian was switched to center and registered a husky 16 points while Forward Truman Medders continued as top point maker with 17.

Coach Erwin used his entire 5-man squad in the easy win over the hapless Board Three quad. They led at the periods, 16-0, 27-10, and 40-14.

Medics Stun Rifles, 65-64

An under - sized Provisional Medical Group quintet today had balms for any other misfortunes they may suffer this season in the Benning Basketball League.

Their unnerving coolness and reflexes to quit under fire got them a victory over a favored Combat Training Command Team Two, 65-64, last week in probably the most dramatic game of the young season. Forward Steve Mizzi, who [illegible] anything, too. He [illegible] first game, a [illegible] points to ASU, [illegible] pneumonia attack [illegible] to have the prospect [illegible] season, at his first stringers to maneuvers in Texas.

When and if this comes about, the Medic quint is sure to be reduced to certain also ran status, but they are enjoying their most lofty achievement meantime.

Harry Ziegler, who totaled 11 points, hooked in the winning goal with [illegible] second to go after the lead had changed [illegible] four times in the final quarter.

Ziegler tied it for the first time at 59-all as the half whistle blew. CTC's Rifles had a 33-31 edge going into the final period, but the score was soon tied at 38-38, then at 59-59 and 61-61 with a minute to go.

In the final 60 seconds, Herb Tufts put CTC ahead with a free throw. Bill Fallon got the Medics back in front with a goal, which was erased as Ed Pasquella sunk two free throws for CTC. Ziegler got the rebound on the visitor's foul and dribbled to the key to sink the clinching goal.

Tom Colyer, an increasingly important figure in the Rifle attack, scored 20 points for the loCTC's Rifles had a 33-31 edge gosers. Medic steadies were Fallon, with 11 points and Bill Marshall, 14 points.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

I DON'T care how many football platoons they use, or whether they do away with baseball's intentional walk, but if I were allowed one rules change it would affect basketball. The statute which causes the banishment, like a common culprit, of a player with five personal fouls is so much bilge.

Unjust for the players—seldom are fouls intended; indeed, the smart player avoids them like the plague — it also is disheartening for the fans and very often ruinious to an otherwise better team.

How often heard the lament: "It would have been different if they hadn't fouled good old Bill out."

The fallacy of the five - foul rule is that it places too much of the game in the hands of the officials. There's nothing wrong with most officials, but the game is supposed to be decided by the players, and how dubious of commission anyway are many of the infractions which we see called? Yet, five of them add up quickly and the whole picture of the ball game frequently is changed.

Of course, players must go for flagrant violations. The umpire's thumb is well known in baseball, but if a baseball player makes an error — which is what a personal foul most often amounts to — his team is penalized well enough without the incessant and ear-shattering tweet of an "umpire's whistle." Football violations cost valuable territory, but don't destroy the make-up of a team, and erring boxers may lose a round, but not the chance to win the fight.

Hockey, in many ways akin to basketball, has a penalty box in which the violator may cool his heels momentarily, but he has chance soon to redeem himself with his team and the fans. Maybe what basketball needs is a penalty box for the player who commits that fifth foul, with further inactivity for each succeeding foul.

Another solution, a very good one, is offered by Howard Hobson, in his book, "Scientific Basketball," in which he contends that a free throw should be awarded for defensive fouls with the shot counting two points if made. The penalty for an offensive foul would be loss of the ball as it is for double dribbling, running and so forth. This would certainly reduce the marches to the baskets to shoot fouls which the fans, myself included, find so wearisome.

Joe Connors, former Ashville, N. C., prep cager, was play making workhorse and sharp shooter as Combat Training Command's Rifles (Team Two) broke into the win column finally by beating Army Field Forces Board Three, 82-30, last Wednesday at Briant Wells.

Connors played almost the entire game, netting 11 field goals and one free throw for 23 points as the Rifles showed greatly improved form. Forward Ken Bogge got 11 points.

CTC held leads of 14-11 at the quarter, 39-15 at the half and 55-26 as the fourth quarter opened, but the game was more interesting than the score indicates thanks to some free-wheeling passing and long shooting which was more spectacular than effective.

(CTC lost to Third Student Regiment, 87-47, earlier in the week.)

Bob Currie, 5-8 guard from Lake View High school in Chicago, geared the AAF attack despite scoring only seven points. Currie is an excellent floor man although his lack of height hurts him under the basket. This is his second year of play for the Board Three team.

508th Teams, Glassford In Bowling Light

With only one loss this season, 508th Airborne RCT's Team One remained atop The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League while a pair from 508th's Team Two, Rodrick Glassford, compiled the third highest series of the season this week.

Glassford combined games of 234, 200 and 197 for 631 series. Harold Burns, rolling for Infantry School Detachment Team Two, had next best series of 601.

The I.S.D. Team Two had a single game of 940 which replaces the 922 games of A.S.U. Provisional Group and Second Student Regiment as high team mark of the year.

Mujica Wins, Others Lose

Larry Mujica, 141, of the First Student Regiment, still had his Georgia welterweight title this week after edging Joe Diaz, 143, of Havana, in a good ten-round scrap Monday night at the Columbus Arena.

Mujica worked at long range and piled up a commanding early lead. Diaz got stronger as the bout went on, but both cut loose with damaging round house swings in the final stanza.

Vince Murray, 508th's professional entry, wasn't so fortunate as he lost a free-swinging eight round semi-final decision to newcomer Tito Markarian, out of Buenos Aires via Tampa.

Another Benning puncher, Vince Merello, lost on a technical knockout to Al (Kid) McCoy, of Macon, Ga., in 39 seconds of the fourth round. Merello was floored for the count and then chastened by a hard right before Referee W. W. Grant stopped it.

Barrett's 223 Leads Officer Maple Loop

Lt. Bill Barrett, of Training Publications, downed 223 pins for high game of the week in The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League with Capt. J. R. Freeman and Maj. Ross Haecker, of Hospital Administrators, following closely with 204 and 202 games respectively.

Only major change in the standings saw Maj. Joe Hennessee's Operations and Headquarters team pile up best team game with handicap of 1042 to tie 24th Evacuation Hospital for the lead in the third section.

Haecker had high series of the week with 575 followed by Barrett with 558 and Freeman with 539. Capt. L. G. Hofstetter and Capt. Wesley Fisher each dropped a point to 180 to remain tied for top spot in season's individual averages.

A Fort Benning Association bowling tourney is being planned for April, according to Maj. Mark Jensen, secretary.

Coach Jerome Perlman hasn't unveiled his First Student Regiment boxing team yet, but when he does . . .

The modest mitt mentor merely admits that he has at least seven veteran fighters who have held amateur titles of varying importance in recent years.

And Perlman has had a good chance to survey rival squads: he was referee for last week's three-way slugging bee between Combat Training Command, 508th Airborne and ASU Provisional Group.

Assisting him with the actual ring work outs is pro Larry Musica.

A run down on each man's background shows most of their experience has been gained in the Golden Gloves. In the heavyweight division Dick Lohmann started with the Golden Gloves in his hometown of Hastings, Minn.

Boxing four years in the double G, he came into the Army over a year ago and captured the heavyweight crown at Fort Riley, Kan., last April.

Tipping the scales at 190 pounds, the 21-year-old Lohmann specializes in a hard left and a dreamland right cross.

The next heavyweight, Lorenza Robinson, is a product of Houston, Tex. Capitalizing on a good right cross, Robinzon became Texas Southern University's number one heavyweight in 1949. The 203-pound Texan had 10 matches in college.

"I didn't have much time for boxing," he said, "because I was tackle and fullback on the football team."

In the light heavyweight class the name James Boyd isn't new to Fort Benning boxing fans. Boyd was post champ last year and traveled to Camp Gordon, Ga., to win the Third Army crown.

A former light heavyweight, Hunter Hill, will fight as a middleweight. The 160-pound Brooklyn boy fought in the 170-pound class with the Golden Gloves in 1947. He won the amateur title that year in Westbury, R. I., and the next season took the open title.

The 20-year-old counter-puncher has won all of his 10 bouts. The Infantry Center tournament will be the first boxing he has done since entering the Army last February.

Another middleweight is George Stante, son of one of the nation's outstanding ring trainers. At present his father is training the number three lightweight contender, Tex Gonzales.

Another surprise among First Student regiment's battlers is welterweight Ernest Hall. A product of 55 Golden Gloves fights in New England, the diminutive scrapper is termed by Perlman "as being the type who never gives up until he wins."

Another belter on the squad with 55 fights behind him is 135-pound Len James, who fights as a lightweight. Hailing from Philadelphia, the 19-year-old former post office clerk fought as a featherweight in the Golden Gloves in 1949.

He was runner-up in the Diamond Belt competition. After that, he traveled around Army and Air Force bases putting on amateur bouts until he was called into the Army last August.

George Brooks, weighing 125 pounds from Worchester, Mass., won the Worchester County tournament in 1950. He fought amateur matches in New York and Connecticut until coming into the Army a year ago. The Infantry Center tournament will be his first bouts in the Army.

Girls' Team Wins

The Arkansas Travelers, stellar girls' basketball team, defeated the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team's men's quintet, 60 to 52, in an exhibition before a capacity crowd in Briant Wells Field House last Sunday night.

NG Personnel May Get Early Release

The Department of the Army has announced that it is making plans to release National Guardsmen "somewhat in advance" of their 24-month federal service period.

The plans will afford a phased return of individual Guardsmen in NG divisions called up since Korea. There are no established figures and no time table has been announced.

No decision has been reached whether the divisions themselves will be retained on an active duty basis.

Board Three Quint Short Everything Except Guts

Big question with Army Field Forces Board Three quintet is not how many games will they win this season, but will they win any? But don't laugh, brother—many teams with twice the talent and opportunity will fail to match the effort and energy of Coach Aubrey Welborn's squad.

Consider the size of most units fielding one squad and then look at Board Three with only 160 men on their morning report. That means that one in every ten men in the unit is playing basketball.

And as Lt. Clifford Pagano AFF's athletic and recreation officer, explains it, most of the Board's personnel is working on high priority military problems which keep them from holding regular practice sessions.

"We practice about once a week," Pagano explains. "We get no PT, and sometimes when the men are out late on problems, they come straight from the field to the gym for a game."

The Board Three team didn't win a game last year either, but they showed up for every contest—always trying and always hoping.

Spark of the team is Bob Currie who is a holdover from last year's squad along with Leslie Gilliman and Ken Groves. Despite his short 5-8 height, Currie generals the team and has tallied ten points as his squad lost to First Student Regiment, 98-28, and Combat Training Command Rifles, 82-30. Groves currently is high scored with 15 points.

Gillman, who played two seasons with Rogers High of Newport, R.I., has also tallied 10 points.

The Board Three five can claim one distinction, however. They have the league's shortest player. He's 5-4 Wesley Field, 18, from Bath, Me.

WACs BEAT BIBB

Johnnie Windberry scored 20 points as the Fort Benning WACs defeated Bibb Manufacturing, 32-26, last week in a Women's Industrial League basketball game.

OC League Wins Had By Fourth, Ninth Companies

Overcoming an early deficit, Ninth Officer Candidate Company rolled to an impressive 37 - 25 victory over 11th OC Company's five last week in the Harmony Church gymnasium in an Officer Candidate Basketball tournament game.

Opening up with a fast break centered around their pivot man, Candidate Wordworth, 11th OC snatched an early lead.

However, 9th OC hung on grimly, and led by Davis, Parsons, Lisker, Rothman and Biglin they fought back and finally took the lead in the second half. Davis and Biglin proved to be the individual stars of the game, with both their rebound and passing being a main factor in the win.

Tenth OC's quintet got off on the wrong foot in the tournament when they were soundly trounced by Fourth OC Company, 53-34. The First Battalion five, flashing a fast break, blazed off to a 25-16 lead at the half.

Led by Dick Davis and Bruce Mahon, who scored 43 of their team's 53 points, they upped the count to 41-20 midway through the third quarter. From then on their lead was never threatened. Schmalhorst's 10 points was high for the losers.

Cavalrymen Here Remember When They Had Horses

The thunder of hoofs is seldom heard in the Army these days, but in the hearts of Capt. Ralph Chandler and M-Sgt. Alton Morris, the cavalry will never die.

Both former boots and spurs men now assigned to the First Officer Candidate company, Third Student regiment, each began his training with a machinegun troop.

Sergeant Morris, a native Texan, says that in his first unit the hard-headed horses were given to the hard-headed soldiers. "Usually the horses won out," he commented laconically.

Captain Chandler added an observation of his own, saying "A man doesn't train the horse, the horse trains him."

The captain began his career in the Second Cavalry at Fort Riley, Kansas. "When they broke up the cavalry," he said, "I turned Infantry then went to paratroop school.

"I made jumps with the 509th Airborne in Europe during World War II," he said, "but as far as comparing the two branches of service, you just can't do it. Either you like horses or you don't. I do. I still have some spurs to remind me of those days."

Both the men agree that there'll never be anything to take the place of the old "horse cavalry."

Church Drive Ends Friday

The 1952 Armed Forces Preaching Mission which ends tomorrow, was heartedly endured Monday by Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, at a luncheon in honor of the visiting ministers.

The three members of the 1952 Armed Forces Preaching Mission were Rev. F. H. Olert, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Va.; Rev. Harrison McMains, pastor of the First Christian Church, Atlanta, Ga., and Rev. K. O. White, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Little Rock, Ark.

Fort Benning Protestant chaplains sponsored a luncheon at the Main Officers Mess, at which time General Church welcomed the visiting ministers and Columbus - Phenix City clergymen.

The general also expressed hope that the missioners would receive a good indoctrination of the work of the Infantry during their week-long stay at Benning. He voiced approval of their activities in connection with the work of the Army's character guidance program.

Chaplain (Col.) Joel M. Warring, Infantry Center chaplain, presided at the luncheon. After explaining the purpose of the preaching mission, he introduced two newly arrived chaplains Major Robert B. Berdon and Major Chester G. Minton.

Construction is expected to be completed by Sept. 18, 1952. The school will be located on an extension of Running avenue between Ingersoll and Lumpkin roads.

Lawmaker Reveals GI Bill Goals

All Servicemen May Benefit If Congressman Has Way

Fair play to the veteran of the Korean hostilities, whether or not he was actually in combat, is the goal of a Congressional committee planning extension of the GI Bill of Rights, its chairman has notified a Fort Benning Infantryman.

Pfc. Robert P. Henderson, of Company C, Infantry School Detachment, has received a letter from Rep. Olin E. Teague, of Texas, chairman of the House Select Committee to Investigate Educational, Training and Loan Guaranty Programs Under the GI Bill.

Answering queries by Private Henderson, Congressman Teague makes two points clear:

No bill limiting GI benefits to combat veterans only would be considered satisfactory.

Educational benefits will be subject neither to age limits nor to requirements that proof be shown that a soldier's entry into service actually halted his education.

Congressman Teague's consistent opposition to alleged waste and inefficiency in administration of the "old" GI Bill after World War II is reflected in his letter to Private Henderson.

"Waste and abuse" must be eliminated before the GI Bill program is extended, Congressman Teague says in his letter.

"I hope that a fair, sensible program, not subject to waste and abuse, can be established in order that any veteran who served his country for an extended period of time, during a period of hostilities, may receive a reasonable amount of assistance to aid him in regaining his lost educational and training opportunities," he informs Henderson.

There are 20 bills pending in Congress at the present time which would extend GI benefits to Korean conflict veterans, according to Mr. Teague, who expects shortly to introduce a 21st.

In every instance, the GI benefits proposed would be granted to all veterans who served honorably after June 27, 1950, and prior to the termination of conflict in Korea.

Regarding stipulations as to "actual interruption of training" or age limits, Congressman Teague acknowledges that one of the 20 bills pending would require such proof and also require that the serviceman be under 23 years of age at the beginning of his military service.

Such provisions were tested in

Generals Here For Post Visit

Three Army Generals visited Fort Benning this week. They are:

Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, Inspector from the office of the Chief of Army Field Forces.

Brig. Gen. Patrick H. Tansey, Chief of the Supply Division, Department of the Army, and Brig. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson, Chief of the Weapons System Evaluation Group, Office of the Secretary of Defense.

General Milburn earlier this week inspected the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, 30th Infantry Regiment and activities of the Infantry School.

Visiting the 508th was like coming home for General Milburn. Last December, the general was impressed with the 508th paratroopers when he saw them maneuver as the aggressors against the 47th "Viking" Infantry Division at Camp Rucker, Ala. There he praised Col. Joe S. Lawrie's 508th 'troopers at the post maneuver critique saying "The troopers were cocky . . . they stole through the woods like cats."

Today, General Milburn was scheduled to visit the Army ROTC unit at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala., then return to Fort Monroe, Va., with a visit to Third Army Headquarters at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, enroute. General Milburn is a Korean Veteran.

General Tansey led the Army Logistic Survey Mission to Japan and Korea at the outbreak of the Korean conflict and accompanied Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff to Korea in December, 1950, as logistics representative.

General Davidson was scheduled to visit the Infantry School's Research and Analysis Department today. The General was accompanied by two civilian scientists and Col. C. G. Dodge, Executive Secretary of the Evaluations Group.

OC Group Visits Post This Week

Fourteen representatives from Army Officer Candidate Schools arrived here Monday to see infantry officer candidates in training.

The board is visiting all Officer Candidate Schools to examine the principles, techniques and methods used in conducting officer candidate courses and to make recommendations.

While here the group will inspect instruction in physical training and tactics. They also will question the candidates and confer with representatives from the Third Student (Officer Candidate) Regiment.

Included on the three-week survey are visits to Fort Riley, Kans., Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Bliss, Texas, Fort Knox, Ky., Fort Monmouth, N. J., Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., Fort Belvoir, Va., the WAC Training Center, Fort Lee, Va., and Fort Benning.

Col. George G. Elms, assistant commandant to the Army General School, Fort Riley, Kans., is president of the board. Members are:

Col. John F. Reed, director of the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning; Lt. Col. George G. Bayerle, Jr., anti-aircraft and guided missiles branch, Artillery School, Fort Bliss, Texas; Lt. Col. Harry Myers, Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla., and Lt. Col. Arthur B. Grant Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Lt. Col. Josiah S. Kurtz, Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.; Lt. Col. Robert L. Robertson, Armored School, Fort Knox, Ky.; Maj. Frank A. Canam, Engineer School. Fort Belvoir, Va., Maj. Harry B. Coates, Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va., and Capt. Morris C. Goller, Army General School, recorder.

Advisors for the group are Dr.

Hospital Budget For Post Unit Gets Approval

A new 500-bed hospital for Fort Benning has been approved in the last budget under military construction for 1952 at a cost of approximately $7,000,000.

Rep. E. L. Forrester revealed that instructions have been issued to Col. Robert Erlinkotter, district engineer at Savannah, to proceed with the design and plans for the hospital. Construction will be based on standard plans already developed which will be adapted to the Fort Benning site.

A site for the proposed hospital has been selected on First Division Road about two miles southeast of post headquarters.

Col. Mack M. Green, commander of the Fort Benning Army Hospital, said "I think it's a good idea that we're getting a new hospital. Since our present hospital was built, many ideas and improvements in hospital design and layout have been found out that were impossible to incorporate into that set up."

The new 500-bed hospital will supplement facilities offered by the 1,425 bed hospital now in use

Korean Veterans Now Eligible for UN Service Medal

SGT. J. V. TABOR

Sgt. Johnny V. Tabor, left, Company B, Infantry School Detachment, displays the ribbon for the United Nations Service Medal recently authorized by the Department of the Army.

The medal was established by the United Nations General Assembly in December, 1950, and Presidential acceptance for the United States Armed Forces was announced in November, 1951.

Korean veterans may determine their eligibility for referring to Change 1, AR 600-65.

Sergeant Tabor is one of three brothers who saw action in Korea. He was on duty with Company C, 19th Infantry, 24th Division from March to September, 1951.

Reduced Rail Rates Good Until June 30

U. S. railroads have extended until June 30, 1952, the sale of reduced round-trip furlough tickets for servicemen.

Servicemen may save as much as 2.025 cents a mile under this program. In order to take advantage of the reduced rates, men must be in uniform and present official leave of absence, furlough, or pass papers when buying the ticket.

The reduced rates are available only when a serviceman is travelling at his own expense, and may not be used when he is travelling at government expense. However, a man on travel orders with a delay en route may take advantage of the reduced rates for the period from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 a.m. Monday between points 50 miles or more apart, and for the return trip to the stopover point.

It was pointed out that violations of this privilege may jeopardize its continuance.

Maj. Gen. Soule Dies After Long Army Career

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Soule, who served at Fort Benning on two different occasions, died suddenly Sunday while on a visit to Washington.

General Soule recently returned to the United States after leading the Third Infantry Division for over a year in Korean fighting. He and his wife were visiting Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Willard G. Wyman in Washington when he died.

The 51-year-old general was stationed here during 1928 and 1929 with the 29th Infantry Regiment. His next assignment to The Infantry Center came in 1950, when he assumed command of the Third Division from Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson.

He received his original commission in 1918 just two days before he was due to enter West Point. He intended to attend West Point after World War I, but dropped the ieda on the advice of a superior officer. He later joined the 31st Infantry in Siberia.

In 1929 he went to Pelking, China, as a Chinese language officer. His knowledge of the Chinese and Russian languages influenced his appointment as military attache to China from 1947 to 1950.

During World War II General Soule commanded the 158th Infantry Regiment fighting against the Japanese on Leyte. A ridge on northern Luzon was dedicated to him for his heroic actions. He earned a Distinguished Service Cross while holding this command.

He later served as assistant division commander of the 11th Airborne and 38th Infantry Division.

General Soule won another Distinguished Service Cross in Korea for successfully directing the withdrawal of Tenth Corps units from the Changjin Reservoir and the evacuation from the Hungnam beachhead.

The citation for the award said "His continued presence at the front, under bitter winter conditions with total disregard for his own personal safety and under enemy fire, inspired his men to make possible the successful withdrawal of the Tenth Corp units.

At the time of his death, the general was serving as Inspector of Infahtry for Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va.

30th Infantry Observes 2 Anniversaries This Week

The 30th Infantry Regiment, that was organized once by Abraham Lincoln, celebrates two anniversary days this week.

On Jan. 29, it celebrates its initial organization in 1813 for the War of 1812, and the unit will observe Feb. 2 as the date the unit we know today was formed in 1901 by an act of congress.

Today, the 30th's chief mission is to present demonstrations for students of The Infantry School. About two out of five members of the unit are Korean returnees, whose combat knowhow plays an important part in making the demonstratins true-to-life.

"Our demonstrations for The Infantry School are a vital link in America's preparedness program," Col. Ralph N. Woods, commander of both the 30th and Combat Training Command, its parent unit, said.

The regiment has served in the Philippines, Alaska and Europe as well as in the U.S. It was a part of the Third Infantry Division in both World Wars I and II and with this unit won many honors on the battlefield.

Individual decorations won by members of the unit during its history include seven Congressional Medals of Honor, 58 Distinguished Service Crosses, 925 Silver Stars, 1,226 Bronze Stars, 31 Soldiers' Medals and 39 Legions of Merit.

As a unit, it was awarded seven Presidention Distinguished Unit Gitations during World War II alone. It also holds 85 regimental commendations, one French Legion of Honor, one British Distinguished Service Order, one Military Cross of the British Empire, and 54 French Croix de Guerres.

The unit was assigned to Fort Benning in 1948 as part of the Third Division. When the Third sailed for Korea in 1950, only a skeleton force was left behind to keep the 30th alive.

In November 1950, it became the basic assigned unit of Combat Training Command when that unit was organized.

1st Cavalry Leaves Korean War Front

CAMP CRAWFORD, Hokkaido, Japan (AFPS)—After 17 months of combat the United States First Cavalry Division has left Korea to set up defensive positions here.

The famed division now patrols Japan's northernmost island and is undergoing intensive training in the use of skis and snowshoes.

The United States 45th (Oklahoma National Guard) Division replaced the Cavalry in Korea last month.

Russian troops are located three and a half miles east of Hokkaido, on tiny Habomai Island. Ten miles from the east coast are the Russian-occupied Kuriles.

30th Men to Help Choose Army Song

Men of the First Battalion of the 30th Infantry Regiment will have their say on a long-sought Army song.

A survey being conducted for the Infantry Center calls for the men to choose between one of two songs — "We Are The Army" and "The Infantry Song."

Raters may indicate which one of these two songs they prefer. They also indicate whether they think it is better than, equal to, or not as good as other Army songs they know.

Recordings of the two songs are being played in the battalion area.

3440th ASU Celebrates Third Anniversary Today

The 3440th Area Service Unit Provisional Group will observe its third anniversary today.

A special noon meal will be served in all group mess halls. At that time a message from Col. Cortlandt K. Krams, commander, will be read to all personnel assigned to units in the group.

Colonel Krams and his staff will have lunch with the 148th Transportation truck Company, winner of the 1951 A. S. U. Provisional Group best mess plaque.

Activated Feb. 1, 1949, the group is a centralized coordinating and control agency for units supporting The Infantry Center.

Among the missions of the Provisional Group is to train service-type units and individuals as replacements in service units. Military service units are responsible for housekeeping functions, including ordnance, quartermaster, transportation, military police and signal communications activities.

Officers on duty with The Infantry Center headquarters are assigned to the Provisional Group for administrative purposes.

Among the administrative details handled by the units are those involving personnel on duty with the Third Army Area Food Service School here. In addition it processes military personnel awaiting disciplindry action and acts as host to transient enlisted personnel and enlisted men who report here after normal duty hours.

Specialists and specialized units which trained under direction of the Provisional Group support operations here and at other posts in the U. S. A., as well as in Europe and the Far East.

5 New OCS Boards Will Speed Program

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Five additional Officer Candidate School examining boards have been established in an applicant speed - up program, the First Army has announced.

The new boards expected to accelerate the flow of OCS applications are located at: Ft. Dix, N.J.; Ft. Monmouth, N.J.; Camp Edwards, Mass.; Camp Drum, N.Y., and West Point, N.Y.

Course Ready For Officers From 3rd Army

Approximately 115 Reserve, National Guard and Regular Army officers from the Third Army area will atjend the Command and General Staff College special associate course here during February and March.

The course will be divided into three phases, the first one from Feb. 3-24 and the second two running consecutively from Feb. 24 to March 9.

Instruction will be the same as for the associate course at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Students take only one phase each year. Upon completion of all three phases, they receive equivalent credit for the Leavenworth course.

The course was originally planned for civilian component officers only, to enable them to get training without interfering with their civilian professions. The instruction has proved so successful, however, that half the student body for the first phase of the 1952 session will consist of Regular Army officers and personnel on extended active duty.

Students will come from the Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee military districts, Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Jackson, S. C., Fort McClellan, Ala., Fort McPherson, Ga., Camp Gordon, Ga., Camp Rucker, Ala., Camp Stewart Ga., and Fort Benning.

School commandant is Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, Third Army commander. He will be aided by the following staffs:

Col. Ralph L. Webb, Atlanta, Ga., assistant commandant; Lt. Col. Hubert J. Piatte, Rex, Ga., executive officer; Maj John J. Fivorvarnick, Fort Myers, Fla., secretary; Maj. P. W. Fitts, Dalton, Ga., Adjutant; Maj. R. N. Schartle, Decatur, Ga., operations officer, and Col. Lewis Pattillo, Hartselle, Ala., senior instructor.

New WAC CO Is Former Marine

Capt. Margaret C. Lloyd of Atlanta has taken command of the Women's Army Corps detachment here.

She succeeds Maj. Elsie L. Webbie who has left Fort Benning for duty in the Far East Command.

During World War II Captain Lloyd was commander of the first Marine Corps detachment at Quantico, Va., and also commanded Marine women's units at Camp Le Jeune, N. C., and at the Marine Corps headquarter in Washington.

Before entering service in World War II, she was head of the personnel section and librarian for the Retail Credit Company of Atlanta.

She enlisted for officer training in April, 1943. In her officer candidate class she was selected for outstanding performance and appointed a first lieutenant, instead of the second lieutenant bars awarded most officer candidate school graduats.

Commissioned in June, 1943, she was promoted to captain in Feb., 1944.

Captain Lloyd gives as her reason for twice choosing to don the military uniform: "I deem it a privilege to serve my country. Women, as well as men, who feel they have talent and ability to devote to constructive careers can find no better outlet for those talents, that ability, than service to their country. That's what I believe and that's what I think every American man and woman should believe and practice."

Finance Center Takes Two Years To Relocate

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — It will take two years for the Army's vast Finance Center to move from St. Louis, Mo., to Indianapolis, Ind.

The $23,000,000 Finance Center is being built at Ft. Benjamin Harrison near Indianapolis. Construction is scheduled to be completed by the summer of 1953.

Meanwhile the state of Indiana will make available part of its state fairgrounds so that the complicated operation will proceed without interruption. Because it involves 6,000 personnel doing intricate work, everything must be done gradually to insure efficiency.

A small part of the Center already has been transferred to existing buildings at Ft. Harrison.

Soldiers' Reading Choice Includes Science Fiction

The recent movies, Destination Moon, The Thing, and When Worlds Collide, have made a definite impression on Fort Benning readers, according to Miss Barbara Bronson, post librarian.

Since the advent of this type of picture, the trend in reading has been to the science-fiction type of book. The demand for these books has been so great that a special section has been set up in the library.

The good old stand-bys, such as accounts of World War II activities, histories of units participating in the war, and current best sellers, are holding their place in the popularity of the readers in spite of this surge of science-fiction works. In the non-fiction line, psychology still heads the preferred reading list.

Foreign language grammars, mathematics, American history and reference books are also in great demand. The American history books are used a good deal by Allied students attending the Infantry School. A well rounded reference section is in constant demand by those who are enrolled in USAFI courses or courses at the off-campus center. These standard reference volumes cannot be drawn from the library.

But in addition to the foreign language books, the library boasts an outstanding collection of language records which can be drawn in the same manner as the books. These are a help to a person studying a foreign language.

Juvenile Section

With the children in mind, the library set up a small juvenile section which is always a busy place. The books on the shelves of this section were picked to appeal to children from the nursery school age to the teens. This is a very popular spot during the summer months.

The 700 periodicals in the six Benning libraries include magazine subscriptions to the most popular of current magazines. Twenty-six newspapers, including Sunday editions, are available for the readers at the Main Post Library.

The six libraries on the post are equipped with a phonograph and have over 200 records in each music section. The libraries are constantly striving to build up their collections, and some new records are purchased each week. Although these records are not of the strictly popular type, they are popular with the music lovers. The Main library holds a record concert each week and the records played on these programs are picked by the staff and by requests.

45,000 Books

The Benning libraries have approximately 45,000 books on their shelves now, an increase of about 15,000 in the last few years. Of the 16,000 books in the Main library, 6,000 books a month are drawn from this library, and approximately 10,000 are drawn from the other five. Each week new books are purchased for the libraries. The books, selected with great care, are picked because they are books people want to read, and not because they want to add to their stock.

One of the headaches of a civilian library is missing in the post libraries and that is the problem of overdue books. It does happen occasionally, but when the overdue notices go out, the books are promptly returned.

Library personnel is asked to help locate some of the most unusual things, according to Miss Bronson. For instance, they spent days looking for a picture of a winged dragon. They were successful and today the dragon graces the patch of the 508th Airborne. Perhaps the most unusual request was from a soldier who wanted the new book on heaven. All of the files of authors and their works were checked, and then the book he wanted was found - it was "From Here to Eternity".

Physicals Required For RA Lieutenants In Some Categories

All Regular Army second lieutenants with permanent date of rank March 31, 1949, or earlier are advised that they are required to take a physical examination at the earliest practicable date.

Those with permanent date of rank of April 1, 1949, through Dec. 31, 1949, will be examined as soon as possible following that date which is 120 days prior to the anniversary of their date of rank.

Information regarding those effected may be found in Section IV, Department of the Army Circular 4, dated Jan. 3, 1952.

42-Year Vet Makes Career of Service

Aberdeen, Md. (AFPS)—M-Sgt John E. Fox, USAF, has finally made his decision. After 42 years of service in the Army and Air Force he has re-enlisted for an "indefinite" period.

"Pop" first donned military dress back in 1910 at Ft. Slocum, N.Y., and since then has had uninterrupted service in both the Army and Air Force.

A member of the 6570th Chemical and Ordnance Test Group at Phillips Field, 62-year-old Sgt. Fox was on a flying status until a year ago.

American Teams Lose

North America's well-regarded Olympic ice hockey entries were beaten last week as Britain's Streatham Club downed the U. S. team, 9 to 4, at Streatham and Germany's Olympic team defeated Canada's Edmonton Mercurys, 4 to 1, at Munich.

EUCOM Troops Training In Atomic Defense

Heidelberg, Germany (AFPS) —All American troops in Europe, including those in supply and maintenance units, are being trained to protect themselves against atomic attack, the headquarters of Gen. Thomas T. Handy has announced.

In annual maneuvers, the American forces in Germany have not yet tackled — at Army level — the problem of an enemy's using atomic tactical weapons. It was indicated atomic defense is taught individually in all units.

Your Fault If Unit Unheralded

Soldier, how do you like the recognition your outfit has been receiving?

If you do, take a bow: You've earned it.

If you don't like it, then don't gripe at someone else. You haven't been discriminated against. More than likely, you've been falling down on the job.

Some units at The Infantry Center have received a barrelful of publicity in the past few months. Some have been recognized from coast to coast. They are outfits that have been hitting the ball.

If your outfit hasn't been heard from, it may have been for one of two reasons:

1. The outfit hasn't been doing anything for anyone to be excited about. It hasn't shown the old virtues America loves: hustle, initiative, esprit de corps.

2. If the outfit has done anything worth noting, nobody's been interested enough to pass on the word.

You see, soldier, there's a tendency among most individuals in any group to pass on the blame when things don't suit them. They seldom, if ever, bleme themselves. Maybe they say, "Aaahh — this is a crummy outfit."

Do you know what a "crummy outfit" is?

It's an outfit made up of "crummy" soldiers.

On the other hand, a "sharp" outfit is an outfit of "sharp" soldiers.

Which are you?

Your post has a central Public Information Office. Right at present that PIO staff is working on all its c nders to pass on the word of noteworthy achievements by people of The Infantry Center. Virtually every editor in the country can testify to the energy expended by the PIO staff at The Infantry Center.

Under the Commanding General's policy, every organization on this huge Army post has a full-time or part - time public information officer.

He's a hard - working officer or NCO He spends all the time he can separate from "other duties" in hustling around the unit area, looking for information that will tell the world what's going on in his outfit.

He can't do it all by himself.

There are two important things that make Army publicity. Only you — the individual soldier — can do them for you.

One is to make the news. The Army does not put out "fake" publicity. It tells the folks at home what you are doing. They tell their neighbors and if it's worthwhile the whole country is interested. If it's really important, the whole world — slaves as well as free men—wants to know about it.

You have to make the news. You make it by the things you do, the way you make your outfit a better outfit and one to be proud of.

The second thing is to spread the news. Your unit PIO and The Infantry Center PIO cannot tell the world what you and your outfit are doing if you keep it a secret from them.

You have to spread the news. Tell your PIO. He'll take care of the rest.

If you do your share, he'll do his. Your unit commander will be interested in watching you and your PIO work together.

At The Infantry Center you are part of one of the world's great Army posts. If you can be one of the world's best soldiers, and make your outfit one of the best in the world—soldier, everybody will know you and all about you!

Fighting Men Still Need Blood

(Based on fact, this is a letter to Mrs. Blanche Kelty of Fort Wayne, Ind., as it might have been written by her son, Cpl. Robert D. Kelty, a Marine reservist wounded in action in Korea. Cpl. Kelty is now undergoing orthopedic treatment at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill.)

DEAR Mom: This will be a short note to let you know I am getting along all right. Everyone here at the hospital is swell and doing all they can to make me well again.

I don't know if I told you exactly what happened to me—everything has been sort of hazy up to now. As you know, I was with Easy Company of the Seventh Marines. We were assigned to take a small hill where Red resistance was expected to be light.

It didn't turn out that way, Mom, and in the battle that followed I was hit in the left leg above the ankle. It shattered the bone and cut the artery in the big one. Naturally, I started to bleed pretty badly, but a couple of my buddies rigged up a tourniquet and stopped it a little.

In a matter of minutes a Navy hospital corpsman had propped up a bottle of blood plasma and it was flowing into my veins. I felt better right away.

I've been wanting to thank someone for that blood, but didn't know quite how to go about it. You have made it easy for me, Mom, since your letter this morning says that you donated a pint of blood at almost the exact time I was hit.

I think you might call that an act of Providence, don't you, Mom?

No one need ever try and convince me of the value of the blood donor program—it probably saved my life. I wish everyone could see it as I do.

Anyway, Mom, thanks from the bottom of my heart for that pint of blood and I'll be seeing you soon. Love, Bob.

P.S.—The doctors say I will walk normally before long, Bob.

Dressing Up Occasionally Is Good for Morale

BY Chaplain Clarence M. Walton

In college Harry never went out socially because he was desperately in love with a girl from his home town, and, as he himself expressed it, he "just couldn't enjoy going places when Jean wasn't along." So Harry spent his evenings in the dormitory writing letters, studying, "chewing the fat" with the boys, and dreaming about Jean.

But every evening in the full after dinner Harry would take a bath, shave, and dress up in the best suit he had. Then he would stroll leisurely down to the drug store at the corner of the campus just to drink a coke and sit around a few minutes before returning to his room to change to lighter clothes for his evening in the dorm. While in the drug store Harry stood out "like a million dollars" among all the other students who went to the drug store in shirt sleeves, sport clothes, and jackets. Some of the other boys kidded him a lot about dressing up so much just to go get a coke. But he came up with an answer that is worth remembering when he said, "You would be surprised at the lift a man gets from dressing up in the best he has."

Perhaps you have heard criticisms of church-goers for dressing up so much when they go to church. This habit has been pointed out as evidence of vanity and self-pride on the part of church-goers, quite out of harmony with the attitude that any Christian should maintain.

There is a sense in which this criticism is justified if the person's chief reason for dressing up is to show off and be thought of as a well dressed individual. There is another sense, however, in which dressing up has definite spiritual value. The more thoroughly and the more seriously a person prepares for the worship of God, the more rewarding is his worship experience likely to be. The very process of preparing one's self with care helps to alert the mind and spirit of the worshiper.

When the Hebrew people were on their way out of Egypt to the freedom of a new land, they gathered in anticipation at the foot of Mount Sinai to hear the commandments of God from the lips of Moses. The Scripture says that "For two days they cleansed themselves," which means that they bathed and cleansed their garments and otherwise prepared themselves for the holy hour.

No one would consider going to an important social function without careful grooming. It would be unthinkable to dress in a slovenly fashion to attend a banquet honoring a famous person. Why, then, should one criticize the Christian who makes himself ready for God's house with meticulous care? If he does it in the right spirit, is he not honoring God with his courteous preparation for a holy occasion?

This certainly does not mean that anyone who cannot afford to dress expensively should feel out of place in church. On the contrary, no one should ever feel out of place in church when he dresses in the best he can afford. The term "Sunday Best" came into use for just these reasons. The very origin of the term implies, first of all, that one should dress in the best he has to enter into the house of God; and, in the second place, it implies that when one has dressed in the best he has, he should feel just as worthy to enter into the house of God as any king who may dress in all his splendor.

When a man enters into the house of God, he ceases to be a rich man or a poor man; he ceases to be a well - dressed man or a plainly-dressed man; he ceases to be an enlisted man or an officer; he ceases to be a white man or a colored man. All become equal in the sight of God, and all are judged by the motives of the heart.

This matter of dressing up has an application in the realm of character also. We should make a special effort at frequent intervals to put off the slovenly character and careless habits that are a product of our natural human tendencies, and we should strive to dress ourselves in the very best there is in the way of character and conduct. Only by thus striving for the best in personal character and integrity can we feel worthy to stand in the presence of God. We cannot in honesty stand before God and ask His mercy and blessings upon us until we have done our best.

Whether it may be in the realm of personal morale, religious activity, or moral character, it is still true, as Harry expressed it to his kidding friends in a college hang-out: "A man gets a tremendous uplift from dressing up in the best he has."

UN Offers Solution for Prisoner Exchange

The United Nations Command Monday presented a 14-point "complete solution" to the long-standing prisoner exchange controversy and asked the Reds to reply as soon as possible. The chances for Red agreement seemed dim. In Washington, U. S. State Department officials and military leaders conferred with Allied representatives on what steps should be taken if the Korean truce talks collapsed.

Hope of success was not dead, but there appeared to be recognition that prospects of an overall agreement were slackening. Various plans of action if the talks fail reportedly included increased military pressure in Korea, a stalemate with no armistice and no exchange of prisoners, or direct pressure on Red China including naval blockades and air attacks.

A series of floods spear-headed by the muddy Ohio river raised its toll of dead to nine and its homeless to 7,000 this week. The Ohio was out of its banks in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, but failed to reach its anticipated crest at Wheeling, W. Va. Extraordinary rainfall in Central Ohio, topping four inches in 36 hours at some spots, gorged southern Ohio tributary streams beyond capacity. The flooded state of the tributaries caused the U. S. Weather Bureau at Cincinnati to hike its downstream crest predictions.

In Cairo, Parliament gave the new cabinet of Premier Aly Maher Pasha what amounted to a vote of confidence tonight after he promised to carry on Egypt's campaign against the British. The Chamber of Deputies and Senate approved martial law for all of Egypt, imposed after the worst rioting of the Anglo-Egyptian dispute broke out Saturday. Maher told Parliament he intended to continue martial law for two months. If the situation returns to normal prior to that he said, he would lift martial law to speed up a week, if conditions warrant it.

NG Commissions 2,233 In Past 18 Months

During the past 18 months 2,233 enlisted men have been commissioned as second lieutenants in the National Guard. These men have successfully completed the Army extension course program, Maj. Gen. R. H. Fleming, Chief of the National Guard announced.

Enrollment in the 19 - series home - study courses is open to all enlisted Guardsmen, regardless of time in service, with approval of unit commanders. Length of time for completion depends on the individual student.

However, after successfully completing the course, candidates must meet the following requirements for appointment and Federal recognition as commissioned officers:

1. Be 21 to 28 years of age.
2. Have at least one year of total service in the Armed Forces, the National Guard, or both, prior to appointment.
3. Be a high school graduate or equivalent.
4. Be recommended by an examining board, and
5. An availability of a table of organization space.

General Fleming also reported that State Officer Candidates Schools, supported by State funds, are expected to prove an increasingly important source of National Guard junior officers. Eventually it is hoped that each state and territory will have at least one school for the direct training of officer candidates.

Officer Candidate Schools of four states — California, Massachusetts, South Carolina, New York — were given Federal accreditation in the past year. A total of 153 Guardsmen were graduated from these schools in the past year. With a current total enrollment of 739, an increase in the number of graduates from the four schools is expected during the current academic year. Present total capacity is 975.

General Fleming stated that civilians and enlisted men in the following additional categories may qualify for National Guard commissions.

1. Former officers of any component of the United States Armed Forces with a minimum of six months' honorable active Federal Service.

2. Warrant officers and enlisted men of the upper three grades, now in the National Guard, who have not passed their 28th birthday. They must also have at least six months' previous honorable active Federal service in those grades in any component of the Armed Forces.

3. Former warrant officers and enlisted men, up to 28 years of age, with a least one year of honorable service in any of the Armed Forces of the United States between Dec. 7, 1941 and June 30, 1947, who hold a degree from a recognized college or university.

4. Graduates of accredited ROTC units.

5. Graduates of Department of the Army Officer Candidate Schools.

6. Clergymen, doctors, and dentists, who may be commissioned without previous military experience.

Company Reveals Baptist Minister Is in Unit Here

Men of Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Brigade, have an ordained minister in their ranks.

He is Cpl. Thomas G. McCaskey, who was called to active duty as a National Guardsman a year ago. He had just completed his second year at Howard Baptist College in Birmingham, Ala., where he was majoring in religion.

Corporal McCaskey explained he first "felt a call to the ministry" after attending a Baptist youth revival in the spring of 1949.

He was licensed by his home church and authorized to hold any of the church ordinances except those of marriage, burial and communion. By that fall he had his own church in Georgetown, Ala.

Soon after, he was ordained by his church. He was asked to perform a marriage ceremony for two college students.

"I had a book to follow describing all church services," he said. "I had proceeded to read only a few lines when I realized that I was reading from the burial service. Very embarrassing. Both the services were similar in context the first few lines."

After he is discharged, he plans to complete college then enter a theological seminary.

New AF Jacket Set To Be Worn Soon

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A new zipper jacket has been designed by the Air Force. It is authorized for wear starting Mar. 15, 1952.

The new jackets will be purchased for issue, however, only after stocks of the present jacket are depleted. The AF estimates that this will occur during the summer of 1953.

DOUBLE-MEANING POSTER . . . First Lt. Paul Weston, 104th Company, Second Student Regiment, has figuratively killed two birds with one stone in his latest safety poster. Not only does the poster advocate safe driving, it is tied in with the blood donor program by urging men "don't spill your blood—donate it!" This is the second in a series of safety displays Lieutenant Weston has prepared for his unit.

Two Former Enemies Meet At Post; Become Friends

Two allied students who were former combat enemies recently met in the First Student Officer Mess.

Italian Maj. Mario Moffa and Greek Maj. Polychronis Alexopoulos recall the time their regiments encountered each other in Albania in the winter of 1941.

"Our regiments fought at the Dragot bridge near Mount Golico on the Greece-Albania border", said Maj. Moffa. "I was company commander of Fifth Company in the Third Grenadier Regiment."

The tall Italian officer pointed out that the Greeks held the high ground on the other side of the bridge and his forces were trying to cross the bridge and move up Mount Golico. "When Greeks attacked first and pushed us back," said Major Moffa, "Then we attacked and pushed them back."

That is the fighting went throughout the winter, recalled Major Alexopoulos. "I too was a company commander."

The stocky Greek officer served on the Dragoti front for 30 days but Major Moffa was there a few weeks longer.

"I was removed from the front after being shot in the leg," mused the Italian. "I wonder if it could have been you who shot me, Major Alexopoulos."

Both agreed that the cold winter was their worst enemy at Dragoti. "Ah but the Greeks were excellent fighting men," put in Major Moffa. "I am proud to have fought against such a good fighter as the Greek soldiers."

The Italian major remembered the trumpets the Greeks would blow when attacking. "I can still hear their notes ringing in my ears," he said.

The fighting at Dragoti was still a stalemate when the Germans invaded Greece. Major Alexopoulos's regiment, the 67th Infantry, was pulled back to meet the new threat. After the Germans overran his country Major Alexopoulos led a battalion in the hills carrying on guerilla warfare. His present assignment is commanding a battalion in Greece s First Division.

After Major Moffa was released from the hospital he also was made a battalion commander. At present he is with the Italian War Department.

Commenting how two former enemies could become friends, they both agreed that the friendly atmosphere at Fort Benning helped us become friends."

Transport Officer From Third Army Visits Fort Benning

Col Charles H. Wilson, transportation officer for the Third Army area, made a liaison visit to The Infantry Center Friday to survey transportation units here.

Col. Wilson was named to his present post in December, replacing Col. Ivan L. Brenneman who was transferred to the European Command.

While at Fort Benning Col. Wilson conferred with Col. C. H. Karlstad, chief of staff, Col. J. F. Torrence, Jr., A-4; Col. C. E. Crane, commanding officer of the 3440th Area Service Unit Provisional Group, and Col. William M. Molloy, commander of the First Transportation Battalion.

He visited the 140th and 166th Truck Companies and the 27th Car Company.

Col. Wilson was at the Infantry School here in 1933-34. He also attended a two-week course in 1941.

He plans to see transportation units at Fort Jackson, S. C., Fort Bragg, N. C., and other major Third Army installations during the next month.

Before coming to Fort McPherson Col. Wilson was deputy commander for operations, Second Logistical Command, Pusan, Korea. He was responsible for the activation and organization of the port of Chinnampo from Nov. 5 to Dec. 5, 1950.

OFFICER ASSIGNMENT

First Lieutenant James F. Oliver has replaced Capt. Maxwell A. McCulloch as commanding officer of Second Company, First Student Regiment.

OC's Will Soon Have Rustic Park To See Visitors

The Third Student Regiment will soon have a park where visitors and candidates may visit each other.

Idea for the park came from Lt. Col. Joe Lamb, First Officer Candidate Battalion commander, who noted that visitors to the Harmony Church area were limited as to places they could go with their soldier-husbands or friends.

A lightly wooded area behind the Fourth OC Company was selected for the park site. Second Lt. John Anthony, S-4 of the First O.C. Battalion, is supervising clearing of the area.

"It surely looks like a mess now," he said, "but after we get some of the glutles filled in, underbrush ripped out and some grass seeded then we'll be able to put in some benches and do a little landscaping."

"It'll look a hundred per cent better in a few weeks if we keep working like we have been," he added.

Cadremen and candidates are working on the area in their off-duty time.

Birmingham MP's Stop Post Gls For Commendation; Not Arrest

Two young paratroopers sauntered down a boulevard in Birmingham, Ala., recently. They were stopped by two M.P.'s.

A few days later, a written report, signed by Col. Richard S. McConnell, provost marshall of Fort Benning, reached the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion part of the 508th ARCT. But this report was different.

It was a "commendation report."

A report that commended Cpl. Donald H. Dowdy and Cpl. Richard Keene Jr., of Battery A and Headquarters Battery, respectively, of the 320th, for the following:

"Outstanding appearance in uniform neatly tailored, clean and well-pressed. Boots polished and were cooperative with the military police and answered all questions promptly."

So, it just goes to show you . . .

Trooper's Answer Reveals Why He Joined Jumpers

BY LT. ROBERT W. FENNEY
PIO — 508th ABN.RCT.

"Why ask me? Ask a psychiatrist!"

Thus did one anonymous candidate for paratrooper training reply several week ago to the question: "Why did you volunteer for the paratroops?"

Since then, the search has been on for the man who might have scriven that classic commentary. This week he was believed to have been located—in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

He is Sergeant David H. Schaffer.

The original answer, "Why ask me," etc., was found among the unsigned questionnaires filled out by virtually every candidate prior to entering jump school in the Airborne Department of The Infantry School.

Answering a verbal query this past week, Sgt. Schaffer responded to "Why did you volunteer for the paratroops?" by raising his eyebrows and hands in mute eloquence. The pose was worthy of that unsigned classic.

"Why ask me? Ask a psychiatrist!!"

We asked Sgt. Schaffer if he was the "why ask me" paratrooper. This is what came out:

"When I was with the 507th Parachute Regiment in Normandy and things were real bad, I used to stick my finger up out of the fox-hole, hoping stray bullet would find it and make it possible for me to get sent back to the hospital. I never lost a finger . . . "

Sgt. Schaffer took a deep breath. Ahh, we thought, here comes the answer.

"Also, when I made my first combat jump in Normandy, I landed in a swamp. Only the air - tight gas - mask container strapped to my leg enabled me to keep afloat long enough to grab a vine and escape drowning.

That's five, Sgt. Schaffer. Now how about . . .

"And after my combat jump over the Rhine, the last time I saw Gen. (Mathew B.) Ridgway was when the general was running towards a big fire - fight, yelling back to his aides, "HURRY up, we'll miss the fun!"

We whistled to attract his attention. But he was in high gear now and we picked him up as he said:

"I've got between 90 and 110 jumps. Furthermore, this is Leap Year and I'm running, but not too fast. . . I hail from Columbus, Ohio, and I've been in the Army 7 years, 8 months, 2 weeks, 3 days, 4 hours and 27 minutes . . . I really tried to enlist in the Air Force but the recruiting sergeant told me to join the paratroops because there was no K. P. or guard-duty in the airborne. Now look at me!"

We looked at Sgt. Schaffer. We thought, he sure is the tallest-ingest man in the 508th's Medical Company. If not the entire 508th! Then we walked away.

Sgt. Schaffer's last words floated after us.

"And I'm 155 pounds of Airborne Hell!"

SGT. DAVID SCHAFFER

Benning Soldier Has Had Sixteen Jobs In Sixteen Years

M-Sgt. Taylor L. Myers has been assigned to 16 units in his 16 years of Army service.

Presently assigned to Headquarters, First Transportation Battalion, he has been a cannoneer, mechanic, platoon and motor sergeant at one time or another.

It seems like every time I get my bags unpacked and settle down I have to pack up and move again," Sergeant Meyers said.

In his 16 years in the Army he has served in Panama, Europe and the Far East Commands.

When he returned from Korea, he was assigned to the 148th Transportation Truck Company here. He was just settling down there when he was transferred to his present unit.

"I've got my bags unpacked now," he said, "but I can't say for how long — with my luck I'm liable to be moving any time."

HERE FOR THIRD TOUR

New mess steward of 117th Company, Second Student Regiment is SFC Hilton G. Hill, a veteran of nine years service who is now at Benning for his third tour.

TRI-MULTANEOUS EVENTS

Second Lieutenant Ralph W. Freeman, Company A, First Transportation Truck battalion, was promoted to 1st Lt., appointed company commander, and became a father—all in one week.

Korean Language Used in Classes

Several Combat Training Command units have launched intensive dramatics and begun presenting demonstrations in the Korean language.

Three of these units have been rated superior in their performances presented for Committee B on logistics.

Rating officers said that Tank company, Service company, and the Second battalion of the 30th Regimental Combat Team were awarded the superior rating for handling their cues faultlessly during demonstrations.

In another phase of the demonstrations, the officers described Company G's performance in presenting a skit. "The narrative and demonstration was delivered in the Korean language, necessitating numerous rehearsals on the part of the school troops. The skits were extremely well executed."

4 Turkish Captains Here For TIS Advanced Courses

Four captains from the Turkish Army are now attending advanced officer's courses at The Infantry School.

In highly competitive examinations among hundreds of Turkish officers, Captains Ibrahim Demiray, Sami Kutluk, AAvni Sezer, and Mustafa Uyar, were the top four selected to come to Fort Benning.

When he returned from Korea, he was assigned to the 148th Transportation Truck Company here. He was just settling down there when he was transferred to his present unit.

"I've got my bags unpacked now," he said, "but I can't say for how long — with my luck I'm liable to be moving any time."

HERE FOR THIRD TOUR

New mess steward of 117th Company, Second Student Regiment is SFC Hilton G. Hill, a veteran of nine years service who is now at Benning for his third tour.

TRI-MULTANEOUS EVENTS

Second Lieutenant Ralph W. Freeman, Company A, First Transportation Truck battalion, was promoted to 1st Lt., appointed company commander, and became a father—all in one week.

Captain Demiray, senior officer of the group, revealed some comparisons to our officer promotion program. On graduation from the Turkish Officer Candidate School, the officer is commissioned a 3rd Lieutenant. After serving a minimum of six months, he is eligible for promotion to 2nd Lt. A three year interval is necessary for qualification to promotion to 1st lieutenant.

Captain Kutluk, an instructor at the Infantry School in Turkey, is an expert in map reading. Considered one of the best in his field, his students include general officers who attend refresher courses.

Because of the mountainous terrain, a most important part of the Turkish Army is cavalry. Captain Sezer is a company commander in what he considers "one of the finest in the Turkish Army." Most of his time is taken up doing "border duty".

English translator for the Staff College in Turkey is the job of Captain Uyar. Though most of the Turkish officers speak English, he said, unfortunately most of the visitors in Turkey do not speak the language.

After completion of the course, they will return to Turkey as instructors. They mentioned, however, that they are taking a "delay en route" to visit New York.

Food School Gets New Commander

Lt. Col. John S. Andersen has been named commandant of the Third Army Food Service School here, replacing Maj. Raymond K. Herron who has been acting commandant.

Colonel Andersen came to Fort Benning from the Office of the Quartermaster General in Washington, D. C., where he was special assistant to the chief of the Food Service Division.

He received his commission at Chicago, Ill., in 1941 and has 52 months overseas service. During World War II he was a battalion commander of composite units in Africa. He also commanded a labor supervision center for prisoners of war in Africa, Italy and France.

Colonel Andersen has attended the Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va., and the Food Service School at Fort Knox, Ky.

MESS STEWARD TRANSFERRED

Sgt. Richard D. Comer, assistant mess steward of the 121st Company, Second Student Regiment, has been transferred to the 124th Company of the Second Regiment.

Korean Discovers Getting Married Is Complicated

Getting married in America can be complicated, a Korean Army officer, who is attending The Infantry School, recently discovered.

First Lieutenant Kim Dong Sung, ROKA officer attending Associate Special Company Officer course No. 1, was married to his former college classmate, Miss Kwon Chin Sook in Augusta during the holidays.

The difficulties of having medical examinations and obtaining a marriage license was greatly reduced by the work of Maj. Ross E. Letty, advisor for the Koreans at Benning, and Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Barton of Augusta, sponsors for Miss Kwon.

The couple was married in the Trinity - on - the - Hill Methodist Church in Augusta by Reverand Barton on Dec. 29.

When asked if he intended to take his wife back to Korea with him when he finishes his course in March, Lt. Kim stated that he would not be able to do it. "The big reason is the war situation, secondly, she is the dietican for the Duke University hospital and her contract does not expire until October, 1953."

The couple first met when they were students in Seoul National University. Mrs. Kim was a member of the school choir which was directed by Lt. Kim in 1946.

In 1948 she came to the United States and attended Georgia State College for Women where she received her Bachelor of Science in 1950. She received her Master of Science in nutrition at the University of Tennessee in 1951.

"GALLANT" POSES PROUDLY ON FAVORITE PERCH
Capt. Severino, Gallant, and Team Head Benham

Post Will Be Represented At Olympics By a Dog

Fort Benning will have a representative at the Winter Olympic games being held in Oslo, Norway in February—even though he's a four-legged one.

The representative is "Gallant", a 90-pound German shepherd that belongs to Sgt. Robert E. Donohue, of the First Student Brigade.

Gallant has been adopted by the U. S. bobsled team as its official mascot. Plans are being made to have the dog lead the American contingent of athletes in the parade that precedes the games.

The big black German shepheed got his first taste of bobsledding when Sgt. Donohue's brother-in-law, Air Force Capt. Richard Severino, took him down the bobsled run at Lake Placid. N. Y. Gallant liked it so well that Capt. Severino, a member of the 1952 U. S. bobsled team, let him ride over and over again.

"Before we knew it," Sgt. Donohue said, "Gallant was regarded almost as a member of the team. Stan Benham, team captain this year, made his adoption official, so Gallant is now on his way over with the team.

Sgt. Donohue bought Gallant two and a half years ago when the dog was eight months old in Hanau, Germany. He is registered in Germany as well as with the American Kennel Club.

"That's a little unusual," Donohue explained, "because the A. K. C. usually won't recognize 'immigrants' to this country."

Gallant was sired by Claus von Haus Werle, a German champion recently bought by a Virginia kennel for approximately $9,000, according to Sgt. Donohue.

Gallant has been widely publicized since he began his canine career of slipping down icy chutes on a bobsled.

Donohue said Gallant wouldn't ride with the team in competition, but that he would undoubtedly be "in the saddle" for the practice runs.

The team is going to Garmisch, Germany first, then to Sweden, and finally to Oslo. It had to get a special permit from the Norwegian government to bring Gallant into the country. "Usually there's a six-month quarantine period for dogs going to Norway," Donohue related.

"As far as we know, Gallant is the first dog ever to go down a bobsled run. We know for certain that he's the first at Lake Placid. I surely do miss him now that he's way over there. He's my constant companion when he's here."

508th Jumping Jack Is Battalion Med Officer

The "jumping jack" of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team is First Lieutenant Albert N. Perry, 31-year-old medical officer for the Second Battalion.

Last week, "Doc" Perry jumped Monday, Thursday and Friday nights for "morale purposes" with Second Battalion troopers. What's more amazing is that he is not a veteran jumper his total now being 16, the 15th being a tree landing. More than 1500 troopers in the 508th jumped last

Servicemen Can Renew NSLI After Discharge Now

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Many Servicemen from Korea and elsewhere are being discharged now. Their most frequent questions concern their rights to Government life insurance. This is the third of four articles on this subject prepared by the Veterans Administration and distributed by AFPS.)

When you leave active military service with a Government term policy in force under waiver of premiums, you have only 120 days from the date of your separation or release to begin paying the premiums again to Veterans Administration.

Otherwise, you run the risk of not having any Government life insurance in force after the 120-day post-service period has expired.

The phrase, "under waiver of premiums," applies to either a term NSLI or to a term USGLI policy that you wanted to keep in force while you were in Service without paying premiums and for which you applied and were granted a waiver (under Section 622 of the NSLI Act).

This waiver ordinarily continues for the duration of your active service plus 120 days after separation or release.

If you keep the policy in force after the 120-day post-service period, you should pay the required premiums to Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. C., with in the 120-day period.

Even though this premium may be paid within the first few days of the 120-day period, it will not be applied on the policy that is under waiver until the first premium falls due after the 120-day period following the person's separation or release from active service.

For that reason, you should make your first premium payment as soon after separation or release as possible and thus guard against having your policy lapse after the 120 days have passed.

Two factors affect you if your term NSLI or USGLI policy expired while you were in active service:

1. If your period of term insurance expired while you were in active service and while the policies were under waiver of premiums, the law provides for automatic renewal of your insurance for another five-year period, with premiums waived for the remainder of your active service, plus 120 days thereafter.

2. If you did not apply for a waiver on your term insurance and your policy expired while you were in active service after April 25, 1951, the law grants you the right to apply for new insurance in the same amount and of the same type as the expired policy. You must apply to VA within 120 days of your discharge and submit evidence of good health through a physical examination. You also must pay the required premium. These applications should be submitted to Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D.C.

(Next: Permanent Plan Government Policies Under Waiver or Surrendered for Cash Value.)

April Should Complete NSLI Dividend Mailings

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Officials at the Veterans Administration report that the 1951 special three - year NSLI dividend is rolling out in increasing quantities.

Many Servicemen still have not received their checks, but the VA offers assurance that they will get them "just as fast as is humanly possible." Many bottlenecks due to the passage of Public Law 23 have been ironed out and the VA hopes to have all checks out by April.

320TH JEEP HAS MADE THREE PARACHUTE DROPS
Pvt. D. F. Smith, Battery A, 320th Abn. FA Bn., Points To The Jeeps' "Wings".

320th Jeeps Jump Often In Airborne Training

Even the jeeps jump in the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion.

One of the 1-4-ton trucks or jeeps—in Battery A of the 320th has three parachute drops to its credit. You can tell because it has three parachutes printed on the side and on the windshield support. Just like airplanes keep track of enemy planes shot down.

This jeep is No. 2355543, with the bumper marking of A-4, showing that it is a Forward Observer vehicle in Battery A. Other than a few minor dents in the body on the driver's side, the jeep is none the worse for wear.

It's first "jump" was when it was dropped on a platform on October 20 when the 320th supported the First battalion of the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment on "Operation Fireball" Gen. Mark W. Clark saw that exercise. Then followed two drops on demonstrations by the Airborne Department of Fort Benning.

Each time, the jeep was completely serviceable after the jump and proudly driven off by its driver, Pvt. Donald F. Smith. Smith, a 21-year-old 6-footer from Portland, Ore., has only six jumps himself.

He's waiting for his jeep to make two more "jumps." Then he'll paint the conventional silver gull wings on the vehicle to denote that it has made the required five parachute jumps demanded of qualified parachutists.

12 Korean Vets Basis Of 534th Signal Unit

The three-weeks-old 534th Signal Construction company has established temporary headquarters at the intersection of Indianhead and Bradshaw Roads.

Second Lt. Earl M. Crum, troop education and information officer for the organization, said that "the experience of the 12 Korean veterans who are in our organization is expected to be an invaluable aid in the training and operation of this unit."

Coleman Gets 5 Purple Hearts In Five Months

Five Purple Hearts in five months may not be a record, but Sgt. Gelt Coleman, chief of the transfer section in the Third Student Regiment personnel office, has done it.

The sergeant vividly remembers the black days of 1942 when Corregidor fell to Japanese forces. "There just weren't enough of us with enough equipment to stop them," he recalls. "We were taken prisoner on May 6."

Sergeant Coleman remained a prisoner of war until Sept. 15, 1945. "We weren't liberated by any one outfit. We had a Navy Hellcat flyer come over and drop us the information that we were to be freed. After that we just took over ourselves."

"When they took me prisoner I weighed 143 pounds — when I got out I weighed 79 pounds," the slightly built Oklahoman stated. He has now been able to restore his weight back to a near normal.

During his three and a half years as prisoner he worked as a laborer in the construction of an airfield and shortly before his release he was a jack-hammer operator in a copper mine in Northern Honshu.

His five purple hearts were won on Corregidor when he was a machine gunner with Battery H, 59th Coast Artillery. "That all seems like a long time ago now, but I'll never forget it."

Dallas Rangers Coach Won't Be Named Soon

A coach for the Dallas Rangers, newest club in the National Football League, probably won't be named until March, but whoever he is, he will do all of the trading and buying of players, according to the team's owners.

The Rangers, who will play in the Cotton Bowl, must draw an average of 25,000 fans a game to break even this season.

Food Students Here Learn Fast Butchering Methods

Students at the Third Army Food Service School here are learning the production line method of meat preparation.

J. J. Cox of the Army Quartermaster General's Meat and Refrigeration section and M. O. Cullen, director of merchandising for the National Livestock and Meat Board, are demonstrating the latest methods of preparing carcasses into cookable cuts of meat.

The new method involves setting up three tables on which the carcasses will be carved. The section leader and three "parts" men gather around with their tools.

The group at the first table removes certain cuts of meat, then passes the carcass along to the next table. Here, other cuts of meat are carefully removed, and the carcass is moved on to the last table, where the remaining meat is sliced from the bones.

Apprentice meat cutters reign over the third table in the cutting room. Under the watchful eyes of instructors, they get practice in cutting without ruining any valuable meat, since all that is garnered at the last table is later ground.

Apprentices gain knowledge of the bone structure of animals during the course, too, since by the time a carcass gets to them there is little left but the bones and meat scraps that can be used.

Nothing in the carcass goes to waste. Fats and skins that might otherwise be wasted are processed into tallow, which is later combined with lard in a 60-40 mixture and distributed to mess halls to use in cooking.

30th Infantry Choir Has Former Broadway Singer

Led by the former Broadway singer, the 30th Infantry Regiment choir sang twice this week in its first public chapel appearances.

Sunday, the choir sang at Protestant services at Chapel 4, Sand Hill. Wednesday evening, the choir was scheduled to be heard at services of the Protestant Preaching Mission at Sand Hill Chapel No. 3.

Pfc. Joseph D. Thread, Headquarters Company, Third Battalion, has been rehearsing the 20 voice choir for several weeks. Thread was in the chorus of the Broadway hit, "Lost in the Stars", in 1949 and 1950. A graduate of Xavier University, New Orleans, he has led and sung in choirs in New York City.

Cpl. Charles A. Lewis, the organist, has been playing since the age of 12. He is in Headquarters Company, Third Battalion. For the past fourteen years he has been organist at Summit Christian Church, Dayton, Ohio. In 1945, Lewis won a superior rating in an Ohio music contest.

Pfc. Robert M. Segerstrom, of the bass section, has gone in for variety in his singing career, which began when he was 7 years old. He has sung in many choirs, including the Augsburg College choir in Minneapolis, Minn. As a sideline, he sang at rodeos around Stamford, Tex. His church singing included the First Presbyterian church in Columbus, and church choirs in his home town, Fort Worth, Tex.

After leaving the Army, Segerstrom plans to resume his studies at the Conservatory School of Music, Fort Worth, Tex.

Mrs. Velma Melbourne is one of the soldiers' wives who fill in the soprano and alto sections of the regimental choir. She has directed choirs and played the organ at several churches in her home town, Red Bank, N.J.

Club Will Present Keyboard Concert

The Fort Benning Women's Club will present the piano team of Nelson and Neal in a concert this Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Theater No. 3.

Admission to the concert will be 75 cents for non-club members.

Both Harry Neal and his wife, Allison Nelson, are proteges of Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. They both studied at Curtis Institute, Philadelphia, Pa., where they met and married.

Neal, in addition to his musical ability, is an author, lecturer and radio-television commentator and producer, both here and in Australia.

The team presented an unprecedented year and a half television series over station WGAU in Philadelphia, believed to be the only television program devoted entirely to classical music.

Bill May Allow Officer Switches To Other Services

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department has proposed a bill to Congress that would permit the transfer of commissioned officers from one Service to another.

The bill would apply to both regular and reserve officers. According to the Defense Department communication, the purpose of the bill would be to provide for the maximum utilization of manpower resources.

In many cases one Service has a relative surplus of certain technical, professional or scientific officers while another finds a serious shortage of this would equalize the situation. At the present time only medical officers may be transferred to another Service.

The bill would specifically provide, however, that no officer may be transferred without his consent or the consent of both Services. In the case of the National Guard or Air National Guard the consent of the Governor or appropriate official of the state would be required.

When the officer is transferred he would be credited with unused leave and maintain his seniority.

PLATTER CHATTER

PARADISE (Voices of Walter Schumann on Capitol). A few months ago this aggregation started recording for Capitol. Within that short time they have climbed to the top of the platter market. Walter Schumann directed the choir and orchestra in doing such things as Winter Wonderland and White Christmas, followed by other platters of old tunes. Now Maestro Schumann has come up with this old melody, and the reverse side, I Love That Feeling is a new tune. Both are up to the high Schumann standards, and we think you'll enjoy them.

HEART STRINGS (Dick Beavers, Les Baxter orchestra and choir on Capitol). Singer Dick Beavers is another in the new Capitol records recording artists, and this is his first hill-billy platter. Before this, he recorded the tops in reverse side is Rose of Louisiana, another hill-tune. Arrangements on these two tunes are excellent, as is anything Les Baxter does these days. Nothing original about the melody of these two dittys, but the hill-billy music fans will probably like them.

DANCE ME LOOSE (Mindy Carson, Nery Griffin, Hugo Winterhalter orchestra on Capitol). Readers of Dick Tracy in the funny papers will probably recognize the title of this tune. For the past few days, Junior has been skating with a young lady to the strains of Dance Me Loose. Actually the song is a novelty piece, but you will like it for the first two or three times you hear it. Flip is, Be My Life's Companion, a much better melody, and better presented.

TULIPS AND HEATHER (Fred Waring Glee Club on Decca). This tune seems to be headed for the number one spot in musical America. Not only has it been recorded by Fred Waring, but by Perry Como and other top recording artists as well. The tune is nice, though not quite original enough to please the discriminating in popular tunes.

RECORDS AT RANDOM: Stolen Love, Eddy Howard on Mercury; Please Mr. Sun, Perry Como on RCA-Victor; I'm On A Seesaw of Love, Guy Lombardo, Andrews Sisters on Decca; I've Got A Feeling You're Fooling, Delores Gray on Decca; I Remember You Love, Vic Damone on Mercury; Cry, Jerry Gray on Decca and Dark Eyes, Les Paul on Decca.

Bayonet Initiates Series Of Events in 320th FA

The 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, the sledgehammer of the 506th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, last week proved "it is a pretty good outfit although reactivated just five months ago."

And it was a 2-inch item in THE BAYONET that started the thing rolling, thisaway:

Maj. Adolph L. Shaima, grizzled executive officer of the 320th, leaned back in a chair and picked up a Jan. 10 copy of THE BAYONET. The major reached Page 9, then exclaimed:

"Well, what do you know. My old buddy from my Panama days now is commanding officer of the 773rd Tank Battalion. We were buck sergeants together in Company I of the 13th Infantry in 1936-39."

That "old buddy" is Lt. Col. Harry W. Johnson. Stories were swapped, backs slapped and one thing more:

Lt. Col. Johnson agreed to loan the 320th a few radios.

"It'll make it possible for us to run our first night-problem on a moderate emplacement and forward displacement. Being five months old, we haven't received radios yet," sales-talked Maj. Shaima.

And so, taking to the airways for the first time, thanks to the 773rd's radios, the 320th artillerymen rolled out into the boondocks of Fort Benning the afternoon of Jan. 18. The guns were dug into position, the trucks were hidden in the woods, the forward observors took to the hilltops.

The 773rd's radios crackled merrily and everyone was happy, everything was done in half the time it took when the 320th red-legs were forced to wait for miles and miles of telephone wire to be strung.

All through the night, Headquarters and Service batteries of the 320th acted as aggressors, assaulting the three gun batteries No one slept and even Lt. Col. John W. Grady, commanding officer of the 320th, was captured on a daring raid on B Battery's perimeter.

Then came the dawn! The 12 105-mm howitzers of the 320th, simulating support of the 506th Airborne Infantry Regiment, were to move forward 8 and 1-2 miles. Without the 773rd's radios, the whole problem would have been a slow-motion pantomime.

The Fort Sill, Okla., Field Artillery School solution specifies about 90 minutes for a forward displacement by battery, including getting a registration on a target of opportunity. In other words, until the artillery is really shootin' and hittin'!

The 320th did it in 38 minutes!

Battery A, commanded by Capt. Charles F. McKee, was the first to report its guns emplaced and ready to fire, The 320th Fire Direction Center, directed by the S-3, Capt. James H. McClurkin, gave A battery's second gun section a target of opportunity. The target was hit and a quick base point registration completed in less than ninety minutes, all 12 guns of the 320th were firing and massing terrifying shell-fragments out ahead of Whitson OP (observation post).

Word from the time Lt. Col. Grady called Maj. Shaima by radio and commanded "Ancient 2, this is Ancient 2. Execute!" until A Battery's first shell burst near the target, only 38 minutes had elapsed to complete a movement of several miles.

All because of a li'l item in THE BAYONET.

Glasses Survive 1,300 Foot Fall

A pair of horned-rimmed glasses fell 1300 feet, hit the ground and were found and returned to their owner three days later . . . none the worse for wear.

Sgt. Ted G. Arthurs, personnel clerk for Service Company in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, recently made his 28th parachute jump—with glasses—at night from a C-46 plane over Lee Field at Benning.

Sgt. Arthurs thought the opening shock had stunned him for he "couldn't see the ground in the air. Then I found my glasses had blown off. I reported their loss. Three days later, Sgt. Bob Miller of Airborne Department called me and said 'come and get 'em'."

Post Corporal Is Count In Native Czechoslovakia

The title of this story might be "From Count to Corporal".

For Cpl. Andre Stenbock Fermor, non-commissioned officer in charge of the First Student Brigade's Allied Liaison Section, is a full-fledged count.

Born in Totmegyer, Czechoslovakia, he is the son of Princess Nadia Scherbatoy of Brussels, Belgium and Count Ivan Stenbock - Fermor of Ipswich, Mass.

European educated, his accounts of the education there, from grade to high school, reveal the more condensed and somewhat strict teaching practiced there.

During World War II, Corporal Stenbock worked for the French underground, where his primary mission was to help refugees across the border into Spain. His work as a member of this organization was recognized by both France and the United States as a valuable contribution.

It was because of this activity that he was recommended to attend the Sorbonne University in Biarritz, France, as a civilian—the first afforded this opportunity.

A student there from 1945 - 46, he was persuaded by a professor to visit the United States and enroll at Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla., majoring in political science.

Corporal Stenbock served with the 18th Infantry Regiment, 1st Division, on occupation duty in Germany from Nov. 1948, to May, 1950. He was then transferred to the European Command Intelligence Center as a Russian interpreter.

Eligible for discharge in March, the corporal plans to take summer courses at Harvard and then study at Louvain University in Belgium.

Pace Pays Tribute To Army Reserves

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—A tribute to the "magnificent performance" of the Army Reserve forces, commissioned and enlisted, in the Korean fighting, was paid recently by Frank Pace Jr., Secretary of the Army.

In an address to 175 graduates of the Organized Reserve Corps of the Military District of the District of Columbia, Mr. Pace said that reservists had made possible a build-up of Army strength from less than 600,000 to more than 1,500,000 in a year.

"By their performance on Korean battlefields, by strengthening our defenses in Europe and by training hundreds of thousands of recruits, they have earned the gratitude of the Army and of the nation in a time of crisis," he said.

Telephone Service is Growing, too

and the cost is up far less than prices in general!

"LADIES" already! My, how they have grown! And you can say the same for Georgia's telephone service.

IN JUST EIGHT years in Georgia, the number of telephones you can call has more than doubled.

BEST OF ALL, the price of this bigger, better "package" of service has gone up on the average far less than prices in general . . . and less than our cost of providing the service.

ALWAYS a bargain, telephone service is today an even better buy than it was ten years ago, and a smaller part of the family budget.

LANE HUBBARD, Georgia Manager

LONG DISTANCE CALLS go through faster when you give the operator the out-of-town telephone number.

GEORGIA STATE TELEPHONE AND

508th's Executive Officer Is Big Man in Two Ways

Any way you look at it, rank or size, Lt. Col. Thomas A. Meseveau is a big man in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

The former West Point football star is a 30-year-old lieutenant colonel and, as the executive officer of the 508th ARCT he's the No. 2 soldier behind the commander, Col. Joe S. Lawrie.

That takes care of the rank.

Now the size. Well, at 6 feet, 4 inches and 220 pounds, Col. Meseveau is one of the biggest ranking officers in the Army.

He's also the epitome, the ideal of what a paratrooper should be in the eyes of the men of the 508th. . .big, husky, handsome with a kindly, ever-patient disposition.

And modest!

Col. Meseveau is one of the few men you'll ever hear make a statement like this:

"I didn't deserve the Silver Star. Not any more than did any other member of my company on that assault on a Japanese stronghold."

Col. Meseveau also coached the 11th Airborne Division team which won the FECOM (Far Eastern Command) championship in 1946, going undefeated by scoring All - Navy team, 21 to 7, in Shanghai in 1946. After that, he was called to West Point to coach the plebe team, then serve as grauduate manager of athletics until June, 1950.

"That bit of "over-rated" action took place after the colonel made his combat jump with the 11th Airborne Division at Luzon in the Philippines. Sincere in his modesty—"It embarrasses me to talk about it"—the colonel brushes by his Silver Star and Purple Heart with fleeting references to his being a company commander and that todate he has "38 parachute jumpe" to account for his Senior parachute wings.

"Today, people mention me as having been an All - American player. I was merely honorable mention on one or two All-America lists in my last season as a combination guard and tackle in 1942," he states.

"When I entered West Point, I was 17 years old, 6 feet 3 inches and I guess I weighted about 180 pounds. I earned football letters in the 1940-41-42 seasons," says the colonel, who still racked up a good game of tackle last Fall with the 508th Red Devil football team, which he also coached. With Col. Lawrie and Capt. Michael C. Chester lending a hand to the coaching reins, the 508-Er gridders won four of eight games.

Then came a year at the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky. And then came the 508th Airborn Infantry Regiment in which he held command of the second battalion as a major before his silver oak leaves arrived in July, four months before his 30th birthday on October 22.

Col. Meseveau first attracted athletic attention as a footballer for St. Cecelia High School in Englewood, N.J., five miles from his home town of Bergenfield. A brother, Capt. (Dr.) Arthur T. Meseveau Jr., was the team doctor for the West Point football team last Fall.

Even when it comes to in-laws, Col. Meseveau can't escape athletics. His father-in-law, is Gene Leone, prominent New York City restaurateur and sponsor of boxers, baseball players and football backer.

Every time "Papa" Leone looks at 6-4, 220-pound "Tom" Meseveau, he doesn't think of him as the husband of his daughter, Louisa. Oh, no! He thinks of what a fine heavyweight fighter the colonel might have made.

After all, didn't Mr. Leone once have Tex Coulter, another fine West Point tackle of All-America stature like Col. Meseveau all "signed up" as a heavyweight boxer until he got married.

But there's still hope for a "white hope." When Grandfather Leone flew down to Fort Benning over Christmas, he found little 17-month old Tom Meseveau Jr. doing flip-flops in the parlor, jumping off chairs and—believe it or not—hanging from the tops of doors by his fingers.

So far, his daddy's caught him every time!

OC Served With Lost Battalion In World War II

Officer Candidate Stanley E. Neffendorf, 10th Officer Candidate Company, is a former member of the "Lost Battalion Of World War II".

He was attached to Company B, 357th Infantry Regiment, 90th Infantry Division. Candidate Neffendorf was a Technical Sergeant when the group became trapped near Metzm, France in Oct. 1944.

For 11 days the battalion traded pillboxes and positions until the trap was broken and the battalion relieved.

A Texan, "Neff" recalls the time when American and Russian troops met for the first time near Prague. "Friendship between the two forces was at a peak and the vodka flowed like water. It was a wonderful time, one I'll never forget."

Lacking the required number of points to return to the States, he served as a Special Service NCO in the Civil Censorship Division at Pullback, Germany. While there he met and married an English girl.

Following a short stay in the Civilian Department of the Censorship Division he reenlisted in Aug. 1947. He then served in G-3, Munich Military Post, where he helped in the placement of some 68,000 displaced persons.

Span Built In 11 Minutes By 509th Engineers

The second platoon of the 509th Engineer Combat company proved its efficiency last week by constructing a 300-foot bridge across the Chattahoochee river in eleven and a half minutes.

The construction of the bridge was a phase of the problem Rifle Company In Attack of River Line, which they were running for Associate Company Officers Course Nine at Engineers Landing on the Chattahoochee.

Fitting floats to duck boards, the engineers swiftly clamped the sections together and shoved them out into the river until the first section reach the far bank. This provided a dry path, complete with hand rails, across the current.

A wire rope, strung earlier, was the bridge-builders' only head start.

The problem was climaxed with assault landings against defending "aggressors" on the far bank of the river.

With engineers as crewman, the student officers loaded and paddled their boats across the river in two waves and landed on the far bank.

Prior to running the problem, the student officers practiced loading techniques for both deep and shallow water. They first went through the motions on land and then took a practice ride across the river, doubletiming back via the footbridge.

105 Section Wins Best in the 320th

The title of "best gun section in the 320th" was won by the third 105-mm howitzer section of B Battery in the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion this week. Chief-of-section of the prize-winning gun crew is Sfc. Russell C. Hammens, who was confined to the Station Hospital when Lt. Col. John W. Grady, commanding officer of the 320th, presented the plaque to Gunner Cpl. Richard E. Gainer.

Donors Get Status Of VIPs in 508th

You're a VIP if you're a blood donor in Company M of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. A VIP is a Very Important Person—and Company M donors sit at a special table, eat a special diet.

All this as a result of a suggestion from the Fort Benning Blood Donor Center that persons who are to contribute blood should avoid eating food containing fat contents for four hours prior to donations. Blood with a fat content has been found unsuitable for plasma.

As Sergeant Norval E. Riggs, mess steward of Company M explain it, "Funny thing, but we've noticed that putting blood donors at a special table makes them feel important. We place them at the head of the mess line and, as suggested by the Blood Donor Center, they are served fruit juices, fruit, coffee without cream, toast without butter and crackers. Our blood donors have had a separate table for some six weeks now."

Capt. Thomas D. Pollard, Company M's commander who holds the DSC and Silver Star, laconically opines "The blood donors strut around, as a result of this special treatment, just like men who have just made a jump do in the presence of other troopers who haven't jumped as recently."

At the post blood donor center, all persons who have donated are served immediately after donating fruit juice, sandwiches, and cookies.

Capt. Pollard's paratroopers have donated more than 1300 pints of blood since July 2.

NG Men Will Take Field Training During Summer

An estimated 225,000 National Guardsmen from some 3,500 federally recognized Army units will take annual field training next summer and fall.

The men, from units in the States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska, will take their 15 days of intensive field training in State and Federal camps beginning late in May. A considerable number of Army Reservists will take their 15-day field training with units of the National Guard.

The sixth post - war encampment of the National Guard will be under the overall supervision of General Mark W. Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces; the National Guard Bureau, and Army Area Commanders.

This year, training will largely be on a small unit basis—platoon and company level—and will stress individual and unit tactical readiness in the light of recent experiences. Combat veteran Guardsmen, back from the Korean fighting, will add their personal experience and know how to the instruction.

Field training periods will be for 15 days, including travel time, and wherever possible units will move to and from camps as units. Entire divisions, even when drawn from two or more states, will train at the same sites at the same time. Movement of units, with an estimated 50,000 vehicles involved, will be by truck, bus, train, and airplane.

Maj. Gen. R. H. Fleming, Chief of the National Guard Bureau said that most National Guard units are conducting recruiting campaigns in an effort to reach full authorized strength before field training, and called on all employers of Guardsmen to make it possible for all of them to attend camp this year by granting military leave.

"Business and industry can make a major contribution to National Defense by liberal leave policies for all their Guardsmen - employees," General Fleming said. "A stronger National Guard means a more secure America. Field training is a vital part of the overall training received by our citizen-soldiers. It has already paid off handsomely during the present emergency."

Infantry Doubles In Past Four Years

WASHINGTON —(AFPS)— Size of the U. S. Infantry has more than doubled in the past four years, according to Col. A. R. Diller, Chief, Infantry Branch Career Management Division, Department of the Army.

"We have attempted to give Infantry officers confidence that the branch is interested in their problems and able to help as far as the needs of the Service will permit," said Col. Diller, who served on Gen. MacArthur's staff from December, 1941, to January, 1948.

Col. Diller has been reassigned to EUCOM and completes his current tour Feb. 15. His successor is Col. Richard P. Overshine, recently returned from Korea where he commanded the 31st Infantry, 7th Infantry Div., in the Inchon landing.

Army Seeks Ways To Help Conserve

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —Blanket and uniform fabrics comparing favorably with those currently in use may soon be manufactured by blending artificial fibers with natural wool.

That is but one item in the Army's conservation and substitution program intended to save strategic materials in plentiful supply.

Frank Pace Jr., Secretary of the Army, has announced a substantial savings in the use of critical and strategic materials in such a manner since the program was started in Sept., 1950. Among other materials saved in the conservation drive are zinc, copper, aluminum, nickel and natural rubber.

Citation Praises Benning Personnel For Contributions

Fort Benning civilian and military personnel came in for a pat-on-the-back this week with the award of a citation from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for their contribution in the 1951 March of Dimes campaign.

The citation read, in part "Under the leadership of the commanding officer, they (Fort Benning personnel) responded to the appeal with such enthusiasm that they contributed $7,099 to the 1951 March of Dimes, an increase of 600 per cent over their contribution for 1950.

"It is fitting to honor such outstanding service to the National Foundation in its fight against polio."

Military personnel of the post will receive an opportunity to contribute to the 1952 March of Dimes today when they are paid. Displayed in every organization will be a receptacle for contribution to the campaign.

Collins Declares U. S. Medium Tanks Better Than Reds

FT. KNOX, Ky. —(AFPS)— Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, said recently that American medium tanks in Korea "have been more than a match for the Russian medium."

He explained, to correct a general misunderstanding, why only light tanks were used early in the conflict. Medium and heavy tanks, if used by occupation forces in Japan, would have ruined roads and bridges. Prohibitive costs prevented renovation.

Until we could get medium tanks into the conflict, our battle record was poor. "Since then, however," Gen. Collins pointed out, "they have defeated the Soviet mediums in every tank engagement to date."

The newer Pattons and the old M-4 Shermans have held their own against enemy tanks and self-propelled guns.

Army Set to Battle-Test New Type Body Armor

A new type armored jacket that ballistic tests have shown to be superior to existing types of lightweight body armor has been devloped, the Army has announced.

The armor, that was developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps, will be tested by combat troops in Korea starting next month, the Army said.

Made of laminated nylon covered with a water-proof outer shell, the new jacket is without sleeves. It reaches to the waist, weighs only eight pounds, and may be worn either inside or outside of other clothing.

The jackets will resist a .45 caliber pistol bullet at point-blank range, stops practically all fragments from a grenade bursting at a distance of three feet, and 75 per cent of the fragments from a mortar burst at a distance of 10 feet.

The new jacket is flexible, making it more adaptable to the movements of its wearer than is the Doron jacket, which was made up of several rigid panels set into pockets and separated by unprotected spaces.

Studies of the penetration-resisting properties of the armor indicate that it may reduce battle casualties considerably. With its use it is believed that wounds which otherwise are fatal would be reduced to injuries only, and the severity of wounds incurred would be lessened. The jacket covers all areas shown by Korean battle-wound studies by the Army Medical Service, in cooperation with representatives of other services, to be parts of the body where most serious wounds are received.

Within the next few weeks, 1,400 of the jackets will be sent to Korea for issue to a regiment of combat Infantry troops.

An initial lot will be tested in the Far East early in February by instructional teams composed of Army personnel which will indoctrinate the prospective wearers in the use of body armor.

The new armored jacket is of dark green color, matching the combat uniform. It has two pockets and belt loops through which the cartridge belt may be worn.

However, the jacket is still in the development stage and is not yet available for issue to troops except for test purposes.

administering the GI Bill of World War II but were found to be impractical, the Texas representative says.

"There are no definite criteria by which you can fairly determine whether a person did, in fact, interrupt his education or vocational pursuit," he asserts, "particularly when young veterans faced with military service delayed their schooling."

"Congressman Teague's projected bill bears no such age restrictions," he informs Henderson.

"I hope to establish sufficient safeguard to insure that should a veteran enroll in a school he will receive bona-fide training which will benefit both him and the Nation as a whole," he says. "However, I do not believe that an age limitation is workable."

Congressman Teague authorized publication of the information he gave to Private Henderson, subject to approval by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School and a fellow Texan.

The soldier who initiated the correspondence and elicited such a lengthy and detailed response from the Texas congressman is a 24-year-old draftee from Gary, Ind., who was elected to Phi Beta Kappa before graduation cum laude from the University of Indiana in 1950. He was enrolled in the university's college of law, but his draft board postponed entrance into law school and he entered service instead. Oct. 23, 1950. With or without assistance under the GI Bill his calendar calls for beginning of law studies next fall.

Private Henderson is keenly interested in politics "particularly on the national scale," and that accounts for his intermittent correspondence with legislative leaders on timely subjects. Invariably members of Congress and other top officials respond in friendly fashion, welcoming the citizen's viewpoints, he says.

Henderson's duty assignment is with the Third Army Field Printing Plant.

Deaths Increase Over Last Year

If the off-post accident death record continues throughout the year as it has during the first 20 days of January, some 52 persons will be killed in private motor vehicles this year. This is 26 more than happened during all of last year.

Norman M. Evans safety director, TIC, attributed the sudden upheaval of fatal accidents, to major traffic violations.

Automobiles are dangerous weapons, Mr. Evans pointed out, unless handled in a safe and lawful manner. High speeds, driving under the influence of intoxicants, and other flagrant violations are a major cause of the terrific toll of people killed in motor accidents.

More than a million people have already been killed by motor vehicles since their invention some 50 years ago. With the higher speed cars, the next million won't take as long.

Do You Remember?

DO YOU REMEMBER when Benning was the scene of one of the most significant "debuts" of the year? The Sept. 16, 1943 issue carried the following front page story and a picture:

"Two of the U.S. Army's potent secret weapons, the Bazooka and the antitank rifle grenade, made their public debuts Tuesday afternoon before a battery of newsreel and still camermen on Bickford Range as the War Department officially lifted the shrouds of secrecy which surrounded the two weapons since their invention.

"Fort Benning's famed Infantry Board, which is charged by the War Department with studying organization, technique, and equipment of Infantry troops, staged a three-hour demonstration for press and high ranking Benning officers.

"During the realistic demonstration, the Bazooka, "ugly duckling" among the Infantry's weapons, and the rifle grenade pulverized formidable targets and proved the versatility of the weapons as capable defence for the individual infantrymen against tanks or as anti-personnel weapons.

"Five newsreel and five still photographers recorded the battle-like demonstration for pictorial presentation of the weapons to the public. As the cameramen made their "shots," demonstration troops of the 176th Infantry regiment, under the direction of the Infantry Board, put the two weapons through their paces.

"Prior to the actual demonstration, Col. Ingomar M. Oseth, director of the Infantry Board, presented a chronological story of the development of various types of weapons for anti-tank defense."

Ring Teams Vie Tuesday

Four of the post's seven major unit boxing teams will clash in a carefully matched, 11-bout card at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at Briant Wells Field House. It will be the largest number of teams to show to date.

Making its debut will be First Student Regiment's title-laden squad. Defending post champions, Area Service Unit Provisional Group, also will be on hand. The other two entries are 508th Airborne RCT and Combat Training Command.

WHERE IS IT? . . . Ball seems hidden by too many pairs of legs in this free-for-all during First Student Regiment and Army Field Forces Board Three. Identified players are AFF's Bob Currie, (No. 1), and Orlin Bonstrom, (No. 3), reserve forward for the unbeaten First.

Although this appears to be the best balanced post card offered this season, the matches may turn out to be extremely important for another reason.

It is possible that the Tuesday night bouts will be adjudged as a part of a series of weekly elimination contests to determine Fort Benning's fistic delegates to the Third Army tournament May 9-10 at Camp Gordon, Ga.

Of key interest on Tuesday's card will be the meeting between First Student Regiment's Dick Lehmann, defending heavyweight champion from Fort Riley, Kans., and Robert Colton, ASU's best bet to hold onto the heavy title vacated by their Buck DeCordova.

They will scrap for three rounds of three minutes each, which is the distance for all the bouts.

Kenny Sulzman, slam-bang 508th welter who is a former Miami Golden Gloves champ, meets ASU's William Russell, who lost the best bout of the night in a tuneup between CTC and ASU before Christmas.

Another potentially sensational scrap matches CTC's Lowell Felder against ASU's Rudolph (Shoulders) Chiles. Both are light middleweights.

Chiles has ripped past two straight opponents in tuneup matches. Felder, a dead ringer for a younger Joe Louis, has scored one post win and was disqualified along with Sulzman two weeks ago when both plunged out of the ring in the savagery of their punching.

Other scheduled bouts:

Light heavyweights — James Boyd, First SR, vs. Jack Ifill, CTC.

Middleweights — Leon Hall, CTC, vs. Freeman Thatcher, ASU.

Light Middleweights — George Stampe, First SR, vs. Amos Walton, CTC.

Light Middleweights — Ray Leutes, 508th, vs. Bert Stephens, CTC.

Lightweights — John Espinis, 508th, vs. Charles McKinnel, ASU.

If approval is granted for these bouts to be incorporated in an elimination series to determine Benning's Third Army contestants, then boxing will be slated at Briant Wells every Tuesday night through April.

The fighters would be broken according to their experience into three classes for each of the ten weight divisions. Five points would be awarded winners in class one, for amateur champions and experienced boxers.

Three points would be awarded for winners in class two, for boxers with average experience of ten bouts including six wins. One point would be given winners in class one, novices with one win or no wins.

A fighter winning in his class can step up in class for his next bout. The fighter with most points in each weight division would be Benning's Third Army entry. The team accumulating the most points would be declared post champions.

Three other units are readying teams this week, but will not be ready for their debuts until a week from Tuesday. They are Infantry School Detachment and Second and Third Student Regiments.

Cage Loop Goes Into High Gear

The frothy Fort Benning Basketball League tonight begins its final two weeks of first round play in the double round robin action. Unbeaten First and Third Student Regiments presently have a stranglehold on first place, but the remainder of the ten positions are as uncertain as a rookie in basic.

Five quintets started the week tied behind the leaders with identical 3-2 records. They'll all be jockeying for position, starting with suddenly super Provisional Medical Group against Second Student Regiment tonight at Harmony Church.

The Medics have won two sensational upsets in a row, stopping Combat Training Command Team Two, 55-54, and Infantry night at Harmony Church, and Second Student Regiment against First Student Regiment Wednesday at Briant Wells.

C. T. C. Team One is a much better outfit than its 1-3 record indicates. They lost their first one in overtime and have faced very tough foes since. Young Frank Spaniel, making his debut as a coach with C. T. C. Team Two, will have a real weighty problem in I. S. D. The Second S. R.-First S. R. battle is strictly a family feud, no holds barred.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

THE HARLEM Globe Trotters, famed Negro pro traveling basketball team, this week notched their 4,000th victory (against only 254 losses in 25 years) and I noticed that Reese (Goose) Tatum showed the way with 20 points. That's interesting because Goose, the long - armed, huge - palmed center, got his first chance in basketball at Fort Benning.

Oddly enough, Tatum was playing baseball at the time, with the Birmingham Black Barons. They had been booked for an exhibition game against the Doughboys at Gowdy Field on this particular summer's day in 1942.

The game was rained out, and, Goose and some of the other Baron players hied off to the Old Gym and began fooling around with a basketball. Tatum must have looked good even then because W. S. Welch, the Trotters' business manager who then was skipper of the Barons, promptly asked the big fellow if he would like to come up to training with the Globetrotters that fall.

Goose did. He made the team with his polished style, bag of sleight - o - hand tricks and that ever-present horse smile that has endeared him to cage fans in practically every continent in the world. Of course, there was one interruption; he spent three years with the Army Air Force.

There have been a lot of sports stars at Benning. Some, such as Jackie Robinson and Larry Doby, weren't widely known then, when they went through officer candidate training here in 1943. A few more, like Pug Lund and George Peschner, may not be very familiar to the current crop of sports fans.

But they all served here during the last war, fellows like Billy Johnson, Ewell Blackwell, Clem Labine and Hank Gowdy, of baseball note, and Beau Jack, who left here to go to rags to riches and back in the fight game, Bob Waterfield, Bob Ramkotti, Mike Raffa, Bill Hillenbrand and Bob Ward, who just earned All - America at Maryland. The Benning baseball park is named after Gowdy, the old Giants backstop.

BASKETBALL IS a battle of wits as well as a physical struggle. If players were thinking and had been coached properly on the subject in the first place, they wouldn't accummulate the five personal fouls which generally render them hors de combat.

That's not my idea, but it is a reasonable if rough summary of what Lt. Col. Edwin Harding was telling me. He had just seen our ink-letting of last week in which I opined that there are more things wrong with the five-foul rule than with Russia's attitude.

"A lot of people have the mistaken idea that when two rival players make contact a personal foul has been committed," explained Harding, who has been playing and officiating Army sports for 17 years. "Actually, the book says it is good judgement to overlook some contact. For instance, when two players go up after the ball and they clash, I don't call a foul. But when one man has his hand in there, one the other man, then you hear a whistle."

Harding, who entered the service from Jefferson Military Academy at 17 and played baseball, basketball and football at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., says that constant fouling by a player or team is the result of poor coaching. He contends that too little coaching time is devoted to the rules book and teaching a man how not to foul.

"The object is to outwit an opponent, not run over him. An aggressive player gambles on incurring five fouls. If he's clever he gets through the game without getting five," elaborated Harding. "One of the biggest sticklers for rules enforcement I know is Adolph Rupp, of Kentucky, and his teams do all right because they are well versed in what not to do as well as what to do."

Lt. Christian Dubia, proxy of the Benning officials group, agreed with our comment to the extent that banishing a player from the game is harsh punishment for five fouls, many of which are accidental. He thought that the limit might be increased to six, which is now standard in pro basketball. Maj. Harold Kopp, Combat Training Command coach, suggested seven or a penalty box stint of 30 seconds for the offender with only four men for the offending team on the floor during that time. But Dubia says basketball is strictly a five-man game.

A sincere admirer of the fine caliber of play shown by almost every team in the post league, Dubia says it just isn't so when it comes to reports that whatever foul shots delay the game too much and ruin interest.

"You'll notice that as soon as a foul is called, the official hustles to the shooting line before the player can protest," Dubia points out. "From the time he gets there, the offended player has just ten seconds to get to the line and take his shot."

Guy Who Walked Mile For A Camel Was Piker

Don't be alarmed during the next couple of weeks if you're driving along Victory Highway and a trio of sweat shirt - clad young men keep up with you on foot for several miles.

Most likely you'll just be getting a first hand glimpse of the vigorous training routine currently being undertaken by Fort Benning's most avid Olympic hopefuls.

They are distance runners by trade and by name are Pvt. Victor Greenquist, First Casual Company, Third Student Regiment; Sgt. Lionel Pinn, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry, and M - Sgt. Richard Ellis, Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Brigade.

They talk about five and ten miles jogs like you and I discuss the rigors of walking across the street to the PX for a bottle of soda pop.

It all started a week ago after The Bayonet carried a story on the fabulous running career of Pinn. That got them together.

And it won't cease until they have had a chance to show their stuff — officially — in the upcoming Third Army Track Meet, scheduled here May 9-10, and or until they get the anticipated word to compete with other service distance runners for the right to run for U.S. Olympic team berths.

"We started off at five miles, and it went pretty easy," commented Pinn, a full - blooded Miamso Indian who once had the benefit of coaching from his famed relative, Jim Thorpe.

"We should be up to 15 miles in no time at all," he added.

As if that weren't enough, Pinn just moved his family from the reservation to a house in Midleton, Ga. That's 21 miles distant and gives him an excuse to run like all get out to arrive at the post in time for revielle each morning.

Oddly enough, all of these of the Benning distance enthusiasts hail from the Greater Boston, Mass., area. Or maybe it isn't so odd. That's practically the only spot in this country where they go for marathon racing, a popular sport elsewhere in the world.

Greenquist is a veteran runner. A member of the North Medford Athletic Club in Mass., he participated in the Boston Marathon in 1950 and the Yonkers Marathon in 1951, among others. He will represent the Third Student Regiment in the post track and field events April 17 - 18 at Doughboy Stadium.

Ellis is another veteran of the macadam clan. He was recently awarded a medal by the French government for participation as a member of the U. S. Army Pentathalon team, which competed last year at Antites, France.

Winner of the Cathedral 10 and a half mile road run in Boston in April, 1950, against a field of 94 starters, he is training for the Army 10,000-meter run and the National Marathon.

Ellis is a member of the Boston Athletic Association and has also has competed in the Yonkers and Boston Marathons.

Pinn, defeated Yon Buk Soo, the sensational South Korean runner, over a 19-mile course last year in Korea. Soo, in 1947, set a world's record of two hours, 29 minutes and 32 seconds for 26 miles in the Boston Athletic Association Marathon. He has been in competition since he was 14 years old. Pinn was trained and received encouragement from Jim Thorpe, one of the world's greatest all-around athletes.

All-Army Pistol Team Due Here

Fort Benning Pro Is Thinking Of The Future

Olympic Shots May Drill Here

Candidates for the 1952 All-Army pistol team will report to Fort Benning Feb. 18 for tryouts and both the Army rifle and pistol teams slated for the Olympics may train here.

This was revealed Tuesday by Col. Perry D. Swindler, captain of the All-Army pistol squad.

Col. Swindler said he has recommended that the Olympic and rifle squads use Benning's elaborate facilities for training. He is awaiting word on the offer from Army Field Forces.

Twenty of the best shooters in the nation will be here Feb. 18 to vie for the nine positions on the All-Army pistol team. Three of the candidates are from Fort Benning.

They are Capt. Fred Keifer, WO Robert Knight and WO Robert Van Keuren. Keifer was on the 1950 A-A team, but was on overseas assignment during the 1951 season.

Among the top candidates for the team is expected to be Joe Benner who has been awarded the title as world's champion pistol shot.

Col. Swindler will enter the All-Army squad in the National Mid-Winter Pistol Matches.

Mujica, Rhodes In Monday Bout

Larry Mujica, best professional fighter to represent Fort Benning in many a semester, goes after his tenth local win against Dick Rhodes, 145, of Wilmington, Del., in the 10-round star bout Monday night at Columbus Arena.

Rhodes is advertised as holding a win over Chuck Taylor, veteran Coalport, Pa., cutie who is one of two fighters to decision Larrupin' Larry since he embarked on his service pre career last summer.

The remainder of the 8 p.m. card had not been announced at Press time.

Mujica has shown continually improving form in winning his last three and actually looks ready for better competition than Promoter Fred Ward can afford to supply him in the small Columbus Arena.

Beaten only by Tayler and by Lesliano Larry now has three straight wins under his belt, plus a draw with Jimmy Bivins, former light heavyweight champion. Bivins is in the heavyweight class now.

Mujica has indicated his determination to work up to peak condition for this spring and summer when Ward will revert to outdoor promotions which can accommodate more fans, and in turn a better caliber of foes.

A member of Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment, the manhatten-born slugger has had difficulty maintaining top fighting condition and keeping up his military duties. In fact he claims his normal weight puts him in the lightweight bracket, but service life and food have stepped him up to the welter class.

Pushing an lightweight after promotions from the amateurs, Larry has been fighting in the heavyweight class in order to meet the better boys in the division. He has been matched with Bivins twice, but each time the former champ has come down with the flu.

Mujica had won AAU and Golden Gloves crowns before joining the punch-for-pay set in 1948. He entered the Army in 1949, won the Fort Bragg, N. C., lightweight bauble and twice defeated Willie Hunter, Third Army champ.

He lists six kayoes among his nine local victories.

Gunn Leads Medics Over Profs, 62-59

Provisional Medical Group, awarded little more than a poor second division finish in pre-season ratings, was mingling with the top contenders in the Benning Basketball League today after pulling off their second straight upset.

Coach Halstead Stone's steel-nerved crew survived four ties and six lead changes to upend Infantry School Detachment, 62-59, in a pulse-pounding game Monday night at Brant Wells Field House.

Effectively working a zone defense in the first half, the Medics led at the quarter, 20-7 and held a 37-26 halftime bulge.

I. S. D., which had hit with only 11 of 35 field goal attempts in the first half, found their shooting eye to take the lead in the third period, but P. M. G. stayed in there to nurse a 46-44 lead as the frame ended.

The Professors, using a new double pivot attack with John Yaldisian and Truman Medders in the key slots, went into the lead 55-52 with less than three minutes to play. Clarence Cleavenger hooked in a goal to give the Medics a 57-55 edge at 2:23 and they weren't headed again.

The Medics got their additional spurt from new center Richard Gunn, 6-4, formerly of East Mississippi Junior College. The Meridian, Miss., star gave the Medics the height they needed for rebounds and he hooped 13 points. Veteran Forward Bill Fallon paced the scoring with 15 points.

Medders and Yaldisian each got 13 points for the losers who also unveiled a promising new player. He is 6-2 William Green, former Oregon University eager, who replaces Herb Lindsay. The latter is on temporary Ranger duty in Florida, but should rejoin the squad later in the season.

The Profs new system paid off under the basket once they got the feel of it, but their long shots failed to click all evening, netting only five of 23. The Medics shot almost exclusively from under the net with Gunn dominating the action there.

Both teams will be rugged to handle if this performance is any criterion.

'ASU To Hold Ring Title Despite Losses' - Jones

ASU'S CHARLES MCKINNEY . . . Wants Feather Crown

Area Service Unit Provisional Group will successfully defend its Fort Benning post boxing championship, says Larry Jones. But, admits the Raider ring coach, it will be a tough row to hoe ...d includes an "if"—if he doesn't lose anymore of his men.

Jones waved good-bye this week to his assistant coach, Frankie Majors, veteran pro, and Clifford (The Poor Private) Wilborn, a fine middleweight. They have been transferred to new units.

Minus at least two fighters who won post titles for him last year, Jones is certain his one holdover champ, George Allen, Third Army bantamweight king, will repeat.

His other principal hopes are middleweight Rudolph (Shoulders) Chiles, and featherweight Charles McKinney. Both will see their first real action of the season Tuesday night at Briant Wells.

"One of ASU's other units may pull out soon and if they do I'll lose several good men," says Jones. "I'm confident, but I'm not turning away any new men who still want to try out for the team."

Jones also is counting highly on heavyweight Bob Colton, welterweight Billy Frank, who has been on extended leave, and lightweight Charlie Wright.

Then the ASU coach did a rare thing; he picked a rival, James Boyd, of First Student Regiment, to cop the post light heavyweight title.

"I know he's good," observed Jones wryly. "He fought for ASU last year."

Medic Quintet Faces Loss Of Six Starters

Coach Halstead Stone had the "help wanted" banner flying frantically this week as he fretted over a list of six of his Provisional Medical Group cagers whom he expects to lose within a week.

Presently slated to shove off for roles in the Long Horn maneuvers in Texas in February are Bill Fallon, Joe Richardson, Harry Ziegler, Steve Boyette, Bill Marshall and Guard Haven.

Fallon is listed among the league's top ten scorers and is one of the smoothest performers in the circuit. Go-getter Ziegler sunk the basket that gave the Medics an upset over CTC Team Two, 65-64.

The other three see regular action, too.

"I just don't know what we'll do if we definitely loose all six," moaned Stone.

Third, Rifles Get Wins In Early Games

In last week's games played following The Bayonet's publishing deadline, Third Student Regiment defeated Combat Training Command Team One, 68-63, and CTC Team Two stopped ASU Provisional Groups, 83-82.

It was the fourth straight win for the Third's Generals who were paced by Bruce Mahon, who scored 32 points. Bernard Gill got 13 and high man for the losers was Ben Brown with 19.

The Commanders held a 36-35 halftime advantage; but was worn down by the Generals' height and experience in the second half.

Guard Tom Colyer, a recent addition to the squad, scored 27 points as CTC Two, the Rifles, kept in the van of ASU by a comfortable margin. Bill Hahn's 20 was high for ASU.

Most Improvement Shown By Bruten, Says CTC Mentor

Most improved player on the Combat Training Command Team One quintet is big Sylvester Bruten, according to Coach Harold Kopp.

A six-foot, four-inch end on the Commander football team, Bruten reported to pre-season practice with little more than his height as a recommendation. He started at guard and in the first three games scored six, seven and 10 points respectively.

Kopp moved the big fellow to center to be more effective on rebounds and started him shooting from his finger tips and polishing his taps in. Bruten responded by slicing the cords for 19 points in CTC's last game.

Tenth OC Five Wins Three In Third SR Cage

Highlighting last weeks' Third Student Regiment Officer Candidate basketball games were two wins of 10th O.C. company's five over 11th O.C. 30-27, and its trouncing of the hapless 25th O.C. team, 81-25.

As the dust settled, 10th company emerged as the strongest contender for consolation honors with a two won, one loss record.

Second and Fifth companies meet to decide who wears the crown for the first round of play.

In games this past week, Ninth O.C.'s quintet defeated Fourth O.C. 29-13, Candidate Parson's 14 points was tops for the winners and Candidate Davis scored seven for the losers.

Candidate Higgins swished 14-points to lead his Sixth O.C. team to a 49-31 victory over a fighting 12th O.C. team. Candidate Simon netted 12-points for the losers.

First O.C.'s five lost to 17th O.C., 30-36, as Flatgard scored 13-points for the winners. Grabelsky's 13-point was tops for the losers. In the second game, 17th O.C. lost 37-30 to the towering Sixth O.C. five as Ryan, McCurdy, and Gardner each scored nine points for the winners. Aikins scored 11-points for the losers.

Game Warden Stalcup Goes

Capt. Gene Stalcup, game warden for the Fort Benning Game and Fish Association for two years, has received overseas orders and will leave the post in late February.

In addition to his game activities, during which time Benning hunters enjoyed two of their most successful seasons, Stalcup also won the post skeet shooting championship twice.

He currently is defending post skeet champion and has represented Benning in several outside matches.

Newest addition to the staff, according to Col. William B. Moore, Association chairman, is Sgt. Jones Haney who replaces recently discharged Range Guard Donald Carroll.

Continuing his duties in the meantime, Stalcup announced that the Association is planning a post fishing tournament for early May. Details are being worked out by a committee headed by Maj. Russell Yetter.

The tourney would ir lude plug and fly casting for bass and brim on King's Pond, Benning's largest.

Stalcup also reported that quail and turkey hunting are picking up after a slow start. The turkey season closes Feb. 15 and the quail season ends Feb. 25.

SITUATION NORMAL . . . Sgt. Emil Jerkes, one of the NCO's in charge of activities at Briant Wells Field House, talks over the day's program with Cpl. Robert C. Folwell, lifeguard at the steam-heated, Olympic-size swimming pool. More than 59,000 soldiers splashed there in 1951.

IT'S WARM . . . Despite freezing weather outside, soldiers Robert Smith, William Monig, Carmen Marino and Michael Palazzo find the water just right at Briant Wells' famed indoor pool.

ALL SPORTS COVERED . . . Complete weightlifting and exercising room facilities, as illustrated above by Louis Promiscuo, of Airborne, are among the many exceptional facilities offered at Briant Wells Field House. The three-quarter-of-a-million dollars structure is entering its second full year of use. Special Services record show that 134,938 soldiers participated in activities there in 1951. Among other outstanding features are two four-wall handball courts. A busy place during the winter months, the field house is open from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

508th Mittmen Don't Mind About Being Hurt in Ring

The quicker they get the Fort Benning boxing championships decided the happier will be Hardy Batchelor, ring coach for the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Not that he's timid about the crew he has to enter. At any given moment he thinks he can assemble a squad capable of taking one, or possibly two post titles.

But with the rigorous field training now going on in the 508th, including parachute jumps, Batchelor sweats any time he doesn't have his charges in the gym with him.

"Take one of our better men, Al DeFore, for instance," says Batchelor. "He had to quit practice for a week to go with a rifle platoon in Company F because two of the other key sergeants were injured on jumps."

Batchelor says his men always come back from jumps with injuries.

"They're mostly things you'd never notice, like scratches and slightly pulled muscles. But they are damaging to athletes," he explained.

The 508th's two principal title hopes at the moment apparently are welterweight Jesse Flores and Jerry Barnes. Flores was impressive in winning a tuneup bout two weeks ago.

Rifle And Pistol Club Marks First Anniversary

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club marked its first anniversary this week by electing new officers and recounting an outstanding record of inaugural season accomplishments.

Lt. Col. Aleck MacDonald was named president to succeed Col. Perry D. Swindler, who was voted a permanent membership to the board of directors.

Maj. Warren P. Davis was re-named vice president and Capt. J. F. McCubbin, who had been secretary-treasurer, was elected executive officer. Capt. Russell Wildey was named secretary-treasurer.

It was also announced Tuesday that the first of a monthly series of pistol matches for .22-cal. and .38 or .45-cal. will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the club's range, off Dixie Road at the foot of Lumpkin Road, on the main post.

Highlighting the club's first year success, they have been awarded the 1952 Southeastern Regional smallbore and high power rifle championships. The smallbore tests are July 12-13 at English Range and the high power matches Aug. 9-10 at MacAndrew Range. There will be over 100 entrants in each event.

This is the first time since 1939 Benning has been host to shooting competition of this importance. Some 250 clubs from seven states probably will be represented.

An NRA registered pistol match has been approved for March 9-10.

Numerous other outstanding individual accomplishments have been made during the year.

Col. Milton Taylor has been elected to the board of directors of the National Rifle Association. Six members were picked for the All-Army team which competed in last year's National High Power championships in California.

They are Lt. Richard Conley, M-Sgt. Daniel Huntley, Sfc. Coats Brown, Lt. Earl Bishop, Sfc. Charles Fristik and Sfc. James Brannon. Davis captained this team while Swindler captained the All-Army pistol team in last year's national championships.

Capt. William Stewart, named chairman of the small bore rifle committee, is organizing three teams to compete in shoulder to shoulder and postal indoor matches. A Benning team will be selected from these three for outside competition.

Stewart's group meets Monday nights at the Army Field Forces Board Three 50-foot gallery range located in the third quartel.

Three pistol teams also are being organized under the direction of Capt. Frederick Kiefer, re-named chairman of the pistol committee. Lt. Rufus

508th Team One Holds Half Lead

Fisher Tops Officer Loop, But Can't Beat His Wife

"My big ambition in life is to beat my wife," smiled Capt. Wesley Fisher, and then quickly explained: "In bowling, that is!"

Fisher, commanding officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Student Regiment, may not split maples better than the missus, but he nevertheless is proving himself one of the best keglers in The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League.

He and Capt. L. G. Hofstetter, of the Hospital Administration team, have been tied for top spot in season's individual averages for several weeks now. Fisher's team is in third place in the third section.

Fisher has a background of 15 years of bowling experience and his outstanding achievement was winning the Citrus Belt Bowling Association Championship of California with a 670 score in 1949.

However, he still hasn't matched his wife's individual high score of 276, or the number of trophies she has won. Though both bowl well individually, "we're lousy as a team," he admitted.

"Setting pins in a bowling alley to work my way through high school, aroused my interest in the game," Fisher explains.

After improving his game, he competed in intra - city bowling league games sponsored by businessmen. He later sponsored his own team.

Fisher will soon turn over the league lead to Hofstetter —or any other kegler who can match pins for it. He is on orders to FECOM.

That is the latest chapter in a military career which began in October of 1942 when he took basic training at Camp Wheeler, Ga. Fisher served with the First Division of Europe and was in on the Battle of the Bulge. He was recalled to active duty last January.

WESLEY FISHER
. . . Has Kegling Problems

The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League reached the halfway mark in its schedule this week with 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team's No. One squad setting the pace.

James Crunkleton sparked the leaders this week with a husky 529 series which is fourth best of the year. He had games of 202, 223 and 304. Carl Hooker, from Third Battalion, 30th Infantry, had second best series of 370.

Crunkleton's 304 game stood as individual high of the week while the 508th squad downed 2734 maples for the second highest team series of the year.

Secretary Stan Sokolowski urged all teams with postponed games to roll them off as soon as possible.

Record for high individual game of the season is still held by Sam Fricano with 255. John Trivisonno holds best individual series mark of 663 and best team series of the year of 2798 was compiled by 508th ARCT Team Two.

17 Years Bowling Pays Off For 'Old Joe' in TIC Loop

Like Old Man River, "Old Joe" just keeps rolling along in The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League.

Old Joe is Joseph Bitala, kingpin of 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team bowlers, who currently boasts a 192 season's average as a member of the 508th's Number Two team.

This figure puts him on top of the list in individual averages by a healthy six points.

Not only is Bitala one of the best bowlers at Benning, but he also is one of the oldest, having skipped blithely through his 40th birthday Jan. 15.

A right-hander, Bitala says he "uses a three-fingered ball and I 'hook' all the time. I've never bowled in the ASC tournament but I've been in five Southeastern tourneys, two of them when I rolled on championship five-man teams. In 1943, a fellow named Jimmy Guinn, now a warrant officer here at Benning, and myself took the Southeastern doubles title."

With 17 years of bowling behind him, Bitala has been in the Army 24 years. He also has 64 parachute jumps and was a member of the old 503rd Parachute Infantry Regiment of Corregidor fame.

And he clearly remembers an officer named Joe S. Lawrie as a battalion commander, then as the executive of the 503rd. Today, Col. Lawrie is the commander of the new 508th ARCT.

Brock was re-elected chairman of the large bore committee.

The club presently has 292 members with the rolls still open — and has facilities which include a pistol range, a ten-target, indoor 50-foot range and an unlimited, 30-cal. rifle range.

Last fall, the club began promoting organized shoots for members and their guests. More than 100 persons participated in the most successful of these, a turkey shoot, this past December. More such events are in order.

M-Sgt. Frank Zelinski was named custodian and Sfc. Gnezecki, in charge of maintenance, at the Monday election meeting.

Mitchell Rolls Top Game, Series

Maj. George Mitchell rolled high game of 224 and high series of 584 to cop individual laurels in last week's action in The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League.

Lt. Col. Karlton Warmbrod, rolling on the Defense Group team along with Mitchell, had a 211 for second highest game of the week, and another member of the same team, Capt. Harry Williams, had third best of 208.

Team action was featured by Staff Department's one-pin win over Advance Class Number Two in a section two battle. Lt. John Vollmer paced the winners in this one as he bowled second best individual series of the week of 563.

Maj. Ross Haecker's Hospital Administration team lost three games, but maintained their lead in the first section, while Lt. Richard Crowson's First Battalion, 29th Infantry squad, copped four to increase their lead in the second section.

Operations and Headquarters, captained by Maj. Joe Hennessee, and Evacuation Hospital, captained by Capt. Charles Detweiler, remained tied for top spot in the third section.

Capt. J. R. Freeman picked up two pins on his season's average to go into a tie for second place with Capt. William McNeese with a 174.

CTC Cinder Drills Open

When the starter's gun goes off officially launching the 1952 Fort Benning track and field season Combat Training Command expects to have the jump on its rivals.

Some 15 candidates reported this week to Coach Lawrence Williams to start workouts. More are due after the basketball season passes its peak.

A capsule survey would seem to indicate that the Commanders will shape up strong in the sprints and distance cinder events, but be weak for the middle distances and in the weight brackets.

Williams is not wasting any time in settling the squad down to work. Former coach of track, basketball and football at his alma mater, Bishop College at Marshall, Tex., Williams has competed in numerous events himself and helped coach the Fort Lee, Va., team to the Second Army championships in 1943.

Among his hopefuls are college men Ken Hampton, veteran quarter - miler from CCNY, Bobby Shields, hurler from Tillson College, Tex., Joe Theverd, shot and discus man from NYU and Xavier, and James Bell, sprinter from Indiana U.

Lionel Pinn, much - publicised Indian distance runner, also will be carried as a member of the CTC squad.

Another marathon hopeful is Richard Carlson while milers include Cliff Williams, of St. Joe, Wisconsin, Humberto Ramires, of Houston, Tex., and Oscar Gonsales of Beaumont, Tex.

Among the sprint men are Ray Staker, Elliot Lyons, of New York, Roycee Fortune of St. Louis and Carroll Dickinson, of South Bend, Ind. Carl Booker, of New York, will be a dash man and also try for the broad jump.

Rupert Lambert, veteran pennsylvania AAU competitor, is a pole vault prospect and has recorded one leap of 12 feet, six inches.

Helen Swenson Tops in WAC Sports Play

"Guards don't make points. We're here just to keep the other team from making them," states Helen (Red) Swenson, 21 year old star for the WAC Detachment basketball team.

Helen, who is a teletype operator with the Post Signal Office, began her basketball career in her hometown, Riverfalls, Wisc. She played with the Riverfalls Athletics.

This is her second season with the WAC five.

She was also a member of the champion 1951 WAC Detachment badminton team, winners of the Third Army Tournament and winner of the best Sportsmanship award for basketball.

During the past football season, she could be seen early on Sunday mornings helping decorate the stadium for the afternoon games in which she participated as a cheer leader.

The WAC quintet is entered in the Women's Commercial League in Columbus.

Kid Gavilan, Dykes Clash in Welter Title Bout Monday

Bobby Dykes, rangy Miamian who has won 76 fights, lost only six and fought five draws, will meet Cuba's Kid Gavilan for his version of the welterweight championship Monday night in Miami, Fla.

(The latest issue of Ring Magazine acknowledges Gavilan as American welter champ with France's Charley Humez as European champion, declaring the world's welterweight title to be vacant.)

Dykes knocked out Lester Felton who in turn holds a decision over Gavilan, but the Cuban Keed got his title from Johnny Bratton who stopped Dykes in one round. The loss to Bratton is Dykes' only major setback.

Gavilan has since been held to a draw by Bratton. It is generally agreed that Dykes has been facing a better caliber of opposition in the past year.

Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, Tex., will be non-playing captain of the team.

Marion to Play

Marty Marion, the former "Mr. Shortstop" of the Cardinals, reported Saturday he expects to hold down the position regularly with the St. Louis Browns.

Marion, fired as Cardinal manager last fall and immediately signed as a coach and player by Browns' owner Bill Veeck, said his aching back and ailing knee have stood up under vigorous tests this winter.

Fight Probed

The New York State Athletic Commission has scheduled a hearing tomorrow to determine why the "mismatch" was made between Johnny Saxton, welterweight, and Lavia of Italy. Saxton mauled for seven rounds Friday night before the latter's corner threw in the towel. Saxton was hailed by referee Ruby Goldstein.

Grid to Be De-Emphasized At Academy; Blaik Stays

Football at the U. S. Military Academy is in for a drastic overhauling and probably more de-emphasis, according to a featured story in the Jan. 23 issue of The Sporting News, the international sports weekly.

The Army, according to the story, realizes that athletic competition, with stress on football, is a tremendous factor in West Point life. They do not want to turn out "book-worm officers," but neither do they like the long winning streaks which place over-emphasis on football.

Col. Earl H. (Red) Blaik is to remain as coach.

Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen, coach of the Kansas Jayhawks basketball team which is currently rated among the nation top five teams, says the way to curb the subsidizing of college athletes is to hold the coaches personally responsible.

"When an embezzlement is uncovered in a bank, they do not close the bank, do they? No, they fire the cashier or the teller who was responsible," said Allen.

Sporting News Briefs: Ned Garver, 20-game winner for the St. Louis Browns last season, has signed his 1952 contract calling for a reported $25,000, an increase of about $7,000. The Sporting News' Rookie of the Year award for 1951 was presented to Orestes (Minnie) Minoso, of the White Sox, by Publisher J. G. Taylor Spink at the recent banquet of the Chicago chapter of the Baseball Writers Association.

Harry Agganis, who gained national recognition as quarterback of last season's Boston University football team, is expected to sign soon with the Boston Red Sox. Agganis is reported equally versed on the diamond and batted over .400 in his sophomore years with the B.U. nine . . . Reports persist that Clyde Sukeforth, former Brooklyn coach, may wind up as manager of Pittsburgh succeeding Billy Meyer.

Full details on these and other top sports stories of the week are available in two editions of The Sporting News, including the service edition, available on post at no cost through the courtesy of Chesterfield cigarettes.

Representing the United States Army will be Maj. Gen. Paul V. Kendall, commander of VI Corps, Camp Atterbury, Ind.; Lt Gen. John R. Hodge, Third Army commander, Navy Lt. McPherson, Ga., and Brig Gen. Branner Purdue, assistant commander of the Sixth Armored Division, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Other guests are Col. R. C. Clark, commandant of Canada's Camp Borden; 30 members of the Georgia legislature's military and naval affairs committee and 15 members of the Rome, Ga., Army Advisory committee.

Arrived Tuesday

Col. Clark also arrived here Tuesday to study training and administration in U. S. Army service schools. The Canadian is scheduled to be on the post for two days to make a thorough tour of The Infantry School.

The Georgia legislators and the Rome officials will arrive Thursday, Feb. 7. They will be entertained at a luncheon at the Officers' Mess and, during the afternoon, they will see a demonstration of an Infantry tank team in attack, visit the Airborne Department and tour the post.

Senate Considers Pay Hike Bill

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The bill proposing a 10 per cent pay hike to members of the Armed Forces remains in the Senate Armed Service Committee. Opening hearings have been completed and a closed hearing is scheduled.

After the bill has cleared the Committee and been reported on the Senate calendar for three days it will come up for a vote.

In hearings to date Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett said that a 10 percent raise at this time was "necessary to alleviate the financial hardships imposed upon Servicemen and their families by the rise in the cost of living."

Lieutenant Skridulis is an Eagle Scout and holds 76 merit badges. Twenty-one are necessary to win the Eagle rank. The Columbus Boy Scouts office reports that the lieutenant is probably among the top in this area, although there are some Scouts that have won every merit badge — 117 in all.

Student Group Wins Contest

Service Company of the First Student Regiment has been named winner of the first annual supply economy competition here.

The unit was judged best at The Infantry Center by an 18-man inspection team from the G-4 section headed by Lt. Col. Francis F. Shipton, Infantry Center maintenance officer.

The company will be awarded a guidon pennant inscribed "Outstanding Company In Supply Economy, The Infantry Center, 1951." Maj. Gen John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, will present the pennant at a regimental parade on French Field Saturday.

Following the presentation, General Church will inspect the company area.

Second place winner was Battery A, 320th Field Artillery Battalion of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. The Military Police Detachment, Section I, Provisional Group took third honors.

One company from each of the six major commands here took part in the competition. They were graded on the condition of their supply rooms, records and equipment, mess hall supplies, barracks, day rooms and individual clothing and equipment.

The supply economy and cost consciousness program was emphasized here throughout 1951. Col. James F. Torrence, Infantry Center G-4, reported that through a series of preliminary inspections, training, and follow-up inspections, many thousands of dollars worth of excess and surplus property was returned to regular supply channels with a resultant saving.

Colonel Torrence said "The practice of conservation of material and the growing cost consciousness of all individuals with in the command has been developing throughout the year.

Personnel Give Generously In March of Dimes Campaign

The 1952 March of Dimes campaign turned into a deluge of dollars this week when the drive chairman announced that $12,433.61 had been contributed by military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning.

This figure, reported by Maj. Hal D. Steward, post campaign chairman, is almost twice as large as the 1951 contribution of $7,099. And the 1951 total was 900 per cent greater than that of 1950.

Topping the list of units to make the largest contribution in the drive is the First Student Regiment wth $2,907.79.

Second place for the largest contribution by a unit went to the Combat Training Command with $2,214.53.

The Third Student Regiment stood in third place with a contribution of $1,779.47.

Total March of Dimes funds turned in by the First Student Brigade was $5,944.26, nearly half of the total contribution for all of Fort Benning.

First 100 Per Cent

Among the First Student Regiment's units to get 100 per cent participation were the Sixth and 17th Companies. Sixth Company houses 160 Korean officers attending The Infantry School's special officers' course No. 1, while 17th Company is host to 199 Marines studying unit automotive maintenance.

Major Steward reported that all units and activities on the post contributed much more than was expected at the start of the campaign.

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team with a total contribution of $1,237.40 was another high contributor.

Two units of the First Student Regiment, the First Battalion and the Airborne Battalion, each contributed $902.34.

The Infantry School Detachment turned in contributions totaling $911.57, while the Area Service Unit Provisional Group contributed $850.28. Not far behind these was the Provisional Medical Group with $536.91.

PX Too

Fort Benning Post Exchanges came through with $152.95, and the Post Engineer Office, which is composed mostly of civilian employees, was close behind with $131.73. The Main Officers' Mess contributed $52.06 and the Signal Section gave $50.75.

Other contributions received included:

Transportation Section, $49.39; Adjutant General's Office, $35.19; Quartermaster Office, $39.67; Army Field Forces Board No. 3, $27.26; Red Cross Field Office, $24.50; Ordnance Office, $20.55; Civilian Personnel Division, $19.40; Public Information Office, $11.73; Comptroller's Office, $9.66, and the Army Post Office, $6.25.

Numerous other contributions were made by individuals directly to the drive chairman.

Graduates Hear Gen. Kendall At Commencement

Knowledge gained as an enlisted man will prove invaluable to an officer, Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall told 132 graduates of the Infantry Officer Candidate School here Monday.

The commander of VI Corps at Camp Atterbury, Ind., reminded the new second lieutenants that "you have all been soldiers — you always knew whether your officers had it or not. Don't think that the judgment of the men of your platoon will be any less charitable than that which you yourselves rendered the officers under whom you have served," he continued.

Gen. Kendall urged the new Infantry officers to "know your men. Know their names. Know their problems."

He told them that as enlisted men they already realized how formidable, even forbidding, rank at first seems to the soldier, even though he may not admit it."

The two-star general paid tribute to the Infantry officer, pointing out that the moral and emotional stability expected of every Army officer in times of combat and stress is a great deal harder to achieve and maintain in the Infantry than anywhere else.

"This nation has imposed in you the same trust and confidence that it has imposed in the highest military commander of the land — not more, not less," he declared.

Gen. Kendall was introduced by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Civilian Utilization Plan Improves Workers Futures

The civilian employee utilization plan gathering steam here is offering better pay and improved career opportunities to more than 4,000 residents of Columbus and vicinity who comprise Fort Benning's civilian work staff.

The beauty of the employee utilization picture is that it will cost less money to run this huge post, declared T. A. Barefoot, chief of the Civilian Personnel Division at The Infantry Center.

Objective of the program is to be a model for civilian administrative units within the military establishment.

The Civilian Personnel Division here has won distinction in past years as an outstandingly efficient administrative unit. In the year just ended Fort Benning's CPD was credited with a record efficiency rating in Third Army's grading of the Southeastern area.

Increased Efficiency

Employee utilization is the particular province of H. A. Rininsland, Mr. Barefoot's principal assistant in the administration of Fort Benning's approximately 4,000 civilian workers.

His task is filling the 1,400 different types of civilian jobs at Fort Benning with the goal of efficient manpower utilization always in sight.

Begins With Recruitment

The utilization process begins before the recruitment of the individual employee, when the personnel administrator consults the post commander and his aides regarding civilian employment requirements.

Once the job is outlined, the administrator analyzes the position and establishes qualification standards required to fill it.

Job applicants then are screened, tested and interviewed. Only the best-qualified are selected and referred to the supervisors of operating sections.

It is the operating officials and not the Civil Service agency which actually hires the successful job applicant, Mr. Rininsland emphasizes. The Civilian Personnel Division chooses the best-qualified few and sends them on to the individual in whose department the position is located, he points out.

The individual worker receives on-the-job training in his section as well as specialized training for more responsible positions.

As in civilian industry, the government pays employees for money-saving suggestions. The worker can add to his pay check, therefore, by knowing his job well and improving the method of doing it. At the same time he commends himself for increased responsibility and higher pay.

Where specialized schooling would fit a Civil Service employee for job advancement, the Army often picks a well-qualified employee and sends him to a training school at no cost to the individual.

Discipline Too

Disciplinary control also is part of the employee utilization plan. Inefficiency or misconduct by an employee can result in punitive measures ranging from a mild oral reprimand to outright dismissal. In a general sense, the punishment is made "to fit the crime," and the worker has a measure of protection against unjust or severe punishment, Mr. Rininsland explained.

When employees leave the Army's service, it is a Civil Service responsibility to analyze the reasons why. Mr. Rininsland says the reasons for an employee's resignation or discharge, when properly understood and anticipated, often can be eliminated. When a trained employee stays on the job, he points out, the government is saved the cost and inconvenience of finding and training a replacement.

"Employee utilization is another step forward in the development of the Civil Service career for the Fort Benning worker," Mr. Rininsland says. "The services of the man or woman who does the job here are appreciated. They are essential. Under the employee utilization program those services will be used and the worker's abilities developed for the benefit of the Army and the individual."

Colombian Army Officers Arrive For TIS Course

"Members of the Colombian Army welcome the assignment to the United States", says Lt. Col. Enrique Paris, senior officer of a group of Colombian officers now attending The Infantry School.

An Infantry battalion commander, Colonel Paris said "we are anxious to make the trip because it avails us the opportunity of studying some new and different techniques in modern warfare that this country is learning in Korea."

In additon to Colonel Paris the other officers who are at the Infantry School include Maj. Edmundo Quinones, executive officer in the Colombian Army Infantry School; Maj. Alfanso Suarez, an infantry battalion commander and Captain Hernando Bernal and Romauldo, Fajardo both company commanders.

The officers point out that all units in the Colombian Army are named for Generals of the War of Independence which ended in 1832.

The Colombian Army is composed of brigades, which include three infantry battalions, one field artillery battalion, and one engineer battalion. The units are built on a very flexible basis so that in any unusual circumstances they may be reorganized.

Upon completion of the course, at Fort Benning the officers will return to their respective organizations.

Dutch Officers To See Atlanta Next Wednesday

Five Dutch army officers, students at the Infantry School here, will see some of Atlanta's historical landmarks as guests of the Lockheed corpration next Wednesday.

The trip, second in a series, is designed to familiarize the allied visitors with American scenes and customs.

The group leaves Fort Benning the morning of Feb. 13 and will spend the afternoon visiting and shopping in Atlanta.

Thursday they will visit the battlefield at Kennesaw, have lunch at Dobbins Air Force base and tour the Lockheed plant. In the evening they will be the guests of Lockheed at a dinner party at the Capitol City Club.

The group is scheduled to return to The Infantry Center Friday.

Maj. George X. Ferguson and Lt. C. Creighton Allison of the Allied Liaison section will accompany the group.

43 508TH OFFICERS ARE SINGLE

Only 43 of the 205 officers in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team are unmarried! One of the latest benedicts is 1st Lt. James C. Brewry, West Point '50, who last month married "Miss Georgia of '51," the former Carol Taylor of Alma, Ga.

Maintenance Teams Begin Making Preventive Repairs

An estimated 75 per cent of the small-item-maintenance work orders will be eliminated by the operation of the newly organized Preventive Maintenance teams, according to Col. Richard F. Ebbs Post Engineer. Three of these teams went in action at Fort Benning for the first time Monday, Feb. 4.

The teams are transported in specially designed trucks that are complete with a representative stock of normal maintenance and repair supplies to be used to replace items that have deteriorated.

The team sent into the family quarters section is composed of an electrician, a plumber and a carpenter, and is equipped to accomplish on the spot all building maintenance necessary with the exception of the more serious type of maintenance, such as the discovery of termites on the premises. Four-man teams are set for the troop housing areas.

Colonel Ebbs pointed out that the operation of the three teams is a big step in the cost consciousness program. The primary mission of each team is to check each building, make such repairs as is necessary, or report promptly such repairs as cannot be handled on the spot. By this, preventive maintenance saves on the manpower that the numerous trips would require. At the same time it keeps the buildings in top condition and therefore save thousands of dollars in big replacements.

In order to accomplish this program, occupants of family quarters and troop organizations are requested to point out any known utilities that may be in the need of repairs or that should be reported by the team.

Included in the future plans for the Preventive Maintenance teams is a stationary team to serve the cuartels and which will be set up in the buildings. Seven other teams are in the making and will go into action as the need warrants. With the addition of these teams, it is hoped that each building will be inspected and repaired about every four months.

Family quarters and troop building areas will be scheduled periodically, and these schedules will be published for all concerned. The time and publication of these schedules will be announced. Although these schedules will be set up, one set of quarters or troop housing will not be left until the full maintenance is completed.

The schedule for the first week of operation includes the family quarters on Miller Loop beginning with 100; Main post troop housing, building 1840 as the beginning point; Sand Hill troop housing beginning with building 3157.

Colonel Ebbs said that these Preventive Maintenance teams are a new innovation at Benning and although the plans are well worked out, success is largely dependent on the families and those in charge of troop housing.

Officer Receives Lieutenant Bars 2 Different Ways

"It looked for a while as though I was to be a permanent second lieutenant," smiles 1st Lt. Boyd T. Bashore of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, one of the few officers to have held both a reserve and a Regular Army commission.

Now assistant S-3 in the 508th, Lieutenant Bashore first was commissioned in the Army of the U. S. in April, 1945. Then after 17 months, he resigned that commission and entered West Point in July, 1946. He was graduated from West Point in the Class of 1950.

Oddly enough, 'way back in July, 1944, Lieutenant Bashore found time to go through Airborne training but between earning OCS and RA commission, then returning to the airborne last May, he has only 27 jumps.

The son of Wilbur E. Bashore, a retired colonel of Perrysburg, O., Lieutenant Bashore found OCS here at Benning and West Point to be "each tough in its own way. OCS sought immediate platoon leaders during World War II whereas the Military Academy took time to improve a man's character and develop him for the 'big' picture as a future Army officer.

Post Generous in Polio Drive

Fort Benning has generously contributed more than $12,000 to the 1952 March of Dimes campaign — the campaign that raises money to fight the dreaded polio which strikes without warning at the place that hurts the most — our children and loved ones.

The drive for this year is over, but throughout the year we will all reap the benefits of the drive. We will reap those benefits in many different ways.

For one thing, Fort Benning's generosity proved again that military people are good citizens wherever they may go. They accept wholeheartedly their part in any community activity — and this community activity is in reality nation wide.

Then there is the satisfaction that the money raised here will help fight polio all over the nation. New discoveries and advancements made in far distance states will prove equally effective in combating the dread disease here and everywhere.

Not all the money, unfortunately, can be spared for research into methods for minimizing the effects of and preventing polio. Much of it goes into treatments of patients already afflicted, and there always is satisfaction in knowing our money has helped relieve suffering.

Another benefit of the drive is the spirit engendered by giving together, especially when there was rivalry and competition. The Student Brigade, for example, had quite a time in deciding which regiment would give the most, but it was one of those contests where no one could really lose.

There aren't many places left where the losers also win, especially where money is concerned. But then money isn't the only big benefit in this drive.

Few if any of the people participating in this year's Fort Benning drive will never receive a single dime contributed on the local scene. But they well know that the National Foundation stands ready as a bulwark against the treacherous enemy of health wherever they may go or be stationed.

Korean Rotation Now Complete

(Armed Forces Press Service)

The rotation of Armed Forces personnel home from the Korean fighting front has worked better than expected. Here's a breakdown for each Service:

ARMY

Every Army enlisted man and officer who on Jan. 1, 1951, was in a combat division or in a direct support unit in Korea has been rotated with the exception of 80 enlisted men, and 201 officers—all of them difficult-to-replace specialists. In all, the Army has rotated 108,018 enlisted men and 5,576 officers who were in combat divisions on Jan. 1, 1951, or in direct support units.

NAVY

No personnel spending their second winter in Korea. A total of 72,000 Navy men have been rotated from the forces afloat.

AIR FORCE

No combat man is spending a second winter in Korea. Air Force combat crews have been rotated from Korea after an average duty tour of six months.

MARINES

All personnel in the First Marine Div. (reinforced) who were in Korea Jan. 1, 1951, have been returned to the U.S.

All personnel in the First Marine Air Wing who were in Korea Jan. 1, 1951, have been returned to the U.S. In all, only 150 Marines—ground personnel with aviation units, specialists, etc., who were in Korea Jan. 1, 1951, are still there.

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense, in a letter to Sen. Richard B. Russell (Ga.), Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said in part:

"I am happy to report to you, on behalf of the Armed Services, that the commitments regarding rotation made to your committee have not only been carried out but exceeded to an extent that we dared not hope or promise at that time. (AFPS)

AFIE Division Has Voting Data

The Armed Forces Information and Education Division is preparing a pbamphlet and poster that will give Servicemen all the facts on voting.

The pamphlet will contain information on qualifications, registration and procedure for obtaining an absentee ballot in any of the 48 states and the four territories of Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. The information will be up - to - date and deal with the 1952 elections.

The poster presents a graphic illustration of the facts brought out in the pamphlet. Both the pamphlet and the poster are scheduled to be received in the field by early spring. They will be distributed widely. (AFPS).

Man Has Identity With God and Other Men

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) JOEL M. WARSING

Halford E. Luccock, Professor of Homiletics at Yale University Divinity School tells the following story and makes an application which we do well to remember in these days when as a democratic Nation we are attempting to continue the God given rights of the individual:

"A traveller in England this past summer reported a little incident in a railway station that throws a beam of light a long distance. A train was about to leave when a woman calling to her husband was heard. "Wait," she cried, "we have forgotten our non-entity cards!" Of course, it was easy to see that what she meant was "identity card" which the workers in factories are required to carry to admit them to the plant.

We may smile at her mistake, but there is much in it to think about. In these days of great impersonal forces running over the earth like gigantic tanks and flattening out individuality, we all carry "non-entity" cards; don't we? That is, we have pressed on us the feeling of being non-entities. What does one person count, as far as making any change in the world's condition is concerned? We are part of a mass. Many forces in the world today have been robbing modern man of the sense of significance and importance.

The Christian revelation of the love of God for each of His children gives to us an identity card! The gospel says to a person: "You are not a non-entity. You have an identity, an irreplaceable value in the heart of God." That is a tremendous gift. Christ is the champion of personality in a world increasingly stripped of personality.

Right on that point there is a high meaning to the common term, "Christian name." Our last name may be Jones, but the Christian name is John or Mary. It is a name, not a number. We are baptized into an identity with God and with man.

A minister last year had two great privileges, the birth of a granddaughter, and the privilege six months later of baptizing the little girl. He had one glimpse of the baby at the hospital. The nurse showed him the baby's number and her little footprint. A baby was a card in a vast card index—No. 2197! But when he baptized the child he gave her a name.

That is a symbol of a central truth of the gospel, that in the mind of God we are not one of the millions of two legged creatures of earth but a child of God. We get another glimpse of that truth in the Book of Revelation: I will give him a new name." The Christian faith gives to man an identity. As a child of God a new name or spirit in Christ. Out of this fact has come the great democratic and humanitarian movements of the world which have preserved the rights of man and the emphasis upon the value of human personalities.

Korea Armistice Hopes Brighten This Week

The outlook for a possible Korean armistice looked better this week. Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckles, United Nations Command spokesman, said he felt the chance for an armistice had greatly improved in the last few days. While the atmosphere appeared to be clearing after the long stalemate, a hard core of disagreement on fundamental issues had been put aside only temporarily. Wednesday the negotiators began discussion on agenda Item Five — recommendations to the government concerned for final settlement of the Korean problem. Red agreement to consider this fifth item was indicative, that "they have hopes of an armistice", said Nuckels.

In Chicago, Secret Service agents masquerading as hoodlums have smashed a counterfeit ring that turned out fake bonds and $3,000,000 worth of bogus bills in four years. Three men were arrested, and two of them remained unidentified. Agent-in-charge Harry D. Anheier said if the names were disclosed it might jeopardize the chances of making other arrests. The ring turned out bills moatly in $10 and $20 denominations.

The presidential campaign for 1952 was begining to move into high gear as Republican leaders laid down a barrage against the Truman administration charging the Democrats with fostering inflation and corruption at home and a military stalemate in Korea. At a Lincoln Day rally in Washington, 15 speakers in a row attacked the administration and called for a change in the government.

Newbold Morris set up headquarters as President Truman's special anticorruption sleuth in Washington with a pledge against secrecy. The wealthy New York lawyer told newsmen that if his investigations turn up any scandals in the government, they will be announced promptly. He said his investigation would seek to expose wrong-doing in the government even if it reached into the highest echelons.

On The Bookshelf

By BOYD HENTON

If the 1953 crop of books continues in the significant vein of the preceeding year, we have great things in store.

Last year, the literary output included such books as CLOSING THE RING, the fifth in the World War II series by Winston Churchill; THE SEA AROUND US, by Rachel L. Carson, which was highly praised by Arctic explorer Adm. Richard E. Byrd, and THE FORRESTAL DIARIES.

The critics are already astir over WINGS OF MORNING, by H. L. Davis, who earlier authored the Pulitrer Prize winning novel, Honey In the Horn.

His new book, which was chosen as Book-of-the-Month in January is a novel about the West in the nineteen twenties. The hero is a young deputy sheriff who, in an effort to solve a murder and manslaughter, becomes involved with an old codger and a young girl. The book has been widely praised for its originality, humor, and down to earth dialogue.

Two other novels are making headway in their recognition this year. They are JEFFERSON SELLECK by Carl Jonas, and MITTEE, by Daphne Rooke.

John P. Marquand, author of H. M. Pulham, Esquire, writes of Mr. Jonas' book:

"Everybody knows a JEFFERSON SELLECK. . . A middle - aged, middle - class, middle - of the - road Middle Westerner. Sinclair Lewis labored in the same vineyard 25 years ago with Babbitt, but Jonas' Selleck is a 1950 model against a 1950 background."

The book uses a literary "device" but in the hands of a mature novelist, it, isn't offensive. He tells his life into a recording machine for his own amusement, but the things he tells reveal his whole philosophy of life.

And Miss Rooke's MITTEE is a story of a high - spirited Afrikander school teacher in the South African plains of lions and other wild animals.

The setting is on the eve of the Boer War. Dorothy Canfield Fisher writes "that marvelous ending, so entirely different from what any experience novel reader would expect."

Both books ar worth reading.

Do You Remember?

DO YOU REMEMBER when a famous old-timer stopped at Benning on his way to Florida? He was previously stationed here during World War II. The March 17, 1948 issue of the Bayonet carried the story of Hank Gowdy's visit as follows:

"A grand old baseball figure, who was the Infantry Center athletic officer during World War II years, and in whose honor the Fort Benning baseball park was named, stopped here for a surprise short visit on his way to Florida.

"Harry (Hank) Gowdy, now a junior assistant to Hank Greenburg vice-president of the world champion Cleveland Indians, whose career in major league ball dates back to 1910, visited the post while en route to the club's training camp.

"Gowdy, who retired to Old Goldenrod in 1935 by naming is new baseball park Gowdy field in his honor, because he was the first major league baseball player to enlist in World War I.

"Hank was on the Boston Braves 'wonder team' of 1914 which occupied the cellar until July then surged ahead to take the National league pennant and went on to cop the world series in four straight games. Gowdy turned out to be the hero for the series by racking up the incredibly high batting average of .565 for the series.

"I was very lucky", says Hank in speaking of the event, "for four days they kept throwing the ball where I had my bat."

It's nice to think back to the good old horse and buggy days when grandma drove the horse and sister sat in the buggy.

Do you think there is anything else you can do with it?

Benning Doubles Scrap Aim

Drive Nets 2,000 Tons Of Old Metal

Fort Benning salvage crews topped their goal in the scrap metal drive by an even 100 per cent by collecting 2,000 tons of cast-off metal.

The crews, which were from the Installation Property Disposal Division, finished the drive last Thursday.

Fort Benning chairman was Col. Ivan W. Parr, Infantry Center quartermaster.

Although most of the articles collected will be melted down and converted into new products, several items were found to be usable.

A collection of 400 oxygen cylinders will be refilled instead of discarded. They will save the government approximately $28 apiece, according to 1st Lt. Charles S. Levenburg, co-chairman of the drive.

All Fort Benning units participated in the scrap metal project. One unit, the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, collected a record 75 gross tons.

Chief source for the metal was trucks, tanks and automobiles that had outlived their usefulness and had been relegated to training areas as targets for firing practice.

Units Cooperate

These shattered metal hulks were brought in from their exile by cooperating Army units. The 550th Tank Company offered its tank recovery equipment to move the discarded track vehicles to places where they could be dismantled for shipment. One track vehicle weighed 45 tons.

Wrecker service was supplied by Post Ordnance and the Engineer Section used special equipment for hauling items too large to be carried in trucks.

As a safety precaution, men from the Ordnance Ammunition Section, under the direction of Capt. Joseph A. Pollack, inspected all explosive containers to make sure they were harmless.

Much of the collecting was done on week ends and off-duty hours, to avoid conflict with work schedules and training programs.

The Fort Benning scrap metal drive is part of a nation-wide program, Lieutenant Levenburg explained. "New steel-making capacity is constantly being enlarged, and additional metal is needed to keep the mills operating. Last year it was approximately 32,500,000 tons and this year an additional 3,000,000 tons will be needed for military and civilian production," he declared.

Greater Return

"In addition to supplying the much needed metal, the scrap drive is useful in another way," he continued. "It takes four carloads of raw materials to make one carload of pig iron, but only one carload of scrap is required."

Lieutenant Levenburg, who was named coordinator of collections for Muscogee county and the Columbus, Ga., Chamber of Commerce at the 24th annual convention of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel this month, said the collection here would continue indefinitely, although the drive is official over.

"There is a dire need for the scrap," he said, "as inventories at mills and foundries are reaching a dangerously low point."

Scrap brought to the proper disposal yard is processed for direct shipment to mills, foundries and smelters. Items are segregated for appropriate utilization and loaded on railroad cars to be sold to the proper using agency, which, in turn, melts, smelts or refines them to be returned to the nation's stockpile.

Students Boost Cost Conscious Program Along

The Second Student Regiment has begun an energetic program to bring home the cost consciousness program to every man.

Capt. Joseph W. Jenkins, commander of 101st Company, claims the lead in becoming the first company in the regiment to go into high gear on the campaign. Displays have been placed in the company mess hall and supply room, giving the cost of such items as cups, plates, sheets, and helmet liners.

Sgt. Joe Zak, 101st Company supply sergeant said "I've noticed that the men don't mis-use equipment quite as much as they used to. Now that they realize how much these things cost, they seem to be a little more careful of their gear."

Capt. William A. Kent, 105th Company commander, reported what he believes to be some sort of record. Since his company reopened the first of the year, not a single loss has been reported. Members of the company have even gone so far as to rake up pine cones and small branches to be used as fuel, according to 2nd Lt. William A. Hudson, company executive officer.

First Lt. Leslie E. Miller, First Battalion S-4, summed up the effectiveness of the program by saying "As a whole, the companies have been very cooperative. They are showing interest in the program. The small savings here should add up to a good saving at the regimental level.

"Getting interest was the first problem," he concluded, "but after that the companies followed right through."

Candidate's First Army Duty Was Served in Navy Fashion

"My first Army assignment was serving on board a ship", says Officer Candidate James Cockrell, 17th OC Company, Third Student Regiment.

Now on his way to becoming an Infantry officer, Candidate Cockrell formerly served as a member of the Army Transport Service as a seaman, helmsman, and Bo'sun Mate.

"Rebel" as he is called by his fellow candidates, first signed in New York after completing Maritime School in St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1948.

A veteran of 15 Atlantic crossings, Candidate Cockrell recalls the time he was serving aboard the S. S. Blue Jacket off Cape Hatterus. A storm whipped up and caused the high-riding, cargoless ship to toss violently. The plates and beams began to rip apart and crew would have abandoned ship but for the high seas that prevented them from launching life boats.

Somehow, he remembers, the ship weathered the storm and made its way through calmer seas to Norfolk, Va., for repairs.

43 Graduate Here From Food School

Forty-three students graduated from the Third Army Food Service School Saturday (Feb. 1).

Pfc. Carroll Hempel, Battery C, 705th Anti-Aircraft Gun Battalion, Indiantown Gap, Pa., was selected as honor graduate of the cooking class. The course is designed to train non-commissioned officers in the operation of a unit or consolidate mess and in preparation of food. Private Hempel was presented a set of carving knives by Lt. Col. John S. Anderson, school commandant.

Selected as top student of the bakers course was Pfc. Andrew L. Reis of Detachment 1, Army Hospital, Ft. McClelland, Ala. He was awarded a bakers decorating set in this course which is organized to instruct and prepare selected enlisted men in preparation of pastry in central pastry shops and organizational kitchens.

Club Tells Winners In Talent Contest

Accordionist Gene Worford played his way to first place in last week's talent show at Service Club 9 in the CTC area of Sand Hill.

The "Unnamed Trio" of Ralph Zorg, Robert Bender and Patrick Cronin took second place honors. Third place went to hillbilly singer Leslie Wyndham.

The next stop for the three winners will be a post semi-finals talent show. The series of shows is designed to discover prospects for the Benning Soldier Show.

CORRECTION

It was erroneously reported in last week's Bayonet that the 3rd Infantry Division Artillery Provisional Group would celebrate its third anniversary on Jan. 31.

The unit referred to is the Area Service (Inf.) Provisional Group and its anniversary was Feb. 1.

Post Soldier Is Serving In Seventh Army Branch

Seven branches of service in the 27 years he has been in the Army is the military record of M-Sgt. William Whitehead, Section II, 3440th Area Service unit.

He just reenlisted for three years. Beginning with the Cavalry, he has served in the Engineers, Ordnance, Tank, Quartermaster, Signal and the Infantry.

Sergeant Whitehead, a native of Uniontown, Ala., first volunteered for army duty at Fort Hayes Barracks, Columbus, Ohio, in 1917 and was assigned to the Tenth Cavalry at Fort Apache, Ariz. Although he was in this outfit until 1919, he did not go overseas in the First World War. His unit spent the time on the Mexican border.

Shortly after his first tour of duty was over, he left the service and went back to Columbus, Ohio, where he was a member of the police force. Deciding this job was too dangerous, he came back into the service and was assigned to the 24th Infantry regiment here at Benning. He called Benning home until 1942. During his years on the post, he was in charge of the Infantry School stables.

Sergeant Whitehead left Benning in 1942 with the 24th Infantry regiment for a port of embarkation. At Fort Mason, Whitehead was taken from the unit and sent as cadre to Camp Stoneman. From that time his life became one of ravel, from Camp Rucker, Camp Claiborne, Camp Beale and finally overseas to the Philippines.

Manila was a city of desolation, still reeling and bad shape from the seige, when the sergeant arrived with 711th Replacement Depot. Sickness sent him back to the United States. After duty in five camps, he was once again sent to Benning.

Sergeant Whitehead claims that he went out to Harmony Church and couldn't find his way back to the post, because the post has changed so in the years he has been away.

He says that the Army is the best place to be and that if he had it to do over he would never have a break in service. He also added that he has no intention of going back to the police force for he still considers it too dangerous.

Elk Leader Sees Benning Hospital During Post Visit

Howard R. Davis, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, visited the Army Hospital here last Thursday.

Mr. Davis, who is making a tour of Elk lodges throughout the southeastern states, talked to patients in the wards and then had coffee and doughnuts, supplied by the Columbus Elks Association, with ambulatory patients at the Red Cross recreation building.

He talked to the Columbus Elks association Thursday night about the blood bank program. "I promised Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett a million pints of blood," Davis commented, "and I intend to see that he gets it. So far this year I have visited 160 different lodges to ask them to do their part."

The Elk official, whose home is in Williamsport, Pa., arrived here from Macon, Ga. He went to Montgomery, Ala., Friday morning.

He was accompanied on his visit here by H. Earl Pfitzer president of the Pennsylvania Elks Association; R. A. Gallager, Tyler of the Gettysburg, Pa., lodge; Judge John McClelland, Atlanta; O. B. Leverett, president of the Georgia Elks Association; Ed Sutton, director of the Aldmore Hospital for Crippled Children, Savannah; John McCollum, Exalted Ruler of the Columbus lodge; Charles Scharfenburg, Esteemed Leading Knight of the Columbus lodge; T. Talbotter, Esteemed Lecturing Knight of the Columbus lodge; Lt. Col. J. Maloney and Roy Nelson of the Elks Armed Forces Entertainment committee, and Bill Slotz, chairman of the Overall Entertainment committee.

OC's Service Shows Variety of Duties

Officer Candidate William Wollett is a former tail gunner in a dive bomber, airologist observer, and has completed airborne, ranger and mountain training since he was called to active duty in 1950.

Woollett, now a candidate in 10th Company, Third Student Regiment, served two years in the Navy during World War II, and saw action not only at Iwo Jima but also in the Philippines Sea battle.

Among the first sent ashore at Iwo Jima, Woollett hit the beach as an airologist observer. "I couldn't do much observing at all," he said, "because air currents just couldn't get through that lead curtain."

Later he flew nine missions over the island as a tail gunner in a torpedo dive bomber.

A member of the 40th National Guard Division, he was recalled to active duty in 1950, and since that time has completed ranger and airborne training here and mountain training at Camp Carson, Colo.

NATO Nearer To Completion

Another step in the formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was taken this week as Adm. Lynde D. McCormick was appointed Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic.

The first step was the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Supreme Allied Commander, Europe. The two positions are at the same command level, and both report to the Standing Group of NATO.

Admiral McCormick's command extends from the North Pole to the Tropic of Cancer, and from Western Hemisphere shores to the coastal waters of the British Isles and the continent of Europe. It also includes Iceland and the Azores.

One of the primary tasks of this command will be to keep the North Atlantic sea lanes open for the flood of men and supplies needed in the event of open conflict and to support General Eisenhower's command in every way.

The ultimate and final goal is to control fully the Atlantic with an integrated Navy under one commander.

508th Says Its Chaplains Near Heaven When Jumping

BY LT. ROBERT W. FEENEY
PIO—508th Abn RCT

The finest set of chaplains this side of Heaven!

That's the lofty claim of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. And the doughty 508th Red Devil paratroopers put forth at least one point to prove that their "men of God" are closer to Heaven — at least periodically — and that is that all the 508th chaplains jump from airplanes.

The four 508th chaplains have 94 jumps among them. The "most jumpingest" is the chief of chaplains, Chaplain (Maj.) Perry Truman Raley, who has hooked up and "gone" on the green light 38 times.

Chaplain (Capt.) Charles A. Meek, former Marine company commander, has 24 jumps and Chaplain (Capt.) Clifford C. Cartee, who holds a private pilot's license, has 19 parachute descents.

The "baby" of the 508th chaplains, who is a priest, is 1st. Lt. Philip G. McConville, who has made 10 jumps — two of them last week — and earned his paratrooper wings Sept. 25, 1951.

Many Field Services

The chaplains themselves believe they hold services in the field more than any other chaplains Stateside because it "seems as though the 508th is in the field all the time. "Hardest training outfit in the U. S." they claim.

Two of the Red Devil chaplains hold Silver Stars. They are Chaplains Raley and Cartee. Both earned the country's third highest combat medal for helping medics evacuate wounded under fire. Chaplain Raley also "earned" the Purple Heart "when I dived into a shell-hole but left one leg sticking up to stop a shell fragment."

Chaplain Raley will be remembered by Fort Benning football fans as the chaplain who acted as cheerleader and led the 508th cheering section. A 38 - year-old, 5 foot, 11 inch 145-pounder, Chaplain Raley has been in the Army ten years and served all through North Africa, Italy, Normandy, Central Europe and the Ardennes campaigns.

"I requested airborne duty when I first came into the Army," Chaplain Raley recalls, "but it wasn't until 1949 that I joined the 82nd Airborne Division, earning my paratrooper wings in March of '49. Originally I volunteered in August 1942 and in 1944. I was integrated in the Army in July 1946."

Chaplain Meek, too young to be a chaplain in the Marines, enlisted as a private in the Leathernecks in November, 1942. Commissioned in April, 1943 he served as a company officer throughout the New Georgia and Guam campaigns in the South Pacific.

"First ordained a minister in 1939 and then, declared too young to be a marine chaplain, I left the marine as a captain in December, 1945 and returned to Richmond, Va., to attend Union Technology Seminary," says Chaplain Meek. "I returned to the Army in September, 1950 after discovering the Marines would take me back as a chaplain, but only as a first lieutenant. I earned my paratrooper wings in March, 1951."

A 170 - pound 6 - footer, the 32 - year - old ex - Marine is the chaplain for the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion of the 508th ARCT.

Lt. General Hodge Welcomes Students To Special Course

Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, Third Army commander, Tuesday welcomed students to the first phase of the Command and General Staff College's special associate course at Fort Benning.

Forty-four Reserve, National Guard and Regular Army officers from the Third Army area are registered for the first three weeks of the nine-week course, similar to that given at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

The officers reported Monday and opening exercises were held Monday morning. Speakers were Col. Wilbur Vincent, chief of the Georgia Military district, Col. Ralph L. Webb, assistant commandant of the school, Lt. Col. Hubert J. Piette, executive officer, and Col. Lewis Pattillo, senior instructor.

REENLISTMENT TOTALS 1,953

Two hundred and eighty seven reenlistments during the month of January brought the total number of reenlistments for the drive, which began July 15, 1951, up to 1,953.

Two EM Retire With Over 20 Years Service

Sgt. Ray Slats and Cpl. Aksel P. Larsen, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section 3440 ASU were retired Jan. 31.

Sergeant Slats, a 21 year veteran has gone on 24 months of active duty at his assignment with the Infantry Enlisted Special Services Office. Corporal Larsen, a 20-year veteran, has reverted to the inactive reserve.

Airborne Battalion Tops Field Forces Test Score

Charley is doing a fine job in the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, the sledgehammer of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Charley is a battery of some 107 officers and enlisted men and four 105-mm howitzers and recently compiled the highest score of 91.55 in passing its Army Field Forces battery test. In fact, only a four-points total separated Charley from Able and Baker, the other 320th gun batteries.

But Charley was the best. This is consistent with its record of not having had an AWOL since the 320th was reactivated last Aug. 1 as part of the 508th Abn. RCT.

Charley's commander is Capt. William P. Brazil, a 35-year-old veteran paratrooper with more than 150 jumps to his credit. Capt. Brazil is one of the three men in the 320th who recall Col. Joe S. Lawrie, today's commander of the 508th Abn. RCT, as executive of the 503rd Parachute RCT in the South Pacific during World War II.

"I was a captain then," recalls Captain Brazil, "and the artillery liaison officer for the 11th Airborne Division. I clearly recall Colonel Lawrie coming up a trail each morning, regular as clockwork at 9 o'clock, to the top of the ridge we were on to check on the situation.

"When I reported to the 320th here, I had another surprise besides finding Colonel Lawrie as the big boss. That was to find M-Sgt. Fred Jones as my first sergeant. Sergeant Jones had started out as a corporal under men in 1946 in the 465th Airborne FA Bn. at Fort Bragg, N. C. I taught him operations work, then moved up to be chief clerk—I was a master sergeant then—of the 82nd Airborne Division and never saw sergeant Jones until I came back on active duty as a captain to the 320th."

He attended schools in most of these places, but graduated from Dartmouth College in Hanover, N. H.—the fourteenth school he had attended.

Benning Receives Donation Praise

Fort Benning personnel were commended last week for their participation in the Armed Forces Blood Donor Program by Maj Gen. John H. Church, the Infantry Center commander.

In a letter to major unit commanders and chiefs of TIC activities, General Church said "Here at Fort Benning the program has been eminently successful. This success can be directly attributed to the excellent response of our military and civilian personnel as evidenced by the fact that we have consistently exceeded our quota.

"I am indeed grateful to the members of this installation for their excellent response to this program. The need for whole blood and plasma is a continuing one and I am sure that our excellent record will be maintained."

MY LEI-EE-YAMA (Sammy Kaye orchestra, Kaydets, on Columbia.) Soldiers returning from Korea have been asking about a Japanese melody heard over there called, strangely enough, "China Nights." Sammy Kaye has recorded the tune for Columbia with English lyrics, an oriental background and a new title, "My Lei-EE-Yama." For the other side of the record the Swing and Sway revives the 1922 standard, "You Know You Belong to Somebody Else."

MODERN SOUNDS (Shorty Rogers and his Giants on Capitol.) A few days ago we were talking with Jimmy Guinn, whose combo plays at Pine Lodge two nights a week. Jimmy says that the style of music is definitely changing, and that if people could hear more of the Shorty Rogers type of music, he thought they would like it. The music to which Jimmy was referring is not "bop," but a style of music which has progressed beyond "bop." The best example of this kind of music can be found in "Modern Sounds," an album just released by Capitol. Included in the album is "Pope," "Didi", "Appropes," "Four Mothers," "Over The Rinbow," and "Sam And The Lady." This album is just about the latest thing in progressive jazz. It's not for dancers, but for listening.

PLEASE, MR. SUN (Bill Kenny of The Ink Spots; Sy Oliver orchestra on Decca.) Band leader Sy Oliver is head of Decca's music department now, and he and his fine aggregation are doing work with some of the entertainment world's greatest show - people. We think you will like this platter and the flip—"If I Forget You." Both are good for dancing, excellent in arrangement and direction, and original in cu[illegible]

GUY MITCHELL

WE WANT TO LIVE IN A CASTLE (Guy Mitchell, Mitch Miller orchestra on Columbia.) Vocalist Guy Mitchell has recorded some good tunes in the company of maestro Mitch Miller, but it is doubtful that this platter will measure up to such smash - hits as "My Truly Fair." But the tunes are good, and the vocal and orchestra work are up to par. Flip is "Women," with Guy Mitchell on vocal and the orchestra under the direction of Mitch Miller. These two sides are good for the juke trade, and it is possible the individual record - buyer who collects Guy Mitchell platters might like the recording.

Airborne Top Sergeant Tough Despite His Small Dimensions

They say he's a tough little bird — and it's not because his name is Walter J. Partridge.

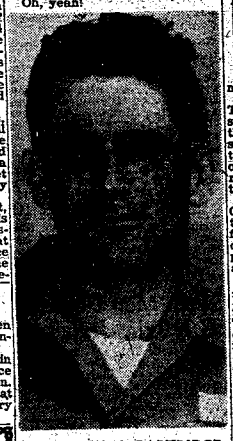
That's M-Sgt. Partridge we're speaking of, grizzled first sergeant of the 508th Airborne Engineer Company of the 508th Abn. RCT. He's a veteran of nearly 12 years service and 114 parachute jumps. Three of the jumps were combat leaps at Salerno, Normandy and Holland as a member of Company B of the 307th Engineer Battalion of the 82nd Airborne Division in World War II.

A veteran of six campaigns, Sergeant Partridge's closest call came "when the Germans were miles away from us. We entered a house in Naples. Suddenly, a time bomb planted there let go. I was lucky. I suffered only three broken ribs."

Now 35 years old, the 5 foot, 8 inch, 145-pound sergeant hails from Cambria Heights, Long Island. Most exciting thing that has happened to him since World War II came when he was twice forced to pull his reserve chute in jumps at Fort Bragg, N. C.

"You have to expect that once in a while in a game like this," he says, meaning the paratroops.

Oh, yeah!



M-SGT. W. J. PARTRIDGE

RADIO NEWS

by M/Sgt. BOB GROOVER

Fort Benning is becoming more radio conscious every day.

A few months ago, the PIOTIC radio branch was the only such section on the post. Then the First Student Brigade instituted a series of "home-town" taped interviews with members of the Brigade, for play-back on radio stations around the country.

Now, the Combat Training Command has a radio production section, and they are going full steam ahead covering units of the Command with microphones as well as with pencils and paper.

Capt. Craig Scott, Sgt. Gustat Andell, and Pfc. William C. Nowland are the "mike-wise" men in the Combat Training Command. They have already recorded talent from the Command for use in the forthcoming Army Song contest. Next, they will record on-the-spot reports from motor pools and firing range pits. You will be notified of the time and date of broadcast of the recordings, and the stations from which they will be aired.

The 51st Anniversary of the United States Army Nurse Corps was celebrated on several radio programs produced in Columbus and at Fort Benning last week.

Maj. Margaret Brannon, chief of the Army nurses at the Fort Benning U. S. Army hospital, was on WRBL's "Helen and Bill" show Friday morning, and a full, 15-minute program was devoted to the anniversary on the "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM, Noon, Sundays) last Sunday.

"Benning In Review" (WRBL AM-FM, 6:15 p.m., Saturdays) was not on the air last week because of technical difficulties. But the same program, with up-to-the-minute news, will be aired at the regular time Saturday.

On "Benning In Review" Saturday will be an on - the - spot report from the Army Field Printing Plant, and two songs, "Blue Skies" and "Solitaire" from vocalist Pvt. Larry Gordon and the Pvt. Dave Johnson combo.

Channel 3, WFBS, has a brand-new disc-jockey. And we bet the boys in the Fort Benning Army Hospital like the new "deejay" because she is May Pigott, a BAYONET staffer with considerable radio experience.

Title of the hour-long record session is "Maytime," and it gets underway at 8:30 each Sunday evening. Visitors are welcome in the main studio of WFBS in Ward 11.

With so many television sets in homes and day-rooms around Fort Benning now, the post is acquiring a new listening and LOOKING habit.

In Company "A", Infantry School Detachment, a large television set brings to the company's members a steady schedule of good TV entertainment on Channel 2, WSB-TV, Atlanta, Ga.

The Fort Benning Army hospital radio station, WFBS, is sponsoring a quiz show on its Channel 3 — and with such prizes!

The winner of the contest receives a three-day pass, breakfast in bed, served by his First Sergeant, his bed made and shoes shined by another sergeant, a date with a beautiful Columbus girl, a steak dinner, and a 1952 automobile to use on his three-day pass!

The contest is open to all WFBS listeners.

Battalion CO Is Named In 30th Infantry Regt.

Visit

It was their first close-up glimpse of a general.

Said Pvt. Fricke, "Gosh, the general sure is a regular guy. He asked me all about where I go in Columbus and Phenix City and where I'm from. And the way the general kept passing things, he sure wanted to make certain I got enough to eat."

Fricke, a trooper with six jumps and seven months in the Army, sat on the general's right.

Pfc. Finniss, who sat on the general's left, exclaimed: "General Milburn seemed to be very democratic. At first I felt a little nervous, just like making a jump but he soon had me at ease answering questions."

Fricke and Finniss both are BAR men in Company L. Seated across from them, as they flanked the general, were Col. Joe S. Lawrie, 508th commander; Lt. Col. John M. Wright Jr., Third battalion commander, and Company L's commander, Capt Roger W. Smith.

The menu included baked ham, whipped potatoes and creamed carrots.

Since they broke bread with a general, Fricke and Finniss have come in for a lot of good-natured ribbing in the company. And they had it right back. For instance, for the evening meal that same day, Private Fricke "commanded" the dining room orderly. Pvt. Gordon B. Mackenzie, to "Pour my coffee, boy!"

OC Platoon Gets Award For Outstanding Work

A trophy awarded for "outstanding achievement" is given to the best platoon in 11th Officer Candidate Company, Third Student Regiment, each week.

Designed to stimulate competition between the various platoons, it was awarded to the First Platoon as a result of inspections of the previous week. This presentation marked the first week of competitions.

housekeeping," the excellent condition of the company areas and the quality of the food served in the messes.

The three-star general, who commanded I Corps in Korea, commented that today's Infantry "is a man's place and the Infantryman is the man who wins the battles."

During his tour of The Infantry Center General Milburn inspected The Infantry School's Airborne and Ranger Departments, the First Student Brigade, the Infantry Officer Candidate School and Army Field Forces Board No. 3.

He made an informal visit Thursday to the Army ROTC unit at Alabama Polytechnic Institute in Auburn, Ala., where the cadet corps staged a review in his honor.

Gen. Milburn returned to his headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 1.

A DRY RUN ON ONE OF THE 198TH FIELD ARTILLERY'S BIG 155'S
A Six Man Crew From Battery A, 198th, Practices With One Of The Unit's 18 Big Guns

41st Field Artillery Ends First Six Months At Post

The 41st Field Artillery Battalion has concluded six months duty as school troops of the Combat Training Command. During that period, the battalion's guns have fired 30,000 rounds; many of them within 250 yards of friendly troops, without an accident.

This "hybrid battalion"—trained to fire not only the 105 mm howitzer but also the 155 mm howitzer—has fired those rounds in almost every type mission.

Intermingled with its normal duty of firing for school problems and routine training have been salutes boomed out in honor of such visiting dignitaries as Gen. Mark Clark, Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, and the late Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny of France.

The 41st boasts nearly one-third of its strength in Korean war veterans, and many more are veterans of World War II. Thirty-five of its officers have seen combat in one of these two wars, and several in both. The combat knowhow of these men is a valuable factor in the polish displayed by the unit.

Dates From 1918

The unit was originally organized in 1918, but was demobilized in 1919. It remained dormant until 1940, when it was reorganized as a part of the Third Infantry Division. With the "Rock of the Marne" unit, the 41st made four amphibious landings and fought through six European and African campaigns before World War II ended.

Deactivated again at the end of the war, the battalion was once more reorganized along with the Third Division. When the Third sailed for the Far East Command and Korea in 1950, the 41st remained behind and was assigned as a school troop unit.

"The primary mission of the battalion," said Lt. Col. James T. Specht, commander, "has been to serve as artillery demonstration troops for The Infantry School. The demonstrations we participate in are designed to increase the Infantryman's knowledge of field artillery. Specifically, the School tries to demonstrate to students the capabilities and limitations of artillery, the principles of its employment as a supporting weapon, and the use of artillery communications as a supplement to infantry communications."

When an artillery battalion fires over the heads of Infantrymen, there are many possibilities for error. Fire commands may go through a forward observer, battalion fire direction center, battery executive officer and chief of section before reaching the gun crews. Deflection, elevation, and powder charges must be exact—and in firing school problems much of the firing is done on a split-second schedule.

The unit has yet to have its first firing accident in this six month period. More than 8,000 tons of ammunition have been carried to the field by Service Battery's trucks, and the average jeep in the battalion has clocked more than 2,000 miles to and from the field. Headquarters Battery, which has probably done more traveling during this period than the other batteries, has not had a single vehicular accident in the last nine months.

PIONEER JOINS 508TH . . . Sfc. George W. Ivy, 32, fifth enlisted man ever to jump from an airplane as a U. S. Army paratrooper, now is a member of Headquarters Company, Second Battalion, in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. One of the few paratroopers ever to make free falls—two from 3000 feet in Panama in 19[illegible] 140 [illegible] In Panama [illegible] with the Airborne Department of TIS.

198th FA Battalion Here For Role As School Troops

The 198th Field Artillery Battalion will soon add the punch of its 18 155-mm howitzers to Infantry School demonstrations.

The National Guard unit from Louisville, Ky. arrived here from Camp Polk, La. and is now preparing for its role as school troops.

The 198th is commanded by Lt. Col. William J. Takacs, a field artillery officer who holds the Distinguished Flying Cross as well as the Air Medal with four clusters. Colonel Takacs was awarded the D.F.C. for flights he made in Korea.

The unit was first formed in 1839 as the Louisville Legion, and won its first battle streamer five years later at Monterey, Mexico. It took part in the Civil War and saw action at such historically famous places as Shiloh, Murfreesborough, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, and Sherman's march through Georgia.

Redesignated the 138th Field Artillery in 1917, the battalion got to the Argonne in France, but saw no combat. In 1942 the unit was broken up and the second battalion became the present unit. It went to the Pacific, and took part in the battles at Leyte and the Ryukyus islands.

The outbreak of the Korean war caused the unit to be federalized once again in May 1951. It was called to active duty and sent to Camp Polk for training.

First, Third Headed For Wire Unbeaten

Unbeaten First and Third Student Regiments each notched their fifth and sixth consecutive victories this week, but it's a cinch that their dual mastery of the Fort Benning Basketball League will come to an end before the midway point in the season is reached.

The two stellar Student Brigade quintets are booked to face each other in the final first half contest of the double round robin season at 6:30 p.m. next Thursday, Feb. 14.

Regardless of which one falls then both theams have already engraved remarkable accomplishments in the 1952 post basketball record book.

Third Student Regiment's Generals were hardly extended in downing 508th Airborne, 72-47, and Army Field Forces Board Three, 106-24, this week. Apparently at equal ease was the black shirted First in stomping Combat Training Command Team Two, 64-46, and Infantry School Detachment, 74-43.

To make it all the more interesting, both teams employ entirely different styles, although some students of the game will argue that the only winning system in basketball is made of equal parts of speed, ability to move the ball and height.

The Generals have the tallest entry in the league. They're perhaps not as fast as the First, but their two speediest men, Forward Bruce Mahon and Guard Barney Gill, the teams shortest at 5-8, are also their top scorers with 130 and 81 points respectively. Third, is their 6-6 rebounding-grabbing center, Bill Gillingham.

Coach William Hacker, who learned the trade at the University of Indiana; always sends his best squad out to compile a commanding first half lead. Hacker is a typical worrier as a coach. Only with the contest practically on ice in the latter periods does he sub freely and start "experimenting."

Comparatively, they bucketed 28 of 46 field goal trys for a staggering .609 percentage in one of their games last week. Less than half a dozen of their goals were shot from beyond the foul line. At the free throw line, the Generals have a point making percentage of .661.

Coach Bob Kinard's First has successfully shot a .383 percentage of their free throws. In one win last week, they made 31 of 62 field goal trys for a .379 average, which doesn't compare with the Third, but is not entirely indicative because the First shoots far more often than the Generals and the charts show they can score from all angles on the floor.

The dark suited First has no stars on the order of Mahon. Their top scorer, Center Vince Dickherber has a modest 73 points, but they have six players who have scored more than 40 points, which speaks well for the team's balance. Not tall overall, the squad employs fast and fancy footwork with a zillion short passes in weaving moves to maneuver into sure-shooting range of the bucket.

Again in contrast to the Generals, they get better as the game wears on. Defensively with a man-to-man guard which sticks like glue, they have been scored against less than any other team in the league.

There also may be a psycological factor in favor of the First. They are defending post champions.

Kinard's starting five looks like this: Vern Griffin and Jack Ralsen, at forwards, Dickherber at center, and Bob Karpinski and Al Constance at guards. But it's hard to tell the difference when he fields his second five. Top subs are John Wilsman, Jay Drake, Orlin Bonstrom, John Wilhoit, Cliff Melton and Bob Jones.

Kinard attended the University of Florida before entering the service.

A couple of contenders — Second Student Regiment and Combat Training Command Team One — gained a few precious strides on the league leaders this week in the Fort Benning Basketball league, and they'll have a good chance to pick up more ground CTC's Ben Brown unseated Third Student Regiment's Bruce Mahon as the top scorer in the loop as the Commanders won a pair to pull into a tie for third place. Brown has 142 points and CTC a 3-3 record.

The Commanders, who led the unbeaten Third Student Regiment for most of three periods before bowing finally, 68-64, last week, meet unblemished First Student Regiment at 8:30 Monday night at Briant Wells in the most important game of the week.

They figure to pick up their fourth win when they meet ASU Provisional Group at 6:30 tonight at Harmony Church.

Second Student Regiment's Rockets also won two this week to take over second spot in the standings with a 4-2 mark. Bucky Hatcheth, their all-everything from Rutgers, scored 41 points to jump into a second place tie with Mahon in individual scoring. Each has hooped 130 points.

The Rockets will be favored in their two showings this week, against Combat Training Command Team Two at 8:30 Friday night at Briant Wells and against Infantry School Detachment Tuesday night at Harmony Church.

Another important game matches 508th Airborne and I.S.D. at 8:30 tonight at Harmony Church. Both have identical 3-3 records for a tie with CTC Team One for third place.

This one can be rated no better than a tossup with both clubs have juggled their lineups in the past week. The winner will be almost assured of a first division berth when the league turns into the long home stretch drive next Thursday.

Provisional Medical Group also will be making a do-or-die bid this week. They're sure to pick up one win against AFF Board Three Friday night, but their big one is against the 508th Tuesday at Harmony Church.

The Medics have lost their last two, losing control of the backboards at the same time, after they had scored two staggering upset wins.

The other teams would seem to be out of the first division battle, although one very interesting contest should be the family meeting between CTC Team's One and Two at 8:30 Wednesday at Briant Wells.

DEAD-EYE . . . One of the fastest little men in Benning loop is Third Student Regiment's Barney Gill, (above), 5-8 guard, who has scored 81 points with his set shots and driving in under net in whirlwind style.

CTC One, Rockets Press Leaders

Second Student Regiment moved into third place and Combat Training Command Team One pulled into a tie for fourth place as they each won their second game of the week in Monday night's Fort Benning Basketball League action at Briant Wells.

Bob Stiles, former semi-pro and prep player from Kenton, O., and All - American Bucky Hatchett each netted 21 points as the Rockets pummelled ASU Provisional Group, 81-65 for their fourth league win.

Despite Hatchett's control of the boards and some careless shooting by ASU, the game was close all the way. Second Student Regiment had period leads of 19-17, 41-25 and 63-48.

Bill Hahn scored 19 for the losers who completed only 26 of 86 field goal trys for a slim .260 average. The Rockets made 30 of 91 shots for a .329 percentage.

Bill Stiles, ex-Kenton (O.) star, made all of his 11 field goals from beyond the foul circle. At one point, the Commanders were working the ball away from the net and feeding him for his long-tom shots.

Bill Fallon and Harry Ziegler each scored nine for the Medics who couldn't handle the rebounds often enough. They made 21 of 65 field goal tries for .323 shooting accuracy against 33 of 91 (.350 for CTC).

Second quarter marks were 19-15, 46-23 and 61-31.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson

IT WAS a cool summer night in 1948, and there was joy on the big bus that carried the Duluth, Minn., baseball team to a game in St. Cloud. Three of the Dukes had just been told that the Cardinals were advancing them to Columbus, O., in the triple A American Association, the last stop before you hang your glove with the parent club in St. Louis.

This was Saturday and they were to leave for Columbus on Monday. Then out of the night loomed a big truck. The truck and bus collided, tumbled over and broke into flames. There were 19 very good minor league performers aboard that bus. Six of them were killed instantly or burned alive. Four short seasons later, none of the 13 survivors are in professional baseball today.

One of the paradexically lucky 13 was Christian Dubia, of the Infantry School's physical training department, who is better known as a whistle teeter in the Fort Benning Basketball League. The six dead that night were seated all around him. He doesn't try to figure how he lived. For ten months they weren't sure he would.

"It seems like a very long time ago now," he says seriously, but without apparent emotion. That in itself is remarkable because his love for baseball is echoed in his every word and the sky was the limit on his future in the game at the time of the 1948 disaster.

Perhaps it seems like a long time ago because he has made it so. Dubia has been a successful high school basketball and baseball coach in Essex, Mo., for two seasons since then. He came back into the Army a year ago and is busy making it a career. He divides his off-duty time between serving as president of the South Georgia chapter of the National Association of Approved Basketball Officials, frolicking with his two youngsters and playing a mean game of handball.

He also is listed on the roster of scouts for the New York Giants, and that is his last touch with the game which he learned as a boy from his grandfather, Joe Cantillon, old Fungo Joe, who managed the Washington Senators in 1925 and later owned the Minneapolis franchise.

Dubia himself played his first professional game at the age of 13, signing a contract with the class D Jonesboro, Ark., team under an assumed name and a jacked up age. They let him go after six weeks, when someone tipped off his true identity, but Chris had satisfied himself that baseball was to be his future. He had bit a very healthy .385 and played a satisfactory first base.

Age wasn't his only foe, however. A ranting little dictator in Europe started a big war and thus it was 1946 before the 210-pound, six-footer made his second "debut" in the game with Union City in the class D Kitty League. He jumped to class B the next season with Charlotte, N. C., in the Piedmont League where he slammed the horsehide for a .316 mark with 24 homers.

That brought him the assignment to Duluth. Now he performed so handsomely—as an outfielder he had a .328 BA and 12 homers—that they had him in the cleanup slot in the batting order and one Saturday night told him that he was being advanced to Columbus the following Monday.

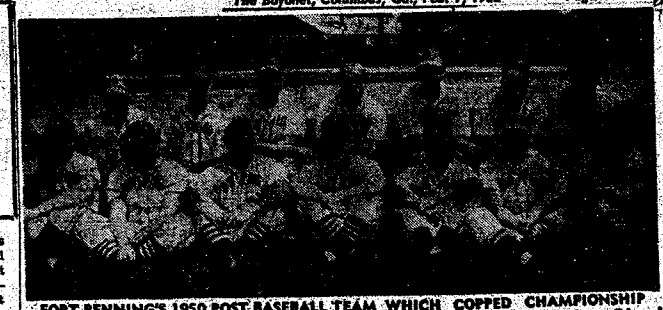
A less formidable man would have resigned himself to a rocking chair or desk job after what happened, but Dubia who had been down to 130-pounds after the wreck, finished out the latter part of 1949 in the coaching job at Essex and in the spring of 1950 he left his Hickman, Ky., home and applied to the Cardinals for reinstatement as a player.

"The first night back," he explained, deviating slightly from his usual booming, self-confident speech, "The club was leaving for St. Cloud again. I was terrified over the thought of getting on the bus. Call it the wrong attitude to have, or anything, but we took the same route as we had been going that last night. I was green, numb when we passed that place on the road to Minneapolis. They had six red crosses beside the highway."

Shortly after, the Dukes, back in their own park, were trailing in a 5-3 ball game. Dubia was frayed mentally and physically, but when he could feel nothing else he still knew how it felt to tie into a fat pitch and this one made up for a lot of things. The ball was still going up when he saw it clear the left field wall 395-feet distant. It brought in the tieing run ahead of him, but it almost didn't bring him in with the winning counter. He felt himself faltering going around second base and shortly after collapsed in the quiet sanctuary of the dressing room. It had been his last hit in professional baseball.

This is a regretiable story, but Dubia would be the last person to wax remorsefully over one of baseball's worst tragedies. He doesn't volunteer information on his background but when asked, he outlines the details simply, and briefly, because they keep him pretty busy at the School and officiating basketball after duty. Or, if you like, he has a million stories about other baseball personalities which he tells with the rich flavor only another ball player can add.

Dubia does have one very pleasant memory from Duluth. It was there earlier in 1948 that his wife, Anne, presented him Chris, Jr., followed by a daughter last year. Around the house they call the boy "Dukie." Baseball ought to be proud of that.



FORT BENNING'S 1950 POST BASEBALL TEAM WHICH COPPED CHAMPIONSHIP

Big Loop Teams Sought For Spring Games Here

There was an even money chance today that Fort Benning baseball fans will see some major of high minor league teams in action here this spring. Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, Special Services officer, revealed Tuesday that his office has been in correspondence with a number of the squads which will train in Florida and play exhibition games enroute back north.

Almost certain to be played here is a game between the Columbus Cardinals, of the Class A Sally League, and the post. This has been a regular spring attraction at Gowdy Field for a number of years.

Chances are all the visiting pros would have to play against a post team since their traveling schedules vary too much to hope for two to appear here at once.

Which brings up the question—soon to be decided—of whether Benning this year will have a regular post team, just an intramural league or a combination of both.

The last post team, the 1950 Doughboys, copped the Third Army championship, which would be a much more interesting proposition this coming season because of stepped up sports activity throughout the Third Army Area.

(A well played intramural league was conducted last summer, but support from the fans was lax.)

Regardless of what kind of program is decided upon, apparently Benning again will have an abundance of diamond talent to display at 3,500-seat Gowdy Field. Four members of the championship 1950 squad are still here.

They are outfielder Joe Smith, pitcher Hal Grinols, and infielders Bill Brooks and Bob Kinard. Among the former pro players who will be back from last season are outfielders Bill Hahn and Chris Dubia.

Baseball is slated on the Special Services calendar to get under way about May 15, an early date which would leave a long summer season for competition.

One of the plans suggested for the program is an intramural league (at unit level like the present basketball setup) with the regimental teams acting as "farm clubs" to feed their better players to a post Doughboy team for competition against outside military, good amateur and semi-pro clubs.

CTC Officer Recalls Hard Luck In Last Olympics

Four years ago, Capt. Donald H. Weihs plodded sixteen miles on a broken ski to reach the finish line in the Winter Olympic Games at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

This week as some of the world's greatest amateur sportsmen gathered in Oslo, Norway, for the 1952 Winter games the commander of Company D, 30th Infantry Regiment, recalled his grueling race.

He was one of a four-man team in the military cross-country patrol race. The Swiss team won the twenty-mile ski event in something over two and a half hours. The Yanks finished last, surprising spectators who expected them to drop out when Weihs broke a ski at the four-mile mark.

Rules allowed replacement of damaged equipment only with spares carried by the team. Weihs had no spare ski.

The race simulated actial ski patrol operations in combat, with the commander carrying a pistol, binoculars, and a map case, and the other two patrollers hauling packs and rifles. All members of a team had to finish within thirty seconds of each other.

Starting at 10,000 feet, the course climbed through the Alps to 12,600 feet and then dipped to lower rolling country for the last thirteen miles.

Midway in the course, racers met firing positions, with colored balloons as targets. Good shooting scores cut vital seconds off a team's time.

"Start of the race was delayed by severe snow storms," Weihs recalled, "but when it didn't let up they started the race anyway. We spent a large part of our time dodging avalanches and high winds.

"The snow jammed our weapons at the firing points, but I'm afraid Americans aren't much for cross-country, endurance tests, anyway."

Weihs, a nationalistic Texan, had to wander from his home state to learn skiing. He has swooped down mountain slopes in many parts of the nation and adapted his hobby to Army life, teaching skiing and rock climbing at Camp Carson until 1950.

Raider Quint Hopes to Top 2nd Division

Area Service Unit Provisional Group apparently has found the key to catching up with the Fort Benning Basketball League and despite their 1-4 mark to date should be a strong contender to top the second division in the last half of play of the split season.

The Raiders showed their best form of the season in losing a thriller to Infantry School Detachment, 69-65, last week. The issue was in doubt until the final minutes, after they had led at the third quarter intermission, 51-47.

A switch in the lineup by Coach Lewis Grizzard accounted for the good showing and may prove troublesome to Combat Training Command One tonight and Third Student Regiment Monday night.

Grizzard switched Bill Ham, one of the loop's top point makers with 86, to center and having the jump on the rebounds resulted in his best performance of the season as he tallied 29 against ISD.

Other changes saw 6-3 Center Erwin Johnson moved to guard, Charles Parish moved from the bench to forward and Don Brown and Don Harper promoted to the first squad.

Service Company '5' Wins 2 in Columbus

The Service Company, 30th Infantry handed the North Columbus Recreation Center basketball team its initial defeat of the season, 62 to 47, last week at the latter's gym.

The North Columbus quintet had racked up 14 victories previously.

Delbert Owens paced the winners in scoring with 22 points while Charles Kennedy hit for 10 to top the losers.

Service Company defeated Riverview, 76-27, last week in another game at the Phenix City Recreation department center.

Owens and Bob Sinclair with 22 points each were the leading scorer for the winners. Culpepper had eight points for the losers.

The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League broke out in a rash of stellar individual performances this week although the team standings remained unchanged. Fifteen games of 200 or better were recorded.

Topping these were Edwin Gonda, of 78th Engineer Construction Battalion, with a 246, followed by William Love, of Infantry School Detachment Team Two, with a 235.

The week's third highest game of 233 pins was posted by Stan Sokolowski, of Area Service Unit Team One, who also had high three - game series of 600. He was trailed by William Dempster, of ISD Team Four, with 589. Joe Bitala, of 508th ARCT Team Two, and Harold Burns, of ISD Team Two, had identical 575 series.

The week's high team game of 953 rolled by ISD Team Two was second highest of the season. The Prof squad also had best team series of 2635.

ISD Splits Pair In Hoop Action

Infantry School Detachment's hot and cold Professors were at the crossroads in the Fort Benning Basketball League this week after last week's action left them with a 3-3 season's mark.

Coach Erwin Fleet's quint made a very good effort in downing a revitalized Area Service Unit - Provisional Group, 69-65, and then bowed to First Student Regiment, 74-43.

The Profs had to come from behind to beat the improving Raiders. They led at the quarter, 20-9, and at the intermission, 34-29 but were trailing going into the final period, 47-51.

Against the favored and unbeaten First the going was rougher. The First led at the quarter, 19-11, at the half, 38-27, and 54-37 at the end of the third frame.

Spark for ISD in both games was John Yaldisian, a holdover from last year's squad, who had been slow in regaining his game. Big John scored 17 and 20 points in the two games to up his season's mark to 92, best on the squad.

The Profs meet 508th Airborne tonight in a very important game for them. They'll be an even-money choice in the contest with the lineup now apparently settled. They got off slow when Center Herb Lindsay failed to live up to advance notices. Lindsay went under going heavy Ranger training duty at the time and now has left the squad at least temporarily.

Taking his place is Bill Green, six-foot former Oregon player, who should be a steadying influence. The scoring burden will be borne by Yaldisian and Truman Medders, a dependable forward with 88 points. Other steadies have been Forward Garland Pinholster with 44 points and Guard Bob Dougherty with 30.

TRANSFERRED

Pfc. Freddie L. Clark, Cadreman in 111th Company, Second Student Regiment, has been transferred to 121st Company.

Devil, Five Set For Strech Pull

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, battling mightily to hold a first division berth when the Benning Basketball League turns into the stretch drive next week, won and lost in last week's action.

They fell before mighty Third Student Regiment, 72-43, much as expected, but downed Combat Team Command Team Two, 64-56, in what may have been a key win.

Coach Henry Ubowski's squad was apparently overawed by the towering Generals. They trailed 17-8 at the quarter, 39-9 at the half, and 62-25 as the third period ended.

Bob Horner's 12 points was high in what only was the Red Devils' worst showing.

Against CTC's Team Two it was a different story. They trailed at the quarter and intermission, 14-12 and 31-26, but showed zest in taking the lead in the third frame, 48-44, and going on to the 64-55 final score.

A good deal of the difference was new center, Larry Ivan, who got his baptism in the Third S.R. game, but broke out in this one with 21 points. An All state high school cager from Rahway, N. J., the six-two artilleryman will be a big future factor.

Ivan apparently was the fifth man Ubowski has needed right along. He has two other good-shot six - footers in Fran Rice and Chuck Cooke. Sparkplug of the team continues to be Bob Horror, level - headed 5 - 10 forward, who has scored 48 points, second only to Rice's 78.

The guard assignments are divided between Gary Matlocks, 5-10 all conference guard from Duke University, Dick Barnes, who played with St. John's unbeaten 1948 frosh team and leader with St. Bonaventure, and Dale Enns. All are holdovers from the football team.

Indiantown Gap has agreed to play host to the annual 3d Army boxing tourney scheduled for May 5-10.

Hospital Ups Lead in Brass Bowling Loop

Hospital Administration jumped its team average for the season to 807 this week and extended its first place margin in the section one competition of The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League.

Carving the pace for the leaders was Capt. L. G. Hofstetter, Jr., who rolled the week's high individual series of 560 and maintained his tie of 160 in season's averages with Capt. Wesley Fisher, of First Student Regiment.

Another medical team, 24th Evacuation Hospital, took over the lead in the third section while First Battalion, 29th Infantry, lengthened its lead in the second section behind the heady maple splitting of Lt. Richard Crowson.

High game of the week of 223 was rolled by Maj. Kermit Blaney, of ASC Department, followed by Crowson with a 218 and Capt. Henry Williams, of Defense Group, with 216. Blaney had second best series of 577, three pins behind Hofstetter, and Williams third best of 563.

A meeting of all team captains in the league is slated at 2:30 p.m. Friday in the conference room at the post Special Services office.

Tenth Company Is Consolation Cage Winner

An eight-point splurge midway through the final stanza lifted 10th OC Company's courtmen to a 38-30 victory over Sixth OC Company, clinching the consolation championship last week in the Officer Candidate Basketball Tournament.

The winners jumpbd off to an early lead which spread to six points, 12-6, early in the second quarter. Sixth Company, led by Candidate Gardner, drove back to within three points at the half. Tenth company led by only one, 26-25, following Higgins' hook shot at the start of the final quarter.

However, the winners, flashing some of the speed that has notched them four straight wins, reeled off eight quickies to clinch the win. Candidate Lorrin Miller racked up 17 points for the winners, while Gardner had 12 for the losers.

In the second game of the evening, Second Company posted a hard fought victory over Fifth Company, 24-16. The win was the fourth in five starts for the victors.

Heilmann and Waner Added to Hall of Fame

Two of the great all-time hitters of baseball—the late Harry Heilmann of the Detroit Tigers and Pittsburgh's Paul Waner—were named today to baseball's Hall of Fame.

Chosen by a vote of baseball writers, they became the 61st and 62nd to be inshrined at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Heilmann, four times batting champion of the American league back in the roaring twenties, died last July 9 in Detroit at the age of 56. He had spent the last 15 years broadcasting baseball games.

Waner—"Big Poison" to the baseball fraternity—played with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn in a baseball career that spanned through two decades, between 20 years and did not retire to Tampa, Fla.

Airborne Dept. Gets Trophy

After receiving the trophy for winning the Officer's Volleyball League championship at an informal party last week, Maj. Donn Yoder presented the trophy to Lt. Col. Richard Seitz, Airborne Department director, Thursday morning. Maj. Yoder made the presentation to Col. Seitz on behalf of the five other members of the team, who were present at the presentation.

For the second time in two years, the officers of the Airborne Department annexed the Infantry School championship, with a near perfect record of sixteen games won and one lost during the nine weeks season. The lone defeat came at the hands of the Staff Department in the first half of the season.

At the end of the first half, the Airborne Department and the Staff Department were tied. In a play off, the Airborne Department bested the Staff officers in two out of three games, 15-6, 7-15 and 15-8.

In the second half, the Paratroop officers wound up the season with a clean slate, winning all nine games. The staff Department was again runner-up in the tourney.

The Lawson Air Force team challenged the league champions and went down 15-2 and 15-4. With an eye to possible further play, the Airborne Department officers are still willing to accept any challenge.

Members of the team, in addition to Maj. Yoder, are Maj. Ralph Kinnes, Capt. Norman Sawyer, Capt. Mike Hogan, Lt. Lonnie Jordan, and Lt. Elmer

Student Officer Combines Military Career, Politics

Lt. Col. William Saxbe is conducting a "Laissez Faire" campaign for reelection to Ohio's General Assembly.

He pointed out that he is not campaigning at all. "If no one opposed against me before Feb. 6," he said, "I would be re-elected automatically."

"If I do get reelected," continued the National Guard officer, "my division commander will let me off to meet with the General Assembly when it convenes next January. The assembly meets only once every two years."

Colonel Saxbe a battalion commander in the 37th Division at Camp Polk, La., is attending an Associate Infantry Officers Advance Course here in Fifth Company, First Student Regiment.

"I could have claimed immunity when my outfit was federalized last November," he related "and that way would not have been called. But I organized the battalion I commanded and felt that I should go with them," Colonel Saxbe began his political career in 1946 while a law student at Ohio State university. Later, after completing law school, he was reelected for a two-year term while practicing law in Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

In 1950, while serving his third term, he was elected Speaker Pro Tempore of the House of Representatives. This position also made him Republican leader in the House.

Politics, however, is not the only field in which the Colonel has led a somewhat unusual life. In his Army career, he has served in five different basic branches of the service, including Artillery, Mounted Cavalry, Armored, Air Corps, and Infantry.

His military career began in 1937 when he joined the Ohio National Guard. During that time he was attending college, and was in an Artillery Reserve Officers Training Corps program. He graduated in 1940, and that same year received a commission as second lieutenant in his National Guard cavalry unit.

His unit was federalized that year, and he was transferred to the Second Cavalry Division. In 1942, he went to the Ninth Armored Division. A year later, he entered the Air Corps for pilot training, and won his wings in 1944.

He piloted a B-26 for a while, then came to Fort Benning as a liaison pilot.

After his discharge in 1946, he joined the Ohio Air Guard, but his unit was broken up and he was transferred to the 37th Division.

Colonel Saxbe said that his chief plans at the moment call for a visit to the Georgia legislature.

He will address the Georgia General Assembly Friday on "Gambling and Liquor Control Laws in Ohio."

SERVICE COMPANY, FIRST REGIMENT, WINS HONORS
Gen. Church (Left) Presents Pennant To Capt. E. R. Konik

NCOs Credited in Winning Supply Economy Inspection

Non-commissioned officers of Service Company, First Student Regiment, have been given the credit by their commander for that unit's winning the Infantry Center supply economy inspection.

The company area was inspected by Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, Saturday, and Capt. E. P. Konik, company commander, was presented with a flag inscribed Outstanding Company in Supply Economy, the Infantry Center, 1951.

Both the supply economy inspection team from G-4 and the Inspection group led by General Church were interested in supply room records and equipment, mess hall records and equipment and the condition of the barracks, day room and individual clothing and equipment.

"The supply room records were the big item on the supply economy inspection," said Captain Konik. "Our supply clerk maintains the best records on the post."

Pfc. Felix Thompson, company supply clerk, says he never lets anything get out without a receipt and he tries to keep a daily inventory.

Sgt. Richard Hill, unit mess sergeant, stated that he tried to maintain the same system. He said, "You have just got to keep a constant check on everything you have."

"Keeping a constant check" was reiterated by the three platoon sergeants, Sfc. Russell Miller and Sgts. Harold Morgan and Sullivan Hatcher.

ISD Celebrates Organization Day

The Infantry School Detachment celebrated organization day on Tuesday. The program for the day included special meals in all company messes, and an organization day parade in the afternoon.

Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center Commander, attended the review Tuesday.

Lt. Col. John Lavin, commanding officer, had with him in the reviewing stand M-Sgt. Wallace S. Scott, Company C, who has been a member of the Infantry School detachment since 1923, and Sgt. William M. Sides, Company C, who joined the detachment last week.

During the review, trophies were presented to the men who made the highest scores during the year firing the Caliber .30 M-1 rifle and Caliber .30 carbine.

It was officially organized at Fort Benning, Feb. 10, 1921 and was designated Infantry School Detachment. In 1942 it was renamed the Academic Regiment, reverting to the name of Infantry School detachment again in 1946.

Composed of seven companies, the detachment furnishes most of the officer and enlisted personnel instructors for the Infantry School. It numbers among its members the enlisted personnel in Headquarters, The Infantry Center, and the staff and faculty officers of the Infantry School.

Percentage Wise

For the statistical minded, Third Student Regiment averaged making .507 of its field goals in its last two games while more defensive-minded First Student Regiment has a .377 accuracy record for its last five. At the free throw line, the Generals have hocketed .720 of their charity tosses against a .655 mark for the Firsts.

House Committee Proposes GI Bill for Korea Veterans

WASHINGTON, (AFPS) — An important House Special Committee charged with investigating the abuses of the education bill for World War II veterans has proposed a new bill to give free schooling to veterans of the present emergency.

The bill introduced by the committee's chairman, Rep. Olin E. Teague, gives basically the same benefits as the WW II bill, but has plugged all loop holes to prevent racketeering and extravagance.

The bill would give men in service since the beginning of the Korean conflict one and one half days of free schooling for every day in service. Maximum schooling would be 36 months or enough time to complete a full college course for a degree.

The payments would be paid direct to the veteran at the rate of $110 monthly for single men and $150 monthly for men with dependants. This would be for a full-time course. For a three-quarter time course single men would receive $80 and men with dependents $110. Half-time students would receive $55 if single and $70 with dependents.

Extra income would have to be reported on the same basis as the other bill with the same limitations for full-time and three-quarter time students. There would be no age requirement and no proof of schooling interruption would be needed.

Students could change their course only once. No schools listed as subversive would be permitted and private-profit schools would have to have at least one-quarter of their student body non-veterans. No avocational or recreational courses would be allowed except in individual cases.

On-the-job and on-the farm training would be allowed. Payments would begin at $70 a month for single men and $90 for men with dependents. These would be reduced every four months until depleted.

Congressional experts feel that this bill is the answer to many of the former difficulties and it is expected that it will be well received when it appears on the floor.

33 Defense Men Visit Airborne Department Here

Thirty-three Georgia defense officials got both a thrill and a chill Feb. 7 while visiting the Infantry School's Airborne Department at Fort Benning.

The visitors, members of the Military Affairs Committee of the Georgia House of Representatives and the Rome, Ga., Army Advisory Committee, braved wintry winds to take a breath-taking ride to the top of a 250-foot control parachute tower. These towers are used in training paratroopers.

Earlier the group witnessed a demonstration of the Infantry-Tank Team in Attack, produced by the Infantry School's Tactical Department. From a vantage point overlooking the simulated battlefield, they saw coordination necessary when Infantrymen and tanks take a hill from aggressor forces.

The legislators were guests Thursday evening of the Columbus, Ga., Chamber of Commerce's Military and Naval Affairs Committee at a party at the Columbus Country Club.

Students Name Officers

Student company officers for field officers refresher course No. 3 have been announced in 26th Company, First Student Regiment.

Medal Of Honor Winners Honored By Range Names

A Fort Benning firing range, and a paratrooper dropzone have been named for two heroes who received posthumous Medal of Honor awards.

Brittin Range, named in honor of Sfc. Nelson V. Brittin, who was killed in Korea on Mar. 7, 1951, is a mortar range adjacent to the Buena Vista Road - Randall Creek crossing above the junction of Buena Vista and Midwest Roads.

Fryar Field, named in honor of Pvt. Elmer E. Fryar, who was killed in action at Leyte, Philippine Islands on Dec. 6, 1944, is an airborne heavy drop zone bounded on the north and east by Dekkar Strip in proximity to 101st Airborne Division Road.

The action for which Sergeant Brittin was cited took place when his unit, Company I, 19th Infantry Regiment,, was attacking a hill near Yonggong-ni, Korea. Despite murderous enemy fire, he volunteered to lead his squad up the hill.

The citation accompany the medal reads in part:

"He ordered his squad to give him support, and in the face of withering fire and bursting sheels, tossed a grenade at the nearest enemy position. Returning to his squad, he was knocked down and wounded by an enemy grenade.

He refused medical aid, replenished his supply of grenades and, undaunted by the enemy fire, hurling grenades into hostile positions and shooting the enemy as they fled. When his weapon jammed, he leaped without hesitation into a foxhole and killed the occupants with his bayonet and the butt of his rifle," the citation reads.

Sergeant Brittin continued up the hill, firing his weapon and throwing grenades as he went. He charged one last enemy position and came directly into a burst of automatic fire which killed him instantly. In his sustained and driving action, he had killed 20 enemy soldiers and destroyed four automatic weapons.

The citation for the posthumous award of the Medal of Honor to Private Fryar reads in part:

"Private Fryar's battalion attacked a strong enemy position, but despite repeated efforts was unable to take the position. Fryar's company was ordered to cover the battalion's withdrawal to a more suitable point, but the enemy launched a strong counterattack which threatened to cut off the company.

"Seeing an enemy platoon advancing to outflank his unit, he moved to high ground and opened heavy and accurate fire. He was hit and wounded, but killed 27 of the enemy and drove the remainder back. While withdrawing to rejoin his squad, he found a seriously wounded comrade, helped him to the rear, and soon overtook his platoon leader, who was helping another wounded man," the citation continues.

"While these men were moving to join their unit, an enemy sniper appeared and aimed at the platoon leader. Private Fryar instantly sprang forward received the full burst of automatic fire in his own body and fell mortally wounded. With his remaining strength he threw a hand grenade and killed the sniper," the citation reads.

Salvage Drive Tops $7,000 In Equipment

More than $7,000 worth of property and equipment were collected last week by the Inspection Maintenance Section of the Infantry Center G-4.

Operated on a "no questions asked" basis, the three turn-in points received Ordnance, Signal and Quartermaster equipment that had a replacement value of $7,175.55.

Ordnance equipment turned in consisted mainly of vehicle spare-parts, fire extinguishers, tools, miscellaneous lubrication equipment, dummy ammunition and ammunition boxes.

Signal equipment included wire spools, switchboards and some very badly-needed batteries.

A considerable number of overcoats, fatigue clothing, footlockers, tent pins, water cans and miscellaneous tools were among the items of Quartermaster property that were turned in.

Collection points were operated on the Main Post on Monday, Harmony Church, Tuesday and Sand Hill on Friday.

All the equipment turned in will be reclaimed and returned to stock.

Brig. Gen. Perdue Tells Graduates of Challenge

"The challenge of the Infantry is the challenge of development," Brig. Gen. Branner P. Perdue told 144 officers graduating from The Infantry School last Friday.

The assistant commander of the Sixth Armored Division, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., told graduates of the associate Infantry company officers course that "present Infantry doctrine has proved sound in Korea, but there is always room for improvement."

He urged the young officers to devote themselves to the development of better training methods and more efficient tactical doctrine.

"There are too many followers and not enough developers in the Army today," he declared. "You must be willing to combat institutional resistance to change," he continued.

Gen. Purdue noted that of the 144 officers in the class only eight were professional Army men. He predicted that many of the non-professional graduates eventually would make the Army their career.

"Many of the military leaders of today came into the Army for short tours of duty and then decided to stay," he said.

Honor graduate of the class was Lt. Donn W. Bulce, Cincinnatti, Ohio. He has been assigned to the 37th Infantry Division at Camp Polk, La.

Red Cross Symbolizes Humanity

The identical red cross symbols used by medical units of the military forces and by the Red Cross have identical origin and meaning.

The red cross on a white background is a familiar sight in most countries of the world today. In all of them it symbolizes humanity in action—people organized and trained to help human beings in distress.

The idea for this symbol and the humanitarian works it stands for was born on the Austrian battlefield of Solferino in 1859. Here, a young Swiss philanthropist, Henri Dunant, saw the carnage and human misery in the wake of a battle between Austrian and French-Italian forces, and was shocked by the lack of care given to the wounded left helpless and alone on the battlefield. There were no nurses, no medical supplies, no water, no shelter — a situation then common in warfare.

Dunant went to work and did what he could, dressing wounds, organizing the citizens of the surrounding territory into groups to aid the wounded, and persuading the people to open their homes and churches into shelters.

This experience inspired Dunant to take steps toward promoting a world-wide organization capable of caring for those wounded in warfare, without regard to what uniforms they wore.

Out of this effort came the Geneva Convention of 1864, which provided by treaty that the sick and wounded in time of war, and also ambulances, hospitals and medical staffs, were to be regarded as neutral, and that it was the duty of the belligerents to collect the wounded, irrespective of nationality, and care for them to the best of their ability.

This convention, to which 11 nations were signatory, chose as their emblem of neutrality and mercy the red cross on a field of white—the verse of the flag of Switzerland homeland of Henri Dunant.

Later, Red Cross national societies, composed of volunteers were formed in each of the 11 countries, and each adopted the red cross as its emblem. Their purpose was "to minister to the wounded and otherwise mitigate the evils inseparable from war," but later also was broadened to include the field of peacetime disaster relief.

Today, 68 countries have Red Cross national societies, their function basically the same neighborly, but organized, humanitarianism that Henri Dunant visualized. Their responsibilities transcend national boundaries. They are bound, by humanitarian agreement, to assist sister societies with funds and staff to the extent of their ability, in time of war, or the wake of war, or in peacetime disasters.

In their present-day activities, some of these societies, particularly the American Red Cross—a national organization since 1905—have gone beyond the original concept of the Red Cross as an organization of volunteers to help people in need. Their programs today also include the training of people in self-help in the fields of first aid, water safety, home care of the sick, crafts for the hospitalized, and occupational training for victims of natural disasters.

Word Travels If Outfit Good

It's funny, but it's true—the word gets around when you've got a good outfit.

An officer drove three Fort Benning soldiers back to the post one night this week. The three were Massachusetts Yankees, young and well-behaved; they had been off-post for the evening but were en route back to Harmony Church in time for a good night's sleep.

They belonged to the 406th Engineer Combat Company and they were proud of it.

"Our outfit got 'superior' in the IG inspection," one announced happily. "Our captain said it was the only one in the battalion." (The 406th is attached to the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion. Both are demonstration units of the Combat Training Command.

"We've got a great bunch of guys in our outfit," said another. "Most of us are from Massachusetts, but there are a few from Dixie. We work hard but we sure have got a good outfit."

That brings us back to what we were discussing a few weeks ago.

When you've got that kind of an outfit—like the 406th—in which men carry their esprit de corps out to the world about them, it follows naturally that you've got a "good outfit."

Not a "hands-in-the-pants-pockets" outfit. No, sir—a chin up, arms swinging, soldier-striding man's outfit. Is that the kind you've got? If not, why not?

Chaplain's Corner

Military Chaplains Essentially Men of God

BY CHAPLAIN (1st. LT.) PHILIP G. McCONVILLE

One of the regrettable misconceptions of the average American of this era is that a chaplain of the armed forces is less than a man of God. The chaplains themselves may be responsible in part because of their eagerness to do all that they can to help everybody, or perhaps because it has been easy or interesting to cross channels or cut "red tape" to assist someone in difficulty. Those in command positions must bear some share of the blame for expecting chaplains to be morale officers and glorified snack-bar hosts. Enlisted men appear at the office of the chaplain in search of pay, leave-time, three-day passes, medication, and any number of objects which properly belong to definite departments of their own. The greatest number of approaches along this line are made by civilians, especially mothers, who have been led to believe that the chaplain is the commanding general of every unit.

A chaplain is supposed to be "all things to all men," but first of all he must bring God to men and men to God, and if he does that properly, then there is little else he can do with matters which concern other sections except channel them over to the proper commands. For a priest, the most important function in his life is to offer the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass; then he is expected to teach by word and example. All clergymen must be men of prayer, which consumes several hours of the day in the lives of many. In order to teach by lectures or by sermons, hours of preparation are necessary for minutes of speech. The chaplain who does not read finds his mind becoming stale.

For long years before his military duty can even begin, the chaplain has been trained to think carefully, to act slowly, to move cautiously. He finds himself in the Army as the only clergyman to whom a 1,000 or 2,000 or even 10,000 men can go for necessary spiritual food. If he is in a unit which is training he finds opportunity to converse quietly with his men only in the evening so that often he leaves his office very near the absolute end of the day and his hours of sleep must be rationed carefully in order for him to continue over periods of weeks or months between holidays.

Operations which are known to be dangerous to life ought to be "covered" by the chaplain who certainly should be on the spot in case an accident should occur. To visit the sick is a most important but a time consuming element in his life and those confined to the stockade are among the chaplain's special charges.

"Every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in the things that appertain to God," writes Saint Paul, and the good chaplain tries by every means to be with his men, to do for his men, to live, and even to die for his men as far as he can, but it all must be in the things that appertain to God, else he is not a chaplain. He may be an excellent recreation officer, or morale officer, or expediter of pay-checks; or he may make delicious coffee or have the gift of conjuring up home comforts far in the field for the relaxation of his troops; he may fire every weapon as an expert and pitch a tent with the best woodsman of the regiment or be found running through problems with every unit in the field—he may be an all-present, all-capable officer, but he must first be a man of God or he is not a chaplain at all.

There is scarcely a chaplain who does not enjoy doing all these extra things, and who would not go "all out" to do anything possible to help anyone in need of anything, but there are only 24 hours every day of our so short seven-day week, and the man of God is an earth-bound creature who is affected by the passage of time as are all other human beings. In spite of his most cherished desires, he cannot expect nor should he be expected to descend from the position to which he has been called, that of a man of God.

Third City Plane Crash Raises Death Toll to 117

The third passenger airline crash in weeks at Elizabeth, N. J., brought to 117 the total number of deaths there. Householders and residents in the area demanded that the $52,000,000 Newark Airport be closed permanently. Angry residents and officials who have complained for years of living under an "umbrella of danger" declared the airport should be converted back into the fields from which it had been fashioned during the last 25 years.

Rear Adm. C. Turner Joy told the Communists Monday that by their own standards Red China is not entitled to a seat at a Korean peace conference. The chief U.N. truce negotiator also warned that if the Communists insist on discussing such "inappropriate" matters as Formosa and other sweeping Asian problems the U.N. may block action on armistice agenda Item Five—recommendations to governments involved in Korea. The negotiators have agreed in principle on two points for a peace conference agenda. They are withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea and settlement of the Korean question. A deadlock has developed on the third. The Communists want to discuss other Asian questions related to the Korean peace, while the U.N. insists that the discussion be limited to Korea.

Harold Stassen, President of the University of Pennsylvania, took his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination to Oklahoma this week. Speaking at the annual Lincoln Day dinner in Oklahoma City, he said "My chances are steadily improving. No one has a cinch." In his speech Stassen urged a modern gold standard and a new American foreign policy for the United States.

In Washington, Rep. Jack Z. Anderson this week accused the Army services of either "colossal ignorance or almost criminal negligence" in spending billions of dollars for military supplies in the nation's mobilization program. The California lawmaker said cases have been found where the military has built up a 240 - year supply of certain items. He said 10 million dollars worth of "unserviceable and uncatslogued items" are clogging the military supply systems. Deputy Secretary of Defense William C. Foster drew barbed comments when he attempted to defend what he described as progress in bringing procurement under a single uniform catalogue system.

Do You Remember?

DO YOU REMEMBER when Benning dog lovors were saddened by the news of an accident that occurred as a result of carelessness? The December 24, 1942 issue of the Bayonet-carried the following story:

"Max is on the road to recovery. Max is the German Boxer dog mascot of the 505th Parachute Infantry, who gained nationwide fame as being the first dog ever to qualify as a paratrooper after completing the required number of jumps from an airplane.

"Max was struck down by a hit-run automobile driver in the gray hours just before dawn a week ago—just as he was about to gain additional fame by making jumps for three newsreel camermen.

"At first his case was believed hopeless. He was badly smashed up. His skull was thought fractured, his jaw, and a front leg were broken. X-rays showed, however, that the skull was not fractured and surgeons of the 505th wired the jaw, set the leg, and gave intravenous feedings to supply food energy.

"From all over the country came messages of condolence to Max. Probably the most-touching tribute of all came from children at the Fort Benning Children's School, who sent over a small Christmas tree fully decorated. Max had thrilled the children by paying them a visit a short time before he had been injured, and this was their way of repaying him for the entertainment he had furnished them.

"Today it appeared that, barring complications, Max will recover. He soon will be fed by a throat tube and his jaw appears on the mend although surgeons of the regiment admitted he may still suffer a relapse.

"But men of the 505th are preparing for the day when Max will be up and around again, his fighting spirit having won a bout with death. And they're prophesying that Max will jump again."

Post Contributes To March Of Dimes

A check for $12,448.90 was presented to Aaron Cohn, Director of the Muscogee county March of Dimes last week by Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, on behalf of the personnel of Fort Benning.

The check represented the total Fort Benning contribution to the national campaign.

In reply to Fort Benning's contribution, Mr. Cohn, in a letter to General Church, said "We wish to take this opportunity to express our deepest and most humble gratitude to Fort Benning for the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis for this magnificent contribution. Your command has set an example of generosity that many could well follow.

"Let me assure you that we could never have met our minimum quota in this County without the aid and support of the personnel at Fort Benning."

Present at the presentation of the check were Col. K. D. Macomber, commanding officer of the first Student Regiment, top unit in the drive; Col. R. N. Woods, commanding officer of Combat Training Command, second place unit; Col. H. M. Grizzard, representing the Third Student Regiment, which took third place honors and Col. S. R. Tupper, commanding officer of the First Student Brigade, which accounted for almost half of the total contributions.

Red Cross Head Predicts 'Over the Top in '52'

"Over the top" in the 1952 Red Cross fund drive was predicted this week by the local field director, John A. Cramer. The campaign begins here officially on Feb. 29.

Mr. Cramer said one of the reasons for his prediction was that the duties of individual committees and chairman are spelled out in writing this year; something that hasn't been done in the past. Other than this he said the campaign will follow the same pattern as in previous years.

"We hope to get 100 per cent participation or better, and are sure, from past performances here at Fort Benning that we will," he said. "We have a well-knit organization set up this year, and the campaign should get off without any hitches anywhere."

In discussing the 1952 fund campaign prospects, Mr. Cramer gave a recounting of the work undertaken and accomplished by the Fort Benning Red Cross Office in 1951. These activities include:

The Fort Benning Red Cross office last year spent $92,661.31 in assisting servicemen and their families. This amount was spent in handling 2,373 individual cases.

Among the mechanics involved in these cases were more than 50,000 letters, telegrams and long distance phone calls.

Other Red Cross activities here in 1951 included a swimming school at which eight men received beginners certificates and 78 men received senior life saving certificates.

The Red Cross bloodmobile unit from Atlanta collected 4,175 pints of blood in visits here.

As a result of a special national appeal for funds to relieve sufferes in the Midwestern flood area last spring, the Fort Benning Community Chest donated $1,000.

Gray Ladies and other volunteer workers donated 7,436 hours of their time in presenting 1,456 ecreation activities in wards and in the recreation building at the Fort Bennng Army hospital.

ASU Plays Important Role Of Service to Fort Benning

The Area Service Unit Provisional Group here plays an important role in helping The Infantry Center live up to its boast as "The World's Most Complete Army Post."

The Group, which celebrated its third birthday on Feb. 1, is a consolidated coordinating and control agency for units supporting The Infantry Center. Among its missions is training service-type units and individuals as replacements for these units.

Liquor Laws Apply to Soldiers Off Reservation

Fort Benning personnel have been advised that the Georgia State Liquor Laws are applicable to military personnel when they are outside the limits of the Fort Benning Military Reservation.

This also includes any portion of the reservation over which the federal government has exclusive jurisdiction.

As a reminder the following pertinent provisions of the Georgia State Liquor Law are listed:

1. Possession of intoxicating liquor that does not bear the Georgia State Revenue Stamp constitutes a misdemeanor.

2. Possession of more than one quart of intoxicating liquor in a dry county, regardless of whether such liquor bears the Georgia State Revenue Stamp, constitutes a misdemeanor.

3. Sale or purchase of intoxicating liquor that does not bear a Georgia State Revenue Stamp constitutes a misdemeanor in counties that have legalized intoxicating liquor. The sale of intoxicating liquor in dry counties is wholly prohibited.

4. Transportation of intoxicating liquor for sale and which does not bear the Georgia State Revenue Stamp constitutes a misdemeanor. The vehicle used for such unlawful transportation is subject to seizure and confiscation.

Some EM to Wear Blue Accessories

The Army Chief of Staff has approved distinctive blue accessories for the uniform of enlisted infantrymen, according to a report in the Army and Navy Journal.

The article said general issue of the items will probably begin in three or four months.

Approved items include a blue rim one eighth of an inch wide around the regular insignia on the service cap; a similar blue border for lapel insignia, and a blue scarf for ceremonial occasions.

Also approved was a blue cord to be worn on the right shoulder by men in combat-ready units.

Upon completion of eight weeks basic training, a soldier will be entitled to wear the blue piping on his overseas cap if ready in use. At the end of the second eight weeks Infantry training, he will be authorized to wear all the other items except the shoulder cord. Once a soldier is assigned to a combat-ready unit, he may wear the shoulder cord.

The items were approved after tests, conducted by the Third Infantry Regiment at Fort Myer, Va. and Fort McNair, Washington, D. C. Comments of soldiers in the regiment weighed heavily in the decision to adopt or retain certain items and discard others.

BENNING RADIO NEWS
By M-Sgt. BOB GROOVER

Last week in this column, you were informed that the Army Field Printing Plant would be featured on "Benning In Review" (WRBL AM-FM, 6:15 p.m., Saturdays) for last week. Then when the program came along, you actually heard the Airborne Department featured on the show. There is a reason, and we would like to tell you.

An on-the-spot recording was made in the Army Field Printing Plant a few days ago, and included in the recorded "Benning In Review" show for week before last. But the tape was inadvertently misplaced. Consequently, "Benning In Review" was not heard at all that Saturday.

It was thought that the tape could be recovered, and that the Army Field Printing Plant portion could be included in "Benning In Review" for last Saturday. But the recording was not recovered, hence the substitution of the material on the Airborne Department.

Our apologies to the Army Field Printing Plant. Perhaps we can again record at the Plant. If we do so, you will be so notified in this column.

A complete run-down on the Fort Benning Service Clubs held the spot-light on "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM, Noon, Sundays) last Sunday. The voices of some of the hostesses were heard on the show, as was a stirring rendition of "Warsaw Concerto" by Pvt. Tom Marshall, South Orange, New Jersey.

Col. R. C. Clark, commandant of Canada's Camp Borden, was at Fort Benning when he heard of King George's death. So right away he was asked to visit the PIO-TIC recording studio to give his reactions to the news.

The recording was used on "Benning News Parade" (WDAK 5:30 p.m., Saturdays) last week.

Colonel Clark said he was shocked by the news, as he and all Canadians believed him to be in good health, and ready to depart for a trip to South Africa.

Sports writer, Cpl. Charlie Johnson is a regular feature on "Benning News Parade" now, so you sports-minded listeners tune in to "Benning News Parade" for a complete run-down on Fort Benning sports.

To WFBS station manager Sgt. Murray Pendleton, just talking over a microphone and playing records is not enough entertainment for his listeners.

The sergeant is constructing a patio adjacent to the WFBS studio in Ward A-11, complete with loud-speakers, beach umbrellas, easy chairs, and soft-drink vending machines. The work has just started, but flowers and shrubbery have already been planted.

By the time the big-league baseball games come alone, the patio should be completed and ready for occupancy.

First Lt. Tom Brownlee left the radio section, PIO-TIC, this week, to attend a course of The Infantry School. The lieutenant had been with the radio section for quite a few months, and during that time had written, produced, and announced many radio programs aired from stations in Columbus.

Defense Department Tells Freedom Crusade Purpose

The Department of Defense has issued a memorandum explaining the status of Crusade for Freedom, a group set up to provide funds for beaming radio broadcasts behind the Iron Curtain.

The statement said "Although many leaders in goverment and public life are lending their support to the Crusade, the movement is not sponsored by the government, nor is it identified, either directly or indirectly, with the government.

"The Crusade is entirely an effort on the part of Americans as private citizens to give aid and comfort to the millions of people in other countries who have lost their freedom but not their hope of regaining it. The program represents a strong popular effort, truly in the American tradition, led by outstanding citizens with the vision, faith and initiative which inspire courage among all freedom loving people.

"As individual citizens, military and civilian personnel . . . may take an active personal interest in the Crusade for Freedom and may be encouraged to contribute, without compulsion, financially or otherwise.

"Requests for Armed Forces assistance in connection with shows, parades, rallies and ceremonies designed to promote public participation in the Crusade must be evaluated in the same light as other proposals for Service participation in public events under existing policies and regulations."

ROK Officers Tour Airborne Dept.

Republic of Korea Army officers training here will tour The Infantry School's Airborne Department today.

The 163 ROK Infantrymen first will get an orientation on airborne training methods. They then will visit the ground training area to see students receiving preliminary instruction and physical training. At the tower area they will see paratrooper trainees making free falls from 250-foot towers and practicing exits from mock aircraft planes 34 feet above the ground.

The Koreans also will have an opportunity to learn what parachute jumping is like by dropping in the buddy seat from the 250-foot control tower.

Later in the morning they will watch novice paratroopers at Lee Field make one of the five jumps required to qualify as parachutists.

Col. Green's Son Ends Year of Med Residency

Capt. R. E. Green, son of Col. M. M. Green, commanding officer, Fort Benning Army Hospital, has completed his first year of residency training at Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif.

Captain Green's training is part of the Army's program of career advancement for medical personnel. Upon completion of three year's residency training, he will be qualified for certification in his medical specialty of general surgery.

New Fiscal Officer Arrives From 3rd Army Command

Lt. Col. Norris Shealy has been named Infantry Center fiscal officer, replacing Col. Robert H. Bradshaw who has been appointed chief of the Army Audit Agency's regional office in San Francisco, Calif.

Colonel Shealy came here from Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., where he was chief of the Manpower Branch, Office of the Comptroller.

A native of Montgomery, Ala., he enlisted in the Alabama National Guard in November, 1939. He was called to extended active duty in October, 1940, as a first lieutenant in the Finance Corps.

During World War II Colonel Shealy was finance officer for headquarters of the European Division, Air Transport Command, and of the Southeastern Flying Training Command at Maxwell Field, Ala.

As finance officer for the Separation Center at Chanute Field Ill., in 1945-46, he was awarded the Army Commendation Ribbon.

Prior to his assignment at Fort McPherson, Colonel Shealy was budget fiscal officer for the Marianas Bonins Command headquarters on Guam.

Colonel Shealy received his bachelor's degree in law from Jones University Law School in Montgomery, Ala., in 1938. He also studied accounting at Jones University and took graduate work in law at Woodrow Wilson College of Law in Atlanta, Ga. He was employed by the department of industrial relations for the state of Alabama before coming on active duty with the Army.

The new fiscal officer attended the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the Army Finance School, St. Louis, Mo.

Ex-Sailor Officer Candidate Has Visited All 7 Continents

Officer Candidate Walter Appel, Fifth Officer Candidate Company, Third Student Regiment, is a Navy veteran who has visited all seven continents.

Now well on the way to becoming an Infantry platoon leader, OC Appel reflects on his Naval career with the explanation, "The Navy is part of my past and there's no use for longing for it wasting time and thought on it in my present."

When Candidate Appel was discharged at the end of his maritime hitch, he had attained the rank of Yeoman Second Class —equivalent to the Army rating of sergeant first class.

One of his jobs in the Navy that of Judo instructor, a role he now finds reversed as he learns the Army's version of the tricks and techniques of hand-to-hand combat.

His pleasantest duty, he reflects, was that of teaching judo to a detachment of WAVES. "After all," he explains, "they have to defend themselves sometimes, too".

DSC Holder Now CTC Assistant S-3

Maj. Eugene M. Perry, Distinguished Cross winner, has been named assistant S-3 of the Combat Training Command.

A former member of Eighth Army headquarters in Korea, Major Perry worked with friendly guerillas in behind-the-lines activities.

A platoon leader with the 36th Division during World War II, Major Perry also holds the Bronze Star with cluster, Purple Heart with cluster, and the Combat Infantry Badge.

Management Program Serves 2 Purposes

The Army's Career Management Program is serving a dual purpose now, due to the situation in Korea, Col. R. P. Openshine has told Infantry School students and faculty.

The chief of infantry career management was at Fort Benning to announce new assignments for officers in The Infantry School's advance class who graduate in April.

Explaining the career management program, Col. Ovenshine said:

"The principal aims of the program today are preparation of officers for their role in war, and development of the individual according to his interests and natural aptitudes

"Many of the current assignments are to positions for which officers are already trained," he continued.

Colonel Ovenshine then outlined the career management policy, discussing length of tours of duty assignments and the educational system for Regular Army officers.

Capt. Chandler Replaces OC Battalion Executive

Capt. Ralph Chandler, former commander of the First Officer Candidate company, Third Student regiment, has replaced Major Ray Mossman as executive officer of the First Battalion. Major Mossman is attending a refresher course prior to going overseas.

Other changes in the First battalion include the reassignment of Capt. David Cohen, battalion S-3, as commander of the First company. First lieutenant James Jones replaces Capt. Cohen as es, and in many cases exacting combat service.

Officer Candidates Here Thrive On Inspections

Captain Nance himself is a graduate of a fine training school in the spit - and - polish, eye-catching type of high - morale unit. He served in combat with the Second Infantry Division, in Korea. His earliest days with that unit were under Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, whose World War II Rainbow Division and recently - relinquished command of the Eighth (Golden Arrow) Division at Fort Jackson, S. C., were renowned for sharp shootin' and fast salutin'.

Scanning the company roster of candidates, the little group in the Eleventh Company "pentagon" found that Candidate Emmett Johnson, 22-year-old native of San Diego, Cal., came into the Army from the National Academy of Design, New York City. Presently Candidate Johnson is hard at work — in what spare time an officer candidate can find — painting a hunting scene on the messhall wall.

An aura of secrecy has surrounded the organization of the Eleventh Company drum and bugle corps.

This unique musical group enjoys the presence in its midst of one candidate who most likely has the flossiest credentials of any company bugler in Fort Benning's thirty - five years.

Candidate Fred Muller, of Franklin Square, Long Island, N. Y., was a trumpeter in Lou-

BORROWED INSTRUMENTS, BORROWED TIME CREATE OCS DRUM AND BUGLE CORPS Drum Major Ben Wells And The Corps Keep Eleventh Company Stepping High

is Prima's orchestra as a civilian. Now he rises before all the other candidates in the Eleventh OC Company to blow "Reveille" on his bugle. By the time he finds the welcome "sack" at night he has tooted thirty different bugle calls — on a good day. He's just 21.

Leading Spirits

Candidate Muller and another 21 - year - old, Candidate Ben Wells, of Oxford, N. C., are the leading spirits in the drum and bugle corps. They picked up the ball where 1st Lt. Pritchard G. Adams, one of the company "tac" officers, tossed it. Lieutenant Adams suggested that "some musical activity" might be undertaken; the candidates took the idea and hatched out a drum and bugle corps.

They didn't have any instruments; but that didn't stop them. They canvassed units at Fort Benning and finally found that Col. Joe S. Lawrie of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team could be prevailed upon to lend his paratrooper - musicians equipment.

They didn't have much time, either; but that's never an obstacle to an officer candidate. They literally "make" spare time in the evenings in which to instruct each other in use of the drums and bugles.

One day soon they'll play for company formations, and set cadence for the Eleventh Officer Candidate Company on the march. If that doesn't make Col. Harry M. Grizzard's eyes pop out, then the Eleventh Company's candidates will feel "The Old Man" is not so omniscient as they've been led to believe.

It seems that officer candidates who make up the Third Student Regiment feel, like those German troops led by Rommel, that their commander's eyes are on each individual twenty - four hours a day. The impression is part of the pressure that's an indispensable part of OCS. Colonel Grizzard, for his part, does little to dispel it; he's everywhere, seemingly, all the time.

Modest But Mindful

Modest but mindful that their company must do well in every endeavor, Candidate Robert B. Andrews, 22, of Dallas, Texas, and Snow L. Wilson, 26 of Phoenix, Ariz., are the two "old pros" doing most of the work on the class' "year-book." Andrews was editor of the student newspaper at Southern Methodist University where he was awarded a series of scholarships for scholastic achievement. In summer vacationtime he worked for the United Press, and after graduation he was a rewrite man and reporter on the Dallas bureau of International News Service.

Class Book Editor

Andrews is typical of the multitude of keen characters who find their way to OCS. His hobby is promotion of a rapid-reading technique, called Square Span, which he devised at the age of 17. "Readers Digest," of July, 1949, carried his story of his new technique, under his byline; he thereby became one of the youngest byline writers in "Digest's" history.

Andrews is editor of the class book, and enjoys the advice of First Lt. Stanley Samuelson, Third Regiment public information officer, and Second Lt. Robert D. Miller, one of the regimental "tac" officers, in planning and execution of the book project. Lieutenant Miller is a recent OCS graduate.

"Snow" is no nickname, Candidate Wilson assures astonished new acquaintances who sometimes are so kind as to infer the title is well chosen. Seems his dad and a close friend, a Mr. Snow, promised each other they would name their sons after one another. That's how Snow got his name; the other fellow had three daughters, no sons.

The nature of Wilson's work on the Eleventh Company classbook is regarded as classified information; he plans to help the outfit "scoop" some of the others in originality and punch.

Cartoonist Too

A cartoonist, Candidate Richard LeBlanc, of Huntington, Long Island, N. Y., is a valued contributor to the classbook. He's another odd one: he's told his fellow candidates he grew up around boats, but was prone to seasickness. That's why he's in the Army.

As interesting as these projects are the more or less anonymous activities always going on in the Eleventh Company. It's a miracle that candidates, with studies, pressure, demands on their time, and the superlative police of barracks and area that is required, can make the opportunity to do constructive things.

Like some of these, for instance:

Barracks floors are waxed. It's not odd to see Eleventh Company candidates walking about on GI blankets, so they don't muss the gleaming floor.

Brass pipes in the latrines are polished and shined WITH BLITZ CLOTH! Those pipes get the same care as a candidate's belt buckle; and that's a lot.

The most brilliant yellow in the world is the Eleventh Company's modest boast about its recently - painted supply room. Candidates did the work, and picked the color. General Clark asked if they kept canaries there, a query obviously prompted by the color of the walls.

Another committee took up refurbishing of the company dayroom. Now the Eleventh's OCs boast there's none like it nearby. Attractive green window-drapes are a feature.

All the reports you've heard about officer candidates are true; most of them are, at any rate. Candidates scarcely can breathe, in waking hours, for fear someone will "gig" them for it. Their lives, their very heartbeats seem to run in double - time. The constant pressure leads them to develop a bitter, biting humor; they have to watch friends on the right and the left dismissed without losing their own self - confidence. The casualty rate is high — Colonel Grizzard and his staff, Captain Nance, in this case, and his company "tac officers," all are intent on producing infantry troop leaders who can lead men without giving in to pressure.

ROKA CAPT. OH CHI HWAN EXAMINES SHELL VASE
It Belongs To Boy Scout Jimmy Reynolds, Who Lived In Korea

Korean, Scout Are Friends Despite Language Barrier

A South Korean Army Officer and an American Boy Scout have proven once again that language is no barrier to friendship.

The two are Capt. Oh Chi Hwan, Republic of Korea officer attending the Infantry School, and Jimmy Reynolds, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James H. Reynolds. The beginning of their friendship came when Jimmy "just walked up to the captain in the movies and made friends with him." Jimmy learned a little of the Captain's language when he was in Korea in 1946 and 1947, and the captain had picked up a little English here.

Captain Oh and Jimmy are continually visiting one another, either in the Reynolds home or in the bachelor officers' quarters where the captain lives. "They've practically adopted him at the BOQ," Mrs. Reynolds said. "Boys —little men— are very important to Koreans."

Captain Oh spent Christmas Day with the Reynolds family. Although the setting is very different from Korean family life, the Reynolds home is dotted with Eastern touches, from a Korean tapestry to Kangazi (Korean for "little puppy"), the Reynolds cocker spaniel.

Colonel Reynolds, now commander of the Third Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, served in Korea during the occupation period following World War II.

Boy Scout Movement Helps Make Better Men of Boys

One of the Army's best training aids is one that goes into effect on young boys long before they're old enough to join the Army—the Boy Scouts of America.

For 25 years, Fort Benning Troop 27 has flourished and contributed its share towards making better men of boys.

Today members of this troop wear a white bar under their troop numeral, showing that Troop 27 has been active for a quarter of a century. The 90 members of the troop are proud of this addition to their uniform.

Capt. Robert Ryan, scoutmaster of the local troop, explained that the over-all scouting program is designed to emphasize clean living, outdoor activities, and preparedness for daily life.

Scouters Active

The success of the local troop is due to a large extent to the work of a group of men who form the Scout Committee and Scout Council. Col. Robert G. Turner, Tactical Department head, is chairman of the Committee.

The committee and council numbers among its members several old hands at scouting. Among these are Lt. Col. John M. Wright, Jr., commander of the Third Battalion, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. Colonel Wright has been a scout since 1928 and holds 77 merit badges. He was at one time an assistant scoutmaster at West Point and prior to World War II was assistant scoutmaster of a troop on Corregidor.

Colonel Wright said "the troop here is one of the best and most active I've ever seen."

Another old-time scout is Lt. Walter J. Skridulis, who has 76 merit badges to his credit, and thinks scouting is one of the best outlets there is for youthful energy.

Typical Parent

Col. Leland Shaw, Infantry Center inspector general, might be considered a typical scout parent. He said "Although I have no official connecton with the troop here, I'm very interested in all they do because I have two sons who are active in it. I have always been proud of the fact that we have such a fine troop here."

Cub Scouts, the Boy Scouts junior organizaton, also plays an active role here. This group stresses the foundations of scouting for boys who hope to someday become scouts.

In summing up the Scout program, Colonel Turner said "If a boy is a good scout and one who is active in the troop, he will not have time to get into trouble. The scouts stress religious and moral aspects of life, clean living, and ability to take care of oneself under any circumstances. All of these are the bases on which the men of tomorrow are built."

★ ★ ★ They Make Him Wear Shoes Now

An officer candidate who nearly lost his life spearfishing in Hawaii claims that his adjustment to Army life has been a bit difficult because he has to wear shoes.

He is 22 - year - old William Anderson, who was born and raised in Hawaii, and says "I never had any need for shoes on the beaches over there."

His narrow escape with the shark came while he was engaged in his favorite sport, spearfishing. "Another fellow and myself were fishing when a shark intruded upon us. Luckily we were close enough to a coral reef that by standing on it we outwaited him. Naturally I was a little scared, but I'll really be glad to get a chance to try it again," he said.

First Sgt. G. F. Slayton Serves Chow To Cpl. Arnold Lewis

Soldier Enjoys Luxury For Knowing Abbreviation

It pays to know military abbreviations.

For Cpl. Arnold Lewis of Pachuta, Miss., it paid off in material things like a three-day pass, the use of a 1952 automobile and numerous other prizes.

Lewis won these prizes for knowing what the letters SHAPE mean. He was asked to identify them on a quiz show sponsored by Radio Station WFBS, the Armed Forces Radio Service outlet at the Army Hospital at Fort Benning.

In addition to the three-day pass and use of the automobile here is what Lewis won:

Breakfast in bed served by his first sergeant, 1stSgt. George F. Slayton; his shoes shined and bed made by Sfc. Stephen Cruce; a date with a Columbus, Ga., girl; a steak dinner at a leading Columbus restaurant; a chauffeur, and an attendant.

Just in case there's doubt in SHAPE stand for Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe.

Cpl. Lewis is a member of the Medical Detachment at the Army Hospital here.

TIC Clerks Attend Finance Classes

A course in the preparation of finance forms is being taught personnel clerks in every unit at The Infantry Center.

One four-hour class will be held each Wednesday afternoon for four weeks, and one two-hour class will be held each Tuesday and Thursday night, also for four weeks. Each class will have 100 students.

Among the topics of instruction will be travel and allowances, military pay system, allotments and separation and advance pay.

This is the first time the course has been offered. Certificates of completion will be awarded graduates.

Instructors are officers and civilians from The Infantry Center Finance Office.

New Unit's Mission Is Supply Economy

Supply economy is the principle mission of the newly activated 623rd Quartermaster Air Equipment Repair Company.

Under the command of 1st Lt. Harry E. Jones, the unit has been laying the groundwork and training its members to accomplish their mission—that of repairing chutes and various types of airborne equipment.

Speaking of the work that his type of unit is capable of doing he says that "With supply economy in mind and since the division airborne battalion have units that retrieve material after jumps, it is expected that more than 90 per cent of parachutes used will be available for reuse. This is compared to the low reclamation figure of four per cent that were reclaimed after World War II."

Lieutenant Jones is a former member of the 11th Airborne Division.

Insurance Talk Will Be Presented Feb. 19

Free indemnity insurance and other government insurance matters will be the subject of a talk by a Veteran's Administration representative to be given at Theatre No. 1, at 10 a.m., Feb. 19.

All unit personnel, insurance officers and non-commissioned officers will attend. All other interested personnel are invited.

FIRST STUDENT REGIMENT COACH BOB KINARD (C.) BRIEFS HIS STARS FOR GAME
High Scoring Vince Dickherber (l.) and Bob (Flip) Karpinski Ready for Generals.

First, Third Duel Tonight

The McCoys and Hatfields should look like peace envoys compared to what is supposed to happen when unbeaten First and Third Student Regiments collide head-on with their 8-0 records at 8:30 tonight.

Usually spacious Briant Wells Field House is expected to take on sardine can proportions for the conflict, which marks the midway point in the Fort Benning Basketball League season.

Favorites don't mean a thing for this family fued. Besides, there aren't any. They've both licked the same foes with about the same degree of ease. The Third's Generals have scored a bit more freely, but the black-shirted First has been scored on with a little less frequency.

If there is a psychological advantage, it might belong to the First. They have no point-making stars and it's hard to pick standouts in each game. You can't put your finger on their power, unless its speed.

Canny Bob Kinard, their tight-lipped coach, admits he didn't have the best team in the league last year, but it's a matter of record that he engineered an upset title win over Eighth Regiment of the Fourth Infantry Division. Kinard has more charts and figures on the Generals than C-2 has on the Russkys.

The First showed its running game in its best light Monday night when they downed contending Combat Training Command Team One, 64-54. The Generals, who beat ASU Provisional Group, 88-53, for their eighth Monday night, had to come from behind in the last three minutes to down the same CTC quint, 68-64.

"I think you can run with the Third, but I don't know if anybody can keep up with the First," commented losing Coach Harold Kopp.

There wasn't six points difference between the efforts of first stringers Vince Dickherber, Bob Rauen, John Wilsman and Flip Karpinski as the First won Monday night. That's the way it has been all season. Dickherber is high man with 101 points, a 12.7 average.

Equal to their offensive task tonight, will be their efforts to stop the Third's sensational Bruce Mahon, 6-3 forward, who has poured in 185 points for a 23.5 average. Two others, 6-5 Center Bill Gillingham and Guard Barney Gill, have 98 each.

Coach W. C. Hacker, who got his cage schooling at Indiana, will have a few tricks up his sleeve, too.

"I believe you can only get a team really up for one game," he said. "This is the one we've been concentrating on. If we're hitting and moving like I know we can, we'll win it."

Both teams will start their usual lineups, although an added factor for the Third may be Guard Francis Higgins, A veteran of four years varsity action with Boston University, Higgins joined the squad two games ago and Monday night bucketed 13 points as he began to chip the rust from his shooting eye.

The winner of tonight's big one will have a definite advantage for the 45-game stretch drive, and the loser will still have a good deal of elbow room in second place.

Second Student Regiment and 508th Airborne are the current contenders for third place.

Probable starting five's and their scoring:

B Mahon, 185	F	V Griffin, 76

Coach Bob Morrow sorrowfully admits he has no replacement for Bill (Bucky) Hatchett, Rutgers' 1948 All-America hoopman, who has bowed out of action because of a recurring back injury which he suffered as a Queensman gridder several seasons past.

John Smith, of the University of Tennessee, a former fullback at Young High in Knoxville, will coach the Flyer five, which he admits will be of an "uncertain quality" at the outset.

The team has had less than half a dozen practice sessions as a unit, but Smith has fingered several candidates he thinks may help the cause. Among them are Ray Vols, 6-3, from University of Washington, Charlie Urbanowich, Trinity College three-letter man, Tom Minta, 6-1, from Marquette U., and Paul Jones, 6-1, of Wabash College.

Assisting Smith with the coaching chores will be Lloyd Hollopeter, who played at Purdue.

"We've had 12 teams playing in a squadron league," explains Smith, "but I don't know how well that sets us for this past Benning League. We may start slow."

The Flyers will be baptised in spectacular fashion to say the least. Their first opponent is presently unbeaten First Student Regiment in the second game of Monday night's doubleheader at Briant Wells Field House.

Incidentally, starting time for all first games in the second half has been moved back to 7 p.m., instead of 6:30. Second games will follow the openers immediately if the coaches agree, or at 8:30.

There should be fireworks aplenty, too, to launch the stretch drive Friday night. Second Student Regiment, sans Hatchett, and a now chest thumping 508th Airborne tangle in the nightcap to break the deadlock for second place in which they are involved.

Don't cry for the Rockets yet, however. Minus Bucky and Bob Stiles, their second best pointmaker who has graduated, they outlasted Combat Training Command Team Two, 78-76, in a brilliant overtime game last week.

New heroes were Center Elmer Duerst and Guard Reggy Scodeller who scored 26 and 22 points respectively. They weren't as spectacular as the old stars, but they played most of the game and brought the rest of the squad up to a better team effort.

Morrow has put out a call for new candidates for the team, however because upcoming graduations will rob him of Curt Valentine, John Beck and Robert Baller.

OLYMPIC COACH SET

Coach of the United States Olympic track team in Helsinki this summer will be Brutus Hamilton, of the University of California. Hamilton took part in the 1920 Olympic decathlon, missing first place by four points, points.

Mujica-Markarian Fight Ten Rounder At Arena Monday

Benning's top pro boxer, Larry Mujica will go after his eleventh win and seventh knockout when he faces Tiko Markarian, Argentinian welterweight, in the 10-round star bout Monday night at the downtown Columbus Arena.

Mujica scored his third straight win last week when he starched Rene Cautero in six frames in a Tampa, Fla., main event.

Markarian is one of Larry's toughest foes to date. He soundly whipped 508th's Vince Murray several weeks ago at the Arena. The big guy likes to mix in and he takes a tremendous amount of punishment apparently without effect.

Brown, Mahon in Personal Basketball Scoring Duel

With All-America Bill Hatchett committed permanently to the sidelines, the race for individual scoring honors in the Fort Benning Basketball League this week developed into a personal duel between Ben Brown and Bruce Mahon.

Of course, their point-making advantage is not such at this stage that several others — like Truman Medders, Joe Connors or Bill Hahn — can't catch them, but if they maintain their 20-point plus per game average it will be a Herculean task.

Mahon and Brown offer interesting contrasts. Bruce, six-foot, three - inch field general for Third Student Regiment, is a polished performer in every sense of the word.

The 20-year old, former Gettysburg, Pa., star has been playing since his early teens when his father gave him a basketball and nailed a home-made basket to the garage door in Philadelphia.

Mahon opened his junior year in high school in a semi-final manner, but his playing was cut short soon after in a serious trolley accident. One hand was badly mangled, but Mahon overcame this by long hours of practice in front of the old garage door.

After a record - breaking senior year, he joined Joe Bartram's White Kids, a Philly amateur quint which took on all comers and usually copped the duke. Playing in a summer tournament a season later, Mahon attracted enough attention to win him a four-year cage scholarship at Gettysburg.

Mahon, this time like Brown, is a serious young man. He takes

JOE STEFFY, Army's small but fast 1946 All-American guard, has arrived here for training... An admission will be charged to the March 4 boxing card and the season's final basketball game, March 29, for benefit of the Red Cross. Why not a hole-in-one tourney for all local duffers with proceeds to the RC? Bill DeLoor is readying his successful annual baseball umpires clinic for the first week in March.

LAWSON AIR FORCE Base's Dick Bartell, Jr., son of the fiery Detroit Tigers" coach, will be a driver in any stock car races he can find in the area this summer . . . Dick Ellis, First Student Brigade's Olympic hopeful, through this bureau herewith extends a challenge to any local trackmen who think they can beat him at from five to 20 miles, even with benefit of as much as a six minutes or mile handicap.... Daring Dick says he currently does ten miles in 56:45 minutes.

ANOTHER CONFIDENT note comes from Bob Kinard, who played the infield with three Third Army championship Benning baseball teams, and predicts a Doughboy team this summer would win going away....Youngsters on post between the ages of eight and 12 do not have to worry about what to do this summer: Benning is being included in Little League baseball plans for Columbus, a very worthy program.

508th, ASU Top Boxing; 15 More Bouts Tuesday

Fifteen bouts have been scheduled for the third card in the current series of post boxing matches at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at Briant Wells Field House.

508th Airborne holds the lead in the scoring for the post ring title with 28 points. Defending champion, ASU Provisional Group, is second with 22.

Others in order are First Student Regiment, 14, Combat Training Command, 10, and Third Student Regiment and Infantry School Detachment, one each.

This week's card will have to be superior in every way to top last Tuesday's 12 bouts for sheer action. Most sensational was the win of ASU's Robert Cotton, 184½, over First S. R.'s Lou Barnes, 181.

They stood toe-to-toe slugging skillfully for the full three rounds much to the delight of the capacity throng of 2,500 fans. The only way the crowd had of knowing these were amateur bouts was because it said so on the scoreboard.

This coming Tuesday night's card was made up too late to permit description of individual bouts in this edition.

The 508th's Red Devils jumped off to an early lead in the ring series when they picked up 12 points at the initial matches a week ago Tuesday. First Student Regiment and ASU Provisional Group each got nine, followed by Combat Training command with five.

ASU, the defending post champs, showed several reasons why they may keep their title. One of their best was light middleweight Rudolph Chiles who survived a knockdown to come back and stop CTC's Leon Felder in 2:21 of the third.

Chiles is a two - fisted puncher, but very elusive to hit. ASU's William Russell, fought out of his class to challenge 508th's Sylvester Suleman, whom he decked once in taking a three-round decision. Russell is a welterweight.

In a highly heralded heavyweight test, Dick Lohmann, 194, took a close and unpopular verdict from ASU's Robert Cotton, 184. The First Student Regiment victor looked as though he were carrying a lot of extra poundage. Cotton threw more punches, but Lohman's few landed hard.

CTC's most impressive winner was Leon Hall, 158 1-4 who stopped Freeman Thatcher, 160 1-4, ASU, in 2:36 of the second, while Jesse Flores, 132, looked very good for 508th is slipping Len James, 132, First Student Regiment.

Other results from the first card:

Ray Lee, 152 1-4, First SR, defeated John Carpenter, 152 3-4, 508th; William McCleanaghan, 184 3-4, 508th beat Harvey Distel, 179, CTC; Charles McKinney, 124 3-4, ASU, TKO'd John Espinis, 125, 508th, in 1:21 of the second; Ray Leutz, 143 1-4, 506th, defeated Charles Cummings, 144 3-4, CTC; and James Boyd, 174 1-2, First S. R., defeated Gordon Ifill, 168 1-4, CTC.

everything seriously including his basketball. The Korean war broke out as Bruce completed his junior year and he left school to enlist in the Army.

He is now a student in the Fourth Officer Candidate Company of the regiment.

Twenty-three year old Brown is less impressive in appearance in performing for Combat Training Command Team One, but his shooting accuracy is no less spectacular, especially when you consider his comparative lack of height at five-feet, nine-inches.

The Baltimore youth, who is a clerk with Company M, played three years of guard at Lincoln University where he was taking a pre-med course. He made the Maryland all-state conference team in 1949.

The speedy shooter doesn't limit his sports activities to basketball, however. He played with Lincoln's football, baseball and tennis teams and also is a proficient skier.

Tale Of Gator Get Away

You've heard much about 'the big ones that got away,' but how about this?

John Montgomery, of the 11th Officer Candidate Company, Third Student Regiment, tells about capturing, boating and skinning a 13 - foot, ten - inch alligator. He left the carcass for dead, but John claims the nude gator suddenly took off again and disappeared in the water!

"On my honor as a swamp boy, it's strictly the truth," smiles Montgomery in relating his experiences as an amateur alligator hunter.

Montgomery's escapades began, while he was working with a siesmograph crew exploring Louisiana swamps for oil. Using everything from a airogue (a you canoe) to a helicopter, he made alligator hunting a constant past - time — one that paid handsome financial returns.

The 21-year-old swamp - boy tells how he paddled the pirogue until he spotted a likely gator, and then would shoot it in the nose or back of the forepaw. Tanneries pay $2.75 per foot for the skins.

"That isn't swamp grass," grins the jovial candidate.

Sometimes the sport takes an interesting turn, however, such as the time Montgomery used an entire box of .30-38 ammunition and only succeeded in bouncing the rounds off the thick plates which protect the reptiles brain.

JOHN MONTGOMERY
. . . Shows Distance Between 'Gator Eyes

"That 'gator got bodacious mad at those bullets and started snappin' and that boat and I started paddlin' for all I was worth," Montgomery said.

From the helicopter the story's different. The pilot flies low until he spots a group of alligators and then chooses the ones to be caught.

"After that," Montgomery stated, "it's a matter of chasing the 'gator all over the swamp until he's too tired to run further. When he stops running, the helicopter is landed with a pontoon resting on the back of the 'gator and he is clubbed."

After his tour with the Army is completed, Montgomery plans to return to the swamps and marshes and take up where he left off. He claims, "alligator hunting as a sport can't be beat," and if you don't like sports, he suggests alligator tails with rice "Mighty fine eating."

Tryouts Open Monday For All-Army Pistol Team

Twenty candidates for the nine positions on the 1952 All-Army pistol team will report to Fort Benning Monday to begin training for qualification. Heading the list will be M-Sgt. Huelett (Joe) Benner, current world's champion pistol shot.

Benner, a former Fort Benning man, has been on every All-Army pistol team organized since 1939 and kept his world's title last year in competition at Buenos Aires. He is arriving from Fort Kobbe in the Panama Canal Zone.

Col. Perry D. Swindler, veteran captain of the team, did not have a complete list of candidates at press time. Last year's squad won a score of individual awards in the NRA National High Power Matches.

Meantime, a major plan for an Army-wide marksmans hip program to be conducted in connection with regular combat training, which has been submitted by Col. Swindler, will be discussed in a high level conference Friday at Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va.

Attending from Benning will be Maj. Warren P. Davis, captain of the All-Army rifle team, Col. George Millner, director of The Infantry Center weapons department, and Col. Swindler.

In addition, there will be present representatives from Department of Army, Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces, Armored Center, Special Services and the National Rifle Association.

Phil Pitcher Schools Here

One of the Philadelphia Phillies' brighter young minor league pitching prospects is currently being schooled here but Fort Benning baseball fans probably will not get to see him in action.

Roy Kropac is scheduled to graduate from 124th Company, Second Student Regiment, before the horseside season comes of age.

Kropac had a 10-4 record in 1949 and 12-3 mark in 1950 in class D ball before entering the service. He hit .285 during the latter season. He has been directed to report to Wilmington, Del., in the class B Tri-State League upon discharge from the service.

A quick check last week revealed that Second S.R. has another former pro player in Ray Parker, outfielder with Waycross, Ga., last season.

Headquarters One Takes Early Lead in Volleyball

An eight - team volleyball league got under way in Area Service Unit Provisional Group last week. The 1950 - 51 champions, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Section Two, 3440th ASU, opened the season with a bang by smothering Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Section Two, 3440th ASU, two straight, 15-0 and 15-9.

The 666th Truck Transportation Truck company, after dropping the first game to First Transportation Battalion, 9-15, bounced back to take the next two 15-12 and 15-4 to round - out the first week of play.

The league will end Feb. 26 with each team seeing action four games in the round robin play. The winning team will represent the ASU Raiders in The Infantry Center volleyball tournament.

Matches will be played daily Monday through Friday at 5:30 p.m. on the Group volleyball court in the third quartel. Each match consists of three games of 21 points each. The team winning two out of three games will be declared winner of the match.

24th Evac Tops Officer Key Loop

Bowlers from the 24th Evacuation Hospital team copped most of the individual honors this week in The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League. Capt. George Bokinsky won high game honors with scores of 227 and 209, while Capt. Clair Henninger's 210 was good for second place.

Henninger also had the week's best series of 559. The strong effort boosted the team into a tie for first place in the third section of the league.

The Attack Group team, captained by Lt. Arthur Rafferty, beat Advance Class Two four straight to pull within a couple of points of First Battalion, 30th Infantry, in first places in the second section.

At a league board meeting last week, it was voted to allow the first and second place teams meet in playoff for the league championship.

Several committees also were named. Elected to the association tournament committee were Maj. Samuel Allison, Maj. Wallace Olson and Lt. Erwin Fleet. The awards committee will consist of Maj. Jean Holstein, Capt. David Gaumer, Lt. Richard Crowson and CWO Francis Park.

The newly banquet committee consists of Col. Bruce Jastremski, Lt. Col. John Lavin, Lt. Col. Harold Mangold, Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes and Maj. Joe Hennessee.

WHEEL OF FORTUNE (Bobby Wayne, Joe Reisman orchestra on Mercury). This tune seems to be the coming big hit. As a matter of fact, Dinah Washington recorded the same song for Mercury. But vocalist Washington falls a little short on the tune, probably due to a faulty arrangement. Bobby Wayne, however, does "Wheels Of Fortune" in as exciting a style as we have heard since Patti Page did "Would You Love Me." Some of the same production tricks are used on "Wheels of Fortune" as were used on "Would you Love Me," and the results as most gratifying. This could be the next big platter. Back side is "If I Had The Heart Of A Clown," good, but not in the class with the reverse side.

MORE THAN LOVE (Richard Haynes, Xavier Cugat orchestra on Mercury). Once in a blue moon a tune comes along that has a not so original melody, but a haunting quality that makes you want to hear it again and again. We think this platter will do just this for you. Vocalist Richard Haynes is, in our opinion, one of the best singers on the musical market today. Xavier Cugat backs up Haynes with an arrangement that is at once impelling and danceable. Back side of this record is "Babalu," done up in a style that could be the best ever done in this tune.

GOODBYE SWEETHEART (Joe Sullivan and vocal group, Ralph Marterie orchestra on Mercury). There is something about this platter that is all too reminiscent of "Goodnight Irene." Yet it also has an original quality that sets it apart from other arrangements of its type. There is no evidence of Ralph Marterie's trumpet in this arrangement, but on the back side, "Autumn Leaves," Marterie's trumpet is much in evidence. We mentioned "Goodbye Sweetheart" first, because we believe this will be a big hit once it is recorded by other artists. "Autumn Leaves" is wonderful. It is an old tune, of course, but we have never heard it done better than by the Ralph Marterie orchestra.

STOLEN LOVE (Eddy Howard and Trio, Eddy Howard orchestra on Mercury). Apparently this platter is Mercury's big hope for the coming musical season, if advance publicity is any indication. And the recording is more than good. It has an original melody, done in slow dance tempo. The Howard Trio and orchestra perform in their customary manner, both on this and the back side, "Wishing." The latter is a new tune also, and tops in quality. We think the record buyer will like the recording, both for dancing and listening pleasure.

WOULD YOU (Ray Cura and orchestra on Mercury). Some years back this tune first appeared on the market. And since that time it has been recorded by dozens of people. The Ray Cura treatment of the tune is pleasant, but not quite as good as others we have heard. The back side is "Since My Love Has Gone," a little better than "Would You." However, the flip is another oldie that has been recorded by everyone from Al Jolson up to Frankie Laine. Both sides are pleasant, but hardly in the big league.

RECORDS AT RANDOM: "On My Way Out," Ralph Flanagan on RCA-Victor; "At Last! At Last!" by Tony Martin on RCA-Victor; "When You're In Love," Dick Haymes, Four Hits and a Miss on Decca; "I Remember You Love," Vic Damone on Mercury.

7 Units Awarded Rating Of Superior in 508th

Administration, bug-a-boo of early airborne outfits, is one of the strong points in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. A rating of "superior" was granted seven units and activities during a recent records inspection, as follows:

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Support, Medical, Headquarters Second, G and S companies and Ration Breakdown Section. Twenty-three others were graded excellent.

Canadian Discloses Sorrow, Surprise Over King's Death

Surprise and sorrow over the sudden death of King George VI of Great Britain were expressed here, Thursday by Col. R. C. Clark, commandant of Canada's Camp Borden. He was then touring The Infantry School.

"It's so many people throughout the world, we Canadians had been under the impression the king was well on the road to recovery from his illness," Col. Clark said.

"The new queen visited Canada last year and created a favorable impression indeed. We wish her all the luck in her new tasks."

The Canadian officer was visiting Fort Benning to study training and administration methods at The Infantry School.

He toured The Infantry School's Airborne Department Thursday morning and joined a party of Georgia defense officials in the afternoon to witness a demonstration of a coordinated attack on an enemy position by infantrymen and tanks.

Plans Ready For RC Drive

Plans for the 1952 Red Cross membership and fund drive here were moving into high gear this week as officials planned a full round of events in connection with the campaign.

Two special sporting events and a soldier show are in the preliminary planning stage. Capt. William Fannin, Infantry Center sports officer, reported that a benefit basketball game and boxing match are being arranged in connection with the drive.

The regularly scheduled Mar. 4 boxing card at Briant Wells Field house will be dedicated to the Red Cross drive. Admission will be charged, and all proceeds will be turned over to the campaign fund.

On Mar. 23, a benefit basketball game will be played at the Field House between the First and Third Student Regiment teams, currently leading the post league.

Admission for both the boxing card and basketball game will be 40 cents.

Plans are also being made to present a soldier show, but no definite production date has been set yet.

Three bulletin boards to show unit standings will be erected at central points in the Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas.

No monetary goals have been set for Fort Benning this year. One hundred per cent participation by all civilian and military personnel is the goal of the campaign.

The drive here will begin Feb. 29, and end Mar. 31.

FIRST DONATION . . . Maj. Gen. John H. Church, left, Infantry Center commander, makes the first donation to the 1952 Red Cross fund raising campaign to Col. Gines Perez, executive chairman of the drive at Fort Benning. The drive opens a week from tomorrow and continues until March 31. More than $38,000 was donated by Infantry Center personnel last year.

Correction

The Bayonet offers it apologies to the officers and men of the Second Student Regiment for failing, because of an oversight, to give them proper credit for the excellent and large contribution they made to the 1952 March of Dimes fund campaign.

Students and cadremen of the regiment contributed a total of $1,161.16 to the drive. They helped make it possible for the First Student Brigade to contribute nearly 50 per cent of the total March of Dimes contribution from Fort Benning.

The Second Student Regiment was high on the list of units to make unusually large contributions to the drive that ended Feb. 2.

Army Completes Readiness Test

More Than 1,200 508th Paratroopers Participated in the Two-Day Affair

BY SFC PAT MURPHY

The Army today will finish experimenting here with a test to determine the combat readiness of any battalion-sized unit.

At least 1,200 paratroopers of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team went through a two-day ground warfare test as guinea pigs to set the level of proficiency for all U.S. Army units of similar size.

Infantry School officials said the new test embodied concepts of military tactics developed since World War II.

Project officer for the test, Lt. Col. Harold B. Mangold, said top Army officers at Fort Monroe Va., center of all Army Field Forces thinking, in January asked for rush - rush development of the test.

Soldiers taking the test yesterday and today lived and "fought" under near - real combat conditions. How well they performed, Colonel Mangold said, will be the level of proficiency expected of any unit taking the test.

Three phases are involved in testing: defense tactics, night withdrawal and attack. Colonel Mangold said emphasis and study is being placed particularly on night withdrawal, a phase of tactics heretofore considered secondary by Army tacticians.

Hundreds of Infantry School officers — about 50 per cent of them Korean veterans—poured their ideas into the test's development which had priority among projects here.

While a platoon of Aggressors attacked yesterday, 31 Infantry School umpires watched "battlefield" reaction and decision of every man, from battalion commander to mechanic.

Real Battle Orders

Real battle orders were issued to begin the two-day test. The battalion commander thrust his unit into action with orders to stop an "enemy" force invading Fort Benning.

During the 48 hours, the men put up a fight as similar to those on a battlefield as safety measures will permit.

Only during today's attack phase will "live" ammunition be used. Real artillery, mortar, hand grenades, machinegun and rifle fire will scorch a hill top objective "occupied" by a theoretical enemy force.

The Aggressor will be remov-comedy, and if dress rehearsal is any indication, the local group is set to give the audience a treat.

Playing the leading male role of the over-age oficer candidate, Max Wharton, Maj. Wingard Logan gives an excellent performance. Neatly balancing Max is his wife Paula, a successful wom an to her own right, who drops everything to be near her husband. Paula is played with conviction and finesse by Rosanne McQuarrie.

Young Jan Lupton, played by Barbara Millener who gives a good characterization of the young wife who has just helped her husband through OCS. On Thursday night Ray Lupton will be portrayed by 2nd Lt. William R. O'Connell, and on Friday night by 2nd Lt. James F. Schaefner.

Maj. Herold Sauer as Robert Drexel Gow pulls in many laughs with his excellent portrayal. Another group of first class comedians is Bernice R. Phillips as Mrs. Armitia Gates, mother-in-law of Colonel Foley, and Mrs. Bernard Schwank and his wife Phyllis play the roles of Colonel Foley and his talkative mate. Their visiting scene is one of the comedy highlights of the play.

Lt. Col. Roderick Wetherill does an excellent job as Joel I. Mixon, Miss Bunny Bennett does well as Miss Manley, Capt. Gregory V. Morse Jr., is very good as the elderly gentleman. Mrs. Moira Sheen is directing the current production. Ticket sales are being handled by Mrs. Allen L. Peck, publicity chairman.

Rangers See Training End

47 TIS Students Are Taking Part In Program Near Dahlonega, Ga.

Some 47 hopeful students in The Infantry School's Ranger Department at Fort Benning are nearing the time when they sew on those coveted Ranger shoulder patches.

Today they are in the midst of a grueling, nerve - testing training program near Dahlonega, at the mountainous farm of North Georgia State College, where they are undergoing the final phases of their eight-week course. This spot in the Smokey Mountains was selected because of its suitability to mountain phases of the course.

While in the North Georgia camp the students will study all types of mountainous operations including mountain climbing and repelling, the art of crossing mountains and canyons via rope.

The soon - to - be Rangers also are faced with all sorts of courage tests while in the mountains. These tests include climbs over steep and rocky cliffs where one misstep means instant death, drops with heavy equipment into deep water and the grand finale, the "slide for life."

Recent Innovation

This recent innovation into Army training entails sliding down a rope from atop a tree across a deep chasm to a bank 60 feet below. The speed of students while sliding has been estimated at 50 miles an hour.

Any student who fails to negotiate these tests is immediately dropped from the course.

Prior to the North Georgia trip the students had spent some 12 days in Florida maneuvering near Eglin Air Force Base.

While in Florida the students underwent various types of jungle and waterborne training. Climax was a 45-hour tactical exercise in conjunction with the Air Force.

For this joint problem the class was organized into two combat patrols, one given the mission of destroying an "enemy-held airfield" and the other a group of field artillery installations. After a thorough briefing, the students boarded a commercial fishing boat at night for a point off-shore. They then made their way to their objectives, arriving in time to destroy them before dawn.

Each patrol went into hiding during the following day awaiting cover of darkness to make

Children's School Will Be Inspected

Three representatvies from the U. S. Department of Education will arrive at Fort Benning March 2 for a three-day inspection of the Children's School System.

Field operations advisor Jesse M. Dunn, Don S. Patterson, chief of the department's elementary school section, and H. S. Burdette, Atlanta field representative, will study the dependent schooling program here. It is operating for the first time with funds supplied by the Department of Education.

The visitors will confer with Lt. Col. L. T. Martin, Children's School officer, Col. Daniel H. Hundley, president of the school board, and W. H. Shaw, supetintendent of the Muscogee school district.

After meeting Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, they will visit the various branches of the school so organized by Mrs. Hazel Smilder, school principal, and talk with teachers.

They also will attend a Parent-Teacher Association meeting.

A conference with the school board and a meeting with F-TA officials have been scheduled for March 4.

Plans for the final day of their visit have not been announced.

Blood Donations Exceed Quota By 165 Extra Pints

Blood donations last week by military and civilian personnel at The Infantry Center exceeded the quota by 165 pints.

The goal was only 240 pints but 405 were tallied.

But this record is not unusual, according to Medical Corps. Maj. Samuel M. Withers, who is in charge of the Blood Donor Center here.

These men who know first hand the value of blood and blood plasma to the fighting soldier have made a habit of oversubscribing to the blood banks," he said.

Since the Armed Forces Blood Donor Program began here last Sept. 24, 7,584 pints of whole blood have been collected. At the beginning of the program, the daily quota was 120 pints. During October 2,675 pints were donated.

Goal Lowered

Since that time the goal has been lowered to 48 pints daily, but there are still many days when more than 100 units are collected, Maj. Withers pointed out.

Many of the donors are ex-fighting men who received the life - giving plasma when they were wounded in World War II. Many other applicants are Korean veterans, whose offers must not be accepted until they have been back in the United States two years. This waiting period is necessary to insure they were not infected by malaria while serving in the Far East.

One group of prospective donors has to postpone its trip to the center for two weeks when gives a series of innoculations against various diseases.

Usually less than 10 per cent of the applicants are rejected as most of the groups are screened for eligibility before reporting to the center.

Open Every Morning

The Blood Donor Center here is open every morning, five days a week and Mrs. Amy Dykes, a registered nurse, is always present.

The blood pressure, temperature, pulse, and hemogloben of prospective donors are checked before they are allowed to make their contributions. Individuals may give blood every three months, but not more than four times a year.

Collection centers have been established at all military installations with 10,000 or more personnel.

Blood collected here is shipped immediately to a blood processing center laboratory to be processed into plasma. Distribution from then on is handled by the Blood and Blood Derivative Groups in Washington, D. C.

A quota of 300,000 pints a month (the maximum that may be processed by existing laboratories) has been set for all collecting agencies.

Ranger Training Rugged At Florida Training Camp

A new Army post began operations last week, but it won't be found in any postal guide and probably not on any map.

In fact, it doesn't even belong to the Army since it is on loan from the U. S. Air Force. But it is inhabited by a handful of the Infantry's best soldiers.

These rugged lads are training to be Rangers — present day counterparts of the famous American soldiers of World War II who thrilled the world by their daring exploits.

Today's Rangers-to-be really make their headquarters in Fort Benning, Ga., The Infantry Center of the Army. But they are brought to camp near Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and put through some of the most rugged training ever devised for the Infantry.

But after two weeks training in swamps and receiving instructions in snake handling, tropical life and other subjects relating to jungle survival, the rookie Rangers are far from finished with the course.

They then will be sent to Dahlonega, Ga., where the mountains grow tall. There they will learn mountain operations, including mountain climbing and rapelling—the art of using ropes to slide from one cliff to another at 40 miles-per-hour.

The ultimate purpose of all this super training is to have Rangers in all combat elements of the Infantry.

Essentially, the Army Ranger is an expert-at-arms. He is the modern day counterpart of such great soldiers as Morgan's riflemen and the scouts of the Indian wars.

During World War II Ranger battalions were organized and employed with great effect as elite units. Their combat assignments were varied, but in general they operated as shock troops.

At the beginning of the Korean conflict, Ranger units were formed at Fort Benning to operate as special - mission units. Each Infantry division was to be assigned a Ranger-trained company made up of paratroopers. These were highly effective, but now it is thought that Rangers will be more effective when integrated into combat units where their leadership potential can be fully used.

Ranger in rifle units will provide skilled troops in those units capable of performing difficult reconnaissance missions of their own. And Ranger Department officials believe, they will provide a group of superior trained soldiers who will stimulate the entire unit to higher performances and the individual to greater development.

Infantrymen Priceless Says Asst. TIS Chief

The Infantry School's assistant commandant has tagged the combat Infantryman "America's most priceless battlefield commodity."

Speaking to 166 graduates of The Infantry School's advanced class last Saturday, Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy told the officers that what they had learned here was sound and

"We often get letters from officers in Korea who say that the tactics they learned here at The Infantry School are being put to use every day over there."

General Meloy pointed out that many of the graduates were Reserves and National Guard officers and called them the "backbone of the Army."

The class included five Netherlands Army officers.

Traffic Violators Need Not Post Trial Bonds Now

Fort Benning Military personnel will not be required to post bond to insure their appearance in traffic court under an agreement that has been reached by the Fort Benning Provost Marshall and civilian authorities.

The Director of Public Safety, the Chief of Police of Columbus, the Chief of Police of Muscogee County and the Provost Marshall agreed that such a plan will be continued until violations occur which will result in the abolishment of the agreement.

The traffic violations include minor offenses such as parking, and non-excessive speeding.

To insure the successful continuation of this agreement it is mandatory that military personnel who receive traffic tickets for these violations appear promptly in traffic court at the time indicated on the traffic summons.

30th Celebrates 51st Anniversary

The 30th Infantry Regiment has chosen Washington's Birthday as celebration day for the 51st anniversary of its reorganization.

A regimental parade will be held at Tiger Field in the morning, and open house will be held in unit areas.

Service Clubs two and five will hold dances in the evening.

The anniversary date was originally Feb. 2, but the celebration was postponed until the 22nd because of school troop commitments.

ORC And NG Release Plans Being Made By Dept. of Army

Plans for the release of officers and enlisted members of Army Organized Reserve Corps and National Guard units who were ordered into active military service with their units have been announced by the Department of the Army.

The Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended, directs the release of these individuals not later than the date they complete 24 months service on their current tour of active duty, unless they volunteer to remain on active duty longer.

Except for those serving in National Guard antiaircraft units, enlisted members of the reserve components who are serving on active duty involuntarily for 24 months will be released during the period commencing with the 20th and ending with their 24th month of their service. They will be released in approximately equal monthly increments.

Releasing men in this manner will permit integration of replacements into units in an orderly manner with minimum impact on unit effectiveness, it was pointed out.

The release of officers will present even more serious problems, the Army emphasized. A majority of these officers will be required to complete the greater portion of their 24 months service, and in many cases officers will be retained for the full 24 months.

In order to avoid the sudden impact of too many losses at the same time, the release of officers in a particular unit may begin somewhat earlier, but in no case will they be released prior to completing at least 20 months of active service.

In determining the sequence for releasing personnel in a particular unit, the governing factors will be the maintenance of unit effectiveness and the availability of trained replacements. If additional criteria are required, consideration will be given to length of World War II service, combat service in Korea, and dependency or hardship.

The Army also announced plans to release all National Guard antiaircraft artillery battalions from federal service as units. This means that those officers and enlisted members of the National Guard serving in a unit with which they were ordered to active duty will be returned to State control as a group with their unit.

Release of these units will begin in April this year, with several being released each month until all have been returned to 1953.

The gradual release of these units is necessary in order that the Army's antiaircraft defenses will not be seriously impaired. As each unit is returned to State control, a new unit will be activated in its place which will absorb the equipment and remaining personnel who are not members of the National Guard.

The release program for enlisted inactive and volunteer reservists has been completed. Inactive or volunteer reserve officers who served on active duty for one year or more between Dec. 7, 1941, and Sept. 2, 1945, are being released from active duty upon completing 17 months on their current tour.

The Army pointed out that officers filling in certain categories were not eligible for release upon completion of 17 months service. These include officers who were members of Organized Reserve Corps units on June 25, 1950, and who were ordered from one unit to another and subsequently ordered into active military service with such a unit, and officers who were members of ORC units on June 25, 1950, and who were ordered to active duty from such units as individuals.

Dutch Officer Says NATO Plans Progressing Fast

NATO plans in Europe are progressing at a breath - taking pace, Lt. Col. C. J. Vermeulen of the Royal Netherlands Army said here Monday.

"Officials are working so fast it is very difficult to keep up," he declared. "There are many, many conferences and letters—like books."

The colonel, who is a member of G-3 section of the Netherlands Army general staff, arrived at The Infantry Center Monday for a three - day tour of Infantry School activities.

Highlights of Col. Vermeulen's visit was a demonstration Tuesday afternoon by the Ranger Department in the handling and recognition of venomous and nonpoisonous reptiles and an illuminated night problem Wednesday evening.

Military Analyst Spends Two Days at Fort Benning

Hanson W. Baldwin, military analyst for the New York Times, Monday cited the balance of power as the solution for the world's problems while visiting Fort Benning.

The one-time Pulitzer prize winner, who is making a nationwide tour of military installations, spent two days at The Infantry Center conferring with Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, assistant Infantry School commandant, and other Fort Benning officers.

In an address to Infantry School students and faculty Mr. Baldwin urged that the U.S. strengthen to the fullest political ties with friendly nations, backing the UN, NATO and the Pacific Pact. "But don't depend on them too much," he cautioned.

In addition the writer recommended the U. S. embark upon a psychological program to sell the U. S. to the rest of the world.

"Isolation is no solution for the problems of today," he stated. "Rockets, long-range bombers, A-bombs and submarines have made isolation a thing of the past. We now live in a world of foreshortened geography. We need the products of the world and, in case of war, we would need bases and outpost positions elsewhere to carry on an effective campaign," he declared.

"The theory that peace can be achieved by conquest is based on two falacious assumptions," Mr. Baldwin continued. "The idea that war is inevitable and that we could achieve a quick and easy military victory. As soldiers," he told the students, "you all know there is nothing easy in war.

All-Out War

"An all-out air war would be paved with difficulties," Baldwin continued. "We have no atomic monopoly."

War on the ground would also present problems, according to Mr. Baldwin. "We have little knowledge and few maps of the territory in which we would be fighting and we would be facing a numerically superior enemy."

He claimed a new war would not help rehabilitate Europe, now recovering from World War II. "It would also place a strain on our own economy and life," he said.

"It is the instinctive tendency of free nations to stick together," Baldwin continued. "We must build up our military strength—strong, but not too strong—as we must be prepared for the long pull as well as for the immediate emergency."

He recommended continuation of the present military training program and the draft but expressed disapproval of Universal Military Training. "As it stands now," he said, "it only provides a short six months of training for some 18-year-olds—not all 18-year-olds."

Baldwin said he favored continued civilian control of the military program as "we do not want a garrison state. We do not want a bankrupt state, either," he went on. "We must operate on a pay-as-you-go basis."

The military expert, who has been touring Army installations, said he was pleased to note a greater emphasis on fundamentals in training and that he was particularly impressed by the tactical influence of atomic weapons.

Baldwin left Fort Benning Tuesday afternoon for the Naval Air Base at Pensacola, Fla. He also plans to visit Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., before returning to New York.

RC Aids People in Emergencies

Did you know that in relatively few family emergencies brought to the attention of commanding officers is it possible for a serviceman to get an emergency leave to go home?

On installations in the U. S., your CO is the only person authorized to approve such large requests. He must weigh the merits of the case and be sure of his facts before he can make a decision. For these facts, he must turn to your Red Cross field director and the family's local Red Cross chapter.

That only in relatively few family emergencies brought to the attention of commanding officers is it possible for emergency leaves to be granted for trips home?

On installations in the U. S. your CO, commanding officer, the only person authorized to approve such leave requests, weighs each case on its own merits. He must be sure of his facts. For these he turns to your Red Cross field director and the family's local Red Cross chapter.

Often, a wire from his home-town Red Cross is the serviceman's first notice of the emergency, and contains the information the CO needs. In any case, needed information can be obtained from the local chapter, usually within a few hours. In illnesses, the report will, include a statement from the family physician as to the seriousness of the ailment.

This telegraphed information serves both as verification for the CO and assurance for the man whose family is in distress. Often, the situation at home is found to be eased, or exaggerated, or the man's presence is not needed. Perhaps the Red Cross at home has been able to meet financial or other problems which the family had thought necessitated his being home. However, if the CO does decide to send him home, the serviceman will find closely knit and efficient teamwork by military and Red Cross staff all along the route. They will speed him on his way, and assist him wherever possible.

Overseas, the same service is afforded, although the technical procedure in handling leaves is necessarily different. Take the case of Cpl. C. W. Jarrell, U. S. Army, recently on emergency leave from Korea to his home in Monaville, W. Va.

Corporal Jarrell, on Nov. 8, 1951, while in the Korea battle zone, learned from his unit's ARC field director that his father in Monaville was seriously ill. The Red Cross at Monaville had wired the message, including the family physician's report of serious illness, to the national headquarters of the Red Cross, in Washington, D. C., where the message was immediately referred to the adjutant general's office for action.

Corporal Jarrell was granted emergency leave. Within a few hours he was en route to Japan by military plane, and from there was rushed by regular military flight to Camp McChord, near Tacoma, Wash. The Red Cross at Camp McChord and in Tacoma reserved flight on a civilian plane out of Tacoma, and advanced $140 to the corporal for plane fare and other expenses of the trip east. He arrived in West Virginia only five days after leaving the front lines in Korea.

Combat Based on Teamwork

Most of you know — or are learning — that combat today is based on teamwork. The rifle squad is a team made up of soldiers armed with several different weapons and trained in special skills. Each man on the squad has a special job to do to make the team move. It takes a team of soldiers to shoot an artillery piece or run a tank. No matter what you do in the Army your job must be done right to make some team perform the way it should.

In a way, it was the same in civilian life. Think back to the time you played on some athletic team. The outcome of those games never meant life or death to you. But there's a lesson for you in the way a team plays. The desirable team elements are similar whether you're in a game or fighting a war. For the best results, all members of the team should be good players. You wouldn't win many games if you teamed up one good player with a group of poor ones.

A rifle squad, an artillery section, or a tank crew is formed in the same way. Every soldier on the team is trained to the highest degree of skill time permits. When men's lives and our country's welfare are at stake every man must be "best" — not just fair. How would you like to belong to a rifle squad that had a BAR man who could hit anything he aimed at but the riflemen hit their targets just once in a while? Or be in a tank crew that had a driver who could take the tank anywhere, but the gunner doesn't know how to fire the gun? There's no second place honors in war. The team must win. . . or lose everything.

No one wants to be on the losing side in war. When we came into the Army, each of us, in effect, pledged his best efforts to insure that we will not be on the losing side. But that pledge was just the first step. We must go on from there and learn how to win. Just being in the Army isn't enough. It's only the beginning. Once we understand this, we can take our responsibilities more seriously.

Report From Washington

German Participation in NATO Now Debated

By Armed Forces Press Service

Germany was banned from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by the Big Three foreign ministers this week, but was granted the right to participate in the European Army. The British, French and American diplomats told German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that West Germany could share in Atlantic pact planning and strategy only as a member of the European Army.

In Korea, the Communists challenged Allied rejection of Russia's nomination to a neutral inspection commission which would help police a Korean truce. The Reds declared that the Soviet Union qualifies by every standard as a neutral. Red staff officers demanded that the U. N. command explain its objection to Russia's nomination to the neutral nation commission which would make behind-the-lines inspections during an armistice.

The Maritime Administrator in Washington testified that the government has started action to repossess eight surplus ships involved in a deal in which a group made three million dollars profit. He told a Senate investigating committee that a recovery action has been filed against one of the ships, and cases involving the other seven have been referred to the Justice Department. He made the disclosure under questioning by a Senator who asked if the Maritime Administration has determined whether fraud was committed in the transaction.

In London, Britain announced she will test a new atomic weapon this year. The probable date and place are late September or early October on the bleak Woomera Rocket Range in Australia. British experts believe their weapon is better than any produced to date by the United States, but perhaps not as powerful.

At the same time, the Defense Department in Washington announced that preparations are underway for new atomic tests in the Pacific. The brief announcement gave no hint as to the nature of the tests. They will be conducted at Eniwetok, remote Pacific atoll, by a joint team of experts from the Navy, Army, Air Force and atomic energy commission.

Prayer Is Fundamentally a Matter of Courage

Whether we pray or not is at the bottom a question of courage. Prayer is an act of bravery. A coward cannot pray. The courage referred to here is not the type of courage that it takes to face our fellows in the act of prayer—The courage of the boy who ventures to kneel on the first night he is away from home in the barracks. That takes courage to be sure.

But it is not others whom we are chiefly afraid of—it is ourselves. We lack the courage to face the facts of our own inner lives. Our thinking gets muddy when we think of ourselves. We lack the courage to examine under all our disguises and expose to our own eyes what we are really like. It is easier to be honest everywhere else than in dealing with ourselves. We are afraid of the inner facts. We take shy peeps now and then, quick glances, but we do not look long nor steadily. Our attention is quickly diverted.

This timid and fearful way we have of treating ourselves is the reason we do not pray. If we want to pray we must be willing to search ourselves, and we must be willing to allow God to search us. We cannot expect God to be content with the false front that we put up not only for others, but for ourselves also. But God cannot search us, except through our own self-consciousness.

The very essence of prayer, therefore, is courage. But we have certain superstitious fears of looking into the mystery of our souls, much as a child is afraid to enter into a dark room. We must overcome this cowardice and deal firmly and bravely with the realities of our inner lives. We will not then be skeptical about prayer, for when we summon our courage honestly and face the facts about ourselves, we are at that moment in the act of prayer.

Do you have that kind of courage? Are you the type of brave man that can stand face to face with your soul before God? If you are, you are the type of brave man that God wants to enlist in his army for the fight against the evil which threatens to engulf all of His creation. When you can face yourself honestly you make it possible for the power of God to enter into you and give you the strength to resist the evil that is all around you.

Too many men in the world today are not brave enough to look at themselves honestly. Consequently they try to put on a brave front of power to those about them. This has resulted in a civilization that is crazed for power. Not an individual's power over himself, but the desire for power over others. If we are to meet this challenge, we must first search ourselves and let God search us. Then we will be filled with the power for brave action.

Armed Services YMCA Ends 12 Years Of Work Feb. 25

The Armed Service YMCA, Eleventh street, in Columbus, will celebrate its twelfth anniversary Feb. 25.

Included with the anniversary festivities of the YMCA will be the Anniversary dance on Saturday, Feb. 23. Open house will be held at the YMCA all day on Sunday, Feb. 23 and a special fellowship supper will conclude the celebration on Sunday, Feb. 23.

In 1939, citizens, ministers and post authorities felt the need for facilities of recreation for military personnel pouring into Benning. Together they asked help from the Army and Navy committee of the YMCA to survey local needs.

Under the leadership of the Army and Navy YMCA Committee of Management, the program grew and by the winter of 1939 a building had been rented and renovations were under way.

Known as the Army and Navy YMCA, operations began in the rented building on Feb. 7, 1940 with the dedication of the building following on Feb. 25 of that year. The work was financed almost wholly by the people of Columbus and Muscogee county. Except for a small grant by the Army and Navy department of the National Council, the initial cost of the renovation and furnishing was made by contributions from local individuals. The operating budget was provided by the city and county appropriations.

30TH INFANTRY SOLDIERS REENACT MAGAZINE POSE
Pfc. T. E. Scannell And Cpl. J. J. Kosuh Demonstrate Costs

Two Post Soldiers Appear In 'Life' Magazine Story

Two Fort Benning Infantry soldiers are the subjects of feature photographs in this week's (Feb. 18) issue of Life Magazine.

They are Pfc. Timothy E. Scannell of Detroit, Mich., and Cpl. John J. Kosuh of Clarksville, Pa., both members of Company D, 30th Infantry Regiment.

The photographs, snapped by Life photographer Robert Kelly, show the two soldiers wearing clothing tagged with the cost of each item. They help illustrate an article on the increased cost of ...pping the Armed Forces.

...ly and Life writer Coles F... visited Fort Benning two weeks a... to gather material on cost consciousness activities at The Infantry Center.

Publicity isn't new to private Scannell, but he said he never was featured in a national magazine before. In his high school days in Detroit he was selected as a guard on the 1947 Detroit Times All-City football team. He played football for St. Vincent's ther.

Corporal Kosuh, who returned from Germany a few months ago when he served with the First U. S. Infantry Division, spent a hitch in the Marines. He and private Scannell consider themselves good buddies.

The article, which the photographs help illustrate, explains that the Armed Services are setting up a procurement agency to buy clothing and equipment for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force at equal prices.

Private Scannell and Corporal Kosuh have been key men in the 30th Infantry's efforts to make all soldiers cost conscious about military clothing and equipment. Several times each week they walk through the regimental area with price tags on every item of clothing they wear.

This is all a part of a broad and concentrated supply economy and cost consciousness program under way at The Infantry Center.

Private Scannell is particularly aware of supply economy because his job in the Army is supply clerk for his company.

NOW UNIT COMMANDER

Post Psychologist Is Giving Infant Mental Health Talks

Capt. A. R. Levin, chief clinical psychologist, U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Benning, initiated a series of 12 talks on the Mental Health of Infants yesterday.

All Army mothers are invited to attend the talks which are to be held in the Prenatal Clinic (A-7) at the Post Hospital.

The talks will be primarily in the form of suggestions and advice on the bringing-up of the infant and each monthly talk will correspond to the age of the children whose mothers attend.

Typical of the talks that deal with the problems young mothers encounter will be the discussion of such topics as How Much Attention Should You Pay the Baby?, good food habits and good sleep habits for the babies.

As the child grows older and the talks progress the subjects will switch to more current problems. Examples of these include Putting Things In The Mouth, Learning To Talk, Spanking, Learning To Play With The Baby and Daddy's Time With The Baby.

Captain Levin received his Ph. B. degree from the University of Chicago and did graduate work in clinical psychology at the University of Chicago, University of Tennessee, and Emory university. He is a member of the American Psychological Association and division of counseling and guidance. He is also a member of the Georgia Psychological Association and the only licensed applied psychologist residing in Columbus.

Maj. Lloyd W. Engelland has been appointed Executive and Public Information officer at Headquarters, Area Service, Unit Provisional, group.

Major Engelland enlisted in the Army Mar. 8, 1934 and was commissioned second lieutenant June 27, 1942.

He has 36 months overseas service in Europe, Hawaii and Korea. Arriving at Fort Benning April 23, 1951, Major Engelland was S-4 officer, Headquarters, Area Service Unit Provisional group prior to his new assignment.

OCs Here Reply To Query Letter Of OC Prospect

Young men who want to become Army officers but fear the training should follow the example of Sgt. Robert O. Leitch of Fort Richardson, Alaska.

He has written the Infantry School here at Fort Benning and asked for suggestions from Present students on how to prepare himself for the 22-week Officer Candidate School course which he begins in March.

Two of the officers-to-be — Ernest H. Johnson, and John Hugenberg, answered Leitch's forthright request by reporting some of the course's important phases.

OCs Johnson and Hugenberg, in passages of their answer to Leitch, emphasized the necessity of a review of Army drill and courtesy manuals.

Hugenberg said some officer candidates drop early in the course because "they can't take discipline." He said stringent OCS discipline is necessary to make an officer a leader under exhausting conditions, "and in OCS they try to exhaust a man and test his courage of endurance."

Both Johnson and Hugenberg are Army veterans with several years service as enlisted men. They agreed that OCS is "a mark every soldier should try to reach."

1st Student Brigade Tells RC Drive Vice Chairman

Capt. Henry E. Berendsen, assistant adjutant of the First Student brigade has been appointed vice-chairman and unit representative for the Student Brigade in the 1952 Red Cross Drive.

A new comer to fund raising and promotion circles, Captain Berendsen is optimistic about collections among Brigade personnel. He has arranged with representatives of the First, Second and Third Student regiments for an all-out kickoff on the Feb. 29 payday.

The record of Company D of the Airborne Battalion, First Student Regiment, is still unchallenged from the 1951 drive when the company reported 100 per cent collections from a student class before the drive began. Captain Berendsen hopes to maintain the Brigade standing in leading the pack. He also pointed out that the ratio of collections ($39,138.94), compared to disbursements ($92,661.31), is about three to one for the post.

"This in itself is a compelling reason why Fort Benning personnel should be deeply concerned in attaining the goal of a dollar membership for everyone on the post," he said.

Collections from Brigade personnel will be divided into three categories: (1) students attending classes here, (2) cadre, or permanently assigned military personnel, and, (3) classified civilian personnel serving with Brigade units.

U.S. Army Field Band Set For Benning Show In April

Fort Benning will be host April 5 for the U. S. Army Field Band which is making a 24-city concert tour between Washington, D. C., and Havana, Cuba.

At least 120 musicians will be in the band's one - night appearance at The Infantry Center's Briant Wells Field House.

Capt. John P. Finigan, the band's liaison officer who arranges local appearances, said the Fort Benning show will be open only to military personnel and their dependents.

He said, however, the band would make public appearances in Macon, Ga., on April 6 and Atlanta on April 7.

When the colorfully - uniformed bandsmen appeared at the post in 1950, it staged a show equaling a music hall production—variety acts, choral groups and symphonic and popular music.

Maj. Chester E. "Chuck" Whiting, famous director of the band, is scheduled to bring a completely new show.

Two of the band's featured performers are ballad tenor Sgt. John P. Riccobene, and baritone singer Sgt. Eugene W. Coughlin whose voice has been acclaimed by the Pacific Opera company as "comparable to Lawrence Tibbet in his prime." The two singers are only part of the concert's colorful performance.

One of the band's acts — six drummers beating rythm and swapping drumsticks in mid-air to the light of phosphorescent cuffs and gloves — was filmed by a large motion picture company and distributed to theaters throughout the nation.

Concerts have been given by the band at most Army posts in the country, plus special appearances at Carnegie Hall in New York and the Hollywood (Calif.) Bowl.

Its trip to Havana will be a good-will performance at various Cuban Army installations and public bandshells.

OCs Have Lawyer To Help With Tax

Personnel of the Second Officer Candidate Company, Third Student Regiment, have a member of the Louisana State Bar to assist them in figuring their income tax.

OC George C. Dixon graduated from the Louisana State University Law School in September, 1950 and was admitted to the State Bar Association the same year.

Candidate Dixon entered the Army in February, 1951 and was assigned to the Judge Advocate General's Office at Ft. Jackson, S. C. While a member of this staff, he did legal assistance work for military personnel and taught Military Law courses at Ft. Jackson's NCO school.

NCOs Form Council For Guidance Here

A character guidance council composed of non commissioned officers from each major command has been inaugurated here to aid and supplement The Infantry Center character guidance council.

Maj. Lester B. Johnson, assistant Infantry Center G-1, explained that this was a new step in character guidance here. He said that such a council has not existed before at Fort Benning.

"We feel that this council will enable the character guidance program to get closer to the individual," he explained. "Senior NCOs who have had quite extensive Army experience have been selected for the council from each command."

According to the Army Regulation which provides for the Character Guidance program, it is designed to assist the commander in promoting a healthy moral and mental attitude on the part of the personnel under his command. The Army will endeavor to insure the continuance of the wholesome influence of the home, the family and the community. It is designed to encourage the individual to develop moral responsibility and self-discipline."

The first meeting of the council will be held on Mar. 10 with M-Sgt. Alexander Guss, representative from Headquarters Detachment Combat Training Command, as chairman. Future meetings will be held every three months in the month prior to the scheduled meeting of The Infantry Center council.

Chairmanship of the NCO council will be rotated among the members, and the chairman will attend the regular meetings of the TIC council. The chairman will report on activities of the NCO council and present any recommendation made by the council for consideration and action.

The Infantry Center provost marshal, chaplain, special services officer and surgeon have been designated as advisory members of the council, and will attend all meetings.

Others are John M. Miller, Infantry School Detachment; Frank O. Hammond, Section I, 3440th Area Service Unit Station Medical; Paul R. Dunlap, 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment; Sidney L. McHargue, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment Section I, 3440th Area Service Unit, and Howard E. Jones, Army Field Forces Board No. 3.

BENNING RADIO NEWS

MSgt. BOB GROOVER

While it is a custom to use only one subject on the "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM Noon, Sundays), five different subjects were used on last Sunday's show.

First, T. A. Barefoot, chief of Fort Benning's Civilian Personnel gave a run-down on utilization of civilian personnel. Then, Sgt. Joe L. Persons, first sergeant of Service company, First Student Regiment, told about his company winning the 1951 Supply Economy Award. This was followed by an interview with Maj. Enrique Paris, a Colombian student at The Infantry School. And finally, Maj. Chester B. McCoy, 82nd Airborne Division, gave a first-hand account of the division's move from Fort Bragg, N. C., to "Exercise Long Horn" in Texas.

Next Sunday on "Fort Benning Feature Page" you will hear an on-the-spot broadcast of the 30th Infantry Regiment's anniversary party, scheduled for tomorrow night. The event will take place in the Sand Hill Service Club.

The Combat Training Command held the spotlight on last week's "Benning In Review" (WRBL AM-FM, 6:15 p.m. Saturdays) last week, as they will again this week. Last Saturday's program included an on-the-spot recording made in a motor pool of the CTC. This Saturday's program will include an on-the-spot recording made in a firing pit being used by men of the C.T.C.

"Benning News Parade" (WDAK, 5:30 p.m., Saturdays) had two interesting personalities in its mail last Saturday. They were Brig. Gen. L. V. Murrow, commander Lawson AFB, and Mrs. Moira Sheen, director of the Fort Benning Little Theater Group.

General Murrow told about how units at Lawson AFB would participate in Exercise Long Horn, and Mrs. Sheen told about the opening of "Over 21", the first production to be offered by the Fort Benning Little Theater Group.

General Murrow told us that his brother, CBC Commentator Edward R. Murrow, would visit him at Fort Benning in about three or four weeks, and you can bet that we will have him some of the Fort Benning radio shows, if at all possible. Keep reading this column for further news along this line.

As interesting personalities visit or are assigned to Fort Benning, we will have them on "Benning News Parade," your only complete summary of the Fort Benning weekly news.

Our thanks to Cpl. Bruce Summers, Company A, Infantry School Detachment, for furnishing some old but still good platters for "Musical Memory Room" (Channel 3, WFBS, 8 to 9 p.m., Thursdays).

A thirty-minute radio quizz show will take place in Service Club No. 1 Sunday, at 3 p.m. The entire program will be taped and later auditioned in Columbus to secure a radio spot. If the audition is successful, the show will become a weekly feature.

We think you will like this show, so try to be on hand when it kicks off.

Post Soldier Has 3-Way Phone Reunion With Kin

A Fort Benning sergeant was reunited Friday with his mother in Ohio and a brother in Kentucky while thousands of radio listeners joined in the happy occasion.

But it was radio and telephone that brought together Sgt. Roger V. Hodges and two other members of his family - not the family homestead.

The 18 - year - old National Guardsman picked up a telephone here and talked for 20 minutes, free, to Mrs. Elmo Hodges, who was in the radio studios of Cincinnati's WLW, and his 19 - year - old brother, Pvt. Elmo Hodges Jr., at Camp Breckinridge, Ky.

Mrs. Hodges and her two young sons talked to each other during WLW's Morning Matinee program. The mother was guest of the station on her birthday.

Sgt. Hodges was brought from an Infantry School training area for the telephone call, which he didn't know about until he lifted the receiver. He then joined the triangular hook - up - it also ran through the radio lines of WLW - and had a long distance family reunion.

Mrs. Hodges has eight sons and two daughters. One of the boys, Cpl. Donald Hodges, 22, is aboard a ship in the Atlantic Ocean en route to the U. S. from Germany.

Roger is taking The Infantry School's 16-week light and heavy weapons course.

Infantry Company Exists For Only Twenty-Six Days

This is the story of an infantry company that lived for just 26 days!

A company of four officers and 142 enlisted men that was activated here at Fort Benning on Jan. 14, 1952 and deactivated Feb. 8.

It'll never be found in official Army records. Few people outside of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team even know it existed.

But the 508th Aggressor Company was a very real striking force to the three 508th rifle battalions who fought off its patrols during recent field maneuvers at Fort Benning.

Commanded by one of America's behind-the-lines agents of World War II, 1st Lieutenant Howard E. Williams, the 508th Aggressors were comprised of the Intelligence and Reconnaissance and the Antitank and Mines platoons of the 508th Headquarters and Headquarters Company. Also one section of Support Company's 90-mm antitank guns and one rifle squad from each of the 508th rifle companies were in the unit.

The 508th Aggressors, whose mission it was to make the situation as near combat as possible for the 508th battalions holed by night and slept by day in the base camp across the railroad tracks from the town of Upatoi.

COMPANY COMMANDER

Capt. R. F. Morgan, a veteran of 12 months Korean duty, has been assigned as commanding officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First Student Regiment.

The battalions were tested in three phases — Defense, Withdrawal and Attack. It was just the reverse for the Aggressors and they had a busy day on night patrols, probing attacks and dawn forays.

Post Lieutenant Owns Dude Ranch

Dudes are generally considered a laughing matter to most people, but not to 1st Lt. George E. Hansen of the Second Student Regiment. He's in the business.

A student in associate company Infantry Officer's class Lieutenant Hansen is the owner-operator of a 36-acre dude ranch that was once owned by Fred Garlow, grandson of Buffalo Bill Cody. The ranch is on the edge of Yellowstone National Park in Cooke City, Mont.

Dude ranchin' in Lieutenant Hansen's part of the country is not scheduled to get into full swing until the middle of June and continues until late September.

After the dude trade goes back to the city, the hunting season takes over and continues until November, when snow slows down the activities.

Summer clientele at the ranch include 75 teen-age boys, most of whom are from midwestern cities. They spend six weeks at the ranch under the guidance of three counselors who are native westerners, usually college boys, and also work as wranglers under the supervision of a head wrangler.

Benning Observes Brotherhood Week

Brotherhood Week, sponsored each year by the National Conference for Christians and Jews, began here Sunday at all post chapels.

Two post chaplains are addressing Jewish groups during this period.

Infantry Center Chaplain (Col.) Joel M. Wareing will address the congregation of Sherith Israel Synagogue in Columbus, at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Assistant Infantry center Chaplain (Maj.) Robert B. Herndon will speak to a Jewish congregation in the Hospital chapel here at the same time.

Fort Benning's OC School Marks First Birthday After Reopening

The Fort Benning Officer Candidate School is one year old today, its first birthday since reopening in 1951.

On this day last year, the first candidates began their efforts towards the gold bar as members of the First Officer Candidate Company.

The school has been expanding throughout the year, and today a new class starts each week. One class a month graduates now, but in March this will go up to two classes per month, and in April one per week.

The acceleration of the OCS program has not affected the high standards required of the individual candidates. Col. Harry M. Grizzard, commander of the Third Student Regiment, said "Quality, not quantity, is still our goal."

The OCS program at Benning first began in July 1941. The peak load was reached between September and December 1942, when 60 classes were training. From 1941 until 1947, when the school was closed, 66,141 men won their bars.

The school was reopened last February, and in November the Third Student regiment was formed for the primary purpose of administrating the officer candidate program here.

Two Places Added To Off-Limits List

Two establishments, one in Phenix City, the other in Columbus, have been placed off limits to all Fort Benning military personnel.

They are listed as the French Casino, Opelika Road, (Highway 241), Phenix City, and the Cozy Spot Cafe, 615, Eighth avenue, Columbus.

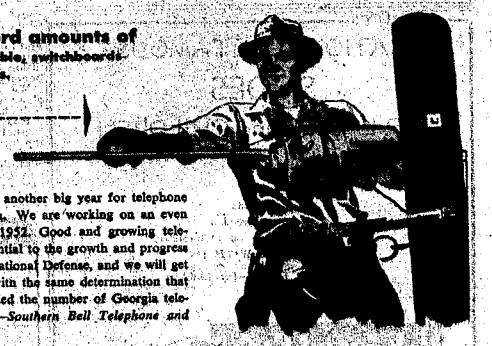
GROWING
Here's what we did to meet Georgia's telephone needs during 1951 . . .

Installed 110,314 New Telephones for a gain of 37,674—12,043 of them in Rural Areas

Installed record amounts of new pole lines, cable, switchboards and other facilities.



LAST YEAR was another big year for telephone expansion in Georgia. We are working on an even larger program for 1952. Good and growing telephone service is essential to the growth and progress of Georgia and to National Defense, and we will get along with the job with the same determination that has more than doubled the number of Georgia telephones in 8 years.—Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Changes Made In AF Officer Appointments

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A number of changes in the system of appointing officers to the regular Air Force have been announced. The changes, which will be included in a revised edition of AF Regulation 36-5, effective April 1, 1952, include:

1. Gradual discontinuance of appointment to regular status of distinguished graduates of the Aviation Cadets, Officer Candidate, and AF Reserve Officer Training Corps programs.

2. Selection of applicants for regular appointment on a competitive basis after 18 months of active commissioned service. Present regulations call for 12 months of previous active commissioned service.

3. Maximum age reduced to 28 1-2 years. Formerly, the limit was 30 years.

4. After April 1, Reserve officers must be on active duty to apply. Presently, inactive Reserve officers are also eligible.

5. Selections will be made twice a year. Appointments in certain professional fields are not affected by the changes.

Other countries with students at The Infantry School are Republic of Korea, Indonesia, Iran, Switzerland, Brazil, France, Norway, Denmark, England, Belgium, Portugal, Spain, Haiti, Cuba, Mexico, Canada, Guatemala and El Salvador.

Maj. Gen. Hickey Inspects 508th, Now in His Command

Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps, Fort Bragg, N. C., Friday inspected the newest member of his command, Fort Benning's 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

The 508th officially went under the command of General Hickey's headquarters Feb. 15, just in time to coordinate plans for the 508th to participate next month in Operation Longhorn, Texas maneuver.

General Hickey and his corps staff arrived here Thursday afternoon. They went almost immediately to Fort Benning's Alabama area to inspect the 82nd Airborne Division in bivouac here en route to Texas where it will act as the Aggressor force in Longhorn.

The 508th will enter the Longhorn maneuver on the side of U. S. forces late in the operation.

General Hickey was accompanied here by his son, 1st Lt. F. Joseph Hickey, formerly of the First Cavalry Division and now his father's junior aide. Senior aide to the general is Capt. William H. Jenkins.

Also accompanying the 52-year-old general were Col. William E. Eckman, Col. John Franklin and Lt. Col. Albert Marin.

Colonel Eckman was executive officer of the original 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

General Hickey and his staff returned to Fort Bragg Friday afternoon.

Dangerous Sweaters Now in Circulation

A "poof" sweater, highly inflamable and dangerous to the wearer, is now on display at the quartermaster dry cleaning plant.

Made of material that feels similar to the Christmas tree decoration known as "angel hair", the sweaters do not carry the name of the manufacturer.

The brand, or trade names, on most of the sweaters are glued in and include such names as Cameo, Camel, Esquire, Embassy, Bradford Sportswear, Flosmore, and Berkshire Sport Wear.

Persons having sweaters where there is any doubt about its material are invited to take the items to Fire Station No. 1 and consult the fire chief.

Mickey Mantle's leg has been pronounced 100 per cent sound for the coming season, the New York Yankees reported this week. Detroit manager Red Rolfe may miss the Tigers' early workouts while convalescing from an appendectomy last week. Eddie Stanky, new Cardinals' manager, suffered an attack of flu last week.

Post Sergeant Has Served In Three Different Armies

"I may not be the oldest enlisted man in the U. S. Army," says M-Sgt. Cornelius Van Zelden, "but at 70 I was the youngest in the Dutch Army."

Sixty-three year old Sergeant Van Zelden, is information and Education NCO for the Military Section I, 3440th Area Service Unit. He says that in 1904 while he was serving a two year hitch as a cadet in the Dutch Army, he was the youngest man in that Army's uniform.

Following his two year hitch with the Dutch, Sergeant Van Zelden enlisted with the French Foreign Legion in Indo-China until a protest from the Dutch Army resulted in his being released.

In 1917 he enlisted in the U.S. Army and was promoted to first sergeant after 10 days service. Eight months later, after attending officer training school, he was commissioned a second lieutenant.

He was discharged in 1919 and for the next 23 years he operated a 3,000 acre cotton plantation in Louisiana.

Following the outbreak of World War II, he applied for and was called to active duty as a first lieutenant in May, 1943.

Four years later, while serving in Iran, he was promoted to captain. In 1945 he was sent back to the states and was assigned to Fort McClellan, Ala.

In July, 1946, he was sent to Europe where he served for an additional 27 months as a police court judge, prior to his return to the states and separation in October 1948.

He immediately reenlisted and was assigned to the MP Detachment.

"My greatest pleasure in life is hunting" says the venerable sergeant, "and I believe that I may hold some kind of record. I shot 316 wild hogs in 18 months while serving in Iran."

Capt. Grogan Now S-2 for CTC, 30th Infantry Regiment

A senior parachutist who helped pave the way for many of today's paratrooper operations has been named S-2 of Combat Training Command and the 30th Infantry Regiment.

He is Capt. Owen R. Grogan, a Korean veteran who formerly tested airborne equipment at Fort Bragg, N. C. Among the items he tested there was the Hart parachute, which he tested when the C-82 cargo plane was introduced.

Capt Grogan was assigned to the 30th once before, when the Third Infantry Division was here.

He went to Korea with the division and later commanded Company L, Seventh Infantry Regiment. Captain Grogan was awarded the Silver Star for action he performed as a company commander.

A graduate of Louisiana State University, he expects to enroll in the advanced Infantry officers' course at The Infantry School in about four months.

Rangers

its way back to the beach to be evacuated.

Detected

During their landing on the coast the students were detected by Air Force radar carrying planes. These in turn summoned photo reconnaissance planes. Finally a plane was sent over to strafe the "invaders," but a landing was made without casualty.

All students are non-commissioned officers from the 47th and 31st National Guard Infantry Divisions. They are all carefully screened volunteers. They must pass rigid physical tests, must be swimmers, and possess high mental qualifications.

More than half the training is conducted at night, and Saturdays and Sundays are usually regarded as work days. The rugged course is designed to turn out super-soldiers who return to their units and instruct others in the subjects they have learned at The Infantry School.

The first three weeks of their stay at Benning is taken up with making the students expert infantrymen. Physical fitness is stressed before they turn to special operations such as jungle and mountain work.

Use A Trailer

Jungle training includes handling of snakes and other reptiles, small boat techniques, routes of movement through swampy areas and how to survive by eating native tropical plants.

The idea of ranger training died out at the end of World War II but was revived soon after the outbreak of the Korean war. At that time Rangers were trained as units. One of the requirements was that each volunteer must be a graduate of Ranger school. Remember the Ranger patrol that recently raided the Chinese lines? Instead of training separate units, the Army has decided to raise the caliber of the infantry by training individual non-commissioned officers.

Lt. Col. Adams Gets Command of 2nd Student Regiment

Lt. Col. Willis J. Adams has assumed command of the Second Student Regiment, succeeding Lt. Col. Howard F. Haberman, who has left for an overseas assignment.

Colonel Adams, who has been executive officer of the unit for the past year, served in Europe with the 121st Infantry Regiment, Eighth Division during World War II. From 1946 to 1948, he was assistant professor of military science and tactics at the University of Alabama.

In 1948 he joined the Seventh Division in Korea, and later was transferred to Japan. He holds the Silver Star Medal, Bronze Star Medal with two oak leaf clusters, and the Legion of Merit.

Library Tells Concert Plans

ed from the fight prior to this deadly barrage tomorrow.

Every combat situation from battlefield medical treatment to supply requests will be judged. Umpires will grade every echelong of the participating unit. If the tests are satisfactory, Army officials are expected to publish them for periodic distribution to all battalion - sized Army units through the world.

Col. Mangold said that taking the test does not indicate a unit will be sent overseas into combat.

Col. Robert G. Turner, director of The Infantry School's Tactical Department, said, "It's simply a test to determine if a unit is what we call, 'combat ready.' The Army wants every unit in that shape — all the time."

508TH COMPANY MIXES INDIRECT MORTAR AND DIRECT ANTI-TANK FIRE
Sgt. Sal Condon Stands Behind The 90-mm Anti-Tank Gun, The 4.2-Inch Mortar Is At Left

508th Sports Rare Company Only 8 Like It In The Army

BY LT. ROBERT W. FEENEY
PIO—508th Abn. RCT

The "mystery" company of the airborne is the Support Company. There are only eight of them in the Army today and the only one at Fort Benning is in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

It's called a "mystery" company because it's really a field artillery battery in an airborne infantry regiment, such as the Support Company in the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment. Artillery has been simplified much since World War II but many an infantryman still is trying to solve the intricacies of using the 4.2 - inch mortars as they should be, namely a la artillery.

The 508th's Support Company, with its 4.2-inch mortars and 90-mm antitank guns, can pour out as much fire-power as the entire 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, which along with the 598th Airborne Engineer Company, also is in the 508th ARCT.

A Support Company is a new gimmick to the airborne. The first Support companies were organized Dec. 3, 1947 in the 504th and 505th Regiments in the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Two pioneers from these units are today in the 508th Support Company. They are M-Sgt. John D. Hill, ex-Merchant Marine, and Sfc. Francis San Pietro, an operations sergeant in charge of the Fire Direction Center. Sergeant Hill runs the two mortar platoons while Sergeant San Pietro recently switched to first sergeant.

The 508th Support Company officers, all first lieutenants, are Lt. Robert C. Morris, commander; William J. Ankley, executive; Gilbert D. Diffenderfer and Joseph W. Wright, mortar platoon leaders; and the 90-mm gun expert, Lt. Ludwig Faistenhammer, former St. Bonaventure College football star.

Thirty-three vehicles are used to scatter the company when the regiment is in attack or defense.

The company keeps "tied" to the regiment by a wire and radio net and if the communications fail — just as in artillery — why they the officers and enlisted men in Support Company might just have well "stood in bed." The job can't be done—which is supporting the rifle battalions with instantaneous, massed heavy mortar fire.

How good are 4.2's? Well, when Brig. Gen. John Hersey (Mike) Michaelis of World War II and Korea fame was here last summer, he said "The 4.2's are terrific killers!"

598th Engineers Have Trouble Keeping Unit's Numbers Right

Confusin' and not smusin' is the role of the officers and men of the 598th Airborne Engineer Company. That's 598 and its the workhorse unit of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Biggest source of the mix-up for these leaping engineers is the similarity of the numeral designation. "People are always insisting that we mean '508th' when we say '598th,' says M-Sgt. Walter J. Partridge, hand-sized first sergeant of the only airborne engineers at Fort Benning. "I've been in the engineers since 1945 and it's surprising the number of people, in or out of the Army, who still don't know that there are airborne engineers."

It's especially confusing to a new man arriving at Benning, trying to report in to the 598th Airborne Engineers. Take the case of the 598th executive, 1st Lt. Philip E. Bishop.

To get to Columbus, pick up the telephone and call the Fort Benning operator. She says: "You mean the 508th. There's no such thing as the 598th Engineers."

"Yes, there is. It says so right on my orders!"

Finally, Lieutenant Bishop located the 598th Airborne Engineer Company in the Sand Hill Area as part of the 508th ARCT. "Then I found," he recalls, "when I tried to get PX cards, officers' mess cards, etc., that people were suspicious and even openly indicated that there was no such place as the 598th Airborne Engineers."

(Editor's Note: we have trouble, with the limitypists too, changing the 598 to 508. We hope they're convinced now!)

Cotton Won Post's Top Fight

Long after the present post ring series is over those who are fortunate enough to be called "old timers" around Fort Benning will be telling the awesome tale of the heavyweight fight between Robert Cotton and Lou Barnes.

For the record, Cotton, 184-3, of ASU Provisional Group, took a three-round decision from Barnes, 180, of the First Student Regiment, on the Tuesday, Feb. 12, card before 1,500 hysterical fans at Briant Wells Field House.

The decision could have gone either way. At any point in the massive struggle it might have been knockout for either fighter. All the fury that the big, handsome 21-year olds could muster was thrown into that bestial nine minutes of mayhem.

Yet whether either will win the 1952 post heavyweight title is problematical. There are several other outstanding contenders, including Dick Lohmann, who had taken a previous decision from Cotton — but this is the fistic gem they will remember.

The crowd was on its feet soon after the bell rang. The proud Cotton roared out to avenge the defeat handed him by Lohmann the previous week. Barnes, a veteran of seven AAU fights, but with only two days of serious training for this one, saw he was going to have to slug it all of the way, tossing out the pace-action he had planned for himself.

There were no clinches in round one. It was all deliberate slugging with very few wild blows. Barnes caught a straight right to the chin; buckled and went down. He was up and eager at the mandatory eight count and Cotton roared in again to press his advantage.

Barnes met him with a flurry of rights and lefts, but Cotton, who was making the fifth fight of his budding career, was getting in the telling blows, murderous straight rights. The bell stopped his pursuit.

A scowling Barnes came out for the second to avenge his knockdown. Cotton, deadpanned, to press his lead. This was to be the greatest round yet fought this year in a Benning ring. Two rights carrying all of his 184-3-4 pounds jolted Barnes to the heels. But he held on. He did that and backed up to smash Cotton's jaw with a right cross that watered his foe's knees.

Now Cotton held on as the claret began to trickle from his nose. With the howls of the starry-eyed, kayo - hungary crowd cheering him on, Cotton came back in. Barnes, who had taken a momentary

Olympic Nix Puts Skiier In Nationals

Boyish Gardner Smith, Airborne Battalion trainee in First Student Regiment, who except for a technicality might have been the third serviceman on the current United States Olympic ski team, is going to get a crack at national competition anyway.

The 21-year old Modesto, Calif., youth, who arrived here only last week, will go on leave a week from Tuesday to compete in the tough National Giant Slalom March 9 in Utah.

Two weeks ago he won the Dodge Ridge, Calif., class A giant slalom, a 30-gater, time to be negotiated in 1:34.1 average time for two runs, against 117 other top skiiers.

The five-foot, ten-inch, 155 pounder comparatively small for a board competitor, got in that event thanks to a delay enroute coming from Camp Roberts, Calif., where he volunteered for airborne training and was assigned to Fort Benning.

"I guess I just like anything daring, new or different," he commented by way of explaining his interest both in the Airborne and skiing. Smith was inducted into the Army last June and is a graduate of leadership school.

Skiing since his early teens and racing seriously for the past two years, Gardner has competed with most of the members of the U. S. team now in Norway, which includes a ten-man 2-c on leave from the Navy and an Air Force private.

Amateur skiiers are rated in three classes and Smith hopes that his chance to try for the current U. S. squad. He placed third in the combined Silver Dollar Derby, downhill and slalom last March which gave him the necessary points to be rated in class A, but by the time his standing became official the Olympic selections were made.

"I'm looking forward to the 1956 Olympics though," he says. "When I get out of the service all I'm going to do is train for that and enter every national and international meet I can.

"It'll be a tough job. The fellows on this year's team are all in their early 30's and they're good. They'll be back in 1956, but I hope to have the experience by them. Experience and tough legs are what count in ski competition."

Nationals Next

Smith's next immediate goal will be to get time off to participate in the National Downhill and Slalom at Stowe, Vt. in late March. He stands a good chance of making it. His application for a position on the United States team for this year's Olympic Military Patrol was approved all the way up to the War Department, but the event was subsequently stricken from Olympic competition.

Three Games Highlight Week's Basketball Card

The guy who made the crack about the bigger they come, the harder they fall, may have had this week's Fort Benning Basketball League schedule in mind. Two games critically affecting the top three teams are on tap.

Torrid Third Student Regiment, unbeaten in ten starts, has to face Combat Training Command Team One Wednesday night. The Commanders led at every intermission and came within three minutes of upending the league-leading Third in their last meeting.

Sensational 508th Airborne, in third place after winning six straight, meets First Student Regiment, still a bonafide second-place club, but currently having alarming troubles, with their shooting accuracy. This one is scheduled Tuesday night at Harmony Church.

Not to be dismissed lightly, however, is tonight's encounter between Lawson Air Force Base and CTC Team Two at 7 p.m. at Harmony Church. The Flyers may turn out to be a nagging in-law for the other contenders.

The Flyers, subbing for AFF Board Three, are mathematically eliminated from winning the title themselves, but if their good showing against First Student Regiment Monday night was criterion, they may play a big role in determining which team does win it.

There will be no games tomorrow night, Friday, because of George Washington holiday.

Also of note, two league teams will be in action this week under new coaches. They are Bill Holden, for Provisional Medical Group, and John Feldman for Infantry School Detachment.

Feldman, a 6-3, 215 pound ex-Marine, is the only member of the team last fall replacing Hall-stead Stone who has received overseas orders. Feldman, one-end and heavy scorer for the Eagles, replaces Erwin Fleet who is attending school.

TENSENESS OF THIRD-FIRST S. R. GAME REFLECTED: Generals' Bruce Mahon (5), Bill Gallagher (6), James Williams (right), and First's John Wilson (10), and Vern Griffin (9).

ASU Pacing Ring Series

More than 40 rounds of boxing have been scheduled for the fourth in the sensational weekly series of Fort Benning championship bouts at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at Briant Wells Field House. The standing room only sign is being prominently displayed there.

Three Teams Rate 'Champs'

The Fort Benning championship boxing series doesn't end until April 29, but it looks like fan some post-titles won't be decided until the last minute. However, here's the way the sluggers we've seen shape up in each division after two cards, according to Sports Editor Charlie Johnson.

HEAVYWEIGHT — Dick Lohmann, 1st S.E., and Bob Cotton, ASU.

LIGHT HEAVY (166-178) — James Boyd, 1st S. E., Harvey Distel, CTC, and Gordon Hill CTC.

MIDDLEWEIGHT (157- 165) — Leon Hall, CTC, Gordon Hill, CTC, and George Stampe, 1st S.E.

LIGHT MIDDLE (148-156) — Freeman Thatcher ASU, Eudolph Chiles, ASU, Ray Lee, 1st S.E., and Leon Felder CTC.

WELTERWEIGHT (140 - 147) — Ray Lewis, 508th, William Russell, ASU, and Sylvester Sulaman, 508th.

LIGHT WELTER (133-139) — Les James, 1st S.E., and Jerry Sharaza, 508th.

FEATHERWEIGHT (120 - 125) — Charles McKinney ASU.

BANTAMWEIGHT (113 - 119) — George Allen, ASU, and Jimmy Shimabuku, 3rd S.E.

FLYWEIGHT (under 113) — Nelson Reynolds, 508th.

NEW CADREMEN ASSIGNED

New cadremen assigned to the 121st Company, Second Student Regiment, are Pfc's Glenn B. Kidd and Franklin D. Shiver. Pfc. Elmer M. Blystone, a former 121st Company cadreman is now on his way to Japan.

ASU Provisional Group, defending post champs, took over the team scoring lead Tuesday night with three wins and seven points to swell their total to 49.

Others in order are 508th Airborne, 38, First Student Regiment, 29, Combat Training Command, 24, Infantry School Detachment, 8, and Provisional Medical Group and Third Student Regiment, one, each.

CTC's 12 points was high Tuesday featured by the win of Harvey Distel, 175 1-4, over First SR's Lou Barnes, 176 1-2. Distel had Barnes on the floor from a series of vicious rights at the end.

Other outstanding wins were scored by PMG's Freddie Wint, 153 1-2, First Student Regiment's Ernest Hall, 146 1-2, Ray Leuts, 138 3-4, of 508th, and CTC's Gordon Hall, 165.

ASU and First Student Regiment both picked up ten points during the week when two of their class one fighters went unmatched for the second time after being offered for challenge.

They were ASU's George Allen, defending Third Army bantamweight king, and First Student Regiment's James Boyd, who won the post lightweight crown fighting for ASU last year. The other teams are expected to have fighters ready to challenge them next week.

508th Airborne got six points when bantamweight Neary Kwasaki went unchallenged for the second time, The shot, giving rule is designed to keep rival teams from ducking matches with standout fighters.

Also at last week's boxing board meeting, Harvey Distel, Combat Training Command light heavyweight, was moved up from class three to class two on the strength of his sensational knockout win over 508th's Randal Johnston, despite his having had only two fights.

Lou Barnes, who lost the memorable encounter to Bob Cotten, was dropped from the heavyweight to light heavy class. Barnes has been weighing in at 186 pounds which means that with a minimum of sweating he can make the 179 light heavy limit.

However, if he wants to go back for a shot at the heavy crown, it will take another decision by the board to do it, a ruling they might not readily make since several of the other teams have heavyweights who might grab the crown with Barnes out of the way.

In other board action, ASU's Robert Flores, who outpointed Infantry School Detachment's Marie Monaco, as a featherweight a week ago, was moved up to the lightweight class. Poor Roberto had to sweat off nine pounds for that bout, his first starting him in the two rain coats and locking him in the shower with the hot faucet going full blast.

CP roy i s i o n a l Medical Group made its debut on last Tuesday's card and Second Student Regiment is expected to have a couple of entries for next Tuesday's match. All eight teams entered in the tournament will then be in action.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

THE FANS are asked to turn out on Tuesday nights at Briant Wells Field House, but the best action of the boxing season each week is held Thursday afternoons in the basement of the post sports office. That's where the ring coaches meet to match their fighters. For those who think the only culture left in our decadent democracy is on a glass slide under a microscope, a visit to one of these cauliflower conclaves could be enlightening.

If you have tears to shed for the coaches don't blame the onions. In amateur fighting it's not enough that a mentor have a boy who fits into one of the eight standard weight divisions. There are ten scale brackets, light welter and light middleweight being added. Then there's the matter of classification according to experience.

Briefly, a class one fighter is a former amateur champion or a veteran performer, while class two is for men with approximately six wins in ten bouts, and class three for youngsters putting on the gloves for the first or second time. Five, three and one points respectively are awarded to winners in each class. Add to this the matter of parlimentary procedure to be followed in conducting one of these challenge meetings and you will understand why, the next time I have nothing to do, which I hope is never, I am writing to Emily Post for instructions.

The complicated system leads the coaches to consult each other before making a move, especially in the wrong direction, and explains why moderator Bill DeLong, when interviewed by mental telepathy, was able to sum up the subject in two words: "No comment." Bill is eminently qualified to act as moderator at these confusing sessions, being such a pacifist that, in singing the National Anthem, he always says: "Bon bons bursting in air."

Sgt. Larry Jones, who turned down being named ASU's Man of the Year to remain their Man of the Hour in boxing and First Student Regiment's Coach Jerome Perlman, who has never been accused of putting on his socks after lacing his combat boots, have each predicted that their mitt teams will win the post championship, making for much interesting repartee, which I imagine as follows.

"I have a welterweight up for challenge who can lick any hum on the post," says Mr. Perlman.

"What makes you so modest?" queries Jones.

"I guess it's because I was born under modest circumstances, and the Ginsbergs, who lived upstairs," is the retort proper from Mr. Perlman in our highly hypothetical interview.

Figures being able to prove anything except that you don't owe back taxes to the government, Coach Frank Carr, of CTC, then introduces statistics on one of his fighters whom he would like to match: "Now you take — — —."

"I won't take him unless I get 3-to-1 odds," interrupts 508th Coach Hardy Batchelor, who then proceeds to tell his rival just where to get off. "You get off at the main post bus stop and walk two blocks left to Briant Wells."

Coach Jones next asks if he can get double points for the 55-second knockout his Freeman Thatcher scored over First Student Regiment's George Stampe, because of it being the quickest kayo of the series thus far. A rival mentor remarks that if Stampe had been a saloon he could have been arrested for being open at all hours, and the subject is thus disposed.

Someone glances at the press table and apparently mistakes me for a sculptor of note, for I distinctly overhear the remark: "There's the big chisler now." But I explain that I am present merely to report the proceedings, which I have done above in a manner which should alleviate the world's critical food shortage in that this column has produced more corn than Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas combined last year.

Sixteen matches having been made for next Tuesday, Sports Officer William Fannin brings the meeting to a close, at long last, egad, with this statement for the press: "Just tell the fans how boxing, you know, is always this and that and put in there how we accomplish things and about knockouts. You get the idea. Just keep it about boxing." You may start the presses when ready, Gridley!

IN THE NAMES of Benning boxing coaches Jerome Perlman, First Student Regiment and Robert Campbell, Infantry School Detachment, don't register with eastern ring fans now stationed here, perhaps it's because they were better known as Jerry Stone and Bobby Collins respectively when they were punching for pay.

Perlman was a better than average welter in New York's many club rings in the 1932-37 era, assuming the name of Stone in deference to his dad, who, as Abe Stone, fought such greats as Benny Leonard, Johnny Dundee and Abe Attell in his ring heyday. Perlman, who has coached the 11th and 505th Airborne boxing squads, is still in good enough trim to don the gloves against his present mitt pupils to give them personal coaching.

Campbell smilingly conceded that he fought in New York and New England rings six years ago, under the name of Collins, also out of thought for his father. "Dad probably would have thrown me out of the house if he had known," he says. The Syracuse, N. Y., pugilist listed Mike Sead and Billy Graham among his 62 pro opponents.

Lawson Out Goals 1st, But Loses

Coach John Smith's Lawson Air Force Base was a certified unit bonded member of the Fort Benning Basketball League today.

First Student Regiment marred the Flyers' debut, 78-64, but they had to go to the free throw line to do it after Lawson out-goaled them, 28-24, Monday night at Briant Wells Field House.

Coach Bob Kinard's rebounding black shirts, man for man, matched and then won the difference to Lawson, which netted only 14 of 28 in an extremely poor free throwing exhibition in the rough game in which 58 fouls were called.

Other Lawson faults can be overlooked. They overcame a 12-9 first quarter deficit to knot the score at the half on a shot by Les Sonder, 22-22. They were trailing only 49-41 as the fourth quarter began, but soon ran out of gas under the strain of their first full action in a week.

With six-footer Tom Minks and Paul Jones each totalling 15, the Flyers had 40 per cent accuracy on 62 field goal tries against 36 per cent for the First with 66 shots.

Vince Dickherber, Al Constance and Vern Griffin each netted 11 points as the First continued to have trouble with their shooting despite the soundness of the rest of their game.

The Flyers are a tough ball club, Minks played all but three minutes of the game and hits from any angle. Charlie Urbanewich, of Trinity College, Tex., is an excellent floor man. The pivot chore is capably divided between Jones, of Wabash College, and Charlie Ault. Hal Caplinger is a dead-eye shot.

Combat Training Command Team One sped past Infantry School Detachment, 62-60, as expected in the other game Monday night. It served as a vehicle for Ben Brown to score 23 points and boost his season's total to 235.

The Commanders had period leads of 24-10, 46-23 and 65-43.

advantage and lost it, was wobbling as the gong sounded.

The third could have been a terrible round. Both boys were bushed. Cotton had the margin on points and could have coasted to protect his lead, but he didn't want any, doubts about this one. He raced in to give more and take more. Was there anyone present who could think these strapping youths were but amateurs?

Barnes must have known he was beaten up to that point. He was cowed and cornered, but there was only one thing to do with such a tormentor as this — fight! He threw enough leather to saddle a regiment of Texas Rangers, but he was forced to backstep in the doing from Cotton who got him often with that straight right.

Lou went down again. Cotton paced nervously in the neutral corner for the eight seconds and then both went back at it. The referee had to jump between them at the final bell.

In the comparitive quiet of the dressing rooms shortly after, each had high praise for the other. Both predicted they would win it if they were rematched. Both would like to graduate to the pro ranks after their service, but that may be a long time coming.

A week ago Tuesday however, you would have thought their only reason for being was to fight each other to add a brilliant chapter to Benning boxing history.

Generals Tumble First; 508th Cops 5th In Row

The aptly named Generals of Third Student Regiment towered mightily over the Fort Benning Basketball League today with a 10-0 record, just eight games away from the post cage crown and perhaps an unbeaten season.

Funneling in soft one-handers from around the foul arc and neat layups inside, while coralcising a total monopoly on rebounds, Coach Bill Hacker's crew buried First Student Regiment's eight game winning streak, 64-47, in their fourth heralded meeting last Thursday night.

The battle failed to produce the keen competition that lured 1,700 fans into Briant Wells Field House. It was as good as over at the half where the Generals had a 40-19 lead, if not at the end of the first period when they led 19-8.

The big difference was threefold. The Generals could hit from any angle, their defense was set up each time before the First could payoff with their fast break, and, lastly, the Black - shirted losers just couldn't buy a field goal, no matter from how close in they shot.

The First was getting only one shot on each drive in the initial half as the Generals controlled the 2-to-1 on rebounds. They netted only six of 27 field goal attempts before the intermission while the third put 14 of 33. Overall, the Generals had a .300 shooting percentage against a .239 average for the losers.

Only early in the third frame did the First threaten when they narrowed the gap to 13 points, 44-31, when the Generals got careless and let one of their aces, Barney Gill, foul out. The First's inability to sink 'em even when their fast break was working must have dampened their enthusiasm, however. The third quarter score was 50-33.

The First definitely was shook-

Much - improved 508th Airborne bowled over two opponents last week to run their Fort Benning Basketball League winning streak to five games. In the doing, they took over undisputed possession of third place.

They broke their tie for that position by clouting Second Student Regiment, 77-65, thus gaining revenge for a defeat at the hands of the Rockets in their opening game, 57-38.

The Red Devils' other victory this week was an overtime affair in which they edged Provisional Medical Group, 61-55, after regulation time ran out at 50-50.

Larry Ivan, their former allstate prep star from Rahway, N. J., cut the pace in both tilts as he bucketed a total of 35 points and gave the team the balance down the middle which has been much needed.

Ivan the Terrible has averaged 15 points per game. He has played only six times to a foot infection which kept him out of the first four. Also significant in the Red Devils' new look, however, is the improved performances of former football players Garry Mattocks and Dick Sarter.

Sartar scored 18 as the 508th led the Rockets at the periods, 12-10, 31-26 and 58-47, in their Friday night game. Mattocks got 12 in that one and hit for 11 against the stubborn Medics.

The end of the third frame.

Brooke Medical Wins Stateside Grid Title

The 1951 stateside Army football title belongs to the Brooke Army Medical Center Comets.

Under the leadership of coach Lt. Col. John Kraemer, the Comets won 10 while losing only one this past season. The single loss was the tie hands of Carswell AFB—the national service football champions—27-13.

Paul Williamson, noted for his football ratings, placed Carswell first at 92.9, Brooke second at 91.3, Fort Jackson third at 90.

Hahn Buckets 33 As Raiders Cop 2 Games

ASU Provisional Group, with its sco ing aces Bill Hahn rippling the cords for 33 points, shook off a six game losing streak last week by winning two games. They clouted hapless Army Field Forces Board Three, 80-46, and back-sliding Provisional Medical Group, 71-65, in the Benning Basketball League.

It was just a matter of counting the totals as they wrote finis to the league career of AFF, leading at every intermission, 23-10, 43-23 and 62-30. Center Charlie Parrish scored 20 for the winners.

The Medics, in familiar fashion, proved stubborn until the stretch drive. The game was tied 15-15 at the quarter, ASU led, 30-26, at the half and 51-49 as the fourth period opened.

The versatile Hahn, who specializes in jump shots made while going at full speed, has scored 179 points in 10 games for a 17.9-point average. That puts him in fourth place among the loop's hotshots, a worthy feat with a ninth place club.

Rockets Nose Profs; 56-54; Medders 22

Second Student Regiment's reorganizing quintet dueled in seesaw action for four periods before downing Infantry School detachment, 56-54, in one of the better Benning Basketball League games last week.

I.S.D. let at quarter, 15-11, and at the intermission, 32-25, but trailed going into the final period, 42-40. Elmer Duerst scored six of his 14 points to spark the Rockets' third period rally.

Duerst and Reggy Scodelier each got 14, while Truman Medders added 22 for the Profs to jump his season's production for nine games to 170.

Mujica, 2 Other Post Boxers Cop

Fort Benning's Larry Mujica scored a third round knockdown and finished strong to win a unanimous decision from bullish Tito Markarian, Argentinian welterweight, in the ten - round star bout Monday night at Columbus Arena.

It was Mujica's eleventh local victory. Judges Art Wolf and Frank Carr gave the First Student Regiment battler, a 53-47 margin, while Referee Johnny Wilson called it even.

Markarian started strong and staggered Mujica in the second, but Larry came back with a two fisted attack and downed Tito for a nine-count in the third. The final two rounds were strictly for Mujica.

Willie Ferguson, Combat Training Command puncher, scored a second round TKO over Augusta's windless Hurricane Kid, and Larry Jones, ASU boxing coach, TKO'd Young Joe Walcott, of Augusta, in the fourth.

In other bouts, Paul Cashman, of New England, defeated Columbus' Eddie Cowell in eight rounds and Pablo Rodriquez, of Walcott, of Augusta, in the fourth.

CTC Team One Nips Rifles, 95-89, in Hot Family Feud

Combat Training Command Team One matched CTC's Team Two shot for shot in the waning moments and pulled away finally for a 95-89 Fort Benning Basketball League victory last Wednesday night.

The intra-unit battle produced roughshod play, a lot of fouls and occasionally some very good basketball.

Most significant of all perhaps was that Ben Brown hooped 23 points for the winning Commanders to maintain his lead in the race for individual league scoring honors.

Most surprising without a doubt was the 32 points bucketed by Charlie Crowley for the losing Rifles. That's the second highest individual game figure of the year.

The exceptionally fast first period ended with the score knotted at 21-all. The Commanders had an intermission bulge, 48-41, and were leading, 72-67, going into the fourth quarter, in which the Rifles twice came within a point of tieing it up again.

As for the standings, CTC Team One latched onto a first division berth as the season turned into the homestretch, while the Rifles now are hammering on the cellar door.

Yopp Rolls 274 Game As First SR Takes Keg Lead

First Student Regiment took over first place in The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League this week, dropping 508th Airborne Team One out of top position for the first time since the season opened.

Hard on the heels of that stunner, Pfc. Booker Yopp, of Third Battalion, 30th Infantry, split 274 maples for the highest single game reported this year in league or individual competition on post.

Previous loop high was a 258 rolled by Joe Bolduc, of 508th Team Two. Yopp's three game series of 573 was only the week's third best, however. J. H. Elington's 598 set for Second Student Regiment was tops followed by Lou Hofstetter, of Hospital Team One, with 580.

Other best individual games of the week were L. M. Crain's 225 for Second Student Regiment and A. L. Miller's 221 for 508th Airborne Team One which won high team game honors with 901 pins.

Baseball Drills Open March 3rd

Spring training for Fort Benning baseball players was tentatively scheduled today to open Monday, March 3, with one of largest and most promising turnouts in recent post history expected at Gowdy Field.

According to plans for numerous future sports events released by Special Services, the post baseball season will get underway officially May 11. Intramural competition probably will be slated in July.

Following intramural play, team action would be resumed with Benning once again shooting for the state, regional and national glory they have won in recent summers. The Doughboys won the Third Army diamond title three years running and went to the world's amateur baseball championship quarterfinals in Wichita, Kans., in 1948.

A clinic for umpires is slated to start March 3, too.

Pitching, luckily enough, would seem to be the mainstay for a post team if it were to go into action immediately.

Among the returnees from last year's action probably will be Adam Zubaty, who twirled a no-hitter for Combat Training Command; William Sayers, 20, a cousin of Don Newcombe and himself owned by the Brooklyn Dodgers. ASU Provisional Group's Andrew Johnson, 21-year old righthander, and Infantry School Detachment's Hal Grinols and Lefty Joe Feinstein.

Also listed as pitching prospects from CTC are Ken Middleton, who played with Albany, N. Y., in the class A Eastern League, John Freeman and Stan Edwards.

At least four other former pre players are expected to return from last year. They are outfielders Bill Hahn, from the class D K-O-M League, Chris Dubis, from the class C Northern League, and Ray Parker, with Waycross, Ga., last season, and infielders Bob Kinsman from the old Florida International League, and Willie Wilson, who played in the Georgia-Alabama circuit in 1949.

Probably available for duty as a backstop would be Bobby Dews, veteran minor leaguer who twice missed a call to the major leagues when the service beckoned.

That's the pro lineup anyway it Benning, as expected, gets a chance at some major league or high minor league teams this spring. A healthy schedule is being arranged by Capt. William Fannin, sports officer.

Post Skiier Leaves For Nationals

year's team, last Sunday he would have participated in the most harrowing man-killing event in skiing. The Olympic downhill, described in a cover-featured article in the Feb. 11 issue of Life Magazine, drops a breath-taking 2,400 feet in a mile and a half.

Flying Men

Best average speed in the event is 38 mph., but on the straight drop the racers attain speeds up to 75 mph., man's closest approach to natural flying. The big factor in training is psychological, building up their courage to make the run, and then physical, curing the insomnia that always precedes the actual running.

One candidate for this year's team was killed in tryouts in this country. Another suffered a broken leg in a European tuneup run.

Although Gardner has a healthy respect for the pitfalls of skiing, there's no dampening his enthusiasm. He learned the sport from his parents, both skiers, and a brother, Armour, presently is a member of the University of Washington team.

He started getting his competitive experience two years ago at Sun Valley, where he worked as a pin boy in a bowling alley at night and trained by day. He placed second in the Sun Valley slalom and first in the Sonora Pass giant slalom in 1950 and second in the latter event in 1951. His third place win in the important Silver Dollar, was his first race in downhill, the ultimate feat of skiiers.

Even missing the Olympics, Smith has achieved note in skiing, something called falling off mountains on waxed barrel staves. He is one of less than 150 who hold class A ranking in this country.

"The Europeans are way ahead of us," he explains. "Skiing has been popular in this country only for the last 30 years. In Europe, those guys train all year 'round, and a ski meets in every country, just like pro golfers tour in this country.

"Skiing competition is too spread out in this country everywhere from New England to the Sierra Nevadas where I come from."

Benning Soldier Serves As School Ring Judge

M-Sgt. James Dunn was back at Fort Benning today after serving as an official in the Mid-South Boxing Tournament at Sweetwater, Tenn. The event was for 12 prep military schools in the southeastern states area.

Dunn, of the Weapons Department's small arms committee, took part by invitation. He boxed for Fort Benning as a welterweight in 1941 and was on ROTC duty for three years at Sweetwater, where he coached the school's boxing team.

Women's, Men's Golf Events Are Planned

The Fort Benning Women's Golf Association has cancelled its action for tomorrow due to the George Washington holiday, but will resume its activities with a luncheon Feb. 29.

A blind bogey tourney for members of Fort Benning Country Club is slated to get underway tomorrow and continue through Feb. 24.

All of Mexico today mourns its outstanding sports representative. A heart attack killed Arete, the 14-year-old champion jumper horse owned by Col. Humberto Marines. The colonel rode his horse to a gold medal victory in the 1948 Olympics and many prizes in the U. S. competitions. Arete collapsed while recuperating from a broken leg. He had received numerous blood transfusions in the effort to save his life after a stablemate had kicked him on his blind side, requring a delicate leg operation. A broken leg usually signals the end of most horses; they are shot; but not this one. Arete was buried with full military honors facing the flagpole of the National Cavalry School.

Players Are Scarce, Farm System Is Bad—Gallagher

Worth-while player talent is becoming more scarce and the farm system is a contributing factor which must be eliminated, opined James Gallagher, business manager of the Chicago Cubs. He made the statement in a front page article in the current issue of The Sporting News, national baseball weekly.

Gallagher criticized the lavish bonuses paid rookies and other "major league waste," including the teams' efforts to "control every ball player in the United States."

The Giants can afford to go heavy to the left this season, with six southpaw hurlers now in the fold. They are Dave Koslo, Monte Kennedy, Max Lanier, Jacob Schmitt, Roger Bowman and Vince DeLorenzo. Schmitt and DeLorenzo are promising rookies. Koslo and Kennedy are veterans of many a Giant campaign.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick has urged the "sale" of the game to kids all over the nation via television, according to another exclusive Sporting News story. Frick said baseball's manpower situation is serious. He predicts that eventually there will be a third major league in the Far West.

Outfielder Dick Sisler said this week he welcomed his trade to Cincinnati, commenting that the "wolves" at Shibe Park make a Phillies' ball player's life miserable. Nearly 40 pitchers from the minor leagues have been called up for tryouts in the American League this year.

Ted Williams is slated to take his Marine Corps physical examination April 2. . . . Veteran Pete Reiser has been signed by the Cleveland Indians who are stocking their roster with draft-free reserve strength. . . . Dutch Leonard, at 41, will be trying to reach the 200-victory mark with the Cubs this season.

WAC Quintet Tops Atlanta Five, 62-22

Fort Benning's WAC Detachment basketball team journeyed to Atlanta Saturday to defeat the Fort McPherson lady soldiers, 62-22. Johnnie Windberry scored 40 points for the winners who led at half, 35-9.

Helen Swenson and Sonia Stacy also were prominent in the Benning win. The Wacs currently are in third place in the Columbus Women's Industrial League. They play Fairforest tonight at Comer Auditorium in town.

ASU Provisional Group of the Benning Basketball, also journeyed to Atlanta, but were turned back by the McPherson quintet, 73-64. Bill Hahn was high man for the losers.

TI&E Prepares 10-Page Booklet On Red Cross

"Red Cross Facts for 1952" is the title of a ten page mimeographed booklet that has been prepared for distribution to all units by the Troop Information and Education Division. The material is for presentation by discussion leaders at Troop Information Conferences during week of Feb. 21 to Feb. 28.

The booklet describes the functions, organization, and activities of the Red Cross, with particular emphasis on those phases that deal with the service man and his problems.

A chapter titled, "Service To The Armed Forces", relates how the Red Cross renders direct aid and council to military personnel both in the states and at foreign installations. The aid is rendered through the world-wide staff of field directors who work through local units of chapters.

Other sections of the booklet deal with the Red Cross' National Blood Program and the aid given in the form of food parcels and medical supplies to prisoners of war as well as to civilians in war stricken lands.

The booklet cites the part the Red Cross is playing in relation to the ever expanding Armed Forces and its roll in the civil defense program.

THERE ARE TWO SIDES TO EV'RY HEART-ACHE (The Four Knights on Capitol). Here is one of the most sensational and original tunes of this or any other season. As done by The Four Knights, the tune should sell like hot-cakes throughout the nation. The arrangement is reminiscent of the style used by the Ink Spots back in the thirties. The way The Four Knights sings it is fresh, appealing, and likable. Reverse side of this platter is "Walking In The Sunshine," a new song with a faster tempo than "There Are Two Sides To Ev'ry Heartache." This record could easily be a best-seller. We think you will like it.

YOU WERE NEVER THERE (Nat "King" Cole, Nelson Riddle orchestra on Capitol)... We played this platter for some members of the office when it first came in, and they insisted on hearing it again and again. It is smooth, original, danceable, and best of all, it is Nat "King" Cole at his best. This tune recommended for young people in love, someone recovering from an old love, and people who just like to sit and listen to sentimental music. The reverse side, "You Will Never Grow Old," is better for dancing than "You Weren't There," and features a trio with Nat "King" Cole—not the old Cole group, but a new group that recently joined Cole in recording for Capitol.

HELEN O'CONNELL

DON'T PLAY THAT SONG (Helen O'Connell, Bob Eberly, Harold Mooney orchestra on Capitol) Capitol has recently been teaming their artists in recording the latest tunes. Gisele MacKenzie and Bob Crosby have turned out several hit recordings, and now Helen O'Connell and Bob Eberly have been teamed for recording purposes. "Don't Play That Song" has a nostalgic quality, is perfectly arranged, and as done by the O'Connell-Eberly team, it is top listening appeal. The flip, "I'll Always Be Following You," is done in the Whiting - Wakely style so popular a few seasons back, and is bright and appealing. Both tunes are new.

NORTH DAKOTA, SOUTH DAKOTA (Jerry Lewis, Dick Stabile orchestra on Capitol). This tune should have been written for Al Jolson, because it sounds like one he might have sung when he was alive. We might say that Capitol could have used Al on this platter too, because Jerry Lewis definitely is not a vocalist. Yet, it is the best Lewis has ever recorded. You might not like Jerry Lewis doing this tune, but you will like the tune itself. Reverse side is "The Body Was So Much Better Than The Picture," one of those Jerry Lewis novelty tunes that he has been recording lately. As we said, Lewis can not sing, but his recordings do sell, possibly because people like Lewis THE COMEDIAN.

FOUR NEW CADRE . . . Four cadre who have been assigned to Hotel Company, First Student Regiment include Cpls. Jo. Cipes, Jr., Dayton, Lonnie De-Loach, and Pfc. R. L. Chappell.

Red Cross Is Always Ready When Emergencies Strike

(EDITOR'S NOTE: It is the policy of the American Red Cross in cases of this type to withhold the names and addresses of those concerned. Taken from the files of the Fort Benning office of the Red Cross the following is an incident that should bring this vital serviceman's service closer to us.)

One evening last fall the Fort Benning Red Cross office was told that the wife of a serviceman, now serving in Japan, had been injured in an automobile accident. The scene of the accident was in or near a city approximately 70 miles from the reservation.

The wife had been admitted to the local hospital in the county in which the accident occurred and was reported to be in critical condition. Notified that there were four small children with the woman at the time of the accident, the local Red Cross Chapter went into action.

The mother was anxious to have the children near her and the Red Cross chapter workers arranged for cots to be placed in the hospital room so that they could be with their mother.

Due to the seriousness of the injury, steps were taken to have the serviceman returned to the states from Japan. In this undertaking, National Home Service of the American Red Cross in Washington, D. C., was asked for assistance in relaying the facts to the serviceman's commanding officer.

Subsequently, when the wife had improved sufficiently to enable her to be removed, the local Red Cross Chapter, in conjunction with the Red Cross workers at the post hospital arranged for the patient to be admitted to the post hospital where she underwent treatment.

The husband, meantime had been granted an emergency leave and proceeded home.

The Red Cross chapter in the vicinity of the accident made arrangements for the four small children to be carried to their grandmother's home in Florida where they were cared for until their mother was fully recovered.

4.5 Per Cent Join In Soldier Deposits

Four and one-half per cent of the enlisted personnel of Fort Benning participated in Soldier Deposits during the month of January.

Among the major organizations, the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team was in first place with an overall percentage of 16.1.

The First Student Brigade with 2.5 per cent was in second place followed by the Combat Training Command with a total of 1.3 per cent of the personnel participation in soldier deposits.

The Area Service Unit Provisional Group, Infantry School Detachment, and Provisional Medical Group followed in fourth, fifth and sixth places with .8, .4, and .07 per cent respectively.

OC Wants to Write Book on Infantry

A former New Jersey newspaper reporter, now an Officer Candidate in the Third Student Regiment is considering writing a book that will show the valuable training, humor and good fellowship that makes the soldier's life worthwhile.

Candidate Robert G. Mason of the Third Officer Candidate Company said that "The more I study the use of arms, the more respect I have for a good soldier. But you can't picture the soldier as an honorable man man from the pages of some of the recent best selling novels."

Candidate Mason entered the Army in February, 1951 and now has two more months ahead of him before he will complete his tour as a student in the Infantry School. He belives that it will be some time before he will get back to his typewriter for anything other than routine reports.

Warning Made To Car Drivers On Dirt Roads

Col. Stephen W. Ackerman, The Infantry Center Transportation Officer, has issued a warning in regard to driving on improved roads on the reservation.

"In many of the sections of the dirt roads the heavy traffic has caused a loosening of sand and clay surface," he said. "This results in the formation of sand strips of some length where the sand may be three to five inches deep," the colonel pointed out.

In warning the drivers, the transportation officer explained that "The normal speeds of 20 to 25 miles per hour through such boys is extremely dangerous. This danger is more pronounced with short coupled jeeps and sedans than with larger trucks."

Instruction for traversing these areas call for a slowed - down speed of five to 10 miles per hour, shifting to low gear, and driving through them with a steady, slow, safe rate of movement.

Rangers Train At Florida Base

Their Days and Nights Include Work That's Rugged, Tough But Thorough

BY LT. JOE WINDSOR

Ranger trainees are literally up to their necks in training near Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

Down there from Fort Benning, Ga., the Army's Infantry Center where the Rangers make their headquarters, these rugged young lads often find themselves wading water up to their armpits as they are put through all sorts of fiendish but practical training.

It may seem strange that Ranger trainees should be maneuvering at an Air Force base, but the locale is ideally located for such operations.

Emphasis during this particular phase of the Ranger course is on swamp and waterborne operations and here the Rangers-to-be find terrain for just such operations.

The camp site itself is at Auxiliary Field Seven inside the vast Air Force Proving Grounds. Just a few hundred yards away begins a huge swamp area. And to top it off the Gulf of Mexico is some 30 miles in another direction.

All this adds up to perfect training grounds for Ranger purposes.

As youthful Col. Henry G. Learnard, Jr., director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, says, "These crystal-clear, sandbottomed swamps certainly do surprise some of the boys. Just the other day, as a group of trainees were preparing to ford a small swamp area, I heard one of them say, 'Oh, dpn't worry, it's just boot-top deep.'

"About that time," Col. Learnard explained, "they stepped off into water up to their shoulders."

Colorful Career

Col. Learnard's colorful Army career, backed up by the fact that he was a colonel at 43, more than qualifies him for such an important assignment as he now holds.

Calling Alexandria, Va., his home, he was commissioned in 1938 while attending Norwich University.

Among his previous assignments are: chief of the U. S. Military Mission to El Salvador, 1948-49; commanding officer of the First Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment from the landing in Normandy to the end of World War II; commanding officer of the 18th Infantry Regiment, First Division, 1945-46, and assistant military attache, U. S. Embassy in London, 1941-43.

A veteran of 76 months overseas, Col. Learnard was aide-de-camp to Gen. Jacob L. Devers in 1946-47, when the general was chief of Army Field Forces.

He holds the Combat Infantry Badge, Silver Star with cluster, Bronze Star Medal with two clusters, French Croix de Guerre with Star, Belgian Croix de Guerre with palm, Czechloviak War Cross and the French and Belgian Fourrageres.

Contract Given For New School

Contract for a $277,337 addition to the Fort Benning Children's School system has been awarded to the Murphey Pound Construction company of Columbus, Col. Daniel H. Rundley, Infantry Center comptroller, announced.

The contract will be signed and building is expected to begin within two weeks.

Construction will take approximately seven months and is scheduled to be completed in time for the 1952-53 school year.

The new modern brick and glass school will be located on an extension of Running avenue between Ingersoll street and Lumpkin road.

It will have four separate building units containing administrative offices, classrooms and a large multi-purpose room to be used as a combination auditorium, gym and cafeteria.

Stevens and Wilkinson, an Atlanta firm, are the architects.

Benning RC Drive Begins Tomorrow

President Truman Will Make Appeal Over Nation-Wide Radio Net Tonight

The 1952 Red Cross drive gets underway at Fort Benning tomorrow and will be continued throughout the month of March.

President Truman has designated the period as Red Cross Month and will officially begin the drive tonight with a nationwide radio talk. The program is scheduled for all major networks at 10:30 p.m. (EST).

Col. Gines Perez, executive officer of the First Student Brigade, and campaign chairman for the drive, said every officer, enlisted person, and civilian employee will be asked to answer the organization's call for membership and funds to carry on its services.

National goal for the 1952 campaign is $85,000,000, the same as last year, although service needs of the armed forces, Colonel Perez pointed out, have climbed sharply in the past year, in line with the nation's mushrooming military program and the war in Korea.

"Eighty-five million dollars," he said, "is the minimum needed for carrying on adequately the organization's program this year.

Benefits to Servicemen

Well over a third of the national goal, he said, is expected to be required for sole benefit to fighting men, the hospitalized, men in training and their families. Among these are communications, financial aid, welfare reporting, counsel, comfort items, orientation of recruits, training of military instructors in first aid and water safety.

"To handle these services," Colonel Perez said, "the Red Cross has professional staff at 170 military installations and 138 military hospitals in the U. S. and overseas who work with hometown chapters of the Red Cross in nearly every county in the nation. Since outbreak of the war in Korea and stepped-up military training, the Red Cross has had to almost double its number of paid staff assigned to installations, hospitals, and in the Korean battle zones."

Service accomplishments, he pointed out, reflect the same upward trend.

"Red Cross staff workers at military hospitals handled more than 316,000 cases and requests of servicemen each month in the past year—30 per cent more than in the previous year. They provided financial aid totaling over $5,000,000 as compared to about $3,000,000 the year before. Hometown chapters handled 140,000 welfare cases and requests each month last year, working usually with field staff wherever the servicemen were stationed."

Besides welfare services, Red Cross staff in hospitals and in Korea distributed articles, such as razors, soap, toothbrushes, towels, cigarettes, tobacco, and candy free of charge. In Korea alone, in an 11-month period, over 2,000,000 of these articles were distributed free to wounded men in immediate need of them.

The American Red Cross also operates a service club in Pusan, Korea, large stationary canteens at four Korea air bases, and a fifth canteen at Sasebo, seaport city of southern Japan . . . all serving coffee and doughnuts free to fighting men of all the United Nations forces passing through these points. They serve more than 30,000 men daily.

3rd Army Deputy Chief Addresses TIC Students

"Old fashioned 'bull sessions,' held after classes, are a vital part of education," Maj. Gen. W. A. Belderlinden, deputy Third Army commander, told civilian component students at Fort Benning Monday.

General Belderlinden gave a welcoming address to 54 Reserve and National Guard officers from the Third Army Area attending a special two-week Command and General Staff College course. The general stressed the value of informal discussion outside the classroom and of opportunities to become better acquainted with fellow students.

"Your campaign ribbons and the patches you are wearing on your shoulders indicate most of you have been commanders," General Belderlinden told the students. "I consider that almost an essential prerequisite for taking a staff course."

The General then congratulated both the students and faculty on having both the interest and ability to prepare themselves for larger duties in the national defense programs.

General Belderlinden was introduced by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Bridge Bids Being Opened At Post Now

Bids are now being accepted for the construction of an additional bridge across Upatoi Creek to Outpost No. 1 here, Col. Richard F. Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer, announced Thursday.

Construction is expected to begin the end of March, he said, and will take approximately 10 months.

The new reinforced concrete bridge will be the first item on the $28.7 million 1952 construction program here. The congressional appropriation already has been received by the Savannah, Ga., district engineer, who will be in charge of the building projects.

Two-Lane Span

The two-lane access span will be located 600 feet north of the present bridge and will connect Benning Boulevard and Lumpkin Road. Sections of the approach road will be widened to reduce congestion.

This is the first step in a long-range traffic alleviation program, according to Colonel Ebbs. Between 18 and 20,000 vehicles travel through Outpost No. 1 daily to and from the Main Post.

Among projects under consideration are a cloverleaf road pattern at the junction of Custer Road and Benning Boulevard and expansion of Benning Boulevard into a four-lane highway from the bridge to the traffic circle on Victory Highway.

Plans for two regimental troop housing areas, an engineer classroom, a large warehouse and utilities schedule for 1953 will be announced later, Colonel Ebbs said.

Member of NATO Will Visit Post

Brig. Gen. Jean Rethore of the French Army, a member of the delegation to the NATO standing group, will visit The Infantry Center March 2-4.

Gen. Rethore, who is scheduled to assume command of the French Armored School at Saumur on his return to France, will study the organization, methods of training and training aids used at The Infantry School.

In addition he has expressed a special interest in The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

Final plans for the general's visit have not been announced.

Military, RC Bond Strong

Maj. Gen. Church's Statement Reveals This Significance

The relationship between the American Red Cross and the armed forces is so close and so firmly rooted in tradition that many of us accept the association as something inevitable and very concrete.

We may hope that this bond, drawn close by history, is indeed firm. But we must at the same time be aware that the relationship has been achieved only through years of effort; and, as is the case with every worthwhile association, it can be sustained only by a continued expenditure of effort.

The Red Cross will contribute its full share to this joint effort. This has been demonstrated in many combat zones and a score of disaster areas; it is demonstrated almost daily at every military installation. The variety and extent of services rendered by this organization are limited only by the availability of funds contributed to their support.

The Red Cross, as one member of the historic partnership with the armed forces, has compiled a record of daily and positive service. Once each year, we of Fort Benning—both military and civilian—are asked to contribute our own support to the maintenance of the partnership. The time for this effort is now.

We are all aware of what the Red Cross does for us. We are now given the opportunity to demonstrate our awareness and our gratitude by contributing funds to an organization which is dedicated to our welfare.

Personnel of The Infantry Center have never failed to respond generously in behalf of a deserving cause. For the Serviceman, no appeal can be more deserving of support than is the annual fund campaign of the American Red Cross.

Academy Grads Celebrate 150th Anniversary March 16

United States Military Academy alumni at Fort Benning will celebrate the 150th anniversary of the founding of the academy Sunday evening, March 16.

More than 320 graduates and non-graduates in good standing, both on active duty and retired, have been invited to attend the sesquicentennial dinner and stag party at the Main Officers Mess.

Chairman for the annual get-together is Col. George Millener, class of 1924, director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

Committee members and class representatives met this week to make plans for the party. Entertainment will include songs by a choir of graduates under the direction of Maj. M. Cole Murphy, class of 1944, and music by a three-piece band.

Bick, class of 1951, junior graduate at Fort Benning and now assigned to the 28th Company, Third Student Regiment.

Toastmaster and other principal speakers have not been announced.

This year's celebration on March 16 marks the date, 150 years ago, that the Military Academy was formally established by an act of Congress. Since that time more than 16,000 officers have been graduated.

Opening ceremonies in recognition of the anniversary were held Jan. 5 at West Point, N. Y., with Army Secretary Frank Pace Jr., as principal speaker.

Korean Students Go Over the Top In RC Donations

If the contributions of the Sixth Company, First Student Regiment, can be used as a barometer for the 1952 Red Cross drive, Fort Benning will go over the top.

The company, composed entirely of Korean officers who are studying at The Infantry School, contributed 100 per cent to the drive — within 48 hours of the time the first contribution was made by Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center Commander.

Lt. Col. Jung Sook Kim, ranking Korean officer at Fort Benning, initiated the fund collection and on Saturday morning presented $162 to Maj. J. N. Norwood, First Battalion commander. , and contributions are still coming from the students.

Capt. R. F. Cary, commanding officer of Sixth Company, is no longer surprised at anything his students do. "It was the same with the 'March of Dimes,'" he says. "These officers are the best students I have ever had. They are eager, friendly and a joy to work with. They have proven themselves so outstanding that I'm getting used to having them come out first."

2 Maj. Generals Set to Visit Post This Week

Two major generals will be guests of The Infantry Center this week.

They are Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, provost marshal general, who arrives Thursday from Washington, D.C., and Maj. Gen. David L. Ruffner, Fifth Armored Division commander from Camp Chaffee, Ark., who will visit The Infantry School Saturday.

The provost marshal head will confer Thursday afternoon with Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander. He will be honor guest Thursday evening at a dinner at the Main Officers' Mess.

Friday morning troops from the Military Police Detachment and the 122nd Army Band will present an honor guard. Gen. Parker then will visit the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, inspect the Post Stockade and the Military Police Detachment, and confer with Col. R. S. McConnell, Fort Benning provost marshal.

Col. R. A. Kreidel, Third Army provost marshal, Fort McPherson, Ga., is accompanying Gen. Parker on his visit. They will return to their home stations late Friday afternoon.

Gen. Ruffner will make the principal address at graduation exercises for non-commissioned officer Refresher Class No. 1 at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Main Theatre.

This will be the first class to graduate under the new Ranger training program.

Training Film Is Made By 30th Unit

A training film is now being made by Company E of the 30th Infantry Regiment.

First Lt. William Day and 28 enlisted men of the company started work on the movie Feb. 18.

Following completion of the work at Fort Benning, 14 of the soldier-actors will go to New York with a movie crew to complete the shooting.

New Camp Phone Manager Arrives With Assistant

H. E. Hopkins, Atlanta, has been appointed Southern Bell Telephone company's Camp manager at Fort Benning. He succeeds Russell J. Ruff, who is going into the Columbus business office of the company as Public Office manager.

Mr. Hopkins comes to Fort Benning from Atlanta where he was a supervisor in the Directory Department. He has had extensive experience with the Telephone Company.

During World War II, he served in the Navy for two years.

T. B. d'Antignac has been appointed assistant Camp Manager and will work with Mr. Hopkins at the three Telephone Centers at the Fort.

Mr. d'Antignac also comes to Benning from Atlanta where he served as Business Office Instructor in addition to other commercial activities for the past six years.

During World War II, Mr. d'Antignac was in the Army as an Infantryman for four years.

Due to the increased activity at the Fort Benning Telephone Centers, the Telephone Company is adding a fourth Center to be located in the Harmony Church area. They now maintain three centers located at the Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church, respectively.

In addition to the four Telephone Centers, the Company is constantly adding pay telephones at various points on the Post for the convenience of all personnel.

Search Plan Is Revealed

A car-search program designed to stop Army equipment and property from "walking off post" has gone into effect under the direction of Col. Richard S. McConnell, Infantry Center Provost Marshal.

Spot checks will be made of cars leaving the post, Colonel McConnell reported. "We know that some government property is being carried off the post," he declared, "and the purpose of these spot-checks we're going to make is to return this property to the place it belongs."

Cars will be pulled out of traffic by military policemen, then agents of the criminal investigative division will search the cars, he explained.

If a car owner has a pair of fatigues, an old G.I. blanket or something of the sort in his car, and can offer a reasonable and logical explanation for its presence, he'll have no difficulty, he added.

"But someone who has 25 sheets, or a couple of five-gallon cans of gasoline in his car, will have a little trouble explaining it, in cases such as this, the property will be picked up and a receipt issued to the person it's taken from," Colonel McConnell continued.

Must Appear

The next morning, he must appear at the provost marshal's office with a signed statement from his major unit commander as to why he was authorized to have the items.

"If he can't do this," the Colonel went on, "then a report is turned in to his immediate commander, who will prefer charges against him."

In the future all persons registering cars on the post must sign a release saying that they agree to have their car searched in the event it is deemed necessary. Visitors to the post will make the same agreement automatically when they accept the visitor's card to be placed on their windshield.

"The average, law - abiding person will have nothing to fear from this," Colonel McConnell pointed out. "Anyone who has a logical explanation for the presence of government equipment in his automobile will be all right.

"We realize that many married men, and even single men living on the post, often carry laundry or things like that off post in their cars," he said. "We're not interested in harassing people like that. What we want to stop is the disappearance of items of government property that, in the long run, add up to a terrific total," he declared.

Colonel McConnell explained that the checks would be made so as not to slow up traffic. At Outpost No. 1, there is room for about 10 cars to be pulled out of the traffic line and searched without holding up traffic, he pointed out.

"A check may be made at any time of the night or day on any of the roads leading from the reservation, the provost marshal said.

"The Army is concentrating on supply economy and cost consciousness," Colonel McConnell concluded, "and we feel that this is going to help protect the government's interests."

Kids Warned Of Air Gun Use

Children at Fort Benning personnel were warned sharply this week by Infantry Center Provost Marshal investigators who found some of them violating a post regulation.

Maj. Walter H. de Cristoforo, assistant Provost Marshal, said complaints had been made recently about children firing air rifles and pistols indiscriminately.

Quoting several post regulations, Maj. de Cristoforo said: use of any firearm on the post proper is prohibited, except on authorized duty ranges.

No rifles, he added, would be used at any time for hunting.

Only when accompanied by a responsible adult will children be permitted to carry or use firearms, Major de Cristoforo said.

Brig. Gen. Murrow Urges Red Cross Participation

Brig. Gen. Lacey V. Murrow, commanding, Lawson Air Force Base, has expressed the feelings of himself and the units he commands in a statement supporting the 1952 Red Cross drive.

General Murrow said: "The annual fund raising program for the Red Cross gives to each of us the opportunity to participate in a really worthwhile cause. The 454th Wings, like all other Air Force organizations depends on the Red Cross for many required services. Investigations with respect to hardship discharges, assistance for airmen on emergency leave status, home condition reports and many other welfare services.

"All military personnel are well aware of the importance of the blood bank program now being handled so effectively and on a nationwide basis by the Red Cross. It is also a matter of record that military personnel have been the most consistent supporters and donors in this most important of all Red Cross programs.

"Full recognition must also be given to the excellent performance of the Red Cross in all cases of disaster such as the recent floods in the Mississippi and Missouri basins.

"It is a matter of custom for Air Force personnel to actively support the Red Cross and the officers and airmen of the 454th Wing and Lawson Air Force Base will, I feel certain, fulfill the quota allotments that have been established."

Girl Scouts Now In Cherokee Council

The Fort Benning Girl Scout troop has become a part of the Cherokee Council, Mrs. James Pence, District Chairman has announced.

This affiliation with the Cherokee Council will provide the part time service of a professional girl scout worker and will help the Girl Scout Board to plan a better and more extensive program.

This week the troop is working on two of its projects, the celebration of International Friendship week and the church Sunday program, in which each girl is urged to attend the church of her choice.

Don't Let This Happen to You

Soldier: Read and beware.

Three young Fort Benning soldiers, uneducated in business practices employed by some used car dealers, last week got themselves into a bad situation.

So that other Fort Benning soldiers will be on guard when they go shopping for a used automobile, here are the facts:

The three soldiers called on a used car dealer. They found a 1940 automobile they wanted to buy. The salesman quoted them a total sales price of $412 for the car. This included a tax of $12, he said. He also told them there would be no other charges.

When they totaled their resources they had only $137, which was $75 less than the amount required as a down payment. To make up this balance one of the soldiers wrote a check for $75 on a local bank in which he had no account. This is a criminal offense, even though the soldiers were told the check would be held until it could be redeemed for cash and that it would not be presented to any bank for payment.

In completing the transaction the soldiers were told a finance company would handle the remaining payments due on the automobile.

When the finance company sent the Fort Benning men a statement of the balance due on the car a sum of $127 had been added for interest and carrying charges. This brought the total cost up from $412 to $539.

This notification of additional cost came, they say, two weeks after the purchase of the automobile.

Because of these additional charges the soldiers decided the car was beyond their means. They returned it to the dealer and asked for a refund of their down payment. At this point the dealer demanded that the $75 worthless check be made good. He said he would notify the men's commanding officer unless the check was made good.

To date the soldiers have not received a refund. Of course, they owed the dealer some money for the use of the car for two weeks.

This could all have been avoided if the soldiers had thoroughly read the sales contract they signed. They should have checked into the business reputation of the firm with which they did business.

All Fort Benning soldiers are cautioned that they should never sign a sales contract until they have thoroughly read and understand it. Under no circumstances should a check be written when there aren't funds to cover it.

"Let the buyer beware." These are old and much used words. They should be heeded.

RC Drive Starts Here Tomorrow

President Truman has designated March as Red Cross month but to the millions of persons who have received the services of the American Red Cross, every month bears the president's designation.

The Chief Executive will officially kickoff the drive tonight when he addresses the nation over every network radio station in the country. The drive begins at Fort Benning tomorrow.

No quota has been set for Benning, but the national goal has been placed at $85,000,000. Roland Harriman, president of the American Red Cross and John Sinclair, national fund chairman, cite this year's drive as "one of the most important drives in Red Cross history."

"Only through rigid economies in operations was it possible to hold the 1952 goal to the $85,000,000 figure, Mr. Harriman said. "The organization's Board of Governors and the leadership in our 3,700 chapters have geared Red Cross budgets to provide increased services to men and women in the nation's armed forces, to continue the blood program, to take care of disaster emergencies, and to continue health and safety activities for the protection of American families," he added.

Last year, of the total amount collected, more than $26,000,000 was spent by the Red Cross for combat men, the hospitalized, trainees and their dependents.

This money was contributed solely in annual fund campaigns. It is expected that around $32,000,000 of the funds raised is this year's campaign will be diverted to the same group.

But besides the services to fighting men, the Red Cross has continued its "back home" work without any slackening as they will continue to do so.

But the Red Cross' biggest selling point is the remembrance people, who have benefited from its aid, have. Wherever fighting men go, so goes the American Red Cross.

Flood victims know it, distressed seamen know it, and any person of a free country that has ever needed the services of the Red Cross know how it comes through in an emergency.

But giving to the Red Cross isn't charity. It's an investment for anyone, anywhere, who may ever need the helping hand of the Red Cross. Giving to the ARC isn't a duty, it's a privilege.

The Red Cross isn't a government agency, it's an organization of people — those who administer it, those who hand out the donuts, coffee and shaving kits and those who give to it.

Servicemen May Get Social Security Coverage

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

Members of the Armed Forces may soon be covered by Social Security. A bill about to be introduced in Congress would grant Social Security coverage to numerous occupations not already covered, including the Armed Forces. Social Security coverage that was credited to personnel who served during WWII would be further extended to men who serve until Dec. 31, 1953. At the beginning of 1953 Servicemen would then have to pay for their coverage. Coverage would be based on the presumed pay of $160 a month and include such benefits as a permanent insurance plan that extends to all those covered by Social Security.

Other bills recently introduced in Congress of interest to Servicemen include:

1. A bill to amend the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 so as to credit up to four years of service to certain specialized regular Army officers.

2. A bill to establish postal stations and branch offices at military and defense installations.

3. A bill to provide that wool purchased or procured by the Armed Forces shall be produced in the U. S. as long as such wool is available

4. A bill to provide for the issuance of a special postage stamp in commemoration of the establishment of the Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., military post.

Criteria for changing its listing of Army military personnel reported by enemy sources in Korea as prisoners of war from "Currently Missing" to "Currently Captured" was recently announced by the Department of the Army. The change in status will be made when mail is received written by personnel in custody of opposing forces whose names appear on the recent list of alleged prisoners submitted by the enemy. The action will not result in any change of benefits provided by Public Law 490 as amended, referred to as the Missing Persons Act.

The processing period formerly required of civilians desiring to enter directly into Air Force flying training has been reduced from four months to a maximum of four weeks, the Department of the Air Force has announced. The speed-up will enable accepted cadets to start training within three to five months after applying instead of the seven to ten months necessary in the past.

The Air Force has been authorized an increase of 960 positions for male airmen in the Joint USA and USAF Recruiting Service. Commanders have been told to encourage qualified airmen to apply for this duty, normally a three-year assignment.

A series of short postgraduate courses for Medical Corps officers at military installations has been announced by the Army Medical Service. The program is designed to afford medical officers the opportunity to receive training available in Army installations.

Chaplain's Corner

In Contemplation of the Lenten Season

We enter the Lenten Season, which began yesterday, with hallowed purposes. The symbol of this significant Season is the cross. It speaks to us of a crosscrowned Calvary, of a surging, ugly mob, of vile passions, of envies, hatreds, fears and lusts of every description. The Christ who hung upon the cross was the victim of these forces. They had conspired to erect the cross.

Yet the only answer He offered was love—love that suffered and endured, love that died and triumphed, love that pardoned and promised redemption.

The cross still stands, its shadow projected across the world. Humanity is gathered beneath it, uncertain, insecure, apprehensive, faithless.

Yet it is that same cross which still proclaims that love is the answer to the world's needs. It still promises to lift men out of themselves into God's life of love.

Only the cross can give to us and the world pardon and peace and life.

The Lenten Season comes with a peculiar significance and offers us the opportunity to fortify our souls and find new strength for our spirits through the power and love of the cross.

What are the privilege and challenge that come to us this Lenten time?

Self preparation should be our first concern. We should use this season as a great opportunity for discovering the bidden treasure of silence! Each of us can take time out of our busy rushing lives for contemplation and devotion. Only in this way can we come to a moving appreciation of the love that moved God to give "His only begotten Son."

Our attitude toward God, our Church, and our Christian obligations should also concern us. We should develop a deeper sense of appreciation for God's daily blessings and the ministries of Christ's Church. Regular and consistent public worship should be a mark of our Lenten observance. Our church needs all the support we can give it in these trying days. And by our consecrated support it will be better enabled to meet the challenge presented by the hour in which we live.

Our responsibility toward those who have not experienced the blessings and joys of Christian fellowship should challenge us. We who have found fellowship in the shadow of the cross have an obligation toward those who do not know the old, old story of God's redeeming love. Let us use this season of spiritual refreshment to urge and invite those who do not have a church home to join us in the joys of Christian fellowship.

Acknowledging the appeal and the opportunities of this Lenten Season, let us consecrate anew our life and possessions to Christ and His Church. For we worship not alone a loving Saviour who died on a cross but a Christ who lives and leads on and on.

Income Accounting Set for Federal Officials

Newbold Morris, President Truman special clean-up investigator, announced plans this week to demand an income accounting from all key government workers as the first major step in his drive against corruption. The clean-up directive said questionnaires will be handed to officials and top employes next week with orders to answer or face immediate dismissal. The demand will include all top-echelon officials in the judiciary branch except President Truman. This would include Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Morris "boss" whose name is already a source of interest to a House judiciary committee.

The Atlantic Allies closed their meeting in Lisbon, Portugal, this week with agreements to reserve Germany and put a massive Western defense buildup in high gear. They invited Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to Washington to be NATO's administrative boss with headquarters in Paris. Foreign, defense and finance ministers of the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization met for five days in what they hailed as the most successful of the nine conferences the group has held.

President Truman in Washington announced that he is going to spend three weeks at Key West, Fla., one of his favorite vacation spots, before plunging into his 1952 campaigning. Whether the president runs again this year or not, political associates point out, he is committed to a vigorous program of speechmaking in behalf of his party and friends. They do not expect him to announce a decision on his candidacy until after he return from Key West.

In Korea, Communists rejected an Allied compromise plan which would drop Russia and Norway from the proposed list of six neutral observers for a Korean armistice. The Allies had offered to drop Norway if the Communists would drop Russia. A Chinese spokesman at the truce talks told Allied negotiators the attempt to exclude Russia was without "tenable reasons." Red China's premier accused the United States of stalling the truce talks while carrying out germ warfare in an attempt to prolong the war.

New Base Plate May Save The Army $70,000 a Year

An idea that may save the Army $70,000 or more a year is being put into effect at The Infantry Center.

It involves settling permanently base plates for 81 mm mortars. Lt. Col. Robert E. McGray, mortar committee chief in the Weapons Department of The Infantry School, explained that heretofore base plates have been removed after each demonstration.

When the plates were put in place for the next demonstration, it was necessary to fire two rounds to settle them — at a cost of nearly $20 per round. With the plates settled permanently, these two rounds will not have to be fired.

The $70,000 figure was arrived at on the basis of the firing schedule for February, when 37 demonstrations dealing with the technique of mortar fire were slated. Mortar committee officials were quick to point out that the firing fluctuates depending upon the instructional load of school classes. It is, therefore, impossible to arrive at a positive, definite figure, they said.

The saving might be greater or smaller, depending upon the number of demonstrations actually fired in a year. However, mortar committeemen were emphatic in their opinion that this program will cause a very definite reduction in the firing of rounds solely for settling base plates in position.

Since the base plates will be exposed to all sorts of weather, they have been painted with a special anti-rust compound to prevent excessive deterioration. The plates have been installed on one range, and later will be installed on two others. Although none of the ranges is used exclusively for mortar firing, the tubes are in use almost constantly.

508th Man Earned Jump Wings While Serving in Frankfurt

Most Army paratroopers earned their wings in the Airborne Department here at Fort Benning.

But not Cpl. Theodore F. Schonhans Jr. who is a husky rigger in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team's Parachute Maintenance Company at Lawson Field.

Says the 23-year-old, 5 foot, 11 inch, 195-pound husky from Staten Island, N. Y.: "I earned my wings in Frankfurt, Germany in May 1946 when I went through a two-weeks jump school conducted by the old 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment. After a week of conditioning, we made four jumps in two days and another on Wednesday morning and got our wings that afternoon!"

Assigned to Company B, Corporal Schonhans stayed with the 508th making eight jumps until the old Red Devil regiment was deactivated at Camp Kilmer, N. J., in November 1946. Then he joined the 325th Glider Regiment—now the 325th AIR—and made five more jumps before he was discharged June 1, 1947.

Your RED CROSS needs your help!

A Statement by Robert A. Lovett, Secretary of Defense

The mission of the American Red Cross is entirely dependent on the support of our people. We all have a stake in the Red Cross and especially the Armed Forces. This is particularly true today as so many of our men are engaged in a vital struggle for peace.

High morale is essential to our Armed Forces. It is preserved by the unique service of the Red Cross to our servicemen, their families and hospitalized veterans.

The Red Cross coordinates blood procursment for the Armed Forces. The need today of whole blood and its derivatives is greater than ever, since the stockpile has been depleted by the Korean conflict and must be rebuilt without delay.

Millions of Americans are being trained by the Red Cross for self-protection in any national emergency. This has required a considerable increase in personnel and the organization will grow larger still as our Armed Forces expand.

America needs the Red Cross and I hope that everyone will support it to the extent of his ability.

Col. Taylor Gets Overseas Orders

Col. Milton C. Taylor, deputy director of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School has been ordered overseas.

Colonel Taylor is leaving this week for Paris, France, where he will become executive officer for Headquarters, Military Assistance Advisory Group.

A member of the board of directors of the National Rifle Association, the Colonel is a distinguished pistol shot and a former member of the Infantry pistol team.

Colonel Taylor is ending his second four-year duty with The Infantry School. Prominent in pushing rifle marksmanship in the Army, he has been active in Cub Scout work on the post.

Prior to coming to Fort Benning Colonel Taylor served at the Armed Forces Staff College. Before that assignment he was in the Intelligence Division, Headquarters EUCOM.

During World War II he was executive officer of the 29th Infantry Regiment and served as an instructor at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point for two years.

Mrs. Taylor and their two children, Connie, 14, and Ronnie, 10, are expected to join the colonel in Paris this summer.

Cub Committee Elects Officers

The Fort Benning Cub Scout committee held its annual election of officers at a meeting in Wharton Hall in the Infantry School last week. Lt. Col. James H. Lynch was elected chairman, and Lt. Col. Walter J. Fellenz took office as Cub master with Lt. Col. James H. Moore assistant Cub Master.

The balance of officers will be appointed from interested officers who have been active in the Cub Scout activities.

At this meeting, plans were discussed for the formation of a second Cub Scout pack since the membership has grown in the last year from 65 to 135 members.

When the division of the pack takes place all members actually living on the post proper will be in one pack and those boys living in Benning Park, Custer Terrace, Baltle Park, and Baker Village will be grouped into the other pack.

The new pack will be under the sponsorship of the local Masonic lodge and the meetings will be held in the Fort Benning Masonic Temple.

Ex-Professional Wins Talent Show

Sfc. Gene Worford, who won first prize at a recent talent show in Service Club No 2, has been a professional actor and entertainer for 14 years. The 36-year-old sergeant took first spot in the show playing an accordion.

He first broke into show business when he joined a touring company at the age of 12.

Since that time, his accordion and piano playing has been overshadowed by stellar dramas. He is on a leave of absence from the Theater Guild, and expects to resume tours in legitimate plays when he is discharged.

Two of Worford's fondest memories are his success as Lennie, the pathetic simpleton in John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men", which he played at the Padasena Playhouse in California, and his studies under Charles Laughton, world-famed actor.

Worford has played in almost every state in the Union, and his acting once carried him to Mexico City and Panama.

Since he was drafted in 1950, Worford has appeared in Red Cross shows at Camp Polk, La., and Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C.

British Officer Visits Ranger Mountain Camp

Col. R. de la H. Moran, British Liaison officer at Army Field Forces Headquarters in Fort Monroe, Va., was among the group of officers who visited the Ranger Department camp at Dahlonega, Ga. last week.

Colonel Moran attended the first Ranger orientation course at the North Georgia tent camp with 15 U. S. Army officers. He spent four days watching Ranger trainees studying patrolling and survival techniques in the rugged southern reaches of the Great Smokies.

He returned to Fort Monroe late last night.

THE LAST WORD IN SIGNAL CORPS EQUIPMENT
The Signalmen Have Come A Long Way In 89 Years

Signal Corps Observes 89th Anniversary Mar. 3

The Infantry Center Signal Corps here will join with Signal units the world over in observing the 89th birthday of this corps on Mar. 3.

Maj. William A. Warlick, Signal Pictorial Officer of the Infantry Center, reported that no special activities were planned here this year. However, he said that a display would be set up at Kirven's department store in Columbus.

He also said that there are a number of Signal Corps movies available to any civic groups that might desire to show these wide range of subjects dealing with Signal Corps activities.

Major Warlick also reported that The Infantry Center would soon have a new Signal Officer —Lt. Col. Chester L. Martin. He will take the place left vacant by Lt. Col. Gordon D. Gray, who has left for an overseas assignment.

Maj. Lynn R. Bates has been appointed Signal Officer until Colonel Martin arrives.

Although the Army had no signal corps until 1860, a Signal Officer was appointed in 1860. At the time of the Civil War, communications over long distances depended upon visual signals and telegraph — the only major advancement in centuries.

Since its humble start, the Corps has kept abreast of ever-changing developments in the communication field. The primary mission of the Corps is to serve as the communications agency of the Army.

Today, the Corps has branched out to include radar, radio, meteorology, photography telephone and teletypewriter service. Nerve center of the Corps is in Washington. The Army's global network originates at a large communication center in the Pentagon building from which circuits radiate to all overseas theaters and to all major Army installations in the continental U. S.

At Fort Monmouth, N. J., and Camp Gordon, Ga., the Corps trains it own personnel as well as specialists from other branches of the Army. A Signal Corps Officers Candidate School is at Fort Monmouth.

As the Army's photographer the Signal Corps makes both still and motion pictures and designs photographic equipment. Still picture activities are directed from the Pentagon, where more than half a million photographs are available to the public.

Motion picture activities are centered at the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island City, N. Y. There the corps makes training and orientation films and processes the motion picture footage shot by Army cameramen the world over.

Experience in Korea is showing that Signal Corps equipment has stood the test and the post-World War II research program leading to an integrated communications system has anticipated the demands of modern combat.

Water Shortage Possibility Is Post Engineer's Worry

The possibility of an acute water shortage is one of the ever-present headaches of the utilities section of The Infantry Center engineers.

Although Fort Benning has a modern water plant capable of producing four million gallons of high-quality water daily, there is still the possibility of a water shortage.

Col. Richard Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer, has set the water target at 100 gallons per person a day. "Although we can produce a lot of water, strict conservation is necessary. One leak in a kitchen faucet can waste up to 500 gallons of water over a period of time. Although there is no immediate danger of a water shortage, we should all get in the habit of conserving water."

The entire water distribution system is being rejuvenated. Pipes through which the water is pumped are being cleaned and relined, and construction of an 18-inch water main from the plant to the million-gallon elevated tank is being planned.

The Fort Benning water supply comes from Upatoi creek. By an intricate system of filtering and aeration, the water is changed from muddy water to the clear finished product. The water plant is under the direct supervision of Junie D. Dykes, chief engineer.

Army Dental Corps Has 41st Birthday Next Week

The Army Dental Corps, which celebrates its 41st anniversary March 3, has come a long way since its modest beginning in 1911.

At Fort Benning, the Dental Section today employs almost twice as many dentists as were authorized in 1901 when Congress passed a law permitting the Army to appoint 30 contract dental surgeons.

The Dental Section here, under the direction of Col. Frederic H. Bockoven, operates five offices with a total of 59 chairs. Fifty-three officers, 53 enlisted men and 20 civilians today are required to care for the more than 10,200 patients who request treatment here monthly.

Army dentists were awarded the rank of first lieutenant March 3, 1911 when the Dental Corps was created. It was not until after the outbreak of World War I, however, that they were granted equal rights and privileges as Medical Corps officers.

When the Armistice was signed, the Army had 4,510 dental officers, a ratio of about two dentists for every 2,000 men in training and three per 1,000 beds in military hospitals.

Dental Corps Peak

The Dental Corps reached its peak in 1944, when 15,282 dentists were caring for the oral health of the Army.

Research has always played an important part in Dental Corps history. Prior to 1946, a research section at the Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., accomplished outstanding research, especially in the study of tooth decay. In 1946, a medical research and development board was initiated under the surgeon general and a Dental Research and Advisory Committee was set up in 1949.

Basic objective of the dental committee is to decrease the number of military casualties and the number of days lost from dental causes.

The dental research program today being conducted by the Army is coordinated among the Army Medical Center, the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, the National Bureau of Standards and civilian institutions under contract.

Policy of Program

The program follows a general policy of trying to reduce tooth decay, disease of tissues surrounding the tooth and other infectious disease of the mouth.

Development of clinical facilities and equipment depends a great deal on the development of equipment, instruments and supplies by the dental industry. However, practically all the development of field equipment has been a responsibility of the armed services, since this type of equipment is not required in civilian practice.

The corps now has facilities for performing dental work with mobile tactical units in a combat area so well-equipped that a dentist can do virtually anything that can be done in a modern dental clinic.

Practically all dental prosthetic appliances for soldiers are constructed at five central laboratories and large camp dental laboratories. The central laboratories are at Washington, D. C., Atlanta, Ga., St. Louis, Mo., San Antonio, Texas, and San Francisco, Calif.

GYPSY TRAIL (Bernie Nee, Hugo Winterhalter orchestra on RCA Victor). The man-with-the-baton, Hugo Winterhalter, presents his always-to-be-expected, fine arrangement on this tune with an old, gypsy-folk song flavor. This musical offering by Winterhalter weaves the story of a gay, carefree life of a gypsy who has music in his heart.

"Gypsy Trail" is reminiscent of the dance-filled song album, "Anna Zena". Song stylist, Bernie Nee, presents the song in a quite, pleasant way as he is supported musically by Mr. Winterhalter. Maestro Hugo accomplishes definite flavor by keeping the beat and bounce of the Gypsy's tamborine predominate to present throughout the rendition. Tune is catchy, but not as good listening at the reverse side.

BLUE TANGO (Hugo Winhalter orchestra recorded by RCA Victor). This is the reverse side of "Gypsy Trail", and the side which proved to be more pleasing to this listener's ear. Winterhalter's arrangement of "Blue Tango" is one of the few arrangements of this tango which doesn't lose it's zest as the tune progresses along its merry, musical way. Winterhalter's "Blue Tango" presentation opens with a strictly instrumental lead - in which is taken completely by an "electric" guitar. The soli-tary, "electric" guitar is joined several bars later by the forceful, Winterhalter. French horns which add full-body to the vibrating great of "Blue Tango". The lonely "electric" guitar did the honors of opening the tango, and it has the last musical word in closing out the tune. The composer is Leroy Anderson. "Blue Tango" is splendid for dancing and a pleasant, musical listening treat.

BEYOND THE BLUE HORIZON (Hugo Winterhalter chorus and orchestra). This record was released several months ago, but we feel it rates being reviewed again. It's an old composition by Marraret Whiting's dad, Richard Whiting, who wrote the tune in collaboration with composers Robin and Harling. It's an old tune, but a sparkling, new arrangement by Winterhalter's orchestra and chorus group.

Every record listener gets a definite impression in his mind as he listens to a recording, and this listener got the feeling of "riding on a train" as he listened to Winterhalter's "Beyond the Blue Horizon". The feeling was caused by the swift-moving, Winterhalter arrangement which gives the listener the feeling of riding on a train which is headed direct into a musical, "blue horizon." This feeling of train motivation is accomplished by conductor Hugo's use of the "snare" drums which hold strong sway throughout the entire arrangement. You may have played this song on your favorite "jukebox", but did you add it to your own record collection? It's worth many a musical ride on your own record turntable.

Reverse side is Cy Coben's composition, "I Never Was Loved By Anyone Else". This is a tune with a military flavor to it — almost to the point of being a good, march tune. It's novel and worth a spin. We would purchase this tune for the song on the reverse side, "Beyond the Blue Horizon", which is done beautifully be Hugo Winterhalter, his choral group and orchestra.

RECORDS AT RANDOM: RCA Victor has re-pressed and re-released Wayne King's theme song, "The Waltz You Saved For Me". As it was first introduced to Americans years ago by Wayne King and his orchestra, it did not feature Wayne King's orchestra with the perennially favorite waltz, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles".

• • •

We seem to have devoted the greater portion of today's record review to the music of Hugo Winterhalter, his orchestra and chorus. Winterhalter always does an entertainingly great job, so, perhaps you won't mind our emphasis on music by Hugo Winterhalter.

Audience Praises First Play Given By Post Little Theater

Ruth Godon's famous Broadway comedy, "Over 21," looked much younger last week when staged by Fort Benning's new Little Theater group.

Eleven amateurs performed the New York hit before more than 1,500 Infantry Center and Columbus persons, on Feb. 21 and 22, the first audience to see the post's Little Theater in action.

When the curtain fell after the two-hour production, audience acceptance assured the new theatrical group a long run in the amateur stage business.

Rich Rewards

Mrs. Morla Sheen, smartly young director of the play, couldn't have been more richly rewarded. Her neophyte performers — the men are officers at Fort Benning, the women are wives of post officers — portrayed parts creditably and enthusiastically.

"Over 21" is the story of a successful authoress who drops her career to be near her World War II officer candidate - husband.

Rosanne McQuarie, leading lady, played the part of Paula Wharton with conviction. Tennessee, and Maj. Winford Logan, playing the character of Max Wharton, easily took honors as the play's most professional trouper.

Fast - paced dialogue kept the show from slowing and lagging like many comedies. Maj. Harold Sauer, enthusiastically portraying newspaper publisher Robert Drexel Gow, took honors for stealing the audience's most frequent and sustained laughter.

Mrs. Bernice R. Phillips was the show's surprise. Although her appearance is walk - on - walk - off with only a few lines, she was given choice punch lines in two of the third act's sequences. Mrs. Phillips is in her 60's, and is the mother-in-law of Lt. Col. Paul V. Liles, an American prisoner of Chinese Communists.

Young Barbara Millener and William R. O'Connell opened the show with minor parts, but were impressive in their roles as native superficial youngsters experiencing first tastes of married, and Army life.

Very little could be called extraneous in the show. First nighters agreed the amateur production was as entertaining as any show staged hereabouts in several years.

If you listen to the Columbus radio stations, you will hear a lot of Fort Benning talent on these stations during the month of March, 1952. The talent will be used in publicizing the 1952 American Red Cross Membership and Fund drive.

Individual musical numbers from the Pvt. Dave Johnson Combo and Pvt. Larry Gordon have already been recorded, and earlier this week, the Pvt. Al Palermo Combo was recorded in the Main Officers Mess. They will all be used on Columbus disc-jockey shows.

Plans are just about set to record a Fort Benning hillbilly group and a group of musicians in the Combat Training Command, called the "Commanders."

You will be notified of time and date the musical numbers will be aired.

"Benning News Parade" (WDAK, 8:30 p.m., Saturdays) for last week included a group of very interesting people.

The New Yorker, famous military analyst, Hanson W. Baldwin, appeared on the problem, and answered such questions as: What do you think will be the role of the Infantry in the future?"

John A. Cramer, Field Director of the Fort Benning American Red Cross, also appeared on the program, outlining plans for the 1952 American Red Cross Membership and Fund drive.

A somewhat different approach was used on the show, when a writer for the PIO-TIC was interviewed in the Press Branch of the PIO-TIC. She was asked to give her opinions on the first performance of the Fort Benning Little Theater production of "Over 21."

Maj. Lester B. Johnson, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, TIC, gave an excellent description of the newly reorganized Character Guidance Council, which is composed of officers and enlisted men at Fort Benning.

A first-hand account of what the Ranger Department's North Georgia training camp looks like was given on the program by Maj. Frank Perry, Combat Training Command. The major accompanied visiting colonels and lieutenant colonels on an orientation trip to the North Georgia site last week.

The Combat Training Command is contributing more and more to Fort Benning radio programs aired from station in Columbus.

Last Saturday on "Benning In Review" (WRBL AM — FM 6:15 p.m. Saturdays), the Command's Public Information Office prepared an excellent on - the - spot report from the firing pit of the Fort Benning firing range. Pvt. Bill Nowland was producer of the spot.

The Combat Training Command also produced the "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM - FM Noon Sundays) last week. The program covered the Organization Day activities of the 30th Infantry Regiment last Friday.

The program was actually recorded at Service Club No. 2 in the Sand Hill area, and featured a short talk by commander of the 30th Infantry, Col. Ralph N. Woods.

Kickoff on the radio broadcast phase of the Fort Benning 1952 American Red Cross Membership and Fund raising drive, will be next Sunday on the "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA AM-FM, Noon Sundays).

A documentary, telling how Fort Benning and the American Red Cross have worked together during the past years, will be presented at the time. You will hear many familiar voices on the show, recorded all around the Fort Benning reservation.

PARTING SHOTS: May Pigott's "Musical Bouquet of Roses" (WPBS 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sundays) is becoming more and more popular. Looks like WPBS will have to enlarge their studios if many more spectators attend the broadcast. Ex - "Benning In Review" headliner, Howard Adams, scheduled to appear on Columbus CFA broadcast of The Navy Hour, March 5.

Grey Ladies Cheer The Sick

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Working With the Red Cross, They Plan Hospital Recreation

One of the most familiar and welcome sights to patients in the Fort Benning Army Hospital are the ever-present Red Cross Gray Ladies.

The Gray Ladies, all volunteers, work in close conjunction with the hospital's Red Cross recreational staff in planning parties, showing movies, shopping for bed patients, reading or writing letters, and doing a thousand and one other little things for patients.

Miss Sydney Beauxis, Red Cross field director at the hospital, said "Our whole program depends upon the help these volunteer ladies give us. We have our own staff, but we cannot handle the great load of work by ourselves."

Origin of the Gray Ladies organization goes back to 1918, when the Hospital and Recreation Corps of the Red Cross was moving into action. They group derived its name from the gray uniform and veil the ladies of that period wore. The gray uniform is still worn, but the veil has been discarded.

When First Began

When the organization was first begun, the ladies were concerned primarily with hostess and recreation duties, but in the wake of World War II the need for a more direct service to the patients was felt.

During World War II, Gray Ladies were active in thousands of hospitals an were of dimmeasurable al tod overworked nurses and hospital attendants.

After World War II, the organization here was inactive, but was reorganized last year. Two classes have been capped since then, one in March and one in October.

Now, there are 25 active Gray Ladies on the post.

The Fort Benning Gray Ladies are under the direction of the Muscogee County Red Cross chapter. Mrs. Julian Edge is chairman of the town group, and Mrs. Charles Reibendaugh is post chairman. The two groups work very closely together, each assisting the other with special projects.

Although each Gray Lady is a volunteer, she must comply with certain regulations before she is entitled to wear the cap and uniform. First, an applicant is interviewed by a Red Cross and Gray Lady team to determine her suitability.

Cpl. Wardell Jackson Watches Mrs. R. F. Weber

15 Hours of Training

Following the interview, each applicant is given a 15-hours training period that includes a lecture series by hospital and Red Cross leaders. Following this period, each applicant works on the wards for a 10-hour probationary period.

If the applicant successfully completes all these requirements she is capped and becomes a Gray Lady.

Each Gray Lady is checked for special aptitudes or talents such as handicrafts or other special skills, and then put to work where she will best be able to utilize these skills.

The increased number of Korean veterans in the hospital here has brought about a need for more Gray Ladies. Plans are being formulated for another class to begin in early spring. Miss Beauxis said. "We, of the Red Cross appreciate the help the Gray Ladies have been to us, and we welcome any Gray Ladies who are transferred here.

"Our work has increased so much that we need more Gray Ladies, and therefore we're planning to start another class as soon as possible."

Lt. Col. Leonard Speaks at Chapel

Lt. Col. J. W. Leonard, commanding officer, First Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, was guest speaker at Sand Hill Chapel No. 4 Feb. 16.

Introducing the guest speaker, Chaplain (Capt.) A. L. Lewis, 30th Infantry Chaplain, pointed out that Colonel Leonard teaches Bible classes at Chapel 4 each Wednesday evening at seven.

Patio Plans Topic Of NCO Meeting

Plans for enlarging the patio at the Pine Lodge Non-Commissioned Officers' Mess were discussed at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Central NCO Mess held Monday.

Tentative plans call for enlargement of the patio prior to summer. The group also discussed the opening of a new NCO mess in the Sand Hill area and construction of a patio at the Benjamin O. Davis Mess.

Guest at the meeting was Col. Stephen Ackerman, who gave a short talk about Saint Michael's Mission here. Members of the board pledged their cooperation to the mission.

SERGEANTS ASSIGNED

Sgt. H. F. Clayton and Sgt. T. B. McGraw, J. N. Ferguson and D. L. Herriford are now assigned to the 14th Transportation Company.

AER Head Gives Thanks to Post

Personnel of Fort Benning have been extended thanks and appreciation for their $4,000 contribution to the Army Emergency Relief through the 1951 Community Chest Drive.

The message of gratitude came from the Director and Board of Managers, Army Emergency Relief, through the commanding general.

The Department of the army desires that all members of the Army be informed of the assistance available to them and their dependents Army Emergency Relief in times of unforeseen emergencies.

Emergency financial assistance is extended to Army personnel and their dependents in the form of loans, without interest, or outright grants if repayment of loans would cause undue hardship.

This assistance is available because of the great number of small contributions made voluntarily every year by members of the Army and because of the high rate of loan repayments.

508th Serves As Guinea Pigs

"We thought it was a fine test and we felt flattered that we were selected to serve as 'guinea pigs' to test the test!"

Thus did Lt. Col. John M. Wright Jr., commanding officer of the Third battalion of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, express the sentiments of his officers and enlisted men who took part in the special "live fire" battalion-size test run off here at Fort Benning last week for the Infantry School.

It was an Infantry School test, devised to gauge the combat readiness and proficiency of battalion-size units. Rear artillery, mortar, machine-gun and rifle fire was used in the attack phase. The test, if adopted by Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va., will be used to determine the readiness of rifle battalion units throughout the Army.

Infantry School project officer was Lt. Col. Harold B. Mangold.

"The Third battalion of the 508th turned in an outstanding performance in every way," said Colonel Mangold. "The cooperation, energy and spirit of the strike battalion was magnificent and contributed immeasurably toward the determination of the effectiveness of this new battalion test which the Infantry School has written."

Colonel Wright added: "But all in all, it was a fine test. My men were a bit flabbergasted by the unusually large numbers of umpires and safety officers who followed them about. But in the test of this sort called for live ammunition, it can't be avoided."

A cross-section commentary by men of the 508th's Third battalion who participated in the test follows:

PFC Antoni Fogala, Company K 57-mm gunner, who celebrated 13 months in the Army last Monday — "I thought this new test called for much more co-ordination in the night withdrawal than did the Army Field Fan-ex test we took a few weeks ago. It seemed to be a more complicated test, too."

SFC Thomas P. Gallagher, Company K assistant platoon leader — "This test seemed to bring out more effort on the part of the battalion staff than it did on the part of the individual soldier. Though we were rushed for time, I thought the night withdrawal was the best part of our operation. The live ammunition part of the test was good, but there wasn't enough of it."

SFC Robert V. Cobbs, Company K platoon leader with 13 years service — "Heavy weapons and crew-served weapons don't have an active enough part in the test. They should fire more. The live-fire part made this a better test, however."

Sgt. Stephen W. McNally, Company I second platoon leader — "Lot of stress on map-reading. The aggressor action placed the aggressors out in the open too much."

First Lt. Chester M. Byers, Company L platoon commander — "Generally, a good test. The march into the assembly area was too short because the men tend to become bored on long hikes on this sort of a test before going into defense."

Second Lt. Caesar J. Civatella, Company K platoon leader — "A good test, but it could have incorporated more village, hill and woods fighting. Another point, and this couldn't be avoided for safety reasons, but there was too much gap between companies and platoons on the attack. This tended to confuse the men who remembered the previous Army Field Forces test. Umpires and safety officers could have been more realistic when working with men who were crawling."

YOUR FRIEND IN PEACE AND WAR

Much-Traveled Paratrooper Member of 508th ARTC

I was never on a golf course until I jumped from an airplane upon the one army Corps tour.

That's the unusual claim of M-Sgt. John G. Vierra, most-traveled man in Headquarters Company, Third battalion of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

The 32-year-old World War II paratrooper from the 503rd Parachute RCT of Southwest Pacific fame was born in Rochester, N. Y. When he was five years old his father, Fred Vierra of Santa Clara, Calif.—took him to the Island of Madeira, off Portugal. That was the last he was to see of the U. S. for 12 years.

"I attended grammar, then high school in Madeira. When I was 16, Dad took me to Santos, Brazil where I attended Maddey College for a year," recalls Sergeant Vierra.

"Finally when I was 17, we came back to the U. S. and what do you think happened? I had to start grammar school then night high school all over again to learn to speak English and the American way of life. I was graduated from Santa Clara grammar school at the age of 20," said sergeant Vierra. "I also put in nine years at a cabinet maker before I was drafted into the American Army in March 1943."

Then his travels began all over again. "I got my jump wings here at Fort Benning in September 1943, joined the 503rd on the Island of Mindoro in the Pacific. My combat jumps were on Corregidor and Negros Islands. I was one of the few troopers, jumping in a six-man stick, who managed to land atop Corregidor but I was wounded on the seventh day of fighting."

Out of the Army for three years, Sergeant Vierra came back in March 1948. Now the 5 foot, 9 inch, 182 pound Pioneer and Ammunition Platoon Leader for the Third battalion has 33 jumps. It be ever gets out of the Army again he says he's going to be:

"An apricot rancher in California!"

CTC Will Attempt to Beat Low Accident Rate of 1951

Efforts to reduce accidents to an even greater degree were urged last week by Col. R. N. Woods, commanding officer of the low-accident-rate Combat Training Command.

Colonel Woods made his appeal to the personnel of CTC in transmitting a letter to them from Maj. Gen. John H. Church, commander, The Infantry Center.

General Church wrote:

"The annual accident experience report for 1951 indicates that the frequency of disabling injury accidents involving personnel of your command was 33 per cent less than the preceding year and 26 per cent less than the Infantry Center average for the same period. This favorable comparison results in a considerable savings in both manpower and monetary losses due to a reduction in accidents in your command.

"It is a pleasure," the letter continued, "to recognize this achievement in the prevention of disabling injury accidents, as it is an indication that the accident program in your command is producing the desired results."

In transmitting General Church's letter, Colonel Woods credited his command's improved safety record to the attentiveness paid to the safety program by individuals of CTC.

"There are still many accidents", he cautioned, "and therefore the incentive to continue executing care remains."

Colonel Woods pointed out that a disproportionate share of CTC accidents occur off post during duty hours, and urged that personnel of his command exercise great care while on leave and pass.

Library Tells Concert Plans

Record concert at the Main Post Library on Tuesday, March 5, will include the following:

"Mozart — The marriage of Figaro — (complete opera). Fritz Busch conductor Glyndebourne Festival Opera Company. The orchestra and chorus of the Glyndebourne Mozart Opera Festivals, 1934-35. (recorded in England).

Human Targets At Work Here

Four tank crews of the 30th Infantry Regiment's Tank Company spend their duty days acting as targets for students at The Infantry School.

Would-be marksmen are continually peppering the tanks with rifle grenades, recoilless rifle rounds, and small arms bullets.

Riding in modified tanks at approximately 15 miles per hour, the tankers think no more about the danger of their work than you in your daily tasks.

"We've been driving target tanks for about a year, and never have had a casualty", says 1st Lt. A. S. Araujo, commanding officer of the Tank Company.

Grooming the obsolete tanks for target practice, experts remove all inflamatory material and equipment except such essentials as gas and oil. All openings except those for the driver and tank commander are sealed, and extra armor plate is installed to protect them.

The main tank gun is removed and the recess sealed. Even the periscope opening is sealed against the danger of a fluke shot. Once out of fire range, an assistant guides the tank drivers and commanders with visual signals.

$20 Received Here For Korean Kids

A heart-warming letter and a contribution of $20.00 for the benefit of the homeless children of Korea were received from South America recently by Chaplain Edwin C. Gonke of the Third Student Regiment.

The contribution came from the people of Concordia, Entre Rios, Argentina. In forwarding the check, Reverend Fred Schneider, Congregational-Christian Missionary, wrote that despite the general poverty of the people of his congregation, they responded enthusiastically to an appeal for contributions when the plight of these children was made know to them. Some, he reported, went in debt in order to contribute.

Major Believed to Be Only Preaching Adjutant in Army

The Third Student Regiment believes it has the only "preaching adjutant" in the Army.

He is Major William J. King, an ordained Baptist minister, who will conduct Protestant Services at Harmony Church Chapel on Sunday, March 2.

He started preaching while still attending East high school of Kansas City, Mo. After completing high school, he attended Bob Jones Baptist university in Cleveland, Tenn. and with one year of school behind him, volunteered for the Army in 1941.

He attended OCS at Fort Benning, receiving his commission in 1942. He served throughout the war and helped in the original setting up of the Constabulary in Germany after the war's end. He was discharged a major in 1947.

Meantime, Bob Jones university had moved to Greenville, S. C. The Major resumed his religious education there, receiving his degree in 1949.

He stayed in school for another year as instructor in the Department of Christian Education. In 1950 he left to attend the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Texas. While there he was Pastor of Southmade Baptist Church in Southmade, Texas.

After a year at Southwestern Baptist, his education was again interrupted when he was recalled to Active Duty in April, 1951. He plans to finish his work on a Seminary Degree and, possibly to enter the Chaplains Corps and remain in the Army.

While at Fort Benning, Major King has preached at Winston Baptist church, Eastwood Baptist church, and First Baptist church in Columbus. He will preach at Holt Chapel March 9 and 16.

After these last two dates he will report to Camp Stoneman, California, for further assignment, this time to FECOM.

Red Cross Comes Through With Help in Emergencies

(EDITOR'S NOTE: It is the policy of the American Red Cross in cases of this type to withhold the names and addresses of those concerned. Taken from the files of the Fort Benning office of the Red Cross the following is an incident that should bring this vital service-man's service closer to us.)

On the afternoon of Jan. 6, this year, a soldier stationed in the Sand Hill Area appeared in the main office of the Fort Benning Red Cross. He had received a long distance telephone call from his family informing him that his brother had been killed that morning.

Due to his upset condition, it was impossible to determine whether or not the soldier knew of the presence of a branch Red Cross office in his area, or if he just thought it best to report to the main post office, which is open 24 hours a day.

After an interview with the soldier, the office contacted the home service worker of the Red Cross chapter in the hometown of the man to verify the death of the brother, the time and place of the funeral.

Within a few minutes, the home service worker had called and verified the death and supplied the desired information pertaining to the funeral.

This information was immediately passed on to the soldier's unit, and he was granted an emergency furlough. At this point, the man stated that he was without funds and knew of no source from which he could obtain money. The Red Cross here assured him that he would receive financial assistance.

In order to save time the soldier was sent back to his unit, picked-up his leave orders and from there proceeded to the Sand Hill Red Cross office to pick up his loan.

TIC Rest Camp Is Improved

The Florida Camp That Opens March 15 Offers Relaxation

The Infantry Center Rest Camp at Destin, Fla., will reopen this year on March 15, Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, special services officer reported.

The rest camp has been improved considerably since last summer, and plans have been made to keep it open year-round. Colonel Grimes reported that over $4,000 has been spent in refinishing the six cabins, both inside and out.

"The camp is a wonderful place for families to spend a quiet, restful week," he said. "For someone who likes to fish and swim or just lie around in the sun, it can't be beat. But there's not much night life or excitement around there."

The camp is located on a bay of the Gulf of Mexico, about 240 miles from Fort Benning. Approximately half-way between Panama City and Pensacola, it is near Eglin Air Force Base.

All six cabins have been painted and covered with new asbestos shingle walls. New roofs have been put on, and new linoleum laid on the floors. Each cabin now has a stove and refrigerator — something they have not had in the past.

Accomodate Four

Five of the cabins can comfortably accomodate four people, Colonel Grimes said, while the sixth can take up to 10 people. He said this cabin was suitable for a group of single enlisted men who might want to visit the camp.

Reservations may be made at any time by calling Capt. Robert E. Walters at 4-2115. They may be made any length of time in advance, but payment must be made at least one week prior to going or the reservations will be cancelled. The charge is $3.50 per family per day.

Due to the limited facilities, no person or family may stay more than seven days, Colonel Grimes related. "We have to limit it like this in order to give more people a chance at it," he said. "We'd like to let people stay as long as they want, but it just isn't possible."

Boating Available

The camp may be utilized by both officers and enlisted men and their families. Colonel Grimes reported that there are several rowboats and one motorboat available, for which there is no charge.

Personnel may take advantage of post exchange and commissary privileges available at Eglin Air Force Base. There are also grocery stores and restaurants within a short distance of the camp. Deep sea fishing boats make daily trips from nearby points for a nominal fee.

Colonel Grimes reported that the beach and entire camp area has been cleared of underbrush and generally cleaned up. A new well has been dug and a new pump installed, so there is now an adequate water supply for cooking and bathing.

"The cabins and other facilities down there could hardly be described as luxurious," Colonel Grimes said, "but it's certainly the place for a family that would like to spend a nice restful vacation."

Student Brigade Gets New S-1

First Student Brigade's new S-1 is Lt. Col. Samuel M. Cromwell. He is a veteran of four years service in Europe during and after World War II.

Colonel Cromwell enlisted in the Army in 1933 and served for the next nine years with the First Infantry Regiment. In 1942 he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant after graduating from OCS at Fort Benning.

From 1944-45 he served as Regimental Adutant and Operations Officer in Europe with the 411th Infantry Regiment, 103d Infantry Division. After the division was deactivated in the fall of 1945, Colonel Cromwell was rotated to the United States.

From 1948-49 he was again assigned to Europe and served with the sixth U. S. Constabulary Regiment as Adjutant. In May of 1949 he was again rotated to the United States and was assigned as a Regular Army National Guard Instructor in Louisiana.

In the Fall of 1950 he was sent to the Ranger Training Command and served there as Adjutant until the Command was deactivated last Fall.

Awards he has received include Bronze Star, Oak Leaf Cluster for Valor, and the Combat Infantry Badge.

30th Men Receive 9 Bronze Stars

Nine Bronze Star medals were presented to members of the 30th Infantry Regiment at ceremonies last Friday commemorating the 130th anniversary of the regiment.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, assistant commandant of the Infantry Center, presented oak leaf clusters to M-Sgt. A. Ramirez, Maj. Randall Kelly, Maj. J. W. Morris, 2nd Lt J. J. Moye, CWO W. H. Smith, WOJG A. H. Jackson, and M-Sgt. Eugene Hirie.

Bronze Stars were also awarded to Sfc. J. J. Mills, and Cpl. T. H. Burch.

The decorations were made during the regimental parade at Tiger Field in the Sand Hills area.

Italian Army Captain Now Infantry School Student

The Infantry School is a new experience to many students, but to an Italian Army officer attending the school it seems almost like home.

Capt. Claudio D'Anna, 114th Company, Second Student Regiment, was an instructor and company commander at Italy's Infantry School near Rome for two years prior to coming here.

Captain D'Anna explained that the Italian school consists of three battalions, two of students and one of demonstration and cadre troops. One of the student battalions is set up for training privates, corporals and non-commissioned officers.

The other trains officer candidates who come to the school after completing a six-month preliminary course similar to the U. S. Army's leadership School.

Military service is traditional in Captain D'Anna's family. His father died of wounds received while fighting the Germans as an officer in the Italian Army during World War I. His brother is a captain in the Italian Army and attended a pilot training course at Randolph Field, Texas this winter. He was on his way back to Italy as his brother was arriving here.

A graduate of the Modena Academy in Italy, Captain D'Anna was captured by the British in 1942. In 1943, along with several other captured officers, Captain D'Anna was given the opportunity to recruit volunteers from among the Italian prisoners.

He returned to Italy in 1946. He is married to the daughter of the Italian Infantry School commandant, and has one son. His family is living in Cesano, where the Italian school is located.

Engineer Supt. Retires After 33 Years Service

Creel B. Butler, superintendent, Plumbing section of Utilities, Post Engineers, will retire from government service on Feb. 29 after 33 years of duty.

Mr. Butler, a native of Louisville, Ky., has been at Post Engineers as superintendent since 1937, when he returned to the States from an assignment in Honolulu.

He started his government career in 1919 at Fort Eustace, Va., in the Utilities section of Quartermaster. In November 1931, he was sent to Schofield Barracks, Honolulu as superintendent of plumbing. He returned to the States in 1937.

Mr. Butler said "I chose this type of work because it was the only thing I knew. I had been working with my father on construction business and that fitted me for Engineer work." He continued "I have never regretted my choice for in utilities work I have learned much about plumbing, heating, and sanitation."

In looking back over his years at Benning, Mr. Butler feels that Post Engineers has grown along with the post. He said "When I first came to Benning, there were only 900 buildings and now there are 5,400. This office has had to expand and work out new methods of dealing with the increase in utilities business. Prior to and during World War II we employed 450 men in this section. However, now we only have 42."

Mr. Butler has not decided how he will spend his leisure time following his retirement but thinks perhaps it will be in the real estate business or fishing. Whatever it is, he will be in or near Columbus, for he and his wife have just completed a new home here. He says "We have lots of friends in Columbus and I don't know of a better place to live".

Post Engineer personnel entertained with a dinner at Syrretts Fish camp on Thursday night honoring Mr. Butler. He was presented with a farewell gift at the dinner.

Army Field Printing Plant Does Big Business for Year

Fort Benning's Army Field Printing Plant used an average of three tons of paper a day last year.

During the year 22,120,000 press impressions and 163,336,000 production units were turned out, and the plant used 18,256,000 mimeograph sheets.

The plant, commanded by Lt. Col. Schiller F. Shore, is a section of the Training and Publications Section, The Infantry School. Its primary purpose is the reproduction of instructional material for the School.

However, it is often called upon to do work for other Third Army installations such as the Provost Marshal School at Camp Gordon, Ga., and the Anniston Ordnance Depot, Ala.

The plant is divided into five sections, each of which does a specific job. The combined sections can produce anything from a book, complete with pictures, to a map.

Nerve Center

Nerve center of the plant is the administrative section. The lithographic section prints multi-colored maps among other things, and a large part of the instructional material that was formerly mimeographed.

The letter-press section, drafting section, and shipping department make up the rest of the plant.

The letter press section reproduces by the raised type process which is the linotype and by hand set type method. Photo engraving facilities of the plant take care of the zinc half - tones and line cuts for illustrations and pictures. The bindery section does all the finishing up of the printed material such as folding, stitching, punching and collecting.

Drafting Section

The drafting section takes care of the work of hand reproducing instructional charts for both indoor and outdoor use. Their Work also includes some illustrations such as parts of equipment that must be blown up, charts of terrain features, and military situations. The shipping department handles the normal distribution of printed material to the file rooms and to the using agency.

Some of the most up-to-date equipment available is housed in the building. In the lithographic section alone are three off-set presses, a regraining machine, camera, and arc lamps. In the letter press section are three cylinder presses, seven job presses, and five linotype machines. The Bindery section has a cutter, three folding machines, an automatic collator, five stitchers, two perforators, and one hydraulic paper drill.

18 MONTHS TO PAY BALANCE

508th Takes Lead For Bouts Tuesday

The fifth weekly boxing card—there are eight more to go to determine Fort Benning's individual Third Army tournament representatives and the post team champion—is scheduled at 7:15 Tuesday night at Briant Wells Field House. One of the feature attractions, as usual, is expected to be the scrap among the huge numbers of fans for the available 2,500 seats.

Area Service Unit Provisional Group, scoring a single point, was toppled from first place in the Fort Benning championship boxing series Tuesday night while 2,800 fans hailed Dick Lohmann as the post's current best heavyweight.

Lohmann, 194-pounder from First Student Regiment, soundly thrashed Bob Cotton, brightest light among ASU stars, in the featured three-rounder at Briant Wells. Dick had beaten Cotton previously, but the margin had been slim and the verdict unpopular with the fans.

With Lohmann's win, First Student Regiment collected 12 points for the night, matching the efforts of 508th Airborne and Combat Training Command.

The 508th took over the scoring lead for the 1952 team championship with a season's total of 30 points. ASU has 47, the First, 41, and CTC 36.

The First's effort was most impressive, however. In addition to Lohmann, they got wins from two other strong title contenders.

Lightweight Len James, a flawless boxer with a rapid punch, polished off James Hiller, 131 3-4, in three rounds. Ray Lee, a top contender for light middleweight honors, put previously unbeaten Rudolph (Shoulders) Chiles, 152 1-2 on the deck in winning another good three-rounder.

Freddie Wint, 156 pounder from Provisional Medical Group, who pound - for - pound probably throws the hardest punch of any post fighter, bloodied 508th's John Casellano, 155 1-4, in the next best scrap on the 16-bout card.

For the first time there were no points picked up last week due to action of the post boxing board, although there certainly will be some this week if some of the outstanding battlers do not receive challenges.

The board's main action last week was to advance First Student Regiment's Ray Lee and Provisional Medical Group's Freddie Wint to class two from class three; and to re - classify CTC's Leon Hall as a light middleweight instead of middleweight.

Complete results:

Jesse Flores, 131½, 508th decisioned Robert Flores, 130½, ASU; Leon Hall, 165½, CTC, knocked out Freeman Thatcher, 154½, ASU, in 1:38 of one; Leonard James, 130½, First S. R., decisioned James Hiller, 131½, ASU.

Dick Lohmann, 194, First S. R. decisioned Robert Cotton, 185½, ASU; John Sibell, 111½, CTC, defeated Jim Shimabukuro, 112, Third S. R.; Freddie Wint, 156, PMG, decisioned John Casellano, 155½, 508th; Milton Marner, 145½, CTC, decisioned David Chippelli, 142, Third S. R.

Charlie Cummings, 165, CTC, decisioned Bob Lazarcoe, 168, ISD; Louian Roberts, 160, ISD, knocked out Richard Autrey, 156½, First S. R., in 2:31 of one; William Brown, 152½, ASU, knocked out Hugh Smith, 157½, First S. R., in 2:31 of three; Raymond Neville, 139½, Third S. R., defeated Jay Dyson, 137½, ASU; and Roland Martin, 118, First S. R., defeated Martin Rafferty, 119, 508th.

Definite title contenders are beginning to shape up in each of the ten weight divisions as a glance at The Bayonet's weekly ring ratings below will quickly show. ASU Provisional Group currently has three sluggers rated tops, against two each for Combat Training Command, 508th Airborne and First Student Regiment.

Most interesting situation arises in the light heavyweight bracket.

Although James Boyd is defending post champion he has had only one bout Tuesday, CTC's Harvey Distel has shown tremendous improvement and a sleep inducing right hand to gain first place in the ranking.

Boyd, now of First Student Regiment, but fighting for ASU when he won the 1951 crown, outfiailed Gordon Ifill, of CTC, four weeks ago in his only showing thus far.

On that same card, Distel, at 179, ventured into the heavyweight bracket and got outpointed by 508th's Bill McCleanaghan, 184 1-2, for his trouble. After that, he keyed 508th's Randall Johnson in 2:10 of the first and two weeks ago thoroughly defeated the First's Lon Barnes, who tried to step down from the heavy class.

Harvey the Hitter hails from Tiffin, O., where he had a couple of bouts as an ASU scrapper. Discount the McCleanaghan bout—he needed a tune-up anyway—and he has a perfect slate in his own division.

Another hot class in the light middleweight division will be ASU's odd hunk of humanity, Rudolph (Shoulders) Chiles, and Ray Lee, First S.R., currently conceded the edge.

Lee had fought only once previous to meeting Chiles last Tuesday. He bloodied and beat John Carpenter, of 508th, on the initial card.

Chiles won two straight. He TKO'd Leon Felder, a very tough CTC scrapper, who was good enough to deck Rudolph once, in 2:21 of the third, and three weeks ago he outdid the southpaw shots of Bert Stevens, another CTC cutie.

The kid both Lee and Chiles have to look out for, however, is PMG's Freddie Wint, who may wind up making matress models out of the rest of the light middle contenders. Wint, a Jamaican who was considered for that island's Olympic team four years ago, scrambled the features of ISD's Manual Bustos two weeks ago. Manual went home before they could start the third round, which was the sensible thing to do.

In the welter bracket, it's a tossup whether CTC's Charlie Cummings or First SR's Ernie Hall ought to get the nod. Hall

3rd In Two Key Tilts; 1st Upset

Twelve-times victorious Third Student Regiment meets two of the tougher of its five remaining foes in the coming week's action in the Fort Benning Basketball League.

The Generals may be severely tested when they meet 508th Airborne Friday night at Briant Wells Field House. The Red Devils have developed into one of the league's best coordinated quintets.

508th Airborne upset First Student Regiment, 56-49, in Tuesday night's featured game. It was the biggest form reversal of the year.

The uprising 508th, paced by Center Larry Ivan's 22 points, jumped into a quick lead against the second-place First, and was never headed. They had period leads of 17-13, 31-24 and 45-36.

The First's downfall was a recurrence of their old jinx of hitting slumps when they are unable to touch the basket from any angle. The 508th contributed to this by controlling the backboards.

In Tuesday night's other game, Lawson Air Force Base faltered to lose in the last quarter for the second straight time. Infantry School Detachment edged them, 79-71, behind the 26-point shooting of Coach John Yaldikian.

The Flyers had led at the first quarter, 24-14, at the half, 41-30, and going into the final period, 52-49.

Pinoky Lawson Field, with better conditioning from game experience may prove a rocky toe for the Third Wednesday night at Briant Wells. The Flyers' main asset is a trio of dead-eye shots.

Tom Minta, 6-4 star forward with St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky., has been the Flyers big gun. Strolled at Marquette before the service beckoned, he plans to return there upon his discharge.

Another Flyer botabot is baby-faced 5' 9"-1 0 Cagliuri, 140-pound forward, who has a sensational running jump shot. Captlinee played with Aurora High school in Indiana, the nation's hotbed of prep basketball.

If the 508th could spring an upset against the Generals, they might be on their way to nailing down second place. Currently third, the 1st Tee Combat Training Command Team Two is another important 2 out of 3 tilt slated at Harmony Church.

Several others are close, but because they are playing with one-and-off teams only Forward Bruce Mahon, of the Generals, would seem to have a chance of contesting Brown's scoring mastery.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

SHOOTING THE BULL is no idle flapping of the oral orifice with the 18 marksmen currently practicing at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club layout at the south end of Lumpkin Road. The only flapping is being done by the tattered remnants of the paper Ferdinands which are taking a severe beating from the nation's best pistol shots.

The 18 are here in quest of the nine positions available on the 1952 U. S. Army Pistol Team, and when you look at some of their shot patterns — as small as a ten-cent hamburger—you can see why five of them hold the Department of Army's Distinguished Pistol Badge, the highest shooting honor the services can bestow.

In fact, one of them, Maj. Ellis Lee, of Fort Ord, Calif., holds both the Distinguished Pistol and Distinguished Rifle badges, an accomplishment so rare that he is one of only about ten men in the nation who hold the two, another one of these weapons wizards being our own Col. Perry D. Swindler, captain of the All-Army pistol team.

Anyone who thinks that all there is to pistol marksmanship is cocking and pulling the trigger is going off half cocked himself, something these dead-eye dicks never do. Since their arrival here, they have practiced from sun-up to sun-down six days a week, including George Washington's birthday. George may have crossed the Delaware, but these fellows cross up the target manufacturers every day.

Their daily routine begins with callisthenics, just like a basic in rookie. (Is there something wrong with that sentence?) After that come eye exercises, which are not to be confused with the type most young men get from reading French postcards, and a "high-level" conference of all the shooters to discuss advanced technique and offer critique. The main part of the day is occupied with firing for record with .22, .38, and .45-cal. weapons. The busy schedule is topped off with a game of volleyball designed to ease the tension accumulated during the fierce competitive efforts.

IF DIMINUTIVE Col. Swindler, who has championed the cause of marksmanship for over 30 years, has his way nearly every doughboy in the service will be a potential male Annie Oakley in the not too distant future. A week ago he presented his ideas for an Army-wide competitive marksmanship program at company level to Gen. Mark Clark and other officials of Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va.

Col. Swindler admits there are many details to be worked out, but he was pleased with the response to his ideas, which are now being developed by AFF. Briefly, 10-man rifle and pistol teams would be organized in all company-size units.

These would compete in battalion, regimental and post competition with the winning team going into an armyarea match. The ultimate goal would be to crown national service championship company teams, making for a good sports event and an excellent way to develop shooting proficiency among all troops.

IT WAS poetic justice that the 2,000th membership badge in the Fort Benning Game and Fish Association should have been sold last week just as Capt. Gene Stalcup is stepping down after two highly successful years as game warden. Hunters and fishermen have prospered during that time thanks in large measure to Stalcup, who is on overseas orders to Hawaii. He is being replaced by 1st Lt. T. A. Fountain. The 2,000th badge was issued to Maj. Robert Winkler. With the hunting season over, we were reminded that good fishing is just around the corner when Mrs. E. M. Newman reported catching at Hadley's Pond a bass weighing better than seven pounds.

Army, Post Pistol Teams Enter Tampa Nationals

The United States Army pistol team, currently being trained here, and a Fort Benning team of the post's top five shooters, have been entered in the 1952 National Mid-Winter Pistol Matches at Tampa, Fla., March 11-15. The event is considered by most marksmen to be second in importance only to the national championships.

Col. Perry D. Swindler, captain of the All-Army squad also announced this week that Fort Benning will be host to a National Rifle Association-sanctioned Open Winter Registered Pistol Tournament March 8-9.

This 20-event competition will be open to all NRA members and undoubtedly will attract some of the nation's top pistol marksmen enroute south to compete in the important Tampa event.

The tournament will be held on the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club range, where 18 of the Army's best shooters currently are locked in spirited competition for the nine positions as the All-Army team.

The candidates, who have maintained a rugged six-days-a-week training schedule with .22, .38 and .45 caliber weapons for the past two weeks, will be cut to 12 men this Saturday.

Squad Cut

The final cut to the official nine-man squad will be made prior to shoving off for the Tampa matches.

Another Benning soldier, Maj. Warren F. Davis, will captain the five - man pest team at Tampa. He captained last year's highly successful U. S. Army rifle team.

Benning personnel who might make the post team include Capt. James McCubbin, of the weapons department, Capt. Eri Aldridge, of Infantry School Detachment, M-Sgt. Robert Van Keuren, of the weapons department, W-O Robert Knight, Sgt. Russell Stowe, of ASU Provisional Group, and Capt. Fred Keifer.

Keifer, Knight and Van Keuren are included in the 18 trying out for the All-Army team.

Five members of last year's excellent All-Army squad also are among the 18. They are Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, Ft. Sill, Okla., WO Oscar Weinmeister, Ft. Knox, Ky., M-Sgt. Leo Vause, Ft. Bragg, N. C., 2nd Lt. Lyan Moore, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., Capt. Bejamin Curtis, Ft. Bragg, N. C., and Maj. Ellis Lee, of Ft. Ord, Calif.

Another outstanding candidate, Maj. Hix weapons - a shooter of his ranking career, was any except his personal guns—have been delayed in shipment to the Canal Zone, thus preventing him from having them for the tryouts here.

Other candidates for the team are Maj. Daniel Crumpacker, Ft. Amadon, Canal Zone, M-Sgt. Ira Ruth, Ft. Knox, Ky., Lt. John Kallum, Camp Gordon, Ga., Sgt. Paul E. Bowen, Ft. Clayton, Canal Zone, Cpl. Victor Lewis, Kileen Base, Tex., Maj. Curt Nemfroy, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Pfc. Tom Buckmaster, Camp Rucker, Ala., Cpl. Fred Van Housen, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and Capt. Forest Smith, Ft. Riley, Kans.

It previously has been announced that Fort Benning will be hosts to a pair of important NRA events this summer. The Southeastern Regional Small-bore championships will be fired here July 12-19, and the Southeastern Regional Highpower championships are slated Aug. 9-10.

Sportsmen's Club Meets Thursday

The final meeting of the Georgia-Alabama Sportsmen's Club before its spring field trials, March 14-16, will be held Thursday night at the Lake Shore Restaurant at 7:30 on the Macon Road, it was announced last night by Jack Russell, club official.

He urges all members to attend this meeting as final plans for the trials must be discussed. The trial will be held over the training grounds of Herman Smith near Hatchechubbee, Ala.

The club official also announced that all members having pictures of dogs they intend to enter in the trials to please bring them to the meeting.

decisioned ASU's Willie Frank in his only start.

Charlie got nipped by 508th's Ray Lewis, who now stands out head and shoulders above the light welter class, four weeks ago, but he scored a knockdown in decisioning 508th's Pedro Menjres in his last showing, a much better punch although tiring in the last round.

If any team has an apparent lock on a title it's ASU with George Allen, the defending Third Army bantamweight king. None of the other squads have risked any of their 112-pound contenders against him thus far.

ASU also dominates the featherweight milling with Charles McKinney and Leander Ray. McKinney has two handy verdicts, one via TKO, while Ray outclassed CTC's Lucas Guzman in his only showing.

The Bayonet's rating of the top two or three men in each division:

HEAVYWEIGHT — Dick Lohmann, First S. R., Bob Cotton, ASU; and Lee Barnes, First S. R.

LIGHT HEAVY (166 - 175) Harvey Distel, CTC, James Boyd, First S. R.

MIDDLEWEIGHT (157 - 165) — Leo Hall, CTC; and Freeman Thatcher, ASU.

LIGHT MIDDLE (148-156) Ray Lee, First S. R., Freddie Wint, CTC; and Bert Stevens, CTC.

WELTERWEIGHT (140-147) Charlie Cummings, CTC; Wm. Sam Russell, ASU.

LIGHT WELTER (132-139) Ray Louis, ASU; Ezzay Sulanas, 508th.

LIGHTWEIGHT (124 - 131) Jesse Flores, ASU; Leo Jones, First S. R.; Robert Sabol, ASU.

FEATHERWEIGHT (116-123) Charles McKinney, ASU; and Leander Ray, ASU.

BANTAMWEIGHT (108-115) Gene Stalcup, ASU; and Gene Gaskins, ASU.

FLYWEIGHT (100 - 107) — Jimmy Hall, ASU; and Jimmy Hall, ASU.

Unbeaten Generals Win 3 More

Unbeaten Third Student Regiment chopped down three straight foes with 77 points to spare last week as they moved closer to the Fort Benning Basketball League championship—and perhaps a perfect season.

In order, the Generals outraced Combat Training Command Team Two, 93-13, Infantry School Detachment, 97-54, and Second Student Regiment, 85-39.

Only the latter contest threatened to be close and Coach Bill Hacker's crew was never in serious danger as that one-time had quarter advantage over the juggled Rockets, 22-13, 37-28 and 63-44.

The Generals have every reason for being successful. They have the height with a starting five which averages about 6-1. They have the coaching in Hacker, former Indiana player, who keys his men at the right time and uses subs in a masterful manner.

They have scoring punch. Forward Bruce Mahan, 6-2, tallied 56 points in last week's three wins, giving him a season's average of 21.2 points for 15 games, and keeping him in the race with CTC One's Ben Brown for individual scoring honors.

Three other players—Guard Barney Gill, Center Bill Gillingham and Guard Dry Koepka—have tallied more than 100 points.

Gill, shortest man on the squad (yet he scored 24 against CTC Two), gives the team plenty of speed and Gillingham, the tallest at 6-6, gets a fair break on rebounds.

Gill was an All-Southern Conference cager at Virginia. Another college vet, Frank Higgins, who joined the team only six games ago, is trying to prove himself the loop's best passer.

If Higgins had been a regular all season, the Third's scoring advantage over rivals might be fantastic by now. A little flushy with their success perhaps, they have let down on defense in their last few, but have still outscored rivals, 997 to 545 points.

FLYWEIGHT CHAMP

—Nick Lopez, 1949 All-Army flyweight champ, is rated top man in his division for the Hawaiian AAU tournament. According to reports, Lopez, back from a year in Korea, looks better than ever. He won the USARPAC and Hawaiian Inter-service flyweight crown in 1951.

Joe Steffy, Ex-Army Great, Is 2nd Student Regt. CO

New company commander of the 116th Company of Second Student Regiment is Joe Steffy, Army's 1947 All-America guard. Lt. Steffy is on his second tour of duty since being commissioned in 1949.

Steffy started his collegiate career as a guard on the freshman team at Tennessee, but shifted to the Black Knight's plebe squad when his West Point appointment came through in 1945.

He played three years with the Hudson huskies, reaching top rung on the grid ladder when he was named captain in 1947 and voted All-America honors.

Steffy played with the boxing, wrestling, track and football teams at Baylor High school in Chattanooga.

This is his second appearance at Benning. He became a member of the Third Division here after receiving his commission in 1949 and served as special services officer until the Third was sent to Japan in August 1950.

The former grid great saw action in Korea and was returned to Benning with a severe case of frostbite. He returned stateside last December. Steffy holds the Bronze Star, and Purple Heart. His wife is here with him.

101st Takes 2nd SR Cage League Title

The 101st Company, First Battalion, won the crown in the Second Student Regiment company basketball league which closed last Wednesday.

The 101st rallied to beat 103rd Company, 36-31, after an intermission deadlock at 16-16. Orris Chamberlain, former Wyoming University basketball player, led the winners with 15 points.

Herman Herring's nine was high for the 103rd.

Trophies were presented to the regimental champs and the runner-up team by Lt. Col. Willis J. Adams, regimental commander.

CTC Two Makes 2nd Division Bid

Combat Training Commad Team Two began a determined bid to top the second division last week by winning two of three key contests.

The Rifles opened the week by bowing to Third Student Regiment, 93-73, (only one other team has scored that freely against the Generals), but then they cracked Lawson Field, 92-79, and Provisional Medical Group, 90-74.

That jumped them from ninth to seventh place, just one full game from being astride the second division, as the other lower half team's turned in losing scorecards for the week.

The Rifles' recent success has been the speed of their fireboys, attack, a substance that has probably rubbed off from their endless practice sessions with CTC's Team One, the loop's leading exponents of free-wheeling and high scoring.

Also not to be overlooked, is the master-minding of Frank Spaniel, 23-year old former Notre Dame grid star, taking his first crack at coaching and apparently enjoying every minute of it.

Center Joe Connors, whose main asset in that same speed, raced into the net with 53 points in the week's three games giving him a flat 18-point average for 12 games.

That's fifth best in the league for regulars despite being with a circuit second division club. Four others have tallied above 100 points, equally remarkable.

Forward Charlie Crowley scored 52 in the last three, showing considerable improvement over previous efforts and being another good reason why the Rifles hold to lead the backward five quints.

CTC had no trouble Monday night in downing the Medics who lost Bill Fallen, to illness temporarily, Bill Marshall, on maneuvers for the remainder of the season, and Coach Bill Holden, who had emergency duty. The Rifles held period advantages of 24-20, 50-32, and 76-53.

They showed real class in beating Lawson's Flyers, coming from behind in the final few minutes, Lawson led at the first quarter, 26-15, at the half, 42-40, and going into the final period, 68-53.

Here again speed paid off. The lightly-conditioned Flyers could not match the Rifles' fourth quarter pace, sparked by Crowley with 10 points and Herb Tufts with eight.

Cooke Shines As Devils Cop Sixth Straight

The ability to take up the slack when their crack center, Larry Ivan, had a bad night paid off with victory number six in a row for 508th Airborne last week. The Red Devils trounced ASU Provisional Group, 65-45, in their only Fort Benning Basketball League appearance.

Chuck Cooke, six-foot, three and a half inch center moved to forward since Larry's debut, sliced the cords for 19 points as Ivan the Terrible was stalled with three.

It was the best performance of the year for Cooke, who played on the Wingate Junior College quint which won the national Jaycee cage crown in 1949, and boosted his scoring total to one shy of the 100-point mark.

The 508th held intermission leads of 13-6, 32-11 and 45-30.

Showing the way for ASU, as usual, was Forward Bill Hahn with 16 points which left him just shy of the 200 mark.

Another Pro Joins Post's Ring Colony

Newest addition to Fort Benning's ranks of professional boxers is Bill Fergerson, Philadelphia middleweight, who stopped Augusta's windless Hurricane Kid last week at the downtown Columbus Arena in a scheduled six-round preliminary.

That was Billy's thirty-sixth victory in 39 starts. He has won 16 by knockout and four by TKO.

Hailing from Company M, of the 34th Infantry Regiment, Fergerson fought his most impressive fights in Miami, Fla., where he was a regular semi-final attraction. He captured the Bahama Islands middleweight crown in 1949.

Fergerson plans to resume his pro career seriously upon discharge, but in the meantime Benning ring fans can get a close-up gander during his future showings in Columbus.

I. S. D. Bowler After Second Perfect Game

Don't laugh when William Dempster, supply sergeant for Company F, Infantry School Detachment, says he's practicing three and four nights a week in an effort to bowl a perfect 300 game.

A Dempster pulled that zero-zero feat in 1946 in his home town of Albany, N. Y.

"Plenty of practice every week is the only way to build up your bowling," he says. That must be true.

Since he started on his double time workouts in the past few weeks, Bill has turned in series scores of 611, 599 and 595 rolling for ISD Team Four in The Infantry Center Intramural Bowling League.

The highest series of his bowling career was 713 compiled with the help of that 300 game. His highest previous individual game was 279 and his best for the Benning League was 236.

Larry Mujica Fights Cantero on Monday

Larry Mujica, Fort Benning welterweight who knocked out Cuban Rene Cantero in six rounds two weeks ago in Tampa, will try to repeat that performance for the benefit of local fans in the scheduled 10-round main event four straight.

Mujica floored Cantero several times before administering the long snore. Larrupin' Larry will be seeking his 13th win and eight knockout Monday. He has won Monday night at the Columbus Arena.

Little League To Be Set Up On Wednesday

Fort Benning's Little League program — baseball for all post youngsters between eight and 12 — will become a reality Wednesday, March 1.

That's the date set for an organizational meeting of the Benning group which has been granted funds from the Community Chest to carry out its youth activities program.

Col. Ivan Parr is chairman of the group.

Wednesday's meeting of all interested parties, including parents, is scheduled at 8 p.m. at the Main Post elementary school auditorium.

All youngsters in the eight-to-12 age bracket are invited to participate in a baseball clinic to be conducted by former star players Skeeter Newsom and Elmer Riddle at 9 a.m. Saturday at the downtown Georgia Theater.

Four teams representing all areas of the post, including Custer Terrace and the Camellia Apartments, will be organized into a Benning league.

The post setup will be directed under the Greater Columbus Little League baseball program and will participate with that group in playoffs at the conclusion of the regular season.

The Little League program, conducted on a nation - wide basis with a Little World Series in Williamsport, Pa., each fall, will be expanded from three to six leagues in this area in the Columbus area, which is being extended to take in Phenix City and Benning.

Present plans call for tryouts to begin in March with the leagues opening play in early May.

24th Evac Cops Keg Loop First

The 24th Evacuation Hospital Team clinched first place in the third section of The Infantry Center Officers' Bowling League last week, but First Battalion, 30th Infantry, lost its long standing lead in the second section.

Final standings for the third section are printed below. Top two teams in each section meet in a playoff for the loop crown. Lt. Arthur Rafferty's Attack Group team took over first place in the second section with four wins as Lt. Richard Crowson's First Battalion squad slipped. Capt. G. C. Fee's Advance Class No. Two went into third place on four wins.

Maj. Lou Hofstetter and Capt. Wesley Fisher each dropped a couple of points on their season's individual averages, but remained tied for high with 178. It was the final action for Fisher, who was left on overseas assignment.

High individual game of the week of 223 was turned in by Lt. Col. Thomas Cuttino, of the 78th Engineer Battalion, while top individual series of 536 was rolled by Maj. Samuel Allison, of Hospital Administration.

SANDY FACES DRAFT

Benning Has Two Ace Auto Race Drivers

If there's any stock car racing in nearby Georgia towns this summer Fort Benning will have two hearty contestants for the feature events.

They are John Norris, of the Sixth Officer Candidate Company, Third Student Regiment, and Dick Bartell Jr., son of the famed Detroit Tigers' coach, who is stationed at Lawson Field.

Young Bartell apparently has passed up entirely the baseball career pursued by his fiery father.

Norris scored his first major stock car victory in 1948 after three years of racing. Since then he has had lots of thrills and few spills, too.

One of the most exciting of these came a month or two ago at Macon, Ill., when his car was turned off, went into a spin and plowed over a 60-foot backstretch fence. The car was demolished, but Norris came out unharmed.

In matters typical of auto race drivers, Norris says the only occupational hazard he has ever suffered in almost a dozen years of racing was a broken finger.

Volleyball Helps!

The Fort Benning Physical Conditioning Center has been taking a beating with volleyball and basketball games.

Two new volleyball courts have been added to the center's facilities and are in use daily.

CTC One Edges Rockets In 2 Overtimes; Now 4th

Combat Training Command's free-wheeling Team One got a solid grip on fourth place last week and now is cocked to explode its last six games into a third place finish in the Fort Benning Basketball League.

It wasn't easy—though. The Commanders had to go into two overtime periods — longest action of the season—to unfrock an amazing Second Student Regiment, 79-78, in one of the year's best games at Briant Wells.

Regulation time expired with the score 63-all, and it stood 72-72 at the end of the first extra five minutes. Arthur Green dribbled in for the winning field goal with seconds remaining in the final overtime.

The bombing of CTC's Sylvester Braten, their giant center, Junior Schaithey and Bob Landon for five personal fouls added to the extra session suspense. The game was tight from the start with the first period ending, 13-13. CTC led 36-35 at the half and 53-44 at the end of the third quarter.

Green turned in his finest performance of the season in scoring and otherwise. His 24 points boosted his total to 115. Six-foot, one-inch Green hails from New York where he played two seasons with the noted DeWitt Clinton high school. He is only 20.

Of course, Benny (The Bomber) Brown was there, too. He had the game's high of 28 points, upping his 11-game total to 200 which gives him a commanding lead in the race for individual honors.

The successful was the fine shewing of the Rockets, however. The grandstand generals had just about written them out of the race after they lost scoring aces Bucky Hatchett and Bob Stiles.

Instead, Coach Bob Morrow has added a quartet of new sharpshooters and continues to give rein to Center Elmer Duerst who couldn't quite get out of Hatchett's shadow when the latter was around.

Duerst pumped the bucket for 25 points, his best of steadily improving performances. Newcomer Charlie Clunks, who played four years first string at UCLA, hit for 16. Clunks coached and starred for the Camp Roberts, Calif., quintet before arriving at Benning. He is 24 and stands six-three.

Other late additions to the squad are John Herrick, who has played semi-pro cage; Mike Kelly, from St. Francis in Brooklyn, and Ray Beuligmann who should be heard from plenty as the second fights to hold its first division standing.

Montreal Plays Here April 12

The Brooklyn Dodgers' top farm club, Montreal, of the triple-A International League, will meet the Fort Benning Doughboys in an exhibition game here Saturday, April 12, Capt. Bill Francis, sports officer, announced Wednesday. The post nine also has been booked for two tests against the downtown Columbus Cardinals of the Class A Sally League.

The Cards will play at Brooklyn's Ebbets Field on April 9 and 10, and will return to Brooklyn for two more engagements April 14 and 15. Other games are being arranged.

Practice drills for the post team, which has been working out daily, will be resumed on Monday, March 31. Coach Francis urges all players to report on schedule. Those who have not yet reported should call the sports office.

Another important matter yet to be decided is the manager of a coach or manager for the squad. Whether the player-manager system will be used or whether a coach will be appointed is not known. Several players have indicated that they would like to be considered for the job.

Meantime, at least two outstanding players are expected to be lost to the team. Pvt. Lewis Downing, former Boston Braves pitcher, is expected to be transferred to Camp Blanding, Fla., in the near future, and Pvt. Ralph Hamner, former Philadelphia Phillies pitcher, is also expected to be transferred to Camp Blanding.

Downing has been a mainstay of the team's pitching staff since he was inducted into the Army last year. Hamner has been a regular member of the team's pitching staff since he was inducted into the Army last year.

Replacements Told In Student Regiment

Replacements for officers in the Third Student regiment are now being trained. Two new companies, each of 250 men, have been activated at Camp Blanding, regimental headquarters announced.

Lt. Col. Tony J. Baldi will serve as the regimental commander. Major Charles Caldwell Hall, former U. S. Attorney for the Middle District of Alabama, assumes the post of executive officer.

The unit is the Third O. C. T. R. regiment to be activated at Camp Blanding. The first regiment activated was the Second O. C. T. R. regiment.

Among the officers assigned to the new regiment are Capt.

Korea Vet Is Now 509th Engr. Chief

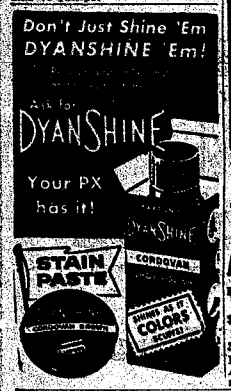
Capt. Edwin H. Snyder has assumed command of the 509th Engineer Company, Combat Training Command. Prior to taking this command he was in the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion, also a CTC unit.

Captain Snyder was recalled to active duty in 1950 and served 14 months in Korea with the 73rd and 185th Engineer Combat Battalions. During World War II, he served in Europe, the Philippines and Japan.

He holds the Korean Presidential Unit Citation, Meritorious Unit Citation, European Theater Ribbon, American Theater Ribbon, Occupation Ribbon, Victory Medal, United Nations Ribbon and Philippines Liberation Ribbon.

PROMOTED

Newest warrant officer in the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team is Willard D. Threadgill, 30, who ended 10 1-2 years as an enlisted man Tuesday when he was sworn in as a WOJG by Maj. Horst K. Joost, 508th adjutant. The ex-M-Sgt. is a Normandy combat-jump veteran from the 101st Airborne Division. He has 78 jumps.



320TH PARATROOPER ONCE WAS A BULL BUSTER
Pfc. Johnnie Oden, 320th Abn. F.A. Bn., Earned $10,000

Trooper Once Made Living By Riding Bulls in Rodeos

BY 1ST LT. ROBERT W. FEENEY

Would you sling the bull for $10,000 a year?

There's a rangy Texan in the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion — part of the 508th ARCT — who rode Brahma bulls and wild broncos for a living from the time he was 16 until he was drafted into the Army last March.

He is 22-year-old John Hoyt Oden, a Pfc. in Service Battery of the 320th who lent his talents to the 508th Red Devil football team as an end and now is on the Red Devil basketball squad.

Comes the inevitable question and Oden, who has only six jumps to his credit, says: "I think busting a bull is easier than making a parachute jump."

Which is odd because Oden has yet to be hurt making a jump whereas a rampaging Brahma once put a hoof to him.

"That put me in the hospital for two weeks with a broken jawbone, lots of bruises and all my front teeth missing," Oden elaborates. "I started out at 16 breaking hosses, ropin' calf and bull-doggin' steers. I once rassled a steer down in four seconds.

"I'm a member of the Rodeo Cowboys Association. My card number in 1950 was 1889. I averaged between $8000-$10,000 a year, riding all through southwest Texas. I suppose I've ridden at least 100 bulls," Oden says.

Born in Wascom, Tex., Oden was an all-district football and basketball star and all-Texas shortstop in baseball at Carthage High School. He also attended Louisiana College and had a bit of semi-pro baseball with Sweetwater — home of Fighter Lew Jenkins and Footballer Sammy Baugh — in a Class C Texas League.

"I never could figure which I liked best, bull-bustin' or baseball," concluded Oden. "But the Army's changed all that."

Engineers Imitate Artillery Bursts

Engineers of the 509th Engineer Company sometimes play artillerymen for Infantry School demonstrations.

Demolitions experts in the company simulate artillery fire with TNT in Problem 2150, "Attack Company in Attack."

Cpl. Alfred McLaughlin and his six men set blocks of TNT in position then blow them when demonstration troops are in the program position. The explosions represent overhead artillery fire. All the crew members have attended a special demolition school sponsored by The Infantry School and all are thoroughly trained in safety procedures. In addition, they know how to detonate, destroy or neutralize munitions.

Water Rescue Team Has Job That Is Unique, Dangerous

The water rescue team of the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion is perhaps the most unique organization at Fort Benning in the line of hazardous and discouraging work.

Trained specialists in underwater rescue, the members of Company B have been called upon to perform many tasks for communities around the post and are ever ready to perform others within an hours notice.

Working with such tools as grappling hooks, spotlights, radio, utility boats, air compressors, and shallow water diving equipment, three members of the team are trained divers and experienced underwater men.

Once a call has been received, the team has an hour in which to be ready to move out. On their most recent call, the organization was ready in 20 minutes.

When an likely spot for the search has been pin-pointed, a diver buckles on a weighted belt, dons his face mask and equipped with a flashlight and air compressor, enters the water.

Cpl. Peter Zivkovich, one of the divers explains that, "We can go down to about thirty feet and stay down 15 or 20 minutes, then we have to come up to rest from the cold and pressure."

"If we're feeling good, and more than one diver can be used at the same time, we can dive without masks," he explained.

Although the 78th's rescue team has not yet been called on for operations in floods, it is ready for that too. Boats would be used for rescues, and demolitions equipment might be brought in to control the flood of water.

The rescuers are available for operations within a reasonable distance from Fort Benning on orders from the Infantry Center. The battalion S-3 commands the team, usually with the duty officer in direct charge. General responsibility for the team and its preparedness rests with the commanding officer of Company B, Capt. R. Abbott.

French Army General Sees Post on Tour

Airborne Infantry won the whole - hearted approval Monday of Brig. Gen. Jean Rethore of the French Army as he toured The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

General Rethore, an armored officer, had made a special request to see parachute training.

"You see, a small section of our French Armored School at Saumur is devoted to airborne training," he said. "I am interested in your airborne training because I am scheduled to assume command of the Armored School on my return to France," he continued.

"Your training is very impressive," he declared, "and I have found the entire visit extremely interesting."

Gen. Rethore seemed particularly interested in the training aids used in airborne instruction and twice visited a 34-foot tower where students were making practice exits from a mock airplane door.

Earlier Monday the general saw an Infantry School demonstration of tanks and the tank platoon, with Capt. James R. Dew of the Tactical Department in charge, in troops from the 30th Infantry Regiment's Tank Company.

Also on Gen. Rethore's schedule were talks with Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, Col. Michael E. Halloran, chief of the Operations Section, and Lt. Col. Donald A. McPherson, director of the Automotive department.

The French general toured the Weapons Department and the Third Army Training Aids Center. He left Fort Benning Tuesday morning.

Officials Visit Benning School

Post Unit Operates for First Time With Department of Education Funds

Four education officials were visiting Fort Benning Monday to discuss operation of the Children's School under the direction of the U. S. Department of Education.

Conferring with Mrs. Hazel Scudder, principal, were field operations advisor Jesse M. Dunn; Don S. Patterson, chief of the department's elementary school section; H. S. Burdette, Atlanta field representative, and Col. D. D. Brady of the Army's School Section.

The dependent school program here is operating this year for the first time with funds supplied by the Department of Education.

The educators toured branches of the Fort Benning Children's School System Tuesday and Wednesday and talked to Lt. Col. L. T. Martin, Children's School officer; Col. Daniel H. Hundley, president of the school board; W. H. Shaw, superintendent of the Muscogee County, Ga., School District, and members of the school board.

Their visit ended Wednesday.

Benning Unit Aids County In Fire Fight

Fort Benning's quick acting Fire Department was credited with averting a disaster Monday morning when it arrived on the scene of a off-post fire in four minutes after receiving the alarm.

Muscogee county fire chief, A. O. Blackmar, said the Benning fire unit, which was the first on the scene, was instrumental in getting the blaze under control so quickly. The Muscogee fire department arrived on the scene seconds after the Benning unit had water on the blaze, which was at No. 11 Lumpkin Road.

The sole occupant of the house, Mrs. P. Lester Petitt, whose husband, Cpl. P. Lester is stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., was removed to the Fort Benning Army Hospital where she was treated for minor first degree burns of the face and released.

Both Fort Benning and Muscogee County Fire Departments responded with two trucks each.

Origin of the fire was an oil stove that had been lit and left untended, Chief Blackmar said. Although the dwelling was a complete loss, Chief Blackmar managed to save a partially burned bundles of savings bonds.

Quick action of the two fire groups helped save two adjacent buildings from the flames, he said.

Solon Committee Approves Raise

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A three percent across - the - board base pay increase has been approved for Armed Forces personnel by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Senate is expected to vote on the measure within a few days.

In addition to the base pay boost, the Senate group also made provisions for cost - of - living increases in quarters and allowances for officers and enlisted men.

Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the committee explained that the Senate group felt it should increase the items directly related to the cost of living rather than give a large across - the - board pay increase.

It was also pointed out that some enlisted men with families would fare better under the Senate version of the bill than under the House-passed bill which provided a flat 10 per cent across-the-board increase.

Pertinent changes the Senate committee approved include:

1. Subsistence allowance for officers — now $42, Senate bill $54.

2. Subsistance for enlisted personnel authorized to mess off the post — now $2.25 a day, Senate bill, $2.75 a day.

3. Rental allowances for officers not furnished housing — increase; with one or two dependents, $20 a month increase.

4. Quarters allowances for enlisted men not furnished housing — now $45 a month for all grades for men without dependents, Senate bill $51. (This also applies to men in pay grades 1, 2, and 3 with one dependent.)

100 Per Cent Participation Set As Goal for Post Drive

The first five days of the 1952 Red Cross drive at Fort Benning have netted more than $17,000 in contributions.

With only nine of the 11 major units at Fort Benning reporting, the total Thursday was $17,437.42.

Army Field Forces Board No. 3 was the first major unit to report 100 per cent participation.

Maj. Gen. John F. Church, Infantry Center commander, is honorary chairman of this year's drive, which officially began throughout the nation last Thursday night when President Truman made an appeal over a nationwide radio hookup. Col. Gines Perez, executive officer of the First Student brigade is executive chairman of the drive.

Colonel Perez said the national goal has been set at $65,000,000, but the only goal set at Benning is 100 per cent participation of all units.

Last year, more than $38,000 was collected here.

Major unit breakdowns for contributions so far in the 1952 drive and the percentages are as follows:

Combat Training Command, 71 per cent, $4,403.91.

The Infantry School, 83 per cent, $4465.00.

Area Service Unit Provisional Group, 59 per cent, $2,010.57.

First Student Brigade, 49 per cent, $8,440.09.

Provisional Medical Group, 46 per cent, $614.00.

508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, approximately 40 per cent, $1,510.15.

Civilian Personnel Division, 11 per cent, $425.30.

Headquarters, The Infantry Center, 7 per cent, $359.85.

Lawson Air Force Base, 5 per cent, $109.00, and Infantry School Detachment, $1,027.80.

New Officers Pay

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

First Salute Costs Officers A Dollar

Gold bars are worth only a buck at The Infantry Center.

These particular bars, however, are on the shoulders of newly commissioned Infantry second lieutenants, and the one dollar value works this way:

When a new second lieutenant walks out of the graduation ceremony, he is bound by traditions to pay one dollar to the first enlisted man who salutes him.

Army histories don't record this custom's origin, and most old - time officers hesitate to guess the wheres and whys of it.

But, for enlisted men here it's been a lucrative business every fortnight.

Outside Fort Benning's Main Theater, scores of privates, corporals and sergeants queue up when an OCS class graduates, waiting for the new lieutenants to come out.

All it takes is a courteous salute. Payment is made in cash on the spot, for that first salute.

The get - saluted - pay - a - buck custom seems to have originated haphazardly at the same time in all branches of the Army.

But there's disagreement on why.

One explanation generally accepted is that World War II OCS graduates inaugurated the custom by paying a dollar to buddies who had been prospective officers but failed the course. The sympathetic gesture then was reversed and the payee bought his graduating chum a drink.

Right now, there's an average of 150 OCS graduates each month at The Infantry School, but this gold mine is expected to increase soon to about 150 each week.

IT PAYS — Sfc. R. O. McCormick gets traditional buck from minutes-old 2nd Lt. J. B. Hugenberg after first salute.

UMT Defense Idea Good General Says

"Universal Military Training is the best plan for continuous national defense without drastically effecting the economy of the nation," Maj. Gen. Hugh M. Milton said at Benning Monday.

Addressing 91 newly - second lieutenants graduating from the Infantry Officer Candidate School, the U. S. Army executive for Reserve and ROTC commented:

"The present international situation is unparalleled in history. We are facing a type of emergency that may stretch through three or four generations, draining the economy of the United States and its allies."

To cope with this emergency the general said he favored "a medium size standing army with a large reserve to back it up."

General Milton told the new officers they have "no mean proportion of new responsibilities ahead of them. The infantry is the one branch of the service that calls for the maximum of leadership and manly attributes.

Final Analysis

"Any victory by this nation will be settled on the ground in the final analysis," he said.

"Although enemy facilities may be destroyed by air the vital opponent lurks in the rubble and ruins," General Milton declared. "Wars are won by the physical taking of objectives. The infantry is—and so far as anyone can see—will always be the Queen of Battles. Before the Infantryman is nothing but the enemy, but behind him must be all possible support," he continued.

Distinguished and honor graduate for the course was Lt. Osa S. McCollum, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dexter Jordan of 1108 Peachtree avenue, Columbus, Ga. Lt. McCollum has been assigned to Camp Rucker, Ala.

Acting G-2, TIC Has Been Named

Maj. Keith Stewart has been named acting Infantry Center G-2 (intelligence officer), succeeding Maj. James J. Barda, who will attend a course at The Infantry School prior to an overseas assignment.

CTC Sets Record With Obstacles

A new Infantry School record for building a double-apron barbed wire obstacle has been established by the 509th Engineer combat company, its parent unit, the Combat Training Command, reports. The operation took four and a half minutes.

They also set a fast pace on a recent problem demonstration by constructing a triple concertina in 70 seconds.

The apron and concertina are devices that are used in The Infantry School Problem 2703, which is Hasty Field Fortifications. This problem is staged one or more times per week for Infantry School students.

Named after the musical instrument, the concertina is a roll of barbed wire which is compressed for transportation and stretched out to cover long distances in the field. The double apron is an upright barbed wire fence which is broadened by the addition of strands in front and back.

Spot Checks Reveal 10 Common Faults

Roadside inspections of government vehicles have brought to light a number of common deficiencies. The 10 most common include:

Battery and cables, clutch and gearshift levers, wheel bearings, manifolds and heat control, engine oil levels, service brakes, lights and switches, steering gear, arms, linkage, accident report and identification card, propellor shaft, U-joints and center bearings.

The deficiencies are listed in the order of frequency.

Col. H. S. Wilbur Retires After 35 Years of Service

An Infantry officer with nearly 35 years active duty was retired here Saturday. He is Col. Harry S. Wilbur, former chief of research and analysis in the Academic Department of The Infantry School.

He was honored in an Officer Candidate School parade Saturday when Maj. Gen. David L. Ruffner, Fifth Armored Division Commander, presented him with a Third Army certificate of achievement.

A 1914 graduate of Cornell University, he practiced law in New York for three years prior to entering the Army. His Army schooling includes the Infantry School of Arms at Fort Sill, Okla Tank School at Camp Meade, Md., and the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Colonel Wilber was originally commissioned in 1917 at Madison Barracks, N. Y. During World War 11 he served with a machine gun company in France, and in 1921 attended a company officer course at The Infantry School here.

During World War II, he served with the 95rd Infantry Division in the Pacific theater, and later with General Headquarters, Pacific.

He is married to the former Miss Flora Elise Saxon. They have two children, Harry, 23, a chemical engineer, and Helen Louise, 18, a sophomore at the University of Virginia.

Col. Wilbur said that he plans to live in Florida after retirement to "catch up on my fishing."

NPA Official Visits Post To Study Salvage Program

An official of the National Production Authority and an officer from the Munitions Board have arrived here to study The Infantry Center salvage program.

Edgar M. Davidson, assistant to the director of salvage of the NPA, and Col. O. E. Thomas of the Munitions Board are touring 30 Army, Navy and Air Force installations to observe reclamation and recovery programs. Col. Thomas recently returned from a world tour during which he investigated the possibilities of recovering scrap metal, mainly iron and steel.

"The U. S. must produce 120 million tons of steel this year," Colonel Thomas said. "In order to do that, we need at least 40 million tons of scrap. At the production level, that is at steel mills, the scrap inventory is low," he continued. "The main purpose of our visit is to stimulate the flow of scrap."

Both Mr. Davidson and Colonel Thomas were unanimous in their approval of The Infantry Center scrap program, declaring that "it compares very favorably with comparable installations we've visited."

The scrap drive conducted here recently, which exceeded by 100 per cent the goal set, was singled out as exemplary. "It shows that personnel here are well aware of the problems of the steel industry and are doing something about it," said Mr. Davidson.

Colonel Ivan W. Parr, Infantry Center quartermaster, and 1st Lt. C. S. Levenburg, property disposal officer, reported that several pieces of machinery that will aid the salvage program will soon be in use here. The equipment includes a sheet metal baler, hydraulic press and rag-cutter. It will soon pay for itself through greater scrap savings, Lt. Levenburg pointed out.

Residential Speeds Are Set at 10 MPH

Numerous reports of motorists exceeding the authorized speed limit in service drives in the rear of residences are reminded of the following extract of current traffic regulations.

"Ten miles per hour in all service drives in rear of residences facing a street or highway and when approaching or passing a column of troops."

The above is extracted from Section 10, Article 31, paragraph c(6).

Services Prepare Plans For 3rd Armed Forces Day

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

"Unity — Strength — Freedom," will be the official slogan of the third annual Armed Forces Day, Saturday, May 17, Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett has announced.

In a salute to U. S. Servicemen around the globe, the occasion will be colorfully observed by both military and civilian groups in a program stressing community-level participation.

Armed Forces Day will be "a timely opportunity to demonstrate the close working relationship of the Armed Forces, give the public a broad view of the Nation's defense strength, and emphasize the democratic ideal to which our efforts are dedicated," according to Secretary Lovett.

Seven geographical areas have been designated in which Army, Navy and Air Force personnel have been assigned to co-ordinate programs for Armed Forces Day activities.

At military installations "open house" events will be scheduled and equipment demonstrated. A national allocation of naval vessels, certain types of aircraft and airborne troops will be made if possible.

Areas and their commanders follow:

Lt. Col. Mize Gets CTC Job

Lt. Col. P. H. Mize, a Korean veteran, is now assigned to the Combat Training Command.

Formerly assistant G-1 in Eighth Army Headquarters, Colonel Mize went to Korea with an advance party of the Eighth Army in July, 1950, as plans and personnel officer.

During a portion of his tour in FECOM, Colonel Mize was assistant chief of staff in Headquarters, Central Command, Japan. Central Command supported the troops in Korea, performing processing and other maintenance functions.

An airborne officer from 1942-1948, Colonel Mize joined the 101st Airborne Division when it was activated in 1942 and served with them until 1945. He was then assigned as an instructor at the airborne department of the Infantry School.

Colonel Mize has been in the Army since 1940 and is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Voting Data Explained By AFPS Article Series

(Beginning this week AFPS presents the first in a series of articles outlining pertinent voting data for Armed Forces personnel. The series will continue until every state and territory has been covered. Watch for your home state!)

(By Armed Forces Press Services)

Have you ever stopped to think of the importance of your vote in this year's general election?

As an eligible voter you will elect a president and vice-president of the United States. You also will nominate and elect senators and representatives to the United States Congress. In most states other important officers, such as governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, etc., will be elected.

To help you understand better the numerous terms that are used in connection with elections, the following definitions are provided:

GENERAL ELECTION — An election in which candidates are elected to fill local, state and federal offices. Constitutional questions are sometimes voted on in general elections.

REGISTRATION — The process by which a prospective voter becomes eligible to vote. In most states this consists of filling out an official registration form. In one state, the payment of a poll tax is equivalent to registering. In several other states the entering of a person's name on a "check list" constitutes registering.

ABSENTEE BALLOT — A ballot used by a voter who is absent from his voting precinct on election day and therefore unable to vote in person. In most states the ballot is obtained upon the written request of the voter. In others it may be obtained for him by an agent (spouse, parents, etc.). In three states the ballot must be obtained by the prospective voter in person.

QUALIFIED VOTER — A person who has complied with all the laws entitling him to vote and has become registered, if such registration is required.

REFERENDUM — A question upon which persons vote.

As in everything else connected with voting, instructions for marking the ballot vary from state to state. However, most instructions will include the following information:

1. Official to whom the ballot is to be returned.
2. Person who may take oath or other form of attestation of voter.
3. Whether ballot is to be marked by pen, pencil, or in some other way.
4. Latest date that marked ballot will be accepted.
5. Procedure for executing registration information on ballot, when registration is accomplished simultaneously with voting.

Singing Contest Begins March 23

The Fort Benning version of the All-Army singing contests will get underway here on March 23 at Service Club No. 1, when hopeful aspirants will compete in six different categories.

The six categories include soloists, barbership quartets, spiritual ensembles, open ensembles, chorus, and singing platoons. Each contesting soloist or group will sing two numbers. Winning entries will be recorded here and sent to Third Army for judging against other post winners in the Army area.

Capt. Robert E. Walters, recreation officer, reported that entry forms must be turned in to a Service Club or the Special Services Office by March 18 in order to enter the local competition. Entry forms may be obtained at Service Clubs. The contest will be judged by audience appeal and a qualified committee, and appropriate prizes will be awarded winners here.

Interest appears to be high here. Service Club directors have had to call for more entry blanks, indicating there will be many participants.

It Could Happen to You Too

He pushed his sleeve back, held his wrist watch to the lighted speedometer, squinted to read the time. A little after nine. Five, ten minutes after. Ought to be home in half an hour.

If he'd known he only had ten seconds to live, he might have checked the time more closely. He might have done several things differently.

Ten seconds to live. He massaged his eyes with thumb and middle finger, trying to rub out some of the sand.

Nine seconds to live. He'd driven almost eight hours since lunch, and was beginning to feel it.

Eight seconds to live. Lousy driving in the rain. Light from your own headlights just seem to soak in along with the water.

Seven seconds to live. Probably need a new windshield wiper blade. Old one just spreads the water around instead of wiping clean. Get one tomorrow, or next time it rains.

Six seconds to live. Somebody threw a cigarette out of an oncoming car. The red glow dissolved almost before it hit the pavement.

Five seconds to live. He planted his heel on the floorboard, squirmed back in the seat, trying for comfort.

Four seconds to live. At 60 miles an hour, a car covers 88 feet of pavement every second. Four seconds, 352 feet.

Three seconds to live. Something looked wrong, through the blurry windshield. A tentative dab at the brake stiffened into desperate pressure as he made out an old, unlighted, slow moving truck ahead.

Two seconds to live. Panic moved in. Turn to the left. No, car coming. Headlights too close. Can't make it. Turn to the right.

One second to live. Horror numbed everything into slow motion. He was floating right into the near corner of the truck bed. He opened his mouth to scream.

No seconds to live.

It's happened to lots of people. Oh, maybe not just that way, but similar. Drive too long, eyes get tired, reactions slow down. Rain, darkness, a windshield that's hard to see through. Driving too fast. A car or truck ahead that you can't see. It's happened to lots of folks.

It could happen to you.

Cooperation Averts Disaster

Fort Benning and Muscogee county got together Monday in what is probably one of the oldest community projects on record.

They joined forces and put out a fire that might have turned into a disaster. The alarm for the blaze at No. 11 Lumpkin road, was sounded around 9:30 in the morning and in less than four minutes the Benning fire equipment was putting water on the flames. The first Muscogee county unit arrived only seconds later to help the Benning firefighters in extinguishing the fire.

This is the kind of real neighborness that counts the most — to come to each others aid in time of need.

The house that caught fire from a faulty oil heater was outside Benning's area, but getting the fire out came first. Muscogee Fire Chief A. O. Blackmar heartily thanked the Fort Benning fire department for its help with the blaze. There were no fire plugs at hand and both fire departments brought their own water.

Mrs. P. Lester Petitt, wife of Cpl. Lester Petitt, based at Fort Jackson, S. C., was taken to the Fort Benning Army hospital where she was treated for first degree burns. She was the only one injured.

The house itself was a complete loss, Chief Blackmar said, but both departments were able to stop the fire from spreading to adjacent houses.

But the important thing remains in the readiness both the civilian and military fire units demonstrated to cooperate with each other.

That's the sort of thing that is possible only in a free country. The Monday episode was not an end in itself but an indication of the basic and wholehearted spirit of cooperation that exists between the military and its civilian neighbors.

"Just remind him of the interest rate he's receiving on his U. S. Defense Bonds and he gets that way!"

World Today Divided Into Two Major Camps

BY CHAPLAIN (Major) E. E. HERNDON

One of the fundamental differences dividing this world today lies in the field of ideas. Two books have been written which have divided the thinking of mankind. One by Friedrich Engels and Karl Marx the Communist manifesto; the other the Holy Bible. We find ourselves in two armed camps.

One side of the world, to which we belong, holds to the idea of a moral law which is based on religious convictions mental principles which give our democratic ideas their intellectual and emotional vigor are rooted in the religions which most of us have been taught. Our religious convictions continue to give our democratic faith a very large measure of its strength. The other side of the conflict has organized its idea upon a rejection of moral law and individual dignity that is utterly repugnent to any of our religions. Indeed, it has been necessary for the totalitarians to attack and stifle religion because such faith represents the antithesis of everything they teach.

It follows, therefore, that if we expect our Armed Forces to be physically prepared, we must also expect them to be ideologically prepared. A program of adequate religious opportunities for service personnel provides an essential way for strengthening their fundamental beliefs in democracy and, therefore, strengthening their effectiveness as an instrument of our democratic form of government.

The large number of young people in our current Armed Forces is another reason for strengthening the Armed Forces religious program. As a nation, we are traditionally concerned for our youth. When it becomes necessary for large proportions of our young manhood to enter military service, we very properly believe that they merit a moral environment that will strengthen their character during their period of service.

The absence of normal home and hometown restraints for these young people is a strong argument for the presence of an effective religious program within the Armed Forces, and capable religious advisors, who can help make sure that men returning from military service do so as good or better men than when they went in.

Our traditional faith in freedom of worship makes it important to rthe Armed Forces to make appropriate provision for religious opportunities. Were there no provision for a religious program in the Armed Forces, military reportant for the Armed Forces could seriously hamper the individual serviceman's opportunity to worship and, indeed, might completely nullify it.

Our current religious program will define clearly the path which we are to follow so that the conflict in the mind of a young person will be minimized. The course which we follow will lead to peace and security.

'Prior Service' Defined As Eighteen Months

BY Armed Forces Press Service

Inductees who wish to enlist in the regular Army must have at least 18 months of service in order to be considered as having "prior service." Certain Army enlistment programs from time to time stipulate "prior service" as one of its requirements.

The Navy has raised its monetary ration allowance on those ships and stations where dining halls are not run by officers of the Supply Corps. When the average number fed daily is 149, the daily ration has gone up to $1.36. Where 150 or more are fed daily the ration has gone up to $1.19. Naval dining halls that run by officers of the Supply Corps compute their ration on a volume rather than a monetary basis.

The following bills of interest to Servicemen recently were introduced in Congress:

1. A bill to provide for free postage for members of the Armed Forces who are hospitalized outside the continental limits of the U. S. as a result of service in Korea.

2. A bill to amend the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 to provide equitable and prorata distribution of temporary promotions between qualified officers of regular and Reserve components of the Army serving on active duty.

3. A bill to amend the War Claims Act of 1948, as amended, to provide compensation for unpaid compulsory labor and inhumane treatment of prisoners of war and for other violations of the Geneva Convention respecting prisoners of war.

Immediate construction of a second land-based prototype of an atomic power plant for submarines has been authorized by the Atomic Energy Commission. The prototype will be used in the final development of a reactor for propulsion of a submarine. It will be built at West Minton, N. Y., by General Electric Co.

The defense Department has revealed that all Services will release a total of about 73,000 Reserve officers from active duty between now and June 30, 1953. Of the total, the Army will release 41,000; the Navy 14,000; the Air Force 13,000 and the Marine Corps 5,000. They all will have completed their current tours. It is expected that the losses will be made up by Reserve officers volunteering for extended active duty, the output of Officer Candidate Schools, Platoon Leader and Aviation Cadet classes, graduates of ROTC, appointments from enlisted status and graduates of Service academies.

General 'Ike' Isn't Reluctant to Campaign

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts said this week that when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower completes his job in Europe, the general will be "a fighting campaigner who will make every Truman bureaucrat and demagogue take out for the high hills." Lodge, national campaign manager for the Eisenhower movement, denounced stories that the general is reluctant to campaign for the presidency. Lodge said "I want to explode forever the theory that he is in any way reluctant to accept the rigors of a campaign or the heavy responsibilities of the presidency. That story is purposely being spread by the opposition."

A Senate committee will investigate Under Secretary of Treasury Edward H. Foley Jr. on whether he ever tried to "influence" any tax cases. The committee agreed after being urged by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, who said he had heard reports that Foley had asked the Internal Revenue Bureau to "lay off" some tax cases and had sought to promote prosecution of others. He demanded that Foley and Internal Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap be called before the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee to give sworn testimony about the reports.

Communist truce negotiations appeared ready this week to yield a bit to Allied toughness on issues that had brought the talks to a near break-down. During an angry session Monday, the Reds softened slightly on their demand that Russia be named one of six "neutral" nations to supervise a truce in Korea. In the prisoner of war debate, Allied negotiator Rear Adm. R. E. Libby said the Red delegate appeared "uncertain" of his position. Admiral Libby told newsmen "We had a fairly unproductive and most unpleasant session." During the session Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho, North Korean negotiator, angrily accused the U.N. of lying, blackmail, stalling, massacre of prisoners and complete lack of sincerity.

In Concord, N.H., two Republican speakers, campaigning in the final week before New Hampshire's first - in - the - nation primary, centered heavy critical fire on the conduct of American foreign relations. Harold E. Stassen, one of the candidates in the primary, said some nations on the fringe of the Soviet Union which are trying to build resistance against Russia are receiving "very little encouragement from the U.S." Stassen criticized the Voice of America and said it should be taken out of the State Department. Sen. Estes Kefauver, one of the two Democratic candidates, criticized the Truman administration and said the nation has an urgent need for "new and fresh leadership."

On The Bookshelf

(This is the third in a series of short book reviews taken from a suggested reading list for officers prepared by the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va.)

GREAT MISTAKES OF THE WAR, by Hanson W. Baldwin (Harper and Brothers, 114 pages) A brilliant book containing wisdom gained through reflection and analysis of U.S. World War II policies. Mr. Baldwin, military editor of the New York Times, discusses what he considers errors in U. S. execution of the war. Phases considered are the omission of a Balkan operation, Soviet influence in this sphere, and unconditional surrender.

THE H BOMB by Prof. Albert Einstein (Didier Publishers, 175 pages) A courageous and revealing book compiled by scientists, government officials and outstanding military analysts who, in their individual essays, unravel some of the mysteries shrouding the H-bomb. Contributing authors include Sen. Brien McMahon, Walter Lippman, and Hans Bethe.

ILL MET BY MOONLIGHT by W. Stanley Moss (The Macmillan Company, 192 pages) An exhilirating story, well told and true. Two young British officers with a small party of Cretan Guerillas kidnap and hide-out the German Cretan forces commander, Maj. Gen. Karl Kreipe, on April 26, 1944. Much good humor and comradery enhance this story.

HALF SLAVE, HALF FREE by H. Abend (Bobbs-Merrill Company, 304 pages) A hard-punching awakening book based on Abraham Lincoln's Civil War policy that a country half free and half slave could not endure and present-day-World split of Eastern and Western ideologies. The premise, that to the United States has fallen world leadership and the poor job being made of this privdlege, is Mr. Abend's, a former N. Y. Times correspondent, self-appointed task to explain and substantiate.

KOREA TODAY by George M. McCune (Harvard University Press, 372 pages) a book that launches immediately into the volcanic problems besetting ancient Korea in her ordeal to become a unified nation. The book, divided into two parts, (politics and economics of Korea) maintains separate analysis of the Northern and Southern zones. United Nations efforts to unify Korea, American and Soviet occupation, are material for present days analysis of flare-up in Korea. Useful for familiarizing readers with U. S. and Russian agreements concerning Korea are extracts of official documents and letters in Appendix A.

Student Officer's Mess Saves At Least $2,000

An estimated saving of $2,000 has been tallied up in the Biglerville Student Officer's Mess since Nov. 1, according to Maj. Bailey L. Simpson, mess officer.

Major Simpson said full credit for this saving could be given to enlisted mess personnel, especially mess steward Sfc. Carley S. Mickle.

Sergeant Mickle uses two shifts of cooks to serve an average of 800 meals daily, both in the mess hall and in the field.

"We use every bit of food possible," he said, "including bones. They make fine soups and gravies. We even use carrot tops and other vegetable trimmings that usually are thrown away."

Subsistence non-commissioned officer Sfc. Ernest T. Balco has also accounted for a large proportion of the saving. All food for the mess is purchased on the open market, and every trick of the trade these two men have gained through years of experience is used in getting the most of the best for the least.

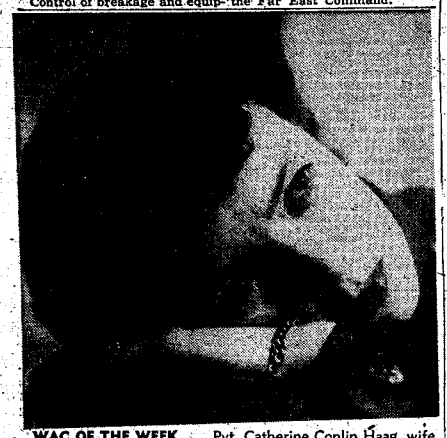
Control of breakage and equipment loss has been cut down considerably. In Ocotber last year, breakage amounted to $318.24 while in January it was only $53.97. Formerly, silverware was counted every month, but now it's counted every three days.

The first cook on each of the two daily shifts must check the silver, china and kitchen equipment on hand when he reports for duty, and must report any breakage, loss or damage to the mess steward before going off duty.

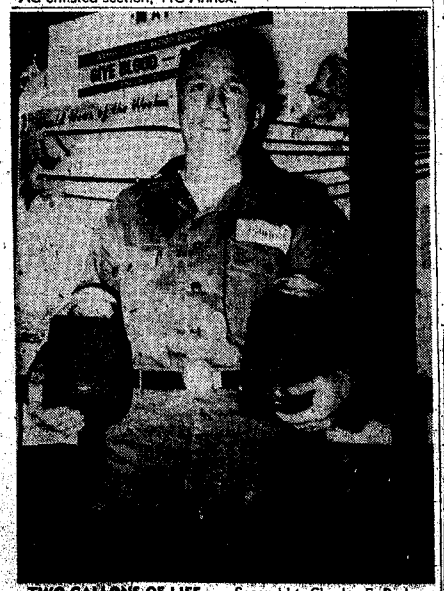
Lt. Col. Foster Gets ASU Position

Lt. Col. Andrew P. Foster Jr. has been named as executive and public information officer of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, succeeding Lt. Col. Ralph Williams, who is enrolled in a class at The Infantry School.

A 1942 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Colon Foster has served 36 months in the Far East Command.



WAC OF THE WEEK . . . Pvt. Catherine Conlin Haag, wife of a 508th paratrooper, was selected by Army Times as Wac Of The Week, in the March 1 issue. The photograph, taken by Sgt. Ben Westendorf, was reprinted in the Army Times. Private Haag is from Canajoharie, N. Y. and works in the AG enlisted section, TIC Annex.



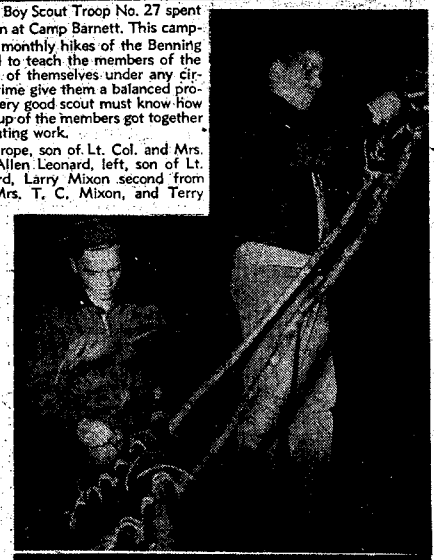
TWO GALLONS OF LIFE . . . Second Lt. Charles E. Parker, platoon leader in Company G., 30th Infantry regiment, Combat Training Command, holds a facsimile of the 16 pints of blood he has donated since he began his campaign at Oklahoma A & M in 1942. He is a veteran of the Korean campaign.

SCOUTING . . . Fort Benning Boy Scout Troop No. 27 spent the week-end at its scout cabin at Camp Barnett. This camping trip is one of the regular monthly hikes of the Benning troop. The hikes are designed to teach the members of the troop to be able to take care of themselves under any circumstances and at the same time give them a balanced program of outdoor activities. Every good scout must know how to tie knots in a rope, so a group of the members got together to work on this phase of scouting work.

Above Tom Simcox, tying rope, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lawrence Simcox, instructs Allen Leonard, left, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Allen Leonard, Larry Mixon second from right, son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. T. C. Mixon, and Terry Gibbs, right, son of Capt. and Mrs. John A. Gibbs, in the art of rigging and knot tying. In the scout troop, every merit badge awarded is won by fulfilling set requirements and keen rivalry goes on among the members to advance in rank.

To the right, Richard Shaw, kneeling, son of Col. and Mrs. Leland Shaw lashes a pole securely in place as he works toward the top to meet the work done by John Gibbs, standing, son of Capt. and Mrs. John A. Gibbs. Constructing a bridge is one of the requirements that must be fulfilled to win the Pioneering merit badge. Outdoor exercise makes for keen appetites, and the Benning scouts are no exceptions.

Below, Phillip Gibbs, left, son of Capt. and Mrs. John A. Gibbs, and Larry Saxon, right, son of Maj. and Mrs. Robert D. Saxon, get out the old skillets and look over the wood situation in preparation for cooking. Cooking is another thing the scouts learn to do and do well. The troop, under the leadership of Capt. Robert Ryan, scoutmaster, left Friday after school and returned to the post on Sunday. The Benning troop has been in existence for 25 years and has grown from a small group to a membership of 90.



TO KEEP YOU DRY . . . It costs someone $9. Pfc. Tim Scannell, supply clerk of Company D, 30th Infantry points to one of the many items of issue that is on display in his company. The display pictured above was judged the best for the Combat Training Command in supply economy.

BENNING RADIO NEWS

Miss BOB GROOVER

The three radio programs about Fort Benning are "Benning In Review" (WRBL AM-FM, 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. Saturdays), "Benning News Parade" (WDAK 5:30 to 5:45 p.m. Saturdays), and "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA, AM-FM, Noon, Sundays).

These radio programs mentioned above have the mission of keeping not only Fort Benning informed of the post's happenings, but also the general public in the Chattahoochee Valley.

A five-minute newscast of Fort Benning news is heard from WRBL AM-FM at 6:55 each weekday morning, except Sunday.

The big news last week at Fort Benning was the opening of the 1952, Red Cross Fund and Membership Drive. "FORT BENNING FEATURE PAGE" for last Sunday was devoted to telling the people about the work of the American Red Cross at the Fort Benning, U. S. Army hospital. Last Sunday's "FEATURE PAGE" heard by WGBA AM-FM listeners at 12:00 noon, Sunday featured actual members of the Red Cross group at the Benning hospital.

Hospital field director Miss Sydney Beaucis, gave a comprehensive resume of Red Cross activity at Fort Benning. Interviews with soldiers assigned to the hospital were included in the trifecta to the Fort Benning Red Cross.

While we were at the hospital making our on-the-spot recordings we stopped by for a quick look at Sgt. Murray Pendleton's, WFBS radio station "summer radio-listening patio." It looks better every time we see it. Patients can well afford to look forward to many pleasant hours of "solid-southern comfort" this coming summer as they "take life and the army easy" compliments of the efforts of St. Pendleton and his radio men at the Fort Benning Army hospital.

Ranger Training is very much in the Benning news spotlight, and one officer's impressions of Ranger Training were included on this last Saturday's "BENNING NEWS PARADE" (WDAK, Sat. eve. 5:30 to 5:45 P.M.). Maj. Eugene M. Perry of the Combat Training Command, gave his own run-down on Ranger Tming as he saw it when he visited the Ranger training camp at Dahlonega, Ga. Major Perry saw a great similarity between the camp of the Rangers in North Georgia, and the way American soldiers are fighting today in Korea.

The U. S. Army Signal Corps and the Dental Corps had their respective anniversaries March 3. Both branches of service were well-represented on last week's "BENNING NEWS PARADE". Maj. Lynn E. Bates, TIC signal office, and Col. Frederick H. Beekhoves, TIC Dental Officer, gave listeners a splendidly detailed report on the duties and backgrounds of both the Army Dental Corps and the Signal Corps.

Music, news and variety in general hold forth on the "BENNING IN REVIEW" show (WRBL, AM-FM, 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. Saturdays). The "DAVE JOHNSON COMBO" came forward with the musical festivities. Pvt. Larry Gordon did his ear-pleasing party by putting the vocal microphone to good use. Larry and the gentlemen in the "DAVE JOHNSON COMBO" have been working over-time to record tunes for special Red Cross variety shows which will be aired at a later date. Watch this radio column for the dates for the special Red Cross Shows.

This reporter's radio-hat is off to Mister William R. Trembath and his 122nd Army bandmen for their musical efforts in recording march tunes which will be included in some of the Infantry Center's special Red Cross shows.

Red Cross Stands Ready To Help in Emergencies

(Editor's Note: It is the policy of the American Red Cross in cases of this type, to withhold the names and addresses of those concerned. Taken from the files of the Fort Benning Red Cross office the following is an incident that should bring this vital servicewan's service closer to us.)

One day last fall, a soldier who had been stationed here for approximately four months, visited the field director's office of the Red Cross on post.

The soldier has been sent to the post from an assignment in Europe and he was desirous of information that would assist him in bringing his family to this country. The Red Cross was also asked to inquire of the wife if she had sufficient funds for travel and maintenance as he had not heard from her for several weeks, although he had forwarded funds to her through commercial channels.

After an interview with the soldier, the post Red Cross referred the request for assistance to the Red Cross Field Director located at Salzburg, Austria.

This office was informed that the soldier's family would depart from Bremerhaven, Germany at a scheduled date in September. On Aug. 29, however the orders were rescinded due to non - availability of shipping space.

The field director at Salzburg immediately went into action to assist the wife in arranging for transportation. Final arrangements were then made for train transportation from Austria to the Military Air Returnee Center at Frankfurt where accommodations were available for travel to Westover Air Force Base, Mass.

Owing to the fact that the wife had not received the funds which had been forwarded by the soldier, the field director of the Red Cross in Salzburg arranged to furnish financial assistance so that no further delay would be experienced in the delay of the family.

On Sept. 23, the Westover Air Force Base Red Cross director advised Fort Benning field director of the arrival of the soldier's wife and four children. In turn, the Benning office notified Westover that the soldier was leaving at once to meet his family. He did.

Over 62,000 Calls Placed Since Phone Center Opens

More than 62,400 long distance telephone calls have originated in the Fort Benning Telephone Attended Centers since the centers were opened last summer.

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company officials inaugurated the telephone centers for the convenience of military personnel here.

Calls here are being placed at the rate of 1,650 per week. Most of the calls are made on Saturday and Sunday, and in proportion to the nearness of payday.

A payday weekend finds the centers flooded. Just before pay day, they're not quite so busy. Another fact brought to light at the centers is that more collect calls are placed just before pay day than just after.

Each of the centers, located in Sand Hill, Harmony Church, and the Main Post, is equipped with newspapers, magazines, writing paper, post cards, checkers, dominoes and chess. There is a long distance directory rack of the larger cities of the nation to aid callers in looking up a number. The centers also feature music piped throughout the building.

The peak hours for long distance calls are between 7:3 p.m. The centers are open from 3:30-11 p.m., daily, from 12-11 p.m. Saturday, and all day Sunday.

Company officials have made these suggestions for prompt service:

Place your calls by number if possible. Having to call an information operator in a distant city adds time and ties up lines.

Many long distance calls are now dialed by the operator directly. It will speed up your call if the number is given.

Place your call before 7 p.m. if possible. This will enable operators to give your call better service, and your connection will probably be made much more quickly.

Defensive Driving Pays Col. Ackerman Tells Group

"Defensive driving pays dividends," Col. S. W. Ackerman, The Infantry Center Transportation Officer said at a meeting of drivers and supervisors held in the First Student Brigade area, Thursday night.

More than 200 persons attended the meeting which is a part of a monthly program instituted by the transportation office in conjunction with the Fort Benning Safety office. The group had as its guest speaker of the evening, Sgt. George Crawford of the Georgia State Highway Patrol.

The meeting began with a short talk by Colonel Ackerman who issued an appeal for all drivers of the post to practice defensive driving to a greater extent in the future.

"More than 60 per cent of all accidents reported through the safety office", he pointed out, "are caused by either following too close to another car or when backing up."

Sergeant Crawford told the group of his many experiences with drivers and gave numerous examples of accidents, their causes and the measures that could have prevented them.

"Drinking drivers," said Sergeant Crawford, "are more dangerous than drunken drivers. Someone will always take care of the drunken ones."

This special program for the prevention of motor vehicle accidents implements the latest directives that have been published. These are the Dept. of Army Special Regulation 385-155 dated Jan. 7, 1952 and Dept. of Army Circular No. 7, dated Jan 21, 1952.

Circular No. 7 points out that "Statistics show that motor vehicle accidents don't just happen. . .they are caused by operators of vehicles. In almost every accident a traffic violation is involved."

MAGGIE (Stan Freberg with Cliffie Stone's music on Capitol).

This tune is not as "Stan Frebergish" as Stan's "JOHN AND MARSHA" waxing, but worth adding to your record collection if you're interested in Stan Freberg's nonsensical approach to the old tune about dear, old "MAGGIE". The recording introduces itself with what could be a normal, high-class approach to the tune, but after the first few musical bars, the brother Freberg technique makes its appearance into the waxing. The result — a tune about a rather, intoxicated "MAGGIE" who has an overdose of hiccoughs. The tune which yours truly might sub-title, "MAGGIE FREBERG" is very much on the novelty side of comical listening.

The reverse side is a Stan Freberg original composition with an up-to-date title, "TELE-VEE-SHUN".

THAT'S ALL FOLKS (Mel Blanc as "Porky Pig" and Bonnie Baker with orchestra conducted by Billy May on Capitol wax). This is a "cute" tune for old or young who take delight in the antics of MEL BLANC, Alias, Mr. "Porky Pig." Billy May provides a rhythmic orchestral background for Mel and Bonnie who, according to this new tune, are very much in love. Mel portrays the musical part of a very shy, little character who can't think of anything to say to his ever-lovin gal friend. She asks for a kiss —Mel gives out with, "THAT'S ALL FOLKS". MEL BLANC has climbed high on the ladder of success since the days of the last war when he worked with sports announcer, Mel Allen in the Radio Section of the Infantry Center.

BERMUDA (Ray Anthony orchestra with Tommy Mercer and Marcie Miller on vocal — Recorded by Capitol). "BERMUDA" is a bit-off the usual Anthony, musical track; nonetheless, it's a pleasant change down a Mr. Anthony, musical sidetrack. Tune is really sold by vocalists, Tommy Mercer and Marcie Miller. This musical offering by Anthony is what we prefer to label something of a production number what with the arrangement effort being placed on a "big-time" introduction. Choral effect created by songsters, Mercer and Miller, sets a definite mood for a pleasant two and a half minutes musical journey to "BERMUDA".

As our musical - appreciating ears heard the recording of "Bermuda", man at the helm, Ray Anthony, doesn't take enough of the spotlight. He makes up for this lack of "Anthony horn" on the reverse side in a tune titled "Here I am, "BROKEN HEARTED". Tommy Mercer does the vocal solo honors in "BROKEN HEARTED". This late Ray Anthony release is worth a spot on your record shelf of Anthony renditions.

THE GANDY DANCER'S BALL (Frankie Laine vocal, Paul Weston orchestra, the Norman Luboff Choir with CARL Fischer at the piano — recorded by Columbia). Here of late, Frankie Laine has been going a little hoarse from the song technique which gave him his incomparable rise to sudden fame. "THE GANDY DANCER'S BALL" is more typical of the FRANKIE LAINE song technique. It's a tune which Frankie can use to really "letgo" on and as we heard it, he really gives out with that definite Laine ability to sell a tune. "GANDY DANCER'S BALL" is a song which tells the happy tale of a railroad man's ball. Listen to it, and we dare you to keep your toes from keeping time. On the other side, you have a Frankie Laine quiet approach to "WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE". Frankie composed this song with piano-man, Carl Fischer. Buy Columbia record, number 39566, and you'll have five minutes and twenty seconds of Frankie Laine at his best.

TIC Rest Camp Readied For March 15 Opening

The Infantry Center Rest Camp located on Choctawatchee Bay, along the Gulf Coast at Destin, Florida, will open on March 15.

The camp, operated by Special Services for the benefit of military personnel and their dependents, has been renovated and improved since last summer. Each of the six cabins is equipped with an electric stove, lights, and refrigerator.

Reservations may be made by calling Capt. Robert E. Walters, phone 4-2118 at any time, however, payment must be made one week prior to reservation date or reservations will be cancelled.

Three dollars and fifty cents per day will be charged for a cabin occupied by one family. In case two families occupy one cabin an additional charge of one dollar per day for each member of the second family will be made.

Any family taking advantage of the camp will be required to provide bed linens, kitchen cooking utensils and food.

Food may be purchased at the Commissary at Eglin Field or at any of the grocery stores located a short distance from the camp.

There are several rowboats and one motorboat available for use without charge, and deep sea fishing boats make daily trips from nearby points for a small fee.

Papers Endorse Red Cross Drive

The newspaper industry has pledged "unstinted support" of the 1952 American Red Cross fund campaign and urged the public to respond generously to the annual appeal.

In a vigorous endorsement, Charles P. McCahill, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and general manager of the Cleveland News, said that the Red Cross deserves "the assistance of every American as an investment in humanity in general and himself in particular.

"Membership in the Red Cross is unlimited," Mr. McCahill stated. "It embraces every color, class or creed. For the Red Cross believes in people. But sick, starving, shocked people cannot subsist on belief alone. They need funds. They need your help.

"We in the newspaper industry this year, as always, pledge out unstinted support to the 1952 Red Cross fund campaign. We will answer the call. We urge you to join us in full voce."

47 Graduate As Rangers At Fort Benning Rites

Forty-seven soldiers have graduated at Fort Benning as full-fledged Rangers. A War - wise general told them they might be called on "to sacrifice that which men cherish most—life itself."

Maj. Gen. David L. Ruffner, commander of the Fifth Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark., also said in his 20-minute address to the training-tough graduates last week:

"War is fighting, fighting is killing—and you men are going to specialize in fighting."

New Type Class

The small graduating class which was less than half the size of the original enrollment eight weeks ago, is the first of its type turned out by the Infantry School. Ranger companies were previously trained here, but unit-sized tactics only were emphasized. New-type Ranger training stresses small-team, behind-the-lines warfare.

General Ruffner also reviewed during his address the incomparable traditions set by Revolutionary War and World War II Rangers, men who fought with their bare hands on single-handed missions.

General Ruffner told the men they would have to maintain and try to surpass the glories of immortalized Rangers such as Francis Marion, Confederate Army "Swamp Fox."

Only Six Veterans

Most of the graduating Rangers have never seen combat.

Only six are Korean veterans. They will be assigned to a large unit where they will teach Ranger tactics and, if fighting in combat, will conduct most of the unit's hazardous intelligence reconnaissance missions.

During eight weeks of special training, the Rangers spent two weeks in Florida and two weeks in north Georgia, "fighting" mythical enemy forces in simulated combat surroundings.

30th Soldier Sees US for First Time In Army Hospital

A supply clerk in the 30th Infantry Regiment had never been in the United States until he was a patient at an Army hospital.

Philippine-born Cpl. R. J. Henry was a member of the First Cavalry Division in Korea, where he was wounded and sent to the United States for treatment and convalescence.

An American citizen by birth, Corporal Henry had never left the Islands when the Japanese invasion hit the Philippines. When they stormed the Capitol, Henry, then 11 years old, fled from one hiding place to another where he eventually learned the language of his homeland.

In 1947 he enlisted in the U. S. Army and spent two and a half years in Japan before going to Korea.

ALL-ARMY PISTOL TEAM HOPEFULS FROM BENNING
Capt. Fred Keifer, WO Bob Knight and M-Sgt. Bob Van Kueren check target.

Benning Gets Top Rifle Match

The nation's top rifle competition, the 1952 National High Power Championships, has been awarded to Fort Benning for Aug. 27 through Sept. 2, Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, announced this week.

More than 500 of the top civilian and military shooters from all parts of the hemisphere are expected to compete in the annual event which is being held in the south for the first time.

Col. Perry D. Swindler, champion of Army marksmanship for more than 30 years, has been named by Gen. Church as project officer for the event.

Benning will have a second top figure in the event in Maj. Warren P. Davis who is captain of the United States Army Rifle team, one of the perennial favorites in the Nationals.

A big feature of this year's championships, according to present plans, will be firing for team titles. Only individual accomplishments have been official in the past, although Maj. Davis' squad was "unofficially" second in last year's event at San Francisco, Calif.

Two other major rifle competitions scheduled this summer at Benning have been announced previously.

They are the NRA Southeastern Regional High Power Championships Aug. 8-10.

The spectacular rise of Fort Benning in the world of shooting is due in large measure to the efforts of the one-year old Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club, which mushroomed to 250 members under Col. Swindler as first president.

Lt. Col. Aleck MacDonald is the current president.

60 SE Pistol Aces Vie Here Saturday

The first peek at the 1952 U. S. Army Pistol Team will be on tap Saturday and Sunday when some 60 top military and civilian shooters from the southeastern area fire in the second annual Fort Benning Registered Winter Pistol Tournament.

The bulls-eyes will start popping at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the sponsoring Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's excellent range at the extreme end of Lumpkin Road off Dixie road in the main post area. Firing continues all day Sunday in the 20-event program.

All 12 of the remaining candidates for the All-Army pistol squad, headed by world champion M-Sgt. Huelet (Joe) Benner, will participate. In addition, several strong civilian police teams from surrounding Georgia and Alabama cities are expected.

Benning also will enter its own team composed of Maj. Warren Davis, captain, Capt. Earl Aldridge, M-Sgt. Russell Stowe, M-Sgt. James Zelinski and Capt. James McCubbin. There may be some last minute change in the post team lineup because of Benning personnel trying out with the All-Army squad.

Fort Benning copped team laurels in last year's inaugural event. There is no limit on the number of entries, but only NRA affiliated club entries will be accepted. Trophies and merchandise prizes will be offered.

Added importance for the tournament lies in the fact that this will serve as an excellent prelude for the National Mid-Winter Pistol Championships slated in Tampa next week, March 11-15.

Col. Perry D. Swindler r 111 have his U. S. Army team entered there as will Maj. Davis enter the Benning squad. The Tampa meet is regarded as second in importance only to the U. S. nationals.

Benner who has been a member of the U. S. International team since 1939, winning his world title in Buenos Aires two years ago, was due to arrive here today from Fort Ethe, Canal Zone. He finished second in the rapid fire event in the 1948 Olympics and is by far one of the most outstanding marksmen ever to show here.

Remaining candidates for the All-Army pistol team who will shoot Saturday and Sunday are Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, Maj. Ellis Lea, Capt. Ben Curtis, Capt. Forest Smith, Capt. Fred Keifer, Lt. John Kallam, WO Oscar Weinmeister, WO Robert Knight, Lt. Leon Moore, M-Sgt. Leo Vause and M-Sgt. Robert Van Kueren.

Riflemen Shoot

Four crack Fort Benning riflemen were firing this week in the National Mid-Winter Smallbore Rifle tournament at St. Petersburg, Fla. The tourney opened Tuesday, too late for Bayonet results, and closes Saturday.

The post quartet is composed of Capt. James F. McCubbin, Cpt. William Stewart, Lt. Richard Conley, and WOJG Coats Brown.

READY . . . Cpl. Gardner Smith, of First Student Regiment's Airborne Battalion, took off on leave this week to compete in the National Giant Slalom this Sunday just outside of Salt Lake City, Utah. It's one of the nation's toughest ski events for the 21-year-old Californian who just missed this year's Winter Olympics and is readying for the 1956 games.

508th Keeps Ring Lead; Kiwasaki Dumps Allen

The sixth in the stellar series of 13 weekly cards to determine Fort Benning's 1952 boxing champions and representatives in higher Army competition is slated at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday night at Briant Wells Field House. Sixteen bouts have been scheduled.

Another capacity crowd of more than 2,500 is expected to push the series' attendance above the 15,000 mark; The SRO sign been up for all of the five previous cards.

From here on out, the 508th may be hard pressed to hold its position in contention for the team title. The Red Devils are slated to go on maneuvers in the near future and will leave behind only possible individual title winners.

At present, this would include lightweight Jesse Florez, light welterweights Ray Leutz and Sylvester, and bantam Neri Kawasaki.

The surprising 508th Airborne was still leading in the Fort Benning championship boxing series today thanks largely to a sensational left hand punch delivered by 117-pound Nori Kawasaki, former Golden Glover from Chicago.

Nori planted his noteworthy punch on the chin of defending Third Army bantamweight champ, George Allen, of ASU Provisional Group, and it proved to be the margin by which he won an upset split decision from the titleholder.

It was only Allen's sixth loss in 68 amateur fights and the first time he had been knocked off his feet since 1948. Kawasaki was in trouble in the third and final round. He had not fought since 1950, but showed excellent progress under the guidance of Coach Harry Batchelor.

The 1,310 fans who contributed $534 to the Red Cross for the benefit card, saw the 508th gain eight points for a total of 61 in the battle for the post ring title.

First Student Regiment led the action by scoring 16 and jumping into second place with 97. That left the defending ASU squad, which picked up only three points, in third place with 81.

Combat Training Command became a close fourth when they added 11 points for a total of 47. Provisional Medical Group has four and Third Student Regiment and Infantry School Detachment three each.

The 508th further stole the play from ASU when their Raymond Kiley, 125, won a split decision from ASU's Charles McKinney, 123 Ex. McKinney had been ruled the bout's top featherweight prior to the bout.

Complete results:

Ken Barnes, 125th, First S. R., TKO'd Robert Colton, 126, ASU, in 1:43 of three; Ernest James, 139, First S. R., defeated Jesse Florez, 135th, 508th; Nori Kawasaki, 117th, defeated George Allen, 117, ASU.

Ray Leutz, 135th, First S. R., defeated Ralph Hall, 137, Third; Gordon Hill, 151th, TKO knocked out George Stamps, 153th, ASU, in 2:47 of two; Amos Walker, 160, CTC, defeated Rudolph Chiles, 153, ASU; Robert Martin, 134th, First S. R. defeated Eduardo Ramos, 132, CTC.

More Minor Loop Clubs Set For Tilts As BB Drills Open

Two more tentative games against good minor league teams were announced yesterday as spring training for the 1952 Fort Benning Doughboys got under way at Gowdy Field. An actual count of noses was too late for this edition of The Bayonet.

Capt. William Fannin, sports officer, said that Birmingham, Ala., of the class AA Southern Association, and Macon, Ga., of the class A Sally League, have agreed to spring games here, but dates are not certain.

Definite contests have previously been booked with the Columbus Cardinals April 13 and 14 and with Montreal of the AAA International League April 12.

Meantime, the Doughboys' stock took a rise with the reporting of Walter Kern, home-run slugging outfielder of the New York Yankee chain before a back injury and then Uncle Sam temporarily halted his career.

The 32-year old Kern, from Third Battalion of the 508th Airborne, clouted nine for the distance, had 11 three-baggers and 23 doubles for a .287 batting average with Kansas City, the Yanks' top farm club, in 1949.

He was in spring training in 1950 in Florida when he crashed

Major's Exhibitions Broadcast Locally

Major league baseball from the Florida training camps will be heard on WGBA and WGBA-FM via the Mututal Broadcasting System starting Saturday afternoon. WGBA has also been picked to carry the Mutual Game of the Day throughout the 1952 campaign.

The first exhibition will originate from Clearwater, Fla., training camp of the Philadelphia Phillies, when Eddie Sawyer's Blue Jays meet the Detroit Tigers at 2 o'clock.

Post Cinder Stars Enter 12-Mile Run

Fort Benning's two distance running Olympic hopefuls — Dick Ellis, of First Student Brigade, and Lionel Pinn, of Combat Training Command — will shove off next week to compete in the 12-mile White Horse Road Race March 16 at Baltimore.

The event is regarded as one of the stepping stones to a try-out this spring for the 1952 United State Olympic track team.

"We'd like to pick up a third runner so we could enter as a Fort Benning team," said the finely-conditioned Ellis who finished eighth in this same race in 1950. He was in Germany last year.

The Fort Bragg, N. C., team which Ellis ran for in 1950 finished second.

"Both Pinn and I would like to finish anywhere among the first five. That would prove our off-duty hours training here is paying off," explained Ellis. They have been running up to 20 miles several times a week.

The two cinder stars have put in application to run in the National Marathon of 26.25 miles Sunday, May 18, at Yonkers, N. Y. This is the event which definitely could qualify them for Olympic team shots.

Three events have been added to the Fort Benning Track and Field Championships slated for Doughboy Stadium April 17-18, and one of them, a five mile run, will keep Ellis here. Pinn has indicated he would like to go on to the Boston Marathon held at the same time. He has finished 13th and 26th in that event previously.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

THE TIME in the basketball season to start thinking about all-star and all-everything teams has arrived. As I did with the late football season, I'm going to pass out ballots to the coaches in the Fort Benning Basketball League and let them select the 1952 All-Post team. It has been my experience in handling a number of all-something teams that the coaches usually report in with the most sound and unbiased opinions.

I have also learned that all-star teams seldom mean more than something pretty on paper to look at. That is, unless you consider that it is nice for a talented kid who has done a good job to have lasting evidence of that fact. The so-called dream teams which actually have been converted from paper to life, most often for the benefit of some hungry promoter, also have been short of the expected in performance to me.

If I were asked—and there is no danger of this calamity occuring—to take a "best" team from the Benning Basketball League to meet some other cage colossals I think I would just grab up the Third Student Regiment quintet en masse, with, of course, apologies to regular coach Bill Hacker.

It would be wise to augment the Generals' first five or six hoopsters with one or two of the key men from each of several of the other clubs as reserves, but by and large I would bank on Hacker's regulars. That makes sense. They have proved they can win 14 straight against all manner of competition. A lot of the other squads would have candidates for my team boasting fancy records and impressive statistics. They could "prove" on paper that their stars could do everything—except win 14 straight.

Incidentally, when the Third Army basketball tournament comes up the Generals probably will be there. They are practically mathematical cinches to win the post crown, but because all but three of the squad are officer candidates there has been some doubt as to whether they would be able to break training to represent Fort Benning outside. Coach Hacker has assured me that barring unforeseen complications suitable arrangements will be made for this. Also, they may accept an invitation to play a preliminary game on the Harlem's Globetrotters' card in Atlanta March 30.

OF COURSE, the 1952 All-Post Basketball Team isn't going to be called on to play anybody, so the coaches can concentrate on passing out the laurels to boys who over the total season have turned in the most spectacular and conscientious performances.

A number of the selections, to my mind, are obvious. Not necessarily in order they include Bruce Mahon and Barney Gill, of the Third, Elmer Duerst, of Second Student Regiment, Ben Brown of CTC Team One, Truman Medders, of Infantry School Detachment, and perhaps John Wiliaman, of First S.R., Charlie Urbanowich, of Lawson Field, Larry Ivan and Dick Sartar, of 508th, Bill Gillingham and Francis Higgins of the Third, Bill Hahn, of ASU Provisional Group, and Bill Fallon, of Provisional Medical Group.

Gill and Sartar have got speed to burn. Brown, Hahn and Medders are the kind of guys who always get their share of points regardless of the opposition. Gillingham, at six-six, is one of those rarities, a big man stuck under the basket to get rebounds who also shows artistry at scoring. Give me Fallon as one of the more consistent, best all 'round players. Urbanowich and Ivan might have been hailed as the league's best if they had been here all season.

THE POST'S 1951 football season was a success in every manner, with stars galore on the four teams which finished and 186,000 fans counted in the grandstand. The basketball season has nearly matched this in every way except one. Why there was no more attendance at the games—the better games, anyway—I'll never understand. I have been told basketball just isn't popular in this section of the nation. That might hold generally, but Benning is an exception. That's been done around Fort Benning for many semesters.

One Tough Foe

Their remaining opponents are Provisional Medical Group, ASU Provisional Group and First Student Regiment. Only the latter figures to be any trouble at all and they developed butterflies last time they met the Generals.

What is left then is this. First Student Regiment can still get bumped for second by the 508th or CTC One could climb into third place. All three teams have games with one another yet and some of their other foes aren't patsies.

The First meets CTC One, Third S.R., ASU and Second S.R. in their remaining four. The 508th faces Lawson Field, Infantry School Detachment, PMG's Medics and CTC One in their last four.

The Commanders have five to go with PMG, ASU, First S.R., CTC Two and 508th. The balance seems to hang with the Red Devils. If Coach Henry Ubowski's crew can throw off their loss to the Third, which broke their seven-game streak, the dash to the wire for the top contenders will be hectic. Of course, the second division is not yet pat.

In the race for individual scoring honors, CTC's Benny (The Bomber) Brown, who had a healthy lead a week ago, is being closely pressed by the Third's Bruce Mahon and with five games to go (against Bruce's three) the pressure definitely is on the CTC ace.

Mahon will join Brown in passing the 300-point mark this week (unless we have the greatest form reversal since Eve turned out to be a woman).

All Over But Coronation For 3rd In Cage League

The Fort Benning Basketball League race seemed to be all over today except for the shouting, coronation of Third Student Regiment as champs and a skirmish for several of the runner-up positions.

The Third's rangy Generals practically put a lock on the 1952 crown when they pulled less skulls than Combat Training Command Team One, 55-41, in a messy affair a week ago Wednesday, and then threw the key away when they stayed off 508th Airborne, 66-63, in a real cardiac case Friday night.

That gave them a 14-0 record and a two and a half game edge on their nearest competitor, First Student Regiment. Any combination of three wins for the Third or three losses for the First will now make it official for the Generals.

Third - place 508th Airborne remains mathematically in the title race until they lose one or the Third wins one. The fourth-place Commanders were out when their shooting game went completely haywire against the edgy Generals last week.

The only suspense left for the Generals is whether they can finish their season with a perfect 18-0 record, something that hasn't been done around Fort Benning for many semesters.

One Tough Foe

Their remaining opponents are Provisional Medical Group, ASU Provisional Group and First Student Regiment. Only the latter figures to be any trouble at all and they developed butterflies last time they met the Generals.

What is left then is this. First Student Regiment can still get bumped for second by the 508th or CTC One could climb into third place. All three teams have games with one another yet and some of their other foes aren't patsies.

The First meets CTC One, Third S.R., ASU and Second S.R. in their remaining four. The 508th faces Lawson Field, Infantry School Detachment, PMG's Medics and CTC One in their last four.

The Commanders have five to go with PMG, ASU, First S.R., CTC Two and 508th. The balance seems to hang with the Red Devils. If Coach Henry Ubowski's crew can throw off their loss to the Third, which broke their seven-game streak, the dash to the wire for the top contenders will be hectic. Of course, the second division is not yet pat.

In the race for individual scoring honors, CTC's Benny (The Bomber) Brown, who had a healthy lead a week ago, is being closely pressed by the Third's Bruce Mahon and with five games to go (against Bruce's three) the pressure definitely is on the CTC ace.

Generals Cop Two 'Must' Games

Hacker Terms Red Devils Toughest Foe, Win 66-63

Third Student Regiment won its two biggest games of the season in order last week, but in the doing Coach Bill Hacker may have set the stage for the front-running Generals to meet an even tougher foe.

After coming off the court with a razor - thin 66-63 decision over a very good 508th Airborne quintet, Hacker commented: "I'd rather meet First Student Regiment every day in the week than face those guys again."

Hacker, of course, was referring to the much-heralded battle between his giants and Coach Bob Kinard's crew several weeks ago when both were unbeaten and tied for the league lead. The Generals brushed the First aside like so many flakes of dandruff, 64-47.

Holder of previous easy win over the 508th, Hacker and Co. had not even scouted the Red Devils for their second meeting. The catch now is that the Third has to meet the First again, Sunday, March 23, in the last game of the season, and you can bet Kinard will be quoting Hacker's statement plenty between now and then to steam up his players.

Kinard insists that it was the First's own mistakes which lost that game, and not the Third's superiority.

508th Led

Getting back to last week's action, however, the story of the 508th's effort to unseat the loop leaders is best told by the quarter scores. The Red Devils led at the end of the first period, 17-15. They will trailing only 31-27 at the intermission and 58-47 at the end of the third. A close-to-the-vest affair, Hacker used only seven players and Coach Henry Ubowski only six.

The Devils scored five straight goals as the fourth period got under way and with five minutes remaining, Center Bill Gillingham finally dunked two - points for the Third which made it 60-57 their favor.

Taking no chances, Hacker called for a freeze and in the maneuvering Gillingham twice slipped in past the anxious 508th defenders for field goals. With 2:14 remaining, Bob Borror cracked the freeze and raced in with a two - pointer for the 508th, making it 63-59.

Gilly Tough

Gillingham, who seemed to be the only thing the Generals had left, smashed out of the freeze again on the succeeding play and made it 65-59. The 508th came back down the floor with Chuck Cooke tapping in two - points finally. Larry Ivan stole the ball after the take - out and hit for another two.

It was 65-63 for the Generals now with ten seconds remaining, but the Devils' chances went out the window when Cooke fouled Bruce Mahon. Bruce dropped in the clinching point on the charity toss and Cooke shot wild from mid-court as the final buzzer sounded.

Barney Gill wound up as the game's top scorer with 19 although he didn't net a point in the crucial last period. The Generals scored most of theirs close in. Ivan's 18 was tops for the 508th, but theirs was a team effort with Dick Sartar (14) and Bob Borror (12) turning in good showings as guards, Gary Matstocks got ten, but Fran Rice had an off-night with only one-point and that might have been very significant.

The Generals apparently never thought about worrying over this one, but they were nervous as a first - night bride when they met CTC Team One a week ago. They pulled out a 35-41 victory in this one, thanks in large measure to extreme inaccuracy of the Commander shooters who had by far the more scoring opportunities.

The Generals held period leads of 20-7, 27-19 and 43-29. Coach Harold Kopp used 11 players in combination, but the result was that Ben Brown, the loop's top scorer, had his worst night of the season with only 12 while Bruce Mahon led the Generals with 21. Mahon was the big difference in the ragged contest.

Vitelli, Camp Rucker, Wins Alabama Title

CAMP RUCKER, Ala. — Three tries and a change in status—that's what PFC. Fred Vitelli, newly-crowned Alabama feather-weight champion, needed to win a state Golden Gloves title.

Vitelli from Youngstown, Ohio, made title shots in 1948 and 1949 in Ohio. Both times he was state runner-up. But after a two-year retirement, he scored a TKO over Charley Clark, two-time Alabama titlist, at Montgomery last week to win the Alabama crown. He's a rifleman in the 47th Div. at Rucker.

Medics Late Rally Trips Profs, 78-68

Provisional Medical Group halted its downward descent in the Fort Benning Basketball League long enough to knock off Infantry School Detachment, 78-68, in their only scheduled game last week.

The Medics, with reliable Bill Fallon showing the way with 18, did it with a second half rally as I. S. D. felt the early loss on fouls of Bill Greene and James Dupuy.

John Yaldisian scored 27 for the winners, his highest of the year, but had seven fouls called against him, three of the technical variety imposed simultaneously when he expressed the sentiment that all wasn't kosher with Referee Jack Faubion's whistle tooting.

The Profs had led at the quarter, 21-20, and at the intermission, 36-32. The scored was knotted at 49-all going into the final frame. Harry Ziegler's led the Medics' last period surge with 11 points.

The Medics were clicking all the way as a team in this one and except for the starring roles of Yaldizian and Truman Medders, who had 19, it wouldn't have been close.

Company E Wins Battalion Crown

Company E won the volleyball championship of the second Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, and will represent the battalion in the CTC tournament.

Going into the battalion finals tied with Medical Company and Company G, Company E won the title by trimming Company G, 15-4 and 15-6.

Members of the championship team are Sfc. John P. Beasley, M-Sgt. Howard Knight, Cpl. Harold W. McBride, Cpl. Elvin Barnett, Pfc. Vaclav Kalivoda, Pfc. James Oddson, and Pfc. Homer Messenger.

Baseball Gets Started Here

into an outfield wall and fractured his spine. Kern sat out the remainder of the season and then received a copy of the well-known "Greetings." He is an acting transportation corporal and has had eight jumps.

The Elmer, N. J. youth is dead set on playing pro baseball again and the 508th is going to give him his chance to make a diamond comeback. Kern is the only baseball player the Red Devils will leave behind when they shove off on maneuvers in the near future.

The five-foot, 11-inch lefthanded hitter made All-Tri County League honors at Woodstown, N. J., high school in 1945 and was promptly signed by a Yankee scout. That started a career which saw him jump from class C, to triple A ball in only four years, the mark of a real comer.

Kern was with Butler, Pa., and Amsterdam, Pa., in the Mid - Atlantic League in 1946, went to Manchester, N. H., in the New England League in 1947, to Binghampton, N. Y., in the Eastern League in 1948, and then to Kansas City in '49.

Playing since he was 12, he is a natural southpaw, but throws with his right. He expects to be discharged from the Army in October.

Some good teams can be seen this spring in Columbus against the local Cardinals, incidentally. Their exhibition slate, headed by a visit from the New York Yankees, includes:

Riley Shot-Putter Seeking Olympic Try

FORT RILEY, Kans. — Pvt. Walt Jenkins, now taking basic here with the 10th Division, has high hopes of making the 1952 Olympic squad as a shot-putter.

As a freshman at Wayne University in 1949, Jenkins shot the put 52 feet, the longest heave registered by any college freshman that year.

3 Teams Reach Playoffs In Officer Bowling Loop

Three of the six teams which begin playoffs Tuesday, March 18, for The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League title had clinched their positions in last week's action, but a dogfight looms for the remaining three slots.

The top two squads in each of the loop's three sections are eligible for the championship rolloffs.

Hospital Administration, captained by Maj. Ross Haecker, will finish in front in the first section, but only four points separates Maj. Jean Hollstein's Airborne Department in second place and Infantry School Detachment in third.

Maj. Wallace Olsoq turned in high individual game of 217 to lead the Airborne Department to four wins last week. Advance Class No. One and Capt. Howard Rossini's Second Student Regiment still have a mathematical chance to get in the playoffs from section one.

In the sterling second section, with eight teams averaging over 700 pins per game, Lt. Arthur Rafferty's Attack Group and Lt. Richard Crowson's First Battalion, 30th Infantry, are tied for first place with no less than four squads knotted for third.

Lt. Col. Jesse Wheeler's Staff Department One team pulled into the four-way standoff with three wins last week sparked by Lt. John Vollmer's 545 set, high of the week.

Capt. Charles Detweiler's 24th Evacuation Hospital squad has copped top spot in the third section with Maj. Joe Hennessee's TIS Operations and Headquarters clinching second.

However, there is a good chance that the third section's alternate team, Maj. Linwood Carolton's Defense Group may see playoff action because the 24th Evacuation Hospital squad is on maneuvers with no definite date for return.

Entry blanks for the Fort Benning Association Bowling tournament April 1-13 will be distributed this week, according to Maj. Sam Allison, tournament committee chairman. Application has been submitted for ABC sanction of the event and all entrants must be ABC members in good standing.

The tournament will be run with 16-man flights in singles and 12 teams per flight in doubles. There will be five games singles, three games doubles, three games team and all events competition.

Deadline for submitting entries is March 25.

A candidate for the 1952 U. S. Army Pistol Team, WOJG Robert Knight, of the weapons department, Sunday scored 560 of a possible 600 to win aggregate honors in National Match Course firing in the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's monthly pistol shoot.

M-Sgt. Russell Stowe, of 3440th ASU, was second among the 21 competitors with 559x600. Stowe also won the Center Fire match with a 279x300.

Capt. Fred Keifer, of the weapons department, won the .22 match with a 287x300 score and was third in the aggregate with 554x600.

Expert class aggregate honors were won by Capt. Earl Aldridge, 540x600, sharpshooter aggregate by Lt. James Duke, 531x600, and marksman aggregate by Lt. Muskat.

The next n the series of monthly matches designed to stimulate pistol interest among all Fort Benning personnel is slated April 6.

First Noses Rifles, 67-53

First Student Regiment defeated Combat Training Command Team Two, 67-53, Friday night to keep a tight grip on second place and hand the Rifles their tenth defeat of the year, the first squad to lose that many.

The black shirts opened slow, trailing at the quarter, 16-14, and the half, 34-29. It was not until the end of the third frame that they had pulled into a tie, 44-44.

After that, John Wilsman broke out with five field goals and two charity tosses to ice the game and give himself a night's total of 30, his highest. Forty fouls were called, with Bob Karpinski, going out for the winners and Charlie Crowley for the losers.

Guard Santo De Rose led the faltering Rifles with 14 points, all scored in the first half. It was their second defeat of the week.

ONE-ARMED JIMMY NICHOLS TAKES A CRACK AT PAR
Golf Phenom Will Appear Here Thursday Afternoon

One-Armed Golf Par Buster Has Clinic Here Thursday

Jimmy Nichols, famed as the one-armed golfer with sub-par scores, will give a special public links demonstration and clinic at 1 p.m. Thursday, March 13, at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Following the exhibition, Nichols, who lost his right arm in an auto accident in 1929, will play 18-holes with Charlie Harper, Benning C.C. pro, Maurice Hudson, of LaGrange, Ga., C.C., and Paul Lavin, pro at Atlanta's Adam's Park course.

Some of Nichols' feats seem impossible considering his handicap, but they are all carefully recorded with the Professional Golfers Association. His first score after losing his arm was 266. His best ever was a 66 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., six under par.

He has registered seven holes-in-one, one of them a drive of 366-yards. On tour in 1950, he had 50 rounds at 70 or below. His highest round that season was a 77.

A native of Fort Worth, Tex., one of his proudest feats was making an ace on a dog-leg hole standing on the tee with his back to the fairway. That one was printed by Ripley in 1938.

Advance Class One Team Low In Golf Action

Low net team honors in the sixth week of play in the First Student Brigade Winter Handicap golf tournament went to Advance Class One. Team One with a 70.6. Brigade Cadre and Advance Class Two shared the runner-up slot with a 73.

For his 68 net score, lowest of the week's tournament, M. Sgt. Charles Gunderson, of Second Student Regiment, was awarded two game balls. Maj. Bethell Edrington, Advance Class One, Team One was runner-up with a 69.

Other low individual net scores in the week's play were Capt. John Powers, Capt. Robert Mackinnon, and Lt. Robert Morrow, 70; Maj. Elmer Baker, Maj. Thomas Brown, and Maj. E. Fenstmacher, 71; Capt. Claude McGeachie, and Capt. Benjamin Boyd, 72.

Team match winners last week were Brigade Cadre over Advance Class Two, Advance Class One, Team One over First Student Regiment, by forfeit, Second Student Regiment over Third Student Regiment "B", Advance Class One, Team Two over Third Student Regiment "A", by forfeit.

Brown's 38 New Cage Score Mark

Ben (The Bomber) Brown, slight-built former pre-med student at Lincoln University in Baltimore, broke the season's individual game scoring record Monday night and in the doing staked a strong claim to the 1952 Fort Benning Basketball League shooting crown.

The six-foot, four-letter college athlete dunked 16 field goals and six of ten charity throws for 38 points as Combat Training Command Team One overwhelmed an incapacitated Lawson Air Force Base, 95-56, at Briant Wells.

That beats by two points the mark set by Infantry School Detachment's Truman Medders early in the season. The record effort was very deliberate. Sacrificing a chance to run the team score over 100 points, the other Commanders fed Brown continuously in the second half.

Lawson's trouble was that only six of their regulars were available. The rest were laid up by a coincidence of duty, injuries and passes. Still, Forward Tom Minta got 25 for the helpless Flyers who scored 45 points in the last half as everybody else concentrated on Brown.

The Bomber also became the first league player to pass the 300-point mark, his 310 for 13 games giving him a 23.9 average.

CTC led at the end of the first period, 27-2, and going into the final frame, 78-36. They needed the win desperately to protect their fourth place standing after bowing to unbeaten Third Student Regiment earlier.

It was a hectic week for the Flyers. At full strength, they surprised by upsetting Second Student Regiment, 65-60. They had trailed at the quarter, 12-11, and at the half, 30-26, but held the lead going into the fourth period, 51-36, as they outran the usually fast Rockets.

Little Wayne Caplinger, 140-pounds of cage clout, led the Flyers' rally. He had 12 points for the night, Minta topping all with 18. Charlie Clushka, a recent addition, got 26 for the Rockets, but he was all alone expect for Center Elmer Duerst with 16.

Mujica Stops Cantero Again

Larrupin' Larry Mujica, 141, scored his second consecutive TKO against Rocco Cantero, 144, in 1:54 of the fourth round in the featured bout Monday night at Columbus Arena. Larry put Cantero on the deck three times before Referee W. W. Grant hailed the useless affair.

Combinations of lefts and rights downed Cantero each time as the classy Airborne Battalion pro won his 13th victory fighting out of Benning and his fifth straight. He flattened Cantero in six two weeks ago in Tampa.

Two other post sluggers also appeared on the card and won handily. Larry Jones, stylish middleweight who smashes the ASU Provisional Group team, gave Heyl Nunnley a boxing lesson for six rounds. Larry had considerable weight pull.

CTC's Chaplain Lewis Also Is Top Sports Coach

"Praise the Lord and pass another championship!"

That might be an appropriate switch on the World War II adage for Capt. Alexander Lewis, of Combat Training Command.

He's the regiment's chaplain, but he also has a hand in coaching the CTC ring team, backed up by nearly two dozen years of sports experience.

Chaplain Lewis admits that his teams have left trophies scattered all around the Pacific and Far East. He also acknowledges that prior to his training for the Presbyterian ministry he was a pretty good welterweight.

He reached the North Carolina state Golden Gloves tournament finals in 1933.

More recently, his 93rd Engineer Construction Battalion boxing team won the so-called Korean amateur title from among a collection of 400 service fighters at Pusan last December.

"The way I figure it, any man good enough to participate as a boxer also is a man good enough and ready to do his duty in the Army," explains Chaplain Lewis, who has spent six of his seven and a half years of service on overseas assignment.

"I got called in the service in 1944 like a lot of other guys, but somehow I got overlooked when it came time for discharges. After while I stopped worring about it and here I've been since," he adds by way of explanation.

Overseas, it seemed that all the chaplain had to do was lend his name to a team as coach and it came home with a title. Between Guam and Okinawa in 1949-50, his squads were tops in boxing, track, football, baseball, softball, pool, horse shoes and so on into the smaller sports.

His 1950 ring team at Guam went to the finals for the Far Eastern Command boxing crown.

"The 93rd built themselves a service club at Okinawa and there's was only one name considered for it — "The Home of Champions," smiles Chaplain Lewis. "I'm still waiting for them to ship me a couple dozen of the trophies and plaques we won there."

He just can't seem to get away from sports. As a high shool teacher at Freemont, N.C., from 1934 to 1939, he organized winning teams in football, baseball, basketball and track. He also was four-letter man himself at Johnson C. Smith University at Charlotte, N.C.

Carrying it even further than that, while assigned to duty with POW's in Korea, Chaplain Lewis got busy organizing athletic teams, and, as you might have guessed, his team won the POW softball title.

With that wide a background in service sports, Chaplain Lewis not infrequently runs into members of his former teams.

"Now you take Robert Flores, ASU's lightweight," he says. "When we had that boy on Okinawa he won us the island bantamweight championship."

ISD, ASU Fives Split Games In Cage Loop Play

Infantry School Detachment's hot and cold Profs remained in the running for a first division finish in the Fort Benning Basketball League by splitting two games last week.

They defeated ASU Provisional Group, 70-65, in fairly easy style Monday night after losing to Provisional Medical Group, 78-68, last Thursday.

ASU remained in eighth place on the strength of an upset victory against Combat Training Command Team Two, 73-68, earlier last week. The CTC quintet lost three in a disasterous week which dropped them to ninth place.

Center Johnny Yaldivian, who also doubles as coach, was the spark for the Profs. He scored 24 against ASU, boosting his total for the last three games to 76 points and moving him into fifth place among the league's top scorers.

ASU jumped into a first quarter lead in this game, 17-12, but had lost it to ISD which led at the half, 32-28. The Profs were leading as the third quarter ended, 53-52. The closeness of the final score was the result of a late ASU rally sparked by Bill Hahn who scored 12 in the final canto, for a total of 27.

Hahn, of course, was the key to ASU's upset of the Rifles, tallying 22, but in this instance only one point more than Delmar Watson who did not play in the ISD game.

ASU led the Rifles at the quarter, 12-9, were tied at the half, 30-all, and led at the end of the third, 50-49. Tom Colyer's 19 points was tigh for CTC Two.

KENTUCKY WINS

Kentucky barely lasted to beat LSU, 44-43, in the finals of the SEC basketball tournament Saturday. It was their 18th tourney title in 19 played.

VEJAR WINS

Stout-hearted Chico Vejar picked himself off the floor again and hammered out a split decision over Fitzie Pruden of Paterson, N. J., in an action-packed ten-rounder in Madison Square Garden. Vejar weighed 149 1-2 to Pruden's 147 1-2.

National Invitation Cage Meet Saturday

Louisville and Western Kentucky will play the opening game of the 1952 National Invitation basketball tourney Saturday.

The two Kentucky teams will meet at 6 p.m., EST, that night and will be followed by the Seton Hall vs LaSalle and Dayton vs New York University contests the same evening.

The quarterfinal round will be completed on March 10 with Holy Cross tangling with a team still to be selected. Only eleven of the 12 teams in the tournament have been picked. The Holy Cross vs team X contest will be the third and final game of the second night's program to enable Massachusetts fans a chance of seeing it.

Other games booked for March 10 are the Louisville, Western Kentucky winner vs St. Bonaventure and the Seton Hall-La-Salle winner opposing St. John's. Only the first night's time schedule has been set.

Ranger Department Adopts Latin Snake for Training

Poor Pancho! Life in the U. S. Army isn't all mice and rabbits as any boa constrictor can tell you.

It all began three weeks ago when Pancho, a sleek young snake from south of the border, joined The Infantry School's Ranger Department as a sort of instructor's assistant in a class on reptile recognition.

Shortly after his arrival at Fort Benning Pancho, stopped eating. Ranger Cpl. Harold W. Lafferty, who operated a reptile farm in Los Angeles, Calif., as a civilian, investigated.

He tried all kinds of tempting tid-bits—but Pancho continued to turn up his nose even when offered the tenderest mice. Cpl. Lafferty then discovered that Pancho's trouble was not a finicky appetite, or even homesickness, but a sore mouth caused by a fungus infection picked up during his travels.

The Infantry Center veterinarian, Maj. Dwain T. Bowie, said he "would be delighted" to look at the little fellow. Just a baby, Pancho measures a scant five feet in length is about three inches thick. Fully grown, he will stretch 18 to 20 feet.

After the consultation, a bland penicillin mouth wash was recommended to sooth Pancho's puffy gums.

Although he is now an Army snake, Pancho does not share his owners' enthusiasm for modern remedies. Getting a snake to use mouth wash could be a problem.

Snake fancier Lafferty, however, solved the problem in a hurry. Propping Pancho's mouth open with a wooden spoon, he squirts the mouthwash on the sore spots with a syringe. Pancho regards the whole business with distaste.

The lesions are slowly healing, but poor Pancho is still having trouble getting food past his nose. Cpl. Lafferty is resorting to force feeding to keep boa and constrictor together.

Brighter days are in sight for the baby boa, though. He is being transferred next week to the Ranger Department's training camp near Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. There he and several dozen of his snake friends will continue to help teach Rangers reptile lore.

OC Expansion Plan Nears Completion

Plans for the expansion of the Officer Candidate School here were moving right on Schedule as the Fourth Officer Candidate battalion was activated in February.

The battalion's six companies will begin graduation in April, when 25th Company will reach the end of training. Companies 26 and 27 are training now and 28th Company was slated to receive a class on March 2.

The battalion will reach full strength in June, when 30th Company will get its first class.

Maj. C. M. Ackridge, who graduated from Officers' Candidate School here in 1941, is battalion commander.

AF Gets New Rate For Electronics

WASHINGTON —(AFPS)— A new aeronautical rating of Aircraft Observer (Electronics Counter - measure) with flying status has been esatblished for officers in the U. S. Air Force.

In order to qualify, officers must have completed courses in electronic countermeasures at Keesler AFB., Biloxi, Miss., or with the Strategic Air Command. An estimated 375 officers will be eligible for the rating immediately.

Formerly, officers who had completed such training since World War II were placed on flying status only if they were assigned to the position in an authorized vacancy. Those rated are authorized to wear aircraft observer wings.

FIRST TO RE-UP

Sgt. Thomas Tucker, mess sergeant of the 4th Officer Candidate Company, is the first Regular Army reenlistee for that organization in 1952.

Veteran Trainees Urged to Resume Studies Soon

WASHINGTON —(AFPS)— Former veteran trainees who returned to active military duty were told by the Veterans Administration recently that they have little time to lose if they want to resume their studies after discharge.

Under VA regulations, they must resume their training within a reasonable period after their release from active duty. The "reasonable period," said the VA, will be based on the circumstances of each veteran's case.

These regulations apply to veterans affected by the July 25, 1951 cut-off date for entering training under the Veterans Readjustment Act, but who were unable to be enrolled at that time because of recall to military service.

More Than 320 Alumni Expected Here To Help Observe 150th Anniversary

The strains of "Benny Havens O" and "Army Blue" will fill the Officers Mess here Sunday when alumni gather to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the founding of the United States Military Academy.

More than 320 graduates and former cadets throughout the Southeast have been invited to attend the annual dinner and stag party which this year is coordinated with sesquicentennial ceremonies being held at West Point.

The program for the reunion will follow many old and firmly established customs.

Radio Station WGBA has been notified that its network, the Mutual Broadcasting company, will carry the West Point sesquicentennial program Sunday, March 16 at 11:15 p.m. Generals Eisenhower, Ridgway and Bradley will be heard on the program.

A group of graduates under the direction of Maj. M. Cole Murphy, First Student Regiment, class of 1944, will present several traditional academy songs. The entire group will sing "Alma Mater" and "The Corps".

At the conclusion of the dinner the alumni will join in the Long Corps yell.

After dinner a movie, "This Is West Point," will be shown.

Committee chairmen for the party are Controlling committee, Col. George Millener, director of the Weapons Department, class of 1924; Entertainment and Program committee, Col. George Bush, director of the Staff Department, class of 1939; Food and Drink committee, Col. Eads Hardaway, Staff Department, class of 1937; Publicity committee, Col. Maj. Gen. Church to Leave Benning for Hot Springs

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., became commander of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School here Monday.

He replaces Maj. Gen. John H. Church, who will leave here within the next few days for Hot Springs, Ark., where he will undergo extensive treatment at the Army and Navy Hospital there.

General Meloy will act as temporary commander here until Department of the Army appoints a new permanent commander. He had been assistant commandant of The Infantry School up until Monday.

The new Infantry Center commander is a West Point graduate who commanded a combat Infantry regiment in Korea until he was severely wounded.

A native of Lanham, Md., Gen. Meloy graduated from the academy and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry June 14, 1927.

After his release from the hospital he was appointed deputy to the assistant to the chief of staff for personnel for the Far East Command in Tokyo.

General Meloy returned to the U. S. in February, 1951, to become chief of the Civil Relations Branch in the Office of the Chief of Information, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.

He was assigned to Fort Benning as assistant commandant of The Infantry School Oct. 23, 1951.

Maj. Clark and Lt. Gallardo Get the Award From Third Army Commander

GEN. MARK CLARK

A famous father saw his hero son receive the nation's second highest award at a parade here yesterday.

Gen. Mark Clark, chief of Army Forces, Fort Monroe, Va., attended ceremonies at which his son, Major William D. Clark, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in action in Korea.

The general visited Fort Benning on his way back to Monroe from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., where he attended the second Ranger Orientation course at the swamp training camp of The Infantry School's Ranger department.

Second Lt. Robert Gallardo, who received a battlefield commission in Korea, also was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and first Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star at the same formation.

Lt. Gen. John B. Hodge, Third Army Commander, made the presentations.

Troops for the parade were from the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team and the 122nd Army Band.

Assigned to TIS

Major Clark, who now is assigned to The Infantry School's Tactical Department, was awarded the DSC for action while serving with the Ninth Infantry Regiment, Second Division, near Mungdung-ni, Korea, last October.

He is credited with leading an inexperienced group of friendly troops in an assault on a numerically superior hostile force occupying heavily fortified hill positions. Assuming command after the company commander and all company officers had been wounded, Major Clark, then a captain, reorganized the troops and led them on to a successful attack although painfully wounded by weapons fire pouring down from hostile emplacements.

In addition to DSC, Major Clark wears the Silver Star, Commendation Ribbon with Oak

Maj. Gen. Church Speaks On 'Voice of America' Net

Republic of Korea Army officers who graduate from The Infantry School today are the theme of a Voice of America program scheduled to be broadcast soon to Asia.

Maj. Gen. John H. Church, former Infantry Center commander, authored the statement that was translated into the native Korean tongue by 1st. Lt. Sangkook Han, of the Korean Army, who is a TIS student and translator.

The five - minute statement was requested by the State Department.

General Church's statement said in part:

"When the Republic of Korea Army officers graduate from the Infantry School on March 13, they will leave an enviable record behind. They have had to overcome language barriers, difference in military terminology and other problems, yet their class as a whole made a fine scholastic record.

"I am confident that when these officers return to Korea they will be better qualified to lead and instruct units in the Republic of Korea Army.

"One of the most outstanding things about these officers is that none has failed the course of instruction. They have all made grades in their various course of instruction that will enable them to graduate with comfort.

"From time to time I have had the opportunity to personally talk to many of these officers, and I found all to whom I talked to be most enthusiastic about the Infantry School and the subjects they were studying. All of them demonstrated a singleness of purpose that was gratifying.

"I understand that many of these fine South Korean officers will become instructors in the Republic of Korea Army when they return to their home land. Their Army can be justly proud of them for the accomplishments they have attained in the U. S. Infantry School. I know they will make excellent instructors.

"In addition to doing well in their studies, the South Korean officers have made a splendid impression on American, both military and civilian. The Korean officers contributed generously to many of the charity drives that were conducted at Fort Benning during their schooling. It was not unusual to find the contributions of Korean officers to be near the largest when the total were computed in each drive.

"The Infantry School has been proud to have these fine South Korean officers as students. We look forward to receiving others after the present class has graduated."

Lieutenant Han is a native of Seaul, Korea, and in addition to being a student, is an interpreter for the group of 162 students.

Ten Danish Home Guard officers also came here Monday. They coordinated part of their tour with that planned for Mr. Lindgren.

The under secretary was greeted by an honor guard shortly after his arrival at Lawson Air Force Base Monday afternoon.

They also saw an Infantry School tank demonstration and visit the Infantry Officer Candidate School to confer with school officials and see bayonet training.

Lt. Col. Lewis W. Shropshire and Capt. James F. Thornley were U. S. Army tour directors.

Mrs. Fenton Odell, a staff member of the press branch in The Infantry Center public information office, is the author of an article in the April issue of Saga magazine entitled "Two On A Chute."

In the article, Mrs. Odell tells how paratrooper Frank Elliott saved the life of his buddy, James Fernandez, after the two collided in midair following a paratrooper jump here.

The incident occurred in December, and was witnessed by about 80 mayors who were attending an orientation conference here.

The article is accompanied by a Signal Corps photograph and an illustration.

Dutch Army Officer Recalls Days As German Prisoner

A high-ranking Dutch Army officer attending the advanced officers Infantry course at The Infantry School here was a German prisoner-of-war for three years during World War II.

He is Col. Gerhard C. Berenschot, regimental commander of the Stototroepen Regiment of the Netherland Army. Recalling his experiences as a prisoner, he said he was captured in 1942 while serving with a Dutch unit that was attached to the Canadian Army.

He was interned as a POW in Poland for two years, and was later sent to Germany for a year. He said that on his last day as a prisoner, some of the Germans refused to leave, and as a result were captured by the Russians that liberated him.

The regiment he now commands was formed after the liberation of South Holland by American and Canadian troops in 1944. Members of the underground immediately volunteered to fight for the Allies, and were supplied with uniforms and equipment.

When first organized, the men wore their famous Dutch wooden shoes into combat. This group formed the nucleus of what later became the Stootroepen Regiment.

Colonel Berenschot said that in his opinion every Allied officer whose country participates in NATO should attend The Infantry School if possible.

Jews Observe Purim Friday

Purim, a Jewish holiday, will be observed here March 14 at 9 p.m. in the Fort Benning Army

A social hour will follow the service, sponsored by the Baltimore group of the Serv-A-Camp committee of the Jewish Welfare Board.

The holiday Purim is based on the heroism of Esther and her cousin Mordecai. Their story is preserved in the pages of the Biblical Book of Esther, and is read in all synagogues during Purim services.

The holiday of Purim recalls the deliverance gained by the Jews of Persia. More than that, according to Chaplain Raab, it marks the defeat of all oppressors from Bible times down to our day. Also, he said, it signifies a promise that the common people, armed with justice, will always triumph over tyrants who seek power, through enslavement and mass murder.

Gen. Bradley Asks Donors to Continue In Blood Program

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, recently made the following statement in connection with the Armed Forces Blood Donor Campaign:

"Americans are rather proud, and, as you know, they hate to plead for help. This is especially true of the soldiers, sailors, and the airmen — the men who defend his nation.

"But today we are so short of the blood that is needed to properly take care of the wounded in Korea, and our blood plasma reserve stocks are so low, that I am casting my soldierly pride aside — speaking on behalf of these men — for your contribution of blood.

"If you have given blood, you have undoubtedly saved an American life. It is one item that all the taxes, all the industry and science and technology of this country cannot produce for our soldiers. This life-saving blood can only be given by you."

Report From Washington

Construction Program Tops 3 Billion Mark

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

A network of airstrips and installations encircling the globe is now under construction in a $3,071,000,000 Army and Air Force building program, Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Chief of the Army Engineers, said the program "touches nearly every state in the Union" as well as many foreign countries. Projects are underway in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Panama Canal Zone, Canada, Labrador, Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland, the Azores, Bermuda, French Morocco, Tripoli, Saudi Arabia and Turkey.

Officers and warrant officers will have to raise the insignia of grade on their helmets and helmet liners, the Department of Defense has announced. New regulations state that painted insignia or decals must be centered on the front as before but the base of the insignia must now be 2 1-2 inches from the lower edge of the helmet or helmet liner. Formerly, the distance was measured from the center of the insignia.

False Rumor Hurts Donations

Armed Forces blood donor recruitment continues to be crippled in some communities by rumor mongers who peddle myths that men wounded in the Korean fighting are having to pay for blood transfusions.

Target of the attack is the Red Cross. The fact is, that the Red Cross has nothing to do with giving such transfusions. It acts only as a blood collecting and donor recruitment agency. Blood is administered by military medical personnel, of course without charge.

A donor is not paid for the blood he donates for a fighting man. He donates it, whether it be taken at a Red Cross collecting center or bloodmobile, a military blood center, or a cooperating community blood bank.

In due course, rumors of this type will be spiked.

At best, peddlers of such rumors are irresponsible and are not acting in the interests of fighting men.

Critically wounded men need an average of 15 pints of blood, military hospitals report. The amount of nine pints is average for all battle casualties reaching a hospital. Many hospitalized multiple - pint transfusions in repeat operations necessary to be performed weeks or even months after initial transfusions of plasma on the battlefield.

Let's be sure they have blood when they need it. You can insure this in two ways:

1. Give blood yourself.
2. Help stop false, vicious rumors that discourage others from giving.

Must Act Now to Get Ballots

Voting in this year's presidential election is a long way off—Nov. 4—but now is the time to act if you want your ballot to count.

And too few people value the very thing they are sworn to defend. Too frequently, the individual asks 'why go to the trouble, my one vote won't have any effect on the outcome."

But that's the sort of thinking that undermines the entire democratic system. Even if your single vote doesn't have any effect on the outcome of an election, it is still worth the trouble.

Voting is more than a privilige—its a right—but only a right because generations of Americans have made it so. The vote is a dear thing. A true vote—that has real meaning—is the basic key to any kind of democratic government.

It's true that you read of shady voting practices even in America, that kind of treason is only possible because more people don't go to the trouble to vote.

In Russia, the people vote, but it doesn't mean anything. Only one party runs.

But in our own country, the vote does mean something. It means you have the right to state your case and back up whom you wish to be elected.

The states have gone to a great deal of trouble to make it possible for all its citizens to vote by use of the absentee ballot. And now is the time to make preparations to vote when the time comes.

In the news columns of The Bayonet, this week and for many subsequent weeks, requirements and regulations for each state will be presented.

It is important to make early preparations if you plan to participate in this year's election. It's more than a right, it's a duty.

TIMELY . . . Within seven days the pint of blood which this man has donated could save the life of a soldier in Korea. In this Washington, D. C. blood center, Red Cross nurse's aides lend a helping hand.

Chaplain's Corner

Democracy and Bible Teachings Are Alike

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST. LT.) DAVID RAAB

It is interesting to note that our American Democracy is dipped in the ideals expressed in Scriptures. The love of liberty is mirrored throughout the Bible, and this force palpitated within the hearts of the Pilgrims, the founding fathers of our republic.

Under the influence of the Bible, the very seal of the American Revolution was adopted from the Biblical account of the Exodus, showing Pharaoh sitting in a chariot, riding through the dividing waters of the Red Sea. Under the picture, there is a caption with the words: "Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God".

Furthermore, on our great Liberty Bell we find the inscription taken from the Biblical book of Leviticus chapter 25:10 — " Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." If you accept this teaching you accept Democracy wholeheartedly. However, there are people in this country, faint in heart who do not have faith in Democracy, who destroy the very essence of Democracy by their prejudices and bigotry. They forget that these practices are un - American and that by clinging to these prejudices, they destroy the very existence of America.

Some say that Democracy has not worked, because there is still hatred in the hearts of many Americans against their fellow Americans. So they recommend other systems and other "isms". To thus do away with Democracy is "as though a man had fallen into a pit and is preparing to saw off his lega because they did not prevent him from falling into the pit".

If Democracy has not worked completely and satisfactorily, we may blame no one but ourselves, for we must work for Democracy if Democracy is to work for us. As a Chaplain in the Armed Forces, and observing acts of Brotherhood at every turn, I should like to think of all religions as comprising the most beautiful symphony ever created by God and man. Just as there are diverse melodies created by composers of different national, religious and cultural backgrounds, so there are diverse melodies of religion.

We thus have such great composers as Bach, Beethoven, Brahams, Tchaikovsky, Mendelssohn, Copeland and Leonard Berantein. In a symphony, furthermore, we find diverse melodies, tones and overtones, currents and cross currents, but there is always a central theme or motif, which was ever present in the mind and in the heart of the composer. I should like to think of religion as an orchestra where various instruments are employed to bring all the beauty of the composer's intent and purpose.

In religion God is the composer and conductor. We, men, women and children are the players. Holiness of God, ethics and the dignity of the human personality are the melodies. The theme, or continuous refrain, is "the Kingdom of God" upon the face of the earth. Just as we cannot expect an orchestra to consist entirely of violins, cellos, or cymbals and produce a beautiful symphony, so we cannot expect one religion to give a complete symphony, leading to the kingdom of God, all by itself. Together with other religions of the land it can produce worthy results.

Our country too, like an orchestra consists of many racial, coultural and religious groups. Tearing at each other's throat they may destroy our democracy; working together they may strengthen our way of life. If you as an individual, therefore, are unhappy about many shortcomings in our Democracy, remember that you have a great deal to be thankful for, by living in this country, America, a land of opportunity, freedom, liberty and decency.

Remember that you dwell in a country where the spirit of fair play is still in vogue regardless of bigots who wish to destroy that spirit of America. Remember that this country is still governed by the philosophy that "all men are created equal — endowed by their creator with inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

An educator once remarked, holding his hand up for all to see, "here is America . . . it is like my hand . . . on the hand are five fingers; America has many more. Each finger is different, and performs a different function. It must be so, if my hand is to work properly. They cannot all be thumbs. Label one finger, the Negroes; one the Catholics; one the Jews, one the Protestants and so forth. If one finger is broken, the whole hand suffers. Each finger must be distinct and separate from the others, all must cooperate, none must cease to function in its own special way."

Our country, dear friends, may not be perfect, but its perfection depends upon contributing our share to the great brotherhood of America. America, like the, orchestra, and like the hand is a brotherhood of individuals and groups; it is a symphony with a mutual goal and destiny; a common purpose of live and let live. We need more than preaching; we need good deeds and just action.

Gen. Ridgway Says Armistice Future a Mystery

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway has declared the Koreen armistice talks have now reached a point where it was impossible for him to guess what would happen next. The supreme Allied commander denounced the Communist truce negotiators for their "known falsehood." The General cited Red assertions that the United Nations had engaged in bacteriological warfare as an example of the Communist technique of "employing known falsehoods." He said it was difficult to know what the Reds hoped to accomplish by spreading the charges of bacteriological warfare throughout the world.

New York echoed a mother's wail this week as Arnold Schuster, fingerman for Willie Sutton, was buried. Schuster was slain last week just a stone's throw from his Brooklyn home. Rewards for the seizure of the slayer mounted hourly and officials said they might reach $50,000. The city was expected to put up $25,000; the most it has offered in years. Every one of the city's 19,000 policeman was thrown into the hunt for the slayer. Schuster had received several threatening notes since he helped the police, but apparently had not paid much attention to them. The police commissioner said he had refused a police guard.

Defense officials in Washington said early this week they would seek an injunction to halt the rail strike which has snarled traffic on two lines. The three rail unions on strike against the New York Central system and the St. Louis Terminal claimed they were ready to negotiate their dispute. The offer was made by the union heads in Cleveland shortly after the government announced it would seek a strike-ending injunction. The stoppage, by some 6,000 members, of the engineer's, firemen's and conductor's brotherhoods, shut down all regular service on the Central system west of Buffalo and caused curtailment of several other lines operating to and through St. Louis. The strike stemmed from a three - year dispute over wages and working conditions.

In Cuba, Gen. Fulgencio Batista seized power in an almost bloodless coup this week, set up a provincial government, and announced the cancellation of the presidential election set for June 1. Two members of the palace guard were killed and seven others wounded, but Batista blamed the casualties on a shooting affray "instituted by a Prio aide." Prio is Carlos Prio Socarras, president who was overthrown by Batista's coup. Batista said he was preparing a decree suspending constitutional guarantees for 45 days. The move was aimed at placing the country under the control of the army and national police, both of which pledged loyalty to the new leader to guarantee the success of his venture.

LEFT WING IN SOUTHEAST ASIA by R. Adoloff and Virginia M. Thompson (Wm. Sloane Associates, 289 pages) A book that has received a mixed reception from dull and sketchy to adequately filling the present need for usable information about Southeast Asia. The authors admit the aggressiveness of Communism in the restive south eastern Asiatic countries, including Malaya, Siam, Indochina, but believe they are not marked for immediate communistic upheaval.

MEASURE OF FREEDOM by A. Forster (Doubleday & Company 258 pages) An outspoken, documented and challenging Anti - Defamation League report prepared by the B'Nai B'Rith, a national Jewish organization, on anti-Semitism and other discriminatory anti - civil - rights practices as fostered by individuals and organizations in this country. Appendices contain lists of anti - Semitic organizations, publishers and sponsors.

MEN WHO MAKE YOUR WORLD by Overseas Press Club of America (E. P. Dutton & Company, Inc. 319 pages) A book of such excellency that all lovers of democracy and freedom will enjoy. The foreign correspondents who make up the Overseas Press Club of America portray prominent world leaders in their fields of influence and leadership. President Truman, Secretary Acheson, General McArthur, Stalin and Nehru are five of the internationally - public men presented.

MODERN ARMS AND FREE MEN by Dr. Vannevar Bush (Simon and Schuster 278 pages) An outstanding book of broad sweep containing valuable information on US war strategy and utilization of new inventions, analysis of democracy, dictatorship and totalitarianism. In 1940 Dr. Bush was appointed head of the Scientific Research and Development Agency.

MY THREE YEARS IN MOSCOW by Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith (J. B. Pillincott Company, 346 pages) An excellent work, well written and modestly presented, on Soviet Russia's policies. It being a personal record of the author's two and one-half years' stay in Moscow as American Ambassador enables the reader to feel a genuiness and reliability in the account.

OPERATION CICERO by L. C. Moyzisch (Coward-McCann, Inc., 209 pages) A story of spying. The author, a German attache at Ankara, Turkey, relates his affair in espionage with the valet of the British Ambassador during World War II. The Germans, to the tune of over a million dollars, received British "most secret" documents, which, because of rivalries, were allowed to go unheeded. Several surprise documents are in this inside story.

College Center Announces Spring Quarter Schedules

An expanded course of instruction, made possible in part by enrollment of military personnel, has been announced for Spring Quarter at the Columbus Center of the University of Georgia.

Director Rembert C. Houser said that the Center will begin its Spring quarter on March 28 with five courses never taught here, before, in addition to courses normally scheduled.

He also announced that registration for the next quarter will be held March 24 and 25 in the Center's office in the Jordan Vocational high school building in Columbus.

"Attendance at the Center of personnel of Fort Benning particularly, and, in the past, Lawson Air Base," Mr. Houser said, "Has been largely responsible for this enrollment increase."

A continued rise in the enrollment figure, he said, will continue to be reflected in the schedule offerings which the Center is able to make to its students, especially those in the military.

He listed the new courses as English E-310, advanced grammar; Economics E-312, elementary economic statistics; Business Administration E-356, labor problems; Business Administration E-431, investments, and Business Administration E - 344, second quarter, typing.

A beginning course in journalism will be taught for the first time since the Center opened in September, 1947.

In addition to those courses, two which were offered Winter Quarter for the first time and which proved very popular will be scheduled again, Mr. Houser said.

These are the first quarter typing and Education 103, a guidance course. The latter is designed especially for beginning college students. Demand for it was so great Winter quarter that it is being scheduled for both the first and second periods Spring quarter, the director said.

Mr. Houser emphasized that the schedule contains courses designed especially for beginning college students as well as those for more advanced students, especially in Business Administration and Economics.

Students entering the University of Georgia for the first time must have, when they register, a transcript of their former college or high school work.

Each course costs $20 except mathematics 96, which costs $12, and all of them will meet each Monday, Wednesday and Friday night in the Jordan building.

The office will be open for registration from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on March 24 and 25. All books and supplies may be purchased at that time in the office.

The entire schedule follows:

First period, 6:20 p.m. to 7:45 p.m.:

Central Clearance Unit Simplifies Benning Exit

The Central Clearance Branch of the Infantry Center Personal Services division provides a time-saving and convenient service for officers clearing the post on permanent change of station orders.

The branch is headed by Mrs. Mary Dinsmore, chief of the billeting, processing and clearance branch. The office is located in Room 15, The Infantry Center Annex.

By utilizing the service of this branch, officers may cut the number of calls for clearance to a minimum, or to four or three. Maj. Joel A. Chapman, head of the personal services division of the Adjutant General section, said that officers must call personally at the Finance Office and in most cases, the Main Officer's Mess.

"However," he added, "these two calls, and one at the central clearance branch, in most cases will be all the calls necessary for clearance."

At the central clearance branch, telephone clearance is made for individuals leaving the post permanently. Mrs. Dinsmore reported that there are "about 10" different agencies that must be called for individual clearance.

"These include the post library, academic library, security control, childrens' schools (if applicable), central post fund, engineer services office, main officers' mess, quartermaster, signal, and bachelor officers' quarters (if applicable)," Mrs. Dinsmore explained.

Officers clearing the post may turn in all privilege cards, post vehicle tags, drivers licenses and hunting or fishing licenses at the central clearance branch, which then distributes these to the proper agency.

Mrs. Dinsmore said that when large groups of officers are clearing the post at once, such as when student officer classes graduate, rosters are sent to the agencies for clearance.

"That speeds things up quite a bit," Mrs. Dinsmore said, "and not only aids the officers, but the agencies too. It's much easier for them to check names off a roster than to have two or three hundred people walking in and out."

VA Explains Dividend Lag

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Reasons why the second special 1951 NSLI dividend to servicemen is lagging were outlined to Congress recently by VA Administrator Carl R. Gray Jr.

In a letter to Rep. Porter Hardy Jr., (D) of Virginia, chairman of a congressional subcommittee operations, Mr. Gray said that 1,186,900 dividend checks have been sent out or are currently on their way to servicemen. That leaves 1,313,000 yet to be processed.

The average rate of processing, according to Mr. Gray, is 13,000 a day or 65,000 weekly. If all the personnel in the NSLI Premium Accounts Section could be utilized, the weekly total could be raised to 75,000, but other work relating to Public Law 23 (Servicemen's Free Insurance) must be taken care of as well.

At this rate the dividends could all be sent out by the end of July. The target date for completion formerly was April.

Former PIO Gets Canal Zone Orders

Lt. Col. Robert E. Whitus, First Student Brigade S-4 and former Infantry Center Public Information Officer, will leave Fort Benning this month for an assignment in the Canal Zone.

Colonel Whitus joined the National Guard in 1931 and began active duty in 1940. During World War II he served in the European theater with the 100th Infantry and 12th Armored Divisions.

He was recalled to active duty in 1946 and assigned to the XXIV Corps in Seoul, Korea. He returned to the U.S. as a National Guard instructor in Alabama from 1949 to 1950.

Solon Committee Begins Hearing On Reserve Act

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Senate Armed Services Committee, having reported the Pay Bill, now turns its attention to the Armed Forces Reserve Act.

Open hearings are scheduled to begin soon on the measure that passed the House of Representatives late in 1951. Sometimes called the "Reservists Bill of Rights," the bill would set up three categories of reserves: Ready, Standby and Retired.

Members of the Ready Reserve could be called into active service during a national emergency declared by the President. Standby reservists, however, could only be called into Service during an emergency declared by Congress. Those in retired status would not be recalled involuntarily until qualified men from the other categories had been called.

Two Food School Students Lead Lives As Near Twins

Two students in the Third Army Area Food Service School have been "almost twins" all their life, even though there's 11 months difference in the two brother's ages.

They are Pfc. Bennie D. Hicks and Pfc. Billie D. Hicks. The story of their closely parralleled lives came to light when school officials were trying to choose a soldier of the week. There was only two percentage points difference in the two brothers overall scores.

"We've always dressed alike, we married sisters, worked in the same place, own the same make, model and color automobiles, and we enlisted in the Air Force together," Billie said.

"Ever since we were small kids, our parents always bought two of everything just alike, and it's been that way all our lives."

To carry the parallel a little farther, the boys married sisters. Billie Married on Bennie's birthday, and Bennie married on Billie's birthday. The two brothers and their wives live in the same house in Columbus.

The only major difference between the two is that Bennie has his own home in West Plains, Mo., while Billie doesn't.

"However," says Billie, "it wouldn't be that way if we hadn't joined the Air Force. I bought a lot next door to Bennie just before we came in, and I'm going to build as soon as we get out."

ACAPULCO POLKA (Xavier Cugat and orchestra on Mercury). If you can imagine a Latin-American polka, then you already have an idea of what this recording sounds like. It could easily be a Mambo, yet enough of a polka beat is included to make this one of Cugat's most unique recordings.

The reverse side, "Hillbilly Mambo Band," is as unique as "Acapulco Polka". In this arrangement, Maestro Cugat combines authentic hillbilly music with a definite Mambo beat, with excellent results. It seems that some guy wants to hear hillbilly music, while his girl-friend likes la Mambo. So they combine the two, and presto—"Hillbilly Mambo Band." Neither of these sides are good for dancing, but they make mighty good listening.

A GUY IS A GUY (Doris Day, Paul Weston orchestra on Columbia). A song hit of the 1770's gets a 1952 face lifting by pert Columbia singing star Doris Day. "A Guy Is A Guy," the 20th Century version, is based on an old and slightly rakish ballad dating back to the Boston Tea Party era. The early American favorite was rediscovered by Oscar Brand, a leading contemporary guitar - playing troubadour, and adapted for present-day listeners.

Brand wrote a sprightly set of lyrics for the tune, featured it at most of his concert appearances. Doris Day sings with charm and humor about one fast-moving courtship. "A guy is a guy," she philosophizes, "wherever he may be," then proceeds to describe appropriate behavior for "a good girl." Reverse side is "Who Who Who," a new tune. This is a "must" record for Doris Day fans.

BABY DOLL (Ella Fitzgerald, Sy Oliver orchestra on Decca). The Ella Fitzgerald record buyer doesn't need any prompting to visit his favorite record store when a new Fitzgerald platter is released, but for those who have heard little of the talented songstress, this is a reminder to be sure and hear this waxing.

It is a new tune done in a danceable and listenable style by the fine orchestra of Sy Oliver, and, of course, smooth-voiced Ella Fitzgerald. Reverse side is "Lady Bug," a novelty tune not too well suited for dancing, but still high in arrangement quality.

MOANIN' LOW (Harry James orchestra on Columbia). Two dazzling trumpet solo displays this week from Harry James. One is the soulful oldie, "Moanin' Low," written in 1929 by Howard Dietz and Ralph Rainger for "The Little Show," a review of that era. Libby Holman sang the song while Clifton Webb danced in that production. James' rendition has much of the "torchy" quality of that famous Holman blues vocal.

Reverse side is "The Brave Bulls," the traditional theme played in the bull fight ring as the matador and his entourage enter the arena. Moviegoers heard this same music in the recent epic, "The Brave Bulls." Harry James fans can't go wrong on this platter.

OC Unit Makes Try At Muscle Building

Candidates in the 14th Officer Candidate Company will soon be sprouting muscles worthy of Charles Atlas, if tactical officers Lt. G. Carlson and Lt. C. Jones have their way.

The two officers have erected chin-up bars at the entrance to the mess hall, and each man will have to chin himself before entering to eat. The officers said the starting requirement will be only three chin-ups, but this number will be increased from time to time.

Red Cross Stands Ready To Help in Emergencies

(Editor's Note: It is the policy of the American Red Cross in cases of this type, to withhold the names and addresses of those concerned. Taken from the files of the Fort Benning Red Cross office this incident should help to bring this vital serviceman's service closer to us.)

One day last November, a soldier went to the post Red Cross office with a personal problem that obviously meant very much to him.

It appeared that some time before, he and a buddy had made a sort of pact on a Korean battlefield. The agreement was that if anything happened to the other the survivor would notify the family of the particulars.

On that same day, the soldiers' buddy was killed. The soldier's problem was that he had lost his address book and was unable to contact the mother.

"Can you help me", he asked the Red Cross.

that the mother lived in New Jersey, not far from the small town of Harrison, the Red Cross promised to give what assistance they could.

A telegram was dispatched to the Newark, N. J. chapter giving the deceased serviceman's name and the information they knew pertaining to his mother.

Two weeks later the Newark chapter sent back the message that the mother had been located in Kearney, N. J.

The Fort Benning Red Cross chapter, in turn notified the soldier who immediately contacted her and made good his promise.

MACHINE USED IN REMEDIAL READING COURSE HERE
Cpl. Chester Holloway, Gets His Eyes Tested

Remedial Reading Course Increases Anyones Speed

A remedial reading course designed to increase reading speed of anyone from a college professor to a high school student will begin soon at the Education Center here.

Under the direction of Capt. Floyd S. Chadwick and 1st Lt. Stuart G. Robson, the course has three aims: to increase the rate of silent reading, improve comprehension and reduce eye fatigue.

"We can handle about 40 people per class," Capt. Chadwick said, "and we hope to have a minimum instruction of 20 hours for each student.

"This is not really a course in the true sense of the word," he continued. "It's more like organized practice. We have four machines that are the backbone of the course. One tests the eyes, the second photographs eye movement during reading, the third controls the rate of reading, and the fourth adds in rapid recognition."

At other places where the program has been operating, eye trouble that was completely unsuspected has showed up, Capt. Chadwick reported.

"Many people can see well, but still have a slight muscular imbalance in the eyes that tends to make them tire easily when reading," Lt. Robson pointed out.

Eye Camera

"That's one reason we use the opthalmograph, or eye camera," he said. "It photographs eye movements while reading, and any irregularity shows up."

Both good and poor readers will be able to increase their reading speed and comprehension, according to Capt. Chadwick. In tests conducted at Fort Knox, Ky., he said, an advanced class at the Armored School had an average reading rate of 270 words per minute. After practicing with the remedial reading machines, the class improved its averge speed to 494 words per minute, an 83 per cent increase.

At the same time class speed was improving, so was comprehension, showing a gain from 70 to 78 per cent. One officer increased his speed to a phenomenal 3,400 words per minute for 100 per cent comprehension on the test given.

"The main way in which we help people improve their reading is to point out their bad habits and help to correct them. That's the purpose of these machines," he continued. "Some common habits include vocalization, regression and inability to see more than one or two letters at a glance, or, as we term it, a fixation," he declared.

Vocalization

"Vocalization is a habit many of us carry. While reading silently, we mentally speak the words. This is bound to slow a reader down, because most people talk or read aloud at about 250 words per minute," Capt. Chadwick pointed out.

"Regression is the habit of glancing back when reading. This may be due to many causes, but can usually be corrected." A good reader may have about 12 fixations for 50 words. That means his span of recognition is almost three words per fixation. A poor reader may have up to 65 or more fixations per 50 words.

Church Director Visits Benning

Howard Rose, director of the young people's department of the Free Methodist Church of North America, visited Fort Benning March 5 to meet with members of his denomination stationed here.

Mr. Rose, as head of his church's servicemen's department, frequently visits army, navy and Air Force installations in the First and Third Army areas. His headquarters is at Winona Lake, Ind.

"We try to keep a roster of members of the Free Methodist Church in uniform, but we often find these out of date due to military commitments upon arriving at a post," he said. His current tour has taken him to Camp Gordon, Ga., and from here he will go to Fort Knox, Ky., and Fort Campbell, Ky.

"By keeping in close contact with servicemen," Mr. Rose said, "We make them feel a little closer to home. It always helps to know you're not forgotten by those you left behind."

Benning Soldiers Overlook Opportunity to Earn Money

Fort Benning soldiers are overlooking an opportunity to make some easy money.

Soldiers' Deposits, Army-wide in scope, pays interest at the rate of four per cent per year.

Open to all enlisted personnel in the Army, Soldier's Deposits have no limit to the amount of money that may be credited to an account. Minimum deposits, however, are limited to five dollars. The maximum must not exceed accrued pay and allowances for a three months period. Exceptions to this may be made however, providing a man can show proof of payments in excess of that amount. In cases of this type, unit commanders must approve the deposits.

Withdrawals may be made upon discharge. The only time that the soldiers stands a chance to lose his investment is in the case of proven desertion, and if the depositor is discharged for that reason.

Money deposited in the savings program may not be withdrawn to pay debts nor is it subject to withdrawal by the government in cases of indebtedness to the Army.

In cases of emergency that are approved by the unit commanders the depositor may make withdrawals.

Persons who are on indefinite enlistments may make withdrawals every three years.

Accounts are opened through unit personnel officers, who also handle the deposits. When money is deposited, the unit personnel officer, takes the deposit, with the book that is furnished to the man for keeping accounts, to the post finance office. The personnel officer turns the money over to the finance officer, who signs the deposit book as does the personnel officer. The book with deposit entered and endorsed by the two officers, is then returned to the soldier.

The Fort Benning Finance Office Administrative Officer, Lt. L. H. Moore is ending the program says that it is "Probably the best savings system to be found for persons who wish to deposit money providing they foresee no immediate need for it."

The Fort Benning Little Theater Group tape-recorded its recent production of "Over 21" for Fort Benning's WFBS last week, and with good results.

The actors cast for the play enacted before the microphones in the PIO-TIC recording studio with as much ease as they exhibited when the play was performed in the Main Theater.

The taping for patients in the Fort Benning U. S. Army hospital who were unable to attend the showings in the Main Theater.

One of Fort Benning's most talented MUSICIANS returns to "Benning In Review" (WRBL 6:15 to 6:30 p.m. Saturday) this week. The talented musician is Sgt. Troy McCall, Section II, ASU Provisional Group, one of the most versatile pianist ever to appear on the program.

Sergeant McCall worked out in the PIO-TIC recording studio last Saturday morning with several other talented Benningites, and you'll probably be hearing the results in the coming weeks.

A nostalgic but authoritative statement on the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York, by Col. Wilcott K. Dudley, Director, Communications Department, The Infantry School, was included in "Benning In Review" last week.

The colonel pointed out that all the major railroad lines in the U. S. were originally blueprinted by West Point trained officers, and that the majority of U. S. Army leaders of the past were once a part of the "long, grey line."

The Radio Branch, PIO-TIC, this week heard from Cpl. Ken Bloom, Radio Branch, PIO, Camp Cooke, California. The corporal says their radio branch is quite similar to the Fort Benning section, and that they regularly produce two 15 minute and one 30 minute programs a week.

West Coast radio listeners might be interested in knowing that Pvt. Rick Comino, known as Rick Conway in such West Coast shows as "Darrow Of The Diamond X," is also a part of the Camp Cooke PIO Radio Branch.

The 122nd Army Band, the Pvt. DAVE JOHNSON COMBO, and Pvt. Larry Gordon were featured on "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WGBA Noon Sunday) last week in a salute to the American Red Cross from the men and women of Fort Benning.

This was the second time that the American Red Cross was the topic of discussion on the "Fort Benning Feature Page," the earlier program being aired from WGBA the Sunday before.

Fort Benning's 122nd Army Band will be heard soon in a band program produced for the American Red Cross.

The band was recorded a few days ago in Theater No. 2, under the direction of CWO W. R. Trembath.

No slot has been yet set for airing this program, but you will be advised when the station and date has been set.

Continuing a policy of airing the "Voices of people who made the Fort Benning news," "Benning News Parade" (WDAK 5:30 to 5:45 p.m. Saturdays) last week included six of the week's most interesting Fort Benning people.

If a Fort Benning person is in the news, you can bet "Benning News Parade" will have that person on the Saturday afternoon round-up of the weeks news at Fort Benning.

Hour-Long Tape Helps Cement Latin Relations

The command conference audience in Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Brigade, witnessed a novel training aid demonstrating the neighborliness between the U.S. and South American countries.

The hour-long conference included a tape recording of four student officers from republics in South America. The officers, all students at The Infantry School, cited examples of cooperation and defense problems shared by Latin Americans and the U.S.

Speakers on the panel included Lt. Col. Enrique Paris of Colombia, Capt. Alfonso Perez of Mexico, Maj. Hugo Andrade Abreu of Brazil and Maj. Jose Velasquez of El Salvador.

It was pointed out that Colombian battalion serving in Korea received its baptism of fire while serving under Col. Glnes Perez, Brigade executive officer, who was formerly commander of the 21st Infantry Regiment in Korea. The Colombians were attached to his regiment at that time.

All four officers elaborated on the warm diplomatic friendliness existing between their countries and the U.S., and the interdependence of Latin America and the U.S. in crystallizing plans for Western Hemispheric Defense.

Fort Benning completed its most successful week of competitive pistol shooting last Sunday with the finals of the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's Winter Registered Tournament and selection of the 1952 United States Army Pistol Team.

M-Sgt. Joe Benner, Arkansas-born world champion won 12 of 17 matches to post a pleasing 2621x2700 for grand aggregate honors over 60 other prominent shooters in the Winter tourney.

The military and civilian marksmen came from 12 states and the Canal Zone.

Second place in grand aggregate went to Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, of Fort Sill, Okla., with 2598. Louis Martin of Nashville, Tenn., won expert grand aggregate with 2527. M-Sgt. Herb Roberts, of Benning, had 2331 for sharpshooter grand aggregate and D. W. Lenahan, of Dunwoody, Ga., 2204 for marksman grand aggregate.

Benner and Sharpe were shooters named Saturday to the All-Army Pistol Team by Col. Ferry D. Swindler, captain, who has his squad firing in the National Mid-Winter Championships this week in Tampa, Fla. (Early results were too late for The Bayonet.)

M-Sgt. Leo Vause, of Fort Bragg, Capt. Forest Smith, of Fort Riley, Benner and Sharpe fired as the All-Army team which dethroned Fort Benning for the Winter tourney team title. They scored 1149.

Post Second

The post team which finished second with 1088 was composed of Maj. Warren P. Davis, Capt. Fred Keifer ,Capt. Earl Aldridge and M-Sgt. Russell Stow.

Other Fort Benning shooters competing were M. M. Muskat, Robert Knight, Bob Van Knetten, J. J. Zelinsky, C. F. McKee, James Duke, Alcok MacDonald, Richard Duane, J. J. Williams, J. L. Maloney, Allen Vogrind and Charles Root.

The All-Army pistol team is again headed by Benner. Two Fort Benning shooters — Capt. Fred Keifer and WO Robert Knight.

A-A Team

Other members are Lt. Col. Sharpe, WO Oscar Weinmeister, Fort Knox, Ky., Capt. Ben Curtis and M-Sgt. Leo Vause, of Fort Bragg, N. C., Lt. Lynn Moore, of Fort Sam Houston, Tex., Capt. Forest Smith, of Fort Riley, Kans., and Maj. Ellis Lea, of Fort Ord, Calif.

After the Tampa competition, regarded as the nation's second most important pistol meet, the team will disband when practice begins for the 1952 national championships at Jacksonville, Fla.

Lt. Col. Sharpe prevented Benner from sweeping the field winter tourney by winning center fire aggregate honors with an 875-900 total Sunday.

Benner was second in that with 868, but he had already won enough firsts to thoroughly prove his mastery.

He added .22-cal aggregate honors Sunday morning with 891 points out of a possible 900, after winning the .45 cal. aggregate Saturday with an 882x900.

The three-times national champion had perfect 200 scores in timed fire matches for both .22 and .38-cal. weapons. He had a 199 in the .22 rapid fire match.

Largest out of town delegation was from Atlanta which had eleven shooters present including four women.

Post's Teams, Stars Fight On Outside

Fort Benning athletes are to soon will be making their mark in outside sports competition. Here are the latest developments.

Cpl. Gardner Smith, from the Airborne Battalion of First Student Regiment, tied for ninth place Sunday in the National Giant Slalom at Salts, Utah. Smith's time for the treacherous course down the precipitous flank of Peruvian Ridge was 1:26.8.

This compared with the 1:21.4 time turned in by winner Gale Spence, of Aspen, Colo. Defending champion Ernie McCullough took a spill on the near vertical section of the wildcat run and wound up 25th.

Third Student Regiment, champions apparent of the Fort Benning Basketball League, will risk their unbeaten record against a crack Delta Air Lines quintet in City Auditorium in Atlanta Sunday, March 23.

The game will be a preliminary for a meeting between the famed Harlem Globe Trotters and the Hawaiian Surf Club Ambassadors from Honolulu.

With nearly 1,000 miles of practice in the last couple of weeks under their belts, Dick Ellis and Lionel Flinn, Fort Benning's crack distance running duet, shove off tomorrow for the 12-mile White Horse Road Race in which they will compete Sunday in Baltimore.

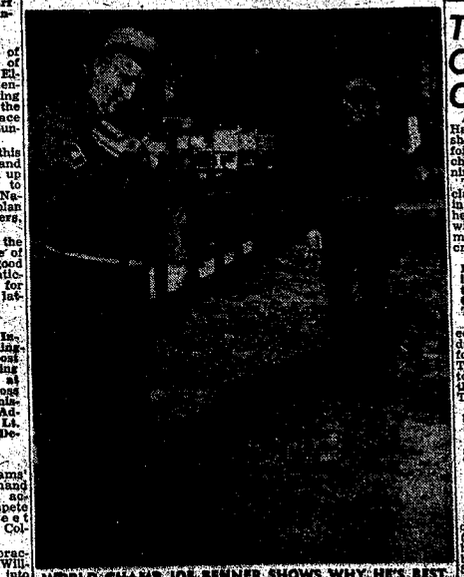
Ellis finished eighth in this event two years ago. He and Flinn are both hoping to wind up among the top five Sunday to prove their readiness for the National Marathon which they plan to enter May 13 at Yonkers, N. Y.

The latter event is over the regulation marathon distance of 26 and a quarter miles and good results there would automatically qualify them for tryouts for the 1952 U. S. Olympic team later this spring.

Three teams from The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League will represent the post in the Georgia State Bowling Championships March 23 at Savannah. They are Maj. Ross Haecker's Hospital Administrators, Capt. G. C. Fee's Advance Class No. Two, and Lt. Col. Jesse Wheeler's Staff Department No. One.

Coach Lawrence Williams' Combat Training Command track and field squad has accepted an invitation to compete in a regional collegiate meet March 22 at Florida A. & M. College in Tallahassee.

The CTC squad has been practicing since January and Williams wants to get them into competition before they go state from over training.



WORLD CHAMP JOE BENNER SHOWS WHY HE'S BEST
Aims Through Mirror To Split Card Held By Tom Sharpe

Third Seeks Clincher As Cage Closes

A flurry of action tonight at Harmony Church Field House should make the obvious official for Third Student Regiment as champions of the 1952 Fort Benning Basketball League.

The Generals meet an outclassed ASU Provisional Group in the second game of a double-header in which they could get win 17 against no losses and mathematically wrap up the crown.

Second place First Student Regiment, the only remaining first place contender, has the unhappy task of meeting Combat Training Command Team One in tonight's opener.

The Navy Commanders bumped off 508th Airborne, 68-56, Monday night and set themselves up for a possible third place finish. The key to that is win for them tonight and Monday night when they turn on their relatives, CTC Team Two.

If they do that and 508th can beat Provisional Medical Group tomorrow night, the season ends with the Red Devils and Commanders tied for third. That's the only remaining suspense in the loop with the probable final finish reflected in the standings printed on these pages.

The regular season ends Monday night, but a postponed game (ASU, First SR) and one moved back for benefit of Red Cross benefit next Sunday night (First SR vs. Third SR) will keep the embers smouldering for an extra few days.

Company C Team Cops Softball Victory

Company C defeated Headquarters Company, 7-4 last week in a First Transportation Battalion softball game. The game was a scoreless tie going into the fifth frame. Company C scored all seven runs the last two innings. Headquarters Company's rally fell short after four runs were scored in the last frame.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

TARGET SHOOTERS are nice people. The efficiency and grace with which last weekend's Winter tournament was run off is seldom exhibited so clearly in other sports. One incident in particular is worth reporting.

Fort Benning, the defending team champion for the second annual event, could have had its second straight title by saying a word. But what they and other tourney people did say was that they wanted everybody possible to compete.

So, Col. Perry Swindler, who had been holding back his All-Army team in deference to the Benning champs, reluctantly entered his top quartet which, of course, promptly walked off with the team trophy.

KEY TO the success of any shooting competition are the crews which service the range. Which is why I herewith extend pats on the back to these hearties who had nary a hitch last weekend: Maj. Ken Groom, Capt. James Allgood, Capt. Ray Montgomery, Lt. Rufus Brock, Lt. William Brandage, Lt. Joe Dent, Sfc. James Ramsey, Sfc. Robert Turner, Sgt. Olva Howard, Sgt. Ray Vick, Sgt. Rissey Wright, Cpl. Harry McLeighton, Cpl. John Umberger and Pfc. James Dishong.

JOE BENNER, the world's champ at pistol shooting, gave away a trade secret to photographer Nick Acquilano who lensed the event for The Bayonet. Joe revealed that the "cigarette" which trick shot artists shoot out of the mouth of an assistant is really a piece of chalk. The gimmick, explains Joe, is to hit the chalk on the outer end which causes it to break off clean in front of the assistant's teeth, looking like a close shave indeed. What impresses me, however, is how blandly Joe mentions "hitting the outer end" — just like that, and I know some guys who couldn't hit the broad side of a barn from the inside.

ORDINARILY I don't like to lend the credence of print to fish stories, but Capt. Craig Scott has given me a photograph to back up this one. Lt. Milton Kitchens, a CTC personnel office, was fishing Mobley's Pond Sunday. During the middle of his backstroke rod and reel jerked and disappeared from his hand. He gave chase through the brush, scooped up the reel, drew in the line and had himself a cute baby fox, neatly gigged through the fur of his neck. I suppose I could pun that Kitchens probably had fox and bagels for dinner last night.

MY FAVORITE sports official, Maj. Jack Faubion, will not be on hand during the baseball season, not as an arbiter at least. The former All-American honorable mention Oklahoma A & M. fullback did umpire at one time. It was in a game at Stillwater that working on the grass just behind the mound, he got his skull in the path of a peg from third to first. The crowd gasped in awe. The players rushed to his aid. Faubion got up and looked wonderingly all the way to the right field fence to which the ball had rolled after bouncing off his solid cranium. The only damage was to his pride.

AAU RULES insist that simon pure punchers use their correct handle and that's why you'll probably see Sylvester Kenneth Vincent Sulzman fight for 508th Airborne on Tuesday night's boxing card at Briant Wells. If it's all the same to you (and it is to Sulzman and me), he will be listed in the paper as Kenny. That's the name he used when I saw him win the Golden Gloves featherweight title in Miami in 1948. I remember at the beginning that they wanted to bar him from the tourney because he was only 15, but his fists convinced them otherwise. He fought there as Kenny Sulzman, but it was an honest mistake because he never knew his correct tag until the Army made him dig up old personal papers.

I HAVE discovered a trackman who never ran his big meet and thus retired unbeaten and untried. Lt. Col. John Lavin, Infantry School Detachment, had trained himself to a thin edge to run the mile for Western Maryland in the Greek Terrors biggest meet of the year. The race was announced as being cancelled when rival runners hadn't arrived by starting time and Lavin made for the hot dog and soda pop stand to replenish the food supply he had neglected that morning because of training. Then the rivals arrived and the mile was re-scheduled. Our hero, bursting with palatable delicacies, never made the starting line.

THE ONLY thing about track which has impressed me thus far is the tremendous amount of ground to be covered by the candidates from most units . . . The Third Army Championships, to which we want to be a proud host team, are less than two months away . . . The additional nine holes of the Fort Benning Country Club will be completed in early September, according to M-Sgt. Lester Lawrence, in charge of the project . . . Will Frank Spaniel and Adam Zubaty be named co-coaches of the CTC baseball team now that Maj. Harold Kopp is slated for overseas? . . . Gen. Mark Clark's Army Field Forces sent Sgt. John Moellering here last weekend to cover activities of the All-Army Pistol Team in the Benning tournament.

508th Jumps Ring Lead; 16 Bouts More Tuesday

The seventh in the weekly series of Fort Benning championship boxing matches with 16 bouts on-tap is set for 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at Briant Wells Field House.

Paced by TKO wins from lightweight Jesse Flores and light welter Ray Leutz, the 508th Airborne had a commanding lead in the Fort Benning championship boxing series following last night's knockout-studded 14-bout card at Briant Wells Field House.

The Red Devil warriors have scored 71 points on six cards with seven remaining.

Area Service Unit Provisional Group, defending team champion, and Combat Training Command are tied for second with 60. CTC led last night's action by picking up 13 points.

First Student Regiment, which had no fighters on last night's card, dropped to third with 55 points. Third Student Regiment, Infantry School Detachment and Provisional Medical Group each have four points and Second Student Regiment none.

508th Wins Bibb Cage Title, But---

Perhaps proving you can't have your cake and eat it, too, 508th Airborne's busy Red Devils breezed through the Bibb Invitational tournament last week in Columbus, but throughly exhausted they lost a key Fort Benning Basketball League game.

Coach Henry Obowski's crew made three appearance in the Bibb tourney last week and three more in the Benning loop. They won all save the last Monday night when they were dumped by CTC Team One, 68-56.

The latter loss shaved their third place margin to a half game and they've got a dogfight on their hands to hold that slot in their remaining action.

Sparked by Gary Mattocks' 23 points the 508th bashed Metcalf's Sport Shop, 66-57, for the Bibb championship last Saturday nigh at Comer Auditorium in Columbus.

They reached the finals by downing the Phenix City Police, 66-54. Earlier they had polished off the "C" Club, 66-52, and the Boys Club, 53-46. Mattocks, Dick Sartar and Larry Ivan led the scoring in these.

Checkerboard King To Play At YMCA

William F. Ryan of Buffalo, N. Y., often called the King of the Checkerboard, will appear at the 11th street Armed Services YMCA, Monday, March 17.

Sponsored by the YMCA, this will be a return engagement for the checker player. "The Great Ryan, as he is often called, has played and won more checker matches and tournaments than any other master of the game," says Floyd Francisco, executive secretary of the YMCA.

Another apparent oddity is ASU's George Allen being rated over 508th's Nori Kawasaki who won a split decision from Allen a week ago.

Allen, defending Third Army bantam king, lost the fight, however, on the strength of a single knockdown scored by Nori, who otherwise was pasted severely in the last two rounds. They'll clash in a rematch and Allen will be a decided favorite.

Rating the boys is getting to be a cute trick with some of them so fickle in weight that they can jump from one bracket to another to suit their own purposes. ASU's Freeman Thatcher and CTC's Frank Alton have been boosted to middleweight, CTC's Charlie Cummings and First S.R.'s Len James to light welter.

In board action last week, Kawasaki and PMG's Freddy Wint were boosted to class one and 508th Raymond Kiley and Third S.R.'s Jimmy Shimabuku to class two.

CTC One In Upset; Two Forfeits

The Fort Benning Basketball League, lovable old thing that it has been, refused to accept old age complacently and in its next to last round this past week came up with a whopping first division upset and two unprecedented forcit games.

Combat Training Command Team One moved within a half game of the 508th Airborne in third place when they dumped the Red Devils, 68-56, Monday night, setting the stage for those two to battle to the wire.

ASU Provisional Group picked up a 2-0 forfeit from Second Student Regiment when Raider Coach Lewis Grizzard caught Rocket Mentor Morrow with his officers showing.

A loop rule requires that one more than half of all players on a team in action at all times will be enlisted men. Morrow's tough luck is that his better players just happen to be commissioned and in the excitement of combat he had three bouncing about the boards.

Combat Training Command Team Two picked up a victory which moved them up from ninth to eighth place when officials Jack Fashion and Carter Wolf sent the entire Infantry School Detachment to premature showers following a scuffle between the two teams with seven seconds to go.

CTC-Two would have won that one anyway. They were leading 77-72 when it was ended. ASU, on the other hand, had been written off as an 89-73 loser to Second Student Regiment, Coach Grizzard's protest was filed and allowed the next day.

The superior speed of CTC One ran the 508th into the boards. They netted only one more field goal than the Red Devils, but had a 428 shooting accuracy against a .389 figure for the losers.

CTC had period advantages of 16-10, 36-25, and 59-39. The 508th made a strong bid in the second quarter, but was never closer than six points in the last half. Big Sylvester Bruton, who has threatened all season to blossom into stardom, finally made it as he worked the boards perfectly for 23 points, high for CTC and the game.

It was CTC's second win of the week. They downed Provisional Medical Group, 67-51 last Thursday. The 508th played three last week, winning the other two and this was only their second loss in their last 11 games.

The smooth working 508th had little trouble last week in downing CTC Two, 77-64, and Lawson Field, 68-51. Larry Ivan, Dick

IT'S EASY . . . If you know how, CTC Team Two's daring young man (without trapeze) is Joe Connors who lays up two points in the firehouse style which has made him one of league's top scorers despite playing with second division team. Teammate Orrie Brown waits for unlikely rebound.

Sartar and Gary Mattocks sparked their action.

First, Third Put Lock On Top Finishes

Third Student Regiment's high class Generals were mathematically assured of no worse than a tie for the Fort Benning Basketball League championship last week after they won two games in handy style.

Coach Bill Hacker's quint clipped Lawson Field, 89-59, last Wednesday and then hopped Provisional Medical Group, 88-52, Monday night.

Brue Mahon scored 22 as the Generals used all of their players in the win over the Flyers. Center Bill Gilligham hooped 22 for high point honors in the latter game.

Mahon's 18 against PMG reduced his season's average by a couple fractions of a point and thus practically wiped out his hopes of being the loop's top individual scorer. Benny (The Bomber) Brown, of CTC, went into his last three games with a 23.4 per game average.

First Student Regiment won a pair by a margin of seven points last week to place a strong lien on second place. They clipped a good Infantry School Detachment, 67-63, and then nipped Second Student Regiment, 58-53.

Airborne Cops Playoff Spot In Keg League

Maj. Jean Hollstein's Airborne Department last week reached The Infantry Center Officers Bowling League playoffs by clinching second place in the first section.

The second section race was narrowed to three teams. They are Lt. Arthur Rafferty's Attack Group, Lt. Richard Crowson's First Battalion team from 30th Infantry and Capt. David Gaumer's Communications Department.

Attack Group is assured of a playoff berth.

Maj. Kermit Blaney, of AEC Department, had the week's top series of 592 which included two games of 208 each, third best among individual scores. High single game of 217 was rolled by Capt. LeRoy Sidfrid.

Fannin, Kopp On Overseas Orders

Two of Fort Benning's top sports personalities — Capt. Bill Fannin and Maj. Harold Kopp — have received overseas orders and will leave the post in early April for EUCOM assignment.

Capt. Fannin is The Infantry Center sports officer and has been associated with post athletics for 10 years, interrupted by two previous overseas tours.

Maj. Kopp, on leave of absence as head football coach at Rhode Island State College, in the last year has turned out the post's two highest scoring outfits in football and basketball.

The spectacular scoring punch of his second-place Commanders in last fall's sensation football league will long be remembered. His fire-horse basketball team, with the loop's top individual scorer, apparently will finish fourth in the current cage league.

Fannin has been the workhorse behind Benning's highly successful sports program of the past year. He enlisted here as a private in 1924 and has coached post boxing, basketball, wrestling, weight lifting and volleyball teams.

In his early days here, he was labor foreman on such sports landmarks as soldier built Doughboy Stadium, Russ Pool, the golf course and main post bowling alleys. He spent 1944 and 1945 in Britain and France organizing sports and recreational activities for soldiers returning from the front. He served in the Pacific Theater in 1949.

Two of his proudest accomplishments are the late grid season, which attracted a record 186,000 fans, and the post boxing teams he coached to six Southeastern Golden Gloves titles in eight years. Fannin's 1940 basketball team won the Georgia state amateur hoop title.

NOT SO BLIND . . . Three future Benning umpires, Carl Cammauf, John Evarts and Bob Ellis, will have little trouble this spring if they heed the advice of TIC sports office's Bill DeLong, (left), currently conducting his annual man-in-blue school. Some 15 men will complete the two weeks' school Friday. Future arbitors not pictured are Jim Quinn, Bob Bartlett, Richard Russell, Lemuel Aycoc, Ed Turbiak, Wilson Santalucia, Grady Tillery, Virgil Degenstein, George Hodgkinson, Curtis Ford, Francis Higgins, Tom Graves and Gerald Rushton.

Track Teams Open Work With Meet Month Away

Cinder work broke into full bloom all around the post this week with the annual Fort Benning Track and Field Championships April 17-18 just a month away.

The ASU Provisional Group track and field meet yesterday was set for April 10-11 at Doughboy Stadium to decide the Raider entrants in the post meet, according to Coach Lewis Grizzard.

Basketball whiz Truman Medders, who will coach the Infantry School Detachment thinclads, reported nearly 20 candidates working out while Second Student Regiment supplied the names of six men they hope will be strong contenders for individual honors.

The Combat Training Command squad, which will be one of the post favorites because of their long pre-season practice which opened nearly a month ago, continues to drill with at leat four outstanding individual contenders reported by Coach Lawrence Williams. ASU units will be boiled down to four teams for the Raider meet. Team one includes Hq. and Hq. Detachment, Section One, M.P. Detachment, Section One, and the 300th Criminal Investigation Detachments.

The second team will be composed of Hq. and Hq. Detachment, Section Two, 666th Transportation Truck Co., M.P. Detachment, Section Two, and the 534th Signal Construction Co. Team three will come from the First Transportation Battalion, and the fourth squad will include 27th Transportation Car Co., Third Army Area Food Service School, 148th Transportation Truck Co., 623rd Quartermaster Tire Repair Detachment.

Among the ISD sprinters drilling, according to Medders, who is a hurdler, are James Klein, John Johnson, Joe Martin, Calvin Gray, Garrett Perkins, Charlie DeAngelis, Manual Bustos, Anthony Balestrisri, Bill Bordingham and Paul Negrelli.

Others are Burten Krick, mile, Joe Campbell, pole vault, William Cooke and O. L. Caporole, high jump, Walter Jordan, hurdles, Herman Oliff, Ed Meike, Clarence Hales, Bomberger and Blackwood.

Donald Blankenship, who placed second in the 1947 EUCOM Championships high jump, seems to be one of the outstanding candidates from Second Student Regiment. Another is pole vaulter Edward Behne, of Ripon, Wisc., College who has a top mark of 12-feet, 10-inches.

Other Second S. R. likelies are George Pickett, a high jumper for four seasons with N. C. State, John Bailey, shot put, Arthur Ellison, 440, mile and broad jump, and William Cousins, 880.

A couple of Texans are among the current lights in the OTC workouts. They are low hurdler Bobby Fields and Mitchell Love, who will enter the 440 and mile relay. Kenny Hampton, a former runner for the New York Pioneer Club, has clocked 52 seconds in the 440.

Another CTC prospect is Cliff Williams who has turned in a 9:28 minutes two-mile run.

Special emphasis is being placed on track and field here this spring because of the Third Army championships which have been awarded Benning May 9-10. The host team would also like to be the winning team.

Unit Takes Seconds For 100 Per Cent In RC Campaign

Less than 90 seconds after the 1952 Red Cross campaign officially opened here, the entire 22nd company of the Infantry School's First Student Brigade had contributed, thereby making it one of the first 100 per cent units on the post.

Red Cross campaign officials looked into the speedy donation and found that M-Sgt. James F. Weston, of McKees Rock, Pa., and SFC Jack Goodwin, of Stroud, Ala., are the only two men in the company.

Weston and Goodwin maintain a unit which has been bare of personnel for months, but they each contributed one dollar to the Red Cross.

WARMIN' THE BENCH

Baseball's back! The major league season opens in six weeks. Service commitments and salary disputes have been the big news so far, but who's supposed to win? Here's the way our crystal ball sees the final standings:

NATIONAL LEAGUE—

1. New York—Maglie, Jansen, Hearn, and Lanier make up the league's top pitching staff. Williams can fill Stanky's shoes, Mays' loss to the Service may mean Thomson's return to the outfield.

2. Brooklyn — Newcombe's Army duty hurts the Bums. Roe is getting older and these two kept Brooklyn in the '51 race to the end. Not even the power of Campanella, Hodges, Robinson and Snider can make up for Newk.

3. St. Louis — Stanky's version of a new gas-house gang will be powered by Musial, Lowery, Westlake and Hemus. But only Staley and Chambers count in pitching. The others are old and suffering sore arms.

4. Boston — Fireball sensation Gene Conley can replace ERA leader Chet Nichols, off to the Service, but who can keep hitters like Cooper, Gordon, Jethroe perpetually young? Spahn, and Bickford add to an effective pitching staff.

5. Philadelphia — New deals have helped strengthen middle positions and pitching of Roberts, Fox, Church is strong. But the Phils need batting strength to move up.

6. Pittsburgh — Rickey still building a team of youngsters for the future. Outfield of Kinery, Bell, and rookie Merson add power threat to Bucs.

7. Cincinnati—Pitchers Blackwell, Raffensberger, Wehmeier and rookie Niles Jordan are all that keep the Reds out of the cellar. No hitters.

8. Chicago — Phil Cavaretta must first boost morale, then find a team. Pickings are slim—between untested rookies and aging veterans.

AMERICAN LEAGUE—

1. New York — Unbeatable pitching staff and steady hitters. Morgan, McDougald, Mantle came through as rookies, should be better in '52. New rookies Carey, Wilson, Segrist and Weaver will add power, youth.

2. Cleveland — Runners-up in '51 with pitching, they'll repeat with better hitting. Feller, Wynn Garcia can't expect 62 wins, 50 complete games again.

3. Chicago — Speed, hustle, youth will pay off for 154 games. Rogowin, Fierce, Stobbs, Aloma represent steady pitching foursome. Minoso, Robinson, and Fox supply hitting.

4. Boston — Boudreau's hopes dimmed by Service calls for Williams and Kiely; Doerr's retirement; and Stephens' bad leg. Aging players will slow by summer.

5. Philadelphia — One-two batting punch of Fain, Zernial combined with pitching of Schanz, Hooper, Martin, and Kellner can top second division teams.

6. Detroit — Houtteman and youngster Hoeft must carry pitching load for old hands. Groth, Wertz, Kell alone supply batting strength. Evers should hit this season.

7. St. Louis — Old castoffs fighting unknowns for positions in spirited tussle under Hornsby. Garver the only tried pitcher. But bat strength available from Rivera, Schmees, and Nieman.

8. Washington — Only Bucky Harris' managerial genius can keep the Senators from burial deep in the league cellar.

24th Infantry Commander

His most recent combat experence was as commander of the 4th Infantry Division in Korea. He assumed command of that division when Maj. Gen. William L. Dean was captured by the North Korean communists. He was returned from Korea in early 1951 to assume command of The Infantry Center.

When General Church departs from Fort Benning he will leave 35 years of active military service behind him. He was originally ordered to active duty as a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve on June 1, 1917.

The general began his combat service with the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe in the latter part of December, 1917. He served with the 28th Infantry of the 1st Infantry Division until the end of World War I, participating in all major engagements. He was twice wounded.

During World War II, from September, 1940, to October, 1944, General Church served with the 45th Infantry Division as G-3 (plans and training officer), chief of staff, regimental commander and assistant division commander, participating in the assault landings at Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and Southern France.

He was promoted to brigadier general Aug. 1, 1944, and joined the 84th Infantry Division upon its arrival in Europe in October, 1944. Throughout the remainder of the war he served with that division in Holland and Germany. During this period he was wounded for the third time.

Upon his return to the United States in early 1946, General Church successively commanded the Infantry Replacement Training Center at Fort Mcclellan, Ala., and the Fifth Infantry Division at Fort Jackson, S. C.

In February, 1948, he was transferred to Headquarters Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va., where he served as assistant chief of staff for training, deputy chief of the Army Field Forces and later as assistant chairman of the Army Equipment Policy Panel there.

The next assignment in General Church's long military career was to the Far East Command in September, 1949. He served as a section chief in General Headquarters in Tokyo until the Korean War broke out in June 1950. He was sent to Korea on June 26, 1950, to establish an advance section of GHQ. A short time later he took over command of the 24th Infantry Division.

General Church is a native of Pennsylvania. He was graduated from Bucknell Academy in 1909 and then attended New York University for about three years.

His American military decorations include:

Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal — and Purple Heart with two clusters each.

His foreign decorations include: French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre with Palm, the Netherlands order of Orange-Nassau, Knight Commander with Swords, and the Russian Order of Fatherland, 1st Degree.

Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Korea campaign ribbon with three battle stars, Combat Infantry Badge and Distinguished Unit Citation.

Lt. Gallardo is a veteran of three years service overseas, much of it in combat. He landed in Pusan, Korea, in July, 1950, and participated in five campaigns before being rotated to the U. S. in May of 1951.

He was awarded the DSC for heroism in action near Ku-Jang-Dong, Korea, on the nights of Nov. 25 and 26, 1950.

Lt. Gallardo, a member of Company E, Ninth Infantry Regiment, took charge of the group when the company commander was seriously wounded during a "fanatical mass attack by a large and determined enemy force. Although wounded himself, Lt. Gallardo supervised a counter-attack, regaining lost ground and then supervised evacuation of all wounded personnel."

Only after he was assured that the entire company had successfully moved to new positions did he allow himself to be evacuated for medical treatment, according to the citation.

Lt. Gallardo received the first Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star or gallantry in action in September, 1950, near Yongsan, Korea.

Assumed Command

He assumed command of two lead platoons attacking a hill defended by intense enemy artillery and mortar fire, and personally killed eight enemy with rifle fire. During a bayonet attack the assaulting platoons were subjected to intense enemy machinegun fire.

He ordered his men to withdraw to the base of the hill and covered the withdrawal of his platoons with grenade and rifle fire. Only after he was completely out of ammunition did he withdraw to his platoon positions.

In addition to the DSC and Silver Star, he wears the Bronze Star Medal with V device for valor and Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Presidential Unit Citation, South Korean Citation and Combat Infantry Badge.

Lt. Col. Napoleon Valeriano of the Philippine Army is on an 11-day observation tour of The Infantry School here.

Col. Valeriano, who has been at Fort Benning since Satirday, is studying Infantry training methods and Infantry School facilities. He also will receive an orientation on the planning and conduct of maneuvers and visit Infantry School departments.

He will confer on guerrilla operations with representatives from the Tactical, Staff and Ranger Departments.

Col. Valeriano will be here until March 13.

The newly formed Fort Benning NCO Character Guidance Council held its first meeting Monday, March 10, at The Infantry School. M-Sgt. Alexander Gliss, Headquarters Detachment, Combat Training Command, chairman, conducted the meeting.

The Council, composed of non-commissioned officers from each major command, was organized to discuss and analyze the problems confronting the various organizations, and to work out, wherever possible, a solution to the problem. These discussions and possible solutions will be presented to the members of The Infantry Center character guidance council, and in turn passed on to the unit commanders.

A representative from the provost marshall, chaplain, special service and the hospital were present in an advisory capacity.

The next meeting of the council is scheduled for the first part of June. The chairman for the coming meeting has not yet been selected. Chairmanship of the NCO council will be rotated among the members.

General Young Named CG

2nd Division Chief Will Arrive In June

Major General Robert N. Young, who had two tours of duty at Fort Benning in the 1930s and now commander of the Second Infantry Division in Korea, has been named commander of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

Announcement of the appointment was made late Tuesday night by the Department of the Army. General Young will arrive at Fort Benning in June.

GENERAL CHURCH LEAVES . . . Maj. Gen. John H. Church, center, former Infantry Center commander, shakes hands with Col. Charles H. Karlstad, Infantry Center chief of staff, before leaving for the Army and Navy hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., where he will undergo treatment for arthritis. Also on hand to say goodbye to General Church was Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, left, who succeeded him as Infantry Center commander.

He replaces Major General John H. Church, who departed Fort Benning last week for the Army and Navy Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., where he will undergo extensive medical treatment.

Brigadier General Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, has been named commander of The Infantry Center since General Church relinquished his command on Monday, March 10.

The exact date General Young will arrive at Fort Benning to assume command has not been announced. Until his arrival Generel Meloy will remain as commander.

General Young, born in Washington, D. C., on Jan. 14, 1900, is a graduate of the University of Maryland. He was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry Reserve in July 1922 and received a regular army second lieutenant's commission on Jan. 5, 1923.

General Young won the Silver Star for gallantry in action in January, 1945, when he was assistant commander of the 3rd Division. He also received the Purple Heart for wounds received in the same action, when he braved intense mortar fire to speed construction of a bridge over a canal in Germany.

As assistant division commander of the 3rd Infantry Division, General Young landed with the unit in the Seventh Army's invasion of Southern France in 1945. He was second in command during the 3rd Division's advance through the Colmar pocket into Nurenberg, Augsburg, Munich, and finally Berchtesgaden famed retreat of Adolf Hitler.

General Young's service in World War II was prefaced by tours of duty at Fort Eustis, Va., and Camp Meade, Md. with the 34th Infantry in 1922, and Headquarters, IX Corps area, at Baltimore in 1923-24.

In January, 1925, he was transferred to the Post of San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he joined the 65th Infantry.

From January, 1928, to September, 1932, he was professor of military science and tactics at the University of Maryland.

His first tour of duty at Fort Benning was in 1932, when he was a student of The Infantry

305 West Point Graduates Attend Anniversary Dinner

Sunday Marked Sesquicentennial Date Of Military Academy's Historic Start

Three hundred and five West Point alumni, largest group ever assembled here, gathered Sunday at the Main Officers' Mess to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the United States Military Academy.

Col. Daniel H. Hundley, comptroller of The Infantry Center and master of ceremonies, opened the program by reading telegrams from alumni groups over the country.

Capt. Henry H. Burnett, a student in the advanced Infantry officers' course, led the guests in group singing.

Maj. Gen. (retired) Charles H. Bonesteel, Columbus, class of 1908 and oldest graduate in the Fort Benning area, spoke on West Point of yesteryear.

General Bonesteel represents a long connection with West Point. His grandfather, Brig. Gen. C. D. Green, class of 1854, his father, Maj. Charles H. Bonesteel, class of 1876, and his son, Col. Charles H. Bonesteel, class of 1931, all were graduates of the Academy. General Bonesteel served as tactical officer at West Point 1919-24.

He also served as instructor at The Infantry School here and as director of the Weapons Department in 1943-44, he was commandant of The Infantry School.

"When I entered West Point nearly 50 years ago," Gen. Bonesteel said, "we didn't have the things cadets of today have — no telephones, no electric lights, no week end leaves, no running water for shaving."

He showed slides depicting the USMA of 50 years ago.

Second Lt. John A. Graham, III, class of 1951 and junior graduate present, told the alumni what West Point is like today. Courses have been modernized to keep up with changing times, he said.

"They now teach nucleur fission and atomic energy in physics, and the social science department has added a new course — 'How to budget a second lieutenant's pay'," Lt. Graham is tactical officer of the 14th Officer Candidate Company, Third Student Regiment.

Lt. Col. W. J. Fellows, class of 1940 and deputy chief of staff of The Infantry Center, recited the

Donations Beat $25,000 Mark In RC Campaign

Contributions to the 1952 Red Cross fund-raising campaign here rose to $25,306.91 this week, a gain of $634.13 over last week, as officials reported 64 per cent participation.

Col. Gines Perez, executive chairman of the drive, reported that although no monetary goal has been set for The Infantry Center this year, 100 per cent participation is the aim.

Last year, the annual drive netted more than $35,000 as Red Cross-mined soldiers and civilians at Fort Benning deluged the coffers.

Three major units so far that have reached the 100 per cent goal are Army Field Forces Board No. 3 and The Infantry School, although many company-sized units have hit the top.

John A. Cramer, field director of the Red Cross here, said that he is very pleased with the progress of the drive so far.

"We're considerably ahead, compared with the same period last year," Mr. Cramer said.

"I think," he continued, "that one reason for this is the improved organization that has been set up this year to handle the drive. Colonel Perez is doing an excellent job as executive chairman. The information and education section has contributed a great deal, too, in getting the message down to the troops.

"We're aiming at 100 per cent participation, and I feel that we'll reach it before the end of the drive. People are coming to realize more and more every day what a tremendous program is carried on by the Red Cross. I'm plenty pleased that Fort Benning personnel are showing such interest in the campaign."

Original goal for the 1952 campaign was $25,000.

Annual 3rd Army Inspection Now Underway Here

The Annual command inspection by representatives from Third Army, Fort McPherson, Ga., is being held here Tuesday through Thursday this week.

The 50-man team, headed by Col. William H. Hill, assistant chief of staff, G-3, includes officers from the General, Special, Administrative and Technical Staff section of Third Army.

At the conclusion of the inspection this afternoon staff members from all major commands on the post will meet at Main Post Theater for a general critique on the entire...

Col. G. E. Bush Addresses OCs At Graduation Service

"Discipline wins wars, but the discipline must begin with oneself," Col. G. E. Bush told 131 new second lieutenants here Monday.

Colonel Bush, deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was the principal speaker at graduation exercises for Infantry officer candidate class No. 7.

Colonel Bush told the new second lieutenants that they would receive "new authority and additional responsibility of leadership" with their gold bars. "This leadership will be comprised of three main things," he said, "usable knowledge, high moral character and human understanding . . . but don't kill your men with kindness."

"The first you should have will be gained during your course at Fort Benning," Col. Bush stated. "You should have acquired the professional knowledge required to apply the tactics and techniques of a platoon leader in combat.

"Without the second characteristic, high moral character, the rest will be meaningless. Your character will be your personal trademark in everything you do," he explained.

Of the third point, Colonel Bush said, "Your principal aim is the accomplishment of your mission in the most efficient manner. Remember this when your are training and see that your men do a thorough job. Be understanding . . . but don't kill your men with kindness."

GIFT . . . A Republic of Korea flag is presented to The Infantry School as a token of appreciation by South Korean Army officers who have just completed a 15-week special associate Infantry company commander course here. Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, right, Infantry Center commander, accepts the gift from Lt. Col. Kim Jung Sook, left, student company commander. Lt. Cho Sand Ho, interpreter, is in the center. The Koreans are scheduled to return to their homeland in April.

War College Head Speaks To Korean Officer Grads

Korean Army officers training at The Infantry School here "should inject into the Republic of Korea Army leadership such as it has never had before," Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond told a graduating class Thursday.

Addressing 163 Korean students completing a 15-week special associated infantry company officer course, the commandant of the Army War College said, "Stories of your accomplishments will be told for more than a thousand years in your homeland.

"The battlefield is no place for a leader with the wrong concept of how to command," General Almond continued.

He illustrated his talk with several examples drawn from his experiences as commander of the X Corps in Korea from August, 1950, until July, 1951, showing the results of both effective and ineffective leadership.

General Almond suggested many ways in which leadership in the ROK Army could be strengthened.

"Commanders too often stay at command posts and never appear at the fighting front," General Almond said. "A good leader will personally see where the trouble exists on the ground and not depend too much on map reports.

"The importance of good combat intelligence and communications cannot be overemphasized," he added, "and the reports must be accurate. I have seen serious shortcomings in this matter. The higher command must be supplied with the true facts.

"If you must withdraw," General Almond cautioned, "keep your men and their equipment organized so far as possible. Your men must know where they are to go and must be prepared to fight again in a new location. These problems are not peculiar to the Korean army," General Almond said. "They exist in all armies in varying degrees."

The South Korean Army has come a long way, according to General Almond. When he left Korea last July he said he had noticed a "proud upsurge in the power and strength of the Republic of Korea Army since the invasion in 1950."

"Your Army has made a great sacrifice to send its top officers here to the Infantry School," the general stated. "You must show yourselves worthy of the sacrifice by applying your knowledge in combat."

General Almond presented the diplomas to the graduates and greeted many of the officers who had served under his command in Korea.

Alaskan 'Hams' Ask for 'CQs' With Amateurs

EIELSON AFB, Alaska (AFPS)—This is MARS, AKIAG, calling all Stateside stations. We have an important message for you. Are you ready? OK, here goes!

The men of the 58th Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron here urge all amateur radio operators in the U. S. to monitor the 10, 20 and 75-meter band for a signal from this "air base."

This request is made by airmen stationed here in the hope they may be able to make contact with their families in the U. S. via the Military Amateur Radio Service (MARS).

Like men stationed at all remote military bases, the men of the 58th grasp any opportunity to communicate with their loved ones back home in the U. S. The call letters at Eielson AFB are AKIAG—so give them a helping hand, hams!

SCHOOL LIBRARIAN WINS ARMY COMMENDATION: Ruth Wesley is Congratulated by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy

Civilian Librarian Receives Commendation Award

Miss Ruth Wesley, senior civilian librarian in The Infantry School's Academic Library, has been awarded the Army commendation for meritorious civilian service.

The attractive brunette, who is from Atlanta, received the emblem and accompanying citation from Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, The Infantry Center commander.

Miss Wesley began working at The Infantry School in May, 1935. Since then she has added more than 10,000 books and has been instrumental in the collection of documents, microfilm records, maps, periodicals, language records and military references. Her help has been invaluable to the thousands of students attending the school during the past 16 years, according to the citation.

The citation says, in part, that during "periods of great national crisis, Miss Wesley developed her library and expanded its services in an outstanding manner. Her unfailing devotion to the interests of its multitude of users and her achievement in building up one of the finest military libraries in the world have been of superior service to the Infantry, to the Army, and to our entire country."

The citation was signed by Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the Third Army, Fort McPherson, Ga.

Miss Wesley received her education at Randolph-Macon Woman's Collge, Lynchburg, Va., and Emory University in Atlanta. She is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority.

RC Benefit Show Set for April 6

A musical show, staged by members of the Third Student Regiment, will give a benefit performance for the American Red Cross in Theater No. 1 on April 6.

Pfc. Robert F. Biggs, producer and director of the show "Once In A Lifetime" said it has a cast of over 100 men and women and includes a men's chorus and an Infantry Officer Candidate band. It includes original music as well as old favorites.

A preview of the show for officer candidates, their families, and cadre of the Third Student Regiment will be held on March 30.

Plot of the show deals with an officer candidate who answers the jackpot question on a quiz program and wins an all-expense paid tour of New Orleans and New York. The audience will be carried to the French quarter of New Orleans, Dixieland night spots, the Mardi Gras celebration, Carnegie Hall, Broadway and backstage at "South Pacific."

Col. Harry M. Grizzard, commander of the Third Student Regiment, is advisor for the show. Private Biggs said that all proceeds would be donated to the Red Cross.

Pay Bill Now on Senate Agenda

The Senate-reported pay bill is not ready for a vote on the Senate floor. When it will come up is not certain at this time, but veteran observers indicate "within a week, or two at the latest."

Sen. Russell (D.) of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, informed AFPS that he "wants to get it on the floor as quickly as possible." Urgent pending legislation already scheduled, however, may offer some delay.

A swift and favorable Senate vote may determine whether or not the bill would go into effect on April 1. Observers close to the Congressional scene say that there have been rare cases when a bill went into a joint conference of both houses then back to each house for a vote and onto the President's desk within two weeks. They offer only slim hope, however, that it will work in the case of the pay bill.

A survey by AFPS of available members of the House Armed Services Committee who will serve on the House-Senate Committee to come up with a compromise bill revealed a willingness to "enact a bill as soon as possible." But most offered only cautious comments on their views about the Senate version of the bill.

Rep. Kilday (D.) of Texas, original sponsor of the House-passed bill, said he was "studying the Senate bill to determine in what ways it differs from the House bill."

Rep. Vinson (D.) of Georgia, chairman of the committee, felt that it was too early to comment on the bill. He proposed to wait until a final version of the bill passed the Senate.

The Senate bill offers a three percent increase in base pay and allowance increases up to 30 percent. The House Bill asked for a flat 10 percent increase in pay and allowances. —(AFPS)

Army Opens Aviation Frontiers

The Army has opened new frontiers in the realm of aviation and is expanding more and more within the limits of ground units.

The need for observation and mobility within the battle area created the chief opportunities for use of organic aircraft in Army units. New and challenging ways were opened to infantry, armored and artillery outfits to take advantage of light planes and helicopters to improve their operations.

For instance, armored divisions training at Fort Hood, Tex., recently discovered planes to be one of their best weapons. Inventive personnel there set up an ingenious pick-up device employing 13-foot poles, nylon rope and a metal claw. From that contraption, low-flying courier planes can snap messages without landing. Communications have been greatly speeded up.

Aviation operations are not new to the Army. The first use of aircraft to support ground units dates back to 1861. Artillery fire against the Confederates was directed by balloon near Ft. Corcoran, Washington, D. C. Forty-six years later an aeronautical division was established in the office of the Chief Signal Officer. Formation of various air units ultimately led to the separate Air Force of today.

Army aviation reached a high point in North Africa in 1942. Light aircraft received its baptism of fire by complementing infantry, armored and non-divisional artillery units. By the end of World War II aerial observation of artillery was commonplace. Air Force elements have been relieved, in many cases, of duties of reconnaissance, aerial photography, command and courier duties and transportation of supplies. (AFPS).

Take Good Care of Your Helmet

Take care of your helmet and it'll take care of you.

The Army Quartermaster Corps offers some helpful advice on helmet care. The first principle involves your own attitude toward the helmet. It's not a pot, a washbowl, a seat, a garbage can or a shovel. First and foremost it's a hat.

It's made of hard, tough steel specially treated against weathering. If you use it as a cooking implement the heat weakens the metal. The helmet may look the same, but its resistance to pressure is considerably weakened.

If you use it as a washbowl, which circumstances sometimes allow, dry it thoroughly. Water and dampness cause rust.

Sitting on the helmet wears off the chin strap loops and shoveling with it wears off the paint.

The helmet liner, too, needs special care. It's not a stool or a pillow. When you pack it inside your barracks bag make sure it's well padded. Wrap underwear, shirts or other clothing around it and stuff the inside with something soft to keep the liner from cracking. (AFPS)

One Solitary Life Changed the Whole World

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT) RACY L. AKINS

He was born in a village stable. By all the formal measurements of greatness, His life should have failed. It was such a little span of years in such a far-off lonely little land. He had but meagre education, yet His wisdom confounded the wisest of men. He showed each lonely heart its deepest need.

For thirty years, near the village of His birth, He grew and practiced the trade of his foster father, shaping the native wood to serve the wants of home and craft. Three years He traveled, teaching and shaping the native hearts to receive truth and love. He was never more than a few miles from His birthplace. He held no earthly rank or office, wrote no book, painted no picture, built no monument.

But more books have been written about Him than any other man who ever lived. He has been the theme of more songs, the inspiration of more loftier thought, than any other. He built a kingdom of love and into it marshalled a larger army of followers than any military commander who ever led a force.

His native land was ruled by foreign legions. While still in the flush of His youth, He was rejected by His people. He was denied by a close friend and betrayed for a paltry sum of money by another. He gave Himself over to His enemies, was tried and condemned in mockery crucified between thieves. He died asking forgiveness for His persecutors, while His executioners gambled for His only earthly possession, His robe. He was laid in a borrowed tomb.

But the third day afterward His grave was found empty. He appeared to His disciples and followers and fired them with the assurance that He was alive forevermore. Transformed by this startling conviction, they staunchly braved ridicule and persecution to proclaim the good news. Their leader had triumphed over death! He was indeed the Son of God!

Nearly two thousand years have passed since then, and none has reigned or wrought or served who has so touched and moulded human life. His is the one sustaining influence, the one last hope of men in a world of blood and tears. His appeal is universal. He has brought hope to millions of every clime and tongue. Multitudes who have never seen Him would gladly die for Him.

He who was friendless would be Friend of all. Homeless, He seeks a home in every human heart.

The names of pharaohs, emperors, kings of all ages, are but ghosts upon the printed page. Their might is dust. But this One Solitary Figure strides in triumph across the pages of history. His kingdom never wanes and shall never perish.

In a Roman court nearly twenty centuries ago, Pontius Pilate asked the multitude demanding the death of the Galilean, "I find no fault in Him. What shall I do with Him?" At this Lenten Season, each troubled heart must meet the challenge when the Pilate within asks, "What shall I do with Jesus?"

The chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee has accused Newbold Morris of "utter disrespect of Congress" and said he will never vote to give Morris subpoena powers for his investigation of government wrongdoing. Senator McCarran said Morris' outburst before a Senate sub-committee last week, in which the New York lawyer said that some Senators had "diseased brains" showed "utter disrespect of Congress and the people of the United States, of which Congress is the representative." McCarran's committee meets tomorrow to consider Truman's request that Morris be given authority to summon witnesses and seize documents in his anti-corruption probe. McCarran, emphasizing that he was speaking only for himself, said "I will never vote to grant Newbold Morris subpoena powers."

He cut the length of service for officers, warrant officers and enlisted men who were called up involuntarily as reservists or draftees. Pace's orders call for the release of such men three months before the scheduled expiration of their tours of duty.

On The Bookshelf

(This is the fifth in a series of short book reviews taken from a suggested reading list for officers prepared by the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va.)

THE POLICE STATE, By Craig Thompson (E. P. Dutton & Company, Inc. 275 pages) A forthright, unembellished reporter's report of life in the land of the unfree. The reader is showered with insight on life in Sovietland, where all is subservient to Stalin and the Army. Topics discussed embrace the iron rule of government dictatorship controlling all phases of existence from birth to death, with evaluations of the Politburo, Soviet elections, deemancipation of women, and many others.

THE RED ARMY TODAY, by Col. Louis B. Ely (The Military Service Publishing Company, 256 pages) An excellent book whose importance grows as U. S. preoccupation with the intentions of the U.S.S.R. increases It is highly compact and informative, dealing primarily with the Red Army organization and fighting body.

RED MASQUERADE by Angela Calomiris (J. B. Lippincott Company, 284 pages) Detailed facts of Communist Party life, dramatically revealed by Miss Calomiris, who for seven years was a "Communist" in the employ of the U. S. government. Disclosure of intimate Communist party organizations and goals elevates the book to authoritative category. Added appendix containing extracts of Communist directives gives further evidence of their disloyal intentions.

THE ROAD AHEAD by John T. Flynn (The Devin - Adair Company, 610 pages) "And they knew not until the flood came and took them all away." A timely warning to the American people of the disguised tactics of the American National Social planners who seek to gird the United States with socialism. They pose as the people's friend offering hidden shackles thru social betterment plans. Names are mentioned, the British Fabian (Socialist) Society and its successes are discussed, and eye-opener facts are presented sincerely and unhesitatingly.

SMERSH by N. Sinervirsky (Henry Holt and Company 253 pages) This is an astounding, authentic story of the SMERSH Corps, Soviet Russia's super, iron - gloved counter-intelligence arm, which spreads horror to almost unbelievable depts through its relentless informer system. Amidst this atmosphere of terror and human degradation, the radio and newspapers proclaim daily to the Soviet inhabitant his great freedom.

THE SOVIET AIR FORCE by Lee Asher (Harper and Brothers 207 pages) This compact and forthright appraisal, with pictures, of the U.S.S.R.'s Air Force from its procreation to present day growth contains a wealth of inside information of its strength, weaknesses and future possibilities as a striking arm. The Russian dual personality of kindness and cruelty, super loyalty and reverence, is discussed. A warning not to underestimate the Soviet scientific potential is issued. In Russia are first-rate, proven nuclear physicists who know the secret of the atom bomb.

Benning Proofreader Has Wide Variety Of Interests

HORACE W. RUNDELL

Horace W. Rundell, chief proofreader in The Infantry School's Training Publications Department here, is a man with itchy feet.

He has worked half way around the world since he left his home in Fort Valley, Ga., 10 years ago. Talented fingers and a variety of interests have helped him in his search for adventure.

A music teacher in Fort Valley, Mr. Rundell's desire to see new places led him to Miami, Fla., at the outbreak of World War II. He held the post of deputy assistant censor in the Office of Censorship there, where he translated and censored letters in Spanish and French.

He left Miami in January, 1946, to accept a post in the Fiscal Department at the Naval Supply Center, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. When he returned to the U. S. in August, 1950, he came to Fort Benning as chief proofreader in the Training Literature Group of Training Publications Department.

"My work here is very interesting," Mr. Rundell said. "I have always been interested in writing, and in this department, we see books in every stage—from author to final printed and bound copy. My job takes in rewriting, proofreading, and editing—good training for the novel I hope to write!" he declared.

In addition to his interest in writing, Mr. Rundell is an accomplished pianist and organist. He holds both Bachelor's and Master's degrees in music from the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, with more post graduate study at Chicago Musical College.

"The organ is my favorite instrument," he remarked "and I prefer to play classical music. I've directed and played for choirs and glee clubs in Georgia, but my favorite assignment was playing the organ for the Pearl Harbor Chapel."

Mr. Rundell's hobbies include bridge, writing mystery novels, study of foreign languages, music, and oil painting. He has done several oils, and hopes to enter one in an art exhibit in Columbus, soon.

"I am interested in so many things," he said, "that it is hard to stick to one line. Anything in life is interesting to me. However, I hope to be able to go into work with foreign languages, especially French. I think French is a wonderful language!"

Reds Uncertain Of Post Soldier's Life and Freedom

The Chinese communists probably still don't know that M-Sgt. Delbert C. Cox is alive and free.

A platoon sergeant in Company A, 30th Infantry Regiment, he was captured by the Chinese during their first offensive in November, 1950 in Korea. He was on a jeep patrol when the enemy ambushed his unit, killing 26 before the remaining five surrendered.

The same day he was captured, Sergeant Cox and his four buddies were shot and left for dead by their captors. Their aim was deadly in the case of two of the men, but Sergeant Cox and two others survived and rejoined their unit.

It was the second time in his life Sergeant Cox had been a prisoner-of-war. The first came during World War II when he was captured by Germans near Metz, France. The Germans were a little more successful than the Chinese—they held onto him for 14 days before he was freed by Polish forces.

Henna, consisting of the powdered leaves of a small shrub found in India, Persia, the Levant and along the African coasts of the Mediterranean, is among the oldest of cosmetics.

Rangers End Jungle Work

North Georgia's Hill Country Offers Lab for Mountain Phase

BY SFC. PAT MURPHY

Thirty-six water-soaked, muddy-faced infantrymen came back to Fort Benning yesterday as the Army's fiercest, stealthiest fighters.

Each of them had spent two weeks in northwest Florida learning the jungle and amphibious phase of becoming a Ranger. They leave tomorrow for mountainous North Georgia to learn techniques of fighting and living in jagged high terrain.

The small class of volunteer infantrymen, which is the second class to take the new - type Ranger course, is the Army's top selection of young leaders—brainy, brawny and fearless.

During the three-phase, eight-week Infantry School course, Ranger students learn tactics and techniques of small - team, behind-enemy - lines warfare, ranging in missions from reconnaissance patrol to assault and destruction of small objectives.

In the Florida phase, the trainees remained most of each day and night in chest-deep marshes, unassailable without compass and courage.

An entourage of top - ranking observers watched the trainees in action the first two days of last week. Heading the group was Gen. Mark W. Clark, chief of Army Field Forces and one of the strongest supporters of Ranger training.

General Clark and six other generals saw Ranger students cross dense swampland, launch rubber assault boats and paddle upstream against a furious river tide. Near their inland objective, the Rangers beached and camouflaged their craft and began treking through the jungle again.

"A great display of skill and courage," General Clark said after the demonstration, which he followed by jeep and boat and on foot.

The skill and courage General Clark witnessed is the Army's estimation of a good leader, which the Ranger course is expected to produce. Rangers are being assigned to regular infantry units to help raise proficiency and esprit de corps.

General Clark emphasized that Ranger units and tactics are not being developed for large-scale combat use.

In remaining days of the two-week Florida course, the Rangers made several night - long combat and reconnaissance patrols and, during the last three training days, executed a waterborne invasion of the Gulf coast.

The inland assault against "enemy" positions — a mock-up airplane storage and anti-aircraft battery—was the most realistic, most rigorous of the Florida training phase.

Students killed and ate several goats which had been released in the invasion area as the only food re-supply for the 48-hour problem.

They also used powerful explosives in destroying "enemy" positions, which were six miles inland.

After finishing the mountain phase of training, students will graduate at The Infantry School, and then be assigned to infantry units as small unit leaders.

SPRING IS IN THE AIR . . . Pfc. Latham B. Lawton of Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment, dreams the dreams of many another soldier as spring's first warmth heralds the coming of things to do in the sun. Spring officially begins at 11:14 a.m. (EST) today.

Red Cross Ready To Help People In Emergencies

(EDITOR'S NOTE: It is the policy of the Red Cross, in cases of this type, to withhold the names of the persons concerned. The following is the case taken from the files of the Fort Benning Red Cross Office)

Recently, a serviceman who was a member of the 82nd Airborne Division, now on maneuvers in Texas, received a verified emergency leave. His brother had been killed in a mine explosion in West Virginia.

Granted an emergency leave, the 82nd Red Cross office offered a loan to the soldier. His first sergeant advised him not to go to the Red Cross but to go to Kelly Field and catch a "hop." He took the first sergeant's advice.

After waiting for two days, he caught the first bus that left town and on the third day his leave, arrived in Columbus, Ga.

He had lost is suitcase and had no verification of his leave. The post Red Cross officer here, checked on the man and found that he was on an emergency leave.

The Fort Benning Office immediately loaned the man $50, carried him to the city bus station and sent him on his way.

How right was the first sergeant in advising him not to get a Red Cross Loan or utilize the facilities of the American Red Cross? What would you have done?

Food School To Observe 30th Anniversary Sunday

Sunday will mark the 30th anniversary of one of the oldest post institutions — the Third Army Area Food Service School.

Originally known as the Cooks and Bakers' school, it was begun here in 1922, under the jurisdiction of the post quartermaster. Two buildings located where the first cuartel is today served the school there.

When construction of the cuartel was begun, the school was moved across the street from what is now the Provost Marshal building. Its present home, at the corner of Vibbert and Gillespie Streets, was built in 1938 and occupied in 1939.

The school today offers five courses which embrace everything from the proper way to boil water to the preparation of delicacies such as hors d'oeuvres. The courses include a basic course for cooks, bakers and meat cutters, and a mess management and mess administration course.

The basic cooks' course, which lasts for eight weeks, teaches novices the proper methods of Army cooking, while the mess management course prepares cooks to be mess sergeants. The mess administration course for officers calls for them to put on cooks' whites and actually prepare food for consumption.

Since its organization in 1922, the School has been known by many different names. Its first title was the Fort Benning School for Cooks and Bakers. Later the name was changed to the Fourth Service Command School for Cooks and Bakers, and even later was dubbed the Quartermaster Food Service School. Its official name today is the Third Army Area Food Service School, Area Service Unit. The Area Service Unit Provisional Group supplies administration and logistical support for the school.

Students at the school not only study texts and manuals, but they gain valuable practical experience by cooking for various post units. The latest classroom techniques are employed, including Signal Corps movies and visual cast slides.

Belying its name, the school is not limited to Army personnel. In January 1951 Air Force personnel began attending the school, and in January this year Marine Corps personnel began attending classes there. Personnel from all three services may be found on the faculty and in administrative posts in the school. All faculty members are school graduates of the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va.

Three sub-schools fall under the jurisdiction of the school today. These include a school at Camp Rucker, Ala., Fort Jackson, S.C., and Camp Gordon, Ga. The Benning school acts as a parent school, and from time to time sends demonstration teams and lecturers to the sub-school to keep them abreast of the latest developments in food preparation and service.

Haitian Army Officer Attends TIS Course Here

First Lt. Lanore Augustin of the Haitian Army, a student in an associate infantry company at The Infantry School here, says that the course of instruction he is receiving at The Infantry School "trains men to be ready for war."

Lieutenant Augustin explained that the Army in his country is very small, and cannot compare with the U. S. Army. "We have only 6,000 men and 600 officers," he said in his French accent," and they serve mainly as a training unit and perform secondary duties as police for various areas of the island."

He has been in the Haitian Army for six years. A graduate of the Haitian Academic Militaire, he obtained his commission after completing a course of study similar to that offered in U.S. officer candidate school.

He was selected by his government as a representative of the Port au Prince area to attend The Infantry School with a view towards improving training methods in the Haitian Army.

New School Site Now Off Limits

The south portion of Glen Field and the area between Ingersoll Street and Lumpkin Road has been placed off limits to all unauthorized personnel.

The new children's school is being constructed in this area. Parents living on Lumpkin Road are cautioned to keep their children away from the construction area to prevent injury. Unauthorized entry will subject violators to disciplinary action.

OCS HOLDS CONTEST

A motto and insignia contest is underway in the 18th Officer Candidate Company, sparked by Candidates Rovert V. Dunne and Michael L. Wardipski. All candidates in the class have been urged to submit their entries. The winner will receive an overnight pass for the weekend of April 5-6.

22-Year Veteran Plans College After Retirement

A veteran of 22 years Army service has retired and plans to attend State Teachers College, Troy, Ala.

M-Sgt. Willis F. Thomason, who lives in Columbus, has been awarded the Infantry Center Certificate of Achievement. Retirement for the sergeant will become effective March 31.

Col. Raymond Hamilton, deputy assistant commandant of the Infantry School made the presentation.

Sergeant Thomason, Company A, Infantry School Detachment, received the award for his service as sergeant major of the Infantry School's Academic Department between Sept. 20, 1945, and Dec. 21, 1951.

He was cited for his work in the assignment, reassignment and allocation of enlisted personnel during World War II, the decelerated program after the cessation of hostilities and the sudden expansion after the outbreak of the conflict in Korea.

During his Army career Sgt. Thomason has served 93 months overseas. He was sergeant major for the 346th Infantry Regiment of the 87th Division in Europe from October, 1944 to July, 1945 and participated in the Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe campaign.

He also served in the Intelligence Section of the 15th Infantry Regiment, Tientsin, China, from 1937 to 1938 and with the Eighth Field Artillery Battalion, Schofield Barracks, T. H., from 1930 to 1936.

A native of Overton, Texas, Sergeant Thomason has two years of college credit from the University of Georgia Off Campus Center in Columbus, and has attended the advanced enlisted military administration course at the Adjutant General School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Students Practice Cooking to Learn

The name Fanny Farmer may bring candy to the minds of some, but to students at the Third Army Area Food School, it means one thing— work.

For that is the name tagged onto the kitchens where school students try their hand at cooking. After studying in classrooms the students are turned loose in the kitchens and have to prepare a meal.

Each student cooks one portion of the meal, and then they all pitch in and eat it. The eight-week course adequately prepares novice cooks to prepare almost any type of food, ranging from pastry through salads to steaks.

Benning Engineers Repair Damage at Ranger Camp

Fort Benning engineers are trying this week to heal scars left on The Infantry School's North Georgia Ranger camp by fierce wind and pounding rain.

Damage which was caused by last week's stormy weather was described as "not serious."

Twenty-one repairmen from the Combat Training Command's 78th Engineer Battalion; led by 2nd Lt. Edwin A. Freeman, are rushing the repair job to prepare the training ground for a two-week Ranger course beginning there Monday.

First Lt. Robert Gleason, commander of the 78th Engineer Battalion's Company C, said major damage was confined to a water pipe across a river and dirt roads which were severely pitted by gully - washing rains.

The water pipe, which crosses a 70-foot-wide river about six feet above the water's surface, was completely washed away by rushing river water. A 70 foot section of two-inch pipe is being replaced by the engineers.

An assembly tent floor was badly warped by rain and also is being replaced, Lt. Gleason said.

Badly-rutted dirt roads, Lt. Gleason said, will be conditioned for vehicular travel, and a water purification system, which was flooded with dirt during the storm, is being cleaned for ranger training use.

A class of 36 Rangers arrive at the mountainous North Georgia camp — it's near Dahlonega, Ga. — on Monday to begin a week-long field course in fighting and living in rugged terrain.

The Rangers returned this week from northwest Florida swamps where they spent two weeks learning jungle and amphibious warfare techniques.

OCs Renovate Mess Hall Without Cost to Army

A "custom-built" mess hall in the Fifth Officer Candidate Company that didn't cost the Army one cent is the result of tenacious work from the company commander down to the lowest-ranking private.

The project began when Capt. Ellsworth R. Lyman, the company commander, rolled up his sleeves and began work with lumber and a saw. Company cadre soon caught the fever, and for the next week round-the-clock shifts were busy in the hall.

When students moved in on Feb. 29, the job was complete. The dining room now has a half-wall of vertical shaved logs all the way around. Sea-green paint was daubed on the upper walls for a unique contrast to the logs.

An intricate lattice-work partition was built by Pfc. Francis J. Parana to separate the kitchen from the mess hall itself. An acetylene torch was used to scorch the wood and emphasize the knotty pine for the final touch.

Every bit of material used in refinishing the hall was salvaged from discard piles all over the post. Sfc. James Powell and Sgt. Floyd Stewart, mess stewards, found the lumber they used at a nearby lumber mill, about to be thrown away. Two squads of men spent a solid hour straightening nails that had been throw away.

Captain Lyman said that their goal had been to give the company a mess-hall that would be at least as attractive as off-post restaurants. "Besides enjoying their food more in this mess-hall," he said, "candidates are getting ideas of what may be done that might come in handy after they get commissioned."

Polite Conversation Turns Into Reunion for Friends

What began as a polite conversation here last week ended as a reunion between old friends for Col. Gordon-Watson of Berkshire, England and Lt. Col. Stephen Meade, Infantry School allied liaison officer.

Colonel Gordon-Watson, military attache at the British Embassy in Washington, visited The Infantry Center last week on an orientation visit.

He conferred with Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Infantry Center commander, and later viewed tank and armored Infantry tactics, and saw a rifle company in a river-line attack. He also saw a weapons demonstration presented by Army Field Forces Board No. 3 while here.

Colonel Meade was slated to escort Colonel Gordon-Watson during his visit here. In the course of their conversation, Colonel Meade mentioned his experiences as an attache in Beirut, Lebanon during the uprisings in Palestine in August, 1947.

He recalled a visit to the Irish Guard barracks at Notre Dame convent in Jerusalem, and Colonel Gordon-Watson announced that he was in command there at the time and remembered the occasion well.

Five years and half the world away from their first meeting place, the two friends compared notes, Colonel Meade even displayed souvenirs of their first encounter—two bush jackets the British officer had given him when they met in the Near East.

CTC Troops Help Dedicate Armory

Displays of modern weapons provided the shop talk at the dedication of a new armory in Macon, Ga., March 10.

Combat Training Command sent a dozen men to the ceremonies with a 105-mm. howitzer, an anti-aircraft quad 50, and 57-mm. and 75-mm recoilless rifles. Second Lt. Redmond V. Forrester Jr., was in charge of the demonstration troops from Battery C, 41st Field Artillery Battalion, 27th Anti - Aircraft Artillery Battery, and Company H, 30th Infantry Regiment.

For almost four hours, guests at the dedication watched demonstrations of the latest techniques in using the weapons. The howitzer crew went through the precisely timed "cannoneers' hop", while the recoilless rifleman illustrated firing positions, loading, and aiming.

Between demonstrations, the soldiers from Fort Benning answered questions as guests examined the weapons.

OCs Adopt Family Of Mother, 7 Pups

Candidates in the 17th Office Candidate Company are wearing that proud, "Did-I-tell-you-what-junior-said?" look these days.

It all began when Candidate Ray Brown found a mother and her seven babes in the company area. The candidates pitched in and built a shelter, for her, and began stuffing their pockets at meal times with scraps of food for the family.

Although the mother wasn't talking, the candidates have about decided that her multi-colored pups are there to stay.

MOODS FOR CANDLELIGHT (Francis Scott and orchestra on Capitol). As the title of this album of old and nostalgic tunes implies, here is music for romancing, dancing, or perhaps just sitting and remembering days long gone by.

The music is perhaps the smoothest released since Paul Lavalle did his "Music From Out Of The Moon" series. Included are "More Than You Know," "The Touch Of Your Lips," "I Hadn't Anyone Till You," "I'll Get By," "It Had To Be You," and "How Deep Is The Ocean."

MARGIE (Basin Street Six on Mercury). Good Dixieland jazz is hard to find these days, unless you dig up some old platters recorded as long as 20 years ago. There are still many good Dixieland jazz aggregations around the country, but somehow they just don't seem to put out the platters the real New Orleans jazz enthusiast wants to hear.

But this platter is one exception. Here's the oldie, "Margie," played in a slow, rhythmic style that is tops in quality. Reverse side is "Basin Street Stomp," an old, unpublished tune that gives the Basic Street Six a chance to really cut loose on some fine Dixieland jazz.

SENATOR FROM TENNESSEE (Dinah Shore-Tex Williams and orchestra on RCA-Victor). Everybody's sweetheart of song teams up with Tex Williams in two fast-moving novelties that have originally written all over them. "Senator From Tennessee" is sung with apologies to the Kefauver committee, as Dinah threatens to have Tex investigated for his cheating ways.

Reverse, "Double Shuffle," is along the same lines and Dinah and Tex give it the good jumpy treatment. These are informal, easy-going performances by two of the best known artists in the business.

SEPTEMBER SONG (Billy Daniels, Russ Case orchestra on Mercury). We think Walter Huston did a better job on this tune, but certainly Billy Daniels came near equaling the incomparable Huston in this tune from the great score of "Knickerbocker Holiday." Not too much has been heard of Billy Daniels during the past few months, other than one movie appearance he did a short while back.

But with such recordings as this on the market, we think a whole new generation will discover—and love—Billy Daniels. Reserve side is just as good as "September Song," because it too is another favorite "Diane."

RECORDS AT RANDOM: "C-Jam Blues," Ole Rasmussen on Capitol; "Ship Ahoy," by Rose Marie on Mercury; "Chu-Chu," Xavier Cugat on Mercury; "Love, Where Are You Now?" by Ian Garber on Capitol; "Invitation," Les Baxter on Capitol; "If You Don't Hug at Bye, Miss O'Shea," by Freddie Martin on RCA-Victor; "Sweet Rose," by Phil Harris-Bob Hope on RCA-Victor.

Honor Code Begins Here For OCs at Benning

An Honor Code for officer candidates that will go into effect on March 29 has been endorsed by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, commander of The Infantry Center.

General Meloy said that in his opinion, the profession of arms more than any other, requires the highest sense of personal honor.

Most important feature of the code is that it provides for interpretation and enforcement by the candidates themselves. The code covers such basic points as lying, cheating, stealing, and the responsibilities entailed in the oficial signature.

The committees will function as unofficial fact - finding boards in all cases brought before them. After both sides, they will forward their decision, if any, to the commander of the Third Student Regiment for further action.

Members of the Third Officer Candidate Company have been selected to orbser junior companies on the code before it goes into effect. Elections for honor council representatives will be conducted in the companies before March. 29.

'Thermos' Boots Reduce Wounds

WASHINGTON —(AFPS)— "Thermos" boots originally procured by the Marine Corps to protect troops against freezing temperatures have produced an unexpected benefit.

The footgear has been praised by the 1st Marine Division in Korea as a preventive against shock of explosives and possibly against metal fragments from land mines. Many personnel wearing the boots have been foot injuries.

Marine Corps Headquarters is now testing the boots to improve their shock resistant qualities.

Repairs Begun On Water System At Fort Benning

Extensive repairs to the Fort Benning water system consisting mainly of cleaning and relining water lines were begun Monday. Infantry Center engineers issued a plea for strict water conservation during the repair period.

The capacity of the water system will be materially reduced as a result of closing certain mains during repair. The work is expected to be completed within eight months.

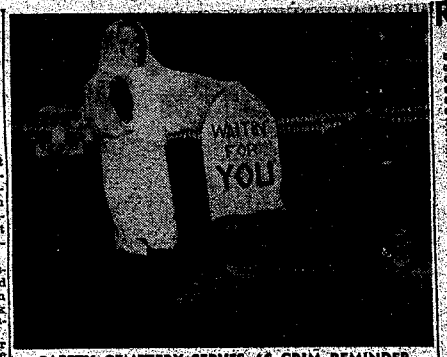
During the course of the repair period, certain portions of the Main Post may be cut off from water for a few hours at a time. However, at no time will the entire Main Post be cut off.

The following rules went into effect Monday:

Lawns may be sprinkled from 7 - 9 p.m. on Weekdays, and from 3 - 9 p.m. on Sundays. Flowerbeds or small garden plots that are watered by holding the hose in the hand may be watered at other hours. Newly needed or sprigged lawns may penetrates to three inches, but in no case will water be allowed to pond.

Washing of government vehicles by hose will be limited to that strictly essential for operational effectiveness. This will be limited to one washing per week, with the date to be entered under the "Remarks" column of the vehicle equipment and operational record. When essential, vehicles may be washed using water taken by hand from a bucket using brushes, sponges, or rags.

Leaks, to include dripping faucets, should be reported immediately to the Infantry Center engineer, telephone 3587.



SAFETY CEMETERY SERVES AS GRIM REMINDER
Sgt. Leon Barton Digs Grave While Grim Reaper Looks On

Mock Cemetery Tells Drivers Death Can Come in An Instant

A cemetery in the middle of the First Battalion, Second Student Regiment area is a grim reminder to all who pass to practice safety.

The cemetery is located at the intersection of three streets, a heavily - traveled area. Although there are no bodies in the cemetery, there are several graves, with such inscriptions as "Pfc. 6x6 Driver—Still 6x6."

At the entrance to the cemetery is a statue of the grim reaper holding aloft a scythe bearing the inscription, "The Reaper's Haven — The Final Resting Place For Those Who Couldn't Wait."

Brainchild of Lt. Col. Eskel N. Miller, First Battalion commander, and 1st Lt. Paul J. Weston, the cemetery was built to serve as a constant reminder to all who pass that safety should be practiced at all times.

Colonel Miller said "We're mostly trying to impress people by doing something unusual enough to make safety stick in their minds."

Sgt. Leon Barton and Sgt. Warren S. Williams did the groundwork for the cemetery. Colonel Miller even issued a grave-diggers card to Sergeant Barton for his part in constructing the cemetery.

The first real recipe given for gunpowder is that of English friar Roger Bacon and calls for saltpeter, charcoal and sulphur.

Lockheed Pilots Learning Parachute Fall Methods

Six daredevil test pilots from of the seven men were injured. the Marietta, Ga., division of the Lockheed Airplane Corporation are learning how to put more spring in their fall at The Infantry School's Airborne Department this week.

The crew arrived here yesterday for a two-day course in parachute landing fall instruction.

James E. Watson, chief test pilot for Lockheed, requested the military instruction for the civilians as a precautionary measure following a recent incident in which a test pilot, co-pilot and crew of five made emergency jumps from a crippled B-29. Five Lockheed hopes to decrease injuries on emergency bail-outs by instructing employes in the proper methods of accomplishing parachute landing falls. They will learn the correct body postures and will make landing falls from a platform.

Like airborne trainees here they will practice exits from a mock airplane body 34 feet above the ground and make several free parachute drops from a training tower 250 feet high.

Pilots attending the course include J. V. Head, R. F. Dellenback, J. Sticks, J. D. Kilpatrick, R. R. Lott and A. F. Soulis.

Retirement Policy Uniform For EM in All Services

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Enlisted personnel of all Services who have more than 20 and less than 30 years service now fall under a uniform retirement policy.

A Defense Department directive establishes a policy which makes those who apply for inactive duty after 20 years of service subject to recall. Here's the way it works:

Upon application, enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps with over 20 years and less than 30 years service will be transferred to the Reserve, or, in the Navy and Marine Corps, the Fleet Reserve.

Depending on needs of the Service, personnel in this category may be recalled for a period of 24 months. The policy also provides for those who wish to volunteer for active duty. They may do so for any period of time depending on the needs of their particular Service.

HARVEY DISTEL
. . . Amazing Comeback

The first Student Regiment has moved into a five point lead in the Fort Benning boxing championships by virtue of two first class fighters going unmatched in the last two boxing rds.

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, with 80 points, is now in second place, five points behind.

In Tuesday night's fights at Briant Wells Field House, Harvey Distel, CTC lightheavy, rose from almost certain defeat to knockout Vern Bottom, 508th, in 1:57 of the second round. Bottom had Distel in trouble throughout the first and second rounds and up until the time he caught a sound blow left.

Bottom is a class three fighter and winner of the lightweight Diamond Belt in Columbus last week who challengd up into the class two group to get a crack at Distel.

An equally good fight from the spectator standpoint was the Dick Autry-Ronald Swingle middleweight bout. The two fighters came out of their corners swinging and for 56 seconds stood toe to toe until Swingle KO'd Autry.

Although Autry was the only First Student Regiment entry in the fights Tuesday, the Regiment moved into first place in the competition by virtue of forfeits. They gained 30 points as result of three unmatched fighters, Dick Lohmann, Ernest Hall, and Len James.

The Benning Boxing League now stands like this:

First Student Regiment, 85 points; 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, 80 points; Area Service Unit, 77 points; Combat Training Command, 65 points; Third Student Regiment, 4; Provisional Medical Group, 9; and Infantry School Detachment, 5.

Tuesday's fights marked the seventh in the weekly series of Fort Benning championship boxing matches with 16 bouts on tap of 7:15 next Tuesday at Briant Wells Field House.

Elimination of the post boxers will continue for another six weeks until a 10 man team has been picked that will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Tournament.

Doped Horse Detector Now Student Here

People who bet on the nags in Florida nowadays can be assured that if their horse ran last, it wasn't because the winner had a more potent "dope job."

According to Officer Candidate William Jacobs, Second Officer Candidate company, Third Student regiment, doped horses just don't run on the Florida tracks.

A former toxicologist for the Florida State Racing Commission, Jacobs asserts that modern detection methods are so detailed and accurate that there are few drugs if any which could be used to speed up a horse and not be detected—and few are detected.

Jacobs studied one year at Tulane University and four years at Miami University majoring in Chemistry and Biology. He graduated from Miami in 1950, and began to work for the racing commission.

Candidate Jacobs also inspected race tracks in Havana, Cuba. To amplify the effectiveness of the commission's crime detectors, he recalls 3 instances of cases detected by the "lab detectives" which revealed declaiming of races. Since the winning and any suspected horses are tested, a fair percentage of the Cuban results changed when the lab crews found proof of horses having been doped.

A TRIO OF CHAMPS . . . These three riflemen proved to be some of the finest in the country when the 16th Annual National Midwinter small-bore Rifle Tournament was over March 8. Left is Capt. James McCubbin, of Fort Benning who won the difficult 50 meter Iron Sight Match. In the center is Sam Bond, 1950 winner of the small-bore championship and at the right is Gil Humphreville who won the U. S. Service Trophy Match, an aggregate composed of four individual matches.
