A 40-year-old warrant officer born in Texas claims to be a direct descendant of the royal Hohenzellern family of Germany, the family that furnished the last three German rulers before Hitler came to power.

WOJG Theodor Von Essen claims he has royal blood coursing through his veins direct from Kaiser Wilhelm I, Wilhelm II and Wilhelm III. He says his great-grandfather was a count, and he himself would hold the title had not all titles been abolished by the Weimar Republic after World War I.

His family retains the prefix "Von" awarded them during the middle ages, comparable to the British "Sir."

Born in Giddings, Texas, Mr. Von Essen was educated in Germany. He was a student in Oldenburg when war began between the U. S. and Germany. Partially interned because he was an American citizen, he witnessed the British bombing of Oldenburg.

Mr. Von Essen, who speaks Dutch, Swedish, German and Danish like a native, still speaks English with a slight accent.

He returned to the U. S. after World War I and joined the Army in 1935. During World War II, he served in the African, Middle Eastern, and China-Burma-India theaters.

In February, 1950, he was with an engineer unit in Eniwetok atoll building structures used in the atomic tests held there. When the mission was completed, the unit moved to Korea and Mr. Von Essen took part in the spectacular withdrawal from the Hungnam beachhead in December 1950. He is assigned to the 43rd Engineer Combat Battalion.

Troops At Front Try Atomic Test

KOREA — (AFPS) — Frontline tests to determine how efficiently combat troops can operate when faced with an atomic attack are being carried out by the U. S. Army here.

More than 10,000 troops of the Ninth Corps are involved in "operation Mushroom." Communication installations and the corps' vital facilities have gone deeply underground in preparation for a theoretical atomic blast.

It is the first time an army corps has trained for one type of warfare while actually engaged in another.

The operation is part of the Army's over-all continuing study of the changes necessary to meet the demands of atomic war. It follows Army studies at the atomic ranges in Nevada, where troops have actually witnessed an atomic explosion.

A 22-year Army veteran from Prosser, Wash., has retired here. He is Sgt. Archie E. Holt.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., Infantry Center commander, presented the Third Army Certificate of Achievement to Sgt. Prosser at retirement ceremonies. Troops of the Second Student Regiment passed in review, and music was provided by the 122nd Army Band.

Sergeant Holt, before his retirement, was a member of the Second Student Regiment's 108th Company, graduated from high school in Prosser in 1929 and enlisted in the Army the year following.

A veteran of 10 years overseas service, he served with the 15th Infantry Regiment in Tientsin, China, from 1935 to 1937, the 308th Harbor Craft Unit in India from 1944 to 1945 and the 7822nd Station Complement Unit in Munich, Germany, from 1949 to 1951. He was with the 30th Infantry Regiment in San Francisco, Calif., from 1939 to 1940.

He came here May 17, 1953, to attend the Chemical, Biological and Radiological School.

24 MONTHS TO PAY BALANCE

ASU-ISD In Crucial Go; 508 Begins

ASU Provisional Group, riding a two-game winning streak powered by a trio of .300 hitters, offers the biggest threat yet to the unbeaten skein of league-leading Infantry School Detachment at 8 p.m. Friday at Gowdy Field.

Professor Manager Woody Burt will try to stop the surging Raiders with southpaw Joe Feinstein (4-0) or Bob Cronin (2-0). Clyde Britton (1-0), who has allowed only three runs in 12⅓ innings, will toe the rubber for ASU.

The smoke from this battle of unbeaten pitchers will hardly have cleared before 508th Airborne wades into the Benning Baseball League at 2 p.m. Sunday with an all-pro lineup to take on Lawson Field.

Well Leaded

The Red Devils are starting 0-0 in the standings, but they still have a chance to earn a first division berth to get in the Shaughnessy playoffs. From 63 candidates Manager H. E. (High Explosive) Williams has picked a first string which reeks with experienced pros at every position.

Williams wouldn't name a starting lineup, but then he was never noted for over talkativeness in three seasons in the major leagues. He was utility infielder with the Athletics in 1929-30 and played briefly with the Red Sox in 1932.

The veteran New Yorker also has played with Beaumont, Atlanta and Rochester.

Fair Warning

"I've got 'em cut down to working size and if they live up to their backgrounds and past efforts someone is in for some trouble," said Williams, who has scouted all of his rivals-to-be.

ASU showed its class last Sunday by overcoming an 0-3 deficit to take a 7-3 decision from Combat Training Command, the pre-season pennant favorites. Just before that, they pounded Provisional Medical Group, 11-3.

Bobby Dews, who probably has a better "getting on base" average than any player in the loop, will catch for the Raiders. The 37-year old veteran has caught with the best minor league teams in the country and can still belt 'em to any field.

Batting Crown

The batting lead also may be at stake Friday night. ISD's Ray Blankenship has 16 hits in 27 trips for a lusty .597 mark while ASU's Bill Hahn is second with a .538 mark. Five of the Prof regulars are cutting at a .300 or better pace.

The skidding Commanders will be put squarely on the spot in the coming week's other action. They face Second Student Regiment at 2 p.m. Saturday with a fair chance to feather their fourth place nest, but meets big ASU Provisional at 8 p. m. Wednesday. CTC batting shows flashes of pennant potential, but so far they have failed entirely in the clutches.

BENNING K-9 CLUB "STUDENTS" AWAIT THEIR TURN TO GET INTO THE ACT
Getting Bow-Wows To Sit Together Like This For Long Periods Is Part Of Training

Leading Dog's Life Is Okay If Pup Is In New Post Club

If Rover makes life miserable for the mail man and delivery boy and you don't know how to teach him better manners, then both you and Fido (or whatever your dog's name) are ripe for membership in the Fort Benning K-9 Club.

The small but workable group is composed of post personnel and their families who have a common interest in the owning, training, breeding and development of canines.

Spot does just as he's told (and likes it) at the club's weekly meeting and training session at 2 p.m. Saturdays at the old Horseshoe Stadium, located at the north end of Anderson Ave., behind the Game and Fish Association offices, main post.

Sgt. Bob Donahue, owner of Gallant, mascot of the last U. S. Olympic bobsled team, Lt. George Sears and Lt. Richard Ross are members who direct most of the dogs' training.

Good Behavior

The idea is obedience training, to get Rover to know and respond quickly and without question to ordinary commands which he should expect from his master in his everyday routine.

Owners are rewarded by learning to know their pets better and understanding how to handle and help them.

Sears and Donahue got together several months ago to discuss the German shepards that both own and it wasn't long before the idea for a Benning dog club was hatched between them.

Wanted: Members

Now incorporated, the club has picked up nearly a dozen members in a month's time and the membership rolls still are wide open. Shady Horseshoe Stadium, scene of the post's colorful equine activites in years past, makes an excellent training site for the dogs.

Maj. Raymond Hitchcock has been elected president of the group, with Donahue as veep, Lt. Gale Livengood as treasurer and Sears as secretary.

Other members are Lt. Howard Parks, Sgt. Maclellan Cash, Lt. Richard Peabody, Capt. John Metz, Lt. Alan Kinghorn and M-Sgt. James Hicks.

Interested dog owners should contact Lt. Sears at Fort Benning 2975 or Columbus 2-4619.

Cox Cops Only Title For 3A

Foneda Cox, of the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., won the All-Army middleweight championship Saturday night to become the only 1952 world wide service champion from the Third Army Area.

One Fort Benning fighter, flyweight George Allen, of ASU Provisional Group, reached the semifinals in the Fort Monmouth, N.J., tournament which attracted 92 sluggers from the ten rah-rah Army commands all over the world.

Two other Benning mittmen went to the quarter finals. They were welterweight Ernest Hall, who was beaten by Frank Smith, the ultimate champion, and Leonard James, who lost to FECOM's Bob Bickle in one of the toughest weight classes in the tournament.

Hall and James are from First Student Regiment.

Third Army Led

The Third Army team, coached by Pvt. Benning's WOJG Jerry Scarbrough, took the first round by virtue of scoring with four finalists but quickly slipped out of the pace. With five more fighters in the semis, Army won the title with 27 points, followed by the Far East Command with 17 points.

In addition to having the somewhat dubious distinction of losing to the champ, Hall also scored the only knockout registered by a Benning fighter. He TKO'd Pat Best, of Second Army, in 2:30 of the first prior to meeting Smith. Hall stunned Best with a right and gave him a pelting over before the referee stopped it.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

BASEBALL is as American as the Bill of Rights. And no other sport could be played as often (154 games a year in the majors) and still hold the interest of this country's fans. It's a perfect combination of game and contest, offering a multitude of possibilities on a moment's notice, yet no matter how much team action is involved every man on the field must do his one job at one time for his side to be successful.

The players are required to use every faculty they possess—speed, courage, physical condition, accuracy and instant thinking. All of this makes for sustained suspense and every game in organized competition has a winner or loser except on the infrequent occasion of bad weather. In other sports, when the bell rings or whistle blows it's all over.

My purpose here is not to sell you baseball. The game itself doesn't need it. Rather, these are random thoughts as I watch the myriad of diamond action around the post. Each week I see four Benning League games, a couple of American Legion contests, usually a Little League tilt or so, and try to have enough spare time to catch a couple offerings of the Columbus Cardinals downtown. I wish there was more and that I had time for it.

Benning has always been rich in baseball. A score of name players have performed here, including about a half dozen in the majors today such as Ewell Blackwell, Jackie Robinson and Larry Doby. Our ball park bears the name of one of the game's outstanding catchers. They tagged it Gowdy Field in 1924 in recognition of Harry (Hank) Gowdy who was the first major leaguer to join the Army in World War I, serving with the 166th Rainbow Division in France.

HANK GOWDY

Hank still follows the game closely from his Columbus, O. home, but for the first time since 1908 he is not taking part in one form or the other. Several months ago he was released from his job as farm club trouble shooter for the Cleveland Indians. I note in a recent Associated Press dispatch that although he's 62 he is planning to get back in the big show in some capacity before another season. As late as 1947, Gowdy was still on the playing field, as a coach with my favorite team, the New York Giants.

Gowdy would be no stranger to Fort Benning if he were to drop in today. He was here to dedicate the field in 1924. When World War II broke out he volunteered again and was stationed here as a Special Services officer. You may remember him in several capacities. He was catching star of the Boston Braves miracle team of 1914. After that he starred with the Giants and coached the Braves from 1929 through 1937. He has been affiliated with six pennant winners—the '14 Braves, '23-24 Giants, '39-40 Cincinnati winners—the '14 Braves, '23-24 Giants, '39-40 Cincinnati Reds and '48 Cleveland Indians.

Luck has not always been with Gowdy. There was the time in the seventh and deciding game of the 1924 World Series between the Giants and Senators that Hank, pursuing an easy pop foul in the 12th inning, stumbled over his mask and missed the ball. Muddy Ruel, the batter, then doubled and subsequently scored the winning run. In 1926, he received his big chance as manager of the Columbus entry in the American Association and was supposedly heading for a major league managerial role if he made good. But Gowdy's talent-shy club won only 69 and lost 128, a league record for the most lost in a season and he seems never to have shed the stigma of that.

Despite all of this, baseball remains his first love and he'll be back in it if and when the opportunity presents itself. As I said there are numerous things that make the game great, and guys like Gowdy are not the least of them. As I watch the youngsters go through their paces in the post leagues, awkward at some of them are now, I can't help but thinking (and hoping) that maybe there's a future edition of another Gowdy among them.

Again, this wasn't intended as a shill for baseball, but if you've been missing the eager action around here, you're cheating yourself. A word to the wise usually being sufficient, you will find the schedules in other columns on these pages.

CTC's New Order Halts Flyers, 9-2

Combat Training Command, sporting a radically revised lineup, snapped out of a two-game losing streak by beating Lawson Field, 9-2, in a seven-inning game Tuesday night.

Stan Edwards, who has pitched in three pro leagues although he is only 22 years old, muffled the Flyer bats with just three hits as he fanned 12 and had rough going in only two innings.

The Commanders got a l n e blows off Lawson lefty Tom Norbut paced by a double and single by Bill Toone, who made his debut at the gateway sack for CTC.

Other new faces were center fielder Paul Shover who hit a two-bagger in four tries, third baseman Joe Simone who scored twice, but had a rough night afield, left fielder Joe Deleo and catcher Jack McCluney.

There's only three games difference now between the top four clubs in the post circuit.

An error by Charlie Urbanowich, singles by Bobby Clark and Toone and a walk to Simone resulted in three Commander runs in the first.

The Flyers retaliated in the fourth when Norbut singled, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Marvin Driver's big triple to right. Driver tallied on another bad pitch by Edwards.

Tom Butts led off the CTC fifth with a single and all hands were safe on Shover's grounder back to the box. Both advanced on an error and Butts came home on Clark's pop up. Deleo singled Shover across.

A walk to Simone and double by Toone set up two insurance runs for CTC in the seventh.

Blanky Bats ISD to 6th In Row

Feinstein In 4th Win, Profs Enter Stretch

Ray Blankenship, 22-year old former Carthage, Ill., College star, belted a triple, double and single driving in four runs and scored three himself as Infantry School Detachment blitzed Lawson Field, 16-5, Friday in the league leaders only action of the week.

It was the sixth straight win for the Professors who reached the midway point in the season unbeaten.

Lefty Joe Feinstein became the loop's top hurler with a 4-0 record as he pitched a one-hit shut out for five innings before retiring behind a safe lead to let Bill Sears try his arm.

Sears was tagged for five runs and five hits in the last inning.

Bill Gill, who along with Blankenship gives ISD the top keystone in the circuit, contributed a triple and single in three ups and one of Mel Southall's two hits was a double.

The game was iced with ISD's eight-run outbreak in the first inning against Tom Norbut, Lawson ace who was minus his stuff entirely.

Raiders Cop Pair; Hahn Stars

Carroll Mattson, victim of some touch luck in previous efforts, held Combat Training Command to nine hits and no earned runs as ASU Provisional Group socked the Commanders, 7-3, before 500 fans Sunday in a Fort Benning Baseball League game.

Mattson fanned nine and allowed only two runners as far as third except in the second when Clarence Faucett, Joe Gomez and Reggie Carroll got singles.

Carroll would have left the former two stranded without damage, however, if Major Metts hadn't butter-fingered the third out.

ASU first sacker Lee Laney boosted his average to a handsome .425 as he collected 3-for-4, but it was Bill Hahn, the team's leading slugger, who belted a two-run single in the ninth to supply the Raiders with their margin.

Turn about being fair play, ASU got three unearned runs in the seventh to tie the score with singles by Larry Green, Mel Tipton and Mattson contributing.

Following Hahn's payoff blast in the ninth, Fort Settle doubled to bring in two more runs.

Coleman Effective

Henry Coleman, a rubbery first-time starter for the Raiders, threw five innings of shutout ball before being shelled in the sixth as ASU downed Provisional Medical Group, 11-3, Wednesday in their other game of the week. Clyde Britton came in to get Coleman out of the jam and he finished the route without allowing a hit.

Meantime, Hahn, mainstay of Raider baseball and basketball teams for two years, led a six-hit assault against Medic ace Floyd Kendall. Bill belted a 336-foot homer over the right field wall with a mate aboard in the first, got two singles which drove in another run and scored one himself.

THE POST'S FINEST . . . The nearly three dozen eager amateur boxers who made a rousing success of the recent Fort Benning ring season had their hour of praise last week. In ceremonies at Special Services the champions and runnersup received awards presented by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., (center), Infantry Center commander. Col. Courtlandt Krams, at General Meloy's left, received trophies emblematic of team championship won by his Area Service Unit Provisional Group.

Medics Outlast Rockets, 9-8, For First Loop Win

Provisional Medical Group claimed its first win of the 1952 campaign by outlasting Second Student Regiment, 9-8, Saturday at Gowdy Field.

Nine errors marred the action for some 1150 fans, the smallest crowd of the season. An estimated 10,500 fans have seen the first 20 games.

The Medics pecked away at Lawson starter Joe Foizey and Paul Treaster who relieved in the third. They scored their final run in the seventh and then sweated it out while Shirley Adkins was nicked for five runs in the eighth and ninth.

Close Squeeze

Adkins struck out Jack Barry and Charlie Shoemaker for the final outs with the tieing and winning runs on base.

Al Easley, former Georgia pro player and probably the best all round first sacker in the circuit, led the PMG attack with 3-for-5, including a triple which got the winner's first run.

Raiders End Commanders' Streak in Little League

The Raiders racked up two victories last week in the Doughboy Little League and in the doing served the first defeat of the season to the leading Commanders.

In a wild game, M-Sgt. Mike Brokovich's Raiders tripped the Commanders, 21-18, with Knapp belting a home run, double and two singles in five at bats for the winners.

Some Legal Dillies In Sports

(BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE)

Did you know a golfer could beat an opponent's hole-in-one? That a boxer could win his fight while lying unconscious outside the ring? And a ball-carrier in football can score a touchdown without crossing the goal line? It's all true—and covered by rules. None of these dillies has happened yet, but they're all possibilities.

Here are a few instances: Two opponents are tied trying to the 18th hole in golf when B sinks his ball on the first stroke. What can A do? Simple—he aims his swing at B's caddie and is awarded half the hole if his aim is good. The rule states that if an opponent or his caddie interferes with the ball in motion, his side loses its advantage.

Speed merchant A, a shifty halfback in football, breaks into the clear on his 59-yard line and romps beyond his pursuers down the sidelines. A substitute tackler on Team B, unable to restrain himself, leaps from the bench and tackles A on the B 45. The referee could give A's team an additional 15 yards, but that wouldn't be fair, for A could have made the whole distance. So, he gives A the touchdown and the hero's role in the contest.

Toward the end of a slugging fight, two boys land simultaneously right hand punches. Fighter A sails through the ropes and B drops in the middle of the ring. B gets up just too late for the 10-count, but A is still out. The referee continues to count and at 14 A shows signs of life. At 18 he's on his way back to the ring, and at 20 he's standing in it. A wins under the new ruling—it allows a man knocked out of the ring a 20-count to get on his feet and back inside the ropes. He made it; B couldn't get up within the ropes in the regulation 10-count.

This sort of thing could go on forever, but it's

124th Tops 126th, 7-1, In Second S. R. Loop

The 124th Company softball team of Second Student Regiment rolled to a 7-1 victory over the 126th Company in regimental play last Tuesday.

Draper went all the way on the mound for the 24th, holding the 126th to four safeties while his mates were connecting for seven. Palmer topped the 124th hitters with two safeties, with Love's triple being the only extra-base blow for the victors.

Faholski slammed a triple for the losers, in addition to being charged with the defeat. The 114th was awarded a forfeit win over Company M of the Rangers.

OC Pennant Near For Third Company

With only two games remaining in First Officer Candidate Battalion's softball league competition, Third O.C. Company, First Regiment, is making a strong bid to take top honors.

Behind the one-hit pitching of Ed Brickett, they blanked First Company, 3-0, last week. John Haire is captain of the team.

How Would You Call It?

BY HARRY SIMMONS

How far can a baseball player go toward turning the game into football? Here, in a simulated major league setting, is a situation introducing the quick kick to the diamond.

It's the Boston Red Sox lead, 4-3, as the St. Louis Browns come to bat at Fenway Park at the top of the eighth. Mike Goliat singles and reaches third on a double by the next man up. Jim Rivera is walked. That loads the bases, and the signal for a squeeze is flashed.

Freddie Marsh lays down a bunt that trickles into foul ground just over the third-base line. As Goliat steams down the line for home, the ball begins to curve back toward fair territory. Goliat, knowing that he will be out if the ball rolls fair, unceremoniously boots it back toward the visitor's bench.

The Sox storm out of the dugout, charging interference. But—interference on a foul ball? How would you rule?

ANSWER

No interference here.

Under Section 7.09b, any batter who deflects a batted foul ball while running to first is out. Section 7.05b penalizes a fielder whose thrown glove touches a batted foul ball. But there is no rule in the book prohibiting a runner from third from reflecting a foul ball.

DSC Goes to Lieutenant For Gallantry in Korea

The nation's second highest award, the Distinguished Service Cross, has been awarded to 1st Lt. David R. Hughes for gallantry in action in Korea.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., Infantry Center commander, made the presentation.

A veteran of 16 months combat in Korea, Lt. Hughes won the decoration for "extraordinary heroism" in action against the enemy near Sokkogae, Korea, while a member of the Seventh Cavalry Regiment, First Cavalry Division.

"When his unit was assaulted by a large hostile force occupying a strategic hill, Lt. Hughes realized that his badly decimated force was in imminent danger of annihilation." He rapidly organized all the able bodied men about him and moved forward to a new attack, according to the citation.

He singlehandedly advanced against the enemy position," the citation continues, "disregarding the concentrated fire of the foe, he charged to the crest of the hill, fired his automatic weapon until it ran out of ammunition and then pressed the attack solely with grenades.

His audacious assault completely demoralized the enemy, and, as he moved among them fighting fiercely, his men charged up the slope and engaged the hostile troops in close combat," the citation concludes.

The son of Mrs. Helen L. Hughes of Denver, Col., he graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in 1950.

He served with the First Cavalry Division in Korea from 1950 until coming to his assignment here last April 4 as an instructor in The Infantry School's Tactical Department.

Lt. Hughes holds the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal with V device for valor, Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Greek Cross of War.

General Young Takes Over

Army To Celebrate Birthday Saturday

A review commemorating the 177th Anniversary of the United States Army will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday morning at French Field.

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, newly arrived commanding general of The Infantry Center, will be the reviewing officer for 3,600 troops — the largest mass formation of men since his arrival at Fort Benning.

The Army birthday has special significance for The Infantry Center. The Army is the oldest branch of the Armed Services and the Infantry is the oldest branch of the Army — in fact, older than the United States itself. It was founded on June 14, 1775, one year before the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776.

Featured in the parade will be the 198th Field Artillery Battalion, oldest artillery unit in the Third Army Area. The 198th, a Kentucky National Guard organization now a part of the Combat Training Command has a history dating back to 1839.

Brig. Gen Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant commandat of The Infantry School, will also be on the reviewing stand with Gen. Young and their staffs. Col. Sevier R. Tupper, First Student Brigade commander, has been designated commander of troops. Music will be furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

The parade will consist of a composite Brigade, consisting of

Benning Awaits ROTC Students

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, will welcome 2,500 Infantry ROTC cadets expected to attend summer camp here June 23 in Doughboy Stadium.

The cadets, representing 69 colleges and universities in the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Army areas and Puerto Rico, will begin arriving June 20 for the six-week summer encampment, largest ever held in the U. S.

The advanced ROTC students will have 34 hours of Infantry School instruction, including firing of individual and crew-served weapons, practice marches, field exercises and field maneuvers. They also will see weap-

Service Clothing Prices Due for 15% Drop July 1

(AFPS) — Beginning July 1, clothing prices for servicemen and women will decline about 15 per cent.

With the price decline will come a similar dip in initial clothing allowances as well as monthly basic maintenance and standard maintenance allowances.

Formal Defense Department approval is expected shortly and the Services have already begun publishing new price lists. Basic maintenance allowances for all Services will drop from $5.10 to $4.20 per month.

Standard monthly allowances for both men and women will also decline. Women of all Services will receive $6.00 per month where they formerly received $7.20. Enlisted men of the Navy and Air Force will receive $6.00 where they formerly received $7.20, but men of the Army and Marine Corps will receive $5.40 where they formerly received $6.60.

The Army's monetary value of initial issue will drop from $229.70 to $172.91. The reason for this is that the wool shirt is no longer part of the initial issue. Henceforth it will be organizational clothing issued only when specifically needed.

Such items as the Army rain coat for example, will decline from $7.35 to $5.60, OD trousers from $12.95 to $10.80 and khaki shirts from $4.00 to $3.40.

The Navy's initial issue value

Plan Revealed For Separation System Change

Effective July 1 a package, planned separation center will begin operation at Fort Benning.

The 3440th Area Service Unit Separation Point will function as a separation point for all separations at this post except these two:

House Hunting?

The Columbus Branch Billeting office, located in the basement of Trinity Episcopal church at 1136 First Avenue, downtown, reports a wide selection of furnished and unfurnished houses and apartments are now available for military personnel. The office is open from 8:45 a.m. until 6 p.m. week days, and noon to 5 p.m. Saturdays. The telephone number is Dial 3-4551.

Provisions Told For Pay Raise

Six provisions were included in the Armed Forces Pay Bill passed late last month by congress and signed by President Truman. Of the six points, all are permanent except the quarters allowance for enlisted personnel. That runs concurrently with the Department Act of 1949 which expires April 30, 1953.

Provisions adopted included:

1. The base pay of armed forces personnel will be increased four per cent.

2. All servicemen are entitled to quarters and subsistence allowances or adequate quarters and subsistence in kind. Those who are not furnished quarters and subsistence in kind will receive a cash allowance.

Honor Guard Greets CG

Fort Benning's new commanding general said here Monday that if the Communists attack the Eighth Army will "clobber them."

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, who has assumed his new post here as Infantry Center commander and Infantry School commandant, commanded the Second Infantry Division in Korea before returning to the U. S. last month.

"The Eighth Army is in excellent shape," General Young said. "Its training is fine, its morale high and it is indeed an effective combat outfit."

General Young said he did not believe that the Eighth Army could go all the way to the Yalu River, but "there would be a lot of dead Communists in Korea should they decided to launch another attack at this time."

Next Sunday Marks Infantry's Birthday

On Sunday, June 15, the Infantry of the United States Army will celebrate its one-hundred and seventy-seventh anniversary. On June 15, 1775, the Infantry was officially recognized.

Since then the Infantry has always been ready to fight on a minute's notice. Since the beginning of history the mission of the Infantry soldier has been to close with the enemy and destroy or capture him.

Our Infantry of the Revolutionary War period was a hodge podge of organizations and equipment, a natural outgrowth of its origin in the isolated home-guard units of the organized colonies.

In 1775, when Washington took command of the patriot forces, the Infantry was organized into 35 regiments.

The typical regiment was

French Army Secretary Tells Europe's Needs

Europe needs American ingenuity to solve its mutual defense problems, Pierre de Chevigne, French Army secretary, said here last week.

"American inventiveness has produced some of the world's finest weapons and training methods," the French Army official declared. "We need both in France today."

M. de Chevigne had particular praise for the recoilless subcaliber device used in infantry weapons training. This device was invented by Ray Miller of Columbus (Ga.), civilian superintendent of the Ordnance Shops here.

The French Army secretary was accompanied on his one day whirlwind tour of The Infantry Center by Brig. Gen. Jacques de la Boisse, French military attache to the U.S.

The Second Battalion of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team formed an honor guard for the French official at noon Thursday. A 19-gun salute was fired by the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, and music was furnished by the 12nd Army Band.

After an official luncheon at the Main Officers Mess here, the French party visited The Infantry School's Operations Office for a briefing and Simpson Range, the Army's first electronically-operated firing range.

The French officials also visited the school's Airborne Department and watched a heavy equipment drop and parachute jump by troops of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Brig Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., entertained the visitors Thursday evening at an official dinner in the Officers Mess.

M. de Chevigne and his party returned to Washington, D. C., last Thursday night.

struction and training of the Belgian General Staff.

During their stay here, the Belgians will visit the Infantry School's Operations Office and the Army Extension Courses, Staff, Weapons, and Tactical Departments.

They also will tour the First Officer Candidate Regiment area and talk with officer candidate officials and visit the school's director of instruction.

They are scheduled to leave Fort Benning June 21 to continue their tour of U. S. Military Installations.

effect during the month of June and in no event later than June 25.

2. Enlisted personnel arriving in the continental United States from overseas during the month of June who are scheduled for July separation will be separated at the earliest possible time after their arrival.

Additional personnel who are effected by this include reserve component enlisted personnel who are serving involuntarily and whose separations are scheduled in July.

This new policy does not apply to:

Inductees or members of the Regular Army who enlisted for 24 months under the provisions of Section four (C) (1) for the Universal Military Training and Selective Service Act, as amended.

2. 2. Enlisted personnel of the National Guard AAA Battalions and other designated National Guard AAA units whose release will be effected otherwise.

Personnel who are now serving voluntary extensions are not eligible for discharge under this program. Enlisted men who desire to complete their period of active service to fulfill a reserve obligation may be retained until their normal expiration of term of service. Also, those who desire to extend their enlistments voluntarily will be permitted to do so.

ment by the school's Automotive Department.

The Staff Department will discuss personnel management, leadership, physical training, intelligence, map reading, operations, organization and training and logistics.

Other discussion periods will include Infantry tactics by members of the Tactical Department, Infantry training literature and training aids by the Training Publications Department, airborne training, Infantry communications and Ranger training.

The conference will close with an Infantry School panel discussion, "The Infantry Inspectors' Forum".

The visitors will return to their home stations June 21.

Fort Benning Children Win 38 Special Certificates

Some 38 Fort Benning youngsters received awards at the annual awards presentation to students of post children's schools last Thursday.

Col. Daniel N. Hundley, president of the Post School Council, bestowed the awards.

After the invocation by Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, a two-part play, "The Boy Abe," was presented. The following received Letter awards for 1951-1952 in softball and basketball:

J. C. Huckleby, D. T. Lewis, Kenneth Ross and Floyd Gillenwater. Softball letters were presented to Marion Sizemore, Donald McPheron, John Chrissinger, Jeff Dalis, Dale McPheron, Weldon Sellers, Robert Lardon, Fred Trdla and Preston Fussell. Ronald Hutcheson received his basketball letter.

An award was presented to the Fort Benning marble champion Thomas Baldridge, and the runner up Peter Walters. Peter went to the Greater Muscogee Tournament and won first place.

Members of the Safety Patrol, Student Council, and Newspaper Staff were given a vote of thanks for the service they gave during the past school year.

Dawn Schermerhorn, winner of the spelling competition, was awarded a silver cup for representing Benning in the Chattahoochee spelling contest.

Two trophies for field day went to Audrey Lewis with 33 2-3 points and Ronald Hutcheson, 34 2-3 points.

Eighth Grade Added For Post Children

For the first time in its 31 years of existence, the Fort Benning Children's School did not have a seventh graduating class this year.

Eighth grade classes will begin here this fall, thus those who should have graduated this year will attend another year in the Benning Children School's system.

198th FA Battalion Now In 113th Year Of Service

When the Army observes its 177th anniversary Saturday, Fort Benning's 198th Field Artillery battalion will be mid-way in its 113th year of service.

Men of the 198th, oldest artillery unit in the Third Army area, will pause long enough next Saturday to mark the Army birthday in a parade with other Infantry Center troops. They will be reviewed at that time by Fort Benning's new commanding general, Major Gen. Robert N. Young.

Now a Kentucky National Guard battalion, the 198th traces its history back to 1839 when it was known as the Louisville (Ky.) Legion.

Since that time it has had many names, including:

First Regiment of Foot, Kentucky Volunteers; Fifth Kentucky Infantry; Louisville Legion; First Regiment of Infantry, Louisville Legion, First Kentucky Infantry, U. S. Volunteers, and the 138th Field Artillery Regiment.

Service in the 198th is a family tradition with some of the Kentucky men in the unit. Pfc. Robert L. Bristow of Shepherdsville, Ky., is following in the footsteps of his great grandfather, Robert Karn, who marched into the Mexican War as a member of the First Regiment of Foot, Kentucky Volunteers. He was wounded during the Battle of Monterey.

As a Civil War unit, it fought under the banner of the Fifth Kentucky Infantry until it was demobilized in 1864. Its members were back in uniform again during the Spanish - American war, World War I and World War II.

Recalled to Duty

The 198th was recalled to active duty in May, 1951, as a result of the Korean War. It has been at Fort Benning since last January as part of Combat Training Command which provides demonstration troops for The Infantry School.

In addition to helping present problems for studens at The Infantry School here, the 198th also carries out an intensive training program.

Although still a Kentucky outfit, the 198th has added men from many parts of the country to its ranks. Its present commanding officer is Lt. Col. William J. Takacs of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Civilian Wins Money Award

A Fort Benning civil service worker has won the Army's Suggestion Award Certificate for designing a body supporter for window washers. He is Sam Collier, supervisor of janitor personnel. The award also carried a $20.20 check.

Mr. Collier was presented his award Thursday by Col. S. Z. Shugart, Infantry Center adjutant general.

The portable device he designed reduces the hazard of falling by 75 per cent, officials said, by eliminating the use of ladders, long-handled brushes and hooks and braces formerly used in washing the 200 windows in The Infantry School building.

A Civil Service employe at Fort Benning since 1940, Mr. Collier received his present appointment in July 1947. He worked at the Harmony Church Ordnance Shop here from 1942 until 1946.

GRADUATION

The Graduating class numbered 161, including nine foreign officers, two from Greece, two from Thailand and five from the Netherlands.

Re-Ups Average 25 Per Cent

A better than 25 per cent average is being maintained by the Fort Benning Recruiting Office in accomplishing reenlistments among eligible discharges at The Infantry Center.

The office had an increase of 14 per cent for the month of May over April. The May average was 27.34 per cent as compared to 27.40 for April.

The Area Service Unit Provisional Group with an average of 37.87 per cent is maintaining the pace among the major post commands. Army Field Forces Board No. 3 showed an increase of 33.33 per cent for the month of May as compared to April.

Yugoslav Attache Tours Fort Benning This Week

The Yugoslav military attache to the U. S., this week paid the Infantry Center a three-day visit beginning last Monday.

He is Lt. Gen. Danilo Lekic who observed U. S. Infantry training while here. General Lekic was accompanied by Capt. Orfeo Ticac, naval attache. They left Fort Benning yesterday for the Armorde School at Fort Knox, Ky.

An honor guard from the 30th Infantry Regiment's Second Battalion greeted the Yugoslavian general last Monday morning at Chapel Field. Battery C of the 41st Field Artillery Battalion fired a 17-gun salute and music was furnished by the 123nd Army Band.

Following an official luncheon at the Main Officers Mess the afternoon of his arrival, Gen. Lekic visited the First Officer Candidate Regiment area.

The two Yugoslavs toured The Infantry School's Airborne and Automotive Departments and watched 75 mm recoilless rifle and carbine firing demonstrations at Patton and McAndrew Ranges here Tuesday. They also inspected Simpson Range, the Army's first electronically-operated firing range.

Civil Service Worker Wins Suggestion Certificate

A Civil Service worker has received the Army Suggestion Award Certificate and a check for $106.17. She is Mrs. Muriel M. Clark who is employed in the Medical Service Section here.

The Army figures that Mrs. Clark's suggestion of a cost-saving plan for filing trip tickets by bumper number instead of by U. S. Registration number will save the government some $5,900 a year.

Col. Bruno Jastremski, chief of Medical Service at the U. S. Army Hospital here, made the suggestion.

Her idea has resulted in a yearly saving of $3,100 in sorting time for trip tickets and $3,800 in time needed to file the tickets, according to transportation officials.

Under the new system only three employes are required to file the 1,500 tickets daily instead of the former six. This has resulted in a reduction from 18 to six man hours for soaring and from 18 to nine hours for filing.

She was employed June 4, 1951, by the Post Motor Pool here and transferred in February, 1952, to the Medical Service Section as a stenographer.

Her husband is Cpl. Roger A. Clark, formerly with the 12th Medical Holding Detachment here and now with that same organization in Baumholder, Germany.

Saturday Is Army's Birthday

Saturday the Army will be 177 years old and it can look back on its glorious history with just pride.

America's first army wasn't really an army at all as far as modern standards are concerned. It had no organization, dicipline, or precedent, but the members of this ragged band of farmers and merchants had one idea. To protect their property and rights, and from this humble, but determined beginning, comes our Army of today.

In those first crucial years there were no trained instructors, no West Point or OCS and no basic training. Each man soldiered as best he knew and most of them brought their own weapons. The gigantic problem of supply had to be solved, and plans had to be made.

General Washington was the commander-in-chief, but the largest unit he had ever commanded before had been a battalion. But the Army held together somehow. It solved its problems and fought its battles as best it could.

That first army was a civilian Army, like the modern armies we have today. And this is the best kind of Army, but civilian soldiers are not enough.

Washington had to import foreign officers to train his troops but after this first bitter struggle, the United States took care of that problem.

Our modern Army is built around a hard, highly trained, core of regulars, both officers and enlisted men.

This efficient goup of professional soldiers runs through the modern Army like a silk thread. It is flexible and ready to meet new needs and solve new problems as they arise, but the thread is unbroken and the regular Army tradition remains thoughout.

Both professional and civilian soldiers can look back on 177 years of unbroken service with just pride. America's Armies have always proved successful in every undertaking.

They have done more than just fight our wars. Army personnel have undertaken a multitude of other projects in the country. They have served as engineers, have brought relief to millions in time of disaster, and have stood by in time of war and peace as the best guardian of America's security.

A job well done.

Vet Bill Offers Education

With the passage of the post-Korea GI Bill of Rights many men are going to find themselves faced with the question of whether or not to continue their military service or accept possible discharges and go to school.

As passed by the House last week the bill provides education benefits for all armed forces personnel who were in the armed forces on or after June 27, 1950, whether or not they served in the Korean theater.

With only several minor changes the bill is essentially the same as that of the World War II veterans benefits program. Although considerable controversy arose of the current bill while it was progressing through the House, it was ultimately passed by a roll call vote of 361 to one.

The most pronounced change is that of paying directly to the veteran, who, in turn, would be responsible to his educational institution for payments of his tuition. A figure of $110 for single veterans and $150 for married veterans has been established under the current bill.

Abuse of the veterans rights under this new bill will be greatly reduced over the World War II bill. Whereas a veteran of several years ago had it more or less "easy", the veteran of today may find himself looking for a job in order to makeboth ends meet.

The purpose of this bill is not to make it as rough as possible for education - minded vets but rather to make those who want it really go after it. The benefits available under this bill are adequate to the veteran who wants to continue his schooling. If a vet is planning to go to school under the new GI Bill of Rights without any outside financial assistance or without a reserve of funds put away during his service, he is likely to find it necessary to enroll at either a state institution or as a resident at a land grant college.

Out of the $110 that a single veteran receives he is also going to be required to furnish his own books and subsistance.

Typical of the land grant schools is the University of Georgia located at Athens. The University of Georgia has a resident matriculation fee of $60 per quarter which lasts three months for a total of three quarters for the school year or four for the calender year.

During a quarter a student will receive three dividends from the government totaling $330. Out of this he will be required to pay to the University a tuition fee of $60—providing he is a resident of the state of Georgia. Non - residents are charged an additional fee of $100 per quarter at this particular institution.

With a balance of $250 the student will find these additional expenses (as set down by the school as a minimum): books, $20; dormitory and laundry, $40; and board $130.

Bible Is Still Right Way Of Life

BY CHAPLAIN (1ST LT.) P. D. MCCONVILLE

During the nineteen centuries of its existence, the inspired Word of God which we know as the Bible has been the treasure of the western world and of many parts of the east. It has been quoted more often than any other book and in our own day is still the world's best seller.

Originally contained in the hearts and minds of men, until the first bishops of the Church had compiled it from the writings of the Four Evangelists and the Sacred Authors of the Epistles, the Acts and the Apocalypse, adding them to the ancient Testament of the Jews, the books of the Bible were copied laboriously by hand in many languages during all the centuries till the invention of printing, about four hundred years ago. They were read to the people so frequently that most laymen knew them by heart and woe to the man who should dare to change even a word!

Even in the so-called Dark Ages, which were never as dark as they have been painted, indeed, which contained many of the brightest intellects and most brilliant artists of all time, the Bible was preserved by the monks of Europe and the British Isles, who copied laboriously by hand each word of the Sacred Books, often illuminating their work with incomparable skill. These precious copies were chained to the bookstands in the cathedrals and even in parish churches so that all might have a chance to see them, and that those who could read might use them.

With the invention of printing, the Bible was turned out in hundreds, thousands, millions of copies, being one of the first books ever published in that way. Now it is found everywhere he goes in the civilized world, and perhaps because it is so well known that men have lost sight of the fact that it IS the Word of God, the Inspired Word of God.

This is indeed a terrible Book! It contains within it such things as the Ten Commandments, given to Moses amidst thunder and lightning; the awful warning of Christ to those who fail to follow the Laws of God; the majestic prophecies of the Apocalypse; and many other mindshaking ideas.

Truly this is a tremendous book to be left in the hands of mortal man, and our lack of interest in it, our carelessness with it, our off-hand acceptance of the Book as a common possession shows how familiarity can breed contempt even with the Word of God.

When God says, "I am the Lord thy God, who brought thee out of the house of bondage, thou shalt not have strange gods before Me," and when He warned "Remember thou keep holy the sabbat hday," and when He forbade, "thou shalt not commit adultery," and "Thou shalt not steal" nor "bear false witness against thy neighbor," and all the rest, He meant what He said, and He gave us these orders for our own good.

As the Infinite Being, God needs nothing. He gave us these laws, He gave us His Word with its prophecies and Psalms and histories and Divine advice, with its Biography of Biographies, for our own good, and we often drag down this sublime gift to the level of the bookshelf or even lower.

This is a Book which ought to be handled with the greatest respect and reverence and care, to be read with caution and attention and awe, that God should have condescended to give any of His words to us. Time was when this Book held the place of honor in the parlor of American homes, the place which was opened only to distinguished visitors, the place where the Bible was the center of attraction to anyone who entered that room.

Now many homes put this treasure on the bookshelf alongside book - of-the-month material, detective mysteries, modern biographies and so - called love stories. Occasionally it may be taken down to settle a controversy begun at a bridge game or even over a cocktail, and particularly by cross-word puzzle fans.

If it is honored at all it may be on account of its association with a departed parent or the sentiment attached to youthful Sunday - school days. That it is The Word of God is a thought well back in the American mind of our time, and especially the "educated" mind of our enlightened system of learning.

We may hope that the mercy of God in our last end will be greater than His justice which demands such reverenece for His every expression.

Paratroopers Supress Koje Island Uprising

Uprisings in the Koje Island prisoner of war camps came to a head earlier this week when paratroopers of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team suppressed an uprising of 6,000 prisoners in Compound 76.

The Red prisoners lost an estimated 30 killed and 135 wounded as against American losses of two men killed. Inside the wrecked and bloodied compound U. S. Intelligence officers found a master plan to liberate all of the 80,000 prisoners of war on the island.

The Reds had planned to seize the island which is about 25 miles long and 15 miles wide and turn Allied guns on their captors.

A 50-foot long tunnel lined with plywood and containing blowers to air condition it, was found leading to nearby Compound 77.

Steel peace talks have collapsed and the White House has said industry and union had reached a "complete deadlock".

John A. Stephens, vice president of the U. S. Steel and the chief industry negotiator, said the union's demand for a union shop was the main item in dispute. Presidential assistant John A. Steelman said, "I deeply regret to say that I find the parties completely deadlocked. There is nothing further that I can do now. However, the negotiators are to be subject to call at any time."

Earlier the President had viewed optimism over prospects for a settlement, and had urged the Senate to withhold action on various pending moves to halt the strike, which costs the nation some 250,000 tons of steel a day.

On The Bookshelf

TOUCHED WITH FIRE, by John Tebbel, E. P. Dutton and Company, Inc., $3.50.

In his second novel, John Tebbel takes you striding by La Salle's side through the wilderness of Canada, discovering the mysterious wonders of the Great Lakes, traveling the Great River to the Gulf, and struggling against the wiles of a beautiful woman, who loves him enough to destroy him.

The guide, the narrator of the story, is Philippe Brisson, handsome young Frenchman who flees from a rich, dull life to seek adventure.

Through all the conflicts burn the magnificent dream of La Salle, the blazing vision which carried him across thousands of miles of sea and land, armed him against the fantastic plots of his enemies and the desperate hardships of his travels until the Mississippi, the river which dominates his life, swept him and Philippe and Madeline into a dilema from which there is no escape.

TRIAL BY TERROR, by Paul Gallico, Alfred A. Knopf, $3.00

This is Gallico at his best. Three sets of reporters in the Europe of 1940 act out this hair-raising story. First of all there are the Americans, all members of the staff of an English-language Paris newspaper. Then there are the Europeans and finally there are the Russians with their scientifically calculated horrors to reduce men to animals.

The central of the three groups, Americans, the two of whom, Cassie and Jeff, are engaged to be married, are caught in the Russian occupation.

by the Russians, clever undercover work by his newspapes, and a love tangle, all bends in this latest of Gallico's stories.

an of both World War II and the Korean conflict, heaped praise on the training officers receive at The Infantry School here.

"It (Infantry School training) has shown itself to be superior in Korea," he declared. "Anyone is certain to learn — and learns awfully fast — in combat, but the training Infantry officers received at The Infantry School has made their learning easier."

He credited the rapid rotation of Infantry officers on the effectiveness of the training they received here.

"The average field grade officer is rotated after 12 to 15 months in combat," he said. "If you get competent officers rotation is speeded up."

He attributed the Eighth Army's high morale to rapid rotation, good rations, a full training schedule and an awareness of the "high stakes."

"The average soldier in Korea realize that if we fight in Korea, there's less chance of fighting in California, Missouri or Georgia," he said.

Training Invaluable

The new Infantry Center commander also declared that Infantry School training of Republic of Korea Army officers has been invaluable.

"The improvement in the ROK Army is the brightest spot in the Korean conflict," General Young said. He termed this improvement of the very greatest importance and added that the South Koreans could "most certainly" defeat the North Koreans "if the Chinese Communists" got off the pennisula.

The former combat commander described Red Army leaders as cunning, but said they were unable to plan if "things don't go well."

General Young also spoke highly of the Allied troops fighting alongside Americans in Korea.

"I had the French, Dutch and more lately the Thailand battalions under me in the Second Division," he said. "They were superior troops."

He described Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner who was his assistant division commander and now commands Koje prison island as "a superior soldier and a very fine combat leader."

"Boatner understands the Oriental probably better than anyone in our Army."

General Young said he was glad to get back to Fort Benning, where he served as a tenant in 1932 and as a captain from 1934-37. He was also here as a Brigadier General in 1950 when he took The Infantry School's airborne course.

He said he plans no drastic changes in Infantry School operation, "merely a reemphasis on the principles being taught here now" which he described as "eminently correct."

General Young's assumption of command was marked by a 13 gun salute by the 41st Field Artillery and a review of an Honor Guard composed of the Second Battalion of the 30th Infantry Regiment.

Informal Reception

Later in the morning, after meeting with the top ranking officers of his new command, General Young held an informal reception where he was greeted by a group of leading citizens from Columbus and Phenix City.

To this emminent group, General Young promised the continued cooperation by the Army with its neighboring communities. The remarks was met with an expression by the executive secretary of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce of desire to continue the present relations existing between the city and the post.

After a meeting with the Press Monday afternoon, General Young settled back to assume his normal duties as Commander of the Infantry Center.

Charles Barker Jr., Pvt. Ralph J. Hepner, and Pvt. Flore A. Meola, of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team; Sgt. Sidney A. Rasnick, Cpl. Asa Radcliff, Pfc. Gordon C. Finney, and Pvt. Charles B. 508th Goat Leads Dual Life

A SMALL APPETIZER BEFORE POLICE CALL CHOW
With George Are Cpls. E. Shroeder, P. C. Leiker, C. P. Thompson, L. Knapp

A mascot that doubles as a disposal unit describes George, the pet goat of "G" Company of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Use of the animal on police call is just an added attraction based on his unique eating habits. Actually he is just one of several unusual pets that can be found within the confines of Lt. Col. Herbert Mansfield's Second Battalion.

The four companies of the battalion, which are jokingly referred to as "Elephant", "Frog", "Goat" and "Hog" troops, decided that it would only be fitting and proper if mascots could be secured that could be more closely associated with the individual units to which they belonged.

Numerous dogs and cats that abided on the post did not fill the bill, so the search was launched to find those animals that would be appropriate.

Of course there are some difficulties still to be overcome, such as the acquisition of an elephant for "E" company. However, Colonel Mansfield says his men are trying.

"Frog" Company's pet is the exception to the rule. He is an impish little fox who answers to the name Diablo. He was presented to the unit by its commanding officer, Capt. Donald Sibert, after the adoption of a pet frog ran into difficulties. This to the dismay of the airborne unit which feels that a frog would be a better jumper.

A chubby little porker, who incidentally is oft limits to all cooks, is the pride and joy of "H" Company. He like the other pets of the battalion will soon become qualified jumpers, complete to his own set of paratrooper wings.

smaller than our present Jap battalion, yet might contain as many as 23 companies. The arms and equipment were whatever we could bring from home or capture from the enemy.

The same variety of organization existed during the War of 1812, which was conducted with regiments of inadquately trained militia and newly recruited regulars. There, just as one time, shortly after the war, the strength of the U. S. Army was six officers and 93 men.

In 1815 as a result of the lessons learned during the war, the regular Infantry regiment was standardized a 10 companies each of 81 officers and men. There were just three regiments established, though not brought up to full strength.

The United States entered the first World War with 65 Infantry Regiments. Fortunately these regiments had the advantage of many training, organizational and tactical improvements developed in the Meuse can campaign preceeding the war, and in the 1914-16 period in Europe.

The Infantry strength was ultimately reached during World War I when 283 regiments and 266 machine gun battalions were under arms for a total of 1,147,959 men.

Great Development

Possibly the greatest developments in the Infantry fighting power occurred in the period leading to World War II. Our Infantry strength stood at its peak of about 285 regiments.

The striking power and action and mobility of these regiments were demonstrated to the entire world on June 6, 1944 when 16 of them stormed the Normandy coast of France in the greatest invasion move ever attempted in the annals of war fare. An additional six regiments were parachuted into France, one landing by glider and nine by amphibious assault. greater fire power of the Infantry has been greatly increased through the use of recoilless rifles, medium tanks and electronic weapons.

The Infantry School that came to a flourishing maturity during World War II was and is a Titan among service schools. In the years of its existence it has grown great and strong until today it is patronized by students from practically every Army sponsoring country in the world.

Today it is the virtual center of the Infantry, of its progressive thought in its doctrines, tactics, and methods. It is an important support in the structure of national defense, for Infantry the preponderant force of modern armies, remains, as always, the decisive power in battle and campaign.

Definite Reality

The Infantry School became a definite reality after years of hard work on Feb. 11, 1920 and three days later it was officially ocnfined to retain and develop that school's ground at Columbus, Georgia under the name of Camp Benning.

Now, after more than 30 years, the Infantry School has trained hundreds of thousands of men who have taken their places as the top ranking military leaders of all time.

Today the courses that are offered by the Infantry School are something like this:

For officers: Advanced Course, Associate Infantry Company Officers Course, Motor Transportation Course, Infantry Officer's Communication Course, Field Grade Officer's Refresher Course and Company Officers' Refresher Courses.

For Enlisted Men: Officer Candidate Course, Light and Heavy Weapons Infantry Leader Course, Intelligence and Reconnaissance and Operations Chiefs Course, Unit Automotive Course, Infantry Enlisted Communication Course, Infantry Sound Ranging Course and Infantry Radio Maintenance Course.

For Officers and enlisted men: Airborne Course and the Pathfinder Course.

Mission

The mission of the Infantry School, briefly outlined, looks like this:

1. To develop leadership in all ranks.

2. To instruct train and test selected EM for the purpose of qualifying those suitable for commission in the Infantry and other arms and services of the Army.

3. To develop and standardize instruction and training of Infantry Officers in techniques and tactics of Infantry employment including practical instruction applicable to training and leading combat units.

4. To instruct, test and qualify enlisted men and officers in airborne training.

5. To furnish a working familiarity with the techniques and tactics of associated arms; in coordinating the tactical employment of the combat team.

6. To train selected officers and enlisted men for specialized technical duties necessary to the operation of Infantry units.

7. To serve as an agency of Ground Forces, in the development and perfection of Infantry tactics and techniques; to prepare and revise training publications, army extension courses instruction manuals, and other publications; to conduct research relative to improvement of the Infantry; and to disseminate to the service information pertaining to instruction and training received and in use at The Infantry School.

two regiments organized from seven organizations. The First Composite Regiment will be commanded by Col. Ralph N. Woods, Commanding Officer, 30th Infantry Regiment.

Unites contained in the First Composite Regiment will include the Third Battalion, 508th Regimental Combat Team, the Second and Third Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment and the 198th Field Artillery Battalion.

The Second Composite Regiment, under the command of Col. H. M. Grizzard, commanding officer of the First Officer Candidate Regiment, will include one battalion of the First OC Regiment, one battalion from the 1st Student Regiment, one battalion of the 3440th Area Service Unit and one battalion from the Provisional Medical Group.

Infantry School students not engaged in examinations for Saturday will be released from classes to attend the parade.

Originally organized by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1775, the Army has expanded until today it encompasses millions of men who either have been or are now members of it.

The first Army artillery unit was established on May 10, 1775, when the Army captured the British guns at the battle of Ticonderoga.

From a strength of 20,000 men during the Revolution, the Army fell to a standing strength of 80 men. Twenty-five years later Congress authorized by Congress to guard military stores at Fort Pitt and 55 to guard the stores at West Point, N. Y.

Oldest Army Unit

This organization later became Battery D, First Artillery Battalion, the oldest U. S. Army unit from the standpoint of continuous military service. It is now a part of the First Infantry Division in Europe.

The Military was founded in 1802 and then sent the first group of professionally trained Army officers into battle during the Mexican War of 1846. This was the first time that American troops fought on foreign soil.

The Army was organized along its present lines in 1903. The office of the Chief of Staff and the General Staff were set up, and relations between civilian and military authority were designated.

The present Army now contains more personnel than the entire colonies did in 1775.

From an Army of three and a half divisions from 1920 to 1939 the Army expanded to some 4,000,000 men. During World War II, 10,000,000 of the 15,000,000 in the Armed Forces served in the Army.

In 1947 the strength of the Army fell to 1,000,000 men but the outbreak of Korean hostilities recalled many Reservists and National Guardsmen back to active service.

Today there are more military personnel of the United States Army stationed at Fort Benning than there were in the entire continental army during the Revolutionary War.

Quartermaster's Birthday Celebration Plans Readied

Employees of the Fort Benning Quartermaster will celebrate the 177th anniversary of the Quartermaster Corps on next Monday with a picnic at King's Pond and Shady Hunt Club.

Committees in charge have made arrangements for games, dancing, floor shows, and barbecue.

One of the oldest of the Technical services, the Quartermaster Corps has as its mission the feeding, clothing and equipping of troops. It is charged with receiving and accounting for all funds derived from sales of subsistence, clothing, regular supplies and collection for utilities services.

On June 16, 1775, at Carpenter's Hall in Philadelphia, the Continental Congress appointed the first Quartermaster General. From that day, through reorganizations, the Quartermaster Corps has evolved into the compact, efficient organizations of to-day.

After the Revolutionary War and the reduction in the strength of the Army, the work of the Quartermaster General was minimized in importance and at one time was almost submerged entirely.

On May 8, 1729 Congress enacted a law which stated that all Army contracts dealing within the Quartermaster's department be made by or under the direction of the Treasury department.

Founded In 1818

This system was followed until March 28, 1818, when the department was reestablished with a Quartermaster General, four Deputy Quartermasters, and as many assistant deputies as the President's judgment dictated.

This was the first step and beginning of the unbroken existence for the Quartermaster department.

The set-up remained much the same until August 1912, when supplies and collection for utilities services, the Commissary General, and the Paymaster General were consolidated into one bureau known as the Quartermaster Corps.

In addition to the $47,030 saving per annum for clerical hire, the consolidation resulted in greater economy and efficiency.

As the first World War became a reality, the Quartermaster Corps girded itself to the task of supplying and transporting troops. Minor changes effected the Corps following the War.

Supply Problem

During the second World War, the Corps was faced with a problem never before encountered in the history of supply. Its task was to supply troops scattered all over the world — and supply them the Corps did.

Keeping pace with the gradual expansion of the Corps, the Fort Benning Quartermaster section has grown and expanded.

During the last year, the Quartermaster opened a new commissary, has saved $17,000 in manpower and personnel by the addition of new equipment in the Salvage yard. In addition, a new wood, metal and furniture repair shop was opened and a complete reorganization of the Quartermaster section was accomplished.

Col. Ivan Parr, Quartermaster, said that the plans for the future include the opening of a combined officers and enlisted man's clothing store to be located in Harmony Church.

Social Security Changes Revealed For Domestic Help

Several changes have been made in the Social Security Act for people who employ domestic servants.

Under the provisions of the new Act, any person who hires a domestic servant such as a cook, maid or laundress for more than 24 days during a three month period and pays that domestic over $50 during that time must now deduct one and one-half percent of the wage paid and match the sum.

The total of three percent half paid by the employer, half by employee should be sent to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Atlanta, Ga.

The domestic must have a Social Security number. If none is possessed; application should be made immediately by the domestic to the local Social Security Board located at 911 Broadway in Columbus. The number is essential in preparation of payment forms 941 or 942 by the employer.

Domestic help that does not work for one employer for more than 24 days in a three month period or does not earn $50 in that period does not fall under the provisions of the new act.

Lieutenant Receives Medal For Gallantry in Action

The Silver Star Medal has been awarded to First Lt. Roland J. Daigle for gallantry in action.

The presentation was made by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School, during a review of troops from the Second Student Regiment.

Lieutenant Daigle, whose home is in Port Arthur, Texas, received the award for gallantry near Hongjong-Nyong, Korea, June 4, 1951, while a member of the 21st Infantry Regiment, 24th Division.

"Lieutenant Daigle deployed his platoon around a enemy machine gun nest blocking passage through a moutain pass and destroyed the Red Forces with grenade and carbine fire, forcing the enemy from the hill."

"With complete disregard for his own safety, he exposed himself to the enemy's return fire to lead the mopping up operations. He personally accounted for four enemy dead."

He graduated from Stephen F. Austin High School in 1936 and enlisted in the Army that same year.

During World War II he served with the 383rd Infantry Regiment, 91st Division in Italy.

He served with the 24th Division in Korea until last January.

Lieutenant Daigle received his battlefield commission at Taegu February 1951. He also holds the Bronze Star for valor.

The organization now consists of Companies A, B, Headquarters and Headquarters and a Casual Company.

Company A includes personnel from the Signal, Ordnance, Chaplain, Chemical, Engineer and Finance sections.

Personnel assigned to Company B include Transportation, Special Services, Quartermaster units including the 87ist and 572nd Quartermaster Repair Companies.

Headquarters and Headquarters personnel include the newly formed Separation Detachment and the Provisional Group overhead.

"I'M CONFESSIN'" — Les Paul and Mary Ford give their popularity another push with their new recording. The other side of the record is "CARIOCA" Mary plaintively notes the old torch, "CONFESSIN'", in a slow, smooth rendition. CARIOCA is a strong instrumental on the old standard, featuring Les' multiple guitars in an arrangement that fairly pops. CAPITOL.

SOUTH — Ralph Flanagan band. Instrumental with a bouncing beat. On other side of recording the Flanagan group does an old, old favorite, I UNDERSTAND, with a fine vocal by Harry Prime. RCA-VICTOR.

MAYBE — Perry Como and Eddie Fisher get together. MAYBE is the old-timer, and on the other side is a new WATERMELON WEATHER. The orchestra is directed by Miguel Arres. WATERMELON WEATHER is bouncy and informal in line with its title. Overside, MAYBE has three more close harmony and well-timed singers, and with good backing, RCA Victor.

Eyes Right Has Different Meaning for Post Soldier

BY CPL. DAVID DERENCE

The command, "Eyes Right," has a different meaning for Sgt. Jerrell Hornsby, 23-year-old Optical Technician from Atlanta, Ga.

Sergeant Hornsby, a member of Company B, First Transportation Battalion worked as a lab technician for American Optical Company in Atlanta between trips to Korea.

He started work with American Optical in 1944 and worked as a lens grinder till 1945 when he joined the Army. After Basic training, he was sent to Korea, where he spent 24 months with the 7th Infantry Division.

Returning to the states in 1948 Sergeant Hornsby was discharged and returned to American Optical. He claimed making glasses is easy.

"All you do is take the rough lenses, grind them to the prescription thickness, put them on a fitter machine that takes out all the kinks and smoothes the glass. The rest is simple," he added, "you polish the lens cut it to fit the frame, edge it and set it in the frames. That's all."

When the Korean conflict began in 1950, Sergeant Hornsby volunteered for service in Korea. This time he served with the 25th Infantry division that fought through the first winter in Korea.

After 13 months of fighting he returned to the States and was assigned to the First Transportation Battalion here at Fort Benning.

Renovation Begins Here For Water Main System

BY SGT. TIM WARREN

The torn up streets at Fort Benning are in reality a gigantic cleaning project that is costing a million dollars.

The process — very simply — is the cleaning and repairing of water mains that service the majority of main post buildings.

Explained a bit more compilcated — and actually the way it is — is that the pipes that are being renovated are pipes whose interior surfaces have become partially clogged with sediment and growth. The pipes are being removed from their original entrenchments and cleaned, resurfaced, and replaced.

While these pipes are not in operation the water is transmitted to the buildings by a series of supplementary viaducts that are supplied by the contractors doing the work.

After a pipe has been removed and the water temporarily rerouted through pipes capable of sustaining pressure of more than 1,000 pounds per square inch, the pipes are cleaned by a series of brushes and scrappers.

The next step in the process is forcing cement into the pipes and compressing it against the sides of the pipes to a thickness of approximately one eighth of an inch. This allows a smooth surface on the interior of the pipes that keeps the water cleaner and permits it to move at a more rapid rate of speed.

Once completed, this resurfacing of the pipes is normally expected to last 20 years. Any further erosion of the interior of the water lines is not directly on the pipes but on the cement.

Once the pipe has been relined with cement and is ready for use, chlorination process is used to wash and ready the pipes for the transportation of drinking water.

CLEANING . . . The pipes are cleaned by drawing large diameter brushes and scrapping devices through the pipes. Once the accumulation of growth and sediment has been removed the pipes are ready to be relined.

Safety Stickers Available Here

"A Day In Court", the traffic safety film which has been shown to about 25,000 persons at Fort Benning during May and June, displayed a sticker with the inscription "Courtesy Is Contagious".

Twenty thousand of these stickers have been obtained by the post safety office and are being distributed throughout the commands at Fort Benning.

The stickers are to be used by post drivers to display in their vehicles where they will act as a constant reminder to drive safely.

Under no circumstances are these stickers to be displayed on the windshields according to Norman M. Evans, post safety director.

They should be placed beside the car at a point where the driver can see it — such as the sun visor or on the dash.

Soldiers Cited For Death Curb

Fort Benning personnel have received recognition for their part in curbing the military fatality rate luring the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

In a message to all personnel at Fort Benning, Maj. Gen. William A. Beiderlinden, commanding genera. of the Third Army pointed out that only one military fatality was recorded in the entire Third Ar y Area.

"This was further noteworthy," his message said. "in view of the fact that throughout the nation there were more fatal accidents over this holiday than there ever have been in the histori of our country."

General Beiderlinden's message also said "The Army commander wishes to commend all installation commander and members of their commands for their safety efforts and encourage stress and adherence to the safety program."

First Regt. Gets Another Shot at ISD; 508th Cops Opener, Threatens ASU, CTC

Unbeaten Infantry School Detachment faces another crucial contest this week, but there's feudin' and fussin' in the lower echelons of the Fort Benning Baseball League which may steal the spotlight from the top club.

HANDY HELPER . . . Mel Tipton, (left), 29-year old second sacker for ASU Provisional Group, also doubles as trainer in giving sub catcher Paul Desch an arm work out. When ASU Skipper Bobby Dews was thumbed from recent game, Mel took over the club. A former fighter around Chicago under the name Kid Sanders, the lean infielder gets steady action despite some chronic ailments including a pair of weak ankles a 'la Boudreau. (U.S. Army Photo by Pfc. Jesinski.)

Power - hitting First Student Regiment, stopped only once in seven games, gets a second crack at the Professors at 8 p.m. Wednesday in a fame that could put them in first place or almost certainly drop them among the "also rans."

Manager Woody Burt's hot shots, with the circuit's No. One pitcher and hitter, rallied in the eight to beat the Black Shirts, 6-5, in their first clash of the season. This one should be just as close.

Of course, the Profs are also booked for a setto with Second Student Regiment at 8 p.m. tomorrow (Friday), but off past performances this should be little more than a tune up for the loop leaders.

Red Devils On Way

Meantime, an apparently well-geared 508th Airborne nine was causing much consternation in the circuit. The Red Devils won their first outing from ASU Provisional Group, 11-1, Sunday, and thus boast a 1.000 percentage figure like I.S.D. although the Profs and five other clubs have played six games more.

But berths in the Shaugnessy playoffs — which will determine the 1952 league crown — will be awarded to the four clubs with the best percentage. Which explains why Combat Training Command and ASU, the present third and fourth place outfits, are wishing Coach H. E. (High Explosive) Williams and his crew nothing worse than that barbed wire should be strung in their intestines gradually.

Futile Rhubarb

ASU was trying so hard to undo the paratroopers Sunday that Manager Bobby Dews blew his top when a third strike was called on him with the bases loaded at one crucial point.

It was the first rhubarb of the season in which players were banished from action. It also was one of the first in which the crowd chimed in with highly partisan cheers and jeers for their respective heroes.

Either ASU or CTC will be crowded out of the Shaughnessy unless somebody throws a couple of fast losses at the Red Devils, but it doesn't figure to happen Sunday when the 508th meets Second S. R.'s Rockets in a 2 p.m. Gowdy Field test.

CTC On March

Manager Bobby Clark's Commanders will try to pick up some insurance against being the fifth wheel when they meet Provisional Medical Group at 2 p.m. Saturday. The Medics can be murder when they have the confidence that comes with Floyd Kndall pitching for them.

Ray Blankenship, ISD's big second baseman, saw his average level off this week to .545, but that's still a spectacular figure and gives him a wide margin over other regulars with 20 at bats or more.

And the Profs' Joe Feinstein is way ahead of rivals for pitching laurels with a 5-0 record.

8 Post-Trained Shooters Make Olympic Finals

Eight of the Army's best rifle and pistol shooters who have been training here for the past month yesterday were selected for the U. S. Olympic and International team try outs.

This news came just after Col. Perry D. Swindler's top quartet of pistol marksmen fired a new national and world record of 1177 for .22-cal. National Match Course last week end in the Kentucky State championships.

The record makers and their scores were Maj. William Hancock, 298; Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, 295, M-Sgt. Joe Benner, 292, and WOJG Oscar Weinmeister, 292.

The fearsome foursome fresh off Benning ranges swept every title competition in the meet with Benner winning the individual championship, closely followed by Sharpe and Weinmeister.

Best in Germany

Benner, the world's champ, and Weinmeister, from Atlanta, topped the nation in the Olympic preliminary trials fired here during the past month and evaluated this past week end.

Benner's slow fire mark was 1660 followed by Weinmeister in second 1652, Hancock in sixth, 1630 and Sharpe, eighth in the nation with 1628. In rapid fire, Benner had a 1758, Weinmeister 1754, while Sharpe was fifth with 1729 and Hancock ninth with 1727.

Hot Rifles, Too

Second Lt. Herbert Voelcker was 14th in the nation in small bore rifle qualifying with 3401, followed by WOJG Coats Brown in 19th place with 3359. Capt. Jerome McCubbin, 24th with 3356 and Pfc. Ray Orton, 39th with 3341.

Voelcker and McCubbin are Pen[illegible]. The others [illegible] their training here under the tutoring of Col. Swindler.

Brown led all Army shooters in the large bore qualifying with a 2145 score which ranked him 11th nationally. McCubbin was 18th with a 2078 and Orton 19th with 2064.

"I feel like we can place two, maybe thre pistol shooters on the Olympic team," the colonel said enthusiastically yesterday. "It will be a little tougher in the rifle competition."

Six pistol shooters and six riflemen will be chosen for the Olympic and International shooting teams in shoulder to shoulder competition June 21-26 at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

YOU HAVE HIS permission to call Joe Feinstein the garbage man, but before you laugh, brother, remember that the little Infantry School Detachment left hander has the reverse english habit of delivering the stuff instead of collecting it. He has made refuse of five different batting orders in the Fort Benning League, thanks to the many kinds of english he applies to the old spherlod.

"What's a straight ball?" Joe asked of himself facetiously as he arranged his bony 145 pounds on the dugout bench prior to a recent Gowdy Field encounter. He doesn't look like a pitcher, not at five-foot, nine-inches and the aforementioned weight. But the record is there. He had an 8-1 season with LaGrange in the Class D Ga.-Ala. loop and a 4-1 mark with Butler, Pa., in class C ball before being called into the Army in 1950.

"Anybody can get the ball over the plate," he explained through his perpetual half grin. "The idea is to cut the corners and keep them off balance by either throwing faster or slower than your normal speed. I throw all kinds of junk —knucklers, screw balls and lots of hooks. Give a club like First Student Regiment good, solid fast balling and they'll knock you outa the park, but I keep 'em guessing with the garbage."

If you see somebody on the ISD bench making a circular motion with their forefinger in juxaposition to their head simple sign language for "this cookie doesn't have all his marbles" — they're probably referring to Joe as the No. One jester and jockey on the Professor bench, but they are not reflecting on his knowledge of what to do at the right time on the hill. The 22-year old Hoboken, N. J., flinger usually can tell you what he will throw to any batter in the league the next time he faces him and what he threw to the same guy the last time he faced him. That's smart twirling and a necessity for a guy who deals in garbage, as the saying goes.

If Manager Woody Burt has the Benning League's top drawer pitcher, and I'm here to tell you he does, then he has no less a star in the hitting department in Ray Blankenship. Ray, who played with Carthage, Ill., College, but got drafted before he could embark on a pro career, has slashed out 14 singles and one double, triple and home run in 31 times up. An exact opposite of Feinstein in temperament and size, he has made but three misuces while handling 31 chances at second base.

For what it's worth to any other would-be batting leaders, Blankenship names ASU's Carroll Mattson as having the best fast ball in the circuit, and as being the toughest pitcher to face under the arcs, and says the curve balls of Floyd Kendell, of Provisional Medical Group, are the toughest slants to solve. Both he and Feinstein are eyeing pro assignments following their scheduled discharges in the fall.

ANYONE WHO SKIPS over the Benning League as being bush stuff without taking a look for himself is ignoring the facts. In 25 games to date there have been 24 route pitching jobs, one shy of half the maxtmum number possible and a figure which would look good in any circuit. There have been 10 home runs, or for the defense minded, ten double plays and three shut outs. The latter were pitched by First S.R.'s Lloyd Brill, ASU's Clyde Britton and CTC's Ken Middleton, and don't be surprised if someone comes up with a no-hitter. There were two last season.

Six games or about one-fifth of all played have been decided by the margin of two runs or less, which probably explains why the attendance for the first 25 contests is an estimated 12,875. An average of 515 fans per game can't be wrong.

THIS ISN'T pro ball, of course. The Benning League is probably one of the few where a team can be deprived of its star batter or pitcher because he has to stay home and wash dishes. In other words, the players aren't excused from any of the unit chores such as kitchen police and pulling guard to play baseball. To my mind, that's another reason why the Gowdy Field performers rate your attendance and applause.

IF THERE IS a complaint to be registered against loop play it should be filed with the managers who are slow in jerking pitchers who have started minus their stuff or have suddenly gone sour. Several tight games have blown sky high when a hurler suddenly caved in and got no bull pen aid. With all of the teams playing no more than two games a week and never on consecutive days, and with most of them carrying three or four moundsmen, there seems no sense and little excuse in letting a guy get shelled. If the reliefer fares no better that can't be helped, but at least the skipper won't be given the old raskberry for letting his hitters get hopelessly outdistanced on the scoreboard with[illegible] making a move to keep the victory within reach.

Hot-Shot WAC Files Entry For Golf Test

There will be interest in more ways than one in the 1952 Infantry Center Enlisted Personnel golf tournament June 25 at the Sand Hill course.

Pfc. Bobbie Robson, one of the few golfing members of the post WAC Detachment, has indicated she will add the feminine touch to the competition.

"I know I'll be playing under men's rules, but there's really not much difference," says Bobbie who used to shoot in the 80's around here and Ontario, Canada her home. Bobbie admits she hasn't had much chance to play while at Benning.

Meantime, some 50 entries were reported already filed for the tourney. Twice that number are expected for the 18-hole qualifying round June 25.

Sixteen low scorers will be paired in the championship flight followed by flights of eight. Entries should be submitted to Special Services by next Wednesday.

All enlisted personnel at Fort Benning and Lawson Field are eligible.

Junior Legion Team In Action Monday

Fort Benning's Junior American Legion baseball team, Tasty Sandwiches, will attempt to extend their winning ways when they play at 8 p.m. Monday at Gowdy Field. They downed the Rebels, 4-1, last Monday with 15 - year old Fred Kaeserman hurling a three-hitter.

Left fielder Sam Lankford got the winner's lone hit in the tight contest. Shortstop Louis Fitzgerald pulled a double play to get Kneserman out of a jam and end the game. Another defensive star was catcher Larry Sax, on making his first start for the team.

Brill 3-Hits Medics As First Wins

Lloyd Brill continued his jinx over Provisional Medical Group Wednesday by pitching his second straight three-hitter at them as First Student Regiment won a 6-3 decision before 400 Fort Benning Baseball League fans at Gowdy Field.

The action ended abruptly in the seventh under the league's 7-up rule when Jim Shirley raced in from third when catcher George Wardell skulled by making a play for Johnny Oden trying to steal second.

The win pulled Manager Bob Kinard's crew within a half game of first place. Ralph Terry with 3-for-4 and Oden with a double and single in three trips paced the First's nine-hit assault against Melic pitcher Jim Chester.

PMG jumped into the lead in the second when Al Easley tripled behind Floyd Kendall's walk and scored on a wild pitch. The Medics' other hits by Wade Jones and Bill Fallon came in the sixth and seventh respectively.

Back-to-back doubles by Oden and Bill Freeman sparked a three-run outburst by the winners in the fourth and the Medics were hopelessly out of it in the fifth when Chester was allowed to linger to absorb a five-hit, four-run mauling.

Mujica Seeks To Regain Title

Fort Benning's Larry Mujica, 22-year old dethroned Georgia welterweight champion, will try to get his crown back when he meets cocky, two-fisted Johnny Craven, of Charlestown, S. C., in a 10-round title fight Monday night at downtown Golden Park.

This will be a rubber meeting between the two.

Mujica decisioned Craven by three points in a non-title fight a month ago in Tampa, but he dropped the duke to Johnny in a free wheeling duel last week in Augusta with the state welter crown at stake.

Ray Lee, voted Fort Benning's best amateur boxer of the current year in the recent TIC championship ring series, will make his pro debut in the eight round semi-final against Bill Reddish, a Columbus prospect.

Both Lee and Mujica are from First Student Regiment.

Major Upset

Mujica had successful defended his title seven times since winning it from Ralph Parson of Macon, in 12 rounds a year ago this month. He lost only two fights locally, one to Chuck Taylor who boxed Ray Robinson for the world's welter title, and the other to Sonny Luciano.

Larry beat Luciano in a return bout. He was held to a draw by Billy Lauderdale, one of the hottest prospects to come out of Miami since Bobby Dykes. Craven also boxed Lauderdale a draw, but holds a return match decision.

Service Rivalry

If Larrupin' Larry represents the Army, then Craven is ambassador by proxy for the Navy. The 22-year old puncher served in the South Pacific.

Johnny lost only one of 100 amateur fights and went to the finals of the National Golden Gloves in Madison Square Garden in 1950. He has had eight pro fights and lost only to Mujica while beating such names as Joe Diaz Joe Underwood, Ritchie Rhodes and Lauderdale.

The 36 - bout card gets under way at 8:15 p.m. Prices are scaled from $3 ringside to $1.50 general admission.

WARMIN THE BENCH

Age creeps up on athletes slowly. It's never noticed until some newcomers overtake them in their specialties. The presence of four upstart youngsters as "strong threats" in June's 52nd U. S. Open at Dallas, Tex., indicates that age is beginning to show in profession golf's leadership. Defending champ Ben Hogan and longtime stars Sam Snead and Lloyd Mangrum have had to pick their spots; none has competed in more than 35 tournament rounds since January. Newcomers are snagging some of the titles and pots of money. The Northwood Club's par 70, 6,811 - yard course of narrow fairways and dense woods presents an imposing test to the 162 competitors. The hopefuls include former U. S. Open winners and survivors of more than 1,500 aspirants who played in 36 sectional tournaments to qualify for the 72-hold stroke play.

With the veterans on the wane who are their likely successors? Jack Burke Jr., low-scorer on the winter circuit (70-17 average for 18 holes in 40 rounds) and winner of four straight tournaments, is the standout of the rookies. The 29-year-old ex-Marine has won much money, but few big competitions. Before they'll rate him great, golf's theorists will wait for Burke's chin shots to improve.

Doug Ford, who swings from the right side though normally a lefty, has been named the most promising newcomer. Experts say his lefthandedness gives him greater control of his shots. Three years ago he was a hit-or-miss hooker. Then Claude Harmon straightened his drives and he averaged 71.23 strokes in 106 rounds last year. Douglas, 34-year-old six footer, scored a 64 to break a course record in winning the Jacksonville Open Ranking 11th among 1952's money winners, much is expected of him.

SPORTS QUIZ

QUESTIONS

1—To whom is the annual James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy awarded?

2—How many minor league nohitters are pitched each year?

3—Jack Burke Jr., recently won four consecutive Professional Golf Association tournaments. Many wondered if he'd break the all-time mark of 12 straight set in 1945. Who holds that record?

4—Only three men have won four gold medals in the same Olympic Games. Two were Americans. Name them.

ANSWERS

1 — The American amateur athlete who, in the opinion of the nation's sports leaders, has done the most "to advance the cause of sportsmanship."

2—Since 1876, an average of 1,078 nohitters have been pitched in the minor leagues annually.

3—Byron Nelson, the "Mechanical Man," won 12 straight that year and 19 P. G. A. tourneys altogether.

4—A. E. Kraenzlein in 1900 won four (60 meters dash, 110- and 200-meters hurdles and the broad jump). Jesse Owens also won four in 1936 (100-and 200-meters dashes, the broad jump and running on the winning 400-meters relay team).

Derby Has Much To Offer

Fort Benning boys who plan to enter the 1952 Chattahoochee running of the Soap Box Derby next month will find themselves out of the running unless they act as soon as possible.

Any boy who is a dependant of military personnel stationed a Fort Benning is eligible to enter providing that he is between the ages of 11 and 15. That is the only requirement that must be met by prospective entrants.

Boys who are hesitant about entering the race because of financial barriers no longer have cause to worry. All entrants from Fort Benning will be assigned a sponsor who will foot the bill for the racer.

It's not even necessary to own a racer to enter the derby but those who start construction on their entry will have time to iron out mechanical flaws before the big Chattahoochee Valley running of the Derby in Columbus on July 24. Construction of a derby entry is simple to any boy between the ages of 11 and 15.

The cost of car cannot exceed $10, exclusive of wheels and axles. The cost of the wheels and axles through Bentley's, 1305 Broadway, in Columbus, is $12 per set. The sponsors provide the wheels and underwrite the cost of other materials with which the boy builds the car. The sponsors are urged to keep in touch with their boys, offering moral encouragement and manifesting an interest in the boy's progress.

In so doing a sponsor provides worthwhile training in the use of tools and in seeing a job through to completion. He provides the means whereby a boy can realize a worthy ambition which will keep him busy during the summer vacation.

LOCAL RACE PRIZES

Leading a long list of prizes for winners in the 1952 Chattahoochee Valley Soap Box Derby will be the all expense trip to Akron to participate in the All-American Derby awarded to the champion by the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers.

The automobile trip to Akron will provide side trips for the champ to see outstanding historic, and industrial spots in the Eastern part of our country, as well as some of nature's most beautiful scenery.

The champion will also receive the T. H. Keating plaque, named for the general manager of Chevrolet. It is an original and unique design with a golden world encircled by an attractive transparent plastic band; the wooden portion of the award is specially treated, embodying a color that will last a lifetime.

A full five hours of fast moving entertainment and activity for every boy who has registered to the 1952 Chattahoochee Valley Soap Box Derby, was held June 30.

At 4 p. m. the boys gathered at the Columbus Boys Club at 1309 29th Street, for hot dogs and cold drinks.

Jimmy Stewart popular stage and screen star and a "dyed-in-the-wool" follower of the All American Soap Box Derby was the narrator of the official 1952 Soap Box Derby motion picture "Wings All" shown at 4:45 p. m.

Derby officials were on hand to answer questions concerning the construction of cars, the obtaining of sponsors and to interpret the rules for those with technical questions.

The new Boys Club swimming pool were over to the Soap Box Derby entrans at 5:30 who had its exclusive use for the next hour. Qualified lifeguards were on hand for the swimmer's protection.

By special buses the group left the Boys Club at 6:45 for Golden Park where they were the guests of the Columbus Cardinals in their game with the Jacksonville Tars.

After the game the boys were picked up by their private buses and returned to the Columbus Boys Club. Any boy who has signed an entry blank with one of his parents was invited to attend the rally. All boys in the Chattahoochee Valley, Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning are eligible to register and participate in the July 24 coasting event.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sgt. Tim Warren of the Bayonet office has been designated to handle the signing up and supervising of all boys that enter the "greatest amateur racing event in the world." His telephone number at Fort Benning is 2535 or 3536.

CAMP DERBY TOWN

From the Thursday noon when the 156 derby entrants arrive at the Mayflower Hotel in Akron, Ohio, until Monday morning when the champs leave for home they are entertained the way boys like best at Camp Derbytown as guests of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

The Chevrolet Company, in cooperation with leading American newspapers, are the co-sponsors of the Soap Box Derby.

A typical day for the champs at Derbytown includes swimming, speed boating, entertainment by famous stage and screen stars, plenty of good food, and a campfire program at night.

As a sample, here are some of the events Akron Day, Saturday before the All-American Derby, held for the champs at Derbytown.

Celebrities Andy Devine, Ronald Regan, and Paul Winchell with his dummy Jerry Machoney called at Derbytown to mingle with the boys and wish them well in the race. All lunch businessmen and civic officials were hosts and served the meal.

After the usual big Camp Derbytown breakfast, there was free time for sports and hobbies. Parents and visiting newspapermen were with the boys during this time.

Lunchtime was a gala occasion with the meal served by Chevrolet and other industrial executives, city officials and members of the Akron Chamber of Commerce, who were the hosts.

After the lunch all the champs were given a special Soap Box Derby belt and buckle by W. E. Fish, general sales manager of Chevrolet and a golde ntire, souvenir of the city, by Mayor Charles E. Slusser of Akron.

DERBY'S ORIGIN

The Soap Box Derby was originated by Myron Scott in 1933. Scott, a newspaper photographer in Dayton, Ohio, was on a roving photographer assignment when he came across a group of boys coasting down a hill in home made cars.

In the roving cameraman tradition, Scott snapped a few pictures of the boys racing and on his way back to the office found his imagination fired by the lads' enthusiasm. He reported the incident so graphically to his managing editor that the latter agreed to sponsor a city-wide race which Scott named the "Soap Box Derby."

Here's Another Lost Battalion 37-to-1 That Is

The 122nd Company rolled up the highest score of the 1952 Second Student Regiment softball campaign when it virtually annihilated the First Battalion cadre, 37-1, Wednesday. Even then, the game had to be stopped in the fourth inning on account of darkness.

The high-flying 122nd blasted four pitchers for 23 hits, and scored 11 times in both the first and third innings, seven runs in the second, and eight in the fourth.

Reisch paced the 122nd batsmen with four bingles in five trips to the plate, including a double and triple. Wallace had a triple for the First which had only one other hit.

Jones and Phillips pitched for the winners with Jones getting credit for the victory. Giddings was the losing moundsman.

The Second Battalion cadre managed to eke out a 5-4 victory over the 124th Company in another game Wednesday despite the fact it was soundly outhit, 14 to four.

The victors tallied all of their runs in the fifth while the 124th scored three times in the first and once in the second. Lore of the 124th had three hits in four attempts and Zirro of the Second banged out a triple and single in three tries.

Marsten was the winning pitcher, Draper taking the setback.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lieutenant Burke is now assigned to Fort Benning. He is an instructor in the Staff Department of The Infantry School.

BENNING RADIO NEWS

"Fort Benning Feature Page" will this week salute the Army on its 177th Anniversary, June 14th. Benning personnel, while observing the Army's birthday, will also be interested in the birthday of the Infantry which is June 15th. The Infantry is one day younger than the Army.

Historical data on the events transpiring in the 177 years that have intervened since 1775 will be given on the program. Considering tactical efficiency, fire power, and logistics, a comparison will be made between the Army of colonial days and the modern Army of today. The program will be heard noon Sunday, WGBA.

On "Fort Benning In Review," to be heard over three Georgia stations this week (WRBL, Saturday, 6:15 p.m.), the feature will be a recorded press conference with the new commanding general of the Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young. The Maryland native is the former commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division in Korea.

The questions were designed to give the listener a mike-side profile of the man who occupies one of the most responsible positions in the United States Army—that of commandant of The Infantry School.

Time permitting, the program will be rounded out with music by the 122nd Army Band under the direction of Warrant Officer William R. Trembath.

Once again, "Benning News Parade" will carry details of the week's happenings at Fort Benning plus news of interest to Columbus and Fort Benning listeners from the Department of the Army. This week's program will also carry an interesting candid-mike shot of a line - chaplain receiving a briefing from the Post Chaplain Lexington O. Sheffield on the coming ROTC encampment. The program is heard Saturday afternoon at 5:30 over WDAK.

Lt. and S. Head Presides

Captain Robert Stage, Information and Education Officer for The Infantry Center, will introduce General Young and preside over the opening ceremonies.

The opening of the Fort Benning branches of the two schools marks the termination of a number of conferences and surveys carried on between officials of the two schools, Third Army Education officials and members of the Infantry Center Staff.

"With more than 90 students definitely enrolled in the branches, the success of the undertaking is almost assured," according to Captain Stage. The post only had about half that number represented at the Columbus center of the two schools.

All students enrolled at the post centers are being allowed the use of the Army Purchase Order System whereby a student only has to pay one-fourth of his tuition. The remaining amount is paid by the Army.

will decline from $223.90 to $182.25 and prices of various items will come down in some cases as much as 20 per cent. Peacoats will be reduced from $32.00 to $25.00, wool trousers from $12.25 to $8.80 and dress jumpers from $12.50 to $9.50.

The Air Force initial issue value will decline from $268.75 to $226.35. Such items as the blue overcoat, for example will decrease from $42.20 to $34.60, the blue raincoat from $12.70 to $11.80, and the blue wool jacket from $23.20 to $19.20.

Prices of Marine Corps clothing will also drop, bringing the price of the green wool coat down to $31.00, the green wool trousers down to $10.25 and the flannel shirt to $7.00.

New price lists will reach the field as soon as formal approval is reached.

The reason given by Defense Department officials for the decline in prices is the fact that in recent months there has been a sharp reduction in the price of wool imports.

ROTC Cadets Arrive Friday

Preparations are now underway for the housing and training of some 2,500 Infantry ROTC cadets scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning June 20.

One hundred and fifty officers and 215 enlisted men are readying the Sand Hill area that the troops will occupy. Schedules are being drawn up, billets are being readied and administrative crews have begun their tremendous job of taking care of the students during their six week summer encampment. This year's group of cadets at Fort Benning will represent the largest such group ever held in the United States.

The 365 men that will supervise the summer camp are Regular Army personnel on civilian component duty at various colleges and universities throughout the country as professors of military science and tactics, instructors and assistant instructors.

The cadets will represent 69 colleges and universities in the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Army Areas and Puerto Rico.

The cadets will be officially welcomed to Fort Benning by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, June 23 at Doughboy Stadium.

The advanced ROTC students will have 34 hours of Infantry School instruction, including firing of individual and crew-served weapons, practice marches, field exercises, and field maneuvers. They also will see weapons and tactical demonstrations presented by the Infantry School.

Highlight of the summer camp will be a Military Field Day on July 10. Athletic trophies and

College Unit Opens For Post Students

As his first official act since assuming command of the Infantry Center, Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young dedicated the University of Georgia Branch at Fort Benning last Thursday.

"The opportunity has been made available to all Fort Benning personnel to continue their college training while still in service," General Young said.

The dedication, he pointed out, marks an achievement in the Army's education program. It is a milestone in the cooperation that exists between the Army and Civilian institutions of higher learning. Accomplishment of the goal has come only after years of hard patience and work.

General Young stated that it was his hope that every officer and enlisted man who could possibly do so would avail himself of the magnificent opportunity that is now being given to equip himself for the future through learning.

Following the Commanding General to the rostrum was E. Conley Dillon, Director of the Division of General Extention, University of Georgia.

In his address Mr. Lowe explained that many of the courses that are not offered here at the Fort Benning branches will be available as before at the branches in Columbus.

Mr. Lowe brought to light the fact that since its opening in Fall of 1947 the Columbus branch has been used by over 500 officers and enlisted men from Fort Benning.

Mr. Lowe climaxed his remarks with the presentation of a

Army's 177th Anniversary Honored Here With Parade

Fort Benning celebrated the 177th anniversary of the Army with one of the most complete parades ever staged at The Infantry Center.

The two regiments that participated in the review were composites of every major unit on the post.

Reviewing the troops were Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, his staff and numerous dignitaries from Columbus and Phenix City.

The Anniversary of the Army was also the occasion of the Infantry's birthday, the oldest branch of the armed forces was also 177 years old this week.

In his speech before the large crowd that witnessed the review, General Young praised the Infantryman, whom he said "is still the man who makes the personal contact with the enemy, just as he has done through the centuries."

"The battle for the war is won when the Infantryman physically occupies the enemy's ground," said the Commanding General.

General Young went on to say that "The American soldier be-

Benning Hailed By Australian

Fort Benning is the world's "greatest, most magnificent training installation," according to an Australian newspaperman on tour here.

Both training and equipment were praised by E. W. Tipping, chief of staff (managing editor) of the Melbourne Herald, and former war correspondent.

Australia lies in a danger zone of the Far East, as shown by World War II and the Korean conflict, he contended, adding:

"It is reassuring to Australians to know that the United States Army is making itself ready."

Mr. Tipping, touring the South as a Carnegie Fellow, also praised Infantry Center training equipment during his visit to

60 Instructors In Meet Here

A six-day Infantry Instructors Conference to discuss the problems that confront the Infantry instructor has been started at Fort Benning.

Approximately 60 Infantry instructors from service schools throughout the U. S. are attending the conference and round - table discussions which will continue until June 21.

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, and Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, officially welcomed the instructors Tuesday morning.

Benning Soldiers Warned Of Unauthorized Brokers

(Editor's Note: The following article was prepared by Erle Smith, director of public relations, Aircoach Transport Association.)

Fort Benning personnel are warned to beware of irresponsible independent air travel ticket brokers who "sell" air transportation to military personnel and then attempt to find a carrier to transport such traffic.

Thomas E. Worthington, Aircoach Transport Association (ACTA) military traffic representative at Fort Benning, said that his Association's national office in Washington, D. C., had received reports of several bad incidents.

He said military personnel purchased air travel from ticket vendors not authorized to solicit on the installation only to be "left high and dry with no refund, no recourse to legal action, and, worst of all, no money left to continue their trip by another mode of transportation." He said that "such situations can be prevented only if air travel is arranged through an official ACTA military traffic representative."

ACTA is the national trade association of independent air coach lines, and is authorized with approval of station Commanders under AR 96-90 to establish offices of military installations through which military personnel can arrange low-cost air transportation.

Mr. Worthington pointed out that his office can confirm reservations immediately for individuals, groups or charters. ACTA carrier - members, are in daily contact with the Association's Washington office, reporting status of equipment, and that office keeps military traffic representatives informed on the availability of equipment.

The ACTA office for Fort Benning personnel is located at Building 1760 (Telephone Center—Main Post — Behind Finance Building—upstairs.)

Meanwhile, another warning to Fort Benning personnel to deal only with authorized ticket agents was sounded by Col. S. W. Ackerman, Post Transportation Officer.

"Investigation has shown that only those airlines which are REPRESENTED within the provisions of AR 96-90 are to be considered as a means of obtaining this type of air transportation. Failures of fulfillment of contracts by certain airlines have resulted in inconvenience and financial loss to military personnel.

"The Military Establishment cannot assume any responsibility for private transportation arrangements, and military personnel are warned against entering into transactions with agents representing airlines not authorized to operate on military posts or reservations. Such transactions will be consumated at the individual's own risk and responsibility."

Colonel Ackerman urged personnel to contact the Provost Marshal's office immediately should they be approached by unauthorized ticket sellers.

"You will be performing a service in the joint effort of Aircoach Transport Association and the Military authorities to prevent unprincipled ticket agents from victimizing military personnel," he concluded.

NG Personnel Now Eligible For Rangers

Ranger training at Fort Benning for officers and enlisted men of the National Guard has been authorized.

Two eight-week courses will be held. Enlisted Guardsmen will begin training July 31, and the officers course will start Sept. 4.

The Ranger course has been designed to provide practical field training for rifle company commanders, platoon leaders, platoon sergeants and squad leaders. Special emphasis will be placed on scouting, patrolling and small unit operations.

To qualify for the training, officer applicants must be of company grade, and enlisted men in grade E-4 or higher. All applicants must be able to swim and be not more than 30 years old.

The training will be "realistic and rough with only a minimum of academic instruction, according to Ranger Department officials.

One phase of the training is conducted in the swamps of northwest Florida's Eglin Air Force Base, and another at Dahlonega, near North Georgia's Smoky Mountains. The first two weeks of the course are taught here.

The program of instruction has been planned so that students will obtain practical combat experience in small team tactics in both jungle and mountainous country.

Drivers Cautioned Mufflers Required

All military and civilian personnel are reminded that it is against the Traffic Ordinance of Columbus to drive a privately owned vehicle with a noisy muffler.

This remainder is issued by the Provost Marshal since numerous motorists have been apprehended and prosecuted for violation of this law.

The Ordinance states "It shall be unlawful to operate any vehicle, using an explosive mixture as a motive power, without a muffler sufficient to deaden the sound, which muffler shall not be disconnected or cut out". 'California' mufflers, or 'twin-pipe' mufflers are in the category of mufflers which are objectionable.

"Violation of the foregoing references are punishable by a fine up to $250.00 and 30 days in jail".

ROK Officers Use Taxi for Tour

There are five Republic of Korea officer on this post who will tell anyone that the best way to go sightseeing is by taxicab.

The quintet, members of the Sixth Company, First Student Regiment recently decided to take a trip to Washington, D. C. and take in all the sights. After comparing the various modes of travel open to them they decide that a taxi would fill the bill perfectly.

The total expenses of the travel phase of the trip were a little over $155 or about $31 per man. Not bad for a 1400 mile trip.

Senate Group OKs Bill to Retain NG, Reserves 5 Years

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — the Senate Armed Services Committee has approved a bill permitting the President to keep National Guard and other Reserve units in active Federal service up to five years. The bill was previously passed by the House of Representatives.

The measure also provides that units comparable to those retained in Federal service will be established in those states that have had units ordered into Federal service.

The provision permitting retention of Reserve units for five instead of two years does not extend the period of service required of individuals under present law. At the end of five years, or sooner if possible, the active duty units will be returned to the states and merged with their counterpart units.

The movie depicts the training and life of paratroopers and Fort Benning, being the home of the airborne, was the site of much of the work on the film.

Mule Visitor Unimpressed

One visitor to The Infantry Center this week wasn't impressed by his military police escort — in fact, he ignored it.

An old bay mule, who has been dubbed Francis by his hosts, wandered onto the reservation Wednesday and started to enter the Main Post area by way of Outpost No. 1. The cemetery attracted his attention, however, and an MP patrol car dispatched to lure him out was unsuccessful.

This problem was solved by two soldiers who volunteered to lead him to the Veterinary Section where Francis now is a special guest.

Meanwhile, Major Dwain T. Bowie, acting Infantry Center veterinarian, has requested that anyone with knowledge of Francis' owner please contact the Veterinary Office here at once.

West Point Cadets Visit Post

The 516 West Point cadets who arrived here yesterday will find their visit to the Infantry Center and its Infantry School of special significance.

The majority of the cadets will become Infantry officers, and as long as they stay in the Army, Fort Benning will play an important role in their careers.

As Infantry officers, they will take advanced courses at Benning and the techniques of war they will follow all their Army lives will always have a Fort Benning flavor.

But they will not be blazing trails as far as The Infantry School is concerned. Most of the great American soldiers have done their stint at Fort Benning. Bradley, Eisenhower, Marshall and hundreds of others have been here before the cadets visiting now.

This isn't offered as discouragement but as a challenge. Many of these great soldiers who fought their way to fame came to Benning as fledgings who had to be taught.

Great soldiers aren't born—they have to be trained, and that is, of course, The Infantry School's role. At Fort Benning is The Infanrty Center, and it means just that. The Infantryman is still the one who has to take the fight to the enemy and at The Infantry School he will learn the best possible method of doing that.

Fort Benning is proud to play host to the West Point cadets. It is proud to show the first classmen the vast training facilities here on the post that will help make them better soldiers.

But the cadets must be proud, too, that such a place as Fort Benning exists.

The Infantry School will affect, not only their own lives, but the men whom they will command. When they go into battle, the Benning training will pay off.

ROTC Students to Train Here

The first of 2,500 ROTC cadets will begin arriving here June 20 for a six-week summer camp that will be the largest ever held. These students will represent some 69 colleges and universities in the Second, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Army areas and Puerto Rico.

These college students and future Infantry officers will find The Infantry School somewhat different from the colleges they are attending. During their regular school year, they have learned of the military mainly through books, but here they will deal with real men and actual weapons.

They are in for some rugged training but when the students have finished their training here, they will be better soldiers and men.

To draw officers from the ranks of the college student is a healthy way for the Army to keep trained officers coming along, but the student's value will also be greater as a civilian when his military stint is up.

Many of these college ROTC trained students will make the Army their career, but many more of them will take up their place in the civilian world.

The college student - soldier has a proud heritage in battle. Students at the Virginia Military Institute distinguished themselves in the Civil war when they marched away from the academic halls to the battlefield.

Fort Benning is proud to welcome the ROTC students. While here, they will undergo tough training but they will go back to their books with a greater understanding of what they are studying.

ROTC-trained officers have filled a vital need in the modern Army set-up. These students have combined their higher education with military training and each compliments the other.

Chaplain's Corner

The World at One in Prayer, Chaplain Says

BY CHAPLAIN (Maj) ROBERT B. HEERNDON

From time to time during the past years I have been finding some prayers from a culture not our own but distinctly helpful, not only in personal devotions, but also in public worship. It is hoped that others may share this same experience.

GERMANY:

"OUR POVERTY"

This is our poverty
That we do not belong to each other.
Nor serve one another.
We go each his own way
And do not care for our neighbor.
We pray thee, O Lord:
Redeem us from this estrangement,
Redeem us out of this loneliness.
Deliver us from the sin that divides us.
Join us closely in true love.
Have mercy upon all thy children
Lord, we believe; help thou our unbelief.

GREAT BRITAIN:

"Haymaking"

O Lord, who bringest forth grass for the cattle: Unto thee do we lift up our prayer, beseeching thee to look favorably at this time upon the fields, and all who work thereon; that they may so make the hay, that by thy blessing there be no lack of fodder for the beasts, when winter cometh; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

CANADA:

"For the Dominion"

O Lord, remember the lonely who dwell upon our frontiers, the folk of the plains and the mountains, the fishermen and their families, the miners and the lumbermen, in all our fair provinces! Grant us as a people to attain to unity amid all the rich diversity of many national origins that make up our Dominion! Blend us into one family under thy Divine Fatherhood revealed in Jesus Christ. Amen.

PORTUGUESE EAST AFRICA:

"Yoke Me, O Lord"

"O Lord, put thy yoke about my shoulders—thy collar about my neck. Hold me in the Way until I arrive at the City."

"The Little Stone In My Heart"

O God, I have a stone in my heart and it troubles me. Forgive my falsehood to Fazenda, for this is the little stone that is in my heart.

AMERICA:

"Prayers Of Steel"

Lay me on an anvil, O God.
Beat me and hammer me into a crowbar.
Let me pry loose old walls.
Let me lift and loosen old foundations.
Lay me on an anvil, O God.
Beat me and hammer me into a steel spike.
Drive me into the girders that hold a skyscraper together.
Take red-hot rivets and fasten me into the central girders.
Let me be the great nail holding a skyscraper through blue nights into white stars.

"Together Before God"

"And brother, what shall you say?"

Lord, I do not hate, I am hated. I scourge no one, I am scourged. I covet no lands, my lands are coveted. I mock no peoples, my people are mocked.

Taken from "The World At One In Prayer" edited by Daniel J. Flemming.

Red Planes Shoot Down Swedish Flying Boat

Sweden was limelighted in the international picture this week as a series of sharp neutrality - violating incidents brought vigorous protests out of Stockholm against the Soviet government.

The first of two incidents was the assault by two Soviet jet fighters on an unarmed Swedish Air Force flying boat on a mercy mission. The plane was shot down over the Baltic Sea but a crew of seven, including two wounded, was rescued by a small freighter.

Immediately an aroused Swedish government, protested this "act of violence" and demanded swift punishment of "those responsible for the outrage."

At the time of the attack about 80 miles off the Soviet-held Estonian coast, in an area where the Russians are reported to be holding vast sea and air maneuvers, the Swedish plane was searching for a Swedish Air Force plane missing since Friday with eight men aboard. This plane too, is believed to have been shot down by the Russians.

Secretary of Defense Lovett has told Congress that "the Russians are outbuilding us—we are falling behind, relatively speaking, in the arms race."

The defense secretary's warning was given in recent closed-door testimony to a Senate appropriations subcommittee. Lovett, leading a fight to block cuts in defense spending already voted by the House, and smaller cuts favored by the Bureau, has staunch backing from both the civilian and uniformed heads of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, serving under him.

Sarge Laughs At Friday 13th

It is a good thing that superstition plays no part in the life of Sgt. Marlton Harrison, assistant operations sergeant of the Third Battalion of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

On Friday the 13th the sergeant made his 13th jump. To add to the situation he was the thirteenth man to jump.

After successfully completing the jump, Sergeant Harrison is convinced there is nothing to the Myth. In fact his wedding date was also on a Friday the 13th.

On The Bookshelf

A LAMP FOR NIGHTFALL. Erskine Caldwell. Duell, Sloan and Pearce.

In his latest book, laid against a Maine background, Caldwell goes back to the scene of his earlier stories and some of his best stories.

But the return to Maine marks a more significant milestone in the work of this unique American storyteller than a mere change of scene.

The familiar earthy humor is still there, the authentic flavor of back - country Maine life, the way people really talk and behave. There is genuine tragedy in the fateful way life closes in on Thede Emerson and his two children; there is pathos as well as comedy in the lusty affair between Thede's wife, Rose, and Leland Stokes.

There is a new color and warmth in the way Caldwell handles some of the big scenes, the October wedding, for instance, or his description of the way the lamps are going out one by one in the old farm houses around Clearwater.

A Lamp For Nightfall is the work of a master in a genre he has made uniquely his own.

THE PILLAR by David Walker. Houghton Mifflin Company.

In The Pillar, Walker deals with a complex and important theme the unit of comradeship which grew from the conflicts, irritations, attractions and jealousies of six men prisoners in Germany in the last war.

A mature and difficult pattern is woven with intricate craftsmanship and brilliant success by Mr. Walker, himself a prisoner for five years and the veteran of numerous escapes.

The Pillar gives an entirely authentic picture of prison life, yet by light and shadow drawing from that life a passionately unified story which sweeps along to its moving climax.

Twins' Lives Are Identical

If a student of human behavior ever wanted proof of the fact that identical twins not only look exactly alike, but think and act in similar fashion as well, he could easily use the Hart brothers as his example.

This fact was recently brought to life in an interview with Capt. Buster C. Hart who is presently Staff Judge Advocate of the First Student Brigade.

Captain Hart and his twin brother Buddy have been living virtually identical lives since their birth in Fromise City, Iowa. They were in the same classes throughout their high school and college days.

They even made identical grades. Although they were the same weight, the brothers specified in different classes while at the University of Iowa. This was done primarily to lessen intra-family rivalry.

Their careers in the Army during World War II were exactly parallel. They enlisted in December of 1942 and made the exact same score in their Army General Classification Tests. Early in 1944 they received their orders and were sent to the Armored Officer Candidate School at Fort Knox, Ky. Graduation and commissions as second lieutenants came to the Hart Brothers in June 1944.

Sent to Europe, their careers still continued to run parallel. Both were promoted to Captain and decorated for gallantry in action on the same day. With end of hostilities in Europe they return to the states and were separated from service in July 1946.

Returning to the University of Iowa they completed their undergraduate work and went on to enroll, together, in the Harvard Law School.

It was soon after this that, for the first time, the twins started to vary their lives. Brother Buddy married while Buster remained single. Because of his marital status and due Minnesota laws concerning married reservists, Buddy was not recalled with Buster in April 1951.

Captain Hart came back into service as an infantry officer, but due to his legal training and experience he was soon detailed to the Judge Advocates section, in which capacity he presently serves.

Scheduled to revert to inactive status September 18 of this year, Captain Hart expects to return to St. Paul, Minnesota, where brother Buddy is now engaged in practice, and resume his own legal career.

Florida Rest Camp Proves Success With Post Troops

BY SGT. TIM WARREN

The Infantry Center Rest Camp at Destin, Fla., has proved itself a huge success with the military personnel at Fort Benning.

Opening on March 15, the camp was a slow starter but interest has increased up to the point where the months of May, June and July have been—and will see—the camp a complete sellout.

At the present time there are only a few openings left for the months of August and September.

The rest camp was considerably improved since the last summer season and plans are in the process to keep it open on a year-round basis. The Infantry Center Special Services Office spent more than $4,000 in refinishing the six cabins since last year.

All money made by the Special Services through the camp is reinvested in the site, according to Capt. Dale Roby of the Special Services Office. Playground equipment for children has been installed since the camp opened on March 15. Total expense on this project ran to more than $300.

On Gulf

The camp is located on a bay on the Gulf of Mexico about 240 miles from Fort Benning, approximately half way between Panama City and Pensacola. It is near Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Five of the cabins are so designed that they can comfortably accomodate four people while the sixth camp can house 10 persons. The large cabin is ideally designed for a group of single enlisted men who might want to visit the camp.

Reservations may be made by calling Captain Roby at 42115. They may be made any length of time in advance, but payment must be made at least one week prior to going or the reservation will be cancelled. The charge is $3.50 per family per day.

The camp may be utilized by both officers and enlisted men and enlisted men and their families. There are several boats and one motor boat available for which there is no charge.

Personnel may take advantage of post exchange and commissary privileges available at Eiglin Air Force Base. There are also grocery stores and restaurants within a short distance of the camp.

Deep sea fishing bots make daily trips from nearby points for a nominal fee.

A well cleaned and maintained beach is also a vital part of the camp as is the availability of an adequate water supply for cooking and bathing.

The new medical technicians include Pvt. Vera M. Curl, Pvt. Christine Thomas, Pvt. Annie L. Dickerson, Pvt. George J. Thomas, and Pvt. Alice E. Williamson.

Graduating members of the Medical Student Detachment here include Pvt. James C. Ervin, Pfc. Clyde L. Smith, Pfc. John Koziowski, and Pvt. Boyce J. Callahan. They will remain on duty with the hospital here.

Assignments for the graduating Wacs are Private Curl to the 2128th Area Service Unit Station Complement at Fort Knox, Ky.; Private Christine Thomas to the 5010th Area Service Unit Station Complement at Fort Custer, Mich., and Privates Dickerson, George Thomas, and Williamson to William Beaumont Army Hospital, El Paso, Texas.

Cut Hotel Rates In N. Y. Hotels

The Infantry Center Special Services Office has received five Servicemens Courtesy Cards for use by servicemen or civilian personnel of the armed forces and their dependants.

These courtesy cards are issued by the Army Audit Agency in New York to installations throughout the country. The cards are honored at certain hotels in New York City and entitle the bearers to a reduced servicemans rate.

The hotels include the Hotel Park Plaza and Hotel Emerson. With the use of these cards, servicemen and others using them will receive single rooms and bath for $2.50 a day or a double with bath for $4.00.

Anyone desiring to use a courtesy card should contact the Recreation and Entertainment Officer, Special Services, PIC, telephone number 42115. Upon return from the New York Hotels, cards will be returned to the same office for future use by other personnel.

Course Stresses Cost Improvement

Efficiency and economy in operations is the theme of an orientation course which began here last week for Infantry Center management improvement officers.

Lt. Col. A. M. Murphy of the Comptroller's Office here will instruct the 25 officers and civilians, representing Fort Benning units and activities, in methods of implementing the cost consciousness program.

The course ends June 19.

Electric Work Contract Let

The electric contract for Fort Benning's $20,000,000 troop housing project has been let by the district engineer's office in Savannah, Ga.

Col. Richard F. Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer, said the contract went to Electric Contractors of Columbus (Ga.) for $323,584.80. Work is scheduled to begin June 16 and will be completed by Dec. 16, 1953 (eq).

The multi-million-dollar troop housing project will be located at the junction of Sightseeing and Indianhead Roads on the Main Post. It was authorized under the 1952 military construction budget.

Bids for gas, water and sewer installations will be opened June 13, and for buildings, June 26, Col. Ebbs said.

The project will provide troop quarters for two regimental-size units.

The second class of Republic of Korea Army students at Fort Benning has garnered a total of 113 "A" grades out of an enrollment of 149 students on machine gun and nomenclature test.

Par for the test according to Infantry School standards is ten per cent of a normal class. An "A" at the Infantry School is Superior.

Now in their ninth week of training, the ROK group is the second class of its kind to attend The Infantry School. Letters from students in the first class that left here several months ago, indicate that they are now back on the fighting front in Korea.

Master Sergeant Awarded Silver Star Medal Here

A Fort Benning Master Sergeant has been awarded the Silver Star Medal here for gallantry in action in Korea. He is M-Sgt. Guy G. Warren of Fort Worth, Texas.

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, made the presentation.

A veteran of 18 years military service, Sergeant Warren received the medal for gallantry July 30, 1950, near Inchon, Korea, while a member of Company E, Seventh Cavalry Regiment, First Cavalry Division.

Acting as platoon leader, he led his men uphill against heavy enemy mortar, tank gun and machine gun fire despite heavy casualities, according to the citation.

"Without regard for his own safety, he carried ammunition to the crew-served weapons and carried many wounded men to saftey through heavy small arms and machine gun fire," the citation reads.

Sergeant Warren attended White House High School in White House, Texas, and enlisted in the Army in 1934.

He has served with the Second Infantry Division at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and at Camp Walters, Texas, and Fort Worth, Texas. He also was on duty with the Second Armored Division at Fort Sill, Okla.

He joined the Cavalry Division in Japan in 1950.

Sergeant Warren was assigned to the First Officer Candidate Regiment here in 1951, and is now on duty with the S-3 Section of the First Student Brigade.

Sergeant Warren has also been awarded the Purple Heart.

BENNING RADIO NEWS

With the celebration of the 177th Anniversary of the founding of the Army and the Infantry in the record books, Fort Benning this week turns to its major summer project. This is the training of approximately 2,600 ROTC Cadets. This figure includes 2,500 regular Infantry cadets and approximately 100 medical students.

In order to give proper emphasis to the program in its radio presentations, the Radio Branch will devote the "Benning in Review" program entirely to ROTC activity. An interview with Col. William R. Blakely, who will head the encampment, will be augmented with reports from the Medical ROTC encampment and an interview with Chaplain (Maj.) Truman Raley who has been assigned to the ROTC encampment.

The program should prove of interest to a great number of listeners. It is aired locally over WRBL at 6:15 p.m. Saturday.

Further in line with the close affinity being developed between the military and education leaders of the country, Fort Benning has now achieved the establishment of branch of a university off-campus center at the post. The work of the center is important not only to the individuals who study there, but to the Army and the country as well. In view of this, the "Fort Benning Feature Page" (WAGA, Sunday, noon) will describe the program, its goal, and the personnel who operate the center.

"Benning News Parade" heard over WDAK, Saturday at 5:30 p.m., will contain a review of all the week's big events at The Infantry Center. In addition, there will be interviews with important people who help make those events. The program also will contain revelations of various projects and activities planned for the future.

* * *

The radio - family at Fort Benning is now larger than ever before. Last week, WPNX, Phenix City's new radio station, joined the family of stations now airing Benning radio programs. The title of the new show is "Benning Reports," and it is aired on Sunday at 7:15 p.m. Sunday's program will samples of sound heard by the soldier in combat. The sounds you will hear are the sounds the soldier would like to forget. The program will be well worth the listening.

CTC's Post Leave Quizes Help Improve Conduct

A Conduct Consciousness program is being carried on throughout the Combat Training Command with emphasis toward a soldier's conduct while on leave.

Purpose of the program is to direct the attention of the individual soldier to his responsibilities as a member of the Armed Forces.

Immediately upon return of an enlisted man from pass of leave, an interview is conducted by a commissioned officer or a warrant officer. During this interview she returnee is asked questions pertaining to the necessity of MPs patroling bus and rail terminals.

He is also asked to indicate the number of acts he saw committed while on leave that reflected discredit upon the Army.

Examples of these are untidy uniform, intoxication, rude manners, and foul language.

Answers to these questions are filled out by the enlisted man on a self - explanatory form and submitted to Headquarters, Combat Training Command, within seventy two hours, after his return.

The program is an attempt to impress upon the individual soldier that, while he is on leave or pass, he is a living billboard for the Army.

REPLACEMENT

Capt. W. W. Kaduck is the new adjutant for the Second Student Regiment replacing Capt. M. S. McKalip who become Assistant S-4.

The Infantryman wounded in battle appreciates the Army medic more than anyone else, Major Gen. Robert N. Young told 89 future Army doctors and dentists here last Monday.

"Thousands of lives are saved on the battlefield by the skill and ingenuity o fthe Army doctor and the medical aid man," General Young declared in his, welcoming address.

"For this reason, The Infantry Center is an appropriate place for your study," he said.

Lemar Dodd lithlograph to General Young who accepted it on behalf of the entire Infantry School.

The final speech of the evening was that of Dr. O. C. Aderhold, president of the University of Georgia.

In his address, Doctor Aderhold stressed the importance of the public education system in the American way o life.

Doctor Aderhold said that after Pearl Harbor when President Roosevelt called for 100,000 plane and immense totals of tanks, ships and other implements of war, we as adults said that these requests were the product of fantasy thinking. We had never produced anything approaching those figures. But the facts show that all the production figures were reached or surpassed.

"We made these achievements bcause our American public educational system gives us skill, knowledge and strength to do such miraculous deeds. It is the product of a strong public education program for our people."

Doctor Aderhold said that he was glad to know that, in addition to the military training which is given at Fort Benning those enrolling for courses in the extension branches are showing interest in courses in political sciences and American government.

"Education," said Doctor Aderhold, "will give a better understanding of the American way of life and what we are fighting for."

The first classes began at the conclusion of Doctor Aderhold's speech.

Among the guests present on the occasion were Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr. Assistant Commandant of The Infantry School; Mr. W. R. Parks, Education Adviser, Third Army Headquarters; Col. C. H. Owens, Chief of Staff; Col. W. B. Yeager, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-S; W. R Alexander, Assistant Director Division of General Extension, University of Georgia, Rembert Houser, Director University of Georgia Fort Benning Branch; J. Lockett, Director, Albany State College, Fort Benning branch and Capt. R. D. Stage, Troop Information and Education Officer.

The invocation was by Chaplain (Col.) L. O. Sheffield.

STRAPS SECURE TRUCKS FOR SHIPMENT

Benning Civilian Converts Scrap Metal Into Savings

A device designed by a Fort Benning civilian worker is turning scrap metal into money for the Army.

Unofficially designated "Grogan's Gadget" it was designed by J. C. Grogan, warehouse foreman, Tranportation office, for use in the shipping of the new 2 1-2 ton truck.

The device is a piece of metal, 8 1-2 inches by 1 1-2 inches, with holes bored in it to fit under the lug nuts on the wheels. One end, with a slightly larger hole, is bent at an angle.

The metal is fitted under the lug nuts, and the wire stretched from the flat car through the hole in the bent end of the gadget, holding the vehicle firmly in place.

Capt. James H. Williams, Assistant Transportation officer, said, "In the ordinary type vehicle, the annealed wire used to hold down the vehicle was run through the opening in the wheel. In the new 2 1-2 ton truck, however, there is no opening."

Two of these steel pieces are used on each wheel and it is estimated that approximately 50 pounds of wire per vehicle are saved by the use of Grogan's Gadget.

At the present time, improvements on the gadget are being worked on. These are only in the experiment stage, and have not been tried out as yet.

According to Captain Williams, the use of the metal is a help in the manpower saving also. In estimated figures, Grogan's Gadget saves the government four dollars on every new type 2 1-2 ton vehicle that is shipped from the post.

Liberated in 1945 he returned to this country and was assigned as an instructor of an R. O. T. C. unit in Macon Georgia.

After taking his airborne training here at The Infantry School in 1950, he was made a battalion commander with the 506th Airborne Infantry Regiment at Fort Bragg.

He was sent to Korea in March of 1951 and served as a battalion commander with the Fifth Cavalry Regiment. It was in Korea that he received his promotion to Lieutenant Colonel.

Round-Trip Rail Fares Continue As Reduced Rates Until Jan. 31

Reduced round - trip ticket sales to service personnel has been extended by the railroads until Jan. 31, 1953, Capt. James H. Williams, assistant Transportation officer has announced.

But military personnal who continually violate the laws and conditions governing the sale of these furlough tickets may jeopardize continuance of such reduced fares, Captain Williams warned.

He stated that purchase of these tickets is restricted to military personnel in uniform who present to the carrier's agent official leave of absence, furlough or pass papers. Personnel must also travel in uniform.

Military personnel entitled to reduced round trip furlough fare tickets, will not purchase them for travel being performed at government expense, he pointed out.

"Military personnel authorized leave or delay-en-route (furlough) may purchase from personal funds a reduced round trip furlough fare ticket from stop - over point to place selected to visit and return to stated stop - over point for resumption of journey", he added.

3 In Playoff Duel As BB Nears Wire

The Post Benning League race plunges into the final two and a half weeks of regular season action Friday with the figure two looming as magic number for three clubs still battling for places in the Shaughnessy playoffs.

HEAVY TIMBER . . . A couple of potent reasons First Student Regiment is threatening to chase Infantry School Detachment right down to the wire in the Fort Benning League are Bill Brooks, (left), and Paul Bonair. The husky outfielder and infielder have been regulars for the Black Shirts for several season and are hitting well over the .300 mark for the current campaign. (U.S. Army Photo by Cpl. Garfield.)

Two teams are certain. Infantray School Detachment (6-0) and First Student Regiment (7-1) clashed last night in a scrap for first place which was too late to be recorded in this edition.

But no matter who won, both will be in the playoffs which will officially determine the 1952 Infantry Center baseball championship.

Not necessarily so Combat Training Command, ASU Provisional Group and 508th Airborne RCT.

CTC has three games remaining — including a pair with 508th and ASU — and must win two of them to gain a slot with no strings attached.

ASU's Raiders and the 508th's Red Devils have identical .500 averages, but they are paying off — queerly enough — on total wins. That means any combination of two ASU victories or two 508th defeats will give the fourth playoff berth to the Raiders.

CTC Problem

And if CTC should do the possible and drop three while the Red Devils won their remaining they could be left with the also rans in the second division.

The possible is also the probable judging by past performance. Manager Bobby Clark's Commanders lost to ASU, 7-3, and to Infantry School Detachment, their foe next Wednesday night, 6-5, in the first half.

On the other hand, the Raiders already hold one decision over three of their remaining foes. In addition to CTC, they blitzed Second S.R., 20-0, and Provisional Medical Group, 11-3.

No Pushover

All of the above is "paper strategy," however. Second SR's Rockets, with some major lineup changes including the addition of a couple of good pitchers, will not be so docile before the Raiders tomorrow night at Gowdy Field.

In fact, if Manager Bob Morrow starts either of his newcomers, Don Ciernniak or Bill Black, the ASU-Second S.R. encounter must be rated just about even with ASU holding an edge in hitting.

Rough On Devils

The 508th's remaining opponents are First Student Regiment, Sunday at 2 p.m., Provisional Medical Group, CTC and ISD's Professors. The Red Devils will be definite underdogs for the former and latter games.

In the joust on this week's menu, ISD clashes with the Medics at 2 p.m. Saturday. PMG has been a perpetual thorn for the league leaders, beating them twice to knock them out of last year's race and bowing by the scant margin of 2-1 in the previous encounter this season.

105th Beats 121st, 9-2 In Second SR Softball

The 105th Company scored a 9-2 victory over the 121st in a Second Student Regiment softball game last week.

The winners collected 13 hits off MaHill and Leferre with MaHill being charged with the defeat. Roy Pierce held the 121st to six safeties. Kunbancik hit a homer for the 105th.

Scott Defends Net Title

Terry Scott, veteran all 'round athlete from First Student Regiment, will have to defend his Infantry Center tennis championship against a field of some 30 ace racquet wielders in the 1952 enlisted men's tournament opening at 8:15 a. m. today on the Second Cuartal courts, main post.

Scott won the singles crown in handy fashion last year, but will be minus the partner with whom he copped the doubles crown.

He will team with Bob Kinard, First S. R. baseball manager, in the doubles action.

Besides Scott, the tourney is rated a wide open affair.

Large Teams

Combat Training Command and Provisional Medical Group led the men respectively.

100 Golfers Set For EM Tourney

More than 100 par-seeking enlisted men—and one enlisted woman with the same idea—are expected to tee-off in the qualifying round of the 1952 Infantry Center championship golf tournament next Thursday at the Sand Hill course.

Actually, the players will be assembled next Wednesday for an allotted practice round over the tricky nine-hole layout.

An 18-hole medal play qualifying round is slated Thursday. First 16 low scorers will make up the championship and first flights with others divided into flights of eight.

Look Out, Boys

All enlisted personnel at Fort Benning and Lawson Field are eleigible.

One of the most interesting aspects of the competition will be the appearance of Bobbie Robson, pert WAC private first class, who carded in the low eighties on her home course in Ontario, Canada.

Bobbie's play could prove embarrassing to some of the post's veteran male shotmakers.

Flyer Ready

Frank Kozel heads the list of entrants from Lawsor Field who also will make it tough for Benning regulars. Others among the favored are Emil Kaeserman, Paul Buman, Fred Furlong, Leo Dawson, Dave Fingerhut, Randy Wilsman and James England.

Other entries fiedr at press time included Dick Souders, Edison Kukn and Kenneth-Porter.

Swim Meet Deadline Is Slated for July 3

Entries for the 1952 Infantry Center Swimming Meet July 10-11 at Sand Hill pool will close at noon, July 3, according to Maj. Gene Myers, sports officer. All male military personnel at Fort Benning and Lawson Field are eligible.

Units at regimental of similar unit level are urged to enter teams, but there is no limit on individual entries although swimmers will be permitted to participate in not more than three events.

Post Sends Golfers To SE Tourney

Several dozen of Fort Benning's better linksmen are expected to be on hand for the 17th annual Southeastern Amateur Invitational golf tournament June 26-29 at the Columbus Country Club.

Participation by Fort Benning personnel was heartily endorsed by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, who said:

"I understand Fort Benning always has been well represented in this outstanding golf event. I hope this year will be no exception and that all post golfers whose military duties will permit will be on hand to represent The Infantry Center. Nothing would be finer than to have a winner from Fort Benning."

George Hamer Jr., former national intercollegiate and Tam O'Shanter champion, is the defending champion, but he'll have tough going in this year's four-day event.

Among the entrants are Harvie Ward, recent winner of the British Amateur crown, Charlie Yates, a former British Amateur champ, Doug Sanders, national junior champ, and Arnold Blum, present Southern amateur title holder.

Army Team Set

A crack four-man squad from the Dixie Division at Camp Atterbury, Ind., also will be on hand. Heading this team are Gil Wesley, who won the Southeastern in 1950, and Jim Ryan, former Alabama state champ.

Among the Columbus entrants are Sonny Swift, three times a runnerup in this event, and 17-year old Cecil Calhoun, who finished second behind Hamer last year.

Former Holy Cross Grid Star Here

William Stetter, better known as Big Bill Stetter during his football days at Holy Cross, is now assigned to Ninth O. C. Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment.

Candidate Stetter, defensive captain of Holy Cross' 1950 team, was also selected as All New England center that year. Stetter caught for the Holy Cross baseball team.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

SPEAKING OF garbage men, as we were in last week's sermon about Joe Feinstein, which he acknowledged by reeling off the first no-hitter of the post season, I heard a fresh tale about the greatest of all current junk pitchers—Eddie Lopat. For obvious reasons this one won't be published nationally for awhile.

As you may recall, Heady Eddie's 21 wins were in no small part responsible for the Yankees finishing a few lengths to the good of the American League field last fall while the Giants and Dodgers were busy annihilating one another, as it was so forcibly demonstrated in the World Series.

Now Lopat is to American League batters what Feinstein is to Benning hitters—pure poison. He isn't big. His fast ball is non-existent. They snicker at his curve. And they break their backs trying to unload on him! That's because he knows more about pitching than most hurlers ever realized existed. There are many strong-armed winners, but Lopat is a professional among major leaguers.

Eddie was due for an important role in the Series, of course, and with a couple of days left in the by then meaningless American League race, Casey Stengel gave his ace southpaw the nod to "warm up" against Boston in one of the final games at Fenway Park. Lopat responded by visiting the Red Sox bench and asking Lou Boudreau's crew what kind of pitches they would like.

The Sox were stunned, but Lopat convinced them finally that he was on the level. Ted Williams, just a couple of knocks away from the RBI crown, asked for Eddie's slider. Bobby Doerr wanted "that fast ball, belt high," and so on down the Bosox batting order it went. A few minutes later Williams was at the plate with two of those needed RBI's lurking on the bases. Lopat let go with the slider. Tall Ted took it for a called strike.

"What's wrong? That's what you wanted," Lopat called down from the hill.

"Throw it again," responded Williams.

Lopat got set to see one disappear out of Fenway Park and delivered. Williams tapped it lightly and got only a single, and one RBI! Doerr popped out to second. Big Walt Dropo, who was in on the fantastic scheme, too, teed off on the pitch he knew was coming—and hit right into Gene Woodling's mitt in left.

My source for this, and visitor for a few hours Friday, was W. C. Heinz, brilliant sports columnist of the New York Sun, until that respected metropolitan journal succumbed to a severe attack of modern economics in 1950. Heinz since then has been a prosperous free-lance writer and has won the Dutnam prize for the best magazine story for three of the past five years. In short, here to do a story on infantrymen for Argosy, he speaks authoritively on his sports.

Since he recently had a piece on Lopat in the Saturday Evening Post, let Heinz tell you about the brilliant Yankee lefty in his own words:

"Eddie's strictly small arms weapons, no artillery, as you would probably say, but you'll get a good idea of what he does have from what he told me. He uses a knuckler, curve, slider and his idea of a fast ball. He can throw all of those at three speeds — his normal gait or faster or slower than normal. Three speeds times four pitches equals 12 different pitches. Okay. Now he can throw all of that with either a short or long arm motion. Two motions times 12 pitches gives him 24 pitchea.

"It may sound overly simple, but it's the truth, and Lopat doesn't hesitate to use any of the 24 for the specific job at hand. He's got confidence in everything he has. Lopat decides what pitch he will throw next to each batter by the manner in which the batter just reacted to his previous serve.

"He tells how in 1947, just before leaving the White Sox to join the Yankees, he was pitching to a Bomber batter with Joe DiMaggio on deck. Lopat threw his slow curve and saw an immediate reaction from the waiting Clipper. He struck DiMag out with that pitch when Joe came to bat.

"Now, mind you, Lopat was telling me this himself just last February at St. Petersburg — four years after it happened and he remembers the incident and the pitch. Eddie marvels to me about DiMaggio remembering it, too. I marvel at both of them. It just goes to show you that the real major leaguers, the stars, are great students of the game. They make a science of it and nothing escapes their attention.

"Here's Lopat, 34 years old, and still a big winner. What about a guy like Joe Page, who a few short seasons ago was the highest paid relief pitcher in the game? Page had a blinding fast ball when he insured a couple of pennants. He worked 42 games in 1947 and you can figure he saved most of them, but when Joe lost the least bit of speed on his big one he was through. He had nothing else to baffle 'em with.

"Bob Feller is a similiar case with a switch. Feller came up with a great fast ball. He lost it during the time out for the war and since then you've read stories every year about him being through. He isn't though because by the time he had lost the big one he had learned to pitch.

JIM BURNS

Second Battalion Wins CTC Swim; Burns Scores 18

James Burns won two first places and scored 18 points to win individual honors, but Second Battalion finmen totaled 27 points to take the 1952 Combat Training Command team swimming championship last week at Sand Hill pool.

The 198th Field Artillery finished second with 19 points with Burns' 550th Tank Battalion third thanks to his fancy scoring.

Stanley Self, of the 198th, was second in individual point making with 11, followed by Joe James, of Third Battalion, with 10 points. James copped the one and two metera divig.

Scored Double

Burns won the 200 - yard free style in the two minutes and 52.9 seconds and then came back to take the 100 - yard breast stroke in 1:29.8.

Self garnered the most first places, winning the 100 - yard back - stroke in 1:17.5. 150-yard medley in 2:06. and swimming with the 400 - yard free relay team which won in 5:54. Others on the squad were George Hardesty, Dave Cooper and James Gidson.

Other winners were:

50-yard free style — Gus Constantine, 2nd Battalion. 28.7.

400-yard free style — Lawrence Mannel, 2nd Battalion, 7.36.6.

100-yard free style — Robert Raynor, 2nd Battalion, 1:09.5.

508th Swim Team Starts New Year in LaGrange Go

Under the tutelage of former West Point swimming star, First Lt. John Hayes, the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team eight-man swimming team will compete in the Southern Peach Swimming and Diving Championships at LaGrange, Ga., Friday and Saturday.

Hayes will swim his specialty, the 100-yard breast stroke, and the breast stroke leg on the medley relay team.

Also swimming breast stroke will be Robert Nagy, a former prep star in Detroit. Nagy, who doubles as a free styler in the longer events, won the Detroit city championship as a senior in high school in the 100 yard breast stroke.

Benning Champ

Along with Nagy in the 440 yard free style will be James Moore, versatile young swimmer from Providence, R. I. Moore was individual high point scorer in The Infantry Center swimming championships in 1951. He won the 150-yard individual medley, the 100-yard back stroke, and placed second in the 50-yard free style.

Norman Lamothe from Hartford, Conn., will swim the 100-yard backstroke and the back stroke leg in the medley relay. Lamothe was an outstanding high school swimmer at Hartford High before coming in the service.

William Rahner, a free styler, back from the 1951 Fort Benning champion, will round out the medley relay team and also swim the 100-yard free style. With him in the 100-yard free style will be Phillip Evans, another Hartford, Conn., swimmer.

Vincent Morra, who swam with Moore for the Providence, R. I., Boys Club before they entered the Army, will be swimming the 220-yard free style and a leg in the 200 yard free style relay.

The 508th divers will be Don Golemba and Larry Beam. Golemba and Beam both will enter the Southern Peach three - meter spring board championship and the featured event of the meet, the junior national three-meter spring board championship.

Cards Land --- Situation Well In Hand

Nobody'd losing any sleep over Fort Benning being able to take care of itself, but if trouble ever did hit the post it might conceivably be the Columbus Cardinals to the rescue.

Thirteen members of the local Sally League club are ex-servicemen. Of the remaining five, one or two are expecting a summons from Uncle in the not too distant future.

Only one player, outfielder Tom Burgess, is not liable for American military service because he's a Canadian citizen.

Sheldon Bender, fiery skipper of the class A Cardinals, has served with both the Marines and Navy and has 21 months of overseas time. All together, Columbus players have spent a total of 15 years' duty on foreign soil.

Red Birds who served in the Army are Bob Kerce, Norman Shope, Len Wile, Bill Paolisso and Don Spencer. Former Navy men are Dennis Reeder, Gil Daley and Don Swartz. Ex-Marines are Mike Curan, Bill Harris, Ted Lewandowski and Ev Joyner.

Bender's fighting ball club returns to downtown Golden Park at 8 p. m. Monday for an eight-game home stand. They meet Montgomery in a single game Monday and then play Columbia, S. C., the next three days. They close out the set against Charlestown.

Feinstein Hurls No-Hitter, 7-0

Joe Feinstein, 145-pound southpaw, pitched a seven-inning no-hit, no-run game as Infantry School Detachment zeroed Second Student Regiment, 7-0, Friday night before 300 Fort Benning League fans at Gowdy Field.

It was ISD's eighth consecutive victory and number six against no losses for Feinstein who struck out 12 with his wierd assortment of junk pitches.

Joe walked Mike Michalski and losing hurler Paul Treaster and Michalski and Hayden Young were safe on errors as Feinstein faced only three over the minimum number of 21 batters. Michalski was caught in a double play after Gene Ashely's error put him on.

Feinstein was saved the task of going nine inning's under the league's "seven-up - in - seven" rule, but there were two out in the last of the seventh before Dick Willingham singled Mel Southall across with the necessary run.

Willingham had a perfect 3-for-3 night, but the offensive spotlight was on leftfielder Emil Rukavina who broke out of a prolonged hitting cocoon with a double to right and homer over the 330-foot left field screen.

Southall and Ray Blankenship league batting leader, each had 2-for-4. Treaster was chased under a three-run assault in the third.

121st Squeezes Win Over 124th Co., 13-10

The 121st Company was out hit, but gained a 13-10 decision from the 124th in a Second Student Regiment sofeball game last week. The losers hit safely 12 times to only nine for the 121st.

LeFevre was the winning pitcher while Yeager lost. Five home runs featured the attack with Everett, of the 124th, connecting for two. Others were by Miller, Tikody and Richards, all of the 121st.

Shirley's Grand Slam, 3B Lead First SR Win, 12-3

Veteran outfielder Jim Shirley hit a grand - slam home run and a two run triple in leading First Student Regiment past Combat Training Command, 12-3, in a wild and wooly Fort Benning League game before 300 fans Wednesday night at Gowdy Field.

Shirley's base-cleansing rap against the right field light tower featured a six-run outbreak in the second inning which sent Stan Edwards to the showers with his first defeat of the year and clinched the win for the second place First.

The game ended in unexpected fashion, finally, after winning pitcher Dick Myers overthrew first base with what would have been the final out. Instead Joe Simone, who had pinch hit safely for reliefer John Fennaman, scored on the miscue to ruin a four-hit shutout for Myers.

It must have rattled Dick. He hit the next two batters and when Reggie Carroll singled the front two men home, Lloyd Brill was flagged from the bull pen to get the third out on a simple grounder.

During the torrid inning, First S. R. skipper Bob Kinard and third baseman Ralph Terry engaged umps Bill DeLong and Charlie Gaines in a heated argument about coaching and heckling being freely indulged by both teams.

Terry talked himself out of the game. Other big sticker for the winners was Bill Brooks with 2-for-3. Catcher Bill Freeman singled in the other two runs in the big second. Edwards who had won two previous starts was cold from the outset.

Smith Fans 11 In Raider Win

Little Kenny Smith struck out eleven as he pitched the Raiders to a four-hit win over the Commanders, 5-4, in a Doughboy Little League thriller last week. Losing hurler Ronnie Hutcheson also allowed only four safeties.

The Commanders salvaged their week's activity by turning in a record performance when they beat the Flyers, 42-2, on 30 hits.

Big Hitter

Added to the fantasy was the fact that Hutcheson hit 7-for-7 in the game while Skippy Potter blasted a pair of grand slam home runs.

The Commanders lead the loop with a 10-2 record, followed by the Raiders, 8-4, the Rams, 6-7, and the Flyers, 0-11.

Calling All Post Outdoorsmen

There are 6,000 active hunters and fishermen at Fort Benning—something like one out of every five persons here — but within a year there would be little game to hunt and few fish with catching if they did away with the Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

The F & GMA does everything from patrolling the post's tremendous game areas through practicing of conservation by restocking, fertilization and seed bed farming, to conducting organized hunts and fishing meets for the pleasure of members.

"Yet there are only 2,500 outdoorsmen here who are members of the Association," commented Col. Wolcott Dudley, veteran sportsman who is new president of the organization.

Help, Help

"That means one-third of the hunters and fishermen are supporting the other two-thirds on post," he explained. "We'd like to see the other fellows come in and carry their share of the load —and get their share of the added benefits, too."

Colonel Dudley's call to Benning sportsmen was sounded as the sale of memberships for the 1953 fiscal year began. New licenses for all will become due July 1.

"Membership is only $1.75," Colonel Dudley elaborated. "Why, the use of our boats for only four outings would save a fisherman the price of his membership."

Game Heaven

The Association is operating on a long range plans which within ten years should make Fort Benning one of the finest game preserves in the southeast. Some $3,500 was spent on seed and plants last year and that figure will be increased to $5,000 for the coming year.

"Game management in large part is just good farming," smiled Col. Dudley. "We're among the Association's work are deteurs in many respects, but remember that this program has been under way only four years."

He was referring to a survey made in 1946 by government experts—agronomists and the like —which resulted in a future program for Benning ranges and wildlife being evolved, but it was 1948 before ideas were put into two - fisted action by the revitalized F & GMA.

Numerous immediate results of the Association's work are detectable, too. Seven new ponds have been opened to fishing this year and five currently are under going draining, cleaning and restocking.

Better Fishing Seen

Benning's most popular fishing spot—King's Pond—is tentatively slated for a thorough cleansing and restocking within the coming year. The Association hopes to be able in the near future to make request to Geor-

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help:

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster. Ask for a free folder for recording telephone numbers.

2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

Long Distance lines are generally less crowded before 6 P. M. and after 9 P. M.

NRA Tournament Plans Complete

Plans were announced this week for the 1952 Southeastern Regional Smallbored Rifle Championships July 12-13 which will be the first of three National Rifle Association title events this summer at Fort Benning.

Over 100 of the best riflemen in the southeastern states—including several crack service teams—are expected to compete in the event sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club in cooperation with The Infantry Center.

Fifteen matches are scheduled at English Range in the main post area. Grand aggregate winner will earn a trip to the National Smallbore Rifle Championships.

Metallic sight firing will get under way at 8 a. m. opening day with any sight competition at the same time on the final day with team competition scheduled as the last two events.

Many Awards

Sterling silver and bronze medals will be awarded top contestants in all classes including women's and junior competition.

Individual entries should be postmarked not later than July 5. Team entries for four-men squads will be made in person on the day of shooting. A number of strong team entries are expected from the Air Force, ROTC units here and civilian police and law enforcement agencies.

Officials Named

Lt. Col. John D. Butler has been named executive officer for the meet. Other officials are Maj. Kenneth Groom, chief range officer, and Maj. J. T. Wren, chief statistical officer.

Turning Fort Benning into the shooting capitol of the southeast, the NRA Southeastern Regional High Power Rifle Championships are slated here Aug. 9-10 and the 1952 National High Power Championships Aug. 27 through Sept. 3. The latter event is expected to attract some 500 participants.

Affleck's Dog Cops Test; Big Event Planned

Dogs, leaping over obstacles in a spectacular two - mile open run, heralded the continuation of activities of Night Hunters of America. The club, organized by hound fanciers from Fort Benning and vicinity, held a steeplerace Saturday near King's Pond. It was the second of the club's special events open to the public.

Rocky, owned by Charles Edwards, Seale, Ala., won line in the first heat, but failed to open at the tree. Hoot, a blue ticked hound owned by James Affleck, Columbus, took line in the second heat. None of the dogs opened at the tree in the first two heats.

Mr. Affleck's dog, Hoot, led the field in the finals, but swung wide at the finish, losing both line and tree to Mr. Edward's Rocky.

Joe, a dog owned by John Jones, Columbus, pressed the winners hard in both the second heat and the final.

On June 28, the Club will begin its big elimination tournament to select a grand champion for 1952. Trophies will be awarded the champion and the runner up.

First, second and third place winners will be awarded ribbons for coon - on - the - log, steeplerace, river race, coon - in - the - log, and drag race events.

The Club will sponsor the grand champion's participation in the National Coon Dog trials in Indiana. The tournament is open to members only, but spectators will be welcomed. Time and place of the events will be published at a later date.

LaGrange Defeats Benning Golfers

A team of LaGrange, Ga., Country Club golfers belted Fort Benning, 71-19, in a match Sunday at the former's links. Bob Culpepper and Ned Edge fired 71 and 73 respectively to trip Bill Harbour and Orv Folkerts, one of Benning's top combinations.

Post wins were recorded by Paul Buman and Charlie Harper and by Emil Kaeserman and Leo Dawson.

Two Benning feminine golfers, Mrs. Tommie Jenkins and Mrs. Irene Curtiss, are playing today and Friday in the Georgia women's tournament in Valdosta.

Professors Down Bibb, 8-2, In Exhibition

Morris Sears and Robert Nelson divided the pitching assignment as Infantry School Detachment hammered Bibb Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, 8-2, in an exhibition game last week at Gowdy Field.

Dick Willingham paced the unbeaten leaders of the Benning League with a triple and single in three trips while Gene Ashley had 2-for-2.

gia state hatcheries for fresh stock.

More land than ever before is under cultivation to provide feed beds which it is hoped will draw game birds out of the deep swamps this coming fall.

The Association's marked progress has not come lightly. It has meant a lot of extra-duty work for outdoorsmen serving on the organization's committees.

Aside from Col. Dudley, whose appointment is by the commanding general, elected officials of the Association include Lt. Col. Richard Darnell, vice president, Capt. Elbert Stiff, secretary, and First Lt. Thelbert Fountain, treasurer and game warden.

Fish committee members are Maj. William Brodbeck, chairman, Lt. Col. William Sellers, Lt. Col. Tony Raibl, Capt. Thomas Knox, First Lts. William Martin, Charles Green and Wallace Gallant, M-Sgt. Ewald Knuth and Sgt. George Sheppard.

One of the biggest booms to the Association has been a crew of highly trained range guards. Contrary to popular conception, the guards are not assigned to the P & GMA, but are military police who have designated areas of the 200,000-acre Benning landscape to patrol for the usual reason of safety, fire and enforcement of laws.

They are able to double in brass, however, serving as conservation and safety bosses for their respective areas and—at the urging of enthusiastic hunters or fishermen — more than ready to serve as guides for some choice locations.

With such a tremendous and already successful program under way, it's little wonder that Col. Dudley expects Fort Benning hunters and fishermen to respond in record numbers to the membership call going out this month.

Spotlighting Sports

by CHARLIE JOHNSON

Feller doesn't blow 'em over anymore, but he'll outsmart 'em for a few years to come.

"There are a lot of cases of champions in sports who didn't have the physical attributes to be great, but because of that very fact became tremendous students of their game and became winners. Take Willie Pep. As a kid he was too small to punch it out with the bigger kids in his neighborhood. So he had to learn everything there was about the art of boxing — and we haven't had a better modern boxer including Ray Robinson.

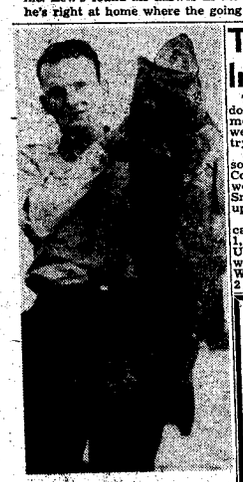
"They called Rocky Marciano the greenest kid who ever showed up in a boxing gym when he began working out under Charlie Goldman. He was so miserable that Goldman and Al Weill, then his manager; wouldn't take him on unless he paid his own training expenses. All he had was a sweeping overhand right. Well, that's the punch he knocked out Joe Louis with, but he wouldn't have lasted five seconds with Louis if he hadn't had the determination to pay his own training expenses for a couple of years to learn all he knows the hard way.

"I think Marciano will beat Harry Matthews when they finally meet. Rocky doesn't look like a fighter, but he's tremendously effective. He has the stamina to take a good punch—one of his few natural attributes—and he's a hard, thud puncher himself. Matthews is classic, but Marciano should be too smart, too strong and too busy for him."

Heinz didn't find his visit to Benning all work and no play. He ran into one of his most frequent writing subjects of past days, Lew Jenkins. Heinz had last seen the ex-lightweight champ amid the hell of Normandy when their respective landing crafts hit the beach side by side.

Heinz wasn't surprised when I told him that Lew had confided just last week that he was seriously considering asking for re-assignment to Korea where he won the Silver Star.

"We all know what a wild kid Jenkins was when he was champion. If he had trained and lived right he could have been one of the greatest," said Heinz. "But here was a guy who had to go to war to find himself. When I wrote a story from Normandy beach about what Jenkins was doing and what he had done at places like Sicily and behind the lines in Burma, the other sports writers back in New York couldn't believe me. Lew's found his answer in the Army and I don't doubt that he's right at home where the going is the toughest".



HOOKED . . . That's what this 33-pound grouper was after 2nd Lt. Marshall Champion, (above), found him in Gulf of Mexico near Panama City, one of largest landed there in a number of years. Champion is assistant S-3, Headquarters, Combat Training Command.

Tatum Upset In Gordon Golf

Third round in the annual Gordon Cup Handicap golf tournament will be completed this weekend at Fort Benning Country Club.

In action last week, W. B. Benson upset Matt Tatum, current Country Club champion. In the week's closest match, E. R. Smith nipped W. C. Beachler, 1 up in 19.

In other action E. J. Wascak defeated U. J. Spear, 2 and 1, Bill Harbour defeated A. R. Underwood, 4 and 3. H. Underwood beat R. M. Flynn, 1 up, W. D. Caldwell beat R. Sckler, 2 and 1, John Head beat Bill Marsh, 1 up, I. W. Parr topped Art Rafferty, 3 and 1, S. S. Walker beat H. O. Williams, 1 up, D. S. Perkins beat W. R. Willis, 6 and 4, J. B. Laney stopped L. C. Bland, 3 and 2, and B Kayes beat R. J Bigart, 6 and 5.

R. B. Stroup beat John Morgan, C. R. Wiseglogle beat R. G. Jensen, R. J. Frye beat D. E. Crockarell, Gines Perez beat John Henlon, 1 up, E M. Logan beat J. D. Wightman, and R. T. Matthews took a default from E. W. Hakla.

Rockets Stun 508th, 9-5 New Hurlers Look Good

A couple of newly added professionals, Don Clerniak and Bill Black, combined their mound talent for a five-hitter as lowly Second Student Regiment came off the cellar floor to stun 508th Airborne, 9-5, before 450 fans Sunday at Gowdy Field.

The Rockets took advantage of Augie Fernandes' early wildness to build up a 4-0 lead before they had a hit and they were never caught. The victory moved them into sixth place.

Shortstop John Murray rapped 2-for-3 and Mike Moropolous and Duke Heske collected doubles in the Second's six-hit attack. They iced it in the fifth with Heske doubling in a pair of runs and scoring himself on a balk.

Clerniak was removed in favor of Black in the fifth with a pair of runs in on wild pitches, the bases loaded and only one out. Another run came in as Bill got the first batter he faced to ground out to first. He struck out pinch hitter Haynes to retire the side.

A former pro footballer, Black got credit for the win while Fernandes was charged with the loss, the first decision for each. Shortstop Ed Brousseau got two of the losers' hits.

"Your airborne equipment is excellent and most complete. In the Australian Army, paratroopers must make their first jump from an airplane with little or no prior training," he said.

Australia is conscious of her danger, Mr. Tipping continued, and has now acquired a standing regular army and universal military training in which every young man is required to spend six months in military training camps.

Mr. Tipping, a native of Australia, has been in the United States for the last year studying journalism under a Carnegie scholarship at Harvard University.

A graduate in law at Melbourne University, Mr. Tipping entered newspaper work in 1939. He served both as a soldier and as a war correspondent in the New Guinea, Solomon Islands, Borneo, and Philippines campaigns. In the New Guinea campaign, his airplane was shot down by enemy troops but he escaped unharmed.

Mr. and Mrs. Tipping and their two children arrived in Columbus Monday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown. Mr. Brown, editor of The Ledger, also studied at Harvard last year as a Nieman Fellow. The Tippings plan to leave here at the end of the week to travel to San Francisco, where they will board a plane for Australia.

State-Side Time Cut to 9 Months

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A reduction in the length of service within the U. S. or territory of residence required between overseas tours of duty has been announced by the Department of the Army.

Army personnel returning from FECOM now become eligible for further overseas duty after nine instead of 12 months of duty in the U. S.

Personnel returning from other overseas areas are eligible for foreign service after six instead of nine months.

Individuals may volunteer to waive the mandatory interval between foreign service tours.

Major Wages Back To Benning Position

Jumping Jacks Return

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Location Shots for the Movie Were Taken At Fort Benning

Many Fort Benning soldiers will have the chance Sunday to see themselves on the screen at the Main Post Theater and at Theater No. 2.

The movie, "Jumping Jacks," part of which was filmed at Benning last December, will open. Regular admission prices will be charged.

Jumping Jacks will be shown at various Benning theaters through July 8. Complete schedules appear in the movie column on page 5.

Showings are scheduled at 1, 3, 6:30, and 8:30 p. m. Sunday. Six hundred seats have been reserved for the Airborne Department at the 1 p. m. performance at the Main Theater.

Starring Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, the film is about airborne training and the Airborne Department here supplied the props and scenes for the authentic Paramount production.

Only 69 people from Hollywood made the trip to Benning. Post personnel made up the bulk of the troops who will appear in the 80 plus minute picture.

Students who were taking basic airborne training during the first three weeks in December have faces in the film. The bulk of the shots were taken then around the training equipment, the 250-foot towers, the 35-foot mock towers and the Lawson Field area then.

Only part of the picture was actually filmed at Fort Benning. The remainder of the shots were taken on the set back in Hollywood during January.

While at Benning, the production crew worked a full schedule utilizing as many daylight hours as was possible as insurance against bad weather.

Script for the show was written by John Grant who wrote "Sailor Beware," and Herbert Baker, who wrote "Summer Camp," both Martin and Lewis pictures which were released earlier.

The advance camera crew arrived on the post Nov. 14 and 15, during the 11th Joint Civilian Orientation Conference, to take pictures of mass parachute and heavy equipment drops for background and process shots.

Three Ceremonies to Mark July Fourth Celebration

Three ceremonies will mark Fort Benning's celebration of Independence Day, July 4.

Flagpole ceremonies will begin at 11:45 in front of The Infantry School building with a concert by the 122nd Army Band. Troops of the 30th Infantry Regiment will form an honor guard on Chapel Field.

At noon, Battery C, 41st Field Artillery Battalion, will fire the 48-gun salute to the Union, followed by the National Anthem by the army band.

At 1:30 p.m., the 508th Regimental Combat Team baseball team will play the Combat Training Command at Gowdy Field. The game will be opened with a concert of patriotic music by the 122nd Army Band.

Post civilian and military officials have announced that civilian and military personnel at Fort Benning will receive a legal holiday July 4. Only emergency crews, such as firemen and skeleton crews for the hospital, will report for duty.

Dutch General Tours Benning

The precision of U. S. Infantry and Airborne training has received the praise of a high ranking Royal Netherlands Army officer.

Major Gen. H. M. G. Lentz, Inspector of Infantry for the Dutch Army, ended his two day tour of Infantry Center training facilities Tuesday.

"My mission has been to study your excellent Infantry training. We plan to incorporate your training in our Netherlands Infantry through the NATO Army," the Dutch general stated.

General Lentz, who is in charge of Infantry training for the Netherlands Army, came to his present post from three years as commander of the Third Netherlands Brigade Group in Indonesia.

During his two day stay here, the Indonesian veteran toured The Infantry School's Operations Office, Army Extension Course, Airborne, Tactical and Combat Munitions Department, and visited the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

General Lentz left here Wednesday for Camp Rucker, Ala., to continue the tour of U. S. military installations. He is also scheduled to visit Fort Bragg, N. C., before returning to Holland.

Before coming here, he also visited Fort Dix, N. J., and Camp Kilmer, Army Field Forts

Senate Group Acts To Halt Recalls

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Senate Armed Service sub-committee has proposed that reservists who fought in Korea shall not be recalled to active duty unless war is formally declared or there is an absolute shortage of qualified personnel.

The provision was included in a bill to standardize Reserve components of the Armed Services. It represents an amendment to the version passed by the House.

"As long as there are qualified reservists available," the subcommittee's proposal says, no reservist rotated from Korean duty should be called, short of formally declared war.

Belgian VIPs Finish Visit

Belgian Army officers touring The Infantry Center last week praised The Infantry School's ability to produce expert officers to meet the changing world situation.

"Infantry School training which is capable of producing efficient officers and men in such a short time is very impressive," declared Lt. Col. L. A. Tancre, commander of the Second Battalion, Second Belgian Infantry Regiment.

Colonel Tancre headed a group of Belgian officers who spent six days watching Infantry School training. He was accompanied by Major Firmin P. Remmence, assistant director of training for the Belgian Infantry School, and Major Richard C. Smakens, director of instruction and training of the Belgian General Staff.

They left Saturday to return to Belgium.

During their six-day stay here, they visited The Infantry School's Operations Office and the Army Extension Course, Staff, Weapons and Tactical Departments. They also toured the First Officer Candidate Regiment area and visited The Infantry School's director of instruction.

2,500 ROTC Men Greeted By Gen. Young Here Monday

BY PVT. JIM ROSENSTONE

"All of Fort Benning's facilities are at your command," said Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, as he welcomed some 2,500 ROTC cadets at Doughboy Stadium last Monday night.

His address marked the official opening of the six-week Infantry ROTC summer camp here. Students representing 97 colleges and universities in the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Army areas and Puerto Rico are participating in the summer training program.

General Young told the cadets that everyone at Fort Benning "fully understands the importance of the ROTC program and its alumni, the Officers Reserve Corps."

He then quoted Gen. George Marshall, who had said, "World War II would have been much more difficult had it not been for the readiness of the Officers Reserve Corps."

The two-star general recalled some of the experiences of a friend who had received his commission through the ROTC.

He told about the slow climb up the promotional ladder which his friend had, stating that it took him 17 years to reach the rank of major. After the out-

Sergeant's Idea Gets Berth For Him At Infantry Center

An idea that came into being in Korea brought M-Sgt. Raymond Adams, Company B, Infantry School Detachment, to Fort Benning.

Sergeant Adams, a veteran of six years service, reported to Benning June 4, with assignment in The Infantry School's Training Publications Department. He served as operations sergeant, Second Battalion, 22nd Infantry Regiment, Second Infantry Division, in Korea.

During eight of the 10 months he served with the Second Division it was commanded by Fort Benning's new commander, Major Gen. Robert Young, and his regiment, the 23rd Infantry, was commanded by Col. J. T. Adams, Tactical Department.

General Young and Brig. Gen. Haydon Boatner, now commanding Koje Island, initiated a squad leaders school, and Sergeant Adams was assigned as map reading instructor.

This school was designed to give the squad leader a 10-day intensive training and refresher course in the duties of a squad leader. In a period of about two and one-half months the school handled 1,150 squad leaders.

Basic Rules

As part of his instruction in the map reading course, the sergeant worked out a small mimeographed sheet on which were listed the basic rules of map reading. These sheets were distributed to the soldiers to take with them when he left the school.

After talking with the squad leaders about simple, practical ideas to better prepare the soldier for the job before him, Sergeant Adams began working on an idea he had long had in his mind.

This idea is to provide the soldier with a handy, simple booklet on a variety of subjects. Based on simplicity and pictures, three books make a series.

His plan is to have one for the basic rifleman, one for the corporals and their primary weapons and one for the squad leader. Included in the contents of the booklets are such topics as nomenclature and characteristics of weapons, ammunition and grenades, tactics, individual protection, first aid and military courtesy.

Refresher

These books are not designed to supplant any manuals nor to teach the soldier things he should already know, but merely to refresh his memory.

The sergeant spent all his spare time working out a sample of his plan. All this pertinent information was put into a little notebook the size of a man's pocket.

When he finally had the idea and the books worked out, he presented the plan to General Young and General Boatner for their approval.

Both officers approved the plan and told him to go ahead with the idea. After he had received official approval, he went to the soldiers and explained his idea. Every person he talked with thought the idea a workable one.

While talking with General Young, the general suggested that Sergeant Adams come to Fort Benning since The Infantry School has excellent facilities for the preparation of the booklets. Sergeant Adams came back to the U. S. as one of the two enlisted men in the general's party.

Medal

The sergeant was given a Commendation Medal and a letter from General Young for his work as instructor at the squad leaders school.

During 1951, the time he was a member of the 23rd Infantry Regiment, the sergeant participated in the Korean battles of Bloody Ridge and Heartbreak Ridge.

This is the sergeant's second tour of duty at Benning. In 1950 he attended the non-commissioned officers light and heavy weapons course here.

"I still have lots of work to do on my plan," he said, "and it will have to be approved, but since it is so simple and practical I think it will prove a great help once it has final approval."

Instructors Conference Ends at Fort Benning

Instructional problems at The Infantry School here and at other service schools was the theme of the six-day Infantry Instructors Conference which was held at Benning last week.

Approximately 60 Infantry instructors from service schools throughout the U. S. attended the conference and round able discussions designed to acquaint them with the latest trends in Infantry tactics, techniques and equipment, as borne out by combat lessons learned in Korea.

Climax of the conference was a round table discussion last Friday, the Infantry Instructors forum, during which the visiting instructors discussed teaching problems at other service school with directors of Infantry School departments.

The instructor's role as a primary representatives of The Infantry School was stressed in the conferences which began with a discussion of Infantry School development by members of the Research and Analysis Section.

The Weapons Department presented a panel on weapons training and techniques and wheeled transportation in the Infantry regiment was discussed by the Automotive Department.

The Staff Department presented a discussion on personnel management, leadership, physical training, intelligence, map reading, operations, organization and training and logistics.

A three-hour panel on Infantry tactics was given by The Infantry School's Tactical Department and the Training Publications Department discussed Infantry training literature.

Other discussion periods included Airborne training by the Airborne Department, Infantry communications by the Communications Department and Ranger training by the Ranger Department.

Modern Soldiers Are Taller And Hungrier Than Fathers

"Servicemen today are taller and hungrier than their World War II counterparts," says Col. M. H. Steffen, Fort Benning Post Exchange officer.

Colonel Steffen should know, for the differences between soldiers of yesterday and today show up more vividly at the PX than anywhere else. Their buying habits have changed and their preference in merchandise and service desired is different, he points out.

"Today the serviceman takes larger sizes of clothing and consumes great quantity of snacks," Colonel Steffen declared. "More than 25 per cent of our Post Exchange business is done in food and snack items."

Figures indicate that today's serviceman is more sophisticated in his merchandise preference. "He is more quality conscious. Part of this can be attributed to the PX program of carefully screening merchandise requisitions to prevent service personnel from being offered shoddy or poor quality items, Colonel Steffen said.

20 For Cent

Comparisons with World War II statistics show that exchange customers spend about 20 per cent of their military pay in exchanges, about the same as they did between 1941 and 1945. About three - fourths of this amount goes for food and snack items, tobacco, uniform clothing and insignia, stationery, drug items and other commodities of that general nature, according to PX statistics.

Candidate Sings In Civilian Life

Candidate Carlton DeForest Avery Fourth Officer Candidate Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment did a great deal of professional singing before entering the Army.

Known professionally as Marshall Avery, the future officer was discovered by Bob Seaman well known West Coast coach who developed "Four Hits and a Miss" and other musical personalities.

He appeared on many radio and television shows in Los Angeles and made recording with Johnny Giles Orchestra.

Upon completion of his Army duties, he plans to go to New York City and break into the big time on Broadway.

Candy, always high on the list of exchange favorites, has become even more popular. The same is true of bottled drinks. About eight cents of every dollar spent in a PX goes for candy, and 11 cents for bottled drinks.

Milk is one item that today's serviceman desires a great deal more than his World War II brother.

Milk, milk products and ice cream are immensely popular. "One reason for that is the lower average age of troops today," Colonel Steffen said.

"There are really no drastic changes in the post exchanges themselves," he continued. "Basically, they stock only items of convenience and necessity as the PX mission today is the same as in 1895, the year post exchanges became an official part of the services. Old PX records show that food as a big item was far back as the days when Grover Cleveland was president.

"Not only has the PX mission remained the same," he said, but the disposition of profits also is the same. All profits go back to the serviceman in the form of increased entertainment and recreational facilities and equipment," Colonel Steffen added.

Mrs. Rosenberg Suggests Reserve Service Change

Asst. Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg has suggested to a Senate Committee that active duty and Ready Reserve service be subdivided on an overall basis of six years.

This would mean an increase in Ready Reserve time over those limits outlined in the House-passed Armed Forces Reserve Act. Mrs. Rosenberg made her suggestion during the Subcommittee's hearings on the Reserve bill.

The House passed version would require inductees entering the service on or after June 19, 1951 to serve three years in the Ready (active) Reserve before going into the Standby Reserve. If they elected to remain on active duty for four years they would eliminate their Ready Reserve time and go right into the Standby Reserve. The same as in 1895, the year post exchanges became an official part of the services. Old PX records show that food as a big item was far back as the days when Grover Cleveland was president.

Enlistees under 26 at the time of enlistment after June 19, 1951, who serve four years on active duty would also go directly into the Standby Reserve.

OVERSEAS

First Lt. Echillis K. Sparks and Second Lt. Doston L. Gurganus, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Second Student Regiment have been transferred to EUCOM.

Enlistees who serve less than four years on active duty would be required to serve in the Ready Reserve for three years.

Mrs. Rosenberg's suggestion would make the entire active duty-Ready Reserve service a six-year proposition. Inductees would serve four years in the Ready Reserve after two years service.

Enlistees would serve two years in the Ready Reserve after a four-year hitch and three-year enlistees would serve three years in the Ready Reserve as before. Only inductees and enlistees who serve on active duty five years will be relieved of Ready Reserve service.

Object of the suggestion is to insure that the Air Force and Naval Reserve have a steady stream of men pipelining into their Ready Reserve. The Army, because it is taking so many inductees with a comparatively short tour of active duty, already has this insurance.

Beware of Snakes in Summer

Cpl. Lester R. Maxwell Jr., First Casual Company, First OC Regiment, offers some advice on how to avoid snake bites as you take to the woods for picnics and other summer outings.

Corporal Maxwell speaks with authority. He is an ex-professional snake - catcher from Florida.

"With the exception of the Cobra and the African Green Mamba, snakes are not agressive regardless of what some people say," he said. "When you see or run onto a snake, merely side step it and give warning to others that follow. The temptation is to poke or tease it. Don't! Remember, it may be able to strike up to two thirds the distance of its length."

"Generally you will see snakes during the mornings and evenings when they come out to hunt for food. During mid-day when it is very warm they will remain in the shade. A dangerous time to run into a snake is during the time it is shedding its skin. During this time it is blind because it sheds the outer portion of its eyes along with its skin. Being blind, it is cautious and strikes at anything that moves."

Corporal Maxwell says that only carelessness need cause a man to be seriously injured from sneke bite. Bitten once while handling a moccasin, he speaks from experience.

How Do You Rate As A Driver?

Are you a reckless driver? A lot of people think they are the best drivers to ever step on a gas pedal. They are, too, until they meet another "best" driver. So many soldiers think they are on the highway when they go out on pass. Some reason that if they can push around a 2 1-2 ton every day of the week, they sure can handle a little car along a highway at 80 miles an hour. These gasoline cowboys have not the sense to realize the vast difference between a truck and a passenger car.

As a lot of soldiers have found out, insurance rates are higher for those under 25 than those over this age. Why? Could be that the companies feel (accident statistics prove) that those under 25 aren't mature enough to realize the results of their actions.

A lot of men will disagree with this statement and argue that a man can take care of himself in combat, then be is mature enough to handle his own affairs. Unfortunately, this isn't always true. More and more, a person can pick up the local paper and read about a combat veteran killed in an auto accident. Usually, the accident is the result of an infraction of highway rules. What makes men want to live through a war and then deliberately kill themselves on a highway? If the answer were known, more vets would die of old age.

One of the big causes of auto fatalities is drinking and driving. The State of Michigan has a motto that applies all over the civilized world: "If you must drive, don't drink; if you drink, don't drive." This is pretty solid advice and why more people don't heed this advice the Lord only knows. A man's stupidity has a way of showing through his thin veneer of culture and a steering wheel is the best way to judge a man. If he is a damn fool on the highway, then he isn't much of a man.

The Machine Age is for the benefit of man, but the way some take advantage of this form of civilization, one would almost think that the machine was running the man. And on our highways, this is the rule rather than the exception. (This editorial is reprinted from the Camp Kilmer, N. J., EAGLE.)

Chaplain's Corner

What of This, Our Hour of Decision?

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) BAOZ L. AKINS

Billy Graham, in a recent address in England, declared that America is faced with three great dangers: from within, from without, and from above. And he warned that the last-named is the gravest. We are all familiar with the first two, and are especially aware of the menace of world communism from without.

But our greatest danger is from above! And by that I mean that we are still being dealt with as a nation by the Lord God Almighty, who has no favorites. He is no respecter of persons or of nations. The soul that sins shall die. The wicked shall be turned into hell and all nations that forget God.

Ancient Israel and Judah turned from Him and plunged into sin, saying in effect, "God will never destroy us. We are exempt from His judgments." But God raised up brutal Assyria and Chaldea and used them as the rod of His anger and the hosts of His correction, and He destroyed the nations of Israel and Judah from the earth . . at least for a time. A like judgment can befall any nation.

But some will protest, "We are a Christian nation. We are not a godless Soviet." We imprint upon our coins "In God We Trust" and we sing "God Bless America" and we recognize Him in all our affairs. But are we Christian? What of the fact that we everywhere blaspheme the Divine Name in profanity?

What of the fact that we largely ignore our churches and do violence to God's holy day? What of the un-moral standards of so large a segment of our population? What of our vice and drunkenness and gambling? What of our abounding degeneracy and immoralities, and our broken homes, and our rapidly increasing divorce rate? What of our growing crime bill? And our spiritual ignorance? And on and on.

Again the protest will be raised that this is not a true picture of America. Churches dot our land and many attend! True it is that God has His faithful minority; and these are indeed the salt of the earth, for they are a preservative to society. But, by and large, is our multitudinous church membership productive of spirituality? Creed cannot supplant conduct! The hardest lesson Isreal ever learned was that God will not accept religious ceremony without personal righteousness.

One of God's prophets to Judah, Jeremiah, preached to his nation to repent. The Babylonians came to Judah in 606 BC. Jeremiah cried a second time, "Repent!" The Babylonians came again in 598 BC. Jeremiah lifted his voice to cry repentance agin. The Babylonians returned in 597 BC and did not need to come again. They destroyed Jerusalem, burned the sanctuary, and took the people into captivity.

Over the desolation of the land, Jeremiah wept, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved . . Oh that my head were waters and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of my people!"

It is thus in our world and generation. At the beginning of the century. God's prophets were calling on this nation to repent. World War I came. Again the call sounded forth. World War II came. Again the call resounds. If World War III comes, there may be no need to cry again. We do not stop God's judgments upon sin by armaments and treaties. However strong we are, we live or die according to His final word. Our only hope lies in the obedience of our people to His will. We must repent of our sin and follow the way of life everlasting.

American Planes Trounce North Koreans

American planes have blacked out most of Northern Korea with the largest air raid of the Korean conflict. Navy and Marine planes joined in the attack on the five major hydro-electrical plants on the Yalu River that supply 90 per cent of the Communist electrical power and are vital to Chinese industry in Manchuria.

No enemy air opposition was encountered during the hour and one half raid and not a plane was lost on the mission although the attacking force could see hundreds of idle enemy MIG's which never left the ground.

Benning Sergeant Trained 800 Dogs While In Germany

A former Army dog trainer, Sgt. John E. McClure is a member of the 33rd Transportation Company currently taking part in the ROTC summer camp training program here at The Infantry Center.

Sergeant McClure took his dog handling training at the Quartermaster School in Darmstadt, Germany where canines purchased from the Germans were trained for sentry and scouting duty with the American forces stationed in the area.

The dogs, who underwent training periods of from four to 21 weeks, were used to guard gas dumps, warehouses and airfields and to perform patrol duty with their masters. The effectiveness of the dogs is attested to by the fact that soon after their employment thievery dropped appreciably. One dog in fact is credited with the capture of 14 would be thieves.

The Sergeant, who handled over 800 dogs during the three years he was in Germany maintains that dogs are in many ways like people. To illustrate his point he cites the one case of a "goldbrick" dog, who, although as frisky as could be when with the other canines would acquire a mysterious "limp" every time he was required to undergo training.

NO SHORT CUT

Children of military personnel living in the area of Sigerfoos and Baltzell Avenues have been using the Infantry School Building as a short cut to their homes. Parents concerned are advised to take the necessary action to eliminate this practice.

OPENS CAMP . . . Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Commanding General, delivers principal address at opening ceremonies for the ROTC summer camp in Doughboy Stadium before 2500 cadets. On the platform behind him are, left to right, Col. G. E. Bender, deputy camp commander in charge of training, Col. W. R. Blakely, deputy camp commander and Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

EAGER . . . Civilian Soldiers, Charles W. Heusee, center and Allen D. West, don't wait to don their uniforms before plunging into the work at hand. Heusee and West, on their way to the ROTC summer camp in Fort Benning's Sand Hill area, saw one of the 550th Tank Company's "Easy Eights" and stopped for a few tips from obliging Lt. Harold A. Teague.

Cook Students Practice Cost Consciousness Here

"Learn to cook" and "learn to save" is the double slogan at the Third Army Food Service School during its all - out program of food cost consciousness.

Since food is the major item in the Quartermaster budget, the school does not relax its insistence that students learn to save at the same time they are learning to cook.

Lt. Philip Davis, acting director of training, said, "From the time a student enrolls until he finishes the course, he is reminded over and over again that saving of food is of the utmost importance."

Lieutenant Davis said that the present system utilized by the School has resulted in hundreds of dollars of savings each month.

After two weeks of theory, in which they learn the basic rules of cooking, students are then taken to the small quantity kitchens where they prepare food for three or four people.

In these kitchens, the cooking is done under the supervision of the instructors. When the dish is finished, it is inspected. If the food passes, it is sent to one of the two Food Service school detachment messes to supplement the normal rations.

One of the greatest aids to savings is the plan worked out for the use of meat from the meat cutting section. After the meat is cut by student butchers, it is turned over to the student cooks for use in the small quantity kitchens. After being prepared it is sent as supplemental rations to the detachment messes.

The School effects still another saving in materials and manpower by the cooperation between the messes and the School. The School secures raw material from the messes, and turn it over to student bakers. When the finished product is ready it is returned to the messes.

Students who are in the field training section of the program use regular rations for their training thus saving the cost of training rations.

We hope the principals of saving learned here will stay with the cooks when they go into the mess halls and the idea will result in a long range saving," said Lt. Col. John S. Andersen, commandant.

Army Extends Overseas Tours In Four Areas

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Effective Oct. 1, the Army will extend overseas tours six months in four areas: Europe, Austria, Hawaii and the Caribbean.

The order for the extensions was sent to the field in the form of a DA message dated June 6. The extensions do not affect inductees or men due to be separated or discharged.

The six - month extensions will make tours in EUCOM, USFA (Austria), and USARPAC (Hawaii and certain other Pacific islands) total 42 months. The Cribbean tour will be extended from 30 months to 36 months.

Men whose overseas tours expire before Oct. 1 will return to the States at the end of their normal tour. Some exceptions may be allowed a the discretion of the major commander.

The reason for the extension, the Army explains, is that trained replacements will not be available during the period involved in the extensions. Because of the present strength ceilings the Army cannot absorb new men until vacancies exist. These vacancies will begin to exist in sufficient quantities when many inductees are released ths fall. Then men can be taken in and trained in numbers large enough to provide replacements for all overseas theatres.

The Far East tour of duty, including Korea, will not be affected by the new order.

Lt. Col. H. V. Mansfield New Exec of 508th ARCT

With the transfer of Lt. Col. Thomas Mesereau, Lt. Col. Herbert V. Mansfield has become the executive officer of the 508th the Aibrorne RCT.

Colonel Mesereau is leaving the 508th to go to the Command and Staff General College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Colonel Mansfield was formerly the commanding officer of the second battalion of the 508th. While in that capacity Colonel Mansfield gained note throughout the army for his variation of the standard equipment carried into combat by the individual soldier.

By utilizing a rolled up poncho on the back of a pistol belt to carry a soldier's personal articles and putting a knife and fork in the canteen pouch along with the canteen and the meat can, the men of the second battalion were able to cut the load carried to the bare minimum.

The Quartermaster Corps was at the time searching for a more feasible means of carrying equipment. It is expected that when tests are run off next month to determine the type equipment to be used, Colonel Mansfield's ideas will be well considered by QMC.

Colonel Mansfield came into the service at Fort Sheridan, Illinois in 1937 after having served for three years in the National Guard. In 1938 he was commissioned as a second lieutenant and has been on active duty since then.

The Colonel, who is a master parachutist, was with the ground training group of the Airborne Department of the Infantry school before coming to the 506th in June of 1951. He is a graduate of the Associate course at the Command and General Staff College.

Colonel Mansfield attended Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois and calls that city home.

break of World War II this friend was quickly promoted to brigadier general.

"After the war my friend served several years as a colonel, but upon the outbreak of the Korean conflict he was promoted to major general within ten months. He served in Korea until two weeks ago when he came to Fort Benning as commander of The Infantry Center," the general said.

"It has been 30 years since I received my commission through the ROTC. These years have been filled with inspiring work, and it is something that I will never regret," he said.

Holiday

For the cadets, General Young saved one point in his speech until the last. The stadium was filled with cheers when he announced that they would receive a long holiday during the July 4th week end.

Col. W. R. Blakely, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Alabama and deputy camp commander, introduced General Young. Col. Lexington O. Sheffield, Infantry Center chaplain, gave the invocation, and Lt. Col. Stephen Kane, Catholic chaplain at The Infantry Center, gave the closing prayer. Music was furnished by the 192nd Army Band.

The training program which starts today will include 34 hours of Infantry School instruction. This will be followed by weapons and tactical demonstrations of Infantry School field problems.

A complete athletic program has been planned. Highlight of the six-week course will be the Military Field Day, July 19, when athletic trophies and awards for the honor cadet will be presented. Graduation day has been scheduled for Aug. 16.

Post Service Club Worker Serves All Over The World

The director of the five Fort Benning service clubs is well qualified and experienced for the job she holds.

Miss Onnalee Wood, a civilian employee, has been the Service Clubs director since June 15, 1950. Before her assignment here, she served for 25 months in Japan on her second overseas tour.

A native of Travers City, Mich., she attended the city schools there, and later graduated from the Kellog School of Physical Education, Battle Creek, Mich.

Miss Wood started her career in the recreational field in 1942 at Truex Field, Mich. Following her tour there, she joined a Red Cross unit bound for the China-Burma-India theater.

While on duty at Chabua, she was transferred to a jungle club mobile. Built on an English lory, the vehicle took food and recreation to roughly 2,000 men in the jungle area.

"It was a hard job, but one worth the effort. I even had to learn to drive the lumbering old lory," she said, "and that is something I hope I never have to do again."

After three months of jungle duty, she was assigned to Karachi as program director of the five Service clubs in the American cantonment and in the town.

During the latter part of 1946, she returned to the states, where she was associated with the Parks Department, Fort Wayne, Ind. As head of the Women's recreation department she had 20 playgrounds, three swimming pools, and numerous clubs under her jurisdiction.

Miss Wood remained with the department until 1948 when she claims she "got itchy feet." She became a member of the Special Service staff and set sail for Japan.

MISS ONNALEE WOOD

For 21 months she served as director of service clubs for the Fourth Replacement depot at Zama, Japan, then she transferred to the same job at Eta Jima School command where she remained until she returned to the states in 1950.

She said, "We really had a time planning our recreational programs for we sometimes had as many as 3,800 men to come through the five clubs during the course of the day."

Miss Wood feels that her tour at Benning has been one of the most interesting experiences she has ever had.

In her job as director she serves as the coordinator between the Special Services officials and the clubs. She also helps establish policies, sees that each club has a well - rounded program and one that will be of interest to the most people.

Post Cadre Officer Holds Nation's Highest Award

BY LT. E. M. ESCH
PRO, 2nd Student Regiment

The only man ever to receive the Medal of Honor before a Joint Session of Congress and is a cadre officer in the Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. Jake W. Lindsey, presently learning the ropes as executive officer for "M" Company of the Rangers, received the award from President Truman on May 21, 1945. It was the first medal of honor Truman presented.

Oddly enough, Lieutenant Lindsey took his recruit training only about 1,000 yards from the Ranger area where he's now assigned. That was back in 1940. "It was among those pine saplings in the First battalion area," he recalled.

The happy-go-lucky Southerner has put in over 11 years in the service. His only previous assignment to Benning was in 1948 when he underwent airborne training as a Master sergeant. He's made around 70 jumps in all, including two combat jumps in Korea.

LT. JAKE LINDSEY

Lindsey was a technical sergeant with the First Division in Europe when the Honor Medal took place. His combat service in Korea was with the 187th regimental combat team.

The medium-sized officer (5'8" —155 lbs.) was on recruiting duty in Atlanta before coming to Benning. Lindsey can boast of a certificate of appreciation from Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder for having been credited with having sold over $4,000,000 in bonds in speeches all over the country in 1945.

Lindsey received a direct commission on April 21.

How does this man who has 13 battle stars (nine for Europe, four for Korea) compare combat in the two theatres? Lindsey admitted "It was more gruelling in Korea but," he added quickly, "you don't have the artillery and air power that you faced in Europe, and, of course, you had better and smoother working support." He pointed out that it was "all entirely different, though —different terrain, weather, and everything" and that it was difficult to compare the two.

General Kreber To Address Grads

Major Gen. Leo M. Kreber will make the principal address today at graduation exercises here for Infantry officer candidate class No. 16.

Gen. Kreber commands the 37th Infantry division at Camp Polk, La.

Maj. Erman M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division here, will administer the oath of office to approximately 98 new second lieutenants. Col. Lexington O. Sheffield, Infantry Center chaplain, will give the invocation.

General Kreber is a 1918 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

He resigned from the Army in 1922 and accepted a commission in the Ohio National Guard. In civilian life he was associated with Van Bolt-Kreber Electrotype Company of Columbus, Ohio.

Recalled to active duty in 1940, General Kreber commanded the 37th Infantry Division Artillery in the Pacific during World War II. He assumed command of the 37th Infantry Division a Ohio National Guard unit in 1946.

General Kreber has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters Bronze Star, Air Medal and Purple Heart.

EM Learn Hand To Hand Combat

Hand to hand combat has become a major consideration of the Army to make its men the best soldiers in the world. Since the Korean outbreak its importance has been of paramount importance.

There are times when a soldier may not have a weapon, and hand to hand methods would be the only method of defending himself.

Enlisted Communications Course No. 4, 16th Company, 1st Student Regiment is teaching some of these techniques in a four hour course. Such knowledge would prove invaluable to communications personnel because of the nature of their work.

The class has been taught the best stances for keeping good balances and numerous vulnerable points of the body where one would strike to put an opponent out of commission. The group has also been taught throws and how to fall to prevent injury has also been taught.

Two Receive Decorations In Ceremonies At Benning

Two Fort Benning men and a Tallahassee, Fla., doctor have been decorated here for their services in Korea.

First Lt. Raiston Dennis of Uniontown, Pa., and Sgt. Louis D. Knight of Herndon, Kans., were presented Silver Stars, and Dr. Thomas J. Bixler of Tallahassee was awarded the Legion of Merit.

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, made the presentations.

Lieutenant Dennis won his medal for gallantry in action in Korea while serving with the 23rd Infantry Regiment of the Second Division, which was commanded by General Young. According to the citation, Lieutenant Dennis reorganized a unit whose leader was seriously wounded "into an effective fighting force."

Sergeant Knight was cited for his gallantry in leading a squad in an assault despite heavy casualties. He refused evacuation even after wounds rendered his legs useless. Directing his men and delivering "accurate rifle and grenade fire on the foe," he did not leave his position until all the wounded had been evacuated and his squad withdrawn.

Dr. Bixler, a former lieutenant colonel in the Army Medical Corps, received his decoration for "superb mastery of medical science and an inate sense of justice." According to the citation, he welded his understrength force, the Third and 14th Field Hospitals, into a "smooth functioning organization and directed its activites to insure optimum care for sick and wounded prisoners of war, comparable to that provided US forces."

CID Debunks Movie Methods In Routine Detective Work

BY MAY PIGOTT

The movies always glamourize the investigation department of any civilian or military branch of the police, but the Fort Benning Criminal Investigation department debunks this practice.

This important, yet little known, section of the Provost Marshal's office goes about its daily job without any cloak and dagger tactics.

To the group of hard working agents who make up the Benning department, there is nothing glamorous about their job. It is hard employment and one that sometimes requires as many as 36 or 48 hours of continual work.

When an agent is assigned to a job, his investigation may take him as far as California, to the southern most tip of Florida, or he may never have to leave the confines of Benning.

One Sunday night not long ago, the main post Exchange was robbed. When the robbery was discovered and turned over to the Criminal Investigation department an agent immediately went to work and by early afternoon Monday at least three fourths of the stolen goods were in the hands of the department and the end of the case was in sight.

CID

Charged with the investigation of crime, the Fort Benning Criminal Investigation department, commonly known as the CID, investigates crime in the Army committed by Army personnel against the Army. Strictly an investigating agency, the department does not prosecute, it only seeks to determine facts.

This section also handles crimes committed by civilians against the army, but a different procedure is followed. In cases of this type, the investigation is conducted, a report made and the entire case turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

By word of the post CID is perseverance. Sometimes before a case is publically known, the agents have been hard at work on their investigation. In many instances, long after an incident has been forgotten by the public, the CID is still working on the case.

Effectiveness of the department is a direct result of this perseverance and the cooperation of civilian police agencies and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Praised by the Provost Marshal General as being one of the finest set up department in the Army, the Benning CID prides itself on the caliber of the agents that go to make up the section.

All are hand picked and only the best Military Police Corps and Army personnel are selected for this all important work. Each man must undergo a thorough character investigation, the most thorough that is ever conducted on any person.

Habits Too

Not only is his character checked but also his personal habits, his choice of friends, and his credit rating. Then he must undergo strenuous training at the Provost Marshal General's School, Camp Gordon, Ga. Final approval on all CID agents is given by the Provost Marshal General.

Although the agent is working against great odds during his investigation, he must adhere to strict rules in dealing with any persons contacted during the course of the case. In his questioning of any person assumed guilty, he is never permitted to use force or duress in any form to make the person answer his questions.

When an agent has completed his investigation, his findings are written into an unbiased report with his recommendations, and turned over to the proper authorities.

During the past year, the Benning investigators have recovered over $60,000 in government property. One of the largest amounts of property recovered was approximately $4,500 in truck tires.

The CID is a comparatively new organization. Before World War II, the police organization of the Army consisted primarily of soldiers temporarily detailed as military policemen.

With the expansion of the service, however, it became apparent that a permanent police corps was necessary, and the Corps of Military Police was organized.

No police force is complete without detectives, so the CID came into being. During the war many civilian detectives and law enforcement officers were part of the army and the more skilled went into the Criminal Investigation division.

Bottle Losses Cut PX Profit

Every time a bottle is lost on this installation it make it harder for the PX to meet its dividend requirement, Lt. Col. M. H. Steffen, Exchange Officer at Fort Benning, has announced.

"Lost bottles can mean lost benefits," he added.

Pointing out that the total number of bottles lost on this installation last month was around 100,000, he asked that exchange customers keep this installation from becoming a bottle ground by returning all empties promptly.

Colonel Steffen noted that lost bottles contribute to a bottle shortage which, in time, could mean the removal of bottle vending machines. In addition, it could mean less funds for dividends which contribute to the cost of so many worth while activities on the installation, such as unit funds, day room furnishings, hobby shops, athletics, libraries, and the like.

He called upon every PX customer to see to it that all empty bottles are returned to proper that he would welcome any suggestions or plans to help cut bottle losses.

198th Dayrooms Get Television

A revolution in the social life of men in the 198th Field Artillery Battalion may be foreshadowed by the installation of television sets in the five battery dayrooms of the battalion.

Tuned to pick up the entertaining and educational programs from Atlanta's TV station, the 20-inch screen sets are topped by 21-foot aerials. And the men are staying "home" to watch the shows.

"We're getting good reception except during the heat of the day," Capt. Luther E. Ford, battalion communications officer, commented. "It's best in the morning and after 9 p.m.

Battalion communications personnel installed the sets last week under the supervision of Capt. Ford, who secured the sets and necessary installation materials.

Permanent Plan NSLI Holders Warned on Waiver, Allotment

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — If you have permanent plan National Service Life Insurance and under Public Law 23, chose to waive the "pure insurance risk" portion of the premium, then you should have:

1. Filled out a waiver form.
2. Made no change in your Class N allotment.

The Services have uncovered evidence that men with permanent plan NSLI insurance have waived a portion of their premium but, through misinterpretation, also discontinued their Class N allotment. This would cause the policy to lapse and result in the loss of the cash value of the policy and require a large cash outlay for reinstatement and a physical examination.

If the Class N allotment is discontinued, the permanent policy will lapse when the cash surrender value of the policy, as automatically applied to extended NSLI term insurance, is dissipated. Then the serviceman has lost his NSLI coverage and goes uninsured.

If under the graduation indemnity insurance,

If the Class N allotment is continued, the VA will reimburse the policy holder with interest each year for the money paid on the waived portion. Plans are currently underway to outline all procedures whereby those affected will be able to reestablish their Class N allotments.

IT PAYS to have the protection of this Low Cost Insurance Policy . . .

The two-star general told the new officers that other branches of the armed services have the job of handling food, quipment and supplies, "but the Infantry officer has the immense and unpredictable job of handling men."

"There will be many times," he said, "when your men will not like some of the work they do. The rain, long hours and hard work will lead them to complain, but if you are a good leader, they will be proud of their hardships," he declared.

General Woodruff told them that as officers they must set the example for their men. "It is up to you to furnish the drive and inspiration to get the job done," he said. "The officer who has not the courage to jump into a difficult situation is unworthy of his bars."

Honor graduate was Harold J. Younger, Sacramento, Califor. His next assignment will be with the 44th Infantry Division at Camp Cooke, Calif.

The oath of office was given to the new lieutenants by Col. C. Z. Shugar, Infantry Center adjutant general. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen W. Kane, assistant Infantry Center chaplain, gave the invocation. Music was furnished by the 12nd Army Band.

Post Officers Hit Honor Roll

Six Fort Benning officers and one retired officer were named on the Spring Quarter Academics Honor list for the Columbus Center of the University of Georgia.

Director Rembert C. Houser said that although military personnel accounted for only 20 per cent of Spring Quarter enrollment, they made up 30 per cent of the honor list. To make the Honor List he explained a student must take at least two courses.

Lt. Edward Louis Magill 444 B. Craig Drive and Maj. Philip Leroy Vetrone 301 D Steward Avenue both made straight A's.

Movie Writer Visits Benning

Millard Kaufman, a script writer for Metro Goldwyn Mayer, was at Fort Benning this week to secure background material for a motion picture about the Infantry.

Tentative title for the film is "Take The High Ground."

The story deals with the relationship between a platoon sergeant and recruits during basic training.

The Fort Benning trip was a final orientation before actual shooting begins, Mr. Kaufman said. He said he wanted to make a study of various types of Infantry training, especially the Airborne and Ranger units.

Mr Kaufman said that his studio feels that the families of men inducted into the service would like to know just what happens to them. Since most become Infantry soldiers, MGM decided to do a picture on Infantry basic training.

Dore Schary, vice president in charge of production, will produce the picture.

Mr. Kaufman is a former New York Daily News reporter. During World War II he was a Marine first lieutenant.

Captain Takes Preaching Job

Capt. Thomas D. Ryan Jr. of The Infantry School's Staff Department has accepted an appointment in the South Georgia Conference of the Methodist Church.

Captain Ryan will serve as minister in the Geneva Circuit in Talbot County. He will fill the pastorate in addition to his Army duties.

The Geneva Circuit is composed of six churches. Services are held in each church about twice each month.

Captain Ryan was commissioned in the Officer Reserve Corps in 1943 at the University of Florida at Gainesville. He served as a company commander with the 20th Armored Division in Germany during World War II.

He entered the ministry in the Florida Conference in 1947 and was appointed pastor at Orange Park, Fla., where he organized the Methodist Church.

Upon being released from active duty, Captain Ryan plans to return to Emory University at Atlanta to finish his theological training. He then plans to transfer to the Army Chaplain's Corps.

Link Tourney Starts; Over 150 Competing

The 1952 enlisted men's golf championships got off to a flying start yesterday when more than 150 competitors turned out for their practice rounds on the Sand Hill course.

This morning they came back and teed off for their qualifying rounds to determine the flight they will compete in. No eliminations are scheduled for today however.

Match play for the 18 hole medal tourney will begin tomorrow morning and continue through Sunday afternoon. After all the flights are in, trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner up of each flight.

According to Captain William Harbour, tournament director and officer in charge of the course, this year's turnout is one of the most impressive ever staged at Fort Benning. Last year interest was at such a low ebb that there were only 37 entries in this same tournament.

Much of the interest increase over last year, according the director, lies in the condition of the course itself and the accommodations that have been made for the players.

The greens have been dug up and entirely renovated and the course is now in better shape than at any previous time. The greens have been reconstructed and relaid and pruned to fineness.

Without making any predictions about the final outcome of the championships an example of the competition that may be seen on the course this week end may be found in the following entries.

NCO in charge of the course, Sgt. S. C. Ragland, has been carding sub-par scores for the past several weeks and figures as one of the biggest threats in the match.

PAR SHOOTERS

Entrants that have been making a habit of playing the paring the course include M-Sgt. Leo Dawson; M-Sgt. Bill Kaeserman, Sgt. Robert T. Mathis, former member of the Fourth Army Golf Team and Pvt. Paul Bumann.

Not all the interest will be centered on these and the other boys that will be gunning for the titles, however. Pvt. Pfc. Bobby Robson, of the WAC Detachment, is sure to be in there when the final flight comes home. She has carded several scores in the middle eighties both here and in her home town of Ontario, Canada.

On off-duty hours when she isn't out at Sand Hill giving the boys something to look at, she can generally be found at one of the nearby driving ranges.

A thumbnail sketch of the course that is being used for the tournament sets it up as a 2,765 yard, par 36 course. By holes, the course appears like this: number one, 314 yards, par four; number two, 133 yards, par three; number three, 257 yards, par four; number four, 341 yards, par four; number five, 541 yards, par five; number six 156 yards, par three; number seven 452 yards, par five; number eight, 311 yards, par four, and number nine, 29 yards, par four.

ROUGH PUTT . . . Pfc. Bill Daniel, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry, considers the finishing touch on the green of the Sand Hill Golf Course. Daniel is one of the post veteran golfers with 13 years of it under his belt. He is also an entry in the tourney now under way.

TIC Aqua Meet Due July 10-11

Entries for the 1952 Infantry Center Swimming meet July 10 and 11 at the Sand Hill pool will close at noon July 3, according to Major Gene Myers, sports officer.

All male military personnel stationed at Fort Benning are eligible to participate and units at regimental or similar unit level have been urged to stage their own competitions and enter teams. There is no limit to the number of men that may represent any one unit although one man may not enter more than three events.

National Amateur Athletic Union Swimming rules for 1952 shall govern the meet. The Infantry Center Championship Swimming Meet Trophy will be awarded the winning team in this tournament. The organization winning first place will receive a miniature trophy or plaque to be retained permanently.

The following list of events has been scheduled: 300 yard medley relay, 200 yard free style, 50 yard free style, one meter diving competition, 100 yard b a c k stroke, 100 yard free style, 100 yard breast stroke, 400 yard free style, three meter diving, 150 yard individual relay, and 4 0 0 yard free style relay.

Required dives will include a running front dive, running half gainer and four addition dives.

First SR Plans Pre Game Shows

On Sunday night prior to the start of the ASU First Student Regiment game, the First SR Specia. Services will give their pre-game ceremonies designed to up attendance and place them in running for the trophy for the best night of the season.

Under the direction of Lt. George Samaniego the First SR will present a variety of entertainment described as a "show of shows."

Although hesitant to say just what they will entertain the fans with, the group does say that their show will be presented through the courtesy of the Marine Corps, WAC Detachment, Little League and assorted members of the Regiment.

198th Leads in CTC Baseball Play; Freeman Is Top Hurler

JOHN FREEMAN
. . . 3 no-hitters

Now in the homestretch for the Combat Training Command intramural league championship, the Redlegs of the 198th Field Artillery Battalion stand undefeated in loop baseball play.

And it's mostly because of their top hurler, John Freeman, who has pitched two no-hitters in amassing a 4-0 record for the season. Freeman, who tossed the horsehide in professional circles in upstate New York before entering the Army, has pitched 28 innings, striking out 51 and allowing only five hits.

So far, the Redlegs have licked teams from Heavy Mortar Co., 79th Engineer Battalion, 2nd Battalion and 1st Battalion. Their next game is with the powerful 41st Field Artillery Battalion on 30 June, after which they must play 3rd Battalion and the 509th Engineer Co.

But the story of the 198th's success hasn't been all pitching. Don Will, slugging first-sacker, has two home runs to his credit and is currently hitting at a .417 clip. Charley Crewley, second baseman, has 6 for 12 in the hitting parade for a .500 average.

Third Battalion and the 41st FA battalion are the Redlegs' biggest rivals in the race, though each has lost one game while the 198th Redlegs still stand unfeated.

508th Swimmers Third At Sixth Annual Peach Meet

Making its debut in fast company, the 508th Airborne Regimental combat Team swimming squad entered and came home with third place in the Sixth annual Southern Peach Swimming and diving championships held in LaGrange, Georgia last Friday and Saturday.

Paced by the efforts of Lt. John Hayes, coach and swimmer, Norman Lemothe, and Bill Rahner who pulled to a second and third place in the 150 yard medley relay, the 508th scored 12 and 1-2 points for third place in the meet.

James Moore placed fourth in the 440 yard free style, while Hayes was one-tenth of a second behind Robert Nagy in the 100 yard breast stroke.

Larry Beam picked up 5 points in the diving event by scoring fifth in the Southern Peach diving championships and third in the Junior National AAU three meter spring board championships.

The free style r e l a y combination of Nagy, Rahner, Philip Evans, and Vincent Morra was fourth in the 200 yard free style relay to round out the point scoring.

Looking towards the Infantry Center swimming and diving championships on the 11th and 12th of July, the Red Devil paddlers are working hard to defend their championship trophy, won last summer.

Plans are now being made to send a group of swimmers to the Southeastern Swimming and Diving Championships to be held the last weekend in July at Cascade plunge in Birmingham, Ala-bama.

Army Hopefuls Begin Arriving

Fifty of the Army's most outstanding shooters will begin arriving at Fort Benning this weekend to begin training for berths on the 1952 Army Rifle Team.

Training for the aspirants will begin on July 3 and by the 31st an 8 man team will be selected to fire in the Southeastern Regional matches to be held at Fort Benning at a later date.

From the 18 men that will fire for the Army in this meet, a ten man team will be picked to compete in the National Rifle Championships in late August.

Training for the men here will consist of preliminary rifle instruction including eye and rifle exercises p o s i t i o n s, trigger squeeze, dry firing, wind and light doping and scoring.

Included in those expected to arrive here from overseas areas are Maj. C. W. Byas, a member of last year's team, who is coming in from FECOM and M-Sgt Dan. S Huntley, also a last year member who has been in Alaska.

Two men who are now competing for berths on the Olympic team may become members of the team here at Benning if they fail in the Olympic tests a r e WOJG Coats Brown and Capt. J. F McCubbin, both of F o r t Benning.

Others who will be here and were members of last years team include Capt. E. H. Mason, Lt. Earl Bishop and Lt. [illegible]

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

BY TIM WARREN

Editor's Note: Cpl. Charlie Johnson, Bayonet Sports Editor is currently on leave. Pinch hitting for him this week is Sgt. Tim Warren, another Bayonet staffer who obliged to move over to the sports desk.

Along with other things unusual that go on around and about Fort Benning, it happens to be raining today. And with this almost unnoticeable drop in the temperature we had a chance to clear our mind and do a bit of really serious thinking about what the little men on campus do for off-duty diversion and recreation.

By the little men we have no reference to stature but rather to those men whose names are not to be found in the headlines, lead paragraphs and box scores and game summaries. What do those of us do who either don't have the talent, the time, or the interest? The majority of men who toy around with the idea of becoming locker room soldiers generally give up the thought for any one of several reasons.

I suppose that the majority of them figure that they just don't have a chance when they see that some 200 men have turned out for the 18 berths open on the unit ball team. Rather than leave themselves open to ridicule by the more able men they merely go back to their barracks and promise themselves that when the next season comes around they will be the first ones out and anyone who wants a berth will have to settle with them.

Then there is the group that doesn't want to be tied down by all this business of off-duty practicing hours and often-times rigid training rules. These are the men who are either lazy, have very little interest in the sport or wouldn't make athletes of their lives depended on it.

And then there are the men who claim they just don't have the time or can't get released from their jobs . . . come, come, boys.

Although it seems that much of the interest around post sports activities revolves around football and baseball with basketball and track and boxing coming for close seconds, they actually have a more limited roster than the so-called minor sports.

Analyze for a moment the potential at Fort Benning if various sports were conducted on the same basis as the two major activities—baseball and football. During the past football season there were six teams in the post league, each with a player limit of thirty - three. This means that not more than 198 men actually took part in the sport.

Regulations set up for the baseball season limit player rosters to not more than eighteen men. On the basis of seven teams in the league a limit has been set at 126 for the entire post. This means that out of some 36,000 potential ballplayers on the reservation, only 126 of them will be able to compete in the national pastime.

One of the less heralded athletic activities on the post golf—is now having its own private field day. At the time of this writing the registration for the 1952 Fort Benning enlisted personnel golf championships is hovering around the 150 mark and by press time for this edition it is expected that almost 200 men will be out on the Sand Hill course.

Very clearly this means that the one and only golfing event that is open to Fort Benning personnel has attracted more enthusiasts than any of the other activities. And, this is for one three-day affair whereas football and baseball last from one season over into another.

Who can safely estimate what the ultimate result would be if more and bigger events in this so-called minor sport were conducted or if a post invitational tournament were to be held each month or some other comparable period?

Consider for a moment the coming swimming meet. Slated for July 10 and 11 the event will be the first, last and only event of its kind held on the post this year. Others may be planned in the future but as far as scope goes there can be only one all-post meet of any kind.

Although there is no objection to any man entering as an individual entry, units have been encouraged to form their men into teams and enter them as such.

Knowing set-ups of various organizations as they are in regard to going to the trouble of doing this I wonder just how many of them will comb the units for talent and hold a major unit meet so that the best men on the post will be entered. It really is ridiculous to think that units consider this too much trouble when it may the only way that they have of keeping their smaller component organizations in the limelight—whatever it may be.

Unquestionably there is talent in some of the smaller organizations that is probably the best on the post—in fact, some of the units on the post have failed to send representatives to any competition at all since they have been here.

A big boost to small time athletics came this spring when Fort Benning was chosen as the site for the Third Army Track championships. From a group of almost unheralded thinclads was molded a machine that coordinated its talents to another post title. I refer to track as a small time affair because that is exactly what most individual sports are.

It is very seldom that an athlete comes along who is good enough in any kind of amateur sport to take the headlines away from organized ball of any kind. True, some of the best athletes that this country have produced have been track men but for every one of them there is a group or team to push them out of the way.

Incidentally, two of our representatives from post have done well for themselves at the Olympic trials. They are Larry Goins, who placed second in the California tryouts and ISD hurdler Truman Medders who came in fourth in his specialty.

With trophies and honors to be accorded the winners in an athletic contest eligible to the thousands of enlisted men

Medics Down Profs 12-10; 4-3 SR Win Drops 508th

The Provisional Medical group, who last year knocked the Infantry School Detachment out of the league race with two victories and lost an earlier game to the Profs this year by a 2-1 score, beat the league leaders 12-10 last Wednesday night.

The seasons largest baseball crowd, 1,500, saw pitcher-manager Floyd Kendall give up nine hits to go the nine inning route and pick up his first win of the season as against four losses.

Cronin, with a record of 2-0, held the Medics scoreless for three innings but was tagged for four in the fourth on a base clearing triple into the left field corner by Medic catcher George Wardell.

The league leaders got off to a fast start with four runs in the first inning and added one more in each of the next two for a six run advantage.

In the Medic half of the fourth Cronin got out in front of Wardell with an 0-2 count and blazed the third one in for a strike. Wardell blaste in and scored Jone. Adkins and Kline in for three runs. Easley had shortly before scored the first Medic run.

As if this wasn't enough for a day's work, Wardell again came up with bases loaded in the Medic half of the eighth and sent a sharp single into right field - with two out and three and two count.

The Medics go onto Cronin in almost every inning but were forced to leave 12 men on base. Lefty Joe Feinstein, sensation of the post league, came in to relieve Cronin in the seventh and was touched for one hit in that inning and three more in the eighth and was charged with his first loss of the season.

Big guns for the losers was Emil Rukavina, cleanup l e f t fielder who had a double and triple in five trips and shortstop Bill Gill who had three for four including a double.

The First Student Regiment eliminated the 508th as far as any crack at the Shaughenessy playoffs in the Fort Benning league by virtue of their 4-3 win Sunday.

Although held to three hits by Tony LaCroic, the First SR made the most of six 508th errors to bring runs in in the third and sixth innings. Hits by Hill Brooks and Joe Smith counted for the other two runs.

Brooks, who scored the winning First SR run, got on via an error by second baseman Bruseau, around to third on a passed ball and came in when Smith's hit was badly handled.

Fortner, batting for 508 shortstop Mattocks in the eighth lined a sharp double to left center to score Kern who had gotten on through a fielders choice and around to third on a single by Chase. It was the only extra base blow of the game.

Lloyd Brill went the distance for the winners and allowed a total of nine hits. Paul Jaeger and Orville Chesney picked up two apiece for the 508th and Brooks, Smith and Oden each hit for the First SR.

508th Coach Has Varied Talent

First Lt. Howard E. Williams, Coach of the 508th baseball team, has some of the most varied feathers in his cap of any man in the army today.

Lt. Williams, in addition to being a qualified parachutist, which he regards as mere child's play, is the only man in the United States army to have official license to operate a one man submarine. During the same period as he learned the operation of the underwater craft, Lt. Williams went through the Navy's underwater demolition course.

He is a qualified demolitionist, having gone through the Army's demolitions course at the Metuchen Arsenal in New Jersey.

Until the Rangers were disbanded and reorganized last summer, Lt. Williams was a member of the instructors staff in the TIC Ranger Department.

He is a hand-to-hand combat expert and during the second world war was active in the underground war in Europe.

As if all this weren't enough, Lt. Williams is also a qualified deep sea diver.

In order to get the Navy's sanction to go through the UDT course, Lt. Williams had to go to Washington and go back and forth between the Departments of Army and Navy for almost a week before he could get the final OK to go ahead with it.

Little League Baseball

Action in the Fort Benning Little League last week saw the Commanders defeat the Flyers 15 to 12 on Tuesday evening and the Rams drop a game to the Raiders 9-7.

Thursday action had the Flyers drop a 9-3 decision to the Rams and the Raiders score a 10-9 win over the Commanders in a seven inning game.

EXCHANGE

An exchange of personnel between the 15th and 17th Companies of the First Student Regiment took place June 10th. Pvt. Phillip B. Bomber was transferred to the 15th Company and the 15th sent Pvt. Raymond L. Neville to the 17th Company.

LLOYD BRILL
. . .didn't have it

Philly Owns Hurler Brill

Lloyd Brill, First SB hurler who just didn't have it when he faced the league leading Infantry School Detachment last Wednesday night, is the property of the Washington Athletics.

Twenty-two years old, six feet, three inches tall, he began his baseball career in Chicago. After compiling an outstanding high school record he got the usual high pressure treatment from the scouts but eventually picked the A's.

His first effort in the play-for-pay racket was with the Class D, Portsmouth, Ohio team in the Ohio-Indiana league. The next season he was advanced to Salisbury, Maryland, a Class B group in the Interstate League.

Just as he began to show prospects of giving a return to the investment that Philadelphia made in him, he was drafted. When he came in the service he had a four and one record. His only loss that season was in a pitching duel with Bill Hoett, now an outstanding rookie with the Detroit Tigers.

Although his season record for Fort Benning league competition now stands at two and one, he has compiled a total of 34 strikeouts. Like most young pitchers he finds that his most effective pitch is his first ball with an occasional change of pace thrown in for relaxation when the going isn't so rough.

4 Post Dogs In AKC Meet

The Fort Benning Kennel Club will have four representatives in the American Kennel Club Obedience Trials in Jacksonville, Fla Sunday.

Also competing in the same class is Major J. Hitchcock's eight month old German Shepard, Major Mike of Olderhove "Mike". Also Second Lt. Richard Russ' two year old male German Shepard Pets Vom Pfingstbruenchen "Petz".

Sgt. Robert Donahue is also entering his three and a half year old male Bulus Vom Bruderdiebacherhof, "Gallent".

Red Ball Patches Become Passes for Portraits Here

Red Ball patches were used as passes for free picture-taking in the First Student Brigade area last week

Reason? All man of the 37th Infantry Division here are getting mug shots of themselves to be included in a yearbook now being prepared for publication.

Some 250 officers and men of the 37th "Red Ball" Division of Ohio, mostly assigned for classes to the First Student Regiment, are now at Benning for specialized training. For other men of the Division the scene is being duplicated at 17 other posts, camps and stations from Fort Monmouth, N. J. to Fort Sam Houston Texas.

The tentative 500-page volume will carry 388 pages of individual pictures of every man in the unit, and 112 pages of division activity at Camp Polk, La., home of the 37th Division. All photographing was scheduled to be finished during last week.

The mass camera work for the 15,000 man unit is caused by the division's second yearbook project now under way at Division Headquarters in Camp Polk.

The 13,000 copy book to be printed will cost some $65,000.

Mujica, Craven Meet For Georgia Title Mon.

32 Round Card At Golden Park

By TIM WARREN

Larry Mujica, pride of Fort Benning and Columbus, is slated to meet Johnny Craven, brand-new Georgia welterweight champ in a ten round title go at Golden Park in Columbus Monday night.

The bout is expected to draw the largest fighter crowd Columbus has had in recent years. A reduction in the price of tickets along with a greatly enlarged seating capacity is expected to add to the capacity.

Primary interest is centered around Mujica to see if he can stage a comeback in what should turn out to be the hardest fight that the young paratrooper has had since he won the crown more than a year ago.

JOHNNY CRAVEN

A loss may turn him against the fight game and whatever the results, it shall have a tremendous effect on the future of the boxer.

Ray Lee, voted the Most Outstanding Boxer of Fort Benning For 1952, has been signed to meet Sam Frigon of Windsor, Ontario in the six - round semi final.

Frigon is remembered by the local boxing crowd as the boy who decisioned Joe Tunney in a former engagement at The Area in Columbus. He is a fast boy, young, but with an exceptional amount of ring and savvy for his years.

Mujica won the Georgia Welterweight crown last June fourth when he scored a decision over Ralph Pearson in a 12 round title go. Since that time he made seven successful defenses of the title and scored wins over Vince Murray, Pablo Rodriguez, Sonny Luciano, Joe Diaz, Young Alvarez, Tiko Markarian and Johnny Craven.

CRAVEN'S RECORD

Craven, on the other hand, boasts one of the most impressive amateur records ever compiled by a boxer. He won 89 out of 100 amateur bouts and lost the only fight in the 1950 Golden Gloves finals in Madison Square Garden. His total ring record is 106 wins in 106 fights--!

His pro record stacks up like this: in two fights with Joe Diaz, he has one draw and one decision, also a decision over Joe Underwood and a draw and decision over Billy Lauderdale. In his two fights with Mujica he has lost one by a three point decision and won the other on a unanimous decision — that being the June 4 fight in Augusta.

Both fighters are similar in build and have many of the same ring techniques. They both box well with both hands and share an almost equal knowledge of the ring.

Tickets a... the Area and reservations may be made by calling Columbus Sports Promoter Fred Ward at 3-1338. Early reports verify the capacity crowd hopes. Ringside ducats are going at $3, box seats for $2, general admission for $1.50 and children will be admitted for fifty cents. There are 4,000 general admission tickets available and tickets will be on sale at the Park.

Craven is handled by Lou Viscusi, veteran manager who also guided the reins of Willie Pep.

OTHER PRELIMS

Other preliminary bouts on tap are a four round welter - weight go between Willy Fanks, Fort Benning runner-up for the post welter title and Jimmy Russell who was runner - up in the light welterweight division at Fort Benning.

Franks has a total of 18 fights and an advantage of between three and four inches in height . . making him a slight favorite over Russell.

Another welterweight bout features Ken Kerby and Rufus Kitchens, both fighting out of Columbus, in another four round bout.

Lightwelterweights Willie Wright and Jimmy Lewis will also meet in a four rounder. Wright was the 1952 Fort Benning Class B Two champ. Lewis is fighting out of Columbus.

At Bayonet press time, an opponent was needed for Larry Ford but another bout was promised in the event that Ford could not be matched.

Anyway you look at it, it is going to be a good card of thirty two rounds of fighting . . . especially when you consider that in order to get the main event in Columbus, Fred Ward had to outbid promoters from Tampa, Fla., Charleston, S. C. (Craven's hometown) and Augusta, Ga. . . . see you at ringside.

DELONG HAS ANSWERS

Keeping Up Sports Rugged

Fort Benning has one of the smoothest working sports programs of any post in the Third Army area, but it doesn't "just happen."

Aside from the program ideas and planning, items that chiefly sports officer, a tremendous amount of leg and paper work go into making a success of a tournament or a season's action in some sport.

That's where Sfc. Bill DeLong, veteran chief clerk of the Special Services sports office, comes in, and with him, more recently, Sgt. Phil Darbyshire, another staffer in the Doughboy Stadium Sports office.

In the course of setting up a track meet or keeping the baseball schedule running, DeLong may have to scrounge up anything from a set of shipping tag to a kitchen tent fly or contact such outfits as the engineers, and military police.

(Just to keep you from guessing, they used a kitchen fly to house the officials' table in the recent Third Army meet and the shipping tags went to identify individual contestants.

(The engineers are necessary for such chores as maintaining the lighting system at Gowdy Field, the communications department will handle sound systems and the printing plant will produce programs for special events.)

Coordinating all of these departments and following up with the tremendous amount of required paper works takes a lot of administrative savvy, a large order of patience and ability to know the right people for the right job at the right time.

Additional Duties

He also handles the details of a duty roster for other athletic office personnel and comes up with the solution for problems from unit sports offices, such as arranging times for use of the Briant Wells pool or Gowdy Field for baseball practice.

During the recent boxing season, Bill was asked by one coach for some butterflys. That might have stumped anybody except a boxing second who knows "butterfly" as the trade term for the adhesive strips used to treat a fighter's cut eye.

DeLong measures up, and if no one has any complaints about the job he is doing, the only complaint he has for anyone else is that there are not enough hours in each day. . .

Bill who played football and basketball in his native Johnsonburg, Pa., also chimes in with such odd jobs as officiating and announcing for the recent boxing series and umpiring in the present baseball campaign.

Two years ago he was the only man officially selected from Fort Benning to attend George Barr's famed umpiring school in Florida. Since that he has been holding clinics each spring for Benning arbiters with the result that fans seldom use the old Bronx cheer on the men in blue at Gowdy Field.

If DeLong's duties are varied, so is his background. He has run the military gamut from a private in the coast artillery to a commanding officer of a prisoner of war camp.

DeLong enlisted at Ridgeway, Pa. in 1939, took basic training and was assigned to D. Battery, Second Coast Artillery at Fort Monroe, Va.

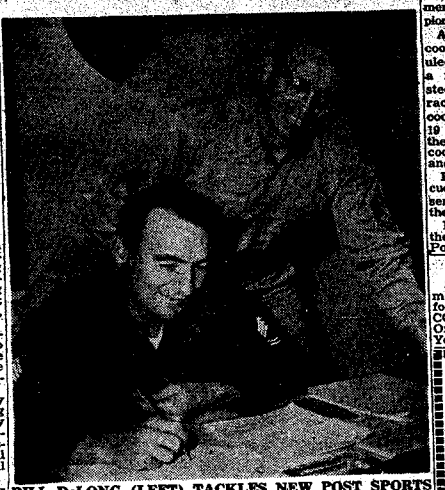
Prior to departing for overseas at the outbreak of World War II, he served as a cadreman at Camp Stewart, Ga.

After a year in the Pacific Theater, he returned to attend Officers Candidate school and graduated in October 1943.

He tried his hand at being a paratrooper, but his airborne career didn't last long. On his third jump, he broke both legs.

After a lengthy stay in the hospital, DeLong was assigned as administration office in the prisoner of war camp at Camp Polk, La. By 1945 he was a first lieutenant commanding a branch POW camp at Waukesha, Wisc., where he remained until his separation from the service in December of that year.

He reenlisted and served with the First Cavalry in Japan, returning stateside in 1949 to reenlist and this time to end up in Fort Benning Special Services and his present job.



BILL DeLONG (LEFT) TACKLES NEW POST SPORTS PROBLEM
Staffer Phil Darbyshire lends a helping hand.

Darbyshire On Sports Staff

Newest addition to the Special Service sports office is Sgt. Phil. Darbyshire, who at 27 is an ex-paratrooper, law student and golf pro.

Now handling athletic administrative duties, Darbyshire was assistant pro at the Dallas Athletic Club from 1949 until he came back into the service in 1950.

He copped the Southeastern Iowa links title in 1947-48 and won the Ottumwa, Ia., Country Club title.

Between sports and military duty, he never got around to completing his law degree, but he has pursued his legal studies at the universities of Iowa, Stanford, Baylor and Southern Methodist.

Darbyshire, of ASU Provisional Group, made two combat jumps with the 505th Airborne in Europe.

First SR Gets One Hit, Loses

ISD, Lefty Joe Feinstein proved his ability Wednesday night when he shut out the First Student Regiment on one hit for his seventh victory of the season and number nine for the Profs.

A seasons record crowd of 1,500 saw the Infantry School Detachment blast three SR pitchers for a total of five hits and seven runs to win 7-0. The only hit of Feinstein was Sheppards fifth inning double to left center which proved fruitless as he stayed there until the inning was over.

Pre game ceremonies put on by ISD marked the first in a series of such events in an effort to boost the attendance figures and win a trophy for the team with the greatest number of followers.

Guitar singing and playing by Cpls. McLeighton and Broadus and an egg - throwing contest highlighted the ceremonies.

The game was actually over in the home half of the first when Bill Gill, Ray Blankenship and Jim Howard drew free passes. Cleanup man Emil Rukavino struck out and Mel Southall brought the first, and winning run, across the plate with a sharp single to left center.

Dick Meyers started for First Student Regiment. He was relieved in the second by Lloyd Brill and Chuck Haubrich came on in the fifth to put out the fire for the regiment.

Under the league seven - run in seven - inning rule, Feinstein ended the game with a single through second to bring in Rukavano from third.

The game left ISD with a perfect season record of nine wins and no losses against second place First SR with a record of seven and two.

Marine Swimming Star Trains For 1952 U.S. Olympic Tryouts

By CPL. GERALD A. ROGOVIN
AFP Staff Writer

ST. ALBANS NAVAL HOSPITAL, N. Y. — Cpl. Thelma Kalama had established two overseas beachheads on her own even before enlisting with the women Marines seven months ago.

The tall (5' 8 1-2"), attractive brunette was the youngest member of the 1948 U. S. Olympic women's swimming team at London, Eng. At 17, she was a member of the world's champion 400-meters free-style quartet. When the games had ended, the winning Americans traveled Europe, exhibiting their powess in several countries.

Last year she and another girl from Honolulu, her home, were invited by Japan to race against the best Japanese women. Thelma was unbeaten in the free-style and backstroke during a month-long tour there.

In training here for the Olympic tryouts at Indianapolis, Ind., July 5-6, Thelma is shaking up a seven-month vacation from her swimming. Her daily two-hour practice sessions are her first since she became a marine.

She first entered competition at 15. A year later she was Hawaii's freestyle champ in the 100- and 400-meter sprints. In 1949 the Amateur Athletic Union selected Thelma as among Hawaii's best, and invited her to the national championships. She won her specialties that year and repeated in the 400 in 1950. Her best time of 1:07 in the 100 is only 02.4 seconds slower than the world's record.

Last year Thelma's swim was interrupted. She and her 19-year-old sister enlisted together and were sent to Quantico, Va. There, Thelma played guard on the women's basketball team and every position with the softball team. When the Marines sought swimmers for the Olympic tryouts, she volunteered, and was transferred here to train.

She won't make predictions on her chances at Indianapolis. With only two weeks of practice completed and no competition since 1951, Thelma "can't even guess what I've got." To win a position she must finish in the first three places in the events she attempt. Only 20 women will be selected.

WEST POINT, N. Y. — Pfc. Thad McArthur of Seattle, Wash., recently upset pre-tournament predictions by capturing the military pentathlon championship. Despite a fourth-place in cross country riding, he collected a low score of 19 points to earn a military pentathlon berth with the U. S. Olympics team. Also named to depart July 1 for Finland with the team were Lt. Fred L. Denham, Everett, Wash., Capt. Guy K. Troy of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Lt. Harlan W. Johnson of Urbana, Ill. All are Army personnel.

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Two Air Force men won double championships to pace Service competitors in the two - day Armed Forces track and field meet here.

T-Sgt. Mal Whitfield scored easy wins in the 400- and 800-meter runs. He was a member of the 1948 U. S. Olympic team. Jim Gathers won the 100- and 200-meter sprinters to nail down a tryout for the Olympics squad.

Second Army's Walter Ashbaugh registered the season's best mark in the hop, step and jump. He covered 50 feet, 3 3-4 inches; only 7 2-4 inches under the American record, set in 1941.

PFC. Billy Anderson, Second Army Sprinter, who upset the nation's finest hurdlers at Compton, Calif., earlier this month, made it two straight over Dick Attlesey, Navy Olympics Team, in the 120-yard hurles. Attlesey, who won the hurdles in the 1948 Olympics at London, holds the world record of 0.13.5 in the event.

Army Lt. Warren Dreutzler, Camp Lee, Va., considered one of the brightest American Olympic prospects, moved to the front at the halfway mark and romped home first in the 1,500-meters run. His time was 3:53.2.

on this post doesn't it seem that there should be more than fifty entries for the event?

In spite of all to be gained by these honors there were less than 30 men entered in the 1952 Fort Benning Tennis Championships. There could reasonably be only one outstanding reason for the fact that an apparent lack of interest showed up . . . . somewhere along the line someone has played the eight ball instead of being on it.

This fault does not lie in the headquarters that initiate these activities but down the line where dissemination takes place. Projects that are planned on big hopes in the front office take the shape of a snowball going up a hill. As the thing progresses, fewer and fewer people take interest in it until finally it comes to a complete standstill where none cares if it goes any further or not. True, this is not so of all the units but who can say that if one unit failed to pass the information to the men that the potential champion did not be in that unit?

Has there ever been a complete list of all recreational facilities on the post published for the information of the men who are located on the remote side of things? If not, here it is . . . use it for what it's worth:

Baseball . . . Gowdy Field, located on the main post with a seating capacity of 3,500. Basketball . . . . Briant Wells Field House on the main post and Old Gym on Ingersoll St. Also the Harmony Church Field House.

Bowling . . . . eight alleys located in the bowling building on Ingersoll Street or the main post. Boxing . . . Briant Wells Field House, seating capacity of 2,500 . . . . also summer bouts in Gowdy Field.

Football . . . . Doughboy Stadium on the main post, with a seating capacity of 10,000.

Fishing . . . 26 well stocked ponds with 55 boats available throughout the reservation. Golf . . . . Country Club on the main post is rated as one of the finest in the South and the enlisted personnel course in the Sand Hill area. Both are open all year 'round with equipment available.

Gymnastics . . . Briant Wells Field House is one of the most modern in the South. Complete facilities are available for all indoor and recreational purposes.

Handball . . . two four - wall courts available at Briant Wells. Hunting . . . Well stocked ranges with guides and dog packs available. Seasons conform with Georgia and Alabama laws. No rifles permitted.

Softball . . . a total of 86 fields are available on the post to handle this sport. Swimming . . . two pools at the Officer's Club, olympic size pool at Briant Wells Field House and outdoor pools open on the main post (two) and one in the Sand Hill area.

"Stop Trying To Be Subtle. . .If You Want To Go Airborne, Ask For A Transfer!!!"

WOW . . . Showing off her shapely legs for the first time in some years, actress Jane Wyman does a torchy number in her latest picture in this costume.

BOTCH — A — ME — Rosemary Clooney, accompanied by Stan Freeman's hot harpsichord. This is another Clooney dialect specialty. Reminiscent of "Come On-A My House, the song deals with the romantic high jinks of an Italian miss who wants to be kissed, married and the mother of many bambinos. Stan Freeman adds the "just right" touch with torrid harpsichord manipulations.

The other side of the record is, Oh, The First Warm Day. It's a blithe account of a gal who expects to see her sweetheart on The First Warm Day in May. Stan Freeman, harpsichord; Frank Carroll, bass; Terry Snyder, drums; and Mundell Lowe and Sal Salvador, guitars. COLUMBIA.

THERE'LL BE NO NEW TUNES ON THIS OLD PIANO —Freddy Martin and his orchestra with Murray Arnold doing vocal. Starting off with an old barrel house piano Murray hops into the vocal chores to explain there's no tunes like the old tunes. Flip side, SMALL TALK — a breezy item with Murray Arnold again on the vocal and complaining about the small talk his girl gives him. RCA VICTOR.

STAIRWAY TO THE STARS—Erroll Gardner, pianist. Gardner, one of the most individual of modern jazz painists is represented on the current blues-rhythm list by two magical interpretations of a pair of "standards". Stairway To The Stars backed up by I Can't Escape From You. RCA VICTOR.

HARRY JAMES STARS IN "SOFT LIGHTS, SWEET TRUMPET" Album Harry James and orchestra give the velvety James trumpet treatment to such pop and semi-pop classics as. MANHATTEN, IF I'M LUCKY, SERANADE IN BLUE, and SEPTEMBER IN THE RAIN. Many other fine sides are contained in the album. All numbers receive the sweet trumpet treatment by Harry and the album makes a fine addition for anyone's collection. COLUMBIA.

Benning Captain Recalls Initial Stages of Korea War

A Fort Benning officer who fought with the first U. S. troops in Korea yesterday recalled the early stages of that conflict at the war entered its third year.

Capt. Russell W. Bertholf Jr., of the Infantry School's staff department said orders were issued to airlift one Infantry battalion from Japan to Korea five days after the Reds invaded South Korea on June 25, 1950.

BERTHOLF

The First Battalion of the 21st Infantry regiment received the assignment. It was the first American unit to be committed. Captain Bertholf was attached to the unit.

The battalion consisted of only two understrength companies and part of two others, along with a medical platoon and a platoon from the regiment's mortar company. It took up blocking positions on July 5, we moved to high ground north of Osan with a mission of blocking the main Seoul-Taejon highway," the officer recalled. "It was about 7:30 a.m. on July 5 when we received the first attack from the enemy.

"The enemy strength was estimated at 50,000 men supported by over 30 T-34 Russian type tanks. They continued their attack until that afternoon when we withdrew because we were practically surrounded and low on ammunition," Captain Bertholf said.

The captain returned this week from Washington where he and 15 former members of the First battalion were cited for their part in the early days of the Korean action by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr.

Another Fort Benning soldier, M-Sgt. Donald Vincent Fitzgerald, now attached to Company G of the 30th Infantry Regiment, also was in the early action.

He was then a platoon sergeant in the 21st Infantry's Company A. Sergeant Fitzgerald moved in with the rest of the battalion by ship and was in the second phase of the action.

That's the last time I want to be in the first part," he said. "It was tough going."

Mattson Hurls 2-Hit Victory As ASU Wins

ASU defeated Second Student Regiment by a score of 11-3 as Carol Mattson hurled a nifty two-hitter Tuesday in the Fort Benning baseball league.

It was a 3-3 ball game going into the seventh in favor of Second Student, but ASU busted loose for five runs on three hits to take the lead and then added five more in the eighth on four hits and ice the contest.

Billy Hahn paced the ASU attack at the plate with three for three, including a fourth inning triple, the only extra base blow of the ball game. First Baseman Laney also had three hits.

The only Second Student batters to grab a hit were Jake Linsey and Clerniak, the losing pitcher. Linsey got his in the fourth, while Clerniak's came in the third.

Black relieved Clerniak in the seventh but to no avail as ASU pounded both the starter and reliever for 12 hits combined.

Cadets Here Begin Summer Camp Task

Some 2,351 sweat-soaked ROTC cadets began Infantry training here last week.

College men from 69 schools in the U. S. and Puerto Rico have checked into the Sand Hill area at Fort Benning and have ended their first week of summer camp.

A tour of the ROTC program Friday revealed some weighty facts:

The college students were processed in about 22 hours over a two-day period, more than 100 per hour. They were handed 12,000 khaki uniforms that had been laundered, starched, and pressed to perfection.

Receive Equipment

Each got an M-1 rifle and GI gear, including 5,000 pairs of combat boots that were all shined up, roughly 4,600 pairs of herringbone twill fatigue outfits, thousands of sheets, blankets, pairs of socks, and the like.

Col. Floyd R. Waltz Infantry Center supply officer, said the ROTC cadets are eating around six tons of food per day, and they drink about 6,000 gallons of cold drinks, plus numerous canteens full of water daily in the field.

The collegians are eating in 18 mess halls, each hall seating about 150 men, including the regular Army cadre. Their food is of the best, since the Third Army Area Food Service school furnishes some of the post's finest cooks to prepare it.

Cadets follow a 48-hour week training Monday through Friday, and four hours on Saturday.

The largest single group is the Puerto Rican cadet corps, with

General Kreber Addresses Grads

An Army officer was created to sacrifice himself for a common cause, Major Gen. Leo M. Kreber told graduating officer candidates here, last Thursday.

"Should you ever divorce yourself from that willingness to sacrifice, you shall become worthless," he added.

General Kreber, commander of the 97th Infantry Division at Camp Polk, La., told the new second lieutenants that as officers "you will be invested with a great deal of authority." He defined that authority as force which makes an efficient team out of a group of men.

The two-star general warned the graduates that authority must not be used for selfish purposes.

Gain Respect

"Use your authority wisely, and you will gain the admiration and respect of your men," he declared.

"To do this requires knowledge in all fields, and as officers you must strive to gain more knowledge, not only in your own field but in other fields also," General Kreber said.

Honor graduate was Harold E. Geist. His next assignment will be with the First Officer Candidate Regiment here.

The oath of office was given to the new second lieutenants by Major Erman M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division here.

U.S. Units Must Increase Oversea Replacement Men

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Trained replacements for enlisted personnel returning to this country from overseas will be furnished in substantially increased numbers by all active Army units and activities in this country during the next few months, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., has announced.

This is necessary due to the expiration of the terms of service of large numbers of selectees, reserve and National Guard personnel becoming effective. They were among large numbers of enlisted men ordered to active military service in the latter part of 1950, and the early months of 1951.

Army units, Regular Army, as well as National Guard, and Organized Reserve, in the United States have always been required to furnish qualified replacements for overseas need in proportion to their respective strength. The contemplated increased levies will be in accord with this policy.

Restriction

Strength limitations restrict the Army from absorbing a greater number of inductees at this time which limits replacement personnel to those immediately available. Even after entering the Army, inductees require several months of training before qualifying for overseas.

Since the need in overseas commands is immediate, action has been taken to reduce the minimum length of service in the United States for returnees from the Far East Command from 12 months to nine months between overseas assignments.

Returnees from all other oversea commands have minimum tours in this country of six months. Certain stabilized tours at home have been reduced also in order to provide additional personnel for overseas service.

Another action extended the overseas tours in Europe, Austria, Hawaii, and the Caribbean Area by six months. The increase in length of overseas tours does not affect personnel whose terms of service are fixed by law to 24 to 27 months.

Col. Yeager Set For Greek Tour

The appointment of Col. Walter B. Yeager, Infantry Center G-3, to the Joint U. S. Military Aid Group to Greece has been announced.

He leaves Fort Benning this month. His successor has not been appointed.

A veteran of over 20 years military service, Colonel Yeager has had four previous assignments here. He was a student in The Infantry School in 1938 and 1940, and served as chief of

Israeli Officers Visit Benning

A three day tour of The Infantry Center by three officers of the Israeli Army began last Tuesday.

They are Brig. Gen. Mordechai Makleff, Army vice chief of staff; Col. C. Herzog, military, naval and air attache to the U. S. and Col. Zvizur, special assistant to Gen. Makleff.

The Israeli officers are scheduled to tour The Infantry School's Operations Office and the Army Extension Course, Airborne and Automotive Departments. They also will visit the First Officers Candidate Regiment.

General Makleff and his party leave July 3 for The Antiaircraft and Guided Missiles Center at Fort Bliss, Texas. They will continue their tour of U. S. military installations at The Artillery Center at Fort Sill, Okla., The Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., The Armored Center at Fort Knox, Ky., and the Tank Arsenal at Cleveland, Ohio.

Before coming to Fort Benning, they visited Washington, D. C., and Army Field Forces headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va.

24th Division Plans Reunion

Veterans and members of the 24th Infantry Division will hold their annual reunion in Columbus, Ohio, August 15-16-17, Col. Gines Perez, First Student Brigade, announced.

Servicemen desiring information concerning the convention may call Lt. J. H. Hunt, 30th Officer Candidate Company, 5219 or Major R. B. Blaney, office of the Headquarters Commandant, 5417.

New Bridge Will Feature A Three Way Curved Road

One of the most unusual bridges from an engineering standpoint is being constructed across the Upatoi creek at the main entrance to Fort Benning.

Incorporating a rare three-way curve, the bridge will have a vertical and a horizontal curve with an super elevated curve thrown in to boot.

Upon completion the $309,725.65 will be the same height as the present entrance bridge to the post. To bring the structure to the required height 130,000 cubic feet of fill will be required.

Two borrow pits are being used by the Wimpy company of Dahlonega to provide the dirt for this work. One pit is located behind Battle Park homes and another just off Marne Road. A third pit, across from Custer Terrace, has not been used because it contains a select material which will be needed later.

A special haul road was built around Battle Park homes to the pit so the trucks would not have to travel through the heavily congested housing area.

A fleet of eight trucks runs on a steady schedule to and from the pits. By close cooperation between the truck driver and the operator of the elevated grader, the trucks are loaded with eight yards of dirt in 45 seconds.

The dirt is dumped at the bridge sight in layers of six to eight inches and is thoroughly pounded and rolled. The compactness must meet rigid specifications and tests are constantly conducted by an independent laboratory.

If the test shows the dirt is too damp, it must be torn apart and allowed to dry. If it is too dry, it must be separated and wetted down.

This unusual bridge will be built of steel gridders on a concrete deck with concrete piers and abutments. The piers will be set on a nest of concrete piling to make a firmer foundation.

Scheduled to be completed March 28, 1953, the bridge will tie in to the present Lumpkin road about 350 feet south of Marne road.

Rescue Unit Goes In Action Again

The rescue team of "C" Company of the 78th Engineers went into action again last week end to aid local authorities.

Being Saturday afternoon and continuing on Sunday the unit, under the command of Lt. Robert W. Gleason, dragged the Chattahoochee River in vain attempting to recover the body of a civilian believed to have drowned just north of Columbus. Using three grappling hooks from their 16 foot utility boat the unit was unable to make contact with the body.

The depth of the water, 25 to 30 feet, made it impossible for Sgt. William Trissler, the unit's diver to go into the water and search for the missing man. The shallow diving equipment that is available to the team limits the depths of its diver to 15 feet.

The unit is composed of regular personnel of the company, none of whom had prior experience in rescue work before joining the team. It has seen action three times before, working in conjunction with local civilian authorities and is now a smooth working organization.

WELCOME REST . . . R. L. Seidomridge, B. Speers and J. C. Embory, ROTC Cadets from Ga. Tech now undergoing the six week ROTC summer camp here sit out a break between classes.

Dutch Colonel Praises Post OCS

Infantry officer candidates here have been favorably compared with officer candidates of the Royal Netherlands Army by a high ranking Dutch official.

Col. Philip Lach de Bere, newly appointed commandant of the Infantry Officer Candidate School of the Royal Netherlands Army, observed the First Officer Candidate Regiment here to study U. S. methods of instruction.

"Your system of selecting volunteers as officer candidates results in an eager, high type officer," the Dutch colonel said.

Colonel Lach de Bere, who plans to take Infantry School ideas back to Holland, stated that the large firing ranges at The Infantry Center provided excellent instructional opportunity for the future officers.

"We do not have enough land in Holland for this purpose as you have here," he said.

Colonel Lach de Bere also stated that the officer candidate training of the two countries was very similar. The Royal Netherlands Army has been adopting U. S. instructional methods and weapons in its NATO divisions.

Here Before

The Netherlands officer is not new to Fort Benning. He has just completed the associate advanced class No 5 here and has been one of 11 Dutch officers in the 24th Company, First Student Regiment.

A prisoner of war during World War II, Colonel Lach de Bere also served as aide to Prince Bernhard.

"The Prince, as the Army's inspector general, is an exacting, energtic commander, who, nevertheless, inspires one."

The democratic personality of Queen Juliana was summed up by Colonel Lach de Bere as "truly gracious and completely sincere."

Before his assignment to the Royal Netherlands Infantry officer candidate training, Colonel Lach de Bere was commandant of the NCO Cadre School in his country.

The Netherlands officer plans to visit New York City before returning to Holland this month.

ROKA Officer Students Here Learn About Army, Customs

Some 129 Republic of Korea Army officers have settled into full stride in their courses on Infantry weapons and tactics at the Infantry School here.

The ROKA officers, studying for the defense of their country, are pulling down "A's" at the rate of 140 out of 149.

The ROKA group, second to attend the 20-week special company officers course at The Infantry School, arrived at Fort Benning April 9. The first group of 147 ROKA officers were here from September, 1951, to March, 1952.

They are here under a plan inaugurated by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway, former Far East Commander, to acquaint South Korean Army officers with U. S. tactics and weapons.

When the class graduates in September, 80 per cent of the group will return to Korea as instructors. The remaining 20 per cent will be assigned to line units to share their knowledge with men in combat.

The Koreans are making every attempt to absorb the American way of life, according to their instructors and associates here.

Off-Duty

In their off-duty hours, they may be tours to surrounding cities and points of historical interest. Fort Benning theaters see many groups of the Korea students learning English through the medium of motion pictures. Many are renewing acquaintances with American servicemen whom they first met in a Korean foxhole.

Most of the group are able to read and write English, but they have hired tutors to help them increase their fluency in American conversation. The groups attend classes in conversation and America history twice weekly at the Army Education Center here.

A staff of 16 interpreters is on hand at Sixth Company, First Student Brigade, to assist those who cannot speak English.

The first group of Korean students at The Infantry School set an envious scholastic standard, with not one of the students failing the course. The present group is doing much to surpass the first group's record, say their American instructors.

College

Over one third of the ROKs here have college degrees from Oriental universities. The class counts 10 graduates of the University of Manchuria, and 40 graduates from universities in Korea.

Despite language difficulty, the Koreans are making 118 A, or superior, ratings out of 149 on light machine instruction, and 140 A's out of 146 on recoilless rifle tests.

More than 60 men in the present class are Christians, and 30 have become associated with the Church of God in Christ.

Minister and spiritual advisor for the group is S. K. Dong, himself a Korean who came to the United States in 1940 on a special mission to raise money for missionary work in Korea. He lives at Fort Benning and holds regular services with his converts each Sunday.

The Korean converts are guests of lay members of the Church of Christ in the U. S. cities they visit through the Rev. Dong's plan to promote better understanding of the U. S. by wholesome fraternization.

In addition to learning about U. S. weapons and techniques, military officials hope the Korean officers who attend courses in the U. S. will become friends as well as military allies through constant association with the American way of life.

Many of the Korean officers, formerly as high as lieutenant colonel, have taken a reduction in rank to attend this special course for company grade officers.

Through instruction at The Infantry School, English classes here, and visits to American friends, the Korean students will return to Korea prepared to tell the ROK combat soldier about the American way of life.

Hospital Adds Training Course

The U. S. Army hospital here is now offering the last two years of the five-year training period required for surgical specialists, Col. Mack M. Green, Infantry Center surgeon, has announced.

This decision was made last week by the Council on Medical Education in Hospitals of the American Medical Association as the result of an inspection here last January by Dr. William R. Albus, council president.

Under the plan, Army surgeons who have completed three years training in other hospitals, may be assigned to the Fort Benning hospital to complete the last two years residency required for surgical specialists.

Lt. Col. Joseph B. Gordon, chief of surgical service here, will supervise the program. Colonel Gordon has been a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery since October, 1948.

First Army surgeon to take advantage of the new plan at the Fort Benning hospital will be Lt. Col. Royce E. House, a graduate of Baylor University in Texas, who has been assigned here after completing three years of training at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, Calif. Colonel House is a plastic surgeon.

Work Begins On Post Project

Work will begin here in two weeks on the installation of sewage, gas and water facilities for a $20,000,000 troop housing project.

A $211,344 contract for the installation has been awarded to Williams Construction Company of Columbus, Ga., by the district engineer at Savannah, Col. Richard Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer, announced last Thursday.

Installation will be completed in 12 months.

This is the second phase in the construction of two regimental-size housing units in the Main Post area.

A $750,000 contract for clearing the site and preparing it for building was awarded last month to the M. H. Thomason Company of Montgomery, Ala.

Sergeant Receives Achievement Card

M-Sgt. John A. McCraine of Seale, Ala., last week, was awarded a certificate of achievement at a retreat ceremony which marked his retirement from the Army.

Sergeant McCraine, who has been at Fort Benning since 1940, was retired after 31 years of service. He was a member of the technique of rifle fire committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

The citation commended the sergeant "for his long, faithful and honorable service in the Regular Army." It was presented to Sgt. McCraine by Col. George N. Millener, Weapons Department director.

The Fourth Has Real Meaning

Tomorrow we celebrate the Fourth of July which is the popular name of Independence Day. But we should stop a moment before the frolicking, and consider just what Independence Day really means.

Too often when the Fourth is mentioned we think in terms of a little time off to relax and have a good time and too often, we forget that the original Independence Day was a highly significant milestone in America's heritage of freedom.

On July 4, 1776, the parchment copy of the Declaration of Independence was signed "by order and in behalf of the Congress."

This wasn't the congress we know today, but the second Continental Congress meeting in what was later named Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Penn.

This was a brave step for such a floundering but determined little band of men who had gathered together, not so much out of brotherhood, as out of expediency to try to protect themselves.

Thomas Jefferson, who is sometimes known as the "pen" of the Revolution, wrote the original verson of the famous document. It is known that some changes were made by Benjamin Franklin and others may have made some changes too, but the bulk of the declaration was signed just as Jefferson wrote it.

But the wording of the document wasn't the really important thing. What it said and what it represented were what counted then as it counts now.

It meant that free men intended to stay free no matter what it cost in blood and money and time, just like free men now.

Jefferson didn't foresee communism hut he was against oppression of any kind. The American people then took heart after reading his stirring words, and we can draw the same kind of determination from the Declaration of Independence now.

Tomorrow we celebrate the anniversary of the signing of the famous paper. It gave America the breath of air to make it live. It can do it again.

Benning's Reputation Spreads

Fort Benning is ever widening its reputation around the world, not only by the fame of its fighting alumni, but by the routine efficiency it shows its visitors.

Every day, nearly, ranking officers and civilians visit the reservation, and if their remarks while here are a guide, our fame is spreading throughout the world.

Many of the visitors are from the allied nations.

Last week, Maj. Gen. H. M. G. Lentz, Inspector of Infantry for the Royal Netherlands said:

"My mission has been to study your excellent Infantry training. We plan to incorporate your training in our Netherlands Infantry through the NATO Army."

And also last week, Lt. Col. L. A. Tancre, commander of the Second Battalion Second Belgian Infantry Regiment commented:

"Infantry School training which is capable of producing efficient officers and men in such a short time is very impressive."

These men know the value of training. Their countries were torn by war and they appreciate Fort Benning's contribution to improved fighting methods.

Two weeks ago, the post was toured by E. W. Tipping, chief of staff (managing editor) of the Melbourne (Australia) Herald and former war correspondent said:

"Fort Benning is the world's greatest, most magnificient training installation."

Everyone at Benning can take pride in the favorable light our visitors seem to find here. It takes a lot to make up an Army post such as this.

Everyone from the commanding general to the lowest KP is needed to make Fort Benning the place it is. Everyone here has the right to feel that he is doing a good job.

Many of the foreign visitors can't speak English, but they are highly trained military men and they understand what they see.

Every unit here has its necessary place in the scheme of Fort Benning. To train Infantry leaders is our mission and many of the officers who go through The Infantry School are truly our future generals. The greats of the past went through school here and what they learned here they put into practice during World War II. They too, know what Fort Benning means.

Patriotism Is One of Man's Great Virtues

CHAPLAIN (MAJ) THOMAS C. KOCH

There can be no doubt about the reality and universality of patriotism. Is it a blind, irrational impulse of our lower nature which could be corrected or curbed, or at least changed into a wider love for humanity in general? Or has it a rational and moral basis which requires that it should be esteemed and fostered? Is it a prejudice or a virtue that should be cultivated though guarded from excess as well as defect?

Patriotism is a virtue; it is a virtue to pay one's debts, to to give what is due another. Such acts are prescribed by the general virtue of justice. But debts of justice may be based on many different titles and ressons. A loan must be repaid because it is a right that everyone should have what belongs to him.

A contract should be fulfilled because a man should be faithful to his promises. Gratitude requires that we should make some retur nto those who have done us a favor.

We owe all that we have and are to Almighty God and so there is a special virtue called religion which prescribes the various acts of worship which are due to God in return for all that He has done for us. After God we owe most to our parents, of whom we are born and by whom we were reared, and to our country in which we were born and reared.

There is then a special virtue which prescribes the acts due to our parents and to our country for all that we owe them, and it is termed patriotism.

Jesus Christ said that He came not to destroy but to fulfill what was true and right in the moral teaching of the ancients. His teaching not only does not abrogate what was true and right in the doctrine of the ancients about patriotism, but perfects it. Reason then tells us what a heavy debt we owe to our native country. We owe a great deal to the spirit, history institutions, common ideas, sentiments and aims of our forefathers. Reason prescribes that this huge debt which each of us owes to our native land should be paid by a devoted and enlightened patriotims. Christ taught us to fulfill it and make it perfect by the law of Charity.

Charity demands that we love God first of all and then our neighbor as ourselves for God's sake. This does not mean that we should have the same degree of love for all mankind. All men are not equally our neighbors, nor are all men equally dear to God and equally worthy of our affection. We must do to others as we would have them do unto us.

All men are not equally our neighbors and so we do not expect the same degree of love to be shown us by everybody. With a general charity then, we are bound to love everyone. We are bound by a more particular obligation of charity to love our fellow countrymen whose welfare is bound up with our own in many ways and whose help we need for the security of a full and happy life. Charity then, as well as justice, sanctions and enforces the duty of patriotism.

It is true Christianity modified and limited the teaching of the ancients about patriotism. To the ancients the State was absolute; it domineered with unrestricted sway over the individual, body and soul. Christianity teaches that the individual is immoral, whereas the State is only temporary. Moreover, it withdrows the spiritual welfare of men from the authority of the State and commits it to the charge of a universal society founded by God which will last forever.

In religion and matters spiritual, the Christian owes love and obedience to the church; he belongs to a world wide communion which transcends the limits of particular countries and which will continue and attain its final development in heaven.

His heavenly country should occupy his highest ambitions and aspirations. The love of his earthly country, though real and to be maintained must of necessity take a subordinate place in his esteem and affections.

The Christian doctrine of patriotism is very necessary for the modern world. It provides a useful check for the dangerous views which are sometimes ed voiced by such expressions as, "My country, right or wrong".

There are signs that the spirit of nationality will not be satisfied with asserting itself and securing self government for nations. Under pretext of security, of necessity of acquiring scientific frontiers, or because it is for their good, the stronger nations will inevitably strive to impose their yoke on the weaker.

Truman Signs Wage, Price Control Extension

A 10-month extension of the basic authority for price and wage controls was signed into law Monday by President Truman, but he delayed a statement telling what he thinks of it.

The extension, with ammendments which price control officials contend will weaken the effectiveness of their weapons, falls far short of the two - year continuance and strengthening which Truman asked.

If he had not signed the bill, all wage-price, rent and allocation authority would have expired at midnight Monday. The new bill extends until June 30, 1953 authority for allocations and priorities covering scarce materials.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson gave to Austria a pledge from President Truman that the United States would do everything in its power to restore "final freedom" to the occupied country.

He promised that American troops will stay here as long as the Russians, whom he blamed for blocking the independance of this Western outpost astride the Iron Curtain.

Acheson was making a two day visit to Austria which is still occupied by American, British, French and Russian troops. He went there to praise the tenacity of the Austrians in their struggle for full freedom.

Report From Washington

Subcommittee Approves Veterans Measure

BY ARMED FORCES PRESS SERVICE

A House subcommittee has approved a measure calling for extension of veterans' preference benefits to men who entered the Service after April 28, 1952 and before July 2, 1955. The bill would grant preferences in government jobs to disabled and non - disabled veterans. Veterans' preference for federal employment expired April 28.

A pamphlet summarizing the various federal benefits available to Navy and Marine Corps personnel now being separated from active service has been published by the Navy. According to the book, any person with service since June 27, 1950, is considered a "Korean" veteran even though he may have not served in the Korean theater.

More than 48,000 Marine reservists have been released to inactive duty, Marine Corps headquarters announces. Approximately 31,000 officers and enlisted reservists still remain on active duty.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee has listed the present strength of the Armed Forces as follows: Army—1,550,000; Navy — 1,050,000 and Air Force — 966,000. The Navy total includes the Marine Corps.

Airmen who take the Air Force proficiency tests beginning next month will learn whether they pass or fail within a few weeks at the most, the AF announces. Thirty-one separate tests will be given under the program set to start in July.

The Bureau of Naval Personnel has established a program whereby officers serving under revocable commissions with a physical waiver may keep their commissions if they do not meet physical conditions for unrestricted line commissions. Formerly these officers have had their commissions revoked.

On The Bookshelf

THE PERON ERA. Robert J. Alexander. Columbia University Press.

This is the first book in English to describe and analyze the Peronista regime, its growth and its avowed destiny.

Written from the author's firsthand experience in South America and from documentary sources not available to the public, The Peron Era trenchantly exposes the paradox of an army colonel who rode to power on the tide of labor, who calls his government a "labor government," but who has increasingly tightened government control over unions until the labor government has become no more than a docile tool of the regime.

In succinct and revealing terms, the author describes the spread of Peronsita totalitarianism over first the economic, then the political and cultural life of Argentina; of the regime; the extent of Evita's role in the formation and execution of the policies of Peronismo; and Peron's relations with the Communists, the Church, the Army and the press, including the recent La Prensa incidents.

THE GIRL IN HIS PAST. Georges Simenon. Prentice-Hall Inc.

With unerring psychological skill Simenon probes the disintegration of a good man's soul, reveals the buried compulsion tormenting him to murder. Skillfully the tragic elements of terror and pity are brought into dramatic contrasts. With the sure hand of a master an atmosphere is conceived electric with pain and remorse. And through it all, an overpowering sympathy for the helpless sufferer trapped in a hostile world.

Fascinating is this lone man's desperate struggle against a guilty and outraged society; touching is its human drama. From the pen of a brilliant writer the Girl In His Past is a masterful variation on a classic theme.

The letter was signed by the Postmaster at Killeen, Texas.

Army Veterinarians Come Long Way Since Beginning

BY MAY PIGOTT

The Army Veterinarian has come a long way since the old days.

Originally set up to take care of animals belonging to the Army, the present day Benning Veterinarian's office is the nerve center of a program of far reaching importance.

Today, the duties of the veterinarian include not only the caring for animals but also food inspection and control of diseases transferred from animal to man.

The primary duty of the office is the inspection of all foods, particularly those of animal origin, according to Maj. Dwain T. Bowie, Acting Infantry Center Veterinarian.

Since all food is inspected at the shipping point, the inspection here is to check the condition of the food stuff before it is sent to cold storage or to the warehouse.

All dairy products, vegetables, eggs and frozen foods undergo a rigid inspection also.

The three officers and seven enlisted men that go to make up this section spend most of their time in inspection. There is one officer and one enlisted man assigned to the Cold Storage section who work in close cooperation with Quartermaster personnel. Three enlisted men carry the burden of the inspection at the warehouse in Columbus, and one enlisted man is assigned to a local meat packing plant.

7,000,000 Pounds

Roughly seven million pounds of meat were inspected by the Veterinarian's office during the past month. This number included not only meat coming into the post but also that being shipped to other posts.

All milk and ice cream brought to the post for consumption comes from Veterinarian inspected dairies. The office conducts a monthly inspection of all mess halls to check on the condition of the milk.

The inspector makes an early morning visit, and collects a sample of the milk. The samples are taken immediately to the Third Army Laboratory in Atlanta for testing. If the slightest contamination is noted the dairy is given a period of time to correct the situation and then another inspection is conducted.

The inspection of frozen food is simply a matter of checking the cleanliness of the packages and a check to see if they are still properly frozen.

Major Bowie said that all officers are graduate veterinarians and that all officers and enlisted personnel must attend the Meat and Dairy Hygiene course in Chicago.

Endless Fight

The office wages a never ending fight in the control of diseases transferable from animal to man. The only part of the small animal clinic that is compulsory is the rabies shots for the dogs of post personnel.

The small animal clinic, which is open from 1:30 until 4 p.m. each day, takes care of the rabies shots and emergencies. Their equipment limits them to the type of work they can do.

"We think our job is a very important one", said Major Bowie "and it is one that requires great care. We think our Benning personnel is among some of the best trained to be found on any Army post".

Ranger Class 5 Tops PT Mark

Ranger Class number five, composed entirely of officers, compiled top scores and honors during the Army Physical Fitness Test conducted prior to their movement to Florida.

Three officers made scores better than 400, giving them a wide margin over any other class in the Ranger Department. Second Lt. Robert M. Meith, 11th Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., scored a total of 435 points. This is the highest individual score to be attained by a Ranger student.

Two other officers, Second Lt. R. D. Bretz, 525th MI Service Group, Ft. Bragg and Second Lt. J. H. Materson of the 11th Airborne Division each scored a total of 430 points.

The class is currently undergoing the jungle survival stage of their course at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

Benning Consumption Tops All Records for Water Use

Water consumption at Fort Benning last week exceeded normal use and capacity of distribution and on one day set an all time record.

The normal capacity of the filter and water distribution system at Fort Benning, based on average consumption, is 6,000,000 gallons of water per day. This was exceed by Thursday when 6,160,000 gallons were used and on Friday when the post consumed 6,140,000. The consumption for Friday was the Fort Benning record for any single day.

While it appears that the post is having a water shortage, it is not that at all, according to officials at the post engineer office. It merely means that water is being consumed in certain areas faster than it can be supplied. The primary reason for this is that the pipe diameter is not large enough to transport all the water needed at a given time.

Typical of this last week was the Sand Hill reservoir with a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons which on one occassion was empty. The reason for this is that the mains running to Sand Hill from the Main Post were not large enough to replace water at the consumption rate.

To reduce the rate of consumption on the reservaton, however, the watering of lawns, washing of cars and the use of washing machines has been temporarily prohibited. The current water problem on the post will not effect swimming pools as they are spring fed.

100 PER CENT

The 116th Company of the Second Student Regiment under the command of Capt. William C. Burghardt can boast of 100 per cent participation in the Regimental Bond Drive. Effective July 1, all members of the unit have made a class "B" allotment for a bond a month.

Korean Students Attend Extra Spare-Time School

More than 70 Republic of Korea Army officers, members of Sixth company, First Student Regiment, are attending special off-duty classes in English, government, and history at the Post Army Education Center.

The idea for the classes was formed by the students themselves within a week after their arrival when they found that their command of English was insufficient to talk conversationally with Americans.

With the aid of Information and Education personnel of the First Student Brigade and the Post Education Center, instructors were recruited, classrooms secured and the students began to fulfill a desire for practical assistance in learning spoken English.

The students are paying for the cost of teachers' salaries and other incidental expenses themselves in the absence of a scheduled program of off-duty training of the desired type.

Visual and audio aids will be used to supplement text materials. Instructors are also planning to take small informal groups of the officers into Columbus to observe various civic and cultural activities of the citizenry.

Highly enthusiastic after their first week of class, the ROKs are intensely eager to learn all they can about Americans and American life. Their pleasant attitude and native wit is winning them many friends among civil and military families in Fort Benning and Columbus.

LAUDED . . . Sgt. William T. Jasper, Headquarters and Headquarters company, Third Battalion, 30th Infantry regiment, has been praised in a letter from Secretary of Army Frank Pace, Jr., for his outstanding work in organizing the Drum and Bugle Corps of the Third Battalion.

Multi-Million Contract Let

The J. A. Jones Company of Atlanta has been awarded a $12,000,000 contract for the construction of regimental type housing here.

The contract, awarded by the office of the district engineer at Savannah, calls for building two regimental size housing units on Sightseeing Road, Col. Richard Ebbs, Infantry Center engineer, said Monday.

Each of 33 units will house 225 men and will include kitchens, dining room, post exchange, laundry, chapel, warehouse and office facilities.

Construction is scheduled to start July 18 and will be completed in 18 months.

This is the third contract awarded in the $20,000,000 troop housing project. A $211,344 contract for sewage, gas and water installation went to the Williams Construction Company of Columbus, Ga., and the M. L. Thomason Company of Montgomery, Ala., received a $750,000 contract for clearing the site and preparing it for the building.

OCS Praised By Pakistan Officer Here

The Infantry Officer Candidate School here has received the praise of a high ranking Pakistan officer.

Lt. Col. Bashir Ahmed, formerly on duty with the officer candidate training program for the Pakistan Army, stated that the U. S. Army method of staggering class loads to produce "so many officers in such a short time' had much to offer Pakistan Army instructors.

Infantry School training techniques and instructional methods impressed the Pakistan colonel who has just completed The Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky.

Colonel Ahmed toured The Infantry Center June 30 and July 1 to observe training here.

During his two-day stay, he visited The Infantry School's Operations Office, Army Extension Course and Automotive Departments, the First Officer Candidate Regiment, and the Third Army Food Service School.

Before coming here, he visited The Artillery Center at Fort Sill, Okla., Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., and the Cleveland Tank Arsenal, Cleveland, Ohio.

Officers Class Started Monday

On Monday the Associate Infantry Company Officer Course No. 32 began scheduled classes. The class is assigned to 26th Company, First Battalion, First Student Regiment.

The class, which reported in on June 25, consists of seven captains, 40 1st Lts. and 122 2nd Lts. The majority of the officers are assigned to 37th Infantry Division, Camp Polk, La.; 44th Infantry Division, Camp Cooke, Calif; and the 9th Infantry Division, Fort Dix, N. J.

Communications Class Teaches Its Students How to Swim Too

Enlisted Communications Chief Class No. 4, 16th Company, First Student Regiment, had its first class in swimming lessons last week.

It has been shown by Army records that many men die in combat because of drownings. Beach landings and river crossings have taken a large toll of men. Records also show that about 35 per cent of the men in the Army do not know how to swim, that is, able to swim 50 yards.

Not enough time was alloted here to teach all non-swimmers to perform the fish-like motions, but the class was shown all the methods. Each fundamental step of learning to swim was clearly explained and demonstrated.

Aside from learning to swim, the students were shown how to convert fatigue trousers into life preservers, how to undress in the water, and the various swimming strokes, including life-saving techniques.

Cpl. Finishes School With Highest Honors

Cpl. William J. Hagerdon, 26th Company, First Student Regiment, completed the Third Army Food Service School Meat Cutting Course.

A member of Class No. 9, he was top student in his class with the second highest grade ever made in the course.

Department Of Army Tells Of New Tank In Production

WASHINGTON — (AFPS) — The Department of the Army has announced that the first completely new medium tank to be developed since WWII — the Patton 48 — is now in production, and sizeable deliveries are expected before the end of the year.

The Patton 48 mounts a 90 MM high - velocity gun, two 50 and one 30-caliber machine guns. It is in the 45-50 ton class.

A new design gives it a low silhouette, elliptical sides and turrets, and stronger and wider tracks.

It has a powerful engine, cross-drive transmission and power steering. The crew includes a tank commander, driver, gunner and loader. Its sloping, elliptical sides make it extremely difficult for an enemy shell to get a "bite" and plow through the armor. Instead of penetrating, the shell would be more likely to glance off harmlessly.

First Time

This is the first time it has been possible for armor manufacturers to make a one-piece cast hull. This hull-turrent, combination gives maximum protection for the least weight.

Called the T-48 in the experimental stage, the new tank also carries a precision range-finder which quickly calculates the distance to a target and gives the tank gunner an opportunity to fire before an enemy can calculate his position accurately. Another new feature of the tank is a "quick change" gun tube design which allows removal and replacement of a worn gun barrel in the field.

The power plant is a V-12 engine which develops 810 horsepower. Cross drive and power steering allows the big tank to handle as easily as a new automobile.

The tank was developed by Army Ordnance and the Chrysler Corp. and is being produced at three separate plants.

Work to Begin In Trailer Site

Construction will begin here July 10 on 144 additional sites in the Harmony Church Trailer Camp, Col. Richard Ebbs, Infantry Center Engineer, announced last Monday.

A $158,000 contract for the work has been awarded to Holt and Thomason Company of Montgomery, Ala., by the office of the district engineer at Savannah.

The contract calls for clearing and grading of land, installation of utilities and construction of a children's playground, wash houses and drying yards.

Work is scheduled to be completed in approximately 90 days.

Charlie Stottlemeyer, of 29th Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment, allowed two hits and struck out 13 men to shut out 27th Company, 10-0, to take Fourth Officer Candidate Battalion softball title last week.

Owen Carrol led the assault with 3-for-4, while Pat Scarpato and Stottlemeyer collected two bits each. Ralph Jeisch slammed out two doubles in three trips to boost his batting average to .367 for the season.

A strong contender for the Regimental officer candidate softball playoffs, 29th Company jumped into a three run lead in the first three innings and tallied six runs in the fourth to put the game on ice.

Civilian Worker Employed Here for Quarter Century

Learning the job from the bottom up pays off.

At least it did for Clifton Bradley, a veteran civil service employee of 25 years service, who is supervising Warehouseman at Quartermaster warehouse No. 33.

He was born and raised in Houston, Texas, and attended school there.

Mr. Bradley was in the Army from 1916 until 1925. During that time he served overseas during World War I with the 332nd Service battalion in France.

It was while he was a member of the 24th Infantry regiment here that he was assigned to a detail working at the Quartermaster. He became interested in supply and in learning how the supply system worked.

With this idea in mind, he left the Army and applied for a job as laborer in Quartermaster, at that time under Col. A. B. Warfield.

From the job of laborer, loading and unloading supplies, he learned about nomenclatur and quantity. A job in the warehouse was the next step where he learned the proper storage of material and the issue system.

Since 1941, he has been warehouseman with seven people under his supervision in addition to the five to ten men details assigned to the warehouse.

Every Piece

"I feel that I know every piece of equipment in this warehouse" he said, "I have worked with Stationery and Office supplies so long. We also issue tools, cleaning and preserving materials, and office machines"

Complying with the rules and regulations governing storage of supplies he takes great pride in the way his warehouse supplies are set up to enable them to make issues quickly.

According to him the 25 years he has spent with the Quartermaster in learning Quartermaster supply has been the most interesting and he has no regrets that he didn't stay in the service.

Buman Wins Golf 3&1 Over Ragland

Buman, a private from Headquarters and Headquarters Co., First Student Regiment, was nine strokes under par in his four matches in the brilliantly contested tournament which attracted more than 90 players and a gallery of several hundred for the finals.

How Would You Call It?

By HARRY SIMMONS

In revising the baseball code three years ago, the experts inadvertently omitted several major rules. The practice since then has been to regard these as still in force. Here, in a hypothetical major-league setting, is what happens when an unusual stratagem meets an "invisible" rule.

Say the Braves have the Giants, 5 to 1, at the start of the seventh inning at Braves Field. The visitors push across three runs in quick order. With two out, they have the tying run on second base.

Bob Chipman rushed in by the Braves as relief pitcher, works so slowly that with the count one-and-one, the Giant batter steps out of the box for a moment. The umpire signals "Time."

The Giant runner, who has a long lead from second, moves only a littler closer to the base. Chipman notes this. So when "Play" is called he toes the rubber and then steps back and makes a long throw toward second. But the ball carries into center field and the Giant runner, who had started back to second, now races around third and scores easily.

At this point, Chipman calmly calls for the ball, steps on second base and appeals to the umpire to call the runner out for failing to retouch the base after a call of "Time."

If you were the umpire, what would you do?

ANSWER

The umpire should call the runner out. In the absence of a current rule, he may invoke the old one (Rule 49, Section 14) which was unintentionally omitted from the code. It provides that where a baserunner "fails to return to and touch the base he occupied when 'Time' was called" and tags the next base under the circumstances outlined, "the baserunner is out. . ."

Sergeant Receives Merit Awards

M-Sgt. James C. Hicks, member of Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Brigade and chief clerk, S-4 Brigade Headquarters has been awarded a Third Army Certificate of Merit.

The award presented to the Sergeant by Col. Sevier R. Tupper, Brigade Commander, was for over 20 years honorable service.

The sergeant is now in his third tour of duty at The Infantry Center having been here in 1926 as a private and again in 1943 to receive his commission.

Holder of a captain's commission in the Quartermaster Reserve, he is serving at Fort Benning since December of 1951.

SHOOTING SUNDAY

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's monthly pistol shoot is slated at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at club ranges at the extreme south end of Ingersoll St., in the main post area. Non-members are welcome.

Benner Sets Record; Tops Olympic Shoot Qualifying

M-Sgt. Joe Benner, Fort Benning-trained world pistol champion from the Caribbean Command, bettered his own world record mark in rapid fire last week at Fort Sheridan, Ill., in qualifying for a berth on the 1952 U. S. Olympic and International pistol teams.

Benner fired 596x600, ten points better than the mark he set in 1949, in leading all qualifiers in the nation in the rapid fire competition. He was second in slow fire to Harry Reeves, the former national champion from the Detroit police department.

Two other Benning-trained pistolmen, Maj. William Hancock, of Far East Command and Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, of Fort Sill, Okla., qualified for the U.S. International team by finishing fourth in rapid fire and slow fire respectively.

None of the Army riflemen, including WOG Goats Brown and Capt. James McCubbin from Benning, made either of the two teams in the rugged competition.

Benner, Sharpe and Hancock will go directly to Helsinki, Finland, to match in Oslo, Norway, and Benner will continue on to Moscow for the Russian match.

The 123rd company won the award for having the best I and E center in the Second Student Regiment for the month of June.

Capt. Albert J. Millard is commanding officer of the 123rd Co. and 1st Lt. Faulkner is I and E officer for the company.

Regular Season BB Play Closes

They run out the string of regular season play in a quartet of games this week with the four teams already determined for the Shaughnessy playoffs which will determine the 1952 Fort Benning Baseball League championship.

The playoffs open Friday, July 11, with not more than 11 games being played on consecutive days to settle the title issue.

Infantry School Detachment, First Student Regiment, A.S.U. Provisional Group and Combat Training Command will be the principals.

That's their current order in the standings, but ISD loses its last game this Sunday they will finish the regular season in a tie for first place with First S. R.

It's possible for ASU and CTC each with a pair remaining to exchange third and fourth places (ASU's second game was being played last night.)

The dash-to-the-wire game are important otherwise, too. Ralph Terry, First S. R., Bill Hahn, ASU and Ray Blankenship, ISD, are locked in a lively battle for the loop batting championship.

Terry is in the van currently with a .481 mark, but he's several shy of the minimum number of at bats to officially get the nod. Not counting the playoffs, 31 at bats was the minimum figure for the 13 regular season games. Multiply the number of playoff games by 2.6 and you get the at bats figure needed in accordance with baseball scoring rule 10.18a.

Hahn and Blankenship, with .476 and .466 respectively, have enough at bats as does Reggie Carroll, of CTC, who has an outside chance with his current .411 average.

Pitching percentage laurels currently belong to ISD's Bob Cronin and Vince Dickherber, of First S. R., each with two wins and no losses.

BRADFORD SECOND

Jim Bradford, from First Officer Candidate Regiment, placed second in the heavyweight division of the U.S. Olympic weight lifting trials last week end in New York. He was bested by Johnny Davis, current international champion.

Ten Qualifiers Added For Race at Darlington

DARLINGTON, S. C.— —Ten more drivers qualified in the time trials yesterday, bringing to 22 the number eligible for the $7,500, 200-mile Independence Day national championship modified and sportsmen's race.

The fastest time turned in over the paved International Raceway today was 91.463 recorded by Banjo Matthews of Miami, Fla., driving a modified Ford.

Some 40 more drivers will vie for starting berths today and officials hope to have 75 qualified by stating time Friday.

ASU Out-Rhubarbs First SR, 7-4

ASU Provisional Group pushed across four runs in the top of the ninth inning to score an upset over First Student Regiment, 7-4, Friday night in a bitter, rhubarb - spiced melee before 400 fans at Gowdy Field.

The game was finished in a driving rain and heavy gusts of wind, part of the latter being of a verbal nature.

Umpires Jim Mullins and Charlie Gaines insisted the game be completed despite the weather when it looked like Manager Bob Kinard's crew was deliberately stalling in the bottom of the ninth.

If the tilt had been called the payoff frame, Paul Bonair's score would have reverted to 4-3 for the First in eight innings.

With two down First's half of the payoff frame, Paul Bonair was safe on an error after being ordered by Mullins to remain in the box between pitches. Kinard singled Bonair to second and Bill Brooks walked.

Mullins called a third strike on outfielder Joe Smith for the game ending out, but Smith wound up in a jawing session with Gaines that threatened to break out into more than words.

Gaines got the burning First S. R. veteran off the field finally, and Joe is now riding an indefinite suspension pending completion of an investigation of the incident.

Britton gave up three hits for the four First SR runs and received credit for the win. Myers was charged with the loss although relieved by Lloyd Brill in the 8th.

Big stickmen for ASU were Billy Hahn with three for four and Harper with three for five. Lone singles by Kinard, Smith, Freeman and Terry constituted the losers hits.

First Tops Rockets In Final Test

The First Student Regiment, in its final appearance in regular Fort Benning League season play blasted the Second Student Regiment for 10 hits Sunday to score an 11-2 win over the hapless crew from Harmony Church.

The First SR scored two runs in the first, one in the second, another in the fourth and five in the fifth and two more in the bottom of the sixth. Second SR did all their scoring for the game on lone runs in the fourth and sixth.

Mauer, credited with the win, gave up five hits in the five innings he worked. He was relieved in the sixth by Vince Dickherber who allowed only one hit in the two innings that he worked.

Ralph Terry, First SR third baseman, was top man for the winners at the plate with three for four while Jack Barry, Second SR right fielder, had two for two to pace the losers.

Joe Foizey who started for the Second regiment was relieved by Don Black in the fourth, and charged with the loss.

Legion Teams Play Monday; Juniors Win

Fort Benning's two American Legion baseball teams—Cox and Kennon and Tasty Sandwiches will play in a doubleheader at 6 p. m. Monday at Gowdy Field.

The junior team, Tasty Sandwiches, is in the first game action.

Catcher Larry Saxon blasted a single through the box to score Dennis Bensley from third with the winning run as the junior nipped the North Highland Rebels, 5-7, last week.

The win went to lanky Fred Kaeserman, his second of the season. He was in serious trouble only in the second when a pair of safeties, walks and a hit batsmen netted five runs for the Rebels.

Saxon's payoff blast was his second hit of the night a feat matched by outfielder Jesse Webster. Bensley and Kaeserman also hit safely. All-star shortstop Louie Fitzgerald got on base four consecutive times.

Orville Chesney singled Paul Jaegar across with the winning marker after the regulation scuffing ended at 3-all.

Jaegar singled to get on and stole second. Buss, who relieved starter Tony LaCroix, who was lifted for a pinch hitter, put down a Medic threat in the tenth to save Tony's wing.

In the Medic half of the tenth with one away, Bob Davis hit a grounder to short and was safe on a wide throw. He went to second on the error and advanced to third on a passed ball. Floyd Kendall, Medic player-manager, walked, but Wade Jones grounded out to end the game.

The Medics lost a golden chance to end the contest in their half of the ninth. They loaded the bases with no outs and pitcher Shirley Adkins came up with no outs but bunted into a double play.

508th Nips PMG 4-3, In 10 Innings

The 508th Airborne came through with a victory in the first extra inning tiff of the Fort Benning League season as they nipped Provisional Medical Group, 4-3, in ten frames Saturday at Gowdy Field.

ISD Downed By CTC 5-3 As Zubaty Shines

Whatever happened to the Infantry School Detachment last week when they went down before the Medics still ailed them when they ran up against Alan Zubaty and the CTC outfit.

In a game marked by pre-game ceremonies put on by CTC, ISD went down by a score of 5-3 in spite of seven hits, including a pair of booming doubles by cleanup rightfielder, Emil Rukavina.

The Profs got off to an early start in the first inning as they scored on an error on Smith's infield grounder to short. Smith took two bases on the play and came in on Rukavina's first two base blow of the night.

CTC scored two runs in their half of the second on interference by the catch, an infield out and Butt's single. The third CTC run came in the fourth when Clark walked, went to second on Feinstein's balk, and came home on pitcher Zubaty's single. With Zubaty on first here is how the winning run got in: Zubaty went to second on a wild pitch, advanced to third on Spratt's single and came home on the relay.

ISD got their only other run in the seventh when Cronin walked, advanced to second on Gill's single and came in on Smith's single.

Alan Zubaty, winning pitcher, had two for three at the plate including a triple to deep right that was good for a home run on Burts bad throw to third but was declared out by umpire Bill DeLong on interference with the baserunner by the third base coach.

Hitting star for the evening was CTC rightfielder, Butts, who had four for five and ISD rightfielder Rukavina with two doubles. Winning pitcher Zubaty was credited with two runs batted in. ISD starting hurler, Joe Feinstein, didn't have it for the second straight game and was charged with the loss. He was relieved by Cronin in the fourth.

Stottlemeyer Wins 3 in Row

Led by the blazing pitching of Chuck Stottlemeyer, 29th Officer Candidate Company, First Regiment, batted its way to the First O.C. Regimental softball championship with three consecutive victories.

Stottlemeyer pitched all three games racking up his seventh, eighth and ninth win without a loss. So effective was his fastball that he limited opposing batters to six hits in the three games.

The 29th relied on the heavy hitting of Pat Scarpato, Ralph Jentsch, "Moose" Hesseler, Art Tarolli and Owen Carroll to rap out sixteen runs. Jentsch's home run highlighted the first win and set a merry pace for the team to follow.

Stottlemeyer shutout Third OC, 4-0, on one hit. In the third game Jentsch's hitting again set the pace as 29th OC won the Regimental crown.

The 126th Company scored victories Tuesday and Wednesday in Second Student Regiment softball play. The 126th handed the Second Battalion cadre an 8-0 shut out Tuesday and came out on the top side of a 9-6 scrap with the 114th Wednesday.

Paplocki turned in a stellar two-hit pitching job against the Second Battalion and also won the next day with a five-hitter.

The 126th had to come from behind to burn back the 114th. A five run outburst in the sixth decided the contest. A home run by Watson of the 126th in the sixth featured the hitting of both teams.

Soldier Vote Right Asked By Truman

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President Truman has once again called upon Congress for prompt legislation to allow servicemen to vote in cases where the states fail to do so.

In two letters, one to Vice President Barkley and the other to House Speaker Rayburn, the President pointed out that nearly 1,000,000 servicemen and women will not have the opportunity to vote in the coming national elections. He reasoned that there is no longer sufficient time left for certain state legislatures to act to give servicemen and women from their states and opportunity to vote by absentee ballot.

Another important change that the Senate bill would make would be to authorize Congress to declare the emergency that would recall reservists.

NG Almost Fully Organized Now

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army National Guard is almost completely organized, reports Maj Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, Chief of the National Guard Bureau.

Since the start of the Korean emergency, approximately 120,000 officers and men of about 1,700 Army Guard units have been called into active service.

Approximately 98 percent of the more than 5,200 Army units currently allotted the states and territories have been organized and federally recognized. Organization of 28 additional units has been authorized.

A number of company and battalion-size units have already been returned to state control. Gen. Fleming estimates that at least half the Army Guard officers now on active duty will choose to remain on active duty while the majority of enlisted men will elect discharge or serve out enlistment terms with their state National Guard.

Differences Still Hamper K-Vet Bill Before Congress

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — It looks like a conference committee will have to smooth out differences in the K-Vet Bill before it comes up again in both Houses for final passage.

The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee has reported its version of the K-Vet Bill which differs in some respects from the House-passed version. While most of the provisions of both bills are exactly the same, an important difference in the exact apportioning of money to the veterans still remains to be settled.

Under the House - passed bill the veteran would receive $110.00 a month if single and $150.00 a month if he has dependents. Out of this he would pay his own tuition, using whatever is left for living expenses.

The Senate bill would allot $80.00 a month for single men, $105.00 a month for men with one dependent and $130.00 a month for men with two or more dependents. In addition they would receive up to $360.00 a year for tuition.

The Senate Committee also eliminated a House provision that would give the veteran wage credits of $160.00 a month under Social Security for time spent in the Armed Forces. It also eliminated certain housing provisions of the House bill.

Intact in both bills however, is the mustering - out - pay clause, as well as provisions for on-the-job training and loan guarantees.

Commenting on the possibility of a K-Vet Bill passing before Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.), said that he "will work as hard as I can" to obtain congressional approval of the bill this session.

Most congressional observers agree that Senator Hill's feeling toward the bill is shared by most members of Congress. Backers of the bill however, are proceeding cautiously in order not to write into a new bill any provisions which would lead to abuses.

Marine Head Set For Joint Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The President's signature on the Marine Corps organizational bill will make the Marine Commandant a "part-time" member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The bill, a compromise version of bills passed in both houses of Congress was unanimously approved after a joint conference ironed out points of difference. It provides that the Marine Corps shall not have less than three divisions and three air wings, but it also stipulates that these need not be maintained at full combat strength.

Another provision places a peacetime maximum of 400,000 officers and men on the Corps. The actual strength, however, will be determined each year in the course of normal appropriation procedures.

No provision is made for a floor on personnel. The present strength of the Corps is about 235,000, with a planned strength of 243,000 by June 30, 1953.

The bill states that the Commandant of the Marine Corps shall meet with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and have "co-equal status" with them whenever they discuss matters "directly concerning" the Marine Corps.

400 Air Cadets Tour Benning

Some 400 Air ROTC cadets toured The Infantry Center June 30 to see how the ground soldier lives and fights.

The group, representing Air ROTC summer camps at Maxwell and Craig Air Force Bases in Alabama, watched the Infantry Fire Power Demonstration at Hook Range Monday morning.

They also took a bus tour of The Infantry Center, and had a swimming party at Russ Pool here.

The Air cadets returned to their home stations the same afternoon.

Heading the cadet trip was Col. [illegible] Air Force [illegible] Headquarters, Air Force [illegible]

Conference Need Apparent For AF Reserve Act Bill

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A joint conference to iron out differences in the Armed Forces Reserve Act looms as a summer certainty now that the Senate Armed Services Committee has reported its version of the bill for a calendar vote.

The Senate bill, while holding intact many of the provisions of the House bill, differs sharply with it on certain important questions.

The House bill passed last fall established three categories of vulnerability for recall: the Ready Reserve, the Standby Reserve and the Retired Reserve.

The Senate Bill does away with the Ready and Standby Reserves, thereby eliminating any differences in vulnerability. The Retired Reserve designation remains intact.

The Senate bill does, however, reduce the vulnerability of reservists who have served in the Korean combat zone. This category of reservists would not be recalled unless other reservists with similar qualifications were unavailable.

One important provision of both bills will undoubtedly be in the final version. This is the reservists contract provision which would allow a member of a Reserve component to sign a five year contract making him less apt to be released from active duty involuntarily.

Generally, though, both bills correct many of the administrative difficulties currently plaguing the Reserves. Present Reserve procedures differ considerably with each service, it is these differences that both bills are intended to remove.

Neither bill in any way affects the Reserve obligation described by Congress in earlier laws.

One bill recently introduced in the Senate has already passed a Senate vote and gone to the House for consideration. The bill complies in many respects with the President's wishes.

Ignore Waiver And Loose Money

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Records of each Service reveal that tens of thousands of servicemen are losing money by failing to waive their NSLI term insurance premiums.

If you are an NSLI term insurance policy holder, you should request a waiver of premium (if you have not already done so) from your personnel officer. At the same time you should discontinue your premium allotment. If you don't, you're needlessly throwing away money.

Servicemen who held NSLI term insurance policies should have waived their premium immediately upon passage of Public Law 23 Apr. 25, 1951. Many did not do so, believing that if they waived their premium they would lose some of the benefits of their NSLI term policy.

This is not so. All the rights and benefits of their NSLI term policy remain intact when they waive their premium.

For those who still remain to be convinced, here are some figures to further prove the point:

If, for example, you're 18 years of age and did not waive your premium, you're paying 64 cents every month for each $1,000 you have in NSLI term insurance. If you have a $10,000 policy then you're paying $6.40 per month.

Because, you're still paying your premium, you're entitled to approximately 50 cents a month per $1,000 insurance in dividends. You paid $6.40. You get back $5.00. What happened to the difference of $1.40?

You lost it without getting any additional rights or benefits. On a yearly basis that would amount to $16.80 in needless losss. At other ages you pay higher premiums and therefore would lose more money.

ROTC

194 men. Next largest is the unit from Oklahoma A and M, with 114, and the most Negro ROTC men checked in from Prarie View college in Texas, 104 strong.

Fort Benning is one of three posts in the nation conducting Infantry ROTC camps this summer. It has the largest number. There are 1,543 at Fort Meade, Md., and 700 at Fort Lewis, Wash., making a total of 4,600 Infantry ROTC summer campers in the nation.

This represents only the Infantry ROTC cadets, and reflects a tremendous officer training program now in progress said Col. William R. Blakely, professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Alabama and deputy ROTC camp commander in immediate command of the installation under Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry center commander.

Colonel Blakely, a native of Clinton, S. C. brough about 40 of his own cadets to camp from the University of Alabama.

Most of the cadets have completed their junior year in college and will return to schools next fall, receiving their reserve commissions following completion of college work. But 250 already have completed enough college work to obtain a degree, and they will be commissioned on graduation day, which is August 1. They will return to Benning for 90-day courses in special duties.

Average age of the ROTC cadet at Benning is about 21 years officers estimate.

From Cold to Hot

Some of the men, especially those from the Dakotas, Michigan, and Illinois, shuffled quickly out of weather that was 56 degrees during the day into Georgia heat that registers nearly 100 degrees on the thermometer. Heat is a factor to be dealt with, but has caused no serious problems, said Colonel Blakely.

Korea has not brought about any radical changes in the kind of training ROTC cadets are getting, nor the type weapons they use, officers said.

At Fort Benning the men are getting practical work in theory they learned in college classrooms.

Colonel Blakely said all college graduates commissioned in the ROTC this spring would be called into military service by Sept. 30, to serve two years active duty and six years on the reserve roster, a total of eight years.

Some 350 to 400 colleges in the nation have ROTC for all service branches, 110 offer Infantry ROTC. There are 27,000 students taking Infantry basic training on the nation's campuses, and another 10,000 in advanced Infantry ROTC programs.

Basic Training

Primarily, the training the ROTC cadets are getting at Benning is Infantry basic training, with plenty of emphasis on developing the leadership ability of the cadets. Each student takes his turn as a cadet officer, and it's his job to maintain discipline, direct the men's response to training, inspire confidence and enthusiasm in the men he leads.

Weapons get the most attention in the Infantry ROTC training setup. Then the potential officers learn map reading, patrolling, fighting in towns, platoon tactics in attack, and they will pitch into a Military Field Day program July 26.

Training competitions will be held in close order drill, weapons drill, grenade tossing, voice and command, tug of war and other skills developed in military training. Winners will receive medals, and cadet companies and schools having the first, second, or third place winners will receive points for the best company and best school in the 1952 summer camp.

The ROTC corps includes 537 Distinguished Military students, men who have shown the most promise during their first year of college ROTC work. These previously requested the privilege of applying for a regular Army commission.

Therefore, they will get additional security by their officer-instructors and will be rated more sharply. Those who come through will get regular Army commissions, and performance in ROTC summer camp goes a long way toward earning that goal. All such men are above the average and rank high in leadership.

Men are free on weekends, and at night, there are some 10 sports available in their ROTC company areas. Organized recreation is carried on by Fort Benning officers, and the facilities of the post are available to the men in their off hours.

For one student there is waiting a medal for the most outstanding cadet at camp. It will be presented at the end of camp to the man with the brightest record.

The camp is organized into a camp Headquarters and Headquarters Company and three battalions, each consisting of a small battalion headquarters and six cadet companies of an average strength of 125 cadets.

The support troops who provide transportation, guard, and other services for the camp are the 3rd battalion, 506th ARCT and a provisional Transportation Truck Battalion consisting of the 33rd, 148th, and 666th Transportation Truck companies.

Cadets will get 34 hours on instruction by demonstration troops of the Infantry school during the camp.

All men are quartered in two-story, frame barracks painted yellow, with gray roofs. Company headquarters, supply room, recreation areas, mess halls, and usually a post exchange are situated in the near vicinity of barracks.

OCs Do Turnabout At Demonstration

Students of the 19th Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment made a turn about from observer to demonstrator last week. The occasion was prompted by the visit of 500 West Point cadets.

The Cadets watched the Senior Candidates engage in a company in the attack problem. With all radios connected to a loud speaker, the cadets could hear the orders and commands as they were being exchanged between the Student commanders.

NEW CO

Capt. Loxley R. Scott will assume command of the Second Company, First Student Regiment. He replaces Lt. James F. Oliver who remains with the company as executive officer.

Are We Making Any Progress, Chaplain Asks

By CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) EDWIN C. GOMKE

The Army has no priority on bad language. Limited though my observation may be, I have heard as much profanity and vulgarity in civilian life as in the Army. In any occupation a man's vocabulary is usually the index of his character and sometimes of his intelligence.

It is ture that many officers and non commissioned officers in the Army give trainees the impression that to be able to cuss is one of the requirements for being a "tough" soldier. And among the trainees there are always the extroverts who must let off steam in a volley of uncensored words just to prove to their buddies what real "he-men" they are.

It is my impression that the "tough" soldier is not the one who can swear the loudest, but the one who has to stand for all of the profanity around him. I believe I am speaking for all intelligent men when I say that it is not necessary to use profane and foul language to commune with one another.

Webster has provided us with a well catalogued list of good words to cover most any situation. Both officers and enlisted men, with any education at all, can find enough decent words with which to issue orders. And the time many a "foul-mouth" uses upon saying nothing but four letter words might better be spent in improving his speech.

Chaplains alone cannot be enough of an influence toward eliminating the bad language problem, any more than the civilian pastor, priest, or rabbi can control a civilian community in that respect. The responsibility for clean speech rests largely upon the leaders of every unit.

But the chain of command ends finally with the Private, so it is an individual responsibility. In matters of character everyone must discipline his own life. The world just won't bother with us unless we have a desire to improve ourselves.

In a sense we ought not to become alarmed about bad language, because we can point out that General George Washington, way back in the Revolutionary Days, was already confronted with it. He issued a General Order to all of his troops:

"The General is sorry to be informed that the foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing, a vice heretofore little known in the American Army, is growing into fashion; he hopes the officers will, by example as well as by influence, endeavor to check it, and that both they and the men will reflect that we can have little hope of the blessing of heaven on our arms if we insult it by our impiety and folly; added to this, it is a vice so mean and low, that every man of sense and character, detests and despises it."

On the other hand, we have had 177 years in which to improve our speech. Do you think we are making any progress?

The Right to Vote Is Valuable

By the time this is published, the Republicans may have nominated a candidate for the presidency of the United States. And in two weeks, if all goes well, the Democrats will have selected the man to represent them at the polls next November.

But we are not concerned with who is nominated or in who is elected but rather that in fact that free men can select the head of their government every four years.

We in America are used to freedom and liberty and it is difficult, sometimes, for us to imagine any other system. But other systems do exist and to point that fact out is our purpose here.

This is the greatest country on earth and no matter what we think of taxes or restrictions, we enjoy more freedom in a single day than the majority of the peoples on earth known in a lifetime.

We don't know what it is to live under a totalitarian rule where one man, or even one "party" like the communist thieves, can dictate their will on the people just as they see fit.

The Communists hold elections, they say, but their elections are only form and are meaningless. But in this country, your vote does mean something, and if you don't use it, you prove you don't respect freedom and are willing to forego what brave men have died for.

But it isn't the vote that's so important. It's the right to vote that we hold so dear.

The conventions, like the one the Republicans are holding and the one the Democrats are planning, are the biggest political show on record. Millions of words have already been written about what went on in Chicago, and they too, are a miracle in our modern oppressed world.

America is one of the last bulwarks against slavery. But so long as one man loves liberty, there is hope.

This isn't meant to seem melodramatic, but only to draw our attention to what we believe. The conventions have drawn our interest and caused us to reflect, for a moment, on what we have. And we shouldn't restrict our interest in politics to the conventions.

But rather, we should be aware always, to the greatness of our country and what it must mean to the rest of the world. We in the Army are the first line of defense. Protection of America is our responsibility and we have done it well.

We should just be aware of the graveness of our call. It's not only for America that we stand ready to resist aggression always, but all the world. They look to us. It is a noble charge.

Petticoat Fever Opens Tonight

Fort Benning's hard-working Little Theatre group has prepared another play that opens at the Main Theater tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Entitled "Petticoat Fever," this new production represents hundreds of spare-time hours of the many people who made the Mark Reed play possible here.

It is a good sign when a group turns its after - hours time into such a worthwhile project and The Bayonet heartily endorses such endeavors.

But there is more to the play than the showing and to all this seldom recognized part of any production, we want to take off our hats.

The work that goes into a play is phenomenal and only those who do it can really appreciate a flawless production as it is shown to the audience.

The easier it looks, the more work goes into it. In rehearsal, everyone works together. Stars and "extras" alike do any and all of the work that comes to hand. They all work in learning lines and painting flats. They account for properties and design costumes and offer each other the correct amount of praise and criticism.

And the work is demanding. Long hours go with it and most of the work is necessarily done at night after the players have finished their work-day chores.

The best part of it is that they all enjoy it and they feel as though they have accomplished something when the play is finally carried off.

Unity and cooperation are the only things that make them possible at all.

And many of the people who do the most are never seen by the audience. The electricians, painters, tailors, carpenters, laborers, business people, and prompters are never seen on the stage and their work isn't noticed if everything goes right.

Fort Benning personnel will miss a rare opportunity if they fail to see the Little Theatre's newest creation. They have worked hard but for the treat, all you have to do is go and watch.

News Briefs

Republicans Open Convention in Chicago

With the opening of the Republican national Convention the political battle for the 1952 elections is on in earnest. The Republican conflict seems to have settled down to a two man fight between Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. By this week end the Republican candidate should be chosen.

Two weeks from now the Democrats hold their National Convention at the same Convention Hall in Chicago were the GOP is now in session. The Democratic choice seems at this point to be among Sens. Estes Kefauver of Tenn., Richard Russell of Ga., Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Ill. and Averell Harriman of N. Y., former ECA administrator. A new entry in to the race has been Vice Pres. Alben Barkley.

The 82nd Congress has ended, unless President Truman calls a special session. Before adjournment the solons passed the new "GI Bill of Rights." The new act calls for virtually the same provisions as the one granted after World War II. The major change has been in the educational benefits. The ex-GI student now will receive a flat $110 per month if single or $160 a month if married. Out of this amount he will pay his own tuition, etc.

This differs from the old bill under which the government paid $500 for tuition to the educational institution and the veteran received his subsistence in addition.

The United States is once again the holder of the cross Atlantic speed record. The ship bearing the name of the nation has set the new record on its maiden voyage. It arrived off Bishop's Rock, the traditional English terminal in determining a record crossing, just three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes after it passed Ambrose Light in New York Harbor.

The record speed for the crossing was 35.59 knots (about 40 land miles an hour). This gave it a margin of over ten hours and two minutes over the time set by the Queen Mary in 1938.

The Navy has unveiled a model of its atomic submarine. The craft is a copy of the submersible whose keel was laid by President Truman on June 14. From the model it appears that the atomic unit that will power the sub will be about one-third of the overall length of the craft.

The President has stated that the sub will be able to travel thousands of miles at top speed on a few pounds of uranium fuel.

On The Bookshelf

THE DARK MOMENT by Ann Bridge. The MacMillian Company.

Ann Bridge has written a one-sitting kind of book that combines the excitement of a well-told story with the dramatic appeal of history in the making.

This is the story of two Turkish girls, forced by the revolution to abandon an old and aristocratic society and become pioneers for the freedom of their countrywomen.

Their escape from a palace on the Bosporus, their hazardouous journey to join their husbands, their plunge into hardships, form the background for this interesting story.

RAG, TAG AND BOBTAIL by Lynn Montross. Harper and Bros.

Lynn Montross has written in effect an eyewitness account of the American Revolution and its valiant little army of colonists by letting the participants speak from themselves wherever possible.

Written from first hand sources, the book contains more dairy material than any other account of the Revolution.

Hundreds of journals have been culled for the significant and colorful details which make of history a human adventure, and Montross provides the panorama of events.

Strategy has its inevitable part in the story, but it will be remembered chiefly for the exciting and telling glimpses it affords into the daily lives of the soldiers who fought the battles, suffered the defeats and won the victories, marched to the tunes or failures, the men who followed their men in the long harrowing marches.

PRIVATE WILLIAM J. HUTCHISON AT WORK

Benning Cartoonist Began Career By Meeting Al Capp

The catalyst for Pvt. William J. Hutchison's cartooning career was a meeting with Al Capp, creator of "Li'l Abner" whose work the 24-year-old soldier had long admired.

Private Hutchison, who is in Headquarters and Service company, Airborne Battalion, First Student Brigade, has been drawing cartoons that appear in The Bayonet.

A native of West Haven, Conn., he began his commercial career about four years ago. His work has appeared in several Street and Smith publications and various sports magazines. Private Hutchison has done ad work and advertising cartoons for New York agencies and is currently interested in a television animation project.

After finishing his tour of duty with the Army, he says he hopes to begin commercial publication of his own comic strip. Private Hutchison took his basic training at Fort Lee, Va., where he also attended a Quartermaster Equipment Repair course.

Lt. Col. Lynch Set For Staff College

Lt. Col. J. H. Lynch, chief of the Operations and Training Group of The Infantry School's Staff Department, will enter the next class at the Armed Forces Staff College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Colonel Lynch is a 1936 graduate of the United States Military Academy and was with the 29th Infantry Regiment here from 1938-43.

As commander of the Third Battalion of the Seventh Cavalry Regiment in Korea he led his unit in the now famous "Task Force Lynch," which started Sept. 22, 1950, from Tabu Dong and moved 196 miles north to link up with the Seventh Infantry Division driving south from the Inchon landing.

Israeli Army Official Takes Benning Ideas Back Home

The Israeli Army's vice chief of staff left Fort Benning last week with ideas for improving his country's ground forces.

Brig. Gen. Mordechai Makleff, who spent two days here studying U. S. training techniques, said The Infantry School's method of separating administrative and instructional functions "will be of great aid in our training."

General Makleff singled out The Infantry School's Army Extension Course Department for particular praise. The department gives "every officer, either active or inactive, a chance to improve and advance himself," he said.

A member of the Israeli Army since its creation four years ago, General Makleff said that U.S. military training methods were of "great assistance" in improving his Army's caliber.

The Israeli Army officer visited The Infantry School's Operations Office and Army Extension Course, Airborne, and Automotive Departments during his stay here. He also met with officials of the First Officer Candidate Regiment and watched Infantry candidates training.

Before coming to The Infantry Center, General Makleff and his party visited Washington, D. C., and Army Field Forces headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va.

He also will visit The Anti-aircraft and Guided Missiles Center at Fort Bliss, Texas, The Artillery Center at Fort Sill, Okla., The Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., The Armored Center at Fort Knox, Ky., and the Cleveland, Ohio, Tank Arsenal, before returning to Israel.

2 General Officers Speak To New 2nd Lieutenants

Maj. Gen. Alexander Paxton Jr., addressed 98 graduating officer candidates here last week, and Maj. Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh will address the next class, No. 18, today.

General Paxton is the commander of the 31st "Dixie" Division, and General Ferenbaugh is Inspector of Infantry for Army Field Forces.

Major Erman M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division here, will administer the "oath of office" to approximately 139 new Infantry second lieutenants today. Col. Lexington O. Sheffield, Infantry Center chaplain, will give the invocation.

General Ferenbaugh is a 1918 graduate of the United States Military Academy. He is also a graduate of The Infantry School here, The Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J., The Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the Army War College in Washington.

During World War II he served as chief of the European-North African Branch, Operation Division, War Department General Staff, and as assistant commander of the 83rd Infantry Division.

In 1945 he was chief of staff of the atomic bomb test "Operation Sandstone." He assumed command of the Seventh Infantry Division in Korea in January, 1951, and in December of that year he was appointed a member of the United Nations truce delegation. He was appointed to his present post in February, 1952.

Last Thursday, Maj. Gen. Alexander Paxton Jr., told the 98 graduates of Class No. 17, of the Infantry Officer Candidate Regiment that rank means responsibility.

General Paxton warned the new second lieutenants to "take care of your men. Your primary mission is to teach them to survive in combat," he declared.

"You must realize your responsibility as citizen-soldiers who form the backbone of our country's defense," he said. "The new lieutenant and the citizen soldier are the Army's strength."

General Paxton pinned gold second lieutenant's bars on Honor Graduate Joseph Y. Yaverski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Yaverski of 10800 Avenue M, Chicago, Ill.

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help:

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town number, she won't have to consult "Information" first to see why you're calling and you will get through faster. Ask her a time when you may log telephone numbers.

2. While you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

Long Distance lines are generally less crowded after 8 P. M. and after 11 P. M.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

CAT-AND-MOUSE GRINS FROM FIRST S.R. Mgr. Bob Kinard, Hurler Vince Dickherber Await Series

Post 'World Series' Opens Friday Night

The Fourth of July was last week, but fireworks in the Fort Benn ng Baseball League will be exploded starting at 8 p.m. Friday at 3,500-seat Gowdy Field with the beginning of the season's championship playoffs.

Four teams will go to the post and there are just as many favorites in what should be one of the rowdiest diamond carnivals in recent post history.

In fact, the top four teams stuck so close together in the regular campaign that it was impossible to make actual pairings for Friday's opener until after last night's game, which was too late for this edition.

Professers Start

Infantry School Detachment, with lefty Joe Feinstein, the Mighty Miniature, meets either Combat Training Command or ASU Provisional Group in tomorrow night's lid lifter.

First Student Regiment meets either CTC or ASU, whichever is left over by ISD, at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Two-Out-Of-Three

They'll play a best 2-of-3 series under that set up and then the winners meet in a 2-out-of-3 go for the pennant. ISD and First SR will play on alternating days in the first round. Action will be scheduled daily until a champ is crowned.

All games during the week will be played at 8 p.m. Weekend contests will be at 2 p.m. Admission is free. It is possible for the series to run through July 21.

Watch Hurling

Pitching figures to be the key factor with one game following another. Here's a capsule summary of the way they look:

25D — Led the regular season play. Have Feinstein, Bob Cronin as regular hurlers and Walter Warrick, who hasn't got in a game this year. Good in the clutches.

FIRST S.R. — A power outfit with probably the best balanced lineup in the league man-for-man. Steady hurlers in Lloyd Brill, lefty Dick Myers, Vince Dickherber. A front - running crew.

C.T.C. — Rated pre - season favoritism they slipped badly at start. If hitting jells they could come through behind reliable pitching from Ken Middleton, Adam Zubaty, John Freeman and Stan Edwards.

A.S.U. — A club which could have won them all with a break here and there. Winning hurlers in Carroll Mattson, Clyde Britton and perhaps Bill Ross. Hitting in spots.

Sock Titles

Added incentive for the players will be the fact that batting and pitching records will be continued from the regular season through the playoffs, and selection of an All-Post team is due in a couple of weeks.

First Student Regiment has been playing in the Georgia regional semi-pro baseball tournament this week at Macon, Ga., in a bid to make the nationals at Wichita, Kas. Whether the added action will slow them up for the playoffs or merely serve to hone their bats remains to be seen.

Boxing Starts August 1, Football Program OK'd

Plans were approved Monday for the two most popular sports at Fort Benning — football and boxing — to return to the post in the next two months.

A championship series of post boxing bouts will be launched Aug. 1 under the lights at huge Doughboy Stadium, it was decided Monday by the Special Services Council in a memorandum subject to the approval of the commanding general.

New Faces

Five teams — in a lineup drastically revised from last year's record smashing season — will open the football season Sept. 26, the Council also voted.

The grid teams will be Combat Training Command, 508th Airborne, First Student Brigade and two combination elevens consisting of the merged players of ASU Provisional Group - Provisional Medical Group and Lawson Field-Infantry School Detachment.

The latter combo is subject to the approval of Lawson's commanding general.

Fresh Strength

The revised team allignment is designed to strengthen the grid league which will play Friday nights and Sunday afternoons in a double round robin schedule.

It also breaks up the famed Special Troops Rams — a merger of First Student Brigade and Infantry School Detachment — which swept unbeaten to the 1951 post championship with nine victories and went on to win the Geechee Bowl Game at Savannah, Ga.

Practice Starts

Special Services will begin issuing practice gear to the teams in the next several weeks and practice in various units is expected to get under way on a limited scale about Aug. 1.

Boxing will be resumed on a twice-a-month basis with the program continuing through the fall and winter and leading into the Third Army championships next spring, a move which should produce an abundance of Benning champs.

More Ring War

All major units on post are expected to enter ring crews.

Boxing and football last season drew more fans than all other spectator sports combined and under the accelerated programs endorsed Monday a bevy of new attendance records would seem to be in the offing.

Ace Riflemen Up Saturday For SE Regional Tourney

Between 75 and 100 crack civilian and military riflemen from eight surrounding states are expected to be on hand Saturday and Sunday for the 1952 Southeastern Regional Smallbore Rifle Championships at Easley Range, Main Post.

Metallic sight firing is slated to start at 8 a.m. Saturday with any sight firing at the same Sunday. All events are open to the public.

Air Force Hot

Fort Benning is expected to have a strong team entry, but the biggest title threat should be an Air Force squad. Little advance information has been available on potential civilian stars who will compete.

The grand aggregate winner will receive a trip to Jacksonville for the National Smallbore Championships which follow.

This is the first of three major shooting events at Fort Benning this summer. The Southeastern Regional High Power Championships are here Aug. 9-10 followed by the National High Power Championships Aug. 27—Sept. 2.

The smallbore tourney is being conducting by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club in cooperation with The Infantry Center. Tourney officials are Lt. Col. John Butler, range officer, Maj. Kenneth Groom, chief statistical officer, and Maj. J. T. Wren, official referee.

Macomber Named Chief Of Youth Council

A Post Youth Activities Council has been named to plan, coordinate and supervise all projects for Fort Benning children, Col. Kenneth Macomber has been named chairman of the Council.

Other members are Lt. Col Walter Tousignant, Lt. Col. William Sellers, Col. Lexington Sheffield, Col. Ivan Parr and Col. Lewis Martin.

Davis, Swindler Out Of Shooting

Fort Benning's monopoly on the captaincy of the Army's two biggest sports teams will be broken up in the next few weeks at least temporarily it was learned by The Bayonet this week.

Col. Perry D. Swindler, veteran skipper of the U.S. Army pistol team, has received orders to Yokahoma, Japan, and Maj. Worth P. Davis, sophomore pilot of the All-Army rifle team, leaves here July 22 to attend the Command General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Army Field Forces is expected to name a successor to Major Davis in the next week or ten days and there is a good chance a Benning man will get the nod.

Colonel Swindler is not slated to leave until Oct. 1 which means he will direct the team through all regional and national competition this summer.

Will Last Year

Unofficially since there will be no team scoring at the time, the squads of both Colonel Swindler and Major Davis won last year's

Positions Held

Three other places on the team are open with Sgt. Ben Peacock, Cpl. Don Gollihugh and Pvt. Harold Lawrence, all of whom are competing in the Pan American Games at Caracas, Venezuela, this week.

Other members of the rifle team are Capt. Ernest Malone, automotive department, Capt. James Crumbley, communications department, Pfc. Ken Hudgins, station hospital, First Lt. Rufus Brock, and Sfc. Wilburne Fristik, weapons department, and M-Sgt. Oscar Gallman, First Special Troops Battalion.

ISD Finishes In First Place

Feinstein Hurls 2-Hitter For 8th Win and 2.05 ERA

Lefty Joe Feinstein found his way out of the pitching wilderness after a pair of defeats with a two-hitter Sunday which enabled Infantry School Detachment to clip 508th Airborne, 7-1, and finish the regular season in first place.

Manager Woody Burt and his Pirates breathed easily again as the Hoboken Hurricane knocked 'em over one-two-three in the first four innings.

Feinstein has worked in 11 of ISD's 12 games this season and even he admitted he was getting tired.

Get An Anchor

"I weighed something like 150 pounds when the season opened," he grinned. "I was down to 135 pounds before the game Sunday. I told the umpire if he saw any empty uniform standing on the mound after the game to be sure and get it off—it's me."

Joe's touch was as light as his humor Sunday. Although he walked two in the fifth, he had a no-hitter going until Ed Brousseau slapped a fast ball into short left in the sixth.

Lone Slip

The blow scored Paul Jaeger who had walked and advanced on an infield play. In the seventh, Bill Kennedy rapped a change up into right-center. That was all the Red Devils could do to Feinstein.

Little Joe now has a 8-2 record, has worked in 70 1-3 innings and has a sparkling 2.05 ERA. He has pitched a no-hitter and one-hitter, each seven innings, Sunday's two-hitter, and a nine-inning three-hitter.

One of his losses was in a two-inning relief assignment.

Hard Triples

Emil Rukavina and Mel Southall carried the ISD attack with 2-for-4 each, including back-to-back triples which highlighted a four-run outbreak in the seventh.

Two errors and a single by Tom Smith also figured in the inning in which Southall stole home on loser Tony LaCroix.

Middleton Pitches 3rd Zero In Bid For All-Post Hill Slot

Southpaw Joe Feinstein is the most effective if not the best pitcher in the Fort Benning League, but the fact remains they'll have to have a right-hander, too, when it comes to naming an All Post team in the next couple of weeks.

And the cherce ain't gonna be easy, huh.

There are two undefeated regulars in ISD's Bob Cronin and First SR's Vince Dickherber. Then there's ASU's Carroll Mattson with only a 3-3 record, but one of the hoppin'est fast balls in the loop.

Take A Pick

Or there's Lloyd Brill, Tony LaCroix, Stan Edwards and maybe some more.

Meantime, however, Ken Middleton, eagled - featured former class A minor league chunker, put in his bid Friday night by baffling 508th Airborne on four hits as Combat Training Command took a 7-0 decsion.

It was Middleton's fourth win of the year against one loss and he faced only one over the minimum 21 batters for the seven-inning affair. It was Kenny's third consecutive shut out — a fact that's hard to ignore.

Seven Runs

He has given up only seven runs in five games (or 32 innings) and six of them happened when he started minus everything against First SR. They belted him out in the third.

Middleton's ERA then is a spectacular 1.96 and if he can maintain anything like that pace against the stiffer competition in the playoffs he's almost a cinch for All-Post nomination.

Butts Stars

Outfielder Tom Butts led the CTC attack with a double and single in four at bats and Reggie Carroll contributed a tremendous first inning triple to deep center which stalled Frank Spaniel with CTC's first run.

The sparkless Red Devils sealed their own fate with bobbles which figured in three runs scored in the second and another pair in the seventh.

Another outstanding 122nd victory was an unbelievable 37-1 smashing of the First Battalion cadre.

The 122nd was knocked out of the First Student Brigade by the First Battalion of the First SR, 6-5.

Other 122nd games in the tourney were a 12-3 win over the same First SR team, and a 1-0 loss to the 29th O. C. Company in the double-elimination affair.

Dews Keeps ASU In Flag Flurry

When they start thinking about All-Post baseball teams in the next couple of weeks somebody should remember to pull Bobby Dews' name out of the hat for being one of the most consistent 'spot players' in the Fort Benning circuit.

The 37-year old veteran of 17 years minor league campaigning came through with a perfect bunt as ASU Provisional Group nipped Provisional Medical Group, 4-3, Wednesday night with the ancient squeeze play.

Rugged Duel

It broke up a nifty pitching duel between ASU's Carroll Mattson and the Medics' Floyd Kendall before 350 Gowdy Field inhabitants.

Kendall fanned 17 and allowed only six hits to nine for Mattson, but Floyd was the victim of three consecutive errors which gave the Raiders a vital run in the sixth inning.

Fanned

Mattson struck out 14 in boosting his season's record to the 4-3 mark.

But it was Dews in the role of a ninth-inning pinch - hitter who made it possible. Kendall had pitched three straight innings of no-hit ball when he served a leadoff double to Willie Sayers.

Wily Willie advanced on Don Harper's pop to center and then Dews put down a perfect bunt. Sayers hit the plate as the ball hit the ground and Dews went all the way to second when Kendall was wild with the peg to the first.

Don't Forget

Bobby, who caught for Montreal and just missed a chance with the Dodgers when Uncle Sam beckoned, has been spectacular in several ways this season. Even at 37 he has no peer in this loop as a catcher although he isn't up to working there often.

He has filled in adequately at second, managed the team while Bossman Lewis Grizzard was hospitalized and even figured in one of the season's most spectacular rhubarbs. His biggest asset, of course, has been his ability to come through in the clutches with his bat.

Quick Margin

ASU took an early two-run lead. Green scored in the second after being hit by a pitch and advancing on Sayers' singles, a wild pitch and Coleman's fly to center. Sayers singled in the fourth, stole second and tallied on Harper's safety to center.

The Medics tied it up in the fourth on a triple by Cliff Davis and singles by Al Easley and Kendall.

Benning Team Battles In City LL Title Meet

Lt. Col. Johnnie Brink's Commanders, 1952 champions of the Doughboy Little League, will make their bid for the Chester Columbus L. L. baseball title this week end at downtown Golden Park.

The Commanders will be in action at 8:30 p.m. Saturday against the winning team from the Peach League. Two other games between league champions are scheduled earlier in the afternoon.

If the Benning nine is successful in its first game it will advance to the semifinals Sunday afternoon and evening with the championship finals slated Tuesday night at Golden Park.

Meantime, the Commanders were declared champions officially last Friday by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young in colorful and impressive ceremonies at the main post polo grounds.

Receive Rewards

Members of the team were awarded sweaters while special trophies went to Ronnie Hutcheson, as Most Valuable Player in the loop, and to Weldon Sellers, leading hitter.

Sellers, Preston Fussell of the Rams, and Dale McPheron, of the Flyers, were chosen to bring the Commanders up to full playing strength for the city championship series.

- Roster

Other members of the top team are Michael Hakala, Thomas Carcelli, Rickey Weatherill, Peter Greer, Jack McCaskill, Michael Thornton, Ralph Boswell, Jack Jones, Karl Benson, Jon Jastermsky, Skippy Potter, Hammond Adams, Jim Brink, Dave Ptak, Billy Kinard, Bob Goul and Tom Baldridge.

Lt. Thomas Carcelli, USMC, assisted Brink in coaching the team.

The post's Little League program was actively directed by M-Sgt. Raymond Tousignant, president of the circuit, and prominent in all Fort Benning youth activities programs.

Here's a Good Guy To Bet the Old Numbers Racket

The number 25 for recent years has been a constant companion of Second Lt. Lloyd Jordan of Second Student Regiment.

The former University of Alabama football player now assigned to the A & E section of Second SR, can list six occasions where 25 has cropped up.

It all began in Jordan's high school football days at Monticello, Ga., where he wore a 25 on his jersey. The husky offtackle played in the Georgia high school all - star game and, oddly enough, sported another 25 for that event.

And at Alabama — you guessed it — jersey 25. His locker in the dressing room bore the haunting 25 and it was also found above Jordan's room in the football players' dormitory.

Jordan reported to Benning and what room should he be assigned in the BOQ but 25. His only comment is that he "didn't ask for it. It just happened that way."

Benner

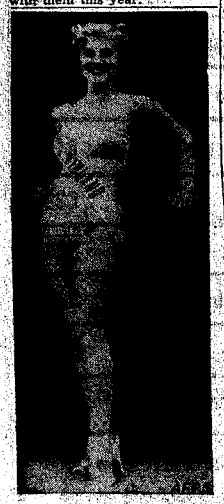
last target even as it disappears.

Benner will shoot both rapid and slow fire at Helsinki, a deviation from the 1948 Olympic rules which allowed a man to compete in only one or the other. Benner chose slow fire in London describing himself as "just a beginner" in rapid fire although he holds more medals and trophies than probably any other competitor still active.

"I was watching Takacs and the others, however," grinned Joe. "I'll be in there punching with them this year."



LOVELY . . . Armi Kuusela, "Miss Finland," took top honors in the beauty pageant at Long Beach, Calif., and was crowned "Miss Universe." The 18-year-old beauty has blonde hair, blue eyes and a classic profile. She stands five feet, five inches and weighs 110 pounds. Bust, waist and hip measurements are 34, 23, and 34 inches.

Kayes Takes Gordon Cup

Lt. Bill Kayes shot a 74 with a 12 handicap for a net 62 to win the 1952 version of the Gordon Cup Trophy in the annual cup tournament play completed last week at Fort Benning Country Club.

Runner-up was Capt. Sam Walker with a 79-12—67.

Flight winners included Maj. C. R. Wiselogle, 82-8—74, Lt. Col. J. A. Frye, 85-12—73, Maj. E. M. Logan, 88-18—70, Maj. Del Perkins, 86-15—71, Lt. H. Underwood, 104-26—78, and Lt. E. R. Smith, 85-8—77.

In a 'round on the day prior to his tourney shooting, Maj. Wiselogle made a hole-in-one on the par three, 180-yd. 14th hole.

Hurls No-Hitter

George Davis, of 666th Transportation Truck Co., hurled a no-hitter as ASU Provisional Group zeroed Combat Training Command, 10-0, last week in an Infantry Center Softball League game.

In the second half of a twin bill First Q. C. Regiment beat Infantry School Detachment, 4-0.

Hunting, Fish Activities Look Up for Outdoorsmen

The annual budget of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association has been approved in principal assuring the completion of the Association's activities program for the coming year.

At the same time, Lt. T. A. Fountain, game warden, revealed that through June 917 new federal hunting and fishing permits and 411 Association memberships had been sold here.

"That's a very good response to our first notices for new membership," stated Fountain. "We expect a big increase in sale of permits and memberships this month."

Plan Pond Ready

Col. Wolcott Dudley, president of the Association, this week said that improvements to Averettes Pond will be completed about Oct. 1 with the water level raised about five feet.

That should make it second only to King's Pond as a favorite for fishing.

Col. Dudley reported luck in cropping in recent quail planting which augers well for good quail cover during the hunting season this fall unless there is a drought meantime.

Rally Falls Short For Junior Nine

Tasty Sandwiches pushed across five runs in a last inning rally, but the Fort Benning American Legion junior team fell short as they were beaten by the Columbus Boys Club, 6-5, Monday night at Gowdy Field.

Don Dade and Dick Woods collected the only hits for the losers. Fred Kaeserman was tagged with the loss despite a fine relief job for starter Jerry Gandy.

Five of the winners' runs were unearned. Dennis Bensley and Kurt Keene sparked the Benning nine defensively.

Leaves for Schooling

Lt. Lawrence Williams, coach of Fort Benning's championship Third Army track team, is taking an AG associate basic course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

The CTC officer, who gave Benning its biggest win in sports thus far in 1952, expects to return here in September in time to lend a hand with Commander football.

Cards Play Tonight And Friday

The battling Columbus Cardinals will meet the Augusta Tigers in single games at 8 p.m. tonight and Friday night at downtown Golden Park in Selly League action.

Feature of tonight's game will be an appearance at 7:30 of Jackie Price, famed player-clown of the Cleveland Indians. Price is the contortionist who makes all kinds of wired catches from seemingly impossible positions and performs such feats as throwing three balls in different directions at the same time.

The Cardinals have won eight straight from Augusta this season, but the Tiger team has recently reorganized and there will be numerous fresh faces in tonight's batting order.

Benning Stars

Two Benning people performed at Cardinals games earlier this week. Distance running Lionel Pina, of CTC, jogged around the outfield area without let up during both ends of a doubleheader Monday night. It was estimated his marathon journey covered 50 miles.

Little Buddy Pendleton, eight-year old son of Sgt. Murray Pendleton, raced his midget auto around the Golden Park track prior to Tuesday's game. Buddy's specially constructed racer attained speeds up to 35 mph.

Dixon Downs Grieves For Tennis Title

Max Dixon beat Bill Grieves, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, to capture the boys under 16 crown last week in the Officers Mess junior tennis tournament.

Fred Millener won the boys under 14 title by defeating Art McPheron, 6-3, 6-4, and Donn Yoder beat Dale McPheron, 6-4, 6-7, 8-6, for the boys under 11 crown.

In men's handicap tourney play last week, Capt. Duquemin defeated Lt. Col. E. Englis, 9-7, 6-8, 6-3.

Next tournament action is scheduled July 19 with handicap play, veterans action for players over 35.

Benning Dogs Do Well At Jacksonville

Three dogs from the Fort Benning K-9 Club passed obedience trials at the recent Jacksonville Dog Fanciers Association's annual dog show at Jacksonville.

The event is held annually to judge the best dog for show and in conjunction with it, trials are held for dogs and masters. These trials include the dog coming, on command, in front of his master to await the command to heel again, standing for an examination by a stranger displaying neither shyness nor viciousness, and sitting and lying without a master present.

The Benning dogs passing the trials at the first show were "Gallant," A German Shepherd, owned by Sgt. Robert Donahue, First Student Brigade; "Bonnie," a collie, owned by Capt. Rolland Dessert, and "Pete," a German Shepherd, owned and trained by Lt. Richard Russ, of Casual Company, First Student Regiment.

The dogs were trained by the Fort Benning K-9 Club of Fort Benning. Memberships are open to owner of American Kennel Club registered dogs. Interested parties may call Lt. Russ, at FB 3132.

TEEN-AGER DRIVING SCHOOL GETS UNDER WAY

Teen-Agers Learn to Drive In Special Benning Course

Auto drivers school for high school teen-agers opened at Fort Benning Monday under the direction of Major E. M. Logan, Infantry Center motor officer.

Purpose of the school is to teach teen-agers to drive and "drive carefully," Major Logan said.

The school, fashioned after the regular military driver's school, will feature demonstrations, films, physical and mental aptitude tests and practical driving exercises.

Students will attend classes four hours each morning for two weeks. At the end of this period each driver who qualifies will receive a certificate of completion. Arrangements have been made with officials of the state of Georgia for each qualified driver, 16 years of age or over, to undergo the Georgia driver's test and receive his Georgia driver's license.

Sergeant Instructor

Sgt Rayford H. King, chief instructor, briefed the students at the opening session on Fort Benning traffic regulations. He placed heavy emphasis on making full stops at stop signs and railroad crossings.

During the remainder of the course the teen-agers will receive instruction on such items as recognition of road signs, required speeds on the highway, time and distance required to stop a vehicle under certain climatic conditions, mechanical functions of an automobile and entering and leaving a lane of traffic.

At the end of their classroom lectures and exercises the students will receive practical work behind the wheel of an Army sedan. During this period of instruction they will pay particular attention to methods of parking, adjusting brakes while parked on a hill, making turns and operating the vehicle in reverse.

If the school fulfills expectations, another class will begin immediately after the first one is completed," Major Logan said.

The first class graduates July 25.

One-Time Post Performers Together Again in Japan

Two former Fort Benning soldiers who performed in the "Follow Me" soldier show last year, are back together again in Japan entertaining servicemen.

They are Pfc. Dave Gordon and Cpl. Mickey Miller, who appeared in "Shoot Up A Rocket," at the Fourth of JULY celebration at Heiwa (Gehrig) Stadium in Yokohama, this year. The show was produced by Special Services of Camp Yokohama.

The dancer-actor comedian team was split up last summer when Private Gordon was sent to the Adjutant General school in Indiana and Cpl. Miller to the Tenth Special Service Company in Korea.

Arriving in the Far East in January of this year, Private Gordon was assigned to the Central Command Entertainment - Music Branch under whose auspices he has since performed in shows throughout the central Honshu area.

When Corporal Miller was reassigned to the Camp Yokohama Entertainment-Music Branch, the combo was reunited.

Two Researchers Investigate Fear Motivation At Benning

Research on the motivation of fear in the soldier is being studied at The Infantry Center by Dr. Eugene A. Cogan and Gerald Kantrowitz.

Both men are members of the Human Resources Research Organization in Washington, D.C. The organization is under contract to the Department of the Army.

Purpose of Dr. Cogan's and Mr. Kantrowitz's work here is to prepare a detailed plan of research on attrition in airborne and Infantry courses. Their study will include consideration of fear and training methods and motivation of fear.

Ultimate objective of this study is to find means of controlling fear, and methods of reducing attrition in The Infantry School training program.

By studying individuals, and considering the human factors involved in fear at weapons and/or equipment, the two scientists hope to find ways of helping the individual in making easier the adjustment to the Army from civilian life as well as developing methods to reduce fear in combat.

Civilian Payroll Unit Now Under Comptroller

With the addition of the Civilian Payroll unit on July 1, all Infantry Center accounting personnel are now under the control of the Fiscal Officer of the Comptroller's office, it was reported this week by Colonel Daniel H. Hundley, TIC Comptroller.

The Civilian Payroll unit, which is directed by Mrs. Mary E. Thames, has come under the control of the Comptroller as part of an operation designed to effect an intergrated system of accounting in the Army. Prior to July 1 the unit was under the control of the Civilian Personnel Division of AG.

In announcing this changeover, Colonel Hundley made it clear that there will be no reduction in personnel. The 11 payroll clerks, three control clerks and the bookkeeping machine operator will remain on their jobs.

This consolidation move is the result of a series of studies and tests that were made to determine the possibility of adapting an intergrated system of accounting at an installation level such as Fort Benning.

Comptroller officials expect this change to result in savings in manpower and equipment. They also feel the new system will avoid many paper work duplications.

Mrs. Margaret S. Overcash is assistant chief of the payroll unit, while Hubert V Napper operates the bookkeeping machine.

The control clerks are Charles C. Langdon, Mrs. Mary M. Myers and Mrs. Evelyn H. Teal.

The payroll clerks of the units are Mrs. Ethel C. Burton, Thomas B. Cartledge, Mrs. Julia B. Drews, Odean A. Fell, Mrs. Lula F. Kincaid Mrs. Mary C. Lane, Mrs. Evelyn R. Lewis, Mrs. Trudie T. McKinnon, Mrs. Fancena Phillips, Mrs. Inez B. Ussery and Mrs. Susie T. Weatherly.

Solons Approve Armed Forces Appropriation

(AFPS)—Congress has passed a military appropriations bill of $46,616,938,912 for the Armed Forces through the new fiscal year which began July 1.

The biggest single money measure bill of the present session provides:

1. All funds sought for building a 143-wing Air Force by mid-1955.

2. Authorization for the Navy to start work on a second 60,000-ton aircraft carrier.

3. A $45 monthly combat bonus for servicemen under fire in Korea, retroactive to the start of the Korean fighting.

4. A total of $12,239,500,000 for the Army; $12,842,459,642 for the Navy and $21,118,361,770 for the Air Force.

The allowance given to the Air Force was considered adequate for continuing the 143-wing program.

Air Wing

An air wing, the basic operational unit of the Air Force, contains from 15 heavy bombers to 75 fighters, plus supporting elements. The present strength of the Air Force is about 90 wings.

The Navy was authorized to build a second big carrier of the Forrestal class by agreeing to meet the first year's cost from funds allowed for other types of ship building.

The combat pay bonus of $45 a month is payable to officers and men attached to a military unit, ship or plane under enemy fire for as many as six days in any month.

Those wounded and the next of kin of those killed would be eligible for the bonus, regardless of the number of days under fire. Wounded men would be paid an additional $25 for each month they were hospitalized, up to three months. The bonds would not be in addition to incentive pay drawn by some servicemen, including officers, paratroopers and submarine men.

'Petticoat Fever' Termed Success By Audiences

BY PFC. MERWIN MELTZER

The Little Theater production of "Petticoat Fever" completed its two-performance run Friday night and was termed a success by the near-capacity crowds that saw the performances.

Mark Reed's "non-tropical farce" was the third play the Little Theater has staged during the current season.

The audiences were treated to an excellent performance by Lt. Charles E. Thomann in the feature role, that of Dascomb Dinsmore, the wireless operator whose love life had been non-existent for the two years before the arrival of his unexpected company. His portrayal was an outstanding feature of the production.

The fast pace that was set by Lieutenant Thomann was matched by the performance of Major Harold Sauer who played Sir James Fenton, member of Parliament, whose ideas and morals seemed to have stemmed from the Victorian era. The Major's performance was even more creditable when it is realized that in addition to preparing the Fenton role he directed the "Petticoat" production.

The distaff roles were handled quite capably by Nancy Carmody and Joyce Thomann in the roles of Ethel Hampton, Fenton's fiancee and Clara Wilson respectively. Mrs. Thomann was making her debut in the theater and deserves much credit for a very competent, professional performance. Nancy Carmody, no stranger to Little Theater audiences, was captivating as Ethel and her scenes with Maj. Sauer were among the most outstanding of the evening.

Lieutenant Thomas Lytle as Capt. John Landry and Lt. Harry Offutt as The Rev. Arthur Shaw-ham completely captivated the audiences during their brief but effective performances. Lt. William E. Simpson's portrayal of Dinamore's Echino man-in-waiting, Kimo also should be lauded.

Also in the cast were Charles Craig as Scotty; Hilda DeLumpa as Little Seal and Polly Childs portraying Snow Bird.

Ushereties for the two evenings were Mary Jo and Kay King, Sally DeLumpa, Evelyn Martin, Ann Williams and Joan Mudgett.

Death Has Taken No Holiday

Death took no holiday during the week end just past. As a result, the families of four Fort Benning soldiers received Sunday telegrams beginning with the words "The Secretary of the Army has asked me to express his deep regret."

It is indeed a matter for regret that the mangled bodies of four former residents of this community are now at or en route to the homes of bereaved wives or parents. In some cases the mourning relatives may be denied even the doubtful solace of a last look at the deceased, because the instrument of destruction in these cases left a tangled maze of flesh and bones which the morticians' skill could not refashion into human semblance.

The instrument of destruction which wrought such carnage last week end was no jet-propelled, push-button engine of terror designed to rend flesh, slash blood vessels and pulverize bones. These soldiers did not meet death on a shell-torn field of battle. No enemy agency had a hand in their destruction, nor were they the victims of cosmic forces lying outside their control.

The instrument of destruction which so casually and efficiently erased four names from the roll of the living was a gasoline engine mounted on a chassis with four wheels. No fiend from neither regions was helmsman on these cruises to oblivion. No, our former comrades were their own pilots. Theirs were the feet upon the accelerators, theirs the hands upon the steering wheels, theirs the eyes upon the giddily-spinning speedometer needles.

The people who keep the gruesome statistics on traffic fatalities will place four more marks in the column headed "accidental highway deaths." But what is accidental about a heavy foot on the accelerator?

We suggest that the statisticians add a new column to their tally sheet. We recommend that it be headed "involuntary suicide," and that it be reserved for recording the deaths of those who procure their own demise upon the gas pedals of their internal combustion instruments of self-destruction.

These four involuntary suicides need not have occurred. The exercise of reasonable prudence would have spared the lives of our four former neighbors. The lives they saved could have been their own.

The knife, the rope, the gun, the vial of poison and the gas over have earned a certain status as recognized agencies for suicide. The automobile's claim to priority in this field has not yet been established. This would appear to be an oversight, since we know of no more efficient instrument for wilful self-abolition.

Death took no holiay last week end. He found excellent hunting on Georgia highways, and willing collaborators among Fort Benning's population.

There will be other week ends in the future. We hope and trust that those Benningites endowed with the instinct for self-preservation will assist in dissolving this partnership with death.

Red Cross Helps All The Time

A soldier's need and the Army's understanding were brought together recently by the American Red Cross and the man's orphaned sister was made well in the process.

The soldier's sister was suffering from an extreme anxiet, bordering on a neurosis and he asked for leave to be near her.

His presence seemed to be the only relief his sister could find, after he returned from an emergency leave the Red Cross arranged, his sister's condition grew worse.

The serviceman was then advised that he should move to the area near his sister and the Red Cross arranged for this too. Only three weeks from the time the serviceman brought his problem to the Red Cross, he was reassigned to a post on the outskirts of the Texas town in which his sister lived. And last reports say that his sister has recovered from her illness.

Most of us think of the Red Cross only in times of disaster but they work daily to make the servicemen's life easier. It's the big emergencies that make the papers but the little ones are just as real to individuals.

Emergency leaves, money, and hundreds of other items are the Red Cross's daily chore and they do most ably, gratefully and often times, thankfully.

And even though you have no need to call on the Red Cross, it is a great investment to all service men and women.

You don't necessarily wish to cash in on an insurance policy but any soldier knows that it's the reserve that make the difference.

The Red Cross stands ready to help, no matter what your problem is. Don't abuse the privilege, but use it if you do need it. That's what it is for.

Christianity As a Personal Religion

By Chaplain (Capt.) A. L. Lewis

The earthly life of Jesus Christ was characterized by groups and crowds that eagerly followed him. Such one group was there that sat around him when he preached his sermon on the mount.

It was not a sermon as we would judge a sermon in our present day, but just an informal talk. The crowd was in the open air. He had no pulpit, in fact he just sat there with them, and seeing the multitude opened his mouth and taught them.

He spoke to the multitude, but those that were there listening to him were struck of one thing, he was addressing himself to them as individuals.

Many of those who heard him were there with nothing but curiousity, just to see for themselves this man from Nazareth, whose real occupation, they were informed, was that of a carpenter.

But it did not take long when they felt something within them. Each one had the same feeling; he was talking to them personally, privately, as if nothing else mattered but their own personal concern.

Of course the teachings of Jesus Christ fits into any group, society, or community of people. It finds expressions in varied forms as we find the varied needs of men. Charitians the world over have their local color transmuted into the greatness which is Christianity. Christianity is the fulfilment of the highest and best that humanity can offer.

That accounts for the existence of what we now know as sects or denominations with their different rituals and ceremonies, which all in all is the faith which is Jesus Christ's.

But society, or groups, or even a multitude are composed of individuals. To meet the need of society is to meet the need of the individuals that compose the same. For after all, society is just as good or as bad as the individuals that compose it.

We are also told that a chain is not stronger than it's weakest link. To know the worth of the individual person and to enable him to take his place as a worthy member of his group is the very task of the Christian faith.

It is not the survival of the fittest, but revival of the unfit wherein lay the whole mission of the Christian religion. Jesus with the lost and the sinners. The story of the "Lost Sheep" and the "Prodical Son" are vivid portrayals of his eternal concern with the individual.

Our modern world with all the conveniences and contrivances to improve our environment has done little if any for our society. Brigandage and banditry afflicts our modern cities. The leopard's spots and habits in any city zoo are the same spots and habits we find in the jungles of Africa.

An old woman discovered that no matter how often she changed her religion, and religious affiliations, there was still that emptiness within. Only after she accepted Jesus as her personal Savior did she feel the inner peace.

Goodness, cleanliness, and all the everlasting virtues are of the heart. They are not commodities from without. Those of us in the service of the armed forces talk a lot of morale and how we can boster the same among our troops.

Our ready answers are recreational facilities, etc. all along the line. We can have all these, but still we have no assurance that the desired morale can be an accomplished fact. It will take more, a lot more than all these. Let a man realize his worth.

Let him feel that he counts. Assure him that he is trusted. Impress on him that so much depends on him and his behavior, that the team cannot function without him doing his share, yes the sense of individual responsibility, yes the sense that he has a part and share in the whole; waken that dormant but very responsive inner quality that is in every creature; challenge that flame within every man that is willing to espouse a cause and we will have a going, working, and winning organization.

New Move Made to End 45-Day Steel Strike

The government has stepped into the 45-day steel strike in an effort to get the dispute settled. Negotiations have come to a halt between the union and steel companies after the unions latest proposals were turned down.

The strike which has halted all steel production in the country is seriously hampering the defense effort. Over 500,000 workers have been made idle in the industries that are allied with steel. Hardest hit have been the automotive, coal, rail and water transportation industires.

Closing of the iron ore mine as a sympathy move seriously threatens steel production next winter long after the strike is settled, for unless the companies can build up ore stockpiles during the summer months when the great lakes are ice free, production will come to a stand still again during the winter.

Over 350,000 are needed to aid in the protection of areas which are low in the radar scope. The blind spots exist in those areas which are low on the horizon and in the shelter of hills and mountains.

On The Bookshelf

BLOOD, OIL AND SAND by Ray Brock. The World Publishing Company.

Based on 15 years of personal experiences and observation as a correspondent in the mid-eastern countries, the book is rich with the feeling and sound of the countries themselves.

It is a dynamic story that makes no bones about corruption-ridden governments or Communist infiltration of Colonial policies and international unrest. It is a hard-hitting up-to-the minute book about the hottest place in the world today—the middle East.

In a fast moving, well written narrative that pulls no punches, Brock tells the truth about the rapidly developing crises in Egypt, Tunisia and Iran. He warns that the seeds of World War III are sprouting in the turbulent mid east. In no uncertain terms he tells you why and how the mid-east is a crisis ridden.

The book is top-notch reporting and analysis in which a spade is a spade and the author spares no one in telling the brutal truth.

John Jennings is at his storytelling best in this fast-moving action-packed novel about a doughty band of Scottish pioneers who braved a perilous ocean voyage to find a new homeland in what is now the province of Manitoba.

The Strange Brigade is also the love story of young Malcolm MacAllister, an ingenuous schoolmaster, James, the hero-villain, Sarah, a young Jew[illegible]

508th Men Leave For Desert Test

BY PFC. LARRY BEAM

Forty three enlisted men and two officers from the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team left Tuesday for Yuma, Ariz., where they will participate in a series of desert warfare tests on various types of Army issued equipment.

In charge of the group is 1st Lt. William S. Gilliland of Company A of the 508th. Lieutenant Gilliland will accompany the platoon through its training in the Arizona desert, actin gas platoon leader. He will be assisted by 2nd Lt. Frank R. Kleschen of Battery A of the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion.

Purpose of the trip to Arizona is to test and determine the effectiveness and durability of various types of Army clothing and equipment, normally utilized by a combat platoon of Infantrymen. The tests are being conducted under the supervision of Army Field Forces Board No. 3 in conjunction with the U. S. Army Quartermaster Corps.

Among the new pieces of equipment issued are new type boots, fatiques, summer weight uniforms, the new type helmet and liner, and other types of headgear.

During the past weeks since the selection of the officers and men, all non-commissioned officers, the group has been undergoing an intensive course of instruction on the types of equipment they will use and what the testing authority hopes to accomplish. While in the Arizona desert, where temperatures of 120 degrees are not uncommon, the platoon of paratroopers will undergo conditions closely simulating those found in actual desert warfare.

First Days

In the first days of the tests, says Lieutenant Gilliland, the group will be thoroughly "climatized" to get them used to the extremely variable conditions of the desert. They will begin by being out in the sun for only 10 minutes the first day, 15 the next, and lengthening the time each day until the men will be able to withstand the temperatures.

"It is surprising," says Lieutenant Gilliland, "But one of the big dangers of the time spent in the desert is in the men catching cold. It seems that it can be extremely cold at night and under conditions like that, it is easy to catch cold.

Another of the dangers of the trip, it seems, are the types of snakes and reptiles found in the locality where the tests will be run. Two of the 508th medics will accompany the group and both men, Cpls. Charles Williams and Arthur Anderson have been well versed in the dangers and treatments of snake bites.

One of the most interesting features of the equipment being tested are a new type boot, designed for wear in the heat of the desert and to keep the wearers feet from perspiring. A new type field jacket is to be tested as in a new and different sleeping bag.

Standard Equipment

The men will take with them the standard type equipment developed by Lt. Col. Herbert V. Mansfield during his command of the second battalion of the 508th. The new light combat pack gained note throughout the army last winter when the Field Forces Board No. 3 was conducting tests to lighten the individual soldiers combat load.

It is expected that the individual soldiers will carry the light pack of poncho, pistol belt, suspenders, canteen and canteen cup and the Quartermaster corps will give the equipment serious consideration.

On completion of the tests in Arizona, the group will return to the 508th at Fort Benning.

TEST UNIT . . . Members of the 508th ARCT going to Arizona to participate in tests on new types clothing and equipment for Army Field Forces are: from Co "A," Lt. W. S. Gilliland, Sgt. W. M. EIGHT INCH HOWITZER SOUNDS ROARING WELCOME
Weapon Is Fired For The First Time At Infantry Center

First 8-Inch Howitzer Fired Here Last Week

An eight-inch howitzer, the largest weapon ever fired at Fort Benning, was discharged for the first time last week.

The weapon was part of the artillery used in a demonstration of the Infantry School's "Types of Artillery Fire" problem last Saturday.

The problem employs 105 and 155 millimeter howitzers, twin 40's, two 40 millimeter multipurpose guns firing simultaneously, and quad 50's, four 50 calibre machine guns fired in unison from a single mount by one gunner, as well as the mammouth eight-inch howitzer.

The howitzer used in the demonstration is the only one of its type at Fort Benning. Before its use Saturday, the gun used in the demonstration had only been fired 10 times. Six times at the proving grounds after it came off the assembly line and twice here in test runs both Thursday and Friday of last week.

The Korea combat crew from "C" Battery of the 41st Field Artillery Combat Training Command, commanded by First Lt. Melvar Crandine, was a bit nervous the first time it fired the huge gun, their previous experience limited to nothing bigger than the 155 millimeter guns and howitzers.

However, the ease of its operation and the minute recoil and vibration of the eight inches erased doubts and worries.

Chief of Section of the large weapon is M-Sgt. Herbert Sosbee. Others in the crew which fired the gun Saturday include Pfc. Richard Ronca, Sgt Sam McWhirter Sgt. Jesse Brannan, the "comedian" in the outfit, Pfc. Robert Wells, Pvt. Mack Lett, Cpl. Robert Rollison and Cpl. Walter Morris.

3rd Army Chief Visits Benning

Third Army Commander, Maj. Gen. William Belderlinden, was at Fort Benning last Tuesday to inspect both the Infantry and medical and dental ROTC summer camps.

After conferring with Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, Gen. Belderlinden visited the Infantry ROTC camp at Sand Hill. He inspected several companies and watched cadets firing on ranges.

The Third Army commander also visited the First Officer Candidate Regiment before inspecting the medical and dental ROTC summer camp and the 358th General Hospital (Reserve) of Atlanta, Ga., at the U. S. Army Hospital here.

All Services May Get Atomic Arm

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—A complete family of atomic weapons for use "not only by strategic bombers but by ground support aircraft, armies and navies," was declared a definite possibility recently by Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Chairman Dean told a House appropriations subcommittee that "recent revolutionary developments" in the field of atomic weapons has "radically revised" the entire concept of atomic warfare.

"No longer," Chairman Dean said, "are these weapons looked upon only as devices to be used in a "Hiroshima-type" way against cities and industrial areas. The Department of Defense is very much aware of this change in concept and atomic weapons are being incorporated into operational plans of all three Armed Forces."

At the same time other testimony by top Army officials revealed that the Army has developed a 90 -mm self-propelled anti-tank gun to improve the striking power of airborne units, and a fire control device for use in directing fire of 90-mm and 120-mm antiaircraft guided missiles.

Primary objective of the two-week training period is to acquaint Reservists with the latest developments and techniques adopted by the Quartermaster Corps.

Ill Health Failed To Down Benning Civilian Worker

BY MAY PIGOTT

Tomorrow will be a momentous day for Grace King, civilian employe in Signal Supply section, for it marks the end of her first year as a career woman.

Normally, working for a year is not unusual, but in her case, it is most unusual because for nine and one-half years of her life she was bedridden and for 10 years a semi-invalid.

In May, Miss King, a native of Phenix City, Ala., was picked as the Case of the Year in Vocational Rehabilitation work. She gives due credit and gratitude to Frank Jenkins, counselor in charge of her case, for his work and guidance which helped her overcome her handicap.

"Now that I am well and once again in the outside world, I'm looking forward to the future with faith, enthusiasms and anticipation —the beginning of a new adventure," said Grace.

Sickness

Grace King was just 16-years-old when she was stricken with tuberculosis. She was forced to drop out of school and for the nine and one-half years following was bedridden.

"Even after the disease was arrested, her troubles were just beginning. As a result of the disease, her lung was completely destroyed and the right lung expanded, pushing her heart out of place.

She entered Emory University for a series of three operations to correct the heart condition. During the course of the operations, eight ribs were removed from the left side and the heart moved back into place.

MISS GRACE KING

Her long hard pull back to health began after the operations. For six months, she wore a thorocoplasty brace and lay on 10 pound sand bags for three hours a day to help assure an erect carriage.

She began by sitting up a few minutes each day, then adding minutes until she was able to be up part of every day.

Not Inactive

During all her shut-in years, Miss King was far from inactive. She was the first secretary and outstanding leader of the Columbus-Phenix City Shut In club. She made scrap books and sent to other shut-ins.

Not a person to be idle, she made spending money by doing odd jobs such as advertising for local business firms, monitoring for radio stations, addressing cards and envelopes.

She still found time to spare so she did crocheting, embroidering, piecing quilt tops, reading, writing letters and stamp collecting. One of her greatest thrills was winning a radio in a contest.

After Miss King was able to leave her home and move about she took a business course. Today she holds down a full time job.

She feels that as a result of her years as a shut-in she has a deeper appreciation of things in general. "It gave me a broader view of life and it was a great experience," she said.

Mrs. Mary B. Joiner, chief of Stock Record section, said, "Grace King is a most unusual person. Being around her, you would never know she had ever been bedridden. She is one of the most conscientious workers I have ever seen, and carries her load of the work.

Civilian Wins Service Award

A Fort Benning worker, Herbert Hutton, has been awarded a Department of the Army certificate for meritorious civilian service.

Mr. Hutton is a maintenance and supervising engineer here.

The presentation was made by Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander.

The commendation reads in part:

"Mr. Hutton's unusual and distinctive accomplishments in the engineering field, his knowledge, skill, dependability and prodigious capacity for highly technical work under severe deadlines have been largely responsible for the accomplishment of the augmented mission of this post.

"His standards of production, initiative and resourcefulness were an inspiration to all officers and civilians with whom he has associated."

Mr. Hutton came to Fort Benning in September, 1945. He and Mrs. Hutton live at 91 Munson Drive, Columbus.

30th Infantry Master Sergeant Praised By Secretary of Army

A 30th Infantry Regiment master sergeant has received a letter of appreciation from Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., for his work in organizing and training the regiment's drill team.

He is M-Sgt. Charles L. Ingram, Company I. The sergeant has been in the Army since 1941 and as a member of the 24th Infantry Division was among the first to fight in the Korean Conflict.

Sergeant Ingram was wounded twice and captured once but was able to escape. For his action he has received the Bronze Star, Purple Heart with cluster and the Combat Infantry Badge.

105th Named Top In Inspections

The 105th company, commanded by Capt. George W. Schwant, was again the top unit in the competitive inspections held in the First Battalion of the Second Student Regiment last Saturday.

The 105th was named outstanding in Supply, barracks and orderly room competition.

SING A LITTLE SONG — Helen O'Connell with Harold Mooney's orchestra, Pert Helen O'Connell comes out with a cute, bouncy novelty from the Paramount production of "Just For You." The novelty has lilting lyrics, well suited to the O'Connell pipes, and make it one of her best to date.

"Body And Soul" is flip-side, and marks Helen's debut into the "Big" dramatic ranks and is now proving to be quite popular. (Capitol) the same as set by previous bills.

The Ready Reserve may be called to active duty during an emergency declared by the President, but it would be up to Congress to determine the number of men to be called.

The Bill also prohibits the President from extending enlistments in an emergency without special legislation. The Standby Reserve could be called only in time of war or national emergency declared by Congress.

Also stipulated in the Bill is the "sense of Congress" to recall those men who suffered the least hardship during their previous service. This particularly refers to Korean combat veterans who would only be available when others who had sacrificed less were already called.

The Infantry ROTC cadets here for the six-week summer camp have entered the final phase of their training. Graduation date is set for Aug. 1 at which time most of the cadets will be commissioned second lieutenants of Infantry Reserve. Some will be granted Regular Army commissions as Distinguished Military Graduates.

Almost 2,500 students from 70 colleges are attending the summer training which is designed to produce combat leaders. Although most of the instruction is the responsibility of ROTC camp officials, The Infantry School here is presenting demonstrations of the latest Infantry doctrine.

Purpose of the encampment is to supplement with practical exercises the theory of military science and tactics the cadet have learned in the classrooms.

Pay

fire support to battalions, and forward observers working with units of battalion size and smaller.

Combat engineer outfits which see combat duty may qualify. But all units must come under hostile fire to qualify.

Under the terms of the new bill, the Secretary of the Army will define which units that have seen action in Korea are combat units. He will issue general regulations which will be interpreted in the field, probably by FECOM.

Plans for payment back to July 1950 will not be complete for some time. They must wait on the draft of regulations which is now in the works.

There are four categories, however, to be considered.

The first group includes those now in combat. They will get their pay most quickly, though they will have to wait on regulations.

Second in the categories, includes those who have been in combat in Korea and who are still serving in the same enlistment in which they fought in Korea. Payment to this group will be nearly automatic, officials say.

Third

Third on the list is made up of those men who are serving in a different enlistment in which they did their fighting in Korea.

And the fourth group includes those Korean veterans who are now civilians.

Records of those in the third and fourth category will have to be checked to verify their claims. Exact plans for this have not yet been fully worked out.

Army thinking is, however, that the people in the last two categories will fill out standard forms after they have been approved. If this plan is approved, the forms will be distributed through both Army and civilian channels.

Army spokesmen emphasize that for the time being, requests for information, letters, and claims will only slow down the effort to get regulations completed. Until things are completely set up, they ask that those who think they are eligible, be patient.

LOW DOWN TRICK . . . Eager-beaver John Mouser, of ASU Provisional Group, crawls half way from third base to score while straining Infantry School Detachment pitcher Joe Feinstein waits in vain for the ball. Weird play got under way when Feinstein made a wild pitch with Mouser on third base after a big triple to center. John started home on the errant pitch, but fell on his face halfway in. Game to the end, he rat-raced across on all fours before catcher Bill Gill recovered the apple. Note dust cloud he kicked up. P.S. It didn't help as ISD won the verdict, 12-4, to send series into a third game.

Profs Tally, 6-3, to End ASU Surge

By CHARLIE JOHNSON

Infantry School Detachment powered its way into the Fort Benning League championship finals by eliminating ASU Provisional Group, 6-3, Tuesday night before 1,000 fans at Gowdy Field.

First Student Regiment, newly crowned Georgia State Semi-pro champions, met Combat Training Command last night in the rubber game to determine the other finalist.

Pinch-hitter Jim Howard, a five-foot, four-inch sub who winds up at the plate like a cork screw, belted a two-run triple in the last of the seventh to break a 3-3 tie Tuesday and gave ISD its margin.

Mel Southall singled to center to score Howard and certify defeat for right hander Carroll Mattson who had struck out 15 men in a heady mound duel with Bob Cronin.

The payoff inning was started by Manager Woody Burt with a single through second after one away. Tom Smith was safe on Fort Settles error, and Burt went to third. Then Howard was sent in for Emil Rukavina who had whiffed three times previously.

ISD's other three runs all came in the first inning and on another triple, this one delivered by Ray Blankenship after Bill Gill and Burt had walked and Smith bunted safely.

In between the three-run outburst, Mattson was sensational. Cronin worked excellently, too, after being tapped for two first-inning runs on walks by Settles and Hank Coleman and a single by Hahn. They tied up in the fourth on a triple by Don Harper and single by Settles.

First S. R. Cops Ga. Crown; Bids For National Go

BY JERRY GARFIELD

Sandwiching their First Benning League action in between, First Student Regiment is readying for the Southeastern Regional semi-pro tournament late this month in Andalusia, Ala., after winning the Georgia State crown with four solid victories.

A victory in the Regionals could send the Black Shirts to the National Semi-pro tournament in Wichita, Kans. An all-post Benning squad went to the quarter-finals of that event in 1949.

Proving their total mastery over nine other teams, the First S.R. had five of its men named to the 1952 All-Georgia Semi-pro squad.

They were Manager Bob Kinard, second base, Lloyd Brill and Dick Myers, pitchers, Carl Sheppard, right field, and Joe Smith, center field.

To win the championship, the First won four consecutive games. They entered the finals as the only undefeated team.

In the first game, they defeated Macon Kraft, favored to take the tournament, 4-2, in a seven-hitter pitched by Lloyd Brill.

Brigade-PMG, ISD-ASU Merger For Grid Season

Infantry School Detachment and ASU Provisional Group, and First Student Brigade and Provisional Medical Group, combined sports manpower forces Monday in a surprise action designed to give Fort Benning two more football powerhouses this fall.

Combat Training Command and 555th Airborne are already set for the renewal of the now-famed Fort Benning Football League Sept. 28 at Doughboy Stadium.

The re-alignment of teams was decided by the Special Services Council Monday when it became known that Lawson Army Air Field will not be able to enter this year's gridiron action.

Coaching Change

One of the most significant facts of the switch is that Maj. Jack Tatum, most successful coach Benning football combination has ever had, will be switching part of his allegiance—and that of some pretty good pigskin toters.

The brutal Rams were a First Student Brigade-ISD combo. ASU, which tried the lone wolf role last fall and got left in the dust, should be much bolstered for this season with ISD as a running mate.

Tatum, the only 1951 head coach still here.

The Medics also were second division in 1951. With the big Brigade on their side, what should be a happier story, too.

Small But Strong

The net result—on paper anyway—is four seven-stephen clubs for 1952 instead of last year's "four good, two bad" set up. Monday's Council action is subject to approval of the commanding generals of the installations which can be forwarded through The Bayonet sports department.

Meantime, Maj. Gene Myers, TIC sports officer, revealed that equipment for the teams has been ordered.

"We drew 186,000 fans last year, but it might have been many more if we had gotten started earlier on equipment and practice and had the teams in peak condition on opening day," Myers noted. "The units should be able to start work any time after Aug. 1, which means we'll be ready for opening day."

Sunday Games

A double round robin schedule, with games each Sunday and on special holidays, is being considered by Special Services.

Besides the other problem. What are you going to name the new combination clubs—ISD-ASU and Student Brigade-PMG? Their respective commanding officers are politicking for all possibilities, which can be forwarded through The Bayonet sports department.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

ANYONE WHO STILL doesn't think Benning baseball is up to a high standard after the evidence presented in the past two weeks can go to the foot of the class along with those mudniks who think the UN's Society for the Advancement of Backward Races is a lobby for a new Olympic track event.

In that time, First Student Regiment, which wasn't even Benning's best team judging by the standings, hied off to Macon on their own initiative and outdid nine other squads for the Georgia State Semi-pro baseball championship. Their victims included a tough service crew from Warner Robins Field.

Having proved themselves better than any semi-pro club in the Peach State, Kinard's krafty krew moved back "down" to Benning competition. Someone had thrown away the script, however, and the First was pasted by Combat Training Command Saturday. It took a desperation ninth inning rally Monday night off CTC reliefer Stan Edwards to save First SR from being eliminated entirely from the post's championship series.

All of that, in my well-thumbed little black book, makes Benning baseball look pretty hot shot when offered for comparison with anything in surrounding areas. Not that a clincher for my argument is needed, alas, but nofe well that Jim Shirley, who was used in outfield spots and did some pitching for the First until his discharge last month, is now playing with Binghampton, N. Y., in the class A. Eastern League.

WE HAVE an 18-karat sports fan in Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, new Infantry Center commander. His current athletic passion is golf for which he exhibits an even temperament and scores in the mid-eighties. Mrs. Young dutifully tried to follow him on the links, but laments that there was one continuing fault with her game—"I couldn't hit the ball."

Baseball wise, General Young is a long-time rooter for the Washington Senators, and more recently he has become completely sold on the post's Little League play. He would like to see that junior diamond program carried on.

He also goes for football and boxing. He played the former with the University of Maryland, as an end. Mrs. Young shares his fondness for boxing. The general isn't much for hunting and fishing, but he's enthusiastic about competitive shooting and you can look for some reflection of this in stepped up marksmanship activities for all post personnel.

PROFESSIONAL BOXING, one of Benning's most popular Sports in the 30's, has been revived to the talking stage at Special Services . . . Bob Morrow, skipper of the Second S. R. baseball team and one of the post's most popular sports figures, has been promoted to first lieutenant . . . Former Georgia Tech ace, Lt. Tom Coleman, who sparked Special Troops to the post grid title last season, is father of a six-pound, seven-ounce future tackle.

NEWEST ADDITION to Benning's ranks of stellar gofers is Cpl. Eli Barlieau, of Company A, ISD, who won the California State Amateur tourney in 1948 . . . Lt Col, Sidney Marks, c. o. of Second O. C. Battalion, was Oklahoma A & M's 126-pound wrestling champion in 1942 . . . Boston U.'s All-American tackle, Lt. Dave Barrett, now with PMG, is on overseas orders for August.

Units Rush For Boxing Card Aug. 1

Major units on post were scrambling to re-assemble their 1952 boxing teams with the post's ring warfare scheduled to be revived with a big outdoor card Friday, Aug. 1.

The bouts will be held either at Gowdy Field or Doughboy Stadium, with present Special Services' thinking placing emphasis on the former because football will be taking over soon at the Stadium.

Three Teams

With the rush, complete details weren't available, but it is known that ASU Provisional Group, Combat Training Command and First Student Regiment expect to start off with strong teams.

WOJG Jerry Perlman, who coached this year's Third Army ring team in the All-Army tournament, will be back at the helm of First S. R. Chaplain Alexander Lewis will skipper CTC.

ASU has listed a 20-man roster while CTC has 16 men in training. The post boxing board will meet July 28 to match fighters for the first card.

U. S. Wins World Shooting Title

The U. S. International rifle team including three Fort Benning trained Army competitors — got two individual titles and one team crown last week in the World Shooting Championships at Oslo, Norway.

The U. S. squad set a record in taking the team title with 2304 points. Although details were sketchy, A. C. Jackson, of New York, won the smallbore title and Harry Reeves, of Detroit, won the centerfire pistol competition.

423rd First In ASU Loop

The 1952 season closed down in the Area Service Unit Provisional Groups of softball league last week with the 423rd Construction Engineer Battalion coming out as winners.

The league, divided into two division, the Red and Blue, saw First Special Troops Battalion as the stellar performers in the Red league. The lost out in the playoffs and the 423d played Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment two, 3440th, winning two of the three games to cop the championship.

Awards were presented by Col. Courtlandt Krams, commanding officer.

Recipients were Pfc. Angelo Kardenos, Pfc. Paul Tayko, Sgt. Julius Galogh, Pfc. Ray Todd, Pfc. Gerome Smith, of Headquarters Company; Sgt. George Semen, Cpl. Harry Long and Cpl. Joseph Churinskas, of Company A, and Pfc. Joseph Bartine, Cpls. Frank Albertson, Andrew Masiak, Albert Stellato and Daniel Carduff, of Company C.

Commanders Reach Semis

The Commanders, Fort Benning Little League baseball champions, went to the semi-finals before being ousted from the Greater Columbus Little League championship tournament this week at Golden Park.

The post squad, managed by Lt. Col. J. C. Brink, defeated the Foxes, of the Peach League, 4-3, Saturday, and then lost to the Spinners, American League champs, 9-2, Sunday.

Fussell Delivers

Preston Fussell scored Peter Greer and Rinnie Hutcheson with a single to right in the last inning to give the Commanders their win over the Foxes.

Bob Goul led off the big inning with a single to center and advanced on Greer's safety to right. A walk to Hutcheson loaded the sacks and Goul scored on an infield out.

Hutcheson Wins

That's when Fussell came through with the game winning knock.

Hutcheson was the winning hurler with 12 strikeouts to his credit.

Reliefer Mickey Cermack, for the Spinners, proved too tough for the Benning batters to solve in the semi-finals. He also hit a home run and struck out the side in the last inning.

Raiders End 3rd On CTC Win, 4-1

ASU Provisional Group had the satisfaction of finishing in third spot in the regular season play of the Fort Benning League, a feat they accomplished by beating Combat Training Command, 4-1, last Wednesday before 850 enthused fans.

The Raiders definitely looked impressive. It was their fourth straight and they behaved like a winning combination.

DEAD ON BASE

Not so for the Commanders who suffered their old trouble of not producing in the clutches. Bobby Clark's crew left ten runners stranded, including three in the first inning.

Homer Clyde Britton, something of a right handed version of ISD's miniature Joe Feinstein, seemed tired throughout, but he stuck in there gamely.

MISSED CHANCE

Britton put the first batter on in five of the eight frames he worked, but the Commanders couldn't quite make it to the cashier's window until the eighth.

Willie Sayers led the winners with 3-for-3, which included a homer by Bobby (Old Reliable) Dews with ASU's first tally in the second frame. Wild pitches by loser John Freeman figured in two ASU's runs.

STAR CATCHER

What the boxscore doesn't show, however, was the effectiveness of Raider catcher Don Harper, a freshman backstop who has received all his schooling from Dews.

Darin' Don picked off one unwary runner and cut down two others with room to spare on attempted steals.

Phillips Hurls 2nd To Softball Win

The Second Student Regiment softball team, managed by 2nd Lt. Linton Jordan, opened its 1952 play in TIC competition by rolling over Combat Training Command, 10-2, last week.

Bill (Foggy) Phillips went all the way on the hill for the winners. Phillips was the pitching mainstay of the 122nd Company, Champions of the inter-regimental league in the Second SR.

Additional 9-Holes Open At Benning CC Sept. 27

Cleverly architected, additional nine holes — making a total of 27 — to the famed Fort Benning Country Club links will be opened with appropriate ceremonies Sept. 27.

Greens on the new section could be played now, but the fairways need more work and time for full development, according to Lester Lawrence, veteran groundskeeper.

HOLE-IN-ONE

The addition is expected to stagger the tremendous playing load on the course which presently accommodates as many as 700 golfers on a week end.

In playing action last week, Lt. Warren Osborne won the week end blind bogey while 16-year old Bill Duncan fired an ace on the par three, 141-yard four hole.

Playing together, Lt. Art Rafferty and Maj. William Sullivan came up with one for the book when book fired eagle two's on the sixteenth hole.

508th Wins 2nd Post Swim Title

BY LARRY BEAM

The 508th Airborne RCT capped first place in seven of 11 events to sweep handily to its second consecutive Fort Benning swimming championship last Thursday and Friday at Sand Hill pool.

The Red Devil paddlers splashed their way to a convincing 51 points, followed by Combat Training Command with 30 points and First Officer Candidate Regiment with 18. A.S.U. Provisional Group scored 12 points.

James Moore, individual high scoring champion of the 1951 TIC meet, continued in his winning ways as he gathered in two first and anchored the 508th's winning team in the medley relay.

Moore bettered his own winning team of the 1951 meet in the 150-yard individual medley as he lapped the field and finished with a fast 1:54.

With ten minutes rest, the smooth stroking Moore came back to win the grueling 400-yard free style in the good time of 5:25.2.

Vincent Emanuel, of ASU, scored a dual win as he took the 50-yard free style and the 100-yard free style. Emanuel powered his way to a new TIC time of :25.1 for the 50-yard event and came back to win the 100-yard free style in 1:02.

Henry Casalet, from First O. C. Regiment, snatched the diving honors with his smooth diving form from the low and high boards, scoring 125 and 114 points respectively in each event.

The 508th relay combination of Norman Lamothe, Robert Nagy, and Moore won the 300-yard medley relay in the record time of 3:29.2 well ahead of the CTC team which was in second place at the finish.

Lamothe and Nagy both won their individual events also. Lamothe taking the 100 yard back stroke and Nagy the 100 yard breast stroke.

Four-Week Work Simplification Course Begins

A Work Simplification course to last four weeks, has begun for Infantry Center installations as part of Fort Benning's Management Improvement Program, Col. Daniel Hundley, Infantry Center Comptroller, has announced.

The 12-hour course, which will be implemented by two-hour individual conferences, will instruct unit personnel supervisors in work simplification procedures and their application to each department and unit.

A certificate of merit will be awarded to supervisory personnel completing the course when they have demonstrated the applica-

Car Registration Laxness Revealed

A laxness on the part of both civilians and military personnel at Fort Benning to register and have their vehicles reregistered on time, has been revealed in a survey conducted by the Provost Marshal's office.

Check points at various locations on the post were set up to see that motor vehicle owners adhere to articles two and six of the Post traffic Regulations.

Article two of the regulations states that each motor vehicle, except motorcycles, will be registered within three (3) working days after it is initially brought onto the reservation. Motorcycles and motor scooters will be registered immediately upon entering the reservation.

Article six deals with the notification of changes concerning registed vehicles. According to Paragraph A of article six, all changes concerning registered vehicles will be reported to the Provost Marshal within seventy-two (72) hours.

These changes will include insurance renewal, changes of color, motor numbers, state tag number, or disposal of the vehicle.

Benning May Now Determine Grade Of NG, Reserve EM

Fort Benning is now able to authorize final grade determination for enlisted reserves and national guardsmen reenlisting in the Regular Army, according to a new Army regulation.

Formerly the Recruiting Office here had to send each case to Third Army Headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., for action.

The Recruiting Office said the new regulation, SR 615-105-1, would expedite handling of reenlistments of men in these two categories.

RENOVATION . . . Companies G & E of the Airborne Battalion are the first to have their faces lifted in a renovation program now in progress in the Airborne area. The companys' barracks on Belko street which previously had plywood panel sides, are being waterproofed and covered with new clapboard siding. This, together with the recently poured composition oxychloride floors, makes the troop housing facilities for Airborne students among the best to be found anywhere on the Post.

Two Musicals Set For Mid-August

The second week of August will be show week for Fort Benning. Special Services has arranged two big musical features for presentation during that week.

On Aug. 8, a group of stars from the Grand Ole Opry show of Nashville, Tenn., will give an evening performance starting at eight at Gowdy Field.

The next day Charlie Barnet and his orchestra, featuring vocalist, Betty Bennett, will be at Theater No. 1 (Main Post Theater) for one appearance which begins at 7 p.m.

Heading the Grand Ole Opry cast will be Martha Carson and Hank Thompson. Miss Carson specializes in sacred and spiritual songs.

(See MUSICALS, Page 9)

300 Give Blood To Top Quota

With 300 men scheduled to contribute tomorrow, Fort Benning weekly blood donor quota of 240 pints will be reached in a single day.

The 274 pints donated last week topped the weekly quota by 34 pints and pushed the month's total to 584 pints.

Last week's donations were headed by the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team with 101 pints. Members of the 1st Student Brigade gave 68 pints and the Combat Training Command and ASU Provisional Group donated 38 and 36 pints respectively.

The quota for July has been set at 1104 pints.

TALENT NEEDED

Talent of all kinds is needed for the Soldier Show Section's forthcoming production "Heat Wave," scheduled for the end of August. Capt. E. G. Picken, Soldier Show Officer, says dancers, singers, comedians, or any other performers are in demand. Captain Picken can be contacted at Fort Benning—3225.

Infantry Blue Step-Up Set

BY PFC. MERWIN MELTZER

Infantry Blue, that light shade of blue which identifies to the world America's fighting Infantry, will be seen more often after the first of September.

Scarves, cap and collar insignia, piping and braid of the color have been authorized to the man called "Queen of Battle" by a new Department of Army regulation.

The blue of Infantry dates back to Revolutionary times. When America's war for Independence began, man of the Continental Army were clothed in a motley variety of military and civilian raiment. It was next to impossible to determine the rank or branch of a Continental Army man by looking at his garb.

In an effort to solve this problem, General Washington issued an order that men in the Continental Army would henceforth wear colored cockades to indicate their rank and organization. The Commander-in-Chief himself was authorized the use of a light blue ribbon to be worn across the chest.

First Uniform

The first uniform authorized for the American soldier was ordered by the Continental Congress in 1776. It was to consist of a three cornered felt hat, buff colored breeches and a coat of light blue.

Due to lack of funds and shortage of materials, however, the authorized uniform was actually made available to only a few organizations. The only units to be fully equipped with them were General Washington's own bodyguard, the First and Second New York and First and Second New Jersey Infantry Regiments.

A few years later when General Lafayette organized an American Infantry corps, he selected a shade of light blue as the unit's color. His choice was subsequently given official approval, and the use of the light blue to distinguish the Infantry corps was for the first time given recognition and sanction.

After the war for independence, an idea arose within the Army to give each branch a distinguishing color. The color white was assigned to the Infantry. In 1901 white was dropped in favor of Infantry blue, but it reappeared in 1926 as the infantry's exclusive chevron.

In 1947 sleeve chevrons were first

Re-Up Increase Shown This Month

Reenlistments for permanent party personnel at Fort Benning has been increased nearly 40 per cent for the first 10 days in July, official report.

The re-ups for this period jumped to an average of 45 an each week as against an average of 32 per week for April, May, and June, reports.

Million Dollar Work Begun

Modernization of Mess Halls Is Largest Single Project

Contracts have been let for a modernization and reconstruction program here at the Infantry Center to cost ove rthree and a half million dollars.

The largest project will be the modernization of mess facilities throughout the post. Present plans call for the installation of modern electrical dishwashers, mixers, and toastmasters before March 1953.

In addition a new type of serving counter especially designed by the Quartermaster General's office, partitions to separate kitchen and dining room and a new type disposal unit will be provided. Some $452,000 is earmarked for this project alone.

New tile will be installed in the three quartels that serve as barracks on the Main Post. According to Col. Richard Ebbs, Post Engineer this will cost a quarter of a million dollars.

In addition modern ventilation will be put into 39 classrooms and new bulletin boards will be erected in the First Officer Candidate Regiment area.

Floors Replaced

Wooden floors in three quartermaster warehouses will be replaced by concrete at a cost of almost $55,000. Work on this phase is scheduled for completion by this Septemenr.

The Signal Field Maintenance Shop will be overhauled before mid-October at a cost of some twenty-four thousand dollars.

New floors and loading platforms, plus general repairs and improvements will be made at the cold storage and central meat cutting plants. Work will be completed about Sept. 27 and calls for an expenditure of $72,000.

Besides the construction work on buildings and training facilities plans call for asphalt repaving of 34 miles of road and replacing of sidings at various buildings throughout the post to round out the modification program.

423rd Completes Benning Project

The 423rd Engineer Combat battalion completed work this week on a quarter of a million dollars worth of construction here at The Infantry Center.

The unit is commanded by Maj. Carl M. Rodberg. It returned to its home station at Camp Rucker, Ala., yesterday.

Among the major projects handled by the engineers during their four-month stay here were the construction of new ranges, erection of new bleacher areas and preparation and erection of a "butler" hanger, a prefabricated, all metal, portable type structure at the Salvage Yard. The oval hanger is 44 feet high, and the ground floor measurement is 140 by 140 feet.

Most sizeable task undertaken by the group was the construction of a large known distance range between Lee Field and Buena Vista Road. This project will not have Road. This project was not completed when the 423rd left Benning July 23. Nine per cent of the landscape work and about half of the all-concrete pits and target houses were completed by that time.

Fort Benning's 78th Engineer Battalion will complete the work necessary to put the new range into operation around the middle of September.

Little Theatre Tells New Play

"Ten Little Indians," a murder mystery, will be the next stage production to be presented by the Fort Benning Little Theatre. It is tentatively scheduled to be staged at the Main Post Theater on October 9 and 10.

This was decided Tuesday night at the first business meeting held by the Little Theatre since the close of the last production, "Petticoat Fever."

Presided over by Col. Ivan W. Parr, general chairman, the meeting was held in Brown Hall. First Lt. Charles E. Thomann, who had a leading part in "Petticoat Fever," will direct the new production. Cpl. Gregg Kayne will be the stage manager.

Little Theatre officials said casting for the new production will begin about August 6. The exact time and place will be announced in The Infantry Center Daily Bulletin.

EM, Wacs End Medical Course

Certificates of completion have been presented to graduates of the Medical and Surgical Technicians course, Class No. 208 by Col. Mack M. Green, commander of the U.S. Army hospital, here. The ceremony took place last week.

The graduates have completed six weeks training at the Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and eight weeks advanced training here.

Colonel Green told the class, composed of four Wacs and six enlisted men, that nothing was more important in the Army than the job that they were undertaking.

The six EM will leave shortly for Korea for duty as combat aidmen and the Wacs will report to various Army hospitals in the United States for duty as medical technicians.

Class members were Pvt. Beverly A. Mitchen, Pvt. Grace E. Haymon, Pvt. Gloris D. Moore, Pvt. Lucille G. Williams, Pvt. Eugene J. Salerno, Pvt Seymour Soltofsky, Pvt. Charles J Vino, Pvt. Jerome J. Trotka, Pvt. Richard R. Boser, and Pvt. Ediel Rufenachi.

Recruiting Office Changes Location

Fort Benning's Recruiting Office, that was formerly in the TIC Annex building, has moved to its new location in the second current adjacent to the Separation Section.

According to the Recruiting Officer, Capt. D. J. Shaw, the office was relocated so that the Recruiting Service could better serve the public in their activities.

Sunday Marks 177th Birthday Of the Army's Medical Service

Fort Benning's Army Medical unit joins with the entire service Sunday to observe its 177th anniversary. It was on July 27, 1775 that the first tiny band of doctors and assistants were organized by the Continental Congress at the behest of General George Washington.

But on their birthday they will be engaged in surgery, X-ray therapy, research, and supply administration and will have no time for lavish celebrations.

The hospital here, organized in 1918 when Camp Benning was first begun, is one of two installations in the country set up in the past year to give research data on the development of primaquine, the powerful new drug that promises to provide a cure for vivax malaria.

The extraordinary success of its efforts in Korea and elsewhere is manifest. For the more severely wounded men are saved than ever before. Since last year's anniversary the number of men who survive after getting treatment of even the most rudimentary sort has risen from 975 to 977 per 1,000 cases. Both figures contrast strikingly with the 855 per thousand rate of World War II and the 918 per thousand ratio of World War I.

New Developments

In treatment, research and prevention of disease, the past year has been outstanding for new developments. Important advances were also made in treatment and rehabilitation.

Experimentation and progress have not been confined to the strictly medical field. The joint distribution of medical material, paralleling the well - established system of joint procurement, puts the Army Medical Service and the other military services in the forefront of progress toward unification.

Since 1775 many achievements have been recorded by the Medical Corps. Perhaps the best known of these is the discovery by Major Walter Reed of the mode of transmission of yellow fever in 1900. Major Reed's work was the foundation for that of Brigadier General William C. Gorgas, whose efforts in preventive medicine made possible the construction of the Panama Canal.

In World War I the service utilized the knowledge and skill of nearly half a million persons, and by the end of World War II this figure had been expanded to nearly three quarters of a million.

Since last July 27 Army Medical Corps personnel in Korea have continued to improve the quality of care received by sick and wounded battlefield, and at the aid stations, and in the chain of smoothly operating hospitals reaching from the Far East all the way back to the United States or way.

Tactical Dept Officers Get Credit Award

Lt. Cols. Loyld K. Jensen and Lt. Col. William P. Kelleher both of the Tactical Department at The Infantry School have received constructive credit for the Advanced Infantry Officers Course.

Both officers were presented certificates and diplomas by Col. Herbert J. Vander Heide, Tactical Department Director.

The award comes as a result of their superior instruction in classes which they have been conducting at The Infantry School, and also due to the fact that both officers have a great deal of combat experience.

Lt. Col. Wood Named PM

Lt. Col. Alonzo E. Wood of Lynchburg, Va., took over this week as Fort Benning's new Provost Marshal.

He replaces Lt. Col. George D. Painter who held the post until Colonel Wood's arrival from duty as commanding officer of the 728th Military Police Battalion, Eighth Army, Korea.

Colonel Wood served as an enlisted man during World War I and saw action in France in 1917-18. He received a direct commission upon his recall to duty on September, 16, 1940.

He wears the World War I and World War II Victory Medals, the Bronze Star, the United Nations Service Medal, and the Occupation Medal.

Colonel Wood's assignment marks his first tour of duty at Benning.

Generals Talk To TIS Grads

Lt. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. and Maj. Gen. Ernest N. Harmon (ret.) addressed graduating classes here at the Infantry School July 18 and 21 respectively.

General Bruce in his address Friday told 90 graduating officer candidates of class No. 19 that the care of their men must "be ever before you as an Infantry leader".

Honor graduate was Second Lieutenant Ralph Moore whose next assignment will be with the Airborne Department here.

The oath was administered by Maj. Erman Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division and the invocation was given by Chap. (Lt. Col.) Stephen Kane, assistant Infantry Center chaplain.

General Harmon

General Harmon, who is president of Norwich University, Northfield Vermont, addressed Ranger Officer class No. 5 Monday and told the officers that he believed that "as the platoon goes, so goes the division."

He went on to tell the graduates of the rugged Ranger course that, "Every commander must have the ability to solve unforseen problems.

Remember that in battle everything is abnormal and as leaders you must train yourselves to meet such situations."

The invocation was given by Chap. (Maj.) Robert B. Herndon assistant Infantry Center Chaplain and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

TIC Maintenance Inspection Branch Disbands Aug. 1

The Infantry Center's maintenance inspection branch of the G-4 Section will go be disbanded August 1.

The 39-man branch, which has inspected and repaired Infantry Center equipment for six years, is being absorbed into post units such as Post Quartermaster, Ordanance, and Engineers, as part of the over-all Army plan for operational economy and manpower conservation, according to Col. Paul J. Mitchell, Infantry Center G-4.

The nine civilians and 30 military personnel will go into other post units.

Post technical services will now handle the job of maintaining and inspecting property and equipment for post units, assisting the Inspector General's Office in its annual inspection tours, and preparing Fort Benning units for overseas shipment.

Present chief of the Maintenance Inspection Branch is Col. T. A. Bigbee.

Chaplain's Corps Birthday Will Be Noted Next Tuesday

The 177th birthday of the Army Chaplain Corps will be observed next Tuesday, July 29.

Today there are 11 chaplains stationed at Fort Benning, plus some eight reserve chaplains who are now on duty with the summer ROTC camps.

Fourteen chapels are located at The Infantry Center where 163 services for the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths were held last month Col. Lexington O. Sheffield is the TIC chaplain.

Origin of the chaplain corps is to be found in a resolution of the Continental Congress adopted July 29, 1775. This resolution followed a call from General George Washington for ministers to serve in his Army. Their salary was $20 a month.

The first chaplain was Capt. John Steel of Carlisle, Pa., and the first Regular Army chaplain was Rev. John Hurt of Virginia.

World War II

Until the time of World War I the Army has but 67 chaplains on active duty, however, some 2,363 chaplains served with the Army during the war.

After World War I the Office of Chief of Chaplains was created, and in 1920 with the passage of the National Defense Act the corps as it now exists was established.

Some 8,896 ministers answered the call at the outbreak of World War II, and during the war 1,76[illegible] chaplains were decorated, 4 died in prison, 78 were killed in action, and 263 were wounded.

Since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, 37 chaplains have entered the casualty list, and 151 have been decorated. At the present time six chaplains now stationed here have served from 8 to 14 months in Korea. Last year there were 14,000 chaplains serving with the Army. There are 139 chaplains in the Third Army area, and they are operating some 57 chapels.

Duty

The chaplain's office is one of the busiest sections on the post. The conducting of religious services is only a small part of its work. In addition a great deal of the chaplain's time is taken up in counseling, character guidance, visiting men in the hospital and stockade, supervising the various branches of the post children's nursery, and running the 160-page club for "Brat Barracks", along with working with dependents of military personnel, and speaking to civic groups.

A month at The Infantry Center there were 46 marriages and nine baptisms. The services are well attended as the total attendance for the month of June was 20,545.

Maj. Robert B. Herndon, assistant Infantry Center chaplain said, "That in my 10 years in the Army I have been stationed has always given us his full cooperation for the religious activities of all faiths. Here at Fort Benning the help which we receive is outstanding, and General Young has told us that he wants to provide the finest religious program possible for the men at Fort Benning.

Another duty which takes up much of the chaplain's time is answering the many letters which he receives every day.

It seems that when ever a serviceman is in doubt for information he always knows that his matter will get attention if he writes the chaplain.

In the 177 years that the corps has been in existence it has come a long ways. However there is still a need for more chaplains to serve in the Army.

Army Post Exchanges Observe 57th Anniversary Tomorrow

Army Post Exchanges all over the world celebrate their 57th anniversary tomorrow.

The first exchanges were established by directive of the Secretary of War on July 25, 1895 and were an outgrowth of the cooperative ventures run by the soldiers themselves.

The post exchange system here at Fort Benning is a varied affair. Activities range from retail stores, snack bars, filling stations, to a roller rink.

The exchange service has grown and changed with the times, but it still adheres to the directive which established it. Its purpose, in the words of the directive, is to supply troops "at reasonable prices with articles of ordinary use, wear, and consumption."

Part of the increased activities of the exchange service is due to the fact that many of today's soldiers are career men and have their families living with them. Thus the PX system must provide for their needs also.

Present Program

The present program, through its own establishments and licensed concessions, provides almost all of the services to be found in a small town.

For example, Fort Benning has 29 retail stores, 10 snack bars, eight beer gardens, four guest houses, two cafeterias, two filling stations, a bowling alley and a roller rink.

In addition, it has issued concession permits to 35 barber shops, 34 laundry and dry cleaning stations, 18 shoe repair shops and seven tailor shops.

Its 23 miscellaneous activities include beauty shops, radio and watch repair shops, and an automatic laundry.

The exchange service is a self-supporting system. It costs the taxpayers nothing. Profits earned by the exchanges are used to pay the expenses of running the services. In addition, the profits help to provide funs for entertainment and recreational activities held on post for servicemen.

Colonel Pearson Takes Over Job As 508th Chief

Col. George O. Pearson of Sheridan, Wyo., has taken command of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team here.

He succeeds Col. Joe S. Lawrie of St. Petersburg, Fla., and San Antonio, Texas, former LSU football star, who is scheduled to attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

An airborne combat veteran of World War II, Colonel Pearson received his Army commission upon graduation from the University of Minnesota in 1928.

He entered active service in 1940, and was with the 11th Airborne Division in New Guinea, Okinawa and the Philippines from 1944-45.

He also was area engineer in Manila from 1946-47, and served as 187th Airborne Infantry Regimental commander in Japan until 1948.

Colonel Pearson is a graduate of the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kans., the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the Armed Forces Industrial College at Fort McNair, Washington, D.C.

TEMPORARILY ASSIGNED

Lieutenant James I. Williams, has temporarily been assigned to Service Company, 1st Student Regiment, as Supply Officer. Lieutenant Williams entered the Army from the ROTC, at A & T College of Greensboro, N. C.

Competitive Tour System Changes

WASHINGTON (AFPS) A system of direct officer appointments in the regular Army for officers of the Army Promotion List, effective about Nov. 1, 1952, will replace the present "competitive tour" system, the Army has announced.

Under the new system the Army will commission officers who meet the required age and educational qualifications. For appointment in the regular Army the applicant must be under 27 years of age.

TOPS . . . SFC Joseph E. Lynch, supply sergeant, 103rd Company, Second Student Regiment accepts supply economy award on behalf of his unit from Col. Willis J. Adams, Regimental Commander. Comptroller Study Begins For Syracuse Course Use

Two Syracuse University officials are studying the problems and procedures of Fort Benning's Comptrollers Office in preparation to the opening of an Army Officers Comptroller course at their university.

Professors B. B. Crandell and A. B. Dickerman of the College of Business Administration at Syracuse are making the survey. The university is under direct contract to the Department of the Army to establish this course.

Because Fort Benning is one of the most important and complex military posts in the country it was picked as one of the posts to be surveyed.

Main purpose of the survey is to review the organizational and functional operation of the Comptrollers Office. From the survey the officials will be able to gain background material in regard to the problems arising at a military station of this size.

After studying the problems, operational procedure, and problem solving methods which are used at The Infantry Center the professors plan to incorporate many of them into the Army Comptroller Course.

The course is scheduled to run about 14 months and is only open to officers. Officers who hold certain prerequisite qualifications will receive a masters degree upon completion of the course.

Army's Judicial Branch Born 177 Years Ago Next Tuesday

On July 29, 1775 the Continental Congress established the judicial branch of the Army. Next Tuesday the Judge Advocate General's Department will celebrate its 177th birthday.

The staff Judge Advocate for Fort Benning is Col. Edward J. Walsh, and the assistant Judge Advocate here is Lt. Col. William P. Franciaco.

When the Continental Congress established the department it named William Tudor of Boston, Mass. to serve as the first Judge Advocate of the Army. This came just 29 days after the congress had written the first Articles of War. These articles were drafted in the Congress by a committee headed by General George Washington.

It was not until 1884 that the "Judge Advocate General's Department was established by that name. From 1775 to 1849 the terms "Judge Marshal" and "Advocate General" were used interchangeably as referring to the title of the office."

At the beginning of World War I the department consisted of 17 officers, but by 1918 the office had expanded to 426 officers.

World War II

World War II found the department expanding even more when 2,800 officers were assigned to the Judge Advocate's department.

Following the war, War Crimes Division was established and it was charged with the responsibility of supervising and coordinating the evidence against all enemy personnel who had committed atrocities and violations of the laws of war. From this came the famous war crime trials.

Colonel Walsh explained that at Fort Benning the commanding general is given authority by the President for general courts martial jurisdiction. "There is no other such jurisdiction at this post," he explained.

During the year Colonel Walsh estimated that there will be about 125 general courts martials, 1,000 specials courts martial and 3,000 summary courts at The Infantry Center.

One of Largest

The Judge Advocate General's office here is one of the largest of its kind in the Army. This is due to the fact that the jurisdiction here covers some 40,000 personnel. There are some posts in the country where tactical divisions and brigades are located and each unit has its own jurisdiction.

Every man who is brought to trial is furnished by the Judge Advocate's office with certified counsel to defend him.

Review

After a case has been tried the Staff Judge Advocate reviews the case and writes a review of the case and prepares an action, this must then be reviewed and signed by the commanding general.

The case is then sent to the department in Washington where a further review of the case is made. During this time a man has 30 days in which to appeal the case. The case is then referred to the Court of Military Appeals which consists of three civilian judges appointed by the President. Under this new innovation of the 1951 Code of Military Justice, the accused is fully protected.

"Everything is done to protect the rights of the individual," stated Colonel Walsh. "Now it is possible for an enlisted man to request that one-third of the court-martial board consist of enlisted men, however this is rarely done," he explained.

Heat Sickness Rules Named

The heat wave that is enveloping Fort Benning and the rest of the South has increased the probability of heat exhaustion. To minimize the effects of excessive heat all personnel, both military and civilian, at The Infantry Center are advised to follow some basic rules.

Don't stay in the sun any longer than is absolutely necessary, avoid sudden or excessive strain and use salt tablets.

The salt tablets have been proven to diminish the number of cases of heat exhaustion when used with the other accepted preventive measures. All units here have the tablets available and it is to the advantage of all concerned to use them.

Letter Promotes Cost Program

A battalion commander at Fort Bliss' AAA Replacement Training Center has certainly caught the spirit and objective of the "Cost Consciousness" and "Supply Economy" programs being practiced in the Army these days.

Lt. Col. E. E. Twining, commander of the Third Battalion, AAA Replacement Training Center, Fort Bliss, Texas, has written a personal letter to every officer in his battalion setting forth the importance of "supply economy."

It is such a fine letter that Major General Robert N. Young, The Infantry Center commander, had it reprinted at Fort Benning so that it could be brought to the personal attention of each officer.

The Editors of The Bayonet feel that this important letter should receive even wider attention. So, here it is published in full:

"Dear Lieutenant———:

For many years we have heard and read much about "supply discipline" and "supply economy." Now the "heat is on" and the Army is embarked upon an intensive program of conservation covering all phases of its operation. The "poop" I have received on this subject during the past two weeks weights nearly a pound—and some papers have been signed personally by general officers.

There certainly must be a very good reason for this matter meriting the attention of an Army commander. And, just as certainly, if the Army commander can find time to personally direct this economy program, we, in the lowest echelons, can find time to give our wholehearted personal attention to the matter.

Regulations require that each officer's efficiency report carry a statement as to his understanding and practice of supply procedures and economy. Each efficency report I have read carried a remark that said, in effect the principles of supply and fect, "This officer understands practices supply economy to the maximum extent."

Unfortunately, this statement has not always been totally true. How many times do we find kitchen police sloshing hot, soapy water around the floors with new corn brooms? How often have we found the butcher knife being used as a potato peeler? How often do we find tools and small parts lying on the decks of our vehicles?

How often do we find men cleaning batteries with solvent? Wiping painted surfaces of vehicles with solvent to make them shine? Forcing improperly seated bolts into position. Failing to apply adequate rust preventives to machine surfaces?

What about all the cotton waste and rags we find lying about our gun parks or thrown into trash barrels? And the tires carrying 45 instead of 50 pounds of air? And the battery cells with the fluid level below the split rings?

And the ignition switch left on in a stationary vehicle? The dirty and improvised typewriter? The 100 watt lamp instead of the 60? I almost hesitate to mention the appalling number of trigger housing retaining pins the Maintenance Section replaces for us each month. This list could be stretched from here to Center Headquarters. However, I think you get the idea now.

Small things? They certainly are, but remember that the efficient functioning of every more whole is dependent upon its small components. An ignition switch carelessly left on in a vehicle overnight may well be the "horseshoe nail" that will cost the Army about sixty dollars for a new battery. Those ten pounds some lax trainee (and delinquent cadreman or officer) failed to pump into that tire may well result in tire wall damage reducing the life of that tire seventy-five per cent.

But what is more important than the damage to that particular tire or battery is the damage done to the training of the soldier involved. Our job is training men—producing the best trained and competent replacements for combat units. Remember the training of the man in supply discipline is equally as important (and sometimes more so) as any other phase of training.

What does it profit a unit receiving our trainees when we meticulously teach the trainee to dissemble a .50 caliber machine gun and fail to impress upon him the absolute necessity for reassembling ALL the parts and to report to his squad leader any defective or lost pieces? Is this the trained replacement? Is this the type of soldier you want in your unit in combat?

Remember, some unfortunate unite will get this man as a replacement. And combat conditions will not permit his re-education in supply discipline. FAULTY SUPPLY DISCIPLINE PRACTICED HERE WILL MEAN LIVES IN KOREA. And the conservation of lives is certainly more important than that of batteries and tires. Yet the two are closely interrelated. You have seen the film "The Late Company B" — That film very simply, truthfully and forcefully illustrates my point.

Achieving and maintaing a superior supply discipline should be easy. Unfortunately, however, it is not. The medics can give injections to prevent pox and fevers, but they can not innoculate against the waste habit. THAT IS OUR JOB.

We are the doctors charged with the responsibility for administering this immunization, and our task can not be accomplished by any such simple "one shot" injection with the hypodermic needle. Our course must be a long series of mental injections accompanied by prolonged, constant observation and direct supervision of the patient, THERE IS NO SHORTCUT.

Most of our trainees do not possess the frugal nature of a Benjamin Franklin. Too many of them the few cents paid for a scar spring is smaller than the stom when compared to the SEVENTY BILLION DOLLAR defense appropriation. It is our task to change this attitude and it can be done only by constant and tireless talks, instruction and demonstration — SHOW THEM HOW: THEY DON'T KNOW.

And, just as important, it requires the closest possible supervision of every trainee. "Statement of Charges" is no solution to our problem. The administrative processing of these documents frequently cost more than the losses involved, and few soldiers today can feel the financial pineh of a few "bucks."

Nor is the "report of Survey" a solution. This document, too frequently, is submitted to cover a neglect of duty in the hasy past, in the hope that the investigating officer will be a "Good Joe" and find some way to absolve the guilty from financial liability.

It is our job to show the trainee —NOT ONCE BUT A HUNDRED TIMES, IF NECESSARY, and to apply timely disciplinary measures when required.

I am making this personal appeal to you to give yourself wholeheartedly to the spirit of the supply economy program and do every thing you can to make uses only what it needs and wastes nothing.

Sincerely,
s/t E. E. TWINING

We Need to Be Told What to Do for Happiness

BY CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) STEPHEN W. KANE

Though wise men are always telling us that human happiness does not consist in getting what we want in life, they seldom go on to tell us that it does rather consist in wanting what we have got.

It is tiresome being told where not to look, if we are not given something else to look at instead. The eye, from staring vacantly at nothing, begins to focus on what it wants in some mirage world on the horizon, when it should be trained on what is immediately to hand.

This is not to say that it is idle to hope for the good things which are beyond us at the moment—for we should have to rule out which would be absurd—but it is to say that actuality has more happiness content than any of our technicolor dreams.

Dreams are all right, provided they are ideals and not escapes. The same goes for desires. Perhaps the secret lies in stretching one lot of desires to include eternal life and all that leads thereto, while at the same time limiting the other lot to what has been provided by Providence.

Gautama Buddha saw that in the control of desire lay the source of happiness. So did the Greek philosophers. So did the Christian saints. But where the Indian sought to eliminate desires and where the Greek sought to balance them, the Christian aims at directing them.

In practice; neither the Buddhist mystic nor the Greek philosopher can ver be very successful: the one must always find his desires reasserting themselves and spoiling the pattern of his cultivated and sterile calm; the other must always be tied to an arbitrary standard of measurement and so will never be quite sure that his balance of desires, always changing in any case, is the right one.

It is only the Christian who can know what to want and where to find it. It is a pity so many Christians don't.

Democratic Convention Gets Under Way

The rafters of Convention Hall in Chicago are echoing once more as the Democratic Party settles down to the business of nominating a successor to Harry Truman.

At the time of this writing no one candidate seems to have garnered enough strength to be considered anything close to an even money bet. The delegates have been pledged to so many different men that for the first time since the 1932 convention the Democratic meeting is a wide open affair.

At this point most eyes in the Windy City seem to be pointed at a little round man from Kansas City, Missouri He is Thomas J. Gavin alternate from the "Show-Me" state for delegate-at-large Harry S. Truman. The candidate who will get Mr. Gavin's ballot, the vote of delegate Truman is still a mystery.

The prime objection to the new premier is that it is feared that he will make an agreement with the British government that will return the Anglo - Iranian Oil Company to power over the vast and rich Iranian oil field.

It was Mossadegh's seizure of the fields 18 months ago that brought the richest oil deposits in the Middle East to a virtual standstill and cut off the main source of Iran's revenue.

All efforts to settle the eight week old steel strike have broken down again. The tie up of the nation's major industry continues because of the failure of management and labor to agree on a closed shop.

Union and management spokesmen had agreed in June to cooperate in the production of steel needed for military use but nothing has come of this pact and war industries have had to pull their belts in tight or stop production entirely due to a lack of steel.

On The Bookshelf

SONG IN THE NIGHT by Josephine Lawrence. William Morrow and Company.

Lisea Miller, her husband, Ash, and sons Dair and Noel, and her mother are the kind of people that make good neighbors. They are a happy family living in their own home in a friendly, small town. Until Noel's death in World War II, nothing had broken the calm of their lives.

Now Dair was faced with the same problem that his brother had not been able to solve. Should he marry the girl he loved and take whatever happiness he could while there was still time? Or should he follow the advice of the older people his parents and grandparents and wait until his period of service was over?

Through her compassionate understanding of their problems, of their failures, of their triumphs, the author has created a novel that comes close to the heart of every American home.

STEPHEN HAYNE by Albert Idell. William Sloane Associates.

Stephen Hayne is Albert Idell's most impressive novel to date. It ranges from the glitter of Philadelphia society to the grim of the mines, from the peace of the fields to the wild and futile march of the miners across the Pennsylvania mountains.

It is a story rich in narrative history and people.

Stephen Hayne, upon his return from the Civil War to the once-rich farm, found poverty and unrest. He could not remain to accept the slow rot of poverty.

The story of his rise from the mines to a fortune and rich marriage in Philadelphia, forms the background for the long and powerful novel.

Greek Students Are In TIS Courses

SOLVE PROBLEM . . . Greek Army Capt. Emmanuel Demetrakakis, right, and 2nd Lt. Coy Gray, of Anderson, S. C., work together to solve a coordinated fire plan problem.

During their 18-week stay at the Infantry School's Infantry company officer's course, Greek students receive some 660 hours of instruction.

The Weapons department, which instructs the Greek officers for 208 hours, initially instructs them in the mechanical training phase of the M1 rifle, carbine, and Browning automatic rifle. From these basic weapons the Greeks, as well as the American officers in the course study the Rifle Grenade, rocket launchers, machine guns, recoilless weapons and mortars.

The pitures on this page show these Greek officers as they learn to be proficient with the American weapons.

But besides the weapons training, the 28 Greek officers also learn about communications system, vehicle maintenance, map reading, chemical defense and tactical air support.

The Greek Army officers do not participate in all of the instruction during the 15-week course. They are excused from phases of instruction which are peculiar to the United States Army, such as physical training, bayonet training and certain administrative training in records and military forms.

Down Payment Rules Explained On Vets Houses

(AFPS)—The Veterans Administration has clarified down payment requirements for vets who are considering purchasing a home with a government loan.

There are four methods of computing loans since credit controls were relaxed June 11, 1952:

1. Veteran loans for repairs, improvements and alterations where the cost is $2,500 or less. No cash payment is required.

2. Government loans for houses ranging in price from $2,501 to $7,000. Closing fees in this price range must be paid in cash. But in no case will the required minimum cash payment exceed four percent of the sales price.

3. Loans for houses where the sales price is more than $7,000 but not more than $12,000. Minimum down payment is computed two ways:

a. If sales price is more than $7,000, but not more than $10,000, the minimum down payment is $280 plus 10 per cent of the excess sales price over $7,000.

b. If sales price is more than $10,000, but not more than $12,000, the minimum down payment is $380 plus 15 per cent of the excess of the sales price over $10,000.

Example: Sales price of home is $8,000, the minimum down payment is $380. ($280 plus $100) under bracket "A" of payment procedure. If closing fees are $200, the transaction price becomes $8,200 and the maximum loan is arrived at by deducting the required down payment of $380 from $8,200, which sets the maximum permissible loan at $7,820.

4. Sales price of home is more than $12,000. Four brackets are involved in this category:

a. More than $12,000 but not more than $16,000, the minimum down payment is $900 plus 55 percent of excess of transaction price over $12,000.

b. More than $16,000 but not more than $21,00, minimum is $3,100 plus 57 percent of excess over $16,000.

c. More than $21,000 but not more than $25,000, the minimum down payment is $5,950 plus 70 percent of excess over $21,000.

d. For transaction prices over $25,000, the minimum down payment is 35 percent of the transaction price.

Longer Life For New Type Army Blanket

(AFPS)—A longer life for Army blankets has been forecast with the development of shrink-resistance treatments.

After 10 to 15 washings, an untreated wool blanket shrinks almost 40 percent in size. Two new chemical treatments have been perfected to reduce that figure to 10 percent, make blankets semi-washable long-term, the low cost of 30 cents per item.

Textile and chemical technicians perfected a chlorination method and another involving impregnations by melamine resin to stop shrinkage at the request of the Army Quartermaster Corps.

More than 100,000 treated blankets and other cold-weather clothing items will be produced by the end of this year.

Parachute Maintenance Group Breaks 'Chute Packing Record

A new record was set by the Parachute Maintenance Group of The Infantry School's Airborne Department last week when it packed 4,747 parachutes during a five-day period.

A single day's record was broken July 11 when the group packed 1,123 main parachutes. The old record for a single day's packing was 1,000 parachutes set last August.

Seventeen men packed 85 chutes during the five-day period, and several others packed 75 or more. Since it takes about 25 minutes to pack a parachute each man must work at full capacity in order to pack 17 parachutes daily.

The Parachute Maintenance Group packed over 150,000 parachutes last year. During the first six months of 1952 more than 80,000 parachutes were packed.

tion of the efficiency principles in their own departments.

Kick-off meetings for personnel in The Infantry School's Operations Office and the U. S. Army Hospital have already been held. Classes begin today.

Purpose

Purpose of the Management Improvement Program is to increase efficiency and economy in military operation through the eight-part program including manpower economy, work measurement, work simplification, Army efficiency awards, cost consciousness, supply economy, paper conservation, and machine utilization.

The new 12-hour course replaces a three-weeks work simplification course formerly given to Fort Benning organizations.

Instructors for the Operations Office and U. S. Army Hospital courses will be Lt. C. B. Shugart and Lt. Richard D. Sipe, of The Infantry Center Comptrollers Office.

Other Opry favorites who will be on the show are Kitty Wells, Ray Price, Autry Inman, and Johnnie and Jack.

Tickets for both shows are now on sale at the Entertainment and Recreation Section of the Special Services office, located in Doughboy Stadium.

In case of rain the Opry show will be held in Briant Wells Field House.

Major Palmer Named Confinement Officer

Major Frank Palmer has been appointed Post Confinement Officer and Capt. Daniel D. Simmons has assumed duties as commanding officer of the Military Police Detachment in staff changes announced this week by the Post Provost Marshal.

Major Palmer was formerly commander of the M.P. Detachment and Captain Simmons was executive officer of the same unit.

HANG OUT THE STARS — The Bell Sisters with Henri René's orchestra. Cynthia and Kay Bell the California teen-agers whose recording of "Bermuda," took them straight to the top of the recording field have done it again with a number based on the Strauss waltz, "The Blue Danube".

The styling of "Bermuda" is very similarly found in Hang Out The Stars. Flip wise is "Wise Little Echo", a novelty tune done leisurely with special echo effects. The disc is classed as a sure fire hit for the "Bell Sisters and RCA Victor.

LEARN TO LOSE—Vaugh Monroe and his orchestra. The often criticized husky voiced Monroe has once again stood the popular music world on it's well bent ear. "Learn To Lose" has more zip than anything Vaughn has done before.

Aided by the vocal group they all race through the tune in fast tempo. Backside is "Dancing Girl". An exotic oriental ditty that is well paired with "Learn To Lose". (RCA Victor)

LOVE IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER—Billy May and orchestra. The current rage of the musical world. Milly Bay and his orchestra. The unforgettable rhythm song is just right for the slick style of May and group. Lyrics are supplied by Willie Smith and trio. Reverse side is a straight instrumental exclusively performed by the May musicians, "Gin An Tonic". (Capitol)

• • •

THE MASK IS OFF—Billy Sheppard with orchestra. New vocal artist Billy Sheppard has found the perfect vehicle for his vocal talents, "The Mask Is Off", is a perfect fast breaking tune for the Sheppard delivery. On "B" side, "Auf Wiedersen's Sweetheart", another tune just right for the Sheppard personality and on this cut he has the able assistance of a vocal chorus. (RCA Victor)

2 Patients Receive Purple Hearts Here

Two patients at the U.S. Army Hospital here were awarded purple hearts last week for wounds received in Korea.

They are Sgt. Roger L. V. Reed of Bristol, Tenn., who was attached to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 21st Infantry when wounded, and Cpl. Walter R. Theriault of Portland, Me., who was wounded April 3, 1951.

Col. Edgar M. Dunstan, commanding officer of the 358th General Hospital (Reserve) that is here for two-weeks of training, made the presentation at the Benning Hospital.

NEWCOMERS

Cpl. Ardene S. Haines and Pvt. Charles M. Sessions are newcomers to the cadre of the 116th Company, Second Student Regiment having transferred from Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Blue

authorized to designate non-commissioned officers, and at that time the light blue hue was designated the official shade for Infantry noncom's chevrons.

Blue denoted Infantrymen of both the Union and Confederacy during the Civil War. The Federal foot sloggers wore braid of that color on their caps, and their rebel counterparts embellished their trousers with blue piping along the side seams.

The dark blue uniforms which had been standard troops of all branches of the United States Army through the middle years of the 19th century were supplanted by khaki at the time of the Spanish-American War. In this general trend toward neutral tones the light blue of the Infantry was abandoned for a time.

In 1904 a light shade of blue was officially adopted as the distinctive color for the United States Infantry. This is the shade that we today know as Infantry Blue.

Football's Back! Four Teams Name Head Coaches

Wasting no time at all after getting approval for the coming football season, all four teams of the 1952 Fort Benning Football League this week named their head coaches.

Maj. Jack Faubion, mentor of last year's unbeaten champion Special Troops Rams, was named Boss man of one of two new teams, the Infantry School Detachment - ASU Provisional Group Hornets.

Capt. Frank Tubridy, assistant coach to Maj. Harold Kopp's second place Commanders in 1951, was installed as coach of Combat Training Command.

Lt. James Phillips, quarterback on the 1947-49 University of Arkansas team, will coach the 506th Airborne Red Devils who finished third last season under now-departed Lt. Col. Tom Mesereau.

Lt. West Pulsi Ace

Lt. August Bielems, former player at University of Miami, Fla., and at Army, and an assistant coach at West Point in 1949, will skipper the loop's other new entrant, the First Student Brigade - Provisional Medical Group Rams.

The appointment of Capt. Tubridy is a temporary measure since he is slated for separation from the service in late August. At that time he will be succeeded by Lt. Cecil Dickerson.

Dickerson arrived here this week from Ft. Jackson, S. C., where he was backfield coach of the Golden Arrow Dixies, unbeaten in their regular campaign and voted 1951 national service football champions by The Army Times.

He also coached the highly successful 1952 Third Army track and field team which was selected and trained at Fort Benning and took second place in the All-Army cinder meet in California.

He graduated from U. of Mississippi after two seasons as a backfield star and played with the Los Angeles Rams in 1948. He then coached at Batesville, Miss., High, going unbeaten for two seasons and being voted Mississippi's prep coach of the year in 1949.

Tubridy is a former head football coach at City College of New York.

All of the new coaches plan to have their first get-togethers with potential players this week. Light drills probably will start Aug. 1 with the head knocking beginning about Aug. 15. The season opens Sept. 28 at Doughboy Stadium.

Phillips played with the 506th last season, but says he will be strictly a bench boss this season. He played with the Pacific champion 11th Airborne team in 1946 and had played high school ball in Little Rock, Ark., Bethesda, Md., and Raleigh, N. C.

Army Coach

Bielens played half and quarter back at Miami and Army. He also coached at Army in 1951. In college and in high school in Upper Darby, Pa., he performed in football, basketball, track and baseball.

This will be a young set of mentors, Faubion, who returns to Groesbeck, Tex., High as head coach immediately following the Benning season, is just past 30. Bielens and Dickerson are both 25 and Phillips will celebrate his 25th birthday this Saturday.

Players Wanted

Oh, yes — it wouldn't be a football story without a commercial for players. Coaches Tubridy and Dickerson request all CTC hopefuls report to them at 6:30 tonight at Headquarters, Bldg. 3001.

Good luck, fellas!

ISD Takes Pennant

With a team that came from behind in every game, once in 15 innings, Infantry School Detachment's Professors won the 1952 Fort Benning Baseball League pennant last week by dumping First Student Regiment, 6-2, 10-4 and 5-1, to sweep their 3-out-of-5 championship series at Gowdy Field.

The series ended the current post season with 28,450 fans clocked at the turnstiles for the 49 games, probably the largest number ever to watch a post diamond campaign.

It was a satisfying victory for ISD, which finished third last year, and for freshman skipper Woody Burt, who has a long record of Army baseball playing, but tried to turn down the managerial reins this year because he figured it would interfere with his duties as first sergeant of ISD's H Company.

It was an equally bitter defeat for First S.R. which missed last year's pennant by the margin of a single game, and rode high into this year's playoffs a day after they had swept to total victory in the 1952 Georgia State Semi-pro baseball tournament.

Many of the First S.R. regulars like Manager Bob Kinard, Joe Brooks and Joe Smith had played with some of the finest baseball teams ever turned out by Benning, including the 1948 Dougboy squad which went to the semi-finals of the National Baseball Congress tournament in Wichita, Kans.

Ironically, Smith was benched for the series, serving out a suspension for an altercation with an umpire. Brooks played under the handicap of a badly strained leg muscle, and Kinard, a power last year, finished the campaign with a .211 batting average.

The Professors ended up the season with an overall 15-3 record. They lost single games to Provisional Medical Group, Combat Training Command and ASU Provisional Medical Group. Combat first game of the playoffs.

They took five straight decisions from First Student Regiment which can claim to have equalled its second place finish of 1951. ASU, by virtue of having gone into the finals from that position, can claim third place with fourth belonging to CTC.

506th Airborne finished fifth, but played only a half season as a replacement for Lawson Army Air Field. Provisional Medical Group and Second Student Regiment brought up the rear.

First, last or in between, however, it was probably one of the post's most exciting and well played baseball seasons. Some 28,000 fans can't be wrong.

A score-by-score account of the championship series and final statistics for all teams are printed on following pages in the sports section.

TIRED BUT SMILING I.S.D. WINNING COMBO MOMENT AFTER TAKING FLAG
Walt Warrick, (l.) winning hurler, Manager Woody Burt and reliefer Bob Cronin

Clutch Stuff, Bench Aid Get Profs A Flag-Burt

Two men for every position on the field and a phenomenal ability to produce when the blue chips were on the table enabled Infantry School Detachment to win its first post baseball pennant in 4 years, admitted usually solemn Manager Woody Burt who couldn't hold back the smiles this week.

The 37-year old first sergeant from ISD's H Company, who used to manage some semi-pro clubs around his native Greenville, Ala., before entering the service in 1940 didn't add that it was on his strategy that the right guy was always at the right spot in the clutch situations.

Have some for instances.

Twice Burt sent Jim Howard, a five-foot, four-inch, 150 pounder, in as a pinch-hitter and the little guy produced triples that broke up tight games.

Trailing 2-4 with two out in the last inning in the second playoff game against First S.R., Burt inserted Gene Ashley and the reserve outfielder came up with a two-run single which sent the game into overtime.

He gambled again in this one, sending Joe Feinstein in to pitch the extra innings after Joe had worked and won the nine - inning opener just the night before. Lefty Joe responded with seven innings of shut out ball on just four hits, as ISD broke out with six runs in the 16th for a 10-4 decision.

That was the key game in the series. Bob Cronin had pitched the first eight innings, Feinstein had worked the last innings in two nights—if the Profs lost the series was knotted. Burt was out of regular pitchers and First S. R. had almost every Loop Left Brill wanted the ball in for them.

Woody, who never played pro ball, but was on post teams from 1946 through 1948 and with the 1948 squad which went to Wichita, insists that the key game came a number of weeks ago, however.

"That was when Feinstein pitched a one-hitter at them and they lost 7-0 in seven innings," explained the freshman ISD skipper. "I don't ever recall First S. R. being beaten so bad that they were done in only seven innings. I don't think they've been shutout since 1946.

"If they could have got revenge by starting off the series with a win, then we'd have been in a bad hole, but we beat 'em good in the first game, and I think they beat themselves largely in the last two games.

"I don't know why Kinard didn't have some relief for Brill in that second game. He could have hurt us bad by winning there. It seems like after they lost that one, though, they blew up completely in the final game Saturday."

Burt had high praise for all of his men, noting "they're all heroes."

He obviously meant guys like Bill Gill who could catch and play short, Dick Willingham, "who could play any position on the infield," and his bench beauties like Howard, Ashley, Howard Harkey and Walt Warrick. He might have mentioned himself. Woody played both the outfield and first base and in the series hit well over .400 to spark his men at bat.

It was no wishful thinking when Burt told his squad minutes before the first game that he wanted to sweep the series. He gambled dangerously in ignoring his entire bench in the first three and two more games might have been necessary.

Burt managed the 506th Airborne Engineers in 1951 after he married and the village of Waynesboro.

His election as ISD manager was a last minute affair when veteran pilot Hal Grinols received overseas orders. Burt accepted the post reluctantly because of his first sergeant's duties.

"You might say, that both jobs managed to get done, if not spectacularly in either case," he grinned modestly Monday morning from behind a mound of paper work.

Hahn, Butts, (.413), Share Batting Title

One of those crazy 1,000-to-one shots popped up when the Fort Benning League season finished with Tom Butts, Combat Training Command right fielder and Bill Hahn, ASU Provisional Group center fielder, having both the same number of hits (24) and same number of times at bat (58).

Those figures produce a .413 batting average, and in case you haven't guessed by now, kiddies, it makes them dual post batting champions—probably the first such occurance in Benning League history.

With identical AB's and hits you can't go into fractions to establish one over the other, of course, but you can come up with a distinction in "slugging averages," a gimmick thought up by Branch Rickey to use on his hired hands when salary talking time comes around.

To get the slugging average, you divide the total times at bat into the total bases of all safe hits.

Hahn had 18 singles, one double, four triples and one homer, which adds up to a .620 slugging average. Butts had 20 singles, four doubles and no triples or homers for a .482 slugging mark.

Under rule 10.18 (a) of the Official Baseball Rules it was necessary for a Benning League players to have at least 40 times at bat to be eligible for the hitting crown.

Ralph Terry, First S.R. third sacker, was leading the hit parade (.451) going into the championship series, but came up with only six safeties in 25 at bats. Hahn was hitting .433 going into the finals and Butts an even .400.

There isn't much doubt about the league's Number One pitcher—introducing lefty Joe Feinstein, the Hoboken Hurricane who happily reported Monday morning that he is back up to 145 pounds, the most he has weighed since the campaign started.

Joe finished with an 11-2 mark which means he got the decision in all but five of ISD's games. He won two on consecutive nights during the playoffs, he pitched a no-hitter, one-hitter, two-hitter and three-hitter. His earned run average was 2.07 per game.

There were eight pitchers in the loop who were unbeaten, but not a one of them had more than three decisions so we turn to the records and ERA's to determine the "best" bet.

They, behind Feinstein, would be Ken Middleton, CTC, 2.25; Carroll Mathes, ASU, 3.72, and Lloyd Ford, First S.R., 3.74. Floyd Kocab, Provisional as one of the top pitchers, but he rivaled managers, Ken Middleton with a pitiful club, with just over a 7.00 ERA.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

THE BIGGEST UPLIFT for Finns since they squared their World War I debt to the U. S., will hit Helsinki tomorrow afternoon and evening when the three-day Olympic weightlifting championships get under way, and may the best jerk win. I'm referring, of course, to the C l e a n and J e r k, which, along with the Press and the Snatch, comprise the three standard Olympic muscle events.

All of this is of interest here because Fort Benning's only contribution to the 1952 Games, Jim Bradford, six-foot, one-inch, 235-pounder from 14th Officer Candidate Company, is a heavy on the U. S. weightlifting team. And Jim, being an Army man, should have added incentive against much international opposition which includes a Russian squad as the odds-on favorites.

Although the Olympaid is in Finland, Bradford has long suspected there was something rotten in Denmark when it came to getting a crack at the boys from the Fafoolnik A. C. in Moscow. He went to Milan, Italy, last year for the International weightlifting championships in which the Russkys were supposed to compete. At the last moment, however, and presumably after reading the American entry list, the Reds sent word they were having trouble throwing their weight around when it came to getting Italian visas.

Jim went on to cop second place, some ten pounds behind Johnny Davis, the recognized world champion who lifted 951 pounds and this year heads the U. S. weightlifting team in Helsinki as he did in 1948 in London. Next, the 23-year old Bradford entered the Austrian championships figuring at last to get a shot at the Moscow momsers, but for the second straight time the Russkys said, emphatically, "No soap!" — which probably is another reason everyone expects them to be so strong starting tomorrow.

Bradford, who even has muscles in his eyelids, already yet, won the Austrian title, returned to this country and shortly after entered the Army. Since then he has been almost as timid personally as have the Russians. I never could corner him long enough for a personal interview after a Department of Army message saying he was at Benning and much telephoning by Maj. Gene Myers, TIC sports officer, turned him up in First O. C. Regiment.

Another telephone conversation did reveal that he was selected as an alternate for the 1948 U. S. Olympic team, but was cut off at the last moment when a lack of funds prevented taking a full squad to London, where Davis won the title easily against a field which included no Reds, who were busy back home telling the Pravda Bugle how they were better than anybody else since they had only invented weightlifting in the first place, egad!

I also learned that after leaving the team he went on to win the North American heavyweight title, setting a press record of 292 pounds, and, in 1950, was junior national heavyweight champion with 1950 pounds. In between, Bradford spent his time tearing telephone books in half, but just so you won't get the idea that this makes him a wrong number, he also practices by bending bottle caps with his fingers. (Try this tonight in your barracks, chumly, but don't come sniveling back to me with your deviated digits.)

Upsetting the producers of war-monger propaganda on both sides, there has been much news in the last few days to indicate that the Russian athletes plan to offer nothing but harmony in Helsinki. If this be subterfuge, however, then Bradford, and Davis, too, are ready. You could have knocked me over with a second Lieutenant's modesty when Jim admitted that he is a graduate of the Washington, D. C., Junior College of Music and is an accomplished baritone.

If Joe Stallion (as Dizzy Dean would say) wants harmony then how about Bradford and Davis, who has studied for the concert stage for two years, breaking into eight quick bars of "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" as they Snatch and Press the the Olympic weightlifting crown Clean away from those Jerks. What could be more appropriate in the land of the Finn, indeed, than a well-timed Mickey by a Benning GI?

EX-LIGHTWEIGHT champ, Lew Jenkins, who will take jump training this fall, may box Larry Mujica a four-round exhibition on Aug. 1 card. . . Capt. Bill Fawcett, sports officer at Fort Benning for a good many of his 26 years in the Army, has been named athletic officer of Com Z in Orleans, France, and apparently has the situation well in hand with his picture appearing in one of the local gazettes . . . My friend, Tom Kinney, sports ed. of the Columbus Ledger, has been cited by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Inc., for a recent Brotherhood Week column pointing out that race, color and creed don't mean a thing in sports competition.

THE MAN who got the many programs (including Little League) under way for post youngsters, Col. Ivan Farr, has been ordered to Japan . . . Cap. Mike Chester, who assisted Lt. Col. Tom Mesereau in coaching last year's 506th football team, leaves this week for PECOM . . . Sgt. Jim Maddox, the mug who suffered a heat stroke in a recent Benning League game, has been ordered to lay off sports officiating for awhile . . . A $50,000 contract for the complete face lifting of ancient Doughboy Stadium, which will make it look like new, has been approved, but probably won't be effected until after the coming season.

86 Ready For Post Ring Opener Aug. 1

The Fort Benning Boxing board, composed of ring coaches from all major units, meets at 1:30 p.m. Friday to make matches for 12 bouts for the first card of the post's summer boxing program which gets under way a week from Friday, Aug. 1, under the arcs at Gowdy Field.

The cards will be run on a bi-monthly basis into the fall with scoring for individual and teams championships.

Some 86 simon-pure punchers from six units have been training for the past three weeks. Among them is George Allen, 1952 Third Army flyweight champion.

Champs Return

A score of 1952 post champions will be back in action. Most of them are expected to start the new ring campaign in top notch condition since the regular '52 program wound up just a little over two months ago.

The only difference in the summer program is that the fighters will be divided into five classes under the familiar Hawaiian amateur system. The idea is to develop a flock of capable ringmen well in advance of next year's Third Army and All-Army tournaments.

Class one fighters will be those who have won amateur or service titles. Class two is for experienced battlers who have never won a title. Class three is for those of average experience of those.

Class four will include novices who have fought before and won, while class five will take those boys making their debut or those who have never won a bout.

Army Team Cops Match

The U.S. Army pistol team, captained by Fort Benning's Col. Perry D. Swindler, took top honors in the Northeastern Regional Pistol Championships fired over the week end in Harrisburg, Pa.

A pair of four-man Army squads took first and second places in the .22-cal. team matches and another Army squad won the .45-cal. team test.

WOJG Oscar Weinmeister, of Fort Knox, Ky., and Atlanta, was second in grand aggregate with points off the winning mark turned in by Lt. Mitchell, of the Marines.

Benning's top representative was fourth in grand aggregate, with 2551, and won the .22-cal. aggregate with an 882 mark.

The squad returned Tuesday to Fort Benning to continue training for the National Pistol Championships Aug. 15-19 in Jacksonville, Fla.

Get An Anchor

M-Sgt. Leon Gunter and Sfc. Ben Brown, of the 76th Engineer Battalion, Combat Training Command were fishing recently in the Chattahoochee River. Gunter propped his rod against a stick while he lit a cigarette. Apparently a fish hit the bait. Gunter last saw his rod and reel being towed downstream.

Medics Bump Second SR, 3-0

The Second Student Regiment softball team, crippled by the loss of four members of its starting lineup, suffered its first defeat in TTC competition Wednesday as the Provisional Medical Group scored a 3-0 victory.

The Rockets who had won three straight, had no scoring punch as some of their top hitters from the 122nd company were on a night problem. The losers collected only two hits, York getting a single in the second and Hankin another in the sixth.

COL. BARNETT

Col. Barnett New Captain Of Rifle Team

Lt. Col. Frank Barnett, deputy G-4 of The Infantry Center, yesterday took over the captaincy of the U. S. States Army rifle team, succeeding Maj. Warren Davis, another Benning officer who piloted the squad to high national ranking in his first effort last year.

Maj. Davis leaves soon to attend the Command General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Col. Barnett takes over a 25-man squad which includes the best riflemen from major Army commands all over the world.

Others Here

The team will be called upon to prove its stuff before "home folks" this year with both the Southeastern Regional High Power Championships and the National High Power Championships awarded to Fort Benning for the first time.

Some 300 ace civilian and military shooters will compete in the latter event.

This is Col. Barnett's first experience with a rifle team. He has long done target shooting as a hobby and is an avid collector of all types of rifles and pistols.

Same Schedule

A graduate of Delta Teachers College, near his home in Pace, Miss., he played football there. He is presently the secretary of the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

Col. Barnett plans no changes in the training routine of the large squad which is currently working out daily at Easley Range. Two other Benning men, Capt. James McCubbin, and WOJG Coats Brown, are coaches on the team.

CHARLIE HARPER

An all-time record 62 for Fort Benning Country Club was fired Saturday by course pro Charlie Harper.

Harper had a 32 on the front nine and 30 coming in, firing 10 birdies, using only 28 putts and putting for three eagles which he didn't make.

The previous record of 64 was held by Harper who had shot that figure ten times on the famous post layout.

Harper, named post pro a little over a year ago after serving as assistant pro, was playing in a foursome which included Maj. Gen. Robert Young, Infantry Center commander, Brig. Gen. Marcus Bell, retired, and Col. Charles Rich.

Harper's card against par going out:

Par	454	344	345—36
Harper	444	333	344—32
Par	444	435	345—36—72

Pro Boxing, Wrestling Due Aug. 6

Professional boxing featuring some of the better punch-for-pay boys in the southeastern area is expected to be introduced at Gowdy Field approximately Aug. 6.

The announcement came from Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, Special Services officer, who also revealed that professional wrestling will also be introduced to the post in the near future.

Programs for both sports are being worked out in cooperation with Fred Ward, Columbus promoter.

Standard ringside and reserved seat prices would be changed, but the general admission tariff would be a minimum figure to make possible attendance of all interested military personnel.

Col. Grimes expects to be able to announce complete details this week for the first boxing card. The Bayonet will carry full data next week.

JACKSON FEATURED

Fort Jackson's Golden Arrow football team is to be featured in the 1952 edition of the All-South Carolina Football Annual which is scheduled to hit the newsstands in early September. There will be a three-page spread with pictures.

The 1952 All-Post Baseball Team will be announced in next week's edition of The Bayonet due out Thursday, July 31. Pictures of Benning's best from the just completed season will be published along with complete playing data and backgrounds. Make sure you get your copy.

First SR Rally Topped CTC, 9-5, For Finals Slot

One of the nation's top collegiate trackmen of recent seasons is now an officer candidate with 25th Company, First O. C. Regiment.

He's Bill Lockhart who sparked Penn State's thinclads in the sprint and middle distances until last season. Lockhart was a member of State's 440-yard relay team which won the national title in the 1950 Penn Relays.

Bill started his running at William Penn High in Harrisburg, Pa.

In the next three years with the Nittany Lions, he set a school record of 49.1 for the quarter and 440 squad's winning time of 41.3 was only 4 - 10 seconds off the world standard.

Lockhart also ran the 100 and 200. He plans to return to Penn State to complete a phys ed degree following his present tour of duty.

A dead-tired but dead-game First Student Regiment overcame an 0-5 deficit to beat Combat Training Command, 9-5, last Wednesday to complete selection of finalists for the 1952 Fort Benning League championship series.

Thus, First S. R. had lost to CTC, 4-3, in their opener, but taken the next two, the second game score being 6-4.

Infantry School Detachment gained the finals a night earlier by defeating ASU Provisional Group, 6-3. They lost their opener to ASU, 8-3, and won the second, 12-5.

In regular season play it had been ISD, First S. R., ASU and CTC in that order.

First S. R.'s final margin over CTC was through the courtest of relief hurlers Adam Zubaty and John Freeman after CTC had taken a 4-0 first inning lead.

CTC starter Ken Middleton was removed after giving up a pair in the fourth, but Zubaty didn't fare any better and was removed after three runs in the fifth which tied the score, 5-5.

Middleton was nicked for the deciding barrage of three in the seventh and another in the eighth

Meantime, First S. R. firemen John Mackie and Dick Myers were silencing the CTC bats perfectly for the final five frames.

WARMIN' THE BENCH

By Armed Forces Press Service

Forty-six years ago John McGraw was baseball's leading manager. Ty Cobb was only a Detroit rookie. Jim Jeffries was about to retire as undefeated heavyweight boxing champion and football had just been legalized. And in March of 1906 at Paris an 18-year-old "boy wonder" named Maurice Vignaux in balkline billiards to win his first world's title. New faces hold today's sports interest, except in billiards. There, Willie Hoppe still rules. No longer a boy wonder, Hoppe, at 54, is the graying emperor of billiards. Now, even that must change. He's announced his possible retirement this summer from a field he clearly dominated for almost a half century.

From 1914 to 1940 Willie was undisputed king of balkline play. It looked as if nothing or no one could stop him. The promoters thought they had a way. They shifted championship play from balkline to three-cushion billiards, a faster more exacting game. Hoppe took the switch in stride. Since 1947 he's been uninterrupted king of that domain . . . A run of 20 points in three-cushion billiards is as rare as a .400 batting average in baseball. Twice he's hit 20, and once, in an exhibition, he racked up 25. When you realize that his cue ball must hit the other two balls and three of the table's four cushions (sides), it's quite a trick.

Ten hours of sleep a night and five hours of practice daily helped Hoppe maintain his overall superiority. He passes up movies and reading to save his eyes and limits his cigarettes to help his wind. Eleven times he was three-cushion champion. Sometimes deposed, but always bouncing back as master. Willie virtually spread-eagled his field for 46 years. His flawless control and positive conviction won him many triumphs. Too bad billiards does not attract a wider interest. Then more would realize Willie Hoppe's retirement will mean the passing of a great artist.

Plans Complete For High Power Rifle Test Here

Final plans have been completed for the 1952 Southeastern Regional High Power Rifle Championships which will be held Aug. 9-10 at McAndrew Range in the main post area.

This is the first time the National Rifle Association tournament has been awarded to Benning and it is being run by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club in cooperation with The Infantry Center.

Maj. Warren Davis, captain of the U. S. Army rifle team last year, will be executive officer of the tournament.

Title Preview

About a half dozen four-man teams, made up of members of the present U. S. Army team candidates are entered and will face major competition from approximately nine crack Marine teams.

In fact, with the Marine and Army shooters both here, the Southeastern will well develop into an excellent preview of the 1952 Nationals, also scheduled by Benning Aug. 27-Sept. 2.

Post Players To Get Tryout By Cardinals

Fort Benning baseball players between the ages of 17 and 23 have been extended an invitation to take part in a St. Louis Cardinals tryout camp tomorrow and Saturday at downtown Golden Park.

The sessions will get under way at 11 a.m. daily. Participants are requested to bring their own gloves, spikes and uniforms if they have them.

Organized baseball rules prohibit the signing of a player while in service, but some free agent graduates of the Benning League might make contacts for the future.

The camp will be conducted by Mercer Harris, Cardinals' scout for this area, who points out that 18 of 24 players on this year's St. Louis roster started out in the Redbird farm system.

Taxpayers Take Beating By Careless Truck Driver

The American taxpayer took a beating at Benning on a recent Saturday afternoon.

He was soaked $12,341.00. That's not a final figure, however. Some of the indirect costs can't yet be tallied, but they will add several more thousands to the bill.

Whence this levy on the wallet of Mr. Taxpayer?

A truck overturned. A common, two and one-half ton truck, property of the United States Government. It was damaged more than somewhat. It was, in fact, damaged to the extent of $941.00.

As might be expected, the driver was injured, poor fellow. But before we lavish our sympathy on this unfortunate young man let's examine his actions prior to the "accident."

He was driving along a dirt-surfaced portion of First Division Road. The overall speed limit for this road is 25 miles per hour. He was pushing along at about 45. He came to a sign warning of a sharp curve coming up. "Maximum speed 20 miles per hour," said the sign. So he headed into the curve wide open.

An underslung sport car might have made that curve at 45 m. p. h., but a two and one-half just isn't built for that sort of jockeying. It went into a sickening skid. Then it turned over.

The driver was not alone in the vehicle. He was transporting 33 men of a Benning airborne regiment, taking them to their unit area.

Soldiers were scattered all over the landscape. Most of the 33 required medical attention. Some of them got by with emergency first aid, others had to be hospitalized. A few of them are still in the hospital.

Discharge Money Due In $100 Units

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— Personnel on active duty can expect their mustering-out pay in $100 installments, the Defense Department has announced.

Regulations and procedures for administering mustering-out pay authorized by the recently signed K-Vet Bill were also outlined in the announcement. Only veterans already honorably discharged or released will receive the payment in a lump sum. They must, however, request payment through application.

The new law stipualtes that mustering-out pay will be paid to enlisted personnel and officers below the grade of major and lieutenant commander. The exact sum of the payments are given as $100 for less than 60 days service, $200 for more than 60 days service without foreign duty, and $300 for more than 60 days service including foreign duty.

Personnel honorably discharged or released after June 28, 1950 are eligible for the pay except:

1. Personnel transferred or returned to the retired list who receive retirement or retainer pay.
2. Those retired or separated because of physical reasons are excepted.
3. Personnel who are discharged or released on their own request to accept employment and have not served outside the continental limits of the U. S.
4. Personnel whose total period of service has been as a student in a civilian institution.
5. Personnel discharged to enter

Post Recruiting Ranks Third

Recruiting at Fort Benning ranked third in reenlistments in the Third Army Headquarters during June, Army Headquarters has revealed.

The announcement was made by the Military Personnel Procurement Division, Third Army Headquarters. Rankings were based on the percentage of reenlistments at all posts, camps, and stations in the area.

Fort McPherson and Fort Jackson placed first and second respectively.

Christian Science Reading Room Opens

A Christian Science Reading room is now open in Chapel No. 4 in the Harmony Church area.

Under the direction of Christian Science camp welfare worker Gregory S. Yolas, the room will be open at all hours of the day or night for the convenience of personnel.

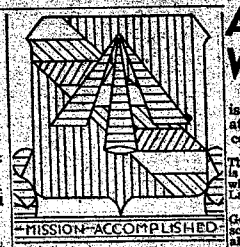
There will be regular Christian Science services on Sundays at 8:15 a.m. and Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the same chapel.

Mr. Yolas can be reached at his Columbus address, 3112 Cherokee Avenue. Telephone 3-1745, or at Chapel No. 4 or 5.

Family Can Get Medical Aid

Dependents of military personnel may obtain medical care during normal duty hours at Dispensary A-9, in the Main Post Hospital area, or in town at the Columbus Dispensary located in the Martin Building at Broadway and 13th Street.

The Infantry Center has announced that the Main Post Dispensary is available during off-duty hours only to emergency cases. Unless an emergency, prior appointments must be made to visit sometimes many hour hours before treatment will be available to them.



MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

41st Revises Unit Insignia

The 41st Field Artillery Battalion of the Combat Training Command has revised its unit insignia to include the blue and white bars of the 3rd Division.

The new shield is red, of the artillery, and displays a broad gold arrow head which comes from the ancient catapault, one of the earliest forms of artillery.

Inclusion of the 3rd Division colors pays homage to the parent unit of the 41st Field Artillery Battalion, with which it served in World War II. The 41st was formed as part of the 3rd at Fort Lawton, Wash. and served with that Division in North Africa and throughout occupation duties in Germany. When the 3rd Division was reformed at Fort Benning the 41st was part of it and, when the Third went to Korea, remained at Fort Benning to form Combat Training Command's first artillery unit.

KNOCK, KNOCK. . . George Blackburn, (above), is there and that's what he hopes to be doing Friday night when amateur boxing competition between major units returns to Fort Benning at Gowdy Field. Major Gen. Robert N. Young, The Infantry Center commander is to personally meet Gen. Collins when he steps from the plane at Lawson Field.

Third Army Commander, Major Gen. W. A. Belderlinden is also scheduled to arrive to join General Collins.

Following his talk General Collins will personally present reserve commissions to 130 ROTC graduates. The commissions will be appointments as second lieutenants of infantry in the Organized Reserve Corps.

(See other stories, Page 12)

Tentative schedule calls for the General to arrive at Lawson Field this morning. From Lawson Field he will go to Chapel Field on the Main Post where an Honor Guard composed of ROTC cadets will be held for him.

At 1:30, General Collins will hold a conference with the staff and faculty of The Infantry School in Pratt Hall.

At 3 this afternoon he will address officers of The Infantry Center Headquarters. The Infantry School and all major units stationed at Fort Benning.

Reception

An official reception will be held for him at the Main Officer's Mess from 5 to 7 p.m.

Later he and the members of his party will be the dinner guests of Gen. and Mrs. Young in the General's quarters.

Some 2,300 ROTC cadets will hear General Collins' speech beginning at 9 tomorrow morning. Following the speech he will personally present the 30 commissions to graduates who have earned them.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony scheduled for 9 a.m. at Doughboy Stadium tomorrow.

An Honor Guard for General Collins will be held by the 503rd Airborne Regimental Combat Team at Lawson Field just before he leaves.

General Collins, who took part in both the Pacific and European theaters of War in World War II graduated from the Infantry School in July 1926. At that time he was a captain.

A year later he was assigned as an instructor in the Infantry School and remained on that assignment until August 1931.

The Army Chief of Staff is probably best known for having commanded the U. S. 25th Infantry Division in the Guadalcanal campaign in the South Pacific in late 1942 and early 1943.

On July 25, 1944 not long after the capture of Cherbourg, which resulted in the capture of the German Army and Navy commanders, Von Schlieben and Hencko, the VII Corps under Gen. Collins spearheaded the attack of the First Army which made the breakthrough east of St. Lo and thereafter blocked the Germans counterattack at Mortain while the Third Army launched its drive towards Sezet and Paris.

Series E Bond Gives You More

The new type series "E" defense bonds give the buyer many advantages over the kind previously available.

First the new type is composed at at three per cent semi-annually whereas the old series had a sliding scale for its interest rate.

Secondly there is an automatic extension of the three per cent interest rate for those who desire to hold their bonds past the usual ten year maturity date. This extension feature applies to all type of bonds.

Transportation Corps Observes Tenth Anniversary Today

Drivers that move Infantry School Students all over the post daily will join today with other wearers of "the wheel" as they note the tenth anniversary of the Transportation Corps.

The Transportation Corps at Fort Benning has three principal activities.

The first of these is the Post Transportation Office, the nerve center of all transporation operation here. Under the direction of Col. Steven W. Ackerman, Post Transportation Officer, the office is responsible for all passenger movements by air, rail and bus. The Transportation Office also arranges for travel of military dependents going overseas, as well as handling all freight requirements for the Post.

The second activity is that of the Motor Transportation Regulation Branch, headed by Major Jack W. Coulter.

Major Coulter's group handles all technical and administration responsibilities of the Corps here.

Third

The third activity of the TC at Fort Benning is the Post Motor Pool under the command of Major E. M. Logger. The Post Motor Pool maintains and furnishes all administrative vehicles for use on the Post and operates several subpools at various points on the reservation.

The transportation units on Post include the First and Second Transportation Battalions composed of the 37th Transportation Car Company, the 33rd, 148th and 886th Transportation Truck Companies.

All Post activities of the Transportation Corps, including support of Lawson Air Force Base, function under the Post G-4.

The lineage of the Transportation Corps goes back to April 1917, when the United States joined the Allies in World War I.

At that time transportation operations were the responsibility of the Quartermaster General. The pressure of war requirements caused the War Department General Staff to assume responsibility of the Quartermaster General's entire transportation organization for the best military employment.

After World War I hostilities ended, transportation again went to the Quartermaster General. In 1940, with the accelerated rearmament program and the critical motor transport shortage, the Transportation Division of Quartermaster General was formed.

On July 31, 1942 the Quartermaster General's Transportation Division was abolished and the Transportation Corps was established.

Army Launches Drive to Keep Trained Men

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— The Army has launched a concerted drive to retain on active duty as many qualified and experienced personnel as possible.

Outlining its campaign in DA Circular 37, the Army explains the various choices and assignments that are open to personnel who elect to stay on active duty. Enlistments are for periods of three, four, five and six years but those who have permanent grades of E-5, E-6 and E-7 may reenlist for an unspecified period.

Various options, too, are open to men who decide in favor of staying on. For example, a man serving in the ZI who reenlists may have a choice of assignments. Or, if any vacancy currently existing in any installation in the continental U.S. he may also have a choice of assignment, if qualified, to the Army Languages School, Counter Intelligence Corps or Army Security Agency.

The circular lists seven options and gives detailed information on how enlistment in the Regular components or reenlistment will affect grades, temporary promotions, bonuses and extensions.

Maj. Baumgartner To C, GS College

Major John W. Baumgartner, editor of the Infantry School Quarterly of the Training Publications Department leaves Fort Benning this week to attend the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Major Baumgartner, arrived at Fort Benning Infantry Center in March of 1948.

Medical Service Corps Marks Fifth Birthday Next Monday

Medical Service Corps officers at Fort Benning will take note of the fifth birthday of their corps on Monday, August 4.

Important in the operation of medical services in the U. S. Army, the Medical Service Corps combines all non-professional medical officers into one group.

The work of this group of officers is so paramount that Capt. Louis G. Hofstetter, adjutant of the Fort Benning U. S. Army Hospital, said: "If the MSC was not established the hospital here would need at least 30 more doctors than it now has."

The Medical Service Corps, when it was founded in August 1947, replaced the old Medical Administration Corps. It also added the officers of the old Sanitary and Pharmacy Corps to its rolls.

Today the corps is composed of administrative, supply and numerous allied science personnel, such as sanitary engineers, laboratory specialists, pharmacists, sociologists, and social workers.

Main Purpose

Main purpose of the corps is to relieve doctors, dentists and nurses from as many administrative duties as possible.

Key administrative officers of the U. S. Army Hospital here are members of the Medical Service Corps. Lt. Col. Oscar R. Brown, executive officer of the hospital under Col. Mack M. Green, is a member of the corps. Captain Hofstetter, hospital adjutant, is also an MSC officer.

Medical Service Corps officers at the hospital here operate as personnel officers, unit administrators, and assist doctors in the various wards of the hospital. They also procure supplies, maintain records, and hold investigations that would ordinarily consume a great deal of a doctor's time if he were called upon to perform these administrative duties.

Generals Speak To Grads Here

Major General Bruce C. Clarke, Commanding General of Fort Hood Tex., and the First Armored Division and Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., Assistant Infantry School commandant delivered the principle addresses last week at graduation ceremonies here at The Infantry School.

General Clarke speaking July 25 at the graduation of class No. 20 of the Infantry Officer Candidate School said that ". . . handling of men is the greatest calling of the soldier. As an officer you have greater responsibilities. You must instill your men with enthusiasm —the leaders enthusiasm is the only thing that will lead men into the hail of bullets."

General Clarke pinned gold bars on Second Lt. Richard A. Christie, honor graduate of the class. Lt. Christie has been assigned to the First Officer Candidate Regiment as a Tactical Officer.

General Meloy delivering his address July 24th before 100 medical and dental ROTC cadets who attended the summer camp here said that "On the battlefield it is very comforting to the infantry to know that the Medical Corps is beside us.

The cadets who attended this first summer camp represented 17 colleges from 15 states. A second ROTC medical and dental summer camp began July 28th.

David Nichols Takes Over Bonds, Efficiency Program

Fort Benning's first full - time civilian promotion manager for Defense Bonds and the Efficiency awards program assumed his new duties at The Infantry Center's Personnel Division last Monday.

He is David Nichols, a native Georgian, who served four and a half years in the Army Signal Corps during World War II.

The dual program to be headed by Mr. Nichols is being revamped and changed to stimulate greater civilian interest in the buying of Defense Bonds and the participating in the Efficiency awards program.

As promotion manager for the sale of Defense bonds, he is responsible for planning the campaigns, handling the publicity, and contacting all civilians personally or in groups.

His duties as executive secretary of the Efficiency awards program include planning the accelerated program, publicity, recording of the minutes of the meeting of the committee, and helping the committee in any way possible.

Mr. Nichols will also be required to plan and guide all civilian participation in other fund raising drives at Fort Benning.

After Discharge

After his discharge from the Army at Fort Lewis, Wash., he began his civil service career. Mr. Nichols said, "I liked that part of the country very much, so I applied and qualified for a position as a civil service employee."

He began this new career as chief of Purchasing and Contracting branch, Mount Rainier Ordnance Depot, Tacoma, Wash., and held this position for three years.

Then he transferred to Fort Lewis, Wash., as assistant chief of Budget and Fiscal branch, later taking over the job of Organizations and Methods examiner. He held this position until his transfer to Benning.

In the spring of this year, he bought his family on a visit to his home town of Young Harris, Ga. Although he liked the northwest section of the country, for some time he had been interested in securing a position in his home state.

Benning Librarian Selects 6,000 Books During Past Year

Over 6,000 books have been selected for The Infantry Center libraries in the past year by Miss Barbara Bronson, chief librarian of Fort Benning.

The modern historical novel, the current best sellers, philosophy, psychology and military science books are more than holding their own against the current trend towards science fiction reading matter, according to Miss Bronson.

The chief librarian has been a civilian and army librarian for the past 12 years. After serving as assistant librarian of the Eighth Army in Japan and supervisor of libraries in the Tokyo-Yokohama area for three years, she left the Army to assume the position of librarian for the University of Illinois for two years. She assumed her present position here at The Infantry Center a year ago.

Gen. Young Recalls Days Past Through ROTC Camp

The ROTC summer camp here has enabled Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young commander of The Infantry Center, to recall the days of the past.

Since the encampment began, the general has discovered a former student of his and an officer who was once his company commander.

Col. V. N. Cardero, professor of military science and tactics at the University of Puerto Rico, making a two-day visit to the Infantry ROTC summer camp here, discovered that former Second Lieutenant Young, who served under his command in Company H, 65th Infantry Regiment, at San Juan, in 1926, is now Fort Benning's commanding general.

"I still want to call Colonel Cordero 'Captain'," The Infantry Center commander said.

"Puerto Rico was my second Army assignment," the general remembered, "and our post in San Juan was not the modern beautiful installation that Fort Brooke is today."

Early days in Puerto Rico are not the only memories that summer activities have brought to General Young.

Problem Helped

A problem is confusion helped General Young to recognize a former student of his at the University of Maryland.

Major Irwin H. Gilbert, of Orlando, Fla., presently on two-weeks active duty with the 3063rd Station Complement (Reserve) here, studied ROTC at the Maryland university when former First Lieutenant Young was assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics there in 1927.

According to the general, Major Gilbert had a twin brother at school who looked just like him.

"I had a hard time telling which of the brothers I was talking to. Both were equally good students!" The Infantry Center commander commented.

The two Marylanders have even more in common, besides General Young also received his Army commission upon graduation from the University of Maryland in 1923.

Patkin, Diamond Clown, At Cards' Game on Saturday

The Columbus Cardinals close out a three-game Sally League set with Savanah in a single game at 8 o'clock tonight at downtown Golden Park.

The Jacksonville Tars invade Columbus Friday night for a set which should be interesting in more than one way. Feature will be an appearance of Max Patkin, world famed baseball clown, at Saturday night's game.

A day game between the Cards and Tars is scheduled at 3 p.m. Sunday. The Montgomery Grays will be here for a single game Monday night.

Servicemen's tickets are sold at reduced prices for all Cardinal games.

BANG, BANG

The nation's biggest rifle shooting tournament—the National High Power Championships — is scheduled at Fort Benning Aug. 27-Sept. 2. Some 500 entries are expected.

CTC Men Receive Medals for Korea

Two men from the Combat Training Command were decorated last week for service in Korea.

Sergeant Charlie C. Jones, A Battery, 41st Field Artillery Battalion and Cpl. Willie Davis of K Company, 30th Infantry Regiment were the recipients of the awards.

The Commendation Ribbon went to Cpl. Davis for action with the 82nd AAA Battalion, Second Infantry Division.

Sergeant Jones received the Air Medal for missions performed in 1951 and 1952 when he was serving with the 39th Field Artillery Battalion.

Benning Men Will Soon See Themselves On Television

Fort Benning soldiers will soon see themselves on television as one of the Army's unique units arrives here in August.

Advance party of the first Signal Corps Mobile TV System has already set up shop in the first station which they will plan TV shows to be used as training aids for Infantry School problems.

Major William A. Gorder, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., heads the group Center at Long Island, N. Y., and is technical specialists and six drivers and mechanics.

The young technicians, whose average age is 25, were picked by the Signal Corps because of their previous experience at TV stations throughout the nation.

The equipment for the unusual outfit was designed by Colen Engineering Laboratories and RCA for the Army's Signal Corps Photo Center at Long Island, N. Y., and The Signal Center at Fort Monmouth, N. J., where the outfit was organized.

The technical youngsters have already tried their hand at shows at Fort Monmouth, and Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md. They also took their TV cameras to Bolling Field in Washington, D. C. for Armed Forces Day and to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y. for June Week.

Travels

The group travels in four 35-foot busses which contain the television equipment. The first bus contains the transmitter equipment, and bus number two holds the generators for the transmitters. The third bus has the receiving equipment, and the fourth contains the receivers.

The busses can be separated by 20 miles and still transmit a program.

During their indefinite stay here, the First Signal Corps Mobile Television System will make experiments in televising Infantry School problems for use in classroom lectures as training aids.

The technicians plan to use Fort Benning personnel in their training shows.

Voting Set-Up Not Changed

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Although Congress failed to pass the "Serviceman's Voting Act of 1952," there is no change in the absentee voting procedures previously outlined in the voting information booklet, compiled by the Office of Armed Forces Information and Education.

The booklet describes the methods which the State Legislatures have set up for absentee voting by servicemen and women. The bill in Congress would have ironed out some of the obstacles that might cause servicemen some difficulty in casting their ballots in a few states.

The Senate had passed the proposed voting measure and sent it to the House. But it was never reported out of the House Administration Committee.

The bill was originally introduced in response to a Presidential message pointing out that some serviceman might be deprived of their vote because of procedural obstacles contained in voting laws of a few states.

Some state legislatures have themselves, however, eased some of the requirements. These have been announced through supplements to the original I & E booklet.

Civilian Worker Helps Thousands Find Housing

Mrs. Mary Dinsmore has helped thousands of Fort Benning families secure housing during the past 10 years. She is the Chief of the Billeting and Clearance Branch, Post Personal Services, Division.

The wife of the late Maj. John Dinsmore, she was originally selected for the potition because of her familiarity with the problems of settling an army family at a new installation.

Working as more or less of a liaison between the local housing projects and army families she handles the housing of all officer personnel.

In addition to the 1200 different quarters on the post and the job of issuing privilege cards to dependents, Mrs. Dinsmore estimates that roughly 100 people a day appeal to her office for help of one kind or another.

Lt. Col. Coghill Named TP Exec

Lt. Col. Cornelius W. Coghill Jr. was appointed executive officer of the Training Publications Department this week.

He came to Fort Benning in July of 1950 and served with the Tactical Department Lt. Col. and Mrs. Coghill live at Fort Benning. They have two children, Karen, 4, and Cornelius III, 1.

NEW METHOD . . . Sgt. John Condon, 913th Medical Ambulance Company demonstrates the new method of artifical respiration to a class of civilian workers. The class which is one of a series of safety lectures being conducted by M/Sgt. Thomas H. Wheller, is designed to familiarize all civilian personnel with the latest safety methods adopted by the Army.

Sergeant Designs Rack To Save Linoleum Floors

Footlocker racks to save linoleum floors are being installed by I & E Platoon of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 508 Airborne Regimental Team thanks to Sfc. Arthur J. Wahner of that organization.

The racks made from eight foot of two-by-four lumber are built by inserting two equal length pieces of wood under the end of the bed and bracing them with a third piece. The extending arms form a sturdy rack.

Sergeant Wahner first came across the idea while he was with the 187th Glider-Parachute Infantry Regiment in Japan. His idea was made SOP with the regiment and when he later transferred to the 82nd Infantry Division he continued to champion his system.

It has been here with the 508th that an economy purpose has been added to the scheme. With the lockers raised off the floor the linoleum is easier to conserve and clean. There is no additional strain on the bed and the racks themselves only take about five minutes to build.

An added attraction of the rack is that with the foot locker on it, it doubles as desk or table.

28th QC Company Collects Patches

Patches of the 37th, 44th, 47th Divisions, the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team and the Ryukus and Marbo Commands are needed by the 28th QC Company of the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

Under the direction of Lt. Charles Butler, the unit has assembled the patches of the different units in the Army and plans to form around the edge of the world hanging in the company dayroom.

Strangers from the patches except of the map showing the year and location of the unit.

Yankee Ladies Want Pen Pals

Two young ladies from Pittsburgh wrote the editor of the Bayonet this week saying they would like to correspond with any Fort Benning soldiers who will write them.

The young ladies forget to tell the editor their age and descriptions. However, here are their names and addresses:

Miss Dolores Andreucci

Blood Center Continues To Exceed Every Quota

The Fort Benning Blood Donor Center continues to back up the men on the fighting fronts by meeting every month's quota since its beginning here in September, 1951. During period, more than 10,000 pints of life giving blood have been donated.

Every major unit at The Infantry Center goes all out in an effort to meet its monthly quota and on several occasions this year some of the units have exceeded their quotas, thus pushing the Blood Donor Center over its goal.

Two of the largest commands, the 508th Airborne Regiment Combat Team and 1st Student Regiment, have each contributed over 1,100 pints of blood since April.

First Casual Company, First Student Regiment, has been a high mark of its own. In the past three months period over 500 men of the company have donated blood at the center.

Established

The Blood Donor Center was established here Sept. 23, 1951 in Ward B-23 at the U. S. Army Hospital to process military personnel at Benning who desired to give blood.

Once a pint of blood is taken it is packed in a refrigerated compartment for shipment to the United States Blood Processing Plant operated by Sharpe and Dome in West Point, Pa. From the processing plant the blood goes to various parts of the world to meet requirements of the Armed Forces.

All of the blood donated at the Blood Donor Center here is not shipped however. Requirements of whole blood is kept in reserve for the needs of the hospital at Benning.

During shipment and storage the blood is kept at a temperature of 36 to 40 degrees fahrenheit.

Maj. Lockart Gets Bronze Star Medal

A Bronze Star medal has been presented to Maj. Albert E. Lockart, commander of the First Battalion of the Second Student Regiment. Col. S. R. Tupper, First Student Brigade commander, made the presentation.

Major Lockart earned the medal for "outstanding service while S-3 of the Third Battalion, 38th Infantry Regiment, Second Infantry Division in Korea."

Time Limit Set for Retired Men to Use Travel Privileges

Ex-Army personnel who have been retired for any reason between 1944 and April 27, 1952, and who haven't yet taken advantage of the travel and shipment of household goods authorized them, must do so before April 27, 1953 or forfeit the privilege, according to a Department of Army policy.

Army travel regulations in effect since 1944 authorized retired personnel to travel and to ship their household goods "to the home selected upon retirement at government expense until a date "one year after the termination of the present war.

Ratification of the treaty of peace, with Japan, April 28th of this year, ending any state of war which existed in 1944, now fixes the expiration date of the above regulation.

With the establishment of the termination date for the war and World War II regulations become effective again. Army personnel retiring on or after April 28, 1953 must make application for shipment of household goods and complete their necessary travel within one year of the date of their retirement.

Retired Army personnel affected by these regulations should contact the Transportation Officer at their nearest military installation without delay.

48 Colleges Count Alumni Enrolled In AIOC Number 1

Some 48 colleges and universities from 33 states Hawaii and Puerto Rico are represented by their alumni undertaking the Associate Infantry Officers Course No. 1 with the 111th Company of the Second Student Regiment.

There are five veterans of Korea among the group which is composed of more than 90 percent ROTC graduates.

The variety of civilian occupations held by the officers before entering the Army reads like the classified section of a telephone directory. The jobs range from beekeeper, to disc jockey.

Some of the odder ones are magazine illustrator, ice-skating instructor, weather observer and radio operator for an airline, military attache, high school teacher and boarding house manager.

Snow White Avf Deutsch

(Editor's Note: This installment of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", related in that hodgepodge of German, English and slang familiar to all who have served in EUCOM, was originally published in the "Munich American," The Seventh Army Sentinel reprinted it and Lt. Col. Frank Barnett, Assistant G-2, passed along a clipping of it. Next week's reprint is "The Bayonet.")

It is titled "Schneeweitchen und die seven Dwarfen" and "dedicated to alles who lernen Deusch der hard Weg". The story follows:

"Es war once upon a time eine schone Princess die Schneeweitchen recalled war. Sie botten line terrible Stepmutter who es nicht permitten konnte that someone else spielen war and schoner than she liven should. Every tag she asked her Magic-looking Spiegel diese question:

'Mirror, mirror, auf der wall, am I die schonsten babe of all?'

'Und der magic-looking spiegel would sagen:

'Queenie du bist really tops.'

"Aber after a little while Schneeweitchen prettier growed und ween die Stepmutter wiederum her looking-Spiegel died question geasked hat, sie sagte:

'You ain't so bad, aber Schneeweitchen really takes die Kuchen.'

"Dies made the Queen sehr hot under dem Kollar, and she wanted to put Schneeweitchen out of dei weg. So she called her Hope Hunter herein. Zu him sie sagte: 'Take dis Kid out in dem woods. Mach sie disappearing.'

"Der hunter sagte: 'OK, Mamma!' Dann hat er das poor Schneeweitchen in der tiefen Woods getooked und sagte: 'Nunn, dann, kid Scram! Und Schneeweitchen scrammte.

"Da war die terror little Kid all alone in der great big woods. Sie war scared, aber suddenly she saw an pretty Hauslein and went herein. Es war die home der seven Dwarfen.

Schneeweitchen war ganz tuckered out, so she fell zusohleep auf der row of Beds. Dan come die Dwarfen home again.

"Diese waren Herr Grumpy, Herr Schneezy, Herr Bashful, Herr Sleepy, Herr Doc, Herr Happy, and Herr Dopey. Wenn die Dwarfen Schneeweitchen auf dem beds lying saw sagten sie aber auf Deutsch: 'Wheeee Whoooooo' (Wolf Whistle).

"Bei diesen whistle hat sie ungeweked, and dann hat sie das Dwarfen getold who sie war. Und die Dwarfen hat her getold that she mit 'em liven could. Und so hat sie dere gelived und Haus for die Dwarfen gekept.

"Meanwhile hat die Stepmutter wieder her Magic looking Spiegel geasked:

'Mirror, millor auf der wall, am I die schonsten Babe of all?'

"Und der mirror sagte, 'Ja, du bist die Schonste hier. Aber Schneeweitchen who now mit den Dwarfen lives, she's got es alles uber die.'

"Dann hat die Stepmutter beinahe off den handle geflown. She put on some old clothes and ging bei dem Haus der Seven Dwarfen.

Schneeweitchen thought she was an old farmer's frau, and let her unkommen. She gave schneeweitchen eine schone bodice, und hat es so tight gespeedid dass schneeweitchen nicht breathen could and so she fell down like tod. Aber die Dwarfen kamen back home and made her loose, und sie wir under ok.

"In der meantime, die Stepmutter asked her looking-Spiegel dieselbe question again, und got der same answer, nomlich, dass Schneeweitchen noch prettier war.

"Und so made she herself eine Hexen-Witch, and ging back to der Haus where die Dwarfen live den did. Dere she gave Schneeineitcher ein gepaisaned Apfel, und wenn das arme Kid eageessen hat, fell she downt like dead, dann laughte die Step-mutter."

The winning cake was a large rectangular white cake with The Infantry Center emblem, "Follow Me" decorating the top. The winning company was presented with a bronze plaque.

About 35 cakes were entered in the contest from companies in the 1st Officer Candidate Regiment, 2nd Student Regiment, the 598th ARCT, and Company G of the Infantry School Detachment.

All of the cakes were baked in the mess hall of each company. The judging was based upon taste, general appeal, texture of frosting, and decoration.

Judges for the contest included Col. and Mrs. Harry Grizzard, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Kenneth Grimes, Major Robert M. Lorentz, and Officer Candidate William Moriarty of the 2nd Officer Candidate Company.

Combat Bonus Rules Have Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— Under the recently passed Combat Duty Pay Act of 1952 entitling Korean veterans to extra compensation, certain restrictions have been outlined.

To be entitled to combat pay during a month the individual must have been subjected to hostile fire for not less than six days while serving with a combat group, vessel or aircraft. However, if the individual received incentive or special pay (aviation, submarine, parachute, medical or dental), he is not entitled to combat pay for that month.

Claim forms will be distributed by the Department of Defense in the near future for those veterans entitled to the payment. A delay in the settlement of the claims is expected because of the large number of payments and additional inquiries.

OC Epps Elected Council President

Candidate Ferdinand Q. Epps has been elected president of the student council of the 29th Officer Candidate Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment.

A former master sergeant, he has been in the Army since 1949 and saw service in Austria before coming to Fort Benning for Infantry Officer Candidate School.

Teen-Age Drivers Receive Qualification Certificates

Certificates for qualified drivers were presented to 19 students of high school age who were graduated from the first teen-age driver class July 22.

The presentation was made by Maj. E. M. Logan, Post Motor Officer.

In presenting The Infantry Center certificates to the newly qualified drivers, Major Logan said, "I hope that each of you have learned something here. Be observant everyday that you drive and you will learn something new everyday. No one knows everything about driving."

Prior to the graduation exercises, The Infantry Center Safety Department held a safe driving demonstration for the students. The demonstration pointed out how to stop a vehicle under certain climatic conditions at various speeds.

New Class

A second driving class is scheduled to begin at the Post Motor Pool on Monday, August 4. Registration will begin on August 1.

Members of the first graduating class were Lois Fisher, Carol Abma, Tom McPherson, Dan Cowhig, John Cowhig, Joan Freeman, William Grieves, Marilyn Kurtz, Sam Lankford, Toni Telle, Webb Etheridge, Judy Ebbeler, Elizabeth McAdams, Henry Forter, Elinor Reed, and Clandia Jenkins.

Swim Patches Show Ability For Post Kids

Patches designed to identify the swimmer's ability will be issued to the 192 youngsters enrolled in the swimming program at Benning's Russ Pool.

The patches will be in four colors: white for the non-swimmers or "tadpoles," chartreuse for the beginners or "minnows," green for the intermediates or "perch," and red for the swimmers or "trout." The names of each class will be on the patches.

Similar to the ones used by the YMCA, the patches were designed by Mrs. Toni Kemp and Sfc. John Lukas, the chief instructor at the pool.

Thirty children have earned beginner's certificates in the program sponsored by the Youths Activities Committee. To qualify for this certificate they had to swim 50 yards.

Classes are held in the mornings, Monday through Thursday, and are open to all children of officers and enlisted men. The children must be at least six years of age.

An "Aquaday" is planned at the end of the season. Red Cross certificates and special awards will be given during the program. Races for all classes will also be held.

Lt. Thomann Will Direct New Little Theatre Play

"Ten Little Indians" the forthcoming Little Theatre production of Agatha Christie's suspenseful murder mystery will be directed by Lt. Charles E. Thomann who was last seen in the role of Dascome Dinsmore in "Petticoat Fever".

Current plans call for presentation of the play at the Main Post Theatre on October 9th and 10th.

THOMANN

The mystery comedy, which enjoyed a successful run on Broadway and was later filmed in Hollywood under the title "And Then There Were None" takes place in a weird old house on an island. Ten people assemble in the house as guests of an unseen host, who accuses them each in his turn of complicity in murder.

On the mantlepiece in the house are 10 figurine of Indians, with a description in rhyme as to how each died until there were none.

This is Lieutenant Thomann's first directorial assignment with the Little Theatre although he is no stranger to that theatrical art. He majored in dramatics at the University of Denver and directed a number of plays while a student. While in Japan he wrote and directed a bi-lingual play entitled "God of the Mountains".

He was active with the Denver Post Opera Company, the Denver Grand Opera Company and the Central City Opera Company before entering the service.

"Ten Little Indians" is the fourth production in the current Little Theater series.

Casting for the three female and nine male roles will get underway at 8 o'clock Wednesday August 6 at Brown Hall near the Main Post Theatre. All interested personnel are urged to attend.

WORKMEN ARE SHOWN CONSTRUCTING MONUMENT FOR THE TOWN SQUARE

Authentic Village Readied For Training Picture Set

A mock-European village that is authentic in every detail is being constructed at Fort Benning. The Signal Corps will use the town as the set for a training film.

A 50-man camera crew from the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island City, N. Y., is scheduled to arrive here the first week in August to begin shooting the movie.

The mock village is being erected by Fort Benning's 78th Engineer Combat Battalion at the intersection of Lorraine and Moore Roads, site of the Combat in Cities course.

When construction is completed 21 buildings will have been erected with a wall-area of 32,000 square feet.

Charles Garletti, studio manager of the Photographic Center and technical advisor for the project, said this is the largest filming operation the Signal Corps has ever undertaken.

Some $35,000 worth of materials are being used in actual construction. Largest single items are half-inch sheets of wall board. Some 1,600 sheets of this material is to be used on the interior walls to give the effect of cobblestone once paint has been added.

Six Weeks

During the six-week construction period, minute details have gone into the preparation of the buildings. Workers used 250 pounds of demolition charges to make authentic reproductions of over 100 shell holes in the walls of the buildings.

In one instance the engineers placed a keg of nails in the room in which a demolition charge was set. When the charge went off scattering the nails throughout the room, the walls looked as if the room had been raked with machine gun fire.

To complete the character work on the buildings, the engineers cut several holes in the walls to resemble ones blown by satchel charges. These will be papered over so as to appear unharmed. During filming, scenes will show the placing of fake charges, and as they go off the paper will come down to reveal the holes.

Prior to the actual filming date of Aug. 18, the picture crew will hold two weeks of rehearsals. The completed film will consume a 20-minute showing time, and six, or seven reels will be made for units at Fort Benning.

508th Schedules Night Jump For Lee Field Tomorrow at 8

Six hundred and eight officers and enlisted men, plus a group of Pathfinders, will make a night parachute jump at Lee Field tomorrow.

The Pathfinder detachment, composed of men from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, will make the first drop at 8 p.m. The 2nd Battalion, 508th Airborne Battalion, along with men from the 1st, 2nd and third battalions will follow by 8.

This will be the second night jump in less than a month for the 508th. The last jump was conducted at 3 in the morning, and was probably the earliest of later jumping on any post at which the 508th has made night jumps.

Also it was one of the safest jumps with the accident factor being almost nil. This was one of the few jumps where not even a sprained ankle was suffered by anyone.

In tomorrow's jump the Red Devil paratroopers are carrying full equipment, weighing a total of a problem in handling the jumps. A platoon size assembly problem will be run through before the men return to carrying

Gen. Young Greets Reservists Here for 2-Wk. Summer Camp

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander welcomed 182 officers and men of the Organized Reserve Corps from the Third Army area last Monday.

The men are here to attend the Third Army Quartermaster School summer camp at Fort Benning.

The Infantry, more than any other combat arm of the armed forces, appreciates the job which the Quartermaster does," stated General Young.

"The most important job which the Quartermaster has, is that of supplying the soldier in the front lines," explained the general. "This is the big problem which the Corps has to lick, and the job which they have done in Korea is an outstanding one," he said.

The school will last two weeks. During that time the reservists will study new operational procedures in the Quartermaster Corps, and also they will attend lectures which will be presented by officers of The Infantry School. These lectures will outline the latest developments and doctrines which are taught at Fort Benning.

The school is being operated by the Organized Reserve Corps School of Durham, N.C., under the jurisdiction of the North Carolina Military District. Commandant of the school will be Lt. Col. Henry R. Totten.

Men, Towers, Trigonometry Safeguard Benning's Forests

BY CPL. CHUCK CALLAHAN

Eleven men, triangulation and three lookout towers are all needed to pinpoint a fire any place in Fort Benning's 182,000 acres of timberland.

Once the fire is pinpointed a fire-fighting crew, headed by Norman F. Force, Fort Benning forester, can reach the blaze within 20 minutes.

Mr. Force and his crew of five operate from the old fire station in the Harmony Church Hospital area.

The Forestry Section has erected one 100-foot, all-steel lookout tower at its base of operations in Harmony Church. All the construction was by hand. The only power machinery available was an Army jeep motor.

Tower No. 2, the only wooden structure of the three, is located on a hilltop just south of the Muscogee County poor farm on Schatulga Road. Tower No. 3 is located just off Buena Vista Road in the east central part of the reservation.

Spotters

Spotters in the three towers can cover a radius of nine miles in any direction. If a fire breaks out at any point on the reservation, they immediately take a compass reading to the point of the fire from their location, and phone the reading in to the forester's headquarters, nerve center of the entire operation.

The dispatcher at headquarters overlays a line along the magnetic direction given him by the spotter. The point at which lines from two of the towers cross is the location of the fire.

When point of the fire is definitely fixed, the dispatcher sends out a fire-fighting crew, equipped with shovels, plows, water and chemical pumps.

Although fire-fighting is one of the major functions of the Forestry Section, it is by no means the only one.

"It is the responsibility of the forester to survey and inventory the reservation, inspect the timber harvest, supervise the civilian-operated lumber, naval stores, and pulpwood concessions, timber cruising in fire breaks at various locations.

At present Fort Benning leads all other military reservations in the country in lumber production.

Cadets Receive Awards for Merit

Awards for outstanding achievement were made to ROTC cadets last Saturday at the close of Field Day ceremonies in Doughboy Stadium.

Colonel William R. Blakely, deputy camp commander made presentations to cadets Eugene C. Dickey, Jr., leader of the best drilled squad, Harvey M. Spar, leader of the best drilled platoon, made up of men from The Citadel; and to W. O. Davis for the best assembly and disassembly of the M1 rifle.

Other weapons awards went to cadets W. C. Cunble, H. D. Beardsley, F. C. Sims, W. H. Williams and F. J. Perry.

The best mortar squad honors were copped by a team from Puerto Rico while the award for the best machine gun squad went to cadets from Wofford College.

The University of Kentucky had the outstanding oral message relay team and the University of Arkansas took the Tug-of-War.

Individual honors went to Cadets H. Witte for physical fitness and R. E. Wallingford for the finest command voice.

Kid's School Summer Session Ends Tomorrow

Some 26 Fort Benning youngsters begin a late-starting vacation tomorrow as the first summer session at the four post's children's schools end.

The curricula for the summer school was patterned after the Extended School Program. Classes in arts, music, nature study, and crafts as well as reading and arithmetic were taught.

The children also visited several Columbus industries.

No school credit was given for attendance at the summer session. The purpose of the school, according to Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, principal, was to fill the "educational vacuum" which exists during the summer vacation months.

Mrs. Scudder termed the summer program "highly successful," and said that it received a "very favorable response" from both parents and children.

Post schools included in the summer program, were the ones at Custer Terrace and Benning Park and the two at Main Post. Fifteen teachers taught the summer session.

Lt. Col. Leonard Named to Attend Command School

Lieutenant Col. John W. Leonard, commanding officer of the First Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, will report Aug. 4 to the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Colonel Leonard is a member of the Regular Army Reserve and is a graduate of Mars Area Boys' Academy for the Fine Washington and received the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal.

15 Make All-Post BB Team

Pilots Pick Team They Would Play

A total of 15 players from five of the seven Fort Benning League teams figured today in the announcement of The Bayonet's 1952 All-Post baseball team.

It's a mythical squad which will never see action, but it was picked — in cooperation with managers of all the teams — with the idea of being the best team Fort Benning could field if they were called on to play an outside foe tomorrow.

Champion Infantry School Re-Provisional Group each had four of their regulars named to the dream nine, while runner-up First Student Regiment and Combat Training Command placed three apiece.

One Medic

Provisional Medical Group was the only second division squad which gained notice, when Elbert (Al) Kinard, 37, their fancy-fielding first baseman who hits a healthy .363 at bat, drew the honor at the gateway bag.

The extra men are represented by the selection of a manager, two playing coaches who could sub as utility men, and the usual quartet of starting pitchers.

Handy Vets

Woody Burt, the 37-year old freshman pilot of ISD, was named skipper. The coaches are Bob Kinard, manager of First S.R., and Bobby Dews, field general of ASU's Raiders.

Although 37, Kinard is still an exceptional infielder and play maker, and his capabilities as a strategist aren't often disputed. Dews, at 37, was one of the loop's top clutch hitters, striking out only twice this season, and he probably could have had the All-Post nomination as catcher if he had played regularly.

Instead, he took Don Harper, a left fielder by trade, and converted him into the backstop who was to garner All-Post honors. There are perhaps several more experienced catchers in the loop, but they didn't play the position often enough.

No One Better

Meantime, Harper wound up the year as death on base stealers and otherwise comported himself excellently in the catching capacity.

Among the regular players there were some difficult choices to be made that left the managers and The Bayonet feeling far from smug.

Two outfielders, Bill Hahn, the league's co-batting champion with a .413 mark, and Reggie Carroll, who hit .402 and patrolled the center garden like he had a motorcycle, were unanimous selections.

Hard Choice

The third spot went to Joe Smith, who turned .361 Saturday, his big drawback, on his overall fielding savvy and a .328 batting average. Others like Bill Brooks, of First S.R., Frank Sparks and Tom Butts, of CTC, and Tom Smith, of ISD, drew heavy consideration on their respective strong points, but Joe was the choice in a clutch situation.

In the infield, the toughest pick was a third baseman. Dick Willingham, who got the nod, would have won hands down if he could have matched his fielding with a respectable BA.

Instead, he hit only .183 and was the slimmest of choices over Ralph Terry, First S.R., a jawing veteran who almost overcame say-nothing in his fielding with a husky .321 average. If another man were added to the mythical team, Terry would get the tab.

Glove Galore

Bobby Clark was the unanimous choice at shortstop. His hitting slipped from .300 in the season to .278, but he's a sweet man without peer afield. The right side of the diamond produced more twin talent than other fielder.

Lloyd Brill, a 21-year old ... is a genuine ... when he gets ... the choice all fielding ... finish to be ... (1)

First SR In Battle For Wichita Go

First Student Regiment, Georgia semi-pro baseball champions, were busy this week dueling in a 3-out-of-5 series with Camp Rucker, Ala., for a berth in the National Baseball Congress tournament in mid-August at Wichita's Lawrence Stadium.

The Fort Benning squad took the opening game, 4-2, Monday night behind the five-hit pitching of southpaw Joe Feinstein at Camp Rucker.

ANDALUSIA, Ala., (AP) — Camp Rucker evened the count in the Alabama-Georgia Semi-Pro baseball tournament last night by downing Fort Benning, 8-1.

The third game of the series will be played here Wednesday night.

Hal Ludd went the route for Rucker and scattered eight hits in chalking up his victory.

Joe Saull paced the Rucker hitting with two bingles.

Apparently pursuing the policy "if you can't beat 'em, get 'em to join you"—Manager Bob Kinard unhesitatingly tabbed Feinstein to fill the one roster change allowed under the rules for the regional battle.

Feinstein, with Infantry School Detachment, had beaten them four times during the Benning League campaign.

Rough Going

The remaining games in the series with Rucker, the Alabama state champs, were to be played at Andalusia, Ala.

Four straight singles in the seventh inning broke up a 2-2 tie in Monday's game. Veteran outfielder Carl Sheppard poked the safety which drove in two runs and decided the issue.

Sheppard and Kinard each got two hits in the game.

A Batter-Fixer

Rucker got its two-run lead in the sixth on a double, error, a walk and an infield out.

Thirty-two teams from all sections of the nation will be qualified for the national tournament which will be on a double elimination basis. In 1949, a Fort Benning nine went as far as the quarter finals at Wichita.

Feeling Great

The First S.R. squad left here Monday in much better condition physically and mentally than two weeks ago when they were bombed three straight by ISD for the post pennant.

They had gone into the post series with less than a day's rest from winning the Georgia title in four straight games, one of their regulars was benched and two others had leg injuries.

The team was given a rousing sendoff Friday night at a baseball banquet which featured a rousing pep talk by Col. Kenneth Macomber, First SR commanding officer. The players also received awards for their Benning League performances.

Benner Wins Gold Medal In Olympic Shoot

M-Sgt. Huelet (Joe) Benner, who took his training at Fort Benning, added to the United States' growing collection of gold medals in the Olympics last week end by winning the rifle prone championship with a 553 of a possible 600 points.

It couldn't be immediately decided, but this exceptional score may better the old Olympic standard by a few points.

The 34-year old Benner, who returns to Benning next week, was the only American to place in the top ten in the event which calls for 60 shots at 50 meters into a target with a bull-eye about the size of a silver dollar.

Sweet Shooting

Benner holds the world rapid fire title and was the world top pistol man in 1950.

Second in the field was Angel Leach, Spain, with 550, while the only other American, Harry Reeves, of Detroit, was thirtieth.

Benner is from Fort Kobbe, Panama. He first won his Olympic championship across town here and has shot several matches in the Columbus area. He is a veteran of 17 years service and is now a member of the Army pistol team now training here.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

SO LEW JENKINS will be back in lights and in a boxing ring Friday night. Veteran punch-for-pay fans will feel a sincere touch of nostalgia, for here was one of the old school of clouters, a courageous fighting machine with a savage malice toward opponents, and as grusomely beautiful a right hand punch as you ever saw.

This won't be like the forties, of course. It's an exhibition. Three, two-minute rounds against (or with) a nice kid, Larry Mujica, who is a fair club fighter as they make them today, but wouldn't have lasted 30 seconds against Jenkins in his prime. That's no slur at Mujica. Facts are facts.

But it is also a fact that this is 1952, and the Sweetwater Swatter—if they ever called him anything besides 'Lew'—is 35 years old, has two bloody wars and a lot of grandiose living and foolishness under his belt. A 23-year old Mujica, who is fighting regularly, might slip in and tag him one, not meaning to at all.

To my mind, that would be sad indeed. In no sport do they disintegrate so rapidly once they have begun to fall as they do in boxing. It's a shame because boxers have a pride much more fierce than many kinds of athletes. All of the good ones do at any rate. And wouldn't it be bitter irony to see Lew Jenkins humiliated by time in a little ring out in the sticks (as the boxing world goes) before a crowd which for the most part was denied seeing him in his greatness?

Or maybe it would be logic. Few fighters are able to dismiss tragedy from the script of their life's drama. Not so many miles from here lives Beau Jack, another great little champion of the decade past. I mention it because when Jack started down, blowing and having blown for him a considerable fortune, he paused long enough to meet our boy Lew who already was a war hero.

It was in Washington, D. C., in 1950, and this one was strictly for a pay day. Jenkins lost on a TKO, claiming a foul and it was his last fight. The Beau now makes his living by shining shoes in Augusta. I saw him recently at the Columbus Arena, picking up a little extra coin as handler for a gang of awkward kids who want to be fighters.

I also recall the night four years ago, deep in the bowels of Yankee Stadium, where Joe Louis sat, tears or sweat in his eyes, and solemnly proclaimed he had defended his heavyweight crown for the last time because it had just taken him 11 agonizing rounds to knock out an old dancer named Jersey Joe Something or the other.

"What happens to the title?" I shouted over the din of dozens of scrambling sports writers, and pig-grabbers clamoring for "a smile, please, champ!"

"You can have it," he said, but he didn't mean it and we knew it.

There was that commanded, but admirable pride of a champion again and soon after it carried him into the ring against Ezzard Charles (The Original Boy Nothing) Charles just couldn't support his weary arms and legs, and, last, Rocky Marciano, who is far yet from being a tiger, if ever.

Lew Jenkins at 35 will give you an elementary lesson in courage by climbing through the ropes tomorrow night, and, if possible in a three-round exhibition, will show you something about pride, and when fighters earned their dough as masters of a leverless science, not by pawing each other clumsily to meet, in large part, "the obligation of a date for a television bout." Make with the cheers, pals, because he was worth all he ever got.

Boxing Begins Friday; Jenkins In Exhibition

A current Third Army champion and a former lightweight champion of the world will be co-featured on the first boxing card of the 1952-53 Fort Benning amateur season at 8 p.m. Friday at Gowdy Field, main post.

Ten bouts are scheduled.

In addition, Lew Jenkins, holder of the world's 135-pound title in 1940-41, has agreed to box Larry Mujica, present Georgia welterweight king, an exhibition of three two-minute rounds.

Jenkins, who has been assigned here since earning the Silver Star at Bloody Ridge in Korea, is now 35 years old.

Last In 1950

His last official fight was with Beau Jack, another grand old campaigner, in 1950, before enlisting in the service for the fourth time. He was only a shadow then of the guy who knocked out Lou Ambers in three, and tomorrow nights mill will serve little more than to recall memories of better boxing days.

On the business side of the card, Len James, who went to the quarter finals of this years All-Army boxing tournament, meets Jesse Florez, who lost a decision and the post lightweight championship to James this spring.

The Threats

Florez, a semi-finalist in the light welter class of the 1952 Third Army tournament at Camp Gordon, Ga., represents 503d Airborne. James, a master stylist with a solid punch, is from First Student Regiment.

All bouts on the regulation card feature three rounds of three minutes duration each. Team scoring will be done to decide a post ring championship, and the smoothly borne James, a master stylist with a solid punch, is from First Student Regiment.

All bouts on the regulation card feature three rounds of three minutes duration each. Team scoring will be done to decide a post ring championship, and the smoothly series of cards will result eventually in the crowning of Fort Benning's 1953 individual boxing champs.

Heavy Hops

In another potentially exciting bout, Lou Barnes, second ranking Benning heavyweight this spring meets First S.R.'s William Henley, of Combat Training Command.

George Blackburn, ASU Provisional Group middleweight who won three and lost one this past season, meets southpaw Burt Stevens, of Combat Training Command, in another promising match.

Stevens declioned Blackburn, but kept his only other start.

Good Guys Back

A couple more familiar faces from the 1952 wars go on tap. Pedro Menjares, who won the post's class three welterweight title with a 6-1 record, takes on Carlton Rice, of Combat Training Command. The latter is a newcomer.

Ray Kiker, Benning's class three feather champ now ... as a lightweight, tests Bob Rogers, of Combat Training Command. William McClendon, ... heavyweight who had one fight last season and won it, meets Jack Samuels of First S.R.

The rest of the pairings involve newcomers. Here's how they're paired:

Welterweight — Tillman Davis, First S.R. vs. Carl Roberts, C.T.C.
Light Welter — James Gregory, First S.R. vs. Jack Mowry, A.S.U.
Light Middle — Al Hawthorne, ASU vs. George Cook, C.T.C.

The bouts are staged here five classes under the Hawaiian system and the scoring for winners ranges from one to five points according to class. Until they get squared away with a couple of cards under their belts, however, class won't be worth mentioning either to the spectators or the fighters.

Rosy Future

Eight of our ten post champions from the '52 season which closed ... but only three months ago ... are back along with a lot of good rank and file sluggers. Actually this is just an early start of the 1953 season.

The idea is to develop a set of real sturdy champs for next spring's Third and All Army tournaments and to provide Benning fans with some added action. Boxing is the post's third ranking sport ... in the ...

Pro Fights Due Aug. 6 At Gowdy

Professional boxing, a major runnerup in the All-Army tourney sports attraction at Fort Benning in the 1936's, returns to the post next Wednesday night, Aug. 6, with a pair of co-featured ten rounders designed to get things off to a rousing start in the Gowdy Field ring.

A pair of Benning's own cash-and-carry sockers will be headlined.

Willie Ferguson, of Combat Training Command, veteran Philadelphia-Miami light heavyweight with a tremendous reach, meets Bob Green, 168-pounder from New Orleans, in one of the two bouts.

Grid Slates Near Ready

Fort Benning's four football teams will play some outside competition this all than they did in 1951, according to Maj. Gene Myers, post sports officer, who is working for added outside opponents on an 'at home or away' basis.

Meantime, the major and his staff are having the usual difficulty arranging the schedule for the post league which gets under way Sept. 20.

"There's just no such thing as a perfectly balanced schedule which makes every coach think he's got the best deal," moaned Myers as he juggled his figures again Monday.

It's Dec. Out

Seriously, the slate should be ready early next week.

On the action side, equipment will be issued by Special Services to the teams during the coming week and all four squads will probably be drilling by Aug. 15.

Coach Jack Faubion, of the ASU Provisional Group Infantry School Detachment combo, has put out a call to players for 1 p.m. Aug. 11.

All to players for 1 p.m. Aug. 11 at the second quartet main post.

First Lt. August Dielens, freshman skipper of the First Student Brigade Provisional Medical Troop Rams, will hold his first player conclave Aug. 6.

Coaches Frank Tubridy and Cpl. Jil Dickerson took an initial roll call of Combat Training Command pigskin pushers last Thursday night. Some 57 were on hand including a liberal sprinkling of seasoned leftovers from '51, namely starling backs Frank Spaniel, Adam Zubaty and George Bell.

There won't be any notifible grid goings-on in the 508th Airborne until after ROTC units training in the Red Devil area pull out shortly, according to Coach Jim Phillips.

Help Wanted

Biggest concern for all mentors presently is the selection of a staff of assistant coaches.

"I've talked with ten men in the past few days," said Dielens, typically. "I think I've found about three or four of that group who can help us a lot."

Now Training Here

A former All-Skyline Conference football player from the University of Wyoming is a student in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course One in the 11th Company of Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. Robert Schlidgen played in the 1951 Gator Bowl Game at Jacksonville, and won three varsity football letters for the Cowboys.

'52 All-Post

guilty on several instances — with his .400 batting.

One Question

The pitching seemed pretty much cut-and-dried to the pilots, with one exception. That was right hander Floyd Kendall, 1-5, who seemed effective enough considering that he was with a collar team, the Medics, but his ERA of 5.99 runs per game failed to support him against the regulars who did win with the better clubs.

They were lefty Joe Feinstein, 2.07; Carroll Matison, the second choice with 3.72 and 5-4, Ken Middleton, 2.25 and 4-1, and Lloyd Brill, 3.37 and 4-3 the latter three are right handers.

Most Valuable

No consideration was given for any special awards, but a Most Valuable Player choice almost assuredly would be Feinstein. Pitchers are usually skipped because they see comparitively infrequent action, but in Joe's case he worked in 13 of ISD's 18 games compiling an 11-3 mark which included a no-hitter.

Easley, six-two, 199 - pound first base choice, had to beat out some strong contention, most pricipally Mel Southall, of ISD, who improved as the season progressed. Al would be considered a pro prospect, but plans to give up baseball because of a painful leg wound suffered in Korea.

He is not pictured in the accompanying layout because he departed immediately after the season for medical schooling at Fort Lee, Va.

Ring Classifications Explained for Fans

Fighters for the 1952-53 Fort Benning amateur boxing season are divided into five classes for the purpose of determining individual and team championships.

A class one fighter is an amateur or service champion; class two is an experienced battler who never won a title, class three is a fighter who has had at least 10 bouts and won six; class four is for a novice who has won, and class five is for a beginner or a novice who has never won.

Hi-Power Shoot Expected to Get Near 100 Entries

Arrangements are being made to accommodate 140 shooters and at least 100 are expected here Aug. 9-10 for the Southeastern Regional High Power Rifle Matches at McAndrew Range.

Some 40 Marine riflemen and 10-man squad from the 82nd Airborne are among the outstanding entries already filed, according to Lt. Col. Aleck MacDonald, president of the sponsoring Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

Army Strong

Candidates in training for the U. S. Army rifle team here under the direction of Lt. Col. Frank Barnett also will be entered. The All Army squad is expected to enter about eight three-man teams.

Entries close next Monday.

Maj. Warren P. Davis has been named executive officer of the NRA-sanctioned event and Maj. A. E. Sikes as chief statistical officer.

Bill Lockhart, Lion Track Ace, Seeks Commission Here

One of the nation's top collegiate trackmen of recent season is now an officer candidate with 25th Company, First O. C. Regiment.

He's Bill Lockhard who sparked Penn State's thinclads in the sprint and middle distances until last season, Lockhart was a member of State's 440-yard relay team which won the national title in the 1950 Penn Relays.

Bill started his running at William Penn High in Harrisburg, Pa.

In the next three years with the Nittany Lions, he set a school record of 49.1 for the quarter and 440 squad's winning time of 41.3 was only 4.10 seconds off the world standard.

Lockhart also ran the 100 and 220. He plans to return to Penn State to complete a phys ed degree following his present tour of duty.

Mrs. Irene Curtiss is new Fort Benning women's golf chairman with Mrs. Ruth Raffery as co-chairman. Mrs. Joyce Marley was named tourney chairman and Mrs. Mary Frye, handicap chairman.

Mrs. Toni and Mrs. Marie Minion were named publicity chairmen. Mrs. Curtiss succeeds Mrs. Tommie Jenkins who is leaving the post next month.

Some 32 candidates are working out daily at McAndrew Range, main post, in preparation for Southeastern Regional High Power Championships here Aug. 9-10.

Bklyn. Diver Surprised All

When Henry Cazalet copped top honors in the two diving events of the recent 1952 Infantry Center Swimming Meet a lot of the favorites from other units were inclined to said, "Who he?"

Cazalet was a last-minute entry from 26th Company, First O.C. Regiment. Last-minute is correct. He had just returned from a strenuous 36-hour field problem.

But his winning form in the one and three-meter dives was no accident.

Back in his native Brooklyn, Cazalet performed with the fin team both in high school and at Brooklyn College.

To top it off nicely, Hank received his gold bars as a second lieutenant last week. He'll return to Brooklyn for a visit with his family and then shove off for Camp Chaffee, Ark., and a new assignment.

ISD Ball Club Joins City Industrial Loop

Pistol Team Best Yet - Swindler

With a half dozen holders of the Distinguished Marksman Badge and 4 members from last year's team back, the 1952 U.S. Army pistol team will enter the National Championships Aug. 15-19 at Jacksonville, Fla., with its strongest squad ever.

That was the opinion Tuesday of Col. Perry D. Swindler, team captain, as he put 11 of his charges through their gruelling daily practice grind at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club range.

"It looks like we'll be getting better each year for some time now," noted the colonel. "It takes about four years to get a good shooter ready for the All-Army team."

"Of course, we aren't alone," he added hastily as someone suggested that the Army should have no trouble in repeating their 1951 feat of capturing the Nationals as they did in California.

Here Comes Marines

"The Marines have twenty very good shooters who have been training at Parris Island for the past two months. They'll be at Jacksonville, and so will a team from the Jacksonville Naval Air Station, which I hear has a lot of talent."

Col. Swindler trimmed his squad to 11 men a week ago following the Northeastern Regional Meet in which the Army set the team pace over a Marine and civilian squads.

M-Sgt. Joe Benner, of Caribbean Command, who just finished scoring a record-breaking Olympic victory, will join the squad about the middle of next week. Others due are Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, of Fort Sill, Okla., and Maj. William Hancock, of FECOM, who shot with Benner on the U. S. team in another record-smashing performance at the Internationals in, Oslo, Norway, prior to the Olympics.

Shooting Here

Members of the team drilling here are Lt. Col. Chester Harvie, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., Capt. F. R. Smith, Fort Riley, Kans., Capt. Fred Keifer, WOJG Bob Knight, M-Sgt. Bob Van Keuren, of Fort Benning, M-Sgt. Leo Vause, and Capt. Ben Curtis, Fort Bragg, N.C., Capt. D. H. Thomas, Fort McPherson, Ga., WOJG Oscar Weinmeister, Fort Knox, Ky., M-Sgt. Howard Phelps, Fort Bliss, Tex., and Pfc. Tom Buckmaster, Camp Rucker, Ala.

Holders of the Army's Distinguished Marksman Badge for pistol are Curtis, Thomas, Sharpe, Benner, Hancock and Weinmeister. All except Hancock were on the 1951 U. S. Army team which also included Vause.

Nine men will make up the official team at Jacksonville.

Five Benning Shots Score

WOJG Oscar Weinmeister won a grand aggregate honors with a 2,570x2,700 as Fort Benning shooters took 17 individual marks and three team matches Saturday and Sunday in completely dominating the fourth annual Dixie Pistol Match at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Weinmeister also highlighted the individual performers with a perfect 100x100 score in the 50-yard slow fire match.

The Fort Benning squad which won .22, .38 and .45-cal. team events was made up of Capt. Fred Keifer, WOJG Robert Knight, M-Sgt. Robert Van Keuren and Capt. Ralph Anthony.

Capt. David Thomas, of McPherson, won second grand aggregate with a 2,556 and made a clean sweep of all rapid fire matches.

Knight was winner in two matches and second in another pair. Van Keuren was second in two and coppeda first expert, while Keifer has three first experts and a second expert, and Anthony two second experts, three first sharpshooters and one second sharpshooter.

Fifth Company Has Own Muscle Squad

The fifth Officer Candidate Company, intent on making a better showing in the next regimental physical fitness test, has devised a novel system to gain top honors in the muscle contests.

Within the company, numerous candidates have organized a physical fitness team, with at least 20 candidates trying out for positions.

The last contenders, Neil Caldwell, Stephan Strauss, Michael. Kelly, James Hassett, and Herbert Moon are pitting their strength against others in their outfit in the daily workouts in hopes of bringing home banners to the Fifth Company trophy room.

Rockets Split In Softball

The Second Student Regiment softball team bounced back in the winning column last week with a 5-1 triumph over First S. R. in a TIC scrap.

The Rockets were never in trouble as Roy Pierce stopped the losers on four hits. The winners collected nine safeties, Ted York and Bob Cook pacing the assault with two apiece. One of York's was a home run.

The Second SR racked up one run in the first when York singled, stole second, and came home on a one-base knock by Cook.

The Second lost a 2-1 decision to the First O. C. Regiment in a TIC contest earlier in the week.

The game was a scoreless until the seventh. Bob Cook pitched for the losers while Joe Baker handled the O. C. Mound chores, each allowing two hits.

INJURED PLAYER BACK

Second Lt. Paul Foster Jr., Second SR baseball player who suffered a broken ankle in an early Benning League game, has been released from the hospita and will complete the AICO course with the 103rd company.

Face-Lifted Rams Boast Same Old Talent Depth

BY HANK HEID

Breaking up of the original Ryer and Pruett Rams combination which won last year's post football championship, and the usual graduation losses through transfers and separations, has not only failed to put any crimp in the Rams' chances for the 1953 crown, but has actually improved the outlook.

At least during the early stages of practice which started Capt. William Ryer, 4th Infantry Regiment, and Lt. Dave Barrett, of Provisional Medical Group, are telling it.

Ryer, you know, replaces Ft. Benning Infantry School lieutenants as Brigade's pigskin partner for the coming season.

The new Rams, new master, Lt. August Dielaire, of 17th O.C. Company, isn't saying anything for publication yet. He meets with his squad for the first time Aug. 3.

Rookies Ready

Lt. Barrett reports more than a score of new and college-experienced players in the Quartermaster Regiment are waiting to be tapped from the Marines.

In First SR, at least four of the '53 Rams are set to pick up their jerseys. Besides Ryer, Lt. Dielaire, and Barrett, Capt. Ralph Dupre, 4th Infantry Regiment, and Lt. Jack Rankin, 4th Student Regt., are expected to be on hand.

Dupre, Rankin, Barrett and Ryer all saw action with the Rams last year, Dupre and Rankin as linemen, Barrett as a halfback and Ryer as a fullback.

Lt. Dielaire, who has been in charge of football at Ft. Jackson, S. C., for the past two years, is a former Ft. Benning player. He was a member of the Infantry School squad which won the Third Army championship in 1950.

Dielaire was a standout halfback at Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., and played professional football with the Washington Redskins.

Lt. Barrett, a former Ft. Benning player, was a member of the Infantry School squad which won the Third Army championship in 1950. He

ALL-ARMY LIGHT HEAVY JOINS ASU RING TEAM
Claude Chapman, (r.), goes over record with Coach John Wilson.

Raider Ring Team Lands All-Army Light Heavy Hope

ASU Provisional Group's chance of retaining its present post boxing championship in the ring wars opening Friday night took a decided boost last week with the addition of an All-FECOM champ to the squad.

The newcomer is Claude Chapman, a 172-pounder, who has won 29 of 36 amateur fights, his sole loss coming from Richard Jones, the current All-Army light heavyweight king.

From Far East

Chapman earned a trip from the Far East to the All-Army tourney and lost to Jones there in a quarter final bout. He had won four straight in the FECOM tourney, two by the long snore route.

Now assigned to 666th Transportation Truck Company, he has served with the Second Division and Eighth Army. Chapman was drafted into service in 1951 from his native Augusta, Ga.

In service, he also has fought at Camp Gordon, Ga., and Oliver General Hospital.

Small Group Upped To Maj., Lt. Col.

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army has promoted another small increment of officers. Ranks affected are captain to major and major to lieutenant colonel.

One hundred captains were temporarily promoted to major. Their cut-off date remains the same as in promotions authorized early in July — May 23, 1948.

Of the group, 99 were holders of ORC commissions and one was a national guardsman.

Forty-three majors were promoted to lieutenant colonel with an Aug. 31, 1945 cut-off date. Of this group six were regular Army, 36 ORC and one a national guardsman.

Today Is 163rd Birthday Of Department Of the Army

Today marks the 163rd birthday of the Department of the Army, formerly known as the War Department. On August 7, 1789 the second executive department of the United States, the War Department, was created by Congress.

Enactment of the National Security Act of 1947 combined the War Department, Navy Department, and all other military agencies into the Department of Defense, of which the Department of the Army, replacing the War Department, is a part.

Congress, on June 13, 1775, created a Board of War and Ordnance at the request of General George Washington. The Board of War was the parent of the Department of the Army of today.

Second Department

The act of August 7, 1789, established the second executive department of the young American Government and named it the Department of War. Congress decided that the new department should have a principal officer at the head of the organization. Thus the post of Secretary of War was established.

With the establishment of the new executive department, the old Board of War and Ordnance of 1775 ceased to exist.

The duties given to the new department were of a military nature, and were almost exclusively executive in character. The War Department was charged not alone with the establishment, maintenance, equipment and operation of the Army, but with the functions of the Navy as well. The first vessels of the new Republic's Navy were built and launched by the Department of War many months before the Navy Department came into existence.

Revolutionary War

During the Revolutionary War stern necessity had caused the establishment of a staff organization roughly similar to the present Department of the Army organization, exclusive of the General Staff. Thus there was an Adjutant General, an Inspector General, a Judge Advocate, a Quartermaster General, a Paymaster General, a Chief Engineer, and later a Surgeon General of the Hospital Detachment.

In the main, the duties indicated by these titles and a few additions since that time are performed within the Department of the Army today.

From 1812 onward the various staff departments have been organized and recognized as agencies of the Secretary of the Army. The Secretary of the Army was supplied with an assistant in 1903 and in 1903 a new act provided him with a Chief of Staff and a War Department General Staff.

Act of 1916

The National Defense Act of 1916 set up the component parts of the Army and included the National Guard and Organized Reserve in the over-all organization.

A War Department Circular in 1942 created the three forces of the Army—Army Ground Forces, Army Air Forces, and Services of Supply.

The reorganization of the War Department in 1946 provided the Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff with a General Staff, a Special Staff, and Administrative and Technical Staff and Services.

Unification

The War Department was confronted with the problem of separating and unifying with the other services with the enactment of the National Security Act of 1947.

Under this act the War Department was transferred to the newly created National Military Establishment and redesignated the Department of the Army.

The Department of the Army today is charged with the responsibility of organizing, maintaining, training and equipping the Army of the United States.

For direction and control of the Army, the Commander-in-Chief, the President of the United States, relies upon the Secretary of the Army, Mr. Frank Pace, Jr., and the Army Chief of Staff, Gen. J. Lawton Collins. These two department heads in turn are aided by the General and Special Staffs and the Administrative and Technical Services.

Lt. Col. Easley Named to Head Liaison Section

Lt. Col. Claudius M. Easley Jr. has been named the head of The Infantry School Allied Liaison Section. He succeeds Lt. Col. Stephen T. Meade.

Colonel Easley received his commission through ROTC at the University of California in 1938.

During World War II he served with the Intelligence Division of the War Department and was with Headquarters, Sixth Army in the Pacific in 1944 and '45.

He was a member of the staff of the U. S. Military Attache in Paris and later served with the Third Division in Korea.

Colonel Meade leaves his post to attend the Infantry School Advanced Course.

29TH OC COMPANY DRILL TEAM DRESSED IN DISTINCTIVE UNIFORM

29th OC Unit Organizes 27 Member Drill Team

A 27-man drill team that was the brain-child of 1st Lt. Gardner Marchant is the pride of the 29th Officer Candidate Company.

The 27 team members, all officer candidates, work as many as three hours a day after their regular duties are over to reach the degree of precision and snap that they claim make their team outstanding.

Lieutenant Marchant is aptly fitted to command the team. He was on an ROTC drill team in his high school days in Gloucester, Mass., and was drill master of his college team at Norwich University in Vermont.

However, Lieutenant Marchant in organizing the team, felt that it needed a candidate drill master, since it was principally a candidate project.

Found Man

He found his man in Candidate John W. Walker, Jr. Candidate Walker had no previous experience with a drill team, but had formerly been a member of the 3rd Armored Division Honor Guard at Fort Knox, Ky.—selected for his abilities in drill, leadership, and military bearing.

Under the watchful eyes of Lieutenant Marchant, Candidate Walker forged the team into a unit that moved as an individual — both in standard drill and the manual of arms and fancy drill movements.

The drill team made its first public appearance in late May, when the 29th OC Company presented a joint physical training, bayonet, and drill demonstration.

Black and White

After the first two portions of the demonstration were over, the team took the field dressed in black and white helmets, starched khakis, white dress belts with decorative buckles, dark boots with white laces, and blue silk scarves.

Saturday, the 29th OC Company is slated to reach senior status, and on that day the drill team plans to present an eye-opening performance of its art.

Members of the team include Officer Candidates Nicholas Draskovitch, Hobart Jamieson, James Golden, Rodney Mendenhall, John Collins, William Heiney, Richard Davidson, James Kirkpatrick, Thomas McHardy and James Yates.

Howard Metzger, Samuel Whitfield, Walter Harvey, John Kearney, Arnold Morrison, John Goss, David Mueller, Ferdinand Epps, Clayton Purdy, William Williams, Don Hennigan, Donovan Hapgood, Richard Nattriger, Robert Foutts, Paul O'Connel and Carter Jenkins.

Company D, 30th Gets Top Rating

Company "D" 30th Infantry Regiment has been commended by its Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Gordon J. Jorgenson for receiving a superior rating for 12 straight days for demonstrations with the Infantry School.

Included in these demonstrations were such problems as "Rifle Company in Attack," "75mm Rifle Platoon in Attack" and "Machine Gun in Attack."

'Y' Councilmen To Get Emblems

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, will present recognition emblems to members of the Servicemen's Council of the Armed Services YMCA Saturday evening.

T. G. Reeves, chairman of the YMCA Management Committee, will introduce General Young during The Infantry Center commander's first visit to the YMCA.

The awards, the first of their kind presented to the Council, a group of enlisted men who assist the program planning for the YMCA, will be made during the regular Saturday night dance.

The Armed Services YMCA is located in downtown Columbus at 14 West Eleventh Street.

Four Receive Awards at Post

Three officers and a master sergeant have received awards ranging from a Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to a Commendation Ribbon.

They are Lt. Col. John Milliken, Jr., a member of The Infantry School Staff Department; Lt. Col. Edward Harding Jr., Infantry Center Finance Officer; 1st Lt. Valentine C. Cool, an instructor in the Staff Department; and M-Sgt. Edward I. Kimball, a member of the Operations Department of The Infantry School.

Colonel Milliken was awarded a Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device for valor by Col. J. V. Thompson, Staff Department director.

He received the honor for heroism in action while commanding the First Battalion, Eighth Calvary Regiment, First Cavalry Division in Korea.

Colonel Harding was presented the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service by Col. Daniel Hundley, Infantry Center Comptroller. The award was made for service performed while Ft. Benning Officer of the 24th Infantry Division in Korea.

Col. J. V. Thompson, Staff Department director presented the Army Commendation Ribbon to Lieutenant Cool for meritorious service in Korea while a member of the 17th Infantry Regiment, Seventh Infantry Division.

Sergeant Kimball, ammunition sergeant in the operations department, received the Army Commendation Ribbon from Col. Stanley N. Lonning, Infantry School operations officer, for meritorious service he performed in that capacity since August 1949.

Technicians Arrive For Movie Set

The two Signal Corps technicians are completing arrangements on movie sets which are being built at Caramoche Village. The sets are being built for a training film "The Rifle Platoon in Attack in Built-Up areas." Production on the film is tentatively scheduled to begin August 19th.

Assisting her will be Mrs. Charles Surina, tickets; Mrs. Mount Frantz, decorations, Mrs. Carl Kurtz, music; Mrs. Kemp Martin, ushers(es); Mrs. John Bradshaw, models and Mrs. Cecil Whaley, publicity.

Wives of Lawson Field officers and their children will be models for the fashion show, Mrs. Whaley reported that all proceeds will be used for a local service charity.

Rockets Trim Profs, 5-4

The Second Student Regiment softball team roared back with a three-run rally in the final inning to snatch a 5-4 decision from Infantry School Detachment in a Tuesday night game.

Bill Wallace's home run with one on in the seventh turned the trick.

OLD FRIENDS and NEW at Fort Benning

Evils Of Swearing Is Old

If you think you've heard this before, you are probably right because leaders of our nation go far back as General George Washington used their influence to so effect in combat swearing.

We don't intend to preach to you about swearing which is only proof of a limited vocabulary, but we quote good authority on its evils.

In July, 1775, General Washington issued the following order:

WEAPONS MEN SET UP 60 MM MORTAR

Weapons Platoons Make Potent Striking Force

BY CAPT. CRAIG SCOTT

The weapons platoon, found in every infantry rifle company, is one of the potent striking forces that has helped many an infantryman from a tight spot.

In Combat Training Command, rifle company weapon platoons are engaged daily in training problems presented for infantry school students. Many of the men in these weapons platoons are combat veterans, either of Korean fighting or World War II action.

As Cpl. Rudolph Duran puts it, "Weapons platoons are the knuckles on the infantry's strong right hand." Corporal Dugan should know—he served with a weapons platoon in the Second Division in Korea.

BEACH RESORT FOR CTC MEN AT ST. AUGUSTINE

First Group of CTC Men Return From St. Augustine Vacation

The first group of men from the Combat Training Command, including the 30th Infantry Regiment, are scheduled to return Saturday from the Command's St. Augustine vacation area.

Tuesday the group left the San Hill area in chartered area. Each week 3 busels of 112 men are slated to make the trip to the St. Augustine Beach hotel at a cost of $27.17 each.

Maj. William P. DeBrocke, project officer, says the beach has swimming as well as other water activities for the men. The $27.17 price includes transportation to and from St. Augustine as well as meals and lodgings for the entire stay at the Florida resort.

2 Generations of Post Babies Nursed By Civilian Worker

Army families for two generations have been diapered and cared for by a Fort Benning civilian worker in the 27 years she has been employed at the U. S. Army hospital here.

She is Mrs. Minnie G. Honesty, who says she cared for at least 25 second generation babies in the 20 years she was assigned to the Obstetrics ward.

She says some of the babies she attended in her first years have already been born to the parents to new babies of their own.

Capt. Jennie Westmoreland, one of Mrs. Honesty's supervisors says, "Minnie is our standby. She is one of the most devoted and dependable attendants we have ever had working in this department."

Captain Westmoreland says Mrs. Honesty's love Minnie's kind face and motherly manner. She is known to insist that things are done correctly when she is there in charge.

Mrs. Honesty was assigned to the Women's Medical Ward, was the first Negro nurse assigned to the Fort Benning hospital. When she reported for duty, the hospital consisted of the small main wing of the present hospital.

"It's hard for people to realize the change that has taken place in medicine, methods and equipment in the last two and a half decades," Mrs. Honesty said, "but I have been right here and seen the change taking place always for the better."

In January, 1944, she was awarded a commendation for meritorious service.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Second Lt. N. J. Daniel has been assigned as executive officer of 25th Company, First Student Regiment. He is a Korean veteran with a total of 30 months overseas service.

TO SCHOOL

Sgt. Thomas G. Fitts is on temporary duty to 18th Company, First Student Regiment, to attend a course of instruction as The Infantry School Automotive Department.

MOBILITY IS IMPORTANT ASSET IN WEAPONS SUPPORT
Left To Right, Cpl. Rudolph Duran, Pfc. Chester Papiernik And Pfc. Barris M. Jones

Armed with 60mm mortars, light and heavy machine guns, recoilless rifles, as well as carbines, pistols and M-1 rifles, the weapons platoon is often referred to by combat men as "portable artillery."

Close Fighting

Since weapons platoons characteristically fight close-in to the enemy, directly supporting squads or platoons, men in these outfits can see the results of their work — something that heavy artillerymen can't very often do.

Men in weapons platoons strike hard and move fast — "good tactics in anyone's book," observes Corporal Jerry A. Dean, another veteran of the fighting in Korea. Both he and Corporal Duran are from the same town, enlisted together, and have served together throughout their Army career as weapons specialists together.

Both men feel that they are providing an invaluable service in training men to handle the heavy weapons as expertly as they do.

87th Smoke Unit Can Cover Enemy

The 48 smoke generators in the 87th Chemical Smoke Generator Company of the Combat Training Command, are capable of blanketing a 60 square mile area with dense smoke.

The unit is commanded by First Lt. James H. Gross of Hagerstown, Md., who only a few months ago was creating the same kind of smoke screens in Korea as support of the 3rd and 25th American divisions as well as British forces.

But making smoke isn't the only responsibility of a smoke generator company. They must thoroughly understand such allied sciences as meteology and map making.

The wind, perhaps, plays the most important role in effective screening of troops in combat. When the wind is moving in the right direction, blankets of smoke can be laid effectively and precisely.

However, the wind is an unpredictible ally. A change at the wrong moment can cause widespread change of plans to insure the success of an operation.

The smoke can be manufactured in a matter of minutes. It is produced by the smoke generators which are intricate mechanisms.

In the present mission of the 87th, training figures prominently. New men arrive daily, and must be introduced to tactics and techniques that most of them have never heard of. They must be introduced to operations maps and aerial photographs, which help every smoke-maker plan his movements and operations.

Col. Adams Named to Head Research, Analysis Group

The Infantry School's Research and Analysis Section has a new chief in Col. James Y. Adams who has been named to replace Lt. Col. B. M. Davis, acting chief, who will remain in the section.

Colonel Adams, former chief of the Attack Group of The Infantry School's Tactics Department, since March, 1952, came to The Infantry Center from Korea, where he was commanding officer of the 23rd Infantry Regiment, Second Infantry Division.

He is a 1935 graduate of the United States Military Academy. A veteran of 72 months overseas service, Colonel Adams served in England and North Africa in 1942, and in the Aleutian Islands in 1943. He was assistant G3 of the Pacific Ocean Area command from 1944-45 and chief of the military mission to Honduras from 1946-49.

He holds the Silver Star, the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart the French Croix de Guerre with Palms and the Cross of an Officer of the Legion of Honor.

Colonel Davis, former acting R & A chief, received his ROTC commission upon graduation from Lehigh University in 1931 and came on active duty in 1941.

During World War II Colonel Davis served as chief of the Mortar-Anti-tank Committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department from 1943-44 and saw overseas service with the 97th Division in Europe in 1945.

He holds the Silver Star, the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Purple Heart Medal.

Three SR Men Total 85 Years Service

Three old-timers in Service Company, First Student Regiment, have a total of 85 years active duty service in the Army.

The three men are M-Sgt. Marsh Worsham, 34 years; Cpl. Henry Hunter, 27 years, and Sgt. Henry Scott, 24 years.

Army Loses, Marines Gain Lieutenant

The Army lost out to the Marines last June when the Leathernecks made a lieutenant out of 23 year-old Jimmie D. Lester.

Lieutenant Lester just completed six weeks of training at the Infantry ROTC Summer Camp at Fort Benning. He was eligible for a commission in the Army, but a wide flanking movement was executed by the Marine Corps to bring him into the ranks of the Leathernecks.

Lester's preference for Marine service stems from three years' service as an enlisted man in the Corps from 1946 to 1949. He completed academic work at Texas A & M College in the spring of this year, and was named a Distinguished Military Graduate of that institution.

The oath of office as a second lieutenant was administered by Lt. Col. W. G. Shoop, a Marine Corps officer detailed to The Infantry School as an instructor in amphibious operations.

The new lieutenant will enter on active duty on August 18th. His first station will be at the Marine Corps base at Quantico, Virginia.

1,500 See Boxing Return

Fort Benning's amateur fighters — amateur in everything except guts and spirit, that is — are back and some 1,500 post fans were on hand to greet them last Friday night at Gowdy Field.

A couple of things were immediately obvious.

(1) Four teams — ASU Provisional Group, Combat Training Command, 508th Airborne and First Student Regiment — seem destined for a dog-eat-dog scrap for team laurels.

(2) Boxers returning from the campaign this spring have improved almost without exception and among the newcomers are some promising looking sluggers, indeed.

Good Ol' Gowdy

(3) The fans like the Gowdy Field lay out for boxing. The ring set up on home plate proved in view from every angle and with some 4,000 seats there was no crowd problem such as last spring indoors.

The next card is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 19, with the prospect of 12 bouts.

Although it's too early to mean anything, Coach Jerry Perlman's First Student Regiment crew got off to the team lead with nine points. Following closely were 508th Airborne, 6, and ASU and CTC with four each.

Old Rivals

The night's best fights involved sluggers from First SR and CTC, the former winning both.

Lou Barnes, First SR heavyweight, survived a first round knock down to stop William Henley, 211, in 2:57 of the third round. Henley, on the verge of falling and bleeding badly from the nose and mouth, showed a tiger's courage and somewhat less ring savvy.

He caught Barnes unaware with his plunging attack in the first, but was badly paced for the last two rounds and weak on defense. Barnes almost missed his chance by reverting to his old habit of slapping instead of punching when the going got tough.

Big Newcomer #1

Tillman Doyle, a newcomer who is built like a picture-book fighter, jammed CTC's Earl Roberts, 154½, to the canvas with straight rights and got a TKO in 2:38 of the first. Davis, 155½, is a rough customer, Roberts was an eager beaver, but he was in over his head here.

Pedro Menjaria, 146, of SSgt, showed an improved left hand in stopping Carlton Rice, 140½, of CTC, in 2:18 of the first.

Jack Samuels, 189, of First SR, baffled Bill McClenaghan, 202, heavy, with his southpaw style and seems to be a cool customer under fire, but he missed several opportunities to finish off the gawking McClenaghan.

In other bouts:

Army Faces Big Marine Team Entry

The Marines are landing and crews of crack U. S. Army shooters will be outnumbered and with their backs to the wall in the 1952 Southeastern Regional High Power Rifle Matches here Saturday and Sunday at McAndrew Range.

Some 50 Marines, rounded into 12 teams, have entered the tourney which is expected to be an exciting preview of the National High Power Championships later this month. The Marine shooters have been in training at Parris Island for the past several months.

Lt. Col. Frank Barnett, new captain of the U. S. Army rifle team, has broken his group down into eight squads for the tourney.

"They'll have us in numbers, but I'm well satisfied with the way our drills have been coming along in recent weeks," he said. "I don't think they'll embarrass us."

Slightly more than 100 shooters are expected for the .30-cal. event, which is sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club in cooperation with The Infantry Center.

A number of top notch civilian riflemen are expected to compete and among the military entries are several who hold important shooting crowns, including Second Lt. Ramos DeLahunt, of the Marines.

Firing will get under way at 1 p.m. Saturday and continue at the same time Sunday. Slow and sustained fire matches are on Saturday's program.

The public is invited to watch the action. McAndrew Range is located at the foot of Ingersoll Street, which leads past the Main Post Theater in the direction of the First Student Brigade area.

508th's Mermen Score 27 to Cop Mid-South Meet

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team swimming team won the senior men's championship in the annual Mid-South Swimming and Diving Championships at Chattanooga, Tenn., last Friday and Saturday.

Paced by the sterling efforts of James Moore, the 508ers scored a total of 27 points to lead the Lakeside Club of Louisville, Ky., by 10 points. Following the Lakeside club was the Birmingham Swim Association and the Whittle Springs Swim Club of Knoxville.

Moore scored a pair of third places for four points while he anchored both the winning medley relay team and the free style relay team.

In the 400 meter free style event, Moore was again bested out by Marshall Flory, the University of Georgia's outstanding freshman free styler. Moore also placed third in the 200 meter free style event.

For what was probably his best performance of the season, Norm Lamothe placed second in the 100 meter backstroke event, pushing winner Jim Terry to a new Mid-South record in that event. Terry, who swims for the Athens Swim Club, barely nosed Lamothe out in the winning time of 1:19.1.

Lamothe's showing the event was 1:19.9, his best of the year for that distance.

In the medley relay, Lamothe and Moore teamed with Robert Nagy, breast stroker, to move handily into the lead in the point scoring. Lamothe started off with a fast back stroke leg to give Nagy a sizeable lead which he never relinquished. Moore swam the free style leg, bringing the team home far ahead of the Whittle Springs team.

The tree style relay combination of Charley Schlesinger, Donald Young and Jack Tamblin, that Moore won the 400 meter free style event, was ahead of the second place Atlanta Athletic Club team.

Nagy failed to place in the 100 meter breast stroke event, while diver Larry Brown missed the diving event.

The 508th team will swim an exhibition at the Columbus Boys Club Sunday. It is expected that Moore, Nagy, Lamothe, Tamblin and possibly Brown will represent the 508th in the National AAU swimming and diving championships to be held later in August in Newark, N. J.

Beating The Heat Matter Of Imagination To Skiier

BY HANK REID

Recalling the highlights of a career that has meant pleasure and profit for 20 years is a pleasant way to beat the heat according to Capt. William C. Burghardt, now company commander of 116th company, Second Student Regiment.

The heat-beating officer has been an instructor in skiing and Alpine mountaineering at many winter resorts and ski clubs throughout the United States.

He has also coached skiing for the Army at Camp Carson, Colo., and competed in Olympic winter events as the United States representative in world series of ski competition and mountain warfare.

Country and downhill jumping contests.

Long Career

Captain Burghardt first entered ski meet competition in 1932 when he participated in the Grand Slam. He engaged competitively in skiing until 1939 when he went to CONRad as the civilian skiing instructor.

In the years following he coached and instructed skiing in most of the resorts on the Eastern and the west of Washington.

After entering the Army in 1942, he found mountaineering very helpful for men being trained for mountain fighting at Camp Carson. Colo. Troops were trained to move through deep snow and over hazardous terrain with more than 40 pounds of equipment.

They were also briefed on how to survive in sub arctic temperatures and learned the solutions to problems peculiar to mountain terrain.

Big Thrill

One of his biggest moments as a skiing competitor came when he was a member of the Idaho team that competed in the Silver Ski Race at Mt. Rainier, Washington in 1936. Racing down the three and one-half mile obstacle course at a 74 miles per hour clip, the Idaho team placed high in team laurels.

With numerous chests full of climbing and skiing equipment, Captain Burghardt has been looking for a good substitute sport for his mountain days. Rarest of his artistic hobbies is now water furniture as a hobby.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

THOSE PEOPLE who keep busy by pointing out their teams' superiority in post sports should take a good look at the last year's results of actual competition, which proves that every Fort Benning unit is liberally endowed with athletic talent and is always in there trying.

In the major sports, Infantry School Detachment just finished winning the baseball pennant, boxing laurels went to ASU Provisional Group, the basketball flag was won by First O. C. Regiment, Combat Training Command took track and field laurels, and the 1951 football crown went to a First Student Brigade-I. S. D. combined team.

The 508th Airborne has monopolized the post swimming championship for the past two seasons. Second Student Regiment and Provisional Medical Group have shared the Benning Softball League lead thus far during the current campaign. The 1952 post golf crown belongs to a shotmaker in First Student Regiment. In short, every athlete and fan should be in there plugging for his own unit, because anybody can cop the marbles in any game you name.

NO SINGLE OUTFIT may dominate post sports, but its hard to top Lt. Col. Richard Seith's Airborne Department in the officers' leagues, according to Lt. Col. Woodrow Laws. He points out proudly that the Airborne softball team was the officers' loop title, the team captained by Maj. Gene Heinlein copped the hunting in TIC Officers Bowling League, Maj. Don Yoder's squad copped the volley ball title, and 2nd Lts. Mat Tatum and Lonnie Jordan won the Officers Mess golf and tennis championships, respectively. All of which proves the hard to beat people who make their living falling out of airplanes.

NOW JOCKEYING buses for ASU Provisional Group is Willie Bentley, former Atlanta pro, who was 1946 EUCOM golf champion . . . Since Bobby Shantz has put the emphasis on small men, how about ASU hurler Clyde Britton, who is 5-6, weights 123 pounds and was one of the Raiders' most aggressive hurlers this summer . . . Most important, he's only 18, with a year's class D experience under his belt.

WOULDN'T A PERFECT way to kick off (if youse'll pardon the mixing of metaphors) the new nine-hole addition to Benning Country Club in September be to stage a giant open tournament for all amateur golfers on post, making use of both the Sand Hill and the C. C. links and deciding once and for all who's best among our crop of sterling linksmen? . . . Pvt. Randy Wilmans, of Co. C, Airborne Battalion, is a former harness horse driver, having raced in Chicago, California and Kentucky.

• • •

FIRST SERGEANT of Co. C, First Special Troops Battalion, is Billy Mason, who refereed in the post's spring boxing series . . . M-Sgt. E. M. Buck, of First Co., First S. R., suggests that a boon to itinerant fishermen would be a federal fishing license which would be recognized in all states, the angler paying a sizable enough fee to guarantee the states a cut back.

CTC'S FIGHTING chaplain, Capt. Alexander Lewis, coach of the Commander ring team, is off on another overseas junket, this time to EUCOM . . . ASU's Al Hawthorne, who used to be a sparring partner for Ray Robinson, found out he had a broken rib after losing to Robert McArthur, of CTC, on last Friday's fight card . . . Larry Mujica's (losing) fight with 15-year old Ralph Dupas in Miami Beach got pictures and big stories in all the papers there and Larry has been asked to come back "anytime" . . . Watch Dupas climb up the fistic ladder; he's good.

SPEAKING OF SHOOTING, I have here a letter from Army Field Forces which again points up the Army's increased emphasis on marksmanship. A program is under way to organize teams in every company, with inter-company competition leading up to matches at battalion, regimental and post level. It is designed to get maximum participation, and if you'd like to be on the band wagon early, your best bet is to get in touch with members of the mushrooming Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

The club has a well rounded program of activities which makes most generous consideration for beginners and novices. You don't have to be a graying colonel to make the top in service shooting, as evidence the boy and girl, both under 21, who took the two championships in the Southeastern Regional Smallbore Rifle tournament here recently. There wasn't an officer on the For Belvoir, Va., team which earned a trip to the Southeastern and promptly took back first and second place prizes in the two team matches.

Whatever type of guns or rifle shooting you prefer, the Benning Club has excellent ranges and facilities for all. In a pinch, they can even customize your M-Wesson. All of these outings are strictly on an informal basis. The telephone number is 9018.

Harper Has 207 To Win Ga. Open; Buman Is Sixth

Charlie Harper, pro at Fort Benning Country Club who just two weeks ago set a home course record of 68, fired a six-under par 207 last week end to win the first annual Georgia State Open golf tournament in Atlanta.

The 30 - year old Harper had rounds of 67-69-71 on the par 71 Meadowbrook course.

Another Benning golfer, Paul Buman, of First Student Regiment, took sixth place money with a 72-71-73—218.

Harper who described Meadowbrook's back nine as "very tough," attributed his fancy shooting of late mainly to improvement in his putting game. He was second in the Gulfport, Miss., Open in March.

Winning first-time tourneys is getting to be a habit with the Benning pro. He copped the first annual renewel of the Florida Open in 1947.

Harper's nearest rival in the field of over 100 in Atlanta was Lester Kelly, of U. of Georgia, with a 71-69-71—211.

WARMING THE BENCH

America's future in amateur tennis rides with two youngsters entered this summer they'll be paired in mixed doubles as the strongest of the younger tennis stars. Angel stack is a strong contender in the singles field.

Maureen Connolly, 17-year-old national champion of Texas, U. S. at 17, and 16-year-old Hamilton Richardson represent the coming generation in U. S. tennis circles. Connolly, a fiery, aggressive player. The blond Californian already has been ranked with the great Helen Wills. Winner of 12 of 13 major tournaments last year she's is expected to retain her laurels against Louise Brough and the other top gals of the sport. Miss Brough says Maureen "puts more pressure on you than any other player in the game. She hits the ball harder and flatter than any woman ever did."

Richardson was chosen a Davis Cup alternate 2 years ago. In 1950 he was national junior Gulist and presently ranks ninth in the nation's senior division. Now at Tulane University in his hometown of New Orleans, La., he's rated a "comer." With Dick Savitt and Vic Seixas playing up-and-down tennis and little Herb Flam a streaky competitor, Richardson can move to the top of the mediocre American crop at a leisurely pace, barring a call to Service in the near future.

Tennis enthusiasts will see plenty of hustle and a young spirit in the driving play of these two youngsters.

Jenkins Still Packs a Pun In Exhibition

Lew Jenkins can still knock 'em dead.

In this case, it was the audience that reeled under the impact of the former world lightweight champion's sharp puns, not punches.

The occasion was last Friday when the 35-year old Korean hero boxed a three-round exhibition with Larry Mujica, Georgia welter champ, to help get the post's summer boxing program off to a rousing start.

Jenkins and Mujica did some fancy sparring as far as it went, but Lew spent most of the time wise cracking and doing fancy steps which pleased the crowd.

He made passes at Referee Moon Mullins who reciprocated. Lew's handlers facetiously threw in the towel in the third and Mullins threw it back.

After it was over, Lew cracked, "Not bad for a guy 39, eh?"

"We wants know how old you are, not how long you've been fighting," shot back Mullins.

First SR Loses Semi-Pro In Five

BY JERRY GARFIELD

The First Student Regiment baseball club extended a powerful Camp Rucker, Ala., aggregation to five games last week in the Georgia-Alabama Semi-Pro tournament before bowing out in a decisive final game.

Camp Rucker will leave for Wichita, Kans., to participate in the National Baseball Congress tourney there August 15th.

The Student Regiment had won the Georgia State Semi-Pro tournament in four straight games in Macon and then traveled last week to Rucker to play the initial game.

The first game was won by First SR, ironically enough, by Joe Feinstein, who was plucked out from Infantry School detachment their nemesis. In regular league play, Feinstein beat the 1st Student Regiment four games in a row. At Camp Rucker, he pitched six-hit ball for a 4-3 victory.

Myers Wins One

Dick Myers relieved Joe Feinstein in the eighth inning of the fourth game to do a whale of a relief job and subdued the Rucker pitcher in a 12-inning pitchers' duel.

The game was the second and last win for the First SR.

Phil Phillips, who replaced Paul Bonair at shortstop, when Bonair left on an emergency leave, tripled with bases loaded to put the First ahead in the game.

The catcher, Marvin Freeman, was the leading slugger of the series with seven for sixteen. All were for extra bases. Bill Brooks and Bob Kinard supplied the balance of the batting power.

Rucker Prospect

The team played the last four games in Andalusia after the first game at Rucker. The first game at Andalusia, and the second of the series, went to Rucker 8-1. Hal Luddy, bonus pitcher from Philadelphia, held the First to one run in the second inning, and seven scattered hits. Myers was the losing pitcher.

In the third game, Rucker went into the lead in the series with a 6-3 victory. Bill Hoitman held the First to four hits. Lloyd Brill was relieved in the fourth inning by John Mackie, who held them scoreless for the balance of the game.

In the final game, Camp Rucker pitched Bob Beardsley, who lost the first game. Beardsley made up for the first one by pitching three-hit ball. The final score was 11-0, and left no doubt they will submit a strong team for the National Tournament.

24th Div. Vets Plan Reunion

Former members of the 24th Infantry Division are being urged to attend the division's fifth annual convention which is to be held in Columbus, Ohio, from August 15 through 17.

All officers and enlisted men who served with the division in World War II or in Korea are welcome at the convention. Fifteen members from the Fort Benning chapter of the 24th Infantry Division Association attended the 1951 convention in Detroit, Michigan.

Arrangements have been made for a flight to leave Lawson Field at 8:30 a.m. on August 15 and return from the convention city about 1:30 p.m. on the 17th. Anyone desiring to attend the convention is invited to contact Lt. Bernard Arnheim at Fort Benning 6-1105 before noon on Saturday, August 9.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant Infantry School commandant, is historian of the national association. The president is Mr. Kenwood Ross of Springfield, Mass.

General Meloy commanded the 19th Infantry Regiment of the 24th Division during the early days of Korean fighting.

The 24th Infantry Division was the first division to see action in the Pacific during World War II and was also the first division to reach Korea.

Little Theatre Holds Casting For New Play

Auditions for the Benning Little Theatre's forthcoming production, "Ten Little Indians," were scheduled to be held in Brown Hall last night.

First Lt. Charles E. Thomann, last seen in the role of Dascome Diamond in "Biscuit Eater," and director of the new show, was to be in charge of the casting.

The Bayonet deadline made it impossible to list the names of the new cast. However, they will be reported in full next week.

Nine men and three women were to be selected as the cast of the production scheduled to be shown October 10 and 11.

"Ten Little Indians," a mystery written by Agatha Christie, is the fourth show in the current Little Theatre series. Other presentations were "The Women," and "Petticoat Fever."

Lost Household Goods Make Up Top Problem for Traffic Mgr.

One of the biggest problems to the Traffic Manager of Fort Benning's Transportation Office is the lost shipments of household goods to The Infantry Center.

He is Oscar Nance, who is a veteran of 33 years with transportation activities, and now the senior transportation man in the Third Army Area.

Although he is an expert at getting things moved, Mr. Nance has stayed here for 30 years. He came to Fort Benning in 1922 as a passenger clerk and has risen through all the transportation jobs to his present position.

Mr. Nance explains that shipments are often sidetracked while on their way to Fort Benning from points throughout the world. When this happens they are listed as "lost." A search goes out through Transportation Corps channels to find the items of household goods that are needed by personnel when they arrive here.

He adds that shipments are generally found within only a few days.

The veteran civil service employee served in World War I as a bill of lading clerk and took his job with Transportation soon after his discharge.

Mr. Nance said that when he first came to work at Fort Benning there was only one permanent road on the post and mules were used to haul freight and personnel.

World War II Ended Seven Years Ago Today

U. S. infantrymen whose island hopping campaign had resulted in victory in the Pacific proved again they were invincible, seven years ago.

Their perseverance in the face of overwhelming odds had brought about the defeat of the once-proud Japanese Army.

Early in the evening of Aug. 14, 1945, the White House received official word that Japan had agreed to accept the terms of unconditional surrender that would bring World War II to an end.

When President Truman announced the surrender, millions of Americans jamfilled the streets of every city and town in the United States in celebration of the long awaited news.

The official surrender took place on the deck of the battleship Missouri 19 days later, an anti-climax to the already historical announcement.

The actual surrender of Japan had been anticipated by the Allies for several weeks. They had issued an ultimatum at Potsdam on July 26, 1945, which Japan had rejected. However a few days later Russia declared war on the Japanese and atom bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Formal Surrender

President Truman named General of the Army Douglas MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander to accept the formal surrender. He immediately met with the Japanese emissaries to draw up the surrender papers and preparations got under way for occupying the Japanese homeland.

While the world waited in tense expectation for the end of the world's greatest war, the first Americans of the 11th Airborne Division landed on the Japanese home islands Aug. 28.

The first American flag raised in victory over the soil of Japan was unfurled Aug. 29, at Atsugi, just below Tokyo.

Perhaps the most dramatic moment, before the actual signing of the surrender, took place Aug. 31 when Gen. Jonathan Wainwright arrived at Yokohama after his rescue from a prison camp in Manchuria.

He was greeted by Gen. MacArthur and remarked:

"The last surrender I attended, the shoe was on the other foot. It's good to be back a free man and an American soldier."

Formal Ceremony

Thus with the formal ceremony of surrender aboard the Missouri on Sunday, Sept. 2, 1945, four years of hostilities ceased and the world rejoiced in peace.

The Infantry of the United States Army was designated as the main body of the occupation forces to patrol the islands of Japan after the surrender, just as the Infantry had borne the brunt of the actual fighting before peace. The First Cavalry Division, which had written a vivid page in the fighting in the Pacific, was the vanguard of the occupation forces.

The First Cavalry Division was the unit that invaded and captured the Admiralty Islands in February, 1944.

Turning point in the Pacific fighting came with the invasion of Guadalcanal in the summer of 1942. The 164th Infantry of the 25th Division, the first Army unit committed in the offensive fighting, landed on Guadalcanal Oct. 13, 1942.

In the days and months that followed the United States Infantry became stronger and began to bear the brunt of the attack—the attack forward; which would carry the Allied to ultimate victory in the Pacific.

The 43rd Infantry Division captured the island of New Georgia in August, of 1943. Makin fell to the 165th Infantry in November of the same year.

The 150th Infantry reinforced the 37th Infantry Division to capture New Britain in January, 1944.

Seventh Division

The Army's Seventh Infantry Division gained control of Kwajalein in February, and the 106th Infantry quickly cleared Eniwetok in the same month.

The Infantry continued to push the attack.

In the summer of 1944 the 27th Infantry Division joined the Second and Fourth Marine Divisions in the battle of Saipan.

On Oct. 24, 1944, every able-bodied man who had escaped from Corregidor, landed with troops of the First Cavalry Division and the 24th, 96th and Seventh Infantry Divisions on Leyte in the Philippines.

These units along with the 32nd and 77th Divisions, which landed later, ended the Japanese resistance in the islands in the winter of 1944.

Troops of the First Cavalry Division dashed 100 miles to Manila in 66 hours, beginning Feb. 1, 1945, to liberate 3,700 Allied civilian internees at Santo Tomas University Internment Camp.

Infantrymen of the 11th Airborne Division liberated 1,500 American prisoners from the Los Banos Camp in the Philippines.

Corregidor

The 503rd Airborne Infantry Regiment dropped on Corregidor Feb. 14 and won command of the rocky fortress within three hours. The 41st Infantry Division ended resistance on the island of Mindanao in March, and MacArthur planned for the push into the Japanese home islands, the next stepping stone in the war in the Pacific.

The Marines captured Iwo Jima, and then the last big battle with the Japanese began, March 26, 1945, when the first American troops, soldiers of the 77th Infantry Division, went ashore on Japanese territory. The battle of Okinawa was underway.

The Seventh, 27th, 96th and 77th Infantry Divisions along with the First and Sixth Marines overpowered the last of the Japanese strongholds in the Pacific, and with the dropping of the Atom bombs on the home islands of Japan, the forces of Nippon were forced into unconditional surrender Aug. 14, 1945.

The greatest struggle in human history had ended.

Civilian Wins Top Adjective Rating

Miss Mary E. Reynolds, deputy fiscal officer for the Comptroller's Office of The Infantry Center has received the highest Civil Service adjective rating for performance.

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, who made the presentation in ceremonies Wednesday, praised "the tireless devotion of the civilian employee who serves the government in times of national emergency."

Miss Reynolds received the citation for "outstanding efficiency, character, leadership and executive ability in her work of preparing and justifying budget estimates covering fund requirements for The Infantry Center."

24 Years Service

Miss Reynolds, who has been in government work for 26 years, also holds the Citation of Merit in Performance of Duty, awarded in 1944, and the Meritorious Service Award in 1946.

Outstanding in civic affairs here also, Miss Reynolds is presently chairman of the International Coordinating Committee for the Pilot's International organization. She served as District Governor of Georgia in 1946-48 and International Treasurer in 1949-51 for this organization.

A graduate of Columbus High School, she attended the University of Georgia at Athens, and George Washington University in Washington, D. C.

Before coming to work at Fort Benning, Miss Reynolds was employed for five years as a statistical clerk in the Census Bureau in Washington.

She began work at Fort Benning in 1926 at the Finance Office, and was promoted to Deputy Fiscal Officer for the Comptroller Office in 1950.

Officer Assigned To Lawson Field

First Lt. Guilford M. Hazelwood has assumed duties as assistant adjutant of the 434th Troop Carrier Wing at Lawson Field.

He recently returned from the Far East Command, where he served with the 315th Troop Carrier Wing. On this duty he was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal, the Presidential Unit Citation, the United Nations Service Medal and the Korean Service Medal with five stars.

Transport Unit Moves Everywhere on Time

TOP SOLDIER . . . Cpl. Pablo Delgado was selected as Army Field Forces Board No. 3 Detachment's "Best Soldier" for July by Colonel Henry E. Kelly, President of the Board, during last Saturday's inspection and review. A member of the Board's Small Arms Department, Cpl. Delgado was selected for his personal appearance and military bearing. A native of Saginaw, Mich., he holds the Silver Star, Bronze Star, and Purple Heart.

Fort Benning's First Transportation Battalion dispatched 9,600 vehicles during July with every vehicle at the proper place at the proper time every day, says Lt. Col. William M. Molloy, battalion commander.

The transportation unit, which serves The Infantry School, travels 200,000 miles monthly and transports an average of 150,000 passengers and 3,000 tons of equipment.

The battalion furnishes all transportation for students and class equipment to and from Infantry School instructional areas, transportation as required by The Infantry Center transportation officer in support of administrative activities at Fort Benning.

Organized in January, 1952, the unit received its first Infantry School assignment in February.

At that time the battalion had only a few trained rrivers to man its vehicles and the commanding officer, with the aid of the operations officer, Maj. Arthur G. Canfield, set up a drivers training and testing school.

During the past three months the battalion has reduced its number of accidents by 50 per cent. In July only four accidents involving personnel and equipment were reported.

Company D, commanded by 1st Lt. Kenneth W. Duncan, has received the battalion Safety Plaque for driving 100,000 miles without an accident during June and July.

The company is also eligible for the Third Army Achievement Award for maintaining a perfect safety record.

The battalion at present operates with four companies and a headquarters unit.

In addition, the 27th Car Company and the 33rd, 148th and 668th Truck Companies are under the operational control of the battalion.

Approximately 70 per cent of the enlisted men in the battalion are Korean returnees.

Records Branch Saves $40,000 In 12 Months

Forty thousand dollars has been saved by the Records Holding Branch of The Infantry Center in the past 12 months.

Chief WO E. W. Ziotkowski, Records Management officer for The Infantry Center has announced that an additional $15,000 has been saved in file clerks salaries, due to the Army's "cut-off" filing system and 10,000 feet of additional office space has been made available.

To implement the efficiency program, which hit its stride in February, 1952, a constant survey is kept by Records Management officials appointed in each department and unit here to see that valuable office space and man hours for file clerks are employed only on current records.

"It costs the government $268 a year to maintain one file cabinet," CWO Ziotkowski continued, "so we make each cabinet count."

"You realize the value of efficient filing systems when you learn that a large corporation like General Motors considers $10,000 well spent if they can keep a four-drawer metal filing cabinet off the floor for one year," he explained.

'Cut-Off' System

Under the Army's 'cut off' filing system, current records are kept in the offices for one year. At the end of the first year, they are 'cut off' or put into a special block, and kept for an additional year.

The records are then divided into two groups, one having retaining value of six years, and the other having a retaining value of more than six years. These groups are kept in the Records Holding Branch at Fort Benning.

At the end of six years, the first group of records is destroyed; and the second group, permanent files, is retired to one of the large Army records centers throughout the United States.

Permanent Files

The permanent files represent only 10 per cent of the original files.

The Fort Benning Records Holding Branch, headed by Mr. Louis Lucas of the Adjutant General's Section, is a rodent-free, fireproof and weather resistant storage building.

In the past year, The Records Holding Branch has destroyed 3,445 linear feet of records, and shipped 990 feet, or 15 tons, of records to the central record holding depots for permanent storage.

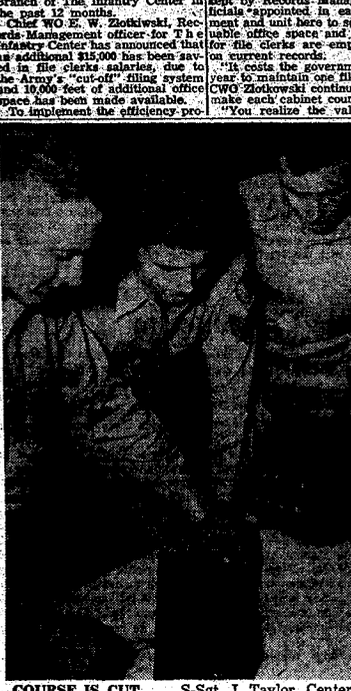
The 1,941 linear feet of permanent records remaining in the holding branch here are stored in wooden boxes. This has saved the government $40,000, which would have been expended to purchase 800 metal filing cabinets for the records.

Salvage Sold

As a further economy measure, the unclassified papers are sold as paper salvage instead of destroyed.

Destruction of obsolete records and centralization of others has freed 250 filing cabinets in offices here and saved the maintenance cost of $268 a year each in calculated space rental and salaries.

"Although many savings are intangible in our filing system, the conservation in office space, materials and equipment, and man hours releases several hundred thousand dollars a year for the government here," CWO Ziotkowski concluded.



COURSE IS CUT . . . S-Sgt. J. Taylor, Center, admires prizes won by Airmen 3-C C. E. Hackett and W. M. Oakley of the 3253 AF Training Squadron. With the cutting of the meat cutting course from the Third Army Food Service School curriculum, the awards for outstanding ability in meat cutting will no longer be given.

Meat Cutter's Course Sliced From Curriculum

The meat cutting classes given by the Third Army Area Food Service School has been dropped from the school's curriculum, according to Capt. Paul V. Geo, director of training for the school.

With the graduation of Class Two on September 12th all meat cutting classes will be transferred to the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va.

Due to a change in the Air Force Service School program, Air Force personnel will no longer be in attendance at the Third Army Area Food Service School. Air support in the way of personnel and instructors will be withdrawn October 1 of this year.

Another change in the School's set-up has occurred due to closing of the auxiliary Food Service School at Camp Rucker, Ala. The School here will asume responsibility for the Rucker students.

Courses still offered at the School here are Mess Administration, Mess Management, Cooking and Baking.

Master Sergeant Reenlists With 29 Years of Service

Most men are looking forward to fishing, hunting, or just plain loafing when they near the 30 year mark of Army service, but not M-Sgt. Christopher Burns, who just reenlisted for his ninth hitch after serving over 29 years on active duty.

A small, wiry man, Burns is now the first sergeant of Company of The Infantry School Detachment. He had 29 years, nine months, and five days in when he signed up for an "indefinite" term July 17.

Although he will be eligible for retirement the first part of October, Sergeant Burns, who is 51 years old said that he figures he will put in a few more years before he leaves the Army.

"The Army's a good life," he said. "After a man puts in a couple of years and gets into the first three grades, he's got it better than anybody on the outside except for maybe a bank president."

Burns' service career started in 1919 when he enlised a the Marine Corps as a rifleman. He served with the 2nd Marine Regiment in Haiti. "There wasn't much real fighting there," he recalls, "but you never knew when one of those brigands might jump out from a hiding place and try to lop your head off."

He was discharged from the Marine Corps in 1922 and spent several years as a civilian and then enlisted as a rifleman in the Regular Army in 1925 and was shipped to Hawaii where he served with the 35th Infantry Regiment.

Sergeant Burns trained at Fort Benning for eight months in 1950 with the 30th Infantry at Sand Hill before he was transferred to the 15th Infantry regiment of the 3rd Infantry Division, which left for Korea August, 1950.

In Korea he was platoon sergeant of the security platoon of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

The sergeant, who has been an Infantryman during his entire service career, said that the Infantry is a "good branch of service". "Of course, ordnance or quartermaster work is easier, but the Infantry keeps you in pretty good shape." He tapped his stomach and added, "You don't see me carrying a pouch around."

3rd Army Chief Is Two Fisted

Lt. General Alexander R. Bolling, new commander of the Third Army, is a general who believes in two-fisted fighting, two-fisted entertainment, and two-fisted soldiers. A two-fisted man himself, the general believes that active sports and hard training are two factors that will determine the success and morale of any Infantry unit.

And he should know, for his entire Army career has been spent in the Infantry. He has worked his way up from second lieutenant's bars to his present three-star rank. He first served with the Army in 1917 when he attended an officers' training camp at Fort Niagara, N. Y.

The story is told of newly-commissioned 2nd Lt. Bolling that he reported to a company of 220 recruits for duty. Said the present general to his first sergeant, "You now have 221 recruits."

This remark is indicative of the man. His entire career has been marked by a willingness to learn, and an equal willingness to pass on his knowledge.

While he was at Fort Jay, N. Y., early in his Army career, the future general built his company into an outfit that was known throughout the Army for its excellence in sports and high morale.

From all past indications, Third Army sportsmen can look forward to a continued high interest in a thorough sports program for all echelons.

2 Units Set First Rate Records

Two Infantry Center activities deserve special recognition for their outstanding achievements in July. The two are The Infantry Center recruiting office and the Army Blood Donor Center, both of which turned in perfect records for the month.

The recruiting office reported that 100 per cent of the eligible men processed by that office during July reenlisted — a score that proves the diligence of the recruiting officials as well as the wisdom of those who reenlisted.

In the blood donor drive, the Blood Center there went 223 pints over the July quota of 1,104 pints. Special recognition should be given men of the 509th Engineer Combat Company. For the second time in the current drive, 100 per cent of the eligible men in this company donated their blood.

So congratulations, men and women of The Infantry Center. Remember, it is only through you that any worthwhile effort here can reach a perfect goal.

In Iran where the Shah's crown rests uneasy, the Parliament has given Premier Mossadegh unprecedented and almost completely dictatorial powers over that oil rich nation on Russia's southern frontier.

Chaplain's Corner

Americanism Versus Communism

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) LEXINGTON O. SHEFFIELD

Much is being said these days about Communism. Any American who has informed himself about the workings of Communism and what it has to offer finds no reconciliation between it and Americanism. Is it not time that we Americans should begin to spend more time and energy to foster true Americanism? Americanism may be a birthright privilege, but it carries a life long responsibility.

We think of America as a place, a region, a locality, but in a finer sense America is an atmosphere, an ideal and a concept of many things yet unfulfilled. If one reviews the history of our country for the last half century he must realize the tremendous beneficial developments in our country. One hundred fifty - one millions of men and women live together under laws of their own making; under laws of their own choosing, each free to pursue the ends of life as he sees them.

No place in the world is there more freedom than here. One travels three thousand miles across state boundaries without hinderance, works any place in America he chooses, at whatever he chooses. No where else does one find the opportunities one finds here. Any boy or girl in American can make good who has normal intelligence and ambition.

Anyone with normal intelligence can have an education. He may not get a diploma or a degree, but he can obtain an education, for an education is as close at hand as books, and in America there is no scarcity of books.

This is yours, freedom of assembly, free speech, free press, free enterprise, freedom in choice of a vocation, or where one chooses to work, freedom of worship in any form we desire, all the way from faith snake-handlers to the practice of mystic rights. All these rights are ours to enjoy, so long as our practice of them does not infringe upon the rights of others. But along with these rights, go corresponding responsibilities of safeguarding these rights for ourselves and others.

610,000 Men May Be Inducted This Year

BY AFPS

The Defense Department has 610,000 men will be inducted into the Armed Forces this fiscal year. In order to meet this military manpower goal Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, has announced that it might be necessary ultimately to call men who have been deferred for dependency reasons. Gen. Hershey declared that there were no plans for wiping out dependency deferments in the next few months, but that a review was of the "utmost importance" because of sharply heavier induction quotas beginning in October.

GIVE THE LADY WHAT SHE WANTS by Lloyd Wendt and Herman Kogan.

"Give The Lady What She Wants" is the story of Marshall Field and company.

Against a background of turbulent times, wars, great fires, financial panics, the authors portray the battles of merchant princes, the fascinating changes of customs and fashions—especially women's fashions—the revolutionary merchandising methods of this unique store, the rise of militant Feminism paced by the marching Bloomer girls.

Hero of the saga is Marshall Field, the store that learned early "to get the lady what she wants." Throughout the eras of the hoop skirt, the bustle, the Paris sheath gown and into modern times, the authors relate the amazing behind-the-scenes of Field's growth.

Whether they tell of Millie the shoplifter who like the modern police, reversed, Field's; or the inside story of profitable fire business deals, the authors never loose their taste for wry humor, colorful action, significant and intriguing detail.

Accurate and authentic in its reporting of a fabulous era, marvelously entertaining in its wealth of anecdote, its human approach to the story of great enterprise, Give The Lady is a book that will interest every reader.

Post Engineer Civilian Knows All Pipe Locations By Memory

A Fort Benning civilian doesn't need a map to locate water mains or the military reservation he supervises each week his home.

Floyd Fox, who has worked at Benning for the past 18 years and at this intersection nearly twice as long, has the location of every water line in the vast station.

The engineering section, Fox's department, has a map of the water system which is kept up to date, but Fox doesn't have to refer to it. He knows where every pipe is and how it is connected.

Red Cross Serves Hospitalized Men

A blue clad group of women at 394 for dependents, and 193 for duty personnel.

This group, composed of nine Red Cross staff workers, is a familiar and welcome sight to the patients of the Fort Benning Army hospital.

Their primary job is to help personnel confined to the hospital in all matters pertaining to their personal life and, by planned recreation, to help speed recovery of the patient.

The services provided by Red Cross workers at the Benning hospital are divided into two groups, with each group performing separate and distinct duties.

The five welfare workers provide the services for which sick people have a special need. A great part of their time is spent in counseling and guiding soldiers in personal and family problems that affect morale.

They arrange for financial assistance when a patient is well enough for a recuperation leave, and they also arrange for financial assistance, not only to the servicemen but also to families, in case of emergencies.

Communications

In assisting with communications between servicemen and their families, the Benning workers handled 471 long distance calls, 2,048 telegrams and 715 letters last year.

Miss Sydney Beauxis, Red Cross Field Director, said "During 1953, our case workers handled, 2,337 new cases including 1,642 military cases,

In the recreation branch, four workers carry out a planned program. They are responsible for providing an opportunity to the patients to participate in recreational activities suited to the mental, emotional, physical and social capabilities of the individual.

In the last year, this group planned 290 recreation hall activities, 730 ward activities and 44 off-post trips. In the same period of time, 163 recreation hall movies and 1,003 ward movies were shown.

According to the director, these activities could not have been successfully accomplished if it had not been for the aid and assistance rendered the Red Cross by the Gray Ladies.

"They have given tirelessly of their time and talents", she said, "and by their splendid cooperation, we have been able to increase our services."

Some Army, AF Colonels May By-Pass Mandatory Retirement

Certain Regular Army and Air Force colonels slated for mandatory retirement after June 30, 1953, may be retained in the service, according to a release from the Office of Public Information, Department of Defense.

A presidential executive order authorizes the retainment of colonels slated for mandatory retirement under the officer personnel act of 1947.

During the present emergency, but not to exceed four years, the order permits secretaries of the Army and Air Force to select and retain no more than 60 per cent of the Regular Army and Regular Air Force colonels who would otherwise be retired after five years in grade of colonel and 30 years service.

The order however, does not affect officers scheduled for retirement by reason of statutory age.

The officer personnel act of 1947 established a long-range program for the selection, promotion and retirement of Regular officers under normal conditions. However, provisions were made to retain officers under emergency conditions whose services are regarded as critical.

The Army and Air Force pointed out that many of the officers affected have had exceptional experience during World War II, while others have fought in Korea. Many of them hold key positions of responsibility and are critically needed at the present time.

The Army has announced it will appoint a board of general officers for the immediate consideration of approximately 800 officers scheduled for mandatory retirement July 31, 1953, and July 31, 1954. Primary factors to be used in determining those individuals to be retired will be the needs of the service and qualifications of the officers concerned.

The Air Force announced that it will consider for retention only those permanent colonels now serving in a higher temporary grade.

Look Out For Your Men, First Sergeant Says

BY PFC. MERWIN MELTZER

"It is First Sergeant's primary duty is to look out for the welfare of his men," says M-Sgt. John M. Miller, First Sergeant of "A" Company of The Infantry School Detachment.

In explaining the duties of a company first sergeant, Sergeant Miller who has served as a first sergeant since 1940 stated that "the first sergeant should act as a go between for his men, whom he represents, and the company commander. Although he is of course responsible to the commander he should be on the side of the men and act as their counsel before the commander.

A man must have a great deal of soldiering behind him in order to understand and know all the problems that face the men of his unit, before he takes on the responsibilities of being First Sergeant. The most important things to take care of are the feeding and housing of the men. This is especially true in a regular line outfit."

Sergeant Miller, a veteran of more than 22 years of service has been "first soldier" of Able Company since January 1950. Before coming to The Infantry School Detachment he served with Headquarters of the 15th Infantry for four years.

During the Second World War he was with the 29th Infantry from the time it left Fort Benning in 1943 through 1946. During that time he saw service in Iceland, England, where his unit served in the staging area used on D-Day, France and Germany.

M-SGT. J. M. MILLER

In 1944 and 1945 he was a member of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's personal guard. He returned to the states in 1946 and has been at The Infantry Center since.

Many Problems

Being first sergeant in an Infantry School Detechment company adds to the many problems that normally confront a first sergeant. Unlike a normal line outfit where an average of 20 to 25 per cent of the men are married, about 75 to 80 per cent of Able Company's, men are wed.

This creates many special problems such as securing emergency leaves, special passes, off post living quarters etc. In addition the company has more automobiles than a regular outfit and this too creates its share of problems.

Sergeant Miller maintains that a good first sergeant must remember that it is up to him to be able to tell when a man has a problem. He must always treat the problems individually and realize that although the Army works as a team the men in it are individuals and must always be treated as such.

Sergeant Miller and his wife Jean live at 1007 Bryant Avenue in Columbus.

Harmony Church PX Gas Station Work Begins

Work on the new PX service station in the Harmony Church area is scheduled to be completed about Sept. 15, Lt. Col. Martin H. Steffen, Post Exchange Officer, has announced.

Construction of the station, which will be located at the junction of Eighth Division and Cusseta Roads, was started July 30.

In addition to three gasoline pumps, the station will have facilities for washing, lubricating, and greasing cars. The car washing machine will be able to wash an automobile every 15 minutes.

The station, which is being constructed by the Standard Oil Company, will be paid for completely out of profits earned by the Fort Benning post exchange.

The post exchange has two filling stations in operation at present. One is located on Main Post, the other in Sand Hill.

Pay records come out for Sergeant Privates and corporals feel uneasy giving orders to sergeants but the whole thing has a simple explanation. Private James M. Our job is to put your Long Distance calls through, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here's how you can help yourself to faster service:

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town telephone number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster.

2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

To help you get faster service, you'll find out-of-town directories for the larger cities at each telephone center.

Post Publication Stock Room Saves More Than $3,000

One Infantry Center section has tallied up the enviable record of saving $3,000 and 25 per cent of the fan-hours formerly required through increased efficiency and economy of operation.

The section is the post publication stock room. First Lt. H. L. Davisson, publication officer, states that the Kardex file cabinets used by clerks in the stock room reduces by 25 per cent the time spent on the perpetual inventory and processing requisitions for official publications.

In addition, James J. Baker, of Summerville Road, Phenix City, chief clerk for the Stock Room, keeps a constant watch on the 26,000 items and 40,000 pounds of paper including technical and field manuals, Department of the Army circulars, bulletins, catalogs, and other official publications handled by the stock room each month. This constant survey is conducted to see that each unit on the post has a sufficient supply of the publications and that no excess stock accumulates.

Excess stocks are recalled from post units and returned to The Adjutant General's Publication Depot at Alexandria, Va.

Colonel Replaces Another Colonel For Third Time

Third-time charms are in order for the director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

Col. Gerald C. Kelleher, who will take over the Ranger Department August 21, is succeeding Col. Henry C. Learnard for the third time.

This is their first formal meeting, however.

The cycle began in Europe in 1945, when Colonel Learnard was temporary commander of the 18th Infantry Regiment, First Infantry Division.

When Colonel Learnard left this command to take over the regiment's First Battalion, Colonel Kelleher took over the regiment.

Colonel Learnard left the battalion in September, and Colonel Kelleher was given permanent command of the First Battalion.

"We met briefly in Aachen, and briefly in 1950 when Colonel Kelleher passed through Fort Benning on his way to Korea, but this is the first opportunity we have had to discuss our experiences in common," Colonel Learnard says.

Liaison Section Gets New Chief

Lt. Col. Claudius M. Easley Jr., has been named chief of The Infantry School's Allied Liaison Section.

He replaces Lt. Col. Stephen J. Meade of Fort Thomas, Ky., who will attend The Infantry School's advanced course, at Fort Benning.

A graduate of the University of California, Colonel Easley received his Reserve commission there in 1938. He was called to active duty in 1941.

During World War II, he served with the War Department's Intelligence Division and in Sixth Army headquarters in the Pacific.

Colonel Easley served with the Third Infantry Division in Korea in 1950, and with the Korean Military Advisory Group in 1951.

LOW DOWN TRICK . . . Al Hawthorne, the horizontal one, discovers his own version of The Infantry Center rest camp thanks to Robert MacArthur who sent him there on the "swing" shift. MacArthur, 156-pound newcomer to Combat Training Command from Durham, N. C., scored a decision. Action was on Fort Benning's first amateur ring card of the summer. Hawthorne, 153, from ASU Provisional Group, got a broken rib.

NO FAIR, REF! . . . Third man Jim Mullins looks like he's holding Lou Barnes down for CTC's Bill Henley, but actually it's the camera angle and Mullins is waving Henley to neutral coroner while starting toll. It was a surprising knockdown for Barnes, First Student Regiment heavy, who rallied gamely to win decision in last two rounds. Henley, a newcomer, showed a lot of promise for future bouts this summer.

Grid Drills On; Sked Set

A 13-game schedule for Fort Benning's four 1952 football teams were given the green light Monday by the coaches and a like signal from the commanding general's office expected this week will make the new pigskin parade official.

The slate calls for a double round robin battle between Benning's quartet with games at 2 p.m. every Sunday from Sept. 28 through Dec. 14.

It also lists five games against outside opponents which would be played at the latter's home fields.

A Few Hitches

The outside games are the only ones causing a hitch. Making dates meet with rival service elevens is tricky and arranging transportation between bases also is a priority item.

The home schedule for Doughboy Stadium as now arranged by Special Services sports office probably will stick without any changes. Here it is:

Sept. 28—508th vs. CTC
Oct. 5—Brigade-PMG vs ISD-ASU
Oct. 12—508th vs Brigade-PMG
Oct. 19—CTC vs ISD-ASU
Oct. 26—508th vs. ISD-ASU
Nov. 2—CTC vs. Brigade-PMG
Nov. 9—508th vs. ISD-ASU
Nov. 16—CTC vs. Brigade-PMG
Nov. 23—CTC vs. ISD-ASU
Nov. 27(Thnxgvg.)—508th vs Brigade-PMG
Dec. 7—508th vs. CTC
Dec. 14—Brigade-PMG vs. ISD-ASU

For the benefit of late arrivals in using the above schedule, "Brigade-PMG" stands for First Student Brigade and Provisional Medical Group which are merged to form a single team.

"ISD - ASU" denotes Infantry School Detachment and ASU Provisional Group which also are combined.

Team Names

The Brigade-Medic combo has indicated their forces will be united under the simplified moniker of "Special Troops Rams," which will certainly fit into the headlines better. The ISD-ASU brain trust can insure a better press pronto by producing an official team name and nickname.

The away games as now arranged call for ISD-ASU against Donaldson AFB Sept. 29, the Rams against Ga. Mil. College Sept. 28, 508th against Donaldson Oct. 4, CTC against Donaldson Oct. 11, 508th against Jacksonville Navy Oct. 5, ISD-ASU against Eglin AFB Nov. 1, and the Rams against Keesler AFB Nov. 21.

Syracuse Sports Star

A student in Associate Infantry Officers Advance Course Three, Major Gerald F. Second Student Regiment, won two varsity letters for Syracuse University.

Lieut. Col. James Mailey was awarded letters for track and fencing competition with the Orangemen.

Preliminary football practice in varying degrees of intensity was under way this week with three of Fort Benning's four 1952 squads and the fourth will be working shortly after this edition rolls off the press.

The 508th Airborne, Combat Training Command and Special Troops Rams were the teams which have between 40 and 60 candidates going through daily exercises in shorts.

The post's only holdover coach, Jack Faubion, was trying out backs and centers in one group and linemen in another on varying days this week and will officially launch his ISD-ASU practices Monday with a two-hour daily session at 2 p.m. in the second caurtel area, main post.

Big Turnout

Faubion had 73 candidates at his first meeting last Monday.

Jim Phillips, a 1951 halfback who is new head coach of the 508th Red Devils, is working with 60 men at Fury Field at 2:30 p.m. daily.

Coaches Named

Phillips also named a pair of assistant coaches this week. They are Donald LeBlanc, a veteran of Army boxing, football and basketball competition, and Dick Thomas, a veteran of 11th Airborne football squads.

The Red Devils have a fair sprinkling of returnees from last year's third place team, headed by Bill Dietz, a unanimous choice as 1951 All-Post fullback.

Also back are halfback Bill Redmond, second string All-Post, and quarterback Gary Mattocks, ends Swartz Ammerman, John Prados and James Trados, and linemen Shelby Womack, Jim Smith and Bobby Miles.

Red Devil Center

One of his most promising newcomers is Bill Valko, former varsity center for West Virginia. Phillips resorted to the crying towel momentarily to lament his lack of dept among tackle candidates for his planned T-formation machine.

Assistant mentors also were named by August Dielens, young freshman coach of the Rams who is holding morning and afternoon drills at Brigade field on Dixie Road.

He tabbed Bill Lawrence, former varsity performer and coach at Delta Teachers College in Mississippi, as offensive line coach, and Bill Thurston, of the Wofford varsity, as defensive line tutor.

Linton Jordan, former stellar performer with the U. of Alabama, was named end coach. Dielens, an all-back at U. of Miami and Army, will work in the backfield.

Dielens is also blessed with some returnees from Brigade which was a part of the magnificent, unbeaten Special Troops Rams team of 1951.

Army Rifle Team Picked After SE

Five Fort Benning men were named to the official 1952 U. S. Army rifle team's 10-man squad today by Lt. Col. Frank Barnett, who will captain the Army's representative in the National High Power Rifle matches here Aug. 27-Sept. 2.

The five Fort Benning men among the ten chosen do not include Capt. James McCubbin and WOJG Coats Brown who were selected as coaches. They, however, will take the firing line if the need arises, according to Col. Barnett.

Other Benning riflemen are Capt. Earnest Malone, automotive department, Lt. Earl Bishop, staff department, Lt. Rufus Brock and Sfc. Wilburne Frigtik, of weapons department and M-Sgt. Oscar Gallman, of First Special Troops Battalion.

The list includes three holdovers from the 1951 team. They are M-Sgt. Daniel Huntley, Frigtik and Bishop, and, of course, McCubbin and Brown.

Other plumbers are Lt. Herbert Voelcker, 82nd Airborne, Capt. Murvale Nelson, Capt. John W. Kolz and Capt. Hialmar Erickson.

Fourteen other team candidates will remain in training here to fire individually in the High Power championships.

Amateur Fights Return Tuesday At Gowdy Field

Fort Benning's simon-pure punchers get back to pounding and pulverizing one another at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Gowdy Field in the second program of the post's 1952-53 championship boxing program.

The boxing board will meet at 1:30 p.m. today at Special Services sports office to make approximately 10 matches of three rounds each with three-minute rounds.

Some 1,500 fans turned out for the inaugural amateur card two weeks ago at Gowdy Field. Incidentally, if it rains, the action will be shifted across the street to Brigant Wells Field House.

Action is the right word to use, too. Twenty kids showed surprising conditioning for a first card and plenty of heart in the inaugural a-fortnight ago.

Most pleasing factor was the number of talented new faces on view. There'll be more "first timers" Tuesday and some of Benning's champs and near champs of last season would seem to be in for rough going to retain their laurels.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

EVERYBODY WANTS to know if the Russians were really nice guys at the Olympics, so I asked Joe Benner, who is a nice guy himself, and also the new world and Olympic pistol shooting champion. Joe says have some for examples.

ALTHOUGH all Olympic practices were open to spectators, and the inevitable scouts from other teams, the Russians succeeded in keeping at least their shooting trial efforts a secret.

After a shooter fires at the target, it is customary for the pit crew to disk the hole made by the bullet and signal the score back to the firing line, so the gunman may know how he did.

The Reds signalled, all right, but their signals were all wet. That is, if a guy popped a bulls-eye ten, the pit would indicate a four, or five, or something. It was all in code. When rival shooting crews first watched the Reds they thought Stalin must be off his rocker sending such a poor crew.

They soon found out when the crafty Commies won two of the five gold medals for shooting, with a third going to an Iron Curtain entrant from Hungary.

BENNER, a 34-year old country boy born so far back in Arkansas he has had a lifeling problem of deciding whether Jonesboro or Paragould should be called his home town, was invited to one of the Reds' fancy blowouts. They served reindeer steak and there was much dancing. If you asked how things were in Moscow, you got copies of some specially prepared magazines, phamplets and leaflets, which portrayed smiling factory workers, happy housewives with their new appliances and healthy and well-proportioned bathing beauties, etc.

When Joe talked to the Russian competitors it was through a girl intrepretor from Hungary. They always talked in large groups, never alone or off in a corner. Reds who went dashing around Helsinki unaccompanied probably will be playing for the Siberian Winter A. C. soon.

* * *

"THE RUSSIANS sacrificed accomplishment for appearance in some cases," drawled Benner. "Their athletes had to look good to the crowd. The coaches who appeared with the team may not have been their best, but they were their best looking and handsomely dressed. Of course, we're prejudiced or know what we think of them, but I suppose the Russians made a good impression on everyone else."

* * *

ONE LARGE department store in Helsinki drew crowds with a tremendous scoreboard display carrying the point standings of the participating nations. It may interest you to know that they figured seven points for first place, the Stalin-devised system which "gave" Russia the Olympic title. (America and other countries have always scored 10 points for first place.)

"There was a very good reason the store used seven points," said Joe. "There was a joke among us that if you got on the wrong road going out to the shooting range not to go too far before turning back; the Russian border was about 15 miles from there, and those Finns seemed to know it."

The bus carrying the Russian athletes to the range would pull up in front of a restricted area, the driver motion to the Finnish policeman to clear out, and the Russians would go on through, while all others had to park a distance away. Such little incidents happened constantly.

* * *

WALKING OUT of places must be a national characterics of Commies. A meeting was being held to determine the site of the 1954 International Shooting Union Matches. It boiled down to Bulgaria and Venezuela finally.

"I personally guarantee every competitor protection if we hold it in Bulgaria," said the Russian delegate. They asked him if he would step outside while a vote was taken.

When the door closed behind the Red, a Yankee Doodle Dandy stood up and squelched: "Personally, I had rather hold the matches in a country where we won't need protection." The vote was unanimous for Venezuela, and a lackey was dispatched to take the news outside to the Russian. The Red had already gone home, obviously having figured things out for himself.

YOU MAY LAUGH at the Redskys and their comedy routines if you like, but on the field of competition they are rugged, and their surprises don't bring on chuckles. For example, in all .22-cal. rifle and pistol matches, they used Western Mark II Super Match ammunition, which is only the best made in America. And they had plenty of it, too.

* * *

BENNER FIGURES the Reds will be much tougher by the next Olympiad. Their riflemen shocked everyone when they sported .30-cal. weapons with the sights on the side of the barrel, claiming this did away with the familiar heat mirage which occurs above the barrel of any weapon used long P. S. They won the .30-cal. (full bore) gold medal and placed their men high in all rifle competition.

* * *

I HAVE WRITTEN much in the past about Benner practicing from sun up to sun down. He did not do this in Finland, which is near the Artic circle. The sun sets at about 11 p.m. and rises about 2 a.m., enough to make a guy in the electric sign business blow out his brains. Admission to Olympic Stadium was an inflated $3.80 (American dough), but the joint was filled every day, and the customers were happy because there was activity all the time. Incidentally, Joe's best was 96 in 100 shots.

Service Stars Take 6 Medals In Olympic Tilts

HELSINKI, Finland (AFPS)—The U. S. Olympic Team, fielded by athletes representing the Armed Forces, swept to a brilliant finish in the Fifteenth Modern Olympic Games here to capture seven team titles and 40 gold medals.

Members of the Army, Navy and Air Force played an important role in the American sweep. Besides winning the most gold medals (1st place), the U. S. athletes also set the most records and captured the unofficial team championship with 614 points.

U. S. servicemen personally accounted for six gold medals. The first one was gathered by speedy Pvt. Jerome Biffle, USA, who set the pace in the running board jump.

Aside from Joe Benner, T-Sgt. Mal Whitfield, USAF, took his third Olympic Gold Medal (two in 1948) when he led a star-studded field in winning the men's 800-meter run. His record time of 1:49.2 also tied the Olympic record he set in the 1948 London games.

The U. S. Naval Academy's rowing crew completed an undefeated season by taking honors in the eight-oared event with ease. The Middies covered the 2,000-meter course in 6:25.9. It was Navy's seventh win in the Olympics and their 14th straight this season.

Maj. Sammy Lee, USA, displaying his usual winning Olympic form, won first place in the men's high dive with a total of 156.28 points.

The U. S. Olympic boxing team, which hadn't won a title since 1932, scored five victories in the finals, setting a new record. They were led by Ed Sanders, USN, who won the heavy weight championship after scoring four straight knockouts.

Other servicemen finishing in the Olympic finals were: PFC. William P. Selby, USMC, 3rd in javelin throw—207-1; Jim Gathers, USAF, 3rd in one-way archery—0:32.7; Lt. Ken Wiesner, USN, 3rd in men's running high jump—6-6 ½; Walt Ashanger, USA, 4th in hop, step & jump—6-4 ½; Lt. Fred L. Dapham, USA, 5th in modern pentathlon—48 pts.; PFC. Fred Mcarthur, USA, 5th in archery—2,419 pts.; Cpl. Cur T. Troy, USA, 14th in modern pentathlon—56 pts.; Art Barnard, USN, 3rd in men's 110-meter hurdles—0:14.7; Lt. Warren Druetzler, USA, 15th in men's 1,-500-meter run—4:00.2; Ens. Jack Taylor, USN, 3rd in men's 100-meter back stroke—1:04.4; EM3 Allen Stack, USN, 4th in men's 100-meter back stroke—1:07.6.

Harbour Pitches CTC To Softball Victory

The Second Student Regiment Challengers suffered a 6-1 defeat at the hands of Combat Training Command in a TIC game Wednesday.

Bob Cook went all the way on the mound for the losers and gave up seven hits. Cook and Wallace each had two hits for the losers, one of Cook's going for three bases. Harbour was the winning pitcher.

Both amateur and professional boxing is offered for Fort Benning sports fans. Check The Bayonet and daily newspapers for dates on future fights at spacious Gowdy Field.

Army Rifle Team Hit By Marines

Of the seven matches, the Marines copped five and the Army two.

In the important team competition, the seagoing soldiers entered 12 four-man squads and 11 of them finished ahead of anything the Army could offer. Nine Marine team members fired scores of 240 or better while the best an Army man could do was 239.

If the outcome was disappointing, however, the Army took pride in the fact that the best scores in six other regional high power matches to date were turned in by a total of 105 civilian and military gunmen went after bullseyes.

Scoring Stars

Both of the Army's wins were scored by Fort Benning men.

Capt. Murvale Belson fired 249 to win the International 300-meter test which concluded the tournament.

M-Sgt. Oscar Gallmar, of ASU Provisional Group, had to count his V ring hits to beat out Maj. Dawson in the short range slow fire match. He had 96 with five shots in the six-inch V ring, while Maj. Dawson had only four V's.

Best single performance of the tourney, however, belonged to Capt. Victor Brown, of Quantico, Va., who fired a perfect 300 in the long range slow fire match. That means he smacked the bulls eye 20 consecutive times at 600 yards, and 15 of his shots were in the tiny V ring within the bull.

The tourney was sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club in cooperation with The Infantry Center and The Infantry School.

Final summaries:

The High Power Championship (Aggregate)—1, Maj. Robert Dawson, 291-21V; 2, Capt. Victor Brown, 288-28V; 3, T-Sgt. Alfonso Jurado, 286-19V; 4, 1st Lt. Lemoin Cox, 285-18V; 5, Capt. Charles Davis, 283-16V; 6, Maj. Fred, 278-21V.

Versatile Army Sports Star Now Schooling Here

BY JERRY GARFIELD

One of the most active careers of participation in Army sports is claimed by Capt. Al Brancaccio, student officer in the Company Officer Refresher Course One-24th Company, First Student Regt.

After enlisting in the Army in 1937, Brancaccio won the featherweight and junior lightweight boxing titles in the First Division. In 1942 he took the division lightweight title.

During the last war, the fighting captain won the championship of Southern France in Marseilles only a couple of months after the Germans fled that area.

Later that year, he entered the Allied Boxing Tournament in Dijon, France. He went to the finals and lost his last bout to the man who later took the All-Army championship.

Diamond Dandy

Boxing isn't his only forte. He played, coached and managed the Fort Dix, N. J., baseball team to the First Army championship, taking some laurels himself with a 1.000 fielding average and a .326 batting average.

This was the same team that won the New Jersey State Semi-Pro tournament a short time ago and will enter the National Baseball Congress in Wichita, Kans. this month.

In 1951-52, the versatile captain managed the First Army basketball team which took the Northeastern Inter-Service Championship.

Casal Capers

Championships are seemingly a hobby with the diminutive five-foot, six Captain. Before the war in 1940, he played with the Quarry Heights (service team) who won the Canal Zone Championship. He took the batting championship too, with .440.

Captain Brancaccio hails from Ridgewood, Long Island, in New York, where he has a wife and child, Tom, eight-years-old.

After completing his course, the Captain will take an extended leave, before reporting to FECOM.

How Would You Call It?

BY HARRY SIMMONS

Is the catcher an infielder? A lot may depend on the answer. Here, in a simulated big-league setting, is a major problem over the catcher's status.

Let's say Brooklyn and Cincinnati are tied, 1—1, as the Reds come to bat in the top of the fourth at Ebbets Field. With one away, Andy Seminick laces a double along the left-field line. He goes to third as Ewell Blackwell grounds out.

Bobby Adams then lifts a dinky pop-up in front of the plate. Dodger catcher Rube Walker lunges for the ball, but it twists down between his outstretched hands, untouched.

Now the ball take a freak backward hop toward the third-base foul line. While still in fair territory, it hits Andy Seminick on the seat of the pants as he sprints home.

That puts it squarely up to you as the umpire. Is catcher Walker "an infielder?" If so, Seminick is saved by Section 7.08t of the Playing Rules, which says a base runner is out when hit by a batted ball only if the ball strikes him "before it has touched or passed an infielder." But if the catcher is not an infielder, Seminick is plainly out. How would you call it?

ANSWER

Although there is something to be said for the claim that the catcher is an infielder, major league umpires are instructed to call the base runner out on a play like this one.

TIMES ARE TOUGH ALL OVER . . . Everybody knows football coaches never have enough players, are abused by the alumni and booed by the fans. To illustrate this we give you (above) poor Cecil Dickerson, who has been pressed into servitude of head coaching Combat Training Command eleven. The waifs with him are Miss Finland, (left), and Miss United States, who were winner and runner respectively in Miss Universe contest at Long Beach, Calif. Dickerson was there in June as coach of Third Army track team, was nominated as serviceman to escort the lovelies to California show spots, thereby costing him much needed sleep. Rival Fort Benning coaches have sent Dickerson their condolances. Okay, bub! What'reya staring at—go on to the next story!

OC Outfit Boasts Top SB Pitcher

Charlie Stottlemyer is being hailed as the greatest thing in pitching to hit First Student Brigade softball in many a moon even though he and his 29th Officer Candidate regiment team lost out in the Brigade softball tournament.

Stottlemyer won 11 straight games before a wild pitch and two errors resulted in the six unearned runs and two consecutive Reses for him.

In 89 innings, Charlie fanned 111 batters, walked only 31, and gave up 41 hits. The real tip off, however, is his earned run average—a fantastic 0.57 — seven earned runs in 89 innings.

The big officer candidate carried his share of the load offensively, too, with a .343 average as the 29th won the OC battalion regimental crown.

Pete Scarpato and Charlie Lowe were the team's leading sluggers with .367, .357 averages respectively, followed by Art Turcotti with .341 and Ralph Jentch and Hank Gesseler with .316.

Next Pro Bouts Sept. 3-4; Inaugural Card Wins OK

Fort Benning will get its next professional boxing card on Sept. 3 or 4, according to Special Services, and the chances of its being successful are much better than "even money."

Some 600 fans contributed to a lost to him, beat him and drew in gross house of $700 for the first three previous encounters and a cash and carry sock program, a week ago Wednesday, despite an afternoon-long cloud burst which lasted until fight time and forced a switch of action from Gowdy Field to Briant Wells Field House.

A good estimate would be that the dismal weather kept at additional 500 fans at home.

Add that to the fact that the inaugural bouts were a success and it figures for some 1,500 cash customers for the next go, providing it's outdoors.

Two fighters made big hits in co-featured fans last week. Mel Batholomew, a 25-year old New Orleans kid who has been around, proved by far to be one of the classiest pros ever to show here when he stopped Al (Kid) McCoy, of Macon, Ga., in the fourth heart.

Bring Back Mel

Willie Ferguson, promising Miami light heavy who now calls Fort Benning home thanks to his draft board, made a catcher of Bob Green, of Oakland, Calif., for the full ten in an unusually stylish exhibition of sheer boxing ability.

Don't fret if you missed Batholomew. He may be back. Fred Ward, the Columbus sock impresario who matches 'em for Special Services, will try to get Mel back against Fort Benning's Ray Lee or Joe Brown.

Brown is the sixth ranking light-weight of the world according to the current Ring Magazine. Mel Buck DeCordova stopped it in 0:45 of four.

Pvt. McCoy failed to land a single punch on Batholomew in the third round.

Master Craftsman

Ferguson fought his usual against Green, who had knocked out 20 of 30 opponents previously. Willie simply isn't a tiger and that's the only reason he didn't flatten Green.

He spent the entire ten rounds establishing the fact that Green can take a tremendous amount of punishment without going down. Fergie didn't get hit more than one or two solid blows himself.

In good supporting bouts, Jimmy Louis, of Columbus, decisioned Dave Chatham, of New Orleans, and Jimmy Gagnon, of Fort Benning, copped the duke from Ken Thomas, of Columbus.

New Season's Hunting Dates Soon Announced

Complete data and dates on Fort Benning's 1952-53 hunting season is due in the next several weeks from the Fish and Game Maintenance Association, Col. Worrott Dudley, president, announced today.

Meantime, nearly 1,500 new federal hunting permits and 700 Association memberships were sold since June 1, according to Lt. Thelbert Fountain, game warden.

Sportsmen Wanted

"We would like to have some 3,000 members this year for our elaborate program," explained Fountain. "I'd be glad to explain it to any outdoorsmen who'll call me at 4-4229."

Newest addition to Fort Benning's range guards is M-Sgt. Manford Price, named chief range guard to replace M-Sgt. John Myler, who has left for FECOM. Sgt. Lafayette Travis, another veteran guard, is off for EUCOM, with no successor named as yet.

Averett's Pond, considerably enlarged and with a higher water level, is expected to be completed next week and when restocked and opened for fishing should be one of the post's best.

Cards Battling For Second In Sally League

The Columbus Cardinals, battling to get a lock on second place in the class A Sally League, take on Columbia, S. C., in a six game series opening at 7 o'clock tonight at downtown Golden Park.

After the series with the Reds, the Cards meet Montgomery in a single game Monday night. The final game against Columbia is at 3 p.m. Sunday.

This will be the next to last home stand of the season for Manager Sheldon Bender's crew which got off to a poor start early this season, but has since been a top division contender all the way.

Tonight's offering is a doubleheader to make up for a previously rained out game. A twin bill is also on tap Friday night. The other games in the series are all singles.

A special reduced admission ticket is available for all servicemen.

508th Tops Second In TIC Softball

The Second Student Regiment softball team suffered an 11-5 beating from the 508th in a TIC contest last Tuesday. It was the fourth league defeat against five wins for the Rochets.

The losers collected six safeties, Rankin topping the hitters with two singles. McHugh chipped in a double. Roy Pierce was charged with the defeat.

Former Bantam Champ Coaching ASU Ring Squad

BY ED JESINSKI

Cpl. Frank Hartley has taken over the reins of the ASU Provisional Group boxing team in the absence of M-Sgt. John Wilson who is awaiting retirement from military service.

Hartley is known to many Columbusites as the manager-trainer of Professionals Jo Tunney, Rocky Dixon, Hoyt Nunnally, Bobby Evans, Roy Mitchell and Bobby Ivy who have fought many Fort Benning sluggers at Fred Ward's pugilistic emporium on Front Street.

Having served in the Navy from 1943 to 1945, Hartley decided to try Army life and was assigned to the Georgia Military District. Boxing experience during his younger days led him to taking up manager-training activities during his off duty hours and he was able to sign up a number of promising young pros.

Arrived Here

Re-assigned to duty at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and subsequently to Fort Benning, Hartley became a member of the ASU athletic and recreation section.

Frank is an energetic guy who scurries around the Briant Wells Field House training ring, shooting a steady verbal barrage at his fighters and anyone else who is within earshot.

Big Difference

"Amateur boxing is a lot different than the pros," he says. The pros work out and keep in condition because it's their bread and butter. The amateurs are out for the fun of it. They know they can quit anytime. The only incentive you got for the kids is to build up their team spirit and pride, then they'll go all out for you and themselves."

Hartley now stands six-feet, four inches and burdens the scales with 217 pounds, but in 1942 he was Georgia state bantamweight champion. Oddly enough, he has a younger brother who currently holds that title.

Post's New Nine Ready In Sept.

The Fort Benning Country Club golf course will require extra mental and physical effort in post linksmen when the new nine holes are opened in late September. This sentiment comes from the man who holds the present course record.

Charlie Harpes, Country Club pro who just a couple of weeks ago fired a record breaking 32-30—62, played over the new nine late last month.

"It will be a tougher course," he observed. "The fairways will be narrower. The greens will be large and well trapped. The par three holes are tough, and the par five holes are 500 yards long, which means you'll have to work to be on in two."

Harpes was cheating on Lester Lawrence in playing the new nine. Lawrence, greenskeeper for some 20 years past, has the greens a rich emerald hue and ready to go, but the fairways need a bit more time.

The new holes are grouped in a neat triangular patch, a nine iron's distance across First Division Road from the present course. It was designed by Robert Trent Jones, the ne plus ultra of course architects, and Lawrence has wrought a minor miracle in having it ready for play by early fall.

Some fancy private clubs have two distinct 18-hole layouts, but the so-called 27-hole course is a rarity. The Benning course will thus have a degree of uniqueness, and here's the way it will work.

The present Number Ten hole will become Number One. After playing it you'll cross First Division Road to play the seven holes there, then cross back over to play the present Number Eleven, which will become Nine in the new order.

The present Twelve will become Ten, and there will be new Eleventh and Twelfth holes. Thirteen, Fourteen, etc. will be run in the familiar order. The present first Nine will become numbers Nineteen thorough Twenty-seven.

Confusing? on paper, yes, but it's not nearly as complicated as it sounds, and post shotmakers will appreciate the additional Nine during the peak golfing months when as many as 250 rounds are reeled off on a clear week-end day.

The 27-holer will not be a championship course in the strict professional sence, but as far as upkeep and layout are concerned it will have few, if any, peers in Georgia, not excluding the Augusta National course.

FOOTBALL

ent would seem to be Dick Lobmann, second string All-Post guard last year, and John Mackey, a better than fair fullback from U. of Florida.

Good Forewall

He also has back linemen Paul Crum, a work horse guard, Booker Harris and Vern Griffin.

Among his proven newcomers are Vern Fahrenkrug, a six-one end from St. John's, Minn., and Wally Triplett, former Penn State and Detroit Lions first stringer who was named to the All-Army football team last year while playing at another post.

The only hitch with Triplett is that he is scheduled for discharge in October.

Beef or Bone?

"We've got a lot of beef out for the line," noted Dickens, "but I don't know yet what they have in the way of talent. I'm hurting for backs, especially a quarterback. I want to use the T-formation."

Dickens was high in his praise of the cooperation he is receiving from unit commanders in getting a large turn out.

"If we don't have a winning team, it won't be because everybody in Brigade and PMG isn't pulling for us and giving us all the help possible," the Rams' mentor noted.

CTC Night Owls

CTC Coach Cecil Dickerson Monday was toying with the idea of doing his preliminary practices under the arcs to avoid the mid-day heat. Day sessions will be the order when the team dons pads and full equipment next week along with the other squads.

The Commanders' general staff is playing it close to the vest in talking up team prospects, but they shouldn't be hurting with the return of Frank Spaniel, former Notre Dame-Washington Redskins ace, George (Ding Dong) Bell and Adam Zulasty around which to build a backfield.

They were regulars on the 1951 team which lost ohly to the Rams and finished in second place. The Commanders also have a fair assortment of holdover linemen.

Stiff Competition

Colonel Swindler, a champion athlete and pistol shot himself since 1919 and the Army's leading exponent of marksmanship, predicted last week that the team will make its finest showing ever in Jacksonville, but warned of stiffer competition from Marine Corps squads.

If the Army team does come home from Jacksonville with more trophies the laurels in large part will belong to Colonel Swindler for his untiring organizational and coaching work, and, of course, to the radar eyesight and cucumber-cool control of Joe Benner.

Benner hit with all 60 shots in the gruelling three-hour Olympic slow fire test at 50 meters, placing 12 in the so-called X ring which is in the center of the bulls-eye and about as big as a quarter.

Attempting an iron-man feat by also entering the rapid-fire match, Benner was 34th in a field of 53 thanks to one shot which missed the target completely.

One Miss

Although he had a total score of 572—against the winning 579—that one miss placed him behind any other shooters who hit with all 60 shots.

As an idea of what a miss means, take his new world's record rapid fire score of 582x600 at Oslo. Rapid fire calls for three groups of 20 shots. You get eight seconds, then six seconds and finally four seconds to fire each string of five shots. Joe missed one of his five-second shots.

Benner was the first Olympic slow fire winner for the United States since the 1920's when Carl Fredrick, of New ork, won with 525, a score which is obsolete with today's weapons, ammunition and coaching techniques. Joe was second in the 1948 Olympics with a 539 figure.

Rifle

been training here for more than a month now.

This is the first time a national shooting competition has ever been held in the southeast and top military and civilian rifle authorities are expected to descend on Benning within the next week to iron out final details for accommodating the participants and expected large turn out of spectators and out-of-town sports writers.

There is a distinct possibility that there may be a number of entries by crack foreign riflemen.

They will all be battling for trophies which in some instances date back to colonial days and include special awards for civilians, ROTC and National Guard units and armed forces reserves and veterans.

ville, Ga., have all accepted or been extended invitations to join in paying tribute to Joe, who brought Columbus, who he represented in the Derby race at Akron, into the nation's spotlight.

The Jordan Band under the direction of Robert Barr and the 122nd Army Band under the direction of WOJG William J. James will add to the gaiety of the occasion.

Local participants in this year's Derby in Columbus and Judy Bedsole, 1952 Derby Queen here, also will turn out to pay tribute to Joe.

Plans announced by A. H. Chapman Sr., who presided over Tuesday's meeting, included the following:

3:06 p. m.—Army band, officials, press and radio will greet the arrival of Joe's plane at Muscogee County Airport.

The motorcade will then proceed as soon as possible from the airport to the Muscogee Chevrolet Company on First Ave. for the formation of the parade.

In the meantime, the Jordan band and this year's entrants in the Soap Box Derby here will begin forming the parade in this vicinity.

James Blakely, Soap Box Derby chairman, requested that Soap Box Derby entrants and former champs meet at Muscogee Motors at 4 p.m. dressed in the helmet and T-shirts they wore in the running of the Derby.

4:30 p.m. — Parade with Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young as marshal will begin. The parade will move down Broadway to Ninth St. and from Ninth St. to the courthouse.

5 p.m. — Ceremony at courthouse lawn with various officials making brief speeches and a few words from the champ. In addition to Joe, the first of speakers thus far includes Mayor B. F. Register, W. T. Heard, Muscogee Motor president, Chamber President Allen Woodall, Thomasville Mayor Pro-Tem Heath Varnedoe, a regional official of Chevrolet, M. H. Ashworth, publisher of The Ledger-Enquirer, and General Young.

Benningite Is Paid For Pulling Wires

Many people love to brag of their "connections" and "string-pulling" ability, but one Fort Benning Civil Service worker is actually paid to "pull wires" and supervise other people's wire-pulling.

Mrs. Odelle Adams, chief operator at the Fort Benning Telephone Exchange, spends half a working day at switchboard which handles 17,000 calls daily.

"The calls we handle are not from one Benning office to another," she states, "since we have the automatic system for that. We handle all information and long distance calls."

In 24 hours the 32 operators at the switchboard will handle an average of 17,000 calls through their switchboards. These include an average of 1,500 information calls and 300 long distance calls, Mrs. Adams said, according to Mrs. Adams.

She says telephone customers here get blamed for many things over which they have no control. Wrong numbers on long-distance calls are fooling to the operating staff, even though such calls are made by the automatic switchboard and not the operator.

'Yank' Now 10 Years Old, Still Publishes Yearly

(AFPS) Yank Magazine, the famous Army Weekly which was read last year by upwards of 10,000,000 servicemen during WWII, celebrated its 10th anniversary this month and still is being published.

It's true it has undergone some radical surgery since V-J day and its circulation to speak of and it no longer goes to press weekly amid combat scenes when editors frequently were forced to take cover in foxholes. But it still is on its feet.

Every year since Dec. 31, 1945, when it officially ceased an illustrious war career, Yank has experienced one publication — copyright edition. These issues never exceed more than a score per edition — a far cry from the some 2,000,000 published weekly during the peak of the war when Yank printed and distributed 23 editions. To preclude the possibility of their becoming collectors' items, these few copyrighted editions are guarded carefully, and only a few in official capacity have seen them.

Yank, like the Services it served so faithfully, has not escaped unification. Gone from the page one masthead of the copyright edition is the famous trademark of the wartime edition, "The Army Weekly." In its place has been substituted the badge of Service unification, "The Armed Forces Weekly."

The first issue of Yank was printed June 17, 1942 and it numbered 250,000 copies. Later it became established in 23 separate editions and at the war's end had realized a handsome profit of more than $3,000,000 which was turned over to the U.S. Treasury Department.

Four Yank men were killed during WWII and a number were wounded in action. Many won decorations and awards.

Journalistically speaking, Yank had numerous firsts to its credit, including the celebrated cartoon "Sad Sack," created by Sgt. George Baker, plus Miss Lace and others.

To preserve for posterity this unique journal of the war, the New York Public Library spent five years compiling a virtually complete Yank file, a checklist of the collection, available on microfilm, was prepared by C. E. Dornbusch, the Library's special assistant in government documents, who assembled the issues of a coast-to-coast search.

Editorial preparation of the Yank copyright edition is accomplished by Armed Forces Press Service in New York City. The tremendous popularity of Yank is reflected in the fact that AFPS still receives queries from points all over the U.S., and some foreign countries. Some seek back copies or special stories while others want to start subscriptions.

Whether Yank will emerge from the mothballs and get into regular production again depends upon world developments. When Korean hostilities started in 1950, consideration was given to its reactivation. Action was deferred.

PFC. MONTERO OILS SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS

Post Soldier Uses Army Time to Help His Future

A Fort Benning soldier is making his time in the Army pay off towards a civilian career after he is discharged.

He is Pfc. Jose F. Montero, of Caguas, Puerto Rico, who plans to study to become a doctor when he is discharged from Army duty and his present assignment as a medical technician in the surgical ward of the U.S. Army Hospital here is a step in the right direction.

Since arriving at Fort Benning's U.S. Army Hospital, Private Montero has gained a variety of experience. He has worked in the orthopedic and recovery wards. He says, however, that he prefers his present assignment in the surgical ward.

"Time in a hospital passes very quickly," explains Private Montero. "There is something new every few minutes and that makes the work very interesting."

Private Montero received his bachelor's degree from the University of Puerto Rico before entering the Army, but plans to enter medical school somewhere in the United States when he is discharged.

He has been stationed at Fort Benning about 14 months and is scheduled to be discharged from the Army about October 30th. Prior to his assignment here, he was stationed at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

100 Pints Of Blood Donated By 10th O. C. Company Men

It has been said that you have to sweat blood in order to graduate from the Infantry Officer Candidate School here. However, the 10th O. C. Company went quite a bit farther when they made a one-hundred per cent donation to the recent blood donor campaign.

The 10th O. C. Company, commanded by Capt. Ned Nelson, is the first company to pledge and make a 100 per cent donation for a number of months. This was made possible because of the coordinating efforts of the senior tactical officer, 1st Lt. William Vaughn. The last time an O. C. company made a 100 per cent donation was last winter when the 3rd O. C. company made a complete donation.

The company donated 100 pints of blood this month, and this amount not only filled the quota for the 1st Officer Candidate Regiment, but it is almost equal to half the quota for Fort Benning. The present quota for the First O. C. Regiment is 100 pints per month, while the post quota is 247 pints.

The blood donor campaign poster which was made by candidates Gene A. Bass of Goldsboro, N. C., and Daniel Shea of Fall River, Mass., also took top honors for the best poster of the blood drive.

"Our theme, 'Right From The Heart of 10th O. C.', is just how the candidates really feel about giving blood," said candidate Shea.

Col. Harry M. Grizzard, commander of the 1st Officer Candidate Regiment, is awarding the company a letter of commendation for the splendid manner in which they contributed blood, and the enthusiastic manner in which they participated in the blood drive.

Paris Freed Eight Years Ago

The fighting Third U. S. Army, under Gen. George S. Patton, had the Nazis reeling eight years ago Saturday and was hammering at the gate of Paris.

Although French forces under Gen. Charles de Gaulle entered the city on that historic day, Gen. Patton's mighty Third Army paved the way for the entry by crossing the Seine River and securing the flanks of the city.

The Second French Armored Division played a lead role in forcing some 10,000 of the German garrison who had not fled to surrender, but the tankers told their countrymen that they were a part of the Third U. S. Army.

The first Americans entered Paris two days later on Aug. 25.

The Fourth Infantry Division, now in Europe but which was reorganized and trained at Fort Benning, led Patton's famous Third Army into the capital.

First Division

The U. S. First Infantry Division, Fifth Armored Division, 29th Infantry Regiment, also a Fort Benning trained unit, 96th Infantry Division and 106th Cavalry and elements of the British 21st Army Group led the long line of marching men up Paris' Champs-Elysees.

American troops didn't stay in the capital long however. Under Gen. Patton the Third Army continued to keep the Germans on the run, and two days after Paris had been liberated the Americans were some 50 miles on the other side of the city.

M-Sgt. Morgan Rogers, chief clerk of The Infantry School's Army Extension Course Departent, remembers that one battalion of his outfit, the 29th Infantry Regiment, was left in the capital as security troops until main occupational troops could arrive.

Capt. Louis A. Caraplis of Third Army Training Aids Section at Fort Benning, was with the 629th Tank Destroyer Battalion, attached to the 5th Armored Division, when that unit took part in the victory parade Aug. 25th. He recalls that the people of Paris were glad to see the Americans. He didn't see much of the French capital because his unit moved on through the city and bivouaced on the outskirts before pushing forward with the attack.

Major Thomas W. Anderson, deputy chief of staff at The Infantry Center, commanded Company A of the 28th Regiment, First Infantry Division at the time. His unit came within sight of Paris, but was halted to let the French Second Armored Division move through. The First then swung north.

Victory Parade

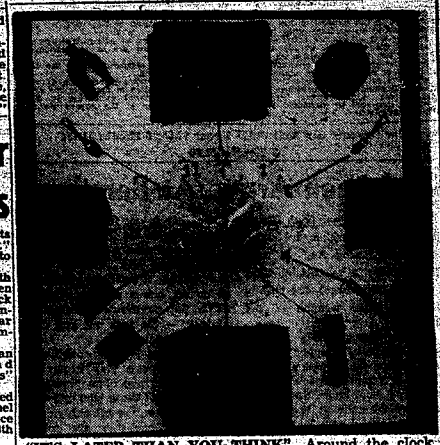
Major Robert D. Moore, now an Infantry School instructor, was with the First Battalion, Eighth regiment, Fourth Infantry Division, when that unit moved into the city on Aug. 25th for the victory parade. He led a motorized patrol of three jeeps across the Seine River to Vitry sur Marne at which point it became impossible to move because of the mass of people crowding his jeep.

"The people tossed flowers, bottles of wine and champagne and fruits and vegetables onto his vehicles, he said. "A young French girl about 18 years old climbed on the hood of my jeep and led the crowd in singing the French National Anthem.

Two days after the victory parade, an American officer from Third Army headquarters met a French major attached to the Second French Armored Division.

"Congratulations on your liberation of Paris," the American said to the Frenchman.

"Thanks, colonel," the Frenchman replied. "But we know, and you know, that we did not liberate Paris. You Americans did. But it was a wonderful gesture, your letting us enter first, and one which France will never forget."



"IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK"—Around the clock supply economy is the watchword in Headquarters and Service Company of the 773rd Tank Battalion. Set up by the company supply sergeant, Cpl. Ernest L. Harrison, this display is in a prominent place in the supply room and reminds the men that "Now is the time to practice supply economy."

Morale Is The Best Ever Van Fleet's Ex Aide Says

Morale of American troops in Korea was said to be the "best ever" by the former senior aide to Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander.

Col. Frank T. Mildren, who has arrived at Benning to take over duties as chief of Attack Group in The Infantry School's Tactical Department, also praised the school's training program. "It gives the men what they need in combat: confidence," he declared.

Colonel Mildren replaces Col. James Y. Adams as head of the Attack Group. Colonel Adams has been named chief of the school's Research and Analysis Section.

The new Attack Group chief also appealed for more blood donors. "During the heavy fighting, our medics sometimes do not have enough blood for transfusions," he said.

Excellent Allies

Colonel Mildren, who in 1951 commanded the 38th Infantry Regiment in Korea, called the Allied units fighting alongside U. S. forces "excellent." He praised their efforts "in spite of their small numbers."

A Dutch battalion was attached to Col. Mildren's regiment.

"UN troops far excell the North Koreans in supplies, trained men and superior weapons," the Attack Group chief said, "but overwhelming numbers and a lack of fear work to the advantage of the Communists."

He called the Korean conflict an "impasse of superior men and weapons against superior numbers" and said no end is in sight.

A 1939 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Colonel Mildren saw World War II service in Europe with the 23rd and 38th Infantry Regiments.

He holds the Silver Star Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Air Medal, Purple Heart and the Legion of Merit.

His Allied decorations include the French Croix de Guerre, the Luxembourg Croix de Guerre and the Belgian Fourragere.

Cadets Start Second Phase

The cadets of the Second ROTC medical and dental summer-camp entered their second phase of training when they entered the wards and clinics of the U. S. Army Hospital here this week.

During the first three weeks of the summer-camp the future doctors and dentist received Infantry field training. The remaining half of the training program calls for lectures and training in the wards and clinics of the hospital.

Wednesday the cadets will drive to Warm Spring, Ga., and visit the "Little White House" and the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. The cadets will visit the "Little White House" during the morning and the Foundation in the afternoon.

In order that they may receive information regarding the medical functions of the foundation the cadets will attend a dissertation given by Dr. Thomas Gucker, associate orthopedic surgeon of the foundation. Dr. Gucker will talk to the college men about the work which the foundation is doing with polio.

The cadets at this second summer-camp represent 11 colleges and universities.

THREE COMPLETE

Three enlisted men from the Second Student Regiment have been graduated from the basic supply course. They are Cpl. James R. Busby, 123nd Company, Cpl. Donald G. Rhoades, 123d Company, and Pfc. Jack H. Deaton, 11th Company.

'Ten Little Indians' Set Designed By Professional

Cpl. Greg Kayne, presently assigned to the Soldier Shows Division, Special Services Section, will do the sets for the forthcoming Fort Benning Little Theater production of Agatha Christie's "The Little Indians."

A graduate of the Dramatic Work Shop, New School of Social Research, in New York, where he majored in stagecraft and design, Corporal Kayne spent a year with the Black Friars Guild, a Catholic theatrical group, as resident designer.

He later was associated with the Play Mart Children's Theater, also in New York, where he not only designed scenery and costumes, but wrote adaptations of favorite children's stories for presentation in the theater.

Some of their productions included "Rumpelstiltkins," "Sleeping Beauty," "Red Riding Hood," and "Beauty and the Beast."

Kayne spent four seasons doing summer stock in New Jersey and up-state New York. He designed sets for stock productions of "Angel Street," "Guest in the House," "Dear Ruth," "Joan Loves Mary," "Room Service," and "You Can't Take It With You." When "The Male Animal" went into production, Greg departed from his usual chores and played the juvenile lead.

In 1949, the Pompton Lakes Summer Theater in New Jersey produced "Roman Holiday," an original musical comedy for which Kayne wrote the lyrics and collaborated on the book. It was optioned for Broadway in March of 1951, but has not yet been produced professionally. He also has written a series of original fairytales for children which are now being recorded for commercial release.

Arriving at Fort Benning in October 1951, Greg was immediately put to work on Soldier Shows. He has resigned sets for a number of these Special Services productions, including "Once in a Lifetime," "Let Yourself Go," and "Here We Go Again."

In addition to working with the Little Theater at Benning on their current show, Corporal Kayne is simultaneously designing scenery costumes and directing the Special Services "Heat Wave," presently in rehearsal.

This is the first Fort Benning Little Theater production with which Corporal Kayne has been associated. His previous assignments with Soldier's Shows has precluded his time.

"The Little Indians" is scheduled for presentation at the Main Post Theater on October 9th and 10th at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are not yet available, but announcement of their sale will be announced.

Red Cross Asks For 100 Nurses To Battle Polio

An urgent appeal for at least 100 graduate nurses for immediate assignment to polio-stricken areas has been issued by the Red Cross.

Mrs. Joe Bruce, executive secretary of the Muscogee Red Cross chapter, said here yesterday an upsurge in the number of infantile paralysis cases has taxed the nurse supply to a point where outside help is imperative.

The Red Cross especially urged inactive registered professional nurses to respond, she said. Nurses recruited by the Red Cross are requested to serve for a minimum of two months. Their salaries and expenses are paid by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Any nurse who is willing to serve is asked to contact the local Red Cross chapter immediately. It is located at 823 1st Ave. and the telephone number is 3-5614.

Gen. de Shazo Speaks to Grads In OC Class 23

A general who took airborne training here last January returned to address graduating second lieutenants of officer candidate class No. 23 last week.

He is Brig. Gen. Thomas E. de Shazo, now 11th Airborne Artillery commander.

General de Shazo told the graduating officers they were the future leaders of the Army. "The instruction you have received here is the latest phase of Infantry and Army technique," he said.

He called upon them to be diligent in their future assignments. "Classroom work is mostly theoretical," he said, "however, you now will be given the opportunity to put theory to work and gain practical experience."

Honor graduate was Lt. Donald E. Fries, of Fresno, Calif. Lt. Fries entered the Army in 1944 and served with the First Infantry Division in Europe during World War II. Before coming to Fort Benning he was with the Seventh Infantry Regiment, Third Division at Fort Devens, Mass.

Marksmen Arrive At Benning

The 1952 National High Power Rifle Championships scheduled for Fort Benning Aug. 27 until Sept. 2, are a symbol of what we sometimes forget—the rifle is still the basic weapon of the Infantry.

Despite the publicity atomic and other modern "super" weapons receive, we at The Infantry Center and more especially The Infantry School know, the importance of the rifle as the fundamental weapon with which a l'l battles are ultimately won.

This is not to iberate the scientific advances made in weapon design and utility, but rather to point out that it is the Infantryman, armed with his rifle and the ability to use it, who defeats the enemy in the field.

All those who will appear in the Matches and all those who are making it possible for them to do so, are a mighty symbol of the Infantryman's fundamental task. — To seek out and destroy the enemy.

We, at Fort Benning, are happy that we can play hosts to such a fine group of marksmen.

And most of those who will be in the contests, are not only good marksmen, but they are good soldiers who take pride in their professional ability. They shoot first as soldiers, and then as sportsmen. Pride in your craft is pride in your profession and these men have both.

School Tells Vets Program

Illinois Institute of Technology has announced a scholarship program for veterans that we feel should bring them at least a pat on the back. The school announced that it will grant 100 scholarships yearly to veterans entering the Institute under the new Korean veterans bill.

The scholarships are valued at one-half tuition, enabling a veteran who qualified for one of the scholarships to pay tuition of only $162.50 a semester, or $325 a year. The scholarships will be awarded to students entering the regular day division of the school in September, 1952, or January, 1953, and will be good for one year.

However, Dr. John T. Rettaliata, Institute president, said the scholarships may be renewed for additional years providing the student's academic performance is satisfactory.

We feel that Illinois Tech is taking the first of what may be a good many steps by a good many schools to ease the burden on veterans who return to college after discharge. Under the new veterans' bill, the veteran will have to pay all his expenses, including tuition, from his government allowance.

Joint Accounts Wise

(Editor's Note: The following article fourth of a series, is designed to aid servicemen and women in their personal affairs so that relatives and dependents will be spared unnecessary hardship in times of emergency. The series will deal largely with financial matters of specific interest to military personnel. Information for the series was condensed from Army Forces Talk, 416 titled "Your Personal Affairs.")

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Everybody wants to safeguard their money and valuable papers but many servicemen and women don't know how.

If you have a savings or checking account in a bank, it may be wise for you to make it a joint account. There's an excellent reason for this.

If you are the only one authorized to draw from an account and are ordered to foreign service or die, your wife or dependents may find themselves deprived of money when it is urgently needed.

In some states it is possible to establish joint accounts "with rights of survivorship," so that in the event of death of one of the parties, the survivor automatically becomes sole owner of the money in the account.

But whether you have a joint account or an individual account, be sure to notify your wife or dependents about its location. Otherwise, you may forget about the account, or die without your [illegible]

[illegible] of Naval Personnel recently screened the unclaimed accounts in banks all over the U.S. for those belonging to Navy men. Hundreds of unclaimed accounts of officers and enlisted men were discovered. Several of these accounts were turned over to needy dependents of deceased naval personnel. One account contained more than $3,000.

If you are married you may be able to simplify the settlement of your estate, provided the laws of the particular state permit, by putting as many affairs as possible in joint status with rights of survivorship. It may then be possible to make your widow the immediate and unquestioned owner of stocks, bonds and other personal property if such property is held in the joint names with right of survivorship.

Such "joint" ownership may have certain disadvantages. Exemptions under state laws which are extended to servicemen might not be extended to property held jointly by the serviceman and his spouse. So consult your attorney or legal officer about such matters.

Another method of safeguarding your personal property is by using deposit boxes. When available, a safety deposit box in a bank is the best place to keep valuable papers.

In most states the box may be rented in one of three ways: (1) in the name of one individual; (2) in the names of two individuals, as joint tenants; and (3) in the name of one individual, with another listed as [illegible] deputy."

Chaplain's Corner

By Their Speech Ye Shall Know Them

BY CHAPLAIN (1st LT) PHILIP G. McCONVILLE

One of the distinguishing characteristics of man as a creature of God is his ability to communicate his ideas by means of words, sentences, paragraphs. Even the most primitive of civilisations demand some sort of speech for its existence. Without speech human life, human progress, society itself is impossible for any length of time.

By the use of words men call upon their God in adoration, contrition, thanksgiving, petition. Infants first utter the names of their parents and one of the most delightful sounds to the ear of a mother is that of her baby calling her by her Title.

The sweetest music in the world comes forth from the human throat in song. Many of the most fateful happenings of human history have begun with a word of command. The lives and deaths of millions have hung in the balance decided by a human syllable.

A tremendous instrument, indeed, is the voice of man. History records that the human race itself was dispersed throughout the world as a result of the confusing of tongues after the Deluge.

By the use of words the most terrible lies are spread about, and the lips and tongue and teeth that are capable of uttering such sweet sounds pour out filth as out of a sewer. Among the worst offenders are soldiers who prattle on saying nothing hour by hour, using adjective after adjective in the most ridiculous and senseless manner to describe nouns which have not the slightest association with the qualities attributed to them.

Such foolishness in itself is at least wasteful, but when such an important organ as that of speech is so abused, more serious evils easily develop, especially in the deterioration of character on the part of the speaker.

In this matter it is noteworthy that many of the worst offenders are men who have been allowed to receive a good training in English composition, men who should be capable by WORD and example of leading others, but who descend to the gutters in the matter of speech. Aside from the damage such a habit does to those who allow it to develop, it is extremely distasteful to cultured people to be obliged to listen to such trash by the hour.

There was once a very famous man named James, called by some Saint James, who said, "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man. He is able to lead about the whole body. For if we put bits into the mouths of horses, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body. Behold also ships, whereas they are great and are driven by strong winds, yet are they turned about with a small helm, whatsoever the force of the governor willeth.

Even so the tongue is indeed a little member and boasteth great things. Behold how small a fire kindleth a great wood. And the tongue is a fire a world of iniquity. The tongue is placed among our members, which defileth the whole body and inflameth the wheel of our nativity, being set on fire by hell.

For every nature of beast and of birds and of serpents and of the rest is tamed and hath been tamed, by the nature of man. But the tongue no man can tame, an unquiet evil, full of deadly poison."

Army to Call 47,000 In October Draft

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

The Department of Defense has asked the Selective Service System to induct 47,000 men for assignment to the Army in October. The increase of 17,000 over the September quota is necessary to replace men who were inducted in large numbers after the start of the Korean conflict and have reached the end of their term of service. The October call brings total requests upon Selective Service since September 1950 to 1,060,430, of whom 979,000 were assigned to the Army.

Quick action to prevent delays in providing education or training for veterans under the new K-Vet Bill has been taken by the Veterans Administration. The VA has formally requested the nation's 48 state governors to appoint agencies within their states to handle approval of schools and business establishments for training eligible veterans. The law specifies that schools must have state approval before they may offer training to qualified veterans.

American Marines Halt Seven Red Attacks

High level Chinese officials have arrived in Moscow for important talks with Russian leaders on the situation in The Far East. The delegation led by Chinese Premier Chou en-Lai is expected to ask the Soviet for more direct aid in its struggles against United Nations Forces in Korea and for more economic and technical aid on the home front.

After seven bloody and futile attacks which were repulsed with over 4000 casualties the Reds have apparently withdrawn from contact with the troops occupying Bunker Hill. American Marines held the hill against wave after wave of attacking Chinese, repulsing all attempts by the Communists to take the key position on the West Korean front.

Elsewhere in Korea other American forces were not so fortunate. On the East Central front U. S. forces were forced to cede an outpost after four days of heavy fighting. The Chinese threw over 1400 rounds of mortar and artillery shells into Allied positions before they started their latest assault.

A typhoon with winds of up to 90 miles an hour, has ground Allied aircraft over the Korean front.

On The Bookshelf

THE CITADEL OF THE LAKES by Myron David Orr. Dodd, Mead and Company.

Myron David Orr combines the talents of natural storyteller with a scrupulous eye for historical detail in this stirring novel of an important era in American history.

This story deals with the turbulent and hazardous days when England and the United States contended for the prize of Mackinac Island and the control of the Great Lakes during the War of 1812.

Orr has taken as his central point the fur trader, John Jacob Astor, who, because of his insatiable lust for money, betrays his country and eliminates all those traders who defy him in his conquest of the Northwest Territory fur trade.

The sinister influence of Astor dominates and encompasses the lives of all the people of this pioneer outpost, causing disastrous results to the armed forces of the United States as well as personal tragedies to the families themselves.

LAMENT FOR FOUR VIRGINS by Lael Tucker. Random House.

Lament For Four Virgins is the [illegible] pursued love, defied conventions and waged persistent war against the matriarchs who dominated the town's society.

They were rivals in love, always they were allies in challenging the social code that hemmed them in. Comedy and drama mingled in the restless passage of their lives, into each such crisis brought astonishing results.

Out of these buoyant people and their destinies sometimes predictable, sometime shocking, has come a thoroughly unconventional novel that will delight with its gaiety, reality and wisdom.

With humor and felicity Lael Tucker has brought to life a whole bright world of the south.

FIELD EXPEDIENT MOUNT HOLDING OIL BARREL, TWO GENERATORS

Lessons From Korea Help Benning Smoke Unit

Field expedients learned amidst the smoke of battle in Korea are being put to use here by the 87th Chemical Smoke Generator Company, one of the new Combat Training Command units.

First Lt. James H. Gross, company commander, served with the Company in Korea, and is now applying the lessons he learned there to his company here.

Transporting his generators and oil barrels around the rugged Korean countryside was one of the toughest problems Lieutenant Gross had to contend with in Korea.

The original generator mounts were at first fastened to the sides of a jeep trailer, but this proved unsatisfactory because the generators bounced around too much and were often damaged.

Next his company, tried using a wooden frame to hold a generator as well as a barrel of oil. But this, too, was unsatisfactory, because the wooden frame soon became soaked with oil and constituted a fire hazard when the generators were in operation.

Finally, men in the company hit upon a solution — they made a welded frame of sheet iron that fit into the bottom of a jeep trailer, and needed no bolts or screws to fasten it to the sides.

The frame is equipped with hooks that fit over the handles of the smoke generator, holding it in place. Using this frame, two generators and one barrel of oil can be carried in one trailer without damage to the generators, the oil barrel, or the trailer.

'PAT ON THE BACK' TO HYPODERMIC TIMES
Col. Dovell Presents Award To Pfc Muchnikoff

932nd Medic's Newspaper Wins 'Pat On The Back'

"The Hypodermic Times," mimeographed newspaper of Fort Benning's 932nd Medical Holding Company, has been awarded the Armed Forces Press Service's "Pat on the Back" for June.

Pfc. Jack M. Muchnikoff, editor, accepted the award from Col. Chauncey E. Dovell, special assistant to Army Field Forces' surgeon, who is here inspecting General Medical Reserve units. The ceremony took place in the U. S. Army Hospital here.

The "Pat on the Back" is awarded monthly by Armed Forces Press Service as a recognition of achievement to outstanding service publications for general attractiveness, conformity with journalistic principles, readability, proper news balance and make up.

The Hypodermic Times was adjudged best during June among mimeographed newspapers published in the U. S.

In addition to the Pat on the Back, Muchnikoff received, on behalf of his paper, letters of commendation from Major Gen. F. L. Parks, Army chief of information; Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, and Col. Mack M. Green, commanding officer of the U. S. Army Hospital here.

The 932nd began publishing the Times in September, 1951. It has grown since that time from a four-page publication to a 10 to 12 page bi-monthly.

First Lt. Mell S. Pelot of Atlanta, Ga., is officer-in-charge of the publication.

AMERICA CANTA — PEDRO VARGAS, long a favorite b♪ North and south of the border, is represented in this release with a brand new album of American songs.

The package, designed primarily for the Latin American market, consists of some of the most popular tunes ever written, STAR DUST, SMOKE GETS IN YOUR EYES, ADIOS, DANCING IN THE DARK, TEMPTATION, DEEP PURPLE, BLUE MOON, and A PRETTY GIRL IS LIKE A MELODY. Stateside fans will go for this fine set.

COUNTRY CLASSICS — EDDY ARNOLD for some time has been the top album seller in the country and Western market on RCA-Victor. It follows, then, that an album of his unpackaged classics should soar to the top of the best-seller lists. Such is the prediction for this set, in three speeds, consisting of Eddy's biggest hits in recent years. Titles are BOUQUET OF ROSES; IT'S A SIN; THAT'S HOW MUCH I LOVE YOU; DON'T ROB ANOTHER MAN'S CASTLE; I'LL HOLD YOU IN MY HEART; A HEART FULL OF LOVE; ANYTIME; and FEVERKANA BABY.

One exception to the announced requirement however, will make it possible for major commanders to promote exceptionally meritorious enlisted men without regard to the new time-in-grade and time-in-position requirements.

Under the new plan, the number of promotions will be controlled by the Department of the Army. Starting this month, the Department will authorize each major command a specific number of promotions which may then be made within assigned

Four G-4 Offices Grouped Into One

Four offices coming under the G-4, The Infantry Center have been consolidated into a single unit.

laundries, an exceptionally lower rate will be offered, according to Quartermaster officials.

Similar lower rates will also be available during the experimental period on garments processed here at the Quartermaster dry cleaning plant.

Outcome of the 90-day experiment at the seven Third Army posts will determine to a large degree whether or not the new plan will be adopted as a permanent procedure at all Quartermaster laundries.

The following charges for service to enlisted personnel will be used during the experimental period on the new plan.

(a.) Monthly flat rate for laundry bundles containing not more than 25 pieces, exclusive of laundry bag, and not in excess of one bundle per week — $7.00.

(b.) Monthly flat rate for dry cleaning not to exceed 3 pieces per month — $1.00. (One uniform, jacket and trousers, is considered as one piece.)

(c.) Flat bundle rate for laundry bundles containing not more than 25 pieces, exclusive of laundry bag — $1.00.

(d.) Flat bundle rate for laundry bundles containing not more than 12 pieces, exclusive of laundry bag —50 cents (on a cash basis only).

The 12-piece bundle will not include more than 4 pieces of cotton khaki (shirts and-or trousers). However, the pressing of one HBT suit may be substituted for two pieces of Khaki.

Enlisted personnel who have elected to use laundry and dry cleaning service at the monthly flat rate, and during the month are transferred to a station within any of the other five Army areas where Quartermaster laundry facilities are available, will be entitled to laundry and-or dry cleaning service for the remainder of the month without additional cost, states the Post Quartermaster.

Rangers

stuck pretty close to things as they actually are.

"The training, because it is rather rough and rugged, would lend itself very well to the making of a big Hollywood production, but the short shows only training that every Ranger takes."

The movie covers swamp operations at the Florida base, and varied mountain training activities such as the now-famous "slide-for-life," rapelling down a mountainside and crossing a mountain stream on a rope — suspension bridge.

Lt. Rudy Jorgenson, Infantry Center theater officer, said the first showing of the short here would be on Aug. 27 and 28 at Theaters No. 1 and 2; it will appear at Theaters No. 6 and 7, in Sand Hill, on Aug. 29 and 30, and at other post theaters on later dates.

Ex-GI DeCordova Seeks Ranking In Friday Bout

Buck DeCordova, blond former Third Army light heavyweight champion, will meet Billy Smith, of Aiken, S. C., in a 10-round heavyweight main event Friday at the Columbus Arena.

DeCordova, recently returned from FECOM and now out of the Army, has adopted Columbus as his home and has been in heavy training for two weeks preparatory to launching a serious career in boxing.

Smith, a veteran 200-pounder, and DeCordova will clash in three-minute rounds, according to Promoter Fred Ward.

Although he made his reputation as an amateur at Benning, this will not be DeCordova's first pro effort.

He fought three times for Ward last summer before receiving overseas orders and knocked out Johnny Wilder, of Macon, twice, and decisioned Hal Moore on an outdoor card at Memorial Stadiu.

Buck, who now sports about 190 pounds, won the Third Army light heavy title in 1950 after winning the Fort Benning crown. He was runnerup heavyweight in Third Army in 1951, and was undisputed post champ.

DeCordova campaigned heavily overseas and fought Joe Louis, former world heavyweight champion, in three exhibitions.

Smith is an Army veteran, too, and was undefeated in 61 service bouts. He held five recent professional knockouts over such as Danny O'Shea, Art Saey, Jack Murphy, Billy Pepos and Hank Thurmon.

Saey is a former inter-collegiate heavy champion who has had a successful pro career.

Preliminary events get under way at 8:15 p.m. at the Front Street arena.

WARMIN' THE BENCH

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

A no - holds - barred two-round bout is in the making. The challenger is Jack Dempsey, one of boxing's all-time greats and certainly one of the sport's most colorful performers. His opponent—Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club. In the first round, Dempsey's attack will seek to break I.B.C.'s so-called monopoly on the better fighters. In the second stanza Jack aims to eliminate the practice of televising any inferior match just to satisfy commitments.

THUMBS UP . . . Slugging outfielder Ted Williams, late of the Boston Red Sox, has a cheery greeting for photographer at U. S. Marine base as he climbs into plane in his continuing refresher training which will ready him for combat duty.

Locale for the start of the brawl is Toledo, Ohio, where Jack's knockout win over giant Jess Willard in 1919 made him heavyweight champion. Dempsey has corralled 200 amateur and professional hopefuls to fight, he says, in a heavyweight tournament. The I.B.C.'s big boys — Walcott and Marciano — are the targets of the tournament survivors. They will have to answer the challenge of Jack's proteges. A win by one of the youngsters can wrest control of boxing promotion from the I.B.C.

Jack may be right about I.B.C.'s system of exclusive contracts with fighters but unless he has piles of money with which to wage his fight, he can't hope to beat such a big outfit. They have the cash to promote more cash. And that's why fighters are available to knock each other's brains out. TV fare is not always good, but club treasuries earn little from TV time purchases. They make their profits from cash-paying customers. It's hard for small-time organizations to buck I.B.C. there, too. But Jack never gave up in seven years as the world's champion or at any other time in a long, praise-worthy career. He won't quit easily in this bout either.

Eufaula Schedules One-Day Tourney

EUFAULA, Ala. — Bill Evans, golf pro at the Eufaula Country Club, has announced a one-day tournament here Wednesday, Aug. 27, for the first 80 linksters to get their names on the entry lists.

The low 24 qualifiers will play a medal round for places in the first three flights. The medalist will receive a prize, and three other prizes are ready for finishers in each flight.

Play will start at 9 a. m., CST.

How Would You Call It?

BY HARRY SIMMONS

The difference between right and wrong in baseball is sometimes a fine, hairline distinction. Take this hypothetical situation in a major-league setting:

Say Cincinnati has New York, 1-0, as the Giants come to bat in the fifth as Crosley Field. Lockman lashes a single to left, advances to second on Chuck Dierlings' sacrifice, and moves to third when Don Mueller taps one to the Reds' second baseman. Wes Westrum is purposely passed.

Manager Durocher now orders a steal home. As the Reds' pitcher goes into his stretch, Lockman breaks for the plate. The pitcher promptly backs completely off the rubber, so as to avoid any question of a balk, and throws the ball home.

It is apparent that Lockman will be out, but the batter, sizing up the situation fast, slashes at the ball and drives a single into right field.

Immediately the Reds claim the batter interfered with the play at the plate, while the Giants argue that he had every right to hit at the pitcher's delivery.

If you were the umpire, how would you rule?

ANSWER

The batter is out for interference.

Under the circumstances, the man on the mound is not a pitcher, but an infielder. (See Section 8.01(e) "If the pitcher removes his pivot foot from contact with the pitcher's plate by stepping backward with that foot, he thereby becomes an infielder.")

Had there been fewer than two out, Lockman, not the batter, would have been declared out for the latter's interference under Section 7.09(g): "Any base runner is out when he attempts to score on a play in which the batter interferes with the play at home base with less than two out."

Touring Cager Taking Infantry Tour Here

Second Lt. Santiago Soler, of Second Student Regiment, was a member of the University of Puerto Rico basketball team which toured the United States in the 1952 season.

The officer is enrolled in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Four which is assigned to the 115th company.

Ex-Montana State Athlete Studies Here

Second Lt. Jerry R. Bovier, a student in Associate Infantry Company Officer Class Four of the Second Student Regiment won four varsity letters at Montana State.

Bradford Second In Olympic Test

Officer Candidate Jim Bradford, who along with M-Sgt. Joe Benner provided Fort Benning with a one-two punch in the 1952 Olympic Games, returned this week from Helsinki where he placed second in the heavyweight division of the weightlifting competition.

The four points Bradford got as runner-up to Johnny Davis, another American, enabled the United States to edge the Russians, 50-to-49, for the weightlifting crown.

The rival Yanks and Reds came into the heavyweight finals neck and neck, and Bradford was instructed by the U. S. coaches to aim only for poundage which would assure him of second place and those precious four points.

Davis, veteran world champion, lifted a remarkable 1,012 pounds to clinch first and the 23-year old Bradford's 954 pounds sealed second.

"I might have been able to better that figure a little bit," explained Bradford, "but he idea was just to get enough weight in each test to insure second. I believe I could have done 1,000 pounds."

Good Figures

In the clean and jerk, Bradford equalled Davis' figure of 364 pounds. He snatched 299 pounds to 319 for Davis, and pressed 308 pounds to 330 for Davis.

Confirming the report of Benner, who won an Olympic pistol shooting gold medal, Bradford said the Russians appeared polite enough in their relations with other teams, but they always remained in groups and let only one person do the talking for all of them.

"I was very disappointed when their heavyweight, Kutsenko, dropped out of the competition at the last minute," said Bradford. "He gave no excuse for quitting, so I presume he was just afraid of us."

Commie Fadeout

"You know, we were supposed to meet him last year at the International in Milan, Italy, and he didn't show up, so I went to the Austrian championships figuring to meet him there, and he withdrew again. I'd just like to find out who is better: our heavyweight or theirs."

Bradford won't have much time to mull over his accomplishments in Helsinki. He's got five weeks of heavy training ahead to complete OCS and earn his commission.

Originally assigned to 14th O.C. Company, he has been transferred to 22nd Company. A serious student, Bradford originally refused to consider an Olympic try this year until assured that it would not void his prior OCS training.

Army Grabs Pistol Go, World Mark

The U. S. Army pistol team lived up to all its advance press notices ast week end in Jacksonville by winning all three team trophies and breaking the oldest record existing in the National Pistol Championships at Jacksonville, Fla.

The Army shot 1174 out of a possible 1200 in .22-caliber firing to break the 11-year old record of 1172 set by the U. S. Treasury Department team.

They won the .38-cal. competition with 1147 points and the .45-cal. test—the one they really wanted the most—with 1136 points. A Marine Corps team was second in all three events.

The only sour note was the loss by M-Sgt. Joe Benner of his national championship. Joe, the Olympic and International Shooting Union champ, placed second to William Toney, Jr., a U. S. Border Patrol agent from El Paso, Tex.

Toney fired 2804 out of a possible 2700 to 2601 for Benner.

Gen Treuhle

It was a heart breaking defeat for Benner who had won the crown three times previously.

The sights on Benner's .22-cal. pistol went completely haywire during the first day's action and before he could borrow another weapon he had dropped points which left him in sixth place.

Rallying gamely though, Benner shot his way up to second place the next day in the .38-cal. competition with a total of 1741 points. Toney was fourth at that point with 1732, but his 293 score with its 45 Sunday clinched the crown. Benner shot 300.

Winning Combo

Col. Perry D. Swindler, wily captain of the U. S. team who had previously described it as the best he'd ever had, chose Capt. Ben Curtis, WOJG Oscar Weinmeister, Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe to fire the .38 team match. It paid off with a world record.

Maj. William Hancock fired in place of Weinmeister in the .38 competition and Weinmeister replaced Curtis in the .45-cal. matches. The second place Marines stuck with the same foursome throughout.

Officers Course Loaded With Ex-College Athletes

Many college football players are enrolled in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Four, 115th Company, Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. Walter Hooker won three letters for football play with the University of South Dakota.

A Kansas State gridder is Second Lt. Ward Copening.

Second Lt. Andrew Burbee was on the University of Houston grid squad.

A member of the only undefeated Catholic team in the nation in 1950, St. Norbert College, was Second Lt. Francis Frazen who won four letters.

Another St. Norbert player is Second Lt. Norbert Weinberger who was awarded four football letters. Second Lt. David Westley also performed in that sport for the same school, in addition to basketball and baseball. Second Lt. John A. Gucwa won three varsity grid letters for the same institution.

Second Lt. Frank Koos was on the Rutgers University football and wrestling squads.

Montana State is represented by Second Lt. Ralph Beck who won three football and two wrestling letters, and captained both teams his senior year.

Second Lt. Jose Neuman was on the University of Puerto Rico football team plus baseball, boxing, and weight-lifting teams.

3rd OC Company Claims Score Of Ex-Sports Whizs

You don't have to be an athlete to be an officer candidate, but it helps. Almost one-third of the men in Third O. C. Company have participated in either college or semi-professional sports before entering the service.

Only a few men have lettered in three major sports: John A. Deery, Principia College, Douglas J. Hedden, North Central College, John W. Leander, Whitman College, and George D. Robinson, Grove City College, earned letters in football, basketball, and baseball.

John Haire, Jr., was a track star at Georgetown University. He also played basketball and professional baseball. Ollie White participated in football, basketball and track at Washington and Lee, John J. Weigardt in football, baseball and track at Stanford University, and Whitman, Ted Hughes, semi-pro tennis and basketball, Jack L. Nelson, semi-pro football and basketball.

In football, John De Matteo was an outstanding player with the University of Tampa. Others who concentrated on football were Thomas Spell, Tarleton State; Joseph Farias, Jr., Grove City; Vere Odiment, Duke; and Franklin Schultz, Jr., Purdue.

Outstanding in basketball were Alvin Smith, Flat River; William Wragg Jr., Bucknell; John Rauch, Temple, and Jack Bickett, Miami of Ohio.

In other sports, David Milbank was a member of the Princeton crew, Gordon Duncan and Paul Miele played professional hockey, Edward Howard was on the wrestling team at the University of Maryland, Richard Meneley in wrestling and track at the University of Colorado, and Richard Herbert was a member of the golf team at Duquesne.

All-Conference Lineman Seeking ISD-ASU Grid Berth

Two-hundred and 25 pounds of tackle have been added to the ASU-ISD football squad in the person of Wayne McElroy, former member of the Ottawa, Kans., University varsity team who was chosen as an outstanding lineman in the 1950 Kansas Conference.

A right defensive tackle and left offensive tackle, six-foot, three-inch McElroy was a four-letter man during his high school days when he played football, basketball and tennis, and continued his football upon entering college where he completed three years towards a BA degree in biological science.

He was called to active duty with the 185th Field Artillery Battalion Kansas National Guard on May 1, 1951, and is presently assigned to duty with the Operations SS Section of Headquarters, ASU Provisional Group.

TRACK CHAMPS

The post's only sectional Army team championship of 1952 was registered by the Fort Benning track and field team coached by Lt. Lawrence Williams, of Compa[illegible] Provisional.

Students Finish Simplification Course At Post

Supervisory personnel of the U.S. Army Hospital and The Infantry School's Operations Office at Benning have completed a 12-hour work simplification course.

The course, a study of more efficient and economical office procedures, is part of the Management Improvement Program which saved over $4,000,000 at Fort Benning last year.

Following completion of the course, The Infantry Center Work Simplification Certificate will be given to each person who puts into effect a practical plan for increased efficiency in his section.

An additional 16 Fifth Army courses are being scheduled for Fort Benning organizations, according to Col. Daniel Hickey, Infantry Center comptroller.

Airman Wins Commendation

A cost-saving suggestion that improved production in the maintenance shops of Lawson Air Force Base won a letter of commendation for T-Sgt. John R. Bertram.

Brig. Gen. Lacey V. Murrow, Lawson commander, presented the letter to Sergeant Bertram.

A head machinist in the maintenance shops, Sergeant Bertram's suggestions dealt with a spring winder and a collapsible thread-cutter.

His improved spring winder enables unskilled workers to wind the new spring in five to 10 minutes. The method previously used required skilled workers and took longer.

His collapsible thread-cutter is a device used to cut the inside thread on the filler-neck of wing gas tanks in C-46 aircraft.

It has been estimated that the thread cutter will save $8,000 a year in labor and production costs. Using the new thread cutter, a machinist can complete in two hours what would formerly have taken 80 hours.

36 ROK Officers Visit Tuskegee

Thirty six Republic of Korea officers attending The Infantry School journeyed to Tuskegee Institute and to Montgomery, Ala., last week end.

After touring the Institute and lunching there, the group moved on to Montgomery, where they spent the remainder of the week-end as guests of families there.

Sunday morning they attended church services with their hosts, and that afternoon the Korean officers and their hosts held a meeting at the Highland Avenue Church of Christ. Native Korean songs and speeches by the officers were featured at the meeting.

The group was accompanied by the Reverend S. K. Dong.

Col. Brown Named To Logistics Group

Lt. Col. Earl J. Brown has been assigned to the Logistics group of the Staff Department at The Infantry School.

Colonel Brown is a graduate of The Infantry School and attended a class on Military Science and Tactics here in 1946. During World War II he served with 18th Major Port at Le Havre, France.

Before coming here Col. Brown served with the Supply Department, Department of the Army in Washington, D. C.

2nd Class Ends For Teen-Age Drivers Course

The second class at the Teen-Age Drivers' School here graduated 14 Fort Benning high school students, who were presented with certificates of completion.

Highlight of the graduating exercises was a safe driving demonstration by The Infantry Center Safety Office. This demonstration pointed out to the students the required distance to stop a vehicle moving at 20 to 40 MPH under certain climatic conditions. Major E. M. Logan, motor officer, spoke briefly on defensive driving.

Arrangements have been made with Georgia officials for graduates 16 years of age or over to undergo the state driver's test to qualify for a Georgia driver's license.

Completion of instruction for class No. 2 brings to a close the teen-age program for 1952, but plans are under way for new classes to begin early next summer.

Members of Class No. 2 who graduated from the two week course were Kenneth A. Grimes, Jr., Stephen W. Woods, Fred E. Kaeserman, Richard Shaw, Mary G. Pearson, Bessie M. Scott, Barbara J. Young, Patsy A. Young, Beverly Jeane Robinson, Marian N. Keist, Donald Thomas, William Delumpa and Jon Shaw.

TEEN AGERS LEARN SAFE DRIVING—Members of the Teen age Drivers School watch as Maj. Jack W. Coulter, Post Transportation Officer, left, and Maj. E. M. Logan, Post Motor Officer, at front of vehicle, point out the distance required to stop an automobile at 20 mph. Jon Shaw, foreground, and Kay McWilliams, students at the school, hold the tape while measurements are recorded. The safe driving demonstration was put on at graduation exercises for class No. 2 here last Friday.

Rifle Match In Full Swing

Overflow Crowds Expected During Labor Day Weekend

BY CPL. CHARLES JOHNSON

The nation's biggest shooting carnival — the National High Power Rifle Championships — will reach an ear-splitting climax for more than 300 bulls-eye busters over the Labor Day weekend at McAndrew Range in the main post area.

The largest crowds ever to watch a major rifle competition are expected to overflow the range area for the sun-up to sun-down action Saturday and Sunday.

It's the first national sports competition held in Columbus in many years and sports and outdoor enthusiasts from all over Georgia apparently are responding to a broadside blast of publicity about the tourney.

Action begins each morning at 8 a.m. The huge event will come to a close Tuesday with the firing of the National Trophy Team Match which presently is regarded as nothing save an excuse for a final showdown between crack U. S. Army and Marine Corps riflemen. Their rivalry has been building

Traffic Rule Is Changed

To help ease the congestion of traffic a new system of traffic regulation has been instituted by the Provost Marshall's office. Beginning Aug. 26 the plan calls for the following schedule.

Two-lane inbound traffic will be allowed from 7:05 a.m. to 7:30, and from 7:35 to 8 o'clock.

Outbound traffic using both lanes will be permitted from 4:05 p.m. to 4:15, from 4:30 to 4:50 and

Welcome 'Heat Wave' Hits Theater 1 Saturday Night

The most welcome "heat wave" of the year is scheduled to hit the air-conditioned comfort of the Main Post Theater Labor Day weekend.

Sporting a cast of 20 top-notch singing and dancing stars, "Heat Wave", the latest Soldier Show production will play a three-day engagement Aug. 30, 31, and Sept. 1.

"Heat Wave" is a musical review composed of 15 musical, dancing and comedy acts. All of the acts were arranged by members of the Soldier Show section and will feature the music of Irving Berlin, Harold Rome, and Frederick Lowe. Some of the songs are "Heat Wave", "Out of Nowhere", "Limehouse Blues", and "I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate".

Under the direction and supervision of Capt. Eric C. Hicker, Soldier Show officer, and Cpl. Greg Kayne, members of the cast have been rehearsing nightly for the show since the first week of August.

The cast for the coming show is composed of both military and civilian personnel. Veteran favorites like Mrs. Betty Horner Johnson, Lt. Rudy Jorgensen, and Pfc. Jerry Glassman are returning. Talented newcomers are singer Miss Eugenia Meadows, winner of the Miss Columbus title, and Pfc. Isaac Currey, a sensational tap-dancer.

A vast majority of the present cast have performed professionally. Pfc. Glassman played the night club circuit in Chicago as a comedian and master of ceremonies. Lt. Jorgensen, who studied under the famed Jerome Robertson at Memphis State College, was a member of the Memphis Open Air Theater and had leads in "Desert Song" and "Student Prince". Private Currey, who never had any formal teaching in tap-dancing, tapped for audiences in and around Philadelphia, Pa.

Curtain time for the show will be 6:30 p.m. each day. No admission will be charged and the public is invited.

Youth Day Role Brings Thanks To Benning

Fort Benning has been thanked officially for its role in the Youth Rally Day last week when it entertained 261 youths and adults who visited the reservation.

F. M. Strickland, chairman of the Farmers Club Advisory committee, writes "The cooperation extended by your Public Information Officer, the Third Army Food Service School, your Military police and escort officers, and the Airborne Department of The Infantry School was outstanding.

Blood Donor Center Over Top Again

Fort Benning's Blood Donor Center collected 865 pints of blood last week bringing the August total to 3,444 and exceeding the monthly quota by 140 pints.

This marks the 11th consecutive month that the Blood Donor Center has exceeded its quota since collections started in September, 1951.

With five days remaining in the month, the center hopes to collect 48 pints a day this week and push the monthly surplus to more than 400 pints over the August quota.

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team led last week's donations with 133 pints. Combat Training Command was second with 86 pints and the Student Brigade donated 78 pints.

TIS Looks To Big Year

50,000 Students Expected For 1952-53 Academic Year

Approximately 50,000 students will hear the knell of school bells during the 1952-53 academic year at The Infantry School, according to Col. John M. Hightower, director of instruction.

The Infantry officers advanced course, longest Infantry School course, will have 388 U. S. and 24 Allied Army officers to study infantry battalion tactics from Sept. 2 to May 18, 1953.

Some 6,000 students will graduate as Infantry second lieutenants from the 12-wee officer candidate course. Forty classes are scheduled.

The 15-week associate company officers course, with 286 men in each of the 25 scheduled classes, will bring another 5,000 students to Fort Benning. This course teaches the duties of the company commander, and Infantry tactics and techniques on the company level.

15,000 Paratroopers

Fifteen thousand paratroopers are expected to graduate from the 50 scheduled three-week basic airborne courses given by The Infantry School's Airborne department.

Safety Office Predicts Eight Week-End Injuries

BY PVT. JIM MORRISON

One Fort Benning soldier will die and eight others will suffer serious injuries on crowded highways over the Labor Day weekend, Norman M. Evans, director of the Infantry Center Safety Office, predicted this week.

In his grim statement he pleaded with post drivers to "rigidly adhere to basic common sense traffic regulations that are adopted to protect the drivers, the passengers, and other users of the streets and highways."

"Drinking, too much speed or a combination of the two will be the cause of the death over the week-end," Evans continued.

In addition to the death prediction, his office also released a statement depicting how the accident would occur.

CTC Starts Conduct Plan

Combat Training Command has inaugurated a conduct consciousness program designed to help soldiers maintain high standards of off-duty conduct.

Under the direction of Maj. James W. Morris, formerly troop information and education officer.

The program strives to point out to soldiers going on leave or pass things they can do to maintain the good will of the civilian populace. The idea for the program came from Col. Ralph N. Woods, CTC commander.

In a special pamphlet prepared under Major Morris' direction, it is pointed out to the soldier that he can be either a good or bad ambassador for the Armed Forces.

The pamphlet emphasizes that "because you are a soldier you are always noticable in public and the Armed Forces will be judged by you and your conduct."

The pamphlet also reminds the soldier that he is a "walking billboard" advertising the Army.

When a soldier goes on pass or leave, a "reminder card" is attached to his orders. The card reads: "While on leave you are a billboard for the Army. Be courteous, alert and neat, respectful and proud."

When a man returns from leave or pass, he fills out a mimeographed form, answering a few questions as to whether or not he observed anything while on pass that reflects discredit upon the Armed Forces. The form is then forwarded to the commanding officer for future use.

The "Personal Conduct" pamphlet is used as a discussion topic from time to time at the CTC's weekly troop information hour.

The program is not designed to make "angels or sissies of the men," the pamphlet points out. "Rather, it is aimed at bringing to them an awareness that the Army expects normal, decent civilized conduct from its men.

"You young men are encouraged to relax, enjoy yourselves and have a good time—frankly, you work better when you do," the pamphlet says.

Rugged Rangers Makes Debut

"Rugged Rangers," a short movie filmed by Grantland Rice, made its Fort Benning debut last night at Theaters No. 1 and 2.

The 10-minute short covers Ranger training here, at the camp near Eglin Field, Fla., and at the mountain camp near Dahlonega, Ga.

It is scheduled to show at Theater No. 1 and 2 again tonight, at Theaters No. 3 and 4 on Wednesday and Thursday, and at Theaters No. 5 and 6 on Friday. Saturday, Aug. 30 and Sept. 1. Theater No. 1 starts at 1:30 and Theater No. 2 at 4 and 6.

Gen. Young's 12th 'Chute Jump Scored Successful

Infantry Center commander Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young made his 12th parachute jump yesterday morning at Lee Field.

It was originally scheduled for Aug. 25, second anniversary of Gen. Young's qualifying jump, but was postponed because the C-119 troop carrier aircraft was not available Monday.

Take off time for the C-119 yesterday was 7:10 a.m. at Lawson Air Force Base, with the actual jump occurring at 7:45 a.m.

"Wind Dummy"

Gen. Young jumped in the "wind dummy" stick, a group of four qualified parachutists who jump from the first air plane in a group to test wind conditions and assure the safety of student paratroopers in the following planes.

Accompanying Gen. Young on the "wind dummy" jump was Lt. Col. Woodrow Lawes, assistant director of The Infantry School's Airborne Department. Lead man on the stick was Sgt. Raymond P. LaBlanc of Port Arthur, Texas, and Cpl. A. R. Short of Thomaston, Ga., assistant instructors in the Airborne Department's Jump Group.

Enthusiastic Jumper

An enthusiastic jumper, Gen. Young says that "every officer and enlisted man who plans to make the Army his career should take airborne training."

"It gives a man confidence and increases his versatility for new jobs," Gen. Young declared.

"In the past, there were three ways to get to our job of war: walking, riding, and sailing. Now there is another — jumping from airplanes. The flexibility of airborne units is a must in modern warfare, and is a must for Army men to know," he said.

A veteran paratrooper, Gen. Young graduated from The Infantry School's airborne course in 1950.

Took Training Here

The Infantry Center commander, who was Colonel Young when he took airborne training here, praised the Airborne Department, headed by Lt. Col. Richard J. Seitz, as "one of the best schools in the Army."

"It's a great school because it gives the men what they need—confidence," he says.

"The Airborne Department gets its job done—it teaches the men to do their job — jumping from airplanes."

Gen. Young served as assistant commander of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C., from September, 1950, to September, 1951, under Major Gen. Thomas Hickey, who recently visited The Infantry Center to greet his former assistant.

"Makes Good Athletes"

"Airborne training makes good athletes of soldiers," Gen. Young also says of airborne training.

"The rigorous training keeps men young in spirit and body."

For his first regulation jump at Fort Benning since becoming Infantry Center commander, Gen. Young wore standard parachuting equipment — steel helmet, fatigue uniform, identification tags and heavy jump boots.

His parachute was a new T-10 type with reserve chute attached.

At the same time, airborne class No. 6 took a training jump.

Troop carrier planes for the jumps over Lee Field were furnished by the 434th Troop Carrier Wing of Lawson Air Force Base.

Local Man Receives Bronze Star Medal

A former Fort Benning sergeant who was a combat correspondent with the 3rd Infantry Division's Public Information Section in Korea has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal at Fort Benning for meritorious service.

Y. J. Simmons, 1300 Stark Ave., Columbus, formerly a staff member of the Atlanta Constitution and now a civilian employe in Fort Benning's Public Information Office, received the medal from Col. Charles H. Owens, Infantry Center chief of staff, in presentation ceremonies here yesterday.

Major Hal D. Steward, Infantry Center public information officer, read the citation which said in part:

"From Nov. 14, 1950, to Aug. 18, 1951, Sgt. Simmons, while serving as a public information specialist with the 3rd Infantry Division in Korea, often travelled to front-line positions in spite of adverse weather and combat conditions to gather news stories concerning 3rd Division soldiers.

"Always seeking new and interesting features, he displayed a cheerful, indomitable spirit which was an inspiration to the men about him," the citation concluded.

'Trooper First To Enter Rodeo

A redheaded paratrooper from Albany, Ore., is the first Infantry Center soldier to enter the Western - style Championship rodeo scheduled for Fort Benning's Gowdy Field Sept. 10-13.

Pvt. Kenneth E. Allen of Company F, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, has entered the bareback riding event for bucking broncos.

Allen, who grew up on a small ranch in Oregon, placed second in the annual rodeo at Curvales last year. He has participated in four rodeos.

He will be one of the many cowboys shooting for the $750 in cash which will be given away daily to the winners.

Unless he is eliminated or injured, Allen will ride five different horses during the four days the rodeo is at Fort Benning.

Allen insists that jumping out of airplanes is easier than bronc riding. "You can always see where you're going to land," he said, "and besides you don't have any horses' feet to worry about."

All stock for the rodeo was shipped here from Texas. Two of the horses have never been ridden.

Bus Drivers Course Set

A familiarization course for school bus drivers is being conducted by the Post Motor Pool for the men who will transport more than 71,000 children when school reopens on September 2.

Sixteen busses are scheduled to operate over 16 established routes at Fort Benning during the 1952-53 school year, according to Major E.M. Logan, motor officer.

Twelve busses on 12 routes travelled 11,000 miles each month last year, transporting approximately 71,000 school students to and from school. Because of the heavy student load last year the addition of new students at the Upatoi Terrace School, four additional busses and four routes have been added to this year's schedule. The 71,000 students is the actual number of single passengers transported each month last year.

A mimeographed schedule and time table have been distributed and bus drivers now are making trial runs to become familiar with stops over the established routes.

Last year each bus was required to carry 55 to 60 students a trip, but with the new additions, each bus this year will carry only 40-50 students each trip.

Rather than hire additional drivers for the new routes, Major Logan has re-adjusted the Operations Section to furnish drivers for the additional busses. This adjustment afforded a saving to the government of approximately $900 a month.

124 New Lieutenants Hear Gen. Craig Speak

Graduating Infantry officer candidates were told last week that their commissions represented the confidence the American people have placed in them.

Brig. Gen. Charles P. Craig, commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., presented Reserve commissions to 124 new second lieutenants graduating from Officer Candidate Class No. 24.

"This commission declares boldly that the President of these United States reposes special trust in your patriotism, valor, fidelity and abilities," Gen. Craig said. "By these tokens the nation becomes a party to this contract and will faithfully keep its bond with you, and by your deeds shall you be known," he added.

Responsibilities Multiplied

The general warned the new Infantry lieutenants that although their privileges may have been extended, their responsibilities had multiplied a hundred-fold.

"This nation has never tried to draw its officers from any particular class in society," he declared, "but it has attempted to select a body of men with one basic bond between them—integrity.

"The integrated man, the whole man, is sorely needed in our present world of shocking realities and nervous tensions," he continued.

"In order to call forth the noblest elements in fighting men, the officer must first of all face himself squarely and honestly," he said.

"Old Situations"

"Keep in mind that you will meet situations which thousands of your soldier forbearers have faced before you. Their history's antecedents can guide you. However, the final decision will be yours alone to take. On it you will stand, totter, or fall," Gen. Craig added.

Honor graduate was Milton E. Heineke, Jr., Lt. Heineke's next assignment is with the 10th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans.

The oath of office was administered to the new lieutenants by Major Erman Shaffer, chief of Fort Benning's Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Col. Lexington O. Sherfield, Infantry Center chaplain. Music was furnished by the 122nd Army band.

Dogs Must Pass I. Q. Test To Qualify For Army Training

BY ARMY NEWS FEATURES

A select group of 1,751 of Uncle Sam's finest soldiers are leading a dog's life in the United States Army — but so alluring is life in this elite corps that vacancies seldom exist.

Induction standards are high — but if the applicant is healthy, well-informed, 22 to 28 inches tall, weighs between 60 and 90 pounds, and falls within the age range of one to two-and-one-half years, he is eligible for consideration.

Favorable consideration may be anticipated if, in addition he is pure - bred German Shephard — preferably male.

In entering the service, they are chosen primarily for their intelligence.

To gain membership in this unique organization and before the rare military occupational specialty is conferred upon them, they are forced to endure a rigid physical examination so that any physical or mental failings which later may hamper their successful performance in the Army will be brought to light. If and when they receive the assenting nod from the medical examiner, they then are inducted.

To assure that their identity never will be in doubt, their serial numbers are tatooed on the inside of the left flank and they are ready to begin their basic training.

Uncle Sam's finest canine soldiers enter the Army through the Quartermaster Corps War Dog receiving and Holding Station in Virginia. After a brief stay of six weeks in which they are taught correct habits and community living, they entrain for their special training center at Camp Carson, Colo.

The basic training period—which varies from four to 21 weeks — is designed to develop military behavior basic to more specialized training for specific military duties. This Specialized training varies with the type of work for which each is fitted.

Beginning with the Army's basic commands, they soon move on to the more advanced training of actual scouting and patrolling. Battle - conditioning is necessary part of the training in which they are taught to be oblivious of all types of gun fire — follows. If judged fit by their instructors, they then are ready to follow in the footsteps of the unsung heros that went before them.

Their group — which reached a peak strength of more than 10,000 during World War — dwindled to approximately 500 as the demobilization program went into high gear. Today they are but a shadow of their former selves, but their effectiveness never will be doubted.

In Korea their presence has been credited with reducing battle patrol casualties in some cases by as much as 60 per cent.

Peculiar to their distinctive status today is the fact that there is no fixed time limit as to their length of service. Only when they are suffering from an incurable injury or ailment are they retired from the service.

From induction to retirement, "man's best friend — the Army's canine soldier — leads a dog's life and loves it.

Civilians Urged To Buy Bonds

A Defense Bond Program, in cooperation with the United States Treasury Department, will be conducted at Fort Benning during September to increase participation in the purchase of bonds by civilian employees through the Payroll Savings Plan.

Mr. David J. Nichols, Civilian Personnel Division, AG Section, will serve as Executive Chairman of the campaign.

Mr. Nichols has announced that all civilian employees will be afforded an opportunity to participate in the plan during the forth-coming campaign.

The chiefs of staff sections and activities employing civilians will appoint a representative to serve as vice-chairman for their organizations.

Each civilian employee will be personally contacted during the campaign and invited to participate in the program. The Payroll Savings Plan will be fully explained to each employee by the vice chairman in his section.

Special citations will be awarded by the US Treasury Department to all activities attaining a participation of 50 per cent. A gold star will be placed on the citation certificate for each additional 10 per cent.

All civilian employees are urged to participate in the program during the campaign. Participation on the part of individual employees, however, is entirely voluntary.

First Cavalry Alumni Trot To Ohio Meet

The Association of the First Cavalry Division will hold its Fifth Annual Reunion in Cleveland, Ohio Aug. 29 - 31.

The Association is an organization of men who served with the First Cavalry Division during World War II and the Korean conflict, and is a living memorial to members of the division who have lost their lives in combat.

Steeped in U. S. military tradition, what is now the division had its inception as unit organized by an Act of Congress in 1855, Activated at Louisville, Ky., Lt. Col. Robert E. Lee was first commander of the Fifth Cavalry Regiment, original unit.

Three regiments of cavalry were subsequently added in 1866 and Ft. Riley, Kansas became the U. S. Cavalry base. Among the components added then was the famed Seventh Cavalry Regiment, First commander of this unit was Brevet Maj. Gen. George A. Army-Wide Economy Program

The Army is waging all-out war against Communism's most effective ally—waste.

Wherever U. S. soldiers are stationed, they are hearing a never-ending sermon that stresses economy in the three M's—money, material, and manpower.

American soldiers are confident that Communist armies cannot defeat them on the field of battle, but until recently few realized that wasted dollars also could destroy America's military might.

Frugal by nature and by choice, most U.S. citizen soldiers are taking pride in finding new ways to do things better and cheaper—and at the same time curbing the drain on the Treasury that they help fill. The result has been a flood of suggestions and inventions, ranging from a cheaper way to slice bacon to an equipment re-building program that has saved billions of dollars.

During the past 12 months, the Army has received from its soldiers and employes more than 38,000 suggestions on how to save money. Of these, 6,700 have been adopted and they have resulted in a first-year savings alone of more than $7,000,000.

Every person in the Army, from five-star general down to buck private, is being affected by programs designed to cut costs and increase efficiency. To calculate the exact savings made during the past year is impossible, but had the cost consciousness program not been in effect and vigorously pursued, the Army would have required several billion more dollars in order to fight the battles of Korea and improve its state of readiness.

Economy is a part of the Army's basic training program, and the subject is preached in every training program throughout a soldier's or officer's career. "Take care of your equipment—throw away nothing" are typical of the phrases a soldier hears from the time he enters the Army until the day he leaves it.

One of the most effective methods used to bring home to soldiers the cost of the weapons and equipment they use is the tag system. At various times, everything from rifles and bayonets up to 48-ton tanks are price-tagged. Then the soldier sees for himself exactly what it costs. While he knew all along that weapons are expensive, he usually finds that his M-1 rifle is much more expensive than the shotgun he used to carry on bird-hunting expeditions. In the back of his mind always is the thought that he, as a taxpayer, helped buy it.

Lectures, cartoons, posters, billboards, camp newspapers, camp radios, and other media constantly remind him that he and his folks at home are footing the bill for America's defense against Communism. In combat zones particularly, soldiers realize the truth of the daily reminders they hear—supply economy may be the key to success or failure in battle.

Commanders and staff officers also come in for a big share of the economy campaign, for they control the use of supplies and equipment.

The Army is fighting the war against waste with enthusiasm.

Allotments Help Dependents

(Editors Note: The following article, fifth of a series, is designed to aid servicemen and women in their personal affairs so that relatives and dependents will be spared unnecessary hardship in time of emergency. The series will deal largely with financial matters of specific interest to military personnel. Information for the series was condensed from Armed Forces Talk 410 titled "Your Personal Affairs.")

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

How do the Armed Services help you and your dependents?

Allotments: The Dependents Act of 1950 provides for a monthly Class "Q" allotments for eligible dependents of enlisted personnel. The monthly check represents the sum of a serviceman's basic allowance for quarters plus a stipulated deduction from his basic pay.

A Class "B" allotment (known in the Navy by various special letter designations) is a voluntary allotment. It generally may be made to: (1) banks or individuals for savings or for support of dependents; (2) commercial life insurance companies for payment of premiums of insurance on the life of the allotter; (3) certain relief societies of the Armed Forces; and (4) postal savings accounts.

A Class "B" allotment is an allotment made for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds.

Enlisted personnel may, as a rule, allot all or any part of their basic pay for Class "E or "B" allotments except (1) the amount being deducted for a Class "Q" allotment, (2) the amount required to be withheld for Federal Income Tax, and (3) $10.

Transportation of Dependents: Dependents of commissioned and warrant officers and certain enlisted persons are entitled to transportation at government expense when ordered to make a permanent change of station.

Exceptions to this ruling are enlisted members of pay grade E-4 with less than seven years of service, and personnel holding the grade of E-3, E-2, or E-1. Also members assigned to a school or installation as students if the than 20 weeks duration.

When military members, regardless of grade, die while on active duty, are injured, missing for a period of 30 days or more, interned in a neutral country, or are captured belsagnered or besieged by enemy forces, their dependents may apply for movement to a permanent residence.

Chaplain's Corner

Planning For the Future is Important

BY CHAPLAIN (LT COL) STEPHEN W. KANE

"If I had my life to live over again"... how many times did you hear that one!! In the Army today much attention is given to career planning and character guidance; it is the answer of the Services to that dismal cry so familar in the varied walks of life and heard all too frequently.

A popular magazine was recently quoted as indicating that more than one-third of our people were dissatisfied with their present position. Perhaps you do not particularly honor these national surveys but the fact remains that too many bemoan their unhappy circumstance. Weakness and failure can become the basis of character development. Education draws out the best within a person in any field of talent or ability. Character takes hold of what is worst —uproots the evil weed and plants the virtue contrary to that vice. Let us proceed through the process of character development.

Step One—is to know oneself, to discover what is worst. Self examination will quickly reveal a pattern. There is that predominant passion—there is a weakness—be it any of a thousand species, that weed must be dug up from the very depths of the heart. It must be destroyed. This evil habit may be well hidden, indeed its camouflage may at first deceive.

In the manual of soldiering, strong reconnaissance is properly identified. Sometimes we may throw dust into our eyes and so handicap any ability to detect—may I illustrate—the filthy cartoon and the blushing pin-up might sometime pass for humor or art but in reality, is it not a pondering to men's lowest instincts? Do not be fooled by a disguise that may even ape the holiness of saints. The devil is no amateur and wit is on his side.

When good reconnaissance is made we are ready for combat with the proper foe. The necessary information in our possession, we know exactly the needs for victory. The Supreme Commander commands only the possible—that which YOU can do. Reinforcements are assured. Every want is cared for on request. Victory is guaranteed if only we are prepared to use the equipment on hand. Dilly - dally and wait till next week—you may be late. When enemy positions are strengthened, you remember "God does not throw bread to the Swine". The great victories of the battlefield were those hard won battles. Your great victory is to turn that vice into virtue.

Energy must be channeled in the right direction. If you know yourself — if you have mastered yourself—then keep moving forward, lest your halt be turned into dismal retreat. Counterattacks are always to be expected and a smart enemy will attack at that old, old weakness.

The greatest sinners have become the greatest saints. You remember the Saul of Tharsus, who became Paul the Apostle—The Scarlet Magdalene, the Spiritual Magdalene — The luxury loving Ignatius, the pleasure loving Spanish officer, who became the Jesuit Ignatius Loyola. Examples go on endlessly, but in them we see a hope and we too can determine, that what they did—we too can do.

Temptations will provide opportunity for victory over the lower self. With evil there can be neither compromise nor treaty. Sin must be liquidated — that evil habit must be destroyed. The problem is yours — may success be yours. God bless you.

Two Saved As B-17 Is Mistakenly Shot Down

Only two members of the crew of an Air Force B-17 bomber that was mistakenly shot down over the Gulf of Mexico last Monday have been rescued.

It is feared that the other six men in the bomber's crew were lost as a result of the error made by an American jet pilot.

The big plane was acting as the "mother craft" for a drone B-17 that was following it a few miles behind when it was mistaken for the target and sent plummeting into the sea by the jet's rocket fire.

A heavy gale that blew across the Gulf at the time of the mishap hampered ell rescue operations.

Lightning fast rescue work is credited with saving the lives of 50 persons who were aboard a British Hermes airliner that plummeted into the sea off the western tip of Sicily early this week.

Italian fisherman saved the lives of all but seven of the 57 passenger and crew members aboard the giant aircraft. So far three bodies have been recovered and four persons are still missing.

The plane split open when it hit the choppy seas after being forced down. Most of the people aboard scurried to safety through a huge gash cut by the crash in the planes body.

Brink's Inc. is out some more money. The organization which was the subject of the famed million dollar Boston robbery a couple of years ago was hit for another $65,000 Monday afternoon.

A person or persons unknown simply walked off with the money from an unguarded armored car. The truck was standing outside of the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington while the guards were inside eating lunch. The robbers overlooked an additional $104,000 which was also in the vehicle.

A federal grand jury in New York indicted 65 persons, mostly jewelry manufacturers, for alleged smuggling of gold.

The U. S. Attorney's office in New York stated that the men indicted were part of a $500,000,000 a year racket that has been illegally shipping gold out of the country.

QM's Coldbar Suit Succeeds In Keeping Out Cold, Damp

By Armed Forces Press Service

(The following was condensed from an article appearing in the Saturday Evening Post titled: "We're Licking the Terror of the Arctic.")

Man's continuing fight against the forces of nature has recorded another victory. The Army Quartermaster Corps' "coldbar suit," introduced last December, has proven successful.

Developed by Corps technicians, the single-layer plastic garment is expected to simplify wet - cold weather problems which have hampered U. S. forces in arctic climates. The suit employs the so-called "vapor barrier" principle in that it can be worn comfortably at 40 degrees below zero despite being exposed to wet or dry weather.

Not long ago cold - weather experts decided that they must have equipment that would be versatile enough to be worn in the dry cold of 60 degrees below zero or the soggy, wet cold of any degree, and at the same time maintain a soldier's combat readiness. After much experimenting they found their answer—the coldbar suit.

Recent tests in Korea and at Camp Drum N. Y., have proved its ability to stand up against even the most severe weather conditions. In fact, it was found that a person can even sleep in the suit and be warm when he gets up in the morning.

A recruit can garb himself in the coldbar suit in about four minutes. Previously, it had taken ten minutes to don cold-weather gear. Also, the QMC estimates that the new suit can be produced for $200 less than the present cold-weather uniform.

Secret of this new suit is the plastic knobs which stud the inner surfaces of both the jacket and trousers. The knobs trap a quarter-inch layer of air around the body. This air remains at body temperature despite outside conditions.

Much credit for the coldbar suit goes to former OSS officer Michael Siauta. While serving in Germany during WWII he became interested in "polyvinyl chloride," a type of plastic the Germans used. Besides being waterproof and flexible at 40 degrees below zero, the plastic is also buoyant and fireproof. Finally, in 1951, Siauta had his first suit made of the plastic and the QMC had won another round in man's arctic survival.

Ration Breakdown Sections Perform Vital Army Chore

One of the most vitally important but little known functions of any major Army unit is its ration breakdown section, for without it, soldiers would go hungry.

These unheralded sections are responsible for providing mess halls with rations. All of them are similar to the one operated by the Area Services Unit - Provisional Group, which acts as a center for receiving foodstuffs in bulk lots and distributing it in comparatively small units.

Every month, the office of the Quartermaster General in Washington, D. C. issues a master menu covering meals for the coming month. The menu outlines the daily meal plan for mess halls throughout the Army.

The breakdown centers, following the master menu, break down rations into units sufficient for the expected number of men at each mess hall. This figure is arrived at through computations based on the head-count totals at every mess hall.

Once the figures are computed for each mess hall, a consolidated authorization sheet is submitted to the commissary, where food stuffs are issued. A comparable plan is carried on through the meat plant and bakery.

When the breakdown center receives the food, it is distributed in bins marked for each unit. A checker with a tabulation sheet checks each item off as it is placed into a bin.

Once all the food is divided, trucks carry it to unit messes, where it is generally used the following day.

Mofor Pool Plan Saves $5,000

Reorganized methods of personnel utilization at The Infantry Center's Engineer sub-motor pool saves the government $5,940 monthly in salaries, according to J. L. Mosely, Engineer management improvement officer.

Under the new plan, a crew of six civilian workers on duty from 4 p.m. to midnight replace the many vehicle drivers formerly required for vehicle maintenance. This system saves 30 minutes a day per man, or a daily savings of 143 man hours and $196 in salaries.

Formerly, each driver was responsible for checking the mileage, vehicle deficiencies, tires, engine oil, water, battery and equipment. This work is now done by the civilians under Sgt. Erskine E. Garrison.

Gains in vehicle maintenance is another advantage of this system, according to M-Sgt. James C. Baird, in charge of the sub-motor pool.

Since the new plan has been in effect, more efficient maintenance has reduced the motor deficiencies from 6 per cent to 2.8 per cent, ensuring a longer life for the 285 official cars and heavy trucks operated by the Engineer Section here.

'Squirt Guns To Rifles' Is Trading Post Motto

The Fort Benning Trading Post in Doughboy Stadium will sell you anything from a high-powered rifle to a water pistol — and make money for Community Chest fund charities at the same time.

Operating under the guidance of the Community Chest Fund Council, the Trading Post has been here since 1947, when it was organized under the supervision of the Women's Club.

Turned over to the Community Chest Council in 1948, any profit derived from the Post's operation is directed into charity channels through the Chest.

The Trading Post was set up here for the convenience of both military and civilian personnel. All the merchandise displayed at the shop has been left on consignment by private parties.

The merchandise is taken on a 90-day consignment. The consignee sets his own price, but if after 90 days the merchandise has not moved, the consignee must either remove it or lower the price by 20 per cent.

When an article is sold, the Post retains 20 per cent of the selling price for Community Chest charity funds.

The only restrictions on buying at the Post are that all sales are final, and all must be cash sales. Anyone, civilian or military, can purchase there. While the Post will accept no deposits on articles, it will hold them for 24 hours.

Among the most popular items the Trading Post handles are Army and Air Force uniforms; all types of clothing for men, women and children; furniture; electric appliances; baby beds, bassinets, and other infant equipment; books of all sorts, ranging from comics to encyclopedias.

Radium Hunters Return From Unsuccessful Trip

A team of Fort Benning Radium hunters returned to The Infantry Center last week after conducting an unsuccessful search for a lost needle containing 13.47 milligrams of the radioactive material.

The detection team, consisting of 1st Lt. R. H. Kimbrough, assistant post chemical officer, and Pfc. John Carter, was rushed to Barwick, Ga., a small town about 150 miles south of here last week in answer to a call from the operator of the air-bed hospital there.

The loss was discovered by a hospital technician after a capsule containing five radium needles fell to the floor and broke. Four of the needles were recovered.

Lt. Kimbrough and Pfc. Carter conducted a thorough search of both the hospital and the surrounding area, by using Geiger counters and ion chambers. They abandoned their search only when they had "definitely established the fact that the radium was nowhere in the vicinity."

The two men searched all the hospital rooms, and tested mops and mop water, sweepings from the floor, and the disposal pit where refuse from the hospital is burned.

They also checked the technician's clothing, quarters and the doctor's clothing and quarters. Later they traveled 40 miles to the home of a man who had received treatment at the hospital the previous day to check his clothing and the car which had returned him from the hospital.

The radium needle was large enough to emit rays which could be picked up by their instruments 50 feet away, Lt. Kimbrough said. He declared that the search had definitely established the fact that the radium was nowhere on the hospital grounds since he and his assistant covered every square foot inside and outside of the hospital.

The lost radium was the size and shape of a phonograph needle and was valued at $1,000, Lt. Kimbrough reported.

Gen. Young Approves Safety Shoes For 1,500 Workers

Nearly 1,500 Fort Benning Civil Service workers will be required to wear safety shoes, following approval by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young of a plan presented by The Infantry Center Safety Council.

Employes required to wear the shoes, however, will have to furnish them at their own expense, it was announced.

The decision was made after the Infantry Center Safety Council conducted a survey to determine which jobs were sufficiently hazardous to warrant the use of safety shoes to prevent toe injuries.

The survey revealed that $8,000 is lost annually through injuries to personnel employed in the 77 position classifications now required to have the shoes.

In its report the council observed:

"It has been determined by the experience of both government and industry that the only practical means by which toe injury can be reduced to any appreciable degree is to get all employes exposed to toe injury hazards to wear a standard type steel capped safety shoe."

The council reports also pointed out that toe injuries at one large installation in the Third Army area had been reduced 77 per cent after the inauguration of a similar program.

Third Army headquarters advised the council that the employes must furnish the shoes at their own expense since the quartermaster general considers the shoes a part of normal wearing apparel.

Personnel employed in job classifications which now require the wearing of safety shoes will have until Jan. 1, 1953, to purchase the shoes.

Cool Weather Fades As Dryness Returns

Cool weather is fading away a degree or two every day as higher temperatures edge in, the weatherman said today.

No rain is in sight and once more things are beginning to dry up, he added.

Yesterday's low of 62 was only five degrees above the all-time low record for the month. The mercury dropped to 57 in August, 1950.

It was also the coldest night in more than three months, the weatherman said. He reported the temperature skidded to 61 degrees on May 27.

A graduate of the University of Maine, he received his Army commission in 1936.

He has served with the 31st Infantry Regiment in the Philippines and with the 38th Infantry Regiment of the Second Infantry Division at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

He saw World War II service with the 93rd, 84th and 106th Infantry Divisions. He also was transportation officer for the Continental Base Section.

Col. Washington was assigned to the G-3 section, Army Field Forces, from 1948-50, and before coming here was with the U. S. Military Mission to Turkey.

He is a graduate of The Infantry School's advanced course and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Levenworth, Kan.

1st Lt. LeBlanc was serving with the 24th Infantry Regiment when he was awarded the Silver Star. Sgt. first-class Karl W. Pyle, received his Silver Star while serving with the Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of the 39th Field Artillery Battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division. Sfc. Pyle was shot down in enemy territory while flying on a observation mission. His citation states that after the wounded pilot had become exhausted Sfc. Pyle utilized the aircraft's emergency medical supplies, and administered first-aid.

Sfc. James F. Chavis was serving with Company D, of the 31st Infantry Regiment when he received the Silver Star. According to the sergeant's citation the machine gun platoon which he commanded was subjected to heavy enemy fire, and upon seeing two of his men wounded Sfc. Chavis moved through intense enemy fire to bring them back to safety and administer first aid. After which he moved through heavy fire to repair the communication lines and call in mortar fire on the enemy positions.

Senior Status Conferred

Gen. Young also conferred senior status on the 10th Officer Candidate Company by pinning the blue senior streamer on the company guidon. The 10th company has just begun their senior status having just completed 18 weeks of training.

Troop commander for the parade was Candidate Ronald A. Gibson, son of Charles U. Gibson of 550 Cordova St., San Francisco, Calif. Candidate Gibson was selected for the honor post for his "outstanding leadership and command ability." He is a member of the 9th Officer Candidate company.

The certificate cited Stansell for "outstanding and meritorious performance of duty" from March, 1937 to July, 1952.

"During his long period of faithful service, Mr. Stansell developed many ideas which were of immeasurable benefit to this command and the nation as a whole," according to the citation. "His loyalty, integrity and devotion to duty are in keeping with the finest traditions of service to country."

With this constant surveillance, no serious defects are allowed to develop in the vehicles, according to Major Logan.

In addition, spot check teams insure topnotch running efficiency for official cars by frequent on-the-road inspections.

Inspection Line Saves Car Life

Infantry Center vehicle maintenance saves the government — and the taxpayer — $38,720 a year, claims Maj. E. M. Logan, motor pool officer.

Gen. Young Speaks To 'Trooper Grads

"Paratroopers are an easily recognized fraternity," said Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young to members of the Airborne Department's latest graduating class.

The Infantry Center commander warned the new airborne soldiers, however, that being "a paratrooper brings on added responsibilities both in combat and garrison. This will require you to be better soldiers," he declared.

Forty one officers and 471 enlisted men received their silver airborn wings at the graduation exercises last week at Fort Benning's Chapel Field.

The invocation was delivered by Chaplain (1st Lt.) Bernard Mussman, and music was provided by the 122nd Army Band.

Some 84 Reserve officers from ORC units throughout the Third Army area are at Fort Benning for the summer training camp, which ended Aug. 23. While here they were studying the latest Infantry tactics and techniques under the direction of the ORC's 3128th Area Service Unit of Charleston and instructors from The Infantry School.

Col. Miley, who also commands the Charleston ORC unit, pointed to cooperation between his organization and The Infantry School as being responsible for the smoothness with which the summer training program has been carried out.

M-Sgt. Awarded Soldier's Medal

M-Sgt. William M. Clayton of Atlanta, Ga., was awarded the Soldier's Medal here Wednesday for heroic action June 15, 1951, during a cargo drop near Big Delta, Alaska.

The medal, highest honor given for heroism not involving actual combat, was presented by Col. Donald Washington, Infantry School Detachment commander.

"When the extraction mechanism failed to function during a parachute drop of heavy equipment, Sgt. Clayton voluntarily exposed his head and shoulders into the slipstream, retrieved the pilot chute and made the system ready for a subsequently successful drop," according to the citation.

The sergeant's action, the citation continues, "prevented the loss of valuable equipment and removed the danger of the equipment breaking loose and injuring personnel in the cargo compartment."

Clayton, a paratrooper with more than 100 jumps to his credit, enlisted in the Army in 1940. He served 30 months overseas in both the European and Pacific theaters during World War II. He is presently assigned to Company H of The Infantry School Detachment's Airborne Battalion.

NEW FIRST SERGEANT

Sfc James H. Forester, of Headquarters 1st Battalion, 1st Student Regiment, has been assigned as First Sergeant of 7th Company, 1st Student Regiment in place of Sfc. Milton E. Brown, who has been transfered to Camp Gordon, Georgia.

HIT 'EM LOW . . . Second Lt. L. Castro-Acobes checks attack position of Second Lt. P. Canabal during a period of instruction with the M-1 rifle. Both of the Puerto Rican officers are members of 115th Company Second Student Regiment, taking training in the Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Number Four.

Australian General To Arrive Today

Major Gen. R. N. L. Hopkins, commandant of the Royal Australian Military College at Duntroon, will arrive Aug. 28 to observe training at The Infantry Center.

Gen. Hopkins will pin silver parastrooper wings on the distinguished graduate of Airborne class No. 6 during ceremonies at Chapel Field at 9 a.m. Friday. He will receive an orientation on The Infantry School and visit several school departments.

The Australian general later will tour the First Infantry Officer Candidate Regiment and witness a mortar firing problem.

Gen. Hopkins will be accompanied to Fort Benning by Lt. Col. J. K. Lynch, assistant Australian Army representative in Washington, D. C.

THREE WACS ASSIGNED

Pvts. Eva J. Johnson, Elizabeth M. Cross and Nelda D. Davis were assigned to duty at the Station Hospital here. They were formerly stationed at the 3431 Area Service Unit, Fort Jackson, S. C., prior to being assigned to the WAC Detachment, Section I, of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group here.

Briant Wells Still Closed

Briant Wells Field House remained closed this week week thanks to the unusual combination of plenty of work and no work at all.

It seems that refinishing the floors of the mammoth main post gym is turning out to be quite a bit of work which will last several days longer than anticipated.

On the other hand, the Briant Wells pool remains closed because of a labor day strike at the plant which manufactures water filters used by Special Service here. No filters, no water.

The idleness is being utilized to give the pool a thorough cleaning, according to Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, Special Services officer.

Two other sports plants are getting the works, too. Gowdy Field has been painted from top to bottom and some fresh color is due for the seats at Doughboy Stadium before the football opener Sept. 28.

22 Teachers Ink Contract

Twenty two new teachers have signed contracts for the coming year in the Fort Benning Children's School System, Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, principal, announced last week.

There also have been three department changes, Mrs. Scudder reported. Miss Beatrice Marlow of Athens, Ga., will head the new Home Economics Department, and the newly created post assistant principal will be filled by William L. Woodward of Lexington, Ky. A full - time physical education director, a part time position last year, also has been appointed. He is Ralph R. Toole.

In all 45 instructors have signed contracts for the fall term. Last year only 36 teachers were employed. The expected increase in enrollment and the use of the new school are reasons for the increase in the number of teachers, Mrs. Scudder said.

The new teachers are Mrs. Elizabeth Avery of Asheville, N. C., Miss Betty Brunson of Montgomery, Ala., Miss Fay Bush of Auburn, Ala.; Miss Isabelle Cabaniss of Manby, Ga.

Miss Martha I. Callaway of Lexington, Ga., Miss Blanche Cross of Perry, Fla., Mrs. Mary F. David of Cave Springs, Ga., Miss Perry Sue Fowler of Perry, Fla., Miss Ann Gualt of Fountain Inn, S.C.

Miss Frances G. Gibbs of Asheville, N.C., Miss Mary Harris of Dothan, Ala., Miss Bee Johnson of Mountain City, Tenn., Miss Jean Johnson of Mt. Vernon, Ga., Miss Jean Nichols of Acworth, Ga., Miss Olive Pate of Atmore, Ala.

Miss La Nelle Penney of Sumpter, S.C., Mrs. Martha Penrod of Columbus, Ga., Miss Nellie W. Tew of Manchester, Ga., and Mrs. Ruby D. Wilson of Boaz, Ala.

Benning Leads 3d Army Reenlistments

Fort Benning ranked first among Third Army camps in the reenlistment drive during the month of July.

The Infantry Center Recruiting Office jumped from third place in June to first place in July. Runners - up were Fort McPherson, Ga., and Camp Gordon, Ga., in second and third place respectively.

Fort Benning led its closest competitor by 10 percentage points and had a 24-point bulge over third place Camp Gordon.

Competition is maintained among the seven largest posts, camps and stations in the Third Army area.

INSTRUCTOR TO SCHOOL

Lt. Thomas J. Kerr, an instructor in the Chemical, Biological, and Radiological school here has received orders to report to the Courier Transportation Corps School at Ft. Eustis, Va. Oct. 1, 1952. Lt. Kerr has been an instructor at the Fort Benning school since Nov. 2, 1951.

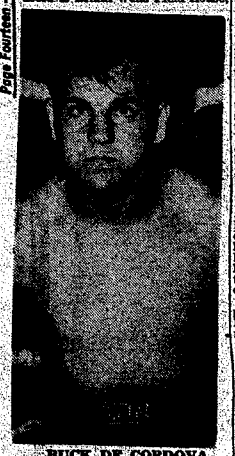
Twin Boxing Cards Tues., Wednesday

A double scoop of sock will be dished out to Fort Benning's ever-eager cauliflower customers Sept. 2-3 as something of a lure to stick close to home during the Labor Day week.

The simon-pures—the amateurs from major post units in quest of Benning titles—will mince gloves Tuesday night in the gaudy Gowdy Field ring, while the clout-for-cash guys hammer away at each other Wednesday p.m. in the same arena.

If Jupiter Pluvius delivers a foul blow the action will be moved indoors to Briant Wells Field House.



BUCK DE CORDOVA
providing some re - conditioning work there is finished. Check that with Special Services, 3-258, if necessary, the day of the fights.

Dozen Scraps

The post boxing board meets at 1:30 p.m. today to match youngsters for nine to 12 amateur bouts Tuesday, all three rounders. The actual pairings will be published in downtown papers Sunday, but suffice it to say here that the kids always place the accent on action.

If that fistic morsel doesn't tempt you, then try this pair of 10-round professional maulings arranged by promoter Fred Ward for Wednesday night:

Double Feature

Ray Lee, Fort Benning's heady young ring Lochinvar, against Mel Bartholomew, the sensational New Orleans kid who starched Al (Kid) McCoy in four rounds here several weeks ago:

Buck DeCordova, former Third Army champion who smashed Billy Smith to the canvas here last week in the best heavyweight fight seen in Columbus, against Ray Banks, who has ten recent kayos to his credit.

Talk of a Lee-Bartholomew mill has had the post's ring wise guys goggle-eyed for several weeks.

Rah, Rah, Ray

The 23-year old, blond First Student Regiment paratrooper won a legion of local fans with his amazing left hand and flashy style in 12 weeks of amateur campaigning last spring.

A 154-pounder from Kansas City, Lee went on to win the Third Army light middleweight crown, but had to drop out of the All-Army tourney because of an infected hand.

It was the end of a brilliant amateur career which saw him win several AAU and Golden Gloves togas. Ray turned pro and quickly bested two much more experienced opponents in Columbus. He has been idle since, largely awaiting this shot.

Genuine Pro

Bartholomew has had more than 100 fights although he is only 25 and they have been against guys like Sandy Saddler, whom he decked, Joe Brown, the nation's No. 5 lightweight whom he beat, Johnny Bratton, Bernard Docusen, Freddy Dawson, James Carter, Lester Felton, Paddy Young and Tuzo Portuguez.

The guy is strictly class as he proved when Kid McCoy failed to lay a glove on him for one full round before Mel dispatched him in the fourth.

DeCordova is another local favorite of somewhat older vintage. He was post and Third Army light heavyweight champ in 1950 and Benning heavyweight king in 1951.

Fought Louis

Then he went overseas where he was good enough to earn four exhibition appearances against Joe Louis, the former world champion. No other soldier fought Louis that many.

Buck recently got out of the Army and returned to Columbus to work out a serious pro ring bid. He did right well in his starter last Friday night when he stopped Billy Smith, an Aiken, S. C. toughie, in the 10th round of a rousing brawl.

Banks is another young hopeful out of New Orleans which has produced two world champions. He is undefeated as a pro in 16 starts, ten via the long smore route.

Used Prelims

Bobby Evans, who has now won nine straight in Columbus, meets Dave Cheatum in one four-round prelim and Freeman Thatcher, of Benning, and Ken Lawros clash in another four. A six-round semifinal will be announced to complete the pro card.

Action on both Tuesday and Wednesday nights gets under way at 8 o'clock. The simon-pures are strictly on the cuff while the tariff for the pros will be $2., $1.50 and $1.

Tickets are on sale at Special Services sports office in Doughboy Stadium or telephone the downtown Columbus Arena, 2-1238.

Line Worries Dielens As Rams Drill

LES DINOFF

THIS IS NOT A PAID ADVERTISEMENT.

All members of First Student Brigade and Provisional Medical Group who would like to be a guard or tackle on Coach August Dielens Special Troops Rams football team this fall, please apply.

He Needs You.

This is Coach Dielens lament.

"In every position except guard and tackle," the slender curly-haired mentor said, "we have depth. The men that are working out now, have a good attitude and are shaping up, but the line.

The line that Dielens is so worried about looks good to this observer, especially at center. For there, Mike Moropoulos, the big, hulking westener who played at Santa Barbara and USC operates. In a couple of weeks, Bill Stetter, now an officer candidate who will get his bars Aug. 28, will join Moropoulos as a center.

Solid Stuff

On either side of Moropoulos, or Stetter, you could find some of last year's players, Dick Lehmann, second string All-Post guard, Paul Crum, Booker Harris, Vern Griffin and Vern Fahrenkrug, a six-foot, one-inch end who proved himself as a receiver at St. John's, Minn.

When football practice time came rolling around early in August, Dielens said that he "was hurtin' for backs, especially quarterback."

Well, coach, you got one in Al Buckles. Buckles received All-Army football mention. He played in the quarterback slot during a tour of duty in EUCOM last year and scored 22 touchdowns.

Boom-Boom Backs

In the fullback position there is John Mackey, a better than average ball handler from the University of Florida.

Dielens is planning on using the two platoon offensive and defensive system with the team operating out of the T-formation. When the pigskin is booted down field in the Rams first home game Oct. 5, he expects to have 40 men in uniform and hopes to carry about 50 men on the squad.

Assisting Dielens in his coaching chores is Bill Lawrence as offensive line coach and Bill Thuston as defensive line coach. Linton Jordan is end coach, while Dielens himself, handles the backfield.

Phillips, 508th Jell Together

Jim Phillips, head coach of the 508th's Red Devils football team, was sitting in the bleachers watching his squad work the stiffness out of their muscles and joints by running around and doing the Army's "daily dozen."

"This is the first time in my life that I ever coached a team," the suntanned mentor said. "At first, it was a little hard, but after a few days of watching these boys, I can pretty well judge which players are good passers, kickers, runners and ball handlers."

"By the time the season gets underway, I think there will be 40 men in uniform who can play both offense and defense. Some of the boys will, however, play a full game," the coach said as he rose to his feet.

Phillips walked out onto the closely cropped field and called the 60-odd players into a huddle about him. After a short conference, the players broke down into two teams for a scrimmage session, one of the elevens donning green shirts for the playes.

T-Formation

After the Red Devils started running a few plays, Coach Phillips commented; "I think that this season I will be using the T-firmation mostly, but at times I will go into a double wing."

Just then, Bill Dietz, the 1951 All-Post fullback of the Red Devils, came up then and started to yell at some of the linemen on the Green Shirt team.

"Those guys are not hitting hard enough," Phillips said to his fullback.

Some of the 508th's paratroopers who were watching the team workout commented that "they can't move that big Bill Buza out of there." Buza is a tackle who played for North Carolina State before entering the Army.

Promising

Some of the members of the squad that Coach Phillips admits as "fair" are Bill Redman, second string All-Post halfback, Trayton Mast, a guard from UCLA, Bill Valko, a promising center who played at West Virginia, and Paul Bucy, a right halfback who played freshman football at Ohio State University.

Other players on the squad that looked good during the morning workout was Bobby Miles, a tackle from Tulsa, Tony LaCroix, a guard who played baseball with Montgomery of the South Atlantic League, and Norm Muller, a guard who played with the 508th last year; ends Stwatz, Ammerman, John Prados and James Trados, and lineman Shelby Womack and Jim Smith.

Redman became the proud papa of a baby girl last week and was home on leave till Monday.—LES DINOFF.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

IT WAS MY pleasure to escort and in some small way assist a couple of good-natured members of the Army rifle team for appearances on five radio and three television shows in Atlanta last Friday, the idea being to beat some crowds out of the bushes for the National High Power Rifle Championships here this week.

The shooters, Capt. Jack Erickson and M-Sgt. Oscar Gallman, doing every bit as well as Martin and Lewis or Crosby and Hope must have in their first exposure to the video monster, carried quite a bit of pharaphanalia with them to illustrate their remarks.

The item without exception which interested studio habitues the most was the disenchanted-looking .30-cal. Garand, the M-1, which will be your best friend if it falls your lot to go from here into combat. I learned that people have some funny ideas about what we fight with.

I sort of felt that they were disappointed we did not show them a double-barreled, chrome-plated Buck Rogers ray gun, complete with push buttons for dispensing hot and cold atoms, as the mood seizes you. Comic books (and teevee) are having one heck of an effect on our older generation, son.

When Erickson and Gallman attempted to explain to their audiences that they would use the same unadulterated M-1 to fire in national match competition they were greeted with clucking noises of disbelief. Maybe we should have expected that much. A lot of my buddies around post find it hard to chew that the M-1 which they claim gives them such a hard time on the POR qualifying range is the same one that will set some records this week in the Nationals.

Fact is, and I hope you're listening, the M-1 is the best combat weapon ever made. General Patton said as much, or if you want to ask a living authority, talk to Col. Perry Swindler, who says so a couple of times a day. I will take the colonel's word: he has had more to do with and for Army shooting for the past three decades than any other soldier.

Most of the matches in the Nationals this week will have two divisions, one for service rifles (the M-1), and another for match or target rifles. The M-1's, as last year's scores will indicate, will consistently fire a few points less well than the target rifles. The difference is this. An M-1 costs 80 bucks and some change and about the cheapest match rifle you can buy will jolt your pocketbook for $185.

Some of the oldtimers on the Army rifle team, Gallman, the eminent television raconteur, among them, will tell you that they fired better match scores with the '03 Springfield, the forerunner to the Garand as the service rifle. They will readily admit, however, that the M-1's semi-automatic operation makes it by far a superior combat weapon to the Springfield with its cumbersome bolt mechanism.

Not to withhold any evidence from you in this self-inspired debate, I do pass along the fact that the Army men will be using special match ammunition instead of the regular GI issue in their quest of bulls-eyes. This gives them an edge, indeed, but I submit to you the claim that they need it. An enemy target is eminently larger (and most likely at much closer range) than the stingy bulls the NRA target people allow for title competition.

The defense rests then, with the sincere request that you soldiers avail yourselves of a confidence-inspiring sight this week as some Army people with a bit of practice behind them show you what can be done with your best battlefield buddy, the M-1.

CTC May Have Playing Coaches

BY CHARLIE JOHNSON

If Combat Training Command Coach Cecil Dickerson has tough luck and can't find a suitable quarterback for his planned T-formation attack it may turn into a boon for Doughboy Stadium fans in the season's pigskin opener there Sept. 28.

Dickerson admitted Tuesday that his QB situation is so desperate right now that he may change his mind about not being a playing coach.

And if the 27-year-old mentor does that, it means the fans will get to see a former University of Mississippi and Los Angeles Rams varsity signal caller in action.

Small Squad

Dickerson, who is putting some 30 men through daily drills at 2:30 p.m. at Bullet Field, is quietly getting into shape himself after the rest of the squad leaves the field.

He graduated from Mississippi in 1947 after two season as right halfback. He played both offense and defense with the powerful Rams in 1948 before breaking ankle.

"It becomes a little harder to get in shape as the years go by," he admitted Tuesday, but added, "I think I can be ready for the Benning season."

High School Mark

Dickerson set a national prep record for scoring with 237 points as tailback for the 1942 Indianola, Miss., team.

He has also fared well as a coach, being named Mississippi's high school coach of the year in 1949 after two unbeaten seasons at Batesville, Miss. Last year, he was backfield coach of the Fort Jackson Golden Arrow Dixies that won the national service gridchampionship.

The present best bet to delegate Dickerson to a bench job is Will Addison, CTC lineman with one year of junior college experience.

The CTC skipper also picked a couple of assistant coaches during the past week.

Playing Coach

One is Bob Strickland, who played with the 1951 Commanders and previously was on the varsity at Davidson College between 1944 and 1948. Strickland will handle the line. He is a native of Atlanta where he played with Marist College.

Another line mentor will be Forrest Lowe, a guard with Mississippi State from 1946 through 1948 when he made All-Southeastern Conference honorable mention.

Both Lowe and Strickland will play. Lowe stands six-foot, two-inches and weighs 215 pounds.

Faubion Hunting For Quarterback

As a Fort Benning football coach Maj. Jack Faubion seems to tote a single perpetual problem on his broad shoulders, and that is the need for a genuine quarterback to operate the T-formation grid blitzkrieg in which he specializes.

The skipper of the ISD-ASU Green Wave was alternately sad and glad as he discussed this and other prospects early this week prior to putting 40-odd candidates through their once-a-day 2 p.m. work out in the second quarter area.

Feubion wouldn't finger a prospective starting QB, but he did eliminate one prominent candidate —himself.

Last year, when his campaign Special Troops Rams badly needed a signal caller "Black Jack" himself stepped into the breech with good results, but at 31 he avers that's out for the coming season.

"If I get a quarterback, this team will run the ball a lot better than last year's Rams," admitted Faubion. "Actually, we're in better all-round shape right now than the Rams were at this point prior to last season."

Fond Memories

It went without saying though that the Green Wave mentor will miss the line he had with the Rams in 1951. It was a forewall that would have made any college coach drool.

The only holdover he got from that when the teams were realigned for '52 was guard Fred Felbaum, a 200-pound wrecker who played with Penn States unbeaten 1947 crew.

Faubion pointed out two promising prospects in guard Robert Hunt, who performed at Wichita University in Kansas and the U. of Tampa in Florida, and tackle Wayne McElroy, a 220-pounder from Ottowa University in the Kansas Conference.

Beyond Reach

The Green Wave mentor has his eye on some other standbys from last season, but they are presently untouchable because of duty commitments. They are Clyde Ehrhardt, 1951 All-Post center and former Washington Redskins star Herb Lindsay, a standout end, and halfback Bob Dougherty.

Among the ex-collegians now drilling are tackle Hal Nalley, 220, South Carolina U., end Dennis Ensminger, 200, Dickenson State Teachers College, end Colin Cochrane, 174, Alfred U., guard Neal McNeal, 170, Wofford College, back Eddie Hansen, U. of Oregon, and back Jack Hendrix, Belmon Abbey College.

The complete roster:

CENTERS — Kenneth Guart, ASU, 210; Melvin Gilbert, ASU, 180.

'Half Mile' Match Sparks Weekend Rifle Shooting

up for several months, and reached a peak several weeks ago when the Marines tripped the Army in the Southeastern Championships.

Color has been the keynote of this year's Nationals which has attracted more entries than any rifle competition since the 1940 tournament at Camp Perry, O.

Aside from the Marine-Army feud, two women, Mrs Alice Bull, of Seattle, Wash., and Miss Helen Orme-Johnson, of El Paso, Tex., are waging a nip and tuck scramble for the national women's championship.

Miss Johnson won it last year. Mrs. Bull two months ago became the first woman ever to better all male competitors to win a regional crown.

National Champs

Two other national champions and six other regional kings also are here. The national champs are Thomas Barnes, the match rifle king from Billings, Mont., and Lt. Remeside LaHunt, of the Marines, who is national service rifle champ.

The service rifle he uses is identically the same M-1 doughboys carry into combat.

Following the action will be no problem. Plenty of expert riflemen will be on hand to guide and inform spectators. All competitors will be identified by tapes on their backs. Their scores will be posted almost as fast as they are fired.

A mobile exchange unit will be in operation on the range and there are ample rest room facilities and parking space. Several interesting weapons' displays also will be on exhibit.

Long Distance Matches

Of particular interest to spectators will be the matches fired at longer distances (GI's who have had to qualify at a measly 300-yards especially should get a gee-whiz out of these.)

The Marine Corps Cup Match at 600 yards will get under way at 1:30 p.m. today. The M-1 will be used along with the match rifle, a fancy, civilian-version of the M-1.

At 8 a.m. Saturday, the boys move back to 1,000 yards — more than a half mile — to fire the Wimbledon Cup Match. This historic cup dates back to 1875 when Princess Louise of England, presented it to a touring American team.

Another 600-yard event, the Rumbold Trophy Match, is slated at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. This on is strictly for the M-1 specialists.

Title Event

The National Trophy Individual Rifle Match—a title event — will be fired all day Monday and its team counterpart will bring the seven-day action to a close Tuesday.

There is no admission charge of any kind to the tournament. McAndrew Range is located at the extreme south end of Ingersoll Street off Dixie Road. It's about a mile drive from the Main Post Theatre down Ingersoll in the direction of First Student Brigade headquarters.

THESE HOT SHOTS WILL TRY TO GAIN NATIONAL HONORS FOR THE ARMY

4th OC Tops Regt. Baseball Tourney

Fourth Company is pacing the First Officer Candidate Regiment baseball tournament with four wins and one loss, and is also making its marks in other regimental competition.

Knighten hurled a one-hitter to lead the Fourth past Third Company, 7-0, in their last. Stecker, Veitch and McClintock paced the winners' attack.

The Fourth's badminton team, paced by Wood and Larson, handed Fifth Company a defeat in singles and doubles. The Fifth nosed them out in horse shoe tossing, however by scores of 21-20 and 21-16.

Sharpe Attempts To Enter Circle Of Select Firers

By CHARLIE JOHNSON

A man who less than two weeks ago set his second world record with a pistol, returned to Fort Benning Tuesday to attempt an "iron man" feat in the shooting world by going after individual laurels in the National High Power Rifle Championships.

SHARPE

He is Lt. Col. Tom Sharpe, an artilleryman from Fort Sill, Okla., who is the nation's fifth ranking pistol shot if you judge by the results of the National Pistol Championships in Jacksonville a week end past. Sharpe is not entering the rifle competition just for kicks. The fact is that he needs just one more "leg" to lay claim to the two highest shooting awards bestowed by the Department of Army.

That's the Distinguished Marksman Badge issued for both pistol and rifle. Only about 40 competitors in America today hold both. Sharpe has the pistol badge and two of the three necessary legs on its rifle counterpart.

"I need about a 232 aggregate in this tourney to get that last leg," grinned the former University of Oklahoma athlete.

The colonel could very well turn the trick. He interrupted his pistol practive several weeks ago to enter the Southeastern Regional High Power Matches and fired a 239 in the team match which was higher than the score of any other Army rifleman.

There were some red faces among the GI ranks over that one.

In Jacksonville, Sharpe won the .45-cal. timed fire with a perfect score of 200, plus ten extra 10's for a new world record.

In last year's pistol championships in San Francisco, he fired a 298x300 with the .22 automatic along with Army Olympic champ, M-Sgt. Joe Benner for another global standard.

Sharpe won the EUCOM Rifle Championships in 1947 and 1948. When in dress uniform, his breast is adorned with the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Army Commendation Ribbon and the ETO Ribbon with four battle stars.

1st OC Defeats 2nd SR 4-0 In TIC Softball

Second Student Regiment's softball team suffered a 4-0 shutout at the hands of the First OC Regiment in a TIC contest Wednesday.

The losers could solve Charlie Stottlemyer, for only one hit and that was by Wallace in the second inning. Bob Cook was the losing pitcher. The OC's collected five hits off Cook and scored thrice in the second and once in the fifth.

Kids Punching To Fore In Amateur Ring Series

Young, inexperienced punchers continued to provide the most exciting action on Fort Benning's second summer amateur ring card before 1,000 fans last Wednesday night at Gowdy Field.

David Carter, class four welterweight from ASU Provisional Group, and Byron Mortensen, 141-pounder from Infantry School Detachment, threw a zillion punches in their first round.

Carter's were the more effective. He dropped Mortensen for an eight count and then followed up with four smashing lefts to the jaw which finished the ISD gladiator in 1:19 of the first stanza.

Newcomer

Itwas Mortensen's first time in the ring.

Robert Smouse, w. 131-pounder with a solid build and plenty of reach, stoped William Trisler, 123½, of CIC, in 1:30 of the third after some heady action. Smouse, of First S. R., could develop rapidly.

Good Prospects

Hoppe is another kid with Charlie Atlas build and strength and if he absorbs his ring lessons could come up from class four fast. Bottom works very hard, but could be sharper and quit letting the other guy get off first.

Claude Chapman, this year's All-FECOM light heavy champ and runner-up in the All-Army tourney, decisioned Ben Robinson, 177, in three rounds. Both are from ASU and seemed too pally to really open up.

Chapman showed his true class in spots, however, as if too serve notice to the other big men in the post sock series. They were the only class one fighters on the card.

Vets Good

Probably the best fight of the night was waged between Ray Kiley, 130½, of 508th, and Jim Hiller, 130½, of Infantry School Detachment, a couple of veterans of Benning's championship mitt program last spring.

Kiley got the decision, dropping Hiller for an eight count in the second. It proved unpopular with the crowd, but there was no question that Kiley was the better here. Hiller could have avoided a lot of punishment by keeping his left hand busy.

Bob Collins, class five welter from ISD, knocked down John Liggett, 136½, CIC, in the second and got a unanimous decision. In the seventh bout, Paul Totten, 141, First SR, decisioned Tom Boukins, 137½, CTC.

Excess Talent

Among the seeded players are Capt. DeWitt Smith, formerly of the U. of Maryland, who was a runner-up in 1951, and Maj. Leroy Stanley who was second in the spring tournament in 1950 and 1951.

Two other former Mess champions, Lt. Col. Jack Butler, winner in 1944, and Lt. Col. O. S. Allen, victor in 1935, also are entered, along with Capt. Warren Drake, national intercollegiate doubles champion in 1948 with Frank Mehner.

Feinstein Awarded Baseball Trophy

Joe Feinstein, of Hoboken, N. J., last week was presented with an athletic trophy award by Col. Don Washington, commanding officer of the Infantry School Detachment.

He received the trophy in recognition for the part he played in leading the ISD Profs to the post baseball championship this summer.

During the season Feinstein teamed with catcher Bob Dougherty, of Plainsfield, N. J., to form a battery combination which posted 11 wins and two losses. Included in this victory skein were a no-hitter, a one-hitter, a two-hitter, and a three-hitter.

Neverman Hurls 6-5 Win Over 2nd SR

With Ray Neverman pitching five-hit ball, the Provisional Medical Group Softballers made it win No. 9 when they beat the Second Student Regiment, 6-5, in TIC Intramural Softball League.

Trailing 4-1 at the end of the sixth, PMG came up with four singles to tie the score at four-all.

In their half of the sixth, Medic Bobby Keffer led off with a single to right. Bob Harthum and Dippre followed with successive one base hits scoring the winning runs.

Second Student Regiment started a rally in their half of the seventh, but Neverman settled down to retire the side and walked off with the pitching laurels for the evening.

New Hunting Season OK'd

Dates for the 1952-53 Fort Benning hunting season were established this week by Lt. Col. John Acuff's game committee of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

The season will get under way Sept. 16 with the lifting of restrictions on mourning dove hunting, and the Association will note the event by staging a major dove hunt for members.

The shoot is slated Sept. 21 and will be guided by Association officials in a host of new dove fields planted this past spring.

Successful Shoot

Last year, 89 hunters bagged 174 birds on a similar event.

Interested members should contact the Association office by telephoning Fort Benning 4-4229. Incidentally, the Association has moved into new offices at Bldg. 384, on Ingersoll St., across from the Block 12 NCO Mess.

Memberships for the new year are still being sold by the Association which also dispenses federal fishing and hunting permits.

With the new hunting season, several Association rules are of immediate interest to outdoorsmen.

Hunting Rules

The Benning reservation overlaps into parts of Alabama and hunting dates in that area will be different from dates for the Georgia sector.

The reason is that the Association cooperates closely with the representative state game organizations in matters of conservation and the like.

Also, hunting is permitted only on Saturdays and Sundays, plus Wednesday afternoons and any legal holidays recognized by The Infantry Center.

Seasons Set

There will be no open season on deer, alligator or bear either in Alabama or Georgia this year. There is no closed season on wild boar, but between Nov. 15 and Feb. 25 shot guns may be used with hounds in Georgia only.

9th OC Co. Repeats Victory In Regimental Olympics

Keeping the future officers in top physical shape is one of the many problems of Col. Harry Grizzard, commanding officer of the First Officer Candidate Regiment and one of the ways that the Colonel uses is the monthly physical proficiency contest.

The second Harmony Church Olympiad saw the 9th Officer Candidate Company again walk away with three first places — the squat jumps, pushups, which they tied with the 10th Company, and the 300-yard run. The athletes from the senior candidate company also tied for third place on pull-ups.

Nelsen Tops

Donald W. Nelson, of 18th Company, scored 436 out of a possible 500 points to gain first place honors in the pentathlon which is the high point total from five events — push ups, squat jumps, sit ups, pull - ups and the 300-yard run. Last month's winner, Robert Vendrose formerly with 9th OC and now with the 11th OC Company, placed with 424 points.

Complete results:

PUSH UPS — Richard Fesler, 32nd OC Co., 71 push ups; Richard E. Gaston, 11th OC Co., 71 push ups; George D. Parker, 32nd OC Co., 71 push ups; Frank A. Pendrick, 9th OC Co., 70 push ups; William J. Hagan, 31st OC Co., 70 push ups.

SQUAT JUMPS — John Williams, 9th OC Co., 146 squat jumps; Robert L. Gamble, 10th OC Co., 135 squat jumps; Sergio A. Emperdy, 31st OC Co., 133 squat jumps.

Safety

said. The car will swerve off the road and hit a fixed object like a tree, throwing the passenger in the right front seat through the windshield, killing him instantly. The time of the accident will be between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m.

A similar prediction was made for the Fourth of July and a Fort Benning soldier followed the script perfectly with fatal results.

Seventeen military personnel and two civilians have been killed and 101 persons have suffered disabling injuries through the month of July, safety office figures disclose.

An analysis of the 14 accidents in which one or more persons were killed shows the following:

Right Seat Dangerous

In every case when there was a passenger, it was the passenger who was killed. The right front seat is the most dangerous place to be sitting at the time of an accident.

All military deaths except one have occurred when the car swerved off the road on a curve and then overturned or hit a fixed object. The one exception was pedestrian who was killed on Victory Drive. In each of these accidents the car was traveling at least 50 miles per hour. The average speed was about 70 with speeds as high as 90 clocked for the death cars.

Danger Hours

Most of the accidents happened late at night and on weekends. The hours between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m. were the deadliest. Only one fatality was recorded for a weekday, and that was on a payday.

Figures also showed that the old adage about gasoline and alcohol forming a deadly combination held true for Fort Benning personnel. Approximately 50 per cent of the drivers in fatal accidents had been drinking prior to the accident.

In every case except one, weather conditions were reported as fair or clear. None of the accidents can be traced to mechanical failure since most of the cars were late models and in good mechanical condition prior to the accident.

Four-Point Program

Amid the tumult of men preparing for a big weekend, Third Army Headquarters issued a fourpoint program for a safe and sane Labor Day weekend. Soldiers were warned against: reckless driving and driving while under the influence of alcohol; swimming in unsafe or unprotected waters; horse play in sports, especially swimming and boating; fatigue from driving too long without rest.

Last year, Evans pointed out, the safety office predicted two deaths for Fort Benning but none occurred. It will require a lot of care on the part of everyone to repeat that performance, he added.

School

condensed version of the advanced course for National Guard and Organized Reserve Corps officers.

Nine hundred men also will get the stiff training given by the school's Ranger Department. Students will take the course in three phases: at Fort Benning's Ranger Department, at the jungle training camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and at the mountain training camp at Dahlonega, Ga. Nine Ranger courses are included in the 1952-53 school calendar.

Automotive Department

The school's Automotive Department will graduate 400 officers and enlisted men from its courses. Fifty officers will attend each of the four 10-week motor transportation courses, and 50 enlisted men will attend each of the four 10-week unit automotive supervisor's courses.

The Infantry School's Communications Department offers three main courses which will graduate approximately 1,000 students. The four officers communications courses will handle 50 officers in each of the 13-week courses; the 17-week enlisted communications chiefs' course will have 80 students in each of the four courses, and the five radio maintenance courses scheduled will handle 85 men in each of the 17-week groups.

Largest group of enlisted students will attend the light and heavy weapons Infantry leader course. Some 1,900 men will graduate at the rate of 200 per class from this 14-week course.

The remaining 20,000 students will attend short courses offered by The Infantry School, according to Lt. Col. John Frye, Office of the Director of Instruction.

These include refresher courses for Reserve officers returning to active duty, orientation courses for visiting military personnel from other Army schools.

How Would You Call It?

By HARRY SIMMONS

The umpire is one man who can do something about the weather. After a game begins, he can halt it because of rain, snow or fog. Sometimes it is a tough decision. Take this hypothetical case:

Say Cleveland has the Yankees, 6-1, in the last of the fifth at Yankee Stadium. A moderate rain began at the start of the inning. The umpire is anxious to get in five innings, the minimum for a legal game, before it rains harder.

Gil McDougald, the first Yankee at bat, runs up a three-two count before slashing a triple into left center. Gene Woodling and Yogi Berra go down on infield grops. As the rain increases, the Yankee bench, hoping to see the game called off, starts to chant, "Time! Time!"

The next Yankee up strolls to the plate and takes a count of three balls, one strike. The umpire calls the next pitch a strike, but the batter, who had made a break for first, goes back of the plate and argues the call.

When he refuses to return to the batter's box, the umpire signals the pitcher to go ahead anyhow. The pitcher winds up and lets go, but the wet horsehide slips from his hand and sails far over the catcher's head. McDougald scores, the third and the batter runs to first. A deluge now makes further play impossible.

Was the batter out, completing five innings and making a legal game? Or was he safe, in which case the game was called on account of rain and does not count? How would you rule?

ANSWER

The batter was out on strikes and the game counts as a 6-to-1 win for Cleveland. By failing to return to the box, the batter forfeited his right to bat. He thus ordinarily would have been a fourth ball, as the umpire has a called strike. See Section 6.06a, which says in part:

"(a) If, after entering the batter's box, a batter persists in unwarranted delay in taking his proper position, the umpire shall direct the pitcher to deliver the ball to the bat and every such pitch shall be called strike by the umpire . . . If he has not taken a proper position when three strikes are called, he shall be declared out."

Back The Government Is Bond Drive Theme

"Back the government for which you work" is the theme of the Defense Bonds Campaign which starts Sept. 2 at The Infantry Center.

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, presided at the kick-off meeting last week.

"Defense Bonds are our greatest protection against the enemies trying to destroy us," he told the assembled bond campaign representatives.

"There are three ways to defeat a nation — war, infiltration and destruction of a nation's economy. Buying Defense Bonds protects our economy and keeps us safe," he declared.

Gen. Young also introduced Joseph G. Woodruff, State Director of the U. S. Treasury's Bond Division, who said that "in time of national emergency, buying Defense Bonds is a must." The purchase of Defense Bonds "cuts down inflation, helps you save money — and there is no investment more secure than a government bond," Mr. Woodruff said.

Aim of the bond campaign is 100 per cent participation by civilian employees and military personnel at The Infantry Center under the payroll savings plan.

Approximately 100 staff officers, organization commanders and unit bond officers attended the meeting.

Chairman of the drive will be David R. Nichols of The Infantry Center Civilian Personnel Division.

COLLEGE SPORTS CARAVAN

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Twenty years ago Primo Carnera was the laughing-stock of the boxing world. True, he had won the heavyweight championship from Jack Sharkey, but the knockout blow was an "invisible punch." No one saw it land. It was like most of his pre-championship fights. Something wasn't cricket about the affair. And what did the championship bring the hulking, 254-pound giant? His managers bilked him of his share of the winnings, sold him phoney oil well and gold mine stock. He had nothing to show for his efforts but cauliflowered ears and a battered face. . . . And his managers ducked out on their prize when Max Baer won the title by battering Carnera to the floor nine times. Joe Louis butchered the 6' 6" veteran in six rounds in 1935 when Primo was near the end of his career.

His troubles did not end there. Carnera returned to his native Italy in time for WWII. The Nazis took money from his bank account and stole his fancy limousine. Twice during the war he was erroneously reported killed in action as a partisan against the Germans and the other by a firing squad in 1943.

At 46, he decided to return to the U. S. to gain once possessed. Now, 20 years after his first triumphs, he is on the trail of another heavyweight championship in wrestling. The giant has used his size to advantage and has become a personable showman on account of professional wrestling. It must make Carnera feel good inside. Group Suspends Joey On Refusal To Fight Turpin

BY MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The State Athletic Commission today suspended light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim until he goes through with a title defense against Britain's Randy Turpin in London.

The 30-year old, 175-pound king and his manager Jack Kearns, both were suspended indefinitely for their present refusal to defend the crown again in London this September under the promotion of England's Jack Solomons.

After hearing testimony from Solomons; Ted Waltham, general secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control; Kearns and others, the commission ruled unanimously that Maxim and Kearns had "refused to honor an agreement" to meet Turpin and declared their action "detrimental to the best interests of boxing."

Bob Christenberry, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, said he had no doubt that the suspensions would be honored by states which have working agreements with the New York Commission.

There had been talk that Maxim would defend his crown against Jake La Motta, the Bronx Bull, in Detroit this fall, but Kearns said "We've got nothing in mind right now.

"I'm going to talk this whole matter over with a lawyer," said Kearns. "We've not trying to duck Turpin or anyone else. We had a contract to fight Don Cockell—not Turpin—for Solomons. We'll fight Turpin or anyone else as long as our terms and conditions are met.

Two former major leaguers are now successful college coaches. Dick Seibert, who once played for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, is coach of the Minnesota Gophers. George Case, former leading baseball stealer of the American League has his Rutgers team running hot. In the past two seasons, while piling up 35 of 49 games, the Scarlet team stole 158 bases . . . When Darrell Lindley, junior outfielder, signed a Chicago White Sox contract this spring, he became the 32nd Michigan State player since 1946 to lose his remaining year of eligibility.

DOWN YONDER . . . Dell Wood, the "Down Yonder Girl," and a cast of hillybilly stars will be at Theater No. 1 (Main Post Theater) Sept. 5. The performance will begin at 7 p.m. Following the show the troupe will play and sing at a square dance in the Old Gym. Admission to the theater show is 50 cents and the public is inviting.

Rifle Team Tops Marines By 9 Points On Final Day

An Army crew which had been delegated a definite underdog role bounced back to cop top honors in the final two days of the National High Power Rifle Championships which closed at McAndrew Range Tuesday.

Army men captured the only service rifle, service-ammo events on the program, the National Trophy Team and Individual Matches, which are conducted by Congress.

Capt. Murvale Belson, of Macon, Ga., won the National Trophy Individual crown Monday, and then paced an Army quartet to the team championship yesterday.

Edge Marines

The winners fired 943 points out of a possible 1,000, nine points ahead of the second-place Quantico Marines.

Other members of the team and their scores are: Capt. Jack Erickson, Portland, Ore., 235; 1Lt. Rufus Brock, of Columbus and Dallas, Ga., 234, and 2nd Lt. Herbert Voelcker, of Boston, Mass., 228.

The smashing victories were particularly sweet after the Marines' early superiority which saw them gain two of three new national champions.

Marine Lt. Col. Walter Walsh, of Arlington, Va., won the high power championship, and Maj. Robert Dawson, of Camp Pendleton, Calif., took the service rifle crown. Mrs. Alice Bull, of Seattle, Wash. is the 1952 women's champion.

The only previous victory for the Army had been registered by Sfc. Wilburne Frietik, of Co. E, Infantry School Detachment, who topped the Navy Cup Match.

The National Trophy individual and team matches are the most coveted of the tournament because they are fired exclusively with the M-1 infantry rifle and regular service ball ammunition.

Sponsored By Congress

Significantly, these are the only two sports events in the nation, sponsored by Congress, which crowns them its champions.

Belson, a Military Police captain recently returned from Germany, won the National Trophy individual crown Monday with a sterling 244 score, only a possible short.

This was his first try for the Army rifle team since prior to World War II, and these were the first national crowns he has won.

Brock, 29, and Voelcker, who had never shot large-bore weapons before last July, is only 22.

Mrs Champ

Voelcker, a paratrooper with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., was a national champion gallery shooter with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which won the national collegiate crown in 1950.

Erickson, of Fort Ord, Calif., was high civilian in the 1939 Nationals at the age of 17. Brock is an instructor in the weapons department of The Infantry School.

"A lot of times it's just a test of weapons when you fire match ammunition and better rifles," commented Belson after McAndrew Range had been cleared. "But with the service rifle and service ammo, it up to the shooter, and I guess on our team we just get more practice with those than the Marines."

This is definitely the match he wanted to win, Col. Perry D. Swindler, Fort Benning's dean of Army shooters.

The ever dangerous Leatherneck crew took first place money in the Camp Pendleton, Calif., Marines were fired with 943, while the Marine Corps squad placed fourth with 933.

Your Vote Is Important

Labor Day marked the official opening of the 1952 presidential campaign. Although both major parties held their conventions in July and selected their candidates at that time, the heavy campaigning is traditionally withheld until the beginning of September.

The next 60-odd days may produce a considerable display of fireworks in the national political scene. These detonations will be of extreme interest to every serviceman.

We do not presume to tell the individual soldier whom to vote for. We will not debate the merits of the individual candidates. What we are striving for is to make certain that every qualified voter in the Army exercises his privilege to vote.

The right to cast a free ballot, or rather the privilege of doing so, should mean more to servicemen that to any other single group in this nation. We in the Army are called upon to preserve that right for free men throughout the world.

In the presidential election of 1948, a mere 52 per cent of the eligible voters exercised their right to select the men who were to govern the country for the next four years. That figure suffers by comparison with the percentiles in other free nations. In the last English election 78 per cent of the voters cast ballots; France ran up a total of 87 per cent voting in the national elections.

Only three short years ago, when communism versus democracy was the prime issue, more than 90 per cent of the Italian voters turned out on election day to cast the ballots which kept the Reds from power. The story has been the same in many other Western countries.

Compare these figures with the ones of the 1948 U. S. election. The apparent apathy of the average American voter is appalling.

We in the Army can set the example for our fellow Americans. We have to go through a relatively complicated procedure to cast our ballots. If we will transcend complications to do this, we will put to shame those indolent civilians who fail to avail themselves of their less encumbered voting right.

In the dayroom of each unit at The Infantry Center, there are charts explaining the voting laws of the several states. The BAYONET will continue to run articles on the voting procedures employed by the individual states.

If you run into some difficulty understanding the laws of your home state, you should consult with the voting officer or NCO in your organization. These men are here to aid you. They will be happy to be of assistance.

Since many of the states require pre-voting registration, it behooves all of us to communicate with the proper authorities back home now.

Remember, we have a responsibility to ourselves to choose our government leaders. The time to act is now. November will be too late.

Reds Not Playing Games

With the world situation as it is, many people are beginning to lose faith in their fond dream of world peace. Little wonder with the mess we are now in. But in the past few years, the Korean situation has awakened the rest of the world, and made it realize the Reds aren't playing games.

The Korean situation has been the one main reason for the Western awakening, and, although it has cost us dearly in manpower and material, it has served as a world alarm clock. Few people in this country can now say that the Reds are just doing what comes naturally. For us, contrary to popular belief, the Korean police action has actually helped us.

We now have thousands of battle-tested leaders and highly skilled personnel who are training new arrivals to the Army. A lecture or demonstration by a sergeant means little, but the same lecture or demonstration by a former combat sergeant means a lot. For he is talking about something he knows.

As for the Reds, their time table was set back by the Korean situation. Instead of an easy victory, the Reds have received a thrashing, losing the cream of the Chinese Army. More than one Communist leader has changed his ideas because of our stand in this Eastern land. For the Reds, the Korean police action is definitely a setback; for us, a grand awakening.

As for the question of losing faith in world peace, it is being proved today that a strong nation has a far better chance of survival than a weak one. In fact, a strong nation is not likely to be attacked.

Many years from now, historians will note this period as the great turning point in world affairs. Whether it be turning toward continual war or a real lasting peace only time will tell. This time is now upon us and it is up to the free nations of the world to make the choice—Peace or War.

Youth Is State Of Mind

By Chaplain Carl W. Hewlett

Youth is a state of mind when we stand at the eastern window of life and look for the sunrise and not for the sunset; when we walk in the light and not in the darkness; when we believe that tomorrow will be better than yesterday; that there is a cure for every disease, a way out of all difficulties, and a solution for all problems.

Youth is a state of mind in which we idealize others, expect the best from others, and express the best to others. It is the time when the soul controls the body and when we live on the top story of the house of life.

Youth is a state of mind in which we think of life in terms of harmony and peace; when we think of the things which unite us with our neighbors, not of the things which separate us from them.

Youth is a state of mind which reflects a healthy soul. The heart has not become a vinegar bottle. We are not cynical about life and people. We do not exhaust our energies finding fault. We neither whine, nag, nor fuss. We are never found echoing the criticisms of little people who find fault with little things and whose only genius is in making mountains out of molehills.

Youth is a state of mind in which the imagination seeks to improve upon reality. It visualizes a better world and responds to the challenge of the ideal. Youth refuses to accept stones for bread, ignorance for knowledge, personal prejudice for moral principles, and mental bile for religion. We may spend an hour in a mifftree, but never for a moment would we consider building our nests there. Our nerves are not exposed, and we are not supersensitive. We do not weep for ourselves, but we know how to laugh with others.

Youth is a state of mind in which we believe that graft will be destroyed by honesty, inefficiency by understanding, intolerance by knowledge, defeat by faith and hatred by love. It is the period of life when we are great believers, not great doubters; when we want to believe, not doubt.

Youth is not a matter of years, bright eyes, strenuous play, and gay adventure. It is a healthy mental state in which one faces facts courageously and looks at the bright side continually. It sees the flowers and not the weeds in the garden of life, and thinks more about those things which are beautiful than of those things are ugly. It has the spirit of conquest which triumphs over difficulties, traditions, and habits.

Youth is a state of mind which flourishes in spite of white hair, wrinkles, and stiff joints. It does not die at nineteen, but can live to be ninety. It can circulate in the mind as long as blood circulates in the veins. It is kept alive by faith, hope, and love. When these three lights go out, youth dies. But there is only one person who can put these lights out of your life, and that person is you.

Youth is a state of mind illuminated by faith, hope, and love.

Death Stalked Road Over Weekend

Death stalked the highway over the Labor Day weekend. The National Safety Council announced that of the 439 person who lost their lives during the three day holiday, 346 of them perished on the natonal roads. The Council fears that the final traffic toll may prove to be the worst in history.

Here in Georgia 22 persons met death. This figure was the second highest in the country, topped only by the 28 fatalities recorded in California. It had been originally predicted that a dozen persons would lose their lives over the Labor Day weekend but the toll exceeded even the grim prediction.

A record Navy air strike within eight miles of the Sibeian frontier left—North Korean industry a shambles over the weekend. Planes from the carriers, boxer, Princeton and Essex struck at industrial plants and an oil refinery in a blow that carried U. S. planes closer to Russian territory than any previous attack.

It can climb to 40,000 feet in three minutes.

The DeHavilland 110 interceptor swept past the crowds at better than 700 miles an hour while high overhead a Bristol Britannia transport, a 70 ton monster carrying 104 passengers, that has been ordered for trans-Atlantic service cruised at 360 miles an hour, a hundred miles faster than the fastest U.S. plane of similar design.

Eye catcher of the show was a twelve passenger helicoptor with a maximum speed of 158 MPH.

Indefinite Airmen May Get Out Earlier

Airmen serving under indefinite enlistments no longer need four years service before they can resign, the Air Force has announced. Last February airmen were advised to withhold their resignations until they had four years service. This has been changed to allow them to submit their resignations when "they have completed a period of service equal to service required of airmen who enlisted for three years on the same date the indefinite enlistment was contracted."

Post Film Review

QUO VADIS — Robert Taylor, Deborah Kerr. Few pictures ever made can match its sheer splendor, eye-filling spectacle and size. The triumphant return of Rome's legions, the burning of the city by Nero, the scenes of carnage in the vast amphitheater, and the struggle between Ursus and the bull provide enough excitement for three or four ordinary pictures. Family. Drama.

WHERE'S CHARLEY — Ray Bolger. All who have ever enjoyed the classic comedy "Charley's Aunt" should be equally entertained by this musical version of it which was a hit on Broadway for two and a half years. Ray Bolger's dancing and clowning again establish him as a master in his art form. Family. Musical comedy.

SOMEBODY LOVES ME — Betty Hutton, Ralph Meeker. With Betty Hutton playing Blossom Seeley and Ralph Meeker as Benny Fields, the picture reviews their meeting, marriage and see-saw experiences in show business. The film also traces the development to modern American music and includes 15 numbers by Gershwin, Berlin and other top composers. Family. Musical.

UNDER THE SEA WIND . . By Racheal L. Carson. . . .

The special mystery and beauty of the sea, which the author caught and translated so memorably in her best seller "The Sea Around Us" is again used as the background for Miss Carson's portrait of the birds and sea life that abound on the eastern rim of this continent.

In a series of narratives unfolding the life of the shore, of the open sea and the sea bottom, the author begins with the deep hush of spring twilight and carries us to the beauty of fall.

The real hero of the book is life itself which is the prize reserved for the very clever and the very lucky.

ONE GREAT PRISON . . by Helmut M. Fehling (translated by Charles R. Joy)

The recent action of the United Nations in appointing a committee to investigate the fact that hundreds of thousands of prisoners of war taken by the Soviet Union and her satellites have never been heard from is the basis for Mr. Fehling's book.

One Great Prison is a documented refutation of the official Soviet statement that its war prisoners have been returned. In addition the book shows us what life is like for the average Russian.

MISTER ZIP . . by H. Allen Smith

Meet the hard riding, fast shooting red - blooded idol of the Hollywood range, Zip Baron, whose name is nearly as well known as merchandise without a boxes of breakfast cereal, red and black checkered shirts, ten gallon hats, belts, boots ad infinitem, and whose real life story reads like a dog-eared Boy Scout manual.

Far and away the hottest star in western film firmament, Mister Zip has remained the same unsullied youth, the All - American boy who was born Clifford Humphrys in the small midwestern community of Candlewick. He even lives his hero's role off screen, actually believing that all men are good (except of course the rustlers) and all women are virtuous. His disillusionment is inevitable.

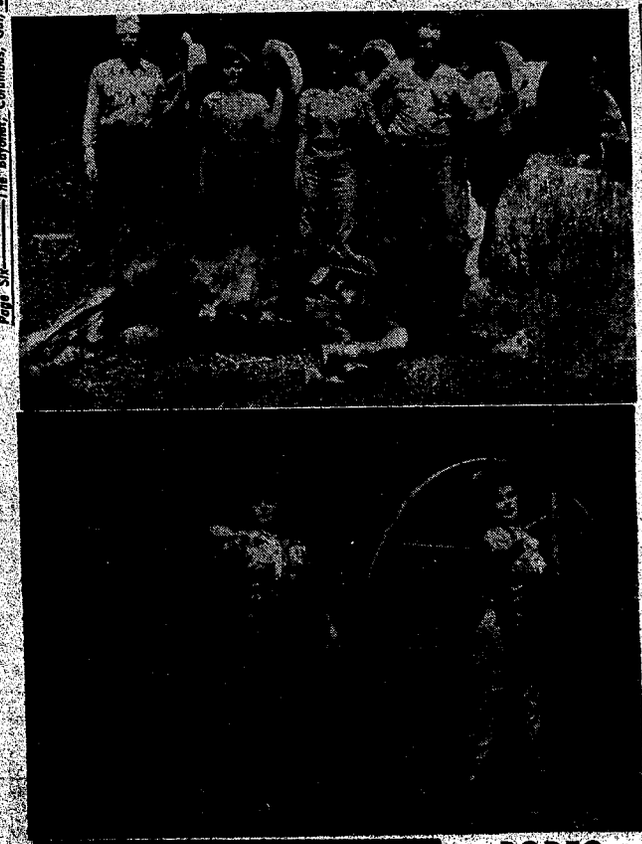
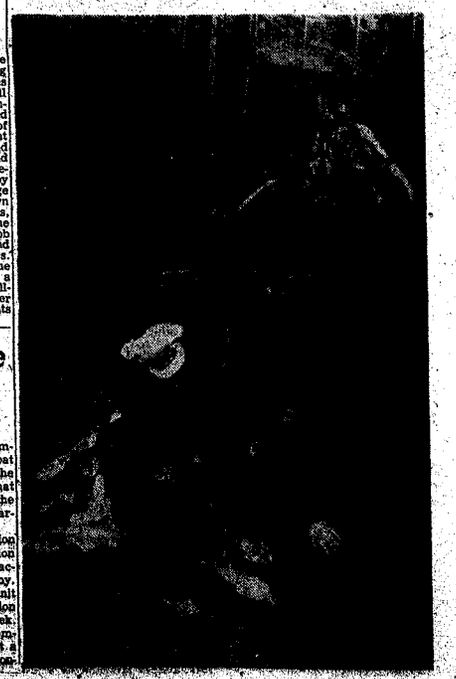
Rodeo Thrills Preview





RODEO SCENES

When the Alabama-Georgia State Rodeo pulls into Fort Benning Sept. 10 for a three-day stay, scenes much like the ones shown here will become familiar to Infantry Center soldiers. Upper left, the famed Williams family pose with two of their trained horses. Left to right are Robert, Kate, Freeta and George. Center left, Kate and Freeta engage in some fancy rope-twirling. Bottom left, an unhappy entry sticks to the back of a huge Brahma steer. Upper right, clown Bill McBrayer, and his two pets, Maggie the mule and Susie the monkey. Clowns most important job in a rodeo is distracting bulls and wild horses from thrown riders. Bottom, right, a rider bites the dust in attempting to bulldog a steer. His wild-eyed pony is well-trained, and horse and rider must cooperate closely in events like this.

Team Started In Japan Stars In Little Theatre Production

When audiences see the Fort Benning Little Theatre production of "Ten Little Indians," they will see the results of teamwork which originated at the Ernie Pyle Theatre in Tokyo, Japan in 1949.

Lt. Charles E. Thomann, director of "Ten Little Indians," will have Mrs. Lory North as the leading lady, Vera, for this production. They first met Japan when Mrs. North was a Civilian Actress Technician (CAT) serving with the U. S. Army. At that time, Lt. Thomann was a member of the Special Service Section.

They appeared together as father and daughter, in "Yes, My Darling," in Tokyo six years ago, and later toured both Japan and Korea with the same production.

While stationed in Tokyo, Mrs. North also appeared in several other productions, including "A Christmas Carol," and "Snafu." In addition, she did a number of radio shows with AFRS, Tokyo.

Upon her return to the U. S. in 1947, Mrs. North studied with the New York School of Interior Decorating. Early in 1948, she was recruited for further overseas service by Melvyn Douglas, motion picture actor, representing the Hollywood Coordinating Committee.

Assigned to Okinawa, Mrs. North produced, directed and appeared in variety shows; sang with a local band, did a series of radio programs called "Island Chatter," and staged "Dear Ruth."

Recently arrived at Fort Benning, this is the first Little Theatre production with which Mrs. North has been affiliated.

"Ten Little Indians" will be presented October 9th and 10th at the Main Post Theatre.

WAC Practical Nurses Prove Invaluable

(ANF)—WACs are being trained as practical nurses in order to relieve the acute shortage of registered nurses in the Army.

Pioneers for the Women's Army Corps in the practical nursing field number less than 40, but they already have made their contribution felt in the Army Medical Service.

More Wacs are being trained to help meet the need for practical nurses in the Army.

Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, Commanding General of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D. C., where the Army's practical nurse course is given, said the contribution made by the graduates of the school has been outstanding.

Many Overseas

"Many practical nurses are serving overseas where they assist Army nurses in giving the highest quality of nursing care," he said. "In augmenting the nursing service, these technicians have become a most welcome asset in the medical field."

Typical of the WAC practical nurses at Walter Reed is Sgt. Margaret I. Oakham of Baltimore, who had this to say about her work:

"As a hospital ward master in the Army I had all the experience I needed for practical nursing, but lacked the formal education. The Army filled in the gap. At Walter Reed, the job of caring for the sick is especially gratifying because of the large number of Korean wounded we help nurse back to health. I am also getting excellent training which I can use if I ever decide to return to civilian life."

Othe WAC practical nurses all enlisted women—are stationed in Army hospitals in Japan, Okinawa, Germany and throughout this country.

Release Registered Nurses

Their primary job is to give bedside care to sick and wounded soldiers and their dependents. This relieves the Army's registered nurses of routine duties and saves their time for nursing tasks that require professional skill.

WAC practical nurses are skilled in taking blood pressure temperatures, pulse and respiration. They also know the basic principles of diet therapy and how special foods should be prepared and served.

The WACs assist doctors and nurses with electric treatments and insulin therapy for neuro-psychiatric patients.

They also are adept at preparing patients for operations and assisting in non-professional post-operative care. They know how to bathe patients in bed, how to give back rubs, care for new-born babies of military dependents, and numerous other nursing tasks which do not require professional training.

Train In Washington

WAC practical nurses receive their training, along with qualified enlisted men, at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Similar courses will open this fall at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco and Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver.

The 11-month course now in session at Walter Reed is under the direction of Maj. Isabelle A. G. Mason of the Army Nurse Corps. Students there get 60 per cent on-the-job training and about 40 per cent class-room instruction. Five Army nurses and one dietician comprise the teaching staff.

Qualifications

To qualify for the course, WACs must have a certificate of high school education and be trained medical technicians. They also are required to have the grade of at least a private first class, and have at least one year's service remaining after completion of the course.

Graduates of the Army's practical nursing course are eligible to for licensing as practical nurses.

Army medical authorities feel WACs with practical nursing training are invaluable in meeting current needs for more non-professional nursing service personnel. They also believe Army practical nurses will be indispensable in any future emergency where large numbers of casualties may require immediate care which could be given without direct supervision by a physician.

CTC Demonstrates Latest Techniques To Reservists

The Combat Training Command here at The Infantry Center is presently engaged in assisting the Organized Reserve Corps keep reserve personnel abreast of the latest developments on the military scene.

Colonel Frank L. Elder, the CTC commander, stated that all reserve personnel who take their tour of duty with the Command see as many phases of training as possible during the brief time they are here at Fort Benning.

Colonel Thomas F. Elam of Union City, Tenn., is typical of the reserve officers undergoing refresher course here. The colonel, who practices law in his native Union City, has taken time off from his practice and is presently mowing amongst the CTC's troops witnessing all the newest techniques that are employed by the modern Infantry in the performance of its mission.

The itinery of Col. Elam includes the observation of a rifle company in both the attack and defense during both the day and night, river attacks and crossings, the attack of fortified positions, types of artillery fire, mine warfare demonstrations, the latest infiltration methods and the use of self propelled Infantry weapons.

Soldier Show Scores 'Hot' Hit

"Heat Wave", Fort Benning's latest Soldier Show production, was warmly received by the capacity crowds which thronged Main Post Theater over the Labor Day weekend.

Honors for the show are well-distributed among the cast of 20 performers who made the show a success.

Sparkling newcomers like Mrs. Gee Donahue, Pfc. Alex Espinoza and Pfc. Isaac Curry drew thunderous ovations for their dance routines.

The singing of Mrs. Betty Horner Johnson, Miss Eugenia Meadows and Lt. Rudy Jorgensen as well as that of the chorus drew the applause of the audience.

The musical itself was a fast-paced performance with never a slow moment. The comedy routines which featured Mrs. Donahue and PFC. Jerry Glassman provided good change of pace for the musical numbers.

The staging of the numbers showed ingenuity and the settings were beautifully done. Cpl. Greg Kayne rates special mention for his excellent handling of the show.

Actually, no one can be singled out for the success of the musical. The performances were certainly team affairs and the entire cast of the show as well as those who worked behind the scenes deserve credit for making "Heat Wave" a success.

Form Car Pools, PM Requests

All personnel living off post have been urged by Infantry Center provost marshall Lt. Col. Alonzo E. Wood to pool rides.

Colonel Wood pointed out that between 6 and 8 a.m. approximately 3,700 cars enter the Main Post, and about the same number leave between 4 and 5:15 p.m.

If all concerned will cooperate in this matter, Colonel Wood emphasized, it may not be necessary to again enforce the restrictions on "Solo driving" during peak traffic hours.

One hundred captains were temporarily promoted to major. Their cut-off date remains the same as in promotions authorized early in July — May 23, 1946.

Of the group, 99 were holders of ORC commissions and one was a national guardsman.

Forty three majors were promoted to lieutenant colonel with an Aug. 31, 1945 cut-off date. Of this group six were regular Army, 36 ORC and one a national guardsman.

OC Magician Escape Artist

Officer Candidate William H. Kenworthey of the Fourth Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment is a magician of some note.

The versatile future second lieutenant dates his entertaining career back to his high school days in Smyrna, Del., where, although extremely busy as class president in his junior and senior years, he found time to delve into the mysteries of the magical profession.

Candidate Kenworthey continued his study of magic through his college days at Washington College in Maryland and by the time he had left that institution of higher learning he had perfected his sideline to a degree where he can today perform some of the famed Houdinis best stunts.

A favorite trick of his is to be tied and blindfolded with ropes and chains and then be placed inside a locked mail bag. So far he has cut down his escape time in his stunt to the amazing total of seven seconds.

Last Saturday Candidate Kenworthey put his talents to good use by entertaining at his OC Company's first party.

Mobile Bank Aids Soldiers At Italy Post

(ANF) — The Army's Finance Corps is claiming the most modern of modern conveniences—a bank that rolls right up to the soldier's door-step and deals out cash.

A converted bus in Leghorn, Italy is the only mobile bank in the U.S. Army—gives quick banking service to soldiers arriving at the Italian port.

Located at the docks, the bank on wheels is under direction of the 23rd Finance Disbursing Section of the Fourth Logistical Command. It has a working space of 175 square feet and is furnished with 14 field tables and folding chairs.

The mobile bank's windows are protected by luggage carrier racks converted into window guards.

Canvas cot racks which fold into the side of the bus are pulled down for sleeping accommodations, and all doors may be locked from the inside.

Soldiers arriving in Leghorn now save travel time when they want to exchange military payment certificates for lira. Previously they had to go to the finance section in downtown Leghorn to do business.

When the mobile bank no longer is needed in Leghorn, the Finance Corps expects the bus to give further service in maneuvers and field exercises.

Locator Unit Cuts Costs In Half

A trip of the card cuts paper costs in half at The Infantry Center Postal Locator Unit.

A new system, utilizing the former side of postal locator cards to register incoming post personnel, has resulted in a saving of 9,000 cards and $50 to $75 every six weeks, according to 1st Lt. John W. Dennis, Army Postal officer.

Typists in the locator unit also save two reams of paper in a six week period by writing the serviceman's address on the bottom of the letter requesting information about him, instead of writing an additional letter, Lt. Dennis said.

Use of old locator cards instead of scratch pads and discarding memo pads instead of letters cuts down requisitions of paper at the rate of two reams every two months.

As a further saving, the postal unit sends each organization a list of personnel on one sheet of paper, instead of writing a seperate letter on each man. This system saves one ream of paper each month.

Signalmen In Germany Adopt Orphanage Kids

(ANF)— If the old woman who lived in a shoe were alive today she could get advice on what to do with her children from the Army Signal Corps.

Signal Corps men and their wives in and around Heidelberg, Germany, have "adopted" 76 undernourished children housed in dilapidated, 300-year-old St. Joseph's Orphanage in nearby Ubstadt.

The children—under supervision of the Sisters of Charity — lacked proper food and clothing. Townspeople who previously paid for the orphans' care no longer were able to do so.

Soldiers and their wives at Heidelberg—with the help of Signal Corps installations in this country—already have raised more than $3,000 for the orphans and collected thousands of pounds of food, clothes, toys and other supplies.

Ladies Conduct Drive

The Signal Corps' Ladies—an organization of wives of Signal Corps men in Heidelberg—conducted the campaign for money and supplies.

They got a big lift in their undertaking from Brig. Gen. Rex Cornput Jr., Chief Signal Officer of the European Command. The general wrote letters to Signal Corps installations in the United States and invited their contributions.

As a result, donations during a single month amounted to $1,500 in cash plus 12,000 pounds of food, clothing, and other necessities.

Nourishing Food

Committees from the Signal Corps Ladies used the money to buy fruit juices, eggs, milk and other nourishing foods. They also purchased screening for doors and windows, soaps, detergents and cleaning equipment to transform the orphanage into a sanitary home for the children.

Since many of the items—such as bleaches and liquid vitamins—were strange to the nuns, the Signal Corps Ladies wrote instructions in German to accompany each contribution.

The gifts have worked wonders with the orphans and their home. New screens keep flies away from babies and their food. Floors, cribs, closets and shelves have been scrubbed from top to bottom.

That "tell-tale gray" expression has vanished from the children's clothes and bedding, and the orphans are wearing a new look of sparkling cleanliness.

But best of all, the children are happier and healthier than they have been in years—thanks to the charity of men and women in the Army Signal Corps.

Directive Explains US, UN Flag Display

WASHINGTON — A Defense Department directive has outlined the policy to be followed by military installations in displaying the United Nations flag.

According to the directive the UN flag will never take precedence over the flag of the U. S. The UN flag will be displayed only on occasion of visits of high dignitaries of the UN while in performance of their official duties with the UN or on other special occasions in honor of the UN.

When displayed, the directive points out, it will be accompanied by a U. S. flag of the same dimensions and on the same level, with the U. S. flag in the position of honor at the right. The same policy will hold when both flags are carried by troops on parade.

TC Vessels Save Taxpayer's Money

(ANF) — Army Transportation Corps' vessels are "coming about" into a windfall of savings for the taxpayer.

On the assumption that it usually is cheaper to bring the vessel to the cargo rather than vice versa, the corps already has saved $25,000 in sending its tank loading equipment for two vessels.

Many more thousands are expected to be saved as the program gets into full swing.

Ships assigned to carry cargo to Europe can load at the port where delivery to dockside can be made the cheapest.

The previous method alternated loading of such vessels between Europe and Brooklyn Port of Embarkation.

Diathermy Gear Modified, Hospital Saves Money

The Fort Benning U. S. Army Hospital has saved approximately $2,760 by modifying diathermy equipment declared outdated by the Federal Communications Commission.

Modification of the equipment, used in applying heat treatments to deep-lying muscles and tendons, was ordered by the Federal Communications Commission which changed frequencies used by diathermy apparatus.

It also was necessary under the FCC ruling to develop shielding to reduce radiation which causes interference with communication systems and high frequency equipment in the vicinity of the machine, according to Major John B. Barr, hospital supply officer.

The FCC ruled, therefore, that diathermy units manufactured before July 1, 1947, that failed to meet requirements of that agency be taken out of operation.

Cost of replacing the six machines at Fort Benning's hospital would have amounted to $3,240. Medical equipment maintenance personnel, however, under the supervision of Major E. McCurry of the Atlanta General Depot converted the Benning machines for $80 a unit. Total cost was $480 for the six machines, as compared to the $3,240 replacement cost.

Hospital Names Therapy Chief

Major Dorothy L. Brasil of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been named chief of physical therapy at the U. S. Army Hospital here.

Major Brasil succeeds Major Christine Enders who has been assigned to the Far East Command.

Before coming to The Infantry Center, Major Brasil was assigned to the Army Hospital at Fort Campbell, Ky. She has been a physical therapist since 1937.

A graduate of Adelphi College, Garden City, L. I., New York, she has been an Army nurse for nine years and served in the Mediterranean area from 1943-1945.

She is the wife of 1st Lt. Manuel B. Brasil of Providence, R. I., who is now in Korea with the 187th Regimental Combat Team.

Fiery Weapon Rivals Dragons

(ANF) — The U. S. Army has brought to life the legendary fire-breathing dragon of the Chinese—and has turned it against the Far Eastern Reds.

The Army's steel dragons—flame-spouting tanks which would make the mythical oriental beast quail—are getting bigger and better flame-throwers.

The Army Chemical Corps has developed a new version of the fiery weapon — a version that is used as the main offensive armament when it is mounted in the M-47 medium tank.

Most of the information on the improved flamethrower's performance is still a military secret, but tests show that the new weapon beats earlier types in range, durability and dependability.

Officer Saw Bikini Atomic Explosions As Seaman

An innocent strawberry milk shake is a far cry from the deadly atom bomb, but to 2nd Lt. Edwin E. Marion, the test explosion at Bikini atoll looked just like that.

One of the 20 men who volunteered to board the radioactive ships after the test atomic explosions of "Operations Crossroads" at Bikini atoll in the South Pacific, the Lieutenant, who at the time was serving in the Navy as a Seaman First Class, is well qualified to describe and discuss the two explosions which were the military's first attempts at a controlled experiment concerning the then newly discovered weapon.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky, he boarded the now scuttled battle wagon USS New York several hours after it had been exposed to the A-bomb blast. He remained on board the vessel for four hours, exposing himself to the invisible, yet deadly radioactive particles that were believed to have followed the explosion. Twenty four days later, he again boarded the target ship following a sub-surface blast. Again, in the face of unknown danger, he remained on board for a four hour period.

Although armed with Geiger counters, an instrument used to monitor radioactivity, Marion and many of the other volunteers, suffered ill effects from the considerable exposure while on board the ship. Soon after completion of the mission, the Lieutenant's hair began to fall out, and for over a year, he was nearly bald.

In June of this year, the ROTC graduate arrived at Fort Benning to assume the duties of student in the Officer Associate Basic Course. 21 are a member of 24th Company, First Student Regiment.

FISTIC FRESHMEN . . . These three youngsters are among the newcomers to Combat Training Command's boxing team since last spring and could easily develop into title contenders in the current post amateur campaign. Left to right, Carlton Rice, 139, Robert McArthur, 158, and Earl Roberts, 151.

Fights Tuesday; ASU Takes Lead

Fort Benning had a new unofficial light heavyweight champion today after Claude Chapman, 170½, of ASU Provisional Group, took a thumping decision from James Boyd, 171½, of First Student Regiment, before 1,500 fans Tuesday night at Briant Wells Field House.

Boyd won the post title in 1951 and had been unbeaten in two seasons since. Technically, he remains the champ until the 1953 title bouts next spring.

But Chapman, this year's All-Victims champ, is the "peepul's choice" for the time being. He had Boyd on the run in the last round with a fierce attack featuring sharp lefts and a mean straight right hand.

The amateur series will continue at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Cowdry Field. The boxing board meets today to make nine matches. All are free to spectators. Admission is free.

The win by Chapman gave ASU the lead in the team scoring. They have 36 points, followed by 508th Airborne, 17, First SR, 15, Combat Training Command, 5, and Infantry School Detachment, 2.

Biggest thrill of the card, however, was when Al Wozich, of ASU, knocked Bob Ellis, of First SR, 30 pounds in weight and survivor of a first round decking, to the mat with Ellis in 2:45 of the second.

It was just that both are heavyweights explains the queer pounding Ellis pulled like a bull. Shortly after the paratrooper never quit and his lead-wise fistics began taking their toll in the second. Ellis was out for a full minute.

Other featherweight champs are Tex Ray, 126½, of ASU, who won his ranking by decisioning Roland Martin, 124½, of First SR, in another good three-rounder.

In other bouts, Leander Ray, 124, ASU, decisioned Roland Martin, 124, First SR; George Blackburn, 145, ASU, TKO'd Harry Robinson, 148, CTC, in 1:39 of three; Gordon Van Lue, 154, First Sr, took a split decision from Willie Parker, 162, CTC; Frank Lowe, 178, CTC, decisioned Jim Stamper, 169, 508th; Robert Collins, 144, ISD, decisioned John Liggett, 143, CTC, and William Fay, 138, 508th kayoed Vinnie Gregory in 1:45 of the second.

30th Inf. Gym Offers Musclemen 'New Look'

Bulging muscles are the order of the day in the First Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, Cpl. Wallace G. Jumper, A. and R-NCO, paved the way for strength through exercise by pushing to completion a battalion gymnasium equipped with muscle-building machinery designed to transform a cavalry stable into the spot of an Atlas.

Punching bags, parallel bars, rowing machines, speed bags, dumbbells, tumbling mats, barbell weights and a hand and arm weight pully are among the facilities now available to members of the battalion.

The 508th Airborne's Red Devils will get a running jump on their three Fort Benning football rivals by opening their season Saturday, Sept. 13, against the 508th Airborne eleven at Fort Bragg, N. C. It will be the first of numerous games against outside opponents for all four Benning teams this fall.

The schedule isn't complete, but the tilts with the outsiders will be about evenly divided between Doughboy Stadium and the opponents' fields.

Post Inaugural

The Red Devils also will be one of the teams in the regular Benning League opener Sept. 28 at the Stadium. They meet Combat Training Command, renewing a gridiron rivalry which grew to monumental proportions last season.

More than 17,000 fans, a post-war attendance record, jammed the Stadium to see the 508th bump Lawson Field, 13-6, in the 1951 opener.

Head Coach Jim Phillips and his airborne leather luggers are eagerly anticipating the early season action at Bragg, but the Red Devil mission was fretting a bit after some of last week's practice sessions.

Not Yet

"We aren't up to par yet," he noted, and added:

"Paul Bury, my right half, injured his leg, big Bill Buza is limping around with a charley-horse and Gil Downer will be out for at least a month with torn ligament in his left knee."

Tops Rookies

Bill Redman, who returned last week from leave after becoming a proud father, looked real good during the scrimmages. Redman will be out this season for good honors from the way he was operating in the backfield.

Also improving steadily is workhorse lineman Shelby Wolmack, one of the Red Devil's returnees from last year's squad.

Coach Phillips has been trying to convert some of his ends into backfield men, and two of his apt pupils are Bill Beem and Pete Overton.

Neat Switch

Beem, a fast running end, is learning only the fundamentals of running a team from the quarterback slot while Overton has shown that he is quite adept at calling the T-formation signals.

Beem played for the 508th last season, but Overton is a newcomer.

Phillips has his team workout at Doyle Field in the Sand Hill area daily and spectators, or second guessers as some of us might call them, are welcome to watch the scrimmage sessions.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

THE RIFLE TOURNAMENT was summed up in a paragraph by Col. Perry D. Swindler in reporting to the NRA assembly at Brown Hall:

"Despite some last minute cancellations we had 272 participants," he said. "Sixty-two of them were civilians. I wish there had been 562. We had 83 Army men, there should have been 183. There were 62 National Guardsmen. I wish there had been 362. We had three juniors. I wish there had been 103. We had 58 Marines. Sometimes—I wish there had been NO Marines!"

"THE ARMY must have 3,000,000 men who can shoot straight," said Maj. Gen. Young. "I urge you people in the NRA to spread the gospel of marksmanship to all ages". . . Shooting interest among non-participants is at an all-time high here; they have taken the bait of national tournament action. Now's the time for the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club to follow through with a program for novices, similar to the Sunday a.m. gatherings Lt. Rufus Brock and others were conducting several months ago.

IF YOU THINK it's difficult to venture predictions about our post football teams, made up, for the most part, of a bunch of strangers assembled in the past month, consider the situation in college ball this fall. There can be no national rankings by the so-called experts which will be worth the paper on which they are printed.

Football has tightened up all over the nation with the many changes in the manner of spring training and scholarships. This is especially true in the latter instance where some schools have practically eliminated grants while others give out as many as 120 scholarships, particularly here in the South.

There will be many surprises, much gnashing of teeth. Which reminds me of the classic crack last fall of Maj. Harold Kopp, who as a reserve was pulled away from his head coaching spot at Rhode Island State and found himself mentoring Combat Training Command. "There is much to be said for service football," he allowed after his first few games. "You don't have a darned alumni to worry about."

There has never been a lack of color or enthusiasm in Benning football, anyway. Out at CTC, for example, they will have three playing coaches this semester, simply because Cecil Dickerson, Bob Strickland and Forrest Lowe, the chosen mentors, were good grid performers only a few seasons ago and they feel they can still help a team.

It makes for a busy day, Dickerson and his two aides hold planning meetings at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. each day. They follow up each of these with a full-fledged work out with the squad. In between, they sandwich in a two-hour blackboard session with their pigskin warriors.

Dickerson, an alumnus of Los Angeles who sat on the Rams' bench at the College All-Star game two weeks ago in Chicago, will adopt some of the pro frills for the Commanders. They'll take their pre-game exercises up minus shoulder and hip pads.

"You really get loose and limber without that weight," he observes. "We put on the heavy gear about ten minutes before the kick-off and we're ready to go."

They didn't come with the uniforms, so Dickerson, the former Mississippi halfback, scrounged up the coin to buy stockings for his crew. He thinks it adds a lot of class to a team's appearance on the field, plus serving the practical value of keeping legs warm and saving them from nicks and cuts. It's a healthy sign when coaches are thinking about and preparing for all of these minor items.

Belson, Fristik Pace Army Team

A Fort Benning sergeant and a Military Police officer just back from overseas set the pace for 83 Army riflemen and stopped the Marines from making a clean sweep of the National High Power Rifle Championships.

And to make a pure GI story, neither Sfc. Wilburne Fristik, of Company E, Infantry School Detachment, or Capt. Murvale Belson, of Fort Eustis, Va., had ever done any shooting before the Army taught them how.

The 32-year old Fristik, of Enon Valley, Pa., won the service rifle (M-1) division of the historical Navy Cup Match with a 96 out of a possible 100 in the 200-yard test.

Belson, 36, who calls home Macon, Ga., won the rugged National Trophy Individual Rifle Match, the only sports event actually sponsored by Congress, with a 244 out of a possible 250.

He also was the high Army man for the national individual-service rifle crown with a 427 score as compared to the winning 431 figure, and that placed him ninth in the overall field.

In other words, one more bulls-eye—five points—would have given Belson the service rifle championship of America. He missed that chance when he fired a bull on the wrong target, a not too uncommon error in national competition.

MURVALE BELSON
. . . Top Army Man

Fristik is a perfect example of what an Army man can do with a rifle and how a sports champ is made despite obstacles. An assistant instructor with the weapons department, he shoots today despite several definite physical handicaps suffered as a result of World War II action.

He got his start in regimental rifle competition in Europe, and eventually wound up as the sixth ranking smallbore (.22 cal.) shooter in EUCOM.

Fristik is surprised that there aren't more young men like himself out for the Army team.

"These fellows seem to get the idea that it's easy, and then when they come out and see how much work it is, they balk," he ventured. "If you like shooting you could not ask for a better station than Benning with all the facilities here."

Fristik will wrap up his six-year hitch in February. He plans to keep shooting, but it will be with a college team.

Belson enlisted in the Army in 1935 as a private and soon after was up to his neck in rifle sports. This was his first national title although he participated in the 1940 Nationals at Camp Perry, O. He won the free rifle match of the Southeastern Regional High Power Championships here several weeks ago.

Rifle Meet Big Success

One of the few national sports competitions ever held at Fort Benning—the 1952 National High Power Rifle Championships—came to a close Tuesday after being recorded as a complete success.

The tournament attracted 278 competitors from as far as Hawaii and a good number of their friends and family. An estimated 1,000 spectators drifted on and off the range to watch the action.

Army-wise, it did more to stimulate interest in service marksmanship and the M-1 rifle than any single event in the past. This was the largest national tournament since 1941 and the first ever conducted in the South.

Infantry Center-wise, the Fort Benning dateline was spread all across the nation for a solid week. Some 2,100 words of news copy were filed by Associated Press alone.

Across America

Other wire services carried like amounts. Columbus papers printed an estimated 10,000 words, and stories on every medal winner in the tournament were sent to their home town papers.

Fifty-five different pictures, with an average of six copies each for a total of 330 prints, were sent to local and hometown papers and reproduced into countless other pictures by the wirephoto services.

Paramount Newsreel filmed the final day's action for national release.

Outdid Themselves

Although it wasn't planned that way, the Army wound up by being perfect hosts: they staged the matches and graciously "let" the Marine Corps cop the bulk of individual and team honors.

Three new national champions produced were Lt. Col. Walter Walsh, USMC, National High Power Rifle king, Maj. Robert Dawson, service rifle champion, and Mrs. Alice Bull, of Seattle, Wash., new national women's champion.

The mechanics of the tournament were tremendous. Heading up the operation in superb fashion was Col. Perry D. Swindler, Fort Benning's grand old man of shooting, who just three weeks ago had captained the Army to the national pistol crown.

Willing Help

When you consider that it took most of the Second Battalion of 508th Airborne to operate the ranges for the tourney, the impossibility of giving credit to all is realized.

In no particular order then, here are some who shared the burden. Assistant executive officer was Maj. Harvey Sweeney.

The statistical crew included Maj. Arthur Sikes, Capt. Fred Keifer, Capt. Charles Wild, Capt. Robert Fair, Capt. James Carroll, Sfc. Carl Francis, Sgt. Duane Derrig, Pfc. Melvin Seider and Cpl. Donald Fletcher.

Good Job

Pit officers were Capt. Ted Adair, Capt. Maddox and Capt. Keehn. On the line for 508th was Lt. William Middlemas and Lt. Reg Ingham. In charge of the 508th crew was Lt. Harry Meinhardt and M-Sgt. Melvin Manning.

Among the line workers were Lt. Col. J. C. Brink, Lt. Col. Verne Reaugh, Maj. Fred Anderson, Maj. William Clark and Maj. John Flynn.

Capt. James Howe served as PIO for the Army team. Army photo coverage was by Sgt. Ben Westendorf, Maj. Hal D. Stewart directed the overall PIO operation.

CTC Shapes Up Starting Squad

Labor Day means just that for Combat Training Command as Coach Cecil Dickerson's crew took advantage of the long weekend for some serious head knocking last week at Bullet Field.

Significantly, Dickerson was in the quarterback slot and there's no doubt any longer that he will be the only playing head coach in this year's Fort Benning Football League.

The rest of his backfield was Frank Spaniel, right half, Adam Zubaty, left half, and George (Ding Dong) Bell, fullback. All three were first team regulars last season.

Dickerson Describes

Dickerson describes Bell, star of the CTC track team this spring, as certainly the most improved player on the "post." Zubaty is the "quiet silent type, as dependable as a bank statement.

League's Best

Spaniel, late of Notre Dame and the Washington Redskins, needs no more build up after passing and running for a total of 1,238 yards and scoring seven TD's here in '51.

There's less experience in the line, but Dickerson described the overall picture as "much better" as the Commanders finally got around to scrimmaging.

"We don't have the college men so we have had to spend a great deal of time on fundamentals," explained the former Los Angeles Rams halfback. "We will be in good physical condition, however."

Veterans Return

Among the line returnees who seem to be earning regular positions for the coming campaign are Charlie Washington at right guard, Bill Fuge at left tackle and Santo DeRose at right end.

Other top line prospects in last week's drills were John Yerby, c, Harry Lott, lg, Forrest Lowe, rt, and John McCluney, le.

Charlie Matthews and Clarence Holder look like the defensive ends; veterans Hal Kirkland and Paul Shover are at defensive tackles with Byron Esser and Bill Williams as defensive guards.

Defense Promising

Junior Schnitkey, a good spot performer last season, and Alvin Kennedy are working into the defensive halfback slots.

Dickerson also was high in praise over Parley Anglin, a whopping 270-pounder from Yubba Junior College in California, who works like a bulldozer as a defensive tackle.

Dickerson's squad was increased to 39 men this week with the addition of John Walch, of Idaho U., and Bill Doty, of Union College of Tennessee. Both are guards. Several more newcomers are expected this week.

ASU Getting Ready For TIC 'Shoes' Meet

Horseshoe courts are being occupied in the off-duty hours in the Third Cuartel as members of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group sharpen their eyes for the annual T.I.C. Horseshoe tournament on September 22.

Though entries have been slow, final plans have been made for an ASU tournament which will select the team to represent the Group in the Infantry Center tournament.

Post Youngsters Win 22 Ribbons In Swim Meet

Youngster swimmers from Fort Benning splashed and kicked their way across the finish line to capture 22 ribbons in the first annual meet sponsored by the Boys Club of Columbus and sanctioned by the A.A.U.

The boys and girls of the military ranging in age from seven to 16 years of age turned the tournament into one of the largest tank meets ever held in Columbus. Ribbons were awarded to the three winners in each age group and medals went to the eight persons with the highest number of points in each division.

Iowa Trackman Student Here

A Big Ten Conference track ace and a high man in NCAA ratings is a student in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Five, 122nd Company, Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. DuWayne E. Dietz placed second in the 120-yard low hurdles in the 1952 Big Ten track meet while captain of the University of Iowa team. Dietz was third in NCAA ratings for the 400-meter hurdles.

Back in high school, he was Illinois state champ in the 100-yard dash and the 120-yard low hurdles in 1948. The officer was a member of the Iowa relay team which posted the fastest time in the nation in the 1952 Drake Relays.

High School Team Mates Now Play For ISD-ASU Club

Pfc. Jack Hendrix and Sfc. Harold Long, members of Maj. Jack Faubion's ISD-ASU "Green Wave" once again find themselves playing on the same team.

Both Hendrix and Long attended Gastonia High School, Gastonia, N. C. and played halfback and guard respectively. Hendrix continued his football career at Belmon Abbey College in North Carolina before being called into the service. He also played with the 45th Infantry Division in 1951 before being assigned to duty here at the Infantry Center.

Members of the Infantry School Detachment, Hendrix is on duty with the Adjutant General Section —Officers, while Long is a member of the Physical Training Committee of the Infantry Center.

Resort To Teach Cooks Specialty

SOUTH FALLSBURG, N. Y. (AFPS) — The serviceman may soon be getting an ancient exotic dish added to his chow—and its name is "borscht."

The Army has arranged to give a few of its trainee cooks a post-graduate course at a summer resort hotel here. They'll study the preparation of borscht and other foreign dishes under a renowned European chef.

(Editor's Note: "Borscht," according to Webster, is "a soup of several ingredients, colored with red beet juices.")

Hockey Player Now Training As OC

Jack Donahue of 29th OC Company who sparked an aggressive 1951 Freshman Dartmouth hockey team to its first undefeated season in 20 years is now keeping in shape by taking officer candidate training.

Donahue started playing ice hockey at the age of eight. In 1947 he was a right winger on the Canadian Junior hockey team and in 1948 and '49 he skated for the Boston Junior Olympics.

...le Tourney ...ay Return To ...enning In 1955

There is a possibility of the National High Power Rifle Championships being held at Fort Benning in the future, but not before 1955, according to Col. Perry D. Swindler, 1952 tourney executive officer.

The Nationals go to Camp Perry, O., next year and a Marine base will play host in 1954, but Col. Swiddler believes that after that the Infantry Center is the logical site for a rifle tournament.

Learn How

Fort Benning's many shooting enthusiasts will go back to a more casual routine now. Next on the agenda for the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club is a smallbore (50-cal.-rifle) program for new or inexperienced shooters.

Capt. John Kolb is in charge of the smallbore program which is planned for both indoor and outdoor competition. He can be contacted at the club, 3-016.

More Army

Lt. Col. Frank Barnett, captain of the Army rifle team in the Nationals, also made some poignant observations as the shooting wound up Tuesday.

"It was as smooth as any national match I've seen and the sportsmanship was outstanding," he noted. "The Army will have more in there next year, I'm sure. I am tentatively planning to have about 100 candidates for the team here by June 1."

Women's Golf Matches Up; Play Friday

The Fort Benning Women's Golf Association will stage a blind bogey tournament tomorrow at the Country Club. There will be both nine and 18-hole contests starting at 9 a.m.

Newcomers to the post are especially invited to participate.

Meantime, plans were completed this week for the 1952 Elebash Cup women's tournament Sept. 17-19 at the Columbus Country Club.

Big Tourney

The tournament has been played since 1937 as a friendly competition between Fort Benning and Columbus women. Qualifying rounds can be played from now until Sept. 15.

Eighteen holes each over the Benning and Columbus courses are required to qualify. Registration can be made with the course pros.

There also will be nine-hole Elebash competition with qualifying rounds necessary on the front nine at Benning and on the back nine in Columbus.

Maj. Elmer Baker fired an ace over the Labor Day weekend on the par three, 137-yard 16th hole. Ironically, Rafferty fired a 32-34—66 round over the course last week.

Another good score last week was a 70 by Maj. Lawson Magruder.

Fencing Revival Seen At Chaffee

(ANFE) — The parry and thrust of yesteryear may have given away to the trigger squeeze and the proximity fuse of today's warfare, but Pfc. Cornelius D. Banks, of St. Louis, Mo., is reviving the venerable art of fencing at Camp Chaffee, Ark.

Banks, an expert swordsman, hopes to make fencing a popular off-duty recreation at Chaffee service clubs. The modern Cyrano drills soldier students of the ancient science in techniques he developed through years of work with the sabres and foils.

Once a member of St. Louis University's fencing team, Banks polished his style as a private student of Dr. Karl Guesitz, a Munich fencing master, while serving an Army hitch in Germany.

SCHOOL OF HARD KNOCKS FOR THE RAMS
Coach Gus Dielens with Vern Fahrenkrug (l.), Fred Dreystring

BY LEE DINOFF

Head Coach August Dielens, of the First Sudent Brigade - Provisional Medical Group Rams is playing his gridiron cards close to his chest.

Dielens was close - mouthed about his line after last week's drills. He, let out, however, that he still is shopping for linesman. Two weeks ago, the former West Point back, stated that he was in desperate need of linesman, mainly tackles and guards.

Although highly pleased with the way his players were working together, Dielens would not say what his probable lineups were on his offensive and defensive teams.

Veterans Good

Some of the players that were recognized favorably during the workout session were Dick Lobmann, 1951 second-string All-Post guard, Booker Harris, Vern Griffin, Fred Dreystring and Vern Fahrenkrug.

With assistant coaches Bill Lawence, Bill Thuston, Linton Jordan and Elmer Knisley working the team through the various T-formation plays that he is planning using, Dielens himself was working the backfield.

Bright Hope

"This boy at quarterback, Emmett Matthews," he said, "is improving every day and I expect him to be one of our big ground gainers this season."

Using ends Dreystring and Fahrenkrug in his backfield workout, Dielens commented that "these boys will be making their mark on the Doughboy Stadium turf." Fahrenkrug, a six-foot-one inch end played football for St. John's of Minnesota were he proved himself an able receiver and runner.

Another Signal Caller

Besides having Matthews in the quarterback slot, Dielens also has Al Buckles, a wide shouldered lad who scored 22 touchdowns last year while playing during a tour of duty in the European Command. Assistant coach Knisley, who doubles in brass as manager of the Rams, commented, "We are getting into shape and lood good, but we still are a little rough in spots, I expect though, that if we could get some more men out, we will have a good team this year."

TALKING SHOP . . . C. A. Strader of 2952 Irvine Boulevard, Santa Ana, Calif., the leading civilian shooter in the service division and Constantine Apalakis of 22 Gould Street, Stoneham, Mass., second non-military sharpshooter in the same competition of the 1952 National High Power Rifle Championships at Fort Benning's McAndrew Range talk about rifles. Strader scored a 410-22v while Apalakis (left) fited a 399-16v in the four matches held in the seven-day tournament.

F-86D

U. S. Air Force Jet Interceptor

Mfr: North American
Speed: 575+ Length: 41'5"

Single-seat interceptor version of the F-86 Sabre. This plane is designed to climb quickly for interception at extreme altitude in all-weather operations. As is the case with the F-94 interceptor, the F-86D differs from its predecessor by having an elongated nose section to house radar and electronic gear in feature of interceptor, night fighters and all-weather planes. To make such installation possible, the F-86D has its air-intake duct under its shark-like nose instead of in the center of the nose, as also has a larger aft fuselage section to house its more powerful jet engine and after-burner. It is, of course, in the more than 600-mile-an-hour class.

Rodeo

other four events. More than $3,700 will be given away in prizes during the festival's five performances.

The exact amount of prize money cannot be determined at the present time since the size of the purse is partly dependent upon the number of contestants who enter the rodeo. All entries must be made through the Recreation and Entertainment section of Special Services located in Doughboy Stadium.

The stock for the rodeo comes straight from Texas and includes bucking horses, Brahman bulls, roping calves and wrestling steers. Two of the bucking horses have never been ridden. One of them ironically is named "Picnic".

In addition to the rodeo events, many specialty numbers will be presented. These are the Williams family and their trick roping act, Bob Allen and his high - school horse "Buck", Volney Snodgrass and his sheepdog "Cindy" and clowns Bill McBrayer, Nelson Shaul and Ralph Fields.

Western music will be played each evening starting at 6:30. The show will start at 8 p.m. A grand entry parade and the introduction of the officials will precede each performance. A special matinee, which starts at 2:30, will be held Saturday afternoon, Sept. 13.

The rodeo, co-produced by T. E. Randolph and Lavell Chisum of Montgomery, Ala., has played at several of the larger cities in the South.

'Hidden Gold' Pays In 3rd Army Area

(ANF)— Not all gold is buried in the vaults of Ft. Knox—the Army has found a "pot of gold" of its own in its scrap heaps and garbage cans. It already has paid off to the tune of more than $1,200,000.

Garbage, scrap metal, waste paper, rags, and other items may not sound quite so colorful as gilt-edged gold, but the million-dollar return already made to the United States Treasury from the seven-state Third Army area alone provided the "hard cash" that could buy for the Army some 201 two-and-one-half-ton cargo trucks, or 34 big guns, 29 light tanks, or enough rations to feed 200,000 soldiers for five days.

Scrap metal has been found to be the most profitable source of income and by far the largest item in the Third Army salvage program. More than 12,100 tons of scrap metal has been sold to civilian buyers.

Edible Waste Sold

Edible waste from Army garbage cans within the Third Army area sold under contract to civilian stock-raisers has netted approximately $200,000.

The Army salvage program, which has been gathering momentum for quite a few years—finds a ready market for its scrap products on the commercial market. Items designated scrap or surplus are put up for bid by civilian buyers with sales being made to the highest bidder on a competitive bidding basis.

No New Idea

The idea of eliminating every possible bit of waste while promoting the utmost in economy is not exactly new. Conservation and maximum utilization of scarce items were decided widely built by military and civilians during World War II days. Salvage operations in today's Army have taken on major proportions as economy-minded military men intensify their efforts on behalf of added savings in time, money and manpower.

As a result, the taxpayer gets added mileage from his military tax dollar, the Army is relieved of tons of no longer useful material, and industry has another source from which to obtain salvageable material.

MP Corporal Finds 'Home' After Long Military Trip

(ANF)—Drafted unwillingly into one army and captured by two others, Cpl. Carl R. von Rosenberg-Rosemont, of Eastport, Long Island, N. Y., still has a taste for army life—U. S. style.

An officer in the German Wehrmacht during World War II, the Army corporal, now in the Military Police Corps at Fort Sheridan, Ill., really found a home in the Army — but he had to take the long way home.

The son of a former German count who was a naturalized American citizen, von Rosenberg-Rosemont was born in New York City in January, 1926. Two years later his father died.

Moved to Europe

The family moved to Switzerland, and soon afterwards he went with his grand-parents to Germany and began attending German schools. Thereafter, his American citizenship was regarded lightly by the authorities and, when he was 17 years old, von Rosenberg-Rosemont found himself shanghaied into the German Army.

He fought in a tank on the Russian front. During the retreat of the German Army from the Russians, a shell hit his tank, killing his companions. Von Rosenberg-Rosemont was captured and interned in a Soviet prison camp.

The camp held him only three days. On the third night, he slithered under the barbed wire enclosure and crawled for five hours to reach the German lines—just in time to be captured by the British.

Released

Six months after the war ended, he was released from prison camp. Then began three years of trying to re-establish his American citizenship.

Finally, he obtained a birth certificate from New York, along with proof that he entered the Wehrmacht unwillingly. Washington confirmed his citizenship and he was set sail for the United States.

But it had been a long time. He had only a hazy knowledge of English and had a hard time finding work. A policeman suggested he join the Army. It was good advice.

In the Army, the corporal gained a fluent command of his long-neglected native tongue. He fought in Korea before being rotated to Fort Sheridan.

Assistant Defense Secretary Praises Military Legislation

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg has declared that the pay increase given military personnel several months ago, while not adequate, was in the right direction and had a good effect on the morale of our uniformed men and women.

Mrs. Rosenberg said that she did not think the recent pay increase of approximately five per cent was sufficient since the cost of living had increased more than twice that much since military pay scales were last adjusted in 1949.

She expressed the hope that when Congress reconvenes, it would complete the adjustment.

Mrs. Rosenberg also stressed the importance of the Armed Forces Reserve Act, "up until the passage of this act," she said, "virtually all Reserves, regardless of how long they served or where they had served, were equally liable for a recall to further duty. This was unfair and unsound.

"Under this new act members of our Reserve Forces will be divided into two principal categories — the Ready Reserve and the Standby Reserve. The Ready Reserve may be called to duty by the President in an emergency but only in such numbers as are authorized by the Congress.

"The Standby Reserve is, however, less vulnerable to recall and can only be ordered to duty after the declaration of a national emergency.

"The individual reservist now has an opportunity, through his own efforts and by the extent of nature of his previous service, to decrease his vulnerability to recall in the event of future emergencies."

Mrs. Rosenberg also praised the action of Congress in approving the E-Vet Bill. "It gives our new veterans readjustment benefits comparable with those enjoyed by our WW II veterans. This is well-deserved and simple justice," she said.

School Rites Set Monday

$300,000 Children's School Will Be Formally Dedicated

The Infantry Center's new $300,000 school, named in honor of a hero of the Korean conflict, will be formally dedicated Monday, Sept. 15.

The school is named in honor of Lt. Col. Don C. Faith, who attended Columbus High School from 1935 to 1939 as a student from Fort Benning.

Colonel Faith was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for conspicuous gallantry in action while commanding the 1st Battalion, 5th Infantry, 24th Infantry Division in Korea. Mrs. Don Robert H. Young, Jr., wife of the Infantry Center commander, will officially name the school.

The school is located in the area between Sand Hill and the Main Post, which is in close proximity to the Infantry Center Headquarters. In case of rain, the dedication ceremonies will be held in the auditorium of the new school.

The Infantry Center's ordnance and tank school students and instructors will participate in the ceremonies, as troops marching to the school, and as members of the Infantry Center Band.
