The school is located in the area between Sand Hill and the Main Post, which is in close proximity to the Infantry Center Headquarters. In case of rain, the dedication ceremonies will be held in the auditorium of the new school.

The auditorium will close with the playing of "Taps" by the Infantry Center Band, followed by the playing of the National Anthem

Former CAT Plays Lead In Little Theatre Show

Mrs. Lory Morth, former Civilian Actress Technician (CAT), has been selected to play the female lead, Vera, in the forthcoming Fort Benning Little Theatre production of "Ten Little Indians."

Mrs. North spent over three years in the Orient with the U.S. Army as a Civilian Actress Technician capacity.

A native Pennsylvanian, she started dramatics at the age of six, when she appeared in productions staged by the Masterkey Center Theatre Group in Pittsburgh. She continued her work with the Center, and with the Pittsburgh Playhouse, until 1944 when she went to California.

In Los Angeles, she studied dramatics with the Bliss - Hayden School of Drama and appeared in their presentations of "Dough-girls," and "Stage Door." She also made several commercial movies and furthered her radio experience appearing at KMTR in California.

In 1946, Mrs. North signed a contract with the Army, and went to Tokyo where she was stationed at the Ernie Pyle Theatre for two years as a CAT. She had roles in "A Christmas Carol," "Yes, My Darling Daughter," and "Snafu." The latter two plays toured Japan and Korea in 1946 and 1947.

Returning to the States in 1947, she studied with "the New York School of Interior Decorating. In 1948, she was recruited by Melvyn Douglas, representing Hollywood Coordinating Committee, for further overseas duty. In Okinawa for a year, she directed produced and appeared in variety shows, sang with a dance band, and was a daily radio show "Island Chatter."

Her appearance in "Ten Little Indians" reunites her with a former stage partner, Lt. Charles H. Thomann, who is directing the play. While in Tokyo, Mrs. North and Lt. Thompson appeared together in "Yes, My Darling Daughter," at the Ernie Pyle Theatre. Later they toured the Japanese islands and Korea with the production.

"Ten Little Indians" will be presented on October 9 and 10 at the Main Post Theatre. Ticket information will be available at a later date.

Unridden Picnic Set For Rodeo

He's called Picnic, but more than 300 saddle bronc riders who have tried to ride him agree he's no picnic once the chute gate opens.

Picnic is a little gray cowpony, owned by Randolph and Chisum, who will appear in the Alabama-Georgia Championship Rodeo opening here Sept. 19. The little animal is now entering his ninth year of rodeo wars and still looking for the first man with enough skill or luck stay on his back the eight seconds required to qualify in a rodeo.

He's not a mean horse, according to Layell Chisum, one of his owners. Man-killers, horses who try to injure or kill a rider once he is thrown, aren't used by rodeos because of the great danger involved.

Picnic's no killer. He just doesn't like anyone to ride him and has developed quite a knack to satisfy his fancy.

He's 12-years-old now, and in his second year of bouncing cowboys with the Championship Rodeo.

Chisum estimates that "a good 300 boys including some of the best in the business" have pitted their luck against the gray horse who threw his first bronc rider as a three-year-old.

Will Picnic ever be ridden? "That's always possible," says Chisum. "We might even get a boy here who will ride him during one of the nights we're at Fort Benning."

But Chisum doubts it. "If a horse is smart and tricky enough not to be ridden by the time he is six or seven, there's a good chance nobody will ever be able to ride him. That horse is smart. Somebody might ride him someday, but I don't think so."

One of the cowhands traveling with the rodeo was even more emphatic.

"Nobody's going to ride Picnic," he said.

Cash prizes for the Fort Benning Photography Contest have been announced by Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Grimes, Special Services officer.

First, second and third place prizes will be awarded in each of the two categories of competition. The prizes will be $15 for first, $12.50 for second and $10 for third.

The Fort Benning contest is part of the Fourth Interservice Photography Contest and the same general rules which govern that contest will apply to The Infantry Center competition.

Members of all services stationed at Fort Benning may compete for prizes, but since each service is conducting its own contest to determine entries for the interservice contest to be held in Washington, D. C. next spring, only the work of Army personnel will be forwarded from here.

Competition will be in two classes. Class I is for black and white enlargements. Minimum size is five inches by seven inches, maximum 16 inches by 20 inches. The photos should be unmatted, and unmounted and not tinted or color-toned.

Color transparencies form the second category of competition. They should be at least 35 mm. in size, but not larger than four inches by five inches and mounted in a cardboard frame. Only photographs taken after Jan. 1, 1952 are eligible for competition.

Contest rules do not limit the type of subjects to be photographed, but they do state that "subject matter should have appeal and meaning." Some of the recommended subjects include: landscapes, seascapes, still life, babies and children, animals, customs and people, architectural studies, interiors, flowers, abstractions and human interest subjects taken from daily offices.

Entries will be judged primarily on originality, interest and appeal. Technique will be of secondary importance.

Entry forms are available at the Post Craft Shop and Special Services offices both located in Doughboy Stadium, and at all service clubs and libraries.

All entries must be in by 5 p.m. Oct. 1, 1952 and become the property of the Post Craft Shop and will not be returned. The Post Craft Shop is providing facilities and instructions for the developing and enlarging of negatives for those entering the contest.

CTC Plan Brings Query From Maryland

The conduct consciousness program inaugurated by Combat Training Command and the 30th Infantry Regiment here has spread to other units on the post and has even brought inquiries from other posts.

Cpl. Frank L. Elder, commander of the 30th Infantry Regiment, received a letter from Headquarters, Troop Command at Fort Holabird, Md., requesting a copy of the complete Conduct consciousness program for study and possible implementation into current school programs of Counter Intelligence Corps personnel.

The letter stated "It is felt that your very successful program would be of great value and assistance to the permanent party and student personnel stationed at Fort Holabird."

Copies of the program have been sent to Fort Holabird, and CTC officials hope that their program, if adopted, will be as successful as the one here.

Koreans, New Lieutenants Hear Gen. Hickey Speak

Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey last week spoke to a graduating officer candidate class and a group of Republic of Korea officers graduating from The Infantry School.

The XVIII Airborne Corps commander spoke to the Korean officers last Thursday and to the new second lieutenants the following day.

"An Army commission can be trusted only to people of the highest character," the XVIII Airborne Corps commander told the 120 new second lieutenants. "Therefore, every military leader must have great personal integrity, as the effectiveness of the Army is based upon the honesty of its officers," he said.

"The most critical test of your integrity will come when it involves the lives of men on the battlefield," warned the two-star general. "An officer who has not always been honest in every action which he takes cannot develop this high degree of conduct solely for combat," Gen Hickey added.

"Let me remind you," he said, "that you will be dealing with the most priceless commodity we have: the life of the American soldier," he continued. "Therefore, I say that you owe it to yourself, country and your government to discharge your duties to the best of your ability."

Speaking to the 150 Korean Army officer, he said "Your country is being watched by the entire world," the Airborne Corps commander said, "and your survival will depend upon the actions of your citizens."

Pointing to an Army officer's code of honor, the two-star general warned the Koreans that personal integrity is the hard core of doing ones duty honorably.

"An officer's word or signature must be accepted without question," he said "any careless use of either of these cannot be tolerated."

Gen. Hickey told the graduates that to accomplish their mission and become successful in their Army career "you must know your capabilities, seek self-improvement, know your job and your men and demand of them the highest standards in the performance of their duties."

THE BAYONET

Small Things Important

Thirteen years ago this month the world was just taking a long sigh of relief which it has yet to resume. The third day of September in the year 1939 saw the Prime Ministers of Great Britain and France accept the Nazis' challenge, signaling the start of World War II.

Since that fateful day the world has not known peace. First, the forces of fascism were destroyed, but a new and greater menace has arisen in its place — Soviet Communism. This night has brought a major nuclear threat to the safety and security of the world, and has increased by the hundreds of thousands the number of those dissatisfied with the present.

While fascism sought and in fact accomplished the enslavement of man's bodies, Red practitioners seek instead to enslave his thought to replace the mind. It is the extension of this mind that is now almost elevated machines.

To the poor and starving people of some of the less developed countries of the world, Soviet Communism is just like words and people, therefore. These unemployed people are the easy mark and breeding ground for the Communist agents. They feed people in these areas with promises of food, the means with promises of land, the workers with promises of jobs, and their backs, for what have the Communists to offer? Nothing but slavery, hunger, brutality, bloodshed, misery.

The U.S., through its Mutual Security Program, has demonstrated that it is ready and able to do the full share in aid to the free world to keep the head strong nation. We have met the real challenge of its true ground and defeated it.

However, the battle is far from over, and Indiana stands still and losing victory. Small evidences of complacency here, important. The way our people conduct their affairs in foreign lands, individual and local generosity to the unfortunate, and other displays of understanding good will are a compliment to the preservation of the way of life we pray great progress undertaken by the government.

The Armed Forces have done a great deal to aid the relations between this nation and other countries in the free world.

The recent visit by Islands Highway contributed much. Many of the goods and products this country of ours, many evidences of progress and help have been brought to that section of the globe.

The average soldier can aid this program. Remember that those of you who are going overseas some of all serve behind them represent the United States. A person unfriendly with the United States can judge it only by the representative he sees.

Remember that the people of the countries where members of the Armed Forces are stationed have been in the habit of their own governments of the past treated them as inferiors. Many of them have never seen a free people before. Be sure that they see the representative of the United States at his best.

Love Is the Answer

By Chaplain (Maj.) Percy V. Baker

Love seems never so much to be an enduring foundation, the chief characteristic of which is a spirit of kindness, sweetness, and the genius of Christianity is love.

Take good look at those on the other hand. Note the signs of hatred, bitterness, and selfishness, and fear, the unfriendly and inhuman, and fear. See the unfortunate agonies of the land. Today the world has become a battleground for the bloody business of imperial hatred was held nothing in check of human life, and we have had some help from the Spiritual in observance, in material conquest, or in negotiating accomplish.

The night was Today, behold in nothing except for the throne and Imperial Day like hatred their bosom seem the sand, and nations are falling, dynasties are dissolving, empires are passing, and peoples are perishing. A shocking picture would read for into the nowhere and are enduring foundation from God Most-Pure.

In a month with the banners of angels and of Hosts, God have set again, I was becoming around young of a changing country. And it I know this gift of gratitude and know all experience and all knowledge, and if I have all faith so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing, and if I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and if I give my body to be burned, but have not love, it profiteth me nothing. Love and Speak long, and is kind; love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not provoked, thinketh not no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth with the truth, beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. — And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, and the greatest of these is love.

What a word for the world to day! Love beyond others passing measure, is the confession for mankind and love is the name Agape of God. It is the name we adore, for God is love. It has been through us that we have learned to know and believe in the love God has for us. God is love; and he who abides in love abides in God, and God abides in him. In this love is perfected with us that we may have confidence for the day of judgment, because as he is so are we in this world. There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear, for fear has to do with punishment, and he who fears is not perfected in love. We love, because he first loved us. If any one says, "I love God," and hates his brother, he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen cannot love God whom he has not seen. And this commandment we have from him, that he who loves God should love his brother also.

When the last day is ended and the nights are through.

When the last sun is buried in the graves of time.

When the stars are crushed like candles.

When the seas no longer frot.

When the winds scatter their moaning.

And the waves forget.

When the last sin is pardoned.

When the last prayer is said.

Love shall live, forever!

When the world has died.

Vets Need Own Money For 2 Months At School

Veterans who are planning to go to school under the G.I. Bill have been advised by the Veterans Administration to take along enough money of their own, to last them for the first two months. There are two reasons for the delay: (1) Under the new, education and training allowances can not be paid until sometime after a veteran actually completes each month of training; (2) The law does not provide that both the veteran and the school or training establishment submit a certification to the VA—after the end of the month — in which the student actually was enrolled in training.

Because of these delays, each the first required to complete the necessary each veteran is entitled to receive from the government a subsistence allowance check for each month of training. The first check will be mailed approximately 45 days after the end of the month in which the veteran started training.

Subsistence allowance checks are mailed regularly each month, as long as the veteran remains in training and his certification is received.

Counseling has begun on a new Category More schools open at the Great Lakes, Ill., which were completed or repaired at a cost of $1,000,000 for the Recruit Training and Quartermaster schools.

POSTMASTER'S MEMOIR — By Lydia Kirk. Charles Scribner and Sons, New York, wife of the ambassador to Russia here tells in this guide a package of memories and behind the iron curtain to the odd Russian Governor to lunch, and of heartbreaking Americans determined to "repatriate" during a bitterly cold winter in Soviet and Soviet Russia.

Her chatty book reveals that the Russians, too, are pleased with such "capitalistic" gadgets as traffic lights, and that Russian women are pretty much like those of other countries. It gives the lowdown on how Russians live, their food, their clothes, their amusements, their attitudes toward Americans and their government.

THE MOUNTAINS REMAIN — By Shannon Tweed, Houghton Mifflin and Co. Shannon Tweed continues his story of Pvt. Tyler Tweedsmith after he is declared off from the Japanese Imperial Army and returns to his home land. He is faced with the difficult choice that is nothing to pass today.

The story describes the birth of a new Japan which is being born between the conflict of old and new cultures. He shows the effect of the American occupation and the psychological effect of Communism. Tweed goes to the high lights like Hiroshima and Nagasaki and describes the trials of the people of the Occupied Japan and their problems of the future. Recommended.

THE LADY AND THE TIGER — By Shirley Wilson, Alfred A. Knopf Co. Inc. Lowell Mitchell Shirley finds from the very beginning of Parker College, she meets many unusual and new and many of her views during the book.

To the chief detective Frank Park, the disappearance of an elderly Jew proved unusual. The Lowell Mitchell agency was to find what, if anything, had happened to the professor. It quickly points to one, the Lady of the mystery, here is one with a past of her own.

Army Merges Related MOS's

BY PFC. WARREN ADLER
(AFPS Washington Correspondent)

After extensive study, the Army has eliminated certain enlisted MOS's by merging supervisory and "journeyman" MOS's. Also merged into one were two or more related MOS's with overlapping duties and responsibilities.

According to Circular 72, which announces the changes, the new MOS's will go into effect Nov. 1. In many cases merger of MOS's has resulted in modification and elimination of previously authorized MOS titles. The appendix to Circular 72 is the amendment to SR 615-25-20.

Under the new system the first digit of each MOS will indicate the highest pay grade and supervisory level attainable within the particular specialty. The pay grade authorized for any duty position and the pay grade held by an enlisted man will indicate the degree of skill and responsibility of the duty position or of the individual.

Gen. Meloy Greets Class

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, Monday welcomed to Fort Benning 427 officers who are enrolled in the 36-week advanced course.

Gen. Meloy told the Infantry officers they had "an obligation to get everything out of this course that you possibly can. You will need every bit of knowledge you can get should you ever be called upon to lead the combat infantryman again," he declared.

After Gen. Meloy introduced The Infantry School staff and department directors, the students received orientations from Col. Ralph Hightower, director of instruction, and Lt. Col. H. L. Garrett, school secretary.

Twenty Allied officers from 16 nations are enrolled in the course. Countries represented are Venezuela, Nationalist China, Iran, Columbia, Chile, Cuba, Paraguay, Italy, Norway, Mexico, Philippine Islands, Portugal, Brazil, Belgium, Indonesia and France.

The course ends May 29, 1953.

Indefinite Appointments Open To Army, AF Reserve Officers

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Indefinite appointments in the Army Reserve will be offered immediately to reserve officers and warrant officers now serving on active duty, the Department of Defense announces.

Indefinite appointments to Air Force officers and Army Reserve officers not on active duty will also be offered period to July 1, 1953. Navy Reserve, Marine Corps Reserve, National Guard and Air National Guard officers' appointments are already on an indefinite term basis.

Appointment will be in the individual's permanent Reserve grade. Those serving in higher or lower temporary grades will continue to serve on active duty in those grades.

No Physical

To expedite the program, no physical examinations will be required and only the individual's acceptance in writing and execution of an oath of office are necessary.

Current five-year appointments of Reserve officers, which have already been extended by law, are due to expire Oct. 28, 1953. Should another similar extension be made, these appointments would expire April 1, 1953.

Individuals whose current appointment will continue for several years under the five-year term also are included in the program. Letters of eligibility will be forwarded to Army personnel who are affected.

Those who decline to accept a new indefinite term appointment will continue to serve under their current appointment as extended by law or until its normal date of expiration, whichever is later, unless sooner released from active duty.

$100 Error Makes Bellhop $5 Richer

NEW YORK (AFPS)—Marine Cpl. Kenneth Bergsohn paid a bellhop $100 for helping him carry his luggage out of a hotel here.

The "heavy tipper" was on furlough with his bride and was due back at his station in Cherry Point, N. C. He left hurriedly, thrusting a folded bill into the bellhop's hand.

An hour later Cpl. Bergsohn was back. The mistake had already been discovered by the bellhop, who decided that this definitely came under the hotel's rule that all tips out of proportion should be reported.

Soldiers Build "Miracle" Home For Alaska Orphans

(ANF) — More than 60 orphans in Alaska are living in a large, comfortable new home — thanks to U. S. soldiers stationed there.

The soldiers from Special Services Headquarters, U. S. Army, Alaska — helped build the new Lazy Mountain Children's Home near Palmer and donated more than $1,000 for building materials and other necessities. The new orphanage replaces one which burned several years ago.

Soldiers and airmen in the Anchorage area donated free time on Saturdays over a period of many months to complete the three-story, cement block structure. Groups of 24 volunteers drove more 50 miles to the home at their own expense to do the work.

Final completion of the non-denominational orphanage, marked the end of a three-year dream of the Rev. Kenneth Hughes who, with his wife, "adopted" the children some time ago.

Temporary Quarters

After a 1949 fire destroyed most of an orphanage at Valdez, Alaska, Hughes moved about half his children into temporary quarters on Lazy Mountain. He put the others in "quonset huts at the site planned for the new orphans' home. Then he drew plans for a 45-room structure to house his entire "family."

Contributions from Alaskan and U. S. church-goers helped buy expensive building materials, and a few local men began work on the building foundation.

But Hughes needed more hands to speed completion of the building, so he prayed for a miracle to find them.

The "miracle" occurred when soldiers exploring nearby Chugach Mountains came upon a dirt road which led to the children in quonset huts and their half - completed future home on Lazy Mountain.

At the barracks, the idea of helping the orphans caught on quickly, and a committee was formed to line up work parties and transportation for volunteer Saturday construction work.

Transportation Lack

Because of lack of transportation, size of the work parties was limited to 24. Men who were unable to join the construction groups because of duties or inadequate transportation sponsored special collections to purchase a stoker and other necessities for the new home.

Within a few months, $1,329 had been collected. Part of it is being spent to pay bills for building materials and some will pay for drilling a well at the orphanage.

The orphans now are living together as a happy family unit in their new home. The soldiers still are donating their time to put on finishing touches around the house.

Clothes closets must be completed and wall boulders have to be painted. U. S. soldiers who undertook the job are sticking with it until the last board is nailed down and the final touch of paint is brushed in place.

Exploits Of Lt. Col. Read Like Movie Script

The exploits of Lt. Col. Jerry M. Sage, student company commander of Infantry Officer Advanced Class No. 2, Fourth Company, 2nd Student Regiment, read like something out of an Alan Ladd scenario.

Colonel Sage's adventures as a member of the Office of Strategic Services, the cloak and dagger OSS, during the second World War would put the Hollywood star to shame for sheer daring and heroism.

A former star football player for Washington State College from 1934 through 1939, Colonel Sage received his commission upon graduation from that school's ROTC unit. He was called to active duty in the fall of 1941. Ironically, he reported for active duty on Sunday, December 7.

His first assignment was at Fort Lewis, Washington, but shortly after arriving at that installation he received a top secret wire to report to Col. William "Wild Bill" Donavan in Washington, D. C.

When Prime Minister Churchill arrived in this country in early 1942 for conferences with President Roosevelt, then Lt. Sage was assigned to accompany him to the famed Shangri-La retreat in Maryland during the talks. His career with the OSS had begun.

A short time later he helped organize and start the secret agent school in Maryland which taught Allied personnel the fine art of sabotage and intelligence work. The school was an invaluable aid in helping the underground forces in the occupied areas.

In July, 1942 he was sent to England as a liaison to British intelligence. His primary job was to coordinate British and American agents in raids on the Norwegian coast and islands.

In November of that year he was recalled to this country to organize amphibious training operations. The result of his work were plainly seen in the successful invasion of the North African area by American forces.

Returning to the ETO he went to North Africa where he commanded an operational group assigned to gathering intelligence data. While in Tunisia with his unit he was captured by the Afrika Corps.

Behind, shrouded behind the lines in a box car, he made his escape. However, while working his way back toward Allied lines he was recaptured. This time he teamed with a South African pilot and attempted a second break for freedom. This plan, too, failed when the plane which they stole to make the get away did not get off the ground and once more Col. Sage fell into enemy hands. The Germans took no more chances on his escape and shipped him to a prison camp inside Germany. All this time Colonel Sage managed to keep his identity as an intelligence officer from his captors.

Another Escape

Three times he attempted to escape from the prison camp and three times he was captured. On his fourth attempt he finally gained his freedom. Working his way East he made contact with the Polish underground. His work with the Polish group proved invaluable.

About the time of his escape the Russian supported Lublin Government was established and he came into close contact with this Communist group. He learned firsthand the methods they employed which came to power over Poland at the secession of hostilities.

Gathering as much information as he could he once more worked his way towards the East. The Russians aided him in getting to Odessa where he boarded a ship to Port Said, Egypt. From there he was picked up by an OSS plane and flown to Italy where he refolished his old outfit until being recalled to Washington for a much needed and well earned rest.

Two months after his arrival back in the United States he was off on another mission. This job took him to North China as part of a team that enforced security on the atom bomb.

In 1946, Colonel Sage was named Chief, Field Contact Branch of the Civil Affairs Division in Germany, with the task of inspecting DP camps and reporting on conditions and recommending changes.

TIC Vehicles Get Safety Stickers

Tags cautioning Fort Benning drivers to be careful while backing their vehicles have been distributed to all major commands and staff units which operate Army vehicles.

"Get a guide or get out and look before backing," the tags advise. Issued at the request of the Infantry Center Safety Council, the tags are to be glued to the dashboards of all Army vehicles.

In its report recommending use of the stickers, the Safety Council pointed out that one-third of all vehicle accidents this year occurred when the vehicles were being backed.

These acts include Slim Allen and his high action horse, Dusk. The Williams family, famous for trick roping acts, and Tommy Medgrall and his sheepdog, "Cindy."

Clowns Bill McBrayer, Nelson Stout and Ralph Fields will be there to amuse the crowd with their antics, as well as to save lives. The most important job of rodeo clowns is distracting bulls and horses when a rider is thrown. Many riders and rodeo entrants owe their lives to these brave men who risk their lives to save others.

Spec Wright and his Dixie Playboys will provide Western music before each performance. Wright says his aggregation will begin playing each evening at 6:30.

from a National Safety Council report which revealed that 83 percent of all fatal accidents are caused by a driver violation.

A survey of Fort Benning violations indicates drivers break traffic regulations either because they have a faulty attitude towards safe driving or that they are poorly informed. The driver's course is designed to correct these deficiencies, say officials at the post.

The school, conducted under the supervision of the Provost Marshal's office, will consist of two two-hour sessions. Fundamentals of traffic safety, including discussion of traffic problems and safe driving habits and procedures, will be taught.

Traffic violators cannot be forced to take the course, the Safety Council pointed out in its report. However, permits allowing drivers to operate vehicles on the post can be rescinded. In order to have his permit reinstated the driver who violates traffic laws must be able to furnish a certificate showing he has successfully completed the course.

VA Urges Vets To Make Copies Of Discharge

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— The Veterans Administration has advised all veterans to have photostatic or certified copies made of their original discharge or separation papers for use in applying for veterans benefits.

Korean veterans will avoid delay in receiving their education and training benefits if they have their separation papers copied before the original is sent to the Armed Services for mustering-out payments. Both sides of the document must be submitted in photostatic copies.

The VA will accept photostats or certified copies of separation papers for most benefits. However, one exception is the VA-guaranteed loans. To apply for these the veteran must present his original discharge or separation papers.

Veterans who have been released from the Reserve since June 27, 1950, should submit the reports of separation they received at the time of service, since they do not get discharge papers.

Veterans who intend to start school are encouraged to apply to VA for determination of eligibility in order to receive payments.

Aerial Cameras Made For Jets

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— Development of a new, improved aerial camera for use in the jet planes has been announced by the Navy. The camera, designated CAX-1, weighs only 100 pounds, about one-fourth the size of aerial cameras now used. Its dimensions have been trimmed to fit the slim fuselage of the jet planes of today.

The CAX-1 has a high-speed film movement so photographs can record in pictures a ground object passing over at supersonic speeds. Pictures are taken quickly than with present lower cameras now in use.

The compact camera reported to have a focal length of 6 inches and operates from a very small magazine of film. The camera can be operated by remote control from the pilot's cockpit or by the navigator in the nose of the plane.

Airborne Cook Learned Art In European Hotel Kitchens

Food, a subject that comes in for much discussion in the Army, is getting nothing but compliments in Company A of the Airborne Battalion. For Pvt. Ludwig Peter Kohler from Berne, Switzerland, is cooking them up.

Private Kohler should be a good cook. He took his apprenticeship at the Hotel Bellevue Palace at Berne. There he learned all about meats, pastry cooking, cheeses, in fact almost everything to touch the gourmet's palate.

He immigrated to the United States in 1951, and finding jobs in hotels difficult, he got because of his lack of citizenship, he joined the Army, both to get to know Americans and to facilitate the attainment of his citizenship.

After seven months at Fort Benning, Kohler decided to become a paratrooper, and is now permanently assigned to the Airborne Battalion's receiving unit, Company "A".

Before coming to the United States, Ludwig spent some time in South America, visiting friends. While in Switzerland, on his afternoons and nights, he studied Roman history and German history and German philosophy.

Army routine isn't strange to Kohler. He was in the high-mountain infantry unit of the Swiss Army. In Switzerland, conscription is handled a little differently than in this country. The men take basic training and then spend about three weeks each year on a refresher course. Kohler says that there's no comparison between the food he ate in the Swiss Army and the food that he cooks now — the American food is much better.

When he returns to civilian life he will have the choice of at least three jobs, all in the kitchen. One at the Biltmore, Oklahoma City; another, appropriately enough, at the Switzerland Restaurant, Los Angeles; and the third at the Waldorf Astoria in New York.

$3 Million Saved By QM Storage Division Here

Three million dollars has been saved by the Fort Benning Quartermaster Storage Division during its first year of operation, it has been announced by Col. Ivan W. Parr, Infantry Center quartermaster, who initiated the program.

Col. Parr, in reviewing the operation prior to leaving for the Far East Command, pointed out that the Storage Division must anticipate requirements for troops and dependent family support and requisition, issue or sell 200,000 items of quartermaster stock.

When Col. Parr was named Infantry Center quartermaster in April, 1951, an excess of stock items had accumulated at Fort Benning. Since a national shortage existed in many of the items in excess, he returned these items to QM depots, making them available to the nation.

Capt. Curt Read Jr., Command officer of the Heavy Mortar Company, 30th Infantry received a second oak leaf cluster to his Bronze Star for meritorious service from Col. Frank L. Hickey, commander of the CTC during the review.

Since establishment of the Storage Division, the Fort Benning Quartermaster Section has eliminated 18 civilian jobs at a considerable saving in salaries. It also has returned 80 boxcar loads and 43 van loads of line items to classification depots for re-issue. These shipments totaled 2,903,989 pounds, and 3,600 items and substantially critical items to national stockpiles, in addition to releasing valuable warehouse space.

A separate cost of each activity is maintained and checked periodically with a view toward reducing the cost of operation. This system is of inestimable value in funding estimates under the new performance-type budget, say QM officials.

Gen. Pierce Set For OC Speech

Brig. Gen. James R. Pierce, assistant commander of the 101st Airborne Division, will be principal speaker tomorrow at graduation ceremonies for Infantry officer candidate class No. 27.

Gen. Pierce is a 1923 graduate of the United States Military Academy.

He also attended The Infantry School in July, 1931, and graduated from the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1937.

Gen. Pierce commanded the 194th Glider Infantry Regiment in France and Germany in 1944-5.

Following the war Gen. Pierce became deputy chief of the Bureau of Public Relations of the War Department General Staff until 1948 when he was transferred to Iran as chief of the Military Mission to the Iranian Grendarmerie. He assumed his present assignment at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., October, 1951.

He holds the Silver Star and Bronze Star Medal.

Col. Sherrard Gets TIS Post

Col. Robert G. Sherrard Jr. has been named Infantry School operations officer, succeeding Col. Stanley M. Lonning, who is on orders to the Far East Command.

Col. Sherrard has served as Defense Group chief of The Infantry School's Tactical Department since February, 1951.

A 1935 graduate of the United States Military Academy, he has had two other tours of duty here. He took The Infantry School's advanced course in 1938-40 and served with the 94th Antitank Battalion and the 894th Tank Destroyer Battalion from 1940-42.

During World War II, he was in Europe with the 42nd Infantry Division.

Col. Sherrard commanded a battalion of the 23rd Infantry Regiment, Second Division, in Korea in 1950.

The new operations officer is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the Air War College.

Three Sergeants Honored By Review

Master Sergeants Clifford E. Robinson, Headquarters Detachment, Combat Training Command; and Percy E. Rogers of the 18th Field Artillery Battalion and Sfc. William H. Brannon 550th Tank Company, were honored by a review of the 772nd Tank Battalion last week.

Since the sergeants are retiring from the Army after a combined total of 78 years service to the nation.

CTC Loses Spaniel To Discharge

Injuries, QB Problem For 505th Test

BY LESTER DINOFF

Sporting casts on their arms and legs, wearing adhesive and smelling of liniament and wintergreen, an injury-riddled 505th Airborne Red Devil football team will open its football season at Fort Bragg, N. C., against the 505th Airborne Saturday afternoon.

A 29-man squad, plus four coaches, will leave Fort Benning by air transport Friday morning, giving them a jump in active competition over the three other Fort Benning Football League squads.

Steelers To Try Benning Grid Great

BY CHARLIE JOHNSON

Frank Spaniel, one of the all-time greats of Fort Benning football, will get a hardship discharge from the Army Wednesday, and probably will join the Pittsburgh Steelers immediately as an offensive halfback.

The unexpected news threw a pall over the Combat Training Command drill field last week and robbed the post of seeing it's Most Valuable Player of 1951 in another full season of action.

Spaniel, 24-year old private first class who starred with Notre Dame and had played one season with the Washington Redskins, was originally scheduled for discharge this coming January.

Will Join Pros

He admitted Tuesday that he has been in close contact with the Steelers, but said he has not yet signed a contract.

When he completes his discharge processing Wednesday he will join the pros that night in Shreveport, La., where they are playing an exhibition game against the Chicago Bears.

Under pro grid rules, Spaniel is a free agent since he has been away from any club for a full season. His choice is the Steelers because he wants to make his home in Pittsburgh and attend law school there.

Bluer Than Blue

"I wish Frank all the luck in the world, but now I could use a little luck myself," moaned CTC Coach Cecil Dickerson.

It had a lot of surprise on the team, but although it was by no means a set spot, it was quite a bit added. In recent weeks, Dickerson has been working at quarterback with Spaniel, Jack Mackey, Hugh Pitcher and George Ditto. Doug Bell at full.

Combs Busted

There's no question that Frank's loss breaks up a potentially great combination. Junior Schmeling, a sub in '51 who starred in spurts, probably will get first chance at fob.

Spaniel's name was a synonym for passing football in 1951. Mimeograph fans from Columbus used to call the Bayonet sports desk with the query: "When does Spaniel play again?"

The money 190-pounder was mighty fine in the brief time he played. He had a 39-yard average on punts. Fifty-two of his 116 carries were complete.

Old Tradition

Perhaps more important than statistics is the fact that Spaniel was a real team player. He was the kind of a player around whom a team could be built. He was the kind of a player around whom a team could be built. He was the kind of a player around whom a team could be built.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

KNOCKING MEL BARTHOLOMEW'S punch as if it were as harmless as that served at a Sunday school picnic, Ray Lee last week convinced me that he is the best young fighter I've seen in the embryo stage of the game since Bobby Dykes. And that accolade doesn't come easy from this slightly frayed observer who has witnessed so many 'promising' young athletes that now ought to be sued for breach of promise, period, and no double talk intended.

I remember Dykes arriving in Miami, a gangling, awkward kid who looked slightly anemic. He still looks that way. I don't have a Ring Record book to give me the date, but I was pounding out sports verbiage for The Miami Herald at the time so it was in 1945, or at the latest, 1946. He was there as the poor relation stablemate of Jimmy Curl, a whiz-kid southpaw who later turned out to be a colossal bust, and he fought six and eight rounders.

What made you like Dykes was that he always won and he had an ace-in-the-hold punch, a necessity for a would-be champ, and a straight right in Bobby's case. He was fighting 10 rounders now and beating guys like Frankie Abrams and Chuck Taylor, who shortly after battled Sugar Ray Robinson for the welterweight crown. Dykes' first big win was when he beat Lester Felton. His first big loss was when Johnny Bratton tagged him a quickie and knocked him out in the first round. He went back to the bushes then and beat a lot more good club fighters. Finally, last winter he got Kid Gavilan in a title mill and almost trimmed the Cuban Hawk.

All of that covers seven years in which I saw him grow from a reckless kid to a mature championship contender, and sweated out his every answering of the bell as we became something like good friends. So it's a compliment from me to Ray when I put him with Dykes, and I hope the blond Kansas City youth is willing and can give it seven years of the same thing.

In the insidious muddle that is the boxing game today it may take that and lots more. Anything can stop him . . . an injury . . . climbing too fast . . . getting too big for his britches . . . a lack of that certain touch of class when the big test is really on . . . bum handling . . . management that has no connections to get him the fights that count at the right time. That last is sadly true. Boxing today is a closed sport. You don't get in just because you're good.

The point of all this, however, is that Lee looks as good to me today as Dykes did in 1946, or perhaps better, otherwise I might not see the comparison. He's had better schooling than Bobby did. Heck, he's been punching with gloves since he was eleven, thanks to his old man, a fair to better socker himself in the old days under the handle of Kid Lee. Ray's 22 now. He was his 'ace' punch, a lullaby left.

I believe he has heart. I saw him come up off the canvas to almost beat Leon Hall here last spring. Who is Leon Hall? Well, maybe nobody when you're talking Dykes and pros, but one night last spring he was a tiger who hit Lee some of the hardest punches I've ever seen. Ray has no fear, but he has respect; the difference is important. He met Bartholomew without flinching, but he wasn't so damn foolish as to try to outpunch a guy who has mixed with the best of them for five years.

He has 11 months more in the Army, but he has nothing to lose by that. Let him meet good club fighters that can be brought in here for post cards, and let him practice, practice and learn. Bartholomew had much to show him a week ago Wednesday. I hope he absorbed it. Don't let him get in over his head; the money isn't worth it now, and don't let him get into a fight unless he says he's absolutely ready mentally and physically. With all of that, it's still a long row to hoe.

RUNNING THE youth activities office at the Old Gym on a temporary basis is Sgt. Charles Taylor . . . Former U. of Georgia All-American center and Washington Redskins' lineman, Capt. Clyde Ehrhardt, was wed to Carolyn Dozier, of Albany, last week . . . Ehrhardt starred with Special Troops Rams in 1951, but is sticking to duty with the PT Committee this season . . . Unit A and R and SS officers can add a lot to the coming grid campaign by helping think up ideas for halftime extravaganzas at Doughboy Stadium.

CTC BASEBALL coach during the recent season, Lt. Col. James Reynolds, leaves soon for French Indo - China . . . The National High Power Rifle Championships still gaining publicity for Benning: Lt. Rufus Brock and Sfc. Wilburne Frizzle, of ISD and the Army team, appeared on two radio and three teevee shows in Atlanta Friday . . . Col. Frank Elder, 30th Infantry commander, was a shortstop at West Point and once played at Benning with the 29th Infantry as a second lieutenant.

OVERLOOKED IN giving credit for the success of the rifle championships was Col. Tom Masters, the statistician, who has helped on all shooting competitions at Benning . . . Medic PIC Wm. Wesley Pendleton handled the public address system for the stock car championships last week at Darlington, S. C. . . . Sfc. Walt Warrick, pitching hero of ISD's baseball pennant win, has re-enlisted.

ARU BASEBALL aces Tom Byrne, Darrel Stephens and Tyce Bonds are among the candidates for the Green Wave football team . . . Tyce will be seen on the Washington Redskins' games here via Channel 5 (WLTV) in Atlanta . . . Will Larry Gordon, of Special Services, quit the Army and enlist in the Foreign Legion or Columbus Minus the AL pennant crash this year?

New Sports Program for Officers Set

A new sports program, which calls for 100 hours of physical training and active participation in athletics, was initiated for the Advanced Officer's Course, said Maj. William Swalbach said Monday.

The course is broken down so that during the first 18 hours, students will learn how to instruct in conditioning exercises, [illegible] games, and [illegible] of the course. Emphasis is placed on the instructional methods in physical training and athletics.

Marching, running, grass drills, mass games, guerilla exercises, posture, log exercises, relays, combative exercises, physical fitness testing, swimming, soccer and other sports will be stressed during the nine two-hours periods.

Group Sports

The remainder of the course will be group participation in various athletics. Swimming periods will be set aside for those who need learn to swim.

The instructions will be given in the Briant Wells pool. Last year, 57 out of 58 students learned to covert in the water under last year's athletic program.

Versatile Athlete Assigned To AIOC

Second Lt. William C. Stroup, student in the Second Student Regiment, played for Memphis State College in football, basketball, and track for four years.

The officer is in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Six assigned to the 126th Company.

Another college athlete in the class is 2nd Lt. David W. Haslam who was on the University of Rhode Island track team.

4 Varsity Athletes In 126th AIOC Co.

Four University of Mississippi varsity athletes are pursuing the Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Six which is assigned to the 126th Company, Second Student Regiment.

Football players are 2nd Lt. David W. Salley, 2nd Lt. Paul C. Rodgers who won three varsity letters, and 2nd Lt. James W. Salley who played four years. The Salleys are brothers. Second Lt. Billy V. Renfroe was on the varsity basketball team.

CTC, 30th Infantry Regt. To Have Separate Sports

Combat Training Command, a familiar and frequently blamed name in post sports, won't mean quite the same thing in the future, Col. Frank Miller, commanding officer, said Tuesday.

In the future, the 30th Infantry Regiment, which composes 4/5 of the male part of CTC, will be identified by their special crests and things in CTC will not affect the 30th Infantry will use the Combat Training Command designation.

That means that in most future sports events there will be two distinct player or team entries from the Sand Hill crew. In the post horseshoe tournament, page 12 there will be a team from CTC and one from 30th Infantry Regt.

Double Trouble

Presumably, there's one thing a fan entering this setup in the Fort Benning Basketball League, where the CTC and 30th Infantry sports officers pitching pennies to select their post entries will be held this week, according to Lt. Richard Crowson, Special Services officer.

Jordan Wins Net Crown; Women's Title Go Sunday

The women's singles finals in the 1952 Officers Mess Fall tennis tournament is slated at 4 p.m. Sunday at the Main O. M. courts when Lt. Lonnie Jordan copped the men's singles crown last Sunday.

Jordan gained his fourth successive O. M. title by beating Capt. DeWitt Smith, 6-1, 6-3. He repeatedly advanced to the net to put away good volleys in the second set.

The former University of Alabama ace, now with the Airborne Department, is first seeded among 64 players in the Columbus City tennis championships being played this week at Wildwood Park.

Three Sets

Jordan's toughest battle in the Benning tournament was in the semifinal when he was extended to three sets by Maj. Leroy Stanley before winning, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Stanley is from Sapulpa, Okla. Smith, who also is playing in the Columbus tourney, is a former 17 of Maryland player. He beat Capt. Warren Drake, 1-6, 8-6, 7-5, in a gruelling semifinal match Saturday.

Sunday Slate

Mrs. Peggy Kampe meets Mrs. Betty King for the women's crown at 4 p.m. Sunday. All other tourney action will be completed this week.

The winner of the Men's Novice Singles Title was decided Sunday when Lt. William Hahn defeated Captain R. L. Kampe 8-2, 8-0. Both Hahn and Kampe were playing their first tennis tournament, and will receive silver engraved trophies.

was removed from the game with injuries on only one occasion.

The Vanderbrift, Pa., flash joined Notre Dame in 1946, but was almost immediately sidelined with a broken ankle. He was used solely as defense in 1946 and played safety in the memorable 26-7 win over Purdue that year.

Held Rebels

He blossomed as the starting left halfback in 1949 and scored the vital TD which gave the Irish a 6-6 tie at the half in their great game with North Carolina that year in New York. He scored again, before the Tar Heels were routed finally, 46-6.

He was with the Redskins in 1950 and was drafted into the Army shortly after that season.

Spaniel is married and has a baby son. He coached one of CTC's two basketball teams this past season and also played left field with the baseball team although he seldom had time for these sports in college with his heavy football schedule.

some experience in calling the signals from his Tennessee college days.

Mattocks, is the most experienced of the foursome, having been a first string quarterback on Tom Mesereau's eleven last year. Kennedy is playing his first Army ball also.

Would-Be Star

Discussing the other players that Phillips named, some of their names ring the bell and others drew a blank. Bucey is a former Ohio State freshman football star who, Phillips claims, would have been All-America if he continued his college education.

Dietz, Big Bill, as he is affectionately called, was All-Post fullback at Benning last season. Ems is a newcomer who is playing his first Army ball, but shows lots of promise.

Veteran Flankmen

Trado played for the Red Devils last season and is an able receiver. Beem, who weights over 200 pounds was on last year's squad. Hames and Fortner are defensive halfbacks, but could run with the best as offensive ends.

Fortner is playing his first football in the Army. Wallers is a former Boilermaker from Purdue having played on the junior varsity. Clark was with the 508th last season.

On last year's jaunt up to Fort Bragg, the 508th suffered a 14-6 loss at the hands of the 325th Airborne.

DEVIL DOINGS: Bill Buss was elected captain of the squad . . . PFC Charles Smith, team trainer and first aid specialist, will be married after his game to Miss Bill McKee West of Fayetteville, N.C. The whole team is invited. At present there are 53 men working out with the team . . . those not on the game squad are hoaging passes so they can drive to Bragg to provide a cheering section.

Rams Play Pair Before FB Start

BY LESTER DINOFF

The First Student Brigade-Provisional Medical Group Special Service Rams football team opens their 1952 season with outside games against Shaw Air Force Base Sept. 20 and Georgia Military College under the lights on Sept. 26.

According to Head Coach August Dielens, the Rams will be playing a tough opponent in Shaw Field, but the game will give him an idea of how far his squad can go. At this writing, the Rams stack up as one of the best teams in the Fort Benning Football League.

Special Troops has a good backfield and a solid line, but it appears they haven't got depth. Dielens has been wringing the crying towel for the last few weeks about the shortage of tackles and guards. Claiming that his team is working out wonderfully, Dielens praised two of his ballplayers. They were Frank Skinner and Phil Secrist.

Florida Flash

Skinner, playing his first Army football, is the leading ground gainer in the Ram scrimmage sessions. The 22-year-old ball handler played football for Dillard High in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He is 5-feet, 9-inches tall and weighs 169.

Secrist, operating in left half or as a fullback, is a former University of Tennessee player. He played for the Vols in 1948-49 and then cavorted in the Memphis State College backfield during 1950. He is 24, weighs 175 and is 5 foot-10 inches tall.

Two Teams

Dielens is planning on using the two-platoon system this year and has tenatively slated his two teams. The offensive lineups are: LE — Fahrenkrug, T — Allen, G — Bennets, C — Mouroulous, G — Bailey, T — Crum, RE — Oden, QB — Mathews, LH — Fangonis, RH — Stump, FB — Mackie.

The defensive lineups are: LE — Schulke, T — Melton, G — Pavlic, C — Stetler, G — Lohman, T — Harris, RE — Dreyspring, QB — Black, LH — Secrist, RE — Gibbong, FB — Howard.

Coach Jack Faubion, who can base his remarks on a full year's experience in the Fort Benning Football League, threw away the customary crying towel this week and admitted he's pretty doggone happy with his ISD-ASU Green Wave football team.

The Greenies get their season's baptism Saturday, Sept. 20, against Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., at the latter's field.

They have a major scrimmage on tap at 2:30 p.m. Friday which may tell a lot of tales, but Faubion put his finger on a good many of his 52 regulars in naming a tentative lineup Tuesday.

"My backfield is shaping up just fine, but I certainly won't have the line and defense I had last year with the Rams," allowed the former Oklahoma A & M fullback. "I'm fairly well satisfied with our depth. We'll have one work out a day from here on in."

PASSING ATTACK

The Greenies apparently are shaping up for quite an aerial attack built around quarterback Charlie Leonard and ends Angus Adams and Dennis Ensminger.

Leonard is shy on background, but heavy with his pitching flipper and doing neatly on signal calling chores according to Faubion. He tips the scales at about 190.

Adams, a six-foot, 190-pounder, played with Mississippi Southern and was with Ole Miss in 1949. Ensminger is a strapping 205-pounder.

The rest of the No. 1 backfield at present has Kenneth Hansen, 170, and Bob Boeh, 183 at halfbacks and Hal Manley, of U. of Alabama in 1950 at fullback. Boeh was an end with Faubion's 1951 Rams.

"I missed the boat with Boeh last year," the stocky mentor admitted. "Manley is very versatile. He may see service as a defensive end, too."

THE LINEUP

In the line, Faubion has Marion Taclaw, an improved veteran from '51, and Wayne McElroy, 220, of Kansas, at tackles. Robert Hunt, 185, of Wichita U. and Hal Long, 185, of Gastonia, N. C., are at guards.

The pivot chores are being handled by Melvin Giepert, 190, of New Orleans.

Defensively, the choice crew seems to be Neal McNeil and Manley at ends, Gordon Holland and Alvde Ahlborn at tackles, Boyd Felbaum and Otis Ransaur at guards, Bob Tindell and Ray Barnes line backers, Don Harper and Frank DePaolo, halfbacks and Larry Goines, safety.

GREENIE GRIST: The squad now numbers 44 men . . . Faubion takes quite a heckling from August Dielens' Rams; he drives by their practice field each morning and stops, like he's making notes of plays, etc . . . Felbaum, Stars-ing assignments are Harry Mapmerhaus, a fullback from U. of Detroit; Bob Dougherty, catcher for the ISD baseballers; and halfback Atom Borah from ST. Ken Quark, defensive center, and Art Kunkel, defensive center.

Servicemen Get Reduced Prices

A special reduced ticket charge will be permitted service men with or without uniform for the Troy State Teachers College football game against Tampa University at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, at downtown Memorial Stadium.

The tickets, at $1, each are on sale at the Special Services sports office in Doughboy Stadium. The game is a benefit contest staged by the Columbus Optimist Club for their boys' fund.

Jordan High School's national champion band will perform between halves along with the Troy music makers. It will be the first game of the season for both colleges.

This week the team in the TIC softball league with the most wins will be crowned as the Benning champions.

Bebe Smith 18-Hole Victor In Women's Golf

An outsider, Mrs. Bebe Smith, of Columbus, pulled a surprise by winning the 18-hole blind bogey in Fort Benning Women's Golf Association play last Friday at the Country Club.

The nine-hole competition was won by Fran Webb, of Benning.

Poker-hand play is on tap this Friday while play also continues in the ladies' ringer tournament. Newcomers to the post are invited to participate.

The ladies are getting in final qualifying strokes this week for the Elebash Trophy tournament which opens next Wednesday at Columbus Country Club. This is an annual competition between Fort Benning and Columbus women.

Registration for the event can be made with the pro here or at the Columbus Country Club.

Nine Errors Give I Co. 9-8 Victory

CTC's I Company softballers came from behind to score a 9-8 9-8 win over Headquarters & Headquarters Company in TIC Intramural Softball, capitalizing on nine errors that the Headquarters players mishandled.

Behind 8-0 going into the third inning, Item Company took full advantage of the mishaps scoring all their runs in the third and fourth frames. Isaac Davis was the winning pitcher while William Rinehour was charged with the loss.

DeCordova Wins, Ray Beat By Cut

They tiirn 'em out tough at The Infantry Center!

A pair of veteran fighters from New Orleans found that out last week to the delight of 1,712 fans who rushed Gowdy Field for Tex Denning's first pro boxing card under the stars.

Buck DeCordova, former 9 9 5 ℔ light heavy and heavyweight champion in 1950 and '51, respectively, knocked out Ray Banks, 194½, of New Orleans, in 1:27 of the second round.

Ray Lee, a paratrooper from First Student Regiment, was ahead on points of veteran contender Mel Bartholomew, also of New Orleans, when a cut eye forced him to retire in 1:40 of the eighth round.

Jimmy Gagnon, of 508th, only other soldier on the card, stopped Ken Thomas, 167, of Columbus, in 1:42 of the fourth and last round of a preliminary.

DeCordova, now out of the Army and living in Columbus, caught Banks off balance with a short right to the mid-section and crashed the big fellow through the ropes and to the ground.

Banks required minor hospital treatment.

Lee, at 149 pounds, surprised his most ardent fans by staying with Bartholomew, a 25-year old who has had more than 100 fights in four years against guys like feather champ Sandy Saddler.

Third Pro Fight

This was Lee's third pro fight, and his first ten-rounder. The Bayonet scoreboard had him ahead on points 27-25 at the end, or four rounds to two with one even. This tallied favorably with the official cards.

It was an old cut over Lee's left eye which opened. Whether he could have held onto his lead in the last three rounds is questionable, however.

The kid was beginning to blow and Bartholomew was beginning to score, especially with a booming right hand which jarred Ray's head several times just before the end.

Going Great

Lee shot his combinations well and backed Bartholomew into the corner several times. He wisely avoided slugging it out with Mel who doesn't hurt easily.

Ray was obviously bothered by Bartholomew's clinching, use of his head inside and raking gloves laces — all accepted skullduggery among workaday pros.

It was probably a butt which opened the eye.

CTC Ring Boss Grooms 16 Men For Showdown

Combat Training Command boxing fortunes are slow in starting this year, but the Commanders will be there aplenty when the point scoring begins to count for the post-amateur ring championship.

That's the opinion of Lt. Nat Troutt, former U. of Wichita slugger, who is now coaching the CTC mitt crew. Troutt has a 16-man squad going through daily drills.

Bouts Slated

Troutt is planning to inaugurate a series of inter-unit exhibition training bouts with the 508th Airborne. These would be staged with 16-ounce gloves under the lights at the CTC gym.

The Commander ring mentor won the Kansas Golden Gloves light heavyweight crown in 1950, but stopped action soon after because of a head injury. He graduated from Officer Candidate School four months ago.

Kiley Wins Feature Over Hiller At Post

Ray Kiley, 129, of 506th punched a little harder and more often than Jim Hiller, 130, of Infantry School Detachment, to gain a split decision in the top bout on Tuesday night's amateur boxing card at Fort Benning.

Some 1,200 fans watched the six bouts at Briant Wells Field House.

In another much-heralded test, Williams Russell, 143½, of ASU Provisional Group, connected quickly with a sharp right which cut Milton Marcie's eye.

The 145-pound CTC slugger was stopped by Referee Jim Mullin with Russell gaining a TKO in 50 seconds of round one.

In the night's most spectacular bout, Tillman (The Tiger) Davis, 156, of First Student Regiment, knocked out Al Hawthorne, 154, of ASU, in two minutes of the second.

Hawthorne was decked twice in the first and twice more in the second and never had a chance to get set against the boring tactics of Davis.

In other bouts, Robert Collins, 143, of HSD, decisioned Byron Mortensen, 142, HSD; August Wolf, 131, 508th, TKO'd Fred Datemasch, 122, ASU, in 1:40 of three; and Rollen Martin, 125, First S.R., decisioned Matthew Pradia, 126, of 508th.

Forfeit Gives Second SR Win Over Lawson Field

The Second Student Regiment softball team was awarded a forfeit win over Lawson Air Force base, Thursday night. It was the eighth win against as many defeats in TIC league play for the Rockets.

Air Force Probes 'Saucer' Mystery

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Air Force and the press got together recently in the Pentagon to delve more deeply into the baffling mystery of the Flying Saucers.

Maj. Gen. James A. Samford, Chief of AF Intelligence, led a delegation of top AF authorities ready to answer any questions within the realm of reason.

The evidence was on the board. Since 1947, between 1,000 and 2,000 persons reported that they had seen "objects in the sky shaped like a saucer." The Air Force carefully checked each one. About 80 per cent of the sightings were easily explained.

The remaining 20 per cent provide the mystery. What are they? Where do they come from—Are the visitors from another planet? Secret weapons of the U. S.? Or the U.S.S.R.? Or are they merely manifestations of mass hysteria?

Gen. Samford poured damp water over the theory that they are vehicles, missiles on even material objects.

"These pehnomena," he said, "according to the various reported sightings, would have to possess unlimited power and no mass. No material object fits this description." This, of course, was only an opinion, the General cautiously qualified, but it reflected a well-thought out opinion based on many bits of information.

Mystery Blips

As for the mysterious blips on the radar screen, AF officials offered some revealing facts. Radar screens, they said, have been known to pick up such incongruous articles as ionized clouds, flocks of ducks, ice formations and other possibly natural phenomena.

Temperature inversion — when it's warmed in the air than on the ground—also does strange things to a radar screen, they added. As an example, they recounted the case of the night-fighter pilot who "locked" on to what he thought was an unnatural object. He tracked it until he discovered that what he was tracking was in reality, on the ground. He pulled out just in time.

Top physicists, astronomers and other technical people are working continuously to get to the bottom of the mystery. The AF has in production a camera with a light-reflecting lens which it hopes will eventually clear up some of the bewilderment.

As it now stands, the Air Force agrees, no known measuring devices are available to adequately explain the phenomena.

Citing the fact that strange objects in the sky have been seen since biblical times, Gen. Samford acknowledged the necessity of giving them "adequate but not frantic attention."

Thus, the only agreement reached at the conference was not what these mysterious 20 per cent unexplainables were but what they might be.

Stained Glass Windows To Go In TIC Chapel

Three stained glass windows now are being built for The Infantry Center Chapel at a cost of $2,900.

They will be the first stained glass windows ever installed in the chapel, according to Col. Lexington O. Sheffield, Infantry Center chaplain. They were purchased with funds from special gifts and offerings donated at Sunday services.

A dedication service will be held soon after they are installed, Chaplain Sheffield said. The service will be built around the three theological virtues depicted in the windows: Faith, Hope and Charity.

The three windows will be installed in the chancel.

Manufactured by the Rambusch Decorating Company of New York City, the stained glass has been hand blown in a harmony of pale tints and tones to eliminate glare from the sun which shine through the chapel a greater part of the day.

The main curved window will be covered by 36 square feet of glass and will show a centurion beside a Roman building under the inscription from Hebrews 6:19: "An anchor of the soul sure and steadfast."

The smaller left window will depict justice, hope and prudence, and the right window will show temperance, charity and fortitude."

The Rambusch Company has installed stained glass in chapels at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. Fort Slocum, N. Y., and Sampson Air Force Base, N. Y.

Lieutenants Hear Gen. Pierce Talk

A good Infantry officer is honest, decent, dignified and humble, an airborne general last week told 132 new second lieutenants at graduation ceremonies of Officer Candidate Class No. 27.

Brig. Gen. James S. Pierce, assistant commander of the 101st Airborne Infantry Division, also said that in order to be successful an Infantry officer must "exercise the qualities of good leadership."

General Pierce urged the officers to "develop a feeling of mutual competance among your men."

"Devotion To Troops"

"A devotion to your troops, human understanding and professional competence go hand in hand in making the successful platoon leader," he declared.

"If you are a good leader," he added, "you will not fail to show your sincere sorrow for casualties in combat. I know you will find that on the battlefield there is no selfishness among American soldiers," the Camp Breckenridge, Ky., officer said.

General Pierce also warned the new officers that they must get to know their men as individuals. "It's important that you know each man individually, not as a serial number," he added.

Honor graduate was Ferdinand Q. Epps, of New Zion, S. C. Lt. Epps' next assignment will be with the Eighth Infantry Division at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Major Erman Shaffer, chief of Fort Benning's Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen Kane, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

Former SHAPE Staff Member Tells Views on Europe Situation

People in Europe are aware of the tense situation that exists there, but they know what to do about it, claims a former member of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff there.

Maj. Steve W. Mulkey, now a student in The Infantry School's advanced course, came here from Paris, where he was a member of Eisenhower's personal staff at Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe from April 1951 to June 1952.

"Those in Europe feel we must fulfill our NATO commitments to stabilize the national economies of our Allies there to resist aggression or invasion," Major Mulkey declared.

Morale is high among U. S. troops and their families in Europe, according to the former SHAPE member.

"Although Russia's capabilities are thought to be greater than our own in Europe, her intentions are pure guesswork and our troops can put up a stiff fight in a case of invansion," he stated.

Gen. Eisenhower was a "wonderful ambassador" for Europe, his former public information officer reported.

"He was tremendously popular with Europeans, because he tried sincerely to build their morale, trust and confidence, in addition to trying to fulfill purely military obligations."

Servicemen's families in Europe are fairly secure, according to Major Mulkey.

"They have the feeling of sitting under the guns of a powerful nation, but they are confident in the strength of our own and our Allies' troops.

"The price of living is higher in France than it is here," he says, "but American - built housing for military dependents has helped to alleviate the situation."

This tour of duty marks the third at Fort Benning for the Arkansas-born major.

He attended the Infantry School's basic officers course in 1944, following graduation from the United States Military Academy, and was again at Fort Benning in 1944 - 45 with the 71st Infantry Division.

Major Mulkey fought in Europe in 1945 with the 66th Infantry Regiment of the 71st Division.

Before going to his second assignment in Europe, he was aide-de-camp to Gen. Omar N. Bradley.

Finance Corps Hits High Gear In MOP Pay

WASHINGTON,—(AFPS) — The Army Finance Corps is operating in high gear to service mustering-out pay claims of veterans. But the receipt of claims in the past few weeks has fallen from 13,000 a week to less than 9,000.

The mass production assembly line process now being used by the Army can turn out 10,000 claims a day if the veterans keep their claims coming in rapidly. It takes volume, though, to keep an organization of this type running.

Therefore, all veterans are urged to take full advantage of the MOP and submit their forms as fast as possible. At present, the Army has only enough to keep the mass production at full rate for about two weeks.

The percentage of incomplete forms which had to be returned to the claimant fell from 33 per cent to 29 per cent in one week, which marks an improvement that may help keep the machinery going full pace.

A total of 55,000 checks has been mailed to veterans out of 235,000 claims received. More checks are being sent out at the rate of approximately 10,000 a day as applications complete their four-to-six week period in the assembly line.

Three Hospitals Training Practical Nurses For Army

(ANF) — The back - to - school trek this fall will find more than 10st soldiers and WACs studying practical nursing at three Army medical centers.

New courses will open in October at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco and Fitzsimmons Army Hospital, Denver, Colo. Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D. C., will continue the course it started three years ago. Medical nursing program in order to relieve the acute shortage of registered nurses. Practical nurses can give bed-side care to sick and wounded patients, take temperatures and blood pressures and do other routine tasks. In that way, registered nurses can spend more time on jobs which require professional skill.

Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, commanding general of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, said the surgeon general's decision to open two additional practical nursing schools spoke well for the way soldiers and Wacs "have pioneered in practical nursing under my command."

Acute Shortage

"America, as well as the Army," he said, "has been faced with an acute shortage of nursing personnel. In 1949, the Army surgeon general chose Walter Reed Army Hospital as the site for a school in practical nursing called the Advanced Medical Technician course. Course.

"The contribution made by graduates of this school has been outstanding. Many are serving overseas in forward areas in hospital trains, evacuation and station hospitals, assisting Army nurses in giving the highest quality of nursing care. In augmenting the nursing service, these technicians have become a most welcome asset in the field of medicine."

Graduates of the practical nursing schools will help care for soldiers and their dependents in Army hospitals and dispensaries in this country and overseas.

The 11-month course — taught almost exclusively by Army nurses —, a combination of class - room instruction and on-the-job training.

Students learn how to take blood pressure, temperature, pulse and respiration. The instruction includes methods of preparing patients for operations and how to assist registered nurses in surgery. Trainees also study ways to set up a delivery room for obstetrics patients and how to care for newly born babies of military dependents.

Diet Therapy

Dieticians teach the students the value of diet therapy, and the trainees learn how to prepare and serve special diets.

Practical nursing trainees also learn how to give blood transfusions and measure medications. They study methods of protecting themselves from contagious diseases while working with that type of patient and learn how to assist nurses in giving electric and other types of special treatments.

Qualifications for the course include certification of a high school education and previous training as medical technicians. The course is open to enlisted men and women with at least the grade of private first class. Applicants must have at least one year's service remaining after completion of the course.

Grogan's Gadget Saves Tax $$

Grogan and his gadget are saving tax dllars here.

J. C. Grogan, transportation warehouse superintendent, has invented a gadget that secures huge Army trucks on rail-way flat cars with less material than was used in previous methods.

Transportation officers here figure the gadget saved the government $320 during the first three months it was used.

Before "Grogan's Gadget," heavy trucks were secured on flat cars by running heavy wire through holes in the wheels and fastening the wire to the bed of the flat car. This system worked all right, but the new trucks the Army is receiving no longer have holes in the rims for the heavy wire to pass through.

When the problem of tying down these new trucks was confronted Grogan came up with his gadget which is designed like this: .

Scrap Metal Used

A piece of scrap metal, eight and one-half inches by one and one-half inches, has holes to fit over wheel lugs while the other end has a larger hole in it and is bent it an angle.

The piece of metal is placed on wheel lugs at one end and secured by lug nuts. A piece of heavy cable, secured on the bed of the flat car, is run through the other hole.

It takes two of Grogan's gadgets" for each wheel. One secures the wheel from the front and the other from the rear.

"Grogan's gadget" saves about 50 pounds of wire in securing each truck. Transportation officials say this means about $4 saved from the old method on each vehicle shipped from this Army post by flat car.

Grogan, a veteran of four years Army service, came to work at Fort Benning in 1941. He was first assigned to the Quartermaster Section as assistant warehouse foreman. In 1949 he wa transferred to his present job.

'Citizenship Day' Proclaimed

Yesterday marked the first anniversary of "Citizenship Day," a day set aside by joint resolution of the 82nd Congress commemorating the formation and signing on Sept. 17, 1787, of the Constitution of the United States.

On July 25, 1952, President Truman issued a proclamation directing the "appropriate officials of the Government to display the flag of the United States on all public buildings on Wednesday, Sept. 17, and urging the people of the nation to display the flag on that day at their homes and other suitable places."

The proclamation further stated: "I also urge Federal, State and local officials as well as patriotic, religious, civic, educational and other interested organizations to arrange for appropriate ceremonies on this day in which all people may join to the end that both native - born and naturalized citizens may have a fuller understanding of rights and responsibilities as citizens . . ."

Citizenship Day is the result not only of this resolution and proclamation, but of certain motivating forces that made its observance necessary. One of these deals with the time in which we are living and the enemies we face.

The latter not only are ruthless in their methods to destroy America from within, but have made great use of propaganda as a weapon. Another destructive force has been a subtle and well-organized assault on the high moral principles which played such an important part in the writing of our Constitution. Accompanying this has been an attack on our patriotic institutions such as schools, churches, civic clubs, benevolent institutions, business organizations and even our way of living.

But even if there were no Russia and no Communists and no enemies from without, a "Citizenship Day" still would be highly desirable to remind our citizens — especially our young people — of their rights, privileges and great heritage of being Americans.

We have several holidays that celebrate our historical and military achievements and which observe the birthdays of our great patriots, but none, other than the Fourth of July, which reminds us of our Constitutional rights and privileges.

Citizenship Day is not a holiday; it is merely a day of thought and observation on the achievements that have made us a great nation, the world's most prosperous nation, and at the same time, the most completely free nation on earth.

It is also an appropriate time to ask the question: Are you being a good citizen? Do you go to the polls or vote by absentee ballot on election day? Are you interested in maintaining good government? Webster defines a citizen as a "person, native or naturalized, who owes allegiance to a government and is entitled to protection from it. But, as a leading speaker warns, "In order to get and keep the kind of government we need and want, we must take an interest in it . . . it is a two-way responsibility . . . We must sacrifice some of our time, energy, efforts and money to get and keep the blessings of good government.

Let's Go Back To School

Now that September has rolled around again, and the kids are once more enrolled in school, perhaps it would pay us all to consider going back to school ourselves.

Many soldiers have won high school diplomas from their home states while in the Army, performing full duty. The Army offers almost unlimited facilities for improving and furthering the education of the individual soldier.

The fact that you are in the Army does not mean that you can stop worrying about education; on the contrary, rank, duty assignments, and many other intangible benefits often revolve about the educational status of a soldier.

Here at The Infantry Center, the place we proudly call "The World's Most Complete Army Post," there are many facilities available for those who want to lift themselves up by their own efforts.

The Army Education Center here will help you in winning your high school diploma, earning college credits, or completing grammar school. Through the Army's General Educational Development tests, you can earn credits showing that you have the equivalent education of a college second-year man.

The University of Georgia Off-Campus Center here and in Columbus is open to all soldiers who have completed high school. The center here was set up solely because of the large number of soldiers attending the downtown center, to make the facilities more readily available to those who want to take advantage of them. However, the Columbus center in Jordan High School is open to soldiers, too.

Although most of the college courses offered at the two centers concern work normally undertaken in the first two years upper class courses are offered.

Extension courses offered through the United States Armed Forces Institute, commonly referred to as USAFI, provide another means of adding to your qualifications. Hundreds of universities and colleges cooperate with the Armed Services in providing extension and correspondence courses; self - teaching studies that some educators acclaim as the best way to learn.

So if you want to win your high school diploma, earn another stripe, or just know the satisfaction of increasing your knowledge, our advice to you soldier, is impersonate the kids and go back to school.

VA Tells Application Procedure For K-Vet Bill

One of the most common requests received by the Veterans Administration from ex-servicemen and women is information on applying for training under the K-Vet Bill. The VA has issued the following answer: "Veterans can obtain an application form at any VA office. Fill out the first five sections completely—be sure to include your program of training—and send the application, along with a photostatic copy of your discharge, to your VA regional office. If VA approves the application, it will send you a "Certificate for Education and Training," which you present at your school when you enroll."

Report On "Yearbook of American Churches"

BY CHAPLAIN (MAJ.)
ROBERT B. HERNDON

The purpose of this article is to give our readers a report on the Church membership throughout our nation as a whole and a picture of the religious activities in the Third Army area and at Fort Benning in particular.

We believe there is a genuine interest existing in the different religious faiths in America. We support this claim by the following information given from the 1952 "Yearbook of American Churches" which will soon be off the press.

Nearly three of every five Americans are members of an organized religious body—a new high in the history of the USA. The Yearbook reports a new total membership of 86,673,005 in 252 religious bodies in 1951, an increase of 1,842,515 over the previous year.

Both Catholics and Protestants reflected a gain above U. S. population growth. In the survey Catholics numbered above 29,000,000 and the Protestant sects totaled 52,000,000. Judaism counted 5,000,000 persons; the Eastern Orthodix, 1,658,000; Old Catholic and Polish National Catholic sects, 337,000; and Buddhism, 75,000. The membership of the Catholic Church increased from 28,605,003 in 1926 to 29,241,590 in 1951, and the Protestant population rose from 31,511,701 in 1926 to 52,162,432 in 1951.

According to the Yearbook, there are 15 Protestant denominations with a membership of 1,000,000 or more. The Methodist Church has the largest membership with more than 9,000,000. Next is the Southern Baptist Convention, USA, Inc., with 7,373,000; followed by the National Baptist Convention of America, the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Presbyterian Church, USA; the United Lutheran Church in America, the International Convention of Disciples of Christ, the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod; and the American Baptist.

A recent report for the month of August 1952 from the Third Army Chaplain gives the Chaplains' activities throughout the Army area as follows: 82,388 soldiers and dependents attended Sunday services during August; 17,985 attended weekday services; 8,498 soldiers, children and parents attended Sunday School throughout the Army area.

At Fort Benning where we have eleven Chaplains—8 Protestant, 2 Catholic, and 1 Jewish—we had an attendance of more than 19,455 for the month of August, more than 1,084 attended weekday services. The services at each of the Masses at the Post Catholic Chapel, the eleven o'clock Protestant service, and at the 1st Officer Candidate Regiment at Harmony Church are filled to capacity. Many times there is only standing room available. Under the leadership of the Post Jewish Chaplain the Jewish services and activities are well attended.

We would like to strengthen the moral fibre of Fort Benning through increased Chapel attendance. We have several Chapel choirs on the post, the best I have ever heard in churches, military or civilian.

We have more than 300 children attending Sunday School each week on the post. This gives us a great opportunity and with the shortage of Chaplains many of these activities are carried on by volunteer workers who give their time, energy, and talent. We Americans have much for which to be thankful. Let us express this thankfulness to Almighty God through our attendance at public worship and accept the responsibility which is ours as a Christian nation.

CTC Opens Gas Chamber For CBR Defense Review

Seasoned combat veterans and trained soldiers of the Combat Training Command began review in the defense against chemical, biological and radiological attack last week by filing through the new giant 5th Gas Chamber equipped with grotesque but efficient gas masks.

Supervised by a team of instructors headed by 1st Lt. Theron L. Brewer, Second Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, the men were shown what protection the mask afford against tear gas. They learned the same protection might be expected from the more lethal war gasses, provided the proper precautions are taken.

"Our team can handle about 100 men per hour," Lt. Brewer explained; "and just about that number has been coming to us for training since we opened the gas chamber."

Everyone going through the exercise is taught how to adjust the fit of his mask, check for leaks or malfunctions, and how to clean and store the mask.

Lt. Jack J. Moye, 30th Inf Regt Chemical, Biological and Radiological Officer, said that he expected 100 per cent of CTC personnel will have gone through the chamber by the end of this week.

"Our team has been operating eight hours a day", Lieutenant Moye commented, "and everyone in CTC should have had an opportunity to go through the gas chamber."

Tactless Reds Skinned By Army Redskin Tactics

(ANFP)— War paint and the bow-and-arrow may have gone out with Sitting Bull—but a group of 2d Infantry Divison soldiers in Korea proved that Indian battle tactics still are effective.

Pfc. Edwin Moore, of Erie, Pa., and Sfc. Rodney Dorwin, of Albuquerque, N. M., were setting out flares in front of one of their company's outposts when Moore spotted a footprint.

In the best Hiawatha fashion he analyzed it and, with a sniff, informed Dorwin that it was a fresh print.

Despite Dorwin's scepticism, the men cautiously tried to pick up the trail. They found another track and followed its direction toward a rock formation on the hillside.

The soldiers were set on the trail when an enemy soldier jumped out from the rocks. The Chinese soldier faced them with a grenade and gestured to them to surrender.

The men thanked, with Dorwin opening up on the Communist with his pistol. The Chinese soldier dodged behind a rock and reappeared with a burp gun—a fast-firing sub-machinegun.

But he never got a chance to bring it to bear on the Americans, for while Dorwin and Moore were tracking the enemy, another soldier had circled to a position high up the hill.

From his Indian-like ambush position in the rocks he shot down the threatening Red with a well-timed burst from his carbine.

Main Post Fire Hydrants Repaired

Forty-seven substandard fire hydrants in the Main Post area are being renovated at a cost of $10,000, it was announced by Major General Edward T. Williams, Commanding General, Fort Benning. The work is to be completed by Dec. 1.

Forrest E. McKinney, Water and Gas Branch Chief, Utilities Division, Directorate of Engineering and Housing, said the hydrants are being replaced with new ones of the Underwriters Specification, Clow Company of Columbus.

Top Shooters Win Badges

Qualification badges have been presented to 106 students in light and heavy weapons course No. 20 as a continuation of the award policy in the Second Student Regiment.

The regiment has inaugurated a policy, believed to be the first of its kind on the post, of awarding badges for high marks in firing various weapons.

Capt. William P. Lee, commander of the First Battalion, Second Student Regiment, presented awards to seven men judged outstanding.

M.Sgt. Lloyd R. Daniel was high man for all weapons with a total score of 1,230. High man for the M-1 rifle was Sfc. Victor P. Cellipuca, who posted a 545 mark.

Other top men were Sfc. Billy G. Rhoades, carbine, 254; Sgt. Luis E. Paredez, 75 mm recoilless rifle, 139; and Sfc. David V. Bowman, 57 mm recoilless rifle 137.

Four men tied for top honors with the Browning automatic rifle, scoring 161 points each. They were Cpl. Ronald L. Dunn, Sfc. Thomas C. Edwards, Sgt. James R. Mathews, and Sfc. James E. Powell.

The students are members of 106th Company.

BECAUSE YOU'RE MINE — The hit title tune of Mario Lanza's new film is being proclaimed as greater that Lanza's top seller "Be My Love." Backing up "Mine" is "The Song the Angels Sing," also from the movie. "Song" is a lilting ballad perfect for Mario.

I SHOULD CARE — Ralph Flanagan, riding high on the best-seller list with his "Balboa", follows it up with a revival of a ballad from '45. Vocalist for "I Should Care," Harry Prime. Flipside is the Erskine Hawkins instrumental, "Tippin' In," brought up-to-date by Ralph.

NAUGHTY WALTZ — April Stevens scores another sultry hit in a unique discing of a 1920's favorite. The husky Stevens voice, combined with superb backing by Henri Rene, comes through with twice the power by virtue of a multi-tape gimmick. Flip is "I Like To Talk To Myself", a solo by April.

FROM THE TIME YOU SAY GOODBYE . . . Vocalist Dinah Shore gives one of those effortless performances that have long been her specialty in this English tune, a reminder of the long-time favorite, Now Is The Hour. Flipside is West Of The Mountains (East of The Sea), a colorful and lilting tune in waltz rhythm, sung by Dinah and chorus.

FAITH and DO YOU CARE . . . Two medium tempo love ballards, made doubly attractive by the deep-down voice stylings of Vaughn Monroe. The Moonmaids assist Monroe in Do You Care.

DELICADO and FRANCESCA . . . A special treat for music lovers who want their favorites played by a big, skilled and expertly conducted organization. The Boston Pops, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, play these two items in the Latin American idiom.

I WENT TO YOUR WEDDING Hank Snow, the singing ranger, and his Rainbow Ranch Boys have the country and western version of this beautiful new hit love song. This tune is streaking to top hitdom by virtue of a tremendous Pop discing by Steve Gibson and the Original Red Caps. Flipside of Hank's new recording is The Boogie Woogie Flying Cloud, typically terrific in the "moving on" manner.

LOCAL BEST SELLERS Popular: (1) You Belong To Me with vocal by Jo Stafford; (2) Auf Wiedersehn Sweetheart sung by Vera Lynn, and (3) Wish You Were Here with Eddie Fisher. Hillbilly and Western: (1) Back Street Affair, Webb Pierce; (2) Indian Love Call by Slim Willet and (3) Jambalaya (On the Bayou), Hank Williams.

Hurricane Data Explained By Lawson Weatherman

(Editor's Note: This article was prepared for The Bayonet by Capt. Robert E. Le Sueur, station weather officer at Lawson Air Force Base, for the purpose of clarifying and explaining reports in newspapers and over the radio pertaining to hurricanes.)

The months ranging from August to October are generally considered to be the tropical storm and hurricane season for the southeast. Although Fort Benning is not considered to be in the hurricane belt, it is very possible to have near-hurricane force winds around the storm pass near the post.

The hurricane itself is developed in three successive stages. The first stage is termed a "tropical depression" and is marked on weather charts from reports received from ships and planes in flight. The winds vary up to 25 knots; and the storm is comparable to the afternoon thundershowers here during the summer months. The next stage is called the "tropical storm" stage. The storm is named, the disturbance increases to cover a larger area, and winds may range up to 65 knots. At this stage, weather reconnaissance B-29's are dispatched to the area to obtain a "fix" on the storm. Aircraft reconnaissance continues every six hours after that throughout the life of the storm.

The third and most dangerous stage is the hurricane—minimum winds are 65 knots, and may reach as high as 165 knots, or about 190 miles per hour. However, these winds extend only 50 to 75 miles from the center, or "eye" of the hurricane. In the eye itself, the winds are dead calm, and the sea is glassy smooth.

The hurricane warning center for this area is at Miami, Fla., and all bulletins and warnings are issued from that office. Other weather stations in the Southeast act only as relay stations and advise using agencies at military installations as to what conditions they can expect with regard to high winds and heavy rains. Since the weather station is in operation 24 hours a day, adequate warnings are always given when a hurricane approaches.

Sgt. Completes Rotation Cycle

(ANF)—An Army sergeant has been playing ring-around-the-rosy with the rotation system—he replaced his replacement's replacement in Korea.

Sergeant First Class Bernard R. Sypniewski, of Newark, N. J., was communications chief for the 14th Engineer Combat Battalion when the outfit arrived in Korea in July, 1950.

He was rotated to the United States in September, 1951, and turned his job over to SFC William F. Kennedy, of Galesburg, Ill. Kennedy, in turn, was replaced by SFC Gale Hill, of Arthur, N. D.

When Hill's rotation time came around this year, he turned over the job to—Sypniewski. The outfit's original communications chief had grown tired of state-side duty and had volunteered for another Korean tour.

Memorial Plaque

The memorial plaque reads: "Faith School. Named in honor of Lt. Col. Don C. Faith, Jr., Congressional Medal of Honor, who, in his youth, resided on this post (1932-35). The precepts learned during these school years guided him in the service of his country, for which he gave his life near Hagaru-ri, North Korea, 1 December 1950."

More than 400 people, including Columbus Mayor B. F. Register, Muscogee and Chattahoochee County school officials and commanding officers of all major units at Fort Benning, were present for the ceremony.

Second Makeup Class Tomorrow

The second in a series of the Fort Benning Little Theatre's theatrical makeup classes will be held Friday at 7:55 p.m. in the basement of the Main Theater.

Mrs. Joe B. Lamb, makeup committee chairman, is conducting the classes which were designed for those interested in becoming active in the makeup phase of the Little Theatre.

Personnel with previous makeup experience also were invited to attend the classes, scheduled for Sept. 19, 22 and 25. Interested persons are requested to report to the rear door of the Main Theater not later than 7:55 p.m.

The new Little Theatre production, "Ten Little Indians," is scheduled Oct. 9-10 at the Main Theater. Mrs. Lamb stressed the fact that the makeup committee has not yet been selected, and volunteers are needed to work with her on this production.

A graduate of the Louisville (Ky.) College of Beauty Culture, Mrs. Lamb also attended an advanced hairstyling school in New York and studied makeup techniques under Ivan of Hollywood in Louisville.

She has been on the makeup committee of all three previous Fort Benning Little Theatre productions, including "Over 21," "The Women" and "Petticoat Fever." She was appointed makeup chairman of the Governing Committee of the Little Theatre, replacing Mrs. A. M. Leavitt.

Further information concerning the makeup classes may be obtained by calling Mrs. Lamb at Columbus 3-8976.

Gen. Murrow Set For Speech

Approximately 106 Infantry officer candidates will be commissioned second lieutenants tomorrow at graduation exercises in the Main Theater.

Brig. Gen. Lacey V. Murrow, Lawson Air Force Base commander, will be principal speaker.

The graduating candidates, who began training April 11, are members of class No. 28.

Gen. Murrow was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps in 1926.

Before entering the service he attended Washington State College where he received bachelor of science and master of science degrees in civil engineering. He also did graduate work at the University of Washington.

During World War II, Gen. Murrow flew 67 combat missions in the South Pacific, Europe, and the Asiatic-Pacific theater.

Following the war, he was chief of transportation at U. S. Forces headquarters in China before entering the Air Force active reserve in July, 1948. He was recalled to active duty in May, 1951, as commanding general of the 434th Troop Carrier Wing.

Gen. Murrow holds the Legion of Merit, Air Medal, French Croix de Guerre, Order of the British Empire and the Military Order of China.

Rodeo Ends; Writer Hails Return of Horse Cavalry

BY PFC. MERV MELTZER

The 1952 Georgia-Alabama Championship Rodeo has come and gone and if the results are any indication, it is a shame that the horse cavalry is no more.

Fort Benning personnel held their own against some of the top pros in the South during the five-day meet held at Gowdy Field, and although none finished first in the finals they won a good share of the $4,000 prize money.

Pfc. Johnny Hoyle, Tank Company, 30th Infantry, Bill Burgett, Company H, 508th Airborne RCT, Pfc. John Oden Company C, First Student Regiment, Lt. Grover Dasmuth and A. S. Goodloe, both of the 125th Company, Second Student Regiment, Pfc. Samuel Colding, 83rd Transport Truck Company, Sgt. Charlie Burke of Headquarters Battery, 320th Airborne Field Artillery and Lt. Micheal Strang of the Second OC Company, First OC Regiment were the boys from Benning who brought home the bacon.

Few Accidents

It is a credit to the ability of the contestants in the meet that despite the muddy ground and slippery turf at the arena accidents were few. Aside from the usual expected bruises that are the occupational hazards of "rodeoing" only three men needed hospital attention, and all of these were back at the grind a day later.

The Shetland pony offered as a prize was won by 11-year-old Mike J. Brokovich, son of M-Sgt. Michael Brokovich of Section I, 3440, ASU-Station Medics. Little Mike's first comment on winning the pony and hand tooled saddle, valued at more than $200 was "my grandma's luckie charm did it."

Silver Belt Buckles

In addition to the cash prizes all first place winners received solid silver engraved belt buckles to mark their victories.

Winners were Jim Aust in bareback bronc riding, Bill Steele in saddle bronc, Joe Brassington in bull riding, Glyn Robinson, steer wrestling and Vaughn Gould in calf roping.

Top Benning personnel were Pfc. Johnny Oden who took third in bareback bronc riding, fourth in bull riding and fifth in steer wrestling. Oden had taken a first, two seconds and two thirds in the preliminary rounds earlier in the rodeo.

Pfc. Sam Colding placed second in the finals of the calf roping contest and Sgt. Charlie Burke took runner-up spot in the bull riding event.

Another final runner-up spot was copped by Pfc. John Hoyle who took the honor in the saddle bronc event.

12 Strikouts Beat Hqs. Battery 11-6

William McCormick pitched a dozen, strikeouts to help A Battery of the 41st Field Artillery defeat Headquarters Battery 11-6 in a battalion league softball game last week.

Rocco Summa, of A Battery, was the outstanding batter with one home run, two doubles and a single which all added to eight RBI's. The losing pitcher was Bill Williams.

Help Yourself to FASTER Phone Service at Fort Benning

Our job is to put your Long Distance calls through and we want to give you the best possible service. Here's how you can help yourself to better service:
1. If you also give the operator the called party's telephone number, she won't have to look it up in "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster.
2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.
To help you get faster service, you'll find out-of-town directories for the larger cities at most telephone centers.

Army Stenography Opens Road To Civilian Career for WAC

A critical MOS gave Cpl. Paulie Poulin, WAC Detachment of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, a start in what may be her career in civilian life.

During the days of processing at her initial enlistment, Cpl. Poulin, then a private was awarded a stenographer-typist M. O. S. due to her knowledge of the subjects. Completing basic training, she was then sent to the staff judge advocate section at Fort Bragg, N. C. for duty.

One month of getting acquainted with courtroom procedures, two weeks listening, and another two of actual practice, and she began her court stenographer activities.

"It was almost an education in itself—having taken Gregg shorthand in high school, I had to revise my copying method and institute new signs for various legal terms," she said.

Offered a chance to take advantage of the Army's school program, she accepted and was sent to the Signal Photo School at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey and graduated from there a qualified still photographer and laboratory technician. With no vacancies in the photographic field at Fort Bragg, she was sent to duty here.

Her stay with the section was limited, for a staff judge advocate office was established in the Area Service Unit Provisional Group headquarters and a call went out for experienced court stenographers.

"I'm glad I returned to court room work again, since I am scheduled to be relieved from active duty in March. I'm going to take advantage of the G. I. Bill of Rights and continue my stenographic training with prospects of obtaining a position of court stenographer in my home town, Lawrence, Mass."

An efficient stenographer, Cpl. Poulin always has four or five pencils and two spare notebooks when she begins her daily courtroom sessions.

"After a full day of work my hand gets cramped from all the note taking, but the work is interesting, which compensates for the long hours of note taking."

QB Hurt, But Rams Open Win-Ready Against Shaw

BY LESTER DINOFF

Minus Emmett Matthews as first string quarterback, a 44-man Special Troops Rams team led by Coach Gus Dielens are off into the wild blue yonder Friday for their first football game against Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., on Saturday afternoon.

Matthews, the signal caller from Glendale, Calif., was injured in the Rams-CTC scrimmage last week and is nursing a badly bused shoulder.

However, Coach Dielens is quite sure that "the Rams will return to Fort Benning victorious."

The head mentor said the rest of the team is in good shape and that he is quite sure that they will bring home the bacon. "In our scrimmage with CTC, we were untried," he said, "We did not look too impressive. Now, we are almost in top playing condition."

Wanna Play

Besides this weekend's game on his mind, Dielens is shopping around for a few more games to fill out his schedule. At present, the Rams have six home games in Doughboy Stadium and two games away.

The big gap in the schedule is in the middle of the season when Special Troops has a three-week lay off. Dielens and the Special Services Sports Officers, Maj. Gene Myers, are making overtures to Tulane LSU, Tuskegee, Florida, Miami U. and other schools to help fill the breach with their freshmen teams.

Two Squads

Dielens, a T-formation devotee, is planning on using the two platoon system. On offense, he is using Al Buckles, who heaved 22 touchdown passes last season while playing for the Munich, Germany, Broncos, as quarterback, and Bill Black on dense.

Linton Jordan, assistant coach, comes into the picture as right end in Dielen's defensive line which averages 207 pounds.

Look Out Now

A bright newcomer to the squad is 24-year-old Bill Stetter. Weighing 202 pounds and six-feet two-inches tall, Stetter played four years of football for Holy Cross and was a member of the 1950 Brooklyn Dodgers professional football team.

In 1951, he played with the Fort Dix eleven. In Dielens' defensive setup, Stetter is a linebacker.

BEN ROBINSON AND FREEMAN THATCHER ON SPOT
ASU sluggers face champs Lou Barnes, Leon Hall tonight.

Two Champs In Action Tonight

Leon Hall, lanky conqueror of Ray Lee and defending post light middleweight champ, makes his first start of the current amateur ring series against Freeman Thatcher, of A S U Provisional Group, in a featured three-rounder at 8 o'clock tonight at Gowdy Field.

CURRENT CHAMP

Another current post champ, Ernest Hall, of First Student Regiment takes on William Russell, of ASU, in a welterweight battle. Hall, who won the Third Army welter crown, too, is undefeated at Benning.

The third class one bout matches heavyweights Lou Barnes, of First Student Regiment, and Ben Robinson, of ASU.

Barnes is the No. 2 ranking heavyweight on the post and is reportedly in for his exciting encounters with Bob Cotton here last spring. Robinson is a newcomer to the post. He lost to Claude Chapman two weeks ago, but showed touches of class.

Another extremely promising bout brings back Rudolph (Shoulders) Chiles, ASU's popular light middleweight, who will take on Tillman Davis, a new tiger with First S. R. Davis belted out Al Hawthorne with four knock downs in two rounds last week.

OTHER TIGERS MEET

In other bouts: light heavyweight Paul Kelly, 508th, vs Frank Love, CTC; bantamweight Bobby Rodriguez, 508th vs. Joe Clark, First S. R.; welterweight George Blackburn, ASU vs. Willie Peck, ASU; lightweight Willie Wright, ASU, vs. August Wolf, 508th; light middleweight Al Hawthorne, ASU vs. Gordon Van Loo, First BR, and in a substitute bout, light middleweight Robert McArthur, CTC, vs. Vince Marshall, First S. R.

Greenies At Donaldson In Opening Tilt

Fort Benning's only undefeated coach of 1951 will make his 1952 debut Saturday with a brand new and less experienced eleven against a foe of unknown strength.

But Jack Faubion isn't worrying about the outcome of the ISD-ASU scrap with Donaldson Air Force Base at the latter's field in South Carolina.

"The post league is still the thing," said the former Oklahoma A & M fullback who master-minded Special Troops Rams to a 9-0-1 record last fall.

"We'll risk a beating Saturday to find out just what we've got for the Benning opener Oct. 5 against the Rams," he added. "This team doesn't have as much playing experience as last year's Rams, but they make up for a lot of things with fine spirit and a will to hustle."

SHORT ON WEIGHT

Judging by recent work outs the Green Wave will feature a snappy running and passing game. They seem to be short in the weight department at several positions and how they will hold, up defensively is another matter.

Although he has only a 44-man squad Faubion has found enough talent to avoid using more than three or four players on both defense and offense.

More important to him Saturday than the score will be getting a line on certain key men.

WHIP ARMED

High among these is Charles Leonard who thus far has shown up as the regular quarterback for the Greenies' T. His main asset is a spot-shot throwing arm. His weakness is lack of experience as a signal caller with this squad.

But Leonard has plenty of previous time. The 23-year old Mississippian was quarterback for the potent Florida A & M Rattlers for four years. He graduated in 1950.

Bob Boeh, 185, of last year's Rams, and Eddie Hansen, 160, from the U. of Oregon, have been given the starting halfback assignments. Boeh in particular has shown to advantage in practices since being converted from an end.

Harold Manley, who graduated from Alabama in 1950, will open as fullback. Bob Tyndall, 176, has shown flashes of brilliance at full, but is not consistent.

THE LINEUP

The Greenie offensive line will have Angus Adams, 195, le, Marion Tecław, 195, lt, Bob Hunt, 185, lg, Ken Quart, 215, c, Hal Long, 185, rg, Wayne McElroy, 220, rt, and Dennis Ensminger, 205, re.

The defensive line will have Manley, 190, Andrew Holland, 209, Henry Wilson, 220, Otis Ramseur, 186, Clyde Ashorn, 205, and Colin Cochrane, 174.

Defending backs will be Boeh, Mel Geipert, 185, Ray Kuentzel, 155, Frank DePaolo, 170, and Larry Goins, 196.

BEST TACKLE

Holland has easily been the standout lineman in drills and should end up as one of best tackles on post.

Ntticetbly missing from Faubon's starter however, is Fred Felbaum, 1951 All-Post guard. Fred has been suffering with an injured knee, but unquestionably will be in there when the going is roughest. Faubion wants to save the former Penn State ace principally for defensive roles.

Another spark in practice has been Goins, 1952 Third Army javelin champ who quarterbacked at Valley High in West DesMoines, Ia., in 1946-47.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

POST FOOTBALL coaches got together officially Monday night for probably the last time before they start manipulating their respective beef trusts against each other in the organized brawl known as the Fort Benning Football League. The occasion was the local American Legion's annual pigskin kickoff program.

Harry Mehre, who has a life-time coaching job at the University of Georgia, was the principal speaker. For the benefit of the naive and Wally Butts, Mehre was declared legally dead in 1938 by the Bulldogs after a couple of bad seasons. The former Notre Dame center and past master of the art of expatiation, had some choice quips for the 1952 Benning skippers, an unusually young crew.

Gus Dielens, who has the Rams, the team I believe is the logical pick for the post championship, left himself as wide open as Las Vegas with the remark, "we aren't afraid of anybody." "If I had your enthusiasm, I'd be in there playing myself," vollied Mehre, reflecting my observation that there are two kinds of people in this world: those who have fun and those who are football coaches.

And don't be surprised if Dielens gets in. At any rate, he throws a mean pass from the quarterback slot in practice. All of his assistant coaches are already suited up. Cecil Dickerson, of CTC, has succumbed to the urge. Jim Phillips probably will be the next if he fails in his search for a T-operator in the 508th. Jack Faubion, at 31, hit a few licks last season, and might like one more for the road. This is going to be a ding-dong season before its over.

508th Loses, 18-13; Squad Shifts Made

The 508th Airborne was back in heavy drill today with some drastic lineup changes in prospect after the Red Devils dropped their first effort of the season to the 505th Airborne, 18-13, last Saturday at Fort Bragg, N. C.

There was both good and bad news coming out of the rugged scrap, according to Coach Jim Phillips.

The good news was Big Bill Buza and his outstanding play, and Phillips was high in his praise of him. "Buza was a tower of strength out there," the coach said. "He was real superior and those 505th linemen soon found that out."

Other Red Devils that Phillips patted on the back for their play was Bill Dietz, who scored the first touchdown for the Benning eleven, Bill Redman, Paul Bucey, who ran very well with the ball, Dale Ems and Caird Currie, both who gave good showings.

Buza and his caliber of play will, if it lasts, make him a candidate for All-Post honors at the conclusion of the Fort Benning Football League season.

However pleased with the way the team conducted themselves in their first scrap, Phillips was worried about the quarterback slot. Gary Mattocks who has the most experience of the four quarterbacks on the Red Devil squad had a pass intercepted and the 505th Panthers ran it back for 35 yards. The other quarterbacks that the coach sent in as substitutes made mistakes proving that not one has enough experience to run the team.

Besides Mattocks, the other signal callers are Pete Overton, Gene Cain and Bill Kennedy.

The other bad news is old man injury which he's floored some of the players. Mattocks suffered a broken nose, Redman is having trouble with his knee, Gil Downey is sporting a cast on his left leg and other members of the squad wear adhesive tape and smell of linament.

The Red Devils offensive lineup will be greatly changed during this and next weeks workouts so that they could have a greater scoring punch by the time the official Benning season gets underway on Sept. 28.

Players that are pretty certain of regular berths are Dietz, who scored the first TD, Bucey who ran across for the second touchdown, and Crayton Mast who ran into the end zone for the extra point. The Red Devils led the 505th Panthers 13-6 at the half, but the 505th came back to score two more TD's in the second half for the win, 18-13.

Score by periods:
505th Airborne: 6-0-6-6—18

CTC Gridmen Satisfy Coach

Combat Training Command gridders were back on the training grind today with a three-day pass for the entire squad and a rugged scrimmage against Special Troops Rams under their belts.

The Commanders took off for the week end following 27 straight days of practice, which wound up with the most weird practice game ever played.

With each team holding the ball for alternating 10-minute intervals CTC played the Rams to a 6-6 tie.

The zaniness comes in when Commander Coach Cecil Dickerson calls his team's performance "just great."

And Rams' Mentor Gus Dielens tunes in: "Just wonderful."

COACHES HAPPY

It's probably the only time in grid history both opposing coaches were satisfied and both confident that if it had been the real McCoy their respective heroes would have copped the duke.

The Commanders ran straight plays for the most part, showing plenty of beef with a strong center of the line, but some willy-nilly flankmen. They scored on a pass from Quarterback Dickerson to End Santo DeRose.

Special Troops showed a little more versatility in its attack and was especially accurate with a series of flat passes. They seemed to have an edge in conditioning.

¾ BACK HURT

Dielens got a scare when his No. one quarterback, Emmett Matthews, got an injury which turned out to be a pinched muscle in his pay wing. It will keep him benched for a week.

"I was pleased," explained Dickerson. "From what I had heard the other post teams had much more class than we did, but after that scrimmage I'm satisfied with my men.

Dickerson had several other reasons to be pleased this week. One is Al Willis, a halfback fresh from Clemson College, who has joined the squad to help ease the ache of Frankie Spaniel's void.

EDUCATED TOE-MAN

Handling the punting in nifty style in recent drills has been Charlie Matthews, a big fellow who gets a lot of reverse english on the oval with his left-footed boots.

Others who showed to advantage in the scrimmage were halfback Jim Gutherie, a junior college vet from Mississippi, fullback George (Ding Dong) Bell, who broke away for several neat gains.

Ex-Bulldog Gridder Here; Not Playing

By E. M. RICH

A former University of Georgia gridder who starred with the College All Stars against the Los Angeles Rams last month is now a student in the Second Student Regiment.

But before Fort Benning football coaches start scrambling it should be stated that 2nd Lt. Marion Campbell won't see any action at Doughboy Stadium because of his heavy schedule as a student.

Campbell, a rock-like 215 pounder, was a defensive bulwark for Bobby Dodd's Stars who bowed to the highly favored Rams by the slim margin of 16-13. More than 90,000 fans watched the action in Chicago's Soldiers Field.

PLAY-FOR-PAY?

He obviously attracted plenty of attention from pro scouts, but that will have to wait until his present two-year hitch is up.

Campbell hails from Chester, S. C., and was a widely-sought player when he finished high school in 1946. Georgia won out, however, and the Bulldogs reaped a bountiful harvest from the scholarship to Campbell.

The six-foot, one-inch athlete was head and shoulders above other Southeastern Conference tackles in his senior year of 1951. Campbell copped all-conference honors and was placed on several third team All-America ratings. His fiery play was a highlight of an otherwise disappointing season for Georgia.

THREE BOWLS

A testimonial to Campbell's rugged play is the fact that he was invited to play in three post-season football classics. He saw plenty of action in the North-South game in Miami, Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Ala., and the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

Cat-like for his size, Marion is rated a fine prospect for professional football.

Campbell is enrolled in Associate Infantry Company Officer Six which is assigned to the 126th company.

Hammond, Lawrence Pace Post Golfers In City Tournament

Gordon Hammond and J. J. Lawrence had a 54-hole total of 209 to tie for fifth place in the City golf championships completed Sunday at the Lions golf course in Columbus.

The event was won by Bill Zimmerman with a 202.

Other Benningites in the championship flight were Bill Harbour, 211, Orville Folkerts, 214, and Art Rafferty, 228. The seventh flight was won by Benning's Fred Furlong who defeated Walt Parham, 5 and 3, in match play.

DeCordova Gets Big Test Monday

Buck DeCordova, former Fort Benning heavyweight champion, will meet Bill Wilson, of Hickory, N. C., in a major southern heavyweight fight Monday night at the downtown Columbus Arena.

Wilson is being touted as the unofficial Southern heavyweight champ after a series of victories. He beat Frank Pilasky in Augusta last week.

Equal Marks

He holds a 10-round decision over Billy Smith, of Aiken, S. C., while DeCordova knocked out Smith in 10 rounds here several weeks ago.

In his only other local appearance since returning from overseas and being discharged from the Army, DeCordova knocked out Ray Banks, of New Orleans, in two rounds at Gowdy Field.

Big Buildup

The 23-year old DeCordova is being groomed especially for a proposed Southern heavyweight championship elimination series. A win over Wilson would give him top ranking for such a tournament.

A total of 54-rounds of action are planned for the Monday card which gets under way at 8:15 p.m.

Women Golfers Set For Elebash Meet With City Player

Regular Friday Play for the women golfers at the Fort Benning Country Club will not be held because all the ladies are sharpening their drivers and putters for the annual Elebash Tournament which pits the post women against the Columbus lady golfers.

In last week's poker hand tournament, Mrs. Lou Brown won the 18-hole competition with Mrs. Wilmeth Bath second and Mrs. Teresa Desnele third. In the nine hole meet, Mrs. Verna Sheffield and Mrs. Emy Curtz tied for first place with Mrs. Marie Madden coming in second.

Pigskin Pete Returns:

The Bayonet continues its policy of complete football coverage in this issue by resuming the pigskin prognosticating of Bill Kaplan, one of the nation's most authoritive gridiron handicappers.

It's also a big occasion for Kaplan who is launching his 20th consecutive season of picking winners.

Pigskin Pete

His selections and comments have appeared in publications from coast to coast. He probably is best known as the author of "Pigskin Pete" which is a regular feature of The Sporting News.

Kaplan makes his headquarters in Chicago where he receives dozens of reports every week from major colleges and his correspondents.

He analyzes this information, spices it with past performance records and his own brilliant knowledge of the game, and comes up with handicaps that are nationally regarded.

Let of Upsets

Bill's first observation of the current campaign is to watch for a lot of upsets. He explains, that military service has taken away much depth on big teams, major colleges have eliminated freshmen, and changed athletic policies at some schools will make a difference.

With that word of caution, here's Kaplan's first "line" of 1952.

First College Game Of Year Here Saturday

A special reduced rate ticket for servicemen will be sold for the Troy State Teachers College football game against Palmer University Saturday at downtown Memorial Stadium.

The game, a benefit contest staged by the Columbus Optimist Club for their boy's fund, will have halftime entertainment by the Jordan High School national champion band.

Eight former Columbus prep stars will see plenty of action in the initial game. Leading the way will be Jack Perdue, a past-stand signal caller from Baker High. Perdue's passing has been sharp during the recent drills and his sleight-of-hand ball handling has been somewhat sensational.

Local Stars

Other Columbusites who will see action are Donnie Ward, a 195-pound guard; Leo Jones, guard; Dave Lane, tackle, Lomaz Adams, left end, Earl Jones, defensive halfback, Jimmy Sanders and David Reid.

Coach James Grantham sums up Troy's prospects so far as: "The backfield looks better than I expected, especially at fullback."

Athletic Fields Get New Lights

Installation of lighting facilities on 16 athletic fields began this week at Fort Benning, Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, Infantry Center special services officer, has reported.

A contract for $8,400 was awarded to the Flournoy Electric Company of Columbus, called for stringing lines and placing transformers to light fixtures already in place.

The light poles and fixtures were erected a few months ago under a separate contract. A shortage of copper wire and other electrical equipment, however, postponed installation of the power lines, Col. Grimes said.

Facilities which will be lighted include six combination volley ball and basketball courts in the Main Post area and four in the Harmony Church area; Bluss, Young's and Sand Hill swimming pools and three softball fields in the Harmony Church area.

Upon the completion of this project 12 of 48 volleyball-basketball courts will be lighted, as well as al swimming pools and 12 softball fields.

There also are two lighted baseball diamonds and one lighted football stadium here.

College Wrestling Champ Now Here In Officer Course

An NCAA wrestling champion in 1951 and 1952 is in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Five, 12and Company, Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. George G. Layman from Oklahoma A and M placed fourth in Olympic team wrestling tryouts at Ames, Iowa, this year. Layman was the top high school wrestler in Oklahoma in 1947 for his weight class.

The officer wrestled for the Aggies all during his college career. A native of Tulsa, Oklahoma, Layman is assigned to the 87th Infantry Division at Camp Polk, La.

The first two games of the 1952 World Series will start at 12:30 (local Eastern Standard time). Only one game will be played on each of the next three days.

Army Kids Abroad Get Best Teaching

(ANF)— The Army is sending more than 400 American teachers to Europe and the Far East where they will join the staffs of instructors for 16,000 children of military personnel and American civilians overseas.

They will teach in 116 elementary and 19 high schools in Germany, Austria, Trieste, Japan and Okinawa.

The teachers—most of whom are single women between 25 and 45 years of age — come from all parts of the United States and have had at least three years teaching experience in this country.

The children — 75 per cent of whom are of elementary school age — are mostly widely - traveled youngsters accustomed to transferring from one school to another whenever their parents are re-assigned.

Since at any time they may transfer back to the United States, their schools must be on a par with educational institutions in this country. For this reason, the Army picks teachers for American Dependents' Schools who have enthusiasm and ability to develop the best in scholarship and citizenship in young people.

Children in overseas schools study the same subjects as students in this country, and they use standard, approved textbooks.

Most of the American schools in foreign countries are small, and every elementary teacher must be qualified to teach several grades plus music, art and physical education.

Teach All Courses

High school instructors usually teach all courses in one or more subject fields, and they must have at least 15 semester hours in the subjects they teach. They also must have some knowledge of art, vocal and instrumental music, crafts, library work, physical education and typing and shorthand. The teachers often are asked to conduct extra-curricular activities in these fields.

Most teachers in American Dependents' Schools are paid a basic salary of $4,205 a year. School principals receive $5,060 annually. Lodging is furnished.

Qualifications for the teachers include a bachelor's degree, 18 credits in education, from three to five years recent public school teaching experience and a valid teaching certificate.

Men between the ages of 25 and 55 are eligible while women must be at least 25 and not more than 45.

Since expenses in overseas commands often are less than in the United States, American teachers in the dependents' schools usually can save more money than their colleagues in this country. They have the additional opportunity for taking long vacations in foreign lands.

These and other advantages have caused many teachers to elect to stay overseas three or four years.

Two Cities Set Jewish Rites

Fort Benning Jewish personnel will observe Rosh Hashanah at religious services in Columbus and Atlanta, beginning at sundown tomorrow and ending Sunday.

Services will be held at Columbus' Temple Israel and at the Jewish Temple of Atlanta. Services in Columbus will be conducted by Fort Benning Chaplain (1st Lt.) Bernard Mussman. Chaplain (Col.) Silas Decker of Third Army will conduct the services in Atlanta.

Columbus and Atlanta citizens have offered hospitality to servicemen attending Rosh Hashanah services. In Columbus meals will be served at the Harmony Club, and in Atlanta at the Temple.

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, ushers in the 10 days of Penitence, during which mankind "passes in judgement before the heavenly throne." It is the season when Jews also sit in judgement on themselves by comparing their aspirations to their conduct during the year just ended.

The Rosh Hashanah of 1952 will mark the Jewish year 5713. Among the prayers is one which asks the Lord to hasten the day when "all men shall come to serve Thee" when mankind will be joined in universal brotherhood under the Fatherhood of God.

The Jewish New Year is a religious obligation for all Jews.

Candidate Basil E. Ross, a member of the 10th Officer Candidate Company, has been notified that he has been awarded the Navy Cross, second highest award made to Navy personnel and the equivalent of the Distinguished Service Cross awarded to members of the Army and Air Force.

He was awarded the Cross for action that took place in July, 1945, while he was a gunner's mate in the Pacific.

While on a reconnaissance mission, his plane was hit in the nose by anti-aircraft fire. The burst disabled the front compartment of the large aircraft, critically wounding the pilot, co-pilot, navigator, and killing one gunner.

Candidate Ross moved forward and took control of the plane.

He came in sight of his home base, and tried to lower the wheels, but the hydraulic system had been damaged and they refused to move. After circling the field three times, he managed to crank them down by hand and landed safely.

"His heroic efforts," said the citation, "saved the lives of the crew."

DA Announces Guided Missile Career Field

The opening of a new career field in guided missiles has been announced by Sec. of Army Frank Pace, Jr.

Secretary Pace said that qualified enlisted men who desire to volunteer are now eligible to submit applications through normal channels. If selected the applicant will be transferred to the Antiaircraft and Guided Missile School, Fort Bliss, Texas.

Those personnel successfully completing training at Fort Bliss will be eligible for promotion to the highest Warrant Officer grades.

For several years the school has been training relatively small numbers of Army, Navy and Air Force personnel in guided missile techniques. However with the increased development of these weapons by the Army, greater numbers must be trained.

Blood Center Total Hits 716

The Blood Donor Center collected 209 pints last week, raising the September total to 716.

Last week's collections put the Blood Donor Center 29 pints over its weekly quota of 240 and 54 points ahead of its monthly quota. The quota for September was set at 1,000 pints.

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team led last week's donations at the Blood Center, with 131 pints. Other units contributing were: First Student Brigade, 44 pints; Area Service Unit, Provisional Group, 34 pints; Infantry School Detachment, 22 pints; Combat Training Command, 12 pints; Weapons Medical Group, 11 pints; Army Field Forces Board No. 3, three pints, and civilians, two pints.

Community Chest Fund Head Sets Twin Goals

"Twin goals of the Community Chest Fund Drive were announced at a meeting of 38 representatives of all major command staffs units at Fort Benning and Lawson Field.

Col. Donald Washington, chairman of the drive which starts Sept. 29, said that the two goals were 100 per cent participation and $85,000.

"The first goal is more important than the second," he said. "We want everyone to feel he personally has a part in the program.

"If the first goal is accomplished he continued, the second one will be surpassed. This year's goal of $85,000 is $10,000 greater than last year's according to the colonel, because of the tremendous response recorded last year's campaign.

'Theatre' Role Casts Two Vets Together

Two former Indianhead Division officers are sparking the forthcoming Little Theatre production of "Ten Little Indians."

Capt. Charles Klipstine and Lt. Charles E. Thomann served with the now famous Second Division

THOMANN — KLIPSTINE

at separate times, but theatre audiences will be glad they finally got together when they see this Agatha Christie murder mystery comedy at the Main Post Theatre on Oct. 9-10.

As director of "Ten Little Indians", Lt. Thomann continues his outstanding work with the Little Theatre. He was one of the original members of the dramatic group when it was organized in December 1951, and has been active in all four of the Little Theatre productions.

First Appearance

Captain Klipstine, who will appear as Wargraves in the current presentation, is making his first bow to the theatre public at Fort Benning. Recently returned from Korea, where he saw action with the Indianhead Division, Klipstine is presently assigned to E Committee of The Infantry School's Tactical Department.

A native of Sidney, Ohio, Captain Klipstine was active in high school dramatics, and won first place in the high school District, State and National music competitions as a baritone in 1939. While at Fort Meade, Md., prior to going overseas during World War II, Klipstine appeared in a number of soldier shows, including "Babes in the Woods," in which he had the singing lead.

His affiliation with the Fort Benning Little Theatre is Captain Klipstine's first re-venture into theatrical work.

Other Thespians

Also appearing in "Ten Little Indians" are Major Roy Caughran as Lombard, Mrs. Lory North as Vera, Pfc. William Heenahan as Blore, Mrs. Alice Duckworth as Emily, Col. George W. Childs as Dr. Armstrong, Lt. William Riddell as Mc. Kenzie, Cpl. Walt Roberts as Marston, Lt. Jack Frost as Rogers, Mrs. Gayette Ulrich as Mrs. Rogers, and Lt. Richard Rockstad as Narracott.

The public is invited to attend the performances of "Ten Little Indians." Admission is 60c. It is contemplated that the Post Nursery will remain open on Oct. 9-10 to accommodate those with small children.

Ranger Head Goes Airborne

Col. Gerald C. Kelleher, director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, will begin basic airborne training Sept. 16.

A 1952 graduate of the National War College, Col. Kelleher commanded the 35th Infantry Regiment, 25th Infantry Division in Korea.

During World War II, the Ranger Department director was a company, battalion and regimental commander in the First Infantry Division.

Col. Kelleher, who received his Army commission from the Organized Reserve Corps in 1933, holds the Distinguished Service Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

His Allied decorations include the British Distinguished Service Order, French Croix de Guerre and Russian Order of Suverev.

MP Birthday Tomorrow; Party Slated Tonight

The Army's Military Police Corps will observe its 11th anniversary tonight and the local detachment will celebrate that evening with a party aat The Infantry Center Rest Camp.

The celebration committee has planned a program to include special music by a hillbilly band. Highlight of the evening will be the cutting of a huge birthday cake. Actual anniversary date is tomorrow.

Invitations to the stag party have been extended to Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, and Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and their staffs.

The Corps of Military Police, under the jurisdiction of the provost marshal general, is the principal law enforcement authority of the Department of the Army.

Col. Alonzo E. Wood of Lynchburg, Va., is Infantry Center provost marshal.

Established Sept. 26, 1941, the corps' primary function is the protection of property and prevention and investigation of crime within the Army. This function includes the apprehension of unauthorized absentees and escaped military prisoners, staff supervision over guardhouses and stockades, physical security of posts, camp, stations and facilities and preparing and reviewing plans for the use of troops in domestic emergencies.

MP Insignia

The Military Police Corps insignia came into being only after several trial-and-error periods that failed to bring out an acceptable insignia.

First tried of the insignia were a set of crossed riot sticks, but this proved unacceptable because from a distance it looked too much like the Artillery's crossed cannon.

The next attempt involved the Colt .45 caliber automatic pistol. Resembling a carpenter's square, this, too, was discarded.

After much more research, the Harper's Ferry Arsenal flint-lock pistol, model 1806, caliber .54—first standard military pistol — was adopted as the symbol of the Military Police.

Transport Post To Col. Kretlow

Col. Sidney P. Kretlow of Oklahoma City, Okla., has assumed duties as The Infantry Center transportation officer.

He succeeds Col. S. W. Ackerman, who has retired from the Army to study for the Episcopal ministry. Major Jack W. Coulter of Scotts Bluff, Nebr., was acting transportation officer until the arrival of Col. Kretlow.

The new transportation officer came here from Fort Mason, Calif., where he was chief of the Plans and Training Division.

Col. Kretlow enlisted in the Regular Army in 1916 and was commissioned a Reserve second lieutenant of field artillery in 1922.

He was integrated into the Regular Army on October 6, 1947, and was promoted to Colonel, Regular Army Transportation Corps in August, 1951, while serving as deputy commander of the Second Major Port in Yokahoma, Japan.

During World War II, he was an artillery liaison officer with the Chinese Army.

Col. Kretlow wears the Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Ribbon, Purple Heart and Chinese Breast Order of Yun Hai.

He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the Army Intelligence School, Camp Holabird, Md.

Gen. Young To Address OCS Grads

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, will deliver the graduation address tomorrow for Infantry officer candidate class No. 39.

Gen. Young will speak in place of Major Gen. Ridgely Gaither, commanding general of the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., who was scheduled originally to make the principal address but who will be unable to attend.

General Young was a student at The Infantry School in 1933-35 and an instructor in 1934-37. He was at Fort Benning again in 1950 as a student in the school's Airborne Department.

Gen. Young commanded the Second Infantry Division in Korea from Sept. 1951 until May, 1952. He came to Fort Benning last June as Infantry Center Commander and Infantry School commandant.

He holds the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Korean Order of Military Merit and French Legion of Honor.

Two Places Returned To 'On Limits' List

Two establishments in Columbus and Phenix City have been removed from the "off limits" list, Infantry Center Provost Marshal (LTC) Alonzo E. Wood has announced.

The establishments are Green Island Grill, 1000 Block of Broadway, Columbus, and Benjamin's Cafe, 918 Street, Phenix City, Ala. Members of the Armed Forces may now patronize both, Col. Wood said.

Bids Being Accepted For Renovation Of Doughboy Stadium

Bids for the renovation of Doughboy Stadium are being accepted by The Infantry Center's Special Services Office.

Contract specifications call for the removal of all seats, application of a two-inch layer of Gunite concrete and reinstallation of seats.

Purpose of the work is to waterproof the stadium to protect equipment and shops located under the grandstands.

Canada's Jump School Head Visits Benning

Major Jacques Chouinard, chief instructor at the Canadian Army's Airborne School, is visiting The Infantry School's Airborne Department to observe U. S. Army training methods.

Major Chouinard, who is stationed at the Canadian Joint Air Training Center, Rivers, Manitoba, will be on the post 10 days.

The Canadian Air Training Center is the only airborne training center in Canada. Between 50 and 55 men enroll weekly in the four week course.

Because of below-zero temperatures in winter at the Canadian Airborne School, Major Chouinard reports, trainees must wear extra heavy clothing which is somewhat of a handicap in jumping. Special fur-lined jump suits, heavy gloves and woolen head and lower face coverings, known as Belacalvas, are regulation jumping clothing during the winter.

Responsibility and Privilege

R. H. I. P.—the new recruit may not recognize it, but ask any old-time soldier and he'll tell you that "rank has its privileges." But too often we see top non-commissioned officers confusing their privileges with their rights.

They sometimes seem to forget that "rank has its responsibilities," too. The NCO is often said to be the backbone of the Army. Upon his shoulders rests a great deal of responsibility. He must see that orders given by his superiors are carried out promptly and efficiently.

When an officer falls in combat an NCO must take command—be it of a platoon or company. Then an even greater responsibility comes his way—responsibility for the lives of American soldiers, for thousands of dollars worth of equipment.

Trite, this situation doesn't persist long—but it's possible to lose a 100 lives or $100,000 in a split second, through his misjudgment or error.

In garrison, unfortunately we sometimes see top-ranking NCOs abusing their rank and privileges. They may display a "what the hell" attitude, or "let George do it." This is good for neither the individual concerned nor the Army.

Thousands of new men entering the Army are introduced to Army life by a noncommissioned officer. This initial impresson can define a newcomer's attitude toward the Army, thereby shaping a career—for good or ill.

When a man is promoted to noncommissioned officer rank, there is no limit as to how high he may go. Numerous Army generals who rose through the ranks are living proof to this. However, most NCOs remain such throughout their Army career, and most of these are a credit to the service and to themselves.

But some must take off their stripes and revert to the life of a private—a step not to the liking of very many people, but one usually brought about by an individual's own actions.

Just remember that those stripes are much easier to get the first time. And they're much easier to keep than lose—if rights are balanced by exercise of responsibility.

Citizens Owe Service

Since the founding of our country, Americans have believed one of the duties of citizenship is to bear arms in its defense. George Washington put it this way . . . "Every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government owes his personal services to the defense of it."

Historically, Americans have always preferred to have relatively small armed forces during peacetime. They have thought of these "regular" standing forces as the basis of larger forces in wartime. The idea dates back to our Revolutionary War. Most of the fighting men who won our independence were not professional soldiers. After the war they returned to their homes and civilian affairs. Moreover, the new government carried out the feeling of the people about large professional Armies.

The first time a speedy buildup of the Army became necessary was in 1812. With war close at hand, the U. S. Army consisted of only 11 regiments, busy at various frontier posts. Congress therefore called for 30,000 volunteers and asked the States to provide 80,000 militiamen. The situation was repeated in the Mexican War the Civil War, WW I and II and the present Korean conflict.

In each of these wars and emergencies in our military history, one fact stands out: the American people, through their elected representatives, always have controlled the Armed Forces.

Congress has used the powers granted by the Constitution to give the people the kind of military force they want. The powers of purse-string, of appropriating money, and of determining how many and for what purpose may be required to serve in the Armed Forces are among the most important responsibilities of Congress. They have been delegated to Congress by the American people.

The term, "citizen in arms," expresses an idea that is peculiarly American. In the U.S., bearing arms has always been a citizen's privilege and responsibility. Our citizens in arms, Regular and Reserves, exist only to insure that the U. S. will continue to be a land of free citizens.

'Father' Is Key Word In Any Prayer

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) FREDERICK H. WIELAGE

The disciples of Jesus, knowing His habits of devotion, followed Him and heard Him pray. As they listened, they realized that they did not know the alphabet of that highest of all arts.

"Lord teach us to pray," they asked very earnestly. In reponse to their request Jesus gave them a little prayer which has become the best-beloved prayer on earth. That "brief, grand prayer" so called by Carlyle.

Brief it is, containing only seventy words, and grand beyond any speech other than its own; grand too in its all inclusive and compassionate consecration, gathering up the needs and hopes of humanity.

We often use it more as an incantation than as an invocation, as if saying it were enough. Most people really pray only a few times in their lives; at other times they merely say their prayers.

The key word of the prayer is "Father," the basic truth in life and faith in Jesus. "Father" is the first word we hear from Him as a child. His last word of prayer from the cross when He gave His spirit back to God.

What He meant by that word, He told us in the parable of the father, which we misname the parable of the prodigal son. The hero of that incomparable story is not the wayward son, but the old father waiting for his return, ready to forgive.

Here is the one prayer in which Hindu, Hebrew, and every kind of Christian can unite, each praying for all and for one. It is the model prayer for humanity and the monopoly of no one religion.

Brief, simple, profound, it is as high as the sky, as wide as the world, equal to all our mortal needs and our immortal longings. It implies democracy; it is the epitome of religions; it crystallizes theology.

"It is the politics of the kingdom of Heaven"; it gives us a faith and a philosophy of life; it tells us why we are here upon earth, what we are here to do; the truth we are meant to learn; the beauty we are sent to seek. And more than that, it is a program and a plan of action; it links our tiny will with an eternal good will; it sets the inner life in order; it prophesies the kind of society in which all souls are to assemble.

It is the one perfect private prayer; it is the most complete corporate prayer. When we say "our Father", we embrace all souls, taking the whole race into the closet with us when we offer this prayer, asking nothing for ourselves which we do not ask for all our fellow men. The most private, the most public, the most practical of all prayers, it begins and ends in God, "in Whose will is our peace", in "Whose service is perfect freedom," our reason for being, our haven of hope, "in Whose great hand we stand"; it breathes aspiration, adoration, allegiance, petition, intercession, and forgiveness. Yet it is a dangerous prayer to offer if we harbor envy or hatred in our hearts, since it asks God to make His forgiveness the measure of our own. It asks bread for today and hope for tomorrow. It beseeches God not to lead us into temptation, or, as an old Armenian version has it, "Do not let us yield to temptation," when we are terribly tried by the wiles and woes of this life.

"Deliver us from evil"—let not the black facts of life break our hearts and blast our faiths. Save us from the awful fear that "what we value most is at the mercy of what we value least." Make us victors over life, not victims of the carelessness of man or the callousness of nature.

This prayer knows no race, no rank, no caste, no frontier, no enemies; it brings all men, of all types and times into unity and fellowship in God, the Father of all, Who, because He is love, is known only through love.

Home Down Payment Cuts Told

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Smaller down payment requirements by veterans purchasing new homes have been announced by the Veterans Administration.

The reductions came about with government suspension of Regulation X, which had imposed emergency restrictions on down payments and years - to - pay for new private housing. Under the new ruling veterans will not have to pay any down payment on homes costing $7,000 or less; only $500 for homes in the $10,000 class. Biggest cutbacks occured in the $15-20,000 category. Down payments in this class have been sliced between $1,800 and $4,300.

The boost increases the mine workers daily pay wage to $18.25.

The next coal crisis to face the nation will come in October when the union's contract with the Southern soft coal mine owners expires. It is expected that the demands on the Southern owners will equal those made of Northern operators.

THE JUNGLE AND THE DAMNED — By Hassoldt Davis. Little, Brown and Company.

Honeymoons are novel events even if conventional places like Niagara Falls are picked as the site. Hassoldt Davis and his wife Ruth gave the custom a new twist when they decided to spend theirs exploring the jungles of French Guiana.

Backed by the French government and several other organizations, Davis and his wife, who acted as photographer, launched their expedition down the Maroni River. Their destination was the Tumac Humac Mountains located on the Brazilian border.

The book contains many excellent photographs of the tribes living in the region the Davises traveled. Also included are pictures of Devil's Island and the other penal islands which they visited before starting on their jungle adventure.

The book is well - documented and contains a wealth of information for those interested in jungle lore and life. But much of its interest is found in the humorous adventures of newlyweds who spent their honeymoon in the dense jungles of French Guiana.

ROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY DAYS—By Jules Verne Didier.

Around the world in 80 days is slow traveling measured in this era of speed when planes can accomplish the same feat in just a fraction of that time. In 1873 when Jules Verne wrote this fascinating tale of adventure, it seemed fantastic that a man could circumnavigate the globe that swiftly.

The imaginative writing of Jules Verne about the journey of Phileas Fogg and his servant Passepartout started a mad dash of a host of adventurers who tried to better the time of the fictional Fogg.

"Around the World in Eighty Days" is Verne at his best. In this book readers will discover what Marshal Lyautey, famous French empire builder meant when he said, "For the past 50 years the advance of the peoples is merely living the novels of Jules Verne."

NEW YORK TODAY — by Agnes Rothery, Prentice-Hall, Inc.

"The flame which is New York shows no signs of losings its attraction for the eight million moths which wing their constant and unceasing course around and around it."

Thus does Agnes Rothery depict the magic of New York, the population center of the world, which is also one of the world's greatest tourist attractions.

New York is a many-sided personality. It is the capital of the United Nations, its Ellis Island is the passageway to a free world for many of the oppressed peoples of the earth.

Airborne Training Continues

The Marine Corps Administrative Unit, which handled records of Leathernecks attending The Infantry School, will be disbanded Oct. 10, leaving 10 Marines taking Airborne training here.

Marine Lt. Thomas Carcelli is in charge of the units, which will be inactivated after 102 students graduate from an automotive course on Sept. 30.

The administrative unit is the first of its kind to function on an Army post. It was established here last January when the Marine Corps sent students to The Infantry School's Automotive and Airborne courses and the Third Army Food Service School cooks and bakers course.

Unit Purpose

Purpose of the unit, composed of Lieutenant Carcelli and six enlisted men, was to maintain service and pay records and handle transfer orders and leaves.

Since the first of the year, 1,200 Marines have graduated from the Automotive Department, 90 from the Food Service School and 55 from The Airborne Department.

The Marine Corps will continue to send 10 men every three weeks for airborne training until April, 1953, Lieutenant Carcelli reported.

To Fort Lee

After duty completed jump training, that unit at the Army's Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va., to study parachute packing and maintenance and aerial delivery.

Col. Donald A. McPherson, former director of the Automotive Department, was instrumental in getting the Marines to Fort Benning, Lieutenant Carcelli said. Through the Department of the Army, he offered space to the Marine Corps "in order to make maximum utilization of the resources of this department."

Integrated Classes

Marines in the Food Service School and Airborne Department were integrated with classes of Army personnel also taking the courses.

In the Automotive Department the procedure was different. All the classes were composed entirely of Marines. Each class consisted of approximately 100 men who had just finished Marine Basic training and two sergeants who acted as student company commanders.

The First Student egiment housed the Marines.

The pictures above show some of the typical training the Marines engaged in while here. Pfc. Walter L. Charbonneau, in the upper left picture, is a former Army sergeant with 27 Airborne jumps to his credit. He entered the Marine following his Army service. He decided to become a paratrooper all over again.

Master Jumper

Private Charbonneau was a master parachutist in the Army. He enlisted in 1946 and took airborne training following basic. He was discharged in 1950, and in 1952 joined the Marine Corps. He hopes to become a Marine officer.

Pfc. John P. Helms, decorating a cake in the upper right hand picture, finished second in his class at the Third Army Food Service School. First was another Marine, Pfc. Robert G. Williams. Looking over Private Helms' shoulder is a Marine instructor at the school, S-Sgt. Willis J. Marteau.

Engine Instructor

In the lower left picture, Army Sfc. Lawrence L. LaMee, an assistant instructor in the Engine Group of The Infantry School's Automotive Department, explains trouble diagnosis of the primary ignition circuit to a group of Marine students attending a unit automotive course.

Lower right, Army Capt. John H. Miller, an instructor in the Automotive Department's Engine Group, points out that water and gasoline don't mix in a lecture on fuel mixtures.

Graduation Speech

As each group of Marines arrives at the Infantry Center, it is greeted and given an orientation by Infantry School officials and Lieutenant Carcelli. In a typical speech, Lieutenant Carcelli said "You men are here to increase your professional knowledge. As Marines, you represent the entire Corps to the soldiers here at Fort Benning and the people of Columbus. Because you are so greatly outnumbered by the soldiers, you will stand out. What you do or fail to do will reflect directly on the Corps. Remember the traditions and heritage of the Marine Corps, and live up to them."

Lt. Col. James S. Maloney, engine group chief, had this to say about his Marine students: "There is no question in my mind as to whether the Marines are good students. They show great enthusiasm in their classes. This may be due to the fact that they come here directly from boot camp, but in any event they do show an outstanding will to learn."

NEW CO NAMED

Lt. George M. Clark has been named commander of Company D, Airborne Battalion, replacing Capt. Walter R. Adkins, Jr., who is attending the Infantry officers' advance course at The Infantry School.

Colonels Picked For Retention

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., Tuesday designated permanent colonels of the Army who will be retained on the active list in accordance with provisions of Executive Order 10379 of Aug. 2, 1952. These colonels would otherwise be retired July 31, 1953 or between that date and July 31, 1954.

After June 30, 1953, the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 prescribes mandatory retirement for permanent colonels who complete 30 years service and five years in grade. However, it provides that in times of emergency this mandatory retirement provision may be suspended. This suspension was effected by the executive order to provide for retention of a minimum of 60 per cent of the officers affected.

In arriving at his decision Secretary Pace acted upon the recommendations of a board of general officers which reviewed the cases of the officers involved. In determining the officers to be retained, primary consideration was given to age, type of assignment, qualifications of the officers concerned, and physical condition. Since it is desirable that officers designated for retention serve on the active list for an appreciable period of time, age and physical condition affect...

Four-Legged Troopers Join Airborne Unit

BY PFC. A. F. KEELER

Airborne Battalion is starting an English Setter Canine Contingent, thanks to efforts of Judges Peerless Dot, mother, Esig Don Cavalier, father, and Lt. M. R. Wilson, owner of the mother and thirteen offsprings.

While only seven weeks old, and a little young for actual "jump" training, the pups are expected to get their wings shortly after leaving their mother's side.

The reason for the pups 'going airborne' was conveyed to Lieutenant Wilson in a series of barks by the food but worried mother. The Lieutenant interpreted that the pups wish to improve their bird-hunting faculties by operating, for a 'short while,' from "the bird's point of view."

This is the second time in as many years that Dot has produced thirteen offspring, whose pedigree can be traced for twelve generations. According to Lieutenant Wilson, she certainly earned a discharge and retirement pay.

The pups were sired by Esaig Don Cavalier, a field trial champion, handled by Herman Smith of Hatchachubee, Alabama.

Pineapple winds up his three-day appearance Oct. 3 when he plays for dancing at the 78th Engineer Battalion's NCO Mess. The public is invited to the mess' open house planned for that evening.

Bottle Loss Drive Cuts Cash Loss

The Post exchange bottle loss campaign at Fort Benning has resulted in a monthly saving of more than $1,000 since the start of the drive, Lt. Col. Martin H. Steffen, exchange officer, has announced.

But the campaign isn't over yet, according to Col. Steffen. "The failure of people to return soda bottles to racks by the vending machines still costs the Post Exchange system $1,500 each month," he stated.

The continued cooperation of Fort Benning personnel is necessary to reduce the loss further, he added.

Army's Brass Converted To Gold—Money Saved

(ANF) — Modern alchemists in the Army Ordnance Corps are turning brass into gold for the American taxpayer.

It's done without "other worldly" powers or even the wave of a magician's wand—yet during the past year this business brought a return of more than $40,000,000 in dividends to the taxpayers.

The Ordnance Corps sells empty shell cases, machine shop turnings and other scrap to brass mills which put it back into the manufacture of new ammunition and other defense items.

15 Million Pounds

About 15,000,000 pounds of brass were sold each month during the past fiscal year at an average price of 20 cents a pound, and 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 pounds of brass scrap a month brought an average of 12 cents a pound.

Money from the sale of this material is used to buy more ammunition items or is turned back to the U. S. Treasury.

The shell cases come from the Korean battlefield and from 30 Ordnance depots in the United States where they have been used in training and in weapons tests. Brass scrap piles up at all Ordnance installations—mostly in the form of machine shop turnings.

Sold To Mills

The shell cases and scrap are sold to brass mills on the basis of their allocation by the National Production Authority.

The mills use the brass content of the cases in the manufacture of new ammunition, and the brass scrap is turned into other defense items.

Youth Council Replaced Here By Dad's Club

A Dad's Club has been formed here to replace the Youth Activities Council according to Lt. Col. W. W. Sellers, Infantry Center G-1.

Patterned after similar clubs started in Europe by U. S. Army personnel, the post group will seek

LT. COL. W. W. SELLERS

"to promote a better understanding by fathers, of problems confronting Army children."

A program covering children's sports, recreation and social activities is being worked out in an effort to promote morale, citizenship, fellowship and sportsmanship.

Organization of the club was the work of Colonel Sellers, and Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, has given official approval to the group.

Such activities as Little League baseball, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies and Cub Scouts will be sponsored by the Dad's Club.

The group hopes to have more than 350 active members.

First club meeting will be held Oct. 8 in the children's school auditorium.

TIS Officers See 'Copter Test Flight

Five officers from The Infantry School returned last week from a three-day trip to California where they witnessed the first flight of the new XH-17 helicopter.

The heavy-lift helicopter, better known as the "Flying Crane" was built by the Hughes Aircraft Corporation of Culver City, Calif.

In the Fort Benning group were Col. James Y. Adams, Combat Developments Office; Col. John Lynch, Tactical Department; Lt. Col. A. J. Lynch, Staff Department; Lt. Col. R. Brush, Airborne Department, and Major Robert Winkler and Capt. Gregory Olney, Tactical Department.

BRITISH OFFICIAL HERE

Sidney R. Nance, a representative of the British Ministry of Supply, arrived here Tuesday for a 10-day visit to Army Field Forces Board No. 3. While here Mr. Nance will confer with Board officials and participate in testing of new British rifles.

4 Receive Medals At 508th Review

Three Silver Stars and one Bronze Star Medal were presented to four officers Sunday afternoon at French Field when the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team staged a full review.

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, pinned Silver Stars for "gallantry in action" on Lt. Col. Laurence A. Johnson, Capt. John G. Mantalas and Capt. Joe H. Warren. The Bronze Star went to Lt. Col. Wade F. Heritage.

Following the presentation, General Young and the four officers reviewed the 508th in its first full parade since General Young assumed command of The Infantry Center last June.

Reviewing Party

Also on the reviewing stand were Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School and Brig. Gen. Lacy V. Murrow, Lawson Air Force Base commander. Approximately 2,000 people watched the ceremonies and parade.

Lt. Col. Herbert Mansfield, executive officer of the 508th, was commander of troops for the parade.

Chaplain Sets Three Special Services Oct. 5

Special religious services will be held at the Main Post Chapel, Harmony Church Chapel No. 5, and Sand Hill Chapel No. 2 on Oct. 5, according to Infantry Center Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield.

The services will be held in connection with the observation of Christian Education Week and the publication of the New Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible, which has been authorized by the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States.

The new Bible will be the theme for the sermons at the three chapels.

The revised edition is the result of fifteen years work by outstanding American scholars and is based on many authoritative manuscripts recently discoverd near the Dead Sea and in Egypt, Chaplain Sheffield said. The new version, which is the first important change in the Bible in 341 years, retains the character of the King James version, but changes the many old fashioned and obscure phrases of that edition.

Modern punctuation and logical paragraphing have been introduced and the poetic phrases are printed in verse form to make understanding of the Bible easier, the chaplain explained.

Ranger Instructor Status Change Told

Instructors in the Ranger Department of The Infantry School have been assigned a permanent change of station status to two training camps.

The camps, which are located at Eglin Air Force Base, Niceville, Fla., and the Mountain Training Camp, Dahlonega, Ga., will assume responsibility for billeting the officers and men at the air base and with townspeople at Dahlonega, Ga.

Elements of the combat team were the 320th Field Artillery Battalion and the First, Second, Third and Special Units Battalions.

Colonel Johnson won the Silver Star for "organizing a defense for his surrounded command post during a night attack near Hwangsang-ni, Korea." The citation said he called for artillery support and "personally adjusted the fire although shells were falling within 25 yards of his position." He then led his men in repulsing the attack.

Platoon Leader

Captain Mantalas won his Silver Star while serving as a platoon leader in Korea. "When enemy fire threatened to annihilate his platoon, Captain Mantalas spearheaded the attack against strongly fortified positions," the citation states.

The Silver Star went to Captain Warren for gallantry in action near Homang-ni, Korea. "While directing his company in the relief of a friendly unit, Captain Warren continuously exposed himself to hostile fire. His inspirational leadership was largely responsible for his battalion's expeditious and successful achievement of its mission," the citation concludes.

Colonel Heritage received the Bronze Star for "meritorious service in connection with military operations in Korea against an enemy of the United States."

Soldier of Month In 773rd Tank Unit

Cpl. Joseph T. Marzek, Company A 773rd Tank Battalion, has been selected as the Soldier of the Month by Lt. Col. Harry W. Johnson, commander.

Colonel Johnson has just started the program of selecting a "Soldier of the Month" in the 773rd and Corporal Marzek is the first soldier to receive this honor.

Company commanders of the 773rd select the most outstanding soldier in each company on the basis of outstanding military accomplishments within the preceding thirty days. The outstanding soldiers then compete for the title in the presence of the battalion commander, who makes the final selection.

Cpl. Marzek has been awarded a three day pass for being selected as the most outstanding soldier from the 773rd.

2 OC Grads Win RA Rank

Two Fort Benning officers are among 14 recent distinguished Officer Candidate School graduates appointed second lieutants in the Regular Army.

They are Second Lt. Harry E. Allen of DuBois, Pa., First Student Brigade, and 2d Lt. George M. Turner, of Decatur, Ga., First Officer Candidate Regiment.

The appointments were made on the basis of outstanding leadership qualities and personal attributes. Each also had at least 50 per cent of the credits required for bachelor's degree, or passed an examination with the equivalent score.

Lieutenant Allen and Lieutenant Turner are March graduates of the Infantry Officer Candidate School.

Faith School To Get New Classrooms

Permission to construct additional classrooms at new Faith Children's School has been granted by the U. S. commissioner of education.

Approved plans call for the addition of seven classrooms and completion of the school's administrative wing, Capt. Archie E. Hay, assistant school officer, reported.

The new wing will be built by Murphy-Pound Construction Company of Columbus. The Columbus firm also built the new school.

Work is expected to start soon, but no definite date has been set, Capt. Hay said.

When the wing is completed, school officials believe that most Fort Benning children now meeting in temporary classrooms in the U. S. Army Hospital area can be housed in the new school.

Faith School, newest addition to the Children's School System, was dedicated Sept. 15. It is named in honor of the late Lt. Col. Don D. Faith, Jr., Medal of Honor winner, whose father was stationed here in 1932-33.

Classes at the new school are scheduled to start Sept. 29, according to Mrs. Hazel Scudder, principal.

1,836 Reenlist Since January

More than 1,800 reenlistments have been recorded here since last Jan. 1.

In all 1,836 men signed for additional duty tours during the period Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 inclusive, reported Capt. Dennis J. Shaw, recruiting officer.

Of the total, 354 men signed for four years, one for five years, 1,372 for six years and 97 for an indefinite period.

The Area Service Unit Provisional Group led the reenlistment parade with 539. Combat Training Command ranked second with 453 and First Student Brigade third with 323.

Other units and their number of reenlistments were Infantry School Detachment, 299; Provisional Medical Group, 109; 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, 60; U.S. Army Hospital, 32, and Army Field Forces Board No. 3, 16.

Prior to May 15, 1952, enlistment records for U. S. Army Hospital and Provisional Medical Group were kept jointly under the Provisional Medical Group listing.

CBR School Graduates 30

CTC Approaches Blood Drive Goal

Combat Training Command and the 30th Infantry Regiment are rapidly approaching the 100 per cent goal in the blood donor program as two more companies reached that mark.

Company C, 78th Engineer Battalion, reached its goal on Sept. 15. Medical Company, 30th Infantry Regiment received a letter of Commendation from Col. Frank L. Elder upon reaching its goal.

78TH NAMES DUTIES

Capt. Jack P. Harper has been named S-2 (Intelligence) and communications officer for the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion. Captain Harper served in Korea with the 194th Engineer Combat Battalion. Capt. Earl B. Lewis was named commander of Company C of the 78th.

Yom Kippur Observance Set

Jewish personnel here will observe Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, in the U. S. Army Hospital Chapel, beginning at sundown Sept. 28.

Services will be conducted by Chaplain (1st Lt.) Bernard Musaman.

Yom Kippur, the last of the Ten Days of Penitence following the Jewish New Year, is marked by 24 hours of prayer and fasting. It is a religious obligation for all Jews.

The ceremonies, which continue through Monday, Sept. 29, will close with a feast at the hospital chapel. The food, provided by the National Jewish Welfare Board, will be served by wives of Jewish personnel at Fort Benning.

Simplification Course Set for TIS Officers

Fifteen members of The Infantry School's Operations Office are taking a 32-hour course in work simplification.

The course is part of Fort Benning's current improvement program which is designed to produce more efficient operation of Infantry Center activities at less cost.

Students begin the course by making a work distribution chart of the section. This chart then is used to analyze the division of labor. Each person's job is defined, and a time schedule is broken down in relation to the number of hours required to perform each part of the job.

A flow process chart, also prepared by the student, is used to analyze the flow and sequence of work.

The third, fourth and fifth steps in the course require the student to take a work count of his section, prepare a motion economy chart and make layout studies. Layout studies give the student an opportunity to study time-saving devices and distance space which bring about better working conditions.

At the end of the fourth week students submit plans for changes in their section. Some of the plans already have been put into effect.

One idea, combining different parts of a section, has resulted in using only two people on a job formerly requiring three employes. Similar ideas have saved approximately 6,000 man-hours yearly.

By improving procedural methods, $1000 worth of office equipment has been returned to the Quartermaster Section for redistribution and almost 900 square feet of office space has been saved.

These and other improvements have increased production from 15 to 45 per cent in some sections of the office, according to 1st Lt. C. B. Shugart, instructor.

Those taking the course include: 1st Lt. E. F. Murphy, Capt. C. A. Lunsford, Warrant Officer Junior Grade James E. Bell, 1st Lt. Donald M. Mills, 1st Lt. Luther P. McCall, M-Sgt. H. O. Marshall, M-Sgt. S. L. Glaze, M-Sgt. R. J. Kennedy, M-Sgt. B. R. Berthiaume, M-Sgt. C. B. Birch M-Sgt. W. W. Parker, Sfc. William S. Suggs, Sfc. W. A. Smith, Miss Janette Modling, and Watson H. Bowen.

Yugoslavians Visit Benning

A Yugoslav Army officer visiting here last week said he considered it a "rare opportunity to see such a large Infantry School."

Major Gen. Vrac Pogladen, chief of the Yugoslav Military Assistance Group, said he was privileged to be one of the first officers of his army to visit Ga., U. S. A.

Gen. Pogladen, on a tour of The Infantry School, was accompanied by Lt. Col. Zdravko Popin, chief of the Yugoslav Army Artillery Branch; Major Metod Antonec, assistant chief of the Signal Branch; and Major Franc Bandan of the Army General Staff.

The Yugoslavian group also will visit the Atlanta (Ga.) General Depot; Engineer School, Fort Belvoir, Va.; Armored School, Fort Knox, Ky.; Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla.; Signal School, Fort Monmouth, N. J.; New York Port of Embarkation and Ninth Infantry Division at Fort Dix, N. J.

Kids' School Rolls Top 1,200 Mark

Enrollment in the Children's Schools has passed the 1,200 mark, Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, principal, has reported.

Figures released through Sept. 16 show that 1,229 children are attending schools here. Ninety have registered with Fort Benning school officials to attend Columbus high schools.

An increased enrollment in kindergarten classes at the Custer Terrace School has necessitated the transfer of a second grade class of 24 children to the Main Post School, Mrs. Scudder said.

At present 827 children are attending classes at Main Post schools; 303 at Custer Terrace School and 99 at Benning Park.

CTC, 508th Even; Record Throng Seen

BY CHARLIE JOHNSON

The kick-off of the 1952 Fort Benning Football League season will be heard all the way to Columbus because that's where they are having it at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Memorial Stadium in an effort to accommodate an anticipated record crowd of 18,000-plus.

The combatants are 508th Airborne and Combat Training Command, the only holdover rivals from 1951.

There is no favorite. Each had rather have the chest-splitting pride of an inaugural win than the post championship—almost. Man-to-man action between followers of both teams makes this strictly a pick 'em affair.

Real Serious

An outsider immune to the bite of the highly infective Benning fan bug might get the mistaken impression that the losing unit will be required to vacate Sand Hill in pure shame. Man, it's that serious.

CTC, which took 21-19 and 47-35 decisions from the Red Devils in hell-for-leather action in 1951, can start an offensive line averaging an even 200 pounds or a defensive line weighing in at 210 pounds.

They have eight returnees from last year in their starting elevens and an offensive backfield scaled at 171 pounds.

Question Mark

The Commanders are wholly untried under their new head mentor, Cecil (Scooter) Dickerson, who will be their T quarterback and as a former Ole Miss and Los Angeles Rams regular is expected to

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

IF YOU'RE a typical Fort Benning football fan you'll arrive at Doughboy Stadium Sunday in time to block the aisles during the kick-off and nick the shins of a few VIP's sitting in the front pews, will consume one soda pop and two bags of peanuts, and, unlike most fans who razz the officials, won't even give our whistle tooters the honor of ignoring them, already yet, while rooting for the underdog team.

Then you'll go home secure in the knowledge you have maintained the proper standard of insolence toward the poor lackeys who have to janitor the vast pigskin pit, and ever fan worth his salt (plus a few unsalted ones I know) will wonder why they don't have more teams and more games each week.

Such goings-on by my standards are roughly synonomous with a swift kick to the kidney, but that's what is known as football fever and Benning has an acute case every fall, so let's drop the Old Testament delivery and let you in on who and what makes it all possible.

Fort Benning as a football foundry swung into action three months ago at Special Services, with Maj. Gene Myers, as post sports officer, bearing the brunt. It takes an All-American to organize Benning's complex gridiron program and the major measures up by having been the center on Christy Walsh's 1937 A-A for his derring-do with Kentucky, back in the days of the Notre Dame box and 60-minute players.

First item was getting a budget approved for 40-man teams, the largest squads yet at The Infantry Center, but a move Myers felt would allow greater participation and offer better football. After that, came meetings with sporting goods representatives to select uniforms and other equipment, meetings with coaches to iron out league rules, determine eligibility and map a tentative schedule.

All of these decisions had to be okayed by Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, Special Services officer, by the Special Services Council and, finally, by the commanding general. The four teams could start selecting players then, but for Myers, the aspirin season was just starting.

Arrangements had to be made for qualified officials, Doughboy Stadium maintenance repairs were necessary, programs had to be printed, a scoreboard made ready, dressing rooms equipped, half time entertainment (which this year involves three college and five high school bands) planned, transportation scheduled for teams and bands, MP's requested for Stadium police and traffic control, ditto doctors and an ambulance, billeting made for outside teams, concessions prepared so you'll have hot dogs and peanuts, seat reservations made for team officials and their official rooting sections, ushers and cleaning details to make ready for the next contest, and finally, the drafting of a schedule to please four rival coaches, each of whom naturally demanded only 9S per cent the best of it.

At this point one would think Myers would be allowed to choose a 50-yard line seat and sit back and enjoy the fruit of it all. Alas and alack, he will have to be on duty at every game, and, also very important, so will every member of the Special Services sports office. That's lot of weekends to give up, but if the 1952 teams respond with the action those of last fall provided, and if your fans (you're ours, and we love you) will pack 'ol Doughboy to the tune of 136,000 again, all will be pleased.

And this Poor Benning League Boswell will be pleased if he is not forced to retreat to the trackless wastes of the Everglades under an assumed name after venturing the following predictions. If the view is murky (or malarky) blame it on the fact I have been gazing into an eight ball instead of the customary crystal kind.

For the reason I haven't seen either of them in action, whether the title goes to Special Troops or Combat Training Command is harder to pick than a goldfish's teeth. CTC has the bigger squad and fast backs. The Rams have more material and lots of experience. A single loss can queer the season for either team, as it did for CTC in 1951.

The 508th Airborne has a good sprinkling of returnees, but no quarterback to carry a full season's load, while ASU-ISD, a "pickup" outfit you would expect to be spotty, has the best team spirit I've seen, and a good T-man in Charlie Leonard. ISD-ASU and 508th to fight it out for third place, after CTC and the Rams decide first and second.

If this forecast proves more wrong than a battalion of recruits in a dress parade, then I might offer today's column as an elementary lesson in football. Subject: The Unbalanced Line.

Only three members of the 1951 Fort Benning All-Post football team are left over for the 1952 season, and as an idea of what you may expect in the campaign opening Sunday, none of them can be certain of being named to the '52 dream team.

The holdovers are Bill Deitz, unanimous fullback choice from 508th Airborne, Fred Felbaum, guard from Special Troops Rams who is now with ISD-ASU, and Adam Zubaty, halfback from Combat Training Command.

Felbaum, a star with Penn State's unbeaten eleven of 1947, missed by one point of being a unanimous choice by the six league head coaches who voted for the team.

Tie-Breaker

Zubaty, an all-state selection in high school at Claridge, Pa., needed a second tie-breaking vote to gain a first string berth from Bill Redmond, another returning 508th halfback.

Several other players from the second string All-Post team are back in harness. They are Dick Lohmann, guard for Special Troops Rams, and back John Mackie, also of the Rams.

Honorable Mention

All-Post honorable mentions who will be back to try for this year's big team are Johnny Oden and Paul Crum of the Rams, Santo DeRose and Francis Keel of CTC,

FRED FELBAUM
. . . No. 1 guard

Bobby Miles from 508th, and Gene Ashley, of ISD-ASU.

Oden was with the 508th last season and Ashley was with the Rams.

If Felbaum, Dietz and Zubaty face a rough time in repeating there are several 1951 marks which will be much more difficult to equal.

For one thing, 186,084 fans saw the 19 league games including 9,500 paid to see the final game of the season. Largest crowd was an estimated 17,00-plus for the opener between 508th and Lawson Field.

It's not likely that the post will have an unbeaten team this year. The Rams did it in 1951 by winning five, claiming a forfiet for their sixth, losing none and being held to ties by CTC and Lawson Field. They won the Geechee Bowl crown in Savannah, Ga.

A star of the magnitude of CTC's departed Frank Spaniel is not likely either. Frank passed for 939 yards and ran for 599 yards. Spaniel led CTC in compiling the biggest score of the season, a 53-0 win over ASU which was the only really uncontested game of the year.

Dietz was second only to Spaniel as a ground gainer with 51 yards.

There are few other records to go by. Benning dropped football in 1950 because of the Korean war outbreak. A 1948 post team won three and lost six.

Barnes-Robinson Fight Tonight

Raiders Take Big Lead For Boxing Title

ASU Provisional Group held a commanding lead in the race for the 1953 Fort Benning amateur boxing championship today after unveiling their heir-apparent to the post heavyweight throne before 1,500 fans last Thursday night at Gowdy Field.

He is Ben Robinson, a comparatively short, but muscle-stacked Philadelphian, who added five points to the Raiders' team total by TKO'ing Lou Barnes, of First Student Regiment.

Robinson, a former EUCOM champ, slugged with Barnes all the way until a cut eye stopped the melee at 1:49 of the third heat. He knocked Lou down in the second with a smashing one-two.

Looks Good

Robinson is by far the classiest heavyweight in action on the post at present and looms as the most spectacular since Buck DeCordova won the title here in 1950.

Dick Lohmann, of First S.R., is the current champion, but Dick at present is playing football where he seems more at home than in the ring. Dick says he'll be back this winter.

ASU's present 37 points gives them an 11-point edge on 508th Airborne, their nearest rival. Of course, there's still many months to go in scoring for team crowns, but as Leo Durocher once noted, the ones you win early in the season count just as much in the standings as the ones you win in the pennant stretch drive.

No Cheese Champs

One thing is certain. All of the 1953 champions are going to come by their titles harder than did the 1952 crop.

Leon Hall, of CTC, defending post light middleweight champ who has moved up to the full middleweight requirement, had a rough time in decisioning Freeman Thatcher, of ASU, Thursday night.

Thatcher had seven bouts against tough competition last spring and lost them all, but he was deadgame last week. Hall decked Freeman with a hard right to the head in the first round, but Leon was hanging on at the end of the frame.

Near Kayo

The bell saved Thatcher from a kayo in the second as Hall took control of the bout, but even late in the third heat, Leon had his mouth piece jarred loose.

Another present post champ, Ernest Hall, welter king from First S.R., knocked out William (T.S. Gruntled) Russell, of ASU, in 2:10 of the third.

Russell made a strong and willing kid, but Ernie had much the better class here. He's one champ who is likely to repeat.

Chiles Improved

A possible successor to Leon Hall as light middleweight king was shown by ASU in Rudolph (Shoulderak Chiles. Rudy TKO'd Tillman Davis, of First S.R., in two minutes of the second round.

A class two fight, both boys stood beak-to-beak and exchanged walloping rights for a full round. Davis was bleeding badly from the nose and finally collapsed in utter exhaustion. He was removed to the post hospital to rest.

In other bouts, Vince Marshall, 154, of First S.R., decisioned Robert McArthur, 155, CTC; August Wolf, 152, 508th, decisioned Willie Wright, 158, ASU and Frank Love, 173, of CTC, TKO'd Paul Kelly, 168, 508th, in 1:55 of the third.

Three Class I Scraps Head 10-Bout Card

Not satisfied that he gave his best effort, handsome Lou Barnes will tangle with Ben Robinson in a three-round rematch in a heavyweight headliner on the 10-bout post amateur boxing program at 8 o'clock tonight at Gowdy Field.

Barnes and Robinson put on a terrific show, as described in another story on this page, until a cut eye forced him to quit trying in the last round last week.

Two other class one bouts will be on tap.

In one, Leonard James, 1953 Third Army lightweight champion from First Student Regiment, will take on Raymond Kiley, of 508th Airborne. Kiley is a game scrapper, but will be a decided underdog here.

Fresh Season

This will be the first start of the new season for James, a masterful boxer, and one of two Benning Third Army ring champs still available. Welterweight Ernest Hall remains, but light middleweight king Kay Lee has turned pro.

In the other top tilt, James Boyd, post light heavy king for the past two years, gets another shot at Claude Chapman, 1953 FECOM light heavyweight king. Chapman decisioned Boyd in a rousing scrap two weeks ago and is a favorite to repeat.

Plenty Action

In other bouts:

Welterweight: Bob Collins, ISD, vs. Sam Martin, First S.R.; Lightweight Fred Douglas, CTC vs. James Gregory, First S.R.; Welterweight John Liggett, CTC, vs. Bryon Mortensen, ISD; Light middleweight John Casaliano, 508th, vs. Gordon Van Loo, First S.R.; Lightweight John Joramillo, 508th vs. Fred Detemeich, ISD; Lightweight Paul Totton, First S.R. vs. William Ray, 508th; and lightweight James Hiller, ISD, vs. Ray Leuts, 508th.

Dove Shoot Draws 90 Hunters For Seasons Opening

The 1952 hunting season at Fort Benning got off with a bang Sunday when 90 shooters took off for the annual dove shoot which is sponsored by the Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

Meeting at the F & G office, the hardy 90 took off for three especially prepared dove fields, but the weather . . . rain . . . dampened the hunters spirits.

The exact number of birds that were killed is unknown, but F & G officials were happy about the hunt's success.

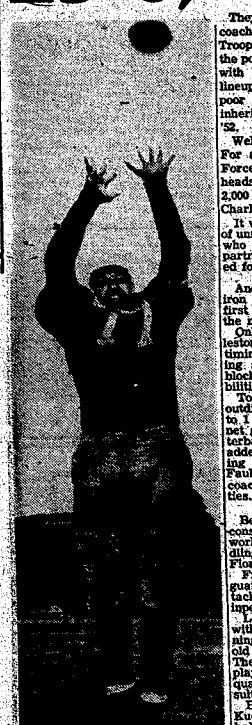
Greenies Zero AF, 25-0, In First Start



HIGH-HO . . End Neal McNeill takes big stretch to haul in pass from ISD-ASU Green Wave mate. The Greenville, S. C., youth is expected to be one of steady flankmen for Coach Jack Faubion. He stands 5-11, weighs 190 pounds.

They said that Jack Faubion as coach of the burly 1951 Special Troops' Rams couldn't have lost the post football championship even with Wrong Way Corrigan in the lineup, but his rival mentors kissed poor Pal Jack goomby when he inherited the reins of ISD-ASU for '52.

Well, drop that attitude, Loule. For a like notion, Donaldson Air Force Base's Bulldogs had their heads handed to them, 25-0, before 2,000 fans last Saturday night in Charleston, S. C.

It was a lopsided rout by a team of unnervingly light-hearted huskies who hit it off in nearly every department better than should be asked for opening game.

And they have 10 days more to iron out the wrinkles before their first Benning League bid against the new model Rams, Oct. 5.

Only failing marks on the Charleston report card was a lack of timing by all hands on their passing setups, not enough downfield blocking and a light touch of fumbilities.

To the good, the Green Wave outdid Donaldson in first downs 11 to 1 as they ground out 220 yards net gain with their running. Quarterback Charlie (My Boy) Leonard added another 46 yards by completing five of nine passes. It was Faubion's eighth win as a Benning coach against no losses and two ties.

BACK GOOD

Best features of the night were consistently brilliant defensive work and the T-formation ball handling of Leonard, 170-pounder from Florida A & M's vaunted Rattlers.

Fred Felbaum, 1951 All-Post guard, and Andy Holland, 200-pound tackle, made the Greenies middle impenetrable.

Leonard called an excellent game with the impressive share of running assignments executed by Hansford Manley from the fullback slot. The gritty 1951 U. of Alabama player also relieved Leonard at quarter with eyebrow tilting results.

Bob Boch, Ed Hansen and Bill Kuentzel were about equal in the halfback chores.

The Greenies drove 70 yards for the first score with less than a minute remaining in the opening quarter. Frank DePaolo bucked over from the five for the score.

Bob (Cush) Milgrim kicked his only extra point of the evening. He'll be a dependable converter with more luck than he had Saturday, Hansen handled the punting.

SECOND TD SET UP

A pass intercepted by Felbaum on Donaldson's 40 set up the second score, Manley cut from left tackle and scampered 25 yards to make it 13-0. Shortly after the intermission the Greenies marched again with halfback Jack Hendrix cracking left tackle from the four to tally.

Hendrix was cold conked on the play and required hospital attention. Manley suffered a bad knee bruise during this scoring drive and was still limping early this week.

It was all over in the fourth period with a 47-yard march climaxed by Leonard's spot shot to end Buck Adams in the end zone from the seven.

GREENIE GEMS: Recovered fumbles by 220-pound tackle Hank Wilson set up the last two TD's . . . Faubion's comment: "Defense excellent. Offense okay. Need a lot of work on blocking. About the same lineup next week." . . . Capt. William Gibson, formerly of N. C. State, and Capt. Tom Knox, late of Clemson, went along to help Faubion with the coaching chores . . . Felbaum and Leonard were co-captains.

Manley can play any position . . . Back Ford Settle played the first football game of his life, had a TD called back by penalty. Back put had stayed home expecting to become a papa any minute . . . Faubion likes his present crew better than the 51 Rams which had plenty of stars, but not ISD-ASU's big spirit. Charlie Johnson.

Post Eleven Has Pigskin And Pig Too

The Bronx zoo has nothing on Doughboy Stadium when imaginative followers of the teams begin hatching ideas for mascots. Hatch is the word.

Last year, Special Troops Rams had a real ram galavanting around the Stadium. If you couldn't see him, you knew (phew!) he was there anyway.

There was only one hitch. Dogs always picked fights with the mascot and the grid Rams went through three live rams before the season was over.

Then there was Combat Training Command and its mule. CTC also had a paper mache tank, with a jeep for an engine, which led the team onto the field with a siren screeming. Very good for C TC morsle, they said.

But nobody has come with anything like Gertie, the Gallopin' Gator. Gertie cavorted for one of the infantry regiment teams at Benning back in the mid-forties.

Alas, she had no Boswell, and we don't know what year or what team, or even whether it should be Gertie or Gerald, for that matter. Anyhow, kiddies, don't feed the animals when the new football season opens Sunday.

Dietz Sees Benning Football Tougher

One of the most feared ball carriers on the 508th Red Devil football team, Big Bill Dietz, unanimous choice for All-Post fullback last seasser, was lying on his bunk waiting for the rain to let up so the pigskin pushers could head for Tiger Field and the afternoon workout.

Carrying 190 pounds on a five-foot nine-inch frame, Dietz is a hard man to stop when on the move, a grinder rather than a scatback. Lying there on his bunk, the 21-year-old gridiron ace, looked timid and seemed shy, but on the playing field, watch out buddy that you don't get run over.

"My changes of becoming All-Post fullback this year aren't too good," the former Indiana State Teachers (Pa.) athlete said. "I understand that the other clubs have some excellent players. If that's the case, well I'll have to work and play harder," he said.

This year the Red Devils are a better team. Many of last year's players are back and the newcomers are real sharp. The team gives a good showing during the scrimmages, but the passing attack is what the 508th has to work on.

Dietz likes his new boss, Jim Phillips, the Red Devils' head coach, and his method of running the team.

"The coach uses good planning and organization for a man who never coached before," he said. "His use of the county fair system in workouts and scrimmages gives everyone on the squad a good chance to make the first string team."

Having played under the Army great Tom Mesereau, he should know.

Dietz is due to be discharged from the Army in 1954 and is vague about what he wants to do. However, he is not worrying about the future for it is the present that counts and Big Bill will play his heart and soul out on the gridiron for the 508th in coming weeks.

Turner AFB To Host Sports Car Race Oct. 26

The Sowega National Sports Car Races will be held this year on the runways of Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., on Sunday, Oct. 26, and will be sponsored by the Turner AFB Airmen's Living Improvement Fund.

Many of the most famous sports car drivers in America will race their sleek vehicles over the 4.5 mile track laid out on the runways. On a 9,000-foot straightaway, some of the faster cars are expected to hit speeds of 150-miles-per-hour.

Entry blanks have been mailed to 3,500 members of the Sports Car Club of America.

Two fifty-mile races will be held in the morning with the major event, the four hour Le Man race slated for the afternoon.

Roller Derby Star Voted Top Rookie Now in 26th OC

Val Panzitta, former star skater for the New York Chiefs and the Brooklyn Red Devils is at present an Officer Candidate in the 26th OC Company.

Panzitta was a member of the champion New York Chiefs in 1940, and was rated one of the top rookies of the year. After the season closed he went to the Brooklyn Red Devils and was a standout performer.

With Val skating is strictly a family business. He is married to Edie Braun, one of the most popular and best known of the female "oval sliders".

Panzitta, a Navy veteran, entered the Army the first of this year from New Jersey.

Rams Coach Predicts Win

BY AUGUST DIELENS
(Coach of Special Troops Rams)

Last year the Rams won the Fort Benning title and there is every indication that they will repeat again this season. We have several members from last year's squad, and in addition some newcomers who promise to more than compensate for the loss of key men.

BY CECIL DICKERSON
(Coach of Combat Training Cm'd.)

I figure that we will be in the upper bracket of the league at the finish, but not necessarily the winner. In about a month we'll have the best backfield on post. It's just average now. That probably holds true for the whole team. Tackles are our strongest point now. Guards are bad. Center is steady. Our defense will be one of the best on post.

BY JACK FAUBION
(Coach of ISD-ASU Green Wave)

This team lacks experience, but has hustle and spirit. Ends are good offensively, poor defensively. We're shy on tackles, but have good guards. Center is weak. Our halfbacks look good and we have Leonard and Manley as capable quarterbacks. We can only hope to finish last against the other teams with much more experience.

BY JAMES PHILLIPS
(Coach of the 508th Red Devils)

The 508th Airborne RCT has a young and spirited group of "gladiators." The members of the coaching staff feel that the 508th football team will make a creditable showing each time they meet an opponent "on the field of friendly strife" at Benning's Doughboy Stadium this fall.

Harper's Sub Par 277 Cops PGA

Fort Benning's Charlie Harper, who turned pro to play in the 1947 Southeastern PGA tournament, came back last Sunday to win the 1952 version of that event with a sizzling 11-under par 277 for the 72 holes at Chickasaw Country Club in Memphis.

That was six strokes ahead of Cary Middlecoff, the nation's second leading pro money winner this year.

Par at Last

Harper's score might have been even more staggering if he hadn't blown to a 75 on the last round. His other scores were 67-67-68.

Harper, Benning C.C. pro for a little more than a year, now owed most of his scores to a red hot putter. On the first day, he shot a 67 to Middlecoff's 68 while only 18 others in the field of 126 equalled or bettered par 72.

Deadlist Pulled

Charlie all but cinched it Saturday with a 68 when Middlecoff blew to a 73.

Harper, who holds the Benning course record of 62, fired a 207 to win the 54-hole Georgia Sale Open in Atlanta early in August. He was Florida Open champion in 1947.

Gagnon Beats Coulan; Franks Loses In Semi

One Fort Benning slugger won and two lost in preliminary bouts on last Monday's boxing card at the downtown Columbus Arena.

Jimmy Gagnon, middleweight from 508th Airborne, punched out a decision over James Coulan, of Atlanta, this year's Southeastern Golden Gloves champion. It was a four-rounder.

Billy Franks, of ASU Provisional Group, lost the six-round semifinal to Hoyt Nunnelly, of Atlanta, in what was the most exciting bout of the night.

Franks was down for a nine count in the last round, but both boys were still swinging from all directions at the bell.

Jimmy Louis, of Columbus, decisioned Paddy Bullock, of the station hospital, in another four-rounder. In the main events, Billy LeBlanc, 163, of New Orleans, TKO's Sammy Reid of Columbus in two, and Al (Kid) McCoy, of Macon, knocked out Charlie Flint, of San Antonio, in the fifth.

Rams Play 82nd Arty. Saturday

Dielens Uses All His Players In Shaw Air Base Rout, 33-7

Flush with their initial victory of the 1952 football season, Special Troops Rams venture right back into their second pre-season tune-up on Saturday afternoon, tangling with the 82nd Airborne Division Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C.

In their first contest last week, Coach Gus Dielens' squad scored a whoppin' 33-7 victory over Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., proving that scouting the opponent always pays off.

However, this Saturday's game is cold turkey, Dielens has no idea about the airborne Eleven. This arrangement for the scrap is slightly on the hasty side for it was only a few days ago that Georgia Military College cancelled a scheduled contest.

Blues Anyway

Still saying that he hasn't got enough depth in lineman, Dielens had every member of the squad in the ball game during the first half last Saturday. He said it was a "team victory."

"The offense did better than I expected," he said. "It was mostly the great downfield blocking that made the running attack so successful."

Hampered by an intermittent rain, Al Buckles completed five out of 13 passes for 61 yards and definitely proved that he is able to call plays. John Mackie, the blonde Florida fullback, gained 121 yards out of the 350 yards gained rushing.

Happiness

Other Rams who made the coach happy were Harry Gibbons who started the ball rolling in the first period by running 25 yards for a TD on a handoff.

Joe Pangonis, the fleet halfback who was responsible for seven of the eleven first downs; Bill Stetter, who was all over, and was a mainstay on defense; Bill Thurston, who combined coaching with playing, and Clarence Howard and his line-backing; Fred Dreyspring, who reminded many of Norman Van Brocklin during his 40-yard return of the kick-off.

More Heroes

Adam Dervin and his three-yard plunge into the end zone; Bill Black and his conversion; Billy Bennett and many others. All showed Dielens and the fans that the Special Troops are the team to beat in Fort Benning Football competition, specifically, Miss Tampa.

Ball players that were injured in the scrap were Gibbons, who suffered a shoulder separation, Don Stump got slapped in the face and ended up with a broken nose, Emmett Matthews, injured in a scrimmage last week, hasn't expected to play in this week's game.

RAM-BLINGS . . . CHUCK ALLEN was named to the All-South Texas Iron Man Team while at Texas Tech . . . BILL BLACK was all New England halfback while in a New Hampshire prep school . . . VERN FARRENKOPF was named to the Fall River Valley Catholic Conference while at St. Mary's High, Menasha, Wis. . . . GUS DIELENS' wife, Shirley Ann, is quite the looker being a former Florida bathing beauty contest winner, specifically, Miss Tampa.

Second Lt. George E. Hunt was on the University of Florida football team.

Wilberforce University basketball is represented by 2nd Lt. James N. Payne who was awarded four letters for play in the sport.

An All-Southern Conference end, a top Southern Conference guard, and a pro contract winner are in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Eight. The class is assigned to the 125th Company, Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. Alfred Lary copped all conference honors in 1950 SEC competition for Alabama's Crimson Tide. Lary leaped from high school in the small Alabama town of Northport to stardom with the Tide offensive crew in '50.

A rugged West Virginia U. guard who captained the '51 team is 2nd Lt. James E. Hunter. Danter won four football letters for West Virginia and played four years high school competition, gaining all-state rating in 1948.

A speedy halfback from the University of Idaho, 2nd Lt. Glenn Christian, boasts a pro contract with the San Francisco 49'ers. Christian streaked over the 10-yard dash in 9.7 seconds and over the 220-yard in 21.5 for the track team. He played three years for the Idaho eleven.

Auto Racing Set For Turner AB On October 26

The race course, laid out on the runways and taxiways, totals 4.5 miles in length with 1¾ miles in the straight of the main runway.

The morning program will consist of two 50-mile sprints for sports cars of different classes, while the afternoon event will be the four hour endurance grind.

Ferguson Gets Nod; Gagnon DeCordova Lose

Billy Ferguson of CTC scored a unanimous, but unpopular six-round decision over Harold Derrington of Greenville, S. C., in the semi-final Monday night at the downtown Columbus Arena.

Ferguson weighed 164; Darlington, 160.

In a four-rounder, Jimmy Gagnon of Benning suffered his first defeat in six pro fights against Ray Morris of Savannah. The bout was fairly close until Morris sent Gagnon to the canvas for a nine-count and the former 508th boxer never fully recovered.

In the scheduled ten-round main event Big Bill Wilson, 226, stopped Buck DeCordova, 194, in the third round. It was DeCordova's first defeat since turning pro.

set a spectacular scoring pace.

The 508th, which dropped an 18-13 duke to 505th Airborne at Fort Bragg, N.C., in a pre-season trial two weeks ago, will have a starting offensive wall averaging 205 pounds, as against a defensive line of 198 pounds.

As an antidote for Dickerson, the Red Devils have Bill Dietz, 190-pound 1951 unanimous All-Post fullback, and with him Wild Bill Redmond, fleet-footed second string A-P halfback. In all they also have eight 1951 regulars in their starting lineups.

What the 508th doesn't have (or hasn't yet shown) is a dependable T-C formation quarterback. Gene Cain, with two years experience at Tennessee Jr. College, has drawn the initial assignment from new Coach Jim Phillips.

The Red Devils should be able to score frequently, however, if the line cooperates at all. One big reason why it should is Bill Valko 209-pounder fresh from three years as regular center for West Virginia University.

Big and Bad

Another bright spot is left tackle occupied by 225-pound Bill Buza, a freshman from N. C. State who has been slightly sensational in Devil drills: Right tackle Larry Smith, 210, played a season with Oklahoma A&M.

Starting ends Jim Trado and Bill Beem are proven performers from the 1951 508th eleven.

Eyes will also be on newcomer Paul Bucey, 180, who has captured the starting right halfback assignment. He has one year with Ohio State U. and earned all-state high school honors two semesters in Toronto, O.

High Scoring

If CTC lives up to its '51 pattern it will possibly outshine the 508th as a free-wheeling scoring unit. In addition to Dickerson, the Commanders' expected big shots are Halfback Adam Zubaty, another All - Post choice, and Fullback George (Ding Dong) Bell.

The latter, a Third Army track champion this year, was just hitting his stride at the end of last year and has been described by Dickerson as "possibly the most improved player on post." He played two seasons with U. of Indiana.

Zubaty, is the steady plugger type, overshadowed last year by the spectacular Frank Spaniel. He was all-state at Pennsylvania High in Claridge, Pa.

Line Class

CTC's line has been criticized as big but slow, but it boasts a goodly sprinkling of college talent and if it moves it can be a wrecker.

Among the starters and Sylvester Brown, Playoff for Florida A & M, tackle Forrest Lowe was with Mississippi State, and end Jack McGinley had three seasons with Quincy, Ill.

Fullback Bell is Mat Anglan, only 20 years old, but already a 270-pounder, and in all has a backfield average (also early) 195, also looks good.

Big Order Takes Post Sportsmen

A wave of overseas orders will take away some of Fort Benning's top sports personages in the next week.

Hardest hit by the latest levy was the Special Services sports office which will lose most of its veteran NCO crew.

They include Bill Delong, top assistant of Maj. Gene Myers, post sports officer; Phil Darbyshire, George Reid, in charge of swimming pools, Lee Simms, Gowdy Field groundskeeper, Gordon Bynum, of the Benning Country Club staff, Bill Ross, operations NCO, and Hadley Baird, in charge of Briant Wells Field House.

In addition, Briant Wells life guard Bob Folwell is up for discharge.

Counted Out

Jim (Moon) Mullins, former EUCOM featherweight champion, who has been one of the post's most popular and busiest referees for the past six months, is on orders to return to EUCOM.

Charlie Taylor, of the youth activities office and First Student Regiment sports office, is also on orders along with Fred Kaeserman, one of Benning's better known golfers.

George Macik, coach of the Infantry School Detachment boxing team also is shipping out.

Big Noise Sunday

The carnival atmosphere which dominated all Benning League games last season is due back for '52. Halftime entertainment is planned at all games. Flag raising ceremonies will precede Sunday's opener with the 122nd Army Band directed by WO William Trambath providing music throughout the day's action.

Eight Fighters Slug For ISD Despite Last-Place Prospect

Somebody has to be on the bottom in every sport and in boxing it looks like Infantry School Detachment has drawn the dubious distinction.

Of course, there are a couple of other ways of looking at it.

For one, despite the fact that the Profs have the smallest turnout of any ring team they offer their men for as many fights as they can get each week.

Some units with teams of equal size in prospect gave up the whole thing as a bad job from the start.

Former Champ

But George Macik keeps plugging along. He's the former Hawaiian department welterweight champion (1936-38) who now coaches the ISD gladiators.

Macik has eight team members at present, most of them in the lighter weight divisions. He regards James Hiller and Bob Collins as his two top men.

Collins has won two decisions and a TKO in class four competition. Hiller has lost two fights this summer, but he faces more rugged class two opponents.

Tough Guy

Hiller, from Canton, O., is a lightweight. He's tough but gets hurt by mid-section blows. Collins is a welter from Philadelphia.

Others on the squad include Byron Mortenson, bantamweight Darrel Bannister, middleweight Earl Davis, lightweight Vincent Smythe, and light middleweight Sylvester St. Cyr.

Mortensen is the only one of these who has fought. Greener than an emerald, the Powers, Mich., welterweight is long on guts and could develop with proper tutoring.

Hundred Bouts

Coach Macik has a long and varied background. Calling Pittsburgh, Pa., his home, but actually coming from a small town on the outskirts, Macik started his amateur boxing in '32.

When he entered the Army in 1934 he continued his ringstuffs, but has never fought a professional bout in over the 100 ring appearances.

The 35 - year - old master sergeant says that when he gets out of the Army, he would like to continue in the boxing game around Pittsburgh.

Six Softball Fields Get Good Backstops

Permanent backstops and fences will be installed on six softball fields here.

Three of the softball fields are in the Sand Hill area, two in troop housing areas on the Main Post, and another in the airborne area near Lawson Air Force Base.

The $6,250 project is being handled by the Rio Grand Fence Company of Columbus.

BIG SPLASH

Briant Wells Field House has an Olympic-size swimming pool which is open all year 'round.

Greenies Sure Of Cheering For All Games

Rooo-oll On! Green Wave! That will be part of the cheers heard from the ASU-ISD sections at Doughboy Stadium this season.

A letter sent by Capt. James Bennett, Sports officer, of ASU Provisional Group to Tulane University started the ball rolling. Green Wave is the official nickname of Tulane.

A few days later a letter with copies of the Tulane cheers was lying on the athletic office desk.

A phone call to the WAC Detachment brought forth Johnnie Winberry, Mary Waltman, Deloris Offerman, Betty Lozer, Jacquie Johnson, Mary Wartelle and Mercedes Reang as cheer leaders, with auxiliary cheer sections coming from units of ISD and ASU.

Official cheering workouts took place at the old Post Gym on this week in preparation for the ISD-ASU-Rams game Oct. 5.

FOOTBALL HERE AGAIN

The Fort Benning Football League competition gets underway Sunday with the CTC and the 508th Airborne meeting in Columbus Memorial Stadium.

BY LESTER DINOFF

The Infantry Center bossman himself, MAJ. GEN. ROBERT YOUNG, visited the practice fields of CTC and 508th Tuesday to get a personal preview of Sunday's opener . . . The general offered no predictions.

In an effort to maintain his good standing in the Ninety-Nine Percent Wrong Club, sports ed CHARLIE (TIGER) JOHNSON says it will be CTC, 20-14 . . . As a charter member of the same organization I like 508th, 24-18.

Red Devil Coach JIM PHILLIPS was quoted last week as saying: "I figure JACK FAUBION is the coach to beat and the Rams are the team to beat." . . . CTC Coach SCOOTER DICKERSON volleied: "If Phillips doesn't beat me Sunday, he can expect a call from me Monday. I want to read him his own quotes."

As long as we're adding fuel to the fire for the mentors, have this one from Faubion commenting on the Rams: "They act like a bunch of happy little kids." . . .

If there's a young fellow in the house who knows how to keep football statistics, we've a job and some by-lines awaiting him. Telephone 3535.

Winner of the game Sunday will be top dog in Sand Hill until teams meet again on Dec. 7 . . . GIL DOWNEY, Red Devil player, finally had the cast taken off his leg . . . David back PAUL BUCEY was a member of the Ohio All-Stars in baseball and basketball.

The Benning Football League operates under NCAA regulations with local ground rules added . . . Each post team allowed to dress 40 men per game, but can carry as many on squad as the coaches desire . . . GEORGE (DING DONG) BELL and BILL FUGH have been elected captains for the CTC eleven . . . If Bell doesn't live up to his great expectation, it will be Clang, Clang.

CLARENCE HOEDER was a right end for two years while a member of the Boston Blackhawks . . . CLAYTON DOTY, recent alumni of OCS, acquired the title of colonel due to his Tennessee drawl . . . SHELBY WOMACK was a member of the Louisiana All-State eleven while at Southwest Inst.

BILL VALKO, who hails from Waynesburg, Pa., was All-Valley choice while at West Virginia U . . . DARIO ROSE prior to entry in the service all a novice lightheavy champ on 1947 and 48 the Virginia AAU Golden Gloves in '48.

Coaches will be aided by an NCAA rule which calls for an official's time out after each kick by the offensive team . . . The old clipping rule of 1946 was revived forbidding all blocks from the rear. A timeout and a yardage penalty will be charged against the team making a substitution while the clock runneth.

Fire Prevention Week Set Oct. 5-11

National Fire Prevention Week will be observed here October 5-11 with special demonstrations of first aid and fire fighting equipment by personnel of the Fire Department.

Fire prevention lectures, demonstrations of fire fighting equipment and additional inspections have been scheduled by Col. Richard F. Ebbs, Fire Marshall, Maj. Ralph E. Hamilton, Deputy Fire Marshal, and Fire Chief Gilbert A. Ward Jr. They will be assisted by 127 fire fighters, including 89 civilians and 38 enlisted men.

Questionnaires on fire prevention have been prepared, and mimeographed copies will be distributed to school children and Scout organizations.

The importance of being fire conscious also will be stressed in notices appearing in the daily bulletin and on the screens of post theaters.

During the period July 1, 1951, to June 30, 1952 fire damage at The Infantry Center amounted to $22,000 as compared to $109,000 for the same period the previous year. Of this amount $20,311 was loss to government buildings alone and $1,706 was damage to contents of these buildings.

"This is the lowest fire loss Fort Benning has experienced in many years," said Chief Ward.

"This proves that good fire prevention pays good dividends," he added.

Fire loss is controlled here through the efforts of four regularly assigned fire inspectors headed by Willis M. Linder. These men carry out a fire prevention program the year round. The program consists of weekly inspections in an effort to detect and eliminate fire hazards, according to Colonel Ebbs.

According to Chief Ward, most fires here are caused by discarded lighted cigarets and matches, hot ashes being placed in inflammable containers, pennies being placed behind fuses, careless use of inflammable liquids or improperly fired heating systems.

Atomic War Taught at TIS

A course in atomic warfare is now being taught all students in The Infantry School.

The School's Combat Developments Section is responsible for compiling new developments, tactics and techniques to be included in the instruction and the director of instruction prepares the course of study from plans outlined by Army Field Forces and Department of the Army.

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., in a recent address to the National Wool Manufacturers Association convention in New York City said he believed it is "especially important for us to place atomic weapons in proper perspective—to explain what they cannot do, as well as what they can do—and what we think their impact on ground warfare will be."

He added that training in atomic weapons should include "not only publication of manuals to keep soldiers aware of atomic development but soldiers should also become accustomed to including atomic weapons in their tactical thinking."

Secretary Pace pointed out that the need for development of atomic weapons and of knowledge in individuals to use this "new addition to the Army's family of weapons producing firepower to support the role of the military might of the country—to defend the free world."

Lawson Wing Wins Safety Flying Plaque

The 434th Troop Carrier Wing was presented the Department of the Air Force plaque for meritorious achievement in Flying Safety at a review at Lawson Air Force Base last week.

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Douglass, 18th Air Force commander, made the presentation to Brig. Gen. Lacey V. Murrow, wing commander. On the stand with General Douglass and General Murrow was Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, and commandant of The Infantry School, Brig. Gen. Edward Alexander, Deputy Commander, 18th Air Force, Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Wing Staff officers.

In presenting the award, General Douglass said it was a great pleasure for him to make the presentation, and in behalf of the Commanding General, Tactical Air Command, extended congratulations to the Wing for its excellent flying safety record.

"It takes the entire Wing, working as a team, to perform in such an outstanding manner. It takes not just one person or group but all working together to accomplish such a record", the general said.

Army QMC Orders 25,000 Marine Corps Armor Suits

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Army troops in Korea will soon be wearing the Navy-developed body armor that has proven a "life saver" for front-line Marines.

The Army Quartermaster Corps has arranged with the Marine Corps to secure 25,000 suits for immediate delivery to the Far East.

The Marine Corps body armor was procured because of its immediate availability from industry on a quantity basis. However, the Army will continue limited procurement of its 12-layer flexible body armor to support field tests and develop volume production techniques.

Col. Green Gets TIS Post

Lt. Col. Duff Green, Jr., of Fredericksburg, Va., has been appointed to the Armored Committee of The Infantry School's Tactical Department.

Colonel Green came to Fort Benning from Camp Carson, Colo., where he was executive officer of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment. He had previously served in Korea with the 73rd Heavy Tank Battalion from August, 1951, to August, 1952.

Cardinal Featured On 198th FA Crest

The 198th Field Artillery Battalion's new distinctive insignia has received final approval and is now in the Office of the Quartermaster General awaiting manufacture, Lt. Col William J. Takacs, battalion commander, has announced.

Outstanding features of the crest are a red Kentucky Cardinal on a gold field, with four stars in a blue field above. A red border surrounds the central figures.

In preparation for over a year, the crest was first proposed in 1952, when the 198th was called to active duty from the Kentucky National Guard. Several sample designs were submitted to the Kentucky Adjutant General and the Quartermaster General for approval. An agreement was reached on the final design last spring.

198TH BATTALION CREST

Symbolism in the crest includes use of the Kentucky state bird, the cardinal, to identify the unit with its state of origin. The stars symbolize the units participation in four major U. S. wars; Mexican War, Civil War, Spanish - American War, and World War I, when the original coat of arms was approved.

Officially OQMG's heraldic division described the shield as "a Kentucky cardinal proper perched on a twig vert, on a chief azure four mullets of the first; all within a bordure gules."

Final approval of the bronze and manufacturer is expected soon, Col. enamel shield as produced by a Takacs said.

'Trooper, Rodeo Rider, Learns Landings Easy

BY PVT. VICTOR JOWERS

Lt. Bobby D. Jordan, a student in Company I, Airborne Battalion, had no difficulty learning "parachute landing falls," familiar to all "troopers." He's had a lot of practice falling off horses throughout much of his life.

He was "I" Company's entry in the Alabama-Georgia State Championship Rodeo, held recently at Gowdy Field. He competed in the bareback and saddle bronco-riding events, where he reached the semi-finals after a series of mishaps.

Mishaps Hit Him

His mishaps began early in the rodeo. The first horse reared in the chute and Lieutenant Jordan hit his head on the overhead brace, knocking him unconscious and injuring his left shoulder. "A poor parachute landing fall," he explained. To get even with the horse Lt. Jordan rode it to a standstill the next night.

Also on the same night, a horse named "Picnic," re-injured his shoulder, but not enough to prevent his graduation from airborne.

Since 1944 he has been an active member of the Rodeo Cowboy's Association and the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Associate.

College Rodeo Team

While studying at the University of New Mexico, Lt. Jordan was a member of the Rodeo Team for two years, acting as captain in the second year, and was delegate to the NIRA convention from the University.

He was also vice-president of the Boots and Saddle Club. This club, founded to preserve western horsemanship, customs and ideals, had the added job of sponsoring the Rodeo Team.

Lt. Jordan, after taking his jumps and competing in the rodeo stated, "I'd rather jump from a plane at one thousand feet, than be thrown from a horse at seven feet."

Library Tells Concert Plans

600 Hear Gen. Young at First P-TA Meet

More than 600 parents of children enrolled in the children's school system heard Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, term the education of school age youngsters "the most important activity that goes on at Fort Benning" in a speech Monday evening to members of the Parent-Teachers association at the opening meeting of the current school year.

The general indicated that the P-TA program has his complete and unqualified support.

Following Young was introduced by Col. Kenneth D. Macomber, President of the P-TA and chairman of the meeting.

Forty - six teachers, comprising the faculty of the Fort Benning school system, were introduced to the assembled parents by Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, school principal.

Lt. Col. Lewis T. Martin, former school officer at the Infantry Center, urged parents to help curb absenteeism by school pupils. He pointed out the adverse effect of poor attendance upon the school economy.

Plans for the annual children's Halloween party traditionally sponsored by the P-TA here were announced by Lt. Col. Roderick Weatherill, in charge of arrangements for the festival.

The business meeting was followed by an informal reception of parents by the faculty.

Motor Pool Shows Skits

A novel mock court pointing out traffic violations was staged last week by members of the Main Post Motor Pool at their monthly safety meeting.

Five skits were enacted portraying drunken driving, speeding, running a traffic light and failing to notice a warning traffic signal.

The violators were brought before the judge for lectures on violations of safety driving.

Maj. Emmet T. Logan, motor officer, said the program was planned by members of the motor pool during their off-duty time. The skits were written and directed by D. W. Hunt and Mrs. Leona Perry.

The group will hold its next safety meeting Oct. 29.

Army Wire Hookup Speeds Gear Data

(ANF) — New supply efficiency and economy are expected from a communications network recently installed by the Army's Signal Corps.

The modern service — a teletypewriter network — provides a central point with an up-to-the-minute, daily inventory of supplies and equipment at points scattered throughout the nation. It makes possible a speedy compilation of both shortages and surplus items.

Supply Information

Such supply information previously was reported to a national control point by mail, with a time lag ranging from four to fourteen days. Lag time now can be cut to less than a day.

Although the "teletype" reporting system was initiated for the use of all the Army's technical services which handle military supplies, the Signal Corps has become one of its own best customers, due to its dual function as a supply and communications source.

Revival Slated For W W II Radio Program

Plans are underway to revive a radio program similar to one aired over Columbus airway during World War II, according to Pvt. Terry Sizemore, representative of The Infantry Center special services office.

Staff members of radio station WRBL will write and produce the show, utilizing talent of Infantry Center soldiers and their dependents. The program will be presented through the cooperation of WRBL, the special services office and the public information office.

Present plans call for the first show to be aired in about three weeks from Theater No. 2.

Private Glassman reported. He said that talent is needed to get rehearsals for the first show underway.

"We're especially interested in people who have had radio experience," he said. "We need radio writers, actors and announcers, and anyone with talent suitable for radio consumption, such as singers. Dependents are welcome to try out for the show.

"The show will combine information about the Army, short skits, and musical productions. We're going to start on a once-a-month basis, but hope to make it a weekly. All rehearsals are expected to be held during normal duty hours," he concluded.

For further information, Private Glassman may be contacted at FB 3225, the soldier show shack.

Three-War Hookup

The Signal Corps' use of the network is between two long-distance depots and its central control point, Philadelphia. The two depots, at Sacramento, Calif., and Decatur, Ill., report daily stock balances via teletypewriter to the Signal Corps Stock Control Agency in Philadelphia.

By operating at night, the Technical Services Reporting Network is able to lease its circuits on a low rental rate and augment its equipment with teletypewriters used on other circuits during the day.

Supply information from each depot, because of the nightly transmittal schedule, reaches the control point in time to be consolidated and prepared for dissemination the following day.

First Major Use

First major use of teletyped circuit system was by the Army Quartermaster Corps. It was installed to connect the Quartermaster General in Washington, D. C. with seven field installations.

The Army Engineer Corps became the third technical service to adopt the new system. It now uses three circuits from its control point at Granite City, Ill., tying together 11 separate installations in the South, East and West.

In addition to being a user of its own service, the Army Signal Corps, maintains the equipment, supplies the operating personnel and arranges the leasing of circuits necessary to the operation of the supply reporting network.

Expansion of the Technical Services Reporting Network still is in its infancy, but the Army is confident the system will save both time and money in the future.

Fire Prevention Week

National Fire Prevention Week, begins Sunday, and it is only fitting that we take time out for a commendation of the Fort Benning Fire Department. From a total fire loss of $114,000 in 1950-51, our fire department slashed fire costs to $22,017 for the fiscal year just ended.

A breakdown of the losses for 1950-51 shows that damage to buildings totalled $23,000; the contents of buildings damaged or destroyed cost a staggering $86,000; and private property destroyed amounted to $5,000.

Now let's compare the figures for this year:

Building damage, $20,311. Contents, $1,706. Personal, property, none.

This is an admirable record the fire department has recorded in one short year, and one that we should all be thankful for, because no on can tell where a fire is going to strike next.

Fire Chief Gilbert A. Ward Jr. and his 127 firemen deserve a vote of thanks from every soldier and civilian here. Manning six stations at strategic points throughout the post, these men stand 24-hour guard over our lives and possessions.

National Fire Prevention Week yearly brings to focus the fire-fighting activities of hundreds of state, federal and private groups actively engaged in reducing the fire menace. But too often, after exhibiting an over-alert vigilance against a smoldering match during this one week, people revert back to normal after it has passed. Once more they carelessly flip their cigarette butts into dry grass, or leave their campfires smoldering in the woods.

Every year, thousands upon thousands of acres of our forest lands are burned through the carelessness and negligence of a few people. The man who drops his cigaret on a highway shoulder while speeding along in his car may not realize it, but unextinguished cigarets have been named as one of the most frequent causes of devastating forest fires that eat our timber.

Each time an acre of timber is burned, it drains another drop from the ever-decreasing bucket of our national resources.

Burned-over forest lands are good for nothing; animals desert them and trees require years and years to grow. By unbalancing nature's status quo, forest fires directly affect each and everyone of us.

Destroyed woodlands are not the only losses we suffer from fire. Cities annually lose millions of dollars in buildings and property damaged or destroyed by fire.

Despite the fact that the majority of these cities spend millions of dollars to maintain efficient fire-fighting forces, fires continue as a heart-filling fear to thousands of city dwellers.

We here at Benning are fortunate to have such an efficient fire department. But the fire department alone cannot fully protect us; it needs our help and cooperation. So let's give it to them. Let's not forget fire prevention after this week is over. Let's make every week of the 52 Fort Benning Fire Prevention Week, and cut our losses for 1952-53.

"I Pledge Allegiance . . . . "

How many times have we recited that since we were children? Those of us fortunate to be born here may take many of our privileges for granted. A person born in a foreign country who becomes a citizen of the U.S. knows what it is not be able to enjoy any freedom.

Last week was proclaimed "Citizenship Week" by Congress. This gives each of us a chance to stop and think—take stock and examine ourselves: Am I a good citizen, am I tolerant of my fellow man, do I examine the facts before I come to a conclusion, do I obey the laws and regulations, do I exercise my privilege to vote?

In about a month, people from all over this great nation will cast their votes to determine who will be the representatives in our government. But before anyone can vote he must register. Voting for Armed Forces personnel has been simplified. Federal law requires that Standard Form 76 be delivered to every person without request before the general election Nov. 4. This is for a ballot and his registration to vote in the national election.

The Department of Defense has published a pamphlet summarizing state voting laws to help untangle the problem for servicemen. Charts showing information for voting in different states have been posted in unit day rooms and orderly rooms. It is necessary to check this poster in order to register and vote in your state elections.

We as free men can select our government leaders. In totalitarian states they also hold elections such as under communist and fascist rule—a one-party election. The stooge vote for himself and the election is over.

One hundred thirty eight years ago Francis Scott Key wrote the Star Spangled Banner. That was during the War of 1812 when we established our freedom on the high seas. Today we are again trying to keep freedom alive throughout the world. Besides fighting for freedom, let us practice and exercise our privilege of citizenship every day.

Not all of us can write poetry or compose a song to show our appreciation for being Americans. But we can do our utmost to improve ourselves. Here in our country every vote counts. Are you going to make yours count?

Chaplain's Corner

The Only True Friend

By Chaplain (Capt.) Racy L. Akins

A certain man had three friends. The first of these he loved dearly; the second he also loved but not as well as the first; the third received but scant attention.

Now the king of that country one day dispatched a summons to this man to put in immediate appearance before the throne. His heart was filled with terror; his strength left him. He must seek the aid of his friends? He would beseech them to accompany him on the fearsome journey.

But the first flatly refused, without explanation, to go. With sinking heart he turned to the second, who replied, "I will go with you as far as the palace gates, but not beyond." Desperately he sought the neglected third friend. But this one assured him, "I can go with you all the way and be with you at the throne."

Now, the first friend is a man's money and other material possessions, which he must leave behind when he goes from this life into God's eternity and the judgment. For it is written. "Riches profit not in the day of wrath", and "The Fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee."

The second friend is our family and loved ones, who at our death can accompany us to the graveside, but no further. For again it is written, "None can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him," and "Everyone of us shall give account of himself to God."

The third friend is the only one who can accompany us, even Him who died and rose again. For in the Word it is written, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me," and "I will go forth in the strength of the Lord."

Now, when can we expect the summons to come? Unfortunately, that is out of our province. We do not know! A wise rabbi once told his students, "prepare to meet God on the day before you die." "But when can we know that day?" they would ask. "We cannot. Therefore we must be ever ready to meet Him."

And I close my little modern parable with a word from Phillips Brooks:

"The only way to die in peace with God is to live in peace with Him."

Naguib Vows to Oust British From Nile

The new premier of Egypt, Gen. Mohamed Naguib has vowed to oust the British from the Nile Valley.

Making a tour of Northwest Egypt the new strongman of the Middle East, who sent King Farouk into exile, stated that he did not feel that the new movement in Egypt would be complete until the evacuation of the Nile by England and the unification of Egypt and the Sudan was accomplished.

Observers accompanying Naguib said that the enthusiasm with which he was greeted by the common people was the most spontaneous ever staged in modern times for a Middle Eastern leader.

Everywhere he went he was greeted by cotton and corn farmers with cries of "Long live the enemy of our enemies, the landlords." The cry was a reference to recent Egyptian legislation breaking up the vast land holdings of the wealthy for sale to the poor.

GENGHIS KHAN by Harold Lamb. Doubleday and Co., Inc.

More than 750 years ago the hordes of Genghis Khan swept across Asia and threatened to engulf the Christian nations of western Europe. Great cities were demolished, lands laid waste and entire armies routed. It is said that 100,000 Turks were killed in a single battle.

Before destiny had run its course Genghis Khan ruled approximately one - half of the world. History can show no rival to the Khan. The exploits of Alexander, Napoleon and other great conquerors pale in comparison.

Although he could not write he established a code of laws which guided more than 80 nations for several hundred years. So complete was his rule of his empire that it was boasted that "a virgin with a sack of gold could ride unharmed from one border of his empire to the other."

In his book Harold Lamb has accurately portrayed the exploits of history's greatest warrior whose conquests were halted only by death.

THE KEY MAN by Clarence Buddington Kelland. Harpe and Brothers.

The Key Man is Kelland's first crime - adventure behind the scenes of big-time television.

In essence it is the story of Peter Mortain, director, who finds himself unwittingly involved in a conspiracy of smuggling and blackmail.

Mortain suspects something when a new soprano is hired for the show. Although she can sing and is nice to look at, he believes she was hired for less obvious talents.

His suspicions are justified when he finds a corpse in his apartment and later discovers that for some reason unknown to him, he is the key man in the conspiracy.

'Electronic Brain' Solves Tremendous Problems

(ANF) — The Army's newest "electronic brain" can multiply 642,824,734,549 times 589,243,739,378 and come up with the right answer — 384,565,872,961,263,588,370,522 — (sextillion) — in one-thousandth of a second.

Solving such eyebrow-raisers is all in a day's work for ORDVAC — Ordnance Discrete Variable Automatic Computer. This "brain" can solve in a jiffy mathematical problems that would make all but the experts throw up their hands in despair. It is 100,000 times faster than the fastest human arithmetician on the tougher problems, and it can do as much work in a week as the best figures expert equipped with a desk calculator could do in 20 centuries.

Termed "Invaluable"

ORDVAC is invaluable to the Army, for many improvements in modern warfare can be accepted only on the basis of results evaluations. Located at the Army Ordnance Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Md., much of ORDVAC's time is spent in computing trajectories of missiles, bombing tables, firing charts, and air flow problems.

The "brain" has made it possible to make improvements on a project still on the drawing board, resulting in a big savings for the Army and the taxpayer.

Leading Feature

A leading feature of the "brain" is its spacious and accurate memory. The memory — capable of storing 1,024 pieces of information on the face of one tube, or 40,960 pieces of information on all 40 of its tubes—acts as a storage house for all instructions and intermediate results.

When it needs a piece of information, it extracts it from the tubes in 36 millionths of a second. Notories of its kind in the world.

other computer's "memory" is both so large and so fast.

Modified Teletype Used

In solving problems, mathematical information is fed into and taken from the computor on modified teletype units. Their use permits scientific research crews several thousand miles distant from the "brain" at Aberdeen to send mathematical problems and receive the results via commercial teletype. The "brain" can be used conveniently by any group having a teletype outlet at its disposal.

Installed in the Computing Laboratory of Ballistic Research at Aberdeen in February 1952, the small and compact computer took its place alongside other high-seed electronic computers—the ENLAC and EDVAC.

Built for the Army by the University of Illinois, ORDVAC has greatly enhanced the computing facilities at Aberdeen Proving Ground. It has made the computing laboratory one of the most modern and best equipped laboratories in the world.

PLATTER CHATTER

MOONLIGHT ON THE GANGES and APRIL IN PARIS . . . A new discing by the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra, the most enthusiastically received dance band since the '30's, having already established themselves as one of the truly great dance bands of our time. Topside is strictly instrumental and dancable. Flipover, April in Paris, another old favorite, has a really unusual vocal.

MIGHTY LONESOME FEELIN' . . . is a real tear-jerker, sung as only June Valli can sing. Flipside of this new RCA Victor release by June is TABOO, telling of a fierce love affair with drumbeats in the background supplying exotic oriental atmosphere.

TENNESSEE RAG and MY LITTLE GIRL . . . These are the first sides by a new record group, The Country All-Stars. Chet Atkins' guitar sparks the trio, while Homer Haynes and Kenneth Burns (Homer and Jethro) supply the balance of the stellar instrumental work in this fast playing, fleet fingered combination.

MAN SMART (WOMAN SMARTER) and JERRY, (THIS TIMBER GOT TO ROLL) . . . Folks singer Harry Belafonte, current sensation of New York Cafe Society, has waxed two more sides with a different Pop approach. In Jerry, he sings the praises of an Arkansas mule, while relating an old folk story of the logging camps. Flipside is an entirely different tempo, but the style and delivery are in every way explosive as topside.

ME AND MY PIANO . . . Eddie "Piano" Miller gives out with an example of the music that earned him his nickname on this new platter. Me and My Piano is fast honky-tonk, while flip, THAT OLD FASHIONED RAG, is slightly slower tempo, but full of the same barroom atmosphere. Both feature a solid rhythm beat, with the drummer's block work adding considerably to the total effect.

BLUES IN ADVANCE and BELLA MUSICA . . . America's "Sweetheart of Song," Dinah Shore, makes another of her welcome entries in the current RCA Victor listing, this time with two of her most exciting recorded performances. Topside is the kind of blues Dinah sings so well, receiving added impetus from a haunting echo effect and Henri Rene's deep-down orchestration. Flipside, greatly contrasting in tempo, is one of these happy, frollicking numbers to which Dinah adds charm and personality, singing merrily over top support from band and chorus.

LETS PRETEND and THE EVERLASTING HILLS OF OKLAHOMA . . . All-time western favorites, The Sons of the Pioneers again serve up ample proof of their stature in the horsey set with a new coupling that ranks with their best. This new platter features a ballad on topside, penned by Bob Nolan, and a favorite cowboy classic on flip. The Pioneers do both in their accepted style, giving full body to the differing tempos and sentiment.

I'M IN THE MOOD FOR LOVE . . . A new album by Eddie Fisher with Hugo Winterhalter and Orchestra. Romantic singer Eddie Fisher gives out with eight melodic standards in this appropriately titled album. (I'm in the Mood For Love, You'll Never Know, Bold Love, Everything I have is Yours, That Old Feeling, Full Moon And Empty Arms, I'll Get By, and I've Got You Under My Skin.)

Kid's School Starts Band

The Children's School System is organizing a band under the direction of Delwin E. Knierim, instrumental music teacher, Mrs. Hazel Scudder, principal, reported.

Kniering has already given some 300 children aptitude tests in rhythm and pitch. He said he expects to form a band of 50 or more pieces from this group.

A meeting of parents interested in having their children join the band is scheduled for tonight at 8 in Main Post School No. 1.

Functions of the band and procurement of instruments will be discussed at the meeting, Knierim said. All children will be required to furnish their own instruments unless they play one of the instruments the school system has on hand.

Dutchmen Say Tis 'Excellent'

The Dutch Army enlisted men attending The Infantry School have termed excellent the instruction they are recovering in a communication course.

Sgt. Gerardus D. Jossee of the Royal Military Academy at Breda said he was speaking for the group when he praised both the instructors and the instruction in the school's Communications Department.

"There are two things I particularly miss, however," said Sgt. Jossee " . . . Dutch meat and potatoes."

Different Diet

Although the American diet is different from that in Holland, "we have become used to it," Jossee says.

The Dutch non-commissioned officers arrived in the U. S. last June, but haven't seen much of the country except New York City and Fort Benning. As a result they won't venture an opinion on life in the U. S. compared with their native Holland.

Hose Abundance

One thing which has impressed them is the abundance of nylon hose. They all plan to take some back to Holland "since it is still difficult to obtain at home."

The Dutch NCOs, who will return to Holland Oct. 6 or 7, include, in addition to Jossee, Sgt. Johannes G. Laros of the Princess Irene Guard Regiment, M-Sgt. Hendrik W. Ter Haar of the NCO Training Center, M-Sgt. Johannes C. Van Wijk of the Chasse Heavy Regiment M-Sgt. Piet Vergeer of the Menno v Coehoorn Mortar Regiment and Sgt. Benjamin Sandars of the Infantry Officer Candidate School.

NCCS Roller Club Slates Skate Show

The USO NCCS servicemen's club on Ninth Street will present a roller skating show Oct. 4 at 9 p.m. titled "Slaughter On First Avenue."

Under the direction of Lt. A. D. Neely, the show has a cast of 70 people. Lieutenant Neely reported that beginning Oct. 12 the club will present classes in roller skating for interested servicemen.

The classes will include free style skating, spinning jumping and figures. The roller rink at the club is open every evening from 6 to 11 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. Shoe skates are available at the club.

Nichols Heads Benning End Of 'Givers' Drive

David J. Nichols has been named chairman of the Fort Benning committee for the United Givers, Inc., 1952 drive, Director James Holmes of Columbus has announced.

An administrative assistant in the civilian personnel division, Mr. Nichols is also chairman of the Fort Benning civilian Defense Bond Drive.

As committee chairman for the United Givers campaign, he will work with Chairman Robert W. Brown, editor of the Columbus Ledger, in coordinating liaison between the Fort Benning Community Chest and the UG drive.

"Civilian employes at the post are in a peculiar position," Mr. Brown said. "Unlike most of us, they are asked to support both the Fort Benning Community Chest and the many valuable welfare recreational, educational and health services connected with United Givers."

Mr. Brown went on to point out that "they are not being asked to duplicate donations or to contribute more than their share. The Chest and United Givers are somewhat complimentary, although separate organizations. Civilian employes are being asked only to give what they consider their fair share, prorated between the two drives."

Mr. Nichols joined the civilian personnel division here last July. He was formerly organization and methods examiner in the comptroller's office at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Transport Unit Sets Record

The First Transportation Battalion set a new record Sunday when it transported over 7,000 men to Columbus in less than an hour.

Employing 214 vehicles, including 37 passenger buses and 20 passenger two-and one-half ton trucks, the battalion moved the troops to Columbus' Memorial Stadium for a football game between Combat Training Command and 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

This marked the largest organization movement ever attempted at The Infantry Center, reported Lt. Col. Willard M. Wolfe, battalion commander.

WACs Nab German Car Thief In Best 'Sherlock' Tradition

(ANF)—The private eye sometimes is a sergeant.

So learned two Frankfurt, Germany, car thieves who were foiled by a group of determined WACs.

Sfc. Dorothy Sheaf of Rutherford, N. J., while out for an evening stroll, spotted the car that had been stolen from her commanding officer a few days before.

She ran to the WAC billets and recruited several volunteers to help her with the man hunt.

The car was parked in front of a theater. The skirted shamuses questioned store keepers in the neighborhood and obtained descriptions of the two men who had driven up in the car.

Awaiting the arrival of military police, the female "finger men" kept a sharp-eyed watch for the alleged crooks.

Two Men Leave

Before the MPs could get to the scene, two men answering the description left the theater. Evident-ly sensing danger, the wary culprits ignored the car and hurriedly walked away.

The watchful women shadowed the two men to a cafe about a mile away in a residential district.

Word went back along the line and the WACs directed the MPs to the cafe. There the women put the finger on the offenders and the MPs made the arrest.

A shopkeeper subsequently identified the men as the ones he saw leaving the stolen car at the theater.

Navy Crews Swap Ships, Save U.S. $$

BAYONNE, N. J. (AFPS)— For the first time in Naval history, the entire compement of two carriers "swapped" ships in an operation estimated to have saved $1,500,000.

Crew members of the 27,000-ton carriers Shangri La and Antietam carried out a mass exodus here recently, from shipper on down to seaman apprentice.

The Shangri La is being sent from the Atlantic Reserve Fleet to the Pacific Reserve Fleet, the Antietam from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Had the original crews remained on board their ships, the government would have had to pay the cost of transporting the dependents of nearly 3,000 men across the continent.

Commands Two Carriers

In making the change, Capt. Benjamin B. C. Lovett, who assumed command of the Shangri La, was actually in command of both flattops during the brief interval between the two ceremonies. Capt. Samuel G. Mitchell, former Shangri La skipper, took over as CO of the Antietam.

The Antietam recently returned from a tour of duty in Far Eastern waters. She will undergo conversion for the launching of jet aircraft and other modernization at the New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

After making her return to the West Coast, the Shangri La will be placed in the mothball fleet and her crew assigned to other ships of the Pacific Fleet.

Regular Units Slated to Give Basic Training

WASHINGTON (AFPS) In a move designed to train inductees effectively and at the same time more economically, the Army has assigned basic training to five General Reserve divisions and several non-division units.

Selective Service calls for 71,000 men in the next two months encouraged the move. The General Reserve includes statewide Army Troops whose mission is to be trained, equipped and ready for immediate duty. These units will provide 16 weeks of basic training to men who would have been sent to replacement training centers or training divisions.

Post-basic assignments for these trainees will be made in the same manner as if they had gone through a training center.

September's inductees training with General Reserve units are being sent to Camp Atterbury, Ind., and Camp Rucker, Ala., with the 31st and 47th Infantry Divisions. In October, the 11th Airborne, the 1st Armored and the 37th Infantry divisions will train recruits. Those units will continue to function as part of the General Reserve force despite their added missions.

Army Obtains Napalm Patent

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — After nearly 10 years use of napalm in combat, a patent covering the early major working in its development has been obtained by the Army Chemical Corps.

Dr. Louis F. Fieser, a professor of organic chemistry at Harvard University, and a group of colleagues began the search for a gasoline - thickening agent for use as flamethrower fuel shortly before Pearl Harbor. Their interest at that time was in the possible use of rubber mixed with gasoline.

With the Japanese aggression, the rubber supplies were cut off and the scientists had to seek some other thickening agent.

As a result, their research led to the present napalm, made basically of the aluminum soaps of coconut fatty acids; aluminum naphthenate and unsaturated fatty acids.

The application for the patent was filed in 1943, but due to national security implications, issuance of the patent was held up until early last month.

The patent, to which the rights were issued, has assigned to the U. S. Government for use by the Army. The patent covers the thickening composition as well as the filled incendiary.

Military men and women paid more than $17,000,000 in income taxes during the fiscal year 1951, Treasury reports. Income taxes withheld from military salaries during that year was $107,588,540.

AMATEUR REPAIRMAN OPERATES ADDRESSOGRAPH
Cpl. Thornton With Machine Similar To One He Repaired

Corporal Saves Machine From Scrap, Saves $1,500

By applying a little mechanical talent Corporal C. B. Thornton of Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Brigade, was able to repair a worn-out Graphotype machine and save it from being galvaged.

Cpl. Thornton works in the Addressograph Section at Brigade headquarters, under the supervision of 1st Lt. Edith Reeg, assistant Brigade adjutant. Lt. Reeg also is the Management and Improvement officer for the 1st Student Brigade.

When Cpl. Thornton was first assigned to the section he noticed that one machine was not being used. After making inquiry he was told that the machine was worn out, and that it was to be turned in as salvage.

Figuring that he had nothing to lose, Cpl. Thornton began to tear it down during his spare time. By using some spare parts, and doing a little welding he was able to put the machine back into operation. It is now being used to print metal plates for the addressograph machines and dog tags. The machine has now been in operation for the last eight months.

When you realize that a new machine would cost around $1,500 — it can readily been seen how valuable Cpl. Thornton's repair job was to the section," stated Lieutenant Reeg. "This is especially true since the ten-year repair guarantee on the machine had expired," she said.

Last month Cpl. Thornton held an addressograph class for five men. The classes, which were held four hours each day for two weeks, taught the men now to run the machines and establish the type of system which Brigade plans to use in processing student officer classes. These men are now operating similiar sections in the First Officer Candidate Regiment, First Student Regiment, and Sec Student Regiment.

At the present time the section is developing plans for processing all of the cards which each student attending classes in the Brigade operation gets under way.

must have. Each student is required to have about 18 different cards, and they will be processed by the section. About 400 sets of cards will be turned out each week when the

Infantry Blue Insignia Set For Oct. Issue

Blue shoulder cord, collar and cap insignia and scarf will be issued to Infantry troops the latter part of October.

These items are designed to enhance the prestige of the Infantry and identify combat-ready Infantry units of the Army, Lt. Col. Fred Koenig, Infantry Center quartermaster said.

The blue shoulder cord will be formed by a series of interlocking square knots around a center cord. It will be worn over the right shoulder on both summer and winter uniforms.

The blue plastic collar insignia will be worn under the present insignia so that a blue outline appears. The cap insignia, also of blue plastic, will be worn in a similar manner. This latter item will be optional.

A nine-inch wide rayon scarf of Infantry blue will be tucked beneath the collar of the OD jacket. Post commanders will be responsible for prescribing the manner in which the scarf will be worn with the summer uniforms.

Both officers and enlisted men will wear the blue scarf and cord, while the blue cap and collar insignia will be worn by enlisted men only.

Jet-Propelled 'Copter Shown

TORRANCE, Calif. (AFPS) — A jet-propelled one-man helicopter that may be used in future military operations was demonstrated recently at the Municipal Airport here. The collapsible craft, known as the XH-26 Jet Jeep, successfully executed aerial maneuvers as hundreds of spectators including Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., looked on.

The 300-pound craft is the first pulse-jet helicopter for military service. It is powered by two jet units resembling stove pipes, attached to the ends of its whirling rotor blade.

The midget jet 'copter can be hauled in a jeep trailer or folded up to fit into a container 5 by 5 by 11 feet, which can be dropped by parachute. Its top speed is 60 mph and it can stay aloft for an hour and a half. The new 'copter's work load is estimated at 600 pounds, twice its own weight.

Hailing this 'copter development, Sec. Pace commented: "Even though we've not begun to exhaust the infinite purposes for which it may be used, the Army recognizes that this weapon like all others must be geared to the jet and atomic age."

Army 'Copter Makes Flying Ambulance

Speed and maneuverability make the Army's H-13 helicopter an efficient "flying ambulance" for wounded soldiers in Korea.

The H-13 can take off from a medical clearing station air strip on the Korea shore and five minutes later land on the deck of a hospital ship 16 miles away.

In a recent evacuation maiden, the USS Consolation was equipped with a 60 by 60-foot landing platform for the H-13. Eighteen Navy men, including signal men, medics and firefighters, handled the landing operation.

Rams-Greenies Up Sunday

The other two entries in the Fort Benning Football League sweepstakes—Special Troops' Rams and ISD-ASU's Green Wave—break from the barrier Sunday afternoon in a game that has more angles than a successful horse track bout.

Kickoff is at 2 p.m. at Doughboy Stadium, the first action of the official Benning semester at the historic main post pigskin pit and a crowd of more than 10,000 is expected to answer the lure of a promising battle. Baker High school band of Columbus will be featured at half time.

The Rams rate a one-to-two touchdown favoritism after a 38-0 rout of Shaw Air Force Base and a 6-0 win over a rugged 82nd Airborne Artillery in non-league tuneups.

Rams Champs

They grabbed the championship marbles last year with six wins, no losses and two ties and went on to cop the Geechee Bowl crown in Savannah, with a fair sprinkling of the same talent which will be in Sunday's lineup.

Ironically enough, it was the Green Wave's present coach, Black Jack Faubion, who mentored the Rams through unbeaten in '51, and he did a good share of leg work in rounding up the '52 squad before he realized there would be some changes in allegience made.

Faubion Feared

Probably the most feared coach on post, Faubion turned a hodgepodge slew of candidates from ISD and ASU into a well-knit grid machine which clicked off a 25-0 win against Donaldson Air Force Base two weeks ago.

But that prep session was costly, Harold Manley, a star from U. of Alabama who picked up nearly half of the Greenies' ground gain against the Flyers, twisted his knee in the second half and almost positively will be a bench jockey Sunday.

Greenies Game

In larger part, the remaining Greenies are game to the limit, but inexperienced. Most of the offensive burden will be saddled to the signal calling and pitching arm of Charlie Leonard, a 170-pounder from Florida A & M that you can call quarterback without tongue in cheek.

Ken Boeh, 185, of last year's Rams, and Eddie Hansen, from U. of Oregon, figure to handle most of the running with Manley out. Hansen showed well against Donaldson but the surprise of that game was the Green Wave's steady defense, which features Fred Fahrenkrug, All-Post guard from Texas A & M.

Jammed-In Crowd Saw Him Gain 97 Y ards In Red Devils' Decisive Victory

20,000-Plus See 508th Beat CTC, 20-6, In Opener

The 508th Airborne wrote the first 1952 order for victory champagne by uncorking the Fort Benning Football League race with a 20-6 pop over Combat Training Command heard by a record 20,000-plus Sunday at downtown Memorial Stadium.

It was the largest crowd for a Benning opener since the service-swelled days of World War II. The Red Devils gave them a real show by coming off the deck from an 0-6 first quarter deficit to score in each of the remaining periods.

Statistics made it look pretty even, and the Commanders did have three drives which carried inside the Airborne's 15, but the die was cast after the 508th shook off the first stanza butter fingering and buckled CTC's big yet woefully inexperienced line.

GROUND EATERS

The maroon - clad warriors of freshman Coach Jim Phillips staged a surprisingly versatile offensive show on the ground with All-Post back Bill Dietz, halfback Paul Bucey and fullback Crayton Mast in featured roles, while CTC wilted to a net gain of 25 yards in the final frame.

Dietz smashed through the tackle slots 11 times for a net gain of 97 yards, put Bucey, playing as expected from him, on Mast's all-around performance—he also called the plays—was the real stunner.

The 23-year old Euclid, O., 195-pounder was being groomed as a guard as late as last week, the position he played in two years at a place called Fullerton Junior College.

He'll be better with experience in his new job, but Sunday he brought on the cheers of the highly partisan mob with TD scampers of 12 and 14 yards and a 25-yard broken field dash that was nullified by a penalty.

Bucey, another Buckeye youth who played with the Ohio State fros, averaged 5.6 yards on seven carries.

SHINING LIGHTS

In the Airborne line, tackles Bobby Miles and Willard Buza, 230, and guard Pat Lockman were shining lights.

It seems George (Ding Dong) Ball should get mention sooner than the 10th paragraph for gaining 7.4 yards on each of 20 runs, but alas poor George was one of the very few bright notes in the CTC attack.

Proof of this is that he netted 147 yards of the Commanders' total 204-yard ground offense. The 23-year old Gary, Ind., 178-pounder blitzed inside and outside with equal ease.

After CTC's Marion Gaddy had recovered Gene Cain's fumble on the Red Devil 20, Ball sliced off tackle for 14 yards to the six, and then bucked center to the one. Coach Cecil Dickerson, who had a

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

YOUTH WAS served royally Sunday, all except this youthful gridiron handicapper, who found himself handicapped indeed after picking Combat Training Command to manhandle 508th Airborne in the Fort Benning League curtain raiser. This since-beleagured bureau had followed the sports maxim of always stringing along with a winner, and hadn't CTC clobbered the frisky Red Devils twice last year?

My crystal gazing went afoul, egad, when what I suspected was a fly speck, planted there by a lackey from the jealous Lapta League in good old Siberia, turned out to be the X that marked the spot where Tom Mesereau hand picked Jim Phillips for his successor as 508th coach.

Phillips is just 25 years old and until last Sunday had been suspected by rival Benning mentors of suffering from a slight case of dampness behind the coaching ears. Obviously, Mesereau, who had Jamsey-boy as a private on his 11th Airborne team, which won the Pacific Theatre championship in 1946, and on his 1951 508th team as a first Lieutenant, thought differently.

Phillips showed a satisfactory command of coaching fundamentals and an excellent ability to extract the utmost from his men in directing them to their 25-6-6 inaugural triumph, proving he learned as well as a wingback at Clemson in 1945, when he was 17, and as a T quarterback with Arkansas in 1948-49.

Suddenly confronted with the loss of two of his regular backs when Gil Downey, of TCU, and Bill Redmond, All-Post honorable mention, suffered drill injuries, the handsome freshman coach avoided disaster by changing Crayton Mast from guard to fullback with less than a week's practice, a move that displaced Bill Dietz, who was only selected unanimously as 1951 All-Post fullback.

"I would have been disappointed if Dietz hadn't performed spectacularly wherever I used him," said Phillips by way of explanation. "As for Mast, he came to me after we missed a conversion against Fort Bragg and pointed out that their end was always crashing on those plays. He suggested running the next conversion around the hole left open by that end, and I let him. When Redmond got hurt, I thought of Mast. He's the fastest lineman I have and from an academic standpoint probably knows as much about the game as any player on the post. That's why he was calling the plays instead of the quarterback Sunday."

Phillips attributed Sunday's success to his defensive team, which held up admirably in the face of a slew of early fumbles blamed on nervousness of the young team performing before the largest crowd of their lives, and physical conditioning superior to that of CTC. As a whole, however, the game drew raspberries on many technical points from a lot of Benning critics hardened to top flight competition in the post circuit, rival coaches included.

This charge was answered by Phillips with a wry, "we weren't showing anything we didn't have to. I'll settle for a 7-6 victory any time and been as much of our stuff under cover as possible." Which probably explains why although CTC was using an eight and even a nine-man line against them a goodly portion of the time, the 508th boys only twice broke to at crucial moments with a touch who spread for passes.

Phillips is rightfully reluctant to discuss even those specially plays which he sanctioned, but with football scouting reports at his elbow on an all-game basis I'm a good guess that he has a complete set of spread variations among the 37 plays he employs with the 508th.

All of which reveals an amazingly astute attitude for a young

508th Opens Post Football Schedule

A highly favored 508th Red Devil football team will take the field at 2 p.m. Saturday for their second non-league game as they play host to Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., at Doughboy Stadium. About 5,000 fans are expected.

The 508th, in their first start, dropped an 18-13 decision to the 505th Airborne at Fort Bragg, N. C., but bounced back to cop the 1952 Fort Benning Football League opener beating the Combat Training Command, 20-6, before 20,000 fans in Columbus.

Donaldson was swamped 25-0 by ISD-ASU Green Wave two weeks ago.

Underdogs

The airborne footballers were underdogs before game time in the opener, but during the actual playing, they pulled themselves together to rack up an impressive and decisive victory over the CTC, who had beat them twice last year.

One of the big question marks on the 508th team is who will call the signals and do the passing. Coach Jim Phillips used his fullback, Crayton Mast, to call the plays and just had the quarterbacks handling the ball.

Phillips had converted Mast, a former Fullerton Junior College player, from guard to fullback and the Indiana paratrooper really showed the fans how football should be played. At present he is a certainty for All-Post, mention at the conclusion of the season. That is, if his caliber of play continues on the same course.

Dies Shifted

Another one of Phillips transformations is the shifting of Big Bill Diets from the fullback slot to halfback. Dietz, 1951 unanimous choice for All-Post fullback, showed his versatility by reeling off the yardage in ground gaining plays.

Paul Bucey, former Ohio State freshman, is another one of the fresh players who deserves mention. Operating out of left half, Bucey's dashes around end for yardage brought the bowling fans to their feet.

Touchdowns

Bucey scored the second Devil TD while Mast plunged over for the first and third. Bill Stevens did the converting, booting two out of three through the uprights.

The 508th last season was an in and out record of five games won, five lost and one tied. They were a hot and cold outfit, winning the games they should have lost, then losing a few games that fans felt they should have won.

This year however, the Devils have shown an ability to be pointed about to the early stages of the game, and then bounce back to win. Last season found Benning opponents taking advantage of early Devil mistakes to pile up leads that the 508th couldn't overcome.

Seven Bouts On Slate Tonight

The heir apparent to the Fort Benning heavyweight title, Ben Robinson of ASU, will tangle with Lou Barnes of First Student Regiment, in the featured three-rounder of seven amateur bouts scheduled at 8 o'clock tonight at Gowdy Field.

Robinson, former EUCOM champion, and Barnes scrapped earlier this month with Robinson scoring a TKO in the third stanza. A rematch was scheduled last week but Barnes could not pass the medical exam Thursday afternoon due to a cut over his eye that was not fully healed.

All fighters must undergo a rigid physical checkup prior to entering the ring.

Best Heavy

Robinson is by far the best heavyweight in Fort Benning boxing circles at present and looms as the most spectacular since 1950 when Buck DeCordova, who recently turned professional, held the title.

This is the only class one bout scheduled on the card.

In the other two top bouts, lightweight August Wolf, of 508th, meets Willie Wright of ASU and George Blackburn, of ASU, tangles with Willis Parker, of CTC, in a welterweight clash.

The Wolf-Wright and Blackburn-Parker fights are class three competition. Parker, however, is a class four fighter who is challenging up the ladder.

Remaining Card

In the other bouts on the card, bantamweight Bobby Rodiques of 508th meets Joe Clark of First SR; welterweight Byron Mortensen of ISD meets Donald Whorf of ASU; light middleweight Sylvester St. Cyr of ISD meets Vincent Marshall of First SR; middleweight Everett Keller of 508th meets Robert Walker of CTC.

Boxing Standings

Points are awarded on a 5-4-3-2-1 basis to winning fighters in each of the five amateur classes. Fighters are divided into classification according to their experience, the best men rated class one and so on.

CURRENT STANDINGS

Team	P. Fts.	D.C.	T.P.
ASU Provisional Group	37	5	42
First Student Regiment	22	13	35

DeCordova Set To Meet Smith Monday Night

Buck DeCordova, former heavyweight and Third Army champion while stationed at Fort Benning, has signed to meet Billy Smith of Aiken, S. C., in the feature 10-rounder in Monday nights professional fights at downtown Arena.

In their only previous meeting, DeCordova won a TKO in the final tenth round. In that bout Smith proved to be a tough opponent and was even on points until that stanza.

DeCordova lost his last fight to Billy Wilson of Hickory, N. C., by a TKO when he was unable to answer the bell in the fifth round.

This will be the first fight for Smith since he lost to DeCordova and will be the first fight for the Columbus boxer since he lost to Wilson.

DeCordova, 23 years old, feels as though he did not give his best in his last bout and is out to redeem himself. His future plans call for a career in boxing.

First Student Regiment, nosed out in last spring's boxing championship by ASU Provisional Group took over second place in the post's boxing standings and dropped the 508th Airborne into third place after last Thursday night's fights at Gowdy Field before 1,500 fans.

ASU still, however, has a firm hold on the top rung of the ladder, while CTC and ISD are fourth and fifth respectively.

Claude Chapman, light heavyweight FECOM champion now boxing for ASU, scored a knockout over James Boyd of First SR, the Benning light heavyweight champion, in 1:14 of the 3rd round in their second meeting this season.

First Loss

Boyd, 171½, was undefeated until he lost a decision to Chapman on Sept. 2.

Chapman, 169¾, behind in points until the knockout, dropped the Benning champ to the canvas fo the count with a flashing left to the head. Boyd went down heavily hitting his head on the ring floor with a solid thump.

In the other Class One fight, Leonard James, the Third Army champion slugger proved that he still is the master by scoring a decision the 508th, a Class Two challenger.

First Start

James, 128¾, wearing First SR colors, made his first start of the season and is one of the two Fort Benning champs still available. Welterweight Earnest Hall remains, but light middleweight Ray Lee has turned professional.

Prelims

In the other bouts of the card, Byron Mortensen, 145¼ of ISD decisioned John Liggett, 139¾ of CTC; Jimmy Gregory, 138¾ of First SR decisioned Frederick Douglas, 136 of CTC; Samuel Martin, 147 of First SR decisioned Robert Collins, 143¾ of ISD; Robert Walker 161¾ of CTC decisioned Everett Keller, 161¼ of 508; William Ray, 138½ of 508 stopped Paul Totten 139¼ of First SR in the third; Gordon VanLoo, 156 of First ST stopped Joan Cassiliano, 156 of 508 in 2:32 of first; Ray Leutz, 131¾ of 508 was awarded win over James Hiller, 131¼ of ISD. Hiller lost amateur standing for fighting a professional bout last week.

fellow who has no ambitions as a football coach. Phillips says flatly that this is his first and last semester as a mentor.

"This is a worrying game," he said, and somewhat embarrassed admitted, "I've got fever blisters all over my lip from sweating that one out Sunday. I puffed enough cigarettes to be carried away in a cloud of smoke, and there's no such thing as telling yourself you're not going to worry about a game. The biggest difference I notice in changing from a player to a coach, is the helplessness you feel. As a player you know you can do something physically toward winning or losing, but as a coach you suggest to the players what to do, and then you pray."

Phillips is not alone in his youth. His line coach is Dick Thomas, who got his experience with the 11th Airborne, and Donald LeBlanc, end coach, who has garnered his sports experience in the Army. The "veteran" of the crew is Henry Perkins, who as the very capable team manager shoulders much of the detail and administrative burden for Phillips.

York Wins Horseshoe Championship In 2nd SR

Pvt. Ted York is the 1952 horseshoe champion of the Second Student Regiment with Capt. Joseph Ondisko runnerup.

In doubles competition, Lt. Wallace Hannum and Pvt. York defeated Capt. William Kaduck and Capt. Ondisko for the title.

Lyons Beats Morris For Singles Title In TIC Horseshoes

Sfc. Henry J. Lyons of the 508th Airborne became the new horseshoe pitching champion by beating last year's titleholder, SFC. Coy Morris of ASU, in TIC Intramural Horseshoe Pitching competition held last week.

In the doubles competition, Morris and Cpl. Billy R. Cooner combined to down Lyons and M-Sgt. Alvin Kempson for the crown.

CTC Tries Come-Back Against Pensacola NAS

A somewhat stunned and slightly battered Combat Training Command eleven will take to the hinterlands this weekend in an effort to repair their grid pride and whip their potential into reality.

The Commanders take on Pensacola Navy at the latter's field Saturday afternoon. What the Seamen have is unknown here, but they had scouts recording the proceedings last Sunday when 508th got off the deck to sock CTC, 20-6.

Coach Cecil Dickerson will be minus regulars Forrest Lowe, 220-pound tackle, and halfback Jim Guthrie, who were injured in the rugged Benning inaugural.

"I'm not complaining. We're still a long way from being out of this things," ventured Dickerson a little desperately late Sunday.

"Our defense was generally good except for that first long march by the 508th," he added. "We slowed down unexpectedly after the first quarter, but we also had some bad breaks—like those two passes dropped in the end zone."

Dickerson will start about the same lineup, which means that the point-making will mostly be up to George Ball, the former Indiana U. ace, who chalked up 147 yards Sunday, and Adam Zubaty, who had a 4.9 average on seven carries.

Dickerson will be at quarterback again and if his aerials shorts are a little more steady the Commanders may have to be reckoned with in the air in the future.

CTC's big line should benefit much from their mistakes against the Red Devils.

Raiders Commence Hoop Competition With Special Troops

The Raider basketball season will get underway at 6 p.m. Monday when the ASU Provisional Group composite team meets the First Special Troops Battalion team at the Old Post Gym.

ASU is composed of players from the 148th Trans. Trk. Co., 27th Trans. Car Co., and the 33rd Trans Trk. Co. Company A and Company B compose the Special Troops quintet.

The Old Post Gym will be utilized for all ASU basketball games during the tournament which ends Nov. 5. Two games will be played nightly and spectators are welcome.

NO SELL-OUT YET

Despite the tightness of the American League race, the New York Yankees have not had one sellout this year at the 70,000 Yankee Stadium.

ASU Inaugurates Boxing Program For Various Commands

In an attempt to build up a storehouse of boxers, M-Sgt. John Wilson, A &-R NCO of ASU Provisional Group, conducted a class this week in the fundamentals, techniques and rules of boxing at which members of the various commands under ASU were in attendance.

The training program was initiated to train personnel in each company sized unit in the art of self protection and to stimulate interest in boxing tournaments and future intramural boxing matches.

The best qualified students will be offered opportunity to join the ASU boxing team as novices.

Special Troops Lists Basketball Players

The current Special Troops Battalion basketball team has among its members Billy Hahn, Carroll Mattson, Leslie Kemp, Wayne McElroy, Dennis Ensminger, Erwin Fleet, Bob Quavillin, John Norwell, Bill Holtz and George Eliades.

Hahn and Mattson were chosen for the All-Post baseball team. McElroy and Ensminger are on the ISD-ASU Green Wave football team.

Foursome Scores 96 To Win Golf Tourney

The foursome of John Henlon, George Perez, W. Turner and H. B. Underwood compiled 96 points last Sunday to win the team handicap tournament at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Runnerup with 85 points was the quartet composed of Leo Dawson, S. A. Johnson, E. L. Baker and J. J. Jordan.

J. J. Lawrence was low in the tourney with a 73.

DEADEYE. . .There is little doubt about the ability of SF. Henry J. Lyons of Co. G, 508th Airborne RCT, new Fort Benning horseshoe pitching champion. Last year he was a member of the 508th's post champion team and in 1950 he was runner-up for the Third Army title. In the doubles competition he was on the runner-up team.

Rams Notch 6-0 Victory In 82nd Division Tuneup

TOUCHDOWN . . . Don Stump, Special Troops halfback, is over with the winning touchdown in the 6-0 victory against 82nd Division Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C. Fred Dreyspring (89) did some fancy blocking that enabled Stump to score. The Rams meet ISD-ASU Green Wave in Doughboy Stadium Sunday.

Special Troops came up against an unscouted single wing power house, big in size and loaded with former collegians and pros, and showed just enough touches of class to cop a 6-0 victory last Saturday afternoon.

The Rams' opponent was the 82nd Airborne Division Artillery, one of the toughest teams in a Fort Bragg, N. C., grid league which apparently equals Benning's circuit for rugged competition.

Despite the fact it was a squeaky victory not insured until the last whistle, the Rams did show they can pay off in the clutch, and they came home minus any serious injuries to ready for their Benning opener at 2 p.m. Sunday against ISD-ASU at Doughboy Stadium.

Good Education

"I was glad to settle for six points," noted Coach Gus Dielens. "We got a tremendous education from that game. It showed we have the material, but it also revealed that we'll have to work for our wins."

The Rams scored after a fumble gave them the ball on the Canoneers 16, but they failed to score a second time on five downs inside the 82nd's 10-yard line.

On the other hand, the 82nd had four downs starting on the Rams' 16-yard line and wound up by losing a net of seven yards.

The remaining action was seesaw near mid-field with both teams starting drives, but unable to keep them fired in the broiling heat before about 3,500 fans.

Clarence Howard recovered a Canoneer fumble on the enemy 16 midway in the second quarter. Little Joe Panigouis swept right end for three yards, and a clipping penalty against the 82nd took the ball to the two.

Don Stump, who cinched the starting right halfback slot for himself in this game, shot off tackle for the score. Linton Jordan's conversion was wide.

With four downs starting on the Canoneers' five, climaxing a surge which began on their own 49, the Rams made it only to the one. The answer was that they kept trying the middle against an eight-man line with the line backer shooting.

"We saw that and a lot of other little mistakes which will be taken care of before our next game," admitted Dielens. "In fact, I think that if we met this team again we'd take them by four touchdowns."

RAM-BLINGS: Team was proud to point out they beat Bragg's "best," 6-0, while 508th Red Devils lost to Bragg's 505th, 18-13. In an effort to avoid a repeat of trick stomachs caused by rough flying weather on their first trip, Rams left Lawson Field Friday a.m. and over-nighted at Bragg before the game.

PMG Softballers Win 3-A Crown

Provisional Medical Group, representing Fort Benning, was the victor Sunday in the final doubleheader which determined the Third Army Softball Championship. Sparked by the brilliant pitching efforts of Frank Myers, who pitched both games, the PMG team won out over the tough Headquarters Commandant team, representing Fort Jackson, S. C.

The double-header, which followed PMG's 1-0 loss on the night before, was held here at the post softball diamond. PMG was faced with the problem of winning both games in order to secure the Third Army Championship. They won the first game 6-2 and the second game 4-2. Myers, PMG's ace hurler, pitched both games in the double header.

Fly Scores Myers

The first game of the double-header, cigar-chewing Dick Sickhorn allowed pitcher Myers to score by hitting a high fly ball between second base and center field. Ray Garl's bat-breaking single to left field allowed Myers to cross home plate for the tying run in the first inning.

The second game was highlighted by the action of second baseman Jim Walters, whose spectacular running catch of a high fly ball falling between second base and right field helped speed the PMG victory. Catcher Bobby Royster hit a long single to right center field to score Bobby Keffer, which started the four run rally in the top of the third inning. Frank Holtz's alertness allowed him to beat out the catcher's throw to first on the third strike. Myers' long triple to right center field permitted Holtz to score. This was followed by Sickhorn's single to center, scoring Myers.

Won At Rucker

Prior to the weekend series of games which led to the Third Army softball championship, the PMG team travelled to Camp Rucker, Ala., last week, where they played the Third Army Western Division champs, the 164th Infantry Regiment. PMG won out by taking both games of a double-header, 6-2 and 4-1, with Myers pitching both games.

Lady Golfers Schedule 2 Post Tournaments

A ladder tournament and a handicap tourney will be held for the Fort Benning lady golfers with the handicap teeing off in about ten days and running through December at the Country Club links.

In their weekly competition, Irene Curtis won the 18-hole tourney with Fran Bolling second. In 9-hole competition, Eva Ulrich was the winner.

Sixty women attended the luncheon at the Country Club.

Coaches, Fans To Pick All-Army

Army football coaches and fans will have a chance again this year to pick an All-Army football team. Complete details will be announced by The Army Times this weekend.

The 1952 season figures to be a banner one for Army teams with more former college and professional stars than ever now on active duty. Service teams will make some spectacular showings against major colleges.

Two weeks ago the U. of Miami had to nose out Fort Jackson by a 14-6 score, as an example.

Carswell Air Force Base, Texas, was rated the top service team in the nation in 1951 after beating Fort Jackson in a post-season bowl game. Jackson was the top Army team.

Other Army teams to watch include Ford Ord, Calif., Fort Eustis, Va., Camp Breckenridge, Ky., the Fifth Division from Indiantown Gap, Pa., Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and Fort Belvoir, Va.

GRAB GOSSIP

BY LESTER DINOFF

LT. COL. KENNETH GRIMES of "historic" Special Services was happy about the success of the Benning League opener at Memorial Stadium. The CTC-508th game was a good indication of what fans will see as the season progresses. Ball playing and the players themselves will improve steadily, he said.

MAJ. GEN. ROBERT L. YOUNG, CG of The Infantry Center, and his party had a 50-yard line box on the 508th side of the field. The general was profuse in his thanks to the people of Columbus for the loan of the stadium. Sitting among the airborne rootin' section does not denote the bosman's feelings. He is "gentral".

CTC back JIM GUTHRIE was in the game with two broken ribs and after being carried out in the first half, it was noted that he popped another, sidelining him for the next couple of weeks. . . . 508th guard BOB GENIA suffered a broken nose on the opening kickoff, but played the entire game.

JOHN FONSECA was another player carried off. His exodus was after the third kickoff . . . Referee PAUL MORLEY was knocked off his feet by Red Devils in an attempt to tackle GEORGE (DING DING) BELL, who was pouring on the steam . . . that was end KEN BRANSON who completed the 508th's longest pass of the day. Watch him in the future.

CTC Band was quite sorry when 508th players were hurt. Bugler sounded taps . . . At times seemed to be more action in stands with pros and cons flowing libraly among spectators . . . Red Devils won last seasons opener beating Lawson Field, 13-6 . . .

Special Troops Rams painted another "W" on their special victory football after notching 6-0 win over 82nd Division Artillery on Saturday. . . . DICK DIEKEMANN was hurt on opening kickoff, but returned to see action later in game . . . AL BUCKLES heaved a 25-yard pass to JOE PANGONIS, fleet halfback—but play was nullified by penalty . . . The Rams heaved eight passes during game, three connected . . .

Order went out to 508th players late last week that aluminum cleats were verboten. Team had to change over to hard rubber. Sports Officer MAJ. GENE MYERS says that aluminum cleats after constant usage become dangerous . . .

Rams Open

Penn State, and Andy Holland, 225-pound tackle.

They'll have to be reckoned with, indeed by the Rams who had a hard time against the 82nd's middle last weekend.

Likeable Coach

Rams Coach Gus Dielens, a guy you just gotta like with his frank admission that he thinks his team is good enough to win the pennant and the crying towel be burned, has discovered a potent backfield combo, too.

It includes Don Stump, from Wichita, Kans., U. who set the pace last week with the lone score against the 82nd, Joe Pangonis, a 170-pounder who is gone if they spring him past the scrimmage line, and John Mackie, the Rams' best back in '51.

¼ Back?

Al Buckles and Emmett Matthews share the quarterbacking. Buckles has been working regular, but Matthews is supposed to have the better throwing arm if he's past a recent injury.

Special Troops has a crack set of ends headed by Linton Jordan, former Alabama whiz, and their offensive and defensive units from tackle to tackle average better than 200 pounds.

smashed the middle for the score, rough afternoon of quarterbacking.

BOOT BLOCKED

Bill Cato's conversion boot was blocked by Miles.

The 508th rolled 66 yards for a score the first time they got the ball in the second period. Left side smashes of 5, 6, 15, 28, 11 and 3 yards paced the long march, with QB Gary Mattocks on a left end sweep lateralling to Mast who went the remaining 14 yards for the tally.

Bill Stevens' extra point try was wide.

With eight minutes remaining in the third canto, 508th took over on downs on CTC's 46 and a 33-yard aerial connection — Cain to Willis Hess— set 'em up for another score.

DIETZ SCORES

Dietz carried the ball to the five-yard line was over standing up on a left end sweep after taking the handoff from Mattocks. Stevens converted.

The final Red Devil drive carried 63 yards to pay dirt, with Dietz chewing up 36 of these. Mast slipped out through left tackle for 12 yards for the clincher, and Stevens toed the extra point.

Red Cross Names Assistant Director

Dave M. Hearn, Jr., of Anniston, Ala., has been appointed an assistant field director of the American Red Cross here.

Hearn's appointment was announced by J. A. Cramer, Fort Benning director.

Before assuming his new position, Hearn was a special representative of the Red Cross First Aid and Water Safety Services in the South.

Suggested amounts for civil service employers are: grades 11 and 12, $4; 9 to 10, $3; 1 to 8, $2. Ungraded personnel 20 to 28, $3; 8 to 19, $2; and 1 to 7, $1. All non-appropriated fund employes are asked to give $1.

Not Mandatory

Contributions to the fund are not mandatory, nor are the suggested amounts, Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, stated in a letter addressed to all Fort Benning personnel.

In his letter General Young urged commanders of all echelons and chiefs of departments and staff sections to cooperate to the fullest so that all military and civilian personnel are given a chance to donate.

Most of the funds collected here are used to aid groups operating on the post.

Organizations which benefit from the drive include: Army Emergency Relief, Fort Benning Children's School, Boy and Girl Scouts (also Cubs and Brownies), Teen-age Children's Club, Fort Benning Children's Christmas Party.

telephones on the Main Post and at Lawson Air Force Base. At present about 2,500 phones are in operation in these areas. The Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas have dial exchanges of their own.

In addition to dial equipment, the telephone office also will have 10 switchboard positions to handle off-post calls including long distance calls. There are only seven positions now in operation.

Two information switchboard positions and a two-position toll desk, used to facilitate the testing of outside lines and phones also are being installed.

Underground Cable

Work on an underground cable between the Main Post and Lawson Air Force Base has already been completed. It replaces the aerial cable which formerly connected the two areas.

Edward Bower, foreman, estimates that more than 1,000,000 soldered connections and thousands of miles of wire will be required to install the office equipment alone.

All equipment for the new exchange will be housed in a remodeled office building next to the present telephone exchange. Work on the building started last February. The building will be air-conditioned and soundproof.

Twenty civilians from the Signal Corps Plant Engineering Agency in Washington, D. C., and eight technicians from Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., are installing the dial equipment.

Although actual installation work is expected to be completed by mid-October, outside work, such as numbering cables and terminals, will take longer.

More Economical

It is more economical to install a completely new system than to remodel the old one to meet increased demand, signal officials explained. Equipment now in use will be sent to a Signal Corps depot for rehabilitation once the new system begins operation.

Telephone numbers now in use on the Main Post will be changed from four to five digits in the 20,000 and 30,000 groups. Directories of new listings will be issued about Nov. 28.

Signal officials said that they were looking to the ftture needs of Fort Benning in installing the new equipment. Building projects, such as a new hospital, troop housing and bachelor officer quarters, pose demands for future telephone requirements, they pointed out.

The visitors will begin arriving at 10 a.m. at Lawson Air Force Base. They will receive orientations on The Infantry Center and The Infantry School and observe demonstrations staged by The Infantry School's academic departments.

Eddie Rickenbacker

Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, famous World War I flying ace, and president and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, has accepted an invitation to address patients at the U.S. Army Hospital. He will speak in the hospital auditorium at 2:15 p.m. this afternoon. The speech also will be broadcast by the hospital's radio station WFBS, to bedridden patients. Capt. Rickenbacker will hold a short question and answer period following his speech.

A press conference is scheduled for 11 a.m. at the Hospital billeting area following their arrival. At 2 p.m. the visitors will receive an orientation on The Infantry Center and The Infantry School, and at 3:50 p.m. they will move to Buena Hill to watch the Tactical Department's "Infantry Tank Team in Attack" demonstration. A formal reception and dinner will be held at the Main Officers' Open Mess that evening.

A full day is planned for Friday, beginning with the Weapons Department's famous "Firepower demonstration "The Mad Minute" at Hook Range. The conference will have lunch in the First Infantry Officer Candidate Regiment, and inspect the regiment during the early part of the afternoon. At 3 p.m. they will witness "Types of Artillery and Supporting Fires" at problem area 2650. Dinner will be served in the field, and the "Company in Defense, and the Night Firepower Demonstration" will begin at 7:30 p.m.

He went to Japan in August, 1949, to command the 19th Infantry Regiment part of the 24th Infantry Division, with which he went to Korea. In July, 1950, he was wounded and hospitalized until November, when he became a deputy to the assistant chief of staff for personnel of the Far East Command.

He won the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism and the Purple Heart Medal for wounds received in action in Korea. He also has been awarded the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal and Army Commendation Ribbon. General Meloy made his fifth jump at 6:30 a.m. Thursday at Lee Field to make the Army his career.

Sergeant Jenkins followed in another jump load some minutes later.

Ring Fame

Jenkins reached the height of his ring fame in May, 1940, by knocking out Lou Ambers in three rounds to win the championship at Madison Square Garden. He held that title until December, 1941, when Sammy Ingot was awarded a 15-round decision. He fought his last official fight with Tami Jeski in 1950 before enlisting in the Army for the fourth time.

Jenkins was with the 38th Infantry in Korea in 1951. He was awarded the Silver Star, Commendation Ribbon and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

He has been assigned to Headquarters and Service Company of the Airborne Battalion and plans to make the Army his career.

Worthy Causes Need Funds

Civilian employes here every year find themselves in a unique position — that of being solicited for funds from two almost identical drives, the Fort Benning Community Chest and the Columbus United Givers, Inc. drive.

The two funds often complement each other — money from one fund is diverted to the other in certain cases. But the basic purpose of each fund is aimed at improving the lot of mankind, through various civic, social and health organizations.

The list of groups benefitting from these funds is long; you are familiar with almost every one of them. The work they do cannot be measured in the amount of money expended. One of these organizations is almost bound by the laws of mathematics to affect each of us sometime during the coming year.

However, these organizations must have funds to carry out their work. In past years, many of the groups conducted separate drives to raise money. Where that plan was carried out, the individual was often called upon five or six times a year to contribute to various causes.

In many cases, individuals gave more than they could really afford, but didn't realize it because the donations were spread out over a period of months. The Community Chest and United Givers drives of today are just what the names imply; they are combined drives conducted for the benefit of the many organizations formerly conducting their own drives.

Statistics show that two of five families benefit directly from one or more of the agencies participating in the Community Chest and UG drives during the year. However, all families benefit indirectly, through having a better community in which to live and through higher health standards brought about by health services operating with funds collected during these drives.

Donating to either or both of the two drives may be looked upon as money in the bank or insurance. For who knows when he may be faced with adversity and become one of those two families out of five that require assistance?

Fort Benning has never failed to go over the top in any worthwhile drive—be it for money or old clothes. Our current stand in the blood donor drive stands as irrefutable proof of this. We're sure that Infantry Center soldiers and civilians will continue in their path of support and make the 1952 Community Chest and United Givers drive the most successful ever.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

You have a choice of four types of vocational training under the K-Vet Bill.

1. You can enroll as an on-the-job trainee. In this program the employer and government pay your salary while you learn.

2. You can enroll as an apprentice trainee. This program is similar to on-the-job training except it is for a longer duration.

3. You can enroll in institutional on-the-farm training which combines classroom study with practical farm work.

4. You can enroll for education or training exclusively through correspondence courses.

Allowances

On-the-job trainees with no dependents receive $70 per month; $85 with one dependent, and $105 with more than one dependent. At the end of each four-month period this allowance is reduced. The training establishment raises the job salary as the government allowance decreases.

Apprentice trainees receive the same allowance as on-the-job trainees. The difference in the two programs is that apprenticeship training is for more than 24 months.

Institutional on farm training with no dependents receive $65 a month; $110 with one dependent, and $130 with more than one dependent. Only veterans who own or control a qualifying farm are eligible for this training. Veterans must also devote their full time to the program. The training combines classroom instruction — at least eight hours a month — with supervised farm work. This allowance is reduced at four-month intervals as the veteran's earnings increase.

You do not participate in any more than $310 a month while pursuing any of these programs, regardless of your dependency status. Should your allowance and earnings as a trainee exceed $310 a month, the VA will reduce your allowance accordingly.

You will get your monthly allowance sometime after the end of each month of training completed. Before the VA can pay your allowance, the law requires certification from both you and your training establishment that you are enrolled and following your course of study during that period.

Correspondence courses: Veterans taking training exclusively through correspondence will receive an allowance on the established charge that non-veterans are paying for the course.

"Pray Together andStay Together"

BY CHAPLAIN (COLONEL) LEXINGTON O. SHEFFIELD

The subject of marriage cannot be adequately discussed in this limited space. Many full length books by prominent and qualified authors have been written on the subject. Only within the last generation have colleges taken the subject seriously enough to introduce courses in marriage. Today it is virtually impossible to find a college which does not offer one or more courses in marriage.

Doctors and clergymen are now being trained in the professional schools to offer marital counselling. When couples call on me to perform the marriage rites, this question always comes to my mind: "Is this couple prepared for marriage?" Preparation for marriage involves a great many things.

Every couple planning marriage should have a thorough physical examination, one phase of which should determine the possibility of being able to have children. Most states require a blood test, but that is far from what is desired. Some thought should be given to the general health and past medical history of the couple. Emotional stability is necessary for a stable marriage, and the counsel of a psychiatrist often proves to be of great value.

Couples with what might be called common backgrounds have better chances for successful marriages. That is they should have similar religious backgrounds; should have similar social, economic and educational backgrounds; as well as common interests. These are not absolutes, but they have a definite bearing on the success of marriage.

We have a saying that "couples who pray together stay together." It has a great deal of truth in it, and for that reason, a newly married couple should immediately seek a common Church home and worship together. From many studies made it has been definitely determined that religion and the practice of a religious faith definitely helps to stabilize marriage.

Too many couples take their marriage vows too lightly. Too often they look upon marriage as an agreement or contract to be broken at will. Marriage vows must be considered as sacred and binding, otherwise, repeating the marriage vows is a farce.

Couples anticipating marriage should discuss very frankly before marriage certain subjects which will vitally affect their marriage such as finances, building or renting a home, insurance, children, religion, tenure in the service, the separations in the service, and other inconveniences incident to military duty. If these subjects are discussed frankly and are resolved before marriage, the couple will be well on the way toward a happy and successful marriage.

After marriage problems will naturally arise from time to time. Each one must be discussed and solved. Unsolved problems must not be allowed to accumulate. Two people old enough, and intelligent enough to get married should be able to resolve their problems by frankly talking them out. This is done on the basis that marriage is a 50-50 proposition. However when a couple reaches the state where they are unable to solve a definite problem they should seek the help of someone who is qualified to offer counsel, such as a doctor, an attorney, social worker, or a clergyman. Help is always available somewhere.

Soviet Congress Opens With Blast At U.S.

The 19th-All Soviet Communist Party Congress opened in Moscow Monday with a blast at the United States. Georgi Malenkov, who is generally regarded as the heir apparent to Stalin delivered the keynote address in which he hit the U. S.

Malenkov said that the United States had decided to end the peace and prepare for a new war. Since "The USSR is the chief pillar of peace, the forces of the United States are being developed against the USSR."

The convention has been called to endorse new Red policies that may very well affect the entire world.

A walk-out by TV engineers of the National Broadcasting Company Sunday night blacked out many of the networks telecasts.

The sudden strike started in Washington where a disagreement over the proposed consolidation of radio and TV operations was the issue. It has spread to the West Coast and other areas is apparently a sympathy move.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran will most likely go slow in his threat to break off relations with Great Britian following the latest exchange of notes between the two nations over the Iranian Oil Fields.

The British notes rejected the Iranian settlement proposals but sources close to Mossadegh said that even though the overall solution was turned down some concessions that Iran had been seeking were made. These were that Britian recognize nationalization of Iran's oil fields, Iranian oil will be free of foreign management and that Britian will not seek a monopoly on buying Iranian oil.

Great Britain tested her defenses against air attacks this week with a tremendous show of air power.

Over a thousand planes and a quarter of a million persons took part in the maneuvers which had planes and paratroopers roar over the island from continental Europe in a mock attack.

Aircraft of the NATO played the part of the attackers in raiding London, Liverpool, Newcastle, Glouster and York. Paratroopers dropped on Yorkshire.

Report from Washington

31,000 Veterans Apply For Training

More than 31,000 veterans with post-Korean service applied for education and training under the new K-Vet Bill during the first ten days of the program. The Veterans Administration pointed out that although the new law was signed July 16, its education and training provisions did not take effect until Aug. 20. The figure represents enrollment as of the end of August. The new K-Vet Bill allows a veteran 1½ days of training for each day in service after the outbreak of Korean fighting, June 27, 1950. Veterans in training receive an education and training allowance each month from the government to meet part of their expenses and livin gcosts.

Christmas parcels for members of the Armed Forces overseas should be mailed between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15. Air parcel post packages up to two pounds in weight should be mailed not later than Nov. 25. The Department of Defense said that no assurance can be given that air parcel post mailed after Nov. 25 can be airlifted to overseas areas or that delivery prior to Christmas will be made.

A cut in the quota of Army candidates for officer candidate school has been made for the remaining months in 1953. The reduction is due to the increasing number of Reserve officers electing to remain in active service, and the number of officers entering the Army from the ROTC program. Operation of all nine officer candidate schools will be continued on a reduced scale. Beside lowering quotas, standards for selecting candidates will be raised.

Armed Forces installations have been urged by the Defense Department to support and collect contributions for the 1953 Community Chest campaign. The USO, USO Camp Shows, and several other organizations for entertaining servicemen and women are financed through this fund.

Openings for 853 officers for training in civilian institutions and the USAF Institute of Technology have been approved. The training runs for two years in courses leading to graduate and post-graduate degrees, or their equivalents. Quotas are in engineering, nuclear fields, sciences, management, education, international relations, psychology and medical services. Officers may apply under the provisions of AFR 53-11.

On The Bookshelf

THE DISTANT SHORE by Jan de Hartog. Harper and Brothers.

This is the story of the "Skipper", who escaped from Holland when it fell to the Germans and then went to sea in an ocean-going tug to hunt German submarines for the British navy.

"They only last about three months on those jobs," he was told and he didn't care until he met Stella. This is his story of the two women he loved and of his love of the sea and of death which he came to fear.

Following the war he embarked on fantastic diving expeditions and finally lost his fear in the blaze of drama enacted far below the surface of the sea he feared and loved.

THE TRAITORS by Alan Moorehead. Charles Scribner's Sons.

Moorehead, outstanding British journalist and war correspondent traces the story of the atom spy ring which was exposed in Ottawa, when Igor Gouzenko, a Russian cipher clerk fled from Russians with valuable documents in his possession.

These documents led to the expose of Allan Nunn Mays, Klaus Fuchs, and Bruno Pontecorvo, brilliant scientists who had specialized for Russians to learn how to make the atomic secrets of the West available to the Soviet Union.

Moorehead tells the story of the men who might have perpetrated the worse sellout in history. Meet Klaus Fuchs, who, when confronted with his crime, demanded that everything be cleared up immediately so that he could return to work or ponder the workings of the mind of Nunn Mays, who remained unrepentant to the end.

PANZER LEADER by Gen. Heinz Guderian. E. P. Dutton and Company, Inc.

Panzer leader is Guderian's personal account of the early days of World War II when his all-conquering panzer divisions swept across Europe to the English Channel and then turned to attempt the conquest of Russia.

He asserts that the panzers were primarily his idea and that the German staff was not fully convinced of their effectiveness until the fall of France. He also claims that Russia would have fallen to his legions but for the intervention of top officials who prevented him from handling the war on the Eastern front in his own way.

This is the story of the military leader who molded the early successes of German arms and then was dismissed because he had the audacity to differ with Hitler. He was reinstated toward the end of the war and had to endure the ignominy of surrender. Against the German armies, which he had earlier led to victories which had stunned the world.

American Hospitality Impresses ROK Officers Attending Special Course

The hospitality of the American people has been the most impressive single discovery made by Republic of Korea officers now at The Infantry Center.

"The American people have been extremely kind to us since our arrival," Capt. Kim Sang Ki said. "They have been courteous in explaining things to us and helping us shop and locate places. American hospitality is great."

The Korean officers are students in The Infantry School's 22-week special company officers' course. The third ROK group to take the course, they arrived at Fort Benning Sept. 21.

They are here under a plan inaugurated by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, former Far East Commander, to acquaint South Korean Army officers with U. S. infantry tactics and weapons.

Although the South Koreans like the U. S., they have found many differences between their country and America.

"American customs are so different from those in Korea," one officer commented. "I can't get used to seeing American women in shorts and swimming suits. In Korea women aren't allowed to wear clothes like that."

Another officer said he could not understand why U. S. stores have doors and close so early. "Of course," he added, "we have martial law in Korea now, but ordinarily stores never close and you can shop very late."

Major Choo Hoo said the number of cars in U. S. cities and the trees growing on mountains have amazed him. "Our mountains are comparatively bare," he added.

In Korea, another officer said, "the American Army had so many guns, tanks and planes, but since arriving in the States we have not seen a single factory where these are made. In Japan you can tell when a city is industrial but here you cannot," he continued.

While waiting for the Oct. 13 opening of the 22-week course at The Infantry School, the ROK officers are visiting points of interest in and around Georgia.

14th JCOC Ends; Next Set Nov. 20

Sixty-two U. S. civic, business and professional leaders left for Washington and their homes Saturday after witnessing three days of Infantry demonstrations as the final phase of the 14th Joint Civilian Orientation Conference ended.

The group inspected The Infantry School's Airborne Department Saturday morning and held a press conference prior to their departure.

While here they joined some 500 leading U. S. and Allied military officials for orientations on the operation of The Infantry School and The Infantry Center to view displays of Infantry weapons and equipment.

The 14th JCOC opened Sept. 26 in Washington with a series of orientations on the armed forces. Members of the conference also visited the U. S. Marine Base at Quantico, Va., the U. S. Naval Base at Norfolk, Va., and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The conference, sponsored by the Department of Defense, are designed to show civic, business and professional men, as well as military officials, how defense dollar are spent.

Field Forces Band Ends Europe Tour

Known as "Kings of the Highway," the 123-piece musical organization was praised enthusiastically for its versatility in presenting classical, popular, folk music and favorite marches to its international audience.

While in Britain the Army's musical ambassadors—under the leadership of Maj. Chester E. Whiting—performed in London, Cambridge, York, Glasgow, Edinburgh and Liverpool.

Indicative of the acclaim tendered these traveling musicians is an editorial which appeared in the Yorkshire Evening Press which said in part:

Editorial

". . . the Yorkshireman is a shrewd soul and canny character who does not give his heart away to the first charmer who asks for it . . but the heart of Yorkshire gave a fair slice of itself into the credit column with more than 4,000 York people assembled to hear it (the band) in the Museum Gardens."

The writer further praised the band when he said:

" . . . the men in the park did more good for their country in 90 minutes than the pronouncements of their statesmen could do, perhaps, in as many months."

In addition to the favorable press reaction, many letters of appreciation from British military and civilian officials commending the Army band have been received by the Department of the Army.

Plays Continent Tour

Completing their tour in Britain the Army band journeyed to the Continent and played to enthusiastic audiences in Belgium, Holland, Luxemburg, France and Germany.

The Army Field Band which includes a soldier's chorus of 30 voices as well as a drum novelty group, has traveled more than 200,000 miles presenting concerts to more than 4,000,000 people. The White House Lawn, Brooklyn Conservatory of Music, Carnegie Hall, the San Francisco Opera House and the famous Hollywood Bowl all have felt the impact of its musical ability. The band played in all 48 states, Canada, and Mexico prior to its European tour.

MSTS Ends Free Travel

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Military personnel and their dependents traveling on a "space available" basis aboard Military Sea Transport Service ships will have to pay for the privilege starting Oct. 1, 1952.

The new plan does not apply to personnel and their dependents normally entitled to free transportation at government expense when ordered to a permanent change of station.

14 Categories Affected

Charges will be computed on a mileage basis for travel and meals. The pay plan will apply everywhere. It affects all persons — 14 passenger categories — previously entitled to free rides.

For example, approximate rates for travel from the East Coast of the U.S. to Europe on the space available policy are:

1. Officers, Defense Department civilians, and their dependents will travel cabin class at a cost of $50 per person.

2. Enlisted personnel will be charged $20 when traveling troop class. Their dependents will be charged $20 each traveling cabin class.

3. Children five years of age or younger will travel free.

Some of the groups affected by the change are certain military and civilian personnel of the Defense Department and their dependents when traveling in an ordinary leave status. Also affected are dependents of military and civilian personnel traveling on temporary duty orders.

Officially space available is determined as "space unassigned after all space requirements for travel assignments have been made, and which would othewise sail unused."

Necessity Breeds Signal Invention

(ANF) — To at least one Army officer, necessity is literally the mother of invention.

Faced with a shortage of lead sleeves for covering cable splicings, Army Signal Corps Capt. William J. Brown, Jr., of Mt. Vernon, Washington, decided to try manufacturing the sleeves himself.

Two Years Work

Now — after two years of working on his process — he is well on the way to full-scale production of a new type and cheaper lead sleeve for possible Signal Corps use.

He expects to manufacture it for 10 cents — 20 cents below the commercial manufacturers' cheapest price. Most of the saving is made by using scrap metal and a new design for the dies.

Limited Usage

Limited Signal Corps usage of the sleeves is expected to save the taxpayer about $1,000 a year. If the sleeves should be adopted for further Army use, the savings could mount to a much greater sum.

Greatly simplified, Captain Brown's process consists of melting down scrap lead, casting a small ingot, and forcing it into sleeve shape by using a hydraulic press.

Retired General Sets OC Speech

TWO OLD TIMERS IN 508TH RIG FOR JUMP
Capt. H. H. Jones, Sgt. C. C. Stephens

Two Make Career Of 508th Service

A captain and a master sergeant are the only men now in Fort Benning's 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team who were with the unit during World War II and when it was reactivated in 1951.

Capt. Homer H. Jones, commanding officer of Company C, and M-Sgt. Chester C. Stephens, a platoon sergeant in Company B, were stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla. when the 508th was activated as a paraclaute infantry regiment on Oct. 20, 1942. They saw action with the unit through World War II, rejoined the unit when it was reactivated at Fort Bragg, N. C. on May 5, 1951 and have been with the organization until the present time.

One Of 12

Captain Jones was one of 12 second lieutenants in Company A, 508th, at the time of activation, but only two besides himself were already parachutists.

Sergeant Stephens had just completed basic training when the unit was activated.

Shortly after the 508th was activated, the unit was transferred to Fort Bensing for jump training at the then new Airborne Department of The Infantry School.

The two men remember the unit taking part in maneuvers in North Carolina and Tennessee in the fall of 1943 prior to reporting to a port of embarkation in December.

Captain Jones recalls the unit celebrating New Year's Day of 1944 aboard a troop ship enroute to Europe.

D-Day Jump

After months of training in England, these men jumped with the unit in Normandy on D-Day. In the consequent fighting, Captain Jones was wounded three times, the last so severely that he did not rejoin the unit until after it had been withdrawn to England and jumped with the 82nd Airborne Division just south of Nijmegen, Holland.

Sergeant Stephens made both combat jumps without injury and remembers when Captain Jones rejoined the unit.

The 508th fought with distinction in the battle of the Ardennes and after V-E Day became the honor guard at SHAFE Headquarters in Frankfort, Germany.

The two men remained with the 508th in Germany until its deactivation in 1946, when Captain Jones reverted to civilian status and Sergeant Stephens joined the 508th's parent organization, the 82nd Airborne Division, at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The two men met again on May 5, 1951 at Fort Bragg when the 508th was reactivated for duty during the Korean conflict.

Wrong-Way Soldier Hit Of Drill Show

Pvt. Joseph C. Daniels, the soldier who couldn't do anything right, was the hit of the exhibition staged by the 506th ARCT fancy drill team during the halftime of the Baker high schol vs. Eufaula high school football game Oct. 3.

Daniels purposely marched in the wrong direction during several movements of the 30-man team. The laughter of the crowd changed to applause when he was called out of the group and put on a demonstration of the spinning manual of arms.

The next day at the half of the 508th's game with Donaldson Air Force Base he again demonstrated his specialty, this time without the preceding antics of not knowing his left from his right.

Sponsored by Lt. Richard D. Fisher and instructed by Sfc. Robert V. Cobb, the team won the fancy drill championship of Third battalion and then annexed the regimental title by default when the other battalions failed to enter teams against them.

The team practices its drill manuevers during off-duty hours and is now preparing for the forthcoming regimental competition in standard drill.

Class Starts Buddy System

A "buddy" system in rifle marksmanship is being used by students in The Infantry School's associate company officers course.

It is believed to be the first associate course group to use the system.

The buddy system allows the coach to receive extra points on his marksmanship score if the firer qualifies on a particular weapon.

If the pupil qualifies as expert, the coach gets 10 points added to his score. If he qualifies as sharpshooter, the coach picks up seven points on his total score and three points if the firer scores as marksman.

There is no deduction from the coach's score if the pupil fails to qualify.

The buddy system was adopted to give the coach added incentive to watch the pupil more closely for mistakes and to make corrections on the spot during range firing exercises, school officials said.

French Airborne Group Sets Tour

Six members of the French Army's Airborne Mission will arrive Oct. 21 for a three-day tour of The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

The Airborne Mission, headed by Col. Robert Chavotte, assistant inspector of French airborne units, will include Lt. Col. Robert Edel commandant of the French Airborne School; Maj. Rene Mondon, French army Technical Branch; Maj. Bernard Marchal, French army General Staff; Capt. Rene Sotty, French Airborne Engineers Branch; Lt. Col. Pierre Monsimont, French delegate to the Standing Group, and Lt. Col. Pierre Evrard, Office of the French Military Attache.

Civilian Bond Drive Hits $12,000 Mark

Another unit joined the 100 per cent group in the current Civilian Defense Bond Drive last week and overall participation climbed to 31.5 per cent.

The Chemical Section joined the Judge Advocate General's and Troop Information and Education Sections last week as 100 per cent units.

Statistics compiled as of Sept. 26 show that civilian employees at The Infantry Center are now setting aside $12,053.75 each pay period through the pay roll deduction plan, Chairman David J. Nichols reported.

Two of the larger sections also showed an increase in the number of their personnel joining the campaign. Lawson Air Force Base moved up 18.7 per centage points with 30 new bond purchasers and Infantry Center Quartermaster gained 104 new buyers for an increase of 19.4 per cent.

The following are statistics at Fort Benning as of September 26.

Slides Replace Men in Rifle Training Group

A new method of instruction using transparent slides is being developed by the Small Arms Committee in The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

Transparencies showing the operating parts of the M-1 rifle and carbine already have been prepared for use on th Vu-Graph projection machine. These transparencies picture the parts and their functions during operation and can be shown on a screen while the instructor lectures.

Under the present method of instruction, six men sit at a table around an assistant instructor who disassembles the weapon as the instructor talks him throug hthe disassembly. After watching the assistant instructor, the students perform the dissassembly themselves.

Although department officials say this has proved an excellent method of instruction, they pointed out that in a class of 200 students about 34 instructors are needed.

The Vu-Graph requires only a partial dim-out around the screen and students are able to look from the screen to the weapon on the table.

Slides on the M-1 rifle were prepared by Major Kenneth Groom, and slides on the carbine by Capt. Robert N. Ives.

Slides are also being prepared on the Browning Automatic Rifle, .45 calibre pistol, sub-machine gun and mortar.

Soldier Envoys In Germany Building Good Will With Aid

(AFPS) — Our soldiers in Germany are winning new friends for the U.S.

As soldier-diplomats, they are building better German-American relations by aiding the needy, participating in German sports events, sponsoring youth programs, and presenting excellent musical programs.

Seventh Army soldiers donated more than $100,000 during a single six-week period for relief of 50,000 German children and 1,000 needy adults.

In addition, many U.S. Seventh Army units are sponsoring year-round upkeep of orphanages, donating playground equipment, paying for underprivilged children's attendance at summer camps, and redecorating classrooms and sleeping quarters for orphans.

Soldiers Join Germans

American soldiers are joining German youths to make track and field meets in Western Germany among the largest athletic events in the country.

The U.S. 24th Constabulary Squadron and city of Hersfeld are co-sponsors of annual track and field meets in Hersfeld. In these events champions from all over the state of Hessen compete against the Seventh Army teams.

Earlier this year, 30 Americans joined 400 Germans in a track and field team in a German-sponsored meet at Ulm.

Three hundred fifty community centers throughout the American Zone of Germany are providing food, education, and recreation for children ranging from one to 19 years of age.

Children Saved From Thievery

The centers are part of the German Youth Activities program which has rescued thousands of destitute children from hoodlum gangs and lives of thievery, begging, and feeding on refuse from garbage cans.

The Seventh Army Symphony Orchestra—now winding up a summer tour of the American Zone—was well received by German audiences and won high praise from music critics.

Germans expressed surprise that the United States Army had so many excellent musicians who could give superior performances.

All these activities add up to a highly successful program in which the soldier doubles as a diplomat to promote sound German-American relations.

OC Mountain Climber Thinks Benning Hills Easy

Officer Candidate LeRoy H. Sloan, Jr., currently running over Benning hills in his 18th week of training with the 25th Officer Candidate Company, found the local terrain less inspiring than some he clambered over a little more than a year ago as a civilian.

Prior to entering the service, Candidate Sloan was fortunate enough to have time, energy and money to tour Europe. Halfway through his tour he found himself atop the fabled Swiss nemesis of mountainclimbers, the Matterhorn.

The idea of scaling the famous mountain was conceived by Candidate Sloan and a friend of his on the boat to Europe. "We thought it would make great cocktail conversation when we got back home," he said, "but it turned out to be a lot more than that."

The stocky officer candidate from Chicago went on to explain that climbing the Matterhorn is no great feat of darting today, despite the fact that scores of climbers have lost their lives on the steep slops of the Swiss mountain.

"The path we climbed is called 'The Cowpath' by the Swiss guides. They figure they could get a cow to the top along that rail if they had to."

"My friend and I, never having done any climbing before, thought we were pretty hot stuff when we got to the top," continued Sloan, "Until we met the seventeen year old English girls who had gotten there fifteen minutes before us!"

The ascent of the Matterhorn over 14,000 feet high, took a day and a half of rugged climbing but coming back down took less than seven hours. Still, Candidate Sloan thought that the descent was the toughest part of the trip. "Novice that I was," he commented, "I spent most of the journey down on the seat of my pants."

100 Per Cent Of Class Grads Donate Blood

Graduating Class No. 11 of the Airborne Battalion, 1st Student Regiment, volunteered 100 per cent Monday to give blood at Fort Benning's Blood Donor Center.

Members of Company D, who finished their jump training last Friday, donated 149 pints of blood Monday, Blood Donor Center officials reported.

The company had 200 men eligible to give blood but 51 were rejected for various reasons.

This marked the second time in five months that a class in Company D has volunteered 100 per cent. Members of Class No. 39 volunteered 100 per cent last April.

In addition to the students, Company D had 10 cadremen to volunteer to give blood at the same time.

The company is commanded by Capt. George M. Clark.

Copter Catches Blimp, Forces It To Ground

LAKEHURST NAS, N. J. — (AFPS) — Helicopters are now in the "blimp-catching" business.

A 17-foot model lighter-than-air ship recently ran away from its test pilot, Lt. E. H. Cusworth, hero, and headed up into the stratosphere.

The lieutenant promptly hailed the station's air-sea rescue helicopter to join in a hectic blimp chase.

Sometime later the blimp was sighted at an altitude of 3,400 feet. After much maneuvering, using the draft from the rotor blades to force the blimp back to earth, the runaway airship was finally forced down, several miles from Lakehurst.

Army 'Birds' Pack TNT, Fly Beam To Strike

(ANF) — "Birds" of prey—designed to hunt, intercept and kill—are about to join the Army's arsenal of democracy.

Commonly known as guided missiles, but referred to by missilemen as "birds," these steel-feathered, winged warriors take to the air with a roar, belching smoke and flame from their tails as they wing their way aloft carrying deadly messages to the enemy, or else.

The devilish devices with a one-track mind basically are projectiles which can be directed to their target by radio, radar, sound, heat or light after they take to the air.

"Bird Brains"

Equipped with electronic "bird" brains, the low-order automatons are designed to obey every wish and whim of their controllers. Depending on the purpose of the missile, its "bird" brain will respond to one of several guidance systems as it streaks towards its target.

"Birds" responding to the "command system" go only where they are told. When necessary, the missile is commanded to shift its course by a ground radar system which tracks both the missile and its target.

"Beam Riders"

"Birds" that stay on the beam—"Beam riders" — follow on their own, a path marked out in space by a radar beam at the launching site. As long as the beam tracks the target and the missile stays on the beam, a collision with the target is inevitable.

"Homing birds" find their way without instructions. Missiles using this type of guidance system get their directional signals from the target. During flight, such a missile switches to a signal sent by a transmitter within nitself and rides the echo reflected from the target. The "homing bird" adjusts and readjusts its flight path until target and missile meet in a blinding flash of destruction.

Strategic to Tactical

When guided missiles take to the battlefield, major troop concentrations, supply depots, ports, beachheads and marshalling yards within range of the "birds" of prey will become logical targets for the Army's missile-men. In this respect, the depth of the combat zone will be extended. Targets now classified as strategic will become tactical.

Since range is the most important limiting factor in artillery firing, the extension in range gained by using guided missiles is one of the utmost importance in countering an enemy who, on the offensive, must concentrate his forces.

New Targets

Heavy fortifications, important bridges, supply dumps and troops and vehicle concentrations now out of reach of conventional artillery weapons may be countered with missiles launched from areas far behind the front lines.

Surface-to - surface missiles — capable of hitting any part of a wide front—will give the mud-slogging soldier of Sunday punch to cope with "human sea" tactics, even though adverse weather or darkness should deny him the benefit of close-in air support.

The Army's all-weather, day and night "birds" of prey—the surface-to-surface and surface-to-air missiles — fulfill the Army's need for accurate demolition fire against aerial invaders and heavily protected targets in time of war.

New Training Aid Adopted By Airborne Department

The first new major airborne training aid in ten years, the swing landing trainer, has been adopted by The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

The swing landing trainer will be used to teach students in the basic airborne course how to make proper parachute landing falls, according to Lt. Col. Woodrow N. Laws, Airborne Department executive officer.

The trainer, consisting of a platform 34 feet from the ground with four parachute harnesses attached to each side, is operated by a system on pulleys. The student is buckled into the harness, attached to a suspended metal ring. He then jumps from the platform and is allowed to swing free before being suddenly lowered to the ground to simulate the landing made in an actual parachute jump.

The new trainer accommodates eight students.

This is the first new training apparatus adopted for use in instruction in the airborne course since the 34-foot mock tower was introduced in 1942. It will fill the gap in training between the four-foot landing platform and the 250-foot tower.

Built by the post Engineer Section, the swing landing trainer is based on a similar aid used in the Canadian Airborne School. It was constructed for less than $5,000.

Air Force Reports On 'Flying Saucers'

[Editor's Note: In an effort to keep our readers fully informed, we are printing this article dealing with "flying saucers" from the Air University Dispatch, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala. The Air Force has been conducting its own investigation into "saucer" reports, and this article is the first in which the Air Force explains what has been discovered.]

WASHINGTON—A report which gives the complete story of investigations of reported unusual aerial phenomena was issued this week by Air Force Headquarters.

The report was compiled in reply to numerous inquiries and requests for information.

In the Fall of 1947, it said, the Air Force took official notice of reports of so-called "flying saucers" because these indicated the problem might be related to the Air Force responsibility for the air defense of the United States.

On December 30, 1947 the Air Force directed its Air Materiel Command, at Wright - Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, to set up a project to collect and evaluate all available facts concerning "flying saucer" sightings.

Combined Efforts

To perform this task the Air Materiel Command obtained the services of civilian and military astronomers, psychologists, electronic specialists, meteorologists, aeronautical engineers, and physicists.

On December 27, 1949, after 375 reported sightings had been investigated, the Air Force, with the concurrence of the Army and the Navy, announced the findings of the "flying saucer" project.

The evidence at that time indicated that the majority of the reports of unidentified flying objects could be accounted for as misinterpretations of various conventional objects, a mild form of hysteria, meteorological phenomena, light aberrations, or hoaxes.

Unexplained Sightings

There remained, however, a number of unexplained sightings and the Air Force has continued its investigations inasmuch as it is an Air Force responsibility to identify and analyze aerial phenomena that could possibly be a menace to the United States.

Subsequent to December 1949, these investigations have been conducted as a normal intelligence function, rather than a special project, by the Air Technical Intelligence Center, Wright - Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

To date, the Air Force has undertaken to investigate and analyze about 1500 reports dealing with these phenomena. As before, most of the reports were identified and disposed of as friendly aircraft erroneously reported, known electronic and meteorological phenomena, light aberrations, hoaxes, and other known natural occurences or man-made objects.

Few Out of Total

The unexplained reports, however, which are in the order of 20 percent of the total, cannot be definitely associated with these familiar things.

The difficulty in disposing of these unexplained reports is based largely upon the insufficiency of accurate basic data such as size, shape, composition and flight characteristics (speed, acceleration, altitude, exact maneuver pattern, etc.) of the objects.

Although some instruments which are useful in obtaining more accurate data of this type have been available, the reports based on sightings with these instruments have been very infrequent and comprise an extremely small percentage of the total. Moreover, even these reports have not included much of the information required.

Because of the inadequacy of this basic data, the Air Force has in the past devoted its efforts primarily to determining whether these unexplained sightings indicated the existence of a menace to the United States. Initially it was believed that one pattern might evolve from the study of a large volume of reports. To date, no pattern has materialized to reveal anything whatsoever which can be interpreted as indicative of purpose or consistency or which can be construed as a menace to the United States. Nonetheless, since these unexplained sightings persist, the Air Force will continue its investigations, giving the problem adequate but not frantic attention.

100 PER CENT BATTALION

The First Special Troops Battalion reports 100 percent in the Blood Donor Drive for the past three months. Weekly quotas have been met and surpassed, according to Lt. Frank L. King Battalion adjutant.

TIS Improvement Group Hears Talk On Work Program

Members of The Infantry School's management improvement group heard discussion of the work measurement program at its monthly meeting.

Purpose of the work measurement program is to establish production standards for military and civilian personnel. Under the program, surveys, comparisons and analyses of jobs are made and an average production rate determined.

Representatives from The Infantry Center Comptroller's Office spoke to the group on the various phases of the management improvement program. Capt. P. W. Rice outlined the work measurement plan, and Capt. B. D. Green spoke on the overall mission of the program. P. E. Blackwell explained processing of the program's quarterly reports, and T. E. Posey and R. N. Brown discussed requirements for the manpower survey team.

Lt. Col. John D. Butler, assistant operations officer of The Infantry School, presided. Another meeting is scheduled for October.

Hey, Doc—ISD-ASU 7, Rams 7!

Quick, Watson the pulmotor! Cardiac Capers is back with us and the 1952 spasms threaten to be much more severe than the memorable jolts of '51.

First symptom: An underdog the team to beat for the Benning League championship, but at least two of the other clubs look capable of doing just that at some point in the double round-robin schedule.

LAYING DOWN TACKLE BY GREENIES' BOB HUNT
Adam Dervin (With Ball), Bob Morstad 10, Harry Bailey, 66

ISD-ASU Green Wave, perfectly mister - minded by Jack Faubion who injected his will to win in a game crew, roared back in the waning moments to tie Special Troops Rams, 7-7, in a give-and-take battle last Sunday.

Diagnosis: The Rams are still weather under a broiling sun, offering competition the crowd was limited to a somewhat disappointing 8,500, but those on hand will probably bring friends for the next meeting between these two teams.

What they saw Sunday was a highly versatile defensive tug-o-war which didn't break up until the clock was the enemy of both elevens, although the Rams were inside the enemy 20 three times, while the Greenies had a TD pass nixed by a penalty in the first quarter, and faltered once on the Troopers' 14.

The Rams clicked finally with the ball on their 17 as the last stanza opened. With Quarterback Al Buckles tossing for 43 yards, the Black and Gold drove 83 - yards on six straight first downs for a score.

Halfbacks Don Stump and Bob Morstad, and Fullback John Mackie did the bulk of the running, with Morstad sweeping right end from the five for the score.

Bill Black converted with nine minutes remaining.

Three minutes later the Green Wave had evened it.

Starting from their own 35 on the ensuing kickoff, quarterback Charlie Leonard hit End Dennis Ensminger with a 36-yard pass. Then Halfback Ken Harris, who played a great game, gained 22 yards on a broken field scamper to the Rams' 15.

It was Harris again who ripped off ten yards more on a sideline dash. Bob Boeh hit the middle for one, but an offsides following set the Greenies back to the nine.

It was from there that Leonard hit Ensminger clear in the end zone for six points. Ray Starnes knotted it with his extra - point boot.

The ball changed hands four times more in the final six minutes and was on Special Troops' 24 when Starnes failed in a last second field goal kick.

Faubion was gleeful over his team's performance. Rams Coach Gus Dielens was gloomy, but had prise for his defense and the Greenies' whole show.

Linton Jordan, Bill Thurston and Bill Stetter played great line games for the Rams, while Faubion singled out his entire defensive crew for praise with a particular salute to Larry Goins and Fred Felbaum, both of whom suffered slight injuries.

Harris was Faubion's best back with a gain of 88 yards on 13 runs. He's from De Mar Jr. College in Texas. Ed Hanger ran for 39 and Boeh 11. Leonard completed three of 11 passes for 53 yards.

Stump ran 11 times for 49 yards and Mackie and Morstad picked up 24. Buckles completed eight of 15 tosses for 75 yards. Morstad added 29 in completing two of four.

508th Rated Even With Rams Sunday

It will be pay your money and take your choice when Special Troops and 508th Airborne lock horns at 2 p.m. Sunday at Doughboy Stadium in this week's Fort Benning Football League headliner.

The Rams would be favorites on paper, but have shown only fleeting flashes of their potential brilliance, while the perky Airborne eleven has been playing center ring in a hot-shot TD circus. They have tallied 13 times in three games.

This also will be one of two games this season for which a 25 cents admission will be charged.

508th Schedule

13 505th ARCT 18.
20 CTC 6
59 Donaldson AFB 0
Oct. 12 vs Rams.
Oct. 26 vs ISD-ASU.
Nov. 9 vs ISD-ASU.
Nov. 18 at Jacksonville, NAS, Fla.
Nov. 21 at Georgia Military College.
Nov. 27 vs Rams.
Dec. 7 vs CTC.

The money provides a testimonial banquet for all teams at the end of the season.

Intermission Show

The colorful 122nd Army Band will add the halftime frills.

The Rams this week have absorbed strong word and work lashings from Head Coach Gus Dielens for their sluggish offensive showing against an underdog ISD-ASU Green Wave last Sunday, albeit was a fine pigskin battle.

If the big, experienced Black and Gold team responds to this treatment they are capable of putting on one of the best football shows of any 1952 Benning team. No better than last week, they remain a tough nut to crack.

Two Backfields

Dielens will platoon his offensive backfields Sunday. Quarterback Buckles, the play-maker, will direct one crew while young Emmett Matthews the pitcher, will be in charge of the others.

The rest of the Rams' lineup will be about the same, featuring a strong defensive unit headed by Bill Thuston, Linton Jordan and Bill Stetter. These three have been nothing short of spectacular in three games thus far.

"I'm making no predictions," said a grin-lipped Dielens. "This one is strictly up to each man on our team."

Hustle and spirit are the buys which have given the Red Devils scoring ever. With talent and experience apparently second only to the Rams, this could be the difference for the 508th in a close one Sunday.

Young Coach Jim Phillips put himself on record as being "confident" about the game. He probably will have a few player shifts and new plays as surprises for the Rams as he combines the coaching versatility he has shown thus far.

The 508th appearance has come up with a solid aerial threat in the passing arm of Ken Sprecher, Jr., former All-Conference Texas Independence Jr. College in Kansas. He is a converted end. Regular quarterback Cary Mattocks flips a steady piece of leather, too. Both teams are even-stephen here.

The Red Devil halfbacks, Paul Bucey and Bill Dietz, equal the Rams' Bob Morstad and Don Stump. Special Troops has the better fullback in John Mackie.

The 508th line will spot the Rams an advantage in experience and probably a few pounds in weight, but like the man said, pay your money and take your choice.

TARGET — Vern Fahrenkrug, (above), former St. Johns U., of Minn., ace may be public enemy No. 1 for the 508th Airborne Sunday. The flashy Special Troops' end snagged five passes which netted 44 yards last weekend against ISD-ASU.

All America NAS Routs CTC, 44-0, But This Week

BY MERV MELTZER

They sent a David in against a Goliath Saturday night at Pensacola, but this time the slingshot didn't work. The power-packed Goshawks of the Naval Air Station toyed with Combat Training Command to the tune of 44-0.

But don't laugh, pal. The Commanders squeezed a net offensive gain of 110 yards out of a crew which includes about half of last year's Navy varsity, all on training duty here.

Goshawks	13	13	18	0	— 44

The team is taken from seven naval installations in the Pensacola area and of 65 men dressed for the game 56 boasted varsity college experience.

An idea of how overloaded the club is with talent is given by the fact that Bob Zastrow, who piloted Navy to victory over Army and was voted All-America quarterback honors as a sophomore, played defense only for the Goshawks while Frankly, are out to gain the '52 service football crown.

Play This Week

That puts the Commanders two down, but they seem certain to get to Montgomery Sept. night when they play Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., in Greenville.

Donaldson submitted to ISD-ASU, 25-0, and to the 508th, 59-0.

Dickerson Retires

Of more immediate import is the fact that CTC got two regulars hurt in the Pensacola game, while Coach Cecil Dickerson found a quarterback and put himself on the temporarily retired list.

Back Al Willis and Guard John Walsh suffered hurts which will sideline them for several weeks. In addition, tackle Tom Haviland and back Paul Shover got discharged this week.

On the brighter side, Dickerson announced Roland Clement, 23-year old former semi-pro player, as his successor at quarterback.

One Job

"I've been grooming him right along and he showed well at Pensacola," said Dickerson. "It's just too much for me to play and try to coach, too, and besides I'm no quarterback. If I can help the team in a tough game I'll go in as a halfback, but for the present I'm all coach, and we'll be ready for our next league game."

Dickerson, who emphasized he is still building, not re-building, had praise also for Theron Cheek, Ramon Eadie and Paul Iannaccone as key linemen against the Goshawks.

He said Harvey Lundy proved himself at the team's regular right halfback in the tough game. Adams

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

SINCE IT'S a fact that the larger share of fans who watch Fort Benning Football League action never had on a pair of cleats and shoulder pads, it also stands to reason that a good number of them are confused by some of the things that go on down on that 100-yard long and 160-foot wide strip of sod known as the gridiron.

That's especially so this year with scores larger than ever, the two-platoon system at its zenith, and some fresh wrinkles in offensive styles, most particularly the so-called spread formation. But when a Doughboy Stadium customer asked, "So what's new?", your Uncle Nudnik had to answer in all truth: "So what could be new in football?"

Fact is, fashions in football offense change almost as often as the weather, but rain or shine, it's still the same old weather. The T-formation, which has been the big thing for the last 10 years, was played by your grandad. Then someone popularized the wingback formations, Knute Rockne came up with his famed Notre Dame box, the T became chic again, and now we're going off the deep end with spreads, which seem to be nothing more difficult than variations on a wingback theme to take advantage of the modern era's grid specialists.

Diagram One shows the old reliable single wing formation which stresses power compared to the speed and deception of the T. It places a premium on skull-splitting blocking, but let me say that blocking is the key to any offense; it opens the holes or clears the way for the wide sweeps. A halfback shifts to one side in the single wing, usually behind an unbalanced line, as illustrated, creating the strong side. This strong side can be shifted either way. The ball is snapped direct to the carrier. No Benning teams are using the single wing as basic formation this season.

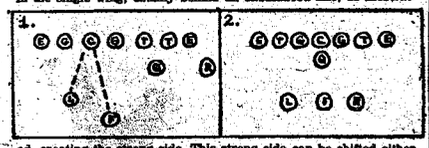

Diagram Two shows the standard T-formation, and if you don't have a quarterback who is a triple-threat man — runner, passer and thinker—you might as well abandon this one before you start. The quarterback takes the ball from under the center and himself can carry on a quick line opening, the quarterback sneak, or fade back and pass. To get rid of the ball he can pivot on one foot, turning his back to the enemy, and hand-off to another back passing behind him, a spinner, or, he can start in one direction and hand-off to another back going in the opposite direction, the reverse. A quick opener is a line buck where the offense punches a hole in the defense so a charging back can take a direct snap hand-off from the quarterback and burst through.

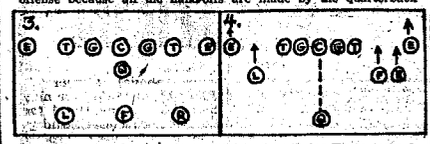
The only trouble with the T, or any other formation long in vogue, is that defenses are soon devised that eliminate its surprise elements and gradually reduce its effectiveness. That is why in the past few semesters the offensive geniuses have come up with the split-T, which is shown in Diagram Three.

Spacing the linemen further apart spreads the defense and gives ready-made holes for the offense. It is a powerful funning offense because all the hand-offs are made by the quarterback at the line of scrimmage in contrast to the regular T quarterback who pivots. However, snap hand-offs at the line of scrimmage also mean more fumbles. To enhance passing in the standard and split-T flankered ends can be used.



So what more does the new spread formation offer then?

The principal difference, as shown in Digaram Four is that the passer stands about eight yards back of the center, and can fade back several more yards where the defense can not rush him effectively. Also, as you can readily see, many more receivers are in position to go down field with the least possible hindrance.

Diagram Four shows the gosh-awful spread currently used by T.C.U., where the ends are eight and nine yards from the tackle. Jim Phillips, 508th Airborne coach, successfully used a variation of this and the double wind formation against CTC. Phillips' ends are split as in Diagram Four with backs winged behind them and the fullback at the side of the deep quarterback, thus spreading the defense too thin to guard safely against a run and not thin enough to cover all of the potential passing patterns. Passing is the chief threat of the spread; slow and heavy linemen are defeated by it and all defensive backs must be good pass defenders.

If the passer or tailback is also a capable runner then the spread is almost unstoppable. That is, for the time being anyway. It will have its fling until defensive strategists have looked at it long enough. Then, who knows—we may be back to Rockne's box. Meantime, look for wide open games and high scores this season.

Branson's Aerials Set 59-0 Devil Win

This one should be written on an adding machine instead of a typewriter. 508th Airborne abused Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., 59-0, at Doughboy Stadium Saturday in a non-league and non-much anything game.

The Red Devils got a net of 133 yards on the ground. They didn't get more because they stopped running in an effort to avoid injuries and began passing.

They gained a net of 341 yards via the ozone route. Ken Branson, 21-year-old Oklahoma junior college veteran who has switched from end to the backfield, threw 15 times, completed nine for 197 yards and had one intercepted.

OZONE SCORES

Quarterback Gary Mattocks completed two of four for 70 yards. One of these was a 27-yard shot to Stew Currie for a TD. Branson pitched 24-yard and 15-yard shots to Willis Hames for scores, and an 11-yard heave to Bill Fortner for six points.

If TD making is habit forming then this was a good game for the Red Devils, but if pushing over softies lets you down for the big ones, watch out. For example, the Red Devils lost 115 yards on penalties, and, worse, they fumbled six times and lost possession of the ball five times.

ONE INJURY

Another cost of the slaughter was a potentially serious ankle injury suffered by guard Norman Mueller, a regular from last year. Coach Jim Phillips kept all of his practice-bruised regulars out of the game.

Paul Bucey carried five times for 44 yards, Bill Dietz carried five times for 30 yards and two TD's, and Creston Mast carried three times for 33 yards and one score.

NEARLY PERFECT

Bill Stevens tried eight conversions and missed only the sixth when the snap from center was bobbled by Mast. With a minute remaining in the game, Bill Kennedy ran a punt back 75 yards for a score.

Nearly all of the 508th's passes were tossed from their wide double wing formation with the ends split.

Several weeks ago, ISD-ASU played Donaldson and came home with a 25-0 victory.

Rifle, Pistol Meet For Post Up Oct. 20

The top 25 rifle and pistol shooters from each of the major units on post will compete in the finals of the Infantry Center marksmanship program Oct. 20-24, it was announced this week.

The post-wide finals will be the culmination of competitive shooting programs now being conducted from company-level up in all major commands.

Winner will receive awards from Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, commanding general, in ceremonies at Briant Wells Field House Oct. 24.

Competition for individuals and five-man teams is slated with the M-1 rifle and the .45-cal. service pistol. Service ammunition will be used.

Sites Selected

The rifle firing will be done at McAndrew Range with the pistol competition at Coursen Range, according to Col. Gordon Hammond, post range officer.

Practice firing will be done Monday, Oct. 26, with record firing starting Tuesday. A hundred and 44 rounds will be fired in the rifle tests with 88 for the pistol. Winners will be determined by aggregates.

At least 80 per cent of each will be composed of enlisted men.

Army Cinder Whiz Holds Five Records

BY EDWARD M. RICH

DICK SHEA

A holder of five all-time West Point track records and many United States and European titles is a student officer in Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. Richard T. Shea Jr., a quiet, unassuming native of Portsmouth, Virginia, is in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Two, 113th Company.

Shea's most coveted honor, however, might easily be considered the Army Athletic Association award as making the most valuable contribution to athletics during a four year period (1949-52).

Set Army Records

The trackman set all-time West Point records for both the indoor and outdoor mile, the indoor and outdoor two-mile, and the 880.

Shea bettered the old Gregg Rice record for the mile in the Penn Relays and his 9:11 mark over that distance still stands. He was 2-mile champion three years in a row, 1949-51—for the Penn Relays.

While an enlisted man in Nuremberg, Germany in 1947, Shea captured five European crowns. He was Constabulary champion for the 1,500 and 5,000 meters, European champion for 1,500 and 5,000 meters, and Europesn Mediterranean champion 5,000 meters and also participated in the Berlin GI Olympics in 1947.

Heptagonal Champ

The swift Virginian was Heptagonal cross-country champion in 1948, 1950 and 1951, in addition to being ICAAAA cross country title-holder the same years. She was named to the AAU All-America crosscountry team in 1950 and '51.

His times which are current West Point track records with the exception of the outdoor mile run (which Shea can't recall): indoor mile—4:10; indoor 2-mile—9:05; outdoor 2-mile—9:11; 880 yards—1:54.4.

Shea attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1944 and '45, and was intramural champion for the Steeplechase at that school in 1944.

Boyd, Chapman Re-Match Tops Hopeful Card

With Jack Frost's nippy touch beginning to be felt, Fort Benning's amateur boxing moves indoors for the winter tonight with ten bouts on tap at 8 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

Two substitute matches have been made in case any of the regulars don't satisfy the medicos during weigh-in at 1 p.m.

Featured setto tonight is chapter three of James Boyd vs. Claude Chapman.

Champ In Action

Boyd, post light heavyweight champ for two years from First Student Regiment, has lost a decision and three-round TKO to Chapman, a handsomely built ASU entry who won the FECOM light heavy crown this past spring.

A match with more suspense brings together lightweight Willie Wright, of ASU, and August Wolf, of 508th. Wolf won the first time they met, but Wright reversed that decision last Thursday in a genuine slugfest.

Wright is the more skillful boxer, Wolf the unflagging slugger.

Re-Match

William Russell, also of ASU, will try for his second straight win over challenging Milton Marcie, CTC, in a class two welterweight mill.

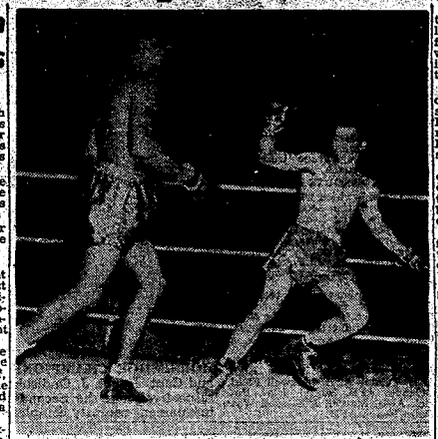
Light welterweight Bob Collins, of ISD, who lost to Rollen Martin last week after winning three straight, is matched against Paul Totten, of First S.R. Totten has a win and loss.

All bouts call for three rounds of three minutes each. Admission is free.

Plenty Beef

In other matches:

Light heavyweight Jack King, First S.R. vs. Tommy Bridges, CTC; welterweight Dave Carter, ASU, vs. Earnest Mack, CTC; light middleweight Carl Mayers, CTC, vs. Theo Galloway, 508th; featherweight Rufus Martin, CTC, vs. Don Horsey, CTC; light middleweight Charles Glover, ISD, vs. Donald Whorf, ASU; Floyd Wright, 508th, vs. welterweight Joe Dickey, ASU; light welterweight Abe Hardin, ASU, vs. William Ray, 508th; and light heavyweight Robert Landfried, 508th, vs. Frank Love, CTC.



ASU'S GEORGE BLACKBURN WAVES LAST GOOD-BYE
CTC's Willie Parker Scores TKO in 1:42 of Third

The latter two are alternate bouts.

RINGLETS: Popular Ref. Jim Mullins got a 60-day reprieve (because of duties) on his overseas orders and will continue as third man . . . LEW JENKINS' life story is in November issue of Argosy . . . ISD's most steady campaigner, JIM HILLES, has turned pro . . . LARRY MUJICA, tells JERRY PERLMAN, has an eight-round shot against EDDIE COMPO Nov. 17 in Madison Square Garden, which will be lucrative (with TV money), but Compo is tough customer who beat CHICO VEJAR . . . RAY LEE supposed to have a six rounder same time . . . The seven cards at Gowdy Field drew about 10,000 fans.

. . . 508th's best fighter, JESSE FLOREZ, hopes to be over hand infection and return to action in several weeks . . . First SR's GEORGE STAMPS will be ready to fight again (had a broken leg) about the first of the year . . . Heard the first decision I couldn't agree with last week from judges BOB GOFF and CURTIS COOPER.

NEW LINE COACH

The West Point gridders have a new line coach this year in Carney Leslie, who formerly coached at Kentucky.

One of the better bantamweights to show here in awhile bowed in last Thursday as a class five fighter, but after he made short work of his opponent the post boxing board jacked him up to class two.

Joe Clark, 116, of First Student Regiment, was the impressive newcomer. He sparred with Bobby Rodriquez, of 508th, for one round and in the second decked Bobby twice. Ref. Jim Mullins stopping it the second time.

With Jerry Perlman, Clark's coach, dissenting, the board rated Clark class two and gave him a tentative match with Third Army bantan champ George Allen for Oct. 16.

If there was any question in the first place that Ben Robinson is the best practicing heavyweight on post, it was settled when the ASU mauler pummeled Lou Barnes for three rounds for the second time.

Byron Mortensen, of ISD, made his last fight for Benning when he beat Donald Whorf, 147, of ASU. Mortensen is up for discharge.

Lew Jenkins, the former lightweight champ, and Benning's fattest newcomer, Mujica put on a four-round exhibition which was notable mostly for laughs. Which seconds were picking out gloves for them. Lew ordered: "Give me a pair of six count gloves."

In other amateur action, Vincent Marshall, 148, First SR, convinced Sylvester St. Cyr, ISD, that boxing is a tough racket by registering a TKO when St. Cyr failed to answer the bell for the second; and Willie Wright, 129, ASU, got the two most consistent amateur ring experts I have ever seen.—CHARLIE JOHNSON.

GRID GOSSIP

Les Dinoff, usual conductor of this pillar, has been using some accumulated leave time to enjoy the World Series at home. . . A Bronxite, he naturally is for the Yankees.

But being in a happy mood before shoving off, Lester-boy left some mash notes about managers, trainers and other handlers with football teams; says they're unheard of. . . Reserve part of the victory. . . A few are Henry Perkins, 508th, Hal Nalley, ASU-ISD, Elmer Kinsley and Wally West, of the Rams, Homer Breedlo, Al Lindrech, Henry Hammond and Keith Wilson, of CTC.

Ass't. Coach BILL THUSTON, who played at Wofford, set up the Rams defense against the 82nd's single wing in one short work out Friday afternoon. . . Ass't coach and defensive end LINTON JORDAN middle aisles with KATIE WORLEY, of Monticello, Ga., Oct. 19.

Benning football is getting a reputation. . . U. of Georgia asked if we would be interested in a game last Saturday when polio-stricken North Carolina U. pulled out. . . Col. Ken Grimes explained we had two teams committed against outside opponents, and besides, too little time to get a post team working together. . . Maybe it's just as well. N. C. State took the bid and got bounced, 49-0.

The quick whistles (which may have cost each team several enemy fumbles recovered) were very noticeable Sunday. . . When Georgia high school officials told the Columbus Peanut Bowl group that their annual game probably shouldn't feature high schools, was that the first step in inviting a Benning all-star aggregation to play a rival service eleven in the Dec. 19 classic?

Dick Lehmann, Rams' guard, who also is post heavyweight boxing champ, says he will have no trouble with Ben Rahman, ASU's No. 1 contender; when the pigskin season is past and he puts the gloves back on. . . Rams' Coach Gus Dickens may switch to basketball-mentoring when the grid campaign is finished.

Jim Hamby, Notre Dame guard in 1949-50-51, is an Air Police officer at Lawson Field. . . ISD-ASU is losing regulars. Vince Donato and Harold Lang to discharge this week. . . And after one more game backs Jack Hendrix and Bob Boeh will return to mufti, tough losses for this fighting club. . . CTC's Mel Anglen played at Pensacola with a broken hand; the cast was encased in sponge rubber.

Biggest man on the field last Sunday was Bobby Davis, former Ga. Tech All-America tackle, who referreed. . . Come on, guys, let's have a capacity paying crowd for Sunday's game. . . The players deserve it. . . Chris Dabis, the former baseball star convalescing after a serious knee operation, carried the yard-line markers Sunday, along with Clyde Eberhardt, who played with Washington Redskins.

One of the Green Wave's better ends, 18-year old Buck Adams, 195, missed Sunday's game because of an injured back. . . Did'ja notice Greenie Quarterback Charlie Leonard, hit hard time and again, get up off the ground, pat his tackler on the back, and flip: "Nice tackle, pal."

Haire Wins 300-Yard Run

Candidate John D. Haire Jr., Third Officer Candidate Company, First O. C. Regiment, won the 300-yard run in last week's "Little Olympics" with a time of 44.5 seconds.

Haire owes his speed to the training he received at Georgetown University, where he participated in track and became one of the top sprinters in the United States.

During the spring of 1951, he ran in the ICAA and AAU track meets in Madison Square Garden, New York City, and is rated as one of the top men in the 60-yard sprint.

Benning Coaches Set For Quarterbacks Club

Maj. Gene Myers, Fort Benning sports officer, and post Coaches Jack Faulkner, of A&M, and Cecil Dickerson, of Combat Training Command, will be guest speakers at the Tuesday, Oct. 14, meeting of the Columbus Quarterbacks Club.

25th O.C. Unit Wins Regiment Softball Title

Last week's forfeit win over Third O.C. Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment, gave the 25th O.C. Company's softball team the championship of First O.C. Battalion with a 12-1 record.

In the regimental playoffs, 25th Company's sandlotters have tasted defeat only once in a 2-0 loss to 29th Company.

A last-inning ball club, the 25th had to pull nearly all of their ball games out of the fire. Extra base hits by sluggers Ray Keefer, Jim Shalbrack, Joe Wreath and Ray Casulli provided the margin of victory time after time in the final frame.

The 25th also boasts a cracker-jack infield. Opponents were hard pressed to get by the rifle arms and flawless fielding of Shalbrack at third base, Sam Patellos at shortstop, Casulli at second and Jim Wooley on first.

The heavy duty pitching chores were handled by former semi-pro star Keefer whose control and variety of soft stuff left plenty of bewildered batters fanning the Army Georgia breezes. Relief hurler Ralph Poole, a speedball specialist, suffered the lone loss to the 29th but won two more games on his own in the battalion series.

Manager Charlie Voccio is confident that his red-hot diamondmen will cause plenty of trouble for the 25th's opponents in the playoff series.

1st SR Touch Football On

In the opening game of the First Student Regiment Intramural Touch Football League, Casual Company defeated the Second Battalion "Blues," 19-7.

The league started Monday and will continue until a championship team is determined. The games will be played according to the inter-collegiate rules as amended by Special Services sports officer.

Special Services, First Student Regiment ran a football clinic prior to the league opening to acquaint the players with the changes in rulings.

The passing combination of Ted Wind and James Williams accounted for 2 of the touchdowns and an interception by Wind climaxed by a 68 yd. run resulted in the third.

Jimmie Rowland caught a pass in the end zone to score the lone touchdown for the 2nd Battalion.

Ex-Net Promoter Seeks Commission

The former business manager and co-promoter of the International Professional Tennis Championships is now serving with the First Officer Candidate Regiment. He is Candidate John Green of Fifth Company.

The former tennis instructor was one of the sponsors of the tennis world series at Cleveland in 1951. Such stars as Don Budge, Frank Parkeer, Frank Kovacs and Pancho Seguras participated.

Green graduated from Hollywood High school in Los Angeles, in 1945.

Wacker was impressed with the 1 3-4 mile straight-away of the track, and stated that unusually high speeds would be recorded on such a course.

OPERATION BLONDE — AFPS

CTC Battles Donaldson On Saturday

Zubaty will be at left half and George Bell at full against Donaldson.

Florida Ace Shines

The potent navy attack Saturday was led by Buster Owen, former U. of Florida star. His deadly passing broke the back of the Benning club at the outset with a 47-yard parade which ended with a TD pass to Dick Yanke. Then he passed to Ralph Nelson to make it 12-0 at the quarter.

The Commanders fought back, but aside from a 25-yard run by Lundy, could get nowhere against the tremendous navy forward wall.

In the second period, the Goshawks again took the air with Owens pitching. Two 15-yard passes to Nelson brought navy its third score of the game.

Fumble Set Up TD

A CTC fumble led to the fourth NAS touchdown. This time the Navy team stayed on the ground all the way as their line opened hole after hole for the Commanders forward wall. Tom Hartley, ex-DePauw University halfback capped the drive, skirting left end for 18 yards and paydirt.

In the closing seconds of the first hlf, the Commanders put on their most sustained drive of the night. Taking the kick-off on his own five yard line, George (Ding-Dong) Bell drove up to the 33. With Zubaty carrying the mail they picked up another few yards and then Lundy smashed through the Navy line 33 yards to the Sailors' 33.

Two of Clement's passes were incomplete as he was continually rushed by the Goshawk line and had to quick throw to avoid being pasted. He finally connected on a short pass to Zubaty. However, on the next play Clement was hit hard by a Navy tackler and CTC lost the ball on the ensuing fumble.

The half ended with the Benning team trailing 25-0.

Screen Pass

Probably the most beautiful play of the game occurred late in the Third period while Navy was driving towards their final scores of the night. With the Goshawks on their own 44, Johnny Fowler, former An-napolis quarterback, faded back to-he calmly threw a screen pass to Glenn Anderson waiting 15 yards downfield with seven blockers who pass.

He was rushed by the entire formed a human wedge as he went Commander front wall, whereupon all the way to pay dirt.

mustard gas attack by guerrillas.

Two of the enemy were captured and interrogated by the hospital's intelligence officer, 2nd Lt. Merlin G. Benson of Logan, Utah, in an effort to determine the Aggressor's strength and plan of action.

Unit Mission

The 24th, a general Reserve unit, has been at Fort Benning since Sept. 20, 1950. Its mission, if committed to combat, is to provide hospital facilities as near the front lines as possible. One unit of this type is assigned to early Army division.

The 24th has had a great deal of experience in maneuvers. It supported the 22,000 - strong aggressor forces during Exercise Longhorn in Texas last Spring and actually treated 183 patients during one six-hour period.

Many men of the 24th are Korean returnees. Their experience adds a great deal to the realistic training given by the unit to new men preparing for service with a combat - zone evacuation hospital, Col. Zalkan said.

New Unit Gives Support to CTC

The 357th Ordnance Medium Maintenance Company has joined the ranks of Infantry Center units as a member of Combat Training Command.

Commanded by Capt. Moss E. Dixon, the company came here from Camp Rucker, Ala. Equipped with its own complete kit of tools and vans, the unit will give direct ordnance support to all CTC units.

Broken down into three platoons and a headquarters section, the company will also demonstrate ordnance equipment and techniques for Infantry School students. The three platoons are a service, supply and recovery platoon, an armament platoon and an automotive platoon.

Activated Jan. 23, 1951 at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the company still has two of its original members — Sgt. Robert L. Hampton and Cpl. Calvin C. Strait. Executive officer of the unit is 1st Lt. William B. Cook.

committee chairmen were to be made at the club's second meeting last night.

Until the new youth center can be completed sometime next year, the club plans to convert the Old Post Gym into a temporary clubhouse.

The Dad's Club replaces the former Youth Activities Council and will sponsor all youth activities here in an effort to "promote a better understanding by fathers of problems confronting Army children."

Patterned after similar clubs started in Europe by Army personnel, the Fort Benning Dad's Club hopes to have more than 550 active members.

Soldier Now Lives Four Times Longer Than 1882 Fighter

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFPS) — Life expectancy in the military has quadrupled in the past 130 years, thanks largely to preventive medicine, Maj. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, Surgeon General of the Air Force, told a group of student flight surgeons at the School of Aviation Medicine here.

The General praised medical research and practice such as that taught at the School of Aviation Medicine, asserting that it was responsible for the fine record of increased life expectancy in military life.

"In 1822, a soldier could expect to live only 12 years and most of the deaths were caused by preventable diseases rather than by accident or violence. Through careful sanitation, inoculation and other measures aimed at preventing the growth and spread of disease, we have made life in the Air Force safer and more healthy than in most civilian occupations," Gen. Armstrong asserted.

He commented that in 40 or 50 years, the Air Force philosophy of cure by prevention may have spread to all fields of medicine, and men who have chosen to specialize in the medicine of flight may consider themselves pioneers.

78th 100 Per Cent In Blood Drive

All members of the 78th Engineer Battalion recently received three-day passes after the 78th unit reached a goal of 100 per cent in the blood donor campaign.

To accomplish its objective, the 78th donated a total of 194 pints of blood. The goal was determined by the fact that 194 men were eligible to donate blood at the start of the campaign.

Cpl. Joseph F. Corriveau and Pfc. Racey Smith of Headquarters and Service Company and Pfc. Walter E. Taylor of Company A contributed four pints of blood apiece. Three men from Company B, Pfcs. Gilbert W. Meyer, Joseph G. Strickland and Jessie R. Thomas, gave three pints each.

FIRST SERGEANT NAMED

Sfc. Carlton L. Crocker has been assigned to the 87th Chemical Smoke Generator Company as field first sergeant. He has been in the Army 24 years.

USAF Seeks 4,700 Officers

MITCHELL AFB, N. Y. (AFPS) — The Air Force needs 4,700 Air Reserve officer volunteers to fill manpower requirements during the balance of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1953, Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, Commanding General of Continental Air Command, recently announced here.

Requirements include 2,000 pilots (600 single-engine and 1,400 multi-engine) 700 aircraft observers, and 2,000 non-rated officers.

The most critical need in the flying career field is for aircraft observer — radar bombardier, navigator, bombardier, aircraft observer bombardment, and radar observers.

Non-rated Officers

Among non-rated officers, the greatest requirement exists in the following specialties: security and intelligence, aircraft maintenance, communications and electronics, research and development, procurement, and supply. Other non-rated specialists are: weapons officer, personnel, education and training, and comptroller.

Monthly quotas, not now available, will be allocated by ConAC to each of its numbered AF headquarters.

Qualified pilots, who meet the requirements and have submitted their applications for extended active duty during the past year, will receive first consideration.

SERGEANT MAJOR TOLD

M-Sgt. Joseph F. Scobby has been transferred to Headquarters, Second Battalion, 30th Infantry Regiment, where he will serve as battalion sergeant major.

cutting method into competition for the $500 Achievement Award, given annually to the Individual who makes the "outstanding contribution to the Army's supply economy program."

The Army, however, is not the only organization interested in Sergeant Horn's new three-way process. The National Livestock and Meat Board adopted the technique after board members visited Third Army Food Service School for a demonstration.

The Home Economics Section of the U. S. Department of Agriculture also has adopted the method for use in its nation-wide school lunch program.

Public Recognition

Sergeant Horn won public recognition when the three-way method was described in an article in the July, 1952, issue of Institutions Magazine.

This recognition, however, was slow in arriving. Sergeant Horn actually devised his ham-cutting procedure in 1943 at Camp Shelby, Miss., where he was food steward in an Army mess feeding 6,000 men daily.

He continued to use the faster and more efficient method as a food service technician at Fort Bragg, N. C. and in Korea where he served with Heavy Mortar Company of the 27th Infantry Regiment.

Last February he interested Lt. Col. John S. Andersen, Food Service School commandant, in his new method. Colonel Andersen ran a series of tests on hams, using the sergeants three-way method, and filed a report of his findings with the Quartermaster General's Office which in turn conducted additional tests.

Joseph A. Browne, meat cutting and refrigeration specialist in the Office of the Quartermaster General, later came to Fort Benning for a final demonstration. As a result the Food Service School now teaches Sgt. Horn's three-way method of boning hams.

Lecturer Sets Benning Speech

William L. Shirer, author, lecturer and radio commentator, will appear at the Main Post Theatre, November 3, at 8:30 p.m. His lecture, open to the public, is sponsored by the Woman's Club.

Author of the popular "Berlin Diary" and "End of Berlin Diary," Mr. Shirer's latest book, "Midcentury Journey" is currently in its first edition. A treatise on international affairs, it makes a timely pre-national election reading assignment for students of politics. "Midcentury Journey" is the Literary Guild selection for October.

A native of Illinois, Shirer spent twenty years in European capitols as a newspaperman and radio reporter. He covered the Nazi push into Poland and was an eyewitness to the fall of France in World War II. His two "Berlin Diary" books chronicled the days when war was in the making.

Throughout World War II, Mr. Shirer served as a news correspondent in the European Theatre. He later covered the original United Nations Conferences in San Francisco. His current book reports vividly on the international situation as it exists today, and he is expected to use it as a basis for his lecture here.

Members of the Woman's Club may use their membership identification tags to gain entry to the lecture. Tickets will be on sale the night of the lecture at three ticket windows of the Main Post Theater. Admission for the lecture will be 75 cents, including tax.

Auburn Band Set For Top League Duel

The gritty Green Wave of ISD-ASU, within a victory of being tied for the lead in the Fort Benning Football League, takes on rebounding Combat Training Command at 2 p.m. Sunday at Doughboy Stadium.

The Auburn College band will be the halftime attraction.

CTC bushwhacked Donaldson AFB, S.C., 24-0, last Saturday night, while the Greenies earlier bounced the same team, 25-0. Of those figures you make ISD-ASU a one-point favorite, you're about right.

Oct. 26 vs 508th
Nov. 9 vs. 508th
Nov. 22 vs CTC

Dec. 14 vs Rams.

The main difference to the Greenies' favor is a fancy pitching quarterback, Charlie Leonard, and a "gift that fastest with the mostest" coach, Jack Faubion, who hasn't been beaten in two years at Benning.

The two of them parlayed an outwhelming line and a trigger-footed set of backs into a 7-7 tie with mammoth Special Troops two weeks ago; the same Troopers who routed 508th, 26-7 last Sunday.

Manley Set

The Greenies are to be without potentially their best back, however. Harold Manley, former Alabama ace, is still hobbling with an ankle injury sustained in the Donaldson game. Regular Eud Buck Adams also is doubtful this weekend.

CTC quarterback and coach, Cecil (Scooter) Dickerson, admitted his team came out of the Donaldson game in tip-top shape, but added: "We have been up to the pile, so I'll just keep my mouth shut until after Sunday's game."

Dickerson will play because Roland Clement, groomed as his successor at quarter, suffered a broken arm in practice. Dickerson tossed for one TD against Donaldson.

Vet Returns

The Commanders will be bolstered by Sanford DeBose starting his first game at end. He was All-Post honorable mention in '51, but was Fourth Air Training Commander.

The other wing, colorful Georgia (Ding Dong) Bell, who scampered 56 for the 508th touchdown three weeks ago, and is the reading candidate as the post's best halfback.

In the key fullback role will be Adam Zubritz, 1951 All-Post choice, who, by now should be over the hoodoo he's suffered in converting from a single wing to a T-formation back.

CTC will have a considerable margin in line weights, but thus far their forewall has not charged like the game ISD-ASU line which revolves around Fred Feltham, the All-Post and Penn State guard. They're particularly tough on defense.

At any rate, if Benning League action runs its true pattern Sunday, the anticipated won't happen. Some 10,000 are expected to be on hand because of that fact.

Buckles Hurls Rams Past 508th, 26-7, In Grid Feud

Special Troops Rams were atop the Fort Benning Football League today after breaking out of their recent scoring cocoon by walloping 508th Airborne, 26-7, Sunday in a football brawl game before 8,000 paying Doughboy Stadium customers.

Aerials by dead-panned Al Buckles, 28-year old former Arizona State end, spelled all four Ram TDs as he gave the best T-formation quarterbacking show of the young season.

Buckles, the big Ram line which came alive finally and far too many mistakes by the Red Devils were the difference.

JOHN ODEN COPS 26-YD. PASS FROM BOB MORTSAD Ed Grimsley (33) and Jack Clark (55) too late in 10 gain

There were 164 yards of penalties, high by comparison, in the game which apparently lifted the lid on a hot coaching feud between the 508th's Jim Phillips and the Rams' Gus Dielens.

Tit-For-Tat

They exchanged unpleasantries after the game and Phillips asked to be quoted to the effect that the Red Devils will be the winners in their second meeting Nov. 27.

"We may do it," he told his team, "with a player who transferred right out of their unit, which shows you how much they're on their toes."

Not to be outdone in repartee, Dielens claimes: "We called every play they ran in the second half just by following our scouting reports."

The fireworks probably were touched off late in the second quarter when 508th tackle Willard Bura was thumbed by Linesman Allan Frazer for a personal foul.

Double Setback

Phillips rushed onto the field to protest and that maneuver cost his team 15 in addition to 15 for the foul. It left the Red Devils with the ball on their own two-yard line.

Halfback Paul Bucey, attempted a quick punt which was partially blocked and the Rams, walling 7-0, took command on the Devil 20.

Buckles quickly hit end Vern Fabrenkrug over the middle for 14 yards and Harry Gilchrist cracked left end to the eight. Two more plays stalled but then Buckles completed to Bob Mortsad who was waiting alone in the end zone.

Bill Black missed the conversion on a bad snap, but the Rams were back in the game, smelled blood and struck again with less than two minutes remaining in the period, and the 508th apparently already thinking of the halftime rest.

Costly Lag

At any rate, when the ensuing kickoff drive faltered on Special Troops 20, they surrendered the ball meekly and it took the Rams only three plays to score.

The payoff was a short heave by Buckles right into the hands of two alert rival tacklers in the 508th zone to complete a "keyed" scoring play. Black converted and Gibbons broke one tackle midway in the third period for a 37-yard TD jaunt which was nullified by a penalty. The remainder of the quarter was see-saw.

On their first chance in the last stanza, Ram reserve Bill Hamlet, 28-year old former Fort Benning football star who had been scheduled to be coach at Columbus High before he signed with the Rams, pilfered the summer for the second Infantry team which won the Indiantown Gap, Pa., baseball crown.

NEVER SAFFENED

Joe Bailey, Fourth Army golf champion, is scheduled to be coach at Columbus High before he signed with the Rams, pilfered the summer for the second Infantry team which won the Indiantown Gap, Pa., baseball crown.

Post Boxing Rules Viewed

Amateur boxing at Fort Benning operates under the Hawaiian system of placing a boxer in one of five categories commensurate with his ability.

Even though a fighter may have qualifications for a certain class the Post boxing board reserves the right to reclassify the fighter if it deems it necessary.

The five classes and their qualifications:

Class I — Winners of amateur or service championships.

Class II — Experienced boxer who has never won a championship.

Class III — Ten bouts experience with at least six wins.

Class IV — Novice who has fought bouts and won.

Class V — Man who has never won a bout before or never boxed before.

CHAMPION HURLER

Alex Konikowski, promising New York Giants rookie who was drafted, pitched this summer for the Second Infantry team which won the Indiantown Gap, Pa., baseball crown.

The 508th's Bob Mortsad threw one shortest pass of the season by 50 feet, rolling it to Ram Bill Hamlet for a 10-yard gain.

Black's extra point boot was low. Totally Buckles, a 185-pounder from Phoenix, Ariz., who has carried the Rams through three other games unbeaten, completed 13 of 19 pitches for a net of 152 yards.

Orchids to All

It's hard to finger standouts in their good line — a Ram tradition — but give cheers for tackle Bill Thurston, end Linton Jordan, Fabrenkrug and all of the guards.

Offensively, laurels were shared by Don Stump, who averaged 5.7 yards on six runs, Morstad, who gained 17, Dervin with 16, little Joe Pangonis with a net of 38 and fullback John Mackie who went great guns until removed with an injury.

Bill Dietz was by far the most outstanding back for the Red Devils with a 9.1 average on nine runs, but he seemed out of place as a halfback while his replacement, Ken Branson, failed to measure up to the opening day performance which earned him the job. He made 13 yards on five carries.

Mattocks completed two of five aerials allowed him for 31 yards. Ken Branson had no such luck completing one of three and overly familiar double wing. He completed two of seven for 19 yards, but lost 38 yards on plays when he was smothered with the oval.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

By Cpl. Charles Johnson

THE CRY for the last two weeks is "un-Scratched Doughboy Stadium will be "Break up Jack Faubion" and it's not without good cause that rivals are wise of Black Jack's football hide. The 32-year old sidewheeler at Ft. Benning football is midway in his second season of coaching and has not has yet to suffer the pangs of defeat. Twice in '52, true, but whatever of six to league play and two more on the road, including the 1951 Geechee Bowl championship.

But it will be Sunday or never for Combat Training Command and 508th Airborne is that order because on November 1 the Army returns the bull-shouldered Oklahoman to his civilian occupation, coaching football, of course.

Faubion has never been accused of putting on his socks after losing up his combat boots, but they insist he has some real smart everything else on the football side to nail the 1951 post grid title with Special Troops and keep the pace in the '52 campaign with ISD-ASU. Aside from the usual hazards of service football — changing orders, transfers, overseas shipments and discharges — they conceded a large order of snake oil and chips of luck to win with these crews.

The '51 Rams were loaded with former professionals and veteran college varsity men, but almost too late did Faubion discover that they were all linemen, while the various foursomes he inserted in the backfield operated at such cross purposes one would have thought they never were even properly introduced to each other.

The usual ailment born of success and self-esteem hit these proper battles and Faubion literally had to carry them himself through the second half of their double round robin schedule. His "Sunday only" players were tied by CTC and Lawson Field and squeaked by a fading 508th eleven, 13-7. The 31-year old former Oklahoma F. & M All-America honorable mention fullback had to don a monkey suit and quarterback the team in those closing weeks.

But the boys were calling him poor ol' Bleak Jack when he inherited the newly formed ISD-ASU combo for this season. ASU alone had been of such fleeting talent in '51 that they dropped out of the league. ISD could go only as a part of Special Troops with its three student regiments from which to mine talent.

Yet, today they're singing, "Hallaluha, Ain't It Great To Be a Gregniel," after realizing that Faubion's crew with less than a dozen players from any college you ever heard of got a tie with the team, the new and more powerful Rams, which derailed 508th's scoring streamliner, 20-7.

Don't crowd my disciples, because Faubion, a tight-lipped fellow who not until the other day let it slip that he once was a ball pen catcher for Allie Reynolds (when both were at Okla. A & M), doesn't offer to reveal his mentoring secrets, and, in fact, denies that he has any.

It's fact that he sticks pretty close to the bread and butter plays in whatever formation he chooses. He played the single-wing at Covington, Okla., High school and got three years more of it with the Aggies. After serving with the 41st Division in the Philippines in World War II, he had a year of pro ball with T-formation Greensboro, N. C., in the Dixie League, one of the toughest pro circuits this side of the big conference.

"Generally speaking, when I figure to lose a game I work a lot on defense with the idea of stopping them, and maybe we can score on a break," allowed Faubion. "When I figure to win, I go heavy on the offensive work, just to make sure they won't surprise us. I used about 15 basic plays, with variations. Trick plays usually don't last out. The only exception is when your scouting report shows a particular weakness in the other team. Then you may work up a special one for them."

Further illustrating his modesty in coaching modus operandi, Faubion rarely flies into the frenzies of ball-fire and witty sayings which have come to be expected in many gridiron circles. He admits he usually gets the desired effect by analyzing to his players shortly before game time all of the solid reasons the other team should win. No matter how badly his squad has done the first half, he figures the intermission is for their rest, and keeps them so more attentive than a monotonous discussion of the mistakes they have made and what they should strive for in the final quarters.

What inspiration his players get from Faubion himself is another matter. That he bears his problems solemnly is testified by his shining head and craggy features. He believes in the game and has an intense loyalty to his men and his fellow coaches. He is going back to Greenville, Tex., High school, but you will see him on the sidelines in the autumn years to the last too far future if Lyn Lary, his assistant agrees and gets hired.

Meantime, win, lose or draw he is back and fair to perfect Benning record, only a coach as successful as ol' Black Jack could afford to crack: "Winning football is due 75 per cent to players, five per cent to coaching and 20 per cent to the chairman you have looking after the be—"

The Council voted to limit team membership this year exclusively to enlisted men. Play will be at the Sand Hill and Main Post alleys, probably on Tuesdays and Thursdays, or team captains may arrange for Tuesday only double header sets at the Main Post alleys.

Four teams, each will be allowed, 50th Airborne, 3 Bn. Co. 29th Infantry, C. C. T., 507 ASU Provisional Group. Three teams each are shared from Infantry School Detachment and First O. C. Regt., two each from First, S. R. and Second S. R., and one from AFF Board Three.

The post table tennis tournament was set for Dec. 1 at Service Club One next door to Doughboy Stadium. Nine five-man teams from major units are eligible.

There will be only one singles player and two doubles players from each unit with a limit of six. Entries must be filed by Nov. 24.

Action on boxing and football taken by the Council is reported in other stories on these pages.

Chest Fund Nears Goal

With 11 days remaining in the annual Community Chest fund drive, $31,602 has been collected, according to Col. Donald Washington, drive chairman.

Colonel Washington stated that although this amount represented 90 per cent of the monetary goal set for The Infantry Center, it still was short of the 100 per cent participation goal.

The colonel said that "up to this time the collections represent 66 per cent participation by Benning personnel. Although all collections are not complete, we hope that the 100 per cent participation goal will be reached," he explained.

The campaign chairman noted that the month's payday which falls on Oct. 31 should boost the participation average, as he expects many men who have not yet contributed will take this opportunity to do so.

"Any contribution will count towards our total participation goal and I hope that everyone will be able to help us reach our goal," Colonel Washington said.

He pointed out that funds collected through the campaign are used to support several worthwhile organizations, such as the Army Relief Society, Boy and Girl Scouts (including Cubs and Brownies) the children's Christmas Party, the Columbus Community Chest (United Givers, Inc.) National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and other causes.

Officers Elected For Dad's Club

Col. Bruno Jasiremski was elected president of the Dad's Club at a meeting held last week in the auditorium of the Main Post children's school.

Other officers elected at the club's second meeting were 1st Lt. Harry Offutt, secretary, and S f c. James D. Conway, Lt. Col. Earl Wiler, Capt. James L. Crumley, and M-Sgt. Robert J. Rush, members of the board of governors.

Colonel Jastremski and Lieutenant Offutt also will serve on the board of governors.

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, told the members they must contribute their "time, energy and iniative" to make the Dad's Club a success.

"I feel deeply that the Dad's Club is one of the most important things taking place here," he added. "The formation of this club is a step in the right direction if we desire to turn over to posterity trained youths for the future."

Entertainment, athletic, coordinating and membership committees were formed at the meeting to implement the club's programs.

Patterned after similar clubs started in Europe by Army personnel, the Dad's Club will sponsor all youth activities on the post in an effort to promote better understanding by fathers of problems confronting children.

Early plans of the club call for the erection of a new teen-age club, a youth band, and wider sponsorship of Little League sports. The club hopes to enlarge its membership from the present 11 members to 350. Meetings are scheduled to be held the second Thursday night each month.

Tank Instruction Returns To School

Tank instruction has returned to the curriculum of The Infantry School's Automotive Department.

It is the first time since 1950 that the department has offered tank instruction, discontinued at the outbreak of the Korean war due to a shortage of personnel and tank equipment.

The new course provides 31 hours of instruction in the maintenance and operations of tanks for students in the officers motor course and in the unit automotive course. Students in The Infantry School's advanced course also will receive tank instruction but on a smaller scale.

Use 10 Tanks

The Automotive Department will use 10 tanks for instruction. Five M-46 medium tanks for the maintenance and familiarization phase of the course are furnished by the Tank Weapons Committee of the Weapons Department. Five M-47 medium tanks for field and driving instruction are furnished by 778rd Tank Battalion.

The four - day instruction will be given during the regular 10-week motor officers and unit automotive courses. It includes an orientation on the characteristics of the tank, driver selection and training, crew drill, tank driving familiarization, crew maintenance and field experience. Forty-eight students are now taking the course.

Instructors

Instructors are members of the Automotive Department's Tank Committee who took tank courses at Fort Knox, Ky. Capt. Fred W.

(See TANKS, Page 10)

Five Yugoslav Officers Will Arrive Sunday

They will be accompanied by U. S. Army Capt. John P. Callman and 1st Lt. Howard N. Parks.

Carnival Plans Near Completion

Halloween Costumes Readied For Annual Parade, Contest

With the annual children's Halloween Carnival only a week off, plans are moving into high gear this week as officials prepared for one of the largest groups ever to witness the event.

Army Ordnance Adopts Benning Sergeant's Idea

An Infantry Center master sergeant's suggestion for the relocation of mufflers and exhaust pipes on Army passenger buses has been adopted by the Ordnance Department.

M-Sgt. William A. Smith of Garfield, Wash. submitted a plan which calls for mufflers to be raised about four and one-half inches and tail pipes to extend straight back instead of curving. This reduces the length of the pipe from about 100 inches to 40 inches and lessens the possibility of breaking the muffler when the bus is in reverse, according to Ordnance Department officials.

The Ordnance Department has granted authority to make these changes on all A. C. Brill passenger buses operated on rough roads. Fort Benning has 27 such buses which provide transportation for Infantry Center and Infantry School personnel.

Sergeant Smith, a member of Headquarters Detachment, First Transportation Battalion, has received a letter of commendation for his suggested changes from Maj. Harry C. Nagle, Infantry Center Ordnance officer.

PT Program Set For Kids

A full - time physical education program has been introduced in the six Children's Schools.

This is the first time that a complete program of physical education instruction has been given in the Fort Benning Children's School System. It is under the supervision of Ralph Toole, physical education director, who teaches some 30 classes weekly in Main Post School No. 1 and Faith Children's School.

A physical education instructional schedule and program are furnished the other four schools, afforded all schools practically the same type of instruction.

Each pupil receives at least two hours of physical education each week.

Classes are held in basketball,

(See PROGRAM, Page 10)

Lt. Col. R. Wetherill, carnival project officer, said more than 10,000 people were expected to view the festivities this year. Sponsored annually by the Parent - Teacher Association, the Carnival last year attracted approximately 12,000 persons.

Costume Contest

The carnival is slated to begin with the assembly of the children for costume judging. All children who will participate in the costume contest are asked to assemble in the designated areas by 5:45 p.m. The judging will begin as soon as the children are assembled, and the parade will start at 6:30 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded for the best costume, reported Mrs. G. W. Childs who will be in charge of the costume judging. A drawing will be held in connection with the carnival this year to award a bicycle, tricycle, turkeys and hams. Hundreds of small prizes such as soft drinks also will be given out during the evening.

Grand Marshal

Lt. Col. Alonzo E. Wood, Infantry Center provost marshal, will act as Grand Marshal of the parade, and members of the Special Troops Rams football team will assist him. The Rams will be at the Faith, Old and Hospital area schools to assist in getting the children lined up for the parade.

The parade will be organized into three serials. The first will include the 122nd Army Band, post kindergarten children and children from the first, second and third grades attending post schools.

The second serial will have all pre-school age children, while the third will include all school age children living off-post.

1,200 Children

Approximately 1,200 children are expected to vie for the costume prizes and take part in the parade.

Concessions will be operated by various post groups and activities. All transactions at the carnival will be carried out in "play money," which went on sale in post schools last week.

Assembly Areas

The assembly areas for the children at 5:45 have been designated as follows:

Pupils of the Faith, Old and Hospital areas schools will meet in their own classrooms; children from Custer Terrace and Battle Park schools will assemble in the auditorium of the old school; and children attending Columbus schools will form in Doughboy Stadium according to grades, and all pre-school children will assemble at the east end of Doughboy Stadium.

Among the 28 different concessions planned for the carnival this year is a parachute jump tower, refreshment stands, merry - go - rounds, dart throwing, fishing pools for both boys and girls, water pistol firing range and wheels of fortune.

Soldiers Turn Scholars At University Center

BY PVT. JIM MORRISON

College textbooks replace Army manuals here twice a week as 148 officers and enlisted men attend classes sponsored by the University of Georgia.

The Fort Benning Center of the University of Georgia is now in its second semester with 10 dependents joining the 148 military personnel going to college every Tuesday and Thursday night in two barracks-type buildings converted for classroom use.

Courses Almost Identical

Although the Fort Benning Center lacks the ivy-covered walls and spacious campuses of larger colleges and universities, the courses are almost identical to the [illegible] taught on the Georgia campus at Athens. The seven instructors are fully accredited with the university and are qualified to teach on the campus there. All possess at least two degrees and two have only to complete their dissertations to obtain their doctorates.

Full college credit is given upon successful completion of a course. These credits are transferrable and are accepted by a majority of colleges and universities throughout the United States. Any college accepting credits from the University of Georgia also will accept credits earned at the Center here.

Joint Cooperation

The Fort Benning Center was established through the joint cooperation of the University of Georgia and The Infantry Center's Information and Education Section. Classroom space as well as counseling service for the students is offered by the Army, while the university furnishes the instructors and handles all administrative matters.

Tuition is $9 for each subject. The Army defrays 50 per cent of the cost for enlisted men, while the Air Force pays 75 per cent for both officers and enlisted men. Texts may be borrowed from the stock of United States Armed Forces Institute books maintained by the Information and Education Section. If none of these books meet the requirements of the course,

(See SOLDIERS, Page 10)

Blood Center Leading Quota

The Blood Donor Center reported 280 pints of blood collected last week, pushing October's total to 762.

Twenty-five pints were retained here for use at the U. S. Army Hospital. The remainder was shipped to the U. S. Blood Processing Plant in West Point, Pa., for use as blood plasma.

First Student Brigade led last week's donors with 156 pints.

Other units contributing were the 464th Airborne Regimental Combat Team with 45 pints; Area Service Unit, Provisional Group, 27 pints; Provisional Medical Group, 12 pints; Infantry School Detachment, seven pints; Army Field Forces Board No. 3, four pints, and civilians or others, 21 pints.

Tomorrow Marks 7th United Nations Birthday

BY PFC MERWIN MELTZER

Tomorrow, October 24 is United Nations Day.

Looking back over the seven short years of its existance the youthful organization has accomplished much in its endeavor to bring about peace and security to the world.

Through its six main organs and ten special agencies it has applied collective action to stop aggression in Korea and has stopped actual fighting in Palestine, Indonesia and Kashmir.

In addition it has aided in the peaceful settlements of other disputes. Soviet troops were withdrawn from Iran in 1946 and guerrilla warfare was brought to a successful end in Greece through UN actions.

The United Nations itself consists of agencies and organizations that are designed to meet the needs of the peoples of the world.

Six Groups

The six basic organizations that make up the U. N. are the General Assembly, which is the main body and is generally regarded as the center of the entire United Nations system. It is composed of all the 60 member nations.

The Security Council's primary responsibility is to maintain international peace and security. It has five permanent members, the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France and China (this latter has been the center of many disputes since the co...munists took over the mainland of China). In addition it has six non-permanent members which are elected by the General Assembly.

The Economic and Social Council deals with the vital problems of health, living standards, human rights, and economic and social problems in general. Its 18 members are elected by the Assembly. Besides its regular duties, it coordinates the work of the specialized agencies.

Trustee Council

The Trustee Council is charged with the responsibility of administrating the non-self-governing territories under United Nations supervision.

Judicial problems of the world organization are handled by the International Court of Justice. It hands down decisions in all cases brought by nations, and upon request, gives advisory opinions to the various U. N. bodies.

The last of the main bodies of the United Nations is the Secretariat. Through this office, whose present head is Trygve Lie of Norway, the U. N. functions. It is the administrative agency which services all the other organs and carries out the programs and policies which the member nations lay down. It may best be described as a type of international civil service.

Special Agencies

Besides the main groups we find ten specialised agencies, each with its own charter and specific field of operation. Each is related to the Economic and Social Council by agreement. Some of these organizations have existed for half a century while others are outgrowths of the second world war.

Fields covered range from the International Labor Organization to the World Meteorological Organization, and include banking, postal service, research groups and specialists in food and agriculture.

The agencies' accomplishments are many. The World War Health Organization for instance has spearheaded the notable gains against the great killers, malaria, tuberculosis and venereal diseases. In 1947 it helped check a dread cholera outbreak in the middle east.

Refugee Group

The International Refugee Organization which terminated this year assisted more than one and a half million refugees. It found new homes in 40 different countries for almost a million of these poor souls and gave them new hope in life. A U. N. appointed commission is now promoting the settlement of the people still without permanent homes.

The United Nations has drawn up, and had approved by the governments of the world, a Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which sets a standard of achievement for all nations and peoples. Genocide, or mass murder, so methodically applied by Hitler and his ilk, has already been outlawed.

The U.N. has been the prime factor in aiding the establishment of many new nations from former non-self-governing territories. Such nations as Indonesia, Israel and Libya have been helped by the international organization.

It is important to remember that the United Nations is not a world government. It is a democratic society of sovereign nations.

The United States government has been a stalwart friend of the U.N. It has supported it as a growing force for world peace and as a practical means for the cooperation among nations that will eventually lead to a world order of law and reason.

In the world as it is today, order and peace cannot come by accident. Nations must cooperate for collective security. They must organize their community so that order can be maintained without the loss of freedom. By working through the United Nations, the United States hopes to establish peace and build, in partnership with other free peoples, a world of liberty and justice.

Airborne Team Presents Aerial Delivery Show

A demonstration team from The Infantry School's Airborne Department is at Maxwell Air Force, Ala., to stage an aerial delivery show for Air Command and Staff School students.

The 45 members of the display team will demonstrate methods of loading equipment in aircraft and pathfinder and heavy equipment drops.

The team is headed by Lt. Col. Woodrow Laws of Elizabethton, Tenn., Airborne Department executive officer.

Other members of the team include Maj. Robert C. Kendrick, 1st Lt. Daniel Baldwin, 1st Lt. James A. Flanagan and 1st Lt. Thomas E. Thompson of Co. Bleecher Repair Saves Tax Funds

An Army master sergeant's cost consciousness has resulted in the restoration of 25 bleachers for use of students in The Infantry School.

M-Sgt. Bernard R. Berthiaume of Phenix City, Ala., rejuvenates bleachers turned in for salvage by sawing off the unserviceable parts. This reduces the width, along with the seating capacity, but saves the cost of replacement.

A coat of paint completes the restoration. Each renovated bleachers has a minimum value of some $200.

The bleachers are used by students at The Infantry School when they are witnessing problems and demonstrations.

Sergeant Berthiaume is assigned to The Infantry School's Operations Office.

New Lieutenants Hear Gen. Meloy

A good Army is dependent upon the caliber of its platoons, The Infantry School's assistant commandant last week told 95 new second lieutenants, graduates of infantry officer candidate class No. 32.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy also said that personal integrity is the most important trait of Army officers.

"Like the value of money, an officer's word depends on confidence," he told the new lieutenants. "There are three necessary things to remember as you begin your new responsibilities," he added.

"Be confident. You have received the best training that can be offered. Learn to use your eyes—that is; create the ability to observe critically and be curious about everything that goes on about you. Be sure of yourself and apply what you have learned," he declared.

General Meloy also advised the group to "bear down on the accuracy of individual and group shooting. Remember that every enemy individual you miss you will have to meet and fight again."

Honor graduate was Horatio S. Buck of Rockhill, S. C. His next assignment will be with the Seventh Armored Division at Camp Roberts, Calif.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Maj. Erman Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen Kane, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

508th Mascot Rivals Movie Mule Francis

Francis, move over.

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team has found a rival for the talking mule of movie fame.

Headquarters Company, commanded by Lt. Robert M. Campbell, has acquired a mule named Mike. But, unlike Frances, Mike hasn't as yet uttered a word.

Newest addition to the 508th's mascot menageries, which already includes a chimpanzee, frog, goat and hog, Mike is eight years old. He was purchased by officers and NCOs in the company from their own funds.

Mike is now undergoing training with the unit, taking part in all activities from mortar practice to regimental reviews.

The only training activity in which he doesn't take part is jumping — parachute jumping, that is.

Oddest thing about Mike, perhaps is that he is a she. As one of the men in Headquarters Company said:

"We are trying to convince Mike that she is a he so that it won't be embarrassed by being the only female in a company of 200 men."

BEST FIRE DRILL

The 122nd Company, Second Student Regiment was named the best fire drill unit in the regiment for Fire Prevention Week. First Lt. Albert Catullo is the company commander.

Buckshot-Like Ammo On Way To K-Troops

It'll be back to buckshot for the soldiers and marines fighting in Korea.

A recently developed canister ammunition for 90-mm guns is, according to Army Ordnance, a lot like good old-fashioned buckshot.

One shot from a 90-mm gun using the new ammunition can throw more than 1,000 deadly pellets at ranges too short for conventional high-explosive ammunition. No other type of ammunition can do the job.

Since the Civil War, various types of canister ammunition have been used. In the early days they used nuts, bolts, and metal scraps piled in front of the powder charge to spray crushing enemy troops.

Canister ammunition has gone under many names. Some call it "shrapnel," others "grape shot."

But with the advent of high explosive shells, canister types were forgotten until jungle warfare in WWII with the danger of hitting our own troops with long-range high explosives, the need for canister ammunition arose again.

The new ammunition is the result of "trial and error" development since WWII.

The canister projectile is a can containing many small steel pellets. When fired, the pellets scatter in a cone-shape fashion. Effective at close range, this type of projectile can prevent successful mass enemy rushes at a small area. (AFPS).

German-Born 'Trooper Says US 'Wonderful'

German-born Pvt. Herman W. Asmus claims he has the best reason in the world for joining the Army and then becoming a paratrooper.

"The United States is a wonderful country," he said, "and there is no better way of serving your country than to join the army, then get in the most select outfit in it. That's why I became a paratrooper."

Private Asmus, who recently graduated from the basic airborne course, was born in Frankfort, Germany. After he finished high school, he served a three-year apprenticeship and became an electrician.

For more than 25 years, he says, his father dreamed of coming to the U. S. After World War II, when Herman's sister married a paratrooper, the family got its chance and came to the U. S. They settled in Ashtabula, Ohio.

S. for the Department of the Army.

Colorful honor guard ceremonies staged in front of Patton Hall, Third Army headquarters building, marked General Canham's arrival here. The former 82nd Division Commander was greeted by Brig. Gen. A. D. Mead, Third Army Chief of Staff, and by principal Third Army staff officers.

A native of Kola, Miss., General Canham enlisted in the Army as a private in 1919, was appointed to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1921 and received a commission as a second lieutenant, Infantry, in 1926.

Guard Units Get Congressional OK

(ANF)— For the first time in history, Congress has authorized individual states to form counterparts of National Guard units called to active military service and retained for more than two years.

States' new National Guard units were federalized now are permitted to re-organize similar units at home armories to protect life and property and preserve peace and order.

The counterparts will have the same designation as the units retained in federal service. Their individual identities will be distinguished by the initials "NGUS"—(National Guard of the United States). Known as "carrier" units, they will inherit the history, colors and insigula of their present units.

Meeting Here

Retention of National Guard designations and colors in active service for up to five years, while technically the same units reorganize at home armories, provides a means of meeting both the Armys need for additional active duty units and the states need for internal security forces. The home units also will provide a place for returning Guardsmen and recruits.

Permission to retain National Guard unit designations and equipment, exclusive of personnel, in active federal service for a maximum period of five consecutive years was granted the president by Congress under Public Law 461. The law applies only to unit designations and not to the National Guardsmen called to active duty with them. Individual Guardsmen still are eligible for release from active duty upon completion of 24 months service.

Counterpart Units

National Guard counterpart units will be organized, in general, only at the parent unit's former home station. This action will take place when the parent unit has completed 24 months of active service. Initially, these units will have an authorized strength of 50 per cent officer and 25 per cent enlisted strength of the retained unit.

The substitute units will be authorized individual arms and equipment and limited organizational equipment.

These units eventually will be consolidated with their parent units retained in the federal service when the latter are released to state control.

Cuban TIS 'Son Of U.S.', Says Academies Director

The Cuban Army's Infantry School is the "son of the U. S. Infantry School," the director general of Cuban military academies said just before leaving here last week.

The Cuban Infantry School was started with the aid of officers of the U. S. Infantry School," Colonel Manuel Larrubia declared. "Cuban military men still train here and return to our school at instructors," he said.

Nine Day Visit

Colonel Larrubia and 31 Cuban army officers last week ended a nine-day visit to The Infantry School.

"We have seen exactly what we were hoping to see," the colonel said of his tour of The Infantry School's academic departments and observation of training methods used in the advanced officers' course.

Compares Schools

Comparing the U. S. Army Infantry School and the Cuban army's three-year-old Infantry School, Colonel Larrubia observed that the Cuban school is much smaller and the courses are on a smaller scale but "exactly the same courses and instruction are given."

Four Centers

There are four training centers for the 25,000 personnel in the Cuban army, the director general said. "In Cuba we have an Infantry School, based on Fort Benning, an Artillery School, a War College for superior officers and a School of Candidate Officers, a four year course with the same rules and regulations as the United States Military Academy."

Colonel Larrubia said his group of Cuban officers was "very proud of the many friends we have made during our visit here, and we sincerely hope we can reciprocate in the near future by showing our Infantry friends such wonderful hospitality in Cuba."

United Nations Day--1952

(Trygve Lie, Secretary - General of the United Nations, this week issued a message to the peoples of the world. We print his message here as a tribute to United Nations Day.)

"Seven years ago this October 24, most of the world's peoples, through their governments, launched the greatest effort in history to work together for lasting peace and for the economic and social advancements of all peoples.

"Today it is only too clear that we are still far from achieving these ends. We live amid bitter ideological differences, massive conflicts of power, localized fighting and the danger of a world war which may wipe out civilization.

"This is a situation which we must face squarely, but we must also note that we have attempted and achieved. If we do, we see major failures and setbacks, but also a persistent effort. We see good beginnings and some achievement in almost every field: collective security; peaceful settlements; economic, social, cultural and humanitarian works; the progress of dependent peoples, and the building of a world system of law.

"However, these are only the first steps towards goals never before reached. Faith and work for many years is needed to eradicate the age-old evils of war, poverty and inequality. This perspective we must always bear in mind.

"There is another basic fact that we must remember. The United Nations is not something apart from peoples and governments, something which, of itself, will realize our wishes. We, the peoples of the world, and our respective governments are the United Nations. The organizations is the instrument of our will and our intelligence.

"For the immediate future, we must make the fullest use of this world instrument on three major tasks. We must build up collective strength to discourage or suppress acts of aggression. We must exploit every means for peaceful settlements of disputes between powers, great or small. We must redouble our efforts to help the majority of humanity still living in wretched poverty to achieve a decent standard of living.

"On these tasks, we must concentrate. But the purposes of the United Nations, all of them, are necessary and practical; the felt needs of humanity, not visionary ideals. Let us therefore cherish every success of international cooperation which strengthens the United Nations.

"For today, amid conflicts and fears of war, we need the United Nations more than ever. Let us give every possible support, not only on United Nations Day, but in the days and years to come. If we do, we can in our lifetime build firmly for a world order of universal peace and lasting security."

GOVERNMENT LOANS

The purpose of the government loan program is to encourage lending institutions to make loans to veterans with minimum down payment requirements at reasonable interest rates because the government guarantees part of the loan.

You are permitted to apply for three types of loans:

1. To purchase, construct, or improve a house.

2. To buy a farm, farm land, and farm supplies and equipment.

3. To buy a business or otherwise to enable you to undertake or expand a legitimate business venture.

You Arrange Loan

The VA is not empowered to lend money to you directly, except in rare circumstances. You must make your own arrangements through the usual lending channels, such as banks, building and loan associations, and mortgage loan companies.

The institution lending you money for a home is guaranteed against loss up to 60 percent of the loan with a maximum guarantee of $7,500.

On other loans, the VA guarantees the lender against loss up to 50 percent of the loan. The maximum guarantee on loans involving real estate is $4,000 and $2,000 on non-real estate loans.

VA Direct Loans

Direct loans are made by the VA under certain conditions when private mortgage financing at four percent is not available.

VA direct loans may only be used to purchase a home or to build or improve a farmhouse. The location of areas where VA may make direct loans can be obtained from the loan guaranty officers of VA regional offices throughout the country.

Interest rates on VA-guaranteed loans may not exceed four percent a year. Fees and charges may not exceed those allowed by the VA.

$160 Gift

On all government loans, the VA pays the lender—for credit to the veterans' loan—an amount equal to four percent of the guarantee, but not more than $160. This is a gift to you during the first year of the loan.

As of July 1952, the VA reported that 3,073,811 loans for homes, farms, and businesses have been approved under the WWII Bill of Rights.

Men Have An Absolute Moral Code

CHAPLAIN (1st LT)
PHILIP G. McCONVILLE

That Almighty God is the Supreme, Infinite Being, having no limitations of any kind in any way, eternal, all-knowing, all-present, all-powerful, is a fact which must be recognized by all thinking men as it has been recognized for countless ages by thinking men. Since God is Infinite, He must exercise control over all other beings. This control is exercised by what is known as the Eternal Law, the canon in the Mind of God Himself for all eternity.

Extensions of this Law are found in the perfect order existing in the universe in the way of harmony in the movements of celestial beings such that their courses may be charted century by century, age by age, with accuracy; the changing seasons, the fall and rise of tides, the growth of vegetative beings, the activities of sentient beings, the animal life of man. All of these move with harmony so that science is possible. We know by observing what has been constant in the activities of beings, what will be constant in the future, and we even can estimate variables in these activities with accuracy.

Such laws are quite similar in their basis to what is known as the NATURAL LAW, the basic moral code of men which exists in the mind and heart of every normal man everywhere in every age without any exceptions. It is summed up in the axiom, "do good and avoid evil." No matter how depraved a man may be or a race of men, all normal men, all men who possess normal use of their intellectual faculties always and everywhere do good and shun evil. What is good and what is evil to each man may be somewhat different so that we have such extreme examples as "good" cannibals who are quite honest and whose word is their bond even while they eat. To deny that there is a basic moral law which governs the moral actions of men is to admit all sorts of insidious factors in human society.

Why is it wrong to drive in this country on the left side of the street or to pass by a red traffic light, or why is it wrong to wear dirty brass or salute with the left hand? Why is Communism wrong, or murder, or theft or drunkenness? Basically they are wrong because they violate the principles of good order found forever in the Eternal Law of God. To say that they are wrong because the majority of men here or there claim so is to base law on an improper foundation. Suppose the invading barbarians who overran Europe when the Roman Empire collapsed in the west had prevailed with their inhuman customs of wholesale murder and destruction as they overcame Europe with their arms? They were a majority and they were in power. Would that have made murder right? The natural law says that all men have a right to life, to the private ownership of property, to reasonable freedom of activity, to the fruits of the earth. Because he is unlawfully deprived of the exercise of such rights does not change the basic facts.

The Decalogue, the Constitution of the United States, the general and special laws of our states, army regulations, city ordinances all trace their origin back to the natural law found in the mind of the most primitive man because from all eternity God determines to create man that way and the implanting of this law in his nature is just as necessary for a complete man as are two arms, eyes, legs, or a heart, liver, kidneys and lungs.

Since this is so, we may well look to violations of the natural law in the actions of men and nations for the causes of wars, political strife everywhere, army red-tape, social unrest and such unpleasant evils as we look for germs in a human body when inflammation appears.

UN Postpones Opening of General Debate

The United Nations General Assembly has postponed its opening general debate until after the United States presidential elections. However, it opened the way for the discussion of the Korean issue by the 60-nation Political Committee.

The postponement came after delegates voted, 40-5 to suspend debate until a later date. The Soviets cast the five votes against the proposal.

Observers and diplomats alike agreed that the later date meant after Nov. 4. Great Britain, France and other nations have refused to make policy statements on the grounds that the American people might feel that these statements were an attempt on their part o influence the national elections.

Allied forces in Korea continued to hold Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge despite suicidal attacks by 7,000 fanatic Chinese, who attacked through their own artillery fire.

The Chinese managed to capture one peak on each of the two heights, but the American and South Korean defenders halted the attack several hundred yards short of its goal.

Russian-made Katusha rocket guns were used in the assault which captured Pike' Peak on the American-defended Triangle Hill. The Chinese also captured Pinpoint Peak on Sniper Ridge, but the South Koreans threw them off the high ground in a fierce 10-hour engagement.

In their attack on Sniper Ridge, the Reds buried 44,050 mortar, artillery and rocket shells on the South Korean positions—the second highest enemy bombardment of the war.

The Communist party was described as "a puppet of the Soviet Union" by a two-member panel of the Subversive Activities Control Board.

The panel recommended that the party be required to register with the attorney general under the provisions of the Internal Security Act of 1950, sometimes called the McCarran Act. This would mean that the party would have to register all officers and members and file a financial statement.

If the board follows the recommendations of its panel, the Communist party is expected to take its case to the Supreme Court.

On The Bookshelf

I GO POGO by Walt Kelly. Simon and Schuster.

The most famous resident of the Okefenokee Swamp is making his second appearance in book form. For real Pogo fans that is announcement enough.

For those who haven't met Pogo and the other inhabitants of the swamp, this book offers an excellent introduction to the fabulous characters created by Walt Kelly.

Only claims made for the book is that it is no better and no worse than the first one published — which is recommendation enough.

LINCOLN by Stefan Lorant. Harper and Brothers.

This book is must reading for all interested in Lincoln lore. It contains more than 500 pictures and illustrations including facsimiles of addresses and letters written by the Civil War president.

The book traces the life of Lincoln from childhood through the prairie years in Illinois to the presidency. It is a wonderful book, brilliantly edited and illustrated.

Duty Over For Majority Of National Guardsmen

(ANF)— More than 85,000 of the 100,000 Army National Guardsmen ordered to active duty to meet the emergency created by the Korean conflict have returned to civilian life.

Organized and trained as an integral part of the United States Armed Forces with an "M-Day" (Mobilization Day) mission of immediate service in event of aggression, the National Guard almost doubled the number of regular divisions in service prior to the Korean conflict.

Answering the call in Korea were many Army units, including two complete infantry divisions that un-gloved their iron fists to aid United Nations forces fighting in Korea. Besides the two infantry divisions, a wide range of other types of units joined America's armed strength in the Far East and Europe, while four National Guard infantry divisions were called for state-side duty.

Guard's Contribution

The Guard's contribution was not limited to trained fighting men. It supplied the Army with more than $193,000,000 worth of equipment in addition to that taken into active service by the units themselves. Air equipment and facilities furnished by the Guard totalled more than $500,000,000.

This is not the first time the National Guard has proven its value to the security of our nation. Guardsmen met the call at Lexington and Concord where the American tradition of the Minuteman was born.

Guard in AEF

In Work War I, two-fifths of the divisions of the AEF were National Guard divisions. Men of the 11 Guard divisions which saw action pierced the Hinderburg Line, helped crush the St. Mihiel salient, and smashed to victory through the Meuse-Argonne. Of eight United States divisions rated by the German high command as superior or excellent, six were National Guard divisions.

In World War II, the National Guard took to the field with 18 infantry divisions. Nine crossed the Atlantic to Europe and Africa and nine went to the far reaches of the Pacific.

In praising the National Guard units, Robert P. Patterson, then Secretary of War, said:

"They made a brilliant record on every fighting front. They proved once more the value of the trained citizen-soldier."

Backbone of Guard

The backbone of today's Army National Guard is its 25 infantry divisions and two armored divisions. There also is a wide range of other types of units, including 20 regimental combat teams and 43 anti-aircraft artillery groups.

Maj. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, said:

"The National Guard stands firm with all military forces of our nation to challenge a growing threat to the safety of our homes, the peace of our land, and the existence of the democratic nations of the world."

The letter said in part:

Arkansas Target Most Bombed Spot On Earth

(ANF)— A battered plot of ground near Pine Bluff, Ark., probably is the most often bombed spot on earth.

It is a circular concrete bull's-eye used by the Army Chemical Corps for testing small incendiary bombs made at its Pine Bluff arsenal.

Since the huge target—a round mat of concrete roughly the size of four football fields—was built in 1943, at least 400,000 bombs have hit it.

This punishment has left the area as pock-marked that it resembles a giant launch board.

Out of each batch of bombs produced at the Pine Bluff arsenal, the Army tests a certain percentage by dumping them on the target. The light-weight incendiaries are dropped from 10,000 feet in clusters of more than 100. At 2,000 feet, the clusters burst, scattering the bombs in a tear-drop pattern slightly larger than the target.

A good hit will cause from 60 to 70 fires on the concrete. Bombs that miss the target burn out in the swampy woods adjoining the mat.

Heat Causes Blast

The magnesium bombs themselves barely nick the concrete, but their furious 2,000-degree heat turns the moisture in the concrete to steam, causing a small blast that blows a hole about the size and shape of a pie plate.

At one side of the target is a 20-foot high concrete wall that has taken an even heavier pounding than the circle itself. Used as a test target when skip-bombing was in its heyday during World War II, it has suffered several thousand hits.

During World War II, bomb runs were made almost daily over the target, but now the tests average about one a week.

The Army Chemical Corps expects a certain percentage of duds in every batch produced but feels it wiser to ferret out faulty lots in Arkansas than discover them belatedly over a foreign target.

Rest Camp To Stay Open All Winter

The Infantry Center Rest Camp on Chocowatchee Bay at Destin, Fla., will remain open throughout the winter, Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, special services officer, said last week.

The rest camp, which offers an economical vacation to Benning military personnel, played host to over 2,000 persons last summer.

Only a five-hour drive from Fort Benning, the camp has six cabins and six aluminum boats adaptable to outboard motors. Its 12 acres of land feature swimming and volley ball facilities, barbecue pits and a children's playground.

A fee of $3.50 per day is charged for a cabin at the camp. Reservations may be made at The Infantry Center Special Services office or by phoning the Recreation office, Capt. D. W. Rodgers, 3-4215.

Guidance Program Helps Each Soldier

BY CATHERINE MERRILL

The Army's Character Guidance Program is one of the most vital, far-reaching movements in the history of military training and one of the most significant developments since World War II.

This is the opinion of the Department of the Army as stated in a recent edition of the Lifeline Bulletin, published by the Office of the Chief of Staff.

What is the Character Guidance Program?

It has probably best been summed up by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who said:

"Character guidance is a term developed to define all actions which tend to encourage the growth of moral responsibility, spiritual values and strong self discipline in the individual."

To Assist Commanders

The Character Guidance Program here, as at other Army posts, was devised to assist commanders in maintaining healthy mental and moral attitudes among troops. Here, character guidance officials provide counseling in military life, "the wholesome influence of the home, the family and the community."

The importance of character guidance here is pointed up by the fact that the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, sits as president of The Infantry Center Character Guidance Council. Membership on the council is composed of the senior officer at Fort Benning, representing the major staff sections and units on the post.

NCO Council

In addition to The Infantry Center council, Fort Benning has a second group, called the Non-Commissioned Officers Character Guidance Council, which is composed of senior non-commissioned officers.

This council is primarily concerned with the conduct of Fort Benning personnel. It's 16 members are selected by unit commanders and must be master sergeants. They discuss such problems as soldier absences without leave, courts-martial and delinquency rates and send specific recommendations to the Infantry Center council for action.

The Infantry Center council's 23 members discuss these recommendations and other problems and take whatever action deemed necessary. In some cases, however, they forward recommendations to Third Army headquarters to be consolidated with recommendations from other military installations in the Army area.

Council Composition

The council, composed of the information and education, special services and public information officers, the surgeon, provost marshal, inspector general and major unit commanders, considers such problems as:

Are recreational facilities here adequate to the needs of the man? How are post-surrounding area relations?

Are there special problems in the behavior of individuals on pass?

Are there adequate recreational facilities in the civilian communities?

Do the entertainment programs on the post contribute to the development of a sense of responsibility?

What is the general attitude of military personnel toward their respective jobs and duties?

Special Problems

Are there special problems or bottle-necks in housing?

What is the scope and nature of leisure-time activities?

What is the prevailing attitude of men toward their officers and NCOs?

What are church attendance statistics?

What are AWOL and veneral disease rates?

Are there specific problems connected with the personal conduct and professional behavior of officers?

These two councils, however, are not concerned only with discussing among themselves problems which arise from day to day. They must, if the program is to be successful, keep Fort Benning troops informed of what action is necessary "to build into the individual soldier a keener sense of responsibility and to provide the best possible environmental conditions."

This is accomplished through the cooperation of unit commanders who provide counseling in military life, "the wholesome influence of the home, the family and the community."

Soldier-Actors Star In New Training Film

"You ought to be in pictures" is the current theme around Company B of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

The Airborne company is currently starring in "Rifle Platoon in Attack of Built-Up Areas," the Infantry's latest training film now in production at The Infantry School.

Working on location at Caramouche Village, which was specially reconstructed for the production, the men go through a five-day-a-week schedule as actors. They claim their acting is made easy by the fact that they're playing parts which come as second nature to them—those of soldiers.

"They are a very willing and patient group," says Film Director Cullen Landis, "and I couldn't ask for more cooperative men."

The fact that the paratroopers are doing a good job is testified to by reports from the Signal Corps Photographic Center which has stated that the scenes already filmed are as good as any simulated combat films ever made in the United States.

The realism with which the men of the "movie platoon" have entered into action has contributed greatly to the success of the picture, according to The Infantry School's technical advisor for the film, Capt. Alfred Phillips of Yonkers, N. Y. Capt. Phillips, is assigned to the school's Tactical Department.

BY PVT. BOBBY RUSHING

OUTSIDE OF HEAVEN and LADY OF SPAIN . . Pfc Eddie Fisher, currently the top-ranking male vocalist on every chart with a tremendous recording of "Wish You Were Here," follows up with this, his latest discing, termed by Billboard as having every indication of continuing his unbroken string of clicks." Outside of Heaven is a beautiful new ballad to which Eddie lends a masculine touch. The young singer gives a full quota of gypsy atmosphere to the ever-popular Lady of Spain. Masterful support is furnished on both sides by Hugo Winterhalter's glistening violins and shining brass.

FORGIVE AND FORGET . . Romance with a capital R is the principal ingredient of this new smooth and haunting love song by Tony Martin. Flipside the big-voiced singer gives out with his usual dramatic power in Don't Tempt me (For When I Love, I Love). Topside gets full support of Hugo Winterhalter and Henri Rene on flip.

I'VE NEVER BELIEVED and LITTLE WHITE ROSEBUSH . . Henri Rene and Lou Dining team up again for a new disc destined to become as popular as their A Mighty Pretty Waltz. Here are two bouncy tempo full-of Rene's tricky rhythmic effects. Little White Rosebush features Lou in a striking duet with herself.

I'VE GONE AND DONE IT AGAIN and TWO TIMING BLUES . . Johnnie and Jack, the unique country team, again impress listeners with their latest RCA Victor disc. Adding a Latin beat to topside, the boys give it a spirited ride. Both tunes are original with Johnnie and Jack. To the versatile vocals the boys add more of their hoedown instrumenting, picking and strumming with the beat in the business.

MY HEART BELONGS TO YOU, and I FOUND OUT FOR MYSELF . . This terrific disc sold more than a quarter of a million copies back in 1947 and because of recent requests pouring in has been made available again on the Victor and Bluebird label. Vocal is by Arbee Stidham.

SINNER OR SAINT . . Freddy Martin's latest dishing features new baritone retailing that. Stuart Wade. Sweet Or Sour has Stuart telling the girl he'll take her any way she is. Flip, A Good Man Is Hard To Find, slow tempo, tells that Heart needs only a little affection to be as good as new.

PAPA IN POPS (Vol. II) . . Again eight current pop hits in one big set are released in an album played by the fabulous flying fingers of Frankie Carle. Titles include: All Wednesday's Sweetheart, Half Of Me, Walkin' My Baby Back Home, Maybe, Vanessa, Botch-A-Me, Wish You Were Here and Somewhere Along The Way.

LOCAL BOY SELLS . . Jerry Wallace (1) You Belong To Me, (2) Bashful Baby, (3) Sweet Wedding, vocal by Patti Page and (3) Wish You Were Here, Eddie Fisher. Stability (1) Back Street Affair by Webb Pierce; (2) Settin' the Woods on Fire, Hank Williams, and (3) Indian Love Call by Slim Whitman.

USAFI Fee Nets Sgt. 28 Courses

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AFPS)—Sgt. John R. Pedit of the 82nd Airborne Division here parlayed a two-dollar bet into the biggest jackpot of his life. His '52 entrance fee into USAFI has already meant the completion of almost two years of college.

Sgt. Pedit started four years ago with the first of 28 college courses he's taken so far in the Armed Forces Institute's educational program. He's accumulated the equivalent of 68 semester credits. That would put him in his junior year at most colleges.

Most of the subjects Sgt. Pedit has studied have been in mathematics, science, and history. Although USAFI only advises students of passing or failure, he figures he's averaged 94 percent in his subjects. Night classes at North Carolina State University are filling in his liberal arts requirements. The sergeant's plans include 22 more courses.

A native of Bay City, Mich., he has had a tough pull in his Service education. USAFI only allows a student to take two courses at once. Three may be taken with special permission, which he's received. At least 100 hours of study have gone into each of his 28 courses, Sgt. Pedit reports.

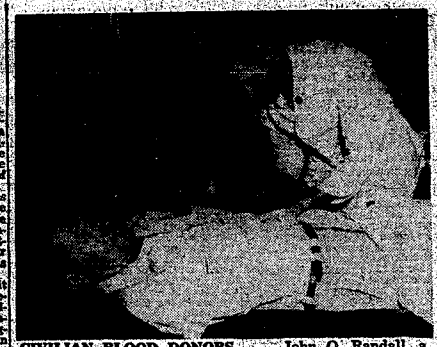
TI & E Officer Named For TIC

Maj. John J. Nazzaro of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been appointed Infantry Center information and education officer.

He succeeds Maj. Walter Hettlinger who is taking The Infantry School's advanced course.

Major Nazzaro is a 1943 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., and took the company officer's course at The Infantry School in 1948.

He served in Europe during World War II and later was an instructor with the Ohio National Guard.



CIVILIAN BLOOD DONORS . . . John Q. Randall, a civilian worker in the Quartermaster Storage division, donates a pint of blood during the first week of the Civilian Blood Donor Drive. Over 40 civilian employes have donated since the drive began, and Center officials estimate that over 200 will give a pint of blood before the drive ends Nov. 15. Cpl. Vester D. Gresham prepares Randall for the donation.

30,000 SOLDIERS STUDY . . More than 30,000 American soldiers in Korea are increasing their educational level by taking one or more of the educational courses sponsored by Army Troop Information and Education.

Lt. Inaugurates Four Cash-Saving Changes

The Main Post Weapons Pool officer has inaugurated four time-saving operations which Infantry School officials say reduce space and manpower requirements and result in greater efficiency in the section.

First Lt. Donald M. Mills of Fort Gaines, Ga., designed carts to hold aiming circles; lowered weapons racks; consolidated two sections; and inaugurated a new system for cleaning M-1 rifles.

Greatest Savings

Lieutenant Mills says he believes the greatest savings was effected in the storing and handling of the aiming circles. Since the glass in the aiming circles is easily loosened and broken, excessive breakage occurred before Lieutenant Mills' innovation. These circles were previously stored in stationary racks in a sideward position. Now they are stored in carts built from scrap lumber and designed to hold 60 aiming circles in an upright position.

When aiming circles are issued now the carts are rolled to the truck for loading, necessitating only one handling. This method also is used in turn-in of aiming circles. Infantry School officials report that the carts have cut handling time in half.

Before Lieutenant Mills redesigned the weapons racks, their height and width made them cumbersome. Lost time resulted in removing equipment from the racks to issuing tables for cleaning and maintenance. By lowering and narrowing the racks, valuable space was released and the hazard of dropping heavy equipment greatly reduced.

Through Lieutenant Mills' reorganization, M-1 rifles now are returned to the Weapons Pool after use by each Infantry School class for organizational maintenance. They are inspected, defects noted and missing parts replaced before the student companies pick up their weapons. Previously student companies cleaned their own weapons.

Lt. Mills says this new system has resulted in savings in equipment, increased efficiency and greater confidence in the rifles by the students.

By consolidating the Spare Parts and Supply Rooms in the Weapons Pool, one personnel space was eliminated.

These new procedures were a direct result of Lieutenant Mills' efforts to support the management improvement program here, Infantry School officials said.

Equivalent to the associate course offered at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., the Fort Benning instruction will provide an opportunity for officers unable to leave their duties to receive credit for the course.

To be eligible for the special associate course, students must be officers of the Regular Army, National Guard or Organized Reserve Corps, or extended active duty, or federally recognized National Guard or Organized Reserve Corps, including the volunteer reserve, with a minimum of eight years of commissioned service. Students must not have attained their 43rd birthday on the date of application for enrollment.

Course Purpose

Courses Fit Needs

Courses offered this semester are patterned to fit the needs of students, according to Bernbert C. Houser, director of both the Fort Benning and Columbus (Ga.) Centers. Most of the students, he explained, have had little or no college experience and are interested in gaining college credits in freshman and sophomore subjects. By expressing their desires for specific courses, the students actually had a hand in determining the curricula for the semester.

Whenever possible, courses with the greatest demand are scheduled. The selection is limited, however, by the availability of qualified instructors and the fact that the Benning Center does not possess facilities for laboratory courses.

Subjects taught this quarter include economics, Spanish, mathematics, history, business administration and psychology.

Entrance Requirements

Entrance requirements closely parallel those of the University of Georgia, Houser said. The Fort Benning Center permits the use of the Army's General Educational Development test to qualify an individual for a high school diploma. GED tests also help a student gain college credits. Up to 56 credit hours may be granted a student on the basis of his performance on these tests.

College credit also is granted for attendance at some service schools which teach courses similar to those taught by the university.

The number of Fort Benning personnel enrolled in college courses has increased 60 per cent since the post center was established, Houser said. Before its establishment in June, students had to journey more than 10 miles into Columbus to attend the center there.

Honor List

During the six previous quarters at the Columbus Center, at least 50 per cent of the students who made the honor list were from Fort Benning despite the fact that Army personnel never constituted more than 25 per cent of the student body.

Since the Fort Benning Center is primarily for military personnel, the faculty has made some special allowances. Full credit is given if a man completes at least one-half of a course before he is transferred by military orders. Special allowances also are made for absences caused by night duty.

3d Army Deputy Head To Brazil

FORT MCPHERSON, Ga.,—The Army has announced that Maj. Gen. William A. Biederlinden, Deputy Commanding General of Third Army since June, 1951, has been assigned to replace Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins, Jr. as senior member of the Joint Brazil - U. S. Military Commission at Rio de Janeiro.

General Beiderlinden is expected to arrive in Rio de Janeiro about Dec. 3 to assume his new post.

His successor as Third Army Deputy Commander has been announced as Maj. Gen. Charles D. W. Canham, former Commanding General, 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Widely known as originator of the rotation plan for U. S. troops in Korea, General Beiderlinden was at one time Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, of the Far East Command Headquarters, Tokyo. His distinguished military career has also been marked by his rise through the ranks from the grade of private to that of major general since he first entered the military service in 1917.

2nd Division Group Head Elected

Maj. Charles B. Hazelrigg of Union, S. C. has been elected president of the Fort Benning chapter of the Second Infantry Division Association.

Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, was elected honorary president. The Young commanded the Second Division in Korea from Sept. 15, 1951, until last May. Major Hazelrigg is a member of the Tank Weapons Committee of The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

Membership in the association is open to all officers and enlisted men on active duty or retired who have served overseas with the Second Division. Members include veterans of World War II and Korea.

Col. Adams Returns From Fort Monroe

Col. James Y. Adams, director of The Infantry School's Combat Development Section, visited Fort Monroe, Va., last week for an orientation on the Army's Combat Developments Agency.

Colonel Adams also discussed the part The Infantry School will play in this organization during his three-day visit to Army Field Forces headquarters.

French Airborne Group Here

A seven-man French Army Airborne Mission arrived here Tuesday for a two-day tour of The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

Headed by Col. Robert Chavotte, assistant inspector of French Airborne units, the mission will confer with Airborne Department officials on the organization of basic jump and pathfinder courses and inspect training aids and training methods.

Other members of the mission include Lt. Col. Robert Edel, French Airborne School commandant; Maj. Rene Mondon, French army's Technical Branch; Major Bernard Marchal, General Staff Research and Study Branch; Capt. Rene Boffy, fabrication engineer of the Airborne Armaments branch; Lt. Col. Thatcher-Hall Go Top Fight Card

Promoter Thatcher, ABC middleweight champ who made his second appearance of the season in white trunks last night at the Municipal Auditorium, will be seen in action with his fists again tomorrow night when he takes on Jimmy Hall, Columbus welterweight, in the main bout of a boxing and wrestling program at the auditorium.

Thatcher gave the locals' Hall a thorough trouncing during their previous meeting here, and Hall is looking forward to the chance to even the score with the Columbus boy.

Thatcher, who is managed by Chief Yellow Horse, is considered by many fight fans as the best middleweight in the city. He has had many fights in the ring and has never been knocked out. He has been matched with Hall on several occasions, but the latter has always managed to stay on his feet.

Thatcher is making his last appearance with his present manager, Yellow Horse, who is leaving with his ex-colored fighters for Memphis, Tenn., where they will make their home.

Thatcher is a product of Camp Atterbury, Ind., where he was boxing instructor during the war. He has been fighting professionally for about two years.

Airborne Beats H&S Brigade 41-6

Airborne Battalion swamped Headquarters and Service Brigade with a 41-6 score Friday for their second win in the current touch football series of First Student Regiment.

Paul Bonair once again took to the air with a series of passes that sewed up the game for Airborne early in the second quarter. Bonair also kicked six out of the seven possible conversions.

Receiving and scoring from Bonair's aerials were James Clark and Charles Williams. Williams received another pass from him, and seeing that he was trapped, quickly lateralled to Carlos Gravitte who went for the TD. Bonair also threw a touchdown pass to Terry Scott, former University of Oregon star.

Aerial Piracy

Seven interceptions were made by Airborne, cashing in on two of them. H & S for the most part relied on Bob Hurst for anything that looked like an offensive scoring play. None of their passing paid off.

Their only score came in the third quarter when George Dubiak intercepted one of Bonair's heaves and ran the twenty yards for the six point payoff. The extra point attempt was no good.

Three Records Broken In OC "Olympiad"

Three new records were set in the First Officer Candidate Regiment's physical proficiency contest held last week on Stroup Field in the Harmony Church area.

Candidate Donald W. Nelson, of 18th Company, set a new record of 453 points for the complete test, breaking his old high of 438.

Candidate Martin D. Ward, of 13th Company, broke the old mark of 76 pushups with an 86.

Candidate James W. Smith, of 12th Company, established a new record of 30 pull-ups breaking the old record of 24.

Candidate Aminew H. Housand, of 11th Company, won the squat jump event with 131. Candidate Theodore M. Pease, Jr., did 86 situps and Candidate John D. Haire, Jr., ran the 300-yard run in 44.5 seconds.

Former Rice Halfback Now Student Here

Candidate Allen K. Dunkerley, of 4th OC Company, and Corpus Christi, Texas, has had quite a career in sports which commenced in high school in his hometown.

As a halfback in football, Dunkerley rolled up an impressive 25 yards per carry average. In track, he ran the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds, and rounded out his high school sports program on the baseball team as a pitcher.

Enrolling in Rice Institute in 1946, "Dunk" again found himself on the football lineup as halfback and played against such all time greats as Doak Walker, "Choo Choo" Justice and Art Wiern.

In 1949, he took on North Carolina in the Cotton Bowl taking them 26-6 to round "Dunk's" greatest playing thrill.

Now "Dunk" feels his football days are over and upon re-entering Texas will take up ranching and has plans for raising some of those big Texas steers.

Will To Fight Major Factor In ASU Success

"Not so much experience, but a willingness to fight is the major factor in the success of the ASU team so far," states Frank Hartley, ASU'S 27-year-old boxing coach.

Hartley, a boxing promoter in his spare time, is assisted by William H. Frank, who was a welterweight on last year's team.

The Raiders have such stellar performers as George Allen, Third Army and Fort Benning Bantamweight champion, Claude Chapman, FECOM light heavyweight champion, Ben Robertson, EUCOM light heavy contender and Freeman Thatcher, last years Benning middleweight runner-up.

Leander Ray, George Blackburn, William Russell, Abraham Harden, Willie Wright and Rudolph Chiles made names for themselves in last season's ring feats and are currently in this season's boxing activities too.

Newcomers to the ASU pugilistic squad are Al Deimasch, Charles DeForte, Don Whort and Doc Dickey.

Headquarters Quint Leads

'Jack of All Sports' Milgrim With Wave

One of the most versatile athletes with the ISD-ASU football team is Robert (Red Dog) Milgrim, a 24-year old back who also handles a large share of the Greenies' kicking, and in his "off Duty" time excels at tennis.

Milgrim, playing his first service football, gained experience in three years of competition at Harrison, N.Y., High school and a year at Colgate University in 1948.

While at Colgate, the five-foot, nine-inch line bucker, played collegiate tennis, gaining the captaincy of the squad in 195. He is due for discharge in November and hopes to study law.

Shooters Vieing For Top Honors In TIC Tourney

Record firing for The Infantry Center marksmanship program got underway Tuesday with rifle shooters vieing for honors at McAndrew Range and pistol firers shooting at Courson Range.

The competition among the major units on post will end Friday with Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, commanding general, presenting the awards at 8 p.m. Friday evening at Main Wells Field House.

Monday, the shooters from the six participating commands, zeroed their weapons in day long practice sessions. There are 128 officers and enlisted men entered in the rifle competition and 96 in the pistol.

Greenie Grid Rivals Face Big 'Racquet'

One of the most versatile athletes on Jack Faubion's ISD-ASU Green Waves is Robert (Red Dog) Milgrim, a 24-year-old fullback prospect who also excels at tennis.

The carrot-topped, 185 pound back, suffered a banged up knee a few weeks ago in scrimmage and has been favoring it since during the work outs in the second quarter.

Red Raider Vet

Milgrim, trying his first service football, has plenty of experience on the gridiron, having played three years with Harrison, N. Y., High and a year at Colgate University. He never completed the 1946 season with Colgate, because an injury delegated him to riding the bench.

While at Colgate, the 5-foot, 9-inch line bucker, played collegiate tennis, gaining the captaincy of the squad in 1950.

Heads High

Due to be discharged from the Army in November the stocky fullback is high in his praise of the team's spirit. "I haven't seen any of the other clubs as yet," Milgrim said, "but our guys will be hard to beat for with such terrific morale!"

All-Army Football Team Ballots In Army Times

Selection of the 1952 All-Army football team is now under way with ballots printed in every edition of the Army Times.

Army football fans and coaches are encouraged to vote. All service football players are eligible candidates.

Sixty Birds Dead In Second Benning Shoot

Twenty-five hunters showed up at the Fort Benning Fish and Game Association office Sunday for the season's second dove hunt. Sixty birds were bagged.

Using only one of the many dove fields on post and doing most of the firing in the late afternoon, most of the hunters got the allowed limit. Two of the doziers who filled their bags were Cpl. Claude Yancy and Sgt. Daniel Hare.

Fahrenkrug, Ram Ace, Breaks Arm

Vern Fahrenkrug, ace offensive left end for Special Troops, suffered an elbow fracture last Friday in a Bard-Rams' scrimmage. The break will keep him out of action at least until late in November.

The six-foot, two-inch, 190-pound Fahrenkrug caught two TD passes last week when the Rams snowed 508th Airborne, 26-7, and two other catches netted him a total of 101 yards gained.

The 23-year-old former St. John's (Minn.) University end snagged four aerials for 35 yards three weeks ago against ISD-ASU.

"It's a real blow to us," moaned Coach Gus Dielens, who announced he will switch six-foot, four-inch tackle Buck Weaver from tackle to plug the gap.

Grid Machine Oiled

Meantime, the Rams will continue to polish their potent grid machine in practices for the next two weeks. They don't have another scheduled game until Nov. 2 when they meet Combat Training Command.

Dielens this week turned down an invite to play the recently organized "unofficial" Second Student Regiment team.

Post Football First

"Only one thing matters to me, and that's winning the post league championship," said the former West Point back. "We don't want any more outside games to worry about."

Bob Ellis, 225 pound tackle who stands six-three, also came in for attention this week. Dielens said Auburn scouts were looking at him. Ellis has played a couple of semesters at McMurry and San Angelo colleges. The big Texan also was a letterman in boxing and basketball in high school.

Glue-fingered Ronnie Richardson held on to three of Alton Selby's touchdown passes as First Battalion defeated Service Company 26-0 in a First Student Regiment Touch Football League game Monday afternoon.

White Upsets Robinson; 3A Heavy Champion Here

Fort Benning's heavyweight boxing picture took on a surprising and brighter hue with two developments in and out of the ring last week.

Ernest Fann, a carbon copy of Joe Louis' style and current Third Army heavyweight king, has been assigned here from Camp Gordon for airborne training and will fight for First Student Regiment.

Fann went to the finals of his year's All-Army tournament before being defeated. He won the amateur Chicago Tournament of Champions heavy title in 1950 and the East-West tournament crown in 1951.

Robinson Upset

As if that wasn't bad news enough for rivals, First SR heavyweight Gene White last Thursday night scored a stunning upset over Ben Robinson, ASU heavy who has been ruling the local roost, in a slugfest of heroic proportions.

A follow up punch by either boy at any point could have decided this one via a knockout and a re-match seems to be only a question of time.

Robinson was credited with a dubious knock down in the first round, but Ben half tripped and fell to the canvas under a furious assault by White in the second.

Clarion Champ

White, 21-year old heavyweight champ this year at Camp Chaffee, Ark., showed the better boxing ability and got the nod for the verdict. Robinson's two-fisted blows thrown from left field were always coming, however.

They slugged for the three full rounds. Referee Jim Mullin had to separate them after the bell ending the first round.

17 Out of 18

This was White's first fight since March and his 17th win in 18 starts. He was a finalist in the Northwest Golden Gloves finals in 1951. Married and the father of a baby girl, White entered the U. of Minnesota on a football scholarship, but became more interested in boxing. He has been forced to go the route only twice in registering his 17 wins.

ASU found balm on last week's card, however, in the sterling performance turned in by George Allen, 3-A bantamweight champion, who seemed at ease in decisioning Joe Clark, of First SR.

Georgeous George had his usual brilliant footwork, counter punched brilliantly and landed solidly almost at will. There were only three clinches in the entire mill as both boys worked cleanly.

Other Bouts

In other tests on the abbreviated card, Juan Jaramillo, of 508th, decisioned Tom Boykin, of CTC, and Freeman Thatcher, of ASU, TKO'd Al Farese, First SR middleweight, in 1:09 of the first round.

(Points are awarded on a 5-4-3-2-1 basis to the winning fighters in each of the five amateur classes. Fighters are divided into classification according to their experience, the best men rated class one, and on down to the raw novices in class five.)

NEWCOMERS ERNIE FANN (L.) AND GENE WHITE — They'll slug for First Student Regiment

BY LESTER DINOFF

The 1952 Fort Benning football season is entering its fifth week and so far some 54,000 fans have watched the proceedings. . .Coach CECIL (SCOOTER) DICKERSON says that his Commanders are in better shape, physically that is, than any other team in the league; haven't had a player carried off the field yet.

One of the Special Troops' Rams top fans is former Rutgers' coach, Lt. Col. JEFFERSON CRONK, E. O. of the First S.R. . . The 508th Airborne has scheduled a game with the Miami Marines for Nov. 18 in Miami.

Most of the occupants of the press box at Doughboy Stadium agreed that Sunday's game featured sloppy ball handling. In my opinion it was an off day for both clubs and it was slightly warm for a football game. However, during the second half of the fracas, both clubs improved.

PAUL IANNACCONNE and SYLVESTER BRUTEN were standouts on CTC defense, according to Miami's gift to Benning, Charlie Johnson. But Dickerson says that defensive captain THERON CROSS and end CLAUDE COLLINS were tops. . .Outstanding players on the Green Wave eleven were BOB (CUSH) MILGRIM, who was taken off the field during the first half on a stretcher and returned to play a great game later on.

Halftime was enlivened by the 122nd Army Band and the famed Auburn marching band. Someone on the CTC side of Doughboy should have clued in the Alabama musicmen that when an opposing player leaves the field with an injury, Taps should be sounded . . .The 122nd came up with a Dixieland combo that played pretty good but not loud enough.

ROLAND CLEMENT, who was slated to take over Commander quarterbacking duties, is out for the remainder of the season with three breaks in his arm. BOB MILGRIM suffered a four inch gash in his left leg believed caused by a player's spikes. . .Scouting players and coaches from the other two football teams commented that SY BRUTEN plays a rough game of ball.

CHARLIE LEONARD was dropped six times behind his own lines by onrushing Commanders. . . FRED FELHAUM and MEL ANGIEN were in the game with bandages covering their injured wings.

HAROLD MANLEY, assistant coach at present, but future heir to Greenie coaching reins when BLACK JACK FAUBION departs, hobbled along the sidelines hoping that his injured leg gets better quicker so he could get into uniform and play. . .GEORGE (DING DONG) BELL really showed the customers some classy football legwork. His runs of 42 yards and 40 yards brought the fans to their feet. But CUSH MILGRIM also got some charging honors with a 53 yard gallop.

CTC ingenuity had a wooden tank built over a jeep drive around the gridiron with its siren howling. The Commander was PFC. ED SANDERS with PFC. RUSSELL GASPARE doing the driving. Both tankers hail from the 90th Infantry's Medium Tank Company.

The Green Wave had some Rembrandt do an art study of an ocean wave, green naturally, with a built-in football player roll over some hapless football player. . .

A tough foe for league honors looms in the 114th Company, 24-0 winner over the 115th. Another forfeit game had the 104th winning over the 124th.

Army Ace

Dick Inman's running and passing led the "West Point" attack. His 70-yard run in the third quarter was the feature play of the game. Danford, Harris, and Bailey tallied the other 113th touchdowns.

Bob Cook, ex-Missouri Valley Conference choice for Oklahoma A and M, was the big gun on offense and defense for the 114th.

Two 'Hog' Dogs Lost During Dove Shoot

There is a song titled "Has Anyone Seen My Gal?", but Sgt. Daniel Hare, of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Association office, has altered the words to "Has Anyone Seen My Dogs?".

Sgt. Hare participated in Sunday's dove shoot, and at the conclusion of the day's shooting discovered two of his mixed breed "hogs" dogs missing.

He described them as a white female bitch with brown spots and a black male with tan spots.

King Size 'Chutes Fill 'Hurry' Supply Orders

(ANF) — The shortest distance between two points is straight down when the Army's combination grocer-druggist - filling station-hardware dealer — the Quartermaster Aerial Supply Company — fills a rush order for backyard delivery.

Billowing parachutes bursting into bloom mean food, clothing, ammunition, gasoline and medical supplies for many satisfied customers.

It's the situation demands, the bottom figuratively drops out of the sky as jeeps, trucks, bulldozers and artillery pieces float earthward suspended in the sky by huge canopies of nylon.

Much Progress

Considerable progress has been made in the development of parachutes and items for delivery via the aerial route. Equipment weighing up to 21,000 pounds has been dropped successfully, using clusters of 100-foot diameter chutes. This is in marked contrast to World War II operations where the heaviest drop weighed between 300 and 400 pounds and used a single 28-foot chute.

To drop a 75-millimeter pack howitzer in those days meant dropping it piece-meal in lumps not exceeding 400 pounds. Today the king-size 100-foot nylon cargo chute will lower a 75-millimeter pack howitzer, a jeep, or 3500 pounds of supplies in one stunt.

Clusters of these giant-size chutes now can deliver 105-millimeter howitzers, two-and-a half-ton trucks, bull-dozers, caterpillars, graders, or supplies weighing up to 21,000 pounds.

In addition to the sky-blanketing 100-foot chutes, the Army uses two smaller-type cargo chutes for aerial delivery. One of these—a 64-foot nylon chute—is used to lower loads weighing in at less than 3,500 pounds. The other — a muslin canopy chute—sports a 28-foot blossom designed to carry loads weighing up to 500 pounds.

The task of preparing and delivering cargo via parachute is handled by Army Quartermaster Aerial Supply Companies. For an air-drop operation, the trucks, guns, food and supplies are tied down to special air-drop platforms. These platforms are designed to permit rapid ejection of the cargo from the plane in flight and protect against landing shock.

After the cargo has been tied down to the platform parachutes are rigged carefully and attached to the equipment to be dropped. The cargo then is loaded aboard the aircraft and lashed to the inside of the plane. A roller skate conveyor on the floor of the aircraft permits both easy loading and rapid, safe ejection over the drop zone.

During the first nine months of aerial supply operations in Korea, more than 45,000 tons of equipment and supplies were parachuted to United Nations forces.

Air-drops have been so successful that specific guns — blasting the enemy in many of the hard fought artillery engagements in Korea—have been resupplied with ammunition dropped in their own backyard.

'Saucers' Seen In Biblical Days

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles from the Air University Dispatch, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., dealing with an Air Force investigation into "flying saucers.")

WASHINGTON — It is now felt, however, that reports from people whose training and experience in observing aerial objects qualify them to obtain essential data are the only ones likely to produce material suitable for systematic analysis. The Air Force is planning to provide additional tools to help these observers obtain the basic data it needs.

Reports of similar phenomena go back to Biblical times. There have been flurries of them in various centuries. The current series of sightings began generally in 1946.

Many Reasons

There are many reasons why the volume of these reports has increased materially during the past few years. Aerial activity originated by man has increased and people today have a greater curiosity about this activity than before.

Also, our present efficient communication facilities and new media provide an incentive for reporting unusual observations, for publicizing them and for recording them. However, the ability to measure these phenomena does not seem to have advanced in step with opportunities for observing them. The Air Force believes that most of these phenomena will gradually be understood as more is known about occurences in the upper atmosphere.

Report Breakdown

The majority of reports of aerial phenomena have come from civilians. About 8 percent come from civil airlines pilots, while approximately 25 percent are reported by military personnel. Reports have been received also from highly qualified scientists. Although primary significance is attached to reports from qualified observers, there is no intention to discredit untrained observers.

The Air Force has received many reports of unusual images on radar scopes. It is fairly well established that some of these images are ground objects reflected from a layer of warm air above the earth (a temperature inversion).

Temperature Inversion

Temperature inversion reflections can give a return on a radar scope that is as sharp as that received from an aircraft. Speed ranges of these returns are reportedly from zero to fantastic speeds. The "objects" also appear to move in all directions.

Such radar sightings have resulted in hundreds of fruitless intercept efforts.

One scientific theory holds that light can be similarly reflected from a layer of warm air above the earth and if proven to be correct, this could account for some visual sightings.

Bearing out the theory of temperature inversion reflections is an incident which occurred in January 1951 near Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Two Air Force airtraft attempted to intercept an unidentified "object" and actually established a "lock" on the object. Their altitude at the time was 7,000 feet. The unidentified objects, according to their radar, appeared to be at an elevation of ten to 25 degrees. Three passes were made in an attempt to close on the object. In each instance the pilots reported that their radar led them first upward and then down toward a specific point on the ground.

Taste Test Is Tempting Task

(ANF)—Like King Henry VIII, the Army also has its official "taster" who tastes food to see whether it's fit for a soldier to eat.

The Army's veterinary tests butter by taste, cheese by smell, and meat and eggs by checking their grade. This careful inspection for food purity and sanitation not only safeguards the soldier's health, but also saves the taxpayer millions of dollars by preventing sickness and waste.

At Fort Meade, Md., a three-man team assigned to the post veterinary's office, uses a "check-and-double-check" system of inspection. The men first check places where food is prepared and then inspect the food before the soldier eats it.

The team visits all the meat packing plants, milk processing centers, and poultry and egg suppliers who wish to sell their products to the Army post. If the organizations can pass the Army's high standards for sanitation and product quality, they are approved as prospective bidders for Army food contracts.

The team later inspects the food either at the time of purchase or before it is delivered to mess halls or sold to soldiers at the commissary or post exchanges.

Another type of inspection prevents waste while foods are in storage. The inspectors check temperature, humidity and grade of items as well as handling and stock rotation methods.

They keep the post Quartermaster informed of the condition of each food item in storage. The Quartermaster, responsible for food supply, then can move food to the mess hall table when it is in top condition, fit for a soldier—or a king.

TIC Commended For JCOC Role

The Infantry Center has been commended by the assistant commandant of the Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for the excellent demonstration presented in connection with the 14th Joint Civilian Orientation Conference held here Oct. 2-4.

Brig. Gen. Crawford F. Sams, the medical school official, said in the letter to Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, that he was speaking for members of the staff and faculty of the school who attended the conference here.

He expressed appreciation to all personnel taking part in the demonstration and asked that his appreciation be conveyed to them.

Ex-Auto Stuntman Claims 'Chute Jumping 'Mild'

BY PVT. VIC JOWERS

Thrills and excitement are "old hat" to Pvt. James Cadwell of Company E, Airborne Battalion. A former automobile stuntman, he says he expects "a mild sensation of excitement" on his first parachute jump.

Private Cadwell says his career of wrecking cars for pay grew out of his hobby: stock-car racing. "Stock-car racing as a hobby or profession is a rather uncertain means of livelihood," he says. "So I figured I'd be better off wrecking someone else's cars and making a profit than wrecking my own and losing my shirt."

Auto Show

As a member of Joey Chitwood's "Auto Thrills Show," he performed such feats as "the slide of death" and "the human battering-ram."

The slide of death, he says, consists of stepping from the rear of an automobile speeding 80 miles per hour. The performer hits the ground running first, then the back and shoulders, and last the feet.

Once in a while, "just to liven the act up," says Cadwell, the performer is dragged through a pool of flaming gasoline.

"The trick," he explained, "is to make sure you don't finish the slide in the gasoline."

Leather Pad

For protection during the slide, the performer wears a leather pad about as thick as a shoe sole. The only injury Private Cadwell ever suffered was a broken wrist.

Another little trick he performed was the "human battering-ram." In this event, the performer dons a crash-helmet and lies across the hood of a car with his head sticking out in front.

The driver then speeds the car to 40 miles an hour and crashes through a one-inch thick board wall, during its stay.

Completion Seen Nov. 14 For Post Bakery Repairs

Renovation of the Post Bakery will be completed by Nov. 14, Col. Richard F. Ellis, Infantry Center engineer, has reported.

Work started Oct. 6.

The Engineer Offices Buildings Maintenance Section is reroofing and remodeling the interior of the building and installing a new office for the bakery officer.

A 20-man mobile bakery platoon from the 543rd Quartermaster Bakery Company, Fort Bragg, N. C., is to supply bread for The Infantry Center while the work is under way. The detachment, composed of one officer and 20 enlisted men, is operating from two special tents adjacent to the Post Bakery.

Commander by 2nd Lt. John G. Harper of Anderson, S. C., the mobile bakery platoon will bake approximately 15,000 loaves of bread daily or a total of 147 tons.

Paratroopers Get New 'Chutes

(ANF) — A new type of life insurance policy is being issued to Army paratroopers.

The policy—in the form of a 30-foot nylon chute—features reduced opening shock, less pendulum swing, and a slower rate of descent. It also permits jumping from aircraft flying at 175 miles per hour.

Greater safety and reliability are provided through use of a novel chute - opening method which unfurls the suspension lines and the 30-foot canopy away from the body of the earth-bound "man of war."

Packed in a canvas bag and fastened snugly to his back, the trooper's insurance policy goes into effect as soon as he steps into space.

When the free-falling trooper reaches the end of his 15-foot static line, the canvas bag containing suspension lines and canopy is jerked off his back. As the trooper continues to fall, the suspension lines shake their exit from the bag, followed by the canopy. This action—which takes place above his plummeting body — reduces greatly the possibility of entanglement in the chute as it opens.

This is in sharp contrast to the old method in which the static line pulled off the parachute pack cover, permitting the canopy to open and subsequently pull out the suspension lines in the close vicinity of his falling body.

Army Permits Men To Ship Sporting Guns

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— Soldiers may now ship non-military guns home instead of carrying them in their personal luggage when returning to the States. In addition, they no longer have to register such guns before returning.

The words "non-military fire arms" have been dropped in Change 1 to SR 550-25-1, which removes sporting guns from the control placed on war trophy fire arms.

Any civilian-made gun designed for civilian use, providing it was not "liberated" during a period of fighting, can be classified as non-military.

The Army explained that civilians are buying fancy hand-tooled shotguns and hunting rifles in Europe and mailing them home. Since American civilians have that privilege, soldiers should too.

This order in no way relaxes the soldier's liability to U. S. laws affecting firearms. Pistols, for instance, still cannot be sent through the mails. Postal regulations state: "Pistols, revolvers, and other firearms capable of being concealed on the person are non-mailable and shall not be deposited in or carried by the mails."

Hurt Troopers Continue Jump Routine Here

It takes more than a serious operation or an accident to keep old-time paratroopers from hitting the silk.

M-Sgt. John E. Boron and Sfc. William D. Hunt yesterday added another parachute jump to their records although both had just returned to duty following long seiges of illness

Boron, a member of The Airborne Department's Parachute Maintenance Group, recently underwent an operation for removal of part of his lung. The 42-year-old sergeant was a member of the original parachute test platoon in 1940. He made his first jump in October of that year. He will have completed 20 years service Sept. 30.

Thirty-nine-year-old Hunt broke his ankle at Lee Field during a training jump 18 months ago. He also is a member of the Parachute Maintenance Group.

56 Re-up In First 10 Days of October

Fifty-six reenlistments were reported here during the first 10 days of October, bringing this year's total to 2,067.

A breakdown of October reenlistments in the major units at The Infantry Center shows: Area Service Unit Provisional Group, 15; Infantry School Detachment, 10; Combat Training Command, 19; Provisional Medical Group, 1; U.S. Army Hospital, 3; 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, and First Student Brigade, 5.

Col. Kretlow Sets Meet For Town Transport Group

Col Sidney P. Kretlow, Infantry Center transportation officer will lay the ground work for the organization of a Columbus (Ga.,) chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association.

An organizational meeting for Fort Benning and Columbus transportation leaders is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 6, at which time duplicate will be made to the national headquarters of NDTA for a charter.

The NDTA, organized during World War II, is dedicated to "transportation preparedness for the common defense as one of the strongest guarantees to national security and peace."

At present, the nearest active chapter is in Atlanta, Ga.

"The NDTA is not a military organization and the military at Fort Benning will not assume active leadership of the local chapter," Col. Kretlow said.

"It is an association of citizens interested in transportation and national defense and it's up to industrial and transportation leaders in the surrounding communities to support, run and participate in the local chapter once we receive our charter," he added.

All military personnel interested in becoming charter members in the Columbus chapter of NDTA should telephone Colonel Kretlow a Fort Benning 2249.

Civilians may telephone Oscar Nance, Fort Benning traffic manager, at Fort Benning 3151 or Columbus 2-2353.

CARNIVAL CAPERS . . . This miniature parachute tower will be one of the centers of attraction at the annual Halloween Carnival at Gowdy Field tomorrow night. Testing the 17-foot tower is Cpl. Bayonet Will List Traffic Violators

All personnel at Fort Benning who become traffic violators either on or off the post will have their names, the traffic offenses they committed and the punishment they received listed in The Bayonet beginning with next week's issue.

The following groups of traffic violators will be listed in the newspaper:

1. Traffic violators whose driving privileges are revoked, or those violators whose punishment is more severe than revocation of driving privileges.

2. Unregistered traffic violators who were denied the privilledge of registering their automobile on the post.

The list published each week in The Bayonet will include all violators up through the Friday preceeding the Thursday on which the newspaper is distributed.

Chest Fund Nears Monetary Goal

$33,000 Collected Through Oct. 28; Drive Ends Monday

Total collections for the Community Chest Drive have reached $33,047.85, according to Col. Donald Washington, drive chairman, who reported that this sum was not quite $2,000 short of the monetary goal set for the campaign.

Colonel Washington said that those who have as yet not contributed to the drive will have an opportunity to do so following payday tomorrow, since the drive runs through Nov. 3.

Colonel Washington said the monetary goal this year has been set at $35,000, and it is felt that this goal will be reached by the end of the week. He also expressed hope that the 100 per cent participation goal also may be achieved in the campaign.

All Contributions Count

The drive chairman pointed out that every contribution, no matter what the amount, counted toward the participation goal.

"The participation goal of 100 per cent," Colonel Washington said, "is more important than the monetary goal, and it is hoped that we may achieve this mark."

To date only two major units and three staff sections have reached the 100 per cent participation goal. These include the American Red Cross, Army Field Forces Board No. 3, Public Information Office, Staff Judge Advocate Section and the Post Signal Section.

Percentages

Other major units and their participation percentages to Oct. 28 include: Infantry Center Headquarters, 91 per cent; Provisional Medical Group 87 per cent; First Student Brigade, 86 per cent; 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, 84 per cent, Infantry School Detachment, 81 per cent; 3440th Area Service Unit Provisional Group, 78 per cent; Academic Department, 76 per cent; U.S. Army Hospital, 73 per cent; Combat Training Command 70 per cent; First Officer Candidate Regiment, 61 per cent; Lawson Air Force Base, 60 per cent; and the Main Officers' Mess, 46 per cent.

Staff Sections

Participation of staff sections to date, include these percentages:

Provost Marshal, 83 per cent; Special Services, 82 per cent; Post

Army To Release 750,000; 10 Million Face Service

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Approximately 750,000 soldiers or about one-half of the Army built up since the outbreak of Korean hostilities, will be separated from active duty this fiscal year.

In an address before the mobilization conference of the Jewish Welfare Board recently Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., also said some 10,000,000 men may experience military duty in the foreseeable future.

Considering their influence on their immediate families and friends, Secretary Pace said, "probably upwards of 30,000,000 Americans will be affected directly or indirectly by their military service.

Must Be Trained

"New replacements must be trained to go immediately into battle, if need be, and this is no simple process. It imposes terrific burdens on our training system, complicates the other difficult jobs the Army is doing, and is very costly in time and money.

"The record of our troops in Korea and elsewhere attests to the soundness of our training. There is a two-fold reason for giving our soldiers this tough, realistic training: first, to help them do a tough job in combat and second, to increase their chances of staying alive."

Secretary Pace said the American soldier is better cared for in or out of battle, than any other fighting man in the world. In Korea, he said, fatalities among wounded soldiers is about one-half of the rate of WWII. About 96 of every 100 wounded men survive and 85 of these are restored to duty.

Better Protection

Besides improved medical facilities, Mr. Pace stated, body armor has further reduced the number of men who die of wounds. Experiments in Korea indicate the vest is more than worth the eight extra pounds of weight a soldier must

Infantry Remains 'Queen,' 3rd Army Head Claims

The Infantry is still, and will remain, "Queen of Battle," the Third Army commander last week told 106 new second lieutenants.

"The men who hold the real estate at the end of a battle are the ones who have won that campaign," Lt. Gen. A. R. Bolling informed the graduates of Infantry officer candidate class No. 33.

General Bolling told the lieutenants that the training here is "second to none in the world today, so have complete self-confidence as you start your new career."

"The mere pinning of a bar on your shoulder doesn't qualify you completely though," he warned. "You must have the ability to command."

He reminded the new lieutenants that "fairness is essential and courage is admired and respected," adding:

"Read in highest esteem your non-commissioned officers for they are the backbone of the Army today. Congress can make you an officer, but only you can make yourself a gentleman," he warned.

Honor graduate was Hamilton G. Kenner of Bingham Canyon, Utah. Lt. Kenner has been assigned to headquarters of the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Major Norman Shaffer, chief of Fort Benning's Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Ira Singleton, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

Lumber Rollers Save Man-Hours

The Engineer Warehouse has adopted roller conveyors to unload lumber destined for storage, resulting in a saving of 40 man-hours on each car load.

William P. Johnson of Columbus, chief storekeeper of the warehouse, is credited with inaugurating the new method.

Lumber formerly was unloaded by hand and carried from 40 to 60 feet to the storage shed where it was stacked. This method required approximately 72 man-hours to unload a car of 25,000 board feet of lumber.

Man-hours required to perform this operation now have been reduced to 32 per car, netting a saving of 40 man-hours, or 342 per car, according to Infantry Center engineer officials.

Approximately 120 cars of lumber are normally received annually here.

Civilian Bond Drive Tops $13,000 Mark

The overall percentage for the first seven weeks of the drive climbed to 37 per cent according to figures compiled as of Oct. 24.

The Civilian Personnel Division, headed by Vice-chairman Bella Chadwick, climbed three percentage points last week to move into fourth place with a 95.2 percentage.

Three sections, all reporting 100 per cent participation, are tied for first place. They are the Judge Advocate, Troop Information and Education and Chemical Sections.

The largest contributing organization is the Infantry Center Quartermaster Section with 397 employees purchasing bonds.

The majority of the dialogue is narrated by the principle character, the platoon leader, who tells of inspections in the barracks, classroom exercises, road marches, range firing, the infiltration course and other phases of training. The show concludes with his graduation as an Infantry second lieutenant ready to lead 44 men in combat.

Canadian Visitors Get Airborne Ideas

Two Canadian paratroopers currently visiting The Infantry School's Airborne Department claim they've found several ideas they intend to take back to Canada with them.

Lt. John C. Reid and Sgt. Bernard J. Bister said they were here looking for "newer, easier and better methods" of training paratroopers.

Lieutenant Reid said that among the ideas he'll take back with him are two in common use here. They are the adjustable harness used at the 34-foot training towers, and the dummy back parachute used in "mock-up" drills.

He said there are several differences in American and Canadian training methods. "Classes in Canada are smaller," he said. "Most of them have only about 50 men. Then too, we teach parachute landing falls a little differently.

"Instead of teaching students to stare straight ahead as they are here, we teach them to watch the ground. And as a final difference, in going out of a plane we take a definite jack-knife position."

Sergeant Bister claims there is a good deal more esprit de corps connected with the Canadian paratroopers. The reason for this, he said, is that "In Canada, an Airborne class comes straight to the school at Rivers, Manitoba, from basic training and other training. Throughout their various courses, the men stay together."

"They're taken all the way through their course by the same instructors, and when they graduate they go directly to one of three Airborne units in the Canadian Army—the Royal 22nd Regiment, the Royal Canadian Regiment or Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry."

The two visitors are among a group of Canadians who will be at the Airborne Department observing our methods of training in the next few months. They are scheduled to leave about Nov. 10.

VA Announces Jobless Vet Qualifications

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Conditions which a veteran must meet to qualify for unemployment compensation have been listed by the Veterans Administration.

(The K-Vet Bill entitles eligible veterans to an unemployment allowance of $26 a week for a total of 26 weeks, or until $676 has been paid.)

1. You must file a claim and register for work at a local employment office in the state where you live.

2. You must meet the conditions of your particular state unemployment compensation law. These generally include:

(a) You must continue to report at your local employment office; (b) you must be unemployed; (c) you must be able to work; (d) you must be available for work; (e) you must not quit your job voluntarily without good cause; (f) you must not have been discharged for misconduct.

(g) You must not have refused a suitable job without good cause and (h) your unemployment must not be due to a stoppage of work caused by a labor dispute.

The VA said that 1,112,000 veterans were discharged between July, 1950, and August, 1952. These veterans as well as veterans to be discharged in the future, are eligible for all benefits, if they qualify, under the K-Vet Bill.

It's Not Too Late

Next Tuesday, as we all know, is an important day—important to all of us. This occasion, which comes along but once in four years, is the day we're called upon to exercise our God-given right of voting.

In these columns from time to time we've brought out facts concerning soldier voting, and what might be termed the "disenfranchisement" of some of the men and women in the Armed Forces.

Right now, of course, you may say that it's too late to do anything about getting the vote. That may be true, as far as this particular election is concerned. However, we fear that many of you will just rock along, and four years from now will find yourselves in the same boat—unregistered and unable to vote.

Therefore, now is the time to contact your state authorities and do everything possible to insure that your absentee ballot will be in your hands the next election.

For the election will not be four years from now. Every year, in every community across the country, elections are held from mayor up to governor of the state. You may think "But I am never at home long enough for these local and state offices to have any effect on me at all."

You couldn't be further from the truth. For it is often said that good government, like charity, begins at home. Local and state offices are the foundation of our form of government, and no house can rest upon a foundation that is weak from the ravages of corruption and mismanagement.

As we have repeated over and over again, soldiers can win the vote in those states where it is presently denied them. It won't take $10,000 and a big lobby. All it will take is a few sheets of paper, a pen and ink.

The written word is one of the most powerful weapons you can wield. If you will write your governor, your mayor, your newspaper editors, and raise a loud enough cry, and raise it often enough, your vote will be returned.

Surely no one has more right than a soldier to vote. For it is the soldier, the sailor, all the servicemen, who make it possible for us to vote. Surely without our armed forces we would have neither the necessity nor the opportunity to vote.

Even though we've waited too long to vote in this national election, that should give us an even greater incentive to gain the vote for the next election.

All too often people forget their innate power. You, as a taxpayer, have the power in your hands to get the vote. If you're content you don't deserve to vote; but if you will exert yourself and fight for your rights as a citizen, then no power on earth can stop you.

BY PFC. HERB ZUCKER

The new K-Vet Bill includes a mustering-out program for men and women leaving the Armed Forces, similar to the program that was in effect at the end of WWII. It is administered by the military and not the Veterans Administration.

MUSTERING-OUT PAY

Mustering-out payments are as follows:

1. $300 for those with at least 60 days of service who were on active duty outside the continental limits of the U. S. or in Alaska.

2. $200 for those with 60 days or more service who were not outside the U. S. or Alaska.

3. $100 for those who spent less than 60 days on active duty.

If you are eligible for $300 you will get $100 upon discharge, $100 a month for the next two months. If you are in the $200 category you will receive $100 at discharge, or will go in equal share to his or separation, and the remainder surviving parents. No mustering a month later. Veterans eligible for out payment will be made to any $100 will be paid in a lump sum.

Eligibility Requirements

To be eligible for mustering-out pay, a veteran must have an honorable discharge granted on or after June 27, 1950. He must also have served in the rank of captain or below in the Army, Air Force, or Marines, or as a lieutenant senior grade or below in the Navy.

The law lists several groups of veterans not entitled to mustering-out payments. Among those are:

1) Certain categories of veterans drawing retirement pay after discharge (except those retired for physical disability); 2) Those whose sole service has been as cadet or midshipman at any of the military academies; 3) Those discharged for the purpose of attending one of the academies.

4). A veteran whose only service has been in a civilian school studying courses offered to civilians; 5) commissioned officers discharged or released later than three years after the end of the present emergency, and 6) those ordered to active duty only for training, or for a physical examination, or for less than 60 days.

In case a veteran dies after discharge the MOP will be paid, upon application, to his widow or in equal shares to his children if he leaves no surviving spouse. And if he left no wife or children, the money will go in equal share to his one ele.

Evils Are Man-Made

(1st Lt) BERNARD MUSSMAN

Men frequently think that the evils in the world are more numerous than the good things. They say that the good is found only exceptionally while the evil things are the numerous and the lasting. However, we must realize that many of the evils to which persons are exposed are due to defects existing in the persons themselves. We seek relief from our faults; we suffer from evils which we inflict upon ourselves and we ascribe them to God. As it is written in the Book of Proverbs, "The foolishness of man perverteth his ways and his heart fretteth against the Lord."

Man must realize that God is good and that the evils of the world are man made. To rid the world of evil man must first recognize and believe in the goodness of God.

God's goodness has been revealed to man! It is inscribed in the testament of man — in the powers of his body, the skill of his hand, in his capacity to think, to feel, to aspire in his ability to communicate with his fellows, in his will to labor cooperatively at their side. It is written large and bold in the nobility of man's spirit.

This is a sign of the goodness of God — that there are men ready to surrender their comfort and their happiness out of the love for their fellows, pity for the suffering and devotion to high ideals.

This is a sign of the goodness of God—that hungering insatiably after truth, men will sacrifice themselves to attain it and possessing it, defend it with their lives.

This is the sign of the goodness of God — that men will be free, and being free, will not rest until freedom be the lot of all mankind.

Marines Hold Lines Against Red Assaults

Striking miners started returning to the pits Tuesday after John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers head, asked district union chiefs to call their men back to work. The surprise move came after Lewis had conferred with President Truman, who had urged Lewis to call off the strike "for the common good." A review is currently underway in the coal mines dispute.

The strike began when the Wage Stabilization Board refused to okay a contract calling for a $1.90-a-day pay boost. The WSB would allow only $1.50 a day, claiming that other 40 cents would feed inflation.

A former Army sergeant went on trial this week in New York on charges that he committed treason as a convert to an ancient Oriental religion. John D. Provoo, the defendant, faced the possibility of the death penalty if convicted. Witnesses from five nations are expected to be called to the stand.

Provoo, captured at Corregidor during World War II, allegedly shaved his head, donned the robes of the Buddhist priesthood and singled out American captives for Japanese brutality.

In the first day of the trial, the defense asked that the charges be dismissed "for lack of evidence." Defense lawyers also maintained that the crime—if one was committed — occurred in the war-torn Pacific, far from the jurisdiction of the Federal Court in New York.

Provoo is charged with 12 different counts of treason.

Report From Washington

Rotation Point Requirement Increased

BY AFPS

The number of points needed for a soldier to complete a tour of duty in Korea has been increased. However, front - line soldiers only need 36 points. The basic point system has not been changed, the Army announces. Points needed for "rotation" home from the Far East were increased from 36 to 38 for October, but officials said the total might change in November. It has remained at 36 with little change since the system was set up in August, 1951. Troops earn points per month at a rate based upon their closeness to combat. When a soldier accumulates the required number of points he is then placed on a list for those eligible for rotation. However, the actual rotation of an individual depends upon the flow of replacements from the States.

A new specialty, International Affairs Officer, will soon be added to the list of Air Force occupations. Functions of the specialty include formulating and carrying out policies connected with the Air Force Department of Defense, and U. S. politico-military affairs.

Service personnel who wish to ship their private automobiles to oversee stations on a "space available" basis on Military Sea Transport Service vessels will now be charged according to the weight of their car. Typical charges for shipping, computed on a "measurement ton" basis for the average vehicle, are as follows: East Coast ports to Europe, $266.25, East Coast to Japan, $465; California ports to Alaska, $210, and California to Japan, $394.50. In addition, there is a port handling charge of about $20 per auto.

A plan is being worked out for speedy mobilization of the nation's airlines in a national emergency. Better Reports Needed, AF Says Of Saucers

(Editor's Note: This is the third and final article in a series reprinted from the Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., "Air University Dispatch" dealing with an Air Force investigation of "flying saucers.")

Ionized clouds are believed to be the cause of some unidentified radar returns. Thunderstorm activity is identifiable by radar, and radar is used for the purpose of avoiding thunderstorms. In addition, radar has picked up many objects first reported as "unidentified phenomena" which were later identified as aircraft, birds, balloons, ice formations in the air, or other known aerial objects or manifestations.

No orders have been issued by the Air Defense Command to its fighter units to fire on unidentified aerial phenomena. The Air Defense Command is charged with air defense of the United States, and its mission is to attack anything airborne which is known or appears to be hostile. This should not be interpreted to mean that our pilots will fire haphazardly on anything that flies.

Attempts at interception are not made every time that unidentified images appear briefly on Air Force radar scope. Current Air Force interceptors are short - range, short-duration, high-speed aircraft and can be employed most effectively when it is possible to track a target by visual or radar means so that its position in the air at some future time may be predicted with a reasonable degree of accuracy.

The first step in evaluating sightings of unusual aerial phenomena is to collect all available data and check it against known airborne objects such as balloons, aircraft, missiles, meteors, and weather phenomena. If still unexplained, reports from reliable sources, with sufficient details, are turned over to specialists in various scientific fields for further analysis.

Need Better Reports

As stated earlier, there is a need for better reports from trained observers using adequate equipment. The Air Force intends to implement its present study with instruments wherever possible.

The recent development of special photographic equipment may make it possible to gather data hitherto unobtainable through ordinary photographic methods. This equipment consists of a diffraction grating camera which separates light into its component parts (spectrum) and registers them on film. The principle involved is that used by astronomers in determining the composition of the stars. In this manner Air Force scientists may be able to determine the characteristics of the phenomena and subsequently identify the source.

Telescopic Camera

Another proposal involves the use of a continuously operating Schmidt telescope equipped with a camera. This telescope has wide aperture lens and is capable of covering a cone of 150 degrees or nearly the whole sky from horizon to horizon. This equipment will make it possible to get on a series of photographic plates a complete record of what happens in the sky at night.

The Air Force has stated in the past, and reaffirms at the present time, that these unidentified aerial phenomena are not a secret weapon, missile or aircraft, developed by the United States. None of the three military departments nor any other agency in the government is conducting experiments, classified or otherwise, with flying objects which could be a basis for the reported phenomena. As far as is known there is nothing in them that is associated with material or vehicles that are directed against the United States, from another country or from other planets.

Ordnance Group Head Named

Col. Frazer W. Rodman of Harrisburg, Pa., has arrived here for duty as The Infantry Center ordnance officer.

He succeeds Major Harry C. Nagle, Jr., of Baltimore, Md., who will resume his duties as ordnance property officer.

Colonel Rodman commanded the Fuchu, Japan, Ordnance Depot before coming to Fort Benning.

He was assistant ordnance officer of First Army and later of Army Field Forces during World War II.

Col. Roman received his commission as a Reserve second lieutenant of ordnance in 1930 and was awarded a Regular Army commission in 1946. The new Infantry Center ordnance officer wears the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster. He has degrees from Cornell University and the University of Pennsylvania.

Motor Pool Holds Safety Meeting

About 300 people attended the monthly safety meeting at the Automotive department Monday evening.

A new safety film, "On Post Safety," was shown at the meeting. The film, which is the newest of its kind to come to Fort Benning, deals with all types of safety at a military post.

In dealing with the safe operation of a motor vehicle the film portrayed the attitude of the driver, showing that having an indifferent attitude toward safe driving can result in serious accidents.

Pfc. Jerry Glassman of the Special Services Section acted as master of ceremonies for the meeting, and Pfc. Lou Geisler of Special Services sang a few songs accompanied by Pfc. Marv Pakman of the 122nd Army Band.

Another Safety meeting will be held in November.

Ranger Talk Set By Retired General

Retired Major Gen. Terry Allen of El Paso, Texas, will speak Nov. 1 to the 53 officers graduating from The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

The Ranger officers course began last Sept. 8. Graduation exercises will be held in the Main Theater at 11 a.m.

Gen. Allen is a 1911 graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

He commanded the First Infantry and the 104th Infantry Divisions during World War II, and retired in 1946.

He holds the Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Bronze Star and Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

ASU Adopts CTC Program

A conduct consciousness program inaugurated by Combat Training Command has spread to other Infantry Center units concerned over maintaining high standards of off-duty conduct among military personnel.

The Area Service Unit Provisional Groups has adopted conduct consciousness as a part of its training schedule.

Col. Cortlandt K. Krams, group commander said the program was introduced in his unit to improve the conduct of all personnel. The program includes lectures and discussions with delinquent troops, a monthly lecture on the obligations and responsibility of citizenship and morality to all personnel and an interview with individuals returning from leave.

The conduct consciousness program is directed toward every soldier in the Provisional Group, Col. Krams declared.

"We want to make every man in the group conscious of his conduct at all times," he said. "We believe the program will stimulate the desire within each soldier to attain high standards of personal conduct and reduce delinquencies caused by improper conduct in nearby communities."

Posters and displays dealing with conduct consciousness are being placed in all Provisional Group dayrooms, explaining the aims and ideals of the program.

PFC. M. ZIEHLSDORF WITH RECOILLESS RIFLE
Served With German Navy During World War II

Former German Marine Now Training With 30th Infantry

A former German Marine Infantryman, who was decorated with the Iron Cross, is now training with the 30th Infantry Regiment.

He is Pfc. Manfred Arnold Franz Ziehlsdorf of Company E.

Pvt. Ziehlsdorf, who was born in Hanover, Germany, began his military career when he was drafted into the German Navy in 1944 and assigned to Marine - Infantry. He received basic training aboard an artillery boat stationed off the coast of Germany.

In the closing days of the European action, his unit, which consisted of untrained teenage boys, was moved to northwest Germany to fight the British.

Ziehlsdorf and two companions fled their unit to return home when a smuggled radio brought news of the occupation of Hanover and the imminent collapse of German forces.

After two weeks of moving through fields and along back roads and eating whatever they could find, the group reached home and surrendered to an ack-ack crew stationed in Ziehlsdorf's front yard.

Ziehlsdorf received the Iron Cross prior to his induction into service when he saved 10 people from a burning building during an air raid.

Following the war he studied engineering at Oldenburg and graduated with a junior degree.

In November, 1949, he entered the United States as an immigrant and lived with his aunt and uncle in Oshkosh, Wis. He was drafted into the Army in 1951 and trained at Camp Carson, Col., before being transferred to the 30th Infantry Regiment.

Library Tells Concert Plans

General Sets OC Speech

Major Gen. Edmund B. Sebree of Camp Chaffee, Ark., will be principal speaker at graduation ceremonies Oct. 31 for Infantry officer candidate class No. 34.

Eighty - four officer candidates are expected to be commissioned second lieutenants of Infantry at that time. They began the 22-week course May 23.

General Sebree, who now commands the Fifth Armored Division, is a 1918 graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. He has also attended the Naval War College and the Command and General Staff College.

General Sebree served in both the Pacific and European theaters during World War II. He was military attache to Australia in 1946 and commanded the U. S. Forces in Trieste in 1947.

He holds the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

Mr. Pace spoke of the programs in the Army to help a soldier's general well-being. He mentioned the Army's extensive education program in which 180,000 men and women enroll in courses from grade school through college; the information program to provide soldiers with facts necessary to an understanding of their responsibilities and the vast religious program which is a vital factor in building morale.

Pvt. Sets Organ Recital Series

The first of a series of three organ recitals will be given by Pvt. Eugene Hanock at the Main Post Chapel on Sunday, November 9 at 4 p.m.

Private Hancock, who is stationed with the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, began his formal study of the organ in 1945 and received his degree, Bachelor of Music in June, 1951, from the University of Detroit.

He became the organist of St. Phillips' Lutheran Church, Detroit, and later was chief organist and choirmaster of St. Titus Lutheran Church, Detroit.

Pvt. Hancock's first organ recital will feature the music of Bach Haendel, Vierne, Dupre, and Bedell.

His second recital on Nov. 16 will include "The Last Chord" by Sullivan; "Heroique Piece" by Franck, and "Come Soothing Death" by Bach.

The final recital given by Pvt. Hancock will be on Dec. 14 and will be composed of Christmas music and audience participation in the singing of Christmas carols.

Thunderjets Set Over-Sea Flight Record

Forty - seven F-84 Thunderjets recently completed the longest over-water flight ever made by single-engined jet fighters.

The record - breaking flight was made in a 2,500-mile dash from Midway Island to a northern Japan air base. The jets were timed at six hours two minutes, an average speed of more than 400 mph.

The jets began their 7,800-mile journey from Bergstrom AFB, Austin, Tex., with stops at Travis AFB, Calif., Honolulu, and Midway. Total elapsed flying time was 18 hours 12 minutes.

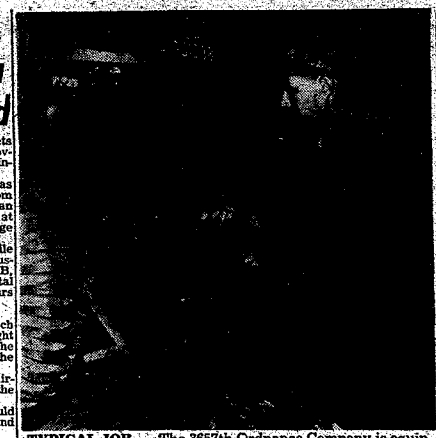
Just Make It

At least four of the planes which landed after the over - water flight had only minutes of fuel left. The tanks on one jet ran dry as the pilot taxied down the runway.

Col. Donald J. Blakeslee of Fairport Harbor, Ohio, leader of the flight, said upon landing:

"With enough refueling, you could fly a Thunderjet non-stop around the world."

The planes make up the 27th Fighter - Escort Wing from Texas and replace the 31st Wing which had been on duty in the air defense of Japan.—(AFPS)



TYPICAL JOB . . . The 3657th Ordnance Company is equipped to do almost any type of repair job, but much of its work pertains to automotive repair. Cpl. George R. Mayberry, an automotive mechanic in the unit, removes the wheel and brake drum from a jeep to make necessary repairs.

Wide Acclaim Given Special Shoe Program

Eighty-five per cent of the civilian employes required to wear special safety shoes are now wearing them, reports Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety director.

Evans said that all workers required to wear the shoes must have them by Jan. 1, 1953.

The special shoe is designed like any ordinary shoe except for a strong metal toe tip. This tip is strong enough to support many hundreds of pounds of weight and has proven successful in preventing a number of would-be accidents to workers.

The object of this phase of The Infantry Center's Safety Program is not only to protect the individual from injury, but also to cut down on the number of man-hours lost through accidents, Evans said.

Under this program some 1,363 civilian workers are required to wear the special-built shoes. Twenty additional workers have already ordered a pair of the shoes.

All workers who are required to wear the shoes must have them not later than Jan. 1, Mr. Evans reports.

Bulldozers Grow Wings To Help Soldiers Attack

Army engineers now can take to the air with a whole new line of heavy, earth-moving machinery to speed operations in forward battle areas.

When the U. S. Army is on the offensive—with fast tanks spearheading the drive—a good road network is necessary in order to keep them supplied with ammunition, fuel, and food. Fighter-bombers supporting the offensive also must have advanced airfields—and the closer to the armored spearheads the better.

Roads Vital

Without good roads and advanced airfields, the drive soon would roll to a dead stop.

As a result, air-transportability is the order of the day in the military development picture — and so-called "heavy" construction equipment is no exception.

Airborne tractors, dozers, cranes, graders, power shovels and other allied construction equipment — up to 16,000 pounds in weight—have been developed to lead the way in forward battle areas having limited landing facilities.

Designed to chew up the enemy's back yard—to build airfields and road nets—this equipment now can be air-lifted by relatively light aircraft to pave the way for progressively larger and heavier items flown in by larger and heavier aircraft.

Since Army Engineer operations in time of war may be worldwide, engineer equipment must be readily transportable. Design—dictated by tactical requirements — also must provide for ease in loading and unloading, lashing down while airborne, and immediate usage after landing.

Saw-Mill

Items designed to find their way — by air — to advance areas where construction problems are most urgent include an air-transportable land-clearing saw which can be transformed into a saw-mill in the field, a truck-mounted crane equipped with a one-third cubic yard shovel, a crawler tractor with a hydraulically-operated dozer blade, a four-cubic yard hydraulically-operated scraper, and a steel drum road-roller with retractable wheels for road maintenance.

This equipment — all within the 16,000 pound limitation—was designed to be air-transported by the C-123 cargo plane. Equipment weighing up to 20,000 pounds can be air-lifted by the C-119, while 50,000-pound equipment will be sky-expressed via the C-124.

Off-Limits List Released by PM

NATO Nations Select M-1 Rifle

PARIS (AFPS) — The U.S. Army's .30-caliber Grand rifle has been chosen the standard infantry weapon for North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations after 12 months of Anglo-American competition.

The British .28 - caliber, championed by Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill of England, was considered the equal of the M-1 as an automatic weapon, but its "stopping power" was not as great.

NATO also announced Great Britain's 50 - ton Centurion tank, France's 81-mm mortar, and the U.S. 155-mm howitzer have been accepted as standard weapons. Korea - tested American planes, British Venoms and Swifts, and French Mysteres IV aircraft will staff the alliance's air arm.

Sgt. Sells Himself On Jump Training

After "selling" airborne to new recruits for the last 18 months, Sfc. Herbert S. Thornehill of Company A, Airborne Battalion, decided to find out about it firsthand.

A former recruiting sergeant in El Paso, Texas, the sergeant spent his time lauding the jump service. When the Army closed his office he decided to take Airborne training himself.

The ex-Navy and El Paso policeman is currently completing his training and expects to be assigned to an airborne unit.

SIXTY YARDS TO GO. From atop the hill, near Munye-ri, Korea, the enemy suddenly opened up a barrage. The squad was trapped. Lieutenant Rodriguez (then Pfc., with only seven months service) broke loose and dashed up the slope. Disregarding the fire concentrated on him, he wiped out three foxholes and two gun emplacements. Alone, he accounted for 15 enemy dead, led the rout of the enemy, and saved the lives of his squad.

"When you have to take chances to reach an objective, that's O.K.," says Lieutenant Rodriguez. "But when you can find a surer way, so much the better.

"That's why I was glad when I heard that people like you own nearly 50 billion dollars in U. S. Defense Bonds. I believe that a strong, peaceful America is our objective. And the sure way to reach it is through backing our strength with your strength by investing in Bonds now!"

FOUR TIMES Sergeant Lee's platoon had taken, then lost, the hill near Ip-o-ri. On the fifth try, the sergeant, though hurt, was leading. A Red grenade hit him, seriously wounding both legs. Refusing assistance, he advanced by crawling, rising to his knees to fire. He caught a rifle bullet in the back. Still he wouldn't be stopped. Finally, with 12 survivors of his platoon, he took the hill, then let the stretcher-bearers carry him away. Today Sergeant Hubert Lee says:

"In thirteen years of soldiering, I've seen brave enemies defeated—because things had collapsed back home. That's why I can appreciate what a good thing it is when people like you buy United States Defense Bonds.

"I'm told that you, and millions of others, own a total solid investment of 50 billion dollars in our country's Defense Bonds. That's good! That's strength! A man can face a hill when he knows that people like you are keeping our homeland strong."

Army's 'Peeping Tom' Radar Pin-Points Foe

Radar — the Army's invisible detective which put its electronic finger on the moon—now is putting the finger on Communist troops in Korea.

More than six years ago, scientific history was made when the Army Signal Corps hit the moon with a beam to establish the first man-made contact with that celestial body.

Gets New Jobs

Since then, the amazing electronic instrument has tackled new jobs with gratifying results. Originally designed to detect approaching enemy aircraft, radar now is being used in Korea to penetrate the enemy's iron curtain. It is revealing enemy troop and vehicle movements and mortar and artillery locations, pinpointing them so that American artillery and aircraft can destroy them.

Other Uses

Today — in addition to revealing the location, course and speed of approaching aircraft—radar has many other uses, including:

1. Automatic aiming of guns.
2. Mortar and artillery locating.
3. Detection of moving troops and vehicles.
4. Guided missiles detection and tracking.
5. Identification of aircraft, friend or foe.
6. Weather forecasting and detection.
7. Navigation and survey.
8. Scientific studies.

Speed of Light

Modern radar, which made its dramatic operational debut during World War II, does its detecting at the speed of light—186,000 miles per second.

Like light, the pulses of radio energy travel in a straight line and when they strike an object—such as an approaching aircraft—the pulse is reflected back to its source just as a mirror reflects light rays.

By measuring the time interval between the outgoing pulse and the return reflection, or echo, it is possible to compute the distance between the radar set and the object contacted.

Accuracy

It is so accurate that—at a five mile range—it predicts the point in space where a plane will be when an anti-aircraft shell arrives, with a maximum error of 25 yards.

It is so accurate that—at a five mile range—it predicts the point in space where a plane will be when an anti-aircraft shell arrives, with a maximum error of 25 yards in distance and two-tenths of a degree from right to left.

When a radar set looks at a stationary target—such as a bridge or a building—range can be predicted within two yards.

With pinpoint accuracy, radar is putting its electronic finger on enemy mortar and artillery locations, bringing devastating death to hidden enemy gun installations.

Money Picked From Trees In 3rd Army

The Army is "picking money off the trees" for the American taxpayer.

Army officials saved the taxpayer more than $4,000,000 (M) during the past four years by selling timber and pulpwood and salvaging lumber. The wood came from 867,218 acres in the southeastern part of the United States.

Enough lumber has been cut from Army reservations in the area during the past four years to build 16,000 five-room frame houses—a total of 175,572,337 (M) board feet. In addition, 120,000 cords of pulpwood came out of the Army's forests.

Salvaged lumber was sold from areas cleared for troop training purposes or killed by fires and insects.

Within eight years, Third Army forest products to be cut are expected to yield nearly $5,000,000 (M) a year for the U. S. Treasury.

Savings to the taxpayers should reach $8,000,000 (M) by 1957.

To get this return on its forests, the Army plans to spend about $400,000 a year for labor, supplies, administration of its forestry program and protection against costly fire.

Colonel Frank L. Elder, commander of the 30th Infantry, made the presentations.

Two States Set K-Vet Bonuses

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Two states, Vermont and Michigan, have authorized next of kin bonuses for veterans of the Korean conflict. Vermont also provides a bonus for veterans.

Honorably discharged veterans from enlisted status, who are residents of the state of Vermont receive $10 for each month of duty up to a maximum of $120. Next of kin of men killed in action receive $120. Next of kin of veterans who die after discharge will receive the amount earned by his service in Korea.

Cooperation Keynotes Election Return Tie-Up

(ANF)—Who won the election? American soldiers — whether in Alaska, or Eritrea, Korea or Germany — will get a fast answer to that question this year.

From Ankara to Seoul, from Manila to Heidelberg, from Saigon to Trieste, soldier interest in the national election is at the same fever pitch as civilian interest within the United States.

"Is it Adlai or Ike?" That's the question American soldiers around the world are asking.

Speedy Answer

And they will get the answer just as fast as television viewers, radio listeners, and newspaper readers in the United States.

The Army Signal Corps' vast communications network and Troop Information and Education facilities will carry up-to-the-minute election news to American soldiers throughout the world beginning immediately after the polls close November 4. Not only will this network give them the answer to the number one question, but it also will tell them how the trend goes in each state, and who wins election to the Senate and House.

Press Cooperation

The three major press associations — Associated Press, United Press and International News Service — have agreed to supply the Army their election news in order to keep soldiers everywhere informed.

The New York Bureau of European Stars and Stripes, one of the Army's, two biggest newspapers, will prepare reports and transmit them to Washington. There the Army Signal Corps will relay it to major units throughout the world, and from there they will be transmitted to smaller Army units everywhere.

More than 200 unit newspapers and 72 Army radio stations will work around the clock, getting the news to the soldiers. In addition, many small units without newspapers will publish mimeograph bulletings for distribution.

Priority Set

While the Army's communications system will be used, military messages will take priority over election news.

This represents the first time the Army has attempted such mammoth election coverage. It resulted from a telephone call by Sid Gans, New York Bureau Chief of STARS AND STRIPES, to the Army's Troop Information and Education Division in Washington. Gans said that while STARS AND STRIPES would go all out to get the news to soldiers, he knew many were out of reach of his paper. He asked whether TI&E could lend a hand. It could. So could the Signal Corps. As a result, soldiers everywhere will get the news while it is news.

Recruiting Officer, TIC Officials Confer Here

First Lt. Fred Bartlett of Third Army's Military Personnel Procurement Section was here last week conferring with Infantry Center officials on the Army's reenlistment program.

He visited the Adjutant General's Section, and the Military Personnel Division and conferred with company commanders and first sergeants of the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, First Student Brigade, Combat Training Command and 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

A recruiting booklet designed to facilitate the recruiting program, is being prepared for distribution to company commanders in the Third Army area, Lt. Bartlett said. It will contain answers to questions regarding reenlistment.

Pencils Sub For Paints For Soldier-Artist Patient

A soldier-patient in the U. S. Army Hospital keeps himself and his fellow patients busy sketching their portraits with colored pencils.

Pvt. Andrew H. Kurzmann, of Battle Creek, Mich., was a commercial artist in civilian life. He is recuperating from a recent illness.

Before entering the Army, Kurzmann operated a small studio in Detroit for two years and specialized in oil portraits, but patients in his ward at the hospital think he does equally well with a colored pencil.

He picked up the knack for painting portraits while still in high school and entered the Meinginger Art School at the Detroit Institute of Arts to further his training.

Kurzmann majors in any kind of commercial and fine art, but likes to stick with his specialty, pastels and oils, as much as possible.

CTC-Rams Clash Sunday

Two Champs Go Tonight In Top Fites

The big and little of Fort Benning boxing—but only the best, for sure—will be offered in co-features of a nine bout amateur card starting at 8 oclock tonight at Briant Wells Field House.

Fann was runner-up in this year's All-Army tournament after winning the 1951 Chicago Golden Gloves crown and defeating the New York GG winner for the so-called national championship.

Bloody Battle

Robinson slaughtered Law Barnes in two bloody brawls here, but was the victim of an amazing form reversal in losing to Gene White two weeks ago. The bout was the most popular of the season with some 1,500 fans present.

Fann, of First Student Regiment, is the choice, with his amazing record which includes three one-round kayoes in winning the 3-A title last spring.

George Allen, wil-o-the-wisp onetime Army bantamweight champion, fights Nori Kawasaki, the only Fort Benning fighter ever to beat him, in the co-feature.

Georgeous George, 117 pounds of perfectly coordinated fighting machine from ASU Provisional Group, has twice faced Kawasaki, a former Golden Glover from Chicago now with 508th Airborne.

A Stunning Upset

Kawasaki smashed Allen to the deck with a hard left to the jaw in their first meeting last spring and went on to score a stunning upset.

But in their return match it was Allen who put on a flawless exhibition of ring savvy to outpoint Kawasaki. Both boys have a healthy respect for each other, but Allen will be the favorite tonight.

Middleweight Go

Leon Hall, 1952 post light middleweight champion, has been matched with Freeman Thatcher, fellow best middleweight in another ringding feature tonight. This one was scheduled last Thursday, but was passed by the medics when Hall showed high blood pressure.

Hall doesn't seem to be anything really wrong with the lanky Georgian, except that he gets very nervous on the day of a fight. They were slated to hold a

Wave Sends Off Faubion, 28-21

ISD-ASU football is under new management today, but if the Greenies produce for their new mentor, Harold Manley, like they did for their retiring boss, Jack Faubion, there ary going to continue to be red faces in the Fort Benning Football League.

This is the story of the 28-21 going-away present the unrelenting Green Wave huskies gave Faubion at the expense of a highly favored 508th Airborne on the eve of his return to civilian life.

And this is one time that the last paragraph of the story is the one that tells all. Everyone who participated—we should be the first, it was a team victory all the way.

"Fast For Me"

"No stars. No individuals. They wanted to win their one just for me, and they did," shouted Faubion in the dejected after-game confusion on the Doughboy Stadium green.

This was probably the most sentimental statement ever attributed to the bald, 32-year old former Oklahoma A & M fullback, who thus is able to pack his ol' kit bag this week with a mark of eight victories, no losses and four ties. That includes a victory over the Air Force in the 1951 Geechee Bowl at Savannah, a triumph he attained as mentor of Special Troops' Rams.

The Greenies had every reason to be excited about this win. Severely battle - scarred from previous weekends, they were outdone

Ulcers on the half shell should be the main dish again when Special Troops' Rams lock horns with Combat Training Command and comet George Bell at 2 p.m. Sunday at Doughboy Stadium.

Rams figure one to two touchdown favorites, but breathes there man with soul so bold as to pick any team in the zany Fort Benning Football League until the final whistle has been tooted loudly?

(Two of five games to date have been ties. Only one contest has been decided by more than a two TD margin.)

Bell CTC Team

Cold facts dictate the Rams here, however. CTC has yet to give an all out account of its potential, and only Bell, their high-stepping left half, has been keeping them in the race.

The Commanders have a total offense of 494 yards for their two league contests and 369 of these came from the broken field sprinting of the former Indiana University and Third Army track whiz.

Bell is a show in himself, but it stands to reason that playing Coach Cecil Dickerson will have evolved some new wrinkles in his attack to give him a hand, and if he has discovered a detonator finally the Commanders could explode in a big way behind their hulking line.

At Top Strength

CTC will be about at peak strength except for regular center John Yerby who has a hand fracture and will move over to a tackle slot.

The Rams also have a slight casualty list, Star end Vern Fahrenbrug is out with an elbow fracture, and center Mike Moropolous has been lost to an overseas assignment.

Depth plays heavily in the favor of Coach Gus Dielens, however. He is replacing Moropolous with Bill Stetter, who earned All - America laurels at Holy Cross.

He still has the best quartet of ends in the loop in Vern Griffin, a regular from '51, Fred Dreyspring, of Mississippi State, Linton Jordan, of Alabama, and Paul Schuelke.

They can take passes from Al Buckles, the league's second best passing quarterback and a cool customer under fire.

Dielens has a half dozen backs of about equal capabilities. Don Stump; Paul Secrist, little Joe Fangonis, John Mackie and Al Dervin have each averaged between four and five yards on every carry. It's hard to stop a two-platoon team, which can keep rushing in fresh subs on both offense and defense.

They also have halfbacks Bob Moreland and Harry Gibbons, late of the Detroit Lions, who are due for a hot streak.

If the Rams get out of this one unscratched they are going to be hard to collar in the latter half of the campaign.

The Spencer High school band of Columbus will be featured at halftime along with Benning's own 122nd Army Band. Admission is free.

Fans Select Rams & Bell In Grid Poll

Football fans at Doughboy Stadium Sunday, when asked by Bayonet reporters Les Dinoff and Bobby Rushing chose Special Troops' Rams as the most likely winner of the Fort Benning Football League crown and George (Ding Dong) Bell, of CTC, as their favorite player.

Even though it was a 508th Airborne-ISD-ASU crowd, fifteen votes were cast for the Rams, four each for the 508th and ISD-ASU, and one for CTC to win the 1952 title.

Bell, the Commander's big ground - gainer, received eight votes, while Paul Bucey, Red Devils halfback received five, one

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Cpl. Charles Johnson—

JACK FAUBION can go UP to Texas happy now, after his ISD-ASU eleven pulled the greatest comeback since Rip Van Winkle in downing 508th Airborne to go into a tie for first place in the Fort Benning Football League. Most people would go OUT to Texas, but then Faubion doesn't want to endanger his reputation of not being topped by his post contemporaries.

While ol' Black Jack is going over his discharge papers this week, (and the barber going over his head in frustration), rival mentors are going over his past performance charts in an effort to discover a clue to his magic gridiron touch.

"There are no super secrets with me," modesty confessed Faubion, who is suspected of being related to Houdini on his mother's side. "You're welcome to watch our practices anytime."

To which 508th Coach Jim Phillips could have replied, "No thanks, professor. Keep your loaded cigars," as he feigned nonchalance on the sidelines Sunday, calmly smoking a cucumber and looking as cool as a cigar.

There is no question that that was a team victory Sunday. Charlie (My Boy) Leonard's flinging passed all tests, including the Yale entrance exams. Neal McNeill, whose mother apparently was so impressed she named him twice, recovered three fumbles at opportune moments. Then there was Otis Ramseur, whose name is a household football word for ten-feet all around the Green Wave dressing room. Otis intercepted a 508th lateral and ran 30 yards for the touchdown that tied the game and set the stage for a Bill Stern finish. 'Call it fate, but Ramseur was a sub guard whom Faubion inserted as a defensive halfback on a gamble.)

Team victory, yes, but superbly master - minded by Faubion from start to finish. Who but the Oklahoma Oracle would have used a 508th stock-in-trade play to beat the Red Devils at their own game. It was Phillips' much-publicised double wing spread from which Leonard was pitching. The idea was to get him a few yards more behind the line of scrimmage, away from enemy linemen who sand-bagged him two weeks ago. At that, the former Stone State (Miss.) High school whiz took quite a beating.

"I'm afraid I have a bad right knee," he said Monday in the same modest voice in which he requested the other players on the team be given the writeups. "It's a recurrance of an old injury."

"The smartest thing you did Sunday," chimed in a team mate, "was run out of bounds to keep from being smeared on that play where you were forced to run the ball."

"I know," chuckled the ASU separation center personnel clerk. "The crowd booed, but I knew it was me who was gonna have to quarterback the rest of that game—not them."

The 508th's downfall was their lack of pass defense. They intercepted only one of Charlie's 40 aerials. In fact, some of the Red Devils appear misplaced in the Army. They were so much at sea that it would seem they could qualify immediately for their first mate's papers in the Navy. Seriously, use of a zone defense instead of man-to-man against Leonard's pin point shots was the real answer. The ISD-ASU ends were working the button-hook and the 508th defenders wouldn't come up to intercept them.

Figures being able to prove anything (except that you don't owe taxes to the government), the Greenies stopped two four 508th surges in the crucial third quarter by dropping from an eight-man line into a 6-3-2 defense to contain the ever dangerous Bill Dietz, Caird Currie, Crayton Mast and Paul Bucey. That left Bob Boeh, who also played offense, alone as safety man to stop any who got through. It was another calculated risk Faubion took and got away with.

Dispensing with the foregoing fidding, however, both teams put on performances that sent the large crowd home feeling they had seen the best game of the season. I'd like to write a winning story about every coach player and team in this fine football circuit, but so far I haven't figured a way for all four squads to finish first. That's too bad.

Benning To Box Jax Naval Team

Fort Benning's amateur boxers will get their first major test of the 1952-53 campaign when they meet a team from Jacksonville Naval Air Station Dec. 18 at Briant Wells Field House.

The tentative date for the inter-post ring competition was announced Friday by Maj. Gene Myers, sports officer.

Benning hopes to attract other outside competition between now and next spring when post champions will be selected to represent us in the Third Army tournament.

Squads Strengthened

Meantime, all units are strengthening their squads in an effort to make a strong bid for the post ring crown in the next four months. Both novice and experienced fighters are being accepted by athletic and recreation officers in all major units.

RING-LETS: Claude Chapman, FECOM light heavyweight champ who has been fighting for ASU, has been discharged. . . Look for ASU's Ben Robinson, who has been jilted out of the heavyweight contention, to drop his poundage to make a bid for the post light heavy title. . . Len James, Third Army lightweight champ, from First SR, has dropped down to featherweight for the time being, at least. . . Roscoe Chapman is the first boxer to show up from Provisional Medical Group this season. . . He debuts tonight. . . Harry Bress is now coaching the 508th Airborne ring team. . . Bantamweight champ George Allen, of ASU, due for discharge in a month. . . Wanted badly: One excellent referee to try to fill the shoes of soon departing Jim (Moon) Mullins, probably the best third man this post ever had.

Heard Fires 66 to Win USAH Golf

Maj. John Heard of Orthopedic Service, U. S. Army Hospital, turned on the heat and fired one of the best rounds of his life to run away with the Annual Hospital Handicap Golf Tournament last week at the Fort Benning Country Club's links.

Heard toured the 18-hole course in 36-40-80, which combined with his 14 handicap, produced a net of 66 which won him the trophy with three strokes to spare.

Runner-up was Capt. Page Follo with 84-15-69, while Capt. James Roorda was third with 89-17-72.

A "blind bogey" was run in conjunction with the handicap tourney and the winning number was 75, which was shared by three, Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Lt. Daniel Hankey and Roorda.

Pro-Fighter Now Student In 1st Stud. Regt.

An outstanding personality in the 24th Company, First Student Regiment, is 1st Lt. Norman E. Ryan, a Greensboro, N. C. professional boxer who has fought some 100 or more bouts.

Ryan has met such top pugilists as Beau Jack, former lightweight champion, Ronny Harper, Freddy Dawson, Steve Belloise, and Don Simiboldi. He defeated Beau Jack and Harper, fought to a draw with Dawson, but was on the losing end in the Belloise and Simiboldi scraps.

Starting his ring career in 1935 Ryan won the North and South Carolina Golden Gloves in 1936 and turned pro in 1937, still a senior in high school. Just what his record is, is unknown to Ryan. But he thinks he won 75 per cent of his fights.

25th Company Wins OC Battalion Softball

The softball team of 25th Officer Candidate Company copped the championship of the First Officer Candidate Battalion, First O. C. Regiment, with a forfeit win over the Third O. C. Company.

Forfeit Wins Awarded In SR Touch Football

The 122nd Company and the 104th Company won forfeit games last week over the 103rd Company and the 110th, respectively, in Second Student Regiment touch football competition.

Idaho Golfer Enrolled As OC

The amateur golf champion of Idaho in 1950 is in training with 26th Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment.

At the age of 18, Candidate Duane Roberts won the title in playoffs from Marlan Hiskey, nationally known amateur golfer.

"I just happened to be lucky that day," he recalls. "I had entered the tourney since I was 11 years old, but when I was matched against Hiskey for the playoffs I thought that was as far as I would go. I guess I surprised myself than anyone else."

Roberts entered the University of Colorado in the fall of 1950 to study journalism. He dropped out of school after one-and-a-half years and enlisted in the Army.

Now 20 years old, the candidate plans to return to the University of Colorado to complete his journalism major after separation from the Army. He also plans to become a professional golfer.

All-Army Football Team Ballots In Army Times

Selection of the 1952 All-Army football team is now under way with ballots printed in every edition of the Army Times.

Army football fans and coaches are encouraged to vote. All service football players are eligible candidates.

Kolb And Knight Take TIC Shoot

Capt. John W. Kolb, a company commander in the First Officer Candidate Regiment, and WOJG Robert E. Knight of I.S.D. captured top honors in The 1952 Infantry Center Rifle and Pistol tournament respectively, held last week at the post's McAndrew and Coursen Ranges.

Kolb, a member of the victorious Army rifle team which participated in the 1952 National Rifle Championships here in August, edged out Capt. Renaldo N. Delsignore of ISD by six points, 590 to 584. Top possible score was 630.

Knight, a member of the Army Pistol team and a steady winner at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's monthly shoots, fired a 679 out of a possible 800 to beat M-Sgt. Colbert Caldwell of CTC who ended up with a 674.

The 508th Airborne RCT, which have been practicing for the shoot for some time, scored 2,852 points to win the rifle team competition while an ISD quintet scored 3,325 to win the team pistol match.

The Combat Training Command gained second place in both events, firing a 2,828 in rifle marksmanship and a 3,283 in the pistol.

Headed by SFC. Willis Powell and PFC. Cecil Doss, the Airborne marksman out lasted the CTC by 24 points in the rifle shoot. Third in the tourney was ISD with 2,793 points. The First Student Brigade with 2,755, ASU with 2,461 and Provisional Medics with 2,336.

The ISD hand gun artists, headed by Knight who fired a 691, outshot the CTC pistoleers with a score of 3,325 to 3,283. 508th was third with 3,229; First Student Brigade fourt with 3,170; Provisional Medics fifth with 1,838.

Awards Given

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, commanding general,presented the trophy awards and medals to the winners Friday evening in Briant Wells Field House.

Lt. Col. Gordon Hammond, head range officer and Executive Officer of the tournament, was congratulated by Gen. Young for making the shoot a success.

In a short speech to the sharpshooters and guests, Gen. Young stressed the importance of marksmanship training and could not fully emphasize the importance of proper rifle training for all Army personnel.

Hoppe Wins Bloody Bout; Chiles Loses

Heavyweight George Hoppe of First Student Regiment used his seven pound weight advantage to score a three round decision over Albert Wogsch of 508th Airborne in the mainliner of last Thursday's amateur boxing bouts at Briant Wells Field House before a crowd of nearly 2,000 fans.

Weighing 192., Hoppe, who hails from Wisconsin, sprung out of his corner like a tiger and proceeded to batter Wogsch about finally knocking him into the timekeeper's lap in the final seconds of the first round.

Bloody Noses

The Red Devil boxer recuperated in the second canto with a terrific exchange of lefts and rights that brought the fans to their feet cheering and applauding. Both fighters, with blood dripping from their noses, came out of their corners for the third very tired, but Hoppe just pushed Wogsch all over the ring, using his weight difference fully.

Light middleweight Gordon Van Loo, 156, of First S.R., decked Rudolph Chiles, 155, of ASU, three times during the first round to score a knockout. Chiles had been the top ranking middleweight on post.

Other Bouts

In the other fights on the card, Elmer Blair, 147, CTC decisioned William Russell, 144, ASU; Charles DeForte, 142, ASU, decisioned Floyd Wright, 146, 508th; David Carter, 144, ASU, decisioned Walter Townsell, 138, ASU, exhibition; Carl Mayers, 162, CTC, and Thomas Bridges, 165, CTC, were stopped for not trying in the second round by Referee Jim Mullins.

Boxing Standings

(Points are awarded on a 5-4-3-2-1 basis to the winning fighters in each of the five amateur classes. Fighters are divided into classifications according to their experience, the best men rated class one, and on down to the raw novice in class five.)

Gen. Hodge Commends 4 USA Rifle Team Members

Gen. John R. Hodge, chief of Army Field Forces, has awarded Certificates of Achievement to four Infantry Center soldiers who participated in the Nataional Service Rifle championships fired here Aug. 27 - Sept. 2.

General Hodge expressed his appreciation in personal letters to Lt. Col. Frank L. Barnett, captain of the Army team; Capt. James McCubbin, coach; WOJG Conis Brown assistant coach and Lt. Rufus C. Brock, member of the team.

In the letter to Colonel Barnett, General Hodge expressed his appreciation for the colonel's "outstanding work as captain of the 1952 team and for the excellent record made by the team during the matches.

"The superb performance of your team is ample evidence of your skill in marksmanship and reflects the conscientious application of this hard-earned skill," the general wrote.

Sports writers class the service rifle match as a showdown between the Army and the Marines for America's armed forces marksmanship crown. Sponsored by Congress, the match is fired exclusively with the service rifle and service ammunition — the same rifle and ammunition used by every soldier.

In the national team trophy championship match, the Army team scored 948 of a possible 1,000 to finish ahead of the 29 Marine, civilian, Army - area and National Guard squads. By doing this, the all-Army squad became the service rifle champions in the work series of rifle enthusiasts.

The men were praised for their painstaking effort and self-training required in making such a commendable showing. General Hodge' letter said, "Since this is the first time the M-1 rifle has been used in this match, is it particularly gratifying that partly through your efforts the Army sets the pace for the services."

Wiselogle And Parr Win Scotch Foursome

Maj. Barney Wiselogle and Mrs. Billy Parr paired off to win the Scotch Foursome tournament at the Fort Benning Country Club with a low gross score of 74, while Capt. Lippman and Mrs. Gloria Ellers were low net winners with a score of 64.

A turkey tournament, in honor of Thanksgiving Day, is now underway at the Country Club links.

The teams are composed of eight men from all units on post, but only five kegiers are allowed to participate in the match. Each unit is allowed to have more than one team.

GRID GOSSIP

BY LESTER DINOFF

Coach JACK FAUBION of the Green Wave leaves Fort Benning with an unbeatable record of eight victories, no losses and four ties. The Groesbeck, Tex., High coach was congratulated, along with coach JIM PHILLIPS of the 508th, by referee TOM SMITH of Union, Tenn., for playing one of the cleanest games seen in a long time.

The 508th had a cavorting Red Devil clown, BOB FOLEY of the Medical Company, bouncing around the sidelines . . . MIKE RALEY, son of the Devils' chaplain, was a miniature edition of one of Phillips' ballplayers . . . The Jordan High band which won the American Legion championship entertained lustily during halftime.

LARRY GOINS, Greenie end, went on a 21-day furlough to recuperate from the injury he suffered in the CTC clash . . . JACK HENDRIX, fullback and kicker for the Wave, was discharged and admitted that he received bids from Maryland and University of Baltimore . . . JACK WILSON, sporting a cast on his hand and RAY KEUNTZEL also was recently discharged.

BOB BOEH and HAROLD LONG played their last game for the ISD-ASU combo for both, now getting their walking papers from Uncle Sam this week . . . CHARLIE (MY BOY) LEONARD was smeared only four times behind the line of scrimmage during Sunday's fracas. In the CTC game, the Greenie ¼ back was dropped six times.

Two of the outstanding 508th players on offense were BILL DIETZ and CAIRD CURRIE and the defensive greats were PAT LOCKMAN and BILL BUZA . . . MORRIS CORBIN, who was taken taken to the hospital during the game, is out with a dislocated elbow . . . GIL DOWNEY is out for the rest of the season with a bad knee . . . BILL REDMOND, one of the fastest men on the Devils, is a question mark as to whether he will play again . . . All teams still need players.

Expected to see Faubion don a suit and get into the game when the Devils started their drive Sunday was Bascuil's Leonard, who improved considerably, quickly put out the fire with his pitching arm . . . CHARLIE PARKER, former PIO, radio chief is now on the ISD-ASU eleven . . . BOB HARPER has been told to lay off football by the Cleveland Indians, who own him . . . Baseball's loss.

HAROLD MANLEY, who takes over the coaching reins of the Green Wave, was a track star during high school and college where he ran the 100 and 220. He also coached his own independent basketball team between football seasons . . . Did the fans notice the new sideline and yardage markers around the Doughboy gridiron?

Belated condolences from Bayonet staffers to ELLEN GUINN of the Special Services staff on the loss of her husband . . . TRAVIS HUDSON, able assistant to GENE MEYERS, is due for discharge next month . . . Football banquet plans already being made with prospect of a name speaker to tmcee . . . SID - ASU Defensive whizzes ANDY HOLLAND and HARRY MANTZOURANIS suffered bad sprains in Sunday's game, but should be ready for the next game.

Two of the new additions to the Rams are CHARLIE STEWART, former Denver University halfback in '50 and '51, and ERNEST CATES who was an offensive guard for the Oklahoma Aggies during the car campaign. Also, NORMAN RAFT, halfback, from Pittsburgh and Fresno State was added.

CLARENCE (WHAT SAY BEBE?) HOWARD's shrill voice heard during the Rams scrimmages. Plays a terrific game on defense . . . KEN MILLER is in training for the first string center job since MIKE MOROPOULOS is on FECOM orders . . . BILL THUSTON was a member of the undefeated 1950 Wofford College football eleven that made the trip to the Cigar Bowl . . . WALLY TRIPLETT gets discharged Nov. 2.

HARRY MANTZOURANIS, ANDY HOLLAND and FRED FELBAUM all paid visits to the base hospital after the Greenie-Devils 28-21 game . . . BUCK ADAMS, who was wheeled off the playing field on a stretcher had a short lived rest for as soon he reached the bench, he got up and walked to a seat.

Manley Assumes Duties As Green Wave Mentor

The most curious and interesting thing about Harold Manley former University of Alabama football hero who takes over the coaching reins of the ISD-ASU Green Wave from Black Jack Faubion, is that he does not consider any player outstanding or "great."

In his vein of thought, all players are equal although some grid stars are better suited for the game. Usually a coach is asked by sportswriters after a game which player was best on offense and defense, but Manley thinks that no one should be singled out for praise. If praise is given a player, the other ten men on the field who played their hearts out would feel slighted.

Right Off Campus

Entering the Army as a second lieutenant straight off the Alabama campus and in the prime of condition, the 25-year-old coach decided, with Faubion's permission, that he would actively participate in Greenie football games besides acting as assistant coach. In a pre-season game at Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., he injured his left leg on the first play of the second quarter on a run from fullback. Manley is a versatile football player having played fullback, quarterback, guard and end during his Winfield, Ala., high school and college gridiron days.

Knows Football

Having a thorough knowledge of football before coming to Benning, Manley learned a lot under Black Jack about coaching football and how to judge a player's reaction during a game. Whether or not he will again don the green and white uniform is a vague question for he still hobbles around with the bad leg and to Manley, coaching is a full time job.

Gets Pro Bid

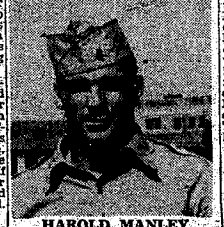
Upon graduation from Alabama, Manley received a letter from the Pittsburgh Steelers about a playing job, but the 190 - pound, 5 foot, 11 inch player did not consider it. However, his future plans are bemuddled for he is on a two-year tour of duty and what he will do after discharge is uncertain. He may decide to accept one of the high school or junior college coaching jobs that he has been offered.

Players Approve

At a meeting of the Greenies last week, Faubion officially announced that Manley was taking over the head coach chores and that he expected the players to give him the same support that they are giving to him. One of the backfield stars told me afterwards that Manley received a willing group of men, but a number of the players hope that he will improve his coaching and instructional methods.

Starts in Middle

Taking over a coach in the middle of the season is not an easy chore. There is that old saying of do not change horses in the middle of the stream. But you can not expect anyone to stay longer in the Army than is required. Manley takes over a team with a record of one win, no losses, but two ties. Some of the players that Faubion, and now he, depended on are on the injured list or have have been discharged. Larry Goins who figured heavily in the defensive setup as end was injured in the CTC game and is out for the remainder of the season. Frank Depaolo is hospitalized with a busted rib. Jack Hendrix discharged. Bobby Boeh and Harold Long are due to be discharged sometime this week. And in the following weeks before the season is completed, more of the vital personnel will be discharged. Boeh, according to Manley, was an important man on defense as linebacker and blocker. The Greenies will be "hurtin" unless some more talent from ISD and ASU come out for football.



HAROLD MANLEY
. . New Greenie Coach

Equal Chance to All

All the players on the squad had an equal chance for first string jobs, but they did not fit into Black Jacks plans and they have been warming the bench. Manley, feels and intends to use every man on the squad in a game unless they are injured.

The former Navyman, having served for 18 months at the end of World II, feels that the Green Wave will roll for him and he appreciates the support that the players give him and that the fans gives his club. He in turn will try to maintain a top-notch football team, even though the personnel leave or are injured.

Cook Leads 114th Touch Football Team To 18-0 Victory

The 144th Company carved out an 18-0 victory over the 122nd in a Second Student Regiment touch football game.

Bob Cook, ex-Oklahoma Aggie star, was the winners' sparkplug on both offense and defense and scored one touchdown. 230-pound Howard Johnson, who played for San Barbara branch of the University of California, topped the 114th line play. Johnson was named to the Little All-Coast team in 1950.

The 104th Company was awarded a forfeit win over the 103rd.

Dietz To Coach Is Perfect Grid Player

BY JAMES BUCK

A steamrolling halfback on the football field and a bashful, unassuming paratrooper off the gridiron, is Bill Dietz, the 508th Airborne player and one of the most liked men you will find anywhere.

Dietz has the reputation among his teammates of being a quiet, soft-spoken guy, but get him in a ball game or on the bench, watch out for he does a complete reverse and becomes a "holler guy." In the game he is the ideal coach's player for he never questions a decision by the coach or the quarterback's call of a play.

A unanimous All-Post selection for fullback last year, Big Bill was moved to halfback this year by Coach Jim Phillips. When he first found out about the move, his thoughts were of the team, not of himself. "Crayton Mast will make a great fullback," he said, "I hope that I can work out of the halfback slot."

Dietz has since alternated at halfback and fullback for the Red Devils while Mast was on the injured list.

Praised by Navy

Down Jacksonville, Fla., way the Navy Flyers are still talking about his third quarter performance where he averaged over six yards per carry against a heavy line which threatened repeatedly to stop the 508th's vaunted running attack. Coach Dave Barksdale of the Flyers complimented Dietz by saying that he was the finest player he has seen thus far this season.

In football circles, Dietz is known as a player who does not know the meaning of the word "quit." He drives until the whistle stops the play. In his off-duty hours, he talks of being a civilian again, that will be in 1953, and of being home in Johnstown, Pa. It was there that the 508th backfield star learned the rudiments of football while playing at Ferndale High. He attended Indiana (Pa.) State Teachers College and he won his football letter there. During his high school days he also played basketball and did some running while on the track team.

Got College Bids

Big Bill enlisted in the paratroopers in January 1951 and after his tour of duty he intends to return and pick up his education. But at what college. When questioned about some of the bids that he has received or about his plans to attend West Point, all he says is that he has not any definite plans for the future. But he says for sure that he loves football and wants to play ball in college.

Coach Phillips, who intensely admires Dietz, says, "Bill doesn't smoke or drink or do anything detrimental to the welfare of the team or himself. He is undoubtedly one of the finest football players and gentlemen I have ever known."

Gorrie's Pass Gives 104th 6-0 Victory

The 104th Company combined the talents of two former college football players, Dick Gorrie and Jack Countryman, on a touchdown pass which defeated the 122nd Company, 6-0, in a Second Student Regiment Touch Football League scrap.

Gorrie, who won his varsity letter at University of California, Santa Barbara branch, heaved an aerial to Countryman, an ex-Oregon University gridder, from five yards out in the second quarter play.

Solomon Kaulukukui, former University of Hawaii grid ace, was a standout on offense and defense for the inners.

Major Leagues Inaugural Set For April 13

Major League baseball will get off to an early start in 1953 with opening day on April 13 and the annual All-Star game staged on Boston Braves Field on July 14.

The 1953 season is the alternate year wherein the Washington Senators and the Cincinnati Reds open their home season's day in advance of the field. This, of course, has the Yankees will play at Griffith Stadium and the Pirates at Crosley Field.

All teams will wind up their 154-game schedule on Sept. 27.

Flyers Open Hoop League Monday At Moody Air Base, Ga.

The Lawson Field Basketball team of Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, Ga., to open their Southeastern Conference season on Monday and Tuesday, and on Friday return to play on their own boards against S. Warner-Robbins Air Force Base quintet.

What the Flyers lack in height, they make up in speed. The players who are working out with the wing team are Roland Huber, Harold Esslinger, Marvin Seiver, Charlie Urbanovych, Ray Walden, James Powell, Clyde Quick, Thomas Lovell, Gerald Ring, Paul Walters, Charles Alt and Paul Tomb, who is also the coach.

mitted Fashion. "They had too many guns for us."

18 K Quarterback

But an 18-karat quarterback, Charlie Leonard, hits of Florida A & M, had it figured another way.

"We just just kept passing," he said afterwards, using the editor's "we" since he was doing all the flinging. "We had to hit sooner or later with our passes, and we weren't going anywhere otherwise."

It was an aerial from the 23-year old, 170-pound Leonard to Halfback Ken Harris with three minutes left in the game which gave ISD-ASU the clinching touchdown.

The spindle-legged Mississippian threw from his own 43 and hit Harris on the nose on the 508th's 30, from where Harris outdanced a pair of would-be tacklers a la 0 at the right sideline to pay dirt.

Devils Arrive

The 508th roared mightily on the ensuing kickoff and looked for a moment like they might make it when Ken Branson tossed 48 yards to Willie Hames on the Greenie 27.

Branson's next pass was incomplete, however and the ISD-ASU line trapped Caird Currie on a pitchout for a nine-yard loss. Gary Mattocks then passed, but it fell short and Branson was asked to pass on the fourth down. It was broken up in the end zone, and that was the game.

Leonard's slingshot arm gave ISD v ASU two scores before the game was seven minutes old. The first time the Greenies got the ball he struck Dennis Ensminger with a 25-yard shot into the end zone.

This Was It

Minutes later he climaxed a 57-yard surge with a three-yard shot to Ensminger behind the 508th goal line.

The 508th found itself, however, and worked a 66-yard scoring surge before the quarter was over. The payoff was a seven-yard plunge by Dale Ems. They really took over in the second period.

Ground March

On straight running plays they marched 56 yards with Crayton Mast scoring from the two. And again they scored, going 45 yards with Bill Dietz carrying the last seven yards. It was 21-14 at the half.

The Greenies might as well have stayed home for the first 14 minutes of an spectacular third period, but in that last minute they got a big break that made up for all the previous heartbreak.

Currie, hit behind the line of scrimmage by Ken Quarterback, fired a lateral off, but the ball bounced into the waiting fingers of Otis Ramseur, an obscure Valley Steam, N. Y., guard, who dashed 90 yards to the goal line and the tieing TD. It was the first time in his football career that he ever scored.

It was one of the cleanest, hardest fought games of the season and if the 508th had a fault it was simply that they had no such reason as a departing leader to inspire them to get him one last victory. They couldn't help that.

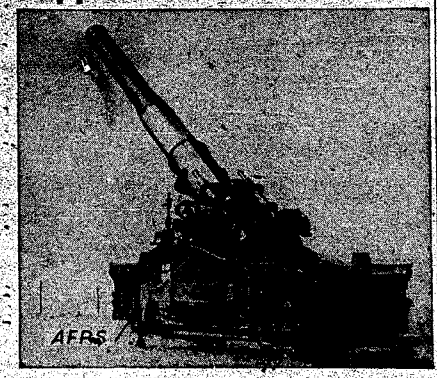
Atom Gun Needs Nine Support Trucks To Fire



ARMY'S NEW ATOMIC ARTILLERY PIECE

BY PFC. WARREN ADLER
AFS Washington Correspondent

The Army has revealed that it takes nine vehicles to support a battery of the Army's new 280-mm artillery pieces (A-guns) during firing operations.

The battery, consisting of two big guns, requires eight five-ton trucks and one two-and one-half-ton shop truck to send it into battle. Two of the five - tonners are used to haul troops and equipment to the firing site.

Four other five - tonners have monorail hoists and ammunition racks. They tow a two - wheel ammunition trailer from the supply dump to an ammunition pit at the firing site.

Another truck tows two four-wheel generator trailers housing 30 kilowatt motor-generators. The generators supply the electrical power for the 280-mm gun.

The eighth five-ton truck carries four trough-like shell carts which haul ammunition from either the ammunition truck or a nearby ammunition pit to the gun.

The two-and one-half-ton shop van is a controlled - temperature van mounted on a standard cargo chassis. It is used as an ammunition assembling room.

Unit Stresses Safety Program

Company H of 30th Infantry Regiment is making an all out attempt to make men of the Company safety conscious.

The company safety officer, Lt. Melvin Campbell, and the safety NCO, Sfc. Oliver M. Pruitt, has a separate "Safety Bulletin Board" in the company area where all personnel may see it.

On the board are pictures of local accidents with the cause, effects and proper methods of prevention noted on each. In addition to actual pictures of accidents, safety posters and slogans are used. The company slogan this week is "Live Dangerously and Die Young."

The entire board is changed weekly to sustain interest in the safety program.

In the receiving line included Gen. and Mrs. Young, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., Col. and Mrs. George E. Bush, Col. and Mrs. S. R. Tupper, Col. and Mrs. Charles H. Owens and Lt. Col. C. M. Easley.

Army Fires Atomic Gun

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md. (AFPS) — The Army demonstrated its atomic gun here recently in a series of thunderous, precision - aimed, long-distance shots with nonatomic ammunition.

Preparations are being made to fire the new 280-mm "all - purpose" weapon, with an actual atomic shell, according to Secretary of the Army, Frank Pace Jr.

In the demonstration, the gun was wheeled into position and fired shells a distance of 12 miles. Nine trucks supported the gun with ammunition, crew, and power.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, stressed the weapon's ability to deliver an atomic burst to a prescribed area "in any weather condition."

He added that the weapon was not the "ultimate" and that a good deal of improvement still must be made on the caliber and range of the weapon.

First Finance Officer Ends Jump Course

The first Finance Corps officer to complete The Infantry School's basic airborne course received his parachutist badge last week.

He is 30-year-old Lt. Col. Norris Shealy of Montgomery, Ala., Infantry Center fiscal officer, who was presented his airborne wings by the Airborne Department's executive officer, Lt. Col. Woodrow Laws of Elizabethton, Tenn.

"Airborne training has been a wonderful experience," Colonel Shealey declared. "The type of training offered by the Airborne Department leaves no chance for anyone to slack off in the attitude of you image discipline and spontaneous response to commands. I believe my Airborne training will enhance my value to the Army and my Army experience," he said.

Colonel Shealy was Chief of the Manpower Branch in the Third Army comptroller's office before assuming his duties here a year ago.

The airborne fiscal officer enlisted in the Alabama National Guard in 1939. He attended Jones University Law School in Montgomery, Ala., and the Woodrow Wilson College of Law in Atlanta. He is a member of the Georgia Bar Association and the American Bar Association.

He has served 36 months in Europe and the Far East.

Army Relaxes Release Policy For Officers

WASHINGTON (AFPS). The rigid restrictions governing the release of officers from active duty have been relaxed, the Army announces.

Reason for the new policy, according to the Army, is the increasing number of officers serving voluntarily, and the availability of newly commissioned officers.

It allows more officers to be released because of undue hardship or essentiality to national health, safety, or interest. However, this relaxation does not apply to all officers. Personnel not eligible under this policy are:

1. Officers of the Army Medical Service, other than Medical Service Corps, who would have to be replaced by recalling additional reserve officers.

2. Officers detailed or assigned to the Corps of Engineers, in which a critical shortage of qualified officers exists.

3. Officers commissioned since June 25, 1950 who have a service obligation under the UMT and Service Act.

4. Officers committed to a definite tour of duty as a result of attendance at Service schools or civilian education institutions.

His talk will deal with new policies and procedures to be adopted by the Red Cross in this area.

The Infantry Center delegation will include, in addition to Mr. Cramer, Eugene Guy, Walter Coker, Miss Martha Ellesore, John Whirlow, William Rummel, Dave Hearn and Fred Jannetti.

Catholic Society Names President

Lt. Col. Robert E. McGraw of Cheyenne, Wyo., has been elected president of the Catholic Holy Name Society here.

The Holy Name Society, which has over 4,000,000 members in the United States, was founded in the 13th Century by John of Vercelli for the "betterment of the holy name of Jesus." It assists in church activities, contacts Catholics and aids Catholic chaplains.

Infantry OCS Best, Says Armor Officer

The Infantry Officer Candidate School is producing the best officers in the Army, an Armor general last week told 72 new second lieutenants at The Infantry Center.

Major Gen. Edmund B. Sebree, commander of the Fifth Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark., said the only other training comparable to O. C. S. training "is that offered at the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y."

"We are on the threshold of the greatest emergency our country has ever faced and our people are a little too complacent," General Sebree, who was principal speaker at graduation ceremonies for Infantry Officer Candidate class No. 34 declared. "The emergency isn't labeled as such; it just seems to be growing up and Americans don't seem aware of their danger."

The general told the graduates that "the most important job in your present grade is commanding your platoon in combat. The battalion commander and the platoon commander are the important officers in war. They are the people who make or break an army," he warned.

General Sebree advised the new lieutenants "don't try to be a 'good fellow', you're not in a popularity contest. It's much more important for your men to have confidence in you. The more you know about the men serving under you the better you'll get along," he continued.

Honor graduate was Dale W. M. Timm of Tomahawk, Wisc. Lieutenant Timm's next assignment will be at Camp Attebury, Ind.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Major E. M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

'Infantry's Artillery' Packs Potent Punch

BY PFC BILLY McCORMACK

If artillery called "The Infantry's own personal artillery," and Infantry soldiers who've been in combat claim it's one of their best friends.

Subject? The Infantry regimental Heavy Mortar Company, which can lay down more fire in rounds-per-minute and tons of explosive than a battalion of 105mm howitzers.

First Lt. Robert C. Kendrick, commander of the 30th Infantry Regiment's Heavy Mortar Company, speaks with the voice of experience behind him when he makes what some uninitiated people regard as "fantastic" claims for the 4.2 mortars.

Lieutenant Kendrick served with the First Cavalry Division in Korea, where he learned first-hand just how important a "personalized" artillery barrage can be at the right time.

"Korea Ideal"

"The Korean topography is ideally suited to mortar use," he said, "and has brought to pointed attention the fact that highly mobile mortars can be carried to places completely inaccessible to larger artillery pieces."

The combat Infantryman of World War II would have a hard time recognizing the heavy mortar company of today. Although the company still has machine guns and rocket launchers, and the men are still armed with standard rifles, the entire organization of the company has been streamlined and revamped.

The 12 4.2-inch mortars are generally kept grouped together for the most effective firepower, but sometimes a platoon will be detached to support a battalion operating on a separate mission.

8-Man Crew

Each mortar, serviced by a crew of eight men, is capable of throwing over 90 25-pound rounds in 10 minutes. The mortars are easily moved by a three - quarter ton truck which tows a trailer loaded with ammunition.

In combat, the company normally throws high - explosive projectiles predominantly, but also utilizes other types of shell, such as smoke shells, used in screening advancing Infantrymen.

The mortar, believed to be the first gun developed, has been one of the most feared weapons used throughout the time since its development. Unlike artillery shells, mortar projectiles produce little noise in flight. Soldiers can hear heavy artillery shells coming and take cover, but the first inkling they have that mortars are on the way is when they feel the shock of their explosion.

It has been estimated that during World War II 95 per cent of the casualties were produced by artillery and mortar fragments, thus bearing out the mortarmen's contention that their's is indeed a deadly trade.

Tree Trimmer Takes Tumble

Even a professional tree climber can get caught out on a limb.

Officer Candidate Charles D. Averka, 29th Officer Candidate Company, who is happiest when in a tree, did just that when he tumbled to the ground while showing his climbing prowess to friends.

An Agriculture student at the University of Massachusetts prior to enlisting last Spring, Candidate Averka worked for a Worchester, Mass., company which specializes in tree surgery work — from pruning to transplanting.

The most hazardous incident in the candidates occupation was clearing broken limbs from a power line. Two wires — one carrying 55,000 volts — lay across a road endangering pedestrians. Crossing his fingers, he cut the wires with wet pruners without incident.

FORMER UNDERGROUND FIGHTER NOW WITH 30TH
Pfc. Jerry Taranek Conducts Dry Run On Mortar Drill

Polish Soldier Fought Nazis In Underground

BY M-SGT. DELOS MELLON

A veteran of the Polish underground, prisoner of war, escapee, prisoner of war again, member of a Polish Guard of the United States Army and now member of the 30th Infantry is Pfc. Jerzy Taranek, formerly of Warsaw, Poland.

Currently a mortarman in Company H of the 30th Infantry Regiment, Taranek helps demonstrate battle-tested techniques to U. S. and Allied students from all over the world.

Polish Underground

Taranek became active in the Polish underground when Poland was partitioned between Germany and Russia. He and a group of men who were sponsored by the Polish Government in exile, the Armia Krajava stored arms and ammunition that had been dropped by the exiled Polish government in England.

Taranieck's duties included delivering newspapers that contained propaganda designed to weaken the position of the invaders and placing Loyalty Posters in public buildings.

Street Fighting

When street fighting broke out in Warsaw, Taranek and a group of Partisans seized and held the Warsaw Eastern Rail Road Station for four days against German Troops. There were seventy-two men at the beginning and Taranek was one of the fourteen who finally surrendered. Taranek was wounded by tank fire and for some reason unknown to him he was not immediately executed.

Prison Camp

He was sent to a prison camp for assignment in a hard labor battalion at Pirimasens where he dug anti-tank ditches along the Siegfried Line under continual goading of German bayonets.

As the Allies advanced he was moved to the rear area and during one of the forced marches he and a companion managed to escape. He was aided during this flight by a Luftwaffe NCO who was on his way over the hill, but to no avail, as Taranek was recaptured and imprisoned near Wurtsburg where on Easter Sunday, 1945, he was released by elements of the 100th Division.

U. S. Troops Arrive

There was more than a little confusion when the American Troops arrived. Taranek and his prison mates had not seen any Americans before and because of this and their past experiences they approached the American Troops with caution.

Then an American shouted to them in their own tongue and started throwing C-rations to them. Later they were told they would be moved to a displaced persons camp or if they elected they could join the American troops as scouts and would be equipped and fed. Taranek and several of his Polish friends joined and became members of a Polish Guard Company. Still later he immigrated to the United States to live with an aunt in Detroit from where he was inducted into the United States Army.

Traffic Violators

(Editor's Note: The Bayonet each week will publish a list of persons whose driver's licenses are revoked; whose punishment is more severe than revocation of driving privileges; and those unregistered traffic violators who are refused the privilege of registering their automobile on the post.)

Post driving permits of three Infantry Center soldiers were permanently revoked during the period Oct. 24-30. The offense committed in each case was driving while intoxicated. The men were Sfc. Robert Session of Company I, 30th Infantry Regiment; Cpl. Marvin B. Hale of Section I, 3440th Area Service Unit, Station Medical Detachment; and Pfc. Herman W. Rabb of Heavy Mortar Company, 30th Infantry Regiment.

Mexican Campaign Vet Now Brigade Recruiter

By PFC GEORGE E. LITTLE

An ex-cavalry man who first enlisted in the Army in 1907 and served in the Mexican War and both World Wars, is presently serving with Headquarters and Service Company, First Student Brigade.

He is 60-year-old M-Sgt. Homer J. Hunter, who was recently assigned as recruiting NCO of the First Student Regiment.

Upon his enlistment in 1907 he was assigned to Troop C of the 12th Cavalry Regiment and served with them until discharged in 1910. Six years later he re-enlisted in the First Cavalry Regiment and served for nearly a year along the border between Texas and Mexico during the Mexican War.

Patrol Duty

"Our troop was mainly engaged in patrol duty around Brownsville, Texas, but we were always on the alert for an expected crossing of the border by Villa's Army," the sergeant said.

Life in the Army cavalry then was a far cry from service today, he stated. "Our monthly pay," he said, "was $13 a month, and pay day was never on a set day as it is now. We always knew when pay day came when we heard the trumpet heralding the approach of the paymaster in his mule drawn wagon."

Blue Uniforms

"Our first uniforms," he continued, "were all of a blue shade, including our dress and fatigues clothing. We always stood retreat in our dress uniform."

When queried about passes, the veteran soldier said they had nothing comparable to our present Class A passes. He explained that normally only week-end passes were given, and they began on Saturday and ended at retreat time on Sunday.

"A special 24-hour pass during the week was given," he added, "to the best appearing man when inspections were held. The competition for it was very keen, as the man selected would also serve as the orderly for the commanding officer."

Strict Discipline

"Although our discipline was very strict and our pay was low, we all loved the cavalry and took great pride in our individual cavalry troop and in soldiering in general. I consider its time, our rugged and thorough training was easily comparable to the training the Rangers and paratroopers receive today."

"Most of our non-coms, particularly the sergeants, were old timers in the service, as promotions were slow and it took some nine years to become a sergeant," he continued. "Many of the sergeants," he added, "had received their earlier military training fighting the Indians during the late 1880's and early 1890's."

Gardens And Cows

"Our chow at the time was very plain and to supplement the rations all the troops had their own gardens, and usually kept their own cows. Also, we often did business with local farmers, buying eggs and fresh vegetables."

During World War I he served overseas with the 122nd Field Artillery, a horsedrawn outfit. Battles he engaged in included Verdun, St. Mihiel, Argonne Forest, and the defensive sector of Lucy.

Upon completion of the war, Sergeant Hunter served for about a year with the Army of Occupation in Germany and then was rotated back to the states.

In 1920 he left the service to go with Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus. "While in the circus I belonged to a Hippodrome team composed of ex-cavalrymen. We performed various stunts such as forming 10-man pyramids on four horses, and always appeared in the Wild West shows held after the main show was completed."

Movie Stuntman

After two years with the circus, Sergeant Hunter left to return to California, his native state, where he became a riding master, and also, rode for movie studios as an independent rider. "I doubled in movies for such famous stars of the 1920s as Lon Chaney, Sr., and Wallace Reid," he said.

He continued to work for the movie studios and as independent horse trainer until 1940, when he came back into the Army. During World War II he served at various posts in the United States as a first sergeant. From 1943 to 1944 he was first sergeant of a mounted troop of MP's at Camp Stewart, Georgia. "I remained in mounted service until the unit was deactivated in 1944," he said. During the same year he was stationed here and was first sergeant of the Casual company in charge of the prisoners of war camp.

Recruiting Duty

Since 1948 he has been on recruiting duty. Prior to his recent assignment here, he was a recruiter in North and South Carolina.

"I have no desire to leave the Army at present and would like to stay on as long as my health continues", he stated.

Decorations he has been awarded include the Mexican Service Medal, World War I Medal with four campaign stars, Army of Occupation (Germany), Pre - Pearl Harbor Ribbon, American Defense Ribbon, Victory Medal for World War II, Three Good Conduct Medals, and three Expert Rifleman Badges.

'From Skates To Skillets'

There's little resemblance between a pair of ice skates and a skillet, but Pvt. Ramon F. Camara is equally at home with either.

Now a cook in Company I of the Airborne Battalion, it wasn't long ago that he was gliding across ice with Barbara Ann Scott in The Ice Capades.

Private Camara began his ice-skating career when he was five years old. "My father," he said, "put me on skates, pushed me out onto the ice, and said 'Skate.' I skated."

Since that time, he has performed in every state in the union and played in Madison Square Garden in New York city, the mecca of showpeople.

Almost Half of US Army Now Serving Overseas

Almost half of the personnel in the Army — more than 700,000 men — today are serving overseas.

Six divisions are in Korea and five more in Europe. In all, there is a total of 13 divisions overseas.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, addressing a meeting of the Carnegie Institute Society, also said that seven divisions are in the U.S., to conduct training and act as a manpower pool for the rotation program.

Thousands of replacements are needed every month to support this rotation program, Gen. Lawton said. "Veterans are being released at such a rate that the Army will have to train almost three-quarters of a million new men this year."

The difficulty of providing sufficient numbers of men to support the rotation program is shown by the fact that 13 divisions are overseas while only seven are active in the U.S. Thus, in effect, each unit in the U.S., while losing its own personnel through separation, must train replacements for the personnel that are lost and, at the same time, supply replacements for two units overseas.

Underestimate Importance

"Today, with so many advances being made in the mechanical tools of war, there is a tendency on the part of some to overemphasize the importance of machines and to underestimate the importance of men.

"But the true value and importance of these tools to defend our freedoms depend finally upon the skill, the courage, and the conviction of the men who use them. Men will always be more important than machines, and on the battlefield men have always determined the issue and always will."—(AFPS)

Pvt. Broucek fled from Czechoslovakia about 8 months ago and Pvt. Kasper escaped from Estonia.

Gen. Gaither Sets OC Talk

Major Gen. Ridgely Gaither, 11th Airborne Division commander, will be principal speaker tomorrow at graduation exercises for Infantry officer candidate class No. 35.

The 113 candidates began their 22-week course May 29.

General Gaither was commandant of The Parachute School, Airborne Command, at Fort Benning, in January, 1943, he held the post for two years. The airborne general helped organize the U. S. Army's original paratroop unit, the 501st Parachute Battalion which was formed in the fall of 1940.

General Gaither will return to his Fort Campbell, Ky., headquarters following the graduation exercises.

38,000 Suggestions

More than 38,000 suggestions were submitted to the Army during the past year as a result of its employee suggestion program of eliciting ideas resulting in economies and more efficient operation.

Approximately 6,700 of these suggestions were adopted and have resulted in a first year savings estimated at more than $7,000,000.

Nearly $193,000 was paid in rewards for these valuable adeas.

Continues New Band Policy

The new dance band policy which proved successful in its first month will be continued through November and December at the Main Officers' Open Mess, according to Lt. Col. E. Harding Jr., chairman of the entertainment committee.

The band-a-week program, which has enabled the mess to provide a better grade of music, Colonel Harding said, brings in bands for week-long runs instead of one-night stands. This system was inaugurated in October.

Orchestras to be featured this month include Buddy Bair, Ken Wolf, Stan Alexander, Bill Little John and the Silhouettes, and Jimmie Fuller.

School Set For 12 In CTC

Twelve men of Combat Training Command are slated to attend various Army schools throughout the United States.

Sgt. Amador Martinez, Sgt. Ernest E. Cornelson and Cpl. Clarence E. Young will attend the Mess Management Course at the Third Army Area Food Service School.

Movie-Men Near End of Filming Benning Scenes

Movie-men from the Signal Corps Photographic Center at Long Island City, N. Y. were back in the First Officer Candidate Regiment this week completing scenes for a 1hHour television show entitled "The Big Picture."

Last week, the group was in the Airborne Department area filming scenes that will be incorporated in a television feature dealing with the 82nd Airborne Division. The Airborne feature will include some of the exploits of the 82nd World War II, as well as presen day training activities conducted daily by the Airborne Department.

The group spent about 10 days in the officer candidate area prior to moving to the Airborne Department. Headed by director Andy Kelly, the group includes assistant director Sgt. Charles Raymond; sound technician, 2nd Lt. Robert Mann; cameraman Pete Voutsas and assistants Pvt. Gerald LaVigne and George Eagen; and electrician Sgt. Pelton Lewis.

General Lauds Ex-TIS Official

Lt. Col. Elvin A. Kreilick of Columbus, former assistant operations officer at The Infantry School, has been commended by Brig. Gen. John P. Willey for his work as an adviser in Formosa.

The letter praises Colonel Kreilick for his "outstanding performance of duty as an advisor to the director of instruction and the operations office of the Nationalist Government, Republic of China, May 1 to July 29, 1952." General Willey is Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Korea.

"During this period," the letter continued, "your attention to duty, your initiative and your professional knowledge contributed materially to the progress of the school. Your diligence, enthusiasm and complete understanding of your professional work was an inspiration to those who worked for and with you. The United States Army has attained its high degree of efficiency through the untiring efforts of those who are willing to subordinate all else to the performance of duty to your country. You demonstrated this willingness, and in so doing are worthy of the highest praise."

Pipe Plus Pocket Gives OC Hot Time

Things are getting hot in the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

At a formation held in the 28th OC Company, candidates smelled something burning. OC Bergen B. Hall, retired, looked around, then sheepishly removed his pipe from the pocket where he had hurriedly shoved it when the formation was called.

Submariner, Spear Fisher Take Airborne

Two second lieutenants currently taking Airborne Training with Company I of the Airborne Battalion are proving "variety is the spice of life."

Lt. Edwin S. N. Wong and Lt. Louis T. Davis were both "underwater men" before coming into the Army and then going into Airborne training.

Lieutenant Davis was with the US Navy in the submarine service for a year. He states that "there's absolutely no difference when you're under the surface". The lieutenant was in a 'snorkel' type sub and took part in Operation "Porpoise" in the Caribbean.

"The only trouble aboard a submarine", says Davis, "is when the vessel dives or surfaces at a steep angle during mealtime, and then you finish eating the meal on the floor."

Lieutenant Wong also experienced underwater work, only without the mechanical convenience afforded by a 'snorkel'. He was a spear fisherman, wearing no equipment but a face mask and carrying a spear.

Of the two trades, the spear fishing seems to be the most dangerous as Lieutenant Wong can testify, having had several runins with man-eating sharks.

For relaxation Wong taught judo and was a Rank 2 Black Belt Instructor.

DAV Auxiliary Fetes Hospital Patients

A party for over 300 patients in the Auxiliary of the Disabled American Veterans at the U.S. Army Hospital were guests last week at a Halloween party sponsored by the Columbus (Ga.) Nation Hall.

Concession booths were erected in the Recreation Hall, and the Auxiliary and Red Cross Gray Ladies supervised games. Mrs. E. D. Rowe of the DAV Auxiliary was in charge of arrangements.

508th-Wave Clash In Return Sunday

RAMS' BOB MORSTAD (16) RUNS AL BUCKLES' PASS Schnitkey (21) got him on CTC's 12 in 3Q action Sunday

The 508th Airborne and the ISD-ASU Green Wave will kickoff the second half of the 1952 Fort Benning League season at Doughboy Stadium Sunday with the Red Devils out for Green blood.

The Central High school band of Columbus will entertain at halftime along with Benning's own 123rd Army Band. Game time is 2 p.m. and admission is free.

Since both clubs have met once before, with the Greenies pulling a surprise 28-21 victory so that coach Jack Fabion could go back to his Texas high school job with an unbeaten record, the 508th will be thirsting for revenge.

Layoff Helps

The two-week layoff did the Red Devils good for they were able to work out some sort of pass defense. When Charlie Leonard took to the air lanes, the Devils defense did not know what to do.

However, during the short vacation, Coach Jim Phillips learned that three of his ball players were through for the year and had hung up their cleats. Gil Downey, the fastest man on the ball club, turned in his number because his bad knee would not let him run and play. Morris Corbin had a dislocated elbow that forces him out.

Redmond Out

And the biggest shock of all to Phillips is that Bill Redmond, who was named to the All-Post second string halfback slot last year, is also fini with football. Redmond has been ailing all season long with a bad leg. He got into a few ball games on defense, but did not show much due to his injury.

'No matter how bad the 508th is hurtin', they still have a solid ground gaining attack. With Big Bill Dietz leading the way, the Red Devils also have fullback Crayton Mast, halfbacks Paul Bucey, Dale Ems, and Caird Currie. The quarterback slot is a moot question as to who could hold the job down, but Phillips has been using Gary Mattocks and Pete Overton in there.

Dietz in 45 carries earned 318 yards for the 508th. Bucey has a 5.0 average per carry while Currie in 12 carries ate up 115 yards.

As a matter of fact, these four and also Harry Mantzouranis, are going to have to help with the defense.

Leonard Out

The Greenies on the other hand, will go into this game minus their ace quarterback Leonard, backfield ace Bob Boh and guard Harold Long. Boch and Long received their discharges from Uncle Sam last week.

Leonard, who completed 13 out of 40 passes in the last encounter has an injured knee cap which will keep him out of the game. Trouble is that ISD-ASU will be planning its hopes on Bob Milgrim, Bob Hunt, who takes over the signal calling, Ken Harris and Eddie Hansen.

First For Manley

This game was to be the first for the team under Harold Manley, head mentor, but Pete Pantelis, assistant coach, swept around the ends for the tally. Bill Black's educated toe accounted for two more extra points out of three conversion attempts.

CTC Moves

CTC started the last quarter with the ball grounded on their own seven. Adam Zubaty, George (Ding Dong) Dowe, Tim Dietz and Tex Davis pushed, lugged, and hauled the ball to the 38. Then C. T. Mathews punted to the Rams 20, but little Joe Pangonis, speedy halfback, carried it back to the CTC 40.

A few plays later, Pangonis was involved in confusion on one of the many fumble plays that were taking place throughout the game and recovered for the 508th.

ASU'S GEORGE ALLEN LOOKS LIKE HE WAS BOMBED But he beat 508th's Nori Kawasaki in week's ring thriller

Wright Seeks 3rd Ring Win Tonight

Fort Benning amateur boxing puts on its 12th card of the season tonight with the show beginning at 8 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

Ray Leutz, of the 508th Airborne, will meet lightweight Willie Wright of ASU, in a Class Two encounter while Joe Martin, of the 508th, and Walter Townsell, of ASU, tangle in a Class Three welterweight scrap.

Wright, so far, in this year's campaign has beat August Wolf in two out of three meetings. This is Leutz' first bout this year, but his previous record merits much consideration for the airborne slugger has won four out of five bouts.

Martin is going for his second victory having decisioned Robert Collins, ISD lightweight. Townsell appeared only in an exhibition bout against stablemate David Carter.

Other Bouts

In the other bouts on the program, Joe Kent, of 508th, meets Robert Walker, of CTC, in a middleweight fracas; Fred Douglas, of CTC, tests Fred Deutch, of 508th, in a lightweight go; Thomas Boykins, of CTC, tangles with Ozell Smith, of First SR, in a lightweight meet; Edward Stout, of 508th, meets David Carter, ASU welterweight; Billy McGahee, of CTC, tangles with Emilio Montecillo, of 508th in a flyweight contest; Floyd Wright, of 508th, meets Charles DeForte, of ASU, in a welterweight clash and Lawrence McMorris, of ASU, meets John Cassiliano, of 508th, in a light middleweight go.

HEAVENLY HOPE . . . In one of the really unusual photos of the Fort Benning season, cameraman Joe Wolfe has captured the futility of a defeated team. The 508th's Willis Hames (84) and Bill Fortner (81) make a stab in the end zone for a pass that wasn't there. And it was the last play of the game as ISD-ASU snuffed the Red Devils, 28-21. Harry Mantzouranis (33) and Bob Milgrim (24) are the Rams' end. Green Wave defenders

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Cpl. Charles Johnson

JUST IN CASE you didn't know it (besides which it doesn't rest me anything to tell you) Fort Benning is an athlete's and sports fan's paradise. I have seen more well-balanced, sincerely contested sports events here in the past fifteen months than anywhere else on God's green footstool I can imagine. And in many instances the individual performances of post athletes would have won cheers from the most case hardened fans in any league.

Probably the best single performer I watched in that time was footballer Frank Spaniel of the 1951 Combat Training Command team. A proven back with Notre Dame and the Washington Redskins, he fitted into the single wing formation in a matter of weeks and made over a thousand yards with his running and passing.

He was all athlete mentally and physically. He coached one of CTC's basketball teams, although he had never played college varsity in that sport because of his football chores, and he held down left field for the Commander baseball team. He figured in what I believe to be best bit of football I have seen at Benning.

That was the second game of the year between CTC and Lawson Field, which opened with plenty of bad blood between the two teams. It had reached the slugging stage when, just after the half, underdog Lawson led, 20-12. Then Spaniel, and a bull-legged mate, Jim Bradley, both with bloody noses, went on a rampage. They scored five times in a little over five minutes going through the line most of the way. It was pure murder to watch. The final score was CTC 46, Lawson, 20.

Probably the best fighter I saw [illegible] CTC, against Ray Lee, the really promising [illegible] middleweight from First Student Regiment who is now a pro. Lee had beaten Hall handily once last spring and on the last night of the ring season needed only to repeat that decision to sew up the post fight middleweight championship for himself and the post ring crown for First SR.

But it was Hall who knocked a bloody Lee to the deck in the second round with a smashing volley of rights and lefts. Lee should have been knocked out, but he got up and stood in the center of the ring. Hall hit from a hundred times, with both hands, from all angles. Lee stood there. He was revived before the last round and he and Hal stood, beak-to-beak and punched the most exciting chapter of all into Benning boxing history. Hall won the title. ASU Provisional Group was able to salvage the post championship.

There were many more moments and heroes. There was Jim Bradford, an officer candidate, who gave the U. S. weightlifting team its margin of victory in the Olympics. There was Joe Feinstein, the 155-pound lefty from Infantry School Detachment, who had the greatest assortment of junk pitches I have seen this side of the majors, and Larry Goins who neared 200 feet every time he tossed the javelin.

We had a track coach, Lawrence Williams, who took a so-so Benning team and won the Third Army championship over a star-studded Fort Jackson, S. C., squad at Doughboy Stadium. We had a major league baseball player from CTC, Ben Beaver, who batted nearly 400 points last season. We have a golf pro, Charlie Harper, who won the Georgia Open and Southeastern PGA tournaments. We have one of the nation's best shooting coaches, Fritz D. Swindler, who developed the national pistol championship team here.

That the made the crowds happy is attested by attendance at our sports events and the heavy use of the many athletic facilities on post. Statistics show that one in four of all on post people get into our sports action. Bucking the overall athletic picture in that line has been Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes. There have been two post sports officers, Maj. Gene Myers, the incumbent, and Capt. Bill Tatum, who did more than their fair share in providing a maximum of good sports here. I can't say enough in praise of both of them.

And why am I giving you this summing up? Why, because as far as yours truly is concerned the stirring newsreel of Fort Benning sports is at an end. Return to civilian life this week-end, and as one sport to all of you good sports—it's been my pleasure.

Before hanging up my M-1 typewriter, however, let me introduce you to a nice guy. The name is Lester Dinoff, a by-line that now shows he [illegible] sports read-ers. He moves into the sports chair with [illegible] qualifications.

He developed into a solid all-round sports [illegible] night desk of United Press in the sports [illegible] New York. To added to that experience [illegible] chores. He [illegible] New York Sunday [illegible] typewriter [illegible] acquired [illegible] publicist with 20th Century Fox Films for two years and as night editor of Radio - Television Daily.

ASU Still Tops In Post Boxing

Two of Fort Benning's amateur boxing champions, Leon Hall and George Allen, will meet in the feature bout Thursday evening at Kelly Field House and present the capacity crowd that fills the arena every night so far this season with a thrilling battle for first place in the Post's boxing standings with 10 points, but First Student Regiment, judged to within 10 points of them, is breathing down their necks.

Allen, who entered in third place with 41 points, with CTC in fourth with 25, ISD in easy with seven and FMC, who started their first fighter in this campaign Thursday, in the cellar with no points, is a long way off.

Hall, the 1952 light middleweight champ who wears CTC's colors, stopped Wesley Allen, ASU, in the second round of Thursday night's match to send the ASU's best middleweight to the canvas for the count of nine.

The 24-year-old Hall, after Allen, who weighed 161, two pounds more than his handsome opponent, pinned the bleeding Thatcher in a corner, barraged him with left and rights, stepped back, swung and the New York boxer keeled over for the long count.

Allen Wins

Allen, ASU's Third Army spindly bantamweight champion, scored a three - round decision over Noni Kawasaki of the 508th in their third meeting within two years. Each boy had won and lost to each other previously.

The paratrooper boxers was knocked through the ropes by Allen in the second round after spending the whole first stanza feeling each other out. Kawasaki rebounded solidly but his flurries left and rights were stopped by the bell.

In the final round, Allen, weighing 118, went to the canvas but he got up and started swinging at his 115-pound opponent. He was wide open for a few seconds near the end of the round, but Kawasaki did not move in.

The Ernie Fann - Ben Robinson heavyweight scrap was canceled because Robinson could not pass the medical examination due to injured ribs.

Frank Love, CTC's light heavyweight contender, racked up his fourth straight victory, winning a decision over Robert Landfried of the 508th.

Love, 124, had his mouthpiece knocked out during an exchange of blows in the first round with the 177-pound Landfried, who pulled the same act of losing his mouthpiece in the second. The third canto had Love moving out aggressively.

Other Bouts

In the other bouts of the card,

Airborne Wins 12-6 Forfeit In 1st SR Touch Football Loop

Paul Bonair's aerial attack led the Airborne Battalion to a 12-6 forfeit victory over the Second Battalion Thursday in the current First Student Regiment's Touch Football League.

The Second Battalion forfeited the game at halftime when one of their players were hurt and they also could not rake up another team.

Bonair has been causing quite a stir with his passing and his work has been commended. He completed ten passes out of 12 attempts.

OC Mixes Racing With Embalming

An assistant with a lively interest in race drivers is taking officer candidate training with the 46th OC Company. He is Candidate John L. Gelatka.

Candidate Gelatka received an appointment as an embalmer after leaving Seton Hall Prep School in 1948. After 18 months he decided he was too "quiet" and took to race driving as his other driving a truck.

Tracking called an interest in cars and he turned to the dirt track circuit. And candidate Gelatka says many amateur racers in the Macon area have benefited by his instruction.

Candidate Gelatka called his new duty "interesting." Candidate Gelatka says he relishes variety.

What about candidate life? Candidate Gelatka says he likes it.

HERE'S DOUBLE TROUBLE FOR 508TH GRID FOES—Twin Caird Currie, (L), And Stew Currie Run For Devils

Curries Spell Double Trouble

BY JAMES BUCK

When the fans see the name Currie on the 508th Red Devils roster, they know that double trouble is in store for any opponent when the football twins, halfback Caird and lineman Stewart start moving.

When both boys are together, and Coach Jim Phillips of the Red Devils wants one of them, he says, "Tackle Currie, come here, or backfield Currie, are you around?"

Fellow teammates have a solution of telling them apart. They just ask the Currier to open their mouths for Stew has a chipped front tooth.

The identical twins enlisted in the Army in 1951 following in the footsteps of two older brothers. Caird was married in July of '51, but Stew is still single and eligible. "We're only 20 years old, so he has a lot of time to get married if he wants to," points out the speedy halfback.

10 Minutes Apart

Born ten minutes before Caird, Stewart is considered the younger brother, even though he is an inch taller and ten pounds heavier.

An older brother was an All-State tackle in Illinois, so Stew switched to tackle to try to fill his brother's shoes. He did so well at the job that he was All-State in a following season for New Treier High School. Caird that year also won honorable mention as halfback on the mythical team.

In winning the tough Suburban League Championship with their high school teammates, Caird made the All-Suburban team and Stewart made the first-string All-Chicago squad. The following year, with a scholarship to V.M.I. in the offing, Stew showed his class by making the All-Virginia prep team.

Meanwhile a scholarship to Kansas University had split the twins in sending Caird to the Jayhawkers for freshman football.

Caird replies to questions about their future by saying that they will be playing for Kansas after their 1954 discharge.

The halfback, married, 194 lbs., prefers to have his brother running interference for him. "He makes sure I look good when he mows 'em down up front," says the modest Caird.

Cabaret X Set Twice Weekly

Soft music, candlelight and the finest in food and entertainment may be found at the Main Officers Open Mess every Tuesday and Thursday evenings, according to Lt. Col. E. Harding, Jr., entertainment committee chairman.

On these evenings at 8 o'clock, the dining room of the Mess is converted into a nightclub for Cabaret X, a program originally designed for the younger bachelor officers here, Colonel Harding said.

"However," he said, "the popularity of the program has spread throughout the officer ranks, and there are now as many married couples as dating duos attending these events."

Under the new program instituted at the Mess during October, the same orchestra that plays throughout the week also furnishes music for the Cabaret nights.

Seventh Member Of Airborne Family Learning to Jump

The desire to jump out of airplanes is strong in the Saunders clan.

Pvt. Wayne H. Saunders of Company A of the Airborne Battalion here is the seventh member of his family who either has served or are serving with airborne units.

One brother has been with the 11th Airborne Division for the past four years and two cousins are serving with the 82nd Airborne Division. During World War II three uncles served with airborne units.

In addition, a younger brother, Paul, who is now 17 years old, is planning to volunteer for jump training when he enters the service.

Pvt. Saunders, whose wife is expecting a child soon, has predicted that the baby will also take parachute training. What if the baby is a girl?

"That won't make any difference," Saunders said. "Women will probably be volunteering for airborne training by the time the baby is of age."

'Indianhead' Group Slates Meeting

The Second Infantry Division Association will hold its first full-scale meeting Nov. 17, according to Maj. Charles B. Hazelrigg, president of the association.

The meeting will be held at the Polo Hunt Club at 7:30 p.m. The program will include a short business meeting and variety stage show.

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry School commandant and former commander of the Second Infantry Division, recently said, "It's get - togethers of this sort that we need, where enlisted men and officers with such a common background of service can assemble on common ground. Here we can relive old times with old friends and learn the names of faces we have known to combat but we didn't have time to be sociable."

The meeting is open to all personnel authorized to wear the "Indianhead" Second Division patch. For further information about the association call Major Hazelrigg at 6-1263 or Maj. James Stacey at 341L.

Hypnotism Popular Among Candidates, Librarian Says

Books on hypnotism are rapidly becoming one of the most popular types of reading matter in the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

Consolidated figures released by Branch Library No. 6 in the OC area revealed that hypnotism books were led in popularity only by books on military science for the October period.

"I can't explain it," said Miss Piscatello, "unless some of the boys are trying to influence their tactical officers."

She reported that fiction receives only slight attention, but espionage and psychology books are quite popular in the regiment.

More than 1,000 persons read books during October, and September, according to her figures. A total of 2,775 men visited the library, a jump of 75 over September, and only 250 more than the October figure compared with a year previous.

OC Averts Blast; Wins Citation

A quick-thinking officer candidate who averted a possible tragedy during training was awarded a letter of commendation November 7 by Col. Harry F. Grizzard, commander of the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

In a special ceremony one hour before receiving his commission as a second lieutenant, Candidate Kendall L. Stewart, 25th OC Company, was commended for "Mental alertness, fortitude, and courageous actions . . an act of heroism involving voluntary risk of life . . ."

The incident for which the commendation was given occurred July 9 during grenade throwing training. The fuse of a defective live grenade ignited among a group of 20 candidates.

Candidate Stewart yelled "Grenade" and heaved the grenade into an isolated area where it exploded.

The recently commissioned officer of Mazomanie, Wisc., enlisted in the Army in August 1950. After basic training at Fort Riley, Kansas, he attended jump school here. He has 44 jumps to his credit and wears a senior parachutist badge.

He as been assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Deadline Near For Yule Mail

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!

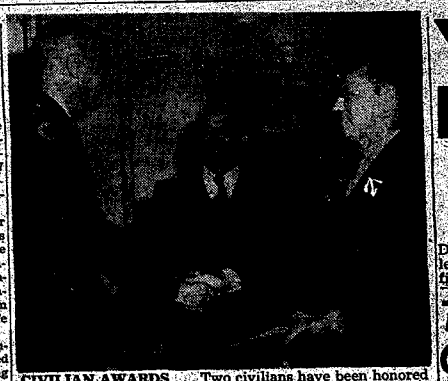
Anyone at Fort Benning planning to mail Christmas packages overseas who has not yet observed "mail early" instructions, has only three more days in which to get the packages posted in time for assured Christmas delivery.

Parcels for all points overseas must reach a post office by midnight Saturday if they are to be delivered by Christmas, according to 1st Lt. John W. Dennis, Postal Officer. There will be a delay in delivery, until slightly after Christmas, of packages mailed in the next week, he added.

Lieutenant Dennis pointed out that for the first time this year air parcel post is limited to 2 pounds by weight and 30 cubic inches by size. Regular parcel post unsealed packages are limited to 70 pounds and 100 cubic inches.

Users of air parcel post were warned by the postal officer that no guarantee of air delivery beyond the port of embarkation can be made.

Christmas mail for delivery in the United States should be posted by December 10, or December 15 at the very latest, he said. Please print the address on the wrapper as well as a label, he urged.



CIVILIAN AWARDS . . . Two civilians have been honored for suggestions they made that saved money in Infantry Center operations. Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr. congratulates the two men after presenting citations. Center is W. H. Sims, and right is T. C. Joiner. (Story on Page 3).

Two-State Tribute

Benning Paraders Hail Armistice Day

Parades, weapons displays, flag ceremonies and speeches marked Infantry Center participation in Armistice Day celebrations Tuesday in Georgia and Alabama.

Here, highlight of the observance came at 11:45 when a flag ceremony took place at the main flagpole in front of The Infantry School.

The flag was slowly lowered to half mast. As it reached the halfway mark, members of the 122nd Army Band began playing martial music in tribute to the fallen heroes of our country. The band continued playing for 15 minutes, then the national 21-gun salute was fired, the National Anthem played, and the flag once again raised to full staff.

Parade Cancelled

A parade originally slated for Columbus was called off by city officials due to murky weather. The parade was to have included the Second Battalion, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, and Battery B of the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion.

In Birmingham, 800 paratroopers of the 508th's Third Battalion and Battery C of the 320th paraded in the Alabama Military District observance. The Third Battalion was commanded by Lt. Col. Charles A. Krebs, and Lt. Frank P. Simmons led the 320th's Battery C. Battery C also fired the National Salute during the ceremony.

Brigade Leads Blood Donors

First Student Brigade contributed 107 pints of blood last week to set the pace for other units in donations to the Blood Donor Center.

The week's donations totaled 232 pints.

Of the total, 19 pints were retained for use in the U. S. Army Hospital. The remainder was shipped to the U. S. Blood Processing Plant in West Point, Pa., for use as blood plasma.

Other units contributing last week included the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, 90 pints; Area Service Unit Provisional Group 25 pints; Army Field Forces Board No. 3, four pints; Provisional Medical Group, three pints; Command Training Command, two pints, and Lawson Air Force Base, one pint.

Yule Leave Plans Told

Maximum To Get Leave Between Dec. 20--Jan. 5

Infantry Center activities will drop into low gear from Dec. 20 to Jan. 5 in order to give Christmas or New Years leave to as many soldiers as possible, Infantry Center officials announced this week.

Close on the heels of a message from Department of the Army, Lt. Col. W. W. Sellers, Infantry Center G-1, announced that maximum number of personnel here will get leave, consistent with maintaining efficient operations.

As in past years, the leave system will be divided into two increments; half the eligible men will get leave over Christmas, the other half over New Years.

Questionaires Out

Questionnaires are being submitted to unit commanders this week to ascertain their approximate transportation needs. Colonel Sellers pointed out that the leaves will be subject to emergency recision.

The message received here from Department of the Army pointed out that it will be impossible to give Christmas leave to basic trainees this year. Chief reason for this, according to the message, is that a steady flow of trained replacements must be available to take places of men being discharged or returned from overseas.

"Large Turnover"

"The large personnel turnover this year," the message read, "is over-taxing the available training facilities. In order to keep units at effective strength, every basic training installation must be utilized to its fullest extent.

"During this fiscal year," the message continued, "an unusually large number of men who have been fighting in Korea will return to the U. S. for release from active duty. Most of these men are also veterans of World War II who were recalled to duty in 1950 and are now completing their second tour of active service.

Making Great Effort

"Everyone can understand why the Army is making a great effort to complete the release of these men so that they can be rotated according to schedule.

"Their departure from the Army, however, means the loss of an unusually large number of highly-trained and highly-experienced men in a very short time. If our vital mission in Korea, and elsewhere are to continue without interruption or letdown, there must be a trained soldier ready to step into the place of every man whose term of service comes to an end."

As it stands now, here is how

Tower Plans Open House

Detachment 1926-3 — Airways and Air Communications Service — Lawson Air Force Base, will celebrate its 14th anniversary Saturday with open house throughout the day.

Better known as the Control Tower, the detachment is part of the 1926th Airways and Air Communications Squadron at Robins Air Force Base, Ga., under command of Major Frederick P. Stein.

The Lawson Tower handles and controls all airport traffic for the base on a 24-hour schedule.

Two men are on duty at all times, each group working a six hour shift. They are recruited from a detachment of 32 men who are graduates either of the Control Tower Operators School or the Radio Mechanics School.

The local detachment is headed by M-Sgt. James A. Christmas. S-Sgt. Donald E. Bradford is Control Tower chief.

Third Oldest Command

The AACS is the third oldest command in the Air Force and was formed at the insistence of the late Gen. Henry "Hap" Arnold. It was officially activated November 15, 1938 as the Army Airways Communication System.

In 1934, General Arnold led a flight of bombers to Alaska to demonstrate the strategic role of long-range bombers. The lack of an integrated military communications system proved a serious handicap on the flight, General Arnold re-

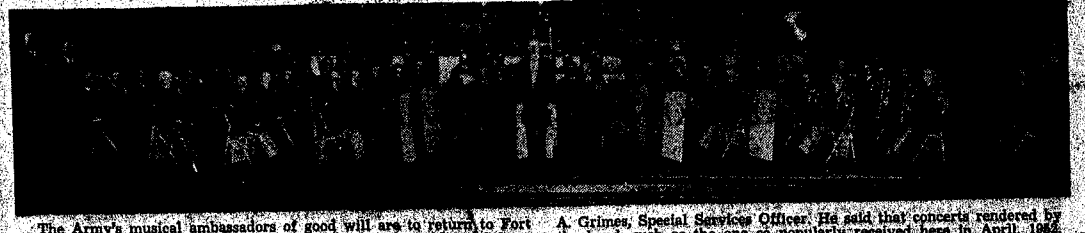
Army Band 'Musical Envoys' Head For Post



The Army's musical ambassadors of good will are to return to Fort Benning Dec. 5 for a free concert and show open to the public of Columbus and vicinity, as well as military and civilian personnel. The Army Band is to be heard in Briant Wells field house while on a tour of the United States that follows closely on its triumphant six weeks' engagement in the major cities of Europe. The evening program Dec. 5 will present a variety of unusual novelty acts by soloists accompanying the band, in addition to the musical features, according to Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Grimes, Special Services Officer. He said that concerts rendered by the band, such as the one so popularly received here in April, 1952, range from the classics through modern popular and folk music. They are liberally interspersed with marches. The 123-piece band has traveled over 200,000 miles, presenting concerts in more than 800 cities to audiences numbering in excess of 4,000,000 people. It travels in a motor convoy from which the bandsmen have taken their musical theme and nickname—"Kings of the Highway."

ported on his return. He recommended establishing a communications system within the Army Air Corps.

Four years were required to obtain appropriations and to procure equipment to install the communications stations.

Grows to 51,000

In its few years of existence, the AACS has grown from a group of three officers, 300 enlisted men and 33 stations to a 51,000-man organization which operated 165,000 miles of global highways in the sky during World War II.

Now known as the Airways and Air Communications Service, the AACS is a component of the Military Air Transport Service and has personnel located on more than 230 stations.

Following the invasion of Korea, the AACS by mid-July 1950 had airlifted into the theatre more than 300 officers and men skilled in the installation, operation and maintenance of mobile communications equipment.

Veterans of Airlift

Of the 32 men assigned to the Lawson detachment nine have served with the AACS in the Far Eastern Air Force, and three are veterans of the Berlin Airlift.

In step with the AACS's plan to adopt new communications and navigational devices to meet the constantly changing and demanding requirements of today, the 1926-3 detachment is undergoing renovation and remodeling of its tower.

Offering To Aid Korea Orphans

A special Thanksgiving offering for Korean orphans and orphanages will be collected at religious services here Nov. 23.

The offering, requested by Lt. Gen Alexander R. Bolling, Third Army commander, will provide food and clothing for young Korean victims of the war, according to Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield.

The special offering given at services last year, Chaplain Sheffield said, amounted to $2,500 and "we're hoping to top it this year."

Personnel who miss the Nov. 23 service may give their contribution the following week to any chaplain, Chaplain Sheffield said.

Soloist Sings OC Obbligato

Candidate Thomas A. Mayton, 29th OC Company, sings out with a voice well trained for clear commands.

While attending Emory University, Georgia, class of 1953, he sang and toured the country with the famed Emory Glee Club. He has been a soloist of the choir of Grace Methodist Church in Atlanta formany years.

After leaving Emory he sang in the Atlanta Opera Company's performances of "Faust," "La Traviata," and "I Pagliacci," singing the lead baritone role in the latter.

At Fort Dix, N. J., where he took basic training, Candidate Mayton was a soloist of the 36th Regimental choir. He graced one of the leading roles in the Army Special Service production of the Broadway musical hit, "Call Me Mister."

Army PMG Ends Visit

The Army's provost marshal general spent two days here last week witnessing Infantry School demonstrations and inspecting military police activities.

Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, accompanied by Lt. Col. Leslie A. Arnold, Third Army deputy provost marshal, arrived here Thursday evening. On hand to greet them were Lt. Col. Alonza E. Wood, Infantry Center provost marshal, and Lt. Col. G. C. Painter, deputy TIC provost marshal.

Friday morning General Parker was oriented on Infantry School operations and witnessed Infantry platoon problems presented by the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

Later that day he visited confinement facilities, Military Police Detachments, Criminal Investigation Division Headquarters and The Infantry Center provost marshal's office.

Vets Allowed One Course Change

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Under the law, you are allowed to change your course of study or training no more than once.

Consequently, it is vital that you give careful thought to your choice of training program.

If you want to change your course within two years from the time you're released from Service, which is your deadline — you too, need VA approval. However, if your progress was unsatisfactory, you will have to show the VA that it was not because of neglect or misconduct on your part.

If you want to change course after your deadline — and have never made a change before — you must get VA approval.

The soundest advice is to know your goal before you start—and the training needed to attain it!

Bayonet Cheap, Lethal, General Tells OC Grads

The cheapest and most lethal weapon in today's Army is the bayonet, an airborne general told 101 new second lieutenants at graduation ceremonies for Infantry officer candidate class No. 35.

Maj. Gen. Ridgely Gaither, commander of the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., also warned the new lieutenants of the three major factors "you should take into consideration upon assuming your new duties."

"Remember Responsibility"

"Remember the importance of your new responsibility, the necessity for technical efficiency and the importance of high conduct as a second lieutenant. If an army officer's conduct falls below high standards, that army is doomed," he declared.

General Gaither reminded the graduates that in their new position of authority as second lieutenants they are "the last link between the chain of command" and the soldiers. If that link is not up to standard the entire chain is weakened, he said.

No Push-Button War

"You don't fight a push-button war in the Infantry," the general continued, "but you do have to have technical know-how. As a second lieutenant you are expected to weld together 50 or more soldiers and weapons and deliver them to the field of battle with all weapons operating in perfect condition," General Gaither stated.

Honor graduate was Alan T. Berry of San Gabriel, Calif., whose next assignment will be at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The oath of office was administered to the former lieutenants by Major E. M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen Kane, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

A fight film will be shown at the close of the business meeting by the club's entertainment committee.

The Dad's Club, which has replaced the former Youth Activities Council, will sponsor youth basketball this winter.

This is the first major undertaking of the group, which is designed to make possible a closer association between fathers and their children.

A six-team Little League and two teen-age clubs, one boy's and one girl's, will take to the court within the next few weeks. The older clubs will be entered in teen-age basketball competition in Columbus.

Civilian Ideas Save Taxpayers' Cash

Two Civil Service employes have received cash awards and certificates of achievement for money-saving suggestions which have been adopted by the Army.

Thomas C. Joiner and Wade H. Sims of Columbus, received the awards from Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., The Infantry School's assistant Commandant.

Tank Gun Tool

Joiner, a foreman in the Ordnance Section, was cited for designing a tank-gun cleaning tool which forces a rust preventive compound out of the barrel, at a saving of nine and one-half man-hours on each gun. It has been approved by the chief of Ordnance for Army-wide use.

Sims, superintendent of the Heating and Refrigeration Section of the Post Engineers, perfected two heat-saving devices which have been adopted for use throughout the Third Army area.

Single Thermostat

One award was presented for the suggestion that a single thermostat be placed in a boiler to supplant individual regulators in each room.

His other prize-winning sugges-tion calls for the installation of circulation pumps and aquastats in heating systems, resulting in a saving of approximately 10,500,000 feet of gas yearly.

Forces Order New 'Copters

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army, Navy and Marine Corps have ordered five new-type ramjet helicopters for evaluation tests.

Powered by a small ram-jet engine mounted on the tip of each of two 23-foot rotor blades, the new helicopters, named "Hornets," will be built by Hiller Helicopters of Palo Alto, Calif. The Army and Navy have ordered two, the Marine Corps, one.

Single Thermostat

Designated the HJ-1, the Hornet has only two hand controls and no foot controls. It lacks the usual complicated engine and transmission mechanisms found in most rotary wing aircraft.

Weighing approximately 900 pounds empty, it can carry a useful load of 500 pounds and has a maximum forward speed of 80 mph. Its twin jet engines weigh only 12 pounds and disassembly of the nozzles from the rotor blades may be accomplished in a few moments with only a screwdriver.

Each engine develops approximately 35 horsepower and is comparable in size to a large watermelon. The engines burn almost any type of low-cost fuel including lower grades of gasoline, kerosene, or diesel fuel oil.

Delivery is scheduled before June 1953.

44 Enrolled In CBR Course

Forty-four officers and men are enrolled in The Infantry Center Chemical, Biological and Radiological School's class No. 16 which opened last week.

The course provides the latest instruction in chemical, biological and radiological protective measures. Its purpose is to qualify at least one officer and NCO in each unit capable of taking the necessary steps to protect his unit in case of a chemical, biological or radiological attack.

The class is scheduled to graduate Nov. 21.

Colonel Easley served with the Third Infantry Division in Korea in 1950, and with Korean Military Advisory Group in 1951.

Long Time No See

With the First Marine Division in Korea (AFPS)— It's a small world in the Marine Corps as witnessed by one lieutenant who, within less than a week, did the following:

Spent some liberty hours in Japan with a paymaster he had not seen in 11 years; welcomed aboard his ship a master sergeant for whom he had worked as a clerk six years ago; reported in to his unit to serve with the same captain for whom he had worked for three years ending last December; turned over his personnel records to another lieutenant who had worked for him as a recruiting sergeant, and had the man in his replacement unit processed by another of his recruiters, now a liaison NCO.

'Hillbilly' Heyday Held At Airborne Company

Headquarters and Service Company of the Airborne Battalion had a hillbilly heyday when Ernest Tubb, famed star of "The Grand 'Ole Opry," visited his old partner and roomate, Larrupin' Lew Jenkins, lightweight champion of the world in 1940 and 1941, and now first sergeant of the company.

Writes Hit Songs

Ernest Tubb has been with the radio show, "Grand 'Ole Opry," for the last 10 years and has written many hillbilly songs, among them "Walkin' The Floor Over You," "Soldier's Last Letter," "It's Been So Long Darlin'", and among the many others, the less well known, "Wastin' My Life Away", which was dedicated to Sergeant Jenkins back in 1941.

Lew worked with Ernest Tubb in several of his shows over the years and accompanied him to movieland when Ernest made a move in 1942.

Sergeant Jenkins told of the time when Jimmy Rogers, America's original Blues Yodeller, died and left Ernest his $1500 guitar.

"Ernest sure lived up to the Rogers' tradition with that guitar," said Jenkins. Lew added "He's one of the best men that ever made good, and I've known a lot of men that made good. Why he's just a plain ol' country boy."

Battery Named 'Best' In 320th

It was erroneously reported in last week's Bayonet that 1st Lt. John W. Frye commanded Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion.

Lieutenant Frye actually commands Battery A of the 320th which received a plaque inscribed "Best Battery of the Month." The story also said that Sfc. Thomas U. Mulligan was a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Company. He is a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, and was named "Soldier of the Month" in the 320th.

AICOC Term Ends

Americans Can Be Sold

The most determined exercise of the rights of democratic citizenship ever demonstrated in the United States led a record of 60 million voters to the polls on November 4 — to exceed the previous (1940) national voting record by 10 million.

It is not the purpose of The Bayonet to explain this mass awakening in every section of a nation long apathetic to voting responsibilities. It is fitting, yes imperative, that every segment of the American free press applaud enthusiastically the national realization that "Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Racing through the 1952 election campaign was the biggest selling drive in the history of the most sales - conscious nation on earth. A nonprofit public service organization, the American Heritage Foundation, supported by some 50 civic, fraternal, commercial, educational and religious organizations, set out to sell every American on his heritage, his birthright — the ballot, the right for which millions of men in times past have died. That is The Reader's Digest expression of the objective.

For evaluation of the results of this sales drive that no one could escape, even if consciously unaware of the campaign's impact, it might well be said that no longer can the classic complaint of Thomas Jefferson be called upon to chastize the reluctant voter:

"My God!," Jefferson is frequently quoted, "how little do my countrymen know what precious blessings they are in possession of, and of which no other people on earth enjoy."

The Drought Still Threatens

The rains have come, but the frightful drought which threatens the Infantry Center's vast timber stands continues. According to Norman S. Force, post forester, at least one-half inch of rain was needed to afford relief, and that relief would last only about five days.

Unfortunately, the rainfall earlier this week fell short of the minimum needed. Unless more rain comes soon the reservation will again become a vast tinder box.

This military reservation has been fortunate in the drought so far. Considering the vast amounts of incendiary materials used in training here, the number of fires has been remarkably small.

But even this fact offers little comfort for only half of the fires occurred in impact areas. The others spread their destruction in non-impact areas. It was not the tracer bullet or the white phosphorus shell but rather the lighted match and the discarded cigarette which caused the most damage.

Many thousands of acres of timberland here have been set aside for commercial use and all are located in non-impact areas. Hence, every fire in these sections was a blow directly at the American taxpayer, and by taxpayer is meant every person in the Armed Forces.

The post forester has sounded a grim warning. Fort Benning, already gripped by its worst forest fire season, is entering the most critical phase. The number of fires thus far this month already equals the number of fires reported for the months of September and October. The pall of smoke that has clung so tenaciously in this area should be proof of this.

To help the forestry section combat this menace, Force has made several suggestions. The first ones are obvious. When in the woods, be extremely careful that all matches and cigarettes are completely out before discarding and be sure that all fires are thoroughly extinguished before they are abandoned. The other is report all fires immediately to the fire alarm switchboard (FB 2070) or directly to the post forester (FB 63225).

You are entitled to four types of educational and training benefits at government expense upon leaving military service. You may (1) enroll in schools or colleges; (2) take apprenticeship or other training on the job; (3) enroll in institutional on - farm training or other programs which combine school and job training; or (4) select correspondence courses. This article will deal with:

EDUCATIONAL TRAINING

You are entitled to 36 months of free schooling under the new GI Bill.

You will receive an education allowance each month from the government to assist school expenses and living costs.

Allowance Covers All Costs

Tuition, fees, books, supplies, and equipment will not be paid by the government. All expenses will be paid by you out of the monthly allowance you receive.

The rate of payment for veterans taking full - time training — more than 14 credit hours per week — is $110 without dependents; $135 for those with one dependent; and $160 for veterans with more than one dependent.

If you pursue a school program on a three-quarter time basis — approximately 10½ credit hours a week — allowance will be $80 for single veterans, $100 for veterans with one dependent, and $120 with more than two dependents.

Chaplain's Corner

"Don't Say Too Much"

BY CHAPLAIN
J. V. McHENRY

Somewhere along life's journey I picked up this little illustration: A minister was offering prayer in a home and during the prayer the voice of the 2½ yeear old boy was heard — "Preacher, don't say too much".

As I think of this I am reminded of the Words of the Master, "and in praying do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do; for they think that they will be heard for their many words".

In our prayers, both public and private, we are prone to say "too much to God". We include our good intentions and desires but we forget to wait for the still small voice and see if that is God's will also. Our intentions and desires often exceeds and preceeds our determinations. We are so busy doing this and that we have no time to wait upon the Lord. In order to cover up our deficiency we speak long and loud.

Don't say too much to God about being sorry for your sins unless you are determined to do something about them — namely to forsake them all.

Don't say too much to God about consecrating everything around you until it includes all of self.

Don't say too much to God about saving the sinners unless you are willing to speak to others about Christ.

Don't say too much to God about missions until you have given a sacrifically share.

Don't say too much to God about the Brotherhood of man until you have a deep concern for the minority group.

Don't say too much to God about these and other things which should be done unless YOUR will is there to march abreast with your desire, and your determination to see it through marches abreast with intentions. If you don't mean it, "don't say too much to God" about anything.

30 Per Cent of Soldiers In Korea Voted

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

At this time it appears that approximately 78,000 men — or 30 percent of the soldiers in Korea — voted in the recent presidential election. Voting cards were handed out to all soldiers fighting on the peninsula and about 40 percent used them to ask for absentee ballots. It is impossible to determine exactly how many soldiers received ballots, then mailed them out again. Officers put the figure at approximately 30 percent—a substantial figure considering the papers that had to be filled out, the distance separating the soldier from his local election board, and the hazards of transit.

A new program, to select up to 500 temporary second lieutenants, has been offered to sergeants and above, between 20 and 30 years old, who are high school graduates and have demonstrated officer qualities. Deadline for applications is Jan. 12, 1953. Marines given temporary commissions will be ordered to a five-month special basic course for officers at Quantico, Va. The new program, the Marine Corps stated, was not designed as a means of returning personnel to combat for a second tour of duty.

Russ Throw Block At Korea Peace Play

President-elect Dwight Eisenhower's determination to go personally to Korea in an effort to end the unrelenting war there took on greater significance Tuesday when two United Nations announcements clearly spelled out Russia's stubborn opposition to peace.

Russia told the UN it "will not budge an inch" from its demand that all Korean prisoners be exchanged, and warned that continued UN objections would "inevitably lead to the collapse" of the Panmunjom truce talks. Simultaneous with the issuance of these threats, UN Secretary General Trygve Lie submitted his resignation, declaring he'd had all he could take of buffeting from one side by the Kremlin and from the other by a U. S. congressional (McCarran) committee. Lie expressed hope his stepping aside would bring peace to Korea, an issue in which he had steadfastly supported the UN position.

In announcing the Soviet's three talks ultimatum, Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky also formally proposed creation of an 11-nation commission to supervise return of all POWs. An American spokesman promptly indicated the proposal was unacceptable. UN insistence on voluntary prisoner repatriation is the issue on which the truce negotiations have hung for months.

Despite non-partisan pleas for him to forego the proposed Korea trip to avoid exposing his life to the dangers of travel, General Eisenhower stuck to his campaign pledge, and the US Eighth Army began preparations for receiving the president-elect.

Meanwhile, the nation had closed ranks solidly behind the overwhelming election victor. President Truman invited his successor to be designate budgetary and diplomatic representatives to participate in policy shaping in the between-administration interim. General Eisenhower compiled naming Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts to liaison with Truman officials in State and Defense departments, and appointing Joseph M. Dodge, Detroit banker, as his budget advisor.

General Ike personally was attempting to obtain a spot of much needed relaxation. He and Mrs. Eisenhower, surrounded by his staff, were at a resort long their favorite—Bobby Jones' Augusta (Ga.) National Golf Club.

On The Bookshelf

THE NATURAL by Bernard Malamud. Harcourt, Brace and Company.

In this book, Bernard Malamud has raised all the passion and craziness and fanaticism of baseball to its ordained place in mythology. This is one of the few American novels that really uses popular folk material in the interest of serious fiction.

As the reader follows Roy Hobbs and his record-shattering baseball career he will find himself in bizarre company. There is Pop, the canny manager of the Knights who is always just on the brink of understanding Roy; Otto Zipp, the monosmaical midget whose life centers around his daily and merciless jeering of Roy; the Judge, owner of the Knights and a chilling figure of sanctimonious evil; and Max Mercy, the cooly suspicious sportswriter, relentlessly pursuing the secret of Roy's shadowy past.

The women who might have supplied clues are Memo, Pop's niece, for whose favor Roy has to compete with a dead man; Iris, who believed in Roy and Harriet Bird who had fired the bullet.

THEODORA AND THE EMPEROR by Harold Lamb. Doubleday and Company.

This is the story of the first notable man and wife team of modern history. Harold Lamb has said his story against the blazing background of Constantinople at the height of its domination of the civilized world. With meticulous attention to historical accuracy he has written a book filled with excitement and a feeling for drama.

He has told the story of Justinian laboring over the Corpus Juris, which has passed down as the very foundation of our modern laws; of the screaming crowds in the Hippodrome during the bloody Nika riots and of the fabulous church of Sancta Sophia, which rises towering to the skies.

So much history and adventure is unfolded that the book seems to have as many gleaming facets as a jewel worn by the incomparable Theodora herself.

Film Review

BLOODHOUNDS OF BROADWAY. . Mitzi Gaynor, Scott With Mitzi Gaynor providing plenty of bounce to the ounce, this Damon Runyon yarn evolves as a pleasant combination of music and comedy that frequently hits high levels of hilarity. Family. Musical-comedy.

MONTANA BELLE. . Jane Russell, George Brent, Scott Brady, Forrest Tucker. Outlaws Belle Starr and the Dalton boys team up to rob a gambling hall of $50,000. Operator George Brent sets a trap for the boys but his plans fail to work out as he intended. Family. Western.

THE FOUR POSTER. . Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer, Stanley Kramer has again produced a picture that does not fit into any routine slot. The two-character story hews closely to the line of the Broadway stage success as it relates the history of the trials and tribulations of a marriage. Deft of touch, the film's novel touches in the way of various sequences to serve as narrative links between the episodes. Mature. Drama.

TORPEDO ALLEY. . Mark Stevens, Dorothy Malone, Charles Winninger. Mark Stevens starts out as a misfit in the Navy but eventually proves himself as a member of a submarine crew. Family. Service drama.

TROPICAL HEAT WAVE. . Estelita Rodriguez, Robert Hutton. When a racketeer decides to take over her uncle's night club, Estelita has a busy time trying to save her uncle, her boyfriend and help round up the racketeers. Family. Melodrama.

SKY FULL OF MOON. . Jan Sterling, Carleton Carpenter, Keenan Wynn. Carleton Carpenter's one great dream is to enter the famous Las Vegas Kelldorado Rodeo but the little matter of getting together the entry fee has him stopped until he meets Jan Sterling. Family. Comedy-drama.

First and Last CO of Outfit Team For CTC

The first and last officer to command the same Infantry company in Korea fighting are now working side by side in the Combat Training Command here.

The first commander of Company C, 24th Infantry Regiment, 25th Infantry Division in Korea was Maj. Laurence M. Corcoran, now S-3 of CTC. Maj. Albert J. Parker, recently assigned as assistant S-3, was in command of the same company at the time it was absorbed into the 14th Infantry Regiment.

Major Corcoran was in command of the company when the Korea war broke out, and he took the company to Korea in July 1950. Maj. Parker became commander of Company C in August 1951, and led it until deactivation in October 1951.

Neither officer met until assigned to the same office here, although both have family ties in Buffalo, N. Y. Buffalo is Major Corcoran's home and the home of a sister of Major Parker.

While in command of the company during three months of the heaviest fighting in Korea, Major Corcoran received the Silver Star with Cluster to top a series of decorations that include the Bronze Star Medal, Commendation Ribbon, Purple Heart with Cluster, Combat Infantry Badge, Presidential Unit Citation and Korean Presidential Citation. 'Talkathon' Speeds Language Learning

The longest-winded people in the world probably are a select group of soldiers who jabber almost incessantly in tongues that few Americans would understand.

These soldiers are students of the Army Language School at Monterey, Calif., which uses the "talkathon" system to teach 24 languages. Each week at least 45 hours are devoted to speaking what they learn.

Speed Is Keynote

Purpose of the system is to teach foreign tongues as quickly as possible. Graduates serve in foreign countries as interpreters, prisoners-of-war interrogators, military intelligence specialists, translators, military attaches and members of American missions and advisory groups to foreign countries.

Courses are offered in Russian, Far Eastern, Middle - Eastern - Slavic and Romanic - Germanic languages. Most are given in 46 weeks, but the Romanic - German languages are taught in 23. Both long and short courses are given in Russian.

All Talk Foreign

From the time they enter the classroom until they leave, Army Language School students talk in foreign tongues.

They examine sand table models of foreign lands, and memorize names of the various objects on the models. They also learn foreign technical and military terms, and listen to lectures on the history, geography and customs of the countries whose languages they are studying. They see foreign movies, hear foreign broadcasts an read foreign newspapers.

Supervised Study

During supervised study periods, classrooms and dormitories become typical "Towers of Babel" with busy students recording their voices in Hungarian, Arabic, Albanian, Turkish, Korean and many other tongues. They correct their speech by listening to commercial foreign language records.

Students — most of whom are volunteers — range from 17 to middle - age and in rank from private to colonel. Though soldiers list their choices for study, the languages they learn are dictated by needs of the service.

Almost all instructors are natives of the country whose language they teach, and most are recent resident of their native lands. (AFPS).

Three Veteran Chaplains Take Airborne Training

Three Chaplains who served together in Korea came to the Airborne Battalion and are taking Airborne training with Headquarters and Service Company.

Chaplains (Lt. Col.) Ottoman H. Tietjen, (Maj.) John A. Lindvall, and (Capt.) James V. Coleman were together in the combat zone with the 40th Infantry Division.

World War II Service

Colonel Tietjen has been with the army since 1943 and spent 10 months overseas with the 37th Infantry Division during World War II. He was division chaplain for the 40th Infantry in Korea.

Major Lindvall joined the armed forces in 1944 and served in Europe with the 143rd Regiment of the 36th Infantry Division, before going to Korea with the 160th Infantry Regiment of the 40th.

Captain Coleman was a company commander in the 34th Infantry Division in Italy during the last war, after joining the armed forces in 1941. He was discharged from the Army and finished seminary school, and on his recall to the service he went into the Chaplain's Corps and was assigned to the 40th Infantry.

Personal Decorations

Colonel Tietjen wears the Silver Star with the Oak Leaf Cluster, Major Lindvall and Captain Coleman wear Bronze Stars and the Oak Leaf Cluster, and Captain Colenan wears the Purple Heart, which he received in Italy.

Former Assistant Division Commander of the 82nd Airborne Division and organizer of the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment, Brig. Gen. Joseph Cleland, commanded the 40th Infantry Division in Korea. It was he who persuaded the three chaplains to vaolunteer for Airborne training.

Colonel Tietjen and Major Lindvall are assigned to the 82nd Airborne while Captain Coleman is assigned to the 11th.

CHAPLAINS GO AIRBORNE . . . Chaplain (Lt. Col.) O. H. Tietjen, left and Chaplain (Maj.) J. A. Lindvall ride a 105mm howitzer into an airplane-mock-up as Chaplain (Capt.) J. V. Coleman directs driver from the rear. Sgt. S. A. Bridgewater is instructing the group in loading gear.

New Program Aims At Improving I & E

Why are you in uniform?

In an effort to answer this question satisfactorily, the Armed Forces has begun a long - range plan to strengthen its information and education program. The project is designed to improve the reading materials used by the Services and to provide young officers with a greater degree of leadership.

Under the sponsorship of the Fund for the Advancement of Education of the Ford Foundation, the program is expected to take a year to complete. The Department of Defense is cooperating in the project.

Two specific programs are planned: first to analyze and evaluate the materials used in camps and installations, and second, to improve the caliber of the young officers coming out of the Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Survey Conducted

During the past year, the Ford Foundation undertook a national survey of the Armed Forces I&E program. As a result of this preliminary study, Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg conferred with Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, president of the Fund, and agreed that the Foundation continue with its overall survey.

In the present project, field workers will investigate the I&E programs at camps throughout the nation, and in Europe. Books and pamphlets will be examined for content, how they are used, and what steps might be taken to improve them.

Plan Trial Programs

The foundation also plans to establish trial programs at three or four ROTC units to study the training of future officers. After a period of time, similar study groups may be established at each of the 800 ROTC units in action.

Mrs. Rosenberg, commenting on the studies, said, "We need an educated, informed citizenry. Many of the men in military service may want to go back to school, and many others have been drafted and plunged into a new kind of life. They have given up their education, their civilian pursuits and their earning power. The questions arise to disturb them: Why they? Why not someone else? It is essential. . . we give them answers." — (AFPS)

Laundry Deduction Plan Receives EM Support

BY CPL. CHUCK CALLAHAN

A recent survey of quartermaster laundry activities here shows that enlisted personnel at The Infantry Center are utilizing the new payroll deduction plan for laundry and dry cleaning work by Quartermaster laundries.

A 90-day experimental program was put into effect here the first of September allowing enlisted personnel to pay for laundry and dry cleaning services through a payroll deduction plan. Prior to this program cash payment was required for all work done by Quartermaster laundries.

"Pilot Program"

Since the "pilot program" was started September 1, the number of laundry bundles prepared by QM laundries has steadily increased, according to Col. William R. Fields, Infantry Center Quartermaster.

During August, the last month of the cash and carry plan, 7,924 laundry bundles were prepared by the laundries at Fort Benning.

In September, first month of the new program, 9,556 bundles were processed at the laundries, and, in October, 10,382 bundles.

Future Brightens

Colonel Fields announced that increased production at the laundries gives hope that the new program will be continued past the 90-day trial period. The trial period ends this month.

The new program, based on a program in effect prior to introduction of the cash and carry system, is on a strictly experimental basis, Colonel Fields emphasized. Army-wide adoption depends upon the acceptance by Third Army personnel, he pointed out.

During the past three months, a total of seven Third Army installations have participated in the plan.

Plan Not New

The payroll deduction plan is not new in Army procedure. It was the system used for Quartermaster laundry collections prior to May 1, 1951, when the cash and carry system was inaugurated.

Under the new payroll deduction system, soldiers not only have the option of choosing the system of payment they will use but, according to Colonel Fields, enjoy a considerably lower rate than heretofore possible under the cash and carry plan.

The new system provides for a flat rate to be charged monthly to the individual participating soldier. He is allowed a maximum of four bundles per month, with a maximum on the number of pieces included in each bundle.

Because of this limitation and because the payroll deduction plan eliminates a sizeable part of the administrative responsibilities at Quartermaster laundries, officials say exceptionally lower rate can be offered.

Similar lower rates are available on garments processed here at the Quartermaster dry cleaning plant.

Schedule of Charges

The following charges, now in effect under the experimental program, will remain in effect if the payroll deduction plan is adopted by QM laundries at the end of the month:

1. Monthly flat rate for laundry bundles containing not more than 25 pieces, exclusive of laundry bag, and not in excess of one bundle per week — $3.00.

2. Monthly flat rate for dry cleaning not to exceed three pieces per month — $1.00. (One uniform, jacket and trousers, is considered as one piece by the laundries).

Flat Bundle Rate

3. Flat bundle rate for laundry bundles containing not more than 25 pieces, exclusive of laundry bag — $1.00.

4. Flat bundle rate for laundry bundles containing not more than 12 pieces, exclusive of laundry bag — 50 cents (on a cash basis only).

Enlisted personnel electing to use laundry and dry cleaning service at the monthly flat rate, who during the month are transferred to a station within any of the other five Army areas where Quartermaster laundry facilities are available, will be entitled to laundry and/or dry cleaning service for the remainder of the month without additional cost, states the Post Quartermaster.

Four End Medical Course At Hospital

Four students in the medical and surgical technicians class No. 16 at the U. S. Army Hospital have received certificates of completion from Col. Mack M. Green, hospital commander.

The graduates completed six weeks of training at the Medical Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, before coming here for eight weeks advanced training.

The four technicians are scheduled for overseas duty as combat aid men.

Graduates were: Pvt. Leslie R. Cook of Blackburn, Mo.; Pvt. James D. Forsum of Anderson, at 1705 Cascade Road, S. W. Atlanta, Ga.; and Pvt. Kenneth L. Hall of Volga, S. D.

2nd DIVISION MEET

The Second Division Association of Fort Benning will hold a "get together" at the Five Runt Club Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. Capt. W. R. Gordon, chairman of the membership committee, said the meeting will include a short business session, then show social hour and refreshments.

Airmen Learn Way To Get The Jump

Twenty-six Air Force men are taking The Infantry School's basic airborne course here in preparation for taking over the TIS Airborne Department's pathfinder operations.

The airmen are the first to start training for pathfinder operations since this activity was assigned to the Air Force by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The pathfinder team is the forerunner and leading element of all airborne combat jumps. Its mission is to precede the main body of jump troops. The pathfinders immediately mark the drop zone and prepare the terrain for the men and equipment scheduled to land close behind them.

Pathfinders had their beginning early in World War II when all U. S airborne operations were in the experimental stage. Paratroopers, at that time, were dropped on ground unfamiliar to the pilots of their planes and did not always land in the desired area, and losses were heavy in comparison to those experienced in recent combat jumps, according to Airborne Department officials.

Casualty Rate Drops

Pathfinder teams have been recognized as important in decreasing the casualty rate among airborne troops. As locating the drop zone and dropping paratroopers directly over this area is the responsibility of the Air Force, the Joint Chiefs of Staff decided more efficient results would be obtained by placing pathfinder operations under Air Force control.

The Airborne Department will continue to conduct the basic airborne course, according to Lt. Col. Richard Seitz, director.

Retired General Sets Speeches

Brig. Gen. (retired) Marcus B. Bell of Columbus spoke to the graduating class at The Infantry School yesterday and will address another today.

Yesterday he addressed approximately 93 officers graduating from associate Infantry officers advanced class No. 1. Today he is scheduled to address 108 Infantry officer candidates who will be commissioned as second lieutenants.

The 15-week associate advance course opened in July, while the 22-week officer candidate course began June 6.

Men's Chorus Sets Thanksgiving Event

A special Thanksgiving Day musicale has been scheduled by the Fort Benning Men's Chorus.

The newly formed group under the direction of Pfc. Stanley Russel has been holding practice sessions at Main Post Service Club since the beginning of October.

Private Russell was a music major at the New England Conservatory of Music and later served as assistant choir director of the Church of the Advent and Saint James Episcopal Church in Boston. Just before entering the Army he was named director of the famed Brettan Woods Boy Choir of New Hampshire.

Cooks Cook Up Thrifty Taste Tips

Food Service School Idea 'Clinic' Pays

BY GEORGE FERNADEZ

"In direct contradiction to the old adage, Third Army Area Food Service School officials find that the more cooks, the better the broth.

School officials say the time-saving methods and tasty, eye-appealing dishes concocted at the School are often the result of an exchange of ideas between instructors and students.

The Food School, which turns out 30 cooks every 3 weeks and 36 bakers every 11 weeks, finds this interchange of ideas is good for everyone concerned — including the lucky soldier that winds up on the receiving end of the food.

Tips To Housewives

Many of the ideas developed and practiced by instructors at their school can be translated into tips for busy housewives or lonely soldiers who find themselves "bridge widowers" once or twice a week and must do their own cooking.

M-Sgt. James A. Horn, Jr., of Bay Springs, Miss., a meat cutting and cooking instructor, offers a bit of valuable advice to the housewife with one chicken and four children, all of whom like drumsticks. He says that if "you follow this advice when cutting the chicken, you'll end up with four drumsticks, the two real ones and two mock drumsticks which look like the real McCoy.

(1) Remove the two real drumsticks. (2) Remove the wings, cutting a portion of the breast meat around the wing joints. (3) Cut off the wing tip, split the web and bend back the two sections until they snap.

There are now four drumsticks. In fact, Sergeant Horn claims there's an advantage in this type drumstick — it's about one inch longer than regular ones.

Trial and Error

The trial and error method has proven to Army cooks in the field that they don't need baking powder to cook pancakes. They substitute soda and yingar or any citrus juice.

Another trick with lemon juice used by the Army chefs is to sprinkle small quantities on the surface of meat or fowl before cooking. The protein in meat contracts in cooking and causes meat to become tough. The acid in the lemon juice keeps the protein from contracting and tenderizes the meat or fowl.

Emphasis On Taste

At one time, salt and pepper constituted the complete seasoning in any Army dish. This is no longer true. Army chefs are becoming familiar with a large variety of condiments and spices, including bay leaf, thyme, oregano and rosmary. Emphasis now is being placed on the importance of preparing food in the most palatable manner possible and still retaining variety in the daily menu.

Sergeant Horn also warns against dull cutlery which, he claims destroys food cells in vegetables. As a good check on the sharpness of knives, he suggests that the housewife slice through a wedge of lettuce and let it remain overnight in the icebox. If the leaves are brown and deteriorating the next morning, he warns that "you better get your steel and stone. Your knife has torn, not cut, and in tearing had destroyed all the food cells in the vegetable."

Both Sergeant Horn and a fellow instructor, Sfc. William T. Allen, list a roast meat slicer, French knife, all - purpose butcher knife and paring knife as essentials in the cutlery line. And to the housewife who can afford a fifth piece of cutlery, they suggest a five-inch boning knife.

Cooking with too much heat is the cardinal sin of most housewives, according to Sergeant Allen who says:

"Remember when your mother used to put a pot of string beans on the back burner of the stove in the morning and let them cook all day? They tasted wonderful, but from a nutrition standpoint they were practically worthless."

Vegetables Fragile

Vegetables are fragile, he says, and need only to be tenderized. The least amount of cooking, consistent with tenderness, therefore, is desirable. He teaches his students to cook vegetables, fresh or frozen, in boiling, salted water, and claims that it is not necessary to thaw before cooking.

After dropping the vegetables into boiling water, he advises the housewife to wait for the water to reach a second boil, then reduce the heat and simmer until vegetables are tender.

"If you're one of those people who peels potatoes and carrots before you cook them, your garbage can is getting more nutrient value out of your grocery bill than you," Allen declares. "Half the vitamins are thrown away, and the other half diluted considerably by overcooking, before the potatoes ever reach the table."

The same is true when rice or spaghetti is washed after cooking, he says. Rice should be washed thoroughly before cooking, but never after, Sergeant Allen warns.

Liquid for Sauces

Most housewives know that the liquids in which meats or vegetables have been cooked are good for soup stock. Sergeant Allen believes too few cooks think to use vegetable liquors as the liquid in vegetable sauces. Since the flavor of the vegetables is retained in the cooking water, it follows that the flavor of the sauce would be improved by its use, he says.

Sergeants Horn and Allen add one last word on serving food "Garnishes on serving dishes or trays are just as important as the food itself."

Three Burma Officers Visit School Here

Three Burmese Army officers arrived here Monday for a four-day visit to The Infantry School.

They are Brig. Gen. Kyaw Winn, Burmese Army adjutant general, Lt. Col. San Yu and Maj. Yi Aye who will study the school's methods of instruction and operation.

The Burmese officers conferred Wednesday with Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., The Infantry School's assistant commandant, and received orientation on the school. They also are to inspect classrooms and the Academic Library and visit the Automotive Department.

Thursday's itinerary calls for a tour of the Airborne and Communications Departments, following which they will observe several Infantry School training problems. U. S. Army Col. H. K. Davis is accompanying the Burmese Army officers on their visit.

Ex-KMAG Men Attend Reunion

Nine former members of the Korean Military Advisory Group, now stationed here, attended a reunion of that group Nov. 8 in Washington, D. C.

They are Lt. Col. Edward J. Barta of The Infantry School Staff Department, Lt. Col. G. C. Painter, Provost Marshal Office's executive officer, Lt. Col. J. D. Holland, G-3 executive officer, Major Estes L. Yates, Headquarters Commandant executive officer, Major John W. Morley, The Infantry School student, Major R. C. Potter, The Infantry School student, Major N. K. Maxwell, special audits branch; Major W. K. White, Training Publications Department, and Capt. G. W. Sprenz, Engineer Committee, The Infantry School.

Mrs. Estes Yates, who served as secretary to KMAG's commander, Brig. Gen. William L. Roberts, in Seoul, also will attend the meeting in Washington.

'Point Grads Take Airborne Training

The Airborne Battalion is playing host to 110 1953 graduates of the United States Military Academy who are currently taking airborne training.

The second lieutenants, members of Class No. 19, are scheduled to graduate Dec. 7. They volunteered for airborne training as a body, the class, as one of its goals said, their believe that "airborne is the up-and-coming method of warfare."

FIREMAN COMPARES PAPER, PLYWOOD MAPS
L. W. Irvin Built Huge Map For Firehouse

Wooden Map Saves Firemen's Minutes

Probably nowhere is the saving of a minute more important than at a fire station. The fire-fighters of Station No. 5 in Harmony Church have created a device credited with saving one to two minutes on every emergency call.

The device is a gigantic map of the Harmony Church area, hand drawn and painted by the civilian employees of the fire station. The map shows in detail all buildings, identified by numbers, training fields, ranges, highways, and ponds.

Its eight by 16 feet are covered with a background of black paint covered with enamel markings — white blocks and numerals, representing buildings, white lines indicating roads which are ranged in black and yellow letters indicating ranges, fields, and ponds.

Replaces Paper Map

A paper map of the area, approximately one fourth the size of the plywood map, was previously used. "Buildings were almost impossible to locate and identify, especially at night," says Fire Chief Gilbert A. Ward. Identifying numerals on the paper map are about the size of a pencil point.

Chief Ward credits the map with saving from one to two minutes in starting the fire engines on an emergency call. With flourescent lamps lighting the device, building numbers can be read almost immediately, day or night, he says.

He also explains that its large size and clear markings aid in training new employees.

The man credited with creating the huge map, which covers almost one wall of the fire house, is Fireman Isaac W. Irwin, a civilian.

Irwin picked up the idea from a similar but smaller map located in the Sand Hill fire station. With Chief Wards permission he secured plywood from the Army Engineers. Post Fire Inspector Jack Garrett, who installed the Sand Hill map, served in an advisory capacity and helped sketch the Harmony Church area in pencil.

The three shifts of station No. 5 contributed manual labor during duty hours when routine work had been completed. Irwin supervised the project and completed the work, painting the numerous markings. The fire fighters contributed money to purchase the special paints used.

Completed In Four Months

The map was completed in four months, the work being done on a piecemeal basis. Since its installation in November last year the map has drawn praise from a Third Army fire inspector, numerous visiting dignitaries, and in several I. G. inspections. Visitors to Harmony Church often stop by the fire station to locate destinations from the sketch.

Irwin, who has been employed by the Fort Benning Fire Department for 27 months, is a six year veteran of World War II. He served in the C.B.I. theater with the Air Force.

Lawson Fund Drive Hits 95 Per Cent

Lawson Air Force Base ended its Community Chest drive Nov. 4 with a total base participation of 95 per cent for military personnel and 75 per cent for civilian employes.

Lt. Norman L. Bussiere, Base Personal Affairs officer and chairman for the drive, reported that a great turn-over of personnel at the base while the drive was being conducted caused the five per cent shortage in the military contributions.

The Lawson drive, conducted in cooperation with The Infantry Center campaign, began on Sept. 29.

The static display included recoilless rifles, mortars, machine guns and "personal equipment issued to soldiers in combat also was on exhibit.

In Americus, Ga., Lt. Col. John R. Emery was principal speaker at a ceremony sponsored by the John D. Mathis American Legion Post No. 2. Colonel Emery spoke on the significance of Armistice Day in 1952 from a speaker's platform erected in front of the Americus post office.

His address followed a parade and memorial service held in Americus.

Military and civilian personnel, other than those taking part in the ceremonies and those necessary for operation of the post, were given a holiday in observance of Armistice Day.

Leave

The Christmas leave policy will affect certain groups of men.

Those undergoing basic training in a training division, replacement training center, or general reserve unit cannot be granted Christmas leave.

Those whose duties are in support of basic training cannot be granted Christmas leave.

Leave may be granted others from 8 a.m. Dec. 20 to 8 a.m. Jan. 5, if they can be spared.

Despite the fact that basic trainees and those in direct support of them will have no leave over Christmas, authorities pointed out that Christmas and New Year's Day are holidays for all personnel, and basic trainees will be off on these two days.

Provost Marshals Hold Conference

Lt. Col. Alonzo E. Wood, Infantry Center provost marshal, has returned to Fort Benning from Fort McPherson, Ga., where he attended a three-day conference on Third Army provost marshal and military police activities.

Lt. Gen. Alexander R. Boling, Third Army commander, opened the conference.

Provost marshals of all Third Army installations addressed the group and led discussions. Colonel Wood led a discussion on training of military policemen for combat duty.

Awards were presented Thursday to the winners of the Infantry School Detachments Badminton and Table Tennis tournaments by Col. Donald Washington, commanding officer.

A plaque was presented to 1st Lt. Billy Kountree, company commander of Company E, for winning the badminton crown. Easy Company dominated the tournament since both the singles and doubles champions came from that unit.

Pvt. Toshio Hirano won the singles crown, and then combined with Pvt. Raymond H. Steans to take doubles honors.

The ISD table-tennis title was won by Cpl. Henry T. Johnson of Company C, while the doubles crown went to Sgt. C. Kuhn and Sgt. Roy Beard, both of whom are serving with Company H of the Airborne Battalion.

Tourniquet Use Undergoes Change

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The military use of the tourniquet may undergo a revolutionary change, according to a recent report prepared by the National Research Council.

Accepted by the Armed Forces Medical Policy Council, the report's recommendations represent a complete about-face from tourniquet procedures used in WWII. At that time it was the practice of the medics to release a tourniquet for five minutes every half hour.

This method, according to the report, is "unwise as well as unnecessary," Reasoning that the patient has probably lost large amounts of blood already, it is illogical to loosen the tourniquet so that he might lose more blood.

"Experience has shown," the report states, "that a properly applied tourniquet may be allowed to remain undisturbed even for three or four hours with relatively little risk—"

This new concept of the tourniquet is currently being written into Service training manuals.

Civilian, Soldier Win Unit Awards

A civilian, soldier and company were honored at a retreat review held by the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion last week. Maj. John Herina, battalion commander, made the presentations.

Frank P. Nelson, representing the Signal Corps Laboratories in Long Island, New York, was presented with a letter of commendation by Major Herina for his contributions in constructing of Mock Village.

Company B was selected as Honor Company of the week for the second straight week and was presented with the Honor Plaque, which was accepted by Pfc. John W. Hardeman, Soldier of the Week. Company "B" amassed a total of 85 points based on Saturday's full field inspection and was selected for its outstanding and meritorious service for the week.

LOOK OUT MAN . . . That's what Bill Dietz, (34), carrying ball, is yelling to teammate Dale Ems, (42), after taking pitchout from quarterback Gary Mattocks. Dietz chalked up 20 yards on this play before stopped by Green Wave tacklers. Harry Mantzouranis, (33), Greenie fullback is in background.

508th Shutout Greenies ,25-0

The Fort Benning Football League warfare has entertained an estimated 66,000 fans in the seven campaigns played thus far, but Sunday's game in which the 508th Airborne shut the ISD-ASU Green Wave, 25-0, drew the smallest crowd, 6,500.

Maybe the football crowd did not come out because they read that Charlie Leonard ace Greenie quarterback, was on the injured list and might not play.

The Wave without the Florida A & M passing star, just did not have it, in their air or ground departments. The 508th out ran, out passed, and out played the high spirited Greenies.

during the initial half of the season, the ISD-ASU eleven upset the Red Devils, 28-21, with a tremendous aerial attack.

Leonard, who threw 40 passes and completed 18 of them, caught the airborne without a pass defense. The Greenies tried, for awhile, to pull off the same stunt using Bob Milgrim and Ed. Hansen, both capable passers, but to no avail.

The Red Devils, who it was rumored used a volley-ball net in perfecting a pass defense, intercepted six Greenie aerials, three of them Hansen's and the others belonging to Milgrim.

They also had a few passes thrown and completed. Gary Mattocks, their first-string signal caller, threw 13 heaves. He completed one for 13 yards, another for seven, and a third to Dale Ems, but they lost a yard on that play. One of his heaves was intercepted by Mel Greenie center.

Hansen also was in there pitching and he completed a 37 yard pass to Pete Overton, who was stopped by the backfield to an end run.

The Greenies started slowly. They were stopped into an early punt, but Bill Stetter end run by fullback Dick Raber, and Bill Stetter caught the pass. The attempt was [illegible] TD came after [illegible] Bill Fortner

A punt by Hansen of the Green Wave anchored the ball in Devils' territory on the ten yard stripe. Bill Dietz, who was thwarted on his ground gaining attempts by Fred Felbaum, tried to bring the ball upfield. One attempt was good for a yard, but the next play dropped Dietz for a two yard loss.

On the next play, a bale off right tackle opened up and Dale Ems,

Top Boxers Scrap Next Thurs. Night

Come one, come all. See the big boxing extravaganza at Briant Wells Field House next Thursday night. See the champions, George Allen, Ben Robinson, James Boyd, Ernest Hall, Len James, Leander Ray.

Yes sir, fans, a top notch fight card is slated with five Class One bouts on tap.

The Benning fighters will be scrapping in earnest for they know that a good showing gives them a chance to represent the post on Dec. 18 against a Jacksonville Navy boxing team in an All-Star card at Briant Wells.

King-Robinson

The first top notch bout will feature Jack King of First Student Regiment against ASU's light heavyweight, Ben Robinson. A veteran campaigner, Robinson has a two and two record for this seasons warfare.

He lost to Claude Chapman and to Gene White, but scored two wins over Lou Barnes of First S. R. by one a TKO. King in his only fight this year stopped Tommy Bridges of CTC in 1:39 of the first round with a left to the stomach and a right to the jaw.

Boyd-Miller

James Boyd, another First S. R. heavy, takes on Tommy Miller of ISD in another bout. Boyd, who is Benning's light heavyweight champ, was on the losing end in his two fights with ASU'S Chapman. Miller is a newcomer to Benning boxing, but has an impressive record.

Hall-Parker

Ernest Hall, welterweight champion from last year's ring battles, takes on Willie Parker of CTC. Hall so far this year has decisioned William Russell of ASU.

Allen-Kawasaki

Bantamweight champion George Allen of ASU meets Nori Kawasaki of 508th Airborne for the fourth time in their ring careers. Both boys have met once before this season with the spindly titleholder winning the decision.

Allen has also beaten Joe Clark of First S. R.

James-Way

Len James, featherweight titlist from First S. R. tests Leander Ray of ASU. The Frat champion beat Ray Kiley of 508th a few weeks ago.

In Class Two competition Rudolph Chiles of ASU meets Gordon Van Loo, First S. R. light middleweight, and Jimmy Bevins, another First S. R. boy, takes on Elmer Blair of CTC in another middleweight scrap.

Van Loo and Chiles have met once before with Van Loo scoring a TKO. He has also beaten John Cassiliano with a one round knockout and scored a split decision over Willie Parker.

Chiles stopped Tillman Davis with a second round TKO.

Blair decisioned William Russell two weeks ago and knocked out David Carter in this year's battles.

Lewis Joins Raiders A&R As Trainer

James C. Lewis has been added to the ASU Provisional Group A & R staff, rounding out the sports activities staff as an athletics trainer.

A former groundskeeper for the Indianapolis baseball club, Lewis brings with him knowledge of baseball, having been workout man and trainer, and some know how about boxing.

Having ten years experience in A & R activities, he is presently acting as trainer for the 1610-ASU Green Wave and is adding his skills to comforting the Raiders boxing team.

Baseball season will roll around next year and Lewis will probably be out there umpiring since he attended the Baseball Umpires School conducted by George Barr in Japan.

Third Bn. Tops OC Regt. In Touch Football

Touch football filled the week's athletic bill-in intra-battalion competition in the First Officer Candidate Regiment with the First and Third Battalions turning in six games for the week.

The round robin tournament will determine champions who will meet for the regimental title on December 10-15.

The 19th O. C. Company jumped into an early lead for the Third Battalion crown, winning three games and losing none. They downed the 18th O. C. Company, 6-0, then beat the 20th Company, 19-2. In a return game with the 18th, the 19th football team scored a touchdown in the second half to win 6-0.

In the other Third Battalion games, 18th defeated the 20th, 6-0.

First Battalion competition saw 5th O. C. Company nose out 6th O. C., 12-10. Two days later the 6th O. C. boys shutout the 2nd O. C. Company, 14-0.

No other action was reported in the Second and Fourth Battalions.

508th Fly South For Marines Go

The 508th Airborne Red Devils take off for the Southlands tomorrow for their third non-league football game, tangling with the powerful Miami Marines Saturday afternoon in that Florida burg.

In their other two scraps, the airborne eleven dropped an 18-13 decision to the 505th Airborne, but defeated the Jacksonville Navy team, 26-0.

Still high-spirited and crowing about the loss they handed the 1610-ASU the Devils' embark on Old Junker with seven of their players out because of injuries.

Injured Listed

Backfield men Paul Bucey, Gene Cain, Bill Redmond and Gil Downey are on the maimed list with Redmond and Downey turning in cracked numbers and cleats. Bucey is hobbling around with an ankle bum and Cain suffered a dislocated shoulder in the Greenie fracas.

Linesmen Bill Buza, captain of the Red Devils, George Hale and Morris Corbin are also disabled. Buza has a bad bruise on his heel, Hale suffered a broken jaw in the Greenie clash and Corbin has a dislocated elbow.

The 508th line which held the Green Wave to only 93 yards gained rushing is solid throughout, especially when they have a group of ends who are versatile and dependable.

Versatile Ends

Ken Branson, Willis Hames, Bill Fortner, Pete Overton, Jim Trado, Bill Beem and George Hale are all capable receivers and blockers. But besides being all that, Coach Jim Phillips can switch them to the backfield or any other position except the middle of the line.

Branson at times is called upon for his passing. Hames and Fortner may drop back into the defensive unit as linebackers. Overton has an educated toe and does a lot of the Devils punting. Trado, though hampered by a fractured wrist, is tops on pass defense. Beem is a 220-pound blocker and Hale, as mentioned earlier, is out with a broken jaw.

The Miami, Fla., Marines are going to be a tough opponent for the 508th. The Leathernecks have knocked off Pensacola Navy and held the Miami University "B" team to one touchdown.

The Lineups:

First Sarge In MP's Helps Wave Defense

Now is the chance for all you tigers to get even with your first sergeants . . . just go out for the football team.

Master Sergeant Ken Quart, was recently appointed first sergeant of the Military Police Detachment. He performs his duties in the morning and in the afternoon dons uniform number 51 and takes his place in the ASU-ISD Green Wave line.

The 27-year old Detroit athlete is spending his second season on an Army football team, having played one year with the Fort Devens, Mass., 7th Infantry Div., football squad.

Six-feet, 215 pounds, Quart has been one of the more active Greenie players when it comes to stopping enemy runners.

A veteran of the Korean Campaign, Quart holds the Korean Service Medal with three battle stars, United Nations' Ribbon and the Korean Presidential Unit Citation.

103rd Scores 12-7 Win In 2nd SR Football

The 103rd Company stayed off a second half rally by the 115th to gain a 12-7 Second Student Regiment Touch Football League victory.

The winners held a 12-0 lead at halftime, but the 115th tightened its defense and perked up an attack that outplayed the 103rd in the second half.

Lanky Jimmy Christopher, former Oklahoma Aggie baseballer, who also played Class C pro ball, threw scoring strikes to Francis Cash and Lester Tyler for the 103rd.

John Reeves' passing sparked the 115th in the second half. The University of Wyoming gridder who played four years and starred in the Gator Bowl threw to Frank Frizen on a 69-yard pass play in the third quarter. Frizen, ex-Mt. Norbert College star, covered some 50 yards with a run after taking the pass.

New A&R Boss Wants Bigger Sports Turnout

Increased athletic competition with post teams and more extensive sports activities within the regiment is the goal of the recently assigned A & R officer of the First Officer Candidate Regiment, 2nd Lt. Edwin E. Gulsvig.

Gulsvig has issued a call for volunteers to fill vacancies on two projected bowling teams entered in the post tournament which started Tuesday, and for a regimental basketball team.

Bowling and basketball competition is open to enlisted men and officer candidates.

A round-robin basketball tournament is planned for OC companies in November, while playoffs to determine the regimental champion in company touch football will be held December 10-15.

Gulsvig, 24-year-old, was graduated with OC Class 29 on September 26. A native of Erdahl, Minn., he holds a BA degree in economics from Concordia College where he lettered in football and basketball. After graduation in 1950, he coached football and basketball at Moose Lake high school, Minn., before his induction into the Army.

Council Decides To Hold Boxing Every Other Week

The Special Services Council to an informal meeting last night at their Doughboy Stadium headquarters voted to hold amateur boxing every other Thursday evening at Briant Wells Field House instead of the usual weekly matches due to the increasing difficulty in getting full fight cards and matching boxers.

The next amateur boxing for Fort Benning fight fans is on Thursday, Nov. 20.

The boxing board, which is composed of managers and coaches from the six teams on post, submitted the recommendation to the council through Maj. Gene Myers, Special Services sports officer.

When the boxing moguls meet every Friday afternoon, they find that the pugilists are so distributed in their various classes and weights that matching the boys against each other is quite a job.

Five Heavyweights

An example of the situation exists in the First Student Regiment's boxing stable. Jerry Perlman, who is the Blackhirts' guiding genius, has four heavyweights out with a broken jaw for the rest of the season.

The Thanksgiving Day game between the 508th and Special Troops Rams has a starting tie of 2:30 instead of the usual 2 p.m. kickoff time . . . That is so you can have a few more minutes to digest your turkey . . .

The Central High school band of Phenix City had a few representatives in uniform playing for the crowd . . . Smallest crowd of the year at Doughboy Stadium . . . Total estimated attendance so far is 66,000 for seven games.

LOU FAVLIC of Special Troops came up with the idea and the Rams went on a hayride . . . How come you didn't think of supplying the boys with companions?

DALE KESS, Red Devils sprinter, is playing his first year of football. The flash has never played before joining the 508th.

The Miami, Fla., Marines are the Airborne eleven who venture into the southlands Saturday for the game . . . The Marines knocked off Pensacola NAS and held Miami University 'B' team to one TD.

CTC players PAUL INNACONNE and GEORGE BATHOLEMAY received their discharges last week . . . Assistant coach ROBERT STRICKLAND also got his walking papers from Uncle Sam . . . SY REITEN plays his last game as a Commander before donning mufti.

Installation of lighting facilities on 16 athletic fields on the post is row underway.

No Percentage

What is the percentage for the Blackshirts in fighting their heavyweights? Dho are they going to fight, themselves? Yes, Perlman has been matching them, but most of their opponents have been in different weight class.

As boxing on post now stands, these every other week amateur Thursday night bouts will continue until four weeks prior to the Third Army Boxing Tournament. Then, the fights will again be on a weekly basis and the fighter will be selected by the ring activities as to who will represent Benning in the 3-A Tourney.

Members of the council that were present at the meeting were Col. Cortlandt Krebs, Col. Savier Tupper, Col. Donald Washington, Col. Frank Elder, Col. Mack Green, Col. Kenneth Grimes and Maj. Gene Meyrs.

Hoop Referees Working Out

Even though basketball officially doesn't open until Jan. 5, Chris Dubia, president of the South Georgia Chapter of the National Association of Approved Officials, has been meeting with his referees at Briant Wells Field House.

The cage whistle tooters at a meeting held a week ago Tuesday were familiarized by demonstration with the new NCAA and local ground rule changes and court procedures.

Eleven teams are slated for TIC Basketball this year in a single round robin tournament with a playoff finale. There is also chatter going around that the Third Army Basketball Tournament will be held here at Benning.

Vice-president of the Chapter is H. A. Smith, and Paul Morley of Columbus YMCA is secretary-treasurer.

The arbitrators who attended the meeting were R. W. Copeland, Edwin E. Gulsvig, Jr., Ray Julian, Hershel E. Chapman, Donald Rehim, Jim Dunn, Reis Jones, Jack Schonely, J. E. Stacy, Ralph Ripke, Garland Pinholster, Gus Dielens, Arnold Saterfield, Mark Scheibert, Joe Smith, Warren Stroh, and Merrigold.

Meanwhile, the refs are blowing their whistles and gaining practical experience officiating the intra-company basketball games of the various units on post.

If anyone thinks he could be a basketball referee contact H. A. Smith at 41232 or Chris Dubia at 3050.

Golfers Vying For Turkey On Holiday Table

The Turkey Tournament at the Fort Benning Country Club is still going strong with three matches still to be played before Nov. 23 when the champion will be determined.

The golf tourney is a handicap with match play and ¾ play. First prize will be a turkey and runner-up will get a chicken.

The lady golfers also have their own turkey tourney in nine and 18 hole play.

Charlie Harper, pro, and Paul Buman, assistant pro, say that the new nine hole course is almost ready for play and that it is expected to be ready for use around the end of November.

I GOT IT . . . That is what C. D. Matthews (82) of CTC is saying to the would-be receivers and blockers as he outjumps and out grabs them in snaring a Cecil Dickerson pass. PMG Cagemen Work Out for Hoop Opening

The Provisional Medical Group is all ready anticipating a hard fought race when The Infantry Center Basketball League gets under way on January 5 with doubleheaders slated for Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Briant Wells Field House.

Coach Wes Holden, a doctor by trade and a returnee from last year's cage team, has been working his Medics quintet at the Old Gym, rounding his players into shape. Last year's team has some big men who were slow in getting started.

Some of the returnees to the PMG squad is Harry Zeigler, Jim Haven, and Billy Fallon. Other players who are working out are Ralph Wesling, Ken Dosie, Cecil Durant, Charles Kline, Willie Wright, Joe Richardson, Dick O'Connell, Ray Garl and Bill Marshall.

NO-HITTERS

Veteran big leaguers insist it's easier to pitch a no-hitter a pennant contending club late in the season than it is against a cellar outfit.

The Army phase of the 15th Joint Civilian Orientation Conference will get underway here today as 69 prominent civilians from the United States and Canada arrive to spend two days observing Infantry training.

These conferences, inaugurated by the Department of Defense, are designed to show civilian leaders how the armed forces are building U. S. defenses. 3-Party Meet Ends; General Young Returns

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, has returned to The Infantry Center following three-party conferences in England and Canada and consultation with Army service school commandants at Fort Monroe, Va.

General Young, members of his staff and representatives of the British and Canadian governments visited the British Infantry School at Warminster, England, to see Infantry training. "Although the British school is not as large as our Infantry School," General Young declared, "it is very extensive in its operations, and we were much impressed by what we saw."

Hazard Pay Group Ends Benning Tour

Members of the Defense Department's commission on incentive-hazardous duty and special pay ended a two-day visit to The Infantry Center last week as the first stop on their itinerary.

The four-man commission is headed by Lewis L. Strauss, and includes Don G. Mitchell, John T. Cahill and Dr. Harold Moulton. Two consultants accompanying the commission are R. L. McCormick and J. L. Byrnes.

Also traveling with the group are Brig. Gen. H. B. Powell, representing the Department of the Army; Col. John G. Coughlin, representing the chief of Army Field Forces; Brig. Gen. A. D. Mead, representing Third Army; Air Force Lt. Col. J. H. Mangan, Marine Lt. Col. R. E. Carey, Navy Capt. Ben Scott Custer, Comdr. A. W. Bright, Lt. Comdr. J. P. Chenery, and Maj. R. D. Pearsall, Office of the Secretary of Defense.

"This is the first stop on our trip, and the first time any of us have been here," Strauss said, "We're tremendously impressed with what we've seen."

Purpose of the tour is to compile data concerning administration and pay standards of personnel on hazardous duty. The group's recommendations will be forwarded to the Secretary of Defense.

First demonstration witnessed by the commission while here was in the Airborne Department. The members saw airborne trainees take physical training and practice parachute landings falls at the 34-foot and 250-foot jump towers, and train at the aircraft "mock-ups" and with the wind machine.

A paratrooper jump from C-46 aircraft also was staged for the visitors.

Demonstration troops from Company B, 30th Infantry Regiment ran through the infiltration course under live machinegun fire and later simulated an assault on an enemy position for the group.

Strauss and his associates next saw a reinforced rifle company attack an assigned objective with the support of live artillery and machinegun fire. This problem was staged by an Infantry School officer class.

Turkey Day Here Again

Roast Maryland turkey and all the trimmings, religious services and special entertainment are on tap Thanksgiving Day for Infantry Center military personnel and their dependents.

Turkey will be served in all mess halls at the noon meal, according to Col. William R. Fields, Infantry Center quartermaster, and military personnel may invite their relatives as guests.

Adding spice to the turkey menu will be shrimp cocktail, giblet gravy, glazed sweet potatoes, sage dressing, cranberry sauce, buttered green beans, creamed cora, whipped potatoes, celery hearts, sweet pickles, olives, carrot sticks, parker house rolls, butter, assorted candies, mixed nuts, grapes, pears, bananas, mince meat pie, fruit cake, coffee, milk and cigars and cigarettes.

Protestant services will be held in all post chapels Thanksgiving morning, according to Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, Infantry Center chaplain, and Mass will be said at the Main Catholic Chapel at 7 a. m.

The post's service clubs also have planned special parties and dances during the afternoon and evening.

TIC Gets Helicopter Unit; One Of Three In Army

The Infantry Center edged one step closer to being "The World's Most Complete Army Post" as one of the three helicopter companies in the U. S. Army was assigned here this week.

Second Lt. Herbert N. Hunt and WOJG George T. McKenzie arrived here last week as advance party for the 506th Transportation Company (Helicopter). They reported that Fort Benning couldn't claim a "first," this time because the first helicopter company ever assigned to an Army post in the U. S. was at Fort Bragg, N. C.

One of the Army's youngest units, the 506th was organized June 25. When fully equipped, it will have 19 H-19 helicopters — huge aircraft that can transport 10 men fully equipped for combat.

Chief Mission

Chief mission of the 506th—and all helicopter companies — is to provide short-haul operations as a transportation cargo unit in tactical and logistical support of front-line troops. In normal combat utilization, the 506th would be assigned to an Army, and never lower than corps echelon.

Commanded by Capt. Lester C. Robertson, the 506th will operate directly under The Infantry Center G-3 in support of Infantry School problems and demonstrations.

Backbone of the helicopter company is its 23 warrant officer pilots, all former enlisted men who won their warrants upon graduation from Helicopter School at Fort Sill, Okla.

"Master Sergeants to Privates"

"We had everything from master sergeants to privates in our class," said Mr. McKenzie. "We graduated Sept. 13 and were assigned directly to the 506th."

Mr. McKenzie feels that a man who can meet the requirements for attending helicopter school should certainly do so. "The requirements are a little stiff," he said, "but a man who can meet them has a wonderful opportunity. You must have a minimum of 100 hours flying time in some type of aircraft, and must hold a private license."

Many officers now piloting Army helicopters are former Army, Navy, Air Force or Marine Corps pilots, said Lieutenant Hunt. He also said all officers in helicopter units were qualified to fly fixed-wing as well as rotary-wing aircraft—official nomenclature for airplanes and helicopters.

Evacuate Wounded

One of the chief uses of helicopters in Korea has been the evacuation of wounded men from hard-to-get-at places. The H-19 can carry six litters and a medical aidman to attend to them in flight.

Soldier Show Will Start Yule Season

The Christmas holiday season will open with a burst of glory here Dec. 16 as The Infantry Center special services section presents a new soldier show musical review, "Winter Wonderland."

The musical, written by the soldier show section of special services, will be directed by Pfc. Robert Bigg. Three performances have been tentatively scheduled for Dec. 16, 17, and 18 at 8:30 p.m. in the Main Theater.

A cast of about 50 people is expected to take part in the musical extravaganza.

Private Bigg reported he is looking for all types of talent for the show. Musicians, singers, actors, dancers and technicians who would like to take part in the show have been requested by Bigg to contact him at FB 3222.

KOREAN ORPHANS BENEFIT . . . Last Thanksgiving, a special offering conducted throughout the Third Army netted nearly $11,000, which was forwarded to the United Nations Chaplain in Korea to be used for aiding Korean orphans. The scene above can be duplicated again this year when another special Thanksgiving offering will be taken at all religious services here. Members of the United Nations Civil Assistance Command above sort clothing bought last year for the orphans. Left to right are Lee Chun Tali, Pfc. Johnson Ramsey, Su Yun Sik, and Bernard J. First A-Bomb Jump 'Easy'

A student officer in Fourth Company, First Student Regiment, had a hand in making history last April when he became one of the first men to parachute into an atomic bomb crater.

Capt. Thomas M. Waitt was at that time a member of the 504th Airborne Infantry Regiment, Near Desert Rock, Nev., he and his men of Company F became the first to jump into the blast haze of an atomic bomb.

Captain Waitt said the men seemed "more curious than nervous." The general consensus was that "the jump was easy and the bomb was pretty," according to Captain Waitt.

Thanksgiving Offering To Aid Korean Orphans

A special Thanksgiving offering for Korean orphans and orphanges will be collected at religious services here Nov. 23.

The offering, requested by Lt. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, Third Army commander, will provide food and clothing for young Korean victims of the war, according to Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield.

The special offering given at services last year, Chaplain Sheffield said, amounted to $2,500 and "we're hoping to top it this year". The 1951 offering, in the Third Army areas amounted to $10,800 this money the chaplain of the United Nations Command purchased 500 baby blankets, 1,500 overcoats, 1,500 jackets, 1,500 sweaters. 3,000 trousers, 252 dozen pairs of gloves, 500 pairs of baby bootees and 214 dozen pairs of socks for Korean orphans.

The Rev. S. K. Dong, a native Korean minister of the Church of Christ, made an address here last year for the special Thanksgiving offering describing the drastic needs for such assistance in Korea. All the Korean officers attending The Infantry School took an offering among themselves to be included in the total collection.

Personnel who miss the Nov. 23 service may give their contribution the following week to any chaplain. Chaplain Sheffield said.

"This provides an opportunity whereby Catholic, Protestant and Jew, along with those of no religious belief, may all together exert an effort in a most worthwhile activity," the Third Army Chaplain's Bulletin declared.

Members of the Armed Forces who qualify will be honorably discharged for the purpose of entering the CG Academy.

To be eligible for appointment, a man must be between the ages of 17-22 and a high school graduate. Additional information can be obtained by writing The Commandant (PTP), U. S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C. All applications should be filed by January 1.

Ex-General Tells OC Grads 'Set Example'

Hard work, tough competition and strict discipline make a real leader, a retired general told 85 new Infantry second lieutenants at graduation ceremonies for Infantry officer candidate class No. 56.

Brig. Gen. (retired) Marcus E. Bell of Columbus also said that the Army's leadership course and Officer Candidate Schools select the best leaders and "none but the best and most competent graduate."

Two Types

"There are only two types of leaders — the let's go, follow me type that will carry successfully through the Army and life, and the sic 'em kind that rarely takes an objective and suffers heavy casualties," General Bell told the new lieutenants.

"The late Lt. Col. Don Faith," the general declared, "is an excellent example of an Army officer of the let's go and follow me kind. School children, particularly those who attend the Faith School, have the memory of a fine man and superb leader in whose footsteps to follow," he added.

"Set An Example"

The retired general advised the graduates to "set the marks your men are to aim at; do your best and set an example of striving to do the best and your men will respect your striving and will follow you."

Honor graduate was Gerald L. Hess of Salt Lake City, Utah. Lieutenant Hess has been assigned to the 13th Officer Candidate Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Maj. E. M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

Rangers End First PT Test

The first monthly physical fitness tests for personnel in The Infantry School's Ranger Department have been completed, according to Lt. Col. Jack B. Street, chief of the Department's operations and administration group.

The physical fitness test, which includes pull-ups, squat - jumps, push-ups, sit-ups and a 300-yard run, is conducted under the supervision of the commanding officer at the Amphibious Training Camp in Florida and the Mountain Training Camp in Georgia.

The test here was under the supervision of Maj. George Mintz, chairman of the Department's Fort Benning Committee.

A possible score of 200 points can be made in the test, which is required for all officers and enlisted men in the Ranger Department. It is normally given the first week in each month.

"We hope the physical fitness test will give some incentive to Ranger Department personnel to keep themselves in good condition," Colonel Street said.

Rangers Move To Permanent Mountain Site

The Ranger Department's Mountain Training Camp at Dahlonega, Ga., part of The Infantry School, began moving Nov. 5 to a new permanent-type site at Camp Wahsega, Ga.

The Ranger Mountain Camp, located for the past year on land leased from North Georgia College in Dahlonega, was composed almost entirely of temporary buildings and tents which housed Ranger instructors and students.

The new training camp at Wahsega, 12 miles north off Dahlonega in the Chattahoochee National Forrest, has been leased permanently from the state 4-H Club.

Facilities available on the 40 acres of land include 16 10-man cabins, a large combined mess and recreation hall, dispensary, change, two permanent - type shower and latrine buildings, a large baseball diamond and a swimming pool.

Rehabilitation on the log cabins at Wahsega, which will make them completely winterized, is being accomplished by a platoon of the 596th Airborne Engineer Company of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team with the use of some heavy equipment from the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion. A platoon of the 834th Signal Construction Company is laying new telephone lines to the camp.

Cokes And Comic Books Appeal To ROKA Officers

BY CATHERINE MERRILL

Cokes, comic books, ice cream and football games are all new experiences for the 150 Republic of Korea Army officers at The Infantry School.

But the ROK officers, enrolled in a special 22-week Infantry School company officers course, are taking it all in stride. They are the third group from South Korea to attend The Infantry School, and they are all decorated veterans of at least six months combat experience who will return to their wartorn homeland following their graduation March 13, 1953.

Third Group

The third Allied group, which arrived in San Francisco Sept. 17, began the special course on U. S. Infantry tactics and techniques Oct. 13. The first three days here were spent getting settled, processing, taking physicals and touring the post. A tour of nearby Columbus also was part of the initial orientation.

All three Korean groups have been accompanied by an officer from the Korean Military Advisory Group. The first class, here from September 1951, to March 1952, under a plan inaugurated by former Far East Commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to acquaint ROK officers with U. S. Infantry tactics and weapons, was accompanied by Maj. Ross E. Letty and Maj. Robert B. Berry.

The second class, which departed Sept. 6, was accompanied by Maj. Robert B. Campbell, and the present group is accompanied by Maj. Charles Askeraard of Fargo, N. C., former G-3 advisor to the Ninth ROK Division. He will remain until the course is completed and return with the group to Korea.

10 Interpreters

While the ROK Army students are here they are assisted by 10 South Korean officers who have taken the course previously and who act as interpreters. All three South Korean groups have been assigned to the First Student Regiment; under the command of Col. Kenneth D. Macomber.

The schedule of instruction for the special course parallels that of the Infantry School's regular company officers courses given U. S. Army officers except that the entire class is comprised of South Koreans and their interpreters. No other allied group at The Infantry School is combined in this manner.

Liaison Section

The Infantry School's Allied Liaison Section, assists Allied students academically and in personal problems. Part of the sections job, in coordination with the Korean Military Advisory Group representative, is to arrange tours of surrounding communities and newspaper offices, where the students observe the American "freedom of the press" and are introduced to the American version of "community relations." Side-line trips take the students to Richmond, Va., Atlanta, Ga., Washington, D. C., and New York City.

The Rev. S. K. Dong, a Korean minister from Columbus, Ga., assists in the care of the spiritual needs of the South Koreans. He holds regular services and is available for counsel.

"Way of Life"

When they return to their homeland, the ROK Army officers will take with them not only the method and techniques of modern warfare but also a knowledge of a "way of life" that has been, if not unknown, at least foreign to them.

Following their return to Korea, the ROK officers will be integrated into their regular units where they will form a nucleus for fighting organizations pattered after those of the U. S. Army.

The first group of ROK Army students, who have already returned to Korea, have proven the benefit of the special Infantry School course by their outstanding performance in combat, U. S. Army officers report.

OC Unit Prints Weekly Paper

A four-page mimeographed weekly newspaper published by candidates in the Ninth OC Company has been credited with being a "morale builder" by Capt. John J. Hoffman, company commander.

"The paper is an excellent means of disseminating information to the men," Captain Hoffman said. "It has great morale value in that it adds to the esprit de corps in a material fashion."

"The Ninth OC Guidon" is published every week on Friday. Editors are Candidates Anthony W. Tabell, William Farley and William Farrell. Advisor to the staff is 2nd Lt. John G. Fox.

The idea for the newspaper originated among the candidates, who are responding to the effort "excellently," according to Candidate Farrell.

All the writing and editing is done after duty hours. "As soon as one edition is distributed another begins taking shape," Candidate Farrell said. He estimates that the staff puts in 15 to 20 hours on each edition.

Among the features found in the journal every week is a sketch on the "Candidate of the Week," "Woefull Willy" a soldier's tetters home and cartoons on the lighter side of candidate training.

Army G-3 Tours Infantry Center

Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army G-3, was here Monday and Tuesday for an orientation and briefing on Infantry School activities.

He was accompanied by Lt. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, Third Army commander.

General Taylor was oriented on the progress and changes made in infantry tactics, techniques and weapons since World War II, with particular emphasis on the impact of the Korean War.

The general also confered with directors of the Communications and Automotive Departments and with officials of Army Field Forces Board No. 3 regarding new Infantry weapons undergoing field tests.

Consultations were held on Ranger activities and the Infantry Officer Candidate program.

General Taylor reviewed an honor guard composed of troops from the 37th and 38th Officer Candidate Companies Tuesday.

Defensive Driving Pays

The art of self-defense is now being incorporated into drivers' training programs. Learning to manipulate the clutch, brake, accelerator and other assorted mechanisms of the modern car are but the beginning steps in today's programs.

Ten or 15 years ago it was sufficient to know the proper sequences of moves in order to drive well. But the millions of cars now fighting for space on the highways has changed that concept considerably.

Drivers today must have the reactions of a well-conditioned athlete and the perceptive powers of a mentalist or too often they pay the penalty for another's carelessness of irresponsibility. The frequent accidents involving head-on collisions and sideswipings bear adequate evidence. In many cases one of the cars involved in a crash had done nothing to cause an accident. The driver's only mistake was being in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Defensive driving is designed to give the innocent driver the knowledge he needs to protect himself on the highway. The idea is fine. But in all their teachings, proponents of this method have been unable to set up a working defense against the driver who passes blindly on curves or hills.

One cynic has observed that if the careless drivers were only killing themselves the traffic problem would soon solve itself. But the innocent are also victims of the slaughter on the highways.

Today's automobiles are built for fabulous speeds. Unfortunately, most of the nation's highways have not kept pace with the automotive improvements. However, the blame for the daily bloodletting cannot be placed on inadequate roads. The uneducated driver, that "loose nut" behind the wheel, is still the biggest factor.

The solution to the growing number of highway accidents which kill and maim thousands yearly rests with everyone in automobiles, passengers and drivers alike.

The Infantry Center Safety Office has several sound suggestions which pay large dividends safetywise. With the approach of another holiday they need repeating.

If you drive, don't drink. If you drink, don't drive. The old saying about alcohol and gasoline forming an explosive combination is still as appropriate as the day it was coined.

Defensive driving is nothing more than the application of self-defense to a modern menace. That defense must be used against our own bad practices as well as those of others.

RE-EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

You are guaranteed your old job upon leaving active military service if you apply for re-employment within 90 days after your separation.

This guarantee has certain conditions of eligibility: (1) You must have been in the employ of a private employer or working for the U. S. government. (Employees who worked for a state are not covered by federal law.) (2) The job was other than a temporary position. (3) You have satisfactorily completed your period of active service.

Provides for Disabled Vets

(4) You must still be qualified to perform the duties of your position. (The law has made certain provisions for disabled veterans.) (5) You must apply within 90 days or within one year if you have been hospitalized after your discharge or (6) your employer's circumstances have not changed so as to make it impossible for you to be reinstated.

If you meet the conditions of eligibility you are entitled to these rights: (1) You will be re-employed in your former position, or a position of like seniority, status and pay. (2) You will be considered as having been on furlough or leave of absence from your old job during your time in service. (Service time is credited as time on the job when computing seniority.) (3) You will participate in insurance and other benefits in effect at the time you left. (4) You will not be discharged within one year without cause from the position to which you have been restored.

Misunderstanding may sometimes arise between you and your former employer. It may deal with seniority, promotion, pay rates, vacation rights, pensions, insurance, and other factors connected with your job.

Contact Local Office

Any veteran desiring assistance with his re-employment problems should contact his nearest local office of the state employment service. When necessary, you will be referred to a local volunteer re-employment rights committeeman for information and assistance. There are more than 4,000 of these volunteers throughout the country to help you.

The field representative will analyze the factors and undertake negotiations short of legal action if no satisfactory adjustment is reached, you will eventually receive representation by the U. S. Attorney General. You will not be charged for legal service or court costs during the proceedings.

Be Still And Know I Am God ... Psalm 46:10

BY CHAPLAIN (MAJ.) FRANCIS J. HEINE

This is a noisy world in which we live.

War and rumors of wars. The clash of battle. The screams of the wounded and dying. The cry of lonely, bereaved hearts, the harsh screams of accusation, the defensive roar of counter accusation. The wail about high prices, high taxes, the futility of it all.

The name-calling, reputation-shredding, the brags and boasts and baseless accusations of politics. The weary groans and petulant complaints as the down-hearted face another senseless-seeming day. The endless night unrefreshing with its harrowing dreams. Defeated souls crying out for peace where there is no peace.

And all so needless!

Be still and know that I am God! God is! He is there. He speaks words of strength and comfort and peace to the distressed hearts of men—words which we would hear if we but stilled our own cut-cries and carping so that we could hear His voice. He speaks. He does.

"Come ye disconsolate,
where'er ye languish.
Come to the mercy seat,
fervently kneel;
Here bring your wounded hearts, here tell your anguish,
Earth has no sorrows that heaven cannot heal.

Joy of the desolate, light of the straying,
Hope of the penitent, fadeless and pure!
Here speaks the Comforter,
tenderly saying,
Earth has no sorrows that heaven cannot cure."

Be still and know that I am God.

Soldiers May Get Out Early For School

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Army enlisted men who wish to attend school may have a chance for early separation if the school term starts prior to their release or discharge date, a spokesman from the Army's Adjutant General's Corps has revealed. The term must begin "within a reasonable period" before the actual date of separation. All cases, however, will be considered strictly on an individual basis and requests must go through channels to the Adjutant General for a decision.

Korean veterans can expect excellent job prospects upon their release from active military service. The Department of Labor estimates that only 200,000 veterans will take advantage of unemployment compensation between now and July 1, 1953. Estimates are based on the assumptions that nearly 2,000,000 veterans will have been separated by July 1 and that the proportion of unemployed veterans will be the same as unemployed civilians. Aside from the good job prospects that will keep many veterans off unemployment rolls, approximately 20 percent will take advantage of the K-Vet Bill's education and training provisions. No unemployment pay is allowed for such men.

Applications from Reservists are now being accepted for an eight - week tour of instructor duty in connection with the Reserve Officer Candidate Program during the summer of 1953, the Navy has announced. Applications are open for both enlisted personnel and officers. Those accepted will be ordered to active duty on or about June 22, 1953.

Eight separate battles and campaigns have been defined by Army General Order 93 for which battle participation credit will be given to units and individuals involved. In all the campaigns the whole of Korea and its territorial waters are included as the area involved.

First campaign is defined as the UN offensive from June 27 to Sept. 15, 1950. Second is from Sept. 16 to Nov. 2, 1950. Third is the Chinese Communist Forces intervention from Nov. 3, 1950 to Jan. 24, 1951. Fourth is the UN counter - offensive from Jan. 25 to Apr. 21, 1951. Fifth is the CCF spring offensive from Apr. 22 to July 8, 1951.

Sixth is the UN summer-fall offensive from July 9 to Nov. 27, 1951. Seventh is the second Korean winter from Nov. 28, 1951 to Apr. 30, 1952. The eighth campaign is the Korean summer-fall 1952, which began May 1 and will not end until Nov. 30.

Naval commands ashore and afloat are being urged to take full advantage of the services offered by the Armed Forces Information School, Ft. Slocum, N. Y. Drastic cuts have been made in billets for full time public information personnel, the Navy said, due to fund limitations. The Navy Department recommends that officer and enlisted personnel, interested in public information, be ordered to AFIS at the first opportunity.

Class "Q" allotment checks for November to more than 500,000 dependents of Army personnel will be prepared and mailed from Indianapolis, Ind. The new mailing address results from the transfer of the Army Finance Center from St. Louis, Mo., to Indianapolis and Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. The move is now approximately 60 percent completed.

India Plan Opposed By East And West

India Monday offered the UN a compromise proposal to end the fighting in Korea, but spokesmen for both the United States and the Communists opposed it.

The plan, proposed by V. K. Krishna Menon, was designed to meet the current objections of both the United States and Red China.

The Political Committee of the General Assembly postponed today's meetings to study the new proposal and also to await any developments of the Truman-Eisenhower talks scheduled for Tuesday.

In all, five and possibly seven communist MIGs were destroyed in the renewed air war south of the Yalu River boundary.

On the Central Front the South Koreans again moved back on Sniper Ridge and held their positions despite heavy Communists barrages of near saturation volume.

Allied Artillery broke up a battalion of Red Chinese, who were on the move toward the shell-torn heights of Sniper Ridges.

Gen Mark Clark, Far East commander, is prepared to ask President - elect Dwight D. Eisenhower that the ban against bombing Manchurian targets be lifted if a new offensive is to be mounted against enemy forces in Korea.

Clark, it is reported, will also ask for a blockade of the Chinese mainland and an increase in the number of Allied divisions in Korea before any big drive is launched.

Clark is described as ready to undertake large-scale operations if assured of adequate support measures but is not insisting on a cessation of truce talks and the launching of an offensive. Rather he is outlining what he believes should be done if a drive is undertaken.

The sales store will stock a complete line of clothing for both officers and enlisted men. Two fitting rooms give ample space for patrons to try on clothing to insure a proper fit. Two qualified fitters will be on duty at all times.

Qualified officer candidates who desire Quartermaster clothing may purchase officer uniforms and take advantage of the low prices of quartermaster services.

The laundry pick-up station was opened in the same building so that personnel could save time by leaving their laundry and dry cleaning and take advantage of the daily pick-up service.

There will also be a daily pick-up of shoes to be repaired, Colonel Fields said.

Three Korea Vets Win Decorations

Two Korean veterans have been decorated for gallantry in action and a third for meritorious service in ceremonies held here this week.

Capt. William E. Conger, Jr. and Sgt. Charles C. Kuhn were awarded Silver Stars and 1st Lt. George T. Urish the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal.

The presentations were made by Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Captain Conger, who now commands Company F of the Infantry School Detachment, was commander of Company E, Fifth Infantry Regiment 24th Division Sept. 19, 1950 when he distinguished himself by courageous action near Waegwan, Korea.

"Moved To Front"

"Captain Conger personally moved to the front and led his men in the assault on well - emplaced enemy positions, when the company was pinned down by a barrage of small arms fire. He placed his men in positions offering the best protection and directed their fire on enemy emplacements. Without regard to his own safety he moved from position to position to designate targets. With the surprise element of the assault and ferocity of the attack the objective was seized."

Captain Conger is a 1947 graduate of the United States Military Academy. He also holds the Bronze Star and Purple Heart medals.

Squad Leader

Sergeant Kuhn, of Company H, Airborne Battalion, was serving as a squad leader with Company G of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team May 30, 1951, when he distinguished himself with gallantry near Wonsong-ni, Korea.

Under his leadership many enemy attacks were repulsed and the objective was held. While moving among his men the sergeant saw a box of explosives burst into flame after having been hit by an enemy tracer bullet.

"Without regard for his personal safety, Sergeant Kuhn seized the burning box and hurled it away from a group of his men. In doing so, he was seriously wounded, but his fearless action saved the lives of many of his comrades."

Sergeant Kuhn entered the Army in 1948 and served with the 34th Infantry Regiment in Europe during World War II. He has been awarded the Purple Heart Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

DLC To Air Medal

Lieutenant Urish, supply officer of The Infantry School Detachment, was presented the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal for his meritorious achievement while serving with the 223rd Infantry Regiment of the 40th Division in Korea.

He flew 40 missions between Dec. 28, 1951 and last Feb. 19 in a light, single - engine aircraft over enemy territory locating enemy artillery positions and adjusting fire on enemy positions.

"Throughout these operations the extraordinary technical knowledge displayed by Lieutenant Urish proved invaluable to the success of his unit's assignment," the citation read. Lieutenant Urish has been in the Army since 1950.

Engineers End TIC Inspection

Five Third Army engineer officials ended a three-day inspection tour of various Infantry Center activities last week.

The group included George S. Livingston and Ralph S. Ackles, engineer regional maintenance representatives from the Army's Atlanta Quartermaster Depot; Col. Emmett F. Cossett and Charles H. Foley, Third Army engineer section, and Wendell R. Beeton, Third Army forestry section.

Livingston and Ackles discussed maintenance problems with Col. Richard F. Ebby, Infantry Center engineer, and inspected engineer type equipment and materials.

Cossett and Foley inspected The Fort Benning forestry section in connection with the annual timber yield on the reservation. He also inspected the 10,000,000 board feet of timber ready for harvest as well as the reforestation program now under way by the Forestry Section.

BRIDGE COMPANY ATTACHED

The 56th Float Bridge Company has been attached to the 7th Engineer Combat Battalion of Combat Training Command. Commanded by 2nd Lt. Charles H. Root, the unit is composed mainly of Korean veterans. The unit was activated at Fort Belvoir, Va., earlier this year, and will be utilized here in support of The Infantry School.

OC Won DFC Before CIB

An Infantryman who won the Distinguished Flying Cross before receiving the Combat Infantry Badge is Officer Candidate Edwin C. Davis, Third OC Company.

The air medal was for 99 missions over Korea as an observer in an unarmed airplane. Candidate Davis thought he was going into combat as an infantryman when he landed at Pusan with the Second Division. He didn't get the chance.

"Just after we broke out of the perimeter at Pusan a handful of men from the division was selected and sent back to be trained as observers," he recalls. "I thought it was just for one mission."

100 Missions

Nearly 100 missions later, Davis, who came to OCS as a sergeant, had volunteered himself out of the Air Force in order to get back with his buddies on the ground. Before he rejoined his division, however, he did a lot for his friends from overhead.

At Wonju, during the North Korean retreat, he helped damge the Reds so badly with radio directed air strikes that he earned the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Spotted Targets

"As Air Force officer in a jeep would point the targets out to me from the ground," Candidate Davis says. "Our T-6 was slow enough that we could spot them where the fighters couldn't because I could circle and we would fly low and I'd mark the target with a smoke bomb or a flare gun then radio the fighters who would work them over.

Candidate Davis and his pilot, flying low over enemy lines in an unarmed trainer, were frequent targets for anti-aircraft fire. But they had a protector. Whenever they ran into trouble they could bring in a dozen Mustang fighters with napalm, rockets and machine guns.

OFFICER CANDIDATES AND WIVES ENJOY NEW OC LOUNGE

Lounge Offers Meeting Spot For OCs, Wives

"A wonderful place . . ." answers a very definite need . . . plenty large enough . . . it's cozy."

These and many other words of praise were uttered when the new Officer Candidate Lounge was opened in Harmony Church. Located in the rear of the building that houses a bank branch in the First Office Candidate Regiment area, the lounge is centrally located, and offers one of the few spots in the area where officer candidates and their wives can spend a few quiet moments together on weekdays.

Popular Spot

Capt. Horace H. Thornburg, regimental special services officer, reported that the lounge has rapidly become one of the most popular spots in the regiment.

The wife of an officer candidate who recently graduated, Mrs. Ruth Lewis visited the lounge and said "It's a wonderful place. It gives each couple an opportunity to meet and discuss their problems. Since my husband — 2nd Lt. Conway A. Lewis, 29th OC Company — was recently a candidate, I realize how much we would have appreciated having a place like this."

Col. Harry M. Grizzard, commander of the First OC Regiment, is responsible for existence of the lounge.

Set In Daytrooms

Before the lounge was opened, candidates and their wives had to meet in company day rooms — which are closed at 5 p.m. The lounge operated from 4:30 to 9:45 p.m. daily; from noon until 9:45 on Saturdays; and from 9 a.m. until 9:45 p.m. Sundays.

Colonel Grizzard, speaking about the lounge, said "It is the answer to a very definite problem of a suitable location for the married candidate to meet with his wife on week-days or other periods when off-post privileges may not be feasible.

"It also provides a pleasant surrounding for family and friends to visit the candidate. This problem was brought to focus by candidates' wives, and I believe they will agree we now have a pleasant, workable solution."

Random Comments

From random comments offered by candidates wives it would appear Colonel Grizzard is right. Mrs. Peter J. Edmond, whose husband is a candidate in the 13th OC Company, said "This place offers the wives and candidates a wonderful meeting place. Its cozy — just like sitting at home in the living room."

"It's the nicest place in the area to spend a few hours together," chimed in Mrs. Ramona Wagner, wife of Candidate Robert Wagner, Second OC Company. "It's much more convenient than the dayroom, and has more room, more privacy, and is much much more quiet."

Somewhat along the order of a service club, the lounge is equipped with lounging chairs, couches and tables. A complete stock of magazines and periodicals is available, as well as playing cards.

Decorated By Candidates

The entire lounge was decorated and painted by candidates. Pictures of Fort Benning scenes and Infantry symbols decorate the walls.

Married candidates with small children find the lounge an exceptionally suitable meeting place, as is evidenced by a statement from Mrs. Joseph Rutkowski, whose husband is a candidate in the 13th OC Company:

"One day last week we took our baby into the lounge, and found another couple with a baby there. I put Brent on the floor, and those two babies had a grand time playing. It left us more or less free to talk without watching him too closely."

"Dinner For Two"

Officer candidates and their wives will be allowed to dine together at the Sunday noon meal the first 12 weeks of each cycle under a new plan authorized by Third Army Headquarters.

Third Army reported the plan was instituted for "morale reasons." Candidates normally are restricted to the company area the first 12 weeks of each cycle.

Under the plan previously followed, wives were permitted to dine in company mess halls only the first Sunday noon meal.

Latter Day Saints Schedule Told

All members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints now have an opportunity to attend services at Fort Benning and in Columbus.

On the post, in the Harmony Church area, Sacrament Services will be held each Sunday in Chapel No. 4 at 8 a.m. Mutual Improvement Association meetings will be held every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the same chapel.

In Columbus, the schedule of meetings are as follows:

Sunday services:
Priesthood Meeting—9:15 a.m.
Sunday School—10:30 a.m.
Choir Practice—5:00 p.m.
Sacrament Service—7:00 p.m.
Tuesday service: Primary—(children under 12)—4:30 p.m. Relief Society—7:30 p.m.
Wednesday service: Mutual—(Especially age 14)—7:30 p.m.

Futher information may be obtained by calling Columbus 7-7280 or FR 4-3136 or 4-1120.

NATIONAL GUARD STRENGTH

Approximately 120,000 members of the Army National Guard were in active Federal service between June 30, 1951 and July 1, 1952.

New Assault Boat Tested By CTC Unit

A new, lighter assault boat underwent two days of strenuous testing at the hands of men in the 509th Engineer Combat Company of Combat Training Command.

Second Lt. Rafael Torrellas, who reported the new assault boat is the one in present use, and much to load and unload," Lieutenant was in charge of the testing detail of slightly different design than lighter, "It's more seaworthy, easier to control, and much more easy Torrellas said.

WAC Career Noble, Says Lt.

The Woman's Army Corps is a noble and fascinating career, according to 1st Lt. Elizabeth Williams, assistant personnel officer of the 1st Student Regiment.

The service, Lieutenant Williams says, offers an unlimited scope to those who are looking for an opportunity to meet interesting people and personalities.

Lieutenant Williams is the second feminine member of her family to serve in the armed forces. During World War I, her mother was stationed with the Navy at Portsmouth Naval Yard, Va.

A graduate of Madison College, Va., where she majored in psychology, Lieutenant Williams started her Army career at Fort Lee, Va., when she attended the WAC officer candidate school. After graduation she became a troop officer in a basic training unit.

In January, 1952, she activated a WAC detachment at Fort Eustis, Va., and was assigned as company commander.

At present she is the only WAC assigned to 1st Student Regiment and prefers it that way, she says. It gives her an uninhibited outlook on the male component.

Speaker Named

Brig. Gen. John L. Whitelaw will be principal speaker at graduation exercises tomorrow for Infantry officer candidate class No. 37.

Approximately 66 candidates are scheduled to be commissioned Infantry second lieutenants at that time. The 22-week course began June 13.

General Whitelaw, assistant commander of the 10th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans., is a 1918 graduate of the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. He also attended the National War College and the Command and General Staff College.

Traffic Violation

(Editor's note: The Bayonet each week will publish a list of persons whose driver's licenses are revoked; those whose punishment is more severe than revocation of driving privileges; and those unregistered traffic violators who are refused the privilege of registering their automobiles on the post.)

Five persons had their licenses revoked permanently and one had his suspended during the perod from Nov. 9-Nov. 16, in each revocation case, the offense committed was driving while intoxicated. The suspension was caused by non-possession of insurance and driver's license.

The men whose licenses were revoked were 2nd Lt. Donald W. Miller, 128th Company, 2nd Student Regiment; WOJG Hugh G. Ford, Headquarter and Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry Regiment; M-Sgt. Total Hits 365 In Army 'Official Song' Search

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Three hundred and sixty-five songs have been submitted by both professional and amateur composers competing in the "official Army song" project, the Adjutant General's Office announces.

Very few compositions have been received from men in the field. Most of the songs came from well-known professional composers. However, all compositions submitted have been thoroughly screened.

To date 17 songs have been selected by the Army Song Board composed of representatives from six leading recording companies. The board will meet the latter part of November to choose five of the most promising songs which will be promoted through various media and by the Army bands.

At the same meeting, the board will pick one of the top five for concentrated promotion by the recording companies. If this song, or any of the other four, shows unmistakable signs of general acceptance by the Army and public alike, it stands a good chance of being picked as the official Army song.

Two Tunes Tested

Some of the top tunes on the list have already been tested for audience reaction by the Army Band. Two songs, entitled "Eyes Right" and "The All-Army Team," were presented by the Army Band in concerts at Arlington Memorial Cemetery Amphitheater, Va., this summer.

At present one possibility, "The Army's Always There," is being prepared by the Army Field Forces Band as a feature in their forthcoming tour of the Third Army Area.

Songs will still be accepted after Nov. 15, the Army pointed out, and will, if musically deserving, be given the same promotion treatment as the five picked by the board.

Monthly Safety Meet Held

The monthly safety meeting was held Tuesday night in the Automotive building. Members of the Post Motor Pool conducted the meeting.

The safety film "Killer on The Highway," was shown at the meeting. This film has been shown at safety meetings throughout the South during the past few weeks.

Lt. Col. E. S. Burke, deputy director, Georgia Public Safety Department, spoke to the group. Col. Burke travels throughout the state holding safety conferences, and organizing school safety patrols.

About 300 attended this meeting. The next meeting will be held in December.

OFFICE ON WHEELS

One of the latest Army innovations is an office on wheels.

Officers at Fort Meade, Md., use a van-type trailer as a "war room" to brief troops during field exercises. The mobile office houses seven desks and other office equipment, and can be moved from place to place as troops advance or withdraw during war games.

Transport Section Holds Seminar

A car loading seminar was conducted here Monday and Tuesday by The Infantry Center Transportation Section under the direction of Col. Sidney P. Kretlow, transportation officer.

The two-day conference on procedures used in loading railroad freight cars was held in the Automotive Building on Main Post.

Transportation officials from Third Army headquarter, Fort McClellan, Ala., and Camp Rucker, Ala., attended.

Col. Paul J. Mitchell, Infantry Center G-4, welcomed the visiting transportation officials at Fort Benning, and Colonel Kretlow will delivered the opening address.

Loading and bracing methods and requirements for rail shipments in closed and open cars were the main topic of discussion during the conference.

'Highway Kings' Deserve Name

The U. S. Army Field Band, which will play here Dec. 5 in Briant Wells Field House, won its nickname "Kings of the Highway" from the fact that it travels in a convoy of two sedans, three buses and four trucks.

Many of the 123 members of the band double as vocalists or in novelty acts. One of the most popular features is the drum novelty group, composed of six members of the band's percussion section who do tricks with their drumsticks that turn professional jugglers green with envy.

The band was formed in 1946 from elements of the Americal Division Band, the First Combat Infantry Band and the Infantry Concert Group. These units had all been activated by Maj. Chester E. Whiting, who commands and conducts the band today.

Since its activation in 1946, the band has played before more than 4,000,000 people and has travelled over 200,000 miles.

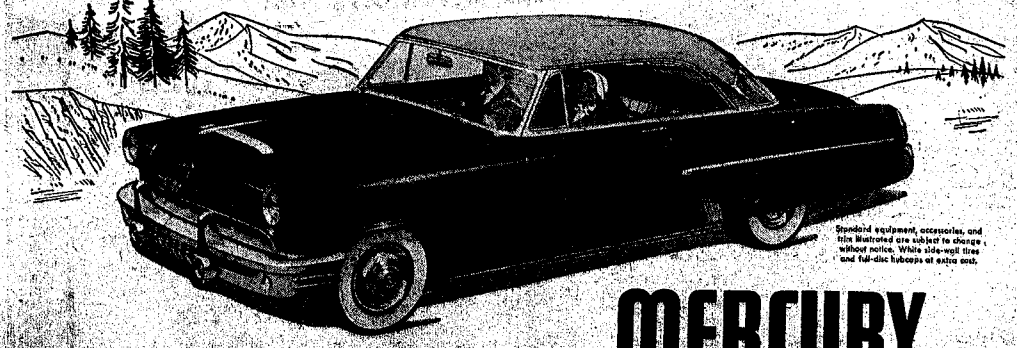
Now—the car of the year the deal of the year!

And we're ready to back up that headline with appetising facts and generous figures. For example, "the car of the year" is more than a glib phrase, it's a title that Mercury has earned by doing—by making news.

Mercury is the one car in its class that came up with something really new for 1952—styling so new it left other cars far behind. And, if that weren't enough, Mercury (with optional overdrive) again proved that pound for pound it could beat all comers for economy in the Mobilgas Economy Run.

But, we know, you're equally interested in "how much" for your present car. We can give you some idea if you just pick up the phone and call us. But we can do even better if you give us a chance to appraise it firsthand—so we can allow for extras and care you've given it.

So drop around. Our deals are now the best of the year. That means tops in town.



Standard equipment, accessories, and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice. White side-wall tires and full-disc hubcaps at extra cost.

Ranger Officers Get Refresher

All field grade officers assigned to The Infantry School's Ranger Department are taking part in a refresher program in Ranger training problems.

Ranger field grade officers are required to take the refresher program to insure "that each assigned field grade officer is thoroughly familiar with certain type problems and to maintain the level of instruction and supervision at the highest attainable standard.

"True Conception"

The program also is designed to provide each officer with a "true conception of training being conducted at each Ranger camp," according to Col. G. C. Kelleher, department director.

The program takes place at each of the three Ranger camps; Fort Benning, the Amphibious Training Camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and the Mountain Training Camp at Dahlonega, Ga.

The Fort Benning phase includes a physical fitness test, introduction to military demolitions, actual work on demolition projects and stream crossing expedients.

Water Operations

At the Florida camp, the program includes training in transporting and operating small boats in quiet and rough water, a courage test consisting of a 50-foot drop into a stream from a taut wire and day and night reconnaissance patrols.

The Mountain Training Camp phase consists of patrols in mountainous terrain, orientation on the installation and use of fixed rope, rappelling 35 feet and 90 feet over cliffs and a courage test consisting of an 80-foot climb on a rope ladder and descent into a lake by sliding down a wire.

new in the Army, helicopter mechanics are not plentiful, according to Lt. Hunt. The Army, he said, is conducting a five-month helicopter mechanics and maintenance course at Fort Sill that thoroughly grounds chosen men in the basic principles of helicopter mechanics, which, differ widely from fixed-wing aircraft.

Both Lieutenant Hunt and Mr. McKenzie say many members of the 506th should feel right at home here. "We see from the newspapers that movie makers have been busy around here all year," said Mr. McKenzie. "A lot of the men in the 506th are in a movie called "Baptism of Fire," filmed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., last month."

The movie, scheduled for release next spring, showed the helicopters rescuing a company of engineers which had been cut off on a Korean hill.

Some of the 506th men went to Fort Bragg, N. C. this week where they were scheduled to pick up three H-19 helicopters and bring them back here. The aircraft were shipped from the factory to Fort Bragg for an initial shakedown and testing before being brought here.

2nd Division Men See Variety Show

Ten variety acts highlighted the program of the monthly meeting of former members of the Second Infantry Division Monday night at the Polo Hunt Club.

The Infantry Center Special Services section furnished acts for the show.

The show, which ran about 45 minutes, included tap dance routine, spiritual quartet, two vocalists, pianists, concert harmonicaist, accordianist, barber-shop quartet and a comedy routine.

CTC-Green Wave Meet On Sunday

GO, GO GO GO . . . Special Troops Rams fullback John Mackie is really going as he gallops 83 yards on a kickoff return. The former Florida University football player eluded George Bell (30), CTC would be tackler, but only to be tackled a short time later.

Rams Trample CTC, 46 To 6

Special Troops Rams, combining devasting aerial and ground offense with a solid defense, trampled the CTC Commanders a little deeper into the 1952 Fort Benning Football League cellar Sunday afternoon at Doughboy Stadium with a 46-6 victory.

The 7,000 fans who watched the proceedings left the stadium wondering whether CTC ought to hang up their cleats or the Rams were playing in the wrong league.

The Rams gained rushing 403 yards while their defensive platoon held or allowed CTC to only gain 58 yards. Their aerials, 26 of them, gave Special Troops 127 yards, compared to CTC's 58.

Six Interceptions

CTC attempted 24 passes, but only completed four with six heaves intercepted by the Rams defensive backfield. Clarence Howard and Dick Weaver snared two each, Phil Secrist and Bill Street caught the others.

The Commanders came up with a new quarterback hoping to change their luck. That player, coach, Cecil Dickerson, sat the game out on the sidelines, letting North Georgia's Wheeler Davidson run all the week.

Davidson, while in college, only played intra-mural football. But for his initial appearance he did a fine job. The biggest disappointment to Everyone was that George [illegible] Bell, CTC's steamroller [illegible], had a bad day.

ball on nine occasions. He did not gain a yard. The Indiana speedster played most of the game on defense.

Most of the blue and white ground gaining was done by Dick Raber, former Georgia University fullback, Adam Zubaty, 1951 All-Post halfback, and Jim Gutherie. Raber alone accounted for 27 of the 58 CTC yards gained on the ground.

CTC scored their sole touchdown in the fourth quarter. C. D. Mathews dropped into the fullback slot with the team in punt formation. He took the spiral from center, faked the kick, and instead threw a 16-yard pass to Gutherie who took off on a 61-yard touchdown run.

Also Rex Abernathy, Johnson, Dubrady, John Walsh, Murray Raynor, Roland Clement and Frank Spaniel and assistant coach Bob Strickland.

The Green Wave on the other hand has lost their coach Jack Faubion, Ray Kuentzel, Bob Boeh, Harold Long, Jack Hendrix, Bob Harper, Larry Goins, Ford Settle, Vince Donato, Ted Sheperd, Bob Nark, Bob Milgrim, and a few others.

The turnover of personnel on both clubs have been great. CTC received a shot in the arm when Dick Raber, late of Georgia University joined the squad. Raber, who bulldogs his way through the line, has gained 64 yards in his appearances in Benning games.

Leonard is now bobbling around with a bad knee which does not let him run. His passing arm is still intact and raring to go. But it will be some time before he will see action again.

Both clubs are pretty evenly matched for this game. The Greenies are using Frank DePaolo as quarterback while Dickerson himself will be in there pitching for CTC.

The ground departments are also on par. CTC has Raber, Jim Gutherie, Adam Zubaty and George Bell. Ding Dong has been clanging along for his last two games and is about due for a good day.

The Wave ground attack still has Ed Hansen and Ken Harris doing all the rushing. Both Harris, Hansen and Harry Mantzouranis have been the big ground gainers for ISD-ASU.

OUT OF REACH . . . 508th quarterback Gary Mattock's pass is a little ahead of end Jim Trado (88) who is the intended receiver. The Red Devils scored a 21-0 victory over the Miami, Fla., Marines Saturday afternoon.

508th Shutouts Marines, 21-0

The 508th Airborne gridders scored their second straight shutout victory last Saturday afternoon by beating Miami, Fla., Marines 21-0 in their third non-Benning football game at the Leathernecks Opalocka field.

Tomorrow night, the Red Devils go after another out-of-post victory by venturing up to Milledgeville, Ga., for a tete-a-tete with Georgia Military College.

The Devils shutout other ISD-ASU Green Wave, 25-0, in a league contest two weeks ago.

The Marines, nicknamed the Barracudas, displayed a nine man front to the 508th who completely jumped all over it. The airborne racked up 14 first downs, 2 by air, and gained 268 yards on the ground.

Rips Line

Dale Ems, bulldozing halfback for the 508th, tore the line to bits as he gained 131 yards in 11 carries. Ems would have had another 53 credited to him, but his gallop was called back.

In the first quarter, Marine Lafayette Robinson went back to pass and was rushed. He shoveled the ball out underhand as he was tackled by four charging Red Devils, Bill Beem, 220-pound end, swapped in and intercepted the ball and ran 15 yards for the touchdown. Bill Stevens converted the extra point.

The Georgia boys came back roaring a few minutes later to score again. Ems carried over from the eight yard line to climax a 43-yard march in five plays.

Redmond Scores

Quarterback Gary Mattocks passed to Bill Redmond, who has been out most of the year with injuries, for the next score. Redmond went 37 yards for the final score.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Lester Bisoff

There is going to many a bruised beak and mangled mitt before Fort Benning's new amateur boxing champions are crowned between now and next spring. That becomes obvious when you look over the current crop of contenders and 1951 title holders still active in the ring warfare.

For the record, there are champs to be named in ten weight divisions. Most likely the winners will be rewarded by being entered in the Third Army Boxing Tournament, and where they go from there is strictly up to them.

The post champs will not be crowned until the final week of the current 1952-53 tournament season. The top two fighters in each weight division will be matched together in the last night's action.

Let's look at the current picture which is subject to change without notice in each weight.

Top heavyweight would seem to be Ernie Fann, of First SR, who has not been in action here yet, but he won the Third Army crown easily last year. His top rivals are Gene White, a team mate who beat another contender, Ben Robinson, of ASU, and Dick Lohmann, also of First SR, who is now off playing football for Special Troops Rams.

The light heavyweight crown at present looks like the personal property of James Boyd, of First SR, for the third consecutive year. Team mate Jack King and Frank Love, of CTC, are developing rapidly in this division and may give Boyd some worries.

Leon Hall, of CTC, was last year's light middleweight champion, and he stands alone at the top of the middleweight pile now. He has beaten his chief threat, Freeman Thatcher, of ASU, twice previously. There is not a class one light middleweight on post. Jockeying for positions in the lower echelons are Gordon Van Loo, of First SR, Rudy Chiles, of ASU, and Elmer Blair, of CTC. Chiles is due for discharge next month and most likely has fought his last bout here.

There are seven other light middleweights in action now and this could develop into one of the most interesting divisions of all.

First SR seems to have the lock on the welter class with Ernest Hall, last year's champ. He'll eventually have to beat off Willie Parker, of CTC, Joe Martin, of 508th, and Walt Tounsell, of ASU.

The light welter crown is currently begging with no class one or two entries in action. The class three man is Robert Collins, of ISD. There are eight sluggers in class four and five here. Top man in this class most likely will be Ray Leutz, of 508th, then comes James Gregory and Sam Smith of First SR, William Ray and Fred Deutch of 508th, John Liggett and Thomas Boykins of CTC, and Bob Leckrone, of ISD.

Leonard James, of First SR, is the defending lightweight titleholder, but he is currently campaigning as a featherweight. That leaves Jesse Flores, of 508th, and Ray Kiley, of 508th, as top lightweights. Lewis, who fought in this division a number of times, and Willie Wright, of ASU, are right behind them.

Leander Ray, defending feather king from ASU, is back, but presumably he'll have to contend with the masterful James now. There are no other featherweights worth consideration at present.

George Allen looks like the Rock of Gibraltar in the bantamweight division and Neri Kawasaki, of 508th, is his perpetual contender. The boxers in the bantam class are Joe Clark, of First SR, Bobby Rodriguez, of 508th, and Emilio Montecillo, of 508th, who would be more at home as a flyweight.

Furthering emphasizing the lack of good little men in the flyweight division, there are only two on post, Billy Gahee, of CTC, and Montecillo. Both boys are class four fighters.

Now, if you think that you can out punch any of the afore mentioned, all post boxing coaches are still accepting applications for team membership.

The Infantry Center Table Tennis Tournament gets under way in Service Club No. One on Dec. 2 with team from the 508th Airborne, ISD, First Student Regiment, First O. C. Regiment, Second S. R., ASU, CTC, 30th Infantry, and PMG beating each others brains out . . . The football season at Benning is nearing its completion and all ready plans for Gowdy Field and baseball are being thought of . . . The football banquet for the 240 odd players that are participating in the head-knockin' sport is slated for Pine Lodge a few days after the closing of the grid season.

It has not been definitely set, but you football fans will be asked to pay a two-bit piece to see one of the games within the near future. Party is the season, the first quarter was paid to that your football players could be wined by a banquet at the end of the season for the courage of entertainment they have provided to us all. Awards to the top team and the runner-up will be presented then.

And incidentally, that is the most you will pay all year to see 12 football games for 50 cents.

54th Medical Bn. Victorious In PMG Volleyball

The Provisional Medical Group volley ball tournament concluded last week with a hard fought contest for second place with the 54th Medical Battalion team defeating two contenders to cop the trophy for runner up.

The 50th Medical Clearing Company claimed the trophy for first place in a series of games during which the 50th unquestionably was the superior team.

2nd Place Playoff

The second phase of the tournament, however, was highlighted by the three team playoff for second place. In the opening game of the series, a determined 54th team overcame an early ten point deficit to win from the 551st Medical Ambulance Company by 21-11. The second game was a fight affair from the start, with the 54th taking a small lead late in the game to defeat the 613th Medical Ambulance Company by 21-18, thus ending the tournament.

Much Interest

The interest throughout the tournament was both surprising and gratifying. Members of the entire group turned out to cheer their favorite teams with enthusiasm. The teams themselves played inspired ball, with every game featuring outstanding plays.

One of the highlights of the volleyball tournament was a game featuring a team representing officers led by Lt. Col. Wade F. Heritage, Deputy Commander, opposing a picked team of enlisted men. Though the officers were roundly defeated, everyone enjoyed the game thoroughly.

Trophies for first and second place were presented to the team captains by Colonel Heritage.

Two Units Still Unbeaten In OC Regt. Football

Two teams, both undefeated, dominated competition in the intra-battalion touch football competition of the First Officer Candidate Regiment during the past week.

28th O. C. Company won two games, a 12-6 victory over 29th O.C. and a 6-0 decison over 26th O.C. The two wins is the best in the fourth battalion.

In third battalion play, 19th O.C. Company added another victim to their scorecard, taking a 2-nothing win from the 20th O.C. gridders. They now top the battalion standings with four wins and no losses.

In the only game reported from the second battalion, 13th O.C. Company defeated 9th O.C. Company, 6-0.

We know how much Long Distance calls mean to service men, and we want to give you the best possible service. Here are two ways you can help:

1. If you can give the operator the out-of-town number, she won't have to consult "Information" in the city you're calling and your call will go through faster. Ask for a free folder for recording telephone numbers.

2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

Long Distance lines are generally less crowded before 6 P. M. and after 9 P. M.

Top Boxers Scrap Tonight At BWFH

The first boxing show of the current Fort Benning campaign is scheduled for tonight in Sriant Wells Field House at 8 p.m. with five class one bouts on tap.

George Allen, Cleo Robinson, James Boyd, Ernest Hall, Leander James, Leander Ray. All these amateurs, plus Jack King, Tommy Miller, Gordon Van Loo, Rudolph Chiles, Jimmy Bevins, Elmer Blair will be in the ring scrapping in earnest for the right to represent Fort Benning on the All-Star Boxing Team that meets Jacksonville Navy on Dec. 15.

The Navy boxers will be fighting in seven weight classes, 133, 144, 150, 157, 160, 175, and 200 pounds. Two bouts will be on tap in the 133-pound division.

The first top notch bout features Jack King of First Student Regiment against light heavyweight Ben Robinson of ASU. King in his only fight this season stopped CTC's Tommy Bridges in a first round knockout.

Two For Two

Robinson, a veteran campaigner, is two and two for this season thus far. He dropped two decisions, one to Claude Chapman, and the other to Gene White. But came back to score two wins over Lou Barnes of First S. R.

First S.R.'s James Boyd, Fort Benning light heavyweight champion, takes on Tommy Miller of ISD in another class one go. Boyd twice this season dropped decisions to ASU's Chapman.

Miller is a newcomer to the post's ring warfare, but he has an impressive record.

Welterweight champion, Ernest Hall takes on CTC's Willie Parker in another top bout. Hall, undisputed in his class, has beaten William Russell thus far this campaign.

Fourth Rematch

ASU's bantamweight titleholder Sgt. Geo'ge Allen takes on Mort Kawasaki of the 506th Airborne for the fourth time in two seasons of boxing. Both boys have met once before this year with Allen winning the nod, giving him a two to one edge over Kawasaki.

Allen has also beaten Joe Clark of First S.R. this season.

Len James, featherweight titlist from First S. R. tests Leander Ray of ASU. The post champion has beaten Ray Kiley of the airborne a few weeks ago. Ray scored a decision over Roland Martin in his only other ring activity thus far.

In class two competition, Rudolph Chiles of ASU and Gordon Van Loo of First S. R. tangle in a light middleweight fracas and Jimmy Bevins, another S. R. boxer, takes on CTC's Elmer Blair in a middleweight scrap.

Van Loo and Chiles have met previously this year, and in this return match Chiles, who gets discharged within the next few weeks, hopes to even the score. Van Loo scored a TKO in their first meeting. He has also beaten John Cassaliano of 506th with a one round knockout and scored a split decision over Willie Parker.

Chiles stopped Tillman Davis with a second round technical knockout.

Blair has beaten William Russell a few weeks back and knocked out David Carter, while Bevins, also beating Carter, stopped the ASU boxer in 2:12 of the first canto.

Other Bouts

In the other bouts on the top program, John Liggett of CTC meets Bobby Leckrone of ISD in a light welter contest; Conco Adams, ASU welter, tests Joe McGrath of ISD; William Ray of 506th takes on Sam Smith of First S.R. in a light welter go.

An alternate fight that was made features ASU's Willie Wright meeting August Wolf, another Devils' boxer, in a middleweight bout.

with a combination of three plays that he used throughout the game. They opened the ball game with a single wing formation, then dropped into their usual T formation and several times used the Frank Leahy Special, the Notre Dame I.

John Mackie, Rams second-string fullback, scored the first Brigade touchdown with a 10-yard run. Their second tally came after quarterback Al Buckles, the Benning passing wizard, heaved to end Vern Griffin from the 24 yard line, Griffin caught the ball in the end zone, fumbled it and recovered it.

Joe Pangonis carried the ball on the next score from the CTC seven. Little Joe in a short time before took CTC booter Bob Salyers' punt, and ran it back 70 yards for another score. But a 15-yard clipping penalty against the Rams nullified the TD. Halftime ended with the Rams ahead 21-nothing.

The second half saw Adam Dervin score two third period touchdowns on a 99 yard gallop around left end, and on a short seven yard run for his second plunge into the end zone.

The last two Rams TD's came with Pangonis going over from the CTC 5 and Mackie scooting around end for the final score. Mackie, a former Florida U. player, took a kickoff from Charlie Williams and ran it back 83-yards to the 17. On the next few plays, ground gains, a five yard penalty, and a fumble, enable Mackie to score.

Lee Awarded TKO Victory Over Storch

Ray Lee, Kansas City's handsome gift to Fort Benning's middleweight boxing ranks, kept his victory string going by being awarded a third-round KO over Marty Storch in the ten round mainliner at Columbus Arena Tuesday night.

Storch, originally from Paris, France and now from Atlanta, ran into Lee's flicking left jab. His Lee weighed 147; Storch, 143.

In the six-round semi-final, Al "Kid" McCoy took home a second round knockout over Kid Hatcher of Pensacola, Fla.

114th Comp. Wins 2nd SR Football Title

The 114th Company is the 1952 champion of the Second Student Regiment Touch Football League with an unbeaten, untied and unscored upon record.

With a line averaging 212 pounds, the 114th clinched the title by scoring 13-0 shutout win over the 124th Company. Their backfield carriers weigh about 174 pounds apiece.

The two mainstays for the crown holders were Bob Cook, 200-pounder from Oklahoma A & M, and Corky Johnson, a huge 254-pound lineman who played for UCLA and California. Cook was a two platoon standout in every game and his pass receiving was amazing.

Terry Scott To Coach 1st SR Hoop Quintet

New coach of the First Student Regiment's Basketball team is Terry Scott, a former freshman hoop coach from the University of Oregon.

Scott, a sergeant first class with Company A of the Airborne Battalion, achieved much fame in the Fort Benning area with his tennis and badminton prowess. He also played basketball with the Blackshirts last year.

His athletic ability has won him 34 trophies, which may be some sort of a record. They were given to him for track, tennis, baseball, badminton, table tennis, volleyball, and a few other sports.

Some years ago, Scott says, he was well on his way to winning the national marble championship, but the knuckle on his right thumb gave out.

Airborne Battalion has a strong showing in the regimental team this year with six men attending the practice workouts. They are Orvil Bonstrom, Edward Gravitte, Edward Proctor, Vern Griffin, Robert Karpinski, and Vincent Dickherber.

508TH'S BOB GONIA (60) AND JIM PHILLIPS
Red Devils' Boss May Be Seeking Spiritual Advice

Devils' Guard To Deliver Sermon

BY JIM BUCK

"I want to show my proficiency in athletics, that Christianity will work in all realms of our American way of life."

Those words were spoken by 2nd Lt. Robert E. Gonia, a guard on the 508th Airborne RCT football team, who is a licensed Methodist minister a paratrooper, and a former boxing champion.

Gonia looks more like a boxer than anything else in his wide list of vocations. He has broken his nose on six different occasions, in winning the Mid-Southern Light-Heavyweight Boxing Championship and in six years of football. But inside that 195-pound Alabaman frame is a soul that has a message.

The Devils' guard will give that message to a congregation Sunday in the 326th Abn. F. A. Bn.'s chapel in Sand Hill.

Six Broken Noses

As a first-string guard on the 508th's offensive team, Gonia suffered his sixth broken nose on the kickoff of the initial game of the Benning grid season. His only breaks in that game were to wipe off the blood and get back into action.

"Christianity is something for everyone, not just old folks and kids," said the young Infantry officer. "I want to prove that to everyone, just as Doak Walker, Paul Richards and Gil Dodds are doing, through athletics," he continued.

"The Nose" as he is known to the members of the grid squad, is very well-liked by the members of the team and coaching staff. Sometimes the men have felt ill at ease when Bob was around and some profanity slipped out. But his winning smile and unbeatable determination to play hard and clean have made him one of the most popular men on the team.

Line coach Dick Thomas says, "Those guards we have are the leaders of the football team. They would follow Gonia to the end of the earth." That is the opinion of everyone who has met the Palmerdale, Ala., lad with the toothy smile and the broken nose.

Boxing Champ

Gonia played high school football and won the boxing championship at Palmerdale High School, in 1949. After that he spent a semester at Vanderbilt University. It was in high school that he felt the urge to be a minister.

"I guess that I have preached about 15 or 20 times around home, since I got my license," he said. Before he really had reached the place where he knew his future, Uncle Sam called him.

Last football season Gonia was wearing the uniform of Camp Breckinridge, instead of his Vanderbilt uniform. Although he played only his freshman year, he was so impressive that he still has an athletic scholarship waiting for him at Vandy.

Meanwhile, Preacher Bob had been transferred to Fort Benning to attend the six month Infantry OCS Course. Upon graduation and commissioning, he entered the Airborne School, "I have heard them say that there are no atheists in foxholes, well that goes for parachutes as well," he said.

Wants Own Church

When Gonia finishes his tour in the Army he plans to further his education at either Vanderbilt or Duke. Then he would like to have his own church and congregation. "I want a congregation that will want me and need me, for I shall need them. You see, I'm preaching to myself as much as I am to them," he said.

GRID GOSSIP

Coach GUS DIELENS of Special Troops Rams says that his team is highly over-rated. The former West Point assistant coach points out that some of his players would not make the first-string on any other ball club on post.

I am sure that the other clubs mainly CTC and ISD-ASU could use the players whom you send over.

BILL THUSTON and LINTON JORDAN, Rams assistant coaches, were co-captains in Sunday's game while GEORGE BELL and WILLIAM FUGE acted for the Commanders. . .Capt. ELMER KNISLEY, ex-manager of the Rams, now assigned as Company Commander of the 115th Company, Second Student Regiment.

The Rams has three Columbus gals acting as cheerleaders. ANNE TURNER, JAN MURRAY and YVONNE BALLARD wore the white sweaters. . .But they did no cheering.

The 122nd Army Band played throughout the game. The 30th Infantry sent their well-liked drill team from Company I down to Doughboy Stadium for halftime entertainment. Under the direction of M-Sgt. ISAAC JAMES, they put on a good show.

One of the biggest laughs that the crowd had was when Rams fullback, CLARENCE (WHAT SAY BABY?) HOWARD, came running off the field and flopped in front of the bench riders. It seems that he ripped his pants.

The ISD-ASU Green Wave loses some more players this week . . . BOB (CUSH) MILGRIM gets his discharge from the Army today . . . CHARLIE (MY BOY) LEONARD, ace quarterback, may not get into any more ball games this season because of his leg injury . . . BOB HUNT, Greenie guard, is also pretty badly bruised up.

CTC is losing their well-liked assistant coach. BOB STRICKLAND. Coach CECIL DICKERSON is wondering who will now aid him in running the club. . . AL WILLIS not with the club any longer. . . BOB SALYERS, new CTC kicker, was the tactical officer of guard CLAYTON DOTY when both were assigned to the Q. C. Regiment.

The 508th Airborne gridders did not like the playing field down in Miami, Fla. Too sandy and dusty. . . STEVE VALKO, Devils' center, came back up from Florida on a stretcher. He has some back trouble. The Marines were rated pretty highly until they met up with the airborne.

Felbaum Tough On Gridiron But Gentle Off It

One of the toughest ball players you can find on a football field, is Fred Felbaum, 190-pound assistant coach and guard on the ISD-ASU Green Wave. But get him out of the uniform and you will find a kind-hearted guy.

For such a terror on the field, you probably would not recognize him around the post, for he is a gentle and quiet man off the field.

When asked the importance of a guard on a gridiron eleven, Felbaum, who was selected to the 1951 All-Post First-string eleven, replied, "a good guard is important, but not more than any other player on the team. Teamwork, moral and high spirit has a lot to do with the success in winning ball games. Even though we lack the proper size and experience we have the spirit. Our late coach, Major Jack Faubion, was the biggest factor in building up this morale.

Felbaum, who hails from Youngstown, Pa., played football with Penn State for three years and one with California State Teachers, Pa. Last year he played for the Fort Benning Rams and made All-Post guard.

After his completion of Army duty, Felbaum plans to return to school to complete his degree.

Post Boxing Rules Viewed

Amateur boxing at Fort Benning operates under the Hawaiian system of placing a boxer in one of five categories commensurate with his ability.

Even though a fighter may have qualifications for a certain class, the Post boxing board reserves the right to reclassify the fighter if it deems it necessary.

The five classes and their qualifications:

Class I—winners of amateur or service championships.

Class II — Experienced boxer who has never won a championship.

Class III—Ten bouts experience with at least six wins.

Class IV — Novice who has fought before and won.

Little All-American Star Here for Officer Course

BY MORTON SCHULTZ

A Little All-American for Western Maryland University is in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course Seven in the Second Student Regiment assigned to the 124th Company.

Victor Makovitch, a squat 210-pound second lieutenant, was named to the mythical team last season by the Associated Press which had listed him as first string guard.

Makovitch was a rarity in college football these days, a 60-minute man. He played nearly the entire game against every opponent the Western Maryland eleven ever faced.

On offense, Makovitch plays guard and kicks the extra points, but switches to lineback on defense. He captained the defensive platoon last season.

One of his greatest games was against Drexel Tech last year, when he blocked three punts. Matkovitch played under one of the top single-wing coaches in the business, Dick Harlow, formerly of Harvard.

Makovitch received his commission through ROTC and after his tour of duty, he plans to further his education by going back to school.

GOOD BUSINESS

The outdoor swimming pools on Fort Benning did a rush business during the month of June with 42,681 swimmers at Russ Pool, 11,848 at Young Pool and 7,208 in Sand Hill.

VA Opens Hospital Branch Office

The Veterans Administration has opened a branch office here to counsel military personnel leaving the service.

The new VA office is located in the U. S. Army Hospital and is open daily, Monday through Friday.

A smaller office, at the Separation Detachment, also is in operation, according to C. F. McDonald, VA contact representative.

The new branch, under the supervision of Joe R. Walters of the Columbus VA office, offers counsel to men leaving military service on the Korean veteran Bill of Rights, insurance, loans, unemployment, job-finding - assistance and medical care available to veterans.

Swindler, Knight Get AFF Awards

Certificates of achievement were awarded to Col. Perry D. Swindler, dean of American pistol shooters, and WJOG Robert E. Knight, recent winner of The Infantry Center's Rifle and Pistol Tournament, for their outstanding participation last August in the 1952 National Trophy Team Pistol Matches in Jacksonville, Fla.

The certificates, praising Col. Swindler and Mr. Knight for their individual and team contribution, were signed by General John R. Hodge, Chief of Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va.

The AFF is the organization responsible for the training of individuals and units of the Army. It also sponsors the All-Army Rifle and pistol squads. The teams are made up each year of personnel which may be drawn from military bases in all parts of the world.

Broke Record

The U. S. Army Pistol Team, which reported at Fort Benning, last July to train for their participation in the national matches, placed first in all three National Rifle Association pistol team championships, and second in the 1952 National Trophy Team Match. In addition, the team broke the .22 calibre world's record which has stood for 12 years.

Col. Swindler, assigned to The Infantry Center, was congratulated in his certificate by General Hodge for "the outstanding skill and leadership which he gave to train the strongest team ever fielded by the U. S. Army at the National Pistol Matches."

The NRA News, published by the National Rifle Association, has stated "the matches were an Army show throughout." Tribute to Col. Swindler as the Army Team Coach, stated "he selected his men to fire in the respective team championships in such manner as to give a winning aggregation for each match."

PERRY SWINDLER
. . . Dean of Shooters

Mr. Knight, who has been a steady winner at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's monthly shoots, recently won the top individual pistol honors in the post's rifle and pistol tournament.

The individual certificate that was presented to Mr. Knight reads as follows: "Exemplary performance of duty as a member of the U. S. Army Pistol Team during the 1952 National Pistol Matches, 15-20 August 1952, at Jacksonville, Florida. Through his outstanding skill and untiring efforts, Warrant Officer Knight contributed materially to the success of the U. S. Army Pistol Team, which won NRA Team Championships and placed second in the 1952 National Trophy Team Match."

Col. Swindler, upon hearing of his new found honor, commented, "I am very happy. I know that my work has been worthwhile."

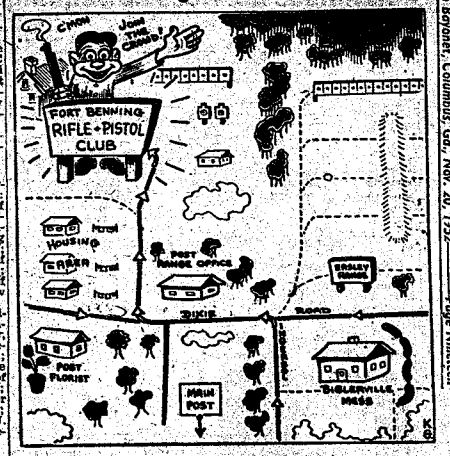
Calling All Shooters



Rifle-Pistol Club Welcomes All

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club would like to extend an invitation to all post personnel, both military and civilian, to drop by and get acquainted.

Facilities are available for those who would like to try a hand at a little shooting practice as well as those who would rather engage in the less strenuous activity of "spectating."

Membership in the club is open to everyone and its rolls are growing by leaps and bounds. In case you are wondering about the expense involved, for the nominal sum of six dollars a year, you become not only a member of the club, but also a bona fide member of the National Rifle Association which entitles you to the many privileges enjoyed by Marksman throughout the century. Also included in this fee is a subscription to the well - known magazine, "American Rifleman" — a must for all shooters.

Drive Out

If you are too busy during the week, hop in the car next weekend (bring the family, too) and drive out for a visit.

The Main Post - Harmony Church passes near the Club in case you are pressed for transportation.

As you can see by our little map (?) we're located on the south side of the Main Post area, near the Range Office and Post Florist. If you desire additional information, please call the clubhouse at 3018. There is a non-commissioned officer on duty there every day except Monday who will be happy to answer your questions and even sign you up as a full-fledged member.

Remember, you don't have to be a "professional" to enjoy shooting as a hobby. Many of our members are beginners in the sport and if you have done a little, or no shooting in the past, you'll have lots of company.

Yule Release Policy Told; TIC Sets Benning Furlough Plans

Discharge Date Set By Army Secretary

Army personnel scheduled for release from active duty between Dec. 20 and Jan. 5, with some exceptions, will be separated from the Army no later than Dec. 19, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr. has announced.

This policy, inaugurated to permit return to civilian life before the Christmas holidays, applies only to those personnel who are in the United States or its Territories at the time."

Individuals returning from overseas commands for separation during this period will be released as soon as possible after arrival.

Exceptions to this policy as announced by Pace are: Enlisted personnel of the Reserve components who desire to complete their reserve obligation. These men may be retained until the expiration of their term of service.

Enlisted personnel inducted or enlisted under the Universal Military Training and Service Act as amended who voluntarily extended their active duty service for one year in order to satisfy their reserve obligation.

Inductees eligible for early release because of Korean service. These men must complete 21 months of active duty.

Secretary Pace also announced that commanders are authorized to extend leaves of absence to overseas returnees reporting for reassignment during the Christmas holiday period.

ASU Sergeant Wins Boost To Top Rank

Robert L. Colquitt of Headquarters Company, First Transportation Battalion, is the proud recipient of Fort Benning's lone promotion to master sergeant this month.

Sergeant Colquitt was promoted to master sergeant for his outstanding performance of duty in Headquarters, Area Service Unit Provisional Group," said Maj. William F. Ryles, group personnel officer.

Col. Cortlandt K. Krams, group commander, has presented Sergeant Colquitt with a Certificate of Achievement as well as several commendations for his outstanding work.

He is the first man to be promoted to master sergeant here since March, 1951, when the Department of the Army set up its quota system of allocating promotions to Army commands in an effort to achieve a more just distribution of promotions.

Sergeant Colquitt enlisted in the Army Nov. 23, 1933 and was stationed here with the 29th Infantry Regiment until November 1940. He has served with ROTC instructor groups in Atlanta and Tampa, Fla.

During World War II, he served with the 115th Medical Collecting Company in New Guinea and, the Philippines. In 1946, he again was assigned to ROTC duty in Atlanta, and in August 1950 returned to The Infantry Center.

Sergeant Colquitt holds a personal Certificate of Achievement from Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, presented at the time he was commanding Third Army. The certificate was awarded for his work with ROTC cadets in Atlanta high schools.

All Eligible Men To Get Leave Here

The Christmas leave policy for Infantry Center soldiers was announced this week in a TIC memorandum which said all eligible personnel would get to spend either Christmas or New Years at home this year.

As in past years, the Christmas season this year will be divided into two increments: half the eligible men will get leave covering Christmas Day, while the other half will be home for New Year's Day.

The amount of time a man will get this year is dependent on two things: how much accrued leave time he has, and how long he can be spared from his unit.

The memorandum pointed out that in certain cases a man might be home for both holidays, provided he had the leave time coming and provided his unit would still be an efficient operating level. No soldier will be granted leave covering both days unless these two criteria are met, however.

Training will cease here Dec. 20 and resume at reveille, Jan. 5. The memorandum said that unit commanders may, at their discretion, allow departures on the evening of Dec 19.

Railroad and bus agencies in Columbus have announced they will have extra personnel on duty from Dec. 1 through 5 to handle the expected influx of reservation requests. Infantry Center officials reminded men they could take advantage of the special furlough rates provided round-trip tickets were purchased.

The joint airlines ticket office on the main post has announced that it will be open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. to sell tickets for all regularly scheduled air line flights.

Col. W. M. Sellers, Infantry Center G-1, reminded that all leaves would be subject to emergency recision this year.

Earlier, Department of the Army had announced that basic trainees could not be given leave this year. The reasons it gave for this were that a steady flow of replacements had to be available to replace men returning from overseas and being discharged.

508th Leads Blood Donors

The Blood Donor Center reported 152 pints of blood collected last week, bringing November's total to 355 pints.

Nineteen pints were retained here for use at the U. S. Army Hospital. The remainder was shipped to the U. S. Blood Processing Plant at West Point, Pa., for use as blood plasma.

The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team led last week's donors with 69 pints. Other units contributing were First Student Brigade, 50 pints; Area Service Unit Provisional Group, 22 pints; Provisional Medical Group, three pints Lawson Air Force Base, three pints; Combat Training Command, two pints; Army Field Forces Board No. 3, two pints, and Infantry School Detachment, one pint.

TIC Given Rank Boost

Third Army Authorizes 100 Enlisted Promotions

The promotion drought which has gripped Fort Benning since last spring was eased this month when 100 enlisted promotions were awarded to The Infantry Center.

The 100 promotions received this month were the second set of promotions received here since Department of the Army shared promotion on a quota system in March of this year. Last month The Infantry Center was authorized promotions for one sergeant and six corporals.

Bulk for Five.

The bulk of the promotions were to the grade of private first class, where 77 were authorized. The number of promotions allotted in other grades were master sergeant (E-7) one, sergeant first class (E-6) two, sergeant (E-5) eight and corporal (E-4) 12.

The promotions were divided among the major commands here strictly on a percentage basis of vacancies in the various grades, according to Capt. Elbert H. Stiff of the Adjutant General's office.

The authorization of the promotions gave no indication of what the long range promotion policy here would be. Captain Stiff said that his office has no means of telling if this month's quota meant that the restrictions on the promotion program were being eased.

Fraction of Vacancies

The 100 promotions this month filled only a fraction of the vacancies which exist in most of the grades, according to Captain Stiff. For example, there are approximately 2,200 private first class vacancies at The Infantry Center.

Captain Stiff stated that the discharges and reassignments of enlisted men in the top grades may account for the comparatively large number of promotions this month.

ASU Gets M-Sgt.

The lone master sergeant promotion was awarded to the Area Service Unit Provisional Group, which gave it to Sfc. Robert L. Colquitt. Combat Training Command and Infantry School Detachment each received one of the sergeant first class promotions.

Combat Training Command received 54 of the stripes, 42 of which were for private first class. The others were for one sergeant first class, four sergeants and seven corporals.

TIC Chapel Gets First Stained Glass Windows

The first three stained glass windows for The Infantry Center Chapel, built at a cost of $3,000, have been installed.

The three windows, purchased with funds from special gifts and offerings donated at Sunday services, will be dedicated Sunday, Nov. 30.

They were installed by Sigurd Martenson of the Ranbusch Decorating Company of New York City which manufactured the glass. The windows are located in the chancel.

Faith, Hope, Charity

The dedication service will be built around the three theological virtues depicted in the windows—Faith, Hope and Charity.

Chaplain (Major) Robert B. Herndon, custodian of the Post Chapel Protestant Fund, will present the windows to Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield who will in turn present the windows to Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center Commander.

The stained glass, which will be covered from view until the dedication service Nov. 30, has been hand blown in a harmony of pale tints and tones to eliminate glare from the sun which will shine through the chapel a greater part of the day.

"Anchor of Soul"

Covered by 36 square feet of glass and showing a centurion beside a Roman building, the main curved window has this inscription from Hebrews 6:19: "An anchor of the soul sure and steadfast."

A smaller left window depicts justice, hope and prudence, and the right window shows temperence, charity and fortitude.

15th JCOC Ends; Visitors Praise Infantry Might

The Army phase of the 15th Joint Civilian Orientation Conference wound up here last Saturday as members returned to Washington, D. C. and their homes with a greater awareness of the military might of our country.

Many of the 59 civic, business and industrial leaders attending the conference expressed surprise at the greater firepower now utilized in infantry units.

"The great amount of firepower which has been built up within the past few years in the Infantry platoon is surprising," said Harry M. Gambrel, of Mann-Kerdoff-Kline and Welsh, Kansas City, Mo.

Former AF General

James P. McMannmon, former Air Force brigadier general and now a member of the American Bankers' Association of Lowell, Mass., said he believed the military was made possible through the great advances which have been made in communication methods and equipment.

"We realize that today we have fine weapons," General McMannmom said, "however, today's modern methods of communication have brought about a better coordination of the various units which make up a combat outfit."

Commenting on the conference as a whole, C. L. Mast, Jr., editor and publisher of the Agricultural Leaders' Digest and County Agent's Directory of Chicago, Ill., said that he was greatly impressed with the high esprit de corps and morale which he noticed in all units of the Armed Forces.

Realizes Emphasis

"After seeing the demonstrations here one realizes the tremendous emphasis which the armed forces [illegible] tion," added Mr. Gambrel.

John G. Cherry, president, Cherry-Burrell Corporation, Chicago, Ill., felt that after attending this conference the members were made aware of the many problems which face the Armed Forces today in building our natural defense program.

"After seeing the different phases of the Armed Forces in action I think that those of us who attended this conference will have the chance to assume a greater responsibility as citizens," stated Mr. Cherry.

Demonstration Schedule

The conference members arrived at Lawson Air Force Base Thursday morning. During the afternoon they witnessed The Infantry School's Weapons department Infantry Firepower demonstration. A reception and dinner was held [illegible]

West Pointers End Airborne Basic Course

BY PVT. VIC JOWERS

Wings inside and outside will be the theme this week for the graduation of Airborne Class No. 19 containing 110 ex-West Point students currently finishing Airborne training with Headquarters and service company of the Airborne Battalion.

The wings inside the men were garnered on Thanksgiving day and the "wings" on the outside are the result of three weeks highly specialized physical and mental training that goes with the Airborne course.

Volunteered En Masse

Graduates of West Point in the class of 1952, the 110 graduating students went through the Associated Infantry Company Officer's Course with 113th Company of the Second Student Regiment and volunteered en masse for Airborne training, because, as one of the group said, they believe that "Airborne is the most practical method of warfare yet devised."

When asked for comments on the training, Lt. Frank A. Allen, III, son of Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen, commander of Camp Gordon, Georgia, said, "The calibre of the enlisted instructors is outstanding. Wasted time is at a minimum, and the instruction is just what one needs to know and is presented very efficiently."

High Praise

High praise was in order throughout the group in regards to the handling of the course and the calibre of instruction.

Lt. Thomas J. Collier said, "The enlisted instructors have excellent command presence and express themselves very well."

Lt. Manul J. Asension stated that "Airborne training is the most worthwhile activity most of us have had since commissioning."

The next training phase for the West Pointers will be Airborne Department's Jumpmaster course.

2nd OC Company Starts Newspaper

A second company newspaper has appeared in the First Officer Candidate Regiment.

Candidates in the Second OC Company last week published the first edition of a two page mimeographed newspaper temporarily called "Quibbler." A permanent name will be determined from candidates' suggestions.

A similar newspaper is being published by the Ninth IC Company.

ATTENDING AG SCHOOL

WOJG James L. Dyle, personnel officer of Area Service Unit Provisional Group, is attending the Personnel Management Course at the Adjutant General's School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

TIC Names Acting SJA

Col. John A. Carrigan Sr., of Blair, Neb., has been named acting staff judge advocate for The Infantry Center.

Anyone interested in singing in the show may contact Pfc. Biggs at the Soldier Show building or attend the tryouts tonight.

A number of technicians are also needed to help with the production, Biggs said.

Major Kolouch Appointed Surgical Services Director

Major Fred T. Kolouch of Twin Falls, Idaho, has been appointed chief of surgical services at the U. S. Army Hospital.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Joe Gordon of San Antonio, Texas, who has been named chief of surgical services at Rodriguez Army Hospital, San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Major Kolouch graduated from the Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, before reporting to Fort Benning.

He was an assistant professor of surgery at the University of Minnesota before he was called to active duty in early 1951. He also was a diplomat of the American Board of Surgery.

Accident Cost Lower Than '51

Right now, it looks as though the accident costs for Fort Benning will be held below the one million dollar mark this year, Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety director, has compiled figures showing that accident costs for the first nine months of the year are far below the figure for a comparable time last year.

Evans cited figures showing that accidents through the end of September — the first three quarters of the year — had cost the government $794,153. During the same period in 1951, the accident cost had already soared to $1,157,534.

Evans laid responsibility for the better accident record so far this year squarely on the shoulders of commanders. "An increased awareness of the safety program this year on the part of commanders and supervisors at the command level is directly responsible for our improved record, in my opinion," Evans stated.

Army motor vehicle accidents showed an 18.2 per cent decrease over the same period last year, he said, dropping from 1,541 to 1,260. At the same time, costs were slashed 31.4 per cent.

Every major unit but one showed a "marked" improvement in disabling injuries. However, Evans pointed out that one truck accident involving 21 of that unit accounted for its relatively high rate.

Total military injuries for the third quarter of the year (July-September) showed 283 men injured for an injury rate of 9.15, while the rate for the same period of 1951 was 10.7. Thus, a 43 per cent improvement record was marked up.

Bayonet files show the following unofficial accident records to the first week of November for 1951 and 1952. Traffic accidents, 1951, 319—1952, 295; hospital injuries 1951, 1,413—1952, 827; and fatalities, 1951, 41—1952, 25.

"While we're running well behind last year's record in overall accidents, the score for personal vehicle accidents is still high. While I don't have any figures to support this claim, I feel that on a per capita basis, even this rate is lower than last year," Evans said.

"Last year," he continued, "there were fewer cars per capita than this year, and although our total rate is higher, I think if some comparable basis could be established we'd find that the percentage of private car accidents was lower this year."

"Our table for computing accident costs is not absolutely accurate," Evans explained, "since it would require a battery of bookkeepers and special equipment to keep exact figures. So we've set up a table for computing costs that gives us a close estimate. For instance, when a man is injured and requires hospitalization, we mark up a flat rate for every day he's lost to duty.

"Our figures for other costs are based on a comparable set-up."

Blood Center Needs Donors

A splendid Infantry Center record is about to go by the board unless prompt action is taken by Fort Benning personnel. The Infantry Center Blood Donor Center reported Monday that it was 400 pints short of the 1,056 pints which had been set as its quota for the month of November.

If the Blood Donor Center fails to meet its quota this month, it will be the first time in its 14-month history that this has happened.

Since its inception on Sept. 23, 1951 the center has chalked up a remarkable record. It celebrated its first anniversary by collecting the 15,000th pint of blood. In the first year of operation the center exceeded its established quota by 1,850 pints. High point of that first year was the month of October, 1951, when 2,772 pints were collected and processed into plasma.

This month the story is different. All the major units on post which, in the past, have supported this activity so splendidly have shown a marked decrease in the number of personnel volunteering to donate a pint of blood.

The need for blood on the battlefronts of Korea is just as great as ever. Headlines telling of the increased fighting there point up the necessity for maintaining a constant flow of blood plasma to the places it is needed.

Blood collected at the Benning Blood Donor Center is used in the treatment of casualties overseas. After the blood is collected here, it is shipped to the United States Blood Processing Plant, operated by Sharpe and Dome at West Point, Pa. From there the plasma goes to all parts of the world to meet the requirements of the armed forces.

All the blood collected here is not shipped, however. Supplies of whole blood are kept here in reserve to fill the needs of the U. S. Army Hospital.

When you read this there will be less than two days for blood giving remaining in the month. Prompt action on your part is required to beat the deadline and help maintain the fine record which the Blood Donor Center has achieved during its first 14 months of activity here.

Here are the steps to follow when you go to donate blood today or tomorrow:

Notify your company orderly room that you wish to give blood. The orderly room will contact the blood center and schedule an appointment for you.

Report to the Blood Donor Center in Ward 2-20 in the convalescent area at the appointed time. It's as easy as that.

Chaplain's Corner

"Whose Is This Image and Superscription?"

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) FREDERICK WIELAGE

If we take Adam as a type of natural man, and ask in whose image he was created, we are told that it was in God's image. Man alone has a mind, intelligence, reason, and a nature destined to be enobled through the Incarnation. But the Divine Image has been defaced by sin.

If a portrait is spoiled, it can really only be restored by the artist who painted it. Human nature, the image of God, has been marred by sin, and the lost vision of humanity can only be restored by the great Artist Himself. In the mystery of the Incarnation human nature has been re-drawn according to the perfect conception in the mind of God. That has been done once for all, and the beauty of that presentment can never be lost. Always before the gaze of God is that fair Image manifest and set against all caricatures and shameful distortions which have been produced by man.

The image and superscription upon a coin can no longer be seen if it is soiled. But when it has been cleaned both reappear. The soul besmirched by sin may lose all sign of the Image in which it was made, but the cleansing of a real repentance will bring out again the true lineaments of a child of God.

When coins become defaced, they have to be re-minted. In the fire of the Sacred Passion the coin of human nature was re-minted and the superscription of divine possession shone out upon it perfectly clear. The agony of the passion of any life may be the re-minting of a coin for God's treasury.

When we can truly say, "Master, we know that Thou art true" then we shall also know that we have given ourselves to God to be re-minted by and for Him.

Army To Close Five Camps In Economy Move

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

Five Army camps will be closed in the near future and their personnel moved to other installations. The camps to be closed are: Ft. Lawton, Wash.; Camp McCoy, Wis.; Camp Drum, N. Y.; Camp Edwards, Mass., and Camp Cooke, Calif. The move will save the Army $8,320,000 the first year and will ultimately result in yearly savings of $18,400,000.

Three of the five camps—McCoy, Edwards and Cooke —were reactivated in 1950 to provide facilities for the "then urgent expansion program, the Army said. These camps are no longer necessary since the "leveling off process has begun."

Ft. Lawton will continue to serve as a staging area for the movement of dependents to and from the Far East and Alaska. Camps McCoy, Drum, and Edwards will continue to be utilized for the summer training of reserves and National Guard units. Caretaking detachments will be retained at each installation, in addition to certain limited activities.

Soviet Minister Attacks Indian Proposal

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky attacked the Indian compromise proposal for the repatriation of prisoners of war. He stated that the only proposal which the Soviet Union would accept was that which would set up a 11-nation committee to handle the entire Korean question. The 11-nation committee plan was submitted by the Soviets.

Vishinsky's rejection of the Indian proposal was expected to help heal the rift which has developed between the United States and Great Britain. The English delegation had voiced acceptance of the plan, but the United States delegation, headed by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, claimed that the proposal was unacceptable to the United States.

Paper Drive Pickup Dates Announced

Paper drive pick-up days for December will be Dec. 4, 11 and 18, Col. Daniel H. Hundley, Infantry Center comptroller has announced.

The paper drive phase of the supply economy program here has not resulted in any appreciable savings to date, Colonel Hundley said. Every effort is being made to put the pick-ups on a paying basis this month, and Colonel Hundley has requested the cooperation of all persons living on the post.

In the past, papers have been stacked near the trash refuse stands at dependent quarters. Occupants of these quarters have been asked by Colonel Hundley to leave their bundles of papers on the curb line during the December drive to facilitate pick-up.

In the event of rain on days designated, the pick-up will be rescheduled for a later date.

All paper pick-up days will be announced in the Daily Bulletin.

The Dec. 4 schedule for pick-up includes quarters on Gaines Circle, Gillespie Loop, Harris Circle, Ingersoll Loop, Vogel Avenue, Ingersoll Street, Sigerfoos Road, Austin Loop, Baltzell Avenue, Eames Avenue, Miller Loop and Rainbow Avenue.

P-TA Will Buy Bookshelves For Library

The Parent-Teachers Association voted Monday night to purchase bookshelves for the library of the new Don C. Faith, Jr., Children's School.

Expenditure of funds for this purpose was unanimously approved by 500 Fort Benning parents who attended the monthly P-TA meeting Monday in the auditorium of the Faith school.

Col. Kenneth D. McComber, P-TA president, explained that the much-needed bookshelves are not obtainable through any source other than P-TA funds.

A general discussion of the proposed noon lunch program for Fort Benning schools was led by Lt. Col. J. R. Richmod, vice president.

Lt. Col. Roderick Wetherill reported that the P-TA-sponsored Halloween Carnival showed a net profit of approximately $2,300. This sum will go into the P-TA treasury and will be used to finance projects for the benefit of the school children.

Following the business meeting, a classroom open house for parents was held by each teacher.

Gen. Meloy Speaks At Class Opening

The most important job here is training leaders, Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., commandant of The Infantry School's associate advanced course, No. 3 were informed at opening exercises on last week.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., The Infantry School's assistant commandant, who made the opening remarks, also discussed the lessons of the Korean War on the training given at The Infantry School.

"So far," he said, "we have not found any principles of Army manuals which are wrong in connection with the Korean conflict, but some of the principles have been improperly stressed. The Infantry School must present every trick of the trade to students so they won't have to learn the hard way on the field of battle," he declared.

General Meloy urged the students to concentrate on technique and firepower.

"It is the concentration of firepower that will beat the enemy," he said.

The 200 students in the associate advanced class are expected to complete the 15-week course March 17.

102 OFFICERS GRADUATE

Associate Infantry Company Officer Course No. 3 graduated 102 students who were assigned to 114th Company, Second Student Regiment. Second Lt. Keith E. Kelly was top scholastic man in the class.

Monologist Sets Show

Cornelia Stabler, monologist, will present a program of character sketches in the Main Officers Mess at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 11 under the sponsorship of the Fort Benning Woman's Club.

Miss Stabler calls her sketches "Personality Portraits" as they are word pictures of the people one meets every day. Her repertoire of twenty sketches includes a busy secretary, a lady lecturer, the mother of a family of radio fans, an elderly actress who is giving a party and a modern teenager coming home from a date.

The monologist is the author as well as the interpreter of her monologues, and has presented them from coast to coast and in Europe for U.S.O. Camp Shows. She has been heard on the major radio networks, has appeared on television, and had the honor of entertaining at the White House for the late President and Mrs. Roosevelt. During the summer months, she directs a Community Theater in the Pocono resort area of Pennsylvania.

Members of the Fort Benning Chapel choir will sing during intermissions for Miss Stabler's performance.

First Airborne QM Unit Started Here

The Army's first Airborne Quartermaster Detachment has been organized here.

It is the 19th Airborne Quartermaster Detachment (Parachute), which has been assigned to the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team. It is the first quartermaster parachute maintenance organization to be attached to an active army unit as a separate striking force.

The detachment was formed from men of the 508th and began operations this month.

Commanded by 1st Lt. John T. Harper of Colonial Heights, Va., the 19th is made up of Quartermaster personnel who have received airborne training and are qualified paratroopers.

Unit Responsibility

As a combat ready unit it is responsible for dropping all of the 508th's heavy equipment during an attack by the airborne unit. It also would jump after the attack and recover the equipment before returning to its base of operations.

Mission of the detachment at The Infantry Center is to pack and maintain all parachute and airborne equipment for the 508th in addition to supervising heavy equipment drops for the regimental combat team in its refresher courses at The Infantry School.

Before the 19th was organized, all airborne organizations were dependent upon parachute maintenance units assigned to airborne divisions.

Regarded As Vital

The 508th operated on The Infantry School's Airborne Department to furnish, pack and maintain parachutes, and heavy airborne equipment.

Department of the Army plans call for each airborne division to have a quartermaster parachute company. The company can be divided into three detachments, one to serve each of the regiments within the division as an independent striking force.

A similar detachment has been authorized for the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in Japan.

Speaker Named For QC Graduation

Maj. Gen. Ray E. Porter, 101st Airborne Division commander, will be principal speaker Saturday at graduation exercises for Infantry officer candidate class No. 52.

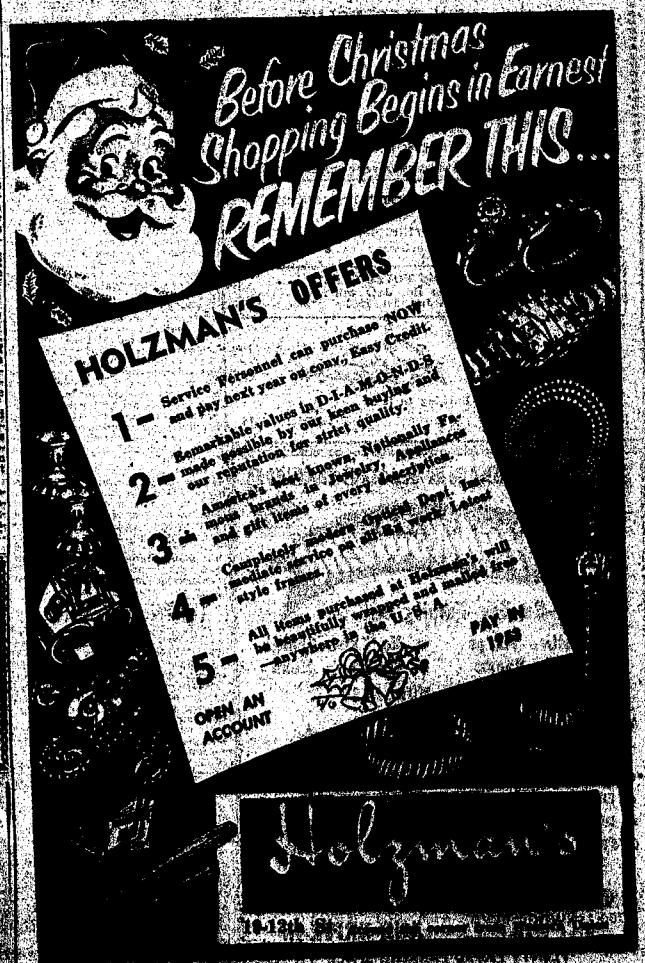
The expected 100 graduates began the 12-week course June 30.

General Porter entered the Army in 1917 and has served at the Army War College and Command and General Staff College.

He holds the distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal and Purple Heart.

OC REPRESENTATIVE PICKED

Candidates of Third Officer Candidate Company last week picked PIO and Honor Council representatives. Candidates Arthur H. Train and Robert L. Sanderson were selected for Honor Council posts and Candidates Norman E. Seidel and James J. Riley for PIO positions.



West Point Lions Hear TIS Major

Maj. John R. Boatwright, Jr., of The Infantry School's Staff Department spoke to the West Point, Ga., Lions Club yesterday on the Korean campaign.

Major Boatwright was a company and battalion commander in Korea from February, 1946, until March, 1946. He returned to Korea in August, 1950, as commander of Company K, Eighth Cavalry Regiment, First Cavalry Division and was rotated to the U.S. in December, 1950.

The Korean veteran was commissioned in 1941, following graduation from the Infantry Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning. He was in Europe from January, 1944, until March, 1945.

A 1940 graduate of Virginia Military Institute, he wears the Bronze Combat Infantry Badge.

Columbus Church Hears Chaplain

Battles mentioned in the citation include Heartbreak Ridge, Bloody Ridge, and Massacre.

The officer is presently serving as S-3 for the Second Student Regiment. Captain Ondishko graduated from Officer Candidate School here in December, 1948.

Shaving Suds Make Lathered Locker

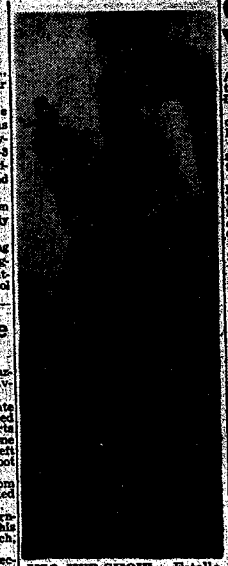
Officer Candidate John C. Minzlaff is in a lather over his shaving cream.

The Third OC Company candidate uses one of the new, pressurized cans of saving cream that spurts out when the top is pressed. One morning, he inadvertiently left the can sitting upright in his foot locker.

Pressure on the squirter from the closed lid of the locker ejected the shaving cream from the can.

When Candidate Minzlaff returned to his quarters and opened his locker, he found it filled with rich, creamy lather.

"Lucky I didn't have an inspection," he said. "Inspecting officers might not have understood."



USO-JWB SHOW. . . Estelle Sinkow was one of the many featured performers who combined their talents in a "weekend party" at the U. S. Army Hospital last weekend. The Atlanta girl drew plaudits for her dancing acts.

Maaician Says OC Inspections 'No Worry'

One officer candidate who seldom need worry about passing an inspection is Candidate Mel H. Ross, Ninth OC Company who has a way of making things disappear. He is a magician as well as comedian and emcee.

A native of New York City, Candidate Ross comes from a family of show folk. His father, Dr. Sidney Ross, has been mystifying patrons of the Waldorf-Astoria for the past 19 years. Two cousins, Lewis and Ames, were leading comics and an uncle is "The Great Bernandi."

Started At Five

Twenty-one years old, Candidate Ross entered show business as a magician at the age of five. When he was ten years old he performed at society parties and at 14, he enlarged his act by turning emcee. Since then he has entertained as a magician and emcee or comedian and emcee in night clubs along the East Coast and as far west as Minneapolis.

His talents have not gone unnoticed since his induction into the Army. While taking basic training at the leader's course at Fort Dix, he performed in service clubs and officer's clubs.

Assigned to officer candidate class No. 48, he has entertained his classmates at a company show and with impromptu acts. He will perform at the forthcoming company party and musical.

(Editor's note: The Bayonet each week will publish a list of persons whose driver's licenses are revoked; those whose privileges of using service men's clubs are revoked; those persons convicted of driving while intoxicated and those unregistered traffic violators who are refused the privilege of registering their automobiles on the post.)

Six men have had their driver's licenses revoked permanently and one has had his suspended during the period Nov. 16-23. In five of the revocation cases the offense was driving while intoxicated. The sixth offense was reckless driving.

The one suspension was charged to a civilian employee.

The one who had his license revoked was Pvt. Robert L. Baker, 114th Ordnance Service Battalion, and the one suspended was Baker Adams, PX Tuller Baker.

Col. Swift Gets Weapons Post

Lt. Col. Elton F. Swift of San Antonio, Texas, has been assigned to The Infantry School's Weapons Department.

He will be an instructor in the department's Technique of Rifle Fire Committee.

Colonel Swift formerly was assigned to Seventh Army Headquarters in Stuttgart, Germany.

Comptroller Reports Fiscal Year Savings

The Infantry Center's Management Improvement Program for the fiscal year 1953 scored a $1,340,675.52 savings in manpower.

This information was reported this week by the Organization and Methods Branch of The Infantry Center Comptroller's Officer. The report detailed the savings in manpower, work measurement, work simplification, cost consciousness, supply economy, paper conservation, machine utilization and the employe suggestion program.

Statistics show a net reduction in civilians, officers and warrant officers here during the past fiscal year, and an increase of only 1.9 per cent in enlisted personnel.

Measures Production

The Work Measurement Program was designed to measure production on the basis of available manpower and progress recorded toward program goals or policy and mission objectives. The number of students taught monthly at The Infantry School and the number of hours necessary to graduate that student or the number of Ordnance vehicles repaired and the repair time involved are examples of unit measurements.

By application of work measurement theories, it was possible to reduce by 55 the personnel overhead in the Ordnance Section.

The Work Simplification Course has been one of Fort Benning's most constructive programs since it helps to simplify and improve work methods and teaches a technique which can always be used regardless of an individual's future assignment, officials said.

Simplification Program

The simplification program has been given to nine major staff sections at The Infantry Center, and has resulted in a savings of 77,213 man-hours, $35,576; 46,162 vehicle miles; 26,174 non-vehicle miles and 4,518 square feet of floor space yearly.

The Infantry Center Supply Section has saved $6,681,823 in preventive maintenance, consolidation of issues of supplies, salvage and reclamation and redistribution of supplies and equipment.

Ammunition Saving

The Academic Department of The Infantry School saved an estimated $2,500,000 by scheduling large ammunition demonstrations so that as many classes as possible could see the same exhibition. The school also is saving at least $55,000 annually by using the viewgraph for mortar fire instruction instead of actual expenditure of ammunition in the preliminary stages of mortar training.

By collecting and selling scrap paper and reducing the amount of paper supplies issued, a savings of $16,975 has been recorded.

A reduction of 29 spaces has been affected by the installation of addressographs in the Post Motor Pool, the Provost Marshal Section and the First Student Brigade.

The employe suggestion program has resulted in an annual savings of $24,000 in the adoption of 11 suggestions during the past fiscal year.

Portuguese Army Officer Ends TIS Tour

Portuguese Army Brig. Gen. Julio Botelho Moniz left here Wednesday after a three-day visit to The Infantry School.

General Moniz, chief of staff of the Portugese Corps of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, conferred Monday morning with Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, and was oriented on the operation of the Infantry School. He also observed several training problems.

The Portugese general toured the Infantry School's Communications, Airborne and Automotive Departments Tuesday and was entertained at an official luncheon at the Main Officers Mess.

General Moniz was accompanied to Fort Benning by U. S. Army Capt. Antone Frade.

The officer had time aboard the USS Nevada (a battleship), destroyer escort USS Hammond, landing craft infantry 509, destroyer mine sweep USS Macomb, attack cargo USS Benate, USS Y. O. 194, and light cruiser USS Juneau.

The 29-year-old officer joined the National Guard on Nov. 1, 1951, and is assigned to Anti-Tank company with the 32nd Infantry at Marietta, Ga.

Blair served nine years, 11 months, and 27 days with the Navy.

Safe Driver Drives Defensively, PM Claims

"A safe driver drives defensively," claims Lt. Col. Alonzo E. Wood, Infantry Center Provost Marshal.

In an Infantry Center memorandum issued by the Provost Marshal last week, Colonel Wood pointed out that a defensive driver protects not only his reputation with his unit, but also his unit's prestige and good will with the public.

Although the memorandum was directed chiefly to military police, it should also serve other military duivers as well as civilians on post to drive defensively at all times to avoid accidents, he said.

Colonel Wood started the memorandum by saying, "A defensively trained driver drives in such a manner as to avoid accidents by anticipating and allowing for hazards created by the unsafe acts of others and adverse traffic, road, and weather conditions."

"Ignorance No Excuse"

"Ignorance of the law excuses no one. It is up to you to know all post, city and state traffic laws and regulations. Observe and obey all street and highway signs and signals," he stated.

"You are responsible for knowing the condition of you vehicle," Colonel Wood declared.

He suggested that the defensive driver should follow these reasonable rules:

Reasonable Rules

Do not allow your attention to be distracted by scenery or other goings-on outside of the vehicle. Sit erect and stay alert.

Treat other drivers and pedestrians as you would have them treat you. Always give pedestrians the right-of-way.

When pulling out from a driveway or side road, come to a full stop, then proceed with caution. Do not attempt to bulldoze your way into a line of traffic.

Always be prepared to yield your right-of-way to avoid an accident. The fact that you legally had the right-of-way will in no way absolve you from responsibility for an accident.

Always regulate your speed to the condition of your vehicle, the location and road, traffic and weather conditions.

Following too closely is doubly dangerous. If the vehicle ahead stops suddenly, you may crash him and be hit by the car behind you.

Position your vehicle for turning at least 150 feet before reaching an intersection, signal your intent, and slow down gradually.

It is against the law in almost every locality to park on the left or double park and it is a dangerous practice at any time.

Signal to Pass

In passing, signal the driver ahead, wait for some indication that he knows you want to pass, then pass on the left.

Weaving from one lane to the other is especially dangerous in heavy traffic. Stay within the right lane whenever possible.

Be sure the way is clear before you start to back. Use your mirrors or have someone direct you when necessary.

Never light a match or smoke near the fuel pumps.

The memorandum was concluded with this reminder:

"When you rush past the tail of a train you gamble the balance of your lifetime against 30 seconds of it — There may be two tracks and another train coming."

TIC Praised By Gen. Bruce

Lt. Gen. A. D. Bruce, commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, has written a letter of appreciation to Gen. John R. Hodge, chief of Army Field Forces, concerning a visit made here by faculty and students of the college.

"On behalf of the college," wrote General Bruce, "I want to thank you for the courtesy shown us at Fort Benning and highly commend The Infantry School for the excellence of the demonstrations.

"Not only were the demonstrations well presented, but the administrative handling of our group by personnel of Fort Benning was superior.

"These demonstrations continue to be an important part of our curriculum, and it is our desire to continue them for future classes.

Clocks Replace Men

Time clocks have replaced time keepers at the Main Post and Harmony Church Motor Pools.

Civilian employes at the two motor pools will use the time clocks to release persons acting as time keepers for other jobs, according to Major E. M. Logan, motor officer. The new machines will save approximately 48 man — hours monthly, Major Logan said.

RIFLE INSPECTION TEAM

Cpl. Arlo Barnett of 25th Company, First Student Regiment, has been appointed a member of an inspecting team which will check the rifles of all the companies in the regiment.

Magazine Story Features 508th ARCT Chaplain

The feature, entitled "Paratroop Chaplain", shows Chaplain McConville's basic Airborne training at The Infantry School's Airborne Department and tells of his unusual pastorate as chaplain of a paratrooper regimental combat team.

Chaplain McConville attended St. John Seminary at Brighton, Mass., and was commissioned as a chaplain in January, 1949.

He served in the 25th Division Artillery until April, 1951, when he joined the 309th Field Hospital at Fort Bragg, N. C. He took the basic airborne course here in July, 1951.

Besides being Catholic chaplain for the 508th, the padre is also Catholic chaplain for Combat Training Command's 30th Infantry Regiment.

Chaplain McConville has 42 jumps to his credit.

Author of the article is Richard Norris, assistant editor of The Missionary Servant, who said Chaplain McConville prefers to be first in the stick because his job begins immediately upon landing and he will be on the spot instantly should a mishap occur.

Army Okays Eight Korea Battle Stars

(ANF) — Eight battle stars — each denoting a major campaign — have been authorized for the blue and white service ribbon worn by veterans of the Korean conflict.

A soldier is authorized to wear a bronze star on the ribbon for each major campaign in which he has participated. Veterans of five or more campaigns wear a silver star on their ribbon. A silver star is the equivalent of five bronze stars. Soldiers who participated in a parachute jump, glider or assault landing within the territorial limits of Korea, wear a bronze arrowhead on their Korean Service Ribbon.

First Star

The first Korean battle star came into existence as a result of the United Nations Defensive Campaign (June 27—Sept. 15, 1950). This campaign covers the enemy attack across the 38th parallel and the delaying actions fought by U.N. forces. It is the campaign during which U. N. forces withdrew to defensive positions inside the Pusan perimeter.

Launching of a general attack in all sectors by U. N. forces on Sept. 16, 1950, signaled the opening of the second Korean campaign. Known as the United Nations Offensive (Sept. 16—Nov. 2, 1950), it was the period during which the invasion fleet hit Inchon and the U. N. Army plunged across the 38th parallel in rapid pursuit of a retreating and battered North Korean Army.

Chinese Communists

Intervention by the Chinese Communist forces inaugurated the third Korean campaign. It is named the Chinese Communist Intervention (Nov. 3, 1950—Jan. 24, 1951).

The First United Nations Counter-Offensive (Jan. 25—Apr. 21, 1951) involved a series of limited offensive attacks which again brought our forces north of the 38th parallel where they established a new defensive line.

A general assault across the Imjin River launched the Chinese Communist Forces' Spring Offensive (Apr. 22—July 8, 1951). U.N. forces fell back to form a defensive arc around Seoul. A swift, devastating counter-attack by U.N. forces once again drove the enemy north of the 38th parallel.

Offensive

The United Nations Summer-Fall Offensive (July 9—Nov. 27, 1951) embraces a series of limited objective attacks. The Iron Triangle and Heartbreak Ridge became familiar phrases throughout the world as U. N. forces strove to keep the enemy off balance.

When winter swept into Korea in 1951, the intensity of the fighting had decreased considerably. Truce talks were bogged down, but U. N. Soldiers kept an alert vigil from defensive positions that constantly were being strengthened. The Second Korean Winter Campaign covers a period from Nov. 28, 1951 to Apr. 30, 1952.

The eighth battle star denotes the Korean Summer-Fall 1952 Campaign and covers the period May 1 to Nov. 30, 1952.

Bragg Commander Commends 534th

Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, commander of Fort Bragg, N. C., has commended the officers and men of Fort Benning's 534th Signal Construction Company for the outstanding manner in which they performed their mission" of signal construction at Fort Bragg.

The company recently constructed 27 miles of telephone pole lines between Fort Bragg and Camp Mackall, N. C. "Both the officers and enlisted men conducted themselves in a manner which reflects credit on themselves, their home station, and the military service," General Hickey wrote.

"The permanent pole line constructed at Fort Bragg will be a lasting monument to the outstanding service and competent leadership of personnel of the unit."

San Quentin Censor Is OC

An electrical technology student who helped pay his way through college as an interpreter at San Quentin State Prison is currently taking officer candidate training.

He is Candidate Joseph Torres, Sixth OC Company.

Candidate Torres, of Sunnyvale, Calif., attended San Francisco City College for two years before being drafted in May 1951. For eight months prior to his induction he censored mail written in Spanish and interpreted the language for inmates at San Quentin unable to speak English. Despite his studies, Candidate Torres worked at his "part time" job eight hours a day.

He learned the Spanish language from his Spanish - born parents, and also in high school and college courses.

One incident the candidate recalls is when two inmates armed with "dandy knives" confronted him and a guard in a dark corridor. The guard unarmed them without incident and locked them up in their cells, D. C.

The 25-year-old candidate plans to return to college when his term of service is completed and then enter parole work or become a full time interpreter.

Broken Bones Hold 'No Fear' For Indian

Pfc. Sylvester Blackcrow, currently in the third week of Airborne training with Company C, Airborne Battalion professes no fear of broken bones or other injuries.

Blackcrow, from Rainey, South Dakota, is an American Indian and has spent approximately one-fifth of his life in a hospital, from injuries incurred since the age of 13, when he began "breaking" wild horses. Sylvester has about 300 tamed animals to his credit.

In local and state rodeos he has won one blue, three green, and two yellow ribbons. These ribbons represent first, second, and third place respectively.

Officer Again In Same Outfit As When EM

First Lt. Albert L. Henderson, executive officer of 15th Company, First Student Regiment has left "home" again. He is now attending the Associate Infantry Company Officers Course No. 12.

Since 1948 Lieutenant Henderson has been assigned to 15th Company three times and held a different rank each time.

In September, 1948, he was Private Henderson. He returned to the company in 1950 as a master sergeant. After receiving his battlefield commission in Korea, he was again assigned to the company as its executive officer.

Equestrian Trades Boots (Riding) For Boots (Combat)

By OC HENRY B. STERN

A professional horseman who traded riding boots for the combat boots of the Infantry is currently taking officer candidate training.

Horsemanship started as a hobby for Candidate Norman Robert Taylor, Sixth OC Company, but it paid off when he needed money to finance his college education. He was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1951 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration.

Candidate Taylor's experience with horses began at the age of 10 when he and his brother, Raymond bought a pony. After training the pony, the brothers entered him in competition. Norman, who is 25 events and Raymond doing equally as well.

Jumping Class

"We rode in the jumping class mostly," Norman explains. I entered the easy classes and Raymond entered the tough ones. He's bigger and better than I," he explains.

The brothers sold their pony in 1945. Raymond then joined the Coast Guard and Norman enrolled in college. Norman discovered he could make his knowledge of horses pay off and he arranged his study schedule so that he could be off afternoons and week-ends. In his free afternoons he trained race, harness, and show horses and entered competition over the week-ends.

He rode one race horse, finishing third. His success, however, came when he teamed up with another Taylor—a horse known as "Mr. Taylor"—in horse shows.

Equestrian competition is divided into several classes, he says. Pony and horse divisions are separated into hunter, jumper and other classes.

The Taylor combination won the Modified Olympics Jumper Championship in the 1950 Meadowbrook show in Washington, D. C. The jumping competition included many of the jumps found in the Olympics—single pole, double oxer, triple bar, cross poles, detour signs, and gaits.

The Taylors also captured the jumper championship in the 1950 Pen Dew, Va., meet. They copped the Challenge Bowl given to winners at the 1950 Lions Club show in Hyattsville, Md.

Candidate Taylor rode "Mr. Taylor" for the championship in the hunter class of the Upper Malboro Hunt Club in 1950 and took the Reserve Jumper Championship on "Dandy." "Mr. Taylor's" stable mate.

The candidate rode in approximately 50 shows, riding both horses in each, and won some 15 cups and bowls for their owner, Roger Crove of Washington, D. C.

Candidate Taylor says he wants to train horses and enter competition in horse shows after he is separated from the Army.

Corporal Ricks grabbed and held the barrel upright until the round fired. He received burns of the face and hands as a result of his efforts. Had he not grabbed the barrell, officials report, the shell would have landed in a group of students, causing serious injury if not death.

Initiative Top Leader's Quality General Claims

A good leader must have initiative above all qualities, the assistant commander of the 10th Infantry Division Friday told 78 New Infantry second lieutenants.

Brig. Gen. John L. Whitelaw, speaking at graduation exercises for Infantry officer candidate class No. 37, also warned the new Army leaders to be "well prepared for your job ahead even though you won't know everything you will be expected to know."

"You must grow and develop with your new and added responsibilities," General Whitelaw said. "In these times you can make a living as a civilian or as a soldier in 40 hours a week, but not a career. Consider what you do as a career and not just a job," he declared.

"You've passed the milestone in your career. You may do some wrong things before your career comes to an end, but do something. Use that initiative that you have proven you possess," he concluded.

Honor graduate was Stephan N. Strauss, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Strauss of Box 213, Ganago Texas.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Major E. H. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

Ga. Safety Director Speaks At Meeting

Georgia's deputy safety director told safety officials here that 968 persons have died in Georgia this year as a result of accidents.

Speaking at the regular monthly safety meeting, Lt. Col. E. S. Burke compared this death by accident figure with the 23 people in Georgia who succumbed to polio.

"This points out the fact that the general public is alert to correct but diseases of all types, while very little is being done to reduce traffic deaths," Col. Burke declared.

The meeting was highlighted by the showing of a safety film, "Killer on the Highway."

About 325 Infantry Center safety officials attended the meeting, conducted by the Post Motor Pool.

GEORGE ALLEN CONNECTS WITH SOLID RIGHT TO NORI KAWASKI'S JAW
ASU titleholder, right, won third decision over 508th boxer in best fight card of the year

King Is Contender For Heavy Crown

The every-other-week amateur boxing bouts at Briant Wells Field House got off to a good showing last Thursday when some 2,500 ring fans jam-packed the place to see the best fight program of the year thus far.

A new contender for the Fort Benning light heavyweight crown appeared when Jack King of First S. R., former Second Army champion, scored a decision over ASU's veteran campaigner, Ben Robinson.

King, who has knocked out Tommy Bridges of CTC in his only other ring appearance here, extended his ring victories to 12, nine of which were knockout wins.

Robinson Confident

The ASU light heavy thought that King would give him an easy win, but when the broad shouldered Ohioan started connecting in the first round with those looping power-packed lefts to the midsection and those overhand rights, Robinson lost some of his confidence and started to back away.

In the second round, Robinson started out aggressively, but the First SR boxer started connecting. King's body punching in the third hurt the fast tiring veteran, who was clinching and back peddling.

Welterweight champion Ernest Hall got in the way of Willie Parker's right hand and suffered his first defeat of the present campaign. Parker has beaten George Blackburn, tko'd Edward Stout and has lost to Gordon Van Loo.

Hall, in his only other bout this year, scored a knockout over William Russell.

Allen Gets Nod

Third Army Bantamweight Champion, George Allen of ASU, scored his third victory in two years over Nori Kawaski of the 508th Airborne. Allen once before this year was given a decision over Kawasaki.

Before this campaign started, Allen had won one decision from Kawasaki and lost to him.

Leander Ray was awarded a forfeit victory over lightweight champion Len James. The First S. R. besides losing the class one bout, was penalized an additional five points because of James not making the weight.

Gordon Van Loo, thinking that he could extend his winning streak, came out on the short end of the stick when Rudolph Chiles was awarded the decision in their second meeting of this year.

In their first scrap a number of weeks ago, Van Loo of the First SR scored a knockout over the ASU boxer. Handsome Gordon has also beaten Willie Parker and John Castellano.

Harry Perlman, First S. R.'s boxing boss, came up with another top fighter when he matched

Rams-Devils Bid For Post Crown

Everywhere in Fort Benning, people will be sitting down for their Thanksgiving turkey dinner. Hearty Appetite.

After the dinner how about stopping in and seeing Special Troops Rams and 508th put on a head knocking exhibition in Doughboy Stadium at 2:30 p.m. for the admission price of two bits, one 25 cent piece.

A token of 25 cents is asked for all seats, the second time this season, so that funds for a luge farewell banquet to the football players can be raised. From the ticket money trophies for the players and teams will be bought and presented. Any surplus funds will go toward other recreational activities.

The 122nd Army Band and the Fort Benning Kennel Club will put on the entertainment.

The Rams, front runners in the Fort Benning Football League, take on the 508th Airborne for their second and final meeting. The underdog airborne have a slim choice to go into the lead if they beat Special Troops. Special Troops play one more game, against ISD-ASU, and if they lose this game and the Greenies game, the 508th became the post champion.

However, it is a far fetched possibility.

The Rams have mowed down their opposition with the savoir-faire of a pro aggregation. On offense they have averaged 25 points per game while a formidable defense, often compared to a rock wall, has held the opposition to less than six points per game. The Blackshirts are undefeated in season play and only a 7-7 tie with the Greenies mar their record.

Al (Gregarious) Buckles is the leading passer in the circuit with 31 completions out of 56 passing attempts for an average of 13.6 yards per toss. Harry Gibbons, former member of the Detroit Lions, is the leading ground gainer with an average of 4.4 yards per carry.

Wave Shutout By CTC, 42-0

The Fort Benning Football League listed CTC vs. ISD-ASU on its Sunday afternoon menu as the main course at Doughboy Stadium.

CTC, hungering for the thirst of victory all season long, pounced with relish on the Green Wave and chewed them up with an aerial and ground attack to the tune of 42-0 before 8,000 fans.

It was the second meeting between both clubs. In their first clash, both clubs played to a 13-13 draw, but this week it was two different squads playing each other.

Personnel changes through discharge, injuries and transfers have hurt both the Greenies and the Commanders. The blue and white had lost 19 men since their opener in Memorial Stadium against the 508th Airborne.

The Commanders with George (Ding Dong) Bell, Adam Zubaty and Dick Raber doing all the rushing, racked up 367 yards while Cecil Dickerson, player-coach, gained an additional 147 yards on 17 completed passes.

Everyone said that CTC ought to have a saliva test for the players were really out for the win and they played like pros.

Two touchdowns apiece were scored by Bell, C. D. Matthews and Zubaty. Bob Bristow came into the limelight also when he tackled Greenie Ed Hansen in the end zone for a safety.

Raber, Bell and Zubath brought the ball to the ISD-ASU six in the first period on a ground march. There, Dickerson passed to Matthews for the initial score. The second TD came when Zubaty bucked over from the Wave one.

The Commanders third TD came in the second quarter with Bell going over from the four. Ding Dong, who had been running like crazy with and without blocking, carried the ball on one play that saw Greenies Ray Starns and Fred Felbaum collide together like high-powered Mack trucks. Both players had to be helped off the field. Halftime score was 21-0.

In the third period, Bristow caught Hansen in the end zone for the safety. Dickerson, attempting a pass play, had his aerial intercepted by Wave Charlie Helling on the 50 yard stripe. Hansen, dropping back to attempt a pass, was rushed by CTC and Bristow dropped him.

This play will be discussed for some time because people figured that a quick kick would have helped the ISD-ASU cause more than a pass.

Bell broke loose later in the quarter with a 19-yard broken field run that had everyone on their feet cheering. The Indiana speedster started around his left end, but seeing no blue and white jerseys in front of him, he reversed his field and galloped until he crossed into the end zone.

The fourth quarter began with ISD-ASU getting the ball for the first time into CTC territory. A 15-yard penalty put the ball on the Commanders 48.

Bell again got his hands on the ball and took off for another broken field dash. He hopped, skipped jumped, turned and twisted 31 yards for the TD, but a 15-yard penalty nullified it.

Dickerson, who had connected on six straight passing attempts, completed an eight-yard heave to Matthews for the next TD. The final score came on a 19-yard run around right end by Zubaty.

Bill Cato, who has been doing all the CTC converting, gave CTC four extra points in six conversion attempts.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Lester Dinoff

Picking of the 1951 All-Post football team was done by the head coaches from six teams which comprised last year's edition of the Fort Benning Football League, but this season only four mentors are available to share the responsibility of naming the post's dream gridiron crew.

It's no easy job either. Here's how it works, and how you—the fans in the bleachers — can have a voice in the matter also.

During the last week of this campaign, which winds up Dec. 14 with Special Troops Rams against ISD-ASU Green Wave, a ballot will be submitted to each head coach. It will contain 11 spaces for him to name a "first team," 11 spaces for him to write in a "second team" and six places for him to name players who deserve honorable mention.

Being named to the first team is worth three points when the ballots are tabulated by The Bayonet sports department, two points for getting on the second team and one point if you're listed for honorable mention.

In other words, if a player is given a first string rating by all four coaches, Gus Dielens of the Rams, Harold Manley of ISD-ASU, Jim Phillips of the 508th, Cecil Dickerson of CTC, he can gain a maximum of 12 points. The 11 players by position receiving the most votes will make up the official 1952 All-Post Fort Benning Football team, and will be duely honored at a post season banquet sponsored by Special Services.

This setup makes no allowance for so-called "defensive" and "offensive" teams because in the manpower-short Benning circuit, the better players are almost sure to be seen in action both ways a good bit of the time.

There are only three players from the 1951 All-Post squad still seeing action on the Doughboy Stadium gridiron. They are back Bill Dietz, of 508th Airborne, a unanimous selection, guard Fred Felbaum, of ISD-ASU, who was one short of the maximum vote last year, and back Adam Zubaty, of Combat Training Command.

Dietz and Felbaum are good bets to repeat. Dietz is still the most spectacular ball carrier for the Red Devils. Felbaum, playing both offense and defense last season for Special Troops, was a line terror. This season, Felbaum is combining his playing prowess with coaching. He is an able assistant to coach Manley. So far this season, Felbaum has been playing on the Greenie defensive platoon, but with the shortage of personnel on the club, he has been playing some offensive ball.

Zubaty may yet be heard from, but thus far he has not seemed as much at home in the Commander's present T-formation as he was last season in CTC's rock-ribbed single wing attack.

Incidentally, all three of these ball players are from Pennsylvania, although only Felbaum has college varsity experience. The mild-mannered (off the field) guard was with Penn State's unbeaten 1947 eleven. He majored in physical education. Dietz is a prime college prospect and is known to be under surveillance of representatives of several colleges. Before entering the Army, he attended Indiana State Teachers College. There is a possibility, however, that he may see a third season of Benning football, for he is not scheduled for discharge until early 1954.

In addition to naming the All-Post team, the mentors also will be asked to choose the league's Most Valuable Player, and the league's Best Sportsman on the field.

You fans can add your voice and opinion by submitting the names of players you think deserve the MVP award and the Best Sportsman by clipping ballot on this page and sending it to The Bayonet, c-o Public Information Office, Fort Benning.

You also can name your own All-Post team and send it in to The Bayonet. Give your reasons for naming your selections. Your letters will be turned over to the coaches when it comes time for them to make their selections. Representative letters in a sincere vein will be published in The Bayonet.

Last season the coaches and fans also selected the league's Most Improved Player. This year, after lengthy consideration and consultation with the Special Services sports Officer, Major Gene Myers, we left it out.

A player who has been coasting along all season long suddenly will get hot in a single game and will be called the "hero" and people will say look at the improvement he's made on has shown. But if you think back about so-and-so's past performances, he did not show any improvement at all. And it is not fair to the players who have been knocking their brains out all season long.

508th Beats GMC, 30-12

The 508th Airborne paced by Bill Redmond ground out a 30-12 victory last Friday night against Georgia Military College for their third non-league victory in four games outside the Fort Benning League.

The Red Devils scored in all but the third period and added a field goal in the second.

Redmond, who has been on and off the team because of his injuries, scored two touchdowns, both on short line plunges. The other Red Devils TDs were scored by Dale Ems and Frank Velleca.

Bill Stevens, who does the extra point kicking for the Devils', kicked three extra points and the field goal.

BILL STETTER, RAMS FIRST-STRING CENTER
Up For 1952 All-Post Football Honors

Ex-Holy Cross Center Wins Praise From Rams

When the 1952 All-Post Team is announced at the end of the football season, don't be surprised when you see the name Bill Stetter mentioned.

Usually, a lineman or center doesn't get much recognition during a ball game except when making a tackle,etc., but the 205-pound Stetter, first-string center for Special Troops Rams, is being applauded by his coaches, fellow players, and football fans for his style of play.

Stetter entered the U. S. Army in Feb. 51 after playing four years of football at Holy Cross and a year of professional ball with the ill-fated Brooklyn Dodgers.

Before going to the Massachusetts university, Stetter, a Bronxite of New York City, attended Cardinal Hayes High School and it was there that he won six letters, for football, baseball and basketball.

Turning Point

While playing football in the New York Catholic School System, Stetter switched from being a backfield man to a lineman. The 24-year-old New Yorker says that that change was the "turning point" in his gridiron career. Bill switched from fullback to center, because he wasn't getting anywhere as a backfield cavorter.

During his Bronx school days, Stetter was named to the All-Metropolitan Baseball Team and the All-New York City Football Team.

After entering Holy Cross in 1946, the six foot two-inch Setter went out for all sports, but football and baseball were his main athletics. During his four years of college life, Bill made such a name for himself that the Detroit Tigers offered him and baseball contract and the New York Football Yanks named him in their player draft.

Signs With Brooklyn

Upon graduation in 1950, he disregarded the baseball offer, considered the pro football offer, but decided to stay in New York than to travel with the pro - football Yanks. The Brooklyn Dodgers that year played most of their football games in Ebbets Field, so Stetter signed with them.

Looking back upon his college grid activities, Bill sees that the New England papers put him up for All-American center. They named him to the First All-New England Football Team and had him listed on the third-string All-East grid team in 1949. The Boston Herald in their annual poll of college football and players, mentioned Stetter in their Honorable Mention section.

One of the games during his college days that sticks in Stetter's mind is the traditional Holy Cross-Boston College game. Bill heard it rumored along the bench and in the dressing room that he was up for the Eddie O'Neill award.

The trophy is given out annually to the outstanding player of the game.

However, in the second half there was a big lineup on a tackle and Bill was thrown out of the game for piling on. Later on, when motion pictures of the big New England game were shown, Stetter saw that it was another player who was piling on and that he was thrown out of the game unjustly.

Still having a long way to go in the Army, Bill, a recent graduate of Infantry OCS, is thinking of a job in the New York Catholic School System as a coach, or of applying for an FBI job. Stetter has coached some sandlot ball clubs around his Bronx neighborhood.

Still Reeling, Green Wave Off For Shaw Field

Still reeling from their defeat at the hands of the CTC commanders, the ISD-ASU Green Wave is off to Shaw Field Air Force Base, S. C., for their second non-league game of the season.

The Greenies in their first out-of-Benning game, defeated Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., 25-0.

The Wave in its past two league games have been blanked, 25-0 by the 508th Airborne and 42-0 by CTC. The losses can be blamed on the personnel that have gone on to greener pastures, by discharge, transfer or injury.

The injury that really hurt the ISD-ASU is Charlie Leonard. The former Florida State passing ace, suffered banged up leg and ill knocked him out of the running for the Benning passing title.

The discharges that have hurt the Wave is the losses of Bob Milgrim and Bob Boeh. Both players have been good ground gainers, and when they lost Jack Hendrix, they also lost a southpaw passer. Hendrix also did the kicking off and some punting, but Ed Hansen's booting has drawn few complaints. The extra points specialist has been Ray Starns.

Coach Harold Manley, with assistants Fred Felbaum and Neal McNeill, have been working like mad trying to get another passer. This past Sunday they had Hansen and Frank DePaolo doing the passing. But each time they tried to pass, they were rushed of the pass knocked down.

Hansen even was tackled in the end zone for a safety.

508TH'S RING BOSS WHISPERS INSTRUCTIONS
Welterweight Floyd Wright listens To Harry Breeze

Devils' Coach Is Pro Fighter

When the 508th Airborne has a fighter in the Brisant Wells Field House ring, you can bet your britches that Harry Breeze, the Red Devils' coach, will be in his corner whispering instructions and patching the boxers wounds.

The likeable ring tutor, a capable professional boxer, has the knack of being able to diagnose the difficulties of younger and less experienced fighters.

While fighting uro under the name of Johnny Breeze, he won 28 victories and lost only three. Fighting as an amateur, Breeze won 19 out of 21 matches.

Since he was 14 years old Harry has been fighting as "Johnny." It all started when he wanted to start fighting and wasn't old enough. So, he took his elder brother's name.

Won AAU Title

His early bouts led to several titles. In 1947, the Airborne pugilist won the Eastern Bantamweight Golden Gloves title. Piling honor atop honor, he added the National Bantamweight AAU crown to his list.

About this time, Breeze turned pro and started to make fighting his vacation. Besides, the money helped. In 1950, he won the Canadian Featherweight Championship. He twice successfully defended his championship in Canada. In March of that year, he ranked ninth among the featherweights in the United States.

Probably best remembered is Breeze's fight with Willie Pep on the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund fight card. In that bout he fought a very creditable exhibition against the champion and since it was a fight for a worthwhile charity, there was no decision.

17 Knockouts

In his ring record book, Breeze has won 17 of his 28 victories by the knockout route. So, the little scrapper evidently has a pretty fair punch. In local competition around Columbus, Breeze has fought once. He was the winner by a decision.

Some of his best fights have been with "name" boxers. Among them were Armand Savoy, Eddie Compo, and Jimmy Rudy. Since coming into the Army, the stocky paratrooper has coached at two camps.

He was boxing coach at the 29th Infantry Regiment in Fort Dix, N. J., and here at Benning. Breeze says that he would like to keep on fighting when he gets out of the Army.

He has been successful so far in his professional boxing career, and hopes to get a crack at the lightweight title, someday.

F-G Assn. Holds Turkey Shoot

Members of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association are invited to attend the Thanksgiving Day Turkey Shoot at the post's skeet range.

In order to get a shot at the bird this morning, you must show your membership card with registering between 8 and 8:30 a.m. No registration fee is required.

Guns and ammunition will be furnished by the F & G Association so that everyone will have an equal chance of taking the bird home. There will be ten turkeys, commissary type, given out as prizes.

Since the occurence of the fatal hunting accident at Camp Stewart, Ga., two weeks ago, more emphasis is is being placed on hunting safety here at Benning.

More hunters and sportsmen know the rules of safe shooting and gun safety. Hunters don't just learn the rules, but they keep practising them when in the field or even at home.

One of the most important rules is "See what you are shooting at." Do not squeeze or jerk the trigger of your shotgun until you see target. Remember, a shotgun is deadly at 30 yards.

Check Game Laws

Hunters should check the legal season, bag limits, hours of shooting and areas where hunting is restricted before going afield. Dates and bag limits are in several instances different in the Alabama parts of the reservation than in the Georgia area. There are several parts of Fort Benning where hunting is not allowed.

Many areas are closed a portion of the hunting season because of firing and demolitions being used. The Post Range Office will gladly give information as to restricted areas.

Complete hunting regulations can be obtained at the Fish and Game Maintenance office across the street from the Block 12 NCO Club.

Pro Grid Player And College Star Here For Course

A professional football contract with the Pittsburgh Steelers is the property of 2nd Lt. Harry K. Russell, student in the Second Student Regiment.

Russell was a four-letter winner for San Jose State College in California. The officer was named to the All American squad, and All-Coast squad, and All-Conference in 1949.

He was voted the outstanding and most valuable player for San Jose State in 1950. Russell is enrolled in Associate Infantry Company Office Course 14 and is assigned to the 113th company.

Airborne Bn. Blanks H-S, 48-0, In Exhibition

The aerial artistry of Paul Bonair paid off once again as Airborne Battalion swamped Headquarters and Service Brigade, 48-0 in a Second Student Regiment exhibition touch football game.

H & S called it quits at the end of the first half.

Bonair has thrown 25 paydirt passes for a total of 136 points during the season. The Company C aerial wizard threw seven passes in the first two periods of play.

The airborne lineup was: Paul Bonair, Arvill Foster, Lloyd Brill, Thomas Kerving, Charles Williams, Manuel Perez, Carlos Gravitte, Edward Spicer, Vincent Dickherber, and Terry Scott.

Benning Units Have Names For Teams

Most Fort Benning units have nicknames for their sports teams. First O. C. Regiment teams are known as the Generals, Second Student Regiment as Rockets, ASU Provisional Group as Raiders, Infantry School Detachment as Professors, Combat Training Command as Commanders, 508th Airborne as Red Devils and Provisional Medical Group as the Medics.

First Student Regiment has never adopted a nickname although most of their teams are called Black Shirts because of their uniforms. First Brigade and PMG combined for football are called Rams and IRD and ASU combined for football are called the Green Wave.

Wyoming Hoop Ace Enrolled In AICO Class

An All-Skyline Conference basketball player who saw action in the famed NCAA Tournament in Madison Square Garden is now a student officer in the Second Student Regiment.

Second Lt. Morris L. Samuelson played four years for the University of Wyoming. Last season the Cowboys copped the Conference crown and went to the quarter-finals of the NCAA dribble derby in New York City.

Samuelson was on the Cowboys' starting five for two years.

The officer made the high school All-State team three years in basketball and two years in football. The lanky Samuelson kept in shape for athletics in college by working as a locomotive fireman with the Union Pacific railroad during the summer months.

He is enrolled in Associate Infantry Company Officer Course 14 which is assigned to the 113th company.

Rifle-Pistol Firers Get Medals From CTC

Members of the Combat Training Command Rifle and Pistol Teams which copped second place in the Infantry Center Rifle and Pistol Tournament held last month were awarded marksmanship medals by their respective battalion commanders last Saturday.

Lt. Col. James Wood of the 772nd Tank Battalion presented the medals to the pistol team members. They were M-Sgt. Colbert Caldwell, Sgt. Hilton Ward, Pfc. Thomas Beagle, Pfc. S/. A. Chestnut, Pfc. Herbert Kolker, and Pfc. Charles Morton.

Lt. Col. Gordon Jorgensen of First Battalion presented the medals to the pistol team members. They were Cpls. Sharkey and Spomagle, Sfc. Woods and Sfc. Walker.

The complete results:

Deer Hunting Forbidden On Fort Benning

There will be no deer hunting on the Fort Benning reservation this year.

The Georgia Game and Fish Commission at a meeting last week, denied a request for an open deer season during December. Captain Elbert H. Stiff, secretary of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance Association, made the request for the open season from Dec. 1 to Dec. 31 with hunting permitted on certain days.

The commission said that since it is required by law to post its regulations 30 days in advance, there is not sufficient time to authorize such a season this year.

OC Regt. Uncertain Of Benning Basketball Plans

There is a big question mark about the First Officer Candidate Regiment's basketball plans for the upcoming Fort Benning hoop season which gets under way on Jan. 5 with double headers scheduled for Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

W. C. Hacker, who was the OCs coach, led the team to the Third Army tournament with an unbeaten record, but the quintet was defeated in the early stages of the meet.

The officer candidates, however, were at a great disadvantage. They continued on with the rigorous training until they went to the 3-A meet. Whether or not they will play under the same conditions this year remains to be seen.

If the future officers enter the post basketball league and win again, it seems probable that the right to represent Benning will fall to the second place club, unless the 3-A tournament is seeded here as it now is removed.

If the OC's do not get into the league, the next champion will be First Student Regiment. The Blackbirs have plenty of talent even though their perennial coach, Bob Kinard, has gone overseas.

It appeared for a time that Gus Dielens, the Special Troops Rams football coach, might also be a basketball mentor, but Dielens joined the ranks of basketball officials. He is assigned to the First O. C. Regiment.

Hacker, is no longer with the First O. C.

CTC will have two teams, one will be known as 30th Infantry. The other called CTC and made up of all subsidary units to the 30th Infantry which comprises the Combat Training Command.

This will not weaken them however, since CTC is large enough to support two clubs as they did in last years post cage league.

But, along with the CTC entries, another usually strong quintet is ASU Provisional Group. The PMG cagemen are all ready anticipating a hard fought race and are working out steadily.

Their high scoring ace, Bill Hahn, has been discharged, but Coach Wes Holden has a fair sprinkling of returnees and a good looking bunch of newcomers.

James Bevins against Elmer Blair of CTC. Blair had won the first and second rounds of the bout easily, but in the third, the tiger in Bevins broke loose and Blair started to move backwards. Bevins, who has previously stopped David Carter, was awarded the decision.

Two more good drawing cards on the program was the August Wolf - Willie Wright lightweight scrap and the William Ray-Sam Smith light welterweight scrap.

Wolf scored his second victory over the ASU boxer, while Ray won the nod over Smith.

Other Bouts

In the other bouts on the program, John Liggett, 168, CTC, decisioned Robert Lachrois, 158, USD; Conce Adams, 164, ASU, decisioned Joseph McGrath, 164, USD; Charles DeForte of ASU in a welterweight go, Tillman Davis of First SR meets Otto Parkerson of 508th in a light middleweight scrap. Albert Farese of First SR meets 508th's John Cassiliano in a light middleweight go.

Freeman Thatcher, ASU class two middleweight contender, takes on Gordon Van Loo of First SR after a lay off from boxing for a few weeks. Thatcher has dropped two decisions to Leon Hall, but the handsome boxer has tko'd Albert Farese.

Van Loo lost last week to Rudolph Chiles but in the past he has tko'd Chiles. John Cassiliano and scored a decision over Willie Parker.

Now that George Allen, ASU's lightwelterweight champion has defeated Fort Benning ring warfare.

Nori Kawasaki of 508th and Joe Clark of First SR will be scrapping to see who will get the crown.

Kawasaki has lost twice to Allen in the past few weeks, one decision to the spindley Allen, but he also stopped Bobby Rodriguez in the second round.

In the other bouts scheduled, David Dallisae of 508th meets Conce Adams of ASU in a welterweight contest, William Taylor of CTC in a light weight go, takes on Sam Smith of First SR in a light welter scrap, Juan Jaramillo of 508th tests Don Horsey of

Next Fite Card Set For Dec. 4

The Fort Benning boxing board was patting itself on the back and the coaches were praising each other for putting on a successful amateur boxing card at Briant Wells Field House last Thursday.

After all the praising and backslapping has toned down, the managers and coaches sat down to figure out how the next amateur program on Dec. 4 could be as successful.

Here are the results which they hope will close your fans.

Robert Collins of ISD will tangle with Walter Tounsell of ASU in a class three light welterweight contest. Collins so far this year has beaten John Liggett twice, Byron Mortenson, and Paul Totten. His only loss is to Sam Martin.

Tounsell has fought only once this year. He scored a decision over Joe Martin.

Earl Davis of ISD tangles with Joe Kent of 508th Airborne in a class five middleweight contest. Kent, a Texas boy at heart, scored a decision over Davis.

In the only heavyweight clash on the program, Albert Wogksch of the airborne tangles with First SR's George Hoppe in the final meeting. Hoppe came out the victor.

Hoppe also has beaten Verne Bottom while Wogksch knocked out Robert Ellis in the third round.

Welterweight Champion Ernest Hall is out for blood after suffering a surprise knockout at the hands of Willie Parker. Hall takes on CTC's Elmer Blair, who also was beaten last week.

David Carter of ASU tangles with Ed Stout of the 508th in a welterweight scrap and Robert Walker of CTC meets paratrooper William Costa.

For the fifth time this season, August Wolf, 508th's slugging lightweight, Willie Wright of ASU. Both boys are two and two with each other.

Castle Leads Comp. Teams In Competition

Pfc. Jack T. Castle of Virgie, Ky., has consistently sparked the athletic teams of the 550th Tank Company for the past 18 months in practically all of the CTC athletic events for company aligned units and for top honors in the various tournaments.

In 1951 the Tankers on the CTC softball championship were runners-up in basketball and in volleyball. They are now going into the finals in battalion basketball.

In proof of the esteem of his teammates, Castle has been elected captain of all of the company teams and has coached a majority of them. Castle is now coaching and captaining the basketball team.

Before coming into the Army, Castle played softball and basketball at Pikeville Junior College in Kentucky and at Eastern Kentucky State College at Richmond.

All-Army Football Ballots In Army Times

Selection of the 1952 All-Army football team is now under way with ballots printed in every edition of the Army Times.

Army football fans and coaches are encouraged to vote. All service football players are eligible candidates.

Bogan Wins 2nd S.R. Table Tennis Crown

Pfc. Allison M. Bogan, Company M of the Ranger Department, is the 1952 ping-pong champion of the Second Student Regiment. Bogan defeated 2nd Lt. Paul L. Hurley, 126th company, for the title.

Lt. Hurley and 2nd Lt. Clare B. Draper, also of the 126th, defeated Pfc. Bogan and Pfc. Joe Leger of Co. M for the doubles championship.

Bogan is a former state champion in Louisiana.

GULF MEETING

Gulfstream Park race meeting next year will open March 4 and close April 21.

LEAP YEAR . . . That's what 1952 Benning football season may turn out for Fred Dreyspring, (above), who will be one of Special Troops' key ends with star Vern Fahrenkrug on wounded list. The 210-pounder played for three years with Miss. State and played some with Fort Jackson's national champs in '51.

ROBERTS MVP

Robin Roberts, right handed Phillies pitcher, was voted the Most Valuable Player in the National League. He won 28 games.

Rams-Devils

Dielens, the Rams have come up with a multitude of plays which has frustrated their opponents. In their last game they combined a single wing, Notre Dame I, and their normal T.

With a half dozen fleet backs, John Mackie, Joe Pansonis, Em Matthews, Phil Secrist, Don Shump, Bob Morstad, Adam Dervin, Coach Dielens has a squad that many college mentors would be happy to have.

The defense is no slouch either. Bill Stetter, Bill Thuston, Clarence Howard, Dick Lohmann, Bill Cawley, Lou Pavlic, are only a few of the mainstays.

The 508th, who have been in competition with non - league teams since they last appeared in Doughboy three weeks ago, have won two non-league tilts in a row. They have knocked off the vaunted Miami Marines and have beaten Georgia Military College.

Bill Redmond, who along with Bill Dietz were named to the 1951 All - Post team, has come back to the Devils. In the GMC game last week he scored two touchdowns on ground running plays.

The Devils ground attack is headed by Diet and Dale Ems, a "newcomer" to football. Ems had never played football, it is said, before entering the Army. Dietz has carried the ball 61 times for an 6.0 yard per carry while Ems has gained 195 yards for an 8.2 average.

The 508th when running for yardage is tops and almost unbeatable, but their main weakness is the lack of a capable passer. Garry Mattocks has been quarterbacking the club for the last few games, but when he comes to passing he gets into trouble. Mattocks has attempted 24 passes. He completed four for 51 yards for a 12.7 average.

OC Regiment May Finish 1st In Post's Hoop League

First O-C Regiment's delegation to the 1952-53 post basketball competition will be capable of finishing anywhere in the league standings, including first place. That's the opinion of William J. Armour, acting coach.

"We are definitely the dark horse of the league this year," he says. With season play one month off, the Generals are of an unknown quality. Only a handful of the basketball talent in the regiment has reported for the team, and practice difficulties have arisen due to the number of officer candidates trying for positions.

No replacement has been named for William C. Hacker who last year coached the Generals to the league championship. Lt. Edwin E. Gulsvig, A&R officer, has taken charge of the squad, and Armour, 27th O-C Company, is substituting for Gulsvig who is on an emergency leave.

Defending Champs

The defending champions have been practicing for three weeks but have not found a working combination. "As we expect a lot more players to try out for the team, we won't be able to name a starting line-up for some time," Armour says.

Three members of last year's team have returned for another season. However, only Orville Kopeke, who was named to the All-Post second team last year, will be available for the full season.

FOOT SPECIALIST

Larry Green, first baseman for the ASU Raiders this summer, was a former dance instructor for Fred Astaire before entering service.

Francis Higgins, an All-Post selection last year, and Warren Stroh, will soon be discharged.

A veteran of Army basketball tournaments, Hugh F. Downing, 6th O-C Company, is vieing for a starting berth. He played with the USFA champions in 1948-49 and 1949-50 and with the Fort Hood champions last year.

Several officer candidates have shown up well in practice, Armour reports. Robert R. Rudiger, 2nd O-C Company, a 6-4 center, is showing up well in the pivot post. George R. Chapin and Frederick S. Karner, both of 2nd O-C Company, have shown progress at the guard positions. Richard G. Batchellor, 20th O-C Company, and David Cohn, 9th O-C Company, give height to the squad as 6-3 forwards.

Practice Game Lost

Acting Coach Armour, who saw his team defeated last week in a practice game with the 508th squad views the loss as a possible indication of another good season.

"Remember, last year we lost two practice games to the 508th and then went on to win the pot condition and we do not yet have all the material we expect for season play.

"We can win the championship again if we get into shape and continue to improve and if the players who haven't reported for practice join the team."

Fish and Game Notes

Hunters Note

There have been numerous questions and inquiries as to who is entitled to membership in the Fort Benning Fish and Game Maintenance association and who is authorized to purchase hunting and fishing licenses.

Members of the Armed Forces assigned to this post and members of their families, 16 years of age or older, and their bona-fide house guests, who permantly reside outside a 50-mile radius of Fort Benning, may get licenses.

Also, personnel retired, members of their families between 16 and 21-years-of-age, may get F & G applications for membership.

Certain veterans by special authority and a $5.00 fee may also join.

Note particularly that the privilege for active military personnel and their families is dependent upon their asignment to Fort Benning and that such privilege ceases when the military sponsor (head of the family in service) is transferred to another military station.

Bird Dog Lovers

Start making plans to enter your pooch in the Field Dog Trials.

The Fish and Game Maintenance Association is trying to find out how many people are interested in entering their dog in the trials. The F & G has some ex-pets who think that they could run the event next March. Talk it up and think it over if you have a pooch. Then et F & G have your answer.

Bounty

Bring your wildcats to the Fish and Game Office and claim your bounty.

If we can reduce the cat population, we will have a larger and better bird population. One wildcat consumes a covey of quail each month. Young turkeys are also on the cat's menu.

Get that cat!

'Turkey Chasers

All turkey hunters are requested to advise the Fish and Game Office, 4-4225, of success in either killing or wounding a turkey.

The Association needs this information for a later survey at which time it is hoped that the bag limit may be raised.

However, factual information is necessary for comparison. Do not hide your kill and don't wait until the end of the hunting season to let us know of your good fortune. Also, you may want to register your take for a prize.

HAS LAW DEGREE

Lt. Erwin Fleet, captain of ASU's officer bowling team, is also a member of the basketball team and is an attorney in civilian life.

Army Football Differs From College: Raber

One of the newest additions to the CTC grid eleven is 23-year-old Richard (Dick) Raber, former Georgia University fullback, who says that service football may be dirtier than college ball, but it is not as hard.

Fresh off the Athens, Ga., campus, Raber is just starting a two year hitch with the U. S. Army as a second lieutenant of infantry. His main job so far is to run the Sand Hill golf course, that is when he is not playing football.

Raber originally hails from Altoona, Pa., and first played football for Altoona High. After graduation, he came down south to Georgia and under Wally Butts, Bulldogs coach, he earned gridiron recognition and gained 4.1 yards on every pigskin lugging attempt he made.

The six-foot, 210-pound Pennsylvanian plans at this moment to return to the Quaker State and be a farmer, but he may try for a football coaching berth in some school.

EQUALS RECORD

When Pee Wee Reese stole his 200 base to 21 tries, on September 7th, against the Giants, the Brooklyn Dodger shortstop equaled the previous high for a season.

Little League Cage Season Starts In Jan.

Eight teams have been formed to play in Fort Benning's Little League basketball during the 1952-53 season, Lt. George Samaniego, chairman of the Dad's Club Athletic Committee, has announced.

The teams, sponsored by the Benning Dad's Club, will be divided into groups two according to the age of the participants. Each group will play a double round robin schedule, starting in early January.

Group A, composed of teams managed by the ASU, First SR, CTC and ISD, will be made up of boys between the ages of 10 and 12.

Group B, composed of teams managed by the Second SR, 508th, Lawson Field and TIS Academic Department, will consist of boys between the ages of eight and nine.

A champion and runner-up in each group will be crowned at the end of the season. The two groups will play an eight game exhibition schedule starting Dec. 13.

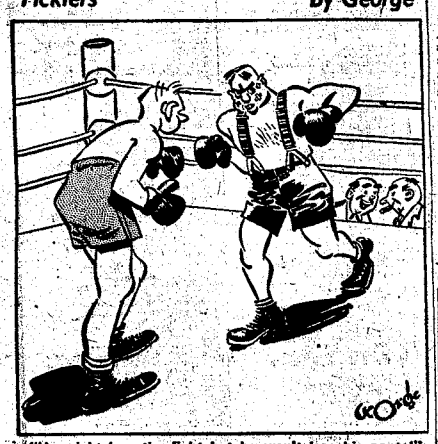
Ticklers — By George



"He might lose the fight but he won't lose his pants!"

FAMILIAR? . . . If the face is familiar, it's probably because it has appeared on the front pages of more newspapers than any other actress in Hollywood. It may be superfluous, but for those who don't know, the luscious gal is Ava Gardner.

"I Told You We'd Clear It!"

"I'm The Captain Of This Ship, So I'll Marry Us!"

"Another Aborted Mission, Eh Crustacean!"

"Boy, I can hardly wait for our U. S. Defense Bonds to mature for that long needed rest!"

NEW FIRST SERGEANT

M-Sgt. Henry A. Snyder, Medical company, 30th Infantry Regiment, has been designated first sergeant of the company. He replaces M-Sgt. Exequiel Gonzales, who is on orders to Europe.

Flying Ambulances Now Part of MSC

Helicopter ambulance units, designed to evacuate critically wounded patients from forward combat areas, have been authorized as an integral part of the organization of the Army Medical Service in the theater of operations, the Department of the Army has announced.

Helicopters have been used since early in the Korean conflict to rush severely injured soldiers from battalion aid stations or regimental collecting stations to mobile Army surgical hospital and rear-area evacuation hospitals. But they have not previously been incorporated in formal Medical Service field-type units.

Supplement Jeeps

The new units will supplement rather than replace conventional means of evacuation, including litter jeeps and ambulances. All patients except those requiring emergency surgery or other definite care will continue to be evacuated in vehicles where ground evacuation is feasible.

Helicopter ambulance units will include five two-rotor utility helicopters capable of carrying three litter patients or four ambulatory patients, together with a medical attendant and a pilot. The craft will be flown by Medical Service Corps lieutenants who have received training in basic aviation and helicopter operation at the Army's aviation flight training center at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Encouraged To Apply

Medical Service Corps officers are being encouraged to apply for helicopter training although precise starting dates for pilot classes cannot yet be given due to sweeping modifications now being made in the training program.

Applicants without previous military or civilian flying experience are being accepted for the program provided they are physically qualified for flight duty and have not passed their thirtieth birthday. Training will be conducted at Fort Sill alone, rather than being divided between Fort Sill and San Marcos Air Force Base, Texas, as previously planned. The first helicopter pilot class to include Medical Service Corps officers opened at Fort Sill October 6 for a 19-week session.

In addition to the five pilots, the new units will have a Medical Service Corps captain as commanding officer, an operations officer and 21 enlisted technicians. Medical aid men, supply specialists and administrative personnel will also serve with the organization.

The first helicopter ambulance unit is being activated at the Medical Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where it will be used for training purposes. Additional units will be formed in Korea and elsewhere as personnel and equipment become available.

CONDUCT MEDALS GIVEN

Good Conduct Medals have been awarded to Sgt. Burch J. Gray and Pfc. Enoch G. Squires. Both men are from Third Officer Candidate Company, First OC Regiment.

'Small World' Says Visitor, Foreign Pupil

A business executive from Los Angeles, Calif., and a Lebanon Army captain attending The Infantry School found they had a mutual friend when they met during the 15th Joint Civilian Orientation Conference here.

F. J. Buckley president of the F. J. Buckley Company of Los Angeles, is well acquainted with Art Dealer George Sawaya of Los Angeles, who is a cousin of Capt. George Sawaya of Lebanon.

Captain Sawaya is attending the associate Infantry advanced course under the Mutual Defense Assistance Plan.

Mr. Buckley and Capt. Sawaya met at Hook Range while inspecting Army equipment during the Infantry School's firepower demonstration. When a Photographer snapped their picture and the captain gave his name to a reporter, Mr. Buckley immediately recognized it as the same as his friend in California.

"The old saying that the world is getting smaller is certainly true," said Mr. Buckley. "That this should happen at a conference of this kind makes me all the more aware of our need for national strength and unity with our allies."

NCO Group Aids Exchange Officer

The Infantry Center exchange's spotlight this month will be focused on members of the exchange's noncommissioned officers committee, Lt. Col. M. H. Steffen, exchange officer has announced.

Beginning this week, an educational program will be initiated through the use of posters, booklets and cartoons which will place added emphasis upon the role of the NCO as an integral part of exchange operations.

The committee is not a new organization, Colonel Steffen pointed out, having functioned as part of PX operations since 1895. The committee had to keep on its collective toes even in those days. This is borne out by an excerpt from a report dated June 30, 1898, which stated:

10-Cent Sandwich

"A comparison between our exchange and the exchange at Fort McHenry shows a decided advantage to the men at McHenry. For example, there one can obtain a cup of coffee, a sandwich with ham and butter and two eggs, either fried or boiled, for 10 cents.

"At our exchange a cup of coffee and a sandwich (without butter) are sold for 10 cents."

The 54-year-old complaint, except for the prices, is not unfamiliar to Colonel Steffen and the NCO committee. In his 72 months as exchange officer, he has heard his share of complaints and praise. He said that it is in order to answer these complaints and better profit from the praise that the educational program is being undertaken.

The program points up that the NCO committee is a two-way channel of communication, explaining the exchange to the enlisted personnel of this installation while learning more about their preferences and needs.

"Our NCO committee is doing a grand job now," Colonel Steffen said, "but we'd like to help them do an even better job. We realize that we don't know everything about our customers any more than they know all there is to know about the exchange. By this interplay of ideas, we think we can make the exchange an even more successful operation than it is now."

Theme of the drive will be "He Is Your Voice," and will emphasize the fact that members of the NCO committee are a selected group, representing the enlisted personnel of this installation, and an indispensable part of the exchange picture.

Booklets have been prepared which outline the exchange service and the committee's role in it. Posters will decorate the exchange pointing out that since the NCO committee represents a cross-section of exchange customers, it a members should be familiar to each and every man here.

This effort is but one phase of a domestic-wide educational Public ity program of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service designed to create greater understanding of the mission, function and operation of the exchange, Colonel Steffen said.

TIC Fourth In Re-Ups For Month

The Infantry Center placed fourth in reenlistments in the Third Army in November, with 183, or 81.04 per cent, of those eligible signing for additional duty.

Fort Benning ranks second for total reenlistments since the first of the year, with 41.16 per cent.

Army Field Forces Board No. 3 reported 57.14 per cent of the eligible men reenlisting the first 20 days in November. The 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team was second with 21.42 per cent.

Reenlistments in other units were Area Service Unit Provisional Group, 19.26 per cent; U. S. Army Hospital, 14.28 perc ent; Provisional Medical Group, 11.53 per cent; Infantry School Detachment, 8.82 per cent; First Student Brigade, 8.33 per cent, and Combat Training Command, 4. 7 per cent.

Three Qualities Necessary For Success, General Says

Major Gen. Ray E. Porter, commander of the 101st Airborne Division of Camp Breckinridge, Ky., addressed the 96 graduates of Officer Candidate class No. 38 at graduation exercises last week.

Gen. Porter told the new second lieutenants that every sucessful leader had three qualities which were necesaary for that leaders' success.

"History points out that they knew how to win, they cared for their subordinates, and they were relentlessly intollerant of inefficiency," stated General Porter.

"A good leader will never assign a task that is not within the capacity of his men," said the airborne commander.

General Porter went on to say that no other group like the Army has been authorized to exercise such absolute authority over the lives of our people as our military leaders.

"The American people have charged us with a great responsibility, and that charge is an inspiring challenge," said the two-star general.

In concluding his remarks, General Porter told the new Infantry lieutenants that they would influence their subordinates most effectively by their personal example and by their earnest concern for their men.

Honor graduate was 2nd Lt. Loren Gannon, Jr., of St. Clair, Mich.

All In Family, Says Airborne Trainee

Keeping up the family's Airborne tradition is Pvt. Gene Peters, now in his third week of Airborne training with Company G of the Airborne Battalion.

Gene had five jumps to his credit before coming into the service. His brother, Bob, with the 101st in the second World War, taught Gene to jump with the Emory Riddle flying school in Kississimee, Florida.

Gene's other brothers are serving with the 187th ARCT in Korea, a second is with the 82nd Airborne Division and the third is with the 11th Airborne Division. Gene thinks he'll probably go to the 508th ARCT, thereby making the quartet complete.

REPLACEMENT

Second Lt. Jack S. Abadie has assumed command of C Company of the 30th Infantry replacing First Lt. Louis E. Goff who is now a student in the advanced course here at The Infantry Center.

Army Food Holds Hidden Surprise

In just two weeks the mass exodus from The Infantry Center will begin as thousands rush homeward to spend a few days with their families and friends during the Christmas holidays. Since many of us will have to rely on public transportation to reach our destinations, we shall be brought into direct contact with a civilian public which does not come into daily contact with men in uniform. Our conduct while we are traveling and while we are at home will be direct reflection on both ourselves and upon the uniforms we wear.

There is an old saying, "By their deeds you shall know them." In the Army that saying takes on added weight. The deeds of a few noisy, ill-mannered men garbed in the uniform of the U. S. Army gives the entire service a black eye. When you are in uniform you are more than just an individual, you are a member of the U. S. Army. Everything you do, you do as a representative of that organization. The opinion people have of you is influenced both by your actions and the actions of all other men in uniform.

When you wear your uniform, wear it proudly. Nothing looks as sharp as a soldier dressed correctly in a clean, pressed uniform. By the same token, nothing look as shoddy or as miserable as a soldier who is shabbily dressed or poorly groomed. The Army has established a set of regulations for the wearing of the uniform, follow them and you'll always be a credit to your organization.

Going home at Christmas means a time for celebrating and meeting old friends. But it is a good idea to wait until you get home before starting the festivities. Crowded trains and buses are not the places to hold impromptu parties.

As a soldier you should have an interest in the actions of other men in uniform. Their bad manners and poor conduct have a direct bearing on the way people feel about you. In many instances the offending person doesn't realize his actions are antagonizing those around him. A word or two of warning from another soldier will often remedy the situation. The use of a little diplomacy at times like these is highly recommended.

When you are on leave you are constantly before the public eye. Your actions and the actions of countless others will be the determining factor in how the Army is judged.

Remember Pearl Harbor . . .

Sleeping American servicemen awoke that morning to the sounds of screaming sirens, booming guns and thundering explosions. In the space of a few shattering moments the peaceful Sunday calm of Pearl Harbor had been changed into a holocaust of death.

The dead and injured lay everywhere.

Large warships, the backbone of the Navy's strength in the Pacific, had been sunk or seriously damaged, leaving this nation with virtually no effective fighting forces in that sector of the world. The destiny of the United States Pacific forces rested with a comparative handful of men who were to gain immortal glory on Bataan peninsula.

The day following the Japanese sneak attack, the United States declared war upon the Axis powers of Germany, Italy and Japan. A stunned America suddenly realized how ill-equipped the nation was to fight a major war. Thousands of lives were sacrificed in delaying actions to gain for the United States the precious time it needed so desperately to rearm. The time was purchased but at terrible cost. Serious Americans vowed that never again would the United States be caught unprepared and have to sacrifice its men in a bid to gain time.

History is a valuable teacher, but the American people have shown a marked talent for forgetting the lessons learned through bitter experience. As soon as the war ended the armed services were demobilized at an astonishing rate. The American public chose to ignore the past. The services became the prime targets for those who sought economy in government. And so it was that on June 25, 1950, American forces again had to fight costly delaying actions so that the United States could muster her fighting forces.

The dangers facing the free peoples of the world are titanic. The need for vigilance now and in the years to come will be strong. This country must be ever alert to the danger so that our drive to achieve and maintain sufficient strength to meet every emergency is never relaxed.

The United States has been extremely fortunate in the past in that other nations bore the brunt of the assault until we had time to rearm. But now there is no other nation or group of nations strong enough to stand up to aggression. In the future it will be up to the American fighting forces. Thus on this coming Sunday which commemorates the 11th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor, it is the duty of all Americans to pledge themselves to the task of keeping strong.

'Hoot!' Cries Fisher 'I Caught A Coot!'

Despite the fact that hunting season is upon us, fisherman still spin their tall tale.

Capt. Walter S. McCracken, Fourth Company, First Student Regiment, came out with a topper recently. Seems he was fishing, using lemmons for bait, when he got a strike.

His line played out, then suddenly rose straight up into the air. He had hooked a coot—a form of duck.

Chaplain's Corner

"In Everything Give Thanks"

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) RACY L. AKINS

Forty graves in the Plymouth cemetery could be seen by the fifty-one English-speaking men and four women gathered together for the first American Thanksgiving day. Survivors of that first crushing year of epidemic and death, they met to praise God.

Martin Rinkart wrote the words to the hymn, "Now Thank We All Our God", during an epidemic in which so many died that they had to be buried in trenches. His own wife had died and Rinkart was driven to desperate extremes to find food for his children in the panic-stricken city.

In his book, "The Untold Korea Story" Bob Pierce tells of visiting a pre-dawn prayer meeting in Taegu in the winter of 1951, attended by some three thousand Christians. Fresh from the horrors of Communist massacres in the North, torn by family break-ups and losses, impoverished by hunger and cold, reduced to despair by the war's onslaught, they met to pray. Bob Pierce writes:

"They prayed for their suffering brethren, asking God to give them courage and, above all else, an unwavering witness regardless of circumstances. They prayed for the salvation of their enemies. They prayed that soon the gospel might have free course in the land . . . Then suddenly someone began a song. First a few voices, more, and then the entire congregation . . . In the stillness of that morning hour, in the anticipation of imminent death and destruction, they sang:

'Come Thou Fount of every blessing, tune my heart to sing Thy grace. streams of mercy never-ceasing, call for songs of loudest praise.' "

Pass the turkey and stuffing, please. This Thanksgiving Day we will sit down to our well-laden tables—their settings in good taste, their colors harmonizing, their silver gleaming—and will we remember the millions in the world who would be grateful for only a morsel of food? Millions who do not remember when they weren't hungry, and when they weren't cold? Will we pause to thank God for His blessings? Or will we be like the hogs that eat acorns under an oak tree and never look up to see from whence they come?

It would do our souls good—and might cause us to stop complaining—to think of the blessings God has given us. In the words of the old song, "Count your many blessings, name them one by one; and it will surprise you what the Lord hath done."

The best way to achieve happiness, of course, is to minister to the needs of others. Let us be grateful that we have that ability. We will find our greatest joy in this and the Christmas season in using it. It is in giving that we receive, in blessing that we are blessed.

And while we thank God will we also thank Him for His great Gift whose birthday we will soon be celebrating? "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him may not perish, but have everlasting life." Are we grateful?

TALES OF THE RAILS edited by Veronica Hutchinson. World Publishing Company.

In this book Veronica Hutchinson has collected railroad yarns about some of the outstanding men and machines who made railroad history and legend.

Two of her best stories concern Casey Jones, who was a legend while he lived and became an even greater one when he rode the Cannonball Express into the "promised land". The other is the story of the wreck of the famous Collyer Special.

In all she has collected 16 fascinating tales of railroaders from the early days of the cowcatchers right up to the present.

WORKING WITH ROOSEVELT by Samuel I. Rosenman. Harper and Brothers.

Samuel Rosenman helped the late President Roosevelt prepare his first major speech when he was campaigning for governor in 1928. He was still around when the President was preparing his final major address on Yalta just before he died in 1945.

This is Rosenman's story of those fateful years told by one of the men who was there from start to finish.

Rosenman has given his interpretation of those years and tells what he knows Roosevelt's speech writing and the role that the ghost writers played, what were the President's own beliefs about Yalta and the Russians, and what palns he and the late Wendell Wilkie had made following the 1944 elections.

Airborne Jumpmaster Course

Leaders Train For Future Responsibility

BY PVT. VIC JOWERS

Airborne training for the major part of the personnel that graduate from the Airborne course here consists of three weeks of highly specialized and strenuous work.

Officers and enlisted men of the top three grades, by necessity of their rank, accept much greater responsibility with an additional 16 hours training when they take the mandatory Jumpmaster Course given by Airborne Department.

The course is administered by Maj. Robert C. Kendirck, Chief of the Advanced Parachute Training Groups, and Capt. Herbert A. Robinson, Chief of the Jumpmaster's Section.

Principles of Leadership

This course, designed to train the leaders of Airborne units, has as its basic mission "to teach the principles of leadership as it pertains to Airborne Operations." Captain Robinson explained that the department cannot teach any more than the basic principles, because techniques differ in the units.

The course deals with the theory and practical work involved in leading men into combat.

Monday of each week the officers and enlisted men and sergeant attend lectures designed to give them a complete picture of their responsibilities as Jumpmaster of a planeload.

Inspection Important

Most emphasis is placed upon teaching the students "inspection of personnel and their equipment". Other aspects covered are: "inspection of the aircraft", to check the anchor line, cable, to which the paratroopers hook their static lines prior to jumping. The student learns to check the seats and safety belts, the first aid kits, and the lights by the door and on the tail boom. He also inspects the outside of the fuselage for protruding pieces of metal and other objects that might prove hazardous to the jumper.

Also covered in the Monday lectures are the basic principles of aerial navigation. This is a necessary factor in order that the jumpmaster can observe terrain features and learn to follow an aerial map.

Confidence Jump

The practical side of the course includes a "confidence jump" taken Monday night over Lee Field, and an assembly problem, on reaching the ground using the metascope, and the airborne beacon, an infra-red light.

The actual duties of the Jumpmaster in combat vary with the tactical situation on hand. Usually he is the first man to leave the plane on the green-light signal given by the pilot.

After the practical work of the course is finished, a critique is held back at the Jumpmaster Headquarters and certificates are awarded. This certificate is just one step in the long haul toward the students' Senior Wings. The Senior Wings are awarded after the man as made 35 jumps and one combat jump or a required number of Jumpmaster jumps under simulated combat conditions.

In addition he must have successfully completed the Jumpmaster Course given by Airborne Department and have made several night jumps and equipment jumps. When a man applies for his Senior Wings, his application is presented to board and they determine whether the man has the character and leadership potentialities for such responsibility.

Responsibilities

Under actual combat conditions the responsibilities of a Jumpmaster begin when the orders come down from higher headquarters that a combat jump will be made, and they end when the troops are assembled in the combat zone and under the command of the senior unit.

The first item upon receiving jump" orders is for the Jumpmaster to contact the men on his flight manifesto. He then has to check the men's personal equipment, inspect the aircraft, and supervise the loading of the plane. He is responsible for issuing parachutes, and seeing that they are adjusted properly.

He supervises the loading of aerial delivery containers, and reviews parachute technique with the men. Before 'take-off' time, he attends many conferences with his company commander, and it is his responsibility to pass along to each man the information that he received. Further responsibility comes once the plane is loaded with men. He has to see that the morale of the planeload is kept up during the flight and before they reach the Drop Zone.

Makes Last Check

Twenty minutes from the DZ the Jumpmaster makes the last check of his personal equipment, and gets ready to go.

On the four minute warning from the pilot the jumpmaster sounds off with the seven jump commands "get ready", "stand up", "hook up", "check your equipment", "sound off equipment check", "stand in the door", and "go". On the work "go", the jumpmaster leaves the plane.

Once on the DZ the Jumpmaster is responsible for collecting his men and assembling them in the correct area and then reporting to his senior officer or unit.

Playing a large part in the all-important task of teaching the students to be capable leaders are the personnel of the Advanced Parachute Training Group. Key instructors in the course are Sfc. Andrew J. Simko, Chief NCO teaching Aircraft Inspection; Sfc. Charles B. Gamble, who handles the "in-flight" responsibility part of the course, and acts as Safety NCO in the aircraft; Sgts. Frederick J. Carden and Edward J. Ross handle "techniques of inspection of personnel and their equipment".

Two officer instructors are Captain Herbert A. Robinson, and Lt. James A. Flanagan who instruct the "duties and responsibilities of the Jumpmaster" and the "basic principles of aerial navigation, for orientation during flight".

The class began training July 3.

Teague, a Democrat, graduated from Texas A & M in 1932. He entered the Army in 1940 and served in Europe with the 314th Infantry Regiment, 79th Division, for six years.

He was a colonel when separated from the service in 1946 and that same year was elected to the House of Representatives to fill the unexpired term of Luther A. Johnson.

Tague holds the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters and French Croix de Guerre with Palm.

Danish Colonel Ends TIS Tour

Danish Army Col. E Joest and Maj. J. H. B. Tremmer left here last week for New York following a three-day visit to The Infantry Center.

Col. Joest, inspector general of the Danish Army Transportation Corps, and Major Tremmer of the Army Corps' Transportation Section, toured the Transportation Section and witnessed Infantry training during their three days on the post.

They were honored by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, at an official luncheon at the Main Officers Mess.

The Danish officers also will visit Washington, D. C., Fort Lee, Va., Camp Gordon, Ga., and Fort Eustis Va., while in the U. S.

QM Official Inspects

Lt. Col. Corey Baldwin of the Army's Quartermaster General's Office in Washington, D. C., is expected to arrive here Dec. 8 to visit the Third Army Food Service School.

Colonel Baldwin will inspect the school's facilities and training methods during his stay at The Infantry Center. He will leave Dec. 11.

Yule Trees May Be Cut

Military personnel, individuals or units who desire to cut Christmas trees on the reservation this year may do so along Lightning Road, according to an announcement in the Daily Bulletin.

The area where trees may be cut extends from Cusseta Road to Jamestown Road, and for 50 feet on either side of Lightning Road. The only type of trees that may be cut are pine trees less than 12 feet in height. Officials warned that no holly or cedar trees could be cut.

Since fire regulations require that all trees to be used on post must be fire retardant, trees purchased or cut on the reservation may be taken to the Insect and Rodent Control Office on Upton Avenue behind the small animals hospital. Personnel there will spray trees from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 17, 18, 19, 22 and 23.

Officials emphasized that all trees to be used on the post must be treated with fire retardant compound before being set up.

TIC G-1 In Washington

Lt. Col. W. W. Sellers, The Infantry Center G-1, left is in Washington, D. C., to consult with career management officials on personnel matters. He will be away approximately 10 days.

Lt. Col. Hezekiah J. Ross Jr. is acting G-1 during Colonel Sellers absence.

Army Slogans Push Cost, Safety Drives

(ANF) — Military communications have come a long way since the smoke signal, but the Army still finds good use for sign language — the poster kind — in teaching its soldiers to be careful with currency.

Almost every corner the soldier turns brings him to a sign exhorting him to be "cost conscious."

The goal is Maximum Use, Minimum Waste, and in following this credo, soldiers treat the taxpayer's dollar as if it were made of rubber—they stretch it.

Drive Packs Punch

The supply economy drive packs punch. The soldier finds appeals to his pride. (Don't be a schmoe; weapons cost dough), his pocketbook (If on supply you are lax, Uncle Sam will add a tax), his patriotism (To waste what you have is sabotage), his good sense (Soldiers wise economize with every bit of their supplies), and his life instinct (Take care of it and it will take care of you).

One on the last thing he sees as he leaves a washroom is: "Don't be a drip—turn off the water."

The first thing he sees as he enters the dining hall is: "Take all you want—but eat all you take."

Rough Riding

When he drives an Army car, he is warned against rough riding (Seconds Saved = Dollars Lost). The perils of letting his vehicle get out of smooth - running condition are brought home to him by a picture of a wreck with the driver draped over a road sign (This man was not cost conscious—now he is unconscious).

Fire drill is mental, as well as physical in the Army (One dollar will buy 10,000 matches, one match will destory $1,000,000.

Constant salvage drives keep the soldier perpetually scrapheapy, and the Army's distaste for waste is made graphic for him by a picture of a garbage can with the stern reminder: "Let's keep it empty."

Lieutenant Gets Purple Heart

First Lt. Donald J. Zimmerlin of Maple Heights, Ohio, has been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in October, 1951, at Kumsong, Korea.

Lieutenant Zimmerlin, now assigned to the Reviews and Analysis Division of The Infantry Center Comptroller Section, was wounded in action while a member of Company C, 21st Infantry Regiment of the 24th Infantry Division. He served in Korea for nine months.

Col. Daniel H. Hundley, Infantry Center comptroller, made the presentation.

ISD Has Novel Safety Exhibit

A novel safety exhibit is used by the Infantry School Detachment to impress upon personnel the dangers of neglecting common safety practices.

An accident scene, featuring a wrecked automobile and a dummy copy of "The Bayonet" bearing a head that says ONE ISD MAN KILLED, has been set up by Sgt. Charles H. Kindle, detachment information and education clerk.

In front of the wreck yawns an open grave with a cross bearing the inscription "Reserved." The blood-stained car serves as a background for life-sized cartoons depicting the principal causes of fatal highway accidents—unsafe cars and "alcoholized" gasoline.

One cartoon shows a befuddled driver standing beside a gasoline pump mixing his whiskey and gasoline while saying "I wonder if I'll live to regret this."

To emphasize that many accidents are due to faulty cars, a third cartoon laments that "the car was perfect—except for the brakes," while a companion examines a worn-out tire with the observation that "it's good enough."

The safety exhibit is one of a series the Infantry School Detachment has erected prior to each holiday period. Another is planned in connection with the Christmas holiday.

'No Music,' Troopers Complain of Mess Hall

BY PVT. VIC JOWERS

Enlisted men of Company E, Airborne Battalion, have only one complaint about the company mess hall. Everything is just like home, they say, except there's no music.

So far nothing has been done to rectify this lack, but in order to create an atmosphere of peace and comfort at mealtime, Lt. Richard W. F. Russ, mess officer, Sgt. Everett DeBarr, mess steward, and all the mess personnel have done everything in their power.

Flowered Wallpaper

The improvements include papering the upper half of the mess hall walls in a flowerted design—something rarely seen in ordinary mess halls. The lower half is painted bright green.

Colorful drapes adorn the windows, and the tables are covered with gayly colorrd oilcloth.

All these improvements were paid for from the unit fund. The biggest, and perhaps most progressive change, is a partition separating the serving line and the kitchen from the main body of dining hall. This enables the men to eat free from the sight of hard-working kitchen policemen, which would, at best, recall anything but fond memories.

The redecorated mess hall has brought Col. S. R. Tupper, First Student Brigade commander; Col. Kenneth D. Macomber, First Student regiment commander; and Lt. Col. J. R. Cronk, regimial executive officer, down for visits.

Colonel Tupper, speaking of the mess hall, said "It is very lovely and the work shows much originality and planning."

"Best Appearance"

"The mess hall presnts the best appearance of any in the regiment," said Colonel Macomber, and provides that home-like atmosphere that is such a great boon to any mess."

Colonel Cronk commended Company E by saying "Lieutenant Russ and Sergeant Debarr certainly had a lot of original ideas. The whole thing is very attractive and is a fine step away from the old idea of a mess hall."

M-Sgt. Miner D. Therral, first sergeant of Company E, summed up the feeling of most of the men in the company when he said "It's very pleasing to the senstitivities to sit and eat a meal in this mess hall. Usually, men are interested in gulping down their food then leaving — but not here. We feel more comfortable and can sit and talk in a pleasant atmosphere when we're finished eating."

Two Airmen Cited For Ideas

T-Sgt. John R. Bertram and A-1C Harry Rhoads, Lawson Air Force Base, have received letters of recommendation from Brig. Gen. Lacey V. Murrow, base commander, for money-saving suggestions.

Sergeant Bertram, machinist in the Maintenance Shop, worked out a tool dressing fixture to hold threading tool bits while in the process of grinding tools to the required form.

This fixture, which can be used by either semi-skilled or unskilled persons, reduces the standard time of this procedure from 30 to ten minutes. The holder can be used on any surface grinder that is provided with a magnetic chuck and is estimated to save seven man hours a week and $500 annually.

Airman Harry Rhoads, formerly of the Maintenance Squadron, now discharged from the Air Force, submitted a suggestion for a table to be used in the Office Machine Repair Shops.

The table, when mounted with a turn table, relieves the lifting of machines, simplifies working conditions, and decreases body movement for more efficient work. The use of a table of this type resulted in a saving of $792 per employee and two man-hours a day.

Maj. Wiliam Carpenter, commander of the Maintenance Squadron, has approved and allowed the devices to be tested for efficiency and time and money saving value.

Sergeant Bertram's suggestion has been forwarded to 18th Air Force for approval and adoption by other Air Force Bases. He was awarded another letter of recommendation in August for his suggestion for a spring-winder and a collapsible thread cutter.

DOD Speeds Names Of Men In Accidents

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A new Defense Department directive outlines a more liberal policy regarding the release of the names of servicemen involved in accidents within the U. S.

Formerly no names of dead or injured could be released until the next of kin had been notified or until four hours after a telegram had been dispatched. The new policy is as follows:

In cases of accidents within a military installation, the names may be withheld until such time as the next of kin can reasonably be expected to receive official notification. However, the directive goes on to point out that every effort should be made to release the names simultaneously or as soon as possible after the release of the accident news itself.

In cases of accidents outside a military installation where the accident is definitely within the civilian domain, the names should be released immediately upon identification. The names of personnel in aircraft which crash in remote places without involving any civilians would, however, still be subject to the next of kin notification rule before release.

The directive is 5410.1 dated Oct. 22, 1953.

Cub Pack 27 Sets Meeting

A number of awards will be given out during the meeting, a demonstration by one of the dens, and den and pack displays will make up the program.

Parents of the boys are requested to attend this meeting since their attendance is required when a boy receives an award. Under the Cub Scout program the boy performs all requirements for an award in his own home under the supervision of the parent, therefore their presence is required at this meeting.

QM Repair Shops Save Soldiers' Money

QM SHOE REPAIR OFFERS SAVING
Charlie Dunham Half-Soles Combat Boot

Shoe, Clothing Shops Offer Big Savings

Infantry Center personnel are saving approximately $500 a week by having their shoes and clothing repaired at Quartermaster repair shops, according to Col. William R. Fields, Infantry Center Quartermaster.

Estimated monthly savings on repair and or alteration of personal clothing and shoes are approximately $2,101 per month, states Colonel Fields. Of this total, $670 is saved monthly on repair of shoes and $1,430 on clothing during a like period.

The quartermaster shoe repair shop half soles a pair of low quarters, with leather, for $1.35. For a whole leather sole the price is 40 cents more. A new pair of rubber heels costs 35 to 45 cents, depending on whether the soldier wants half or whole rubber heels.

Wacs get a good break at the repair shop inasmuch as a pair of their shoes will be whole soled for $1.20. Rubber heels add 30 cents to that price.

If a soldier is having trouble with his "Ike" jacket, the quartermaster clothing repair shop will alter it at a minimum cost. Expert rooms are available at the repair shop.

If the jacket needs a pocket repaired, insignia sewed on, button replaced and the sleeves shortened, the total cost for this work is 95 cents.

How about those wool trousers? The quartermaster repair shop will lengthen or shorten legs, take in crotch seams, replace buttons and repair a pocket for $1.45.

Wacs are well taken care of at the quartermaster shops in that all kinds of repair work are done on their clothing.

Personel should bring their outer clothing and shoes to building No. 1733, which is across the railroad tracks, diectly behind the Post Engineer shops. Everything is received and rturned in this building.

A complete price list for repairs and alterations is posted on all bulletin boards.

"If you wear it, Quartermaster can repair it."

WAC Sergeant Wins $350 In Contest

Sgt. Florence P. Boudreau, WAC Detachment, Section 1, 9440th Area Service Unit, is $350 richer after winning first prize in a contest sponsored by a Columbus jewelry firm.

The contest was to count the number of times the firm's name appeared in an ad carried in The Bayonet and Columbus Ledger and Enquirer.

Sergeant Boudreau said "I had forgotten the contest until I came back to the barracks Thanksgiving Eve. The first sergeant told me I had received a phone call and gave me a number in Columbus to call.

"I had to borrow a dime to make the call, but it was worth it. When they told me I won first prize I nearly fell off the stool in the phone booth."

Reading Course Doubles Speed Of Officer Group

Seventy Infantry Center officers have doubled their reading speed through practice and instruction at the speed reading laboratory, 1st Lt. Stuart C. Robson, instructor, has announced.

The officers were broken into two groups during the course at the Information and Education Center. Average initial speed of class No. 1 was 282 words per minute. The final speed average of this group was 549 words per minute, denoting a median increase of 257 words per minute.

The average initial speed of class No. 2 was 291 words per minute, and the final speed averaged 603 words per minute, giving an increase of 306 words per minute.

The 70 officers taking the course represented the first experiment of its kind at The Infantry Center in adapting the facilities of the Infantry School students on an organized basis.

Other service schools, including the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky., and The Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., have included a similar reading course as part of the regular curriculum for officer students for a number of years.

Traffic Violators

(Editor's note. The Bayonet each week will publish a list of persons whose driver's licenses are revoked; those whose punishment is more severe than revocation of driving privileges; and those unregistered traffic violators who are refused the privilege of registering their automobiles on the post.)

Four men had their licenses revoked permanently during the period Nov. 23-30. In each case the offense was driving while intoxicated.

The men whose licenses were revoked are M-Sgt. Hicks Mayoda, Company G, Infantry School Detachment; Sgt. Alfred Stuhrmann, Company B, Infantry School Detachment; Pvt. John W. Smith, Company E, Infantry School Detachment; and Pfc. Johnny M. Osborn, Company C, 773rd Tank Battalion.

PM Outlines Discipline Control Board Duties

The purposes of Fort Benning's Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board have been outlined by Lt. Col. Alonzo E. Wood, Infantry Center provost marshal and board president.

The board is primarily concerned with eliminating unwholesome or unsanitary conditions in civilian business concerns patronized by military personnel, Colonel Wood explained. It also serves as protection against influences damaging to the moral well-being of members of the Armed Forces.

Works With Civilian Agencies

The disciplinary control board, which works closely with civilian health and law enforcement authorities, first investigates reports of undesirable conditions in business firms where military personnel go for off-duty entertainment or amusement, Colonel Wood said. "Undesirable conditions," he added, "include everything from dirty premises to illegal operations, such as gambling.

If the board finds these reports true, it takes these steps:

1. The owner or manager is notified that undesirable conditions exist in his firm and is offered an opportunity to discuss the matter with board members in an effort to eliminate the unwholesome or unsanitary elements.

2. If the problem can not be solved or if the business concern fails to cooperate with the board, his establishment is placed off-limits to all members of the Armed Forces, including the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

"This means that military personnel can no longer patronize the establishment placed off-limits," Colonel Wood declared.

"Not Arbitrary"

"We are not arbitrary in our decisions, however," Colonel Wood said. "We make every effort to cooperate with the management in eliminating those conditions we consider detrimental to military personnel.

"If the undesirable practices are not eliminated," he added, "we have no alternative than to place the establishment off-limits. But this step is taken only as a last resort. We offer the management any advice and assistance we can to remedy the situation."

When a business concern satisfies the board that the undesirable conditions have been eliminated, the off-limits restrictions are removed, Colonel Wood stated.

Board Members

Board members include the provost marshals and surgeons of Fort Benning and Lawson Air Force Base and the commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Training Center in Columbus.

Meetings are held at least once a month. Colonel Wood emphasized that these meetings are open to the public. At these meetings, the board considers the reports of undesirable practices in business firms as well as discusses the problem with civilian officials and business owners.

Agencies working with the board here are the sheriffs' offices, chiefs of police, Federal Bureau of Investigation, federal marshals, United States district attorneys, United States Public Health Service, state and municipal departments of health and venereal disease control officers, State Alcohol Beverage Control authorities, state attorneys general, American Social Hygiene Association, United States Brewers Industry and associations of hotels, lodging houses, restaurant and tavern owners.

Activities of the Fort Benning Armed Forces Disciplinary Board are based on policies established by the Department of Defense. The Fort Benning board is one of many throughout the U. S.

Army Mystery May Be Solved After 12 Years

What's in a name?

Plenty, found out Army Major James F. Porter, of Point Marion, Pa., who saw his application of a pet name take root in vocabularies throughout the world.

Porter and a crew of Army technicians claim to be the first men to christen the rugged little Army general purpose vehicle the "jeep."

Etymologists (word-origin detectives) often find it difficult to put the finger on the first man to apply a word to a specific usage, but in the case of the Army's jeep, the finger may be pointing at Major Porter.

In 1940, Porter, then a sergeant, was in charge of a vehicle testing crew. He and his men were the testers of the first jeep ever turned over to the Army, at Camp Holabird, Md., in the fall of that year.

According to Porter, the testing crew soon began calling the snub-nosed little "G.P." (general purpose) truck a "jeep," after a bouncing cartoon character in the Popeye comic strip.

Test Driver Irving "Red" Hausmann of a firm manufacturing the "jeeps" said he picked up the name from soldiers at Holabird, and that the nickname quickly caught on with the company.

The name soon was on everybody's tongue and spread throughout the world as the vehicle rolled along roads in many countries.

Born as a convenient nickname, "jeep" now has a stronghold in the spoken language and a dignified place in the dictionary.

Major Porter—the man who may be the jeep's godfather—now is Services Officer at Sandia Base, Albuquerque, N. M.

Army Seeks Men For Cold Tests

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army needs men—to eat vitamins in cold weather.

An unusual nutrition test will put 120 physically qualified enlisted men to work in the cold climate of Cheyenne, Wyo. The men, organized into four platoons, will consume specially prepared rations spiked with Vitamins C and B Complex while they perform normal military training activities.

Purpose of the test is to determine how ration supplements can be used to enable men to endure stress and carry on a high level of activity in cold climates. Volunteers must be in perfect physical condition, weigh between 145 and 190 pounds and be between five feet eight and five feet eleven inches tall.

Those interested should apply through channels to the Commanding Officer, 250th General Hospital, William Beaumont Army Hospital, El Paso, Tex. The tests will begin Jan. 1, 1953.

Rams Clinch Post Grid Title

508-CTC Go Decides Runner-up

Now that the 1953 Fort Benning Football League's crown rests securely on the head of Special Troops Rams, the 508th Airborne, ISD-ASU, and CTC are fighting to see who will be runner-up.

Sunday will see the 508th, second place holders in the league race, clash with the cellar dwelling (?) CTC Commanders, who are starting to kick off the shackles that have been holding them down.

CTC, two weeks ago, bombarded the Green Wave, 42-0 for the second straight shutout in the circuit competition. The 508th, the week before, handed the Greenies a 25-0 loss.

Coach Subs

The Red Devils, who have lost their regular quarterback Gary Mattocks, have found themselves listening to Coach Jim Phillips' signal calling. The former Clemson and Arkansas paratrooper has donned pads and assumed Mattocks old jersey and gotten into the ball game, letting assistants Don LeBlanc and Dick Thomas do the bench worrying.

For the first half of last week's game, Thanksgiving Day, Phillips and his Red Devils were hot and were in front of the Rams, 6-0, at halftime.

Then, come the second half of the game, Phillips and the 508th gridders just seemed to tire and couldn't get moving. The Rams scored three TD's and even added a safety to the final score of 23-6.

The 508th has shown that it is a good, fast hustling ball club during the first two periods, but something happens to them in the latter part of a game.

No Depth

CTC, on the other hand, hasn't had much player depth all season long and never seemed to get moving until they shellacked the Greenies. Now, the blue and white thinks that the Greenies are skidding down fast and they have a chance for second place providing they knock off the Devils.

Coach Cecil Dickerson, who has been playing in the backfield all season long will be opposing Phillips, who is his counterpart. The former Los Angeles Rams pro ball player, Dickerson, is second in the Benning grid statistics in passing. He has connected 23 out of 60 aerials for an 8.6 average

The only thing that is different between both clubs is the ground attack. The 508th with Dale Ems, Bill Dietz, Caird Currie and Crayton Mast have been knocking over most of their opponents by the terrific running prowess of these four.

Main Ground Eater

The Commanders main ground gainer has been George (Ding Dong) Bell. Bell alone has gained rushing 503 yards on 105 carries. But besides having the Indian speedster, Dickerson himself and Dick Raber, former University of Georgia grid ace, have been doing some rushing.

Dickerson has scooted 78 yards on 21 attempts while Raber chalked up 117 yards on 37 carries. Another Commander who has been Adam Zubaty. The 1951 All - Post back, who is more at home in a single wing than in a T-formation, has carried the pigskin 43 times for 137 yards.

Both the 508th and CTC have been hit by injuries and player losses. The Commanders have lost their big defensive end and halfback Bob Bristow. This brings their losses since the beginning of the campaign to 20. The Red Devils have lost about seven players, but have had the players sitting on the bench. Also there is on the whole CTC squad.

Tempers were at a high pitch, but Special Troops Rams clenched their firsts around the 1952 Fort Benning Football League title by beating the 508th Airborne, 23-6, before a Thanksgiving Day crowd of 6,000 fans at Doughboy Stadium.

The Rams clinched the pennant for the second straight year, winning the flag in '51 under the guiding genius of Jack Faubion. This year Gus Dielens, former assistant coach at West Point, was the boss man.

The game, marked by numerous penalties for unnecessary roughness and a number of thrown fists, started off with the Red Devils gaining yardage on play after play. It seems that the Rams' defensive just couldn't stop the running paratroopers.

Held That Line

But, after the quick touchdown that the 508th scored, Special Troops held that line for the remainder of the half.

The 508th's coach, Jim Phillips, got into the fray also. He had donned a uniform and was quarterbacking the ball club since the regular signal caller, Gary Mattocks, is out for the season due to an injury.

The former Clemson and Arkansas player, out of shape and tired as he was, threw 18 passes, completed six for 75 yards. Phillips also tried running the ball four times before the officials ejected him from the ball game after a big fight in the fourth period between the Rams and the Red Devils. The fur really flew in that one for the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" to calm the fans and players.

Fight

It seems that Phillips was forced out of bounds while attempting to pass. He ran into and over the Rams bench and landed on the cinder track running around the gridiron and then, someone started making with the hands. The 508th team took off to their mentor's help, bench players included. A number of fans also decided to help, but before too many people were hurt, the 122nd Army Band started the National Anthem.

Earlier in the game, the referee thumbed Clarence Howard, the Rams defensive fullback, out of the game. Some of the players that were hurt throughout the turkey day game were Bill Redmond, Bill Black, Al Buckles, Bill Cawley, and a few others. Some of the injured returned to play later on.

The scoring started early in the first period with Phillips getting off a 19 yard aerial to fullback Crayton Mast who went the remaining 40-yards for the touchdown.

The halftime score was 6-0 in favor of the Devils.

Rams Roll

Special Troops started their aerial and ground attack in the second half when quarterback Al Buckles handed off the Bob Morstad, Bill behind his line of scrimmage. Morstad flipped a 29-yard pass to end Vern Fahrenkrug for the first Ram TD. Bill Black booted the extra point.

Seconds later, halfback Paul Bucey of the 508th was forced back 33-yards into the end zone for a safety and two more points. The former Ohio State freshman player, tried running the ball around right end, but the Rams forward wall, Ernest Cates Bob Ellis, Bill Thaxton, Bill Brown and Ken Miller converged on him and made him backpeddle.

2 Quick TD's

The Rams connected in the fourth period for two quick touchdowns with Adam Dervin scoring both of them. Dervin carried the ball over from the Devils' seven on his first tally and bucked over from the one on his second, six plays later.

As you look at the statistics of the game, the 508th outrushed the Rams by 32 yards and scored four

Rams Player Was Hurt During Rough Game In Which Fists Flew And Tempers Flared

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Lester Dimoff

While wandering around the training camps of the four Fort Benning grid clubs, I pick up a lot of notes about the teams and players, but usually one of the footballers will come over and ask the question that is causing a controversy among everyone. "Why doesn't Fort Benning have one football team, like other Army, Navy and Marine Stations?"

That is a good question for it boils down to whether we should have an intramural system of play or one representative in the grid wars that will play maybe one or two games here in Benning. Under the intramural system there will be football in Doughboy Stadium every Sunday.

The last year that Benning had a single representative in service football was in 1949 when the Doughboys romped for TIC. In 1950, there wasn't any football in Benning at all. Then, last season, we all know that the intramural football league started here and six teams representing the various units on post put on a weekly head knockin' exhibition and entertained some 186,000 fans.

May be, that many of the old-timers on post remember the years following World War II and the grid campaigns that followed when Benning had the Doughboys, a football team that racked up win after win with a schedule that included some top military clubs like Pensacola Navy, Fort Jackson, Camp Rucker, etc.

Service football in those years got the same amount of publicity that the colleges and universities received. Some college players say that service football is not as hard as college ball, but that it is a lot dirtier, Like the political situation, there are pros and cons.

One of the ball players with whom I was talking wanted to know how come a team like the Doughboys or the Third Infantry Division Cockades were broken up. I frankly do not know the intricate designs behind it all, but from what information I could gather, the reasons are that the Army wants more personnel to get into its sports programs.

When they had only one team on post, about 65 men were on the squad. There were other teams also, but they played on a minor scale among each other and did not get much recognition. But under this intramural setup, there are four teams this year, the Rams, 508th Airborne, Green Wave, CTC. There are about 240 players entertaining you in the Doughboy Stadium gridiron circuit during the 12 games season. And it cost you fans only $.50, one half buck.

And every week end, Sunday afternoon, there is a football game on post. But as it now stands, each team plays at least once every two or three weeks. Then, as I mentioned earlier, there were maybe one or two ball games all year long here.

Each week you could read in the sport section of some newspaper about a service football team playing a college club. For instance, Quantico Marines ventured way out California way to play UCLA's freshmen. It is expensive, sure, to send a club on the road, but look at the amount of interest and good will the Marines get.

We sent the 508th Airborne down to Miami, Fla., a few weeks ago to play the Opa-locka Marines. The pictures that Sfc. Joe Wolfe came back with showed that there was a big crowd in the stands and that everyone was satisfied and happy. The station commander even tossed a party in honor the Red Devils and he inquired whether the 508th represented the post.

It all comes down to whether you want to be entertained every week end or get national recognition. Which will you have?

The Infantry Center Table Tennis Tournament, ping-pong to you, got under way Tuesday night at Service Club One. Teams from the 508th, ISD, First SR, First OC Regiment, Second SR, ASU, CTC, 30th Infantry and PMG are vying for top honors in the meet.

Travis Hudson, former assistant to Maj. Gene Myers, Special Services sports officer, has returned to his Alabama home and a teaching job in the local school. The former University of Alabama gridder may do some post-season football coaching and some basketball mentoring.

Sgt. Ken Griffin, ASU's number one rooter and secretary of the Enlisted Men's Bowling League, tells me the kegling on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Main Post Alleys and Sand Hill Alleys is done under American Bowling Congress rules. Some of the bowlers who have showed their form to date are M-Sgt. Elmer Knuth of AFF Board No. 3, M-Sgt. Eddie Bright of First SR's Airborne Battalion and Sfc. Joe Barbero of CTC.

A sports cars club has been formed with about 20 members and 12 cars signed up with Capt. Sam Kline (Col. 7-5347) as president. The racing fans have held their first trial two weeks ago with a run from Columbus to Pine Mountain and back. The next run for the sports cars racing fans is set for Dec. 14. So far most of the members are driving MG's.

The increased stress on physical fitness has resulted in a timed run of the obstacle course. You all know what the obstacle course is. That is where you change dummies mit a rifle, crawl under barbed wire, etc. The PT Committee is trying this out on officer candidates for the first time and it is a part of the grading criteria for graduation.

Fort Benning Football league cellar, came out on the short end in their non-league tilt with Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., 7-6, on Thanksgiving Day.

The Wave has dropped their last two Benning circuit games, losing 25-0 to the 508th Airborne and 42-0 to CTC. The Greenies now have time to recuperate until Dec. 14 when they meet the league title holders, Special Troops.

Then Greenies got their six points in their second out-or-Benning game on turkey day after Ken Harris took the kickoff on his own 29-yard line and run it back always down to the Shaw seven.

The Ed Hansen scooted around left end a few plays later for the score. Ray Starnes extra point try was no good.

Shaw Field got their sole TD in the opening minutes of the game when fullback Leroy Johnson scampered 30 yards into the end zone and quarterback George Wright booted the ball through the uprights.

All the action was taking place in the first quarter. The remaining periods was marked by arguments and a fist fight.

Guard Bob Hunt had a few words with an Air Force player and was on the receiving end of a few punches. The officials ejected both Hunt and the Shaw player. Hunt objected, but to no avail.

Benning Units Have Names For Teams

Most Fort Benning units have nicknames for their sports teams. First O. C. Regiment teams are known as the Generals, Second Student Regiment as Rockets, ASU Provisional Group as Raiders, Infantry School Detachment as Professors, Combat Training Command as Commanders, 508th Airborne as Red Devils and Provisional Medical Group as the Medics.

First Student Regiment has never adopted a nickname although most of their teams are called Black Shirts because of their uniforms. First Brigade and PMG combined for football are called Rams and ISD and ASU combined for football are called the Green Wave.

Koepke Picks Generals For Hoop Crown

Although picking the 508th Airborne as the quintet to beat in the 1953 Fort Benning Basketball League, Orv Koepke, the only returnee to the First Officer Candidate Regiment's cage team, says that the defending champions stand a fair chance to repeat.

Koepke played against the Red Devils in a practice game two weeks ago and was impressed by the paratrooper's ability and the number of last year's members who are on this year's team.

"It's a good team—the team to beat this year," he says.

"The Generals' player doesn't discount his squad's chances, however. "They beat us in practice games last year also, but we won the post championship and we might do it again."

The six-foot three-inch center and forward played basketball for Lawrence College before he enlisted in the Army. In high school, Koepke won three letters in basketball and was named to the All-Fox River Conference team for two years as a center from Appleton, Wis., High.

In semi-finals action, the Third O. C. Battalion team drew bye and Hugenburg and DiMartino defeated Candidates George J. Matteas and McAndrew, 9th O.C. Company, 22-17, 15-21, 21-16.

19th OC Takes Third OC Bn. Football Title

Touch football action in the First Officer Candidate Regiment's league slowed down last week as competition between the units neared its last stage.

19th O. C. Company has almost clinched the Third Battalion championship although the Generals were held to a scoreless tie by 16th O. C. With a four won, no loss and one tie game record, 19th O. C. is almost assured of a chance at the regimental title which will be decided in a tournament between the battalion champions on Dec. 10-11.

In the other games reported, 23rd O. C. won a 13-6 clash from 27th O. C. and lost to 30th O. C. by a 12-6 score.

C. Follansbee Doesn't Like Ga. Weather

Clifford Follansbee of Company A, Airborne, Battalion, is very disappointed in the Georgia weather.

Hailing from Worcester, Mass., it is Follansbee's wont to chip a hole in the ice and go for a brief swim in the local lake. This he did when he was back in Massachusetts during the winter time.

Follansbee has garnered seven first - place and two second place ribbons in attempting to out do the Bay State fish. In addition to his awards, he is also the local YMCA's city swim champ.

A versatile athlete, Follansbee holds high school letters in track, backetball, and boxing. Bicycle racing is another field in which he excells; and he holds two trophies for the sport.

Follansbee came to the Airborne Battalion from Leadership School at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

W. Springfield Coach Wants Peanut Bowl Win

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Coach Eddie Mason, who has produced one of the best Massachusetts teams in years, is going to take the Peanut Bowl trophy back home to West Springfield High school if he has his way in the New Year's Day clash in Memorial Stadium.

The 29-year-old coach is starting to workout his gridders with only one thought in mind — victory in the Peanut Bowl.

Line-Up Impressive

To give you all an idea of how Mason is planning to take the classic, here is a birds-eye view of the West Springfield High lineup.

The starting line consists of Newton Blanchard at right end. He's six-feet two-inches tall, a senior and fine college prospect. At left end is Ken Mattoon, who also doubles as quarterback and is the most versatile player on the team.

Harry Schweizer plays right tackle. He's a senior and considered the best defensive lineman in Western Massachusetts. The left tackle berth is held down by 200-pound Lowell Harlow, who tops on offense and defense.

The right guard post is manned by Ken Kindig, who, although the lightest man on the squad, is it's best offensive blocker. Left guard is co-captain Art Fernice. He is a solid player who never comes out of the game, a 60-minute man.

Al Laboranti, an all-around good player, is the first-string center.

Backs Ready

Co-captain Les (Porky) Plumb, quarterback, is the team's star. He is the signal caller who never seems to call a bad play, always knows what he is doing, can run, pass and punt with the best of them.

Plumb, a triple threat, was unanimous choice for the All-Western Massachusetts team. He is a senior and weighs 175-pounds.

The rest of the backfield is younger than Plumb, but much beefier. Sophomore Ernie LaBranche plays left halfback. He weighs 185-pounds, can run and does some occasional long passing.

George (Chubby) Rolandine is the fullback — weighs 190 pounds. He is an outstanding blocking back and linebacker.

Top Linebacker

The other backfield man is Al Klein. He stands six-feet-two, weighs 210-pounds and is one of the fastest men on the club. In the estimation of most Western Massachusetts coaches, Klien is the top linebacker in the area this season. His running up the middle is devastating.

Other backs who see frequent action are senior Bobby Rose, juniors Dickie Shields and Ronnie Malley, senior Joe Harrington, Ray Noberge, another youngster, also does plenty of work. Harrington and Malley play defensive ball only.

With that kind of football talent on tap, Coach Mason has a right to look toward victory in the Peanut Bowl.

And for an idea of what the West Springfield "Terriers" did in its own conference this year, here is their record.

West Springfield, Mass., Record

7 Springfield Classical 6.
25 Northampton 14.
41 Westfield 6.
44 Southbridge 14.
34 Athol 6.
6 Chicopee 0.
33 Cathedral of Springfield 7.
13 Agawam 7.

Points scored by West Springfield—204. Points scored against West Springfield—60.

GRID GOSSIP

On Thanksgiving Day when everyone is supposed to in harmony with each other, composure and respect were forgotten at times during the Rams-508th clash and as a results Coach JIM PHILLIPS was thrown out of the ball game by the officials during the fourth quarter.

CLARENCE HOWARD, defensive linebacker for the Rams, was also give the heave-ho, but earlier in the contest. BOB ELLIS and an unidentified Red Devil were having a little tete-a-tete, but luckily it was broken up by other players.

The Fort Benning Kennel Club put on the halftime entertainment. GALE LIVENGOOD did the commentary over the p.a. system. When he said that a dog could be calmed and made to heal while attacking a person, some fan yelled "Famous Last Words."

The 122nd Army Band has played and entertained lustily and noisily throughout the season. When commentator, get that, DEAN MITCHELL, said that there wasn't any Sunday ball game, they all cheered.

BILL BUZA and BILL STEVENS were the co-captains for the 508th, while BILL THUSTON and JOHN MACKIE acted for the Rams. The defensive line of the Rams bogged down in the first half, but they were great in the finale.

Special Troops had their Ram tied to the sidelines. JAN MURRAY, "TOOTSIE" BALLARD, and ANNE TURNER acted as cheer leaders for the Rams, and they even did some cavorting.

The football banquet for the Benning grid players is set for Dec. 17 at Pine Lodge. HARRY MEHRE, Atlanta Journal sports columnist and former University of Georgia football coach, will be guest speaker. The four Benning coaches have gotten their 1952 All-Post ballots. Their selections will be announced at the dinner and published the next day in The Bayonet.

BOB HUNT, Green Wave guard was thrown out of the ISD-ASU Shaw Field affair after he was slugged by an airedale player. In a free-for-all that followed fists were thrown and abuses exchanged. KEN HARRIS set up the Greenie TD with a 65-yard run-back of the kickoff.

A number of the Wave players think that HAROLD MANLEY, coach of the team, should have played only one position instead of bouncing around the lineup. The former Alabama University player played halfback, ¼ back and in the line.

The Shaw Field had a Lt. Col. in their lineup. Players were satisfied with accomodations and chow the Air Force gave them, but the only thing the Greenies lacked was hot water. The trip up was slightly rough, but it was a smooth trip coming back.

CTC coach CECIL DICKERSON has lost through discharge BOB BRISTOW and SYVESTER BRUTEN, who would have made All-Post end if he completed the season. The Commander boss man commented that the Red Devils had more players sitting on the bench than he has on his whole squad.

OC Officers Get Bird In Golf Tourney

Four officers in the First Officer Candidate Regiment, who tried shooting birdies on the golf links, got the bird instead.

The four are the winners and runners-up of the Turkey Tournament, a special match play golf tournament for officers and enlisted men of the First OC. A turkey was given to the top four golfers in the competition.

They are 1st Lt. Robert S. McCleanaghan, Headquarters, 2nd OC Battalion, winner of A flight—14 pound turkey; Capt. Charles Hoyt, Headquarters, 1st OC, runnerup of A Flight — 11 pound turkey; 1st Lt. Henry E. Trawick, Headquarters, 1st OC, winner of B Flight — 14 pound turkey; and 1st Lt. John D. Wightman, Courts and Boards, runnerup of B Flight —11 pound turkey.

Thirty-one officers and enlisted men entered the handicap golf tournament. An entry charge of $1.00 paid for the prizes.

KAPLAN Picks 'em

by Bill Kaplan

In view of the obvious difficulty in making forecasts, I think that you will agree with me that up to now my record for pickin' winners is slightly remarkable.

Last week, for example, I had 42 out of 50 right for an average of .840. For the season to date, I have had 382 out of 500 for a .764 average.

I invite comparison with any other forecasters in America.

Lady Golfers Plan Xmas Lunch Meet At Country Club

The Ladies Golf Association held its monthly business meeting and coffee last Friday at which time prizes were awarded to the winners of the annual Handicap Tournament held in October.

Plans were made for a Christmas luncheon and party to be held Dec. 12 at the Country Club. At this gathering, awards will be presented to the winners of the ringer and ladder tournaments.

In the flag tournament Irene Curtiss won first place in the 18-hole group with Molly Elliott second. For the nine holders, the winners were Eva Ulrich, first place, and Emily Kurtz, second place.

GOLF CHAMP . . . Mrs. Irene Curtiss is the top woman golfer at Fort Benning and she poses happily with the trophy that the Ladies Golf Association awarded her for winning the annual Handicap Tournament last October. Besides garnering this handsome trophy, Mrs. Curtiss won low gross with a 78 in the North Fulton Scotch Foursome in Atlanta two weeks ago.

AIOC Students Set For New PT Curriculum

A new athletic program has been inaugurated in the Advanced Infantry Officer Course with three physical training periods presented during each week of training. Two periods will be devoted to organized training and one to playing a sport of your choice.

The sports period will be conducted under the direction of a company athletic officer and each platoon will form a touch football team, a softball team, a soccer team and two volleyball teams. Personnel on each team can be rotated.

After the usual warming up exercise, the Army Dozen, the platoons will be matched against each other in accordance with a round robin system prepared by the PT Committee.

The final period in Physical Training for the advanced classes will be a combined period devoted to the "Olympics." The two classes now in training will be pitted against each other in the various sports.

WAC Hoopsters Prep For Loop

The WAC Detachment's basketball team, with Sfc. Robert Ford as coach, is practicing each Tuesday and Thursday evening at the Old Gym, but due to the lack of experience, additional workouts have been scheduled on Saturday afternoons.

The team is showing great progress and their coach is looking forward to a successful season.

"I'm having difficulty converting the team over to the basketball rules similiar to those played by men," said Ford. "The girls will be playing under the Georgia High School rules which are practically the same with the exception that they (the forwards and guards can't cross the mid-line."

Game Lost

So far only the fundamentals have been covered at practice. One practice game was played last week with the Stamp Service Company of Columbus. The WACs lost, 60-20, but all the girls were allowed to play so as to give them all an opportunity to show and develop their ability.

The girls that are expected to see the most action are Jonnie Winberry, who was voted all - star forward in the Industrial League of Columbus in '51, and Alice Connell, who will be holding down one of the guard spots. She played with the Fort Sam Houston WACs' team in '51.

Other members of the team are: Betty Swartz, guard; Joan Higgins, guard; Betty Ramsey, guard; Marilyn Hawkins, forward; Diana Gori, forward; Clarinda Archibald, guard; Eva Johnson, guard; Cleo Collette, guard; Joanna Asaro, guard; Mary Waltman, forward; and Gertrude Stearns, forward.

The WACs' first game will be against Bibb Manufacturing Company of Columbus on Dec. 9, at Corner Auditorium.

Silver Star Medals Awarded To Three

Three Korean veterans have been decorated by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander.

Maj. Walter M. Turner of Sanford, Fla., 2nd Lt. DeWitt Adkins, of Walters, Okla., and Cpl. Jack E. Hebard of Coconut Grove, Fla., were awarded the Silver Star Medal. Major Turner also received the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Major Turner earned the Silver Star while commanding the First Battalion of the Seventh Infantry Regiment, Third Division near Kowan San, Korea, Nov. 25, 1951.

In Open Terrain

According to the citation, Major Turner selected terrain open to enemy artillery fire for his observation point, remaining in this position until after the attack. He then moved from company to company across 150 yards of open terrain in reorganizing his men.

Major Turner was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for action near ChungeeRi, Korea. The citation states that in directing his battalion's attack he moved from one exposed position to another in order to direct the battle. Although moving across open terrain under heavy artillery fire, his action was instrumental in providing support for his unit in accomplishing its mission.

The Oak Leaf Cluster to the Bronze Star Medal was awarded to Major Turner for his courageous action in Korea between Sept. 15, 1950 through April 16, 1952.

Lieutenant Adkins received the Silver Star Medal for his action near Tumyonddong, Korea, June 13, 1952.

Lieutenant Adkins was leading a platoon of Company A, of the 179th Infantry Regiment, 45th Division when his unit was halted by heavy enemy fire.

"Lieutenant Adkins had one rifle knocked from his hands by enemy fire, however, he grabbed another weapon and began advancing," according to the citation. "Enemy grenade and mortar fire tore his body armor, but he continued crawling toward the enemy position. He moved close enough to the position to toss grenades into the enemy position and silence it, thus enabling his platoon to advance," the citation reports.

Corporal Hebard was awarded Silver Star Medal when he distinguished himself May 19, 1951, near Kosari, Korea, as a member of Company L, 38th Infantry Regiment, Second Division.

Corporal Hebard, whose company was encircled and ambushed, noticed a wounded forward artillery observer during the withdrawal. "Although the man was lying in the midst of heavy enemy fire, Corporal Hebard disregarded his own safety and went to the man's aid, carrying him through the fire to the safety of a nearby vehicle."

Phone

tem has been carrying a work load of 85 to 90 per cent.

The new equipment will increase to 119 the number of trunk lines to Columbus. This increase, which doubles the present capacity, is expected to eliminate the difficulty of getting a line through to Columbus during peak hours of business.

The new system will be able to service about 25 per cent more telephones on the main Post and at Lawson Air Force Base. At present about 2,500 phones are in operation in these areas.

Off-Post Calls

In addition to dial equipment, the telephone office also will have 10 switchboard positions to handle off-post calls, including long distance calls. There are only seven positions now in operation.

All equipment for the new exchange will be housed in a remodeled office building next to the present telephone exchange.

Telephone numbers now in use on the Main Post will be changed from four to five digits in the 20,000 and 30,000 groups.

Signal officials said that they were looking to future needs of Fort Benning in installing the new equipment.

USMA Grads, Four Chaplains End Airborne

The parachute badge is a mark of distinction, The Infantry School's assistant commandant last week told 103 U. S. Military Academy Graduates and four Army chaplains who received their airborne wings.

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., who was principle speaker at graduation ceremonies for basic airborne class No. 19, also reminded the new parachutists that "you are wearing the badge of the uniform of the finest soldiers and men in this world."

The 1952 graduates of West Point who received their parachutist badges took The Infantry School's associate company officers' course before volunteering for airborne training early in November. The next training phase of the former West Pointers will be the Airborne Department's jumpmaster course.

The four Army chaplains graduating were Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Ottoman H. Tietjen, Chaplain (Capt.) John T. Calter, Chaplain (Capt.) James V. Coleman, and Chaplain (Maj.) Jhon A. Lindvall.

Chaplains Tietjen, Lindvall and Coleman served together in Korea with the 40th Infantry Division, whose commander, Brig. Gen. Joseph Cleland, persuaded them to volunteer for airborne training. General Cleland, who organized the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team here, was formerly assistant commander of the 82nd Airborne Division.

Chaplains Calter and Coleman have been assigned to the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., and Chaplains Lindvall and Tietjen will go to the 82nd at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Yule Contest Set For Post

Prizes To Be Awarded In Three Categories

A plan to stimulate exterior Christmas decorating of government quarters on the Main Post has been adopted by The Infantry Center and will be used this year for the first time, Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Grimes, special services officer has announced.

Under this program, prizes will be awarded in three different categories. These include entrance display, yard display and window display.

Colonel Grimes reported a 30 pound turkey will be awarded to the first place winner in each category and a 15-pound bird to second place in each.

Colonel Grimes said the contest was being inaugurated this year in order to provide the Main Post with a Christmas air it has not had in past years.

"Add to Spirit"

"Christmas decorations on the exteriors of homes always adds to the spirit of the occasion," Colonel Grimes said, "and normally is encouraged by community leaders through the medium of contests with appropriate prizes for the winners. We feel that this contest conducted here will encourage personnel to decorate their windows, entrances and yards, with a resulting 'holiday air' about the post."

Colonel Grimes said the prizes would be awarded on the night of Dec. 23 following judging by a contest committee composed of one officer and enlisted man from the G-1, G-3 and Special Services section, as well as an officer and enlisted woman from the Nurse or WAC Detachment.

"In past years," Colonel Grimes said, "little or no attention has been paid to injecting the holiday spirit into the post, since many of the people here go home for Christmas. However, there is always a large group of people quartered on the Main Post who remain here over the holidays."

Turkeys For Prizes

He said that turkeys were adopted as the prizes to be awarded because it is not only a useful prize, but also one that carries the Christmas idea along with it.

It is not necessary to inform the special services office in order to be included in the judging, Colonel Grimes said. He reported the judges would divide the Main Post into sections, and each group of judges would confine their area of selecting the best displays in that area.

Then the entire group of judges will tour the displays, select first in each group and make their final selections.

The turkeys will be presented that same night, Colonel Grimes said.

Santa Claus Sets Arrival Here Dec. 20

Santa Claus arrives here Dec. 20 via helicopter to attend a series of children's Christmas parties.

The Christmas parties previously held as a joint post function at the Main Theater, will be conducted this year on a major unit basis for the children of Infantry Center personnel in each major command.

Over 3,500 military dependents, 12 years old and under, are expected to attend the various unit parties on the post, according to Infantry Center Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield.

Christmas music and decorations will provide the Yuletide atmosphere at each party where the children will sing carols and see movies. Santa Claus distributes gifts, presents and candy for all children attending the parties will be the highlight of the festivities.

Approximately 882 children will attend The Infantry Schools party at Theater No. 2, which is expected to be the largest gathering at any of the unit parties.

Other unit parties include: Infantry School Detachment's at the Elementary School, First Student Brigade's at the Main Theater, Combat Training Command's at Theater No. 7, Area Service Unit Provisional Group at Main Theater No. 2, 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team's at Theater No. 6, Army Field Forces Board No. 3's in the Troop Information and Education Room in Building No. 83, Provisional Medical Group's in the dayroom in the first quartet, and the U.S. Army Hospital's in the Red Cross Recreation Building.

Children of Lawson Air Forces Base personnel will have their Christmas party at Theater No. 3 Friday, Dec. 19.

Safety Director Sees Holiday Accident Toll

Three Infantry Center soldiers will die and 22 others will receive injuries in traffic accidents over the Christmas holidays if a prediction made by safety director Norman Evans holds true.

Mr. Evans reported that he hoped his predictions would not come true, but statistics based on past performances led him to prophesize the injuries.

Because of the great number of men who will be leaving The Infantry Center during the holidays an extensive safety program and drive will be conducted this year prior to Dec. 20.

According to present plans all unit commander will be asked to deliver safety talks to men under their command.

"It will be suggested that men traveling over 150 miles in a private vehicle will start their leave in the morning rather than in the late afternoon," stated Mr. Evans.

This is being done because of the fact that in the past, 50 percent of all auto and serious injuries involve drivers who have been without sleep for 18 hours.

Other measures which will be used to promote the safety program include two-minute safety shorts to be shown at all post theaters, and safety posters, displays, and comic books will be distributed to all commands. A list of safety rules will also be attached to all Christmas leave orders.

"At the present time there are four units at The Infantry Center which do not come under our jurisdiction," explained Colonel Bailey. Army Warns Against Fake Ticket Sellers

The Army Transportation Corps is making a special effort not only to prevent the malplacement of critical equipment but to assure servicemen a timely arrival home for the holidays, according to a Department of the Army message received here.

The message pointed out that a recurrence of the disappointment of many servicemen that was experienced last year must be prevented. Specifically, the message referred to men who were left stranded at a time when making proper connections meant the difference between whether or not they spent Christmas with their families.

The message said installation commanders can assist in preventing this situation by policing the sale of unauthorized airline tickets or coupons by "unscrupulous ticket agents."

The message said "Chances are they will be working again this year, taking advantage of unsuspecting personnel to prey on them. They stop at nothing, even to the extent of getting soldiers to sell for them on post.

"These tickets are not legal, as they contain no airline name because there are no pre-arranged services with airlines to transport the ticket-holders. True, an aircraft of some sort may appear to transport these men, but it too will be an outlaw.

"The men holding these tickets also run the risk of not being covered by insurance. There is no assurance when the aircraft will appear, and no legal recourse if it does not."

PERSONNEL TO COMPANY E

Three students from Class 10 have been assigned as permanent party to Company E of the Airborne Battalion.

FIRST NUMBER DIALED OVER NEW PHONE SYSTEM
Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Talks At Dedication

New Telephone System Now In Operation Here

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, threw the switch last week which converted The Infantry Center's telephone exchange into a new, automatic dial system.

The new system changes all telephone numbers here. Under the new system, all telephone numbers will be in five digits in the 20,000 and 30,000 groups.

The change from the old to the new system took place at 10 p.m. when all present lines were connected to the new equipment. The actual changeover took approximately two minutes.

Second Largest System

Lt. Col. C. L. Martin, Infantry Center Signal Officer, said Fort Benning now has the second largest telephone system in the Third Army Area. All telephones at The Infantry Center have been given new numbers and new directories have been issued to subscribers.

The new system, replacing the old 3,000 line exchange, is a 4,000 line exchange which can be expanded to as many as 8,000 lines.

Colonel Martin pointed out that the old system had been operating above capacity for some time. In commercial telephone operations, work loads of 65 to 70 per cent are considered normal, but the Fort Benning system has been carrying a work load of 85 to 90 per cent, he said.

The new system will be able to services about 25 per cent more telephones on the Main Post and at Lawson Air Force Base. Prior to the switchover, approximately 2,500 phones were in operation in these areas.

New Trunk Lines

In addition to the new dial equipment, the telephone office also will have 10 switchboard positions to handle off-post calls, including long-distance calls. The new exchange is housed in a remodeled building next to the old exchange.

Signal officials said that "they were looking to the future here in installing the new equipment."

Visitors for the cutover ceremony were Charles Spiers, district plant manager for Southern Bell at Columbus (Ga.); Edward Hopkins, camp manager for Southern Bell at Fort Benning, and Tom Dantignac, camp supervisor for Southern Bell at Fort Benning.

Military visitors included Col. Robert Dodge, commanding officer of the Plant Engineering Agency, Washington, D. C., representing Major Gen. George I. Back, Chief Army Signal Corps; Ray Blaine, chief engineer of the Plant Engineering Agency, and Col. Samuel P. Collins, Third Army Signal Officer.

Col. Marks Gets Airborne Post

Lt. Col. Sidney M. Marks of Ponca City, Okla., has been named head of the Jump Training Group in The Infantry School's Airborne Department.

He succeeds Maj. James Lane of Joplin, Mo., who will remain with the group as assistant chief.

Colonel Marks, who was on duty with the First Infantry Officer Candidate Regiment before his new assignment, fought in Korea with the 24th Infantry Division. He returned to the U. S. in July, 1951.

A master parachutist, Colonel Marks was with the 517th Parachute Infantry Regiment in Europe following his graduation from the airborne course here. He joined the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., at the end of World War II.

He also is a graduate of The Infantry School's advanced course.

Colonel Marks wears the Silver Star, Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart and Combat Infantryman Badge with Star.

OC Music Room Opens

Music lovers in the First Officer Candidate Regiment area have a new facility at their disposal—a music room opened in Branch Library No. 6 in Harmony Church area.

Approximately 200 records, featuring music from jazz to classics, are available. The room will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. daily.

Off-Campus Center Sets Winter Slate

Winter quarter classes at the Fort Benning Center of the University of Georgia will begin Tuesday, Jan. 6, Herbert C. Houser, director, has announced.

The winter session marks the third full quarter of classes for the Fort Benning unit which opened last June. Almost 200 students enrolled for the fall quarter, which ends Dec. 18.

Mr. Houser said that classes will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

A student may enroll for no more than two courses.

Carry Full Credit

All courses at this center carry full credit toward a college degree and may be transferred to any college or university in the country.

SECRETARY FRANK PACE INSPECTS HONOR GUARD FROM FIRST OC REGIMENT
Army Secretary On Visit Here Last Week To Appear In DA Movie

Pace Visit Over; Claims Manpower Is Problem

The Republic of Korea Army could be self-sustaining, but only at "some substantial time" in the future, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., said here last week.

The Army secretary, who arrived Friday morning at Lawson Air Force Base, added that although the ROK Army will not be self-sustaining in the near future, it has already helped reduce U.S. forces needed in Korea.

Secretary Pace said he had "no indication on who my successor will be." In regard to his being retained in his present post under the new administration Mr. Pace said "one doesn't cross one's bridges until one comes to them."

"Manpower Biggest Problem"

The biggest problems in the Army today, Secretary Pace said, are manpower and materiel. "This year we are training 700,000 men to fight in Korea, to build up our forces in Europe and to protect our outposts. We must also furnish replacements for our men in Korea as our men only remain on the front lines nine months and then are rotated. It's a large project keeping our 5,000 mile pipeline from the United States to Korea going," he declared.

Secretary Pace also addressed the First Infantry Officer Candidate Regiment Friday in conjunction with the filming of a Department of the Army movie, "Report to the Army."

The Army secretary was accompanied by members of his personal staff, Third Army officials, Lt. Gen. G. E. Decker, Army comptroller, and Major Gen. F. L. Parks, Army chief of information.

An honor escort comprised of 12 selected students in the First Infantry Officer Candidate Regiment and Lawson Air Force Base air police met the secretary upon his arrival and accompanied him to Chapel Field, where he reviewed an honor guard of the 43rd and 46th Officer Candidate Companies, The 320th Airborne Field Artillery fired a 19-gun salute.

Following a short press conference, an official luncheon was held at the Main Officers Mess for Secretary Pace's party, Infantry School officials, and civilians from the Columbus area. Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, was host.

Secretary Pace reviewed an honor guard comprised of members of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team before his departure.

Simian Sam Sees Sights

Sam decided he wanted to see the world-famous Infantry Center so he climbed out of a parked vehicle at the Finance Office and began to explore the premises.

Before he could get a block away, however, a perturbed citizen telephoned the Provost Marshal's Office and MP Patrolman Cpl. Riley Brady was dispatched to pick up the curious visitor.

When he was finally picked up, Sam was causing a turmoil at the Finance Office as he scampered over desks and tables.

All this confusion failed to dampen Sam's spirits once he was turned over to the post veterinary for a meal of two big red apples.

Sam is a one and one-half pound zambanga spider monkey, belonging to 2nd Lt. Martine E. McQuire of West Palm Beach, Fla. and Company K of the 30th Infantry Regiment. He had escaped through a half-opened window while his master was receiving monthly pay.

Reserve Officers Hear General

Brig. Gen. Carl T. Sutherland, commander of the 81st Infantry Division (Reserve), and Col. Charles M. Boyer, executive director of the Reserve Officers Association, spoke here and in Columbus Tuesday.

Col. Boyer addressed Reserve officers on extended active duty at Fort Benning and Lawson Air Force Base at Theater No. 8 at 5 p.m. He discussed provisions of the Armed Forces Reserve act as approved by the last session of Congress.

General Sutherland, who also commands the Georgia Department of the Reserve Officers Association, and Colonel Boyer addressed the Columbus-Fort Benning Chapter of the Reserve Officers Association at the Naval Reserve Training Center in Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 9. This meeting was primarily for Reserve officers on inactive status in the Columbus vicinity.

Two 30th RCT Units Get Awards

Col. Frank L. Elder, 30th Regimental Combat Team commander, has presented Certificates of Achievement to the Second and Third Battalions of the 30th.

The Certificates given are part of the Safety Award Program, and were the results of safe driving of Army vehicles within the two units. Vehicles of both Battalions drove over 100,000 miles without an accident.

Lt. Ernest G. King motor officer, Second Battalion and Lt. Clayton W. Shiver Jr., motor officer Third Battalion, received the Certificates for their units from Colonel Elder.

Pvt. Says He Has 'Airborne Blood'

Pvt. John A. Frazier, presently with Company A of the Airborne Battalion, claims he has "Airborne blood."

He should have.

For the past thirteen years Frazier has been a high-wire and trampoline performer with the Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers Circus.

John thinks that his ability on the highwire comes from a hereditary carry-over from his father, who was also a "walker" with the circus. In fact, John was born on tour.

His act consisted of riding bicycles across the wire and doing other fancy stunts with his sister Betty. He has toured in 48 of the 48 states and in three foreign countries, Canada, Mexico and

Etiquette Leads OC Book Preference

The coming Christmas holiday was reflected in withdrawals from Branch Library No. 6 in the Harmony Church area as books on etiquette jumped to second place in popularity, according to Miss Caroline Piscitello, librarian.

The increased reading of etiquette subjects is probably due to the social activities of the coming season, according to Miss Piscitello.

While military science subjects continued in first place, books on hynotism, which held second place last month, dropped to fourth, along with psychology titles. Fiction was third in popularity.

A heavy increase in library use and book withdrawals was noted during November, Miss Piscitello said. While the number of visitors jumped to 2,520, compared to 2,275 in October, 894 books were withdrawn, an increase of 131 over October.

Causes of Fatal Accidents

An examination of the reports plied by The Infantry Center Safety Office discloses that excessive speed, drinking and lack of sleep are the three leading causes of fatal accidents involving Infantry Center personnel. In almost all of the cases it was a combination of the three which caused the catstrophy.

Eyewitness accounts and police reports gathered by the Safety Office show that excessive speed was wholly or partly to blame in 95 per cent of the accidents. Most of these occurred when the automobile failed to hold the road on a curve because of the speed at which it was travelling. In some cases this was reported to be about 90 miles per hour.

Passengers in one death car reported that the owner told the driver not to "Let the car slow down to 80". He got his wish, but it cost him his life for the car rolled on a curve a few miles further down the road.

Lack of sleep is also another major factor in many of the accidents. Most of the accidents recorded occurred on weekends between the hours of 11 p.m and 3 a.m. Assuming that the victims had been up by 8 a.m. that day means that they were without sleep for at least 15 hours prior to the accident.

Safety officials have stated that some of the accidents could possibly have been avoided if the driver had reacted swiftly. However, his mind, dulled by the lack of sleep, failed to react properly in time to avoid the disaster.

DWI—driving while intoxicated—is listed as a factor in roughly 60 per cent of the accidents which have occurred this year. Here again sluggish reflexes failed to respond in time to avoid the accident. The added danger here is that the driver actually believes that he is fully capable of operating his automobile properly and fails to realize how badly he has impaired his driving ability.

Other factors such as mechanical failure often have a bearing on an accident, but in most of the fatal accidents involving Infantry Center personnel this does not seem to be the case. A vast majority of the death cars were late model cars which should have been in proper operating condition.

The record speaks for itself. Speed coupled with drinking and lack of sleep have exacted a fearful toll on Fort Benning drivers. The only way to combat this menace is for the individual to recognize this and act accordingly.

Join Your Division Group

Perhaps no group of men anywhere on the face of this revolving globe known as the earth feel closer to one another than those who have risked their lives together in combat. For combat in itself is a welding force that joins together those who survive it.

Just as water seeks its own level, men from the 726th Underground Mess Kit Repair Battalion seek other men from this outfit when they return from the Korean campaigns.

Fort Benning now has, in existence or in process of formation, associations of veterans of every Army division engaged in the Korean fighting — as well as some from World War II. These division associations are generally open to men who have served with the particular division involved any place at any time.

However, we feel it's safe to say that a majority of the men connected with these associations here served in Korea, and from those battlefields have sprouted the feeling of kinship that draws these men together here, half the world away.

We feel that these associations are an important part of the life of every soldier who served with one of these units. They form a common meeting ground for officers and enlisted men to meet solely as men who faced a common danger and a common death.

Often, these associations are the means by which men meet old friends. Friendships formed in the Army are, in many cases, lasting things that fade as soon as a man is transferred. But, most often, the friendships are deep, abiding ones that live despite the fact the men involved lose touch with one another.

These division associations are a means by which men can contact their old friends. Although it's true that these local chapters, all of them are affiliated with national associations. To the best of our knowledge, all these national groups publish a periodical newspaper, journal, letter or something of that sort. Through these media, men can locate their acquaintances and friends and revive their former comradeship.

All in all, we feel that membership in one of these division associations is a warm and exciting experience. It adds something to the life of every man who joins with his old friends in establishing one of these groups.

Although many might believe that these groups do little but rehash old "war stories," nothing could be further from the truth. At many posts, these groups become leading lights in social and civic activities — taking the place of civilian Kiwanis, Rotary, Exchange and other clubs of this nature.

Our fervent hope is that each and every one of you eligible to affiliate with one of these groups will do so, and that each of these groups will prove it is interested in the community and the people that make up Fort Benning.

Chaplain's Corner

Meditations For Christmas

BY CHAPLAIN (CAPT.) JOHNNIE V. MCKENZIE

In a world, unknowing, blind, and unconsoled, let us thank God for Christmas. It remains a mark of everlasting light that no darkness can put out. It is a song on the air that all the winds of hate cannot silence. They bear its message even as they try to destroy it.

Christmas is the unveiling of God with us, a trysting time with a star, and a Savior. Still there are those who are dismayed by the coming of this season with its overthrow of happy surprises and running laughter. Only those whose hearts have known sorrow and loneliness can understand. Yet, though merriment be denied, all of us with open hearts may receive blessedness in the peace that passeth understanding and the purpose for living that links our lives with the Eternal. The shepherds were afraid until they heard that unto them a Savior was born.

We cannot make Christmas. It is beyond all human architecture. Our hands did not fashion Him who from everlasting to everlasting is God. Our lips did not speak the Eternal Word into existence that became flesh and dwelt among men. Christmas, however, can make us as our minds are renewed in the freshness of its spirit. It never really comes until in adoration to the Highest and service to the lowliest we find that better than our plans are stronger than our frustrations is the purpose of the Eternal for our lives.

One of the tenderest stories in the Gospel of the Nativity is that of Simeon who waited long to see the alvation of the Lord in the promised One. At length there dawned the day when his very eyes saw the young child in the temple, and his own arms held him as he said: "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word: For mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people: a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel".

Christmas reveals the ideal as real. Its spirit is in the structure of the universe. Its truth is plowed into history. This Christmas would take us deeper and be different if we make answer to the question of what we would like to live to see in the light of the season we celebrate. Then, as we come adoringly to the Holy Child of Bethlehem we would hallow in our thoughts and actions the children of all races and nations of the world. Here is a possible clue to the wisest statesmanship.

Here is judgement upon all the Herods of war and peace who for vaulting ambition or selfish gain slaughter the innocents by slow or swift degree. These little ones of the earth who have no language but a cry and no power to order the world into which they are brought sorely need friends who have the spirit of Him who said, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven".

All our social schemes and all our plans for a brave, new world may well be tested by what they do for children of all races. For every child to have a fair chance to grow lithe of limb, nurtured of mind, illumined of spirit, unafraid of the terror by night or destruction at morning is the logic of civilization and the fulfilment of the love of our Lord.

If the song of the angels is not to mock us and leave us cold, we have need to see as in an undying dream and devotion a world made safe for children.

Christmas is both a gift and a goal. By so much as we receive Him who gives us power to become and to overcome, God is with us. By so much as we give ourselves to the goal that all the forces of destructiveness cannot countermand, God is for us.

O Prince of Peace, Thou bringer of good tidings,
Teach us to speak the world of hope and cheer,
Rest for the soul, and strength for all men's striving,
Light for the path of life, and God brought near.

Lady Wonder, a horse who communicates to humans through the use of a giant typewriter contrivance, has been besiged with phone calls since a Richmond, Va., paper carried a story that the horse had given information on the whereabouts of a missing boy.

The horse hit the headlines when a reporter questioned the animal about a 9-year-old boy who disappeared 78 days ago. The horse replied that the boy is alive and could be found in Kansas.

Police have disclosed that the horse once before had been called on and had helped locate the body of a missing Massachusetts boy.

The 27-year-old horse had amazed scientists for more than 20 years. Two Duke University psychologists said she was a "genuine phenomenon" after they had examined her in 1928.

Report from Washington

All Korea Vets Authorized UN Badge

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

A statement to the House Armed Services Committee asking for an outright repeal—not a modification — of the "Davis Rider" has been made by the Air Force. The Air Force said the rider has injured "the morale of the entire officer corps." Tied on to the 1953 Appropriations Bill, the rider specifies that the number of officers in each grade level must conform to certain percentages. It will also considerably tighten the promotion program and prohibit the promotion of officers otherwise eligible.

Personnel authorized to wear the UN medal, who have not received the award, may make written application to The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D.C.

Requirements for attending the Field Officer Course, Air Command and Staff School, have been amended to permit more officers to qualify. The new policy will permit regular field grade officers whose total active federal commissioned service exceeds their promotion list service to attend the course, provided their total commissioned service is not less than seven or more than 13 years.

Major changes in the Navy housing rental contract agreement have been made to reduce hardships on personnel being transferred to new duty stations. The rental agreement has been revised to permit dependents of transferred personnel to vacate at the discretion of the commanding officer. Under the revised contract the determination of notice required prior to termination of the lease is also left to the commanding officer.

Cash benefits will be realized by tenants moving into housing after the first of the month. Previously, a full month's rent was charged for the first month. Under the new agreement the tenant will only pay for the remaining days of the month. The revised agreement applies to all rental units not built with appropriated funds under the Lanham act. These include Navy - owned trailers, quonset housing, dormitories, defense and interim housing.

An organizational change authorized by the Army has further increased the combat effectiveness of the National Guard's 28 Infantry divisions. Revision of the Infantry division tables of organization and equipment authorizes an ordnance battalion for each division instead of the ordnance maintenance company previously authorized. The new battalion includes a headquarters and headquarters detachment and two ordnance companies.

On The Bookshelf

THE QUICK BROWN FOX by Lawrence Schoonover. Macmillan Company.

Bill Gray was out to get George Russell's job as advertising executive and he seemed like just the man who could do it. He was ruthless and coldly ambitious.

Russell, who had been with the firm for 20 years, was different. A family man, who lived in the suburbs, he worried about such things as the local school problems and dreamed of the day when he might own a Cadillac.

Gray's scheming seemed to have worked when Russell was caught in the president's private bath with a naked model. But George managed to extricate himself in amazing fashion.

THE TIME OF THE ASSASSINS by Godfrey Blunden. Lippincott Company.

Late in 1941 the German armies entered the city of Kharkov, the capital of Ukraine. Sixteen months later the Red Army forced them out.

The Time of the Assassins is essentially the story of the 16 months of terror which descended upon the Russians caught in Kharkov by the shifting tides of war. When the Germans entered the city, the NKVD failed to destroy the records of party membership before it abandoned the city.

Using these records the Germans hung thousands of Russians whose names were on the rolls. The rest lived in constant fear of their safety.

Then the tides of battle changed and the Russians returned. New terror gripped the city when it was learned that the Communist underground had been active in the city for several months and had compiled the names of those believed to have cooperated with the Germans. The people fearfully awaited the arrival of other assassins.

TIC Takes On Movie Air As Cameras Grind Again

The Infantry Center once more took on all the aspects of a Hollywood movie studio as two separate groups of movie-makers descended last week to film Infantry activities here.

Representatives from 20th Century Fox Corporation arrived to film Infantry training activities as part of a documentary movie entitled "Report to the Army." The other group consisted of two Fox-Movietone cameramen here to film a series of news features to be used in news reels.

Lt. Col. Allison A. Conrad, Department of the Army liaison officer, Maj. Robert Blauvelt, project officer from the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island, N. Y., and 10 civilian employes of 20th Century Fox are expected to be here about 10 days.

Film School Activities

Their filming will include general activities in The Infantry School's Tactical, Weapons Ranger and Airborne Departments and in the First Officer Candidate Regiment. The group also filmed scenes of Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., addressing members of the OC Regiment and Infantry Center officials last Friday.

All the scenes they shoot here will be incorporated into an hour-long documentary Technicolor film being produced by Department of the Army. The film will cover activities of the entire Army.

The two Fox-Movietone cameramen are Ted and Vicent Salzis, who were here three days filming the news features on instruction and demonstrations given Republic of Korea, British, Canadian and other Allied Army officers at The Infantry School.

Shoot Helicopter Scenes

They also shot scenes of the 506th Transportation Company (Helicopter) receiving its first group of helicopters and a demonstration which shows how a tank picks up wounded men on the battlefield.

The 506th received two H-19 Sikorsky helicopters in its first shipment since it was assigned here.

Portions of the movie for the documentary Department of the Army film will be shot at New York, Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Bliss, Texas, Fort Knox, Ky., Fort Eustis, Va., Fort Monroe, Va., Fort Monmouth, N. J., Fort Dix, N. J., Aberdeen, Md. Proving Grounds, Washington, D. C., San Francisco, Calif. and Seattle, Wash.

Scenes in Frankfurt, Berlin, Leghorn, Triests, Athens, Ankara, Tokyo, Formosa, Korea, Panama and Alaska also will be included in the movie.

3 Korea Vets Wins Awards

Two Bronze Star Medals and a Purple Heart have been presented to three Korean veterans by Col. Donald Washington, Infantry School Detachment commander.

Cpl. James C. Leonard of Opelika, Ala., and Cpl. Edward Clemons of Anderson, S. C., were presented the Bronze Star Medal, and Cpl. Hubert M. Munday of Hendersonville, Tenn., the Purple Heart.

Corporal Leonard earned the Bronze Star as a result of his action with Company K 180th Infantry Regiment, 45th Infantry Division near Tumyong-don, Korea, on June 13, 1952.

"Repeatedly he acted as a personal liaison between the command post and subordinate units, enabling them to maintain contact with field headquarters," according to the citation. "Ignoring enemy machine gun fire Corporal Leonard kept at his tasks throughout the night and part of the following day. Despite exhaustion he refused relief until the mission of his platoon was successfully accomplished," the citation reports.

Corporal Leonard also wears the Purple Heart.

Corporal Clemons received the Bronze Star for his meritorious service in connection with military operations against the enemy in Korea during the period from Nov. 20, 1951, to Aug. 13, 1952.

At that time he was acting as assistant gunner in a Chemical Mortar Battalion.

Corporal Mundy was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received while a member of the Seventh Infantry Regiment, Third Infantry Division near Chosin Resavoir, on Nov. 25, 1950.

Pvt. Misses Chat With Sec. Pace

Pvt. Joe L. Leming, company clerk for Company A of the Airborne Battalion, couldn't visit with his hometown friend, Frank Pace Jr., Secretary of the Army while Mr. Pace was touring The Infantry Center last Friday, because of Mr. Pace's strenuous schedule.

Private Leming, from Fayetteville, Arkansas knew an aunt of Mr. Pace's, and has met him several times at her home.

While Leming was in the Leadership school at Camp Roberts, California he accompanied Mr. Pace on a tour of the post, attending a presentation ceremony. He also had dinner with Mr. Pace the same evening.

Private Leming completed his Airborne training with Headquarters and Service Company on Nov. 28 this year.

'OC Widows' Find Club Aids Loneliness Fight

"Officer candidate widows" are discovering that their husbandless residence here is not all loneliness.

While husbands attend to the rigid standards of Officer Candidate School which allow them little time to devote to their wives, the "widows" are turning to themselves for assistance social activity and recreation. The medium for these activities is the Officer Candidate Wives Club.

Previous to its organization, the community where their transiency prevented participation in social events brought them the title, "widows."

Organized Last March

The club was organized for social and educational purposes in March 1952 by Col. Harry M. Grizzard, commanding officer, First OC Regiment, and Chaplain (Capt.) and Mrs. Edwin C. Gomke. Mrs. Grizzard and Mrs. Gomke are sponsors, and Mrs. Robert N. Young, wife of Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center Commander, is an honorary sponsor.

Meeting twice each month, the wives constantly form new friendships. As each graduating class receives the club's membership and a new class raises it enrollment fluctuates in the thirties and forties. Membership is free.

Fights Loneliness

"Our aim is to have a social time and to meet other wives who are here and just as lonely as we," says Club Chairman Mary Alice Reesman wife of Candidate James R. Reesman, 26th OC Company. Previously, a "widow's" acquaintances were limited to wives she met in a company day room.

The wives met twice monthly for a luncheon-business-bridge meeting the first Friday afternoon of the month and a social-recreational gathering the third Friday evening of each month. A speaker is usually heard at the evening meetings on topics pertinent to their future status as wives of officers.

Sponsors Fashion Show

Among its activities, the OC Wives Club has sponsored a fashion show in which several wives served as models. A dance is planned for OC couples a week before Christmas leaves begin.

An intangible feature of the club is the mutual assistance the wives give each other and to new arrivals. Besides helping each other in emergencies, the "widows" indoctrinate new arrivals and help them find apartments.

"Members of the club act as a billeting office," says Mrs. Reesman. "When a new wife joins the club we tell her all about the post and help her find an apartment. There are numerous apartments which have remained in officer candidate hands for some time."

The club was formed in March when its constitution was adopted. It is governed by four officers and several committees. Present officers are Mrs. Reesman, chairman; Mrs. Barbara Moebius wife of Candidate John R. Moebius, Ninth OC Company, co-chairman; Mrs. Mary H. Rutkowski, wife of Candidate Joseph F. Rutkowski, 13th OC Company, secretary, and Mrs. Sonja Edmond, wife of Candidate Peter J. Edmond, 13th OC Company, treasurer.

Helicopter Unit Gets Aircraft

The 506th Transportation Company has received its first shipment of helicopters since the unit was assigned here three weeks ago.

Two H-19 Sikorsky helicopters have arrived at Lawson Air Force Base as the first of 14 to be assigned to the company.

Warrant Officers Junior Grade George T. McKenzie of Las Vegas, Nev., Travis D. Rhodes of Marshall, Texas, James K. Schumaker of Kankakee, Ill., and Franklin E. Paull of Charlotte, N. C., piloted the two new helicopters from Bridgeport, Conn.

Capt. Lester C. Robertson of Salem, Ill., 506th commanding officer, estimated that the remaining 12 helicopters would arrive in small groups within the next two weeks.

The Sikorsky H-19 is used primarily as a troop carrier and for evacuation of wounded. The big copters can transport 10 fully-equipped combat infantrymen into a combat zone and on the return trip carry six wounded litter patients to a rear area hospital.

The H-19 weighs 4,280 pounds, operates at a flying speed of approximately 100 miles per hour, and can remain in flight for as long as three and one half hours.

Powered by a 600 horsepower Pratt-Witney engine, the Sikorsky has three 26-foot rotary-wing blades and a 111-inch tail rudder. The copters are operated by a pilot and a co-pilot.

The 506th's mission here is to support Infantry School problems and demonstrations.

ASSIGNED

Corporal Truman Amburgey was assigned to the 87th Chemical Smoke Generator Company, from the Infantry Center.

Water Rescue Team Helps Nearby Towns

Time and again the Emergency Water Rescue Team of the 78th Engineer Combat Battalion has been called upon to aid local authorities in locating bodies of persons drowned in nearby waters, and each time the team has responded.

The 12-man team is composed of men especially trained in underwater rescue work, and is ready to perform wherever directed on an hour's notice.

Utilizing radios, spotlights, utility boats, amphibious trucks, grappling hooks, lines and portable flood lights, the team is usually successful in its task. The latest job the team participated in was a search in the Chattahoochee River near Bartlett's Ferry for the bodies of two men believed to have drowned near there.

13-Man Team

This team is commanded by 1st Lt. Weldon Gamel and assisted by 2nd Lt. Chas. L. Cosmansky, a liaison officer. M-Sgt. Robert O. Brown is the noncommissioned officer in charge of ten men from the Company A. They are Cpl. Robert J. Smith, Pfc. Floyd Gibson, Pfc. Charles L. Freeze, Pfc. Marvin L. Boyton, Pfc. Sid L. Gordon, Pfc. Lester E. Bentz, Pvt. Elijah Walker, Pvt. Willie L. Wright, Pvt. Franklin Wilson and Pvt. Howard Clayton.

When a likely spot for the search has been pin-pointed, the final check is made and the hooks enter the water.

Lieutenant Gamel, team leader, explains that, "We can drag 5,280 feet an hour. If we're feeling good, and no complications set in, we can cover a 48 mile area in a day." Lt. Gamel explained that they didn't find any trace of the bodies on their latest search.

Although the 78th's rescue team has not yet been called on for operations in floods, it is ready for that job. Boats would be used for rescue, and demolitions equipment might be brought in to control the flood of waters.

The rescuers are available for operations within a reasonable distance from Fort Benning on orders from the Infantry Center. The Battalion S-3 commands the team, usually with the duty officer in direct charge. General responsibility for the team and its preparedness rests with the commanding officer of Company A, 1st Lt Weldor Gamel.

TOP SCORER

Roland Huber of the Lawson Field Flyers is the top scorer on the cage team with 100 points in seven games.

Army affairs, and we must report our findings impartially, noting not only the deficiencies which we find, but also any cases of meritorious service," stated Colonel Bailey.

When the Continental Congress created the inspector general's office, Gen. T. Conway was appointed as inspector general. Gen. Von Steuben, a Prussian officer who came to this country to assist Gen. Washington, is recognized, however, as the first official IG. He was appointed Feb. 23, 1778.

Under the act established by the Continental Congress the inspector general was directly responsible to the Congress, and not to the Commander-in-chief of the Army. General Washington opposed this plan, and it was through his continued opposition that this form of the law was changed some years later. The inspector general now is responsible to his immediate commander.

The original act creating the Inspector General Department directed the chief to inspect all units for the condition of equipment, personnel and funds and to report discrepencies. Another function of this office was to investigate all grievances by any member of the Army and report those deemed important to the Congress.

In March, 1813, Congress established the inspector general as a regular department within the Army, with eight inspector generals and 16 assistants. The Office of the Inspector General was placed under direct control of the General of the Army in April, 1876, eliminating congressional control over the office.

The National Defense Act of June 3, 1916, ordered the inspector general to make an annual inspection of all National Guard units.

During World War II, the increased work required that the department be expanded to a total of 1,449 officers. The department now has 350 officers.

Crowds Hail 'Messiah,' US Army Band Concert

Crowd Fills Briant Wells For Field Band Concert

BY JOE SIMMONS

The U. S. Army Field Band played to a near-capacity crowd at Briant Wells Field House Friday night, drawing loud and enthusiastic applause from an appreciative audience.

The program included perennial favorites selected from classical, operatic, popular and military march tunes.

Highlight of the evening's performance were the soloists — Sgt. Rex. Johnson, Sgt. John Paul Riccobene and Sgt. Eugent W. Coughlin.

Sergeant Johnson, first soloist to take the spotlight, sang a selection from "The Student Prince" and followed with "The Donkey Serenade."

Sergeant Riccobene, a dapper young man who drew sighs from the female members of the audience before he even opened his mouth delighted the crowd with his spirited rendition of "Botch-A-Me," and followed it with "The Kiss of Fire."

A selection from "The Barber of Seville" was Sergeant Coughlin's first presentation, which he followed with "Old Man River."

The soloists were without doubt the outstanding attraction, but the band, soldier chorus and drum novelty group gave excellent performances as well. Under the baton of Mr. Chester E. Whiting, a veteran conductor, the band switched easily from a medley of Cole Porter tunes into the intricate movements of classical numbers, then to the stirring beat of military marches.

The soldier chorus, under the direction of Warrant Officer Charles W. Dendrix, delighted the receptive audience with a number of selections, concluding with Gounod's ever-popular "Ave Maria."

The drum novelty group is as bright and refreshing an act as has ever been presented here. Despite the fact that its probably routine to the six drummers involved, the act had a spontaneity about it not often encountered in musical numbers of this caliber.

The versatile, 123-piece band presented a varied program with selections to please every taste, and we're looking forward to their next visit.

3rd Division Group Sets First Meet

Officers or former officers in the Third Infantry Division during World War II or in Korea have been invited to attend a reunion party at the Fort Benning Country Club Saturday at 6:30 p.m., according to Maj. William F. Long, a former Third Division officer.

Purpose of the meeting is to inaugurate an effort to form a Fort Benning chapter of the Third Infantry Division Association, Major Long said. All former Third Division officers on or off active duty are invited.

Officers are urged to attend who were once members of the Seventh, 15th, 30th or 65th Infantry Regiments; Ninth, 10th, 39th, 41st, 58th, and 999th Field Artillery Battalions and the 64th Heavy Tank Battalion, or any other Third Division units.

Combined Choirs Present Yule Oratorio

BY CATHERINE MERRILL

A capacity crowd filled the Main Post Theater Sunday to hear a satisfying performance of the Christmas portion of Handel's "The Messiah" presented by a combined choir of 100 voices directed by John S. Tremaine, minister of music at St. Luke Methodist Church.

The combined choir, composed of members of The Infantry Center Chapel Choir and the Chancel Methodist Church, gave a finished and pleasing performance of Handel's stirring oratorio under Mr. Tremaine's direction.

The soloists, all of whom were from the St. Luke choir, performed with deep feeling for the subject and music. They were: Mrs. Joseph Bird, soprano; Mrs. Jack Davidson, mezzo-soprano; Mrs. Richard A. Berger and Mrs. Dudley Pendleton, contraltos; Robert Eakle, tenor, and R. C. Johnson Jr. and J. Dudley Pendleton, basses.

Since we have heard many fine solos performed by members of The Infantry Center Chapel Choir, however, we cannot help but wonder why no members of the Fort Benning choir were chosen as soloists.

Capable organist for the oratorio was Mrs. James H. Jenkins, also from the St. Luke Methodist Church.

The entire performance was a very satisfying and heart-warming experience ending with the stirring "Hallelujah Chorus".

Infantrymen Recall Pearl Harbor

Infantrymen here paused Sunday in commemoration of a tragic Sunday morning exactly 11 years ago—Dec. 7, 1941.

For it was just 11 years ago that the United States was launched into a global conflict that was to cost the U. S. over 1,000,000 men killed, wounded or missing.

Many officers and enlisted men here still remember that Sunday morning in 1941 when the Japanese sneaked a terrific blow against American might in their attack on Pearl Harbor.

Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, Infantry Center chaplain, was stationed at Pearl Harbor when Japanese planes roared out of the skies from four directions to lay waste to what has been described as "one of the most beautiful spots in the world."

At 7:05 a.m. that morning, he left his quarters for the chapel.

Saw Shells Bursting

"I saw anti-aircraft shells bursting. Practicing, I thought. Five minutes later a pilot informed me that the Japanese were attacking Pearl Harbor," Chaplain Sheffield said.

"An hour before the island was peaceful, beautiful and quiet. Now it was a scene of smoke, fire, suffering and death. For a short while, the civilian assumed that maneuvers were taking place. However, an explosion on one of our battleships in the harbor and the resulting fire told a grim story of war," he related.

"The attackers came from four directions and hit Pearl Harbor, Hickam Field, Kanchoe Naval Air Station and Bellows and Wheeler Fields simultaneously," he said.

"The grim reality that the strength of our fleet anchored in the harbor was gone, and practically all our planes destroyed, made the defense of the island almost impossible against a strong landing force," Chaplain Sheffield continued.

Hysteria Prevailed

"A great deal of hysteria prevailed. Radio stations were rendering every possible assistance, including broadcasts of news, but unfortunately unconfirmed reports of enemy forces being landed at different points and being dropped in the interior by parachute only added to the confusion and hysteria.

"By 4 p.m. military law had been declared and strict censorship went into effect. Total blackout was ordered for that night, and people covered in their homes, expecting the worst, not knowing where the enemy had come from or when and how he would return," Chaplain Sheffield concluded.

That was Pearl Harbor as seen through the eyes of a man who was there.

Official figures showed that 2,343 U. S. servicemen had been killed, 1,272 wounded and 376 missing in the attack.

Day of Horror

Another officer who well remembers that day of horror is Maj. Lauren L. Dustin, executive officer of the 30th Infantry Regiment's Second Battalion. He was stationed there as a platoon sergeant with the 64th Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft Regiment.

"We had just finished breakfast when the first bomb fell," he said. "We thought at first it was maneuvers, but when we went outside and saw the attacking planes, we knew it was the real thing.

"We could see smoke from the harbor guns as we heard the company radio issue the call to battle stations. We hooked up two mobile guns to trucks and took a back road to our positions because the main road was being heavily strafed," the major recalled.

"The bombing was over by the time we got our guns set up, but we ditched our tents and stayed in position through the following week," he continued.

"On Dec. 8, I joined a group that went out to observe the battleship Nevada. There was nothing but a big, burnt hulk," he declared.

WOJG Philip N. Upton of the 30th Infantry Regiment was a civilian paymaster at the Naval Hospital at Pearl Harbor that day.

"When we heard the first blasts, we thought the Navy was practicing," he said. "But when reports began carrying reports of the Japanese attack,

"I can remember the scene well because the hospital was just above the harbor," Mr. Upton added.

Infantry Moves Forward

In the days and months that followed, the Infantry moved forward, hopping from one previously unheard of island to another across the wide reaches of the Pacific. Now, 11 years later there names—Guadalcanal, Saipan, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, Kwajalein, Eniwetok and other tongue-twisting atolls became familiar to every American as those on the home front devoured every item of news relating to these islands.

IN 1945, the war ended and life slipped back into a daily routine for most Americans — the names of those atolls were soon forgotten by most.

But, nonetheless, one in which Americans are losing their lives in a fight to protect freedom, just as we did 11 years ago.

Rams-Greenies In Ft. Benning Finale

Historic Doughboy Stadium will echo to the cheers, hard knocks and colors of gridiron combat for the last time this week end as the most successful of all Fort Benning football seasons come to a close.

The curtain will ring down Sunday with Special Troops Rams, the 1952 Fort Benning Football League champions, meeting with ISD-ASU Green Wave, familiar rivals, clashing before an anticipated crowd of 8,000 fans.

Coach Gus Dielens of the Rams wants to thank all the unit commanders in the First Student Brigade and Provisional Medical Group, for all the cooperation that they have given him and his assistant coaches, Ken Lawrence, Bill Thuston and Lin Jordan.

Difference Is Work

The biggest difference Dielens says between all of the four Benning grid teams is work. The ex-USMA assistant coach has had his team out there morning and afternoon, even weekends, working out and scrimmaging hard.

The Rams are the only club who weren't seriously affected by loss of personnel. When they lost end Vern Fahrenkrug for a few weeks due to an arm injury, they moved end Bill Brown up from the defensive platoon to the offensive unit. The same situation prevailed when center Mike Moropoulos left. Bill Stetter came off the defense and played offensive center.

HIGH JUMP . . . Frank Tolleys (24) out jumps CTC end Santos DeRose (75) to collect a Cecil Dickerson pass. The Commanders defeated the 508th, 21-7, to record a place in the Fort Benning Football League.

The only thing that is liable to hurt Special Troops at this time of the year is the injury to quarterback Al Buckles. The ex-Munich, Germ., Broncos passing ace had been hurt early in the first half of the second 508th Airborne-Rams game. He returned to play in the latter part of the contest and aggrevated the injury.

However, the Rams have Emmett Matthews and Bob Morstad who they could throw in to replace Buckles, if it is deemed necessary. Matthews, who has some college ball under his belt, hasn't seen much action this year. He got into every ball game, but only for a short time.

¼ Back and ¼ Back

Morstad, who quarterbacked Valparaiso during his college days, has gotten into the Rams lineup as first-string halfback. But on numerous occasions, he took handoffs from Buckles and did some passing.

Still secure in their quarterbacking, the Rams also have a good running attack headed by halfback Harry Gibbons, who is the leading Benning ground gainer with 31 carries for 230 yards, a 7.4 average.

Then the Rams have Adam Dervin, who scored two TD's in the

On a total offense, rushing and passing, the Rams have racked up 1,969 yards. 771 of these came through the air. They have scored in league competition 136 points against the three other clubs who scored 32 points against them.

The Green Wave, ever since losing their well-liked coach Jack Faubion, have been on a losing streak. Under the present coach, Harold Manley, of Alabama, they have been beaten by the 508th Airborne, 25-0, and by CTC, 42-0. Then on a junket up to Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., they dropped a 7-6 decision.

Besides losing their coach, the Greenies have also lost their ace quarterback Charlie Leonard to the injury lost and other players who had made the Green Wave contender for the Benning grid title.

As you look at the Green Wave record, they have gained some 468 through the air. Leonard, when he was on active duty with the Wave, had heaved 27 aerials for 372 yards for a 13.7 average.

Since the Florida T & M back has been out, the Greenies have used numerous passers but none have had the wizardry of Leonard.

Rushing Attack Hurt

Their ground attack has been hurt also when Bob Boeh, Bob Milgrim and Jack Hendrix got their discharges. It hurt them bad. Now Eddie Hansen has been bearing the brunt of all the line smashing and end sweep plays.

Manley, who had plans of getting into the ball game himself, will be sitting this game out for his old knee injury is not fully healed and still bothers him at times.

508th In Cellar After 21-7 Loss

CTC Turns Tables On Red Devil Eleven Takes Over As Runner-Up In Grid Loop

Whether the CTC Commanders were playing their hearts out or the 508th Airborne just folded up will never be known, but CTC now roosts in second place of the Fort Benning Football League.

The Commanders just ran, ran and ran at the end of the fourth period, the score Board said that the blue and white had racked up a 21-7 victory over the Red Devils at Doughboy Stadium before a Sunday afternoon crowd of 7,000.

Using the 508th weapon, ground attack, the Commanders bounced out of the grid cellar and took over second place while the Red Devils moved into the basement.

For awhile it seemed that CTC was going to blank the 508th, but with ten seconds remaining in the ball game, Paul Bucey, 508th defensive back, took Bill Williams kickoff on the twenty yard line, handed the ball off to fleet halfback Dale Ems and Ems took off.

Kickoff Returned

Ems ran the kickoff back 80 yards for the sole 508th tally. With the clock now saying that the ball game was over 15 seconds ago, Bill Stevens calmly booted the ball through the uprights for the extra point.

CTC with George (Dung Dong) Bell, Dick Raber and Adam Zubaty doing the ground rushing romped away with 175 yards compared to the 508th's 84. The aerial departments were reversed for Coach Cecil Dickerson of CTC attempted 16 passes, completed four for 56 yards while his counterpart, Coach Jim Phillips of the 508th, heaved 22, completed four also for 155 yards.

On the second play of the ball game, CTC connected from Dickerson to Zubaty for an 11-yard aerial. After that, the runners took over and the ball see-sawed up and down the field between both clubs.

First CTC Score

In the second quarter Bell, on two running plays, one a 17-yard sprint, brought the ball down to the 508th's three. Then he bucked over for the first CTC touchdown, wasn't good and the half ended 6-0.

In the third period, the Red Devils got the ball down as far as the CTC eight, but for the second time of the game when they were deep in Commander territory, they could not score. CTC during the period had scored another touchdown when Lou Crippa through the Devils' line and blocked Pete Overton's punt. Bill Williams then fell on the ball in the end zone for the second blue and white tally. Cato's conversion try wasn't good.

Gets Safety

In the final quarter Theron Cross, CTC defensive lineman, caught Phillips in the end zone as he faded back to pass and added another two points, a safety, to the score.

With seconds remaining in the game, Raber bucked over from the five for the third Commander score, and Cato converted the extra point.

Whether you fans knew it, this game was the cleanest grid contest that two teams ever played at Benning in the past two years. A quick look at the statistics will tell you that in the first half of the game, there was only one five-yard penalty and that was against the 508th for off-side.

But during the last five minutes of the game CTC picked up ten yards in penalties while the 508th got penalized 35 yards.

The 508th's main ground gainers during the battle for second place honors were Bill Dietz and Ems. Dietz, who reportedly has offers from several colleges for his gridiron talents, carried the ball on 11 occasions for 31 yards. Ems carried the ball on 15 occasions for a 2.0 average.

CTC's Zubaty romped 44 yards on 16 attempts, while Raber, former Georgia fullback . . . gained most of the yardage for the blue and white on his line crashes. He carried 15 times for 62 yards. Bell who is the leading Benning ground gainer, in yardage, carried 18 times for 58 yards.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

—by Lester Dinoff—

If by some unnatural quirk of fate, not another kickoff was made this season, the 1952 Fort Benning Football League still could be and will be hailed as the greatest success story since Bobo Rockefeller got hitched to Winthrop. As the smoke fades away into the evening dusk of the furious firing in the circuit, here is what is obvious to joyful post football fans.

(1) More than 80,000 fans will see the games at historic Doughboy Stadium and this includes the 20,000-plus crowd at the league opener in Columbus' Memorial Stadium.

(2) So Been has the competition been in the early games of the season, that the Special Troops Rams copped the Benning grid crown on Thanksgiving Day. (Wonder if they gave thanks.)

(3) At least two of the four Benning teams, the Rams and the 508th, could give any of the top major college football teams a real jolt, and a fight to the finish.

(4) If Fort Benning had decided on a post team this year, it would have given any service team in the nation a Grade A scrap, and, as it is, the post has never had such well-balanced clubs sparked by so many grid stars.

There is a lot of augument from the coaches and some players on these points, but Coach Gus Dielens of the Rams has been saying all year long that his team will take the title. The only other club that could have given the Rams a battle is the congregation that made up ISD-ASU when the season started up. Then, Coach Jack Faubion, had a crew. But now, almost quarter of the original Greenies are gone, including the coach, and the Green Wave is fighting to stay out of the grid basement.

The 508th Airborne and Special Troops have shown that they could take on top clubs at other military stations, but as things stand now, Special Troops has the title and the Red Devils are fighting for second or third place money. CTC, under Cecil Dickerson, has been in the cellar all year long, but, presently, they find themselves sitting in second place.

On Sunday, historic Doughboy Stadium will echo to the cheers, hard knocks and all the color of football warfare for the last time this year as the post's grid season comes to a close. The curtain will ring down on the best entertainment program that Special Services has thought of. And out of the eight game season played, coaches, players and team incidents will be talked about for some time. It was a good year for football.

Besides giving the players and coaches applause for entertaining us, I would like to thank Joe Wolfe of the 508th Airborne, Jerry Garfield of Brigade, Derwent Bailey of ASU, Karl Berg of CTC and Signal Corps staff photographers for the excellent action football pictures that they have taken during the season.

The clever public address system verbiage at Doughboy Stadium this year was delivered by Gene Mitchell, 1951 secretary of the Georgia State High School Officials Association which handles our games . . . His able assistant during the latter part of the season was Win Fingerit of Company A, Infantry School Detachment . . . George Carter, who officiates during our games, played right end for Mississippi State from 1936 to 1940 . . . Big Bobby Davis of Georgia Tech was another of our grid officials.

The Infantry Center Basketball League has pushed back its opening date, one week, to Jan. 12 . . . The Little League basketball season got off Saturday morning with a fast-breaking exhibition scrimmage session at the Old Gym . . . The WAC Detachment also opened their hoop season with a game on Tuesday at Comer Auditorium in Columbus . . . The girl cagers are members of the Women's Industrial Basketball League of Columbus.

Col. Cortlandt Krams and Col. Donald Washington may be shedding tears over the ISD-ASU Green Wave football squad . . . Jacksonville Navy sends its boxing team to us for Dec. 18 go against our All-Star Boxing Team.

The 1953 athletic tournament schedule for the Third Army lists Benning to host basketball on March 24-28 . . . Boxing is slated for Fort Jackson on April 13-31 . . . Volleyball at Camp Stewart on April 23-25 . . . Track and Field at Fort McClellan on May 22-23 . . . Golf at Fort Bragg on July 13-18 . . . Diving and Swimming at Camp Gordon on Aug. 17-29 . . . Tennis at Redstone Arsenal on July 5-8 . . . Softball at Fort McPherson on Sept. 8-12 . . . Baseball at Camp Rucker on Sept. 22-28.

The House of David basketball team, sometimes referred to as the clowns of the hoop world, will play an exhibition game on Sunday, Jan. 11 against the 508th Airborne at Briant Wells Field House. An admission charge of 75 cents will be asked . . . The Arkansas Travelers girl basketball team will also play an exhibition game here and they are penciled in for some time in February.

Sports car racing fans are all on another road trip Sunday, with the 29-odd members driving their MG's and other assorted vehicles over back roads . . . Capt. Sam King (Col. S-2347) is president of the sports car club and the membership is open.

Post Schedules NRA Pistol Shoot

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club is holding a National Rifle Association Registered Pistol Match Saturday and Sunday at the club's range off Lumpkin Trail.

The competition is open to all members of the NRA, but membership will be waived for individuals who have never fired previously in an NRA match. Only NRA affiliated club team entries will be accepted.

Each competitor will be charged a tournament registration fee of $1.50 and membership in the NRA will be presented to the statistical officer when issuing squadding tickets.

The firing is slated to get under way at 1 p.m. Saturday and at 8 a.m. Sunday and will be governed by NRA rules.

Medals Awarded

Except in aggregate matches, medals will be awarded to the two high scorers in each matches, regardless of classification, and to first and second place winners in each class except Master. In aggregate, the second winner, second expert, second sharpshooter and second marksman will receive medals. No competitor may win more than one award in any one match.

Trophies for each individual on winning teams and second place team will receive medals. No team class medals will be awarded.

Post Boxers Take On Jax Navy

Fight Dec. 18 In 8 Classes For First Test

Fort Benning's amateur boxers get their first test of the 1952-53 campaign on Thursday, Dec. 18 when they take on the Jacksonville Navy boxing team in Briant Wells Field House.

You might call the eight bout card, a selection of our top boxers who will represent the post in the Third Army Boxing Tournament next April.

Fighting two minute rounds, the crowd will see seven different weight classes represented.

As of now, Fort Benning has not an inkling as to who will enter the ring for the Navy, but our boxers are of top caliber and you could say are the best that we have at present.

Feather Weights

Jesse Flores of the 508th Airborne and Len James of First SR will be pitted in the 135-pound class against the Navy pugilists. Flores hasn't entered the Benning ring this year so far due to an injured hand but in 1951 he chalked up an impressive five and two record.

James, who is the lightweight champion of Fort Benning, has lost one fight and won one since the 1952-53 campaign got underway. He scored a win over Ray Riley, but lost by forfeit to Leander Ray last month.

Jimmy Bivins of First SR is the boxing boards choice in the 144-pound light welterweight class. Bivins has racked up two victories thus far, one a technical knockout over David Carter and the other a decision over Elmer Blair.

Willie Parker, who scored a surprise knockout over Ernest Hall, a number of weeks ago, will represent us on the All-Star Boxing show in the 150-pound welterweight contest.

Parker besides beating Hall, has dropped a decision to Gordon Van Loo, decisioned George Blackburn, and stopped Edward Stout.

Middleweights

Van Loo, who has stopped most of his opponents by the knockout route, is the 157-pound light-middleweight representative. The First SR slugger has beaten Parker once before, technical knocked out John Casalliano and Rudolph Chiles and lost a return bout to Chiles.

Leon Hall, the post's top middleweight, enters the ring as a 160-pounder and to date has scored two victories. He has beaten Freeman Thatcher in their first meeting and in the second go, scored a third round technical knockout over the ASU boxer.

Since the First SR has a monopoly on the post's heavyweights, it is natural that their boxers should represent Benning in the 175-pound and the 200-pound class. Jack King, who looms as the next light heavyweight champion here, will be the 172-pound rep and Gene White the 200-pounder.

King in his two bouts this year has knocked out Tommy Bridges and decisioned Ben Robinson. White also decisioned Robinson.

Kawasaki Bids For Bantamweight Title

Now that George Allen, ASU's paign by decisioning welterweight Fort Benning and Third Army Bantamweight Champion, has left the posts ring, Nori Kawaski of the 508th Airborne looms as the number one contender for the title shot.

Kawasaki, who has been playing second fiddle to the spindly Allen for the past two years of ring warfare, took on Joe Clark of First SR at Briant Wells Field House last week and waltzed away with the decision.

Clark, who was challenging up from class two to one, was advancing all the time, but Kawasaki managed to land a number of solid lefts to Clarks head and body to score the win on points.

Heavys Meet

In the only heavyweight clash on the nine bout card, George Hoppe, scored his second straight victory, this time a first round technical knockout, over Joe Wogksch of 508th Airborne.

Hoppe connected with a solid left to Wogkschs nose in the final seconds of the first stanza and the blood flowed like wine. Referee Moon Mullins stopped the bout after the bell because the Red Devil's boxer's nose was broken.

Stepping into the ring for the fifth time this year, August Wolf of the airborne scored his third victory over lightweight Willie Wright of ASU.

Wolf was awarded the nod and now holds a three to two edge over Wright. Many of the fans and ringsiders thought the Wright should have gotten the decision for he put on a beautiful boxing show getting his long lefts and rights in through Wolf's defense.

Robert Collins, ISDs top boxer, scored his fifth win of the campaign by decisioning welterweight Walter Tounsell of ASU.

Collins, who hasn't fought for a number of weeks, showed the crowd that he still has his ring savvy by pummeling Tounsell in the clinches and counter punching. Tounsell was knocked to the canvas twice during the fight and at times seemed groggy and very tired.

In the other bouts on the card, Tillman Davis of First SR knocked out Otto Parkerson of 508th in the first round; Juan Jaramillo of 508th Airborne decisioned David Horsey of CTC; Charles De Forte of ASU decisioned Floyd Wright of 508th Airborne; Robert Walker of CTC decisioned William Costa of 508th; Joe Kent of 508th decisioned Earl Davis of ISD.

Airborne Bn. Defeats Bibb Manu., 78-49

Sparked by Robert "Flip" Karpinski, Orvil Bonstrom and John Dull, the Airborne Battalion defeated Bibb Manufacturing Company of Columbus, 78-49, in a preseason practice game last week.

The manufacturing team is reputedly one of the strongest clubs in Columbus and the victory may be an indication of further successes for the Blackshirts. That is what Coach Terry Scott thinks.

Lineup for the game was Bonstrom, Karpinski, Dull, Nelson Ohlemacher, Phil Phillips and Carl Proctor.

OC Cagers Can Retain Post Title

By HENRY B. STERN

Lt. William J. Armour, tactical officer in 27th O. C. Company, has been appointed coach of the First Officer Candidate Regiment's Generals, the defending champions of the Fort Benning Basketball League.

Armour, who has been acting coach for the past month, says the team is shaping up as should cause the other quintet in the circuit some concern.

Although he will not predict his cage team's chances, Armour states it has a dark horse chance to remain the post champion.

A three-sport, five-letter man in high school, Armour says his team has lots of potential. "They're a great bunch of boys, capable of playing great basketball," the 24-year-old, redhaired coach says. "Now it's just a matter of finding the right combination."

Double Pivot

He declares that he will definitely use the double pivot which the Generals employed in last season's championship play. "So far, we've been able to adapt the material we have to the pivot—enough height and good ball handling."

The recently appointed coach is not unwilling to praise the men who are currently vieing for a starting berth. Among the most favorable candidates for starting berths are—

OC Richard Batchelor, 20th OC Company, 6-2 forward. "A sweet shot, heart of a ball player and good around the basket."

Orv Koepke, cadre in 6th OC Company, 6-3 center. a returnee from last year's team. "Has a good hook shot and is excellent on the backboards."

OC Fred Karner, 2nd OC Company, 6-1 guard. "A fine play maker, ball handler and set shot artist."

OC David Cohn, 9th OC Company, 6-3 forward. "An aggressive player with a terrific one-handed jump shot."

OC William A. Russell, 29th OC Company, 6-3 forward. "Handles himself like a pro—a good ball handler."

OC James L. Wood, 26th OC Company, 6-2 center. "He's a dandy with the basketball touch. A big boy who has confidence, drives hard, plays a good pivot, and can shoot with either hand."

OC Charles M. Williams, 26th OC Company, 5-8 guard. "An excellent ball handler, good back court man and is very fast."

OC Robert R. Rudiger, 2nd OC Company, 6-4 center. "Capable of hooking with either hand and good under the bucket."

2nd Lt. Edwin E. Gulsvig, A & R officer, 5-10 guard. "A playmaker with a fine eye for the basket."

Expects More Men

Coach Armour says he still expects more players to try out for the team and everyone has a chance to make the starting five.

Armour has played football, basketball and baseball at Miami Senior High School, winning five letters, and was awarded the Sigma Nu trophy as "Most Valuable Athlete" in the 1945-46 season. While attending Lawrence Prep School, he lettered in the same sports and was named "Best All Around Athlete" in his class.

WAC Quintet Opened '52 Basketball Season Tuesday

The WAC Detachment's basketball teams, working out steadily for the past few weeks at the Old Gym, opened its 1952 Industrial League season Tuesday evening against Bibb Manufacturing cagers at Comer Auditorium.

Under the guiding genius of Sfc. Robert Ford of A.S.P. Provisional Group's A & R staff, the gals have been learning their basketball.

The six teams in the double round robin Columbus circuit operate under the Georgia High School rules which are practically the same as those governing the Fort Benning hoop league. The exception is that the women can not cross the mid-court line.

Ford, who predicts a great show this year for the WAC "Raiders" and his able assistant, Don Matteson, have been teaching the team a man-to-man (or is it woman-to-woman) defense. Zone defense and fast breaking basketball is too intricate now," Ford states.

The girls that will be seeing plenty of action are Johnnie Winberry, team captain and a former Arkansas A & M physical education major, and Alice Connell, who played during the 1951 season with the Fort Sam Houston WAC quintet.

The other girls on the team are Joanna Asaro, Joanna Archibald, Cleo Collette, Doris Tindall, Marilyn Hawkins, Diane Gori, Betty Ramsey, Eva Johnson and Mary Waltman.

Ford's previous coaching experience includes the 1951 WAC team at Fort Hood, Tex., some youth club teams and the blond-haired mentor is a former basketball player himself. Besides having knowledge of cage doings Ford is a able boxer. He went to the 1948 All-Army Boxing Tournament as a welterweight from the Fourth Army.

There will be only one more game in the 1952 Fort Benning Football League, but the league leading Special Troops Rams will represent the post in an Army-Marine bowl classic on Dec. 20 in Tallahassee, Fla.

The Rams are to meet the Parris Island Marine eleven there and Coach GUS DIELENIS went down to Florida to check up on all the details that are required.

The Rams bossman is planning on taking some ball players from the other teams on post. So far BILL DIETZ and GEORGE (DING DONG) BELL are earmarked for the charity game classic.

CTC really was an inspired ball club during last Sunday's game . . . Or was it dissension that hurt the 508th . . . BELL and WILLIAM FUGE were the Commanders co-captains while BILL BUZA and BILL STEVENS acted for the Devils.

Coach JIM PHILLIPS of the airborne is on orders for FECOM and leaves Dec. 19, day after the football banquet . . . M. Company of the 508th had their M-Sgt. MIKE (mule) out on the sidelines.

CHARLIE MATTHEWS of CTC, LARRY SMITH and STEW CURRIE of 508th were given the heave ho by the officials during the game . . . Coach CECIL DICKERSON of CTC played the entire ball game with a taped thigh . . . Had a muscle injury.

DICKERSON, PHILLIPS and GENE MYERS met in the center of field after the game and complimented each other on a fine and clean ball game . . . The 508th was outcharged and outplayed by CTC, says the 508th coach.

CTC players BOB SALYERS and JACK MCCLUNEY missed the game . . . SALYERS is on orders and MCCLUNEY turned his equipment in before game time for some reason not explained . . . Assistant coach CLAUDE COLLINS handled the Commanders from the bench . . . He gets his walking papers from Uncle Sam this week.

MARK SCHEIBERT and ED WHITE of Special Services staff handled the chains while CHRIS DURIA handled the yardage marker.

The ASU Provisional Group's band and the 30th Infantry's 3rd Bn Drum and Bugle Corps played throughout the game . . . The 30th Infantry Drill team from I Company entertained during the half . . . M-Sgt. ISSAC W. DAVIS called the signals for them.

Peanut Bowl Sponsors Set $20,000 Goal For Classic

While the Peanut Bowl classic isn't rated in the same class as the other New Year's Day games, actually the game does more to help people than all the rest.

Around seven years ago a group of Columbus, Ga., men got together and inaugurated the Peanut Bowl with Atlanta's Tech High and Benton High of St. Joseph, Mo., meeting.

While the outcome was good the financial picture was dim. But the Exchange Club, sponsor of the game, carried on for another year and another game. The proceeds, although small, went to support the Sunshine Special, a help to the kids of this area.

After five years of rocky going, the sponsors decided to change the benefactor from the Sunshine Special to a benefit for handicapped children. This New Year's Day game will be played to create a fund to build a modern recreational center for the handicapped kids.

Sets Goal

Earl Bowden of the Peanut Bowl Committee says that the planned recreation center for the children requires special facilities and equipment. The initial construction cost of such a center is about $20,000. The committeemen estimate that such a center can be constructed from the proceeds of the Jan. 1st game if 20,000 persons attend.

Tickets for this worthy cause is on sale at Columbus' Metcalf's, Bentley's, Hoflin-Greentree, Kirven's, Chancellor's, Watson-Wade's, Goo-Goo restaurant, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Military tickets have been also placed on sale at a reduced price of 75 cents for enlisted Fort Benning personnel. Ducats are available at the NCS-USO center, Armed Services YMCA and the Fifth Avenue USO. They can also be purchased at athletics offices and Special Services.

Don't Be Shy

If you're playing in organized sports on the post—or were outstanding in athletics before coming into service—don't be shy, let us know at The Bayonet sports department, by either writing us c-o Public Information Office or calling 3-4222 (our new phone number.) Let your buddies know about the athletic accomplishments or sports events on the post.

RECEIVES CERTIFICATE . . . Col. Cortlandt K. Krams, left, commanding officer, ASU Provisional Group, presents a letter of commendation to Pfc. Henry D. Coleman of Company D, First Transportation Battalion for "Outstanding devotion to the field of sports in ASU units." Coleman, although he did not actually participate in a game, was always on the spot as a waterboy, batboy, assistant manager, or encourager for ASU players. As 1952 assistant manager of the ASU-ISD Greek Wars, Coleman said, "I am too light to get into the game, so I did the next best thing—manage. I enjoyed the work and felt just as important as the men who played. To receive this commendation is a big surprise to me and I appreciate it very much."

Knight-Keifer Win Shoot Club Pistol Matches

Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club's perennial winners, Capt. Fred Keifer and WOJG Robert E. Knight, did it again last Sunday as they walked away with shooting honors for the clubs' monthly pistol matches.

Keifer fired a 286 in the .22 cal. competition to edge out Lt. Col. Edwin Harding, 281, Lt. Alexander Dykin, 245, and Lt. Dodge, 230.

Knight shot a 284 in the center fire match to beat Fred Brazil, 274, Mr. Fields, 240, and CWO Robert Alexander, 204.

In the aggregate scoring, Knight had a 569 and edged out Keifer by two points for first place winner. First expert went to Brazil with a 547. First sharpshooter to Dykin with a 478 and first marksman to M-Sgt. Daw, who shot a 445.

OC Remembers '48 Sugar Bowl

When the football powers of the nation tangle in the New Year's Day bowl games, Officer Candidate Elmer Weems of 27th O. C. Company will recall a post - season game he played in not too long ago.

Weems played end in the company of All-American Charlie Justice and Art Weiner in the 1948 Sugar Bowl classic between North Carolina and Oklahoma.

He still carries a few scars of that afternoon tangle with the Sooners. Oklahoma won the contest 21-7.

Hailing from Dickson, Tenn., Weems began playing football at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., while serving with a Navy V-12 unit. In 1945 he transferred to North Carolina.

Discharged from the Navy in June 1946, he returned to the campus in the fall for football and played very little that year, but Weems, the following year, saw plenty of action.

After graduation in 1948, Weems coached the Dickson High school grid team. He was recalled to active duty with the Army in August, 1951.

30 Point Club

Since the Lawson Intra-Squadronal Basketball League got under way, only five players have hit more than 30 points in a single game. Joe Meyer of AACS did it twice with 39 and 33 points in competition. Herschel Weikel of Food Service dropped in 35, Ted Griak of 71st Sq. got 35, Bill Redding of Supply and Norman Carl of Motor Vehicle each got 32.

TIS Students See How Combat Medics Operate

The role of the medical aidman in combat is demonstrated to classes at The Infantry School by the men of Medical Company, 39th Infantry Regiment.

Under simulated combat conditions these men enact the selfless deeds of mercy and courage which have characterized the activities of the medics in Korea. Realism is added to the Benning demonstrations through the use of bloodied bandages and rubber casts which simulate battle wounds.

Start With Evacuation

The Benning demonstrations start with the evacuation of a wounded man under fire. While M-Sgt. Robert G. Allport and Sgt. Jessie K. Griffith haul Pfc. Andrew A. Buscarello away on a stretcher, Sgts. William R. Maddox and Russell Mazzola cover their withdrawal with protective fire.

The next part of the demonstration shows the activity of the battalion aid station, which is placed in a spot where it can be easily located by stretchermen and the walking wounded. Here the men are given immediate treatment for their wounds and evacuated by jeep ambulance or helicopter to either a medical clearing company or to a mobile surgical hospital if an operation is necessary.

In the Aid Station

In the aid station Sgt. James H. Terry, Cpl. Homer W. Huff Jr. and Pfc. Edward Armfield administer first aid to Sgt. John W. McWhorter, who had a simulated head wound. Two other wounded men lying on stretchers are questioned by Cpl. Harry F. Younce and Pfc. William Kearney.

Like all of the demonstrations at The Infantry School, the medical company has its counterpart on the battlefields of Korea. There the deeds of the medics have won the admiration of both officers and enlisted men.

This admiration was aptly summed up by Maj. Gen. Clark Ruffner, former commanding general of the Second Infantry Division, who once said, "Medical aidmen are the bravest people I have ever seen. In fact, they are too brave. I have seen aidmen race up a hill under fire to bring back a wounded man and the only apparent thought to get to the wounded as quickly as possible."

NAMED FIRST SERGEANT

M-Sgt. Robert C. Colson, who just recently returned to active duty, has been named first sergeant of Service Company of the 41st Field Artillery Battalion.

OPERATING TABLE . . . Footlockers and a stretcher may be utilized as an emergency field treatment table. Left to right, Sgt. James H. Terry, Pfc. Edward Armfield, and Cpl. Homer W. Huff administer to Sgt. John W. McWhorter.

AFF General Visits TIS

Brig. Gen. S. G. Conley, assistant G-3 in charge of training at Army Field Forces, Headquarters, Fort Monroe, Va., was here last week for a two-day visit to The Infantry School.

General Conley conferred with Major Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., The Infantry School's assistant commandant, and the directors of the school's Weapons and Tactical Departments and the director of instruction.

'No Daily Dullness In CTC Man's Life

The regular grind of performing the same job daily has not been a problem the past few years in the life of Cpl. Robert A. Bruce of Company H, 30th Infantry Regiment.

Early in 1944 he joined the Merchant Marines and after one month of intensive training he signed on the "Irvin MacDowell". The ship cruised the Mediterranean for a few months and then landed Army supplies in the invasion of Southern France.

The "Irvin MacDowell" then picked up a prize cargo, for return to the states, at the Port of Oran in North Africa—five hundred prisoners of Field Marshall Rommell's crack Africa Corps.

Back to Sea

Having delivered these prisoners safely to the states, Corporal Bruce again went to sea with another ship assisting in the monumental task of supplying the European invasion. After a trip completely around the world, Corporal Bruce signed again with a ship that picked up 800 US Soldiers at LeHavre France in 1945.

In 1946, Corporal Bruce attended an Officers School and received a "Third Mate's license upon graduation. He once again went to sea, this time to Chile to bring magnesium ore back to this country. Upon completion of that trip, he then embarked on his longest voyage while in the Merchant Marines, a trip around the world plus an interoastal voyage through the Panama Canal. This voyage took one and a half years to complete.

After a year and a half at sea, Corporal Bruce decided to stay on land for a while. He enrolled in 1949 at Boston University and attended that school for one year. In June 1950, when the Korean war began, Bruce was called by the Merchant Marines to return to sea duty. He answered this call and was shortly on a ship moving oil to Korea.

During a lapse between signing on another ship he was inducted into the Army and took basic training at Fort Bragg, N. C. After completing basic training he was assigned here and took airborne training.

Upon completion of Jump training he was assigned to the 508th RCT. During a jump with the 508th he received an injury and was hospitalized. When discharged from the hospital Bruce was assigned to Company H, 30th Infantry, where he is serving as a Section Leader in the Machine Gun Platoon.

Gen. Young Issues Yule Safety Plea

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, Infantry Center commander, this week called on all Infantry Center soldiers to exercise safety rules and practices while on Christmas leave. Text of his message reads:

"The Christmas season is traditionally a time in which all of us tend to throw aside the cares of the everyday world and devote our undivided attention to celebrating the holiday season. The conditions that cause accidents, however, take no time off. On the contrary, they increase, and are further enhanced by the prevalence of the carefree holiday spirit. Far too often the season

Army, Benning Heads Urge Safety Practice

A holiday safety program is being conducted this year at all command levels within the Third Army area, according to a letter from Lt. Gen. Alexander Bolling, Third Army commander.

General Bolling has sent a letter to all governors and mayors in Third Army area cities requesting their cooperation during the holiday season.

In his letter the Third Army commander stated, "Accident prevention is a matter of deep concern to me. We must take positive steps to reduce the toll of injuries, deaths, and property damage resulting from motor vehicle accidents."

Asks Cooperation

In asking the cooperation of civilian authorities the general has requested that the law enforcement agencies of the seven states provide copies of all motor vehicle accident reports of those accidents involving military personnel.

"I am determining that the Army will do its share in helping cut down the staggering accident and death rate. I have a safety director on my staff and I am making him available to every state director of public safety as a means of establishing a strong military-civilian program aimed at accident prevention," the Third Army commander's letter said.

At The Infantry Center, the safety council has conducted three drives to try and prove themselves wrong, the council has conducted an extensive safety drive. Literature, displays, posters, and films have been forwarded to all unit commanders for distribution to Fort Benning soldiers. The council has requested that men traveling by private vehicle beyond 150 miles start their leave in the morning rather than the evening hours.

In speaking to Fort Benning men, Gen. Young said, "I am confident that you will exercise every precaution to prevent accidents during the holiday season."

Integrity, Honesty Vital, Gen. Meloy Tells OC Grads

Personal integrity and honesty are the most vital characteristics of an officer, Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., told 90 graduates of Infantry Officer candidate class No. 40.

General Meloy, The Infantry School's assistant commandant, replaced Texas Rep. Olin E. Teague as principal speaker at the graduation exercises because of Mr. Teague's illness.

"Army business is conducted on the oral or written word of its officers and the integrity of their word is particularly important in combat," the assistant commandant told the new second lieutenants.

General Meloy also warned the graduates to make certain that their men are expert marksmen.

"Ninty per cent of enemy casualties are due to artillery, mortar or tactical air action, but the critical 10 per cent is inflicted by the rifleman," he declared. "It is the rifleman's 10 per cent that determines whether a defensive position will be held or a position taken after the supporting fires have been lifted," General Meloy continued.

The final 150 yards is the payoff and only you and your rifle can decide the outcome," he concluded.

Honor graduate was Lester R. Curtiss of Black River, Wisc. Lt. Curtiss' next assignment will be at Fort Campbell, Ky.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Major E. M. Shaffer, chief of the Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Infantry Center Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffield, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

Wreck Photos Urge Safety

Thirty sets of accident photographs are on display in unit areas here in connection with the holiday safety program inaugurated last week.

Safety posters and displays also have been placed in unit areas, Infantry Center Safety Director Norman Evans reported, and safety films are being shown during the weekly command conference.

Mr. Evans said the Safety Council has suggested that all personnel granted leave for a distance of more than 150 miles during the Dec. 20-Jan. 1 holiday period leave the post in the morning rather than late afternoon.

"Based on previous records the council has predicted accidents involving Fort Benning personnel will result in four fatalities and 14 injuries during the 15-day holiday period," Mr. Evans explained.

"Personal messages from all unit commanders will probably be issued to all men before they leave for their Christmas furlough," he said.

Training will be suspended between Dec. 20 and Jan. 5.

British Offer Free Memorial Book

A British book commemorating the 28,000 American men and women who died while serving with America armed forces stationed in Britain during World War I, is being offered free of all costs to their next of kin by the London Times Publishing Company.

At the present time, Col. John Jacob Astor, chairman of the Times board, is in the United States trying to locate these next of kin so that he can secure a copy of the book for them.

Prepared Jointly

The book, entitled "Britain's Homage," has been prepared jointly by the Times and the Dulverton Trust. It contains illustrations of American troops in Britain and tells what the troops saw and did and how they were received by the British population. It also discusses frankly the troubles that arose between the American troops and their British hosts.

The book, which opens with a tribute from Prime Minister Winston Churchill, has a portion devoted to the Americaf Memorial Chapel, which is being constructed in the eastern apse of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Roll of Honor

When it is completed the chapel will enshrine the Roll of Honor of the 28,000 men and women who died in Britain. The names of the American service personnel were collected under the direction of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower. That is the only American aid the memorial has received.

The chapel, according to Col. Astor, "is being built with pennies, sixpences and pounds, from young and old, rich and poor, up and down the country. I think that more than 2,000,000 people have given a total of 100,000 pounds."

In American currency that would be approximately $287,000.

Hope For Pilgrimage

The British people hope that the American Memorial Chapel will become a pilgrimage for Americans visiting London. Because only a few Americans can make the trip to London to visit the Memorial Chapel, The Times and the Dulverton Trust have prepared this book so that the next of kin of those who died in Britain will have a record of the memorial the British people are building through voluntary contributions.

Next of kin desiring copies of the book are asked to place the following information on a postcard.

1. Name of the deceased.
2. Name of his or her unit.
3. Writer's name and address.
4. Writer's relationship to the deceased.

Mail the postcard containing this information to Colonel The Hon. J. J. Astor, 45 E. 51st Street, New York 22, N. Y. The information will be sent by airmail to the London Times, which will send the book free of charge to the proper applicants.

Juvenile Crime Caused By Idle Hands--Land

Most juvenile delinquency is caused by idleness, Columbus Juvenile Court Judge A. J. Land last week told members of the Dad's Club.

"Juvenile delinquency as we know it today is child crime—that is, criminal acts committed by children of 17 years of age or less, and ranging from mischief cases to robbery," he declared.

"Our youth will not become delinquent if their interests are directed to the best outlets," Judge Land continued, "and their interests can find the best outlets in the kind of activities the Fort Benning Dad's Club sponsors.

"Nothing will benefit youth better than organizations in communities such as your club. I hope other clubs such as yours will spring up everywhere," he said.

Judge Land was introduced by Chaplain (Major) Robert B. Herndon.

Col. Bruno Jastremski, club president, outlined the purpose and functions of the Dad's Club to visiting mothers and new members.

A representative from each of the club's committees was present to answer questions and give details of his committe's plans.

Capt. Arthur E. McElfresh, Fort Benning school doctor, will be featured speaker at the January meeting of the club. He will speak on the health of children.

Lt. Col. Earl Wiley also will give a short safety talk at the next meeting.

Sgt. Quinn Wins Army Pic Contest

Sfc. James F. Quinn, Jr., of Dorchester, Mass., has been awarded first prize in the Third Army photography contest.

It is a high angle oblique shot of a table top arranged with toy figures of men in space suits which give the effect of a scene from another planet.

Sergeant Quinn said he took the photograph with a 4x5 press camera at f-22 with a three-minute time exposure, in order to create a weird lighting effect. he used a 500-watt spotlight.

The picture won the Fort Benning contest and was automatically entered in the Third Army contest. Sergeant Quinn received $10 as first prize in The Infantry Center contest.

247 Graduate From Airborne

Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, addressed 247 graduates of Airborne class No. 21 at Chapel field.

In congratulating the men upon completing the Airborne course General Meloy told them that they should be proud of the fact that they were joining an elite branch of the Army.

Col. George E. Bush, of Gallipolis, Ohio, the deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School received his paratroopers' badge from General Meloy.

The colonel is a 1928 graduate of the United States Military academy. During World War II Colonel Bush commanded the 172nd Infantry Regiment of the 43rd Infantry Division in the Pacific theater. He has been awarded the Silver Star Medal, Bronze Star Medal with one Oak Leaf cluster and the Legion of Merit.

Former Golf Pros Take O.C.S. Training Here

BY KEN HORNE

Two former golf professionals, John Travis of Sacremento, Calif., and Gale V. Smith of Shaker Heights, Ohio, are now taking officer candidate training as members of 12th O. C. Company, First Officer Candidate Regiment.

Travis, a tall, lanky, right-handed swinger, and Smith started on their roads to pro-dom vig the caddy route at early ages.

"As a kid, I would caddy after school and during the summer I would participate in the Hearst Golf Tournament for kids," Travis said. After finishing high school, he took an assistant pro's job at the William Land course.

In February of 1951, Travis accepted a job as a Department of the Army employee and this position took him to Okinawa as club manager at the nine-hold Owase Meadows Country Club. While there, he rebuilt the course, and under the direction of Major Gen. Robert McClure, commanding officer of the Ryukus Command, laid out plans for two 18-hole layouts on the island. The outbreak of the Korean War ended work on the projects.

Coached Team

While in the Far East, Travis coached the Far East Golf team. He returned to the States in 1951 and in the summer of took charge of the Lake Takoe course in California as pro.

"I play a little better than par golf," he says, "nothing terrific, but I get a kick out of teaching the game.

"You know, many people don't realize a teaching pro's game suffers in the process of showing other golfers the correct positions," Travis said. "The exaggerated positions you have to use throws your timing off."

One of Travis' former pupils, Barbara Romack, is an up and coming woman golfer. His prediction is that she will some day win the woman's golf championship of the world and so far she had finished in the money in all the major tournaments in the last two years.

The 25-year-old candidate enlisted in April and took basic training and Leaders' Course at Fort Ord, Calif.

Toured Ohio

Smith, the other golfing "expert" toured the Ohio circuit as an amateur until 1948 when he accepted the job of shop manager at the Canterbury Country Club near Cleveland. The course was selected as the site for the National Open the same year he took the job.

In 1947, he became assistant pro at the Chagrin Valley Country Club in Ohio and that led the 23-year-old pro to a job at the Madison Golf Range in Cincinnati in 1948.

While assistant pro at the Lansing Country Club, Lansing, Mich., Smith won the club's pro-member tournament with a 63. His tournament play has consisted of at least on meet a year for the past four years.

"I haven't had the good luck of winning one, but I have gotten a big bang out of playing under pressure," he says.

Candidate Smith was a physical education major at Miami University (Ohio), but quit after two years. He enlisted in March and took basic training at Fort Riley, Kans.

NEW FIRST SERGEANT

M-Sgt. Eric F. Leitner has been assigned to Company A of the Airborne Battalion as First Sergeant. He replaces Sgt. Hubert H. Fordan, who recently transferred to Company C of the battalion.

Traditional Christmas Dinner

One of the oldest and best customs of the service, and one which makes soldiering worthwhile, is the traditional custom of officers and men and their families having Christmas dinner together in the company mess hall. This is a custom to add to the Army spirit and one which we hope will be soon spread here on Christmas Day next Thursday.

In recent years many of the oldest and finest traditions of the military service seem to have been passed in the background. This is most unfortunate because it is these customs and traditions of the service that have created a camaraderie and a morale that is found only in the military service. These traditions are certainly worth keeping alive and fostering wherever and whenever possible.

And one of the best forms to practice these customs and traditions is at Christmastime.

When officers, enlisted men and their families sit down together to enjoy Christmas dinner it enables them all to better understand the human side of each other. And more than that, it makes the families feel a part of the organization and community of which they are a most important and substantial part.

So, it is our hope that as many officers and enlisted men and families as possible can have a Christmas dinner together next Thursday in the mess hall. We are sure that those who promote this truly worthy tradition will have a hearty and happy Christmas Day.

Will Two Die?

The prophecy has been made — by Industry Center soldiers and the end of 1943 will not find injuries to traffic accidents during the Christmas holiday period.

Mr. for that is only a possibility, and predictions have been known to raise from nearly to naught, then the proverbial mule. Many pedicel sports forecasters used only to look back on the past football season, to know that.

Norman Brown, The industry center safety office director, also knows that. Unless most drivers exercise, he is happy when his predictions are shown to be too high. Last year he predicted four deaths and 30 injuries and missed the mark. No traffic deaths were reported although approximately 15,000 personnel drove in, uniformed, 30 million miles during the holidays last year.

That no deaths were recorded last year is a tribute to all those who used the highways. Conditions were ideal for causing accidents. The same can be said this year.

Drivers will be in a hurry to get to their destinations and many are planning to drive practically non-stop so as to make most of short furloughs. But think it over for a moment. The hazards are great, Ration stamps, some drivers are willing to gamble the balance of their lives against the few hours that can give by speeding great distances without stops for lunch or rest.

The element of driver fatigue in cases like this is extremely dangerous. This element figured in a majority of fatal accidents at the Industry Center this year and should not be taken lightly. Coffee is a poor substitute for proper rest on long trips. Plans should be made to allow for time to relax and rest.

Another hazard not present here is the possibilities of the roads during the winter months. Many drivers will be heading for areas where frosts become commonplace with ice and snow during the winter months. A glance to some of the listings for the city fire alarm system at this Installation includes both the east and west exits as well as sections in the reservation. In all of these localities bad weather can change the highways to a nightmare of skidding, crashing cars.

Industry Center drivers last year being blest some conditions but proved that careful and sane driving can effectively combat these and other traffic hazards. But extreme care is required at all times. One moment of carelessness could easily double the number of deaths predicted by the Safety Office this year.

Watch it over an over all listening to the safety talks being given in this year. These speakers are talking about something of the greatest interest to you—your life. One moment of carelessness can mean death or injuries or sadness as to cripple you for the rest of your life.

A Great Craftsman Made Man

BY CHAPLAIN
HERBERT T. HUBERT

Among book collectors there is always a ready demand for books that have been issued from certain presses. An imprint indicating that a volume has been published by a press of great renown makes that volume one that a collector prizes.

A stamp on the bottom of a most fascinating shirt is that made by Wolfgemuth, a label on a violin indicating that it was made by Stradivarius, given to the man or child a value above others, in each case, a printer, or a potter, or a maker of violins has established a reputation for expert workmanship. Anything that's bought that means, or marks of that craftsmanship, is valued accordingly.

Most men made by a great craftsman, the Lord God Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth. Man is God's masterpiece. The reason is not as he looks at the stars and sees out to the God behind the Universe, "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which God has ordained; what is man that thou art mindful of him?"

Put a telescope to a man's head and let him begin counting and measuring the stars, and he shrinks like dust in comparison with the enormous. Search with the telescope and put a microscope to his eye, a drop of water suddenly becomes alive with innumerable forms; a speck of dust, as pictured in a comic book years ago, becomes as vast as the Great Desert. Smallest and, curiously, most natural of feeling anger, hate wide enough, as he realizes that nature contains no invisible entity as corpuscles.

Before the impact of infinities upon our economy, it was established that the materials making up the average adult human body had commercial value of approximately ninety cents. And yet, ninety cents' worth of common clay, animated with life, has done very remarkable things. When a man falls in love with a woman he does not think of her as dust and ashes, but as the most precious entity of creation. Accordingly he all the time sings that love ever been written, music ever sung, or symphony ever played can have a value that is beyond all computing.

Man is mentally and emotionally made; He "knows the secret of the heavens". He is a maker of history, the maker of laws, an evolution of God Himself into time. The dignity and greatness of man, his greatness and his weakness, have never been better stated than in the Genesis story of man's making.

The Lord God, we are told, formed man of the dust of the ground, of common clay; then Lord God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a being whose value could not be computed in terms of the dust of which he was made. He became a living soul, a great piece of craftsmanship that speaks eloquently of its maker, GOD.

On The Bookshelf

THE WOMAN WITH THE HAIR by Maria Tippo. Double-day and Company.

This is one of the best period biographies to be written about Miss Peron. It traces her fantastic rise from the backwoods of Argentina to the pinnacle of success she occupied when she died.

A bit actress who never did anything more than small parts at the Teatro Comedia, the need of her family, supporting sister, her devoted, scheming mother, in her stage, the role of one of the most hated women-spy, grafter, and powerful women of all time.

The story is centered around the awakening of the nationalism, proletariat and peronism movement that overthrew Argentina today.

THE ARMY AMERICAN SERIES PUBLISHED and edited by Martha Foley, complete within themselves.

Twenty — one short stories compose the first collection of short stories compiled by Miss Foley.

Many a reader in the subject of addicts as well as the appearance and treatment of the subjects.

"The Cat" by Rachel Lauritzen and "The Other Foot" by Ray Bradbury are two excellent examples of this variety. The first is the story of an office girl in New York who is being plagued by a sadist, and the other relates how the Negroes are on Mars reacts to the opening of the Martian canals to Negroes.

Air System Set For HC Theater 11

Work is expected to begin soon on the installation of air-conditioning in Theater No. 11 in the Harmony Church Area.

This is another move in the Army's unceasing effort to give the soldier on-post recreational facilities comparable to those in civilian communities. Third Army headquarters has announced that 12 Army post theaters in the Third Army area were to be air-conditioned.

"Not a penny of the 250,000 the job will cost comes from the taxpayers pocket," said Lt. Col. R. C. Cabot, Third Army Special Services Officer, whose section is supervise the project.

Emphasizing the Army's concern for cost consciousness, the large-scale project was not undertaken until the Third Army Welfare Fund was sufficiently strong to support it.

Fund assets come from profits realized from the sale of beer, soft drinks, and post exchange sales and support. All the Army's recreational activities, including sports, music and soldier shows programs, service clubs, craft shops and libraries are supported by these non-appropriated funds.

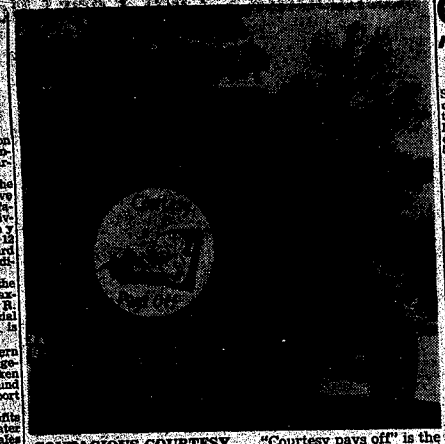
Third Army Special Services officers indicate that the work will begin immediately and should be completed by next April.

The low-bidding Engineering Contractors, Inc., of Atlanta will supervise concurrent installations at Camp Gordon, Camp Stewart and Fort Benning, all in Georgia; Fort Jackson, S. C. and Camp Rucker and Fort McClellan, Ala.

Soldier of Week

Sergeant K. T. Henry, 87th Chemical Smoke Generator Company has been selected as soldier of the week by his company commander, Captain Franklin A. Reis.

Sergeant Henry was selected for this honor for holding in a superior manner the following positions in this company: operations sergeant, field first sergeant, utility NCO and PIO for the company.



CONTAGIOUS COUBTESY . . . "Courtesy pays off" is the motto this week in the 78th Engineer Battalion. The motto is changed each week, and displayed on the back of the jeep driven the most number of miles during the week. The 78th has just completed 100,000 vehicle miles without an accident.

Chapel Slates Guest Speaker

Dr. L. S. Williams, head of the Department of Religion at Ouachita College at Arkadelphia, Ark., will be guest speaker Sunday at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services at the Main Chapel.

Dr. Williams brother of John L. Waldey, pastor of Columbus' First Baptist Church, is a graduate of Mercer University and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

He was formerly professor of religion at Howard College in Birmingham, Ala., and in the religious education department at Besate Tift College in Forsyth, Ga.

TIS Officers End 3-Week Conference

Four Infantry School officers return here Saturday following a three - week conference at Army Field Forces headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., and with the Army G-3 Section in Washington, D. C.

Maj. Fred Herres of the Operations Office, Maj. Frederick J. Hicks of the Ranger Department, Capt. Tom W. Turner of the Automotive Department and 1st Lt. Edwin J. Ducet of the communications Department have been conferring with Army officials on revising the current supply and training needs for Fort Benning.

Chaplain Once Was 'Shoeless Wonder'

As athlete — known as "The Shoeless Wonder" — in his college days while preparing for the ministry, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Warren M. Marshall Jr., has been assigned to Harmony Church Chapel No. 1 on temporary duty.

The Southern Baptist was a member of the track and football teams at Mercer University in Macon and he excelled in track.

"I was the fastest man in the college during my freshman and sophomore years — that is, on my feet," he says, "My feet were so big (size 11½ at present) that I was unable to get track shoes and had to run barefooted. That how I became known as the 'Shoeless Wonder.'"

He specialized in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and played guard on the football team, but was only "fair to middling." The divinity student won letters in both sports and was a member of the intercollegiate debate team for three years.

He holds bachelor of arts, master of arts, and doctor of divinity degrees from Mercer University.

He served as pastor in Louisville, Tenille, and La Grange, Ga., before entering the service in 1942. As a chaplain in the Army Air Corps he was stationed at Turner Field, Albany, Ga., O. R. D., Goldsborough, N. C., with the Second Air Force at Peter, S. D., and Sioux City, Iowa; and with the Far East Army Air Corps in the Philippines.

Chaplain Marshall was separated from the service in 1945 and entered the reserves in 1947, serving as division chaplain of the 81st Infantry Division as a reserve assignment.

Born in Eatonton, Ga., he attended Harmony Church which, he says, makes him "feel quite at home in my present assignment."

Bakery Resumes Operation Here

The Post Bakery has resumed operations after a 60-day closing for renovation.

The bakery was reroofed, its interior remodeled, and a new office installed for the bakery officer.

New mixers also were installed, and the bakery now will be able to turn out 8,500 loaves of bread during an eight - hour working period.

A 20-man mobile bakery platoon from the 543rd Quartermaster Baking Company of Fort Bragg, N. C., was at Fort Benning to supply bread for The Infantry Center while the Post Bakery was being remodeled.

The renovation was handled by the Engineer's Buildings and Maintenance Section.

16 SIGNALMEN HERE

Ten Signal Corps enlisted men and one officer from Camp Gordon, Ga. are here to supplement Infantry Center signal supply operations. They are members of the 990th Signal Operations Company and will be here for approximately 60 days.

2. Since you may be hard to locate, it is generally better for you to call the folks back home, instead of their calling you. Charges can be reversed.

Candidate's Two Year Old Story To Appear In Coronet

A story written some two years ago by a man now in the 20th Infantry Officer Candidate Company will appear in the January issue of Coronet Magazine.

The author is Candidate Norman S. Poser of 300 Central Park West, New York City, who was a research writer for the magazine in 1950.

Poser, who also authored a story about Admiral Farragut for the magazine, has received page proofs of his story: "Forgotten Hero of the Air." It tells the life story of Samuel Langley, said to have invented an airplane before the Wright Brothers made their flight at Kitty Hawk.

Articles For Research

As a research writer, Poser was given prospective articles for research by the magazine's editors. On the basis of his investigations, the proposed story would either be approved or rejected by Poser, and the editors generally concurred.

"The editors usually farmed the article out to a writer, but if I liked what I found in my research, I would sometimes ask for the assignment," he says. The Langley and Farragut articles were two which he asked for and was assigned to do.

Most of his time was spent in research, which took him to many parts of the country.

"It's been two years since I left Coronet and I still see articles for which I did the research," the 24-year-old candidate says. He explains that magazines generally keep a large supply of articles in stock for publication at a date determined on a basis of need and demand.

Harvard Writer

A feature, review, and editorial writer for the Harvard Crimson, Poser graduated from Harvard University in 1948 with a bachelor of arts degree in English literature. He was a police reporter for the Daytona Beach, Fla., News-Journal before accepting the Coronet assignment.

Late in 1950 Poser went to Paris to work on his master's degree at the Institute of Political Studies. He returned to the U. S. in 1951 and entered the Army in November.

After completing basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., Poser was assigned to Infantry officer candidate class No. 46 which graduates Feb. 15.

Book Review:

Winchester

BY JOE SIMMONS

WINCHESTER — The Gun That Won the West, by Harold F. Williamson (Combat Forces Press, 494 pages, $10)

The story of the famed Winchester, a name that has come to be practically synonymous with rifle in our age, is told in minute detail by Mr. Williamson. However, the name selected doesn't give a true idea of the wealth of information Mr. Williamson has included; it might better be titled "Winchester, the Gun That Won The West, And a Contemporary History of American Business Practices from 1850 To Date."

The "gun nut" seeking technical information about early rifles of almost any brand or type; the historical researcher delving into the corrupt factory practices of the turn of the century; the reader in search of relaxing adventure tales —all will find this book of gripping interest.

Henry Most Successful

The most successful rifle produced by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company in its early days was the Henry—perhaps the first truly successful repeating rifle.

During the Civil War, Winchester officials tried, for the most part in vain, to get Union forces to adopt their weapon. As has been true from time immemorial, there was much official distrust of the weapon at this time, since it was new and nearly a revolutionary idea. However, many far-sighted individuals purchased a Henry from their own funds to use in the fighting.

Despite the fact that most of the company's sales during the war were to non-governmental markets, the war was a shot in the arm to the company. Practically insolvent in 1860, six years later net worth amounted to approximately $354,000—no trifling sum in those days.

The Model 73, introduced in 1873, is the rifle generally credited with "winning the West." The ammunition brought out by the company to use in the model 73 was the famous "forty-four-forty cartridge," so named because of the .44 caliber bullet and the 40-grain powder charge.

Quotes Extensively

Extensive quotes utilized by Mr. Williamson and immensely to the enjoyment of the book. For instance, Mr. Williamson quotes a letter from the famed Col. "Buffalo Bill" Cody in which he says "An Indian will give more for one of your guns than any other he can get." It is self-evident that ignorant Indians, knowing nothing about powder charges or bullet weights, would concern himself solely with a weapon that gave him better results than any other.

The history of the company has various ups and downs through the years, but by World War II, was a going concern. One of the chief reasons for this was the working partnership the Winchester company formed with the Browning brothers, a pair of the outstanding weapons designers in American history.

World War I saw great popularity of the Winchester Model 1897 shotgun. Groups of American soldiers especially skilled in trap-shooting were stationed where they could fire at enemy hand grenades in mid-air and deflect them from falling into our trenches.

The guns were also used against enemy mass attacks, with devastating effects, as witnessed by this report from the battlefield:

". . . and when those shotguns got going—with nine .34 caliber buck shot per load, six loads in a gun, 200-odd men firing, plenty more shells at hand—the front ranks of the assault simply piled up one on top of another in one awful heap of buck shot-drilled men."

Germans Object

Perhaps it was this that caused the German government to cablegram the U. S. that this weapon was against the terms of the laws of war. Needless to say, the U. S. government penned a sharp note to the Germans and said they intended to continue using them.

Throughout the history of the company, the Winchester family held tight rein on a controlling share in the company. But following World War I, the company's post war plans went awry, and it fell into receivership. The depression in 1929 sealed the doom of Winchester, and four years later it was sold through a referee to the Western Cartridge Company, which since its birth in 1892 had grown to be one of the leading concerns in the world.

Under the guidance of new management and new capital, the Winchester company once again climbed towards the top. In the late 1930's, the company won a contract to produce the famed M-1 military rifle by submitting a bid that was approximately $100 a gun cheaper than the nearest competitor.

The company started delivery in 1940, well before Pearl Harbor, and was the only manufacturer outside the government arsenal at Springfield producing the weapon. In all, Winchester produced over half a million of these rifles.

In 1941, the company stuck another feather in its cap with the U. S. Carbine Caliber .30 M-1—still used, along with the Garand M-1, as one of the chief weapons of the Army.

Thus Mr. Williamson traces the growth of the Winchester company from its first days at the Volcanic Repeating Arm Company in 1855 to its present status where it remains as one of the outstanding examples of American free enterprise, devoted to the primary task of developing superior firearms and ever ready to assist the nation in times of military emergency.

He has woven an intricate tale of the company from technical information, letters of by-gone heroes, manufacturing charts, patent laws, and history. A professor of economics and a doctor of philosophy, Mr. Williamson is at the same time a man with the ability to take the history of a great industrial organization and turn it into a thoroughly readable yarn that will appeal to a wide audience.

Religious Groups Get New HC Meeting Spot

A chapel day room has been provided as a meeting place of religious groups in Harmony Church to ease the crowded schedule of activities in Chapel No. 5, according to Chaplain (Capt.) Edwin C. Gomke.

The day room of 18th OC Company, located behind the chapel, was set aside early this month to give adequate housing for the increasing religious activities in the Harmony Church area.

Previously, groups found it difficult to schedule a meeting because another group had already arranged for the chapel.

"We needed a meeting place for Sunday School classes, religious discussion groups, social gatherings, and services which were creating schedule conflicts," said Chaplain Gomke. "The chapel day room clears the chapel for private devotion and helps us to expand our program and make it more effective."

Chaplain (1st Lt.) Bernard A. Mussman, who conducts Jewish services in Harmony Church every Monday evening, found the chapel day room "ideal." He had previously conducted services in a chapel office.

All groups wishing to use the day room are urged to contact Chaplain Gomke. It is open to individuals at all times. The day room is being decorated for Christmas and will have a display of religious literature.

New A & R Rep

Officer Candidates Vernon C. Cotter of Kansas City, Kan., and Nicholas Cooke of Irvington, N. J., were recently appointed A & R representatives of the 3rd O. C. Company, First O. C. Regiment.

They have created a great deal of interest in the regimental sports program and at present have a basketball team of their own to whip up competition in the company itself.

The defensive platoon backfield has big Clarence Howard of Wilson JC, Illinois; Phil Secrist of Tennessee, Bill Black of Nevada, Ken Miller of Baldwin Wallace and Al Weaver of Fort Valley, Ga.

The solid line consists of Fred Dreyspring of Mississippi State and Jim Brown of Finley, S. C., as ends, Bob Ellis of San Angelo College and Chuck Allen of Texas Tech as tackles.

The guards on the defensive platoon are Bill Cawley of Jersey City, N. J., Dick Lohmann of Mankato State Teachers, Minn., Lou Pavlic of Illinois and Larry Smith of Oklahoma A & M.

Besides having Buckles, Mathews, Gibbons, Mackie and Dervin as backfield operators, the Rams also have Big Bill Dietz and George (Ding Dong) Bell.

These two are the leading Benning ground gainers, Bell, who spent some time at Indiana, racked up 548 yards on 122 carries for a 5.3 average while Dietz, an Indiana State Teachers, Pa., lad, romped for 434 yards on 81 pigskin lugging attempts.

Besides having Buckles and Matthews as quarterbacks, the Rams storehouse for the Parris Island eleven includes the leading passer in Benning, Chuckin' Charlie Leonard.

The former Florida A & M ace, who came back to the post's grid battles last week, is leading the loop with a 12.6 passing average. Leonard has attempted 102 passes, completed 38 bullet heaves for 451 yards.

A quick look at the Rams statistics for the 1952 season will show that they have scored 98 first downs, have gained rushing 1,330 yards and passed for 879 yards. Their total offense is 2,209 yards.

Their passers have attempted 133 aerials, completed 57 of them and had 14 intercepted.

New Hoop Game Helps Kids Out

Biddy basketball is a new game for boys and girls which provides a terrific weapon in the fight against juvenile delinquency, inasmuch as the youngster is occupied with doing something, under adult guidance, that he likes.

Aimed at boys, from nine to 12 years of age, and girls, from nine to 13, it is based on regular basketball, but with variations to bring it within the physical reach of these youngsters.

After dropping around the Old Gym and observing these boys at play, you will be convinced that the Fort Benning Biddy Basketball League is the greatest thing that has happened to sports here for some time.

The league consists of six teams or more. The regulation playing floor is 50 x 90 feet and the backboards will be four feet by three feet with a 17-inch diameter goal that is placed 8½ feet above the floor. The players can not be taller than 5'6" and they play six minute quarters, stopping the clock as in a regular hoop game.

Parents are urged to allow their boys and gals to participate in this new recreational activity for youngsters at Fort Benning.

The boys have been practicing every Tuesday and Thursdays and Coach Bob Ford of ASU A & M is proud of the great improvement that the team has already shown since practice started. The team played a CTC quintet in a practice game last week and defeated them, 18-9.

Pete Greer starred in the practice game getting his team mates with 14 points of the 18 scored. Greer is being coached to develop a left handed shot as well as his right.

So far, Ford says that he is coming along fine and by the time the season officially starts, he will be ready and will be able to hit from either side of the court.

Another handy-man for the ASU cagers (midget) is Jimmy Morg, who will be playing guard and can drive in hard and is fast on the breaks. Little Billy Taylor is probably the smallest on the squad and in the league, but he will give the opposing team plenty of trouble around the basket.

Some of the other members on the team are Terry Gibbs, Johnny Gill, Edwin Downie, Larry Fitzgerald, Eugene Cocks, Jackie McCaskill, Michael Thorton, Billy McAllister, Dix Riggs, Richard Lewis, Bobby Goff and Buddy Wilson.

The Rams were toasted at a banquet at the First Student Brigade Officer's Mess Saturday afternoon . . . They were fed thick steaks and given a pep talk by the commanding officer, COL. SEVIER TUFFER, and other Brigade officials. . . 20th Century-Fox Films has their camera crews down here filming "The Report to the Army" and part of the film is devoted to Fort Benning's recreational activities. Both were especially cooperative in getting more men out for football and were good liason men between the companies and the sections. . . "I would like to thank all the unit commanders for their cooperation and support given to me and the ISD - ASU football team," MANLEY says.

aldosta Accepts Bid o Peanut Bowl Classic

aldosta High School's unbeat- and untied Wildcats accepted invitation to meet West Springt, Mass., High on New Year's in the Seventh Annual Peaowl game sponsored by the umbus Exchange Club. . . . fial announcement came from n Gammage, Peanut Bowl irman, after the Wildcats had eated LaGrange High, 30-0, for the Georgia State Class A championship.

It will be the third time in the six-year history of the Peanut Bowl that a Class A team has been invited to participate in the annual classic. Georgia teams haven't fared too well in the January 1 game. In six previous clashes, Peach State teams have won only twice.

Old Tech High of Atlanta won the first Bowl game in 1947 by beating Benton High of St. Joseph's, Mo., and the next Georgia win came in 1951 when Rockmart, the Class A champion, defeated Holyoke, Mass.

The Wildcat charges of Coach Wright Bazemore, a Mercer grad, have racked up 12 straight victories this season for the second staright Class A state championship. Last year, Valdosta defeated Newnan, 14-9, to win the crown.

The Peanut Bowl has bought fine football to Columbus in the first classic between Tech High and Benton, three great stars emerged — Bobby North, and George Broadnax, who later played for Georgia Tech, and Pierce McWhorter, who during the last baseball season was a catcher with the Montgomery Grays.

The Arkansas Travelers' girl basketball team will play an exhibition here sometime in February.

First SR Wins Four Practice Cage Contests

First Student Regiment's chances for the championship in the Fort Benning Basketball League are way above average if the four pre-season practice games of this week are any indication.

After beating the Bibb Manufacturing quintet last week, the Blackshirts, composed for the most part of Airborne Battalion personnel, defeated the PMG Medics this week in Briant Wells Field House, 93-31.

Then the First SR cagers went on to swamp the Lawson Air Force hoopsters, 98-51. They rounded the week by beating the 508th Airborne, 77-51.

Terry Scott, mentor of the Blackshirts, holds great hopes for a successful season, based on the appearance of the team at the practice games. "It's aiming kind of high," he stated, "but, if the team keeps up with the same drive that they have been showing so far, we seem to have a fair chance for the Third Army Championship."

High scorers for the regiment, thus far this season are George Swyers, with 74, and John Dull, who has racked up 63 points in pre-season play.

Swenson Leads Comp. H To ISD Basketball Title

Lester Swenson dumped in 24 points to lead Company H to a 51-43 victory over F Company and to the ISD Basketball Tournament championship in an intra company hoop contest last week.

High scorer for F Company was Norman Meyers who had 15 points.

Earlier in the week, during the second round of the tourney, F Company eliminated Company A by a 52-26 score and Company H beat Company B, 62-42. Meyers scored 18 points for Fox hoopsters, Swenson had 16, James Weathers had 13 for Able, Clinton Jones had 15 for Baker Company.

OC Officers Begin Play In Golf Tourney

Having completed a special turkey shoot golf tournament, officers of the First Officer Candidate Regiment have begun play in another tourney designed to bring the bird on the Christmas table.

The handicap tournament will be completed by Dec. 23. Thirteen officers in one flight paid the $1.00 entry fee to be eligible for the prizes of one turkey and a chicken.

Ill. School Offers Vets Scholarships

Half-tuition scholarships to Illinois Institute of Technology, valued at $162.50 a semester or $325 a year, are being offered to Korean war veterans for the second semester of the 1952-53 academic year, which starts February 5.

The Institute established 100 scholarships for veterans entering Illinois Tech under the new "Korean Veterans Bill," which became effective in July.

The tuition grants are for one year, but may be renewed for additional years providing the student's academic performance is satisfactory, according to Dr. John T. Rettaliata, president of Illinois Tech.

The scholarships may be used in any of the Institute's three divisions: the division of engineering, which offers 14 curricula including the departments of food engineering, fire protection and safety engineering, and the Institute of Design; the division of liberal studies including 8 departments, and the Graduate School, which offers advance degrees in engineering, the sciences, and liberal studies.

Illinois Tech is the only engineering school in the country offering a degree-granting curriculum in food engineering and fire protection and safety engineering.

Under the terms of the new Korean Bill, veterans pay tuition out of their government allowances. The Illinois Tech scholarships reduce the amount of the payments by one-half.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of previous academic records in high school or college, or on performance in Illinois Tech's entrance examination.

Information on the scholarships may be obtained from the Illinois Tech Admissions Office, 3300 South Federal street, Chicago 16.

Safety

sistant commandant of The Infantry School emphasized the need for safety during the holidays.

General Meloy said, "The Christmas season, the happiest time of the year, is also a time in which we expect our greatest number of traffic tragedies. On an average day about 100 persons are killed in traffic accidents.

"In December this number starts increasing reaching a peak of about 300 on Christmas Eve Day and continuing at a high rate through New Year's. It is ironic that these accidents should occur at all, much less during this Christmas season. Past experience indicates that traffic accidents will be caused by one or more of the following driving practices:

Accident Causes

Continuing to drive after getting sleepy and tired.

Driving after one or more drinks of intoxicants.

Driving at a speed at which vehicle cannot be stopped within range of headlights.

Failing to reduce speed on wet or icy roads.

Driving at a wild, crazy speed.

"It is my sincere hope that all drivers in this command will insure the safety and happiness of themselves and others in recognizing these dangerous driving practices. Drive safely and really have a Happy Christmas."

Brig. Gen. Lacy V. Murrow Lawson Air Force base commander also expressed his hope that this would be a safe holiday.

"Associated With Death"

General Murrow said "Holiday seasons seem more and more to be associated with death, injury, loss and suffering primarily attributable to motor vehicle accidents. The comparison between our Korean War casualties and our traffic casualties is an alarming one.

"From the beginning of this war to the present time, a period of more than two years, we have experienced approximately 32,000 killed and 94,000 injured; for this period our traffic casualties were approximately 102,000 killed and 3,580,000 injured. These accidents represent a constant drain on our economy, hinder our war effort, and certainly should not be analogous with Christmas. The Air Force extends best wishes to you for a most pleasant holiday season."

Col. S. R. Tupper, president of the Fort Benning Safety Council expressed the council's concern for safe driving practices during the 15-day holiday.

Study of Record

Col. Tupper's letter states: "A study of the past five-year accident experience together with the violation record by the Safety Council indicates that we can expect about three deaths and 23 serious injuries in traffic accidents during the Christmas season.

"Accidents that will be caused by attempting to drive after 18 hours without sleep, overdriving headlights, speeding and driving under the influence of intoxicants, it can be readily seen that these accidents need not occur if only drivers could be convinced that the above unsafe driving practices are deadly.

"Last Christmas season we had only eight serious injuries and no fatalities in traffic accidents. It is my hope that drivers this year will observe the true spirit of Christmas by observing sensible driving practices and thereby insuring the safety of themselves, friends and other road users.

"One of the best Christmas gifts this command could get this year would be an accident free holiday. A gift than can be made possible by every driver of this command."

Kid's School Budget Set

A budget of $3,300 for the remainder of the school year was approved Monday night by the Fort Benning Parent - Teachers Association at its regular monthly meeting.

The budget includes a proposed expenditure of $2,000 for visual aids equipment and other instructional materials needed in the children's schools. The several hundred parents who attended the meeting gave unanimous approval of the budget, introduced by Col. Kenneth Macomber, P-TA president.

Following the business meeting, association members heard a program of Christmas music by a chorus of children from the 6th, 7th and 8th grades, directed by Miss Grace Jenkins, and by the Fort Benning Chapel Choir under the direction of Mrs. Ewin T. Rios.

becomes one of tragedy rather than happiness, because of the occurence of accidents.

"It is my earnest hope that each of you, whether you choose to remain at the post or take leave to visit your homes or elsewhere, will conduct yourselves in such a manner as to assure your safety during the approaching holiday season."

Civilians Get Leave Dec. 26

Civilian employes here have been granted a legal holiday Friday, Dec. 26, by an executive order issued by President Truman.

A Department of Army letter from the Office of Civilian Personnel authorizes Federal employees to take the holiday without counting it against their leave and pay. Employes required to work will be paid holiday pay, but no compensatory time can be worked, the letter said.

A number of civilians will be on duty Dec. 26 because of essential activities, but this number will be held to a minimum, officials said.

The executive order does not apply to military personnel, who have already received their Christmas leave policy.

Military personnel here will be on a half-day schedule from Dec. 20 to Jan 5.

Ack-Ack Officers End School Tour

Lt. Col. Wayne G. Springer and Major A. R. Datnoff of the Anti-Aircraft and Guided Missile School at Fort Bliss, Texas, have left after a four-day liaison visit to The Infantry School.

Colonel Springer, senior instructor at the Fort Bliss school, and Major Datnoff, also an instructor, observed the latest training methods and elements at The Infantry School during their visit.

Firing Course Set For Officers

A special two-hour course in furnace firing will be conducted here in January for company commanders and unit utility utilization officers.

The course, taught by technical instructors from Third Army's Engineer Section, is designed to familiarize company grade officers with the proper method of firing ranges used in most Army kitchens and warm-air furnaces in barracks and other buildings, Col. Richard F. Ebbs, Infantry Centery engineer, said.

A similar course is already in operation to teach company firemen and cooks how to fire furnaces and ranges, Col. Ebbs reported.

The special course, tentatively scheduled to begin Jan. 19, also will show company commanders how to inspect boiler rooms and kitchens.

Purpose of the course, according to Colonel Ebbs, is to get maximum benefit from fuel and to save manpower through proper firing of furnaces.

The course will be conducted by The Infantry Center Engineer Section. Chief instructor will be Emmett J. Gossett, Third Army technical engineer representative.

Religious Services, Parties Welcome St. Nicholas Tonight

'Tis the day before Christmas, and all through Fort Benning the soldiers remaining on post for the holidays have much to occupy their time.

Since The Infantry Center is operating on a half-day schedule until Jan. 5, events have been planned for every afternoon and evening. At least three events are scheduled every day.

A number of parties and dances are scheduled at the five Service Clubs throughout Jan. 1.

Service Club No. 1 has a Christmas carol service planned for tonight, beginning at 8 p.m., and a big Christmas party will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. It will include a buffet spread at 4:30 p.m. and a variety show at 8 p.m. New Year's Eve also will be the scene of another big party and dance at the club.

Jam Session

A jam session begins at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Service Club No. 2, followed by a variety show at 8:30 p.m.

Beginning at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 27, the "liar's contest" will be held.

773rd Tankers To Play Santa For PC Orphans

There really will be a Santa Claus for some 50 boys and girls from the Mother Mary Mission in Phenix City this year, thanks to members of the 773rd Tank Battalion of Combat Training Command.

Lt. Col. John O. Woods, battalion commander, announced that the battalion had extended an invitation to the mission for the boys and girls to join the battalion members for Christmas dinner.

Members of the battalion will pick up the children in Army busses about 1:30 p.m. Christmas Day, and whisk them to the battalion area in Sand Hill. First thing on the agenda after they arrive will be Christmas dinner with all the trimmings—turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, and "tons of cake and ice cream," according to a battalion spokesman.

Following dinner, the kids will gather around the Christmas Tree, where St. Nick will present each little boy and girl with a present.

After that, they will tour the battalion area, where they'll get a firsthand look at the huge tanks used daily by men of the 773rd in their problems for The Infantry School.

About five o'clock, the kids will load onto the Army busses again and return to the mission, and by that time they'll know that "there really is a Santa Claus."

10th Annual Baby Derby Contest Set

The first baby born to an enlisted couple in the U. S. Army Hospital in 1953 will be the lucky recipient of more than $100 worth of merchandise donated by Columbus merchants in cooperation with The Bayonet.

Plans for the 10th Annual Baby Derby were announced this week by Lt. Ray Patten, Bayonet advertising manager, who said 23 merchants have already signed up and more are expected before the contest ends with the appearance of Mr. or Miss 1953.

Girls Lead

Up until last year, the boys and girls were running neck and neck, but Miss Anna Laura Rooks, daughter of Cpl. and Mrs. Wendell A. Rooks pushed the girls out in front five to four when she arrived at nine minutes past the stroke of midnight.

The speediest winner of the nine derbies held so far was "Mr. 1947," who put in his appearance just 30 seconds after the chimes quit signalling the New Year. "Mr. 1947" was Paul Oliver Neely, son of Sfc. and Mrs. Vincent T. Neely.

Father of the winning child this year may receive the gifts by applying to Mr. Patten at the Ledger-Enquirer building in Columbus. All entrants in the contest must accompany their claim to the prizes with a doctor's certificate specifying time of birth.

In case of twins, triplets, quadruplets or other unforeseen occurences, the first baby born will be considered winner, Mr. Patten stated.

Blood Center Gets 181 Pints

The Blood Donor Center reported 181 pints of blood collected last week, pushing December's total to 578.

Last week marked the final collection period for the Blood Donor Center in 1952. It will be closed the remainder of the year for the holidays.

Of last week's total, 28 pints were used at the U. S. Army Hospital. The remainder was shipped to the U. S. Blood Processing Plant at West Point, Pa., for use as plasma.

The Second Student Regiment led the week's donors with 81 pints.

Other Fort Benning units donating included the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, 54 pints; Area Service Unit Provisional Group, 32 pints; Provisional Medical Group, four pints; Army Field Forces Board No. 3, three pints; Combat Training Command, one pint; Infantry School Detachment, one pint; and civilian employes, five pints.

6 CTC NCOs Off For Rucker

Six non-commissioned officers from the 3657th Ordnance Company left this week for Camp Rucker, Ala., to prepare for Exercise Snowstorm with the 994th Ordnance Heavy Automotive Maintenance Company.

Snowstorm, a winter maneuver to train Army units in the planning and execution of cold weather operations, will be held during January, February and March at Camp Drum, N.Y.

The exercise will include day and night cross-country operations, defense against atomic attack and airborne operations, Gen. John R. Hodge, Army Field Force Chief said in outlining plans for the manuever.

Major Army units scheduled to participate are the XVIII Airborne Corps and 82nd Airborne Division of Fort Bragg, N.C., and 278th Regimental Combat Team of Fort Devens, Mass.

Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger, First Army command, will direct the exercise.

Deputy director will be Major Gen. Charles D. W. Canham, Third Army deputy commander, and technical assistance will be provided by the Mountain and Weather Training Command, Camp Carson, Colo.

Merry Christmas To The U.S. Army

President Truman, Army Secretary Pace, General Young, Extend Best Holiday Wishes

"Another Christmas finds so very many of you far from home on battle stations or standing guard for the protection of our country, and I want you to know how proud we all are of your unselfish devotion to the great undertaking in which you are engaged. The task you have set for yourselves is nothing less than the salvation of the world. Mankind will lay no finer tribute upon the altar this Christmas than the courage and loyalty you are showing in this bitter struggle for world peace.

"The thoughts and prayers of all of us at home are with you this day. Your victory in the fight for freedom is our hope, and indeed the hope of the world, for that day when Christmas will again be a season for peaceful rejoicing."

Harry S. Truman

"In sending you greetings on this holiday season, I wish to tell you how proud I am of what American soldiers have done — and are continuing to do — to preserve our freedom.

"Each of you, in America, in Korea, in all of your posts far from home, is doing his duty to meet the challenge for freedom which has been raised in our time.

"To you and your loved ones I send my warmest and most heartfelt wishes for the very best that this season can bring to you. May God bless all of you and strengthen you in the great work you are doing."

Frank Pace Jr.
Secretary of the Army

"Christians throughout the world again approach the Holy Day during a period of crisis with those who seek to deny the divinity of the Master. Only by a display of strength, fortitude and devotion can we prevent such a world tragedy.

"It is now recognized that military power is required in this effort. The Infantry Center is an important and integral part of our military establishment. To those of you who have supported it so magnificently, I express my deepest appreciation, and I am certain that you will continue to contribute your utmost to our goal of obtaining peace throughout the world.

"Again at this Yuletide Season our hearts and our thoughts turn particularly to our comrades at the battlefront and to their families. Our earnest prayers go to them for a successful victory, and the happiness of a speedy family reunion.

"I wish all of you, both military and civilian alike, a Merry Christmas, and pray that the New Year will bring us success in our endeavor to sustain the teachings of Jesus Christ."

508th ARCT Practice Alert Termed 'Successful'

A practice "alert" held by the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team has been termed "very successful" by Lt. Col. Herbert V. Mansfield, acting head of the 508th at the time the alert was held.

It all began on a Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. when most of the Airborne soldiers had signed out and were on their way to Columbus or to their homes. Letters marked "SECRET" had been distributed through channels with detailed instructions on what to do when and if an alert was sounded.

Columbus and Phenix City police joined with military policemen in rounding up members of the 508th downtown. All they knew was that they had been asked to tell all the 508th men they saw to report back to their units.

Appeal Broadcast

A Columbus radio station broadcast an appeal to all men of the 508th to return to their units. Listening to the radio were a number of men who had just left the 508th and reported to the separation center for discharge. By the time the alert was over, nearly 40 of these men had tried to rejoin their various units.

As the members of the 508th returned to their companies, they found things packed up, and men who had already returned were dressed in combat gear ready to march or jump, whichever they were called upon to do.

The only person who knew the alert was only a test was Colonel Mansfield, who was busy observing how the regiment responded to the call.

Guards were posted in the Sand Hill area to keep anyone not a member of the Airborne unit out of the area. Men in civilian clothes had to show identification before they were allowed to enter the area.

"Gone Five Years"

Many wives of 508th men came rushing to the area for tearful goodbyes. As one wife said, "This happened to us once before, at Camp Bragg, N. C., and he was gone for five years that time!"

Colonel Mansfield kept a close watch as the Infantry battalions hooked up at rendezvous points with separate batteries from the 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion to form battalion combat teams.

Together, these battalion combat teams moved out to a deserted air strip. At their destination they would send out security guards and prepare to spend the night on their "alert" status. By 8 p.m., one BCT was having hot chow in its bivouac area.

When it was all over, Colonel Mansfield said its was "very successful," he pointed out that "we are gaining by experience, and the next time we have an alert it might be the real thing or another practice."

"We did find mistakes and a few points that needed correction," said Colonel Mansfield, "but the important thing is that we were able to get the entire regimental combat team in the field ready for a mission on very short notice."

Phone Centers Set Early Yule Opening

The four attended telephone centers here will open at 9 a.m. tomorrow morning and remain open until 11 p.m. according to Ed Hopking, manager.

Mr. Hopkins said the centers would open earlier than usual to accommodate the expected heavy traffic in long distance calls.

"Where possible, we'd like to urge men to place their calls as far in advance as possible," Mr. Hopkins said. "There's always a waiting period on Christmas Day, and if calls are placed before then they'll have a much better chance of speedy connection."

The attended center on the Main Post is located behind the Finance Building; in Harmony Church, one center is located at the corner of Cusseta and ElCannee Road, the other opposite the Fourth National Bank office in the OCS area; and in Sand Hill the center is located at the bus station.

Friday the centers will go back to their regular schedule, Mr. Hopkins said. The schedule of operations is 4:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Friday, noon until 11 p.m. Saturday, and 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. Sunday.

'Turn About Fair Play,' Says OC

Turn-about is fair play in the First OC Regiment.

A senior candidate of 27th OC Company who was known to be particularly demanding of candidates in junior companies had the worm turn on him rebently.

One night last week the senior candidate was seen leaving a laundry without his senior status insignia. He was promptly stopped and reprimanded for not saluting a senior candidate by a candidate whom he had only recently reprimanded for the same offense.

ACHIEVEMENT CERTIFICATES

Company D, First Transportation Battalion and the 27th Transportation Car Company have been awarded Infantry Center Certificates of Achievement for operating all vehicles more than 100,000 miles without accident. The 27th operated all Army vehicles 119,601 miles and Company D drove 113,212 miles without accident.

Arrival Of 7 'Copters Completes 506th Fleet

The 506th Transportation Company has received its final shipment of helicopters, and advanced flight training has begun.

Seven H-19 Sikorsky helicopters have arrived to complete a fleet of 14 assigned to the 506th since the unit came to Fort Benning last month.

Six more H-19's will be assigned to the 506th sometime next year.

The 506th will give 15 hours of advanced flight training for some 30 helicopter pilots during the first training period which began this week.

The 506th is actually a graduate school for helicopter pilots since a majority of the pilots have completed basic pilot training.

Instructors for the advanced training program will be Warrant Officers Junior Grade Herbert Mahoney of Yorktown, Ind., and Charles Phillips of New Bethlehem, Pa.

The Sikorsky H-19 helicopter is used primarily as a troop carrier and for evacuation of wounded. The big ship can transport 10 fully-equipped combat Infantrymen into a combat zone and on the return trip carry six wounded litter patients to a rear area hospital.

The H-19 weighs 4,280 pounds, operates at a flying speed of approximately 100 miles per hour, and can remain in flight for as long as three and one half hours.

Powered by a 600 horsepower Pratt-Whitney engine, the H-19 has three 26-foot rotary-wing blades and a 111-inch tail rotor. The 'copters are operated by a pilot and co-pilot.

Two Korea Vets Get Awards

Two Korean veterans have been decorated by Col. Mack Green, Infantry Center surgeon.

Pfc. Daniel J. McIntosh of Miami, Fla., received the Bronze Star Medal with V device for valor, and 1st Lt. Emmett L. Sellers of Chardon, N. C., the Commendation Ribbon.

Private McIntosh was awarded the Bronze Star for "Heroic achievement as a forward observer with Battery C, 503rd Field Artillery Battalion, Second Division in Korea." He is assigned to the 551st Medical Ambulance Company.

Lieutenant Sellers—earned his decoration for "meritorious service" in Korea as administrative and medical assistant to the Seventh Infantry Division surgeon. He is a member of the 54th Medical Battalion.

Wife Wonders, Hubby Knows

The wife of a 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team soldier wondered why he took so much time shining his boots and polishing his brass, but when he came home with a three-day pass, she understood perfectly.

Pfc. Gordon Bowman, of Company D, 508th Airborne RCT, made colonel's orderly for the third consecutive time as a result of his diligence with the shining tools.

The officer of the guard selected Private Bowman while inspecting the guard mount, not knowing that he had been selected twice previously.

"I had to work hard for that," said the happy soldier, "the competition in Company D is terrific. But it was worth it."

Maj. Jonas E. Dunn, 508th adjutant, recommended that Private Bowman be given a three-day pass for his outstanding showings on guard, and Col. George O. Pearson, 508th commander, agreed that he deserved it.

Helicopter Movies Seen

Air Force Col. (retired) R. H. Krueter was at Fort Benning Dec. 14 to show a movie of the new XHIP helicopter to Infantry School officers.

Col. Krueter is liaison officer between the Hughes Aircraft Corporation of Culver City, Calif., and the Armed Forces. The film deals with the new heavy - lift, helicopter, better known as the "Flying Crane," which was built by the Hughes Corporation.

SERVICE CLUB MURAL . . . Pvt. Stanley Miszczuk, a member of Combat Training Command, has finished painting this huge mural in Service Club No. 5. The picture, which took three months to complete, is a copy of an Italian masterpiece from the 15th century called "Canalleto." Mrs. Anabel Dade, service club director, said the mural has been appraised at $2,000.

Advance Students Start Thesis Writing Again

Yugoslavia as an ally, Japan's position in the cold war and the effect of traditions and customs of the service are examples of military theses being prepared by students in The Infantry School's advanced officer classes.

Each student in the two advanced classes is required to prepare a thesis, or monograph, on a military subject for his written and oral presentation to his fellow students during the 34-week course.

Filed Permanently

The monographs, which are filed permanently in The Infantry School Library, provide individual students with practical experience in writing on military subjects and in public speaking. The subject matter of the monographs also helps to broaden the students' military background.

Under the direction and assistance instructors in the Staff Department's Training Committee, the students are required to write a 2,500 to 4,000-word thesis on any military subject they choose. After preparing it, the students must present a 15- to 20-minute resume of the monograph to their fellow students. Students are allowed eight weeks in which to write and submit their monographs.

The monographs, which have not been required of the advanced classes since 1949, were reintroduced into the course this year because of the world crisis.

Subjects already chosen by students in the advanced classes scheduled to graduate May 21, include the Army Safety Program, Organization and Functions of Korean Military Advisary Group, Infantry Division (ROK), East German Military Forces, A new Approach to Our Bayonet Training, Current ROTC Problems, Army Public Relations, Universal Military Training and Comparison of US-Soviet Infantry. Many subjects are based on the student's personal experience and knowledge gained during his military career.

The monographs are graded by Staff Department instructors on clarity of expression, logical development, lessons taught and soundness of conclusion.

The oral presentation is graded on sincerity, enthusiasm, speech, preparation, explanation, demonstration, application and training aids used.

31 Canadians Plan Visit

Thirty-one students of the Canadian National Defense College arrive at Fort Benning Jan. 5 to visit The Infantry School and observe training demonstrations.

The Canadian students, headed by Air Vice Marshal Dunlap, commandant of the National Defense College, will be at Fort Benning one day.

CTC Prints Safety Book

A safety and conduct consciousness booklet will be distributed to members of Combat Training Command before the Christmas holiday period begins.

Entitled "So You Have A Few Days Off For Christmas," the six-page booklet is being distributed in connection with The Infantry Center holiday safety campaign.

The job of getting across the need for safety and good behavior during the Christmas holiday was assigned to 1st Lt. David M. Levitt of Chicago, Ill., who prepared the booklet.

Pfc. Lawrence Long of Girard, Kans., drew the cartoons, and Lieutenant Levitt wrote the safety slogans which appear in the leaflet.

Each page has one or more cartoons and slograns emphasizing the soldier's obligation to be courteous and safety conscious during his furlough.

Combat Training Command officials credit a similar booklet used last year with keeping the unit's accident rate to only one minor collision.

Army Recruiter Confers With TIC Officials

First Lt. Fred Bartlett, Third Army reenlistment officer, was here last week for conferences with unit commanders and first sergeants.

He conferrec with commanders of the Infantry School Detachment, Combat Training Command, Provisional Medical Group and U. S. Army Hospital and discussed reenlistment problems.

Lt. Bartlett returned to Fort McPherson, Ga., the following day.

Santa Turns Hero In 'Copter Crash

Santa Claus was called upon to perform a heroic rescue mission Saturday, and rallied to the cause with all the spirit and fire that has endeared the jolly old man to children for ages.

It all happened when St. Nick was returning from a Christmas party for post children in his helicopter. The helicopter crashed into the icy waters of the Chattahoochee River near Lawson Air Force Base, and Santa had to pull the injured pilot from the water.

Post authorities, concerned over the effect the accident might have on children, quickly issued a report that Santa, although shaken and suffering from shock, would make his annual visit as scheduled.

Santa Treated

Lt. Col. John D. Butler, in the role of Santa, was treated for shock and exposure at the U. S. Army Hospital.

His pilot, Capt. James Evans, suffered lacerations of the face and head, and exposure. His condition at the hospital was reported as "good."

Colonel Butler described the crash at his home several hours afterwards.

The pair took off in the helicopter from the rear of Theater No. 8 and had traveled about a mile when the accident occurred, he related.

He said the machine began to rock, the rotary blades stopped and the plane slanted to the right, suddenly falling into the river.

Both Colonel Butler and the pilot were thrown clear of the machine.

"I was so fat that neither of us could fasten the safety belt," Colonel Butler laughed. "When the 'copter hit the water we were thrown clear and the soft padding kept me afloat."

He said that he looked around him and saw no trace of the plane or the pilot. The officer recounted that he saw a piece of the rotary blade and a seat cushion come to the surface a few seconds later.

"Finally, Captain Evans came to the surface and I gave him a piece of the propeller," the colonel said. "Then I took the seat cushion and started swimming."

Colonel Butler said that he stripped down to his underwear when he reached the bank and saw the pilot on a log about 150 yards downstream.

He raced barefoot to the pilot and dragged him out of the chilly water onto the river bank where they both rested.

Colonel Butler said the pilot blacked out several times because of a severe blow on the back of his head.

The Colonel, a member of the Infantry School staff, pushed and dragged the pilot for more than a half mile up a steep embankment and through dense undergrowth and trees. Two enlisted men heard his cry for help and came to his aid about 50 yards from the Airborne headquarters.

It took him nearly an hour to bring the pilot from the crash scene, Colonel Butler said.

The Santa Claus uniform was found later on the river bank.

Post authorities estimated the depth of the river where the helicopter went down at approximately 30 feet.

The Santa flight was Colonel Butler's first ride in a helicopter.

Salvage work started on the helicopter Monday, and Captain Evans was discharged from the hospital the same day.

The Casualties of Peace

We claim to be the most humanitarian nation on earth—and we are.

We place so great a value on human life that we are willing to endure month after month of tortuous negotiation of an elusive armistice rather than suffer the greater loss of life that might result from decisive military engagement.

And when it comes to providing money to save lives from disease and malnutrition, we are the most generous nation on earth. Our generosity is sincere. But important also is the human relations value of convincing the world that we hold life and liberty above everything else.

Since we do regard these human values so highly on the battlefield, is public health and most everywhere else, it is amazing and tragic that our concern for human life apparently ends so abruptly when it enters the field of accidents.

In traffic, for example, so many people regard speed and "me-first" more important than human life that 37,300 lives were lost in traffic accidents last year.

It is right, of course, that we deplore the 20,000 fatal battle casualties in the two years of the Korean war. But we must equally deplore the apathy with which America regards the 28,000 lives lost in home accidents last year alone. And a truly humanitarian nation should not kill 16,000 persons in occupational accidents as we did last year.

In seeking permanent world peace, we properly recognize and condemn warfare as brutal and tragic. But peacetime accidents are not only just as brutal and tragic, but without purpose or necessity. And the toll is even greater.

If humanitarianism is truly an American characteristic, and if we are going to continue to lead the world in working for respect of the human individual, consistency demands that we put in more effort right here at home in our war on accidents. How can we impress people abroad with our humanitarianism throughout the world when we squander life in senseless accidents right in our own country?

What do you suppose other nations think about humanitarian America that celebrates its big holidays by killing innocent people by the hundreds and maiming them by the thousands through needless accidents?

NED H. DEARBORN
President, National Safety Council

Waste Is Communist Ally

Recent tests conducted by the Inspector General in the Continental United States revealed that 50.4 per cent of the soldiers tested believed the most important reason for taking good care of equipment and helping to prevent waste was that their own taxes are helping to pay for their equipment.

This figure indicates the degree of success of the cost consciousness program in bringing home the truth that "You and Your Family—Through Taxation—Are Paying for Military Supplies and Equipment." It also indicates the degree of effort needed to reach the other 49.6 percent of the military population who still don't recognize this fact.

The tests pointed out another matter—few soldiers realize that the Communists' most effective ally is waste. Nothing would please the Kremlin more than to have the U.S. spend itself into economic defeat. By that manner the Reds wouldn't have to score a military victory over us.

These are some reasons why American soldiers are hearing a never-ending sermon that stresses economy in the three M's—money, material and manpower. Fortunately, the sermons are beginning to pay off.

During the past year, the Army has received from its soldiers and employes more than 38,000 suggestions as to how to save money. Of these, 6,700 have been adopted, resulting in a first-year savings alone of more than $7,000,000.

To calculate the exact savings made during the past 12 months is impossible, but had the cost consciousness program not been in effect and vigorously pursued, the Army would have required several billion more dollars in order to fight the battles of Korea and improve its state of readiness.

There is no doubt the Army is fighting the war against waste with enthusiasm. It cannot afford to lose this war. It will not lose it if everyone in the military will do his share.

Christmas Is Time Of Joy And Good Will

BY CHAPLAIN
(LT. COL.) FRANK A. SPEAR

Once again the journeying months have brought us to the season of all the year the best—Christmas, with its cheer, its joy, and its gentle good will. It somehow tempers our feelings and emotions even among the horrors of war. We have national holidays of deep historic meaning and beauty; but Christmas is a day in the calendar of humanity—a time when we lay aside all selfishness and think of others. Only one other day can compete with Christmas in our regard; that is Easter Day, with its "song of those who answer not, however we may call," and, being Christian days, they are both days of hope.

What unaccountable blessings came to the world with one little child, born of poor parents in an obscure nook in a small country long ago, and who without sword or pen, divided the story of man into before and after! Every incident or date, since the beginning of time, is either B. C. or A. D. All time is reckoned either backward or forward from that memorial event. What influence—nameless appealing—lay sleeping in that manger, to be liberated at length, like the winds of Elmos, changing the moral and spiritual climate of the earth!

There shone a light that can never fail, revealing the Spirit of God and the meaning of life, making mother and child forever sacred, and softening the heart of the world. When one considers these things, one is constrained to accept the story of the Nativity—told with such dignity, restraint and beauty—as the only true account of the origin of such gentle, persuasive power.

What ineffable truths, what unspeakable prophecies, lie hidden in the Christmas Story! For one thing, it bears witness to the reality, beauty and benignes of that unseen order which envelops our ruder life like a soft atmosphere. He is blind and deaf who does not know that above us and around us there is a higher, finer world from which all sweet revelations, all happy miracles descend.

The atheist says there is no God. In that, he is worse than the devil because the devil believes there is a God. In fact, he knows there is a God. To our dull eyes the facts of this higher and finer world, are wonders and its continents are dreams; but it is as real as the solid earth on which we live, and in which we sleep at last.

Of the reality of that world, with its light and music, its open windows of divine surprise, Jesus is the supreme witness; and it is no wonder that it became for the moment visible and vocal when He who made it so real and vivid was born. "Fear not," said the angel to the sheperds who trembled in the light of a world higher than their own. That is ever the message of Jesus—that the unseen is a place of beauty, not of horror. What this means in driving fear from the human heart, no words can tell.

We can't love God unless there be something within us akin to the divine, and it is God in man which Christmas discloses in its story of the Eternal Spirit taking the form of a child. This it is that links us with the far-off, journeying stars, and becomes the authentic basis of all the high idealisms and heroic optimisms of the race. Man in his loneliness seeks God, who is his Father, and seeking Him, finds in himself in the last analysis.

Finding a new star out of the edge of the sky is a tiny fact beside the discovery of God in the soul. The hope of our race lies in the birth and growth of the divine man, refining lust into love, and greed into goodness. This is the prophecy of Christmas vision, and it is a truth that lights up our mortal twilight with joy, changing even dull death into a last enchantment.

Nation Shocked By Crash That Claims 86

The nation was shocked this week by the crash of a giant C-124 Globemaster that took the lives of 86 servicemen on their way home for Christmas. Thirty men aboard the plane survived the worst single airplane crash in history.

A grim shifting of men and metal is underway as the Air Force seeks an answer to the question foremost in the mind's of the nation: Why did it happen?

This crash came as the climax to a series of crashes of Navy and Air Force planes in the Pacific Northwest this fall that has shocked the nation. Two teams of Air Force investigators are at nearby Larson Air Force Base investigating the accident.

The Brodie Siamese twins in Chicago were still in a precarious state this week following an operation that separated the 15-month children. The Illinois Neuropsychiatric Hospital, where the head-joined twins were separated in a 12-hour operation, reported on their conditon in a bulletin: "The condition of Rodney (the stronger of the two) remains critical. The condition of Roger remains precarious and his struggle for existence seems to have come to a complete halt. There has been no change for better or worse in the last 15 hours."

In Los Angeles a mother of three will spend Christmas Day with her family, then go to the hospital to exchange her life for that of her unborn child. Doctors have told 27-year-old Mrs. Jean Garrett that the Caesarean section she must undergo will hasten the death she faces from Hodgkins' disease, an incurable lymphatic ailment. "If I can have my baby," Mrs. Garrett said, "I'll die happy."

On the weather front, everything looked cheery for the annual visit of old St. Nick. The weatherman said Santa would have good travelling weather Christmas Eve — the first day of the winter solstice. He said tonight would be clearing and tomorrow would be clearing and cold if a system approaching here moves on through.

Airborne Company A's Operations 'Fantastic'

BY PVT. VIC JOWERS

"Operation fantastic," as it is known in the Airborne Battalion, gives the appearance of a full battalion to the casual observer.

Company A of the Airborne Battalion is so named because of the huge number of transient troops that go through the Airborne receiving company each week.

The company processes approximately 360 men a week, prior to shipping them to a company for Airborne training.

Forty-seven cadre are necessary to handle this number of men per week. The figure includes messhall, supply, duty-section, and administrative personnel.

Confusion and Turmoil

From the students' eyes, upon first entering the company, all seems confusion and turmoil. He is moved "at-the-double" all working of the company and to help him get in the physical condition that is a necessity in order that he attain his paratrooper wings.

Processing starts the day following the student's reporting date. After turning in his orders at the orderly room he is issued bedding and assigned to a barracks under the charge of a student non-commissioned officer.

After he is ensconced in his new quarters the student is given an orientation talk, lasting approximately an hour, in which he is told what is expected of him during his stay in Company A. Correct wearing of the uniform is stressed, along with military courtesy, discipline, and what to expect during the three week training period with a training company of the Airborne Battalion.

Dental Check

Next step on the processing list is a thorough dental check, where any dental work deemed necessary is performed.

All of the students' personal problems, that come within the jurisdiction of the Army, are handled while he is with Company A. He has the opportunity to make out allotment checks for his folks at home, and to question his pay if there has been a discrepancy before is arrival at Fort Benning.

In addition to processing, the student has a definite training program to follow. Most of it includes physical training and mental conditioning, in order to prepare the student for the rigorous weeks ahead of him.

A normal day starts for the students at 4:45 a.m. The kitchen police, informed the day before of their impending duties, arise and fall out. The remainder of the troops spend the time cleaning the barracks and their equipment, in order to pass inspection in the breakfast chow line.

At 6 a.m. the company holds reveille. After breakfast the students are called upon to police the area and following that there is a period of physical training, followed by close order drill. The men are then allowed half an hour to clean up, and then a lecture period follows covering a designated subject.

At 1 p.m. a cross country march is undertaken and upon the troops' return organized groups games are scheduled in the company area. Following the game is another clean-up period for the troops and at 4:45 they stand inspection in ranks.

Students failing to meet the local standards of inspection are required to stay in the company area that night.

"This would appear to be the normal routine for any casual company. It is. It differs from the normal only in the extreme numbers of men that the company handles.

Average 360 Per Week

In the last 20 weeks approximately 6,800 men have reported in and have been shipped out to training companies. That is an average of 360 men per week.

The company mess-halls, under mess sergeant Omar A. Calloway, serve an average of 1,050 meals per day. The supply section issues or re-issues approximately three items of clothing per man. Roughly 1,080 items of personal issue are made each week to the students.

To keep the students happy recreation-wise, Capt. Jack W. Spiller, company commander, has the dayroom equipped with five pool tables, two table tennis tables, an information and education board covering an entire wall, a television set, and a reading room.

The second floor of the dayroom is decorated with rose-pink walls, a green ceiling, and has striped wallpaper covering the wall at one end of the room, while the opposite wall is covered with bamboo painted chocolate brown and inscribed in various paints with a jungle motif.

Key men in the company include first sergeant, M-Sgt. Eric Leitner, a paratrooper since 1942, and his assistant M-Sgt. Aubry Deavours, also one of the original paratroopers.

Sgt. Omar A. Calloway serves as mess sergeant and Sgt. Raymond Parker handles supply for the company.

HUP, TWO THREE . . . Airborne students must be at a peak of physical conditioning in order to withstand the rigorous training they'll get. Sgt. Terry Scott, duty NCO of Company A, Airborne Battalion, gives students calisthenics.

TRIMMING THE TREE . . . One detail that held no woe for students of the Airborne Battalion this week was trimming the Christmas Tree in Company A's day room. Left to right are Pvt. Francis J. Collins, Pvt. Donald E. Lanham, Cpl. Joel J. Koford and Pvt. Herbert J. Jones.

New Lieutenants Hear Gen. Young

Privileges increase slightly when a man is commissioned in the Army, but his responsibilities increase a hundred fold, Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young, told 88 graduates of Infantry officer candidate class No. 42.

The Infantry Center commander warned the new second lieutenants not to try to win a popularity contest in their new position as leaders.

"Win instead the respect of your subordinates and the admiration of your superiors, and you won't have to worry about being popular—you will be," he declared.

General Young also told the new Infantry officers that the "U.S. Army officer is truly a public profession and is directly responsible to the people since the military is the preserver of the security and the sovereignity of the United States."

Honor graduate was Robert John Geniesse of Seattle, Wash. His next assignment will be in Washington, D. C.

The oath of office was administered to the new Infantry lieutenants by Major E. M. Shaffer, chief of Military Personnel Division. The invocation was given by Infantry Center Chaplain (Col.) Lexington O. Sheffied, and music was furnished by the 122nd Army Band.

The team, headed by Col. Louis B. Rutte, of the Third Army's Comptroller Office, includes representatives from Office of the Comptroller and Department of the Army with representatives from the office of the chief of Army Field Forces expected to arrive at a later date.

Specialists in the fields of management improvement, organization and methods examination and manpower appraisal from Third Army and The Infantry Center will also be included in the team.

Objectives of the survey are to establish the most economical organization consistent with assigned missions; to install the most efficient administrative procedures and operating methods possible in all activities; to insure that all jobs are properly related to the performance of essential tasks only; to determine that all personnel are assigned to jobs in accord once with their highest skills, and that full productivity is obtained from all personnel.

The team is now engaged in the organization and methods phase of the survey to find and develop the most economical and efficient manpower usages. The next phase of the survey, determining manpower requirements, will begin about the first of February.

Ten members include Col. J. H. Wiechmann, Lt. Col. J. H. Robinson, Ted A. Primavera, Ted Reed, Hunter H. Phillips, Carl P. Neville, Albert P. Crites, John R. Smith, Harold E. Ruff, Ralph C. Andrews, William G. Culpepper, William T. Marr and Marvin M. Kulgo.

Ex-Deep Sea Diver, Trooper, Now OC

BY OC BERGEN B. HALL

An extremist — a civilian deep sea diver and a master parachutist—attending Officer Candidate School finds the life of an Airborne Infantryman a happy medium.

Candidate Robert J. Kuhn, 2291 OC Company, qualified as a master parachutist with 85 jumps as a member of the Pathfinder Platoon of the 82nd Airborne Division.

Prior to enlisting in the Army in 1947, the Hays, Kansas, candidate compiled approximately 100 dives as an apprentice during summer vacations from school and after graduation. Although he worked mainly off the coast of California, he went on a whaling expedition which took him off the Aleutian Islands and the northern coast of Japan.

His underwater activities consisted chiefly of repairing cables, removing obstructions from shipping lanes, and raising sunken ships. Candidate Kuhn once joined an expedition seeking sunken treasure.

The expedition was unsuccessful by Hollywood standards, retrieving only several antiquated cannon, small arms, suits of armor, and a few gold coins from three Spanish vessels believed to have gone under in the late 18th century. The "treasure" has been placed in a Seattle, Wash., museum.

Twenty-three years old, the candidate took up deep sea diving in the summer of 1946 while on vacation from St. Joseph's College and Military Academy. After graduation in 1947 he returned to his diving gear until enlisting in the Army.

Deep sea divers are seldom in danger from sharks and octopus, he says, although he once encountered a hammerhead shark which left him "speechless."

"The hammerhead was attracted by the air bubbles arising from my air line and began playing around with them," he recalls. "He got just a little too close for comfort and I backed against the side of the ship I was working on. When he got to within arms length of me, I closed my eyes and gave him a blast from the divers torch I was using."

The blast mortally wounded the shark but I was so scared I could not even talk," he says. They had to pull me up after another diver saw what had happened. I should not have to say that I was through for the day."

Candidate Kuhn says underwater work is distracting at first but as soon as he begins working he becomes accustomed to the surroundings and thinks nothing of them.

Comparing diving and parachuting, he says they are similar in many respects. "When stepping off Jacob's Ladder or jumping out of a plane I have a feeling like you get when entering a dark room and think something is waiting to pounce on you. But once in the water or hanging from the shrouds of a chute, everything seems quiet and peaceful."

He concludes that there are far less accidents in diving, although an accident under water usually is fatal.

'Like Father, Like Son,' Is Pinn Family's Motto

BY PFC. BILLY McCORMACK

Sgt. Lionel F. Pinn, intelligence sergeant for CTC is following in the footsteps of his father, M-Sgt. Carl T. Pinn, who is on a visit here from Camp Belvoir, Virginia.

The elder Pinn has been in the Army off and on for forty years. He first joined the Army in 1912, and was sent immediately to the Philippines where he remained three years and was in the Philippine Insurrection. "I remember my first pay day in the Army as though it was yesterday, Sergeant Pinn declared. "The Army was a real steady job, and I received $15.00 a month.

In Again, Out Again

The elder Pinn was discharged from the Army in 1915 and rejoined in 1917 just after the start of World War I. He was sent immediately to France with the American Expeditionary Force and remained there for nineteen months.

During this time he was decorated three times by the French Government, receiving the Croix de Guerre, the Engineers Medal and a Medal from the city of Verdun. He was discharged from the Army in 1919 and remained out until 1933 when he again re-enlisted and was back in the Army for six years. He was out again for two years and back in in 1941 and has been in since and has no intentios of becoming a civilian again.

In World War II, he spent 30 months in Iran with Company E, 363rd Construction Engineers and has just returned from another overseas tour of duty from Turkey. He hopes that his next overseas tour of duty will be in Spain.

Speaks 14 Languages

He is quite a linguist, speaking over fourteen languages. When asked about his army career, he said, "The Army gives a man a second lease on life, and if I had to do it over again, I would do the same thing, for anything that's worth having is worth fighting for."

His son, Sergeant Lionel Pinn, has evidently taken his father's advice about the Army for he has been in the Army since he was eighteen.

During World War II the younger Pinn served in the Pacific Theater with the 152d Infantry Regiment and with the Sixth Ranger Battalion. In the Korean War he was a member of the 38th Infantry Regiment, Second Infantry Division.

He too, has received a number of decorations, including the silver star, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Presidential Unit Citation, Philippine Unit Citation, Korean Presidential Unit Citation and the Combat Infantry Badge with Star.

OC Spent Life 'In The Dark'

Except for the two years he served on active duty in the Coast Guard, Officer Candidate Leo A. Schmid, 29th OC Company, has literally been "in the dark."

Since the age of 14, the New York candidate has worked in his father's photography store and later in his own commercial photography supply store.

On completion of his tour of duty in the Coast Guard Reserve in 1946, the shutterbug simultaneously operated his store in Brooklyn and studied at the New York Institute of Modern photography.

While enrolled at the institute he won several photographic contests. His sepia-tone entry of a schooner standing out to sea engulfed in a brilliant sunset copped second prize in the Harbor Exhibits of the Industrial America Salon, sponsored by the school in 1948.

As photography editor of 29th OC Company's class book, he constantly carries a Rolleiflex camera with him.

"On completion of my tour of duty I hope to return to my shop in Brooklyn which my wife is now operating," he says, "and to enter into the widening field of commercial color photography."

OC Training To Include Week-Long Bivouac

A one week bivouac has been included in the Infantry officer candidate course.

First OC class to take part in the new training phase will be No. 47 which goes into the field for seven days beginning Jan. 17.

Class No. 47, assigned to the 28th Company, will end the bivouac Jan. 23. The class began its cycle Aug. 29.

Officer and enlisted cadre in each training company will be with the candidates on bivouac.

Live in Field

This additional training will not effect the regular 22-week schedule since the only change will be that the candidates will live in the field instead of barracks during the 18th week of the course. The 18th week is normally devoted to field problems.

The one-week bivouac was inserted in the training cycle to teach the future Infantry officers how to take care of themselves and their men under field conditions.

Field problems scheduled during the encampment are rifle and weapons platoon in attack, rifle and weapons platoon in security during movement, rifle platoon in assault, motorized reconnaissance and security attachments, combat in cities course, small arms firecourse, close combat course, infiltration course, 75 mm recoilless rifle platoon in attack and 81 mm mortar platoon in attack.

Religious and athletic activities will be conducted in the field, according to Capt. J. B. Flores, the First OC Regiment's operations officer.

A similar bivouac was included in the Infantry officer candidate course here during World War II, but has not been held since the program was reactivated in 1951.

The 32-hour field problem held during the 21st week of training will not be effected by the bivouac.

Total Army Promotion Quota Upped

The Army Times in a front page story last week reported that 50,000 enlisted men promotions had been authorized by the Army for the month of December.

This is a jump of 20,000 over the November quota of 30,000. Quoting the Army announcement, the Times reported that the monthly quota of stripes would probably continue at this rate for at least the next six months.

No breakdown by major commands was revealed in the announcement but the paper stated that there had been an increase in quotas to commands other than the Far East Command, which in the past has been receiving the greater portion of the promotions.

The promotions for the first three grades were given as follows:

Master sergeant (E-7)—1,200.
Sergeant first class (E-6)—3,600.
Sergeant (E-5)—12,000.

The Times reported that the quotas for the top three grades are expected to remain fairly constant through June, 1953.

No breakdown in quotas for the lower grades was given.

At no time through June does the Army expect the enlisted promotions to fall below 40,000, the Times said. Rather, the Army expects the quota to remain nearer the 50,000 mark set for December.

The Army, in its announcement qualified the commitments by stating that changes in the budget for next year could necessitate a revision in the quotas.

Transport Officials Return From Meet

Col. Sidney P. Kretlow, Infantry Center transportation officer, and Capt. James H. Williams, his assistant, have returned from Fort McPherson, Ga., where they attended a two-day transporton conference at Third Army headquarters.

They also took part in the Southeastern Transportation Clinic in Atlanta.

Marion N. Kaskie, executive vice - president of the Reynolds Metal Company of Washington, D. C., discussed the growth of industry in the Southeast and its effect upon the demand for transportation in the keynote address at the clinic.

Various problems of small shipments by air, rail and motor carriers also were discussed.

The Infantry Center had 107 men sign for active duty out of 1,083 men eligible. The Fort Benning figure represents 29.67 per cent Regular Army men who reenlisted and 4.06 per cent Reservists who requested duty with the Regular Army.

Sfc. Promoted To Master Sgt.

Sfc. Charles Hensley of Blanch, Ky., has been promoted to the rank of master sergeant.

Sergeant Hensley, who is assigned to Headquarters and Service Company, enlisted in the Army in 1920 for one year. He returned to the service in 1924. He will be eligible for retirement in Sept., 1953.

Sgt. and Mrs. Hensley have three children and four grandchildren.

ANOTHER SCORE . . . Marine Leo Elter plows through the Special Troops line for a Leathernecks touchdown in the second period. Rams defenders are Norman Rasp (72), Clarence Howard (52), Bill Thuston (70); Bill Black (34), and Dick Reinher (73) in background.

Rams Beaten 49-0 By P. I. Marines

Fort Benning's football tilts, Special Troops Rams, were playing in the wrong league last Saturday afternoon for a star-studded Parris Island Marines football eleven handed them their sole defeat of the 1952 gridiron campaign.

The Marines toasted at a dinner party in Tallahassee the night before that they were going to beat the Rams, whom they met in the Sauls Bridges American Legion Charity Bowl game by fifty points.

Well, they were not far wrong for the Parris Island eleven, led by Slingin' Sam Vacanti, former ole pro for the Chicago Rockets and the Baltimore Colts, trounced the Benning gridders faces in the Doak Campbell Stadium mud, 49-0.

A sparse crowd of 1,138 that braved the threatening skies and a short, violent rainstorm, was treated to a display of aerial artistery and defensive power by the nation's number one service eleven.

Outclassed

The Rams, with CTC's George Bell, Charlie Leonard of ISD-ASU and Bill Dietz and Larry Smith of the 508th, were never in the contest. They spent the whole first half of the contest (?) absorbing a passing lesson from Vacanti who heaved four TD passes throughout the game and set up two more.

By the time that the half time gun sounded, the Special Troops gridders were behind by 35 points. It was a bad day for the Army.

The Rams could furnish only one big thrill during the game. On the last play of the first half, Ding Dong Bell grabbed Marine Jerry Elliott's kickoff on his four yard line and galloped like a fleet gazelle through the P. I.'s for a well-earned score.

Poor Officiating

But, the officials, who were very lax and did not seem to know the football rule book, called a penalty on Bill Stetter who had charged in and blocked the kicker. They called this a personal foul, and nullified the touchdown, but according to the rules, once the kicker gets the kick off, he becomes a blocker and is eligible to get clobbered like anyone else.

The Rams had one long march down field and they only got down as far as the Marines 18 - yard marker. The only threat that they could muster was in the fourth quarter when Al Buckles completed a 46-yard pass to star end Vern Fahrenkrug. Then Dietz on the following play plowed through for three more yards grounding the ball on the Leathernecks 16. Bell, on the next play, fumbled and it cost the Rams their sole scoring opportunity.

Seven Marine TD's

The Marines in all scored seven touchdowns, four by passes. Vacanti connected on aerials to Bob Schnelker, Billy Hayes, Leo Elter and Ken MacAfee. Then he set up two more aerials to Spec Granger and Phil Dettore. Besides garnering the passing honors of the game, Vacanti did the conversions.

The ground gainers for the Rams were Bell, Dietz and Harry Gibbons. Bell carried the ball on ten occasions for 22 yards while Dietz romped for 41 on the same amount of carries. Gibbons carried seven times for 43 yards, one of his carries being a 21-yard dash.

Our quarterbacks did not fare too well. Buckles attempted 11 passes but only completed seven for 87 yards. Leonard attempted three aerials. None were completed, but one was intercepted. Chuckin' Charlie also was caught behind the line of scrimmage for a 12-yard loss.

Besides losing the game to the Marines, the Rams also lost one of their players, Larry Smith, who was roughed up by the Leathernecks. Smith, who played on the Red Devils' eleven all season long, was knocked out by one of Marine linemen and had to be helped off the field.

Smithy, who was a standout on the Rams defensive line along with Bill Thurston, Bob Ellis, Dick Lohmann, Bill Cawley, Ken Miller, and Lou Pavlic, was in on the play that smeared Vacanti. The large-waisted passer, after regaining his feet, warned Smith that things like that do not happen to him and that he might not finish out the game.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Lester Dinoff

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—We were outclassed. The Rams were playing in the wrong league and against a congregation that would fare mighty well in professional football ranks.

I went to the Tallahassee Christmas Bowl with the Special Troops football team and like everyone else from Fort Benning, I was very surprised at the caliber of ball players that Lt. Col. John Hill had on his Parris Island Marines football team. The Leathernecks, with the exception of two gridders, had played together for two years and for 13 games this year alone.

The team arrived in the Florida capital Thursday morning and was put up in the Hotel Duval, the newest football barracks that the fair city has. The accomodations were swell, the food and service terrific and everyone had a good time, even though the Rams lost 49-0 to the Marines.

On Friday afternoon, Wally West and myself went out to Doak Campbell Stadium to see the Marine eleven work out the kinks from their bodies. The Leathernecks were big men, tall and heavy. Their first-string tackles, Rex Boggan and Don King, weighed a mere 235 and 255 respectively. Their backs were very fast and every quarterback that they had threw hard bullet passes. They really put a lasting impression on us.

The same evening, both teams had the honor of selecting a Miss Army and a Miss Marine, who were to sponsor both clubs during the fracas. The Rams selected a pert, 5'3", 19-year old lass from Jacksonville, Fla., Marian Mattair, who is a Florida State University sophomore. After the beauty contest, the 20 girls were really beauts, we all went over to a broadcast where both squads officially met and were toasted by the American Legion officials headed by Mr. Arthur MacCarthy, post commander.

Then both clubs went their separate ways until game time Saturday afternoon. The weather on Thursday and Friday was real warm and sunny, but it seems that Mother Nature did not like the idea of a football game last weekend. For the game day morning was cloudy and slightly rainy. At game time, with a few hardy souls sitting in the stadium, the rains came and everyone got soaked to the skins.

The big complaint among the Rams after the contest was that the referee and umpire did not seem to know what they were there for. They were very slow on calling penalties and on many occasions had to confer about the penalty. The Marines, in one instance, pushed one of the officials around, but nothing was done about it.

I guess that during the opening minutes of the ball game, most of the Rams player were bewildered and awed by the size of the Marine football team. Dick Reinher, Special Troops tackle, told me later that evening, that when he saw his counterpart on the Leathernecks, he was amazed that they grow them so tall and big. And trying to block him and get around him was like trying to get through a brick wall. Reinher, who isn't a baby himself, stands 6'4" and weighs 210 pounds and is one of the Rams big and heavy players.

Most of the players got into the ball game and everyone was in there working hard and trying for the win. Coach Gus Dielens, with whom I rode down to Tallahassee, blamed the loss on himself. "I guess that I started the wrong people" was all that Gus could say.

GRID GOSSIP . . . On behalf of all the Fort Benning players and their likeable coach GUS DIELENS, I would like to publicly thank the citizens of Tallahassee, Fla. for the fine support and hospitality that they afforded to us. I would like to thank ARTHUR MACCARTHY, FRANK and CAROLINE MERRIN, SONNY VAN HORNE and he other Legionairres for making our stay as pleasant as it was.

BOB DELANEY of WTAL-WTAL FM and JACK EDGAR of WTNT had a number of the Rams players and coaches on their sport programs and both went all out for the game.

FRED PETTIJOHN and JACK GATES of the Tallahassee Democrat were kind enough to grant us space in their paper concerning the Rams . . . Florida State University, besides contributing the stadium for the game, also sent over their pert cheer leaders, BETTY ANN MONROE, JO ANN HUTTS and JOEY BELL.

Next year, FSU will have some of our Fort Benning football players on their roster. BILL CAWLEY, ADAM ZUBATY and LOU CRISPO, ED WIDDER, BILL FUGE have signed athletic contracts with the school.

Now that the Special Troops Rams football season is over and the players are returning to their old outfits, eight Rams are leaving for overseas. FRED DREYFERING is going to EUCOM, VERN FAHRENKRUG, DICK REINHER, BOB WOOD, BILL BLACK, HARRY GIBBONS, JIM COMPTON and KEN MILLER are going to FECOM.

Col. JEFFERSON CRONK and a few members of his staff attended the game . . . Col. CRONK handled the spotters telephone . . . Col. SEVIER TURPER and Col. HARRY GRIZZARD also were in attendance . . .LEW JENKINS and family had a 50-yard line seat.

The football banquet at Pine Lodge last Wednesday night added another feather to the bonnet that Special Services personnel wear . . . It was a success and everyone had a good time . . . Now that Maj. GENE MYERS had been rid of the football headache, another one is coming up for him in the form of basketball.

TIC Boxers Win 6 Bouts From Navy

BY JIM ROSENSTONE

Infantry Center Boxers had an easy time of it last week as they rolled over the Jacksonville Naval Air Station boxing team, taking six of the seven bouts before a capacity crowd at Briant Wells Field House.

The Fort Benning fighters also got a breather in that they fought two minute rounds instead of the usual three-minutes rounds. This was done since the Navy team does not fight three minute rounds.

Leo James, the post's lightweight champion, scored a unanimous decision over Ronny Burnmouth of Indianapolis, Ind.

After a fast opening round, the First SR battler began to find the range. James scored hard lefts to the body and several rights to the head in the second and third rounds.

AAU Champs

Burnworth, who was the San Francisco lightweight AAU champion in 1951, couldn't keep pace with the hard hitting James and tired quickly as the final stanza ended. James has had one win so far this year and has lost by a forfeit for not making weight in a bout.

Bob Cline of Logan, W. Va., the sole winner for the Navy, won a split decision over Gordon Van Loo in the first of two middleweight fights. This was due to Van Loo's apparent over-confidence in thinking that Cline, who has a record of four wins against one defeat, was a easy mark.

The Navy southpaw kept the handsome First SR middleweight off-balance during most of the fight with sharp left-hooks to the head and body. Van Loo scored hard blows to Celine's body during the second round, however, the Jax Navy seaman rallied in the final canto with a flurry of stiff punches to the midsection.

Crowd Watcher

Van Loo's apparent disregard for coach Jerry Perlman's in-between-round advice cost him valuable points. Had he taken Perlman's pearls of wisdom more seriously instead of watching the crowd, he might have been able to solve Cline's fast attack.

Jack King, First SR's up and coming light heavyweight scored an easy TKO over Willie Sims of Orange, N. J. Sims, who looked like he would have been happier somewhere else, couldn't keep out of reach of the stalking Tiger King. With the round drawing to a close, King cornered the Navy bluejacket and turned out the lights with a crushing left to the body and a right cross to the head.

Other Bouts

In the other bouts on the top-notch amateur boxing program, Jesse Flores, 154, 508th, knocked out Frank Carpenter, 156½, Tampa, Fla., in 1:42 of the first round; James Bolins, 165, First SR scored KO over Marty Denkins, 147, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Willie Parker, 149, CTC, TKO'd Bob White, 154, Mt. Holly, N. J., (1); Leon Hall, 162, CTC decisioned Cliff Thompson, 160, Auburn, Me.

In summing up the results, Navy coach Chief Al Meuller said that the Benning boxers were the best he had seen this year.

The boxing board will hold its next meeting Jan. 9 to determine who will fight the following week.

RECEIVE SWEATERS . . . The ASU boxing team took a terrible blow with the recent loss, by discharge, of three of their best fighters, George Allen, second from left, Leander Ray, second from right, and Rudolph Chiles, right. Col. Cortlandt Krams, ASU commanding officer, awarded them with sweaters for their fine records brought to the ASU as its representative in the Fort Benning boxing ring. Allen was the Third Army Bantamweight Champion in 1952. Ray has been featherweight champion for the past two years and Chiles has been a class one middleweight contender.

Auburn Cage Star Ordered To Fort Sill

Tall, slim John R. Weldon, captain of last year's Auburn basketball team, will be shooting howitzers instead of baskets this winter.

Now a Second lieutenant in Battery "C", 196th FA Bn., Weldon expected to add scoring punch to the CCRC hoopsters when he reported here in September.

But the 6-foot 4-inch backboard artist received notice last week to report at The Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla. However, Weldon may be able to play a short time before departing.

Loss of his point making ability—he has a four year Southern Conference average of 10 points per game—may seriously affect the Commander's chances.

While in College Park High School in Atlanta, Weldon averaged 20 points per game, leading the scoring in the North Georgia League in 1947-48. That year he was a member of the All-Great Atlanta quintet.

508th Lacks Height But Tops In Spirit

BY JIM BUCK

A basketball team which has won eight out of ten practice games, but boasts not a single college player on the roster, will represent the 508th Airborne in the 1953 Fort Benning Basketball League.

The Red Devils will open their season on Jan. 11 with an exhibition game against the House of David, the clown princes of basketball.

LARRY IVAN
. . .top rebounder

Coached by Chaplain Jim Bragan, the 508th have only three members of last year's team playing now. They are Gary Mattocks, Larry Ivan and Dale Ems.

Coach Bragan lost a starting forward, when his best rebounder Willie Kemp, broke his arm a few weeks ago in a practice contest. Two of the airborne football team ends, Willis Hames and Ken Branson, are also joining the squad. Hames looks like a possible starter because of his rebounding ability. Branson is the brand of ball player that most coaches love, steady and cool.

Ready To Start

Another football player Morris Corbin who was injured early in the season, is now able to start playing for the Red Devils. He was an All-City player in his last year in Pittsburgh, Pa., high school.

Another former All-City star on the Red Devils team is forward Don Warrenfeltz, who played for Smithsburg, Md. He has been a consistent accurate marksman in the pre-season games thus far.

Probably the outstanding player on last year's team was Larry Ivan, who is capable of great things this season. In early games so far, Ivan has been off in his shooting, but he is expected to improve. Ivan can play either center or forward, and uses his 6'3" frame to take many rebounds around the circle.

Although Bragan's starting lineup is not yet set, Ivan is sure to fit into his plans somewhere. He played well last year, with Speedy Dale Ems and Mattocks, and can be expected to get into the groove and cause trouble to the 508th's opponents.

Just reporting to the Red Devils quintet is Don Lucas, who was a guard on the Fort Bragg, N. C., All-Star team two years ago.

Other players in the 508th team are Lowell Centers, who hails from the basketball center of the USA, Kentucky. Harold Leeds, who was a member of last year's 50th team which won the Elks City title, Bryce Strachan, Dick Ward, Bob Borror, ex-Phillips 66ers guard, Anselmo Clarke and Don Smith.

As Chaplain Bragan commented about this team, "It lacks height, but not spirit. I'd sure like to have a nice big center."

Moon Mullins Off For Eucom Again

BY PAUL HOGAN
Columbus Enquirer Sports Writer

Fort Benning has bid adios to one of its most illustrious sports figures. Sfc. James Mullins, drill instructor, in The Infantry School, left this week for EUCOM on orders that will send him back to the land where he rose to service boxing heights.

The familiar figure with the black bow tie won't be around to referee the amateur boxing bouts in Briant Wells Field House, the job he's done on every card since coming here in August, 1951.

Mullins, known as "Moon" to fight fans at Benning and in Columbus, has fought 365 fights in his 16-year career in the ring, and only five men were able to turn the tables on him. Moon avenged one of those defeats.

Lost Five Bouts

Losing only five bouts is a remarkable record in itself. Sugar Ray Robinson, the recently retired middleweight champion, handed the slender ref one of those defeats.

Another loss went to a present Fort Benning first sergeant, Lou Jenkins. Lou provided Moon with the only real knockdown in his career, but Mullins came back to whip the world's lightweight champion. Willie Pep, the greatest feather of all time also did it. A hard hitting pair named Milo Fontain and Jimmy Clements were the only other fighters even to decision Mullins.

Moon started his fighting career in 1933 in his home town of Decatur, Ala., with a few street fights. He went on to win the State Golden Gloves flyweight championship in 1940 and '41, and the Southern G.L. crown in 1941 and '42. He took the California state title in 1943.

Turns Pro

After winning the California title, Moon went into pro boxing, and fought 165 punch-for-pay bouts all over the United States and Europe. The highlight probably was a six-rounder in New York's St. Nicholas Arena during 1945 where he lost to Sugar Ray.

Just to prove his punching ability, Moon edged Randy Turpin, present middleweight prospective world champion and conqueror of Robinson, in two service bouts, one in 1944 and the other in 1947. He also tangled with Manuel Ortiz, when the latter was the world's champion. During his stay on the continent, Mullins worked with Joe Louis, Billy Conn and Robinson when the trio was on exhibition tours.

In 1942, Moon found Miss Betty Irene Adaway in Winchester, England, and later married her. They now have four children, three boys and a girl.

Army Champ

Possibly his outstanding boxing feat was taking the Third Armored Division lightweight crown, and battling through the tournaments to gain the First Infantry, Fifth Corps, First Army, and ETO titles, which he held in 1946 and '47, before winning the same title in the featherweight division in 1948.

During his stay at Benning, Mullins was always among the fighters and helping the novices. Moon rates handsome Ray Lee as the best fighter he saw here. However, he thinks Lee James of First SR is the top amateur on the post at the present. Lee is going strong as a pro.

There are many fans around this part of the country that will never forget the slender figure whipping around the ring breaking up the clinches and seeing that each fighter gets the same breaks in the ring.

"I hope it's not good bye," he said in a longing tone, "just so long . . ."

els, Harmony Church area chapels and Lawson Air Force Base Chapel.

The Main Post is all dressed up and ready to welcome Santa Claus tonight.

Santa has his sled full of toys on the lawn in front of Army Field Forces Board No. 3, and the Nativity reminds visitors to the U. S. Army Hospital and the Sand Hill Chapel that the Yuletide season is here.

Family quarters also are glowing with Christmas decorations and candles are burning in the windows on the Main Chapel.

The Infantry Center Special Services Section is sponsoring a contest to stimulate exterior Christmas decorating of quarters on the Main Post, and six large turkeys will be awarded winners.

Prizes will be awarded first and second place winners in entrance displays, yard displays and window displays.

One of the most eye-catching displays here is in front of the U.S. Army Hospital, where a church steeple has been erected on the front of the main hospital building, creating the effect of a chapel. A boy's choir is shown outside the church singing Christmas carols.

The display was built by Pfc. Irving R. Rabinwitz, a surgical technician, and the choir boys are moving characters operated by an electric motor. A hidden loud speaker is the source of their music.

A Nativity scene depicting the birth of Christ also has been erected on the front lawn of the hospital.

Another nativity scene has been erected in front of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team's chapel in Sand Hill. Built by members of the 508th's 320th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, the display required about a month to complete. The scene includes wooden figures, sheep, camels, manger and stable.

that the idea to have the orphans for Christmas dinner was more or less a spontaneous thing. "We did the same thing last year," he said, "and all the men who were here really enjoyed it. Matter of fact, I think some of the men had more fun than the kids, so we thought it would be a good idea to have a repeat performance this year."

He said the entire battalion was hard at work decorating the area for Christmas, and that dinner would be served in the battalion's consolidated mess hall, under the direction of Lts. Raymond R. McEachin and James V. Pogue, who are also in charge of getting the gifts.

Dimes Drive Kick-off Set

Col. Serff Announces Plans For '53 Fund Raising Program

All major units here are being contacted this week for participation in the 1953 March of Dimes campaign which begins Friday and runs through Jan. 31.

This year's drive will be headed by Col. Paul C. Serff, executive officer of the Area Service Unit, Provisional Group.

Colonel Serff stated that the drive, which is conducted for the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis, will be placed on a voluntary basis this year and that no actual monetary goal has been established.

$12,000 Last Year

"Last year Fort Benning contributed over $12,000 to the March of Dimes campaign," explained Col. Serff, "however, during the last year there has been a great reduction in the number of military personnel now stationed here. In all probability our final total may not reach last year's figure," he pointed out.

Literature, posters and contribution boxes will be distributed to project officers of the major units at the post. Contribution containers will also be placed in the various service clubs, NCO and officers messes, post exchanges and theaters at The Infantry Center.

"Since the establishment of the National Foundation some $19,000,000 has been invested in scientific research programs aimed at the eventual conquest of the disease," explained Colonel Serff.

"I hope that everyone at Fort Benning will avail themselves of the opportunity to help this worthy cause by contributing to the 1953 March of Dimes campaign," said the colonel.

Warm Springs Treatment

Colonel Serff pointed out that personnel at Fort Benning have a special interest in the campaign since there are a number of people from Fort Benning who are receiving treatment at Warm Springs, Ga.

Peanut Bowl Forces Set For Clash

Eddie Mason, coach of the West Springfield, Mass., Terriers, wasted little time after his arrival in Columbus in getting down to hard work for the seventh annual Peanut Bowl clash with Valdosta tomorrow in Memorial Stadium.

The Massachusetts mentor and his squad have been working out in pads at Fort Benning with short drills in the morning and long, hard scrimmages in the afternoon.

Early reports indicate that co-captain and quarterback Leo (Porky) Plumb looked real sharp during the workouts, hitting his receivers accurately on the majority of his heaves. Halfback Al Klein was also a standout making several long runs and latching onto a number of Plumb's long passes, along with ends Newt Blanchard and Jerry Morrissey.

Good Lineplay

The lineplay also looked good during the drill sessions. Coach Mason and his assistants have been working the squad on a two-drill-a-day basis.

Halfback Ernie LaBranche, a starter, is limping and the West Springfield coach said that it was very doubtful if he would see any action tomorrow. At present time, it looks like Joe Harrington will get the starting nod at the left half slot.

Valdosta High's Wildcats arrived here this afternoon and not a sin-

Sergeants Sweep Decoration Contest

Master sergeants swept the first annual Christmas decoration contest held here, taking first place in each of the three categories, followed closely by lieutenant colonels who took second place.

The three first place winners were M-Sgt. F. W. Pelren, 300 Vogel Street, yard display; M-Sgt. H. C. Foy, 518 Harris Circle, window display, and M-Sgt. H. J. Maus, 952 Kilgore Street, entrance display.

Second place winners were Lt. Col. E. Cook, 100 Miller Loop, yard display; Lt. Col. G. W. Homann, 302 Miller Loop, window display, and Lt. Col. Daniel B. Porter, 109 Miller Loop, entrance display.

The three first place winners were presented 20 - pound turkeys, while the lieutenant colonels got 15-pound birds.

Judges reported that the selections were made on the basis of initiative, aptitude and skill displayed in making the displays. The winning yard display depicted a snow man and snow woman presumably doing a square dance.

Judging began about 6:30 p.m. Dec. 23, and the prizes were awarded about 10 p.m. Among the judges were Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Grimes, Capt. Bill W. Robey, Capt. Margaret C. Lloyd, Capt. Bud L. Jones, Lt. A. M. Fiala, Sgt. E. B. Ferguson and Sgt. Margaret L. Ferrell.

"In past years," Colonel Grimes said, "little or no attention was paid to injecting the holiday spirit into the post since many of the people here go home for Christmas. However, there is always a large group of people quartered on the Main Post who remain here over the holidays."

'Holiday Air'

"We feel that this contest encouraged personnel to decorate their windows, entrances and yards with a resulting holiday air about the post."

People We Hate

This is Mortimer M. Pettit. You can see that he is a civilian because of his civilian hat, an enlisted man because he has sergeant's stripes, and an officer because he is wearing boots.

Look at his repulsive face and note the filthy, low, evil-minded expression. You can easily see that courtesy — consideration for others is a quality of exceptional courage to him.

"Hah, courtesy!" he says, "that's for sissies."

When Mortimer climbs into that driver's seat, he's full on wheels. You see, he's a killer-driver. His killing instinct is both unbridled and bestialistic, for he should driving not only endangers himself but every other driver on the road.

He's the guy who is always in a hurry about a quarter to eight each morning. Much to his disgust, he finds that traffic on the two arteries leading into the Post — Lagardo and Benning Roads — are filled with slow-moving cars, rolling almost bumper to bumper.

But this is no problem for Mortimer. His peanut brain immediately shoot up the revelation.

"Ah," he says, "there's a nice open lane for me left over across the left here, while hundreds of other cars there are sickeningly restricted with patiently in line.

"Then — yes, you've guessed it — he swings an encroaching car from the other direction lightheartedly using that lane on which Mortimer is riding. This is still no problem for Mortimer's undaunted personality. All he has to do is to body his way into the line. And there is always room somewhere who is gracious enough to give way to Mortimer.

As he slips into the line a dozen or perhaps twenty-five cars ahead of his right-of-way, Mortimer chortles, "Dear sir-wise."

Editor's Note: This article and cartoon was submitted by Major Julius Ellzey, who has we think succeeded in drawing a graphic picture of a guy let all know. You can see him at all times of the day, but he's most frequently observed from 7:30 to 8 a.m. and 5 to 5:30 p.m. Mortimer would not possibly be a person of your social set.

Store The Christmas Spirit For Future Use

BY CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) T. M. M. MANSELL

Many people are confused to account their lives up what we might call the spirit of the season. Many can answer the request of the shopkeepers of the Christmas season. It seems to be to take every bit we borrow. We racket it with every step we take. The more extol the sound of audio proportions. Our eyes shroud down with delight as we observe the beautiful decorations inside of stores and homes. They appeal and shout to the imagination of children and until adults as well. Even still equalities the fact that this is the greatest of all the seasons of the year.

It is possible for us to recapture the blessings of this season so that they may be used later, even at a time of greatest need. Even as stated up in the stands in which it is purchased to be consumed later, even in areas where it is not produced. We all benefit from the presence of canning and preserving food and vegetables. In fact, such sections of our country is blessed by the family circle. For many weeks parents have been concerned about the things they hope to provide for the children at Christmas. We recognize that under the impulse of the great driving desire they go often beyond their means to get some favorable gift, something for which the child had expressed a predilection.

They do a lot of hustle to buy some things which they would not standing at other times. They are caught in the veritable whirl of emotion. They are even willing to do without themselves in order to provide the thrill, excitement and joy that goes with the Christmas season. Of course that is as it might be, it would not be Christmas if there were not the great outpouring of love. It perhaps finds the greatest expression in the midst of the family circles, among our loved ones. But, actually, it sometimes to a much wider circle. It includes friends, neighbors, business associates and servants.

There has been an increasing trend in recent years to provide for the great host of the poor and unfortunate people at Christmas time. Extensive search is made to locate those people who are in need of assistance, whether they be children or adults. This effort is expressed through what is sometimes called the "Empty Stocking Fund." The money is raised in some cities by the sale of envelopes which are carried in every section of the city by men, who receive in most cases many times the actual value of the paper because the donors know that the money is going to provide added joy to the hearts of needy persons.

Sometimes gifts are solicited in the name of an "Opportunity Fund", which is designed not only to provide food and clothing for Christmas, but to assist families where there had been illness or even the death of the main provider of the family. I have known of many cases where people gave with exceeding generosity to help re-establish a family. Surely this is worthy of the attention and support of all.

But while we live in the excitement, happiness and joy of these days, which in many minds parallel with the calendar, would it not be wonderful if we could preserve something of this spirit? What a difference it would make if we could catch and "hold" this spirit of love, of giving, even to the point of real sacrifice, and carry it over into the New Year. If food is good in one season which is produced in another, why not conserve this wonderful spirit, which we call the "spirit of Christmas" and let it benefit and bless our lives through the months ahead. We have seen many things catch the eye of the American people only to experience a short existence.

Perhaps it is well that some of these things passed with the "season" in which they were born. But the "spirit of Christmas" is not a theory. It is an actuality. It exists and continues because it is based on a Person who lived and loved, who lives today in the hearts of millions of people. His great sacrifice is the basis for everything that is great in life today. Because people love Him, they are led to love others, even to give sacrificially.

Communist Losses In Korea Number 150,000

Eighth Army headquarters announced that Communist forces in Korea suffered 150,000 casualties during 1951 although there was little change in battle lines.

In the announcement the headquarters said that actions were on a small scale compared to those of the battles of World War II but that "enemy is prepared to devote troops to such an old warfare pastime in Korea."

Post Turns Into Giant Movie Set During 1952

BY CATHERINE MERRILL

The Fort Benning reservation was turned into a giant movie set during 1952 to produce several short features, training films, news reels and television shows and an hour-long documentary.

Highlight of movie-making here centered around the appearance of Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., who visited the post Dec. 5 for the shooting of a Department of the Army film, "Report to the Army." Secretary Pace was photographed addressing an Infantry officer candidate class graduation.

Hour-Long Documentary

"Report to the Army", an hour-long technicolor or documentary film depicting U. S. Army activities all over the world, is being filmed by 20th Century Fox. Many Fort Benning personnel and their dependents will appear in the film which primarily features officer candidate training.

"The Big Picture", which was filmed here during September and October for showing on a nation-wide television hook-up, also dealt primarily with officer candidate training at The Infantry School. The filming was done by a camera crew from the Signal Corps Photographic Center at Long Island, New York.

A screenplay written by 1st Lt. Boyd T. Bashore, former member of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team who is now stationed in Germany, became a short subject entitled "I Am a Paratrooper." It was filmed in April here and is being produced by RKO-Pathe. The Infantry School's Airborne Department and the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team are the units featured, and Fort Benning airborne soldiers were cast in the leading roles.

Hollywood Newsreels

Infantry School activities as a whole also have been filmed during the year for use in newsreels by Hollywood film companies. Among scenes recorded were instructions and demonstrations given Republic of Korea, British, Canadian and other Allied army officers at The Infantry School and Fort Benning's 506th Transportation Company (Helicopter) receiving its first group of helicopters, including a demonstration showing how a tank picks up wounded men on the battlefield.

The Visual Aids Group of The Infantry School's Training Publications Department, in connection with the Signal Corps Photographic Center and other units, filmed and produced movies of practically every phase of Infantry training at Fort Benning, including "The Regimental Tank Company in Attack," "The Rifle Platoon in Attack of Built Up Areas," "Troop Movement by Motor" and "The Reinforced Rifle Battalion in Defense."

Film Review

CYRANO DE BERGERAC . . . Family, drama, with Jose Ferrer and Mala Powers. Cyrano is a rebellous, free thinking French man of the 17th Century who is constantly called upon to use his skill as a swordsman and biting sarcasm to defend himself from the jokes of those who would make fun of his enormous nose.

THE STOOGE. . .Family, comedy, with Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis. Once again the Martin and Lewis combination hits the screen. This time the story possesses inherent dramatic values that provides an opportunity for Lewis to prove himself more than just another comedian. He offers a performance varying from straight slapstick to the touch of pathos which makes for great comedy.

MY COUSIN RACHEL. . .Mature, drama with Olivia de Havilland and Richard Burton. Was she guilty of murder or was she the victim of circumstances that made it seem so? Such was the problem that had to be faced by a young man when his uncle died while being cared for by Rachel.

STORY OF THREE LOVES. . . Mature, drama, with Leslie Caron, Pier Angeli, Farley Granger, Kirk Douglas, and James Mason. This consists of three short stores—"Equilibrium, Mademoiselle and The Jealous Lover."

STOP, YOU'RE KILLING ME . . .Family, comedy, with Broderick Crawford and Claire Trevor. That familiar Damon Runyan gift of lampoon is in full force in this tale of a bootleg liquor baron who is beset by countless troubles when he attempts to go straight after repeal of prohibition ruins his empire.

TARGET — HONG KONG. . . Family, melodrama, with Richard Denning and Nancy Gates. Plots and counter-plots provide adventure for an underground group in Hong Kong working to defeat Communist attempts to seize the city.

THE BAD AND THE BEAUTIFUL. . . .Kirk Douglas, Dick Powell, Lana Turner, Walter Pidgeon. In this story of a Hollywood genius-heel who both builds and ruins his associates, the movie industry emphasizes once more that in its lore, its glamor and heartbreak it has a treasury of material for good screen stories. Mature. Drama.

TROPIC ZONE. . .Ronald Reagan, Rhonda Fleming. Ronald Reagan is hired by a crooked exporter to destroy the banana shipments of independent growers. Reagan complicates matters by falling in love with Rhonda Fleming. Family. Adventure drama.

OUTPOST IN MALAYA. . . . Claudette Colbert, Jack Hawkins. A rubber plantation in present-day bandit-ridden Malaya serves as background for this adventure that reaches a climax in a battle between the plantation defenders and the bandits. Family. Adventure drama.

ANGEL FACE . . . Robert Mitchum, Jean Simmons, Mona Freeman, Herbert Marshall. A neurotic young woman who loves her father and loathes her stepmother brings tragedy to all as she goes about the grim business of plotting her stepmother's death. Mature. Drama.

GLORY AT SEA. . .Trevor Howard, Sonny Tufts. After a drab life of escort duty an old destroyer finally goes out in a blaze of glory when it is selected to raid and destroy an important dock used by German warships. Family. War.

HIAWATHA. . . .Vincent Edwards, Yvette Dugay. When hotheaded warriors seeking fame in battle attempt to start a war with rival tribes, Hiawatha has the difficult task of averting the fight and establishing peaceful relations between the tribes. Family. Western.

OC Took Mormon Faith To Argentine People

BY OC JAMES J. RILEY

Candidate George S. Knowlden, third OC Company, spent thirty months prior to his induction into the Army in Argentina as a missionary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

The 23-year-old candidate was born and raised in the Mormon capital of Salt Lake City, Utah. Knowlden received elder status in the church at the age of 19. At 20 he interrupted his engineering studies at the University of Utah to embark on his mission, the goal of all male members of the Mormon Church.

Extensive System

The church has a unique missionary system incorporating some 5,000 full time and 3,000 part time missionaries in almost every country in the world, he says. Each is a self-supported representative who has proved his ability as a teacher of Mormon doctrine.

In April 1949, after a week-long orientation, he left for New York where he boarded a ship for South America. He stopped briefly in Brazil and Uruguay, arriving in Argentina May 11.

"I reported to the Mormon Mission Home and was assigned to the district of Caseros as the junior member of the junior senior companion team," he recalls. As junior companion he spent three months tracting in Caseros. He explains that tracting consists of making door to door contacts, holding cottage meetings, distributing pamphlets, showing films, and presenting lectures.

From Caseros, where he developed his knowledge of the Spanish language, Candidate Knowlden went to the city of Tandil as a senior companion. He became senior companion after four months among the city's 45,000 people. His success in Tandil baptising converts . . .

Headed First Mission

"I then headed the first Mormon Mission in Villa Mercedes, 120 miles west of Buenos Aires," he says. After establishing the mission and completed my missionary work in Nov. 1951.

On his journey home, Candidate Knowlden visited Iguazu Falls, an ancient village which still adheres, to tradition and is near the Inca Ruins by Lake Titicaca. His visit included the sumptuous Inca palace but "after I introduced them to the American dollar and explained the reason for my visit to Guatemala I was treated royally." He explored the Aztec ruins in Mexico City before returning to the United States.

Candidate Knowlden intends to return to South America after completing his tour of duty and studying civil engineering at the University of Mexico.

He compares Argentina to the United States during its "initial stage of development. "It is a rich frontier, wanting only the talents of industrious young people to make it one of the leading countries of the world," he says.

West Springfield Set For Peanut Bowl Clash

gle word concerning their workouts and drill sessions have reached here. As soon as the squad is settled, Coach Wright Bazemore will probably run the players through a short drill to remove the kinks.

Benning Host

Fort Benning has scheduled a full entertainment program for the two Peanut Bowl football teams who are quartered at The Infantry Center. The out-of-state opponent, West Springfield, arrived here at Benning last Saturday and were welcomed by post officials.

Both squads were quartered in the First Student Regiment's First Battalion, commanded by Major James Norwood, who is assisting the project officer, Lt. Col. Kenneth Grimes, Fort Benning Special Services Officer.

An Infantry Center chaplain has set up a schedule of religious services for the players. A tour of the post, plus a Tuesday night dance at Brat Barracks, Fort Benning's teen-age club, highlighted their stay.

Athletic equipment was made available to both teams, who worked out in Doughboy Stadium prior to tomorrow's clash on Memorial Stadium's turf.

High in Praises

Mason, who has been coaching in the Bay State for some time, is quite high in his praises of Plumb. He naturally won't talk about just what he really thinks about the West Springfield quarterback, but a gleam comes to his eyes when thinking about them.

Plumb has impressed all in practice. He certainly is a sweet football player. Plumb handles the Split-T offense like a dream. "He was born for the split-T," Mason points out. "I don't think he could handle the regular T-formation as well, but when it comes to ball handling, faking and handing off, there's none better.

The line has looked good with co-captain Art Pernice, Ed Murdzia and Blanchard flashing mid-season form.

The Terriers have been fortunate. Only two storms, which barely scattered enough flakes to matter, have hit Massachusetts so far this year. Mason has been able to keep his squad outside the whole season without encountering any weather problems.

Halfback LaBranche, a solid sophomore with a great football future, sums up the whole practice program very well with this comment—"Ed's a great guy. But we do have to work hard for him. I guess that's the only way though. It takes hard work to get any place. That's what he tells us. I guess there is no coach whom players could like more than we like that guy."

CTC Footballer, Alvin Kennedy Gets Discharged Soon

Cpl. Alvin (Buster) Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kennedy of Columbus, Ga., has completed another successful football season as a defensive halfback for the Combat Training Command football team.

Before entering service, Kennedy played two years of football for Baker High School. After graduation he played for th South in the All-Star High School, North-South game.

Kennedy was a member of the Middle Georgia College before being called into the Army in 1950.

REPORT YOUR KILL

It is unlawful to kill a turkey on the Fort Benning reservation and not report it to the Fish and Game office.

Outstanding Prep Backs In Peanut Bowl

Two of the most outstanding high school backs in the country will meet head on in the Peanut Bowl to be played in Columbus' Memorial Stadium on New Year' Day.

Noel George, Valdosta, Ga., fullback, who was selected as Back of the Year in Georgia, will have a worthy opponent in Les (Porky) Plumb, quarterback for the West Springfield, Mass., team and unanimous choice for the All-Western Massachusetts team. George was unanimous choice for the all-Georgia Class A football squad.

Both George and Plumb are triple - threat men. As George and Plumb go, so goes their teams.

George, who is a senior, stands five feet nine inches and weighs 175 pounds, while Plumb also a senior, is five feet eleven inches and weighs 165 pounds.

Some of the Valdosta players who will be giving George a big helping hand in the Peanut Bowl include All - Star quarterback Sammy Hardin, a five feet eleven inch, 180 pound senior; Jimmy Walker five feet eleven inch, 160 pound All-State end; Jimmy Warren, six feet three inch, 215 pound All-State tackle; and Herman Parramore, five feet eleven inch, 180 pound All-State center.

Plumb will be getting plenty of help in the Peanut Bowl from 210-pound halfback Al Klein, All-Western Massachusetts guard and co-captain of the Massachusetts team, Art Pernice, and versatile Ken Mattoon, Springfield's left end.

THE AFTERMATH . . . This is one of the best football pictures taken this year by cameraman Derwent Bailey, who accompanied ISD-ASU Green Wave to Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., on Thanksgiving Day. A fight between the Greenies and Shaw players has just been broken up and everyone is milling around except lone spectator who wonders what happens. Shaw, incidentally, beat the Wave, 7-6.

GETS AWARD . . . Lt. Thomas E. Lytle, right, coach of the Airborne Battalion's touch football team, receives regimental trophy on behalf of the grid team from Col. Jefferson R. Cronk, executive officer of the First Student Regiment. The award was well deserved for the paratroopers won every game, ten in all, that they played. After the ceremony, the Airborne Battalion took on the 1st Battalion in an exhibition touch football game and beat them, 19-13.

SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS

by Lester Dinoff

(2nd Lt. James Buck, Athletic and Recreation-Public Information Officer for the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, is an ex-Indianapolis newspaperman who has been swamping my desk with loads of copy concerning his unit. This column is one of his contributions.)

An A & R program for a TO & E outfit is a bewildering job which is only complicated by The Infantry Center commitments, parachute jumps, and first sergeants. The 508th Abn. RCT is very lucky to have in Col. George O. Pearson, Commanding Officer, a man who backs athletics in every form. The colonel is a strapping hulk of a man who, just by size and bearing, commands the respect of all who meet him. Col. Pearson's prime interest is in winning and that just goes double for his dynamic Executive Officer, Lt. Col. Herbert V. Mansfield.

We have a lot of good athletes in the 508th, but mostly we have relatively small men. An airborne unit doesn't attract too many large or tall men. Right now, Capt. Jim Bragan, basketball coach of the Red Devils team, is really "hurting" for a tall man for the cage quintet. Having played a number of games, Bragan can see that "just one tall man" would give the 508 a winner. Big linemen like Willard Buza and Bobby Miles of our football team are pretty much of a rare thing.

One of the jobs of the A & R program in any unit is to give men a chance to play, whether they have ever had their hands on the ball before or not. We've very proud of one good example of this. Halfback Dale Ems, of the 508th football eleven, has never played a game before he came to this airborne outfit. In two games this year, he scored on runs of over ninety yards, as well as scoring a total of seven touchdowns this year. Men like Ems have attracted the attention of college coaches while playing for Army teams. They might get the chance to go to college that they never before would have had.

Even with the wonderful support that our athletic program gets from headquarters, that is not enough. You really have to have the interest of unit commanders and non-commissioned officers, before the successful schedule can be carried out. Train- our unit. Sometimes even the best scheduling runs into difficing commitments are very exacting in the requests for men from ulties with troops in the field.

In the RCT table tennis tournament, the officer in charge had to get two men out of the movies, one from a BOQ, one from his barracks, settle a heated dispute and furnish transportation for all five teams. These are just some of the difficulties. When the tourney was over, and the winner named, he was scheduled to receive his trophy at a RCT review. His first sergeant inadvertantly put him on KP that day.

Our football coaching staff has really been depleted, since the end of the season. Head coach Jim Phillips is going to FECOM. Line coach Dick Thomas is off to Greece. End coach Don LaBlanc, formerly A & R officer of the First Officer Candidate Regiment, is now a company commander. So there is little doubt that the reins of the team for the next grid campaign will be in different hands.

In the airborne, we can always hope to have no one injured jumping. But sometimes it happens. So, usually men who are on athletic teams try to miss injuries by jumping "Hollywood" style. That is, that they jump with a steel helmet and dog tags, so that there is no chance of being hurt by some piece of falling equipment or falling on some part of his gear. In that way only do we try to help our special duty people on the jumping angle. Most of our athletes jump at least once a month, just like any other paratrooper.

Unlike some post outfits, officers play a large part in our athletic program. On our football team we had two playing officers, Charlie Beckwith and Bob Gonia. The latter, a licensed minister, said a prayer for the team just before it took the field prior to each game. Beckwith, a big, rough grid star from the University of Georgia, was a great moral factor for our football team. We feel, however, that there is no rank in athletics. Everyone is just "one of the boys" during practice and playing hours.

Another part of the sports program is our Fort Benning hunting season, for which the A & R office furnishes shotguns and sometimes shells. We have twelve shotguns to be loaned out for a 72-hour period for hunting game in season. Some of the hunters have had remarkable luck, especially hunting turkeys. One Jeep driver almost hit three while out in the "boondocks." He reported in to draw shotguns and the next day he had himself a turkey. That's a real "minute man taking advantage of his opportunities."

At this writing, we had several bowling teams at the top of the league, with the Third Battalion team, under captain M-Sgt. Frank Grycsho, nearly at the top in the standings. This presents quite a few problems, as this unit with a training mission spends much of its time in the woods. It is sometimes hard to get the men back to "civilization" to participate in athletic events.

The boxing program in the 508th is coming along very

(See SPOTLIGHTING SPORTS, Page 16)

Practice Sessions Decide ASU Basketball Outlook

The ASU Provisional Group basketball team seems to be rounding into fine shape for the daily afternoon practice sessions are beginning to tell the tale.

Thus far, eliminations have not been made, but from the looks of things, Coach Fleagler will have a tough time deciding who fill make the squad.

About 18 men have been to practice regularly and the number is expected to increase with the close of the football season. Players who are expected to see a lot of action this season are Don Brown, a southpaw with a noticeable left hook shot, Jim Henriotte, acting assistant coach who seems to be all over the court at the same time, Leslie Kemp, another guy who is deadly when near the basket.

Some of the other players who are working out are Evans, Jones, Dennis Ensminger, Bob Harper, Gilbert, and Howard Harvell.

The team has had a few difficulties in fitting their playing with their duty hours, but things are now shaping up fine and they are showing good potentialities. They will be ready to roll by their first game around Jan. 12.

Fleagler has been working the squad at the Old Gym every afternoon with hot scrimmages among the players. So far the cagers have been using a man-to-man defense and a zone defense.

One of the most, or biggest worry that the coach has is the control of the backboards. For Fleagler very well knows that a big man can control the rebounds. And, from the squad that was working out last Thursday afternoon, ASU hasn't got a big man.

The tall men, it seems, have ended up in the First OC Regiment and in the First Student Regiment. The Generals, according to the pre-season book, are due to repeat last year's sweep.

13th OC Takes Grid Crown By 7 To 0 Victory

Combining devastating blocking and a powerful passing game, 13th O-C Company blasted to a quarter and fought 28th O-C Company up and down Stroup Field to win the First Officer Candidate Regiment's touch football championship, 7-0.

13th's gridders moved almost at will in the first quarter, gaining five first downs and threatening to score three times before starting the drive which won the game.

A march to 28th's four yard line was halted by an intercepted pass. 28th punted to its 38 yard line from where O-C Joseph Erwin passed his team to the championship. A pass to O-C Homer Broome netted a first down on the 27. After two incomplete passes, Erwin tossed to O-C Amos Jones in the end zone. Broome's pass to O-C Vito Piscuskas was good for the PAT.

The teams battled on even terms for the rest of the game. 13th, with 159 net yards passing and 41 net yards rushing, piled up 10 first downs. 28th compiled six first downs on 59 net yards passing and 39 net yards rushing.

The game was marked by devastating blocking. Time and again at least three defenders were flattened by interference runners.

28th threatened to score only twice, losing possession within the 20 yard line each time. The losers were hindered by dropped passes, many of which could have been worth six points.

HOOP WINNERS . . . Company "F" of the 508th Airborne has won the Second Battalion Championship, being undefeated in doing so. Football's Gone Memories Stay

BY PRESTON T. HARRIS

So another football season is over and we all are sure that there were a lot of people sorry to see it go.

We all know the stars in the Fort Benning Football League and the members of the 1952 All-Post eleven, but lets look at some of the player who did not get into the limelight.

On the ASU-ISD Green Wave football team there were quite a few good players and a number of fans who saw the Greenies hold that line against the Rams in the finale of the season will say that the Wave has a top defense.

Good Players

There were a number of good ball players out there that day. Andy Holland, Buster Crowley, Ed Widder, who won a scholarship to Florida State University, Dave Clark, Clyde Ahlborn, Neal McNeil, Red Dunlap, Buck Adams, Mel Gelpert, Ken Harris, Ed Metzki, Bugner, Charlie Leonard, Harry Mantzouranis, Bob Hunt, Charlie Parker, Dennis Ensminger, Lou Tyndall, Frank DePaolo, Otis Rasseur, Charlie Helling, Hank DeKlerk, Ray Dunlap, Calvin Gray, and Fred Felbaum and Ed Hansen who made the All-Post team.

Now we should say something about the players that were with team the Big Green during season, and just how the team would have finished with all of them intact is hard to say. Here is a list of the players who left through discharge, transfers or through injury: Wayne McElroy, Bob Boch, Jack Hendrix, Bob Wilson, Bob Milgrim, Hal Long, Ray Starns, Bob Johnson, Marion Teclaw, Larry Golus, Don Harper, Ford Setdes, Nehimiah Lewis, Walt Teporek, Norm Ruf, John Oden, Adam Travens and "Daddy" Hughes.

Hal Nally, who went out for the team as player, ended up as manager after a back injury and really turned out a swell job for ISD-ASU.

Last but not least was Coach Jack Faubion who was liked by everyone and instilled a fighting spirit and a will to win in all his players and friends.

MIGHTY MITE . . . You don't have to be big to handle the ball like a man, but ten-year-old Jack McCaskill, forward on the ASU Biddy basketball team demonstrates the skill that these mighty midgets have developed on the courts of the Old Gym.

Dodgers To Hold Clinic For Amateur Coaches

BROOKLYN — The Brooklyn Dodgers announced today a baseball clinic for little league and amateur coaches at Vero Beach, Fla., from March 9 through March 20.

Fresco Thompson, Dodger vice-president, will supervise the clinic, working in close cooperation with the Brooklyn Amateur Baseball Federation.

Medics Beat ASU, 69-49 In Basketball Contest

In a game played last Wednesday, PMG's Medics outscored the ASU Raiders, 69-49, in a practice basketball game at Briant Wells Field House.

High scorers for the Medics were Marshall and McMullen, with 11 points apiece, while Zeigler and Welsing countered with eight points apiece for the Raiders.

Class Two Bowlers Burn Up Officer Loop

Advance Class Two Keglers are really burning up the alleys. As mid-season approaches Advance Two "A" is in second place in the second section and the Advance Two "Stoppers" are in first place in the fourth section of the Officers Bowling League. Captain James C. Olson pilots Advance Two "A" and Major Richard E. Heeke pilots the "Stoppers".

Badgers, Trojans Hampered By Rain

PASADENA, Calif. — The Rose Bowl football teams, Wisconsin and Southern California, hoped for a respite today from rain which put a curb on their weekend drills.

Coach Ivy Williamson of the co-champion Badgers from the Big Ten scheduled a Sabbath workout to fill in for sessions which were rained out yesterday.

The champion Trojans from the Pacific Coast Conference got a day, too, but Coach Jess Hill called off any plans for practice today.

Tomorrow, barring unusually bad weather, both squads will return to work. The Trojans will scrimmage for the seventh straight day. Capt. George O'Brien and his Badger teammates will see heavy duty contact but not a team scrimmage.

WARMING THE BENCH

By Armed Forces Press Service

Today's low scores in golf, according to all-time golf great Gene Sarazen, have resulted from the efforts of two consistently outstanding pros and better equipment. Steel-shafted clubs, a rabbit golf ball and improved turf cultures have bettered conditions for distance hitting and approach shots.

But the major influence has been provided by Byron Nelson and Craig Wood in bringing the "one-piece" swing to such prominence. Gene thinks the advance in hitting technique of the past three generations reached its zeneth with these two innovators.

Wrist Action

When Sarazen was winning the major Professional Golf Association tournaments in the Twenties, the "Carnoustie style" swing was popular. It emphasized breaking the wrists as the swing came into the ball. Only Bobby Locke of South Africa among today's top performers still uses it. Nelson was the first to defy the oldtimers by refusing to cock his wrists at the top of his backswing. It helped him compile the most remarkable tournament records in golf history. In one year he won 199 P.G.A. tourneys, 12 in succession. After winning the U. S. Open in 1941 Wood felt that the one-piece swing solved his choking problem. He contends a closed-face swing keeps the club face to the ball throughout the entire swing and eliminates rolling the wrists.

Young Burke

Outstanding proponent of the one-piece swing today is Jackie Burke, leading money player last winter and winner of four straight meets in 1952. Sarazen, the only golfer other than Bobby Jones to capture the U. S. Open twice, has dropped his old style of play to take up the one-piece. He's still playing fine golf 30 years after his first major tinkerers Nelson and Wood.

the Canadian Infantry Training Camp at Valcartier, Quebec. The Infantry officials of the three countries also held a three-day conference to review Infantry developments at Quebec.

The six-week summer ROTC encampment highlighted summer activities at Fort Benning. Over 2,500 ROTC cadets representing 67 colleges and universities gathered at The Infantry Center for advanced instruction in Infantry tactics and demonstrations.

Four JCOCs Held

Four Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences visited The Infantry Center during 1952 for the Army phase of the program designed to acquaint leading civilian and military leaders with the operations of the Armed Forces.

The 1952 Armed Forces Preaching Mission was held here in January and General Mark Clark, then Chief of Army Field Forces, inspected Infantry Center activities the same month. General Young assumed command of The Infantry Center in June, two classes of Republic of Korea Army Officers received advanced Infantry training at The Infantry School during the year, and a new telephone system was put into operation on Dec. 5.

In the sports field, Fort Benning played host to the Third Army Track Meet in May and to the Third Army Softball Tourney in September. The Fort Benning Football League Champions Student Brigade-Medics were selected to play in the Christmas Bowl game at Tallahasse, Fla. and lost to the Paris Island Marines Team.

Lawson Gets General

Brig. Gen. Lacey V. Murrow assumed command of Lawson Air Force Base in February. This marked the first time that the air force base at Fort Benning had been commanded by a general officer.

Some 3,200 paratroopers of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team joined aggressor forces during Exercise Longhorn in April at Fort Hood, Tex.

At least 4,000 Fort Benning soldiers and hundreds of pieces of equipment journeyed to Southern cities to take part in Armed Forces Day celebrations on May 17. The University of Georgia off campus center was opened at Fort Benning in June, and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U.S. Army Chief of Staff, visited Fort Benning July 31 to give the closing address to ROTC cadets attending the summer camp. Secretary of the Army Frank Pace Jr., visited the Infantry Center Dec. 5 to participate in the filming of a Department of the Army movie featuring Infantry Officer Candidate School.

Another movie feature was made on OCS training at Fort Benning in October, when cameramen from the Army's Signal Corps Photographic Center filmed a 30-minute television show on training of an Infantry second lieutenant.

Blood Center Birthday

The Fort Benning Blood Donor Center celebrated its first birthday the last week of September by collecting its 15,894th pint of blood.

Three charity drives here during 1952 netted over $90,000. Included were the Red Cross Drive, which collected $35,666.41, the March of Dimes, $12,448.90 and the Community Chest, which got $40,982.68.

The 506th Transportation Company (Helicopter) was assigned to Fort Benning in November as one of three such helicopter companies in the U. S. Army. The new unit will train helicopter pilots and support Infantry School problems and demonstrations.

New Hostess Gets Service Club 3 Post

Miss Louvada Armstrong of Morgantown, W. Va., is the new program director at Service Club No. 3.

Miss Armstrong, who began working with Army Special Services units in 1950, came to Fort Benning from Frankfort, Germany, where she was assistant club director.

She served at the Garmisch Military Post, Garmisch, Germany, from January, 1950 until June, 1951.

The new program director said that facilities in service clubs overseas were "generally on a par with those here. We found that our weekly floor show and dance and our Sunday morning coffee hour were the best received."

Miss Armstrong graduated from the University of West Virginia in 1947. She taught girls physical education in the Hurlock, Md., High School, until joining the Army's Special Services Branch in 1950.
