Organization will also have to face the LOGTAIL—test. Here the checklist poses such questions as "Does this organization match equipment and personnel requirements to unit mission?" "Can reductions be made in personnel and equipment?"

Finally, to make certain that LOGTAIL will have no adverse effects on the soldier, evaluation will determine if there are any adverse effects imposed on him. However, it will also monitor the matching of organization with equipment and personnel requirements to unit mission. It will also determine if reductions can be made in personnel and equipment under LOGTAIL.

LOGTAIL came about as a result of observations endorsing the LOGTAIL concepts made by General William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, during a visit to CDC.

First Puerto Rican Reserve Unit To Complete Advanced Training

By Ken Sturzenacker

The first of four Puerto Rican reserve units will complete two weeks of advanced MOS training here today.

The 264th Close Support Collection, Classification and Salvage Company has been taking the training with various units throughout the Main Post area. Most of the units are quartermaster and ordnance groups.

Under the combined direction of Chief Warrant Officer Four Judge Marion, supervisor for supply control and storage, and James F. Loudermilk, civilian supervisor for supply control and storage, the 264th has been involved in many phases of normal quartermaster operations, according to Capt. Humberto Rodriquez, company commander.

The men in the company are working in tire classification, major end item classification, property disposal, clothing and equipment, packing and crating and the central classification office.

Others in the company are learning machine accounting procedures.

The men working in the ordnance section are receiving training in small arms repair and the maintenance and repair of office equipment.

Lt. Col. Joseph A. Santiago is serving as the chief advisor to the Unit while it undergoes its training in this country. SFC Josua M. Cedeno is the enlisted advisor to the unit.

Evaluating the company's progress and its overall proficiency in its newly acquired skills is Capt. Elmer S. Erickson, of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Center Troop Command.

"As of this time, the men of the 264th have adjusted to the many problems facing them in this training very well. The full two week period should be of great benefit to them and their unit," the captain stated.

Parts of the 346th Direct Support Battalion, the 264th is one of two companies of its type in the Army. The other one is currently stationed in Vietnam.

Home for the 264th is Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico, near the city of Sallnas.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

King's Pizza On Call

Get out the Christmas cookie cutters and let the children make star-shaped sugar cookies for Flag Day. Top the stars with red, white and blue-striped icing.

Cool Idea: Blend a can of cream of tomato soup with an equal amount of buttermilk, then add a teaspoonful of curry. Chill before serving.

Father knows best, so don't tell him that an easy way to keep a barbecue fire from flaming is to use a narrow-necked pop bottle of water for dousing any little flare-ups.

TCB Graduates Record 4 Classes in 7 Hours

By Pfc George Burks

The Candidate Brigade of the U. S. Army Infantry School here has set a record for itself by holding four separate graduations on May 27.

Prior to this date, the greatest number of graduations in one day was three, a mark which had lasted since the Fall of 1968.

Within a seven hour period on May 27, however, Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course Classes 33-69 (75th Company), 3-69 (103rd Co.), and 6-69 (100th Co.); as well as Infantry Officer Candidate Reserve Component Class No. 1 were graduated.

The NCO Class 33-69 had the largest number graduated-159. These sergeants will serve as light weapons Infantrymen. The NCO Class 3-69 had 152 graduants were welcomed into Infantry operations and intelligence.

Helicopter, Wheels Replace Walking Survey Team

FT. BELVOIR, Va. — The Army of 1975 and after will see great extensions in survey control as wheels and helicopters replace today's walking survey party.

In a Combat Developments Command (CDC) proposal for a position and azimuth determining system (PADS), a single, self - contained electronic device will provide not only three dimensional coordinates (northing, easting and elevation), but also directional readings.

This multi-capability of PADS would be a "first" in Army survey history. It would radically change the survey operation and provide far faster and wide-ranging survey control in support of units in the theater of operations.

The ground version of PADS will be installed in standard military small trucks. A single operator will replace today's survey party, literally "driving" through the survey from point to point. Present-day "line of sight" restrictions and steel tape distance measuring would be eliminated, along with time-consuming relocation of transits and math computations, now a fact of life in survey operations.

The helicborne PADS component would provide a survey control network throughout the theater of operations. Airmobile tactics are expanding the potential operating area of individual units. This calls for a parallel increase in common survey control.

Survey operations impact on virtually every aspect of combat. One obvious application of PADS, highlighted in a recent CDC "Artillery to 1980" symposium, would be to enhance field artillery's capability to "fire for effect" for predetermined registration points without adjusting rounds. This would save ammunition and catch the enemy by surprise.

Target acquisition, mapping, engineer, mobile air defense, infantry maneuver and inland waterway operations would be among others to profit from increased survey control networks. Since effective massing of fire-power depends on common survey control between all engaging units, newly positioned units would be ready to fight with the fullest possible support in a fraction of the time now required with even the speediest survey teams.

A north-seeking gyroscope oriented to earth rotation would operate despite the presence of electromagnetic impulses, including jamming. The gyro would permit initial angle determination using a single reference point, a plus in poor visibility conditions.

Under the proposal, approved by Department of the Army, PADS will be compact and lightweight. A premium will be put on minimizing maintenance, simplifying design, assuring data accuracy, including self-test features and enabling quick-warm up in winter.

With a minimum life expectancy of ten years, PADS must operate under all weather, daylight-darkness conditions. Both helicborne and ground PADS will provide normal digital and directional readings for easy reference. CDC wants PADS to give grid coordinates accurate to within ten meters, height data within five meters and directional reference within one tenth of a mil. (The mil, used for high accuracy in firing tables and other military angular data, is about one seventeenth of a degree).

Army Approves Plan For Laser Trainer

FT. BELVOIR, Va. — The Department of the Army has approved a Combat Developments Command (CDC) proposal for a "Laser Tank Gunnery Trainer developed by CDC's Armor Agency.

The gunnery trainer is designed to permit realistic year-round training in the techniques of tank gunnery without the firing of "live" ammunition.

The laser trainer mounts easily in place on the 7.62 coaxial machinegun on the M48 series, M59-M60A1, M60A1E2, and the M551 tanks. Powered by the vehicle's electrical system, it is capable of operating at a sustained rate of one "pulse" every three seconds for up to four hours. With carrying case the laser trainer weighs less than 35 pounds. Its overall length is less than 24 inches.

Initially, the device will be used at service school, training centers, and Table of Organization and Equipment (TO&E) tank units of the active and reserve Army around the world. It will replace an earlier test model now in limited use at the Armor School, Fort Knox Ky.

The device will permit training indoors or outdoors in the techniques of zeroing, preparation of range card data, and the application or "burst on target" without the expenditure of service ammunition or the requirement for range firing areas.

The device will be used to develop gunner proficiency in the engagement of stationary and moving targets. In night gunnery training, the impact of the laster beam can be detected with presently used infra-red scopes whereas the 7.62MM round cannot.

Tank crews must be proficient and thoroughly trained in the basics of gunnery before firing service ammunition. Reserve units are also affected since the preliminary training, that which should have been accomplished at the home station, must currently be conducted during the short annual encampment. This basic training takes away from overall time, leaving less for the more advanced phases of instruction.

Its relatively low cost is complemented by one other advantage. A conventional round of 7.62 MM costs the Army 10 cents, while one round fired from the laser costs .001 cents.

American University Presents 7 Degrees

By Lee Myers

The assistant superintendent of schools for Russell County (Ala.) and Georgia's teacher of the year in 1967 received master of science degrees at an American University graduation ceremony here.

Willis Grimm, the assistant superintendent for Russell County, and Mrs. Rannie J. Lewis, the teacher of the year who teaches humanities and mathematics at Carver High School, received M.S. degrees in teaching.

The Fort Benning branch of American University also awarded five bachelor of science degrees at the ceremony.

A short graduation address was given by John B. Edge, resident director of the Fort Benning branch of the university. Edge told the graduates that they had proved the validity of their mental inventory and that now they should join the crusade in the pursuit of excellence.

Edge said the graduates had the choice either of furthering the indestructible nature of human excellence or of fleeing back to the trees.

"Let's go to the stars instead of retreating to the cave," Edge said.

Receiving B.S. degrees in general studies were Robert C. Cluverhouse, Russell Edwards Jr., Gary S. Garb, Mrs. Stanley Lewis and Maj. Geoffrey L. Stillman.

William DeRoos, who received a B.S. degree from the university last winter, also was present.

The first graduate of the Fort Benning branch of American University, Chester Alderfer, who graduated in 1963, was present and congratulated each of the graduates.

15th Finance Conducts Exercise

The members of the 15th Finance Disbursing Section conducted a successful three day field training exercise last week.

During the 72-hour problem, the unit was required to operate under field conditions, performing as they normally would under garrison situations.

The training included integrated material on security, subversion and espionage and intelligence procedures.

According to Lieutenant C. R. Stormant, executive officer of the 15th, the unit did well on its exercise, which included spending the night in the field and eating field rations.

Water Safety Begins With Individual Swimmer

NEW YORK (NAPS)—No one knows when man first summoned enough courage to jump into a body of water instead of walking around it.

One thing is sure — he's been doing it ever since!

After countless ages, swimming remains one of man's most useful, beneficial sports. Few other activities combine as much exercise, relaxation and sheer fun.

Another reason for swimming's timeless popularity: nearly everyone—young, old, even the handicapped—can enjoy it. A sunny day at a lake or beach. . .any day at an indoor pool. . .and the fun begins.

But swimming also has a serious side. Statistics show five to seven thousand Americans drown each year. The "culprit" is simple carelessness—overfamiliarity that sometimes blinds swimmers to basic safety rules.

To reduce the dangers—and add to the fun of summer outings—experts of the 125-year-old YMCA have drawn on its 83 years of water safety experience to compile some valuable, professional tips.

First and most important rule, they say, is to learn to swim well. Because swimming seems so natural, some people ignore the need for skilled professional training. Yet the poor swimmer remains a constant menace to himself — and others.

Non-swimmers pose a greater threat, according to YMCA water safety experts. Until they learn the basic fundamentals, the only advice is stay out of the water! Even wading can bring disaster if you step into an unexpected "drop off."

It doesn't matter if the choice is a pool, lake or beach—make sure a life guard is present. Other useful precautions: never swim alone, obey all warning signs. Many a noggin has been split in shallow water. . .many persons have been infected by polluted water because they thought the warning signs just part of the scenery.

It's also wise not to swim through patches of seaweed; it entangles you and saps your strength.

Because swimming is an exercise, personal safety often depends on physical condition. If you don't rest and cool off after exertion, YMCA experts warn, plunging back into cold water may cause you to black out from a sudden rise in blood pressure. It may also cause painful, disabling cramps.

Recognizing physical limitations—and refusing invitations to competitive swimming when you're not in shape—is no disgrace. Endangering a rescuer's life by collapsing from overexertion is! Learn how far you can swim and don't go beyond your limit. If you do compete, race toward—not away from—shore, and have a third person present.

Vital to measuring your ability is knowing the water's depth and the current's strength. Remember, you can't tell either from the surface and must make it a point to find out.

If you are trapped in a strong current, "in" experts give this advice: don't fight it. Swim across the current and gradually work your way in toward shore.

Perhaps the greatest water menaces are the "would-be hero" and the "water show-off." It's a grim rule, but performing dangerous stunts to impress people sooner or later gets you in trouble. And rescue attempts by unqualified swimmers can multiply tragedies. No one should attempt a water rescue until he's passed an expert course in rescue techniques.

Not all of water safety is directly related to swimming. The recent rise in popularity of boating and skindiving has added to the problem.

Once, more, application of common sense rules can keep you free of trouble.

Most important rule . . . as with all water activity—is only good swimmers should go boating or attempt skin diving.

Other tips: when getting into a small boat, use only the stern or the bow so you have greater stability. Don't dive from boats; you may literally knock yourself out. When you want to take a dip, throw in a rope or anchor to make sure of the depth, slide into the water and keep close by.

The summer sports program includes golf, tumbling, wrestling, tennis and swimming for all age groups and for the beginners on up.

Other summer courses on tap include defensive driving, decoupage, English review and refresher, interior decoration, math review and refresher, personal typewriting, and reading acceleration.

In Addition To Books

Library Holds Facilities For Music, Typing, Study

By Lee Myers

It is called the Main Post Library but do not let the word "library" fool you.

A squat, brick building huddling between the Main Post Exchange and Theater No. 1 it contains, other than books, stereo records and a music room with headsets, 287 current magazines, 55 current newspapers, typing facilities, five study booths, eight-track tape cartridges, a children's room and an inter-library loan system which can obtain for a patron almost any book published.

A recent addition of two machines at the check-out counter now helps speed the paperwork after books have been chosen. The patron's library card, which he carries with him, has a thin metal strip with raised numbers, much like a modern credit card.

This card is given to the librarian and she inserts it into a machine which stamps the number on the book's out list. And the book is borrowed, that quickly or quicker.

Magazines, open on the shelf, range from "American Rifleman" to "Better Homes and Gardens", from "The Economist" and "The Nation" to "Scientific American."

The children's room contains small furniture, bright pictures and books. During the summer, volunteers come to the children's room and read aloud for a "story hour."

The music room has comfortable chairs, well separated for listening, with headsets. The records include, among others, Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" and Brahms.

Eight - track tape cartridges, a new area of service, are not plentiful and do not include the more popular performers like Glen Campbell, yet the collection is growing and now has a selection which includes the "Grand Canyon Suite" and Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata".

Five study booths are sound-insulated and one of them is along an outside wall so that it has a floor-to-ceiling glass wall which gives natural light and a view of greenery.

The microfilm files include the New York Times, Columbus Ledger and Atlanta Journal, plus the "Saturday Review" and "U. S. News and World Report." Two microfilm readers and printers stand across from the microfilm files and they can be used to view these older issues and to print a copy if it is needed for research.

Typing booths are available for military personnel to type reports or a long letter home.

If a book is needed and is not on the shelves, an inter-library loan can get it from the University of Georgia library system, a near-by state library, or from the Library of Congress which contains all books published in the United States.

To receive a library card, one must take his military-identification card to the library. Each member of a family over 12 years of age can receive a card but the military sponsor must take out the cards and he always is responsible for the books checked out by his family or checked out on his card.

Books which are checked out are due back at the library either on the first or the fifteenth of the month.

'Risque French Comedy' To Use New Mobile Stage

By 1st Lt. Fred Vollrath

After a short rehearsal period of three weeks, the Fort Benning Players will present their third play of the season, "Pajama Tops," Wednesday through June 22 on the new $11,000 mobile stage.

Performances are scheduled at 8:30 p.m. at the Main post, Kelley Hill, North Harmony Church, 5th Bn. OC area and Sand Hill.

"Mobile stage productions are the latest thing," said Mike Gamble, the play's director. "New York and other cities have instituted 'street theatres' where stage productions are played in neighborhood parks and in the streets. This is really nothing new because it's the oldest stage type production in history," he explained.

The play is described as a "risque French comedy."

Only one performance, on Wednesday, behind the Infantry Museum is scheduled for the general public. The other four performances will play to the troops in the outlying area of the post.

"I cut the original script which ran over two hours down to an hour," Gamble said. "I figured the troops will be outside sitting on the ground or in bleachers and the shortened adapted version will give them the entire play in half the time without dragging out so long they become uncomfortable."

"At first I thought it would be possible to cut out blocks of the play but I couldn't," he explained. "The play was well written so it required going through it line by line to cut it down."

The set called for French provincial furniture which the playhouse was unable to borrow from anywhere in the area so they had to build their own from scratch.

"Fortunately for us we have a great set designer, J. Michale Calitri, who designed and built the entire set," Gamble said.

All the male members of the cast, except the "The Inspector," who is the entertainment director, hold drama degrees and have worked professionally and semi-professionally on the stage. The girls are local and with one exception have had all their acting experience in high school. Linda White studied with the Pasadena Playhouse in California.

Gamble holds a Masters Degree in drama from the University of Oklahoma. He taught speech in high school for two years before being drafted, attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York City and played one summer at the Yarmouth Playhouse in Cape Cod, Mass.

Peggy Repeats Win

Miss Harmon Wins Golf Tourney

By Bob Vargas

Miss Peggy Harmon, (Shelbyville, Tenn.) took top honors in the Eighth Annual Military Dependents Golf Tournament held at the Fort Benning Country Club June 3-5.

Miss Hamon, whose father is a retired Air Force colonel, fired a 146 for two rounds. The tournament, scheduled for three rounds, came to a standstill when rain cancelled the final round but a victor emerged just the same in the person of Miss Harmon, 18-year-old defending champion.

With 36-holes already completed by Wednesday by the 222 entrants, officials decided to let things stand because of the weather and unanimously declared Miss Harmon the winner. Drawings were also held to determine winners for flight championships who were tied at the end of the first two rounds.

At a luncheon held at the Fort Benning Officers Club Thursday (June 5) Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, presented Miss Harmon the Dalton Trophy, a perpetual prize in the tournament. General Forsythe also presented prizes and trophies to all of the flight winners.

Miss Harmon also won the Zada Schiever Trophy for having the best low gross total. A pre-medical student at Vanderbilt University, Miss Harmon took last year's tournament held at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., by 22 strokes. The event is alternated each year among military reservations and will be held in Pensacola, Fla., next year.

Mrs. Gerhard J. Schriever thought of and organized the first Military Dependents Championship Golf Tournament which was held at Andrews Air Force Base, Md. in 1962. The tournament drew 146 contestants from 26 military installations. The Eighth Annual Tournament drew 222 entrants; some from as far away as California, and it will get bigger.

Chairman of this year's tournament was Mrs. Arthur J. Sutton. Mrs. O. E. Bridgeford was the tournament director.

Fourth flight, Mrs. E. F. Holton, Fort Benning, Ga., 150, champion; and Mrs. Ben K. Hastings, Army-Navy CC, Va., 150, runner-up.

Sixth flight, Mrs. Charles Francus, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, 149, champion; Mrs. Virgil H. Smith, Cordell, Oklahoma, 151, runner-up.

Mrs. Ployer P. Hill, Army-Navy CC, Va. was awarded a blazer for low net score. She shot a 137.

The Eighth Annual Military Dependents Golf Tournament is now history and Miss Peggy Harmon reigns as champion as predicted. The only sad note of the tournament was, of course, the rain which canceled the third round. All in all, though, the ladies enjoyed each others company and of course being away from the kitchen and household. Congratulations to the ladies on a most successful tournament. See you at Pensacola next year ladies.

Former Colt Goes Airborne

The 6 foot 1 inch, 220 pound halfback slowly walked up the steps to the 45th Company Orderly room. Wiping the perspiration off his face, he exclaimed, "I've never had a workout like this, man. All we do is run, run, run."

Sergeant Eric D. Robinson, former halfback for the Baltimore Colts, had just completed his first full day of airborne training. "The first week is probably worst," he said, "but it'll be worth it to get those wings."

Robinson started playing football in high school at his home town of New Orleans, La. After high school, he was selected for the football team of Southern University at Baton Rouge, La. He played halfback at Southern for four years while earning a degree in Mechanical Art. He made all conference the last two years. The highlight of his college career was a game against Morgan State when he ran the ball a total of 172 yards. Despite this terrific yardage, Morgan won the game 3-0.

After college, he decided he wanted to play ball for the Colts, so he reported for training as a free agent. Under these conditions, he had to pay his own expenses, hoping that the Colts would pick him for their team that season. Many free agents train for several months and still aren't chosen for the team, but Robinson was picked after 19 days.

He played halfback for the Colts for two seasons 1963 and 1964 and started most games these two seasons. During the 1965 season he broke his knee and was unable to play for the next 11 months. He says of his two seasons, "Playing pro ball is a thrill, but its not a sport; its a living. College ball is different — it's played from the heart." He worked for a while as a construction bidder, then enlisted in the Army. for two years after a friend was killed in the Republic of Vietnam. He joined because he "wanted to find out what Vietnam was like." He has been in the Army a year now, hopes to get to RVN soon.

Robinson took his basic training and AIT at Ft. Polk, La. He became drill corporal at a basic training unit in Sand Hill while waiting to attend NCOC here. He was graduated from NCOC and is now working his way through jump school.

Will he be going back to pro ball after he finishes his tour in the Army? "I don't believe it's worth it to end up with a permanent knee injury" he says. "It used to be that people played just for the game and nobody tried to hurt anybody, but now it's different. Anyway, the only thing I want to do is hit you." Smith 160

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

The Chattahoochee Archery Council, Rod and Gun Club, will host the Georgia State Field Archery Championship on the week-end of 19-20 July 1969. On the week-end of 21-22 June 69 the Council will conduct the Pre-State Field Archery Meet to allow all anticipated entrants of the Championship meet to shoot the 56 target course and to gain as much "local knowledge" of the course as possible.

A new 28 target range has been added to the existing National Field Archery Association four star rated range. The first 14 targets of the new range are arranged so that all may be observed by spectators and five of the targets on the remaining 14 targets may also be observed by spectators moving along a wide ridge-line that separates the two 14 target units. The spectator range provides for excellent television coverage of the archers and the target areas. The new 28 target range with it's spectator range will make the Council's archery facilities eligible for a Five Star rating.

In addition to one of the best 56 target courses in the southeast, the club's facilities include a shaded camping area which provides for complete overnight camping to include separate rest rooms, picnic tables and electrical outlets for self contained mobile unit. Other club facilities include: an 80 yard zeroing range marked off in five yard increments: a broadhead practice range; 16 practice targets varying in distance from 10 to 55 yards; a snack bar which excels in short orders and sandwiches; and a championship trap and skeet range where shotguns may be rented and ammunition and clay pigeons may be purchased.

The Pre-State Shoot, like the State Field Championship, will consist of 28 field targets and 28 Hunter's targets. Registration for the Pre-state will begin at 7:00 A.M. on the morning Saturday, 21 June and will close at noon. Registration will begin at 7:00 A.M. on Sunday and will close at 10:00 A.M. Shooting will begin on Saturday at 4:00 P.M. and at 11:00 A.M. on Sunday, 22 June 69. Entry fee for all participants for the Pre-State is $3. In addition to the normal shooting divisions and classes as prescribed by the National Field Archers Association, the Pre-State and the state Championship Shoot will also include a Handicap Division for all archers who hold an official NFAA handicap. Awards will be presented three deep in all classes for both the Pre-State and the state Champion Shoot.

Archers attending the Pre-State Meet may shoot all 56 targets in one day if they so desire or shoot 28 targets each day. Scores for the two-day shoot will be posted on the afternoon of Sunday, 22 June and at the conclusion of the meet.

The Archery Club's President, LTC (Ret) W. H. Guinn assures us that this will be the largest and best archery event in the state of Georgia. He extends an open invitation to spectators, archers and potential archers to plan to attend these two forthcoming events. More than 200 of the state's best shooters will be competing for trophies in the State Championship Meet.

Due to the influx of visitors over the week-ends at Fort Benning, Guinn does recommend that shooters who do not intend to camp at the range make motel reservations at one of the many motels conveniently located to the archery ranges.

SFC Ortis Perez, Co. A, the Student Brigade now leads the June Catfish contest derby with a 13-pound 12-ounce catch from Victory Pond caught June 5. He was using a rod and reel and chicken liver as bait.

CPT Jimmy Ford, Ranger Department still leads the bream category with the pound entry he caught at Patterson Pond June 1.

To date no bass entry for the June Derby has been registered at Rod and Gun Club Headquarters.

Clark, Meeks Repeat In All-Army Matches

By CALVIN JENSEN

Southeast regional rifle & pistol champs showed they are true champions by taking top honors in the All-Army Rifle & Pistol Championships held here last week.

Firing on McAndrews range and at the Ft. Benning Pistol Club, SSG Robert Meeks and SFC Hezekiah Clark, both members of the Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning and Southeast Regional Rifle and Pistol champions respectively, captured their individual events.

Both the rifle and pistol events were broken down into three categories; Active Army, reserve and national guard with an overall winner.

Meeks, over-all rifle champion, never managed to win an individual event but he consistently produced high scores in each event to come out on top in the Individual Aggregate Championship with 1253.

All three division in the championship were won with identical scores of 1250. SFC William Carrion-Ortiz of the USARSO Team (Panama) won the Active Army catergory, while Lt. Charles Byess of Fairfield, Conn. won the reserve category and CW2 David Logan from Pennsylvania, won the National Guarl title.

A total of 364 competitors in rifle fired for honors as an All-Army champion.

Team tiles fell to the Sixth Army in both the Infantry Trophy Team match and the Short Range team match. First Army National Guard won the Infantry trophy team match in their category while the Sixth USAR and the Fifth Army National Guard won Short Range team titles in their divisions.

Two-hundred and forty-nine competitors lined up to fire the pistol course of .22 caliber, center fire, .45 caliber and service pistol aggregates.

Candidates' Roommate Gold Medal Winner

Randy Matson, gold medal winner for the shotput event in the recent Olympics in Mexico City, dreamed of accomplishing such a feat as early as the ninth grade, according to his former roommate, Don Ayres.

Ayres, currently an officer candidate in the 96th Company, 9th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, roomed with the world record-holder for three years at Texas A & M University (College Station, Tex.).

During this period, Ayres, a native of Pampa, Texas, became the "famous roommate of the sports celebrity because several newspapers and periodicals wrote feature stories concerning what it was like to live with Matson.

In addition to holding the world's shotput record of 71 feet, 5.5 inches, Matson still holds the national collegiate record in the same event. His world mark in the shot, plus a throw of over 212 feet in the discus event, makes Matson the greatest dual weightman in track history.

"He might have been even greater," Ayres remarked, "if he had started training with weights in high school. He trained differently than other weightmen. Instead of setting specific goals, he would just do his best."

Candidate Ayres adds that few people, outside of those interested in the Southwest Conference, realize that Matson was an accomplished basketball player as well as a track star. Matson was selected sophomore of the year in his conference following the 1965 season.

Candidate Ayres says that he did not mind being the companion of Matson, the track star. "Our personalities complemented each other. He was reserved, quiet and shy, while I was more aggressive," Ayres said. He added, Matson is "a fine man" who "motiviated me to try harder in everything I do."

According to Ayres, Matson is also a scholar. "He was just as conscientious with the books as he was with the 16-pound ball," he said.

Following this past summer's Olympics in which Matson caused his dream to come true, several professional football and basketball teams made offers to Matson.

Racing Around

Columbus Chavaga Is Host For State Meet

By Rob Bowers & Jeff Martini

Local racing was in full swing again the first week in June, hard on the heels of "Indy." At Phenix Dragway the featured event was the Funny Car match between Mike Burkehardt's 427 Super-charged Camaro and "Funny Honey" Della Wood's Dodge Charger 426 Super-charged Hemi. Miss Wood, world's foremost and, as far as we know, only female Funny Car driver turned in a credible 9.20 quarter at 174.41 mph only to be bettered by the Camaro's 8.39 at 180.106 miles per hour.

In the more sedate events Q-S National Record Holder, John Tharp, in his 58 Chevy Panel Wagon took the Stock eliminator bracket with a 14.80 ET at 90 flat. Huff & Moore's 55 Chevy D-MP took street eliminator at 12.60.

Moving over to the Jackpot eliminators, Mike Gulette took first place in bracket 4 with a 13.53. Second place went to Darrell Lee with a 13.90. In bracket 5 Jerry Svetros was the first place winner with a time of 14.10. Jim Leach's 14.38 won him the number two spot. There was no doubt about the results of bracket six as Jimmy Banks in his T-Bird ran away with a 17.35 followed by Hamp Gilvry's 11.35.

The strip will be closed this weekend but opens again on the 22nd with "Hurst Hemi under glass" as the main course.

Sports car buffs from two state's gathered in force at the Traffic Circle shopping center Sunday for CHAVAGA's June slaloms. There were forty-two entries with everything from a Formula Ford Lotus to a VA "Fat" back. To the chagrin but good sportsmanship of local enthusiasts CHAVAGA was able to capture top honors in only one of the seven classes as the powerhouses of the Atlanta and Central Alabama regions dominated the field in response to Mike Scott's challenge.

The Time of Day trophy went to Houghton Smith of the Central Alahama region in a Formula Ford Lotus 51C. His 46.1 on the twisty-turny course also gave him a first in class I modified. Dave Spotts of the Atlanta Region SCCA turned in a 51.0 in his nonstandard Formula VEE to capture the number two position.

Class I was monopolized by Atlanta. Ed Wheeler's '59 Corvette took first with a 53.6 58.3 was the number two time handed in by Knox Griffin's XKE.

In case you happened to be driving by and wondered, all that noise was probably being generated by Atlanta region's Sam Miller in this Porsche 911 with Burch exhaust as he won first place in class II with a 51.0. CHAVAGA's Mike Kasner took second in the class by running a 52.9

Porsche took the World Manufacturer's title - their first - with a sweep of the first five spots in the 1000 Km race at Nurhurgring in Germany . . . Bruce McLaren and Denis Hulme finished one-two at the Can - Am opener for group seven cars at Mosport, Canada with his LOTUS EUROPA.

Central Alabama captured class III with a G Production Austin Healy Sprite driven by Bert Gafford. His time was a 50.5 Second place went to the Atlanta Regions Milton Bailey in a Porsche Super 90 and a time of 51.0. Central Alabama also shut out the field in class IV as Max Long's G Production Spitfire turned in a 50.0 for first place. Paul Liddell's MG Midget ran a 51.7.

Though not a CHAVAGA member Gregg Chastain of Columbus saved the day for the locals by placing first in class VI with a time of 58.0 in his Datsun sedan. A BMW 2002 driven by George Elder of the Central Alabama Region took home the second place trophy with a time of 59.4.

All in all it was a good day of racing and credit to the local SCCA that it could attract such outstanding competitors.

Coming next from CHAVAGA is a Back and Forth Rally on Sunday June 22nd. Starting place is the Midas Muffler shop on 13th Street and 4th Ave. Tech inspection begins at 11:00 and the first car goes out at 1:30. Frees for the 100 miles event are the usual $3.00 for members and $4.00 for non-members.

Surgeon Says

Heat and Exercise Encourages Weight Lose

Summer's heat and outdoor activity often give the overweight cause to shed some of the extra pounds they kicked up during the winter.

Insurance statistics indicate overweight persons die younger and are more susceptible to disease, particularly heart disease, than their slimmer counterparts. Conversely, weight loss promises improved appearance, greater vigor and longer life to the dieter. For example, a twelve per cent weight loss reduces heart effort during exercise by thirty-five per cent!

While dieting is the ideal solution to an overweight problem, a poorly planned "crash" diet can often endanger health. A doctor's examination and expert advice insure the dieter a weight-reduction program that provides him with safe and reasonable guidelines to follow.

Proper exercise will tone up and tighten muscles in areas where weight is lost, but a drastic exercise program, like a "crash" diet offers the dieter little benefit. Nor can excess weight be exercised away. A doctor can best provide a combined diet-exercise schedule suited to individual needs.

1. Get medical advice.
2. Don't trust "fad" diets. Only a permanent change in eating habits will be really effective.
3. Learn to stop eating before you feel full. Learn to leave the table a little hungry.
4. Weigh daily before breakfast. Make a weekly record of morning weight to follow your progress.
5. Drink plenty of water, and a full glass before each meal. Often what feels like hunger pangs is actually thirst.
6. Never eat between meals. Eat only three or four meals spaced through the day.
7. Eat a hearty breakfast but a small dinner.
8. Avoid fats and starches — emphasize light salads, green and yellow vegetables and lean meats. See a doctor for a diet that provides all essential proteins, vitamins and minerals.
9. Count calories — know how much you eat. A doctor can prescribe proper caloric intake.
10. Start an exercise program and stay with it. Moderate exercise before meals actually reduces appetite, and improves muscle tone. After exercise, don't quench your thirst with a fattening beverage (such as beer).

ATC Record Only Lasts One Week

"Records are made to be broken!" And that's exactly what happened when the 6th Bn., 2nd Bde., surpassed the previous Training Center records on the physical combat proficiency test.

A total of 26 trainees scored the maximum 500 points on the test topping the record of 23 made just the previous week by the 5th Bn., 1st Bde. Fourteen of these were members of Co. B. The 6th Bn. also achieved a second high with a battalion average of 441.8.

Each of the men received special recognition from the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Earl C. McCrary, during the graduation ceremonies which were dedicated to those fallen heroes of "D" Day 25 years ago.

The American Spirit Honor Medal, highest award that can be received by a basic trainee, was awarded to Pvt. Michael K. Diamond, Co. C, by Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis, commanding general of the Training Center.

Speaker's Program Is Smashing Success

HQ, THIRD U.S. ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — The National Speaker's Program (NSP), a highly personal program of telling the Vietnam story, has proven to be a smashing success for the Army.

Originally proposed by former Chief of Staff Harold K. Johnson, the NSP provides Americans on the home front with a soldier's view of Vietnam. The Army's Speakers Program has provided speakers on request for a number of years but the current emphasis is on Vietnam.

Since the program began, over eighty thousand people in the Third Army area have heard an in-depth story about the Vietnam conflict based on the individual experiences of recently returned veterans. On three hundred and thirty four different occasions these men have spoken to organizations ranging from Rotary Club Meetings to high school classes.

Speakers currently active in the program are Major Thomas A. Simcox and Captain Stanley K. Higgins, both assigned to Headquarters, Third U. S. Army, Fort McPherson, Ga.; Captain Lee H. H. Smith, Fort Jackson, S.C.; First Lieutenant James L. Wettengel, Fort Rucker, Ala.; First Sergeant Herman R. Davis, Fort Jackson, S.C.; and Sergeant First Class Joseph A. Paradis, assigned to the Sixth Special Forces Group, Fort Bragg, N.C. Captain Thomas S. Scrivener, Hunter Army Air Base, Ga., recently joined the program.

During their speeches, many little-known and interesting facts are brought to light as the title of their talk implies; "Vietnam: the Place and the People." The use of oral and slide presentations plus a question and answer period enables the speakers to describe the geographical features of South Vietnam as well as the people who live there.

In Only One Year Colonel Is Lt. Gen.

Hal B. Jennings, Jr., who will soon receive his third promotion in slightly more than one year, has been nominated to be the man who will replace Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton.

The former post surgeon of the U. S. Army Infantry Center and commander of Martin Army Hospital, departed Fort Benning last July for an assignment in Vietnam.

In Vietnam, he received a promotion to brigadier general, and is serving as surgeon of the U. S. Army, Vietnam, and commanding general, 44th Medical Brigade.

His senate confirmation for promotion to major general came May 14.

The president has approved and forwarded to the Senate for confirmation the nomination of General Jennings to lieutenant general and as the next surgeon general of the Army, effective October 1.

General Jennings will soon go to Washington where he will serve as deputy surgeon general until he succeeds Lt. Gen. Heaton, whose fifth extension as surgeon general ends September 30.

Balanced Nuclear Hardening Levels Required for Weapons Systems

FT. BELVOIR, Va. — The Army now requires that balanced nuclear hardening levels be specified for developmental equipment and weapons systems.

With balanced nuclear hardening, an item of equipment or entire system, including crew, is given protection from the multiple effects of nuclear bursts so that it is not overcome by a single effect while still capable of operating under others.

Nuclear bursts produce heat, blast and various forms of radiation such as x-rays and neutrons.

The Army's Institute of Nuclear Studies, Fort Bliss, Texas, part of the Combat Developments Command (CDC), has designed a comprehensive methodology for isolating which effects must be considered for individual items and under which operational situations each effect can be considered a governing "kill" effect.

The Institute's "Criteria for the Protection of Equipment Against Nuclear Weapons Effects" considers the entire nuclear "threat spectrum" and all effects which may bear on equipment survivability. "Go-damage" curves are plotted to find the governing effects which then guide determinations of balanced hardening levels.

The "Criteria" has been presented to the NATO Armies in Brussels and to the ABCA (Australia-Britain-Canada-US) Quadripartite Group in London as a proposed standardization agreement. The first effort of such total-operational scope, the "Criteria's" technical formulas determine the most effective hardening levels for all equipment developed in conjunction with CDC Qualitative Materiel Requirements (QMRs.). QMRs generate all equipment development except small "off-the-shelf" requirements or minor modifications of already existing systems.

Thus virtually all equipment for the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s will be assessed for balanced nuclear hardening, and hardening specifications will be stated in all QMRs. When hardening is not required, the reasons will be stated. Basically each piece of major equipment will be at least as resistant to nuclear effects as are the men operating it, thus insuring continuing post-blast operation in the nuclear environment.

Mentioning a hypothetical combat vehicle to illustrate balanced hardening, Maj. F. C. Lawler of CDC headquarters, Ft. Belvoir, Va., explained that at a specific distance from the point of nuclear detonation, the vehicle might survive the effects of radiation and blast, but would succumb to heat effects such as melting and follow-on ammunition and fuel explosions.

"Assuming that the vehicle is required to operate in this specific environment, it could, during its development, be provided with design features to equalize its level of immunity to heat effects with its immunity to radiation and blast. This is the basic principle of balanced nuclear hardening," Lawler said.

This could involve various approaches. One method would be adaptations in the actual materials used to build the vehicle. Relocation of its components or special thermal protective devices could be another means. With some items of equipment or total land combat systems, new doctrine guiding tactical deployment and usage might serve to equalize its susceptibility to all effects without actual changes in the equipment itself.

Lawler stated that the picture is more complicated than the simple illustration of a combat vehicle. Different items have different levels of susceptibility to nuclear effects. A sophisticated, delicate item could require extensive hardening effort compared to a relatively simple, sturdy item. Furthermore, each component of a system has an inherent ("natural") hardness level depending on its design and material.

Airborne Training Is Family Affair at 49th

The Ward brothers from Whitney, Texas, are making airborne training a family affair. Major Billy Ward, Lt. Jerry W. Ward, and SSG Joe E. Ward, all brothers, are training together in 49th Co. (ABN.).

It all began when their National Guard Unit in Whitney reformed as an airborne unit. The other soldiers in the unit, HHC 1st Bn. 143, have accused the brothers of running the unit. At one time, Major Ward was company commander, Lieutenant Ward was a Platoon Leader, and Sergeant Ward was the supply sergeant. They all live with their families in or near Whitney, the smallest town in Texas with a National Guard unit.

The company was formed in 1948. Since then, it has won the Eisenhower Trophy five times. This award is given to one company size National Guard unit in each state that excels in the AGI, CMMI, and Field Training Readiness.

When it comes to desired qualifications for a commander in a basic combat training company, not many can top those held by Capt. Joseph F. Czech Jr., commanding officer of Co. C, 9th Bn., 2nd Bde., USATCI.

Capt. Czech received his basic training at Ft. Dix in 1964. He attended Drill Sergeant School at Ft. Leonard Wood in 1966 and served there as a drill sergeant until being accepted for Infantry Officer Candidate School here.

As a new second lieutenant, Czech was assigned to G-3 Range Control at Ft. Gordon in 1967. To some extent, he was still working with basic trainees.

In January 1968, Czech reported to the 39th Inf., 9th Inf. Div., in Vietnam. While a member of that unit, he was awarded the Bronze Star for valor, Army Commendation Medal for valor, Air Medal and two Purple Hearts.

He later served with Advisory Team 66, MACV.

Returning to Ft. Benning in February this year, Czech was assigned to Co. E, 6th Bn., 2nd Bde., as a training officer. In March, he assumed command of Co. C.

Asked if he felt that being a former drill sergeant gave him an edge as a company commander, Capt. Czech replied.

"I honestly believe the knowledge I gained has benefited me as a company commander. It gives me a better understanding of the problems faced each day by the drill sergeant."

Morman Missionary Is Officer Candidate

Thomas Roberts, currently an officer candidate in the 50th Infantry Officer Candidate Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, has temporarily set aside the life of a "man of the cloth," and is preparing himself for a tour of duty as a military man.

Before Roberts, 26, came into the Army, he served as a Mormon missionary in France and Switzerland. At the time he started his religious canvassing, he was only 19 years old, with one year of college at Brigam Young University under his belt.

There are approximately 12,000 Mormons between the ages of 19 and 23 who perform this travelling service for the church. They work for no pay and must support themselves through their missionary work. Asked why he voluntarily adopted the ascetic life, Roberts replied, "I was called by the Church to be a missionary, and I did so for two and a half years."

The first eight months of Roberts' tour in Europe were spent in Marseilles, France. From there he was transferred to Montpelier for three months, Toulons for five, and then to La Chaux de Foud in Switzerland for a short stay.

The last eight months of his mission in Europe was spent working out of the Mormon's Geneva headquarters assisting in the direction of the work of over 200 of his fellow missionaries, as well as meeting with civic and religious leaders throughout France and Switzerland.

Roberts states, "We had a twofold mission: First, to meet with and teach those who had an interest in the Mormon belief; and secondly, to help in administering the Church in Europe."

In some areas where the Mormons constitute only a small group, Roberts, with the help of a companion, would act as the local church leader.

Capt. Presents Award Recommended in RVN

By Ken Sturtzenacker

The man who made the recommendation was also the man to make the presentation.

Captain Paul R. Sutcliff, now commander of 81st Company, 8th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, pinned the Bronze Star with "V" device on Corporal Robert B. Coon, now a member of Company C, 1st Battalion, Center Troop Command.

Corporal Coon and Captain Sutcliff were both members of the 1st Air Cavalry Division at the time.

According to the captain, Corporal Coon was serving as the company's artillery recon sergeant at the time.

"He deliberately exposed himself to machinegun fire so that we could determine its location and bring effective fire against it.

"The machinegun had already wounded six of our men, and its continued presence would have hindered the continuation of our mission."

The captain went on to explain the background for the situation.

"A battalion of hard core North Vietnamese Army soldiers was operating in the Street of Joy, attempting to collect rice to feed themselves and others.

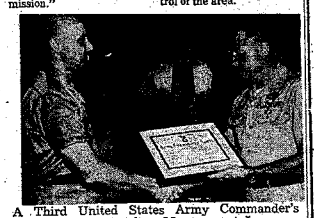
"One of our units had already engaged the NVA battalion; but under the cover of darkness, most of the battalion managed to evade.

"We were called in to what was supposed to be a secure landing zone in order to cut off the enemy's escape route.

"Instead, we found ourselves in the midst of a hot combat assault, with heavy mortar fire all around us.

"The NVA unit was now caught between our two units, and it was at this point that Corporal Coon and the Forward observer exposed themselves to the enemy machinegun.

"Their actions helped us cut off the defense set up by the enemy and gain control of the area."



A Third United States Army Commander's Award for Outstanding Management Improvement was presented May 29 at Fort Benning. The award covers the period July 1 to December 31, 1968, and was made by Lt. Gen. John L. Throckmorton, commanding general, Third U.S. Army, to the Finance and Accounting Office here. Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis, right, then commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, presents the award to Lt. Col. R. E. Van Der Like, Finance and Accounting Officer, on behalf of Gen. Throckmorton. (U.S. Army Photo)

Citizenship Proof Important

HEADQUARTERS, THIRD US ARMY, Fort McPherson, Georgia — Proof of United States citizenship for most Americans is an easy process and usually taken for granted.

However, undue hardship and embarrassment could result for military dependents born overseas unless they possess valid proof of their American citizenship. Difficulty could arise in securing employment, obtaining a military commission, entering a service academy, enrolling in certain civilian schools, registering to vote, or processing for a US passport.

The Certificate of Citizenship verifies US citizenship and is the only document authorized by statute to be issued to persons who acquired US citizenship through a parent or parents.

Often parents do not realize the importance of obtaining a Certificate of Citizenship for their children and tend to neglect submitting applications until a specific need arises. Prolonged delay could make it difficult to obtain supporting documents, or cause further delay by forcing the parents and children to appear before an officer of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Any persons needing assistance in processing applications for Certificates of Citizenship should contact the Post Army Community Service office.

988th Military Police Prove Effective in Test

By Ken Sturznacker

Heavy rains dampened the scene, but not the effectiveness of the members of the 988th Military Police Company, CPC, during their Army Training Test last week.

The three-day test covered all phases of the company's operations, incuding a thorough inspection of unit vehicles and equipment.

On Thursday, the second test day, the main body of the company reached the assembly area secured by an advance party, and reconnaisance elements were sent out to determine the best route to the final bivouac area.

A night movement was made from the assembly area, and the convoy had to use an alternate route because the aggressor forces had destroyed a bridge along the primary route.

Once the company reached the bivouac area, it set up camp and established a defensive perimeter, which was attacked by aggressor forces and successfully protected.

Tests during the three-day period included exercises to determine the 988th's ability to carry on normal operations in a field situation. The company established a prisoner of war collection and processing point, investigated and recovered a stolen vehicle, conducted convoy and VIP escorts and survived simulated nuclear and chemical warfare agent attacks.

Lt. James Covert, executive officer of the 988th, said the critique given by the umpires during the three day test indicated the company had performed very well.

"The umpires complimented Capt. Rodney Gaines, 988th commander, for his excellent job in issuing warning orders and in carrying out all phases of the operation," he concluded.

Paraplegics To Receive Increase in Housing Aid

ATLANTA — Congress has passed and sent to the President a new bill which affects the veterans' housing program and particularly that portion pertaining to specially adapted housing for severely disabled veterans.

State Veterans Director Pete Wheeler said today the measure raises the amount of a Veterans Administration grant for specially adapted home for paraplegics, or "wheelchair" veterans.

These grants are made to veterans who have lost legs or lost use of both their legs from service-connected causes. The measure also enlarges the group of veterans eligible for specialized housing by adding those veterans who, from service-connected causes, have lost or lost use of one leg and have certain other service-connected disabilities which impair mobility except with the use of a wheelchair.

Another portion of the law increases the maximum the VA will allow on a direct home loan to a veteran from $17,500 to $21,000. These loans are made directly from the VA in areas where private mortgage money is not available. Several counties in Georgia are direct home loan areas.

Other provisions of the bill make it easier for veterans to purchase homes in so-called "satellite towns" or those area where the veteran would be required to pay for certain community facilities as a portion of his mortgage payment. Such an arrangement usually requires the lender to have a first lien on the property and this measure would change current laws to allow this.

Mr. Wheeler reminded veterans that the GI home loan provisions are applicable to all eligible veterans with service since January 31, 1955, and certain other with World War II and Korean service. Field office managers of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service can assist veterans in determining eligibility for a home loan.

PFC Jarvis A Winner

Private First Class Terrence M. Jarvis was among the ranks of the winners last month.

When Jarvis, the operations clerk for the 5th Battalion, 31st Infantry, added up this total last week it came to a $25.00 U. S. Savings Bond and two three day passes.

Jarvis' first win came when he topped other competitors and won Soldier of the Month in Headquarters Company of his Battalion.

A three day pass was his reward.

He seemingly could not lose and went on to win Soldier of the Month of the battalion.

That brought him another three day pass, the trophy and the bond.

"I've never before won anything in my life," gloated the 22-year-old soldier, who joined the Army last October, as he tallied his winnings.

To Receive Infantry Orientation

741 West Point Cadets Arrive

By James Hopson

Cadets of the 1970 class of the United States Military Academy arrived at Fort Benning Wednesday, June 18, for a three-day look at the Infantry.

Their stop at the Infantry Center marks the finale of a month's tour during which the 741 first classmen received orientation on the various branches of the Army.

Major General George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, welcomed the cadets as they arrived at Lawson Army Aviation Command. The class arrived in two groups — the first at 11:45 a.m., the second at 3:50 p.m.

Wasting no time, the first group stowed their gear at Olsen Hall — cadet headquarters — and jumped into their busy training schedule, making stops at the Leaders Reaction Course, Shelton Range quick kill reaction course and career panel led by officers from the Infantry School.

The cadets received a formal welcome from Gen. Forsythe Thursday morning at Victory Pond, where they observed members of the Ranger Department demonstrate hand-to-hand combat, pugil stick compelling and confidence tests.

Later, a platoon of paratroopers from Co. H, 3rd of the 508th, 1st Brigade, 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg made a mass combat airborne assault onto Lee Drop Zone as the cadets looked on.

An airmobile demonstration at North Ruth Range highlighted the cadets' Thursday morning activities. There, they watched a battalion of 397th Infantry troops, supported by Air Force tactical air and armed helicopter gunship sorties, establish a combat base, complete with artillery. Troops, artillery and equipment were lifted to North Ruth Range by Army UH-1D and CH-47A helicopters. During the course of the demonstration, the cadets also observed the employment of the CH-54A "Skycrane" helicopter, the AH-1G "Cobra" gunship and its armament and the use of the light aluminum troop ladder. Army aircraft for the elaborate demonstration were provided by Fort Benning's 10th Aviation Group.

FIRST POINT CADETS DEPLANE FROM AN OH TRANSPORT AT LAWSON FIELD To Begin Five-Day Infantry Orientation

3 Families Receive Aid After Fire

By James Doherty

All the resources of Fort Benning came to the aid of three families that were burned out the night of June 12.

The three families have already been placed in new quarters.

The families of SSgt. Charles R. Partridge, SFC William Mullenix and SFC Oscar Scrivens—17 people in all—were given overnight lodging in Olsen Hall.

Friday morning they began moving into eight-family apartment buildings similar to those damaged in the fire.

ROTC Basic Summer Camp Opens

Two demonstrations, airmobility and night defense of Plei Ben, highlighted the first week of the 1969 ROTC Basic Summer Camp.

Both demonstrations, staged by The Infantry School, are designed to acquaint future officers with the firepower available to the small unit commander in combat situations.

The remainder of the week, the cadets — many of whom are having their first contact with the military — received instruction in fundamental military skills, leadership techniques and organization of the Army, including the role of ROTC.

The first week also included practical work in map reading, drill and ceremonies and physical training.

Five more weeks of intensive training emphasizing citizenship, leadership, problem solving and physical conditioning precede the graduation—the formal conclusion to successful qualification for advance ROTC training leading to a commission as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army.

Typical Georgia weather greeted the first increment of more than 1,500 pre-ROTC cadets as they arrived at the Army Training Center for their initial processing.

Unique in its conception, the ROTC basic summer camp at Ft. Benning is designed for those students who have not taken Military Science 1 and 2 and desire to enter the advance ROTC program at their respective universities and colleges this fall.

Processing of the cadets was accomplished at the South Harmony Church Field House by personnel from all Training Center sections, Martin Army Hospital and The Infantry Center photographic facility.

Eleven stations in the field house included medical, personnel and finance records, medical exams, immunizations, locator cards, hometown news releases, temporary I. D. cards and the always welcome partial pay.

Campus haircuts were replaced with the closer cropped Army version of the well groomed soldier. Quartermaster personnel at June 19, the Clothing Issue Point fitted the cadets with their first Army uniforms, combat boots and low-quarters.

Phenix City Attorney Chosen President of AUSA Chapter

He will succeed Louis T Kunze Jr., officer manager, Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, for first vice president; Col. (ret.) Jacob L. Riley Jr., chairman of the board, Gas Light Company of Columbus, second vice-president; Col. Jack P. Pollock, post dental surgeon, secretary-treasurer and Lt. Col. Douglas B. Tucker, information officer, Fort Benning, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The association also adopted unanimously an amendment to the by-laws providing for the filling of offices in the event of death, resignation or reassignment of any of the officers or members of the board of directors.

The mayors of Columbus and Phenix City were added to the board.

Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general, U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, praised civilian participation in the association and urged career soldiers to play a more active role.

The association must be strengthened as a voice for an institution which is essential to the American value system, the general said.

He urged all Fort Benning officers and noncommissioned officers to join.

A Doughboy statuette was presented to Kunze in recognition of his year of service to AUSA.

Kunze discussed the committee system that the organization has developed for both military and civilian concerns and urged continuation of the membership drive.

He noted that reassignment of Fort Benning personnel has made it difficult to increase local membership roles but voiced his hope that the chapter could play a positive role as the largest and most active in the country.

Three Homes Burn

Thursday afternoon from a blow torch which post engineers had been using in repairing a water pipe which ran between the walls of apartments 236 and 238 in Building 2033, an apartment dwelling on Logan Street.

Sergeant Mullenix, who lived in apartment 236 with his wife and four children, called the post fire department for help about 5:18 p.m.

By 5:25 water was being poured on the flames and furniture was being taken outside.

Vans from the Post Transportation Motor Pool and guards from the 43rd Engineers later took the furniture for temporary storage in a post warehouse.

The blaze had apparently spread from the ground level up through the walls and into apartments 234 and 238.

There were no injuries to anyone in the three families but property damage was heavy.

Damage to the building was estimated at $25,000. No immediate estimates of furniture damage was available, although some observers said that Sergeant Mullenix had lost about eighty per cent of his furniture.

Twenty military policemen arrived almost immediately to control traffic and a crowd of about 300 that had gathered at the scene.

Col. Robert Hall, Infantry Center deputy director of logistics, arranged for the three families to stay overnight in Olsen Hall.

The logistics office placed a priority on relocating the displaced families Friday morning.

Tonight the cadets visit the mock Vietnamese village at Higley Hill, where a platoon of 197th Bde. troops will demonstrate actions of a rifle platoon in counterguerilla operations. The class will learn village search and counter ambush techniques and movement security.

The "Defense of Piel Ben," a reenactment of a "mad minute" defense of a company perimeter, utilizing air strikes, artillery and the combined firepower of a rifle company in the defense caps the training activities for the first classmen tonight.

The group departs tomorrow at 9:10 a.m. from Lawson Field.

A thousand dollars had already been granted to help them reestablish their households as soon as possible.

Army Emergency Relief offered assistance and Army beds were provided until new furniture could be purchased.

By Friday night the three families were settled in their new homes.

crement are the 8th Bn., commanded by Lt. Col. Thomas A. Austin III and Lt Col. William G. Carter's 9th Bn.

As the cadets debarked the many buses bringing them to the assembly point, they were met by one person who will be most closely associated with them throughout their six weeks' training — the Army's Drill Sergeant. As each platoon was formed the drill sergeant accompanied his men through their processing, answering any questions and finally settling them in their barracks.

The cadets also were introduced to their first Army chow as mess stewards and cooks from the 8th and 9th Bns. were on hand to provide coffee and cold drinks, cookies and snacks, as well as sack lunches which included Southern fried chicken.

ARE SERVICE UNIONS ILLEGAL?

Army regulations do not specifically prohibit membership in any organization. However, military status is not the equivalent of a civilian employer-employee relationship. Activities of military members are circumscribed by law, particularly in the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Further, activities by military members in connection with such organizations may constitute an offense punishable under the UCMJ, e.g., urging others not to perform their military duty. Finally, commanders are not authorized to recognize or to bargain with such organizations.

How many chaplains have won the medal of honor?

When Chaplain (CPT) Angelo J. In relation to their strength of approximately 1,900, chaplains are 'holding their own' in terms of recognition for meritorious and heroic acts and services performed in the field and in garrison throughout the world. In addition to the Medal of Honor, decorations listed below were earned by chaplains during 1968:

RECRUITING POLICIES

Is there a Command Information Topic available on the recruiting and retention of personnel policies of the Department of the Army? If so how do I go about getting one?

The US Army Recruiting Command has prepared a briefing on the Army's personnel procurement program designed to inform noncommissioned officers of the structural organization of the Command and its missions and Department of the Army policies in recruiting and retention of personnel.

This briefing has been offered to the CONUS Armies by USAREC, and is available upon request for an Officers' Call or a Commander's Call for a major unit. It is illustrated with 71 35-mm color slides depicting the USAREC mission, organizational structure, and operations. It is further localized to the US Army Third Recruiting District which encompasses the Third US Army area plus Kentucky, Virginia and Puerto Rico.

Play It Cool Driving This Summer

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Summer means that more and more motorists are taking to the road for enjoyment. Each year, however, thousands of otherwise happy holidays are ruined by highway hazards. When the weather is warm, the safe driver must be prepared to take the driving and carcare precautions needed to play it cool.

What causes the accidents?

Surprisingly, statistics on "injury accidents" reveal that the chief factor is not speed but failure to yield the right of way. Following closely behind another car is the second biggest cuase of "injury accidents" in urban areas, third in rural areas. In the area of auto deaths, recent investigations have shown that, next to speed, driving left of center kills more people than anything else.

Certainly the best way to ensure a safer summer is to wear seat belts, either the conventional lap design, or, better yet, the improved lap and shoulder type.

Safety experts have sent in a number of other suggestions to promote safe summer driving.

Be alert to psychological as well as physical causes of accidents. Impatience with the slowpoke or righteous anger at the roadhog. . .failure to realize the potential seriousness of "little" accidents. . .assuming that an experienced driver "automatically" does the right thing in an emergency—these are some of the most common and deadly psychological driving hazards.

Hot, dry conditions and wide open spaces induce drowsiness, and long flat stretches play tricks on the eyes. Moderate speed, additional allowances for passing and an occasional refresher break will make the trip safer and more enjoyable.

To prevent an engine from dangerously overheating, keep a close watch on the dashboard warning lights. Make sure, before setting out, that your serviceman adds an effective anti-freeze and summer coolant. Automobile makers, by the way, do not recommend frequent coolant level checks for their newer models, since removing the radiator cap from a hot engine can be dangerous as a result of the immediate release of pressure in the system. Frequently, hot coolant is spewed over the person removing the cap, or at least over the front of the car. "See you later, radiator" becomes the anguished motto of the perilously stalled driver who hopefully goes in search of water.

At night, are approaching drivers crazy if they keep flashing their lights at you though your own headlights are on low? Not if you have so much weight in the trunk that your car's front end is higher than usual. It may be desirable to redistribute some of your luggage in the back or even in the front of the car.

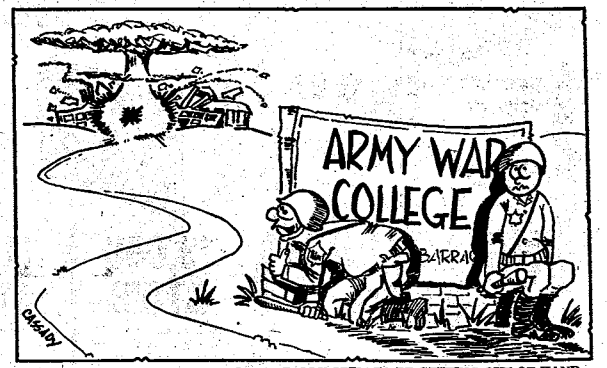
Learn the names and numbers of the roads you must take, the location of turn-offs and the mileage between them. If your wife is coming along, make her your co-navigator. She should be as familiar with the road as you are. Even if she doesn't drive, she should watch out for the proper intersections and for landmarks that may indicate your approach to them. Uncertain motorists interfere with the smooth flow of traffic by their erratic driving.

In the summer, oil, dirt and traffic exhaust build up during long periods of dry weather, producing a dangerous "traffic film" on road surfaces. This film is often so heavy that the first sprinkle of rain makes it treacherous. Slow down until rain washes the film away or until the road dries out entirely.

Mountain driving requires skills. Mot important is keeping the car in "low" on steep downgrades and only using the brakes intermittently. Shift into "low" at the top of the grade to utilize the full breaking effect of the car's engine. Otherwise the automobile's brakes may overheat in short order. Also, check with a knowledgeable serviceman to make sure that the car's cooling system contains the proper concentration of anti-freeze and summer coolant to withstand the stresses of high-altitude driving. A 50 per cent solution will raise the boiling point to provide a significant margin of safety.

How much coffee does it take to sober up a man who's had five drinks? Even a gallon won't do it! It's best, when on a trip that requies driving, to avoid liquor completely.

Following these precautions, the summer driver will enhance the safety and enjoyment of himself and his passengers. And, chances are, he won't get stuck in a roadway rut.



THESE CAMPUS DEMONSTRATIONS REALLY SEEM TO BE GETTING OUT OF HAND

Less Freedom in Army Common Complaint, Not Necessarily So Says Career Counselor

One fairly common complaint of the younger men I have spoken with is that the Army offers less personal freedom than civilian life. Yet I have talked with older men who feel just the opposite. Since there are two kinds of freedom, and differences of opinion regarding the same, let's define it basically for the sake of argument. To condense Webster's lengthy definition as much as possible, we can say simply that freedom is the absence of restraint. Let's consider some restraining elements of both civilian and military life.

Some first-termers claim that one freedom advantage of civilian life over the Army is that a civilian can - or quit his job without fear of breaking a law. To an extent this is certainly true. But, let's face it, it would be foolhardy to say that the average civilian is free to do so when he pleases, for there are numerous restraining factors in the laws of nature to contend with, such as the desire to eat regularly, make payments on the house, car, furniture, keep shoes on the kiddies, and most of all, to insure one's earning power by preserving a good business reputation and job seniority. Finding a new job might be easy but this much is certain: good jobs usually require seniority and are definitely not available to "job-hoppers."

In the soldier's case it is true that he cannot quit until the end of his hitch, but he does have what I feel are infinitely more profitable alternatives than sacrificing invested time.

For example, in the event of injustices or unreconcilable differences between a soldier and his supervisor, he has the right to solicite the impartial mediation of the next higher authority, right up the chain of command. If this fails to satisfy the grievance then he can turn to specialized agencies such as the Inspector General or Judge Advocate General, etc.

Parents Accept Son's Awards

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, first Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Medal with "V", first Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart were posthumously awarded to Specialist Four Harry J. Cloud in a ceremony here June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Cloud, Gretna, Fla., the soldier's parents, accepted the awards for their son.

On January 31, 1969, Specialist Cloud was serving as a machine-gunner with Company C, 2nd Battalion, 39th Infantry, on an ambush patrol in Dinh Tuong Province, Vietnam.

During the night, after setting up their bivouac, Cloud's platoon came under a heavy enemy attack. Cloud exposed himself to enemy fire in order to more effectively engage them.

After the enemy withdrew and Specialist Cloud's unit had moved to another location, they once more came under enemy attack. Specialist Cloud was mortally wounded as he moved to return fire. It was for this action that he received the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, first Oak Leaf Cluster.

Specialist Cloud received the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in connection with military operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam from July, 1968, to January, 1969.

The Army Commendation Medal with "V" device, first Oak Leaf Cluster, was awarded to Specialist Cloud for heroism in connection with military operations involving conflict with an armed hostile force on Jan. 3, 1969. Serving as an acting squad leader, he played an important role in overtaking a Viet Cong force.

Specialist Cloud received the Purple Heart for wounds received in Vietnam of Jan. 31, 1969, which resulted in his death.

In addition to his parents, Specialist Cloud is survived by his sister, Christine, 12; his cousins, Betty and Evon Cloud; his uncle, Aaron Cloud, and his aunts, Mrs. Johnny Folks, Miss Annette Waisely and Miss Sally Williams. All live in Gretna, Fla.

10th Aviation Wives Hear Talk on Ice Cream Desserts

The 10th Aviation wives held their Group coffee at Wells Dairy Tuesday morning. The mother and daughter social was hosted by the 177th Company with Mrs. Robert G. Shain serving as chairman.

Apart from his regular duties, Byrom DuPree, ice-cream sales manager, demonstrated ways to enhance dessert appeal using various techniques with ice-cream.

DuPree explained the methods required for producing successful sundaes with appropriate toppings of fresh fruit, sauces and nuts.

Following the instruction, mothers and daughters teamed up to concoct their own original sundaes. The ladies marveled at their inventions, but did find difficulty in christening the masterpieces.

Among the dozen previously prepared desserts given as door prizes were Pink Lady cupcakes, Bombes, Chocolate Charlottes, Berry Ice-cream shortcakes and Igloo Alaska.

Mrs. Eugene B. Conrad, wife of the 10th Group commander, presented silver disk charms with raised flight wings as a token of her appreciation for Group cooperation. These awards were given to the following departing members: Mesdames Bobby G. Hanna, Louis E. Sullenberger Jr., Richadd S. Daum, Robert Wren, James R. Callen, Everette Minor and Walter Lasher.

Mrs. Hanna and Mrs. Sullenberger were also rewarded thrift shop certificates for their volunteered hours of service.

Newcomers welcomed into Group were Mrs Clint Hall, Mrs Hoard Eubanks, Mrs. William Hargrove, Mrs. Billy Stafford and Mrs. Robert Gaskins.

During a brief business meeting, the ladies donated contributions to the Wives of the Golden Star toward further purchase of the United States Flags on Victory Drive.

Preceding the escorted tour of the plant Du Pree complimented the wives with recipe books containing numerous ideas for preparing ice-cream desserts.

'Old South' Used as Party Theme

The 56th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, celebrated their turning of Intermediate Status with a party recently in the company area.

Honored guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Dennis J. Harron, Maj. and Mrs. Frank G. Shaw and Captain (Capt.) and Mrs. Phillip J. Casalbry.

The "Old South" was the theme of the party. The alcove between the Gold Bar Club and the 56th Company took the part of the Old South. A large mural of a steamboat, wrought-iron furniture, flowers and Spanish Moss was used to create the effect.

A slightly different approach was used to provide protection in case of showers. Parachutes had been hung between the buildings. A walk-way between the company's messhall and the Gold Bar Club was also covered with the canopies, creating a billowing walkway.

The entertainment program was provided by an ensemble of candidates doing a take-off on the "Pop Generation."

A local band, the Rams, provided the evening dance music.

Chef's Corner

New York (NAPS) — Wilting weather calls for reviving fare from the kitchen. Preferably something that keeps the cook as cool as everyone else, and gives her time to share summer's leisurely pace.

Here are some fine examples which depend on time-saving dairy foods for nutrition, flavor and "coolth."

Fizzy, frosty and gaily garnished, Alamode Coolers are as festive a collection of refreshers as ever sprouted from lawn glass-holders. And just the cool, sweet-sipping touch to please a gathering of any age.

• • •

ALAMODE COOLERS

Banana Froth (4 glasses) — 1 cup mashed bananas, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 pint sparkling water (chilled), 1 pint vanilla ice cream, banana slices (unpeeled.)

(Beat together bananas, milk, sugar and vanilla; divide into 4 tall glasses. Mix in a little sparkling water. Add scoop of ice cream to each glass; fill with sparkling water and stir. Garnish glasses with unpeeled banana slices, if desired.)

• • •

Apricot Fizz (4 glasses) — 1½ cups (12-oz can) apricot nectar, 1 pint ginger ale or sparkling water, (chilled,) 1 pint vanilla ice cream or lemon sherbet.

• • •

Fruit Punch Frost (4 glasses) — 1 cup diced fresh strawberries, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup orange juice, ½ cup pineapple juice, 2 tablespoons lime juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 pint vanilla ice cream, 1 pint sparkling water (chilled), fruit kabobs.

(Mix strawberries and sugar; add fruit juices. Divide fruit mixture into 4 tall glasses. Add about 1 tablespoon ice cream and a little sparkling water; mix. Add scoop of ice cream to each glass; fill with sparkling water and stir. Garnish with fruit kabobs.)

Pastor Beach Set To Speak

The Reverend Mrs. E. M. Beach, pastor of a non-denominational church in Bremerton, Wash., will be the guest speaker at the Monday meeting of the evening chapter of Protestant Women of the Chapels.

The meeting will be held in Bldg. 2605 of the Religious Education Center at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Beach is the mother of Mrs. L. W. Pitts, who is a member of PWOC and a fifth grade Sunday School teacher at Fort Benning.

SAILOR, BEWARE!

POPULAR SWIM - SHEATH

Swim-Shape For Summer?

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Will you be in a swim-shape for summer?

As the fashion picture comes into focus, we can see an exciting, varied style story. The one-piece suit is in the limelight, but the bare bikini look is still on stage.

Brand-new versions of the swimdress, sheath, maillot, and costume look are fashion stars . . . and we've chosen these from Robby Len . . . swimsuits for summer's mood.

— Sailor, beware! Robby Len sails into fashion with a trio of knitted nautical niceties . . . in red, white and blue, they're see-worthy to be sure.

— Swiss dots are dashing . . . no doubt about it. This trio is delectable floral print, blossoming on fine dacron-cotton, is destined to bloom on the best beaches this summer.

— The ever-popular swim-sheath is interpreted here in Helanca, with a permanently pleated sheer front. Shown with it is another snappy sheath style in figure-following textured knit.

— Care to be a vision in voile? This flattering, feminine fabric takes the fashion spotlight in sheer swim-looks, daintily printed in soft pastels.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

King's Pizza On Call

The growing multitude of Chinese cooking enthusiasts may take heart in knowing that the very perishable ginger root can be kept for months if it's soaked in sherry.

Try frosted grapes to garnish meat or as dessert with cheese and crackers. Brush a bunch of seedless grapes with beaten egg white, then sprinkle with sugar. Dry on rack and chill before serving.

The first printed cookbook, published in Italy in 1475, advised a game of cards or chess after meals to aid digestion.

Tuck each chicken wing tip down under the shoulder joint before broiling. Keeps wings flat so that the tips don't burn before the rest of the chicken browns.

Most cooks have favorite company-dinner dishes. Keep a note-book to avoid serving the same meal to the same guests twice in a row.

For Second Year

Nine-Day Camp Will Begin For Exceptional Children

By Frank Truchon

A hot sun in a jeweled azure sky illuminated the laughing faces of the children on the playground of Faith School here over the weekend.

A little fellow who had just come to bat assured bystanders that he was going "to wallop that ball."

Three other boys were standing in a huddle beneath the shade of a large elm tree with their arms folded in front of themselves, whispering perhaps about pirates and swimming and—who knows what other high adventure?

Inside the school approximately 15 boys and girls were busy creating pen holder sets and calendars for Father's Day gifts.

It was a fun day like the old memories of the ones we used to have, yet not quite. For these 40 youngsters are some of the wonderful little people that are known as exceptional children. And until recently there were not many such laughter-filled days as these youngsters are having now.

Prior to April of last year, the only activity here for the exceptional child outside of the schoolroom was a Sunday School class for special children taught by Mrs. Faith Curran.

Mrs. Curran began discussing the problem with the parents of the children, who, as a result, organized the group known as Parents and Friends of Exceptional Children.

The group holds monthly meetings in Building No. 2506 at 7:30 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month, and invites guest speakers to lecture on handicapped children. They also work closely with the Army Community Service (ACS) Handicap Committee to help supervise activities of games and crafts for exceptional children of military personnel each Saturday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30 at Faith School.

As a result of the close working relationships between the Parents and Friends group and the ACS committee, a nine-day summer camp activity began in 1968. At that time, 43 children participated in crafts at McBride School, field trips to see a fire engine and a helicopter, swimming at Carey Pool and bowling at the post bowling center.

The day camp ended with a picnic and the presentation of a small engraved trophy to each child by Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., then commanding general of U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Plans are nearing completion for the second day camp for exceptional children to run Monday through July 3.

But 400,000 Men in Reserves

Entire Staff of Swiss Army Has Only 500 Officers

Every able-bodied male between the age of 20 and 50 serves in the reserve Army of Switzerland. The reserves forces can mobilize 80 per cent of their 400,000 man force in 24 hours. Unless mobilized, however, the entire full time staff of the Swiss Army is approximately 500 officers.

Major Lionel Bally is one of those 500 officers in the Swiss Army. He trains 11 months out of the year as an infantry lieutenant, and the other month serves as the assistant commander of an infantry regiment.

The commanding officers of the Swiss Army is no less active. He serves on active duty one month out of the year. The Swiss, planning a defense, conscripts practically every able bodied male and keeps them in the reserves. Even the lieutenant colonels spend one month a year with their units.

Major Bally, when recently interviewed through a translator, discussed the Swiss Army and how it functions in Switzerland. He originally planned to be an artillery officer in the Swiss military.

"Every male enters the Army at 20", he said. "He spends four months of training and then becomes a soldier. Training is mandatory then at the beginning level, however, once the unit or the cycle they have completed, they have their own choice.

"After finishing the training, the soldiers have the option to continue with the unit they have been trained with. In Switzerland there are 600,000 men and women assigned to active units. The militia is organized by cantons and districts. Each canton has its own militia unit.

"The most basic unit is the squad, consisting of 10 men. Three squads make a platoon. Three platoons make a company. Three companies make a battalion. Three battalions make a regiment. Three regiments make a division. Switzerland has six divisions in training.

"Every male must serve in the Army until he is 50 years old. Then he is relieved from duty. He is not required to go to training anymore. Many men in the Swiss Army are married and have families. Their families remain behind when they go to training. Many men must go to training camps. They live in barracks. Their families remain behind in their homes. Switzerland is a country of small communities and cities. Most of the men live in their own communities and when on training camps, they live in their own homes. Their families remain behind in their permanent units.

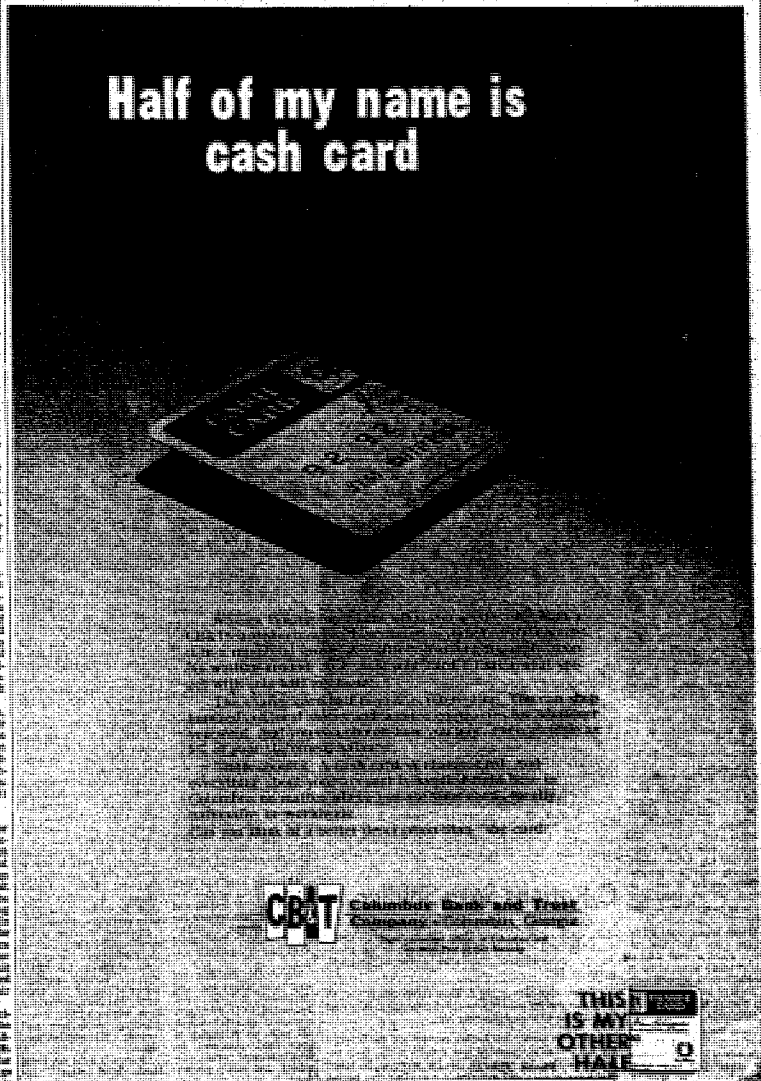
"Swiss officers are selected from the ranks of the enlisted soldiers. Men who show leadership qualities are selected to attend officer candidate school. After completing the officer candidate school, they are assigned to units as platoon leaders. After another four months, they will be assigned to a unit.

Likewise, before an officer becomes the company commander of a regular unit, he spends one cycle as the company commander of a training company in the recruit school.

Law Graduate

For each training company there is one instructor officer. That is the job Major Bally holds. Before he could qualify as an instructor, he completed all the normal military training and received a commission and then graduated from the University of Fribourg, Switzerland, with a masters of law degree.

He decided to make the Army his career and has worked as an Infantry instructor since 1953. He teaches two cycles of recruit school a year and spends the other time teaching tactics at schools or with his unit, Mountain Regiment 7, Division 10.



Merchants of Danger

Unique Soldiers Disarm Explosives

By Sp4 James Brown

CHU LAI (AMERICAL-IO)—Looking for a big bang out of life? The unique soldiers of the 133rd Ordnance Detachment (Explosive Ordnance Disposal—EOD) take the daily risk as merchants of danger when disarming and disposing of dangerous explosives.

Such big boomers can blow someone skyhigh. But the EOD teams expertly retrieve, for disposal or salvage, abandonded or dud-fired munitions. It is a hard job accomplished only through extreme delicacy by individuals with steel nerves.

"One of our biggest moments came when a dud, 16-inches in diameter and weighing more than 2,700 pounds from the Battleship New Jersey failed to detonate near the Batangan Peninsula," said Capt. Allen K. Rossen, officer-in-charge (OIC) of EOD. "We had to use 40-pounds of C-4 (a plastic explosive) to dispose of it."

The incentive pay for hazardous duty fails to issue physical or psychological fortification when EOD personnel are called to disarm or dispose of enemy mines, boobytraps and other explosives.

Only volunteer personnel compose the EOD. Perfection is their only quality; because their lives depend on it.

"We never take out less than two men on any call," said Sp4 James S. Randolph, an EOD team member, "because two heads are better than one. When an accident occurs because of carelessness by anyone, we sort of look callously upon it."

Before an EOD man is considered qualified to handle explosives he has at least 21-weeks of training. The course consists of two weeks of chemical and biological munitions training at Fort McClellan, Ala., and then 19-weeks of conventional land ordinances of all countries at Indian Head, Md.

The Maryland EOD School trains personnel from all branches of the U.S. Armed Forces, and it is operated by the Department of the Navy.

The 10-man EOD unit assigned to the First Logistical Command and attached to 80th General Support Group (FWD)—works throughout the Americal AO speeding to over 180 calls monthly.

The EOD's mission is to the point: To render safe disposal of all latent and hazardous munitions.

"We disarm and dispose of various types of munitions," said Capt. Rossen. "It might be any munition that's 'Charlie's,' or anything brought here by the French or the U.S."

After the base had been constructed, a soldier began digging his foxhole and discovered that he and the LZ were nesting on a 250-pound bomb. The 133rd EOD came to the their rescue.

The EOD's job does not stop with disarming and disposal of munitions. Teams of EOD men give classes at different Americal units on principles of basic land ordnances, identification of various munitions, and safety precautions in using explosives and munitions.

GREETINGS . . . This shaped charge greeting stands in the way of any enemy soldiers who may attempt to overrun Fire Support Base Mahone II near Dau Tieng. The high explosive "hello" was placed there by the 3rd Platoon, Bravo Co., 1st Bn., 27th Infantry "Wolfhounds."

Chicago Bear's Owner Sends Football To Soldier In Vietnam

BySp4 Jim Bruce

LZ BLADY, Republic of Vietnam, (AMERICAL IO) —One of the longest forward passes in the history of professional football was right on target from Chicago Bear's owner George Halas to an Americal Division mortarman from the 196th Infantry Brigade.

The 13,000 mile pass was completed all the way from the Windy City of Chicago to Z Baldy, located 18 miles northwest of Tam Ky.

Sp4 Steve Roash wrote a letter to the Bear's owner and former coach explaining his situation. "I wanted to keep in touch with the game and I needed something to keep my arm in shape."

A few weeks later, the chief ammo bearer of Co. E, 2nd Bn., 1st Inf. was pleasantly surprised to find a package in the mail. Opening it, he discovered an official National Football League (NFL) football and a Bears team picture autographed by Halas.

"It's the very best made," said Roash, running his big hands appreciatively over the pigskin. "They mailed it fully inflated, too. We didn't even have to pump it up to start playing."

Roash knows some of the Bears fan. He has always spent a good deal of his ft years wrapped up in football. So it seemed only natural to write Halas from his duty station and ask for a little help.

Coash knows some of the Bear players from his old high school team personally. After finishing high school himself, he spent a couple of years playing center back at Northeastern Oklahoma Junior College, one of the perennial contenders for the national JC football crown.

He is looking forward to going back to school and playing again after his military hitch is up, perhaps to the University of Southern Illinois.

"I've been away for awhile, and that may be a bit of a problem," said Roash, "but I still have two years of eligibility left, and I sure plan to give it a try."

COOL TREAT . . . A can of C-ration fruit cocktail and a shady haystack is a treat from the hot day's sun for Sp4 Don Peters, 25th Infantry Division's 2nd Bn., 14th Infantry north of Cu Chi.

C-Rations Save Soldier

CAMP EAGLE, Republic of Vietnam (101st IO) — Soldiers often complain about their C-Rations, but a medic from the 101st Airborne Division has nothing but praise for the much-aligned "Cs" after a can of spaghetti saved his life.

On an operation in the A Shau Valley Sp5 Robert C. Daly was moving toward a wounded comrade to give first aid when an RPG exploded near him.

After the enemy had broken contact and the Screaming Eagles had a chance to take a quick break, Daly began examining his rucksack. To his surprise, he found that a can of spaghetti wrapped in a sandbag just behind his head contained a jagged piece of shrapnel.

Buffalo Springfield

Guitarist Now Runs Messages For Army

By PFC Carl Ekengren

LZ BALDY, Republic of Vietnam, (Americal IO)—PFC Mike Weaver, an Americal Division artilleryman, has been involved with communicating most of his life, whether delivering inspiring sounds as lead guitarist with the popular Buffalo Springfield Band or running a message center for the Army.

"We started our five piece band in 1961—then known as the 'Rugbees'," said Weaver. "It was just about the same time when the Beatles were really the 'in' group."

The band started playing at high school dances and then advanced to hotels and clubs. Later, the band changed its name to the Buffalo-Springfield and performed at the Monterey Pop Festival in Tennessee and made television appearances on American Bandstand and Hullabaloo.

In addition to being lead guitarist, Weaver is also a lyricist and is co-writer of the song "Rock and Roll Woman," a number which shot the Buffalo-Springfield to an overnight success.

He works in the headquarters battery message center of the 3rd Bn., 82nd Arty., and does everything from driving a truck to distributing newspapers and running a mimeograph machine.

"It sure is a far cry from those hand days," remarked Weaver, "but in my spare time I strum on my guitar and reflect back on those good ol' musical years."

Hog Project Aids Village Of Refugees

CAMP EAGLE, Republic of Vietnam (101st IO)—In their continuing effort to help Vietnamese refugees become more self-sufficient and enable them to return to their homes with some means of support, the civil affairs team of the 101st Airborne Division's 3rd Brigade has initiated a new self-help program.

With the cooperation of the 178th Maintenance Co., the team is providing facilities for the raising of hogs as a community project for Gia Long A, a refugee village in nearby Phong Dien.

"The people in the village provided half the materials, and we provided the other half," said Capt. Cloyd Jacobs, brigade civil affairs officer. "Then the 178th built a large pig pen capable of holding 30 to 40 pigs."

The initial purchase of ten pigs was made by CORDS, a U.S. government organization which deals in the civil aspect of pacification and development in the Republic of Vietnam.

"This program, like others already in progress within the various refugee villages in the area, is designed to enable the refugee to eventually return to his home with some measure of self-support," Jacobs explained.

Enlisted Men Are Encouraged To Apply for OCS

Enlisted men at Fort Benning are encouraged to apply for openings in the Army's Officer Candidate School program.

Applicants must have a high school diploma or a high school equivalency certificate.

They must score 110 or better on the Officer Candidate Test and 75 or better on the Officer Qualification Inventory.

Three schools are presently training candidates. These are Artillery OCS Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Engineer OCS — Fort Belvoir, Virginia; and Infantry OCS — Fort Benning.

Applicants can apply for any of ten Army branches.

Interested enlisted men and warrant officers are encouraged to contact their unit commander or personnel officers.

The Army Training Center here will process applications from basic trainees. Other applications will be forwarded to Third U.S Army headquarters for consideration.

A draftee who applies must agree to accept an early discharge and then reenlist for three years.

An enlistee with fewer than six months left on active duty must agree to extend for sufficient time to complete the program.

Upon completion of the OCS program, newly commisioned officers must serve a minimum of two years on active duty.

Basic trainees applying for OCS will be sent to Advanced Individual Training.

Those selected for Engineer OCS generally take Engineer AIT at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Those selected for Artillery OCS generally receive AIT at the Artillery Training Center at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and those chosen for Infantry training receive Infantry AIT at various Infantry Centers through the country.

The 22-week OCS program emphasizes company-level leadership training. Duties of the junior officer are stressed.

Candidates are constantly evaluated for command ability, leadership and similar traits.

Special project officers have been appointed at each major command at Fort Benning to porcess and expedite enlisted applications.

Current plans call for more than double the number of enlisted men to enter Infantry OCS here this summer compared to the May Officer Candidate Student in-put.

Project Marksman Takes Aim at Current Training

By Spt Frank Truchon

The place is the steaming, hot jungle of South Vietnam, as you, the point man, lead a platoon from Alfa Company along the narrow trail toward a preselected ambush site. Suddenly, it happens! The enemy appears just 50 meters away.

What do you do — use Quick Kill? Do you drop to a prone position and take careful aim? Do you fire single shots or just spray the area with automatic fire?

These questions and many others concerning the fundamental application of combat marksmanship are being given detailed study by the Infantry School at the direction of U. S. Continental Army Command (USCONARC). This effort has been designated Project Marksman.

HumRRO

The Weapons Department of The Infantry School is charged with the primary task of conducting the tests and is receiving assistance from the Human Resources Research Office (HumRRO), the U. S. Army Infantry Board, and the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

"Project Marksman is a comprehensive study of current rifle marksmanship training to determine how to improve present training in order to increase the combat effectiveness of the individual soldier."

This is how Dr. James W. Dees, a researcher in HumRRO and work unit leader of Project Marksman, described the overall purpose of the various tests currently being conducted at Fort Benning, Fort Lewis, Fort Jackson, Fort Bliss and Fort Gordon. Before the project is completed, all 12 Army Training Centers will have been actively involved.

Project Marksman

USCONARC initiated Project Marksman in December, 1968, and the actual testing started in March of this year. Testing deals with a wide variety of subject areas and includes gathering the base data on current trainee performance in such areas as mechanical training, 25-meter firing, field firing, night firing and record firing, to name only a few.

Two of 10 tests currently scheduled are being conducted at Fort Benning. They include an already completed night firing test, which is now undergoing analysis, and a test at Maertens Range from May 26-June 13 on the relative merits of Quick Kill, coarse aim, and precision aim firing in the semiautomatic and automatic mode using five different firing positions. These firing positions include standing, kneeling, kneeling-supported, prone and prone-supported.

Quick Kill

Quick Kill is described by Major William E. Smith III, a member of the Rifle Marksmanship Evaluation Team of the Weapons Department's Small Arms Committee, as a rapid pointing technique where the soldier is taught to think of the rifle as an extension of the pointed finger and firing is done without the use of sights.

Major Smith defined coarse aim as the technique by which a man aims at a target as rapidly as possible, using the rifle's sights, and fires the instant he is on target.

The third method of firing, precision firing, makes thorough use of all the eight steady-hold factors, according to Major Smith. These factors, the grip of the left hand, the spot weld or placement of the rifle stock against the cheek, breathing, trigger-control, and the remainder, are essential for deliberate shooting.

The Weapons Department is administering and supporting the tests here and at other posts, and is receiving technical assistance from HumRRO, which has the responsibility of designing the experiments and statistically analyzing and interpreting them. However, Dr. Dees emphasized that the working relationships of all agencies and parties involved were very flexible, depending on what was best for a given experiment. The total number of tests to be conducted in Project Marksman is not fixed since information gained from completed tests often develops requirements for additional investigation.

NCOC's

During the test at Maertens Range, 96 Candidates from the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course (NCOC) at Fort Benning fire M-16 rifles at randomly presented targets ranging in distance from 25 to 275 meters.

The results of the firing are being monitored by sophisticated electronic equipment. The U. S. Army Infantry Board, a subordinate agency of the Test and Evaluation Command of the U. S. Army Materiel Commaod is assisting in the evaluation by providing a tape drive-recorder for direct computer input, electronic timers for sensitive microphones for collection of precise and accurate data.

This monitoring equipment will be used to determine the number of rounds an individual fires, the time it takes him to obtain a hit, the number of targets hit, and the azimuth and elevation of each round as it passes the target.

These measures will be obtained for six different distances and thirty different combinations of firing conditions. The time to first hit will determine which combinations of the firing techniques are best in a rapid fire situation according to target distance. The location of each round fired will make possible the calculation of hit probability for any size target, at any reasonable range.

Firing Procedures

"These measurements will enable us to determine which combination of firing procedures is the most effective at various ranges: semi-automatic or automatic fire; using Quick Kill, coarse aim or precision aim techniques," Dr. Dees said.

Some of the tests to be conducted are the result of analysis of a Weapons Department questionnaire recently sent to units in Vietnam. In this way, the current practices of American units in Vietnam will be incorporated into Project Marksman. In addition, a systems engineering study of basic combat training, recently initiated by the Infantry School, will indicate areas needing additional investigation.

When the methods of firing under different combinations of firing techniques are determined, the results will be forwarded to the U. S. Continental Army Command. If these new methods are approved, they will be incorporated into Basic and Advanced Marksmanship Training, and the Army manuals for these subjects will be rewritten by the Weapons Department.

Career Counselor Is Former Mule Skinner

By Bill Hardin

Many an opponent of SFC Louis L. F. Prolago who faced him in the boxing ring would agree that his punch has the kick of a mule or at least a mule skinner.

Former holder of the 82nd Airborne Division, Third United States Army, All Army, and Intra Service lightweight boxing titles, the one-time mule skinner is currently serving as a career counselor for the 10th Aviation Group.

Entering the Army in 1943, at the age of 17, he took his basic training with the U.S. Cavalry, Mounted Horseback, at The Cavalry Replacement Training Center, Ft. Riley, Kan. From there he was sent to Fresno, Calif. for five weeks of training as a mule skinner.

He calls his duty as a mule skinner "quite an experience." "We fed, bathed, and worked hard with the stubborn animals. They are far more difficult to work with than most other animals; much more difficult than horses," Prolago said. "My training as a mule skinner included learning how to discipline them and how to work with them as a team of two, or four, drawing a cart or wagon, and how to properly hook on loads of supplies with varying harnesses and frames," he said.

After his training with the mules, he was sent to Burma, where he joined the famous Merrill's Marauders.

He had the task of picking up air dropped supplies and delivering them over winding mountain trails to the fighting men.

"On one of the deliveries with my six mules and Chinese pony, I took the wrong trail and became lost. My men were out of food and drinking water for two days before we got together. I was their hero of the week then," he stated.

"We had Missouri mules. They were both stubborn and sensitive. They seemed to be quite happy with a heavy pack on their back but they hated to pull a cart or a wagon," the sergeant commented.

The mules had names and serial numbers. And as soldiers, who wear metal tags around their necks with their names on them, each mule wore a tag around his neck.

"I had a mule named Frank, which was the same as my father's name. I used to tell dad and tease him about my mule, I'd tell him that my mule, Frank, was just as stubborn and mean to me as he used to be," Prolago said.

His association with the Army mules ended in Burma. He and his fellow mule skinners trained the Chinese to handle the mules and the animals were left overseas when the mule skinners returned to the United States.

Chicago Bunker Joins Hall of Fame

PFC George Burks

Thomas A. Lewis, Investment Banker and Stock Broker for F. S. Moseley & Co., Chicago, Illinois, became the latest member of the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame in a ceremony at Wigle Hall, Site of the Hall of Fame, on June 9.

Brigadier General Sidney B. Berry, Assistant Commandant of the United States Army Infantry School, inducted Mr. Lewis into the Hall. During the course of his visit to Wigle Hall, Mr. Lewis signed the official Hall of Fame membership register, received his membership certificate, was shown his picture which will be hung in the Hall, and toured Wigle Hall, which is located in the 5th Student Battalion area, The Candidate Brigade.

Lewis was a graduate of OCS Class No. 153, and was commissioned a second lieutenant on Jan. 16, 1943. During the course of WWII, Mr. Lewis attained the rank of Captain, and served in North Africa, Italy, and Southern France. Mr. Lewis was retired from the Army with the rank of Captain, his retirement in Sept. 1946 being due to wounds sustained in combat.

For his activities in the Second World War, Lewis was the recipient of numerous awards, among them being the Silver Star, the Bronze Sar with "V" device and cluster, the French Croix de Guerre with gold star, the Presidential Unit Citation with cluster, the Purple Heart with cluster, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Lewis, in addition to being a stock broker and banker, is a member of the board of trustees of several industries, colleges and universities. He has also rendered consistent service to the Armed Services and to various veterans organizations.

In order to be inducted into the Infantry OCS Hall of Fame, a person must satisfy one of four prerequisites: He must be a graduate of Infantry OCS and have attained the rank of full colonel while on active duty; he must be elected or appointed to an office of national prominence; he must be the recipient of the Medal of Honor; or, he must be recommended by the Commandant of the U. S. Army Infantry School in recognition of his outstanding service.

Movie Synopsis

TRUE GRIT — The strangest trio to track a killer. A fearless, one-eyed U.S. Marshal (John Wayne) who never knew a dry day in his life . . . a Texas Ranger (Glen Campbell) thirsty for some bounty money . . . and a girl still wet behind the ears (Kim Dary) who didn't care what they were or who they were as long as they had TRUE GRIT.

THE FIXER — They laughed at the man known as THE FIXER. . they accused him. . beat him . . . condemned him. . and after all that, they were more afraid of THE FIXER than ever. Now Bernard Malamud's great Pulitzer Prize winning novel bursts upon the scene. There never was a motion picture experience like THE FIXER.

IRMA LA DOUCE — Two of the screen's most popular stars, Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine, are together again in one of the funniest pictures ever produced. This story concerns the dilemma of a Paris policeman, played by Jack Lemmon, who leads a raid on premises which Shirley usually frequents. A romance follows which is complicated hilarity at its best and must be seen to be appreciated.

THEY CAME TO ROB LAS VEGAS — An exciting thriller with fast action, Elke Sommer, Lee J. Cobb and Jack Palance. The story begins when a gang steals an armored van containing millions in cash and gold in the middle of the Nevada desert. The shock that shook Vegas to its foundations... the heist that challenged the syndicate boys in their own backyard!

NEVER A DULL MOMENT —This Walt Disney show features Dick Van Dyke in the role of an actor who is mistakenly hired by a big time crime syndicate. Dick's unparalleled talents take him through one comic predicament after another. It's strictly a "laugh-affair."

WHERE IT'S AT — A modern drama of the generation gap with comedic overtones. A. C. Smith (David Janssen) is part owner and operator of one of Las Vegas' most glamorous gambling and fun houses. Being a sharp Las Vegas gambler, he decides to teach his idealistic son Andy (Robert Drivas) the facts of life in a dog-eat-dog world, only to have his son teach him a thing or two.

'MONTE WALSH' — Jeanne Moreau stars with Lee Marvin in "Monte Walsh." Although the internationally celebrated French actress has appeared in several American motion pictures, this is her first major movie to be filmed in the states. The movie, which is now being shot on location in Arizona, deals with a cowboy trying to escape from his destiny.

Adler Picks Tough Project

HOLLYWOOD — Jerry Adler, a young and outgoing former literary agent has undertaken his first motion picture, and with typical derring-do has picked what may be the year's toughest screen project.

Called "Nobody Loves Flapping Eagle," it is a humorful and socially significant story about a group of militant contemporary Indians who seek redress by legally and noisily claiming for their own the city of Phoenix, Arizona. Anthony Quinn plays the title role.

What Warner Bros.-Seven Arts film, Adler explains, "is outspokenly favorable to the Indian. In making it I am determined to underscore the sad facts of the Indian's national neglect."

A Review

'Pajama Tops' 'Is Funniest Show'

By Larry K. Conklin

The current production of the French comedy, "Pajama Tops" by the Fort Benning Players is one of the funniest stage shows I have seen in six years in Army Special Services.

The condensed version adapted to a one-hour production for the "mobile stage" and directed by Michael Gamble is extremely well done. Michael Gamble, a familiar name at the playhouse, is extremely talented in all phases of the theater.

The one character that stands out is the portrayal of Leonard Jolijoli by Jim Warren. His stage characterization of Mou-Mou (French for Softie) is done with the infinite ability of a professional and the style of a superb comic.

The portrayal of Babette Latouche, a sultry liberal minded French mistress, by Miss Lynda White is done extremely well and is carried off by the young actress as if it were her personal possession.

The young couple Yvonne and Georges Chauvinet, portrayed by Kathy Meadors and Robert Bowers, is done very well. Kathy Meadors, a newcomer to the playhouse, would make a perfect Hollywood Sex Symbol.

The part of Claudine, the typical French maid, is played by Deborah Trotter. Her long blond hair, showgirl figure and acting ability are all the prerequisites needed for her exquisite portrayal.

The role of Jacques LaTouche, the jealous, gambling, fugitive husband of Babette, is played by Jeff Martini. Jeff, also a newcomer to the playhouse carries is part off with the ability of a professional.

The scenery is fantastic. Designed and constructed by J. Michael Calitri, the set is very colorful and designed for the fullest convenience of the cast and the technical crew.

In my opinion, if there is one play that should not be missed by anyone, it is the current production of The Fort Benning Players, "Pajama Tops."

'Love American Style' To Deal With Different Aspects of Love

Want to see yourself on television?

Chances are you will on "Love American Style," which will be happening on ABC-TV starting in September (Mondays, 10-11 p.m., EDT). That is, if you are in love, have been in love, expect to be—or at least have given the matter some fervent thought.

That's because in every program there will be three or four stories, plus blackouts, each dealing with an entirely different—but always funny—aspect of the sometimes tender passion. Stories of the unmarried, just-married, long-married, multi-married; teenagers and pensioners; tycoons and truck drivers; jet setters and file clerks. Stories of love wise and foolish, tender and mad, warm and cool, bittersweet and farcical.

You know how love is.

There's a different cast for each story. You'll see famous stars in the kinds of roles that have made them famous, and in some cases the kind of roles they've never played but always wanted to. At this writing, we've been filming for two weeks—the equivalent of two shows.

OFFICER CANDIDATE CUTS CAKE
Bynum And Miss Mercer Hold Cake For Idzal

Surprise Party, Cake, Songfest Celebrate OC Idzal's Birthday

A birthday cake, a pretty girl, a representative from the USO and a songfest marked the end of a special and surprising day for Officer Candidate Mark T. Idzal of the 61st Infantry Officer Candidate Company, 6th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade.

When he came out of field training with his company that day, Idzal, a native of Sioux City, Iowa, was rain-soaked and covered with mud.

Back in the company area, he was told by his tactical officer that he was to change into his dress uniform immediately. Meanwhile, the special guests and the entire company assembled outside the barracks.

"Candidate Idzal, Post!" Idzal came forward and stood on a platform in front of his company and the wives of men in the company.

At this point, Miss Susan Mercer, who holds the title of "Miss Century" (the yearbook queen) at Columbus College, presented Idzal with a birthday cake.

The entire company and all the wives joined in singing "Happy Birthday" to the more than surprised candidate who said afterward, "They never keep me informed."

Henry H. Bynum, representing the USO in Columbus, then explained that the whole event had come about as a result of a note from Idzal's family in Sioux City to the Chamber of Commerce in Columbus, asking if they could obtain a cake through them to send to their son, whom they knew was busy in training.

The Chamber of Commerce contacted the USO, with the result that Candidate Idzal's part took place.

Open House Set At Arts Center

Military personnel, their dependents over the age of 14 and civilian employees are invited to attend the official opening of the new arts and crafts center, located at the corner of Sightseeing Road and Eckel Street. The open house will be held Monday from 3 to 10 p.m.

The center will provide facilities for approximately 16 different crafts, according to Huge E. Cook, craft director. These crafts include woodcraft, sculpture, ceramics, painting, leathercraft, model construction, electronics, cutting and engraving of stones and metal art.

Cook said that the new crafts building is the first multiple craft facility in the Army. It will be able to accommodate 800 to 1,000 persons a day.

Booster Club To Show Art

The Blue and Grey Booster Club of Lee High School, Huntsville, Ala., will present an Arts and Crafts show July 4 and 5 in the trees in Brahan Springs Park.

The park, developed by the city of Huntsville and the Jaycees, has rides for children, ball parks, lakes, picnic tables and concession stands.

This tough V-4 will go to 90 and deliver up to 30 miles per gallon. We design cars the way we design jet planes. For maximum performance, comfort and safety.

Win First Place in 12 Matches

U.S. Rifle Team Wins Roumanian Championships

The U.S. Army International Rifle and Pistol teams competing against sixteen other nations in the 12th Roumanian Championships shined their sights for the World Shooting Championships.

The International Rifle team, competing against many world famous Olympic and world games champions, won every event and placed second in five of the nine matches.

Maj. Lones Wigger captured the 300 meter Aggregate match, one better than Summer.

Lt. Dean Bahrman won the 300 meter Prone match with 396 x 400. His 396 outranked Maj. Bruce Meredith's 396 for second. Maj. Tommy Pool was third. Bahrman continued to show his prone shooting ability by winning the 50 meter English Match. His score of 296 x 600 outranked Klinger's 596 of West Germany.

Lt. John Writer won the Three position Smallbore Aggregate with 1157 x 1200. His teammate Lt. William Rigby was second. Writer won the kneeling position of the smallbore match with 396 and placed second in the standing position behind teammate Rigby. Both men fired 380 x 400 in the standing position.

Lt. Gary Anderson, Olympic gold medalist, exceeded the worlds record in the Standard Rifle match with a score of 585 x 600. His score is unofficial and does not count against the world mark. Writer was second in the standard rifle match with 582.

In pistol competition, SFC Robert Whitacre finished second in the Rapid Fire and Center Fire pistol events. Tripsa of Rumania won the Rapid Fire contest with 596 x 600 and Narcorsci of Czechoslovakia won the Center Fire contest with 589 x 600.

The Free pistol match fired at 50 meters was won by Hromadis of Czechoslovakia with a 563 x 600. SFC Hershel Anderson of the Army team placed third.

In a special elimination rapid fire pistol duel, Robert Whitacre of the Army team equalled the first place score of 297, fired by Rosca of Rumania, but because of the process of elimination he placed third. Rosca was first and his teammate Atanisu was second with 294.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

There was only one change in the Fishing Derby this week. S-Sgt. Bobby McCarter, Co. A, Infantry Battalion took a seven-pound seven-ounce bass from Averett's Pond on June 11.

SFC Ortis Perez, Co. A, Infantry School Battalion still leads the catfish contest with the 13-pound 12-ounce catch he took from Victory Pond June 5.

Cpt. Jimmy Ford is still number one in the bream contest with his one pound catch from Patterson Pond June 1.

For interested newcomers to the post we'd like to explain the mechanics of the Fishing Derby. The Rod and Gun Club is sponsoring a monthly Fishing Derby from April to October. Prizes are awarded to fishermen catching the largest bass, bream and catfish each month. To enter you must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club, register at the club before going fishing, catch the fish from one of the post ponds and register your catch at the club. Those finishing fishing after the club is closed may register the catch the next day.

If you really want to get a heated and confused argument going in a hurry get a few fishermen from different parts of Georgia together along with a fish biologist or two then ask them to agree on the common name, habits and best ways of fishing for any species you like. There's plenty of room for argument since there are at least 124 distinctly different species of fish in Georgia. At least 32 of these are known as game fish with some argument over a few of the others.

There are for example "nine' bass in Georgia. The most popular among them, the largemouth, are usually called "trout" in South Georgia. Biologist say there are only two members of the bass family found in the state and the largemouth is not one of them. He's a member of the sunfish family.

Multiple popular names never cease to be a source of amusement and conversation when fishermen from different areas meet. Another good example is the black crappie. Many fishermen pronounce and spell crappie just the way it looks and others spell it crappie and pronounce it croppie. South Georgians avoid the problem entirely. They call them white perch which is also the most common name for a small ocean fish that swims up fresh water rivers from South Carolina northward.

The walleye of north Georgia is usually called a jack or pike and chain pickrel of south Georgia are known as Jackfish. Redear sunfish are usually called shellcrackers.

When it comes to catfish, the simplest thing to do is forget about precise identification since even the common channel catfish is variously known as a spotted cat, fiddler, fork-tailed cat, sand cat, blue cat and white cat. Flathead catfish are sometimes known as shovelheads, mutcat or yellowcats.

It's all very confusing even to the veteran fisherman. So don't feel bad about not knowing the exact name for what you catch. Just call it what you want. No doubt you'll find some to agree with you and probably just as many to disagree.

If you are out by the Rod and Gun Club Headquarters this Saturday or Sunday drop by the archery ranges. There will be some of the finest shooters in Georgia competing in the Shooting will begin at 1 p.m. Satuday and at 10 a.m. Sunday.

GENERAL MAXWELL D. TAYLOR

I'm glad I'm in the Army, not only for the people who are in it and for the breadth of experience which it offers, but because of the feeing I have of belonging to an outfit which really matters, one which has a mission of tremendous significance.

Brynildsen Wins Tournament

The 1969 U. S. Army Infantry Center (USAIC) Tennis Tournament got under way June 9 at the Fort Benning Officers Club Tennis courts.

The tournament is held annually to determine who will represent Fort Benning in the Third U. S. Army Tennis Tournament which will be held here June 23-27.

The tournament went true to form when Gordon A. Brynildsen, 27th Company, 2nd Battalion, The Student Brigade, seeded No. 1 and, predicted to take the open division singles title, took the crown by defeating Allan L. Matthews, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, U. S. Army Infantry School (USAIS), seeded No. 3, by scores of 6-0, 6-0, 6-1.

Brynildsen previously had entered the 8th Army tennis championships in 1963 and won the singles crown. He also entered the Sixth Army tennis championships and in 1965 was runner-up in the singles division, and a first place winner in the doubles division.

GORDON BRYNILDSEN
Fort Benning Tennis Champion

Results of the USAIC Tennis Tournament open singles division are as follows:

Quarter-finals

1. Brynildsen defeated Phillip M. Jones, 5th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.

2. Scott defeated Joseph F. MacDonald, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st 39th Infantry, 8-6, 6-8, 6-1.

3. Matthews defeated Keith Rollins, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Student Battalion, 6-3, 8-6.

Brynildsen teamed with John N. Lewis, USAIS to defeat Douglas C. Jackson and John R. Scott of Company A (Ranger), 75th Infantry, by the scores of 6-4, 4-3. Brynildsen and Lewis were seeded No. 1 in the doubles competition.

The men's senior division singles title went to Floyd G. Stephenson, Company Operations Department, USAIS, when he defeated Robert E. Gabriel, USAIC, by the scores of 6-2, 6-2.

No women had signed up to play in this tournament.

The climax of this year's tournament is of course the selection of the team that will be representing Fort Benning at the Third Army Championships. Those representing Fort Benning in the open single division are Gordon Brynildsen, No. 1, John Scott, No. 2, Allan L. Matthews, No. 3 and John N. Lewis, No. 4.

Stephenson will play as the No. 1 man. Robert E. Gabriel will play as the No. 2 man and both Stephenson and Gabriel will play as the senior men's doubles team.

First TCB Swim Meet

Officer candidates from five companies of the 6th Student Battalion, the Candidate Brigade, participated in the first swim meet ever to be held in the Candidate Brigade.

The 60th, 62nd, 63rd, 65th and 66 Companies competed in the swimming and diving meet staged in Carey Swimming Pool on Sightseeing Road. More than 400 officer candidates and spectators were present for the event.

First place in the contest was taken by the 62nd Company, although they were strongly challenenged by senior candidate swimmers from 68th Company.

Midway through the meet, only three points separated the two companies. The last event, the 200-meter freestyle relay was the final chance for the 66th Co. to gain enough points to win the meet, but 62nd Co. won the event.

The 1969 U. S. Open is now history and a man by the name of Arnold Palmer may also be a part of history. This was his 17th Open without a miss since he made his debut as an amateur in 1953 and there has probably been none he had wanted more to win.

He hasn't had a major victory since his fourth Masters in 1964. His last tournament triumph of any type was the Kemper Open last fall in Sutton, Mass., an event most of the top names skipped. He has had a frustrating campaign, with finishes as low as 37th in the Crosby and Colonial, 27 in the Masters and 25 in his last outing at Atlanta.

Although his Open record is the best of anyone for the past decade—a championship in 1960, three ties for the title only to lose in playoffs and runner-up Jack Nicklaus at Baltusrol two years ago — he was forced last week to qualify for the 1969 Championship.

"It's the rules — I felt I owed it to golf to try to qualify," he said in an interview with Will Grimsley, AP Sports Writer. But he must have said it with a twinge of deep disappointment.

He met the challenge by firing rounds of 70 and 68 over the par 72 Youghiogheny Country Club in nearby McKeesport to lead the sectional tests. It was the best golf he has played in months. He showed this form in the last two rounds at the Open but they were just not enough for the old master. Yet the crowds still flock to cheer him on.

Palmer receives around 500 letters a week. Besides Doc Giffen, former newspaperman and ex-press secretary for the PGA tour who handles his appointments, Arnie has two full time secretaries and a close aide, Darrel Brown, who doubles as pilot to Palmer's $800,000 Lear Jet. Mark McCormack of Cleveland heads a staff of six lawyers who handles the golf star's numerous business interests.

BOXING

The six-state world heavyweight championship fight between champion Joe Frazier and challenger Jerry Quarry this coming Monday night will provide a few sparks to an almost dead sporting event. With the departure of Cassius Clay, there has been little interest in the heavyweight scene.

In the WBA title fight between Quarry and Jimmy Ellis, the Irish Bulldog character in Quarry failed to materialize. Unlike fights of old, a fan could sit calmly munching a bag of popcorn and hardly spill a drop. The only time most of them got up to cheer was when the fight was over and they could go home and finally watch the late late show.

Quarry, you will remember was the one who finally gave Floyd Patterson the inspirational thought that it was time to retire. Although Patterson fought to a draw in the first match, he was just a tired old man being bullied around in the second match, which really did not help Quarry's reputation either.

Quarry dispensed with Buster Mathis three months ago and it was in this fight that he finally started looking like a boxer. He has a strong counterpunch and takes punches frequently only to lead his victim in closer so that his massive shoulders (size 50) release the full force of his blows.

But Frazier has gotten to be a young wizard at this game and is the fastest heavyweight around today. Frazier's bombs and light footed methods, while not close to Clay's still make him the favorite in my book to retain his title. Quarry is predicting a first round knockout but this is just standard procedure. Frazier has a determination not to be beaten and I do not think he will be in the conceivable future.

BASEBALL

Paul Edmondson, pitcher extraordinare for the Columbus White Sox is being recalled by the parent Chicago club. Currently 7-3 he was recently picked to pitch in the Southern League All Star game against the Atlanta Braves.

Chicago is desperately in need of some good pitching. Their aveage of 4.34 is completely a reversal of all previous form. Formerly, the White Sox have been like the L. A. Dodgers, that is, all pitching and no hitting. Now that they have found their bats, the strong arms of the pitchers have gone flabby. Currently in fourth place in the weaker Western Division of the American League, they need someone to bolster staff.

Those of us who have watched him pitch against Class AA ball this year know that he could just have easily gone against the major leaguers and done as well. He has been in professional baseball since 1965 and his career has steadily gone uphill. Now that he has his big chance to prove his worth we feel that it is not so much a loss for Columbus as a gain for Chicago.

The Columbus White Sox are a stepping stone for the major leagues and even though his departure will no doubt hurt Columbus' chances in the Southern League, Chicago's fortunes should prosper. All of us can only wish the best of luck to a very good pitcher and hope that his name will constantly be appearing in the win column for Chicago.

Trap, Skeet Teams Win in Europe

One of the greatest U.S. Army International Trap & Skeet teams ever amassed returned from their European training trip last week with victories tucked under their belts.

The two teams headed by LTC Thomas Gillmore and assigned to The United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit, here, each fired in four matches which took place in six different countries; Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Denmark, England and the iron curtain country of Czechoslovakia.

Both teams fired in the Grand Prix of Berne in Switzerland and the Grand Prix of Berne in Czechoslovakia.

American trap shooters walked away with six of the top seven spots during the Grand Prix of Berne. Sgt. Edward Leavendusky won the match with 197 birds. He was followed by Sp5 Larry Stafford.

The Army trap shooters repeated themselves in Czechoslovakia when they won the top four spots. SSgt. James Beck placed first with 197 birds followed by Sgt. Gene Lumsden.

The trap team continued to be tough as they won three of the top five spots in Milan, Italy. Sgt. Lumsden won the championship with 198 birds. His score was the highest output by an army marksmen during the trip. SSgt. Beck was third.

Lumsen and Beck fired identical scores but switch potsions during the Darmstadt International shoot in Germany. Beck won the championship and Lumsden was second. Both marksmen broke 194 birds.

The Skeet team facing stiff competition produced their best scores in the Grand Prix of Brno. Sp4 Larry Tiner and Sp5 Anthony Rosetti both broke 141 birds placing first and second respectively. Team coach Col. Gillmore was third.

In the Grand Prix of Berne, Col. Gillmore broke 196 birds out of 200, an excellent score, but only managed to place third. SSgt. Phillip Provence placed third in the International Skeet match in London, and in Copenhagen, Denmark Tiner and Provence managed to place fifth and sixth respectively.

The two teams fired against experienced, seasoned and olympic competitors of the host countries. The outstanding Army trap team won first place in every contest they fired in and the skeet team held their own. Credit must be given to the shop personnel, who keep the shotguns at their high peak of performance and to the shooting members of each team. Trap team members were Beck Leavendusky, Stafford, Lumsden, Sp4 Stanley Carmichael, Sp4 Herbert Elson, Sp4 Means Fields, Sp4 Kerry Smith and Sp4 James Columbo. Skeet team members included Provence, Tiner, Rosetti, Sp4 Jay Gerlich, SFC William Wooten and shotgun coach Col. Gillmore.

Benning Pony Club Schedules Meet

By Lee Meyers

The British call any horse a child rides a pony — no matter the size of horse or child. Fort Benning has a Pony Club which, with the help of Midland Foxhounds Pony Club of Columbus, will host a Pony Rally here June 25-28 for clubs of the southern region of the U.S. Pony Club.

Eighteen teams are expected for the rally from Georgia, Alabama and Florida with a spectator group coming from the Virgin Islands. The Atlanta (Ga.) and the Cahaba Pony Club (Birmingham, Ala.) will send three teams. Two teams each will come from the Clearwater (Fla.) Pony Club, the Chattahoochee Valley Pony Club (Newnan, Ga.), the Benning Pony Club and the Midland Foxhounds Pony Club. One team each will come from the Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) Pony Club, the Huntsville (Ala.) Pony Club, the Fort Rucker (Ala.) Pony Club and the North River Pony Club (Tuscaloosa, Ala.).

Pony clubs in the United States were modeled on the British Horse Society and use the British guides on horsemanship. The ideal is "to produce a thoroughly happy, comfortable horseman, riding across a natural country with complete confidence and perfect balance — on a pony equally happy and confident and free from pain or bewilderment."

The Pony Rally consists of five events —three riding events and two dismounted tests.

Dressage (rhyming with massage) is a riding event held in an arena where the horse and rider must complete compulsory figures within a time limit.

The cross-country riding event is over a 2½ mile trail with 18 to 25 natural obstacles like fence and hedges. The horse and rider must complete the trail within a time limit and in rod order. A special trail is being laid out over the Fort Benning reservation especially for this event as neither the horses nor riders can have run the course prior to the competition.

Stadium jumping is held in an arena. Horse and rider must jump 14 pole obstacles in a set pattern.

The two dismounted tests are on stable management and general horsemanship knowledge.

French Field, where the arena events will be held, and Blue Field, where the horses will be stabled, have a history of Fort Benning equestrian activity. During the era of the horse and cavalry, polo was the most active off-duty sport and Saturday was scrimmage day for polo on French Field. Then on Sunday, match day, the field was lined with spectators out in their Sunday finery to view the riding and horses.

Behind each goal the field was open where each team picketed its horses and walked them to cool them after each 7½-minute chukker. As a match was six chukkers, each rider had a string of at least three horses he rode in rotation through the match. So each team had picketed at their end of the field over twenty horses.

In 1947 the last polo match was played on French Field and in August 1947 the last of the government mounts were sold.

Ten years after that last sale, the Fort Benning Hunt Club was formed to preserve the "gentlemanly friendship" of horse and rider. The Fort Benning Hunt Club works through the Benning Pony Club to encourage young people to ride and to provide instruction in riding and horsemanship.

The object of the Pony Club is to help young people to ride while learning to enjoy all kinds of sport connected with horses and riding, to instill in the members the proper care of their animals, and to promote the highest ideals of sportsmanship, citizenship and loyalty, thereby cultivating strength of character and self-discipline.

The Southern Regional Rally will be for Pony Club members with a Rating of "C" or "B." Ratings are awarded by the Club as an encouragement to members to improve their knowledge. There are four ratings from "A", the highest, to "D."

The objective of the "C" rating is to attain a firm seat independent of the reins and to give simple directions to the mount correctly, to have a proper regard for the pony and to show ability to go cross country under supervision.

Kristine Aure, daughter of Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. G. O. Aure of Columbus, jumps "Flare" over an obstacle in the stadium jumping event of the Pony Club Rally.

Cale Yarborough won the Motor State 500, the first NASCAR superspeedway race ever held in the north. He and Lee Roy Yarbrough (no relation) bumped each other in the last lap of the race to give Cale the victory at Michigan International Speedway last Sunday.

In other news Jackie Ickx, 24 year old Grand Prix star, in a Fort GT-40, won the "24 heures du Le Mans" with a sprint finish to beat the remaining Porsche 908 Team car driven by Hans Herrmann. The new Porsche 917's, 600 HP-4.5 liter super cars, set record laps but failed to finish the grueling Enduro.

The winning GT-40 was the same car that won last years' Le Mans and this years 12 hrs of Sebring.

Porsche had already sewn up the FIA world championship with its crushing victory at Nurburging two weeks ago. Ferrari's big underdog threat, the 312P, was eliminated when it ran over some wreckage strewn on the course from a first lap accident involving a Porsche 917.

A 13-8 victory over team two Saturday (May 14) completed an undefeated season for the league champions.

The Biddy League is composed of six teams with each team playing a 10-game season.

Social Security Due Students In Summer

Students between ages 18 and 22 entitled to social security benefits may receive payments for nonattendance during the summer vacation if they plan to return to school in the fall, according to Robert E. O'Neal, District Manager of the Columbus Social Security Office. "They must let us know, however, if they transfer to a different school or if they are no longer full-time students," O'Neal said. If the student remains in school on a full-time basis, he may receive benefits until age 22 unless he marries.

More information may be obtained at the Social Security Office at 301 15th St. in Columbus; open Monday through Friday from 8:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Capt. Laney Is Soldier And Student

By Lee Mayers

One student who doesn't have to pound the streets for a summer job is Walter F. George School of Law student, Capt. Solon D. Laney.

A full time law student at the school in Macon, Ga., Capt. Laney goes on active duty during the summer and Christmas holidays in the Staff Judge Advocate (SJA) Section of the U.S. Army infantry Center here.

Capt. Laney, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Laney Jr. of Columbus, graduated from Columbus High School in 1963 and received a bachelor of arts degree in history and political science from Mercer University in 1967. An advanced ROTC graduate, he accepted a regular Army commission in Field Artillery and was attached to the Judge Advocate General (JAG) Corps where he was put on excess leave status until he completes law school.

Capt. Laney's father is salesmanager for P & W Electric Supply Co. of Columbus and his mother is secretary for 3rd District Congressman Jack Brinkley.

Last summer Capt. Laney worked in the claims office of the SJA section and handled claims brought against the Army by civilians and military personnel. This summer he went on active duty May 29 in the military affairs office where he looks into legal matters of the Fort Benning post itself.

A brother, Capt. John T. Laney III, is on active duty in Korea with the JAG Corps.

While a student at Mercer University, Capt. Solon Laney was president of his fraternity, the senior class, the Interfraternity Council and the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity. Presently he is the student articles editor of the Mercer Law Review.

He expects to graduate from law school in June 1970 and after passing his bar examination he will serve in the justice or legal assistance office of the JAG Corps.

Korean Officer Joins US Army

By Ron Johnson

Private Steve Limb, a 30-year old Korean immigrant, has just completed Airborne training with the 45th Co., 4th Bn., TSB. Because of a mispers, he is known in the Army as Steve Im. But Steve's happy to be in the Army no matter what name he goes by.

The story behind this desire to be in the Army began through the area, and a mator adopted Limb as a cook when he was ten years old. He watched North Koreans burn the village where he lived. His parents died in the attack. He managed to escape his burning home, but could not find his sisters and assumed they were dead. Shortly after that, he had his first experience with the U. S. Army.

An Airborne unit passed friended Steve next. The doc- tor got Steve a job with the 33rd Armored Cavalry Unit. He stayed with the 83rd until the end of the Korean War in July of 1953. Army personnel took Limb with them to Seoul, Korea. There he worked as a house-boy and was sent to an American school by membes of the Limb's sisters, who had actually survived the blaze set by the North Koreans, saw the film and recognized their for 12 years.

The major also gave him the name "Steve" Limb in place of his Korean name "Jong by, Duc" Limb. He stayed with the unit until the major was killed in a battle. Steve was wounded in the same battle and spent three months in an Army hospital.

Refriended

An Army physician be- came Steve's friend and helped him get a job with the Air Force for three years, attaining a rank equal to captain.

Family Reunited

After a year in the paratroopers, the Korean Government allowed Limb to join the U.S. Army which had helped him for so long. He was told that he would have to fulfill his Korean military obligation first, so he served as a paratrooper in the Korean Command until valent

In 1962 he decided to join the U.S. Army which had helped him for so long. He was told that he would have to fulfill his Korean military obligation first, so he served as a paratrooper in the Korean Air Force for three years, attaining a rank equal to captain.

Family Reunited

After a year in the paratroopers, the Korean Government allowed Limb with the rest of his family to join him in the United States. Years passed and Steve wondered how they were united after being separated for 12 years.

Officials Find It Easier To Award Safety Cash

Post safety officials are finding it increasingly easier to find motorists who qualify for a cash award for wearing safety belts.

In most every instance during the past week, the number of motorists stopped and checked before one was found wearing a safety belt was less than in any previous week of a current safety campaign.

In only one spot check last week more than a dozen cars were stopped before $5 award was made.

A total of 52 vehicles were stopped and checked during a recent week in which five such awards were made.

Winners last week were: Sp6 Leo J. Morano, 197th Aviation Company, 10th Aviation Group; Mrs. Powell Johnson Jr., whose husband is with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 5th Battalion, 12th Infantry, 198th Infantry Brigade; Mrs. Dorothy Russell, a civilian employee who works in the supply section of the reception station, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry; S-Sgt. Jay R. Stephenson, U. S. Army Dental Unit, and Mrs. Nettie Marwede, a civilian employee of the Personnel Office, 2nd Battalion, The Student Brigade.

The campaign continues next week and offers motorists a chance to win $5, if they are wearing safety belts when stopped at a spot check location.

Two Are Injured

Soldier Is Killed In Range Accident

By SFC Richard Kemp

A Fort Benning soldier was killed Tuesday (June 17) night and two others injured when two 105mm artillery rounds impacted near a bleacher area on a range during rehearsal of a training exercise here.

Dead is Specialist 5 Michael F. Rehby, 23, of Miami, Florida, a veteran of Army service since February, 1963. The injured men are Specialist 4 Phillip M. Hall, 27, of Farmsville, North Carolina, and Specilizat 5 Terry E. Kuhn, 21, of Zanesville, Ohio.

Preliminary reports state that at 10:30 p.m. the two rounds from a 105 artillery gun landed near the bleachers on Ruth Range while members of the 197th Infantry Brigade were in rehearsal for the night portion of a problem showing a mechanized rifle company in defensive positions.

The problem is one demonstrated annually to students of the U.S. Army Infantry School in residence and others at the post in special training such as the cadets of the U.S. Military Academy and Reserve Officer Training Corps units.

All three victims were transported to Martin Army Hospital by helicopter following the incident. Specialist Rehby was pronounced dead on arrival.

Specialist Hall was treated for a laceration of the right hip and was admitted to the hospital. He was reported in satisfactory condition Tuesday morning. Specialist Kuhn was treated for an injury of the left shoulder and released.

The dead man was assigned to Company C, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, U.S. Army Infantry School.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nareelaxsana Rehby, 2443 South Lumpkin Road, Columbus, Georgia.

Bandsman Gives Up Piano for Inf. Crossed Rifles

Wallace Schnee has given up what he feels was too easy a career as an Army bandsman and accepted the challenge and responsibility of the Infantry Office Candidate program.

Schnee, who is currently a candidate in the 83rd Officer Candidate Company, 6th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, entered the Army in 1962 as a draftee, but through an audition he entered the military music machine. He was sent to the US Army Element Naval School of Music in Washington D. C., where he was trained as a bandsman for sixteen weeks.

Upon completion of this course he was sent to the First Army Band at Fort Jay, New York City. His first parade with the band was a tickertape special up lower Fifth Avenue in honor of the Emperor of Ethiopia.

Four months later, more or less as a joke, he entered the local competition for the 1963 All-Army Entertainment Contest — he won the Fort Jay and First Army levels. Subsequently, Schnee appeared on the nationally-televised game show, "The Match Game," on which he and his partner won $750.

Another assignment took Schnee to the Canal Zone, where he joined the 79th Army Band, a group which played concerts in all the countries of Central America, and in Columbia, Venezuela, Bolivia, and Ecuador. But, according to Schnee, playing the piano was not enough: he wanted more responsibility, better pay, and a position with inherent qualities that would satisfy his pride. Infantry Officer Candidate School was Schnee's answer to the question within himself.

94th Company Baby

Office Candidate Raymond J. Shorejs, 94th Company, 6th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, recently became the proud father of a baby boy.

Mrs. Bette Jean Schorejs and their son, Allen James, will soon return to their home in Phenix City, Ala. while her husband continues his training as an Officer Candidate.

OC Schorejs is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schorejs of 13541 Taft Rd., Fruit Port, Mich.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON . . . It is not often that a student in the Basic Airborne Course receives the special attention of the director of The Infantry School's Airborne Department. It is also not often that the director, Col. Lamar A. Welch (Bradenton, Fla.), right has the opportunity to inspect a member of his own family in the course. Private Joseph C. Welch has his equipment checked by his father before the two made a parachute jump together. It was number 449 for the father, and the number one jump for the younger soldier. (U.S. Army Photo)

'Big Red One' Picnic Is Scheduled

Two films about the combat activities of the First Infantry Division will be featured at a family picnic of the Society of the First Infantry Division here June 21 at 2 p.m.

"The Big Picture — The First Division in Vietnam" and "The Fighting First" present film narratives of the Division's combat record in World War II and the Vietnam conflict.

Brigadier General Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant, U.S. Army Infantry School, will present scholarships to the two sons of Infantry Staff Sergeant Gerry G. Chesnut who died while serving as a member of the Division in Vietnam.

Proceeds from the picnic will be donated to the society's scholarship fund.

Free refreshments will be provided and there will be games, contests and prizes.

Tickets are available from Captain William T. Petersen of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department. His telephone number is 545-1067.

The public is invited.

Marathon, Variety Show Set July 4

BY BILL HARDIN

Track stars from across the Southeast as well as a number of Fort Benning runners will join the man billed as "America's Number One Magician", one of the world's leading escape artists and hypnotists, to headline entertainment activity at Fort Benning's July 4th celebration.

The day-long activities are open to the public and begin at 9:30 a.m. with the 10-mile Medal of Honor Mini-Marathon. The mini-marathon will begin near the 250-foot towers of the airborne training area of Eubanks Field. Ten miles and many, many minutes later it will end at the same place.

Soldiers, collegiate track stars, athletic club members and others will be competing in the race, which honors soldiers who have won their country's highest award for valor, the Medal of Honor.

In addition to the marathon, visitors to the post will have an opportunity to see the world famous Jacksons, a group which boasts unusual juggling talents.

"Brandon," with a show that has been called the most spectacular show of illusions in America, will also perform here.

"The Mysterious Novak," who duplicates the straight jacket escape of the late Harry Houdini, will attempt an escape from a straight jacket while hanging by his ankles from the top of a 250-foot airborne training tower.

There is family comedy and a variety of other entertainment, including a performance by th world's youngest juggler, a 6-year-old member of the Jackson family.

Added to the list of talent for the event is Marianne Verse. She will appear with her variety troupe which gained international acclaim with their rock and roll

Fort Ceremony Honors Brazilian General

By PFC James Doherty

Brigadier General Adolpho Joao DePaula Couto, commandant of the Brazilian Army Command and General Staff College, was honored June 23 with ceremonies on York Field.

He reviewed troops from Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, and received an artillery salute from Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery.

Following the ceremonies, General Paula Couto met with Major General George I. Forsythe, commanding general, U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Seven instructors and 109 students from the staff college arrived with the general at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield June 21 for a four-day orientation visit.

They toured the Infantry Center and Infantry School and received special briefing computer - assisted instruction, viewed closed circuit television and observed the electronic equipment used by the Directorate of Communications and Electronics.

Also on their itinerary was a scout dog demonstration and a "Rangers in Action" demonstration at Victory Pond.

They visited the Army Training Center to observe basic training. They will receive an orientation on the Army's new quick-kill training at Shelton Range, and observe the Airborne 5,000 demonstration at Eubanks Field.

Captain Larry Fleener Receives DSC Award

The Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for heroism, eight Silver Stars, and a Legion of Merit were awarded to 10 Vietnam returnees during a special ceremony held on York Field.

Capt. Larry D. Fleener, presently assigned to the Candidate Brigade, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary berosim.

Capt Fleener's citation read, in part, "As a platoon leader during a special search and destroy operation in Nam Hoa District. . .his company became pinned down by intense mortar rocket, small arms and automatic weapons fire from well entrenched numerically superior North Vietnamese Army troops.

"He (Capt. Fleener) succeeded in maneuvering to the rear of the hostile positions. His force was discov-

Widow Accepts Awards

The young widow of SSgt Perry D. Johnson accepted the Silver Star and the Bronze Star Medal during a posthumobs award ceremony here held in honor of her late husband.

Mrs Martha L. Johnson accompanied by her mother, Mrs. R. Clint Flowers, and younger sister, Miss Margie Flowers, listened as the Silver Star citation was read, crediting her husband with "Gallantry in action while engaged in military operations involving conflict with an armed hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam.

"Staff Sergeant Johnson distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous action on February 8, 1969, while serving as a squad leader during a search and clear mission. His unit became heavily engaged with a large, well concealed enemy force.

"Staff Sergeant Johnson exposed himself to intense hostile fire as he maneuvered his men into defensive positions. With complete disregard for his own safety, he then placed accurate retaliatory fire on the enemy emplacement.

"While engaging the hostile bunkers, Staff Sergeant Johnson was mortally wounded. His courageous actions were an inspiration to his men and contributed greatly toward the successful completion of his unit's mision."

The Bronze Star was awarded to SSgt. Johnson for "distinguishing himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with military operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam." . Mrs. Johnson also received the Purple Heart, which was awarded her husband for wounds which resulted in his death.

Prior to his death SSgt. Johnson had also been awarded the Air Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, Combat Infantryman Badge, Expert Badge with machine gun and pistol bars.

ered by an enemy security element and began to receive a heavy automatic weapons barrage.

"Capt. Fleener directed his rifle fire on the security element and, closing in on the nearest bunker with two other men, silenced it with two hand grenades. Led by their commander, who demolished three additional bunkers single handedly, the platoon systematically destroyed fortification after fortification.

"His heroism permitted the remainder of the company to sweep forward and annihilate the North Vietnamese elements."

Recipients of Silver Stars were: Capt. Manuel A. Granado - Diaz and Capt. Robert B. Brown, both of 20th Company, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade; 1st Lt. Richard J. Nagle, U.S. Army Infantry School; SFC George Parker Jr., Comapny E, Infantry School Battalion; Sgt. Aultor W. Chavis, 197th Infantry Brigade; Sp5 David R. Brown, U.S. Army Infantry Center Troop Command; Sp4 Donald Cannon, 197th Infantry Brigade, and PFC Billy Lucas, Infantry Battalion.

The Legion of Merit, awarded for exceptionally meritorious conduct, was presented to Capt. James P. Goodridge, presently assigned to the Infantry School.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

King's Pizza On Call

Centuries before butter came into popular use, lard or soft cheese was used in pastry. The familiar French brioche was named for the Brie cheese that was originally an ingredient.

Pour a teaspoonful of sherry or lemon juice into a can of beef consomme and refrigerate until jellied. Crumble into soup bowls and top with chopped parsley to get a summer supper off to a cool start.

Austrians revere the two great St. Anthonys and pray to one as the patron of bakers and the other as the guardian of sausagemakers. The latter they affectionately refer to as "Pig's Tony."

To ripen a tomato, leave it in a cool indoors area. Don't leave it by a window because sunlight will keep it from turning a nice even red.

Fish take to charcoal grilling as naturally as they take to water. Try bottled duck sauce to enhance the smoky flavor.

What is number of personnel have been sent to Vietnam with:

1. Less than 12 months to serve?

2. Six (6) months to serve?

This data has not been maintained in OPO, nor is it readily available. The retrieval of this data by OPO for active duty personnel would require manual screening of individual records which would require a minimum expenditure of one man-year. Additionally, the records of those personnel who served in Vietnam and have been separated from the service would have to be screened, further increasing the cost. The estimate previously provided that "hundreds" of personnel have been assigned to RVN with 6-9 months service remaining to ETS and "thousands" have been assigned with less than 12 months remainiog cannot be further refined without an individual records count.

LETHAL GAS STORAGE

Denver paper asks what is the lethal potential if the gas stored there is released in "some kind of an explosion" and carried by the wind?

Accidents occurring in toxic storage areas generally fall into the category of leaking containers or "spills" during transfer or sampling operations. Since the stored toxic agents are liquid, not gases under pressure, with a volatility smiliar to water, a spill or leak would tend to be localized in the immediate vicinity of the accident. Trained personnel and materials are available for rapid decontamination of any such spillage or leakage.

Toxic munitions which have explosive components as an integral part of the item are stored in reinforced concrete igloos under stringent limitations. Limitations include quantity of items which can be stored in one location, and distance between storage locations. Should an explosion occur the limitations would tend to confine the toxic dispersion, and again, trained personnel would be available for decontamination.

Any concern over the possibility of the spread of toxic material following an aircraft accident in the proximity of the toxic storage area must recognize that a fire from the fuel tanks of an aircraft will most probably occur. The very presence of such a fire will tend to consume much of the toxic material which would accidentally be released.

In view of the growth of the city of Denver and of Stapleton International Airport, Department of the Army last year made the decision to discontinue the storage of toxic chemicals at RMA. Considerable amounts of serviceable materials have already been relocated to other more remote storage sites. Plans to dispose of obsolete chemical munitions from RMA are presently being held in abeyance pending a review of disposal methods by the National Academy of Sciences.

ARMY NURSE KILLED

"Is it true that only one Army nurse has been killed in Vietnam?

Lt. Sharon Lane is the first member of the U. S. Army Nurse Corps in Vietnam to be killed by enemy fire; there have been six others killed, two in a helicopter crash in 1966 and four in plane crashes in 1967, but she is the first U. S. Army Nurse to be a direct battle casualty. No members of the WAC have been killed in Vietnam. I cannot speak for either the Navy or Air Force.

CONGRESSMAN'S CHARGES

Congressman John Brademas has charged that the Army's decision to switch to the XM705 manufactured by General Motors from the M715 manufactured by Kaiser will cost the Army an additional $150 million. Desire an Army comment on this switch.

The Army does not agree that the purchase of the GMC designed XM705 1¼ ton truck will cost $150 million more than if the M715 truck supplied by Kaiser-Jeep were purchased. The XM705 is being designed with a high degree of reliability and durability and therefore does require a higher initial investment. However, Army studies indicate that on a life cycle cost basis, which includes both initial investment and 12 year operating costs, the XM705 will cost significantly less than the M715.

Don't Let It Happen To Yours

5 Vacation Spoilers

NEW YORK (NAPS) — This is what you've been waiting for: your vacation! Now at last you can get away from work and begin to enjoy much-deserved leisure time. But hazards threaten even the best-planned holidays. And you may need another vacation immediately after you've had one, unless you take steps to protect your family and yourself. Here are five ways to prevent a trip from becoming a trap.

1. One of the worst spoilers is car trouble. It can be expensive, time-consuming, and dangerous. Have your car checked thoroughly before you leave home. Some points often overlooked are:

BRAKES—Are they too "soft"? Do they pull to the left or right?

STEERING WHEEL—Is there too much play?

WHEELS—Are they in balance? Are the tires in good condition?

WINDSHIELD WIPERS—Will they suddenly give you trouble on a rain-swept parkway?

RADIATOR—A mixture of water and a good rust inhibitor is the best coolant in hot weather.

2. You won't enjoy your vacation if you're worried about whether you turned off the gas. Take a few minutes to make a list of items to be turned off and services to be stopped before you go. Place valuables in a safe deposit box while you're gone. Let the police know you are leaving for a while and give a key to a friend or relative (but be sure to tell the police that he has a key). One thing which will tip off an experienced burglar that "nobody's home" is a neglected lawn! If you plan to be gone for more than a week, make arrangements to have your lawn cut. Then you'll be ready to enjoy carefree holiday fun and relaxation.

3. Be prepared for and never underestimate the dangers of poison ivy. Nobody can be sure of being immune to its effects, which include stinging and itching blisters, and can mean disaster for vacationers. It is a dark, green, shiny, three-leafed plant which usually doesn't grow more than a foot high. The milky, oily poison it exudes is far more formidable than the name suggests.

A good way to soothe the effects of poison ivy is to use a preparation that provides cooling relief. One such anti-histaminic drug, which also combats insect bites and mild sunburn, gives quick relief when applied to skin surfaces. Called Rhulihist, it also acts as a local anesthetic to alleviate itching and burning sensation.

4. Motel shopping in search of rooms is a real holiday dampener. Be sure to reserve rooms ahead of time especially when you're traveling during the busy season. Most places reserve spaces by telephone, but will hold a room only until 5 or 6 p.m., unless you specify "late arrival." When you call, explain what kind of accommodations you want, how much you want to pay, and when you plan to arrive. If your plans change, make another call.

5. And be kind to your budget. Few things can ruin a trip as much as a shortage of cash. A picnic by the side of the road will cut your foods costs. And in many states, picnic areas come equipped with outdoor grills. Cafeterias are less expensive than most restaurants and no tipping is required. A plug-in coffee maker with its own cups is a great convenience. If you pick up some fruit or canned juice and some rolls or doughnuts the night before, you can breakfast in your room.

Take these five vacation precautions and your systems will be "go."

Hitchhiking Is Dangerous, Illegal

Last week a soldier was killed in Virginia while hitchhiking. A Fort Benning soldier was killed in a traffic accident in Minnesota while hitchhiking. A soldier was found dead near an interstate freeway — while hitchhiking.

While hitchhiking, what will happen to you — other than an arrest for breaking Army Regulation 210-10, paragraph 5-3?

Civilian and armed forces police will apprehend all military personnel who are hitchhiking. They are especially watchful during the period of the "100 most dangerous days", Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Fort Benning soldiers who need a ride are reminded that the many "soldier pick-up points" are located so that a person can catch a ride.

By standing at a Fort Benning "soldier pick-up point" the person is asking for a ride in that direction and military personnel do give him a lift.

However, once off the post, police will apprehend hitchhikers. Over the Memorial Day weekend, in a two-hour span, 36 men were apprehended at an intersection of two high speed interstate freeways in Virginia.

The state police of southern states have requested military assistance to eliminate the traffic and personal safety problems caused by hitchhiking.

Would you sit in a suicide seat piloted by a stranger? It could be fatal.

Kathy Smelley And Cadet Lawrence Clark

The Fort Benning Officers Club swung with U.S. Military Academy cadets and their dates, young southern belles, dancing to both rock and roll combo and a popular band.

Young women from Auburn, the Gung-Ho Club of Eufaula, Ala., and from Columbus families and their house-guests were the guests of the cadets.

The Shadows, a local rock and roll band, played outside for dancing around the pool and the Rams, a local popular band, played inside for dancing on the ballroom floor.

The hop lasted from 8 p.m., until 11:30 p.m. and was semi-formal.

The young ladies were in cocktail dresses and the cadets were in gray trousers with open-necked white shirts.

Surgeon Says

Questions and Answers on Allergies

Many individuals have allergies. Allergy is very important in medicine to the extent that a number of physicians confine their practice solely to the diagnosis and treatment of allergies and are known as Allergists.

(1) What is an allergy?

When certain substances are introduced into a person that are foreign to the individual, this individual's defense system goes to work producing antibodies and other immune factors 'to fight' or neutralize the foreign substance. This immune response is an essential part of the individual's defense against bacteria and other germs (it is this same immune response that causes organs that are transplanted from one individual to another to be rejected); however, in some individuals the antibodies and other immune factors that are produced to some foreign substances, for some unknown reason, react abnormally with the foreign substance causing the body to release histamine and other substances that may effect various body organs producing an allergic reaction. The allergic individual usually acts normally to most substances but has this abnormal reaction to only certain substances.

(2) Do allergies run in families?

There is a familial tendency for some allergies. An individual who has close blood relatives with allergies is more likely to have allergies than an individual with no allergies in his blood family, but because a parent has an allergy does not necessarily mean the child will have the same allergies.

(3) What are some of the common allergies and their causes?

An individual may become allergic to substances in the air which he breathes such as pollens; to some substances which he eats such as strawberries; to substances he contacts such as poison ivy and to drugs such as penicillin. An allergy may show itself as hayfever with a congested nose, bronchial asthma with wheezing, as a skin reaction with itching, redness or swelling, as redness and itching of the eyes, and in other ways.

MODERN INDIAN PAPOOSE BOARD
Carrier Is New Adaptation of Old Idea

Child Raising Varies Around World

NEW YORK (NAPS)—Ways of rearing children vary widely over the world, and the experiences of their childhood affect greatly the kind of people children grow up to be.

For instance, the girl children of the Mundugumor tribe in New Guinea are not treated with the care and tenderness which we feel is every small child's right.

Instead, as infants they are placed in crude straw baskets that scratch their skin; when hungry they are left to howl until tired before their mothers feed them; and in many other ways they are systematically frustrated throughout their young lives, until by the time a Mundugumorian girl reaches the age of marriage she has become a mean - tempered shrew, the ideal bride of the bachelor of the tribe.

Only a few miles away, parents of the Arapesh tribe treat their children quite differently. The tribe deems it a tragedy when a child cries. Here children are never punished, and they are denied nothing, except freedom to hurt other children. Relatives and other members of the tribe join in the pampering, and all through their childhood these boys and girls are loved and "spoiled."

What kind of people do they grow up to be? Not mean-tempered like the Mundugumorian girls, but gentle and easy-going like their own kindly parents.

Interestingly, when a baby is born, the Ashanti village in Ghana remains quiet. For two weeks there is no flurry, no indication that anything at all unusual has taken place. But on the 14th day, if all has gone well, a proud father may be seen walking from house to house in the village carrying the new baby in his arms—and receiving congratulations from each person he meets.

The peasants of China wait only three days before wrapping a new baby in a special red jacket—made from one uncut piece of cloth—and formally presenting him to his grandparents. On this day the new mother is presented with brown sugar and eggs in a ceremonial basket—and both mother and baby are praised highly by the senior women of the family.

Modern American parents will not be outdone by their counterparts around the world. Mothers and fathers are now returning to the Indian way of carrying a papoose on the back.

A new product enables them to take a baby five or six months old, up to two or three years, anywhere they want to go.

The featherlight carrier fits on the back. Baby sits in a seat facing forward, piggyback. Quick and easy to slip on, the Gerry Carrier, as it is called, is said to make an infant seem pounds lighter because his weight is evenly distributed.

Carried away in different manner through the centuries, stern as well as indulgent parents in all countries have frequently sought means of bringing up and educating their children to be the kind of adults who best fit the parents ideals. Children have been forced into the role of child prodigies by parents who would not take a back seat.

John Stuart Mill for example, read Latin, Greek and calculus at an early age. Others, like the youth of Sparta, were given no "book-learning" but were taught the tenets of toughness and how to be effective fighting men.

Present-day parents in almost every land want for their children the ability to read and write. Great strides have been made in raising the levels of literacy in countries where until the last few years it was very low.

Despite this diversity in upbringing, the needs and development of children are alike the world over. To have his needs met is a basic right of every child.

Several years ago, there seemed to be a requirement to think through and put into a compact statement the rights to which every child is entitled, no matter in what country, race or culture he may be born.

The United Nations Committee on Social, Humitarian and Cultural Affairs developed such a statement which proclaims the right of the child to "a happy childhood," to affection, security and education and to protection against all forms of exploitation.

Women Watch Karate

A demonstration of the art of self defense was presented at a champagne brunch where the ladies of the Ranger Department were received by the Geographical Wives.

Monsieur Marcel Carles, who is judo black belt qualified, used some of his pupils for the karate demonstration at the Supper Club of the M.O.O.M.

He also gave some helpful hints on how to scare an assailant. He noted that a woman can often use the ordinary items in her purse to protect herself.

For example, he explained that a comb can be rapped across a face and a nail file or key ring can be used to give a hard punch. A can of hair spray is also effective when directed at the assailant's eyes or nose and the hat pin, of course, is the woman's oldest weapon.

New Rangerettes were welcomed by Mrs. Y. Y. Phillips, wife of Col. Phillips, department director. They were Mrs. Johathan C. Henkel and Mrs. Gordon Exley.

Farewells were said to Mmes. Virgil S. Fernandes, Stephen L. Bulkeley, Wayne R. Clotfelter, Martin W. Tovar and Michael A. Grady. Ranger charms were given to them by Mrs. Phillips.

Chaplain Carothers Will Speak At Religious Meeting

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Merlin Carothers, The Candidate Brigade chaplain, will be a featured speaker at the "Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International," which will be held in Washington, D. C., between Monday and Saturday.

A Washington hotel will be the site of this world religious convention which is an annual event. Business, religious and military leaders from all over the world have already reserved 1,000 rooms in the hotel in anticipation of hearing such prominent persons as President Richard Nixon and Oral Roberts speak.

Chaplain Carothers will speak on Friday morning, a time in the conference which will be primarily oriented to the military. The secretaries and undersecretaries of defense, the Army, Navy and Air Force are expected to be in attendance to hear Chaplain Carothers discuss "God's desire to make Christian Life the most enjoyable experience of our lives."

The "Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International" is a worldwide organization whose purpose is to bring leading Christian businessmen together to develop Christian leadership and to give assistance to Christian groups throughout the U.S.

The organization, which has as members factory owners, judges, lawyers, doctors, teachers and military commanders, meets in nearly every major city in this country. The group's headquarters is located in Los Angeles, Calif.

Chaplain Carothers, no newcomer to speaking at religious conferences, has spoken at regional religious conventions throughout the South and East, as well as being a featured guest of most of the churches in the Columbus area.

Chaplain Carothers entered the service in 1943, serving subsequently as an enlisted man with the 82nd Airborne Division during WW II. He was a demolitions expert, seeing action in France, Belgium and Germany. After receiving his discharge in 1946, he attended college and a seminary, after which he served as a Methodist pastor.

He became a military chaplain in 1952, since which time he has served in Germany, Korea, the U.S., Panama, the Dominican Republic and the Republic of Vietnam. The chaplain, who is a licensed pilot and master parachutist, holds the Combat Infantryman's Badge as a result of his activities with the 82nd Airborne Division.

Chaplain Carothers explains his mission in the military as a "special calling — trying to tell others that being a Christian is the most exciting and enjoyable experience in a person's life."

10BC 12-69 Wives Keep Busy With Coffee, Luncheon, Sale

The wives of the students in 10BC 12-69 have been almost as busy as their husbands. The ladies have been busy since May with coffees, luncheons and a bake sale.

Mrs. Wendell O. Doody spoke at one of the coffees on the customs and courtesies of the Army. Her husband, Maj. Doody, is 2nd Stu. Bn. executive officer. Mrs. Billie Davies, wife of Capt. Davies, 1st Platoon advisor, Mrs. Monique Madewell and Mrs. Christen Willborne were cadre hostesses.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Sidney B. Berry received the class members and their wives at a semi-formal reception buffet. Special guests at the affair were Col. and Mrs. Don D. Marlowe, TSB commanding officer, and Capt. and Mrs. Ralph E. Short, 2nd Stu. Bn. chaplain.

The bake sale held by the wives in the 22nd Co. area was a tremendous success, according to Mrs. Shiela Kay Capehart, who was in charge of the sale. The food was all prepared by the wives. Potato salad, baked beans and other favorites of the men were on sale.

Another coffee was held in the home of Mrs. Jane Moore, wife of Capt. Joseph W. Moore, Student Company commander. About 20 wives attended the coffee, held outdoors on the patio of the Moore's home.

Pastries and refreshments were served as the wives talked about possibly having a casserole supper or organizing a pizza parcy.

'Lottery' Aids Vietnamese Natives

CAMP FRENZELL-JONES, Long Bing, Republic of Vietnam — It wasn't the Irish Sweepstakes, but you might have thought so from the looks on the faces of the "lottery" winners at a recent GVN-199th Light Infantry Brigade combined cordon.

The "lottery," held nightly at the Combined Holding and Interrogation Center (CHIC) near Can Giuov, Republic of Vietnam, was a new idea designed to both entertain and aid Vietnamese citizens being processed at the CHIC.

It worked like this: Propganda leaflets with numbers on them were handed out to the Vietnamese as "lottery" tickets; slips of paper with corresponding numbers on them were picked from a hat and the number announced; the Vietnamese who produced the tickets showing the winning numbers received the prizes — one-gallon cans of salad oil and bags of flower and cornmeal.

The prizes were surplus goods donated to Vietnam by the people of the United States. Supplies were plentiful so many people each night came away winners.

The "lottery" was the combined idea of brigade psyops officer, 2nd Lt. Andrew D. Duskie and brigade civil affairs officer, Capt James V. McGinnis. If the facial expressions of the winners were any indication, the idea was a success.

War Story Is Fantastic But True

CAMP EAGLE, Republic of Vietnam (101st IO) — Old-timers in Vietnam delight in telling new arrivals "war stories," most of them fantastic but false. Spc4 Patrick M. Armendariz, however, has a tale that is fantastic but true.

Armendariz is a member of B Co., 2nd Bn., 501st Inf., operating with the 101st Airborne Division in the A Shau Valley near the Laotian border.

Half of his platoon was in ambush about 500 meters southwest of Dong Ap Bia when trip flares went off. The element began blowing its claymore mines and almost immediately started receiving small arms fire, satchel charges and rocket-propelled grenades. Concentrated return fire silenced the enemy temporarily, and Armendariz' fire team was sent out to sweep.

Outside the perimeter, the team was pinned down by heavy machine gun fire, preventing the rest of the element from reaching the trapped troopers.

Armendariz found himself lying on a radio surrounded by NVA soldiers, with shrapnel in his side and a gunshot wound in his leg. He was still conscious but pretended to be dead, and the NVA took little notice of him.

When the enemy soldiers moved away to engage the Screaming Eagle reinforcements, Armendariz attempted to call his company on the radio. He succeeded, and began passing information on the exact number and disposition of enemy troops.

The radio was making noise, and the enemy soldiers turned and looked at him every time he made a transmission. But they seemed preoccupied and, for some reason, left him alone.

All through the night, as the platoon attempted to get to Armendariz, he kept them informed of the enemy's situation.

Finally, the company called in gunships for assistance. As they began to fire up the surrounding area, the enemy deserted the hill.

Plush Apartment

GI's Find Complex Of Viet Cong Stores

CAMP EAGLE, Republic of Vietnam (101st IO) — An elaborate shopping center-apartment complex might easily be found in the U. S., but it's the last thing one would expect to find on a rugged coastal peninsula in South Vietnam.

Known as "the Hook", a suspected Viet Cong stronghold, it was the objective of a combined helicopter assault by two platoons of C Co., and one platoon of the South Vietnamese Provincial Reconnaissance Unit (PRU).

Working out of three landing zones, the men of C Co. moved quickly to designated objectives in the cave-infested hills. Only 15 minutes after the landing, one element of the assault force reached the first cave area and was astounded by its findings.

In a platoon-sized complex troopers discovered a plush apartment, complete with kitchen, latrine and running water from the underground streams in the cave. The kitchen was well stocked with rice and fish, as well as a supply of pots and pans and other cooking utensils.

However, that's not all the extensive search of the cave complex turned up. For the Viet Cong who desires to be well-dressed there was a sewing machine for the VC who prefer to have their wearing apparel tailor-made.

A second cave complex was the "supermarket" and "restaurant" area on "the Hook". The "supermarket" featured large quantities of that Vietnamese favorite, rice, and in addition offered the shopper a choice of fresh or canned fish. In the "restaurant" section of the complex, the paratroopers found rice cooking on a stove.

"Apparently the joint's customers left before they were served," joked one member of the search team, "so we didn't want all that food to go to waste. I've eaten in better places, but I'll have to admit, you couldn't beat the prices."

Yet a third cave complex appealed to the C Co. sportsmen. Evidently a hideout for Viet Cong fishermen, this "sporting goods shop" contained assorted fishing equipment, fishing nets and cooking utensils for use in preparation of the expected catch.

"Even though the enemy had fled before we arrived," said Capt. Andrew L. Iry2d, commanding officer of C Co., "I still have to consider the operation a success. We captured enough food and other supplies to hamper their activities for awhile."

With the capture of the supplies in "the Hook's" cave complexes, it's apparent that the Viet Cong's attempt at luxury living has suffered a severe setback.

Lieutenant Takes Bath in Stream To Demonstrate Good Sanitation

BONG SON, Republic of Vietnam (173d IO) — Surrounded by animated Vietnamese children from a village about 50 miles north of Qui Nhon, 1st Lt. Kenneth A. Duetsch, stepped into a stream and demonstrated how to take a bath.

The demonstration was part of a coordinated civic action project conducted by the 4th Battalion, 503rd Infantry, 173 Airborne Brigade and designed to improve the villagers' living conditions through the application of good sanitation practices.

"The most common ailments among these villagers," explained Deutsch, battalion civic actions officer, "are skin diseases, many of which could be prevented with a bar of soap."

But the project involves more than giving out soap and giving bath demonstrations. The battalion surgeon, Capt. Loren Little, explained the project.

"In the first phase, a former Viet Cong medic, who rallied to the South Vietnamese Government, talks to the assembled villagers about the importance of keeping clean. Then our medics and the civic action officer work with local Vietnamese officials in dividing the villagers into small groups for basic sanitation demonstrations, said the doctor.

"In phase two, we will be giving immunizations and advising village officials on improving waste disposal systems, drainage and other sanitation practices that reduce or eliminate unhealthful living conditions," he continued.

Capt. Little spoke with enthusiasm about the four dispensaries being built in the battalion's area of operations.

"We are supervising the construction and supplying the dispensaries," he said. "But in the third phase of the project, Vietnamese medics, trained at the 173d's Health School at Landing Zone English, will return to their home villages to operate the dispensaries."

Officer Candidate Follows in Father's Footsteps

BY PFC JAMES SWINK

Officer Candidate Thomas Girard, currently assigned to the 63rd Infantry Officer Candidate Company, 6th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, by choosing a military career, is following in the footsteps of his father Brig. Gen. Charles J. Girard.

Candidate Girard attended high school at Monterey High School Monterey, Calif. In high school he became interested in science, particularly physics. While working in the physics laboratory, Girard developed a new theoretical approach to the explanation of the multiplicity of high energy particles.

Candidate Girard entered his new theory in a local science fair and won a trip to Baltimore, Md., as a finalist in the National Science Fair. From this, he received numerous awards from the Physics and Atomic Energy Commissions. All of these awards earned him the privilege of working at the Aerospace Research Laboratory at Wright - Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, during the summer months. Girard also was selected as one of five representatives from California to the National Conference on the Atom in Chicago, Ill. He later presented his theory in lecture to the University of California at Berkley.

Girard also had other interests, including music. He played solo coronet for both the tri-county concert band and orchestra. He later played in the Berlin international band concert in Germany.

After he graduated from high school, Girard and his family moved to Germany because of military orders. There he entered the University of Maryland Munich Campus.

In his first year at the University, Girard was made managing editor of the University newspaper. In his second year, he was made publication chairman on the Student Life Board. While in this position he published the school's first literary magazine.

Girard also had some time to travel to such countries as Switzerland, Italy, England, Austria, Holland, Yugoslavia, France, Greece, Belgium, Bulgaria and Spain.

After his sophomore year, Girard returned to the United States and attended the summer session at the University of South Carolina. In the fall he joined the Army.

He attended basic combat training at Fort Benning and advanced individual training in Military Intelligence at Fort Bragg, N.C. His whole class was selected for the Vietnamese Language School but Girard received his orders for OCS before attending the language school.

Brig. Gen. Charles J. Girard, Candidate Girard's father, is presently serving in the Republic of Vietnam as the deputy commanding general, Capital Military Assistance Command, U.S. Army Republic of Vietnam.

Gen. Girard began his career in the Army in 1942 when he was graduated from the Citadel (Charleston, S. C.) and commissioned as a second lieutenant.

During World War II, the senior Girard saw action in North Africa, Sicily, Normandy and Central Europe with the 2nd Armored Division. He has received a Silver Star and a bronze Star Medal.

CADET RECEIVES AIRBORNE ORIENTATION ON EUBANKS

USMA Cadets Receive Orientation

This Is The Infantry

By PFC Lee Myers

Cadets from the U.S. Military Academy visited the U.S. Army Infantry School here for three days last week. Their schedule included quick-kill training, watching Rangers in action, a beginning lesson in airborne training and watching an Infantry company air assault on Landing Zone Tiger.

Arriving June 21 at Lawson Army Airfield, the cadets quickly entered Fort Benning activities. That afternoon they were bused to Shelton Range where they received quick-kill training with the M-16 rifle. The leaders reaction course challenged the cadets' task solving ability and team work.

Career panels were held in Infantry Hall where captains and majors from the U.S. Army Infantry School here told about their careers and answered cadet questions on everything from Vietnam to aviator training.

At Victory Pond, the Rangers put on demonstrations for the cadets. Hand-to-hand combat, climbing, rapelling 34 feet in one jump and rappelling in a piggy - back evacuation, were shown by the Rangers followed by two confidence exercises—walking a log 45 feet above water before dropping into the water and a wire slide where the Ranger is doing approximately 50 miles per hour when he drops from the slide into the water.

Airmobile Demonstration

At North Ruth Range, the cadets watched an airmobile demonstration where a company level air assault was conducted after U.S. Air Force fighter bombers, artillery fire, and armed helicopters had blasted the landing zone. Four platoons and three 105mm howitzers were airlifted in and evacuated.

At Eubanks Field, an airborne orientation was conducted by Capt. Edwin P. Smith, West Point class of 1967. After short demonstrations of each phase of airborne training, the cadets tried out the swing landing trainer and the 34-foot tower jump.

At a farewell address Saturday morning, Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry School and Fort Benning, presented a plaque to the cadets who, in turn, gave a dress parade hat to Gen. Forsythe.

As he was standing at Lawson Field after an action-packed three-day visit to Fort Benning's U.S. Army Infantry School, West Point Cadet G. Tam, said, "Yes, I believe I will go Infantry."

The visit to Fort Benning was the last stop for the 741 U.S. Military Academy cadets who toured five Army posts during June to look at the various combat branches of the Army. All of the cadets on the tour are first classmen who will graduate next June.

Cadet Tam said, "At the other posts we just sat and watched but at Fort Benning we did something, we received some good training. The airborne training, the quick-kill rifle technique, the leaders reaction course, all were great. I bet 90 per cent of our class goes airborne next summer."

Tactical Field Use Of Satellites Studied

US ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — Satellite technology which is changing the face of global strategic communication, is being examined by the Army for its application at the tactical field level. Under a Combat Developments Command (CDC), Ft. Belvoir, Va., program, Tactical Satellite Communication (TACSATCOM), the Army may soon bring satellite communication into its radio inventory.

Designed to augment what may someday be a vast array of military communications satellites, TACSATCOM will be unique because it is used by field units for tactical communications. TACSATCOM, as proposed, will be capable of handling a large number of calls or messages at a single time.

TACSATCOM, because it is a satellite communications system, will not be bound by limitations of terrain and weather like conventional, line-of-sight radio systems. Such systems force combat units to broadcast from the high ground and are hampered by mountainous terrain features. Field units of the future will be able to broadcast from the low ground, over mountains and dense jungles, to receiving stations hundreds of miles away.

Like most communications satellites, TACSATCOM will be synchronous in orbit. That is, it will rotate in the same direction and at a comparable speed as the earth, thus remaining "fixed" in the sky. Unlike satellites which relay all incoming signals, TACSATCOM will have the ability to detect and disregard unfriendly signals. This selective ability, combined with its reliable accuracy in "hitting" any desired receiver-target area, enables commanders to transmit to a specific area without blanketing the world. In much the same way, of talking "to" a person rather than talking "toward him."

At present, CDC is studying several types of terrestrial radio "terminals" capable of using TACSATCOM's service. Those being considered use a small single-channel portable unit capable of being manpacked in the field. Quarter ton, 1¼ ton, and 2½ ton trucks are also being considered as terminals. These highly mobile units would facilitate mobile - channel communication, capable of two-way voice communication, in the field. Aircraft terminals are also a possibility.

While a bright future beckoned, they freely gave their lives and fondest hopes for us and our allies, that we might learn from them courage in peace to spend our lives making a better world for others.

Civil Service Benefits Available for Wives

Certain veterans' wives, widows and mothers have employment benefits with the federal government through the U.S. Civil Service Commission, State Veterans Director Pete Wheeler said.

Under the regulations, the wife of a veteran disabled in service and whose disability would disqualify him for Civil Service appointment to jobs along the line of his usual occupation may apply for veterans' preference whereby points are added to the passing score on Civil Service examinations.

The widow of a veteran who died in military service is entitled to a veteran's preference in seeking federal employment as long as the veteran's military record would have caused him to be discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Another provision allows the mother, widowed or divorced from the father of a disabled or deceased serviceman, the same Civil Service preference under the previously stated conditions.

Civil Service preference is generally granted to veterans of all wars and certain peacetime veterans. Veterans have five points added to their passing scores and disabled veterans have 10 points added to their scores on examinations.

Television Begins New Role at Fort Benning

By REX ELMS

Television has entered a new role at Fort Benning. For many years it was a means of entertainment and information only but this week the U.S. Army Infantry Board at this Georgia post commenced adapting TV to the field of testing Infantry weapons and equipment.

The Infantry Board, an Infantry materiel test activity of the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, has used still pictures and movies to record tests data and information since the Board's early inception at the turn of the century.

In its new endeavor, television is proving it has great potential. Test officials of the test board point out that the objective of the new medium is to examine its potential as a means of instrumentation and recording interactions of man-equipment and for remote visual scoring of target hits. They are evaluating the TV as a means of monitoring the widely separated, simultaneous actions of gun crews; operation of the equipment and the recorded results attained. This is the first time that television has been used in the capacity of testing methodology instrumentation.

Providing the new methodology instrumentation is successful, it will give the test officer many advantages over the original movies and still photography. First among these is instant playback capability. This will reduce the time element and give the test officer a means of instantly detecting any faulty operation or function. A second advantage is that through the means of the four TV cameras used during the testing, the test officer watching in the console control van has four different views simultaneously of testing operations.

This is like having four pairs of eyes or being at four vantage points simultaneously! A third advantage of the TV is that it takes less light in comparison to the photo process of movies and still cameras. This is due to the TV reproduction which is made electronically, while the movies and still cameras produce their images through the means of chemical emulsion process. Anything the naked eye can see clearly, the TV camera will reproduce for its viewers.

During the testing of any item of equipment, each of the four individual cameras are placed at vantage points and focused on a particular phase. They run continuously during the entire operation with their recorded image being presented in the Console Control Van. Here the test officer by looking over the shoulder of the console controller an observe readily the testing as it progresses and at the flick of a switch, record on video tape the testing for further viewing during the boarding action of the test item.

During this observation, the test officer can also select sections of any two pictures from the four miniature TV screens on the console to be presented on the tape together. This enables the test officer to record simultaneously two different scenes or use a split screen effect of the test in progress. This would be viewed on video tape much like a scene of the quarterback in football falling back to pass while at the same time observing his receiver positioning himself downfield to receive.

To further enhance the capability of the TV view of the testing process, each camera is equipped with a zoom lens. This makes possible the viewing from a close-up vantage, the minute detail of an operation or the action of an individual crew member. In addition, the television console control team has an electronic counter which measures time down to a millisecond. This permits a corner insertion in any film sequence of the elapsed time.

One of the highlights of this new method of testing Infantry equipment and weapons will be the conducting of a night test of a mortar crew in action. This test will be made entirely without artificial light, something that would be impossible when using still or movie cameras.

Gen. Abrams Announces

General Creighton W. Abrams has announced in Saigon the unit designations of the approximately 2,000 Army Reserve and Army National Guard personnel scheduled for demobilizaton.

These Reservists in 20 units are part of the 25,000 U.S. military personnel who will be replaced by Republic of Vietnam Armed Forces in July and August.

Reservists who were deployed to the Republic of Vietnam with these units will be reassembled and redeployed to the United States as packets. All members of the 20 units, whether or not they went with the unit to Vietnam, will be released from active duty at the same time as their unit.

The units will move initially to an Army Post near their home station for processing. Following this, they will be moved to their home Armory or Reserve Center for demobilization.

The procedures established for the return of the Reserve Component units to the United States will reestablish unit integrity and insure arrival of the units in their home towns with unit colors. Widow Accepts Awards For SFC James McKee

The Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal were posthumously awarded to SFC James E. McKee in a ceremony here. He was killed in action in the Republic of Vietnam February 11.

In presenting the awards, Col. Wiley B. Wisdom, deputy post commander, commended SFC McKee for "outstandingly meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam" during the period from July 1, 1968, to Feb. 11, 1969.

Prior to his death, SFC McKee had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, first oak leaf cluster, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, Combat Infantryman Badge and the Sharpshooter Badge with automatic rifle and rifle bars.

Tour Planned For Soviet Star

HOLLYWOOD—The Soviets, who have no screen star with the international popularity, for example, of Kirk Douglas or Shirley MacLaine, hope to develop one in Innokenti Smoktunovsky, lead in the musical drama, "Tschaikovsky."

The Ministry of Cinematography is arranging a full-scale personal appearance tour, in conjunction with Warner Bros-Seven Arts taking the actor to many big cities, especially in the United States. WB will distribute, starting next April, this first joint Russian-American picture in non-Communist countries.

175 Cadets Visit Fort

Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets from 24 colleges in 15 states visited Fort Benning for an orientation on Infantry School training.

The 175 students, most of whom will begin their senior college year in the fall, saw scout dog training, a Rangers in action program and the "Airborne 5,000" demonstration.

The Army orientation is part of tour of military installations that has included trips to Wright Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio; Craig Air Force Base, Selma, Ala., and Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala.

Some of the units participating in the four include AFROTC departments from Oklahoma State University, Mississippi State University and the University of Witchita.

Sears Chosen for Outstanding Drill Sergeant Award

SSgt. Paul N. Sears Jr., has been nominated from the Army Training Center for the Stephen Ailes Award for the Outstanding Drill Sergeant in the Army.

A platoon sergeant in Co. A, 10th Bn., 1st Bde., Sergeant Sears will compete next month for the Third Army nomination. Selection of the Army winner will be made in August by a US CONARC board.

This will be the first presentation of the Stephen Ailes Award that is named for a former secretary of the Army and which will be presented annually in honor and recognition of the drill sergeants' outstanding achievements and contribution to the Army.

SSGT. PAUL SEARS

Competing with Sergeant Sears for the Ft. Benning nomination were SSgts. Clarence Bailey, Eugene Smith, Donald Thompson, Willie B. Jones and John P. McClain and Sgt. Russell E. Keiffer, each chosen by his company on a basis of demonstrated proficiency and personal qualifications.

Sears' nomination followed written examinations, presentations of class instruction techniques and personal interviews by a board composed of Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis, Training Center commanding generals; Col. Richard H. Measer and Francisco J. Ramos; Lt. Col. Edward E. Betts, and Training staff section and Command Sergeants Major A. W. Akridge, S. D. Dorner and T. J. Tubin.

Sergeant Sears' outstanding record as a drill sergeant began at the Third U. S. Army Drill Sergeant School where he was an honor graduate in April 1967.

Assigned here while the Training Center was composed of three brigades, Sergeant Sears' platoon in Co. E, 11th Bn., 3rd Bde., achieved the distinction of being named Platoon of the Cycle. As Sergeant Sears subsequently served with Co., 10th Bn., 2nd Bde., and Co. A, 10th Bn., 1st Bde., his platoons merited this honor twice more.

Formerly of Jacksonville, Fla., the 23 year old drill sergeant underwent basic training at Fort Gordon in 1963, and served in Europe with the 4th Armored Division and the 21st Infantry.

He was among the top five graduates of the 4th Armored Division NCO Academy and later was deployed with the 196th Light Infantry Brigade to Vietnam where he served as a team and squad leader.

His medals include the Bronze Star with V-device, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

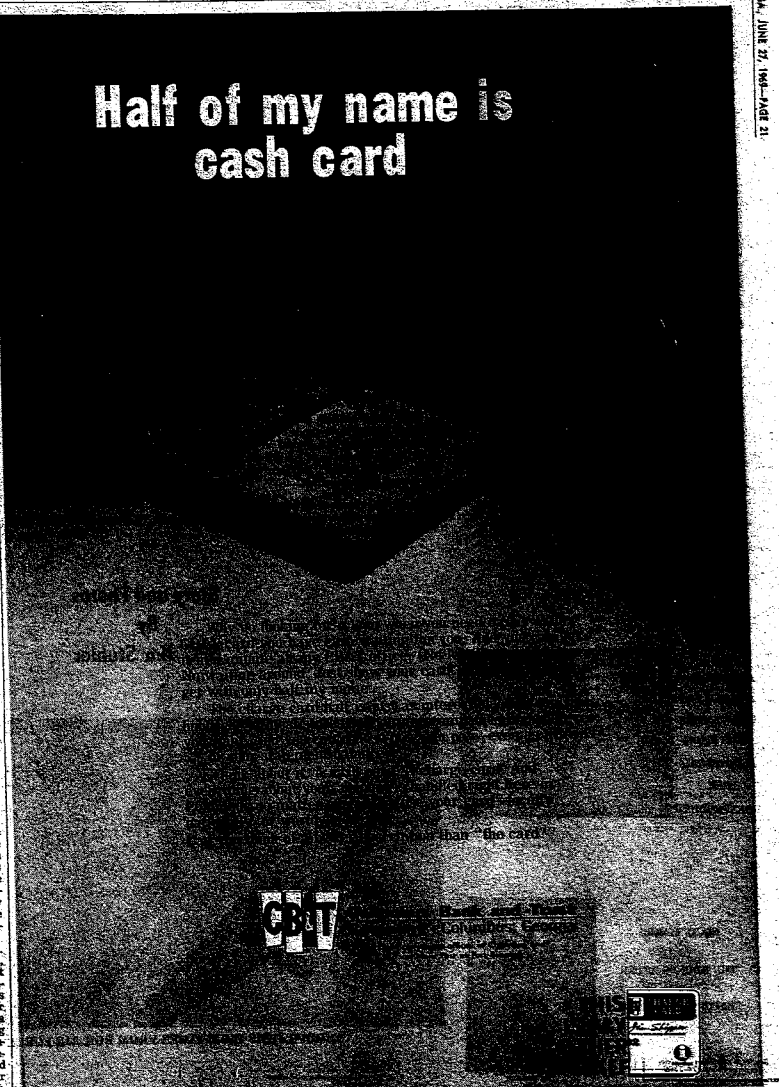
YAC Holds Derby Run

Fort Benning Soap Box Derby hopefuls, who are eagerly preparing for the Columbus race, will get an important test of their cars and driving ability in the Fort Benning Youth Activities (YAC) Soap Box Derby Monday at the Derby Race track, located at the Muscogee County Airport.

According to Benjamin J. Ranieri, YAC director, there are about ten Fort Benning military dependents with cars in various stages of completion for the race, which will be a stepping stone to the big Akron finals for the winner. All the boys are between the ages of 11 and 15. They cannot reach their 15th birthdays before Aug. 1.



Hell On Earth

'Airborne' The Korean's Way

By SFC Jim Stuhler

KIMPO AB, KOREA (United Nations Command)—You leap out and the prop blast hits you like a hurricane. The landing zone rushes up to meet you.

Then you hit, roll, collapse your chute and double-time over to your smiling instructor to receive those Airborne Wings. You are finally a paratrooper. A tough member of a tough Republic of Korea Army (ROKA).

You began training four weeks ago under the expert tutelage of seasoned ROKA Special Forces paratroopers and advisers from the U.S. Special Forces.

Your first two weeks were hell on earth. Each day began with a five-mile run followed by endless hours of physical toughening that one U.S. adviser termed "ten times rougher" than the program given airborne trainees back in the States.

You learn you can do 150 pushups.

You learned proper methods of landing and rolling without injuring yourself. You were drilled in exiting aircraft without endangering yourself or your buddies.

In your third week, you moved anxiously to the tower where you were taught how to control your parachute in the air and after landing.

Your fourth week was the toughest. You jumped four times from ROK Air Force C46's almost into the arms of your instructors. They corrected your awkwardness and let you practice your pushups again.

Now you're floating down on your fifth and final training jump. Beneath you the entire class is assembled for graduation and the award of the coveted wings. You're on the ground—and you did it right this time. You almost like that $$&&!! instructor who even now is letting you enjoy more pushups.

The school commandant pins on the silver wings and you join your fellow paratroopers for the traditional "Prop Blast" graduation ceremony.

Topless Role Needs Permit

HOLLYWOOD — A special permit had to be obtained by Warner Bros.-Seven Arts from Reading, Pennsylvania, authorities to employ a local girl to play a topless waitress in "Rabbit, Run," picture starring James Caan and filming in Reading.

Jack Smight, the film's director, discovered that this part of Pennsylvania doesn't have topless waitresses or go-go girls.

Veterans of Vietnam Will Join Celebrations

Bands, vocalists, marching units, and veterans of the Vietnam conflict will travel from Fort Benning to several Georgia cities to join in celebrating Independence Day.

In all, several hundred Fort Benning soldiers and dependents will help to make observance of the national holiday a greater success in four cities of Georgia and Florida.

Locally, the July Fourth observance includes participation in the annual WTVM Television parade and program by the 283rd Army Band, a color guard from the 197th Infantry Brigade and the Polka Dots of the Officers Wives Club. This event begins in Columbus at 9 a.m.

The group traveling the greatest distance from Fort Benning will be that from Martin Army Hospital. Seventy combat veterans of Vietnam are scheduled to go to Daytona, Fla.

They have been invited as guests of the Daytona International Speedway at a 400-mile race that day.

The race, formerly known as the Firecracker 400, has been renamed this year. It is now known as the Medal of Honor 400, and honors men who have received their country's highest award for valor.

The 291st Army Band will travel to Marietta, Ga. The band will join a parade during the Cobb County observance.

The annual Salute to America parade, which is staged in Atlanta each year by WSB-TV, will include the men of Company A, 75th Ranger Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Actor Imitates Miss Dietrich

The initial scene of the 24-year-old actor in Warner Bros.-Seven Arts' "The Damned" shows him singing a number from "The Blue Angel" in imitation of Miss Dietrich. Berger looked at the old Dietrich classic 13 times to help him copy the actress' performance.

At Kelley Hill

Center Offers Varied Education

A wise man once said, "There is no such thing as too much education," and that is the motto of the Kelley Hill Education Center. High School and college courses can be arranged besides the ones offered in auto mechanics, languages and typewriting, just to name a few.

Every man coming to the 197th Inf. Bde. inprocesses with the Education Center and there his records are examined to determine what assistance can be offered the man.

The services offered are plentiful. For men with a GT score of less than 90 or for personnel with less than an eighth grade education, there is a remedial training program which is required by the units. Mrs. Franks and Mrs. Keever are the teachers instructing remedial reading at the elementary level.

One or two nights a week a man can come in for a high school refresher course. A diploma can be awarded after successfully completing the five part GED Test.

The five standardized tests which must be passed are: English composition, social sciences, history, natural sciences, literature and math.

Education officials are unanimous in their agreement that it is difficult for a man to get ahead, whether in civilian life or the military, unless he has attained at least a high school diploma. The Army tries to do everything possible to get a man his diploma.

On the college level, a man can obtain up to 36 hours of college credits through the military. There are 44 state colleges and universities which offer correspondence courses. The cost is established by the university but is much less than having a resident professor at hand.

The Army pays up to ¾ of the cost for such a program.

Kirk Douglas Dyes Hair Red For New Role

HOLLYWOOD — "There Was a Crooked Man . . ." is the first picture in which Kirk Douglas has radically altered his appearance. He has red hair and steel-rimmed, old-fashioned eyeglasses in the Warner Bros.-Seven Arts film.

"I'll do anything if it helps the story," said Kirk. "I play an incorrigible convict, circa 1880's, a man who prides himself on being a professional hard guy with an utter lack of sentiment. But he does it all with a smile. Somehow, after director Joe Mankiewicz and I talked it over it seemed right that he have red hair.

"It's anti-cliche, because you don't find many red-haired heavies. And the spectacles are of ordinary glass. They're to fool the warden."

Soldier-Artists Win Cash Prizes

By PFC Lee Myers

A ring, a belt, a chessboard and Sp4 Donald R. Isabell had $75 more for a merrier month of May.

Special Services of Fort Benning, through the craft shops, conducted a crafts contest early in May and Spt Isabell of the 197th Infantry Brigade won first place in the jewelry category, the leather category and the woodworking category. The first place award in each category was $25, and second place, $20.

Maj. Joel M. Gross of Martin Army Hospital won first place in the mosaics category and second place in the woodworking category to receive $45 in cash awards.

Other winners were PFC Donald R. Weber, first and second place in ceramics; Pvt. Joseph D. Sikes, first place in sculpture; Capt. Charles H. Briscoe, second place in sculpture; PFC Thomas H. Clark, second place in jewelry, and Lt. Robert D. Patton, second place in leather.

On May 23, 24 and 25, the winning entries were displayed at Craft Shop No. 1. The contest was open to military persons only but the craft shops are also open to retired and active duty individuals and their dependents.

There are nine craft shops at Fort Benning offering instruction and tools for woodworking, ceramics, photography, leatherworking, automotive work, model building and boat building. The tools and equipment are furnished by the craft shops but the material needed for each project has to be purchased by the patron.

"A handtooled leather belt which would retail for $25 could be made for $3 at a craft shop," said John E. Smith of Craft Shop No. 1. "The leather would cost $2.50 and an attractive buckle, fifty cents. Patterns can be traced from an old belt, moccasin or sandal, or a person can use one of our patterns here at the craft shop."

The craft shops are open from 1 to 10 p.m. every day except the Main Post Craft Shop which is open Tuesday through Friday from 6 to 10 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Woman, 22, Takes Job Of Recreation Specialist

There has been a new addition to the staff of the Kelley Hill Service Club which is sure to please the men of the 197th Inf. Bde.

Miss Martha Tatum, 22, has assumed the job of recreation specialist for the remainder of the year she is hard at work teaching the third grade at McBride Elementary School at Fort Benning.

A native of Jasper, Ala., she now resides in Columbus. Graduating from Auburn University last year, she finds teaching to be a demanding but rewarding occupation.

"These kids have seen so much of the country and the world because of their fathers being in the military that we learn from each other," she said.

Miss Tatum finds her new employment equally as fascinating as teaching. "This is a marvelous facility for the men and I am happy to be working here. There are a lot of activities available and I can see that I will be really busy."

Miss Carolyn Domingus, the Service Club director, is constantly trying to brighten up the life of the servicemen and with the addition of Miss Tatum, she has certainly succeeded.

Ex-Policeman Plays Indian

HOLLYWOOD — For the first time in his acting life, Rudy Diaz, former Los Angeles homicide sergeant, has won a sympathetic role, that of an Indian policeman in "Nobody Loves Flapping Eagle," Warner Bros. - Seven Arts picture starring Anthony Quinn.

Would you believe the New York Mets in second place and currently the hottest team in baseball? Sounds like an Alice-in-Wonderland tale doesn't it? But it's true. As of early this past week, they had won 18 out of their last 23 games. Doing it with a mixture of a few established players and many young ones biting at the leash they are now 4½ games out of first in the Eastern Division of the National League. A few years ago the only way the Mets would have been in second is if all the other teams save one had suddenly retired.

Cleon Jones is currently batting .343 and is one of the brightest stars in the game. The only reasonable explanation for the team is that they have finally decided to do the unreasonable—win games. The potential has been slowly building up for a couple of years and is now breaking into the open. The Mets have made several good trades and more important have been cultivating a fine crop of minor leaguers. Tommy Agee, once rookie of the year in the American League, is batting .298 and moving upward. Jerry Koosman, since returning from a shoulder injury has yielded only 4 earned runs and has an ERA of .81. He has not been getting much support from his teammates in the hitting department but he doesn't seem to need much. Pitching under pressure his record now stands at 5-4. He has a long way to go before reaching the magic 20 game winning circle but do not count him or the Mets out yet. They definitley do not have the look of a team about to fold. I still place my bets with the Chicago Cubs but no one is going to argue with a second place finish for the Mets, certainly not their fans.

With hard throwing Don Sutton, Claude Osteen and Bill Singer holding up the pitching end, the Los Angeles Dodgers vaulted into first place in the Western Division. Familiar surroundings have sparked Maury Wills and his rubber legs and he has now stolen more bases than the entire Dodger team combined. The Dodgers started the season with a crew of peach faced young men who were said to be a couple of years away from reaching their potential. But they are looking more and more like the Dodger team of old. Good pitching and a few key hits in the right places. Their team batting average of .242 is way above previous years and while not pretending to be power hitters, they make every single count.

Temperamental Richie Allen is at it again. Last week in a post game interview he suddenly stalked off leaving behind a stunned radio announcer. He had just led the Phillies to a 6-1 victory over San Diego by hitting his 16th home run of the season. "I don't give anyone an interview for trading stamps," he told San Diego broadcaster Jerry Gross during a commercial break. He asked Gross during the break what he was being paid for the interview and Gross replied that the players were paid in trading stamps. Most housewives wouldn't agree with Allen but then they have never tried to buy a car with trading stamps either.

THOUGHTS AT RANDOM: The dirt seems to be accumulating on Joe Namath's side of the fence each time you pick up a newspaper. Now it appears that he has been holding crap games in his apartment with a good many bad guys. If Joe were not a football star and only a working man, his employer would not have waited so long to fire him. Some of the gold crust around Joe's head seems to be deteriorating. I am all for a man sticking by his principles but only if they are legitimate and Joe seems to be walking a fine tightrope between the legal and illegal side of the road.

The Cleveland Indians are getting nowhere fast in the American League but one thing they have going for them is Sam McDowell. After a dismal start he has boosted his record to 9-6. Before each season someone invariably compares him with Sandy Koufax and for awhile it seemed that this was justified. But Sudden Sam always appeared more interested in his hair do than getting batters out. His fast ball is perhaps the best in either league when he sets his mind to putting it over the plate. While the Indians may be looking up at the rest of the league, Sam may finally be able to look down on them.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By BILL KLOBE

There was no change in the standings of the Fishing Derby last week. SSgt. Bobby McCarter, Co. A, Infantry School Battalion leads the bass contest with the seven-pound seven-ounce bass he caught at Averett Pond June 11. SFC Ortis Perez, Co. A, Infantry School Battalion, is leading the catfish contest with the 13-pound 12-ounce catch he made at Victory Pond June 5 and the one-pound bream CPT Jimmy Ford took from Patterson Pond is still the best for the month.

According to Tom McConlough, manager of the Rod and Gun Club, June has not been a good month for fishing. It could be because most of the post fishermen use the same ponds. After awhile some of these are bound to get a little overfished. There are quite a few ponds on the post which are far enough out of the way and so hard to get to that most fishermen don't want to take the bother to go there. It's so much easier to take the paved roads to ponds like Kings, Victory or Weems Ponds.

A good example is the Box Springs Beaver Pond. This severall acre pond located in the northeastern section of the reservation has good populations of bass and jack (pickerel), and snakes too. The beavers are still around but are harmless.

To get there take Hourglass Road to Buena Vista Road, turn right and go east to Box Springs Road. Turn left on Box Springs Road and go down Box Springs Road until you reach the Beaver Pond.

It will take about 30 minutes more or less depending on the condition of the road. The last 1,000 yards will make you think you are lost but don't give up. You can drive to within 15 or 20 feet of the water. There is a small turnaround for convenience.

The best fishing is from a row boat. If you don't own one you can rent a boat and car rack at the Rod and Gun Club. The most lucrative spot for fishing is near some old partially submerged railroad ties about 30 feet from the dam. A deep Beaver run goes past these ties on the side away from the dam.

For bait, bass minnows have proved best in the past. These can be bought at the Rod and Gun Club when you check in and be sure to do this. To reach the Beaver Pond it is necessary to skirt a major impact area.

Other little fished ponds are McMath, Pope and Snelling because they are located in an impact area and Mobley, King's Mill and Britton because of the problem involved in getting to them.

The Chattahoochee Archery Council of the Rod and Gun Club held the Georgia Pre-State Archery shoot on the Rod and Gun Ranges last Saturday and Sunday. The purpose of the shoot was to provide contestants planning to participate in the State Championship next month an opportunity to become familiar with the course.

Royce McDuffey, current state champion won the mens' free style scratch division with a score of 1047, Lamar Hardy was second and Tom Durham was third.

The free style class "B" division was won by Roy Marshall, Danny Wright was second and Bill McWain was third. The class "C" free style event went to Gary Bush.

The free style handicap shoot was won by H. L. Colton, Ken Corley was second.

Sandy Elliot won the ladies free style open, Janis Beverly the ladies bare bow and Maryella Desselle won the bare bow class "C" event.

The bow hunter class "A" division was won by Ronald Little while Laroy Desselle was second. Class "B" was won by Earl Allen.

The youth bare bow event was won by Chuck Ard. The youth class "B" went to Dennis Bailey and Chuck LaRue won the young adult division free style event.

President Announces Boating Safety Week

By BILL HARDIN

"We have an enviable record. We have been extremely fortunate. In looking back over the records, we have not recorded a boating accident which involved personal injury to anyone at Fort Benning in the past two fiscal years," said James E. Blount, a Fort Benning safety officer.

"With National Boating Safety Week almost here, I feel that it is appropriate to review the rules of boating safety," he stated.

President Nixon has announced National Boating Safety Week this year will be observed June 29 through July 5.

Blount reminded all boat owners and operators that all rigs which carry motors rated at 10-horse power or above must have a license.

There are approximately 9 million boats in this category in America that have been registered. There are probably another 3 million which have not yet been registered," Blount said.

"More boats are being sold each year and new owners must be aware not only of the rules of licensing their boats, but of general water safety as well, if we are to continue our record here at Fort Benning," he said.

Blount cited the state laws of both Georgia and Alabama which require one life preserver for each occupant of a boat and commented that there are four basic rules which help promote boating safety. He listed these as:

1. Don't stand up in a boat unless it is large enough and has been designed to accomodate standing safely.

2. Remain with an overturned boat until help arrives and do not attempt to swim to safety.

3. Return immediately to a skier who may have fallen, in order to prevent injury to the skier by another boat in the area.

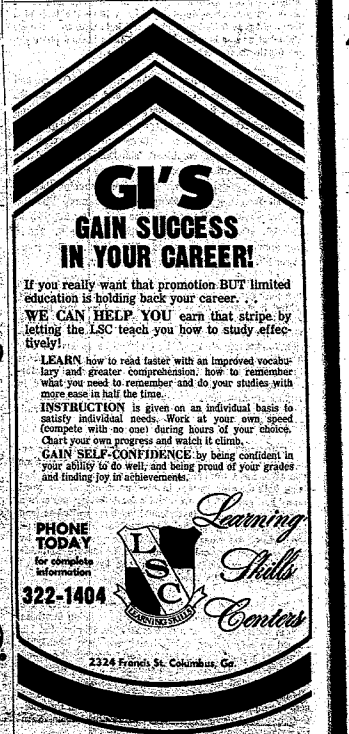
4. Have at least one other person in the boat with the operator at all times.

The safety officer said that if these basic rules were followed, along with common sense and courtesy, there would be very few boating accidents.

He pointed out that the Alabama water safety patrol conducts lectures to interested persons on water safety subjects. In addition, he explained that the local power squadron, a Coast Guard auxiliary unit, offers free classes for operators and would-be operators of all types of boats, even up to large seagoing ocean liners.

The safety officer said that ther are various Red Cross Safety courses and lesson plans available and there is information on boating and water safety available through the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club, and the post Safety Office. Coordination with any or all of these may be handled through the Safety Office.

"With the number of pleasure boats almost doubling every year, we must become increasingly concerned with and conscious of boating safety," Blount stated.



COMPUTER CORNER

By Bud Goode

Which are the power hitting teams in the American and National Leagues?

Boston, Baltimore and Detroit generate all the steam in the American League East. Oakland and Seattle top the Western Division. Cincinnati and Atlanta light up the boilers in the National League. That ends the list.

Power hitting, defined by Computer Corner as the percentage of hits which go for extra bases, is a more accurate measure of runs delivered than is the well known slugging percentage.

Over the years power hitting has not been as important in scoring runs as consistent on base average. Over a 162 game season, two single back-to-back wins more games than a screaming double off the center field fence. But the increased importance of batting this year (due to the lowered pitching mound) has added to the power hitter's value. Computer Corner now weights Power hitting at 75% of a team's On Base Average figure.

To measure this weighted power hitting percentage, Computer Corner poured the season statistics through games of June 3, into our Univac sports analyzer with these results:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

EAST	POWER HITTING %	WEST	POWER HITTING%
BOSTON	13.6	SEATTLE	10.5
BALTIMORE	11.3	OAKLAND	10.3
DETROIT	10.5	CHICAGO	9.3
WASHINGTON	9.4	MINNESOTA	9.5
NEW YORK	9.0	KANSAS CITY	7.5
CLEVELAND	7.6	CALIFORNIA	6.8
League Average	9.7	League Average	9.7

NATIONAL LEAGUE

CHICAGO	9.5	CINCINNATI	12.4
PHILADELPHIA	9.4	ATLANTA	10.5
NEW YORK	9.3	LOS ANGELES	9.1
PITTSBURGH	8.5	SAN FRANCISCO	8.8
MONTREAL	8.4	HOUSTON	8.5
ST. LOUIS	7.5	SAN DIEGO	8.0
League Average	9.1	League Average	9.1

Surprises? Seattle tops the American League West in power percentage. A big share of their hits go for extra bases. The surprise in the National League? Sure—St. Louis. Seems all their steam has turned to dew.

Two Basic Combat Graduates Have Major League Contracts

By PFC C. W. Hilburn

Two outstanding professional baseball prospects who have signed grant-in-aid contracts to play for the Minnesota Twins of the American League Western Division, will finish their basic combat training together in graduation exercises today for the 10th Battalion.

Pvts. David A. Goltz, Co. B, and Jerry W. Terrell, Co. C, both reservists in 10th Bn., 1st Bde., will be teaming up again soon, however, at the Winter Baseball Instructional League in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Professional scouts from both leagues have been "high" in their praise for both Goltz and Terrell, whom they believe have the credentials to become top big league performers.

Goltz, 19, son of Mrs. Clara M. Goltz of Rothsay, Minn., was signed by the Minnesota Twins in June of 1967 for a substantial cash bonus. His pitching record compiled to date speaks for itself in explaining why such teams as the N.Y. Mets, Washington Senators, Atlanta Braves and Minnesota Twins have all tried to acquire his talents.

In four years at Rothsay Public High, the big 6'4", 215 pound hurler compiled an outstanding 35-8 record. In his senior year at Rothsay Public the strong right-hander posted a 7-1 mark, mowing down hitters with a blazing 0.86 earned run average.

During his sophomore and junior years, Goltz was picked on the all Little Valley Conference Football and Basketball team and was named most valuable player in basketball for his school. In his senior year he was named Best Defensive Player in football for the conference.

Offered 19 football and basketball scholarships on graduation from high school, Goltz decided to follow a baseball career instead. Scouts have noted that size and speed, plus the fact that he throws a variety of pitches including the fast ball, curve, slider, knuckle ball and changeup, make Goltz a top prospect.

Terrell, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Terrell of Box 15, Elysian, Minn., signed his contract to play for the Twins in June of 1968.

A letterman in all sports at Waterville-Elysian High, and senior years as a pitcher, shortstop and second baseman.

Terrell was all Gopher Conference, in his junior

Three Men Hold 240 Trophies

By Thomas D. Walker

JFK CENTER, FT. BRAGG, N.C.—Two hundred and forty trophies, nine Army post titles and one Third United States Army crown are represented in the three-man contingent from the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance which is competing in the 1969 Third Army Tennis Tournament at Ft. Benning, Ga., June 23-27.

Topping the list with 100 trophies and five Army post titles is Captain Bentley Hill, aide-de-camp to the center commanding general.

Hill, who went to college on a four-year tennis scholarship, formerly played with professional tennis player Dennis Ralston as a junior tennis player.

He won the 1966 singles and doubles crowns at Ft. Hood, Tex.; the 1967 singles and doubles events at Ft. Riley, Kan.; and the 1969 singles title here.

Colonel Stanley has garnered 100 trophies during a 22-year tennis career. Perfecting his style while practicing with the Spanish Davis Cup team from 1960 to 1963, Stanley is the 1969 Ft. Bragg Senior Singles champion; a Third Army Senior Singles champion, 1966 Fayetteville (N.C.) Senior Singles titleholder, and the 1962 Spain-Morocco District Singles winner.

Cornford, a southpaw, is the 1967 Ft. Bragg Singles Open champion and runner-up to Hill in the 1969 post competition.

In addition, he and Stanley combined their talents to cop the 1969 center doubles crown. When he is not performing his duties as center comptroller, Cornford plays in the Eastern North Carolina Tennis Association where he is undefeated in 27 consecutive matches.

Teams Begin Competing In Rally for Pony Clubs

The 14th Southern Regional Rally for Pony Clubs began Wednesday evening with the setting up of tack and stables at Fort Benning's Blue Field and will continue through Saturday afternoon.

Eighteen teams arrived Wednesday with horses and riders from Georgia, Alabama, and Florida. The Benning Pony Club and the Midland Fox Hounds Pony Club of Columbus, are hosting the rally.

Thursday competition began on French Field with the "C" group riding in the dressage event.

Today, the cross country event will be held on a special course laid out north of the Fort Benning Country Club. The course is 2150 meters with 21 obstacles including hay bales, posts, rails, fallen trees and open ditches.

Saturday, stadium jumping will be held on French Field starting at 10 a.m. and continuing until 2:20 p.m. At 3 p.m., Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, will present awards at French Field to the winning teams and individuals.

The Medal of Honor Mini-marathon, an annual event at Fort Benning, has attracted a number of the best known runners in the Southeast for this year's running.

The first and second place winners in the race last year are entered again this year. They are Bruce Labuddi of the Atlanta Track Club, who captured first place and Nick Costas of the Troy State University (Ala.) Track Club, who was second in 1968.

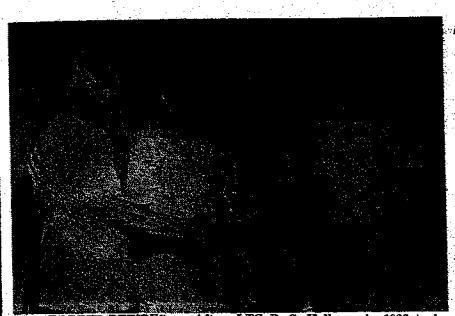
New Battalion Commander Calls 'Knowing Your People' Top Job



MAH BARBER RETIRES . . . After 43 years and 19 commanding officers, Arthur C. Cullifer started his barber career at US Army Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia on 24 June 1926. Since then he has cut the hair of all Commanding Officers of Martin Army Hospital beginning with LTC P. S. Halloran in 1926 to include our present Commanding Officer, Colonel Martin A. Pfotenhauer. Mr. Cullifer is shown being congratulated by Colonel Martin A. Pfotenhauer while Mrs. Cullifer looks on.

The new commander of the 2nd Student Battalion, TSB, feels that "knowing your people" is the most important job of a commander.

Lt. Col. William E. Mundy, who replaces Lt. Col. Wilber J. Thiel, repeated this phrase several times while explaining his interpretation of the new job. He said that although "knowing your people" stood at the top of the list, "it is only one of many important things."

Col. Munday bases his opinion on nearly 18 years of Army service at various jobs, including executive officer, company commander and platoon leader.

He worked in Korea in the Turkish Liaison Detachment and in Alaska as a company commander. He spent three years in the Canal Zone.

While serving in the 4th Corps area of Vietnam, he earned the Bronze Star Medal and Air Medal. Prior to his new command, he was with the Management and Budget Department of the Infantry School here.

The Colonel received his commission upon graduation from North Georgia College, Reserve Officer Training Corps, in 1952. A native of Georgia, he now lives in Columbus with his wife Nancy and his daughter Ann.

He says that the biggest change in the Army that he can see is a higher level of education in junior offices.

Post Sergeant Is Top NCO Academy Grad

FORT MCCLELLAND, Ala. — Finishing at the top of his class SSG Hussam K. Yakteen was designated Honor Graduate at the Third Army NCO Academy graduation on Friday, 20 June 1969, and received a promotion to Sergent First Class. With an overall average of 92.7 SFC Yakteen tied for the all time high score in the history of the Academy.

He is currently assigned as an instructor in the Electronics Committee, Communications - Electronics Department, USAIS, here and became the second man in a row from his subcommittee to receive the honor of being number one in his class. SSG Walter M. Reed Jr., graduated on 14 February 1969 at the top of his class with the second highest score ever earned at the Academy.

"Like all things worth having the course is tough and demanding," said SSG Reed reflecting on his six weeks at Fort McClelland, Ala., "but I'm glad I had the opportunity to go. The experience is invaluable."

"The academics and physical training demand a lot of the individual", said Yakteen when contacted one week before graduation. He agreed whole heartedly with Reed that, "attending the academy is a wonderful opportunity for any noncommissioned officer fortunate enough to attend."

The NCO Academy is a six week, Infantry oriented, course stressing leadership, academics, and physical ability. Designed to keep the noncommissioned officer up to date heavy emphasis is placed on a variety of academic subjects. In addition, students alternate leadership positions in the student company throughout the six weeks.

The course may be grouped in three primary phases: Physical training and drill and ceremonies; administration and methods of instruction; and tactics and map reading.

Physical training receives much active student participation during the first two weeks and culminates in a physical combat proficiency test. During the remaining four weeks physical training is held twice a week but students must stay in top shape for field exercises and for the leadership reaction course in the last phase of instruction.

It was earned by lasting an average of 11 years in Sweden, where it's tough being a car.

Of course, we don't guarantee that a Volvo will last 11 years in America. But we do know that 9 out of every 10 Volvos registered here in the last eleven years are still on the road.

So if you come in and buy a Volvo 145, you'll have more than just a station wagon you can get a lot of things or people into. You'll have a station wagon you can get a lot of years out of.

Shelton Range Is Officially Reopened

By Frank Truchon

Shelton range, recently redesigned as a quick-kill reaction course in which soldiers are trained to fire accurately and quickly at surprise pop-up targets simulating combat situations, was officially reopened June 10. The range is the first of its kind to be built anywhere.

Ninety-eight men who helped to redesign the range helped to formally reopen it by being the first to fire on the course.

The soldiers, most of them Vietnam returnees, were members of Company B, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction), commanded by First Lieutenant Lawrence A. Harmon.

Members of the company installed all targets, wired them and connected them to the control tower, constructed the berm (embankment), renovated the control tower, built foxholes, planted grass and installed firing posts. The project took three weeks to complete.

Project officer in charge of the renovation was Second Lieutenant Donald Primrose and project NCO was Staff Sergeant James Weatherspoon.

Training Test Evaluates Different Brand of 'Rangers'

High in the mountains near Dahlonega, Ga., a slightly different brand of "Rangers" are being tested this week to see how ready they are for combat.

For the men of the 197th Infantry Brigade's Company A (Ranger); 75th Infantry, it's the final exam after several months of arduous training.

"Just about every facet of the company's operation, from administration to zero of weapons, will be evaluated," said Maj. Carl J. Korveis, chief umpire for the test and the 197th's assistant S-3.

The seven day Army Training Test started Tuesday and is forcing the unit to face every conceivable situation found in combat.

Both the individual and the unit will be evaluated during the 120 hours of tests for their proficiency in intelligence recognition and reporting, ability to reorganize forces to meet changing tactical situations, staff operations, tactical decisions, implementation of orders and conduct of operations.

The tactical part of the test will cover movement, establishment of a mission support site, deployment and insertion of patrols into reconnaissance zones, extraction from the zones and debriefing.

With the exception of the movement to Dahlonega, the other parts of the test will take place continuously in cyclic pattern througout the exercise.

Company A (Ranger) was known as a Long Range Patrol unit until a few months ago when the Army designated all such type units as Ranger.

"Our mission remains the same," said Capt. Thomas P. Meyer, Company A's commander at the time of the change. "The same as it was for Roger's Rangers back in the French-Indian Wars."

The company is also a direct descendent of "Merrill's Marauders" whose survivors last month presented that unit's combat colors to the Fort Benning Ranger Department for safe keeping.

Every man in the unit is airborne qualified and many wear both Airborne and Ranger tabs.

Col. John E. Strever Jr., commanding officer of the 197th Infantry Brigade, is the exercise director and more than 25 umpires from the brigade will monitor the test.

Aggressor elements are being furnished by the 1st Bn., 29th Inf.

Gen. Berry Presents Two Scholarships

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

"We were your father's buddies and we want you to know that we are your buddies too!" Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School told two young brothers as he presented them scholarships from the Society of the First Infantry Division, during a picnic at King's Pond June 21.

The two sons of S-Sgt. Gerry C. Chestnut, who was killed in December, 1967, while serving with the 1st Battalion, 8th Infantry in Vietnam, are Timothy Ray, 6, and Terry Michael Tillis, 11. They were accompanied by their mother as they accepted the "living memorial to our fallen comrades" from Gen. Berry.

Mrs. Lorene Chestnut, widow of S-Sgt. Chestnut, said, "We are very appreciative of the First Division. It is really a tremendous feeling knowing that there is someone who honestly cares, and these men make you realize that you are not forgotten."

Mrs. Chestnut, who lives in Columbus, Ga., explained, "It is presently impossible to know what the boys will use their scholarship for. The older one is definitely interested in art and has been since he was very small; but the younger one is interested only in being a cowboy!"

S-Sgt. Chestnut was the son of Mrs. Kate Porter of Escalante, Utah.

Approximately 100 members and families of the local chapter of the society attended the picnic, combined with a regular meeting at which Lt. Col. Roer A. Culbertson, president, presided.

A brief history of the First Infantry Division was given by Maj. James Maxey.

Gen. Berry briefed the members on the activities of an April meeting held in New York for the officers of the division as he presented the scholarships.

Military Review Features

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan.—Eight original articles appear in the July issue of the U.S. Army's professional journal, the MILITARY REVIEW.

Front cover features are: "The Problem of Okinawa" by Roger Hilsman, Professor of Government in the School of International Affairs, Columbia University, New York City; "The Dilemma of the Warsaw Pact" by Michael M. Boll, Soviet and East European analyst for Radio Free Europe, Munich, Germany, and "Middle East Prospects" by Maj. Harry J. Psomiades (U.S. Army Reserve).

Okinawa

"The Problem of Okinawa"—The author states that Japan wants the United States to remain a powerful force in the Far East. The United States also has a great interest in the area and needs bases from which to operate. He feels that the value of Okinawa can be reduced by greater reliance on improved air and sealifts. The lessened utility of Okinawa is a small price to pay for the insurance of a partnership between the United States and Japan.

"The Dilemma of the Warsaw Pact"—Mr. Boll discusses the recent Warsaw Pact summit meeting and analyzes its results and possible effects on the Soviet Union. He concludes that the USSR will continue to try to rally the Warsaw Pact armies to protect and defend Europe's Socialist commonwealth. Without force, however, it will be impossible to stop the trend toward disunity. The Budapest conference may be only the first of many unsuccessful Soviet attempts to combat the undermining of the Soviet empire in eastern Europe.

Mid-East

"Middle East Prospects"—Major Psomiades discusses the consequences of the June 1968 war between Israel and the Arab States and the interests and policies of the great powers in relationship to the Middle East. He feels that a final peace settlement will take several months and that a settlement involving the four powers through the United Nations will not bring true peace. The best step toward peace would be a readiness by Israel and the Arab States to implement the Security Council's resolution of November 1967.

COL. MAEDER SERVES UP SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN
Keeps Promise to 12 Who Max PCPT

Col. Maeder Is DRO for a Day

By Betty Kemper

Trainees' letters home are typically filled with good-natured (most of the time) complaints about the cadre of the company to which they are assigned, the food in the mess hall, etc., but for 12 trainees of Company E, 1st Battalion, 1st Brigade, U.S. Army Training Center, Infantry, their letters could begin:

"Dear Mom and Dad: Today, we had a wonderful meal of southern fried chicken with all the trimmings, served by the Brigade and Battalion commanders, Colonel Richard H. Maeder and Lieutenant Colonel Charles Rawlings. . ."

Unbelievable? Maybe! But it's a reality.

The two commanders, accompanied by Command Sergeants Major, Paul Burkett and Walter Edge, donned the traditional cook's hat and proceeded to become dining room orderlies for a day because of a promise they made to the company commander, Captain Michael H. Adkinson.

During the 1st Battalion's last 8-week cycle, 14 men scored the maximum 500 points on the physical combat proficiency test, breaking the existing record at AFC. This record was topped when 23 men of the 5th Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. George R. Giles "maxed" the test, and a week later, Lt. Col. Earl C. McCrary's 6th Battalion had 25 men to achieve the maximum score.

Company E was the last company to be tested in the 1st Battalion and already 22 men were on the "500 Club" list. Wanting to reclaim his title, Lt. Col. Rawlings promised the CO that if a dozen men scored 500 points on the test, he would personally serve lunch to them. Col. Maeder heard of the promise and offered his service, and with that added incentive, 12 of the trainees succeeded in achieving the goal.

Prosecutor Is Officer Candidate

Bayonet OC PProsecutor Adams

Candidate Macy received an A.B. degree from Brown University (Providence, R.I.) in 1965 and his law degree from Boston University in 1968. He soon earned membership to the Massachusetts bar and began working for a Boston attorney. However, most of his practical experience came from a work-study program in law school.

The work-study program was similar to a "public defender" program. However, Candidate Macy was employed as a "public prosecutor" dealing mainly with felonies. Auto theft and narcotics possession were a few of the cases he handled as "public prosecutor" for the district attorney of Suffolk County, Massachusetts.

Candidate Macy feels that serving in the Army has give him a better understanding of people which is necessary for his law ca-

Colonels Johnston, Robbins and Robinson

OC Hall of Fame Inducts Three Benning Colonels

By PFC George Burks

Three Fort Benning colonels were inducted into the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame in a ceremony held in Wigle Hall, site of the Hall of Fame, on June 11.

The three newest members are: Colonel Walter F. Johnston, President, U.S. Army Infantry Board, Colonel Robert A. Robbins, Deputy President, U. S. Army Infantry Board, and Colonel Robert H. Robinson, U. S. Army Material Command, Infantry Research Development Liaison.

During the course of the induction ceremony, the inductees signed the Hall of Fame membership register, were shown their pictures which will hang in the Hall, and were presented their membership certificates by Major General George I. Forsythe, Commanding General U. S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, and Commandant, U. S. Army Infantry School.

Colonel Johnston graduated from OCS Class No. 47, on August 10, 1942. His initial assignment as an officer was as a rifle platoon leader in North Africa and Italy. In 1950, he served as a company commander in the 31st Infantry in Korea. From 1953-1955 he was the National Guard Advisor in Tallahassee, Florida. In 1969, Col. Johnston became the President of the U. S. Army Infantry Board, at Ft. Benning. He is the holder of the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device and two Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Col. Robbins

Col. Robbins graduated from OSC Class No. 79 on October 22, 1942. His initial overseas assignment was with the 5th U. S. Army, in Italy. From 1948-1950, he served with the U. S. Army Caribbean, at Fort Amador, Canal Zone. In 1955 he went to Thailand for two years service with the Joint U.S. Military Advisory Group.

From 1961-1962 he served with the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Vietnam as the senior advisor to Airborne and Special Forces units. Col. Robbins has been awarded the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star for Valor with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Purple Heart, the Army Commendation Medal with two clusters, the Distinguished Unit Citation with cluster, and the Master Parachutist badge.

Colonel Robinson

Col. Robinson graduated from OCS Class No. 445 on May 7, 1945. One of his earliest assignments as a second lieutenant was as a platoon leader in Tarvisio, Italy, in 1945. As a platoon leader in 1950, he served with the 38th Infantry Regiment, 25th Infantry Division in Korea.

In subsequent assignments he served in Japan, the U. S., and Germany. From 1966-1967, in the rank of lieutenant colonel, Robinson was the Commanding Officer of the 5th Student Battalion (OC), at Fort Benning. In 1968 he served with the Military Assistance Command in Vietnam. He is the holder of the Legion of Merit, Army Commendation Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese Medal of Honor First Class.

In order for a person to gain admission to the Hall of Fame, he must satisfy one of four prerequisites: He must attain the rank of full colonel while on active duty and be a graduate of Infantry OCS; he must be the recipient of the Medal of Honor; He must have been elected or appointed to an office of national prominence; or he must be recommended for admission by the Commandant of the U. S. Army Infantry School on the basis of outstanding service.

235 Summer Aides Begin Work on Post

By PFC James Doherty

Fort Benning welcomed recently 235 "Summer Aides", part-time summer employees hired under the provisions of the Federal government's Youth Opportunity Program.

The 235 high school and college students, selected by the Georgia State Employment Service from over 1,300 job applicants, were greeted by Arthur E.Medlock, supervisory personnel specialist in the Civilian Personnel Officer here.

The "aides", all between the ages of 16 and 21, will receive $1.60 an hour.

The Employment Service had judged that they needed the summer jobs to resume full-time schooling in the fall.

The summer aides will serve in a variety of jobs ranging from blue collar and secretarial work to yard work and mechanical maintenance tasks.

The Civilian Personnel Office has attempted to place them in jobs where they can develop work skills.

They will be supervised by Fort Benning work managers in an effort to develop desirable work habits.

Program Shows Non-Military American Life to Allies

By Sp 5 Mike Beck

The mission of the Allied Student Training Division's (ASTD) informational objectives program is to present a non - military course of instruction on the American way of life to the Allied students who are training at Ft. Benning.

A great deal of this instruction takes place during the ASTD pre-course orientation, a two-week program for the Allies given before the beginning of each new advanced class.

The instruction covers topics as varied as U.S. political parties and local agriculture. Whenever possible, ASTD tries to show by example a particular fact of our culture, in addition to classroom lectures.

During the recently completed pre-course, the 23 Allies of Infantry Officer Advanced Class 6-69, representing 14 countries, studied the U.S. educational system by visiting Hardaway High School and two institutes of higher learning.

At Columbus College the Allies attended two classes especially arranged for them. One, the changing status of the Negro, was taught by Howard Beeth, instructor of history, and the other, labor and labor-management relations, was taught by Sam McCord, associate professor of business. The Allies walked through the campus and had lunch at the Student Union cafeteria.

The Allies spent the whole day at Auburn University and had a more extensive tour. They visited the Textile Engineering Laborary, the soil testing and biology laboratories, the veterinary school where they saw some students performing dentistry on a horse and the new $6 million indoor coliseum.

Also at Auburn the Allied students attended a special orientation class about the U. S. Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program, presented by Col. Andrew W. Lamar Jr., commander of Army ROTC at Auburn. They also attended a regularly scheduled class, foundations of education, taught by Dr. Jack Willers.

Another aspect of education presented to the Allies was a tour of the Georgia State Rehabilitation Center at Warm Springs. According to 2nd Lt. Peter W. Hemmensway, escort officer on the tours, the Allies were very impressed by the fact that any persons needing vocational rehabilitation could be admitted to the center at no cost to themselves.

Capt. Robert K. Cannon, an officer from Great Britain, said, "Except that the pre-course is too short, it is absolutely first class. I think we have a much better understanding of the United States."

ATC Holds Slogan Contest

Two $25 U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to the winners of a Safety Slogan Contest that is being sponsored by the United States Army Training Center, Infantry.

The contest begins this week and will end at 1 p.m. June 27.

One bond will be awarded for both the best humorous slogan and the best non-humorous slogan.

Safer by a great deal

(So buy a great deal: the new Citröen)

Popular Science called Citroen, "one of the safest cars in the world." They had good reasons: Hydropneumatic suspension—keeps Citroen level and perfectly balanced. Front-wheel drive for achieving traction. Front disc brakes—for sure, straight-line stops. In all, there are more than 50 safety features. Citroen worked these out—so that you could play it safe.

World Of Sports

By Rod Reed

With the coming of warm weather, millions of Americans, are experiencing the fun and frustration of golf; the joy over the long putt that sinks, the despair of a tee shot slicing out of bounds. Rich man, poor man, beggar man and thief all find some time to chase that little pill around a well-manicured field. Golf is booming as never before.

But the man who did most to make it the nation's most popular participant pastime isn't with us this year and everybody is saddened. He's the fellow who laughingly called himself "the highest ranking officer in Arnie's Army." He was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Leo Fraser, PGA president, says, "Gen. Eisenhower gave golf its biggest boost since Bobby Jones. In a sense, his help was greater than Jones'. Because here was the most important man in the country who found golf both relaxing and enjoyable."

IKE AND ARNIE

Golf is no longer succinctly called "an old man's

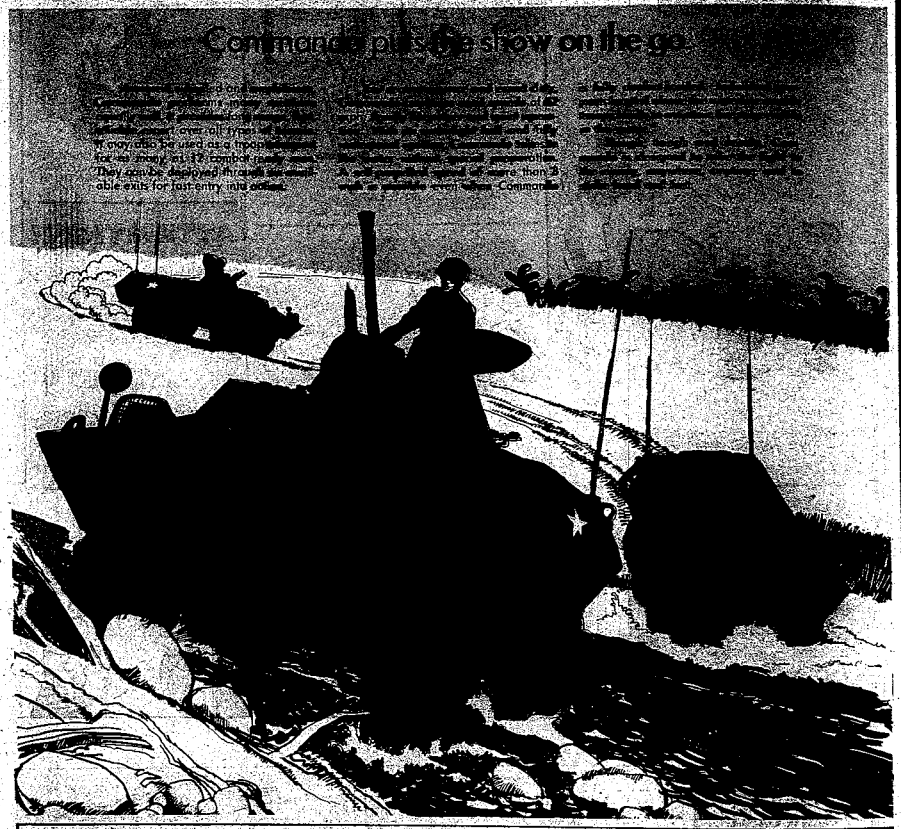
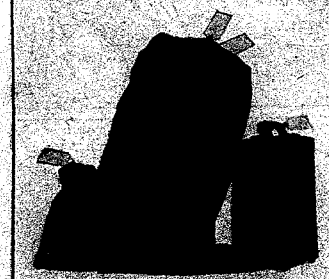
WHAT'S NEW?





Pick your pleasure, overseas!

If you've been yearning to visit a certain area overseas, here's your chance to combine pleasure with business!

Oversea Area of Choice is a reenlistment option that makes it easy to select a particular oversea duty station. If you are a first termer, with at least eight months of service behind you—or in grade E-6 or below within 90 days of your discharge date—and are qualified in an MOS for which an oversea requirement exists—this great opportunity is open to you.

If you are otherwise qualified—and the idea of foreign travel appeals to you—get in touch with your Career Counselor. Chances are, he'll have just the ticket you've been looking for!

Your future, your decision . . . stay Army.

KICKING IT AROUND

with Buck O'Brien

Debonair Skitch Henderson chuckled as he thought of some much-quoted sayings from another noted orchestra leader. He recalled that the conductor got off lines like:

"Who's sitting in that empty chair?"

"Don't worry about making mistakes—that's what we're here for."

And, "The next time I send a jerk on an errand, I'll go myself!"

* * *

Such unconscious humor is much prized. Perhaps the main reason we all get a big laugh out of it is that it makes us feel smarter than the character who made the booboo. (We may laugh just as hard at Bob Hope's premeditated jests, but we don't feel smarter than him. Do we?)

Sam Goldwyn, the famous Hollywood producer, became even more famous when people started repeating such "goldwynisms" as, "Anybody who goes to a psychiatrist ought to have his head examined."

* * *

One rule of the game is that if you're going to repeat some goofy remark, it must come from a person who is something of a big shot (in other words, somebody who should know better).

A successful ballroom operator in Buffalo was a treasure trove for night club reporters there.

One time, explaining why there was no broom in his dance hall on a sultry night when a name orchestra was the feature attraction, he explained, "We had to close all the windows to keep the acoustics out."

When a fire struck one of his places he said, "The damage would have been much worse if the night watchman hadn't smelt something smoldering."

The owner liked to do his own announcing on radio broadcasts. The band was about to play "Out of Nowhere." He stepped confidently to the mike and read, "And next we'll have that popular song of the day, 'Out of Now Here'."

* * *

One reason Ebbets Field, home of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is remembered so fondly, is that the public address announcer there would often come up with an unexpected gem. There was, for instance, the hot day when front row customers in outfield seats had taken off their jackets and draped them over the wall in front of them so the jackets hung down toward the playing field.

An umpire called this to the attention of the announcer whose voice then boomed over the amplifiers, saying, "Will the fans in the bleachers kindly remove their clothing?"

* * *

A common phrase to indicate surprise is, "You could have knocked me over with a feather!"

Jane Ace of radio fame would say, "You could have knocked me over with a fender!"

That's a switch, all right, but is it a true malaprop? After all, you could knock her over with a fender, whether she was surprised or not.

Worrying about a thing like that is enough to give a person ulcers and cause hardening of the arteries.

When you remove your beard you shouldn't remove your face.

Today's super-duper razor blades are meant to cut whiskers. They can also do a job on the skin, especially the delicate skin around the mouth.

To help keep your face from looking yourself-shaved, use Rise.® And why we put a skin lubricating film into it that gets between your blade and your skin.

Put Rise on your face before you shave, and maybe you won't have to put toilet paper on your face after it.

Save Face.

MEN WANTED NOW

TO TRAIN AS CLAIMS ADJUSTERS

Three recent I.A.S. graduates representing the three major branches of military service found new careers in the exciting, challenging and well paying field of insurance claim adjusting...

JOHN P. TROMBA, of Torrington, Connecticut enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1957, and as a Staff Sergeant in 1966 attended Officer Candidate School. While stationed at Ft. Bliss, Texas, Cpt. John Tromba began his I.A.S. training and upon the expiration of his term of military service John accepted a position as a claims adjuster with the U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Insurance Company in California.

JOSEPH TALLARICO, former Senior Chief Petty Officer, USN, of Philadelphia, Penna., says, "INSURANCE ADJUSTERS SCHOOLS was a great recommendation for me. I am now employed as a Physical Damage Specialist by a large insurance company in New York at a good salary and a '69 Ford for my own use. I can look forward to three raises the first year and more frequent raises during the next three year period."

LOWELL D. WILSON enlisted in the U.S. Air Force shortly after finishing high school in Indiana at age 17. Almost 7 years later Lowell decided to return to civilian life and began his I.A.S. training. Thanks to "Project Transition" Sgt. Wilson was assigned to the Accident Investigation Section at Homestead Air Force Base which gave him some excellent experience while still on active duty. Lowell also attended Resident Training and even before his release from active duty he had received many job offers from insurance companies and independent adjusting firms. Mr. Wilson is now a claim adjuster with Employers Mutual Insurance Company in Nebraska.

Insurance adjusters and investigators are badly needed due to the tremendous increase of claims resulting from automobile accidents, fires, burglaries, riots, storms, and industrial accidents. Over 50 million dollars worth of claims paid each day. Top money can be earned in this exciting, fast moving field, full or part time. Work at your present job and train at home, then attend resident training for two weeks at MIAMI BEACH, FLA. or LAS VEGAS, NEVADA. Excellent employment assistance. Tune In Your Station

by Greg Fraser

For those in the service, among the most popular courses offered by correspondence schools are those pertaining to television and radio. This training can prepare you for radio-TV repair work with all its side benefits, and also offers an excellent background for work in radio-TV manufacturing and producers of other electronic equipment. Side benefits, incidentally, let the radio-TV servicemen cash in on installations, repair of hi-fi sets, auto radios and other equipment.

As a matter of fact, many students taking basic courses in TV and radio repair often wind up working in the industry. As they learn to understand the fundamental principles of electronics, they gain the confidence and interest to move on to more sophisticated subjects such as computers and automated machines. Such students usually enroll for further training after the completion of servicing courses.

Most correspondence courses in radio and television prepare the student to install, maintain, service and operate such equipment as auto radios, FM radios including multiplex tuners, television sets (including color sets), hi-fi systems, public address systems, and so on.

These courses can be recommended for the fellow whose schooling is not of the best. Of course, there is no question that academic training is a definite advantage in this or any other field). Many who teach these subjects maintain that a real desire to learn and a determination to succeed will overcome most gaps in previous education. They also claim that an eighth-grade education or its equivalent is adequate to understand the lessons and text provided in servicing courses.

Another thing that makes TV and radio servicing courses so attractive and practical is the fact that most schools supply the student with much valuable information that will help him to make money during his training period as well as afterward. They show the student how to establish a spare-time business repairing radio and TV sets for friends and neighbors. This can be especially helpful to anyone in the service. As the schools point out, a great many students pay their tuition in this manner.

Still another attraction is the equipment supplied to the student as part of the course so that he may gain practical experience as well as book knowledge while learning. Usually included in such courses are such items as radios, television sets and voltmeters which continue to be useful years after the courses have been completed.

TV and radio repair courses usually take about 18 months to complete. An average course runs about 75 lessons and includes some eight training kits. Courses can be completed in less time, however, depending on the diligence and ability of the student.

Now, a word of warning. Although most of the courses offered are excellent, they do not automatically offer you a brilliant future. That depends on the student. Before going into electronics, he must decide whether it is the kind of work for him. Even though he has the desire and interest in this field it is best to be sure. One way to find out is to write to the various schools and see what they have to offer. It costs you nothing and has the added advantage of allowing one to find out if the schools are up-to-date, have competent staffs, and so on.

Then, with an idea of what the schools can give to you and what you can expect from them, you can select the one of your choice and start on a program of study that could lead to great personal accomplishment when you leave the Armed Forces, a career that can provide security and a comfortable income for you and your family. Electronics is a rich, progressive growing field; one to be in for the future. ★

This is a section of the new plastic-coated Krona-Chrome chromium edge after five shaves, magnified 680 times. As you can see, chromium more effectively resists blade breakdown due to corrosion.

Only Schick Krona-Chrome has the chromium edge.

Day Long Activities Mark Fourth

By Bill Hardin

A day packed with many different events is on tap for the annual Independence Day observance at Fort Benning.

The July 4th activities begin at 8:00 a.m. with a number of Fort Benning soldiers competing in the Physical Condition Proficiency Test on Watson Field. This concludes at 10:00 a.m.

At the same time, unit competition begins. In this event, on the Burr Street side of Eubanks Field, six units of 18 men each, all from the Candidate Brigade will compete in a variety of activities. These will include inspection in ranks, the manual of arms, and platoon drill. These events are scheduled to last until 10:30.

The second running of the Medal of Honor minimarathon will get underway at 9:30 a.m. The 18 mile race this year has attracted a number of soldiers from Fort Benning in addition to many well known track men from colleges, universities and athletic clubs over the Southeast. The race this year will again begin and conclude on Eubanks Field.

YAC Bootha

Game booths and rides sponsored by the Youth Activities Council (YAC) will open at 10 a.m. These activities will be located on Eubanks Field also. They will remain in operation throughout the day, until the fireworks display.

Unit competition for Infantry Center units, other than representatives of the Candidate Brigade, will begin at 11:00, on Eubanks Field. Eight units of 18 men each are entered for this event. It is similar to the Candidate Brigade competition which will have just been concluded. This activity is also scheduled for Eubanks Field, and will go until 5 p.m.

The 11 o'clock hour also brings the awarding of medals to the first through third place winners in the mini-marathon. This will take place on stage No. 1 of Eubanks Field. It will last approximately 30 minutes.

Fort To Host Educators

By 2nd Lt. James Hopson

Administrators and faculty from 15 colleges and universities across the country will observe ROTC camp training and the Infantry School's educational methods, during a visit here July 7-9.

The visitors, presidents, deans and professors of military science—represent institutions which have established Army ROTC training recently.

The purpose of the tour is twofold. The educators will visit the ROTC summer camp at Sand Hill to observe cadets in training July 8. Some of the cadets attend the institutions represented by the visitors. The remainder of their time at the Infantry Center, the visitors will tour the Infantry School and its facilities.

Gen. James W. Woolnough, commanding general of the United States Continental Army Command, and Lt. Gen. John L. Throckmorton, commanding general of the Third United States Army, will accompany the visitors on their tour of ROTC summer camp training.

Gen. Throckmorton invited the educators to Fort Benning and will host a dinner in their honor July 8 at the Fort Benning Officers' Club. Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, will also attend.

Demonstrations by the Ranger and Airborne departments will highlight the visitors' activities July 7. They'll see "Rangers in Action," an hour-long demonstration of hand-to-hand, bayonet, pugil fighting, rappelling and confidence testing by the Ranger Department. The educators will also view airborne training and a free-fall jump by members of the Airborne Department.

The group will observe ROTC training at Sand Hill July 8. After a briefing and orientation at Army Training Center headquarters, they will tour ATC's facilities.

The visitors' schedule includes stops at first aid, hand grenade, marksmanship and bayonet training areas. The educators will also have an opportunity to speak with the cadets to gain further insight into the training program.

The visitors will spend the morning of July 9 at Infantry Hall for briefings and demonstrations of the Infantry School's educational methods and procedures. Following an instruduction by Richard S. Kneisel, education advisor to the school, the group will observe several classes in session, hear briefings on the School's EDEX student response teaching system and computer-assisted instruction and tour the school's television facilities. They will also participate in a brief conference with BG Berry.

Kneisel said he'll stress the school's innovative educational techniques—the use of the computers in teaching, the "systems analysis" approach to anticipate future demands on the school's facilities and the use of instructional television—in his presentation to the group.

He said he wished to dispel the stereotype of the military as dull and inflexible and offer "what's exciting in military education."

don, and the Mysterious Novak, begins at 11:30 a.m. Showtime will continue almost constantly throughout the day, with the final performance, an hour long affair, scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m.

The afternoon also includes individual manual of arms competition on Eubanks Field. This portion of the day's entertainment begins at 1:30 p.m. and concludes at 3:00 p.m.

At 3:30, the individual general military knowledge test will be given in Infantry Hall. The testing is scheduled for an hour.

Four o'clock brings a demonstration of free fall and sport parachuting. This is another of the Eubanks Field activities. The sport parachutists will jump from several thousand feet in the air, and will free fall to but a few hundred feet above the ground before opening their parachutes. The unusual performance requires but a few moments to complete.

Naval Choir

An hour long performance by the Pensacola Naval Choir will begin at 4:00 p.m. The choir's performance will be on stage two, located on Eubanks Field.

From 6:45 until 7:15 p.m., the 283rd Army Band will give a concert from stage number one on Eubanks Field.

The band's preformance will be followed by more music. This time, the Infantry Chorus comes on stage one for a quarter hour performance, beginning at 7:15 p.m.

It's Time For A Little Praise

Four months after the initial engagement between British troops and Massachusetts Militia, the Continental Congress decided the interests of the America Colonies could no longer be served within the British Empire.

On July 4, 1776, they took the ultimate step by declaring complete independence from Great Britain. It took the colonial revolutionaries six years and six months to the day to defeat the British and compel them to recognize the independence of the United States of America.

Two hundred years in the life of many nations would hardly be noticeable. Their culture, social structure, ideals and values have not changed appreciably in a thousand years.

Yet two hundreds years has been more than a lifetime to us. But, such is the dynamic nature of the United States that those who are in the avant-garde today may, in the span of a single generation, be looked upon as reactionaries with outmoded ideas, concepts and outlooks.

Few societies in history have shown such fluidity and adaptability to changing circumstances, conditions and problems as we have.

Yet, despite unparalleled accomplishments by this country in a period of less than 200 years, there are the perennial prophets of doom who decery our "sick society" and contend we are a "country gone mad with riches, power and violence" and feel we "present a threat to the civilized world."

These people look about them and can see only the bad, only the slums, only the poverty, only the injustice. They blame the acts of a few as the conspiracy of all—putting to work the same attitudes of bigotry and narrow-mindedness they say they deplore in others.

They can not see progress to cure the ills of society—they can not see attempts to right wrongs—nor does it seem they want to.

But, equally disturbing, are those who can see no wrongs, no problems, no injustices and feel no need for concern about the problems and issues that beset us. Ignoring them and pretending they do not exist do not make them go away.

Between these two positions lies the hope for peaceful change.

The problems which beset this country are not unsolvable and that is partially where the frustration lies. Knowing it is not beyond the ability of this country to solve even our most difficult problem, the argument rage on which one of the multiple options we will take to correct the situation.

We do not have more numerous or drastic difficulties today than we did yesterday, but the communication and educational revolutions have created a different attitude toward them.

Television and radio have brought the poverty of the city ghetto into the living room of the suburbanite and the problems of air pollution have become a concern of the Midwestern farmer.

Along with the acute awareness of what is going on, there has come increasing educational enlightenment—a hopeful sign.

We have a long way to go toward our ideal, but we have come far in these 193 years. With all the self criticism we endure daily on what is wrong with this country, surely we can afford to take tomorrow off for a little self praise.

Pledge of Allegiance

From The Red Skelton Hour
January 14, 1969

I remember this one teacher. To me, he was the greatest teacher, a real sage of my time. He had such wisdom. We were all reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, and he walked over. Mr. Lasswell was his name. . .He said:

"I've been listening to you boys and girls recite the Pedge of Allegiance all semester and it seems as though it is becoming monotonons to you. If I may, may I recite it and try to explain to you the meaning of each word: d:ALLEGIANCE my love and my devotion.

I — me, an individual, a committee of one.

PLEDGE — dedicate all of my worldly goods to give without self-pity.

ALLEGIANCE — my love and my devotion.

TO THE FLAG — our standard, Old Glory, a symbol of freedom. Wherever she waves, there is respect because your loyalty has given her a dignity that shows freedom is everybody's job.

OF THE UNITED — that means that we have all come together.

STATES — individual communities that have united into 48 great states. 48 individual communities with pride and dignity and purpose, all divided with imaginary boundaries, yet united to a common purpose, and that's love for country.

OF AMERICA.

AND TO THE REPUBLIC — a state in which sovereign power is invested in representatives chosen by the people to govern. And government is the people and it's from the people to the leaders, not from the leaders to the people.

FOR WHICH IT STANDS.

ONE NATION — meaning, so blessed by God.

INDIVISIBLE — incapable of being divided.

WITH LIBERTY — which is freedom and the right of power to live one's own life without threats or fear or some sort of retaliation.

FOR ALL — which means it's as much your country as it is mine."

Since I was a small boy, two states have been added to our country and two words have been added to the pledge of Allegiance — "under God."

Wouldn't it be a pity if someone said, "That's a prayer" and that would be eliminated from schools, too?

Boy Needs Help From Post, Veterans Groups

A 16-year-old Highland, California boy - paralyzed for life as the result of a broken neck - needs some help from military units and veterans organizations.

The boy is Steve Bailey, and he has developed a cheerful, positive attitude toward life that is an inspiration to those around him. As a matter of fact, he has been elected Senior Class President.

Steve has undertaken a hobby to occupy his time when he isn't reading, studying or watching television - he collects military insignia of all kinds.

Steve is putting together a collection of division patches, regimental crests, MOS job patches, rank insignia, cap pins, "anything that is pinned or sewed on a military uniform," according to his friend, Alfred F. Adams.

Adams asked Steve's Congressman, Jerry L. Pettis of San Bernardino, California for help in gathering up as many patches, insignia, etc. as possible. Pettis was able to obtain a few from a manufacturer in New Jersey, but the list is far from complete, so he decided to appeal directly to military personnel through this newspaper.

Anyone who would like to contribute such items may send them to Steve, in care of Congressman Jerry L. Pettis, 427 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D. C. 20515.

Quote of the Week

"The Long Gray Line has never failed us. Were you to do so, a million ghosts in olive drab, in brown khaki, in blue and gray would rise from their white crosses thundering those magic words: Duty, Honor, Country." — General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, at the U.S. Military Academy, May 12, 1962.

Wines Representative Speaks at IOAC Wives Club

The theme, "Wine," was designed by Mrs. Mary Walker, decoration chairman. Colorful name tags were presented to the guests by Mmes. Ione Knapp, Nelsa Olivera and Carol Kochler.

The guest speaker was Abe Goldblatt, representative of a wine company. Goldblatt showed a movie entitled, "Cooking with Wine." Editions of Paul Masson's "Ways with Wine" were distributed to the guests.

Goldblatt explained which wines were to be used with certain meals, wines for special occasions and the proper etiquette involved. The pamphlet told the story of wine.

All the various types of wines were described in detail and some history was given for each.

Cadre Hostesses included Mrs. Gordon L. Wagner, wife of Maj. Wagner, class leader, and Mrs. Thomas A. Knudtzon, wife of Maj. Knudtzon, 3rd Platoon leader.

Wives of officer candidates of the 95th Company, 9th Student Battalion, held a coffee in the company dayroom.

Red, white and blue decorations were used to carry out the "Independence, Liberty, Freedom" theme. An arch of streamers formed the entrance while a large liberty bell was the centerpiece. Red, white and blue flowers completed the decorations.

The guest speaker was Lt. James J. Jesso who discussed transportation and the finances of a newly commissioned officer. Mrs. Dunning announced plans for a club luncheon scheduled July 17.

General Commends Scholarship Winners

By PFC Lee Myers

Four military dependents here, Susan Dahl Welch, Price Walker Jr., Erich H. Frazier and Thomas J. Fraser, winners of Army scholarships, were commended by Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Susan, a daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Bruce H. Welch, and Thomas, son of Col. and Mrs. Bruce H. Fraser, received U.S. Army Special Scholarships.

Price, son of SFC and Mrs. Price Walker, and Erich, son of SFC and Mrs. Wesley E. Frazier, received U.S. Army Merit Scholarships.

Both the merit and special scholarships are based on scores achieved on the National Merit Scholarship test and carry stipends for four years of undergraduate study leading to a bachelor's degree.

Gen. Forsythe gave each of the four young people a letter of commendation. He told them that they had a good start on service to their country and that such efforts as theirs renewed his conviction in the future of the country.

"I have every confidence in relinquishing the future to your generation," Gen. Forsythe said.

College Gets Library Grant

Over $36,000 has been granted Columbus College by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) for library improvement.

Joel Holmes, college librarian who announced the grants, said that $17,670 was Columbus College's share of a $100,000 grant made to the South Georgia Academic Librarians. Holmes represents the college in this professional organization. These funds will be used to strengthen periodical and other library holdings in the field of business economics.

HEW granted $8,419 to strengthen general library resources, Holmes said. Both grants come as the result of requests submitted to HEW by college officials, he added.

Sabers Honor Couple

It's hard for any officer to forget the day he leaves a command, but it will be a great deal harder than usual for Lt. Col. Paul R. O'Mary to forget the day he turned over command of the First Battalion (Mechanized), 58th Infantry.

Forming an arch of sabers, six officers in full dress blues gave a farewell salute of sabers at present arms as Lt. Col. O'Mary and his wife Jane left their quarters to attend their departure celebration.

The mechanized unit had provided some hard-to-forget transportation for the commander and his wife that evening, an armored personnel carrier.

Earlier in the day the men of the 58th showed rare pageantry with a mechanized mounted review for the colonel.

FO Stands Out In Adjusting Fire

TAY NINH — Republic of Vietnam (25th Infantry Division IO) — In the recent action at Fire Support Biase Crook, in which 25th Division soldiers from Alpha Battery, 7th Battalion, 11th Artillery, and Company B, 3d Battalion, 22d Infantry repelled NVA attacks for three nights in a row and killed 402 enemy, one man in particular stood out among the others.

SP 4 Harry D. Mills, a reconnaissance sergeant with the artillery forward observer team for Bravo Company, took over as forward observer when the regular FO went on R&R two days before the initial attack.

Specialist Mills had the extremely important job of calling in and adjusting the artillery fire from supporting units.

From his position on the tower at Crook, Mills did an incredible job of adjusting fire for Alpha Battery at Crook; Charlie Battery, 1st Battalion, 27th Artillery at Fire Support Base Washington; the eight-inch guns of Bravo Battery, 2d Battalion, 32d Artillery firing out of Tay Ninh, and Alpha Battery, 2nd Battalion, 32d Artillery firing out of French Fort.

There were times when Mills had to adjust fire for all four artillery batteries simultaneously.

Asked if things ever got confusing, Mills replied: "When the fighting was heaviest, it was a bit difficult to distinguish just what artillery splashes came from what guns, but I soon got used to it and it became easier. The real credit should go to the artillerymen."

Mills had nothing but praise for the cannoneers of Alpha Battery and the other supporting artillery units.

The combined artillery fire called in by Mills couldn't have been more effective. As the forward observer, Mills carried a great deal of responsibility on his shoulders and many lives depended on this young man's performance. He came through in grand style earning great praise frmo his superiors.

PFC Finds First Duty On Field Nerve-Racking

CAMP EVANS, Republic of Vietnam (101st IO) — Every soldier, no matter how brave he may be, is always a little edgy when sent out on patrol or placed on security.

PFC Jeff Sikie, a veteran of two days in the field, became quite nervous when he was informed he was to be sent on a listening post for the first time.

Of the four men on his post, only one was an old timer, the other two being as new as Sikie.

Finally it was Sikie's turn. He observed his immediate surroundings and listened attentively to the noises of the jungle. During the course of the night there were a few sounds he did not recognize, and he woke up the old-timer for his opinion.

Sikie had woken his buddy about six times and had 10 minutes to go on his watch. About 25 meters to his right front, the bushes began shaking. Sikie, astonished and half frightened, tried to think what to do.

Then Sikie saw a slim figure come out of the bushes, and the 101st Airborne Division trooper thought it might be an NVA.

"I could feel my heart bounce from my head to my toes," Sikie said.

The excitement over, Sikie turned to his buddies. They were still amazed, but coming out of it, they started to laugh.

"They told me it was only a small mountain lion," Sikie said. "I know they were just trying to calm me down. A mountain lion doesn't look that much like a NVA."

Language Classes

Soldiers, Vietnamese Teach Each Other

DAU TIENG, Republic of Vietnam (25th Inf. Div. IO) —What do knowledge seeking soldiers from the 25th Infantry Division's 3rd Brigade have in common with young Vietnamese students from a local high school in Dau Tieng?

Would you belive Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays? On each of the three weekdays, both groups are busily studying each other's language.

At the Dinh Thanh High School in Dau Tieng Village, Sp4 Don Cummings from the 3rd Brigade Civil Affairs Section leads his Vietnamese class through vocabulary drills, sentence structure outlines and then a written test or two.

Back at the American base camp, a young Vietnamese nurse can be found in a similar situation, directing her class of American officers and enlisted men in the finer points of Vietnamese.

The principal at the local high school felt an English class taught by an American would be more meaningful to the students, and brought his request to the brigade's S-5.

Cummings is not out of place heading his class of interested students. The 22-year-old soldier was studying to become a science instructor before entering the army.

The English course is based on two texts obtained from the United States Information Agency in Saigon. Cummings, a stickler on grammar and rhetoric, works late many nights stenciling written tests that come often for his students.

"The kids are eager and receptive—they really pick up complicated words. I give a lot of tests and they always do amazingly well," he said.

The teacher-soldier studied Vietnamese before beginning his tour of duty here. "There's a lot of give and take in my classes," said Cummings. "I try to speak as much Vietnamese as possible during class and they respond by speaking English as much as possible."

At the 3rd Brigade Education Center, Miss Deo Thi Gai conducts one-hour Vietnamese classes three times a week. Miss Gai, better known as Kim to her students, is a nurse at the brigade's medical facility.

Two years ago, when Kim was 17-years-old, doctors at Bravo Company, 25th Medical Battalion performed an operation, pulling a jagged piece of shrapnel from her hip. While recuperating in one of the wards at the medical company, her friendly smile and quick mind won the hearts of the unit and she stayed on, learning to be a nurse and acting as an interpreter for Vietnamese patients.

USAIC Salute Battery Is Often Seen and Often Heard

Often seen, and more often heard, are the men of Btry A, 2nd Bn (Comp), 10th Arty. Troops of this unit comprise the USAIC Salute Battery, an indispensable part of honors ceremonies and other important ceremonial events at Fort Benning.

The Salute Battery is preparing now for its next shoot, a 50-round salute to the Union at York Field on 4 July 1969. In order to assure the split-second timing required to meet the standards of the Home of the Infantry, rehearsals, are fired as necessary. Most of these are "dry fire," but least one "wet" run is always fired prior to the actual Salute.

According to 2LT Thomas N. Eistad, the battery executive officer, the battery has fired fifteen salutes during the current year, including honors for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Earle Wheeler, at MacDill AFB, Florida. The battery was airlifted by C-130 cargo planes for that ceremony, and participated in the dedication of the new US Strike Command Headquarters.

"The actual firing of a salute has become an exact science," said SFC Curtis H. Gaylor, Chief of Firing Battery. "Three men are posted on each of the six howitzers," he continued, "and the battery executive officer commands each gun to fire in turn. Two men are posted in front of the battery to keep the XO advised of the count, to insure that misfires do not confuse the total." "We've only had one misfire lately," added Lt. Eistad, "and that was in a rehearsal, but I was glad I had two people there to insure that my own count was accurate."

Unsung heroes of the Salute Battery are the members of the Ammunition section, who are responsible for lining up the howitzers prior to firing and for insuring that serviceable ammunition is on hand for the shoot. SSG Charles Patterson, Section Chief, related that "We normally keep a few hundred rounds on hand to insure we're ready. Sometimes salutes come on pretty short notice."

Leader in Lower Voting Age Drive

Nebraskan Politico Attends ROTC Camp

Piester, now a pre-ROTC cadet in Co. A, 9th Bn., 2nd Bde., at Ft. Benning, was chairman of Nebraskans for Young Adult Suffrage.

The state constitutional amendment to lower the voting age lost by a small margin. Since then, Piester has been one of the main testifiers at committee hearings in Nebraska which have led to the lowering of the majority age in the state to 20.

DAVE PIESTER

"Youth today," he said, "are better educated and more capable of making significant contributions to America."

Piester, 22, a native of Minden, Neb., has been president of the Nebraska Council of Youth since 1966. He is the only youth member on the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth and is on the board of directors of the National Council of State Committees for Children and Youth.

He noted that the Nebraska Council of Youth has been instrumental in starting local community centers around the state.

The council has also actively supported local bond issues for trade schools, swimming pools, playgrounds and parks. The renovation of state historic sites was another Council project.

The young Nebraskan has participated in numerous national conferences as a representative of young people. He attended the National Outlook Conference on Rural Youth and was one of the 20 people consulted by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare on the "Problem of Identity Facing Youth Today."

Piester, who is now an employee of the Nebraska Secretary of State's office, was graduated from the University of Nebraska this Spring. He plans to attend law school in the Fall.

King's Pizza On Call

Peachy Advice: The blush of a peach doesn't have as much to do with its perfection as the roundness of its cheeks.

Kabobs a la Fireworks: Just as the picnic shish kabobs finish cooking, pour a little whiskey or brandy over them and ignite before serving.

Save time by using your kitchen shears to cut meat into small bits for Baby (or for toothless old Rover). Just hold meat up with fork over plate and snip away.

Try blue cheese dressing over a mixture of chopped apples, onions and celery for a cool and tangy summer salad.

Licorice, the sweetest of herbs, has been found among the fabulous jewelry and art treasures in tombs of Egyptian Pharaohs. It was left there so that the departed could prepare a sweet drink on arrival in the next world.

THREE MEMBERS OF 833RD QUARTERMASTER COMPANY WORK IN MAINTENANCE AREA

883rd Quartermaster Company

Variety of Duties Greet Reserves

BY BILL HARDIN

For men of the 883rd Quartermaster Company (A E R & D) of Sheffield, Ala., two weeks of annual active duty training means many types of activity.

The AER&D in the unit designations stands for Aerial Equipment Repair and Depot.

The men either are, or soon will become, not only military parachutists, but riggers as well.

"By and large, we are maintenance people. We do far more than just pack parachutes for the jumpers," said Capt. Henry W. Tyree, the company commander.

Of the 10 officers and 175 enlisted men in the company; 160 are riggers.

Spending their two weeks of annual active duty training at Fort Benning, the 165 men who made the encampment this year are not only involved in packing parachutes, but a number of the men in the company are getting their first formal military training.

The company is furnishing 50 riggers to pair up with Fort Benning riggers to form two man teams. Working in this manner, they maintain their proficiency in parachute packing.

"Eighty of the members of the company have just recently joined the unit and have not been called to active duty for their basic training," Capt. Tyree said.

"These men are receiving instruction here in basic soldiering and physical training. They are also getting a good airborne orientation. We feel that all three areas of training, conducted mainly by our non-commissioned officers, will be of great benefit to them once they do report for active duty. Most every one of them will come back here for the basic airborne course after their basic training. They will then have another 12 weeks of training in the rigger course," he commented.

Twenty members of the unit who are not here for the two weeks of training are either just completing the 12-week rigger course or are in basic training and will be back to rejoin the unit soon.

"Most of the classes for the basic trainees are taught in the field. They learn patrolling tactics, close order drill, first aid, survival, and military courtesy, to mention just a few of the subjects we are teaching them," the commander stated.

"For the riggers who have already completed their jump training, we are planning to have two parachute jumps. One will be in the afternoon and another will be a night jump," Capt. Tyree said.

"We have our motor pool, mess hall, supply room and administrative offices set up in the Sand Hill area of the post. It should prove to be one of the best periods of training we have ever experienced.

"The esprit de corps is great, and we feel that we are learning a great deal while we are here," the captain said.

Ceremony Opens Crafts Center

By PFC Lee Myers

The new Arts and Crafts Center of Fort Benning was opened with a ribbon cutting by Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Gen. Forsythe, before cutting the ribbon, said, "Much hard work and a dream were needed to bring this moment to reality. Young people is the business of the Army and this new center brings activities to young people and opens doors for them. Arts and crafts allow young people to turn their efforts to productive work and these efforts symbolize the finer qualities of youth today."

Lt. Col. Richard A. Sebenoler, Special Services officer for Fort Benning, beginning the ribbon cutting ceremony, said that the new center was the "finest crafts shop in the U. S. Army, bar none".

A special exhibit of sculpture, painting and pottery was on display in the center's gallery for the ceremony and included paintings by PFC Richard Childers Jr. and ceramics by Sp4 Sterling King. Particularly noticed was the painting, "Providence Canyon", an impressionistic oil, and the ceramic piece "Screaming Weed Pot", a sculpture wheel thrown and then distorted.

Before entering the Army, PFC Childers attended the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. He has won the Catherine the Great Memorial prize in fine arts, first and second place in the 1968 Fort Benning Army Arts Contest and was chosen as the May, 1969, artist of the Southeast and Texas Issac Delgado Museum of Art.

He took basic training and Advanced Individual Training (AIT) at Fort Polk, La., as a light weapons Infantryman. At Fort Benning he works in weapons supply, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade.

PFC Childers said he is eager to attend Northwood Institute at Cedar Hill, Texas, on an art scholarship after he has completed his military tour of duty.

Sp4 King became interested in ceramics while attending Grossmont College in El Cajon, Calif., and Balboa Art Center, San Diego, Calif. Almost all of the pottery he displayed was done at Fort Benning crafts shops.

He took basic training at Fort Benning and engineering AIT at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. At Fort Benning he works as a clerk in activity supply, the Services Office of Fort Benning. After his military service he will continue his art education at California Western University in San Diego.

Both PFC Childers and Sp4 King said that the new center was an outstanding building and that the new facilities should allow them more time for art and cut down on the time spent cleaning up.

On the first floor of the Arts and Crafts Center, a separate room contains the woodcraft power saws, drills and presses. A large room with floor to ceiling glass windows contains the electric and kick wheels for pottery and the benches for slab and molded ceramics.

On the second floor, photography, small crafts, electronics, rocks and fine arts have their rooms. In the electronics room, a person can test and repair television sets and radios or build them from kits.

Model making, leathercraft, weaving, basketry and clear casting are available in the small crafts room.

The photography section has facilities for developing and reproducing both black and white and color prints. Two rooms containing twenty enlargers and a studio complete the photography section.

Jewelry, enameling and lapidary, or rock cutting and polishing, are in one room. The fine arts, including oil and watercolor painting, printmaking, silkscreen and decoupage are also on the second floor affording much natural light.

Supply shelves are next to the entrance door and they can furnish clay, leather, radio tubes or any other item a person needs at the Arts and Crafts Center.

Chorus Seeks Pianist

Any EM who is interested in being an accompanist should contact 2nd Lt. Gary W. Bogle, Bldg. 83E, Main Post, or call 545-1973 or 545-3093.

Lieutenant Acts as Stage Director for 'Sound of Music'

The "Sound of Music," which opened Tuesday at the Springer Opera House in Columbus, is a very difficult show to produce from a technical point of view. The show has fourteen scene changes in the first act alone.

1st Lt. Robert E. Hutchison, S-4, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, is stage manager and lighting designer for the play. He has the most difficult job of any person in the cast or crew.

The stage manger has to make sure that the sets are changed and changed quickly. Lt. Hutchison doesnt want any change to take longer than 10 seconds.

He has to make sure that his crew is functioning efficiently. He also has to see that the actors are in the right place at the right time, and generally oversee the entire production.

Lt. Hutchison has a wide background of experience to draw from. He has been working at Springer's since February, 1968.

He has performed various technical jobs since then in productions of "Black Comedy," "Gideon" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

While earning a degree in psychology at Marryville College, Maryville, Tenn., he worked as a student director and general stagehand on 16 major productions.

"The Sound of Music" will play every night except Sundays through July 19.

In the lead role of Maria is Victoria Mallory, a former resident of Columbus. Miss Mallory has become much in demand as an actress since leaving Columbus.

Last year she played in "West Side Story" at Lincoln Center and in "Carnival" at the New York City Center. She wanted to return and do a show in her home town.

The opera house has a long history. Many famous personalities have played in the house since it opened in 1871. It ran continuously until the depression, then it became a movie theater.

In the 1950's, plans were made to tear the building down. A group of citizens, who felt that the building had historic value, saved it by a fund raising campaign and restored it as a community theater with an early 1900's decor.

Lt. [illegible] also wants to continue his [illegible]

Production Begins on 'The Cook'

Prince, one of the Broadway theatre's most honored director-producers, is making his motion picture directorial debut with "THE COOK," a contemporary story set in the scenic Bavarian Alps.

"THE COOK" is being produced by John P. Flaxman for Media Productions, Inc. Hugh Wheeler has written the screenplay, based on the critically-acclaimed novel of the same name by Harry Kressing.

Angela Lansbury, who last month earned her second Tony Award in three years when she was named Best Actress for her starring role in the Broadway musical, "Dear World," will return to the screen as the glamorous Countess Von Ornstein, head of an aristocratic Bavarian family.

She had been nominated for three Academy Awards in her illustrious film career before becoming the acknowledged Queen of the Musical Comedy Stage.

Michael York, the talented British actor who has recently completed starring roles in "Justine" and "Alfred the Great," plays a handsome, mysterious stranger who enters the Countess' household. The fast rising young star received much praise last year for his portrayal of Tybalt in "Romeo and Juliet."

Harold Prince, whose productions have won six Best Show Tony Awards (more than any other producer in the history of the Broadway theater), is currently represented on stages all over the world by three smash hits, "Fiddler On The Roof," "Cabaret" and "Zorba."

"THE COOK" will be filmed on actual locations in and around this mountain resort town on the Austrian border, 75 miles southwest of Munich. The Castle Neuschwanstein, most famous of the picture-book castles built by Bavaria's beloved King Ludwig II a hundred years ago, will serve as one of the principal locations.

'Little People' Star Will Visit Fort July 4

Don Matheson, star of the weekly television program "Land of the Giants," will visit Fort Benning during the Fourth of July activities.

Matheson, who portrays the leading character, Mark Wilson, in the nationally televised show, will tour the various displays and will also emcee for the "Great Novak," famed magician and hypnotist.

This 6-foot, 2-inch star, who appears as one of the "little people" in the science fiction series, is a former Airborne Infantryman. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism while serving in Korea.

General Officers Register For Reunion of 1st Cavalry

By PFC Jim Doherty

Three general officers who served at Fort Benning before assuming leadership roles with the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) in the Republic of Vietnam head a list of early registrants for the 22nd annual reunion of the 1st Cavalry Division Association.

The reunion will be held in Columbus and at Fort Benning Aug. 21-24.

Lt. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard who guided the unit that was then designated the 11th Air Assault Division (Test) through its training here and who later was its combat commander in Vietnam; Lt. Gen. John J. Tolson, former director of Airborne and Army Aviation at the U.S. Army Infantry School, and Maj. Gen. John Norton, former assistant commandant of the school, will attend the annual gathering of "First Team" veterans.

Both Tolson and Norton became commanding generals of the division in Vietnam.

Also attending will be Lt. Gen. Arthur Trudeau, formerly division commander in Japan after World War II; Maj. Gen. William A. Becker, who fought with the division in the Pacific for four years; Maj. Gen. George S. Blanchard and Brig. Gen. F. F. Wing Jr.

Tours of Columbus and Fort Benning, demonstrations of U. S. Army Infantry School training operations, social gatherings with leaders of the military and civilian communities and a special briefing on airmobile operations in the Republic of Vietnam are on the reunion agenda.

A dance for teenage sons and daughters of association members and a heritage tour of Columbus homes for the wives are also being organized.

The association was formed in July, 1944, to honor the memory of members of the 1st Cavalry Division who were killed in combat and to foster friendships that had developed during the war.

Today there are over 11,000 life members and almost 1,000 associate members.

Fort Benning personnel who plan to attend the reunion are requested to fill out pre-reservation forms which may be found in the Daily Bulletin and return them to Infantry Center headquarters.

Colonel Wins Freedom Foundation's Award

PFC James Doherty

A Freedom Foundation award recognizing dedication to American ideals was presented to Colonel John B. McKinney, director of the Communication-Electronics Department, by Brigadier General Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School in ceremonies here June 30.

McKinney will receive the George Washington Honor Medal Award and a $50 cash prize for a letter he wrote to a Tennessee teenager while serving in the Republic of Vietnam. The letter was later reprinted in the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal.

Soldier To Write To

The teenage boy, Argentine Wortham of Stanton, Tenn., had asked the Commercial Appeal for the names of America soldiers in Vietnam to whom he might write. McKinney's was among the names that the paper sent to him.

In his letter, the high school junior sent encouragement to the American officer.

"You are sacrificing a lot by not only putting your life on the line," he wrote, "but also by sacrificing the essence that makes life worthwhile, a home where you are loved and where you can love."

"If people would only stop and think of the things you men in Vietnam are deprived of, then perhaps they wouldn't protest as much . . .," he continued.

"What I am asking you," he told Wortlman, "is not to give your support to us soldiers here in Vietnam because we are lonely and away from our families, but because we are here fighting to preserve American dignity and our American way of life."

Cold War

After describing the history of the Cold War, Col. McKinney concluded that the Vietnam conflict was vital to American freedom.

"What security would we Americans have if the rest of the world were Communist?" he asked Wortham.

The Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., is a nonprofit, nonsectarian, independent foundation that emphasizes the importance of education in supporting the American way of life.

Brazilian War College Head Visiting Post

Major General Idalio Sardenberg heads a group of Brazilian officers who will arrive at Fort Benning July 6 for a two-day orientation tour.

General Sardenberg, Chief, Studies Department, Brazilian National War College, will be honored Monday with a 13-gun salute from Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery and with "Ruffles and Flourishes" by the 29ist Army Band.

He will review troops from Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry. The ceremonies will take place at 8:20 a.m. on York Field.

Three other generals will be among those accompanying General Sardenberg: Brigadier General Zamir de Barros Pinto, Brigadier General Dilermando Gomes Monteiro and Brigadier General (retired) Servulo Mota Lima.

Following the ceremonies, the visitors will meet with Major General George I. Forsythe, commanding general, U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Fort Benning Is Runner Up

Fort Gordon Wins Third Army Tennis Matches

By Bob Vargas

Fort Gordon (Ga.) captured the team title in the Third U.S. Army tennis tournament held on the Fort Benning Officers Club courts June 23-27 based on victories in both the men's open singles and doubles division.

In a play-off, Fort Benning gained second place team honors while Fort Bragg, N.C., came in third. The Bragg netters swept the senior men's singles and doubles and the women's singles and doubles.

Leading the Gordon team to the title were Pvt. Fulton Liss and Sp4 Calvin Trevenen. Liss, of Bethesda, Md., played on both the University of Corpus Christi (Texas) and University of Maryland tennis teams while Trevenen, a Colgate University graduate, was captain of the tennis team there.

Liss says his game was developed early while at Corpus Christi when he played Australian Davis Cup team members Tony Roche and John Newcombe. He defeated Trevenen 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 in the finals for the Third Army open singles title.

The two paired to take the men's open doubles title, defeating Capt. Gordon Brynildsen and Sgt. John Scott of Fort Benning, 6-1, 6-4, 7-5.

In the men's senior division singles, Lt. Col. LeRoy Stanley, Fort Bragg, N.C., defeated Lt. Col. Douglas Garwood, also of Fort Bragg, 6-1, 6-4, to capture the title.

Liss says his game was developed early while at Corpus Christi when he played Australian Davis Cup team members Tony Roche and John Newcombe. He defeated Trevenen 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 in the finals for the Third Army open singles title.

The two paired to take the men's open doubles title, defeating Capt. Gordon Brynildsen and Sgt. John Scott of Fort Benning, 6-1, 6-4, 7-5.

Lt. Col. Stanley perfected his tennis style while practicing with the Spanish Davis Cup team from 1960 to 1963. Col. Stanley was a senior winner in the 1966 Third Army tennis tournament.

Earlier, Lt. Tyler and Miss Kelley had teamed to take the doubles crown, Lt. Tyler and Miss Kelley defeated Lt. Mary Benscoter and Sp4 Karen Kincaid, Fort Gordon, by the scores of 6-0, 6-2.

Trophies were presented to the winners of each division and the team winner by Fort Benning Deputy Post Commander Col. Wiley B. Wisdom.

At the end of the tournament, Fort Benning and Fort Bragg, were tied for second place.

A play-off between the number one man of each team was held to determine the runner-up. Capt. Gordon Brynildsen, Fort Benning, defeated Capt. Carl B. Hill, Fort Bragg, to put Benning in second place.

Final team point standings are as follows: Fort Gordon, Ga., 24; Fort Benning, Ga., 22; Fort Bragg, N. C., 21; Fort Stewart, Ga., 7; Fort McClellan, Ala., 7; Redstone Army Arsenal, Ala., 7; Fort Campbell, Ky., 4; Hunter Army Airfield, Ala., 4; Fort Jackson, S.C., 1; Fort McPherson, Ga., 0; Atlanta Army Depot, Ga., 0.

ROD AND GUN CLUB NOTES

By Bill Kloeb

Sgt Bobby McCarter, Co. A, Infantry School Battalion, won the June bass contest with the seven-pound seven-ounce catch he made at Averett Pond June 11. Catfish honors went to SFC Orlis Perez, Co. A, Infantry School Battalion for the 13-pound 13-ounce catch he made at Victory Pond June 5. CPT Jimmy Ford and Sgt Robert Crossland shared the bream contest with one-pound catches made at Patterson Pond.

In spite of all the talk and writings about bass, trout, salt water big game fish and other "glamor" species, the "bream" . . . members of the sunfish family . . . maintain a high spot in the popularity ratings.

The term "bream" covers several species, though generally it could be translated to mean "bluegills". Others covered by the term, however, include redbreasts, green sunfish, pumpkinseeds, and shellcracker.

Although not as plentiful as his other cousins the shellcracker has a following all his own. Somewhat harder to catch, he's a tenacious fighter and generally runs a little larger than the other species of his family. He can be identified by a reddish orange mark on the rear tip of the gill, and he doesn't have the same barred effect as the bluegill. He's a greenish color with small dark markings. Because of the red mark on his "ear" he is sometimes called the "red eared sunfish."

The diet of the red eared sunfish runs largely . . . snails and similar crustacians found on the bottom of a pond, lake or river. With a set of teeth grown especially for the job, he can crack these open for dinner. This habit is responsible for the name "shellcracker."

Even though crustaceans constitute a large part of his diet they don't seem to be the right bait for him. A red wiggler on a No. 6 or 8 shorthanked hook, fished right on the bottom, seems to be the most productive bait. The best method is to fasten a single shot about a foot from the hook and use a slip float set to allow the shot to go all the way to the bottom. The float rigged in this manner will still signal the angler when the fish takes the bait. Having your bait on the bottom greatly increases the chances of taking shellcrackers home. Of course this method is also a very effective way to fish for other members of the bream family but when fishing for the cracker it is a must that the bait be on the bottom. You will rarely find him far above the bottom and almost never get him on artificial lures, particularly top water types.

The presence of shellcracker is a compliment to the bluegill in a well balanced pond because the two eat different foods thus the productivity of the pond is used to a greater advantage.

All of the post ponds have been stocked with bluegill and redear in a ratio of 20 per cent redear and 80 per cent bluegill at one time or another but according to Roy Johnson, chief of the Post Fish and Game Unit, the two best ponds for cracker fishing are Patterson and Averett. A review of the records of the Rod and Gun Club Fishing Derby bears out his opinion. Nearly every winner of the monthly bream contest made his catch at one of these two ponds.

Leaders Lose In Slow Pitch Softball Games

The first and second place teams of the 1st half of the Company level slow pitch softball league, lost their opening games of the 2nd half, which began last week.

The MTU which finished league play with a 6-1 record lost their opener of first in the 1st half of the 2nd half to HHC TSB. The HHC team lead by Sp4 Frances grabbed an early lead and held onto it to win 7 to 2.

CDCIA which finished second in the 1st half lost their opener to B Co. ISB, 8 to 5.

A new team from the Leadership Department entered the league and was abruptly initialed by losing their first game to 40th Co. TSB 8 to 2. The win was the first for 40th Company in league play. They finished in the cellar 0-7 in the first half of league play.

Other results during the week were:

YAC Will Host Swim Meet

By Bob Vargas

The Third Annual Junior Olympic Swimming Championship Meet will be held at Carey Outdoor Swimming Pool here, July 18 and 19.

The Fort Benning Youth Activities Center, Barracuda Swimming Team, will again host the meet.

Tentative plans are being made to enlist the aid of the Georgia Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Swimming and Junior Olympic Swimming chairman to provide expert personnel to officiate.

The national sponsor will be the Quaker Oats Company and the meet is sanctioned by the Georgia AAU.

Junior Olympic medals will be presented for the first through sixth place in individual and relay events. Quaker Oats Company will provide Junior Olympic award certificates for first through fifth place in all events. Participation certificates will be awarded to all participants. The best five times in each event will be submitted for national consideration.

There will be four divisions for competition in the boys' and girls' division. The four divisions are as follows: midgets (10 years and under); junior (11 and 12 years); intermediates (13 and 14 years); seniors (15 through 17 years). Each swimmer must participate only in his age group. Entry is by official entry blanks only.

Rules as outlined in the Junior Olympic Rules as listed in the 1969 Official AAU Handbook will govern the competition.

Andrews, Fraser Selected For National Rally

Two riders from Fort Benning have been named to the team which will represent the Southern Region at the National Pony Club Rally in Nashville, Tenn., July 28-30.

They are Benning Pony Club members, Alicia Fraser and Jeanette Andrews.

They were chosen after the recent Southern Rally here on the basis of their individual scores in dressage, cross-country, stadium jumping, stable management and horsemanship knowledge.

THE FORUM
THE LOKUM

By Marc Reiff

Maury Wills, Ken Harrelson and Don Clendenon at some point this season decided it was time to find ways of making money other than baseball. Or did they? At the moment they are still employed by baseball teams and all the little misunderstandings have been cleared up. But any way you look at it, baseball is beginning to look a little foolish in these reolving door retirement cases.

It would seem desirable to prevent the rapid reactivation of a retired player, but to do so without violating the rights of anyone concerned. The present regulations say that if a man retires voluntarily he can't be reinstated for 60 days. But his retirement doesn't take effect until the league president accepts his request to retire. And the retirement can't be reversed after August 1 of the playing season.

Why not make a player's announcement of retirement immediately effective? Then he'd have to wait 60 days to come back if he changed his mind. There is a great deal of bad publicity involved in such cases, and the ill feelings which occur, while making spicy copy for sportswriters, do not leave a pleasant taste in the mouths of the public or the men affected. More often than not, a few days after they put on their uniforms again, the front office will send out a release to the tune that the players were misquoted and really didn't say all those bad things about the managers, who they've always felt were great fellows after all.

If a player wants to retire privately and without fanfare, let him discuss it with the management first and take a look at the contract. And if a player wants to be traded, let the management do it, not the newspapers.

But if he calls a press conference and drips sincerity and gets his fans all worked up, let him take his medicine and stick by his word. That's not too much to ask of any ball player, is it?

Cubs Fans Are Hot

Cubs fans have good reason for celebration, with their heroes out in front in the National League's East Division after 20 long years of watching all the other teams play catch with the peannant. It appears Cubs fans are really taking advantage of the opportunity to revel. They may even be rubbing it in, which is understandable, but some of them have displayed manners which are neither understandable nor laudable.

One overwrought Cub backer hit Cincinnati hurler Jose Pena in the face with a baseball while Pena was standing in the runway the other day. There have been other incidents involving bleacher fans, whose disruptive sprees have earned them the label of "Bleacher Bums".

After one exciting Cub victory this year, thousands of spectators broke through the cordon of ushers around the field and advanced on the Cub dressing room, putting enough of a scare into the attendants that they locked the doors after the players. But the visiting teams are the ones who have been the targets of nasty and sometimes dangerous acts. Cub management has a crowd-control problem on its hands. This, of course, is no novelty these days. The same is true in varying degrees in nearly every big league park. It would be unfortunate, though, if the Cubs' finest hour in more than 20 years were to be dimmed by a failure to check holligan elements.

Big Three on Wane

From the results so far this year, it looks as though the big three of golf are definitely on the downhill side of their careers. Each Monday morning's paper seems to come out with a new set of young winners on the professional golf tour and Palmer, Nicklaus and Player, if they played in the tournament, are found listed way down in the field. The big ones that these three men used to get "up" for are slipping by and so far none of them have been able to score a win.

Several years ago, when you opened the Monday morning paper you could expect to see one of these names in the headlines and they were always odds-on favorites in the pre-tournament betting pools. But it's not the same today. There is so much talent on the tour today that anyone of 20 or so players can win if they get "hot." It looks as though this trend will continue for some time before a group of super-stars emerges again, if they ever do.

COMPUTER CORNER

By Bud Goode

A rat-a-tat-tat sound of gunfire hits the ears when near Chicago's Wrigley Field these days. No, it's not another St. Valentine's Day massacre, but the big guns of the Chicago Cubs. And the Durocher Gang is just as deadly at knocking over opposition.

After 69 games in the current season the Cubs are getting on base at a .338 clip to lead the National League Eastern Division. Cincinnati, chasing Atlanta and Dodgers, leads in the West with a fantastic .341 On Base Average percentage.

On Base-Average, defined as the percentage of batters who reach first base on a hit, base-on-balls, or hit-by-pitch statistic, is more important in winning games than is the team's power or slugging percentage.

To measure teams' On Base Average through games of last week, Computer Corner poured the clubs' hits, walks, hit-by-pitch and at bat statistics into our Univac electronic sports analyzer. Here's the results:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

EAST	ON BASE AVERAGE %	WEST	ON BASE AVERAGE%
BOSTON	.346	MINNESOTA	.335
BALTIMORE	.346	SEATTLE	.331
WASHINGTON	.329	OAKLAND	.320
DETROIT	.320	CHICAGO	.315
NEW YORK	.304	KANSAS CITY	.301
CLEVELAND	.302	CALIFORNIA	.297
League Average	.321	League Average	.321

NATIONAL LEAGUE

CHICAGO	.338	CINCINNATI	.341
PITTSBURGH	.332	SAN FRANCISCO	.326
NEW YORK	.313	HOUSTON	.320
PHILADELPHIA	.311	ATLANTA	.320
ST. LOUIS	.310	LOS ANGELES	.312
MONTREAL	.310	SAN DIEGO	.326
League Average	.321	League Average	.321

Has the lowered pitching mound helped the batters get on base? Indeed it has. Last year the National and American League average was .300. This year's figure is up 2% over '68. Only California and San Diego are below the .300 mark — and long out of the running for the pennant.

New York Cadet Is Bowling Champion

By Ronald B. Argo

Collegiate bowling champion, Fred M. Schwartz of Bellerose, N. Y., is one of nearly 3,500 pre-ROTC cadets attending the nation's only basic ROTC summer camp. Schwartz is a graduate student at St. John's University Law School.

As captain of the Martin Van Buren High School varsity team and while a student at St. John's, Schwartz won numerous tournaments and awards. His name is listed on the same page with O. J. Simpson, UCLA's famed halfback, in the 1969 edition of "Outstanding College Athletes of America."

Schwartz served as president of the Eastern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference while working towards his bachelor degree in economics at St. John's. His 703 series is recorded as the highest ever rolled in Eastern collegiate history.

Schwartz became interested in the game of ten pins at 12 and won his first tournament when he was 16. His ability in the sport has continued to progress ever since.

In 1965, Schwartz rolled a 725 series, the highest in the United States for anyone 19 or under. This same series took the honors in New York for all age groups.

In December 1968, Schwartz won the New York Bowling Writers Association's "Bowler of the Month Award," beating out top professionals Bill Hardwick and Dick Weber, the all time money winner in tournament bowling.

Asked about his future plans in the pro ranks, Schwartz said it would be some time before he would be bowling professionally.

"Most of my time during the next couple of years will be occupied with the study of law," he concluded.

50th Company Leads League

The 50th OC Company moved into the first place slot in the 5th Bn. softball league Saturday May 10 by taking a double header 6-5 and 5-3 respectively from the 55th and 54th OC Companies.

The first game against the 55th was literally turned into a marathon of baseball as the game went eleven innings before Candidate Gary Zittlow scored the deciding run. 50th Co. all but had the game in the bag when 55th scored 4 big runs in the seventh to knot the score at 5-5, throwing the game into extra innings.

In the second game, 50th Co. did its best to impress 54th as they opened up on their opponents by getting on the scoreboard four times in the first inning. Candidate Robert Tarr led 50th Co.'s hitting with an impressive 3 for 3 at the plate while Candidate Douglas Cannon, the pitcher, pitches 12 innings to be credited with both wins.

In other action, 55th and 56th OC Companies clinched by having a slug-fest with 55th emerging as the victor in an 11-10 contest with the 55th emerging as the Victor in an 11-10 contest with the winning run being scored in the final inning.

Troop Command Leading Fast Pitch League

The season, which is divided into two parts, closed out the first half with a playoff game between CTC and the 10th Aviation Group. CTC won the game 10-0 giving them their overall first place standing.

In the second half of the season CTC has compiled an impressive four win, no loss record.

Leading pitchers for the CTC team are David Issacson and Al Sharp. Bill Williams and Al Roth stand out as the team's leading sluggers.

If the CTC team wins this second half of the season they become the automatic champions of the Ft. Benning fast pitch softball league. In the event that they lose, they will enter into a playoff series to determine the fast pitch championship.

Phenix City Dragway Hosts National Points Meet

By Bowers & Martin

This Fourth of July weekend promises much exciting action for motor sports fans. The first event to get under way in a long day of racing is the Paul Revere NASCAR Grand Touring Race. The Camaros, Mustangs and Javelins competing for the $24,850 prize in this event leave the starting line at midnight July 3.

Ten hours later the biggest event of the day gets the green flag in Daytona Beach with the start of the Firecracker 400 NASCAR Grand National. Cale Yarborough is a slight favorite over Lee Roy Yarbrough to win the Independence Day event. Both will be driving 1969 Mercury Cyclones. Cale wa sthe winner of the last two 400s. Grand Marshall of the event will be World War II Medal of Honor winner Thomas Kelley of New York. The event traditionally honors the recipients of the Nation's highest award for valor.

For those fans who prefer to spend the holiday at home, Phenix Dragway has a cool answer with some hot cars. The answer is an NHRA national record and points meet being held under the lights on the fourth and offering a purse of $10,000 the largest monetary award for a sporting event in Alabama history. Not only does the event feature some of the nation's top drivers, but the cooler night track should mean new records and lower ETs.

Getting away from the fourth for a moment, Mike Kasner will be the Slalomaster for the July 14 slalom SOLO II to be held at the traffic circle. A driver's meeting will be held at 1:05 p.m. with the first round starting at 1:15.

Benning Pony Club Wins Rally

By PFC Lee Meyers

Horses, riders, and judges stumbled in the heat but the winners in Pony Club Rally here June 25-28 came up smiling.

Benning Pony Club won the "B" team competition, Ann Foley of Midland Fox Hounds of Columbus won the "B" individual event, "C" team competition.

Some horses were dropped from the stadium jumping Saturday because of heat exhaustion but nothing dampened the enthusiasm of the young riders who cried when they knocked down a pole, and hugged their horses, yelled and cried when they jumped well, enjoying both riding a horse and having the responsibility for horse and tack.

The temperature reached 90 in the morning and soared to a high of 99 in the afternoon.

The Benning "B" team which won first place had four members and a stable manager: Jeanette Andrews, Linda Cherney, Tamie Cherney, Alicia Frasier.

Second place in "B" team competition was Atlanta, Ga., with team members and stable manager: Diana Benson, Bebe Henderson, Linda Bowen, Edea Caldwell, and Debra Sentinella.

Third in "B" team competition was Cahaba from Birmingham, Ala., with team members and stable manager: Nan Robertson, Becky Bishop, Debbie Thuss, Jeannie Johnston and Mac McMasters.

Ann Foley of Columbus won the "B" individual and Richard Dudley of Cahaba from Birmingham was second. Mary Norby and Mary Donne Lewis from Fort Rucker, Ala., were third and fourth in "B" individual competition.

Second in "C" team competition was Atlanta White team with members and stable manager: Mary Brooks, Vivian Tillson, Mary Cusick, Lulu Finch, and Ann Wright.

Third in "C" team events was Benning with members and stable manager: Dristie Aure, Vickie Chapman, Marcia Safar, Nan Berry and Debbie McKenzie.

Fourth in the "C" team category was North River from Tuscaloosa, Ala., with members and stable manager: Donna Whitehurst, Lynn Whichard, Lowelle Vernon, Minge Cochran and Susan O'Kelley.

Ribbons were presented to the winners by Brigadier General Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School here.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

90th Company Wins Tug-of-War

9th OC BN Holds Activation Day

The 9th Infantry Officer Candidate Battalion, The Candidate Brigade celebrated the third anniversary of their organization by holding Organization Day Activities at Doughboy Field.

The 9th OC Bn. was started 3 years ago. Since then the battalion has graduated approximately 5400 Infantry Officers. The 9th Bn. is presently composed of seven OC Companies all of which took part in the festivities of Organization Day.

The activites were officially started by an event which was strangely familiar to most of the onlookers. Draped in a white sheet, Roman-fashion, Candidate Gavin Riley, carrying a make-shift torch, circled the stadium in traditional but humorous Olympic style. Following this LTC Robert W. Muller, 9th OC Bn. Commanding Officer, opened the activities with a greeting to the competitors and spectators.

The events of the day were mainly athletic: a 100 meter dash, 440 meter relay, 880 meter relay, mile run, log roll, 3-legged race, chair race, and the tug-of-war. Points were awarded to the first three places in each event, with a trophy going to the company with the most points at the end of the day.

92nd OC Company took home most of the honors and the trophy by collecting a total of 53 points. Candidate Gavin Riley of the 94th OC Company won the mile run in 5:01. Candidate Riley represented the United States in the recent Olympic Games in Mexico City in the mile run.

Other events, which called for husband and wife participation, were the three legged race, the diaper race, the women's powder puff 200 meter relay, the wives balloon throw, and the women's 50 meter dash. The wives' participation in the events were reflective of the amount of enthusiasm displayed by both the candidates and their wives throughout the course of the day.

The day was topped off with a chicken and steak cookout for cadre, candidates and their families.

Commanding General Urges Holiday Safety

Major General George I. Forsythe, commanding general, U. S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, has urged Fort Benning drivers to make this Fourth of July a "safe and happy holiday."

Pointing out that the recent Memorial Day weekend was without a single fatal accident, the general urged all members of the Fort Benning family to "be careful and safety conscious."

"Holiday accidents are especially tragic for families and friends who must unfortunately endure the sadness and emptiness for years to come," the general wrote.

He urged soldiers to be particularly careful when driving long distances or when participating in traditional holiday activities such as swimming and boating.

Benning Helicopter Crew Tries To Rescue Workers

A Fort Benning Ch-47 "Chinnook" helicopter that was assisting in the search for a missing Knoxville, Tenn., youth was diverted to Nashville for a dramatic rescue attempt of two demolition workers who were stranded on top of a 315-foot smokestack for six hours.

The chopper, from the 177th Aviation Company, 10th Aviation Group, was being used to transfer personnel and equipment into Great Smokey National Park in an attempt to find seven-year-old Dennis Martin, son of a Knoxville architect, when word came that the brick ladder embedded on the side of Old Hickory's Dupont plant had started to crumble and the two demolition workers were stranded at the top.

James Mason and Archie Weatherford, who were doing preliminary demolition work on the old building, used their emergency walkie-talkies to call for help.

Nashville fire teams sped to the scene, but their tallest ladder was far too short.

The men remained suspended on the smokestack fearful that any movement might cause the old structure to collapse further.

CWO James H. Frye, the Chinook pilot, and CWO Roger N. Lesch, co-pilot, with their two crewmen, Sp6 Billy Otis and Sp4 Stanton Ferguson, rushed to Nashville, arriving in about 90 minutes.

Mason, meanwhile, had gathered his courage and started to risk a descent on the crumbling bricks.

Resting every few minutes, Mason moved cautiously toward the security of solid ground.

Weatherford had remained stranded on top of the smokestack. The chopper continued to make low passes over the stack once coming within two feet of the stranded man with an improvised parachute harness.

Apparently realizing that his co-worker was on his way to safety, Weatherford finally decided to try the same long, dangerous descent himself.

By now he had been stranded about six hours in the hot Nashville sun.

Exhausted and tired, he made a slow, cautious descent, finally reaching safety.

The copter briefly remained hovering overhead in case the structure should start to crumble again and leave Weatherford stranded in an even more dangerous position.

The two men were taken immediately to Smith County (Tennessee) Hospital where they were treated for heat exhaustion.

Mason was actually ready for work again a few days later and prepared to begin more demolition work on the same building.

When Weatherford began his descent, Frye started to return to the search scene near Knoxville, realizing that it would be impossible for his chopper to take the worker from the side of the structure.

The military role in the search was called off and both Fort Benning Chinooks that had taken part in that search returned here Thursday.

Completely Independent

New Engineer Unit In Planning Stages

US ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, FT. BELVOIR, Va. — The Army may soon have its first separate Engineer Construction Company adequately manned and equipped to operate completely independent of support from the construction battalion. Under a draft Table of Organization and Equipment, recently prepared by the US Army Combat Developments Command (CDC) Engineer Agency, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, the company is designed to provide a self-sustaining construction unit where the capabilities of an entire battalion are not required.

The separate company will have virtually the entire range of equipment and skills of a construction battalion, but at a reduced scale. The mission of this new Engineer outfit will include both horizontal and vertical construction jobs.

Horizontal construction is excavating, hauling, compacting, grading, and stabilizing earth subgrades for airfields, roads, railroads, levees, and supply storage areas. Vertical construction includes the construction and rehabilitation of buildings, port facilities, bridges and drainage structures, as well as the installation and repair of utilities.

The Engineer Agency's concept of organization for the separate company includes a company headquarters and a maintenance platoon with separate engineer and automotive maintenance sections, each capable of providing organizational and direct support maintenance. The construction effort will be provided by one Earthmoving Platoon and two General Construction Platoons. The Earthmoving Platoon has an embankment and excavating section and a grading and compacting section.

Equipment planned for this company includes the new family of compaction equipment currently undergoing standardization procedures, and the "Rome Plow" which has gained much popularity in Vietnam.

This new separate engineer construction company will provide the field commander a more flexible capability in fulfilling the never-ending engineer mission in the theater of operations.

500 Miamians Arrive For Reserve Training

By PFC Jim Doherty

Over 500 Miamians from the 324th General Hospital, U.S. Army Reserve, and its three supporting detachments arrived at Fort Benning Sunday for two weeks of active duty summer training.

The 324th, commanded by Col. Chauncy M. Stone, will provide medical and professional support to Martin Army Hospital. Among the unit's 60 officers are 14 doctors and 14 nurses.

The detachments are the 331st Medical Detchment, the 334th Blood Bank Detachment and the 3342nd Dental Detachment.

The 331st is operating Dispensary 7 at Sand Hill and the 3342nd is working with various post dental activities.

While most of the 324th is serving at Martin Army Hospital, special groups will work in other Fort Benning health activities.

With the 324th are 75 troops who have yet to complete basic training. Their two weeks of active summer duty is being spent at the Army Training Center here. The 324th is providing four of its own cadre to assist in their training.

The unit's duty tour will be completed July 12 when it will depart Lawson Army Airfield for Miami.

The 324th has been coming to Fort Benning annually since 1954 when its total strength was only about a third of its present number.

Housing Policy Change Is Implemented By DOD

The Fort Benning Family Housing Section has implemented a new Department of Defense policy aimed at establishing uniformity of criteria in assignment of military quarters throughout all the armed services.

Housing priorities will now be based on grade, date of application and bedroom requirements. For quarters designated for occupancy by families of soldiers in pay grades 0-4 and below, family size and composition will be the primary assignment factor within each pay grade.

Previously, housing priorities had depended more upon rank and date of rank.

The new criteria will help the Family Housing Section predict more accurately when a newly arrived family will get living quarters. With primary consideration being given to the date of application, it becomes easier for the section to predict when accomodations will become available.

USAIC regulation 210-27, issued June 10, explains the application of the changes to Fort Benning.

AUSA Membership Encouraged in CTC

By Sp4 Ken Starzenacker

More than 170 men and women assigned to 1st Battalion, Center Troop Command, met Monday morning to become acquainted with the advantages found in Association of the United States Army (AUSA) membership.

The meeting, called by 1st Battalion commander, Lieutenant Colonel Edward E. Crow, covered the purposes and accomplishments of the Association's 110 active chapters.

High in the group's past activities has been the campaign to obtain higher levels of military pay as well as greater medical, dental and housing benefits.

Colonel Crow pointed out the active interest taken in the current membership drive by the top NCO's within 1st Battalion.

"The company first sergeants, as well as the battalion mess steward, have all thrown their full support behind the attempt to reach the highest membership total for AUSA we have ever had.

Chief of Scottish Clan Is New Liaison Officer

By Sp5 Michael Beck

Lieutenant Colonel Sir Gregor MacGregor of MacGregor, Bart., the name itself stimulates interest. "I am the 23rd successive hereditary chief of the MacGregor Clan," LTC MacGregor explained. "That is why my name includes the 'of MacGregor.' I am also a Baronet, but that title was awarded to my family only six generations ago in 1794."

Lt. Col. MacGregor, the new British liaison officer to The Infantry School, was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1944. Born in the highlands of Scotland, he was a platoon commander in Germany at the end of World War II.

He has been a Scots Guardsman the whole 25 years of his career and has been all over the world with different elements of the Scots Guards. "My entire career has been very interesting," said Lt. Col. MacGregor. "I have been very lucky. However this is the first time I have been in the United States on duty as a soldier."

The 43-year-old lieutenant colonel believes his most interesting assignment was with the 16th Parachute Brigade Group as the brigade major, a job equivalent to a combination of our G-3 and chief of staff. During a two year period, starting in 1961, he participated in airborne infantry exercises in 10 countries, from the Far East to the Mediterranean.

During his free hours, Lt. Col. MacGregor enjoys shooting, fishing and gardening. He is married to the former Miss Fanny Butler and has two children. He was educated at Scaitcliff School and Eton College.

During his career, Lt. Col. MacGregor has served as a company commander in Germany, and with the 1st Battalion Scots Guards in Malaya and Borneo, both as battalion second in command and commanding officer. He is a graduate of the British Staff College and the Joint Services Staff College.

TO ALL MILITARY AND CIVILIAN PERSONNEL

Friday, July 4th will mark the 193rd anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. I encourage you and your families to remember the significance of this day and what it means to our great nation.

The spirit of the holiday is one of festivity. It is proper that we celebrate the independence of our country in such a manner. At the same time, we should remember the sacrifices and dedication of those great Americans who have fought and died for freedom since our nation's birth and those soldiers who now honor that heritage as they serve in Vietnam and in troubled areas throughout the world. Here at home, it is important that we join them in perpetuating the "Spirit of 76" for future generations.

I take this opportunity of wishing you and your families a safe, happy and meaningful holiday.

Demonstrations Impress Pre-ROTC Camp Cadets

"I didn't realize the Army had that much power so readily available to back up its units in the field."

C. Burton Jones Jr., at Ft. Benning for six weeks of basic ROTC summer camp, had just finished viewing a demonstration of the Army's airmobile power and striking capabilities as part of the training designed to acquaint the future officers with the support designed to aid the effective leader.

The airmobility demonstration, a combination of Army and Air Force power utilizing the latest concepts in conducting flexible, responsive warfare, was one of several the cadets will see as part of their leadership training while at Benning.

Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs C. Burton Jones, Sherrard, Miss., was graduted this spring from Mississippi Delta Junior College at Moorhead and will attend Mississippi State University in the fall.

"The demonstration gave me confidence, and reassured me that the small unit commander would not be forgotten, that he was not alone," Jones said.

Daniel J. Russell, son of Mr. James W. Russell, Seattle, Wash., was impressed with the amount of firepower that could be brought to bear on the enemy.

"Perhaps it was because of the distance we were from the target area, but I almost expected more craters from the bombs and artillery," he commented.

"Technically, the demonstration was very impressive. The coordination between the ground forces in the area and their supporting elements was very precise. Such strong coordination in the field is a big asset to any leader, in or out of actual combat activities," said Jerry B. Baumeister.

Baumeister is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Baumeister, Bethany, Okla. He is a student at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. Each of the pre-cadets questioned are assigned to Co. B, 8th Bn.

Throughout the demonstration, Maj. Richard H. Hummel of The Infantry School's Bde. and Bn. Oper. Dept., and narrator for the activity, emphasized the leadership techniques and the diversity of skills needed by today's Army officers.

Airmobile, Ranger and night defense demonstrations high-lighted the first full week of training for the more than 1,500 in the first increment of the nearly 3,600 expected to take part in the summer camp.

10th Aviation Group Celebrates 4th Anniversary

By PFC Lee Myers

The 10th Aviation Group here celebrated its fourth anniversary July 1.

On July 1, 1965, the 10th Aviation Group was activated while the 10th Air Transport Brigade was inactivated and the 11th Air Assault Division was converted to the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

The mission of the new group was to provide a central facility where units could be activated, organized, trained, equipped and deployed.

Col. J. Elomore Swenson, first commander of the group, said the unit has followed a new road of challenging milestones." He added, "We have had to try the untried."

The 10th Aviation Group has flown in support of the 1st Cavalry Division, the U.S. Army Infantry School Forces, the Air Force, and the Navy as well as the U.S. Army Infantry School. The group activated, trained and deployed to Vietnam, 83 aviation units; it supported missions in Vietnam, the Western Pacific, and Africa; and it has trained students from many nations — the 1,000th student to graduate was Capt. Murray McDonald of the Canadian Armed Forces.

Civilian Emergencies

The group has helped during many civilian emergencies. In September, 1965, a barge carrying deadly liquid chlorine sank in the Mississippi River during Hurricane Betsy. The 10th delivered a red dye to be dumped into the river for a time-distance measurement and flew a generator from Baltimore, Md., to Baton Rouge, La., to power sonar equipment which was used to locate the barge.

Following Hurricane Beulah in October, 1967, CH-47 Chinook helicopters flew to the flooded Rio Grande Valley in Mexico and southern Texas to help in relief work. Over 2,000 people were carried out of flooded areas and over 70 tons of food and medical supplies were transported to stranded people. In a day, one of the Chinooks made 34 landings, carried over six tons of food and more than 80 people.

The 10th also has assisted the space program and supported riot control. In August, 1965, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration asked that a Lunar Excursion Module Adapter, weighing over 5,000 pounds, be delivered to Cape Kennedy, Fla. Because it could not be passed under bridges if it went by water, and because it could not be passed under power lines if it went by land, the adapter was airtowed underneath a CH-47. Another was delivered to Cape Kennedy in January, 1966, and one was delivered to the Houston Manned Spaceflight Center, Houston, Texas, in May, 1966.

Starting with Gemini 8, the group was called on to provide recovery capability on the African continent for the Gemini space vehicles.

In July, 1967, the group assisted riot control in Detroit, Mich. Aerial reconnaissance, medical evacuation and command flights were performed by 10th Group aviators.

A significant increase in the helicopter concept was evaluated by the 10th Group when the 53rd Aviation Detachment with three armed Chinook helicopters, CH-47A, joined the 10th. To be used for suppressive firepower, the armed Chinooks carried a 40mm grenade launcher, two 20mm cannons, two 19-round 2.75-inch rocket pods, and five .50-caliber machine guns. After intensive training with the 10th Group, the detachment was deployed to Vietnam for field evaluation under combat conditions.

In April, 1967, Col. J Y Hammack assumed command of the 10th Aviation Group from Col. Swenson who had commanded it from its activation. Col. Eugene B. Conrad assumed command in December, 1968, from Col. Hammack.

The unit insignia adopted by the group in April, 1966, has ten feathers in the wings denoting its numerical designation and the insignia has an arrowhead over three rotor blades alluding to the group's function of carrying troops into combat. The colors, ultramarine blue and golden orange, are those authorized for Army aviation.

Six New, Revised Manuals Completed for Publication

US ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft Belvoir, Va. — Six new and revised field manuals have recently been completed for publication by the US Army Combat Developments Command (CDC), Ft Belvoir, Va. User units will receive them via Pinpoint Distribution through adjutant general channels when they become available from the printers.

The new manuals are FM 17-37, The Air Cavalry Squadron, and FM 55-30, Army Motor Transportation Operations. FM 17-37 provides doctrine for the employment of the aero scout platoon, cavalry troop and the air cavalry squadron of the airmobile division and separate air cavalry squadrons.

The manual updates all organizational features and incorporates doctrinal changes appropriate to stability operations, surveillance, riverine operations and reflects current terminology.

FM 55-30, which will supersede FMs 55-35 and 55-35-1, is intended for use in planning and executing military motor movements. It gives doctrinal guidance for motor transport organization and operation doctrine. It covers the organization, basis of assignment, capabilities and employment of motor transport units.

The revised manuals include FM 1-100, Army Aviation Utilization, which treats doctrinal guidance for use of Army aviation in support of military operations on land.

FM 14-3 provides doctrine on the mission, organization, functions and responsibilities of comptroller elements assigned to a theater Army organization. It is predicated on the availability of automatic data processing equipment and electronics communications systems.

Commanders will be interested in the revision of FM 17-30, Armored Brigade. In this manual, doctrinal guidance for the employment of the divisional armored brigade and the separate armored brigade is treated. It covers the capabilities, limitations, command, planning, operations, intelligence and training that are particularly applicable to combat, combat support and combat service support elements employed by the armored brigade.

FM 19-1 Military Police Support Army Division and Separate Brigades gives doctrine for MP operations within the various types of Army Divisions and separate brigades. It covers employment of the division MP company, the military police platoon of a separate brigade and supporting nondivisional or nonbrigade MP units.

Coverage has been increased to include operations techniques for employment of military police support of infantry division elements in stability operations where inland waterways are the primary line of communication.

CDC, in its role of determining how the Army of the future will be equipped, fight and be organized, is responsible for writing doctrinal field manuals.

Engineers Expand Rangers' Mess Hall

By Ben Cunningham

Co. D, 43rd Engrs., have gone to the Ranger Camp in Dahlonega, Ga. Their purpose, however, is not to learn the Ranger arts, but to build a new addition to the mess hall there.

The modern new cinder-block construction was begun in early April of this year. The 43rd Engineers have had a constant crew of about 85 men there since its inception.

According to Lt. Robert E. Nicodemus, the mess hall is being expanded to meet the need for a consolidation of personnel. Before, the Ranger trainees and support personnel were eating in separate facilities.

With this new addition, which will accommodate between 150 and 180 men, everyone will be eating under the same roof. Lt. Nicodemus noted, however, that "there will still be separate serving lines for the trainees and other cadre."

There have been a few unexpected problems to crop up for the engineers while they have been at the Ranger Camp. "One of the biggest hang-ups," said Nicodemus, "was a propane gas tank that was sitting in the proposed site of the outside wall. We had to move it, which took us six days."

McCausland Outstanding Graduate

Thomas N. McCausland was named distinguished and leadership graduate of Infantry Officer Candidate Class No. 21-69 at exercises in Marshall Auditorium here June 24.

The guest speaker at the graduation was Brigadier General George S. Beatty Jr., deputy commandant, U.S. Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala., and commanding general, U.S. Army Flight Training Center, Fort Stewart, Ga.

For his achievement as top man in his class, Lt. McCausland received a letter of commendation from Brigadier General Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an Association of the United States (AUSA) plaque and an engraved "Follow Me" statuette.

Stand Tall, Soldier!

On this Fourth of July, we celebrate the 193d birthday of the Declaration of Independence. A document that states, ever so boldly, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness . . . That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it . . ." It is, as it says, a Declaration of Independence, granting freedom to all citizens.

We are defenders of this freedom. I think it is well to remember on this day the words of philosopher John Stuart Mill. He said in 1800, "War is an ugly thing, but not the ugliest of things. The decayed and degraded state of moral and patriotic feeling which thinks nothing worth a war is worse . . . a man who has nothing which he cares about more than his personal safety is a miserable creature who has no chance of being free, unless made and kept so by the existence of better men than himself." In the light of these words, we, the defenders, stand tall.

The American flag is being flown by more Americans than ever before. Replicas of flags appear on lapels, on car bumpers and in car windows. This is a tribute to the heritage of freedom, which though imperfect, must not be lost or forgotten . . . or conquered. Our mission is to defend this freedom wherever and whenever challenged, whether it be a popular or unpopular situation. As a U.S. serviceman once wrote to the Freedoms Foundation, "I know that when my country calls I must go. For each time the aggressor stalks the weak, and goes unchallanged, the hobnailed boot of oppression treads one step closer to me and mine." On this Fourth of July, let every serviceman stand tall because every parade, every speech, every man stand tall because every parade, every speech, and every fireworks display is partially in his honor.

Multitude Of Documents Prove Age

"What do I need to prove my age?" is a question asked frequently by people who apply each week for retirement payments at the local Social Security Office, according to Robert E. O'Neal, District Manager.

O'Neal, says that births were not generally recorded in the Columbus area until 1919; therefore, original birth certificates are not available for people becoming 65 now. Other records may be used, however, to establish one's age for social security entitlement. He gives examples, church records, insurance policies, military records, and Bible records.

In case none of these documents is available, federal census records may be obtained for a small fee and usually these are satisfactory in helping to establish age.

O'Neal advised persons not to put off filing a claim simply because age proof is not on hand. By getting the application on file the individual will not lose benefits, no matter how long it takes to prove his age, he said.

Further information may be obtained at the Social Security Office, 301 15th St. in Columbus — open 8:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday thru Friday and 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday.

What Are Your Actions and Orders Now Lieutenant?

By 2LT James Hopson

A lieutenant leads his platoon on an attack. A frightened private receives a slight wound, panics and runs from the battle. His squad leader pursues the soldier, ordering him to stop. Other men in the platoon, noticing the two fleeing men, believe the unit is retreating. The lieutenant must stop the retreat.

"What are your actions and orders, lieutenant?" the narrator asks. The screen goes black and 220 officer candidates mull over solutions to the "screen officer's" problem.

These 220 young men, with different backgrounds, different personalities and experiences are all learning leadership — Army style — at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning. Two-hundred and twenty young men, who, in less than a year may face the same problem encountered by the young officer in the film.

The Infantry School, of which the Officer Candidate School is a part, has a big job.

In a span of six short months, the school's staff must mold a diverse group of men into competent military leaders. Starting with "natural" leaders and men who have never led anyone in their lives, the school must provide them the tools and skills they will need to undertake leadership responsibilities as second lieutenants.

These tools and skills range from office records-keeping procedures to command of a mechanized infantry company, from dismantling booby traps to building bridges. Each of the classes junior leader students receive is designed to make them more effective leaders.

Not all the school's subjects are technical. The newly-formed Leadership Department teaches students to think and act like leaders.

The department, headed by Col. John D. White, takes a positive attitude toward this task, as stated in the department's philosophy of leadership training:

"The vast majority of leaders are made, not born. . .As an art or skill, leadership can be learned. Given the time-proven principles, any individual can develop leadership capacity — limited only by his mental, moral and physical endowments; his willingness to study and learn and his courage to survive disappointments and face each day with renewed vigor and determination."

The Leadership Department undertakes the making of a leader early in the students' half-year tour at the Infantry School. The bulk of the department's leadership training is aimed at the junior leader students — officer candidates, non-commissioned officer candidates and Infantry officer basic students (newly commissioned officers receiving branch orientation).

Officer candidates receive 112 hours of instruction from the Leadership Department — 30 in actual leadership courses, the remainder in methods of instruction, effective writing and speaking, drill and command and physical fitness.

Starting leadership training early in the program is necessary to provide a foundation for the rest of the School's instruction, according to Major Fred W. Greene III, chief of operations of the department.

"We explain to the men what the traits of a leader are. Then the student must recognize what traits he's strong in, where he's weak, and develop himself," the major said.

In asking its students to make a critical self-appraisal, the department teaches them to view themselves in the light of traits believed to constitute an ideal leader. They are also urged to determine the effect of their actions on their classmates, and through this self-analysis to detect and improve weaknesses in

College Presidents and PMS's

Educators Sample ROTC Program

By PFC James Donerty

Educators from colleges and universities with recently initiated Army ROTC programs sampled Fort Benning's leadership development in a three-day orientation tour of ROTC training here.

The visitors included college presidents, deans and professors of military science.

Gen. James W. Wolfe, commanding general of the United States Continental Army Command, and Lt. Gen. John L. Throckmorton, commanding general of the Third United States Army, joined the staffs of the Training Center and Infantry School in explaining the importance of ROTC to the Army and the benefits to the participants.

Personality development was the theme stressed by Col. Lamar A. Welch, head of the Airborne Department, in an orientation lecture on Fort Benning's jump training.

Airborne training builds the confidence which is the source of both military and civilian leadership, Colonel Welch told the college administrators and teachers.

COLLEGE OFFICIALS TALK WITH PRE-ROTC CADET UNDERGOING TRAINING

The program is open to qualified graduates of ROTC.

He discussed the Infantry School's EDEX student response teaching system and the use of computer assisted instruction and television teaching.

He emphasized that the School's teaching techniques were comparable to those in the nation's largest colleges and universities.

Ranger training was demonstrated to the educators Monday and rifle marksmanship, physical conditioning, hand grenade and hand-to-hand combat training were on Tuesday's agenda.

The ROTC program is the largest single supplier of Army officers, this year providing 16,000 second lieutenants.

Following their commissioning, many of them receive eight weeks of Infantry Officer Basic Training at the Infantry School before going on to combat or staff assignments.

Included in the touring group were Dr. V. F. Gallina, president of Francis T. Nicholls State College, Thibodaux, La.; Col. John L. Mohl, professor of military science at Francis T. Nicholls State College; Dr. John X. Jamrich, president of Northern Michigan University, Marquette, Mich., and Lt. Col. James R. Sessler Jr., professor of military science at Northern Michigan.

Also making the trip were Dr. Frederick P. Whiddon, president of the University of South Alabama, Mobile, Ala., Maj. James E. their performance as leaders.

Solve Problems

Students also solve some of the knotty problems leaders face. "Train-lead" films (such as the one about the lieutenant's battlefield dilemma) picture young officers encountering problems, and six-man student groups discuss and present their solutions to their classmates.

The Leaders Reaction Course is another way the department makes leaders. Small student groups tackle a series of complex problems to test their problem-solving abilities. Each group member takes command on one of the tasks, and a trained observer rates their individual performances, and counsels them on their application of the leadership skills they have learned.

Students also gain leadership experience in field training and garrison situations.

During extensive tactics training, they lead attacks and plan defenses under the guidance of a School instructor. Each student has a chance to lead his peers, and profits from his own experiences as well as those of his classmates.

Garrison leadership, which involves administration of men and maintainance of equipment, rounds out the students' leadership training. In their candidate companies, students hold leadership positions ranging from company commander to squad leader; and their peers and supervisors rate their performances.

At the Infantry School, leadership training is serious business. Today's young students will soon bear the responsibility for men's lives, and that responsibility cannot be shouldered by a poorly-trained man. The School's Leadership Department plays a major role in providing our soldiers the high-quality leadership they deserve.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King
King's Pizza On Call

Certain powdered spices such as mustard, paprika and curry won't turn dark after opening if you keep them in the refrigerator.

A pineapple is at its best when it's dark golden yellow and its top leaves pull out easily. Pile chilled slices into a bowl, sprinkle with powdered sugar and provide toothpicks so patio guests can help themselves.

When boiling sweet corn on the cob, add a little sugar to the water to heighten flavor.

The egg-and-crumbs coating on cutlets or fish won't fall off during frying if you first chill the coated pieces for an hour.

Martini purists rinse the olive first to prevent any drop of brine from hurting the drink.

We're purists too, when it comes to maintaining our reputation for fine food and service. That's why dining at

Federal Funds for RFK Gravesite

What is the authority under which Department of Army is asking for federal funds for Robert Kennedy gravesite?

In what form was it presented to the Congress? What is the bill number?

How did this come about? Was it requested by the Nixon Administration or does it stem from the original request of President Johnson as an outgrowth of that? Who initially recommended this particular program?

The Department of the Army has responsibility for the care and maintenance of national cemeteries under Title 24 of the U.S. Code.

It was presented to the Public Works Subcommittee of the House and Senate Appropriations Committee of the Congress as a part of the cemeterial expenses in the Army appropriation of President Nixon's budget. We are not aware that a bill number has been assigned.

From the time of the burial of Senator Kennedy we were aware that more permanent arrangements would have to be made. The large number of visitors to the Cemetery and to the Kennedy gravesites—over seven million in the past year—will necessitate the construction of walkways, steps, access areas, etc., to prevent damage to other parts of the Cemetery. The government funds requested are to pay for the construction of these walkways, steps, etc. Consultation between representatives of the Kennedy family and DA lead to the recommended construction.

Representatives of the Kennedy family and the Department of the Army worked together on plans for this project.

Army Crime Rate

What are the crime rates during the past 10 years, i.e., armed robbery, murder, other than AWOLs? How often are USMJ Articles read to troops?

The only releasable crime rate available are the number of General Courts-martials for selected offenses during the period CY 1967-68. The rate for special and summary court-martials is not maintained at the Department of the Army.

GENERAL COURTS-MARTIAL
(Rate per thousand in parentheses)

OFFENSE	CY 1967		CY 1968

Murder	53(.04)	30(.02)	52(.03)	19(.01)
Manslaughter	29(.02)	20(.01)	69(.04)	43(.03)
Rape	36(.02)	22(.01)	24(.02)	11(.007)
Aggravated Assault	262(.16)	197(.13)	184(.12)	140(.09)
Robbery	87(.06)	69(.05)	70(.06)	51(.03)

Larceny over $50	228(.15)	189(.13)	350(.23)	270(.18)

All of the armed services are required by Article 137 of the UCMJ (10 U.S.C. 937) to explain the punitive articles and certain other relevant provisions of the UCMJ to servicemen within 6 days of their entry on active duty and again after six months of active duty and upon each reenlistment.

Chain of Command Photographs

Are Chain of Command Photographs required to be displayed in Company Areas? If so where do I get them?

There continues to be considerable misunderstanding about chain of command photographs—are they required, who provides them, what size and so forth. This is a commander's prerogative. AR 360-81 does not require chain of command displays. However, there are units and situations where these displays contribute to the CI effort. From time to time, various schemes to standardize production have been tried, but have usually resulted in waste and have been cumbersome to manage. The present system requires Post Signal Photo Labs to request copy negatives of Department of the Army officials from the Army Photographic Agency. Prints can be made in the number and sizes required. For commands desiring chain of command photographs of General Westmoreland, Chief of Staff, the official print is number P167878.

New Courts Martial Manual

The Manual for Courts-Martial, United States, 1969 (Revised Edition) will be effective 1 August 1969. It supercedes the current Manual for Courts-Martial, US, 1969. Revision of the Manual was necessitated by the passage of the Military Justice Act of 1968. Army-wide distribution of the revised Manual will be delayed until 1 September 1969.

Freedom in The Army

Yes, it is. Most servicemen know it and respect the fact that it must be that way. Some say there is little or no freedom in the Army and that a citizen gives up his civilian freedoms when he puts on a uniform. But that is an exaggeration. Army freedom is as close to civilian freedom as possible—and closer than in any other army in the world.

Some of our basic freedoms, in fact, remain entirely unaffected when we enter the Army; we retain the right to vote, to worship as we please, to own property and to read any newspaper or magazine we wish.

The freedoms to do and say what we will are affected. They are not abolished—only restricted somewhat more than they are in civilian life.

All these freedoms are the rewards of American citizenship—and are the soldier's responsibility to protect. That responsibility is the reason the restrictions on some of his own freedoms are necessary. This is not a complicated or new idea. Just as in civilian life, responsible situations often require restrictions. If a civilian job involves knowledge of government or business secrets, we voluntarily curb our right to free speech. And in any job at all we give up our freedom of action to the extent of being at work on time and doing as we are told while we are working.

Soldiering is serious business. Military life requires more stringent limitations on these freedoms than most civilian jobs. The military man carries different responsibilities than most civilians. Because he carries these responsibilities, he remains on duty at all times until released by his commanding officer—and even then he is subject to instant recall, if necessary.

The soldier is a member of the executive branch of the government, which is headed by the President. The President is the Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces, and the soldier works for his commander. The Armed Forces down to the individual fighting man are responsible for the security of the Nation. The serviceman cannot compromise that responsibility or interfere with that job. And this requires some restriction of freedoms.

The freedoms are not denied, and they are not restricted any further than necessary. But the soldier is disciplined. A military organization must maintain discipline to function. A soldier is therefore not allowed to disobey orders from his officers. He is not allowed to disobey orders from the Commander in Chief.

But at the same time there is nothing to stop this same serviceman from arguing—in private conversation and apart from his military duties—about the rights and wrongs of Executive policies. And there is nothing to prevent him from voting against those policies in an election.

These are the soldier's rights as a citizen and voter. And when the exercise of such rights does not interfere with the performance of his military duty, or the loyalty, discipline and morale of other troops, the Army has no desire to interfere with it. And it does not.

The American soldier is a responsible, free man.—ARMY DIGEST

Holes in Side of Banks Concern Safety Officer

—The post safety officer has expressed concern over a number of large holes or "caves" which have appeared in the side of banks adjacent to some of the dependent housing areas.

According to Jame E. Blount, the clay type soil found here will not support such digging without reinforcement.

Blount reports that his office has been informed that from time to time some children turn to digging as a form of recreation.

Within the past week, the safety office received a report of one such incident, where the walls collapsed, and a child was buried alive. Cries for help were heard by an officer in the area who came to the rescue. He was able to free the victim before the child suffocated.

Blount issued a plea to parents to impress upon their children the danger of such digging, especially in the sides of banks.

50th Company Candidates Seek 'Impossible Dream'

The Infantry Officer Candidates of 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Bde., "turned blue," a tradition in Officer Candidate School which marks the beginning of senior status.

The day's events were climaxed by the senior status formal party at the Fort Benning Officers Club. The theme of the party was "LaFantasia Impossible," (The Impossible Dream).

Developing a Spanish decor, the club was hung with crests of the Spanish noble families. Don Quixote on his horse with two windmills were designed with papier mache.

Blue lighting indicated the "turning blue."

Guests of honor were Col. and Mrs. Robert M. Piper, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Dennis J. Harron, Maj. and Mrs. Frank G. Shaw, Chaplain (Capt.) and Mrs. Phillip J. Cassibry, Capt. and Mrs. John O. Rowell and Lt. and Mrs. Peter D. Stanlee.

The Fourth of July inspired the patriotic theme for a coffee held in the company dayroom by the Officer Candidate Wives Club of the 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Bde.

Honored guests were Mrs. Robert M. Piper, wife of Col. Piper, brigade commander, and Mrs. Dennis J. Harron, wife of Lt. Col. Harron, commander of the 5th Bn.

Mrs. Harron was presented a gift by the club in appreciation of her assistance while their husbands have been in Officer Candidate School.

Lt. John Hook, senior tactical officer, spoke to the ladies about military transportation and the pay scale of second lieutenants.

The refreshment table was decked with red, white and blue. The centerpiece was a small black cannon holding a flower arrangement. Nametags were shaped as Uncle Sam hats.

Hostesses for the coffee were: Mrs. William Miller, Mrs. Clair Pallmer, Mrs. Howard Wright and Mrs. William Snodgrass.

Orientation Coffee Held For Wives of Officers

An orientation coffee for the wives of the members of Infantry Officer Advanced Course 6-69, 21st Co., 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB, was held at the Officers' Field Ration Mess.

"Approximately 150 wives attended the informal meeting," explained Mrs. David A. Talbert, wife of Capt. Talbert, 21st Co. commanding officer, "and all the wives had a chance to get acquainted."

The purpose of the coffee was to orient the wives, whose husbands began the nine-month advanced course June 17.

Lt. Col. William E. Mundy, 2nd Bn. commander, spoke to the ladies about the large number of students assigned to the battalion. He said it was necessary for the wives to help their husbands whenever possible and he recommended specific ways they could be of assistance. Colonel Mundy also gave information about Ft. Benning to the newly-arrived ladies.

Capt. Talbert introduced himself. He explained the wives program and encouraged all the ladies to be active in it. He told the ladies about the various functions they could attend and introduced the members of his staff.

Guests for the occasion were Mrs. Sidney O. Berry, wife of Brig. Gen. Berry, asst. commandant, USAIS, and Mrs. William E. Mundy, wife of the 2nd Student Bn. commander.

Family Finances Require 'Checkout'

NEW YORK (NAPS) — We're all space travelers here on this slow-moving vehicle called Earth, at the midpoint of the solar-orbital flight called 1969.

It's an appropriate time to perform the technotalk of the moon flights are called "update" and "checkout." Do any of your systems need adjustment to assure that you will achieve the goals you've programmed for your family this year?

In financial terms, you might think of your income as the vehicle for arriving at your destination. But, like a space capsule, the vehicle itself can't arrive at the proper destination unless it is properly programmed. There must be a sound flight plan.

Your management of your income is the programming which in the end will determine how far your income capsule will carry your family in the direction of your goals for 1969.

For the midpoint checkout, feed some basic information into your computer. You actually have three incomes, the first of which is called gross income.

The gross income is the salary you list on your tax returns and use when you're bragging or groaning. But you can't spend it because you never receive it.

Taxes and other deductions may reduce that gross of, say $500 per month to $400, or what is called your net income.

After you've paid for such essentials as food and shelter from net income, you're left with about $125. Consumer finance experts call this sum your discretionary income. You have some choice in how it's spent.

Up to this point, your maneuvers have been controlled. Now like the commander of a space ship, you can make some independent decisions.

The National Consumer Finance Association, a nationwide organization representing about 1,100 state-regulated companies that make consumer loans, suggests that you spend no more than half the uncommitted sum for new obligations.

For example, if ten per cent of your month's wages is free and clear discretionary income, don't obligate yourself to spending more than five per cent on new credit buying. Then in future months, you'll still have five per cent free and clear.

Keep the goal of your mission in mind and don't make diversions. Don't waste your money's energy by trivial spending.

It sometimes happens that the choice of how to spend discretionary income comes down to which creditor to pay first. When this signal flashes, many people consider a loan from a bank or state-regulated consumer finance firm which will allow them to phase their finances, consolidating their debts. Instead of paying ten creditors, for example, they only pay one.

Sometimes, this is the only way a family can reduce its monthly payments to an amount that will fit its budget. However, debt consolidation does not reduce the amount of debt's pull on your income vehicle. As a matter of fact, it increases the total debt with the addition of new interest charges.

What this maneuver does accomplish is to reduce the monthly outlay by spreading payments over a longer period. In addition to synchronizing your budget, this helps to protect that energy reserve known as your good credit rating, which might be jarred out of operation by continued juggling of bills and creditors.

Before using credit, it is wise to check with the experts on how much financial thrust you need to borrow and how much you can handle. One of the best sources of free advice is the manager of a state-regulated consumer finance office.

Like the spacemen's back-up team on the ground, he can assess the options for you, tell you how big a payment you can safely make, whether you buy on credit from a retailer or borrow money and shop with cash.

Chef's Corner

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Summer refreshments might start with soup delicately frosty for a change — buttermilk-tangy too.

Garnished with croutons, slivered almonds or a dash of curry powder, as you please, chilled tangy pea soup even looks cool. Pour it into prechilled bowls and serve it icy cold.

To go with this chilled soup, try a pair of dainty, open-faced sandwiches. One sandwich spread features shrimp with blue cheese, green pepper, pimiento and ripe olives; the other lobster, celery and lemon.

Together, soup and sandwiches make a light collation, sure to charm a ladies luncheon group.

TANGY PEA SOUP

Yield: 3¼ cups. 1 can (11¼ oz.) condensed green pea soup, 2 cups buttermilk, garlic- buttered croutons or toasted slivered almonds or curry powder (optional).

In a bowl, blend together soup and buttermilk; cover and chill well. Serve in chilled bowls. Garnish with croutons, almonds or a dash of curry powder, if desired.

LOBSTER SPREAD

Yield: 2 cups. 1 can (5 oz.) lobster, drained and chopped, 1 cup chopped celery, ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon onion salt, ⅛ teapoon pepper and 1-3 cup dairy sour cream.

In a bowl toss together lobster, celery, lemon rind and juice, onion salt and pepper. Gently blend in sour cream.

DNRI Adds a Course For Infantry Officers

SP4 Ron Johnson

The Department of Non-Resident Instruction, USAIS, has added another correspondence course to its curriculum.

The course is called Infantry Officers Basic Course (Resident — Non-Resident) (C-1). The resident component of the course has been activated in 24th Co., 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB.

The Classes are patterned closely after the IOBC course for active duty officers, according to Gus Luckett, executive officer Army Correspondence Committee.

This course enables the National Guard or Reserve Officer to acquire the necessary credits to be promoted to captain.

Its purpose, according to the USAIS Correspondence Course Catalog is "to provide officers with a working knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of Infantry platoon leaders and to assist officers transferring in the Infantry from other branches to attain branch proficiency."

The course is divided into four phases. The phases have a total of 54 subcourses. The first phase is correspondence. The following three phases may be taken by correspondence or by resident work.

Each phase of instruction on the resident level is two weeks long. The correspondence equivalent takes much longer to complete. The student may take any phase as correspondence or in residence, as he chooses, so long as the phases are taken in order.

This option is available so that non-active duty officers, many of whom hold civilian jobs, and cannot get away for long periods of time, can still obtain the necessary credits.

The only requirement is that the student complete the course within two years of the entry date. Students may receive credit for certain subcourses by passing an examination on the subject without completing the instruction.

The course is one of many offered by the Department of Non-Resident Instruction. The courses are available to all eligible personnel completely free of charge. Everything necessary to complete the course is provided, including postage free envelopes for use in submitting lessons for grading.

Many of the subcourses include special texts prepared at the Infantry School. Students are allowed to retain the texts after they have completed the subcourse.

The 24th Co., 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB presently has 48 members who are taking the last three phases of the IOBC (res.—non-res.) (C-1) course as residents. The majority of these are National Guard members who will spend six weeks at Fort Benning then return to homes throughout the United States.

Former Assistant Commandant

Advanced Course Hears General Speak on MAAG

A former Infantry School assistant commandant returned to Fort Benning to address four Infantry Officer Advanced Courses on "The Role of Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG)."

Brig. Gen. (ret.) Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant from April, 1962, to May, 1963, addressed advanced classes 3, 4, 5 and 6 July 9 in Marshall Auditorium.

General Reynolds graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1933, receiving his commission in the Infantry.

During World War II, General Reynolds fought in the Philippines, evading the Japanese in the mountains of Luzon until February, 1945, when he joined the U.S. forces which landed on the coast of the island.

Gen. Goers Observes Training

Brigadier General Melvin A. Goers observed Fort Benning Infantry training July 2 during an orientation visit to the U.S. Army Infantry Center and School.

General Goers, director, Reserve Officer Training Corps — National Defense Cadet Corps, Headquarters, U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., received a special briefing on Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) training here.

Later he observed Army physical conditioning activities and instruction in rifle marksmanship, drill and ceremonies and guard duty.

He met with cadets from the 7th Battalion, 7th Training Brigade, and watched future officers undergoing leadership training.

Captain's Assignment

Mission Impossible? Find 325 Single Girls for Cadets

By 2nd Lt. James Hopson

Imagine trying to find 325 single girls between the ages of 17 and 23, who had high school diplomas and were all available the evening of June 19. It doesn't sound easy, does it? It wasn't.

The job fell to Capt. Joseph R. Barkley, Punxsutawney, Pa. He had to provide 325 young ladies to accompany cadets of the United States Military Academy to a "hop" held during the cadets' three-day orientation visit to the U.S. Army Infantry School, June 18-21.

How does one find 325 eligible young ladies who meet the requirements stated above and are all available the same evening? Barkley's answer was hard work and an early start. He began his search early in April, but in spite of all his planning and efforts, he was still looking for dates the afternoon of the dance, over two-and-a-half months later.

Barkley, working for the Infantry Center's Protocol Division combed a 50-mile radius from Fort Benning to compile his date list. The assistant dean of women at Auburn University offered the names of 40 coeds attending summer school there. Robert F. Fischer, Troup County commissioner, found 15 dates from LaGrange. The Gung Ho Club of Eufaula provided 16 more.

Most of the girls, however, came from the Columbus-Fort Benning area. Barkley sent letters of inquiry to local girls who attended a similar function last year, inviting them to this year's hop.

He contacted the principals of Columbus, Baker and Hardaway High Schools for names of graduating senior girls interested in attending.

He sought secretaries and receptionists from local business. The Cotillion Club and Columbus College each provided several names. And the Officer and NCO Wives Clubs provided names of girls who lived on post.

To each of the girls whose names he received, Barkley sent a letter of application, determing their interest in attending the hop, and requesting their age, height in heels, address and phone number and their parents' permission to attend. From the returned applications, Barkley matched the girls with cadets using an elaborate card file he developed.

"I tried to put the girls with cadets who were four inches taller and one to three years older," he said.

The girls were then formally invited to the dance.

Another problem loomed. How could the 325 girls find their 325 cadet dates and vice versa? The captain solved it by requesting that the girls report to one of 16 pre-designated introduction tables, where cadet "hop managers" introduced the cadets to the young ladies they would escort.

The end result? The cadets praised their Fort Benning hop as the most enjoyable they attended on their tour of six Army installations, Barkley said.

And if you ever need a date . . .

New Calling Device To Simplify Future Field Commander's Job

US ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENT COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — The plight of the field commander of tomorrow may be made somewhat easier by a communication system as simple to use as the modern-day telephone.

Envisioned by the Combat Developments Command (CDC), Ft. Belvoir, Va., the system would be a digital calling device developed as part of the Army's total tactical communications link.

As simple as direct dialing, the proposed system would allow commanders to communicate by using directory numbers which would be peculiar to the individual subscribers.

Relying on occasional land lines and possible satellite relays, the system would be capable of diverse operational conditions as well as being highly mobile, reliable, secure and flexible enough to handle all modes of information (i.e., speech, teletype, facsimile and data).

Designed to be multi-channel and fully duplex, the system would also provide single channel accessibility for mobile users in detached locations. Possible applications of this would be commanders or forward observers being able to dial into the system.

Requirements for the proposal stem from a four-nation project, MALLARD, designed to standardize and provide vastly improved tactical communication equipment.

MALLARD is scheduled to fulfill the needs of the joint U.S. tactical forces in land warfare situations by the 1975-85 timeframe as well as those needs of Australia, Britain and Canada, the partner MALLARD nations.

To accomplish its mission MALLARD is relying on CDC to establish the materiel and developmental requirements of the proposed system. In this second of four phases, which began recently, will be an evaluation and technical testing stage to determine the feasibility of the proposed system.

It will rely heavily on studies and information gathered from the first phase, and set up requirements for the engineering and user tests, followed by production and issue of the developed product.

Once developed, MALLARD will contain a catalog of equipment comprising a revolutionary tactical communication system available to the U. S. joint services and its MALLARD partner nations. The digital dialing radio-telephone will be a part of that system.

Actual deployment of the system will depend upon the individual user services. CDC has expressed a requirement for MALLARD equipment to serve from field Army to Brigade level, and feels that MALLARD should meet the needs of modern tactical warfare while at the same time representing the most complex research and development efforts between the U. S., Britain, Canada and Australia undertaken to date.

Graduations, Awards Mark Weekat Candidate Bde.

Thomas J. Ridge has become the first member of the 8th Student Battalion here to attain a 100 per cent rating on leadership abilities.

He was distinguished and leadership graduate of Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course (NCOC) Class No. 37-69.

Now a staff sergeant, Ridge is a graduate cum laude of Harvard University, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in government. Before entering the service late last year, he also studied one year at Dickinson School of Law, in Carlisle, Pa.

According to the leadership committee of the U. S. Army Infantry School's Leadership Department, Ridge was the first student in his battalion to be rated 100 per cent in leadership.

Four Candidates of the 96th Officer Candidate Company 6th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, received awards in ceremonies at Stuart Field.

The recipients were OC Charles F. Nicholls, Army Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster; OC Charles H. Cox, Army Commendation Medal, OC Sidney L. Coward, Army Commendation Medal, and Jeno O. Hidvegi, Army Commendation Medal. The medals were awarded for meritorious service.

M-Sgt. Rhodes Speaks

"It is a privilege to lead men in the Army," said M-Sgt. Rex Rhodes, the NCOIC S3 Evaluation, The Candidate Brigade, as he spoke at the graduation exercises of Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Class No. 39-69 in Marshall Auditorium here July 1.

The distinguished graduate of the class was Robert C. Biser (Frederick, Md.). For his achievement, Biser received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the U. S. Army Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, an engraved Association of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque, and was promoted to staff sergeant.

The 118 new sergeants were graduated from the 83rd Company, 8th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade.

Winner of the Tiger Tactics award here June 30 was the 96th Company, 9th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade.

The orange streamer was affixed to the 96th's guidon in a command retreat ceremony at Stewart Field. Lt. Col. Alexander H. Hunt, deputy director of the Company Operations Department of the U. S. Army Infantry School, presented the award to Officer Candidate Ralph Fuller, parade company commander. Col. Robert M. Piper, commander of the brigade, was present for the event.

To earn the Tiger Tactics award, a company has to display a genuine eagerness and ability to learn under a variety of conditions in the classroom and in the field. The company is rated at the conclusion of each tactics course over a period of seven weeks.

Given for outstanding motivation, enthusiasm, tactical proficiency and high scholarship, the streamer represents 219 hours of tactics instruction. The unit is the only company in the battalion presently displaying the award.

Commanded by Capt. John O. Rowell, more than 90 per cent of the members of the 96th Company are college graduates.

Cobras Providing Close Air Support

CAMP EAGLE, Vietnam (101st IO) — There's a snake in the sky, spitting deadly venom at the enemy in support of the paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division.

The "snake" is any one of a fleet of Cobra helicopters, piloted by members of the 4th Bn., 77th Arty., an Aerial Rocket Artillery (ARA) battalion.

Basically, the Cobra is a gunship, but in the ARA battalion, its mission is the same as that of tube artillery — close fire support for the infantry.

Since the battalion arrived in Vietnam last October, it has significantly increased the scope of Div Arty support.

Gunships had been mainly used for reconnaissance missions and as escorts on combat assaults. But the ARA gunships function as tube artillery, where tube artillery, for various reasons, is less effective.

"We take up the slack where tube artillery can't be employed," says Lt. Col. Lewis J. Henderson of Dothan, Ala., the battalion commander.

"Map inaccuracies and indirect fire of tube artillery are conducive to error," Henderson said. "ARA is direct fire, providing fire right in on the target with first round."

ARA is accurate enough so that it can be directed on the enemy sometimes no farther than 200 feet from friendly troops.

Each Cobra — a refined, speedy helicopter designed as a gunship — is equipped with a variety of explosive projectiles. Its most deadly armament is the 2.75-inch rocket, and it carries 76 of them.

Then there is the 40mm grenade cannon, and the 7.62mm "minigun." There are several combinations of these arms used on gunships, but each enunciates deadly firepower each time it speaks.

One of the advantages of ARA is that certain terrain features, particularly mountains and heavily-canopied jungles, require sophisticated firing techniques from tube artillery, but are relatively easy targets for ARA.

"The ARA is a highly-successful, extremely important addition to the artillery," says Col. Lloyd J. Picou DivArty Commander.

"It came here as general support artillery, but its practical use has been as direct fire support artillery. The most successful technique we have used is to place sections of ARA with forwaru battalion command posts for better availability and coordination."

Dispersion is the word for ARA sections. They are in six basic locations in the division AO, and many times they can be found on almost any of the divisions'a fire bases.

ARA works in teams of three ships — two Cobras and a Huey, modified as a gunship with rocket pods. The Huey acts as a command and control ship with the section leader aboard.

As one Cobra swoops down, the other hovers above, and then they repeatedly exchange positions until the mission is accomplished. Meanwhile, the Huey hovers above, directing and adjsting fires, and if need be, comes in to expend its rockets.

At night, the ARA puts on a pyrotechnic display, spitting out a stream of red tracers from its mini-guns and expelling rockets with a bright yellow flash and trail, and then a bright orange burst.

The craft comes earthward dropping its load, and then darts upward to make way for its section partner.

Day or night, in almost any weather conditions the ARA follows the golden maxim of artillery: put fire on the eoemy no matter what.

Wide Awake Point Man

CAMP EVANS, Vietnam (101st IO) — In the jungles of Vietnam, blue wires can mean "stop" as surely as orange signs do back in the world.

Pfc. John Braxton of Philadelphia, Pa., found that out recently as he took his first turn walking point for A Co., 1st Bn., 506th Abn. Inf., of the 101st Airborn Division.

Braxton was leading the company on a reconnaissance in force mission on an overgrown hillside in the A Shau Valley. The thick undergrowth made checking for booby traps extremely difficult.

Noticing the difficulty, Pfc. John Herber of Harleysville, Pa., Braxton's slack man, "decided to start looking harder myself."

"We were moving up a slight incline when I noticed a strand of blue commo wire running into the underbrush," Braxton said. "It was just like a bright blue neon sign that said 'stop.'"

The two Currahees traced the wire to its source and found a firing device. They cut the wire at the device, then followed it the other way until it disappeared under leaves on the trail they had just been walking on. Spreading the leaves apart, they found a buried explosive charge.

Entertainers Hitchhike To Front Lines

CHU LAI, Vietnam (AMERICAL IO) — The "sound of music" gets forward area welcoming treatment. Soldiers stationed on forward area bases and LZ's groove to the come-on-strong-big-beat sounds.

Sometimes the entertainers hitchhike copter rides or take to the highways by 2½ ton trucks to get to the forward areas.

"The main emphasis is placed on getting the entertainers and entertainment to the troops in the field," said Sergeant (SGT) William E. Hutchinson (West Palm Beach, Fla.), director and non-commissioned officer in charge of the Americal Division Special Services entertainment Branch. He is also a percussionist for the Americal's "Luther T. Stone Music Society."

"The field soldiers are the ones needing entertainment most. Sometimes months pass before they can see any live shows. We realize their appreciation through their favorable response," added the former Marshall Graot Orchestra performer.

Numerous USO shows from Saigon, which are comprised of soldiers stationed in Vietnam, tour the LZ's and artillery fire bases.

"We have to procure transportation through whatever means we can for the command touring performers. Sometimes that is a very big job in itself," said Specialist 4 (SP4) Fisher C. Deservallos (Nashville, Tenn.), the Luther T. Stone's lead guitarist who formerly was a songwriter for Tree Publishing Co.

The Hollywood Overseas Entertainment Committee selects and approves talent from celebrity sources to tour Vietnam. These performers appear on a non-pay basis; they donate their talent to the American fighting man.

"We have had handshake tours by Pam Moffitt and Jill Towsend who visited the troops. Pam has appeared on 'Ironside' and Jill co-stars in 'Cimarron Strip,'" said SP4 Thomas D. Cronen (Portland, Ore.) a pianist who directed musicals for University of Portland.

"Also we have had the famous Troy Donahue and Sebastian Cabot talk with the forward area soldiers," concluded Cronon.

The Americal USO Special Services has two all-local soul-rock groups, the "Joint Chiefs of Staff" and the aforementioned Luther T. Stone Music Society," that tour the LZ's as a full-time job.

"I know about the troops in the field—it hasn't been too long since I came out and was assigned to play bass guitar for the Luther T. Stone group," said SP4 William H. Smith (Winston-Salem, N.C.), who formerly performed with a gospel group called the "Royal Travellers."

"Troops in the field are happy to see any live entertainment, you know that by their actions, and it makes you play much harder."

NV Sapper Gets Zaped

FIRE BASE EAGLE'S NEST, Vietnam (101st IO) — An NVA sapper got the surprise of his life as he tried to weaken the defense of this 101st Airborne division fire base by cutting the wires of trip flares on the perimeter.

Eagle's Nest, high on a mountain top near the A Shau Valley, is secured not only by its difficult approaches but by a complete perimeter defense.

Some of the flares set up are of the standard kick variety, but a few are the pressure-release type, set to go off at the slightest jiggle. The NVA sapper ran foul of one of these, prepared by the 1st Bn., 506th Abn. Inf., reconnaissance platoon.

The sapper, wearing a loin cloth and carrying only a knife, crawled into position and cut the wire of a conventional kick flare. He hid and set it off in safety, then repeated the trick three more times.

His daring worked four straight times, and then he found the wire of the pressure trip flare. As soon as he touched his knife to the wire, the flare went off, and he lay bathed in light.

"DEAD SPIRITS" . . . Young, beautiful and talented, Jane Fonda is always among the top box office favorites. Jane is featured in American International Pictures soon-to-be-released thriller, "Spirits of the Dead," filmed in color and also starring Brigitte Bardot, Alain Delon, Peter Fonda and Terence Stamp. The film was produced and directed by Federico Fellini, Louis Malle and Roger Vadim.

Movie Synopsis

ON MY WAY TO THE CRUSADES, I MET A GIRL WHO . . . A colorful pageant full of action and stunning settings. It takes a satirical look at the medieval knighthood, with a bawdy inspection of the less chivalrous aspects of love-making at the time of the Crusades. You will laugh all the way to and from the Crusades.

GOLDFINGER —James Bond (Sean Connery), suave, indestructible agent 007, is assigned to investigate the secret empire of millionaire Auric Goldfinger (Gert Frobe), whose ruthless greed for gold is exceeded only by his disrespect for human life. Uncovering Goldfinger's plan to rob Fort Knox, Connery is captured by the criminal's huge manservant, a cold blooded killer name Oddjob, and almost killed in Goldfinger's weird laboratory by a deadly laser beam.

IT TAKES ALL KINDS — Add the name of Barry Sullivan to the roster of gentelemen crooks and masterminds whose genteel felonies are quite rewarding to his recluse collection of art objects. He's the rich landowner who is a connoisseur of fine art — except he doesn't buy it — he has it stolen or steals it himself. A doublecross, some unexpected plot twists and sustained suspense are in store for you.

A FINE PAIR — Rock Hudson and Claudia Cardinale turn New York, Rome and the Austrian Alps into a great big romantic playground in this romantic mystery. Rock and Claudia play a New York police detective asd a mixed-up Italian jewel thief, respectively. He was a good, law-abiding citizen, but she didn't hold that against him.

Sand Hill Display Depicts America

By PFC C. W. Hilburn

"When an American says that he loves his country, he means not only that he loves the New England hills, the prairies glistening in the sun, the wide and rising plains, the great mountains and the sea. He means that he loves an inner air, an inter light in which freedom lives and in which a man can draw a breath of self respect."

This appropriate theme for National Independence Day was expressed by Adlai Stevenson, former ambassador to the United Nations. It is part of a patriotic display for the month of July greeting visitors to the Sand Hill Library.

Pvt. Donato L. Moreno arranged the display in order to characterize the American nation and its people.

A former art instructor at the American University in Washington, D. C., Moreno organized a series of paintings, charts and books around the American states, the Americans, the presidency, the American Arts, the American woman and American Nobel Prize winners.

"The American States" is a series of paintings depicting each state of the union in its most natural setting.

"The Americans" is a collection of biographies of men in the fields of art, business, literature, education, humor and politics.

"The American Woman," is a collection of famous works, as depicted in colonial times, 19th century and modern day.

A biography of each president and a book entitled "Washington, Magnificent Capital" by Eric Sevareid and Robert Smith portrays every president from George Washington to Richard Nixon.

Moreno is presently on the staff of the Sand Hill Library. An art and finance graduate of the American University in 1967, Moreno is awaiting orders which will send him to Defense Language School in the fall.

The Sand Hill facility, the official art library for the post, is open daily from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.

July 4 Holiday Proves Success

By PFC Lee Myers

No Fort Benning serviceman died in a traffic accident last weekend. The Fourth of July celebration was a success.

On post, the events at Eubanks Field entertained many families and soldiers.

The buddy seat ride up and down the Airborne Department's 250-foot tower attracted long lines all day. Each buddy seat is lifted to the top of the tower and released. Then a parachute slows the drop as the chute is guided down between cables.

The shriek of the runners streaking down the cables followed by the "whump" of the stop were background sounds all day, along with the Beatles, Sousa marches and patriotic songs.

Over at the booth area, operated by the Youth Activities Council, a young girl in a bikini kept falling into a tank of water. A soldier would step up to a line to try throwing a ball 50 feet and through a tire.

If the ball did go through the tire, an obliging soldier who had volunteered to work in the booth would pull a lanyard. The girl, sitting on a chair four feet above a water tank, would tip toward and fall.

Showtime on two stages, the Pensacola Naval Choir, the 283rd Army Band, the Infantry Chorus and sport parachutists free falling from 8,000 feet interested the crowd through the afternoon.

The Medal of Honor Mini-Marathon was run in the morning but still the temperature slowed many runners. Nick Costes from Troy (Ala.) State Uniersity won the race with a time over the exhausting 10-mile course of 56 minutes, 55 seconds.

Last year's winner, Bruce LaBuddle of Atlanta Track Club, was second with a time of 58 minutes, 13 seconds. Third was James Knight, also of Atlanta Track Club, at 59 minutes, 20 seconds.

Both the U. S. Army Infantry Center and The Candidate Brigade held individual competition in physical condition proficiency, military appearance, military knowledge and the manual of arms.

First overall in the individaul events from the Infantry Center was SSgt. Arthur Bledsoe, 41st Co., 4th Stu. Bn., TSB. First overall from The Candidate Brigade was Officer Candidate Carlisle Roach, 53rd Co., 5th Bn., TCB.

Second and third overall from the Infantry Center were SSgt. Willie Wilson, Co. D, 5th Bn., 1st Bde., USATC, Infantry, and SSgt. Noah Kennedy, Co. B, 7th Bn., 2nd Bde., USATC.

Second and third overall from The Candidate Brigade were NCOC Donald Probasco, 74th Co., 7th Bn., TCB, and O. C. Walter Wells, 61st Co., 6th Bn., TCB.

Veteran of Vietnam Stars In Training Film at Post

By Dave Leonard

A Vietnam veteran is the star of a training film entitled "Night Vision Techniques" recently produced at Fort Benning.

The film, which is subtitled "Vistas Impossible," tells the story of a reconnaissance patrol gathering information of an "enemy" mortar position.

For Sgt. Boyd Morris Jr., 24, the film's star, the film was a first before the cameras, but not before the stagelights. The show's director was Pat Fay.

In high school, Sgt. Morris played lead roles in the musicals "Three Coins in a Fountain" and "Flower Drum Song."

In the Army film, he had a silent part as do the rest of the cast, all members of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Ten of the men, including Morris, were cast as a patrol, the rest as substitutes and aggressors.

Fay, cameraman Pete Voutsas and Capt. Ralph Wald, Infantry School Weapons Department, explained the technique.

Since most color filming in Hollywood or studio locations involves artificial lighting, the film is balanced for true color under the indoor lights, not for sunlight. For sunlight shooting, a filter is placed over the lens to compensate and maintain the proper color balance.

For "night scenes," the filter is removed. This results in the bluish cast. The film is underexposed, causing the effect of darkness.

Morris is seen only once in daylight, when he is briefed on the mission of his patrol. The rest of the patrol is "in the dark" for the entire film.

For the film, the blond haired, blue-eyed Morris, a native of Tennessee, got a new name and a promotion, as the role called for a "Sgt. King."

Morris' ability and cooperative attitude led several officers to comment that they wished they had a whole platoon of soldiers like him.

Morris took the praise and work calmly and quietly, relaxing after work frequently by going fishing at King's Pond on the post. (The similiary in names are only a coincidence, Morris notes.)

In Vietnam, Morris was a mortar platoon sergeant with a unit of the 196th Infantry Brigade. He said he led a few patrols during his year there.

Assisting in the filming were two officers who serve as technical advisers on the night-vision techniques and equipment depicted in the film.

Second Lt. Richard Ambrose, an instructor with the Infantry School Weapons Dept., and 2nd Lt. Charles Gragnani, of the Ranger Dept., supervised the month-long filming.

A site on Upatoi Creek also was used to show techniques of stream crossing.

One of the problems that caused a few headaches was haircuts, Fay explaind the difficulty: If a man gets a real close haircut, viewers are going to ask where, on a four-hour mission, did a barber ever come from?"

Discussions between officers settled the difficulty, and the soldier-actors "stayed in character" with haircuts of the same length until work was completed.

ABC Will Regularly Televise 'Movie of Week' Made for TV

"Movie of the Week," a new format for television entertainment programming, which ABC-TV began developing two years ago, will be introduced to the viewing public this fall on Tuesday nights 8:30-10 p.m. NYT.

There are 25 original 90-minute movies made expressly for television which will be seen in the weekly series. Their scope ranges through comedy, drama, action-adventure, film biography and mystery-suspense.

"What we are trying to do is broaden the base of the familiar television anthologies and movies-for-television," said Barry Diller, ABC vice president, Feature Films and Program Development — East Coast, who is in charge of this most costly and complex series commitment in network history.

"First, the 90-minute form provides us with the opportunity to do justice to that special echelon of story ideas which don't quite work in the standard one and two-hour television program forms.

"Secondly, unlike previous movies-for-television packages, 'Movie of the Week' is drawing its films from several production companies," Diller said. "and coupling the individual movie to the company best equipped to produce it. This coupling takes into account not only the production company's experience with certain story formats, but also its ability to enlist the talents of the most appropriate producers, writers and performing talent.

"We view 'Movie of the Week' as an excellent opportunity to further expand the scope of network television, particularly by filming some of the interesting stories which could not be accommodated by regular series programs because of their fixed casts and linear story formats. At the same time we have been attempting to build into each program maximum viewer appeal, which can hold its own as a competitive alternative to the continuing series form."

Extensive research was relied on during all stages of preparation of "Movie of the Week." Among the specific studies were: What kind of pictures do viewers want to see on television, and why? And, is there greater audience response to comedy, drama, mystery or science fiction?

The result of this exploration is the broad spectrum of movies scheduled among the 25 programs. There is the comedy-western, "Over-the-Hill-Gang;" the science fiction, "The Immortal;" the Johnny Cash film biography, "I Walk the Line;" the sensitive contemporary drama, "The Ballad of Andy Crocker;" the stylistic action adventure, "The Monk."

Of the 25 films scheduled for the upcoming season, 13 already have been completed. The balance are now either in production or preproduction stages. The network is now viewing the rushes of pictures made on the sets of Hollywood's major studios. Film crews currently are in Madrid shooting the mystery-suspense film, "Honeymoon with a Stranger." On the Mediterranean island of Malta, production will soon be concentrated on the action comedy, "Mr. Jericho."

The true determination and guts of an athlete show up best on the playing field. Here he must excell or fail by himself. The hours of practice and preparation for the big moment are gone. And the recent playing field performances of Jim Ryun, the gutsy little miler from Kansas, seem to say that the track star's days of glory are over.

In three successive meets, Ryun has lost to Marty Liquori of Villanova each time, first in the mile, then in the three mile event, and finally, at the National AAU championship this past week he lost out in the mile again. Not only did he fail to win his favorite event there, but he didn't even finish the race. He quit at the start of the second quarter and left the stadium, refusing to talk to reporters until much later.

Inside every competitor there must be a winning spark, a drive that keeps the legs pushing beyond endurance. Ryun strove to become the best miler in the world, and in the past few years he showed the world that unfailing champion's drive.

But no one can last forever, especially in track, and Jim Ryun may have run his last race. When that spark dies and you begin to feel the pain building up inside of you, physical and mental, you know it's time to relinquish the throne to someone else. Physical endurance is part of the price a runner must pay and the many miles Ryun runs each day can only help him up to a point. Ryun's trademark is his finishing kick that sprints him past anyone who might have been foolish enough to set the pace. That kick may still be there, but until he can bring back the "I can catch him" spirit and forget his recent attitude of "He's too far ahead of me," the days of Jim Ryun are numbered.

We can applaud the fine efforts he has shown in beating the world's best, but it would be a shame to see him keep losing now that his touch has gone. When a performer doesn't have it any more, there is something cruel in watching him and knowing he's going to be defeated. Perhaps Ryun will make a comeback, but if not, let him bow out while he's ahead of the pack.

The Return of Speedy Gonzalez

Some sports stars, however, just can't take the hint of Father Time. A rare few, in fact, behave as if there were no such thing as time and even seem to grow outlandishly younger with each passing season. The most absurd — and wonderful — example of this phenomenon is baseball's Satchel Paige, a gentleman in his late '60's (at least) whom the Atlanta Braves hired as a coach a few seasons ago so he could have enough time in the majors to qualify for his pension. You just can't please some folks, though. Not content to coach, the incredible Mr. Paige began badgering the front office to let him play ball again, at his old position—the pitcher's mound. Satchel must not have been paying any attention when the Voice of Authority said pitching was a young man's game.

Second only to Mr. Paige for refusing to accept the rocking chair in the sports world is tennis player Pancho Gonzales. (He might have been first, but he was born too late; he's a mere youngster of forty-one.) Gonzales was once the undisputed king of the courts and in Wimbledon last week he suddenly reverted to the form that made him a legend in the tennis world. In his third go-round at Wimbledon, this greying, grandfatherly legend defeated one of America's finest players in Charlie Pasarell, setting two records in the process.

The final score of the match was 22-24, 1-6, 16-14, 6-3 and 11-9. The first set tied for the longest in Wimbledon singles history. The full 112 games they played and the five hours and twenty minutes it took them broke the length-of-play records set in 1953.

The aging professional geared everything toward the one championship that had eluded him over the years, the Wimbledon. Past his prime and constantly being beaten by younger players on their way up, Gonzales showed the world what might have been if Open Tennis had been a reality ten years ago. The professional road tour with which he was associated brought the thrill of championship tennis to small towns all over the world when he was the true master, and between 1950 and 1960, if Pancho Gonzales lost a single set, it was news indeed. After the first two sets, the match was finally called because of darkness and Gonzales had one lone night to rest his weary legs. When play resumed the next day, he was all over the courts like an eighteen-year-old, and when it was all over, the 15,500 fans and his fellow tennis players gave him a standing ovation, knowing they had witnessed one of the finest displays of raw determination in the history of sports.

U.S. Marksmanship Unit Shooters Impress Iron Curtain Countries

By Marian Jones

When President Nixon travels to Romania next month he may find his public relations program already underway — courtesy of the men of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Ft. Benning, Ga.

These U.S. shooters returned recently from championship competitions in which they represented their country in matches in Norway, Switzerland, Sweden, Germany and Italy as well as the 12th Romanian Championships in Bucharest, Romania and the Grand Prix Brno in Brno Czechoslovakia.

In addition to impressing the people of the free nations with their shooting skill, open friendliness and youthfulness these ambassadors were wildly received in Czechoslovakia and Romania.

This year marked the first time that U.S. shooters were invited to attend the Romanian Championships. In Bucharest during the opening ceremonies our shooters received the largest ovation of any of the competitors, including those from the host country. The Romanians went out of their way to chat with and congratulate the winners.

The U.S. team received front page coverage in Bucharest newspapers and one paper prominently featured an interview with Col. Robert F. Bayard, unit commander. Sgt. Jim Beck, one of the teams champion shooters was featured in an interview on Romanian television. The Americans were housed in a first-class hotel in Bucharest and were treated to performances in the Romanian legitimate theater, the European boxing championships and sight seeing tours. Eighteen countries were present at the Romanian matches including practically all of the Communist countries except Russia and Communist China.

In Czechoslovakia where the U.S. team was making its second appearance at the Grand Prix de Brno, the matches were attended by 3,000 to 4,000 people. Fifteen countries entered the competition but conspicuous by their absence were shooters from Russia, Poland, East Germany and Hungary. A silhouette of Sgt. Beck, last year's Grand Prix winner was used by the Czechs to publicize this year's competition. Also in this Iron Curtain country each member of the U.S. team was given a memento of the match ranging from gifts of chinaware to bouquets of roses.

In all the countries they visited, the team conducted shooting clinics showing U.S. techniques to shooters of other countries. Shooting manuals prepared by the unit were also very much in demand as well as pins and stickers showing the team.

Col. Bayard was particularly impressed by the Olympic flavor that the Romanians gave to their championship. The spectacle of the flags of the 18 competing countries flying in peaceful competition with the shooters intermingling and exchanging ideas puts a chink in the curtain, a small one but a beginning.

Shooters Will Compete In Little World Games

Marksmen from the Trap, Skeet, International Pistol, Rifle and Running Boar teams will be firing for berths on the U. S. Shooting Team. The team will represent the U.S. in the Little World Games scheduled this fall in Phoenix, Arizona.

The Little World Games are a warmup for the World Shooting Championships that will be held next year in Phoenix. Shooters from around the world will gather at the newly completed Phoenix ranges to compete for honors for their country and themselves.

The steady holders from the MTU have many standouts that will be at the top. Sgt. James Beck, Sgt. Edward Leavendusky and Sgt. Gene Lumsden will be giving trap shooters a run for their money. Sgt. James Tyner is a strong candidate in the skeet field.

SFC John Kingeter and Maj. Willis Powell, who recently returned from Vietnam, will be top Running Boar shooters. Both Kingeter and Powell have won medals in Running Boar Competition.

The International Rifle team has a host of possible shooters for the U. S. team. Maj. Loues Wigger leads the list. He was recently named as one of the best ten shooters of the world by the International Shooting Union. Lt. Dena Bahrman, who fired top scores in a recent European training trip is an up and coming shooter that will be challenging all competitors.

The likes of SGM William Blankenship, SFC Hershel Anderson and SSG James McNally, pistol competitors, round off a list of just a few top shooters that will be representing the MTU, Ft. Benning and the Army during the U.S. Shooting team tryouts.

WINNERS OF first three places in the Fort Benning Medal of Honor Marathon and their trophies. From right to left, Nick Costes, Troy State University who won first place, Bruce LaBudd, Atlanta track Club winner of second place and third place winner James Knight also from the Atlanta club.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The Rod and Gun Club Fishing Derby got off to a good start with Cpt. Jimmy R. Ford, Co-winner of the June bream contest, registering a 14 ounce bream on July 1. Again the fish came from Patterson Pond. MSG Leonard S. Dill, 3054 Hendrix St. leads the catfish contest with a four-pound 15-ounce entry caught at Victory Pond and Peter J. Swiderdk, son of Sgt. Benidict Swiderdk, 2514 Cornell Ave. has the best entry bass with a nine-pound six-ounce lunker caught July 4 at Harp Pound.

Archery Championship

The Chattahoochee Archery Council of the Rod and Gun Club will host the Georgia State Archery Championship July 19-20. According to Bill Guinn, president of the Archery Council, the range is in top shape and has received a "Five Star" rating from the Georgia Archery Association. This is the highest rating that can be awarded an archery range.

Shooting will start Saturday at 1 p.m. and at 10 a.m. on Sunday. The ranges have been constructed so spectators can watch the shooting. Spectators are invited.

Skill Not Luck

The traditional greeting among Ango-Saxon anglers "What luck" belies the fact that luck, being something which occurs through chance rather than merit has an insignificant influence on whether fish are caught or not. The clich'e is so overworked that several years ago several states attempted to change their lottery laws to encompass fishing contests. It seems obvious that the man or woman who consistantly scores is not only persistant (a virtue transending patience) but has also developed a skill. He isn't fighting the war of backlashes and wind-knotted leaders but is dropping his plug, spoon or fly with precision accuracy and working it at the proper depth with an enticing action. Sgt. Robert Crossland, Co., C, 197th Spt Bn. is an example of what persistancy and patience coupled with skill can produce. He won the catfish contest of the Fishing Derby in April and May with catches from Victory Pond and was tied for the bream honors for the month of June.

Lunching Ramps

The State of Georgia has a great abundance of water suited for fishing, boating and other water sports. With the growing interest in these sports, the Georgia Game and Fish Commission has launched a long-range program to provide a minimum of one public access area for every 15 miles of stream or 1,000 acres of reservoir. This program was started two years ago and 25 boat launching ramps have been completed.

The present goal of the commission is to construct approximately 230 loading ramps across the state. In addition to the 28 ramps already completed, 15 are planned for construction in the immediate future and about 25 other sites are being negotiated.

Priority for the construction of access sites is determined by surveys showing actual need in an area that is heaavily used by boaters or by requests from counties where a pressing need is evident.

Under the present system, the Game and Fish Commission works in cooperation with the county government in the county in which the ramps are to be constructed. The county deeds the land on which the ramps are to be constructed to the Game and Fish Commission. When it can be arranged the sites are constructed just off state highways or other roads to eliminate the additional cost of road construction. Ramp fabrication usually requires from five to seven days for a crew of five to seven men.

"Duty — Honor — Country. Those three hallowed words reverently dictate what you ought to be, what you can be, what you will be. They are your rallying points: to build courage when courage seems to fail; to regain faith when there seems to be little cause for faith; to create hope when hope becomes forlorn."
Douglas MacArthur
General of the Army, May 12, 1962.

Capt. James R. Daniel Dies in Air Crash

Funeral was July 3, at Arlington National Cemetery.

Capt. Daniel returned to Vietnam after completing the Advanced Infantry Officers Course at the U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning. At the time of his death he was serving as a company commander with the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

While at Fort Benning, Capt. Daniel was a resident of 469-B Craig Drive.

Survivors include his wife, the former Renate Koblechner of Munich, Germany, a daughter, Bridget, 3; his mother, Mrs. Olga Daniel, Atlanta; his father, James M. Daniel, Cestre, Ala., and a brother, Erby Daniel of Tucker, Ga.

Capt. Daniel enlisted in the Army 12 years ago and underwent airborne, Ranger and OCS at Fort Benning and later became a member of Special Forces. He had served in Korea and Europe before going to Vietnam.

A sport parachuting and aviation enthusiast, Capt. Daniel was known throughout the southeastern area in these fields. He was a member of the Army's top free-fall parachuting organization, the Golden Knights, before his last assignment to Fort Benning.

He was qualified as a Master Parachutist in the Army and held the top D-license qualification of the United States Parachute Association. Capt. Daniel was a member of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club, and served as meet director for an inter-service competitive meet held at Fort Benning March 1 and 2. He qualified as a civilian commercial pilot at a Griffin, Ga. flight school, shortly before leaving Fort Benning on his last assignment.

Capt. Daniel was a native of Centre, Ala., and was graduated from high school there. He underwent Special Forces training at the John F. Kennedy Center for Special Warfare at Fort Bragg, N.C., and served with the 10th Special Forces Group at Bad Tolz, Germany.

Capt. Daniel's awards include the Combat Infantryman's Badge, two awards of the Army Commendation Medal, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, Good Conduct Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Vietnam Service Ribbon, National Defense Service Ribbon, Master Parachutist Badge and qualifications as an expert marksman with the service pistol, M-14 rifle and carbine.

Racing Around

Chavaga To Hold Rally Sunday

BY JEFF MARTINI

The big sound over the holiday week-end may not have been the firecrackers, but rather the sound of many thousands of "Horses" stomping down the ¼ mile asphalt at the Phenix Dragway.

The big money winner was none other than the famous Bo Laws, "Mr. Drag Corvette." Bo took home more than $1,500, a new national record in D-sports, and the trophy for Street Eliminator. He's a solid favorite to get the nod to travel to Tulsa, Okla. for the worlds points championship at the end of the season.

In all 5 National records were set at the Dragway on the 4th and 5th. Laws of Orlando, Fla. took the D-Sports ET down to a 11.55 in his '69Mad Dog No. 2" '67 Corvette. Bill Madden, Anniston, Ala. in a '40 Willys lowered D-Gas to a 10.99 ET. Gene Norris also of Orlando, raised the U-Stock MPH record to 86.22 in his '50 Olds. J-Stock Automatic had a new ET of 13.26 thanks to George Oglesby, Jacksonville, Fla., in a '65 Pontiac Station wagon. Hubert Platt, Atlanta, Ga., a member of the east coast Ford Factory Drag Team, pushed his '69, 428 Cobra jet Mustang to a new SS-I ET of 11.50. Although the famed "Tennessee Bo-Weevil" was at the track to take top fuel honors no strip records for low ET or high MPR were set. Jerry Coley known as "Mr. Alabama Dragway," has a solution (or should I say "a better idea") — would you believe Raymond Godman's "Bo-Weevil" with Preston Davis driving vs. Don "Big Daddy" Garlits, the king of road! The date hasn't been set for the match race yet — but "RA" will be the first to find out.

Coming up in the future. . .this week-end a Super Stock and Street Eliminator contest, under the lights, paying $300 to 1st ....an army jeep funny car place . . . an army jeep funny car match race, on July 20th. Scotty Scot (U.S. Army") and Bill Campbell ("Rat Patrol") will duel each other in fiberglas "replicas" of U.S. Army jeeps.

HINT — they both would make a great standard "A" ¼-ton truck. . .

Latest rumor — Randy Payne has given Ford Motor Co. his "two weeks notice". Ford execs want Platt and Payne to stay together until Indy's big NHRA national in August — then they'll sit the east coast factory Drag stars down for a talk. Money problems? Jealousy? We'll let your know when "RA" finds out.

One last word for the Phenix Dragway. This reporter has covered motor-sports events for the last six years, and I have never seen anyone more beautiful than the race queen the Dragway had for the National meet. Her name is MARNE, and I think we'll see a lot more of her in the future. Barrington Motor Sales in Columbus supplied the "hotter than hot" pace car — a 396 Chevelle with LOUD, HAIRY, exhausts. Nice car — I know because this reporter drove it on the pace lap!

At Tri-county, Eddie McDonald won his seventh feature event at the super modified speedway. He's building up an impressive group of fans —"RA" will keep its eyes on him.

This week-end Chavaga Region, SCCA, is putting on its July slalom, which is entitled "Little Le Mans." Interesting feature of the event will be a "Le Mans" type start by the drivers. Mike Kasner has promised an exciting circuit — I hope it's not too exciting—this reporter ran out of gas at the last meet. Embarrassed? Ever try to find a man-hole cover to hide under in the Traffic Circle Shopping Center? Entry fee will be $4.00 for all those not in the SCCA — $3.00 if you are a current member. Trophies and dash plaques will be awarded. Tech Inspection starts at the Traffic Circle at 11:00 a.m. Sunday with the first car off at 1:00 p.m. These slalems are really a ball—and the great thing is you don't have to have a hot car to win. There are many different classes, with cars ranging from hairy 'Vettes to common ordinary VW "beetles".

ON THE SCENE — Daytona — Pete Hamilton brought his '70 Camara into the winner's circle at the Paul Revere 250 on July 3rd. The "Baby Grands" moved to Charlotte, N. C. after Daytona for the July 6th Dogwood 250, won by Jim Paschal in a '69 Javelin. This marks Parchal's and Javelin's 3rd checkered flag. On the 4th, Lee Roy Yarbrugh, this time in a Ford, held off Buddy Baker's Dodge to take the big Daytona Firecracker 400. This year the race was renamed the Medal of Honor Firecracker 400 and speedway proxy Bill France had 98 MOH winners present to take in Racing, "Southern Style". Lee Roy took home a fat $22,175 pay check and his third superspeedway victory in '69-(Daytona 500, Charlotte World 600, Daytona Firecracker 400).

"GOIN' GEORGE" WARREN, the Phenix City "Phlash" in his SS-E AMX, will be one of the many National Hot Rod Association Division 11 stars who will be racing this Saturday and Sunday nights for top money prizes at the Phenix Dragways.

Jones Is Pistol Champion

MTU Marksmen made a clean sweep in the Georgia State Pistol Championships last weekend at the River Bend Gun Club in Atlanta.

SSG Merriweather Jones ran up 2644-128 to win the State Championship. Jones' teammates SFC Hezekiah Clark and SSG Marvin Black placed second and third respectively. Clark and Black both tallied the same score of 2633, but Clark had the higher X-count of 128 compared to Black's 119, giving him the second spot.

Jones was a tough competitor placing in all three aggregates. He was second in the .22 and .45 caliber aggregates and first in the Center Fire Match with 881.

Former MTU shooter MSgt (Ret) Ralph Thompson won the .22 aggregate with 889. Black won the .45 caliber aggregate with 878.

Clark was a very consistent shooter by placing third in every aggregate.

All three team matches were won by Army's Blue pistol team. Total team score was 3509.

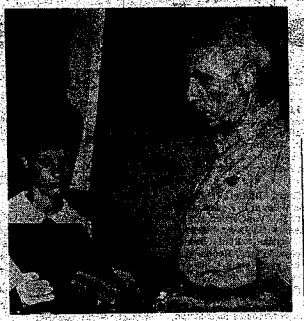
Widow of Former Aide Accepts Award

The Bronze Star Medal (second oak leaf cluster with "V" device for heroism and third Oak Leaf Cluster), the Air Medal and the Purple Heart were posthumously awarded to Capt. William R. Black in a ceremony here July 3.

Mrs. Anne D. Black, of Columbus, the captain's widow, accepted the awards from Col. Wiley B. Wisdom, deputy post commander.

Black was cited for "exceptionally valorous action" and "loyalty, diligence and devotion to duty . . . in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service."

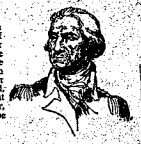
Black, a former aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., when commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, was killed in action March 8 during a night relief operation in Tay Ninh Province, Republic of Vietnam.



MRS. BLACK ACCEPTS AWARD FROM COL. WISDOM

George Washington

"We must give gratitude to men who have rescued us from the jaws of danger and brought us to the honor of independence and Peace . . . The Army, who have borne and forborne more than any other class of men in the United States, expending their health, and many of them their all, in an unremitted service of near eight years in the field, encountering hunger, cold and nakedness, must never be forgotten."



"The currency with which you pay for peace is made up of manly courage, fearless virility, readiness to serve justice and honor at any cost, and a heart attuned to sacrifice."

931 Engineers Hold 3 Change of Commands

By Spc Ken Starnecker

The tripleheader staged by the 931st Engineer Group, Center Troop Command, early this month had nothing to do with sports.

Instead, the Engineers hosted three change of command ceremonies in one day.

Captain Paul G. Perkins, Vernon, Ala., took command of the 298th Engineer Company from First Lieutenant John W. Merry, Jr., who will complete his tour of active duty next month.

Headquarters Company, 931st Group, is now under the command of Captain Robert D. Tierney, who replaced First Lieutenant John J. Grabenstein. Captain Tormey has served two tours in Vietnam.

The former adjutant for the 43rd Engineer Battalion is now the Company C Commander for the same unit.

Captain Robert L. Johnson, Tallahassee, Fla., made the move to the command position after holding down the adjutant's office for three months.

Army Approves New Plan For Marking Minefields

U.S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — A new marking system for scatter minefields designed to keep pace with the latest advances in land mine warfare has been approved for development by the Army.

Under requirements prepared by the Engineer Agency, U.S. Army Combat Developments Command, Fort Belvoir, Va., the marking of scatter minefields would not only be done from a variety of ground vehicles but also from the air by helicopters and fixed wing aircraft.

The system would permit rapid marking of the boundaries of scatter minefields containing both scatterable anti-tank and anti-personnel mines. The versatile markers are capable of being emplaced by hand or mechanically dispensed by vehicle or aircraft.

The design of the markers makes them readily visible from the air at distances up to 50 meters and from the ground at 20 meters, in both daylight and darkness. The marker will continually display or intermittently emit a distinct attention-getting light and-or "signature."

The marking system will be useable in any zone of operations, on all types of terrain, and in any weather and visibility conditions which permit mine laying.

This new marking system is needed to keep pace with the scatterable anti-tank and anti-personnel mine systems now under development. The system will, for the first time, provide a capability for rapid emplacement of a mine field on short notice.

Mines are being designed for scattering by dispensers mounted in ground vehicles and aircraft, rather than the current one-at-a-time deliberate emplacement by troops or mechanized mine layers. Since scatter-mining by these methods will be done in friendly, as well as enemy-held areas, they must be clearly marked to warn friendly troops.

The fact that enemy troops may also be warned is not considered a tactical disadvantage since the obstacle forces him to either divert his approach, makes him bypass the minefield or delays his advance for breaching it. In any case the minefield has accomplished the obstacle mission.

A departure from standard minefield marking techniques is that the new system does not include a physical barrier or fence linking the markers. Rationale is that closely spaced, distinctive, attention-getting markers will provide a more effective day and night warning system than conventional minefield marking fences. Elimination of fencing requirements will result in a substantial savings in logistical weight and installation time.

Present techniques for marking minefields are to use stakes or pickets connected by barbed wire or engineer tape with suitable warning signs hung on the wire. This is done by several soldiers using the standard Mine Marking Set No. 2. This set may become obsolete with the introduction of the new marking system.

When used in conjunction with the new scatterable mine systems, marking will be done simultaneously with mining. Current minefield marking equipment would not keep pace nor is it compatible with rapid scatter mining.

The system will be capable of dispensing markers in a continuous or intermittent row or strip at variable rates matched to the speed of the carrying vehicle. For ground vehicles speed will be up to 15 miles per hour, for helicopters 100 knots, and from 100 to 200 knots for Mohawk type aircraft.

Dispensers will have sufficient number of the expendable markers to cover a distance of 1.5 kilometers.

Normally ground vehicles will mark defensive barrier and other minefields in friendly areas behind the forward edge of the battle areas. Marking by helicopters is intended for hastily emplaced minefields to rapidly block or contain an enemy. Marking of minefields in hostile areas will be at the discretion of the commander authorizing the minefield.

Total weight of the complete marking system is envisioned as not exceeding 700 pounds. It will have a shape and bulk so that it can be easily handled by two men with the air of dollies or other lifting devices to attach it to the dispenser component.

14 Trainees Max Proficiency Test

Fourteen trainees in Co. D, 7th Bn., maxed the Individual Proficiency Test, setting two new records at the Army Training Center.

They're the largest number from a single company to attain this achievement. And their efforts boosted their company IPT record to 63.43, topping the former ATC high of 62.94.

They were among forty trainees recognized and honored for exceptional performance at the graduation of the 2nd Bde. Provisional Bn. at Stroup Field. Two of these were triple award winners.

Pvt. Alton G. Tucker, Co. E, 6th Bn., won the American Spirit Honor Medal - the highest trainee award - which was presented by Col. Herbert G. Peabody, ATC acting commander. Tucker also was awarded the Outstanding Trainee and Individual Proficiency Plaques from his company.

From Co. D, 7th Bn., Pvt. Jack C. Pines was named the Outstanding Trainee and was awarded Individual Proficiency and Physical Combat Proficiency Plaques for maximum scores in these tested phases of training.

The Outstanding Trainee Plaque for Co. E, 8th Bn., was presented to Pvt. Jeffrey Watanabe, the first Hawaiian to receive this honor at the Training Center. A member of the Hawaiian and American Bar Associations, Watanabe was an attorney in the Department of the Attorney General for the State of Hawaii before coming on active duty.

Pvt. James I. Quaid IV of Co. E, 9th Bn., was named Outstanding Trainee of his company and won a second award for a perfect score of 500 on the Physical Combat Proficiency Test.

Company D, 7th Bn., commanded by 1st Lt. Donnie Uxle, received the Brigade Commander's Trophy. The presentation was made by Col. Francisco J. Ramos, 2nd Brigade commander.

SFC Lemuel E. Morris of Co. D, 7th Bn., who holds the Silver Star and Bronze Star for his service with the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam, was selected the Outstanding Senior Drill Sergeant of the cycle.

Presentation of the trainee awards was made by Lt. Col. William G. Carter, 9th Bn., commander and the reviewing officer.

Bronze Star Accepted By Parents

By Frank Truchon

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, first oak leaf cluster, the Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Medal with "V", first oak leaf cluster and the Purple Heart were posthumously awarded to Spc4 Harry J. Cloud in a ceremony here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Cloud, Gretna, Fla., the soldier's parents, accepted the awards for their son.

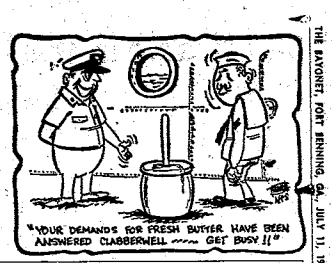
On Jan. 31, 1969, Cloud was serving as a machine-gunner with Co. C, 2nd Bn., 39th Inf., on an ambush patrol in Dinh Tuong Province, Republic of Vietnam.

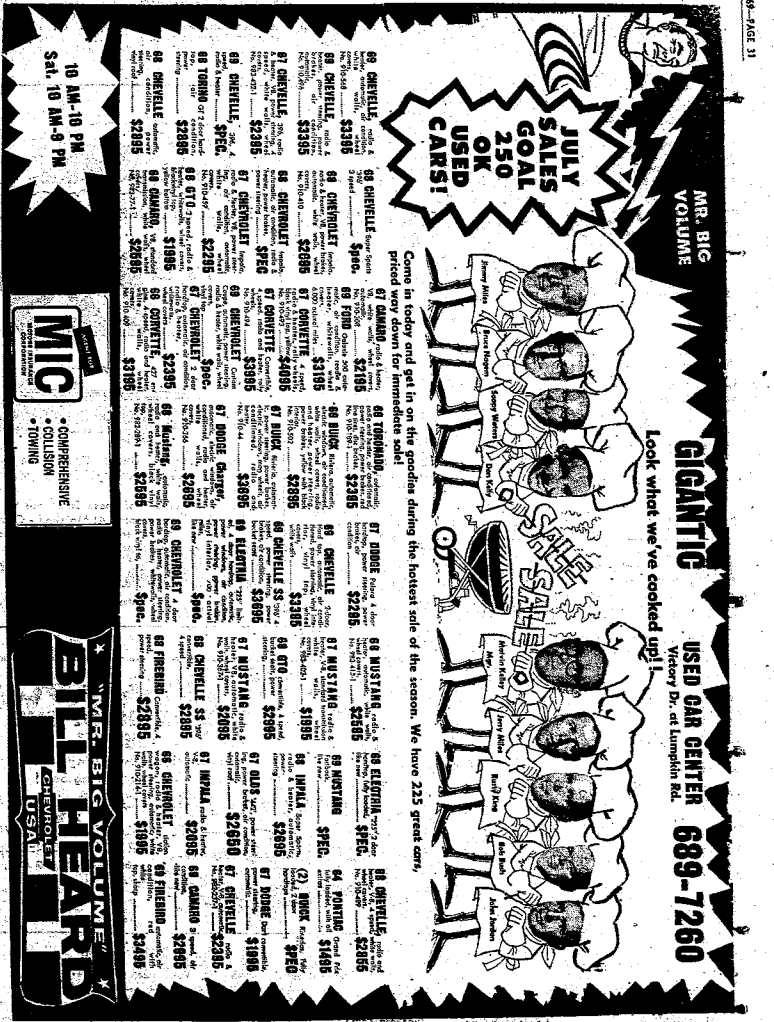
During the night, after setting up their bivouac, Cloud's platoon came under a heavy enemy attack. Cloud exposed himself to enemy fire in order to more effectively engage them.

After the enemy withdrew and Cloud's unit had moved to another location, they once more came under enemy attack. Cloud was mortally wounded as he moved to return fire. It was for this action that he received the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, first oak leaf cluster.

Cloud received the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in connection with military operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam from July, 1968, to January, 1969.

The Army Commendation Medal with "V" device, first oak leaf cluster, was awarded to Cloud for heroism in connection with military operations involving conflict with an armed hostile force on Jan. 3, 1969.





'A Miracle in the Barracks' Wins Colonel CDC Award

U.S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — "A Miracle in the Barracks" is the title of a paper submitted by LTC Donald M. Borke outlining detailed proposals for improving Army barracks furnishings which earned him a coveted U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Creative Thinking Award.

The colonel submitted the paper while a student at the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. The submission was judged and accepted by CDC's Institute of Combined Arms and Support (ICAS) as a meaningful contribution to combat developments.

In his radical design for barracks living he proposes a system of furnishings called the Suspended Army Modular System (SAMS). In general terms, SAMS is a modular package system of furnishings designed to attach to interior concrete block and stud walls of barracks. The module will be suspended 12 inches off the floor.

It incorporates most of the basic needs of the soldier when in the barracks, and creates an efficient and comfortable atmosphere for sleeping and relaxing. By means of its modular dimensions and expansion features, the SAMS design is envisioned as meeting various military requirements. The major factors outlined in the paper take into consideration utilization and appearance, ease of maintenance, space conservation, standardization and interchangeability of parts, supply considerations and hygenic aspects.

The entire system is mounted on the wall by structural brackets. Vertical panels are suspended on the wall providing a structural framework and subdivision of space. Horizontal divisions of space are created by perforated plastic shelves racks and door stops. The bed, when not in use, would fold back into the module, concealed by a hardwood door. Another pair of doors conceals the area for clothing and other shelf items.

The SAMS unit could be expanded to include additional storage space, desk and accessory items. SAMS projects from the wall no more than two feet and takes full advantage of the 10 feet ceilings in most barracks.

Materials used in construction of SAMS include aluminum tubing coated with vinyl surfaces in Army "green," molded polyethylene shelves and plastic working surfaces. The mattress would be foam rubber, and the sheets made of disposable paper. Removable surfaces make for easy washing.

Reduction of the total square footage required for installation and utilization of barracks furnishing is a vital feature of SAMS. The total square footage required for single occupancy of the basic SAMS unit is estimated at 70 square feet. According to Colonel Borke, similar occupancy now requires 898 square feet.

One of the most startling innovations recommended is an accessory ultra-violent sterilization and drying chamber incorporated into the module to purify and freshen bedding.

The CDC Creative Thinking Award Program is an extracurricular opportunity for all officers attending advanced branch and service schools and the Command and General Staff College to submit contributions for proposed combat developments. Recommendations are evaluated by CDC agencies collocated with the appropriate branch and service schools and by ICAS.

The recipient of this award receives a fool-high replica of the statue the "Thinker," a $100 savings bond, and a CDC Certificate of Achievement from LTG Harry W. O. Kinnard, Commanding General, of CDC, headquarters at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

ROTC Cadet Comes 5000 Miles From Guam for Volunteer Camp

By Sp 4 Ken Sturzenacker

But none came further than Rogelio C. Bautista, who made the 5,600 mile trip from Guam to take part in the unique, volunteer camp.

Bautista is the second brother in his family to attain current active duty status. Although Rogelio is only on active duty for six weeks, his brother, S Sgt. Antero Bautista, is stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky.

A 1965 graduate of Foothill Junior College, Los Altos, Calif., Bautista is presently enrolled at California Polytechnic Institute, San Luis Obispo, where he hopes to earn a degree in electronic engineering.

He has been employed as an electrical technician with the Amelco Semiconductor Company while attending school.

Assigned to Co. D. 9th Bn., 2nd Bde., Bautista hopes to be commissioned in the Signal Corps when he completes the ROTC program and receives his degree.

"If I make a career of the Army," he said, "I would like to be the one to establish a ROTC program at the University of Guam.

"Too many of the people of my island do not have the opportunity to receive this type of training, yet we too are required to serve in the military."

During his training thus far, Bautista has been most impressed with the demonstrations of support available to the small unit leader in the field.

"We are being trained to be leaders; and the ROTC program gives us that training, not only for combat, but for any situation that calls for solid military leadership."

For Book Store Expansion

Employe of 47 Years, Scott Breaks Ground

BY Pfc. James Doherty

Wallace S. Scott, who has worked in the U.S Army Infantry School Book Department for almost 47 years both as a soldier and as a civilian, broke grouod recently for a warehouse expansion to the store building.

The expansion of the book department — an increase in size and space by about one third — will facilitate the shipping and handling of books and supplies which must now be stored in Bldg. 1301, a few blocks away.

Scott came to Fort Benning in 1928. He joined the staff of what was then called the book shop in December, 1922.

He had joined the Army in April, 1917, and had served in England and France with the 139th Field Artillery during World War II.

Later he served in the Philippines.

Working as a stock clerk, shipping clerk and sometimes handling sales, Scott has seen store facilities moved and expanded considerably in his years here.

When he first came, the store carried mostly student supplies and books. Now it has expanded to include stereo sets, silverware and a variety of other goods.

The Infantry School was then in the Stillwell Field area; the main post exchange was where the football stadium now is; and post headquarters was in a two-story wooden building across from the Catholic chapel.

Scott has worked with book department officers who later rose to national prominence including General Walter Bedell Smith who later was on General Eisenhower's staff, and Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young who later became post commander.

Scott retired from the Army in 1955 but he has retained the same job.

750 Marines Attend Post Infantry Classes

By Terry Davis

Each year the friendly rivalry between the Army and the U.S. Marine Corps extends to the classrooms of the U. S. Army Infantry School here as the Infantrymen are faced with tough competition from approximately 75 Marines enrolled with them as students.

During Fiscal Year 1969, 12 Marines attended classes in the Infantry officer advanced course, 575 in airborne, 60 in Ranger and 72 in a scout dog handler course. The same figures are projected as the Marine student in-put for FY 1970.

A total of 14 Marines graduating from these courses during the past quarter have won honors. They were commended for academic achievement as graduates or honor graduates as well as for leadership.

Students designated as distinguished honor graduates were PFC Daryl E. Kirkendoll, 5th Force Reconnaissance Co., Airborne Course No. 31-69; Cpl. Walter L. Jackson, 3d Military Police Bn., Scout Dog Class No 7-69; PFC William Hargrove, 5th Marine Div., Airborne Course No. 35-69, and Lt. Col. Charles T. Williamson, Headquarters Bn., U. S. Marine Corps, Jumpmaster Course No. 10-69.

The honor graduates were LCpl. Robert J. Foldak, 3d Military Police Bn., Scout Dog Class No. 7-69; LCpl. J. M. Vinegard, 2d Force Reconnaissance Co., and LCpl. J. T. Smith, 5th Force Reconnaissance Co., both in Airborne Course No. 35-49; PFC Paul W. Handerham, 5th Marine Div., Airborne Course No. 35-69; LCpl. J. Sweatt, 2d Air Naval Gunfire Liaison Co. (ANGLICO), Airborne Course No. 41-69, LCpl. G. C. Yerty Jr., 3d Military Police Bn., and LCpl. S. Powell, 3d Military Battalion, both in Scout Dog Class No. 10-69.

Those receiving a leadership award were Sgt. D. A. Rolzoll, 5th Reconnaissance Bn., Airborne Course No. 30-69; Capt. Robin F. Wiersching, 4th ANCLICO, United States Marine Corps Reserve, Airborne Course No. 31-69, and Capt. J. B. Clark, 4th ANGLICO, USMCR, Airborne Course No. 36-69.

Nursing Care Is Available For Veterans

Veterans needing nursing home care should make application for admission to the Georgia Veterans Nursing Home in Augusta, according to Pete Wheeler, state veterans director.

"The Veterans Nursing Home in Augusta is a 192-bed facility, fully air conditioned, and is the most modern nursing home facility in the Nation," Wheeler said.

To be eligible, a veteran must meet the VA eligibility requirements, be a legal resident of the State of Georgia, be free of contagious disease and in need of nursing care.

Wheeler added that there is no cost to the veteran for this nursing home care. In many cases, the veteran's condition has improved while at the nursing home due to the excellent type therapy given the veteran.

Wheeler said he knows there are many veterans needing nursing care that are not aware of the Veterans Nursing Home in Augusta. Some of these veterans are probably in nursing homes paying the full cost of the nursing care.

The Army Wants Men Who Can Fight, Teach

By SSM Frank W. Braxton

This week I am looking for a man. A very special man. A big man. Not big in size, but big in courage, dedication, and in ideas. A man who loves his Country and the ideals it stands for. A man who takes deep pride in being a member of the United States Army. A man who can teach as well as fight. A man who can think for himself. This is the type of man who can qualify to wear the green beret of Special Forces. But let this be clear at the outset: Special Forces is limited to those few soldiers who want nothing less than the best and can prove it both physically and mentally. In short Special Forces is for special men only.

The job of a Special Forces soldier is not easy. He may be asked to go into action anywhere in the world to help defend freedom. He may have to work alone, or with small groups of men for long periods of time.

He will be expected to solve some of the toughest problems that ever faced fighting men anywhere. This is why it takes a big man to wear the green beret. This is why it takes dedication and maturity; brains as well as brawn. This is why only comparative few make the grade. But to those who make it, there is no equal to it anywhere. There is team spirit. There is important work. There is room for promotion. And there is a knowledge that says: I have served my country and the cause of freedom and I am proud of it. Those who wear the green beret are proud men and justly so.

The man I am searching for may be trained in the area of communications. Here he will become expert at Morse code, transmitting and receiving equipment, generators, and antennas. Or he may become a medic and be trained better and more thoroughly than any other medic in the world.

This man could also be trained in demolitions, operations and intelligence, or weapons. He will become expert in any of these fields but because every man on a Special Forces team is an expert in at least two areas, he will also get cross training. Special Forces aims to produce the most mature, best rounded, soldiers to ever see action.

How about you? Are you the man I am looking for? Do you think you have what it takes to become a member of Special Forces? If so, see the Special Forces Career Counselor in Building 2366 or phone 545-7991 today.

Candidates 'Up-Tight' About Auto Safety

The officer candidates of the 61st Co. 6th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Bde., are literally and up-tight group — at least as far as auto safety is concerned.

Project Up-Tight was initiated by the candidates in the 61st Co. in an effort to produce 100 per cent participation by the company in the wearing of their auto seat belts.

The entire company now displays bumper stickers which encourage other motorists to "Buckle Up" for safety.

The safety project began in concurrence with the Fourth of July holiday weekend, a time when highway safety is a critical matter.

The campaign features numerous bulletin boards around the company area which stress the importance of using seat belts.

4th Division To Hold Reunion

The National 4th Infantry Division Association will hold its 1969 Reunion in Augusta, Georgia July 31 to Aug. 3.

All veterans who served with the Fourth Division are eligible to attend.

Speakers include the Honorable George A. Sancken Jr., mayor of Augusta, and former Ivyman, the Honorable William Jennings Bryan Dorn, South Carolina, member of the United States Congress, and the principal speaker will be General (Ret.) James A. Van Fleet, who commanded the 8th Infantry Regiment at Fort Gordon and during the D-Day invasion.

The new Volvo 164 is here.

This is a genuine Volvo (the new 164) that happens to look very expensive but costs nowhere near $19,600.

It was designed for people who want a car as solid and sensible as a Volvo. But a bit more elegant.

The 164 has bucket seats upholstered in leather, expensive carpeting, power steering, power disc brakes, and, as you can see, a new look.

It also has a 6-cylinder engine powerful enough to out-accelerate a Mercedes 250.

But the big thing about the 164 isn't how fast it is or how plush it is. It's how tough it is. The 164 is built to be as indestructible as any other Volvo.

As a result, it should last for years after it's paid for. And let you keep the money you'd normally spend for a new car.

This is why the 164 is, in the truest sense of the term, a rich man's Volvo.

It makes you look rich long enough for you to become rich.

Two USMA Cadets Recruit For Point

By PFC Lee Myers

Expansion of the U.S. Military Academy from a cadet strength of 3,000 to about 4,400 has brought two West Pointers here to help enlisted men, young officers, trainees and dependents to take advantage of the increased opportunity.

They are Cadet Jerald L. Thompson and Cadet Glenn R. Gaffney. About to begin their third year at the academy, they are touring eight Army installations this month.

The cadets said West Point has one advantage over Officer Candidate School in that the academy furnishes a college education and degree along with the commission. They said the academy's advantage over the Reserve Officer Training Corps program is that the academy has a complete military atmosphere where the student learns the Army attitude seven days a week instead of just a couple of hours two or three days a week.

Thompson has 21 months of prior enlisted service and 21 months of prior commissioned service. Gaffney has 12 months of prior enlisted service and 12 months of prior commissioned service.

Because of their prior service the Academy did not require them to go on the usual summer tour for second classmen. Their classmates are stationed throughout the Army in the United States and Europe as acting platoon leaders.

Widow Accepts Lieutenant's Decorations

The Silver Star, the Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart were posthumously awarded to 1st Lt. Allen C. Yoemans III in a ceremony here.

Mrs. Mary A. Yoemans, the lieutenant's widow, accepted the awards.

Yoemans was cited for "extraordinary heroism in close combat with an armed hostile force" and "outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force."

He was killed in action Feb. 20 while on a reconnaissance mission in the Republic of Vietnam.

Prior to his death, he had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge, Expert Badge with automatic rifle bar, Sharpshooter Badge with rifle bar, the Vietnam Service Medal and the Vietnam Campaign Ribbon.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

Keep sand out of the food at a beach picnic by putting each guest's servings in small paper buckets nestled in an inexpensive plastic basket or shoe box.

Canned mandarin orange sections swirled into orange sherbet can be a cool and delicious beginning to a summer Sunday breakfast.

Archimedes, the ancient Greek mathematician, was such a confirmed gastronome that when fleeing the Roman army, he refused to hide in a bean field because he disliked beans.

Nobody dislikes beans this way: Mix in a little brown sugar, mustard, ketchup and pineapple juice before heating canned baked beans.

Lightly butter the inside of the tin before putting in the meat loaf mixture. There'll be more meat for the hungry diners and less stuck to the pan.

If you're a hungry diner in the mood for a delicious dinner that will stick to your ribs, stop by at

Rights of the Military

In his 6 June 1969 weekly report on matters of interest to Army Information staffs, BG Robert B. Smith, Deputy Chief of Information, Department of the Army, noted the following:

"Recently a soldier wrote to President Nixon concerning the constitutional rights of military personnel. Following is the reply he received from CINFO:

" 'On behalf of President Nixon, I am replying to your recent letter concerning the constitutional rights of members of the Armed Forces.

" 'You are correct in believing that soldier is a citizen 'entitled to all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities of citizenship.' In common with his fellow citizens in civilian life, a soldier is required to do certain things and refrain from doing certain things that at first glance may seem to deny one or another of the personal liberties named in the Bill of Rights.

Further reflection makes it clear that none of these liberties is or was intended to be absolute. For example, every American's freedom to keep and bear arms has been tampered with by various national, state, and local laws; freedom of speech and press is limited by laws against sedition, obscenity, and other abuses; freedom of assembly is made less than absolute by ordinances and regulations that repeatedly have been held to be reasonable and constitutional limitations necessary for the common good.

" 'The Uniform Code of Military Justice, the body of law which governs the conduct of members of the Armed Forces, was passed by Congress and approved by the President as the Constitution requires. It limits the personal freedom of soldiers only to the degree considered necessary for the maintenance of the kind of discipline and order essential for the Armed Forces to perform the missions given them by the representatives of the American people. All regulations and orders within the several services stem from this Code of law and from the constitutional provision that the President is Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces.

" 'Thus the limitations on personal freedom which you have experienced or observed in the Army, rather than being unlawful infringements by military authorities, are the lawful and mandatory exercise of their sworn responsibility to maintain the good order and discipline essential for effective performance of missions.' "

AER Fund Drive Begins

By PFC Lee Myers

A serviceman and his wife were looking forward with excitement to the birth of their first child. Because he was at a low Army pay grade, they were short on cash but willing to skimp so they could have a child.

The child was stillborn. The serviceman was overwhelmed with expenses—the burial charges added to the maternity expenses.

Army Emergency Relief (AER) provided immediate cash for the serviceman. An interest-free loan to cover his emergency expenses was given to him by the Fort Benning AER office in Bldg. 5.

The serviceman was able to pay his debts, maintain a good credit standing and to stay free of loan sharks.

Last year the Fort Benning AER office provided $289,989.61 of emergency relief to 2,386 military families here.

During April, May and June of this year, the office provided 441 loans totaling $49,971 and provided 23 grants totaling $3,709.

In the loan category last quarter, 90 soldiers did not receive their pay but AER assisted them by providing $9,517 for them until they could get their pay corrected. Sixty-six soldiers had to go home on emergency leave but did not have the money necessary for the trip. They received loans totaling $6,347 from AER here. There were 212 families with financial emergencies where military dependents suffered privation—AER provided $24,542 to meet these needs.

AER does not receive funds appropriated through Fort Benning.

All of the money AER uses is donated by servicemen —on a "You help your friend and your friend helps you," basis.

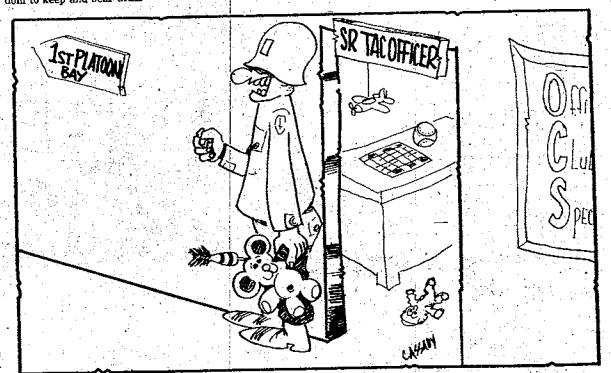
Not one penny of the money given to AER is used for administration. The AER office in Washington, D.C., invests 25 per cent of the donated money and the administrative expenses are paid out of the interest earned by that investment. Thus, every penny given to AER ends up in some emergency pocket.

Not only does every penny go to a needy serviceman, four pennies go out for every one penny donated. Because a loaning agency is only required to maintain in reserve a quarter of the money they lend, a multiplier effect enables AER to loan out four for every one they receive.

During July and August the AER office here is conducting a fund drive to replenish its account for the next fiscal year. Last year more money was distributed than was collected.

If the money does not come in, it cannot go out to help.

The Army Emergency Relief will come to ask for your dollar. Now you know how that dollar helps.



IF I DON'T FIND OUT WHO THREW THE DART IN MY TEDDY BEAR, I'LL TAKE AWAY YOUR LATRINE PRIVILEGES!

In Entertainment Contest

Judges Show Poor Judgment

At the Fort Benning entertainment contest July 12 at the Playhouse, the master of ceremonies said that the performers were to be judged on how well they entertained.

Then the judges—not the audience—picked as entertainment losers two amplified rock bands doing "Aquarius" and Lou Rawls' "Tobacco Road." The two bands excited the audience as a hint of a smile excites when it flashes across a supposedly serious face.

The judges—not the audience—picked as entertainment winners three antiseptic singers singing "If I Had A Hammer," "There's Trouble Right Here in River City," "By the Time I Get to Phoenix," and "Look for Love." The singers were as involved with their songs as a clear plastic shower curtain.

The judges, supposedly picking the acts most entertaining for a servicemen audience, were a librarian, a municipal court judge, a department store window-display designer and a chaplain.

For this reporter, his wife, and for most of the audience—twenty or thirty soldiers—the most entertaining part of the evening was after the formal contest. While the judges were off deciding whether an old "Music Man" rendition was better than an old Peter, Paul and Mary, the two rock bands played.

They did let loose. It appeared to us that the entertainment contest director had advised the rock groups to tone down their gut appeal for the contest, to tone down their jazz and use the most usual phrasing, the most unoriginal flourishes and the most pedestrian delivery. Evidently those are the musical styles which win contests judged by a librarian, a lawyer, a window designer and a chaplain.

Which may be why there were only about thirty in the audience on a post of more than 48,000.

Servicemen from an Army Band, servicemen picked at random from the Center Troop Command or the 197th Infantry Brigade, or men processing through the Transfer Point would seem to be judges more attuned to their own entertainment. Or, at least, these men could be placed on the judging panel to see if their opinions would differ from a lawyer's.

IOBC Ladies Watch OC's On Leadership Course

By Spt Ron Johnson

"Will the ladies on the viewing platform please help with the final ten second countdown?" boomed the voice from the loudspeaker.

Ten! Nine! Eight! chorused the ladies of IOBC 561-69. The shrill voices were intended to confuse the OC's of 52nd Co. during the last few seconds of their problem solving effort on the Leadership Reaction Course.

And it worked. As three! Two! One! rank out, few of the OC's completed their problems. But most emerged dirty and wet and knowing a little more about what it means to be a leader.

The problems that the OC's had to work are the same as those taken by the IOBC students. The ladies were there to observe part of the training that their husbands would receive in the course.

Fifteen of the wives attended the training and a few actually helped participate in the action. They all admitted that the problems were difficult.

Before the ladies observed the problem course, they were given an orientation by Maj. James P. Hales, OIC of the course.

Girl Scouts Hold Week of Camp

The Concharty Girl Scout Council held a Girl Scout Day Camp at Fort Benning recently. The week-long camp was held at Camp Hideaway on the Upatoi Creek.

Ninety-five girls and 15 adults gathered there for five days of camping, camp crafts, nature hikes, exploring and just plain getting away from it all.

At the beginning of each day, the scouts gathered around the flag and pledged a solemn allegiance to the flag. Many of the girls took special meaning in the pledge because their fathers are presently serving in Vietnam.

At the beginning of the camp, the girl scouts elected members of the camp council. They were: Elizabeth Pollock, Alison Darbonne, Sue Kissinger, Ellen Segal, Carla Hunt, Sunny Wright, Carrie Christie and Laura Strover.

As part of the camp function, the girls even organized and printed their own newspaper. The editor was Catherine Ealick and her Cadette co-editors were Barbara Anderson, Nanette Kelly and Linda High.

The reporters for the paper were Cinday Sayenga, Gracia Walker, Sue Wood, Vera Dickhute and Beth Hoag.

During the camp, the 197th also furnished ice, water, tents and a detail of men to stay in the camp and assist the staff with some of the heavier tasks.

At the end of the five-day camp, many girls were asked what they enjoyed most about the outing. They all replied "making new friends, hiking, singing, making things and cooking over an open fire."

Weight-Watcher Adapts Barbecue Foods to Diet

NEW YORK (PCI)—The weight-watcher's world literally bulges with specialized diets. Confronted by diets for drinkers, low-gram menus to limit carbohydrate intake, the ominous calorie counter and even a horoscope for dieters, it is logical for the weight-watcher to become confused and erroneously rule out some of the genuine eating pleasures in life.

Barbecuing is one. When the suggestion is made for a patio barbecue, party visions of Roman-style gorging on rich and fattening food and drink swim through the dieter's thoughts threatening to devour his meager progress toward slimness.

He becomes defensive and instead of gaining sympathy, his attitude labels him among society's "party poopers." It is all for naught!

The true fact is that barbecued foods can be better suited to the weight-watcher's menu than those cooked by other means. One of the prime reasons is that foods cooked in a covered barbecue kettle simmer to perfection in their own juices, often reducing total calorie count rather than adding to it.

This opens up opportunities for small supplements which enhance the flavor of the meal and bring greater joy to the otherwise confused and dreary world of the weight-watcher.

"Pitch in and plan the party" is the advice of the people at Weber Stephen Products Company, makers of the original Weber covered barbecue kettle, to those who are conscientiously trimming weight. That's one way of being certain that the foods served aren't pound adders.

Planning the main dish is the most significant contribution a dieter can make to his own weight welfare when a barbecue party is proposed. He can safely avoid some of the side dishes, but it is difficult to skip the central item on the menu.

Meat, fish and fowl may all be devoid of carbohydrates, but they do have calories and limits must be set on how much the dieter will consume. Still, the main dish need not be a tasteless and dried-out hulk. It can be juicy and flavored with tantalizing sauces without cause for caloric alarm.

Lamb, for example, is famous for its low calorie content. Selected lean lamb chops delicately broiled in a covered barbecue kettle and glazed with mint sauce promise compliments to the chef and do favor to the weight-watcher as well. Here's the recipe:

GLAZED LAMB CHOPS
1 jar mint jelly (10-oz.)
1 teaspoon butter
1 cup white wine
1½ teaspoons dry mustard
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon onion salt

(Mix ingredients and stir over moderate heat until jelly is melted. Select lean lamb chops at least an inch thick. When charcoal briquettes have grayed all over, spread them evenly and place the chops on the grill. Cook them for five minutes per side, basting frequently with glaze sauce. Brush on additional sauce when serving.

The remainining sauce can be poured over the chops when served, but the dieter had better stay with that brushed on during broiling. That way he can keep his calories under 200 per chop.)

• • •

If the occasion demands something more formidable as a central dish for the barbecue, a sirloin tip roast is ideal for the weight-conscious eater. The cut is generally quite lean and when roasted slowly in a covered oven a serving will have about 240 calories.

A barbecue kettle a few more calories are added by marinating the meat prior to cooking, but it's a small price to pay for the rich taste marinating gives the sirloin roast. Try it.

MARINATED SIRLOIN TIP
1 cup soy sauce
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup dry, red wine
½ cup pineapple juice
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon garlic powder.

(Choose a four to five pound sirloin tip roast. Mix above ingredients and bring to a boil over moderate heat to dissolve the brown sugar and blend the ingredients. Allow it to cool. Place roast in deep dish and pour marinade over it. Marinate for 24 hours turning the meat periodically.

When ready to cook, prepare charcoal briquettes for indirect broiling with an aluminum foil drip pan in the center to catch the drippings. Center the roast above the pan and cook for 15 minutes per pound for medium. Baste frequently with the marinade.)

Properly oriented by the dieter, himself, a patio barbecue party can be as much fun for the weight-watcher as it is for those who can happily munch anything without gaining a pound.

Women Wished Farewell

At a coffee at the Top Five Supper Club, the Sergeant Major Wives of Fort Benning said goodbye to four of their departing members.

Mrs. Charles Fletcher, presiding lady, presented gifts of silver to Mrs. David Frances, Mrs. Robert H. Lueceford, Mrs. Joe B. Blackwell and Mrs. John T. Hayden.

The tables were decorated in a Fourth of July theme.

Hostesses were Mrs. Acy Akridge, Mrs. Thurmon Willard, Mrs. Walter Cunningham and Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick.

Ladies of 197th Infantry Meet At Farewell, Planning Coffees

Ladies of the 197th Infantry Brigade met at two separate coffees to bid farewell to those departing and to prepare an August luncheon.

Meeting for coffee in the home of Mrs. Timothy Morgan, the 7th Bn., 18th Arty. ladies got an early start on decorations for the 197th Infantry Brigade August officers wives luncheon and turned the get-to-gether into a work session.

Those attending the coffee, co-hosted by Mrs. M. H. Beach, brought non-perishable items for the Army Community Service food locker.

The Brigade Officer's Wives luncheon, scheduled for Aug. 20 at the Supper Club, will feature a wig show by the American Wig Warehouse.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Roy Wallace and Mrs. Conrad Zimmer at an earlier coffee held the evening of July 9 by the ladies of the 197th Infantry Brigade Headquarters.

Although a sudden downpour curtailed the outside activities, the picnic theme was still appropriate with the serving of homemade ice cream.

31 Children Enjoy Crafts

Heavy showers last Saturday afternoon failed to dampen the enthusiastic spirits of 31 exceptional children who enjoyed craft activities at Fort Benning's McBride School.

Four projects, compatible with the ability of the individual child, were presented by volunteers from the Handicap Committee, Army Community Services, and the Parents and Friends of Exceptional Children, who jointly sponsor the program at Fort Benning.

One group of youngsters made a game to play, another made napkin holders, older children fashioned tic tac toe games and net stocking bags. The afternoon ended with refreshments.

Leader of 'the Anderson Platoon'

Subject of French Documentary at Fort Benning

By Sp4 Ron Johnson

Captain Joseph B. Anderson Jr., 21st Co., 2nd Stu Bn., TSB, left post July 9 to help judge the Miss New Jersey Pageant. This enviable task is one of many honors which have been given to Captain Anderson beginning with his appointment to the United States Military Academy, West Point, N.Y. He was the first Negro from Kansas to receive this honor.

He has since become one of the most famous soldiers in the United States Army. He is known to millions of people at home and abroad as the commander of the platoon which was the subject of the award winning French documentary "The Anderson Platoon." The film, and the television adaptation concerning the lives and actions of the captain's platoon in Vietnam, won the Academy Award and the Emmy Award for "the best documentary produced in 1967."

Attended Airborne and Ranger

Captain Anderson graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1965. That same year he completed Airborne Training and Ranger Training here. From December 1965 to June 1966 he was a platoon leader and a company executive officer in the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C. He was then rotated to Vietnam and served with the 1st Cavalry (Air Mobile) Division.

During this first four months in combat, he was awarded the Silver Star Medal for heroism, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device and the Army Commendation Medal for heroism. He was later awarded the Bronze Star with 1st oak leaf cluster and the Air Medal.

After serving in Vietnam for several months, he was contacted by French film director Pierre Shoendorffer. Shoendorffer had been sent to make a film of the Vietnam conflict. He had selected the 1st Air Cavalry (Air Mobile) Division for his subject because it was involved with the modern Air Mobile concept.

Shoendorffer

Shorendorffer chose Anderson's platoon in particular because there were many draftees and men of different races and regions of the U.S. He wanted to get a cross-section of average American men. The fact that Anderson was a Negro U.S. Military Academy graduate who was still proficient in his college French also entered into the decision.

The French director and his two cameramen stayed with the platoon for six weeks. The final product was not shown in the United States until July 4, 1967. It has been broadcast over CBS, and was made into a motion picture for showings throughout the United States and Europe. In the same year Capt. Anderson was chosen the Army's nominee as one of the "Ten Most Outstanding Men in the United States." Also in 1967, he was named "Kansan of the Year" by his home state of Kansas.

Returns from Vietnam

Upon returning from Vietnam, Capt. Anderson went to work as commanding officer of an Advanced Infantry Training unit at Ft. Dix, N.J. He enjoyed the work, but liked his next job better. He became Aide-de-Camp for Major General Kenneth W. Collins, Ft. Dix commander.

Korean General To Visit Post Next Week

Major General Chang Woo Lee will arrive at Fort Benning next week for a two-day orientation visit at the Infantry Center and Infantry School here.

He will review troops from Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry and will receive an artillery salute from Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery.

The Fort Benning visit is part of a tour of U. S. military installations that has taken the Korean general to Fort Bragg, N. C., and U. S. Continental Army Command Headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va.

Civic Action Program Popular With Natives

LZ BALDY, Vietnam, (AMERICAL IO) — A doctor from the Americal Division examines the neck of an infant Vietnamese boy, his skilful hands move carefully over the entire throat area of the child.

Near-by an assistant applies a bandage to the foot wound of an elderly man. Seated on a bench another aidman prepares a needle and syringe, ready to inject a dose of much needed penicillin.

Anxiously crowding around the doctor and his helpers are dozens of other Vietnamese, both young and old, who are patiently awaiting medical care. Their ailments range from toothaches to skin infections. To people involved in the Medical Civic Action Program of 3rd Bn., 82nd Arty., 196th Infantry Brigade, this scene is typical whether it be an old, dilapidated building, a village school room or a bootch in a busy market place.

"One of the primary objectives in going to the villages with our MEDCAP program," said Capt. Robert Lehman, battalion surgeon, "is to teach the Vietnamese people personal hygiene. Many of their problems would be eliminated if they kept clean. We give a lot of the people a half a bar of soap and show them how to use it. A majority of them have never even seen a bar of soap before."

A mere glance at their frail bodies quickly reveals that malnutrition is high on the list of major problems confronting the average villager. For this reason the medical team carries an ample supply of vitamin pills which they hand out frequently.

When first presented with these vitamins, the individual doesn't know what to make of them, but with proper explanation and instruction from an interpreter, he soon learns their purpose.

The use of medical drugs to combat the spread of disease and infection is an important preventative measure employed by the 3-82 MEDCAP personnel. "We treat many of the people," said S.Sgt. Lynwood Noxworthy, section sergeant at Headquarters and Headquarters Service Battery Aid Station, "by giving them penicillin and other antibiotics. Most of them never come back again for further help so we do our best to aid them in one treatment."

Everyone who comes for medical help, receives something and it isn't always a shot of penicillin. Children of all ages are popular patients and oftentimes their only complaints are that of headaches or sore throats. "To remedy this," said S.Sgt. Noxworthy, "we are always equipped with plenty of aspirin and cough syrup. To a small child, receiving a bottle of cough syrup is a real treat."

The Vietnamese readily accept the medical aid program afforded by the MEDCAP team. "They are quite responsive to us," said SP5 Arthur Miller, senior aidman at headquarters aid station. "We can aid up to a hundred villagers in an hour and a half and the waiting line is still long."

CAMP EVANS, VIETNAM . . . A bugler on a hill overlooking the A Shau Valley plays taps at a memorial service for fallen soldiers of the 2nd Bn., 319th Arty., 101st Abn. Div.

CHAPEL BY SEA . . . A 101st Abn. Div. chaplain conducts services atop a mountain overlooking the South China Sea. His congregation on the sand bagged gun pit-chapel are members of the 1st Bn., 321st Abn. Arty.

ARTILLERYMEN OF THE 3RD BN., 319th Arty., 173rd Bde., drive stakes securing the platform of their 105 mm howitzer in the Vietnam center highlands. The platform enables the "redlegs" to turn the gun for firing in any direction.

Raft Moves Heavy Equipment

TAY NINH, Vietnam (25th Inf. Div. IO)—"Since we can't fly it, float it." That was the response when Echo Company of the 65th Engineers had to have more heavy equipment at the construction site of a 25th Infantry Division patrol base seven miles away.

The heavy crane and bull dozer could not be air-lifted because of their weight and the ground was too marshy to drive them, so a large float was constructed.

The result involved four steel rafts with inflatable pontoons, two small boats, two truck loads of nine foot steel beams, a crane, dozer, and jeeps. The convoy-like caravan wended its way out of Tay Ninh base camp to the nearby Oriental River launching site.

Once there, a dozer backed off its carrier and cleared the river bank of debris. A crane set up position along the bank and began to lift rafts off of their carrier trucks; meanwhile, a compressor was furiously blasting air into its pontoons. Small boats were set floating and then fastened together forming a huge raft about 30x40 feet.

Echo Company connected the raft to the shore line as the machinery was driven aboard. The raft was completed and loaded with equipment. Bravo Company, 4th Battalion, 9th Infantry scrambled aboard and took security positions.

The float was pushed down the Oriental River for several miles by a 27-foot "Bridge-Erector Boat" to pick up the bulldozer.

The raft and the bulldozer then moved up the Oriental River to a canal that led to the final destination. Because the canal was so narrow, the raft had to be turned sideways and pulled in to allow its passage.

First Lieutenant Robert Feller of Charlottesville, Virginia, was in charge of the Echo Company rafting operation.

"The difficulty of the operation," stated Feller, "was the narrowness of the canal which left only inches to spare on each side of the raft."

Upon arriving at its final destination, the heavy equipment was used at the fire support base to clear fields of fire and to construct a berm around the perimeter, which later proved to be vital to the defense of the base.

When attacked by an estimated two battalions of NVA, the fact that the 4th Battalion of the 9th Infantry only suffered one casualty during the attack was ample proof of the equipment's contribution.

Sergeant Says Thumbs Down on Discharge

By Sp4 Ron Johnson

Master Sergeant Norman H. Ford was offered a medical discharge from the Army and 60 per cent disability pay for life. He didn't take the offer. In fact, he applied for a waiver when he was discharged because, "I felt that I could continue to be an asset to the Army". He is now serving as NCOIC of the S-2 section, TSB.

MSgt. Ford had left the Army once before, but had rejoined he says, "because it was where I belonged". His first enlistment was from 1952 to 1955. He worked as a clerk-typist, spending time at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., and the Atlanta Army Depot, and attained the grade of E-5. He was discharged after his three-year tour and went to work for a lumber and hardware company in his hometown, Dawson Springs, Kentucky. In 1960, he again donned the Army green.

For three years he worked as an operations sergeant in Wurzburg, Germany with the 3rd Inf. Div. He was stationed at Fort Chaffee, Ark., for two years, and then joined the 9th Inf. Div. at Fort Riley, Kan. Shortly thereafter, the unit deployed to Vietnam.

On May 19, 1967, his unit was performing operations near Bihn Phouc. The APC in which he was traveling as operation Sgt hit a land mine and exploded. MSgt. Ford suffered severe leg injuries including seven fractures and the loss of his left heel. He was immediately evacuated from the area, and within 45 minutes was in a surgical hospital. He says, "I probably would not have lived if it were not for the speed on the medical evacuation system." Within a few days he was in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., where he would spend the next 21 months.

MSgt. Ford had six operations and treatment for Osteomylitis while at the hospital. After his recovery, he was discharged from the Army. He immediately submitted papers for a waiver of the discharge, and with the help of Major Frank Phalen, operations officer for his unit, the waiver was granted. (Maj. Phalen is presently with the Brigade and Battalion Opperations Department, USAIS.

Sergeant Ford came to TSB after his release from the hospital. He says, "the worst part about the hospital was the boredom — you had to make your own recreation. It feels good to get out." Prior to his injury, he was an avid golfer, and still plays occasionally. Sgt. Ford lives on post with his wife, Christine, and their three children, Doug, Cheryl, and Stephen.

Blood Donors Set Record

"The best show in some time:"

A Red Cross spokesman said this about the blood drive held at Kimbro Gymnasium last Saturday, which produced 619 pints of blood from ATC's Second Brigade, with over 600 pints being given by the ROTC Basic Summer Camp cadets.

The 9th Battalion established a record contribution of 426 pints.

Retired Activities Smooth Way To Civilian Life

This is the first of a two-part series on Retired Activities Section. It deals with pre-retirement counseling and the second part will deal with counseling of those who have already retired.

Scores of men and women here are ready for retirement from active duty with the U.S. Army because of a program offered by the retired Activities Section, Personal Affairs Branch, Adjutant General Section, U.S. Army Infantry Center.

Under the direction of Maj. Harold W. Spangler Jr., specialists in the section provide various types of counseling service to people planning to retire.

"We offer all military persons with 18 or more years of active military service an opportunity to participate in our preretirement program," Spangler said.

"In dealing with pre-retirement portion of our service, we divide this into a two-phase program. In phase one, we bring in speakers from many areas, including other government agencies. Among these are the Veterans' Administration, Social Security, Georgia State Employment Service and the Civilian Personnel Office of Fort Benning," he said.

Every three months, meetings are held at which the speakers explain how they can be helpful to a retired member of the Army. There is a question and answer period. From 120-140 persons attend the quarterly programs. Although planned for two hours, the meetings usually last longer due to the number of questions asked.

Spangler said, "In our phase two portion of the program, we offer direct employment assistance. This consists of counseling, testing and placement, all of which is handled by the Georgia State Employment Service."

He stated, "During this phase, we also provide each individual a handbook of brochures and pamphlets on such subjects as National Service Life Insurance, and Department of the Army sources," he said.

Government Info

"In addition, we provide other pertinent information available from government Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, Medicare and Social Security."

"We have found that the program is most effective when these about to retire participate in a combination of phase one and phase two. Participation is strictly on a volunteer basis," Spangler explained.

By keeping abreast of employment trends in many states, the section provides an additional service to prospective retirees. Letters from industry, city governments, stores, real estate firms, hospitals, Junior ROTC programs and others seeking retired military people are made available for examination.

"Many times we are not capable of providing the exact service the individual needs but we put him in touch with the agency that can help him," the major stated.

In Operation Over Two Years

In operation for just over two years, the program here was one of three set up in a pilot project in the Third U.S. Army area. Its success has contributed to plans to implement the program on an Army-wide basis.

"Most of our counseling is done individually here in the office. However, we do have a large number of telephone inquiries coming in daily," Spangler said.

"Our counseling covers a number of areas. One of the most important deals with impressing on those with whom we deal that designation of an insurance beneficiary can only be accomplished in writing to National Service Life Insurance Headquarters or to any civilian insurance companies involved. No form other than Service Mens Group Life Insurance in a personnel records file (201 file) is adequate for designation of beneficiary," the major said.

"We also assist in preparing resumes and make all appointments for Veterans' Administration representative who comes here several times each week from Atlanta," he said.

"In addition, we become involved in a great deal of counseling on the medicare program in preretirement counseling. We also explain the options and methods of converting government insurance policies," Spangler stated.

Every man that I have counseled since assuming the position has planned to work in some capacity following his retirement from active duty," Spangler said.

Pre-ROTC Cadet Follows in His Brother's Footsteps

By Spec 4 Ken Sturzenacker

"Following in his brother's footsteps" is the approach taken by a pre-ROTC cadet currently participating in the unique six-week basic summer camp here.

Griffin T. Lassiter of Montgomery, Ala., will march onto the University of Alabama campus this fall and into a spot in the advance ROTC program formerly held by his brother, 1st Lt. Joe F. Lassiter.

Lt. Lassiter is presently serving as legal officer of the 197th Inf. Bde.

The Lassiter brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Lassister Sr., Montgomery, both expressed a sense of obligation and duty in pursuing the ROTC program.

Joe Lassiter summed it up for both brothers, "I didn't believe in trying to stay out of the service and never even thought that I might not serve.

"All the people I knew, like and respected when I went to college were part of the ROTC course.

"It was the method of earning a commission I was most familiar with at the time, so I took advantage of it."

Lt. Lassiter, who was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1965, came on active duty as a first lieutenant last year after completing work for a law degree at the Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham.

He is scheduled to go to Long Binh, Vietnam, in September.

"I've had my brother as an example and as sort of a counselor, all along," said Griffin. "I made up my mind that I wanted to graduate with a commission, so the university's ROTC program was the natural point to turn to."

The younger Lassiter brother will transfer this fall from the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., to his brother's alma mater.

"The University of the South had an Air Force program, but I wanted an Army commission. And the University of Alabama has majors in journalism and communications—the areas I hope to go into after I complete my tour of active duty."

The brothers will stick together in their choice of branch, also, if Griffin gets the commission he wants in the Adjutant General Corps.

Of the three weeks of training he has received, Griffin feels the time spent at the Leaders Reaction Course, solving problems arising in hypothetical situations, has been the most valuable.

"That period spent solving those problems soundly demonstrated the principles we've been learning on the necessity of developing a solid leadership technique and a logical approach to solving problems.

"To me," Griffin concluded, "it's been the best training in terms of what it means to be a leader that I've had so far."

Mathematics Whiz Attends ROTC Camp

By Spc 4 Ken Sturzenacker

A man who has done everything in the field of mathematics except write the textbook is taking part in the basic ROTC summer camp.

Roosevelt Gentry, a native of Jackson, Miss., is a second year graduate student at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., where he is studying for his PhD in mathematics.

Gentry was graduated as valedictorian of this class at Jackson State College, the third straight time he has earned top honors. He also was valedictorian of his junior and senior high school classes.

Only 20 at the time he entered the graduate school of mathematics, Gentry said, "I was several years younger and than most of the people around me, and it took some time to adjust. But now the workload is such that I don't have to time to think about it."

During his undergraduate days at Jackson State, Gentry was named to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1966-67" and received the Dansby Bond Award, the highest award any student can be given at that school. He also has received an honorable mention for a National Woodrow Wilson Fellowship.

In addition, Gentry was honored along with three of his brothers because all four were full time students at the same time in the same college with none on loans or scholarships.

Gentry already has written computer programs in six different computer languages and operates a host of office machines, including the IBM 1620 and the IBM 7044 computers.

He taught mathematics part time, and said the instructional period he spent widened his experience. "It gave me an opportunity to see things from the other side of the desk, and provided some valuable insights to what is demanded of a teacher."

CADET GENTRY

"The skills demonstrated by the Ranger Department in their demonstration provided some idea of what degree a soldier can be trained and the kind of personal reserves he must call on when he needs them.

Gordon To Talk On Animal Bill

A representative of the Columbus Metropolitan Animal Shelter will speak Sunday on a soon to be proposed bill to regulate the use of animals in medical research.

Norman Gordon will speak at the Kelley Hill Service Club at 2 p.m. on the bill which will be introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate next week.

Gordon said the bill will try to prohibit current abuses in experimental laboratories and set mandatory requirements for the use of anesthesia and pain relieving drugs on animals.

He will also show a film entitled "My Dog, the Teacher."

Arts and Crafts Center Offers New Painting, Drawing Class

By Terry Davis

A new art class offering instruction in elementary painting and drawing began last week in the recently opened Arts and Crafts Center here.

The instructor for the class is Sid Solomon, a civilian artist who has conducted art classes previously both at Fort Benning and in the Columbus school system.

Current instruction is being given to beginners who are teenagers and older. Two classes are offered Thursdays from 2-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. Facilities are available for oil, water color, charcoal, pastels and colored ink. Some supplies are furnished. Others can be purchased at the center.

The aim of the program is to create interest in art. Solomon hopes to expand the classes into other areas such as print-making and pottery throwing.

Assistant art instructors from the Columbus area will be hired soon, he said.

Before beginning a Civil Service career, Solomon, a native of Worcester, Mass., attended the Worcester Art Museum School, Corcoran Art School in Washington, D. C., and Florida State University in Tallahassee, Fla. At Corcoran, he won first place prizes in painting and sculpture.

The 34-year-old artist came to the Columbus area while serving in the U. S. Army. His last tour of duty was spent at Fort Benning. He and his wife now live in Columbus.

Portrait painting is his first love and his work has been displayed in the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts. Examples of his portraits can be seen in the fine arts room at the Arts and Crafts Center.

Solomon hopes more soldiers with art experience will use facilities now available. The studio is open daily except Monday for the use of all interested persons on post.

Fort Personnel Wend Way to 'Buy Anything' Auction

BY MARIE VISHER

Increasing numbers of Fort Benning the fold are wending their way to the Port City Auction House where they join local residents in a vanishing pastime — the Saturday night auction.

These enthusiasts bear summer heat and winter cold to share in the nostalgia, uncertainty and excitement peculiar to this uniquely American economic form.

The auction house owner, Calvin Floyd, is a Twentieth Century version of a horse trader and his "I'll - buy - anything" philosophy accounts for the incredible variety of items offered.

In a single night antiques, new furniture, housewares, Christmas toys, gift items, imported perfumes and furniture cleaner may be offered to the 250-300 people who regularly attend.

Auctioneer Gerald Bowie has a fast pace delivery that stops abruptly if he thinks the bids are too low or too high. While most auction managements are characterized by a "buyer beware" policy, Floyd and Bowie realize that a happy customer comes again.

Lt. Col. John L. Nixon Jr., 5th Bn., 31st Inf., tells of an occasion when several people had purchased an item for $3.50 and Bowie suddenly announced, "Calvin says you people are paying too much. This thing sells for $1.67 at K-Mart."

Floyd guarantees satisfaction on all purchases of new merchandise. As far as antiques are concerned, he guarantees his representations, "If it matters that a piece is walnut and I said it was oak, I'll take it back."

Nixon purchases at the auctions include a dozen ornate picture frames for $3, three of which Mrs. Nixon has had made into mirrors. They have also purchased an oak hall stand for $26.

The Nixons' opened a wash stand they brought home and found it was full of personal papers of the previous owners who, incidentally, lived in Pennsylvania and were having financial troubles.

Mrs. Nixon and Floyd agree that any antique piece purchased at the auctions usually goes for about one-half of what it would cost in a shop.

Floyd had his first estate sale recently and the Nixons and Maj. and Mrs. Robert A. Thompson, 197th Bde. staff, made classic auction buff purchases at that sale. The Nixon's bought a silver coffee percolator-carafe, patent date 1893, for $17 and a silver chafing dish, patent date 1906, for $12.

The Thompson's, who were attending their first auction as the Nixon's guests, bought a silver cocktail shaker and six silver goblets for $12. The Thompsons plan to attend more auctions.

Like the Thompson's, most of the people who attend the auction become "regulars" and attend as frequently as other commitments allow. Two couples from the Lawson Army Aviation Command attend regularly, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Warren C. Davis and Lt. Col. and Mrs. James E. Miller.

During our interview Floyd identified the Davis couple rumaging through the old furniture. "They've been with me for eight or nine months. I think Colonel Davis buys things just to repair them."

Floyd is a man who thinks in van loads, tons and hundreds. "I recently bought five tons of plastic fishing worms. I haven't taken delivery yet, but I've sold most of them."

Floyd then pointed to about 100 drawers of varying sizes piled on top of the restrooms, "That's all that's left of 400 drawers that I bought because they were such a good buy. Someone tried to buy them the other day but I priced them at $10 each because I want to look at them a while longer to remind me never do that again."

For many, the Saturday night auctions are a family affair and many children are seen in the assemblage. The auction business itself involves Floyd's family with his wife and daughter selling concessions and his son aiding the auctioneer.

Although the auction begins at 6 p.m., the items to be sold are on display all Saturday afternoon. Col. and Mrs. John E. Strever Jr., 197th Inf. Bde. commander, usually come in the afternoon to select the items on which they will offer bids with Mrs. Strever returning in the evening to do the bidding.

She recently purchased a sword to add to her husband's sword collection. Stever speculated that its origin was either Siamese or Indian as the blade is ornately etched with a Balinese goddess on one side and a temple scene on the other. Small rounds of silver are inset into the teak scabbard and the dramatically curved handle is made of horn.

The auctions have been held for about two years but Floyd added antiques last year and he said his military crowd began then. Antiques now account for about 80 per cent of his sales.

He said military buyers seem to prefer smaller pieces and he tries to have his best antique auction the first Saturday after payday. He buys antiques in van lots from Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. Saturday night he will be selling "a load from Massachusetts."

Without perservance or a guide, a would-be auction-goer will never find the corrugated steel warehouse in the Merry Acres Industrial Park. A cola company has recently provided a sign at the turn off Morris Road, but is probably easier to see the cola ad than the auction house name in dark letters below it.

Decorators, collectors, refurbishers, investors or simply skeptical tag-alongs will find the Port City Auction House an intoxicating and amusing piece of Americana.

PLAYMATE: Nancy Mayfield, "Playboy's" July Playmate of the Month, a student at home in Southern California's sunny Alhambra, was discovered by an alert photographer at a friend's wedding, where she served as a bridesmaid. As things came to pass, she not only was accepted as Playmate, but she left her job at a local bank and joined the photographer as girl Friday. Looking back, she says: "The luck of the Irish was certainly with me that day."

Ellington To Compose Music for Moon Landing

ABC News announced that it had commissioned Duke Ellington to compose and perform an original piece of music to mark man's landing on the moon.

The music will be given its premiere during the network's 20 hours of continuous Apollo 11 programming from noon Sunday through 6 p.m. Monday, the period in which the U. S. astronauts are scheduled to take the world's first steps on the lunar surface.

The Ellington composition will be performed at the ABC News Apollo 11 Headquarters in New York City in a studio specially designed and constructed to simulate the lunar landing site and housing exact replicas of the spacecraft's components.

The music will be for piano, bass and drums and will take approximately 10 minutes to perform. Included in the composition will be music for voice entitled "Moon Maiden," which will be sung by the duke.

The vocal segment of the music written to commiemorate the first lunar landing also will represent the public debut of Ellington as a singer. He also will perform the part for the piano.

The duke, whose full name is Edward Kennedy Ellington, is one of the earth's most renowned composers and musicians. Last April 29, on the occasion of his 70th birthday, he was accorded a dinner party at the White House by President Nixon and presented the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

The duke also is a member of the National Council of the Arts and has been awarded about a dozen honorary doctoral degrees.

LONDON SYMPHONY CONDUCTOR
Zubin Mehta

London Symphony Will Play Aug. 18

One of the world's greatest orchestras, the London Symphony, will play a benefit concert in Columbus at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 18.

The concert, which will be held in the air-conditioned Three Arts Theatre, 1020 Talbotton Road, will be a benefit for the further restoration of the Springer Opera House, a gem of High Victorian architecture which was built in 1871. The Springer Opera House Guild is sponsoring the event.

The LSO, which winds up its month-long series of appearances at the Florida International Music Festival, Daytona Beach, just before the Columbus concert, will be under the baton of renowned conductor Jascha Horenstein.

The program will include selections from Tschaikovsky, Brahams, Haydn, Wagner and Strauss. The Columbus appearance will be the only one the LSO will make outside Florida during its U. S. stay.

Concert-goers may also attend an after-performance gala atop the new multi-level downtown parking facility, Columbus Parking, Inc. The top, which overlooks downtown Columbus and neighboring Phenix City, Ala., will be decorated to simulate an old English pub in a "Lion and Eagle" motif, combining the national symbols of the two countries.

F. Clason Kyle, chairman of the event, said that tickets for the concert are priced at $10 each. All seats in the 1,900-seat Three Arts Theatre will be reserved. Concert-goers electing to attend the gala afterwards will be charged an additional $5.

Kyle said that checks should be made payable to the Springer Opera House Guild and mailed to P. O. Box 5083, Columbus, 31906. Checks should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"We are pleased to be able to bring the London Symphony Orchestra to this area," Kyle said. "It will provide music lovers with the rare treat of hearing one of the world's great musical organizations without having to make a long journey to do so. Fewer and fewer of the great symphonies are touring now, thus depriving potential audiences of the incomparable experience of hearing them perform live."

The Springer Opera House, which will benefit from the concert, is the home of the Springer Theatre Co., which has presented a regular season there since 1965, when the historic structure was saved from demolition and partially restored.

Such notables as Edwin Booth, Oscar Wilde and Franklin D. Roosevelt have appeared there.

Two new performing wings, a children's theatre and a resident ballet company, have recently been added to the organization.

Fort Benning Movie Schedule

Movie Synopsis

SECRET CEREMONY — A strange, haunting drama about a slightly mentally-retarded young girl (Mia Farrow) and her self-established relationship with an aging courtesan (Elizabeth Taylor). Robert Mitchum is the third character which completes the triangle. There's a most unusual ending — so see the picture from the beginning.

THREE IN THE ATTIC — The story of student No. 198200624 better known as Paxton Quigley who is missing from Willard College for men. He is being held captive in an attic by three gorgeous coeds from nearby Fulton College for women. Why is he a prisoner? Will he be able to escape? Does he really want to escape?

PAPER LION — The hilarious account of George Plimpton's adventures at the training camp of the Detroit Lions, culminating in his participation in a real pro game against the St. Louis Cardinals. Plimpton is sent by the editors of Sports Illustrated to the Lion's training camp to write an article from the "inside." His identity is kept secret and the other players think he is a third string quarterback from an obscure Canadian team.

Benning Will Host State Archery Championship

By PFC Bob Vargas

The Chattahoochee Archery Council of the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club will host the Georgia State Archery Field Championship Tournament July 19-20. W. H. Guinn, president of the council, said that 200 or more of the top bow shooters in Georgia will compete in the two-day event. They will represent 27 clubs throughout the state.

The field course, according to Guinn, is in excellent condition and has received a "five star" rating from the National Field Archery Association. In order to receive such a rating the course must have a 14-target-spectator unit: This has been set up for the first time at the course.

The course design is similar to that of a golf course in that is has a front side and a back side. It has 28 targets divided in two units of 14 targets each.

This is similar to shooting nine holes of golf for the first nine and shooting nine holes more to complete the round. One round of the field archery course would be the total of 28 targets.

The tournament will have two rounds of competition. The first starts on Saturday at 1 p.m. and the second on Sunday at 10 a.m.

Ranges have been constructed so that spectators may watch from along a spectator ridge where they can observe 18 of the targets being shot by participants.

The range, with its variety of targets and distances, is made challenging to the archer by using the terrain as part of the obstacles an archer must overcome to score a hit.

The distances to targets varies from 20 feet to 80 yards. Some of the targets archers will shoot at are: The fan target, set up for shooting at a different angle but the same distance, with trees challenging the shooter; the walk-up target, set up at intervals of five to ten yards to try to offset the shooter in his aim; and the "bird" or "mouse", which is the smallest target.

Target faces vary from 6 inches to 24 inches, depending on the distance. For each unit of 14 targets, the same basic yardage is used. It is required that distances be exact. This being a field archery tournament, the official black and white target will be used on the first round and "hunters", on the second.

Archers will shoot in groups of four. The field captain tries to assign archers of equal skill to a group.

Each group selects a target captain who calls out the scores and then pulls the arrows. Two persons keep score cards and the fourth member looks for any stray arrows.

Archers shoot four arrows at each target hoping to score four hits for a possible 20 points.

Shooting will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. The public is invited to attend. There is no charge for admission.

THE FORUM

By Marc Reiff

The annual All-Star game this year should be a wild scoring affair. The American League has by far the more powerful hitters, which, with one mighty swing of their bat could put the game out of reach.

The voting by the players, coaches and managers, put Sal Bando at third base, Rico Petrocelli at shortstop, Boog Powell at first base, Bill Freehan behind the plate, Rod Carew at second base, and an outfield of Frank Robinson, Reggie Jackson, and Frank Howard.

All of the American League starters, except Carew have hit 11 or more homers this year. They had a total of 159 homers, topped by Jackson's 34 and Howard's 32. Of the starters, only Jackson and Bando will be making their first All-Star appearances.

The emergence of Bando this year cuts a string of nine years that Brooks Robinson had made the team. Robinson had started at third base in the last five years as well as 1960 and 1961. The remainder of the squad including pitchers will be named later by Mayo Smith of the Detroit Tigers. It is quite possible that Mayo will name Robinson to the squad as it would be hard to find a better back up third baseman and in the late innings where defense may make the difference; there is no better glove man than Brooks.

Rico Petrocelli accumulated the highest number of votes, 286, followed by Reggie Jackson's 260, Carew's 255, Robinson's 250, Powell's 210, Howard's 169, Bando's 163, and Freehan's 155.

Over in the National League, Willie McCovey, Hank Aaron, Ron Santo and Don Kessinger are the repeaters in an All-Star line-up that also includes Jonney Bench, Felix Millan, Matty Alou and Clean Jones as first-time starters.

McCovey had 296 votes and Aaron, the Atlanta Braves durable right fielder who was named for the 15th time received 295.

The Cubs, hot in the Pennant race narrowly missed having their outstanding second baseman, Glen Beckert picked as Millan nosed him out. But Santo held off Tony Perez of Cincinnati at third base, 196-151. And Kessinger outdistanced Denis Menke of Houston, 228-103. Bench easily won the catching job over Randy Hundley by a 261-76 margin.

Aaron led the three outfielders with 296. Alou of Pittsburgh, who has more hits than any other player, drew 232 votes and Jones of the surprising New York Mets, the batting leader, was third with 152. Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, a four-time batting champion was the next closest with 56 votes.

At the time of this writing, the starting pitchers have not been named but it is certain that Dave McNally, Dennis McLain and Mickey Lolich will certainly be among those chosen to represent the American League. Strikeout artist Sam McDowell should also be included and it is hard to see how the National League will overcome these formidable players. I do not think it will be a pitchers game as it was last year. Not with the awesome display of power of both teams.

Willie Mays won last year's game at Houston where the score was 1-0 in the year of the pitcher. But this year Jackson is ahead of both Babe Ruth and Roger Maris in his quest to become the all time home run king (for one season) and the runs may flow like water in what could be the most interesting game in years.

197th Finishes First Half Of Slow Pitch Play

A Co. 197th Support Battalion, by virtue of its 9-5 playoff victory over B Co. 4-69th Armor is the first half champion of League II.

HHC, 1-29th Infantry, captured first half honors in League III at Kelley Hill.

The winner of League IV was the 72d Eng Co. when it defeated B Co. 5-31st.

ROD AND GUN CLUB NOTES

Gillmore, Provence Make Team

Marksmanship Unit Shooters Qualify for U.S. Skeet Team

By Bill Kloeb

The hot weather has apparently discouraged a lot of fishermen. There were no changes in the standings of the July Fishing Derby. Capt. Jimmy R. Ford, co-winner of the June bream contest still leads that category with a 14-ounce catch made at Patterson Pond July 1. M-Sgt. Leonard S. Dill leads the catfish contest with a four-pound 15-ounce entry caught at Victory Pond July 4. Peter Swiderdk, son of Sgt. Benidict Swiderdk has the best bass entry with the nine-pound six-ounce lunker he took from Harp Pond July 4.

For the information of interested newcomers to the post we'd like to explain the mechanics of the Fishing Derby. The Rod and Gun Club is sponsoring a monthly derby from April to October. Prizes are awarded the fisherman catching the largest bass, bream and catfish each month. To enter you must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club, register at the club before going fishing, catch the fish from one of the post ponds and register your catch at the club upon returning. Fish caught after the club closes may be registered the next day.

According to reports, the catfish at Victory Pond are going big for doughballs these days. Doughballs are a very effective bait when properly made. A good way is to simmer a half cup of water and one teaspoon of anise seed for at least three minutes. Add five tablespoons of boney and continue to simmer until a light syrup is formed. Add a small amount of cotton to hold the balls together, then pour in a cup of cornmeal and mix well. Pour the mixture out on a piece of waxed paper and form the doughballs as soon as the mixture is cool enough to handle.

The fame of the black plastic worms in these parts is almost legendary. They seem to be living up to their fame right now. Especially the flip tail type. They can be purchased at the Post Exchange or at local bait and tackle shops or you can make your own rig.

In rigging your own, use a 2-0 or 3-0 weedless hook. Feed the plastic worm onto the hook head first for about an inch ending up with the worm trailing off the bottom of the hook. This gives the worm a wiggling snakelike action when trailed through the water.

After casting out to a likely spot, reel in very slowly, stopping every few feet for a few seconds and start off with a short twitch or jerk. If there is a bass in the vicinity in which you have casted he may take the worm immediately or nail it after the first twitch or two or he may wait until you have almost pulled it out of the water—so don't give up too soon.

Successful fishing takes a lot of patience and confidence. You can put your lure in what looks like a tempting spot but without a little confidence the lure seems to be lifeless and a fish can't take a lure that is being reeled in so fast he can't catch it.

The Rod and Gun Club Board of Governors is constantly striving to improve facilities and activities available to the membership. In the past two years four skeet ranges and a trap range have been constructed. These facilities are as good as any to be found in the southeast. The Chattahoochee Archery Council has been organized. One archery known distance range and four archery field-target ranges have been constructed. These too are amongst the best in the southeast as evidenced by the club being selected as the site for this year's Georgia State Archery Championships which will be held this week-end.

More boats have been located on reservation ponds and new signs have been erected to direct would-be fishermen to the ponds. Facilities at Sportsmans Lounge have been expanded and plans are under way to completely renovate the headquarters building. These are just a few of the facilities and activities available to the membership.

The membership fee is $4 for active duty personnel, retired military personnel and Department of the Army civilians working at Fort Benning. Certain veterans with disability can also qualify. Limited memberships are available to other individuals, subject to approval by the installation commander.

The price of a limited membership is $8 per year. This entitles the limited member use of the trap, skeet, archery and snack bar facilities. A limited member is not permitted to hunt and fish on the reservation.

The United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit placed two of it's skeet team members on the U. S. Skeet team and scored victories and broke records with it's Bolt Teams.

LTC Thomas Gillmore and SSgt. Phillip Provence made the U. S. Skeet team in San Antonio, Texas last weekend. Provence placed 3rd with a 292 in the U. S. Skeet team tryouts and Gillmore placed 4th with a 291. Two Civilians and one air force shooter also placed.

From San Antonio to Oak Ridge, Tennessee we go to the Southern States Long Range High Power Rifle Tournament. New records were set here and new victories won for the unit. Though the team only placed second in the individual match they came back to show that they had what it takes to win by breaking two team records.

The first was a four man team match Course B. This is a course which is fired at different distances and positions, from 200 yards to 1000 yards. The old record of 1759 was broken by a new record of 1767.

The 1000 yards team also broke a record of 399 by scoring 400.

SFC Myles Brown came from behind to win the Ft. Benning Monthly High Power Rifle Match as a new record was set in the 1000 yard team match last week.

Brown started slow in the match. He didn't place in the 200 yard rapid fire match or the 200 yard slow fire matches. SSgt. Earl Waterman won the 200 yard rapid fire match and SSgt. Anthony Leibhart won the 200 yard slow fire match.

When Brown approached the 300 yard line he settled down and put nineteen in the ten-ring, six of the nineteen in the ten-ring, six of the nineteen in the smaller x-ring within the ten-ring for 199-6x. His 199 was only good for second place. SFC James McQuien fired the same score but he placed nine rounds in the x-ring for a first place score of 199-9x.

Brown, firing in the first of two 600 yard matches again placed second. He fired 197 compared to SFC Raymond Calver's 198.

Then in the final 600 yard match Brown topped his teammates with a 196 giving him a 981 total for the Championship. Leibhart was second and McQuien was third.

League Winners Receive Awards

By PFC Bob Vargas

The 1969 Youth Activities baseball program, with 445 boys participating this year, drew to a close with one game left to be played in the Pony League.

The program, designed to provide boys with organized activity for their leisure time, ended with awards being presented to members of championship and runner-up teams. The boys, sons of active and retired personnel, received patches for participating.

The program was organized into four leagues according to age, which were: Biddy League, seven to eight years, six teams; Pee Wee League, nine to ten years, eight teams; Doughboy League, 11 to 12 years, seven teams; and the Pony League, 13, 14 and 15 years, five teams.

A play-off game for the runner-up spot in the Pony League between the 1Lees and the Mets has been scheduled for a later date. With the exception of this one game the rest of the leagues have completed play.

The season was divided into two halves with the winners of each half playing each other for the championship and runner-up spots.

In the Biddy League, Team Four, coached by S-Sgt. Charles Yancey, Hq. and Hq. Co., U.S. Army Infantry Center (USAIC) with a record of 10 wins and no losses, was the champion. Runner-up was Team One, coached by Sp5 John German, Martin Army Hospital, with a record of seven wins and three losses.

In the Pee Wee League, Team Eight, coached by SFC Ralph Pragoss, 45th Surgical Hospital (Mobile), with a record of 13 wins and one loss, was the champion. Runner-up was team four, coached by S-Sgt. Charles Pierce, Co. A, 4th Bn., 69th Armor, with a record of 12 wins and two losses.

The champion of the Pony League is the Giants, coached by Col. Walter Johnston, U.S. Army Infantry Board, with a record of 11 wins and one loss. The runner-up spot will be decided at a later date with the 1Lees and the Mets tied with identical overall records.

The champion of the Doughboy League was Team Five, coached by 2nd Lt. Marvin J. Maxwell, adjutant, The Student Brigade, with a record of five wins and two losses. Team Four coached by Maj. E. C. Childress, Hq., 931 Engineer Group, was the runner-up with a record of four wins and three losses.

Bible Society Donates 50,000 Bibles to YMCA

NEW YORK—The American Bible Society has announced publication of 50 thousand copies of the New Testament in celebration of the YMCA's 125th birthday. Free gift copies will be placed in every YMCA room across the country.

The special anniversary edition is Today's English Version (TEV) or "Good News for Modern Man," an ABS translation hailed by many as the most understandable Scripture translation ever published.

Unlike many hotel room Bibles, the YMCA edition of the TEV carries an inscription inviting the reader to take the book with him when he checks out. Bibles placed in hotels and motels often are marked: "Please do not remove from this room."

The 600-page paperback contains some 200 line drawings by Swiss illustrator Annie Valloton. Its jacket design is a collage of mastheads from the world's leading newspapers.

Since Today's English Version was first published in 1966, more than 16 million copies have been sold or distributed, and has been the world's best seller for two successive years.

The text on the flyleaf of the special anniversary edition reads in part: "... placed in this room by the American Bible Society in recognition of the 125th Anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association. If you wish to take it with you, please accept it as a gift from the American Bible Society."

There are approximately 1,750 local YMCA's in the United States.

Widows Benefits Increase July 1

ATLANTA—July 1 increases in basic pay to members of the Armed Forces are also bringing higher benefits to between 5 and 6 thousand widows of Georgians who died in military service or died of injury, disease or disability incurred in service, State Veterans Director Pete Wheeler said today.

These recipients are widows receiving dependency and indemnity compensation benefits and are not to be confused with widows drawing pension, Mr. Wheeler noted.

A widow's dependency and indemnity compensation benefits are computed at a rate of $120 a month plus 12 per cent of the base pay of the veteran or serviceman at the time of his death.

The increase in DIC for those recipients in Georgia will be reflected in the August 1 checks.

At any time in the future when pay increases are granted the military, these widows will automatically get an increase.

Fort Chapel Will Show Alcohol Problem Film

"Miracle", a film produced by Unusual Films at Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., will be shown at Sightseeing Road Chapel at Fort Benning at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Filmed under the direction of Katherine Stenholm in the university's film studios, "Miracle" is the story of a victim of alcohol who found the solution to his problem only through the grace and mercy of God.

It is the story of the life of Joe Farelli, world famous musician — drunkard — convicted bum. A man of position, wealth and influence, Farelli sees these assets slip away from him as the bonds of his enslavement to drink grow stronger and tighter.

Finally deserted by his family and friends, he wanders, hopeless and helpless, until he hears the Gospel. Experiencing the miracle of salvation he is lifted from the depths of sin, restored to his family and profession and given a new meaning and purpose in life.

Members of the cast include students and faculty of the Bob Jones University School of Fine Arts.

The public is invited.

Provides Increased Rights and Protection

New Military Justice Act Goes Into Effect August 1

By Sgt. Carol Anbin

The Military Justice Act of 1968, to become effective August 1, provides "increased rights and protection for the accused . . by allowing the accused the right to legal representation, the military lawyer, during a special court martial," said Maj. William P. McKay, deputy staff judge advocate.

He continued, "The act provides for appointment of a military judge, under certain circumstances, to most special courts martial, and also gives the accused the absolute right to refuse trial by summary court martial if he so desires," he continued. He stated, "Of course, the accused must keep in mind that if he does refuse an Article 15, and also a summary court martial, he runs the risk of a more severe punishment should be finally be found guilty by a special or general court martial."

The Military Justice Act of 1968 is the topic of orientation lectures presently being conducted twice daily during the month of July by members of the Judge Advocate General Corps in the staff Judge Advocate Section on post.

The act, signed into law Oct. 24, 1968, has provided several other changes which Major McKay discussed.

"The individual is now able to request trial by military judge alone, having waived his right to a trial before court members—the military equivalent to a jury," the major explained, and continued, "In this instance, the military judge wears the hat of both judge and jury."

Major McKay noted that although this was something new in the military court, it has been in effect in the Federal courts for some time.

"The military judge," McKay explained, "has been in existence since 1951, and is found only in general courts martial, but up until this time was known as the law officer. With his new name go the duties comparable to those of a civilian judge. He now makes all rulings on legal questions, and acts as the presiding officer. Previously the duties of presiding officer were performed by the president of the board."

"Another important change is the right of deferment of a sentence to confinement during the appellate review," the major explained. "As the case goes up through channels to be reviewed, the accused, although found guilty at trial, does not have to spend this time in confinement, providing he has requested and been granted a deferrment."

McKay said, "For example, if a man is sentenced to two years confinement and the review of his case takes six months, he need not spend that time in confinement. If, following the review, the decision is upheld, he then serves his two-year sentence. On the other hand, if legal error is found, the individual has not spent six months in confinement on a sentence that has been reversed. This parallels the civilian system of bail," the major said.

"One change that is especially significant to individuals already convicted under military law," McKay explained, "is the right to petition for a new trial on the grounds of new evidence within two years from the date of approval, regardless of the sentence. Previously, this particular law was restricted to one year.

"There are other changes which are purely technical in nature, but the main emphasis of this act is that it does provide increased protection for the accused," McKay said.

"We, as members of the Judge Advocate General Corps, are extremely pleased with the changes and feel that they are essential to an effectively run system," McKay explained. "The changes brought about by the new Military Justice Act create the fairest system of Military Justice available to members of the Armed Forces anywhere," he said.

"The Judge Advocate General Corps will increase its size by about one third by adding 400 additional officer-lawyers in order to provide the defense counsels and military judges necessary under the provisions of the new act," the major said.

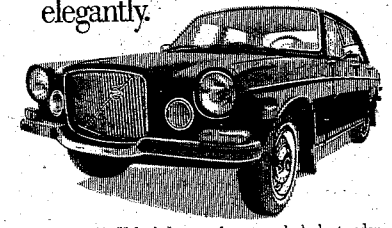
Now you can get out from under car payments... elegantly.



The new 164—Volvo's largest, fastest, and plushest sedan—is now in our showroom.

It has a 6-cylinder engine that provides more pickup than a Mercedes 250. Plus expensive carpeting, bucket seats upholstered in leather, and many other niceties.

But the most remarkable thing about it is the fact that, like all Volvos, it's built to last practically forever. (We can't say how long, but 9 out of every 10 Volvos registered here in the last eleven years are still on the road.)

So after 3 years, you should find yourself keeping the money you'd normally spend on a new car. Instead of giving it to us.

Infantry Through the Ages

Museum's Collection Is 'Valued at a King's Ransom'

By Bill Hardin

From a gas mask for a horse to war trophies from many foreign countries, The Infantry Museum here has catalogued hundreds of items valued collectively at a king's ransom.

Curator John E. Hunter says there are countless items and various collections which are priceless but perhaps the one item in the museum of which he is proudest is an M-14 rifle. It bears the serial number 00001.

"It is one of seven firearms in the museum's collection of more than 1,100 guns which have a number 1 serial number," Hunter said.

"As for the most unique item or items in the museum, I suppose that the Japanese collection would win. It is the world's largest and the world's most complete collection of Japanese firearms," he said.

It contains every variation of every Japanese rifle and pistol made from 1880 to 1945. It also includes most of the machine guns in this period.

"There is also a collection of swords, insignia, flags and other equipment included. We have over 400 items in the collection and we are still adding to it," he stated.

There is an extremely large collection of U.S. experimental weapons and equipment in the museum. In this area is a series of M-16 rifles, including modifications and changes made during the development of the weapon.

Hunter said, "There is much more than firearms and other weapons to see. The 2nd Infantry Division's covered wagon, which is on display in front of the museum, is a good example."

This wagon was sold by the Army in 1917. It was too heavy for poor, unpaved roads so it remained stored in a barn for many years.

"Finally, a noncommissioned officer assigned to the support command of the division, which was then located in the Sand Hill area of Fort Benning, purchased the wagon in 1960. The wagon remains the property of the Support Command, 2nd Infantry Division, presently in Korea," Hunter said.

Among more recently acquired items is a Soviet-made M-45 gun captured in Vietnam. It was presented to the museum by Lt. Gen. William (NMI) Zais, who recently was succeeded as commander of the 101st Airborne Division by a former Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. John M. Wright Jr.

The museum has two Gatling guns. "Most museums don't even have one," Hunter said.

The collection of the unusual also includes an old Quartermaster locomotive and observation car. Between 1921 and 1946, there were 12 engines, 22 coaches, 111 gondolas, scores of flat cars and an observation car in use here. The old steam engine was affectionately known as the Chattahoochee Choo Choo.

"One of the items that attracts the greatest interest among the children who visit the museum," according to the curator, "is the large totem pole which is displayed in front of the museum's entrance. It represents the totem pole which appears in the crest of the 23rd Infantry Regiment, signifying that the regiment was present when the American flag was first raised over Alaskan soil."

The museum displays uniforms and equipment from military units of the past. The oldest item in the museum's collectin is probably a conquistador's helmet. According to Hunter, "It dates back to the Spanish colonial days, probably at least to the 16th century."

Founded in 1959, in its early days, the museum occupied one small frame building. Since then, it has grown so that it now occupies two additional buildings, joined to the original wooden structure by connecting hallways.

The additional space was gained in the early 1960s. An annex and a storage building were added in 1967.

In addition to the curator, the museum's staff also includes a secretary and two soldiers who serve as an armorer and a supply clerk.

There is no charge for admission to the Infantry Museum. It is open Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., and on Saturdays and Sundays from 12:30 - 4:30 p.m. Guided tours of the museum are available for groups. These require a reservation, made by telephoning 545-5413.

Maj. Gen. Izenour Makes Two Day Visit

By Rex Ellis

Major General Frank M. Izenour, Commanding General, U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, made a two-day inspection visit of the US Army Infantry Board at Fort Benning this week.

Arriving at Lawson Army Airfield Wednesday afternoon, the General was met at his aircraft by Col. Charles B. Thomas, President of the Infantry Board. The Infantry Board is a subordinate test activity of the Army's Test Command.

First on his itinerary Gen. Izenour visited Muir Range where he observed the mid-test review and check test of the CB Overgarment being conducted by the Field Equipment Test Division of the Board.

On Thursday morning Gen. Izenour visited with Fort Benning Commander Major General George I. Forsythe at Infantry Hall. From this point Izenour was airlifted by helicopter to the Hedley Pond area where he continued the previous day's activity of witnessing tests. Various tests being conducted by the Infantry Board and which the General observed included testing of the Lightweight Loadcarrying Equipment, Infiltration Vest, and Bayonet Scabbard.

Later in the morning Izenour returned by air to Farnsworth Range for a briefing and firing demonstration of the XM203 weapon system. The XM203 is the combination M16A1 rifle with the attached 40mm grenade launcher.

While visiting the Infantry Board Gen. Izenour reviewed testing results obtained during the last half of fiscal year 1969 and the progress attained on tests presently underway by the test board. In addition, he examined with test board officials the test plans on projects to be tested in the immediate future and status of the plans.

Thursday noon Gen. Izenour was honored with a luncheon at the Fort Benning Officers Club at which the Infantry Board President, Deputy President and test division chiefs attended.

Benning Familiar Post To Iranian Captain

By Sp5 Mike Beck

"I consider myself to be a professional soldier," said Captain Gholam Ali Farid, an Allied student attending Infantry Officer Advanced Class 3-69.

He has good reason to believe himself a professional. He entered the Military Academy of the Iranian Imperial Army when he was 21 years old. Since then, he has either been attending a military course or teaching other military men what he has learned.

Captain Farid, now 34 years old, graduated from the Military Academy in 1959. Immediately after graduation he came to Ft. Benning to attend the Infantry Officer Basic Course and Ranger School. After successfully completing these two courses he went to Ft. Jackson, South Carolina, where he observed the basic combat training conducted at that post.

Following his stay at Ft. Jackson, Captain Farid returned to Iran and took four specialized military courses there: Airborne School, Special Forces School, Combat Snow Training School, and Skydiving School.

He then returned to the Infantry School at Shiraz, Iran, and with 4 other officers and the assistance of the U.S. Military Mission there, set up an Iranian Ranger School. "The Ranger School, or Takavar as it is called in Iran, is similar to the one in the United States," stated Captain Farid, "except we have more desert training and less swamp training. The course is split into five phases and takes nine weeks to complete."

Captain Farid was an instructor at the Ranger School for seven years. During that time he was also the company commander of an infantry basic course company for one year. His company consistently excelled during the course of instruction. Prior to returning to the U.S. to take the advanced class, he was the S-3 officer at the Infantry School in Iran.

After completing the course here, Captain Farid hopes to return to a teaching job. "I like being an instructor," he said. "There is about an 80 per cent chance I will go back to the Infantry School."

Gaines Twins Attend Post Pre-ROTC Camp

By Ken Sturzenacker

Somehow, it always seems as though the same cadet is standing in two different places.

The brothers, 1965 graduates of Columbia High School in Richland, are now attending Washington State University.

The similarities end when the twins go home, however. William is married, while Robert is a bachelor.

The twins have been impressed by the various demonstrations staged for the cadets — especially the exercise designed to show the fighting capabilities of the Rangers.

"The most interesting and valuable training we've been a part of was the Leader's Reaction Course, which is set up to find out how well we can react and take charge under pressure," Robert pointed out.

Vincent Named Executive Officer of Student Brigade

By Spc Ron Johnson

Lt. Col. Henry E. Vincent recently replaced retiring Lt. Col. Ernest J. Cherney as executive officer of The Student Brigade.

Colonel Vincent, a native of Talladiga, Ala., came to TSB from Vietnam, where he served as deputy province senior advisor for Ninh Thuan Province. He now resides at Fort Benning with his wife Ludie and their two children.

"Lt. Col. Vincent began his military career in 1943 as a member of the Marine Corps. He fought during World War II with the 1st Marine Division as a rifleman, and was discharged in 1946. He was a member of the National Guard from 1947 until his unit, the 464th AAA Bn., was activated in 1950.

Attended OCS

He then attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning and was graduated in April, 1952. He remained at Fort Benning with the 30th Inf. until 1953 when he was sent to the 5th Reg. Combat Team, Korea.

Upon his return from Korea, he spent two and one half years with the 44th and 2nd Inf. Divisions at Ft. Lewis, Wash., then gyroscoped to Ft. Richardson, Alaska. Lt. Col. Vincent spent four years in Alaska and says he "would be back in a minute." He likes the outdoors and claims that "The hunting and fishing in Alaska is about the best in North America."

Attended IOBC

In 1960 Lt. Col. Vincent returned to Ft. Benning to attend the Infantry Officers Advanced Course. After graduation he stayed to work with the Ground Mobility Department, and became chairman of the Track Vehicle Committee. He also served as department administrative officer and department operations officer until 1964 when he attended Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

He was sent back to Korea in 1964 and served initially as OIC of the DMZ Tactical Operations Center and subsequently as the 3rd Bde. S-3 and executive officer of the 1st Bn. (Mech) 8th Cav.

Served as G-3

1965 found Lt. Col. Vincent back in the states at Ft. Ord, Calif., where he served for a year in the G-3 section as deputy and then chief of the training division. He stayed at Ft. Ord for 18 more months as commander of the 1st Bn., 3rd Bde., a basic training unit. He left Ft. Ord to go to Vietnam, returning last March.

During his career Lt. Col. Vincent has received many awards and decorations both in the Army and Marine Corps. He holds campaign ribbons for World War II, Korea, and Vietnam, as well as the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Bronze Star with first oak leaf cluster and the Legion of Merit. Despite the fact that he has more than 22 years of service, Lt. Col. Vincent says he "has no plans for retirement."

Reservist Arrive For Training

Members of the staff of the Pittsburgh (Pa.) United States Army Reserve (USAR) School have arrived at Fort Benning to conduct their 14th annual session of the school here.

The 2072nd USAR School, commanded by Col. Gus Nagy, will instruct officers from across the nation in phase two and phase six of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course.

Almost 200 officers of the Army Reserve and Army National Guard will attend the two weeks of instruction.

The summer classes here are held in conjunction with instruction during the year at or near the individual officer's home. This enables him eventually to complete the entire course without requiring lengthy resident instruction here.

The classes begin Monday.

Former 1st Div. General To Speak

A former commanding general of the 1st Infantry Division will be guest speaker during a meeting of the Fort Benning Branch, Society of the 1st Infantry Division, at 8 p.m. July 30 at Victory Lodge.

He is Lt. Gen. W. E. DePuy, assistant vice chief of staff, who commanded the division from March, 1966, to February, 1967.

Mails Bring Classroom to Soldier

An Army reservist in New Jersey sits at home reviewing division organization. A drill sergeant at Fort Leonard Wood studies military leadership to earn promotion points. Junior ROTC cadets in a Wyoming high school learn drill and command. Across the country almost 300,000 men study military subjects from material provided them by the U. S. Army Infantry School's department of Non-resident Instruction.

The department is responsible for developing and administering the military educations of thousands of Reservists, National Guardsmen, ROTC cadets and active duty personnel who look to the Infantry School for instruction and guidance.

The department, headed by Col. Albert N. Ward Jr., performs several functions:

It provides entire courses of instruction for the Army Reserve to use in training personnel at the various reserve units and at USAR schools, where Reservists spend summer active training time. Similar instruction is furnished National Guard units.

Course outlines and instructional material offered at 800 ROTC units — senior and junior level courses — are prepared in the department.

The department also provides military education to over 27,000 correspondence course students who study at home.

The heart of the department is the instructional materials preparation committee. The committee's writers and editors tailor the Infantry School's instructional courses to suit the needs of individuals and groups who do not have direct access to the School's elaborate training facilities.

The job is complex and difficult. Teaching vehicle inspection to a man who does not have a vehicle to work on is an exercise in precise technical writing. A lesson plan on platoon offensive tactics must be particularly descriptive and thorough for Reserve component instructors who teaches without the benefit of the terrain and weapons his class could use for practice.

A large staff of writers, most of whom are retired officers or officers on active duty, labor to prepare the hundreds of lessons the department provides.

The Reserve component committee maintains liaison with Reserve units throughout the country to determine their needs for instructional materials. The committee then provides lesson plans and instructional aids (tests, training aids, etc.) that Reserve units employ in schooling their own members.

The USAR schools, currently operating at Fort Benning during two weeks active duty, use instructional material and lesson plans provided by the Reserve component committee.

A section of the committee also services the National Guard. The instruction program distributed to the 62 National Guard officer candidate schools closely parallels the schooling that Reserve infantry officer candidates at Fort Benning receive in a 9-week Reserve OC program.

The NG officer candidates attend Officer Basic courses at one of the service schools to complete branch training after finishing the programs within their home state schools.

The department provides Guard units with lesson plans, maps, fact sheets and other student aids, and examinations, which the department later scores and returns.

The correspondence course committee offers soldiers on active and Reserve status the opportunity to further their careers and to expand their knowledge through home study.

The various course (entire study programs, such as the Infantry officer advanced course) and subcourses (blocks of instruction covering a particular area of study, such as training management) provide officers and enlisted men with the means to gain further schooling without disrupting their normal duties.

Among the correspondence courses offered are: The NCO Leadership and Career Development special subcourse; the Infantry Non-Commissioned Officer Career Series; the Army Pre-Commissioned Correspondence Course; the Infantry Senior Noncommissioned Officer Career Development course; the Infantry Officer Basic course; and the Infantry Officer Advanced course.

Others include an Infantry officer tactical refresher series and individual subcourses designed to increase proficiency and knowledge in particular subject areas.

Gustus Luckett, executive officer of the correspondence course committee, explained that participation is a correspondence course or subcourse benefits enlisted personnel in several ways:

Increased military knowledge gained through a correspondence course aids an individual's performance and the performance of his unit.

Completion of subcourses boosts an enlisted man's chances for promotion. A man can gain up to 20 promotion points for completion of 30 hours home study. Promotion boards look favorably upon men who better themselves by increasing their knowledge.

Sergeant Major of the Army, George W. Dunaway, is currently enrolled in the department's Senior NCO Career course.

Active and reserve officers seeking to further their careers also benefit by beefing up their credentials through additional schooling.

Student interests are the chief concern of the correspondence course committee. Test results get priority treatment. A punch-card answer sheet received on a Tuesday is usually graded, recorded and on its way back to the student by Thursday, Luckett said. The committee uses the computers of the School's Office of Data Systems to speed handling of test results and student queries.

The storage and distribution division provides vital support to the department. As its name implies, the division maintains the department's massive stock of materials, and handles receipt and distribution of the nine tons of material the department receives and ships weekly.

Colonel Wisdom Retires

By PFC Lee Myers

After 30 years of Army service, Col. Wiley B. Wisdom Jr., deputy post commander of Fort Benning, will retire July 31.

Colonel Wisdom has been assigned to Fort Benning twice during his Army career. From November, 1942, through December, 1943, he was assigned to the Infantry School Tactical Section here.

Prior to his present assignment as deputy post commander, Colonel Wisdom served as director of the U.S. Army Infantry School's Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, arriving at Fort Benning July 15, 1965.

Infantry School

When asked how the Infantry School has changed since 1942, Colonel Wisdom said, "The school continues to improve year by year and it turns out a better product now than in 1942, even though that product was mighty fine."

"One Officer Candidate class was graduating every day then, and the Officer Candidate Course was only three months long. Then almost all of the instruction was conducted in the field, whereas now we can use the classroom with its electronic aids. In 1942, we had few instructors with combat experience."

Colonel Wisdom plans to live in Columbus, Ga., after his retirement. Also planning to continue working, he said, "It would be very difficult to sit down and do nothing. I would never be satisfied to retire completely. Besides, at today's prices, it is essential for a person to work."

Pine Mountain

Colonel Wisdom grew up in Pine Mountain, Ga., though then it was called Chipley. He attended the University of Georgia for three years before attending the United States Military Academy where he received his commission June 12, 1939.

In 1949-50, he attended the Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and in 1954-55, the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

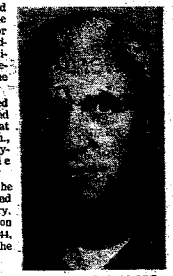
During World War II, he was commander of the 2nd Battalion, 39?th Infantry, 10?th Infantry Division from November, 1944, through May, 1945, in the European Theater.

Three Children

Col. and Mrs. Wisdom, the former Phyllis Thompson of Binghampton, N.Y., have three children: Barbara, 19, who attends Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga., David, 16, a student at Columbus High School; and Wiley, 13, Faith School.

Retirement ceremonies honoring Col. Wisdom will be held on York Field July 31 at 4:30 p.m.

He will review troops from Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry and will be saluted by the 283rd and 281st Army bands.



WILEY B. WISDOM

Succeeding Colonel Wisdom as deputy post commander of Fort Benning is Colonel Talton W. Long. Colonel Long was last assigned here in 1964 as chief of the academic staff of the U.S. Army Infantry School.

Big Red One Commander

Gen. Orwin C. Talbott Named New Post CG

Brigadier General Orwin C. Talbott will assume command of the United States Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning early in September. He comes to Fort Benning from the Republic of Vietnam, where he currently commands the First Infantry Division.

He has been nominated by the President for the 2-star rank of Major General.

General Talbott will succeed Major General George I. Forsythe, who has been nominated for the rank of Lieutenant General and assigned as Commanding General, USA Combat Development Command.

General Talbott attended an Infantry Officers Advanced Course here during the early years of WW II.

His awards and decorations include the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Soldier's Medal, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Purple Heart with Two Oak Leaf Clusters.

General Talbott is a graduate of the National War College, and the Command and General Staff College.

He was commissioned in the National Guard during World War II and received his regular Army commission in 1942.

Pittsburgh Reserve Unit Trains As Instructors

By PFC Lee Myer

Teaching the Infantry Officer Advanced Course is the active duty capability of the 2073 Pittsburgh, (Pa.) U. S. Army Reserve School. They are here fulfilling that capability by teaching phase two and phase six of the course to 210 officer students from the First and Third U. S. Armies.

The advance detachment of the 2073rd arrived at Fort Benning July 13 to prepare for the beginning of classes July 21.

Brigadier General Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the U. S. Army Infantry School here, spoke at the school's opening ceremonies Monday and welcomed Brig. Gen. J. Gilmer Roberbs Jr., commander of the 99th U. S. Army Reserve Command, and Colonel Gus G. Nagy, commandant of the Pittsburgh School. The 2073 Pittsburgh USAR School is under the command of the 99th Army Reserve Command headquartered in Pittsburgh.

Speaking to the Reserves, General Berry said, "It is incumbent upon the United States that we have the best trained soldiers in the world. That is the purpose of the Infantry School. And that is why you are here."

The Infantry Officer Advanced Course phases taught by the 2073rd here during the two week summer session pertain to the Army Readiness System and include supply, unit management tactics, equipment maintenance and personnel management among others.

The Reserve duty capability of the 2073rd is teaching command and general staff courses, officer advanced courses and officer basic courses during the year at or near an individual reserve officer's home to enable him eventually to complete the entire Advanced Officer Course, without lengthy active duty instruction.

The classes taught under the Reserve capability paralled those classes taught in resident courses at a U. S. Army school such as the Infantry School here. Reserve classes meet once a week for two hours from September to May.

The 2073 Pittsburgh School has 17 classes in Pennsylvania from metropolitan Pittsburgh to Erie westward.

General Westmoreland Visits ROTC Cadets

FT. BRAGG, N.C., ROTC — General William C. Westmoreland, US. Army Chief of Staff, visited Fort Bragg's Third Army ROTC Summer Camp.

The General's tour encompassed a briefing by two cadets on leadership and training experiences in camp, as well as observation of sporting events and field training.

At each stop along the way General Westmoreland delivered a brief talk on the purpose of his visit and welcomed the cadets to the responsibilities of the commissioned ranks.

"West Point graduates around 800 commissioned officers each year," he said, "and Officers Candidate School, 8,000." "This year," he continued, "ROTC will produce some 17,000 new Army officers" he said, and he said the young, college graduates will be particularly qualified for leadership.

"ROTC is a source of confidence to every parent in America," he said. "They may rest assured that their sons in service will have the most capable military leadership in the history of the nation."

The Westmoreland visit to ROTC Summer Camp at Fort Bragg, and later today at Indiantown Gap, Pa. reflects his firm belief in ROTC's success in producing high quality leadership for the national defense.

"More than 200 colleges and universities have ROTC programs," he said, "and the quality of both the academic instructions and the field training continues to go up."

Some 3,500 cadets are attending Fort Bragg's Summer Camp. They represent 42 colleges and universities in the Third Army Area.

The six-week summer camp is the field and practical training phase of the primarily academic four-year college ROTC prgram.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

Ground lamb or beef patties won't fall apart during frying if you first mix then with beaten egg.

For centuries man sought a way to preserve summer greens for the cold months. The ancient Chinese preserved cabbage in wine and the Greeks kept it in salt. These efforts led to a tasty discovery—sauerkraut!

Line up strawberries, grapes and pineapple chunks on a shish kebab skewer and use it as a pretty stirrer in a tall glass pitcher of iced tea or punch.

A kitchen hint for the family snapshot expert: Protect unused rolls of film from summer heat and humidity by storing them in a plastic container on the bottom refrigerator shelf.

Many coffee-lovers agree that a few broken eggshells added to the fresh grounds in the coffee pot greatly enhance the flavor.

If you're a food-lover, you'll agree that your dining pleasure is greatly enhanced whenever you visit

Lack of Information on POW's Is A Major Concern

North Vietnam's "consistent refusal" to abide by the Geneva Convention of 1949 is one of the biggest obstacles in obtaining information about United States servicemen listed as prisoners of war or missing in action.

Voicing concern about this "problem" were Charles Havens, Assistant to the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, and Richard Capen, Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs.

Appearing on Pentagon Forum, a Department of Defense television program moderated by John C. Broger, Director of Information for the Armed Forces, Havens and Capen said the subject of "prisoners of war" or "missing in action" receives the highest attention in the Defense Department.

As of early June DoD had 1,340 U.S. servicemen listed as prisoners or missing in action.

"Welfare Of POW's"

Concerned about the welfare and status of POWs, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird has appointed Warren Nutter, Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, as chairman of a defense Prisoner of War Committee. Mr. Havens and Mr. Capen are members of the committee. Mr. Havens has been working on the POW and missing in action problem two years.

Also, in an effort to close the communications gap between Hanoi, the Viet Cong and the United States concerning POW's, Mr. Capen heads a DoD program initiated to prompt the captors to abide by the Geneva Convention. In addition, families are kept informed of the situation faced by the Defense Department in obtaining POW information.

Regarding the 1,340 U.S. servicemen now prisoners or missing in action, Mr. Capen said, "One of the greatest tragedies of all this problem is the fact that almost a thousand of these men are listed as missing in action. So what we have are hundreds and hundreds of families who have lived now up to five years not even knowing whether their husbands, fathers, or sons or other relatives are even alive.

"We believe this is most inhumane. The problem has increase with each month.

Today we have more than 200 U.S. servicemen who have been listed as prisoners or missing in actions for three and a half or more years. This is longer than any U.S. servicemen were held prisoner during World War II. We now have more than 500 U.S. servicemen who have been listed as either prisoners or missing in action for over two years.

So we've attempted to point out the American people the magnitude of this problem in terms of the passage of months and the great hardships on the families involved."

Greatest Problem

Capen joined Havens in noting that the greatest problem with regard to North Vietnam's attitude is its consistent refusal to abide by the Geneva Convention.

The Public Affairs official elaborated:

"The Geneva Convention of 1949 spells out how a country should treat prisoners. North Vietnam has signed this Convention.

"It (the Convention) states first of all that as a bare minimum a country should release to an impartial organization, such as the International Red Cross, a list of the prisoners they hold. They should release the sick and injured immediately.

We know that several of our men were injured at the time they were captured. North Vietnam has consistently refused to release the sick and injured people.

Convention Spells Out

"The Geneva Convention also spells out that there should be impartial inspections of prisoners of war facilities. This, North Vietnam has consistently refused to do.

"And fourthly, the Geneva Convention spells out that prisoners should be allowed to write on a regular basis. We've had a very bad problem with regard to mail.

Most of these families have not received any mail during the entire time of captivity.

INCENTIVE AWARD PROGRAM

Can you give me some details on the Army Incentive Awards Program? What is the authorization for it, how do you go about submitting an idea, and what process does it go through after it is submitted?

Cash awards of up to $25,000 are paid in cash for any ideas which are adapted. Public Law 89-108 passed in 1965 authorized the payment for suggestions, inventions, and scientific achievements of all military personnel on active duty.

Your idea will be recorded, given a title and number piece of paper, or on DA Form 1045. The ideas should contain the following information:

—What is the present practice, system, or item being used?

—What change or improvement do you suggest?

—Where and how can your idea be used?

—What savings or benefits will result?

Your idea should be sent to the Incentive Awards Administrator here on post, or you can check with the First Sergeant or company clerk for assistance. Be sure to get your idea in the correct processing channel.

Your idea will be recorded, give na title and number and you will receive a receipt. (If you do not recieve an acknowledgement within 10 days, check it out. Your idea may not have reached the proper office.)

The Incentive Awards Administrator will forward your idea to the office or organization which is technically qualified to evaluate it and to the office with authority to make a decision.

If your idea is adopted the benefits or savings will be determined and an award based on the benefits will be made.

You may have the same idea as someone else but only the first idea received and adopted is eligible for a cash award.

For additional information you should contact the Incentive Awards Administrator in the Civilian Personnel Office at your station or check with the First Sergeant of the company clerk.

RESERVES

How many reservists and national guardsmen have been sent to RVN:

1. In units?
2. As individuals?

In round numbers: In units — 6,000 As individual replacements — 6,000.

AIRBORNE COSTS

What are the costs of an Airborne Division and an Airmobile Division?

Costs are classified confidential and are not releasable. In a Q & A to the 1965 release announcing the formation of the 1st Cav Div the answer to the question "How does the cost of the airmobile division compare with that of a standard infantry division?" is as follows: The cost of initial equipment and maintenance over a five year period will be 40 per cent more than that required by a standard infantry division. However, this is not like any division that is fielded now by the Army. Thus, direct comparisons are not possible except for dollar value of equipment.

NEW YORK (NAPS)—Fish and seafood salads are perfect summer fare and make a great buffet dish, especially when they are molded and garnished prettily.

The choice of dressing makes a big difference with large buffet salads. Here we give a choice of four flavorful dressings—dill, horseradish, lime and cottage cheese. Garnish the molded salad with crisp iceberg lettuce.

The choice of lettuce and dressing will spark other seafood salads—shrimp, tuna, sea scallops and poached white fish. They go equally well with unmolded salads and are family size.

Lobster Salad

2 (9 to 10 oz.) packages frozen rock lobster tails
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped cucumber
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 chicken bouillon cubes
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups cold water
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 teaspoon grated onion
Choice of Dressing
Western iceberg lettuce
Hard cooked eggs
Parsley, to garnish

(Cook lobster tails according to package directions. Remove meat from shells and cut into chunks. Mix with celery and cucumber. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Cover and chill.

Sprinkle gelatin on ½ cup cold water. Let soften about 5 minutes. Combine gelatin, bouillon cubes, salt and boiling water in mixing bowl. Stir until gelatin is completely dissolved, then mix in 1½ cups cold water. Chill until mixture reaches the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Combine lobster mixture, pimiento and onion. Fold into thickened gelatin. Pour into 1½ quart ring mold. Chill until set. Unmold on serving platter. Fill center with a dressing. Garnish with lettuce, hard cooked eggs and parsley. Makes 6 to 8 servings.)

Cottage Cheese Dressing

½ cup real mayonnaise
½ cup large curd cottage cheese
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons chopped radish (optional)
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

(Mix mayonnaise and cottage cheese, then mix in green pepper, radish, onion, salt and pepper. Chill at least 15 minutes. Makes about 1 cup.)

Camp Features Lore of Indians

By PFC James Doherty

Fort Benning's day camp for handicapped children of families stationed at Fort Benning has completed its second summer season.

The nine-day summer camp was planned and staffed by volunteers of the Handicap Committee of Army Community Services.

Indian lore was emphasized in the camp program.

Younger children made love beads from macaroni.

Totem poles were constructed from paper cups and drums were made from old coffee cans.

Older girls made tote bags and ponchos.

Bowling and swimming were also included in the ACS summer program.

Fort Benning's training facilities provided entertainment for the campers.

Scout dog demonstrations were staged and tours to see helicopters and fire engines were arranged.

The program concluded with a picnic at the U.S. Army Infantry Center recreation center.

Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general, U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, awarded the children trophies recognizing their participation in the program.

The children made Lt. Col. Herbert G. See, director of Army Community Services, "Big Chief" of the camp. They presented him several homemade awards.

The committee will continue a Saturday afternoon program of arts, crafts and games in a post school gymnasium.

Twice-weekly programs will replace the Saturday program in August.

Ex-Peace Corps Volunteers Find ROTC Rewarding

By Ron Argo

If you ask a Peace Corps volunteer what it's like living in the jungle for two years, don't be surprised to hear something like "a very rewarding and satisfying experience." Such is the case of two pre-ROTC cadets now in their last phase of training at the six-week basic ROTC summer camp here.

John Daniels and Francis Filipowski, both 24, have spent two years as Peace Corps volunteers in separate parts of Nigeria, Africa.

Daniels, from Lynn, Mass., joined the Corps after receiving his B.A. in philosophy from Kansas Wesleyan University at Salina in June 1966. He was sent to the University of California at San Diego for 13 weeks of intensive training in cross-cultural history, government, health and 250 hours of 'Yourba' the West African language he would use for the next two years.

Sent to Lagos

In October, after completion of the training phase, Daniels was sent to Lagos, one of the twelve Nigerian states. Lagos is located in the southwestern region of Nigeria. His duties were concentrated in a multi-phased program of agricultural development.

Filipowski, on the other hand, became a teacher in a government craft school in a small village called Muman, located in the Adamawa Province. Adamawa is in the northern part of Nigeria. The school is a type of vocational institution created by the Nigerian government for boys ranging from the very young to adulthood.

Filipowski, from Goshen, N.Y., is the youngest of nine children—five brothers all of whom served in the Navy and four sisters. One brother lost his life in the Pacific Theatre during WWII. Filipowski received his A.B. degree in history from Fairfield University in June 1968. After becoming a volunteer the same month, he spent 10 weeks at Boston University training for his role as a teacher of math, geography and English.

Definite Opinions

Although serving in different capacities in the Corps, Daniels and Filipowski formed many definite opinions about the civilizations of which they became a part. Both emphasized that the people were not only easy to work with but also very friendly and energetic.

"I found the people very willing to learn," Daniels said. "At first there was a communication gap and the process of adapting to this tremendous change in life seemed very slow indeed." Daniels estimated that it generally takes a volunteer about six months before he really is able to perform effectively.

In his role as teacher and friend, Filipowski said that he and his students shared a great personal relationship. "We spent many hours of the week playing together," he said. "Once I won a dance contest called the "High Life." I really had to put in a great deal of effort to outdo the native inhabitants at their own game."

Soccer Favorite Game

The students' favorite game is soccer, probably a result of the British influence. They also play volleyball, basketball and baseball.

"We didn't get in town too often," Filipowski recalled, "as the only transportation was an old bus that could travel no faster than 10 or 15 miles per hour. The road was no more than a trail cut through the dense jungle. But when we did go, people would literally be hanging on to the bus."

When asked how he liked the food, Daniels commented, "It took some getting used to. Everything I ate was hot or very spicy. Rice is served at almost every meal in the Southwest. I liked one dish—plantain. It's something like fried banana.

"Everything that's eaten there is cooked in oil, mostly peanut oil," he added. In the North, yams are the chief staple. Filipowski noted that probably 85 per cent or more of the natives in that section provide for and sustain themselves by farming. He said that the main sources of meat are chicken and cattle, and that there is an ample supply.

Shortage of Meat

In southern Nigeria, however there is a shortage of quality meat. Daniels said that the phase of his job he enjoyed most was the introduction of rabbit cultivation and care. Rabbits are raised due to their high degree of protein and rate of reproduction.

Biggest Contribution

"I believe the biggest contribution we made as Western representatives," Filipowski offered, "was the presentation of the high degree of ambition and drive so characteristic of Americans. The students had a great deal of admiration for Americans and made a great effort to learn what I was teaching them."

Both volunteers stressed that they gained a complete education during the two years' venture. "My trip to Nigeria," Daniels concluded, "has shown me that there are many different things in life, and my stay there has been so rewarding that I hope to return after I complete my formal education and fulfill my military obligation."

Americal Division Opens Scout Training Center of the Scouts, who operate much the way as their namesake did in the old American West.

The Kit Carson Scout is a former Viet Cong soldier who has rallied to the Republic of Vietnam and subsequently has been hired by U. S. Forces. He serves as a guide with extensive knowledge of local terrain for the wages of $50 monthly.

Also, he aids the company commanders with his knowledge of Communist Forces tactics; and finally, he stands shoulder to shoulder with U.S. members of his unit as a combat trooper. With his unique knowledge of the enemy, the KCS is contributing much to the war effort.

The training center you see before you is the culmination of much hard work by U. S. Forces and Scouts themselves," said Lieutenant Colonel Robert B. Nelson (Columbus, Ga.), the Americal Division Intelligence Officer.

"It is also fulfillment of a dream to provide the division with the basic tools necessary to turn out effective, well-trained scouts. The usefulness of KCS's have been proved time and time again."

The Kit Carson Scout program was first initiated in the Republic of Vietnam in November 1966, by the 1st Marine Division under the Command of Major General Herman Nickerson (now LTG Nickerson), commanding general of III Marine Amphibious Forces, who is credited with coining the name "Kit Carson Scouts."

"The opening of the Kit Carson Scout Training program marks the efforts of many people involved in the KCS program for more than a year," said Brigadier General Wallace L. Clement, assistant Americal Division Commander.

"These Scouts have saved many lives with their sharp eyes and instinct for mines and booby traps. They have given a unique, personal testimony in PSYOPS (Psychological Operations), have assisted in on - the - spot interrogations that gained valuable information about enemy actions, and have proven themselves well under hostile fire.

"In the past Americal Kit Carson Scouts have attained a high level of achievement. But, the Scouts now enrolled in this first class will surely accomplish much more because of their training," concluded Clement.

The Americal Combat Center will conduct the technical portions of the instruction which amounts to approximately 20 per cent of the total 160 hours of instruction in such courses as first aid, demolitions, and map reading.

The KCS section which is composed of six full-time U.S. personnel and one parttime KCS coordinator at each brigade, rendering classes in english, physical training, weapons, Kit Carson Scout strategy and duties, and tactics.

Tracker Dog Teams In Vietnam

DI AN, Vietnam (DIV IO) — Combat tracker teams are a valuable asset to Big Red One infantry units. Their capacity to trail the enemy, after contact has been made, assists the units in carrying out their mission.

A tracker team consists of five highly trained men and a labrador tracker dog. The dog handler, has the sole job of carefully observing for the dog's alert during tracking operations. Often, it is just the cocking of an ear, an unusual head movement, or hair raising on the dog's back.

The visual tracker looks for any signs of enemy presence, such as a broken branch, footprints or any other signs which point out recent movement through an area. By looking at a sign the visual tracker can estimate when someone passed through the area.

Since the dog handler always has his eyes focused on the labrador, a security man is needed to look for any danger which might affect the team. This cover man remains at the dog handler's side at all times.

The team also consists of a team commander and radio operator. The use of tracker dogs in Vietnam is relatively recent. Originally, labradors were used by the British. The United States adopted the idea from them, and now has a tracker dog training school at Ft. Gordon, Ga.

The most essential part of the training is breaking the labrador's natural instinct to follow animal scent, and train him to adapt to the scent of a human.

The primary mission of the combat tracker team is to re-establish contact after an infantry unit has made an initial contact with the enemy and then lost it.

The 61st Infantry Platoon (Combat Tracker), commander by Lieutenant Daniel E. Harrig, Miami, Fla., is the only tracker unit in Vietnam that works for three major units. Although the platoon is assigned to the 1st Division, it also works in the areas of the 82nd Airborne and the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment. The platoon is comprised of four five-man teams and five labradors.

Troopers Teach Children English

BONG SON, RVN (173rd Abn IO)—It all started in the viewfinder of his camera. From then on his "roll" developed into a rewarding experience teaching English to a class of Vietnamese students in the village of Bong Son.

While performing his duties as a photojournalist, Sergeant Joe M. Friddle of C Company, 2nd Battalion, 503rd Infantry, 173rd Airborne Brigade, met a teacher in the Bong Son Grammar School.

Speaking in broken English, the teacher asked the paratrooper from Weatherford, Texas, if he would teach him to read and write in English. "Tex," as he prefers to be called, agreed and a time and place were set.

Aided by First Lieutenant William F. Brand III and Private First Class James P. Mosley, both of 2nd Battalion, Tex now conducts regular classes in a school near the MACV compound. There are two periods of instruction, one from noon until 2 p.m. and the other from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. The evening class sometimes lasts until 8 p.m.

For the first six days, one new student a day joined the class, but Friddle expects greater attendance once the word gets around.

Commenting enthusiastically on the first students to attend class, Tex said, "I was overwhelmed to have the opportunity to communicate with him."

With Vietnamese translation books in hand, the three Sky Soldiers alternate writing English words on the blackboard. Then, one at a time, the students read from the board consulting their own books for the Vietnamese writing.

"When the classes began," remarked Mosley, "we were striving to help American-Vietnamese relations, but it has become more than that. The students' eagerness to learn is like a magnet drawing us into a real educational experience."

All the pupils range in age from eight to seventeen, except a teacher-student who is 45-years old.

"I was removed from the Vietnamese people for the majority of my tour," said Brand. "But once the classes began, I learned that these children are quite intelligent and with the proper guidance will help their country immensely in the future."

ESCAPE AND EVASION TEAM STEERS A COURSE BY A SANDBAR

Ranger Style

Escape and Evasion

Story and Photos
By
Pvt. Bob Merkin

Comic strip hero Beetle Bailey's typical activity, as every soldier knows, is hunting for a good place to hide from Sarge during the day. Beetle would have had a field day last week if he'd been with the Rangers of Co. A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry last week—as the airborne long range patrollers were ordered to hide from Sarge and everbody else for several days on an escape and evasion problem down the Chattahoochee River.

The Rangers generally travelled by night on the river in their 15-man rubber inflated raft, camping by day to avoid the "Aggressors" (other Rangers), but part of the problem's purpose was to practice what to do in the face of enemy contact. During the starlight paddlings, the Rangers would regularly be greeted by the sweet, pleading, friendly voice of a mysterious aggressor over a bullhorn whose advertisement went something like this:

Enemy Enemy

"Enemy Enemy Welcome to Aggressorland, enemy! Why don't you surrender, enemy? We know exactly where you are. You cannot escape. If you surrender, enemy, we have your favorite ice-cold beverages. Listen. . . I sing your favorite songs, enemy.

"' When you're out of Schlitz, you're out of beer. . .' Any of you enemies don't like beer, we got other things. Listen, enemy: "Things go better with Coca-Cola. . ." he sang through the stillness of the forest-lined river. The Rangers in the boat agreed at that point if the singing Aggressor were ever captured, he'd be tried by a War Crimes Commission for torture by off-key crooning. So, in appreciation for the entertainment, the boat radio operator, PFC Allan Hines, called a fire mission in on the enemy tenor.

The river was still for a while, except for the steady paddling of the oars.

The escape and evasion patrol, one of several units under the code name of Painted Supper, proceeded in semi-tactical style, running its bow and stern lights in the interest of water safety when it wasn't in enemy contact. The lights attracted some natural enemies, though — curious water moccassins who swam for the boat like wiggly torpedoes. After the first sight of the submarine snakes, the Rangers, who paddled the boat while straddling the side pontoons, squirmed to find new positions were their feet didn't dangle in the water.

Unit Is Here for Active Duty Training

Columbia Army Reserve Unit Trains at Benning

By Bill Hardin

The Columbia (S.C.) United States Army Reserve (USAR) School (3287), the first of four such schools to be conducted here this summer for Reserve and National Guard officers, completes a two-week training session July 19.

The active duty training here is part of a program which, in conjunction with classes taught during the year near the officers' homes, leads to completion of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course.

Planned and conducted by officers from the reserve components of the Army, the Columbia USAR School is being supported by the Charleston (S. C.) USAR School (3289).

Colonel Claude H. Cooler is the commandant, and Col. Michael L. Runey Jr. is serving as the assistant commandant.

Major General Thomas J. Thorne, commanding general of the 120th Army Reserve Command (ARCOM), is presently attending the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and is being represented here by Col. Ben L. Rushing.

The school's 36-man staff includes 16 commissioned officers, two warrant officers and 18 enlisted men.

There are 32 faculty members. The students, here from all over the nation, number 168.

The school is conducted to provide officers with a working knowledge of the responsibilities and duties of the infantry officer, with special emphasis on the field grade officer.

It seeks to provide a progressive system of military education which parallels the resident instruction of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course offered by the U. S. Army Infantry School here to active duty officers.

Subjects offered are common to all branches of the Army. Included are military leadership, civil disturbances, financial management, personnel management, nuclear weapons, internal defense, command and staff procedures, brigade and battalion operations, and psychological operations.

Training includes much more than classroom lectures. There is practical work with various types of equipment, and students have three firing exercises included in weapons instruction.

The faculty from the Columbia and Charleston USAR schools arrived a week early to prepare for the instructional period.

Gen. Throckmorton Promoted; Reassigned

HEADQUARTERS, THIRD UNITED STATES ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — Lt. Gen John L. Throckmorton, Third U. S. Army's commanding general for the past two years, is scheduled for promotion to four-star rank soon and will assume command of the U. S. Strike Command at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., on Aug. 1.

He will be honored at a farewell review at Hedekin Field today at 4 p.m., with Gen James K. Woolnough, commanding general of U. S. Continental Army Command, serving as reviewing officer. A reception honoring General and Mrs. Throckmorton will be held at the Officers Open Mess following the parade.

As head of USSTRICOM, General Throckmorton will bring to his new command the education, training and experience of over 34 years as an Army officer.

A 1935 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, the general served as Assistant G-3 for Operations with the U. S. First Army in the European and Asiatic Pacific Theaters of World War II.

During the Korean War he commanded the 8th Regimental Combat Team, earning the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star and the Legion of Merit (1st oak leaf cluster.)

In addition to various Washington assignments, General Throckmorton has served as deputy commander of U. S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam; commandant of cadets of the U. S. Military Academy; assistant division commander of the 101st Airborne Division commanding general, 82 Airborne Division, and commanding general of the XVIII Airborne Corps and Ft. Bragg, N. C., the position he held before assuming command of Third Army in August, 1967.

The general holds the Master Parachutist Badge, the Combat Infantryman Badge and the Distinguished Marksman Badge, in addition to numerous decoration for valor and meritorious service.

His successor at Fort McPherson, Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, is slated to arrive at Ft. McPherson in August from an assignment at Department of the Army as deputy chief of staff for personnel.

Third U.S. Army Area Includes Puerto Rico

HEADQUARTERS, Third U. S. Army, Fort McPherson, Ga. — The Third United States Army area now extends from the Greater Antilles, 1,100 miles south of Miami, Fla., to the Virginia border and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Mississippi River.

This growth is the result of the addition of Army elements in Puerto Rico to the command, which now stretches 2,300 miles north and south.

The command of U. S. Army active and reserve elements in Puerto Rico was transferred from United States Army Forces Southern Command to Third U. S. Army on July 1. The responsibility for inspection and supervision of training of National Guard units in Puerto Rico was also assumed by Third Army Headquarters.

The Third U. S. Army, with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., covers the seven southeastern states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, plus the counties of Christian, Logan, Todd and Trigg in Kentucky and now Puerto Rico.

Since the mission of U. S. Army Forces Southern Command-Puerto Rico and that of Third Army were similar, it was felt that the transfer of the island to the Third Army Area would result in greater operational efficiency and a reduction in the cost of maintaining Army personnel in Puerto Rico.

Wagner Injured On Set

Robert Wagner, star of ABC-TV's "It Takes A Thief," suffered two cracked ribs and a badly bruised hip when the fuselage section of a moving light aircraft struck and knocked him to the ground during filming at the airport in Venice, Italy.

The color series is presently filming several episodes in such locations as Capri, Rome and Venice.

Wagner's son, Peter, 15, was first through the cordon to the side of the stunned actor. The accident occurred while filming a scene from an episode entitled "Saturday In Venice" to be aired later this year.

The injury is the fourth of varying degrees of seriousness Wagner has received over the past several months while filming.

Movie Synopsis

THE MALTESE BIPPY — Alex, Westling's accomplice, murders him after he swallows the gems. Ernie and Sam tie up Axel and are preparing to cut open the corpse when Ravenswood bursts in, followed by Carlotta who shoots him and is shot by Strauss who is shot by Joanna, also looking for the diamonds. She is knifed by Helga, who is shot by Fenster.

THE GIRL WHO KNEW TOO MUCH — A crime boss is assassinated and the syndicate orders Johnny Cain (Adam West) free lance adventurer, to find the killer or get killed. Cain refused but changes his mind when the CIA asks him to do it, and because he fears for the safety of the slain man's girlfriend, Revel Drue (Nancy Kwan), who is really in love with Cain.

BYE BYE BRAVERMAN — This "Fun City" safari is set forth in uproarious detail when four odd balls set out from Greenwich Village one day on a seemingly solemn mission to deepest Brooklyn to attend the funeral of their friend Braverman. Everything goes wrong; they have an auto accident, attend the wrong funeral.

THE LONGEST DAY — This is the day that changed the world. When the thousand thousands swept the beach. When the sea swelled to overflowing with many armadas . . . When history held its breath. Here is perhaps the greatest cast ever assembled in what is certainly one of the great films of all times.

FOR LOVE OF IVY — Sidney Poitier stars in this light comedy drama as a swinging trucking executive who is persuaded by a wealthy suburban family to act as "boy friend" to their young attractive housekeeper.

Top ROTC Graduate Is Named

The top senior Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) college graduate of 1968 was named recently in ceremonies at the Pentagon. He is 1st Lt. Michael S. Clayton, a graduate of the University of Missouri at Rolla.

Clayton was chosen from among more than 14,000 ROTC graduates commissioned in 1968. Selection was made on the basis of outstanding academic and leadership accomplishments while in college.

He was presented the Hughes Trophy by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

MISS FUTURISTIC . . . Lovely Sunken Gardens model Becky Hall has been named "Miss Futuristic" for 1969. The shapely blonde, 36-23-35, certainly has a promising future with or without her king-size crystal ball. She is from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Humperdinck To Star In Series

Engelbert Humperdinck, the popular singing star and personality, will star in his own series on the ABC Television Network, it was announced by Martin Starger, ABC vice president in charge of TV network programming.

The series will be produced for ABC in London by Associated Television and is planned for a late-east in 1970.

Humperdinck, a tall, handsome singer, has enjoyed outstanding success ever since the recording of his gold disc hit "Release Me" in February, 1967.

Since then, he has played to sell-out crowds in concert while continuing to record other song hits including the million sellers "There Goes Everything" and "The Last Wall."

"In a comparatively short period," Starger said, "Engelbert Humperdinck has achieved unprecedented success."

Main Library Displays Collection of Artifacts

By Rosa Pope

Most of the artifacts were collected in the Tennessee River Valley in the vicinity of Florence, Ala. The exhibit was loaned the library by Col. William L. Koob Jr., Liaison Detachment Headquarters, 2nd Bde., USAICTC, during his tour here this summer with the pre-ROTC cadets.

The artifacts fall into four broad time periods. They are:

Paleo (17,000-8,000 B.C.)—An age of man during which he was devoted mainly to hunting rather than agriculture. These artifacts made of stone by percussion include spears and darts.

Archaic (8,000-2,500 B.C.)—This period reflects major migration movements within the North American continent. They were primarily hunters.

Woodland (2,500 B.C.-500 A.D.)—This period reflects the first tribal setting in specific areas and the start of agriculture as a supplement to hunting.

Mississippian (500 A.D.-1,650 A.D.)—This period reflects well-settled tribal communication, trade and large dependence on agriculture as opposed to hunting. It heralds the decline of the Indian nations.

The library also has valuable antiques on display loaned to it by V. E. Sulser of Columbus.

A spokesman for the Special Services Library said all collectors and other resource personnel are encouraged to submit their collections for display.

Both the baseball and football world can breathe a sigh of relief with the return of Richie Allen and Joe Namath. Allen had been losing $450 a day while under suspension and that is quite a lot of bread. 11,000 bucks have been washed down the drain while poor Richie brooded over his fate. After all, the only thing he did was miss a couple of plane flights.

Could he help it if they wouldn't wait for him? He was the team star, by golly, and it was their fault.

But no matter, he has now condescended to return and lead his team to glory. Only, the Phillies are playing .432 ball and are 16 games out of first. With Allen gone, their record was 13-16, which is a little better than with him there.

Joe Namath has helped the cause of football tremendously by deciding to return to his first love, the gridiron. American League Football was expected to suffer a lasting blow if Joe had disappeared from the scene. But, as many people had suspected, including yours truly, he has sold his interests in his nightclub and is expected to perform another miracle by leading his Jets all the way again.

Well, I have news for you fans, I doubt if even the great Joe can do the Houdini bit twice in a row. I don't even think he will lead them past the College All-Stars. Especially if O. J. signs his contract and plays. With a backfield of Keys, Simpson, Gipson and Campbell, the All-Stars should romp handily over the Jets.

The Jets are a good football team, make no mistake about that. But they were higher than a kite for their meeting with the Colts in the Super Bowl and it is hard to imagine them attaining quite the same degree of exhileration while playing the college kids. The All-Stars have everything to gain and nothing to lose, almost the exact reversal of the Jets in the Super Bowl. Even without Keys and Simpson, they have a very good chance to topple the World Champions.

Here Come the Tigers

In the American League, the Orioles have started looking over their shoulders, and do not like what they see. The Tigers are starting to move toward the top again. While Baltimore was pulling away from most of the other teams, the Detroit Tigers were straining to keep up. Now they are not only holding their own, but are climbing toward the top rung in the ladder.

The Orioles won four out of the last seven games between the teams and twice drove Earl Wilson, their old nemesis, out of the ballgame. But at the end of the second weekend series between the two teams, the Tigers were not only still alive but had actually picked up 1½ games on the Birds.

The Tigers won two out of three in a series in Detroit and Tom Tresh had fitted enough of the pieces back together to be a real asset. Tresh, picked up from the Yankees for practically nothing, has taken over short stop and walloped four home runs in less than a week. Since coming to Detroit, Tresh has hit .322 and even beat the Orioles with a home run to give the win to Denny McLain last week.

He helped overcome the Red Sox with seven straight hits, including three homers. In a slump for the last three years, he may be to the Tigers what the Hawk was to Boston in their big year.

Clendenon Helps Mets Toward Top

As if the Cubs don't have enough troubles trying to hold on to first place, the Mets have acquired Don Clendenon and as soon as he was placed in the starting lineup, his muscles began to pop to the tune of RBI's. The first day he replaced Ed Kranepool, he got two hits. Then last Sunday he crashed a three-run homer as New York rallied from a 6-1 deficit to an 8-7 victory over the Cardinals. The Mets have enough big guns right now but one more cannot possibly hurt.

Clendenon, the 33-year-old first baseman, has had some season. He began it as a member of the lowly Montreal Expos. Then he was traded to Houston in the famous Rusty Staub deal. Next he decided enough was enough and retired to his pencil factory. Then he unretired. Now he has the chance to pick up a nice fat world series check and with everything that has happened to the Mets since they were first organized and called the "clowns of baseball", the only thing that can be said of a world series for them is . . . why not?

Crew, Moeller Earn Berths on U.S. Team

Kingeter Wins International Running Boar Championships

Army shooters from the Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning put on a display of fine shooting during the final tryouts for the U. S. Running Boar Team here.

Army SFC John Kingeter dominated the U.S. International Running Boar Tryouts. He put together an aggregate of 770 points out of a possible 800 to become the U. S. International Running Boar Champion and the number one man of a four-man Running Boar team.

Two other Army riflemen, teammates of Kingeter's, Msgt. Loyd Crow and SFC Edmund Moeller fired 744 and 741 respectively to place second and third, thus earning berths on the U. S. Team.

The three Army sergeants ran away with the match. They started slow but came on strong during the second and third of the three day match.

Jockeying for the fourth team member and team alternate were Army SFC Charles Davis, Air Force TSgt. Teddy McMillion and Air Force TSgt. Frank Tossas. McMillion managed to top his closest competitors to win the fourth spot with 736. His teammate Tossas was named alternate to the team with 734. Davis finshed with 728.

The five military shooters plus a team captain, to be announced, will represent the U.S. in the World Running Boar Championships, and the World Moving Target Championships in Sandenekin, Sweden in August.

Clay Pigeon Matches

Records fell as some of the greatest trap shooting in the world concluded here with three Army men earning berths on the five-man U. S. Clay Pigeon team during the final tryouts for the U. S. International Clay Pigeon Team fired at the Texas International Gun Club.

Earning one of the five U. S. team berths became a challenge to every shooter as 14 of the 64 competitors broke 290 birds or better out of a possible 300 in perfect shooting weather.

Air Force SSgt. Terry Howard, Waldwick, N. J., copped the top spot as he set the new U. S. record of 299 and an unofficial worlds record. The old U. S. record was 296 and worlds record is 297.

Howard was closely followed by Olympic shooter, Army SP5 Larry Stafford, Denver, Colorado, with 298. Stafford kept things hot for Howard as he tallied 99, 99, and 100 straight for the three day meet. Howard fired 99, 100, and 100 for the three days with an unbelievable 252 bird run.

Consistent shooting 98, 100 and 98 from Army SGT Russell Anderson, Belleville, Kansas, earned him the third spot on the team with a 296 score.

The fourth and fifth spots on the U. S. team became a hotly contested battle as a five-day deadlock developed at 296. The deadlock included:

Army Sgt. James Beck, Omaha, Neb.; Army Sgt. Edward Leavendusky, Kansas City, Kansas; Army SP4 Mike Cleary, Flint, Michigan; Olympic medalist Air Force Sgt. Tom Garrigus, and Air Force Shooter Tom Eyler.

During the shoot-off Cleary and Leavendussky of the Army both dropped one bird in the first string of 25, leaving Beck, Garrigus and Eyler to battle it out. In the second string of 25, Eyler dropped one bird and both Beck and Garrigus went straight to earn berths on the U.S. Team. After firing a third string of 25 birds and remaining in a deadlock, Beck and Garrigus were declared by the judges co-winners of fourth place.

Army marksmen Stafford, Beck and Andersson along with Air Forces' Garrigus and Howard will make up the U. S. Clay Pigeon portion of the U. S. Shooting Team that will compete in the World Moving Target Championships at San Sebastian, Spain in October.

Physical Training Is All Wet For 45th Co.

By Sp5 Ron Johnson

A summer version of physical training has been initiated by Captain Steven J. Abdalla, company commander of 45th company, 4th Bn., TSB,.

Capt. Abdalla has arranged for the members of his cadre to use Carey swimming pool one hour each week to get into shape. The captain feels that this method of exercise is better than the "daily dozen" during the hot summer months.

Since the program is new, it is not completely organized yet. The biggest problem for the cadre is getting down to work instead of having quite so much fun. Says Capt. Abdalla. "All we have to do is get the people to concentrate instead of mess around."

Activities

To begin with, activities in the pool will be limited to swimming laps and some scuba diving. The captain intends to expand the program to include swimming lessons, scuba diving lessons, and water polo, possibly with competition against other companies.

Three members of the cadre are certified swimming instructors, and one is an instructor for the Ft. Benning Diving Club.

The purpose of the program is not only for physical training. It is designed so that every permanent party member of 45th Company can swim well enough to meet the standards every soldier needs.

Cadre

Several of the members of the cadre are also contemplating Special Forces or Long Range Reconnaisance Patrol assignments. The training they will receive in the company will be very beneficial to their future careers.

The first session of the program was very successful. The men were going to try swimming five laps each, but decided that was a little too much to begin with. Everyone experimented with the scuba gear provided by the diving club and helped work out the details of the program. Said one cadreman, "The first thing we ought to do is check the bottom of the pool for money."

Benning Airman Enjoys Sport Parachuting

By BILL HARDIN

One year ago, AIC Charles H. Butler did two things he considers most important in his life. He joined the United States Air Force and began sport parachuting.

The 21-year-old airman has come a long way in both areas in the past year.

He completed training as a weather observer and currently uses it in that capacity at Fort Benning, an Army installation.

His interest in sport parachuting has developed. He has 150 jumps to his credit and he has increased parachuting activites.

He recently completed the Army's basic airborne course here and was awarded the "silver wings" of a military parachutist.

Butler says he prefers sport parachuting but he enjoys jumping so much that he jumps with the Army here whenever the opportunity arises.

"I enjoyed the Army's parachute training. I learned a great deal about parachuting from the instructors in the course," he stated.

"The instructors in The Infantry School's Airborne Department are terrific," Butler added.

He is contemplating entering the Air Force's Airman Education and Commissioning Program (AECP).

"If I'm successful and gain a commission, I'll probably remain in the Air Force for a career," he said.

The job Butler fills calls for a qualified military parachutist, a requirement made of few of the men of the U. S. Air Force.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The July Fishing Derby seems to have run into the summer doldrums. The same relatively small catches have held up for the third consecutive week. Capt. Jimmy Ford, co-winner of the bream derby in June, still leads that category for July with a 14-ounce catch from Patterson Pond. M-Sgt. Leonard S. Dill leads the catfish contest with a 4-pound 15-ounce entry caught at Victory Pond July 4 and the leader in the bass derby is Peter Swiderdk with the Nine-pound six-ounce catch made at Harp Pond July 4.

People who have been at Benning for a considerable period of time may find it hard to believe but there are considerable numbers of newcomers to the post who have no idea of the sporting and fishing facilities available here. But after all the post does have an approximate turnover of about 40 per cent each year and quite a few personnel have not even heard of the Rod and Gun Club and the trap, skeet and archery ranges available. So despite the fact that I know I'm going to get some comment from Lt. Col. (ret.) Joe Radcliff I'm going to go over some of the ponds and streams on the reservation in this weeks' column.

There are a total of 17 named ponds on the reservation. Of these seven receive intense management. That is they are periodically fertilized and limed. All of the post ponds have been stocked with bream; shellcracker and in some cases catfish. These ponds have a total of 271 acres. In addition there are numerous small beaver ponds and a total of over 100 miles of shoreline along the Chattahoochee River and Uchee, Randall, Pine Knot, Upatoi, Oswichee and Ochille creeks.

In addition to the main stream flow, there are a few miles south approximately 2,000 acres of backwater provided by the Walter F. George dam at Fort Gaines, Ga.

The Chattahoochee River is the best location for stream fishing within the boundries of the reservation. It is also suitable for boat traffic. Boat launching ramps are provided at the Fort Benning Marina located just above Eddy Bridge. (Grid Coordinates 904834). The river has an abundance of large mouth bass, crappie, catfish, white bass and bluegill.

King's Pond is the largest and probably most popular pond on the reservation. This 75 acre pond is one of the intensively managed ponds on the reservation. Since 1960 over 75,000 bream 15,000 bass and 2,700 catfish have been stocked. One other reason for King's popularity is the many acres that have been cleared around the pond and picnic tables that have been placed in this area.

COMPUTER CORNER

By Bud Goode

To win a pennant in the American or National Leagues your team must score at least 20% more runs than it gives up. The Baltimore Orioles are scoring 25% more runs than they allow, and they are the class of their league. Compare this power and balance to Detroit's 20% Runs over Opponent Runs, and Boston's weak 3% figure, and you can see that Baltimore can finish the season in a dogtrot.

It is now mid-season, that magical baseball time when fans look to the leaders and label them "winners."

"Ain't necessarily so. One of the divisions has competition—Oakland and Minnesota in the American League West. Where Oakland has the edge in terms of balance, scoring 25% more runs than they allow, the Twins are sniffing up their trail with a 19% figure. A pop fly lost in the sun or a bad bounce infield hit can make the difference in the American West. Both teams must play an even .500 ball to win the 91 games likely to steal the flag.

What teams have the balance to contend? Computer Corner poured the current season statistics into our Univac sports analyzer to measure the ratio of Runs to Opponent Runs with these results (through games of July 1):

AMERICAN

TEAM	% TO R/OR WIN 105	TEAM	% TO R/OR WIN 91
BALTIMORE	.558 70%	OAKLAND	.560 25%
DETROIT	.722 20%	MINNESOTA	.583 19%
BOSTON	.713 3%	CHICAGO	.574 11%
WASHINGTON	.783 1%	SEATTLE	.536 14%
NEW YORK	.519 -4%	KANSAS CITY	.490 -23%
CLEVELAND	.574 -21%	CALIFORNIA	.730 -32%

NATIONAL

CHICAGO	.500 41%	LOS ANGELES	.591 48%
NEW YORK	.682 5%	SAN FRANCISCO	.663 9%
PITTSBURGH	.729 2%	CINCINNATI	.648 7%
ST. LOUIS	.750 -2%	ATLANTA	.588 5%
PHILADELPHIA	.742 -8%	HOUSTON	.629 -10%
MONTREAL	.286 -18%	SAN DIEGO	.343 -41%

Surprise? Last year's National League winner, St. Louis, can finish 5th without too much trouble. And the Mets, tabbed by Computer Corner on opening day as the Dark Horse, can toast their second spot finish with champagne.

Home of the Infantry Popular Tourist Spot

-By Sgt. Carol Aubin

The Home of the Infantry appeals to the young and the old alike and has become a popular place to visit, according to the Community Relations Branch of the Post Information Office.

During the month of July several tours have already been conducted. Twenty-five Phenix City Homebuilders wives toured the Officer Candidate area, and Eubanks Field, 19 July, and saw "The Spirit of Fort Benning" a film depicting life on an Army post. While many watched the Lunar Module leave the Moon, Korean Allied Officers visited the Little White House, Warm Springs, Ga., and the Ante Bellum homes in Columbus.

The Scout Dog training area, a popular place for visitors, was visited by the Tuskegee Institute Head-start Class. The class, including 22 students and 10 supervisors, also saw a static display of aircraft at Lawson Army Airfield.

Nineteen state 4H Club members toured the OCS area, Scout Dogs and Lawson on 22 July, and on 28 July, 156 Air Force Cadets from Gunter Air Force Base, Ala., will begin their field training exercise. This is the second of three encampments, the first was 23 June.

Forty young girls, members of the Columbus Girls Club, will visit here 4 August, and they will see the Scout Dogs, Lawson Airfield, and watch Airborne Training. They will be followed on 5 August by the Columbus Boys Club, which will tour the OCS area.

Latin American Allied Officers will visit 12 August, and will tour the Little White House, Warm Springs, Ga., and also the Ante Bellum homes in the Columbus area.

Approximately 80 Chamber of Commerce executives from Columbus will visit the post 14 August. They will tour the Infantry School, and the Infantry Center, and will attend a Rangers in Action Demonstration. They will also visit the Airborne Training area.

The Salvation Army will tour the various post activities on 16 August, and the group will include about 40 members.

Tours are conducted by SP4 Joseph Stanosch of the Community Relations Branch, and are arranged by contacting 1Lt. Karl Hoyo, 545-2934 or 545-3301.

Army Digest Features

The article "Would You Follow Him in Combat" highlights the training found in a typical program, tells what kind of soldier goes through the demanding course and explains why he volunteered.

The issue also reveals how Army research and development in Chemical and Biological Warfare has led to advances in such fields as medicine, agriculture, and manufacturing.

Another article reports how The Military Justice Act of 1968, which goes into effect on 1 August of this year, accounts for the most significant changes in the Uniform Code of Military Justice since its enactment in 1950.

Other features include: "Where the Action Is," which describes how Army historians heavy-foot through jungles and rice paddies to record the actions of soldiers and units in Vietnam;

"Think Cash," which explains how the Army Suggestion Program can award up to $25,000 to soldiers with outstanding ideas; and

"Somebody Cares," which shows the many ways an Army Social Service officer can help soldiers and their dependents.

Regular features—What's New, Army Dateline, cartoon favorites and the ARMY DIGEST pinup — round out the issue. Non-Commissioned Officer Candidate Courses have been in operation for more than two years now. The August issue of ARMY DIGEST takes a look at the program and reveals what kind of training takes place, what kind of a soldier participates, and why he volunteered.

Chaplains Observe Founding

The U. S. Army Corps of Chaplains, 194 years old this month, will be observing its anniversary at post-wide services Sunday.

Special memorial services will be held at the Infantry Center Chapel on Sigerfoos Road at 9:30 and 11 a.m. These services will honor chaplains who have given their lives in the service of their country.

The Chaplains Corp gained its start in a Resolution of the Continental Congress adopted July 29, 1775 which provided that the pay of chaplains should be $20 per month (this resolution also provided the same rate of pay for captains.)

The Army chaplaincy today with its supervising chaplains at every level of command, with its uniforms and military grades, with its coordinated plans and policies, is far different in organization, but not in spirit, from that of the time when Congressional Delegate Daniel Robardeau wrote to General Washington, "Congress has this day made a new arrangement of the Chaplains' departments."

Religious Participation Encouraged By Chaplain

By Ron Argo

Pre-ROTC cadets attending the nation's only basic summer camp have been invited by ATC Staff Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James R. Barnett to participate in the Training Center's ever-expanding religious program for men of all faiths.

Speaking from experience gained during the last two summer basic camps, Chap. Barnett said, "Each year the interest and participation of the cadets is far greater than we anticipated. The chaplains feel a great challenge to these young college men to provide them with the best possible program."

Extension Programs

Chap. (Maj.) Llewellyn L. Murdock of the 2nd Bde. planned an extension of the existing programs to provide all aspects of religious life to which the cadets are accustomed at home.

Besides regular visits to the training areas, the "Food for Thoughts" program found on mess hall tables three times a week, remind the men that the chaplains are around and thinking of them.

Samples of the program are: Too many men's minds are like concrete — all mixed up and permanently set."

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches and loving favour rather than silver and gold." (Prov. 22:1-2)

"Anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing well."

Catholic Services

Catholic services have been well attended by cadets. The folk mass, utilizing guitars and popular folk tunes, has added to the interest among those attending.

Protestants have had, in addition to regular services, two film retreats using Billy Graham's film, "The Restless Ones" and "For Pete's Sake," as the feature attractions. The retreats were well attended.

From Fort McClellan

Top AIT Trainee Will Attend NCOC

FORT MCCLELLAN, Ala.—The first company to go through the pilot 10-week Vietnam-oriented Infantry training graduated at Ft. McClellan July 12. In the unit, Company D, 1st Battalion, Advanced Individual Training Brigade, was the 15,000th Infantryman to graduate at Ft. McClellan since training period in July 1967.

Private Thad M. Guter, a former lifeguard in Miami, Fla., earned the honor of being the top man in the company and was designated the 15,000th trainee. He will be attending the Non-commissioned Officer Candidate Course at Ft. Benning, Ga.

All eleven AIT companies at Ft. McClellan, including the new Company F, 1st Battalion, now are in the expanded test program of a ten-week advanced Infantry training.

The major difference in the new training program over the old is a 12-day field exercise under simulated combat conditions on Pelham Range. Company D went into the field on June 23 and remained until July 3 when it was extracted by CH-47 Chinook helicopters and returned to main post.

The 12-day field training exercise extends by a full week the simulated combat experience given former infantry trainees. The field training, despite an unscheduled heat wave, was judged a success by Capt. David C. Franson, commanding officer, D-1.

The two weeks in the field are designed to include formal instruction and practical exercise in night operations, ambushes, first aid, land navigation, reconnaisance, patrolling, counter-intelligence, ground and air assaults, and security and search operations.

According to Capt. Franson the training is better because it teaches the men to live in the field. The men learn to make a banquet of C-rations; they learn to clean weapons, shave, and to stay alive.

"These men should be able to adjust more quickly to field conditions in Vietnam than the average soldier who takes about a month," added Captain Franson. There is an emphasis on night ambushes and patrols with the men getting an average of four hours of sleep each night.

"Its no hotter in Vietnam than on Pelham Range," emphasized Captain Franson. "Overall the men held up and performed very well," he said.

Company C, 2d Battalion, followed D-1 into the field on June 30. Thereafter, two companies will be operating on Pelham Range all the time.

Love of Flying Leads Aviator to 3 Services

By Sp4 Ron Johnson

Major Thomas P. Hensler Jr., a student in the Infantry Officers Advanced Course No. 5-60, here, likes to fly airplanes.

He likes to fly so much that he has flown anti-submarine patrol planes for the Navy, attack bombers for the Marines and fixed wing liaison aircraft for the Army.

He also flies helicopters, but does not count them because he has never flown one in combat.

Hensler began his military career as an enlisted pilot in the Navy in 1943. He remembers the patrol flights of his early days, and says, "The most interesting flying is on and off the big carriers."

In 1945, he received a fleet appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He was graduated from the academy in 1949 and continued to fly for the Navy as an officer.

In 1954, he transferred services to fly for the Marine Corps. He attained the rank of captain while in the Marines, but resigned when he was taken off flight status. After his resignation, he transferred from the Marine Corps Reserve into the Army Reserve, hoping to get back on flight status.

In 1961, he applied for active duty in the Army but was not accepted until 1963. During this time he operated a chain of restaurants in Atlanta, Ga. After being put on active duty, he worked as chief of fixed wing training at Fort Stewart, Ga.

Presently, Hensler is in his 13th week of instruction at the U.S. Army Infantry School. He says he enjoys the course, especially since it is the first Infantry course he has ever attended.

Medicare Nursing Home Care Misunderstood

"Medicare does not pay for routine nursing home care," Robert E. O'Neal Columbus Social Security District Manager, explains.

Only limited coverage for full-time skilled nursing care and other health services provided in the nursing home can be paid for under Medicare. Many people believe that Medicare pays up to a hundred days of nursing home services under any circumstances. This is not true.

Congress made it very clear that only a certain kind of nursing home care would be paid for under Medicare. This is the type in which the patient's condition, upon discharge from a hospital, requires him to be in an institution for the primary purpose of receiving continuous skilled nursing services.

Actually, a nursing home that qualifies to give this service is called an "Extended Care Facility." Services in such a facility are really an extension of the kind of service he was receiving in the hospital for his injury or illness.

The Social Security Administration is now working with its insurance intermediaries to examine more closely Medicare claims for after-hospital nursing home care.

"Many of these claims may be denied," O'Neal indicates. "It is important that elderly people and their families understand how this part of the law works."

William Freeman To Pursue PhD At Florida State

By PFC James Doherty

William F. Freeman, an educational technologists in the office of the U. S. Army Infantry School's Director of Instruction, will study for a doctorate next year at Florida State University in Tallahassee.

His educational expenses will be paid by the government under Department of the Army's long-term training career program.

Instructional systems will be Freeman's field of study. He hopes that his doctoral dissertation will deal with some of the instructional methods now used at the Infantry School.

Educators in the Florida State Department of Educational Research and Testing must give the thesis topic final approval.

Freeman came to Fort Benning in 1966. Previously, he had engaged in graduate study at Tulane University in New Orleans and Auburn (Ala.) University.

School Scholarships, Loans Available for Dependents

By PFC Lee Myers

If they could just find out where to apply, dependents of Army personnel could receive many scholarships and loans for a higher education.

Department of the Army Pamphlet 352-1 tells all.

As the Army is interested in educational opportunities for the dependents of active, retired and deceased Army personnel, DA Pamphlet 352-1 was written to suggest where to look for complete student-aid information.

High school guidance counselors can help the hopeful student and college directors of financial aid can help, but there are many dollars open for military dependents about which counselors are not familiar.

Bulletins and books listed below, and others outlined in the pamphlet, may be found at a library under the Dewey Classification 378.0.

"How About College Financing? A Guide for Parents of College-Bound Students" is distributed for 30 cents by American Personnel and Guidance Association, 1607 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009.

"How and Where to Get Scholarships and Loans" is published for $3.50 by Regents, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020.

"Lovejoy's Scholarship Guide" is published by Simon & Schuster, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020.

"Need a Lift?" is distributed for 25 cents by the American Legion, Education and Scholarship Program, P.O. Box 1055, Indianapolis, Ind. 46206.

U.S. Army Merit and U.S. Army Special Scholarships are offered to eligible, college-bound, minor dependents of military personnel on active duty in the Army. These two Army scholarships offer from $100 to $1,500 per year for four years of undergraduate study.

Many scholarships are awarded on the basis of scores achieved on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test so a college-bound student must take this test when it is administered to high school seniors.

Many military academies awarded on the basis of appointments allotted to USMAPS for which the Cadet Candidates can apply. This has ended the misfortune of the past where Candidates were found qualified but did not receive appointments because of "no vacancy."

Having completed a nine month program of academic and physical training the Candidates were able to better compete for Regular Army and Enlisted Reserve appointments. They are also eligible for Congressional and Sons of Veteran appointments.

offer discounts, scholarships and other special considerations to sons of military personnel. (For example, Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance, Va., has $300 scholarships available with a preference given to sons of active duty military personnel.

Thousands of scholarship dollars go unclaimed because the scholarships contain restrictions which make it difficult for college counselors to find students who qualify. For example, the La Verne Noyes scholarships pay full tuition to 47 major universities for deserving students, but the student must be a veteran of World War I or be a blood descendent of a World War I veteran who entered the service prior to May 11, 1918.

Hospital Unit Celebrates Anniversary

The 2nd Evacuation Hospital, a unit of the 36th Medical Battalion, celebrated its 52nd anniversary on July 21 with a buffet luncheon in the Mess Hall.

Attending were 115 members and former members of the hospital.

The hospital was organized on July 20, 1917, at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., as Evacuation Hospital, No. 2.

On May 7, 1919, it was demobilized at Camp Taylor, Ky., and was reconstituted Dec. 21, 1928, in the Regular Army as the 2nd Evacuation Hospital.

It was activated again Jan. 22, 1942, at Fort Devens, Mass., and again inactivated in November, 1945, at Camp Myles Standish, Mass.

By February, 1951, the hospital was redesignated and subsequently activated in September, 1951, at Degerndorf, Germany.

In October, 1953, the unit was again reorganized and redesignated as the 2nd Evacuation Hospital (Semimobile).

The unit participated in the Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central European Campaigns.

In June, 1968, the hospital came to Fort Benning.

NEW BRAIN TEASER QUIZ • CONTEST WINNERS

Grandpa can tell you that when he was a kid his gashouse gang regarded tennis as a sissy game, played by girls and dudes. Only rich people owned tennis courts. He-man guys played baseball in a vacant lot.

Sometimes they would watch a dude in white duck trousers pit-a-patting a rubber ball across a net to a girl and they'd hoot in derision when he called out, "Thirty-love."

They'd yell, "Thirty-darling!" "Forty-sweetheart!" "Fifty-honeybunch!"

Tennis has changed plenty since the pit-a-pat days grandpa remembers. It's an often grueling game calling for top physical fitness, superb coordination and mighty strength. And today nobody would call Lt. Arthur Ashe a sissy—not to his face, they wouldn't. Or swashbuckling Pancho Gonzalez, a picture of virility even though he is (gasp) 40 years old.

Even the girls aren't sissies any more. Billie Jean King and Nancey Richey play the kind of slashing game that beats all but the very best of the men.

WHAT'S NEW?

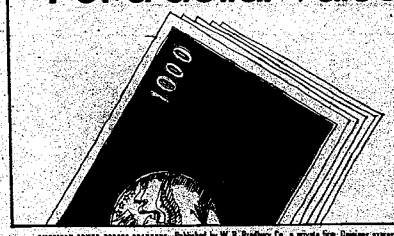
Seabase Aircraft Repair

Army aircraft get speedy service and maintenance support aboard this unique floating facility. Here a seaman guides Corpus Christi Bay as she turns into a Floating Aircraft Maintenance Facility.

It's a floating depot. Home of the 71st Transportation Corps Battalion (Seaborne). These Army men can provide airframe repair, engine overhaul and repair, and overhaul, repair and testing, for any of the components of the Army's combat aircraft. A civilian crew of the Military Sea Transport Service operates and maintains the ship itself.

Corpus Christi Bay is now working in Vietnam. With a substantial increase in availability of operational aircraft in that area. And this flexible, mobile unit can be moved anywhere in the world on short notice.

Put a dollar value on what you know.



Your know-how and experience have a cash value. And it's easy for you to cash in. Just stop in and see your Career Counselor. Ask him about the Variable Reenlistment Bonus.

Ask him exactly how much the Army will pay to have you stay on for another tour. It could be as much as ten thousand dollars. And a list of great Reenlistment Options makes the money easy to take.

What you know is your stake in the future. Don't gamble with it. Find out how much it's worth. And cash it in on a sure thing.

Your future, your decision...stay ARMY.

When you remove your beard you shouldn't remove your face.

Today's super-duper razor blades are meant to cut whiskers. They can also do a job on the skin underneath the whiskers.

To help keep you from butchering yourself—this is the reason for Rise.® And why we put a thin lubricating film into it that gets between your blade and your skin.

Put Rise on your face before you shave, and maybe you won't have to put toilet paper on your face after it.

Save Face.

KICKING IT AROUND

with Buck O'Brien

The generation gap, though highly publicized nowadays, is nothing new. Papa Adam never did dig Cain's hangup about Abel.

But people under 30 can get together and talk (rap) with people over 30 sometimes, if conditions are right.

You could find the right conditions at a stateside bar where a couple of young servicemen on leave have struck up an amiable conversation with a vet of World War II.

At first the boys who have served in Vietnam are wary. They don't want any old soldier talk from this guy who was, they think, a hero at Bunker Hill.

But when they get to exchanging gripes they find out that, though weaponry may change radically, the complaint department doesn't vary all that much.

We listened in on such a confrontation the other night and what really grabbed the kids was the older guy's remark, "What really bugged me the most was the language barrier. I could never understand what the natives were talking about."

"That's always tough," agreed one of the others. "Where were you stationed? Italy . . . Germany . . . Japan?"

"Hell, no!" said the old timer. "I was in London!"

And he proceeded to detail some of the odd things that happened to him in a country called England where "nobody speaks English!"

It all started when he tried to make a phone call and the operator told him, "You're through." He volunteered that he was not through and, indeed, hadn't even begun to talk. Eventually he learned that the operator meant his call had been put through and he was now connected to his party at the other end.

Then he had trouble shopping. When he asked for a belt, the clerk brought out a girdle. When he requested garters, he got the frilly kind girls wear—he should have specified sock suspenders. And if he wanted suspenders, he must call them braces.

Eating out gave him some trouble, too. He found out if you want roast beef, you order a joint. To get French fries you call for chips. If you actually want potato chips, the word for them is "crisps." A pie is a tart.

"It's easy enough to catch on that they call gasoline 'petrol' because that's short for 'petroleum' and besides it doesn't mean something else to us," he said. "But how about things like 'bowler?' Would you like to go to a horse race called 'The Kentucky Bowler?' Wouldn't you fancy it was some guy knocking down tenpins? But a bowler is what they call a derby over there!"

"One time I was in a pub (saloon) and I nearly got into a fight with our noble allies that would probably have broken off diplomatic relations," said the old soldier. "I was a little jittery for some reason or other and my hand shook as I picked up my half a bitter. (Half-pint of ale.)

"A chap next to me said, 'I say, you're rather nervy!'"

"I said, 'Who you calling nervy, you ham?'"

"We were squaring off when a bi-linguist intervened. He explained the other guy only meant I was nervous. He also explained that I hadn't called the chap an ass, which is what 'bum' means over there."

The young GI's agreed with the vet that World War Two must have been pretty terrible, and they had just joined in singing a medley of "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" and "Lily Marlene".

P.S. If things get too hot, stop shaving for the fourth week. That'll make her bristle.

MEN WANTED NOW TO TRAIN AS CLAIMS ADJUSTERS

Three recent I.A.S. graduates, representing the three major branches of military service found new careers in the exciting, challenging and well paying field of insurance claim adjusting...

JOHN P. TROMBA, of Torrington, Connecticut enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1957, and as a Staff Sergeant in 1966 attended Officer Candidate School. While stationed at Ft. Bliss, Texas, Cpt. John Tromba began his I.A.S. training and upon the expiration of his term of military service John accepted a position as a claims adjuster with the U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Insurance Company in California.

JOSEPH TALLARICO, former Senior Chief Petty Officer, USN, of Philadelphia, Penna., says, "INSURANCE ADJUSTERS SCHOOLS was a great recommendation for me. I am now employed as a Physical Damage Specialist by a large insurance company in New York at a good salary and a 69 Ford for my own use. I can look forward to three raises the first year and more frequent raises during the next three year period."

LOWELL D. WILSON enlisted in the U.S. Air Force shortly after finishing high school in Indiana at age 17. Almost 7 years later Lowell decided to return to civilian life and began his I.A.S. training. Thanks to "Project Transition" Sgt. Wilson was assigned to the Accident Investigation Section at Homestead Air Force Base which gave him some excellent experience while still on active duty. Lowell also attended Resident Training and even before his release from active duty he had received many job offers from insurance companies and independent adjusting firms. Mr. Wilson is now a claim adjuster with Employers Mutual Insurance Company in Nebraska.

Insurance adjusters and investigators are badly needed due to the tremendous increase of claims resulting from automobile accidents, fires, burglaries, riots, storms, and industrial accidents. Over 50 million dollars worth of claims paid each day. Top money can be earned in this exciting, fast moving field, full or part time. Work at your present job and train at home, then attend resident training for two weeks at MIAMI BEACH, FLA. or LAS VEGAS, NEVADA. Excellent employment assistance. World Of Sports

By Rod Reed

LOVE'S MAGIC SPELL

Yet, in the matter of scorekeeping, tennis is still using that "love," which means nothing. (Ladies, hold your fire. Ah loves love! But in tennis scoring, it is the equivalent of zero.)

Love in this context is supposed to be a corruption of the French l'oeuf—the egg. The French, they are a funny race, but not more so than we, since we refer to a shutout baseball game as a row of goose eggs. Still, would we say that Juan Marichal beat the Dodgers, three to egg?

One man has been campaigning in recent years to unscramble the tennis egg. He is James Van Alen, head of the Tennis Hall of Fame at Newport, R. I. He is plugging for the Van Alen Simplified Scoring System which he calls VASSS.

This simplified scoring system isn't simple enough to outline in this space. But it would get rid of ad in, ad out, deuce, love, and other traditional court statistics. It would keep matches from being six hours long.

"The whole scoring system we've been using for 90 years is completely nutty," says Mr. Van Alen. The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association has been alerted to VASSS. As of this writing, they are still in favor of love.

Eggs, anyone?

HONEST RASSLERS

In Iowa not long ago, a bill was introduced that would have required professional wrestlers to compete honestly to the best of their ability. Members of the Senate voted against it. Good.

Pro wrestling isn't dishonest. It's a show. It's today's vaudeville. In most states the matches are called exhibitions. For anybody who watches, it's the same as a western thriller—the white hats vs. the black hats. Nobody bets on it.

And while most of the grunt-and-groan biz is play-acting, it requires something more than stage craft to pick up a 300 pound hunk of man, twirl him over your head and toss him into a corner.

PROFESSOR OF QUARTERBACKING

Most boys hate to go to summer school but they might make an exception in the case of classes run by Prof. Benny Friedman. Benny teaches the manly art of forward passing. This year, his eighth in the business, he'll operate instruction camps in California, Nebraska and New York.

Boys from age 14 up are eligible if they've got $150 to lay out for a six-day session including food, lodging and hard work. Friedman coaches his charges on passing techniques, signal-calling, reading defenses, etc., with great stress on how to keep from getting hurt.

He demonstrates a follow through and crouch that he claims can cut down quarterback injuries by more than half. This former Michigan All-American played scholastic and pro ball from 1920 through 1933 without damaged knees, broken nose or other serious wound. There were no face masks in those days. And a QB played both offense and defense as did everyone else.

(even our own)

This is a section of the new plastic-coated Krona-Chrome chromium edge after five shaves, magnified 680 times. As you can see, chromium more effectively resists blade breakdown due to corrosion.

Only Schick Krona-Chrome has the chromium edge.

VOL. 27, NO. 48 — FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1969 — 48 PAGES — 10c

1,500 ROTC Cadets Graduate

"I'm proud to be here today in the company of American leaders. I have no fear of the future with such leaders as those standing before me," said Maj. Gen. George Forsythe, commanding general.

Gen. Forsythe was addressing the cadets of the 8th and 9th Bns., who graduated from the nation's only basic ROTC summer camp.

The graduation review, held on Sroup Field in Harmony Church, was conducted entirely by the cadets. The parade culminated six weeks of intensive training whereby college students may qualify for acceptance in the advance ROTC program and eventual commissioning as second lieutenants.

Joining Gen. Forsythe on the reviewing stand were Col. Herbert G. Peabody, deputy commander of the Training Center; Col. Clinton E. Male, chief of the ROTC Liaison Detachment; Col. Francisco J. Ramos, commander of the 2nd Bde., and Joe Flowers Jr., representative of the local AUSA chapter.

Stephen W. Johnson, Co. B, 9th Bn., who will be attending Cornell University this fall, was selected to receive the camp commander's trophy. This is the highest honor a cadet can receive and was presented to Johnson by Gen. Forsythe.

Awards from AUSA

Flowers awarded AUSA medals to the outstanding cadets of each battalion. They wre Rugh J. Link, Co. D, 8th Bn., and Carmen A. Aschettino, Co. D, 9th Bn. Link will be attending Valley Forge Military Academy; Aschettino, Pennsylvania Military College.

In addition to these awards, each company selects an outstanding cadet. Those who received certificates of achievemnt and trophies from Col. Peabody for the 8th Bn. were Paul D. Evans, Utah State University; Seth M. Lyrin Jr., Yale University; Larry L. Shealy, University of Alabama; and David C. Deppe, University of Arkansas.

Awardees from the 9th Bn. were Eric R. Meierhoefer, Tulane Law School; James B. Key III, University of Georgia Law School; Frank A. Arrington Jr., Florida State University; and Paul R. Regendorf, Vanderbilt University.

Cadets Excelled

Those cadets who excelled within their companies during basic rifle marksmanship and on the physical combat and individual proficiency tests received awards in their respective companies.

The companies who achieved the highest average in these tested phases of training were awarded streamers by Col. Ramos. The streamer for basic rifle marksmanship and individual proficiency was presented to Co. B, 9th Bn. The physical combat proficiency streamer was awarded to Co B, 8th Bn.

Col. Ramos also awarded the brigade commander's trophy to Co. D, 9th Bn., for their high overall performance, including administrative, mess and supply operations and the tested phases.

As Deputy Post Commander

Col. Long Takes Command Today

By PFC James Doherty

Fort Benning's new deputy post commander is a familiar figure to those who live within the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning triangle.

Colonel Talton W. Long, who officially assumes his new duties today, is a former deputy assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School and director of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

Long says he is particularly "impressed and pleased to see the expansion of the Officer Candidate program and the initiation of the noncommissioned officer candidate course" since he left Fort Benning in June, 1966.

Pointing especially to the increased number of Infantry officer advanced courses, the colonel said that this reflects Fort Benning's greater "success and usefulness in our contribution to the nation's defense effort."

This contribution is the result of "the dedication of some outstanding officers and noncommissioned officers," he said.

In 1966 he became Chief, Allied Staff, Berlin, serving in that post until June this year.

The allied staff, consisting of officers, enlisted men and other ranks from the U. S., British and French armed forces, serves the three allied commandants in Berlin.

The staff, along with political authorities, is responsible for coordination of military planning operations dealing with the freedom of West Berlin and the maintaining of ground and air access routes to the city.

Long entered the service as an enlisted man in July, 1941, and was commissioned as a second lieutenant after graduation from Officer Candidate School in July, 1942.

He was a platoon leader in the 505th Parachute Infntry Regiment in April, 1943. By January, 1946, he had become regimental executive officer.

During World War II he participated in the Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Normandy, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and Central Europe campaigns.

In January, 1947, he returned to the United States and was assigned as assistant chief of staff, G-1 (personnel officer), with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C., until August, 1948.

Following graduation from the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. in 1949, he became executive officer of the Organization and Training Division, Headquarters, Allied Forces, Southern Europe in Naples, Italy.

Later he became executive officer and staff officer of the Training, Doctrine and Requirements Branch, G-3 (Plans and Operations) Section, Headquarters U.S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va.

From August, 1955, to August, 1957, he remained at Fort Monroe as chief and research development coordinator of the Army Aviation and Airborne Material Division.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King
King's Pizza On Call

If you're shopping for a Swiss or Emmenthal cheese at its peak, the one that looks at you with moist eyes is ready to be taken home.

Young carrots shouldn't be scraped or peeled, just lightly scrubbed. Try coating cooked carrots in butter and chopped mint leaves to serve with lamb.

The Jerusalem artichoke, more like a potato than a globe artichoke, is not related to Jerusalem either. It's a cape Cod native that traveled to Europe, where Italians named it for its sunflower or "girasole" blossoms.

When boiling a live lobster, always plunge the lobster into the water head first. You can't blame it for protesting if you do it the other way around.

There's nothing new under the sun, not even pizzas. The poet Horace often sang the praises of dining in the hills of ancient Rome.

NCO CANDIDATE TRAINING

Is the Non-Commissioned Officer Candidate Course being used as an enlistment option?

Highly qualified high school graduates can now enlist for attendance at Infantry, Armor, Field Artillery, Air Defense Artillery and Engineer NCO Candidate Courses. This option is similar to the one available to college graduates for Officer Candidate School.

Men enlisting for this purpose for three or more years become eligible for accelerated advancement to grades E2-E6 upon completion of specialized training under the Skill Development Base Program. Newly published AR 601-223 has additional details about this enlistment option.

ENLISTED PROMOTION

I am an E-6 with 6 years service. To date I have only one MOS. Will this effect my chances for promotion to any great degree?

Possibly because soldiers in pay grades E7 and E8 whose records do not indicate required qualification in more than one MOS are limiting their assignment possibilities and denying themselves a chance to be selected by DA for promotion in other than their primary MOS. This can 'really hurt' those whose only recorded MOS does not progress to E9.

Therefore senior enlisted personnel are encouraged to qualify themselves for more than one specialty and to check to see that any additional MOS they might acquire are properly reported to DA in accordance with para 2-26, A 600-200.

DYING TW'S

I have a chance to buy a couple of tan TW's extremely cheap. I have been told that these uniforms can be dyed green and worn. Is this true?

Some commercial firms are advertising that they can transform the tan Tropical Worsted (TW) coat and trousers to AG44 Shade Green through the dyeing process. Don't waste your time and money — it doesn't work and therefore isn't authorized. Reason is Army tests which show thread shrinkage and uneven dyeing in most instances.

SENIOR OFFICER AVIATORS

Are Senior officers eligible for Aviator training?

For the first time in more than five years, the Army is soliciting applications from senior officers for flight school. Purpose is to help insure the continuing effectiveness of Army aviation's orientation to needs of ground combat forces.

Twenty five colonels and promotable lieutenant colonels with not more than 25 years promotion list service as of 1 June 1969 will be chosen for helicopter training. The first of this group should begin flight school this September.

Prerequistes are outlined in DA Pamphlet 350-10. Interested officers should apply to the Executive for Army Aviation, Office of Personnel Operations, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C. 20315 not later than 15 July 1969. This may be done by merely submitting a signed post card with name, rank, serial number and the notation, "I volunteer for rotary wing flight training."

Successful applicants and alternates, who will be selected by a DA board headed by a general officer, will be notified in August to submit formal applications in accordance with AR 6-11-110.

GOLDEN KNIGHTS

Are there any openings in the Army precision jump team, "The Golden Knights?"

The Golden Knights, crack U. S. Army Parachute Team, are now accepting applications. Try-outs will take place at Fort Bragg from 27 October-13 December 1969 and will consist of 100 to 150 free-fall jumps per man in addition to ground training.

Regular Army enlisted men stationed in CONUS or returning from overseas may apply prior to 30 September provided they have a minimum of 18 months remaining on current enlistment, are airborne qualified and have at least 100 free-fall jumps.

Twenty five soldiers will be selected for the try-outs. Those wanting more information or application forms should write to the CO, U. S. Army Parachute Team, Box 126, Fort Bragg, North Carolina 28307. Reference is AR-28-90.

Be Smart-Be Honorable

As provided by law, a Certificate of Discharge is issued at the end of service in the Army. This discharge is important to any soldier probably one of the most important pieces of paper he will ever receive during his lifetime. It will show the manner in which military duties were performed and will be looked upon in the future as a character and efficiency reference for the period of time served.

Your discharge plays an important part in determining your standing in the civilian community. It affects eligibility for many veterans' rights and benefits.

On the whole, it is the type of the discharge which controls eligibility for, and entitlement to, veterans' benefits and depending upon its type, the service discharge can facilitate or hinder civilian employment in the future.

"So what?" some say.

While other types of discharges will get you OUT of the Army, the effect these undesirable discharges will have on your record will keep you out of good jobs, disqualify you for many government benefits, and ruin your social standing within the community.

Employment Potential

Almost any prospective employer will ask about service commitment or discharge from the military; here the holder of a non-honorable discharge has two choices, either put down the truth and probably not be hired or tell a lie, which can be easily detected.

Your record of conduct in the Army is used by many employers and other civilian agencies as a yardstick to judge your conduct, actions, suitability and character in civilian life. The most obvious part of your conduct record is the type of discharge you receive.

Your chances of getting credit from a bank or other financial institution are greatly diminished when your service record is examined and it contains a discharge under other than honorable conditions.

You will have a difficult time financing a car, furniture, a home, or any other type of large purchase you may have in mind which requires credit.

Loss of Benefits

In addition to being frozen out of the better job opportunities you lose most of the benefits which other veterans and service people are entitled to from the Army, Veterans Administration and other government agencies.

Remember your best way out, and the only smart way out, is the HONORABLE way.

Discharges

Honorable Discharge: A separation from the Army with honor. It is issued for proper military behavior and proficient performance of duty, with consideration given to the rank, age, length of service and general aptitude of the individual. A member must have served faithfully, conscientiously and cooperatively performed his duties to the best of his abilities.

General Discharge: A separation given under honorable conditions. A general discharge indicates satisfactory performance of duty not sufficiently meritorious to warrant an honorable discharge.

Undesirable Discharge: An administrative separation from the service under other than honorable conditions. Undesirable discharges may be issued for unfitness, misconduct, homosexuality, or for security reasons.

Bad Conduct Discharge: Given under conditions other than honorable, by sentence of a general or special court-martial.

Dishonorable Discharge: Given by sentence of a general court-martial and is usually accompanied by confinement and loss of pay and allowances. It is adjudged only for very serious offenses and all rights and benefits normally provided to veterans are lost, including entitlement to social security compensation.

I DON'T CARE IF YOUR TOMATO PLANTS DID DIE! YOU'RE NOT GETTINNG EMERGENCY LEAVE.

Vietnam Strength

What is the U.S. strength in Vietnam including FWF; casualty figures; enemy strength in Vietnam; civilian deaths in Vietnam?

U.S. Strength in Vietnam: Army, 361,000; Marines, 81,000; USAF, 60,000; Navy, 36,000; Coast Guard, 500; total 538,500 as of 5 July.

Free World Forces-72,000, same date as above.

Casualty figures: Total U.S. deaths resulting from action by hostile forces-36,866. Combat deaths for other forces: RVNAF-81,661; FWF-3,149; Enemy-523,552.

Farewell Service Set for Chaplain and Mrs. Barnett

A farewell service for Chaplain (Lt. Col.) and Mrs. James R. Barnett will be conducted at Sand Hill Chapel No. 5 Sunday at 11:10 a.m.

The service will be under the direction of Chaplain (Maj.) Leonard H. Miller. Chaplain (Col.) Holland Hope, Fort Benning's post chaplain, will be the guest speaker.

Chaplain Barnett, who has been staff chaplain for the U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, for more than two and one half years, will be returning to his home state of Texas for an assignment at Fort Hood.

The Southern Baptist, whose entire ministry has been spent in the Army, has served in six Infantry divisions and wears four battle stars for service with the 30th Infantry Division in Europe where he won the Bonze Star during World War II.

He earned the Commendation Medal with the 7th Infantry Division in Korea in 1953 and 1st oak leaf cluster while a member of the 5th Division at Fort Carson, Colo., in 1964.

Chaplain Barnett was on duty with the 1st Infantry Division stationed in Berlin, during the Berlin Airlift, which impressed him almost as vividly as did combat. The cooperation and spirit of the Berliners left him with the feeling of a "tremendous experience" just to be there.

The chaplain also served with the 101st Airborne Training Division at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., and the 71st and 4th Infantry Divisions at Fort Lewis, Wash.

He was one of the two 30th Division chaplains who hitchhiked from the 9th Replacement Depot in England through France and Holland to the front lines of World War II without going through normal replacement channels. The trip took them two weeks.

A graduate of Howard Payne College at Brownwood, Tex., Chaplain Barnett entered the Army in 1943, directly from Southwestern Theological Seminary at Fort Worth. He completed the advanced chaplain school in 1959 and was assigned to Darmstadt and Bamberg, Germany, as post chaplain.

Chaplain Barnett's service career has included assignments with anti-aircraft, artillery and armored units. He completed three tours in Germany, two in Korea and one in Fukouka, Japan, where he was hospital-chaplain in 1954.

A native of Haskell, Tex., Chaplain Barnett is married to the former Alma Carlton.

Wives View Training In Scout Dog Area

The long hours of waiting will go a little easier in the future for wives of students training in the 197th Infantry Brigade's Scout Dog Handlers Course.

Last Saturday, they were shown why their husbands are working those long hours, often all night, at a special demonstration in the scout dog kennel area.

The scout dog show was a part of Maj. George M. Massey's overall plan to keep students of his on and off-leash dog handling courses enthused about their training.

For the wives, it was a close-up view of the training their husbands are receiving and for most it was an opportunity to discover just why their spouses come home raving about "Prinz," "Charlie" and "Lady."

Narrated by 2nd Lt. Timothy Bryan, also a student in the course, the wives were brought up to date on the history of scout dogs, shown the basic obedience commands and watched dogs and their handlers negotiate obstacles.

An almost true-to-life demonstration of the use of scout dogs for patrolling ended the show.

PINT-SIZED AUDIENCE LISTENS
Mrs. Eisenmann Conducts Story Hour

Children's Room at Library Becomes 'In' Place on Post

By Marian Joies

For the 3-to-5-year-old set, the "in" place to be on Tuesday mornings this summer is the Children's Room of the Main Post Library at story time.

Here, beginning at 10 a.m., Mrs. Bruce Eisenmann enthralls her pint-sized audience with old fashioned story telling. Aided by Miss Susan Sheeley, Mrs. Eisenmann has been holding the sessions for six weeks.

Mrs. Eisenmann, a volunteer worker, was a children's librarian in California prior to coming to Fort Benning.

She says that three was selected as the minimum age for admittance because that is the age when most children first become interested in books. For some, it is their first experience in being with a large group of children.

When asked what criteria she uses to judge whether or not a book would be good for story telling, Mrs. Eisenmann listed three.

A book with immediate action, one with clear, large pictures and one with a limited number of words per page would be ideal, she stated.

Mothers who accompany their children to the library usually are expected to leave the room during the story but are asked to remain in the library.

50th Company OC Wives Hold 'Bali Ha'i' Farewell Luncheon

Officer Candidate Wives of the 50th Co. 8th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Bde. held a farewell luncheon in Phenix City, Ala.

"Bali Ha'i" was the theme of the luncheon.

The wives were greeted by Mrs. Donald Huskins and Mrs. Clark Yobley. Both wore brightly colored Hawaiian mumus and presented flower name tags to the wives and guests.

The dining room was decorated with oil paintings done by Mrs. David Gardner and wall hangings done by Mrs. Leonard Waring. Mrs. Royal Tyler contributed a flower arrangement done in bright orange.

The wives were entertained by Mrs. Jeff MacLeod and Mrs. Robert Smith who sang "Where Have all the Flowers Gone" and "This Land is Your Land." An interpretative dance was performed by Mrs. Thomas Roberts.

NCO Wives Will Hold Open House Saturday

The Fort Benning NCO Wives Club will hold open house for members from 1-4 p.m. Saturday at a new club house in the Lawson Field area, Bldg. 2422.

The club recently acquired the building after being without a place in which small groups could meet. The old building was torn down over a year ago to make room for a new elementary school.

The club has remodeled the inside of the building and encourages all members to view the results on this day.

The building will house the club ceramic shop as well as a meeting room for sewing, cake decorating or other classes the membership holds.

Refreshments will be served to members and their guests. Special guests will be husbands of club members who helped in the remodeling of the building.

All wives of men in grade E-4 and above are cordially invited to come and join the club on this day.

Ear Disease Prevails Most During Swimming Season

External otitis has been called multiple names in the past, emphasizing its frequent occurrence in hot and humid climates, for example tropical ear, Singapore ear and swimmer's ear.

However, external otitis is found in all climatic conditions. It is the most common ear disease and prevails most during the summer swimming season.

Although heat, humidity and bathing are aggravating factors in some cases, the most important fact is local trauma, from cotton-tipped swabs, hairpins, dirty towels and other culprits used to "clean" the ear.

These instruments of disease remove the natural wax, cause minor cuts and scratches of the ear canal, thus removing the ear's natural protection that the skin and wax afford, thereby opening the door to the causative organism. The wax is there for protection and the ear canal does not have to pass the IG white glove inspection.

Some cases are secondary to chronic middle ear disease which will need correction first.

The symptoms of external otitis are discomfort which leads to pain in and around the ear.

NCO Wives Honor Gen. Forsythe's Wife

Seventy ladies enjoyed a salad luncheon at the Sand Hill NCO Club. Mrs. Walter Cunningham, club president, presented Mrs. Forsythe with an honorary membership card.

Tables were laid with blue tablecloths and decked with arrangements of blue flowers.

Hostesses for the affair were the executive board of the club including Mmes. Cunningham, Acy Akridge, Eugene Sides, Charles Bohlman, William Reimler, Grover Allen and Kenneth Simpson.

Miss Basta Wins Cook-In With Sierra Ranch Ribs

country style spareribs, they did not look as if they were from the same animal she was accustomed to seeing back home.

But, with assurances from aides and staff members, she gamely tackled the job of cutting and cooking her Sierra Ranch Ribs. Her tray was well presented with its colorful garnish and helped to win the top score for her in the Cook-In.

She was presented with 10 shares of CPC International stock, a deluxe self cleaning range by Westinghouse, a participating sponsor, and a Revere silver bowl from Tiffany's by Best Foods, a Division of CPC International, a major sponsor of the Pageant.

The silver bowl has become a tradition in the pageant and a coveted prize among the candidates.

Carolyn was judged on technique, selection of recipe, presentation, taste and neatness.

She lists gourmet cooking as one of her outside interests and the professional manner in which she presented her food to the judges gave proof of this interest. Here are the two recipes she prepared.

Sierra Ranch Ribs

- 4 pounds country style spareribs (less than 1-inch thick)
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 3 (8-ounce) cans tomato sauce
- 3 cups water
- 1-3 cup cider vinegar
- 4 cups chopped yellow onions
- 1-3 cup Worcestershire sauce

Trim fat from ribs; cut ribs into serving pieces. Combine salt, monosodium glutamate and pepper; rub mixture into ribs. Place ribs in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a 400° F. (hot) oven 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 350° F. (moderate) and continue baking 1 hour and 30 minutes, or until tender. Drain fat from pan.

Combine tomato sauce, water, onions, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, dry mustard, chili powder, corn syrup and the remaining 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate and ½ teaspoon pepper. Simmer 10 minutes.

Drain meat well on absorbent paper. Place ribs in a 15½ x 10½ x 2¾-inch baking pan. Pour hot sauce over ribs using amount needed and storing remainder in refrigerator. Bake in a 350° F. (moderate) oven 30 minutes, basting occasionally with sauce.

Meanwhile prepare sauce in a 3½-quart saucepan. Mix together tomato sauce, water, onions, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, dry mustard, chili powder, corn syrup and the remaining 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate and ½ teaspoon pepper. Simmer 10 minutes.

Drain meat well on absorbent paper. Place ribs in a 15½ x 10½ x 2¾-inch baking pan. Pour hot sauce over ribs using amount needed and storing remainder in refrigerator. Bake in a 350° F. (moderate) oven 30 minutes, basting occasionally with sauce.

Arrange ribs on chop dish. Spoon some of the sauce over ribs to glaze; serve remaining hot sauce separately. Garnish ribs with orange slices and parsley. Makes 4 to 5 servings.)

Chicken Pineapple

- 2 medium size pineapples with tufts
- 3 cups cooked cubed chicken or turkey breasts
- 1 (11-ounce) can Mandarin orange sections, drained
- 1 cup seedless green grapes
- 2 cups diced celery
- 2 tablespoons corn oil
- 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon curry powder
- ¾ cup real mayonnaise
- ½ cup chopped pecans
- Romaine lettuce
- Maraschino cherries

(Cut pineapple into halves. Remove core and flesh of pineapple. Trim pineapple. Cut about 1 cup smaller pieces to mix with salad; cut longer pieces into spears to arrange on top.

Mix chicken, orange, pineapple pieces, grapes and celery in a large chilled bowl. In a small mixing bowl, mix corn oil, orange juice concentrate, vinegar, salt and curry powder.

Mix well; then stir mayonnaise gently. Toss one-half the dressing with the salad mixture; chill 30 minutes. Just before serving mix in pecans. Line pineapple shells with Romaine lettuce; pile salad into shells. Garnish salad with pineapple spears and cherry. Spoon on extra dressing. Makes 4 servings.)

Infantry Board Dinner Party Honors Two Retiring Colonels

Two members of the U.S. Army Infantry Board were honored upon their retirment from the Army by a formal dinner party held at the Fort Benning Supper Club.

Those honored guests included Col. Walter F. Johnston and Lt. Col. Charles R. King.

Hosting the party and serving as master of ceremonies was Col. Charles B. Thomas, president of the Infantry materiel test board.

With his retirement Colonel Johnston terminates a 30-year span of Infantry service, which culminated in his serving as president of the Infantry Board.

He entered the Army in July 1939 and was at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941. Graduating from Infantry OCS in August 1942, the colonel served in the European Theater of Operations during World War II with the 100th Infantry Battalion.

While with this elite fighting unit, the most decorated unit of the second World War, the colonel was decorated with the Bronze Star Medal with oak leaf cluster and the Purple Heart with oak leaf cluster. He also is a veteran of the Korean War.

Col. King, also bringing to a close 30 years of service, has been assigned to the Infantry Board as chief of the Combat Conditions Test Division.

He is a veteran of three wars, WWII, the Korean War and the war in Vietnam.

Through this varied and extensive combat service he has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal with second oak leaf cluster, the Purple Heart, the Army Commendation Medal with second oak leaf cluster and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Commencing with a cocktail hour, the dinner guests were seated at a "U" shaped table with the honored guests and Colonel and Mrs. Thomas seated at the head table.

During the evening festivities, Col. Thomas presented the honored guests with gifts from the Infantry Board. The three liaison officers for the board, Lt. Col. Gregor MacGregor of the British Army, Maj. Peter Hall-Humperson of the Canadian Army and Maj. Daniel Mullally of the U.S. Marines, presented Colonel and Mrs. Johnston with a plaque and citation which was read to the gathered guests by Mullally.

Open House For Red Cross

The Red Cross of Fort Benning invites all volunteers and volunteens (active or inactive) to an open house Tuesday between 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. in the Red Cross recreation room in the basement of Martin Army Hospital.

Volunteers and volunteens will have a chance at the open house to meet Mrs. Robert M. Piper, the new chairman of volunteers on post.

Volunteers and volunteens should wear the Red Cross uniform (no cap), white gloves and black closed toe and heel shoes. If a person is working as a volunteer that day, white shoes should be worn.

"This will be a grand time to meet new volunteers and volunteens who you may be working with this fall," said a Red Cross representative.

WAC Cadets Visit Fort Benning, Ride 'Buddy Seat'

The two visitors were drawn up to the breath taking top of the "buddy seat" tower above the airborne tower committee buildings.

The chute was released and the two young women floated down with alternate laughing and shouting.

The women were two of 150 WAC cadets to try the "buddy seat," a parachute with a bench which is guided to the ground by steel wires.

The WAC cadets spent two days at Fort Benning observing scout dog training, airborne training, quick kill training and guerrilla operations.

One of the first women to "hit the silk" was Lt. Col. W. M. Oliver (WAC), director of instruction for the U.S. Womens Army School, Fort McClellan, Ala.

Colonel Oliver explained the program that brought the cadets to Fort Benning.

"The WAC cadets are part of the College Junior Program," she said, "which is similar to the men's Reserve Officer Training Corps."

She explained that the cadets are juniors from colleges all over the country. They are on active duty for four weeks of training and orientation.

The colonel said all the girls hope to become WAC officers after graduating from college. While on active duty and during their senior years, if they remain in the program, they receive E-4 pay and privileges.

The four weeks active duty is used to determine whether they want the Army and whether the Army wants them. If they are selected for service upon graduation, they attend 18 weeks of WAC officer basic training and are commissioned second lieutenants.

The cadets all seemed to enjoy the training, especially the exciting ride on the "buddy seat."

Phyllis Baur of Fairbanks, Alaska, said, "I want to try coming down the big tower now. I wish that WACs could take airborne training."

Lucie Giddings of Washington, D.C., said, "I enjoyed it," but a friend disclosed that "she was scared stiff."

Chicken breasts make a delightful main course for a barbecue party and also for the dieting member of the group. The dieter should remember, however, that he adds about 60 calories to the 200 a four-ounce portion holds if he eats the skin.

A variation of the beef marinade adds a succulent touch to chicken breasts smoke-cooked in a covered barbecue kettle. Here's that variation:

CHICKEN BREASTS
1-4 cup soy sauce
1-2 cup brown sugar
1 cup dry, white wine
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon Tabasco sauce

(Mix the ingredients and bring to a boil, then allow to cool. Marinate the chicken breasts for at least two hours before placing on grill with meaty side up. Cover and broil for about 40 minutes until golden brown and well done. Baste frequently with the marinade.)

• • •

Pork is a great meat for barbecuing in a covered kettle. Its rich fat creates a pungent smoke to bring out the splendid flavor of outdoor cooking. But for the dieter it is one meat he must be especially cautious about when introducing it into his menu.

Whole pork tenderloin is the least dangerous to his program of weight reduction. A four-ounce portion is well under 300 calories whereas other cuts of pork can go well above the number. Whole pork tenderloin should be cooked over indirect heat with a drip pan in the center.

About 20 minutes per pound for well done. Brush on soy sauce periodically during the roasting period. It adds almost no calories but brings to the meat a robust, almost nut-like flavor.

Some attention should also be given to what is served with the main dish if the dieter is sincere in his weight-watching program. A fresh green salad can accompany any of the dishes suggested, provided the dressing is kept at a minimum. French dressing has the least calories (62 per tablespoon) of all varieties.

And, of course, fresh cooked vegetables are in order. Brussel sprouts, carrots and cauliflower are side dishes of this type are all reasonably low in calories, provided they are not prepared in a butter sauce.

Streams---No Obstacle

By 2 Lt James Hopson

Hot summer weather slows training down, except at Fort Benning's Uchee Creek, where non-commissioned officer candidates cannot get enough of the Infantry School's expedient stream crossing class.

The men plunge repeatedly into the stream's cooling current, testing crossing methods they learn from the School's engineer committee.

The NCOCs sit in bleachers at the Uchee Creek site and observe demonstrations of a number of techniques used to cross unfordable streams. They learn how to cross streams using the air mattresses they carry as sleeping gear, using "water wings" made of empty canteens tied together, on a raft of empty five-gallon water cans and on bridges and rafts made of rope, ponchos and other available materials.

The fun starts when the candidates try out what they have learned.

Their first crossing employes a rope, stretched between two tree trunks. Although called a bridge, it actually serves as a guide for the men to grip as they kick their way across the current.

On the other two crossings, the candidates use their ponchos to support them as they paddle across the stream.

The "Australian poncho raft" is an effective means to float both men and equipment across unfordable streams. Two-man teams bundle their weapons and other gear into an airtight sack made of their ponchos tied together. The raft will support both men and keep the equipment dry in the water.

A "double barrel" poncho raft, two poncho rafts within a framework of saplings, will support four men and their equipment.

The stream crossing class is given to officer candidates, Infantry officer basic students as well as to the non-commissioned officer candidates.

Weather is often a factor in student enthusiasm for the problem.

"In the summertime we can't keep them out of the water," said Maj. Richard L. Hudson of the engineer committee.

Benning Sports Dozens of Varieties of Headwear

BY BILL HARDIN

The annual Easter parade in most any city offers no more different types of headwear than any to be seen on any given day at Fort Benning.

The main difference is that an Easter parade usually includes different styles and varying colors of headwear for the fairer sex. At the United States Army Infantry Center, the different headwear is worn mainly by the men.

When counting the number of different types, and styles of the portion of the uniform worn on the head, it is perhaps easiest if the counting is done by the dozen, rather than attempting to count each individual type.

Variety of Caps

For members of the Army, there are frequently seen types such as green fatigue caps, garrison caps for enlisted and a different type for officers, and three types of green service caps; one for enlisted, another for company grade officers, and a third for field grade officers and general officers. And there are caps for dress blue, and white uniforms also.

To this list add the black baseball caps worn by members of the Infantry School's Airborne Department, and the Red baseball caps worn by the parachute "Riggers" of the Quartermaster Corps.

Other types for the men of the Army include the campaign cap, commonly referred to as the "Smokey The Bear" hat. It is worn by the noncommissioned officers of the basic training units. And add to the flight helmets used by aviators. While on the subject of helments, there are those worn by tank crew members. There are still others used to protect men engaged in pugil stick training.

Helmet Liners

Many soldiers wear helmet liners. These are of many colors and have varied decorations, depending upon the duty performed by the wearer.

Next, there is the new helmet under test by the Infantry Board.

By all means, don't fail to include the Green Beret of the Special Forces member.

Many food handlers and cooks wear a white cap. Some wear the tall chef's cap.

Next, for Military Policemen, there is a white cap, and a white pith helmet.

WAC's

Then, there are the members of the Womens' Army Corps. The WACS have no less than 12 different types to add to the list which are worn by their officer and enlisted members.

So much for the Army. With Naval officers and enlisted men and even sometimes women on post every day for visits or training, several more types may be added to the growing list.

The marines and Air Force members stationed here contribute even more.

Visiting Airmen are frequently seen with more than one color beret.

Allied Officers

With allied officers from 40 different countries sending students here for training, and with each man having several different type and different colored hats and caps to add, the list suddenly more than doubles, maybe even triples.

The list already is into the hundreds, and no mention has been made of the hat and caps used by persons in uniform participating in various types of sporting activities on any given day.

Soldier Re-Ups for Big Money

LZ BRONCO, Vietnam (AMERICAL IO)—Two hours after he reenlisted recently, Specialist Four Iam R. Mcleish (Ludlow, Mass.), formerly with the 3rd Bn., 1st Inf., walked out of the Americal Division finance office with a smile and $8,155 richer.

In addition to the tax-free Variable Reenlistment Bonus (VRB) and a 30-day leave which does not affect his DEROS, Mcleish received immediate reassignment of his choice and is now a helicopter repairman with the 176th Assault Helicopter Co.

Previously, Mcleish, who plans to make the Army a career, had worked as a cook, but he had a primary MOS of a helicopter repairman. The senior 11th Bde. career counselor, Sergeant First Class Ed Crawley (Waycross, Ga.), carefully outlined the benefits to Mcleish before he enlisted for the highest VRB ever paid a "Jungle Warrior."

Under SFC Crawley's guidance the 11th Bde.'s reenlistment office has had the highest reenlistment rate in USARV during the last four months. In June 47 Bde. soldiers reelisted, an all-time USARV record.

The success of the 11th Bde.'s program is due to the command emphasis which it receives and the career's counselor's policy of going to the soldier. SFC Crawley frequently travels to the forward fire bases to conduct interviews with soldiers who have demonstrated superior performance of duty and good military conduct.

"Here's the way it works," explained SFC Crawley. "We sit down with the man and explain the Variable Reenlistment Bonus (VRB) program to him as well as his right to request a permanent change of MOS and assignment here in Vietnam. The 30-day leave is an additional attraction which has been recently initiated.

"To be eligible for the VRB," he continued, "a man must have 21 months active service time behind him. If his MOS falls under one of four categories, he is paid his base pay times the number of years he re-enlists times his VRB designator, determined by his MOS, plus one."

In order to be eligible for the maximum of $10,000 under the program, a man has to be E-5 or higher, have two years of service and have a VRB designator of four.

Unit Commanded By Columbusite Receives Presidential Citation

BEARCAT, Vietnam, July 10—The Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States has awarded the Presidential Unit Citation to the 355th Assault Helicopter Company of the 1st Aviation Brigade.

The award to the 355th "Cowboys" is for extraordinary heroism, while attached to the 173rd Airborne Brigade (Separate) during Operation MacArthur in Kontum Province from November 8 through 23, 1967.

The 335th AHC in support of the 173rd, moved to Dak To in the central highlands in early November 1967 with the mission of initiating search-and-destroy operations in conjunction with elements of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division and other allied forces.

The citation read: "Opposed by the elite 24th, 32nd, 66th and 174th North Vietnamese Infantry Regiments supported by the 40th Artillery Regiment of the 1st North Vietnamese Infantry Division, the 173rd Airborne Brigade and its assigned and attached units displayed exceptional gallantry, determination, esprit de corps and professional skill in defeating a heavily armed, welltrained, well-disciplined and numerically superior enemy operating largely from well-prepared and heavily fortified positions.

"For 18 days of continuous combat at pointblank range, the friendly forces relentlessly pressed the attack against seemingly invulnerable fortified positions until they were reduced and the enemy destroyed. The allied defeat of the 1st North Vietnamese Division frustrated a major enemy attempt to control the Dak To area and the surrounding highlands."

Today, the "Cowboys," commanded by Major Howard Stiles of Columbus, Ga., are still flying the Vietnam skies; however, their mission and location have changed. The unit is presently flying in support of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam in the Mekong Delta.

Movie Synopsis

THE GRADUATE . . . Story of a college graduate who graduates into life and love after college. THE GRADUATE is a searching and penetrating portrayal of listless, restless youth eager for answers they didn't get in college.

DEATH RIDES A HORSE . . . Bill (John Phillip Law) lives for one purpose — to avenge the massacre of his family by a gang of bandits. Ryan (Lee Van Cleef) sets out to get the members of the gang that had framed him into prison. Oddly enough, both men have the same goal. The climax proves a catharsis for both, and by a strange quirk of fate, both walk away from it—alive.

THE WRECKING CREW . . . Matt Helm is the debonair commercial photographer who prefers the delights of his bachelor life to the demands of his work as an agent for ICE, the world-ranging super-secret organization which opposes spies and other baddies. When a billion dollars in gold is hijacked in Denmark, ICE talks a reluctant Matt into the job of recovering it. Secret weapons, gorgeous girls and a super-villain provide the complications.

GHOSTS-ITALIAN STYLE . . . The spookiest, kookiest ghost story that ever caused panic in the dark. Get ready to scream . . . with laughter when you see Sophia Loren and Vittorio Gassman as the haunting . . . and the haunted . . . in this frightfully funny comedy.

DUFFY . . . A comedy crime caper with James Coburn who plays an American living in Tangiers, who is happily devoted to chics and chickanery . . . But, he takes on the organizing of a multi-million dollar heist. Duffy's interest is provoked less by his share of the loot than by the allure of the girls and fun involved.

Arts, Crafts Center Displays 25 Winners of Photo Contest

By Tere Davis

The 25 grand final winners of the 12th Interservice Photography Contest are on display until Aug. 10 in the Arts and Crafts Center here.

The photographs include black and white and color prints competing in eight categories — people, babies and children, animals and pets, action, scenic, military life, still life and experimental.

The contest is service-wide for all men and women in uniform who have served 90 days active duty.

Last year the U. S. Army won the Perpetual Interservice Trophy, given to the branch of service acquiring the greatest number of points for entries and winners.

A contestant may submit any number of photographs or color transparencies in any or all categories and may win awards up to $600.

Entries are judged at installation, Army, Department of the Army and Interservice levels. The judges are professional photographers chosen at each level.

The interservice winning entries are rotated to-requesting installations throughout the world after which they are placed in the Interservice Museum, Washington, D. C.

All photographers considering entering the 13th Interservice Photography Contest are encouraged by Hugh E. Cook, crafts administrator, to see these examples on display and submit entries by Aug. 5. Other information and entry forms are available at the Crafts Center.

4 Veterans Enjoy 3-Day Holiday

By PFC Lee Myers

Four Vietnam veterans being treated at Martin Army Hospital here were the first to be given a three-day holiday at the Ramada Inn, courtesy of Phenix City-Russell County Chamber of Commerce and the people of Phenix City, Ala.

The community's Vietnam Veterans Appreciation Program is a plan to provide rest and entertainment each month for four Vietnam returnees.

The expense paid holiday was Monday through Wednesday.

The first four guests were: SSgt. Donald Rolison, who fell from a helicopter at Kontum on Feb. 25; Sgt. James Bryant, who was shot with an AK 47 on April 25 near the Cambodian border; Spc Willie J. Robinson, who received a gunshot wound Feb. 26; and SSgt. Herbert L. Martin, who received shrapnel wounds in the head, foot and knee.

Monday the four had lunch with the Phenix City Rotary Club and Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning, who addressed the luncheon.

Tuesday, they attended the Phenix City Commission meeting and had lunch with Mayor John Anthony before touring the city.

Eight Marksmanship Unit Shooters Are Selected To Represent U.S. in World Moving Target Games

By Calvin Jensen

Some of the greatest shooting in the world was witnessed as eight army marksmen from the Marksmanship Training Unit, Ft. Benning earned berths on the U. S. Shooting team during the U. S. Shooting team finals in San Antonio, Texas.

The eight Army shooters are part of a fifteen member U. S. Shooting team that will represent the U. S. in the World Moving Target Games. The team is broken into three elements of five men each; Running Boar, Trap and Skeet.

Running Boar competition is scheduled to take place this August in Sandevekin, Sweden while the trap and skeet competition will take place at San Sebastian, Spain some time in October.

Leading the Running Boar team is World Champion Army SFC John Kingeter of Sarasota, Fla. Kingeter's shooting ability has brought him many honors.

Backing up Kingeter are Army veteran shooters MSG. Loyd Crow, Greenwood, Miss., and SFC Edmund Moeller, Moulton, Tex. Both Crow and Moeller are experienced shooters. They were with the Army team recently returned from a successful shooting trip to Europe, breaking many Running Boar team records. Rounding off the team are two Air Force TSgt's Teddy McMillion, Flint, Mich. and Franklin Tassas, San Antonio, Texas.

Heading the skeet team is Lt. Col. Thomas Gillmore, Odin, Ill. Gillmore is the Officer in Charge of the Army's shotgun team. He has also been selected as the captain for both the Trap Skeet teams during the Moving target championships.

Army S-Sgt. Philip Provence, Mnleshoe, Tex., is the second army members on the U. S. Skeet team. He placed third in the U. S. Championships to make the team. Two civilians, Bob Schnehle, Roselle, Ill. and Robert Bodale, Allentown, Pa., are the only non-military shooters to make the U. S. team. The fifth member of the skeet team is Air Force TSgt. Earl Herring of San Antonio, Texas.

Five shooters emerged from some torrid shooting to make one of the strongest U. S. trap teams ever assembled.

Among the fine trap talent is Army Sgt. James Beck, Omaha, Neb. Beck was a Silver medalist in the last moving target games. Army Olympic shooter Sp5 Larry Stafford placed as the second man on the team. The third army trap member and eighth on the U. S. team is Sgt. Russell Anderson, Belleville, Kan. Other members are Olympic Silver medalist S-Sgt. Tom Garrigus, Hillsboro, Ore., of the Air Force and present U. S. Champion and record holder S-Sgt.Terry Howard, Waldwick, N. J. Air Force.

All three teams have fire cracker potential. They will bring some of the best guns in the world on parade when they compete in the World Moving Target Championships.

CISM Tryouts

Six Ft. Benning shooters from the Marksmanship Training Unit earned the right to go to Granada, Spain and the XI Conseil of International du Sport Militarie (CISM) shooting championships.

The final tryouts hosted by the Marksmanship Training Unit, Ft. Benning, ended with at least one representative from each of the four services gaining a spot on the ten-man team.

Army Maj. Lones Wigger won the rifle portion of the tryouts with a 2491 score out of a possible 2700. Present CISM champion and teammate to Wigger, MSG. William Krilling placed second in the match.

Two other army marksmen, S-Sgt. Patrick Boyle and SFC James McQuien earned berths on the team along with Navy Lt. Webster M. Wright and alternate Thomas Treinen.

John Higginson, Marine Corps Warrant Officer and former CISM champion out shot Army SFC Robert Whitacre for the number one spot on the pistol portion of the team. Higginson produced a 2649 three points better than Whitacre's score.

Army SGM William Blankenship and Air Force TSgt. John Ditmore earned seats on the team along with first alternate Air Force TSgt. Hubert Legg.

Last year the U. S. CISM team competed against ten nations, setting several records and winning the overall CISM championships.

Atlanta Braves-Game Will Be On Columbus Television

The Atlanta Braves television network will beam Sunday afternoon's Braves-Montreal Expos game at Atlanta Stadium to fans in six states.

The 13th Braves telecast of the season, Sunday's game replaces the July 4 telecast of a Braves-San Diego game, which was cancelled because of the Apollo 11 moon landing.

Telecast time for Sunday's game is 2:15 EDT. Milo Hamilton, Ernie Johnson and Bob Hecker will call the play-by-play.

Only one other Braves home game, a Sept. 10 meeting with San Francisco, will be aired on Braves TV. Six remaining out-of-town affairs are scheduled for telecasting.

WSB-TV in Atlanta is the flag station for the Braves TV network, one of the largest in Baseball.

Other Braves network stations are WRDW in Augusta, WTVM and WRBL in Columbus, WMAZ in Macon and WTOC in Savannah, Georgia; WAPI in Birmingham, WOWL in Florence, WMSL in Huntsville and WSFA in Montgomery, Alabama; WTVX in Fort Pierce, WJKS in Jacksonville, WDBO in Orlando, WEAR in Pensacola, WCTV in Tallahassee, WLCY in St. Petersburg, and WCKT in Miami, Florida; WSOS in Charlotte, North Carolina; WUSN in Charleston, WIS in Columbia and WFBC in Greenville, South Carolina; and WRCB in Chattanooga, WBIR in Knoxville and WSM in Nashville, Tennessee.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

There were two changes in the July Fishing Derby last week. SSgt. Bobby G. McCarter, A Co., Infantry School Battalion now leads the bream contest with a one-pound 11-ounce entry taken with rod and reel and worms at Kings Pend July 27. Capt. Ralph Southare, 20th Co., The Student Brigade leads the catfish category, with a five-pound seven-ounce entry caught at Kings Pond July 25. Peter Swiderdik still leads the bass contest with the nine pounder he caught at Harp Pond July 4.

The Federal Fish and Wildlife Commission has announced the periods during which states may hold open season for dove. Georgia has announced that the first of its split season will run from Sept. 6 to Oct 4. and the limit has been raised to 18 per day. Alabama has not yet announced any opening day.

While on the subject of hunting it isn't too late for those hunters who have been neglecting their dogs during the off hunting season to get them back in shape for this coming season.

The care and exercise a dog gets during off season will be reflected in his hunting ability, especially during the first few days. It may seem odd to some but a dog requires a planned conditioning program as much as any athlete. Its not the dogs fault if he is not in proper condition when the season starts.

I imagine it would be surprising if a poll were taken to determine how many local sportsmen are guilty of this type negligence. A hunter lavishes all kinds of attention and care on his dogs during the hunting season but has a tendency to forget about them during the period between seasons.

Many hunters do make the time to exercise their dogs. These who walk or run with their dogs benefit by keeping in good shape while others exercise the dogs by driving slowly down country roads, allowing the dog to run freely in pursuit.

The most important items in the care of a dog is his diet and kennel area. Unsanitary conditions breed disease. Kennels should be cleaned daily and kept well ventilated. The run should be as large as possible to provide maximum area for exercise. The real benefit a sportsman gets from keeping his dogs in top condition will be paid by results in the field.

Fishermen are pretty closed mouth when it comes to sharing information concerning their favorite lure, special techniques they have developed and their most productive fishing spots but there is strong rumor afloat that bass fishing at Harp Pond is especially good right now. There is evidence to back this. The leading entry in this Months' Bass Derby, a real lundker, came from Harp.

This 56 acre pond is located on Keystone Trail about eight-tenth of a mile south of the intersection of Keystone and Buckeye Trails. In the past this pond has produced some of the largest fish taken from reservations waters. Because it has an excessive watershed it cannot be effectively fertilized but the water shed helps to make up for this deficiency. Another drawback concerning Harp is that it is located in a major impact area and normally can only be fished on weekends and holidays. Of course because of this there isn't the possibility of it becoming overfished. The Rod and Gun Club has 18 boats located at Harp and adequate picnic facilities are available.

COMPUTER CORNER

By Bud Goode

Tony Cloninger had only two strike outs in the first eight innings against the Dodgers last week. Yet the Reds beat L.A., a strong pitching team. L. A. had eight strike outs in the game.

How important is the strike out in determining a team's standing? According to Computer Corner the strike out is an overly dramatized statistic. Fans roar their approval when a name pitcher like Don Drysdale runs up his 9th or 10th whiff in a game. But according to Computer Corner's figures, the whiff is just another way to get a man out, and it is the least important of the four pitching percentages — control, clutch pitching, on base average — and strike outs. Tony Cloninger's two strike out victory over the Dodgers demonstrates the fact.

There is very little spread between the strongest teams in the league and the weakest on this strike out percentage. Computer Corner poured the season statistics into our Univac sports analyzer to measure strike out percentage with these results (through games of July 8):

AMERICAN LEAGUE

EAST	S.O. %	WEST	S.O.%
DETROIT	18%	KANSAS CITY	14%
CLEVELAND	17%	MINNESOTA	14%
BALTIMORE	16%	OAKLAND	14%
WASHINGTON	15%	CALIFORNIA	14%
BOSTON	15%	SEATTLE	13%
NEW YORK	14%	CHICAGO	12%

LEAGUE AVERAGE — 14%

NATIONAL LEAGUE

PITTSBURGH	18%	HOUSTON	10%
CHICAGO	18%	LOS ANGELES	17%
NEW YORK	18%	SAN FRANCISCO	15%
ST. LOUIS	17%	CINCINNATI	14%
MONTREAL	15%	ATLANTA	14%
PHILADELPHIA	15%	SAN DIEGO	12%

LEAGUE AVERAGE — 16%

Although the top and bottom teams in the standings are separated by a long mile, when it comes to team strike out percentage they are clustered together, as much alike as grapes in a bunch.

Knights Don New Patch

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (ANF)—"The Golden Knights," the U.S. Army Parachute Team, now have their own shoulder patch, making the 46-man team one of the smallest Army units with its own patch.

The unique patch consists of a gold knight's helmet superimposed on a gold parachute, all set on a black background. The word AIRBORNE is arched across the top in gold letters and is part of the patch. The gold scroll across the bottom represents the clouds in the sky that the Golden Knights have conquered by free-fall parachuting."

The Golden Knights had worn the U.S. Continental Army Command patch and airborne tab until the new one was awarded.

Since its beginning in 1959, the Golden Knights have become one of the most accomplished teams of parachutists in the world. The team has demonstrated its skills before more than 60 million people in 49 states and 16 foreign countries.

The Golden Knights hold 87 out of 128 world parachuting accuracy records and have produced two world and five national parachuting champions. In addition, the team participates in research and development of new parachuting techniques and equipment.

The Record

Cy Young holds the record for the most games won by a pitcher. He won 511 games between 1890 and 1956.

The record for the most consecutive games won is held by Carl Hubbell. He had a string of 24 extending from 1936 to 1937.

The record for the most consecutive scoreless innings is held by Walter Johnson. He kept his opponents scoreless for 56 in 1913.

Tom Cheney holds the record for the most strikeouts in one game. He put down 21 batters in a 16 inning game in 1962.

Yogi Bera holds the record for the most hits made in World Series games. He had 71 and played on the series winning team 10 times.

Mickey Mantle holds the records for scoring the most runs and batting in the most runs. He scored 42 times and batted in 40 runs.

The first baseball players to enter the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y. were elected in 1936. They were Babe Ruth, Christy Matheson, Walter Johnson and Honus Wagner. The following year Connie Mack, John McGraw, Tris Speaker, George Wright, Napoleon Lajoie, Morgan Buckley and Byron Johnson were elected. Since then over 100 players have been elected to the Hall.

Latest to enter were Waite Hoyte, Stanley Coveleski, Harry Campanella and Stan Musial.

Troop Command Leads Center Softball Fast Pitch League

The USAIC Fast Pitch Softball League is in its last week of play and CTC has just about wrapped up the title. They won the first half title and the only ones to stand in their way for a second half victory were the 197th Inf. Bde. and 10th Avn. Gp.

Monday night perhaps the most important game of the season was played and the 197th gamely went down fighting. If they had beaten CTC the title might still be up for grabs, but the double-header was taken by CTC by scores of 2-0 and 8-7. Going into the final inning, the 197th held a commanding lead of 7-3 but CTC fought back to take it and probably the title.

The standings up till Monday night were: CTC 21-5, 10th Avn. Gp. 18-6 197th Inf. Bde. 17-9, TSB 11-13, ATC 6-18, Martin Army 1-23.

If 10th Avn. takes all remaining games and CTC loses two, then 10th Avn. will take the title and there will be a playoff between the first half winner (CTC) and 10th Avn.

Former Track Star Attending Officer Candidate School

Gavin C. Riley (San Diego, Calif.), currently an Infantry officer candidate in the 94th Infantry Officer Candidate Company, 9th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade, runs away from only one thing — his track competition.

While a student at San Diego State College, Riley earned honors as an All-American track man (1966) and as an All - American cross-country runner (1965).

San Diego State College, where Riley earned a B.A. degree in history and a B.S. degree in mathematics, was the "small college division" National Collegiate Athletic Association national track champion in 1965 and 1966.

THE FORUM THE EDGE

By Marc Reiff

What is the fastest growing sport in America? Harness racing bills itself thusly, but most people in the know say it is auto racing. After spending a day in Montgomery, Ala. watching a sports car slalom race I can see why this is so.

The competition between cars of different classes is fierce but everywhere one driver was helping another prepare for the race. A holiday air prevails as families of the drivers get into the act and little kids stand around picking up hints from the racers as they work over their engines. Wives stand by tool boxes and act like nurses in surgery as their husbands call out for various items.

This is a race against the clock and the skills of each driver become apparent as they turn among the pylons. Sixty cars were entered and the excitement grew in the stands as the cars strained and screamed around the course trying to beat each others best time.

There were more thrills than usual as one corvette lost a front wheel while braking coming into the final slalom. This happened right in front of the stand and everyone held his breath as the driver fought for control. The wheel bounced 20 feet in the air and went on a direct collision course for the car, which was slowing down on the far side of the curved track. The tire bounded over the car and the driver stepped out shaken but unhurt. In fact, he proceeded to put the wheel back on and after a complete safety check by officials, came back to race in the next time trial.

In the Columbus area, the Chavaga Sports Car Club holds rallies once a month and Sunday, August 10, at 1 p.m., another outstanding slalom will be taking place. It will be held behind the RC Cola plant on Victory Drive. So for the old and young alike, I urge you to see this fascinating sport.

Year of The Hitter

Last year was billed as The Year of the Pitcher, but a definite reverse has taken place this year.

At the halfway point in the schedule, seventeen N.L. batters with 225 at-bats were hitting over .300, and to make it into the top ten he had to swing along at a .319 clip. The American League as usual was not quite up to this excellence but they did produce eight .300 hitters.

At this stage it seems that last year's record of one batter (Carl Yastremski) finishing the season over .300 will be bettered. He hit a feeble .301 to take the title.

The ball has been flying out of the park at a greater rate too. 29 A. L. sluggers and 27 in the N.L. have belted at least ten round trippers. It has been a few years since either major could boast of two 30-plus homer wallopers at midseason, but that is what the A.L. has this year in Reggie Jackson and Frank Howard.

Some people might attribute this to the lowering of the mound this season but 13 pitchers in the National League and eight in the American owned at least ten victories. Rarely have so many entertained 20-victory hopes so early in the season.

The expansion, instead of diluting the sport has produced some fine young players. Youngsters who might have spent a couple more seasons in the minors are finding themselves regulars on teams and producing.

Bench warmers who have gone to expansions teams are proving that they have a few good years left in them and the overall excellence of both leagues has noticeably improved.

Expansion creates an opportunity that the young and old players alike have seized. With the retirement of Mickey Mantle, it was often heard that baseball's superstars were fading away with no new candidates to replace them. But that theory has since been canceled. Baseball will continue to produce the stars as long as kids get together on sandlots to play.

Wheelis Leads First Round

Infantry Center Golf Tourney Ends Today

The U. S. Army Infantry Center golf Championship was held at the Fort Benning Officer's golf course July 29-Aug. 1 to determine who will represent Benning at the Third U. S. Army Golf Championship, Fort Bragg, N. C. Aug. 11-15.

Last year's team went to Fort Rucker, Ala. and captured the Third Army championship with a total score of 1277. The winning team was composed of Jim Gittlemen, last years USAIC champion, Steve Wheelis, Sid Ragland and Robert Round in the open division and Bob Hall, senior winner of the USAIC and Mike Greeg, in the senior division.

This year's center golf championship is being played on the Pine Side of the officer's course and Steve Wheelis, the assistant pro at the golf course has taken a four stroke lead in the open division, first round, with two under-par 70. Close behind him with 74 is Daniel Scott.

In the senior division Thomas Brown took a four stroke lead over his nearest competitor with 78. Robert Hall, last years senior champion, is in second with an 82 along with Joel Hollis who also shot an 82 first round score. The Champion of each division will be determined on the basis of the low medal score for 72 holes of play. Flight winners will be determined by total score of the third and fourth rounds of play.

Thomas Brown, 78. Robert Hall, 82. Joel Hollis, 82. James Haley, 85.

Rangers Aid Boys in Atlanta's 'Project Upstream'

By Sp4 Ron Johnson

When it comes to promoting good Army-community relations, few Army organizations are as active as the Mountain Ranger Training Committee at Dahlonega, Ga.

Although nearly 3000 soldiers each year are trained at the sprawling ranger camp, the staff finds time between cycles to train members of the civilian community. The Rangers have trained and instructed two groups of young men from the surrounding communities in the last month.

On June 28, 200 Boy Scouts from Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina and Georgia arrived at the camp for a two-day Camporee. The boys lived just as the Ranger students do when they attend the mountain segment of their training. They slept in ten-man hutches.

The scouts received training in map reading and land navigation, terrain analysis, and mountaineering. They were first given classroom instruction on the basics of map and compass reading, then were taken into the woods around the camp to practice what they had learned. They negotiated a navigation course, using the compass to find the way, and they took a terrain walk. On this walk they learned to associate the lines on a map with the actual terrain they were covering.

In the mountaineering phase of their instruction, the scouts learned how to tie the knots necessary for mountain climbing. They were then taught rapelling, a method of descending a cliff safely.

The Rangers gave similar training to a group of 50 high school boys from Atlanta, Ga. The training was part of a program called "Project Upstream" sponsored by the Atlanta School System.

Project Upstream is designed to help keep boys off the Atlanta streets and to give them a chance to earn high school credits during the summer. They receive 15 credit hours for the one-month program. They learn about nature and survival at a camp in North Georgia, and come to the Ranger camp for three days to learn mountaineering.

They were taken to Yonah Mountain, a 200 foot cliff, to receive the mountaineering classes. They were taught to descend the cliff just as the boy scouts and thousands of Rangers have been taught. The training that both these groups of young men received should prove as valuable to them as it has to the Rangers.

Col. Walter F. Johnston Retires After 30 Years

Thirty years ago a young man with a flair for adventure, enlisted in the U.S. Army Infantry and started a career which terminated yesterday in retirement ceremonies at the Infantry Board's Sandy Patch Test area.

Colonel Walter F. Johnston, retiring President of the Infantry Board at Fort Benning and a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, brings to a close a colorful Infantry career.

Entering the Army in July 1939, Colonel Johnston was in Hawaii with the 19th Infantry when the Japanese bombardment took place on that ill fated Sunday morning, December 7, 1941. Following this baptism to fire, he was selected to attend the Infantry Officers Candidate School and was commissioned at Fort Benning in August 1942.

Following a short assignment as a platoon leader and Assistant Regiment S-2 Officer at Camp Phillips, Salina, Kansas, Johnston asked for and was assigned to the 100th Infantry Battalion. This fighting outfit, made up primarily of Japanese - Americans, was fighting the Germans in Northern Africa.

Elite Unit

To become a member of this elite combat organization, one had to be either a citizen of Hawaii or stationed in Hawaii at the time of the Japanese attack. Johnston met the criteria and joined them in the North African capaign. Later he participated in the storming of the beaches at Salarno and the fighting on up the "boot," through Southern France and into the Rhineland. With this great fighting unit, he served initially as a platoon leader and later as Company Commander.

Fighting the enemy through six battle campaigns with the 100th, he was decorated with the Bronze Star Medal with first oak leaf cluster and the Purple Heart, and the first oak leaf cluster. During the same time, his unit, the most decorated unit of World War II, was honored by their selection for three Distinguished Unit Citations for their accomplishments on the field of battle at Anzio, through Italy and the Rhineland.

Infantry School Assignment

In September 1946, the colonel was assigned as an Instructor to the Weapons Department of the Infantry School. He served in this capacity until June 1949 when he was assigned as Assistant Battalion S-3 and later as company Commander of the 15th Infantry at the Georgia post.

With the start of fighting in Korea, Johnston again turned to active combat service and was assigned as a Company Commander in the 31st Infantry Regiment in Korea. He served with this combat unit until his reassignment as a student to the Advanced Infantry Officers Course at Fort Benning in August 1951.

Following attendance at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Colonel Johnston served with the 4th Armored Division in Germany as Executive Officer of Combat Command A and Commanding Officer of the 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion, 51st Infantry.

Returning to the "States" in 1960, Johnston was assigned to the Infantry division of the Materiel Development Section, U. S. Continental Army Command with station at Fort Monroe, Virginia. With the reorganization of the Army in 1962, his activity was reestablished as the Infantry Materiel Directorate and placed under the U. S. Army Tests and Evaluation Command at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. He followed this assignment as Deputy Commander and Commander of the Arctic Test Center at Fort Greely, Alaska.

Upon completing his tour of duty at the Arctic Test Center in October 1967, Col. Johnston was assigned as Deputy President of the Infantry Board, the Infantry materiel test activity at Fort Benning.

He assumed the office of President 1 January 1968 upon the retirement of Col. James I. Muir Jr.

Col. and Mrs. Johnston, the former Miss Louise Ijames of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and their children plan to make their home in Winter Park, Florida.

Two Military Judges Sworn in This Morning

Two members of the United States Army Judiciary at Fort Benning officially became military judges during a special ceremony conducted here at 8 a.m. today.

They are Lt. Col. Reid W. Kennedy presently serving as law officer at Fort Benning, and Capt. David B. Bryne Jr., who recently completed the Military Judge Course at the Judge Advocate General's School, Ft. Sill, Okla. They administered the oath by Col. Robert M. Lathrop, staff judge advocate.

Similar ceremonies will be held world-wide today as major portions of the new Military Justice Act of 1968 become effective.

Scheduled to attend the ceremony was Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the Infantry Center, and Fort Benning.

With the title of military judge goes various new duties comparable to those of the United States District Court judge. As of today, military judges may be assigned to special courts-martial as well as general courts-martial. They must also be assigned if the courts are going to impose a sentence to include a bad discharge.

The military judge will rule on all legal questions and serve as presiding officer during court. Previously the presiding officer was the president of the court-martial.

Fort Benning is in the fifth judicial district, Third United States Army area, and the military judges serving here are also appointed to serve at Ft. Rucker, Ala.

Military Judges are assigned to the Judiciary Branch, Washington, D.C., and are not under local commanders.

Kennedy is a military judge assigned to preside over general courts-martial convened within his judiciary area.

The colonel entered military service as a private during World War II, and served through three campaigns.

Following his discharge after the war, he returned to law school and received an LLB Degree from Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, in 1948.

Since his recall into active military service in 1950, Kennedy has served as a member of the Judge Advocate General's Corp.

Prior to his assignment to Fort Benning June 28, 1967, the colonel served as Staff Judge Advocate of the 101st Airborne Division, and 1 Field Force in the Republic of Vietnam.

Byrnes, of Montgomery, Ala., received his LLB Degree from the University of Alabama in 1966, and arrived to serve at Fort Benning July 14.

Fighting Communism for 13 Years

Ex-Cuban Air Force Pilot Recovers From Wounds

By SFC Snow L. Wilson

Thirteen years ago Raul E. Taboada was a student rebel — and he discovered first hand how communism can subvert an ideal istic movement.

Dedicating himself then, and for life, to fight communism, he is today a Captain in the 197th Infantry Brigade and recovering from the latest wounds caused by that decision made so many years ago.

In Cuba, in 1956, no one worried about the communists and the "establishment" was the stern regime of Batista.

And when 17-year old Raul Taboada and other students began their revolutionary movement, Castro was still in Mexico far from the battles.

Castro Arrives

When the present dictator of Cuba finally arrived, but with only a handful of men, and scarried for safety in the Sierra Mestra, the job of supplying him with weapons, food and recruits fell to the original leaders who stayed in the population centers.

Early the next year small groups of guerrillas under young Raul and a retired American Major named William Morgan joined forces under Eloy Gutierrez Menoyo to mount operations, separate from Castro's, in the central area of Cuba.

Recognizing his need to gain control of this rapidly growing force, and also the threat it was to his future, Castro sent Chi Gueverra down from the mountains with orders to take over.

"We were willing to consolidate," says Captain Taboada, "but when he demanded we follow only the command of Castro we said No!"

Plans Coordinated

To keep from alienating those doing most of the fighting, Castro then asked the Menallo group to attend a large meeting, in the safety of the mountains, where plans could be coordinated and areas of responsibility designated.

It was during this meeting Castro's domineering personality won out and he skillfully controlled the session.

Knowing full well that whoever held Havana held Cuba, Castro managed to trick Taboada's group into continuing their operations in the south.

With the fall of Batista, the Castro groun consolidated the political position with promises to the original leaders of the revolution such as Taboada.

"We were called to Havana where Castro's brother Raul asked us to join the Air Force. He promised we would be trained as jet pilots in the United States," says Taboada.

"But when we finished our basic flight school in early July 1959, Raul told us we were going to flight school in Czechoslovakia to train in MIG's."

Cuba Communist

It was evident to all of them now that Castro intended to turn Cuba into a communist country.

"We argued," continued the Captain rubbing his bandaged chest," but Raul told us if we refused we would be shot."

The move to Havana had it's good aspects however for it was there, in February 1959, Taboada was introduced to his still petite wife Olga.

Their romance was almost stopped before it started relates Mrs. Taboada who now laughs "Raul wasn't liked very well by my family and they couldn't stand Castro."

But Raul's decision, a few days after being told he had to go to Czechoslovakia, changed it all.

"Those of us who had protested knew we had to escape, but we were determined to damage Castro. He was planning to fly to the Sierra Maestras with a lot of people for a big anniversary of the 25 July Revolution, so we sabotaged every airplane in the Cuban Air Force."

With the Cuban Air Force wipes out, Taboada and others managed to escape to Miami in the confusion that followed during the next few days.

$100,000 Bounty

Undetered by the fact Castro had placed a $100,000 bounty on his head, Raul and a small group of others began planning for an invasion of Cuba. Traveling to Latin America in 1960 they began training as small guerrilla units but, as more money and recruits became available, the plans were changed and the "2506 Cuban Brigade" was formed.

"By March 1961 our training was finished and in April we invaded Cuba at the Bay of Pigs by air and sea." He doesn't chuckle when he adds "you know what happened there."

On Christmas Eve of 1962 he was released from the Cuban Concentration camp on the Isle of Pines and allowed to return to the United States.

Greeted by President Kennedy

"On our return President Kennedy asked the officers of the 'brigade' to join the U. S. Army and continue fighting communism. In March 1963 I was commissioned a Second Lieutenant," comments the new Captain Taboada.

Fort Benning's Basic Officer's Course came next followed by a crash course in English.

Then came his first tour of duty with the 197th Infantry Brigade.

By now the United States was actively fighting communist aggression in Vietnam and the Captain volunteered to go with the 1st Air Cavalry.

On November 14, 1965, while serving the dual jobs of reconnaissance and mortar platoon leader, and during the action in Vietnam's "Happy Valley," he was seriously wounded.

Although recuperation took until May of the following year Taboada could hardly wait to get back into action, for now communism was making it's bid in the Dominican Republic.

"I volunteered to go with the Special Forces but instead they sent me to support the 196th Infantry Brigade at Fort Devens. They were alerted for the DomRep area but later went to Vietnam."

With the departure of the 196th he was reassigned to the Aberdeen Proving Ground but, as he says, "I had all kinds of good jobs training others — but I wanted to fight communists."

That harness of a training officer grew too tight and by July 1967, only a few days after he volunteered again, Captain Taboada was on his way again to Vietnam.

Joining the 4th Infatry Division, his ability to organize guerrilla units was soon put to use and he joined a Combined Military Intelligence Team on the Cambodian border.

"There were five Americans and about 200 Montagnards in the team and our mission was to keep track of the NVA and VC in our area by long range patrols."

Luck Held for 10 Months

Taboada's luck held out for ten months.

"It was right after breakfast," he relates. "We were getting ready for an 'Eagle Flight' when word came for me to get down to another camp at the base of the hill. All my men were busy getting the Montagnards ready for the flight and I couldn't spare one to ride with me in the jeep."

Pausing for a moment he drew a deep breath and then relived the next few moments.

"As I neared a little bridge and saw a big rock in the middle of the road I knew it was an ambush. I sped up and planned to bounce the jeep over the rock."

"Just before I got to the rock I saw muzzle flashes out of the corner of my eyes and then the blast went off."

A Typical Day in the School—Maybe for Somebody

By 2nd Lt. James Hopson

It was a typical July day at the U.S. Army Infantry School. Summertime heat settled heavily on the huge Army installation, and the air and the mood seemed lazy and quiet.

But the day was not typical for the captains and majors enrolled in Infantry Officers Advanced Course No. 3. They were taking a final exam, finishing up a nine-month course and preparing to depart the post for other assignements.

Other advanced course students were learning vehicle inspection and target analysis techniques, battalion offensive operations and command and staff positions—new material; nothing typical.

It was not a typical day for the dozen officers from foreign countries who just arrived at Fort Benning to begin the Advanced Course. They were strangers in America—strangers to the language, the people and customs. Nothing here was typical for them.

A group of Reserve officers, here for a two-week summer camp, did not find anything typical, either. Classroom study of combat vehicle recovery bore little similarity to the jobs they held the other 50 weeks of the year.

The day found a class of young lieutenants, newly commissioned, receiving their first combat leadership training. They found machine gun instruction very different from the classes they sat in at college—very different and not at all typical.

Infantry Officer Candidates, enlisted men pursuing a six-month officer qualification course, found themselves in plenty of typical situations.

One class prepared for graduation and new jobs as second lieutenants. Others prowled the woods 60 miles south of the fort during their "Ranger Week." Another class nervously spent their first day in the officer candidate program.

In all, 17 classes studied land navigation, records keeping, bayonet fighting and a thousand other new leadership tools. They found the day far from typical.

And 477 young soldiers made their first parachute jump. Try telling them it was typical.

The day saw over 11,000 men training at the Infantry School. Each of them learned something new, and perhaps discovered something about themselves. Nothing they did and nothing they learned was typical.

For the staff of the Infantry School it was a typical day, with business as usual—the business of training the world's finest Infantry soldiers and leaders.

Corporal's Award Given To Widow

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

Mrs. Sherri Park, widow of Cpl. Robert L. Park, accepted three medals presented her late husband during a posthumous award ceremony held here recently.

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device and Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service, and the Purple Heart were presented to Mrs. Park by Col. Wiley B. Wisdom, deputy post commander.

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device; first Oak Leaf Cluster, was awarded for heroism in connection with military actions involving conflict with an armed hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam.

Corporal Park distinguished himself by valorous actions on April 18, while serving as a medical aidman, on a combat mission in Quang Tri Province.

The citation accompanying the award read, in part, "As his troop set up its night defensive position, it came under intense hostile fire, suffering several casualties. Disregarding his own safety, Corporal Park repeatedly braved the fusillade of rounds and flying shrapnel to go to the aid of wounded comrades and confirmed his unselfish and valiant actions until mortally wounded by enemy fire."

The second Bronze Star Medal was awarded for "outstanding meritorious service" and the Purple Heart was awarded for the wounds Corporal Park received which resulted in his death.

Also attending the special ceremony were the corporal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Park, of Indianapolis, and his two brothers, Don and James.

Mrs. Park's sister, Mrs. Billy Boeckman, of Oklahoma City, also attended, accompanied by her husband, Major Boeckman, and two children, Mark and Jill.

Prior to going to Vietnam, Corporal Park was assigned to Fitzsimmons General Hospital and he and his family lived in Denver.

New Program Planned For Army Dentists

By PFC Jim Doherty

A new residency program in endodontics, begun this week, has been added to the advanced career training of dentists in the Fort Benning dental activity.

The two-year program combines a year of study and training at Georgetown University and Walter Reed Army Hospital with a year of advanced work here in the study of the extraction of tooth nerves and pulp from the rest of the tooth.

Endodontics is aimed specially at saving the teeth of young people.

Residents are chosen on a competitive basis by the Office of the Chief of the Dental Corps in Washington, D.C.

They must have served five years on active duty including at least one short tour overseas.

Third Course

The new program is the third dental residency course here.

Other programs deal with removable prosthodontics and fixed prosthodontics, the care or removal of partial and complete dentures, and crowns and bridges.

These residency programs put the military in the forefront of postgraduate dental training, according to Col. Donald O. Lundquist, director of residency training here.

While some large city hospitals can provide similar advanced training, the specialization provided is far advanced of that normally available to general practitioners, he said.

Casualty patients can be given special care and study at Fort Benning. Considerable work is planned with patients who have received gunshot wounds to the jaws.

Six Career Doctors

Fort Benning currently has six career military doctors in its residency programs.

Internship training is also provided here for dental school graduates who desire advanced training before beginning actual practice.

Intern training include examinations, diagnosis, treatment planning, periodontics, preventive dentistry, oral surgery, prosthodontics restorative dentistry, effective dentistry and effective writing.

Interns must also be selected in Washington. They must receive letters of recommendation from the dean of their dental college and normally must rank in the upper quarter of their graduating class academically.

Four interns are currently training here.

Both programs aim at improving the quality of military dental care and providing the Army with dental specialists.

Bronze Star Is Presented To Widow

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

Mrs. Mary S. Saliman, the widow of Capt. Norman S. Saliman, July 23 accepted the Bronze Star Medal with second Oak Leaf Cluster during a posthumous award ceremony honoring her husband who was killed in the Republic of Vietnam.

Mrs. Saliman was accompanied by her two young sons, Joel and Sheldon. The citation read at the ceremony praised her husband for exceptionally meritorious achievement in the performance of outstanding services while serving as a senior advisor with the U.S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam.

"Captain Saliman displayed great perseverance, duty and a broad military knowledge" in his efforts to "improve the training and operational effectiveness of the unit and its personnel," the citation said.

It added, "Participating in numerous combat operations, Captain Saliman was noted for the inspiration he provided the Vietnamese soldiers, and was instrumental in assisting them in successfully accomplishing their assigned missions. His professionalism, sound judgment and personal courage enabled him to establish an outstanding relationship with the Vietnamese, and as a result, his advice was often sought and readily accepted."

Prior to his death, the captain was also awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism with first Oak Leaf Cluster Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, Good Conduct Medal with two bronze loops, National Defense Service Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge, the Parachutist Badge and Vietnam Campaign Ribbon.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Saliman, of Denver, Colo.

The award was presented by Col. Wiley B. Wisdom, deputy post commander.

On His Retirement

Good Luck, God Speed Wished Col. Wisdom

By PFC Lee Myers

The colonel was presented an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit by Maj. Gen. George I. Forsythe, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

Troops from Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, were reviewed by Colonel Wisdom. The 283rd and 291st Army Bands played Auld Lang Syne and The Army Song.

Two helicopters from the 10th Aviation Group flew by carrying signs which said, "Good-bye Wiley and Phyllis—Good Luck, God Speed."

New Zealand Attache Visits Fort Benning

Brig. Gen. A. H. Sutton was honored with ceremonies at 8:15 a.m. July 28 on York Field.

He reviewed an honor guard from Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry and was saluted by Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery.

Following the ceremonies, he met with representatives of the Infantry School to receive briefings on training here.

Guardsmen, Reservists Have VA Benefits Too

During this time of year, when National Guardsmen and Armed Forces Reservists are undergoing active duty for training purposes, there are certain Veterans Administration benefits granted to them in case of disease or disability, State Veterans Director Pete Wheeler said.

Among the benefits are those of VA compensation for injuries sustained during training or in travel to and from the training location. In order to receive compensation for disabilities caused by diseases, Guardsmen must have been on active duty in excess of 30 days.

There is no minimum time limit for service in the case of disabilities resulting from injuries. However, to receive any of these benefits a guardsmen must file a claim with the Veterans Administration establishing service-connection for the disability.

Additional guardsmen and reservists' benefits are guarantees against loss of jobs, accured vacation time and other employment benefits. They must be permitted by employers to fulfill their training obligations. They must, however, report back to their regular jobs the first scheduled working day after completion of training to be entitled to employment benefit protection.

Peel Takes Command Of 931st Engineers

By Spc Ken Slurzenacker

In ceremonies last Thursday, Lieutenant Colonel Wesley E. Peel assumed command of the 931st Engineer Group (Combat).

He took command from Colonel Maurice K. Kurtz, who will spend the next two years at Purdue University in Indiana completing his doctorate in topography and photogrammetry.

Lt. Colonel Peel, who is on the current promotion list to colonel, was assigned to the United States Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., before coming to Fort Benning.

Served With

After serving with the 126th Combat Engineer Battalion in World War II, Colonel Peel was commissioned in January 1949. He has served with engineer units in England, France, Belgium and Germany.

He completed the Associate Engineer Officer's Advanced Course at Fort Belvoir, Va., in July 1960. He then served with the military construction program at Cape Dyer, Baffin Island, Northwest Territory, Canada, where he was responsible for construction of communication facilities linking U.S. defense installations in the Arctic with control centers located in the continental United States.

Return to U.S.

Returning to the United States, Colonel Peel was appointed assistant professor of military science at the University of Colorado. After attending the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College in 1962-63, Colonel Peel completed tours of duty with the 25th Infantry Division and Headquarters, United States Army, Pacific, in Hawaii.

Colonel Peel served as battalion commander of the 35th Combat Engineer Battalion in Vietnam. He also served as chief of operations, 18th Engineer Brigade while in Vietnam.

Quote of the Week

"The Long Gray Line has never failed us. Were you to do so, a million ghosts in olive drab, in brown khaki, in blue and gray would rise from their white crosses thundering those magic words: Duty, Honor, Country."—General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, at the U.S. Military Academy, May 12, 1962.

Safety Office Graduates Forty-five Instructors

By Terè Davis

The two-day class is taught once every quarter to military and civilian employees selected as qualified persons possessing instructor aptitudes and sufficient retentivity to insure continuity of the program.

The Defensive Driver Training program is sponsored by the Safety Office, headed by Norman M. Evans, director, in cooperation with the Georgia Safety Council.

Col. Wiley B. Wisdom, Jr., deputy post commander, spoke at the ceremony. He congratulated the graduates and urged them to discharge their responsibility of training Fort Benning persons "to cope with the high powered vehicle in modern traffic."

He also stated that last year 46 soldiers were killed in private vehicle accidents, costing the Army about $2 million. Only four out of the 45 completed the Defensive Driver course.

All operators of Army vehicles and soldiers under age 25 or below staff sergeant in grade here are required to take the Defensive Driver Training Course.

The instructors for the course were Ray E. Brokaw, executive vice-president, Georgia Safety Council, and Walter S. Phillips, also from the Georgia Safety Council.

New Health Insurance Arranged for Ex-GI's

New short-term health insurance for soldiers separated from active service has been arranged by the Department of Defense in conjunction with Mutual of Omaha and Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

These optional policies will cover a 90-day period, giving the former soldier enough time to arrange civilian coverage.

This assures some health security until he obtains health coverage on his own or through employment.

Costs will depend upon whether the soldier requests coverage of "self" or "self and family."

The Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan includes maternity benefits.

The plans will be offered after Sept. 1.

ALFRED KUHN, PROJECT ENGINNEER, POINTS OUT NEW BLADES They May Mean 1,000 MPH Helicopters by Early 1980's

1,000 MPH Helicopters Possible in Early 1980's

MOFETT FIELD, Calif. — "Jet flap" rotors which could lead to supersonic helicopters with blades that convert into fixed wings are now being wind tunnel tested, the Lockheed-California Company reported.

Jet flaps — narrow, deflectable, compressed air "slots" running the entire length of the rotor blades — provide 10 times the lift of conventional rotors. Two primary applications are planned:

— The high-speed helicopters with 100-ton (90,000-kilogram) payloads, the jet flaps providing both rotor lift and rotor drive.

Early 1980's

These advanced jet blade helicopters could be flying by the early 1980s, according to Lockheed engineers.

The Lockheed jet flap research program is sponsored by the U. S. Naval Air Systems Command.

The supersonic jet - flap helicopter could increase its speed to more than 1000 miles per hour by stopping its rotor blades in flight, converting them into a single fixed wing, and using its jet engines for high forward speed. With rotor blades extended and spinning, it would take off and land like a conventional helicopter.

Scale Model

Tests using both a scale model six-foot jet flap rotor and a full-scale jet flap blade segment are underway in the U. S. Army Aeronautical Research Laboratory wind tunnel at Moffett Field, California. The tunnel is located at the Ames Research Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Mountain View.

Purpose of these tests is to establish basic lifting characteristics of a jet flap rotor at low and high speeds. Results will be applied to the design of full-scale jet flap rotors.

In Tests

In the tests, air is blown out of the knife-edge-thin slots — located along both the leading and trailing edges of the rotor blades — at greater than speed-of-sound velocities of 700-800 miles per hour. Rotor blade tip speeds approach 500 miles per hour.

The air is compressed up to 10 times normal atmospheric pressure during the wind tunnel tests.

Lockheed engineering task leader for the jet flap program is A. W. East and project engineer is R. B. Lewis. Studies are centered at Lockheed's Burbank and Van Nuys, California, facility.

New Badge Authorized For EOD

A new award will be available for qualified Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) specialists before the end of the year.

It is the Master Explosive Ordnance Disposal badge.

In addition, the current Supervisor EOD Badge has been redesignated the Senior EOD Badge since both "masters" and "seniors" are essentially supervisors.

To attain master status, an individual must be the recipient of the Senior EOD Badge, have 60 months cumulative service in appropriate TOE-TD positions since earning the senior badge and be currently EOD qualified.

The purpose of the new award, which should be available for issue around Dec. 1, is to recognize degrees of achievement within the Explosive Ordnance Disposal field.

Ex-Cuban

sured the success of their ambush by placing a mine in the road.

Montagnards, patrolling nearby, heard the blast and hurried to the scene.

The jeep had been blown in half and the Captain's broken body hurled far from the blast.

Carrying him back to their village they managed to get a call out for help and Taboada was evacuated by helicopter to a hospital.

Recently the Captain underwent his fifth operation since that time and the last of several pieces of shrapnell were removed from around his heart. His badly shattered shoulder was worked on again and "I hope for the last time," he says.

Although still bandaged from his latest wounds, a fierce look came into his eyes last week when he said "They are still holding my mother and father in Cuba."

That look alone tells you he is still a rebel against the establishment — but it's the one that holds his parents and country of his birth in bondage.

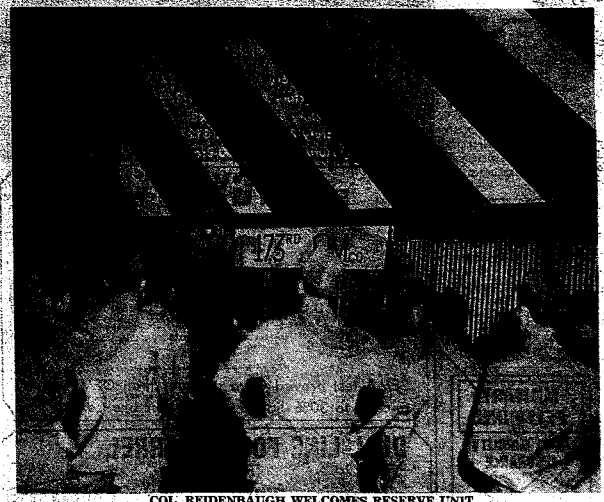
78 Viet Veterans Return Home



COL. REIDENBAUGH WELCOMES RESERVE UNIT

By Bill Hardin

Seventy-eight veterans, who arrived at Fort Benning Wednesday from the Republic of Vietnam, left today for Greenwood, Miss., after returning to their former Reserve status.

The men, all members of the 173rd Quartermaster Co. (Petroleum Services), were called to active duty last summer with a number of Reserve and National Guard units.

The company officially returned to former Reserve status in ceremonies at Fort Benning Thursday.

Commanded by Capt. John B. Looney, the unit had served in Vietnam since last September.

The unit was involved in two campaigns. One was known as the Post Tet Offensive Phase Three and the other is yet unnamed.

The company began two days of final processing, at Fort Benning Wednesday afternoon following their arrival at Lawson Army Airfield early that morning.

As the men stepped from the large Air Force C 141 ("Starlifter;;) at 2 a.m. Wednesday, the combined 282nd and 291st Army bands of Fort Benning played to welcome the combat veterans back to the states.

Brief welcoming remarks were delivered by Col. Charles H. Reidenbaugh, commanding officer, U. S. Army Infantry Center Troop Command, to which the men were assigned during their stay here.

Colonel Reidenbaugh told the group, "We are glad to have you back and we are proud of the job you did in Vietnam."

He also informed them that a bank of five telephones had just been installed in their billeting area and that the phones were awaiting their use.

Following the welcoming remarks by Colonel Rei-

Westmoreland Speaks at Benning

By SFC Richard Kemp

Making his first visit to Fort Benning since becoming chief of staff of the U. S. Army, Gen. William C. Westmoreland addressed more than 1,300 Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets in graduation exercises Thursday at Stroup Field in Harmony Church.

About six hours later, he spoke to 78 members of the 173rd Quartermaster Co. (Petroleum Services), just returned from the Republic of Vietnam. They leave today for their homes in Mississippi.

General Westmoreland, accompanied by Mrs. Westmoreland, arrived here at 8 p.m. Wednesday. They went directly from Lawson Army Airfield to Marshall House where they and their small party remained overnight.

The cadets, members of senior ROTC units with colleges and universities across the nation, completed six weeks of military training here and were scheduled to return to their homes immediately after the graduation ceremonies.

Commanded by Capt. John B. Looney, the 173rd Quartermaster Co. is a U. S. Army Reserve unit called to active duty May 13, 1968. It went to Vietnam in September, 1968.

The ceremony Thursday afternoon marked the return of the unit and its members to their former Reserve status.

Prior to flying by helicopter to Stroup Field for the ROTC graduation, General Westmoreland was honored in a ceremony before Infantry Hall on York Field. He presented a number of awards to veterans of the Vietnam War during the ceremony.

The general returned to Infantry Hall after the ROTC graduation for briefings on the U. S. Army Infantry Center and the U. S. Army Infantry School.

Following a luncheon at the Fort Benning Officers Club, General Westmoreland observed training activities here until time for his speech to the members of the 173rd QM Co.

Activities he viewed included the Quick Kill

Reserves Describe Themselves as 'Tired'

By PFC James Doherty

"Tired" was the word most used by the Reservists to describe how they felt after their long airplane trip back from the Republic of Vietnam.

"Anxious to get home" was the second most common phrase.

The Reservists, all members of the 173rd Quartermaster Co. (Petroleum Services), had just landed at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield.

After more than a year of active duty, they were soon to return to their homes and their former Reserve status.

Fort Benning's U.S. Army Infantry Center Troop Command USAICTC was prepared to meet the desires of the war veterans.

training at Shelton range and EDEX classroom instruction in Classroom 8 in Infantry Hall.

Mrs. Westmoreland attended the ROTC graduation ceremony with the general and then visited Martin Army Hospital before having lunch.

In the afternoon, she was given a briefing on Army Community Services here.

General and Mrs. Westmoreland and their party left at 4 p.m. Thursday to return to Washington, D. C.

They were accompanied on the visit by Col. Louis Breault, representative of the Office of the Chief of Information, Department of the Army; Lt. Col. Harvey Perritt, representative of the Office of the Secretary of the General Staff, DA, and Lt. Col. Franklin Hart, aide-de-camp to General Westmoreland.

'Tired' Reserves

(Cont. From Page 1)

Charles H. Reidenbough, USAICTC commander, Army buses took them to Co. C, 1st Bn., where Capt. Richard A. Evans and 1st Sgt. James Johnson were ready to show them to a freshly painted platoon bay with made-up bunks waiting for them.

Five new telephones had been placed on CTC barracks' walls to help them contact relatives and friends.

After eight hours of uninterrupted sleep, the reservists were ready to begin a fast out-processing.

Clerks, typists and medical assistants had reported to their duty stations up to eight hours early to facilitate immediate processing.

Discharge paperwork was actually being organized while the Reservists slept.

Early Wednesday afternoon the company was split into three groups. This division saved time by permitting medical ETS examinations and paperwork processing to take place simultaneously.

While one group took physical examinations at Martin Army Hospital, others received briefings at the Transfer Point on civilian schooling and job opportunities or completed discharge paperwork with representatives of the Adjutant General's Crops.

The clothing issue point provided and altered 130 pairs of Class A Army Green uniforms needed by some of the soldiers for future reserve duty — in less than four hours.

Early today they departed by commercial bus for Greenwood, Miss. — and home.

Generation Gap--'What Is Happening To Our Youth?'

The following editorial was written by Capt. Wallace P. Brown while he was serving in Vietnam.

From April 1968 to April 1969, Brown served as a platoon leader with the 3rd Battalion of the 506th Infantry, 101st Airborne Division and later as the executive officer of the 101st's replacement training company.

Brown is presently the administrative officer for the Secretary's office of the US Army Infantry School.

Teenagers, the generation gap — has the question "What is happening to our youth?" entered your mind recently?

Books, movies and "authorities" on youth have tried to give an answer. But for what it's worth, consider mine:

Youth Are Dying

I say our youth are dying — not in body, but in mind.

During the latter part of my tour in Vietnam I served with a replacement company. There I saw a great many young men entering and leaving the country. For the most part, they were required only to grit their teeth and accept the fact that they were a part of the war. They were no longer looking in from the outside.

The young troopers' first reaction was that the war was not as they had imagined. They realized that fellow soldiers did not randomly kill civilians, their efforts was of and for the people.

Following this realization they needed little help in standing on their own feet. They were anxious the first few months, their eyes and ears always open. They accepted advice from those who had been in country longer than they. Their minds grew sharp and their muscles strong from the endless search for an elusive enemy and from the rucksacks strapped on their backs.

They managed somehow to outlast the heat of day, only to shiver with the cold at night. They learned that this color of a man's skin does not affect his bravery or companionship. Who would question the color of hands carrying one to safety?

Sharing their food with Vietnamese children, they shed tears of frustration and learned the meaning of compassion. With pride in their hearts, they stood tall.

As I watched the young men's transformation, my answer to the "youth problem" became clear; our youth are dying at an alarming rate, and are reborn men.

Talked with Troops

Colonel Gordon R. Davis, recently a unit commander in the 101st Airborne Division, took time to talk with the division's young troopers:

"Yesterday, I talked to a group of over a hundred replacements. Standing in formation I could see their youth and could not help wondering at their size, all standing nearly six feet tall. Today as I talk to you going home, it saddens me to see no youth among you. While some of you are not yet twenty, all I see is men."

The blond, freckle-faced skinny "boys" are dying, and from that mass of blood and flesh emerge men, proud and strong. Let there be no question of our youth. Whether or not they have had the opportunity to serve their country, they will carry our banner as high. If not higher, than the "old men" — the "old men" who once themselves battled the charging enemy and gave their lives for freedom.

Let us give thanks and be proud of our youth, and criticize less. For our youth can stand as well as any man.

EVER watch how Old Glory is folded when it is lowered and taken off the staff? It is folded into a triangular shape with stars showing. This shape is symbolic of the cocked hat of the American War of Independence. (ANF)

NEW YORK (NAPS)—The salad season is officially here and brings with it a market both encouraging and abundantly generous with salad fixings.

Iceberg lettuce, usually available, is the standby for most salads accounting for 85 per cent, we are told, of the salad greens eaten. This year's crop is very large with shipments being somewhat higher than previous years.

Use other salad greens—romaine, chicory, spinach and garden lettuce, too. Mix in these dark greens for flavor and texture contrast. Asparagus is at its peak and so are fresh baby beets. Both make refreshing salads.

Among the fruits there are fresh pineapples, strawberries and bananas and this year, there are still good crisp apples around. Also showing up on the green grocer counters are the summer avocados, ideal for making a stuffed avocado salad.

The summer season is the time for fruits and vegetables in combination with cottage cheese. From ruby red strawberries to cool green cucumbers and golden kernels of corn, the salads can be an endless variety.

Dress them with a tart herbed dressing made with corn oil or a dressing made with equal parts of dairy sour cream and real mayonnaise. It's herb season and even a few backyard or terrace plants will enliven salads all summer.

Snip off a few fresh leaves or buds and snip directly into the salad bowl for their delightful aroma and taste.

Stuffed Avocados

1 (1-pound) package frozen crab meat, thawed, drained and flaked (about 2 cups)
2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 tablespoon cider or wine vinegar
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon tarragon leaves
1 teaspoon chervil leaves
1 teaspoon chopped chives
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup real mayonnaise
2 tablespoons catsup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 avocados

Sister Calls Today's Youth 'Beautifully Honest' People

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

"Young people today aren't obnoxious, as they are so commonly labled," but "they are beautifully honest, which is sometimes very painful to us adults," said Sister Joan Kist.

Sister Joan, known to many as Sister Joan Thomas before her order began using the baptismal name, is a member of the Missionary Servants of the Blessed Trinity (MSBT) and works at the religious education center here.

The primary concern of the sister's order is social work, but Sister Joan noted, "I am involved in catechetical work — the teaching of religion."

Her main post function is the coordination of Catholic religious education. Other duties include adult education classes, high school religious classes, moderator and conductor of Spanish-speaking classes, counselor for family matters involving religious problems and premarital classes.

"Young and old alike are searching. The more man learns about his world, the more he realizes that he does not know. Today's young people are truly a great crop of American civilization, and I have all the confidence in the world in them," she said.

She added, "You know, what we adults have to realize is that just because our young people do not worship in the same manner that we did 20 years ago, it does not mean that they do not worship at all."

She is one of the first Catholic Sisters to be employed on a full time basis by the military, to obtain a Civil Service Graded Schedule (GS) rating and to travel temporary duty (TDY).

Explaining how she became one of the first Sisters to be a government employee, she said, "In December, 1965, I came to work here on a part-time basis. I was helping Father Rusack."

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Michael A. Rusnock, was at that time the deputy post chaplain and is now assigned to the Third U.S. Army headquarters.

"My part-time job turned into a full-time job May, 1966, and I began working with the 1st Cavalry wives," Sister Joan said. She explained that at that time, many members of the teaching staff at the religious education center were wives of members of the 1st Cavalry Division which had just left for Vietnam.

Someone meeting her on the street would not necessarily realize that she is a Catholic Sister. She dresses in the modern dress of her order, wearing a basic black dress with a regular skirt length and no traditional head covering.

The only material identity of a Sister that she wears is a small round community emblem pin, which has a triangle in the center, signifying the Blessed Trinity.

Sister Joan recently received a master's degree in theology. "There was something very special about finally getting my degree," she explained.

Civil Affairs Company Brings Home the Bacon

VIETNAM — Members of the Duc Pho Detachment, 29th Civil Affairs Company, are literally "bringing home the bacon" to the people of this small village on the outskirts of the American Division's 11th Infantry Brigade basecamp.

The "Bacon" is on the hoof in the form of a new breed of pigs the detachment is introducing to the area to give the local economy a shot in the arm.

As the Agriculture Officer for the detachment, 1st Lt. Thomas A. Walton, and his assistant SP4 Gary Klausenburch are responsible for the project.

Walton explained, "The local pigs are very small animals in comparison to this new breed." To illustrate this, he pointed out that the local porkers weigh in about about one hundred pounds, while the new breed tips the scales somewhere between four to five hundred pounds.

"This new breed, which is the result of careful crossbreeding between American and Thaiamese swine, will greatly increase the meat diet of the local people," Walton stated.

One problem that arose in conjunction with the difference in the size of the swine was initially quite serious. The people receiving the first pigs failed to provide adequate space for the animals to exercise in. They built their pens on the same scale as for the local breed.

"What happened," Lt. Walton explained, "was that since the pigs couldn't exercise, their muscles couldn't develop. As their weight increased, their legs would not support them and they became permanently crippled."

This situation has been corrected through careful supervision in the building of the pens for the new animals. Now, one of the requirements for receiving a pig is that adequate space be provided prior to the delivery of the pig.

Initially, the detachment received 32 pigs for distribution. Working through the Hamlet Chiefs, pigs were given out to selected individuals in the area throughout Du Pho.

Included in the initial group were sows and boars. The families receiving the boars charged a stud fee of one or two pigs from litters produced by the sows.

"In this manner, we were able to get a herd started for each of the families. The pigs are theirs to keep. We only require that one pig from each litter be returned to us," Walton explained.

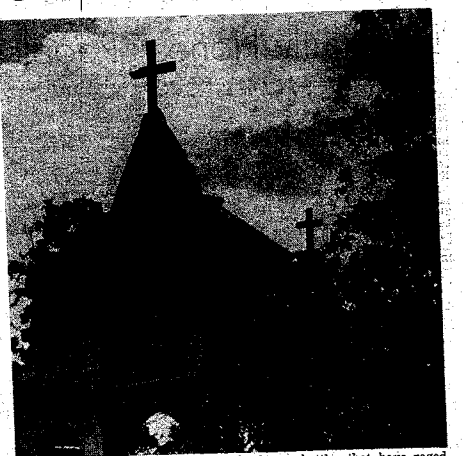
"Then, we take the new crop and distribute these to thirty-two other families, he continued.

The ultimate objective of the program is two-fold. First, to provide a meat source for every family in the area and to give them the opportunity to gain additional income through the sale or trade of pigs.

Secondly, it is anticipated that in years to come, this larger, healthier breed of swine will replace the local animal entirely, opening up the possibility of a local meat industry.

With the aim of perpetuating this program, still another project is being introduced. The planting of appropriate crops to provide food for the animals.

At present, the villagers have a ready food source for their pigs in the form of garbage from the mess halls of LZ Bronco.



ALONG HIGHWAY 533, Vietnam . . . Two pock-marked walls are all that remain of an ancient - looking, brush - closed church built in 1959 which now stands as a reminder of the heavy battles that have raged in the narrow valley leading to the isolated outpost of Tien Phuoc, 17 miles southwest of Tam Ky.

Troops In Combat Get Hot Food From Battalion

LZ GATOR, Vietnam (AMERICAL IO) — A mess hall that doesn't serve food?

The 196th Infantry Brigade has one. And because of it, America Division soldiers of the 5th Battalion, 46th Infantry eat two hot meals a day while in the field.

Whirring helicopters lift off from the resupply helipad here twice daily to rush hot chow to the battalion's units in the field. A few minutes later, the choppers swoosh in to the scattered elements' locations, bringing the men food as well prepared as that back at basecamp.

The bridagde food service advisor, CW2 William H. B. Miller, attributes the service to a "flexible battalion mess system" and a resupply mess, the sole duty of which is to serve the men away from the battalion headquarters.

In a kitchen at LZ Gator, the food, which is comparable to that served at the regular mess 100 meters away, is prepared, put in insulated containers to keep it hot and then placed on a helicopter which carries it whereever elements of the "Professionals" are operating.

When a unit is on the move and unable to carry the food containers with them hot meals are not practical. In such cases sandwiches and the traditional "C-rations" are still used with the emphasis on hot meals whenever possible.

In fact under this system, battalion mess officials say the infantrymen less and less will have to depend on the "C-rations" for his meals in the field.

The "C-rations" have, of course, not been eliminated, explained SFC John Long (Elizabethtown, Ky.) the resupply mess steward. "But even when we use them we try to send along little extras such as fruit, murphies, juices, milk, fresh fruit, and potato chips. Whenever we can we try to give them sandwiches for a change of pace."

The operation requires flexibility and planning. Each day supply men from the companies' rear areas notify the resupply mess cooks as to what kind of meals — hot, sandwich or C-ration — the company commanders think would be best for the men in the field.

As the orders come in — usually a day in advance but at times with only a few hours notice — the kitchen begins to hum with activity. Regardless of the time of day, everyone from the mess steward to the KPs quicken the pace to prepare the food on time.

In addition to battalion troops in the field, the resupply mess also provides 250 meals to Marine Combined Action Platoon team members in the area.

The project requires close coordination with the battalion's regular mess hall, explained SFC Long.

If a unit suddenly departs, the resupply mess hall picks up the rations that had been waiting for the men at the regular mess hall and rushes it to the helicopter pad. If an element returns unexpectedly, their rations which had been at the resupply mess are taken to the regular mess and served to the men there.

Says Former Hungarian Freedom Fighter

'I Fought for Freedom Twice, Ready To Go Again'

By PFC George Burks

"I fought for freedom twice, and I am ready to go again," said Jeno Otto Hidvegi, 29-year-old former Hungarian freedom fighter, who is currently an officer candidate in the 94th Infantry Officer Candidate Company, 9th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade.

Hidvegi has been in the U.S. Army for 11 years, and has served two tours in the Republic of Korea, one in Germany, and one in the Republic of Vietnam.

Fighting for freedom is nothing new to this professional soldier, since he was weaned on combat during the Hungarian uprisings of 1956.

When the "revolt" began in Budapest on Oct. 23, 1956, Hidvegi was a 17-year-old high school student who, along with many colleagues, participated in the demonstrations against the Russian government and Soviet military forces. The demonstrations, per se, were short-lived, however, because of the proliferation of weapons among the populace, which engaged in an increasing number of fire fights after dark.

Soviet Tanks

In the interval between Oct. 23 and Nov. 2, Hidvegi spent much time working with small groups which were trying to aid the Hungarian people in restoring order and government. On Nov. 2, armed conflict became wide-spread and violent as Soviet tanks moved into Budapest.

The presence of Russian armored forces put the Hungarian fighters at a distinct advantage, since the native populace had no semblance of anti-tank weaponry. Thus, the Hungarians were forced to adopt improvisatory methods of defense and attack. Hidvegi was active in procuring the materials for the one anti-tank measure that his people had at their disposal—the molotov cocktail. With his fellow freedom fighters, Hidvegi was able to lure Soviet tanks into cleverly concealed traps, where they were at the mercy of the Hungarian fire bombs and small arms fire.

The guerrilla activity performed by Hidvegi came to a halt on Nov. 28, 1956, the date on which he was caught in the act of obtaining the ingredients for the molotov cocktails. The Soviets detained and interrogated Hidvegi in Budapest. Because of his knowledge of the Russian language, however, he was able to seize an opportunity and escape from his captors after five days.

Decoy Border

Hidvegi set out for the Austrian border, not knowing that the Soviet forces had set up a decoy border line which stood several hundred yards short of the real demarcation between the countries. He was captured again a few days before Christmas in 1956. Hidvegi admits now that, at the time, he almost gave up his efforts to escape because of cold, hunger, and the seeming hopelessness of his situation. He rallied shortly after because of a direction his thinking had taken. "I had nothing to look forward to," he says, "so I really had nothing to lose by continuing my efforts to escape."

His efforts came to fruition on Jan. 6, 1957, when he once again escaped his captors by jumping off a train which was being used by the Soviets to deport prisoners. Twelve days and 150 kilometers later, after much horseback riding, sledding, walking and stealing of food, Hidvegi managed to get to the Yugoslavian border.

He traversed the icy river in an old fishing boat given to him by some fishermen there. Hidvegi recalls with much pleasure that particular river crossing since the border guards on the Hungarian side of the stream were under strict orders not to shoot into Yugoslavian territory, they could only watch helplessly as Hidvegi drifted by, leaving them with a few choice remarks on the situation.

Nearly Sent Back

Once in Yugoslavia, Hidvegi was put into a refugee camp, from which he was nearly sent back into Hungary because of his youth. However, he was transferred to several other camps, finally ending up in Frankfort, Germany, where he decided to join the U.S. Army on Feb. 4, 1958.

After eleven years of service in the Army, Hidvegi says that he is still happy about his decision to join. As an officer candidate, Hidvegi, who became a naturalized citizen of this country six years ago, says that he stands to profit greatly, because the program "helps the professional soldier who is striving for improvement."

Hidvegi is married and the father of four children. His family resides in Lake Charles, La.

Omaha Reserve Unit Arrives for Training

USAR School 5049, a reserve unit, from Omaha, Nebraska is hosting two weeks of training here at Fort Benning for Infantry Officers completing Phase I and Phase IV of the Advanced Course. The unit is headed by Col. William R. Heaston from Omaha. In civilian life, Col. Heaston is an associate professor of accounting at Creighton University in Omaha and heads his own accounting firm.

The school staff is being augmented by a similar reserve unit from Des Moines, Iowa, USAR School 5040, headed by Col. Orin E. Eddy. In civilian life, Col. Eddy owns and operates a construction equipment company. Both Fifth Army Schools are part of the 88th ARCOM in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The two hundred officer students come from 37 states, including Hawaii. Also, Puerto Rico is home to 5 reservist students. National Guard officers represent seven states. The student reservist and National Guardsman utilize the USAR Schools during the winter months to further their military education in Armory classes. In a few cases, officers remote from armories, combine correspondence course with the active duty periods in an integrated study system. Reserve and National Guard officers pursue their Advanced Course completion as well as the Command & General Staff Course in the USAR School system.

USAR Schools are utilized on a large scale during the winter months to train enlisted personnel in their MOS specialty. This enables reserve and National Guard units to qualify their personnel in an efficiently planned program.

TCB Holds Graduations And Memorial Service

Honored as the distinguished graduate was Thomas M. Lankford of Burley, Idaho.

For his achievement, Lankford received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, and an engraved Association of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

A memorial service was held in memory of Infantry Officer Candidate Louis S. Galownia in the Sightseeing Road Chapel July 30.

Candidate Galownia was fatally injured during a training exercise.

He was a member of the 64th Company, 6th Student Battalion (OC), The Candidate Brigade, which is composed of soldiers from the National Guard and Reserve who are receiving officer training.

The unit was in its sixth week of training when the accident occured.

The service was attended by the members of the unit, as well as by Col. Robert M. Piper, commander of The Candidate Brigade.

GRADUATION

Colonel Robert M. Piper, The Candidate Brigade commander, congratulated 200 candidates for having met the standards of acceptance required by the school and emphasized the unique opportunities awaiting them at Officer Candidate School (OCS).

"It is for the man of distinction," Colonel Piper said, "to strive to achieve what others do not. Becoming an officer is one of those accomplishments not just any man can attain."

Special recognition was due, he said, "not only to the landmark status of the 66th Company, 6th Student Battalion as '1-70,' but also to the background of its members."

Of the 200 men in the company, only four have prior service. The average educational level is 15.92 years.

Says Frank N. Barnett

Russia 'More Dangerous Today Than in Stalin Era'

By PFC James Doherty

The Soviet Union is "far more dangerous today than in the days of Stalin," Infantry Officer Advanced Course students were told here today.

Frank N. Barnett, president of the National Strategy Information Center, New York City, told the officers that the communists have been using so-called "detente" (lessening of tension) politics to achieve their traditional ideological objectives.

For the communists he said, diplomacy and warfare continue to be two aspects of the same conflict.

Soviets Channel Efforts

The totalitarian aspects of communism enable the Soviet and Chinese leaders to channel all the efforts of their societies towards the defeat of Western freedoms, he continued.

Sports, drama, and music, he explained, become propaganda tools of the communist leaders.

Westerners who believe that Soviet communism and American capitalism will converge into two similar welfare states mistakenly assume that increasing Soviet prosperity will lead to looser political controls.

On the contrary, he asserted, the present Brezhnev-Kosygin leadership seems to be reverting to hard-line tactics in controlling its own people.

Czechoslovakia

Barnett said the United States should have learned three major lessons from the Soviet Union's August, 1968, invasion of Czechoslovakia:

1. Russians care nothing for world opinion when their basic objectives are at stake; therefore those who would rely upon world law are deceiving themselves.

2. Moscow will tolerate East-West relations only insofar as they serve Soviet foreign policy goals.

3. The betrayal of a Marxist ally indicates what the USSR would do if it ever attained real superiority in weaponry, science and technology.

There can be no stalemate or status quo in the balance of power equation, he asserted.

Non-Military Warfare

Since the time of Lenin, he explained, communists have been successful practioners of "non-military warfare." They have used ambush deception and camouflage in both their military and political senses.

While giving politics a surface level priority in the current phase of the Cold War, the Soviets have increased their military capacity considerably, he pointed out.

Soviet power has been multiplied in the Middle East, the Mediterranean, the Persian Gulf and the areas which Great Britain has evacuated East of Suez.

Barnett urged civilian groups in the United States to increase their activities in support of freedom.

He pointed to the example of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations which has helped foster the growth of free trade unions in Latin America.

Barnett, a former Rhodes scholar at Oxford University in England, is the author of two books and numerous periodical articles on American strategy in the nuclear age. He has served as faculty member on the staffs of several war colleges.

Lifetime Licenses For Georgia Veterans

One of the most popular benefits of some 24,000 Georgians being separated from military service each year is the free honorary Georgia drivers license, State Veterans Director Pete Wheeler said today.

This popularity, Wheeler said, is due to the fact that licenses and driving go hand-in-hand and driving is one of the first needs a new veteran has after returning to civilian life.

Nearly all veterans now being separated are eligible for the free lifetime licenses by virtue of the fact they are Vietnam War veterans. However, other veterans must have had active duty in the Spanish American War, World Wars I and II and the Korean War, while proof of actual participation in the Lebanon, Berlin and Vietnam Conflicts is necessary to establish eligibility.

The first and foremost requirement for eligibility for the free license is that a veteran must have been a resident of Georgia at the time of entry into service and a legal resident of the State at the time of application for the license.

Wheeler said the law governing the free licenses also leaves the way open for the benefit to go to veterans of any future war or conflict.

The first step in receiving the license is establishing eligibility, which must be done at any office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service. Then, the veteran can go to any license examiner of the State Department of Public Safety and receive his license at no cost. If he desires his photograph on the license, there is a 50 cents charge.

Surviving spouses of veterans who died in service or of service-connected causes are eligible for the free licenses under the same regulations as veterans, so long as they remain unmarried.

More information is available from the nearest field office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.
