Parents Accept Medals Posthumously for Son

The Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to 1st Lt. John T. DePriest during a ceremony held in his honor here.

Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Wilson M. DePriest of Montgomery, Ala., parents of the lieutenant, accompanied by their daughter, Jeanne, accepted the medals awarded their son and listened to the citations accompanying each one.

The Bronze Star Medal was awarded to DePriest for "distinguishing himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam," the citation read.

"Through his untiring efforts and professional ability, he consistently obtained outstanding results. He was quick to grasp the implications of new problems with which he was faced as a result of the ever changing situations inherent in a counterinsurgency operation.

"The application of his extensive knowledge has materially contributed to the efforts of the United States mission to the Republic of Vietnam, to assist that country in ridding itself of the Communist threat to its freedom."

The Purple Heart was awarded to DePriest for the wounds he received which resulted in his death.

Co. Talton W. Long, deputy post commander, presented these and other medals including the Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal and the Vietnam Campaign ribbon.

Also present at the ceremony was Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Martin W. Heinicke, assigned to Headquarters, Infantry Center, who had conducted a memorial service for DePriest in Vietnam.

TSB Saw Changes In 1964

By Sp4 Ron Johnson

Five years ago, in September, 1964, sweeping changes were being made in the methods of teaching personnel assigned to The Student Bde. (TSB).

One of the major changes was made when the Infantry School began teaching classes via closed circuit TV to radio mechanics students, assigned to Co. B, ISB, TSB.

Television receivers are very common at Infantry Hall today, but in 1964 there weren't any. The initial purchase was for 70 sets. Many more sets are in operation today.

Another major change was a new addition to the Infantry Officer's Basic Course. For the first time, new officers were given practical leadership reaction training.

The course was designed to teach students how to handle combat situations when there is little time to think before action must be taken.

Budget Courses Now Offered For Officers

Taught and administered by the Army Finance School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., the course is aimed at furthering the training of finance and comptroller program officers.

Interested officers and civilian workers are encouraged to contact the Finance School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., 46216.

Sgt. Maj. Hostinsky Retires After 34 Years of Service

By Pvt. Steve Zimmerman

In a moving ceremony held at Lawson Field in which he could only manage a tearful "thank-you" as his farewell speech, Sgt. Maj. Mike Hostinsky retired after almost 34 years of service.

Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, presided as reviewing officer at the ceremony which also marked Hostinsky's 53rd birthday.

A veteran of almost 22 years of Airborne service, in which time he has made over 500 jumps, Hostinsky was treated to a "first" at the ceremony: One of three free-fallers who performed (the one carrying a commemorative trophy) landed no more than 10 feet away from the podium.

In his farewell tribute to Hostinsky, General Berry pointed out how the sergeant major's career represents many aspects of this nation's and the Army's history.

"He has seen the Army grow from a force of about 200,000 at the time of his enlistment," the general said, "to a wartime peak of about 8 million and a present strength of about one and a half million."

Hostinsky was awarded the Legion of Merit at the ceremony for his work as assistant command sergeant major of Martin Army Hospital, a role in which he served from May, 1966, to August of this year. As command sergeant major, he was responsible for initiating a parking control system at the hospital which did much to ease traffic difficulties.

Also, he was instrumental in organizing the 34th Medical Bn. which not only offered welcome and indoctrination for Vietnam evacuees, but also helped these men with their personal problems such as contacting their families.

The Legion of Merit was only one of the numerous awards presented to Hostinsky during his long career which began in March 1936, when he enlisted at San Pedro, Calif.

His stay there was short. A week later he was aboad the USS Grant headed for China. "It was possible in those days," the sergeant major said.

He was rerouted to Manila, Philippine Islands, and took basic training there with Co. L, 31st Infantry. "In those days it was called recruit training and it lasted a lot longer than the eight weeks they give now." Actually it lasted six months, six weeks of which he spent on Corregidor.

After a brief stint as a cook (during which time he was detailed to cook for the Honor Guard detachment stationed at the San Francisco World's Fair), the sergent major was transferred, at his own request to a line unit in 1939.

In 1940, Hostinsky volunteered for Airborne training and was sent to Fort Benning. Capt. Robert F. Sink, later Lieutenant General Sink (retired 1961; died 1965), was his commanding officer. As a member of the 501st Parachute Battalion, Hostinsky was under the command of Capt. James W. Courtis — later Brigadier General Courtis (retired 1962).

Also in the battalion was 2nd Lt. Melvin Zais — now Lieutenant General Zais, commanding general of the XXIV Corps., Republic of Vietnam; and 2nd Lt. Patrick F. Cassidy — now Lieutenant General Cassidy, commanding general Headquarters, I Corps, Vietnam.

In September, 1941, Co. B (to which Hostinsky was assigned) of the 501st Parachute Battalion was sent to Fort Knobbe, Panama Canal Zone, to conduct experiments in "equipment jumping." The company was under the command of Capt. J. H. Michaelis — now General Michaelis, commanding general, 8th U. S. Army.

When its battalion was integrated into the 503rd Parachute Infantry Regiment, they were moved to Australia for extensive training prior to their first combat jump in New Guinea in early 1942. A second combat jump was made there the following year.

Returning from New Guinea in 1944, Hostinsky spent the next eight years at Fort Benning where he served as first sergeant in various Airborne training companies of the Parachute School, Parachute Training Regiment, Airborne Battalion and other outfits.

During the Korean War, Hostinsky served as sergeant major of the 187th Airborne Regiment Combat Team which was commanded by Brig. Gen. R. E. Lindquist — later Major General Lindquist (retired 1960); and Brig. Gen. William C. Westmoreland — now chief of staff of the U. S. Army.

Returning to Fort Benning in 1964, he was assigned as sergeant major of the Airborne — Army Aviation Department under the command of Col. John J. Tolson — now Lieutenant General Tolson, commanding general of the XVIII Airborne Corps.

Due to medical reasons, Hostinsky's Airborne duties came to an end in June, 1961, but he remained active and became sergeant major of the 4th Student Bn. (Airborne), the Student Bde., and then of the Center Troop Command. He also served in Nuremburg, Germany, for two years as post sergeant major before returning to Benning in 1964 to become sergeant major of the Student Enlisted Branch, the Student Bde.

Fort Benning Soldier Gets Medal of Honor

By 2nd Lt. James Hopson

President Richard M. Nixon awarded the Medal of Honor to a Fort Benning soldier Thursday at the White House.

Capt. Jack H. Jacobs, Fords, N. J., commander of the 65th Co., 6th Student Bn., The Candidate Bde., was one of four men to receive the nation's highest award for valor in ceremonies in the White House Rose Garden.

Jacobs was cited for action while serving as assistant battalion adviser to the 2nd Bn., 16th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam.

Jacobs said that the 2nd of the 16th operated in Kien Phong province, 25 miles east of the Cambodian border and 80 miles southwest of Saigon.

The citation states that on March 9, 1968, Jacobs' battalion "came under intense heavy machine gun and mortar fire from a Viet Cong battalion positioned in well fortified bunkers."

Jacobs said, "We had been moving in a pincer movement against an undetermined number of people. We were with the lead company and got cut off. My senior NCO and I were wounded and half the company, including my Vietnamese counterpart, were wounded or killed."

Intense fire halted the 2nd of the 16th's attack and the troops became disorganized. Jacobs, bleeding heavily from a head wound but refusing evacuation, reorganized the remnant of his company and positioned them in a defensive perimeter, the citation continued.

Jacobs rescued and administered first aid to a gravely wounded American adviser and repeatedly crossed the fire-raked battlefield to drag Vietnamese wounded to safety.

"There was a company of Viet Cong going around shooting the wounded," he said. "We moved out and policed up the wounded men — and policed up some VC, too."

The citation concluded, "His gallant actions and extraordinary heroism saved the lives of one United States adviser and 13 allied soldiers. Through his effort, the allied company was restored to an effective fighting unit and prevented defeat of the friendly forces by a strong and determined enemy."

Col. John A. Geraci, now director of the Infantry School's Company Operations Department, was the senior adviser of the 44th Special Tactical Zone, to which Jacob's battalion was attached. Colonel Ger-

Donations Pour In For UG

With the United Givers Fund drive underway two weeks, Fort Benning has attained more than 22 per cent of its $205,000 fair share objective.

A report as of Oct. 3 said that $45,516.72 had been banked and reported to drive officials here, including $1,552.02 designated for specific UG agencies.

Money collected on post is earmarked for those civilian UG agencies which have filed certificates of nondiscrimination. Contrary to some reports no member of UGF practicing segregation can receive money collected on post.

Setting the pace for the post was the Airborne Department of the Infantry School which topped 120 per cent of its fair share response with a total donation of $2,178.75.

Among the major commands, the largest amount turned in through Oct. 3 was $11,211.09 from the Training Center.

The 197th Infantry Bde. was second with $9,353.27 and the Center Troop Command, third with $4,917.99.

The largest total donation to date from Infantry Center staff agencies and directorates is $1,642.75 from the Finance and Accounting Office.

Tours of the United Givers participating agencies are continuing.

Jacobs left for Washington, D. C., on Wednesday. He was accompanied by his wife, the former Karen Markuiln, and their two children, Heather, 5 and David, 2. Colonel Geraci also attended the ceremony.

Jacobs received an ROTC commission from Rutgers University where he was graduated in 1966. He later attended the Infantry officers basic course and the Airborne course at Fort Benning.

AFMA Kicks Off Fall Activities

Chapter 13 of the Armed Forces Management Association (AFMA) kicked off its 1969 Fall activities with a luncheon in the Benning Room of the Fort Benning Officers Club Sept. 25.

Joe Mitchell, administrator of the Columbus Medical Center, spoke on continuing education of executives. He stated that in this rapidly changing technological era, the executive must continually strive to increase his knowledge in order to keep abreast of current advancements.

Lt. Col. Katherine Betz, chief nurse, Martin Army Hospital, won the doorprize, an electric deep fryer.

Chapter 13 is composed of approximately 130 management minded military and civilian executives, who meet together monthly to discuss and hear guest speakers discuss matters of mutual interest and concern.

The chapter holds a monthly luncheon meeting on the third Thursday of each month from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Personnel interested in joining AFMA or who desire further information are asked to contact Col. James Snelling, president, 544-2593, or Dewey Posey, first vice president, 545-1281.

Three Others Also Receive Top Medal

President Richard M. Nixon awarded Medals of Honor to three soldiers in addition to Fort Benning's Capt. Jack H. Jacobs.

The other recipients were Maj. Patrick H. Brady, Capt. James M. Sprayberry and Sgt. Robert M. Patterson, all of the Army.

Brady, who is with the Medical Service Corps, earned the medal in action Jan. 6, 1968. A medical evacuation helicopter pilot, he risked hostile fire to rescue 51 wounded men.

Sprayberry, armor, destroyed numerous machine gun and bunker positions while leading a rescue patrol April 25, 1968.

Patterson, armor, neutralized five enemy bunkers, killed eight enemy soldiers, captured seven weapons and made it possible for his unit to complete the mission.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

Not until two centuries after Columbus discovered the New World did the use of a fork spread from Spain and Italy to the rest of Europe. (Even Kings still ate with their hands.)

Poppy seeds sprinkled on hot buttered noodles give a Hungarian accent to an everyday meat stew.

The ancient Hindus' proverb as to which food constitutes the staff of live "A man may live without bread, but without buttermilk he dies."

Buy endives that are well-bleached and have tightly-closed tips. Break pieces into a salad, or try simmering the heads in seasoned bouillon.

"CONSIDERED" DEAD

How long must a man be listed as missing before he is "considered" dead? What kind of benefits does a wife of a missing man get?

Section 555, Title 37, U. S. Code (Missing Persons Act) pertains. There is no set time limit in which a serviceman can be retained in a "missing" status. A change in status from missing to dead is based on the evidence available in each particular case.

The wife of a serviceman in a missing status receives the same benefits due her while her husband was present for duty. In addition, a survivor assistance officer is appointed to assist the wife in matters related to the status of her husband. Also, certain privileges for travel for humanitarian reasons are available.

AGES OF SOLDIERS

What per cent of enlisted men and officers are under 25? What per cent of officers are over 25?

— Enlisted personnel under 25 years of age — 76.9 Pct.

— Commissioned officers under 25 years of age — 32.1 Pct.

— Total officers (include warrant officers) 35 years of age or older — 25.7 Pct.

CIVILIAN WITNESS

Under what conditions can a civilian be subpoenaed for a military trial? Can civilian witnesses, particularly CIA, avoid testifying by invoking a form of immunity such as executive privilege?

Article 46 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice provides that courts-martial may issue subpoenas to compel attendance of civilian witnesses in a manner similar to United States District Courts. Such subpoenas are effective only in the United States and its territories and possessions, and thus courts-martial convened elsewhere do not have the power to compel attendance of civilian witnesses.

Traditionally, one agency of government, as a matter of comity, makes its employes available to testify before courts-martial when their testimony is relevant and arises out of their official duties. A department or government agency which has a witness before a court-martial may, however, determine that certain matters, if testified to, would be detrimental to the national interest and may instruct the witness to refuse to testify at the trial to those matters.

If the testimony withheld is material and relevant to the defense, assertion of the privilege will abort the prosecution. In a criminal prosecution the government has to choose between full disclosure of all matter material and relevant to the defense and forbearance of prosecution. Simply stated, the government must choose between prosecution and assertion of any privilege it may have to prevent disclosure of evidence which is material and relevant to defense.

'Police' Of Litter Stressed

The actors in these arenas are litterbugs who carelessly throw paper, cans, bottles and other debris on the ground around post.

Besides creating a health menace and a disgrace, this discarded trash causes a great deal of extra work for those men who have to clean up behind the litterbugs.

The Infantry School Company Operations Department has begun a campaign to encourage strict "policing" of the problem sites.

We are hopeful that all post personnel will support the Operations Department in its "police" policy and that other groups will join the department in trying to keep the post clean of litter.

Even more important, if more people are careful to put litter in trash cans where it belongs, maybe strict "policing" policies will not be necessary.

Part II

Plan for a New Career

By MSgt. Homer Henderson

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of a command information article on benefits available to the soldier when he makes the transition to civilian life.)

The Counseling Process

After a decision to reenter civilian life has been reached by the serviceman, the counseling system is used to assist him in implementing that decision.

During the counseling process, the serviceman is challenged to make a firm choice for the future. He may choose to draw upon the educational benefits to which he is entitled under the GI Bill. He may choose to reenlist. He may find that he can benefit best by seeking additional academic education through the General Educational Development (GED) program.

He may plan to seek employment on the basis of past or present skills or he may select a course of training from those offered by the military services, by a government agency, or by private industry under Project Transition.

Regardless of an individual's choice, in most cases it will be a better one than he would have made without the benefit of counseling.

Early Out

Personnel returning from a short tour area may be separated up to 150 days prior to regular ETS. Those returning from a long tour area may be separated up to 30 days prior to normal ETS.

Separation may be granted up to three months prior to ETS to attend school or to accept a teaching position when the individual's services are not essential to the mission of his assigned unit. Separation will not be effected earlier than ten days prior to the school registration date.

Personnel desiring to accept employment in a position return may be separated up to three months early. Separation will not be effected earlier than ten days prior to the date the individual must report to work.

"Employment of a seasonal nature" refers to employment that is not continuously active nor in full operation during the entire calendar year in the area of employment.

Public Police Officer

Servicemen who receive a firm employment or training offer from a legally constituted city, county, state or federal government law enforcement agency can be released up to three months earlier than their separation date.

This program offers servicemen about to be released from active duty the opportunity to aid their communities in their fight against crime as members of local police forces.

Officials of police agencies will be permitted to interview and examine prospective candidates at military installations, but a serviceman can also make direct arrangements with any qualified police agency of his choice.

Although the program was initially aimed at strengthening police forces of major metropolitan cities, provisions have been made to include every legally constituted public police agency in the nation. No early release dates will be made to those who desire private police employment.

If you are interested in serving on a particular force, such as the one in your hometown, you should write to the police agency where you are seeking employment, requesting additional employment information.

As a part of applying for employment as a police officer, you will probably be asked to complete a detailed application form, to take a written examination, to undergo a physical examination and to participate in a personal interview with po-

AR States Guidelines On Protests

Where do soldiers stand in demonstrations?

Their position is clearly stated in Army Regulation 600-20. It says, "Participation in picket lines or any other demonstrations, including those pertaining to civil rights, may imply Army sanction of the cause for which the demonstration is conducted.

—During the hours they are required to be present for duty.

—When they are in uniform.

—When they are on a military reservation.

—When they are in a foreign country.

—When their activities constitute a breach of law and order.

—When violence is reasonably likely to result."

The right to peaceable assembly is guaranteed in the First Amendment to the Constitution. It reads in part: "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble."

The soldier enjoys the same right, in this respect, as does every other citizen. But the soldier has special obligations as a member of the Armed Forces and any disregard for them can lead to punishment according to law.

Gold Star Mothers 'Suffer the Supreme Sacrifice'

By Ida Evans

In 1940 President Franklin D. Roosevelt described Gold Star Mothers as those women who have "suffered the supreme sacrifice of motherhood in the loss of their sons and daughters in World Wars."

Since that time, two more generations of mothers have joined the ranks of American Gold Star Mothers. Sons and daughters died in South Korea and now are dying in the Republic of Vietnam. These mothers, like those of World War I and World War II, are wearing a gold star.

Columbus and Phenix City, where many homes have been touched by the war in Vietnam, has a group of Gold Star Mothers banded together recently to turn their sense of personal loss into service — service that will perpetuate the memory of their loved ones.

On Wednesday, the Twin City Chapter will receive a charter in American Gold Star Mothers of America, Inc. The charter will be presented by Mrs. Jewel B. Morris of Lithia Springs, president of Gold Star Mothers of Georgia.

Motherhood is ever new and yet as old as mankind. From time immemorial mothers have reared sons and sent them valiantly into battle — their own bravery in the long anxious weeks and months matching that of their sons on the battlefield.

During World War I, in the window of homes throughout the land there were service flags with a blue star for each son in the service. As time went by, in many homes, the blue stars changed to gold stars. As men died in combat or died from their wounds or disease, a gold star, larger than the blue, was superimposed upon the blue star, completely covering it.

The idea of the Gold Star had been used during World War I, signifying that the devotion and pride of his family in this sacrifice, far outweighed the sense of personal loss in mourning this young hero.

Gold Star Mothers all over the nation had banded into groups following World War I. On June 4, 1928, there was a meeting of 25 mothers in Washington, D. C., who envisioned a national organization to be known as American Gold Star Mothers, Inc., a nondenominational, nonprofit, nonpolitical group. They were incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia Jan. 5, 1929. Many small groups functioning under local and state charters soon affiliated with the national organization.

World War II brought a new generation of Gold Star Mothers into the ranks.

In quick succession, they have been joined by mothers of heroes of the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Who are the Gold Star Mothers and what is their purpose in joining together?

Their purpose is to "keep alive and develop the spirit that promotes world service; to maintain the ties of fellowship born of that service and to assist and further all patriotic works; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to assist veterans and their dependents whenever possible and to aid, in any way in our power, men and women who have been wounded or incapacitated."

The Gold Star Mothers strive to perpetuate the memory of those whose lives have been sacrificed and to give needed assistance to all mothers of such men and women. They maintain American Gold Star Home in Long Beach, Calif., a home for members in good standing. The home, with individual three or four room apartments, is open to any member of Gold Star Mothers, Inc., and her husband.

The organization is pledged to maintain "true allegiance to the United States of America," and describes itself as "an organization of mothers whose sons and daughters served and died that this world might be a better place to live."

Mrs. William S. Bogart, president of the new Twin City Chapter of Gold Star Mothers said that plans to organize the chapter have been underway for more than a year. Early in July, 12 mothers signed up. At present approximately 30 women are interested in joining Gold Star Mothers.

When a mother has just recently lost her son, Mrs. Bogart said, it is hard to discuss joining an organization of any kind, even one dedicated to perpetuating his memory. The grief is too great and time has to heal the wound.

The president of the new chapter feels that Army wives have "something to give" to mothers who have never been connected with the Army.

"Our sons were born in the Army and we always knew they would be soldiers," Mrs. Bogart explained. Army mothers have already been through wars with their husbands and now, with sons in combat, they know what the defense of the principles they stand for means to the soldiers.

Ranger Wives See 'The Ultimate Soldier'

Opening the fall season, ladies of the Ranger Committee were hostesses at a luncheon for the ranger Wives at the supper Club.

Col. Y. Y. Phillips, director of the Ranger Department, described the outstanding training given by the department's committee and showed the movie, "Ranger—The Ultimate Soldier."

The film portrays the three phases of Ranger training which include the physical proficiency tests and conditioning given here; patrolling, rappelling and skills of operating in mountainous regions, taught at the Mountain Ranger Camp in north Georgia; and the final phase including navigation on water and combat against trained jungle troops simulating a guerrilla force, taught at the Florida Ranger Camp located at Eglin Air Force Base.

Completion of the course entitles the student to wear the coveted Ranger tab, Colonel Phillips said.

Mrs. Phillips welcomed special guests Mrs. Oscar E. Davis, wife of Brig. Gen. Davis, commanding general of the Training Center, and Mrs. Sidney B. Berry, wife of Brig. Gen. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

'Nine To Get Ready' Helps Expectant Mother

The Georgia State Obstetrics-Gynecology Society is presenting a television series "Nine To Get Ready" on the Georgia Educational TV Network, Channel 23, each Thursday from 10 to 10:30 p.m. The series will end Dec. 18.

This is a 12 program series of films dealing with maternal and child health care, beginning with preconception care, the nine months of pregnancy, delivery, normal vaginal and cesarean, and finally to current research in reproductive physiology and family planning.

The programs are aimed at informing viewers, particularly expectant mothers, of the advances that have been made in maternal and child health care and services available.

The programs are also designed to encourage expectant mothers to seek prenatal care from reputable physicians.

This project has been made possible through the cooperation of the Georgia Educational TV Network of the Georgia Center for Continuing Education, The University of Georgia, in Athens.

NCO Wives Practice, Try Rappelling Down Platform

By Sp4 George Burks

Recently, the noncommissioned officer candidates of the 82nd Co. (NCOC), 8th Student Bn., The Candidae Bde., received training in the art of rappelling from the Patrolling Committee of the Ranger Department, Infantry School.

They were not alone, however, for their distaff side was there with them, not only to observe, but to actually rappel themselves.

The student wives reported to the Ranger training area where they observed their husbands during a portion of the five-hour block of instruction allotted to rappelling.

SFC Robert D. Edwards explained to the somewhat apprehensive wives that the students begin their training gradually on an eight-foot inclined ramp. Then they advance to the 20-foot tower where they practice rappelling from a sheer board face and a helicopter skid.

They proceed to a 55-foot tower mock-up of a CH-47 tail section with troop ladder and they rappel from the Uh-1 helicopter skid. Finally the students receive training in hasty and body rappels.

The students finish the day on the 20-foot tower, where they practice the cross-chest brake, buddy rappel and the stretcher rappel.

The wives responded with interest to all the instruction, especially when hurtling down the side of the 55-foot tower.

The high point of the day for the wives came, however, when they were allowed to practise rappeling themselves. First they learned how to tie their support rope, after which they practiced the technique on the inclined slope.

Finally, three of the dauntless crew rappelled down the side of the eight-foot platform. Judging from the smiles on the faces of the female participants, the day was a success.

They had come closer to understanding the training that will ultimately make their husbands into squad and fire team leaders.

The day's training was under the direction of Capt. Peter M. Howard. The training will later be put to practical application by the candiates during their seven-day field exercises in Quitman Couhty, Ga.

New Officer Symbolizes Transition

By Sp4 George Burks

When Paul Enabnit was graduated at the top of his Officer Candidate class and had his bars pinned on, he engendered an act of symbolic importance to all men in the military.

He enlisted in the Army for Airborne training in December, 1967; during the following year he attended basic training and advanced individual training at Fort Gordon, Ga., where he was encouraged to apply for further training in Fort Benning's Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course (NCOC).

Enabnit went to NCOC, where he distinguished himself in August, 1968, by graduating as the number two man in NCOC Class No. 35-68 (81st Co., 8th Student Bn., The Candidate Bde.).

Among the honors he received for this achievement was a promotion to the rank of staff sergeant.

In this capacity he served as a tactical NCO with the 81st Co. from August 1968 to April 1969. It was at this point that he decided to take yet another step upward in his military career — he opted to attend the OCS program.

Candidate Enabnit's decision to undergo the rigorous six-month course in OCS was prompted by a basic tenet in his personal philosophy of living. "I believe that if a man is physically and mentally capable of handling responsibility, he should do so." He said that he was also prompted by "the opportunity for greater service."

In OCS Enabnit distinguished himself as never before, rating very high in leadership, and accumulating nearly a 92 per cent average in academics; however, this was nothing new to Enabnit.

While in high school in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, Enabnit earned an honorable mention in the National Merit Scholarship competition and was fourth in the state on the chemistry examination. He also showed better-than-average ability as a wrestler for his school.

In OCS, Enabnit put all his skills, both military and civilian, together, with the result that he emerged as the top man in his 130-man class.

His former tactical officer in the 81st Co., Lt. Richard E. Musil, said of Enabnit: "He showed that he had a good basic knowledge of military matters, and that he had the common sense to apply it. Furthermore, he was forceful and had the ability to get people to work for him. He was well-liked by his peers, which is important because a candidate is assessed by both peers and tactical officers; in addition he was enthusiastic, co-operative and industrious."

Thus when Enabnit stepped to the center of the stage in Marshall Auditorium to have his gold bars fastened on by Brig. Gen. Frank H. Linnell, on one side, and SSgt. Anthony Langford, on the other side, he was marking the transition from enlisted man to noncommissioned officer to officer.

Gen. Linnell Speaks At OCS Graduation

By Sp4 George Burks

Addressing the 140 graduates of the 81st Co., 8th Student Bn., The Candidate Bde., General Linnell suggested that it is often the great writer, not the man within the service, who is most capable of realizing the stature of the military man.

Drawing an example from Herman Wouk's "The Caine Mutiny," General Linnell advised the men to avoid promising those things which one cannot in reality do.

From C. S. Forester's "Hornblower" series, the general made the point that the man who has received excellent training should never underestimate himself.

"The general's final reference was to James A. Michener's "The Bridges of Toko-ri," from which he brought home the point that one must never "write off the basic rightness" of one's cause.

The distinguished graduate of OC 31-69 was 2nd Lt. Paul Enabnit, Akron, Ohio. Before entering the Officer Candidate program, Enabnit had graduated as the number two man of Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course (NCOC) Class 35-68, after which he worked as a tactical NCO with the 81st Co. (NCOC), 8th Student Bn., The Candidate Bde.

Enabnit's bars were pinned on by General Linnell and by a close friend and noncommissioned officer, SSgt. Anthony Langford, a tactical NCO assigned to the 81st Co.

As top graduate, Enabnit received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an Association of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque and a "Follow Me" statuette.

Mrs. Thiel, a native of Tigerton, Wis., has distinguished herself by outstanding and meritorious service in developing and organizing orientation programs for the wives of officer students at the Infantry School.

In addition to her volunteer work with officer students' wives, Mrs. Thiel has contributed her time and effort in obtaining volunteers to work in the many community service activities at Fort Benning.

GRUNTS ESCAPE WITH SOME SIGHS

PT 'Feels Good,' Hushes Bones, Wakes Up Muscles

By SSgt. Joe DePriest

Idle bones pop
Bellies get tight.

Grunts escape with some sighs and some heaves and a little sweat appears, early in the morning, on the forehead.

PT is getting right.

"More PT, drill sergeant!"

That's exactly what Co. B, 5th Bn., 1st Bde., got, some more PT on a foggy Fort Benning morning.

It was "so good."

Sgt. Anthony Barnhill had the platform shaking as he performed the daily dozen along with the trainees.

"In cadence, exercise. . ."

A high jumper or a squat thrust, squat bender or a push up. . .more PT drill sergeant.

Co. B cadre patrolled the exercising ranks: "Get that back straight, keep those legs up, get off your knees."

You'd better do the daily dozen right.

"In cadence, exercise. . ." Barnhill and his counterparts, drill sergeants throughout the Training Center, begin their day leading trainees for a little run, a mile or two, and lead PT classes practically every day of the 8-week cycle.

And the bones will hush, the muscles wake up, bellies trim down.

Feel your body work and move more surely, with confidence, with greater life.

CTC Training Sections Welcome New NCOIC

A veteran of both Korea and the Republic of Vietnam, Atkinson recently completed his nineteenth year of service in the Army.

Prior to coming to Fort Benning on his current tour, he was assigned to the 2nd Bn., 5th Cavalry, 1st Air Cavalry Division.

Trainee Steps From Pageant In Atlantic City to Barracks

By Sp5 John Klopf

Basic training is a difficult adjustment for the trainee with civilian memories still fresh in his mind, but the transition for Pvt. Samuel H. Sansing Jr., Bessemer, Ala., must have been especially painful.

He stepped from the beauty filled stage at the Miss America Pageant into the GI-filled barracks of Fort Benning.

Sansing is currently in his seventh week of basic with Co. A, 5th Bn., 1st Bde., Training Center.

For the last seven years, he has been involved with the Miss Alabama Pageant in various capacities and for the last two yars he has been the coordinator for that event.

This year, when he designed a set for the Alabama centennial celebration at Birmingham, Miss America Pageant officials saw his work and invited him to come to Atlantic City, N.J.

"It was great, explained Sansing. "They paid my transportation to Atlantic City plus a generous salary."

For two months Sansing worked as a set designer with four other men. "The pageant director gave us ideas and turned us loose on them," he said.

"We chose the colors, materials and special effects we wanted and worked closely with such pageant personalities as Bert Parks, master of ceremonies; Bud Westmore, head of make-up for Universal Studios, and Judith Ford, last year's Miss America."

For Sansing, work on the pageant had an extra benefit. His fiancee, Miss Ann Fowler, was Miss Alabama. She won the Grand Talent Award for non-finalists.

"Being behind the scenes gave me some interesting insights into the trials of making a production this large," he commented. "For instance, Miss Ford got tied up in traffic the night of the pageant, and didn't make it to the stage until minutes before they announced her name over nationwide TV."

Sparks Speaks At Graduation Of NCO Class

Sparks said, "I challenge you to hold your head proudly as young NCOs second to none."

Honored as the distinguished graduate was Robert C. White, Columbus, Ohio. For his achievement, White received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) plaque, and was promoted to staff sergeant.

Sergeant Thanks AER With $100

By Marian Jones

An Army sergeant, who said that Army Emergency Relief (AER) went all out to help him when he needed it, walked into AER's Fort Benning office last month and deposited a check for $100 on the desk of Lt. William Rogers, AER custodian.

It was the largest individual contribution made to AER during the current year.

This unsolicited donation was made by Sgt. William E. Wilkosky, Brookline, Mass., a member of the 5th Bn., 31st Infantry, 197th Infantry Bde., following his receipt of a re-up bonus.

According to Wilkosky, AER helped him in every way they could during a recent emergency. Although he never had to take advantage of their offer of financial assistance, he felt that AER should "share in the wealth" when his re-up bonus was paid.

He said when he receives the second part of his bonus, he will donate a sum to the American Red Cross, whose services he has also had occasion to use.

"You never know when you are going to need them," he said, speaking of the two relief organizations, "and it's nice to know they are available."

598th Maintenance Wins Battalion Trophy

By Sp5 Ken Sturzenacker

The 598th Light Maintenance Co., part of Center Troop Command's 67th Maintenance Bn., has been rewarded for its activities during the past three months.

The reward came in the form of the battalion commander's trophy, presented quarterly to the unit within the battalion that has demonstrated superior performance of the duties common to all of the units assigned to the 67th.

"Common duties" include such things as administrative records keeping, standards within the company area on inspections and other functions.

Because of the diverse nature and missions of the units within the battalion, it is not possible to judge all areas of responsibility in the point system that determines the trophy winner.

In accepting the trophy from Lieutenant Colonel Alden L. Cox, battalion commander, Capt. Charles McChargue performed one of his last duties as commander of the 598th.

Board Tests for Half Century

The U.S. Army Infantry Board will observe a "Half Century of Testing" during the week of October 20th. Col. Charles B. Thomas, president of the board, announced a weapons demonstration, family picnic and VIP luncheon to observe the anniversary.

During a firing exercise on the test board's Fansworth Range, a review and comparison of weapons from the 1920's and the 1970's were given.

The firing exercise gave a first-hand view of the XM203 weapon system which combines the M16A1 rifle and the 40mm grenade launcher. At the same time, a Browning Machine Rifle, later called the B.A.R., was shown.

The XM203 was fired but the old rifle, which is a museum piece today, was only handled and inspected.

Post Preparatory Training 'Dusts Off the Cobwebs'

By SSgt Joe DePriest

They probably sat at the back of the classroom and some were quiet and inconspicuous while others played the show-off or jokester.

They spun in, out and around the progression of public school years, never seeming to be a true part of it.

These young men either dropped out of high school or emerged lacking in such areas as basic reading skills.

"We try to dust off the cobwebs," said Lester O'Riley, supervisor for the Army Preparatory Training (APT) program at the Fort Benning Training Center.

APT is a six week program aimed at raising basic reading skills. It is a "remedial program preparing people to work acceptably in a military specialty or Army service school in a training program that requires a higher degree of reading ability," said O'Riley, who also serves as education officer for the Fort Benning Education Center.

When recruits arrive at the Reception Station here, they are given the Armed Forces Achievement Test. Those making below a score of 20 are eligible for APT. Reception Station counselors make selections based on the man's future assignment.

The APT course is administered before a man enters basic combat training. Ten civilian teachers conduct six-hour classes daily. Included in the six hours are one hour each on arithmetic and social studies. Two hours of military instruction after normal class time round out the day for students.

The program is limited to six weeks to permit a man to complete basic combat training and advanced individual training and be ready for his first permanent duty assignment in five months.

APT personnel stress that the men they are teaching are not mentally deficient in any sense of the word.

"Most have had their hardships," said 2nd Lt. Truman Moore, officer-in-charge.

"They were the ones sitting in the back of the class in high school. Slow learners, they developed an inferiority complex."

Mrs. Edward Betts, who teaches a non-reader class, said "Three-fourths are really eager to learn and just never had the chance before."

Teaching methods vary. Text and work books are used in each class. Many of the books are geared toward the Army, enabling the student to form a picture of military life from basic training to an actual duty assignment.

By the time students leave APT, they have been exposed to enough military jargon, organization and operations—both in and out of the classroom—to make basic training seem much less foreign.

Moore noted that many APT graduates go on to become platoon or squad leaders during basic and often win honors upon completion of basic training.

A two-hour lab requirement provides the opportunity for special, graphic language training. Lab equipment includes a language master machine which gives students simultaneous audio and visual instruction in phonics and allows them to record their own voices for a comparison of sounds. Two other machines, the Craig reader and a projector type, offer variable time devices for improving reading speed, skills and comprehension.

OC Can Do 'Psychedelic Hypnotism'

Psychedelic does not necessarily mean a scene of wild colors, loud music, or flashing strobelights. According to noncommissioned officer candidate Hal Swanson, the word psychedelic, used in its proper form, means the opposite. He should know—he is the world's "first psychedelic hypnotist."

Swanson, currently assigned to the 160th Company (NCOC), 10th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Bde., has been a practicing hypotherapist for the past two years in Chicago. He deals in such processes as Zen Buddhism, yoga, and hypnotism. He refers to himself as the first psychedelic hypnotist because, as he puts it, "psychedelic in its original form means 'mind manifesting' and this is what I strive for in my hypnosis."

The 21-year-old Chicago native studied the art for four years before inducing his first trance. "Through hypnosis I try to help those with special problems," he states. The special problems include anything from excessive smoking to speech impediments.

Cured and Tutored

He once cured a 12-year-old boy of stuttering and he has tutored many students that have trouble with their studies. However, Swanson does not claim that his capabilities are unlimited.

Anyone with any kind of emotional problem is sent directly to a doctor or to a psychiatrist. "Many times hypnosis can only make those with emotional problems worse, and I don't want to take any chances with that eventuality."

Prior to entering the Army, Swanson delivered lecture-demonstrations at various colleges and universities in the Chicago area, including City College of Chicago, La Salle University, and De Vry Institute of Technology, where he was a student for three years, majoring in electronics.

He points out that the biggest problem with hypnosis today is that too frequently it is used improperly. Amateur hypnotists learn the knack for inducing trances and then put their new-found powers to work for them at parties to impress their friends: "Learning how to induce hypnotic spells can be taught in a period of less than 15 minutes," says Swanson, "and this accounts for the number of amateurs. But if the subject in the trance is not awakened properly, it can have lasting effects on him."

Black-Outs

"One such case," recalls Swanson, "involved a man put under a trance by a friend at a party. He was driving down the street one day, when he blacked-out completely; he kept having the black-outs for almost two years."

Although his hypnosis is used mainly to help others, Swanson feels that through his study of the subject he has become more sensitive in his responses toward living.

Movie Synopsis

SWEET CHARITY. . .The movie was developed from an Italian comedy-drama and is the story of Charity Hope Valentine, played by Shirley MacLaine, a taxi dancer with a full heart, but empty purse. She gets herself into more situations than deemed possible for one person to encounter. The cast includes Sammy Davis Jr. who marks his return to movie musicals.

MARLOW . . . Intrigue, murder, adventure and romance swirl around private detective Philip Marlowe, played by James Garner, when a series of photographs are up for grabs and blackmail. The photos are of a semi-nude actress swimming. Marlowe is hired and uncovers unsavory characters.

THE BIG CUBE. . .The psychedelic fantasies of a beautiful heiress lead to a nightmare of death and drugs. George Shakiris portrays a young medical student who trafficks in drugs and cons her into thinking that he is in love with her, not her money.

THE BRUTE AND THE BEAST. . .Fear and violence run rampant in a Western border town when a sadistic killer is shielded by his father's wealth.

Forward Playing Candidate Rings Up Playmate Bell

What sort of man becomes a successful high fashion photographer, writes articles for several magazines, plays the violin, is an outstanding athlete and is graduated from an institution of higher learning at the age of 19?

The answer can be found in The Candidate Bde. at the Infantry School where Walter A. Perkins is a member of 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn.

Perkins, a native of Chicago, began his formal schooling at the age of four in a special program for gifted pupils, designed by the University of Chicago Laboratory School.

Later, he was graduated from high school at 15 and from the University of Chicago — with a bachelor of arts degree in psychology — at the age of 19.

While a student at Chicago, Perkins became the senior editor of the school's newspaper, "The Maroon." While not pondering Pavlov or producing printed material, Perkins was busy pounding the hardwood as a varsity forward on the University of Chicago basketball team, for whom he played during the 1965-68 seasons.

Before entering the Army under the college option program, Perkins kept active by writing articles for various Chicago-area magazines such as "Ebony," "Negro Digest," and "Tan."

He was also employed by the fashion department of Johnson's Publication, a job with many benefits

Scout Will Represent Georgia

Rick Maeder, an Eagle Scout from Fort Benning Troop 27, and representative of the Chattahoochee Council was selected as the outstanding Boy Scout in Georgia during competition at Callaway Gardens.

Rick will represent Georgia in the regional competition in Asheville, N. C., on Oct. 22. During regional competition, one Boy Scout will be selected to represent Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina in the Boy Scout Report to the President in Washington, D. C.

This annual program selects Scouts from all over the United States through sectional and regional competitions to report to the President on the Scout activities in their areas during the past year.

According to Mr. Fred Trammell, assistant Scout Executive, there are approximately 10,000 Scouts in the Chattahoochee Council. Primarily, a boy must be an Eagle Scout to be eligible for competition in the Boy Scout Report to the Nation program.

Rick, the 15-year-old son of Col. and Mrs. Richard H. Maeder, is a sophomore at Columbus High School. Colonel Maeder commands the 1st Training Brigade, Training Center.

Trammell said, "It is significant that Rick was the youngest boy to compete in the sectional competition. I think that it is outstanding that he was chosen because it indicates his maturity by competing against the older boys."

The festival, set to run from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m., will be held in the Gowdy Field - Doughboy Stadium area. A costume parade with prizes in two age groups and several categories will highlight the scheduled activities.

The theme for this year's parade is "Spaceman," with the focus on this nation's achievements in reaching the moon during 1969.

OC Jumps at Yuletide Sky Dive

By Sp4 George Burks

Prudencio Mendez, currently an officer candidate in the 93rd Co., 9th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Bde., is a career soldier who can recall many interesting highlights during his nine year tenure in the Army, but there is nothing, in his mind, that can compare to the time when he became an "Airborne Santa."

While with the Army Southern Command in Panama, Mendez was associated with the Pan American Sport Flying Club.

Being in the military, his sport jumping ability occasionally enabled him to work on U. S. government civil affairs projects.

Yuletide

In observance, and in the spirit, of a Christmas holiday season, the Southern Command sponsored many yuletide events — one of which brought Mendez to the skies above the small community of La Arena, in central Panama.

Christmas Dive

Here, children and adults were entertained by a sky diving exhibition performed by 19 members of the parachute club who jumped from altitudes up to 12,000 feet.

The children had their big moment when Santa Claus plunged from a plane and drifted earthward. Once on the ground, Santa Mendez passed out gifts and listened to the whispered wishes of all the children.

Mendez recalls that the clothing and beard were "a bit warm", but that of Santa was "warmer still."

Gargiulo To Conduct Field Band

By Sp5 Ken Sturzenacker

The musical director for Special Services will conduct the Army Field Band when it performs in concert at the Three Arts Auditorium Oct. 20.

Theodore Gargiulo, whose entire life has been filled with music, served as conductor of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra before assuming his present position.

He has also served as conductor for the Miami Opera Guild, the New York Opera Festival and the Cafarelli Opera in Cleveland.

Guitar and Mandolin

The Manhattan-born conductor said he was fascinated as a boy by his father's and uncle's operatic selections — produced by ear on a guitar and a mandolin.

When he was 12, Gargiulo began studying the piano and later taught himself clarinet.

Juilliard School

He began his training at the Manhattan School of Music, then took advanced study at the Juilliard School of Music. He later studied under Dr. Fritz Stiedry, then of the Metropolitan Opera Association.

A longtime student of Italian folk music, Gargiulo directed a New York Italian folklore chorus for a number of years. The group gave annual concerts during which the conductor - pianist accompanied such guest artist as Licia Albanese, Jerome Hines, Patrice Munsel, Robert Merrill and George Tozzi.

As director of the Cincinnati Summer Opera Company and other companies, he worked with other Met stars.

He has heard several of his own compositions sung by such superb artists as Guiseppe DeLuca, a personal and professional friend of Caruso.

As an operatic conductor, Gargiulo must work in many dimensions.

"What most people don't realize," he said, "is that a symphony conductor just has to direct the orchestra. An operatic conductor has the orchestra, the principal singers, the chorus, a possible ballet, the action or the lack of it, all the varying tempos. He has to synchronize all these elements."

Gargiulo pointed out that a highly trained symphony can perform quite well without a director.

"But try it with a Verdi or Puccini opera — or any opera," he said.

In addition to his talents on the podium, Gargiulo is also a trained composer, arranger, voice coach and organist.

Yugoslavs Open Series

"Frula," a Yugoslav company of 35 dancers, singers and instrumentalists, will open the Auburn University Concert Series Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the Memorial Coliseum.

Directed by Dragoslav Dzadzevic, "Frula" is a Yugoslav Folk Ensemble on its second American tour.

A kaleidoscope of color and exciting rhythms, "Frula" has been described as a "rowdy troupe fairly brimming with good humor and youthful playfulness." The company is composed entirely of young people who dance, sing and play with enormous exuberance and energy. The authentic costumes are extraordinarily beautiful and the over-all production is free, dramatic and different."

Included on the program will be shepherd dances, dances of war, of love, of death and the gay dances of holiday festivals and religion.

Season tickets are on sale and may be purchased by mail or phone order. General admission is $3 for the series, children and high school students, $2, individual tickets will be $2.50 per performance.

Canoe-A-Thon Builds Courage and Citizenship

By Spt. James Doherty

Developing a mature masculine personality and promoting good citizenship in teenage boys is a part of the job of the Fort Benning District, Chattahoochee Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Good Time

Providing them with a good time while they are developing is a task of Bob Booth, district scout executive.

The recent 65-mile canoe-a-thon race down the Chattahoochee River from the Dolphin Marine Landing to Cowikee Landing in Eufaula is one example of the role and importance of local scouting.

Planning began last April when the Chattahoochee Council requested the Fort Benning district to sponsor the race. The activities council of the district asked the commanding general for military support and sponsorship.

Military Support

Lt. Col. Dale Liggett, deputy commander of the 10th Aviation Group, was named to coordinate the military organization within the race.

With military support assured, scout leaders began to prepare their troops with a local summer camp program of aquatic training. Several of the scouts had already earned their canoeing Merit Badges, and all were encouraged to further their skills in water safety, swimming and mental and physical fitness.

Three Legs

The second leg of the race extended from Bradley landing to Florence Marina, Ga. The third leg, begun after Protestant and Catholic Church services Sunday morning, brought the scouts 12 miles more to the Cowikee Creek landing.

50 Teams

Over 50 two-scout teams participated in this year's race, thirteen more than last year.

"The main immediate goal of the canoe-a-thon was to foster an interest in water safety," Booth said recently.

"But beyond this the race emphasized other things — citizenship in obeying the rules of the race, sportsmanship from the competition itself and esprit de corps from representing your own troop in competition with other troop units."

Planning

A sense of the need for firm planning organization was added from the strict regulations governing the conduct of the race, Booth added.

He points with pride to the effect that the race had on one of the younger scouts.

After finishing the first leg of the race, from the Dolphin Docks to Bradley Landing, the boy was reluctant to start out on the 28 miles Saturday leg of the course.

Fortitude

"The boy was almost crying when he got into the boat, but when he went ahead and did it, and then finished among the leaders in his age bracket, he had learned the value and importance of courage and fortitude," Booth explained.

First place winners in the 14 to 17 age group were William Speakman and Wayne Wahner with a total elapsed time of 11 hours and twenty minutes.

In second place were Mike Ranieri and Joe Everman.

Kelly Griswold and Andy Gatsis won first place in the 11 to 13 age group with an elapsed time of 13 hours and 23 minutes. Second went to Steve Sillie and Mitchell Hunter.

This was the seventh consecutive year that the race has been held. In addition to planning and organizational work, Fort Benning provided support boats and an evacuation helicopter from the 10th Aviation Group.

'Night for Scouting' Hopes To Interest Boys

The Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts will hold a "School Night for Scouting" in the Fort Benning-Columbus-Phenix City area from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"There will be a Cub Scout Pack and Boy Scout troop at almost every local school to interest boys and parents in the Scouting program," said Col. Earl C. Acuff, deputy assistant commandant of the Infantry School here, and chairman of the Fort Benning Boy Scout District.

Parents and boys will have an opportunity to meet with and talk to neighborhood Scout leaders at the school of their choice.

Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts will be on hand, as well as the leaders, to exhibit displays of their Scout handicrafts.

Colonel Acuff says that the Council hopes to gain three or four hundred new boys this fall. "At present we are approximately 200 below our goal, but the 'School Night for Scouting' should raise that considerably," he said.

Holloween Will Carnival

A children's Halloween Carnival will be held Oct. 31 at Gowdy Field and Doughboy Stadium.

There will be prizes, games and refreshments for the children of Fort Benning soldiers.

THE FORUM THE FOLLOW

By Marc Reiff

The rampaging New York Mets are making believers out of even the most skeptical of people. After watching the Mets wipe up the field with the Braves, you can count me as a "Believer." Someone apparently forgot to tell the Mets that they are not that good and were a 100-1 shot to take the pennant.

At this point, they could probably take on the American League All-Stars, complete with Denny McLain and all the power hitters in the league, and win. It is somewhat reminiscent of the underdog Boston Celtics playing the super Los Angeles Lakers. There was no way for those old creaking men to beat the strong, unstoppable Lakers yet we all know what happened in the championship game.

There are as many heroes on the Mets team as there are players. Noted for their weak hitting during the season, their power staggered the Braves during the series. Agee, Shamsky, Garrett and, of course, Cleon Jones, all his double their weight or close to it. The poor Atlanta pitchers must have felt that Ruth, Mantle and DiMaggio (in their prime) were hitting against them. But these players all knew their limitations and apparently the Mets do not. At the moment they do not know what the word means. For about half the season they have been talking as if they were world champs but none really took them seriously, except for a couple of thousand fanatic Mets fans.

Now it seems that a great portion of America has become Mets fans, including yours truly. While there is a good deal of sentiment involved in this decision to support them against the Baltimore Orioles, there is much to support the premise of superiority.

The recent hitting has been fabulous and the pitching adequate. Tom Seaver ended the regular season with a 25-7 mark, tops in the majors this year, and his teammate Jerry Koosman was a 17-game winner. Even young Gary Gentry looks like a real comer.

Racing Around

Fort Benning Sergeant Will Head Slalom

By 2nd Lt. Jeff Martini

This Sunday will feature the Chavaga Region Sports Car Club of America's (SCCA) monthly slalom. It will be held at the James W. Blanchard Industrial Park. That's a mouthful! It's really the abandoned airstrip section located behind the RC bottling plant off Victory Drive. Sgt. Ben Braun of Fort Benning is the Slalom master.

Braun is commo chief of the 66th Chemical Company out at Kelly Hill. He drives a classic MG-TF which is part owned by Lucas Electrics, Ltd.

Besides offering a challenging high speed slalom, Braun has garnered a Dodge Daytona Charger for the pace car! Best, I know the slalom's going to be run on an airport runway — but Dodges with wings on them do not fly! Nor for that matter do MG-TF's.

Another exotic car (of sorts), a Lotus Europa, driven by Capt. Mike Kasner will be a more serious contender for the Time of Day Trophy. Other Benning speedsters present will be RA's own SFC Snow Wilson in his Porsche, Capt. Don Health in the famed (Z-28) "Green Monster," Air Force SSgt Mike Scott in his mighty MG Midget, SpS Paul Cohen in a Lotus Elan, and Capt. Charlie Park in his AMX.

Last month's Chavaga's slalom drew over 60 entires. This week's promises to be bigger and better.

Entry fees will be the usual $4 for non-members and $3 for current SCCA members. Tech inspection begins at 11 a.m. with the first car off at 1 p.m.

In case anyone out there in "motorsports land" does not know what a slalom is, I shall explain as best I can. Slaloms, autocrosses and gymkhanas are not races per se, except against the clock. These are called "solo events" because only one car is on the course at a time (running against the clock). In SCCA slaloms the cars are paired off into classes which have been pre-determined to evenly match one car against another based on the performance, handling and engine size of the vehicle. They "Time of Day" trophy goes to the car (regardless of class) that posts the fastest time overall (or to word it another way — least amount of time spent in "circumnavigating" the course). These events are very popular in the U.S. and are usually conducted on parking lots, open fields or in the case of Chavaga Region SCCA on abandoned airport runways.

On The Scene

Last week turned out to be a big one as far as racing action goes. In Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) Trans-Am action Roger Penske's ace driver, Mark Donahue, came through to cap Chevrolet's "great "Z-28" year with icing on the cake by winning the last sporty sedan race of the year.

For Formula 1 fans Jochen Rindt of Austria won his first ever Grand Prix by outlasting the already crowned '69 World Champ, Jackie Stewart, in the U. S. Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, New York. Thanks to the rich overall purse, Jochen (pronounced Yah-KIN) pocketed $50,000.

David Pearson outlasted Richard Petty to win the 250 mile (Wilkesboro) 400 (stands for the number of laps). Pearson is now challenging Lee Roy Yarbrough for the all time Nascar money title — each has over $150,000 in Nascar prize money so far this year.

MISS ANN ROMEO

There's something other than Richard Petty to be seen at the Charlotte National 500 Sunday. It's beautiful Ann Romeo, a former National Model of the Year, and just for good measure "Miss Silhouette." Ann is a member of the elite "Race Stoppers" made up of seven nationally famous models and beauty queens who do promotional work for a national oil company. (Photo by 2nd Lt. Jeff Martini)

©1969 THE BAYONET AND J-MAR PRODUCTIONS

The Bayonet announces its annual challenge to all commands on post to try to beat our sports staff at guessing the up-coming week's football winners.

This year the Bayonet is fortunate to include among its members the inimitable PFC Predicto. Predicto is the former Army 1st Team, football lottery champ (67-68 and 68-69), Southeast Asian Command Grand National champion and Camp Swampee Soldier of the Month.

Starting with next week's issue the person on the challenging team with the highest number of correct guesses will be allowed to return to try his luck at guessing the following week's winners.

Unfortunately due to a general lack of funds there will be no monetary award (besides, it's illegal). So start your own team now and practice up with this week's big NCAA and pro games.

This week the Bayonet team challenges the Management Committee, Leadership Department, Infantry School. Next week the Bayonet will challenge TSB.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

Hunting is a great sport. Taking to the woods and fields is relaxing, healthful and provides a lot of thrills and excitement. Legal hunting also promotes good wildlife conservation by controlling overpopulation of game. Wildlife remains healthy and in balance with natural food supplies.

More than 20 million Americans participate in the sport and the number is increasing each year.

Because of the nature of the sport — safety should be our primary concern. Almost all hunting accidents can be avoided by more preparation, knowledge and care.

Before you start on a hunting trip —

Be sure you are physically fit. Too many hunters go into the woods, have a heart attack or stroke and fail to make it back to the car.

Dress comfortably, wear a red or yellow cap so other hunters will be able to see you.

Take a small first aid kit, a compass, knife or hatchet and matches in a waterproof container.

Become familiar with the area you are going to hunt. Use the map you received with your Rod and Gun Club membership to do this.

Sight in your gun before hunting. Even the best shots will have to be lucky if they don't know the shot pattern and where to "hold" at various distances.

When in the field always —

Treat every gun as if it were loaded. Never take anyone's word that a gun is empty. Check it yourself.

Be sure of your target. Never shoot at unidentified noises. Wait until the whole animal or bird is visible. Before you shoot, make sure no one is in your line of fire.

Keep the safety on or the chamber unloaded until ready to shoot. Keep your trigger finger out of the trigger guard.

Check the bore through the breech before loading to be sure it is clear of foreign objects. Make this check frequently while hunting. Be sure you have ammunition only of the proper size for the gun you carry.

Be sure the action is open when handing a gun to another person or when stopping to eat or rest.

Transport guns unloaded and in cases. Unload your gun before crossing a fence, ditch or other obstruction. Never run while holding a gun.

Carry your gun so that it is not pointing at another person. Carry the gun over your shoulder or at port.

A true sportsman recognizes the responsibilities that go with the enjoyment of the sport. He respects the property rights of others. He obtains permission of the owner before hunting on privately owned property. While hunting, he treats the property and equipment with care he would exercise if it were his own and always thanks the owner and offers part of his game before leaving. Always remember that one inconsiderate hunter can ruin the sport for many.

Unfortunately, sufficient real estate to accomodate all hunters is not always available. Such a condition exists with the dove season on the Alabama area of the reservation. The area will not accomodate all the hunters who want to hunt.

When dove hunting, there should be at least a 100-foot interval between hunters and even then extreme care must be exercised in shooting low flying birds.

When a considerate hunter finds that in order to shoot he will have to sandwich himself in between two hunters who have already taken stands, he will leave and look for another field or go home. He won't feel near as bad for having missed an afternoon of shooting as he would had he stayed and shot another hunter or was shot himself.

Hunting is a great sport when the rules of safety are observed but a day of hunting can easily turn into a tragedy if they are violated. With present conservation programs in effect, children should be taught the principles of gun safety at an early age. This knowledge will lessen the danger of gun accidents in the home, but the youngsters shouldn't be taken hunting until they are old and mature enough to hunt. To do so is just asking for trouble. During the hunting season, the woods and fields are no place to "babysit" children or hold family picnics.

Tennis Pro Still Teaches at 63

Ponce Has Found the Fountain of Youth

By 2nd Lt. James Hopson

At 63, most men are getting ready to retire. They limber their fishing rods, start reading seed catalogs and get the rocking chair reupholstered.

Not Vic Ponce. The Mexican-born officer's club tennis pro actively plays and teaches tennis, spins yarns about his years in sports and makes friends.

Recently some of Vic's friends surprised him with a birthday party at the tennis club pro shop.

Ponce's friends, all active tennis players, helped him celebrate his sixty-third birthday with refreshments and gifts. Obviously surprised by the gathering, Ponce wisecracked and joked with the 25 guests, but was clearly touched by their gestures of affection.

He stood dampeyed while Col. Robert W. Seaman, tennis committee chairman, presented him with a plaque.

"Presented to Victor Ponce in recognition of nine years of faithful and dedicated service to all tennis players at Fort Benning, Georgia," the plaque said.

Later, Ponce said, "The party was quite a surprise. I am very happy to know that they care that much."

Mrs. Barbara Jackemeyer and Mrs. Linda Robinson arranged the party.

Ponce's wife, Ofelia, their son and daughter and grandchildren were special guests.

Ponce was born in southern Mexico, September 24, 1906. He said his birthplace, the city of Merida, adjoins some of the most extensive Mayan ruins on the Yucatan Peninsula.

He received his early education in the United States, at Newton Academy, Newton, N. J., while his family lived in New York. He returned to Mexico in 1931 and remained there until 1957 when he came to Columbus to work as a pro on the municipal courts.

Ponce was a fine amateur tennis player in the 1920's and 1930's. In 1927, 1928 and 1931 he ranked among the top five players in Mexico.

During this time Ponce played several tournaments in the United States. A 1928 news clipping from the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger stated, "He (Ponce) has a fine service which carries plenty of sting. His forehand is powerful when he elects to drive or volley."

He reigned as state tennis champion of Yucatan for 25 consecutive years. Ponce came to Fort Benning in 1960.

"The idea to bring me here was to improve the place. I installed the lights, new nets, the nylon backstops, the hedge — and I'm still working to improve the courts," he said.

His name is a shortened version of Ponce de Leon, and Ponce claims to be a "poor relative" of Juan Ponce de Leon, the Spanish explorer who searched the new world for the fountain of youth.

Although his illustrious ancestor failed in his search for the secret of youth, Vic Ponce at 63 is as active and youthful as a man half his age.

"I still get around pretty fast," he said. "You'd be surprised."

Benning Hunt Club Provides Facilities for Its Members

By Spt Bob Merkin

You don't need your name in the social register or a million bucks in the bank to be a member of the horsey set at Fort Benning. In fact, all you really need is a horse — and if you don't happen to have one of those, the Fort Benning Hunt Club will be happy to rent you one.

The Hunt Club, located on Marne Road between Martin Army Hospital and Lumpkin Road, is Fort Benning's haven for horse lovers of all ages, and seldom in the club's history has a more interesting schedule been chalked on the slate. Apart from the normal riding and mounted instruction activities, the Hunt Club plans:

An overnight "Ride-Out" to the Sand Hill Recreation Area which will include camping, cooking and sports events.

A student horse show and Fall horse show.

Membership in the Fort Benning Hunt Club is open to all active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents for an initial fee of $10 and monthly dues of $4. Dependents under 18 years of age are eligible to join the Junior Hunt Club, which is dues-free.

The Hunt Club offers its members instruction in English riding, rental mounts at reduced rates and a priority basis, space for owned horses if available, group rides and activities, and the opportunity to furnish the members' knowledge of horses through association with other horse owners. In addition, its junior activities offer youngsters a chance, through the Pony Club, to compete for a place on the U.S. Olympic Equestrian Team.

Officers of the Fort Benning Hunt Club are Lt. Col. Sam A. Langley, President; Lt. Col. H. L. Wirth, Vice-President; Maj. M. F. Steele, Treasurer; Mrs. G. L. Rosensteel Jr., Secretary; and Lt. Col. M. R. Safar, Stable Officer. The Director of the Junior Hunt is Staff Sgt. Maj. M. J. Deeb, the Coordinator of Mounted Instruction is Mrs. Peg Williams and the Committee Coordinator is Maj. W. S. Roberts. The Manager of the Hunt Club in Sgt. Leonard Martin (ret.).

For information about the various activities offered by the Hunt Club, call 545-3900 or 545-2574, or write Hunt Club, P. O. Box 1924, Fort Benning, Ga., 31905, or best of all, drop in on the Hunt Club some afternoon—and get a horse.

Brynildsen and Kearns Favored To Win

Tennis Tourney Finals Scheduled for Sunday

By PFC Paul Miller

With football activities in full swing, and a great deal of attention being devoted to baseball and the World Series, one could easily tend to ignore the other sports — such as tennis.

However, this is not the case at the Fort Benning Officers Club where men and women of the military community will be taking to the courts this weekend to compete in the Officers Club Fall Tennis Tournament.

There are seven divisions in this fall's tourney including Men's Singles; Men's Class A Singles; Men's Singles; Men's Doubles; Women's Doubles; Mixed Doubles; and the Senior Men's Singles.

The tournament, which officially began last weekend, with the completion of the quarter finals Oct. 5, will go into semi-final action this Saturday.

In Men's Singles, Doug G. Bielenberg will face Gordon Brynildsen in the semi finals. The winner of that game will play Jack Justice in the Finals on Sunday.

James F. Hicks will go against Vernon B. Lewis in the semi-finals of the Class A Mens Singles. The winner will compete for the division championship against Mark S. Michelman.

In the Women's Singles, Betty Wear will play her mother, Jessie Wear, on Saturday, with the victor going against Lou Kearns in the finals.

In Mens Doubles action, Bielenberg and Justice will team up against John J. Vatral and John Leach. Leon Vanderhall and Jerry Barnhill will meet the winning team Sunday.

The semi-finals of the Women's Doubles will pit Betty Boettcher and Betty Wear against Linda Robinson and Ann Hines. The victors will play the team of Kearns and Peggy Kampe in the final action.

Mixed Doubles will feature the teams of Kearns and Allan Matthews against Robinson and Justice in the finals.

Lengoc Dau, a Vietnamese Allied Student, will face Louis Boettcher in the semi-finals of the Senior Men's Singles. In the lower bracket of that division, Albert Soifer will go against J. Owen Jacobs.

The victors will meet Sunday in championship play.

Olympic Gold Medalist Coaches for Vietnamese

WASHINGTON (ANF) — World record holder of the 70-yard dash and 1968 Olympic gold medalist, Army track star Capt. Mel Pender is now passing along his spring knowledge to future tracksters in the Republic of Vietnam.

Once dubbed "the world's fastest human" (for his 6.8-second, record-shattering sprint), Pender is a youth coordinator with Civil Operations and Revolutionary Development Support (CORDS) near Saigon where one of his Army duties includes coaching a Vietnamese track team. He is preparing the team for the December-Southeast Asian Games in Burma.

Pender, 32, began his sprint to fame and glory at 25 when he was invited to a practice meet with the Japanese Olympic track team because he was the fastest man on a post football team.

Following this meet came a long string of wins that spiralled Pender to track stardom.

A 14-fear veteran, Pender achieved all his track experience and fame while in the Army. Ten of these years were served as an enlisted man.

Infantry Board Briefs Gen. Orwin C. Talbott

By Rex Ellis

The Infantry Board conducted a briefing and demonstration for Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, at Farnsworth Range.

General Talbott was greeted upon his arrival by Col. Charles B. Thomas, Infantry Board president. Colonel Thomas briefed the general on the testing activities currently underway at the test agency and then conducted him through the various static displays and demonstrations.

Each test division chief described the specific hardware and test items in his division and test procedures used to prove the item.

It was explained that this was the Infantry's way of insuring the Infantryman that his weapons, equipment, clothing and vehicles were "Only the Best for the Finest."

Along with the static display of equipment, a "dry" operational demonstration of their function was performed for the general as he inspected the items.

In the Field Equipment Test Division, General Talbott saw the lightweight helmet, the LCE (load carrying equipment), intrenching tool, infiltrator vest, armored vest and a new lightweight bayonet scabbard.

The Supporting Weapons Test Division displayed a night sight for the M72A1 LAW (light antitank weapon); the FLASH (XM191, multishot flame weapon) which is a new development in the field of flame weaponry and the HHV (hand held viewer), a night observation device.

Some of the latest test items displayed for General Talbott by the Small Arms Test Division included the sling adaptor for the M16A1 rifle and a 30-round magazine pouch.

Watts Reenlists, Sets Example

By Spc Ron Johnson

SSgt. William Watts, reenlistment sergeant for Co. B, 1SB, The Student Bde., reenlisted for six years, setting a good example for the other members of his company.

Watts has already put 19 years into the Army and doesn't have any plans for retiring, even after he has finished the next six years.

He enlisted in the Army Nov. 20, 1950, when he was 17. His basic training and artillery advanced individual training were at Fort Polk, La., and he stayed there with the 269th Arty. for two years.

He ended his first tour at Fort Polk and was discharged. Seven days later, he decided that he liked the Army more than he had thought and reenlisted at Fort Jackson, N.C.

Watts, a native of Rome, Ga., lives in Columbus with his wife, Annie and their three children. In his spare time, he likes to fish and play basketball and football.

WAC CANDIDATES VISIT ATC

Dentist Presents Table Clinic

Dr. Charles A. Burdeshaw will present his clinic at the session which will be held in conjunction with the 57th annual meeting of the Federation Dentaire Internationale.

150 years ago, an idea took root.

In 1819, at what is now Norwich University, Military Instruction was first offered in a civilian college.

Today, Army ROTC is carrying on that tradition and has become an important resource of leadership for both national defense and civilian enterprise.

Army ROTC enables the college student to earn his commission as he earns his degree. It offers scholarships to outstanding students. And it provides leadership experience that gives ROTC graduates an edge in any career they choose.

After 150 years, a typical American idea is still growing.

AUSA Meeting

6,000 Discuss Controversies

By SFC Richard Kemp

WASHINGTON, D. C. — In an eye-to-eye confrontation with the realities of controversy and criticism, the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) this week took a hard look at the present and resolved neither America nor its soldiers will be abandoned in the future.

With the spirit of battle tested veterans, officials laid before the membership at the 15th annual meeting of the association a three day program of frank discussion of issues making front page news copy across the nation.

Some 6,000 AUSA members attended the session of the meeting at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. Oct. 13-15 to hear speakers such as Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army's Chief of Staff.

Panel discussions on the Reserve Officer Training Corps, the war in the Republic of Vietnam and the feasibility of an all-volunteer Army drew praise from the rank and file of the AUSA membership.

Roy L. Smith Sr., president of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter and head of the 60 member local delegation, said in regard to the handling of controversial issues during the meeting that it is "a healthy thing."

"We can't sweep them under the rug," Smith said.

Secretary Resor, in his key note address Monday, discussed the Vietnam commitment, the hearings before the Senate, permanent investigation in subcommittee relating to the operation of NCO Clubs and race relations in the Army.

He said, 'The Army does not view itself as an insti-

BOARD CHANGES WITH TIMES

The Infantry Board, soon to observe its 50th anniversary at Fort Benning, has come a long way in its testing of Infantry weapons and equipment. The test board has always used the still camera for recording test results, but today television cameras are also used. Television cameras provide the test officer the advantage of viewing as many as four views simultaneously of any action of the test in progress. See story and pictures on pages 20 and 21.

Hospitalized CO Greets Unit Home From Vietnam

BY MARIAN JONES

The commander of a Reserve unit which left here for the Republic of Vietnam in 1968 greeted the men from his former command upon their return Wednesday.

Maj. V. B. Roland, Atlanta, who is convalescing at Martin Army Hospital following recent surgery, welcomed the four officers and 21 enlisted men at the Columbus airport.

The men, members of the 413th Finance Section (Disbursing), had spent a year's tour in the combat zone.

Roland had last seen the Atlanta - based unit in September prior to leaving Vietnam for the United States and additional medical attention.

There to greet the returning veterans, in addition to Roland, were several wives and children who made the trip to Columbus to welcome the Reservists home, as well as a military band from Fort Benning.

While in Vietnam, the unit was based at Phu Bai where it was the first to establish a finance office that far north.

In addition to their finance duties, the men of the section helped build bunkers, establish perimeters and provide for the security of the area.

The 412th was the only finance section to be called to active duty during the Vietnam conflict.

The group also was called to active duty in 1961-62 during the Berlin crisis.

Several of the men in the section have been recommended for awards.

Prior to leaving for Vietnam, the 413th's men trained from May to October, 1968, at Fort Benning under the leadership of the Center Troop Command.

Following their welcome at Fort Benning, the group began processing toward their release from active duty.

The actual release ceremony will take place today in East Point near Atlanta. There they will be welcomed by the East Point Chamber of Commerce.

Col. William Zimmerman, local AAAA chapter president and the post's senior aviator, led the local delegation.

Col. (ret.) Russell P. Bonasso, Morgantown, W. Va., director of the Army Board for Aviation Accident Research during the period July 1968-August 1969, was named recipient of the "James H. McClellan Aviation Safety Award" for 1968-69.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

Medicinal powers were once ascribed to pepper. One ancient physician advised eating peppercorns every morning to fend off stomach aches! Use an iron to press autumn leaves between layers of waxed paper. They'll look beautiful on a buffet, under a sherbet cup or as coasters for an after-football game party.

The French have a saying for cod-crackers "be a miser with the vinegar, a philanthropist with the oil and a madman with the mixing."

Lay a large square of waxed paper, cut diagonally into quarters, over a doily on a pretty cake plate before putting a newly-baked cake in place. After cake is frosted, pull out the papers and there'll be no frosting smears on the doily.

Post Office clerks must get hungry when they sort mail going to Sandwich, N. H., Pie Town, N. M., Soft Shell, Ky., or Tomato, Ark.

Your mouth will water, too, when you see the menu at

Only you can protect your hearing.

No, it's not Smokey The Bear switching from fire prevention to hearing conservation. It's the Army telling it like it is.

Hearing loss from exposure to a continuous or intermittent steady noise over a prolonged period of time, from repeated impact noises (such as drop hammers or presses) or even from short impulse exposures (such as rifle fire) has become a hazard of the trade.

However, there is no reason for any member of the military family to encounter a hearing problem. Trainees are issued ear plugs for protection against excessive noise when they arrive at basic training centers.

Commanders also designate specific areas where wearing of ear protective devices are required and provide instructions in the proper use of available protection equipment.

By the proper use of either ear plugs or muffs or a combination of both in certain circumstances, the individual soldier can help prevent hearing loss.

Many military personnel work in an environment where the noise level is sufficient to result in hearing loss.

Areas and operations which are usually sources of hazardous noise levels include: weapons firing ranges; interiors of tanks, personnel carriers, truck cabs and other heavy equipment, aircraft engines operated on stands, aircraft in operation, electrical generator sets, machine shops, sheet metal shops, engine repair and testing shops, carpenter shops and areas where air-driven tools are used.

What Is the IG?

By MSgt. Homer Henderson

You have probably heard the statement, "I'm going to see the IG."

What is the IG? What role does he play in your Army life? How can you best register your complaints with him?

The answer to these questions can help you to arrive at a good general understanding of the IG and the best methods to solve individual problems.

Gen. George Washington established the office of the Inspector General to improve the efficiency of the Army's faltering stronghold at Valley Forge. The mission of Inspectors General, as it was developed during the intervening years, and stated today is "To inquire into and report upon matters which pertain to the performance of mission and the state of discipline, efficiency and economy of the command, installation or activity in which they serve.

"They will perform such other duties as are required by law and regulations and as directed by their commanders."

How should you present your complaint? In answering this question, you should consider the following facts.

Each member of the Army, dependent and civilian employe, has the right to register complaints, orally or in writing, with the inspector general.

Of course, you as a soldier are encouraged to discuss your problems or grievances with your unit commander first. However, anyone desiring to submit a complaint will not be required to submit to an interview prior to registering a complaint with an inspector general.

You will not be punished for registering a legitimate complaint with the IG. However, anyone who under the guise of presenting a legitimate complaint to an inspector general makes statements which are proved to be knowingly untruthful, will be subject to disciplinary action.

Anonymous complaints will be processed in the same manner as any other type, except no acknowledgement is possible. In addition to receiving complaints, inspectors general are available for assisting in the resolution of personal problems. These actions are termed "Request for Assistance" and should not be confused with complaints.

The commander of every unit in the Army is responsible for the welfare, training and employment of all personnel in his command. He is vitally concerned with insuring that his unit accomplishes all assigned missions. To do this he recognizes the importance of the individual soldier.

The commander is the key — present your problems to him and at least give him a chance to help. In most cases when you take your problem to someone else, they have to refer back to your commander for a solution to your problem.

Help yourself, the Army and your country by consulting your commander first and then if necessary, the inspector general. He is located in Bldg. 5, Main Post.

IOAC 2-70 Wives 'Lend Their Hands to Lyn'

By Mrs. Ida Evans

Forty Fort Benning ladies are engaged in a project that can be called simply, "Helping Lyn."

Wives of students in Infantry officer advanced course 2-70 are participating in an intensive therapy program to help four-year-old Bridget Lyn Raynal, a child whose brain is damaged.

Lyn is the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Norman T. Raynal. The major is a student in the advanced course and is assigned to 21st Co., 2nd Stu. Bn.

Patterning

For the past two years, Lyn has undergone a special teaching process termed "patterning," through the Institute for the Rehabilitation for the Brain-Injured in Media, Pa.

Patterning is a process, done in the home, whereby normal portions of the brain are taught to assume the functions of the injured portions.

Lyn is put through a daily 10-hour schedule of specified activities designed to develop her mobility, language and manual and visual competence as well as her auditory comprehension and tactile senses.

Normal

The purpose of the program is to help Lyn learn to lead a more normal life.

Volunteers are essential to the success of this type of program, since patterning requires three people at each of six specified sessions a day.

The wives of the student officers have worked with the Raynals to set up this program and at least forty of them have volunteered their time and services to help with the patterning.

Lend Hands

Anyone who is willing to spend 45 minutes a week "lending their hands to Lyn" may volunteer by telephoning Mrs. Raynal at 545-2408.

An orientation for volunteers will be arranged in time to resume Lyn's patterning program Monday.

The Raynals live at 117 Baltzell Ave., Fort Benning.

Mrs. Barbara Diamond Dental Hygienist

Preventive Dentistry Brushes Away Decay

The Dental Unit of Fort Benning began its school preventive dentistry program in the Edward White School.

Under command of the post dental surgeon, Col. Jack P. Pollock, a "Brush - In" was initiated as an aggressive attack against dental caries and other dental ills.

This is a follow up of the original program started last spring with about three-fourths of the post school enrollment. The remaining students had received a preventive dentistry treatment in the mobile dental van on an individual basis which is very slow compared to the classroom "brush-in" method.

Preventive Dentistry

Following the completion of Edward White School all other post schools will also participate in this preventive dentistry program. The program is directed by the Dental Unit's Preventive Dentistry Officer, Lt. Col. Silas M. Crase, and is under the direct supervision of dental hygienist from the Dental Unit.

All students in a classroom will brush their teeth as a group with a special 9 per cent stannous fluoride paste following instructions of the dental hygienist. Within 30 minutes the entire classroom of 25, 30 or 35 students can self-apply this highly effective means of caries prevention as compared to 30 minutes required for individual students previously.

Each student has at the desk a toothbrush, a cup of water for rinsing, an empty cup to expectorate in, paper towels and the special stannous fluoride preventive paste. After the self-application students are advised to use one of the stannous fluoride toothpaste for their daily brushing. All materials are supplied by the Dental Unit except the toothbrush kits and educational literature which are supplied by the Fort Benning Community Activities Association.

It is anticipated approximately 4,000 students will self-apply this caries preventive treatment by early November. During the classroom dental screening students evidencing an accumulation of tartar or calculus receive a referral for obtaining a prophylaxis appointment in the Preventive Dentistry Clinic.

All children participating in the program must have a signed consent slip from their parent or guardian.

Naturalization Help for Wives Scheduled

A special 6-week class will be presented by the Army Community Service to foreign born wives of servicemen stationed at Fort Benning in order to help them prepare for their naturalization examination.

These citizenship classes are scheduled to begin Oct. 25 and will contain a special emphasis on United States history and government. In addition, there will be lectures, written examinations and group discussions.

UGF On Way To Goal

With $81,966.49 having been donated thus far in the post United Givers Fund drive, it appears that Fort Benning is well on the way toward collecting its goal of $205,000.

According to James Schoonover of the Community Activities Association, the agency coordinating the drive at Fort Benning, the amount represents 40 per cent of the goal and compares favorably with donations made last year and the year before.

Units having donated 100 per cent or more of their goal as of 6 p.m., Oct. 15 are: Airborne Department, Dental Unit, Educational Development Office, Range Control, Inspector General, Information Office, Human Resources Research Office (Division 4), and the Competitive Marksmanship Unit (Provisional).

Big Red One Hopes To Aid Daughters

The Fort Benning branch of the First Infantry Division is planning a drive to raise scholarship money for daughters of Big Red One members killed in combat.

The Benning drive, which will commence Dec. 1 and close in February 1970, is part of a national campaign to expand the division's scholarship program.

The Big Red One has for the last three years awarded over 500 scholarships to sons of killed members of the division. With new funds, the division hopes to also provide scholarships for daughters.

Details on the fund drive will be discussed at the fall meeting of the Fort Benning Branch Society of the First Division. The meeting will take place at 6 p.m. Oct. 29 at the Country Club.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, will speak at the meeting.

Donations to the scholarship drive should be made payable to "Sons of the First Division Scholarship Fund" and mailed to Fort Benning Branch, Society of the First Division, P.O. Box 1626, Fort Benning.

Tackaberry Sons Win Honors

By Capt. George B. Utter

Another chapter was written in the long military history of the Tackaberry family as 2nd Lts. Burt S. and Kief S. Tackaberry, twin sons of Col. and Mrs. Thomas H. Tackaberry, Clearwater, Fla., were graduated as the distinguished Honor Graduates of Ranger Class 3-70.

The graduation took place at the Florida Ranger Camp, Eglin AFB, Fla. Not only were the newly commissioned Officer Candidate School graduates the Honor Graduates, but they also had identical scores upon completion of the Ranger course.

To qualify as the Distinguished Honor Graduate a student must amass a total of 883 points of 1,050 available in the grueling eight and a half week course for the Army's small unit leaders. Col. Y. Y. Phillips, the Ranger Department director, awarded the Army Ranger tab to the two officers.

Also, the twins each received the William O. Darby award from the Ranger Battalions Association, a plaque from the Association of the United States Army, a letter of commendation from the assistant commandant of the Infantry School, a subscription to Infantry magazine, and a Ranger guidon.

The Tackaberry family has a long and proud tradition in the service of its country. At present, Colonel Tackaberry is commander of the 196th Infantry Brigade in Vietnam. Others in the Tackaberry line include their grandfather, Maj. Gen. Homer W. Kiefer and their great-grandfather Brig. Gen. R. J. Burt, a veteran of the Spanish - American War. Also, their great - great-grandfather, Andrew Sheridan Burt, served as a general officer during the Indian Wars.

The young Infantry officers are now undergoing Airborne training and then will be assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Radio Course Cites Graduate

Anthony P. Lagadi of Dallas, Tex., a member of company "H" of the Infantry School Bde. was named as an honor graduate of the Field Radio Mechanics Course at Infantry Hall.

In recognition of his achievement Lagadi was promoted to the rank of private first class and given a letter of recommendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Upon graduation, Lagadi was sent to Fort Gordon, Ga., for further training in the electronics field.

35 Scouts Squeal At Clown's Antics

Laughter and squeals of delight marked one Columbus Day celebration as 35 cub scouts and brownies discovered Melvin the Magic Clown at Sand Hill Service Club.

Featured performer of the afternoon, the clown (SSgt. Erwin Storke) mingled with the crowd before presenting a 30-minute magic show. The sergeant, whose 26-year-career as a magician has included a command performance of the king and queen of Thailand, fascinated his scout audience with sleight-of-hand, jokes and his clownish appearance.

Trainees supervised carnival amusements for the youngsters, including a ring toss, poker-chip toss and milk-bottle throw. Each scout kept a combined score sheet, and after every child had finished all the events winners were awarded prizes.

Later, the scouts played bingo and enjoyed a carnival supper of hot dogs, cake and punch.

German Sergeant Major Earns Airborne Wings

By Sp4 Paul Miller

Sgt. Maj. Hans Juergen Kuellmer, a member of the German Army, recently completed American Airborne training here.

The soldier sat smiling at his desk as he recalled some of the experiences of his two and a half year tour at Fort Benning.

Above the pocket of his khaki uniform the sergeant major proudly displayed the silver parachute and wings of the American Airborne, but the German element was still present . . present in the unfamiliar insignia on his shoulders and in the portraits of the German chain-of-command on the wall behind him.

Kuellmer, born in Hamburg and raised in Kassel, West Germaoy, came to America in 1967 to assume the duties of aide to Lt. Col. Karl-Horst von Wulffen, German liaison officer at Fort Benning. Although the sergeant major is in actuality an aide or assistant, the colonel refers to him simply as "my sergeant major."

The thirteen year veteran of the German Army explained that he had received an invitation from Sgt. Maj. J. LaVoie, of the Airborne department, asking him to participate in the three week parachute training.

SGT. MAJ. KUELLMER

"I liked the idea," he said. "I, of course, had to request permission from the colonel and my superiors in Germany and the Infantry School.

"American soldiers are fortunate in that they have an opportunity to volunteer for Airborne training," noted Kuellmer. "In Germany you can volunteer for German Airborne training, but unless you are assigned to an Airborne unit, you will not be accepted."

"Both Germany and America have very good armies," said the sergeant major. "However, Americans are able to receive more extra training to make them more efficient soldiers . . . such as Rangers and Special Forces."

In discussing the Ranger School program, Kuellmer pointed out that Germany now had training similar to this, but the cycle was not quite as long.

The high ranking enlisted man praised the American hospitality he received when he arrived here. "They picked us up at the airport. . and took us to a house that was already prepared and furnished for us. They even had food ready," he explained.

Problems Discussed

tution of social reform. That is not our charge. But we cannot ignore the realities of the society in which we live. If ignored, its realities can lessen our ability to defend the nation."

General Westmoreland cited the lessons learned in Vietnam as the sign post of the evolutionary past leading to present and future achievement.

He also spoke of the troubles faced by the Army today.

"Today once again the fundamental principles of our profession — the pillars of discipline on which the Army is built — the trust and confidence that have traditionally motivated the soldier — are being questioned. We cannot this time wait for a call to action. The problems that we must address exist within our own ranks. . we share them with the entire nation," General Westmoreland stated.

He added, "The Army is as dedicated now as it has been for nearly two centuries . . . dedicated to the preservation of our way of life. In guarding this trust, we have never failed. What more could a nation ask of its soldiers?"

Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., Army vice chief of staff, spoke to cadets at the association's ROTC luncheon on Monday.

He talked of racial tension and conflict, of the anti-military arguments sensationalized in newspapers and on television and of the ROTC on college campuses.

"As citizens, taxpayers and thinking, free men in our own right, we must all give these very pertinent questions the attention they deserve," General Palmer said.

25% Fees Increase Set For AUSA Members

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A 25 per cent increase in Association of the United States Army (AUSA) membership fees will go into effect April 1, 1970, according to Frank Pace Jr., AUSA national president.

Pace made the fees increase announcement in his annual report at the opening session of the association's 15th annual meeting in Washington, D. C.

The annual cost for a one-year membership will rise from $6 to $7.50, Pace said, with the cost for a three-year membership going to $20.

Dues for cadet memberships will be hiked from $4 to $5 annually.

Rifle Volleys Crack...

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

The early morning silence is broken by the flapping canopy over the yawning grave and the muffled sobs of a bereaved family.

Suddenly, rifle volleys crack in the morning air, followed by the slow heart-rending notes of taps.

The military funeral ends and the family slowly leaves the cemetery.

The seemingly impersonal conclusion of the grave-side ceremony must then take place. The casket must be lowered into the ground, and the grave must be filled with dirt.

This scene takes place approximately eight to ten times a month at the Fort Benning Post Cemetery, where the 7.71 acre burial site has filled rapidly since the first interment in the cemetery.

The first burial here was for a murder victim allegedly named William S. Hart. He was later identified as Pvt. William De Haven.

Since 1922, over 2,964 American servicemen and their dependents have been buried in the Post Cemetery.

The gravestones are uniform in thumbnail-like design. A close look reveals a slight difference in Confederate and Spanish-American War headstones. Today's "standard" headstones are ordered and shipped from a marble company in Tate, Ga.

A separate section of the cemetery has been set aside for persons who have been cremated.

The interments have not been restricted entirely to American service. There are 44 German Prisoners of War buried there, including Lt. Willibald Barowitz.

There are also eight Italian prisoners of war. These prisoners all came from a four-state area, including prisoner of war camps in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia. The 52 men were disinterred from graves at various camps at the close of the World War II and reburied at Fort Benning.

Five Chinese Air Force officers are also buried in the Post Cemetery. These men lost their lives in three separate flying accidents. They were exchange Allied students attending schools in the United States. Two were stationed in Florida and three were stationed here.

Within the cemetery walls lie those who have served their country honorably.

Outside the wall, two lone headstones rest and they very often go completely unnoticed by cemetery visitors.

These headstones mark the graves of two soldiers who were hanged. These men were, reportedly, Pvt. John O'Connor and Pvt. Curn L. Jones.

O'Connor, convicted of killing a prison guard in 1944, was hanged in 1944. Convicted of stabbing an officer candidate in downtown Columbus, Jones was also hanged in 1944.

The cemetery wall, erected in 1930, has deteriorated to the extent that it will be more economical to replace it rather than repair it, officials said. The old brick wall will be torn down and a new cyclone fence approximately six feet high will be erected. Over entranceways on Benning Boulevard and Custer Road will be wrought iron archways designating the "Post Cemetery, Fort Benning Georgia."

Approximately four months ago, a flagpole was erected at the Cemetery. Previously, if the body of a soldier was on the Post awaiting burial, the Main Post flag, located in front of the Infantry Hall, could be lowered half staff. Now, the flag at the cemetery is lowered one half hour prior to the interment and raised one half hour afterward and the Main Post flag remains at full staff.

A new facility is the cemetery office which serves as custodian's office, rest stop, and an information stop for visitors.

The cemetery is open to visitors seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Someone will be on duty at the office during these hours.

According to Lt. Col. John C. Dixon, chief, Quartermaster Services Branch, military can no longer reserve burial plots in the Post Cemetery because of the "tremendous lack" of space.

"Those people with reserved areas prior to a regulation dated June, 1967, which disallows reservations, have been permitted to keep their plots and their agreements are still honored," he said.

Discussing eligibility for burial in the Post Cemetery, the chief of Quartermaster Services Branch noted, "In general, active and retired military their spouses and dependents are eligible to be buried in the cemetery."

"Dependents are eligible up to the age of 21 years, or until marriage, which ever comes first," Dixon said.

He explained that a widow may be interred with her husband if she does not remarry. If she remarries, she then loses her eligibility to be buried with her first husband. However, if her second husband is a military man, then she is again eligible to be buried in the military cemetery. A special agreement must be made with the service member when it is necessary to inter a dependent.

Dixon also said a veteran is eligible to be buried here if his dependent has already been buried in the post cemetery.

The cemetery superintendent, Quarter Master Services Branch, is responsible for the records, opening and close the graves, maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery, and coordination with the bereaved family.

The Survival Assistance Branch, Adjutant General Section, works directly with the family coordinating their wishes with the Services Office in cases involving active and retired service members. A survivor assistance officer is not appointed for dependents.

Third Electronics Teacher Ranks First at Academy

FORT McCLELLAN, Ala.—For the third time in nine months, the honor graduate of the Third Army NCO Academy here has been an electronics instructor from the Infantry School's Communications-Electronics Department at Fort Benning.

SFC Danny J. McDanell, an instructor in the radio mechanic course, completed the strenuous, six-week course with a 92.8 average to become one of three students to equal the all time high ever attained at the academy.

During ceremonies held here, McDanell, in addition to his graduation certificate, earned the academy's honor student plaque and was presented with a letter of commendation from the Infantry School's deputy assistant commandant, Col. E. C. Acuff.

By virtue of a recent Department of Army message, McDanell, who entered the course as a staff sergeant, also received an automatic promotion to sergeant first class.

In addition to McDanell's top honors, the Communications - Electronics Department also placed one of its NCO's in the second ranking position for the class.

SSgt. Richard R. Armstrong, the assistant operations sergeant for his department, completed the course with a 91.8 average.

Commenting on the course, McDanell said, "It's really a fine course which will benefit me in many ways. I am very grateful for the opportunity to attend this outstanding academy. And for me it was a special opportunity."

The NCO Academy which takes its enrollment from all Third Army installations, fosters leadership, tactics, methods of instruction and physical conditioning.

According to Lt. Col. Robert S. Cook, commandant of the academy here, "The men who graduate from our course are specifically oriented toward the problems of small unit leadership in garrison type organizations."

Colonel Cook went on to point out that the academy lays considerable emphasis on such subjects as unit readiness preventive maintenance, command maintenance management inspections and unit operations and training.

MESS HALL WINS AGAIN

"Your mess hall has been named the best in the brigade for the fourth time this year," said Col. Robert T. Richmood, Training Center 2nd Bde. commanding officer, as he awarded the brigade's monthly Best Mess Plaque to Co. C, 9th Bn. Accepting the plaque for the second consecutive time is SSgt. Harold O. Williams, mess steward. If the company wins the rotating plaque once more this year, they will keep the award permanently.

Seminar Discusses Trainee Counseling

By PFC Ron Argo

How do you help a trainee when it gets to a situation where he needs counseling? Do you call mental hygiene or the chaplain first?

In an effort to make drill sergeants become more sensitive to the needs of trainees, the last of an eight-session Drill Sergeant Counseling Seminar was held at Chapel 3, Sand Hill.

Initiated by Col. Richard H. Maeder, commanding officer of the 1st Bde., Training Center, and set up by Capt. Ben Bradley, brigade chaplain, the seminars consisted of groups of 25 drill sergeants, personnel from the Fort Benning Mental Hygiene Clinic and chaplains discussing the problems and methods of counseling trainees, using video taped films as a format.

The films are actual cases of trainees who did not object to being taped during the counseling sessions at Mental Hygiene Clinic.

"The problems these trainees have may not seem valid to us," Chaplain Bradley said, "but we must remember that they are real to them. Hopefully we will become more aware of how to recognize and solve these problems."

The seminar was coordinated between the 1st Bde. Chaplain section and the Mental Hygiene Clinic. Participating with Chaplain Bradley in the program are Capt. Robert Mask, brigade chaplain, and two mental hygiene specialists. The seminar is a 1st Bde. project but will soon be conducted throughout the Training Center.

"The drill sergeant is in a better position to spot the trainee's problem than either the chaplain or mental hygiene," said Chaplain Bradley. "We hope that these seminars will help drill sergeants become more aware of human problems in general."

Another seminar is scheduled to be held in two months covering the subjects of depression and suicidal attempts of the trainee.

ATC Training Battalion Wins Trophies, Plaques

The Training Center's (ATC) 9th Bn. has made a clean sweep of 2nd Bde. awards, lining up the Brigade Champions Trophy for 1969 Organization Day activities, the Commander's Trophy for lowest quarterly AWOL rate, the brigade's Best Mess Plaque and the Highest Quarterly Re-enlistment Plaque.

"It's a first so far as I can recall," said 9th Bn. Sgt. Maj. Nathan Hoover who was among those who activiated the Training Center in 1965.

Viewing the assembled awards in the battalion headquarters, former commander Lt. Col. William G. Carter noted, "all of our people had a part in accomplishing this."

He has relinquished command of the battalion to Lt. Col. Dean D. Mulder, formerly 2nd Bde. executive officer.

Holliday Chosen Top Graduate

Robert O. Holliday Jr. of Larkspur, Calif., was the distinguished and top academic graduate of Infantry Officer Candidate Class No. 32-69 here.

Guest speaker was Col. Lawrence L. Mowery, director of the Ground Mobility Department, Infantry School. Colonel Mowery discussed "The Art of Low Command," techniques to be used by the lieutenant at his level of command.

He explained that this "art" involves three distinct stages — decision, explanation and enforcement.

Holliday, for his achievement, received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an Association of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque and a "Follow Me" statuette.

General Presents 10 Awards

By MARIAN JONES

In an incentive awards presentation ceremony held at Infantry Hall, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, presented awards to ten individuals.

In recognition of outstanding service as chairman of volunteers, American Red Cross, Mrs. Lea H. Thomas was presented the Department of the Army Outstanding Civilian Service Award.

According to the citation, it is through Mrs. Thomas efforts in developing and leading the Red Cross volunteer program at Martin Army Hospital, the post dental clinic and the post veterinarian clinic that Fort Benning is recognized as having one of the most outstanding volunteer programs in the Army.

The Department of the Army decoration for meritorious civilian service was presented to Thomas H. Thornell for meritorious performance as chief, radiological technologist, Martin Army Hospital.

Thornell's citation credits his technical knowledge of radiographic equipment as being of extreme importance in the development of the special procedures radiographic suite in the Radiology Department. He is also cited for mastering the critical task of transporting seriously injured patients from the emergency room to radiology service by designing and obtaining construction of special equipment that allows patients to be X-rayed without additional moving that might aggravate the injury.

Receiving an intial award of $1,000 for an adopted suggestion was Chief Warrant Officer Mars Wampler of the adjutant general's office.

Wampler's suggestion proposed the implementation and utilization of additional procedures by the Transfer Point when auditing military leave records.

Adoption of his suggestion has assured positive methods of identifying unrecorded leave thus precluding overpayment to discharged personnel. The suggestion resulted in an estimated annual savings of $428,888 as verified by Army audit.

Other personnel receiving awards for adopted suggestions submitted through the cost reduction program were Bobby L. Brown, Field Printing Plant, Office of the Director of Operations and Logistics, Infantry School; Jesse M. Tew, Training Center; Hollis W. Pope, Directorate of Operations and Training; Albert C. Brissette and Charley L. King, Directorate of Communications and Electronics; Mrs. Thelma C. McNabb, Nonresident Instruction Department, Infantry School, and Sp5 Steven R. Ross, Investigation Section, Provost Marshal's Office.

ROTC Officer--Part I

Colonel Lists Advantages For ROTC College Grad

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Army is now observing the 150th anniversary of military instruction on civilian college campuses. Military instruction at a civilian college was first offered in 1918 at Norwich University in Vermont. The following article is the first of a series of stories on Fort Benning officers who were commissioned through the ROTC program.)

* * *

By Sp5 John Klopf

College is looked upon by most people as the climax of their educational experience, but to the ROTC college graduate, it can be just the beginning.

Many officers at Fort Benning have discovered this and one outstanding example is Lt. Col. Charles R. Rawlings, G-1 at the Army Training Center, who has attended seven Army schools since graduation from college.

Colonel Rawlings, who came to the Army Training Center last year, was asked recently for his views on military instruction on the college campus.

"I feel there are definite advantages a ROTC graduate has over his other college classmates," said Rawlings. "First of all, ROTC teaches the individual more about leadership and gives him a chance to exercise it at an earlier age.

"Also, I've noticed that ROTC students are more disciplined in their study habits and tend to care more about their personal appearance than the average college student."

When asked about the advantages of different types of commissions, Rawlings said he felt ROTC students could adapt more easily to the military environment because "many of the ROTC instructors are officers and the class atmosphere itself is military."

Colonel Rawlings graduated from Texas A & M University, College Station, Tex., with a B.A. degree in physical education in 1953. He participated in the four-year ROTC program there and was a distinguished military graduate, achieving the rank of cadet major his senior year. In his second year he was voted best drill sophomore in his class.

Auction To Help Handicapped

Want to buy a TR3?

How about a 35-foot long telephone pole?

If that doesn't suit your needs how about a slightly used television set or an air conditioner?

These are just a few of the items now being collected for an auction by parents whose children attend the Douglas school in Columbus. The auction will be held Saturday night, Nov. 1, at the Port City Auction.

Established only last June, in what was a former Muscogee County stockade, the Douglas School is what some parents, many of whom are stationed at Ft. Benning, describe as "an answer to our prayers."

"We would have had to commit our six-year-old son to a state-operated school for the deaf," commented Mrs. Ann J. Wilsou who added, "but with the school's individual, and small group instruction, he is getting the love and affection he so desperately needs at his age —and an education geared to his handicap."

Mrs. Wilson as well as other parents of both normal and handicapped children, feels that the Douglas School, with its emphasis on having children learn at a rate stimulating and satisfying to them meets her child's special needs.

The Douglas School, a non profit, non-denominational institution, recognizing this added burden, usually to families who can least affprd it, is doing its best to keep costs to the bare minimum.

"But the school needs more special quipment," says Mrs. William L. Shackleford, the wife of an Army major, whose son is handicapped by cerebral palsy, "so we are having the auction to raise funds. And, in addition to needing people to attend the auction, we need items donated for the auction itself."

Those interested in donating items should call the Douglas School at 687-1076 advised Mrs. Shackleford.

"We don't care how big, or small, it is," she added. "We'll find a way of picking it up."

Infantry Board To Observe . . .

By Rex Ellis

The Infantry Board will observe its half century milestone and "Golden Anniversary" of testing at Fort Benning this coming week.

The board, although observing its 50th year here, is actually 66-years-old.

It was a little more than a year after the guns of World War I were stilled in 1919 when the War Department issued its order to relocate the board at Fort Benning, then Camp Benning.

Board's Motto

Foreseeing the need of an agency to test and prove Infantry equipment early in this century, the War Department originally established the Infantry Board in March, 1903, at the U.S. Army General Service and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The sole function of the board was to "consider with continuity of effort the improvement of the Infantry."

The board's motto "Only The Best For The Finest" describes its mission of testing and proving the quality of all the weapons, equipment, clothing and vehicles used by the Infantry. The board insures through testing that the best weapons and equipment that man can conceive and develop are available for the man in battle.

Combat Conditions

The Infantry material test board, a subordinate test activity of the Army Test and Evaluation Command, performs its vital functions here on the terrain, on various bodies of water and on the ranges.

The testing of all items is conducted under conditions as close to combat as possible. At the conclusion of testing an item, the board makes its recommendations as to suitability for Army use.

During the past fiscal year, the test board has conducted 33 tests which included 11 service tests, five military potential tests, five product improvement tests and 12 other assorted tests.

Load Tests

Some of the items tested included TOW, the anti-tank missile weapon; a lightweight intrenching tool; the XM203 weapon system which combines the M16A1 rifle with an attached pump 40mm grenade launcher; a LAW trainer; a new jungle boot; a foxhole cover and various reduced visibility and night vision sights.

The board has also been conducting tests on reducing the soldier's load through project LINCLOE (light-whose sole function was to consider the improvement of the Infantry, the board's studies and recommendations enable the Infantry to match or surpass its equipment with that of foreign armies.

Unique Position

Except in the rarest of emergencies, no article of equipment for the Infantry soldier is adopted except after exhaustive study and test by the board and many articles now standard equipment owe their final design to the Infantry material test board.

Whether he shoots it, rides it, sleeps in it, eats it, wears it or uses it in some manner in combat conditions, the Infantryman is using some item of equipment that has been tested for him by the Infantry Board.

The test activity occupies a unique position at Fort Benning. Its 38 officers and warrant offices, 105 enlisted men and 47 civilian employes work at the post but are otherwise a separate unit.

'Who's Who'

The board is a tenant organization and one of 15 proving grounds, service test boards and environmental test centers of the Test and Evaluation Command, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

The Infantry Board has a rich history and a succession of its tests would be like reading "Who's Who" of American Infantry. The board tested the old Springfield 03 and in 1916 was conducting a test to determine the "Musketry Role" and a service test of the Colt Pistol. Then along in 1917 came a test of the armored car and in 1918 the Lewis Machinegun and the Garand and Thompson automatic weapons.

Throughout the board's long history many distinguished Infantrymen have served as its members. Among these are Gens. of the Army George C. Marshall and Omar Bradley and Gen. Courtney Hodges. Col. Charles B. Thomas is the current president of the test board and Col. Robert A. Robbins is the deputy president.

The testing of equipment and clothing is conducted by three material test divisons. They are the Small Arms Test Division under the guidance of Lt. Col. Arthur Wichmann, the Field Equipment Test Division under the direction of Lt. Col. Carl C. Busdiecker and the Supporting Weapons Test Division with Lt. Col. Henry Adams as its chief.

A fourth test division, the Combat Conditions Test Division, has a mission of developing simulated combat conditions for testing new equipment and clothing. This division is directed by Lt. Col. John Milton.

Fort Benning Major, Wife To Star in Springer Show

BY MARIAN JONES

When "Wait Until Dark," Springer Theater's chilling new production, opens Oct. 30, the male and female lead act will be shared by a Fort Benning husband-wife team, Maj. and Mrs. Gary Ramage.

The list of credentials they bring with them to Columbus theater world is impressive.

A native of California, as is her husband, Margo Ramage is a graduate of Pasadena Playhouse—one of the finest schools of acting in the country.

A struggling actor before he was drafted, Ramage has starred in productions on the west coast including the Glendale Center Theater and the Pasadena Playhouse. He starred in the west coast premiere of "Compulsion."

The Ramages met in Hollywood, Calif., when Ramage attended a play in which his wife-to-be was starring. He was on leave prior to coming to Fort Benning and Officer Candidate School.

This is the first production in which they have shared acting duties.

The Ramages do not find that working together under the special pressures of rehearsals and curtain calls creates any particular friction in their marriage. "In fact, having someone in the cast you know well makes things easier, especially in the early days of rehearsal," explained Ramage.

This frightening play, which fittingly opens the night before Halloween, involves a blind girl, Susy Hendricks, played by Margo, and the efforts made by three men to find a doll filled with heroin that they believe she has in her possession. "It is a challenging role, ideal for a woman," Margo stated.

The difficulty and challenge the role presents is evidenced by the two actresses, Lee Remick and Audrey Hepburn, who have played the same role —Miss Remick on Broadway and Miss Hepburn in the movie version.

Army Field Band To Play Monday

By PFC Paul Miller

The internationally famous U.S. Army Field Band of Washington, D.C. will perform in concert Monday at 8 p.m. in the Three Arts Auditorium, 1020 Talbotton Road, Columbus.

The concert is part of Fort Benning's role in the celebration of the 200th anniversary of Army bands. Thomas Gargiulo, formerly musical director at Special Services here, will act as guest conductor.

The Field Band, known as the "Kings of the Highway", is the official touring musical representative of the Department of the Army. A distinguished member of Congress aptly described it as being "a great instrument for stirring public emotion."

Two Major Tours

The band, organized on March 21, 1946, travels thousands of miles each year on at least two major concert tours, and is considered by music critics to be one of the most proficient and distinctive musical organizations now appearing before the public.

Also appearing with the Field Band will be the famed Soldiers' Chorus, made up of twenty highly-trained and talented vocalists under the direction of Sgt. Maj. Gene Coughlin of Detroit Lakes, Minnesota. The chorus presents its own special arrangements of well-known compositions at each Field Band performance.

The band has earned considerable fame outside the United States on three tours sponsored by the Department of the Army and the State Department. The first of these tours included eight countries in the United Kingdom and Europe, and was highlighted by performances at London's Royal festival Hall, and the opening of the Edinburg Music Festival.

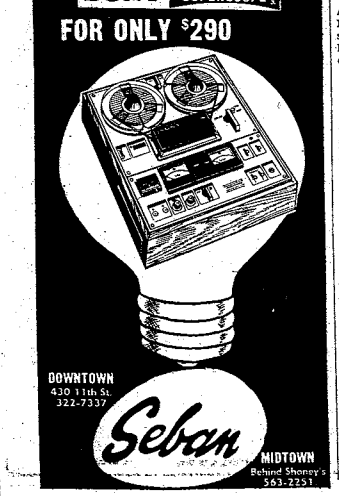
In Europe

Major concerts were also presented in the Olympic Stadium in Berlin, Luxembourg Gardens in Paris and the Concert Hall in Amsterdam.

Following a concert in York England, John Blunt of the Yorkshire Evening Press wrote. "...115 men in a park did more good for their country in 90 minutes than the pronouncements of their statesmen could do, perhaps, in as many months."

In addition to its many concert tours the Field Band is called upon to participate in a variety of ceremonial events. The group has marched in five Presidential Inaugural parades, escorted the President on special occasions and played for many visiting heads-of-state.

Tickets for the concert at the Three Arts Theater Monday are free and available through the Special Services Office and the Information Office, Room 504, Infantry Hall.



'FUNNY GIRL'

Academy Award Winner Barbra Streisand as Fanny Brice and Omar Sharif, the playboy-gambler to whom she is wed, star in "Funny Girl" now playing in Columbus. "Funny Girl" co-stars Kay Medford, Anne Francis and Walter Pidgeon.

Magician Storke To Enliven Halloween Festival

By SpS Ken Sturzenacker

But, under any name the Halloween Festival at Fort Benning will feature a bit of "two-for-the-price-of-one", magic and a clown-magician who has performed throughout the world.

The festival is scheduled for 4:30-9:30 p.m. Oct. 31 on Gowdy Field and at Doughboy Stadium.

SSgt. Storke

The magician is SSgt. Erwin Melvin Storke, assigned to Co. G, Infantry School Bn., The Student Bde. Storke works in the office of the secretary, Infantry School.

As a magician, he has performed for thousands in organizations and clubs both stateside and overseas, including a command performance for the Queen of Thailand in 1958.

Included in his scrapbook are letters of appreciation and thanks from many people, including Princess Prem-Purchant of Thailand.

Bangkok

That letter was addressed to both Storke and his wife, Kanya, for their performance for the crippled children at Siriraj Hospital in Bangkok.

He later performed for the children of the Little Flower Orphanage in Pusan, Korea, where he was stationed during the war.

The magician is also the clown — the costume and comedy part being added to the act many years after his start as a magician.

Rotund Personality

Storke adopted the clown's outfit and the light touch on the advice of a couple of professional friends, who pointed out that his rotund shape and outgoing personality led people to expect a funny act.

Now depending on his audience, Storke can perform either as a magician or as a clown-magician, a guise which helps intrigue the younger set.

As Melvin the Magic Clown performs for the Halloween Festival Oct. 31, he will add another show to the many he has already presented for post personnel.

Costume Prizes

But his approach is always new; his ability to win an audience's applause, constant; and his desire to spread some happiness, sincere.

Other highlights of the festival include a costume parade. Prizes will be awarded in three different categories for two age groups.

They run a kind of U.S.O.

United Air Lines people try to make "U.S.O." stand for "United — Soonest Out."

They work for the airline with the world's largest jet fleet, providing more flights and more seats to more U.S. cities than any other airline. They're more likely to have a seat for you, sooner.

And they're interested in you. They're against "hurry and wait." They want to help you save precious leave-time.

They'll reserve a seat in advance, at only 3½ regular Coach fare, for any U.S. service man or woman. Or they'll board you standby for ½ fare. Just show up in uniform with a copy of your leave orders.

Check first with United, the airline with the big lift and the friendly people who want to give you a lift when you need it.

Keep up the good work, U.S.O., on behalf of the 3½ million men and women in our Armed Forces. U.S.O. is for someone you know a long way from home.

fly the friendly skies of United.
"United's Sure Obliging."

Kearns Wins Ladies Title

Brynildsen Takes Club Tennis Tournament

By PFC Paul Miller

Gordon Brynildsen copped the Men's Singles Division of the Officer's Club Fall Tennis Tournament in action at the Newgarden Tennis courts Oct. 12.

Brynildsen overwhelmed Doug G. Bielenberg (6-1, 6-0) in semi-final play Saturday, and then moved on to take Jack Justice in the finals (6-0, 6-2).

The females took to the courts in Women's Singles, with top seeded Lou Kearns walking off with the honors. She downed Betty Wear (6-1, 6-1) in the semi-finals, and eliminated. Ann Hines (6-4, 6-0) in the championship play.

The men's Doubles Division was won by the team of Bielneberg and Justice as they defeated Allan Matthews and John Shuford (6-3, 6-3).

Kearns and Matthews teamed up to overtake Linda Robinson and Justice in Mixed Doubles play.

Once again Kearns proved victorious in Women's Doubles action, paring up with Peggy Kampe. Kearns and Kampe downed the team of Robinson and Hines (6-3, 6-4) to take the honors.

Class 'A' Men's Single honors went to Vernon B. Lewis who defeated Mark Micheman Oct. 14 6-2 and 6-1.

Lengoc Dau, a South Vietnamese Allied Student, won the Senior Men's Singles by downing J Owen Jacobs (6-2, 6-0).

Distaff Golfer Beats Husband

It's bad enough to get beaten by your wife, but the way Maj. Carter Morey took it on the chin Sunday was just about as bad as can happen.

On the 16th hole of the Pineside Course at Fort Benning Country Club, Morey put his first shot only six inches from the cup. But his wife Pat aced the 107-yard, par-3 hole with a six iron.

Playing with the Moreys were CWO Les Wood and wife Sequel.

Rule Books Available

The Fort Benning Golf Committee announces that the new local rule book for the Officers Club Golf Course has been published and is available at the Golf Pro Shop, Bldg. 390.

Members of the Club are encouraged to pick up a copy and become familiar with the new rules.

PFC Predicto Predicts Weekend Games

Sparked by a 100 per cent forecast on the NFL-AFL games last Sunday, the Bayonet tandem of Jones, Myers and Predicto shaded the Managment Committee of the Leadership Department by one game.

The Bayonet staff was 30-9 (.769) to their opponent's 29-10 (.744). Predicto's top X mark was well below his 11-2 with Bayonet's Lee Myers and Management's 2nd Lt. Pat Lafferty ringing up that mark. PFC Predicto was instrumental in the victory as the tie-breaker, although his 10-3 mark was well below his career average.

Predicto, a life-time .850 man (and known as the Charles Goren of picking winners), offers these selections for the week as the Bayonet meets the Communications - Electronics Department (Comm-Elec.)

Lafferty, because he had the highest number of correct guesses of last weekends gridiron action, will return this week to try to out - predict COM - ELEC, the Bayonet, as well as the brains of the Pigskin Underground, PFC Predicto.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

Don't forget the annual meeting of the Rod and Gun Club tonight at 4:30 p.m. Refreshments will be free. All members are invited.

The October fishing derby is having a hard time getting started. So far no bass have been reported and the largest bream is a six ounce catch turned in by SFC Thomas Hamilberger and the largest catfish this month is a 6-pound 14-ounce catch turned in by SFC Edward Plante.

Russ Pond and pool will be opened for fishing Saturday morning at 8 a.m. and will remain open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day until further notice. The small pond above Russ Pond will not be open. Fisherman 16 years of age or over must have a state licence and post permit. Creel limit is eight fish per person. There is no limit on size. The Fish and Game Unit will establish a check point at the pavilion adjacent to Russ Pool. All fishermen must check in and check out at this point. Fishing should be good at either the pond or the pool. Last winter the pond was stocked with 6,000 catfish and the pool with 3,000 catfish.

Now is the time for families not having children in school to take advantage of the facilities offered by the Infantry Center Rest Camp at Destin, Fla.

Located between Chatawatchee Bay and the Gulf of Mexico, the Destin Rest Camp is in the heart of Florida's "Miracle Strip" midway between Panama City and Pensacola.

The camp has 14 cottages and one three bedroom trailer. The cottages and trailer are completely furnished and have all modern conveniences. Air-conditioning, stoves, refrigerators and all needed cooking utensils are provided.

Rental rates begin at $7 a day.

Trailer and tent spaces, snack bar, laundry facilities, picnic areas, barbecue pits, children's play areas and athletic equipment are also available.

For golf enthusiasts there are three courses close to the rest camp. Two are within a twenty minute drive from the camp and the third is at Eglin Air Force Base just across the bay from the camp.

The recreation area is operated primarily for active duty personnel assigned to Fort Benning, however, retired personnel, dependent wives and other service connected personnel are accomodated on a space available basis. During the months children are on school vacation, space is at a premium but during the school year cabins are usually available.

The recreation area has a 38-foot deep sea cabin cruiser, a water ski boat, two 16-foot boats and ten 14-foot boats. Advance reservations must be made with the Special Services Recreation Officer (545-7414) for use of the cabin cruiser but motors for the other boats may be rented on a day to day basis for $2 a day or $1 for half a day.

Recreation in the Destin area is not limited to the facilities at the rest camp. Destin has been called "the luckiest fishing village in the world." Billfish, sailfish, cobia and wahoo are caught in the depths of the gulf and popano, mackeral and flounder can be caught from the Destin pier. No licence is required for salt water fishing. Fresh water streams are just minutes from the camp for those who prefer perch, bass or bream fishing.

For those who would rather just look around there are the ruins of Fort Pickens and the old Spanish Village, a replica of Panton Trading Post which stood on Pensacola Bay in the time of the American Revolution. At Fort Walton, only eight miles from Destin, are the remains of pre-historic mammals and the Indian Temple Mounds, a burial ground for Indians of the Fort Walton culture.

More in line with the atmoshpere of the gulf are two sea aquariums located at Fort Walton and Destin featuring fish, turtles, trained porpoises and octopi.

Eglin Air Force Base extends base privileges to visitors upon the presentation of a military identification card. Post Exchange, commisary and theater facilities are available. Officers and noncommissioned officers may take advantage of the officer and noncommissioned officer clubs if they can show proof of membership in a club at Fort Benning.

Call 545-7414 to make reservations for a cottage, tent area or trailer space.

Allied Students Catch U.S. Football Mania

By PFC Paul Miller

As real as Hong Koug Flu and the German Measles, America's own special plague — football-mania, is being introduced to Allied students at Ft. Benning.

In an informal class Allied students of the U. S. Army Infantry School received instruction on the art of American football from Major J. C. Stillman, commander of the Allied Student Division.

Representing various Allied countries, the students attended the class on a volunteer basis. One young South American officer noted, "Finally, I can learn something about this popular sport of yours."

With the aid of a chalk board, a pigskin and a bit of Yankee know-how, Maj. Stillman went through the many steps of explaining the popular autumn sport to his men.

As the class became a little more detailed and complicated, with instruction centering on penalties and scoring procedures, faces of the listeners revealed deep concentration and hands were busily jotting notes on scratch pads.

The question and answer period was extremely active, with the students displaying enthusiasm for their newly learned game.

"Let me see if I've got this straight," said a South Vietnamese officer. "The team has four chances to go 10 yards with the football. If they don't go that far in four chances, then the other team gets four chances to go 10 yards in the other direction."

The Allied students are catching football-mania remarkably fast. Some can be seen scanning the sports page on Monday mornings on their way to class. Others are already chair-ridden on Saturday and Sunday afternoons in front of the color television. It probably will not be long before they will be spotted on the grass outside Olson Hall, clashing in the great American sport.

THE FORUM THE FORUM

By Marc Reiff

The football season has been under way for only a short time now, but certain inevitables are already present. For the most part, the expected teams are leading their respective divisions, and the old axiom, "Any team can beat any other team on a given Sunday," has proven true.

Cleveland is leading the Century Division and has the power to retain this position throughout the season. Even though they have a tough schedule remaining, the potentially explosive offense should begin to click as in days of old. Last year they went all the way to the National League championship game before falling apart.

Cleveland was one of the league's most potent offensive teams last season. The Browns led the NFL in passing, were third in rushing and topped the entire Eastern Conference with 394 points. As long as quarterback Bill Nelson remains healthy there is no reason to suspect a change in the passing department. Gary Collins, out most of last year with a shoulder dislocation, is back to pair with fluid Paul Warfield as the wide receivers. Leroy Kelly might be slow in recovering from his injury but Ron Johnson and Reece Morrison have been filling his and the departed Ernie Green's shoes admirably.

New York should slip out of contention in the Century Division and leave the race open between the Browns and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dallas has been displaying a very aggressive offense which is somewhat of a surprise. Quarterback Don Meredith has retired but his position has been ably filled by Craig Morton. Even without speedster Bob Hayes, they have accumulated 107 points while giving up only 44. Defense is a Dallas forte and it will be tough for any team to score against them.

Minnesota, even though tied at the moment with Green Bay for top spot, has the best potential in the Central Division and perhaps Western Conference. Shutting out the Bears last week, 31-0, they are proving that last season's Central Division title is no fluke. Their defense can be compared favorably with that of Los Angeles.

Speaking of the Rams, they are again headed for a very good season, this time with little trouble from Baltimore. Although the defense has been somewhat porus thus far, it has been regaining some semblance of past form. The once mighty Colts have already lost two games and could lose a few more before the season ends and the game pits them against the Rams. The Colts barely beat the injury-riddled Eagles and neither the offense nor defense is up to past performances.

In the American League, there have been a few surprises and more could erupt at any time. Houston and New York are tied in the Eastern Division and the Jets just do not look like the team that demolished Baltimore last year for the championship. Joe Namath has been connecting as usual but the opposition has been giving their defense fits. They are a good bet to retain the crown in that division though, as long as gimpy-kneed Namath can be patched together for each game.

Oakland and Kansas City are battling it out for Western Division honors as expected but the Cincinnati Bengals have already won three games and can taste blood. Paul Brown, the crafty old master, should have a few mere upsets under his sleeves as the season progresses.

With this season's predictions running at a .750 clip, here are the week's forecasts:

San Francisco over Atlanta
Cleveland over Pittsburgh
Baltimore over New Orleans
Detroit over Chicago
Los Angeles over Green Bay
Minnesota over St. Louis

Top Track Star Finishes Service

WASHINGTON (ANF)— One of the Army's top track stars, Spt Tracy E. Smith, has just completed his military service, but his records on the cinder track will remain behind him—as did many of his opponents.

Smith, 24, from Arcadia, Calif., set two world track records during his Army service tour and garnered a host of other cinder victories for the Army.

The speedy trackster took first place in the 5,000-meter run in the recently completed Pan-Pacific Games in Tokyo, Japan, as his latest accomplishment.

One of his world records came when he raced to the tape in the 1967 Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) 3 mile run in a record time of 13:16.2.

Other notable track victories for Smith included winning a 6-mile and two 10,000-meter runs, and two 5,000-meter championship runs.

This past summer Smith placed second in the 5,000-meter run for a silver medal in the Conseil International Du Sport Militaire (CISM) track and field championships, and ran fourth in the National AAU 3 mile run.

Golf Team Issues Challenge

The six-man golf team of IOAC 6-69 has offered to challenge golf teams of any other IOAC class, staff or faculty teams, or anyone else interested.

After three weeks of competitive play, the class selected team members. They are: Maj. Poul Kirkegaard, Capt. Art Conlon, Capt. Bryan Southerland, Maj. Jim Yoho, Capt. Dale Wagner and Maj. Oz Beasley. Alternates for the team are Capt. Pat Canan and Capt. Ben Legare. The team was formed on medal play without handicap.

B Co. Leads TSB League

The Rangers found themselves one-half of a game out of first place after their loss to Co. B, ISB, in a hard fought 6-0 game.

The only score of the game came in the early minutes when quarter-back Jim Rates connected on two well placed passes, first to end Charlie Norman in Ranger territory and then to end Gordon Watson for the score.

Quarterback Jim Rates' passing was superior throughout the game and only a very active and hard working Ranger defense kept Co. B from scoring again.

Although the second half of league play has started, one game remains to be played before the first half of play can officially be recorded. A makeup game between Company Operations and the Rangers is scheduled for today.

The game will decide whether the Rangers will move into a tie with B Co. for first place or fall back to tie with 41st Co., TSB, in second.

Aaron Breaks Hornsby Record

Atlanta's Hank Aaron had 332 total bases to lead the National League in 1969, breaking a 40-year-old Rogers Hornsby record.

Aaron and Hornsby had both led the league seven times in total bases entering this season, and the last time Hornsby achieved that feat was 1929.

It was the fourth major league record set by Aaron this season. Others were: Scoring 100 runs for the 14th year; reaching 300 total bases for the 14th year; and totaling 100 extra bases on long hits for the 8th year.

THE Sports COMPUTER by Bud Goode

Every time the New York Jet's Joe Namath drops back to pass he puts one point up on the scoreboard.

But Namath is only second in the league. Lenny Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs is head and shoulders over Namath on this important statistic. Dawson earns 1.35 points every time he goes to the air—36 per cent stronger than Joe.

According to The Sports Computer, two of the most important statistics in pro football are: 1) points per pass (offense); and 2) opponent points allowed per pass (defense).

Our Univac sports analyzer has found that the balance between these two statistics accurately predicts a team's won/lost record at season's end.

Can the electric computer give us an objective prediction on this year's AFL race? Using the 1968 balance points-per-pass and opponent's points-per-pass, The Sports Computer came up with these AFL predictions:

TEAM	POINTS PER PASS	OP. POINTS PER PASS	BALANCE
AFL WEST
KANSAS CITY	1.35	.35	1.00
OAKLAND	1.05	.50	.55
SAN DIEGO	.85	.70	.15
CINCINNATI	.70	.80	-.10
DENVER	.60	.90	-.30
AFL EAST
NEW YORK	1.00	.70	.30
HOUSTON	.70	.70	.00
MIAMI	.70	1.00	-.30
BUFFALO	.50	1.10	-.60
BOSTON	.60	1.00	-.40

Kansas City looks to be the power in the AFL West this season. When quarterback Len Dawson went to a deep dropback against the Jets in pre-season play, he wasn't dumped once. The Chiefs clobbered George Allen's defense oriented LA team.

The New York Jets should repeat in the East. But after Willie Joe Namath at quarterback the Jets are as deep as the dry Lee Angeles River. Only one loss has to go and the Jets are home free.

Lindberg 'Naturally Evolves' Into Movie Producer

By SSgt. Joe DePriest

Movie making is a field Sp4 Gary Lindberg entered by "natural evolution."

"When I was in grade school I dreamed of being a commercial artist; later, I became interested in writing and in college it was photography. And I'd also sung professionally all along. Finally it struck me I could use all this — art, writing, photography and music — in motion pictures. It was a combination I sort of evolved into naturally," he said.

Lindberg is in an advanced Film Making course at the U.S. Army Traning Center.

Before entering the Army, he was the president of a St. Paul, Minn., based commercial film company.

The film — staffed by Lindberg's former associates and University of Minnesota classmates — produces industrial films, TV commercials and feature films for movie theaters.

'THAT WOMAN'

Today in New York, next day in Bermuda and a day later in Rome, Alexandria Borovski never stays too long in one place. "Men stick to me like flies," she says, and "There is no unlucky love, there is only false love." Alexandra is played by Eva Renzi in "That Woman" currently showing in Columbus.

at the U.S. Army Traning Center.

The film — staffed by Lindberg's former associates and University of Minnesota classmates — produces industrial films, TV commercials and feature films for movie theaters.

One film crew recently returned from Scotland after shooting footage for a 20-minute color feature, "The Monster of Loch Ness." It was eating heads training at Ft. Campbell, Ky., when they returned," Lindberg said. Doing a film on the Loch Ness monster had been one of his earliest film dreams.

The route that led Lindberg to motion pictures was long and varied.

When he was growing up in Minneapolis, his parents, avid movie buffs, thought nothing of driving 50 miles or so to see a particlar movie — "and they always dragged me along."

Mr. and Mrs. Russ Lindberg have quite colorful backgrounds. He is a former magician turned a professional songwriter. Mrs. Lindberg is a detective and hand writing expert.

Lindberg admitted films which then impressed him most were pure melodrama — and still speaks fondly of a 1951 horror film, 'The Thing", which had in the title role a bit player by the name of James Arness. "The Thing" blazed no trails across cinematic history, but Lindberg still considers it, in retrospect, a good, solid piece of entertainment.

There were other passions: the Johnny Weismuller "Tarzan" movies and early Alfred Hitchcock movies.

Although his tastes in movies have changed somewhat, Lindberg still insists on a "sense of drama," a tightly knit, exciting use of all the elements of cinema. He finds this in Japanese movies and in the works of such French directors as Truffaut and Renais.

"I easily get bored making films. I've got to find some unique way of making it dramatic. We will use any technique or combination — music, stop motion, what have you, to hold interst. On the other hand, I don't go in for gimmickry . . slickness. But I do like to feel open, to keep the imagination open."

Every Rover 2000 Sports Sedan has nineteen bolted-on body panels. Seventeen are made of steel and cover everything except the trunk and hood. The trunk and hood lids are deliberately aluminum because they need to go up and down and aluminum is lighter than steel. The panels are really there to keep out wind and weather and to look pretty. They have little to do with the strength of the car. That lies within the body, as is well known to avid readers of other Rover advertisements.

One outrageous advantage of this set-up is a rather unusual custom option. You can, if you have the inclination and about $1,200, have a spare set of panels put on in another color. You might like a dark set for winter and a bold bright set for the summertime. Or you might like a set for every season. It depends on the size of your pocket and your ability to get bored easily.

However, one set is a good deal cheaper than buying a second car; it keeps neighbors in agonies of curiosity, relieves mild cases of boredom and, in effect, gives you two cars.

Both of which you can keep in one garage.

For more information, see your Rover dealer (if you have a two-car garage, by the way, we'll be happy to sell you a second Rover.)

NCO Describes Responsibility To Graduates

"You will find, as I found, that with rank will come responsibility, pressure, long hours, frustration, and times when you will wish that you had never seen your new chevrons."

These were the words of MSgt. Richard D. Lochmyer, Intelligence sergeant, The Candidate Bde., at the graduation ceremonies of NCOC Class No. 2-70 in Marshall Auditorium.

"Being a good sergeant is not an easy task. For the leadership of men does not lend itself to cut and dried solutions in any situation. You will find, as I have found, that the way to success and self satisfaction is through hard work, compassion for your subordinates, loyalty to your superiors and doing your duty as well as you can under the most trying circumstances," he said.

Infantrymen Killed In Action Honored

By Spt Jim Doherty

Infantrymen who lost their lives in combat in the Dominican Republic, the Republic of Korea and the Republic of Vietnam were honored in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, presided over the installation in Infantry Hall of a display of bound books containing the names of over 11,000 Infantrymen who were killed in action.

The names contained in each book are alphabetized, chronologically in accordance with dates of death which are indicated by plaques on the stands which support the books.

General Talbott urged Fort Benning soldiers to emulate the bravery and dedication of the soldiers honored in the volumes.

The most fitting tribute that could be given to them, he concluded, is a "rededication of our lives to those principles of our nation" for which they gave their lives.

Classes Get Orientations On Defects Plan

Work simplification classes 9, 10, 11, and 12, currently conducted by the Management Division of the Comptroller Office for Supervisory Personnel, were presented special orientations on Zero Defects and Error Cause Removal during the past week by E. W. Akins, chairman of the ECR subgroup.

The Zero Defects Program is intended to motivate every individual at Fort Benning, both military and civilian, to do his job right the first time every time.

Error Cause Removal is that portion of the Zero Defects Program which invites personnel to cite on FB Form Zero any known error causes, bottlenecks or hindrances in their work or in areas where they are knowledgeable and make recommendations to management for corrective actions.

The new FB Form Zero, entitled Zero Defects Program-Error Cause Removal (ECR) Recommendation, and Center Regulation 11-30, Zero Defects Program, are available at AG Post Publicatons for individual participants and organizations on the post conducting promotional activities in Zero Defects.

AMERICAL Dicision Has Rhythm, Music

CHU LAI, Republic of Vietnam (AMERICAL IO) — The AMERICAL Division has been getting off on the right note lately, thanks to the Division Band. Two or three days out of the week the division has started the working day in the snappy marches, "The Bridge Over the River Kwai" and "76 Trombones" and ending up with the AMERICAL March.

This hasn't always been the case. The band started with eight men back in 1967. They didn't have a place to practice, their hooches were in shambles and perhaps oddest of all, they didn't have any instruments.

SSgt. Anthony Moret, New Orleans, who was one of the first to arrive said, "After we had cleaned up and built up, this place looked as if the 'White Knight' had been through it."

With the arrival of instruments, the membership also increased, rising to near authorized strength of 38. Most of the men in the band enlisted for that purpose, but about 25 per cent came from the field and proudly wear the Combat Infantryman's Badge (CIB).

What does a bandsman do during the day? They have details and pull guard duty like everyone else, however, the better part of the day is spent in rehearsing and attending to musical duties.

CW2 John Murat, Orlando, Fla., described some of the band's present activities. "We are mainly working with the 2nd ARVN Division Band which was understaffed and without suitable equipment. The are avid learners and a very receptive group. We have been exchanging members. Two or three come up here for private instruction and we send two or three down there to group-instruct."

The next RF-PF class that graduates from the AMERICAL Division Combat Center will have a pleasant surprise as they graduate to the sounds of Vietnamese marches. The band got some books from the ARVN band and have been learning the new music.

The band likes to think its main purpose is public relaions as they play for orphanages and places where they come in contact with the public. They want to bring the Vietnamese people closer to the AMERICAL.

An added note, if you are in the division area and have a special musical piece you would like to have played, call the band and place the request.

'Goals for America' Can Win $5,000

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (ANF) — Six separate $5,000 awards are being offered to editorialists, producers of radio-television programs and authors who submit winning entries for the "Goals for America for 1976" awards program.

The program, sponsored by the Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pa., is open to everyone. The theme "Goals for America for 1976" should reflect the best thoughts on this subject to set forth those ideals and actions needed to maintain the fundamental freedoms Americans enjoy under the constitutional system of government in law and order, and the dynamic, free enterprise system.

To be eligible for the 20th anniversary awards, material must have been written, developed or released during the period Nov. 1, 1968 to Nov. 1, 1969. All nominations must be in the hands of the Foundation no later than Nov. 1, 1969.

The awards selection will be determined by a distinguished, independent group of experts in accordance with established procedures. All awards will be announced at the Foundation's Valley Forge National Headquarters on May 1, 1970. Awards will be presented in ceremonies that day.

One award of $5,000 and an encased George Washington Honor Medal will be given in each of the following categories: Magazine or newspaper feature article or series, magazine or news-editorial, campus publication feature article or editorial, radio program, television program and book.

Additional information on any specific award category and nomination forms are available from the Awards Administration, Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pa. 19481.

Lagadi Named Honor Graduate

Anthony P. Lagadi, Dallas, Tex., a member of Co. H of the Infantry School Bde. at Fort Benning, was named as an honor graduate of the Field Radio Mechanics Course at Infantry Hall.

In recognition of his achievement, Lagadi, was promoted to the rank of private first class and given a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry.

Second Brigade Sets Sail for Day

By Mary R. Braswell

The sleek, trim motor boats "anchored" alongside the north Harmony Church service club last week were modern day versions of Christopher Columbus' ships and set sail to the club's columbus Day celebration.

Displayed by two local dealers, the boats formed the background for an archery demonstration by Lt. Co. (ret.) W. H. Guinn, George Drake and Roy Marshall, all of the Chattahoochee Archery Council.

Second Brigade trainees watched closely as the first arrows pierced target balloons, the second round scored bullseyes and the next struck animal-illustrated targets.

A trainee who volunteered for a "William Tell" demonstration stepped aside, leaving the apple pinned to the target for a perfect shot by Drake, champion of the local council.

Colonel Guinn stressed safety in handling bows and arrows as he demonstrated the correct way of removing arrows from a target bale.

The presentation was made by Mrs. Addie George who is employed by the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts Inc., while she is engaged in a project of developing the Yuchi language and preserving the tribe's culture. She was accompanied by two of her sons, Donald, 18, and Gary, 16, students at Jordan High School.

A 1692 carnival of games that originated before or during the 15th century rounded out the day's activities. Scores were totaled as trainees participated in such events as hunting and fishing, racing, archery and billiards. Henry McNeil of Co. E, 6th Bn., was the carnival winner.

The Columbus Day celebration was directed by Miss Mary Van Leer and Mrs. Norma Christian, members of the north Harmony Church service club staff.

Col. Piper Presents 3 Awards

Col. Robert M. Piper, commanding officer of The Candidate Bde. (TCB) presided over the brigade's monthly award ceremony which was held in the mess hall of TCB's Headquarters and Headquarters Co.

Among the individuals honored at the occasion were Capt. William T. Ipock, SFC Joseph H. Griffin and Sp4 Paul M. Crowley.

Ipock, commanding officer of HHC, TCB, was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service. Griffin, currently assigned to the 79th Co. (NCOC), 7th Battalion, Brigade's tactical NCO for October. Crowley, a member of HHC, TCB, was recognized as being TCB's soldier-of-the-month for October.

Females, Rifles Mix

By Sp5 Ken Sturzenacker

The steady sound of the M-14 rifle being fired on Easley Range is nothing new to members of the Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Training Unit.

But the sounds of feminine laughter and talk are new—and a bit unexpected.

The voices are those of members of the WAC Co. trying to gain positions on the team that has won dozens of honors for its accuracy in the past.

Participating in the trials are Sp4s Lynette Herscim, Rita Mattix and Carol Eby.

Training necessary to qualify for the team began with the M-14 rifle. Firing from the kneeling, standing, sitting and prone positions, the girls started close to the targets and moved away.

The WAC's have fired both slow and rapid sequences during the various phases of their training. Recently, one practice session was conducted with the targets 600 meters down range.

The Marksmanship Training Unit uses spotting scopes on the firing line so all members of the team can check and evaluate their progress without the delay involved in moving down range to the targets.

SFC Marvin Warren, instructor for the WACs, says the girls take their training seriously and are progressing about as well as a group of men with comparable previous experience.

After they complete their training with the M-14s, the WACS will move on to the caliber .45 pistol, the weapon they will use if they qualify for the Third Army Pistol Team.

If they become members of the Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Training Unit, the WACs will be part of a group whose accuracy, skill and precision is recognized throughout the world. Perfection and safety are the key words in the unit's training and active competition.

MAJOR, MRS. MIKE BINDLEY
And Their Son Shaun

Attractive Duo Represents Australia at Fort Benning

By Marian Jones

The Australian Army has sent an attractive duo to represent it at the Infantry Center here.

Able representatives of American allies "down under" are the youthful and energetic Maj. and Mrs. Mike Bindley.

The Bindleys are in this country as a result of a unique exchange program recently begun by the Infantry Branch, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel (DCSPER), whereby an Australian army officer comes to this country and a U. S. Army officer goes to Australia.

Bindley's counterpart in the exchange, Maj. Frank Phelan, has been assigned as an instructor of tactics in Ingleburn, New South Wales, a suburb of Sydney.

Speaking in the clipped tones which will sound familiar to anyone who has served with the Australians in the Republic of Vietnam or has visited Australia, Bindley expressed his pleasure at being selected by his army to come to the United States.

He ended a year's tour in Vietnam, where he was assigned to the III Corps area, in February of this year. Not too surprisingly, he spent his R and R where so many of our servicemen do — in Australia.

When asked how our men are accepted in his country, he said that it is a gradual, easy relationship between his countrymen and the visiting GI's. "They are easily accepted," he said.

The only way you can recognize them (American soldiers) is by their haircut, their clothes and the fact that they are usually carrying a camera," he said.

A graduate of the Royal Military College in Duntroon, Canberra, the Australian equivalent of our West Point, Bindley has been in the army for eleven years.

One of his special loves is body surfing, which as every water enthusiast knows, is at its best in Australia.

Pretty, blonde and mini-skirted, Coline Bindley is impressed by the friendliness of her Columbus neighbors. "They have been tremendous to us," she said.

Infantry School To Host Foreign Training Meeting

The Infantry School will host the Foreign Military Training Conference here in conjunction with the U.S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) Monday through Oct. 29.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, will present an opening address to the 68 conferees attending.

The purpose of the conference is to exchange information, ideas and methods among personnel responsible for the administration of foreign student and visitor programs.

The conference will provide a means of identifying, discussing and resolving problem areas in the training and orientation of foreign personnel under the sponsorship of the Military Assistance Training Program.

Among those attending the conference will be Brig. Gen. Clark Baldwin, deputy director of International and Civil Affairs, CONARC; Brig. Gen. Theodore H. Andrews, acting deputy chief of staff for Individual Training, Department of the Army; Robert D. Cross, special assistant for Youth Affairs, Office of the Counselor, Washington, D.C.; Arthur L. Richards, executive director of the Washington International Center of the Meridian House Foundation, Washington; R. A. Aylward, executive director of the National Council for Community Services to International Visitors of the Meridian House Foundation, Washington.

Also attending the conference will be Col. Tyrone E. Tisdale, chief of the Doctrine and Training Division, Office of Assistant Chief of Staff, United Pacific Command. Colonel Tisdale was formerly secretary of the Infantry School.

Ethiopian General Tours Post, Columbus

Brig. Gen. Teghen Negga, assistant chief of staff of the Imperial Ethiopian Ground Forces, was honored by a review on York Field. Beside him at the review was Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general.

The two generals rendered a salute as the 282nd Army Band played the Ethiopian National Anthem, followed by America's Star Spangled Banner.

General Negga's visit to the Infantry School also included observation of the "Airborne 50000" problem at Eubanks Field and a firepower exercise at Ferguson Range.

ATC Drive Turns Away 250 Extra Blood Donors

There were 250 unhappy people at Kimbro Gymnasium on Sand Hill. They were 250 blood donors who were turned away in the wake of a terrific response to October's Red Cross blood drive at the Training Center here.

About 1,041 1st and 2nd Bde. personnel gave 641 pints of blood between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Nurses from Atlanta and Red Cross helpers here had to turn away donors when the 500-pint goal was more than adequately exceeded.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

Chick Trick: Before broiling chicken, try rubbing each piece with butter mixed with onion juice and powered ginger.

Savory is sometimes called the "bean herb" because it adds such a delicious flavor to beans, lentils and peas.

Uruguay once defeated Argentina in a naval battle in which a Montevidean commodore used Edam cheese for cannon balls.

Wine is mentioned in the Scriptures more than 200 times. Americans must be very religious because last year we drank a record 213,682,000 gallons of it.

Dates will be easier to cut if you first chill them and then cut with scissors dipped in hot water.

Dates—or spouses—are easier to impress if you treat them to a first-rate dinner at

Byline Bayonet

Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could more properly be answered by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to Bayonet Editor, Room 602, Infantry Hall.

MILITARY LAW

If a person is retired from the military service, is he subject to military law? If tried, is he brought back to active duty or can he be tried in a retired status?

Under the provisions of Title 10 of the U. S. Code, retired members of the regular component of the armed forces entitled to receive pay and retired members of the Reserve component who are receiving hospitalization from an armed force are subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice. They may be tried by court-martial for a violation of the code.

Whether or not the Army would recall a retired member to active duty in a particular case for purposes of trying him by court-martial can be answered only after a thorough review of all the facts of the case has been made.

One factor that would be considered in making this determination is whether the person in question has violated state or federal law and whether the state or federal authorities desire to prosecute him.

• • •

HARD LABOR

Can an officer be sentenced to confinement at hard labor without an automatic dismissal from the service? In the case of an officer who is sentenced to confinement at hard labor, would it not be normal to adjudge a total forfeiture of pay at the same time? Assuming that an officer has been sentenced to confinement at hard labor, would it not be normal for his pay to stop when the sentence was approved?

Yes, an officer convicted by court-martial may be sentenced to confinement at hard labor without also being sentenced to a dismissal from the service. Dismissal from the service is not automatic but must be specifically adjudged by the court.

An officer convicted by court-martial may be sentenced to confinement at hard labor without also being sentenced to forfeiture of pay and allowances. Whether or not forfeitures should be adjudged in a particular case is a matter within the sole discretion of the court.

No. If an officer has been convicted by court-martial and sentenced to confinement at hard labor, but not forfeitures, his pay would not be affected.

By Julie Hopson

If Jimmy Jones Jr., son of Lt. and Mrs. James Jones, stationed at Fort Benning, was to become ill, the solution would be simple. The child would be taken to Martin Army Hospital for care.

And, if Sammy Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith, of Columbus, were to become ill, the solution would be almost as simple. The child would be taken to a local physician or hospital for care.

However, the Jones would have one less problem with which to cope: They wouldn't have to worry about the hospital and doctor bills.

One of the most recognizable fringe benefits of a serviceman is the free medical care. And the value of this medical care really surfaces when a serviceman is discharged and finds he no longer has this benefit.

Within a few months after his discharge, a former serviceman probably will find a job with a business concern which has some sort of health care program. But, in the meantime, he will have no protection. Even if he approached a health insurance company, he would be faced with a waiting period during which he would not be covered.

Recognizing the need for a transitional program, the Department of Defense requested a special health care protection program be established. Then, a serviceman (and his dependents, if he has any) would be covered during the time he is finding his bearings as a civilian.

As a result of this request, the Program for Armed Services Separatees (PASS) was established Sept. 1, 1969. Under this program, the Department of Defense makes available to each serviceman being separated on or after that date, a choice of two health care protection plans—Blue Cross and Blue Shield or Mutual of Omaha.

The Blue Cross benefit, which pays hospital bills, consists of a 90-day period of coverage. It includes service benefits for maternity care. The Blue Shield Plan, which pays the doctor bills for the same 90-day period, includes benefits on the basis of usual, customary and reasonable charges.

The cost of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plan is $16.50 for an individual contract, or $39 for a family contract for the 90-day coverage. Maternity benefits are available only to the wifes of servicemen who elect to take the family coverage.

The PASS program offered by Mutual of Omaha does not provide maternity benefits. It also covers the 90-day period. The cost of the Mutual of Omaha plan is based on the number of persons to be insured: Serviceman only, $30; serviceman and his wife, $64; serviceman, wife and one child, $77; serviceman, wife and two children, $90; serviceman, wife and three children, $103.

Both programs offer conversion plans, whereby the serviceman may elect to continue the coverage after the 90-day initial period.

All necessary information on the PASS program is given to servicemen by the Department of Defense during separation processing.

Check List For GI Bill

WASHINGTON — The Veterans Administration has come up with a checklist to help veterans attending school under the G.I. Bill get their checks on time, at the right place and in the right amount.

A veteran should accomplish the following:

—Insure that the school official returns the certificate of eligibility promptly to the VA.

—Contact the nearest VA office if checks do not begin arriving within a few weeks after the VA gets the enrollment certificate.

—Apply immediately to VA for a new certificate of eligibility if college or course of study is changed.

—Notify the VA immediately of any dependency changes due to marriage, divorce, births or deaths.

—Return promptly the certificate of attendance card received from VA near the end of the enrollment period.

—Notify the VA immediately if a course load is reduced or attendance at school terminates.

Obstacles To Success

1. Mental unemployment. The human brain contains ten billion cells capable of storing ten times the information in the average sized library. It has more electronic recording devices than all the telephone centers ever built. It can do what no computer can do, it can create ideas. It's the greatest machine ever built — when in operation.

2. Fear of failure. Babe Ruth was the greatest strike out king in baseball history. He struck out 1,330 times. But since he was not afraid of failure he is also the home run king. Thomas Edison once had an assistant who complained of their lack of progress. "What do you mean no progress!" Edison shouted. "We have already discovered a thousand things that won't work."

3. Lack of imagination. It takes creativeness to envision the new worlds that could be. We are like the caterpillar who saw a butterfly floating overhead and said to himself, "Boy, they'll never get me up in one of those things."

4. Self-delusion. It is said that Hitler one day looked into the ovens of Dachau and raged, "How terrible these people must have been to make me do this to them!" We must discover reality, not invent it out of our own prejudices. (AFPS).

Search Starts for Entries In Military Wife Contest

By Marian Jones

A search is on at this Army post to select Fort Benning's entries for the Military Wife of the Year.

All women's clubs in the Fort Benning - Columbus - Phenix City area whose membership is composed of wives of active duty Armed Forces personnel such as officers wives clubs, NCO wives clubs, enlisted wives clubs and waiting wives clubs are eligible to submit the name of one nominee they feel best meets these qualifications:

1. She must be a military wife active in her club's community service activities.

2. She must have made note-worthy contributions to the improvement of people-to-people relations not only in the military but in civilian communities as well (for example work with underprivileged children, social work, education, hospital volunteer).

3. She must be poised and sufficiently articulate to be able to tell her story and the American military community's story to television audiences and the press.

WOMEN'S NEWS

The contest in the past was confined to nominations submitted by military wives clubs in the European theater, 1967; the Far East, 1968; and the United States, 1969. This year, sponsors of the contest, Harrell International, Inc., a world-wide marketing firm based in Westport, Conn., have announced that wives clubs throughout the world may submit their club's candidate for the coveted title of Military Wife of The Year 1970.

All entries should be submitted on official entry forms. These forms and complete details of the contest are available in the Information Office, Infantry Hall. Names and photographs and entry blanks of nominees must be submitted to the Information Office before 5 p.m., Oct. 31.

Final selection of the Military Wife of the Year for each service will be made in Washington, D.C., by a panel of senior officer and NCO wives coordinated by the wife of the chief of staff of each service.

After the five service selections have been finalized, a tour will be made by television's Art Linkletter, wherever possible, to the locales of the various winners. There he will stage his show — based on Art's famous "House Party" format and film the finalists doing the things that brought them recognition.

All winners and their husbands will be flown to Washington, D.C. Here they'll take part in a round of luncheons, receptions, dinners and press interviews culminating in a formal awards ceremony dinner to which they will be presented to a distinguished audience of dignitaries and military officials.

Final judging will be made that evening by an international panel of prominent women selected by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Hollywood personalities will introduce each candidate for the top award and the film made of her during the Linkletter tour will be shown as part of a special televised program.

The winning Military Wife of the Year will receive an all-expense trip to Hollywood as Art Linkletter's guest. She will visit congressman, senators and other Washington dignitaries and make a personal appearance tour across the United States where she will have the opportunity to tell her story and that of the American military community on TV panels, to the press and in guest appearances before women's groups.

Pupils To Demonstrate New Fluoride Paste

A group of pupils at the Dexter School (Bldg. 1400) at Fort Benning will demonstrate a special new paste which contains 9 per cent stannous fluoride at 10:30 a.m. Friday.

The special paste must be applied under the direction of dentists and, or, dental hygienists. A representative of the post's preventive dentistry clinic will supervise the demonstration.

This stannous fluoride preventive dentistry paste was developed at the University of Indiana by Dr. George Stookey and Dr. Joseph Muhler.

Self-applied bi - annually, followed with regular daily brushings with regular stannous fluoride toothpaste, the new paste helps to increase cavity-prevention by 40-60 per cent. Youngsters drinking fluoridated water can expect up to 95 per cent cavity-resistance over a three-year period.

The new paste is now a standard Army supply item. It is called the U.S Armed Forces Preventive Dentistry Paste.

Thirty thousand inducees have self-applied the new paste; and over a half-million men in Republic of Vietnam have also used it.

Women To Hold Protestant Rally

Fall Rally for the Protestant Women of the Chapel will be held Oct. 29 at the Infantry Center Chapel.

Mrs. Palm, a native of Annadale, Va., is no stranger in military circles. The widow of the late Army Col. Ira A. Palm, who was also an outstanding Christian layman, Mrs. Palm has for many years conducted weekly Bible classes for service wives.

MRS. HELEN PALM

She and her late husband were active in the Officers Christian Union and provided an inspirational link between military and church activities. Mrs. Palm continues to carry on these Christian activities.

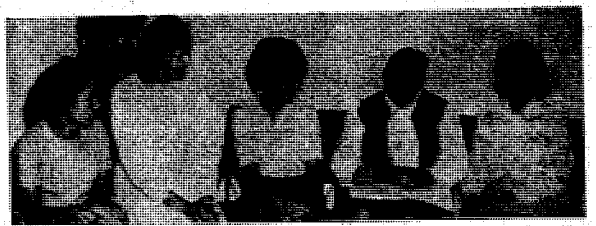
The morning session of the rally will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will feature Mrs. Palm's address on the theme of stability and mobility, or, "What Am I Doing Here?"

Following the morning session, a "carry-in" luncheon will be held in the chapel annex. Each lady is requested to bring her own table service and either sandwiches, a salad or dessert for approximately 12 people.

The second session will begin at 1 p.m. and will consist of a roundtable discussion of fellowship, led by Mrs. Palm.

Nursery service will be provided by Tot Town Nursery, free of charge, for both sessions of the rally.

All women of Fort Benning are cordially invited.



Mrs. Raul A. Garcia, Spanish-Speaking Ladies group; Mrs. Teddy D. Hampton, Episcopal Ladies; Mrs. S. E. Shaneyfelt, PWOC Council incoming president; Mrs. John E. Osborne, outgoing PWOC Council president; Mrs. Harry K. Troede, Infantry Center PWOC.

Mother Helps Draft Son -- 'No Hard Feelings'

"Mother drove me by my girl friend's house, we picked her up and we all went to the bus station," he said.

A few good-bye's later, he was on his way to Montgomery. And his mother? Well, she had a cup of coffee and returned to her job as clerk of Draft Board 50 in Pensacola, the board that drafted Rowell.

"Her name is on all my draft papers," Private Rowell said recently at Co. C, 4th Bn., 1st Bde., Training Center.

Rowell's mother has served in her present position for two years and, accordingly, he had to cope with a certain amount of joking on the part of his friends. ("Everybody would ask—hey, how come your mother is drafting me?").

Black Speaks to Wives Club

The membership consists of officers wives whose husbands are serving in an area where they cannot be accompanied by their dependents.

The guest speaker was Charles Black of the Columbus Enquirer. Having made many trips to The Republic of Vietnam, Black discussed the different areas and units of the country with the ladies and was able to tell many of them that he had personally met and worked with their husbands.

He gave special tips on ways the wives can boost the morale of their husbands through their letters and tapes, but actually it was Black who boosted the wives' morale by making each and every women present feel proud that her husband was doing such a fine job in serving their country.

Hostesses for the dinner were Mmes. Donald Parnell, Larry Atwood, and Joseph Pilcher. Decorations were in a Halloween theme.

Farewell was said to Mmes. Robert Smith, Alfred Downs, William Raines and John Posey, whose husbands are returning from Vietnam this month.

The next regular meeting will be held Nov. 19 at the Officers Club. On Saturday from 2-4 p.m. there will be a Halloween party for children of Geographical Wives Club members at the Officers Club.

Airborne Dept. Wives Meet

The wives of the officers of the Airborne Department met for a morning coffee at the stately country home of Mrs. Harry M. Hillman in Midland. The hostess is an equestrienne and displayed several of her horses for the ladies.

Mrs. Lee D. Ellis Jr., wife of the deputy director, opened the business meeting by welcoming Mrs. Duane G. Cameron, Mrs. James K. Redding, Mrs. Charles N. Wilson, Mrs. George I. Linck and Mrs. Robert W. Christiansen.

Mrs. Eugene D. Fudge presented each newcomer with a lovely green plant.

It was announced that Mrs. David G. Jesmer will direct the selling of the OWC Cookbooks within the Airborne Department.

Plans were discussed for an Airborne Department social Oct. 25 at the Colonial Room in downtown Columbus. The ladies will participate in the Junior League's Heritage Tour on Nov. 12 and afterwards have planned a luncheon at the Red Garter.

HEALTH AND WELFARE REPORTS

It is important to write the family regularly and to receive word from them often. But breakdowns in communications sometimes occur. If you are concerned about the family, your Red Cross field director can obtain a health and welfare report.

See your field director for other assistance, too. He can help when you need counseling on personal and family problems or emergency financial assistance. Through the chapter back home, Red Cross can give emergency assistance to your dependents if needed. Ask your field director about other services available to you and your loved ones.

IOBC Wives Busy for Fall

The ladies of IOBC 7-70 whose husbands are just starting the course, had an orientation coffee. Lt. Col. William Mundy, 2nd Stu. Bn. Commander, spoke on "The challenge to the new officer's wife." Capt. John T. Fulcher welcomed the wives, and Mrs. Fulcher outlined the wives social program.

Units Demonstrate Fire Power

The Army's ever increasing arsenal of artillery, air power and Infantry support weapons was put on public display for two days at Fort Benning's Fergusson Range.

Several hundred Infantry School students, including an Ethiopian general, saw the post's artillery and armor units demonstrate the weapons that can be brought to the support of the Infantryman in battle.

Among the weapons demonstrated was the 105mm howitzer which can be fired from several angles and hit targets over a mile away with consistent accuracy.

The M551 Sheridean tank fired both its 152mm cannon and a Shillelagh missile.

Antipersonnel weaponry was demonstrated with the 105mm "Beehive" weapon, a device which fires thousands of lethal darts that can penetrate and kill enemy soldiers at close range.

Air support was demonstrated by the AH-1G "Cobra" helicopter. The chopper's ability to provide covering fire for the Infantryman was demonstrated on several passes over the grandstand.

Other weapons on display included the "Honest John" rocket, the M60 tank, an 8-inch Howitzer and a 40mm cannon.

Homecoming Stirs Emotions

Last week at Columbus Metropolitan Airport this scene was replayed again and it wasn't dull. It was anxious and stirring and more than a little emotional, even for the detached onlooker.

The 283rd Army Band was there, so were nervous wives and children.

The band played "Follow Me," and they did — first thing, breaking into a run across the airport runway.

The 412th Finance Section, an Atlanta-based Reserve unit which had been in the Republic of Vietnam for year's combat tour, had returned home.

'Capt. Jack's Raiders' Graduate From OCS

By Spt Paul Miller

Members of Infantry Officer Candidate Class 34-69 graduated as second lieutenants in exercises at Marshall Auditorium here.

The 119 graduates have been known to the other students in The Candidate Bde. as "Captain Jack's Raiders," named after their commanding officer, Capt. Jack H. Jacobs, who was recently awarded the Medal of Honor.

Speaking at the graduation was Col. John B. McKinney, director of the Communications - Electronics Department, Infantry School. Colonel McKinney urged the new officers to "take most seriously the responsibility that goes with the gold bar of lieutenant."

The colonel went on to note that "responsibility carries with it a sense of loyalty . . . and sometimes responsibility must come before loyalty."

Trainee Played Trumpet on Road

By Sp5 John Klopf

After playing trumpet for the Percy Sledge Orchestra, the strained notes of "Reveille" don't sound so sweet to Pvt. Gary Lester, trainee in Co. C., 8th Bn. 2nd Bde.

Lester, only 19-years-old, has been playing the trumpet professionally for three years. He started playing six years ago and was first choir trumpet his first year in high school.

"I always wanted to play trumpet," explained Lester, who had to use a borrowed trumpet up to the time he joined Sledge two years ago.

"I was playing with a local group in my hometown of Macon, Ga., called 'The Mighty Bee's' when Sledge came through on his way overseas looking for a band to accompany him," recalled Lester. "He listened to us and decided to take the whole group."

While playing with Sledge, Lester had the chance to travel extensively. "We played concert dates in Mexico, Canada, South America, England the Virgin Islands and Italy, to name a few," he said.

"I enjoyed the traveling," explained Lester, "and although we were only one night at most places, I met lots of interesting people. We split bills with entertainers such as Jerry Butler, Peaches and Herb, Joe Tex and Bobby Blair."

Lester also played for a short period with Johnny Taylor and Arthur Conlan and now that the Army hands him his paycheck, he would like to continue his trumpeting. "I'd like to get in an Army band somewhere," he said

BRIG. GEN. OSCAR E. DAVIS

ROTC Officer—Part II

General Describes ROTC As 'Character Builder'

By SSgt. Joe DePriest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Army is now observing the 150th anniversary of military instruction on civilian college campuses. Military instruction at a civilian college was first offered in 1819 at Norwich University in Vermont. The following article is the second of a series of stories on Fort Benning officers who were commissioned through the ROTC program.)

• • •

"A character builder, a tremendously important viable program." these are descriptions of ROTC made by Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis, commanding general of the Training Center.

For General Davis, ROTC was all these things and more. It also afforded him "another look" at a career possibility after college.

When General Davis graduated from the University of Arizona in 1941 with an ROTC commission as a second lieutenant of cavalry, he "had not thought of making the military a career." In fact, he had fully intended on returning to law school after his military obligation was completed.

Service before and during World War II with highly trained, highly motivated units had, at war's end, altered his plans, and he decided to make the Army a career.

General Davis began his Army service with cavalry units. His first assignment was with the 1st Cavalry Division at Fort Bliss, Tex. Other Cavalry duty included assignments with the 124th Cavalry Regiment, Fort Ringold, Tex., and the 27th Cavalry Regiment, Fort Clark, Tex.

In 1943 he came to Fort Benning's Jump School and became a part of a new concept in warfare, embodied in Army airborne units, which were also characterized by the deep sense of pride and esprit to which General Davis had been accustomed in his cavalry duty.

He remained at Fort Benning as an instructor for the parachute qualification course until he joined the newly activated 542nd Parachute Infantry Regiment as a company commander. He was detailed into the Infantry in 1944 and joined the 541st Parachute Infantry Regiment and landed with this unit at Luzon. He was transferred to the 11th Airborne Division and served as commander of the 1st Bn., 511th Parachute Infantry Regiment, until the conclusion of World War II and the early occupation of Japan.

Subsequent assignments have included service with the 45th Infantry Division in Korea as a battalion commander, regimental executive officer and Division G-3 and support command commander for the 101st Airborne Division.

In the Republic of Vietnam he served with I Field Force Vietnam as the senior liaison officer (Advisor) to the Republic of Korea Force and deputy brigade commander, 1st Bde., 101st Airborne, and assistant division commander-B of the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

BAND WILL PRESENT CONCERT SUNDAY

291st Band To Celebrate 100th Year

By Marian Jones

The 291st Army Band, organized in 1869 at Fort McKavitt, Tex., will celebrate its 100th anniversary Sunday with a concert at 8 p.m. at Service Club No. 1 on Sightseeing Road.

A supporting unit of the 24th Infantry Regiment during the Indian Wars, the band again served with that regiment in the Philippines in 1909 and 1901 and in 1916 and 1917 during the Mexican expedition.

At the outbreak of World War II, through 1946, the 291st served in the Western Pacific, again as a supporting unit of the 24th Infantry Regiment at Guadalcanal and Okinawa.

After the signing of the Japanese treaty, ending the war, the band accompanied the 24th to Gifu, Japan, where it stayed until it was ordered to return to the Continental United States in 1955.

Prior to being assigned to furnish support to the Infantry School and the Training Center in 1966, the band was stationed at Fort Jackson, S.C.

The band's campaign participation credits include the Comanche Indian War; Santiago, during the war with Spain; the Western Pacific; San Isidro and Luzon during the Philippine Insurrection; and Mexico during the Mexican Expedition.

The band, under the direction of WO Brian D. Arnold, will present a program of marches and folk music as well as popular favorites.

Arnold, who holds a bachelor of music from Texas Western College in El Paso, was in the Army band field as an enlisted man at Fort Benning, Fort Monroe, Va., and with the Third Armored Division Band in Frankfurt, Germany. In June, 1969, he was commissioned as a warrant officer, bandmaster, and sent to command the 291st.

As well as being a French horn player, he has held the positions of band clerk, operations sergeant, drum major and assistant band director.

One of the evening's highlights will be a trumpet solo, "Soilloquy for Trumpet" by PFC Roy J. Height.

Height, a native of Covington, Ga., was honored with an offer to tour Europe with the School Band of America, which is made up of outstanding high school and college students.

He has obtained valuable professional experience by touring the United States with such bands as "The Hurricanes" and "The Jimmy Tig Band."

The public is invited to the concert.

12-Year-Old Redhead Will Act at Springer

By SSgt. Joe De Priest

"She said if a director ever needed a 12-year-old redhead with gobs of freckles, then she knew she had it made."

Mrs. Jennie McCrae was speaking of her daughter, Marquette, who is currently "walking around the house talking a lot."

Marquette will play the role of Gloria in the Springer Theater Company's production of "Wait Until Dark" which opens Oct. 30 at the Springer Opera House. The role is the only child's part in the play, which was recently made into a movie.

It took a bit more than red hair and freckles to get the part and will take much more to bring the role to life, but Marquette is taking her characteristically enthusiastic approach to the task, according to her mother.

We've been watching her walk about the house after school, reciting lines from the play and from school campaign speeches—she was a campaign manager during recent elections there," said Mrs. McCrae, who is secretary to Col. Herbert G. Peabody, deputy commanding officer of the Training Center.

"Campaign speeches and script lines were running together for a while," she said.

Officer Enjoys Nashville, Country Music Scene

EDITOR'S NOTE: 2nd Lt. Patrick Lafferty visited Fort Campbell and Nashville, Tenn., last week. While he was in Nashville, he attended the Country Music Association Awards Banquet. In the following article, he describes his experiences at the banquet.)

By 2nd Lt. Patrick Lafferty

It's just over 50 miles from Fort Campbell to Nashville and every weekend brings hundreds of soldiers down the gently rolling hillsides of middle Tennessee to the Country Music Capitol of the World.

Nashville has a special appeal, not only for the soldiers at Fort Campbell, Fort Benning or any other post, but because of its famous hospitality and because it remains the mecca for country music fans. This past weekend was like any other at Fort Campbell, but for the huge group at the post who are devotees of country music it was special.

Down the road, 50 miles away, the Country Music Association held its 11th Annual Awards Banquet in conjunction with the 44th birthday of the Grand Ole Opry.

In addition to the regulars from Fort Campbell, Nashville was visited by record and advertising executives, disc jockeys from across the country and Great Britain, public relations personnel and thousands of country music fans in greater numbers than ever before for country music was celebrating its most properous year.

It was a major convention and the Academy Awards rolled into one — without the in-fighting or politicking that typifies those events.

This type of description may seem impossible to anyone unfamiliar with the people of Nashville or the world of country music, but the first-hand observer quickly notices the cohesion and comradeship that so typifies Nashville and the music industry there.

I was in Nashville this weekend and my observations were not unlike those who have been before and will go back again.

Earlier last week, when I decided to go to Nashville, I had no idea as to how many functions would be open to me on such short notice. Obviously such a weekend is planned months in advance and reservations had been mailed out long before.

What chance did a soldier from Fort Benning have of seeing the Country Music Association Awards Dinner, the Columbia Records' luncheon and show starring Johnny Cash, the Capitol Records' party and show starring Sonny James and Ferlin Husky or the Grand Ole Opry's 44th birthday celebration?

Through the fine people of the CMA, I received tickets to all these functions, plus several more, and throughout the weekend the people of Nashville went out of their way to display real Southern Hospitality.

My final conclusion was that the people of Nashville and the CMA would have made a special effort to help any military personnel visiting Nashville.

I also saw what most people had guessed weeks before. Johnny Cash, now at the height of his career, received five major awards including "Entertainer of the Year," "Male Vocalist of the Year," and pot-Chet Atkins was voted the top instrumentalist. Archie Campbell, the driving force behind "Hee Haw," was named the top comedian. The Country Music Hall of Fame, founded by the CMA, added the name of Gene Autry to its roll.

If there is any reason for the enormous growth of country music in the past decade, it can be traced directly to the diversification of music styles and the active promotion work of the Country Music Association.

Yet, if there is a single factor that divides country music fans, it is the battle between "traditional" country music and the "Town and Country" or "Countrypalitan" sound that interduced strings and brass to country arrangements.

Nashville clearly aligns itself more with the traditional style as typified by the stars of the Grand Ole Opry. At the Columbia Records' luncheon, these were openly enthusiastic toward Ray Price and Jim Reeves, longtime country music stalwarts, yet were very cool towards Earl Scruggs' contemporary version of "If I Were a Carpenter."

Parade Will Highlight Festival on Halloween

By Sp5 Ken Sturzenacker

A costume parade from Doughboy Stadium through the officer family housing area back to Gowdy Field will highlight Halloween Festival activities Oct. 31.

Set to begin at 4:45 p.m., the parade will end with costume judging in two different age groups.

The younger children, ages 3-7, will make up Group 1 and be judged in Doughboy Stadium. The older children, ages 8-12, will make up Group 2 and will be judged in Gowdy Field.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three boy and girl contestants in each of the three categories, most original costume, funniest costume and costume most typical of the Halloween season.

A total of 36 prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, is expected to present the awards to the winners of the costume judging.

The 283rd and 291st Army Bands will also participate in the parade.

The individuals and groups entering the parade will assemble in the chapel parking lot to the rear of Doughboy Stadium from 4:15 until 4:45 p.m. The parade route will pass the commanding general's quarters before returning to Doughboy Stadium and Gowdy field.

In addition to the parade, Melvin the Magic Clown will add another feature attraction to the festival activities.

Melvin, in reality SSgt. Melvin Storke, has performed as a magician since the days of the depression. He has developed enough material for a continuous six hour performance.

He later added performances as a clown to his act, capitalizing on his rotund appearance and his outgoing, personable nature.

He will perform until the presentation of the awards. After the awards presentation, Melvin the Magic Clown will again perform until the festival closes for the evening at 9:30 p.m.

The Halloween Festival will provide fun and entertainment for the entire family from 4 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. in the Doughboy Stadium-Gowdy Field area. Come and join the excitement.

By Marc Reiff

Ted Williams, the once fiery and colorful slugger for Boston, has been named the American League's Manager of the Year. The most recent .400 hitter and perhaps the last, he went into coaching rather reluctantly but has emerged as a fine headmaster. His players have only the highest praise for his talents and it is certainly justified.

The Washington Senators finished this season with a 86-76 record, good for fourth place and their first winning season in 17 years. Never easy to get along with during his playing days, Williams has, however, impressed his players with his great knowledge of hitting and pitching.

To be a fine hitter, one must first understand the pitcher. Williams was a master and often knew what he would be thrown before the pitcher did. But he could also turn a bad ball into a home run with one mighty crack of his wrists, and he has 521 home runs to attest to this.

After a nine-year holiday of fishing and relaxing, he was coaxed into taking over a club which had finished with a 65-96 record in 1968 and had very little faith in itself. Working with the same personnel, he has raised averages as much as 60 points and even the awesome Frank Howard had his best year ever. He even managed to get his pitchers to throw the ball near the strike zone, which is no mean accomplishment in itself.

During his playing days, Williams did not communicate very well with reporters but he has tried mightily to coexist with them now that he is on a different level. There were one or two rhubarbs, reminiscent slightly of

Army Mule 'Raises' Navy Goat

WASHINGTON (ANF)—When the Black Knights of Army meet the Midshipmen of Navy in their 70th annual grid classic at JFK Stadium in Philadelphia on Nov. 29, Trotter, the Army mule mascot, will also be on hand. Trotter is one of a long line of mule mascots at the U.S. Military Academy.

The mule, known for its strength, endurance and perseverance, has always been considered by the Cadets as an appropriate symbol for the Army football team.

Mules also display other qualities. Some of these were aptly demonstrated when the first Cadet mule mascot was "introduced" to the Navy goat prior to the kickoff in 1899.

The goat, being the cantankerous animal it is, eyed his adversary, snorted once, then charged the mule's forelegs. At this indignity, legend has it that the mule whirled and "hoisted that astonished goat toward the Navy stands to the delight of the yelling, laughing crowd."

Apparently spurred on by their four-legged mascot, the Black Knights soared to a 17-5 victory over the favored Navy team.

From its debut as Cadet mascot, the legend of the Army mule has grown in length and humor.

One mule mascot, known as Mr. Jackson, was used as a favorite prank played on newly-arrived persons at West Point. A message would be left for them indicating that they had received a phone call from a "Mr. Jackson" and asking them to return the call on a local number.

Hannibal, another hybrid mascot, was the subject of the ever-increasing legend of the Army mule. His claim to fame was his reported dislike of West Point's summer weather.

According to the legend, Hannibal mastered the trick of escaping from his stall and then releasing the other mules from theirs. Not only would he free his fellow heat sufferers, but would lead them through a sliding door to a nearby air-conditioned veterinary operating room.

So, if you should happen to be in Philadelphia for the Army-Navy football game this season, or are watching it on television, chances are that all the action may not be on the gridiron.

Trotter, the latest Army mascot, might prove to be the first mule to kick a field goal using the Navy goat as a football.

©1969 THE BAYONET AND S-MAR PRODUCTIONS

The Bayonet predicting team crushed Comm-Elect by seven games in last weekend's action. The Bayonet staff had a 27-9-3 mark (.750) to the 20-16-3 (.571) tally by Comm-Elect.

Top mark was chalked up by Sp4 Lee Myers with a 10-2-1 record. PFC Predicto, despite suffering a painful sprain of the index finger of his right (writing) hand turned in a creditable 8-4-1 mark while Sgt. Carol Aubin had a 9-3-1 score.

This week the undefeated Bayonet staff meets the challenge (?) of TSB information. The week's top games follow with everyone out to see if he or she can top PFC Predicto.

Big Weekend Scheduled for Stock Car Racing

This is the stock car racing fan's week. There are a number of racing events within relatively close driving distance from Fort Benning.

At the new controversial Talladega (Ala.) superspeedway, we find a 300-mile Nascar late-model sportsman race Saturday and Sunday. There's the ARCA Vulcan 500, a late-model ('67 and newer) event. Before I attempt to explain what this myriad of words and abbreviations means let me mention that Sunday will also find a big 500-mile Grand National at the North Carolina Motor Speedway (Rockingham, N. C.). This race on the recently resurfaced one-mile oval will once again bring together the Nascar super star "circus" of drivers. All of the big names and factory cars will be there.

If your interest in driving is perked up, the trip to Talladega takes 2½ to 3 hours. And for the really brave, Rockingham is 6 to 7 hours via interstate highways.

The time required for either excursion is of course dependent upon the amount of traffic encountered on the highway and the posted speed limits. Talladega is well worth the journey. It's best to travel from Fort Benning on Alabama 280-231.

NOW to help out with some definitions:

STOCK CARS — Basically four-passenger sedans in various states of modification, even the most "stock" stock car is usually bare inside so it can be strengthened structurally and fitted with a strong "cage" to protect the driver. "Stock" refers to mass-produced cars, parts, etc., readily available to the public. Depending on the club governing the event, stock cars are called "Grand Nationals," "modifieds," late model "sports man," "touring cars," "sedans," or, simply "stock cars."

NASCAR, ARCA, USAC, NHRA, SCCA, are the initials of some of the clubs governing auto racing in this country. Nascar and ARCA specialize in stock car races. Nascar primarily on super-speedways in the southern states. ARCA is primarily a mid-western stock car organization running on dirt track and paved oval speedways. USAC handles the championship, midget and sprint car races. Indianapolis is the big USAC race. USAC has a stock car division which also operates mainly in the mid-west.

NHRA concentrates on "drag" races over paved straightaways or "Drag strips." These "races" are acceleration trials, in which cars reach speeds up to and exceeding 200 mph in less than a quarter-mile.

SCCA governs amateur road racing a well as sponsoring three major professional championship series CAN-AM, TRANS-AM, — CONTINENTAL). SCCA has some 100 local regions (chapters) which non-racing "solo events."

ON THE SCENE

Dan Gurney, in a move to make his Can-Am effort competitive switched to Chevy power in his reworked McLaren. "Daring Dan" will be on his home track this weekend - at the Riverside Can-Am. Unfortunately look for another McLaren-Hulme 1-2 finish.

Coming Up Nov. 7-11 is the Atlanta Auto Show, to be held at the Atlanta Civic Center. Look for a "specialty car" show featuring sports cars, super cars, racing cars and vintage cars to be held in Columbus some time in early 1970. Sponsor will be Chavaga Region SCCA.

Come January there will be no more "Pure" gasoline stations in America. They'll all become "Union 76" in a massive changeover which will be heavily publicized. You heard this scoop first in this paper.

Harris Wins Golf Tournament

By Pvt Steve Zimmerman

The final 36-hole championship round of the Officers Fall Golf Tournament was completed Sunday and Dick Harris, who trailed most of the way, emerged the victor over Charles Bridwell.

Harris trailed by as many as three strokes during the first 18 holes of match play. Then, during the final eighteen holes played in the afternoon, he finally managed to pull even with Bridwell and went up a stroke as they started play on the third nine.

Bridwell fell behind an additional point in each of the next four holes, thus putting the game out of his reach. The final four holes were unnecessary.

In the consolation playoff of the championship round Paul Kirkegard defeated last year's runner-up Bob Himes.

Ohio State Still Number One

Trojans Drop To Seventh Place

A tie is not only like kissing your sister, it doesn't satisfy the football voters either and thus Southern California and Notre Dame failed to woo the pollsters in this week's major college rankings.

After their 14-14 deadlock last Saturday, Southern Cal dropped from third to seventh in The Associted Press rankings released Monday while the Irish fell one place to 12th from the top 10.

Tennessee used Alabama to make the biggest inroad in the rankings by surging from seventh to third after whomping the Crimson Tide 41-14.

Ohio State lost a few points from the previous week but easily returned to top ranking with 27 first place votes and 666 points after clobbering Minnesota 34-7.

Texas retained No. 2, after an idle Saturday, with five top ballots and 612 points. The difference between the two was 716-638 the week before.

Arkansas, also idle, remained fourth with 417 behind Tennessee's one top vote and 435 points.

Penn State, which dropped three spots to eighth after narrowly beating Syracuse 15-14, had the only other first place vote in the balloting by sportswriters and broadcasters throughout the country.

Other changes in the first 10 moved Missouri up one place to fifth and UCLA from eighth to sixth. Louisiana State and Florida remained ninth and 10th respectively as none of the top 10 has been beaten.

In the second 10 Purdue and Mississippi made the biggest jumps in places to 15th and 17th, respectively, while Michigan, 13th last week, and Alabama, No. 20, dropped out after losses. The new teams are Kansas State, No. 18, and Air Force, No. 20.

COMPUTER CORNER

By Bud Goode

Mad as a heifer in a patch of loco weed—that's the picture of the avid college football fan. The new season has opened. Can the electronic computer help separate the winners and losers—and in the process, settle the weekly attack of nervous hives suffered by the wild-eyed fan?

"Computer Corner" poured three years of college game statistics into our Univac sports analyzer and came up with those important statistics which should help you separate winners and losers:

First Quarter Score	6	2
Second Quarter Score	7	2
Third Quarter Score	6	3
Fourth Quarter Score	7	3
Final Score	26	10
First Downs	19	13
RUNNING YARDS	200	105
Passing Yards	125	122
Passes Completed	9	10
Passes Attempted	18	22
PER CENT COMPLETED	51	41
PASSES INTERCEPTED BY	2	1
PUNTS	5	7
Average Yards Per Punt	38	32
Fumbles lost	1.3	1.6
Penalties	52	41

According to our computer analysis, college football is a RUNNING game, not a passing game. The average winning team gains 200 yards on the ground—the average loser gains only 105 yards on the ground. By way of example, last year's Rose Bowl winner, Ohio State, averaged 310 yards per game rushing. USC with O. J. Simpson, averaged 250 yards per game. Ohio State won the War of the Roses by 11 points.

The interception is the second most important statistic in separating winners from losers. Where the average winning team will pick off two passes, the losers snag only one. An extra interception will win 80% of the games.

From the first game to the 14th game last year, the Los Angeles Rams' defensive secondary lost steam. If George Allen's defensive backfield continues to go downhill the Rams will end the year with the strength of a rained-on bee.

According to the Sports Computer, the one most important statistic in predicting a team's standing at season's end is the number of opponent points they allow per pass attempt.

The Rams started last season giving up only one-third of a point per pass. They ended the year allowing almost two-thirds of a point—little better than league average.

In their five pre-season games the Rams have continued to sink on this defensive statistic. Going into their opening game with Baltimore the Ram's defense now allows more than two-thirds of a point per pass.

Basic Trainee HasFootball Future

By Spec 4 Chester Hilburn

Speed, size, and agility — along with a vast knowledge of the game — this is what it takes for a college player to make the grade in professional football.

Possessing these assets for becoming a professional star is Private Dennis, R. Nelson, reservist from Keanee, Ill., who is taking basic training with Company A, 8th Battalion, 2nd Brigade, U. S. Army Training Center. Before entering the Army, Nelson played with the Baltimore Colts in pre-season competition this year.

The talented 6'5", 255-pound offensive tackle was chosen in the third round of this year's college draft, signing for a substantial cash bonus with the Colts.

Nelson was a student at Illinois State University from 1965-68 where he as first team little All-American at offensive tackle in 1968.

During his sophomore, junior, and senior years at Illinois State, the big lineman was selected to the collegiate all-state team. In his senior year, along with being chosen little All-American, he was on the All-Interstate Conference Team as both a defensive and offensive tackle.

Playing behind all-pro offensive tackle Bob Vogle of the Colts during this year's pre-season schedule, Private Nelson learned much about the fierce competition of big league football.

Nelson was asked why many athletes — stars while in college — fail to make it in the pro ranks.

"Many players just can't make the adjustment from college to professional football. No matter how good a player may be in college, he is still primarily drafted on his potential rather than ability. With the tremendous amount of talent the pros have to pick from today, one has to improve his skills in order to make the squad."

Nelson believes the mental adjustment is by far the most difficult to make.

"To be able to execute a play properly in professional football takes a very alert and keen mind. There is no such thing as sub-par intelligence in the pro ranks. It's an entirely new system a player must face after college, encompassing many complicated and varied techniques. Most of the players have their degrees, and many even have their masters."

How do professional players ready themselves mentally for a game? "It's not as hard for a professional team to get ready for a game as it is for a college one," Nelson says. "Professional players aren't playing just for glory as they did in college. It's a living for them here and if they want to make a success out of their vocation they must give it 100 per cent at all times."

Wigger, Murdock Star In International Shoot

The 9th Invitational International Championships finished and the results were tabulated to show that the United States Army Shooters were first in almost every event.

The 40th World Shooting Championships which are to be held in Phoenix, Arizona in 1970 are being prepared for by its dress rehearsal the 9th Invitational International Championships. This is a prelude to the world series of shooting, where the best come to see who is the better shooter.

In 1970 the 40th Championships will be held in the United States for the first time since the championships began. Shooting for sport is an age old tradition in Europe and the winners of such matches are highly regarded. It has been just within recent years that the United States was able to accommodate International shooting both in the field of shooters and in its facilities. And now for the first time as many as 50 nations will be competing for honors in the 1970 World Championships held in the United States.

In 1961 the first United States International Championships were fired at Fort Benning, Georgia, the home of the All Army Shooting Team. Fort Benning was the only place in the states that had a complete international installation at that time.

The 9th Invitational International championships fired at Phenix was host to some 13 nations such as Japan, Poland, Germany, etc. and held some 14 events. Some of the top shooters in these events were shooters like Maj. Lones W. Wigger Jr., Capt. Margaret Murdock, SFC John P. Kingeter, and Sp5 Anthony J. Rosetti.

International Skeet, International Clay Pigeon, International Running Boar, Pistol and Rifle were some of the types of shooting displayed. Sp5 Rosetti proved his worth by placing first in several of the Skeet matches and also placing first in the aggregate, a total of the matches fired. SFC Kingeter and MSgt Loyd G. Crow Jr. were predominate in the Running Boar Matches and placed first or second place in most all of the matches. SSgt Barbara Alle was a champion in the pistol portion of the Championships. Maj. Lones W. Wigger and Capt. Margaret Murdock were the top shooters for the rifle.

past days, but even the hatchet men in Washington had to respect the job he had done for their club. It is always nice to see a rookie make good and that goes double for one of the greatest players of all time.

It is quite fitting and proper that Gil Hodges be named the National League's Manager of the Year, for he was New York's Pied Piper who played a tune of "The Impossible Dream" and made it come true. Yet let us not forget one of the truly great masters of the old game, Leo Durocher. This 63-year-old guy has mellowed in recent years but the cognomen of The Lip still folds fast.

He was "The Lip" back in the 1930's when the St. Louis Cardinals were known as The Gashouse Gang and he stayed "The Lip" through the years because that was how he played the game—with scrap and fire. He managed the Brooklyn Dodgers to a pennant in 1941, pulled off The Miracle at Coogan's Bluff with the New York Giants in 1951 and won his last pennant in 1954 with the Giants, going on to sweep the Cleveland Indians four straight in the World Series. He came so close this year that the Champagne taste must still be in his mouth.

1969 UG Donations Soar To 55 Per Cent of Goal

By SFC Richard Kemp

Contributions to the United Givers 1969 fund campaign here have soared to $110,437.72 as of Oct. 17.

A spokesman for the post's UG drive coordinator said the figure is 53 per cent of the fair share goal of $205,000. Contributions are running about $5,000 ahead of those received by this time last year.

In addition, the spokesman said the Infantry Human Research Unit has become the tenth unit to attain 100 per cent of its fair share objective.

With five more weeks to go, the spokesman said, "At this point, we are satisfied with the progress of the fund campaign."

From the standpoint of total dollar contributions, the Training Center leads with more than $19,000... Running second and third respectively are the 197th Infantry Bde. and The Candidate Bde. of the Infantry School.

Both of these organizations have turned in more than $15,000 each. Less than $500 in contributions separates them.

From the percentage view point, the Infantrymen of the 197th lead the post. They have donated more than 75 per cent of their fair share goal.

Test Board Will Display, Demonstrate Weapons

By Rex Ellis

The past, present and future in Infantry weapons will be displayed by the Infantry Board Friday when they observe their "half century of testing at Fort Benning."

Visitors on hand for the special celebration will view weapons from the three periods of time. These weapons will include the Browning Machine Rifle of the 1920s; a Special Trench-warfare helmet with 1925 dateline; the M1 rifle of World War II fame; and the M14 rifle of the early Republic of Vietnam war era.

The eye-opener of the year will be on display along with those of the present era. The modern weapons will include the M16A1 rifle; the XM203 weapon system; and the M72 LAW.

The eye-oepner of the day will come for the visitors when they view the futuristic Infantry weapons. These will include the SPIW; XM174 Automatic 40-mm Gun; Colt and STONER Machine Gun which are all new proposals for the "Queen of Battle," the Infantry.

In addition guests will view some of the latest innovations in antitank weapons such as TOW and DRAGON.

The test board will hold firing demonstrations of the Colt, the STONER Machine Gun and some of the other future weapons. The DRAGON and TOW cannot be fired there due to range limitations.

The static display and demonstration of the Infantry weaponry will commence at 9 a.m. at Farnsworth Range off Dixie Road.

Special guests expected for the big demonstration and 50th Anniversary will include Mayor J. R. Allen of Columbus, Lt. Gen. (Ret) Reuben E. Jenkins and Maj. Gen. Orwin C Talbott, post commanding general. General Jenkins is a former president of the Infantry Board.

Friday noon, the Infantry Board will host the special guests at a luncheon to be held in the Officer's Club. For the guests' information and pleasure, the luncheon hall has been outlined with pictorial displays of weapons and personnel of the test board's Fort Benning era.

Saturday the test board will throw open "its doors" to welcome its own "family" home. This event will be in the form of a picnic to be held on the Infantry Board's picnic area off Sightseeing Road.

Guests for the day will include all the military and civilian employes of the board along with their dependents.

Mother Accepts Medals For Her Killed Son

PFC Wayne Y. Stewart, Warner Robins, Ga., who lost his life in the Republic of Vietnam April 7 was honored in a posthumous award ceremony here.

His mother, Mrs. Mildred A. Stewart accepted, on behalf of her son, a Bronze Star Medal with oak leaf cluster and "V" for valor, the Purple Heart, Good Conduct Medal and Combat Infantryman Badge.

The action for which Stewart was decorated for valor took place while he was on a sweep and clear mission with Co. C, 1st Bn., 5th Infantry, in Vietnam.

He and two other members of the company had moved forward to retrieve wounded companions. While the wounded were being returned to the rear area, Stewart was fatally wounded.

The citation, read at the private award ceremony, stated that "Private Stewart's personal bravery, aggressiveness and devotion to duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, the 25th Infantry Division and the United States Army."

Prior to his death, Stewart had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, Expert Badge with machine gun bar, Sharpshooter Badge with rifle bar and the Marksman Badge with automatic rifle bar.

Musical Will Open

AUBURN, Ala.—A musical which has a long Broadway run will open Oct. 31 in Auburn University's Little Theater on College street.

"Stop The World I Want To Get Off," which is in rehearsal now, is directed by Leo A. Comeau of the Auburn University Department of Theater.

The show will run through Nov. 15 with the exception of Nov. 9 and Nov. 20-22. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

The show, which had rave review when it played on Broadway, was also made into a movie. Written by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley, both productions starred Newley, who appeared at Auburn in "Smell of the Greasepaint, Roar of the Crowd."

Extra Area For Parking To Help at Hall

If you have had difficulty in finding a parking place in Infantry Hall's huge parking lots recently, it's because of the large number of classes now in session in the Infantry section in the Infantry School.

The situation was not relieved any with the beginning of an additional advanced class.

Any additional event such as a graduation or post-wide formation in Marshall Auditorium goes even further toward overtaxing an already filled parking area.

To alleviate this situation, headquarters commandant has arranged for temporary parking areas in the vicinity of Building 2782 and Carey Pool to be used to take care of overflow parking as required.

DIRECT COMMISSIONS

Col. Jack L. Conn, deputy director of Weapons department, addressed 71 graduates of the Infantry Mortar Platoon Leaders Class No. 2 in ceremonies at infantry Hall.

Honored as the distinguished graduate was 2nd Lt. Glenn A. Briggs, a recent graduate of the 54th Co., OCS, here at Fort Benning.

Featured among 23 other honor graduates was Airman First Class Roy J. Angle, 82nd Combat Security Police School, Fort Cambell, Ky., the first NCO to be so honored.

Noting that three-fourths of the graduates would soon be on their way to the Republic of Vietnam, Colonel Conn stressed safety as the number one prerequisite for a good mortar platoon leader.

Praising the graduates, he said "this class had twice the number of honor graduates (24) as the average of the last five classes."

The 66th Co., 6th Student Bn., The Candidate Bde's touch football team won its opening game against the 60th (OC) Co. at Peden Field 13-7.

After a first half plagued with faulty pass protection and a deficit of only one point, the 66th came on strong on defense and with a spirited offense spearheaded by quarterback Frank English.

MOST GOLF PROS RECOMMEND that a right-handed golfer keep his left arm straight during the course of a swing. But Bert Yancey is opposed to any elbow-bending. Giving a talk to fledgling tournament players on "How to Improve Your Game," he mentioned the importance of practice and a winning mental attitude.

Then as a clincher he said, "Don't drink. Golf and drinking, like driving and drinking, don't mix."

This free tip will come as a shocking blow to those duffers who do their best scoring at the 19th hole. And, if taken seriously, it could cause bankruptcy to many deluxe country clubs that depend on bar tabs to keep out of the red.

Don't be surprised if Yancey gets himself picketed by the brewers' union, the United Olive Farmers and the International Federation of Glass-Blowers.

CAPTIVE AUDIENCE

Articulate sports figures make dandy after-dinner speakers. Much in demand, of course, are big names like current MVP's or old pros such as Lefty Gomez and Joe Garagiola. But one of the most popular is not nearly that famous—Peter Carlesimo, Fordham U's athletic director. He knocks off about 150 speaking engagements a year,

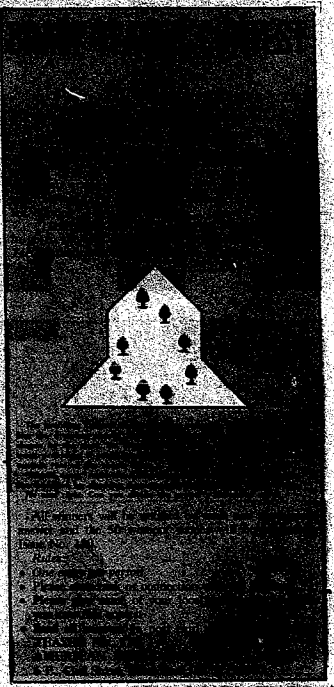
When you remove your beard
you shouldn't remove your face.



Today's super-duper razor blades are meant to cut whiskers. They can also do a job on the skin underneath the whiskers.

To help keep you from butchering yourself—this is the reason for Rise.® And why we put a thin lubricating film into it that gets between your blade and your skin.

Put Rise on your face before you shave, and maybe you won't have to put toilet paper on your face after it.

Save Face.

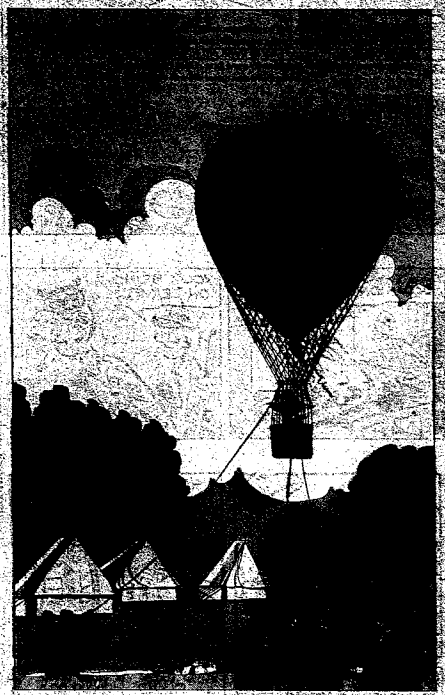
Bet you didn't know...



The first woman assisted away surgeon was Dr. Mary Edwards Walker, who served in the Union Army as a surgeon from March, 1864, to June, 1865. She insisted on wearing the same uniform as the male officers, and her only concession to her sex was the arrangement of her hair in curls. In 1866, she was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, but this was revoked in 1917, since her records did not substantiate the specific acts for which the decoration was originally intended.

And did you know...

If you'd rather be doing something else in the Army, or serving in some other part of the world, the choice is yours. When you reenlist. And you might not have to wait.

Reenlistment options offer you your choice of schools, training or station. And the chance to pick up some extra money, too. You may be able to get the duty you want along with a regular bonus and a Variable Reenlistment Bonus.

Check it out. See your Career Counselor.

He'll help you change course if you think you should. Tell you what you might be better qualified for. A new MOS. Another duty station. And he'll tell you how much cash you'll get.

He might also tell you that you can reenlist right away. Without finishing your current hitch. The choice is all yours. Maybe sooner than you think. Maybe right now. Look into it.

Your future, your decision...stay ARMY.

SUPER STAINLESS

Schick Super Stainless Blade magnified 680X

Super stainless is not complete protection against corrosion. This, for instance, is a corroded section of a plastic-coated Schick super stainless edge after five shaves, magnified 680 times. It's rough, pitted, corroded.

CHROMIUM

Schick Krona-Chrome Blade magnified 680X

This is a section of the new plastic-coated, 8-point Chrome chromium edge after five shaves, magnified 680 times. As you can see, chromium more effectively resists blade bacteria due to corrosion.

Only Schick Krona-Chrome has the chromium edge.

HELL'S ANGELS

Motorcycle buffs constantly complain that their sport doesn't get due recognition in the press. The American Motorcycle Association conducts 40,000 contests and races a year with about 100,000 men and women competing. Yet when a cycle gets mentioned in the papers, it's usually in connection with somebody being chain-whipped by a bearded baboon in a leather jacket.

Sad but true, the American public, many newspaper editors included, is not in love with the gas bike. It's an honorable (if noisy) vehicle, but most folks picture it with a hell-raising bully in the saddle. Oh noble motorcycle, you are, alas, another victim of guilt by association.

Chance Meeting With 'Friend' Brings Back Memories

By Sgt Robert Merkin

A young infantryman, now with Hq. and Hq. Co., 196th Infantry Bde., recently ran into an "old friend" from the Republic of Vietnam — post commander, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott.

On a recent trip to the 196th Infantry Bde. Headquarters at Chu Lai, Hill, General Talbott spotted the First Infantry Division patch on Sp4 Frank Carecia's shoulder and asked the soldier what unit of the Big Red One he had served with and when he'd left Vietnam.

The general, formerly commander of the First Infantry Division, exchanged a few more words with the soldier and went on, but the meeting brought back more than a few memories for Carecia. It was not the first time he had met General Talbott.

The previous meeting had been on the morning after a fierce fire fight, a five-hour assault on Carecia's night defensive position 35 kilometers from the base camp of the First of the 28th ("Black Lions") in Lai Khe.

With "eleven days and a wake-up" left to go on his Vietnam tour, Carecia was sitting in a bunker when the Echo Co. Recon Platoon made the first contact with what was to prove a sizeable Viet Cong force.

The Recon Platoon called in mortar and artillery fire on the enemy as the Viet Cong began their barrage on the night defensive position (N.D.P.) at the stroke of midnight.

"It seemed like forever," Carecia recalled, "but it was more like 20 or 30 minutes, I guess. I said, 'Listen to that fifty (caliber machine gun),' but it wasn't a fifty. It was individual mortars, that was how fast they were coming in."

During the course of the night, the Viet Cong approached the N.D.P. perimeter, hiding behind logs and gasoline drums, but were kept out with beehive rounds and small arms fire, supported by artillery from the N.D.P. and Lai Khe base camp, and Huey helicopters, supplanted later by C-47 "Spookies" with miniguns.

Before the battle ended at dawn, the N.D.P. ammunition dump had taken a direct enemy hit, a 105mm howitzer had been taken out of action and from

Benning Hosts Training Meet

By Marian Jones

The Infantry Center and Fort Benning played host this week to personnel attending the sixth U.S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) Foreign Military Training Conference.

These conferences were begun in 1963 as an aid for personnel who have direct responsibility in administering foreign student training in CONARC.

Included among the 69 conferees were Brig. Gen. T. H. Andrews, acting deputy chief of staff for Individual Training at CONARC, Ft. Monroe, Va., and Brig. Gen. C. T. Baldwin, deputy director of International and Civil Affairs, deputy chief of staff for Military Operations, Department of the Army.

Conference project officer was Mrs. J. W. Grichacz, chief, Foreign Military Training Branch, Programming Division, Programs and Resources Directorate, CONARC.

In his opening speech to the conference, General Andrews stated the objectives of the conference: To consider research emphasis on the foreign military training and orientation programs with the objective of improving content and methods; to develop new methods of overcoming problem areas in the administration of the over-all foreign military training program; and to provide an opportunity for foreign training officers to become familiar with the overall military assistance program.

Items discussed covered subjects relating to policies, guidance and new concepts and procedures.

Col. Kelly Describes Special Forces Role

By Spt Jim Doherty

The role of the Special Forces soldier in the development of community leadership and the improvement of local conditions was the theme of a speech by Col. Francis J. Kelly to a reunion of Green Berets from throughout the Southeast.

The reunion was held Thursday night at the Fort Benning Officers Club.

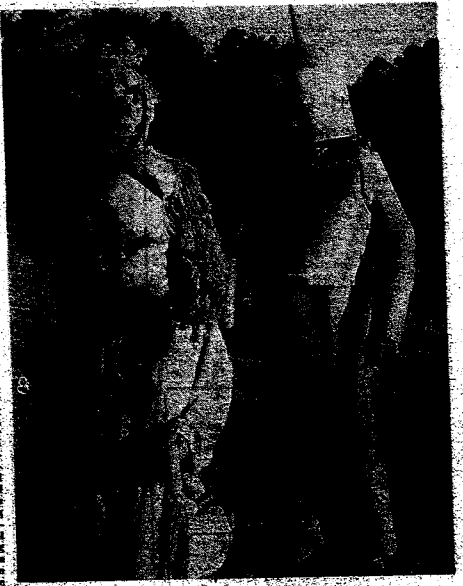
Colonel Kelly, director of the Combat Developments Command Institute of Strategic and Stability Operations at Fort Bragg, N.C., emphasized that the Green Berets must train to do more than defeat the enemy militarily.

He must strive to help each community within his area of operation become strong enough politically and socially to resist any possible invasion or insurrection, the colonel said.

Kelly has served with Special Forces units in Okinawa and the Republic of Vietnam. He has directed the training of several of the Special Forces units which are now fighting in that country.

A former patrolman on the beat for the New York Police Department, Colonel Kelly entered the Army as an enlisted man and worked his way up through the ranks. He earned a bachelors degree from the University of North Carolina under the Army's advanced education program, graduating Phi Beta Kappa with a major in political science.

Later he earned a masters degree in international relations from Georgetown University.



HALLOWEEN PARADE

Their costumes will be on others this afternoon when the three characters from the Wizard of Oz join this year's parade to mark the opening of the 1969 Halloween Festival for children at Fort Benning. Instructors Will Display Communications Devices

By Sp4 Jim Doherty

The latest innovations in satellite communications devices will be displayed to Fort Benning Infantrymen Friday for the second straight day by a special team of Army instructors from the Satellite Communications Agency (SATCOM), Fort Monmouth, N.J.

The communications devices will be on display on Gardner Field, across from Infantry Hall starting at 1 p.m.

The instructors lectured earlier this week to students in the Infantry Officer Advanced Courses on the use of the equipment in combat situations.

Included among the equipment on display will be satellite communications terminals, power generators, model operations centers and experimental and functional communications terminals.

The instructors are part of a team of 300 military and civilian scientists from Fort Monmouth who have pioneered in space research and development.

They have participated in such scientific developments as SCORE, the world's first communications satellite in 1958; COURIER, the second active communications satellite center in 1960; several synchronous satellite systems; the Department of Defense Satellite Communications System; various experimental Army satellite tactical terminals, and the tactical satellite communications program.

SATCOM also developed the terminals which form the network of the nation's military satellite communications systems.

The operations center of the Agency's headquarters at Fort Monmouth is the focal point for test programs which determine the technical capabilities and operational readiness of satellite systems.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King
King's Pizza On Call

Pumpkins are delicious prepared the same ways as their cousins in the winter squash family. Hint: They're easier to pare after they're cut into pieces, rather than before.

Codfish is now at its peak season in Gloucester, Mass., the codfish capital of the world, it's known as "Cape Cod turkey."

Bury several vanilla beans in a jar of sugar. Keep the sugar on hand for use in after-dinner coffee.

Smashing Mashed: Whip some grated cheddar cheese and butter into hot mashed potatoes and top with crisp bacon bits.

It was the noted French chef, Brillat-Savarin, who first said, "Tell me what you eat, and I'll tell you what you are."

Brillat-Savarin would tell you you're a gourmet if you told him you eat our specialties at

ROTC AT COLLEGES

What colleges and universities in the U.S. have abolished ROTC?

The last college to disestablish Army ROTC was Centenary College of Louisiana in 1961. On Aug. 11, 1969, the Department of the Army announced that ROTC at Harvard and Dartmouth would be terminated at the end of the 1969-70 school year. This fall Army ROTC units are located on 283 campuses, an increase of 15 over the fall of 1968.

ROTC GRADUATES

How many ROTC graduates were there in June, 1969. How many of these ROTC graduates have already gone to the Republic of Vietnam?

There were 9,262 officers commissioned from ROTC in the May-June, 1969, period. (Figure of 16,306 ROTC Graduates covered the entire FY 69.)

Graduates since January, 1969, are not yet eligible for duty in Vietnam. After graduation, the new officers await a call to active duty, then attend basic course and specialized training and then serve in a mandatory six-month troop duty assignment. Thus, officers are in the service for a period ranging from 9-12 month prior to assignment overseas.

ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS

How many three-year scholarships are being added to the Army's ROTC scholarship program during the school year 1970-71?

Four hundred three-year scholarships will be added to the scholarship program during 1970-71. Primary purpose is to allow more students to compete for these awards after entering college. Gen. Westmoreland's View

Equal Opportunity, Treatment

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are excerpts from a speech by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, on equal opportunity and the treatment of military personnel.)

"I would like to make known my view on matters of equal opportunity and treatment of military personnel, recognizing that these are responsibilities of commanders and leaders at all levels."

"We can all be proud of the Army's record in providing equal opportunities for all its people. The Army has probably made more progress within its ranks than any other major group in American society; however, there is a continuing need for a close analysis of potential problems in this area.

"Aggressive command action is necessary to preclude any outcropping of racial turbulence that could adversely affect harmonious relationships. It is a continuing responsibility of commanders at all levels to assure every soldier equal opportunity and treatment."

"The need for effective communication on these matters between commanders and soldiers on all levels cannot be overemphasized. Problems result not so much from what the stated policy is but rather from what the soldiers believe it to be. Consequently, there can be a great difference between fact and opinion.

"Our old ways of thinking about, and communicating on, racial matters must be re-examined. The standard indicators which we have relied upon in the past to assess morale and discipline are not sufficient today. As part of a society that is undergoing rapid change, the Army must become more sensitive to the soldier's desire to be recognized for his personal worth, dignity and pride."

"Racial harmony will not occur automatically. Every month thousands of recruits take their places in the Army ranks; they come from varying economic and social backgrounds. They must be informed of the contents of Army Regulation 600-21 which deals with the subject of equal opportunity and treatment of military personnel.

"It must be clearly understood by all soldiers that the Army has made a firm commitment to continuing the task of removing every vestige of discrimination which affects the American soldier and his dependents. The same mutual trust and respect so manifest on the battlefield must pervade all Army installations and activities."

"We of the Army are proud of our heritage and our contributions to the furtherance of our national goals. I expect all soldiers to take pride in insuring fairness and equal opportunity for all as we pursue our important mission of providing security for our great country."

Marijuana Puff May Last Long Time

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following was condensed from an article by Col. William Wolfendon, 99 Combat Support Group, commander, in the July 11, 1969, issue of the Westover AFB Newspaper, The Yankee Flyer.)

• • •

How long will one puff on a marijuana cigarette last you? It could last for five years.

Article 134 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice provides for prosecution by court-martial of any military member who, without authority, possesses, sells, transfers, uses or brings onto a military base any marijuana or narcotic drug.

The penalties for these offenses range as high as a dishonorable discharge, confinement for five years and loss of all pay and allowances. If the drug is habit-forming, confinement may be as high as ten years.

Possession is physical control or dominion over the substance. In plain language, you have it on your person or in your belongings, and you know it.

The mere fact of possession is unlawful and establishes a presumption that you have it for an illegal purpose.

Sale or transfer means giving the drug or marijuana to someone else, whether it be for money or not. Bringing it onto a military base for whatever illegal purpose is, in itself, a crime.

Use is simple — if you take it illegally, you are a user.

If the temptation should ever arise or your curiosity should sway you, stop and think. Then ask yourself if the possibility of momentary pleasure or unusual experience is worth the risk of grave penalties.

How long will that puff on a marijuana cigarette last you? (AFPS)

Helping Hand Is Available

Some men are born into wealthy families and never really have to worry about earning a living. Most men, however, have to work hard to make ends meet and get ahead in the very competitive industrial world. To attain these goals, most can use whatever help they can get or that's offered.

Project Transition is the Department of Defense's "helping hand" to a man who can use more education and wants to learn a trade. It is designed to give him, while serving his country, some of the assistance he may just need to move ahead to success.

If you are one of those who will have to get through life as best you can, why not begin now and help yourself with this volunteer program. It was established especially to give you that helping hand. (AFPS)

Leadership Department Wives Hold Luncheon Tuesday

Wives of officers of leadership department of The Infantry School held a demonstration of culinary art at noon last Tuesday in the Fort Benning Officers Club.

Following a social hour and the luncheon, Mrs. John A. Hoefling, president and wife of Col. John A. Hoefling, department director, welcomed newcomers and presented departees with illustrated copies of the poem, "The Army Wife."

Mrs. Hoefling then introduced honored guests and presented each of them with a copy of the poem. Honored guests were Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, wife of the commanding general, and Mrs. Oscar E. Davis, wife of the commanding general of the Training Center.

Mrs. Robert C. Slover introduced the guest speaker, Monsieur Marcel Carles, French chef, who demonstrated the preparation of Steak Diane and Bananas Flambe' to the 38 ladies in attendance.

Monsieur Carles, a native of France, is a graduate of the hotel and restaurant school of Paris.

He is a former member of the Army and a local YMCA instructor in judo and the art of self defense.

For the past five years, he has taught a gourmet cooking class for the OWC and is a member of several chef and culinary associations.

Following the program, Miss Mary Kathleen Duff, 4-year-old daughter of Maj. John A. Duff, and Master Brian Keith Emery, 4-year-old son of Maj. Douglas E. Emery centered, dressed as pumpkins, carrying a plastic pumpkin filled with numbers for the door prize drawing, and proceeded to Mrs. Talbott, who drew the winning numbers.

Decorations were in an Autumn and Halloween theme. In the area where the social hour was held, wooden screens were covered with seasonal cutouts and occasional tables held bowls of nuts.

Mrs. Douglas E. Emery, chairman of the leadership wives project for the OWC Christmas Bazaar arranged a display of a few of the paper mache candleholders the ladies have made for the bazaar.

Indian corn signifying a fruitful year, adorned the entrance to the Corregidor Room where the luncheon was held.

A U-shaped table was covered with yellow tablecloths. Pyracanthra sprigs with berries and English ivy were interwined down the center of the tables, and miniature paper honeycomb pumpkins were scattered throughout the garland.

Each table held a centerpiece of yellow and maroon chrysanthemums, bunches of grapes, dried leaves and wheat in bollowed out pumpkins. These centerpieces were later given as door prizes.

Hostesses for the luncheon were the ladies of the leadership committee, Mrs. Fred K. Mahaffey, chairman; Mrs. Douglas E. Emery, Mrs. Harry J. Assenberg, Mrs. John A. Duff, decorations chairman; Mrs. James P. Hales, Mrs. Graham Avera and Mrs. Robert C. Stover.

Also, Mrs. James A. Kline, Mrs. Thomas E. Lutchendorf, Mrs. James R. Smith, Mrs. Richard L. Cobb, Mrs. Larry J. Zeedyk, Mrs. Kirby L. Throckmorton and Mrs. Hubert G. Hess.

Many Join Pageantry For Feast

Children dressed in costumes of 24 different countries, the 29th U. S. Army Band, the Infantry Chorus, an Infantry Candidate honor guard and members of the Catholic Ladies Sodality and the St. James Spanish Society, all were part of the pageantry which commemorated the Roman Catholic feast of Christ the King here last Sunday.

The service was conducted in Marshall Auditorium at Infantry Hall. Officiating was Chaplain (Lt. Col) Michael H. Rusnock, Headquarters, Third U. S. Army.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Francis Kovacic of The Student Bde. initiated the celebration at Fort Benning last year as an international recognition of Christ the King.

The feast, which was originated by Pope Pius XI in the 1920s, signifies the unification of all men under Christ the King.

ROTC Cadet Given Battalion

The son of a Fort Benning officer was assigned as second battalion commander of the U.S. Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) at Mercer University in Macon, Ga.

Cadet Lt. Col. Curtis L. Echols is a son of Maj. and Mrs. Curtis L. Echols Sr. of Columbus. Echols is the logistics and supply officer of The Candidate Bde. of the Infantry School here.

Selection of cadet battalion commanders is based on academic achievement in both college and military classes, leadership abilities displayed during the course of ROTC training, proven excellence at a six-week ROTC summer camp, and general aptitude for the military service.

Cadet Echols is a 1968 graduate of Carver High School in Columbus. At Mercer, he has been a member of the student Union board, the student government association, university appropriations committee, and is treasurer of the Scabbard and Blade National Military Honor Society.

In the Cadet Corps, he has been awarded several medals for outstanding performance while a member of the cadet drill team, which he commanded last year. He is also the recipient of an Army ROTC two - year scholarship.

Benning Helps Train Girl Scout Leaders

Developing better leadership for local Girl Scout activities was the goal of 30 troop leaders at Camp Hideaway here.

For the first time, the leadership training program has been given at Fort Benning. In the past, leaders for the 12 Girl Scout troops on the post have been trained by Concharty Girl Scout Council in Columbus.

First aid, fire building, trail marking, knots and flag ceremonies were a few of the activities practiced by the scout leaders.

Fire builders learned to build both A-frame fires and criss-cross frame fires.

Practical experience in outdoor cooking was another part of the program. During knife handling classes, each leader learned how to make a cooking stick. A dessert was cooked over an open fire, using the cooking stick.

Another group of leaders laid a trail through a densely wooded area and another group followed the trail back to camp. This taught the future troop leaders both tracking and hiking skills.

At the close of the day's activities, the women were invested as leaders and were made official Girl Scouts.

This new one-day program of outdoor training will provide local Girl Scouts with a dependable source of leaders in an area where the constant turnover of personnel has made adult guidance a problem.

The leaders will also be able to carry their knowledge on to other military installations.

Students 'Brush Up' To Combat Cavities

By Pvt. Steve Zimmerman

A class of about 25 kindergarteners at the Dexter School brushed away happily with a special new paste called Zircate which contains 9 per cent stannous fluoride.

Self-applied bi - annually, followed with daily brushings with regular stannous fluoride toothpaste, it is said to help increase cavity-prevention by 40-60 per cent.

Youngsters drinking fluoridated water (Fort Benning water is fluoridated) can expect up to 95 per cent cavity-resistance over a three-year period.

Zircate was introduced at all post schools last year. The procedure is followed every six months under the care of a dentist or registered dental hygienist provided a consent form is signed by the parents of the pupil.

Gen. Talbott Encourages Suggestions About Post

Speaking to a luncheon meeting of the Fort Benning chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association (AFMA), Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, encouraged the members to assist him by making sure that their ideas and suggestions get up to the proper level.

After giving the group an idea of the complexity of this Army post, General Talbott said, "You people here are the ones who make the machine work. You make the place go. If we don't make the system better, we are not accomplishing the job."

He promised those present he would be receptive to their suggestions.

Following his speech, General Talbott was presented a certificate naming him honorary president of AFMA by Col. James H. Snelling, AFMA president.

AFMA is composed of management-minded military and civilian executives who meet together monthly to discuss and hear guest speakers discuss matters of mutual interest and concern.

The chapter here holds a monthly luncheon on the third Thursday of each month from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Personnel interested in joining AFMA or who desire further information are asked to contact Colonel Snelling, 544-2593, or Dewey Posey, first vice president, 545-1281.

Basic Training Company Has Pride, 'Reputation To Live Up To'

By Mary R. Braswell

Anything contagious in the Training Center is generally isolated and stopped as fast as possible. But Co. C, 7th Bn., 2nd Bde., has something going and the more it spreads the better.

Call it pride, esprit de corps or "a reputation to live up to," as 1st Sgt. Max Moore termed it. Throughout the entire eight-week basic combat training cycle, not a single AWOL has occurred. Yet since the fourth week of training, anyone who has wanted a weekend pass has gotten it.

"The way I figure it," said Moore, "you treat a man with respect, feed him three good meals a day, pay him once a month and he'll do a good job."

Judging the company as one of the best he's seen in his 18 years' service, Moore attributed the good record to a combination of factors.

All the cadre, from battalion commander, Lt. Col. William G. Riggs, and company commander, Capt. John T. Parker, to SSgt. George J. Carbonle, mess sergeant, work well together, he said. Potential problems are talked out and long hours are put in particularly during the first few weeks.

Trainees, too, are encouraged to talk out their troubles, according to Moore. "We tell them when they're asked a question, to tell us what they think, not give us the answer they think we want to hear. You learn a lot that way," he added.

The enthusiasm of the cadre for the job they are doing — training young men, seeing them mature and assume responsibilities — is contagious. The trainees themselves are looking after each other and trying hard to live up to the reputation they've built.

Programming Course Graduates Seventeen

By Pvt. Steve Zimmerman

Seventeen persons, including officers, enlisted men and civilians here were graduated from the Easy Coder Programming Course.

The course was conducted by Miss Shirley Johnson, an assistant training representative of the Honeywell Computer Corp, which leases computers to the Office of Data Systems, Infantry School.

Miss Johnson was here at the invitation of Col. John B. Wine, chief of the Office of Data Systems. Coming from Honeywell's Education Director's Section in Arlington, Va., she supervised the two-week course in which she taught puter language.

As differentiated from the Common Business-man's Oriented Language (COBOL) which is closer to spoken English, the Easy Coder Language is far more complex and unintelligible to the laymen.

In the past the Office of Data systems would send students to Arlington or the instructional course at a cost of approximately $300 per student. However, the new policy is to invite the instructors here to administer at a substantial savings for the government.

Keepers of Records Also Perform in Field

By Sp5 Ken Starnenacker

The 524th Personnel Service Co. maintains the records for Center Troop Command, right?

Right. But only partially so.

In addition to its many functions involving the records of more than 5,000 of the post's permanent party personnel, the 524th must be ready at all times to perform in the field.

As a TO & E unit, the 524th maintains its own vehicles and much of its own equipment necessary for field operations. The "field Army" side rather than the "office Army" side showed up recently when Col. Charles H. Reidenbaugh, CTC commander, inspected the 524th in its field capacity.

Wearing fatigues instead of their normal duty Class A uniforms, the men of the 524th held rifles rather than files and looked across a row of M-60 machine guns rather than desks.

Even in the field, however, the 524th would not function primarily as a line Infantry unit, but would still act in its normal capacity as a personnel services outfit.

But for one day, the records, the files, the desks and the Class A uniforms were put aside as vehicles, weapons and field equipment reminded the men of the 524th of their dual role in the Army.

Meritorious Service Medal Given Retired Sergeant Major

The award was presented to Command Sgt. Maj. Warren A. Paulk, formerly assigned to Fort Benning, and a Columbus resident who works at the National Bank of Fort Benning.

The Meritorious Service Medal is given to military men in recognition of non-combat service.

Paulk was cited for outstanding meritorious service while assigned as command sergeant major, 1st Bn., Center Troop Command, staff sergeant major, Office of the Secretary, Infantry School, and command sergeant major, The Student Bde., Infantry School, Fort Benning.

"During this period" the citation read, in part, "Command Sergeant Major Paulk distinguished himself through the application of extraordinary ability over long hours to insure the successful completion of all missions. In each assignment, he displayed the superlative devotion to duty and the keen military proficiency which have so well marked his career."

"In both duty performance and community participation, he served as an example of professionalism to his fellow soldiers," it added.

Meeting With General Talbott Brings Back Memories

eight to ten Americans had been killed.

A sweep of the area outside the N.D.P. turned up a few Viet Vong killed, but the rest, in typical fashion, had been dragged from the battlefield by the retreating force.

Finally, Carecccia turned to his personal cleanup and inspection and hit the low point of his Vietnam tour. Hanging on a rack behind his bunker were his five sketch books — a commercial artist in civilian life, he had faithfully lugged them along, drawing scenes of Vietnam and the war whenever he found an extra minute.

With only ten days to go until safety, the sketch books had taken an enemy bullseye with something heavy enough to demolish the drawings to shreds. And if that wasn't enough, a New York State flag that Carecccia had also carried throughout his war had also been hit, so that only the "P" and the "R" of the state motto, "Excelsior" could be identified.

About that time, a helicopter soared down to the N.D.P., and General Talbott came to survey the scene. Walking through the battle-scarred area, he came on Carecccia and asked him how things were going.

Looking around him, Carecccia answered, "It isn't going worth a whole heck of a lot, sir."

"Are you getting short?" the general asked him.

"Sure am, sir," he answered. "Ten days to go, sir."

"Why aren't you back at Lai Khe clearing?" the general asked.

Carecccia replied he was told First Division policy didn't bring a soldier out of the field until he was seven days short.

The general, Carecccia recalls, mumbled something about "The heck it does" or "We'll see about that" and went off.

And that afternoon Carecccia and a few of his buddies with the same time left to serve in Vietnam were choppered back to Lai Khe to start processing out of Vietnam...

So, after meeting his "old friend" from Vietnam again at 197th Infantry Bde. headquarters, Carecccia thought for a while and decided to write General Talbott a letter that night.

He wrote the general about how good it had been to see him again, and how much their first conversation in the demolished N.D.P. had meant. Commenting on how much he had enjoyed serving under the general in Vietnam, he underscored the risks all the members of the Big Red One had gone through.

"I was glad to see you made it back," Carecccia wrote, "because after General Ware was hit, we were all worried about everyone, from the lowest man to the top ranks."

(Maj. Gen. Keith Ware, General Talbott's predecessor as CG of the First Infantry Division, had been killed when his helicopter was shot down — on Sept. 13, 1968, at Loc Ninh.)

Two days after sending his note off to the general, he received a personal reply, a letter from General Talbott himself. "I have just this minute received your letter. . ." the general began, ". . and I would like to express my heartfelt appreciation for what is without doubt the finest letter I have received."

The general continued, "The obligation to serve as the commander of the 1st Infantry Division calls for more than perhaps any man can contribute. Yet the caliber of the young men of the division is so great and their performance of duty so inspiring that it requires and gets from any commander better than his best."

The general closed with his appreciation for Carecccia's "wonderful letter."

And that's a letter that Carecccia is going to keep for quite a while.

Col. Lon D. Marlowe Ends 27-Year Military Career

By Sp4 Ron Johnson

Col. Lon D. Marlowe Jr., commanding officer of The Student Bde. retires Friday with nearly 28 years of active Army service.

In a speech to members of his staff, Colonel Marlowe said, "The Student Brigade is the best command I have ever had. Commanding the best people I have ever had is a fine way to end my career."

He attended St. Louis University from 1935-1937 and Creighton University at Omaha from 1950-1951. After beginning his Army service in 1942, he attended Infantry Officers Basic Course at Fort Benning.

He was assigned to 363rd Infantry at Camp White, Ore., as a company commander and battalion S-3. Then he returned to Fort Benning for more education, this time the Infantry Officers Advanced Course.

Following IOAC, the colonel spent two years with the 2nd Bn., 324th Infantry in Europe as a company commander, battalion S-3 and battalion executie officer.

COLONEL MARLOWE

In 1946 he went to Korea for the first time as assistant G-4 with the 7th Division. Also in 1946, he attended the Command and General Staff College.

He returned in 1948 to be assistant professor of Military Science and Tactics at Creighton University.

In 1951, he left the school and returned to Korea. This time he served as a battalion commander, regimental executive officer and regimental commanding officer in the 31st Infantry.

From 1952 until 1954, he was the G-2 staff officer Far East Command headquarters.

For the next four years of the colonel's career, he served as deputy director and director of the maintenance and inspection division, field command, Department of the Army Signal Agency, Sandia Base, N. M.

Four more years were spent as Headquarters, Pacific Command target officer.

Then he came to Fort Benning, where he has served in various positions.

Since coming to Fort Benning, Colonel Marlowe has been commander of Center Troop Command, chief of Doctrine Development and TSB commander.

Upon retirement, the colonel wants to do nothing but fish, golf and go boating. He and his wife, Miriam, plan to live in Columbus, and he said he hopes to maintain close ties with his friends on post.

He now serves with the finance office on main post.

SILVER STAR PRESENTED
Col. Reidenbaugh Congratulates Gray

Sergeant Gary Gray Receives Silver Star

The nation's third highest award for valor, the Silver Star, was presented to Sgt. Gary L. Gray, Co. A, 1st Bn., for gallantry in action in the Republic of Vietnam.

The award was made by Col. Charles H. Reidenbaugh, Center Troop Command commander, in ceremonies at CTC headquarters.

Gray, then assigned to Co. A, 2nd Bn., 7th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile), exposed himself to hostile fire to destroy an enemy bunker with a hand grenade. The action came when his unit became heavily engaged with a well-fortified enemy force.

The sergeant, acting as a squad leader, deployed his men into effective fighting positions, then proceeded to destroy the bunker.

UGF Drive Soars Above 60 Per Cent

Total contributions to the United Givers (UG) 1969 fund have soared above 60 per cent of the $205,000 goal with four weeks to go in the drive.

Two more units joined the list of those which have attained 100 per cent of the fair share objective quota. The Infantry Center command group and Safety Office became the 11th and 12th groups to reach their fund goals.

From the standpoint of total dollar contributions, the Army Training Center still leads with over $19,000 donated.

Close behind are the 197th Infantry Bde. and The Candidate Bde. of the Infantry School.

Spokesmen for the UG drive said the drive is moving somewhat faster than last year.

This year's goal is $10,000 above last year's.

TSB CHANGE OF COMMAND

ATC Graduates 1,040 Soldiers

The Training Center last week graduated 1,040 soldiers, the largest cycle in more than a year to complete basic combat training here, bringing ATC's overall total to 183,683.

Noting the unusual five-company cycle, Colonel McCrary paid tribute to Co. C, 7th Bn. for establishing an ATC record. The company completed the entire 8-weeks training without an AWOL.

Three Republic of Vietnam service awards were presented by Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis, ATC commander. SFC Lee R. Little, Co. C, 6th Bn., was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with V device; SSgt. Pablo J. Rodriguez, Co. A, 6th Bn., received the Bronze Star Medal; SFC Stanley E. Wicks, Co. B, 8th Bn., wes awarded the Army Commendation Medal:

A Memphis, Tenn., trainee, Pvt. William D. Hinson, Co. C, 7th Bn., was awarded the American Spirit Honor Medal by General Davis. The medal is the highest award made to a basic trainee.

Co. B, 6th Bn., won the Brigade Commander's Trophy which was presented to Capt. Joseph R. Granger by Col. Robert T. Richmond, 2nd Bde. commander.

TANKS FOR COVER

With M48A1 tanks "herringbened" obliquely to afford big gun protection, officer candidates dash out of armored personnel carriers to scout the area and clear the road of obstacles. The tanks and APC's, units of the 197th Inf. Bde. here (Florida), for the Republic of Vietnam-oriented armor problem are provided by the 4th Bn., 69th Armor, and some occasional "Viet Cong" snipers pop up along the course of the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., both (Sp4 Robert Merkin)

TCB's Sixth Battalion Celebrates Organization Day

Clear skies and warm temperatures provided perfect conditions for the Sixth Student Bn.'s (TCB) fourth annual organization day festivities at Doughboy Stadium.

Lt. Col. Grady W. Williams, commanding officer of the 6th Stu. Bn., began the day's celebration with a brief address in which he cited the history of the battalion and emphasized the high standards of the unit in training future infantry platoon leaders.

Since its inception on Oct. 29, 1966, the 6th Stu. Bn. has graduated 5,163 second lieutenants.

The battalion, which currently consists of five active companies, is one of six battalions which make up The Candidate Brigade.

The program of activities for the organization day consisted of an afternoon of games and a buffet dinner.

The overall winner for the day's strenuous competition was the 60th Co. which was awarded a trophy at the closing of the games. Following the games, the candidates, their wives and families enjoyed a buffet dinner.

Hospital Library Guides Reading By Stars

What is your reading horoscope?

Find out in the Special Services library at Martin Army Hospital where the latest display features a horoscope for every month of the year.

This horoscope provides a guide to the type of books to read. Whether it is books on politics, history, the military, literature, or material for just plain learning, the stars "serve as a guide."

The collection of USAFI books may be used to further education on the secondary level. The Great Books of the Western World may be used to meet certain requirements and obtain credits on a college level.

The current best sellers, mystries, Westerns, or science fiction, whatever the horoscope suggests is in the collection.

This light-hearted display is one example of the hospital library's effort to create a pleasant reading atmosphere for patients and staff.

With 16,000 volumes of material and a monthly circulation of approximately 31,000, the library is extremely active. In addition to a large selection of new books in the McNaughton collection (many best sellers included), holdings include somthing for everyone's needs.

Books on education, recreation, culture, scientific and technical subjects plus documents; pamphlets, newspapers and over 200 different periodicals make up the diversified collection.

The environment created by Martin Army's Special Services Library is representative of a new trend. American libraries are slowly changing the staid old "semi-comfortable, business-as-usual" atmosphere to conform to the increasing demands of a public in search of leisure.

Don Roberts, a California librarian, points out that a library should be a multi-purpose establishment to serve in whatever way it can to enable leisure learning and life to take place.

In a world of electronic communication, in acoustic space where "the medium is the message," tomorrow's library must feature an audio - visual environment to survive.

The Special Services Library of Martin Army Hospital along with the entire Special Services system of Fort Benning is part of this dramatic change.

Mrs. Lois Booth, the librarian, stated that Martin Army Hospital's Special Services library always tries to meet the patients needs.

"If you are a patient, you may look forward to a comfortable and rewarding convalescence. If you are a staff member, or if you are affiliated with the hospital in any way — the library welcomes you," she said.

40 Plan Visit To Service Club

The South Harmony Church Service Club will entertain 40 patients from the Georgia Rehabilitation Center at Warm Springs tomorrow as part of the 50th anniversary observances for Army service clubs.

After attending the Shrine Circus at Municipal Auditorium Saturday afternoon, the group will travel to the South Harmony Church Club for a cook out and entertainment by Melvin the Magic Clown (SSgt. Erwin Storke).

An open house Sunday with the theme "50 Years of Service: Past and Present" will complete the weekend.

The open house will trace the history of Fort Benning with historic pictures and displays of early Army uniforms. The public is invited.

Airborne Alumnus Visits

John C. McCardle, Saratoga, Calif., visited his old "alma mater," the Airborne Department at the Infantry School here.

McCardle, now a successful California realtor, was an Airborne instructor here from 1943 to 1945 when he was separated from the Army.

In an address to members of the Airborne Department, McCardle described the present three-week jump training as "streamlined" in comparison with the training of 25 years ago.

He noted that during the World War II period, men spent two weeks in glider training and two additional weeks in learning to pack a parachute. These phases are no longer a part of the course.

'LAST SUMMER'

'Last Summer' is now playing at a movie theater in downtown Columbus. In the picture, Bruce Davison and Barbara Hershey, two of the young stars in the movie, find romantic seclusion near the beach in this scene from the Frank Perry production. The picture is based on Evan Hunter's provocative novel of teenage exploits in a summer colony.

Rangers Join Citizens For 'Gold Rush Days'

By PFC Richard Salentine

DAHLONEGA, Ga. — Highways 19 and 60 through Dahlonega were lined with parked cars and the streets of the little city were clogged with people.

The occasion was "Gold Rush Days," sponsored by the Dahlonega Jaycees to "help promote the community and to encourage the members of the community to work together." From the looks of everything last Saturday, they had done just that and they enjoyed every minute of it.

The men of the Mountain Ranger Camp, just outside of Dahlonega, were also there to join the celebration and provide exhibits, demonstrations and emergency medical treatment for those who might need it.

The medical operations, set up by MSgt. Talamantez, NCOIC, Mountain Ranger Camp Dispensary, was well equipped to handle anything from minor cuts and bruises to more serious illness or injury.

Other Ranger participation in Gold Rush Days included exhibits of field gear and equipment, demonstrations of Ranger techniques and an open house of the camp on Sunday.

ROTC students from Northern Georgia College helped also as they led the "Pioneer Parade" with their band playing "Dixie" — and people by the hundreds crowded to the curbs.

As the parade passed, the vendors with their cold cider, fresh honey, toasted peanuts, fruits, vegetables and cotton candy were left behind for the time being. But the celebration was far from over.

Costume Parade To Lead Post Into Spooky Evening

By Sp4 Ken Sturzenacker

Tonight's Halloween festival features something for everyone!

As the festival opens, costumed children will parade from Doughboy Stadium through the officers' family housing area and past the commanding general's home to Gowdy Field.

Set to begin at 4:45 p.m., the parade will end with costume judging in two different age groups.

The younger children, ages 3-7, will make up Group 1 and be judged in Doughboy Stadium. The older children, ages 8-12, will make up Group 2 and will be judged at Gowdy Field.

A total of 36 prizes will be awarded.

Theme for this year's parade is "Spaceman," with the focus on this nation's achievements in reaching the moon during 1969.

The festival's emphasis will be directed toward audience participation activities such as skill games, games of chance, rides and the costume contest.

The post has traditionally held a festival marking the Halloween season for the benefit of the community's civilian and military children.

All major post units and activities are expected to participate in the program.

Unlike other holiday celebrations, the Halloween festival is not organized to raise funds for post or any other activities. The emphasis is social, not financial.

Rides for the children will include a junior jump tower, one fire truck, an armored personnel carrier, a Military Police jeep and half a dozen horses.

Prizes will go to the top three boy and girl contestants in each of the three categories: most original costume, funniest costume and costume most typical of the Halloween season.

Star of the show will be SSgt. Melvin Storke, performing as Melvin the Magic Clown. With enough material in his hat to do a six-hour show, the Magic Clown has entertained audiences around the world with his skill as a magician.

As his own double feature, Melvin uses his guise as a clown to bring laughter to the surprises and excitement of his magic. His humor makes his act appeal to the young as well as the young-at-heart.

Refreshment stands will sell a variety of food throughout the festival area. Tickets for the various activities and rides will go on sale at 4 p.m. half an hour before the opening of the festival. Ticket will be sold until the festival closes at 9:30 p.m.

Dancers Halt Rehearsals As 'Guys and Dolls' Jells

The Fort Benning Playhouse is swinging with rehearsals as actors and dancers prepare for the Nov. 19 opening of "Guys and Dolls." And when the girls rehearse the "good ole bumps and grinds," they stop all other rehearsals. One cast member said, "It's enough to make you forget your lines."

Choreographer Diane Savoca, wife of Capt. Dennis E. Savoca, is enthusiastic about the production.

She says, "'Guys and Dolls' is a great play to work with. The dancers are well integrated and there is a variety of dance types. We have modern jazz, rhumba, some soft shoe and a night club strip number."

Mrs. Savoca has had previous choreography experience in "Li'l Abner," "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Bye Bye Birdie" among others.

Her dancers have a variety of experience and training. "They are a very limber, coordinated group," she said.

"Some of the guys have had modern jazz training, one girl has had 12 years of tap and another is a professional exotic dancer. Most of the dancers have had ball room dancing and several have danced in musicals before. They are a good group to work with, quick learners and hard workers," Mrs. Savoca stated.

The dancers are Donna Spencer, Jeff Steinberg, Phoebe Caldwell, Shirley Hawkins, Dave Struthers, Patty Wertz, Judy Mitchell, Robert Meadows, Pat O'Rourke and Paul Reynolds.

When asked what she thought was the best thing about this group, Mrs. Savoca said, "They love to dance. It makes the work a lot easier when you love it. And they'll make you love it when you see them."

Golden Anniversary Marked

Army Service Clubs Complete Fifty Years as Second Home for Soldiers

Army service clubs over the world on Nov. 1 celebrate 50 years of service this week.

During World War I, welfare and recreation programs for soldiers were provided on a volunteer basis by civilian welfare organizations.

On Nov. 1, 1919, the War Department assumed responsibility for these activities. The official directive read "all club features become the responsibility of the service club." This represents the earliest official use of the term "service club."

Initially, the service club program was supported from non-appropriated welfare funds. However, in 1923 funds were appropriated by Congress to support the program and for the salary of so-called "Army hostesses," as service club workers were then called.

The first service club workers to serve during World War II were assigned in 1940 to "on the post" recreation centers in the United States. These were designated as service clubs.

Army hostesses were first sent overseas to the Caribbean and Hawaiian commands. These were later followed by the original "thirteen hostesses" assigned to the European Theatre of Operations in 1944 who staffed the Allied Expeditionary Force clubs in Paris and Brussels.

The AEF clubs were deactivated in June, 1945. Their staffs, together with 50 other experienced directors were sent to Germany to establish service clubs for our occupation troops. Others remained in France to continue club service in the staging areas.

In 1947 Army service clubs were established in the Far East Command with clubs in Guam, Okinawa, Japan, the Philippines and Korea.

Since 1951, the original title "Army hostess" has been obsolete, and all workers, regardless of assignments are called "Army service club director personnel."

Service clubs in Vietnam are located for the first time on base camps with combat troops under battle conditions. The first club opened there in January, 1967, followed by others as buildings were constructed or renovated and service club staff members arrived.

It is a joint effort of the Shower of Stars Hotel Group, various civic organizations and restaurants in the Miami-Miami Beach area.

Maddox Attends Scout Ceremony

Gov. and Mrs. Lester Maddox were among dignitaries in Columbus to attend the presentation of Eagle Awards to five local Boy Scouts, four of whom are military dependents.

Bishop Gerald L. Frey, Roman Catholic bishop of Savannah, celebrated a Field Mass at Delmel Field and then presented the Eagle Awards to the Scouts.

Michael Mabry, Peter Swiderek, Michael McCullough, Michael Ranieri and John Cooper received the highest honor in scouting before such dignitaries as Rep. Jack Brinkley; Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, J. R. Allen, mayor of Columbus and Jack T. Rutledge, Muscogee County sheriff, and the governor and Mrs. Maddox.

McCullough, 16, a Baker High School student, is a son of CWO and Mrs. Ralph W. McCullough. He has been in scouting for eight years, is a member of the Order of the Arrow and is junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 98.

Swiderek, 17, son of MSgt. (ret.) and Mrs. Benedict J. Swiderek, has been active in scouting since 1965, is a member of Our Lady of Lourdes Church and is a senior at Baker High School.

After high school Swiderek will major in biology and wildlife management at Auburn University.

The youngest of the award winners is Ranieri, 14, a son of Maj. (ret.) Benjamin Ranieri. He is a Pacelli freshman and a member of the school football team. His plans include attending the U.S. Naval Academy and a career as a marine biologist.

Mabry, 15, a son of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. J. P. Mabry, was born in Germany. An active scout for four years, he is a member of the Pacelli High School football team.

John Cooper, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Cooper, is a junior at Baker High School. Cooper plans to attend Georgia Tech, majoring in industrial engineering.

TWO SMITHS REENLIST

"Don't get those papers confused, sir. I'm Joseph; he's Richard," SFC Joseph Smith, left, operations sergeant, Committee Division, Training Center, seems to be saying to Lt. Col. Henry S. Colfua, committee chief. It could have been a confusing situation the day the two Smiths were reenlisted. Not only do they have the same last name—they have the same duty and primary MOS, both entered the Army the same month and June 13 (though a year apart) is their date of rank. The one big difference — Joseph Smith reenlisted for three years while Richard Smith chose six. (Photo by Sp5 Lonnie Voyles)

Henry Named Top Graduate

2nd Lt. Gene E. Henry was named the distinguished graduate at the Infantry Officer Basic Course No. 5 graduation ceremonies at Marshall Auditorium

Col. William A. Patch, chief of the Tactics Group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of the Infantry Center was the guest speaker for the event.

Widow Accepts Medals For 1st Lt. J. P. Karr

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, the Bronze Star Medal (first oak leaf cluster), the Air Medal and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to 1st. Lt. John P. Karr in ceremonies here.

Accepting the decorations was Mrs. Jane Blair Karr, widow of the lieutenant. She also accepted the Combat Infantryman Badge for her husband.

Karr died of wounds received in the Republic of Vietnam on May 25, 1969, while serving as a platoon leader with Co. D, 2nd Bn., 8th Cav., 1st Cav. Div. (Airmobile), during a night ambush in Tay Ninh province.

Receiving word from his radio telephone operator that several enemy soldiers were moving into the company's ambush position, Karr informed him to detonate a Claymore mine, at which time the enemy unleashed a devastating volume of fire on the platoon.

With complete disregard for his personal safety, Karr moved forward under intense enemy fire to assist in placing effective fire on the enemy and to help evacuate some of the wounded.

As the enemy broke contact, Karr moved forward to recover information from dead hostile soldiers and was mortally wounded by enemy fire.

The citation awarding him the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device said Karr's outstanding leadership and courage was a major factor in defeating the enemy attack.

Prior to his death, Karr had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal with one bronze campaign star, the Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, the parachutist badge, the expert badge with automatic rifle bar and the sharpshooter badge with rifle bar.

Mrs. Karr resides in Columbus. She is a senior at Auburn University, and is doing student teaching at Clubview Elementary School.

THE FORUM

By Marc Reiff

The pro football war was raging at full heat in 1965 when the Dallas Cowboys and Oakland Raiders both drafted Craig Morton, the current top-rated quarterback in the NFL. California's Wonder Boy quarterback was a 6-foot-4, 215-pounder who could whip the ball the length of the football field. It was reported that Oakland went as high as $200,000 but Dallas finally won out. With the departure of Don Meredith this season, the Cowboys are happy to see their investment pay off in a big way. Morton's arm is no stronger, but in four years as number two, he has learned the tricks of the trade.

Morton was already a favorite with the fans at the Cotton Bowl who often booed Meridith and yelled "We want Morton." The former California All-American had thrown only 283 passes for Dallas in four years and had tossed but 10 touchdowns in that period, however.

But now Morton is the acknowledged leader of the Cowboys and is following the normal NFL timetable that says it takes four years to make a pro quarterback out of a collegian with a good arm. While Morton is doing an outstanding job, the Cowboys also have a saver in Roger Staubach, a Heisman Trophy winner at Navy as a junior, who is getting his first shot at the pros five years after he was drafted. Staubach, who still holds most of the Naval Academy's passing records, has completed his four-year hitch in the Navy and now seems an able backup man to Morton. With the Dallas Doomsday Defense at full strength, it will take a top-notch team to defeat them. It is still too early to say that they will crack under the pressure of the big game, as they have done the past few years, but if Morton has his way, they will keep rolling along.

Another quarterback will be on the spot this coming weekend and he deserves it. Last week, Steve Spurrier,

U.S. Teams Win CISM Matches

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The potent U.S. Armed Forces Shooting Team met the best military shooters from 13 other nations in the XXI CISM Shooting Championship at Granada, Spain, in mid-September. The team came within a bullseye of scoring a clean sweep.

U.S. Shooters won all of the individual gold medals, three of the team titles, and tied Finland for the fourth team title. Under the tie breaking procedure of the International Shooting Union, best aggregate score of the four team members in the prone position, Finland was awarded the gold medal for international rifle.

In addition, the U. S. team also had the best overall aggregate scores in sports rifle and pistol and in military rifle and pistol.

Scandinavian shooters, originators of the new combat shooting rifle and pistol events were surprised when Army's Major Lones Wigger captured the rifle event, Staff Sgt. Maj. William B. Blankenship Jr. won the pistol event, and U. S. shooters won both team titles.

Major Wigger, a member of the 1968 U. S. Olympic team was the only double gold medalist. He took both the international rifle and the military rifle events.

Despite a weekend of upsets and tie contests, the Bayonet predicting prophets managed to roll in their third straight win last week against TSB Information. The Bayonet staff rolled up an 18-12-2 record (.600) while TSB Information tallied a 12-13-2 mark (.567). Top mark was compiled by MSgt. Homer Henderson who had a record of 8-2-2. This week the Bayonet's team tackles TCB with PFC Predicto ready to hit the comeback trail. After Oklahoma lost to Kansas State and Ol' Miss lost to Houston, Predicto has ripped up his autographed pictures of Steve Owens and Archie Manning and is ready to transfer his allegiance to Sewance.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

As the Rod and Gun Fishing Derby rolls to a close for the season 1st Sgt. Henry Ferris is leading the bass contest with an 8-pound 8-ounce monster caught at Harps Pond. He was using a sonic lure.

The bream category is led by 1st Sgt. Thomas C. Mathis with a 10-ounce catch also taken from Harps Pond using worms.

The largest catfish registered to date is a 6-pound fourteen-ounce entry caught by SFC Edward Plante using shad at Victory Pond.

Fishing, golf, girl watching and even TV football will be sidelined by many Fort Benning sportsmen when the deer season opens on the Georgia side of the reservation tomorrow.

As a convenience to members the Rod and Gun Club will serve a "hunters breakfast" starting at 5 a.m. each Saturday, Sunday and holiday. The service will begin tomorrow morning.

The Fort Benning reservation offers some of the best deer hunting in the Southeast but before you unlimber that shotgun be sure you are on the right side of the law.

Rules and regulations governing hunting on the reservation are listed in Infantry Center Regulations 210-2 and circular 210-4. These documents specify who may hunt, where hunting is permitted, licenses and permits required and where to get them.

Hunters going to Stewart, Quitman and Randolph Counties are cautioned to be especially alert for Fort Benning soldiers training in these areas off the reservation. While it is especially necessary to be alert in these areas because of the subdued and camouflaged garb of the soldiers, hunters should in all cases make absolute identification of all game before firing.

Sportsmen have been shot out of deer stands in trees by careless hunters who in their excitement forgot that a buck is unable to climb a tree. Not only have hunters been wounded in the field, but scores have been wounded while returning home in the car with a loaded gun propped up in the back seat.

All of these types of accidents can be avoided with a little understanding and care. One of the cardinal rules of gun safety is never to carry a loaded gun except while actively hunting in the field but it's also one of the most frequently violated rules and accounts for more accidents than any other.

The Georgia Sportsmen's Federation and The Georgia Game and Fish Magazine are sponsoring a Big Deer Contest this year. Prizes will be given to the hunter registering the heaviest deer and to the one taking the deer with the largest rack. Any hunter is eligible regardless of whether or not he is a member of an affiliated club of the Georgia Sportsmen's Federation. He need not be a resident of the state but must possess a valid Georgia Fishing license at the time the game was taken. Detailed rules for the contest are outlined in the October issue of The Georgia Game and Fish Magazine or may be obtained at Rod and Gun Club Headquarters, (Bldg. 4055).

The Georgia Game and Fish Magazine deals mainly with hunting, fishing and conservation in the state of Georgia. Each month there are articles concerning the improvement of fish hatcheries, streams, lakes and management areas, the opening of hunting seasons in various parts of the state or articles concerning the position of the Georgia Game and Fish Commission on proposed legislation affecting sportsmen. Subscriptions are $1 for one year or $2.50 for three years. Write Georgia Game and Fish Commission, Trinity-Washington Building, 270 Washington St., Atlanta 30334

Penn State and Florida gained the most ground among the Top Ten teams, Notre Dame moved in among the elite and Ohio State maintained a commanding lead Monday in The Associated Press' major-college football poll.

Penn State and Florida each rushed up three places, the Nittany Lions to fifth and the Gators to seventh. Notre Dame, 12th a week ago, advanced to the No. 10 position. Penn State crushed Ohio University, 42-3, Florida beat Vanderbilt, 41-29, and Notre Dame walloped Tulane, 37-0 last Saturday.

There were no changes among the first four teams as Ohio State held first place followed by Texas, Tennessee and Arkansas.

In the balloting by a national panel of 39 sports writers and broadcasters, the Buckeyes collected 35 first-place votes and 772 points. Texas drew two votes for the top spot and 692 points while Tennessee accumulated 570 points and Arkansas 547. All four teams have 5-0 records.

The Buckeyes beat Illinois 41-0, Texas defeated Rice 31-0, Tennessee was idle and Arkansas trounced Wichita State, 52-14.

Missouri's 31-24 loss to Colorado caused some of the switching around. The Tigers, ranked fifth last week, tumbled to 14th.

Southern California advanced one position to sixth after downing Georgia Tech. Louisiana State also climbed one place to eighth although it struggled to beat Auburn, 21-20. UCLA slipped from sixth to ninth after its 20-20 standoff against Stanford.

Colorado and Michigan are the newly-rated teams with Colorado taking over 18th place and the Wolverines, 35-9 victors over Minnesota, slipping into 20th. Oklahoma and Mississippi dropped out of the Top 20 after the Sooners' 59-21 setback by Kansas State and Ole Miss' 25-11 defeat by Houston.

Allied Students Attend Local Football Game

By Sp4 Paul T. Miller

It was just a couple of weeks ago that Maj. Jon C. Stillman, commander of the Allied Student Training Division at the Infantry School, briefed his men on the art of American football.

Last Friday evening the foreign officers received a first hand look at the gridiron sport as they attended the Phenix City Central-Benjamin Russell (Alexander City, Ala.) High School homecoming game in Phenix City.

After unloading their buses at the stadium, the 88 Allied students and their families were immediately greeted by the public address announcer as he read a list of the various countries that were represented at the game.

The spectators gave the officers a rousing applause, with a few rebel yells thrown in, as the uniformed soldiers began taking their seats on the Central side of the field.

With mimeographed sheets in hand, the men were ready for anything that Central's cheerleaders might throw at them. Their voices joined the exuberant clamor echoing through the stadium with, "Go, team, go! . . Hold that line! . . . Go get 'em Red Devils." Beneath the cheers, one could occasionally distinguish the chatter of voices: "Cheer number 12 . . pass it on."

One Greek officer met a young American boy at the game, and took him under his wing. The pair looked like any father and son enjoying an evening of football. The boy could be seen explaining some of the plays to the officer, while, in turn, the officer told him of the sports in his native country.

After the first quarter of play, it was the Red Devil's ball game all the way, with each touchdown bringing screaming ovations from the Allied student contingent.

"When are we going to see the beauty queen?" a young Malaysian officer asked, referring to Central's 1969 Homecoming queen. The pictures of all of the contenders for the crown had been posted in the Olsen Hall quarters, giving the students an opportunity to individually choose the girl they hoped would win.

As the Homecoming Queen was announced at halftime, a few disappointed groans could be heard throughout the Allied student section, with some of the officers finding they had chosen the wrong girl. However, faces perked up when the men were told that they would be photographed with the queen following the game.

The third quarter was highlighted by more touchdowns by the powerful Central force, as well as by a visit by the "Peanut Man." After purchasing numerous bags of shelled peanuts, Major Stillman enthusiastically tossed them up into the stands to his men.

The students continued to cheer the Red Devils even through the fourth quarter, when their team was twenty points in front. Spirits remained high in the end when Central won 35 to 9.

"It was so nice to have you . . please come again," said one lady, as the Allied students left the stadium.

A middle-aged man, walking to his car with his boy, patted a South Vietnamese captain on the back and said, "Hope you all will come again. . we got some big games coming up later on and I know you wouldn't want to miss them."

For the Allied students, and for the crowd in Phenix City, it was a big night indeed—a night that won't easily be forgotten.

Sometimes, even without the knowledge that he is doing so, man is able to create more mutual understanding and fellowship in the world at a high school football game in Alabama than at many of the United Nation meetings in New York.

Coach Has Two Unbeaten Teams

Capt. James J. Williams, Communications - Electronic Department, has so far this year compiled a football coaches record equaled by few. He coaches two teams that are undefeated and both teams are leading their league.

Williams coaches the Biddie League No. 1 football team which prefers to be called the "Crusaders." These youngsters, who are seven and eight years old, have compiled a creditable two wins with no loss record.

Williams also coaches the Communications - Electronic Department entry in the company level flag football league. So far this team has a record of five wins and one tie and has yet to be scored on.

THE Sports COMPUTER by Bud Goode

(Editor's Note: Bud Goode's SPORTS COMPUTER picked the winner in every pro football game the week of Oct. 11—13 of 13—to maintain his high average. It was the second week his forecast had been 100 per cent right, and his overall average for the first four weeks of the pro season is 75 per cent right.

This record establishes THE SPORTS COMPUTER as the leading forecaster of pro football winners).

Last year the Baltimore Colts led the NFL with the lowest number of punts-per-game. With the power and speed of a missile carrying cruiser the Colts gave up the ball on punts only 3.5 times per game.

Would you believe the L. A. Rams last year were the weakest team in the NFL on this important statistic? Roman Gabriel's attack ground to a halt 5.75 times per game. A team's punts give away it's weakness on offense. Not making third down and yards forces the giveup and punt. Last year the Rams were 40% weaker than the Colts on this revealing statistic.

In the 1969 season the Ram's offense still lacks spark. L. A. trails the League on this punts-per-game statistic, being forced to give up the ball 7 times per game. Although it is only one measure from among the dozen used by the Sports Computer in evaluating team strength, punts are one of the most important in reflecting team offense. There is trouble ahead for the Rams.

Youth Activity Holds Judo Class

Your initial thought is that you're witnessing a new dance craze, as you watch girls and boys gyrating about the gym, occasionally flipping each other to the cry of "Kiee-Ai."

A handful of parents look on in delight as a young red headed girl takes down a boy four or five inches taller than she.

The youngsters, ranging in age from 6 through 19, bow to their instructor, Sgt. Phillip Heilker, in the familiar style of the ancient Orient.

At a recent class session, warm-up exercises consisted of a modified low crawl, in which the legs were kept motionless, extended and joined. It was evident that strengthening of the muscles is as important an aspect of judo training as the knowledge of leverage.

The young judo enthusiasts were dressed in the traditional white toga of Japan. Around their waists were cloth belts of various colors, designating their rank in the U. S. Judo Association.

Heilker, who wears the brown belt, one rank below the coveted black belt, said that there are twelve ranks within the association, each denoted by the color of the belt. "Promotions to a higher belt are made on the basis of experience, age and time-in-grade," he said.

After several minutes of practice drills, the group gathered around their instructor in a seated semi-circle. Legs were crossed in Oriental fashion, as Heilker demonstrated "a few technique" to the attentive class.

"You grasp your opponent at the shoulders, lifting him off his feet, like so . . .," said the sergeant, demonstrating with an older youngster, the proper way of executing the throw.

In junior classes, Heilker always stresses the art of falling. "Before a child learns how to throw a person, he must know how to take a fall," he explained. The sergeant went on to say that a bad fall could badly injure a man.

Heilker, of HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, volunteers his time to teach the junior students on Tuesdays and Thursday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The native of Buford, S. C., has been active in judo since the age of 12.

Any children 6-19 years old, who are dependents of active or retired military personnel are eligible to attend the classes. Registrations are at no cost and will be taken at Ft. Benning's Youth Activities Center.

Benjamin Ranieri, director of Youth Activities said, "We are in dire need of qualified . . . brown belt or higher . . . judo instructors. Heilker will be discharged next month, and right now we have no one to replace him."

Ladies Set Home and Home Golf Tourney

The next event on the calendar for the Golf Group of the Officers Wives Club is a "Home" tournament with Maxwell Air Force Base at Maxwell No. 4.

Entry fee will be $6. This includes carts, luncheon and prizes.

demolished the Baltimore Colts and put them out of the race for the top spot in the Coastal Division. Like Morton, Spurrier is in his fourth year as a backup man. But with John Brodie reigning supreme, he has been a bench warmer. The only times he has left the protective coverings of the sidelines has been to punt. It was Spurrier's first start at quarterback in two years and was the 49ers' first victory after four NFL losses and a tie. The victory must be doubly sweet to San Francisco, as they are in the rugged Coastal Division with the Colts, Rams and Falcons, and it is always nice to be able to knock down a contender.

THE AGGRESSORS USE ESPERANTO

Aggressors Hunt Down Rangers

By Spt Marc Reiff

Marching along the dusty trail and cradled deep in the heart of the forest, a Ranger patrol leader suddenly raises his hand high in the air and motions for his men to drop to earth and seek cover.

The men listen intently to the labored breathing of one another and the shrill whistle of birds high in the trees. Their vigilance is soon awarded as the forced marching of men vibrates through the undergrowth.

The bright sunlight cascades down through the branches and creates an aura of golden haze which outlines the red shoulder patches worn by the forces of Hostilania.

The ambush is successful and the enemy is destroyed. But who was this alien invader that tried to penetrate the Ranger lines?

This action took place on a recent problem at Fort Benning and the forces of Hostilania were men from 5th Bn., 31st Infantry, 197th Infantry Bde., who take pleasure in acting the role of Aggressors down to the last detail.

They are dressed in enemy uniforms, which quickly distinguish them from the American forces by insignia, helmets, collar tabs (for rank), division corps patches and shoulder patches designating the company.

The documents they carry are in Esperanto, the Aggressor language, as are their ID cards, booklets and intelligence reports. Propaganda leaflets are in English to insure that the "enemy" can read them.

THE Aggressors add realism and combat authenticity to tactical training exercises involving insurgency, counter-insurgency and other related activities.

Every conceivable device related to the acts of war is available for use by the Aggressors at the training aids warehouse at Harmony Church.

Lt. Col. John L. Nixon, the commanding officer of the 5-31st, commented on the highly enthusiastic reports he has received on the men in his battalion.

"The consensus is that the men are impressed with the need for realism and are doing their best to provide the proper esprit de corps," he said. "There is a sense of pride in the units and each one tries to outdo the other in maintaining an 'enemy' professionalism."

General Signs In For Refresher Class

Brig. Gen. David C. Matthews, commanding general, HHC, 45th Inf. Bde. (Sep.), OKARNG, Edmond, Okla., has signed into the 26th Co. for the two week refresher course, Class No. 2-70.

A graduate of the Law School, Oklahoma University, and the recipient of a direct commission in 1941, General Matthews has served on active duty in World War II and the Korean conflict. He is now in command of 5,000 National Guardsmen in the eastern half of Oklahoma.

The general said refresher courses, such as the one he is now enrolled in, are important for Guardsmen because they regularly drill only two nights a month.

Although riot control has become an important job for many National Guard groups, General Matthews' brigade has never been called out for riot control duty. But, the former NCAA and U.S. Wrestling Champion from Oklahoma University said, "We have the communications and transportation needed for effective riot control. We drill anywhere, so we're prepared."

Radio To Feature Top Instructor

By Spd Ron Johnson

SSgt. Dave Moore, Army Command Information Unit, Washington, D.C., was sent to Fort Benning to interview the foremost instructor in the Airborne Department.

He was to tape the interview for "The Army Hour" program, a radio show broadcast over more than 1,200 stations coast to coast. The man he interviewed was SFC William R. Rucker, tower committee instructor.

He interviewed the right person. Rucker has been with the Airborne Department off and on since 1962. He has had his own jump wings for 19 years. He has earned such awards as the Silver Star, two Bronze Star Medals with "V" device, two Army Commendation Medals with "V" device, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Actually, Rucker started his military career with a brief tour in the Marines. It was brief because he joined when he was 16, and after basic and seven months sea duty they found out about it.

He was discharged because of his minority, but didn't give up. Two days later he enlisted in the Army.

The Army sent him to Fort Benning for Jump School and then to Fort Bragg, N. C., to the 82nd Abn. Div. In 1951 he went to Korea for a year with the 1st Cav. Div. and then came back to Fort Bragg.

He stayed at Fort Bragg until 1955 when he went to Fort Campbell, Ky., and joined the 506th Reg. Combat Team. His unit rotated to Japan, then returned in 1956 to form the 101st Abn. Div. In 1961 he went back to the 82nd at Fort Bragg, then to Fort Benning again as an instructor.

Except for three tours overseas with the 173rd Abn. Bde., he has been an instructor here ever since. He went to Okinawa once and spent two tours in the Republic of Vietnam. He now resides at Fort Benning with his wife Bernice and his children, Patrick and Jacqueline.

197th Bde. Reenlists Record Number of 69

By Sp5 Dennis Johansen

The 197th Infantry Bde. Reenlistment Office has announced that a record 69 men took the oath this past month, setting a new high that breaks all existing records since 1964.

MSgt. Harold J. Woodward, NCOIC of the reenlistment section, said that the old high water mark was set in January, 1967, when 53 men took the oath.

SFC Robert Adams, another member of the staff at the brigade reenlistment office, credited this month's high reenlistment rate to a combined effort on the part of the Brigade Career Counselors, the unit reenlistment NCO's and individual unit commanders.

Competition among individual battalions within the brigade was high this month. The 197th Support Bn. came in first by reenlisting eleven men. Second, but not far behind was the 4th Bn., 69th Armor, where 10 men reuped.

Twenty five of the new record number reenlisted for their present duty assignments within the brigade. Many others, however, chose to exercise their reassignment option and chose such places as Hawaii, Alaska, Thailand and Germany. At least three of the men reenlisted to go back to the Republic of Vietnam for a second tour and several others decided to go there for the first time.

Complex 'Stays Ahead' With 22 Modern Ranges

By SSgt. Joe DePriest

The Malone Complex here — 22 ranges and four testing sites — is one of the most modern and effective range areas in any basic combat training center.

And plans are focused on continued improvement ("Staying ahead in teaching techinques and devices"), according to Lt. Col. E. E. Eglis, USATCI G3.

"Over the past six months, Basic Rifle Marksmanship (BRM) scores and practical test scores have increased an average of 6 per cent," said Colonel Betts.

Recent installation of new training aids and streamlined scheduling of units on the ranges are main contributing factors in BRM score increases.

What is a modern range? "One which is in a state of readiness with all its material, and up-to-date in its training aids," said Colonel Betts.

"Third Army Training Aids here at Fort Benning has done an outstanding job and deserves a lot of credit for the assistance they have given us on modernization of our ranges."

These training aids include mine and booby trap models on a Republic of Vietnam oriented jungle trail; and charts and plastic models used during orientation on the AK 47 and M-16 rifles.

A useful device for night fire classes is an ultra-violet light which illuminates graphic charts and diagrams. Without affecting a trainee's night vision, the light makes it possible to hold classes after dark under actual conditions.

A wooden "mock-up" for correct firing in the fox hole position is used on certain ranges. This simple, skeletal device enables instructors to correct a trainee's position with greater ease and thoroughness than if the trainee were actually in a foxhole. When the trainee does fire from a foxhole, he already has the feel for positioning.

Mirrors are used in camouflage classes, allowing a trainee to observe himself while applying the camouflage sticks.

With the assistance of the 815th Engineer Bn., two new firing berms have been built and three more extended "so we don't have to close down adjacent ranges," said Colonel Betts.

Range improvements and range scheduling have gone hand in hand toward making the Malone Complex more efficient.

Professor Warns Officers Of Maoism Threat, Force

By Sp4 Jim Doherty

All of Southeast Asia could still fall under the influence of Maoism unless the United States holds firm to its commitment in the Republic of Vietnam, students in Fort Benning's Infantry Officer Advanced Course classes were told.

Dr. Richard L. Walker, director, Department of International Studies, University of South Carolina, told the Infantry officers that the determination and sacrifices of the United States had preserved freedom in the area.

"Seldom in history has a country responded as responsibly as ours has to clear and overt challenges," he said.

Walker, formerly an assistant professor of International Relations at Yale University, said that the long-range goal of the United States must be to contain China's expansionist drives until the irrational forces behind current Chinese policies have burned themselves out and China has returned to the family of nations.

"We must show the nations of the underdeveloped world that Maoism is not the wave of the future," he said.

Pointing to the possible effects of Communist victories in Southeast Asia, Walker noted that Japan's economy and importance in the world could be significantly harmed.

The 30 per cent loss of foreign trade that Japan might suffer if China were to dominate Asia could destroy her effectiveness as a developing world power, he continued.

The ideological nature of communism combined with a desire to reassert national greatness has blinded the current Chinese leadership to the realities of international politics, Dr. Walker stated.

Only by countering their offensives into the underdeveloped regions, he asserted, can we hope for sustained freedom in the "Third World" until such times as the current power holders yield to a new generation of more realistic and pragmatic Chinese leaders.

Walker compared the imperialism of Communist China with deification of Mao to the imperialism of pre-war Japan with its deification of the emperor.

He urged the United States to respond with similar firm policies against the newer form of eastern imperialism.

Walker, an author of several books and magazine articles on Far Eastern politics has served as a professor of International Relations at the National War College. He recently visited Taiwan as a Fulbright scholar.

Former Marine, General's Son, Comes Here To Go Airborne

By Pvt. Richard Salentine

A young man, who made the rank of sergeant in the Marine Corps before the age of 21, has come to the site of his father's OCS training days for airborne training.

The young man, Cpl. Kenneth Wayne Holmes is with the Army now though, and is enrolled in Class No. 14, 43rd Co., 4th Sqn. Bn., at Fort Benning.

Holmes spent four years active duty in the USMC, including one 18-month tour in the Republic of Vietnam, before entering the Army to become a member of the Special Forces.

Holmes' father is Brig. Gen. Kenneth E. Holmes, who was inducted into the Infantry OCS "Hall of Fame" here in March of 1968. His brother, Sgt. David M. Holmes, is now serving in the Marine Corps at Camp LeJeune, N.C.

At one time, all three members of the family were stationed in Vietnam —Ken and Dave at Phu Bi and dad at Saigon as chief, Military Personnel Division, Adjutant General Section.

Holmes ended his tour of duty with the Marines in December, 1967, but returned to the Army Aug. 12, 1969, for Airborne and Special Forces training because, as he says, "They're the best and I want to be with the best. It's as simple as that."

Planning on returning to Vietnam just as soon as he completes Special Forces training at Fort Bragg, N.C., he says, "I'd just as soon be there as anywhere else."

Of the Airborne Training here he says, "It's physically demanding. I'll be lying to you if I said it wasn't, but I enjoy it. It's what I want to do."

And finally, speaking of his military family, Holmes says, "Except for my mom and my sister, we're all jump qualified!"

Colonel Feels Education Can Benefit Modern Army

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Army is now observing the 150th anniversary of military instruction on civilian college campuses. Military instruction at a civilian college was first offered in 1819 at Norwich University in Vermont. The following article is the third in a series of stories on Fort Benning officers who were commissioned through the ROTC program.)

By Sp5 John Klopf

The value of an education lies in the use you make of it, and Lt. Col. Gerald F. Wilson, commander of 1st Bn., 1st Bde., Training Center, feels that an education can be especially beneficial to the officer in today's modern Army.

Colonel Wilson, an ROTC graduate and holder of a B.S. degree in biology and physical education from St. Norbert College, West De Pere, Wis., stressed that there is a need and a trend underway in today's Army for a "high degree of education and a broader scholastic background" among officers.

Accoring to the colonel, an academic background is not the only benefit derived from ROTC training. "The integration of civilian and military elements in the course of instruction helps the cadet see the service in a different light," he explained. "The ROTC cadet gets his military education set against a civilian backdrop."

Commenting on growing student opposition to ROTC programs on some campuses, Colonel Wilson said, "I believe we'll see that the mandatory ROTC programs are the ones drawing the most criticism. I foresee a possible reduction in the number of mandatory ROTC programs being conducted, but no drastic reduction in the number of officers being turned out by schools offering ROTC on an individual basis."

Colonel Wilson was in the Marine Corps for two years before going to college. "My previous military experience made me eligible for the two-year program," he explained. "I feel it matured my outlook on other campus activities."

While a cadet, Wilson was recognized for having the best-drilled unit in his class. He achieved the rank of cadet lieutenant colonel in his senior year and was designated distinguished military graduate.

After college and the Basic Infantry Officer's Course here, Wilson held a series of assignments throughout the Far East and the U. S., including tours in Korea, Japan and the Republic of Vietnam. In November of 1968 he came to Fort Benning as G-1 of the Training Center, and has been at his present duty since August of this year.

While in Japan, Colonel Wilson did graduate work at St. Paul's University in Tokyo. Not satisfied to stop there, he would like to attend the Army War College and would welcome a chance to continue studies at a civilian university. Asked about his educational ambitions, he replied, "I'm always interested in any opportunity for self-improvement."

1,300 Children Take Part In Bicycle Safety Program

Approximately 1,300 children took part in Fort Benning's "most successful" annual bicycle roundup safety program.

The 90-minute program, which included safety instruction, inspection and registration of bicycles and marking of the bikes with a special tape, was held at four Fort Benning schools.

Assisting in the roundup were Georgia State Trooper Billy Powell, Lt. Orville Carlile of the Columbus Police Department, Muscogee County Deputy Sheriff Joe Martin and members of the Provost Marshal Office here.

The Safety instruction was held in the auditoriums of Faith School, Wilson School, McBride School and Wilbur School. The program included a talk by one of the three civilian law enforcement officers at each school and the showing of a film supplied by the Muscogee County School District's film exchange.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars supplied the "Lite A Bike" reflector tape which was used to mark the two-wheelers following inspection and registration.

In addition to the post safety office and the Provost Marshal Office, other Fort Benning agencies who took part in the roundup included the Center Troop Command, the Boy Scouts, the dependent school system and the director of personnel, Headquarters, Infantry Center.

A post safety officer said the purpose of the roundup was to give the children a safe attitude in relation to riding a bike at Fort Benning, to provide them with knowledge on how to ride safely and to give them information on requirements of traffic regulations.

German General Visits Benning

By Spt Jim Doherty

A prominent German general visited Fort Benning last week to study Infantry training at the Infantry School and the Training Center.

Brig. Gen. Wolfgang Klennert, general for Force Development, German Armed Forces of the Federal Republic of Germany, met with Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general.

Ceremonies in honor of the visiting general were held on York Field. The general inspected an honor guard from the 197th Infantry Bde. and received an artillery salute from Battery C, 1st Bn., 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Bde.

Later, he visited the Leaders' Reaction Course at Dixie Villiage and saw demonstrations of Quick Kill training and mechanized Infantry operations.

Visits to the Combat Developments Command, Infantry Agency, and the Infantry Board were also on the general's itinerary. He also received a briefing on small unit communications techniques.

General Klennert left Fort Benning for Fort Rucker, Ala. to study the role of Army aviation.

150 years ago, a new idea came to the college campus.

In 1819, at what is now Norwich University, military instruction was first offered in a civilian college.

It was a natural development of our Country's traditional concept of the citizen-soldier and of civilian control over our Defense Forces.

Today, 150 years later, Army ROTC is carrying on that tradition and has become an important resource of leadership, not only for national defense, but for civilian enterprise as well.

Army ROTC enables the college student to earn an officer's commission as he earns his degree. It offers both 4- and 2-year scholarships to outstanding students. And it provides leadership experience that gives ROTC graduates an edge in any career they choose.

When you add it all up, Army ROTC is vital to our American way of life.

TRIBUTE FOR SOLDIERS PAST, PRESENT

Veterans Day honors not only the men who have served America in past wars, but also the U.S. soldiers in the Republic of Vietnam today. In the picture above an American soldier is silhouetted against the setting sun as his squad prepares to move out to its night ambush position in Vietnam. See pages 20 and 21 for other pictures of tomorrow's veterans working together in Vietnam.

Post, City To Honor Veterans

Fort Benning officials will join with municipal leaders from Columbus and Phenix City Tuesday, Veterans Day, in honoring the veterans of America's wars.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, will meet the mayors of Columbus and Phenix City at the corner of Broadway and 12th Street in Columbus to begin the tri-community observance.

Promptly at the stroke of noon, the three officials will throw a switch activating civil defense sirens in the entire area. This 30-second siren warning will signal the beginning of the brief Veterans Day ceremony.

After the sirens are sounded, church bells will ring and radio and television stations will play the National Anthem.

Traffic into downtown Columbus will be cut off and drivers will be asked to stand beside their vehicles during playing of the Anthem.

Soldiers and civilians alike are being asked to stop their holiday activities and join in a moment of silent prayer.

A similar ceremony will be held at Fort Benning at 11 a.m. The flag in front of Infantry Hall will be raised from half staff, where it will fly from dawn in honor of the victims of the conflicts, to the top of the flagpole.

Memorial Services honoring the victims of seven major wars will be held at the American Legion Plot in Riverdale Cemetery at 11 a.m. Prayers will be offered by clergymen of the three major faiths.

The cemetery ceremony will be sponsored by the Chattahoochee Valley Veterans Council with the themes of confidence in the current generation of youth and respect for the sacrifices of previous generations of veterans.

"Day of Memory, Day of Hope" is the title given to a Veteran's Day tribute scheduled at Main Post Service Club. The public is invited to join the staff of Service Club No. 1, Bldg. 2784, Sightseeing Road, at 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Veterans Day, will be a holiday for all Fort Benning soldiers and civilian workers except for essential personnel. Military families on post are encouraged to display the flag.

Col. Ward Retires, Receives Medal

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

Col. Albert N. Ward Jr. was presented the second award of the Legion of Merit during a special retirement ceremony held on York Field here.

The Legion of Merit, the nation's second highest award for meritorious service, was awarded Colonel Ward for "exceptionally meritorious service" while assigned as director of the Nonresident Instruction Department of the Infantry School.

The citation read, in part, "Colonel Ward's profound awareness of the needs of the Infantry Reservist led to significant improvements in the nonresident program at the Infantry School.

"Through his outstanding leadership, comprehensive knowledge and dedication he maintained the highest standards of operational efficiency," the citation continued and credited the colonel with "insuring a totally responsive program of instruction for the Reserve Components.

"His outstanding accomplishments had far reaching significance and materially enhanced the training readiness of the United States Army.

"Colonel Ward's distinguished performance of duty throughout his military career, represents outstanding achievement in the finest traditions of the United States Army, and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service."

Colonel and Mrs. Ward, who live at 3381 Wallace Drive, Columbus, have four children: Maj. Albert N. Ward III; Lts. Edward P. and Michael C. Ward; and Joseph M. Ward, who is presently a senior at Pacelli High School.

Colonel Ward was assigned to Fort Benning as the director of Nonresident Instruction in July, 1966.

4 Soldiers Rescue Pilot, Display Heroism on Post

Four Republic of Vietnam-bound soldiers in training at Fort Benning displayed heroism before they entered combat.

The four rescued the pilot trapped in a blazing helicopter which crashed last Monday killing the co-pilot.

The rescuers were members of a Pathfinder class on their final field training with the Airborne Department. They saw the helicopter crash just after it had landed them. They disregarded flames and threat of explosion to pull out the occupants, administered emergency first aid and notified officials of the crash by radio.

Col. Lamar Welch, director of the Airborne Dept., said Pvt. Rudy Lujan dared the flames and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to the pilot immediately. Lujan continued the emergency aid aboard the medical evacuation helicopter which landed the pilot, CW2 John M. Mercer, a Vietnam veteran, at Martin Army Hospital 30 minutes after the crash.

Colonel Welch said the other soldiers who took part in the rescue were PFC Robert G. Baker, Pvt. Stephen G. Harper and PFC Gary Turner.

The crash, which occurred in a thickly wooded area of the reservation at 1:05 p.m., caused the death of Capt. Charlie Ford, another Vietnam veteran. Ford and Mercer are members of the 197th Aviation Co., the 10th Aviation Group.

Seven Students

Seven Pathfinder students had been landed in a clearing in the woods to start their final training. The helicopter took off, circled, settled back to the ground and then took off again.

The craft cleared tall pines at the edge of the landing zone then went down into timber 200 yards from the students, bursting into flame.

While some of the students radioed the warning of the crash back to Airborne Dept. headquarters, the four rescuers ran to the scene.

Lt. Col. Busdiecker To Head Test Division

Lt. Col. Carl C. Busdiecker has been assigned as the chief, Field Equipment Test Division, Infantry Board, upon his arrival at this Georgia Infantry post.

LT. COL. BUSDIECKER

A veteran of two combat tours in the Republic of Vietnam, Busdiecker served as operations officer of the 162nd Assault Co. during his first tour of the area in 1966 and 1967.

Then, following a brief stateside tour at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., he again returned to the Southeast Asia combat theater as an operations staff officer, assistant chief of staff for operations, Headquarters, Military Assistance Command, Vietnam.

For his combat service, the colonel has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal with "V" device for Valor and 21 oak leaf clusters, the Joint Services Commendation Medal, Vietnam Staff Service Medal, Vietnam Cross of Gallantry with gold palm and the Vietnamese Campaign Service Medal with four battle stars.

Receiving his commission in October, 1955, upon completion of the Infantry Officers Candidate School at Fort Benning, Busdiecker has completed the Infantry Officers Career Course at the Infantry post and is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

During 68 months of overseas service, Busdiecker has served in Germany with the 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment for a period of two years and with the 7th Infantry Division in Korea for a 13 month period.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

Buy Brussels sprouts that are crisp and green without any yellow. For extra nutrition and flavor, add some of the water in which they're cooked to a white sauce topping.

In some parts of the Middle East, stale bread is considered a good remedy for stuttering.

Out of powdered sugar? Make your own in an instant! Just spin regular granulated sugar in a blender.

The ancient Roman King, Tarius, is said to have started the practice of tipping. Some say the word "tip" to later came from a posted admonition to inn guests to pay extra "to insure proper service."

Proper, prompt and pleasant service can be taken for granted at

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

When did the Pledge of Allegiance originate and by whom was it written?—L.T.K.

"I pledge Allegiance to my flag and the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." So read the original pledge when it first appeared in the Sept. 8, 1892, issue of "The Youth's Companion."

Shortly after this first publication, a controversy arose over the authorship of the pledge. James B. Upham, editor of "Companion" and Francis Bellamy, an assistant editor, both claimed to be the author. In 1939 an investigation committee of the United States Flag Association gave Bellamy credit as the author. "The Bellamy claim to authorship rests upon the more solid ground," read a detailed report issued by the Library of Congress on July 18, 1957.

There have been two changes made in the pledge. In 1923 the National Flag Conference substituted the words "the flag of the United States of America" for "my flag" and in this form it was included in the flag code adopted by Congress in 1942. The second change was on June 14, 1954, when the late President Dwight Eisenhower signed a bill into law adding the words "under God" to the pledge.

The Pledge of Allegiance now reads, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

VETERANS DAY MESSAGE

On 11 November, we pause to honor those men and women of all wars whose skill, determination, courage and sacrifice have enabled this nation to prosper and endure. Throughout our history these veterans have answered the call to duty, no matter what the sacrifice.

It is proper that we honor the veterans who have done so much to preserve our nation and to uphold its ideals. In doing so, we not only express our appreciation for the great achievements of the past, but we also rededicate ourselves and renew our strength to meet successfully the responsibilities and challenges which lie ahead.

I encourage all members of this command, and their families, to join in the spirit of this Veterans Day and unite with the citizens of our nation in a tribute to our veterans. •

Day Honors Veterans, Soldiers

It seems appropriate this Veterans Day to recall a true and recent story. It has great influence and significance.

Not long ago, a group of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) asked a young soldier in Chicago why he served in the United States Army. Without hesitation, the young GI replied, "So you can stand here on skid row and shoot off your mouth."

A newsman overheard the soldier's remark and recorded it before he vanished into the crowd of onlookers. The stalwart and proud young man thus far remains anonymous.

This event has a direct bearing on the vast majority of our servicemen and women. They devote themselves to serving their country and independence; they are contributing all they have to our beloved country—yet they, too, remain anonymous.

But it is this group of formidable and compassionate citizens who form the backbone of our country. It is these proud individuals who build our heritage: individuals with a passion for America; individuals willing to fight, for, not against, our great nation.

Veterans Day is of necessity a day set aside to commemorate those who have paid the supreme sacrifice on the battlefield. Indeed, it should also be a day to honor, remember and respect those who continue to keep our land free; honest and virtuous. (AFPS)

Court Backs Commanders

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Civilian courts have upheld the right of Army commanders to deny pass privileges to soldiers of their command.

A U.S. District Court judge in Massachusetts denied a soldier's application for an order requiring his commander to issue him a pass.

In his ruling the judge stated that a soldier is "subject to restraints on his liberty not shared by the public generally and to Army regulations and the lawful orders of his superior officers.

"While on duty, he is not free to leave the military post to which he is assigned unless granted leave by a superior officer vested with such authority."

The judge further cited the responsibility of the armed services to preserve national security. He called for the need for discipline, with the attendant impairment of certain rights, an important factor in fully discharging that responsibility.

In a similar case, both district and appellate courts ruled against three servicemen who claimed they were denied passes which prevented them from attending a scheduled peace demonstration in California.

The plaintiffs alleged they were not allowed to leave the base to participate in the demonstration because of the detrimental impact which the demonstration would have on military discipline throughout the armed services.

In denying the petition, the district court stated: "Such determinations involving the national military interest, and orders imposed on individuals lawfully within the military jurisdiction, which are promulgated to effectuate these determinations, lie within the sphere of legitimate military concerns which the judiciary has scrupulously avoided interference with. The military constitutes a specialized community governed by a separate discipline from that of the civilian."

New Health Benefits Pamphlet

The Department of Defense has just released a revised edition of the pamphlet "Uniformed Services Health Benefits Program." (Numerically, it is DoD Pamphlet PA-3B or DA Pamphlet 360-505.)

Your branch of service will be stocking it according to its own designation. Ask for a copy and it will be made available to you and your family. (Fort Benning personnel can obtain a copy of the pamphlet at AG Post Publications.)

This informative book should be kept with your valuable and personal papers at home after being read carefully by both you and your wife.

The pamphlet describes not only the up-to-date health benefits, but it also includes care in Uniformed Services facilities and the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services, more familiarly known as CHAMPUS.

In addition to the wealth of knowledge about the medical program and its function, the pamphlet also lists the appropriate fiscal agents in the 50 states and U. S. possessions where these medical services are rendered. (AFPS)

Geographical Wives Party on Halloween

Witches, goblins, and even clowns were the main attractions of the Geographical Wives children's Halloween party held at the Main Officers Club.

Orange and black streamers with a multitude of pumpkins and witches were used for decorations. Refreshments of punch, donuts, cookies and candy were served to the children.

Mothers and children sat spellbound while Melvyn the International Magic Clown, better known as SSgt. Erwin Storke, put on an exciting magic show plus all the antics of a proper clown. Afterwards a judging of costumes was held for the various age groups and psizes were awarded to the best boy and girl costume of each group.

The next meeting of the Geographical Wives Club will be held on Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. at the Main Officers Club. For further information or reservations call Mrs. Thomas Curtin 687-1534.

Leadership Ladies Visit Opera House

Approximately 35 ladies of the Leadership Department of the Infantry School enjoyed a coffee at the Opera House Saloon.

A beautiful harvest was the theme for decorations with individual nametags in the shape of cornucopias. A center table held a gold papier mache cornucopia filled with yellow and maroon chrysanthemums and multi-colored croton leaves. On the U-shaped table where the ladies were seated, were several small gold foil cornucopias filled with fruit.

After the coffee, Mrs. John A. Hoefling conducted a short business meeting during which Mrs. Richard L. Cobb, treasurer, gave her monthly report. Mrs. Bohdan A. Barylak gave a brief report concerning plans for a Leadership Department Formal Dinner-Dance to be held on Dec. 7 at the Officers Club.

Mrs. Hoefling then welcomed newcomers, Mrs. Bruce S. Coleman, Mrs. Allan S. Ingalls and Mrs. Bjrnn B. Scott. A drawing was held for door prizes and Mrs. Hoefling won the lovely cornucopia centerpiece while Mrs. Scott won a surprise package.

Following the coffee, several ladies enjoyed an interesting tour of the Springer Opera House guided by Mrs. R. W. Freeze.

The coffee was hosted by the ladies of Conditioning-Combatives-Drill Committee with Mrs. George E. Palmer as Chairman. Other hostesses were Mmes. Billy W. May, Robert E. Pritchett, Jimmie B. Sloan, Kenneth N. Lamb, Walter E. Lee and Robert E. Willis.

6th Stu. Bn. Wives Decorate With Wheat

The coffee was hosted by the ladies of the 61st Co., including Mrs. William L. Yarborough, Mrs. John France, Mrs. John Price and Mrs. Steven Tolman.

A fall theme was depicted through an arrangement of wheat in a milk can which decorated the serving table. The name tags were multi-colored fall leaves.

Honored guests of the morning were Mrs. Grady W. Williams and Mrs. John R. Schumaker.

Following a discussion of the Christmas bazaar, seven ladies were welcomed to the battalion.

They were Mmes. Peter Howard, Joseph Hinton, Myles Perry, William Toelke, John France, Michael Price and Steven Tolman.

GOURMET CHEFS MEET
Carlos, Left, Asst. Talbott, Mrs. Talbott, Mrs. Robert Richmond, Mrs. Oscar Davis

Gourmet Chef Presents Salad

The wife of Fort Benning's commanding general, Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, was guest of honor at the Army Training Center officers wives luncheon at the Supper Club. A special welcome was given also to Mrs. Charles Barnes, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Oscar E. Davis.

A lively and entertaining discussion and demonstration of gourmet cooking was presented by Marcel Carles, a native of France and a graduate of the Hotel and Restaurant School of Paris. Sharing his recipes for Caesar Salad and Banana Flambe, Carles revealed a number of cooking hints in the preparation of these dishes. As they were completed the wives were invited to sample them.

In keeping with the gourmet theme, 2nd Brigade wives decorated the tables with chef hats, wooden spoons and forks, spices and other kitchen utensils.

A Training Center charm was presented to Mrs. Talbott as a memento of the occasion.

Mrs. Francisco J. Ramos, wife of the former 2nd Bde. commander, was given a silver Revere bowl in farewell from the Training Center wives.

Children Schools Will Open For Parents To Visit Teachers

Children Schools here spotlight observance of American Education Week November 9-15 with an Open House that is supported by the Fort Benning Parent Teachers Association.

Col. George E. Ritter, PTA president, stated the post PTA "fully endorses aims of American Education Week" and urged parents to visit schools on post.

Colonel Ritter said the schools may be visited 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Nov. 10 and Nov. 12-14. Visitors should report to the Principal's office first. Nov. 11 is a national holiday and the schools will be closed that date.

In addition, a PTA Open House will be held in the evening of Nov. 13 when teachers will be in their rooms at 7 p.m. to greet parents of their students and to discuss current studies.

The colonel noted those who have not yet joined the PTA may do so during the Open House Night Nov. 13.

Parents will staff tables at each school to sell memberships, he said.

PTA membership has risen from 579 on Sept. 15 to 1,204 as of Nov. 3, Colonel Ritter said.

The membership goal for the 1969-70 school year is 2,300 parents of children in Fort Benning schools.

Nov. 30 has been set as the cut-off date for the recognition of rooms attaining 100 per cent PTA membership, Colonel Ritter said.

Each room reaching the goal will be awarded a prize of $10 by the Fort Benning PTA.

Fort Invites Guests To Eat Turkey Dinner

School Drama Festival Sponsored by College

The first annual high school drama festival sponsored by Columbus College will be staged Dec. 12 and 13 in Fine Arts Hall under the direction of Dennis Ciesil, assistant professor of theatre.

The drama festival will be an annual event and this year will be limited to entries from the high schools of Columbus and Phenix City. Each entry will be either a one-act play or a cutting from a full-length play.

Special awards will be created by the Art Department and given for the best production, best actor, best actress, and best character actor or actress selected by a panel of three judges to be named later.

Ciesil said the plays will be performed for competition both Friday and Saturday, with an evening performance Saturday for the best two productions. The evening affair will be open to the general public.

Each school will be allowed a maximum time limit of one hour for setting up, presentation, and striking of their entry. The College Theatre will provide a lighting operator and stage hands.

School Dedication To Honor Major Herbert J. Dexter

Dexter School, the newest of Fort Benning's eight elementary schools, will be dedicated in ceremonies Monday at 9:45 a.m.

Construction was completed on the $600,000 school this summer in time for September classes. The school is located on Yeager Avenue between Lumpkin Road and Ingersoll Street.

At the ceremony, Col. Richard H. Maeder, president of the Fort Benning School Board, will officially present the new building to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general.

Named In Honor

The school is named in honor of Maj. Herbert J. Dexter, an infantryman who was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in the Republic of Vietnam, while serving with the 101st Airborne Division.

Dexter enlisted in the Army in September, 1949, at the age of 17. After completing approximately three years of enlisted service, he entered Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning and received his commission as a second lieutenant in September, 1952.

Upon receiving his commission, Dexter completed the Airborne course and served with the 508th Regimental Combat Team here. After service in Korea and Japan, he served with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., until 1958.

Mrs. Dexter

Present for the ceremony will be Mrs. Dexter of 2156 Gary Court, Decatur, Ill., and her five children. She will unveil a plaque mounted on the wall of the school auditorium, commemorating her husband.

While residing at Fort Benning, his eldest daughter, Victoria, attended the post kindergarten.

Mrs. Mildred Carter is principal of the new school.

Mrs. J. D. Stallard, left, Mrs. Jeanette Sanford Read Study Names

Volumes List Infantry War Dead

Over 11,000 Infantrymen who lost their lives in combat were honored in ceremonies held at Infantry Hall Oct. 17.

Five bound books, containing the names of Infantrymen killed in the Dominican Republic, the Republic of Korea and the Republic of Vietnam were dedicated by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general.

General Talbott urged Fort Benning soldiers to rededicate their lives to "the principles of our nation for which these men gave their lives." He stated that this would be a most fitting tribute.

The books, which have been placed on stands in the lobby of Infantry Hall, replace a memorial plaque which had brass plates bearing the names of the deceased.

The books are dated chronologically and the names in each book are alphabetized. The dates are indicated by brass plates on the front of each stand.

TSB Commander Cites Infantry School Support

Lieutenant Colonel Frank L. Garrison officially has taken command of The Student Brigade (TSB).

Colonel Garrison has been at Fort Benning since June as chairman of Platoon Tactics committee, Company Operations Department, the Infantry School.

The colonel says, "There is no more important mission than the support of the students at the Infantry School."

He was a student in the school himself while attending Infantry Officers Basic Course, Airborne School, and Jumpmaster School. At that time, TSB was called "The Student Regiment."

During his 18 years of Army service, the colonel has performed duties in many capacities, but says, "I have never had a bad assignment."

He has had overseas tours in Japan, Korea, Alaska, and the Republic of Vietnam.

Colonel Garrison has mixed extensive education with his military career. He holds a bachelor of science degree in military science from Oklahoma State University.

He was graduated from IOBC, and attended the Marine Officers Advanced Course as an exchange student. He also studied at the Command and General Staff College, and last June was graduated from the Army War College.

He has been awarded the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Air Medal, Army Commendation Medal and Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Society Gives Old Helmets To Post Infantry Museum

By Spt Paul Miller

Fort Benning's Infantry Museum received two Army helmets dating back to the turn of the century from the University of Pittsburgh chapter of the National Society of the Pershing Rifles.

Two hundred thirty-two graduates watched as General DePuy presented awards to the distinguished honor graduate, 2nd Lt. Robert E. Rudolph, training officer of Co. D, 7th Bn., 2nd Bde., Training Center.

Rudolph, a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and former commander of the Pershing Rifle unit there, said his drill team often wore the helmets while in competition and "they really drew some looks!"

The helmets, introduced as a part of the officer's uniform in 1831, were worn with the "summer-type khaki uniforms."

"The Army phased these out after the turn of the 19th Century," said Hunter.

"MARY JANE" KNOWS SHELTER WILL HELP HER

Animal Shelter Provides Bright Spot for Many Pets

By Diane Meadows

What do you do with an animal that is lost, abandoned or lying injured in the street? For more than 40,000 Columbus pets and animals there is a bright spot in their future — thanks to the Metropolitan Animal Shelter (MAS).

Founded a year ago, the shelter since has found homes for 707 animals; rescued 474 (including three monkeys and goose with a broken wing) returning 76 of these to owners and handled 75 complaints.

In just one year, MAS has accomplished many other things. There were two "Pet Fairs" where animals were placed in new homes. During the first fair in June, 23 cats, 19 dogs and a rabbit found homes. At a fair the following month, a total of 32 animals were adopted.

In October, 1969, the shelter staffed a booth at the County Fair and gained $125 in donations and a few new members.

Still the work goes on and new members are added.

The office, located at 4907 Buena Vista Road, is staffed (by volunteers) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The volunteers answer phones and do general office work.

During an average day, there are at least 100 phone calls. The calls are varied. Some callers are looking for a new animal or, trying to find a home for one. Others are concerned about an injured animal and many others are trying to locate a lost pet or reunite a found pet with its owner.

An ambulance is on call 14 hours a day to pickup seriously injured or sick animals or rescue animals in distress. These animals are taken to a veterinarian for treatment. When they are recovered to the point of home care, temporary "boarders" take over and care for the animals in any one of less than a dozen "Back Yard" Orphanages." Anyone with a fenced yard, shade and shelter and love for an animal can sponsor a "Back Yard Orphanage."

SFC (ret.) Jesse Mendez, shelter supervisor, supervises the shelter activities and drives the ambulance. Mendez, who worked for 13 years with the Scout Dog program before his retirement from the Army, has helped countless animals since his arrival on the staff.

Méndez says of his job, "I am amazed at the number of volunteer hours that went into the organization of MAS and of the volunteers who continue to manage the operation."

Fort Benning residents make up 15 per cent of the individuals who use the MAS facilities. With the tremendous turnover of military families, finding homes for their pets is a constant process.

Before MAS, there was no outside help in locating new homes.

What happens to a pet that cannot find a home? Too often the animal is left to roam and create not only a problem for the community and Fort Benning, but to the wildlife on the ranges.

Col. George E. Ritter, post veterinarian and a member of the MAS board of directors, said, "When dogs are abandoned and run in packs, the danger of rabies is great."

An outbreak of rabies at Fort Benning would be extremely dangerous. Although there are no cases of rabies on post, there have been cases reported in the next county, the colonel said.

"When notified of a move, a military family should try to find a home for their pet through MAS or the post veterinarian. If no home is available, it is more humane to have their animal put to sleep," Colonel Ritter said.

MAS will celebrate its first anniversary with a dinner and program at the ROTC Auditorium at 7 p.m., Nov. 13. Guest speaker will be Milton Searle of the American Humane Association, Denver, Colo., who will tell of his activities helping animals caught in the Hurricane Camille disaster.

The public is invited. Door charge, to cover the cost of the dinner, will be $2 per person. Additional information may be obtained by dialing "Our Dogs" (687-2647).

Weather Forecaster Receives Medal

The Air Force Commendation Medal was awarded to MSgt. A. J. Book who is senior weather forecaster of Detachment 10, 16th Weather Squadron, stationed at Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. George W. Porter, senior officer of the Air Force Representative Office here, and Capt. Franz E. Westermeier, commander of Detachment 10, presided at the ceremony which was held at Bldg. 2412, Lawson Field.

Book won the award for "outstanding meritorious service in the Republic of Vietnam" while serving as weather technician from September, 1968 to August 1969.

The master sergeant was deemed "our most experienced forecaster" by Westermeier.

Post Nears UGF Goal

With only 14 days remaining in the post-wide United Givers Fund Drive, Fort Benning agencies are less than 20 per cent short of their goal of $205,000.

As of noon Tuesday, nine new agencies have been added to the ever-growing list of those having donated 100 per cent or more of their goal.

They are the Training Center, Centers Troop Command, 197th Infantry Bde., Director of Logistics, Army Community Services, Post Exchange, Dependent Children's Schools, Director of Comptroller and the Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

The amount now collected in the drive, which will end Nov. 21, is $162,000.

First Sergeant Speaks to Class

Bingham is the first sergeant of the 90th Officer Candidate Co., 6th Student Bn., The Candidate Bde.

Being honored as the distinguished graduate was Michael R. Feagley, Marlboro, N. H.

Soldiers Medal Presented To Lieutenant With ATC

1st Lt. Douglas J. Tierde, Co. A, Birmingham Military Base, has been awarded the Soldiers Medal for heroism not involving conflict with an armed enemy by the Department of the Army.

Col. Gerald F. Hatcher, Jr., deputy commander of the Fifth Army Center, presented the award to Tierde during ceremonies at the Birmingham Military Base.

Tierde was swimming in a private swimming pool on the base when he observed a drowning victim. Although he was fully clothed, he jumped into the water and pulled the man to safety.

The lieutenant then administered artificial respiration to the victim and assisted him to the poolside. But before the man had fully recovered, Tierde was stricken with cramps in his legs and drowned.

Tierde was awarded posthumously because he made the attempt to prevent death and risked his own life to save another man.

Colonel Hatcher also presented the American Spirit Honor Medal, the highest award that can be received by a basic combat trainee, to PFC Henry P. Moore III, Co. D.

Guard Unit's Lineage Goes to 1638

By SP4 Robert Merkin

Which soldier received the first "Dear John" letter in your unit's history?

Maybe your unit historian can't come up with the answer to that one, but they know who it was in the 1st Bn. 211th Artillery. It was a former commander by the name of Capt. Myles Standish.

That's the beginning of the 1st of the 211th lineage, which began with the organization of the "Taunton Rifles" on March 5, 1638, as part of Captain Standish's "First Train Band" Massachusetts militia.

At the other end of the line stands the present 1st of the 211th, now an artillery battalion of the 197th Infantry Bde. Wearing their distinctive Indian chief crest, the activated National Guard unit is preparing to say goodbye to Fort Benning in early December and return to its native New Bedford, Mass.

The departure, normally an ecstatic event for Guardsmen, will be muted with a note of sorrow. On Sept. 20, a little more than two months before the unit's deactivation, its commander, Lt. Col. August G. Lucas, died from a heart attack while preparing for the battalion's last active duty Army training test. A native of New Bedford, the colonel had convoyed the unit to Georgia in May, 1968.

After Colonel Lucas's untimely death, the command slot was filled by Maj. Lee C. Smith Jr., who will accompany the battalion back to Massachusetts, officiate at its welcome home party on Dec. 10 and its release formation on Dec. 12. Smith then returns to Fort Benning for reassignment.

SFC William F. Utley, command sergeant major of the 1st of the 211th, said that the deactivation will release 182 enlisted men and four officers to civilian National Guard status. The 155mm howitzers of the battalion will remain at Fort Benning for repair and reassignment.

"Just happy men and TA-50 are heading back to New Bedford," he reported.

SFC Utley will also return to Fort Benning after the unit's release and will join the 2nd Bn., 10th Artillery, another unit of the 197th Infantry Bde.

The battalion passed its proficiency ATT with a high rating, the best tribute an artillery unit can give to a fallen commander.

And the men of the 1st Bn., 211th Artillery will be home for Christmas.

Post Group Tells Date For Monthly Meeting

The Defense Supply Association will hold a monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 18 in the Royal Crown auditorium in Columbus.

According to Murrie, "Our purpose, as an association is to promote cooperation and understanding between the Defense Department and the industries with which it deals. On a local level, our purpose remains the same. We work to foster relationships between the industries and businesses that offer logistical support to Fort Benning."

The major, presently assigned as deputy director, Quartermaster services branch, said, "Our membership is open to all active and retired military, business and professional people in the Columbus-Phenix City area."

A business meeting, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., will be followed by a guest speaker representing a world-wide food brokerage firm which supplies food to the military commissaries and exchanges.

Music will be by the U. S. 283rd Army Band.

Tomorrow's Leaders Study Military on 283 Campuses

On 283 college and university campuses across the nation, leaders of tomorrow attend classes on tactics, military history and other subjects that prepare them for service as officers in the United States Army.

These men are Army Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets. They carry on an American tradition which dates back 150 years to 1819, when the idea of military instruction on the civilian college campuses was established.

In that year, Capt. Alden Partidge, a former superintendent at West Point, founded the American Literary, Scientific and Military Academy — now Norwich University. He believed that military officers should receive a well-rounded civilian - military education. His idea was in keeping with our traditional American concept of the citizen-soldier and civilian control over our military forces.

The unique academy he established was the forerunner of the colleges and universities that now provide officer training for our defense forces — Army, Navy and Air Force.

The idea soon spread to other institutions. The outbreak of the Civil War and the need for educated military leadership led to the Land Grant Act of 1962, which provided land and money for additional colleges and universities. Among the conditions stipulated for the grants was a requirement to conduct military instruction.

Although more than 100 offered officer training at institutions of higher learn by 1900, ROTC as it is known today was not formally organized until 1916 when the Congress passed the National Defense Act.

Today the Army ROTC program alone has an enrollment of over 150,000 students in the 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. More than 16,600 ROTC graduates have been commissioned as lieutenants in the Army this year.

Army ROTC offers significant advantages for our defense forces and for the American people, including the college man who participates in the program. It supplies the Army with officers, educated in a civilian environment and with baccalaureate or advanced degrees in diversified fields of higher education.

National defense requirements today are such that officers are needed with backgrounds in almost every area of specialization from languages to law and political sciences; from computer science to medicine and sociology.

The dependency of the active Army on ROTC graduates is reflected in both statistics and rank. Approximately 50 per cent of all officers in the Army today received their commissions through the ROTC program and more than 110 of the Army's general officers are ROTC alumni.

Included on the roster of general officers are such key men as Gen. William B. Rosson, deputy commanding general in the Republic of Vietnam; Lt. Gen. Federick Weyand, U. S. military adviser to the Paris peace talks, and Lt. Gen. William DePuy, assistant vice chief of staff of the Army.

Either the commanding general or the assistant commanding general of all 18 divisions in the active Army received their commissions on civilian college campuses.

The selection of Army ROTC graduates for top positions also includes the present Secretary of the Army, Stanley R. Resor; Gen. George Decker, former Army chief of staff, and Gen. George C. Marshall, who was Army chief of staff during World War II and later the secretary of state and secretary of defense.

A roster of ROTC alumni in civilian life is equally impressive. A few of the men who received ROTC commissions and who have gone on to high positions in other fields include former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, U. S. Sens. Edward W. Brooke, Jack R. Miller, John Stennis and Ernest F. Hollings, Tennis star Arthur Ashe and businessmen Raymond C. Firestone, chairman of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, John D. Harper, president of Aluminum Company of America, and Robert S. Ingersoll, chairman of the board of Borg-Warner.

A complete list of such men who have had Army ROTC leadership training would represent a sizable who's who of outstanding men in almost every field of endeavor.

Among the advantages for the American people is an intelligent, well-educated, civilian-oriented military leadership at a lower cost than other officer producing sources. And, since ROTC graduates have the choice of returning to civilian careers when they have fulfilled a two-to four-year military obligation, they constitute an important source of trained leadership for civilian enterprise.

ROTC training and officer experience adds another dimension to their college education — the ability to organize, motivate and lead men — which prepares them for civilian leadership and management positions.

ROTC training enables the student to earn his officer commission while he studies for his college degree and to fulfill his military obligation as an officer. He acquires experience and develops qualities that are assets in either a military or civilian career. Employers generally prefer college graduates with ROTC training and officer experience and many pay more to get them.

Army ROTC traditionally has been a four-year program, split into a basic course of two years and an advanced course of two years. However, a two-year program is now available for junior college graduates and other students who miss the basic course. A six-week summer camp prior to the junior year of college substitutes for the basic course.

Most Army ROTC graduates have a two-year active duty obligation when they are commissioned. Graduates who are offered and accept a Regular Army commission have a three-year obligation and students awarded an ROTC scholarship have a four-year obligation.

More than 4,750 students who are interested in an Army career will attend college this school year on ROTC scholarships. An additional 1,200 four-year, 400 three-year and 500 two year Army ROTC scholarships are in effect for the 1970-71 school year.

A buddy's helping hand

Veterans Day has a real significance to millions of Americans because of fathers or sons or husbands or brothers. But it has a special meaning to the men who sweat and suffer, who fight and fear, as those serving today do in the Republic of Vietnam. War seems to draw these men closely together and, when the going gets the roughest, the outstretched hand of a comrade in arms is there to help. . . .

SILVER STAR AWARD
Mrs. Foley, Feltz, Colonel Lee

Retired Chief Warrant Officer Receives New Service Medal

The recently established Meritorious Service Medal (MSM) has been awarded for the first time at this post to CWO (ret.) Philip W. Foley of Columbus.

Col. Talton W. Long, deputy post commander, presented the medal to the 34-year veteran.

The second person to receive this new medal was Command Sgt. Maj. Warren A. Paulk, formerly assigned to Fort Benning, and now a Columbus resident who works at the National Bank of Fort Benning.

Foley was cited for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service from Sept. 9, 1966, to June 30, 1969, while serving in successive positions as battalion maintenance officer, 43rd Engineer Bn. and maintenance officer, S-4 Section, Center Troop Command.

According to the citation accompanying his medal, Foley rendered invaluable assistance in molding an exemplary logistics readiness condition within the 43rd Engineer Bn. and later within the entire Center Troop Command.

Entering the Army in 1931, Foley served with the Infantry, Artillery, Engineers and Ordnance Corps. He was stationed in the Pacific during World War II. He also had duty in Korea and served in the Republic of Vietnam during 1965-1966.

In addition to the MSM, Foley holds the Bronze Star Medal, the Army Commendation Medal with three oak leaf clusters, the Purple Heart and Good Conduct Medal.

'Instinctive' Bayonet Style May ReplaceOld Routine

[illegible] Infantry Training Brigade [illegible] Lt. Col. George H. Feltz [illegible] Fort Benning Infantry Training Brigade [illegible]

Colonel Palmer said the two companies who have been trained with the new drill will be compared and tested with two other companies who have been taught with the old drill.

"We'll have exhaustive tests on the bayonet course and in pugil stick competition between these units, photograph grade, study and try to get a concrete judgment on the training," the colonel said.

A second test will be made, even more exhaustively, with an Officer Candidate School company and a Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course company.

If the tests prove the new method preferable "it would mean that training would be easier, we could save time and get better results," the lieutenant colonel said.

"We're still testing. It looks good so far but you have to be objective until you're sure. We'll know by January," Colonel Palmer explained.

Capt. John Merrill of the operations section said the idea of the new, simplified bayonet technique was summed up by an NCO working on the project in its early stages last summer.

"He said that Brooks Robinson, the Baltimore third baseman who doesn't do anything wrong, just naturally regulates his feet so that he throws off the left foot. He wondered if any reasonably coordinated man wouldn't use a bayonet so he wouldn't be off balance whether he knew anything about it or not. He'd bet Robinson would be a hard man to handle in a bayonet fight," Merrill said.

Maj. Graham Avera, one of the workmen in the long study which came up with the new idea, said the committee first "studied every bit of information we could find about bayonet fighting, our training, foreign armies, everything."

"Then we got those 125 recruits (in the two companies) who'd never had a rifle in their hands, gave them one with a bayonet on it and said 'stick that target' or 'hit that one with the end of the rifle' or 'take a slash at that one.' We took pictures, made notes, studied every man and every move," Avera said.

It turned out that the recruits did about what generations of men have been taught to do — but without the fancy footwork or complicated hand positions, and most of all, without doing it in a stylized order of movements.

Instead of the classic "high port" position known by so many millions of ex-trainees, the new method encourages what has been called an "attack" position.

"He grabs the rifle where it suits him best," Colonel Palmer explained. "He will generally pick it right up in a good fighting position, we found that out. Then he holds it up to the best position for him to take a slash, a bash or a thrust. He worries about where he puts his feet and hands, not the trainer. He's the one who has to use it."

With the new method they are also taught a "wicked slash" and a "combat fire position."

The "wicked slash" is the basic idea that if a man moves the end of the rifle in a violent arc downward, a bayonet is a dangerous thing. Again the footwork is as the man finds it best. It is a single move, with the hands, not a complex foot and body gyration.

In the "combat fire position" thrusts or butt-strokes are made from the position most M-16 gunners assume when walking in the brush — right hand on the pistol grip, left hand in normal firing position.

Parents Accept Three Medals

By Prt. Steve Zimmerman

The Silver Star, the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal were presented posthumously to SSgt. Forrest L. Smith in a brief ceremony.

Col. Talton W. Long, deputy post commander, presented the awards to the parents, SSgt. (ret.) and Mrs. John W. Smith.

Smith, who was born in Miami, Fla., spent part of his childhood in Wurzburg, Germany, where his father was stationed with the Army of Occupation. He attended Columbus and Jordan High Schools in Columbus before entering the service in 1959 at the age of 17.

Receiving an honorable discharge at Fort Riley, Kan., on Nov. 13, 1962, Smith reenlisted the next day and volunteered for duty in the Republic of Vietnam.

He arrived in Saigon on April 18, 1969, and was assigned as tank commander, Co. D, 1st Squadron, 11th Armor Cavalry (The Black Horse) Regiment.

In this capacity on May 28 "while conducting a reconnaissance-in-force operation in dense jungle, the company came under intense small arms, automatic weapons, heavy machine gun and rocket-propelled grenade fire from a heavily fortified enemy force ," according to the citation.

"When he realized that the vehicle's communications equipment had failed, Sergeant Smith, disregarding the hostile fusillade, ran from one vehicle to another to organize his platoon for an assault on the enemy fortifications. As darkness began to fall, he directed his men in organizing a night defensive position."

When an officer arrived to take charge of the platoon, Sergeant Smith, though he had been wounded in the firefight, returned to his vehicle to lead an attack on the remaining hostile positions. While firing a machine gun from atop his vehicle, he was mortally wounded by a burst of enemy fire."

For this action, Sergeant Smith received both the Silver Star and the Purple Heart.

Churchgoers Movie Shows Father the Way

A heart searching film, "Visitors Only," will be shown at Harmony Church Chapel No. 3 Sunday at 6 p.m.

Designed for churchgoers living in distressing days when war clouds hang ominously over the world scene, "Visitors Only," is a film for people who are listening for a voice that will show them the way.

The film shows the story of Paul Rose, a faithful husband, happy father of two teenage sons and a successful businessman who partially realizes the importance of the Church and its message, yet uses his busy schedule as a refuge from which he appears occasionally to check out the sermon.

Confronted by the wisdom of his older son and challenged by his intelligent and deeply spiritual Pastor, Paul counts his blessings and decides to do the Church a favor by faithfully attending all regular services. However, in the most important area he refuses to yield.

NCO Candidates Play To Save an Evening

A half dozen NCO candidates saved the evening at South Harmony Church Service Club. Using club instruments and music, they served as an emergency fill-in when scheduled entertainment for 50 students from the Georgia Rehabilitation Center at Warm Springs did not materialize.

Earlier that afternoon the students, chaperoned by service club staff member Jeannie McClendon, had attended the shrine Circus at Municipal Auditorium, to which they were admitted free by circus officials.

After the circus, they traveled to the service club decorated with red, white and blue streamers to view silent movies, listen to music of the impromptu group and enjoy a supper of roasted hot dogs, cake and punch.

Quiet conversation between students, soldiers and service club staff members ended the enjoyable and relaxing day.

Post Playhouse Builds 'Guys, Dolls'

On Saturdays and Sundays around the Post Playhouse, the hammers, saws, drills and paint brushes have been getting a workout.

Technical Director Scott Destefano and his crew have been busy on weekends preparing the sets and scenery for the upcoming production of "Guys and Dolls," scheduled for performances Nov. 19-22.

Set on Broadway

The major set in the show is Broadway itself. The musical involves the lives and loves of the mugs and gamblers who lived on Broaday in the early 1950s. The set has a typical street corner newsstand trash baskets, street lamps, theatre marquee and benches, with the New York skyline in the background.

The production staff is also working on physical improvements to the playhouse building and stage. The stage floor has been enlarged to provide more offstage area for sets and properties.

Beams are being hung across the ceiling for lights to increase the lighting capability of the theatre. And improvements are being planned to redecorate the lobby of the playhouse.

Theatre Interest

"Guys and Dolls" is providing an excellent outlet for Fort Benning personnel who are interested in theatre. Anyone who would like more information or reservations for the show is encouraged to call the Playhouse at 545-2992.

PLAYING TOGETHER

Ursula Andress, right, stars in "She" and Raquel Welch, left, stars in "One Million Years B.C." The two movies share a playbill in Columbus this weekend.

THE TONIGHT SHOW

Terry Moretti, left, plays Doc Severnson in the Monthly Entertainment Contest's format which follows that of The Tonight Show. The monthly contestants come on as guests of the show. Gary Lambert, right, plays the drums and two guitar players are picked up from each service club the contest visits. Guitar players wishing to appear in the next show at the Kelly Hill Service Club should contact Moretti at 545-2992. (Photo by Sp5 Larry Herrmann)

New Format Gives Winners At Entertainment Contest

The Monthly Entertainment Contest was at the South Harmony Church Service Club and three talented enlisted men ended the evening $25 dollars richer.

Sponsored by the Entertainment Section of Special Services, the contest (which is held in a different club each month) not only allows soldiers with special talent to perform, but also provides a lively show for its audience.

The three winners for October were: First place, Mark Sherren who gave a jazz rendition of the song "Exodus" on the piano; second place, William Taylor who sang "The Impossible Dream" from the play "Man of La Mancha"; and third place, Carl Fritsche who played Franz Liszt's "Dance of the Gnomes."

This month's show highlighted a new format in which Bob Hanley, Terry Moretti and Ken McNevitt characterized Johnny Carson, Doc Severnson and Ed McMahon respectively. As the famous late-night trio, they introduced the contestants in a guest appearance. The new idea worked well.

In the future, the entertainment section plans to both expand and lengthen the show while incorporating the monthly contests into it.

The contest will be held next month at the Kelly Hill Service Club (No. 4). Interested parties are encouraged to sign up.

Trainees Enjoy Barbecue

Trainees of Lt. Col. Richard N. Thrower's 10th Bn., 1st Bde. Training Center, enjoyed "dinner on the grounds" when they attended the South Columbus Boys Club Barbecue.

It was a treat to the 635 new soldiers.

The scene outside the Boys Club resembled that of a mess-hall line, with a sprinkling of civilians. Inside, volunteer wives and mothers served helping of barbecued beef to the seemingly never-ending line of trainees. The men headed first for soft-drink stands, then for the shade trees to enjoy the food and watch 10-year-old footballers bump heads.

SSgt. Billy D. Robertson, Company D, 10th Bn., supply sergeant, who spends his off-duty hours at the Club coaching the 8-10 football team, said "All the trainees I've talked to said they enjoyed the afternoon."

Roy Turgeon, executive director, added that three-fourths of the Club's 1,500 members are military dependents.

Halloween Festival Enjoys Success

THAT COLD WARM DAY

The woman Sandy Dennis portrays in "That Cold Day in the Park" experiences, perhaps for the first time, the chance to care for someone. Michael Burns co-stars in the story of a lonely spinster who becomes involved with a 19-year-old boy. The movie opens Friday downtown.

By Steve Zimmerman

Though rain threatened in the final few hours, the 1969 Halloween Festival held at Gowdy Field enjoyed a huge success.

Maj. Gen. Orin C. Talbott, post commanding general, was on hand in the evening to tour the various game and display booths and also to award the prizes to the winners of the costume contest.

The contestants were divided into two age groups: 3-7 years and 8-12 years. In each group prizes were awarded to the top three finishers—boys and girls—in each of three prespecified categories: most original costume, funniest costume and the costume that most typifies the season.

A total of 36 prizes were awarded in all. They included fire trucks, dolls, tractors and stuffed animals.

In the 3-7 year age group the contest winners were: MOST ORIGINAL COSTUME (Boys) — Doug Henderson, Robert Nelson and John McClellan; (Girls) — DeDe Chun, Lisa Moscrip and Mindy Robinson; FUNNIEST COSTUME (Boys) — Richie Mulhullen, Blake Hurn and Eric Walker; (Girls) — Karen Bonilla, Alyson Sellers and Tina Braxton; COSTUME THAT MOST TYPIFIES THE SEASON (Boys) — Mike Pena, Mark Sellers and Brian Emery; (Girls) — Julie Moscrip, Jody Jaquelyn Wear and Janice Weber.

In the 8-12 year age group the contest winners were: MOST ORIGINAL COSTUME (Boys) — Chuck Hatfield, Scott Saffels and Frank Braxton; (Girls) — Patricia Wear, Jody Jacquelyn Wear and Pauline Shortell; FUNNIEST COSTUME (Boys) — Mike Rogers, Jeffry Wisby and Franklin Woods; (Girls) — Ro Jackson, Marion Hall and B. Chambers; COSTUME THAT MOST TYPIFIES THE SEASON (Boys) — Don Wolberg, Dwight Jessamer and Paul Kelly; (Girls) — Sharon Knight, Jane Vinson and Patricia Goss.

Big Brothers Can Help Boys
The Army Community Service is sponsoring a program for the sons of active duty personnel who are separated from their father because of overseas assignment.
A young son misses the guidance and concern that a father can offer. To help these boys through a lonesome period of their lives, the Big Brother Program was established.
If you like boys and would be willing to offer your time to help in the adjustment of one who needs a man for support and guidance, consider the program.
If you would take a boy to a football game, work with him on hobbies, tinker with an automobile or do other things with him that only a man can, contact Spc Marsh at Army Community Service at 545-1833, -7813, -1233.

THE LOOM

Travis Williams is burning up the NFL again as he did so well two years ago. Last week against Pittsburgh, he scored three touchdowns, including an 83-yard punt return and a 96-yard kickoff return. He also set up the decisive score with a 31-yard run.

Two years ago, this fleet young running back burst into the record book with four kickoffs returned for touchdowns. But last season was a completely different story as he failed even to lead his own team in this category and averaged only 3.9 yards as a runner.

But the Road Runner is flashing along and the Forest Ave. blue has been standing in a cloud of dust. He has definitely turned into Green Bay's biggest running threat and the Bama baby, Donnie Anderson, is keeping his seat warm on the bench.

Last year, Williams fell before the so-called sophomore jinx and couldn't get untracked. Every time he received the ball, he found himself immediately surrounded by opposing players and on occasion he must have felt a little like Custer.

Starting with the exhibition games, he has been steadily improving and has reached his first season form. He is so fast that if there is any kind of crack in the defense, he will find it. Some yards quickly turn into many when Travis finds an open field.

The key, of course, is to pop Williams open and to do that he has to have the blocks. This was one of the causes for his ineffectiveness last season. There are new faces in the Packer line now and they know that their bread and butter will come only when holes are opened.

On Williams' part, improvement will only come from one source, additional playing time. He is not a

Hunt Club Schedules Horse Show

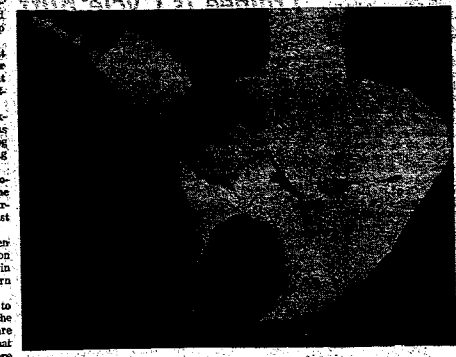
By Sp4 Chet Hilbers

"Without the horse—an animal characterized by strength, speed and a high degree of intelligence—civilization would never have developed as rapidly as it has."

Lt. Col. Sam A. Langley, Fort Benning Hunt Club president, reflected this thought on the horse and the historic role it has played through the ages.

"Although the horse has been replaced in the age of mechanization, there has been a rebirth of interest in him—not for work or transportation—but for pleasure and show," the colonel said.

The Fort Benning Hunt Club, one of the fine recreational facilities for post personnel and dependents, is helping to inspire this renewal of enthusiasm for the horse in the surrounding area.



NOTHING TO IT

The club, presently one of the largest of its kind in any Army post, has approximately 125 members and 80 horses.

"We have all sizes of horses with activities for all age groups and levels of riding experience," Colonel Langley said.

"For anyone who has ever ridden a horse or who desires to gain the experience — the Hunt Club has something to offer."

The Hunt Club's varied program of activities for members includes annual shows of competitive horsemanship, moonlight rides, overnight trips and trail rides over the more than 50 miles of bridle paths on post.

Much emphasis is placed on activities for youngsters. A system of awards has been established to increase their knowledge of horsemanship and horsemastership. An annual show in which young people display skills acquired from hours of work and practice is conducted by the Hunt Club on historic French Field, where polo was once played.

The annual Fall Horse Show, to be held Nov. 22, features English and Western riding and is held in conjunction with a general gathering of all club members and the election of a new board of officers.

After three weeks of undefeated predicting, PFC Predicto and staff went down in defeat to TCB information. The TCB crew had a 26-13 mark while the Bayonet staff had their worst mark of the season, 21-18. Sp4 Jim Swink and Gene Hagewood had 24 marks to top all predictors. Swink returns this week to match his picks against Predicto and staff and Personnel Management Division, USAIS.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloeb

The Rod and Gun Club will sponsor a turkey shoot at the club skeet ranges tomorrow. Shooting starts at 10 a.m. and closes at 4 p.m. Cost will be $1 a shot. The club will furnish the ammunition. Participants may use their personal shotguns or a gun furnished by the Rod and Gun Club. It is not necessary to be a member of the Rod and Gun Club to participate. The public is invited.

SFC Martin Gunnarsson won the bream contest for the month of October with a 1-pound 2-ounce entry he took from Patterson Pond; the catfish award went to SFC Edward Plante with a six-pound fourteen-ounce catch from Victory Pond and the bass category was won by 1st Sgt. Henry Perris with an eight-pound eight-ounce lunker caught at Harp's Pond.

Effective Nov. 1 that portion of the Post hunting and Fishing Regulation requiring sportsmen to sign out when going hunting or fishing is deleted, however they are still required to check the range clearance maps prior to entering areas. Maps are located at the Provost Marshal Office, Range Control Office and the Rod and Gun Club.

Also effective Nov. 1, hunting from a motor vehicle is prohibited. Motor vehicles are not permitted to traverse cross-country or through planted wildlife areas. Dogs will not be dismounted until the vehicle is parked. Hunting on horseback is prohibited except when quail hunting in area K.

Rabbit, squirrel and deer season open in Alabama today. The deer season runs through Jan. 12, the squirrel to Jan. 1 and the rabbit season ends Feb. 28.

There was once a time when the rabbit was not protected by law and could be shot yearlong. Now most states have a rabbit season and bag limit on cottontails. The jackrabbit of the western states remains an open target.

The cottontail along with his close relative the hare is the most popular game animal in the world. Each year more hunters pursue him and burn up more ammunition in the process than is used on any other game species.

In fact rabbit hunting may be one of mans oldest pastimes. Far back in the hazy history that is more supposition than record humans hunted rabbits for both food and fur. Chances are that man was a minor threat to the rabbit in those times. Today he plays a larger role in the rabbit harvest and it's a good thing he does because the taming of the land in many areas has eliminated many of the rabbit's natural enemies and upset the balance of nature. Without man as a substitute control we could well be up to our noses in a sea of bobbing bunnies. Years ago a few dozen European rabbits were introduced into Australia where there were no balancing predators. Within no time at all the numbers grew into billions and almost ate the Aussies off their continent. To this day controlling the rabbit population in Australia is a major problem.

In truth man hunts the rabbit because he is so good to eat, so available and so much fun to chase. A cottontail going flat out cannot make much more than 18 mph but he can change direction like a ricocheting bullet, zip through impenetrable brush, scoot under logs and seemingly disappear into thin air when he goes aground. With eyes on the side of his head he actually sees better to his left and right than straight ahead and this probably accounts for the way he zigzags so fast when chased.

The cottontail can be found in brushy areas, thickets and edges of woods that border on crop fields. The best equipment for the chase is a fast handling shotgun with an improved cylinder or modified choke with No. 6 shot.

Another advantage of rabbit hunting is the excuse it provides for owning a beagle or two. When on a rabbit trail these lovable little hounds rend the air with bowls that are plain music to the hunter. It's a welcome change of pace that invites another one of our senses to the thrill of the hunt.

Since many youngsters cut their hunting teeth on rabbit hunting the presence of a beagle is ideal. If the boy-dog combination is good the boy-beagle combination is near perfect. Pair them up and set them down in cottontail country and watch their natural and noisy enthusiasm take over. It's one of the outdoors most rewarding partnerships.

Named To All Time All Star Team

Army Football Greats Are Honored

WASHINGTON (ANF) — More than 20 years have gone by, but Felix (Doc) Blanchard and Glenn Davis, super stars of the Military Academy's World War II era football team, are still making gridiron news.

The "Touchdown Twins," known as "Mr. Inside" (Blanchard) and "Mr. Outside" (Davis), who terrorized their gridiron opponents during the mid-40's, have been named to the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) All-time All-Star Team.

The dynamic duo battled their way to virtually every top football honor during that era. For instance, Blanchard and Davis both won All-America honors three years running (1944, 1945 and 1946), both won the Heisman Trophy (Blanchard in 1945, Davis in 1946) and both were named to the National Football Hall of Fame.

Blanchard was the first football player ever to win the Sullivan Award.

Blanchard and Davis also hold many Army grid records that have yet to be topped.

Touchdowns were their specialty. Davis swept the ends and off tackle for 20 TDs in 1944.

Blanchard battered through the middle of the line to pay dirt 19 times in 1945.

And where are they now? Davis, now a civilian, is in the sports department of the Los Angeles Times. Blanchard went to the Air Force following his West Point tenure and is now a colonel; he is stationed at Bergstrom Air Force Base, Austin, Tex.

Trainee Is Cycle Buff

By: Spec 5 John Klopf

The long, dusty marches in basic training may cause Pvt. Willie Stone, Co. D, 7th Bn., 2nd Bde., to reminisce a little about his pre-service days.

Before coming in the Army, Stone spent quite a bit of time making dust fly. He raced the pro motorcycle circuit, covering more than a dozen states from one end of the country to the other.

"I was first paid to ride when I was 15 years old," explained Stone. "I never made an actual living at it — you have to get on a factory team to do that — but I competed against the pros as an independent, and it was tough competition."

Stone, who has competed in hill climbs, scrambles and flat-track races, feels his greatest personal triumph was finishing the Baja Enduro in California — 600 miles of tough desert.

"Approximately 300 four-wheeled vehicles and 800 motorcycles started the race," recalled Stone, "and fewer than 200 of us finished. I was in the top 100."

Eleven years of riding have left their mark on Stone. "I have scars all over my body from spills I've taken," he explained, "but no broken bones so far."

Stone sold three of his six bikes before coming in the Army. He now has a 450cc BSA, a 450cc Honda, and his main competition bike, a 250cc Bultaco.

The future OCS candidate (he has passed the tests) feels one thing that harms the image of many motorcycle enthusiasts is the movie industry.

"The AMA (American Motorcycle Association) has rigid standards that must be met by each member in order to compete," explained Stone. "Traffic violations, a bad attitude and unsportsmanlike conduct can lead to suspension."

Asked about future plans, Stone replied, "I'll probably keep at it (motorcycle competition) as long as I can. Once you get bitten by the bug, it's hard to give it up."

64th Leads Bn. League

The 64th OC Company, 6th Student Battalion, The Candidate Brigade improved their record to 2-0 by defeating the 61st OC Company recently in a gridiron clash 13-6.

The 61st Company didn't waste any time getting on the scoreboard by putting together a scoring drive the first time they had the football; however, the point-after attempt failed. 64th Company then rose to the occasion and put together an offensive display in the latter minutes of the first quarter. The drive was topped off with a long scoring bomb from midfield from quarterback Candidate Edward Curry to his receiver Candidate Denny Parnell in the end zone. Curry then once again found his receiver to make the point-after.

The 64th Company went with Candidate Francis English at quarterback in the second half. In the closing minutes of the third quarter, the 64th Company was once again knocking at the door of the 61st Company. Finding themselves at the 30 yard line of 61st Company, the 64th went to work and came up with another six-pointer but had it called back on a penalty. However, the 64th was not to be denied and English came right back and hit receiver Candidate Artemas Darby with a 25-yard touchdown pass. The point-after failed.

103rd Company Wins Opener

The 10th Bn., The Candidate Bde., opened its football season with a contest between the 103rd and 105th Cos. The 103rd Co. emerged victorious 20-6.

The 103rd Co. produced a balanced offense of both running and passing which gave the 105th Co. more business than it could handle.

Racing Around

Chavaga Will Hold Slalom at Phenix Dragway

By Jeff Marshall

In what could be a racing first the Phenix Dragway announced that it was jointly sponsoring Chavaga Region SCAA's November slalom. What makes the announcement so fantastic is the fact that this may be the first time that a sports car slalom was ever held on a ¼ mile drag racing complex. The slalom will be this Sunday, Nov. 9.

Jerry Coley, Alabama's "Mr. Dragway", has premised a completely stocked concession stand in addition to other track facilities. Staff Sergeant Joe White of AFC's Re-enlistment office is Chavaga's November slalom master. SSgt. White, faced with the enviable task of preparing a slalom course on the ¼ mile paved dragway complex was elated at the possibilities of speed and slow down sections. White feels that the dragway has more than enough width and with the availability of the track's night lighting system there is a possibility for late afternoon-early evening slaloming.

The idea of running a slalom on a track such as the Phenix Dragway is an excellent one and Jerry Coley once again proves why he is years ahead of the majority of track promoters in this country.

To get to the Phenix Dragway, take Victory Drive into Alabama, turn left onto Highway 80 West. Drive approximately five miles to Ladonia School, turn left (or south) on Woodland Drive which will take you right to the track.

This week's slalom will again be open to the general public with no charge for admission (time trials begin at 10:30) and for the first time in recent Chavaga memory there will be restroom and concession stand facilities available. Three large grandstands are located along the track which should give the spectators ample viewing of all sections of the course.

Entry fees for competitors will be the standard $4. Current SCCA members pay $3. This could be one of the most unique slaloms in SCCA history!

Jerry Coley is also in the news in another big way this week. Would you believe — Jerry Coley is to host an Funny Car Coast Factory Drag Team? Coley, a relative youngster in the racing world, takes over the reigns of Hubert Platt and company for the '70 drag season. Coley says to look for a possible three car team this year. Ford is still undecided whether to run Torinos or Mustangs.

(How about the Maverick with the Boss 302?)

Once again, congratulations to Phenix Dragway's Jerry Coley and to Ford for their "better idea."

On the scene: Lee Roy Yarbrough's big victory in the American 500 Nascar Grand National at Rockingham two weeks ago was an all-time record seventh superspeedway victory in one season. Lee Roy also has the most money ever won in one season — over $211,000! David Pearson isn't doing too badly with over $180,000 and his second Nascar Driver's Championship in a row. David's second place at Rockingham gave him enough points to clinch the title against his closest competitor, Richard Petty.

The Can-Am season comes to a roaring end this Sunday with the KIWI "twins" Bruce McLaren and Denis Hulme flipping a coin to see who'll win the last race at the new Texas International Speedway at College Station, Tex. Mario Andretti will be the only competitive Ford in the field now that "Darling Dan" Gurney has switched to Chevy power.

The average new car is bought with the understanding that it will be paid for within 36 months.

Unfortunately, the average new car is unloaded by its owner after 32 months.

The result is, you're buried under car payments for as long as you drive an average car.

You can avoid this trap by coming into our showroom. And driving out with a Volvo.

A Volvo is built to outlast two, three, maybe even four payment books.

9 out of every 10 Volvos registered here in the last eleven years are still on the road.

And while we don't guarantee that a Volvo will survive for eleven years, it should definitely last long enough to let you trade your payment book for a bankbook.

Two Army Boxers Beat Russians in AAU Meet

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Two U.S. Army scrappers pounded out unanimous decisions over their Russian opponents in Las Vegas, Nev., where Soviet and American boxers clashed in the first dual Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) boxing match between the two countries.

Spt Armando Muniz, Fort Bragg, N.C., banged out a win over Soviet scrapper Abdraschid Abdramanoff in the welterweight bout.

Muniz, from Artesia, Calif., who won the 1969 AAU "Outstanding Boxer of the Year" award, battled his way to the 1968 interservice welterweight title and fought to a berth on the 1968 Olympic boxing team. His fight record now stands at 51 wins (21 by knockout) and six losses.

Hawthorne, from Kosciusko, Miss., the 1968 Army light-flyweight champion and this year's interservice and AAU runnerup, notched the 62nd win of his amateur career with the victory over the Russian boxer.

Last year's Golden Gloves champion of Michigan, PFC Tyminie Lee Reland, Fort Bragg, N.C. lost his light-welterweight bout against Valery Frezloff by technical knockout (TKO) in 1:48 of the third round of the nationally televised matches. Roland, from Detroit, now has a record of 14 wins and three losses.

The U.S. and Russian boxers will meet again in a return match in Moscow on Feb. 14.

grind-it-out runner but at 6-1, 210 pounds, he is big enough to bounce off people and sooner or later you know he will break a tackle and be gone.

There were many upsets in both leagues last week but the biggest had to be Cleveland's win over Dallas. The Browns were sky-high for this meeting and it must have felt almost as good as their victory for the Eastern title last season.

The Cowboys have been universally hailed as the NFL's supreme Eastern power, that is, by all but Cleveland fans.

Talking with those who saw the game, the Browns' defense seems to have finally hit its stride. The Cowboys were held without a touchdown until the final period and the closest they could come before that was a 14-yard field goal. The Browns capitalized on three fumble recoveries and a pass interception to score four of their touchdowns.

Quarterback Bill Nelson threw five touchdown passes to demolish Dallas 42-10 and prove that their victory last year was no fluke. With Gary Collins and Paul Warfield catching two touchdown passes apiece, the Dallas defense was left in shreds. Nelson hit on 18 of 26 passes and had one of his finest days. Both the offense and defensive units were fired up and determined to win. Cleveland now owns a 5-1-1 record and face the tough Vikings this weekend.

Dallas and Minnesota had been rated among the top three or four teams in the NFL and Cleveland could just knock off the Vikings now that they know they possess the ability.

November Military Magazine Features 10 Original Articles

Front cover features are: "Barge Ship — Freighter of the Future" by Claude O. Lasciano Jr., operations research analyst at the Combat Developments Command Transportation Agency, Fort Eustis, Va.; "The New Army Planning System" by Lt. Col. David E. Shepherd, Jr., Army, assigned to the War Plans Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations, Washington, D. C., and "Communications as a Military Art: A Kermit Roosevelt Lecture" by Lt. Gen. Sir John Mogg, commander in chief of the British Army Strategic Command.

"Barge Ship — Freighter of the Future" — The author offers a study of the barge ship which he argues will do all the fast deployment logistics ship does, and more, and can be used with virtually no modification for civilian or military purposes. It can, he claims, be used profitably during both peacetime and war.

"The New Army Planning System" — Colonel Shepherd describes the new family of Army strategic plans which reflect the principal force objective and resource requirements of the Army staff.

Special Air Fares Set Through Club Services

By Sp4 Paul Miller

Military families and their student dependents are eligible to take advantage of special transatlantic flights at low discount prices through a membership in the United Service Club (USC).

The program was recently expanded to include not only flights between Frankfurt and New York or Los Angeles, but also flights to London from either of the two United States cities and back.

Special shuttles are being planned for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays to accommodate student dependents of military families in Europe who wish to visit their parents during the holidays.

The new fares within the expanded routes start at $62.50 between New York and London, and at $82.50 between Los Angeles and London. The current one-way fare from New York to Frankfurt will remain at a starting price of $69 and at $99 between Los Angeles and Frankfurt for the holiday schedules and for the new USC program.

The United Service Club should not be confused with the United Service Organization (USO) or with service clubs on post.

Founded early in 1968, the USC has been roundly hailed by Congressional and military leaders for its success in breaking the price barrier on flights for service members and dependents.

In addition to military people and their dependents, also eligible for membership in the United Service Club program are Department of Defense civilian employes and their families, and retired military and their families.

The new program will offer USC members an opportunity to fly to Europe on the newest jets at the lowest possible rates.

Information about departure times for the student shuttles or other flights is available at Room 1E22, Rhein Main Air Base, Frankfurt, Germany; and, in the United States, at the Office of the Secretary of the Army, Room 3A146, The Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20310.

The United Service Club reservation counter in New York may be reached by calling 800-221-2654. The address of USC in New York City is P.O. Box 1240, New York, N.Y. 10022.

Civilian Workers Get Pay Raises

Approximately 2,400 trade and labor Civil Service personnel at Fort Benning are among those in the Columbus area that have received pay increases.

"The increase will amount to about 11 per cent and is applicable only to the hourly wage workers," said T. A. Barefoot, chairman of the local wage survey committee here.

The governmental pay raise comes under the new Coordinated Federal Wage System, which was instituted this year.

Sidney P. Watson, alternate chairman of the committee, noted that "under the old Army-Air Force Wage Board System, pay hikes only applied to the Civil Service men and women working with the Army or Air Force. With the new system "a man at Fort Benning will receive the same hourly wage as a government worker of the same skill in Columbus."

Watson explained that his committee conducts a full wage scale survey every other year, with smaller surveys taken during the two-year period.

"These surveys will give us an idea of how we should adjust our pay standards to meet wage rates paid for comparable skilled workers in private industry in the area," he said.

Blue collar Civil Service personnel here are divided into three general wage classifications, the non-supervisory worker, the leader and the supervisor. Each class has three degrees.

Staff Slot Held By W. G. Carter

Colonel Carter, a 1951 graduate of Clemson University with a B.S. degree in education, received his commission through ROTC and went to Fort Knox, Ky., for the Basic Armored Officer's Course.

That was only the start of his Army education, however. In the last 18 years, he has attended four other Army schools, including the Armor motor officer's course, the Armor advanced course, counter-insurgency school in Germany, and the associate course of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The colonel's assignments have been as varied as his schooling. He spent six years in Europe with the 6th Armored Cavalry and the 3rd Infantry Division, then 15 months in Korea and three years in Hawaii with the CINCPACFLT command post.

Social Security Benefits Open To Minors

When is a child eligible to receive social security benefits? This is a question frequently asked at the Columbus social security office, according to Robert E. O'Neal, District Manager. O'Neal says there are three situations in which a child may receive benefits: when his mother or father is entitled to retirement checks, disability benefits, or if either dies after having worked under social security.

The child must be unmarried and under 18, or 18 to 22 and a fulltime student in an approved school. Or if the child is over 18 and disabled from a condition which started before his 18th birthday, he may be eligible for benefits.

If your child is receiving benefits now and will soon most figure on same set up for social security office if he will be in school after he is 18. Benefits may be continued after age 18 if special information is furnished. If the child reaches 18 soon and plans to return to school in the fall, benefits may be paid during the summer months.

Former Drug Addict Recalls Consequences of His Old Habit

By Sp5 John Klopf

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Pvt. Doug C. Smith," as he is referred to in this story, was a hippie in California who sought help after becoming hopelessly addicted to drugs while a teenager. Now a member of Narcotics Anonymous (N.A), he is dedicated to helping other addicts with their problems. To protect his anonymity, real names have not been used.)

He started drinking in seventh grade and was on hard narcotics before he left high school. Now, at 20, he's tried them all except heroin; but this month, he celebrated his first anniversary of permanent sobriety — as a trainee.

Pvt. Doug C. Smith, in his third week of basic training with A Company here, has been to what he calls the "bottom" — that point in an addict's life which he must reach in order to want sobriety enough to achieve it.

"I think I might have been able to quit for awhile (without outside help) . . .but I would have come back," explained Smith as he described his former drug habit. "The best way (to break the habit) is the way I did it through a former drug addict who has achieved sobriety."

Smith is a member and former chairman of the board of a California 'Narcotics Anonymous' group. Narcotics Anonymous is an offshoot of 'Alcoholics Anonymous, and functions in much the same way. Members meet informally, discuss their experiences and re-dedicate themselves to the organization's objectives.

Asked to contrast the effects of alcohol and drug addiction, Smith answered, "I can't separate the two. People drink and use drugs for the same reasons. I believe alcohol will destroy your body faster, and drugs will affect you more mentally, but as far as I am concerned, alcohol is just liquid narcotics. The effects of some barbiturates are the same as those resulting from overuse of alcohol."

Smith has experienced the consequences of his former drug habits. As early as the 11th grade he was sent to the hospital for treatment of a physical breakdown resulting from his use of barbituates.

Since going sober a year ago, he has had mental 'flashbacks' attributed to his former use of LSD.

"One of the hardest things for an addict to admit," related Smith, "is that he is powerless over alcohol or narcotics."

Gen. Orwin Talbott Dedicates Dexter School In Honor of Infantryman Killed in Vietnam

By Marian Jones

Dexter School, the newest of Fort Benning's eight elementary schools, was formally dedicated Nov. 10 in honor of a fallen hero.

The symbolic key to the school was presented to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commanding general, by Col. Richard H. Maeder, president of the school board.

The school is named for Maj. Herbert Dexter, an infantryman who was killed in combat in the Republic of Vietnam.

Maj. Dexter attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning and received a commission here in September, 1952. He was here again in 1958-1959 for the Infantry Officer Career Course.

Mrs. Dexter of 2150 Gary Court, Decatur, Ill., and her five children, were present for the ceremony. She unveiled a plaque mounted on the wall of the school auditorium commemorating her husband.

Posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for valor, Maj. Dexter was a member of the 101st Airborne Division at the time of his death.

On Sept. 18, 1965, Maj. Dexter was accompanying his battalion on a search and destroy mission in the vicinity of Binh Khe.

The battalion was airlifted to the operational area and upon arriving encountered increasingly heavy hostile fire from various insurgent positions.

A friendly platoon, which had landed in a previous lift, was forced to withdraw from a tactically important hill along the landing zone perimeter.

Realizing the importance of the hill as a defensive position, Major Dexter, with complete disregard for his own welfare voluntarily rushed to the heavily infested hostile area and successfully reorganized the friendly forces.

He issued competent instructions and personally led the left flank element up the hill, despite the intense small arms and mortar fire being directed at the platoon.

While securing the crest, he personally killed two insurgents at close range.

Although in great pain from a leg wound, realizing that his leadership and encouragement were needed to inspire the members of his platoon he continually refused to be evacuated.

As the battle raged on, he was mortally wounded.

In the dedication address, Gen. Talbott said that it was through the efforts of Major Dexter and men like him that children can today receive a proper education in a free society.

Story Told By Ex-Usher

ery — Smith's personal admission that he had reached this point — came in 1968, after numerous arrests, two trips to Hawaii to escape the habit which only led to new friends associated with drugs, and finally a mental "bottom" which Smith can't describe other than "you have to have experienced it."

During this time he said he didn't feel the drugs were doing him any good. He met a friend who had given up drugs and was introduced to the lady who became his sponsor in Narcotics Anonymous and eventually his mother-in-law:

"I admitted to her and to myself that drugs controlled me and had completely destroyed my self-will," said Smith. "It was then I took the second step — I came to believe a power greater than myself could restore me to sanity. Without this to believe in, I couldn't have made the journey back to a normal life."

Today, looking back on his experience, Smith feels, "It was something I had to go through to be where I am today." The lady sponsoring him whose daughter he later met and married, has led 12 to 15 former long-haired hippies like himself back to functioning in society without the use of drugs.

In California, before coming into the service, Smith himself was trying to help youngsters whose problems were similar to his own. He held weekly meetings of his N. A. group in a church and tried to pull together the people whose problems he knew all too well.

How does a person know if he's becoming addicted to drugs? "You don't", according to Smith. "It depends on your personality. You aren't aware of the needs at first, because you're taking them (drugs) for kicks. Then, later on, you take them to escape from reality, because you can't face the truth."

"One thing I have found," concluded Smith, is that I can have a lot more fun and experience many more things leading a sober life. There is a permanent 'high' without drugs."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

King's Pizza On Call

What's In a Name! The cranberry was originally called "craneberry" because each tiny fruit hangs from an individual stem or crane.

Bananas, brought from Asia to the New World, were used mainly for bread or pudding. A 17-th Century English planter reported from Jamaica that "sometimes, for a change, natives eat a ripe raw banana instead of bread and butter."

Chopped candy bars — the "gooeyer" the better — make a wonderful last-minute topping for ice cream or pudding.

In parts of Switzerland a huge cheese is set aside months before a child's birth. It is served on his special occasions such as christening, marriage and parenthood. Finally, his mourners consume the last morsels.

You'll consume every morsel whenever you dine at

Freedom To Drive Has Limits

"What's it to ya" is a favorite response from anyone who resents instruction in his private world of freedom.

As Stuart Chase states in his book, "Roads to Agreement:" "Your liberty to swing your arms ends where my nose begins."

It could read, "Your right to drive as you please ends when your vehicle is about to collide with another."

The freedom we cherish has its limits. It stops when it interferes with another's freedom. Vehicle collisions often result when we forget the rights of others. For example, if we forget to stop at a stop sign, we can cause a collision.

Can you think of all the possible driving mistakes that invade the rights of another driver? Let's name a few and you can add your own because the list is quite long.

1. Flicking on a turn signal and squeezing in front of another vehicle.

2. Passing when there isn't enough room and "somebody's got to give."

3. Pulling from a curb parking spot in front of traffic.

4. Blocking the left lane on a four-lane road.

Would You Trust This Man?

The plane is loaded with paratroopers at the air field. The plan calls for the pilot to fly several miles out at sea, turn back toward land at the right place and time, come in at a given attack angle and make a low drop over the assigned area.

Suddenly, the pilot sticks his head from the cockpit area and says, "This is going to be a great trip, gang. We're really going to fly today." His eyes are glassy, bloodshot. He's as high as a kite. Would you trust this man with your life?

The Army sergeant is giving a demonstration in a crowded classroom on the intricacies of dismantling live ammo. He throws a hand grenade into the air and miraculously, catches it. The pupils of his eyes are as big as saucers. "Man, this little gadget could end this whole area," he says listlessly. He continues his demonstration. Would you trust this man with your life?

The answer to both of these figurative examples would be an emphatic, No!"

NCOC Wives Clubs Visit Their Company Areas

The 10th Stu. Bn., The Candidate Brigade, has a very busy social schedule.

101st Company

The wives of the 101st Company held their second introductory coffee in the company dayroom. Its purpose, in addition to providing another opportunity for the wives of the Non-Commissioned Officer Candidates to get acquainted, was to further familiarize them with what their husbands would be doing for the remaining ten weeks.

Capt. Roger T. Spear, commanding officer, led the wives on a tour of the company area to include the billets so that they could see exactly what their husbands were responsible for as far as maintenance of their personal area.

The meeting was highlighted by a bus tour of the post facilities and an explanation of what is available to dependants of Fort Benning. The tour began on Sand Hill, led to the Custer Terrace area, and continued to Main Post as it wound its way past the bank, commissary, main Service Club and many more.

105th Company

Much activity and interest has recently taken place in the Wives Club of 105th Company. The Wives' Club held their sixth week coffee in the company dayroom.

Honored guests of the morning were Lt. Col. and Mrs. William T. McElrath, Mrs. James G. McDonough and Mrs. Carl Powell.

The wives were addressed by Colonel McElrath, who answered many of the wives' questions about their husbands' training.

Following the address, all enjoyed finger sandwiches, punch, coffee, cookies and cake.

The following week, the wives got together and gave a surprise baby shower for the wife of NCOC Jerry W. Gover. It was held in the Mess Hall and punch, coffee and cake were served.

In the future, the Wives' Club is planning a tour of the Scout Dog School, and will observe the final PT Test, to be taken by their husbands in training. Also, the Wives Club will meet in the near future to plan decorations for the graduation party and future coffees.

100th Company

The 100th Company entertained the wives of the candidates in their company at a wives coffee in the company dayroom.

Honored guests were Mmes. Robert M. Piper, Edward C. Radcliff, William T. McElrath, Douglas R. Babcock, Narvie Nowling Jr. and John W. Johnson.

The subject for this coffee was to discuss plans for decorations for the graduation party of the 100th Company and to welcome the new members to Fort Benning.

103rd Company

The candidate wives of the 103rd Company were guests at an informal coffee reception and orientation in the Company dayroom.

Following the coffee, the wives were given a bus tour of the training areas and other points of interest on Sand Hill and Main Post.

At noon, the wives joined their husbands at the 6th Battalion picnic grounds for food in the field, after which they returned to the company area for a questions period answered by company personnel.

Air Force Will Mail Santa Claus Letters

Once again, for the 15th consecutive Christmas, military and civilian members of all the services can make sure their children get a real letter from Santa Claus, postmarked "Santa Claus House, North Pole."

Member of the U. S. Air Force Air Weather Services Detachment 5, 9th Weather Reconnaissance Wing, at Eielson Air Force Base, Alaska, have volunteered to make this Christmas a memorable one for children around the world. The far-north weathermen will use their free time to forward Santa Claus letters to children everywhere. They are continuing a Santa letter program, in which in 14 years, over 103,000 letters have been remailed to service kids in many lands.

The procedure is relatively simple. Write your youngster a letter from the jolly man in red. Place this letter in a larger envelope addressed to Santa's Mail Bag, c-o Detachment 5, 9th Weather Reconnaissance Wing, APO Seattle 98737. Add proper air mail postage and drop in a mail box.

A few days later, your son or daughter will receive the letter from Saint Nick, complete with authentic postmark.

A deadline of December 10 has been set for mailing letters to Santa's Mail Bag, to permit receipt of the remailed letters by Christmas Day.

Exceptional Children Picnic in Old Fashion

The Fort Benning Army Community Services Handicap Committee and the Parents and Friends of Exceptional Children recently hosted an old fashioned picnic for eighty-five handicapped military dependents and their families.

The 197th Recreational Area rang to the excited shouts of the children as they played softball, volleyball and badminton. Any lack of skill was more than compensated for by their enthusiastic enjoyment.

The younger children found the swings and slides in the playground area irresistible. Even the picnic tables loaded with fingerlickin' good delicacies could hardly tempt them away and then, only briefly.

The picnic was a part of the regular social activities planned for the special children. Each Saturday afternoon from 1:30 to 2:30 supervised games and arts and crafts are offered for them at Faith School.

Active or retired military personnel who have handicapped dependents are urged to contact John Marshall, president of the Parents and Friends of Exceptional Children, telephone 545-4649, for further information.

Academic Staff To Dine Tonight

The Academic Staff of the US Army Infantry School will hold a dinner-dance at the main officers club tonight.

The dinner-dance, sponsored by the Directorate of Instruction wives, will begin at seven o'clock. A sit-down dinner will be served in the Fountain Room, followed by dancing to the music of "The Top Four Plus One."

A zodiac theme will dominate the decorations.

Mrs. Albert Kitchen, along with Mrs. John T. Carley, directed the DI wives in planning the affair. Mrs. Kitchen said this is the first time the Academic Staff has held a dinner-dance. In past years the staff wives have had a formal luncheon.

The Academic Staff consists of the Assistant Commandant's staff, the Directorate of Instruction, the office of the Education Advisor, the Office of the Secretary, the Office of Doctrine Development Literature and Plans, the Office of Data Systems and the students of the Allied Students Training Division.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed to work in the special education classes on post. No special skills are needed and an interest in helping children is all that is required.

Miss Johnson Retires From Red Cross Service

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

"When I first started working here there were only a few thousand troops at Fort Benning and the post was extremely small compared with what it is today—but it was nice," said Miss Lois Johnson, recently retired from the American Red Cross here on post.

Miss Johnson, a native of Columbus, was employed here with the American Red Cross for over 44 years and explained, "I have watched this post grow. My grandfather, J. A. Farr, owned a great portion of Chattahoochee County prior to the government purchase of Fort Benning."

Miss Johnson said that when she first started working on post the American Red Cross staff consisted of two people: the Field Director, who was a reserve major, and Miss Johnson. "The entire post was centered around Building 5, which was the headquarters," she said.

To Assist

"Our work at that time was based on the same concept as today, to assist our servicemen and their families whenever possible.

"I believe the greatest difference was the pace at which we worked. We were kept very busy, but one must remember that just as the military built up to such a tremendous capacity, so did Fort Benning and Columbus, and the work of the Red Cross became greater. In other words, the pace of the entire world was slower back in 1925, but then there was the build-up of troops for the Second World War, and as our volume of service increased, so did our staff," Miss Johnson explained.

"It would be tremendously difficult to try to explain the over-all atmosphere of the installation during the war. It was rapid, exciting, and yet there was an underlying fear."

Draftees

Miss Johnson said that her primary personal interest with the Red Cross was the draftees. "These young men," she explained, "arrived here, and for many of them it was their first night away from home. They were taken from their familiar home environment and forced to become part of this rapid build-up. Some quite understandably were confused."

Miss Johnson said that many of the families would try to contact sons and were not always able to do so. "We would locate the boys for their families. We were a liaison between families and sons," Miss Johnson continued, and explained that not only do men coming into the military have to make adjustments but the families do also. "We would help to ease the families' concern for their sons."

"In 44 years my work with the Red Cross has never been dull. I always thoroughly enjoy people, and human beings are just never dull."

Gratifying

Working with the American Red Cross, according to Miss Johnson, "is a tremendously gratifying experience, and if I should now take on some kind of volunteer service, my first choice would definitely be with the Red Cross."

Miss Johnson served in various capacities during her employment including clerical work, administrative assistant, case worker, secretary, to the field director, and acting field director.

Miss Johnson plans to travel a great deal now that she does not have to commute to Fort Benning daily, and she has "a great many things to see and do."

Miss Johnson is a member of the Columbus Business and Professional Women's Club and is active in various church and community activities.

OWC Christmas Bazaar

To Auction Off Dower Chest

As the highlight of their annual Christmas Bazaar, the Officers Wives Club will auction off a unique chest. The chest is a replica of a "dower chest" from the early period of our nation's history. Depending on your geographical background, you might recognize it as a "blanket" or "cedar chest."

The chest is handcrafted and no nails are used in its construction. It is made of solid pine and presents a warm appearance in its antique pine finish.

The artisan credited with the craftsmanship of the chest is Col. Charles H. Reidenbaugh. Colonel Reidenbaugh received special permission from the Smithsonian Institute to study the design and construction of the original chest which is on display there.

The chest will be auctioned to the highest bidder as part of the annual Christmas bazaar Dec. 3 at the Fort Benning Officers Open Mess. The chest will be displayed for interested parties from the start of the bazaar at 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at which time it will be offered for bid.

In addition to the "dower chest," many other decorative and gift items commensurate with the holiday season will be offered for sale.

Proceeds from the bazaar are donated to the OWC general fund and welfare fund which contributes to many worthwhile causes in the Fort Benning community.

Drill Sergeants School Honors Four Graduates

By Betty Kemper

Four drill sergeants assigned to the 10th Bn. 1st Bde. Training Center, have achieved distinction upon graduation from the Third Army Drill Sergeants School, Fort Jackson, S. C.

SSgts. Michael R. Lyon and Charles R. Pierce and Sgt. Phillip G. Cunio, honor graduates of the six-week school, and Sgt. James W. Parker Jr., distinguished graduate, were officially congratulated by Training Center commander, Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis.

"This is the first time three men from the same battalion have emerged as Honor Graduates of the school," noted Lt. Col. Richard N. Turower, battalion commander.

General Davis commended the drill sergeants for their accomplishments and said their achievements not only benefit themselves but the Army as a whole.

Drill sergeants, among the elite of the Army training system, not only volunteer for the assignment, but also are screened carefully prior to selection.

Seventy-two classes have completed the school since its inception. Cunio was the 5,000th graduate to earn the right to wear the distinctive campaign hat as a symbol of his status.

Assigned to the 10th Bn.'s Special Training Company, Cunio is a native of Woodbridge, Va.

Lyons, a Chicagoan, is assigned to Co. C.

Pierce, a Republic of Vietnam veteran assigned to Co. B, is a Houston, Tex., native.

Officers Hear General Speak At Graduation

The distinguished graduate was 2nd Lt. Anthony E. Cooch and the recipient of the Commandant's Leadership Award was 2nd Lt. Daniel E. Kersey.

Honor graduates were Capt. Clair L. McKenney Jr. and 2nd Lts. James F. Jeffrey, John C. Griffin and Terence G. Craign.

General Kelly is a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College and the Army War College. He also holds a masters degree from the University of Laval, Quebec, Canda.

Clothing Begins With Duffle Bag

One brand new and empty bag, duffle, OD—not empty for long however.

That new duffle bag, poised on the threshold of the Reception Station's clothing issue point, is about to be stuffed with the items that will make its owner one of the "best dressed soldiers in the world."

It's like stepping into a giant closet with a giant odor of mothballs . . . or a super-streamlined clothing store which outfits from head to toe before you know it.

A receptee enters and approximately one hour and fifteen minutes later — with an additional 35 minutes for the preparation of nametags and alterations—he emerges with his 65 points of initial clothing issue.

Minus his combat boots, this represents some $288 worth of clothing according to SFC George Harlin, NCOIC of the clothing issue points.

An average day will find three or four platoons of receptees going through clothing issue along with approximately 80 overseas returnees and various personnel exchanging clothing items, Harlin explained.

Although the process is indeed streamlined, every effort is made to insure what is drawn fits.

This is especially true in the case of initial issues.

Receptees are not allowed to draw items without a fitting and special attention is paid to boots. Those new boots (combat, leather, black) are going to be sticking pretty close to each man during his up-coming days of basic and a proper fit is essential.

Bags, belts, boots, buckles, caps, coats, shirts, shoes, socks and a great many things in between — these make up a receptee's initial clothing issue.

Each article is recorded within the detailed symmetry of DA Form 3327 — Individual-Organizational Clothing and Equipment Record. It's a list of the things that change a receptee into one of the "best dressed soldiers in the world."

GOOD TO BE HOME

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, left, agrees that it is good to be home after presenting the Purple Heart to PFC J. E. Bailey, the Purple Heart and Army Commendation Medal with "V" device to Sp4 Charles D. Bennett and the Purple Heart and Bronze Star to SFC John O. Brown. The medals given in a ceremony at Martin Army Hospital, were awarded for the soldiers' actions in the Republic of Vietnam.

Colonel Briefs Officers On Training Battalions

By Sp4 Marc Reiff

Once every six weeks, Lt. Col. Marshall G. Engle, commander of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Infantry, briefs officers at Fort Benning attending the Army Career Course on the operation of stateside combat units.

His students are all captains and majors who have served overseas as commanders and executive officers and are in line for similar assignments at home.

At a recent such briefing, Colonel Engle discussed the responsibilities and problems normally encountered by the XO of a training battalion in an informal class held in one of the battalion's mess halls.

He remarked that the mission of the 1st of the 58th "is to provide support to the United States Army Infantry School and the United States Army Infantry Center. The battalion's major responsibility is the presentation of approximately 100 different demonstrations for students at the Infantry School, covering almost every combat situation encountered on battlefields in Vietnam."

As the student officers took notes, the Colonel invited a question-and-answer session and the future commanders and executive officers asked their instructor for the day to clarify various aspects of problem commitments and the day-to-day operation of the training battalion.

In answer to one question, Colonel Engle replied proudly that his unit had never cancelled a commitment for lack of troops, although he admitted he had had a couple of close calls.

He explained the hard facts of the difference between the number of men a unit has on paper and the number it can possibly muster on any particular morning. "For this reason," Colonel Engle explained, "the commander must know every phase of his operation and be prepared to compensate for problems."

The officers were broken down into two dozen groups and went off to visit the various sections of the battalion. The day spent at the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., will be used as field work when the students return to class on main post to prepare a unit readiness report, compiling a fictitious listing of all members of the battalion.

The report must also point out shortages in particular job slots, reasons for any inability to achieve prescribed levels of personnel strength and personnel turnover due to overseas shipment and normal retirement and enlistment expiration.

Hibbits Named Top Graduate

James E. Hibbits was the distinguished graduate of Officer Candidate School Class No. 36-69 here. For his achievement, he received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Army Infantry School, an Associate of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque and a "Follow Me" statuette.

Lt. Vovan Vu was named as the distinguished Vietnamese graduate of the class. He was one of 23 students from the Republic of Vietnam in the graduating class. Col. Francis J. Kelly, commanding officer of the Combat Developments Command, Special Warfare Center, Fort Bragg, N.C., was guest speaker at the graduation exercises held in Marshall Auditorium.

ROTC--Part IV

Major Lists Advantages Of College ROTC Study

By Sp5 Chester Hilburn

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Army is now observing the 150th anniversary of military instruction on civilian college campuses. Military instruction at a civilian college was first offered in 1819 at Norwich University in Vermont. The following article is the fourth in a series of stories on Fort Benning officers who were commissioned through the ROTC program.)

* * *

"Today, no other officer procurement program can surpass the ROTC for the quality and quantity of the officers that it produces."

Gen. Harold K. Johnson, former Army chief of staff, expressed this view of the ROTC program — celebrating its 150th year in American colleges and universities.

The purpose of the Army ROTC program has been to develop selected college-educated men for positions of responsibility as officers in the active Army and its reserve components. Army ROTC commissions approximately 80 per cent of all new lieutenants entering the active Army.

Maj. Alonzo B. Method, 7th Bn. executive officer, 2nd Bde., Training Center, was commissioned through Army ROTC at West Virginia State College in 1961. He believes the ROTC program offers several advantages.

"I believe one is better prepared for the traditions of the Army through ROTC training. It is organized much like active duty, with each cadet getting to function in various staff positions. You really get the feeling of the job, and that makes your task easier to perform in actual duty.

Method says the current assault on colleges and universities against the ROTC program is just another way to protest the war in the Republic of Vietnam.

"Students attack the ROTC program because they are against the use of the college campus as 'a recruiting grounds' in their words. It's just another demonstration against the war which should lessen when the lottery system is effected."

Method is a distinguished military graduate from West Virginia State College — finishing in the top 5 per cent of his class. He received his BS degree in Business Administration.

Parents Accept Posthumous Awards for Son

The Distinguished Flying Cross for Valor, the Bronze Star Medal, the Air Medal (second through 11th awards,) and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to Warrant Officer John E. Anderson in Nov. 6 ceremonies here.

Anderson died of wounds received in the Republic of Vietnam, July 21, 1969.

The DFC was awarded for heroism in action on June 25, 1969, while Anderson was serving as pilot of an attack helicopter during an extraction mission near Landing Zone Jamie.

He was alerted to escort the extraction of a long-range reconnaissance patrol which was in heavy contact with the enemy. After he directed the scout helicopter into the area it began to receive heavy enemy automatic weapons fire.

The scout helicopter marked the position from which it was taking fire and Anderson attacked with deadly accurate suppressive fire. Disregarding his own safety, he placed his aircraft between the enemy and the scout helicopter and began to lay down a base of suppressive fire to allow the scout helicopter to lead the reconnaissance patrol into the pickup zone.

When the recovery aircraft landed in the area, it began to receive enemy fire. Again, with complete disregard for his own safety, Anderson began to make low and slow circling passes around the recovery helicopter to suppress the enemy fire.

According to the citation accompanying the award, Anderson's personal valor and bravery were responsible for the successful accomplishment of the mission with no friendly casualties.

Prior to his death, Anderson had been awarded the Air Medal, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal with one Bronze Service Star, Vietnam Campaign Ribbon, Army Aviator Badge, Expert Badge with pistol bar, Sharpshooter Badge with rifle bar and the Marksman Badge with automatic rifle bar.

He was a graduate of Baker High School in Columbus.

AWC Nonresident Course Graduates First Class During Summer of 1970

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The first U.S. Army War College (USAWC) nonresident course class is scheduled to graduate in the summer of 1970.

Active duty officers who successfully complete the nonresident course will be assigned or nominated to positions that require senior service college graduates.

The USAWC Nonresident Course differs from other instruction, it lasts two years and involves both correspondence and resident phases. In July, 1969, the first class of 14 officers attended a mid-course session at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., for two weeks.

A second two-weeks resident phase may be conducted at the end of the course.

The USAWC Nonresident Course differs from other military correspondence courses in that selection for attendance is made on a competitive basis.

Enrollment in each class is restricted to 100 Reserve Component officers not on active duty and 100 Active Army officers.

Active Army spaces in each nonresident class are divided as follows: Army Medical Department — four; Judge Advocate General's Corps — two; Chaplains — two; and branches controlled by the Office of Personnel Operations — 92.

Eligibility for the nonresident course extends through the 25th year of service.

The Weapons Department, on the departure of Col. Carley to the directorate of instruction, is now headed by Col. Jack L. Conn who was deputy director.

Scouts Flock to Pond For Fall Camp-O-Ree

The boys, representing 14 troops in the area, arrived at the site Friday afternoon and spent Saturday and Sunday morning in utilizing some of the skills learned in their Boy Scout training.

Various contests were held for the Scouters, to include: First Aid; Knot Tying; Fire Building with flints; and Flag Raising.

Scoutmasters had a chance to compete in what has been termed a "Special Surprise Contest" for the members of the older generation.

Col. Earl C. Acuff, Fort Benning's Boy Scout District Chairman, and co-ordinator of the Camp-O-Ree, awarded blue ribbons to the troops displaying the most merit. Second and third-place ribbons were presented. Each troop attending the event received a commemorative Camp-O-Ree ribbon.

Benning Girl Scout Visits Apollo 12 Launch as VIP

Miss Ealick, was selected by the Concharty Girl Scout council to attend the historic launching in recognition of her enthusiastic and active participation in Girl Scouting.

NASA officials invited Girl Scout participation as part of its effort to make the launching of the Saturn V space vehicle a real "youth" launch, in contrast to last July's Apollo 11 moon shot with its roster of distinguished adult guests.

As the nation's largest youth organization for girls, and sponsor of an earlier nationally organized "Space Exploration" trip to NASA'S Huntsville, Ala., Space Center, Girl Scouts was the first of several prominent youth organizations selected to attend today's event.

The national headquarters of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. in New York City, which asked local councils to recommend outstanding local Scouts as participants, received an enthusiastic response. 130 girls were finally selected, and other eager, would-be participants have been placed on a waiting list in the event of cancellatins.

Miss Ealick was thrilled and excited to receive a personal invitation to the launching from Dr. Paine. A long-time Girl Scout, Miss Ealick has been one of the most active members of her Senior troop. The opportunity to join her sister Girl Scouts (all 16 or 17 years old) at the launching of the world's second moon-bound space vehicle, has made her an even more enthusiastic booster of Girl Scouting and the learning and adventure Scouting offers girls.

While in Florida, and after registering at NASA's Guest Center, Miss Ealick, together with other Senior Scout participants, will stay with Girl Scout "families" who live in the Cape Kennedy area. Highlights of the trip will be briefings and a tour of the Space Center conducted by NASA for its special guests.

The Apollo 12 Moon Mission is described by NASA officials as a lunar Geology Experiment, whose objective is to increase understanding of the materials, features and lunar history in the vicinity of the Apollo landing site.

Miss Ealick is the daughter of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Frederick J. Ealick.

Ed Development Opens House

American Education Week will be observed by the Educational Development Office, Infantry Center, Nov. 10 - 14. Open House will be held at the Education Center beginning at 10 a.m. Nov. 14.

This gives post personnel, both military and civilian, an excellent opportunity to become better acquainted with educational facilities available to servicemen and their dependents.

The Education Center is located on the third floor, west wing of Building 35. Supervisors, teachers and counselors will be available to answer questions concerning existing programs.

Improve Yourself

The basic philosophy of the general educational development program holds that any individual can improve himself through learning and that this process does not stop with the completion of formal education.

There is an increased awareness of the role of education in the success of the Army. Leadership at all levels of command requires new methods and increased technical skill. The success of these programs is due to the support given by the military community.

Unit commanders not only approve but encourage participation in both on-duty and off-duty classes. Minimum education goals of high school graduation for all noncommissioned officers, two years college for warrant officers and four year college degrees for all officers are set by Department of the Army.

No Restrictions

Eligibility for participation in GED programs is not restricted by the length of an enlistment. These programs are aimed at helping the soldier attain his desired goals in education.

Second, they are pointed toward developing better soldiers and citizens. U. S. Armed Forces Institute courses utilize standardized texts at all Army Education Centers. A course may be interrupted and later resumed at any education Center throughout the Army or may be completed as a correspondence course.

Through the center, military members can enroll in group study or correspondence courses with USAFI. This includes over 200 high school, college and vocational technical courses.

Additionally, through contracts with USAFI, state colleges and universities provide over 6,000 college and high school correspondence courses to augment the USAFI program. These correspondence courses are made available to military personnel at greatly reduced costs.

Columbus Professor Writes On U.S.-Belgium Diplomacy

A nine-year research effort by Dr. John W. Rooney, Jr., associate professor of history at Columbus College, has been rewarded with the publication of his book by the University of Louvaine Belgium.

Titled "Belgium — American Diplomatic and Consular Relations — 1830-1850," the 268 page book is a study of U. S. foreign policy in the mid-19th century and documents the meddlesome nature of U. S. intervention in the political and economic affairs of Belgium.

"This country has never hesitated to become involved in the affairs of other countries when it is to their self interest to do so," Rooney said.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., and 1954 graduate of Huntingdon College, Montgomery, Rooney won his doctorate in European history at Louvain University in 1967 while on a three-year Rotary Fellowship. His book is only the 41st doctoral dissertation to be published by the Louvain University Press since the end of World War II.

Supper Club Looks New

There will be a "new look" featured at the Fort Benning Supper Club Thursday night.

To launch the club's new and modern look, cocktail waitresses will be dressed in new "mod" creations designed especially for them. A free bottle of champagne will be presented to each lady attending. Happy hour prices will be in effect along with a reduced price menu.

A fashion show will begin at 7:45 p.m. and will feature holiday clothes from a downtown ladies store.

Movie Synopsis

Lola Gets What Lola Wants

"You wait around a long time, wondering if the public likes you, and then, in less than a year, everything happens."

This is what Lola Falana, who starred with Sammy Davis Jr. on Broadway and on the London stage in "Golden Boy," has experienced since arriving to Hollywood last March.

"I'm so pleased that the first Hollywood calls have been for dramatic roles. Except for two Westerns I made in Italy, everything else that I've done has been in musical variety," said Miss Falana, who was born in New Jersey and reared in Philadelphia.

'FIGURES IN A LANDSCAPE'

This chameleon met Robert Shaw when they were both running through a blazing canefield during the shooting of "Figures in a Landscape" near Malaga in southern Spain. Based on Barry England's best-selling novel, the film stars Robert Shaw, the brilliant author and actor, and Malcolm McDowell as they are relentlessly pursued by a lone helicopter which watches their desperate movements like a great bat.

Jane Russell Returns To Play

NEW YORK — Jane Russell has been signed to co-star in "Darker Than Amber," starring Rod Taylor, Suzy Kendall, Theodore Bikel, Anna Capri, Janet MacLachlan and William Smith.

Trainees Delve Into Mysteries

"Make two wishes and speak one," Madame Duda told the young soldier.

"I don't want to go to Vietnam," he said.

"Well, I wouldn't count too much on that," she smiled. "In fact, you probably will go. But do not worry. Your health will not be in danger, and you will learn to fight for what you believe."

The scene was a Golden Future Party at Sand Hill Service Club, as Phenix City fortune tellers Prophetess Mary and Madame Duda, secluded in booths made of cardboard and crepe paper, told every man's fortune who cared to hear it. Most men preferred to be told twice — once by each fortune teller — and compare the results.

The party included a "Guess Ur Weight" booth, fortune well, and self analysis questionnaires, plus cake and punch for the curiosity-seeking trainees.

Film Will Dramatize Darwin's 5-Year Cruise

NEW YORK — Andrew Sinclair has completed the screenplay for "The Voyage of H.M.S. Beagle," the dramatization of Charles Darwin's historical five-year cruise of the southern seas to be produced by Robert Radnitz.

The film will depict Darwin's travels (1831 - 1836) to South America and the Islands of Australasia, one of the great adventures of the modern era and during which the great naturalist developed the conviction that changed the thinking of the entire world as to the origins of man.

The Sinclair screenplay is based on a treatment by Radnitz and the book by historian Alan Moorehead, as well as historical accounts in the journals of Darwin and the logs of Captain Fitzroy, commanding officer of H.M.S. Beagle.

Production on the picture will be activated early in 1970 and will be filmed entirely on the actual locations of Darwin's journey.

Western and English Events Scheduled

Horse Show Features Varied Events

By Sp4 Chet Hilburn

A record number of entries is expected for the annual Fort Benning Hunt Club Fall Horse Show to be held Nov. 22 at the Hunt Club on Marne Road. English and Western riding events will highlight competition.

"The show this fall will climax a most successful year of competitive horsemanship," Lt. Col. Sam A. Langley, Ft. Benning Hunt Club president, said.

The season began with the First Student Horse Show, held Feb. 22. Langley said, "Performances by both rider and horse in the initial show for students showed high degrees of skill and training. It provided the opportunity for students to compete for the first time in a judged contest."

The 14th Regional Pony Club Rally for the Southeastern U. S. was held here July 26-28, with the Ft. Benning team winning first place. The rally included events testing both rider and horse in difficult patterns of handling and control exercises. Riders — to age 18 — also were tested on stable management, dress, and by written examination.

On May 3 the Ft. Benning 7th Annual Horse Show was held, attracting 111 entries from throughout the Southeastern United States. Twenty-seven different classes competed in equitation (horsemanship) and obstacle courses of varying difficulty.

ATC Completes Football Play

The final week of ATC flag football regular season play saw two teams tied for the second half league title.

Reception Station and Headquarters Team 3 (Committee Division), both winners during the past week, remained tied for first place with 6-1 records.

Headquarters Team 1 joined with Headquarters Team 2 and Special Training Co. in a three-way tie for the third place with a 4-3 record.

Recept Sta	6-1
Hq. Team 3	6-1
Hq. Team 1	4-3
Hq. Team 2	4-3
Spec. Trg. Co.	4-3
6th Bn.	2-5
7th Bn.	2-5

English riding — in which the rider holds one rein in each hand and controls the horse by bit — and Western riding in which the rider holds both reins in one hand — will provide competition for the annual Hunt Club Fall Show.

English competition will include the beginner's equitation class (for those just learning to ride): hunter and jumper class (in which horse and rider are judged on jumping obstacles of a prescribed course) and the gamblers choice class.

The gamblers choice class is an event which allows the rider to select the jumps he wants to take. The rider is allowed 50 seconds from the time he crosses the starting line to jump as many obstacles as he thinks he can. There is no prescribed course. Each obstacle to be jumped is assigned a numerical point value based on the difficulty for both rider and horse.

Western events for the show will include barrel racing, pole bending, the pick-up race, and the tunnel race.

The barrel race, in which the horse and rider must negotiate a triangle shaped course, is a test of control and speed. The pole-bending event — or horse slalom — features a zig zag course marked by poles. The pick-up race — a heritage from the days of the Western cow drive — is a test of a rider's skill to pick-up a dismounted rider without stopping.

The tunnel race reveals the horse's ability to work with the rider when [illegible] of the cow pony. In this event, pony and rider race to a barrel a prescribed distance from the starting line. The rider jumps off the horse, grounds the reins, and crawls through the barrel. He then emerges into view of the horse again, quickly mounts him, and races for the finishing line. If the horse is well trained, he will [illegible] and reapproached in this exercise.

Grand champion and reserve champion trophies will be awarded to the riders amassing the highest total points of the combined events for both Western and English divisions.

A general meeting of the Hunt Club and the election of a new board of officers will be held in [illegible]

©1969 THE BAYONET AND J-MAR PRODUCTIONS

In the toughest predicting weekend of the season, the Bayonet staff whipped the Personnel Management Division, USAIS, by 6 games. PFC Predicto, teaming with Spt Lee Myers and Pvt. Steve Zimmerman, gave the Bayonet a 19-14-6 mark while PMD fell below .500 at 13-20-6. Predicto missed a chance to predict upsets when both Army and Florida missed opportunities to win the final minute against Oregon and Georgia. Predicto was the only man to pick either team. This week the Bayonet staff takes its 4-1 record against the Allied Student Training Division. Last week even the Consensus only picked 5 games correctly.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The quail season opens in both Georgia and Alabama next Thursday. Bag limit in Alabama is 10 per day and a maximum of 10 in possession. In Georgia the bag limit is 12 per day and 36 in possession.

Many gunners place the bobwhite quail at the top of the list of game birds. Hunt them and you will soon realize why. There are few outdoor thrills that compare with the thrill caused by the whirring wings of a flushed covey.

Many hunters think of the quail as a covey bird but this is only partly true. In the spring of the year the quail strikes out to find a mate or selects one from the covey he was with during the winter. Paired off, the cock and hen stay together during the summer months while attempting to raise a family.

Usually nesting begins in May and continues through August, but on occasion in the south they may nest as late as October. The cock is the home builder, usually making the nest from grasses and pine needles. The hen will require some 20 days to lay the clutch of eggs, which will average about 14 in number. Both male and female share incubation duties and in 23 or 24 days will bring off the hatch.

Should the nest be destroyed or the eggs molested before being hatched the hen will begin anew to lay another clutch. However once even a single bird has been hatched the nesting is over for the year for the parents.

In the fall the quail covey up again in bands of 12 to 16 or more. The coveys roost in briar patches tangled tall grass or brush, pressing tightly together in a tight circle with their heads pointing outward. These roosting rings can be identified by the pile of droppings each contains.

At dawn the covey leaves the roost and move into the fields to feed on soybeans, peas, weed seeds and berries. In the fields the birds fan out to cover an area of approximately 60 feet or more while feeding. Feeding continues throughout most of the morning and is followed by a resting period until midafternoon when the birds again feed until roosting time. A coveys range rarely exceeds a half-mile and unless disturbed, roosting time, traveling and feeding times are repeated daily. The time to hunt is when they are moving to and from the feeding area or feeding. Midday hours are usually unproductive because they are again banded together in a close circle and hard to detect.

When flushed quail will invariably fly toward the nearest heavy cover. The experienced hunter will take advantage of this and place himself in the best position for a favorable shot. The rise is abrupt and the whir of thrumming wings is startling. The novice hunter has a tendency to fire blindly into the center of the covey but this method brings almost sure defeat. There is more space between birds than there appears and unaimed shots usually result in misses. The secret of covey shooting is to pick individual birds and concentrate on them. They are not moving as fast as they seem to be and there is almost always time for two deliberate shots.

Once the covey is flushed, the survivors scatter into thick cover. It is important to mark the landing places of several of the birds. Usually they run only a few feet after landing.

In shooting singles be deliberate and wait for the bird to get out 20 to 30 yards. Otherwise you may end up with a handful of feathers.

No. 9 is the ideal size shot for quail. As to the type gun, that is a matter of preference. Hunters are successful with all types and gauges but one thing is certain, the smart man will select the lightest gun he can handle sucessfully. There is a lot of walking connected with quail hunting.

In most areas the quail population has been greatly reduced over the past few years. This is due primarily to the percentage of land devoted to grain crops and grazing land compared to the percentage of land devoted to timberland. More and more timberland and less and less grain crops are to be found in recent years. This has taken a drastic cut into the amount of good quail country.

Sportsmen authorized to hunt on the Fort Benning reservation are more fortunate. The wildlife conservation program has been able to keep a good quail population by a balanced program. The last survey conducted by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, Department indicated that there is approximately one covey of quail for every 20 acres of the 12,000 acres of suitable habitat for wildlife on the post.

Writers Still Pick Buckeyes First

Ohio State and Texas, seemingly oblivious to injury and ailment continue to run 1-2 in The Associated Press major college football ratings after breakaway victories last Saturday.

The mighty Buckeyes, who mauled Wisconsin 62-7 with injured quarterback Rex Kern on the bench, held the top spot Monday, drawing 25 of 32 first place votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Texas, shaking off the effects of a virus epidemic that hit 14 starters, slammed Bayor 56-14 and remained No. 2, picking up four first place ballots and closing the Buckeyes' margin from 60 to 48 points.

Ohio State, which puts its perfect record on the line against 10th ranked Prudue Saturday at Columbus, Ohio, totaled 618 points. Texas had 570, third-ranked Tennessee 508, No. 4 Arkansas 403 and No. 5 Penn State 351. The top five teams, in the same positions they held last week, ware 7-0 on the season.

Southern California and UCLA remained sixth and seventh, respectively, while Missouri moved up one spot to eighth — with Notre Dame dropping from eighth to ninth.

Tennessee received two first place votes and Penn State got the other after a weekend in which eight of the Top Tenn played — and all won by more than two touchdowns.

The Vols' 29-14 victory over South Carolina marked the closest call.

Eleventh-ranked Auburn and No. 12 Louisiana State held firm. Stanford advanced from 14th to 13th and Michigan made the biggest jump, from No. 18 to No. 14. Florida, Georgia, and Nebraska rank 15th, 16th and 17th.

Hubby Goes Hunting? Wives, Heed Advice

When the average sedentary husband decides to go off on a big hunting trip with the boys, it is time for his wife to take note. Thousands of these average sedentary husbands come to grief each autumn because they are not physically fit.

If your husband's favorite sport is sitting in front of a television set cheering on the home team, you can be sure he is not in proper condition for walking miles up and down hills, exposure to all sorts of weather, or eating and sleeping under largely primitive conditions.

Typical of the woes that affect most hunters are physical exhaustion, muscle strain and rupture, slipped discs, bruises and cuts, shin splints and other ailments associated with loss of physical tone and endurance.

These mishaps might be avoided if the now-and-then hunter had a complete medical check-up, engaged in some prior physical conditioning and packed a good medical kit in his duffle bag.

As his wife and chief mentor, it is up to you to see that he does all three.

A doctor's examination helps to establish individual guidelines for exercise. Most important is an electrocardiogram for men over 40 who plan to embark on a strenuous exercise program.

Bird hunters, deer stalkers and those hunting mountain inhabiting game especially need exercise to develop endurance.

Your hunter will profit most from such exercises as push-ups, deep knee bends, body twisting and touching the floor. It might encourage him if you joined him in doing these exercises. By the way, if will do wonders for your figure, too. Jogging and stationary running will help build up reserve strength in the heart and muscles around the lungs.

Even if in good condition, any hunter can be injured or fall ill far from the nearest doctor or hospital. A well-equipped medical kit may prevent disability or even death.

A good basic kit should include a first-aid manual, elastic bandage of one inch surgical tape for binding strains and sprains, talcum powder to prevent foot discomfort, an antacid to relieve stomach distress brought on by his own cooking, a laxative such as milk of magnesia, a tube of petroleum jelly for burns or chapped lips, an insect repellent to prevent insect bites, and antihistamine lotion for relieveing those that happen anyway, an antibiotic and antiseptic ointment for minor cuts, and aspirin to relieve headaches and tired aching muscles. The kit might also contain tweezers, scissors, a triangular bandage, sterile bandage compresses in several sizes and gauze roller bandage.

Certainly, a first aid manual and medical kit don't substitute for the care of a physician. But out in the wilderness, they will surely help. And the safe return of the man of your house is worth your attention to these details.

Airborne Graduates Were Outstanding Point Athletes

By Pvt. John Waring

Two members of the graduating class from the 45th Co. (Abn), 4th Bn., The Stu. Bde., 2nd Lts. James O'Toole and Robert Foos, did not find Airborne physical training difficult.

Both officers are 1969 graduates of the U.S. Military Academy where they participated in varsity sports for three years.

O'Toole was a member of the football, basketball and track teams at the Academy. An all-state quarterback during high school in North Riverside, Ill., O'Toole rotated at this position for three years at West Point. He brought Army within inches of victory in the 1967 Army-Navy game with two last quarter touchdown tosses. His bid for victory was spoiled when the Army fullback fumbled on the Navy 26 yard line. O'Toole's teammates, however, voted him MVP of the game.

Foos, a track star at Woodhaven High School in New York, holds three track records at West Point. Indoors he set the best Cadet time for the 600 yard run (1:10.8) and helped the mile relay team to an Academy record (3:15.4). Running on the faster outdoor track, Foos was also a member of Army's record-breaking mile relay team which boasted a time of 3:12.3.

Foos says his best meet was the Knights of Columbus Invitational in Madison Square Garden when the Army track team took the title from the Villanova powerhouse. In speaking of the physical training at the Airborne school, Foos said the running was not difficult.

"In fact," he added, "it was quite slow."

Both officers will continue their training before they receive permanent assignments. O'Toole will go to flight school at Fort Walters, Tex. and Foos will enter ranger school here at Fort Benning.

Sports Give Boy Real Goal in Life

"Sports really give a person a goal in life," Dr. Loren Young, regional director for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, told members of the Columbus Quarterback Club at the Ralston Hotel Monday night.

"It is not difficult to determine the winner in football, or any other sport," said Dr. Young, former star athlete at Duke. "However, in life, winning can be ambiguous. It can be controversial, and there are times when we can't even tell if we're winning.

"But winning is important, and this is where sports come in. When Auburn and Georgia square off Saturday afternoon, you can bet Shug Jordan and Vince Dooley are going to field their best team. A boy is not going to play because he's good looking or because so many people signed a petition.

"He is going to play because he has earned a right by eliminating the competition. This is the best example of a democratic life. The finest lessons in life are learned in football. Tomorrow's world will belong to the best competitor, and this is why I feel there is a specific ministry in sports."

Dr. Young, speaking to an overflow gathering on "Father-Son Night" at the Quarterback Club, told of a personal experience when he attended a game between Dakota Wesleyan and Black Hills State.

He told how Dakota Wesleyan, whose biggest lineman weighed 205 pounds and whose fastest back ran a 10.3, won its Homecoming game with "character."

"If there's a foot in the door of today's society, I'll guarantee you it has cleats on it," the well known FCA official said. "Men who play the game will teach the world how to play and win."

At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Young, who has spoken in Columbus several times, received a standing ovation.

In addition to the sons, relatives and young friends of Quarterback Club members, high school coaches in the city were geusts at Monday night's meeting.

Captain Jeff Weekley presided over the meeting and announced that Vince Dooley, Georgia football coach, will be guest speaker next Monday night.

Off Season Busy One For Atlanta Braves

What do baseball players do to keep busy during the winter months?

Plenty, according to a survey of winter activities of Atlanta Braves players.

Hank Aaron is setting up his new corporation, Aaron Foods, Inc. and is in his second year as a sportscaster for WQXI-TV, Channel 11 in Atlanta. Phil Niekro and his brother, San Diego pitcher Joe Niekro, have opened a bar in Atlanta called "The Knuckler." Milt Pappas operates a restaurant in Baltimore but is taking time off for his USO tour with other big league players and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bob Didie, rookie catcher who was married recently, answered, "A week in Hawaii for my honeymoon. Taking it easy. Hunting and Fishing; Ron Reed and George Stone on a goose hunt, Phil and Joe Niekro on a duck hunt . . . and working out at a local health club." Boh lives in Baton Rouge, La.

Thirteen players are playing for Atlanta's team in the Arizona Instructional League at Phoenix. Felipe Alou (Domican Republic), Gil Garrido (Panama) and Felix Millan (Puerto Rico), plus young outfielder Ralph Garr, are playing Winter Baseball in Latin America.

Orlando Cepeda is wintering in Puerto Rico, but isn't playing winter ball, just taking it easy. Clete Boyer is the head of a car leasing service in Atlanta, Clete Boye leasing. Pat Jarvis and Mike Lum are working with juveniles through the State Department of Education in Atlant

THE FORUM
THE FORUM

By Mark Reife

In the fourth quarter against Detroit the other week, the Chicago Bears, losing, 13-7 did a most unorthodox thing. They benched Gale Sayers.

This once would have been unheard of and is tantamount to taking Shoemaker off a horse or benching Henry Aaron, Jerry West and Bobby Hull.

But Sayers had gained only 12 yards against Detroit, and the depressed Chicago coach turned to someone else. Specifically, the incident is minor, except that it tends to dramatize a growing condition in pro football. What is happening to the runner?

Leroy Kelley has been quiet. O. J. Simpson is buried. Mel Farr has been knocked out the box. Mike Garrett is just holding his own. The super legmen have yielded to the plow-ahead guys, the tough, serviceable runners who can make their three or four yards and get back on their feet after a creaming.

Bill Brown comes back for more. So does Cannonball Butler, Mat Snell, and Tom Matte. The rookies Ron Johnson and Calvin Hill are up before the mandatory eight-count, and Les Josephson gets to his feet, too.

But the fleet footed, razzle-dazzle backs are all but dead. Pro defenses have all but killed him. They have done it with long hours of looking at game films and with tackling that is swift and faultless.

Only once in the last four years has a running back gained 100 yards against the Los Angeles Rams. They symbolize today's football-fierce defense and attack, not brilliant but experienced.

Defense may be the key word today in football. Even with an average scoring offense, given good field position they will take advantage of it and score at least three points most of the time.

Green Bay has running backs considered better than average. It isn't recommended, for example, that you try to catch Travis Williams from behind. On a kickoff, he went 88 yards against the Rams, but, from scrimmage, he gained 23 yards in eight carries.

Dave Hampton made 11 yards in five carries and Jim Grabowski netted exactly one yard in four tries.

This is a fragment of what goes on in pro football. The game-busting back is fighting for his existence. He pales in importance before the passer, the plow-ahead, the place kicker and the pressing defense that serves its team's attack, as well.

THE Sports COMPUTER
by Bud Goode

Dr. Vincent Lombardi came to Washington this year to minister to a feverish football team. After six games the patient has a strong pulse, stronger heart, and a forty-yard wind sprint team average near 4.6 seconds. Most importantly the won lost record is a ruddy, healthy 500.

Witch doctor or otherwise, Lombardi administered to the sick Redskins team when it ached most, its defensive middle. Washington's defensive secondary allowed over one point per opponent pass attempt last year—near the league cellar. This year they are giving up three-quarters of a point per opponent pass, league average, and a 25 per cent improvement.

Both Washington and Dallas must play Baltimore and Los Angeles before the season is out. Lombardi fans can dream about an improving Redskins team splitting with the Capitol Division champs — defeating Dallas the last day of the season — thereby earning a first place tie with the Cowboys. With witch doctor Lombardi chanting the tune, anything is possible.

The Sports Computer has found that this opponent's points per pass statistic is one of the best predictors of defense—and also a team's standing in the won/lost column at season's end. To measure this important opponent's points per pass stat, we poured the current season NFL/AFL figures* into our Univac 1108 sports analyzer with these results (*NFL, 5 games):

Two Teams Tie For First Place In TSB Football

By Pvt. John Waring

The Rangers and the 41st Company shared second half honors in TSB flag football competition. The Rangers, who took the top slot with B Company, ISB, at the close of the first round of play, insured a tie last Tuesday by downing the 41st Company.

The 41st Company preserved their title by taking a forfeit victory from HHC on Thursday night. The B Company gridders, who slipped to a 3-3 record in the second half of the season, returned to their winning ways by outpassing H Company, ISB, 14-6 and blanking Company Operations 7-0.

This week the three top teams meet in a double elimination playoff to determine the brigade champion and post competition entry. The Rangers and 41st Company both have fine defense and an overpowering pass rush. The Rangers play a conservative game with the emphasis on bocking and execution. The 41st uses a more complicated passing game while B Company relies on its long-range passing and surprisingly good running game.

No plug. No cord. No socket. And no beard.

The Cordless 20B packs its own power. Just turn it on and your beard is gone for the day. Four inexpensive little penlight batteries make this happen every day for up to 30 days. Shaving's as easy as that. You never have to plug it in. Flip-top cleaning and a handy travel case with built-in mirror make it convenient, too.

Another great shaver is our Flip-Top 20 (pictured below). It gives you the same close, fast, comfortable shave, with a cord.

But the greatest thing about both of these shavers is that you can afford them. So with or without a cord, you haven't a thing to lose. Except your beard.

SIGN CONFUSES PRIVATES
Pvts. Jerry Standridge and Job Rogers

Tiger Sign With 'PAAF' on It Acts as Incentive for Trainees

"PAAF?" — What's that mean? Why the tiger on the sign?

"Pet and Acquire a Friend?" — maybe. No, that can't be it. They don't have a tiger in Co. B, 5th Bn., 1st Bde. Training Center.

The signs in the 5th Bn. area with the letters "PAAF" and the picture of a tiger confused a lot of people at first, but to Capt. Russell K. Smith Jr., company commander, the meaning is clear. No AWOLS in the company — all Present and Accounted For.

Smith originated the signs as an incentive to his trainees. If the sign is up every morning, they know there are no AWOLS in the company.

Now, each of the five companies in the 5th Bn. has one of the signs and according to Lt. Col. George Giles, 5th Bn. commander, it seems to make everyone more AWOL conscious.

"We make weekly inspections and award what we call the 'Tiger Award' to the company that comes out best. The AWOL rate is one factor in the competition, so naturally, no one wants to see that sign come down," the colonel said.

ATC Sergeant Cops Eighth Award As Best Training NCO of Cycle

In graduation ceremonies of the Army Training Center's 7th Battalion, the senior training sergeant of the cycle award was awarded to SFC Lemuel E. Morris of Company E.

For Morris, who is serving his second tour at ATC, it was the eighth time out of 13 cycles that he has earned this distinction.

During Morris' first tour his company set an ATC individual proficiency test record that still holds. Of a possible 80 points, the company scored 64.75. ATC's scoring was revised in May, 1968. Under the new scoring Morris' company set a new record of 62.43 out of 67.

Graduating with Companies A, B and E of the 7th Battalion was Company B, 19th Battalion, 1st Brigade whose Pvt. Neal E. Noyes claimed the highest training award — the American Spirit Honor Medal.

Company E commander, Capt. Gregory B. King, received the brigade commander's trophy recognizing his company's highest scores for proficiency in training and overall.

Training Center Focuses On Wintertime Ailments

During late spring and summer it is heat exhaustion or stroke but in the late fall, winter and early spring the Army Training Center's concern for the health of trainees is prevention of upper respiratory infection and meningococcal meningitis.

The symptoms of and cures for adverse heat effects are relatively clear-cut. Symptoms of winter diseases are more subtle. When, for instance, does a common cold become a respiratory infection? When does either become meningitis?

To help commanders and drill sergeants better understand symptoms of respiratory diseases and react more quickly, Lt. Col. Charles R. Webb, chairman, preventive medicine department, Martin Army Hospital, is conducting briefings at the Training Center.

"Respiratory diseases cause more lost time to the Army than anything except battle wounds and malaria in Vietnam," Webb told a group Saturday. He will give the same briefing tomorrow to groups in each brigade area of the Training Center.

Everyone carries respiratory infection in some quantity "but each of us develops a certain amount of resistance to the germs we have" when exposed to the same relatively small group of petple daily, Webb said.

Trainees, collected from all environments and exposed under emotional and physical stress, to infection, are especially susceptible to respiratory infection.

Quick-striking, sometimes fatal meningitis is the most dangerous of the infections. Its symptons are the same as URI or a common cold, "until that one trainee just falls over and it's pretty obvious he has something worse than an ordinary cold," Webb said.

The eight-week battle of prevention begins at Reception Station, where trainees are assigned to the platoon with which they will complete basic training. The aim is to create a family in which men develop resistance to one another's germs. Unit cadre are the key men.

"Regulations don't do any good unless the drill sergeants act to prevent the disease," Webb said, adding that last year Fort Benning's Training Center had the lowest incidence of meningitis in the United States. "That simply means drill sergeants here were doing better than those at any other basic training center in the U. S. — Army, Air Force or Marine," the Colonel said.

The drill sergeant's best tool is common sense. As much as possible, men are kept in roster number order during training. Trainees normally are restricted to the Training Center for three to four weeks, thus lessening their exposure to germs.

During extremely cold months, trainees wear surgical-like masks to decrease the germ-spreading effect of sneezing. "I can't prove this," Webb said, "but I think if every man in ATC sneezed into a handkerchief, we wouldn't have any upper respiratory infections."

CG Asks Council To Study AWOL-Desertion Problem

Major. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commanding general, met recently with the Company Grade Officer Council and requested that council members study the AWOL-desertion problem at Fort Benning.

General Talbott told the council that he is vitally concerned over the AWOL-desertion rate, which results in a great amount of waste in terms of money and time to the post and to the Army as a whole.

"This problem has been examined in detail by many agencies, but it is ultimately a responsibility of the junior officers and NCO's at the unit level," General Talbott said.

He asked that council members solicit comments and suggestions on the AWOL-desertion problem from their commands, and express the results either in the council minutes or in a letter to the commanding general or the deputy post commander.

Gen. Talbott also requested that council members pass on to junior officers of their commands the commanding general's concern with AWOL-Desertions.

The council agreed to discuss the problem at its November meeting and requested that it be briefed by a representative of the director of personnel on the factual background on AWOL-desertions.

In other remarks General Talbott expressed his interest in the council, stating that it offers him an opportunity to keep in contact with junior officer problems and opinions that might not otherwise be gained through the command structure.

He said the council is an effective method for furthering junior officer retention and that he will give it his continuing support.

The Fort Benning Company Grade Officer Council was formed in 1968 as one means of furthering junior officer retention. The council is composed of representatives from each of the major commands on post, and from the WAC and Nurse Corps.

At its monthly meetings the council will hear representatives from on-post agencies regarding their activities and problems. Council members then will make recommendations for changes in operations of the agencies if appropriate.

General topics raised by the council include medical care, Main Officers Open Mess, Custer Terrace housing, personnel policies and junior officer assignments, Incentive Awards and Suggestion Program, and effects of the expected austerity program on the junior officer.

Topics approved for discussion at subsequent meetings in December and January are medical care and the Main Officers Open Mess.

At its October meeting the council discussed specific problems existing in the Custer Terrace housing area, where a large number of junior officers reside.

Attention was given to the need of a traffic light at the corner of Custer Road and Craig Drive, where extremely congested traffic conditions exist.

Also, the council discussed reported violations of traffic regulations in the Custer Terrace area. It was pointed out that numerous complaints have been received concerning cars passing school buses illegally and excessive speeding, particularly in the area of the Custer Terrace Officers Club annex.

Council members took the position that each individual is responsible to take action to stop or report violations, such as unleased dogs or speeding, and recommended that the command take actions to alleviate these problems.

The council's next meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 19, Room 647, Infantry Hall.

Serving on the council with Hampton are Capt. Thomas C. Barron, GS, director of personnel, USAIC, recorder; Capt. Frances Cappadocia, ANC, Martin Army Hospital; Capt. Robert L. Hauck, Assistant SI USAICTC; Capt. Charlie R. Lewellen, Hq. and Hq. Co., The Stu. Brg.; Capt. Edward J. Locke, 55th Co., The Candidate Bde; Capt. Michael A. McDermott, Airborne Dept., USAIS; Capt. Robert P. Moore, Assistant G1, USATC; 1st Lt. Charles Ford, 54, 197th Inf. Bde.; 1st Lt. Carolyn Hall, S1, The Candidate Bde.; and 1st Lt. Richard M. Meuller, S3, 10th Avn. Gp.

Tactical Night Problems

818th Engineers Conduct 5-Day FTX

Classes during the day and tactical problems at night.

That was the general schedule of the 818th Engr. Bn of Center Troop Command's 931st Engr Gp. during a field training exercise last week.

Held in the vicinity of Red Arrow Road off 10th Armored Division Road the FTX, according to Maj Jimmie E. Powers, the 818th's operations officer, was directed towards company level training.

During the exercise, the battalion remained at full tactical readiness except from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Between these hours, individual companies held training classes on such subjects as demolitions, rigging, and chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare.

On Monday the battalion road-marched to the problem area where the units dug in and camouflaged their areas.

With nightfall Company A moved out and secured a road junction. Soon after this was accomplished the company successfully replused an agressor force. On the second night of the five day operation, Companies B and C took part in occupation and security exercises. Again, aggressors attacked, both from ambush and at the companies' defensive postions.

Wednesday brought more classes during the day. The evening brought a respite from tactical problems but not from the cold as the mercury dipped below the freezing mark.

Since every unit in the Army has to be prepared to function in an infantry role, such a re-organization was slated for Friday. Preparations for the switch were carried out Thursday night.

On the last day of the operation the engineers-turned-riflemen took up blocking positions and later joined forces to capture a hill.

FORMER EM NOW FIRST LIEUTENANT

Daniel L. LaDuke, left, is congratulated Oct. 31 by Col. Anna M. Hays, chief, Army Nurse Corps, after LaDuke was promoted to first lieutenant. The 26-year-old lieutenant served as an enlisted man at Martin Army Hospital here for two years. He left the Army to enter the student nursing program and was commissioned in December, 1968, returning to serve at Martin Army Hospital. (U.S. Army Photo)

Posthumous Awards Given Staff Sergeant

The Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, the Purple Heart, the Good Conduct Medal and the Combat Infantryman Badge were awarded posthumously here to SSgt. Charlie W. Farmer Jr.

The sergeant's widow, Mrs. Linda S. Farmer, accepted the awards. Present at the ceremony with her were her daughter, Leslie Cheryl, 5 months old; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Humphries, her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Champion; the sergeant's mother, Mrs. Charlie W. Farmer Sr. and the sergeant's brother, Gary Farmer.

Farmer, a native of LaGrange, Ga., was graduated from Troup High School in 1966. He continued his education at Young Harris (Ga.) Junior College. He was a star basketball player at both schools.

The sergeant was decorated for his part in action which took place June 11 in the Republic of Vietnam.

The 1st Platoon, 173rd Provisional Tank Co., of which he was a member, was attacked by a company-size enemy unit. Farmer, track commander of a vehicle, saw that two other vehicles were pinned down by a heavy volume of enemy fire.

The citation read, in part, SSgt. Farmer quickly moved his vehicle to the other side of the perimeter and began placing effective fire with his 50 caliber on numerous enemy positions. By setting up this base of fire, the other track commanders were thus able to move their vehicles to a more secure position, affording them a chance to treat their casualties. SSgt. Farmer, with complete disregard for his own personal safety, continued placing fire in enemy positions knocking out at least one enemy machine gun nest. As he did this, his vehicle took a direct hit from a B-40 rocket, mortally wounding SSgt. Farmer. His actions during this engagement saved the lives of at least eight of his fellow platoon members."

EM Obtains Citizenship; Wings Next

He enlisted in the Army last January, took basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. and received advanced training in teletype repair at Fort Gordon, Ga. This week the new citizen expects to graduate from the airborne school.

The 18-year-old specialist's next assignment is at Fort Bragg, N.C. but he has also volunteered for duty in Vietnam.

One reason for this request, Chin said, is to see his two brothers who still live in Hong Kong. He has not seen them in nine years and hopes to spend a week of rest and recuperation with them.

THANKSGIVING

Give thanks, O heart! for these: A woman's face, the gift of love, and love's enduring grace; for man's firm friendship through the marching years, the comfort of all children; even for tears shed in your grief, because these prone that you have pity that is beautiful and true. Give thanks for raiment, and a loaf of bread; and for a good thatched roof above your head; but most of all give thanks if you can say, "Lord, I have courage on my pilgrim's way!"

AUSA OKs U.S. Policy In Message

Civilian members of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army have endorsed President Richard M. Nixon's policy in the Republic of Vietnam.

The stand was taken through a message from Roy L. Smith, chapter president, to the President, following a recent board meeting.

Smith told the President, "This action is to assure our support particularly in view of misguided protests elsewhere in our nation."

The text of the message was:

"To the President:

THANKSGIVING DAY MESSAGE

On this traditional American holiday, I extend best wishes for an enjoyable Thanksgiving to all members of this command and their families.

While participating in the festivities of the occasion, we should be mindful of our debt to the courageous Pilgrims whose strength, determination, and faith transformed a wilderness into a cornerstones of our great nation. Our debt further extends to the men and women in uniform who now serve our country with courage and dedication and who exemplify the true spirit of America. Through their strength and determination, we continue to enjoy the blessing of freedom on this Thanksgiving Day.

I hope all military and civilian personnel will have the opportunity of observing the holiday in a safe and enjoyable manner.

Third Graders' Emotions Mixed for Apollo

By Spt Paul Miller

"Five . . four . . . three . . two . . . one," chanted the third graders in unison with mission control as Apollo 12 began its long journey to the moon.

The activities at Dexter elementary school here on the morning of Nov. 14, typified scenes that were being created at many schools across the nation. Girls and boys, big and small, plump and skinny, scratching heads and fumbling with pencils, going with one eye on the television set and the other eye on their teacher, Mrs. Nancy Mooney.

This select group of 7- and 8-year-olds can be termed America's space age children . . . the children of tomorrow. They have lived with space adventure not of the Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers variety as we know it but the real adventure of today's modern age.

For these children, it can be said the Sputnik was "before their time." Even Alan Shepard's lone 11-minute jump into the fringes of space occurred prior to their coming into the world. For these third graders, space travel has not only become common place, but is almost a way of life.

Barbara Hatchcock, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Earl W. Hatchcock, with an arm in a cast, sat quietly, looking intently at the history that was being documented before her. "I don't think I'd like to go to the moon," She quipped. "It just isn't a place for a girl."

George Hua, son of SSgt. and Mrs. George Hua, appearing quite serious, stared at his textbook on oceanography, while occasionally tipping his head upward to catch the latest happenings of the Apollo. When asked what he thought about the moon voyage, he remarked, "It's O.K.," seeming to be a bit more interested in the explorations beneath the sea.

Another youngster viewed the TV with great interest as the announcer reported, "T minus four minutes and counting." In discussing his feelings about flying to the moon, he said solemnly, "I'd like to go. There's no fighting or trouble there."

Not all of the comments were that serious. One young pair of students agreed that "we'll never be able to make it to Mars."

"For that matter, I don't think we'll ever get to the sun," interjected JoAnn Solomon, daughter of SSgt. and Mrs. Lloyd Knight. When asked why, the girl replied, "I don't know. I just don't think we'll ever get up there. For one thing, the sun's too hot."

Tension mounted somewhat within the class as launch time drew closer and closer. A calmness encompassed the classroom that was rarely seen for these well-behaved school children.

Textbooks were closed, the giggling had ceased, and all eyes focused on the video as the final seconds elapsed.

With the familiar words, "ignition . . . we have a lift-off" the class rose up to cheer and one lad on the end row mimicked the trajectory of the mighty Saturn rocket by moving two connected pencils upward through the air.

"For that matter, I don't think we'll ever get in the Indianhead Road Chapel, Bldg. 2505.

Holiday

Since many men and women at the installation will not be able to return to their families for the Thanksgiving holidays, service clubs on post will be open to entertain them.

The Main Post service club will feature a "Shuffleboard Shindig" at 2 p.m., a Thanksgiving buffet at no charge at 6:30 p.m., and a "Holiday Jamboree," a variety show, 8 p.m.

At the Kelly Hill service club, a wide variety of tournaments will be held in the afternoon, including table tennis, shuffleboard and billards, from 2-6:30 p.m. A Thanksgiving buffet will be offered at 3 p.m.

Trainees at Sand Hill will participate in a "Turkey Trot Party" at 2 p.m. at their service club and a Thanksgiving party at 7:30 p.m. Coffee call will follow at 10 p.m.

The South Harmony Church Service Club plans to entertain approximately 20 orphans from the Social Service Bureau in Columbus. The children will attend a Thanksgiving dinner, followed by a tour of the post.

A group of young ladies from Baker High School in Columbus will be the center of attraction at the North Harmony Church Service Club. Although plans are not yet complete it is hoped that the girls will present a short Thanksgiving Day skit at 2 p.m., to be followed by a Thanksgiving buffet.

Policy

Army Chapter, unanimous support of civilian members is pledged to you in your policy and program of Vietnamization and honorable conclusion of war involvement. No dissenting vote to this resolution was voiced nor shown. This action is to assure our support particularly in view of misguided protests elsewhere in our nation. Our Chapter, recently adjudged as best overall in AUSA throughout the world, proudly endorses your stand and, in effect, manifests the voice of this nation's majority."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Bill King

King's Pizza On Call

The stuffing always seems to disappear first. So bake some extra in a greased casserole along with turkey so there'll be plenty to go along with the leftovers.

Pare a path around the middle of each pink new potato just before boiling. Serve with melted butter and chopped mint, or toss with white sauce and peas.

Tan wine. Wine should complement rather than contrast — a dry wine with delicate entree, a full-bodied wine with a spicy dish, a fruity wine with fruit, a sweet wine with dessert. But feel free to make your own exceptions.

Turnips should be smooth and firm with few fibrous roots at the base. Like potatoes, they're delicious just baked and topped with butter and seasonings.

At royal banquets in the Middle Ages, carving the meat was never relegated to servants: it was an honor consigned to a person of rank.

If you'd rather consign the carving to someone else, why not treat the family to Thanksgiving dinner at

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could more properly be answered by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to Bayonet Editor, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

REGISTRATION OF VEHICLES

What is the procedure followed at the present when registering a privately owned vehicle at Fort Benning?

For initial registration, you must have in your possession a valid state driver's license, a state vehicle registration certificate and proof of a current safety inspection. Any state required safety inspection is acceptable.

With this information in your possession, go to the vehicle registration branch, Provost Marshal Office, Building 218 on Wold Avenue.

Upon arrival, complete two copies of DD Form 1409, Vehicle Registration and Driver Record. Also complete and sign a statement certifying that you have and will maintain the minimum amount of insurance required by post regulations. Forms are available on desks in the lobby.

Remember, the information required on the DD Form 1409 for any changes affecting these entries must be reported to the vehicle registration branch within 48 hours. This is a requirement of USAIC Regulation 190-5.

If you presently have an insurance expiration sticker on your vehicle, be sure to go to the vehicle registration branch and sign the insurance statement prior to the end of the month in which your insurance expires.

After you have done this, remove the insurance expiration sticker on your automobile. Military Police are presently issuing citations for expired decals at the rate of about 25 per day. You do not want this to happen to you.

SPOKEN FRENCH INSTRUCTIONS

How soon may I enroll in a spoken French language course on post?

The Army Education Center Language Laboratory began a course in spoken French this week. Hours are from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The course will last through Feb. 24, 1970.

VOLUNTEERS FOR DUTY IN VIETNAM

How many Army officers and enlisted men have volunteered for duty in the Republic of Vietnam?

From July 1, 1964 through Aug. 30, 1969, the volunteers included 18,818 officers and 217,083 enlisted men for a total of 235,901.

The eight were taken to Martin Army Hospital, where four were examined and treated for bruises and lacerations and released. Another man suffered a fractured shoulder and lacerations and was admitted to the hospital.

The driver of the first vehicle sustained multiple lacerations over the body and possible internal injuries. He was admitted to the hospital for approximately four months.

EDITORIAL

All Volunteer Force?

The Department of Defense is studying the possibilities and feasibilities of instituting an All Volunteer force for the military services. This study is being made at the behest of President Nixon in an attempt to better military life and eliminate the need for the induction of manpower into the armed forces.

The main questions are: What will it will mean to you? When will it go into effect? What are some of the President's guidelines?

To answer the first question, it will undoubtedly mean, in the long run, a more professional military service, higher wages, more housing, more pride, more esprit de corps. It could mean more of all of the things a professional serviceman and woman deserves.

When will it go into effect? The answer to this is not yet known. Several factors are involved. Roger T. Kelley, assistant secretary of defense for Manpower and Reserve Affairs, is responsible for Project Volunteer.

As an initial step in developing an action program, Mr. Kelley has asked each military Department to review its entire range of options outlined in the study plan and submit recommendations to him on desirable and feasible action to move DoD toward the All Volunteer Force goal.

Recruitment and retention of manpower are the main requirements. The study will be based on the principle that any change in manpower procurement will be acceptable only if it assumes that the Services will be provided with sufficient manpower needed to meet our national security objectives. The President has made this emphatically clear.

And what about the draft? The Defense Department, to date, believes the draft authority will be retained and the Selective Service system will remain in a standby status with all of its machinery ready for immediate use — if and when needed. Male citizens within certain age group will continue to be classified for military duty even though they will not be called — unless necessity requires it. Several proposals to amend the current draft practices will undoubtedly be accepted and put into law.

However, President Nixon has also made it clear that the All Volunteer Force concept, if put into force, will apply only to the period after the involvement in the Republic of Vietnam has ended and when military manpower requirements can be safely reduced.

But, all in all, the study indicates that it may result in many sound and attractive reasons for enhancing recruiting and retaining a professional All Volunteer Force in sufficient numbers to meet America's security needs. (AFPS)

Crime Labs Featured

CAMERON STATION, Va. — A piece of thread, a bit of tobacco or a latent fingerprint — any one of these could be used to prove the innocence or guilt of a soldier. And it will probably be the soldier-detective in an Army crime lab who will find the bit of evidence and evaluate it for the courts.

The December issue of ARMY DIGEST takes you behind-the-scenes in Army crime labs in one of its feature stories.

In a special holiday feature ARMY DIGEST has asked soldiers around the world what they want for Christmas. The answers range from the predictable to the surprising—as only American GIs could express them.

Another December highlight takes readers back 25 years to the Battle of the Bulge with veterans of the 101st Airborne Division. Veterans of Bastogne recently revisited the Belgium city they saved from the crush of Hitler's German army. ARMY DIGEST was there, too. The results of the interviews are in "Bastogne Revisited" in the December issue of the Army's official magazine.

These features are just a few of those to be found in the December DIGEST — along with its regular news and human interest articles the latest in official policy from The Pentagon, cartoons and pinup.

WHITE HOUSE REPORT

(On June 27, 1969, the President concurred in the conclusions and recommendations of a special task force looking into the problems of narcotics, marihuana and dangerous drugs. A portion of this report will be printed for Bayonet readers during the next six issues.)

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Marihuana (pot, grass, weed, etc.) is a product of the Indian hemp plant known to botanists as cannabis sativa (L.). It is derived from the leaves and flowering tops of the female plant which are the source of the psychoactive material. Under federal law, marihuana is defined to mean all parts of the cannabis plant except for the stalks and sterilized seeds.

Marihuana contains a number of potent compounds called tetrahydrocannabinols (THC) which affect the mind and body in various ways. Potency of the drug varies greatly depending on growing conditions such as temperature, humidity, soil conditions, and methods of cultivation. Generally, plants grown in sunny, dry climates are most likely to contain the highest proportion of THC. The pharmacologic potency of any preparation of marihuana depends upon the amount of the THC which it contains.

The drug is most commonly smoked in hand-made cigarettes (reefers, sticks or joints). The butt is called a "roach." Marihuana is also smoked in ordinary pipes or water pipes. The effects of the drug are decreased three or four times if it is swallowed rather than smoked.

Various forms of marihuana are prepared from extracts of the plant. Hashish (bash, charas) is the purest and most concentrated of the natural cannabis products. It consists of the concentrated resin of the plant and is usually eight times as concentrated as the typical marijuana available in North America. Once rare in the United States, hashish is reported to be increasingly obtainable in response to a rising demand. Relating foreign studies of cannabis use to the American scene is difficult because of the generally higher potency of the cannabis products used abroad. Marihuana grown in this country is typically of lower potency and is often weakened further by additives such as oregano. However, Mexican grown marihuana has a high potency and is regularly sold in the United States. It should be noted that all marihuana products lose strength over time.

While marihuana contains many ingredients, THC is believed to be the principle psychoactive substance. With the synthesis of THC in 1966, and the demonstration of its psychopharmacological effects in 1967, a basis was finally established for more precise, systematic pharmacological investigation of the drug. At present, THC is being synthesized in research quantities. Along with other natural marihuana constituents, THC is being made available under appropriate precautions to qualified researchers through the National Institute of Mental Health's Center for Studies of Narcotics and Drug Abuse.

Since marihuana products produce effects similar to other hallucinogens like LSD, and their reactions are often indistinguishable from those produced by other psychedelics, they are pharmacologically classified in that category.

IOAC 5-69 Lunches With 'A Look to the Stars'

"Look to the Stars with Advanced Class 5-69" was the theme of their VIP luncheon.

The room glowed with hundreds of stars, ultra-violet lights and hand-painted posters as the program started.

Looking into her crystal ball, a gypsy (played by Mrs. Gerald Wilmart) visualized 12 famous women from history, from Cleopatra to Susan B. Anthony, and poetically described their lives as they could have been influenced by the stars. After the women appeared, 12 mod dancers, each representing a zodiac sign, danced to "The Age of Aquarius."

After the program, Mrs. Thomas P. Hensler, wife of the class leader, introduced the distinguished guests: Mmes. Orwin Talbott, Sidney B. Berry, Earl C. Acuff, James Keirsey, Lon D. Marlowe, William S. Munday, Henry B. Murphy, Joseph Pisano and Wayne Short. A special guest was Mrs. Wilbur J. Thiel.

The class wives presented a charm bracelet to Mrs. Marlowe upon "Her" retirement. And one also to Mrs. Pisano for her patience and guidance.

Then Mrs. Hensler was given a lovely silver chafing dish from the wives. And a copper chafing dish was given to Mrs. Leonard Pedersen, wife of the assistant class leader.

There were many door prizes donated by Columbus merchants.

Each of the tables was decorated with white linens with black streamers, stars and many red and yellow flowers, each bearing the sign of the zodiac.

The purpose of the VIP luncheon is twofold — to entertain and to discover. From the audience's response, it was evident that the first was accomplished. Discovered was talent and willingness to excel. Many people worked together for three months. The chairmen of the committees were Skit, Mrs. Buryl Dooley; Decorations, Mrs. John Arrington; Program and Invitations, Mrs. Larry Johnson; Menu, Mrs. Al Hamilton; Door Prizes, Mrs. Albertis Wilson, and Choreography, Mrs. Thomas Adams.

Though more class functions are planned, this was the climax of the activities before Class 5-69 graduates in January.

German Visitor Will Speak to Protestant Women

Gertrud Wenzel of Weilheim, Bavaria, West Germany, will return Saturday to be the guest of Chaplain and Mrs. Holland Hope. She will come here from Ft. Campbell, Ky.

In Oct. 1967 Frau Wenzel was the guest speaker for the Fall Rally sponsored by the Protestant Women of the Chapels and a retreat for the "Follow-Me" youth group.

During World War I Frau Wenzel and her husband were young missionaries in New Guinea and were in an Australian prison camp. At the end of the war they returned to Leipzig, Saxony. At the end of World War II they came to Weilheim, Bavaria, to live.

East Zone

Many relatives live in the East Zone and in recent years the authorities have permitted Frau Wenzel to visit them. She has just returned from such a visit. Frau Wendel speaks four languages fluently: her native tongue—French, English and a New Guinea native dialect.

On Sunday evening at 6:30 p.m., Frau Wendel will speak at the evning service at Sightseeing Road Chapel.

On Monday evening, she will be speaking to the Evening Chapter of the Protestant Women of the Chapel meeting in Bldg. 3095 at the Religious Education Center.

Sand Hill

Then on Wednesday morning at Sand Hill Chapel No. 5, she will speak to the Protestant Women of the Chapel, Army Training Center.

An invitation to hear her all three times is extended to all.

German and French speaking ladies are urged to meet Frau Wenzel. For such ladies, she often takes messages and visits their relatives upon her return to Europe.

ENTERTAINING AT HOSPITAL
From Left, Mrs. Joe Purnell, Spc David Powers, Spc Harry Broker, Mrs. James Biddle

NCO Wives Club Serves Fort Benning Community

The Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club has performed many activities on post in service to the serviceman.

As a help to their community, the club served pastries to Martin Army Hospital patients. Also, a mock fashion show was performed for the patients in the recreation room.

At the Main Post Service club the wives helped celebrate the service club's 50th anniversary with refreshments and a parade through the service club which was enjoyed by all the men.

Every third Sunday of the month, pastries are brought to the service club to be eaten by servicemen. They help service club bakery chairman Mrs. Wilfred Rheaume.

Mrs. Lee Pitts who is in charge of hospital coffee for the wives club served coffee and doughnuts on all the wards at the hospital with the help of Mmes. Walter Cunningham, James Biddle, Andy Shelton, Kenneth Simpson, Wallace Colson and Henry Guilheaut.

Baskets of food are being filled by the members and Mrs. Watkins DeVane, welfare and service chairman, to be given to families at Thanksgiving. Canned goods, meats and all assortments of food have already been donated by the members. A $50 donation from the club's treasury is being given.

Polar Bears Tea at Home

The officers wives of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. (The Polar Bears) met for their November coffee at the home of Maj. and Mrs. Lawrence Richards. Co-hostess was Mrs. Bernard Muller-Thym.

Following a discussion of current business, two new ladies were welcomed to the battalion. They were Mrs. Daniel Harvey and Mrs. Thomas Sneed.

Family Services Needs Volunteers

The Chattahoochee County Department of Family and Children Services has begun an intensive campaign to recruit volunteers to help solve welfare problems.

Mrs. LaVerne N. Wright, Chattahoochee County Director, urges all interested Chattahoochee citizens to offer their services in this effort.

"There are many people who are interested in solving the problems of welfare dependency. I hope they will volunteer their time and talents to help the less fortunate," she said.

Part of the statewide Volunteer Services Program of the Department of Family and Children Services, the county program will focus its volunteer services on three major areas of need: transportation of welfare clients to receive medical services under the Medicaid Program and to get good help under the Commodity Distribution Program; home counseling in nutrition, money management, home management, personal hygiene and grooming and family planning; and tutorial services for dependent children who need "catch-up" help in school subjects. Other services will be added as the program expands.

The purpose of the program is to supplement the professional caseworkers in the County Department. Volunteers will enrich the welfare program and improve communication between the department and the community.

Commenting on the statewide program, state welfare director Bill Burson stated, "We need the help of every housewife, every business and professional man and woman and every student in this bold and exciting new undertaking to involve the total community in the solution of the problems generating and perpetuating welfare dependency."

Individuals and groups wishing to participate in this program are asked by Mrs. Wright to contact her at the County Welfare office in person or by telephone. The office is located on Main Street in Cusseta, Georgia. The telephone number is 989-3643.

Wives Go To 'Autumn Harvest'

The wives of The Student Brigade held their monthly luncheon at the Supper Club. "An Autumn Harvest" was the theme.

Uniquely designed miniature turkeys and scarecrows, decor candles and multi-colored autumn leaves highlighted the decorations.

Mrs. Henry Vincent, chairman of the luncheon, introduced Mrs. Frank Garrison, wife of the new TSB commander. Mrs. Garrison then introduced the honored guest, Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, wife of the post commanding general. Mrs. Garrison also welcomed the newcomers.

Mrs. Ray Brassell and Mrs. Russell Miller, representing a local flower shop, gave the group hints and suggestions for home and table decorations.

Medical Wives Gather for Lunch

Ohs! and Ahs! were heard at the Supper Club at the Medical Department Activity Officers Wives Club of Fort Benning gathered for their luncheon.

The excitement began as Mrs. Ruth Balentine, millinery and hair goods buyer for a local department store, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Penny Leigh, a well known personality in the Columbus area.

Miss Leigh reminded the group that the holiday season is almost here and that with it there will be many occasions for wearing a wig. She spoke of the different types of wigs and their care and then the fashion show of wigs began.

Modeling the wigs were club members Mrs. William Hartsock, Mrs. James Forrester, Mrs. Ronald Collier, Mrs. Charles Burdeshaw and Mrs. Richard Hart. Assisting the models with the wigs was Mrs. Mike Terwischa, a professional hair stylist who is working for the local department store while her husband is stationed at Fort Benning.

Handicapped Child Needs Volunteer

Volunteers are needed to assist teachers in the special education classes on post. No special skills are needed. All that is required is an interest in helping children.

Mrs. Foy Rice Welcomed

The Tenth Aviation Group officers wives club welcomed Mrs. Foy Rice with a tea in her honor. Mrs. Rice is the wife of Col. Foy Rice, the new commander of the Tenth Group.

Mrs. Rice comes to Fort Benning from Carlisle, Pa., where her husband attended the War College before completing a tour in Vietnam.

Tenth Group wives served coffee and tea which accompanied an array of finger sandwiches, cookies and eclairs.

Mrs. Bobby Vinson pinned a corsage of white carnations on Mrs. Rice. Mrs. Vinson headed the committee which arranged the tea. Also on the committee were Mrs. Dale Liguel, Mrs. Arthur O'Leary, Mrs. Charles Hatfield, Mrs. Thomas Price, and Mrs. Clint Hall.

Among those welcoming Mrs. Rice were the Lawton Army Aviation Command wives, who have recently joined the Tenth Group.

NCOs Suggest Changes in Gear

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article includes excerpts from a story in the November-December issue of INFANTRY MAGAZINE by Col. Bruce H. Fraser, chief of the Infantry School's Office of Doctrine Development, Literature and Plans. The article describes some of the recommendations and conclusions made by an ad hoc board of enlisted men who were asked by the Infantry Team to suggest improvements in combat gear to better the lot of the Infantryman. The members of the board were: Command Sgt. Maj. Bob L. Williams, Infantry School; 1st Sgt. Neil R. Cooke, 4th Bn., 9th Inf. Div.; Sgt. 1st Cl. Charles Jon Co., 4th Bn., The Student Bde.; Sfc. Alex Leland A. Medlock, Paraphute Maintenance Section, 4th Bn., Inf.; Sfc. Ralph W. Donahoe, Ranger Department; SFC George L. Ramirez, Airborne Department.)

LOAD-CARRYING EQUIPMENT

Load-carrying equipment came under heavy fire from the members of the board. They found that web gear, made of cotton duck material and already too heavy, absorbs water which increases its weight, mildews and corrodes metal fasteners.

They also stated that the gear distributes weight poorly, is difficult to load, unload and adjust and cannot be put on or removed quickly. It does not provide the soldier with a suitable means of carrying the rucksack and ammunition he needs in combat.

The board recommended that the soldier carry his gear in two separate loads. His fighting gear (ammunition, water, entrenching tool, first aid packet, bayonet and grenades) should be suspended on new web gear made of lightweight, quick-drying material. A better means of carrying all types of ammunition is needed and should allow quick removal of the item. For the same reason, the covers for the canteen, entrenching tool and first aid pack should also be enlarged.

The subsistance load should be carried on an adjustable rucksack-type pack frame. Equipment carried on this pack frame would include food, sleeping gear, poncho and personal items. The recommended subsistance load carrier would attach to the shoulder portion of the web gear suspenders and would incorporate a quick release mechanism to allow the soldier to jettison the load immediately should he need to.

The fighting load gear should allow the soldier complete maneuverability and both the fighting and subsistance loads should be properly suspended to allow the soldier to carry them comfortably. The board felt that weight reduction was of secondary importance to distributing the weight and supporting it properly on the wearer.

HELMET

The board recommended a lighter, more comfortable helmet than the one-and-a-quarter pound World War II steel helmet issued.

Board members suggested that the helmet possess superior ballistics protection against small arms ball ammunition. They also stated that the current helmet wobbles and is uncomfortable to wear. They suggested a suspension system that would provide a strap, easily fit without the need of sizing and harness commonly employed and single chin strap that could be secured out of the way until the wearer is ready to use.

COMBAT BOOT

Changes in footgear were also recommended by the board. The board suggested retention of the tropical combat boot issued for the Republic of Vietnam with added protection in the soles and sides of the boots. However, the NCOs felt that the leather now issued for training and temperate zone wear does not satisfy the soldier's needs. They recommended that the boot have a molded traction sole bonded to the top to form a waterproof seal. It should be insulated, but also should allow ventilation and drainage.

The board suggested that a zipper replace boot laces, with laces as a backup closure system. The zipper would provide an easier means of putting the boot on and taking it off.

Other suggested improvements would increase the boot's height for better support and would eliminate some of the discomfort the wearer now experiences by installing a boot tongue that does not bunch or bind.

WORK UNIFORM

The NCO board recommended a fatigue uniform similar to the tropical uniform issued in Vietnam. They did not want the angular pockets, the pockets at the bottom of the jacket, or zippers in the trousers, but they did feel that a lightweight, durable uniform would satisfy the soldier's needs.

They suggested a durable-fine, wash-and-wear type, reinforced at points of stress and wear (shoulders, crotch, knees and buttocks). The board asked for a uniform displaying only subdued insignia of rank, without the name tapes, tabs and patches that presently festoon the uniform. This would eliminate the expense of remodeling the uniforms with each reassignment. In addition, leaders would not be able to rely on name tapes and would be forced to become more familiar with their men.

BODY ARMOR

The board felt that the "flak vest" could be improved by making it lighter, removing the collar and pockets, and increasing ventilation. The NCOs wanted body armor that would be worn under load-carrying equipment.

When the NCO board concluded its study, it presented its findings to the Infantry Team and later to Army research and development personnel at Natick Laboratory, Natick, Mass., where the recommendations will be incorporated into experimental equipment to be tested.

Following the study, Command Sgt. Maj. Bob L. Williams, president of the NCO board, said on the results: "We understand that some of the recommendations we made may not be the final word. If these recommendations are adopted, there will be people who will find deficiencies in the new equipment. But we tried to make recommendations which will result in real improvements in all the equipment discussed."

The suggestions of the board have not received implementing approval, but the report does indicate the current thinking of the Infantry School and the Infantry Team.

The Infantry Team and Natick Laboratories are acting upon the board's sound and well-considered recommendations so that the Infantryman will be able to "saddle up" without the troublesome burden.

Smoke Screen Covers Unit's Training Test

Clouds of smoke billowing skyward, men lying flat on the ground, riflemen setting up on perimeters. The setting? The 69th Chemical Company's (Smoke Generator) Army Training Test.

Attached to the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Infantry Brigade, the 69th Chemical transported 32 smoke generators, 25 quarter-ton trucks, 10 2½-ton trucks and 105 men north of Buena Vista Road for the annual training test.

The commanding officer, Capt. Harry Hennessey, commented on the three phases of the ATT.

"Number one," he said, "was the concealment of two kilometers of area on the main supply route. Number two involved concealing one kilometer on the main supply road from air attack, and the third entailed providing smoke on the assembly area to prevent being detected from the air."

The smoke generators were not used at full capacity, according to the captain, but if they had been, a seven kilometer area would have been covered with smoke.

During the ATT, the company was subjected to aggressor attacks on the ground and were ambushed throughout the two-day training test. The 69th was subjected to a mock nuclear attack and performed exceedingly well according to Hennessey.

The company is charged with the responsibility of chemical support required by the Infantry School. This mission is in addition to its primary mission of maintaining unit readiness for support of contingency plans.

Infantry Board Nears End of LAW Sight Tests

The U.S. Army Infantry Board, the Infantry materiel test agency at Fort Benning, is completing product improvement tests on a reduced visibility sight for the M72A1 LAW, Col. Charles B. Thomas, board president, said.

With the urgent need for night sighting capabilities on the Light Antitank Weapon Rocket Launcher System, Picatinny Arsenal at Philadelphia developed a luminous compound for marking the front leaf sight to meet the requirements.

The addition of the luminous compound, Promethium 147, in a cross configuration, was superimposed on the 100 and 150 meter range markings of the front sight.

Fabricated from a transparent plastic material, the front sights are 2 15-16 inches by 1⅝ inches by ⅝ inches in size. The sight with its newly illuminated markings was evaluated for any contamination or hazard to users during the development stages at the Philadelphia Arsenal.

A reduced visibility sight and not a night sight, the luminous markings give the gunner the capability of engaging targets under adverse conditions such as fog, rain, dust, dawn or dusk and other conditions when the visibility is reduced but when there remains sufficient ambient light to outline the target.

The Infantry Test Board is seeking to determine if the test item is suitably engineered to meet the requirements established for its need and to evaluate the sight from the human factors standpoint.

That is, whether it is sufficiently reliable, rugged and durable for field conditions and can withstand the rough handling, field transportation and adverse weather of the field.

The sight has been also evaluated to determine whether the luminous markings cause adverse effects such as glare or distortion under the sun's rays during daylight sightings.

The results have been highly satisfactory and the increased brightness of the markings resulting from the compound gave no problem to the test soldiers, the colonel said.

The Fort Benning tests have been conducted in both daylight and reduced visibility against stationary and moving targets with equal results, test officials reported.

When the sights were tested during reduced visibility phases, it was noted that the illuminated sight gave a marked improvement of gunners' results. Those gunners using the new sights were obtaining 15 per cent more target hits than those gunners with the original sight.

In addition, they were capable of engaging the targets more quickly than the soldiers who used the standard sights under the reduced visibility tests.

Testing of the newly improved sight at the Infantry materiel test activity has been under the direction of senior test officer Maj. George Redd of the supporting weapons test division.

SPECIALISTS FINISH 120-FOOT TOWER

4-Man Team Takes Pride In Building Signal Tower

DAU TIENG, Repbublic of Vietnam (1st BDE IO) — A 120-foot signal tower has been erected at the 1st Infantry Division's Devil Brigade Headquarters in Dau Tieng by a four-man team who really takes pride in what they are doing.

Sps. 4 Walter Warhurst, James Brunelle and Leroy Bowman and PFC Dwayne Helander of the 327th Signal Co. came from Long Binh to Dau Tieng with one intention in mind: To build a tower which will be used for antenna support in receiving micro-wave signals for communications.

"We are one of the very few teams that actually work as a team together and we get the job done as fast as possible along with the excellence of construction," said Brunelle, Richland, Wash.

There is no exaggeration either. It took the team only ten days to complete the project, and still they weren't satisfied.

"It would have been completed sooner, but we had trouble in getting supplies," remarked Warhurst.

The native of Altrusa, Calif., added, "We try to strive for perfection and even though we sometimes get snagged along the line, the job is still completed with maximum results."

The conditions the team had to put up with weren't favorable. It rained almost every day, but the team kept on digging the foundation to install anchor rods.

At the end of the third day the team had put in reinforcement rods and planted a telephone pole to be used for two anchor points. Hooked to each end of the pole were three guide-wires to also act as a reinforcement.

By the fifth day, they had poured cement in the base and had the first tower section in place. When the cement had finally set, it wasn't long before the 60 six-foot sections of galvanized aluminum were erected and the tower completed.

'Rat Patrol' Helps 'Black Lions' Secure Widely Traveled Road

DAU TIENG, Republic of Vietnam (1st BDE IO) — The "Rat Patrol" of Echo Co., 2d Bn., 28th Infantry, doesn't patrol the sandy desert environment of North Africa as the national television show of the same name depicted.

But this fairly new innovation has proved successful to the "Black Lions" in securing roads and vehicles along the jungle trails in the Republic of Vietnam.

The jeeps with mounted machine guns patrol the road from Dau Tieng, basecamp of the Big Red One's Devil Brigade, to Fire Support Base Kien and on to the hamlets of Ben Chua.

The rat patrols are continually on the prowl, searching for "Charlie" and guarding against the possibility of a Viet Cong planting land mines on the widely traveled road.

"When Lt. Col. William T.) Parks was battalion commander, he chose the six best men out of Echo Co. (recon) for this job," declared Sp4 Kenneth G. Harstad, Allegan, Mich.

"Col. Parks conceived this idea in an effort to keep the road from Dau Tieng to Ben Chua secure because of the tremendous amount of military traffic using the road," added Sp4 Joseph Higgison, Lincoln, Mich.

But the gun-jeep patrol doesn't only provide road security now. Many times troops in contact request assistance of another ground unit.

The Rat Patrol is usually elected to give their assistance because they're usually scouting the vicinity "leg units" are patrolling.

The creation of the "Black Lions" Rat Patrol has given the 1st Infantry Division another exceptional tactical advantage over the Viet Cong. The Infantry keeps "Charlie" on the move in the jungle and the rat patrols help deny him the use of guerrilla warfare techniques.

Legendary Mountain Serves Radio Crew

(Div IO) — Sixty miles northwest of Saigon in Tay Ninh province, the Black Virgin Mountain (Nui Ba Den) stands as a solemn sentry overlooking the Cambodian border.

A rocky summit bristling with radio antennas, the mountain serves as a relay and retransmission station for the 1st Infantry, 25th Infantry, and 1st Air Cavalry Divisions.

The 3,000-foot mountain's history has long been regarded, even in legend, as having strategic value. Along with its legendary counterpart in Song Be Province, Nui Ba Ra, Nui Ba Den is a kind of geological oddity, a huge protuberance, in otherwise flat land.

Tradition has it that a god posted each of his two wives on the mountains in an effort to resolve the women's differences. The wives' joint task was to watch the country's borders for possible attack.

At the very top of Nui Ba Den stands a pagaoda, and to its right a tomb in which the Black Virgin is supposedly buried. Blanket-like clouds and rolling fog serve to complement the mountain's almost surreal appearance.

Of the 150 men encamped on the mountain top, 15 are 1st Infantry Division soldiers. Because they are so far removed from the Big Red One's area of operations, their only link with their parent unit is through radio communication and helicopter resupply missions to the mountain.

Three 1st Division units have radio teams on the mountain, the 1121st Signal Battalion, the High Gear section of 1st Division Artillery and 1 Company, 7th Ranger Battalion. Together, the three sections have direct or indirect control of all radio communication within the 1st Infantry Division.

Well-Traveled Recruit Attests Basic Here Comes as No Shock

By PFC Bon Argo

For a young man who has lived in Italy, Greece, Taiwan and East Africa and traveled in at least 20 other countries, basic combat training comes as no shock.

Private Wayne Gardner Donelson, Co. D, 7th Bn, 2nd Bde, said he owes his extensive traveling to the United States government. His father, Army Captain (Ret.) Kenneth W. Donelson, is the assistant executive officer for the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) in Kenya, East Africa. Donelson also worked with AID after graduating from George C. Marshall High School in Ankara, Turkey.

Donelson, born in Washington, D. C, has lived in the U. S. nine years. He said that, of his travels, he likes East Africa best.

"The easy-going way of life there where one is free from social mores and military and governmental harassment presents a harmonious atmosphere in which to live," he said.

"Let me emphasize, however," added Donelson, "that of all the countries I've traveled and lived in, there is no country of which I had rather be a citizen than the United States."

Donelson's travels have taken him from Japan and Hong Kong to Austria, Switzerland and Lebanon. He has visited Hawaii, Canada and Israel and journeyed extensively throughout most of Africa.

All his ventures, were not connected with AID, "I went to many of these countries on a 'tramp' freighter, just to see many of the ports and cities I never got a chance to see before," he said.

At the age of 5, Donelson could converse in five different languages. He said, "I learned Italian from my nurse, Greek while living in Greece and German from our gardener. Then I went to a French convent school where I first learned to read and write that language."

He also speaks Taiwanese, Swahili, a little Turkish and is trying to learn English.

"But I'm either learning in the wrong place or the wrong tongue," he added, "because drill sergeants speak a language all their own."

Donelson feels that it has been a worthwhile sacrifice, staying in Africa and working after finishing high school rather than returning to the states for college.

"I missed out a great deal from the American educational system" he stated, "but through foreign travels, I've learned more about the world and people in general. And upon completion of my military obligation, I am going to college in the states and continue my education in the field of international relations."

Col. J. B. McKinney Retires After 27-Year Career

For the last 15 months, Colonel McKinney has served as the director of the communications - electronics department of the Infantry School.

Since graduation from Southern Law University, Memphis, Tenn., Colonel McKinney's fields of endeavor have included successful law practice and 27 - years active duty with the Army. He is a published writer and military editor.

"I remember V-J Day. . .Vividly," a personal experience article by Colonel McKinney in the August, 1967, edition of Signal Magazine, describes in graphic detail the arrival and the feelings of members of the American command contingent on the Japanese mainland after World War II.

Six months later, Colonel McKinney returned to civilian life and became a practicing attorney in Tennessee, first with the Internal Revenue Service, and then in private practice.

In April, 1951, he was once again called to active duty this time for the Korean Conflict. By 1953, he was a lieutenant colonel serving as the Signal Officer for the 3rd Inf. Div.

Col. McKinney served as director of research and publication, U. S. Army War College in Washington D. C. from 1964-1967.

Already a graduate of the War College, he founded and edited the U. S. Army War College Commentary, a quarterly periodical. At the same time, he served as associate editor of the Military Review.

Colonel McKinney's last overseas assignment was as deputy commander of the 1st Signal Brigade, Vietnam.

The colonel has taken a position with the International Telephone and Telegraph Company as chief of the firm's engineering branch.

"Both Mrs. McKinney and I are looking forward to the challenge of this new assignment," he said. "I will be supervising the activities of engineering operations for the company in the installation of communications systems across the country."

Colonel and Mrs. McKenney leave Ft. Benning tomorrow to make their home in the vicinity of New York City.

Messages Laud Army Artillery

Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland sent messages to members of the Field Artillery and the Air Defense Artillery marking the 194th anniversary of The Artillery service on Nov. 17.

To the Field Artillery- General Westmoreland said, "Since the days of the American Revolution, Artillerymen have written epic history of their arms in battle. In both peace and war, they have constantly demonstrated the finest professionalism and the mastery of their weapons, in their devotion to duty, and in their readiness to delivery accurate and devastating firepower."

To the Air Defense Artillery, the general said, "In 1968 Air Defense Artillery was established as a separate branch, and today you, the missileers, have a unique and vital role in our country's security."

"The challenge of change is accepted by the Air Defense Artillerymen, who bring intelligence and courage to the defense of our country," General Westmoreland said.

Mess Halls 'Shape Up' For Thanksgiving Day

By Mary R. Braswell

Turkey and dressing and all the trimmings—a Thanksgiving feast similar to the one that will grace family tables throughout the country—is planned for Army Training Center mess halls.

For weeks, mess sergeants have been checking menus and recipes, stocking nuts, fruits and candies, making sure there's plenty for not only approximately 4,500 basic trainees but also for the many guests who are expected to share the holiday meal.

The mess halls themselves have been undergoing some transformations. Awards will be made Thanksgiving Day to the best-decorated mess hall.

Some of the efforts of S. Sgt. David Long of Co. D, 8th Bn., 2nd Bde., have already brought double-takes from onlookers.

Long, who last month added the brigade Best Mess Award to his collection of 32 awards, is putting a lot of effort and initative into his mess hall's Thanksgiving preparations.

"We're going to do it right, do it the way it ought to be done," said Long, who noted the support the entire company is giving him.

Long, who won nine best mess awards in Okinawa before his assignment here, has taken best mess awards 10 of the 22 months he has served in the Army Training Center's 2nd Brigade.

The inscription of the plaque read in part: "To the cadre of the 49th Company, by the student officers and men of Class 16, in appreciation of their efforts in helping us to obtain Airborne Qualification."

Houchens says this is the first time such an award has been given to the cadre of the unit, organized in 1965.

Project 'Save-A-Toy'

Weapons Dept. Men Zero in on Christmas

Reliable sources have announced that Santa Claus, president of North Pole Enterprises, has recently sub-let a cootract for the preparation of Christmas toys by the weapons department of the Infantry School here.

"Save-A-Toy," as the weapon's department has tagged the 15-year-old project, is collecting and repairing old toys for distribution to needy children in the area.

Project Officer Lt. Col. Thomes J. O'Brien, chairman of the mortar committee of the department, said that the old toys are being repaired and painted after duty hours by volunteers from the department and from the Army Training Center, as well as by out-patients from Martin Army Hospital.

"In the case of old dolls, said the colonel, "wives of members of the committee are making new dresses so that they will be ready for their new owners at Christmas time."

O'Brien explained that his Santa's helpers try to find families that are having a hard time of it, and make plans to give toys to kids who might not have otherwise received them.

The project works directly with the post chaplain, Army Community Service, Army Emergency Relief and the Mercy Mission in Phenix City.

Santa's workers will pick up used toys or repair material or they may be delivered to "Santa's Repair Shop," Bldg. 5347 (HC-40), at Harmony Church. For additional information phone 545-6632 or 545-6737.

Keeping Up With the Joneses

By Marian Jones

Beginning with this issue, the Bayonet will launch a new feature to help you relieve the boredom and fight the blues. There's a lot happening in and around the Fort Benning-Columbus-Phenix City area that you might not know about. This is our way of keeping you informed as to "where it's at," how much it costs and when it starts. Since this is a column for you, we would appreciate your ideas and suggestions. If you know of something going on that we haven't covered and you would like to see it announced, phone 545-7241. Perhaps we can prove to you there's more to do around here than you think.

If you're sitting around with nothing to do on Saturday or Sunday, take a trip out Highway 85 up to the Pine Mountain area where for the reduced price of 75 cents (since you're in the service) you can visit Franklin D. Roosevelt's vacation home in Warm Springs. The home and nearby museum are filled with memorabilia dating back to the Roosevelt era. You will need your ID card for the rednced price but you don't have to be in uniform.

Coming back you can tour Callaway Gardens on foot, automobile, or if you're the athletic type, on tandem bicycles. Admission charge is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Don't forget to stop at Hamilton On The Square in Hamilton, Ga. where it costs nothing to browse around the restored 19th Century shops. Fifteen cents will buy a Georgia-peach ice cream cone in the old-fashioned drug store.

There are beautiful places to picnic in this area including one on a bluff where FDR himself picnicked, so take a long a lunch.

GUYS AND DOLLS

Back at Fort Benning, "Guys and Dolls" will still be playing. You can see the Fort Benning Dramatizers new production either tonight or tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Playhouse behind Infantry Museum and admission is free. The Dramatizers have worked hard on this production and all reports point out that it should be a good one.

THE ART OF DECOY

There's an interesting display at the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts on Wynnton Road that may interest you hunters. "The Art of Decoy" is a collection of realistic wood carved decoys on loan from the American Folk Art Museum in New York City. Columbus has every right to be proud of their museum as while you're there look in on their permanent exhibit of religious paintings from the Georgia Bleak collection. Also see the William H. Horton impressionist collection, which the museum calls one of its finest.

The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from 3 to 6 p.m. Sunday. It is closed all day Monday. Admission is free.

FEELIN' GROOVY?

We think you're going to like this one. The Third Army Show "Feelin' Groovy" will perform at Fort Benning Nov. 22 to Dec. 2. If you've ever been to one of these shows you know how good they are. Made up of Army personnel, both men and women, the show is lively and well directed. What's more, its free. The group will be performing in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall at 7 p.m. on Nov. 27 and 28. On the 29th they'll give a performance at Sand Hill Theater No. 3 at 7 p.m. and on Dec. 30 they'll give a performance at Theater No. 3 at 1:30 p.m. On the 1st and 2nd of December you can catch them at Harmony Church Theater No. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

STRING QUARTET RECITAL

Doug Wallace, our contact at Columbus College, phoned in some good news for you music lovers who like your music more on the classical side. The college's music department will present a string quartet recital at 8:30 p.m. on Monday at CC's Fine Arts Hall. Admission is free.

FOLK CONCERT

Mr. Wallace also has a surprise in store for folk music lovers at Benning. The college has scheduled a folk concert for next Friday Nov. 28, in the college's Woodruff Gym. It will feature the area's leading guitarists. Admission price is 75 cents.

'THE LIBERTINE'

Soon after her husband's funeral, Mimi (played by Catherine Spaak) discovers that he had kept a secret apartment. She is more angry than troubled but she decides to explore. This movie, "The Libertine," is playing downtown.

"FEELIN' GROOVY"

3rd Army Soldier Show To Perform

"Feelin' Groovy," a Third Army soldier show, will give six performances here next week.

"Feelin' Groovy" can be described as a super sight and sound show.

One of the most soulful singers to be presented by the show is Sp4 Toni Morgan. This is made evident with her soulful renditions of "Sunny," "Walk on By" and "The Look of Love."

"Feelin' Groovy" begins with an introduction of the "Paradise People" and takes you to the "Magic Garden" made famous by the Fifth Dimensions.

If that is not enough for a psyche out, it is followed by the cast grooving with "Goodmorning Starshine" from the electrifying play "Hair."

The grand finale of the show is a salute to the fifth anniversary of the Third Army soldier show with a selection from the longest running off-Broadway show the Fantastics. The first military production of a condensed version of "Hello Dolly" closes the show.

The show will play Nov. 27 in Marshall Auditorium at 7 p.m.; Nov. 28 in Marshall Auditorium at 7 p.m.; Nov. 28 in Sand Hill Theater No. 3 at 7 p.m.; Nov. 30 in Sand Hill Theater No. 3 at 1:30 p.m.; Dec. 1 in Harmony Church Theater No. 11 at 7:30 p.m. and Dec. 2 in Harmony Church Theater No. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Playing Tonight and Tomorrow at Playhouse

'Guys and Dolls' Viewed as an Excellent Production

By 2nd Lt. Jeff Martini

One of the obvious benefits of a large military installation is the large number of talented people who will eventually be assigned there. Fort Benning has reached that apex.

The Dramatizers, the post's answer to Second City, is still in its humble infancy. But if they continue to combine the talents of men and women as successfully in the future as they did with their current production of "Guys and Dolls," they will reach rapid maturity.

Grady Smith the director of the show, has got to be one of the most effective directors in Benning Playhouse history. Starting with the basic problem that any of his cast could be reassigned, be was able to mold a tight yet elastic production.

Imagine the problems involved in rehearsals with people having guard duty and CQ and the women having babies to feed and a husband to watch. In all a herculean task for a man who doesn't have much hair to pull out in the first place.

First of all "Guys and Dolls" is a musical which means singers and dancers.

Somehow Terry Moretti happened onto the Fort Benning scene. "Happened" is a good word to describe Morretti's explosive jazz-rock interpretation of the original score. Morretti brings a contemporary sound to the hit tunes "Luck be a Lady" and "A Bushel and a Peck." Working with a piano and drum accompaniment, Morretti's trumpet brings life into the show as witnessed by the finger snapping done by the appreciative audience.

The third sensation behind the successful production is really a dynamic duo. Costumes can make or break a show and the choreography must be good enough to carry the show and the costumes at the same time.

Katie Smith came up with 1950's period costumes that were not only tasteful but added to the glamour of what is surely one of the best amateur productions here.

Diane Savaco is the other half of the duo. Her work with amateur dancers has got to be one of the surprise hits of the production.

The dance team in the El Cafe Cubano number has to be seen to be appreciated — as does Bob Meadows' (who never danced on a stage before in his life) tour de force in the Sewer Crap Game scene.

Scott Destefano's sets were excellent in that they conveyed exactly the idea necessary for each scene. There is never any doubt in the viewer's mind where a particular scene is taking place.

Bob Hanley already has received much acclaim for his theatrical work in the past. He surpasses himself and his previous on-post work with his characterization of "Nathan Detroit, the big city gambler with an eye for a "piece of the action." If you can imagine the comedic talents and style of a young Jimmy Durante you might get an idea of how good Hanley is. He carries his role and the show with a class that is not often displayed even in professionals. A feather for Hanley's hat.

Lainie Russell portrays Sgt. Sarah Brown with a quick easy going style that immediately sets her aside from the rest of the cast. Like Hanley, she is capable of playing a believable part that never has any tendency to be overdone. She seems to be in complete control of her characterization which wins the audience over in her first scene.

Sky Masterson, as played by Ron Johnston, is a much softer interpretation than would be imagined. It soon becomes evident that Johnson's smooth singing and sharp approach to his girl, Sarah Brown, fit in well with the overall production.

Ron's wife, Tricia, who plays Mish Adelaide, brings a style reminiscent of some of the best "dumb blonde" portrayals. She carries her role with rib-tickling authenticity and her singing of "A Bushel and a Peck" is a show highlite.

Other standouts were Bill Manning's excellent Harry the Horse, Randy Berg's Nicely - Nicely Jeanne Hand's General Cartwright and Steve Zimmerman's Lt. Branigan.

Dave Crosby, who played Arvide, sang his one song with a style not unlike that of Jerry Vale.

To sum up. For an amateur production "Guys and Dolls" is just downright entertaining. You can't beat it for the price or for the enjoyment.

Post Tournament

Football Teams Play for Crown

The divisional football champions and runners-up of the major commands are heading into their final two weeks of match play to determine the Fort Benning football champion.

The playoffs, which are sponsored by Special Services, began Nov. 17 and will continue for the next week under the double elimination system.

Two games will be staged at Gowdy Field each night, Monday through Friday, with the final matches to be played either Dec. 1 or 2.

The teams competing in the championship tournament were either the winners or runners-up of their commands.

The ten competitors for the post crown include:

— From Training Center (ATC), Hq. Co. and Reception Station;

— From Martin Army Hospital, Medical Department Activities;

— From 197th Infantry Bde., Co. A, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., and Co. B, 4th Bn., 69th Armor;

— From Center Troop Command, Co. B, 56th Supply and Services Bn., and 524 Personnel Services Co.;

— From the Student Bde. (TSB), 41st Co. (Airborne) and 3rd Ranger Co.;

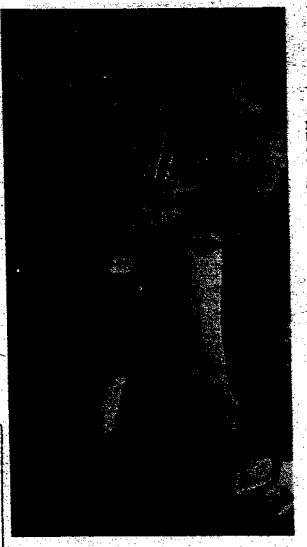
— From the 10th Aviation Group, 177th Aviation Co.

Heberling's Pointer Wins

George Heberling's pointer registered six finds in a 10-minute field run to win first place in the Members' Gun Dog Stakes competition held at Fort Benning by the Georgia-Alabama Sportsmen's Club.

Heberling, comptroller of the Infantry Center, is president of the sportsmen's club which sponsors field trials in the spring and fall.

Two other Fort Benning winners in the annual fall trials were Capt. Jon Jones, BBOD, Infantry School, whose English setter was second in the amateur derby, and Sgt. Oscar Bennett, Ground Mobility, whose pointer won second place in the Open Puppy Stakes.



TSB FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

The Student Bde.'s (TSB) 3rd Ranger Co. beat 41st Co. (Airborne) to become TSB's flag football champions. Now both the Rangers and 41st Co. are competing for the post flag football championship.

Golf Tourney To Give Turkeys

By Pvt. Steve Zimmerman

The Thanksgiving Turkey Golf Tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday, at the Sand Hill Golf Course.

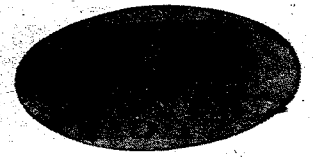
Sponsored by Special Services, the tournament will allow all male military personnel, active and retired, who are golf buffs and turkey eating enthusiasts, to compete for an expected bag of about 15 turkeys.

The entry fee for the tournament is $3. Entries should be submitted to the Sand Hill Pro Shop no later than 6 p.m. today.

The tournament will be played over 36 holes — 18 on Saturday and 18 on Sunday. A turkey will be awarded to the medalist winner (low score) each day.

In addition, a turkey will be awarded to that golfer whose first drive winds up closest to the pin on the par three second hole on Saturday and to that golfer whose first drive winds up closest to the pin on the par three fourth hole on Sunday.

After the first eighteen holes, the golfers will be divided into flights for the final day's play. At the completion of the tournament the winner and runner-up in each flight will receive a turkey.



No individual can win more than one turkey in both the actual and sideplay.

Tee-off time will be 9:30 a.m. on both days. The schedule will be posted on the bulletin at the Pro Shop at 8:30 a.m.

Golf clubs and carts will be available on a rental basis and electric carts may be used.

©1969 THE BAYONET AND J-MAR PRODUCTIONS

When Nebraska's Cornhuskers scored a winning 4th period TD, it not only spelled Kansas State's chances for a Big 8 title but also spelled defeat for PFC Predicto and the Bayonet staff.

The Allied Student Training Division handed Predicto and company defeat by compiling a 28-11 mark to 25-14 for the Bayonet forecasters.

2nd Lt. W. F. Pratt Jr. and Tommy Clark of the ASTD had 10-3 marks while 2nd Lt. Jim Hopson and PFC Predicto had 9-4 marks.

ASTD returns this week through Maj. Jon C. Stillman to challenge Predicto and Protocol.

THE FORUM THE LOBOW

By Marc Reiff

To anyone watching the Ohio State-Purdue football game on television last week, it became quite apparent why the Buckeyes are the best college team in the nation.

Not only that, but those of us who have been following their destructive path over the season are reminded of Sherman's March to the Sea. The Buckeyes so completely outclass their opponents that I would not be surprised if they use the water boy to the lineup one of these days.

Two weeks ago, against Wisconsin, Ohio State used 78 of their 79 players and the only one kept on the bench was the super quarterback, Rex Kern. He had a slight injury but the game was such a laugh there was no reason for him even to warm up.

Most of the second team could probably be starters on any other team in the country. The second-string quarterback, Ron Maciejowski, ran up 247 yards total against Wisconsin in the first half and his replacement, Kevin Rusnak, threw two TD passes in the second half. And to add insult to injury, Rusnak is listed as an end.

The only apparent weakness in the team is its defense against the pass. Purdue quarterback, Mike Phipps, had 203 yards in the air against the Bucks, but they also picked off five interceptions and on each play there were more Ohio State players in his backfield than Ballermakers.

Purdue Coach Jack Mollenkoph compared the defense with that of the Minnesota Vikings. Who can argue?

It seems quite unfair that this great team will not be allowed to participate in the Rose Bowl again this year. They have the longest winning streak in the nation and will, in all probability, continue it until the close of next season.

Big Ten Rules prohibit any team from competing in the Rose Bowl two years in a row and the Buckeyes have even been barred from attending any bowl game at all this year.

It seems inconceivable that the number one team in the nation, perhaps the best college team of all time, will not be allowed to show their great ability against one of the other ranked teams in the nation.

At the moment, Michigan has the Rose Bowl sewn up and only a complete disaster will stop them. Yet they are not even rated in the top ten and have already lost two games with Ohio State yet to play.

A vote has been taken to determine if the rules should be changed and it went against State. But is this right? Purdue has been badly beaten by State and Michigan will be too.

Even though both these teams would give their eye teeth to be in the Rose Bowl, the best team in the conference will be watching it on television. A second class team will be representing the Big Ten and there is a good chance that either UCLA or USC will take them apart at Pasadena.

Rules can always be changed and this is the year to do it; when one team is clearly in a class by itself. Not only will Ohio State win the national championship for the second year in a row, they would clearly distinguish themselves as "The Team" if they were allowed to go to the Rose Bowl again.

Most of the team members are juniors and will be back next year to take another national championship and the Rose Bowl, but by winning the Rose Bowl all three years, there would be no doubt as to the greatest college team of all time.

And the only team which could prevent them from taking three straight would be, possibly, an NFL pro team.

English, Western Riding

Hunt Club Show Set for Saturday

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

The second annual Fort Benning Hunt Club Show, featuring both English and Western riding, will begin Saturday at 9 a.m.

The show, which will be held at the Hunt Club on Marne Road, will climax a year of competitive horsemanship at Fort Benning.

Lt. Col. Sam A. Langley, president of the club and chairman for the annual event, said the public was invited.

"The show's program, which will continue throughout the day until all the events in the various classes are completed, will be announced by Col. Charles Garwood.

"Events will be taking place continuously throughout the day in both the upper ring and the main ring," Colonel Langley said.

Programs, bulletins and sketches indicating the routes to be taken for each event can be obtained at the Hunt Club. These will also be handed out at the show.

Colonel Langley explained that this particular show is a closed show which means that competition is open only to members of the Hunt Club.

"We have approximately 125 members with a horse population of about 87 at the club," the colonel said.

Capt. Charles Grant will judge the Western events and Miss Dell Greenwall will judge the English events.

"There are eighteen classes all together and the jumps range from two feet, three inches high to four feet, six inches," Colonel Langley said. "The important thing is not only how high the horse actually jumps, but rather the height and width which forms an arc. Some of the obstacles may be four feet high, but could be six feet wide and this is where the amount of arc a horse can form is important."

Championship awards will be made at the conclusion of the show to winners of the English and Western Divisions. Individual awards of each class winner will be made at the conclusion of the class event.

Division champions are determined by the greatest amass of points in each class.

A business meeting and election of new Hunt Club officers will be held at the conclusion of the show.

Fort Personnel Take Part in 3 Races

By Sgt. Ed Nichols

Fort Benning auto enthusiasts were involved in three different auto races on the weekend of Nov. 8-9 at Lawson Field Weather Command in Phenix City. Scott and his wife, Lou, worked at Alabama International Speedway at Talladega, Ala., as career workers. While they were there, they met Bill France, president of Nascar and owner of the Talladega Speedway.

The Phenix Dragway was the scene of much Fort Benning activity as Chavega Regice, SCSA held its last slalom of the season.

Highlight of the dragway's activities was the opening of the track to sports car drag racing since the Sunday session. Sp5 Lonnie Voyles of the Signal Corps Electronics Lab came into his own when his Chevelle put down Training Center Recruitments SSgt. Joe White in his Austin America.

White's Austin is not slow by any means — it's a real sleeper.

Capt. Briley Howell and this columnist both traveled to College Station, Tex., to work as pit stewards in the final Canadian-American Challenge Cup race. Howell and Dennis Holme's pit upheld their title as the best pit crew in the world at the Mark Andretti pits.

Bruce McLaren won the Texas Gas-Am after a dead heat finish with Bobby Unser, who had led the final lap. The win gave McLaren the overall Can-Am Championship and an extra $25,000 in addition to his track side victory purse. The McLaren team took home a total of $220,000.

ON THE SCENE: Plymouth rejoins the competitive Nascar scene with their 1970 "Superbird" which is a (Dodge) "Daytona" Plymouth Road Runner complete with 23-inch rear spoiler — or is that wing?

Dan Gurney has signed at one year contract to drive the "Superbird" in a number of Nascar Grand National races including the January Riverside 500. Gurney and his protege Swede Savage will drive Plymouth Barracudas for the '70 Trans-America series.

Dodge waits either Sam Posey or Bob Tullius to drive their new challenger in Trans-Am while Roger Penske signed a three year contract (mucho money) with American Motors to campaign "Seneca Javelins."

Rumors have the Penske deal at between $2 million and $3 million.

Golden Knights, Devils Jump

WASHINGTON (ANF)— Some of the finest military free-fall parachutists from both sides of the Atlantic are perfecting their skills in the skies over Fort Bragg, N.C.

They are participating in the annual fall six-week tryout and training period conducted by the Golden Knights of the U.S. Army Parachute Team. The jumping session began Oct. 27.

Jumping with the Knights are ten hopefuls vying for berths on the team, three members of the U.S. Seventh Army Parachute Team from Germany and 12 Red Devils of the British Parachute Regiment free-fall team.

"Each man should get a minimum of five jumps a day and at least 125 to 150 jumps during the six weeks—more if the weather remains good," said Capt. G. M. McPherson, the Golden Knights' executive officer.

The Red Devils are the Golden Knights' counterparts as the official demonstration unit of the British army.

The Golden Knights and the Red Devils have been exchanging yearly visits since the Red Devils first went to Fort Bragg for training in 1965, the year they were formed.

The Red Devils, who share that nickname with an entire British parachute regiment, are as famous and formidable in British parachuting circles as the Golden Knights are in the United States.

2 Baseball Prospects Take Basic Training

By PFC Chester Hilburn

The New York Mets might not have been as good as some of the other major league ball clubs this season, but they had something going for them down the stretch, momentum.

Something on the New York Mets' scoreboard I'll bet you was PVT. Michael A. Cole, one of five old-time pro ball players now undergoing basic training at Fort Benning, Ga.

Cole, a fast-fielding shortstop, is scheduled for try-out with the Kansas City Royals of the American League this spring.

At 5-ft. 9-in. (unbelievably for New York, Cole was his league's leading hitter in 1968 and '69 with batting averages of .366 and .356. In '68, he was selected the school's baseball "Rookie of the Year."

Co. B, 5th Bn's. other baseball player is Lee M. Choate, Chattanooga, Tenn. Lee has played two years in the New York Yankee organization.

Choate, a fast, strong-armed centerfielder, has signed a triple A contract to play for Syracuse of the International League in 1970.

Last year, while playing for Class A Fort Lauderdale of the Florida State League, he gained recognition for being a centerfield defensive standout.

At Central High School, Chattanooga, Tenn., from which he graduated in 1968, Choate hit a blazing .411 average during his senior year, and was named to the all-city and all-star teams.

A member of the 187th USAG Reserve unit, Choate is from Chattanooga, Tenn. Cole is from Perhaps, N.Y.

ASPIRING YOUNG ATHLETES

Little Leaguers Fill Shoes With Energy

By Capt. T. J. Jones

T formation, zone defense, wishbone formation, free safety, spread end, line backer, flanker back, blocking assignments and who filled the gaps — these are the thoughts of a boy involved in Special Services' Little League Football.

Little League football — where the uniforms and protective pads are too big and many a mother thinks her son is too small, but every pair of shoes on the field is filled by the energy and desire of an aspiring young athlete.

Little League football — where five nights a week after a day at the office, classroom or range, fathers, or just interested men, turn into Vince Lombardis or Bud Wilkinsons, all for the love of the game.

Little League football — where the title of sergeant, captain, major or colonel is traded for "coach."

Little League football — where days of practice are terminated with a scheduled game at Doughboy Stadium, the arena where some of the gladiators come in their parents' cars but most arrive on bicycles.

Little League football — where for five nights a week the stands are all but deserted except for fathers that cheer and shout and mothers who cringe a little with every snap of the ball, where coaches are faced with problems like mouth pieces being left at home and being penalized for illegal motion because a player has to go to the bathroom.

Little League football — where referees take the brunt of a coach's knowledge or irate parents' tantrums over a disputed decision.

Little League football — where teams like the Colts, Rams, Bombers, Panthers and Eagles do battle to have the most bulbs lighted on the scoreboard at the end of the stadium when the final whistle is blown.

Little League football — maybe. Just maybe it isn't so little league after all—why not see for yourself?

Children Win Fish Prizes

When the Attack and Defense Committees of Tactics Group, BBOD, invited their children to participate in their challenge fishing match, they had no idea that the youngsters would accomplish a near sweep of the prize events.

Three of the four top prizes were won by youngsters.

Cynthia Ann Hus, 11, daughter of SSgt. George Hus; Mack Hopper, 13, son of Lt. Col. Mack Hopper, and John Royal, 13, son of Lt. Col. Jerry Royal, won the prizes respectively for the largest chain pickerel and crappie.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloeb

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a turkey shoot at the club skeet range tomorrow.

Shooting will start at 10 a.m. and close at 4 p.m. Entry fee will be $1 a shot. The Rod and Gun Club will furnish ammunition and guns.

Membership in the Rod and Gun Club has reached the all time high of 7,975. Limited memberships are now open to civilians who are not otherwise qualified to join the club. Cost of a limited membership is $5. The limited membership entitles the member to use of the trap and skeet ranges, the archery range, and the Sportsmans Lounge. It does not entitle the member to hunt and fish on the post.

The opening of the hunting season always ushers in the fore the business of killing lots of game until it can be stated in the records. Wild game has a scope very much its own and unless it is properly handled from the moment it is killed will end up with a flavor that is rare indeed. Probably half the game taken by hunters is spoiled by improper handling.

Most all birds, especially game birds have a high body temperature. Temperatures run in excess of 100 degrees. Along with this high body temperature they have a layer of feathers that tends to retain this temperature even after they have been shot. Also most birds are shot going away from the gun. This means that the intestines have been punctured by the shotload which complicates the problem of preservation. The same applies to rabbits and squirrels which are often shot with the scatter gun.

On big game such as the whitetailed deer it is common practice to gut the trophy as soon as possible.

Almost all hunters take to the field wearing a hunting coat with a large pocket across the back into which birds are stuffed as they are shot. After a half-dozen birds are tossed into the coattail together they begin to heat each other increasing the chances of the meat spoiling. A much better way to carry the game is a series of leather loops worn on the belt which hold either the head or feet of the bird and permit the game to dangle in the open. This way air currents can work through the feathers and reduce body heat.

Birds of all kinds should be cleaned in the field. The sooner this is done the better. Care should be taken to remove the crop at the same time. If the game cannot be cleaned as the hunt progresses then it should be cleaned at the end of the hunt before the hunters depart for home.

A rabbit can be field cleaned by squeezing the bunny just behind the ribs while a shooting mate holds it by the neck. Several hard squeezes will strip the intestines out the anus. A rabbit handled in this fashion will keep nicely until you get home where the skin can be stripped and the game opened up.

Big game, once it has been opened up and the insides removed, should be transported speedily to a freezer. The practice of tying the carcass to the hood or car top to transport it home is very detrimental to the goodness of the meat. It picks up road dirt and the heat of the car is also harmful to the taste of the meat.

Boston Patriots, U.S. Both Draft Private

By Sgt John Klopf

Pvt. Joseph Leasy doesn't think basic combat training will be the toughest thing he's gone through in his life and he's probably right.

Leasy found himself in the peculiar position of being drafted twice this year. The Boston Patriots got him for three weeks and Uncle Sam got him for two years.

Now a member of Co. C, 1st Bn., 1st Bde., the former pro linebacker still hopes that football will play a big part in his life.

"I've been told," said Leasy, "that my chances are good of playing Army ball. That would be my first choice of duty."

If past record is any indication, the trainee may be right. Leasy played football well enough at Alcorn A&M College in Lorman, Miss., to be voted all-conference fullback for the conference. When the Patriots got him he was their sixth draft choice.

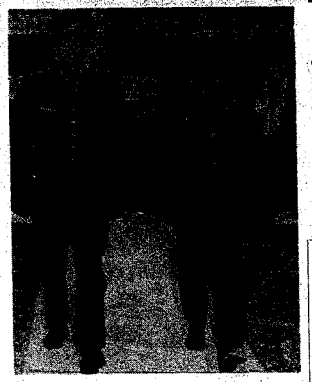
Hometown Turns Out To Hail MOH Winner

Veteran's Day, 1969, in Woodbridge, N.J., was a day for the town's first Medal of Honor winner since World War I.

It was the day that Capt. Jack H. Jacobs came home—home to his parents and brother and sister. It was a day of band playing and hand-shaking and speeches for Fort Benning's latest Medal of Honor holder.

Woodbridge's three-part Veteran's Day program consisted of dedication of the new Veteran's Memorial Park, the annual veterans' service conducted by the Veterans Alliance, and ceremonies honoring Jacobs.

Numerous dignitaries of Federal, state, county and local governments, and officials of various veterans' organizations, as well as the family and friends of Jacobs attended the ceremonies, which commemorated also the township's 300th anniversary.



Carriers Set Low Holiday Rates

Reduced fares for soldiers traveling during the Christmas and New Year holidays will be offered by all major commercial carriers.

Airlines will offer two reduced rate plans—a military reserve fare and a military standby rate.

Reduced rate reservations will be available to soldiers at approximately 67 per cent of the regular coach fare. This rate does not apply on Friday from noon to midnight nor from noon Sunday to noon Monday.

Soldiers will also be allowed to fly half price on a standby basis with no weekend nor holiday restrictions.

Railroads offer special furlough fares at about 50 per cent of the normal cost.

Bus rates will be reduced for soldiers traveling to several cities on the East coast and to Southern California.

To be eligible for these reduced rates the soldier must be on official leave, pass, or furlough.

VISITOR FROM SWEDEN

DOD Establishes Policies For Early Outs, Holidays

WASHINGTON (ANF)—The Department of Defense (DOD) has established leave and early discharge policies for armed forces personnel for the Christmas season.

The early release program will permit early separation of those Army personnel whose normal release from active duty otherwise would occur between Dec. 29, 1969 and Jan. 4, 1970. Individual release dates will be timed to permit such personnel to be home for Christmas.

The holiday leave policies will be in effect for the same period indicated above. This extended period will insure that most servicemen have an opportunity for leave over one of the two holidays during the period.

The leave policy will apply overseas where the military mission permits.

Loss of Teeth Said Not Inevitable for Older Folks

By Capt. J. C. Feinglass, DC

The common idea is that, with growing up, maturing and growing older, a gradual loss of teeth is inevitable. This just is not true. You should be able to pry corn off the cob, snarl through steak, or smile with your own teeth all your life — if you start proper care soon enough.

The hitch is, most people think they are doing everything necessary if they keep their teeth well-brushed and free of cavities.

But that is only part of it.

The fact is that most teeth are lost not to decay but to periodontal disease or pyorrhea, the slow but progressive and permanent destruction of the gums and eventually of the bone supporting the teeth.

Because of it, some five million Americans have already lost all their teeth by age 35. By age 45 the figure is one out of six. Americans without natural teeth; by age 60, three out of six.

It is a spectacular engineering system that holds our teeth in place. Teeth must be able to cut, tear, crush, grind and shred an enormous variety of foods. To do the job without damage, they must be firm but with "give" enough to withstand shock.

The roots fit snugly into sockets in the jawbone, but they are not cemented in. Instead, they are cushioned by a thin soft tissue layer and anchored by thousands of tiny fibers which pass from the jawbone right through the cushioning membrane to the roots.

The gums cover and protect this intricate structure, which holds the teeth in place. The gums must fit about the teeth tightly so that food and other foreign substances are not jammed between them and into the roots of the teeth. The gum also contain blood vessels which carry oxygen and nourishment to this vital area.

Healthy gums are firm to the touch and pale-pink in color. When inflammation (or gingivitis) occurs, gums become red and swollen and detach from the teeth.

If your gums bleed when you brush your teeth, the tissue which has been irritated and swollen is unable to do its life-giving and disease fighting job. As the gums pull back from this irritation, they allow more food particles and bacteria to lodge in pockets thus formed.

The result of untreated gingivitis is further periodontal disease and breakdown as a waste material called tartar or calculus collects. This is a cement-like substance which cannot be removed by brushing.

As calculus builds up inflammation spreads to the gum tissue, then the periodontal membrane is eaten away.

Finally the roots and the bone structure supporting the teeth are severely damaged by infection causing the teeth to come loosened and then lost.

What can you do to preserve healthy gums?

1. Most important, visit a dentist regularly, at least twice a year. Ask him to check your gums as well as your teeth, and cooperate with him in a program to prevent disease from attacking your gums. Ask your dentist to show you how to brush your teeth and gums properly. It is important to not only clean between the teeth but also to massage the gums between the teeth (many toothbrushes have a rubber tip on the handle for this latter purpose).

2. Get tartar removed regularly. If your gums are swollen, inflammed, or bleed easily, they are not healthy. No matter how correctly you brush your teeth, some tarter may form below the gum line. If the tartar is not completely removed, it is potentially as dangerous as a splinter left to fester in a finger. If it is removed early, your chances for a cure and of having healthy gums are greatly increased.

3. Correct immediately any other conditions causing oral trouble. Old and broken-down fillings should be replaced by your dentist. For some people, gum trouble may be caused by ill-fitting bridgework or by gaps where teeth are missing. The shape of the mouth or jawline, the position of the teeth, abnormal chewing habits, or physical ailments — thryoid deficiency or diabetes, for example — make some people especially vulnerable to periodontal disease. There is also a relationship between nutrition and gum disease.

Neglect is the principal cause of gingival and periodontal disease. It is neglect which permits the disease to destroy tooth supporting tissues.

The moral is clear. By taking proper care of our gums as well as your teeth, you should be able to keep your teeth as long as you live.

Branch Liaison Emissary Called Infantry Officer's 'Best Friend'

By 2nd Lt. James Hopson

At Fort Benning the Infantry officer's best friend is the Infantry Branch Liaison Officer, Capt. Richard G. Whitcomb, who can help him get a long accompanied tour, a military school or an "RA" commission.

Whitcomb explained his job at Fort Benning:

"I have two primary responsibilities — to insure that Infantry Branch provides the Army with sufficient junior officers to fill our needs, and in the long run, to provide a solid cadre of Regular Army officers, best qualified for our continuing goals."

He said, "Col. George E. Newman, branch chief, felt that because of the large number of Infantry officers here at Fort Benning, it would be a good personal service to these officers to have access to a Branch representative to assist them in their career planning."

The University of Washington graduate said most of his work with Infantry officers here deals with assignments, professional development and individual personnel actions.

"My primary interest is with students—mostly officer candidates and Infantry Officer Basic Course students. I work with younger officers on the indefinate category to help them get assignments from Fort Bening. I am here to discuss career opportunities and assignments with the student," Whitcomb stated.

Another aspect of Whitcomb's job involves placing officers in military and civilian schools and in military specialist courses.

A third common problem is junior officer retention. This entails explaining to young officers the opportunities and benefits of an Army career, he said.

"We also look at long range planning for the young career officers, insuring that they receive the best possible assistance from Infantry Branch right from the start," Whitcomb says.

Whitcomb explained that every officer cannot get a military attache job, a 52-week language school or some of the other "choice" assignments as soon as he is commissioned.

"The primary mission of Infantry Branch is to insure that every young officer receives the best possible training to qualify him as an Infantryman. The first few years of a career is spent becoming qualified as an Infantry leader," he said.

"To do this a man must realize that his early assignments will be with troops," the captain stated.

His office in room 547, Infantry Hall, is jammed every day with men seeking advice, looking for assignments or asking for help in planning their careers.

"This is a fantastic job," said Whitcomb, a graduate of the Infantry School's Infantry Officer Basic and Airborne courses. "The contact with officers of all grades is tremendous. In less than 60 days, I have seen better than 900 men, mostly junior officers and OCs."

Awards Go To 5 Here

Awards were presented to five employes of the Infantry Center's directorate of communications and electronics, by Lt. Col. John E. Riordan Jr., director.

Mrs. Odelle C. Adams, telephone branch, was presented an outstanding and sustained superior performance rating and $200 cash for the period, Aug. 9, 1968 - Aug. 8, 1969. Mrs. Adams has served as chief operator for 23 years.

Mrs. Neva Spratley, support division, was presented a letter of appreciation for a suggestion under the work simplification program.

Willis C. Smith, plans, programs, and projects branch, and Ralph E. Overall, formerly of the communications center branch, were presented letters of appreciation for suggestions under the management improvement program.

Robert K. McLaughlin, telephone branch, received a $25 award for a suggestion.

Third Time in Basic

Navy Veteran Starts Army Career

By PFC Ron Argo

Occasionally a trainee will be promoted to private first class upon completion of basic training but rarely does a trainee enter basic as a specialist 5.

John Drewey Patton, 20, is one of those exceptions. He is a 16-year Navy veteran who joined the Army hoping to become a warrant officer. "After going through basic twice before, I really didn't expect it again," he said.

Patton, a trainee in Co. D, 5th Bn., 2nd Bde., went through basic at Fort Jackson, S.C., in 1958 as a National Guard and the next year entered boot camp in the Navy.

"The chow is lot better now," he said, "and the M-16 seems like a toy compared to the M-1 we used then." (The company is using the M-16 this cycle.)

Patton, whose only objection to basic is that "it is prolonging the time before I get to my duty station," was an E-5 before leaving the Navy 11 months ago.

"I came into the Army rather than return to the Navy because advancement opportunities are better for me." He hopes to be commissioned as a warrant officer through a direct appointment.

Patton joined the National Guard when he was 16 and went through basic with Co. D, 6th Bn. at Ft. Jackson. After entering the Navy in January, 1958, he was stationed with the Beach Master Unit at Little Creek Amphibious Base, Va.

Lieutenant States Firm Beliefs In Support of ROTC Program

By Sp5 John Klopf

A man with firm convictions about the benefits of an ROTC commission is 2nd Lt. William J. Joyce, officer-in-charge of Malone 1 Range and a member of G-3 range committee of The Training Center.

Joyce received a Regular Army commission upon graduation from the University of Oklahoma in Norman. There he was designated distinguished military student and distinguished military graduate of his ROTC class. He holds a bachelor of arts degree in language.

"I plan to make the Army my career," explained Joyce," and ROTC gave me a chance to get my education out of the way before I came in."

"If a man has been through a university he has a better chance..." said the lieutenant, explaining the role a college degree can play in the making of a successful officer.

Regarding the growing opposition on some college campuses to the ROTC programs, Joyce voiced the opinion that popularity of the program on his campus would "never see a decrease."

"There are too many advantages," he explained. "I was married when I went to school, and that $50 a month bought a lot of groceries."

Besides that, the ROTC courses were good for college credit, which helped my grade point considerably," he said.

Joyce personally feels that taking his military instruction over a four-year period rather than concentrating it into six months, for example, gave him time to "soak in information" on military subjects of special interest to him.

"If you're weak in a subject, there's more time to learn and more ways to get extra help," he explained.

Joyce attended Infantry Officers Basic, Ranger and Airborne Schools at Fort Benning. He has volunteered for combat duty and will be leaving in January.

"When I get there, I'm going to try to get with the 1st Infantry Division," said Joyce. "I want to be in a command position where I can learn about men."

A Kneed to Dough

School Classifies 8 Cooks as Bakers

The Army bakery industry has a problem. It produces more bread than it can eat.

Recently a team of experts, a detachment of the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, visited the Army Baker School at Fort Benning, Ga., to study the problem.

Cooks chosen to attend the bakery school are selected by their battalion commanders. All students attend on a volunteer basis and return to their battalions following successful completion of the school.

"I've taught at many baking schools during my 19 years in the Army's food service program," said SSgt. Allen Graves who heads the school. "But this is one of the finest and most realistic."

With less than four men per instructor, a high standard is maintained.

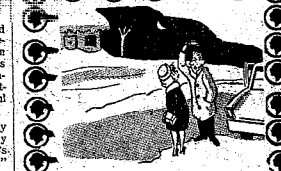
The sergeant said the unit's baking school machine use of 100 portion equipment, whereas most schools limit the students to only 8, or 10 man portions.

"We start with the basic ingredients, not commercial mixes, and after an hour of theory covering all of the steps from weighing and measuring each part to the final arrangement of the service line, the students then prepare the particular item we are studying," Graves said.

All of the items the students are taught to bake are chosen from those appearing most frequently on Fort Benning's master menu.

"When one of our graduates returns to his unit he is capable of following the 100 portion recipes in the Army cook book" said Graves. "And with the little extras we teach, he can be proud of what he serves his men."



"Well, I guess this is good night, Virginia."
"We've chickened out, too!"
"We've held the price line on these fine cars but now they've got to go. We've slashed the prices for quick clearance."

DA To Print

A new Army magazine designed to help clarify and simplify the Army personnel system is expected to be distributed in late March.

The Department of the Army quarterly publication, TIPS, The Army Personnel Magazine, is being produced at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., by a new Office of Personnel Operations activity known as the U.S. Army Personnel Information Activity (USAPIA).

"The magazine will be aimed directly at enlisted personnel specialists, but its 'grass roots' language and illustrations have a built-in interest factor for all troops, regardless of MOS," said Maj. George W. Tate, USAPIA commander.

More than 500 Red Cross disaster workers are now serving in the state.

Regiment Seeking Former Members For Local Group

Men who have served with the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment are invited to join the regiment's new social organization.

The national organization is being developed in Ashland, Ky., under the direction of Maj. William W. Poynter.

Soldiers here interested in organizing a Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter should contact Capt. Gary D. Turner of Infantry Officer Advanced Course S-83 at his home, 1055 Greenbriar St., Columbus. His telephone number is 561-3879.

The Black Horse troopers plan social and reunion activities similar to those of the local chapters of the Society of the Big Red One and the First Cavalry Division Association.

No application is necessary for widows of servicemen and veterans who died after January, 1957, of service-connected causes to receive increased payments under VA's new dependency and indemnity compensation law.

Date Nears For Aliens To Report

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — With few exceptions all aliens in the United States and its possessions must report their addresses to the Attorney General during January.

Aliens temporarily absent from the United States during January should not report their addresses but must do so within ten (10) days of return to the U.S.

The Immigration and Nationality Act provides serious penalties for willful failure to submit the report.

Cards with which the report can be made are available at any United States Post Office and at offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service during the month of January.

The cards should be filled out and returned to the clerk from whom received.

Compliance with the alien registration requirement is of vital importance to all aliens in the U. S. Armed Forces as well as members of the armed forces who have relatives that are not citizens of the U.S. but residents of the U.S.

UG Campaign Nears Its Goal As Drive Ends

With contributions still coming in, the United Givers Fund Campaign, which ends today, has achieved over 96 per cent of its goal of $205,000.

As of Wednesday, drive officials had received a total of $196,228.35 with 39 out of 63 agencies on post having exceeded their goal.

James Schoonover, project officer for the drive, said Wednesday that officials are hopeful that the campaign will achieve its 100 per cent mark by the end of the month after all returns are in.

Reenlistment Sponsors Career Opportunity '69

By Marian Jones

Recognizing that the individual soldier is the key to the might of any Army, regardless of its technological advances or supremacy of weapons, the post reenlistment office is conducting a special reenlistment effort here Dec. 4-10.

Called "Career Opportunity Time 69," the program is designed in order that each command may designate one day as "Career Opportunity Day" and give special emphasis to the retention of the services of qualified and desirable individuals as career soldiers.

A similar program was held at the U. S. Army Infantry Center on Dec. 10 last year and according to the Adjutant General's office, it had very favorable results.

In order to give additional emphasis this year, a week has been set aside.

Commands involved and the day on which they will observe Career Opportunity Day are: Medical Department, Dec. 4 in Room B902 at Martin Army Hospital; Center Troop Command, Dec. 5 at CTC headquarters; Training Center, Infantry, Dec. 5 in the headquarters conference room; The Candidate Brigade, Dec. 5 in TCB headquarters; The Student Brigade, Dec. 9 at TSB headquarters; 10th Aviation Group, Dec. 9 in the reenlistment office; and 197th Infantry Brigade, Dec. 10 in the brigade headquarters.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commanding general, will serve as the program's honorary career counselor.

Nutty Tip: Soak walnuts in salted water overnight. When you shell them the next day, the nutmeats will come out whole.

For a finishing touch to an autumn dinner, present a large ball of cheddar cheese scored with a spoon handle so that it resembles a pumpkin. Use a piece of green celery or pepper for a stem, and surround with apples.

The earliest American patent on a freezer was granted in 1848, but it wasn't until the late 1930s that a method of quick-freezing food became practical.

Winter Lunchbox Hot Dog: Drop a frankfurter into a vacuum jug of hot soup. Provide a roll spread with mustard on the side.

If you're having the relatives over for Thanksgiving dinner, take heart. Last year U.S. Army chefs had to prepare—among other items—650,000 pounds of turkey, 245,000 pounds of dressing, 182,500 pounds of mashed potatoes and 130,000 pies.

Rabies Threat Grows

"Doggie!" the young child cries excitedly and reaches toward the strange dog that wandered into the back yard. Do not let this happen to your child. Any biting animal should be considered a rabies suspect. Once the symptoms of rabies appear, the disease is usually fatal.

Fortunately, there have not been any actual cases of rabies at Fort Benning for the past several years, but this past August in Columbus a pet skunk owned by a military family died of rabies.

The threat of rabies has reached the Chattahoochee Valley with Sumter County reporting four rabid raccoons this year.

The Office of the Post Veterinarian handles an average of 122 bite or scratch incidents a month involving military men and dependents.

All animal bites or scratches must be treated at the emergency room, Martin Army Hospital. Complete information regarding the identification and location of the suspect animal is necessary so that it can be carefully observed for 10 days to determine whether the animal has rabies and if the person bitten must go through the lengthy and painful anti-rabies treatment.

There is little that can be done to control rabies in wild animals, but Army regulations require that all pets, except birds, kept on post be vaccinated for rabies, if they are over three months of age.

In approximately 24 per cent of the bite and scratch incidents involving on-post animals, the animal was running at large, in violation of USAIC regulations.

Many bites occur when a dog is on a leash or fenced and a child teases or mistreats him or accidently gets too close to him. Children should not be allowed to play alone in areas where there is a vicious or unruly dog chained or fenced.

Most bite or scratch incidents involve children. Therefore, parents should instruct their children in the following common sense precautions.

1. One should never attempt to pet a stray or wild animal (dog, cat, squirrel, raccoon, etc) even though it may appear friendly. One of the first symptoms of rabies is the absence of fear in a normally timid or fearful animal.

2. Children should not pet animals they do not know. The animal is not always as friendly as the child.

3. Never tease or mistreat animals, especially those fenced or on a chain.

4. Stray animals should not be used for family pets. This includes any type of wildlife. Wildlife should not be fed directly from one's hand—this is a common cause of bites.

5. Children should not be allowed to play alone, especially in areas where a vicious or unruly dog is present.

6. All animal bites or scratches should be reported to a doctor and the animal examined by a veterinarian and quarantined.

Parents who train their children to follow these rules can help prevent many animal bite or scratch incidents and the anxiety that comes with them.

Safe Driving Saves Lives

A study of Fort Benning's defensive driving program indicates that soldiers who take the safe driving course have more than twice as great a chance of surviving on the nation's highways as those who do not.

Since the program was initiated 18 months ago, five of the 25,000 persons who have taken the course have been killed in privately owned vehicle accidents — a ratio of 1 out of 5,000.

Of the 100,000 people who were eligible to take the course during those months but did not, 45 were killed — a ratio of about 1 in 2,200.

Officials of the Safety Office conclude that the eight-hour block of safe driving instruction may have saved the lives of scores of Fort Benning soldiers.

Current Infantry Center regulations require all operators of military vehicles, regardless of whether they are civilian or military, to take the course.

All soldiers under age 25 who operate their own privately owned vehicles and all soldiers in the grades of E-5 and below regardless of age must also take the course.

A "remedial" course in safe driving is required of those with traffic violations and unit commanders can require any of their men who may have to drive military or civilian vehicles to take the course.

In other words, the Safety Office is trying to reach potential high risk drivers before they join the 1 in 2,200 who have become statistics.

WHITE HOUSE REPORT

(On June 27, 1969, the President concurred in the conclusions and recommendations of a special task force looking into the problems of narcotics, marihuana and dangerous drugs. The portion of this report relating to marihuana is being reprinted for Bayonet readers. This is the second of a seven part series dealing with marihuana.)

PRESENT EVIDENCE OF USE

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Marihuana use has been rapidly increasing in the past five years. Although originally restricted to certain jazz musicians, artists and ghetto dwellers, it has now appeared among the middle and upper class. A conservative estimate of persons, both juvenile and adult, who have used marihuana at least once is about 5 million.

One of the most alarming aspects of the current drug crisis is the involvement of young people. In California alone juvenile arrests for drug offenses increased from 1,271 in 1961 to 14,112 in 1967. Of the 14,112 juvenile arrests in California during 1967, 10,987 were arrested for marihuana violations. To understand the full significance of this figure it must be compared with the year 1961 in which there were 401 arrests. In 1967 alone there were over 2,000 more arrests for marihuana violations than in the previous six years combined.

Two years ago, surveys in parts of the country where marihuana use is known to be high suggested that 20 per cent of the college students in those areas had experience with marihuana. Present evidence, although spotty, suggests that as many as 60 per cent of the students on some campuses have used it.

Some students feel that official estimates are low, and that the true extent of drug abuse among college students is even higher. Statements prepared by the National Student Association project the possibility of nearly 1 million drug arrests of young people in 1972. There are also many reports of increasing use of marihuana in high schools although there is not sufficient data to establish a countrywide pattern.

Significantly, most recent college data indicated that many college users were first exposed to marihuana in high school. However, the bulk of users are more aptly characterized as "triers" rather than habitual "pot-heads." Two out of three who have tried the drug have used it not more than one to ten times. In the most recent (Fall, 1968) survey based on a geographic area of high use, about one person in ten reported using marihuana regularly for as much as a year's duration. Finally, there is growing evidence that the number of pre-teenagers who are using marihuana is increasing.

EFFECTS

The use of marihuana produces a variety of mental and physical effects. If active marihuana is smoked effectively, (inhaled and kept in the lungs as long as possible) symptoms may appear after one or two puffs and the effect may last from several minutes to several hours.

Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, Director, National Institute of Mental Health, has stated:

"Little can be added to previous reports on the toxicity of marihuana. It is considered to be a mild hallucinogen, taken by the usual route of smoking occasionally by ingestion. It may induce a mild euphoria and lead to heightened suggestibility and faulty perception, really an exaggerated notion of thinking more clearly, profoundly and creatively. In addition, it is known to cause reddening of the membranes of the eyes, rapid heartbeat, muscular incoordination, unsteadiness, drowsiness, and distortion of time and space perception.

"In acute intoxication, especially when ingested, it may also produce visual hallucinations, pronounced anxiety, paranoid reactions, and transient psychoses lasting four to six hours. It generally tends to lessen inhibitions and creates for the user a false reality, based on his wants, his motivations, or the situation. In this respect it is similar to LSD, but its effects are not as potent."

Candidate Wives Can Have Problems Pressed Out

By Marian Jones

When to wear hats and gloves is not the most pressing problem facing officer and noncommissioned officer candidate wives.

Pressing problems are things like finding a place to live and a job to take up the long hours their husbands are away.

A volunteer group here and in Columbus is helping fill the gap. It all began with Mrs. Anna Glasbrenner, an employe of a local drycleaner.

While waiting on officer candidates who came into the cleaners she would listen to their problems and try to help. One of the main problems worrying the candidates, she noticed, was what to do with their wives.

During the first eight weeks of her husband's training a wife isn't allowed to see him except for an hour once a week in the day room. These wives were strangers to an area where adequate low-cost housing is difficult to find and jobs still more rare. They were feeling lost in the shuffle. Mrs. Glasbrenner dealt with as many problems as her job would allow her time.

A former Army wife, whose husband retired as a chief warrant officer and whose daughter is married to an Army captain, she was able to understand the difficulty these wives faced. She helped with housing, hotel reservations for graduation day and sometimes provided dinner in her home for the candidates.

One Mothers Day, she wired 24 sets of flowers to mothers in various parts of the country. Mrs. Glasbrenner proved to be a link between Columbus and the post for the men.

Through Mrs. Glasbrenner, her employer, William S. Stewart, and his wife, LaDean, learned of the candidates' problems. News of Mrs. Glasbrenner's willingness to help had spread and she now had more problems that she could handle.

Stewart suggested hiring a full-time employe just to handle what Mrs. Glasbrenner had been doing on a part-time volunteer basis.

In September of this year, Mrs. Glasbrenner and Mrs. Stewart met with Col. Robert M. Piper, commander of The Candidate Brigade, and received his official blessing. They later invited Mrs. Piper and the battalion commanders' wives to a coffee to discuss the program and a new service was born.

Called the Candidate Wives Service, it is staffed by Mrs. Pat Beesley who was hired by Stewart.

Vivacious and enthusiastic, Mrs. Beesley calls the girls she helps her daughters. Operating in the Ideal Cleaners Lumpkin Road offices, she has helped over 32 wives find places to live and has also located jobs for many of them. She has listings of apartments as well as employers who are willing to hire wives to work for the six months their husbands will be in school. One of her goals is to get the wives into more desirable housing.

Wives are referred to the Candidate Wives Service through the candidate battalions as well as post family housing officials. The service has grown to the point that Mrs. Beesley now has a larger office and is looking around for some volunteer help.

She hopes that candidate wives who have been helped by the service will donate their time to helping other wives. She looks forward to the service becoming a self-help project something that will draw the wives together.

Next to finding housing, Mrs. Beesley's next largest problem is convincing local employers to hire "her daughters." Most employers are hesitant because of the short time the girls will be in the area. "They need to discover that most of the girls don't need training. A large percentage of them are college trained and are ready to step right into a job," Mrs. Beesley emphasizes. Among those she has found jobs are a bacteriologist, a teacher trained in special education and a trained dental assistant.

IOBC 7-70 Wives Meet At 'Patriotic Luncheon'

The Wives of the students in IOBC 7-70 held a "Patriotic Luncheon" at the Fort Benning Supper club.

The theme of the affair was promoted by the use of red, white and blue streamers on the guest table and a centerpiece consisting of a red papier-mache cornucopia filled with flag - colored yarn flowers.

Following the baked ham lunch, Mrs. John T. Fulcher presented a silver tray to Susan Nedoroscik, in appreciation of her work as social chairman of the event.

Several of the wives presented a skit for the afternoon entertainment entitled, "Officers and Wives Laugh-outs," a take-off on TV's "Laugh-in."

Teachers Learn About Arts, Crafts

Elementary teachers of the Fort Benning Children's Schools are participating in arts and crafts workshop sessions in the child development center at Patch School.

Projects are as varied as are the interests of the teachers and their pupils. Cartooning, working with papier mache and making paper bag puppets are popular with some groups while others are busy with basketry, bread and glue dough and making jewelry from can pop-tops.

The activities are selected on a basis of their relevance to the classroom projects. For a pioneer unit, a teacher may want to learn how to make a corn shuck or apple-face doll. If she is teaching about Spain, she can find out how to make a pinata or the design known as Ojos de Dios.

For the Christmas season, the teachers are learning how to use native materials such as pine cones, corn shucks, and sweet gum balls to make wreaths. Discarded cartons, egg shells and packing materials are being turned into holiday figures and trees.

Members of the PTA are serving as substitute teachers on a volunteer basis while the teachers attend the workshop.

Mrs. Evelyn Southwood, art teacher at Faith School, is coordinator for the workshop. She studied art at Memphis, Tenn., Academy of Arts, engaged in undergraduate study at Memphis State University and completed graduate studies at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn. She has taught at Fort Benning 16 years.

Famous Gifts Made History As Lavish Tokens of Esteem

NEW YORK (NAPS)—Many historical figures were gifted as gift-givers—so much so that we still remember their extravagant tokens of esteem.

Take King Nebuchadnezzar. He built the Hanging Gardens of Babylon—one of the seven wonders of the ancient world—for his Median bride who longed for the green hills of her former home.

Also in the ancient world, the Roman Emperor Nero was one of the biggest donors of all times: at parties he'd throw numbered balls into the air, then present cash, jewels and mansions to the lucky people who caught them.

Charlemagne rewarded his conquering generals with all the land they could walk around from sunrise to sunset. Another ruler, Charles V, once gave his banker the entire country of Venezuela!

A former slave girl was the recipient of still another spectacular gift. In the Brazilian mountains, some 200 years ago, a diamond merchant, Joao Fernandes de Oliveira, lost his heart to captivating Chica de Silva.

He bought her freedom and made her mistress of a great country house which was surrounded by gardens. But Chica longed to live by the water's edge and sail in a vessel.

So to make her even happier de Oliveira built a whole lake in the highest town of Brazil, launched a small ship, and put it at her disposal with a crew of ten men!

Modern history is also being written in terms of the present. Hotel baron George Bolt, for example, tried to recapture his own youth by means of a sensational gift to his wife.

He bought one of the Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence River, then had it carved in the shape of a heart. On Heart Islands, Bolt then began constructing an ornate castle similar to those on the German Rhine where he had lived as a boy.

All Around the World Mother and Child Love

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Mutter, Madre, Mamushka, Muchin, Emmah, Mater, Mere, Mom. Put them all together — they spell "mother" in eight different languages. For no language alone adequately can convey the universal bond between mother and child.

A look at motherhood in different parts of the world points up some of the ways in which the good woman has earned respect and reverence.

Her roles in many cultures vary even more than her name. Some Soviet mothers are awarded silver and even gold medals, and a few achieve the status of "Hero Mother," yet many still swaddle their infants.

Carries Tot

Italian mothers pin gold charms to their babies' shirts, while many a Chinese mother still solemnly binds her infant daughter's feet.

In ancient history, an Egyptian pharaoh carved into his mother's tomb the words: "One thing along is better and more beautiful than anything under the rays of the Sun God. It is mother."

More recently, Abraham Lincoln said: "All that I am or hope to be I owe to my mother."

Mother to 53

Remarkably, a town once honored a mother who took care of 53 children at one time by erecting a plaque to her 400 years later. Napoleon echoed the feelings of many children when he said that his mother was "unique among women." But it is difficult to surpass the devotion of a British Lord who sent his mother a letter every day — for fifty years!

Today's practice of sending flowers to mother flourished in a different form centuries ago. The Mediterranean and Mid-eastern pre-Christians had annual showers of flowers in honor of the Mother of Gods.

For the average man or woman, gifts are as eloquent as words. But one man who didn't spare the words was the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, who once sent his mother a letter 21,000 words long!

Immortality

Motherhood, according to Rebecca West, is "neither a duty nor a privilege but simply the way that humanity can satisfy its desire for physical immortality."

Through the ages, reverence for mothers has been expressed in many forms in both mythology and folklore, reflecting religious beliefs on the one hand and human affection on the other. An ancient Hebrew proverb had it that "God couldn't be everywhere at once, so he had to create mothers."

Also in a religious vein, Samuel Coleridge called mothers "the holiest things alive." And William Thackery called her "the name for God in the lips and hearts of little children."

In spite of all the words of wisdom, a fallacy still prevails. It is that Mother's Day comes once a year. Mothers know better. Mother's Day comes every time a son or daughter says, "I love you."

Colonel, Mrs. John Geraci Host Company Operations Department

Honored guests were Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School and Mrs. Berry; Lt. Col. J. J. Johnston, commanding officer, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. and Mrs. Johnston; Lt. Col. J. L. Nixon, commanding officer 5th Bn., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. and Mrs. Nixon; Lt. Col. M. A. Engle, commanding officer, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. and Mrs. Engle, and Maj. Paul Armand, French liaison officer and Mrs. Armand.

Coordination for the formal was under the guidance of Maj. William C. Mudd Jr., Capt. Jerry V. Mauldin and the officers and wives of the Company Tactics Committee.

General and Mrs. Berry and Colonel and Mrs. Geraci greeted the officers wives and guests in a receiving line. Shortly thereafter, all adjourned to the tastefully decorated Fountain room for dinner.

The decorations were provided by Mrs. James Muldoon, Mrs. Michael Hatalovsky, Mrs. David Noel and the ladies of "A" Team of Company Tactics Committee.

After the meal which was planned by Maj. Kenneth Conover and the officers of "A" Team of Company Tactics Committee, attention was turned to the presentation of wedding trays to officers and their new brides and baby cups to the proud parents of new arrivals.

General Berry then spoke to the ladies about the mission of the Infantry School.

At the close of the dinner hour, the officers wives and guests were entertained by the Infantry Chorus of Fort Benning. After "I Am The Infantry" and a repertoire of other patriotic songs, everyone was entertained in the ballroom by a popular local dance group.

Get Across The River...

Get across the river.

Build a bridge, paddle, ride an armored personnel carrier — use whatever means you can.

But plan your move. Make it fast and efficient.

It was a cold morning and a colder Chattahoochee River flowing behind the instructor's lectern at Bradley Landing during the Infantry School's two-hour river crossing techniques class.

The "east" for the river crossing was made up primarily of personnel from the 197th Inf. Bde. along with the 518th Engineer Bn.

Capt. Frank Schiraldi, officer-in-charge, was speaking to several classes of officer candidates assembled in the bleachers while a sizeable group of men and equipment were gathered on the river and along its banks — awaiting cues for their respective parts in the demonstration.

The captain quoted Napoleon on rivers as military obstacles and briefly explored the whys. ("... the enemy is there on the far side. He knows you can't destroy the river, that you will stop . . . ")

Crossing sites and bridgehead selections along with reconnaissance methods were discussed before the action began on the Chattahoochee.

The sun was having no luck warming an apple-crisp morning and the old river just moved enough to stir the chilly air, not soften it.

Get across the river.

The demonstrations began — each explained by Schiraldi and coordinated from a tower by Capt. Michael Gaw.

A 15-man assault boat ("solid, silent, easy to operate") was launched.

An aluminum foot bridge was shipped across the 400-foot river width in something like 7 minutes . . . the arms and elbows of engineer personnel moving like greased lightning.

The 69th Chemical Co. blasted up and down the river in boats with their smoke generators chugging out an illustration of concealment during crossing.

Then came the armored personnel carriers (APCs) of the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. (Mechanized). The APCs came digging to the waters edge, paused, got the go-ahead and forged across the river in a high powered swim, reaching the far side in no time flat.

Floats were demonstrated, one bearing a 2½-ton truck and another, the massive five-ton M88, a combat engineer vehicle.

Floats docked, their "cargo" drove off and another waterborne example appeared.

The monolithic armored vehicle landing bridge roared to the riverside and like a giant metallic hand, unfolded itself to the Chattahoochee.

The river crossing class is a fast-moving, fine-tuned orchestration of men and equipment.

Personnel of the 197th Inf. — including the 72nd Engineer Co., the 7th Bn., 18th Arty., the 69th Chemical Co. and the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., — know their parts well.

Fourth From His Committee

Staff Sergeant Finishes At Top in NCO Academy

Staff Sgt. Julian Ulmer received the honor graduate diploma at the Third Army NCO Academy Nov. 21, and became the fourth honor graduate from the electronics committee of the communications-electronics department in the Infantry School.

Ulmer volunteered to attend the NCO academy in September. Three of his fellow instructors from the field radio mechanics course at the Infantry School had preceded him as volunteer students.

All three graduated at the top of their classes. In February, 1969, SSgt. Walter M. Reed Jr., became the communications-electronics department's first honor graduate from the academy.

He was followed in June by SFC Hussam K. Yakteen who graduated at the top of his class setting a new academic record in the process. Then, SFC Danny J. McDannell graduated from the academy in September. He became the third honor graduate in a row for the Electronics Committee and tied Yakteen's record.

Ulmer not only graduated at the top of his class but he surpassed previous academic records held by his fellow instructors by two points. Reed, Yakteen, and McDannell, were in the audience at Ulmer's graduation.

The NCO Academy is a six week, Infantry oriented course. It stresses leadership, physical ability and academics.

Project Transition

Soldiers Train For Civilian Jobs

SSgt. Acie E. Eason, stationed at Fort Benning, is one of more than 800,000 men who will be discharged from the military services this year.

But unlike many of his fellow servicemen, he will be fully prepared to make his way as a civilian once he sheds his uniform.

Eason is a member of the Army's Transition program, a two-year-old Pentagon project which gives soon-to-be civilians specialized training prior to their discharge.

In the afternoons, Easton attends a four-hour class conducted by The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company where he is learning to be an office and credit manager for the retail outlet.

Operated by the Defense Department through the education centers at Army bases, Transition invites industry to set up instruction classes at Army posts to help assist the increasing number of men being discharged annually from the military.

Men for the Fort Benning Transition classes are selected through a counseling and interviewing program conducted by the education center at the base.

Six months prior to a man's discharge, he fills out a questionnaire which asks about his post-military plans. Those interested in learning or upgrading a skill are enrolled in an educational program or in Transition.

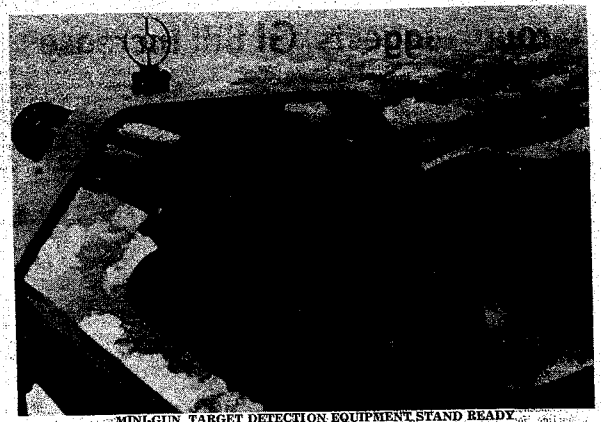
PILOT CHECKS HELICOPTER



MINI-GUN, TARGET DETECTION EQUIPMENT STAND READY

Nighthawk Team Surprises Charlie With Beam of Light, Hail of Bullets

PHUOC VINH, Republic of Vietnam—A hail of bullets and rockets streaking down a beam of light are only part of the Nighthawk surprise waiting for Charlie operating during darkness in the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

The team known as Nighthawk is composed of a Huey helicopter from Battry. E, 82nd Arty. and a Cobra gunship from the 2nd Bn., 20th Aerial Rocket Artillery's Btry. B, located at Camp Gerrad.

The firepower available to this team includes two 7.76 mm mini-guns, each capable of firing 4,000 rounds per minute; a 40mm grenade launcher, delivering 150 grenades in 30 seconds and 76 2.75 inch rockets in a variety of weights, warheads and fuses.

The Nighthawks patrol the Cav's area each night with assistance from several target detection teams, ranging from the Infantrymen to sophisticated ground and air radar. When the Nighthawk team is alerted to a possible enemy location, the crew is well equipped to find whatever is lurking in the shadows near friendly positions.

A powerful infra-red light and scope turn night into day for the keen-eyed target detection crewman. Also at his disposal is a night observation device, which needs only starlight to operate effectively.

Besides these two modern electronic detection systems, the crew uses the "ultimate finder"—a 50,000 watt xenon searchlight which not only serves as a locator, but also as a marker of the enemy position.

The moment that an Infantry squad spots movement around its position, the word is flashed to the Nighthawk.

A typical mission is underay.

In a matter of seconds the unit briefs the pilots and marks the positions with a light that can only be seen from the sky. Quickly, the Nighthawk begins searching the area until target detector Sp4 Harold Boatz picks up movement on his scope.

With a target in sight, WO John Snowgren, piloting the Huey, banks to the left while co-pilot WO Ronald Baker informs the Cobra pilots circling above the Huey of the sighting.

As the searchlight beam hits the ground, the Skytroopers below relay their positions in reference to the light before the Huey's radio cracks with "Nighthawk Two this is Dodge Six, you are clear to engage."

On the mini-gun, Sp4 Stanley Cook pours a constant steam of fire and lead down into the small beam of light. Moments later, the Blue Max overhead rolls hot and releases a burst of mini-gun fire and a salvo of rockets from pods tucked under its sides.

The light goes dark, but infra-red scopes continue to probe the target area for an assessment of damage.

Mission completed for Nighthawk means that the enemy has been caught and stopped in the darkness before he can strike at Cav unit positions on the ground.

Group Suggests GI Bill Increase

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The President's Committee on Vietnam Veterans has recommended an immediate increase in the educational assistance allowance rates of the G.I. Bill.

In an interim report to the President, the committee noted that since the last allowance increase, colleges have increased their charges by about 15 per cent, and the cost of living has gone up about 10 percent.

The committee recommended an increase "commensurate with the rise in education and living costs."

Other recommendations included:

—That industry be encouraged to set up computerized job banks to match the skills of returning Vietnam veterans to available jobs in private industry.

—That counseling services now being provided by the Veterans Administration in seven locations in the Republic of Vietnam be extended to other overseas commands.

—That a military based training center be established for servicemen who volunteer to extend their service for the sole purpose of gaining a particular skill or a high school diploma.

President Nixon established the committee June 5 to determine how veterans can get more benefit from existing programs and what new programs can be designed to help undereducated, unemployed or underemployed veterans.

The committee is headed by Ronald Johnson, administrator of Veterans Affairs, and includes Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird; Secretary of Labor George Shultz; Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Finch; Donald Rumsfeld, director, Office of Economic Opportunity; Robert Hampton, chairman, Civil Service Commission and Winton Blount, postmaster general.

Post Plans Course Here For Clerks

The post's educational development office will conduct a military correspondence course Dec. 8-19 in Room 309A, Bldg 35. Classes meet Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. - noon.

The course is designed to provide training for administrative and clerical workers in the use and preparation of military correspondence, listing and accounting for inclosures, DA publications (use and posting), The Army Functional File System and staff organizations and functions.

Military and civilian workers performing duties as clerk-typists or occupying positions requiring the supervision of clerical personnel are eligible to enroll.

The class will be made up of about 40 students to be selected by the commanders of the major units.

College Names Ranger Trainee To ROTC Honor

A Fort Benning Ranger student has been nominated for the Hughes Trophy, a special award presented by the Hughes Aircraft Company and the U.S. Army to the nation's top ROTC graduate.

Lieutenant Thomas M. Crook was nominated for the award by the Department of Military Science at Mercer University, Macon, Ga. He graduated in June.

Crook was a distinguished military graduate at Mercer, having served as commander of the Army ROTC cadet corps and vice-president of the Scabbard and Blade Military Honor Society.

As a senior, he received the regimental cadet award as the most outstanding member of his ROTC class.

He is now training with the 3rd Ranger Company, the Student Brigade.

Measures Add To Assistance For Veterans

State Veterans Director Pete Wheeler reported that two new veterans' benefit measures have been signed into law by the President. One will be of major importance to wartime veterans who are permanently and totally disabled as a result of military service.

Wheeler said this group of veterans may now receive outpatient treatment at VA expense for disabilities not related to their wartime military service.

As an example, he said, a wartime veteran totally disabled as a result of blindness may receive VA paid outpatient treatment if he develops heart disease. The heart disability would not have to be connected with his service in the Amred Forces.

The other new law eliminates the 6-month limitation of furnishing nursing home care in public or private institutions at VA expense for veterans hospitalized primarily for service-connected disabilities.

They've picked the prettiest of everything from Santaland. And they're prepared to make your holiday shopping a real enjoyable occasion.

So whatever you're looking for this Christmas. . . look for the CB&T emblem. You'll find it at over 500 stores throughout the Chattahoochee Valley. And if you don't have a CB&T "good for everything card" . . just ask one of Santa's helpers. He'll help you get one.

the Christmas card that's good all year for cash and for everything else, too.

Anniversary Is Observed

By Spt Jim Doherty

Fifty-one years of military service were marked recently by the Third U. S. Army.

In a special anniversary message to all members of Third Army, Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland noted the command's combat record in France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Germany during five major campaigns.

General Westmoreland added that the "present mission of training troops is vital to our effort in Vietnam and to those Americans on freedom's outposts around the world."

Another message from Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general, Third U. S. Army, praised his troops' record of service and urged his men to meet new challenges in the future.

"The Third Army has met the test in war and has been equally successful in peace," the general said.

"Nonetheless, the tasks which now confront us are as formidable as any we have faced in the past."

He urged major steps to achieve racial equality and to "attain maximum efficiency with minimum resources."

Both generals expressed confidence that Third Army's future achievements would be worthy of past traditions.

Early Out Costs Time In GI Bill for Some

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Some servicemen who are discharged early may be losing part of their G.I. Bill education benefits, the Veterans Administration warns.

Servicemen who are separated after 17 months of service are entitled to only 25 months of educational assistance, the VA said, while those who are separated a month later are entitled to the full 36 months.

VA has asked each service to insure that a serviceman leaving active duty understands the 18-month qualification for full VA educational benefits.

Education assistance eligibility is spelled out in Subchapter II of Title 38, United States Code, Section 1661, which states:

"... each eligible veteran shall be entitled to educational assistance under this chapter for a period of one and one-half months (or the equivalent thereof in part-time educational assistance) for each month or fraction thereof of his service on active duty after Jan. 31, 1955. If an eligible veteran has served a period of 18 months or more on active duty after Jan. 31, 1955, and has been released from such service under conditions that would satisfy his active duty obligation, he shall be entitled to educational assistance under this chapter for a period of 36 months . . ."

Got an old record? Bring it in and we'll thrill and delight you!

How? It's simple. We'll play it on the amazing new Harman-Kardon SC-2020 compact stereo music system. And then don't be surprised if you hear instruments on the old record you never heard before. Or a depth and dimension of music that you never knew was there. You see the SC-2020 is a new breed of music system. It's not very large. And it isn't terribly technical looking. But what it does to music can only be described as incredible. It makes music come alive . . . reach out and grab you.

And not only with records. The SC-2020 also has an ultra-sensitive FM/FM stereo radio. And two of the most exciting new speakers we've ever heard. All designed into a system that takes up a minimum of space and produces a maximum of sound. But descriptions don't mean a thing. Bring in an old record. You won't believe your ears. (And you probably won't believe the price of the SC-2020 either. Just $329.50!)

Police Drop Out of Sky On VC, Black Marketeers

LAI KHE, Republic of Vietnam (DIV 10) — The swishing of rotor blades and the sudden appearance of MPs and Vietnamese National Police are the first warning to many VC suspects and black marketeers that they are in trouble.

Police dropping down out of the sky is all part of the 3d Bde., 1st Infantry Division's "Checkmate" operation, an aerial augmentation to the Mobile Resources Control Team (MRCT).

The MRCT's mission includes the control of civilian traffic, checking Identification Cards and the detaining of VC suspects plus checking for "no ration" items.

For all this responsibility, however, their main job is to restrict the flow of VC supplies by road and reduce the number of mine incidents.

Responsibility for the MRCT belongs to the 3d Platoon of the 1st MP Co, stationed at Lai Khe. A number of stationary checkpoints, manned by MPs and National Police in V-166 "Commando" armored cars, control traffic north of Lai Khe on Highway 13.

But what has added to the effectiveness of the MRCT program is the team known as "Checkmate," a helicopter provided by the 1st Aviation Bn. cruises the highway daily, carrying MPs, a National Policeman and infantryment for security.

The operation has given quite a few vietnamese a startling example of what could happen to any smuggling operation.

"It has a real element of surprise to the people we check," stated Sgt. Max W. Erdelt, Ellendale, N. D. "The Vietnamese know where your regular checkpoints are and can wait until they're pulled in. But it really surprises them to see the MPs and National Police come out of the sky."

"Checkmate" was designed to provide a random check of any vehicles stopped along the road between checkpoints or suspicious civilians who might attempt to plant mines.

One member of the team, Spt David J. Lannoye, Green Bay, Wis., said, "It's one of the better jobs the MPs have. It's a little bit more dangerous — you're landing in an unknown area all by yourself, where anything can happen."

So far, the men of "Checkmate" have had no serious trouble. But they have apprehended and detained a number of VC suspects.

The "Checkmate" ship has also acted as a resupply courier to MP units and served as a "dust off" when an engineer grader hit a mine.

"Checkmate's" counterparts on the ground in the MRCT, while less glamorous, are also essential. Known as "Deputy," the ground checkpoints monitor the flow of traffic, keeping it from interfering with convoy movements, as well as accomplishing the usual MRCT tasks.

"We haven't run into anything serious, except we had one truck driver on suspicion of planting mines," commented Sgt. William J. Jeys, Griswold, Iowa. Jeys is in charge of a "Deputy" checkpoint.

Spt Harold J. Whitmore, Ramburne, Ala., acknowledged that arrests have not been numerous.

"But it makes them think twice before trying to smuggle something through — there's always the chance we might catch it," Whitmore said.

The whole MRCT operation is also an example of how well the Americans and Vietnamese work together. Each team has at least one National Policeman with it, who has the authority to search Vietnamese civilians.

"Together," as one MP said, "we make a team that's hard to beat."

DRUM MAJOR SALUTES
Barbee Holds Baton

PFC Serves Also as 'Major'

HEADQUARTERS, THIRD U. S. ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — One soldier at Ft. McPherson manages to be a private first class and a "major" at the same time — drum major, that is.

PFC Andrew H. Barbee is drum major for the famous Third Army Band. He is easily the most noticeable figure in the band. He marches several paces in front of the other musicians wearing a bearskin hat, called a busby, which is two feet tall.

The 21-year-old drum major carries a silver-headed mace, a kind of super-baton about five feet long.

In full ceremonial equipment, Barbee is a walking page of Third U. S. Army history; the mace is engraved with the Third Army's insignia and the names of historic battle sites.

The baldric, a colorful sash worn diagonally across the chest, is decorated with the names of Third Army's famous campaigns in World War II.

The bearskin busby topping the drum major's six-feet-four-inch frame is patterned after those worn by Buckingham Palace guards. A pair of white leather gloves, contrasting with the Army Band's striking blue uniforms, completes the ceremonial attire.

The equipment was specially made in England for the band.

Barbee's interest in music began when he was eight years old and he started taking piano lessons. Two years later he began playing the snare drums.

When he graduated from high school in 1966, he decided on a career in music. He majored in music for two years at Alabama College, Montevallo, Ala.

Two years later he travelled to Ft. McClellan, Ala., to audition for enlistment as an Army bandsman. Easily passing the auditions, he enlisted in 1968, and, after completing basic combat training at Ft. Benning, he began studies at the Armed Forces School of Music in Norfolk, Va.

GIs Donate Party Money

Helping fellow soldiers who might be short on cash was more important than partying to the noncommissioned officer candidates of 85th Co., The Candidate Bde., when they donated over $100 to Army-Emergency Relief.

After the party was over, they had $107.34 left. They considered redistributing the money or bolding another party, but decided it could be put to better use by soldiers in financial needloft [illegible]

Keeping Up With the Joneses

By Marian Jones

If you're a history buff (and even if you're not), take the tour of historical parts of Columbus offered by the Historic Columbus Foundation.

You might learn some things you didn't know about your adopted city. For instance, several old homes built before the Civil War have undergone the restoring process and are now filled with antiques of the time.

You get to see some of the older parts of the city and some of the founders' beautiful homes — all in comfortable buses and with an attractive guide to point out some of the more interesting buildings and anecdotes about some of Columbus' early settlers.

A high point of the tour is a visit to Springer Opera House which dates back to the decade following the Civil War.

Buses leave the Georgia Welcome Center on Wednesdays at 10 a.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m. The tour is two hours long and admissions is $2 for adults and $1 for students and servicemen in uniform.

LIVE AND LIVELY

Tonight and for the next four nights you can "feel groovey." In Marshall Auditorium tonight beginning at 7 p.m. the Third Army show "Feelin' Groovey" will give its second Benning performance.

These kids are professional performers and the show is lively and really moves along.

If you miss the show at Marshall the group will perform tomorrow night at Sand Hill Theater No. 3 at 7 p.m. and on Sunday they'll be at Theater No. 3 at 1:30 p.m. On Monday and Tuesday, you can catch them at Harmony Church Theater No. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

FOLK MUSIC

Don't forget the folk music concert tonght at 8 p.m. at Columbus College's Woodruff Gym. The concert will feature the area's leading guitarists and folk singers. Admission price is 75 cents.

TALENT CONTEST

There's some extra money available at the Kelly Hill Service Club tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m.

All you have to have is a talent of some kind, one that the judges think is good enough. All active duty soldiers are eligible to enter and the public is invited. Three $25 cash prizes will be awarded to the top winners.

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH"

A sure sign that Christmas is approaching is the scheduling of Handel's "Messiah." The first one we've heard about this year will be presented at Auburn University on Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Student Activities Building.

The Christmas oratorio will be performed by the Auburn University Concert Choir, the Auburn University Choral Union and the Auburn University Orchestra, supplemented by members of the Columbus Symphony and guest soloists.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR

You can do your Christmas shopping Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Main Officers Club. The public is invited to the Officers Wives Club annual Christmas bazaar where homemade and home baked items of all descriptions will be on sale. All proceeds will go to the OWC welfare fund.

ROCK MUSIC

This is really a different twist on an old subject. Beginning Thursday night at 8 p.m. at the Springer Opera House, a rock music version of Aesop's Fables will be presented. The show will run Dec. 4 and 5 with a matinee on Sunday, the 6th at 2:30 p.m. Admission charge is $1.

MOUNTAIN GREENERY

This is mostly for the ladies but there might be a few men interested also. If you would like to learn how to decorate your home for Christmas with greenery (most of it growing wild in the woods), Callaway Gardens is presenting an unusual course.

Called the "Broadleaf Evergreen Workshop" the course offers you a chance to learn how to make unusual decorations as well as meet some interesting people and have a lot of fun in the process.

The workshop begins with a reception at 8 p.m. Sunday at the Hollies Inn at Callaway and ends Monday afternoon. The admission charge is $1.

'GO-GO-GO ARMY'

Their "Go Army" pennant leaves no doubt about the loyalties of these 1st Air Cavalrymen. Even in the Republic of Vietnam interest in football is high and it will reach a peak Saturday when the Cadets of West Point take on Navy's Midshipmen in Philadelphia. Armed Forces Vietnam Network provides television replays of stateside games. The game will be televised in the Fort Benning - Columbus - Phenix City area at 1:30 p.m. on channel 9.

6th Bn. Wives See Dayroom

The monthly 6th Stu. Bn., TCB, Officer Wives Coffee was held in the 62nd Company dayroom.

Hostesses were Mrs. James C. Gorday, Mrs. Ronald Partain, Mrs. David Reimer and Mrs. Howard Bushnell.

Honored guests were Mrs. Grady W. Williams and Mrs. John R. Schumaker.

"Fall Friends" decorated the coffee room with pumpkins, a scarecrow and corn stalks. The centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums and nuts with a scarecrow and pumpkins in the center of them.

Mrs. Benjamin A. Mobley was presented an engraved tray by the Battalion ladies as a farewell token.

Christian Science Lecturer Talks on Changing World

Despite today's technological explosion "it's still the kind of thinking we do that determines the course of our lives and the freedom and peace of the world," said James Spencer, a Christian Science lecturer from Detroit, Mich., who spoke here.

The title of his lecture was "We Can Change Our World."

To illustrate how improved thinking, based on an understanding of God, can change lives for the better, Spencer told of being healed, through prayer, of an injury he received in a college football game.

When he lifted his thought to God not just to help and heal himself but to realize the truth about the other fellow and his relation to God, he was back on the field the next day," Spencer said, with a "100 per cent recovery of speed and ability."

A former Marine, now a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Spencer spoke in the Infantry Center Chapel.

Accompanied by his wife, he is presenting lectures for Christian Science churches in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Guatemala.

Spencer said, "In Christian Science, all discords are seen as false impressions or misconceptions and are dealt with as illusions from which men must be awakened."

He pointed out that Jesus referred to the impelling power of divine intelligence to change the world when he said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free (John 8:32)."

Bob Jones Civil War Film Set

A fast-moving Civil War film, "Red Runs the River," will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 4 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall. The showing will be open to the public at no charge.

The story is one of conflict — of brother against brother, of strong will against deep conviction. Central figures in the battle are Richard Stoddert Ewell and Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson, general of the Confederacy.

The principal characters in "Red Runs the River" are Southerners, but this is not a tale of the South. The film is more than a saga of the tragic "War Between the States." It is a moving personal drama of the warfare raging within the soul of a man.

Dr. Bob Jones, versatile president of Bob Jones University, plays the part of General Ewell, Jack Buttram is Jackson and Bob Jones III appears as the flamboyant cavalry officer "JEB" Stuart.

The 90-minute, color production has a cast of more than 600 students, faculty and staff of Bob Jones University.

Agency Offers Food Aid To Married Junior EM

The U.S Department of Agriculture noted this week that lower grade married servicemen in the Columbus area should take advantage of available US. Department of Agriculture (USDA) food assistance programs. Officials of USDA's food and nutrition service say married military men in the lower grades may be eligible for food aid because of low-income, yet not receive such assistance simply because they have not applied for it.

Residents of Lee County, Ala., Chattahoochee, Muscogee, Harris and Stewart Counties, Ga., receive USDA food assistance through the commodity distribution program, while in Russell County, Ala., low-income families are assisted through the food stamp program.

Under the commodity distribution program, eligible families receive monthly issuance of USDA donated foods to help supplement what they are able to buy at the grocery store.

Combined with their grocery purchases, the USDA-donated foods help the families to improve the nutritional balance of their diets for better health.

MOONWATCHERS AT CAPE KENNEDY
Anne Ealrick, Right, Stands With Friend

Fort Benning Girl Scout Views Apollo 12 Launch

By Sgt. Carol Aubin

"It was the greatest experience of my short life" claimed 16-year old Anne Ealick, daughter of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Frederick J. Ealick, following her three-day visit to Cape Kennedy for the Apollo 12 launch.

One of 130 Girl Scouts who viewed the Apollo Launch, Anne said, "It made me prouder than ever to be a Girl Scout."

The Girl Scouts came from all over the United States to watch the second manned moon trip as guests of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"We sat in the VIP bleachers in the NASA viewing area, and in addition to watching the Apollo 12 launch, we were only a few feet away from President Nixon," Anne explained. President Nixon was accompanied by Mrs. Nixon, honorary president of the Girl Scouts of the U.S., and Tricia Nixon, who is a former Girl Scout.

Prior to the launch, Anne said, "There was a tense atmosphere and we decided to sing Girl Scout and patriotic songs." A Secret Serviceman was sent by the President to tell the Girl Scouts how much their singing was enjoyed.

Anne represented the Concharty Council of Girl Scouts, Inc., and had been selected for her enthusiastic devotion to Girl Scouting.

'Homer' Will Tell Story of Boy Caught Up in Youth 'Revolution'

NEW YORK — "Homer," a Palomar Pictures presentation for Cinema Center Films, is currently in production on location in Schomberg, Ontario, it was announced by Jere Henshaw, vice president in charge of production, Cinema Center Films.

"HOMER" stars Don Scardino, the young actor acclaimed for his performance in the CBS TV Playhouse special, "The People Next Door," and Tisa Farrow, 17-year-old actress in her motion picture debut.

"HOMER" is the sensitive story of an 18-year-old boy growing up on a Wisconsin farm who becomes caught up in the "revolution" of today's youth. Finding himself alienated from his parents and the community, he realizes that he must seek life elsewhere.

The first time an American film production has been filmed in Canada with a Canadian crew, "HOMER" will be filmed entirely on location in the picturesque farm community of Schomberg and will be co-produced by Terry Dene and Steve North and directed by John Trent.

Warehouse Employe Picks Up Extra Cash

James M. Porter, a retired warrant officer employed as a warehouse supervisor for the Commissary Section (Quartermaster Services Branch), may be able to give a few hints on how to pick up a little extra spending money.

Over the past four years, Porter has submitted suggestions which have not only increased the efficiency of his section, but also saved the government $15,121.

Of 55 suggestions that he has submitted over that period, 31 have been adopted. This impressive record has netted him cash awards amounting to $1,035.

His latest adopted suggestion (for which he received $150) was concerned with the distribution of rations. Using the old method, it took four men approximately four hours to load rations by conveyor belt onto trucks for distribution to units.

197th Bde Wins Post Rifle and Pistol Matches

By Marc Reiff

The 197th Infantry Brigade's Rifle and Pistol teams made a shambles of the Post Championship this past week as they took 88 per cent of the trophies and shattered records, rewriting the books.

The 197th took the National Match Course by 40 points. Winning scores were as follows: Individual pistol championship 1582 points, Blue Rifle team-2454, Red Rifle team-2396, .22 caliber pistol team-1055, .45 caliber Aggregate team-1836.

Captain James H. Krilich set a new post individual rifle record by 150 points as he outdistanced his nearest rival by 50 points. The Red Rifle Team set a new post record by 400 points and the Blue team set the new record by 800 points.

As coach of the pistol team, CW2 Curtis Dukes set the example for his 7 man team as he won the .45 caliber rapid fire championship with a score of 186. In the pistol championship, the .22 and .45 match course were the same: 10 rounds of slow fire at 50 meters, 10 rounds of timed fire at 22 meters, and 10 rounds of rapid fire at 25 meters. Sgt. Perry won the Pistol Individual Championship.

The 197th took individual, aggregate and team championship, winning first place with both the rifle and pistol teams and also taking second place in the rifle championship. Of the 15 men on the rifle team, a majority are assigned to the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 1st Bn., 58th Inf., and the 2nd Bn. 10th Artly. The pistol team consisted of men primarily from the 4th Bn. 69th Armor, 197th Spt. Bn. and 1st Bn. 58th Inf. There were seven men on the pistol team.

The men have been together about a month, according to Krilich and they averaged about eight hours of practice time a day. Practicing at Easley Rifle Range, they easily mastered the different positions of the competition.

As the regular college football season comes to a close, traditional rivalries again move into the sport's spotlight.

Last week it was Harvard-Yale, Clemson-South Carolina and USC-UCLA. This week, classics like Alabama-Auburn, Georgia Tech-Georgia, and the all time rivalry, Army-Navy top the list of games.

This week Fort Benning's three general officers match their forecasting skills against the Bayonet staff which, this week, features Marian Jones, Sgt. Carol Aubin and the peerless (?) PFC Predicto (who, incidently, is in the running for Dahlonega Soldier of the Month).

We think we can guess how our prognosticators will forecast the Army-Navy game, but how about the other games.

(Last week Protégé and the Bayonet staff finished in a tie as both had 24-15 marks. For the season, the Bayonet is 4-2 1.)

Win Flyweight and Featherweight Titles

Two Fort Benning Men Are Third Army Champions

The fighting spirit of Fort Benning prevailed literally at the Third Army Novice Boxing Tournament held at Ft. Jackson Nov. 18 and 19.

Of 10 men representing the various weight classes who made the trip under the supervision of their coach Staff Sergeant Benny Hall, two emerged as champs while two more were runners-up.

In the flyweight division (112 lbs.) PFC Willie Bankston of Company C, 197th Support Battalion, was the champ while Sp4 Manuel Velasco of the 988th Military Police Company prevailed in the featherweight class (125 lbs.).

PFC Thomas Williams of Company B, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, was the runner-up in the light middleweight division (156 lbs.). Sp4 James Baysmore of MEDDAC took second place in the light welterweight class (139 lbs.).

The other six members of the team were: Sp4 Hector Rodriguez of Company B, 1st Battalion, Center Troop Command; PFC Willard Gaston of Company B, 43rd Engineers; Sp4 Wayne Brown of Company C, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry; Sp4 James Baldwin of the 72nd Engineers; Sp4 Lynn Eaves of Battery C, 7th Battalion, 18th Artillery; and Sp4 Hector Dominguez of Company A, 43rd Engineers.

In the semi-final round of the tournament Velasco was pitted against Tommy Hightower who was representing Fort Bragg. The official three-round event lasted less than one as Velasco and Hightower swung wild haymakers at each other for over a minute until the referee stopped the bout with the latter swaying groggily. Velasco thus advanced to the finals in his (featherweight) division.

In another semi-final match-up Benning's Tommy Williams met the host fort's Alfonso Wilson. In this closely fought bout, Williams showed himself to be quite adept at infighting, while Wilson found the mark fighting the open. However, Williams' punishing body blows proved the difference and gave him the victory.

James Baysmore and Willie Bankston also advanced to the finals by winning their respective semi-final bouts. The former defeated another Benning representative, Willard Gaston, on points, while Bankston beat another Third Army representative.

The finals on the following night saw two of Fort Benning's four finalists emerge as champions.

Willie Banston, a 112 pound flyweight, matched blows with Radames Ramsamy of the host team, Fort Jackson. The two displayed some fancy footwork and fancier punching ability, and each awarded a round. In the third and final round, Bankston found the range and outpunched his rival solidly. Consensus had it that it was the finest display of boxing in the tournament.

Manuel Velasco beat another host representative for the championship in the 125-pound featherweight class. As he had done the night before, Velasco came out hard and swung. He continued slugging, first trading, and finally wearing down his opponent who called it quits early in the second round. Thus the Benning representative won both his matches by TKO's.

At a banquet following the finals, presided over by Maj. Gen. James F. Hollingsworth, commanding general of Fort Jackson, Velasco, a native of the Bronx, N. Y., and Bankston, from Toledo, Ohio, received gold watches as first place prizes.

The runners-up, James Baysmore and Tommy Williams received pieces of engraved luggage while the rest of the members of the team each received a transistor radio.

Colonel Benny Hall, backed up by the team members, stressed the team spirit of the Benning representatives and had words of praise for all. The coach had his men together as a team only five days before the tournament.

COMPUTER CORNER ON SPORTS

By Bud Goode

One of the most important statistics in pro football which predicts your team's standing in the won-loss column at season's end is opponent's points per pass.

How well they defend against the bomb, intercept and knock down short passes, makes the defensive backfield the most important unit in the game. When they're awake.

The average AFL/NFL team earns three-quarters of a point (.75) each time it goes to the air. But there is a world of difference between the strong and weak teams on these two offensive and defensive statistics—points per pass and opponent's points per pass. The Sports Computer poured the current season stats into our Univac sports analyzer to measure these stats and the balance between them:

NFL	Points	Opponent's	Per Pass Pts./Pass Balance
Central
Minnesota	1.13	.35	.78
Green Bay	.58	.66	.92
Detroit	.86	.72	.14

Los Angeles	.94	.48	.46
Baltimore	.73	.57	.16

Cincinnati	1.02	.80	.22
Denver	.70	.70	.00

At the half-way mark last year, this balance between points per pass and opponent's points per pass predicted the divisional winners with 100% accuracy.

55 Horses and Riders Compete

Hunt Club Has Successful Meet

"A marvelous turn out and a great success", was the over-all opinion as approximately 55 horses and riders paraded in a grand finale to an all-day horse show.

The horse show, held at the Fort Benning Hunt Club on Marne Road, started at 9 a.m. and continued throughout the day as riders, young and old, participated in the various events.

The entire show was broken down into two separate competitions, English and Western. Each competition had separate classes in which the riders had to qualify.

Jeanette Andrews was awarded the trophy for the English champion, and Vickie Chapman was reserve champion.

Trophies were presented by Brig. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and Mrs. Berry.

Lt. Col. Sam Langley, former president of the Fort Benning Hunt Club and chairman of the horse show, said he was both "pleased and proud at the contestant and spectator turn out!"

Judges were Capt. Charles Grant, Western events, and Miss Dell Greenwall, English events. Announcer for the day-long show was Col. Charles Garwood.

At a business meeting held following the annual event, Lt. Col. Herman Wirth was elected Hunt Club president and Lt. Col. Franklin L. Wilson, vice president. A nine - man board of governors was also elected. These officers will serve for the 1970 calendar year.

The Fort Benning Hunt Club has another show scheduled Dec. 13, in which beginner students will show their riding skill. This show will also be open to public spectators and will be held at the Hunt Club.

The next "Open Horse Show" will be in the spring of 1970.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloek

Although the rabbit is usually rated as America's most hunted game animal, he ranks at the bottom of Georgia's five most popular species, which is still respectable popularity. In the 1967-68 season, 112,611 licensed Georgia hunters are estimated to have hunted rabbits 669,670 days, bagging 1,047,458.

During many seasons, the rabbit has been more popular, primarily in years when rabbit populations were higher, and before deer and squirrel populations increased to their present level.

But strangely enough, in the section of Georgia where rabbits are the most plentiful, they are the least popular with hunters. While rabbits are common in all parts of Georgia, they are the most numerous in South Georgia, especially in the upper coastal plain. Rabbits are somewhat less plentiful in the lower coastal plain and in the Piedmont section. In the mountains and Northwest Georgia's Limestone Valley and Lookout Plateau areas where rabbit hunting is most popular, rabbits are paradoxically in the shortest supply.

There are four distinct species of rabbits in Georgia. The most common of these is the Eastern cottontail, which is found in every Georgia county. Around Northwest Georgia and Middle Georgia's swamps and streams, a larger species occurs, the swamp rabbit. It is known locally as the cane-cutter or "duck". Rabbit because of its size. In the denser swamps of South Georgia and the Satilla Terrace down to the saltwater marshes, the cane cutter is replaced by the darker colored and much smaller marsh rabbit. The fourth species, the New England cottontail, is found only in the mountains of Northeast Georgia. About the same size as the marsh rabbit, it is similar in appearance to the Eastern cottontail, except for a black patch between his ears and his pinkish-buff tail.

Like quail, cottontails flourish best on farms with extensive areas of cultivated land interspersed with brushy piles and fairly open woods. Apparently the same decline in rowcropping which has caused a decline in Georgia's quail hunting is taking its toll of rabbits, especially in North and Middle Georgia. But at the same time that quail hunting is becoming more difficult in overgrown areas of South Georgia, rabbit hunting there is becoming more popular than it once was.

While rabbits can occasionally be walked up by one or more hunters on foot, the most popular form of hunting is with specially trained beagle dogs, a breed created for the purpose. Beagles make good rabbit dogs because of their clear and easy to follow bark, endurance and small size. Beagles run fast enough to give a rabbit a good chase, but slow enough to be unable to catch him before the hunter can get a shot.

Rabbits sometimes dive into holes or burrows in the ground to escape, but frequently they will circle back to approximately the same area where they were first jumped, offering the waiting hunter a chance on the return trip as he crosses an opening.

Because most rabbit hunting involved shooting at running targets, shotguns with number four to six shot are preferred over .22 rifles by most hunters. The little gun is excellent for persons keen-eyed enough to spot rabbits sitting in their beds before running or for a crack shot at moving targets.

Clothes for rabbit hunting should be the same as those worn by a quail hunter, including briar-proof pants for heavy cover, waterproof boots and a fairly light wool coat for long walking trips. While rabbits can be hunted at any time of the day, especially with dogs, they move around much more in the morning and late afternoon, leaving more scent trails for the dogs to find and follow.

Georgia rabbits in a few areas are subject to tularemia or "rabbit fever", trasmitted by spotted ticks which usually drop off rabbits for the winter after the first hard freeze. Since any infected rabbit will usually die within ten days, waiting until that long after the freeze is the simplest way to avoid tularemia, although thorough cooking destroys the germs. The season in Georgia usually opens on or around November 20, approximately the same as the quail season.

Although there are few rabbits found on most of Georgia's forested public hunting areas, obtaining permission to hunt rabbits on private land is fairly easy in most areas of the State, especially South Georgia.

Not being from the South, I know only what I read in the papers here about teams like Auburn, Tennessee, and Alabama. When Tennessee lost their first game, people said that they were still the best team in the country. They were unbeaten going into that game and the defeat was especially bitter for them.

There have been many upsets over the years and in the pro ranks they are somewhat far spaced but not unknown. In last years' Super Bowl, the Jets mauhandled a Colt team that was said to be unbeatable, at least by 9 tenths of the teams in either league. But the final score of 16 to 7 attested to the fact that Jets were better. Or were they? The Colts were 18½ point favorites but Joe Namath predicted his team would squelch this spread. In fact, his teammates were about the only ones who believed him. So how could the Colts lose?

In the 1964 Championship game, the Cleveland Browns shocked the Colts 27-0. The 79,544 fans who jammed Cleveland Stadium were a silent bunch, preparing to pray if necessary that the Colts would not totally humiliate their beloved Browns. Sitting through that scoreless first half I remember a growing feeling of optimism and hope inside of me. To hold the mighty Colts scoreless, and stop the fabulous Johnny Unitas was unheard of. The ringing of cheers greeted my heroes as they prepared to do battle in the second half. Twenty-seven points were scored in that second half and all by the Browns. They were so fired up that the 30-degree temperature was not even noticed. In fact I swear that there was smoldering steam all around the players, they were that hot to win. Unitas was the supreme quarterback that year, so how could his team lose?

What this is all leading up to, as many of you might have guessed, is my column last week, dipicting the Ohio State Buckeyes as the greatest team of all time. I might have been wrong about that but I still maintain that they by far outdistance the other teams this season. Sure, they were beaten by a fired up Michigan team last week but this Michigan team could not do that again if their lives depended upon it. The Buckeyes were overconfident, as the other examples I have shown. They had no trouble humiliating their opponents over the previous season and Michigan had lost two games. But Michigan did not have its feet on the ground all day. They were high and I mean high.

Sports car racing fans will have a special treat in store for them this holiday weekend. Top cars and drivers from every section of the country will meet at Daytona Beach, Fla., for the 1969 version of the American Road Race of Champions (ARRC).

This year a large group of Fort Benning personnel will be going down to both spectate and officiate at the Sports Car Club of America's (SCCA) annual "world series" of amateur sports car racing. Chavaga Region SCCA won't have any entries in this year's run off, but with the recent addition of a Formula Vee to the club's stable, who knows, maybe next year?

Here's how the ARRC invitations go out. There are 21 classes of car competion. These all run on road courses in meets rated as either "regionals," local meets, or "nationals" in which points can be won toward titles in one SCCA's seven divisions and an invitation to the ARRC. Winners in the 21 ARRC classes become the "SCCA National Champions."

In other news, Racing Around will cover in depth the final Nascar Grand National race at College Station, Tex. on Dec. 7. The Texas 500 will be run at the new Texas International Speedway with a purse totalling approximately $100,000. There was some doubt as to the size of the purse, but at this time it appears to be a realistic figure.

Lee Roy Yarbrough, Nascars all time one-season money champ, will be looking for his eight super-speedway win of the year — which, by the way, would double the previous record of four, set by Cale Yarborough in 1968.

Don't forget that Dodge is looking for a second super-speedway victory, and the full factory team of Daytona's will be at T.I.S. to challenge Ford's season-long supremacy. This will also be the first time that any West Coast Nascar drivers enter a Grand National race in force.

ON THE SCENE: This Sunday will be the final USAC (United States Auto Club) race of the season, the Riverside 300. Mario Andretti has already clinched his third USAC championship so he will probably only be trying to finish ahead of Dan Gurney, who has won the two previous Riverside 300s. "Daring Dan" is currently fourth in the USAC point standings. A win would give him third in the USAC totals and the right to have number 3 on his Indy racing car next season.

The latest word about the Roger Penske switch to American Motors is that either Peter Revson or Ed Leslie will co-drive with number one honcho, Mark Donohue in the red, white and Sunoco blue Javelins. American Motors was very upset with their 1969 fourth place in the Trans-Am series. After a good start in '68, they lost their competive edge against this year's factory Mustangs and Penske's Camaros.

Roger Penske, who knows where the money's at switched to AMC after two Chevy Trans-Am Championships because Chevy was not prepared to give the support needed to field a '70 Trans-Am Championship.
