West Point Lake is managed by the Army Corps of Engineers. The lake covers more than 25,000 acres and has 525 miles of shoreline. It's perfect for fishing, swimming, boating and more.

The lazy days of summer aren't over just yet. There's still time to spend a few quiet days on the water. A drive up I-185 north takes you to West Point Lake, and with more than 25,000 surface acres of water to play on, it's no wonder it's a summertime favorite for area outdoor enthusiasts.

The Army Corps of Engineers manages West Point Lake, which extends 35 miles along the Chattahoochee River on the Alabama-Georgia state line. Much of the lake is located in Georgia, between West Point and LaGrange.

Hardwood and pine forests line the lake's 525 miles of shoreline, which makes a perfect setting for outdoor activities during any season.

Dating back to the early 60s, the lake has a practical purpose, too. Under the Congressional Flood Control Act of 1962, the West Point Dam Project was initiated. The project allows flood control, hydroelectric power, navigation, and fish and wildlife development. For example, the dam controls flooding of the river by managing seasonal variations in water flow, various watercrafts navigate along the Apalachicola-Chattahoochee-Flint Waterway, which runs 260 river miles from Apalachicola, Fla., to Columbus, and the powerhouse's three generators produce enough power yearly to serve 24,000 homes.

The lake has more than 35 recreation areas, including parks, marinas and campgrounds. Amenities differ from one area to the next, but most have boat ramps, drinking water, rest rooms and picnic sites. Some have ball fields, basketball courts, playgrounds, shower areas, tennis courts and nature trails.

A few of the sites require a nominal entrance or parking fee, usually $5 per car.

Be sure to check with the Army Corps of Engineers before you set out, because some areas are not open year-round.

BURN AFTER READING

Burn After Reading is a comedy from Academy Award winners Joel and Ethan Coen and stars George Clooney, John Malkovich, Frances McDormand, Brad Pitt and Tilda Swinton. The film is rated R for language, sexual content and violence.

RIGHTEOUS KILL

A pair of veteran New York City police detectives are on the trail of a vigilante serial killer. After 30 years as partners in the pressure cooker environment of the NYPD, highly decorated Detectives David Fisk and Thomas Cowan should be ready for retirement, but aren't

Before they can hang up their badges, they are called in to investigate the murder of a notorious pimp, which appears to have ties to a case they solved years before. Like the original murder, the victim is a suspected criminal whose body is found accompanied by a four line poem justifying the killing.

When additional crimes take place, it becomes clear the detectives are looking for a serial killer, one who targets criminals that have fallen through the cracks of the judicial system.

His mission is to do what the cops can't do on their own — take the culprits off the streets for good. The similarities between the recent killings and their earlier case raise a nagging question: Did they put the wrong man behind bars?

Righteous Kill is an action thriller starring Robert De Niro, Al Pacino, Curtis Jackson, Brian Dennehy and John Leguizamo. It is rated R for violence, language, sexuality and drug use.

THE WOMEN

In New York City's modern whirl of fashion and publishing, Mary Haines seems to have it all — a beautiful country home, a rich financier husband, an adorable 11-year-old daughter and a part-time career creating designs for her father's venerable clothing company.

Her best friend, Sylvie Fowler, leads another enviable life — as a happily single editor of a prominent fashion magazine, a possessor of a huge closet of designer clothes and a revered arbiter of taste and style poised on New York's cutting edge.

But when Mary's husband enters into an affair with Crystal Allen, a sultry "spritzer girl" lurking behind the Saks Fifth Avenue perfume counter, all hell breaks loose. Mary and Sylvie's relationship is tested to the breaking point while their tight-knit circle of friends, including mega-mommy Edie Cohen and author Alex Fisher, all start to question their own friendships and romantic relationships as well.

The Women stars Meg Ryan, Annette Bening, Eva Mendes, Debra Messing and Jada Pinkett-Smith. It is rated PG-13 for sex-related material, language, drug use and smoking.

TYLER PERRY'S THE FAMILY THAT PREYS

Wealthy socialite Charlotte Cartwright and her dear friend Alice Pratt, a working class woman of high ideals, have enjoyed a lasting friendship throughout many years.

Suddenly, their lives become mired in turmoil as their adult children's extramarital affairs, unethical business practices and a dark paternity secret threaten to derail family fortunes and unravel the lives of all involved.

Meanwhile, Alice's other daughter Pam, a kind but no nonsense woman married to a hard working construction worker, tries to steer the family in a more positive direction.

Charlotte and Alice decide to take a breather from it all by making a cross-country road trip in which they rediscover themselves and possibly find a way to save their families from ruin.

The Family that Preys is a comedy/drama that stars Alfre Woodward, Sanaa Lathan, Kathy Bates and Rockmond Dunbar. It is rated PG-13 for sexual references and violence.

BANGKOK DANGEROUS

A cold-blooded hitman heads to Bangkok to pull off four jobs, and winds up falling in love with a local girl and bonding with his errand boy.

Bangkok Dangerous stars Nicholas Cage. It is rated R for violence, language and sexuality.

TRAITOR

When straight arrow FBI agent Roy Clayton heads up the investigation into a dangerous international conspiracy, all clues seem to lead back to former U.S. Special Operations officer, Samir Horn.

A mysterious figure with a web of connections to terrorist organizations, Horn has a knack for emerging on the scene just as a major operation goes down. The interagency task force looking into the case meets with Carter, a veteran CIA contractor who seemingly has his own agenda and Max Archer, a fellow FBI agent.

Traitor stars Don Cheadle, Archie Panjabi, Guy Pearce, Lorena Gale and Raad Rawi. It is rated PG-13 for violence and language.

THE HOUSE BUNNY

Shelley Darlington has lived at the Playboy mansion for the last nine years. She is Hef's favorite and acts like a den mother to the other girls. On her birthday, she is unceremoniously evicted from Hef's pad for being too old.

Homeless and without essential skills, Shelley wanders around L.A. until she finds a new job — the housemother at the most unpopular sorority on campus.

The House Bunny stars Anna Faris, Emma Stone, Rumer Willis, Kat Dennings and Katherine McPhee. It is rated PG-13 for sex-related humor, nudity and language.

Welcome to the Infantry Warfighting Conference

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

It is my pleasure to welcome you to Fort Benning and Columbus for the 2008 Infantry Warfighting Conference. Your attendance is of valued importance as we consider this Conference to be mission essential to the Infantry and to the Army.

The Conference will provide a great opportunity to discuss recent transitions in our Infantry formations, and how to train the force in the Contemporary Operational Environment. As a change from recent years this conference will be conducted in three days.

We will continue the tradition of arrival and registration followed by the reception at Riverside on Day 1; the National Infantry Association has also scheduled an optional Golf Tournament on that day.

Presentations from some of the Army's top leadership and breakout sessions will be executed on the following two days. We will start Day 2 with an update on the Infantry, updates from key senior leaders, and executive sessions to discuss selected topics and issues amongst the senior officer and noncommissioned officers in attendance.

Following lunch we will have an update on Maneuver Center of Excellence by Brig. Gen. Don Campbell, Chief of Armor and lessons learned from IBCT, HBCT, and SBCT commanders with their command sergeants major. Day 2 will end with the annual Doughboy Dinner and Award Ceremony with presentations to the 2008 recipients, retired Gen. Hugh Shelton and retired Command Sgt. Maj. Gary Littrell.

We will start Day 3 with updates from the three combat training centers (CTCs) on how the force is trained for the Contemporary Operational Environment. This presentation will be followed by an update on future Infantry systems. After lunch we will host breakout sessions covering a host of topics.

Fort Benning provides our Army the best trained, equipped, and led Soldiers in the world. Your participation will add to the training and leadership of Infantrymen today, and in the future. If we can do anything to make your visit more pleasant or productive, please let the Conference Operations Cell know by contacting them at 706-545-5868 or 706-545-8528.

Follow Me!

Gen. Walter Wojdakowski - Chief of Infantry.

Future Combat System program to deliver new technologies to Infantry

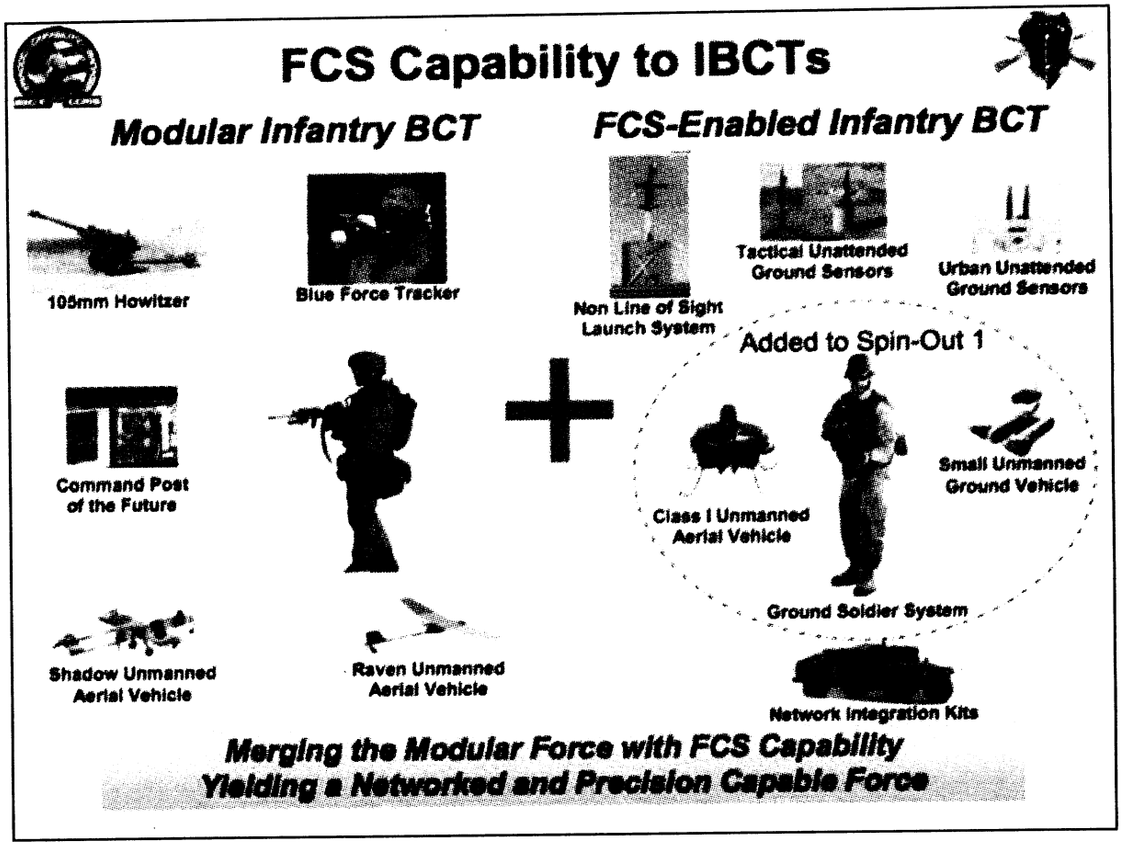
CAPABILITIES DEVELOPMENT AND INTEGRATION DIRECTORATE
Jeff Arneson

The Future Combat Systems program, the centerpiece of Army modernization, recently refocused its efforts to deliver much needed capabilities to the Infantry Brigade Combat Teams.

From inception, the FCS program focused on developing a heavy formation built around information and technology dominance. In today's operating environment the IBCT is the most numerous, deployable and adaptable combat formation. Combat operations in Iraq and Afghanistan demand the flexibility that IBCTs provide. Adjusting the FCS program in support of IBCTs supports the Army's greatest need across the operating force.

FCS spinouts provide capabilities that meet many of the requirements IBCT commanders have identified as critical to mission success. These technologies include: a Non Line-of-Sight Launch System providing the commander with a long-range precision attack capability; Tactical and Urban Ground Sensors, Small Unmanned Ground Vehicles, and Class I Unmanned Aerial Vehicles providing enhanced intelligence and early warning capabilities; and vehicle network kits, which link future command and control capabilities to current BCT vehicles. In addition the Ground Soldier System and the Ground Soldier Ensemble, separate Army programs, will be accelerated and delivered to IBCTs providing Soldiers and leaders with access to the future battle command network as part of the spinout strategy. Soldiers are the heart of the Army.

These FCS technologies will continue to make the American Soldier the dominant force on the battlefields of today and tomorrow.



The Fort Benning lead for this effort is the TRADOC Capability Manger for the Infantry Brigade Combat Team / Close Combat Missile Systems (TCM IBCT/CCMS). TCM IBCT/CCMS will coordinate planning, experimentation, and fielding efforts closely to ensure the units and Soldiers understand the equipment and can employ them effectively in combat. IBCTs will begin receiving the new technologies in 2011 and the current plan calls for all 43 IBCTs to receive them by 2025.

Shelton

Retired Gen. Henry H. Shelton will accept the Doughboy Award on the 45th anniversary of the beginning of his military career, which started at Fort Benning.

"I am deeply humbled and honored to receive the 2008 Doughboy Award. I am indebted to thousands of Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines and Coast Guardsmen for the successes I have enjoyed. In essence, I am accepting this award on their behalf," Shelton said.

The Doughboy Awards Dinner is Tuesday at the Columbus Convention and Trade Center.

"Carolyn and I spent the first night in our new home in Camellia Apartments, just outside the front gate, and I served in the 2nd Infantry Division for the next two years," Shelton said. "Over the years, we returned to Fort Benning on several occasions, and it always felt like we were returning home."

Born in Tarboro, N.C., he received a bachelor's degree in textiles from North Carolina State University and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Infantry through the Reserve Officer Training Corps.

During his career, Shelton championed a number of landmark quality-of-life initiatives, including the largest military pay raise in 18 years, pay table and bonus reform and critical improvements in both retirement and health care programs. He improved the readiness and retention of the force while simultaneously crafting Joint Vision 2020 — the roadmap for the future joint force.

"I have been very proud, on many occasions, of the accomplishments of troops serving under my command over the years," Shelton said. "Perhaps the single greatest accomplishment was getting $112 billion added to the 2000 defense budget to fix our armed forces readiness and pushing through the Tricare for Life program to take care of our men and women in uniform and the retirees who dedicated their lives to the service of our nation."

"My advice to young Infantrymen today would be that there is not a more noble profession than the one you are entering, and to strive to be a person of integrity and character," Shelton said. "You can't be a great leader without being a good person.

"Take care of your troops and their families — they will enable you to accomplish things you never dreamed possible," said Shelton.

Currently, Shelton is on the board of directors for Anheuser Busch Companies, Inc. Red Hat and Ceramic Products Corporation. He also sits on the boards of the following private companies: CoVant, AT Solutions, MIC Industries and is chairman of the board of advisors for the O'Gara Group. In addition, he serves as executive director of the General Hugh Shelton Leadership Center at North Carolina State University and as Director of the Hugh and Carolyn Shelton Military Neurotrauma Foundation.

Shelton holds a master's degree from Auburn University and has attended Harvard University, the Air Command and Staff College and the National War College. He has been decorated for distinguished service by numerous military and civilian organizations in the United States and overseas.

Among his many military awards, Shelton received four Defense Distinguished Service Medals, two Army Distinguished Service Medals, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal for Valor, and the Purple Heart. He was decorated by 16 foreign governments. In 2001, he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II.

Highlights of his civilian awards include the Charlotte N.C. World Affairs Council World Citizen Award for 2002, North Carolina's highest Award for Public Service, the Eisenhower Award from the Business Executives for National Security, the American Academy of Achievement's Golden Plate Award, Intrepid Freedom Award and recognition as National Father of the Year, among others.

For his service to his country, the 107th Congress awarded the Congressional Gold Medal to Shelton, Sept. 19, 2002.

"It is a great feeling and a distinct honor to be recognized for the work I did in the Army — 20 years after I retired," Littrell said.

In 1972, both Littrell, then a sergeant first class, and Shelton, a captain, served together as Ranger Training Brigade instructors at the Ranger Camp in Eglin, Fla. He was inducted into the Ranger Hall of Fame in July 1993.

Littrell was born in Henderson, Ky., Oct. 26, 1944. He attended Arsenal Technical High School in Indianapolis, and the University of El Paso in Texas. His military education included Airborne School, Ranger School, Air Assault School and Sergeants Major Academy.

Littrell said he loves to speak to high school students and young Soldiers about life and the Army.

"They are serving in the best military we have ever had," he said. "It's the best trained and equipped."

He has traveled to Afghanistan four different times during the last couple of years to speak with a military police battalion and plans on going back every year until all the Soldiers are home.

"Keep yourselves as ready as you can be; be careful and always take care of your buddy," Littrell told a group of Soldiers during his last trip to Afghanistan. He makes the three-week trip to boost the morale of the troops and to let them know that their service is appreciated.

Littrell enlisted into the Army in 1961, serving more than 22 years in the Infantry and attained the command sergeant major rank Aug. 29, 1982. He served at Fort. Ord, Calif.; Fort Campbell, Ky.; Fort Stewart, Ga.; Fort Bliss, Texas; Fort Carson, Colo.; Okinawa; Panama; Dominican Republic; and the Republic of Vietnam.

Littrell retired in October 1983. In 1986, he began a second profession as a veterans' service officer. He has worked with the Paralyzed Veterans of America and the Florida Department of Veterans Affairs. He was the Veterans Affairs officer supervisor for the Florida Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center, Bay Pines, Fla., until November 1993 when he accepted the position of patient relations specialist at the James A. Haley Veterans' Hospital, Tampa, Fla. He retired from the hospital in July 1998.

He served as vice-president of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society from 2001 through 2003 and was elected to two terms as society president from 2003 through September 2007. He serves on the society's board.

Littrell's military awards and decorations include the Medal of Honor, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal, Purple Heart, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Expeditionary Medal Dominican Republic, Vietnam Service Medal, Noncommissioned Officer Professional Development Ribbon, Army Service Ribbon, Overseas Ribbon, Republic of Vietnam Cross of Gallantry, Republic of Vietnam Ranger Badge, Ranger Tab, Master Parachutist Badge and Air Assault Badge.

The 90th anniversary of World War I and Camp Benning

U.S. ARMY INFANTRY BRANCH HISTORIAN
David S. Stieghan

While the Infantry School traces its continuous lineage to the School of Musketry founded in Monterey, Calif., in 1907, Camp Benning was created as a direct result of the need to prepare Doughboys for combat in World War I. In 2008, we commemorate the 90th anniversary of the combat participation of the United States in Europe and Asia in "The War to End All Wars," and the establishment of The Infantry School at Camp Benning near Columbus in 1918.

It is fitting that we remember that only one Doughboy is still with us out of more than 4 million who put on olive drab wool uniforms — Sgt. Frank Buckles of West Virginia. We remember him and his comrades who have "gone west" through the Doughboy Awards presented each year during the Doughboy Dinner each year during the Infantry Warfighting Conference.

What caused the U.S. Army to move this school to Columbus at the height of war and why was the school made permanent after only a three-week existence in tents and mud?

When thinking of the Great War, as World War I was called until World War II, the expression "the first modern war" comes to mind. The introduction in substantial numbers of new weapons: airplanes, submarines, tanks, poison gas and much more, are the first thought. However, many other lesser-known weapons and technology recently introduced on the battlefield made a profound impact on combat at the Infantry regiment level and below.

With the stroke of a pen, the standard U.S. Army Infantry company expanded from 100 to 259 men, now organized in four rifle platoons and a headquarters platoon. Each of these rifle platoons of 59 men was led by a lieutenant, with a principal NCO assistant, so the new positions of permanent platoon leader and platoon sergeant were created. The rifle squad transformed into an eight man team of seven privates with a corporal as squad leader. Two squads were designated a section and were led by a sergeant.

Divided into two "half platoons," the men in the First Half Platoon were assigned to two- to four-man teams and groups, using new weapons and tools to attack and defend in either trench or open warfare. Though almost every Infantry Soldier still carried a rifle, a number of new weapons were grouped with specialists who received extensive training in their use. The hand grenade throwers, or hand bombers, returned to the battlefield after an absence of almost 200 years. Rifle grenade cups that locked onto the end of service rifles were capable of launching fragmenting explosives almost 300 yards. The new automatic rifles: Lewis Guns, Chauchats, or the new Browning Machine Rifles (later, Browning Automatic Rifle, or BAR), provided crew-served rapid-fire weapons that one Soldier could carry and fire while crossing open country or flanking attackers from hidden positions.

The Second Half Platoon contained two squads with only rifles and bayonets. These transformed platoons were now machine-gun killing machines designed to return infantry movement to the battlefield. As the Doughboys arrived in increasing numbers along the Western Front, first the Germans, and then the Allies, left the shelter of the trenches and regained open warfare initiative the last six months of the war. The Germans produced a total of twenty tanks of all types during the war and the Allies never had enough armored vehicles to force a complete breakthrough. The return to battlefield mobility was achieved through the use of infantry fire and maneuver and coordinated indirect fire artillery.

In addition to these new weapons at the platoon level, the battalion and regiment fielded increasing numbers of heavy machine guns, mortars, and portable trench artillery. Soldiers began talking on field telephones and stringing communication wire. Each squad made certain that it assaulted across No-Man's-Land carrying at least one pair of heavy wire cutters to get through the multiple belts of reinforced obstacles — often flowing with strong electric current. Messages were transmitted by runner, carrier pigeon or flare gun — the portable field radio was introduced in the next war. Each leader had to "read" maps with grids marked in the French metric system complete with contour lines. Since the landscape usually looked like the surface of the moon following almost four years of artillery bombardment, each officer carried a marching compass and learned pace counts and how to turn azimuths. Because of aerial observation from airplanes or balloons, camouflage became three-dimensional and major troop movements took place at night. It was now acceptable for a man to wear a watch on a bracelet on his wrist, rather than carry it in a pocket, because of the necessity of accurate coordination with other units and artillery. Soldiers of the U.S. Army carried a variety of weapons into combat: five rifles, four pistols, five types of trench knives, three automatic rifles and three heavy machine guns. In 1917, each U.S. infantry company was armed only with 99 bolt action rifles with bayonets and one Model 1911 Colt Pistol for the company commander. Now, each platoon was trained by Allied or newly qualified American instructors in each of these weapons or techniques. Remember, all tasks had to be performed in the presence of actual poison gas on the battlefield.

When the United States declared war on Germany and the other Central Powers in April 1917, the Regular Army and Federalized National Guard units had just withdrawn from the Punitive Expedition in Mexico and the border. The School of Musketry, then located at Fort Sill, Okla., with the Artillery's School of Fire, resumed classes for a few weeks until the United States entered a war in progress. Beginning with around 128,000 Soldiers in the Regulars in 1917, the Army swelled to over 4 million Doughboys within 18 months. It would take time to build new camps, induct and train recruits, and manufacture uniforms and weapons. But, it would take more than a year to prepare a cadre beyond the few available Allied instructors to prepare this mass of civilians to go "over the top" in Europe.

The School of Musketry at Fort Sill became The Infantry School of Arms on July 23, 1917. As the Artillery's School of Fire grew, the units that became the 35th Division of the Kansas and Missouri National Guard arrived to organize and train at the same location. Soon, the infantry training cadre was crowded out of Fort Sill. First, the Machine Gun School transferred to Camp Hancock at Augusta, Ga., followed by the Small Arms Firing School shifting to Camp Perry, Ohio. The last of The Infantry School of Arms cadre to leave Fort Sill headed to a new location on the outskirts of Columbus. With about 10 days notice, among the mud and piles of newly cut lumber, a new army training facility was carved from the woods east of Columbus on Macon Road. After the daughter of a local hero, Confederate Gen. Henry Lewis Benning, raised the first flag at the new camp of tents and tarpaper shanties it was announced that the new facility was named for her father — Camp Benning. Less than a month later, the fighting ended on the Western Front with an armistice on Nov. 11, 1918. The end of the World War ended the construction of Camp Benning — several times. But the cadre of the new camp and other stalwarts in the Army fought successfully to keep a separate Infantry school alive.

The earliest known photograph of Camp Benning made as cadre from the Infantry School at Fort Sill began to arrive in October 1918. Note the tents, tarpaper shacks and the supply wagon.

National Infantry Museum set to open in spring

NATIONAL INFANTRY FOUNDATION
Cyndy Cerbin

In six short months, a national spotlight will shine on Columbus and Fort Benning as the new, world-class National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center opens to Soldiers, veterans, their families and everyone who appreciates the sacrifices Infantrymen have made and continue to make in protecting our nation's freedoms.

Infantrymen have earned more than half of the Medals of Honor awarded and have suffered nearly 80 percent of all combat deaths. Yet nowhere in the world is there such a monument dedicated solely to them. Americans outside the military have little knowledge of the Infantry's glorious history, which dates back to 1775, even before the birth of our nation. This museum was created to give the Infantryman his due.

The National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center is a 190,000-square-foot brick and granite structure nestled in the pines and hardwood outside the old main entrance of Fort Benning. It is the centerpiece of Patriot Park, a 200-acre tract that includes a new parade field, stadium, an authentic World War II Company Street, a memorial walk of honor and, eventually, a museum honoring those who have served in the Armor Corps. Adjacent land is available for new hotels, conference centers and restaurants.

Inside the museum there are six era galleries telling the Infantry story from pre-Revolutionary times to the present. A special gallery pays tribute to the wives, parents and children of Infantrymen, whose sacrifices are no less than those of the Soldier. The Fort Benning Gallery illustrates how the Army turns a boy into a warrior. It also commemorates the unique relationship Fort Benning has shared with its host city, Columbus, for 90 years. The era galleries include immersion experiences, where visitors will feel as if they are part of the battle, and simulator attractions, where they can experience jumping from a plane or firing weapons from a Bradley Fighting Vehicle.

In addition, the museum will feature a first-class restaurant and lounge, a large gift store and the area's only 3-D IMAX Theatre®. The museum's grand hall can be rented for social occasions and there is ample classroom space for school groups.

Alongside the museum, connecting it with the new stadium and parade field, is Heritage Walk. This flag-lined, 20-foot-wide path will give permanent recognition to any individual who has served our country or to those who support them. Commemorative gray granite pavers for yourself or a loved one can be purchased for $250 each. To request an order form, call the National Infantry Foundation at 706-653-9234, or visit its booth at the 2008 Infantry Warfighting Conference.

This $100 million project began with the dreams of a handful of dedicated and passionate Infantrymen and civic leaders more than 10 years ago. On March 20, 2009, they'll see their dream realized when the ribbon is cut on the new National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center. The grand opening events will draw guests from all over the world. The festivities will begin with a graduation of new Infantry Soldiers. The five-acre parade field, seeded with soil from the battlefields of each of our nation's wars, reinforces the significance of the legacy these young men have just joined. After the ceremony, the public will be invited to help celebrate the new museum's opening.

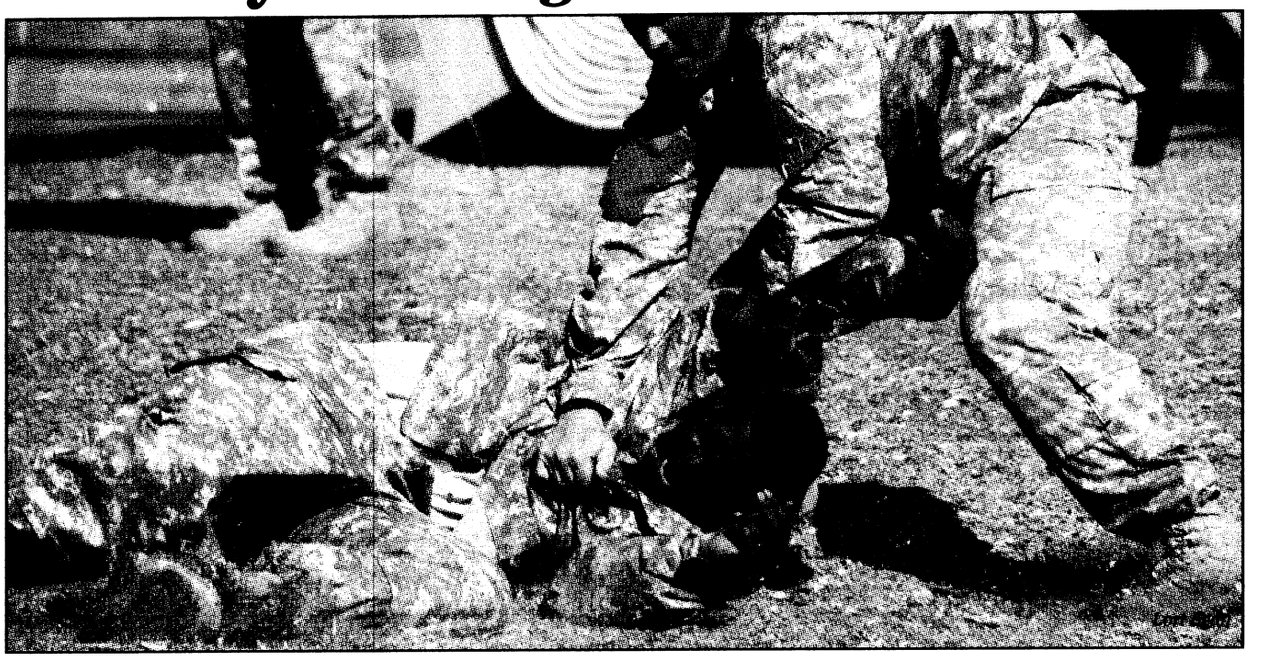
Infantry training



Ranger cadre demonstrate hand-to-hand combat skills during a Rangers in Action. Ranger Training Brigade is just one of the Army schools that prepare Infantrymen to carry the fight to the enemy.
"Our nation's enemy does not fear our equipment or technology, he fears the Soldier on the ground. Infantrymen are the lifeblood of our Army and must be agile, adaptive, and absolutely lethal. The Infantry Center is committed to providing the tough, realistic, and relevant training our Soldiers and leaders deserve," said Command Sgt. Maj. Joe Ulibarri, U.S. Army Infantry Center command sergeant major.

The Fort Benning goals are to produce the best-trained and equipped Soldiers in the world; to facilitate modularity to complete the CSA's vision; to transition modular maneuver forces into the future; to support Future Combat Systems development and spin out technology integration; to implement Soldier as a System (SaaS) as a means to develop requirements and equip Soldiers; to transform USAIC and USAARMC into a Maneuver Center of Excellence; and, to improve quality of life for Soldiers, Civilians, and family members who live and work on Fort Benning.

DFMWR offers refund for canceled concert

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The cost of tickets purchased for Saturday's rained out Army Concert will be refunded.

Safety was the reason for the decision to cancel the show, said Shannon Poole, marketing director for the Directorate of Family, Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

"There was significant lightning," she said. "There was no place to take cover on the field. We felt it was the safest thing to do."

People who bought tickets online from Ticketmaster will receive an automatic refund to the debit or credit card they used. Those who bought them in person at a Ticketmaster outlet must return to the outlet to be reimbursed.

Tickets were also on sale at different locations on Fort Benning. Refunds are available for individuals who purchased tickets on post at the Directorate of Family, Morale, Welfare and Recreation headquarters, Building 2783 on Eckel Avenue.

The office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Basic training Soldiers who bought tickets on Sand Hill started receiving refunds Wednesday.

"This is the first time we have ever had to cancel the concert due to weather, since it started five years ago," Poole said.

They couldn't reschedule the concert since the headliners, Grand Funk Railroad and Bowling for Soup, are booked, Poole said, but they will keep them in mind for future concerts on post.

House of Heroes:

'Biggest blessing I have ever had'

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

A team of about 30 NCOs with the 11th Engineer Battalion arrived at Lillian Hill's Columbus home Sept. 4 with lawn mowers, tools, doors, new railings and paint. They were on a mission to help the widow of a veteran through House of Heroes, a nonprofit organization that repairs houses of retired military and public service veterans and their spouses.

In her early 20s, Buena Vista native Lillian met the late Louis Hill at Fort Benning. In her 25 years of marriage to him, she traveled to Germany, France, Chicago and Maryland. After Louis retired as a sergeant first class, the couple settled in Columbus.

It's been five years since Louis died.

"I miss him keeping things straight around the house," Lillian said. "He was a handyman."

Whether it was house repairs, yard work or car work, Louis did it.

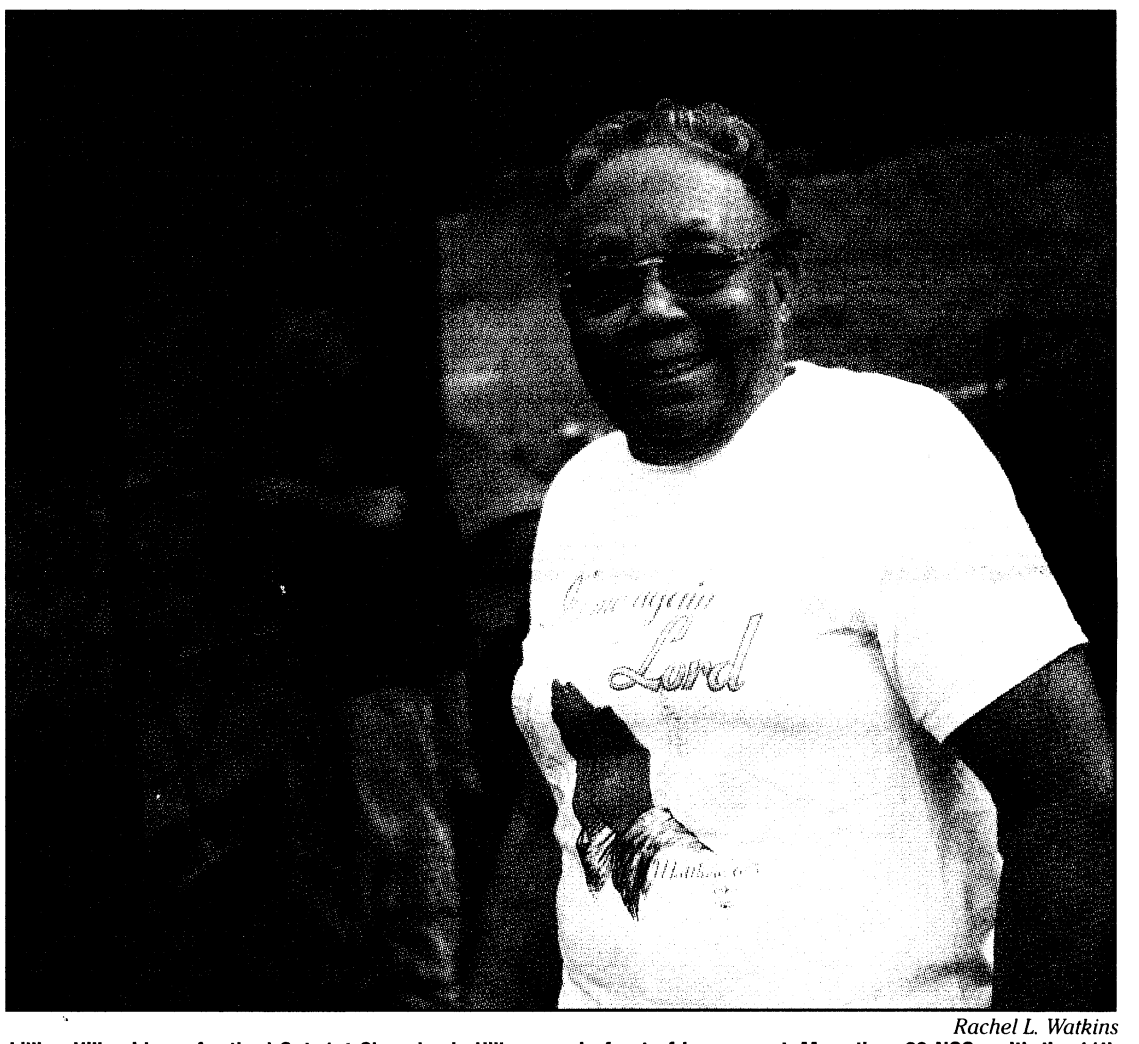
But now, the grass has grown tall, the leaves have collected in the gutter and miscellaneous items — chairs, plywood and an old lawn mower — are scattered on the carport, and the trim on the house was faded.

The 11th Engineer Battalion cleared out the carport, mowed the lawn, painted the house trim, installed a new door and porch railing and cleaned out the gutters.

"House of Heroes is the biggest blessing I have ever had," Lillian said. "I am so thankful because there are some repairs I can't do on my own."

Veterans and their families deserve the help, said Sgt. 1st Class Jose Batista of the 11th Engineer Battalion.

"Veterans are the foundation of America," Batista said. "They sacrificed so much so we could have our freedom and they deserve thanks for all of their hard work."



Rachel L. Watkins

Lillian Hill, widow of retired Sgt. 1st Class Louis Hill, poses in front of her carport. More than 30 NCOs with the 11th Engineer Battalion came to her house to pressure wash, clean out the gutters, clean the carport, and install new railings and doors. The work was done through House of Heroes, a nonprofit organization that repairs houses of retired military and public service veterans and their spouses.

No matter what generation, the Army is one big family, it's important to stick together, Batista said.

House of Heroes has repaired 275 houses since November 1999. Throughout September, volunteers will repair as many as 45 houses. For more information, to volunteer or to apply for help, go to http://www.houseofheroes.org.

Fort Benning introduces alternate work schedule

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Fort Benning initiated an alternate work schedule for Department of the Army Civilians July 22. The schedule is made up of eight nine-hour work days and one eight-hour work day, totaling 80 hours every two weeks.

"You essentially get a three-day weekend out of the deal, which is good for morale," said Col. Thomas Macdonald, the post garrison commander. "When morale is higher, you tend to get a better product out of people."

It also takes away one day of commuting every two weeks. Fewer cars on the road means a savings in gas for employees, reduced traffic congestion and fewer accidents, Macdonald said.

"We've started a lot more construction with the Maneuver Center of Excellence," he said. "(AWS) reduces the amount of traffic at a given point in time during the week. By spreading out everybody's schedules, you put less vehicles on the road and (have) more people staying in their offices longer. That also allows you to have a longer period of time that your office can be operational, because you have an extended work day for some people."

Carole Ann Jones, director of Resource Management used to keep her office open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Now, it's open an hour earlier and an hour later, which is good for customers, Jones said.

Switching to AWS is an employee choice. They can return to a regular work day schedule if the alternate schedule doesn't suit them,

AWS helps traffic congestion, environment

More people working alternate work schedules means reduced traffic congestion and cleaner air for Fort Benning.

Several thousand Soldiers, family members, DoD Civilians and contractors drive onto post every day. About 3,000 of these are Department of the Army Civilians eligible to participate in AWS, said Capt. Kevin Sparks, traffic supervisor on post.

That number will increase during the transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence, he said.

Civilians who use the alternate schedule will drive on post one day less every two weeks.

"It would help us tremendously with our traffic problem," said David Benefield, civil engineer on post with the Directorate of Public Works.

They are making several changes in preparation for the incoming Armor School, including more access control points and reinforced bridges for the tanks. AWS is just one of the changes that will smooth the transition, Benefield said.

"If we can cut down on the number of trips to Fort Benning, that logically cuts down on the time for everybody involved at the ACPs," he said. "It cuts down on the amount of gas everyone uses, the amount of time spent in their cars, the frustration (from traffic). It builds on itself."

"We have a lot of people coming, and we have a lot of construction people already here — and more and more coming every day. We're doing everything we can, we just need everybody to participate," Benefield said.

Fewer cars on the road will also help reduce the number of accidents, he said.

MCOE's transformation process continues as CDID implements virtual operating capability

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

Fort Benning continues its transformation to the Maneuver Center of Excellence. In February we installed our first director of the Capabilities Development and Integration Directorate (CDID), and last month we implemented Virtual Operating Capability (VOC), which places all the "Futures" organizations at both Fort Knox and Fort Benning under the CDID. This virtual command and control structure allows the Army to gain synergy and efficiency; combining Infantry and Armor capabilities before any physical movement. The concept allows administrative control of CDID organizations provided by the host installation, and operational control managed centrally by the CDID director. This phased approach allows the CDID organizations located at Fort Knox and Fort Benning to begin working as members of the same team.

The affected organizations at both installations include our Combat Developers, who conduct requirements determinations, and our Battle Labs, who conduct experimentation work. Requirements determination has been split between Soldier and Mounted Requirements Divisions and the two Labs have been merged to create the Maneuver Battle Lab (MBL).

The CDID organization also provides command and control over TRADOC Capability Managers (TCMs) for the Infantry, Stryker, and Heavy Brigade Combat Teams, Platform Battle Command (PBC) and Combat Identification (CID), and TCM-Soldier. This virtual command and control structure allows the CDID director to better integrate the efforts at both installations, and will culminate when all CDID organizations from Fort Knox physically relocate to Fort Benning.

The effectiveness of the CDID virtual structure has already been demonstrated by their recent highly successful work on the Brigade Combat Team (BCT) and Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR) holistic review.

Building on the successes of the CDID virtual operating structure, we will begin implementing this concept across other MCOE organizations as they reorganize under the MCOE model; the Noncommissioned Officer Academy (NCOA), Directorate of Training and Doctrine (DOTD), and the Directorate of Training (DOT) will all form initially under the VOC concept.

We have accomplished much in the last three years since we began working and building toward the objective MCOE organization; extensive new Armor School construction projects currently underway at Harmony Church, the merger of our Captains Career Courses and Advanced Noncommissioned Officer Courses, and the virtual establishment of our Capabilities Development and Integration Directorate just to name a few. The efforts of our Infantry and Armor team members have been outstanding and have ensured that the Maneuver Center of Excellence will train the Army's finest Infantry, Armor, and Cavalry Soldiers well into the twenty first century.

I am proud of the effort made by all of our Soldiers, Department of the Army Civilians, and contract workers from both the Armor and Infantry Centers. The work that this combined arms team has performed will establish the Maneuver Center of Excellence as the world's premier installation. The Maneuver Center of Excellence will determine future capabilities requirements and train Soldiers who are motivated, highly skilled, and ready to join the operating force anywhere in the world.

What issue would you like to submit to AFAP?

I came from Fort Jackson, S.C., and buses came every 45 minutes. We need a more frequent schedule for the buses.

In the PX, most of the time the fashions are either very expensive or very cheap. They don't have anything in the middle. Everybody can't go in and pay $115 for a skirt, but I don't want a $15 skirt either.

I'd like to have the main PX open to midnight, because if you need something past 9:30, you have to go to Wal-Mart. I'd rather go to AAFES.

If they would monitor traffic early in the morning, that's when all the accidents happen. Dixie Road can't support that much traffic during rush hour. They should make it four lanes instead of two.

They should better advertise volunteer positions. Also, for Soldiers who volunteer on a regular basis, we need to have a way to keep track of our service hours.

Army Family Action Plan gives voice to community

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Michelle L. Gordon

I feel empowered. Actually I'm almost to the point of giddy. I just submitted my first Army Family Action Plan issue, and I feel like I've done something to improve both my life and the lives of other Fort Benning families. I've been an Army spouse for about six years now, and I've always been aware of AFAP, but I've never taken part, which is the reason for my current giddiness.

The program allows everyone on the installation to voice their opinions about what is or isn't working and how they recommend it be improved. Each issue is then discussed by a panel of volunteers during a two-day symposium and a decision is made on how to solve the problem. The last day of the symposium includes an open to the public out-briefing, where the major issues and resolutions are presented by the commanding general to the Fort Benning community.

This year, Army Community Service is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the program. Since its inception, thousands of issues have been raised and more than 600 of them were elevated to the Department of the Army.

When I talked to Fort Benning AFAP coordinator Barbara Singleton, she told me those 600 issues have resulted in nearly 150 changes to DoD policies and regulations, and 175 improvements to programs and services. In fact, because of issues raised during an AFAP symposium, Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance was increased from $50,000 to $200,000 and the family member separation allowance was increased from $75 to $100 a month for deployed Soldiers.

Also, several of those changes to policies and regulations started here at Fort Benning, such as the recent increase in Soldier leave accrual. Prior to January, Soldiers could only carry over 60 hours of annual leave from year to year. Now, because of an issue submitted from a Fort Benning AFAP symposium, Soldiers can bank up to 75 hours.

ACS collects issues year-round for discussion at the annual symposium. The next one is scheduled for Oct. 22-24. Singleton encourages everyone who wants to submit an issue to go ahead and do so now because this is your opportunity to have a voice. Every issue, no matter how minor, is reviewed and discussed. The majority of them are handled locally, but if the issue will affect all Army Families then it is sent forward for further review and discussion.

The program is great because it allows you to not only say what you think is wrong but also to weigh-in on how you would fix it. Not everyone has a good solution and sometimes the good-idea fairy gets in the way, but the only way to make change is to get involved. I've done my part and you still have time. Forms are available at the AFAP office, Soldiers' Plaza, Building 2624, or online at http://www.benningmwr.com/AFAPissues.pdf.

This week in Fort Benning history

• The road connecting the post to Columbus was apparently in very bad condition.

In the Benning News, one reporter noted: "A number of student officers and instructors who live in Columbus and make daily trips to Fort Benning in their cars … seem to be of the opinion that officers making this trip — especially those who drive flivvers — should be excused from taking the prescribed course in athletics which is part of the Infantry School curriculum."

• "When a feller needs a friend is the time he is looking for quarters." The Benning News urged post residents to open up their homes and lend their automobiles to incoming officers looking for a place to call their own.

• With Congress having recently passed legislative action to drastically reduce the Army — effectively reducing the number of officers by more than 1,300 — the Benning News reprinted an editorial satirizing the decision.

"At the time this legislation was enacted there was a widespread feeling that the way to protect this country from the dangers of foreign war was to abolish the Army and Navy altogether. So the scrapping and chucking out began.

"We must be getting safer and safer every minute. If this keeps up until we have discharged every officer above the grade of second lieutenant, and are unable to get any second lieutenants, surely our foreign foes will curl up and die of chagrin and we will be forever safe from the horrors of foreign war."

• In its first edition, the publisher said the purpose of the Benning News was to foster athletics and recreational activities. "This paper has nothing to do with politics," he wrote.

But in regard to an article published elsewhere in the paper — an article poking fun at Congress for downsizing the Army: "In view of the fact that somebody has said that the use of the Army as a political football is the most interesting outdoor sport at the present, it is believed that such items have a place in our columns."

— Bridgett Siler

Correction: In the Aug. 29 edition of The Bayonet, it was incorrectly reported that there is only one female drill sergeant on Sand Hill. We regret the error.

AAFES offers 3-cent discount per gallon of gas

When customers use Military Star Card or Military Star Rewards MasterCard

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Post gas station customers can take advantage of a 3-cent discount on each gallon of gas purchased with their Military Star Card or their Military Star Rewards MasterCard. The discount is taken immediately at time of purchase.

When people use their military card, Army & Air Force Exchange Service doesn't have to pay a fee to a bank or company the way they do with traditional credit cards, said Ken Brewington, the post AAFES director. Those savings are passed on to customers.

With gas prices as high as they are now, the discount is a good opportunity, Brewington said.

The initiative went AAFESwide Aug. 29. Service members, retirees, DoD Civilians and family members may sign up for a card by filling out an application available at the PX on Marne Road. The form may be submitted to customer service inside the PX.

Both cards are credit cards, so a credit check is necessary, Brewington said.

The Military Star Rewards MasterCard, which was developed earlier this year, differs from the regular Star Card. It can be used at any location, not only stores run by AAFES, and cardholders can earn points toward airfare, car rentals, hotel stays, theme park admission, cash and more with each purchase. Purchases at AAFES earn two points per dollar spent, and those at other locations earn one point per dollar.

As an incentive to get the card, customers can earn two points for every dollar they spend within the first 60 days.

For more information about the discount or either card, visit any AAFES store on post or call 706-682-0826.

Unofficial Internet traffic slowing network, DOIM says

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Sue Ulibarri

The director of Information Management issued a warning to the Fort Benning work force to minimize unofficial Internet traffic because it's slowing down the network. The installation's network is almost at maximum capacity.

"Traffic on Fort Benning's network has increased at a rate faster than we are able to increase the bandwidth going off the installation," said Paul Yates, director of the Directorate of Information Management. Fort Benning's network traffic is currently at 95 to 100 percent of its available 30 megabytes.

"Since we're maxed out, a few of our network models show some users are suffering as much as a 40 percent blockage rate — causing a major slow down in data flow and an increase in operational problems," he said. "This hampers access to key functional systems and vital to day-to-day operations."

The Internet is a resource to accomplish the mission, not reduce productivity, said Col. Thomas Macdonald, garrison commander.

"As we increase use of the Local Area Network with online training with such courses as Rosetta, AKO-based training and other new systems coming online, we're taxing an already stressed system," he said. "We need to take steps to minimize the impact of day-to-day use. I need everyone's support in reducing unnecessary use of the network."

A major factor in the slowdown is streaming media files, Yates said.

"We saw a significant slowdown during events such as the Olympics and March Madness," he said. "While you have one person watching video playbacks during work hours in one place, you have another person trying to access the network to conduct official business, but can't because they're blocked out."

Yates called streaming video and video download sites, streaming audio and audio download sites, interactive Internet sites "bandwidth hogs." Control measures will deny access to them.

"If we don't reduce or eliminate our access to these sites, we may have to go to more stringent controls, such as blocking all sites except .mil and .gov sites," he said.

3rd HBCT Soldiers attend Warrior Leader Course

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Sgt. Natalie Rostek

3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team Soldiers will graduate today from a special 15-day Warriors Leaders Course.

More than 150 Sledgehammer Soldiers learned NCO leadership tactics and responsibilities during the abridged course.

The class was only open to 3rd HBCT Soldiers because of the high enrollment of the brigade. Classes before and after the current class are 30 days.

Sgt. 1st Class Charles Guinn, who works in the brigade's schools department, attributes much of the high enrollment of Sledgehammer Soldiers to the high rate of re-enlistment during the unit's most recent deployment in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Sgt. 1st Class Alison Kempke, senior enlisted advisor of Fort Benning's Warrior Leader Course, said the students benefit from having a class consisting of mostly combat veterans.

"Being a combat vet makes it easier during class discussions," Kempke said. "They are able to talk about their experiences and their peers learn more from that."

The graduation ceremony for the current Warrior Leader Course will be held 5 p.m. today in Marshall Auditorium.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Here's the scenario: after a bridge collapses, a leader must figure out how to move his squad and supplies across water using two boards, two plastic barrels and two pieces of rope. Whoever falls in the water is a "casualty."

This is one of many challenges officer candidates tackled at the Leadership Reaction Course Friday.

"The course is more of a thinking obstacle course than it is about physical ability," said Capt. Edward Goldner, commander of A Company, 3rd Battalion (OCS), 11th Infantry Regiment. "They have to use their ingenuity to figure it out — it's like solving a puzzle."

Officer candidates went through more than 15 obstacles, on land and over water, each with a different scenario. The challenges included building bridges and rafts and transporting supplies across water. Soldiers could use only certain items, including boards, ropes and barrels to complete an obstacle. They were given only 15 minutes to complete each challenge.

Officer Candidate Brad Vick learned that improvisation is key when it comes to leading.

"This course forces you to think of a different way to find a solution," he said. "It's fast paced, too — you have to be able to make a decision at a moment's notice."

Each officer candidate led the squad at least once.

"You have to be flexible and know what your role is," Vick said.

"When you are a leader, you have to be able to give direction, and when you are in a supporting role, you have to be able to take that direction."

The goal wasn't to complete all of the obstacles perfectly, Goldner said.

"It's not as important to succeed in the obstacle as it is to see leadership skills," he said. "We want leaders who aren't afraid to take charge and make decisions in a situation where there is no obvious answer and no easy solution."

The officer candidates are in their third week of training. They are slated to graduate in November.

Soldiers who fall in this category will be informed by their S1s and will be given several options in order to comply with this requirement. In addition, an effort is underway to ensure all Soldiers and their spouses are properly advised of the new options for designating death gratuity beneficiaries, and of the requirement to inform spouses, in writing, if there are other beneficiaries included other than themselves.

For more information, contact the battalion personnel officer.

BRAVERY UNDER FIRE

3-1 Cav. Soldier risks life to protect battle buddy

3RD HEAVY BRIGADE COMBAT TEAM
Spc. Ben Hutto

While in Iraq, Spc. Ben Frahs and the scouts of A Troop, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, left the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team at Forward Operating Base Hammer to set up Patrol Base Assassin — a half-mile of concrete slabs that would become their home for the rest of their 15-month deployment.

The base was in the Four Corners market district, one of the main economic hubs of the Mad'in Qada. The troop converted three permanent structures located on the outpost into a command post and makeshift barracks for the Soldiers, but construction was ongoing.

"We had a few wooden towers set up to see over the hesco barriers we had for protection, but we didn't have our surveillance equipment operating yet," 1st Sgt. Mecko Johnson said.

With 25 Iraqis filling sandbags for the entry control point, Frahs and Pfc. Justin Pinna provided security.

"It was a typical morning," Frahs said. "We were assigned to guard the local workers who were helping put up our fortifications. We had our interpreter out there with us, so everything was going smoothly."

Until the mortars started to fall.

"The first mortar sounded like a high-caliber rifle," Frahs said. "It really didn't sound that loud at all. To be honest, it took us a few seconds to realize that we were being attacked."

The workers and interpreter evacuated on a gun truck while the two Soldiers provided security.

"I was in the (command post) talking with the commander (Maj. Arthur Mcgrue), when the mortars started coming in," said Capt. Michael Keathley, the executive officer of A Troop at the time. "In a few moments, we started hearing reports on the troop nets (communication bands) and we realized we had Soldiers out near the perimeter."

Frahs provided security, which allowed Pinna to get inside the patrol base when the second mortar landed.

"Things seemed to slow down and I felt like the life was being sucked out of me for a couple of seconds," Frahs said. "I saw Pinna get hit and go down. I had to take a few moments to check myself to make sure I wasn't hit. It was weird because I couldn't hear anything, but I remember everything crystal clear."

The concrete slabs the patrol base was on made the mortar attacks more deadly, Johnson said. In addition to the shrapnel from the mortar rounds, their impact fractured the slab's surface sending additional pieces of concrete shards into the air. Several of these jagged pieces of concrete injured Pinna.

"I didn't know how badly (Pinna) was injured so I crawled to his right side and removed his first-aid pouch to start treating him," Frahs said. "I could hear the rounds being fired, so I laid on top of him to protect him. I remember counting eight rounds. It took a couple of seconds for them to land from the time they came out of the tube. I figured out I had about thirty seconds to work him between rounds before I had to get back on top of him."

Inside the CP, Mcgrue was forced to wait for the attack to subside before sending Soldiers out for Frahs and Pinna.

"I was praying the whole time that no one would come out during the attack," Frahs said. "If they had, we would have had a lot more injuries."

A minute and a half later, the attack was over. Nine mortars were shot at the patrol base from close range.

"After the last round hit, I called to the tower and told them we had wounded," Frahs said. "Several gun trucks came out to get us soon after that."

An air medical evacuation was called for Pinna. Frahs was one of the Soldiers who helped carry the liter out.

"I knew he was in pain and just wanted him to know I was there," Frahs said. "I just wanted him to know that everything was going to be OK."

Johnson said Frahs' level head kept him and Pinna from receiving further injuries.

"I just followed my training and tried to protect my battle buddy," he said. "This guy is my friend. I couldn't leave him out there alone. I don't think my actions merited an award. I just happened to be in the wrong place at the right time."

Frahs said he is amazed at how lucky he and Pinna were.

"I examined where the rounds impacted afterwards," he said. "We were about 70 meters away. The kill radius for the rounds that were fired at us is 120 meters. For Pinna to survive and for me to walk away with no injuries is a miracle."

Frahs, a devout Mormon, said his faith is one of the reasons he was able to remain calm throughout the attack.

"Even though I was out there alone, I never felt alone," he said. "Religion is a big part of my life. Before I enlisted full-time, my wife and I prayed and we felt like this was something God wanted me to do. I have received multiple blessings to keep me safe from harm and accidents and my wife and I held on to that throughout the deployment."

Editor's note: This is the fourth of a series of articles Spc. Ben Hutto is writing on 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's recent 15-month deployment in Iraq.

Army turns to junior leaders for suicide prevention

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Elizabeth M. Lorge

WASHINGTON — With National Suicide Prevention Week ending Saturday, Army officials are reviewing current policies and emphasizing the help junior leaders and fellow Soldiers can provide to a team member in crisis.

This year's theme, "Shoulder-to-Shoulder: No Soldier Stands Alone," emphasizes the strength and teamwork necessary to combat suicide, said Brig. Gen. Rhonda Cornum, assistant surgeon general for force protection. It is reminiscent of the Warrior Ethos' "I will never leave a fallen comrade."

The number of Soldier suicides in 2008 may exceed last year's all-time high of 115, Army officials said. The Army has confirmed 62 suicides this year, with another 31 pending — higher numbers than at the same time last year, said Col. Eddie Stephens, deputy director for human resource policy for the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, G-1.

"It is a potentially preventable tragedy and every effort must be made to inform Army personnel of risk factors involved and to train our Soldiers, families and civilians to actively intervene, and I think that is the biggest difference this year. ... We've done a lot of education previously, but this year, the idea is to actively intervene if necessary and to make sure that people are aware of what professional assets are available," Cornum said.

> "Our goal is to develop an approach that builds life-long resilience in our recruits, makes them successful Soldiers, as well as successful citizens, long after they leave the Army, and makes strong mental health as much of a priority as physical health."
> — Brig. Gen. Rhonda Cornum

While the Army plans to continue existing suicide-prevention programs such as battlemind training, which teaches other Soldiers and family members how to recognize a Soldier in crisis; deploying mental-health advisory teams to theater; recruiting more behavioral-health specialists and most importantly, reducing the stigma associated with getting help — its new focus will be on teaching Soldiers, families and Army civilians how to help.

For example, the Army is working with Lincoln University in Missouri to launch an interactive prevention-training DVD. Soldiers will become characters in the story, and the outcome changes depending on what options they choose. Each Soldier will also carry an "Ace" card reminding him or her to never leave someone alone to get help, but to personally escort that Soldier to help. And starting in 2009, resilience and prevention training will be incorporated into basic training.

Two groups are absolutely essential in ensuring Soldiers get the help they need, officials said.

Junior leaders have the most face time with their Soldiers and know them the best, so they have to be able to recognize risks, Stephens said.

"We're targeting our junior officers and noncommissioned officers because that's the face of the Army to those thousands and thousands of privates out there," he said. "Building that relationship allows them to listen and be heard and communicate on a one-to-one basis with the troops they are leading, and building their trust and confidence ... so when (their Soldiers) have problems, they will be part of the solution."

Chaplains are also crucial to helping Soldiers find balance and hope, said Col. David Reese, director for ministry initiatives for Office of the Chief of Chaplains. Not only does the chaplaincy's Strong Bonds program help invigorate failing relationships — one of the leading causes of suicide — chaplains provide safe places for Soldiers to go without any stigma attached.

Right now the Army can't track how many lives like this have been saved; it can only count attempted and completed suicides. But plans are in the works to change this as well, to determine how successful prevention efforts really are.

Stephens said the Army is creating a suicide analytical capability at the Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine in early 2009 to fill some of these gaps. This cell would integrate all investigative reports and statistical data for Army suicides, with the goal of finding better ways to prevent it in the future.

While Cornum said one suicide is one too many and was dismayed by the upward trend, she said the numbers could have been even higher if the Army hadn't taken the steps it did.

In addition, the Army can't just work on prevention, it has to do more, Cornum said. While health-care experts have been unable to find one definitive way to prevent suicide, she said the Army needs to focus on lifestyle changes, building resilience, increasing social confidence and enhancing problem-solving skills for Soldiers, providing a sense of purpose for the future and a path to get there.

"Our goal is to develop an approach that builds life-long resilience in our recruits, makes them successful Soldiers, as well as successful citizens, long after they leave the Army, and makes strong mental health as much of a priority as physical health," she said.

Schedules: Will help relieve traffic congestion

Jones said, but she has heard nothing but good feedback from the 44 out of 50 people in her department who chose the new schedule.

"They like it," she said. "It's nice to have an extra day off. It's also good for managers. I went to the compressed work schedule myself. It's a good thing for Fort Benning to do. It's a privilege we've given our employees, and I do think it really and truly helps the individuals themselves."

Using the compressed work schedule takes some coordination, said Ron Shehane, director of Logistics on post. His department started using the schedule as a pilot program two years ago. Shehane cross trained everyone in the department, so they wouldn't miss any "one key person" on a given day.

The new schedule has proven successful, he said.

"It improves productivity in the employees," Shehane said. "They come in fresher. It gives them a little extra motivation (and) more flexibility. It saves in terms of traffic, gas, parking. We haven't heard a single complaint from customers, and we even have extended hours."

Not every department on Fort Benning uses the alternate schedule.

Blanche Robinson, human resources officer with the Civilian Personnel Administration Center, said they are still in the process of negotiation with the unions. She expects to see AWS implemented in the coming months.

"There may be some agencies where it really doesn't work well," Macdonald said.

"You can't allow it to degrade services. Mission accomplishment is going to come first."

To sign up for AWS, contact your supervisor or department director.

With AWS, there will be less traffic during the days employees take off and during rush hour, since workers will have to stay later or come in earlier to work a longer day.

Traffic has increased exponentially on post, Sparks said. In November 2006, there were about 6,000 vehicles inbound from I-185. Now, more than double that number pass through the Lindsay Creek Bypass checkpoint on any given weekday.

As traffic accumulates, so does pollution, said Polly Gustafson, real property specialist and environmental coordinator with Master Planning Division.

Recently, the Chattahoochee Valley was in danger of going into non-attainment status, a designation from the Environmental Protection Agency for areas that exceed state pollution limits several days throughout the year. Last week, the EPA determined the area's pollution levels did not exceed state limits, but air quality is still a concern, Gustafson said.

"We have to keep striving to keep the air clean. We're never home free," she said. "We need to be good neighbors. I truly believe that alternate work schedules would reduce area emissions. We're taking cars off the road, and we're not having as many cars idling in traffic. Every little bit helps."

Lance to ride again

Lance Armstrong is pulling a Brett Favre and coming out of retirement. Lance, who won the Tour de France seven times, annouced Tuesday he is ending a three year retirement and plans to ride in the Tour in 2009.

Johnson still contender

Don't count out Jimmie Johnson yet for his third straight Sprint Cup championship. Johnson had his second straight victory in a rain-delayed Chevy Rock & Roll 400 Sept. 7 at Richmond International Speedway. It was the last race of the regular season.

The first race in the Chase is the Sylvania 300 from New Hampshire Motor Speedway. Pre-race coverage begins at 1 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

Federer, Williams win

I will eat my words from last week that nearly guaranteed Rafael Nadal the win at the U.S. Open. But I would have chosen Roger Federer second, I swear. Federer defeated Andy Murray in straight sets Sept. 8 to win his fifth consecutive U.S. Open title. Bill Tilden was the last tennis player to have that achievement, albeit it was 84 years ago.

In the women's championship, Serena Williams routed Jelena Jankovic Sept. 7 to win her third U.S. Open title. With the win, Williams regained the number one ranking for women in the world.

Patriots lose Brady

Tom Brady, quarterback of the New England Patriots, is out for the season. There, I said it, but it doesn't make me happy. Brady was hit by Kansas City Chiefs' safety Bernard Pollard during the first quarter Sept. 7, and left the field and never returned to the game. The NFL deemed the hit "clean," and while I tend to agree with them, it's dirty in the sense that Brady has to have knee surgery.

There's been a lot of speculation and rumors that the Patriots will bring quarterback Chris Simms in for a workout, but coach Bill Belichick dispelled those rumors in his press conference Sept. 8.

All I can say, as a lifelong Patriots fan, is that I'm upset. Rookie QB Matt Cassell has a lot of work ahead.

Girardi will be back

Despite the likelihood that the New York Yankees will not make the playoffs this year, co-chairman Hank Steinbrenner said Sept. 8 that manager Joe Girardi will be back next season.

The last time the Yankees didn't make the playoffs was in 1993.

Soldier shares love of BMX racing

Chaz Crawford, 5, from Sharpsburg, Ga., races toward the finish line Saturday. More than 50 racers competed in different divisions in the state qualifier, one of three required for bikers to attend the state championship.

"Keep that wheel down," said Staff Sgt. Jimmie McCormack as he watched 8-year-old Alvaro Zanella race across the River City BMX track.

McCormack has mentored young bikers like Alvaro at the track since he returned from Iraq with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team in May.

"He helps hold you, so you don't fall. He's really tough," said Alvaro, who won first place in his division at the state qualifier Saturday.

"It feels like you're in NASCAR, but you're riding on dirt," he said.

McCormack competed in state BMX races more than 20 years ago. He hasn't raced as much since he joined the Army in 1994, but he still enjoys the hobby.

"It helps me get back in shape," he said. "It's different from PT. This is like sprinting. I just like going as fast as I can. It's the whole thing with speed and jumping."

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

A few weeks ago I wrote an article about the fitness classes we have at Smith. I gave a brief description of each class and listed the times they are currently scheduled.

I realized (after a very nice e-mail from one of my instructors) that I left out one class — spinning. So, this week I want to talk a bit about spinning.

Spinning is a cardiovascular workout for the whole body that uses a special stationary bicycle.

The class is led by an instructor and also set to music. This instructor leads the participants through routines that are designed to simulate terrain and situations similar to riding a bike outdoors. Some of the movements and positions include hill climbs, sprints and interval training.

Now, I know what you're thinking — I'm not a professional bike rider; I could never do this class. Wrong. The class and bikes are designed for every fitness level and every ability level. You basically set your goals and level of difficulty during the class. Some participants in the class will choose to work and maintain a moderate aerobic intensity level, while others drive their heart rates higher in intervals of anaerobic activity.

Burning between 400 and 600 calories in 40 minutes, spinning is not only a great form of aerobic activity; it is also beneficial in strengthening the muscles of the lower body. It tones the quadriceps and hamstrings, along with working the back and hips.

The spinning class is done on a stationary bike — nothing fancy, no special computer, calorie counter or special digital profile to follow. The only "gadget" you will find is the twist knob for changing the pedaling resistance. This way each participant can decide the proper level of difficulty for any part of the workout. People from every ability level can train in the same class.

There are few things to keep in mind about the bike set up. If the exercises are not done properly, and the bike is not set up correctly for you, injuries can occur.

Seat position is at the top of the list in importance. The seat should be set at such a height that one leg is fully extended with the foot resting on the pedal. Handlebar height can also be adjusted for comfort. Less experienced riders may want to set them higher to ease lower back discomfort.

There are three basic positions used in indoor cycling, with each working a different part of the body. Position one is when the rider is seated in the saddle and hands are resting on the center of the handlebars.

Position two is when the rider stands up but can still feel the saddle between their legs and their hands are lightly placed on the handlebars for balance. Position three is used for heavy climbing and the body is extended over the handles. Typical classes will consist of these different types of positions and will incorporate each one into the routine.

Now, I would recommend bringing plenty of water with you to class. Indoor cycling is very energetic and causes a lot of sweating. A person near dehydration can easily be dehydrated by the end of an hour of hard riding. One ounce of water consumed for each minute of work is the recommended hydration ratio, but this could vary depending on your weight.

The class is available at Smith Fitness Center from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 8:30 to 9:20 a.m. Saturdays.

The fitness instructor teaching our spin class is Jody Berg. She is a great instructor, very friendly and has tons of energy. She will give you a great workout, and one you will not forget. If you are new to class, please stop by a few minutes early and talk to her. She can help explain some of the basics of spinning as well as some important safety tips that you will need to know before class starts.

I hope this gave you a better understanding of spinning. We are very lucky to have spin bikes at Fort Benning and an instructor as knowledgeable as Jody. Her class fills up quickly, so don't be too upset if you can't get a bike for today's ride.

Have a happy and healthy weekend, and thanks for reading Fit Facts.

The grass will always be greener at Yankee Stadium

John Bastone

It was late spring 1960 — I was 9 years old and still mad that my Brooklyn Dodgers had moved to Los Angeles three years earlier — when my dad took me to the "Big Ballpark" for the first time. It was a doubleheader. The Yanks were playing the Red Sox.

My Dad splurged that day — he bought two box seat tickets for $4.50 each, so I knew it was a special day.

I recall (still with awe) just how immense the stadium looked to a 9-year-old boy. Centerfield went on and on forever. The grass was the greenest grass I'd had ever seen.

The fans began to fill the stadium, and my heroes emerged from the dugout. I was specifically looking for numbers 7 (Mickey), 8 (Yogi), and 9 (Roger Maris, the new right fielder the Yanks picked up from the Kansas City Athletics). Out they came, running to their positions on the field.

I called out my favorite player's name — "Mickey!" Now, of course, I sincerely doubt he heard me, but when he looked over his shoulder, I believed he was looking at me.

As I recall, the Yanks split the doubleheader with the Red Sox on that glorious day in May, when my dad took me to Yankee Stadium for the first time. They won the World Series the next year. And the next.

In 1963, my parents bought a house in the Bronx, so as a teen, I often went to the stadium with my cousins and friends.

I introduced my younger brother to Yankee Stadium in 1968. I bought a couple of general admission tickets for $2.80 — not as large an expense as my dad had put out, but I was proud that I paid for the tickets and took my 11-year-old brother, Anthony. The Yanks split a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers, who won the World Series that year.

The Yanks went into a deep decline in the '60s and early '70s. But I continued to follow my hometown team through the good years and bad. I always found a way to get to the stadium during my visits home. I marveled at the renovation of the place in 1975 and their resurgence during the Reggie Jackson years in '77 and '78.

The Yankees have been a constant in my life — the NY logo on the hat and jersey; the pinstripes; the pennants; the titles; the great players; and the Big Ballpark at 161st Street and River Avenue in the Bronx.

Yankee stadium will be torn down after this season and replaced by a new, state-of-the-art facility that will look like the original.

My son and daughter bought me tickets to travel to the house of my summer heroes one last time. On Aug. 15 — 48 years since that 9-year-old boy rode the subway to see Mickey play for the first time — I made my last visit to the stadium with my sons and brother Anthony. Dad's spirit was there as well.

I assured myself, after I saw the new construction, that the Yankees will be forever part of the Bronx. The grass will still be greener than ever. The footsteps of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joltin' Joe DiMaggio, Mickey, Yogi, Thurman Munson, Reggie Jackson, and Donnie Baseball Mattingly will take the field along with Derek Jeter and A-Rod, across the street.

While I will always remember the Big Ballpark and feel sadness, the new stadium ensures that the Yanks will continue to play where they were meant to play, in New York City, in the Bronx.

After competing in the novice division of the BMX state qualifier Saturday, Dakota Rutledge, 16, from McDonough, Ga., performs a jump at the top of a hill on the River City BMX track.

Staff Sgt. Jimmie McCormack was on hand Saturday to encourage and help young racers he mentored during the last three months. "For me, it's more for the kids," he said, "to help them learn how to ride and compete."

Expert racers might easily go as fast as 20 miles per hour, said McCormack, who placed second in Georgia in the cruiser class in 1992.

Kids as young as 5 and adults of all ages competed Saturday at the eight-lane, 1,100-foot track in Columbus.

The BMX track is the only one of its kind in a 100-mile radius, said owner Aaron Oney, who opened the track a year ago.

"BMX is the coolest thing in the world," he said. "It's exhilarating — just wide open, fast paced, raises your adrenaline — it's like a roller coaster."

BMX has gained more national attention as a sport since it debuted at the Olympics this year.

It's not exclusive, McCormack said. It's good for families, young and old, men and women.

"You have to try it," he said. "You have to be willing to come out and sweat a little bit. Anybody can do it."

The track, located off of Victory Drive behind O'Reilly Auto Parts, is open for practice riding from 3 to 6 p.m. Thursdays for a $10 fee. Riders may rent or purchase a bike at the store. Races are held on Saturday afternoons. Racers must attend eight local races and three state races to qualify for the state championship.

For more information, call River City BMX at 706-888-9466 or visit the Web site at http://rcbracer.tripod.com. McCormack's BMX site is at http://rivercitybmx.shutterfly.com.

Our Fort Benning Soldiers and their Families remain steadfast in their commitment to this cause. Just as we will never forget where we were that day, we fight with the conviction that there is coming a day when we will celebrate, with our neighbors and our nation, triumph over terrorism. Until that day, we will fight. And we will never forget."

Military student creates high school guide

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

A new guide to local high schools is available through the post School Liaison Office.

It includes information on the public high schools in the seven counties in the Chattahoochee Valley, said Tawanna Brown, post school liaison officer.

Newcomers Guide to High Schools and Activities was written by Breanne LaCamera for her Girl Scout Gold award.

"I wanted to do something to help my community. This was the first thing that came to mind, because that was what was most important to me," said Breanne, who attended 11 schools during her father's Army career. The LaCameras were stationed at Fort Benning from June 2005 to August of last year.

"You want to make the transition as easy as possible, and you also want to get as familiar as you can with the area, and type of education you're going to get," she said, "because you could either be set back the next time you move or you could be ahead. I actually ended up taking U.S. history seven years in a row."

Breanne's parents, Col. Paul and Theresa LaCamera, moved so many times they knew how to research high schools before the family PCSed to Fort Benning three years ago. Some of her friends, however, didn't have the same advantage. Breanne created the guide for military children like them, she said.

"All these schools in the Columbus area offer different things," Breanne said. "If some people want to take the baccalaureate program, they go to Hardaway. If they want to go to the all-magnate school, they go to Columbus. Shaw has a vocational program. I just think it's good information to get out to people. I would have wanted that when I was there, so I'm glad that other people will be able to look at it."

Breanne, 18, now attends the College of the Holy Cross in Massachusetts. Choosing a high school with "the best fit" is important, she said, since it affects what students do after high school.

After Breanne submitted her project to the liaison office, Brown expanded the guide, which originally included only high schools in Muscogee and Chattahoochee counties.

Printed two weeks ago, the newcomer's guide includes information about school population, honors classes, awards and test scores, student teacher ratios, after-school activities and contact numbers.

"It's a great tool for students coming into the area," Brown said. "And it's not just for families that live on the installation."

The information comes at a good time, Brown said, since there will be an influx of families from Fort Knox, Ky., transitioning here with Base Realignment and Closure. Brown plans to mail copies to the families before they PCS.

For more information, call Brown at 706-545-3062 or visit the School Liaison Office, Building 2783 on Eckel Avenue.

GradeSpeed connects parents, teachers, students

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Parents will be able to keep up with their children's progress in school thanks to a new Department of Defense Education Activity program, GradeSpeed, which kicked off Sept. 9. GradeSpeed allows parents to access their students' grades online at https://dodea.gradespeed.net.

It ran as a pilot program last year at Faith Middle School and was very successful, said Joyce Jones, education technologist for the Georgia and Alabama DoD school district.

On Fort Benning, the program is for parents with children in grades four through eight. Parents received a pamphlet earlier this month explaining the details of the user friendly Web site, which is password protected and regularly updated with new scores, Jones said.

Besides grades, information posted through the "Parent Portal" may include grading rubrics, homework assignments and teachers' comments, said Angie Cotton, the assistant principal at Faith.

"It's all about communication," she said. "We want to keep parents connected and make sure students are making progress."

It's especially helpful for parents or guardians who are deployed, Jones said.

"You can log in anytime," she said. "Everybody is up-to-date and informed, and there are no surprises at report card time. The more informed (parents) are about what's going on, the more they can work together (with teachers)."

It also helps students be accountable for their work, Jones said.

DEFENSE COMMISSARY AGENCY
By Kay Blakley

FORT LEE, Va. – Understanding how food-product dating works might not be a subject you've lost any sleep over. But, if you're a typical consumer, it has probably been a source of confusion that's resulted in some perfectly good food being thrown in the garbage or poured down the drain.

Many consumers incorrectly assume that a date stamped on a product's package is an expiration date. They automatically throw it out once that date arrives, thinking the food is unsafe to use. This is not true.

How long most perishables will stay fresh:

Milk: up to 5 days after the sell-by date

Yogurt: 7-10 days after the sell-by date

Eggs: 3-5 weeks after the sell-by date

Infant Formula & Baby Food: Stamped with a use-by date

Does federal law require product dating?

Except for infant formula and some baby food, product dating is not required by federal regulations. Even so, you will typically find what's called an "open date" (use of a calendar date as opposed to a code) on perishable foods such as meat, poultry, eggs and dairy products. This dating is done voluntarily by the manufacturer. It is intended to help the store determine how long to display the product for sale, and to help the consumer know the time limit to purchase or use the product at its best quality. It is not a safety date.

Types of dates and what they mean

If a calendar date is shown on a product, federal regulations do require that a phrase explaining its meaning be printed immediately adjacent to the date. These phrases are "sell-by," "use-by" and "best if used by (or before)."

· A "Best if Used By (or Before)" date is a recommendation for best flavor or quality. It is not a purchase or safety date.

· A "Use-By" date is the last date recommended for use of the product while at peak quality. This date is determined by the manufacturer based on analysis of the product throughout its shelf life.

Most asked about items

The items that cause most concern among commissary shoppers are exactly those perishable items listed above – dairy products, eggs, meat and poultry. So, let's take a look at each product or category of products separately.

· Milk: A "sell-by" date is normally stamped on every carton. Make sure you purchase the milk before this date. Take it straight home and refrigerate immediately at 40 degrees or lower. Don't leave it in the trunk of your car while you squeeze in a few more errands on the way home, and don't let it linger on the counter or table during a meal. Pour the servings you need and return the carton to the refrigerator promptly.

Under optimum conditions, milk should remain fresh up to five days or longer beyond the "sell-by" date.

· Yogurt: Most yogurts will be stamped with either a "sell-by" or a "best if used-by" date. Store yogurts in the same manner as fresh milk (refrigerated at 40 degrees or lower) and use by the "best if used-by" date for highest quality.

After that date you might see some separation of fluid in the product, which will affect its appearance, but this factor alone is not an indicator of spoilage. It may be perfectly fine once it is stirred. Trust your own sense of taste and smell, plus your personal knowledge of how well it has been cared for since coming to live at your house when deciding to use it or toss it.

Yogurts stored under optimum conditions can be expected to be of good quality and freshness seven to ten days beyond the "sell-by" date.

· Eggs: Egg cartons will normally be stamped with a "sell-by" date. At home, refrigerate the eggs in their original carton. It is designed to keep the porous shells from absorbing odors from other foods, and to protect the eggs from breaking.

Eggs have a very long shelf life. Properly refrigerated, they can be expected to maintain reasonable quality for three to five weeks beyond the "sell-by" date.

· Meat and Poultry: Vacuum packed meats sold in all DeCA commissaries require both Date of Pack and Sell By Date.

Commissaries carry both a "sell-by" and a "use-by" date. Purchase these meats before the "sell-by" date, keep them refrigerated properly and either use or freeze by the "use-by" date.

Tray-packed fresh meats and poultry, including turkey, plus fresh rabbit and duck are normally stamped with a "use-by" date. Recommendations for handling and storage of vacuum packed meats also apply to these products.

Once a perishable product such as meat or poultry is frozen, these dates become irrelevant because, according to USDA experts, foods kept frozen continuously (at 0 degrees or below) can be safe indefinitely.

Infant formula and baby food

Federal regulations require a "use-by" date on the product label of infant formula and the varieties of baby food under FDA inspection. If consumed by that date, the formula or food must contain not less than the quantity of each nutrient as described on the product label. Additionally, infant formula must maintain a sufficient quality to pass through an ordinary bottle nipple. If stored too long, formula can separate and clog the nipple.

Dating of baby food is for quality as well as for nutrient retention. Do not buy or use baby formula or baby food after its "use-by" date.

Practice safe-food handling at home

Your commissary maintains rigid quality assurance and sanitation standards to make sure the foods you are offered are fresh, wholesome and safe. After making your selections, though, it's up to you to care for them properly until consumed. To answer the "Is this stuff still good?" question with confidence, practice these four rules at your house.

· Refrigerate perishable products promptly, and use or freeze meat and poultry products before the "use-by" date.

· Remember that product dating is a guide for quality, rather than safety.

· Also, remember these rules do not apply to infant formula and baby food, which should not be used after the "use-by" date.

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL
Chaplain (Capt.) John M. Sedwick

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt once declared that Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, was a day of infamy because of the unprovoked attack against U.S. Army and Naval forces in Pearl Harbor by the military forces of Japan.

I would also include every third Friday as a new and improved day of infamy (or maybe just agony) after participating in the OCS ritual 10-mile foot march up and down the hills and dales and passing over many of the dusty trails of Fort Benning.

Indeed I experience this "Ground Hog Day" of infamy every three weeks as the senior officer candidate company "celebrates" the conclusion of their three week field problem with a pleasant 10-mile stroll through the southwest Georgia countryside with 150 of their closest friends and 40 or more pounds on their backs — along with the complimentary Columbus heat and humidity. I usually spend the following Saturday and Sunday drinking Geritol like Kool Aid and navigating my way around the house using an ACU camouflaged walker.

Besides taking a poor stab at some self-deprecating humor, I also want to illustrate how our command sponsored 10-mile ruck marches paint a larger picture of OCS — and indeed our Army careers. Every journey consists of easy and hard miles.

After having participated in more than a dozen of these 10-mile road marches I would categorize the first few miles of the ruck march as easy ones. The mood is light, the ruck sack doesn't feel too heavy, and the pace is constant and comfortable.

By miles four, five and six, the traditional summertime Fort Benning heat and humidity start to take their toll as officer candidates frequently sip water from their hydration systems and discover that their uniforms have started to stick to their skin.

The initial reverie associated with the joy of literally marching away from their final field exercise drips away with the beads of perspiration streaming down overheated faces.

The ruck sack seems a bit heavier and the pace (although constant) seems to be getting faster. The last few miles of the ruck march push some (especially 46-year-old chaplains) to the brink of exhaustion.

ACU blouses and trousers aren't just sticking to the skin; they have become one with the skin. The beads of perspiration have transitioned to streams of sweat that burn eyes and darken ACU blouses as they continue their descent down the torso.

Blisters pop with each painful step and ruck sacks and weapons feel like albatrosses to the back and arms. Some officer candidates (and all 46-year-old chaplains) wonder if they can make it to the end.

And lo and behold almost everyone makes it successfully to the end each and every time — happy, healthy and more complete, confident and capable leaders for having taken the journey. Every journey consists of easy and hard miles. The path ahead of you here at Fort Benning (whether it be basic training, AIT, Airborne or Ranger school, BNCOC or ANCOC, OCS, BOLC II or BOLC III) may seem distant and difficult, but you can do it.

Your Army and your country need you to ruck up and get on with the journey.

You'll never regret a day of it once the journey is complete. And you never march alone: Jesus says in the 11th chapter of Matthew: "Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

West Point Lake is managed by the Army Corps of Engineers. The lake covers more than 25,000 acres and has 525 miles of shoreline. It's perfect for fishing, swimming, boating and more.

The lazy days of summer aren't over just yet. There's still time to spend a few quiet days on the water. A drive up I-185 north takes you to West Point Lake, and with more than 25,000 surface acres of water to play on, it's no wonder it's a summertime favorite for area outdoor enthusiasts.

The Army Corps of Engineers manages West Point Lake, which extends 35 miles along the Chattahoochee River on the Alabama-Georgia state line. Much of the lake is located in Georgia, between West Point and LaGrange.

Dating back to the early 60s, the lake has a practical purpose, too. Under the Congressional Flood Control Act of 1962, the West Point Dam Project was initiated. The project allows flood control, hydroelectric power, navigation, and fish and wildlife development. For example, the dam controls flooding of the river by managing seasonal variations in water flow, various watercrafts navigate along the Apalachicola-Chattahoochee-Flint Waterway, which runs 260 river miles from Apalachicola, Fla., to Columbus, and the powerhouse's three generators produce enough power yearly to serve 24,000 homes.

The lake has more than 35 recreation areas, including parks, marinas and campgrounds. Amenities differ from one area to the next, but most have boat ramps, drinking water, rest rooms and picnic sites. Some have ball fields, basketball courts, playgrounds, shower areas, tennis courts and nature trails.

A few of the sites require a nominal entrance or parking fee, usually $5 per car.

Be sure to check with the Army Corps of Engineers before you set out, because some areas are not open year-round.

BURN AFTER READING

A tale about an ousted CIA official whose memoir accidentally falls into the hands of two unwise D.C. gym employees intent on exploiting their find.

Burn After Reading is a comedy from Academy Award winners Joel and Ethan Coen and stars George Clooney, John Malkovich, Frances McDormand, Brad Pitt and Tilda Swinton. The film is rated R for language, sexual content and violence.

RIGHTEOUS KILL

A pair of veteran New York City police detectives are on the trail of a vigilante serial killer. After 30 years as partners in the pressure cooker environment of the NYPD, highly decorated Detectives David Fisk and Thomas Cowan should be ready for retirement, but aren't

Before they can hang up their badges, they are called in to investigate the murder of a notorious pimp, which appears to have ties to a case they solved years before. Like the original murder, the victim is a suspected criminal whose body is found accompanied by a four line poem justifying the killing.

When additional crimes take place, it becomes clear the detectives are looking for a serial killer, one who targets criminals that have fallen through the cracks of the judicial system.

His mission is to do what the cops can't do on their own — take the culprits off the streets for good. The similarities between the recent killings and their earlier case raise a nagging question: Did they put the wrong man behind bars?

Righteous Kill is an action thriller starring Robert De Niro, Al Pacino, Curtis Jackson, Brian Dennehy and John Leguizamo. It is rated R for violence, language, sexuality and drug use.

THE WOMEN

In New York City's modern whirl of fashion and publishing, Mary Haines seems to have it all — a beautiful country home, a rich financier husband, an adorable 11-year-old daughter and a part-time career creating designs for her father's venerable clothing company.

Her best friend, Sylvie Fowler, leads another enviable life — as a happily single editor of a prominent fashion magazine, a possessor of a huge closet of designer clothes and a revered arbiter of taste and style poised on New York's cutting edge.

But when Mary's husband enters into an affair with Crystal Allen, a sultry "spritzer girl" lurking behind the Saks Fifth Avenue perfume counter, all hell breaks loose. Mary and Sylvie's relationship is tested to the breaking point while their tight-knit circle of friends, including mega-mommy Edie Cohen and author Alex Fisher, all start to question their own friendships and romantic relationships as well.

The Women stars Meg Ryan, Annette Bening, Eva Mendes, Debra Messing and Jada Pinkett-Smith. It is rated PG-13 for sex-related material, language, drug use and smoking.

TYLER PERRY'S THE FAMILY THAT PREYS

Wealthy socialite Charlotte Cartwright and her dear friend Alice Pratt, a working class woman of high ideals, have enjoyed a lasting friendship throughout many years.

Suddenly, their lives become mired in turmoil as their adult children's extramarital affairs, unethical business practices and a dark paternity secret threaten to derail family fortunes and unravel the lives of all involved.

Meanwhile, Alice's other daughter Pam, a kind but no nonsense woman married to a hard working construction worker, tries to steer the family in a more positive direction.

Charlotte and Alice decide to take a breather from it all by making a cross-country road trip in which they rediscover themselves and possibly find a way to save their families from ruin.

The Family that Preys is a comedy/drama that stars Alfre Woodward, Sanaa Lathan, Kathy Bates and Rockmond Dunbar. It is rated PG-13 for sexual references and violence.

BANGKOK DANGEROUS

A cold-blooded hitman heads to Bangkok to pull off four jobs, and winds up falling in love with a local girl and bonding with his errand boy.

Bangkok Dangerous stars Nicholas Cage. It is rated R for violence, language and sexuality.

TRAITOR

When straight arrow FBI agent Roy Clayton heads up the investigation into a dangerous international conspiracy, all clues seem to lead back to former U.S. Special Operations officer, Samir Horn.

A mysterious figure with a web of connections to terrorist organizations, Horn has a knack for emerging on the scene just as a major operation goes down. The interagency task force looking into the case meets with Carter, a veteran CIA contractor who seemingly has his own agenda and Max Archer, a fellow FBI agent.

Traitor stars Don Cheadle, Archie Panjabi, Guy Pearce, Lorena Gale and Raad Rawi. It is rated PG-13 for violence and language.

THE HOUSE BUNNY

Shelley Darlington has lived at the Playboy mansion for the last nine years. She is Hef's favorite and acts like a den mother to the other girls. On her birthday, she is unceremoniously evicted from Hef's pad for being too old.

Homeless and without essential skills, Shelley wanders around L.A. until she finds a new job — the housemother at the most unpopular sorority on campus.

The House Bunny stars Anna Faris, Emma Stone, Rumer Willis, Kat Dennings and Katherine McPhee. It is rated PG-13 for sex-related humor, nudity and language.

Welcome to the Infantry Warfighting Conference

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

It is my pleasure to welcome you to Fort Benning and Columbus for the 2008 Infantry Warfighting Conference. Your attendance is of valued importance as we consider this Conference to be mission essential to the Infantry and to the Army.

The Conference will provide a great opportunity to discuss recent transitions in our Infantry formations, and how to train the force in the Contemporary Operational Environment. As a change from recent years this conference will be conducted in three days.

We will continue the tradition of arrival and registration followed by the reception at Riverside on Day 1; the National Infantry Association has also scheduled an optional Golf Tournament on that day.

Presentations from some of the Army's top leadership and breakout sessions will be executed on the following two days. We will start Day 2 with an update on the Infantry, updates from key senior leaders, and executive sessions to discuss selected topics and issues amongst the senior officer and noncommissioned officers in attendance.

Following lunch we will have an update on Maneuver Center of Excellence by Brig. Gen. Don Campbell, Chief of Armor and lessons learned from IBCT, HBCT, and SBCT commanders with their command sergeants major. Day 2 will end with the annual Doughboy Dinner and Award Ceremony with presentations to the 2008 recipients, retired Gen. Hugh Shelton and retired Command Sgt. Maj. Gary Littrell.

We will start Day 3 with updates from the three combat training centers (CTCs) on how the force is trained for the Contemporary Operational Environment. This presentation will be followed by an update on future Infantry systems. After lunch we will host breakout sessions covering a host of topics.

Fort Benning provides our Army the best trained, equipped, and led Soldiers in the world. Your participation will add to the training and leadership of Infantrymen today, and in the future. If we can do anything to make your visit more pleasant or productive, please let the Conference Operations Cell know by contacting them at 706-545-5868 or 706-545-8528.

Follow Me!

Future Combat System program to deliver new technologies to Infantry

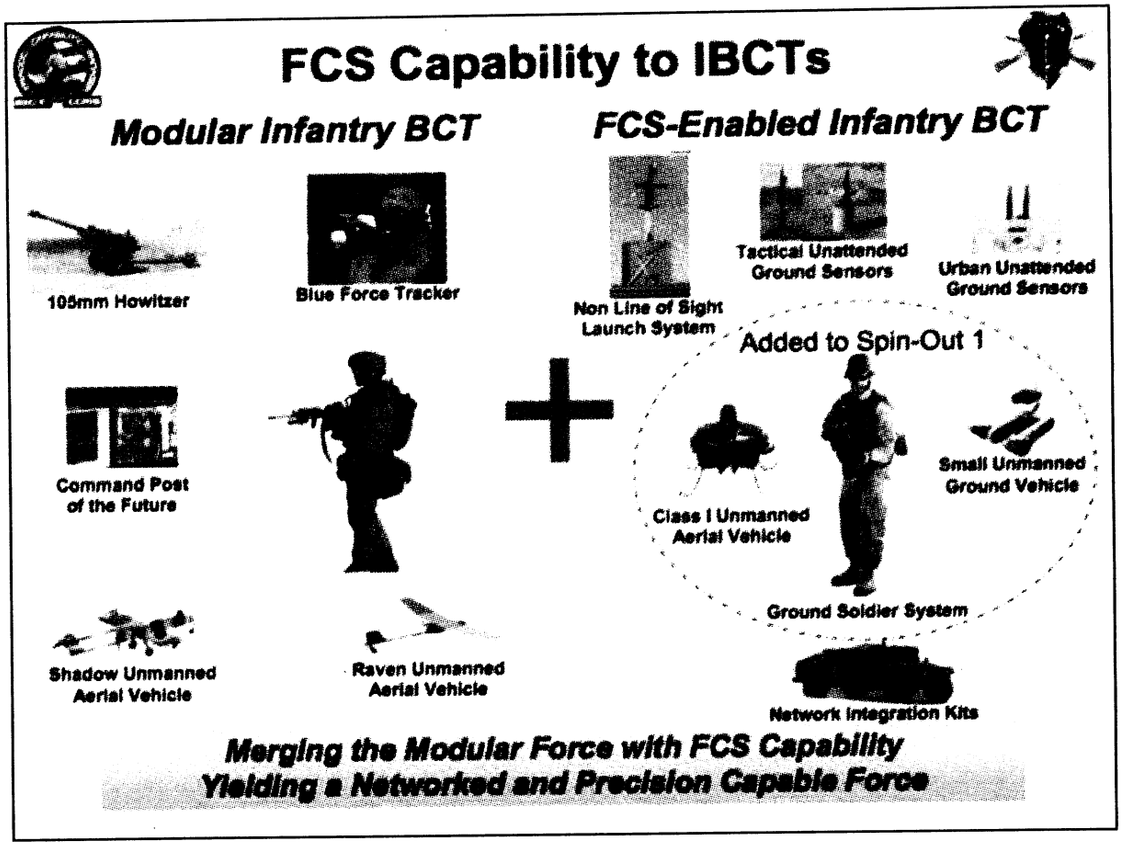
CAPABILITIES DEVELOPMENT AND INTEGRATION DIRECTORATE
Jeff Arneson

The Future Combat Systems program, the centerpiece of Army modernization, recently refocused its efforts to deliver much needed capabilities to the Infantry Brigade Combat Teams.

From inception, the FCS program focused on developing a heavy formation built around information and technology dominance. In today's operating environment the IBCT is the most numerous, deployable and adaptable combat formation. Combat operations in Iraq and Afghanistan demand the flexibility that IBCTs provide. Adjusting the FCS program in support of IBCTs supports the Army's greatest need across the operating force.

FCS spinouts provide capabilities that meet many of the requirements IBCT commanders have identified as critical to mission success. These technologies include: a Non Line-of-Sight Launch System providing the commander with a long-range precision attack capability; Tactical and Urban Ground Sensors, Small Unmanned Ground Vehicles, and Class I Unmanned Aerial Vehicles providing enhanced intelligence and early warning capabilities; and vehicle network kits, which link future command and control capabilities to current BCT vehicles. In addition the Ground Soldier System and the Ground Soldier Ensemble, separate Army programs, will be accelerated and delivered to IBCTs providing Soldiers and leaders with access to the future battle command network as part of the spinout strategy. Soldiers are the heart of the Army.

These FCS technologies will continue to make the American Soldier the dominant force on the battlefields of today and tomorrow.



The Fort Benning lead for this effort is the TRADOC Capability Manger for the Infantry Brigade Combat Team / Close Combat Missile Systems (TCM IBCT/CCMS). TCM IBCT/CCMS will coordinate planning, experimentation, and fielding efforts closely to ensure the units and Soldiers understand the equipment and can employ them effectively in combat. IBCTs will begin receiving the new technologies in 2011 and the current plan calls for all 43 IBCTs to receive them by 2025.

THE DOUGHBOYS

Former joint chiefs chairman to receive award

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Anthony C. O'Bryant

Shelton

Retired Gen. Henry H. Shelton will accept the Doughboy Award on the 45th anniversary of the beginning of his military career, which started at Fort Benning.

"I am deeply humbled and honored to receive the 2008 Doughboy Award. I am indebted to thousands of Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines and Coast Guardsmen for the successes I have enjoyed. In essence, I am accepting this award on their behalf," Shelton said.

The Doughboy Awards Dinner is Tuesday at the Columbus Convention and Trade Center.

"Carolyn and I spent the first night in our new home in Camellia Apartments, just outside the front gate, and I served in the 2nd Infantry Division for the next two years," Shelton said. "Over the years, we returned to Fort Benning on several occasions, and it always felt like we were returning home."

Born in Tarboro, N.C., he received a bachelor's degree in textiles from North Carolina State University and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Infantry through the Reserve Officer Training Corps.

During his career, Shelton championed a number of landmark quality-of-life initiatives, including the largest military pay raise in 18 years, pay table and bonus reform and critical improvements in both retirement and health care programs. He improved the readiness and retention of the force while simultaneously crafting Joint Vision 2020 — the roadmap for the future joint force.

"I have been very proud, on many occasions, of the accomplishments of troops serving under my command over the years," Shelton said. "Perhaps the single greatest accomplishment was getting $112 billion added to the 2000 defense budget to fix our armed forces readiness and pushing through the Tricare for Life program to take care of our men and women in uniform and the retirees who dedicated their lives to the service of our nation."

"My advice to young Infantrymen today would be that there is not a more noble profession than the one you are entering, and to strive to be a person of integrity and character," Shelton said. "You can't be a great leader without being a good person.

"Take care of your troops and their families — they will enable you to accomplish things you never dreamed possible," said Shelton.

Currently, Shelton is on the board of directors for Anheuser Busch Companies, Inc. Red Hat and Ceramic Products Corporation. He also sits on the boards of the following private companies: CoVant, AT Solutions, MIC Industries and is chairman of the board of advisors for the O'Gara Group. In addition, he serves as executive director of the General Hugh Shelton Leadership Center at North Carolina State University and as Director of the Hugh and Carolyn Shelton Military Neurotrauma Foundation.

Shelton holds a master's degree from Auburn University and has attended Harvard University, the Air Command and Staff College and the National War College. He has been decorated for distinguished service by numerous military and civilian organizations in the United States and overseas.

Among his many military awards, Shelton received four Defense Distinguished Service Medals, two Army Distinguished Service Medals, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal for Valor, and the Purple Heart. He was decorated by 16 foreign governments. In 2001, he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II.

Highlights of his civilian awards include the Charlotte N.C. World Affairs Council World Citizen Award for 2002, North Carolina's highest Award for Public Service, the Eisenhower Award from the Business Executives for National Security, the American Academy of Achievement's Golden Plate Award, Intrepid Freedom Award and recognition as National Father of the Year, among others.

For his service to his country, the 107th Congress awarded the Congressional Gold Medal to Shelton, Sept. 19, 2002.

Medal of Honor recipient gets Doughboy Award

Littrell

"It is a great feeling and a distinct honor to be recognized for the work I did in the Army — 20 years after I retired," Littrell said.

In 1972, both Littrell, then a sergeant first class, and Shelton, a captain, served together as Ranger Training Brigade instructors at the Ranger Camp in Eglin, Fla. He was inducted into the Ranger Hall of Fame in July 1993.

Littrell was born in Henderson, Ky., Oct. 26, 1944. He attended Arsenal Technical High School in Indianapolis, and the University of El Paso in Texas. His military education included Airborne School, Ranger School, Air Assault School and Sergeants Major Academy.

Littrell said he loves to speak to high school students and young Soldiers about life and the Army.

"They are serving in the best military we have ever had," he said. "It's the best trained and equipped."

He has traveled to Afghanistan four different times during the last couple of years to speak with a military police battalion and plans on going back every year until all the Soldiers are home.

"Keep yourselves as ready as you can be; be careful and always take care of your buddy," Littrell told a group of Soldiers during his last trip to Afghanistan. He makes the three-week trip to boost the morale of the troops and to let them know that their service is appreciated.

Littrell enlisted into the Army in 1961, serving more than 22 years in the Infantry and attained the command sergeant major rank Aug. 29, 1982. He served at Fort. Ord, Calif.; Fort Campbell, Ky.; Fort Stewart, Ga.; Fort Bliss, Texas; Fort Carson, Colo.; Okinawa; Panama; Dominican Republic; and the Republic of Vietnam.

Littrell retired in October 1983. In 1986, he began a second profession as a veterans' service officer. He has worked with the Paralyzed Veterans of America and the Florida Department of Veterans Affairs. He was the Veterans Affairs officer supervisor for the Florida Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center, Bay Pines, Fla., until November 1993 when he accepted the position of patient relations specialist at the James A. Haley Veterans' Hospital, Tampa, Fla. He retired from the hospital in July 1998.

He served as vice-president of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society from 2001 through 2003 and was elected to two terms as society president from 2003 through September 2007. He serves on the society's board.

Littrell's military awards and decorations include the Medal of Honor, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal, Purple Heart, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Expeditionary Medal Dominican Republic, Vietnam Service Medal, Noncommissioned Officer Professional Development Ribbon, Army Service Ribbon, Overseas Ribbon, Republic of Vietnam Cross of Gallantry, Republic of Vietnam Ranger Badge, Ranger Tab, Master Parachutist Badge and Air Assault Badge.

The 90th anniversary of World War I and Camp Benning

U.S. ARMY INFANTRY BRANCH HISTORIAN
David S. Stieghan

While the Infantry School traces its continuous lineage to the School of Musketry founded in Monterey, Calif., in 1907, Camp Benning was created as a direct result of the need to prepare Doughboys for combat in World War I. In 2008, we commemorate the 90th anniversary of the combat participation of the United States in Europe and Asia in "The War to End All Wars," and the establishment of The Infantry School at Camp Benning near Columbus in 1918.

It is fitting that we remember that only one Doughboy is still with us out of more than 4 million who put on olive drab wool uniforms — Sgt. Frank Buckles of West Virginia. We remember him and his comrades who have "gone west" through the Doughboy Awards presented each year during the Doughboy Dinner each year during the Infantry Warfighting Conference.

What caused the U.S. Army to move this school to Columbus at the height of war and why was the school made permanent after only a three-week existence in tents and mud?

When thinking of the Great War, as World War I was called until World War II, the expression "the first modern war" comes to mind. The introduction in substantial numbers of new weapons: airplanes, submarines, tanks, poison gas and much more, are the first thought. However, many other lesser-known weapons and technology recently introduced on the battlefield made a profound impact on combat at the Infantry regiment level and below.

With the stroke of a pen, the standard U.S. Army Infantry company expanded from 100 to 259 men, now organized in four rifle platoons and a headquarters platoon. Each of these rifle platoons of 59 men was led by a lieutenant, with a principal NCO assistant, so the new positions of permanent platoon leader and platoon sergeant were created. The rifle squad transformed into an eight man team of seven privates with a corporal as squad leader. Two squads were designated a section and were led by a sergeant.

Divided into two "half platoons," the men in the First Half Platoon were assigned to two- to four-man teams and groups, using new weapons and tools to attack and defend in either trench or open warfare. Though almost every Infantry Soldier still carried a rifle, a number of new weapons were grouped with specialists who received extensive training in their use. The hand grenade throwers, or hand bombers, returned to the battlefield after an absence of almost 200 years. Rifle grenade cups that locked onto the end of service rifles were capable of launching fragmenting explosives almost 300 yards. The new automatic rifles: Lewis Guns, Chauchats, or the new Browning Machine Rifles (later, Browning Automatic Rifle, or BAR), provided crew-served rapid-fire weapons that one Soldier could carry and fire while crossing open country or flanking attackers from hidden positions.

The Second Half Platoon contained two squads with only rifles and bayonets. These transformed platoons were now machine-gun killing machines designed to return infantry movement to the battlefield. As the Doughboys arrived in increasing numbers along the Western Front, first the Germans, and then the Allies, left the shelter of the trenches and regained open warfare initiative the last six months of the war. The Germans produced a total of twenty tanks of all types during the war and the Allies never had enough armored vehicles to force a complete breakthrough. The return to battlefield mobility was achieved through the use of infantry fire and maneuver and coordinated indirect fire artillery.

In addition to these new weapons at the platoon level, the battalion and regiment fielded increasing numbers of heavy machine guns, mortars, and portable trench artillery. Soldiers began talking on field telephones and stringing communication wire. Each squad made certain that it assaulted across No-Man's-Land carrying at least one pair of heavy wire cutters to get through the multiple belts of reinforced obstacles — often flowing with strong electric current. Messages were transmitted by runner, carrier pigeon or flare gun — the portable field radio was introduced in the next war. Each leader had to "read" maps with grids marked in the French metric system complete with contour lines. Since the landscape usually looked like the surface of the moon following almost four years of artillery bombardment, each officer carried a marching compass and learned pace counts and how to turn azimuths. Because of aerial observation from airplanes or balloons, camouflage became three-dimensional and major troop movements took place at night. It was now acceptable for a man to wear a watch on a bracelet on his wrist, rather than carry it in a pocket, because of the necessity of accurate coordination with other units and artillery. Soldiers of the U.S. Army carried a variety of weapons into combat: five rifles, four pistols, five types of trench knives, three automatic rifles and three heavy machine guns. In 1917, each U.S. infantry company was armed only with 99 bolt action rifles with bayonets and one Model 1911 Colt Pistol for the company commander. Now, each platoon was trained by Allied or newly qualified American instructors in each of these weapons or techniques. Remember, all tasks had to be performed in the presence of actual poison gas on the battlefield.

When the United States declared war on Germany and the other Central Powers in April 1917, the Regular Army and Federalized National Guard units had just withdrawn from the Punitive Expedition in Mexico and the border. The School of Musketry, then located at Fort Sill, Okla., with the Artillery's School of Fire, resumed classes for a few weeks until the United States entered a war in progress. Beginning with around 128,000 Soldiers in the Regulars in 1917, the Army swelled to over 4 million Doughboys within 18 months. It would take time to build new camps, induct and train recruits, and manufacture uniforms and weapons. But, it would take more than a year to prepare a cadre beyond the few available Allied instructors to prepare this mass of civilians to go "over the top" in Europe.

The School of Musketry at Fort Sill became The Infantry School of Arms on July 23, 1917. As the Artillery's School of Fire grew, the units that became the 35th Division of the Kansas and Missouri National Guard arrived to organize and train at the same location. Soon, the infantry training cadre was crowded out of Fort Sill. First, the Machine Gun School transferred to Camp Hancock at Augusta, Ga., followed by the Small Arms Firing School shifting to Camp Perry, Ohio. The last of The Infantry School of Arms cadre to leave Fort Sill headed to a new location on the outskirts of Columbus. With about 10 days notice, among the mud and piles of newly cut lumber, a new army training facility was carved from the woods east of Columbus on Macon Road. After the daughter of a local hero, Confederate Gen. Henry Lewis Benning, raised the first flag at the new camp of tents and tarpaper shanties it was announced that the new facility was named for her father — Camp Benning. Less than a month later, the fighting ended on the Western Front with an armistice on Nov. 11, 1918. The end of the World War ended the construction of Camp Benning — several times. But the cadre of the new camp and other stalwarts in the Army fought successfully to keep a separate Infantry school alive.

The earliest known photograph of Camp Benning made as cadre from the Infantry School at Fort Sill began to arrive in October 1918. Note the tents, tarpaper shacks and the supply wagon.

National Infantry Museum set to open in spring

NATIONAL INFANTRY FOUNDATION
Cyndy Cerbin

In six short months, a national spotlight will shine on Columbus and Fort Benning as the new, world-class National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center opens to Soldiers, veterans, their families and everyone who appreciates the sacrifices Infantrymen have made and continue to make in protecting our nation's freedoms.

Infantrymen have earned more than half of the Medals of Honor awarded and have suffered nearly 80 percent of all combat deaths. Yet nowhere in the world is there such a monument dedicated solely to them. Americans outside the military have little knowledge of the Infantry's glorious history, which dates back to 1775, even before the birth of our nation. This museum was created to give the Infantryman his due.

The National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center is a 190,000-square-foot brick and granite structure nestled in the pines and hardwood outside the old main entrance of Fort Benning. It is the centerpiece of Patriot Park, a 200-acre tract that includes a new parade field, stadium, an authentic World War II Company Street, a memorial walk of honor and, eventually, a museum honoring those who have served in the Armor Corps. Adjacent land is available for new hotels, conference centers and restaurants.

Inside the museum there are six era galleries telling the Infantry story from pre-Revolutionary times to the present. A special gallery pays tribute to the wives, parents and children of Infantrymen, whose sacrifices are no less than those of the Soldier. The Fort Benning Gallery illustrates how the Army turns a boy into a warrior. It also commemorates the unique relationship Fort Benning has shared with its host city, Columbus, for 90 years. The era galleries include immersion experiences, where visitors will feel as if they are part of the battle, and simulator attractions, where they can experience jumping from a plane or firing weapons from a Bradley Fighting Vehicle.

In addition, the museum will feature a first-class restaurant and lounge, a large gift store and the area's only 3-D IMAX Theatre®. The museum's grand hall can be rented for social occasions and there is ample classroom space for school groups.

Alongside the museum, connecting it with the new stadium and parade field, is Heritage Walk. This flag-lined, 20-foot-wide path will give permanent recognition to any individual who has served our country or to those who support them. Commemorative gray granite pavers for yourself or a loved one can be purchased for $250 each. To request an order form, call the National Infantry Foundation at 706-653-9234, or visit its booth at the 2008 Infantry Warfighting Conference.

This $100 million project began with the dreams of a handful of dedicated and passionate Infantrymen and civic leaders more than 10 years ago. On March 20, 2009, they'll see their dream realized when the ribbon is cut on the new National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center. The grand opening events will draw guests from all over the world. The festivities will begin with a graduation of new Infantry Soldiers. The five-acre parade field, seeded with soil from the battlefields of each of our nation's wars, reinforces the significance of the legacy these young men have just joined. After the ceremony, the public will be invited to help celebrate the new museum's opening.

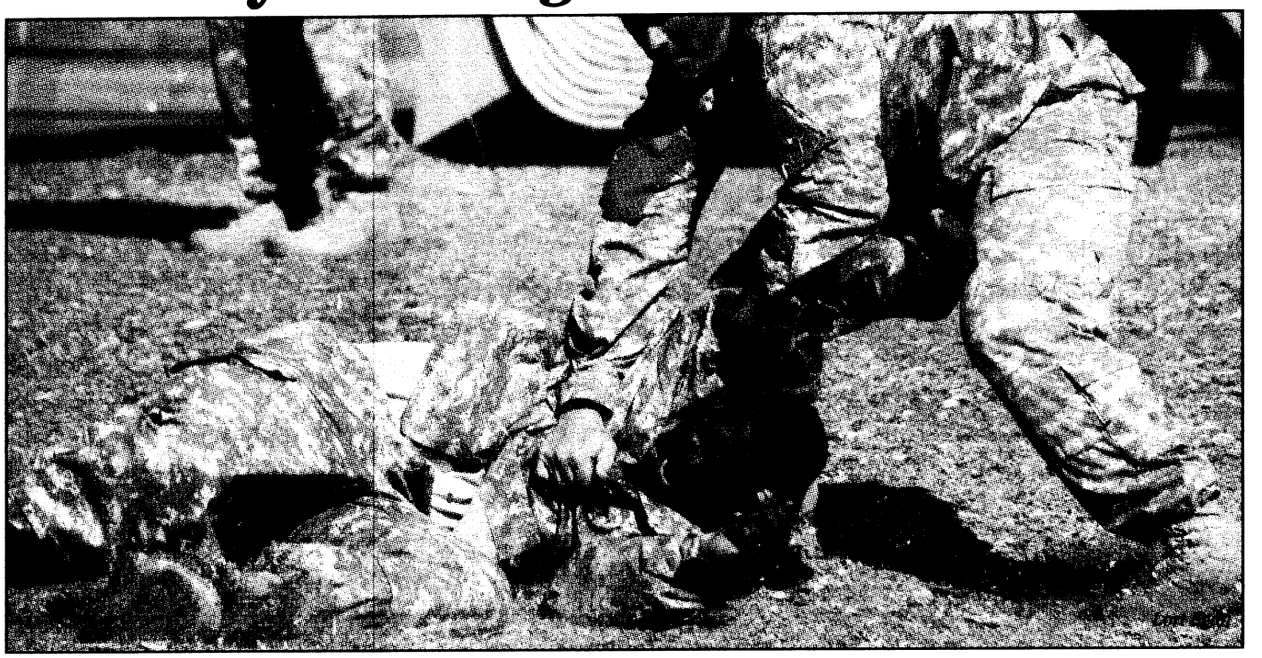
Infantry training



Ranger cadre demonstrate hand-to-hand combat skills during a Rangers in Action. Ranger Training Brigade is just one of the Army schools that prepare Infantrymen to carry the fight to the enemy.
"Our nation's enemy does not fear our equipment or technology, he fears the Soldier on the ground. Infantrymen are the lifeblood of our Army and must be agile, adaptive, and absolutely lethal. After a weeklong sandstorm in Kuwait, Staff Sgt. Willie Walker managed to arrange transportation for 46 Soldiers with the 13th Combat Support Sustainment Battalion. They arrived at Fort Benning's Freedom Hall Wednesday night after a 22-hour flight.

The unit's transportation coordinator said his goal was to get all 80 Soldiers on the same flight, which was scheduled originally for Sept. 13. But weather delays, along with other redeploying units and Soldiers returning on R&R forced the unit to split, returning on separate flights.

"Everybody's out of Iraq," Walker said.

Infantry chief talks progress

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, kicked off the Infantry Warfighting Conference Tuesday when he gave the Infantry update at the Columbus Convention and Trade Center. For the next couple of years, while Infantry Hall is renovated, the conference is scheduled to take place in Columbus.

This year's theme is "Infantry: the Heart of the Army in the Contemporary Operational Environment."

Wojdakowski talked about Fort Benning's core competencies in an era of persistent combat, emphasizing the current operational environment is among people with unfamiliar cultures in urban and lawless areas with competing factions, internal conflicts and extremists.

The Infantry Center's core competencies are supporting the operating force, training Infantry Soldiers, and its focus on the future.

Fort Benning has a unique diversity because of its tenant units' ability to give immediate feedback from the field to the schoolhouse, the chief of Infantry said.

"We are in the mobile training team business," he said. "When Soldiers can't come to the schoolhouse, we'll take the school to them."

In fiscal 2006, Fort Benning conducted 11 MTTs and trained 951 Soldiers in contrast to FY 2008, when 94 MTTs were conducted with 3,277 Soldiers trained.

"We get our requirements from the operational force," he said. "And what I'm hearing from the field is the Soldiers coming out of training are

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Michelle L. Gordon

All personnel who drive general services administration vehicles need to be aware of GSA card rules and restrictions before paying at the pump because Fort Benning leadership is cracking down on misuse and abuse.

"Every GSA vehicle has a credit card assigned to it and every card is distinct to that vehicle," said Ron Johnson, Installation Transportation officer. "What we've noticed over time is that there are five basic categories of credit card abuses."

Of the five abuses, Johnson said the most common is premium fuel purchases. All government vehicles are required to use either unleaded regular gasoline or E85 ethanol, and in some cases diesel. The use of premium or plus is strictly prohibited. Other abuses include: premium carwash purchases, fuel type mismatches, tank quantity mismatches and multiple transactions (see sidebar on A3 for explanations.)

The cost of these abuses typically ranges from $10,000-12,000 each month. During the month of July, Fort Benning spent $9,647 on premium gas, $285 on premium carwashes and more than $1,100 on fuel tank and tank quantity mismatches, totaling $11,085

RTB 'angels' shave heads to support coworker

After three weeks of radiation, Gail Goodwin showed up at the office bald on Tuesday.

So did Bobby Hicks, Joe Addison, Jacob Lawson and Frank Pingelski.

Sgts. 1st Class Hicks and Addison, Master Sgt. Lawson and Capt. Pingelski serve on staff at the Ranger Training Brigade's Logistics Office, where Goodwin has been employed as the brigade's travel technician for nearly 20 years.

Aug. 12, after she collapsed in the parking lot outside RTB headquarters on her way to work, Goodwin was diagnosed with stage three non small cell cancer. Doctors found four tumors on her brain and a mass attached to her right lung. They started an aggressive series of treatments, and Goodwin began losing her hair.

Friday, after her last round of radiation, she told a coworker, "I'll be bald by Tuesday." When her Ranger buddies caught wind of it, they decided to shave their heads "to show her we're in this fight together," Hicks said.

It's a fight Goodwin says she'll win, despite a very grim prognosis from the doctor.

"He looked me in the eye, and he said, 'This is going to kill you.' I turned to the chaplain, and I said, 'I don't like the diagnosis. I think I can beat this. I've got faith.' I've been around the Rangers long enough to know I have the strength to survive," Goodwin said Wednesday as she recalled that August day she spent at Martin Army Community Hospital with her "Ranger team" by her side. Later, when she was moved to a hospital in Columbus, RTB coworkers and their wives kept a constant vigil by her bed.

"They stuck by me the whole time, all of them, the whole bunch of them," she said. "I've got a support team like I don't know what, and I'm going all the way. I'll be alright."

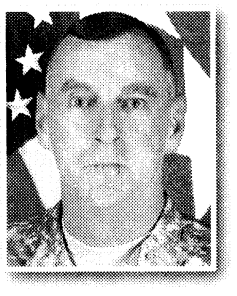
COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Positive effects of MWR programs, like Commander's Cup and child care, influence warfighting capabilities

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski



Morale has long been documented in American military history as directly influencing the warfighting capabilities of our Soldiers. Recognizing this, the U.S. Army has developed recreation capabilities to support Soldiers and Families.

The Army's initial focus was on physical fitness, activities that produce "feel-good" hormones in the brain while strengthening the joints and muscles of the body. Today, activities like the Commanders Cup help reinforce Army warfighting skills by focusing on unit cohesion in a team environment. These are the same principles Soldiers need for success on the battlefield.

As our Army grew from a small contingent of freedom fighters into a dominant world-wide force, it instituted a rest and recuperation program known best as "R & R." Scenic retreats in less densely populated areas were created all around the world, allowing Soldiers time to refresh themselves from the rigors and stress of battle. Fort Benning's Destin Recreational Area was one such place established during this time and remains a favorite vacation spot for Soldiers and Families.

However, Soldiers on the front lines worry most about the welfare of their Families back home. Starting with the Army Emergency Relief program in 1942, support grew from emergency financial security into today's Army Community Service. Programs now include services ranging from employment readiness to volunteer opportunities and many more in between.

Child care was also a major issue of concern for Soldiers and Families. Not wanting to lose well-trained personnel due to inadequate Family arrangements, the Army formed a comprehensive system of childcare supervision that is now the standard against which every child care operation in the country is measured. Programs exist for every age level and special interest and when needed, at any time of the day or night. Soldiers never need to worry about supervision for their children, and this allows them to concentrate on their mission.

While education has always been a fundamental cornerstone in producing proficient Soldiers, the digital and technological revolution that began a few decades ago has dramatically increased the need for continuing education. Military libraries have always been a primary source of knowledge, and today's Soldiers have immediate access to information from anywhere in the world.

Recognizing the supporting role that Families, civilians and all other members of the Army community provide for Soldiers, the Army's top leaders signed the Army Family Covenant last winter. This increases the number of comprehensive programs and services the Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation Command can provide to every member of our military society and gives our hard-working Soldiers, whether at home or deployed, peace of mind that their loved ones are in good hands.

Knowing the positive effects of morale, welfare, and recreation on Soldiers, the Army's extended programs and services will continue to improve. The world takes note of our military readiness, technological superiority, and rapid response to global missions. This is due in part to the support the Army continues to provide for Soldiers and their Families.

There's always something new to learn

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The cliché goes, you learn something new every day. Since I've been at Fort Benning, I probably average at least two or three new things a day. I'm always picking up military phrases, finding a new street on Main Post or trying an activity for the first time.

Last Friday, I added more than just a few new facts to my list, because I went to the Newcomers Orientation. Hosted by the Relocation Readiness Program, the orientation is for anyone new to post, whether a civilian employee, family member or Soldier.

On the bus tour, I picked up a bit of history. The screened-in porches on the historic homes used to be called sleeping porches. On warm Georgia nights before central air, they were the coolest place in the house. And did you know Patch School was built in 1931? It opened 11 years after Camp Benning became a permanent military post. The post headquarters, located where WHINSEC is now, was constructed five years later for $550,000, a hefty sum in the 30s.

I also learned about several organizations on post. Fort Benning Schools, Tricare, the Directorate of Public Works and others set up information booths in the Benning Club to let newcomers get acquainted with their products and services.

If you think you've heard of every association, club or department on post and know what they offer, don't be too sure. Did you know that the Military and Family Life Consultant Program provides free counseling for Soldiers and families that won't be reported to your chain of command?

What about layaway for all-inclusive vacations from Omega World Travel? You can lock in the price up to a year in advance and make monthly payments.

Plus, organizations are always changing. CYS is now Child, Youth and School Services. OSC is now the Community Spouses Club. One Soldier I spoke with couldn't get over how much we have grown since he was here 10 years ago. There's the new fitness center, the new PX and soon a new hospital and museum.

If you stay long enough, what's old becomes new again, said one of my sources, who has lived here for more than 20 years. You know the overgrown fields on Harmony Church that used to house barracks during World War II? That area will soon contain barracks again for incoming Armor Soldiers.

As BRAC brings even more changes to post, you might find yourself in possession of some rare tidbit like this. New people and new places are a part of everyday life on post. So go ahead, explore the outdoors, join a new group or just visit the Newcomers Orientation. The next one is Oct. 10. For reservations, call 706-545-4485.

Lest we forget: Remember POWs/MIA

USAAC PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Elsie Jackson

More than half of my classmates in the early 70s wore metal bands engraved with a name, rank and date around their wrists. The bands were prisoner of war bracelets.

I never wore one, because putting one on signified a commitment to wear it until a full accounting was made for the POW that bracelet represented. I knew I would be consumed with guilt if I broke my word.

But I have one now. It's not steel or silver like the ones worn in the Vietnam era, or red or black like the ones that appeared after Mogadishu. It's blue, because the 5th Regimental Combat Team Soldier it represents disappeared in North Korea on April 23, 1951. He was 19, single, the oldest of two sons. He had already earned a Silver Star, had faithfully written home every week for a year, and was a week away from the end of his tour.

Then he went on one more mission and was never heard from again. He was declared missing and eventually dead.

His name — Sam — is one of many inscribed on the Courts of the Missing at the National Cemetery of the Pacific in Honolulu, Hawaii. There are 8,207 servicemen still missing from the Korean War alone. I know this because I have been to the National Cemetery of the Pacific. I know this because I grew up calling Sam's mom "Auntie."

In 2002, Sam's family joined nearly 200 people at the cemetery. Auntie was presented Sam's POW medal, more than 50 years after her son was declared missing in action. To his family, the medal's presentation was the government's way of admitting that he had been a prisoner of war.

I can only recall hearing Auntie talk about Sam once. It was too painful. Without proof that he was dead, there was never closure for her. The nieces and nephews and cousins born in the years since he disappeared don't know him. Auntie is still keeping her silence.

Maybe that's why the POW bracelet with Sam's name on it is more important now than it was years ago, when lots of my peers wore them. Auntie is 90 now, and in the years to come, Sam's POW bracelet will have to assume the role of silent witness.

Auntie and her surviving son have submitted DNA samples in the hopes that one of the few sets of remains being repatriated are Sam's. The odds of that happening in their lifetimes are astronomically slim.

Since 1996, efforts by the Defense POW/Missing Personnel Office have enabled U.S. Army Central Identification Laboratory Hawaii teams to conduct 25 operations in North Korea, recovering what may be the remains of 178 Americans. That leaves a little more than 8,000. I doubt that we will ever account for them all. But we can, and should, honor them by continuing to remember their service and their sacrifices.

Since 1986, the third Friday of September has been recognized as National POW/MIA Recognition Day. That's today. Please take a minute to remember those, like Sam, who left home to fight for freedom and never returned.

Think about them and their families. Reflect on their sacrifices and be grateful that they made them. Remind yourself that there are some still paying for those sacrifices with loss, grief, false hope and uncertainty.

Lest we forget.

Armor chief updates attendees on MCOE progress

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Bob Purtiman

This year's Infantry Warfighting Conference brought Army leaders to Columbus to discuss the current and future state of the Infantry and see the equipment Infantrymen use.

During the Maneuver Center of Excellence update, the Armor chief, Brig. Gen. Don Campbell, told the attendees about the progress made in building the maneuver center.

At the last MCOE Board of Directors meeting, the Infantry and Armor chiefs signed virtual operating charters and there is now a truly integrated staff, he said.

"We are virtual and we are working together right now," Campbell said. "The Combat Development Integration Directorate is already operating VOC and it's going exceptionally well.

"It (the VOC) brings a tremendous amount of synergy for both of our branches. We're speaking with one voice as we go forward to warfighting forums," he said

Although relocating the Armor School from Fort Knox, Ky., to Fort Benning, is going to take a lot of work, he said, both schools have done a great deal of work to put everything together from a training standpoint. Once the schools are combined, 65 percent of basic combat trainees will come through Fort Benning.

"That's an incredible number," Campbell said.

Every Soldier who goes through basic combat training will go through the Armor School and fall under 192nd Infantry Brigade. The Infantry School's structure will remain basically the same, he said.

"We're moving over 30 courses here," Campbell said. "What is absolutely vital is we do not have any degradation of us fulfilling our requirements to the operational force. We've got to continue to train as we fight as we move the Armor School here."

The first Armor course begins at Fort Benning in 2010 and everything is being timed to coincide with facilities being built, ranges and training areas being completed.

The MCOE's commanding general is scheduled to be on board in August 2010. The position, along with the center's deputy commanding general and the command sergeant major will rotate between Armor and Infantry branches.

Another tough part of the move is the people piece, Campbell said.

"We are making sure that we care for our great Army Families and take care of our Soldiers and Department of Army Civilians as we go through this process," he said. "We want to protect their positions and interests."

He also talked about the support from the local communities.

"It's going to be quite an incredible feat to pick up and move a small city, about 30,000 people," he said. "The planning for that is going absolutely superb."

"We're excited about the move to Fort Benning," he said.

"It's going to happen. It's well on its way. We are committed to this and we are moving out."

pretty good ... good enough to be a member of the team."

Before, most training was done in the units ... now the privates and lieutenants are "pretty good and ready to fight when they get to their units."

There have been significant changes in the way Soldiers are trained, Wojdakowski said. In 2004, Soldiers spent limited time in the field, learned basic first aid, spent 80 hours on basic rifle marksmanship and trained to pass the Army physical fitness test.

Now with weapons immersion, Soldiers always have their M-16s with them, physical fitness prepares Soldiers for combat operations, wearing body armor and foot marches, Soldiers are combat lifesavers, trained in urban and convoy operations.

But the most significant change in training is in marksmanship, the commanding general said.

"Soldiers have to be ready to kill," he said.

who first diagnosed her with hypertension a few years back. That changed her life, Goodwin said. She altered her diet and started exercising. Then in 2006, she was diagnosed with lupus after the RTB physician's assistant noticed a rash on her forehead. With proper treatment, Goodwin said she "hasn't missed a beat."

In fact, it was likely the lupus — or the treatment for the lupus — that masked the symptoms of cancer. Goodwin hadn't a clue she was sick till that day in the parking lot when her left side was suddenly paralyzed. Doctors decided to act quickly, as did Goodwin. She surrounded herself with positive people and returned to work Sept. 3, determined not to let the cancer keep her down. And when it became obvious that she'd lose her hair, Goodwin bought herself a turban and went online to find creative ways to wear headscarves.

As it turned out, the hats and scarves weren't necessary.

"When I walked in and saw these guys bald, and they said 'We aren't going to let you go through this alone,' I decided if they can do it, I can do it," she said. "So I got all my angels around me and we're just all bald around here."

Fraud: Costs Fort Benning plenty

— which doesn't include multiple transaction abuse charges.

To combat the problem, Fort Benning Chief of Staff Col. Charles Durr has asked Johnson to send out monthly memorandums to each unit and directorate listing their specific GSA credit card abuses. The memos will give the problem more visibility and allow the unit leadership to take action. And although the majority of the abuses may be due to ignorance, Durr said he wants everyone on the installation to understand that misuse of GSA credit cards is stealing from the government and there are systems in place to find the perpetrators.

"Fort Benning and the Directorate of Logistics have implemented more stringent tracking processes to seek out and find fraud," he said. "All units and agencies are closely scrutinizing their (transportation motor pool) vehicle records because this is serious business and it won't be tolerated."

Knowing what is and what isn't authorized is essential to preventing GSA credit card abuse and Johnson said he believes it starts with education.

"Training is key," he said. "Commanders and directors need to educate their people about the misuse of GSA credit cards and the ramifications associated with abuse. I think 95 percent of abuse cases are unintentional — people not paying attention when they pull up to the pump and people not knowing or understanding what the GSA credit cards can be used for — which is why we need to educate and inform."

Most common GSA credit card abuses:

1. Premium fuel purchases — Do not purchase anything other than unleaded regular or E85 ethanol gasoline unless instructed otherwise. The purchase of premium or plus gas is strictly prohibited.
2. Premium carwashes — GSA vehicles are allowed two basic carwashes per month. Upgrading to the premium carwash for just a few dollars more may seem like a good deal, but it's not authorized.
3. Fuel type mismatch — All GSA credit cards are assigned to specific vehicles, which take specific types of gas. Using a GSA card assigned to an E85 car to purchase diesel for a truck is not prohibited, even if both vehicles are assigned to the same agency.
4. Fuel tank quantity mismatch — Purchasing more fuel than the vehicle gas tank will hold is not allowed. For instance, purchasing 25 gallons of gas for a 17-gallon tank is considered misuse of the card, especially if the extra gas is used for a privately owned vehicle.
5. Multiple transactions — Using a GSA card an inordinate amount of time during a month (more than once per day) is considered abuse, unless the vehicle mileage justifies the purchases.

Final 48 sums up platoon-level training

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Forty-eight hours of simulated missions, known as the final 48, prepare basic trainees for what they will see in theater.

It's the culmination of individual skills and squad-level teamwork that Soldiers have learned during the past several weeks of training, said Capt. Jordan Garrett, company commander of C Company, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, which began its final 48 Monday.

"Here is where we put it all together," Garrett said. "Here's 48 hours to use all those skills in the context of an enemy out there 24 hours a day. It works (Soldiers') situational awareness. Have them sit somewhere for a while. Let them get tired. Have complacency set in. Then something happens that they have to respond to. They have to be prepared."

From Forward Operating Base Rock, Soldiers in 1st Platoon conducted surveillance of Malone MOUT. After spotting signs of mortar activity, they entered the area, secured the buildings and killed all six insurgents within a half hour.

"The area we improved on the most is definitely planning," said Pfc. Kendall Thoburn. "We put together a solid plan to move through this whole objective: take it building by building, all our signals moving from area to area. We worked on our communication, because that's been lacking in the past. Each team leader, squad leader and platoon leader, they were all talking to each other. When you have a solid plan and good communication, it all flows smoothly to get the mission accomplished."

One Soldier was wounded in action, but thanks to medical training all trainees receive, a tourniquet was applied to stop the blood flow before Thoburn, the medic, arrived to administer the IV.

"This is the highest level they ever operated on here in basic training," said Staff Sgt. Billy Kelly, the senior drill sergeant who conducted the after-action review. "Their training, their physical fitness levels, their intelligence, their motivation and their aggressiveness enables them to take and clear this area with minimal problems."

Understanding their place in a team was the main goal of the exercise, Garrett said. When the Soldiers join units across the Army, they will need to understand how to function in smaller squads to achieve a platoon-level mission.

Thoburn said the realistic scenario summed up what they have learned regarding urban operations.

"Everything was covered in this scenario — from the littlest thing, like not crossing your feet when you move (sideways), to the biggest thing, like coordinating an entire platoon so we don't intersect fields of fire or clearing a room correctly," he said. "It helps you get a feeling of what you'll be doing when you move to your line unit or go to theater."

13th CSSB: Redeploys to Benning, greeted by families

"Now they're waiting for a flight from Kuwait." At press time, the 34 Soldiers waiting were expected to return from their 15-month deployment on Saturday.

"At least they're out of harm's way," said retired Chief Petty Officer Marty Martishius who drove 900 miles in 14 hours from Virginia Beach, Va., to greet his son, Sgt. Jason LaRoque. LaRoque is one of the Soldiers still in Kuwait. His mother, Penny, joked about not seeing any sand, but satellite images on the Web site eosnap.com show Kuwait obscured by sand and talks about a sandstorm covering the entire northern portion of Iraq to the Persian Gulf.

"It was a huge sandstorm," Walker said.

And a long flight, said Spc. Robert Hatchell, a chemical specialist from Chicago. "It's good to be back," he said.

Waiting for the Soldiers were their families, USO and Red Cross volunteers and members of the Patriot Guard. The unit's family readiness group decorated the holding area with signs welcoming the Soldiers home and balloons and flags decorated Freedom Hall.

Earlier in the week, the FRG prepared the single Soldiers' rooms in the barracks, making beds and leaving care packages for them.

In Iraq, the 13th CSSB's Headquarters and Headquarters Company provided command and control for 10 subordinate units and conducted logistical support activities for coalition forces from Logistical Support Area Anaconda, said Capt. Julie Stockelman, the unit's rear detachment commander.

"We are really proud of all our Soldiers and can't wait for them all to be home, and out of harm's way," she said.

Soldiers disembark a charter plane at Lawson Army Airfield Wednesday night after a 22-hour flight from Kuwait.

The family readiness group made signs to welcome home the Soldiers. Officials with the unit said they'll remain in place until the rest of the unit comes home.

BRAVERY UNDER FIRE

3RD HEAVY BRIGADE COMBAT TEAM
Spc. Ben Hutto

During a combat patrol outside of Jisr Diyala, Iraq, on May 8, an explosively formed projectile blasted through the lead vehicle of Col. Wayne W. Grigsby's (then commander of the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team) command security team.

A cloud of dust and smoke enveloped the lead vehicle as it rolled to a stop on the side of the road, hidden from the rest of the convoy.

The vehicle's gun turret was tilted from the force of the blast and its two front heavily-armored doors were missing. Two crewmen were dead and the vehicle's gunner, Spc. Saul Martinez, barely clung to life.

Crewman from the second truck began to secure the area around the vehicle, and two Soldiers from the third vehicle ran through the thick cloud that separated the front two vehicles from the rest of the patrol. Neither Staff Sgt. Michael Henderson, the truck commander, nor Spc. Stephanie McCulley (then a private first class), a combat medic, knew what was on the other side of the cloud, but they both knew that members of their team needed them.

"I felt the IED before I heard it," McCulley said. "They train us to wait and let Soldier's bring the casualties to us, but I knew if anyone was alive in that truck; they were barely alive. I didn't have time to wait. I just hopped out of our truck and ran."

When he made it to the truck, Henderson said, he doubted he would find any survivors.

McCulley heard a moan and crawled into the damaged vehicle to help Martinez, who was trapped in the gun turret. Henderson began sawing away at the straps of Martinez's harness.

Martinez's legs were badly injured, and as Henderson and members of the second vehicle slowly lowered him out of the gunner's hatch, McCulley focused on saving his life.

"When I put my hand under his IBA (Interceptor Body Armor vest), I was praying that he was breathing," McCulley said. "I was worried about a million things. I was trying to keep him talking so he wouldn't go unconscious again. In the back of my mind, I was worried he would lose his legs, but I just focused on what I was doing. When I finally heard him speak it was the most beautiful sound in the whole world."

Henderson focused on keeping Martinez talking as McCulley applied tourniquets to his injured legs.

"He tried to give me a bracelet to give to his wife," Henderson said. "I took it, but kept telling him that he could give it to her when he saw her. He just kept saying, 'Make sure she gets it.' I told him I would just to keep him talking. I knew if he went to sleep he might go into a coma and not ever wake up again."

Martinez remembers the incident clearly. He said that while McCulley was working on him he was worried that he wasn't going to make it home to see his wife, Sarah. The helpless feeling of lying back and depending on others to help was the worst part, he said.

"They were my two angels," Martinez said of McCulley and Henderson. "I remember lying there asking God to help me and they were there."

Ultimately Martinez, would lose both of his legs, but the aid he received from both McCulley and Henderson wound up saving his life and his career as a Soldier.

After more than a year of rehabilitation and several surgeries, Martinez was promoted to the rank of sergeant and is now a platoon sergeant in the Wounded Warrior's program at the Naval Medical Center in Balboa, Calif.

He is quick to point out that McCulley could have stayed by her vehicle after the incident, waiting to make sure the area was safe or waiting for others to bring him to her.

"I know that thought never entered her mind," he said. "She was a private first class, a mother of two, it was her first combat tour; I'm sure there were a lot of reasons she could have used to not come to me and no one would have faulted her, but she didn't. She was there for me and I know that she is one of the reasons I'm alive today."

McCulley, who was raised by her grandparents from a young age, said that her grandfather, Ronald Jobes, instilled in her a sense of pride in her country.

Jobes served with the 398th Infantry Division in France during WWII.

"All of my family is military," explained McCulley. "I was three or four when my grandfather taught me the pledge of allegiance. We said it every morning. He is very patriotic and loves his country."

That pride and love also extends to his granddaughter.

"I wasn't thrilled when she joined the Army," Jobes said. "She had a family and I wanted her to be safe, but I've always been proud of her. I knew she would do well. She was always smart."

McCulley, who received her Combat Medical Badge as result of her actions, said she is honored to have followed in Jobe's footsteps.

While serving with the 398th Inf. Div. in France, Jobes routinely volunteered for dangerous night patrols to prevent Nazi defensive preparations in his sector. Jobes went out on operations an average of three nights a week for three months. His service and commitment did not go unnoticed by his superiors. As a private first class, Jobes was awarded the Bronze Star for his exemplary performance in Eastern France.

McCulley's actions in Jisr Diyala also earned her a Bronze Star.

"I think it is interesting that we both received our awards as private first class," McCulley said. "Colonel Grigsby told me my grandfather would be proud after he pinned it on me. I couldn't help but smile after that."

Capt. Steven Hemman, McCulley's team leader at the time, praised both her and Henderson for their actions following the attack.

"It's important to remember that neither of them knew what was on the other side of that cloud," Hemman said. "Both of them could have run into small-arms fire or a secondary IED, but they didn't think about that. Their only thought was getting to that vehicle and taking care of their battle buddies. I think that says something about them both."

Hemman recommeended both Soldiers for the Bronze Stars they ultimately received and he believes that their actions kept a horrible situation from becoming much worse. He praised McCully's professionalism and calmness under fire.

"I can't say enough about how she performed," he said. "I know without a doubt that if she had not performed how she did we would have lost three Soldiers that day. We were all scared. It is how your body responds to a stressful situation, but she held it together and did her job. She did what she was trained to do. I think it says a lot about her and what kind of Soldier she is. Being brave isn't about not being scared. It's about controlling the fear you do have and performing through it. She did exactly that."

Editor's note: This is the fifth of a series of articles Spc. Ben Hutto is writing on 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's recent 15-month deployment in Iraq.

Soldiers who fall in this category will be informed by their S-1s and will be given several options in order to comply with this requirement. In addition, an effort is underway to ensure all Soldiers and their spouses are properly advised of the new options for designating death gratuity beneficiaries, and of the requirement to inform spouses, in writing, if there are other beneficiaries included other than themselves.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Zambrano throws no-hitter

Chicago Cubs' pitcher Carlos Zambrano threw a no-hitter against the Houston Astros Sept. 14 at Miller Park in Milwaukee. The game was relocated because of Hurricane Ike.

The last pitcher to throw a no-hitter for the Cubs was Milt Pappas in 1972. Zambrano became the first pitcher whose last name begins with a Z to throw a no-hitter. It was also the first no-hitter ever thrown at Miller Park.

Brewers fire Yost

The Milwaukee Brewers fired manager Ned Yost Sept. 15 and replaced him with third-base coach Dale Sveum, a former third-base coach for the Boston Red Sox. Bench coach Ted Simmons was reassigned in an advisory role.

Yost was in his sixth season as the Brewers' manager, hired from Atlanta after the 2002 season.

Ryder Cup begins

The Ryder Cup, the golf tournament that pits Europe against the United States, begins today. The tourney is at the Valhalla Golf Club in Louisville, Ky.

Biffle overtakes Johnson for win

With just 12 laps left in the Sylvania 300 from New Hampshire Motor Speedway, Greg Biffle took the lead from Jimmie Johnson and never looked back. Biffle's last win was Sept. 30, 2007, at Kansas Speedway.

It was the first race in the Chase, where every point matters. Kyle Busch, who started the race first in points with his eight wins this season, dropped to eighth in the standings. Jimmie Johnson finished second, and Carl Edwards third. Johnson and Edwards share the top spot in the Chase.

The Camping World RV 400 from Dover International Speedway, the second race in the Chase, begins at 1 p.m. Sunday.

USC retains top spot

Southern California held the top spot again in the Associated Press Top 25 college football teams after they routed Ohio State Sept. 13, 35-3. Ohio State is No. 13. Georgia, ranked second last week, dropped to third, behind Oklahoma.

California and Arizona State, Pac-10 teams, dropped out of the top 25, and Clemson moved back into the rankings. Florida State joined the rankings at 24th, the first time they've been ranked since the middle of last season.

Harris County rodeo features cowboy tradition

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"I thought everybody would think I was a cowboy," said 5-year-old Hunter Thomas, who wore his cowboy hat and boots to the 20th annual Harris County Cattlemen's rodeo in Hamilton, Ga., Friday. His grandfather, Desert Storm veteran David Struble, brought him to see the bulls, the best part of the show in Hunter's opinion.

"The bulls are my favorite thing because they always bump with their horns," he said. "I think they're kind of big."

Hunter said he wasn't big enough to participate in the rodeo, which featured seven timed events. Competitors from across the Southeast tried their luck at bull riding, bareback riding, saddle broncos, steer wrestling, calf roping, team roping and barrel racing during the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association event.

"That's some serious speed," said Alyssa Thomas, 11, after watching a cowgirl make a sharp turn around a barrel.

"I just love rodeos," she said, "something about the horses."

The rodeo is a family-friendly pastime, said retired 1st Sgt. Bill Hogue, past president of the Harris County Cattlemen's Association.

Growing up on a small ranch in Texas, Hogue learned the sport from his father. He has passed his love for riding on to his son.

"I've always been around cattle and horses, so I've always had that connection," Hogue said. "It's an extreme sport. It's an adrenaline rush. It's a lot of fun — the competition, the camaraderie of the cowboys. Even though we're competing against each other, we cheer each other on."

The annual HCCA rodeos include rides and attractions for children. No tobacco or alcohol is sold at the event. Proceeds from the rodeo benefit nonprofit organizations like 4H, Relay for Life and the Valley Agricultural Fair.

Dan Duval, a strategic planner with the Maneuver Center Realignment Coordination Cell, joined HCCA two years ago. He enjoys rodeo for its historical and cultural impacts.

"It's something that has been done in this country for hundreds of years," Duval said. "It has to do with making sure part of our American heritage isn't lost in the modernization and the industrialization of this country."

Rodeo also makes a good spectator sport, Duval said.

"There's human interaction with animals six and seven times our size and more than that. You have an 1,800-pound bull and a 185-pound cowboy on it — it's fun to watch," he said.

Their next big event is a high school rodeo in March, which will feature more than 800 competitors. For more information about HCCA, call the Harris County Chamber of Commerce at 706-801-0052 or visit the Web site at www.hccaonline.com.

FIT FACTS

Lori Smith

I want to be honest with you guys: I have been swamped this week and haven't had any time to do Fit Facts.

I am always trying to come up with a new exciting article to keep the three readers I have reading, but I just have not had the time to dedicate to my article.

So I went into my archives and found what I think is a pretty good article from about a year ago. Believe it or not, the holidays are getting closer and closer, which gives you more and more excuses to stay out of the gym. But I am here to help. Now may be the best time to hire a personal trainer, and below I am going to give you the reasons why.

These days, it seems that we hear an awful lot about obesity and how it's an epidemic and a vicious cycle that people have a hard time stepping out of due to insecurities when it comes to exercise.

However, there are a lot of relatively healthy people out there who are just as nervous when it comes to getting into the gym. Whether someone needs help putting an exercise plan together, significant weight loss or just dropping those last few pounds, I highly recommend hiring a certified personal trainer.

One of the problems is intimidation at the gym. Gyms can be scary, even for the most experienced exerciser. Walking into a room full of sweaty athletes, all who seem to know what they are doing, can be really overwhelming. However, with the assistance of a personal trainer, you can gain the knowledge and confidence to work out with all of the amenities the gym has to offer.

Another common concern is cardio. It can be confusing at the gym, whether it's trying to decide which piece is best for you or how to select the right program for your workout. A personal trainer can hone in on your fitness goals and help allocate the proper amount of time and intensity for your cardiovascular fitness.

Strength training is important, too. Most people don't like leaving the gym and feeling like they have been run over by a Mack truck or waking up to aching and inflamed joints. Whether it's bulking up or slimming down, with the assistance of a personal trainer, you can have a safe yet effective weight training program.

Personal training is an excellent option for anyone, regardless of your exercise experience, fitness levels or goals. We have several qualified personal trainers here for hire to help you with your fitness goals. For your initial consultation with a certified personal trainer or just a tour of the facilities, contact Jessica Troutman at 706-545-0248.

I hope everyone has a happy and healthy weekend and I promise to make more time next week.

Chattco falls to Schley County

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Chattahoochee County High School kicked off their first football game Aug. 29 against Calhoun County by winning 36-14. The past two games, against Brookstone and Schley County, weren't in the Panthers' favor. They lost to Brookstone 36-13 and to Schley County 53-34.

"We couldn't get anything going early and we couldn't stop them," said Coach Josh Kemp after their game against Schley County. "But we didn't quit and that is one of the most important things."

Talent and skill are only a small part of being a football player, Kemp said.

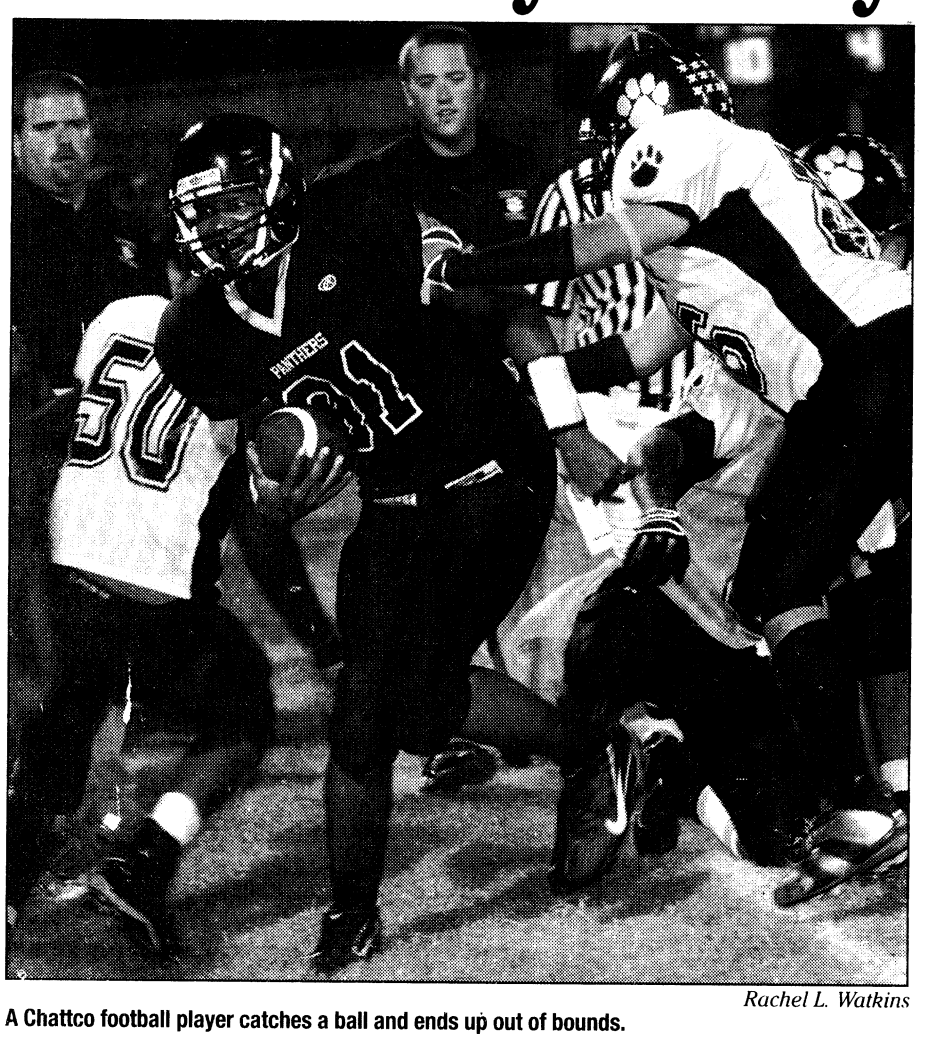
"It takes more than just skill and talent to play," he said. "It takes a lot of dedication and a whole lot of heart."

An outstanding football player is one who takes every moment to prepare himself mentally and physically for the game, Kemp said.

The team practices 12 hours a week where they stretch, run drills, make a game plan and play football. They are training not only for their games but for the state playoffs in November. For the past two years, Chattco has gone to the state playoffs and lost. This year, they hope to win.

Corey McCoy uses games lost as motivation.

"Losing the game just makes me want to train harder," he said. "I know we'll do better next game."



Rachel L. Watkins

The team has seven games left in the season. Chattco's next game is at 7:30 p.m. today at Central Talbotton High School. The next home game is at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 3 against Greenville High School.

Students run cross-country

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The last school bell of the day rings and 25 Faith Middle School students head to the field at the school to stretch, run two miles and sprint.

Since the cross-country running program started last month, students run two or three days each week in preparation for invitationals in October. The team will compete against schools in Phenix City, Columbus and surrounding areas.

"I love running," said seventh-grader Stormy Wilson, co-captain. "It has taught me when something gets tough, don't give up. Just keep trying until you get better."

Winning doesn't matter to Wilson. Effort does.

"It doesn't matter if you place first or last as long as you try your hardest," she said.

Coach Tanya Eckel said running cross-country takes a lot of patience. She started running in high school.

"The most important thing to remember in cross-country is not how fast you can run, but to keep a steady pace," she said.

"When I run, I get in a zone and forget about everything else," he said. "If I feel pain, it makes me want to train harder."

The first invitational will be against St. Luke School at 4 p.m. Oct. 6 at Lakebottom Park followed by a meet at 4 p.m. Oct. 11 in Schley County. For more information, e-mail Eckel at tanyaeckel@yahoo.com.

Cross-country meets:

- 4 p.m. Oct. 6 — St. Luke Invitational — Lakebottom Park
- 4 p.m. Oct. 11 — Schley County Cross-country — Schley County
- 4 p.m. Oct. 23 — St. Anne Invitational — Lakebottom Park

Children learn basics of soccer

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Team seven, a Child and Youth Services soccer team of 5- and 6-year-olds, laced up their cleats and headed to French Field for practice Sept. 10.

After stretching and doing toe kicks, they moved across the field in a game of "red light, green light," kicking their balls from one side of the field to the other.

"At this level, we teach them the basics of soccer — how to kick a ball a certain distance, what body parts they can use, and how to pass the ball," said Melloney Santiago, who has coached on post for two years.

Santiago said she tries to make it as interesting as possible for the kids.

"Kids have different minds than adults. You can't just tell them to run laps — you have to make it fun," she said. "We are in an era where video games and staying in air conditioning overrun outdoor sports."

Sam Knudson, 6, plays on the team.

"This gives him a chance to burn up some energy," said his mother, Pat Knudson. "I hope it will teach him how to be a team player and respect the rules too."

There are 34 soccer teams on post. They will begin games on Sept. 27. Team seven's first game is at 11 a.m. Sept. 27 at French Field. CYS offers other sports, including soccer, basketball and cheerleading, for elementary to high school students.

CYS is always looking for volunteer coaches, said Linda Laine, sports and fitness director at CYS.

For more information on soccer or other sports on post, call CYS at 706-545-2079 or go to building 104 on Marchant Avenue.

To volunteer, call 706-545-3582 or 706-545-1853.

Photos by J.D. Leipold

U.S. Army Top Fuel driver Tony "The Sarge" Schumacher roared to his 53rd career victory Sunday at the new zMax Dragway in Concord, N.C. setting the record for most National Hot Rod Association victories of all-time.

'The Sarge' passes Joe Amato in wins on the Top Fuel victory list

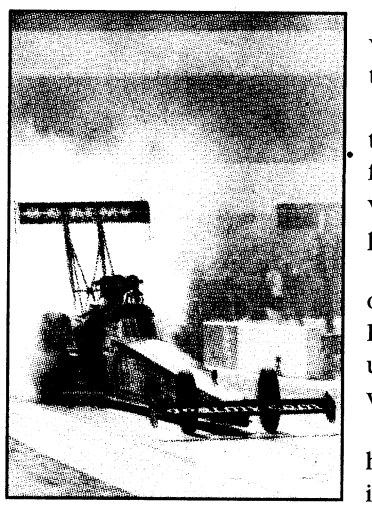
Chris Dirato

CONCORD, N.C. — U.S. Army Top Fuel pilot, Tony "The Sarge" Schumacher, became the winningest Top Fuel driver in National Hot Rod Association history Sunday after capturing the inaugural Carolinas Nationals at zMax Dragway.

Following a final-round victory over his former Army Racing teammate, Antron Brown, who moved from Pro Stock Motorcycles to Top Fuel a year ago, Schumacher moved around Joe Amato on the Top Fuel victory list with his 53rd career win.

"I have no words to describe how I'm feeling right now," said an elated Schumacher after posting a 3.882-second pass at 317.64 mph. "This has been just an incredible ride so far and I'm thankful every day for what the man upstairs has provided me."



The Sarge's win gave him one more victory than previous holder and Hall of Famer Joe Amato.

Schumacher's win in the heart of NASCAR country was his seventh straight and the 12th of the season.

"This is the greatest team that has ever been assembled as far as I'm concerned," Schumacher said. "How can you argue with the results that we've put up the last five seasons? I'm happy that we've been able to give our hard-working Soldiers something to be proud of."

He entered the 19th round of the NHRA POWERade Drag Racing Series 30 points up on Brown, but departed with a 46-point advantage.

"That is a forgotten item," he said. "Of course, we're in this thing to win another world championship. We clearly helped our cause a little bit here today."

"We need to go down there and concentrate on qualifying well," he said. "You can't get too far ahead of yourself in this sport."

The Texas event is the second of six races that make up the "Countdown to One" phase of the Countdown to the Championship.

Local group supports families of MiTT Soldiers

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Christen Stasevich moved to Fort Benning without her husband, who was still at Fort Riley, Kan., where he was training to join a military transition team. Knowing there must be other families in a similar situation, she became the Fort Benning point of contact for the Military Transition Team Information Network.

The local MiTTIN is for any family member, whether a spouse, parent or child, of a Soldier involved in MiTT, Stasevich said.

MiTT Soldiers train Iraqi military and law enforcement. Because the teams are not attached to larger units, families can feel alone at a new duty station, she said.

"When your husband leaves for this, you feel like you're flying solo. It was comforting for me to connect with other wives," said Stasevich, who organizes social activities for MiTTIN members. "It's nice to have someone going through the same thing. While everyone handles deployments differently, we are always stronger in groups. That's why the MiTTIN is so beneficial."

Shari DuSold, who got involved in MiTTIN when her husband deployed four months ago, agreed.

"It is a comforting thing, knowing there are people here I can call," she said. "They understand when you're at home, and you just need to get out.

Thrift shop lacks business, needs more customers

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

At 11 a.m. Tuesday, there were less than 10 people at the Fort Benning Thrift Shop. Most of them were volunteers.

Business is slow, said Melissa Rexroad, who has managed the consignment shop for two years. A number of factors have contributed to the problem Rexroad said, but mostly, she believes, construction in the lot adjacent to the store leads customers — or potential customers — to believe the shop is closed.

Less business at the shop can mean a loss in scholarship money for Fort Benning, said Donna Bottcher, thrift shop advisor.

Every year the Community Spouses Club, the organization that runs the shop, awards scholarships to spouses, military family members and retirees.

"A large percentage of the scholarship money comes from the thrift shop," Bottcher said.

The money is also used for CSC's welfare fund, which is awarded to schools and nonprofit organizations on post.

Last year, $26,000 was raised from the thrift shop, A Bit of Benning and fundraisers for scholarships and the welfare fund.

"The shop has just about anything you could want or need," said Barry Bruch, who has volunteered for a year. "You never know what treasure you can find in here."

Among the merchandise Tuesday were Longaberger baskets, a Dooney and Bourke purse, faux flowers, a dresser from the 30's, a vintage Formica dining table and an assortment of clothing, art, toys books and more.

The prices are reasonable, said Jennifer Johnke, who was shopping for her daughters' Halloween costumes.

"Why pay $20 for a costume she is only going to wear once?" Johnke said.

Gone fishin'

Cody Burns, son of Command Sgt. Maj. John Burns, earned first place during the Benning Junior BASS Club's fishing tournament Saturday at Uchee Creek. Cody caught five fish, weighing a total of 6.34 pounds, after six hours of fishing.

Kids learn fishing techniques

THE BAYONET

The Benning Junior BASS Club held its second fishing tournament Saturday on Uchee Creek. After six hours of fishing, Cody Burns, son of Command Sgt. Maj. John Burns, the club youth director, caught 6.34 pounds of bass, earning him first place.

The tournament was run completely by the nine kids who participated, from tying their own bait to weighing the results, said Sgt. 1st Class Randy Duncan, president of the Benning BASS Club.

"It teaches them problem solving. It keeps them motivated. It (also) teaches them conservation and environmental awareness," he said.

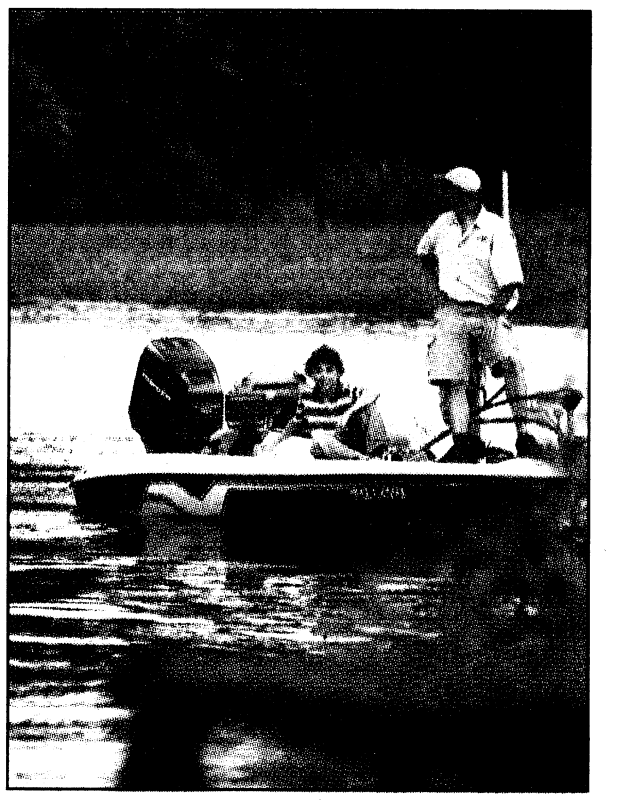
Laura Coleman, 11, said the club has helped her learn the different types of bass, including large-mouth, spotted and shoal bass, which are the three kinds of fish eligible to be weighed in the tournament. Fish also had to be of a certain size. Out of all the fish she caught, only two were keepers, Laura said.

"You don't catch fish all the time," said 9-year-old Jacob Myers. "But even if you don't catch fish, you still get to try. (Fishing) is fun. It gets me out of the house. I prefer to be in a boat because I feel the wind going against my face."

The youth club, which was started three months ago, is one of only four in the state, Duncan said. It is currently open only to children of Benning BASS Club members, but membership is expected to open up next year.

Tanner Hope, 12, said the hobby is "awesome."

"At first, you'll think it's just boring," he said. "But when you get that first fish, you will want to stay out there until you get an entire boat full. It's just being outside, seeing the wind move the water, and knowing this is the time to relax."



1st Sgt. Vern Story and his son, Scott, 14, head back to the shore of Uchee Creek Saturday.

Chattco students take home decathlon awards

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Nine students from Chattahoochee County High School were recognized at Chattco's football game Friday night for earning first place in the small school division and second runner up for Division II schools at the Page Foundation Georgia Academic Decathlon state championship in February. More than 100 schools participated in the decathlon at Berkmar High School, Gwinnett County.

"It's the first time any students at Chattahoochee County High School have been state champions," said Sarita Denny, academic decathlon coach.

The students answered questions in economics, mathematics, language and literature, music, art and science and gave a prepared or impromptu speech, wrote an essay, prepared a resume and participated in a mock job interview with judges.

"When they announced our school as winners, we were shocked," said Aman Punwani, team member.

The team, led by Denny, was Aman Punwani, Rachelle Cross, Jennifer Dillon, Corey McCoy, Ashanti McDow, James Bowyer, Leah McGlaun, Aaran Fernandez and Angelo Willis. The team assistant was Steven Tillery and the assistant coach was Roger Denny.

In 2007, Sarita, who participated in decathlons when she was in high school and coached decathlon teams at other schools, spoke to former principal Dr. James Martin about starting a decathlon program. She was given permission to teach a decathlon class in preparation for the decathlon.

The class ran five days a week.

MiTTIN: Needs new local point of contact this fall

"They understand when you're having a good day, but you still want to cry. The times that are the hardest are in the quiet and stillness, when he's not there. With this group, there's always going to be someone there to listen."

The first time her husband deployed, it was two weeks after their wedding, and DuSold stayed with her family in Texas. They were supportive, she said, but it's not the same as having a friend who knows Army life.

"We create our own family," DuSold said. "We are strong. And if you're helping someone else, it helps you, too. It's been a blessing."

The need for MiTTIN, which currently supports families of more than 170 Soldiers, is growing as more teams leave to train safety officials in Iraq.

Stasevich said her husband will return in November after 13 months overseas, and she is looking for someone to become the local MiTTIN point of contact for the group.

There needs to be someone here to help families who are unattached to a family readiness group find the resources they need, she said.

For more information, call Stasevich at 912-247-6318 or e-mail her at benningmittin@yahoo.com.

Chattco: Plans to starts a new 'tradition of success'

"Mrs. Denny put a huge textbook the size of two encyclopedias on a desk and asked them, 'Are you sure you want to be in this class?'" she said.

Outside of class, students studied after school, had essay competitions and made flash cards to remember subjects.

Preparing for the decathlon was challenging, but it was worth it, Dillon said.

"I'm so proud of the students because they took on subjects completely new to them and learned them successfully," Sarita said.

She said she hopes to keep with the winning tradition.

"One thing Chattco has looked for is tradition and we have started one. We have started a tradition of success," Sarita said.

God has a plan even through the biggest 'mess'

199TH INFANTRY BRIGADE
Chaplain (Maj.) James Rozmiarek

As chaplains, we perform multiple roles as we take care of Soldiers and families within our areas of responsibilities.

One of the chaplain's role is a counselor. Most chaplains perform many hours of counseling every week. Anyone seeking counsel has the right to confidential communication with their chaplain. This means that whatever is discussed in a confidential matter with a chaplain stays with that chaplain.

It also means that as chaplains, we hear every imaginable story that could be told. Some of the common threads woven through these stories are elements of despair and frustration. Soldiers and family members alike often say, "How did I get into this mess?" "I'm not sure what in the world is going on," and "what am I supposed to do now?" They are looking for answers during times of trouble and confusion.

As I listen to their stories when they try to make sense of their particular situations, I am reminded of my own story of faith and how God is at work through these challenging times. Perhaps the clearest demonstration of his presence in my life came 26 years ago when I first entered the military.

As an 18-year-old kid, I wanted to go to college and study wildlife or forestry. However, my folks did not have the money for college, so I looked to the military to pay my way through college. I learned at my local MEPS station that out of all the four branches, the Army provided the most amount of money with the shortest enlistment. So, in the middle of my senior year of high school, I entered into the Delayed Entry Program and had in my hands a signed two-year contract guaranteeing me an assignment in Germany as an Infantryman.

Shortly after graduation, I started basic training at Fort Benning with Bravo 3-1 Initial Entry Training Battalion. That was my first real experience of the challenges of life. I was at Fort Benning from June 15 through Sept. 23, 1982. For a farm boy from Wisconsin, I never knew a place could be so hot, so humid, so filled with sand, clay, snakes and other foreign wildlife. I experienced fire ants for the first time. Plus, I discovered mutant orange and black fuzzy ants living in the woods.

With all of these challenges, perhaps the one that caused the most fear was our drill sergeant. Our drill sergeant was Sgt. 1st Class Richardson, a former Navy seal, Ranger and pathfinder who stood six-foot, two-inches tall and carried a walking stick the size of a tree limb. He had the ability to put the fear of God into each basic training Soldier, including me. Needless to say, there were many nights I thought, how did I get into this mess?

I finally made it through basic and AIT, and 10 days later I found myself in Garlstadt, Germany, stationed at 2nd Armor Division (FWD). Here I was, Pvt. Rozmiarek, a newly graduated Infantryman, thousands of miles away from home in a country that does not speak English, trying to figure out what in the world was I doing with my life. What I did not know was that God was working behind the scenes, leading me every step of the way.

It was at my new duty station that I met some Christian Soldiers who were not ashamed to share with others how Christ changed their lives. At first I dismissed them, seeing them as fanatical believers. However, they would not stop sharing with me about the love of God. Over the next two months, I realized that they had something that I did not, a personal relationship with the Lord. I realized that I wanted what they had. So, on January 1, 1993, I gave my life to the Lord by inviting Jesus Christ into my life.

From that point on, my life had purpose and direction. For the first time of my life, I felt that God loves me and accepts me just as I am. He totally changed my life. Instead of going to college to study forestry or wildlife, I now was going to Bible College to learn more about God. Eventually, I would come back into the military and have a chance to share with others about God's plan for them and his love and acceptance.

So now when I have a chance to hear stories of Soldiers or family members and their troubles and despair, I help them to see God in the center of their situation. I let them know that no matter how hard, how confusing, how desperate they may feel, that the Lord has not forgotten or forsaken them.

The prophet Jeremiah says, "'For I know the plans that I have for you,' declares the Lord, 'plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future'" (Jeremiah 29:11).

In Psalm 91:14-16, it says, "'Because he loves me,' says the Lord, 'I will rescue him; I will protect him, for he acknowledges my name. He will call upon me, and I will answer him; I will be with him in trouble, I will deliver him and honor him. With long life will I satisfy him and show him My salvation.'"

Perhaps you are struggling through your own particular situation. May these words of God's love, acceptance and guidance give you the strength that you need to make it through the day.

SEPTEMBER 19, 2008

Meet me at the fair!

Now is the season for funnel cakes, concerts and livestock contests nearby and throughout Georgia. First, the Georgia State Fair in Macon opens on Sept. 23 and goes through Sept. 28. Next, the Greater Columbus Fair in the Civic Center is going on Sept. 25-28. Finally, the Georgia National Fair in Perry, Ga., opens on Oct. 2 and continues through Oct. 12.

Columbus' fair is in the Civic Center and brings more than 60 midway rides, games and attractions along with the usual array of fair food specialties. Fair hours are Thursday 6 p.m. to 12 a.m., Friday, 6 p.m. to 1 a.m., Saturday, 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. and Sunday 2 p.m. to 12 a.m. Ticket prices are $7 for adults and $3 for kids, nine and younger. Columbus' fair also offers a value pass for $20, which allows unlimited use of carnival midway rides, free gate admission on any one day of choice, regardless of age. It's the best deal for a quick fair experience. For more information call the Columbus Civic Center at 706-653-4472.

For a larger venue, the Georgia State Fair, held in Macon, operates as an annual charity fundraiser and dates back to 1851. According to fair officials, it has a long tradition of family entertainment ranging from its agricultural and artistic craft roots to its carnival midway atmosphere. Since 1942, the fair has been held annually to help raise funds for local charities and service organizations, raising more than $5 million in economic benefits to the community thus far, said the GSF economic impact statement.

Macon's fair kicks off at noon Sept. 23rd, with a ribbon cutting. The midway opens that afternoon at 4 p.m., and musical entertainment includes a "Macon a Star" (the fair's version of "American Idol") at 6 p.m. and a Battle of the Bands competition beginning at 8 p.m. The fair also invites kazoo players to the world's largest kazoo ensemble, hoping to make its mark in the Guinness World Book of records. Weekend events include the Miss Georgia State Fair pageant, on Sept. 27 and a Latino Day on Sept. 28.

Just a bit south of Macon is Perry, Ga., where the 19th annual Georgia National Fair takes place Oct. 2-12. The Georgia National Fair centers around livestock and horse competitions, competitive exhibits, food, midway rides and games, vendors, major concerts, street entertainers, family entertainment, circus and a laser show, said Michele Treptow, GNF's director of communications.

The GNF has been named one of the top fair events in the country by Amusement Magazine. According to the GNF officials, since its beginning in 1990, the Georgia National Fair has won 78 awards from the International Association of Fairs and Expositions for its livestock and horse events, competitive exhibits, and communications programs. The Fair has been designated a Southeast Tourism Society "Top 20 Event for October" 11 times and designated as one of Southern Living magazine's "Our Best 202 Things About the South First-Prize Fair" in 2002.

A Sneak-a-Peak of events is Oct. 2, with gates opening at 3 p.m. and opening ceremonies following at 4 p.m. A Patriotic Day, Oct. 6 allows armed forces members free entry with an ID card, family members still pay gate fees however. The GNC brings bigger names to their evening concert line-up, with 38 Special and Molly Hatchet taking stage Oct. 5, at 4 p.m. Other entertainers scheduled are Three Days Grace with Modern Skirts, Oct. 11, at 7:30 p.m. and Sugarland with Zac Brown Band, Oct. 12, also at 7:30 p.m. Tickets vary from $25 to $30.

Livestock and animal exhibits are featured at the GNC. Some popular ones include the Centennial Farm Story at the GNC's Miller-Murphy-Howard Building. It shows a historical perspective of farms from 100 years ago. The Georgia Grown Story at Heritage Hall features information about many of Georgia's commodities, such as fruits, vegetables, nuts, plants, flowers and wine. Visitors can see firsthand how the state processes and benefits from these goods.

Both events are within a couple of hours drive from the area, but feature a full day of events. The Georgia State Fair's ticket prices are $5 per day for adults, with kids 48-inches tall and shorter free. Gate hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sept. 23-27, with the exception of Sept. 28, gates hours are noon to 8 p.m. Midway rides open at 3 p.m. Sept. 23-26; at noon on Sept. 27 and 2 p.m. on Sept 28, for details check out their website at www. georgiastatefair.org.

The Georgia National Fair offers free parking and runs longer, opening at 8 a.m. to 10 pm. October 3-12. Adults pay $8; with free same day reentry with hand stamp, children 10 and younger are free with a paying adult. On the last day of the fair, Oct. 12, tickets are $15 and there will be unlimited rides from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Some restrictions apply, so be sure to visit the website at www.georgianationalfair.com. for details.

Dane Cook and Jason Biggs get themselves in a love triangle with Kate Hudson in the comedy, My Best Friend's Girl opening in theaters this weekend.

OPENING TODAY
MY BEST FRIEND'S GIRL

Smart, beautiful and headstrong, Alexis is the girl of Dustin's dreams. But after only five weeks of dating, the love-struck Dustin is coming on so strong that Alexis is forced to slow things down — permanently. Devastated and desperate to get her back, Dustin turns to his best friend, Tank, the rebound specialist. A master at seducing and offending women, Tank gets hired by freshly dumped guys to take their ex-girlfriends out on the worst date of their lives — an experience so horrible it sends them running gratefully back to their beaus. But when Tank works his magic on Alexis, he ends up meeting the challenge of a lifetime. Alexis is the first girl who knows how to call his bluff, and Tank soon finds himself torn between his loyalty to Dustin and a strange new attraction to his best friend's girl.

My Best Friend's Girl is a comedy starring Kate Hudson, Dane Cook and Jason Biggs. It is rated R for language and sexual content throughout, including graphic dialogue and nudity.

LAKEVIEW TERRACE

A young couple has just moved into their California dream home when they become the target of their next-door neighbor, who disapproves of their interracial relationship. A stern, single father and tightly wound LAPD officer (Samuel L. Jackson) has appointed himself the watchdog of the neighborhood. His nightly foot patrols and overly watchful eyes bring comfort to some, but he becomes increasingly harassing to the newlyweds. These persistent intrusions into their lives ultimately turn tragic when the couple decides to fight back.

A hilarious twist on the classic monster movie, Igor tells the story of one Igor who's sick of being a lowly lab assistant with a Yes Master's degree and dreams of becoming a scientist. When his cruel master kicks the bucket a week before the annual Evil Science Fair, Igor finally gets his chance.

With the help of two of his experimental creations, Brain, a brain in a jar who's a little light on brains, and Scamper, a cynical bunny brought back from being road kill, Igor embarks on building the most evil invention of all time, a huge, ferocious monster. Unfortunately, instead of turning out evil, the monster turns out as Eva, a giant aspiring actress who wouldn't hurt a fly.

Just when the load on his back can't get any heavier, Igor and his band of monstrous misfits uncover an evil plot that threatens their world. Now, they must fight to save it and prove that heroes come in all shapes and sizes.

RIGHTEOUS KILL

A pair of veteran New York City police detectives are on the trail of a vigilante serial killer. After 30 years as partners in the pressure cooker environment of the NYPD, highly decorated Detectives David Fisk and Thomas Cowan should be ready for retirement, but aren't

Before they can hang up their badges, they are called in to investigate the murder of a notorious pimp, which appears to have ties to a case they solved years before. Like the original murder, the victim is a suspected criminal whose body is found accompanied by a four line poem justifying the killing.

When additional crimes take place, it becomes clear the detectives are looking for a serial killer, one who targets criminals that have fallen through the cracks of the judicial system.

His mission is to do what the cops can't do on their own — take the culprits off the streets for good. The similarities between the recent killings and their earlier case raise a nagging question: Did they put the wrong man behind bars?

THE WOMEN

In New York City's modern whirl of fashion and publishing, Mary Haines seems to have it all — a beautiful country home, a rich financier husband, an adorable 11-year-old daughter and a part-time career creating designs for her father's venerable clothing company.

Her best friend, Sylvie Fowler, leads another enviable life — as a happily single editor of a prominent fashion magazine, a possessor of a huge closet of designer clothes and a revered arbiter of taste and style poised on New York's cutting edge.

But when Mary's husband enters into an affair with Crystal Allen, a sultry "spritzer girl" lurking behind the Saks Fifth Avenue perfume counter, all hell breaks loose. Mary and Sylvie's relationship is tested to the breaking point while their tight-knit circle of friends, including mega-mommy Edie Cohen and author Alex Fisher, all start to question their own friendships and romantic relationships as well.

USAMU wins 4 medals, best nation title

ARMY MARKSMANSHIP UNIT
Paula J. Randall

Soldiers of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit won four medals and the coveted title of Best Nation in the World at the Conseil International du Sport Militaire — called CISM — at the Rodberget Shooting Centre in Boden, Sweden Sept. 20.

"We were down by as many as 40 points," said, Lt. Col. Frank Muggeo, USAMU commander and USA CISM Team chief. "The work that these Soldiers did to come back was really something. Ultimately we pulled it out by 10 points."

The United States has not won this event in eight years, Muggeo said.

"We beat Scandinavian militaries that have a CISM Team in the military and Germany who competed with their Olympic Team shooting," he said.

"Our Soldiers were shooting in events that are only shot at CISM and they are not events that we practice throughout the year. This just goes to show how important the fundamentals of marksmanship are," Muggeo said.

The first CISM Gold Medal was awarded to USA's Women's Rifle Team Sept. 16. With 17 teams competing in the Women's 50-Meter Sport Rifle Prone Team Match, the Gold Medal went to Sgt. Kelly A. Dove and Spc. Nicole M. Cooper of the Army Marksmanship Unit and Army Reservist Lt. Col. Rhonda L. Bright, formerly of the USAMU. Bright scored 596 points, Dove shot 593 points and Cooper got a 586; a perfect score is 600; top scores are 590 to 595. In this match, the women

Francisco Montanez, a Ranger student in B Company, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, nears the end of the Malvesti Obstacle Course Friday. Ranger students climbed, rolled, jumped and crawled on the course while encouraging their Ranger buddies and reciting the Ranger Creed. "You refer back to the Ranger Creed, and that's what's going to get you through," said Staff Sgt. Miguel Antia, a Ranger instructor with C Company, 4th RTB, who helped A, B and C companies maneuver through the course during Friday's training. It is those principals that guide the Ranger to complete his mission, though he be the lone survivor, Antia said. For more on the Malvesti Obstacle Course, see A4.

Soldier Battle Lab becomes Maneuver Battle Lab

MANEUVER BATTLE LAB
Al Ahuja

With the signing of the Virtual Operating Capability charter, the Soldier Battle Lab, the Infantry Center's organization for experimentation, and the Mounted Maneuver Battle Lab, the Armor Center's organization for experimentation, began the formal process of transforming into the Maneuver Battle Lab.

"We have a function (here) that focuses on Infantry and a function at Fort Knox focused on Armor proponents," said Col. John Miller, virtual operating capabilities director of the Maneuver Battle Lab. "Now we're bringing those together under one organization to better replicate how we fight on the battlefield."

The battle labs fall under the direction of the Capabilities Development and Integration Directorate, which came under the VOC a little more than a month ago. But the transformation process for the organization began with the announcement of the BRAC realignment of 2005.

After the collocation of the two labs, Miller said Fort Benning will be the only installation for maneuver brigade level experimentation in the Army.

The role of the Maneuver Battle Lab in supporting the Maneuver Center of Excellence is threefold: to conduct analysis in support of individual Soldier and mounted requirements, to Basic trainees learn to save lives

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

In basic training, Soldiers are taught how to save lives.

The minutes between an injury and a medic arriving are the most important, said Capt. John Dudish, C Company commander, 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment.

Soldiers of C Co., 2nd Bn., 54th Inf. Regt., completed the battlefield first responder training Sept. 12.

In the course, they are taught how to stop bleeding, administer an IV, treat a collapsed lung and how to carry an injured person on a Skedco and litter carry. Soldiers have to know the difference between a pressure bandage, tourniquet and gauze and how each is used.

"The private's ability to respond to emergency situations is going to be the difference between life and death for an injured Soldier," he said.

Pvt. Justin Burkhardt knows the training is important, he said.

"This is knowledge that is necessary to have," he said. "It's knowledge that could help us save another Soldier's life."

First-aid training in basic training has "evolved 180 degrees" since Staff Sgt. Jason Anderson, a drill sergeant, was in basic training in 1996.

"We learned the basics but not this much in-depth," he said.

Anderson said it's important for Soldiers to learn as much as they can now so when they get to combat they will be prepared.

"If they rehearse, rehearse, and rehearse the procedures, it will become second nature to them in combat," he said.

It's necessary to put the Soldiers through stressful situations in basic training so they will be prepared for combat, Dudish said.

Along with first aid, the training included using radio communications and pulling security.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

The 2008 Infantry Warfighting Conference was held at the Columbus Iron Works Trade and Convention Center, in Uptown Columbus, Sept. 15-17. The conference was a tremendous success and provided a great forum to discuss modularity, lessons learned, training the force and Combat Training Center trends. We had the largest turn-out of leaders, from virtually all units in the Army that I have seen in my tenure as Chief of Infantry. Our audience included commanders and command sergeants major of corps, divisions, brigades and battalions as well as our resident students, allies, representatives of coalition nations, sister services, the local government and our industry partners.

The Infantry Warfighting Conferences have historically been held on Fort Benning with the majority of the events taking place in Building 4. Our venue was moved this year to allow for the renovation construction scheduled to transform Building 4 into the headquarters for the Maneuver Center of Excellence (MCOE). Next year's conference will also be held at the Iron Works Trade and Convention Center.

This year's conference continued the tradition of the National Infantry Association hosting a golf tournament in the morning and us hosting an Icebreaker Reception in the evening on Day 1. The golf scramble was held on Fort Benning and featured a full field of 36 teams. The icebreaker, which was held at the Columbus Iron Works Trade and Convention Center, provided a great atmosphere, in a world-class facility, and was ideal for us in welcoming our guests.

The conference began with my briefing on the State of the Infantry. This year, I wanted to focus on the conference theme: "Infantry: The Heart of the Army in the Contemporary Operational Environment." I placed special emphasis on Infantry systems as they enable our Infantry force operating today and in the future. Following my presentation Sgt. Maj. of the Army Kenneth O. Preston provided a superb briefing updating us on Army transformation. Our next speaker was Gen. Charles Campbell, commanding general, U.S. Army Forces Command. Gen. Campbell briefed us on the Army Forces Generation (ARFORGEN) model designed to meet the needs of combatant commanders. He also explained the concept and formulation of the Army Warfighting Forums.

Brig. Gen. (P) Donald Campbell Jr. led the afternoon program with an update on the relocation of the Armor Center and School to Fort Benning. His presentation identified the virtual command and control structure to be implemented by combining the Infantry and Armor Center staffs. The remaining presentations for day 2 were provided by brigade combat team commanders and focused on lessons learned from their training programs and combat rotations. The day culminated with the Doughboy Dinner and Award Ceremony. This year we honored Gen. (R) Hugh Shelton and Command Sgt. Maj. (R) Gary Littrell. Attendance was outstanding and among the distinguished guests was the current and past mayor of Columbus, many former Infantry School and Center commandants, and H. Ross Perot, the second person to ever receive the Doughboy Award.

Day 3 began with presentations from the three major training centers on how the operating force is trained for the contemporary operational environment. Following their briefings, Don Sando, Director of the Capabilities Developments and Integration Directorate, gave a presentation on future technology and material solutions for the Infantry warfighter. The afternoon of day 3 was dedicated to breakout sessions led by NCOs and junior officers with recent combat experience covering a variety of topics from future systems to leadership functions in today's Infantry.

The final presentation was on Land Warrior in Operation Iraqi Freedom and was provided by Col. William W. Prior. Col. Prior is the only battalion commander to have commanded in combat while equipped with the Land Warrior ensemble.

This was another great Infantry Warfighting Conference that served to update our operational leaders and students on the State of the Infantry. It also helped us renew our love for Infantrymen, the Heart of the Army in the Contemporary Operational Environment — HOOAH,

VARIOUS VOICES

How do you pinch your pennies?

I look at the price per ounce and buy in bulk. The biggest bag of cereal is always the cheapest. And I trust my wife's instincts because she has great economic sense. She always knows a good value.

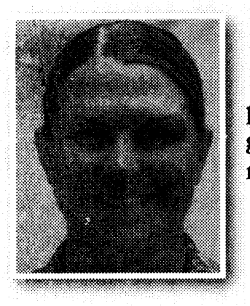
— Staff Sgt. Anthony Abeyta, 203rd Brigade Support Battalion

I save money in the commissary by looking at when they have sidewalk sales and better deals. They have manager's specials. You can save quite a bit — 50 cents here, 75 cents here, sometimes $1. It makes a difference.

— Retired Master Sgt. Clement Remington

I wait until the sales come. I use coupons. Sometimes you save $10 or $5. It's better than not saving anything. You can use your savings toward another expense.

— Juanita Randal, Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation



I go to the store as little as possible. If I do go to the mall, I give myself a budget. If I don't need it, I don't buy it.

— Spc. Kathryn Bostwick, 240th Forward Surgical Team

I stay in more instead of going out to restaurants. Gas is too expensive to be wasting it.

— 1st Sgt. James Manning, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

Know the code to save money online

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Michelle L. Gordon

I love taking pictures, but I am terrible about getting them printed and I don't think I'm alone. In fact, I think the hard drive has become the new photo album. When I want to show someone recent pictures of my daughter, I go to my laptop, not the bookshelf.

However, technology changes and hard drives crash, so I ordered 355 pictures from an online photo store to update our family photo album. Yes 355. It really had been a while since I printed photos. My total came to more than $75 and I was astounded. Sure I hadn't printed pictures in nearly two years, but $75? Shipping alone was $17.99.

I'm sure I could have taken the pictures to a store here in town, but I prefer the Internet. Online shopping saves me time and I avoid crowds, but it's not always the most economical way to shop. Unlike physical locations, online stores don't offer the same one-day sales and door-buster discounts found at the mall. So I pay for the convenience and the ability to shop in my pajamas.

However, most online stores do offer a way to save, but not everyone takes advantage of it because it requires research. They offer discounts in the form of promotional codes. The codes are free and can provide substantial savings, plus unlike the mall, the discounts can often be used in conjunction with other offers.

Finding promotional codes is easy. Before you hit "submit order" open another Web browser and search the name of the online store along with the phrase "coupon code" or "promotional code." Several Web sites will pop up with names like dealcatcher.com or dealcoupon.com. There are literally hundreds of Web sites devoted to online savings. Those sites maintain current and recently expired coupons codes organized by Web site.

When I realized my picture order was going to total more than $70, I looked for a free shipping code. I couldn't find one, but I did find three other codes — one for $5 off an order of $50 or more, one for 15 percent off if I paid with a Visa and one for 10 percent off my entire purchase. So instead of saving $17.99 in shipping cost, I saved $27.49 off of my total order by combining all three codes.

Finding the most valuable coupons for your specific Web site or item might take a few minutes, but it can save you money, which is always a good thing — especially when the holiday season is less than three months away.

• A columnist warned newcomers they'd not find their new quarters attractive unless they lived in Columbus, in which case they'd find the road to Fort Benning even less attractive.

• To allow residents to vent their frustrations, the paper instituted the Knockers column, giving readers an opportunity to relieve pressure without liability to court martial. One contribution, from an anonymous knocker, said: "Someone please tell the PX officer that the war is over and he need not continue to charge war prices in the Post Exchange."

• "Fort Benning and Columbus are dependent upon each other," a columnist wrote. "Some of us of the military personnel are prone to remark something like this, 'If it wasn't for Fort Benning, where would Columbus be?' As a matter of fact, Columbus managed in some way to worry along without a military post in her vicinity for almost 100 years. Those of us who belong to the military can not afford to be too independent in this connection, because, while it is a fact that Columbus has benefited in a financial way because of the proximity to Fort Benning, the city has other sources of income and is not solely dependent upon our support for progress.

"Likewise, neither can Columbus act too independent of the financial support being received from Fort Benning because this does run up into big figures within the course of six months or a year. All of which suggests that by working together the military and civilian population of any community can be of mutual benefit."

• To fund the completion of the post's third theater, one that would seat 2,310 people, post officials urged residents to attend a movie at one of the two established theaters each night. At least 1,000 people should attend every night to raise a surplus $600 for the completion of the new theater.

Corrections

In the article titled, Post cracks down on credit card fraud on Sept. 19, the statement, "Using a GSA card assigned to a E85 car to purchase diesel for a truck is not prohibited ...," should have read, "Using a GSA card assigned to an E85 car to purchase diesel for a truck is prohibited, even if both vehicles are assigned to the same agency."

In the Sept. 19th edition, 5-year-old Hunter Smith was misidentified as Hunter Thomas in Harris County Rodeo features cowboy tradition.

Also, The Bayonet published that the Attic Sale was on Sunday, too. It wasn't. We regret the errors and any inconveniences.

Fort Benning celebrates Hispanic Heritage Month

Speaker discusses contributions of Puerto Rican unit

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Soldiers and civilians from more than 10 Spanish speaking countries attended the post Hispanic Heritage Month luncheon Wednesday. The event included Latin-inspired music and dancing by a Columbus-based band, Son Tropical, and historical information about the 65th Infantry Regiment, the only Puerto Rican unit to ever serve in the Army.

Formed in 1899, the volunteer regiment served in both world wars and Korea.

In Korea, the highly decorated unit suffered heavy losses and casualties but persevered against the odds, said Gary Silva, keynote speaker for the luncheon.

"In searing heat and freezing cold, in mosquito-infested rivers and barren mountainsides, the men of the 65th served without fear," Silva said. "In battle after battle, all over the war-torn peninsula, (they) proved themselves the equal of any soldiers on the planet."

Silva said he is proud his father, retired Master Sgt. German Silva-Torres, served with the 65th Inf. Regt.

After 27 years in the Army, Silva-Torres worked on Fort Benning for another 26 years. He died six months after he retired, said his wife, Sara Silva.

"He was a very dedicated man ... my hero. He loved his Army career," she said. "He lost so many people (in Korea that) he didn't like to talk about it, but it's very important to talk about. It's important to remember what they did for the American country."

The regiment, called the Borinqueneers, struggled against discrimination in their own ranks, but ultimately proved themselves in combat, Silva said.

"Their courage under fire made Americans better understand and appreciate the contributions of all her communities," he said. "Because of them, the United States Army is today a far more capable force. Soldiers of all backgrounds stand side by side, working together to defend America's interests in every corner of the globe."

Silva said he could sum up his feelings about his father's unit best in Spanish.

"Viva los Borinqueneers," he said, "the memory and the history of what they did."

Gary Silva, owner of Weichert Realtors: Ellis & Silva, a Columbus realty company, addresses the audience at the Hispanic Heritage Month luncheon. Silva, the keynote speaker, gave the history of the Borinqueneers, the only Puerto Rican unit to serve in the Army, and spoke about the involvement of his father, retired Master Sgt. German Silva-Torres, with the unit.

Son Tropical, a Columbus-based band, played Latin-inspired music at the post Hispanic Heritage Month luncheon Wednesday at the Benning Club. The theme for the luncheon was Getting Involved: our families, our community, our nation.

Rangers take on Malvesti

THE BAYONET

"Don't be afraid of a little mud," said Staff Sgt. Miguel Antia as Ranger students crawled through muddy water to complete the Malvesti Obstacle Course Friday.

Antia, a Ranger instructor with C Company, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, placed fifth in the Best Ranger Competition this year, even with a slight case of pneumonia. What he hopes to teach Rangers students, he said, is endurance and perseverance to meet the mission.

"You have to gut it out and dig deep and try to find that spot in your body where you can continue to push forward with your Ranger buddy," he said. "This is testing the Rangers' endurance and ability and how much strength they have inside them. It's all your stamina and everything you (bring) to Ranger School."

After five days of Ranger School, students from A, B and C companies conquered the obstacle course, part of the initial Ranger Assessment Phase.

Students are pushed to their physical limit to help them learn teamwork, stamina and their own weaknesses, said 1st Sgt. Anthony Carter, C Company.

"You quickly find out if they have what it takes," he said.

After running the Darby Mile through a heavily wooded area filled with obstacles, Rangers took on Malvesti, a complex course that includes a 45-foot cargo net, a ladder and an eight-foot wall. They climbed, crawled, jumped and rolled, reciting the Ranger creed and encouraging their comrades.

"I'm not going to lie. It's a little bit of a smoker," said Ranger student Nathan Barry, A Company, 4th RTB, after finishing the course. "But you have everybody counting on you to get from obstacle to obstacle, so you can't really afford to feel sorry for yourself. You can't fail these guys in combat."

Soldiers were paired with a fellow Ranger during the exercise. If one fell behind, the other had to wait.

More than anything else, this exercise taught him teamwork, said student Chance Davis, C Company.

"It was hard," he said. "Your body gets sore, your muscles start to burn, you feel the sweat soaking through your pores. But you just keep on, because you have your Ranger buddy beside you, and you have to push ahead. You feel like you don't have anything left, and you see him and you give that extra 100 percent — and then some."

The Rangers will graduate in November. When they go to their units, many will be platoon leaders, Antia said. This training prepares them for future assignments, whether it's leading a platoon or conducting an operation overseas.

"We build Soldiers. We build leaders. That's our mission," Antia said. "Leaving this course, they'll be ready to lead Soldiers into combat."

Ryan Anderson, A Company, 4th RTB, eyes the rung above him on the horizontal ladder.

BRAVERY UNDER FIRE

Spc. Ben Hutto

"That was a bad day," said 1st Sgt. Patrick Ford, shaking his head as he recalled the day he and a fellow Soldier in D Company, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, earned the Bronze Star with Valor.

March 31, 2008, "was just a really bad day for us," he said.

That morning, the engineers departed Forward Operating Base Rustamaya, Iraq, to conduct another clearing operation to Sadr City. During the deployment, the company had cleared thousands of miles of road along some of the most dangerous routes in Baghdad.

"We had developed a reputation that every time we went out we were going to get hit," Ford said. "We had cleared a lot of IEDs and seen a lot of explosions."

Early in the day, Sgt. Dayne Dhanoolal was killed when the Huskey (a single-man IED clearing vehicle) he was driving along Route Predator ran over a deep-buried IED. After securing the site, the damaged vehicle and their fallen comrade, Panther Soldiers pushed forward to the nearest forward operating base, FOB Hope.

As soon as Dhanoolal's hero flight disappeared into the night sky, the company prepared for another clearing mission back to FOB Rustamaya.

Working its way back home, the patrol was rocked by another attack.

Ford was in the vehicle directly behind McCallister's Huskey.

"I heard him yelling over the radio, so I knew he wasn't dead," Ford said. "I just got out of my vehicle and quickly checked around for a secondary (attack). It was then that I noticed McCallister's vehicle was on fire."

Ford reacted immediately, climbing on top of the vehicle to free McCallister as the Bradley Fighting Vehicle carrying Spc. Andrew Mason, one of the company's combat medics, pulled up and dropped ramp.

"We weren't wasting any time," Mason said. "We saw the vehicle on fire and we didn't want our guy to burn to death."

Enemy fighters opened up with small-arms and machine gun fire as Ford tried free McCallister.

"I didn't really notice the bullets flying around me," he said. "I was just trying to get him out. His (combat vest) was hung up and I was having a hell of a time getting him out through the hatch."

When Ford had their buddy free, he discovered both of McCallister's legs were badly injured. Bullets continued to fly around as he and Mason passed the injured Soldier to Spc. Jacob Marshall, an engineer assigned to Mason's litter team.

"You could see these red flashes as bullets hit the roof of the vehicle," Marshall said. "It was crazy, but we just focused on getting him down and cared for."

The damage to McCallister's legs was so severe that Ford and Mason had to apply tourniquets on both of them.

"After we applied the tourniquets, everyone seemed to open up," said Marshall. Ford provided security, returning fire so Mason could continue to work on McCallister.

During the short Bradley ride to FOB Loyalty, McCallister began to thrash around, and although this was evidence of the Soldier's pain, Mason took it as a good sign.

"It was only a five minute trip, but it felt like forever," Mason said. "He was fighting so hard and I had to tighten his tourniquets ... but the fact he was fighting us so hard meant he wasn't fading."

Although Mason had previous combat experience and had earned his Combat Medical Badge he said experience never makes these situations any easier.

"You can never get used to it," he said. "I was used to hearing explosions and the noises, but that's because I realized there was nothing I could do about those things. I did know I had to get to him as fast as possible to make a difference. Even though things were going on around you, you realize that you have to focus on him and keep him alive. That's the tough part."

McCallister survived the attack, but lost both his legs. "The following week, another engineer company rolled into Rustamaya with a Soldier with the same exact injuries and he didn't survive," Ford said. "As bad as it was, it goes to show you that we were lucky that night," he said.

Or maybe it had something to do with training. Ford said he made sure all his Soldiers were combat lifesaver qualified.

"The standard was one Soldier per section," he said. "But what good does that do if he and the medic are injured? That night was one of many instances where we were prepared and it paid off."

Ford and Mason received the Bronze Star Medal with Valor for their actions. Marshall received the Army Commendation Medal with Valor for his part in McCallister's rescue. While they are all flattered to receive an award, they insist they did nothing special.

"It was really about saving my Soldier," Ford said. "I wasn't thinking about anything else. We are all like a family. Sure we fuss and fight one minute, but at the end of the day we are always there for one another. There was no way I was going to sit there when I saw that fire on top of the vehicle."

"I never thought about winning an award," Mason said. "That's not why you do something like that. As a matter of fact, it's the furthest thing from your mind. All you care about is making sure your brother is going to be OK."

Editor's note: This is the sixth of a series of articles Spc. Ben Hutto is writing on 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's recent 15-month deployment in Iraq.

Battle Lab: Changes name but focus remains same support concept development focused on MCOE proponency — including Armor, Infantry, and individual Soldier requirements — and to conduct experiments and report the facts.

"Basically the key mission of the battle lab is to ensure that the Soldier on the battlefield of the future has the best equipment, doctrine, training and leaders that he can have," Miller said. "Bringing the two organizations together will allow us to facilitate a combined arms fight from a maneuver perspective and synchronize our efforts to ensure we equip Soldiers appropriately."

And although the concept of combining the labs is complete, battle lab personnel are still working on the plan for the physical move from Fort Knox to Fort Benning, said Mike Obermeyer, chief of Fort Benning's Virtual Constructive Simulation Division.

Bringing the two separate battle labs together forming one cohesive organization requires an effective command and control system, a synchronization of Maneuver Battle Lab activities, and the establishment of operating procedures for the Maneuver Battle Lab to operate with facilities and personnel separated by 500 miles, Obermeyer said.

Currently, the Maneuver Battle Lab has three divisions, two at Fort Benning and one at Fort Knox. These divisions conduct live, virtual and constructive experimentation to gain insights and recommend changes to doctrine, training, leadership, organization, material, personnel and facilities to support current force development and future concepts for the Soldier, and Infantry and Armor formations up to a brigade combat team level.

Although the groundwork is laid, the battle lab's transformation is not scheduled to be completed until late 2010, Miller said.

"It's not just picking up personnel and equipment and moving it down here," he said.

It's more of a movement of capabilities, and it's a complex move, Miller said.

By the end of 2010, the Fort Knox division will cease operations and the Virtual Constructive Simulation Division here will assume those functions with equipment and personnel from Fort Knox, he said.

"We can do exactly what they can do at Fort Knox and Fort Knox can do exactly what we can do here, but if you just shut down Knox right now, you lose half of your capabilities," Miller said. Current Army requirements state that experimentation capabilities for two brigade-level units must exist within the Maneuver Battle Lab, and now this requirement is being shared by Fort Benning and Fort Knox.

> "Bringing the two organizations together will allow us to facilitate a combined arms fight from a maneuver perspective and synchronize our efforts to ensure we equip Soldiers appropriately."
> — Col. John Miller

"(The Battle Labs) inform research and development by providing Soldier input early on in the material development process," said Harry Lubin, chief of Fort Benning's Live Experimentation Division.

It's this early input that provides Soldiers with better products, saves defense dollars and develops tactics, techniques and procedures for the employment of technology once it goes to the field, he said.

"We're putting concepts and prototypes into the hands of today's Soldiers and saying, 'Fight this, based on these situations, and tell us what you think,'" Miller said. "We are very interested in making sure the next generation of Soldier has the right stuff and that we maintain the level of supremacy we have on the battlefield."

Other changes being considered as the Maneuver Battle Lab continues its transformation include expanding live experimentation to include Armor, cavalry and reconnaissance elements and increasing the experimentation force to encompass these combined manuever capabilities.

IS THERE AN ENEMY IN YOUR RUCKSACK?

Other Lights Give You Away at Night!

You turn on your flashlight to see and it shows everyone your location. If your enemy has a couple of bucks to buy night vision scopes or goggles, you are even more vulnerable. Do you really think that the BAD GUYS can't buy the same stuff you can? Even those little "key chain" type lights will not protect you.

ADD A FRIEND TO YOUR PACK!

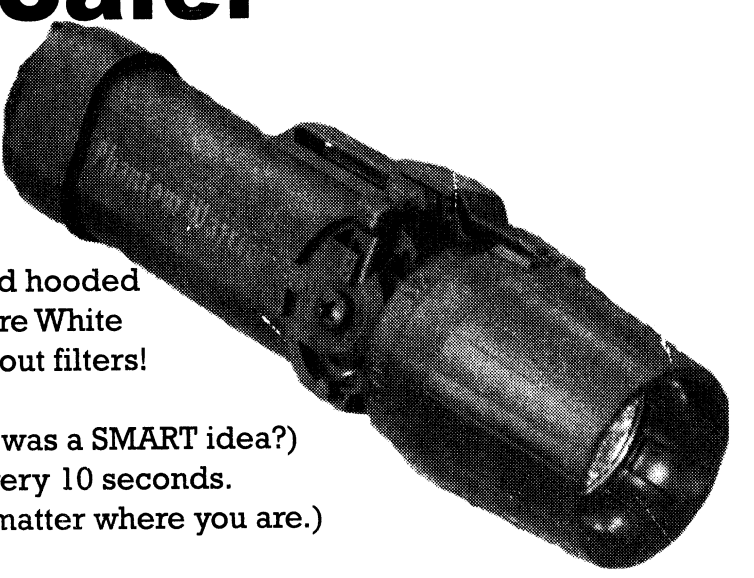
It Keeps You Safe!



The Phantom Warrior TLS™
Tactical Lighting System

This light was born to do it all--it is very bright and very dim, and hooded (Hey-No wasted light out the side!) It switches from NVG Secure White to a second color (red green or blue) and right into infrared without filters!

It runs on AA batteries (Who ever thought using expensive, fancy batteries was a SMART idea?) And will not burn your fingers or melt your gun or need new bulbs every 10 seconds. It is jumpable, droppable, waterproof (200 feet) and temperature proof (no matter where you are.) It even flashes in several modes!

We also offer engraving with your unit or name for free if you mention the code AUG08.

Call or email today and we will give you the information to get rid of the ENEMY in your rucksack and replace it with the best buddy a SOLDIER can have!

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

U.S. wins Ryder Cup

The U.S. team was the underdogs in the 37th Ryder Cup. The U.S. hadn't won since 1999. But the final day, Sept. 21, brought victory to the U.S. team that included Jim Furyk, Boo Weekley and Phil Mickelson. The European team had golfers Sergio Garcia, Padraig Harrington and Lee Westwood as part of their team.

The U.S. beat the Europeans 16 ½ - 11 ½.

Yankee Stadium farewell

The New York Yankees played their final game at Yankee Stadium against the Baltimore Orioles Sept. 21. Pre-game ceremonies included Julia Ruth Stevens, the 92-year-old daughter of Yankee legend Babe Ruth.

Other Yankees' notables at the park included Yogi Berra, Whitey Ford, Dave Winfield and Reggie Jackson.

The Yankees won, 7-3, over the O's. After the game, 18 fans were charged with possessing stolen property after stealing pieces of the stadium.

Biffle makes it two

Greg Biffle won at Dover International Speedway Sept. 21, finishing ahead of Matt Kenseth and Carl Edwards. It was the second consecutive win for Biffle, and he's got his timing right, since both are Chase races.

The win puts him within 10 points of the leader, Carl Edwards. Jimmie Johnson is also 10 points behind Edwards.

Kyle Busch blew his engine and finished dead last, sending him to the 12th spot in points. NASCAR travels to Kansas Speedway this weekend. Coverage begins on ABC at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Pats' streak ends

The Miami Dolphins routed the New England Patriots, 38-13, Sept. 21, at Gillette Stadium in Foxborough, Mass. The loss ended the Patriots' NFL record of 21 regular season wins.

College football

The Associated Press changed little with the Top 25 list Sept. 21. Both USC and Oklahoma remain first and second, respectively, after being idle over the weekend. LSU moved to fifth after beating Auburn, 26-21, and Auburn dropped to the 15th spot.

Vanderbilt managed to crack the Top 25 for the first time in 24 years, landing at No. 21 in the rankings.

Munson retires

Munson has been the voice of the Bulldogs for 43 years.

Benning course to host golf appreciation

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Golfers can golf for free Oct. 3 at the Fort Benning Golf Course from noon to 6:30 p.m. during Golfers' Appreciation Day.

"This is our way to show our thanks to golfers for playing at Fort Benning Golf Course," said George Cliff, golf director at the course.

Greens fees will be waived, there's no charge for golf carts or range balls, and there will be free food, Cliff said.

Some players in Columbus and Phenix City might not know that this course is open to the public, he said, and the appreciation day will give players who haven't played the course in years a chance to see the new layout, Cliff said. A couple years ago, the course was changed from a 36-hole course to three nine-hole courses.

The course can accommodate up to 450 people.

Tee times are not required but they are encouraged to make the day run smoother, Cliff said. Players will be able to play 18 holes. Tee times are 7:30 to 9:20 a.m., 11:30 a.m. to 1:20 p.m. and 3:30 to 5:20 p.m. Golfers can sign up starting today at the Fort Benning Golf Course. To sign up or for more information, call 706-687-1940.

The Follow Me Golf Course includes 27 holes, a lighted driving range and rental shop. It is open from 7:30 a.m. to dusk Sunday through Saturday.

Combatives championship set for Oct. 4-5

The U.S. Army Combatives Championship Tournament is Oct. 4-5 at Smith Fitness Center.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

More than 100 fighters will battle it out in seven weight classes at the U.S. Army Combatives Championship Tournament Oct. 4 and 5 at Smith Fitness Center. The two-day competition includes competitors from the active Army, National Guard and Reserves.

"Winning this championship is a big deal," said Staff Sgt. James Stelly, an instructor at the Combatives School and a judge in the competition. "It says you are the best fighter in the Army. It's like winning a national competition."

In order to win, you have to be a well-rounded fighter, he said.

"You have to be a jack of all trades because if you focus too much on one aspect of the combatives strategy, you won't succeed," he said. "You have to be able to work on all dimensions of fighting whether it be boxing, kickboxing, wrestling or jujitsu."

The preliminaries include take downs and ground grappling. No strikes, toe holds, groin attacks or ankle locks are allowed. In the semi-finals round, contestants can slap with an open palm, kick the legs, body or head, punch the body and use joint locks and chokes. In the finals, contestants follow advanced rules. This means hand strikes, throws and take downs, chokes and locks are allowed.

The preliminaries start at 9 a.m. Oct. 4. The semi-final and final rounds will start at 9 a.m. Oct. 5. Admission is free and the event is open to the public. For more information, go to www.infantry.army.mil/combatives/content/events/index.htm.

Army team finishes 4th at Dover International

David Ferroni

DOVER, Del. — Mark Martin kept the Army Chevy in second place for a portion of Sunday's Sprint Cup race, but finished in fourth-place at Dover International Speedway.

Martin, who started the 400-mile race second in his No. 8 U.S. Army Chevrolet, ran in the top five for virtually the entire event. And when the race was restarted for the final time with 43 laps remaining, he was running in second place again.

"I wanted to win so bad for this team and for our Soldiers that I lost my rhythm briefly at the end and got passed," said Martin, who finished behind three Chase drivers: Greg Biffle (race winner), Matt Kenseth and Carl Edwards. "I gave it everything I had as did this Army team. The pit stops were awesome all day, and as our Soldiers do every day, we fought to the end."

Martin's performance at the track known as the Monster Mile was his second straight top-five finish and his fourth straight top-10.

"We were solid from the get go and really felt this could be the day that we would pull off a victory," Martin said.

"This Dale Earnhardt Inc. team, led by crew chief Tony Gibson, gave me an incredible car to drive. We made very few changes throughout the race. It's just a real pleasure to drive for this team and have that big Army logo on the hood of our Chevy Impala SS."

Of the top-nine finishers in Sunday's Camping World RV 400, Martin was the only non-Chase driver.

"We're so close to that win and we're going to do everything humanly possible to get to Victory Lane in the final eight races," said Martin, who shares the U.S. Army/DEI ride with Aric Almirola.

The No. 8 DEI team remains 15th in Sprint Cup owner points.

PAYS program helps prevent poor parental sportsmanship

NATIONAL ALLIANCE FOR YOUTH SPORTS
Adam J. Shilling

Fort Benning knows it PAYS to have positive parents.

Youth leagues ensure positive parent behavior with the Parents Association for Youth Sports (PAYS) education program.

Linda Laine has been involved in youth sports for more than 30 years. And it wasn't too long ago she witnessed fights between parents, coaches and players on a regular basis.

Now, thanks to programs such as the Parents Association for Youth Sports, the fighting in her league has subsided and their sports have returned to normal.

"Before we started doing PAYS, we had a lot of problems on the field," said Laine, who is the director of sports and fitness with Child, Youth and School Services. "Once we started requiring parents to watch the PAYS video, those problems subsided."

Fort Benning, like many other installations across the country, has turned to programs such as PAYS to help restore the proper perspective to youth sports parents.

Every time a parent registers their child for a sport they must attend a PAYS clinic.

To date CYS has educated 238 parents through PAYS.

"Parents need to be reminded what they're out there for, what the coaches are out there for and what the kids are out there for," she said. "We used to have fights where parents would fight on the field and when we started doing PAYS that stuff went away."

Laine said the feedback for PAYS has been positive. Although parents can be reluctant to attend clinics at first, afterward they're always glad they did.

"Overall, PAYS in its entirety is a great thing for the parents," she said. "I think everyone should offer the PAYS program. I just think PAYS is great."

PAYS training consists of watching a 30-minute educational video and signing the PAYS Parent Code of Ethics. PAYS believes that by having parents sign a code of conduct they are more likely to maintain accountability for their behavior.

PAYS is one of many programs offered by the National Alliance for Youth Sports — an advocate for safe and healthy sports for kids.

The National Alliance for Youth Sports is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization based in West Palm Beach, Fla. NAYS offers a variety of programs and services for everyone involved in youth sports experiences, including professional administrators, volunteer administrators, volunteer coaches, officials, parents and young athletes.

NAYS programs are provided at the local level through partnerships with more than 3,500 community-based organizations, which include parks and recreation departments, Boys and Girls Clubs, Police Athletic leagues, YMCA/YWCAs, Catholic Youth Organizations and other independent youth service groups throughout the country. NAYS also has a strong presence on military installations worldwide.

VOTE
2008 General Election

As the Army's Senior Service Voting Representative, I strongly encourage you to participate and cast your vote in the 2008 General Election. Voting is the essence of our democracy and one of our most fundamental Constitutional rights. Our elected officials have very important jobs; the good news is, you have a voice in who is elected to do them...if you vote. You can exercise your right to vote by completing the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA Standard Form 76) or complying with the ballot request procedures enacted by the state in which you vote. The FPCA Standard Form 76, or other request, should be mailed or sent electronically as soon as possible. You should then receive your absentee ballot as requested. The Federal Voting Assistance Program has been working with the states to allow ballots to be submitted and received electronically. Check with your Unit Voting Assistance Officer (UVAO) for your state requirements.

Mailing guidelines differ from state to state; therefore, we recommend you check your state's guidelines by contacting your UVAO, or by visiting the Army Voting Assistance Program website at www.vote.army.mil. It is imperative that you complete and send in your ballot immediately to ensure it is received by your hometown local election officials no later than your state's deadline. If you are an overseas voter and have not received your regular absentee ballot 30-45 days prior to your state's deadline, you should complete a Federal Write-in Absentee Ballot (FWAB) and send it to your local election official. If you later receive your absentee ballot, you should also complete and send it in for processing.

The 2008 General Election is quickly approaching, so please don't wait until the very last minute to register and or send in your absentee ballot.

BE SMART. DO YOUR PART. VOTE!

REUBEN D. JONES
Brigadier General, USA

Local Teen Challenge program offers 'more'

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"A miracle" — that's how Laverne Bonner describes her experience with Teen Challenge, a Christian-based program for people struggling with addiction.

Before entering the program more than 12 years ago, Bonner had tried other solutions to "fix" the problem.

"I came to Teen Challenge by way of six different drug treatment programs and two trips through the Muscogee County jail," said Bonner, the wife of a retired Fort Benning Soldier.

Secular rehab failed to unearth the root of her problem, she said, which lay in a broken childhood and poor self-image.

"I knew there had to be more," Bonner said. "To continue to confess, 'My name is Laverne and I am an addict,' just did not wash with me. I knew what I needed was not any 12-step program but spirituality."

Bonner heard about Teen Challenge on TV but resolved not to give up control of her life by joining the program. However, a second imprisonment, this time in the cell next to her 19-year-old daughter, changed her view.

"My world was shaken. I had a real wake-up call on that cement and steel," said Bonner, who slept on the prison floor because of overcrowding. "It was then that I gave my life to Christ. I knew that I had been set free. I had no idea how God would rescue me or that he sent me to jail just to save my life."

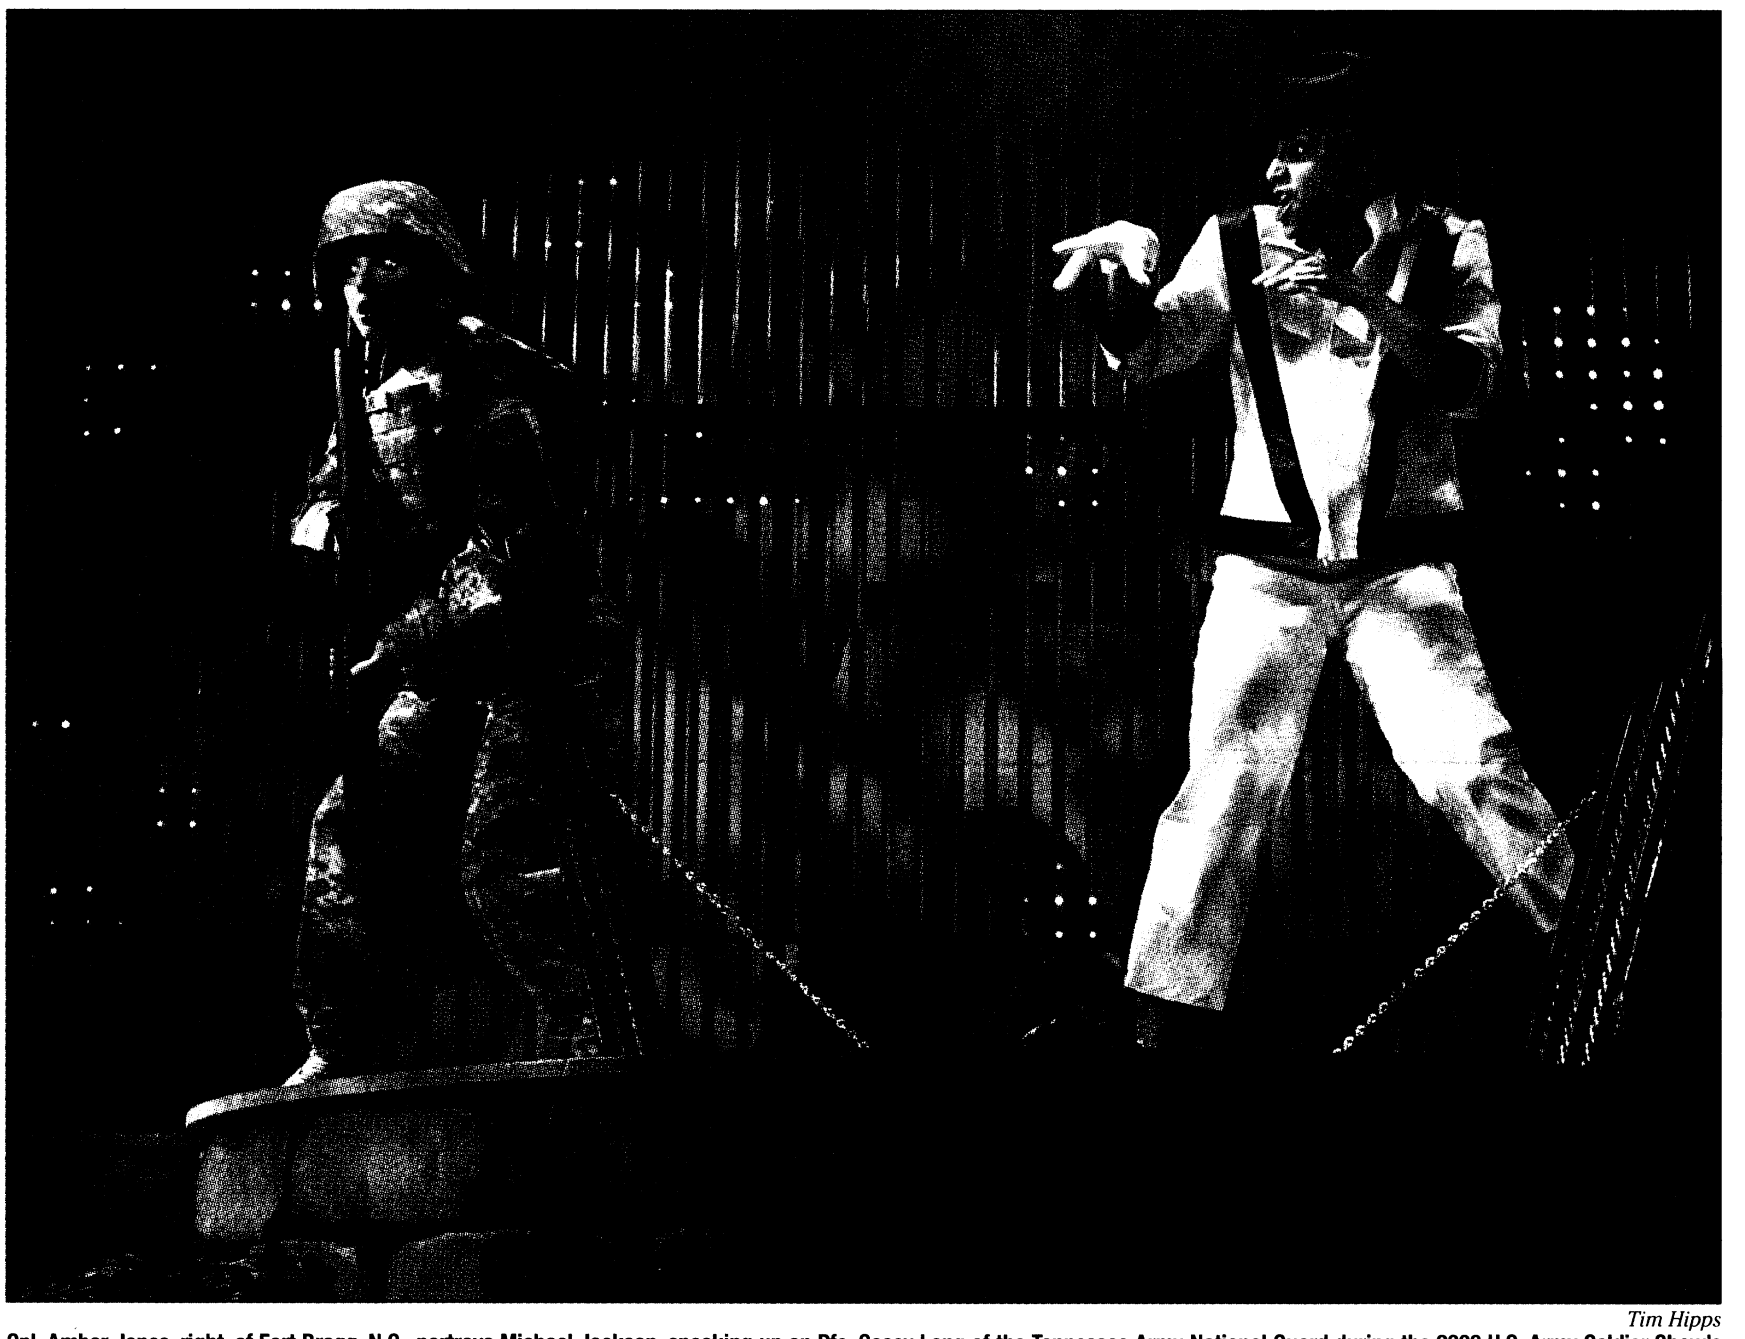
USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Michelle L. Gordon

The cast of the 2008 U.S. Army Soldier Show will take center stage Oct. 4 on Wetherby Field, allowing Fort Benning families to enjoy a Broadway-style production in their own backyard.

Each year the traveling show makes stops at Army installations around the world providing free entertainment for Army Families. Fort Benning is stop number 74, and with the motto "For the Soldier, by the Soldier," the 2008 show takes audiences to the frontlines of the Global War on Terrorism, said Shannon Poole, director of marketing for Fort Benning's Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

"It shows the Soldier's emotions both on and off the battlefield and it presents the many facets of a Soldier's tour in a combat area," Poole said.



Tim Hipps

Cpl. Amber Jones, right, of Fort Bragg, N.C., portrays Michael Jackson, sneaking up on Pfc. Casey Long of the Tennessee Army National Guard during the 2008 U.S. Army Soldier Show's salute to the 25th anniversary of Jackson's Thriller album and video.

The all-Soldier cast and crew knows firsthand about the hardships placed on Soldiers during a deployment because nearly half are combat veterans. Show director Tim Higdon said he wants the audience to get the impression that they have been transported to a forward operating base in the Middle East.

"The goal is to give the sense that we are watching the Soldiers return from a mission, who then take the time to put on a show for the audience," Higdon said. "Since we're not taking the show to Baghdad, we're bringing Baghdad to the show."

The Soldier Show is an annual event sponsored by Department of the Army Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation. It began in 1918 and was modernized in 1983. Each year thousands of Soldiers from around the world audition to be part of the cast and crew. Once selected, they are temporarily assigned to the Army Entertainment Division for the duration of the show, usually about six months.

This year's Soldiers come from a variety of units including aviation, biological, Infantry, medical, signal and transportation. In addition to being active duty, they also share an appreciation for music, dance and performing.

Chattco High School plans college fair

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Chattahoochee County High School will host a College Night, a fair to help students with the college selection process, from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 14 in the school auditorium.

The fair will include representatives from the Georgia Student Finance Commission and several area colleges, said Tawanna Brown, post school liaison officer, who is co-hosting the event.

Although geared toward juniors and seniors and their parents, College Night is open to anyone looking for more information about post-secondary education opportunities, said Beth Cook, the high school guidance counselor.

There will be information about the HOPE scholarship, potential careers, campus life, admission requirements, financial aid and www.georgiacollege411.org, an Internet tool for students headed to an in-state school.

The Chattco PIE partner, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, will also attend, Cook said.

"It's pre-planning," said Brown, who will also have a table at the fair. "You get an idea of what to look for, what to ask for. It's a daunting experience, trying to determine which college is best for you. You can come here and get information about the school you're interested in and other colleges as well."

Cook has invited technical schools and universities from Georgia and Alabama.

It's never too early to start preparing for what comes after high school, Brown said. This October fair will be in time for most early admission deadlines.

"Choosing a college is a big decision, so it's important that our students start thinking about it now, sooner rather than later," she said. "Everyone is welcome."

For more information, call Brown at 706-545-3062 or the school at 706-989-3678.

Economist offers school night meal tips

DECA
Kay Blakley

The time crunch that sets in when autumn school bells ring sends even the most organized families through the drive-thru many nights. But this a danger to both your health and your pocket book. Here are three tips to avoid that scene.

Combine shortcut ingredients like frozen vegetables, pre-shredded cheeses, dried pastas, packaged rice mixes and canned beans with fresh whole-food ingredients for a fast but healthy entrée.

Keep side dishes simple — juicy wedges of fresh tomato, baby carrots, radishes and cucumber alongside a simple hot vegetable zapped in the microwave is perfectly healthy.

Stock your recipe box with one-dish entrées that can be on the table in 30 minutes or less.

Think you can make fajitas for four in 20 minutes? Frozen stir-fry peppers and a packet of fajita marinade make it a breeze. Ramen noodles are a real kid favorite, but would you have the nerve to serve it at a family meal? Add some stir-fried chicken breast and frozen vegetables for a tasty 20 minute entrée that weighs in at just over 300 calories and a respectable 400 milligrams of sodium per serving.

Recipes for these week-night wonders, plus family favorites like Skillet Mac & Cheese, the best Chili Mac I've ever tasted, and a hearty Tuscan Bean Stew are ready and waiting for you in Kay's Kitchen on the Web at http://www.commissaries.com.

Show: Is 'Broadway-style' production

The show is basically a high-energy, 90-minute live musical review, Poole said. It's family friendly and will cover a variety of music ranging from country to R&B to oldies. It will also feature songs from artists such as Michael Jackson, Akon, Rhianna and AC/DC.

Fort Benning is one of the few outdoor venues on the tour, but Poole said the lighting is well adapted for the outdoors at night, making for a spectacular performance.

The show begins at 7 p.m. and is open to the public. Lawn chairs and blankets are welcome, coolers and pets are not. Food and beverages will be available for purchase. For more information, call 706-545-4499.

ASK THE JUDGE

OFFICE OF STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE
Anthony Tempesta

Q: I recently received an unsolicited e-mail asking me to donate money to the victims of Hurricanes Gustav and Ike. Could such an e-mail be a scam?

A: It is terrible to think scammers would prey on an event like a hurricane that causes widespread human suffering, but the fact is that they do.

Historically speaking, scam e-mails and Web sites have popped up within hours of hurricanes making landfall, so you should treat any such unsolicited e-mail as suspicious, and handle it appropriately.

"Hurricane scams" work as follows: Prior to landfall, some residents in the projected area of damage receive bogus e-mails asking them to "confirm" their bank information before the hurricane hits.

These e-mails direct people to bogus Web sites that could be used by scammers for financial fraud and identity theft. Other Web sites claim that legitimate Hurricane Gustav (or other hurricanes) relief organizations are being created, and at these Web sites people are asked to donate money by giving their personal financial information.

"Please give your charitable donations to the victims of Hurricane Gustav. The chaos and destruction experienced by the region and its victims is unimaginable. But you can help these people regain their lives by giving them some hope. Your donation will go a long way to giving these victims their lives back. Our prayers and compassion go out to them. Make a generous donation to the American Red Cross by clicking this link." Bogus but legitimate sounding domain name listed here.

Bottom line: if you want to make a donation through the American Red Cross or another disaster relief organization, go directly to that organization's office or its official Web site. Don't follow a link in an e-mail, and do not give any personal financial information in response to an unsolicited e-mail.

For more information, call 706-545-3281.

Bonner remembered Teen Challenge and signed up for the program soon after she was released.

"I knew that was the only place for me. I kept hearing about how good the program was, how people go there and they don't use drugs any more," she said.

Bonner spent a year in the program, receiving counseling, working in the center and studying the Bible. Before graduating from the program, students must complete a three-month internship. When Bonner began her internship, she expected to leave after a few months, "but God had another plan," she said. The Teen Challenge director offered her a job, and she stayed on as a full-time staff member.

Since then, she has seen countless lives turned around.

"We get to the root cause," Bonner said. "Drugs are a cover-up, if you will, for what's really happening. It often stems from people's childhood, things that have gone on, questions that have not been answered."

Today, Bonner is only too happy to share her story if it can positively impact another person. She struggled with drugs, depression, alcoholism, insecurity, a near divorce and abusive relationships, but her family has been healed and she overcame her addiction. Now, in her current role of mentoring Teen Challenge students, she witnesses miracles just like her own every day, she said.

"I've seen the power of God at work in broken people." Bonner said. "It's just amazing. I can only imagine the countless lives that have been changed over the years through Teen Challenge."

Teen Challenge International celebrates its 50th anniversary this year. The local women's center, which opened 25 years ago, has more than doubled in size, said Marty Hall, the program administrator, who has been with Teen Challenge for 16 years.

> "Drugs are a cover-up, if you will, for what's really happening. It often stems from people's childhood, things that have gone on, questions that have not been answered."
> — Laverne Bonner

At the women's center, students learn to overcome their dependency on drugs, alcohol, eating disorders, unsafe relationships and other life controlling problems.

The 15-month program has proven successful over the past several years, Hall said.

"We call it the Jesus factor," she said. "We're teaching a student to connect with God and process life's problems through prayer — be victors and not victims. We don't want anybody coming into the program and leaving the same. People who came in hopeless, we're giving them a hope, a future and a changed life."

Teen Challenge is always looking for volunteers, Hall said. They can work with students, do clerical work or help raise funds.

For more information about the program, call 706-507-3705.

Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur services are available

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Neil Block

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year (year 5769) also known as The Day of Judgment, will be ushered in at sundown Monday. It is observed and celebrated for two days by Conservative and Orthodox Jews, and for one day by Reform Jews.

According to Jewish tradition, it is the birthday of the world and it is the day when God begins his annual assessment of the merits and worth of all its inhabitants to determine their fate for the year to come.

Those deemed righteous and worthy are immediately inscribed in the Book of Life and Blessing. Those whose scales of judgment do not tip immediately for inscription in the Book of Life and Blessing are given ten days for spiritual self-examination and for repentance and redress and redirection of their actions and lives for the final judgment.

Final judgment occurs on Yom Kippur, The Day of Atonement. This year Yom Kippur begins on the evening of Oct. 8 and continues through Oct. 9. Yom Kippur is a fasting day.

Intensive prayer is the central activity during these high Holy Days. Acknowledgment of God's sovereignty over the world and His rulership over all mankind are the major themes of our prayers on these Days of Obligation.

The traditional greeting for Rosh Hashanah is, "May you be inscribed in the Book of Life." On Yom Kippur the greeting is, "May you be sealed in the Book of Life."

The special Biblical precept that is most identified with Rosh Hashanah is the sounding of the ram's horn — or Shofar.

The sound of Shofar has been regarded from time immemorial as a call to penitence and a reminder of the binding of Isaac (Genesis 22). The text describes Abraham's test of faithfulness to God, culminating in the substitution of a ram whose horns were caught in a bush, as a sacrifice in place of Isaac. Jewish tradition also links the sounding of the Shofar to God's revelation at Mount Sinai and to heralding the long anticipated Messianic period.

Jewish people and their families are invited to observe these holy days and attend services with either of the two local area congregations. Shearith Israel is a conservative congregation. Temple Israel is a reform congregation. Both are located just off Macon Road and Interstate I-185, about eight miles from the main gate of Fort Benning. Each congregation has a slightly different schedule for their worship services, so contact the temples for details. Shearith Israel is located at 2550 Wynnton Road (the western extension of Macon Road), one mile from the interstate. The phone number is 706-323-1443. Temple Israel is located at 1617 Wildwood Avenue, one block west of Shearith Israel and three blocks north. The phone number is 706-323-1617.

For more information on observing these holy days, contact your unit chaplain or me at 706-327-3843.

Whippet! Whippet good!

Photos by Elsie Jackson

Although these whippets aren't what Devo was singing about in the 1980s song Whip it, they are often the first breed judged in a show. Upcoming dog shows include Oct.18-19 in Albany, Ga.; Oct. 23-26 in Marietta, Ga.; Nov. 6-9 in Decatur, Ala.; and, Nov. 21-23 in Montgomery, Ala.

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Elsie Jackson

Poodles and schnauzers and Danes, oh my!

If you look in any dictionary for a definition of "organized chaos" you will find a picture of a dog show in full swing. I drove to Atlanta for two days of a four-day event, and if you like dogs and there is a show near you, it's inexpensive entertainment.

There are basically two kinds of dog shows — conformation and obedience.

In conformation, or breed, dogs are judged by how closely they conform to a breed standard recognized by the American Kennel Club. At its simplest definition, a conformation ring is a process-of-elimination beauty contest.

The dogs judged best male (dog) and best female (bitch) in each breed are eligible to win one to five points toward the title "champion." It takes 15 points to make a champion, to include two "majors," or wins of three or more points at one show.

Handlers in the conformation ring carry treats or toys to keep their dog's attention and as a reward. The "bait" of choice is traditionally a piece of cooked liver. The breeds are organized in to seven groups. For example, the beagles and bloodhounds will be listed in the hound group, the Shetland sheepdogs and border collies are herding dogs.

The judge evaluates each class and places the top four dogs. The winner of each class is judged against all the male (or female) class winners. One male dog and one female dog will be named "winners, dog" or "winners, bitch." These two winners win the breed points. Then the ring steward will call dogs entered for Best of Breed competition only and the two winners back into the ring to be judged for Best of Breed.

When the breed judging is complete, group judging begins. All dogs named Best of Breed are judged by group. The group judge awards group placements from one through four. When the group judging is finished, the seven group winners come back to the ring to be judged for Best in Show.

And then there are the obedience rings, where the dog and handler team earns obedience titles by working their way through different levels of exercises. Think Greatest American Dog.

A perfect score in the Novice, Open and Utility rings is 200. To earn a qualifying score, the dog must score at least 170 points and score 50 percent or higher on each exercise. The exercises are individual, with the dog and handler working together in the ring under the direction of the judge and group, with all of the dogs and handlers in the ring at the same time.

To earn an obedience title, the dog must earn three "legs" or qualifying scores.

And those long names? The AKC requires each dog registered to have a unique name, up to 25 letters long. Breeders and owners often use a prefix identifying their kennel, or part of one of the dog's parents names in the mix. Sometimes all of the puppies in the litter will be given theme names to help identify the litter they are from without pulling out files.

One of my Australian terriers was Qantas Ultimo Max because he was bred by Qantas Kennel. He was from the "U" litter, and for whatever reason had Max thrown in. Of course, we didn't holler "Qantas Ultimo Max" out the back door when we called him into the house. We just used his call name, Max.

Some special dogs compete in both the breed and obedience ring. Owners of these dogs like to say that a truly well balanced dog has a breed title in front and obedience titles in back of his name.

If you are flipping through a catalog and see a dog listed as "50 Ch. Flat Shoals Bubba U.D.," you know that the handler in the ring wearing armband 50 is handling a dog who is a champion in the conformation ring bred by Flat Shoals Kennel and has earned the obedience title "Utility Dog."

If you go to a dog show, you'll find lots of dog lovers who are usually more than willing to talk to you about their dog, your dog and just about anything else related to dogs. But just before they enter the ring is not a good time to try to strike up a conversation with someone.

To find a show near you, visit www.onofrio.com, and click on either "closed shows" or "upcoming shows." A show that is closed is no longer accepting entries and will take place within two to three weeks. Clicking on and scrolling through the show's premium list will usually turn up a map and directions to the show site. Or visit the American Kennel Club Web site at www.akc.org, and click on "events."

Find a show close to you. Take a chair and position it outside the breed or obedience ring of your choice.

Now ... sit! stay!

Irene Lynn, of Birmingham, Ala., and standard poodle Howlynn's Dusty Miller wait to be called for the long sit, the first of two group exercises for the open obedience class.

OPENING TODAY
MIRACLE OF ST. ANNA

Four soldiers from the Army's Negro 92nd Division find themselves separated from their unit and behind enemy lines. Risking their lives for a country in which they are treated with less respect than the enemy they are fighting, they discover humanity in the small Tuscan village of St. Anna di Stazzema.

Directed by Spike Lee, Miracle of St. Anna is a drama adaptation starring Derek Lukem, Michael Ealy, Laz Alonso and Omar Benson Miller. It is rated R for strong war violence, language and sexual content and nudity.

NIGHTS IN RODANTHE

Adrienne Willis, a woman with her life in chaos, retreats to the tiny coastal town of Rodanthe, in the Outer Banks of North Carolina, to tend to a friend's inn for the weekend. Here she hopes to find the tranquility she so desperately needs to rethink the conflicts surrounding her — a wayward husband who has asked to come home, and a teenage daughter who resents her every decision. Almost as soon as Adrienne gets to Rodanthe, a major storm is forecast and Dr. Paul Flanner arrives. The only guest at the inn, Flanner is not on a weekend escape but rather is there to face his own crisis of conscience. With the storm closing in, the two turn to each other for comfort and, in one magical weekend, set in motion a life-changing romance that will resonate throughout the rest of their lives.

EAGLE EYE

Jerry Shaw and Rachel Holloman are two strangers thrown together by a mysterious phone call from a woman they have never met. Threatening their lives and family, she pushes Jerry and Rachel into a series of increasingly dangerous situations — using the technology of everyday life to track and control every move. As the situation escalates, these two ordinary people become the country's most wanted fugitives, who must work together to discover what is really happening, and more importantly, why.

Eagle Eye is an action movie starring Shia LaBoeuf and Michelle Monaghan. It is rated PG-13 for violence and language.

FIREPROOF

At work, inside burning buildings, Capt. Caleb Holt lives by the old firefighter's adage: Never leave your partner behind. At home, in the cooling embers of his marriage, he lives by his own rules. After seven years of marriage, Caleb and Catherine Holt have drifted so far apart that Catherine wishes she had never married. Neither one understands the pressures the other faces — he as firefighter and she as the public relations director of a hospital. Regular arguments over jobs, finances, housework and outside interests have readied them both to move on to something with more sparks. As the couple prepares to enter divorce proceedings, Caleb's father challenges his son to commit to a 40-day experiment he calls 'The Love Dare.' His job is to rescue others. Now Caleb is ready to face his toughest job ever — rescuing his wife's heart.

Devastated and desperate to get her back, Dustin turns to his best friend, Tank, the rebound specialist.

A master at seducing and offending women, Tank gets hired by freshly dumped guys to take their ex-girlfriends out on the worst date of their lives — an experience so horrible it sends them running gratefully back to their beaus. But when Tank works his magic on Alexis, he ends up meeting the challenge of a lifetime. Alexis is the first girl who knows how to call his bluff, and Tank soon finds himself torn between his loyalty to Dustin and a strange new attraction to his best friend's girl.

LAKEVIEW TERRACE

A young couple has just moved into their California dream home when they become the target of their next-door neighbor, who disapproves of their interracial relationship. A stern, single father and tightly wound LAPD officer (Samuel L. Jackson) has appointed himself the watchdog of the neighborhood. His nightly foot patrols and overly watchful eyes bring comfort to some, but he becomes increasingly harassing to the newlyweds. These persistent intrusions into their lives ultimately turn tragic when the couple decides to fight back.

Lakeview Terrace is a thriller starring Samuel L. Jackson, Patrick Wilson and Kerry Washington. It is rated PG-13 for thematic material, violence, sexuality, language and drug references.

'The Army's awesome'

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

Joy, pride and a tremendous amount of love is how Memphis-native Wanda Flynn described her emotions when her son and 158 Soldiers and civilians returned from Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom Sunday.

"This Army's awesome," said Spc. Will Flynn's mother, who had been waiting since Sept. 29 for her son and the 32 remaining Soldiers with the 104th Transportation Company to redeploy. Sandstorms in Kuwait delayed the Soldiers' return. "I wouldn't have been able to (cope) without his Army Family. They helped me a great deal this last week while I was waiting for today."

Sunday's flight carried three separate groups to Freedom Hall — 13 Soldiers with the 14th Combat Support Hospital's 926th Preventive Medicine Detachment, 133 Soldiers and civilians with the CONUS Replacement Center and the last of the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion's 104th Transportation Co.

While in Iraq, the 104th logged more than 10,000 miles on patrol.

During its second deployment in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom, the 926th Preventive Medicine Detachment Soldiers went out in two-man teams to minimize the medical and environmental health threats on the battlefield.

Col. David Fulbright, the 14th CSH's commander, arranged for his Soldiers to be greeted not only by family and friends, but also by Soldiers in the 690th Medical Co. and 14th CSH.

SafetyCab to run every weekend

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

SafetyCab will run every Thursday through Sunday starting today, said Bob Meloche, safety specialist with Combat Readiness.

Usually SafetyCab operates only during holiday weekends, but it has been extended to include every weekend through the end of the year.

During this three-month trial period, military ID cardholders in the tricommunity can call SafetyCab for a free ride home between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m. Thursday through Sunday. For Columbus Day weekend, SafetyCab is available through Wednesday morning.

"It's much better to be proactive than reactive," Meloche said. "The proper way to celebrate a holiday is to make sure you have a designated driver, but sometimes you get caught short. With this program, people have an alternative to even thinking about getting behind the wheel."

The program has grown steadily since its inception in 1999. Sixty-five Soldiers called SafetyCab during Labor Day weekend. Last year, more than 680 people took advantage of the program.

"It's important we provide an option to Soldiers," said Col. Charles Durr, the installation's chief of staff, who initiated the change. "If it works on Labor Day, it might work on Halloween or other times. The cost of 680 taxi cabs is well worth saving one person from dying or being injured."

To contact SafetyCab, call 706-527-7248.

TRADOC NEWS SERVICE
John Harlow

WASHINGTON — Gen. William S. Wallace, commander of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, introduced new Army doctrine this week in Washington. The Stability Operations field manual, FM 3-07, elevates stability operations to the same level as offensive and defensive operations.

"We recognize that in a contemporary operational environment, conventional military operations will be conducted simultaneously with stability operations," Wallace said. "Our hope is that FM 3-07 becomes a source document not just for the military and agencies within our government, but also non-governmental agencies with whom we work."

Lt. Gen. William B. Caldwell IV, commanding general of the U.S. Army Combined Arms Center at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., said America's future abroad is unlikely to resemble Afghanistan or Iraq, "where we grapple with the burden of nation-building under fire."

Instead, Caldwell said, "we will work through and with the community of nations to defeat insurgency, assist fragile states and provide vital humanitarian aid to the suffering."

Given the complexities of the future operating environment, the Army must look at the different ways the elements of national power (military, economic, diplomatic and information) are employed, according to the new manual. Military success will not be sufficient to prevail during a time of protracted confrontation fueled by religious extremism, competition for energy, globalization, climate and demographic changes, and the increased use of violence.

"Our objective when we go into a foreign country is to leave, but to leave with that country safe and secure," Caldwell said.

TRADOC officials used a "comprehensive approach" when developing the new doctrine, seeking input from agencies and officials within the government and sister services as well as those outside.

"We have to understand how to balance our approach," said Lt. Col. Steve Leonard, chief of CAC's operational-level doctrine directorate. "There needs to be balance between the political and military imperatives that drive our operations and humanitarian principles that guide the efforts of relief agencies.

Post hires four new fire inspectors, three more expected

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Fort Benning fire department had one fire prevention inspector last year. Today there are five. By the end of the year, there will be three more, plus an assistant fire prevention chief.

The addition of eight inspectors, who are responsible for evaluating the safety on non-residential buildings on post, comes at a time when Fort Benning is growing very quickly, said Fire Chief Arthur Simmons.

"There is a lot of area to inspect at Fort Benning — 20 million square feet — and only having one inspector wasn't getting the job done," Simmons said.

With the expansion of Fort Benning as a result of BRAC, there will be more buildings to inspect, he said, and more personnel who will require basic fire safety training.

In the early 90s, there was a mandated reduction in force, said Simmons, who has worked on post since 1989. After the new hires, the fire prevention program will be staffed at "full force."

Inspectors make sure building designs comply with fire regulations before construction — that each building has enough doors and exits, heat and smoke detectors and fire safe hallways. They also investigate the cause of fires.

"Our ultimate goal is to have zero loss of life," said Inspector Ryan Earwood, who has been in Department of Defense fire service for seven years, but just arrived to Fort Benning.

"If we overlook something, there's a chance that little bitty item could lead to a fire."

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment is one of the key training units on Fort Benning. The battalion's Stryker Bradley Instructional Company (SBIC) is the unit that trains Soldiers and leaders in Bradley and Stryker skill sets. These skills serve to enhance war-fighting capabilities, ultimately increasing the Army's ability to fight and win in combat.

All of the Army's Master Gunners are graduates of courses taught by SBIC, and the unit also provides instruction for the Mechanized Leader Course, the Stryker Leader Course, and the Stryker Transition Course. Additionally, SBIC deploys Mobile Training Teams to teach any of the courses at a parent unit's home station or in theater, and through the Maintenance Management Division, trains units on the Humvee Egress Assistance Trainer.

Not only does 1/29 provide Bradley and Stryker instruction for the entire Army — thousands of students per year — it also conducts future force experimentation for the Soldier Battle Lab and the Army, as well as demonstrations and support for the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Infantry School — all the while maintaining a high level of individual, collective, and readiness training for its Soldiers.

The battalion's Gen. J. Lawton Collins Training Center is busy year-round with many unique missions. One of the unique aspects of the Collins Training Center is its heavy reliance on simulators to perform its mission, to include the Stryker Driver's Trainer, the Conduct of Fire Trainer, and the Bradley Advanced Training System. Using simulators is smart because it allows the majority of the actual vehicles to be used in the operational force and simulation training saves money for the Army.

The battalion's A Company conducts testing and experimentation in support of the USAICS, the Global War on Terrorism, and other Infantry initiatives. The company is on the cutting edge of Army technology, constantly testing new equipment that is years away from being fielded. Soldier feedback on the equipment is vital to any program's success.

Companies B and C provide Bradley and Stryker support to the Infantry center and school in order to prepare Soldiers and leaders for their follow-on assignments. Both companies are heavily involved in the hands-on training exercises that 1/29 conducts for the Infantry Precommand Course and other schools and organizations, showcasing a number of vehicles including the Bradley ODS and A3 models, and the Stryker vehicle in several variants. Additionally, they perform static displays and rolling demonstrations for Infantry graduations; all the while maintaining individual and crew proficiency on the Stryker and Bradley.

The New Equipment Training Company (NETC) conducts training for the entire Army on battalion sets of Bradley Fighting and Stryker Vehicles to modernize and transition units at home station. NETC has 14 mobile training teams that deploy all over the world to teach units who receive Bradleys or Strykers, saving the Army time and money by eliminating the need to move the unit to a training center.

The battalion's Headquarters, Headquarters Company (HHC) conducts vehicle maintenance, transportation, and support for the Infantry center and school, providing the force with trained Soldiers and leaders who are prepared to fight and win in combat. HHC provides fuel and transportation support to all Fort Benning units with the exception of the 192nd and 198th Infantry Brigades — supporting literally thousands of missions per year.

Through smart training, 1/29 has been able to meet its challenging mission of training the most competent Soldiers in the world while continuing to improve operational capabilities.

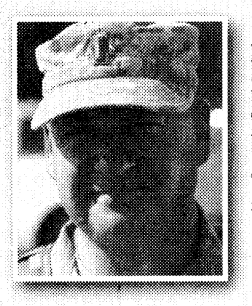
VARIOUS VOICES

Christopher Columbus landed on a Caribbean island in 1942, discovering the New World. What have you discovered?

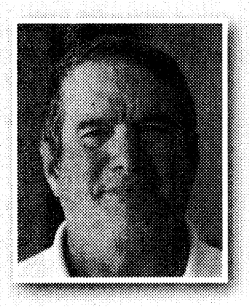


Men are supposed to be the Rock of Gibraltar, but I recently found out that my wife of 15 years can change roles. She surprised me by giving me an extreme amount of support. "You can do this," she said. And it helped. It really did.

— 2nd Lt. Kevin Hodgkinson, 1st Battalion, 141st Infantry Regiment

I remember discovering that my parents really did know what they were talking about. They knew about friendships, money, cooking — that you can't just live on pizza and soda. You really find out when you have your own kids.

— Genoa Stanford, Family member



I discovered I like to ride motorcycles. I bought one and I ride it all the time. I thought they were dangerous, but I found if you take your time and maintain situational awareness, it can be enjoyable.

— Retired Col. Thomas Cole

The Army has a lot more capabilities than most Soldiers think. I've learned that over four years in the military. A lot of us don't know much about the Army until we start taking classes. I'm in the Blue Force Tracker course. It's a complex system — I'm still trying to figure it out.

— Spc. Vanessa Rios, 203rd Brigade Support Battalion

The most recent thing I discovered is that no matter how hard you try, you can never control what a person believes. You can't force anyone's beliefs, whether it's about politics, economics or your children's wants. You have to use persuasion not coersion.

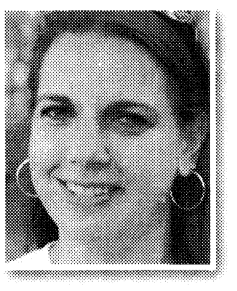
Be safe, not sorry when it comes to credit

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Erin A. Nash



About a year ago, I started getting phone calls for a woman named Rita. I told the caller there was no Rita living at my house. The calls kept coming every month or so, until I lost patience and demanded answers — who is Rita? The caller worked for a lawyer who was looking for a woman who owed money on a credit card.

Since my mother-in-law is named Rita, I called home and spoke to my father-in-law. He called the lawyer. Turns out that the woman they were looking for had a different Social Security number than my mother-in-law. Problem solved. Or so we thought.

Last week the phone rang at 8:30 p.m.

"Hi Rita!" the caller said. I explained that no, I'm not Rita. He didn't want to hear it. He asked if my husband's name was Adam. It is, so I handed over the phone. The man was from a collection agency and he threatened my husband, said he'd be taken to court for not paying a bill he'd co-signed for. My husband insisted he was not the Adam they were looking for, just as Rita wasn't the right Rita they were searching for. He didn't have the correct SSN for Adam either.

When the collector put my husband on hold, Adam hung up and called his father. Rita, in turn, called the collection agency and it was verified, yet again, that no, she is not the Rita they were looking for. The agent apologized and said both Rita and Adam's names would be taken off the account.

Just a few days ago, I again answered the phone to, "Hi Rita!" Same collection agency, different agent.

I was sick and sleeping when she called, so I might have been a tad rude. I went through the entire story again, and she apologized and said that my husband's name would be taken off their call list, but we might get another phone call (or two) within a few days because they rely on an automated dialing list.

The whole situation got my husband to thinking about identity theft. A friend recommended the company LifeLock. For $10 a month, LifeLock offers a number of services, most notably what they call "proactive identity theft protection." The friend was at a store buying a TV, and LifeLock called to make sure that it was him buying it, not someone trying to use his name and credit.

That's worth the peace of mind, since we're thinking about buying a house. Anything untoward on a credit report can seriously hinder your ability to buy a house, car, etc.

I recommend visiting the Web site www.annualcreditreport.com. Once a year, everyone is entitled to view and print (or have it mailed to them) their credit report. And for a few more dollars, you can even view your credit score.

As much as I get a kick out of the commercials for FreeCreditReport.com, if you read the fine print, you get a seven-day trial membership, and if you don't cancel within nine days, you are automatically enrolled and billed $14.95 a month.

I'm glad my husband decided to protect his credit. In these tough economic times, you never know what could happen.

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Elsie Jackson

October is National Roller Skating Month, not to be confused with National Skating Month in January.

January is National (Figure) Skating Month. No wonder I'd never heard of it. Not much of that kind of thing went on growing up in Hawaii where ice only comes crushed, cubed or shaved.

One of my few memories from grade school is listening to the little kid next to me sounding out an unfamiliar word. He finally gave up and asked our teacher what "ssss-now" was.

Our teacher had not grown up in Hawaii and was shocked when she realized the rest of the class thought it was "ssss-now" too. She tried to explain what snow was, not an easy thing to do when you can't even use snow cones as a reference point. (Hawaiians call them "shave ice")

Which brings me back to October, National Roller Skating Month, which, in my book, is skating the way people are meant to skate. I cycled and roller skated all the time growing up. Still do, albeit not that well.

On a good day, the only contact I make with the floor of the Jam Skate Center in Columbus is with my wheels. On a bad day, more makes contact with the floor. As it turns out, you use a lot more than just the muscles in your legs when you skate.

I'm happy that our local inline team, GT Speed, doesn't mind me tooling around on the floor while they practice for upcoming meets. I get some exercise while I wait for my daughter to finish practice and it sure beats just sitting there.

Several of GT's skaters are nationally ranked. During a really good practice, it's like watching a cross between short track racing (think Apolo Anton Ohno before he learned to dance) and NASCAR.

I, on the other hand (and on the other end of the scale) have a far humbler goal — to stay vertical, with my wheels on the floor.

Care to join me? It's good exercise, a lot of fun and if you really need another reason, October is National Roller Skating Month.

The weather's always right too. No chance of ssss-now.

Rangers test combat water survival skills

THE BAYONET

Ranger School students tackled the combat water survival test Sept. 15 at Hurley Hill.

After walking across a log suspended over Victory Pond, doing a commando crawl on a rope, flying down a zip line and dropping into the pond with a MOLLE and a mock M-16, Rangers were wet and tired, said Capt. Keith Ingram, the 4th Ranger Training Battalion's A Company commander.

"A pretty significant amount of a Ranger's training is in the water, so it's important to know whether he can maintain himself in the swamp," Ingram said.

The other part is facing fears, he said.

"Part of being a Ranger is being able to work in harsh environments and to deal with scenarios where you might have an inherent fear," he said.

Ranger Clayton Celmer is afraid of heights. He didn't look down as he climbed the ladder to the zip line. When he got on the zip line, he looked at the hand grip and nowhere else.

"My adrenaline started pumping and all I could think to do was yell 'Ranger' as loud as I could," he said. "When I got to the bottom, I felt a little better about being in high places."

Ranger Sam Casell said he is "a little" scared of heights but his fear doesn't get to him.

"Fear isn't a big deal," he said. "It's your ability to control your fear. What this training teaches is that even though you might be afraid of heights or water or pain, you still have to face it and overcome it."

Engineers put the full closure bridge to the test by moving 80 trucks across it.

On the last day of the two-week FTX, engineers built a full closure bridge in three hours.

'Constant readiness'

Engineers conduct two-week FTX

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Soldiers of the 362nd Engineer (Multi-Role Bridge) Company wrapped up their annual two-week field training exercise Sept. 25. During the exercise, they conducted night land navigation, convoy operations, and MOUT and demolitions training. They built a rafting bridge — used to ferry vehicles — and a full closure bridge — one that reached from one river bank to the other.

The FTX was designed to replicate situations the Soldiers may find in combat.

Spc. David Aiken spent a year in Iraq. On his first night there, he was assigned to help rebuild a bridge that had been destroyed on a main supply route near Camp Rustamiyah. The engineers worked for three days in 18-hour shifts. From that experience, Aiken said, he learned the importance of "constant readiness." The FTX drove home that point.

"The only way to do the job is to do it. You can sit at the motor pool or do drills all day, but you really get a feel for (what it's like in combat) when you're out in the field," he said. "The field prepares you for a worst case scenario. It's about making it as rough as you can here, so it's not as bad overseas."

The FTX wasn't just about building bridges.

"That's their mission, but they also have to focus on basic Soldiering skills like land nav, shooting a weapon and first aid," said 2nd Lt. Jaime Lopez, platoon leader. "For most of the Soldiers, the last time they saw Infantry tactics was basic training, so this is a good refresher course for them."

Paratroopers' patron, Mr. Airborne, honored at memorial

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter

"Cpl. Lassen."
"Cpl. Don Lassen."
"Cpl. ... Donald ... Douglas ... Lassen."

Three times the sergeant major called that name, and three times he was met with silence. Then, three rifle volleys and the playing of Taps.

Lassen

Having presided over countless roll calls just like it, Don Lassen would have been proud. "Mr. Airborne," the founder and president of the Airborne Historical Association, the president of the Atlanta Chapter of the 82nd Airborne Association and the editor of the Static Line, a monthly newsletter dedicated to all things airborne, died Aug. 7 at the age of 86.

Lassen's widow, Fran, his family and nearly 50 members of the Airborne Association gathered Sunday at the Airborne Walk to honor the World War II veteran who was remembered as the "bearer of the airborne legacy."

"If he saw something needed to be done, he took responsibility for it," said Ben Reese, 91, one of three surviving members of the original Airborne Test Platoon, which took to the sky over Lawson Field for the first time in 1940. "He thought it was important to remember our (airborne) heritage, so he really pushed this thing over the years. If he didn't, it would've gone dead. I really think so."

Bridgett Siter
The Don Lassen family and members of the Atlanta Chapter of the 82nd Airborne Association attended a memorial ceremony for Lassen Sunday at the Airborne Walk. The Silver Wings jumped onto Eubanks Field and presented Lassen's widow, Fran, a baton inscribed with a tribute to her late husband.

Lassen, a Chicago native, was drafted in 1942 after planting himself in front of the draft officer's desk. He was sent to the 86th Division in Camp Howze, Texas, where he found himself surrounded by other draftees who were less enthusiastic about serving.

"None of them wanted to be there. None of them," Lassen said last year during the annual Airborne Awards Festival. "I thought, 'Geez, I'm the best man in the 86th. If I'm the best man in the whole outfit, I better find another outfit."

So Lassen volunteered again, this time for the 82nd Airborne Division. He spent three years with the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment — "just long enough to get the war over with" — and made 25 jumps — "just enough to get my belly full of it." Those three years shaped his life, said Lassen, a veteran of the Normandy invasion and the Battle of the Bulge.

"The airborne made men out of boys. I was only 19, and it made a man out of me," he said.

In 1947, he launched the Static Line, a one-page newsletter dedicated to the perpetuation of the airborne brotherhood. He hosted the annual Airborne Awards Festival, a gathering of paratroopers from every generation, and led efforts to construct the Airborne Walk, which was dedicated in 1986.

The walk, where thousands of new paratroopers pin wings to their lapel each year, will forever speak of Lassen's dedication to a cause he believed in, said Lt. Col. Jon Ring, commander of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

"Don was the man who carried the pride of the airborne community on his shoulders," Ring said. "Here he forever linked the paratroopers of that day — his day — and every phase of airborne history since."

Two members of the Silver Wings, Fort Benning's parachute exhibition team, jumped onto Eubanks Field during the ceremony, handing off a baton in mid air. They presented the baton to Lassen's widow.

"He would've enjoyed this," Fran Lassen said of the ceremony. "He would've been proud."

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Anthony C. O'Bryant

Fort Benning honored a Soldier described by his family, friends and fellow Soldiers as a dedicated Soldier who would do anything for others Oct. 2 at The Infantry Center Chapel.

1st Lt. Mohsin Naqvi died Sept. 17, nearly seven years to day he enlisted, from wounds suffered after his vehicle struck an IED during a routine patrol in Gerdia Seria, Afghanistan..

Naqvi was born July 27, 1982, near Islamabad, Pakistan. Eight years later his family moved to Chicago when his dad took a new job.

He had a great sense of humor, said friends and family, and would give a stranger the shirt off his back without question.

"You could tell when he was home, because there would always be something going on and somebody was laughing," said Hassan Naqvi, Mohsin's brother.

"His favorite movie growing up was Rambo," Hassan said. "He wanted to be Rambo."

Mohsin wanted to enter the Army as soon as he graduated from high school, but his parents insisted he go to college first. And that was his path until Sept. 11 when he joined the Reserves as a combat medic.

"After 9/11, he told my parents that college was going to have to wait," Hassan said. "It was more important to join the Army."

After Naqvi's first deployment, he moved to Rochester, N.Y., to study at the Rochester Institute of Technology where he attended Reserve Officers' Training Corps. He earned his bachelor's degree from Geneseo University.

In 2005, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant. After completion of the Infantry Officer Basic Course at Fort Benning, his first duty station was as an executive officer for A Company, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment.

While serving on Sand Hill, Mohsin was promoted in July 2007 to first lieutenant. His second assignment was with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, U.S. Army Infantry Center as the company executive officer where he worked alongside Staff Sgt. Reggie Brooks.

"He was a real professional Soldier, and whenever there was something hot, Lieutenant Naqvi took care of it," Brooks said. "He was a great example for young commissioned officers."

When not wearing ACUs, he wore his gym clothes, said Heather Lockard, who Naqvi asked to take care of his dog, Rambo. "Working out gave Mohsin a chance to relieve stress or boredom," she said. "If he wasn't at the gym, he would be hanging out or driving around post with Rambo. The two were inseparable.

"Rambo was not just Mohsin's dog," she said. "He was his companion and his best friend. He would take Rambo everywhere with him even if it were just five feet."

He deployed in July and his job was supposed to be as an executive officer working logistics on the forward operating base. But his mission changed after he agreed to help train a police mentoring unit, said Capt. Carl Purgerson, Naqvi's former company commander. That decision took him out of the safety of the FOB and into a volatile area littered with IEDs.

He and four other Soldiers died from wounds suffered after their vehicle struck an IED.

During a memorial service, Purgerson remembered Naqvi.

"A lot of times we would sit in my office and talk about world issues, and what they mean for us Soldiers," he said.

The two talked at length about the challenges Naqvi faced as a Soldier of the Islamic faith, Purgeson said.

"He faced a lot of criticism because of his faith, and people would ask him how he could fight against Muslims who are causing turmoil in the world. And he would simply say, because it is my duty and they are wrong," said Purgerson. "He represented his faith and name so well. His family should be proud."

Chilean cadets complete WHINSEC leadership course

WHINSEC PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Lee A. Rials and Grace Florez

When 144 cadets from the Chilean Military Academy graduated from a nine-day leadership course at the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation Sept. 29, they're training was not entirely compete. The next day the cadets returned to class to prepare for a three-day visit to Washington D.C. as a part of their leadership experience.

The leadership course at WHINSEC is a requirement for all Chilean military students to graduate from their academy and the cadets find the course worthwhile, said cadet Vanesa Rojas Vargas.

"I think one of the aspects about WHINSEC I could highlight is the professionalism and the team work of its instructors," Vargas said.

Other cadets agree, but this was not the only aspect of the training that left an impression. Cadet Claudio Sáez Contreras was complimentary of the U.S. and partner nation instructors, but added that our Soldiers were also to be commended.

"When I arrived at WHINSEC, I was impressed by the instructors' professionalism, team work, and conviction. U.S. Army Soldiers train day-by-day. They are prepared for anything, and their training is one of their top priorities."

"It has been a good week professionally," said Cristobal Raggi, a U.S. citizen. Raggi was born when his father was a Student in Boston and he and his family moved to Santiago, Chile when he was two years old.

Raggi said he tried to return to the U.S. to join the Marine Corps, but his father wouldn't allow it, so he began studying Physical Education in a Chilean university. After three years, he was accepted to the Chilean Military Academy. Now he is becoming an Infantry officer and later he plans to be a helicopter pilot.

His experience at WHINSEC will come in handy when dealing with subordinates, Raggi said. "I wanted to learn how U.S. officers and NCOs work together," he said. "I want to be an humble leader."

Capt. Raul Ferreira, the commandant of the fourth-year students at the Chilean Military School, said overall the training his cadets received in the United States was good.

"The cadets acquired good experiences, and reinforced their military knowledge," Ferreira said. "They also learned to interact with soldiers from another army. These encounters have contributed to the cadets' professional development."

While the group was in Washington D.C. they were addressed by the Assistant to the Chilean Army attaché, Col. Luis Fuenzalida, who outlined what is expected of them as they enter the Chilean Armed Forces.

Soldiers: Return from Iraq Sunday

the return to be more personal for our Soldiers," Fulbright said. "This is their final destination; after the ceremony, these Soldiers will be released until Wednesday. But first, they get a safety briefing."

There have been a lot of changes in the 15 months the Soldiers have been deployed, Fulbright said. Traffic patterns have changed because of construction and growth, and driving is going to be new again. The Soldiers haven't had alcohol so they have no tolerance; and there is the risk of post traumatic stress disorder.

"We lose Soldiers because they do things they haven't done in 15 months," Fulbright said. "Big Army is aware of these risks and we need to make sure our Soldiers know about them."

Before the Soldiers go on block leave, there will be 21 days of reintegration training.

According to Military OneSource, it's normal to feel out of sync after deployment and the Web site offers these tips for reintegration:

Talk with your spouse. Sometimes it's easier to reconnect if you talk while doing something else together, like taking a walk or working out.

Ease back into intimacy. It's not easy to regain physical and emotional closeness after stressful situations.

Be patient with yourself and your family. Fatigue, confusion and worry, common during this transition, can lead to short tempers.

Tell family members that you're proud of them. Focus on the positive changes you see at home, and let your family know you appreciate them.

Expect your children to test the rules now that both parents are home. Set aside time with your spouse to come up with an approach you both agree on.

Make time in your schedule for family activities. Include one-on-one time with each of your children.

Watch your spending. It's tempting to celebrate your return with dinners out or special gifts, but it's important to stay within your means.

Know when to seek help. If you, your spouse, or other family members are feeling signs of stress, physical or emotional, it's important to seek expert help — the earlier the better.

Manual: Elevates stability operations

Ultimately, the people are the focus of stability operations. So while we work to establish good governance, economic recovery, security and rule of law, we also have to give those non-government organizations the space and freedom to be independent of the military and transparent to the people they are helping so they can do their jobs."

Stability operations must be part of the entire military-planning process, Caldwell said.

"Some people are talking about pre-emptive stability operations. They are doing that because we literally need to plan for and resource it before military operations begin," he said.

This isn't an entirely new concept, officials said. Soldiers and leaders have been performing the five critical tasks of establishing civil security, establishing civil control, restoring essential services, supporting governance and supporting economic and infrastructure development around the globe for years.

But now, they said, these tasks will be addressed before, rather than after, conflict, and conducted within the context of peacetime.

"We intended for this manual to be used by all the services, all the departments and agencies of government and all the NGOs who might be participating in a Stability Operation," Leonard said.

Field Manual 3-07, Stability Operations, represents a milestone in Army doctrine, Caldwell said.

"It is a roadmap from conflict to peace, a practical guidebook for adaptive, creative leadership at a critical time in our history," he said.

"This manual postures our military forces for the challenges of an uncertain future, an era of persistent conflict where the unflagging bravery of our Soldiers will continue to carry the banner of freedom, hope and opportunity to the people of the world."

Army Ten-Miler B3

FOR THE BAYONET SPORTS

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Shock wins title

The Detroit Shock won their third WNBA title in six seasons with a sweep of the San Antonio Silver Stars Oct. 5.

Katie Smith, who won a gold medal in Beijing, also garnered the MVP award.

Check your fantasy line-up

Brian Westbrook, running back for the Philadelphia Eagles, broke two ribs after sitting out last week's game because of an ankle injury. The Eagles lost, 23-17, to the red-hot Washington Redskins.

The Eagles play the San Francisco 49ers Sunday, and coach Andy Reid wouldn't talk about if Westbrook would play or not.

Stewart wins, Smith whines

Rookie Regan Smith crossed the finish line first, and began to celebrate winning the Amp Energy 500 at Talladega Oct. 5. But NASCAR had other ideas. Because Smith had passed Tony Stewart below the yellow line, which is a no-no, officials declared Stewart the winner.

Carl Edwards was the bad guy of the race, causing the "big one" and taking himself and two of his teammates out of the race. Twelve cars were involved in the wreck.

The fourth race of the Chase will start with coverage at 7 p.m. Saturday on ABC from Lowe's Motor Speedway.

Championship Series set

The American League and National League Championship Series have been determined.

The Philadelphia Phillies and Los Angeles Dodgers began their series Oct. 9. The Tampa Bay Rays and Boston Red Sox play the first best-of-seven series game tonight at 8:37 p.m. All games are on TBS.

College rankings

Oklahoma retained the top spot in the Associated Press Top 25 college football teams. Alabama remained second, and Missouri went up a spot to No. 3 after beating Nebraska, 52-17. LSU, who had an off week, moved to fourth. Texas is fifth, followed by Penn State at sixth and Texas Tech at No. 7.

Juice gets squeezed

Former football star O.J. Simpson was found guilty of all 12 charges against him Oct. 3, 13 years to the very day that he was acquitted of a double murder. Simpson was found guilty of robbing two sports memorabilia dealers at gunpoint in Las Vegas.

Simpson, who is now 61 years old, could wind up spending the rest of his life in the slammer. We'll find out Dec. 5, when he is scheduled to be sentenced. Expect an appeal, though.

Fort Benning hosts combatives championship

More than 280 Soldiers from around the Army competed in the fourth annual U.S. Army Combatives Championship last weekend at Smith Fitness Center. Twenty eight competed in the finals Sunday in seven weight classes.

Fort Riley, Kan., took first place in the team category. A Fort Benning Soldier, Staff Sgt. Brandon Sayles, of 3rd Squadron, 1st Calvary Regiment, took first in heavyweight. Fort Bragg, N.C., claimed three winners, and Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Lewis Wash., and Fort Stewart, Ga., each took home a first place.

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Matt Larsen, director of the Combatives School at Fort Benning and the author of the Army combatives manual, said the growth of the competition — there were twice as many competitors this year as last — reflects the fact that more and more

Memorial run honors student

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The deadline for early registration for the Aaron Blake Reynolds Memorial Run is Wednesday. The run, which will be Nov. 1 at Hardaway High School, will raise money for a school wrestling facility, named in honor of Aaron Blake Reynolds.

A former captain of the Hardaway wrestling team, Aaron died from a brain aneurism while away at college, less than a month after his 21st birthday.

"We had no idea he had this aneurism," said his mother, Lynne Williamson. "He never had any symptoms. We were completely blindsided by this."

"I wanted to keep his memory alive," said Williamson, who is organizing the run. "When he was 14, he told me he didn't want to be one of those people who die and are forgotten. He said he wanted to leave a mark on this world. So I really feel by having this wrestling facility and annual run, we're helping him make that happen."

The Non-Commissioned Officers Academy, Partners in Education with Hardaway, plans to be out in full force for the run, said Sgt. Maj. Agnes Bennett-Green, PIE liaison for the academy.

"This run is for a great cause," said Bennett-Green, who plans to attend the event with her daughter. "It also gives us another opportunity to work with our students at Hardaway. We look at it like a family. We're showing our support, leading by example. It's the right thing to do."

A one-mile fun run will begin at 9 a.m. followed by the 5K at 9:30. Age group and overall awards will be given for the race. The first three finishers in the fun run will receive medals.

The entry fee for the 5K is $15 for adults and $10 for students 18 and younger through Wednesday and $20 for adults and $15 for students after Wednesday. For the fun run, it's $10 for adults and $8 for students through Wednesday and $12 for adults and $10 for students after Wednesday.

Moisture wicking shirts are available with registration while supplies last. Complimentary food and drink will be provided for all runners. To pick up a registration form, visit Hardaway High School. For more information, e-mail lynnew67@yahoo.com.

26,000 compete in Army Ten-Miler

Alex McVeigh
Frederick Poole

About 26,000 runners and 4,000 others converged in the Pentagon's South Parking lot Sunday morning for the 24th Annual Army Ten-Miler.

Fort Bliss, Texas, fielded the winning Active Duty Men's team for the largest 10-mile race in America, and second largest in the world. Fort Bragg, N.C., won the Active Duty Women's category. Reginaldo Campos Jr. of Washington D.C. took first place overall with a time 48:59. Reena Veddy of Centreville, Va. won the women's category at 58:08.

"The Army Ten-Miler represents the race for excellence, it's the Army's race," said Jim Vandak, race director. "There's a pretty large trophy that goes to the best military male and female teams, and with those come bragging rights."

The day was about more than just the race, however. Thousands showed up to support their family member, friend or co-worker and stayed to enjoy the number of exhibits, food and bands that were present.

"We've come every year since my husband ran (in 2003)," said Sidney Harkins of Triangle, Va. "It's a great way to spend a day with the family, even if you're not running."

In support of the Army Ten-Miler, five thousand people ran in several shadow races around the world in more than a dozen camps and bases.

Wrapping up the running portion of the ten-miler were more than 300 children participating in their own version of the Army Ten-Miler, the Health Net Federal Services Youth Runs. Children kindergarten through third grade ran a 100-meter sprint to the finish and kids in grades fourth through eighth participated in the 200-meter competition.

Editor's Note: Alex McVeigh and Frederick Poole write for the Pentagram newspaper at Fort Myer, Va.

Faith wins first cross country meet of season

Rachel L. Watkins

About 20 students from Faith Middle School competed against 50 students from five Columbus and Phenix City schools in the St. Luke cross country Invitational at Lakebottom Park Tuesday. Faith took first place in the team category by one point.

Eighth-grader Michael George took home first place in the boys' race with a time of 13:04, and eighth-grader Brett Barrientes took home third place with 13:31.

George has run cross country for about six years.

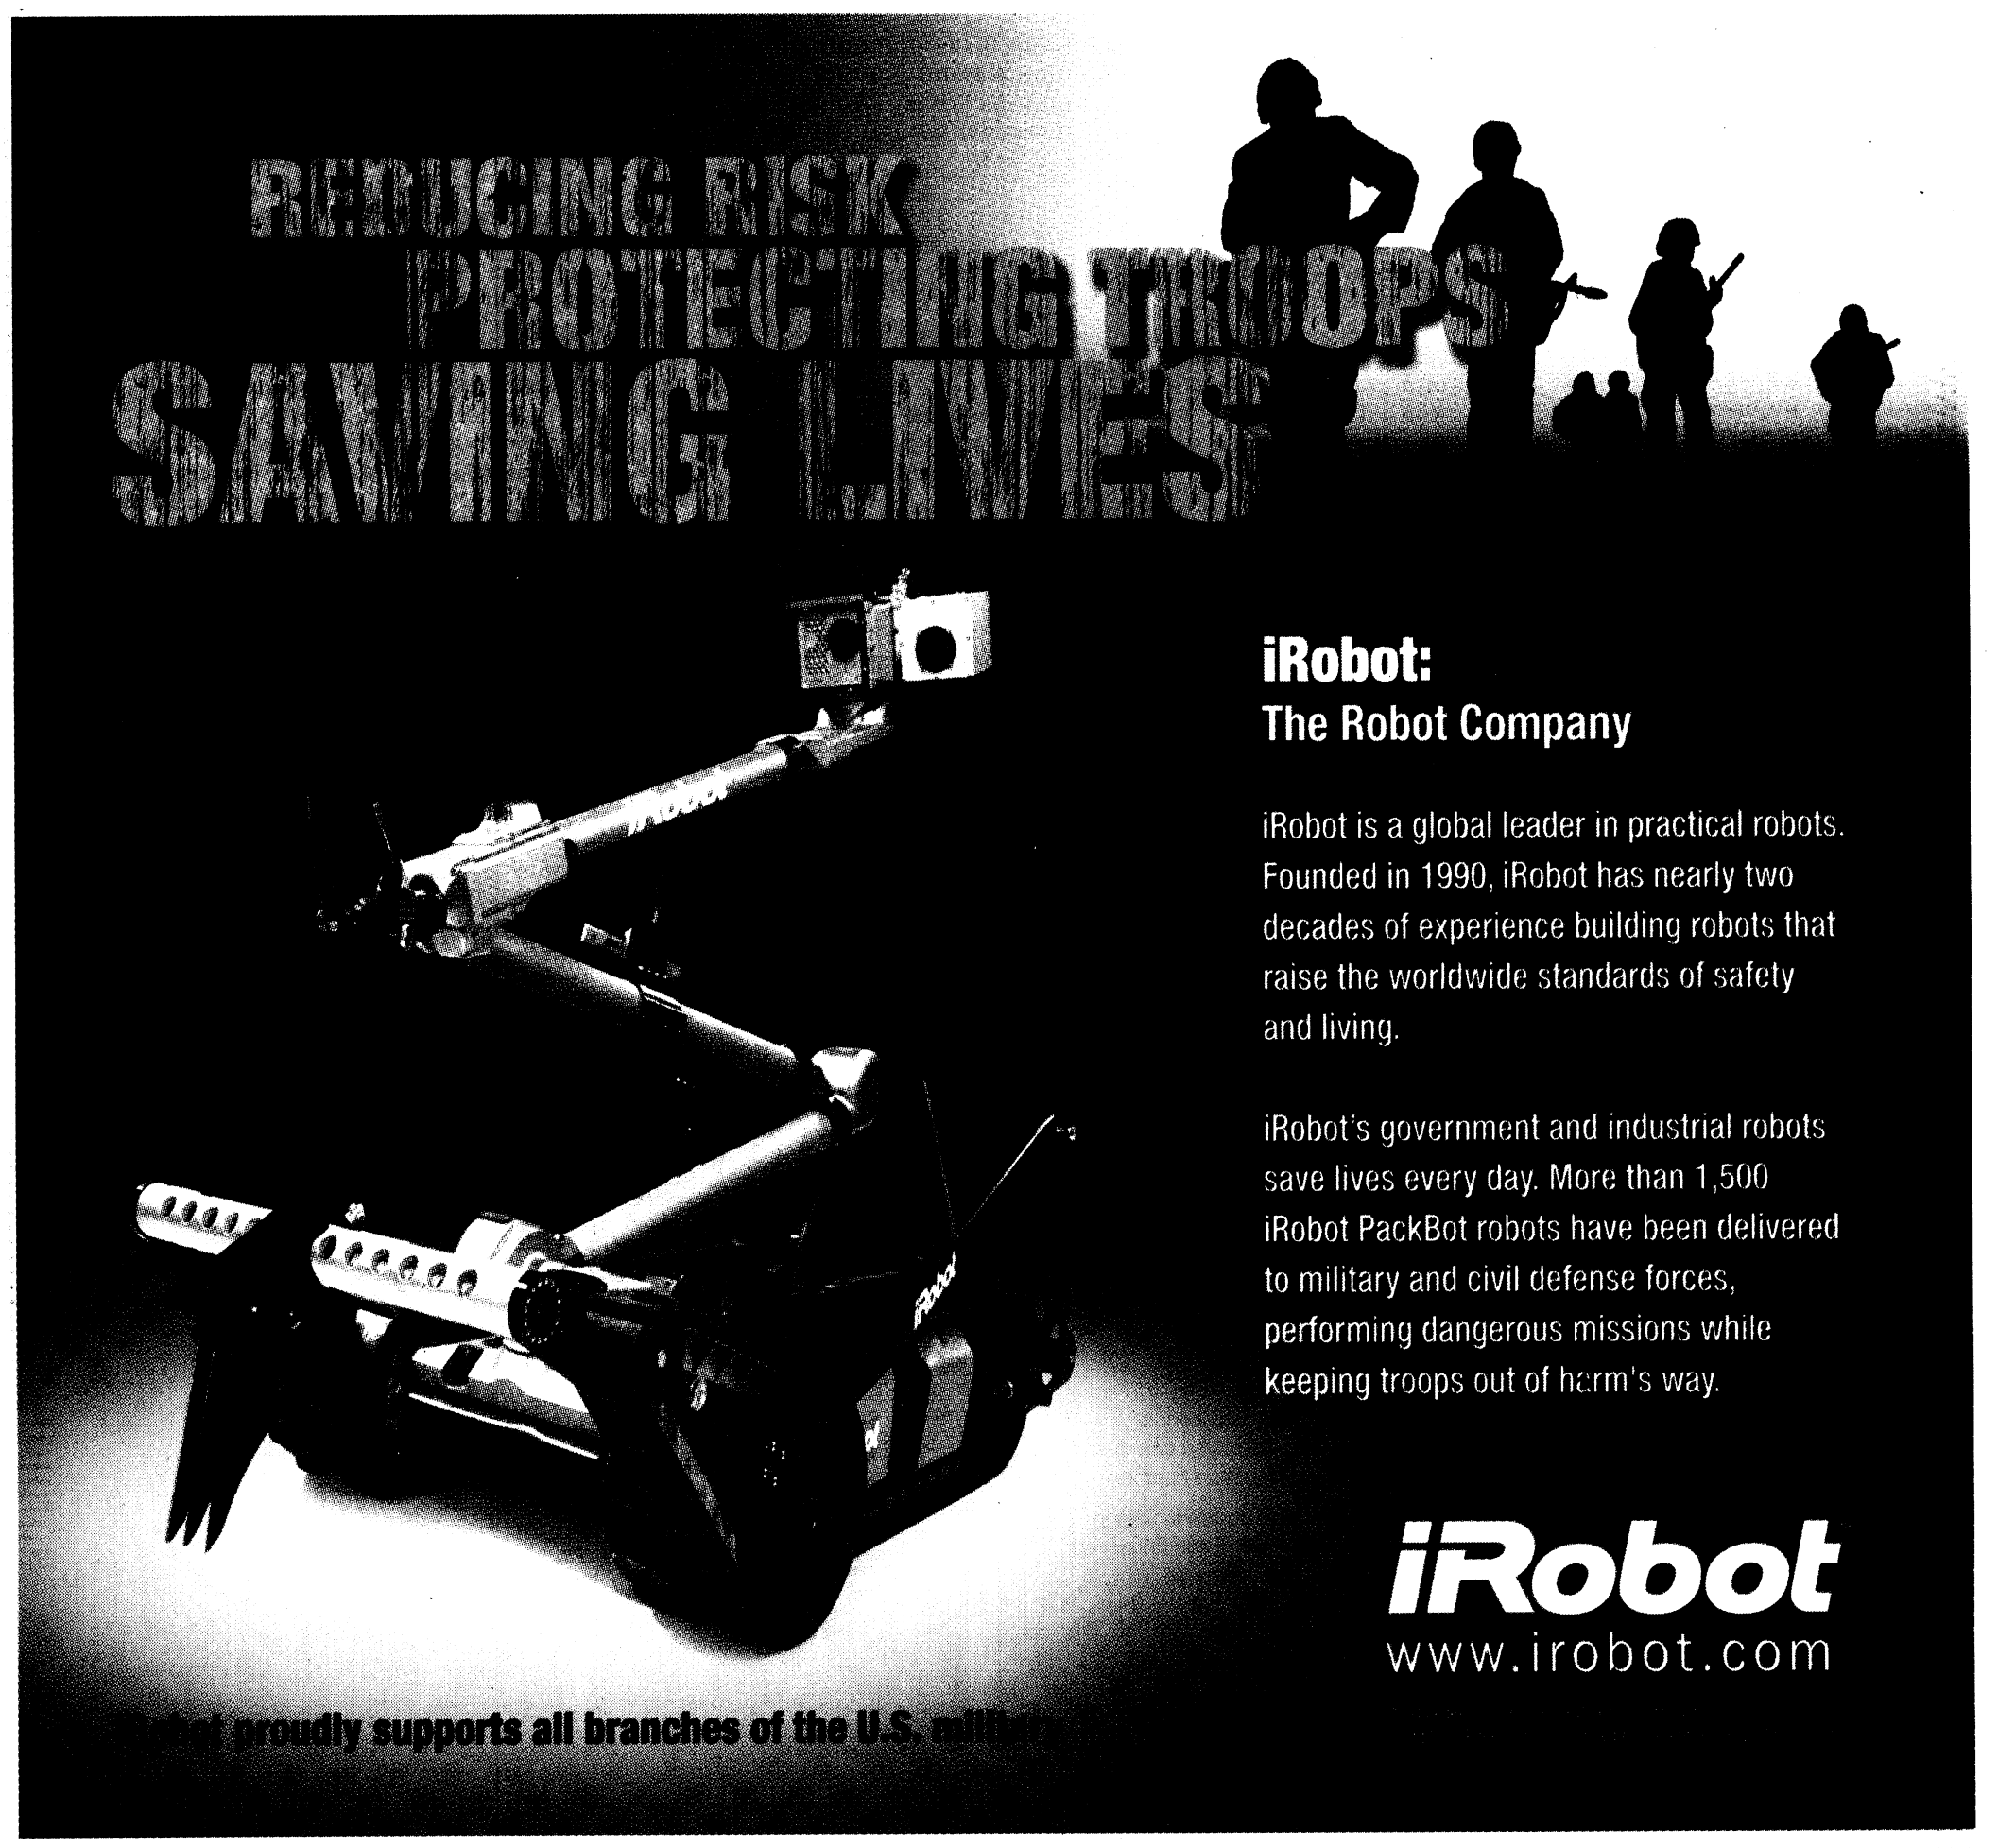
"I never thought I would win," said George, who ran with a broken toe. "Running is 20 percent physical and 80 percent mental. In a cross country race, you have to tell yourself to keep going and keep your mind on finishing the race."

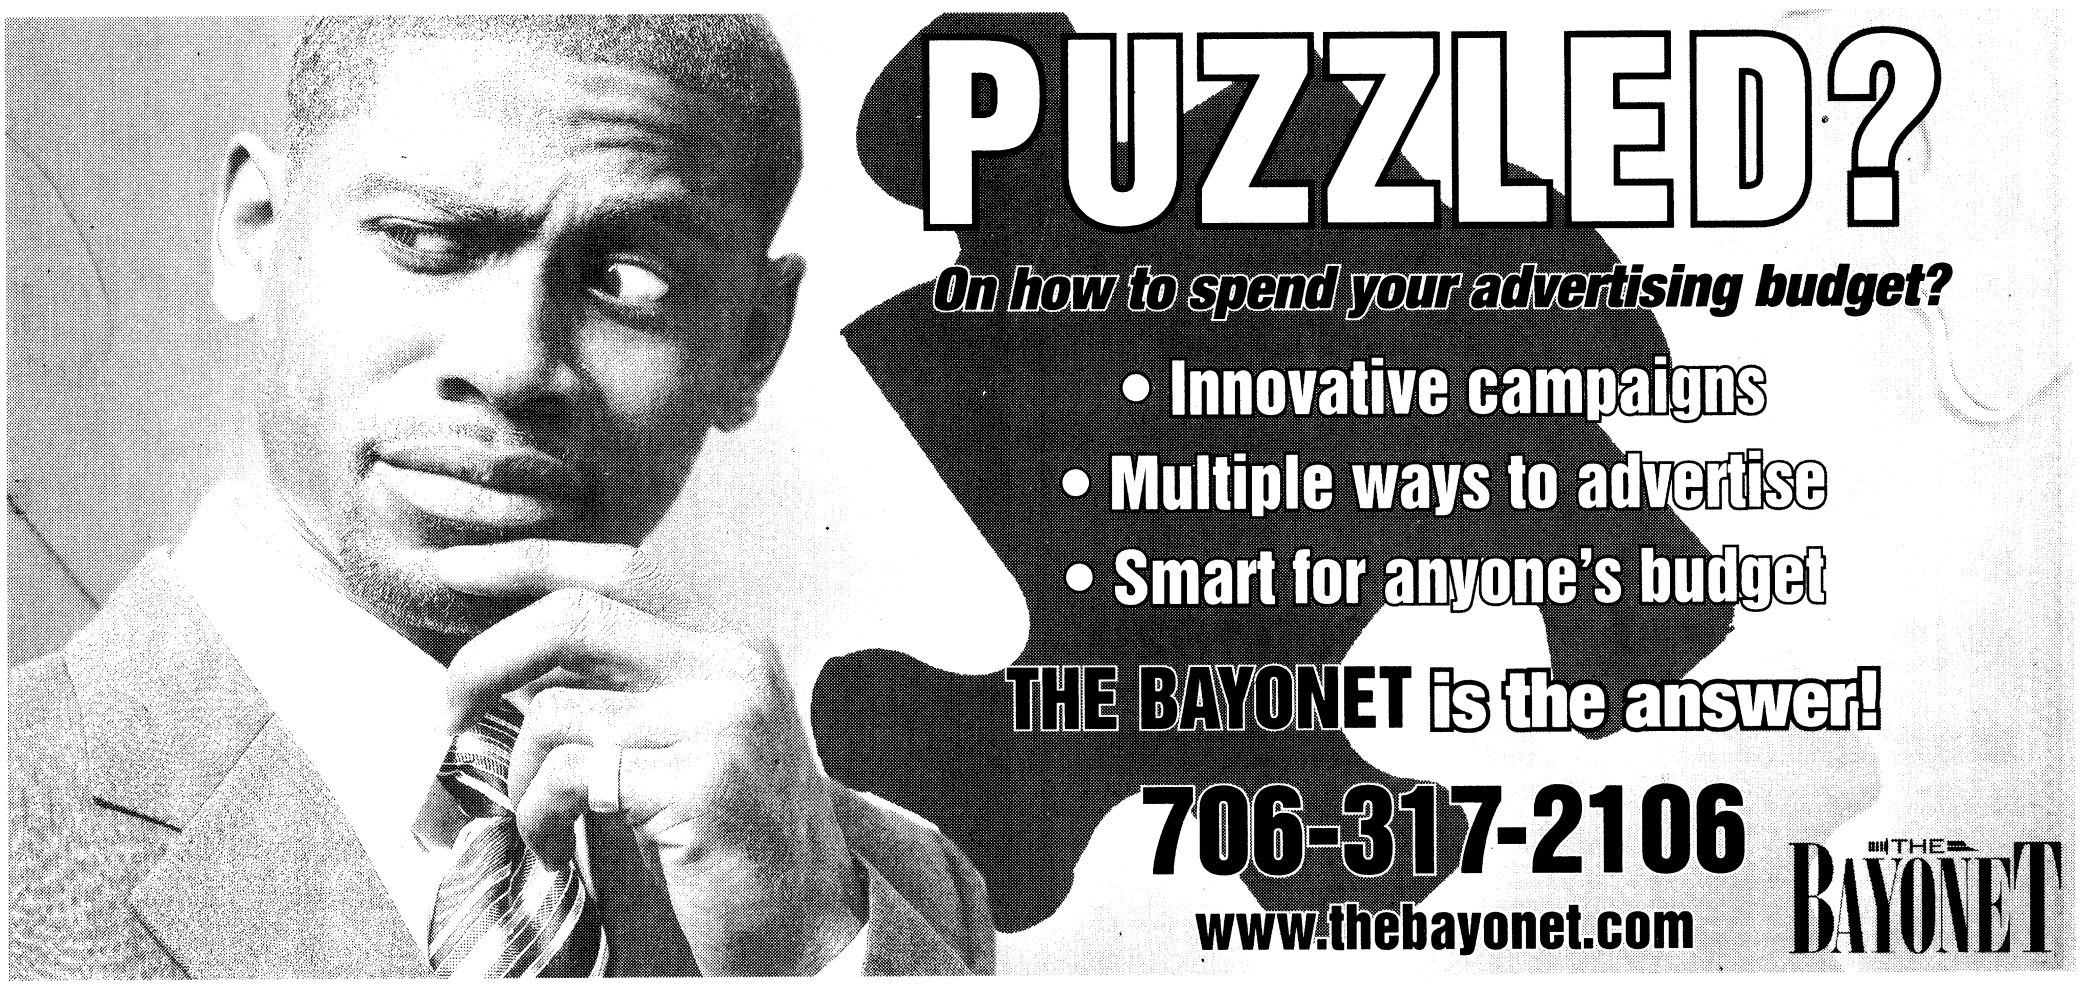
All of the practice has paid off, but more couldn't hurt, said Brandon Pack.

"All in all, I thought it was a pretty good race. Now, I'm gonna go home and practice a lot for the next meet," the sixth-grader said.

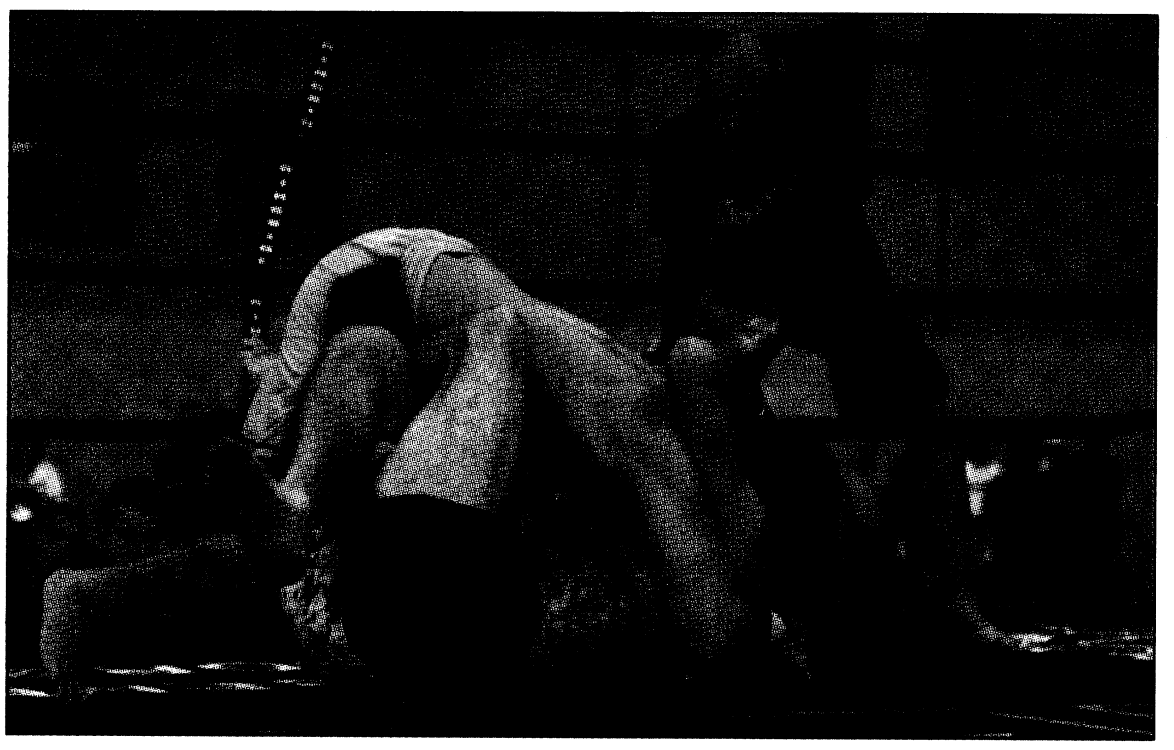
"It's not the end of the world if you don't win. It's about trying your best and finishing the race."

Faith will compete Saturday in Schley County.





Combatives: Competition spotlights need for training



Bridgett Siter

Staff Sgt. Keith Bach of Fort Stewart, Ga., and Staff Sgt. William Haggerty of Fort Bragg, N.C., fought it out in the finals in the lightweight class. Bach won.

Soldiers are recognizing the relevance of combatives training. This year's competition drew competitors from Guam, Korea, Alaska and Iraq.

Sayles, 27, won first place in 2006 but missed last year's competition, which took place during his unit's deployment in Iraq. The combatives competition is a hit with the crowd, he said, but the "close combat," or hand-to-hand training serves a greater purpose in the Global War on Terrorism.

"People don't realize — sure, we compete because it's fun and great morale and it's a great competition — but it saves lives in combat," he said. "There are hundreds, maybe thousands, of documented cases of people using combatives to fight off somebody until they can get help — that's what it's about."

Master Sgt. John Long, first place winner in the light heavyweight class, served with Larsen in the 75th Ranger Regiment more than a decade ago when combatives training was in its infancy. Long said he knew then that Larsen "was onto something," but he never imagined the training would have such a great impact on Soldiers Armywide — not just Infantry Soldiers.

Combatives training is just as important as weaponry training, Long said, because Soldiers in combat today are often confronting the enemy in "close quarters" during urban operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. Today's Soldiers are entering houses, he said, where the enemy may be hiding behind a couch.

"You never know what'll happen. The (Soldier) has all his equipment on, and someone jumps on his back — he has to be able to play that game too," Long said.

"You want a Soldier who is educated and skilled in his primary weapons, but one who also defends himself in hand-to-hand combat."

Armor Soldiers on parade C5

Fort Benning turns out for Army Soldier Show

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

More than 5,000 people attended the 25th anniversary of the Soldier Show on Wetherby Field Saturday. The show included pop and classic songs, several dance numbers and a video montage of past Soldier Shows.

Pfc. Wison Tran, who attended the show with his battle buddies from A Company, 2nd Battalion, 47th Infantry Regiment, said he could vouch for the caliber of the show before it even started.

"Soldiers got plenty of talent," he said. "(This) is going to be a bunch of Soldiers doing their thing, playing their guitars, showing what they got. To be in a place like this right now, it's real cool. It's going to be a great show, I'm going to tell you that right now."

Fort Benning Soldiers had the chance to showcase some local talent before the opening act Saturday. Volunteers were called up on stage for a dance competition, performing their best moves to cheers from the audience.

Dance featured largely in the Soldier Show, but to Pvt. Ryan Edmondson, B Company, 2nd Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, the best part was the music — even better than cadences, he said.

"You think they're just regular Soldiers, and then you see them on stage as performing artists," Edmondson said. "How often do you see a bunch of guys in body armor with rifles and helmets dancing and singing?"

One of the most popular songs was Thriller, Michael Jackson's chart-topping hit, also celebrating 25 years this year. The number was shown in "Night Vision" through the creative use of lighting and costumes, giving the hit song an Army twist.

Soldiers are involved in every aspect of the show, from setup and take down to behind the scenes work, said Spc. Leroy Bradley III, who auditioned for the 2008 show out of Camp Carroll, South Korea.

Always chosen from his unit to sing the national anthem at events, Bradley finally decided to try for a spot in the show. It was well worth it, he said.

"It's just seeing the smiles on the Soldiers' faces," he said. "Our mission is to build morale, letting everybody know that even though it's a time of war, that's not all the Army is. There are a lot of talented people in the Army."

Soldiers applaud for Spc. Joann Usyk's performance of All-American Girl.

Of the 50-plus shows they have done, the performance at the Home of the Infantry included one of the most energetic audiences, Bradley said.

"Fort Benning packed it in for us," he said. "The more Soldiers out there, the more they cheer, it makes it a lot easier for us on stage. They pump us up. I think this was one of our best shows."

Couple celebrates 75 years

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

It was some time around 1930 in Akron, Ohio. He was a cheerleader for the football team and ran cross country. She was the popular girl in school. It may not have been love at first sight, but something drove Roy Brooks and Reva Ash together.

"It must have been something, but I don't know what," Reva said. "I always say he followed me home one time."

Roy was a year ahead of Reva in school. After graduation, he proposed, but Reva made him wait. One year later — Oct. 14, 1933 — the couple eloped to West Virginia.

Reva never had a bridal gown or wedding cake, but that was all right with her.

"Missed the bouquet, got the groom," she said, looking at her husband of 75 years.

Times were hard for the young couple, then living in Cleveland.

"It was the Great Depression," Reva said. "When Roy graduated from high school, he was the only boy in the whole class who had a job, and I think he got $1 a week. You had to count pennies. Sometimes we had too much month left at the end of the money."

Roy joined the National Guard to make a little extra money, he said. Soon after, World War II broke out, and Roy, commissioned as a first lieutenant, deployed to the South Pacific for 35 months.

"That was our longest separation," Reva said. "And we didn't have TV and cell phones and all that kind of stuff. We had censored mail. Sometimes it was cut like a jigsaw."

While he was deployed, Reva raised their two sons on the allotment — or "a little-ment" — she received from his pay.

"We didn't have any hard times, did we?" asked Roy, who has fond memories of life with his high school sweetheart. "I think it's all been good. It's probably better than it was at first. We really

Biblical justice calls to 'give 'em the chair'

FAMILY LIFE TRAINING CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Jeff Dillard

Situations come in all forms — junior enlisted frustrated when their NCO says one thing and does another, NCOs upset when officers ignore their years of experience, dependents hurting because they feel they play second fiddle to their Soldier's job. The list goes on and on.

Such reactions are common and easy to understand. All of us go through heartaches — separations from loved ones, 14-hour work days, long periods away from family — how dare someone make our lives even harder? Wanting the guilty to get what they deserve is one aspect of justice, but it's not the whole of the matter.

You might expect the Bible to speak of 'justice' in the harshest terms. After all, the Bible gives us such great ideas as "an eye for an eye" (Exodus 21:24), "hang 'em high" (Esther 7:9), and "stone them to death" (Deuteronomy 22:23-24).

But passages like the ones referenced above are usually taken out of context. For example, Exodus 21:24 illustrates fairness in justice: not taking their life for taking your eye. Scripture most often speaks of justice not in terms of giving the guilty what they deserve but in giving the hurting what they need.

Over and over, God tells his people to practice justice for the widow, the fatherless and the alien (Exodus 22:22; Deuteronomy 10:18, 24:17, 27:19; Job 24; Psalm 94:1-7; Psalm 146:5-10; Isaiah 1:17-26; Jeremiah 22:1-4; Ezekiel 22:6-7; Zechariah 7:8-10; Malachi 3:5).

What do these three groups of people have in common? There's no one to defend them. They're hurting, and there's no one to help.

That's why God forbade the Israelites to treat foreigners harshly. He reminded his people that they were once aliens in the land of Egypt (Exodus 22:21).

Who is hurting around you? Chances are, you've been through exactly what they're going through. Maybe you're just the person to reach out to them.

Maybe they made a mistake at work and got chewed out for it, and you could help them succeed next time. Or maybe they just came from a 12-hour shift on their feet, and they're just tired.

Here's a thought. If there's only one chair in the room, maybe you could "give 'em the chair." That would certainly be Biblical.

Find out what they need and meet them there.

Follow Columbus' method to discover new worlds

11TH ENGINEER BATTALION
Chaplain (Capt.) Mark Smith

I think it is neat that Columbus gets credit for discovering the New World. Though there is a lot of controversy surrounding his life and achievements, at the end of the day, he is still the one whose discoveries are celebrated once a year throughout the Americas and Spain.

As I read about the life of Columbus, I found character traits that led to his success, traits that we can apply to our lives to help us make new discoveries.

First of all, he was ambitious. He didn't sit back and let life pass him by. Living in a day of exploration, discovery and necessity, he got out and got after it. If you and I are going to do great things, we've got to dream dreams and get after it. Why can't it be you who makes that next great discovery?

Second, he was inspirational. Columbus could inspire others to follow him. He didn't have the funds to do what he did, but he knew who did, and because of his persistence he gained the financial backing of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella.

Then, because he couldn't sail on his own, he had to have help from several crew members and other captains. If you and I are going to do great things, it is very doubtful we will do it all on our own. In fact, one of the greatest ways to succeed in life is by inspiring others on to success with you.

Third, he was a risk taker. I think taking risks is a natural, God-given trait he gives everyone. However, two things normally challenge risk taking.

One is success. When success in life brings us trophies, we're afraid of losing them and stop taking risks.

The other challenge to risk taking is failure. As we grow and mature, we can allow our failures and setbacks to create a fear of taking risks. We get knocked down and rather than getting back up, we throw in the towel. No doubt there were some during Columbus' day who still believed the world was flat and if you sailed too far you would eventually fall off the edge.

Whether Columbus or any of the sailors with him believed this is questionable, but I guarantee you they all took risks in their discovery of the New World. What if they ran out of food or drinking water? What if they got lost? What if they never spotted land? There were a lot of "what if's" that could have kept their feet ashore.

You and I will never succeed and make new discoveries if we are unwilling to take risks. So I dare you: step out of your comfort zone and set sail for a new world.

Fourth, he was a planner. Columbus had a plan for to sail from Spain to India and China and avoid the traditional land routes. The very fact that he did not make it to East Asia reveals that his plan failed. Or did it?

Because of some errors in his calculations and other misjudgments, he ended up discovering the New World instead (or at least getting credit for it). This one thing is for sure, he had a plan and he worked it and it brought him success.

As Zig Ziglar has so succinctly stated, "People who fail to plan, plan to fail." That was not true about Columbus. Because he had a plan, even though it was flawed, he still succeeded. You and I can succeed as well, if we make plans. Stop waiting for a perfect plan. An 80 percent solution is better than no solution. Make a plan and go for it.

Fifth, he was a practitioner, and he put his skills to work. Christopher Columbus was a sailor, a navigator.

The Lord has blessed us all with different interests and gifts to make a wonderful difference in this world. The trouble is that many of us "bury our talents" and never put them to use.

One of the great privileges of life is to develop talents and then use them for good. Christopher Columbus is credited for discovering the New World because he was following his passion and putting his talents to work.

Sixth, he was tenacious. He didn't easily give up. He was one of those people who tried and tried again. He was rejected at least two times by the Royal court of Spain before gaining their support in January of 1492. When his crew was mutinous and wanted to turn back, he kept pressing them forward.

We can have the best plans and the greatest talents, but if we quit and give up, we will never experience success. It doesn't matter if we are talking about our marriage, raising our children, our careers or breaking a bad habit. We all need a good dose of tenacity if we are going to make new discoveries in our lives.

And finally, Columbus was faithful, and he attempted to live out his faith. One of the reasons for his explorations was a desire to see non-believers converted to Christianity. Even though he and some of his actions were flawed, I commend him for his desire and attempt to live out his faith.

In this area of life, you and I will do well if we seek to ground our faith in the Word of God and live it out on a daily basis. I can't help but believe that God has some great discoveries in mind for you and me when we live by faith.

2-69 Armor Soldiers attend Duluth Fall Festival

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Sgt. Natalie Rostek

Soldiers of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, were among the honored guests at the annual fall festival in Duluth, Ga., Sept. 27-28.

Eighty-two "Panthers" traveled from Fort Benning to the festival to partake in various activities, including a parade, a concert and several community-sponsored events.

"This community really lays out the red carpet for our Soldiers," said Maj. Chris McKinney, the battalion's executive officer and honorary grand marshal of the festival.

Many of the Soldiers expressed their appreciation for the support of the community — not just during the festival, but over the past five years.

"The relationship between the community of Duluth and the 2-69 Armor dates back to 2003, when we adopted the unit," said Angie Doerlich, military chairperson for the festival.

The "adoption" took place through a former 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., Soldier who served as an Army recruiter in Duluth.

Initially Doerlich received the names of 31 Soldiers whose families needed support during the unit's 2003 deployment to Iraq.

Since then the community has kept in constant contact with Soldiers and family members of the Panther battalion, providing them with items such as canned goods and turkeys for Thanksgiving and bicycles and helmets during Christmas.

Duluth residents and supporters have sent more than 3,000 care packages to Panther Soldiers overseas during three deployments.

"I have never seen support at this level come out of any one community in my 13-year Army career," McKinney said. "They are one of the most patriotic communities I have ever seen."

To show their appreciation, Soldiers of the 2nd Bn, 69th Armor Regt., gave certificates of appreciation to members of the community.

They also gave Panther memorabilia to the various donors, festival committee staff and volunteers.

"This means a lot to me, and I plan to keep it going as long as possible," Doerlich said. "The 2-69 Armor is like my extended family."

love to be with each other."

With the support of his wife, Roy joined the Army in 1947, which eventually brought him to Fort Benning. After he retired as a colonel 21 years later, the couple settled in Columbus for good, unable to find a better place to call home.

The Brooks still stay involved on post whenever possible. They will celebrate their anniversary at the Benning Club Sunday with their family, which includes two children, five grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

"It's a milestone," said Reva of their 75-year marriage. "We've grown old together. You have to have love to put up with each other for that many years."

Roy said he doesn't remember ever arguing with his wife.

"I wouldn't have it any way different if I had to do it all over again," he said. "She's been a wonderful wife. She raised two kids while I was away. If I say something, she generally agrees to it. We get along pretty well."

The secret of their long marriage is no secret at all, they said.

"Getting married during the Depression and having children doesn't help anything, but you have to stay close together, stay interested in each other. You have to give and take in everyday things," Reva said.

Love can endure in a marriage, "even though you're old," said Reva, who will celebrate her 94th birthday in December, 10 days after Roy turns 95.

"I think as you grow older, love grows, but it's a different kind of love," she said. "It's not the young, sparkling love that you have when you're 18. It's stronger, because it's been a long haul. The lasting love is what matters."

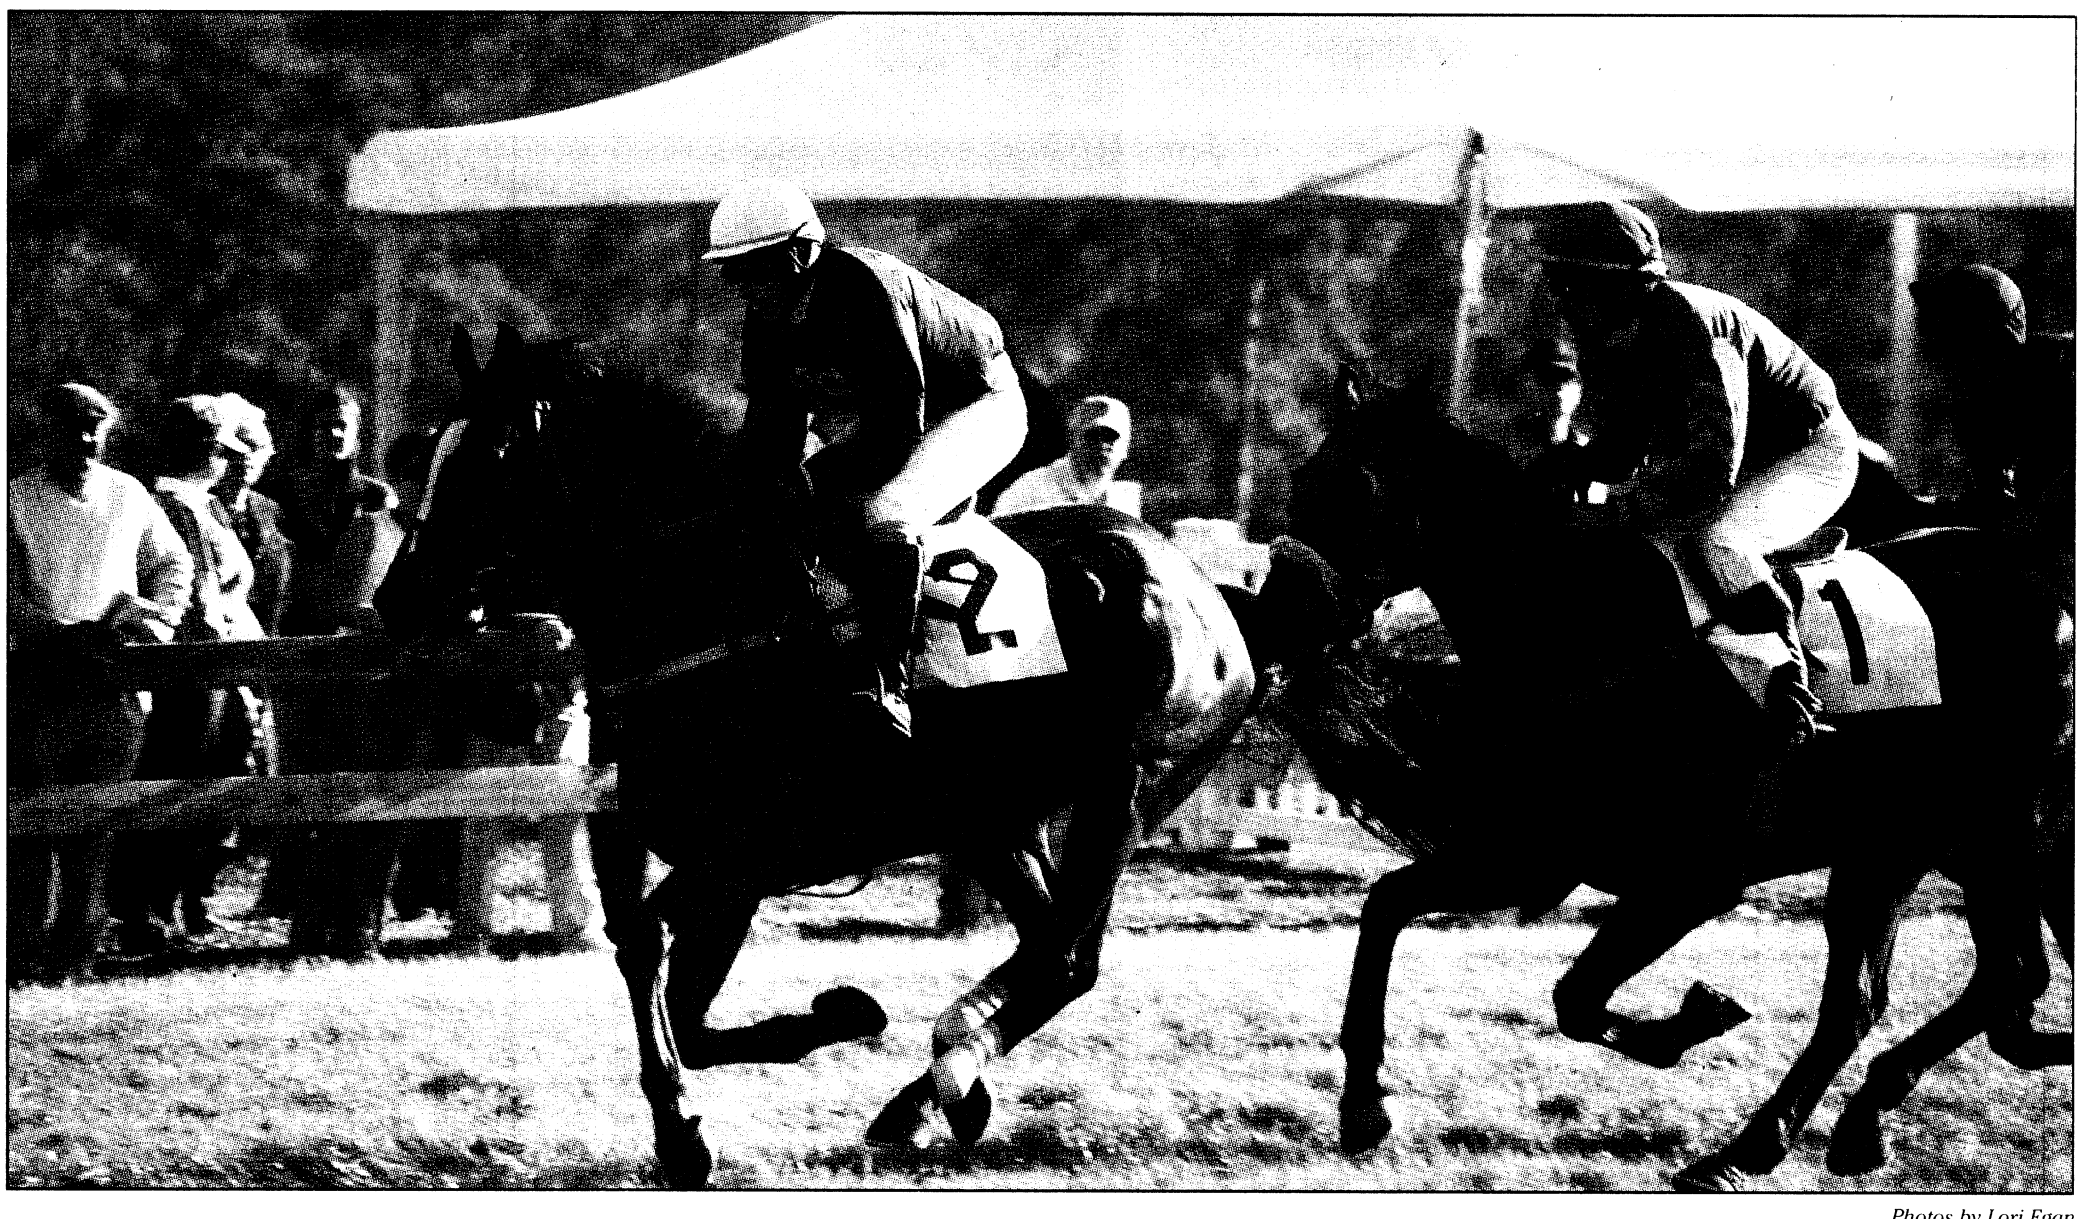
Steeplechase at Callaway



Photos by Lori Egan

Steeplechase races are two to two and half miles long on turf and include 11 to 12 jumps. All steeplechasers are thoroughbreds and most have raced on the flat before converting to steeplechasing. The best steeplechasers combine speed and jumping ability.

If it's the first Saturday in November

Then it's off to the races

The Steeplechase at Callaway features a day of horse racing that benefits the arts. "Our mission has always been to support the arts in the community, using the steeplechase as a vehicle to do so," said Mason Lampton, race chairman. "This has proven to be a positive experience for everyone, both in the area of adding an additional sporting event which is entirely for anyone at any age, as well as allowing us to contribute a total of $2.4 million to the arts in the region." The proceeds from the 2007 race, $180,000, were distributed in March to five beneficiaries: The Columbus Museum, The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, The Historic Columbus Foundation, The Ida Cason Callaway Foundation, and The Springer Opera House. An additional partnership with the Auburn Veterinary College of Medicine is made possible through the proceeds.

The Steeplechase at Callaway offers racing and more for the family

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

The 24rd annual Steeplechase at Callaway is Nov. 1. A steeplechase is a competitive sporting event that provides spectators an opportunity to watch the thrills, smarts and athletic ability of thoroughbreds jumping over 52-inch-high hurdles at premium speeds.

Steeplechasing gets its name from a race in Ireland, according to the National Steeplechase Association. In 1752, Cornelius O'Callaghan and Edmund Blake raced about four and half miles from St. John's Church at Buttevant to St. Mary's Church in Doneraile — church steeples were the most prominent, and tallest, landmarks.

The first steeplechase in the United States is thought to have been held in 1834 in Washington, D.C. Now steeplechases are in 12 states, from New York to Florida, with millions of dollars raised for charity, according to the NSA.

This year's total purse for the Steeplechase at Callaway is $215,000, the fourth largest purse in the nation, which is why the race attracts the best horses, trainers and riders, said Mason Lampton, the race chairman.

"It is extremely important to keep our purse at the upper level," Lampton said, "so you have quality horses that put on a quality show. It ensures your race has the best trainers and riders so our patrons are watching the best of the best in steeplechasing. After all, without the horses, there is no steeplechase."

Steeplechase at Callaway begins with the Midland Foxhound Parade on the track and the Atholl Highland Bagpipers performance. Throughout the day there are pony rides, a bungee jump, a rock wall, moon walk and an opportunity to build a stuffed pony.

The first two races, which start at noon and 12:30 p.m., are junior races — for ponies and junior riders and aren't sanctioned by the NSA.

The first sanctioned race of the day is the WC Bradley Maiden Timber Race with a $20,000 purse. The second race, sponsored by CB&T, is the Collie Jennings Mullin Maiden Hurdle. It's purse is $20,000. The third is the Aflac U.S. Supreme Hurdle Novice Series Race with a purse of $100,000. The fourth race, the Crown Royal Sport of Queens Stakes has a $50,000 purse and is for mares and fillies. The fifth race is the SunTrust Maiden Hurdle, with a purse $25,000. And the sixth race, the Jay Automotive Group Flat, has a purse of $500.

The infield has several new features. There will be a Kids Zone, which will feature five inflatable activities, face painting, stick pony races and Columbus State University education students will man an arts and crafts table. The cost is $15 for a wristband.

"This year we wanted (Steeplechase) to be an event for the entire family," said Claudia Garrard, the race director. "This will be a lot of fun for the kids."

Other infield activities include the bagpipers, the Southern Views hat contest and pony rides.

For those who don't want to pack a picnic or participate in the tailgate contest, there will be food available in the infield.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens. Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

QUARANTINE

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

Entering the apartment unit, they find an old woman in a nightgown, standing alone in the dark. She is covered in blood, her breathing erratic and raspy, but when a policeman approaches to help her, she attacks with her teeth.

The group subdues the woman and tries to get help for the injured policeman, but when they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

Quarantine is rated R for violent and disturbing content, terror and language.

After seven years of marriage, Caleb and Catherine Holt have drifted so far apart that Catherine wishes she had never married. Neither one understands the pressures the other faces — he as firefighter and she as the public relations director of a hospital. Regular arguments over jobs, finances, housework and outside interests have readied them both to move on to something with more sparks.

As the couple prepares to enter divorce proceedings, Caleb's father challenges his son to commit to a 40-day experiment he calls 'The Love Dare.' His job is to rescue others. Now Caleb is ready to face this toughest job ever — rescuing his wife's heart.

Your tricommunity by the numbers

We call it the Chattahoochee Valley or the tricommunity — Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City. The Census Bureau calls it the Columbus, Georgia-Alabama Metropolitan Area, and it includes Muscogee, Harris and Chattahoochee counties in Georgia and Russell County in Georgia.

That's fairly easy to comprehend, once you accept the statistical interstate marriage and the fact that Fort Benning, with a population of more than 32,000, encompasses 184,000 acres in two states and three counties.

But the geography gets a bit more convoluted. Phenix City, which puts the "tri" in tricommunity, actually spills over into Lee County, Ala., which is why most every Phenix City resident lives on Lee County Road This, That or The Other. Lee County is not included in the Census Bureau's Columbus metro statistics.

So, taking into consideration that the "tricommunity" is easier to define culturally and economically than geographically, here's a rundown of our community by the numbers. All statistics are estimates based on the 2000 census and projected growths through 2006.

BRAC is an acronym which stands for "Base Realignment and Closure." It is the process DoD has used to reorganize its installation infrastructure to more efficiently and effectively support its forces, increase operational readiness and facilitate new ways of doing business.

MCOE: As a result of the Base Realignment and Closure, the Armor School is moving to Fort Benning from Fort Knox, Ky. The Home of Infantry will be known as the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

RiverCenter

The RiverCenter for the Performing Arts opened five years ago. In 2002, professor Joseph Golden played to a sold-out audience in Legacy Hall — he played the center's new $1 million Jordan Concert Organ. That same year, world-famous soprano Jessye Norman performed at the opening of the Bill Heard Theatre.

The RiverCenter is home to the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, which was formed in 1855. Now, under the direction of George Del Gobbo, the orchestra has a steady schedule of shows designed to appeal to a broader audience than one mught typically expect to frequent the orchestra.

Columbus Civic Center

Since 1996, the Civic Center has hosted more big names than you can shake a stick at, including Harry Connick Jr., Bill Gaither, KISS, Motley Crue, Bob Dylan, Leann Rimes, Disney on Ice, Franklin Graham and Lord of the Dance, just to name a few.

The Civic Center is also where you'll find the Columbus Cottonmouths Ice Hockey team, the only pro or semi pro team to stick around long enough to draw a faithful following.

They moved into the Civic Center the year it opened.

These days, the Springer offers a mainstage series of five plays and musicals, the Studio II and Children's Theater series, and the Springer Theater Academy.

'The Army's awesome'

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

Joy, pride and a tremendous amount of love is how Memphis-native Wanda Flynn described her emotions when her son and 158 Soldiers and civilians returned from Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom Sunday.

"This Army's awesome," said Spc. Will Flynn's mother, who had been waiting since Sept. 29 for her son and the 32 remaining Soldiers with the 104th Transportation Company to redeploy. Sandstorms in Kuwait delayed the Soldiers' return. "I wouldn't have been able to (cope) without his Army Family. They helped me a great deal this last week while I was waiting for today."

Sunday's flight carried three separate groups to Freedom Hall — 13 Soldiers with the 14th Combat Support Hospital's 926th Preventive Medicine Detachment, 133 Soldiers and civilians with the CONUS Replacement Center and the last of the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion's 104th Transportation Co.

While in Iraq, the 104th logged more than 10,000 miles on patrol.

During its second deployment in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom, the 926th Preventive Medicine Detachment Soldiers went out in two-man teams to minimize the medical and environmental health threats on the battlefield.

Col. David Fulbright, the 14th CSH's commander, arranged for his Soldiers to be greeted not only by family and friends, but also by Soldiers in the 690th Medical Co. and 14th CSH.

SafetyCab to run every weekend

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

SafetyCab will run every Thursday through Sunday starting today, said Bob Meloche, safety specialist with Combat Readiness.

Usually SafetyCab operates only during holiday weekends, but it has been extended to include every weekend through the end of the year.

During this three-month trial period, military ID cardholders in the tricommunity can call SafetyCab for a free ride home between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m. Thursday through Sunday. For Columbus Day weekend, SafetyCab is available through Wednesday morning.

"It's much better to be proactive than reactive," Meloche said. "The proper way to celebrate a holiday is to make sure you have a designated driver, but sometimes you get caught short. With this program, people have an alternative to even thinking about getting behind the wheel."

The program has grown steadily since its inception in 1999. Sixty-five Soldiers called SafetyCab during Labor Day weekend. Last year, more than 680 people took advantage of the program.

"It's important we provide an option to Soldiers," said Col. Charles Durr, the installation's chief of staff, who initiated the change. "If it works on Labor Day, it might work on Halloween or other times. The cost of 680 taxi cabs is well worth saving one person from dying or being injured."

To contact SafetyCab, call 706-527-7248.

John Harlow

WASHINGTON — Gen. William S. Wallace, commander of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, introduced new Army doctrine this week in Washington. The Stability Operations field manual, FM 3-07, elevates stability operations to the same level as offensive and defensive operations.

"We recognize that in a contemporary operational environment, conventional military operations will be conducted simultaneously with stability operations," Wallace said. "Our hope is that FM 3-07 becomes a source document not just for the military and agencies within our government, but also non-governmental agencies with whom we work."

Lt. Gen. William B. Caldwell IV, commanding general of the U.S. Army Combined Arms Center at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., said America's future abroad is unlikely to resemble Afghanistan or Iraq, "where we grapple with the burden of nation-building under fire."

Instead, Caldwell said, "we will work through and with the community of nations to defeat insurgency, assist fragile states and provide vital humanitarian aid to the suffering."

Given the complexities of the future operating environment, the Army must look at the different ways the elements of national power (military, economic, diplomatic and information) are employed, according to the new manual. Military success will not be sufficient to prevail during a time of protracted confrontation fueled by religious extremism, competition for energy, globalization, climate and demographic changes, and the increased use of violence.

"Our objective when we go into a foreign country is to leave, but to leave with that country safe and secure," Caldwell said.

TRADOC officials used a "comprehensive approach" when developing the new doctrine, seeking input from agencies and officials within the government and sister services as well as those outside.

"We have to understand how to balance our approach," said Lt. Col. Steve Leonard, chief of CAC's operational-level doctrine directorate. "There needs to be balance between the political and military imperatives that drive our operations and humanitarian principles that guide the efforts of relief agencies.

Post hires four new fire inspectors, three more expected

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Fort Benning fire department had one fire prevention inspector last year. Today there are five. By the end of the year, there will be three more, plus an assistant fire prevention chief.

The addition of eight inspectors, who are responsible for evaluating the safety on non-residential buildings on post, comes at a time when Fort Benning is growing very quickly, said Fire Chief Arthur Simmons.

"There is a lot of area to inspect at Fort Benning — 20 million square feet — and only having one inspector wasn't getting the job done," Simmons said.

With the expansion of Fort Benning as a result of BRAC, there will be more buildings to inspect, he said, and more personnel who will require basic fire safety training.

In the early 90s, there was a mandated reduction in force, said Simmons, who has worked on post since 1989. After the new hires, the fire prevention program will be staffed at "full force."

Inspectors make sure building designs comply with fire regulations before construction — that each building has enough doors and exits, heat and smoke detectors and fire safe hallways. They also investigate the cause of fires.

"Our ultimate goal is to have zero loss of life," said Inspector Ryan Earwood, who has been in Department of Defense fire service for seven years, but just arrived to Fort Benning.

"If we overlook something, there's a chance that little bitty item could lead to a fire."

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

The 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment is one of the key training units on Fort Benning. The battalion's Stryker Bradley Instructional Company (SBIC) is the unit that trains Soldiers and leaders in Bradley and Stryker skill sets. These skills serve to enhance war-fighting capabilities, ultimately increasing the Army's ability to fight and win in combat.

All of the Army's Master Gunners are graduates of courses taught by SBIC, and the unit also provides instruction for the Mechanized Leader Course, the Stryker Leader Course, and the Stryker Transition Course. Additionally, SBIC deploys Mobile Training Teams to teach any of the courses at a parent unit's home station or in theater, and through the Maintenance Management Division, trains units on the Humvee Egress Assistance Trainer.

Not only does 1/29 provide Bradley and Stryker instruction for the entire Army — thousands of students per year — it also conducts future force experimentation for the Soldier Battle Lab and the Army, as well as demonstrations and support for the U.S. Army Infantry Center and Infantry School — all the while maintaining a high level of individual, collective, and readiness training for its Soldiers.

The battalion's Gen. J. Lawton Collins Training Center is busy year-round with many unique missions. One of the unique aspects of the Collins Training Center is its heavy reliance on simulators to perform its mission, to include the Stryker Driver's Trainer, the Conduct of Fire Trainer, and the Bradley Advanced Training System. Using simulators is smart because it allows the majority of the actual vehicles to be used in the operational force and simulation training saves money for the Army.

The battalion's A Company conducts testing and experimentation in support of the USAICS, the Global War on Terrorism, and other Infantry initiatives. The company is on the cutting edge of Army technology, constantly testing new equipment that is years away from being fielded. Soldier feedback on the equipment is vital to any program's success.

Companies B and C provide Bradley and Stryker support to the Infantry center and school in order to prepare Soldiers and leaders for their follow-on assignments. Both companies are heavily involved in the hands-on training exercises that 1/29 conducts for the Infantry Precommand Course and other schools and organizations, showcasing a number of vehicles including the Bradley ODS and A3 models, and the Stryker vehicle in several variants. Additionally, they perform static displays and rolling demonstrations for Infantry graduations; all the while maintaining individual and crew proficiency on the Stryker and Bradley.

The New Equipment Training Company (NETC) conducts training for the entire Army on battalion sets of Bradley Fighting and Stryker Vehicles to modernize and transition units at home station. NETC has 14 mobile training teams that deploy all over the world to teach units who receive Bradleys or Strykers, saving the Army time and money by eliminating the need to move the unit to a training center.

The battalion's Headquarters, Headquarters Company (HHC) conducts vehicle maintenance, transportation, and support for the Infantry center and school, providing the force with trained Soldiers and leaders who are prepared to fight and win in combat. HHC provides fuel and transportation support to all Fort Benning units with the exception of the 192nd and 198th Infantry Brigades — supporting literally thousands of missions per year.

Through smart training, 1/29 has been able to meet its challenging mission of training the most competent Soldiers in the world while continuing to improve operational capabilities.

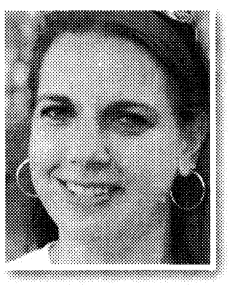
Be safe, not sorry when it comes to credit

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Erin A. Nash



About a year ago, I started getting phone calls for a woman named Rita. I told the caller there was no Rita living at my house. The calls kept coming every month or so, until I lost patience and demanded answers — who is Rita? The caller worked for a lawyer who was looking for a woman who owed money on a credit card.

Since my mother-in-law is named Rita, I called home and spoke to my father-in-law. He called the lawyer. Turns out that the woman they were looking for had a different Social Security number than my mother-in-law. Problem solved. Or so we thought.

Last week the phone rang at 8:30 p.m.

"Hi Rita!" the caller said. I explained that no, I'm not Rita. He didn't want to hear it. He asked if my husband's name was Adam. It is, so I handed over the phone. The man was from a collection agency and he threatened my husband, said he'd be taken to court for not paying a bill he'd co-signed for. My husband insisted he was not the Adam they were looking for, just as Rita wasn't the right Rita they were searching for. He didn't have the correct SSN for Adam either.

When the collector put my husband on hold, Adam hung up and called his father. Rita, in turn, called the collection agency and it was verified, yet again, that no, she is not the Rita they were looking for. The agent apologized and said both Rita and Adam's names would be taken off the account.

Just a few days ago, I again answered the phone to, "Hi Rita!" Same collection agency, different agent.

I was sick and sleeping when she called, so I might have been a tad rude. I went through the entire story again, and she apologized and said that my husband's name would be taken off their call list, but we might get another phone call (or two) within a few days because they rely on an automated dialing list.

The whole situation got my husband to thinking about identity theft. A friend recommended the company LifeLock. For $10 a month, LifeLock offers a number of services, most notably what they call "proactive identity theft protection." The friend was at a store buying a TV, and LifeLock called to make sure that it was him buying it, not someone trying to use his name and credit.

That's worth the peace of mind, since we're thinking about buying a house. Anything untoward on a credit report can seriously hinder your ability to buy a house, car, etc.

I recommend visiting the Web site www.annualcreditreport.com. Once a year, everyone is entitled to view and print (or have it mailed to them) their credit report. And for a few more dollars, you can even view your credit score.

As much as I get a kick out of the commercials for FreeCreditReport.com, if you read the fine print, you get a seven-day trial membership, and if you don't cancel within nine days, you are automatically enrolled and billed $14.95 a month.

I'm glad my husband decided to protect his credit. In these tough economic times, you never know what could happen.

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Elsie Jackson

October is National Roller Skating Month, not to be confused with National Skating Month in January.

January is National (Figure) Skating Month. No wonder I'd never heard of it. Not much of that kind of thing went on growing up in Hawaii where ice only comes crushed, cubed or shaved.

One of my few memories from grade school is listening to the little kid next to me sounding out an unfamiliar word. He finally gave up and asked our teacher what "ssss-now" was.

Our teacher had not grown up in Hawaii and was shocked when she realized the rest of the class thought it was "ssss-now" too. She tried to explain what snow was, not an easy thing to do when you can't even use snow cones as a reference point. (Hawaiians call them "shave ice")

Which brings me back to October, National Roller Skating Month, which, in my book, is skating the way people are meant to skate. I cycled and roller skated all the time growing up. Still do, albeit not that well.

On a good day, the only contact I make with the floor of the Jam Skate Center in Columbus is with my wheels. On a bad day, more makes contact with the floor. As it turns out, you use a lot more than just the muscles in your legs when you skate.

I'm happy that our local inline team, GT Speed, doesn't mind me tooling around on the floor while they practice for upcoming meets. I get some exercise while I wait for my daughter to finish practice and it sure beats just sitting there.

Several of GT's skaters are nationally ranked. During a really good practice, it's like watching a cross between short track racing (think Apolo Anton Ohno before he learned to dance) and NASCAR.

I, on the other hand (and on the other end of the scale) have a far humbler goal — to stay vertical, with my wheels on the floor.

Care to join me? It's good exercise, a lot of fun and if you really need another reason, October is National Roller Skating Month.

The weather's always right too. No chance of ssss-now.

Rangers test combat water survival skills

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Ranger School students tackled the combat water survival test Sept. 15 at Hurley Hill.

After walking across a log suspended over Victory Pond, doing a commando crawl on a rope, flying down a zip line and dropping into the pond with a MOLLE and a mock M-16, Rangers were wet and tired, said Capt. Keith Ingram, the 4th Ranger Training Battalion's A Company commander.

"A pretty significant amount of a Ranger's training is in the water, so it's important to know whether he can maintain himself in the swamp," Ingram said.

The other part is facing fears, he said.

"Part of being a Ranger is being able to work in harsh environments and to deal with scenarios where you might have an inherent fear," he said.

Ranger Clayton Celmer is afraid of heights. He didn't look down as he climbed the ladder to the zip line. When he got on the zip line, he looked at the hand grip and nowhere else.

"My adrenaline started pumping and all I could think to do was yell 'Ranger' as loud as I could," he said. "When I got to the bottom, I felt a little better about being in high places."

Ranger Sam Casell said he is "a little" scared of heights but his fear doesn't get to him.

"Fear isn't a big deal," he said. "It's your ability to control your fear. What this training teaches is that even though you might be afraid of heights or water or pain, you still have to face it and overcome it."

Engineers put the full closure bridge to the test by moving 80 trucks across it.

On the last day of the two-week FTX, engineers built a full closure bridge in three hours.

'Constant readiness'

Engineers conduct two-week FTX

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Soldiers of the 362nd Engineer (Multi-Role Bridge) Company wrapped up their annual two-week field training exercise Sept. 25. During the exercise, they conducted night land navigation, convoy operations, and MOUT and demolitions training. They built a rafting bridge — used to ferry vehicles — and a full closure bridge — one that reached from one river bank to the other.

The FTX was designed to replicate situations the Soldiers may find in combat.

Spc. David Aiken spent a year in Iraq. On his first night there, he was assigned to help rebuild a bridge that had been destroyed on a main supply route near Camp Rustamiyah. The engineers worked for three days in 18-hour shifts. From that experience, Aiken said, he learned the importance of "constant readiness." The FTX drove home that point.

"The only way to do the job is to do it. You can sit at the motor pool or do drills all day, but you really get a feel for (what it's like in combat) when you're out in the field," he said. "The field prepares you for a worst case scenario. It's about making it as rough as you can here, so it's not as bad overseas."

The FTX wasn't just about building bridges.

"That's their mission, but they also have to focus on basic Soldiering skills like land nav, shooting a weapon and first aid," said 2nd Lt. Jaime Lopez, platoon leader. "For most of the Soldiers, the last time they saw Infantry tactics was basic training, so this is a good refresher course for them."

Paratroopers' patron, Mr. Airborne, honored at memorial

THE BAYONET

"Cpl. Lassen."
"Cpl. Don Lassen."
"Cpl. ... Donald ... Douglas ... Lassen."

Three times the sergeant major called that name, and three times he was met with silence. Then, three rifle volleys and the playing of Taps.

Lassen

Having presided over countless roll calls just like it, Don Lassen would have been proud. "Mr. Airborne," the founder and president of the Airborne Historical Association, the president of the Atlanta Chapter of the 82nd Airborne Association and the editor of the Static Line, a monthly newsletter dedicated to all things airborne, died Aug. 7 at the age of 86.

Lassen's widow, Fran, his family and nearly 50 members of the Airborne Association gathered Sunday at the Airborne Walk to honor the World War II veteran who was remembered as the "bearer of the airborne legacy."

"If he saw something needed to be done, he took responsibility for it," said Ben Reese, 91, one of three surviving members of the original Airborne Test Platoon, which took to the sky over Lawson Field for the first time in 1940. "He thought it was important to remember our (airborne) heritage, so he really pushed this thing over the years. If he didn't, it would've gone dead. I really think so."

Bridgett Siter
The Don Lassen family and members of the Atlanta Chapter of the 82nd Airborne Association attended a memorial ceremony for Lassen Sunday at the Airborne Walk. The Silver Wings jumped onto Eubanks Field and presented Lassen's widow, Fran, a baton inscribed with a tribute to her late husband.

Lassen, a Chicago native, was drafted in 1942 after planting himself in front of the draft officer's desk. He was sent to the 86th Division in Camp Howze, Texas, where he found himself surrounded by other draftees who were less enthusiastic about serving.

"None of them wanted to be there. None of them," Lassen said last year during the annual Airborne Awards Festival. "I thought, 'Geez, I'm the best man in the 86th. If I'm the best man in the whole outfit, I better find another outfit."

So Lassen volunteered again, this time for the 82nd Airborne Division. He spent three years with the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment — "just long enough to get the war over with" — and made 25 jumps — "just enough to get my belly full of it." Those three years shaped his life, said Lassen, a veteran of the Normandy invasion and the Battle of the Bulge.

"The airborne made men out of boys. I was only 19, and it made a man out of me," he said.

In 1947, he launched the Static Line, a one-page newsletter dedicated to the perpetuation of the airborne brotherhood. He hosted the annual Airborne Awards Festival, a gathering of paratroopers from every generation, and led efforts to construct the Airborne Walk, which was dedicated in 1986.

The walk, where thousands of new paratroopers pin wings to their lapel each year, will forever speak of Lassen's dedication to a cause he believed in, said Lt. Col. Jon Ring, commander of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

"Don was the man who carried the pride of the airborne community on his shoulders," Ring said. "Here he forever linked the paratroopers of that day — his day — and every phase of airborne history since."

Two members of the Silver Wings, Fort Benning's parachute exhibition team, jumped onto Eubanks Field during the ceremony, handing off a baton in mid air. They presented the baton to Lassen's widow.

"He would've enjoyed this," Fran Lassen said of the ceremony. "He would've been proud."

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Anthony C. O'Bryant

Fort Benning honored a Soldier described by his family, friends and fellow Soldiers as a dedicated Soldier who would do anything for others Oct. 2 at The Infantry Center Chapel.

1st Lt. Mohsin Naqvi died Sept. 17, nearly seven years to day he enlisted, from wounds suffered after his vehicle struck an IED during a routine patrol in Gerdia Seria, Afghanistan..

Naqvi was born July 27, 1982, near Islamabad, Pakistan. Eight years later his family moved to Chicago when his dad took a new job.

He had a great sense of humor, said friends and family, and would give a stranger the shirt off his back without question.

"You could tell when he was home, because there would always be something going on and somebody was laughing," said Hassan Naqvi, Mohsin's brother.

"His favorite movie growing up was Rambo," Hassan said. "He wanted to be Rambo."

Mohsin wanted to enter the Army as soon as he graduated from high school, but his parents insisted he go to college first. And that was his path until Sept. 11 when he joined the Reserves as a combat medic.

"After 9/11, he told my parents that college was going to have to wait," Hassan said. "It was more important to join the Army."

After Naqvi's first deployment, he moved to Rochester, N.Y., to study at the Rochester Institute of Technology where he attended Reserve Officers' Training Corps. He earned his bachelor's degree from Geneseo University.

In 2005, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant. After completion of the Infantry Officer Basic Course at Fort Benning, his first duty station was as an executive officer for A Company, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment.

While serving on Sand Hill, Mohsin was promoted in July 2007 to first lieutenant. His second assignment was with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, U.S. Army Infantry Center as the company executive officer where he worked alongside Staff Sgt. Reggie Brooks.

"He was a real professional Soldier, and whenever there was something hot, Lieutenant Naqvi took care of it," Brooks said. "He was a great example for young commissioned officers."

When not wearing ACUs, he wore his gym clothes, said Heather Lockard, who Naqvi asked to take care of his dog, Rambo. "Working out gave Mohsin a chance to relieve stress or boredom," she said. "If he wasn't at the gym, he would be hanging out or driving around post with Rambo. The two were inseparable.

"Rambo was not just Mohsin's dog," she said. "He was his companion and his best friend. He would take Rambo everywhere with him even if it were just five feet."

He deployed in July and his job was supposed to be as an executive officer working logistics on the forward operating base. But his mission changed after he agreed to help train a police mentoring unit, said Capt. Carl Purgerson, Naqvi's former company commander. That decision took him out of the safety of the FOB and into a volatile area littered with IEDs.

He and four other Soldiers died from wounds suffered after their vehicle struck an IED.

During a memorial service, Purgerson remembered Naqvi.

"A lot of times we would sit in my office and talk about world issues, and what they mean for us Soldiers," he said.

The two talked at length about the challenges Naqvi faced as a Soldier of the Islamic faith, Purgeson said.

"He faced a lot of criticism because of his faith, and people would ask him how he could fight against Muslims who are causing turmoil in the world. And he would simply say, because it is my duty and they are wrong," said Purgerson. "He represented his faith and name so well. His family should be proud."

Chilean cadets complete WHINSEC leadership course

WHINSEC PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Lee A. Rials and Grace Florez

When 144 cadets from the Chilean Military Academy graduated from a nine-day leadership course at the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation Sept. 29, they're training was not entirely compete. The next day the cadets returned to class to prepare for a three-day visit to Washington D.C. as a part of their leadership experience.

The leadership course at WHINSEC is a requirement for all Chilean military students to graduate from their academy and the cadets find the course worthwhile, said cadet Vanesa Rojas Vargas.

"I think one of the aspects about WHINSEC I could highlight is the professionalism and the team work of its instructors," Vargas said.

Other cadets agree, but this was not the only aspect of the training that left an impression. Cadet Claudio Sáez Contreras was complimentary of the U.S. and partner nation instructors, but added that our Soldiers were also to be commended.

"When I arrived at WHINSEC, I was impressed by the instructors' professionalism, team work, and conviction. U.S. Army Soldiers train day-by-day. They are prepared for anything, and their training is one of their top priorities."

"It has been a good week professionally," said Cristobal Raggi, a U.S. citizen. Raggi was born when his father was a Student in Boston and he and his family moved to Santiago, Chile when he was two years old.

Raggi said he tried to return to the U.S. to join the Marine Corps, but his father wouldn't allow it, so he began studying Physical Education in a Chilean university. After three years, he was accepted to the Chilean Military Academy. Now he is becoming an Infantry officer and later he plans to be a helicopter pilot.

His experience at WHINSEC will come in handy when dealing with subordinates, Raggi said. "I wanted to learn how U.S. officers and NCOs work together," he said. "I want to be an humble leader."

Capt. Raul Ferreira, the commandant of the fourth-year students at the Chilean Military School, said overall the training his cadets received in the United States was good.

"The cadets acquired good experiences, and reinforced their military knowledge," Ferreira said. "They also learned to interact with soldiers from another army. These encounters have contributed to the cadets' professional development."

While the group was in Washington D.C. they were addressed by the Assistant to the Chilean Army attaché, Col. Luis Fuenzalida, who outlined what is expected of them as they enter the Chilean Armed Forces.

the return to be more personal for our Soldiers," Fulbright said. "This is their final destination; after the ceremony, these Soldiers will be released until Wednesday. But first, they get a safety briefing."

There have been a lot of changes in the 15 months the Soldiers have been deployed, Fulbright said. Traffic patterns have changed because of construction and growth, and driving is going to be new again. The Soldiers haven't had alcohol so they have no tolerance; and there is the risk of post traumatic stress disorder.

"We lose Soldiers because they do things they haven't done in 15 months," Fulbright said. "Big Army is aware of these risks and we need to make sure our Soldiers know about them."

Before the Soldiers go on block leave, there will be 21 days of reintegration training.

According to Military OneSource, it's normal to feel out of sync after deployment and the Web site offers these tips for reintegration:

Talk with your spouse. Sometimes it's easier to reconnect if you talk while doing something else together, like taking a walk or working out.

Ease back into intimacy. It's not easy to regain physical and emotional closeness after stressful situations.

Be patient with yourself and your family. Fatigue, confusion and worry, common during this transition, can lead to short tempers.

Tell family members that you're proud of them. Focus on the positive changes you see at home, and let your family know you appreciate them.

Expect your children to test the rules now that both parents are home. Set aside time with your spouse to come up with an approach you both agree on.

Make time in your schedule for family activities. Include one-on-one time with each of your children.

Watch your spending. It's tempting to celebrate your return with dinners out or special gifts, but it's important to stay within your means.

Know when to seek help. If you, your spouse, or other family members are feeling signs of stress, physical or emotional, it's important to seek expert help — the earlier the better.

Ultimately, the people are the focus of stability operations. So while we work to establish good governance, economic recovery, security and rule of law, we also have to give those non-government organizations the space and freedom to be independent of the military and transparent to the people they are helping so they can do their jobs."

Stability operations must be part of the entire military-planning process, Caldwell said.

"Some people are talking about pre-emptive stability operations. They are doing that because we literally need to plan for and resource it before military operations begin," he said.

This isn't an entirely new concept, officials said. Soldiers and leaders have been performing the five critical tasks of establishing civil security, establishing civil control, restoring essential services, supporting governance and supporting economic and infrastructure development around the globe for years.

But now, they said, these tasks will be addressed before, rather than after, conflict, and conducted within the context of peacetime.

"We intended for this manual to be used by all the services, all the departments and agencies of government and all the NGOs who might be participating in a Stability Operation," Leonard said.

Field Manual 3-07, Stability Operations, represents a milestone in Army doctrine, Caldwell said.

"It is a roadmap from conflict to peace, a practical guidebook for adaptive, creative leadership at a critical time in our history," he said.

"This manual postures our military forces for the challenges of an uncertain future, an era of persistent conflict where the unflagging bravery of our Soldiers will continue to carry the banner of freedom, hope and opportunity to the people of the world."

Army Ten-Miler B3

FOR THE BAYONET SPORTS

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Shock wins title

The Detroit Shock won their third WNBA title in six seasons with a sweep of the San Antonio Silver Stars Oct. 5.

Katie Smith, who won a gold medal in Beijing, also garnered the MVP award.

Check your fantasy line-up

Brian Westbrook, running back for the Philadelphia Eagles, broke two ribs after sitting out last week's game because of an ankle injury. The Eagles lost, 23-17, to the red-hot Washington Redskins.

The Eagles play the San Francisco 49ers Sunday, and coach Andy Reid wouldn't talk about if Westbrook would play or not.

Stewart wins, Smith whines

Rookie Regan Smith crossed the finish line first, and began to celebrate winning the Amp Energy 500 at Talladega Oct. 5. But NASCAR had other ideas. Because Smith had passed Tony Stewart below the yellow line, which is a no-no, officials declared Stewart the winner.

Carl Edwards was the bad guy of the race, causing the "big one" and taking himself and two of his teammates out of the race. Twelve cars were involved in the wreck.

The fourth race of the Chase will start with coverage at 7 p.m. Saturday on ABC from Lowe's Motor Speedway.

Championship Series set

The American League and National League Championship Series have been determined.

The Philadelphia Phillies and Los Angeles Dodgers began their series Oct. 9. The Tampa Bay Rays and Boston Red Sox play the first best-of-seven series game tonight at 8:37 p.m. All games are on TBS.

College rankings

Oklahoma retained the top spot in the Associated Press Top 25 college football teams. Alabama remained second, and Missouri went up a spot to No. 3 after beating Nebraska, 52-17. LSU, who had an off week, moved to fourth. Texas is fifth, followed by Penn State at sixth and Texas Tech at No. 7.

Juice gets squeezed

Former football star O.J. Simpson was found guilty of all 12 charges against him Oct. 3, 13 years to the very day that he was acquitted of a double murder. Simpson was found guilty of robbing two sports memorabilia dealers at gunpoint in Las Vegas.

Simpson, who is now 61 years old, could wind up spending the rest of his life in the slammer. We'll find out Dec. 5, when he is scheduled to be sentenced. Expect an appeal, though.

More than 280 Soldiers from around the Army competed in the fourth annual U.S. Army Combatives Championship last weekend at Smith Fitness Center. Twenty eight competed in the finals Sunday in seven weight classes.

Fort Riley, Kan., took first place in the team category. A Fort Benning Soldier, Staff Sgt. Brandon Sayles, of 3rd Squadron, 1st Calvary Regiment, took first in heavyweight. Fort Bragg, N.C., claimed three winners, and Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Lewis Wash., and Fort Stewart, Ga., each took home a first place.

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Matt Larsen, director of the Combatives School at Fort Benning and the author of the Army combatives manual, said the growth of the competition — there were twice as many competitors this year as last — reflects the fact that more and more

Memorial run honors student

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The deadline for early registration for the Aaron Blake Reynolds Memorial Run is Wednesday. The run, which will be Nov. 1 at Hardaway High School, will raise money for a school wrestling facility, named in honor of Aaron Blake Reynolds.

A former captain of the Hardaway wrestling team, Aaron died from a brain aneurism while away at college, less than a month after his 21st birthday.

"We had no idea he had this aneurism," said his mother, Lynne Williamson. "He never had any symptoms. We were completely blindsided by this."

"I wanted to keep his memory alive," said Williamson, who is organizing the run. "When he was 14, he told me he didn't want to be one of those people who die and are forgotten. He said he wanted to leave a mark on this world. So I really feel by having this wrestling facility and annual run, we're helping him make that happen."

The Non-Commissioned Officers Academy, Partners in Education with Hardaway, plans to be out in full force for the run, said Sgt. Maj. Agnes Bennett-Green, PIE liaison for the academy.

"This run is for a great cause," said Bennett-Green, who plans to attend the event with her daughter. "It also gives us another opportunity to work with our students at Hardaway. We look at it like a family. We're showing our support, leading by example. It's the right thing to do."

A one-mile fun run will begin at 9 a.m. followed by the 5K at 9:30. Age group and overall awards will be given for the race. The first three finishers in the fun run will receive medals.

The entry fee for the 5K is $15 for adults and $10 for students 18 and younger through Wednesday and $20 for adults and $15 for students after Wednesday. For the fun run, it's $10 for adults and $8 for students through Wednesday and $12 for adults and $10 for students after Wednesday.

Moisture wicking shirts are available with registration while supplies last. Complimentary food and drink will be provided for all runners. To pick up a registration form, visit Hardaway High School. For more information, e-mail lynnew67@yahoo.com.

26,000 compete in Army Ten-Miler

Alex McVeigh
Frederick Poole

About 26,000 runners and 4,000 others converged in the Pentagon's South Parking lot Sunday morning for the 24th Annual Army Ten-Miler.

Fort Bliss, Texas, fielded the winning Active Duty Men's team for the largest 10-mile race in America, and second largest in the world. Fort Bragg, N.C., won the Active Duty Women's category. Reginaldo Campos Jr. of Washington D.C. took first place overall with a time 48:59. Reena Veddy of Centreville, Va. won the women's category at 58:08.

"The Army Ten-Miler represents the race for excellence, it's the Army's race," said Jim Vandak, race director. "There's a pretty large trophy that goes to the best military male and female teams, and with those come bragging rights."

The day was about more than just the race, however. Thousands showed up to support their family member, friend or co-worker and stayed to enjoy the number of exhibits, food and bands that were present.

"We've come every year since my husband ran (in 2003)," said Sidney Harkins of Triangle, Va. "It's a great way to spend a day with the family, even if you're not running."

In support of the Army Ten-Miler, five thousand people ran in several shadow races around the world in more than a dozen camps and bases.

Wrapping up the running portion of the ten-miler were more than 300 children participating in their own version of the Army Ten-Miler, the Health Net Federal Services Youth Runs. Children kindergarten through third grade ran a 100-meter sprint to the finish and kids in grades fourth through eighth participated in the 200-meter competition.

Faith wins first cross country meet of season

Rachel L. Watkins

About 20 students from Faith Middle School competed against 50 students from five Columbus and Phenix City schools in the St. Luke cross country Invitational at Lakebottom Park Tuesday. Faith took first place in the team category by one point.

Eighth-grader Michael George took home first place in the boys' race with a time of 13:04, and eighth-grader Brett Barrientes took home third place with 13:31.

George has run cross country for about six years.

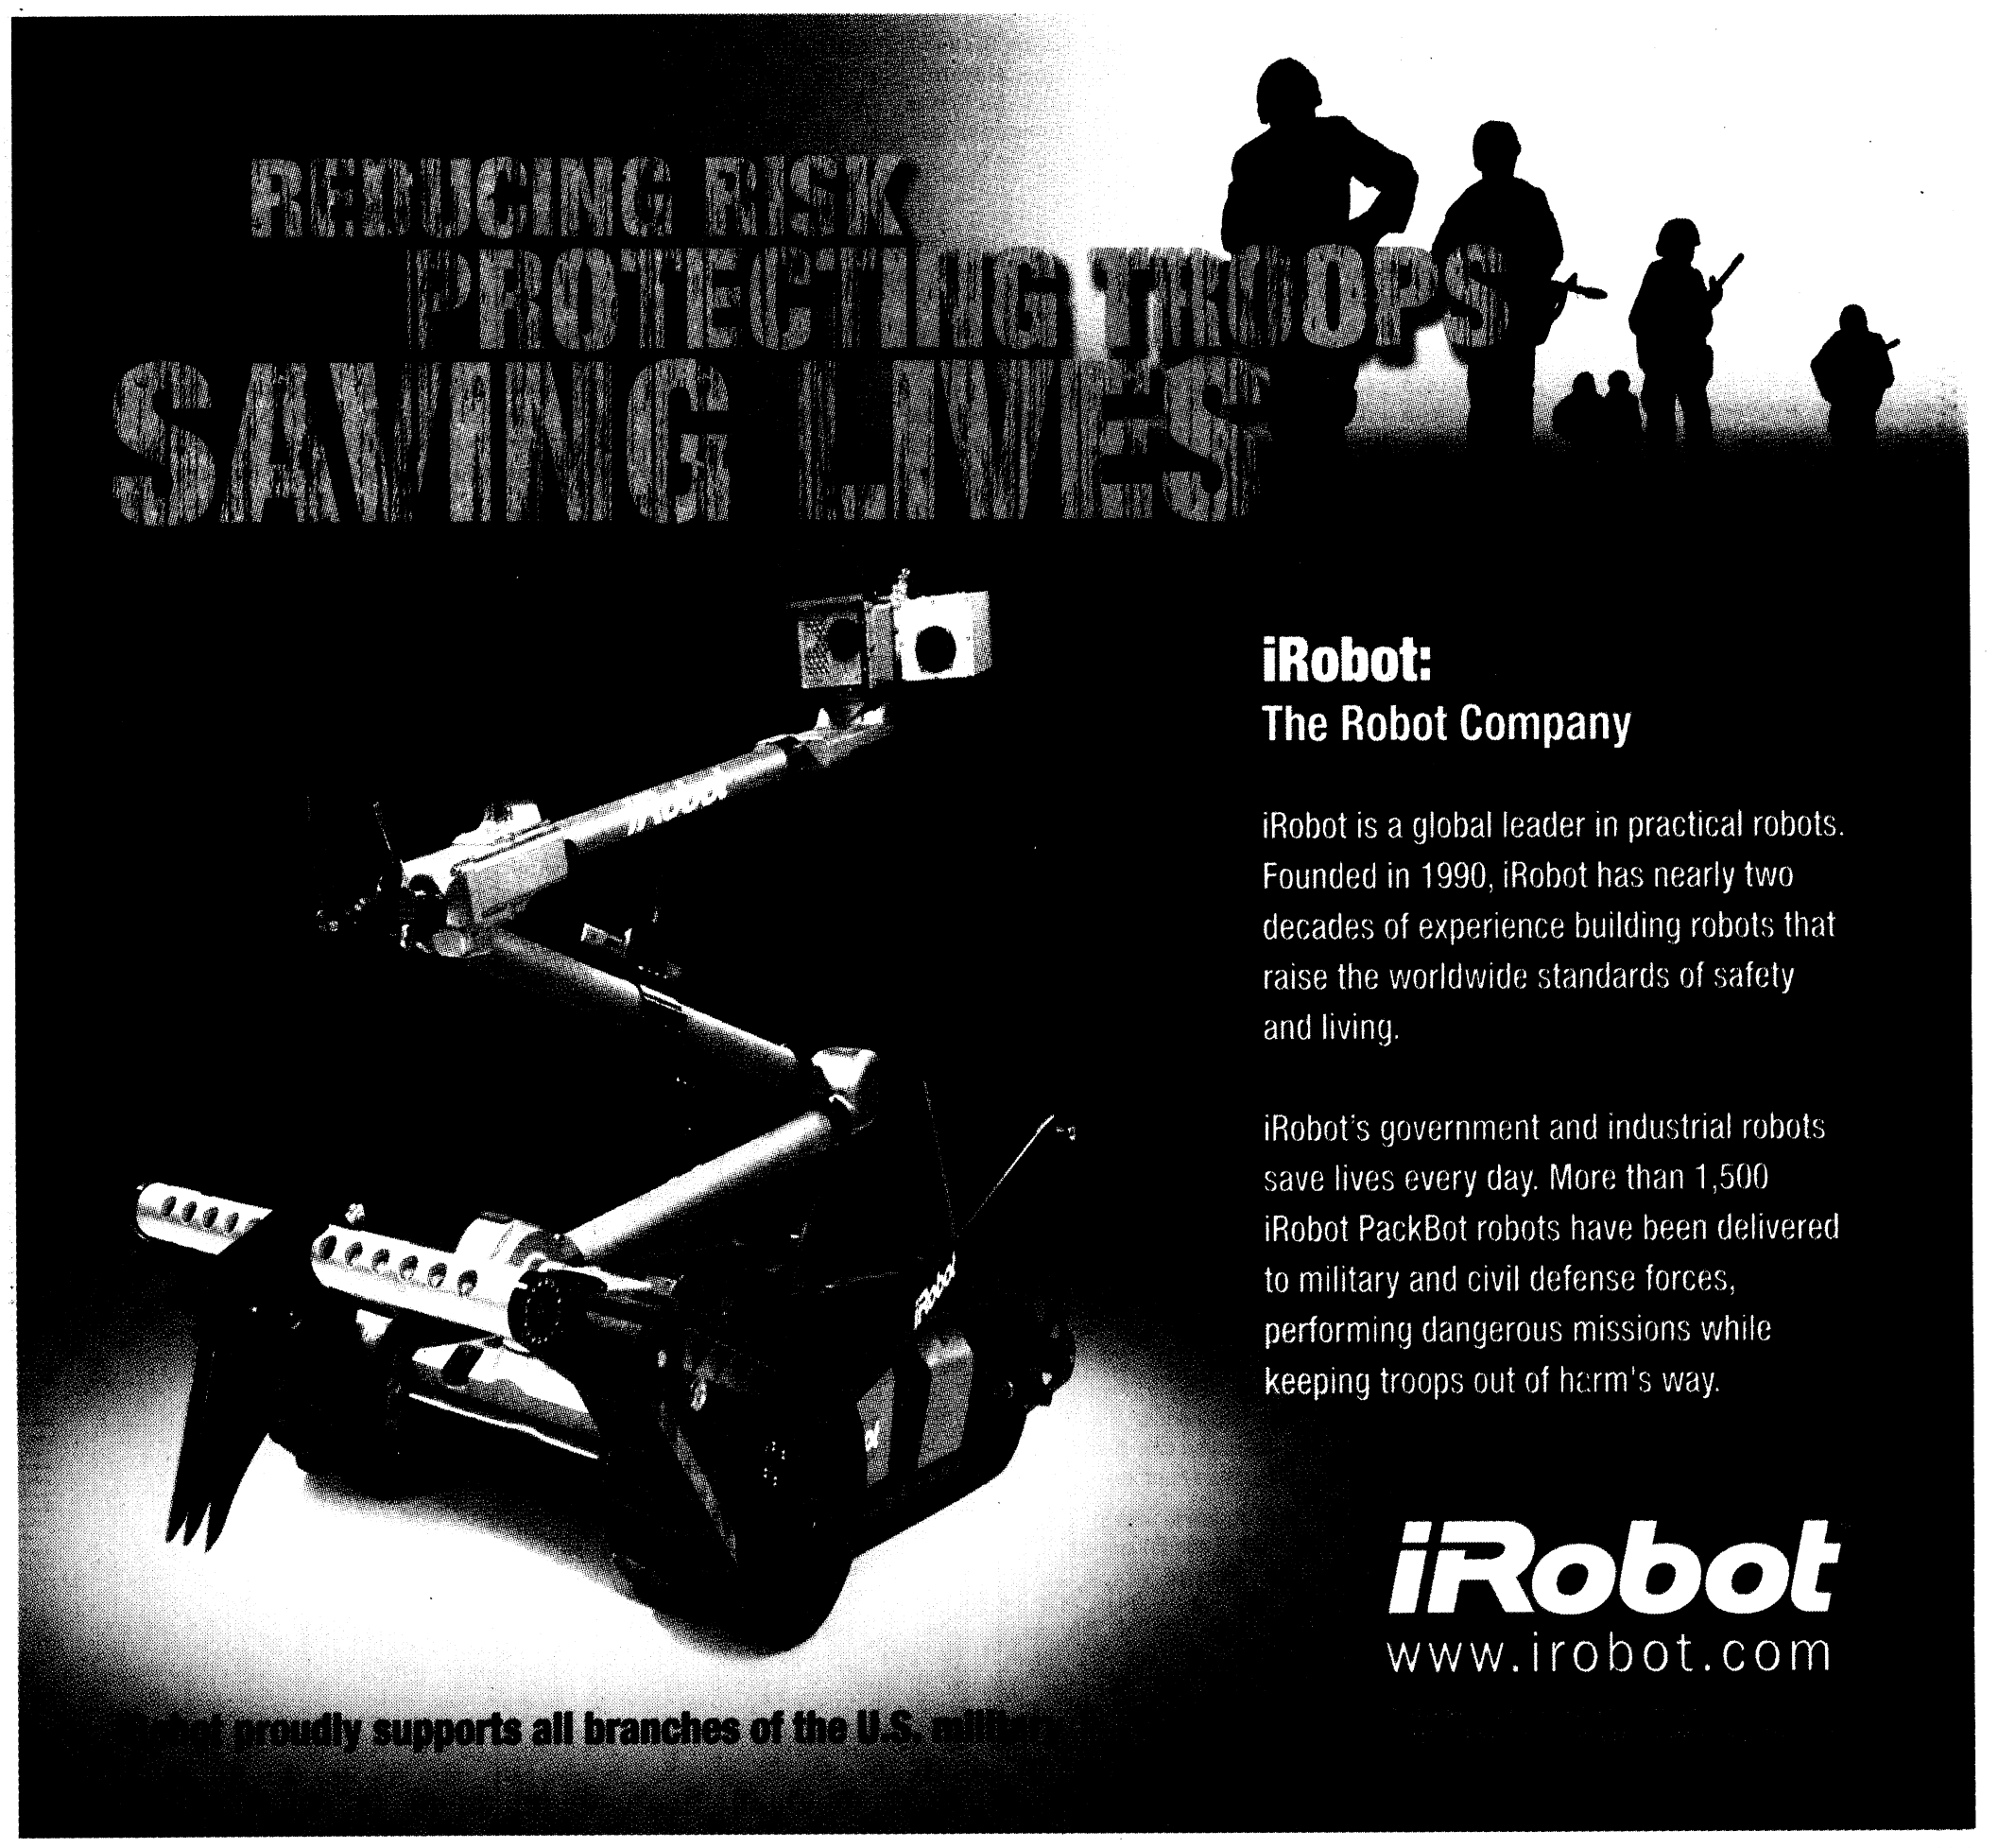
"I never thought I would win," said George, who ran with a broken toe. "Running is 20 percent physical and 80 percent mental. In a cross country race, you have to tell yourself to keep going and keep your mind on finishing the race."

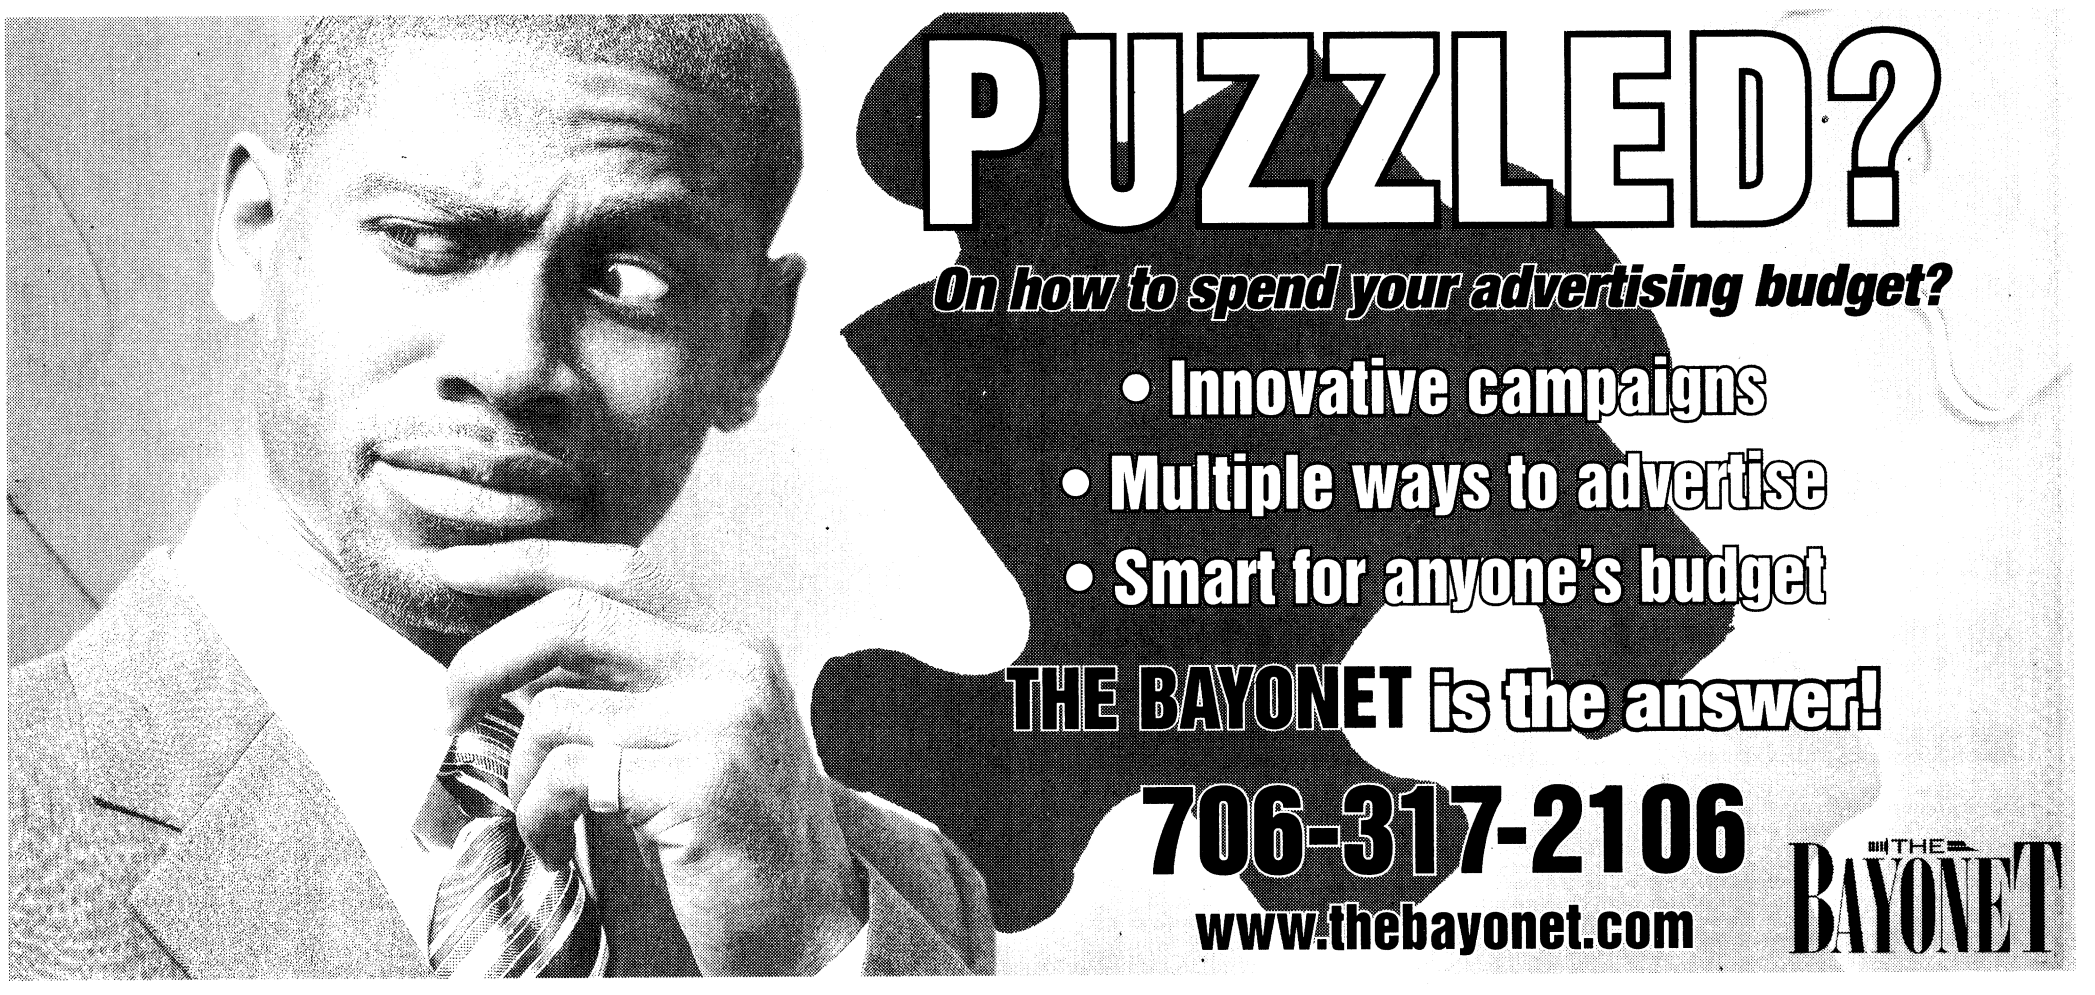
All of the practice has paid off, but more couldn't hurt, said Brandon Pack.

"All in all, I thought it was a pretty good race. Now, I'm gonna go home and practice a lot for the next meet," the sixth-grader said.

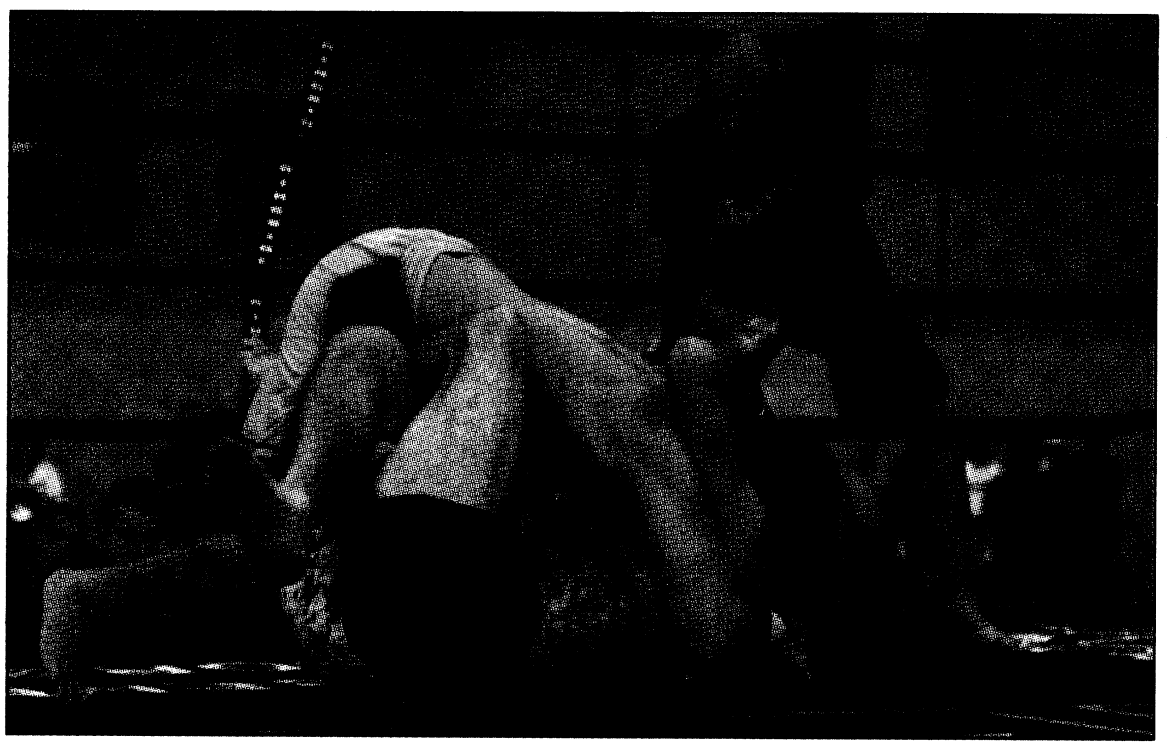
"It's not the end of the world if you don't win. It's about trying your best and finishing the race."

Faith will compete Saturday in Schley County.





Combatives: Competition spotlights need for training



Bridgett Siter

Staff Sgt. Keith Bach of Fort Stewart, Ga., and Staff Sgt. William Haggerty of Fort Bragg, N.C., fought it out in the finals in the lightweight class. Bach won.

Soldiers are recognizing the relevance of combatives training. This year's competition drew competitors from Guam, Korea, Alaska and Iraq.

Sayles, 27, won first place in 2006 but missed last year's competition, which took place during his unit's deployment in Iraq. The combatives competition is a hit with the crowd, he said, but the "close combat," or hand-to-hand training serves a greater purpose in the Global War on Terrorism.

"People don't realize — sure, we compete because it's fun and great morale and it's a great competition — but it saves lives in combat," he said. "There are hundreds, maybe thousands, of documented cases of people using combatives to fight off somebody until they can get help — that's what it's about."

Master Sgt. John Long, first place winner in the light heavyweight class, served with Larsen in the 75th Ranger Regiment more than a decade ago when combatives training was in its infancy. Long said he knew then that Larsen "was onto something," but he never imagined the training would have such a great impact on Soldiers Armywide — not just Infantry Soldiers.

Combatives training is just as important as weaponry training, Long said, because Soldiers in combat today are often confronting the enemy in "close quarters" during urban operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. Today's Soldiers are entering houses, he said, where the enemy may be hiding behind a couch.

"You never know what'll happen. The (Soldier) has all his equipment on, and someone jumps on his back — he has to be able to play that game too," Long said.

"You want a Soldier who is educated and skilled in his primary weapons, but one who also defends himself in hand-to-hand combat."

Armor Soldiers on parade C5

Fort Benning turns out for Army Soldier Show

THE BAYONET

More than 5,000 people attended the 25th anniversary of the Soldier Show on Wetherby Field Saturday. The show included pop and classic songs, several dance numbers and a video montage of past Soldier Shows.

Pfc. Wison Tran, who attended the show with his battle buddies from A Company, 2nd Battalion, 47th Infantry Regiment, said he could vouch for the caliber of the show before it even started.

"Soldiers got plenty of talent," he said. "(This) is going to be a bunch of Soldiers doing their thing, playing their guitars, showing what they got. To be in a place like this right now, it's real cool. It's going to be a great show, I'm going to tell you that right now."

Fort Benning Soldiers had the chance to showcase some local talent before the opening act Saturday. Volunteers were called up on stage for a dance competition, performing their best moves to cheers from the audience.

Dance featured largely in the Soldier Show, but to Pvt. Ryan Edmondson, B Company, 2nd Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, the best part was the music — even better than cadences, he said.

"You think they're just regular Soldiers, and then you see them on stage as performing artists," Edmondson said. "How often do you see a bunch of guys in body armor with rifles and helmets dancing and singing?"

One of the most popular songs was Thriller, Michael Jackson's chart-topping hit, also celebrating 25 years this year. The number was shown in "Night Vision" through the creative use of lighting and costumes, giving the hit song an Army twist.

Soldiers are involved in every aspect of the show, from setup and take down to behind the scenes work, said Spc. Leroy Bradley III, who auditioned for the 2008 show out of Camp Carroll, South Korea.

Always chosen from his unit to sing the national anthem at events, Bradley finally decided to try for a spot in the show. It was well worth it, he said.

"It's just seeing the smiles on the Soldiers' faces," he said. "Our mission is to build morale, letting everybody know that even though it's a time of war, that's not all the Army is. There are a lot of talented people in the Army."

Soldiers applaud for Spc. Joann Usyk's performance of All-American Girl.

Of the 50-plus shows they have done, the performance at the Home of the Infantry included one of the most energetic audiences, Bradley said.

"Fort Benning packed it in for us," he said. "The more Soldiers out there, the more they cheer, it makes it a lot easier for us on stage. They pump us up. I think this was one of our best shows."

Cheryl Rodewig

It was some time around 1930 in Akron, Ohio. He was a cheerleader for the football team and ran cross country. She was the popular girl in school. It may not have been love at first sight, but something drove Roy Brooks and Reva Ash together.

"It must have been something, but I don't know what," Reva said. "I always say he followed me home one time."

Roy was a year ahead of Reva in school. After graduation, he proposed, but Reva made him wait. One year later — Oct. 14, 1933 — the couple eloped to West Virginia.

Reva never had a bridal gown or wedding cake, but that was all right with her.

"Missed the bouquet, got the groom," she said, looking at her husband of 75 years.

Times were hard for the young couple, then living in Cleveland.

"It was the Great Depression," Reva said. "When Roy graduated from high school, he was the only boy in the whole class who had a job, and I think he got $1 a week. You had to count pennies. Sometimes we had too much month left at the end of the money."

Roy joined the National Guard to make a little extra money, he said. Soon after, World War II broke out, and Roy, commissioned as a first lieutenant, deployed to the South Pacific for 35 months.

"That was our longest separation," Reva said. "And we didn't have TV and cell phones and all that kind of stuff. We had censored mail. Sometimes it was cut like a jigsaw."

While he was deployed, Reva raised their two sons on the allotment — or "a little-ment" — she received from his pay.

"We didn't have any hard times, did we?" asked Roy, who has fond memories of life with his high school sweetheart. "I think it's all been good. It's probably better than it was at first. We really

Biblical justice calls to 'give 'em the chair'

FAMILY LIFE TRAINING CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Jeff Dillard

Situations come in all forms — junior enlisted frustrated when their NCO says one thing and does another, NCOs upset when officers ignore their years of experience, dependents hurting because they feel they play second fiddle to their Soldier's job. The list goes on and on.

Such reactions are common and easy to understand. All of us go through heartaches — separations from loved ones, 14-hour work days, long periods away from family — how dare someone make our lives even harder? Wanting the guilty to get what they deserve is one aspect of justice, but it's not the whole of the matter.

You might expect the Bible to speak of 'justice' in the harshest terms. After all, the Bible gives us such great ideas as "an eye for an eye" (Exodus 21:24), "hang 'em high" (Esther 7:9), and "stone them to death" (Deuteronomy 22:23-24).

But passages like the ones referenced above are usually taken out of context. For example, Exodus 21:24 illustrates fairness in justice: not taking their life for taking your eye. Scripture most often speaks of justice not in terms of giving the guilty what they deserve but in giving the hurting what they need.

Over and over, God tells his people to practice justice for the widow, the fatherless and the alien (Exodus 22:22; Deuteronomy 10:18, 24:17, 27:19; Job 24; Psalm 94:1-7; Psalm 146:5-10; Isaiah 1:17-26; Jeremiah 22:1-4; Ezekiel 22:6-7; Zechariah 7:8-10; Malachi 3:5).

What do these three groups of people have in common? There's no one to defend them. They're hurting, and there's no one to help.

That's why God forbade the Israelites to treat foreigners harshly. He reminded his people that they were once aliens in the land of Egypt (Exodus 22:21).

Who is hurting around you? Chances are, you've been through exactly what they're going through. Maybe you're just the person to reach out to them.

Maybe they made a mistake at work and got chewed out for it, and you could help them succeed next time. Or maybe they just came from a 12-hour shift on their feet, and they're just tired.

Here's a thought. If there's only one chair in the room, maybe you could "give 'em the chair." That would certainly be Biblical.

Find out what they need and meet them there.

11TH ENGINEER BATTALION
Chaplain (Capt.) Mark Smith

I think it is neat that Columbus gets credit for discovering the New World. Though there is a lot of controversy surrounding his life and achievements, at the end of the day, he is still the one whose discoveries are celebrated once a year throughout the Americas and Spain.

As I read about the life of Columbus, I found character traits that led to his success, traits that we can apply to our lives to help us make new discoveries.

First of all, he was ambitious. He didn't sit back and let life pass him by. Living in a day of exploration, discovery and necessity, he got out and got after it. If you and I are going to do great things, we've got to dream dreams and get after it. Why can't it be you who makes that next great discovery?

Second, he was inspirational. Columbus could inspire others to follow him. He didn't have the funds to do what he did, but he knew who did, and because of his persistence he gained the financial backing of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella.

Then, because he couldn't sail on his own, he had to have help from several crew members and other captains. If you and I are going to do great things, it is very doubtful we will do it all on our own. In fact, one of the greatest ways to succeed in life is by inspiring others on to success with you.

Third, he was a risk taker. I think taking risks is a natural, God-given trait he gives everyone. However, two things normally challenge risk taking.

One is success. When success in life brings us trophies, we're afraid of losing them and stop taking risks.

The other challenge to risk taking is failure. As we grow and mature, we can allow our failures and setbacks to create a fear of taking risks. We get knocked down and rather than getting back up, we throw in the towel. No doubt there were some during Columbus' day who still believed the world was flat and if you sailed too far you would eventually fall off the edge.

Whether Columbus or any of the sailors with him believed this is questionable, but I guarantee you they all took risks in their discovery of the New World. What if they ran out of food or drinking water? What if they got lost? What if they never spotted land? There were a lot of "what if's" that could have kept their feet ashore.

You and I will never succeed and make new discoveries if we are unwilling to take risks. So I dare you: step out of your comfort zone and set sail for a new world.

Fourth, he was a planner. Columbus had a plan for to sail from Spain to India and China and avoid the traditional land routes. The very fact that he did not make it to East Asia reveals that his plan failed. Or did it?

Because of some errors in his calculations and other misjudgments, he ended up discovering the New World instead (or at least getting credit for it). This one thing is for sure, he had a plan and he worked it and it brought him success.

As Zig Ziglar has so succinctly stated, "People who fail to plan, plan to fail." That was not true about Columbus. Because he had a plan, even though it was flawed, he still succeeded. You and I can succeed as well, if we make plans. Stop waiting for a perfect plan. An 80 percent solution is better than no solution. Make a plan and go for it.

Fifth, he was a practitioner, and he put his skills to work. Christopher Columbus was a sailor, a navigator.

The Lord has blessed us all with different interests and gifts to make a wonderful difference in this world. The trouble is that many of us "bury our talents" and never put them to use.

One of the great privileges of life is to develop talents and then use them for good. Christopher Columbus is credited for discovering the New World because he was following his passion and putting his talents to work.

Sixth, he was tenacious. He didn't easily give up. He was one of those people who tried and tried again. He was rejected at least two times by the Royal court of Spain before gaining their support in January of 1492. When his crew was mutinous and wanted to turn back, he kept pressing them forward.

We can have the best plans and the greatest talents, but if we quit and give up, we will never experience success. It doesn't matter if we are talking about our marriage, raising our children, our careers or breaking a bad habit. We all need a good dose of tenacity if we are going to make new discoveries in our lives.

And finally, Columbus was faithful, and he attempted to live out his faith. One of the reasons for his explorations was a desire to see non-believers converted to Christianity. Even though he and some of his actions were flawed, I commend him for his desire and attempt to live out his faith.

In this area of life, you and I will do well if we seek to ground our faith in the Word of God and live it out on a daily basis. I can't help but believe that God has some great discoveries in mind for you and me when we live by faith.

2-69 Armor Soldiers attend Duluth Fall Festival

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS
Sgt. Natalie Rostek

Soldiers of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, were among the honored guests at the annual fall festival in Duluth, Ga., Sept. 27-28.

Eighty-two "Panthers" traveled from Fort Benning to the festival to partake in various activities, including a parade, a concert and several community-sponsored events.

"This community really lays out the red carpet for our Soldiers," said Maj. Chris McKinney, the battalion's executive officer and honorary grand marshal of the festival.

Many of the Soldiers expressed their appreciation for the support of the community — not just during the festival, but over the past five years.

"The relationship between the community of Duluth and the 2-69 Armor dates back to 2003, when we adopted the unit," said Angie Doerlich, military chairperson for the festival.

The "adoption" took place through a former 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., Soldier who served as an Army recruiter in Duluth.

Initially Doerlich received the names of 31 Soldiers whose families needed support during the unit's 2003 deployment to Iraq.

Since then the community has kept in constant contact with Soldiers and family members of the Panther battalion, providing them with items such as canned goods and turkeys for Thanksgiving and bicycles and helmets during Christmas.

Duluth residents and supporters have sent more than 3,000 care packages to Panther Soldiers overseas during three deployments.

"I have never seen support at this level come out of any one community in my 13-year Army career," McKinney said. "They are one of the most patriotic communities I have ever seen."

To show their appreciation, Soldiers of the 2nd Bn, 69th Armor Regt., gave certificates of appreciation to members of the community.

They also gave Panther memorabilia to the various donors, festival committee staff and volunteers.

"This means a lot to me, and I plan to keep it going as long as possible," Doerlich said. "The 2-69 Armor is like my extended family."

With the support of his wife, Roy joined the Army in 1947, which eventually brought him to Fort Benning. After he retired as a colonel 21 years later, the couple settled in Columbus for good, unable to find a better place to call home.

The Brooks still stay involved on post whenever possible. They will celebrate their anniversary at the Benning Club Sunday with their family, which includes two children, five grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

"It's a milestone," said Reva of their 75-year marriage. "We've grown old together. You have to have love to put up with each other for that many years."

Roy said he doesn't remember ever arguing with his wife.

"I wouldn't have it any way different if I had to do it all over again," he said. "She's been a wonderful wife. She raised two kids while I was away. If I say something, she generally agrees to it. We get along pretty well."

The secret of their long marriage is no secret at all, they said.

"Getting married during the Depression and having children doesn't help anything, but you have to stay close together, stay interested in each other. You have to give and take in everyday things," Reva said.

Love can endure in a marriage, "even though you're old," said Reva, who will celebrate her 94th birthday in December, 10 days after Roy turns 95.

"I think as you grow older, love grows, but it's a different kind of love," she said. "It's not the young, sparkling love that you have when you're 18. It's stronger, because it's been a long haul. The lasting love is what matters."

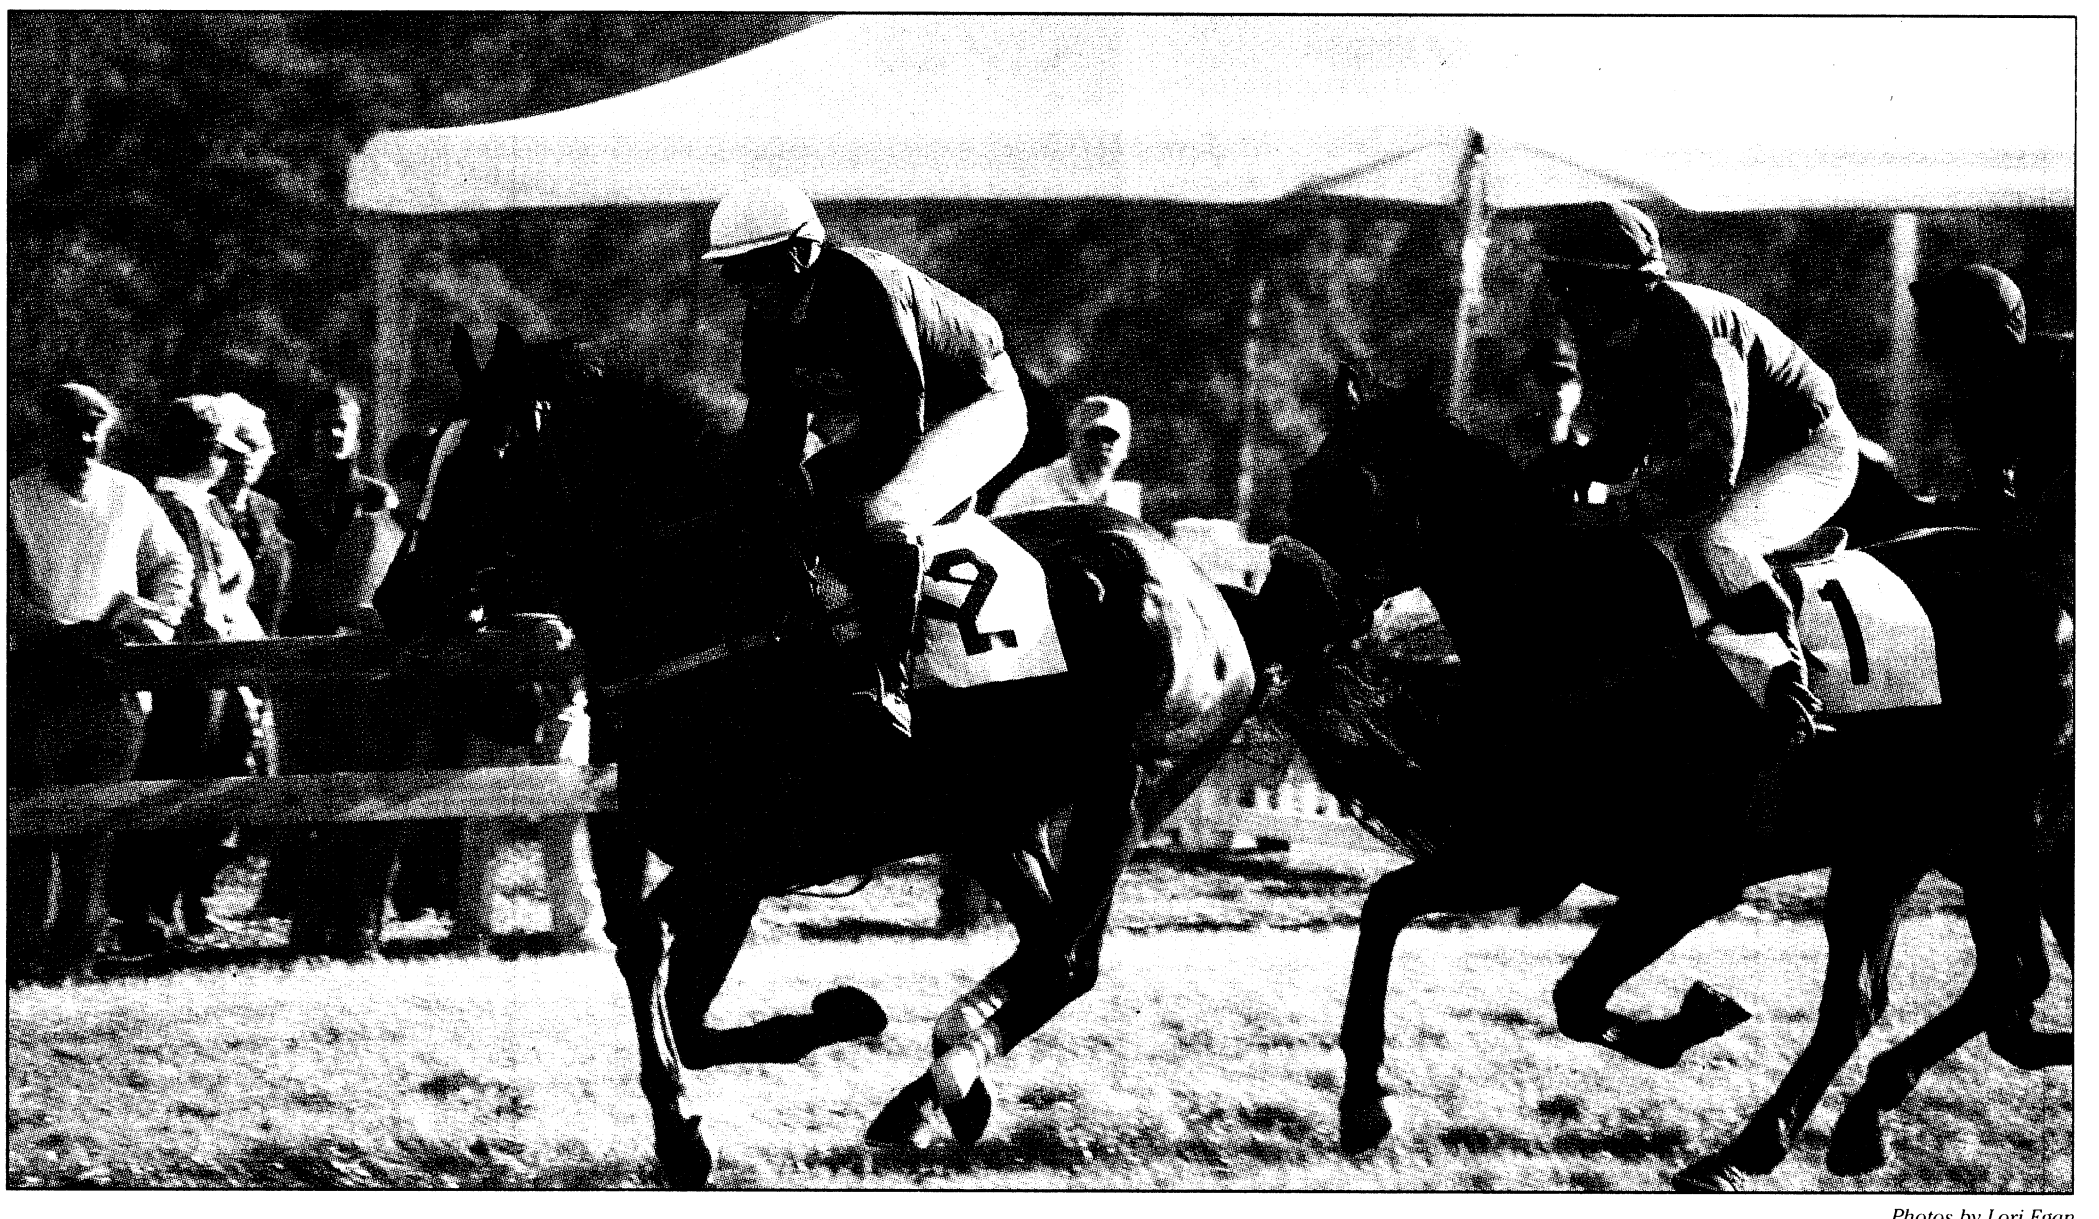
Steeplechase at Callaway



Photos by Lori Egan

Steeplechase races are two to two and half miles long on turf and include 11 to 12 jumps. All steeplechasers are thoroughbreds and most have raced on the flat before converting to steeplechasing. The best steeplechasers combine speed and jumping ability.

If it's the first Saturday in November

Then it's off to the races

The Steeplechase at Callaway features a day of horse racing that benefits the arts. "Our mission has always been to support the arts in the community, using the steeplechase as a vehicle to do so," said Mason Lampton, race chairman. "This has proven to be a positive experience for everyone, both in the area of adding an additional sporting event which is entirely for anyone at any age, as well as allowing us to contribute a total of $2.4 million to the arts in the region." The proceeds from the 2007 race, $180,000, were distributed in March to five beneficiaries: The Columbus Museum, The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, The Historic Columbus Foundation, The Ida Cason Callaway Foundation, and The Springer Opera House. An additional partnership with the Auburn Veterinary College of Medicine is made possible through the proceeds.

The Steeplechase at Callaway offers racing and more for the family

THE BAYONET

The 24rd annual Steeplechase at Callaway is Nov. 1. A steeplechase is a competitive sporting event that provides spectators an opportunity to watch the thrills, smarts and athletic ability of thoroughbreds jumping over 52-inch-high hurdles at premium speeds.

Steeplechasing gets its name from a race in Ireland, according to the National Steeplechase Association. In 1752, Cornelius O'Callaghan and Edmund Blake raced about four and half miles from St. John's Church at Buttevant to St. Mary's Church in Doneraile — church steeples were the most prominent, and tallest, landmarks.

The first steeplechase in the United States is thought to have been held in 1834 in Washington, D.C. Now steeplechases are in 12 states, from New York to Florida, with millions of dollars raised for charity, according to the NSA.

This year's total purse for the Steeplechase at Callaway is $215,000, the fourth largest purse in the nation, which is why the race attracts the best horses, trainers and riders, said Mason Lampton, the race chairman.

"It is extremely important to keep our purse at the upper level," Lampton said, "so you have quality horses that put on a quality show. It ensures your race has the best trainers and riders so our patrons are watching the best of the best in steeplechasing. After all, without the horses, there is no steeplechase."

Steeplechase at Callaway begins with the Midland Foxhound Parade on the track and the Atholl Highland Bagpipers performance. Throughout the day there are pony rides, a bungee jump, a rock wall, moon walk and an opportunity to build a stuffed pony.

The first two races, which start at noon and 12:30 p.m., are junior races — for ponies and junior riders and aren't sanctioned by the NSA.

The first sanctioned race of the day is the WC Bradley Maiden Timber Race with a $20,000 purse. The second race, sponsored by CB&T, is the Collie Jennings Mullin Maiden Hurdle. It's purse is $20,000. The third is the Aflac U.S. Supreme Hurdle Novice Series Race with a purse of $100,000. The fourth race, the Crown Royal Sport of Queens Stakes has a $50,000 purse and is for mares and fillies. The fifth race is the SunTrust Maiden Hurdle, with a purse $25,000. And the sixth race, the Jay Automotive Group Flat, has a purse of $500.

The infield has several new features. There will be a Kids Zone, which will feature five inflatable activities, face painting, stick pony races and Columbus State University education students will man an arts and crafts table. The cost is $15 for a wristband.

"This year we wanted (Steeplechase) to be an event for the entire family," said Claudia Garrard, the race director. "This will be a lot of fun for the kids."

Other infield activities include the bagpipers, the Southern Views hat contest and pony rides.

For those who don't want to pack a picnic or participate in the tailgate contest, there will be food available in the infield.

WHEN Saturday, Nov. 1
Gates open at 10 a.m. Post time is noon. Post chase celebration starts at 4 p.m.

HOW TO GET THERE From Columbus, take I-185 N to exit 30 at Hopewell Church Road. Drive east eight miles and turn right onto State Road 18. Turn right on Nelson Road. Follow the signs to the Steeplechase.

HOW MUCH Infield tickets cost $15, as do car passes, for active-duty Soldiers and family members. Tickets are available at the gate with an ID card. Infield tickets range in price from $25 per person, plus $20 for your car, to a Reserved Rail Package at $270 for six. The Reserved Rail package includes one vehicle. For other package prices, visit the Web site, www.steeplechaseatcallaway.org or call 706-324-6252.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens. Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

QUARANTINE

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

Entering the apartment unit, they find an old woman in a nightgown, standing alone in the dark. She is covered in blood, her breathing erratic and raspy, but when a policeman approaches to help her, she attacks with her teeth.

The group subdues the woman and tries to get help for the injured policeman, but when they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

NOW SHOWING

BLINDNESS

When a sudden plague of blindness devastates a city, a small group of the afflicted band together to triumphantly overcome the horrific conditions of their imposed quarantine.

Blindness is a thriller starring Don McKellar, Julianne Moore, Mark Ruffalo and Sandra Oh. It is rated R for violence including sexual assaults, language, sexuality and nudity.

AN AMERICAN CAROL

A cynical, Anti-American "Hollywood" filmmaker sets out on a crusade to abolish the 4th of July holiday. He is visited by three spirits who take him on a journey in an attempt to show him the true meaning of America.

An American Carol is a comedy starring Kevin Farley, Kelsey Grammer, Jon Voight, Trace Adkins, James Woods, and Leslie Nielsen. It is rated PG-13 for rude and irreverent content, and for language and drug material.

NICK & NORAH'S INFINITE PLAYLIST

Nick frequents New York's indie rock scene nursing a broken heart and playing the bass with his queercore band, The Jerk Offs. Norah is questioning pretty much all of her assumptions about the world. Though they have nothing in common except for their taste in music, their chance encounter leads to an all-night quest to find a legendary band's secret show and ends up becoming a first date that could change both their lives.

Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), a CIA operative, finds himself under surveillance in the action drama Body of Lies. Ferris teams up with a CIA veteran and the head of Jordanian intelligence while tracking a high-ranking terrorist.

Nick & Norah's Infinite Playlist is a comedy starring Michael Cera and Kat Dennings. It is rated PG-13 for mature thematic material including teen drinking, sexuality, language and crude behavior.

BEVERLY HILLS CHIHUAHUA

A pampered Beverly Hills chihuahua named Chloe finds herself accidentally lost in the mean streets of Mexico without a day spa or Rodeo Drive boutique anywhere in sight. Now alone for the first time in her spoiled life, she must rely on some unexpected new friends — including a street-hardened German Shepherd named Delgado and an amorous pup named Papi — to lend her a paw on their journey back home.

Beverly Hills Chihuahua stars Piper Perabo, Drew Barrymore, George Lopez, Andy Garcia and Jamie Lee Curtis. It is rated PG for thematic elements.

HOW TO LOSE FRIENDS AND ALIENATE PEOPLE

Sidney Young, a bumbling, British celebrity journalist, is hired by an upscale magazine in New York City. Sidney enters high society and burns bridges with bosses, peers and superstars. After disrupting a black-tie affair, he catches the attention of Clayton Harding, editor of Sharp, and accepts a job with the magazine in New York City. Clayton warns Sidney that he'd better charm everyone he can.

Instead, Sidney instantly insults fellow writer Alison Olsen and upsets his boss. His saving graces: a rising, sexy starlet who develops an odd affection for him, and Alison, whose friendship with him might be the only thing saving Sidney from torpedoing his career.

How to lose friends stars Kirsten Dunst, Simon Pegg, Jeff Bridges, Danny Huston and Gillian Anderson. It is rated R for language, nudity and drug material.

MIRACLE OF ST. ANNA

Four soldiers from the Army's Negro 92nd Division find themselves separated from their unit and behind enemy lines. Risking their lives for a country in which they are treated with less respect than the enemy they are fighting, they discover humanity in the small Tuscan village of St. Anna di Stazzema.

Directed by Spike Lee, Miracle of St. Anna is a drama adaptation starring Derek Lukem, Michael Ealy, Laz Alonso and Omar Benson Miller.

It is rated R for strong war violence, language and sexual content and nudity.

LAKEVIEW TERRACE

A young couple has just moved into their California dream home when they become the target of their next-door neighbor, who disapproves of their interracial relationship. A stern, single father and tightly wound LAPD officer (Samuel L. Jackson) has appointed himself the watchdog of the neighborhood. His nightly foot patrols and overly watchful eyes bring comfort to some, but he becomes increasingly harassing to the newlyweds. These persistent intrusions into their lives ultimately turn tragic when the couple decides to fight back.

EAGLE EYE

Jerry Shaw and Rachel Holloman are two strangers thrown together by a mysterious phone call from a woman they have never met. Threatening their lives and family, she pushes Jerry and Rachel into a series of increasingly dangerous situations — using the technology of everyday life to track and control every move.

As the situation escalates, these two ordinary people become the country's most wanted fugitives, who must work together to discover what is really happening, and more importantly, why.

FIREPROOF

At work, inside burning buildings, Capt. Caleb Holt lives by the old firefighter's adage: Never leave your partner behind. At home, in the cooling embers of his marriage, he lives by his own rules. After seven years of marriage, Caleb and Catherine Holt have drifted so far apart that Catherine wishes she had never married. Neither one understands the pressures the other faces — he as firefighter and she as the public relations director of a hospital. Regular arguments over jobs, finances, housework and outside interests have readied them both to move on to something with more sparks.

As the couple prepares to enter divorce proceedings, Caleb's father challenges his son to commit to a 40-day experiment he calls 'The Love Dare.' His job is to rescue others. Now Caleb is ready to face this toughest job ever — rescuing his wife's heart.

MY BEST FRIEND'S GIRL

Smart, beautiful and headstrong, Alexis is the girl of Dustin's dreams. But after only five weeks of dating, the love-struck Dustin is coming on so strong that Alexis is forced to slow things down — permanently. Devastated and desperate to get her back, Dustin turns to his best friend, Tank, the rebound specialist.

A master at seducing and offending women, Tank gets hired by freshly dumped guys to take their ex-girlfriends out on the worst date of their lives — an experience so horrible it sends them running gratefully back to their beaus. But when Tank works his magic on Alexis, he ends up meeting the challenge of a lifetime. Alexis is the first girl who knows how to call his bluff, and Tank soon finds himself torn between his loyalty to Dustin and a strange new attraction to his best friend's girl.

It is rated R for language and sexual content.

BURN AFTER READING

A tale about an ousted CIA official whose memoir accidentally falls into the hands of two unwise D.C. gym employees intent on exploiting their find.

Burn After Reading is a comedy from Academy Award winners Joel and Ethan Coen and stars George Clooney, John Malkovich, Frances McDormand, Brad Pitt and Tilda Swinton.

RIGHTEOUS KILL

A pair of veteran New York City police detectives are on the trail of a vigilante serial killer. After 30 years as partners in the pressure cooker environment of the NYPD, highly decorated Detectives David Fisk and Thomas Cowan should be ready for retirement, but aren't

Before they can hang up their badges, they are called in to investigate the murder of a notorious pimp, which appears to have ties to a case they solved years before. Like the original murder, the victim is a suspected criminal whose body is found accompanied by a four line poem justifying the killing.

When additional crimes take place, it becomes clear the detectives are looking for a serial killer, one who targets criminals that have fallen through the cracks of the judicial system.

His mission is to do what the cops can't do on their own — take the culprits off the streets for good. The similarities between the recent killings and their earlier case raise a nagging question: Did they put the wrong man behind bars?

Righteous Kill is an action thriller starring Robert De Niro, Al Pacino, Curtis Jackson, Brian Dennehy and John Leguizamo.

Your tricommunity by the numbers

We call it the Chattahoochee Valley or the tricommunity — Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City. The Census Bureau calls it the Columbus, Georgia-Alabama Metropolitan Area, and it includes Muscogee, Harris and Chattahoochee counties in Georgia and Russell County in Georgia.

That's fairly easy to comprehend, once you accept the statistical interstate marriage and the fact that Fort Benning, with a population of more than 32,000, encompasses 184,000 acres in two states and three counties.

But the geography gets a bit more convoluted. Phenix City, which puts the "tri" in tricommunity, actually spills over into Lee County, Ala., which is why most every Phenix City resident lives on Lee County Road This, That or The Other. Lee County is not included in the Census Bureau's Columbus metro statistics.

So, taking into consideration that the "tricommunity" is easier to define culturally and economically than geographically, here's a rundown of our community by the numbers. All statistics are estimates based on the 2000 census and projected growths through 2006.

BRAC is an acronym which stands for "Base Realignment and Closure." It is the process DoD has used to reorganize its installation infrastructure to more efficiently and effectively support its forces, increase operational readiness and facilitate new ways of doing business.

MCOE: As a result of the Base Realignment and Closure, the Armor School is moving to Fort Benning from Fort Knox, Ky. The Home of Infantry will be known as the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

RiverCenter

The RiverCenter for the Performing Arts opened five years ago. In 2002, professor Joseph Golden played to a sold-out audience in Legacy Hall — he played the center's new $1 million Jordan Concert Organ. That same year, world-famous soprano Jessye Norman performed at the opening of the Bill Heard Theatre.

The RiverCenter is home to the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, which was formed in 1855. Now, under the direction of George Del Gobbo, the orchestra has a steady schedule of shows designed to appeal to a broader audience than one mught typically expect to frequent the orchestra.

Columbus Civic Center

Since 1996, the Civic Center has hosted more big names than you can shake a stick at, including Harry Connick Jr., Bill Gaither, KISS, Motley Crue, Bob Dylan, Leann Rimes, Disney on Ice, Franklin Graham and Lord of the Dance, just to name a few.

The Civic Center is also where you'll find the Columbus Cottonmouths Ice Hockey team, the only pro or semi pro team to stick around long enough to draw a faithful following.

They moved into the Civic Center the year it opened.

For more information about shows at the Civic Center, visit columbusciviccenter.org or call 706-653-4460.

Springer Opera House

The Springer is the State Theater of Georgia. Since 1871, it has hosted some of the most famous stage performers in the world, including Ethel Barrymore, Gertrude "Ma" Rainey, Oscar Wilde, John Phillip Sousa and Edwin Booth (the brother of John Wilkes Booth) whose ghost is said to haunt the theater. These days, the Springer offers a mainstage series of five plays and musicals, the Studio II and Children's Theater series, and the Springer Theater Academy.

Al-Qaeda in Iraq's number two leader killed

MULTI-NATIONAL FORCE-IRAQ

BAGHDAD, Iraq — A terrorist killed by Coalition forces during an operation in Mosul on Oct. 5 has been positively identified as Abu Qaswarah.

Abu Qaswarah, also known as Abu Sara, was the al-Qaeda in Iraq senior leader of northern Iraq. A Moroccan native, Abu Qaswarah had historic ties to AQI founder Abu Musab al-Zarqawi and senior al-Qaeda leaders in Afghanistan and Pakistan.

Abu Qaswarah took the role of the senior AQI emir of northern Iraq in June 2007. He was al-Qaeda in Iraq's second in command and AQI Emir Abu Ayyub al-Masri's senior operational leader.

Significant intelligence collected in the hunt for Abu Qaswarah led Coalition forces to a building in Mosul that served as a key command and control location for AQI. Upon entering the building, forces were immediately fired upon. Coalition forces returned fire in self defense, leading to the death of five terrorists.

Fort Benning will hold its yearly Army Family Action Plan symposium Oct. 21-24 at the Benning Club. The symposium is an opportunity for members of the Fort Benning community to bring their concerns and suggestions for improving Army life to the attention of commanders and Army leaders, said Barbara Singleton, program coordinator.

"It's a process that allows family members, Soldiers, civilians, retirees — all of us — to make our leadership aware of what is working or not working as far as the well-being of America's Army is concerned."

Each unit at Fort Benning will send delegates to represent its concerns at the symposium. Delegates are chosen based on a certain demographic group, such as Soldiers or retirees, assigned to each unit by symposium organizers. Each group will choose three issues to prioritize and present to leaders at the symposium.

Issues will be first examined by Fort Benning leaders, and will continue moving up the chain of command until a solution is found, or until the issue is deemed unattainable.

"We had 80 issues submitted last year," Singleton said. "And of those, 16 were prioritized and sent on to higher levels of command."

Singleton stressed the effectiveness of

More than 100 volunteers Help the Hooch

It was a great year for Help the Hooch. More than 100 volunteers, including Cub Scouts, families, BOSS members and students, gathered truckloads of trash from Upatoi and Uchee creeks and the Chattahoochee River and connecting waterways, said Darlene Hines, recreation specialist with Outdoor Recreation.

Among the items collected were a vacuum cleaner, couch, microwave, office chair and mattress.

"It doesn't take much," Hines said. "Say at a chalet up at Uchee Creek, somebody throws out a beer bottle. Over time, the water runoff is going to push that down into the water. And bottles don't just disappear. We get to appreciate nature at its best, but we won't be able to do that if this trash continues to pile up over the years to come."

One of 28 volunteers with the BOSS program, Spc. Alonzo Pettway helped the Hooch for nearly four hours, picking litter from the banks of the water, even a bag of used diapers.

"You wouldn't treat your own house the way you treat the outdoors. You wouldn't throw a bag of diapers in your living room and leave it there," said Pettway, B Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment. "You have to clean up the area where you work and live."

Pettway, who participated for the first time, said he plans to return next year.

David Mallard, post wildlife technician, bags litter Oct. 10 during the annual Help the Hooch. Volunteers with the Department of Public Works gathered more than two boatloads of trash off the banks of Uchee Creek.

Sixteen students from the Environmental Protection Club at McBride Elementary picked up trash around the school campus and planted chrysanthemums. The group found bottles, towels, football gear, even an old T-shirt.

"I wanted to come out because the environment needs it," said 10-year-old Kylie Asselin, who joined the club in August.

If people keep throwing garbage on the ground instead of in the trash can, it will add up over time, affecting wildlife and even people, said Kylie, who said she had fun volunteering with her friends.

"You stop thinking about how pretty the world is, and you start thinking about how it was," she said. "A lot of trash is getting everywhere, and we need to help clean it up."

Part of the goal of Help the Hooch is raising awareness, said Hines, who helped organize the event. It lets the community keep tabs on how much litter it is producing.

"I believe in leave no trace," she said. "If you've been outside, don't leave any trace that you've been there. If people stay on top of this, then next year, we'll find less trash. That's the goal."

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

IET transformation focuses on key principles

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

Our nation has been at war for more than six years. The Army's senior leadership has described it as an "era of persistent conflict and change." It is an environment that is complex and multidimensional with battles fought predominantly in urban areas against an adapting enemy.

The current strategy in Iraq and Afghanistan involves small units living among the population in combat outposts while clearing their areas of operation, holding the terrain, and building national capacity. These conditions are further compounded by the current operational tempo and Army force generation cycle that has an increasing number of Soldiers graduating from initial entry training (IET) and deploying to combat within a short period of time.

To win under these circumstances our units require flexible and adaptive leaders and Soldiers who are capable of thinking and exercising initiative on the battlefield from the moment they arrive.

Fort Benning's IET trainers have responded to this challenge and currently produce leaders and Soldiers capable of winning. This is a direct result of IET transformation. The transformation involves a strategy focused on several key principles. First, the primary outcome is to shape the attitude, behavior, and character of the Soldier. Drill sergeants instill the right attitude in Soldiers based on the Soldier's Creed. They assist Soldiers' in modifying their behavior to meet Army task standards and build their character based on our Army values, ethics, and discipline.

Second, drill sergeants focus on the end result or outcome versus the training process itself. This is outcomes-based training. Now drill sergeants are empowered to ensure Soldiers meet the required outcomes. Simply put, a training outcome is what a Soldier should be able to demonstrate as a result of his training. For example, does the Soldier know and understand the Army values opposed to has the Soldier accepted and demonstrated a willingness to live by Army values. These outcomes are measured by intangible attributes and tangible skills.

Intangible attributes are the characteristics commanders most desire in their Soldiers for combat. Things like confidence, accountability, initiative, thinking skills, problem-solving skills, situational awareness, and responsibility. It is important for trainers to challenge Soldiers to solve problems. The ability to solve problems promotes learning through self-discovery once Soldiers master the basics.

The tangible tools are the Infantryman's skill set. These are the focus of our individual common task training in IET. These skills include first aid, marksmanship, land navigation, communications, individual and team movement skills, and gunnery.

Finally, IET is a continual process with expected levels of progression at specific phases. This includes routine assessments, from both trainers and the chain of command, to ensure training is on track to meet critical tasks.

Our Soldiers continue to win on the battlefield, and Sand Hill's refined training environment and methodology provides leaders and Soldiers the opportunities they need to demonstrate the initiative and thinking skills necessary to succeed in combat.

Moreover, updates to IET's methodology ensure we support our nation at war by capitalizing on lessons learned and measuring our training against the larger strategic context.

Although our immediate focus is providing trained Soldiers for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, we also contribute to combatant commanders so they have the right capabilities for any 21st Century contingency. We will continue to assess the IET program of instruction to ensure we employ the most effective means of training our Soldiers. This will ensure we deliver the best warriors possible to fight and win.

My hometown is New Orleans, Louisiana, but my home is where the Army sends me. I've been in the military for 15 years, so I've had many homes. I've been at Fort Benning since November 2005 and it's been my home for three years. It's how you settle in.

Home would be South Carolina. It's where I grew up. It's where I met my husband. We lived there for 22 years. Grandparents, great-grandparents, they're all there. It's family — a sense of comfort and security that makes it home.

There's no place like home

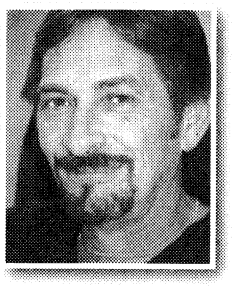
"There's no place like home, there's no place like home, there's no place like home."



I don't have ruby slippers and I haven't been to see the wizard like Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz, but I have found my way back home after being away from Columbus and Fort Benning for many years.

Ten years ago, I left The Bayonet as the sports editor and moved to the north Georgia mountains to follow a dream of having a farm, horses and to take advantage of the solitude of country living.

Eventually, I became the sports editor of the local paper, which was very rewarding both professionally and personally, but something was missing - a sense of feeling at home.

While surfing the Web, I became aware of the opening at The Bayonet for an assistant editor and thought, "It sure would be great to be back at home again."

After growing up at Fort Benning and Columbus, being stationed here during my final duty assignment before retirement from the Army and working previously with The Bayonet, it would be a dream come true to come back home.

Growing up here I learned every shortcut to every place on post and in Columbus and although the roads have remained mostly unchanged, the surrounding area has not.

In my 10-year absence, Fort Benning has grown by leaps and bounds.

The first thing I noticed was the new National Infantry Museum being built near the cemetery.

I bring this up because as a retiree and someone who has a loved one buried there, my father, I cannot think of a better place to put the museum than across the street from the many Infantrymen, and others who are laid to rest there.

Although I have not had the opportunity to rediscover the entire post yet, every place I go I see new buildings and new services for Soldiers and their families — a testament to Fort Benning's dedication to excellence.

In all, my first week back has been mostly reconnecting with people who are still here, getting used to all the changes in the surrounding area, and I guess you could say, just getting used to being home again.

Thomas Wolfe said, "You can't go home again," meaning you can't recover the past, which is probably true, but you can come home again to build a new future.

I look forward to building a new future at Fort Benning and to watching it continue to grow and get better.

As far as being able to go back home again — I believe you can ... just click your heels three times.

I just called to say 'Happy Birthday'

My first cell phone weighed about 2 pounds, it had both a cord and an antenna and it had to be plugged into the car cigarette lighter to have power. However, as archaic as the technology sounds today, it was cutting edge back in 1995, and it's really high-speed when you consider the first commercial cell phone call wasn't placed until October 1983.

That's right, the device we can't live without turned 25-years-old this week. The first call was placed by Bob Barnett, an executive for the Ameritech Corporation, which we know today as AT&T. Having put some thought into who he should call first, Barnett didn't call his wife or his best friend; instead he called the grandson of Alexander Graham Bell, an appropriate choice given the circumstances. Barnett called from a Motorola DynaTAC 8000X, which cost $3,995 and was nearly a foot long. Shortly thereafter, the phone went into commercial production and the $150 billion cell phone industry was launched.

Twenty-five years later, we now live in a world where our phones can download music, surf the Internet, send e-mails and take pictures, making it hard to fathom what life was like prior to 1983. How did we know when someone was running late? How did we call 911 if we were in an accident? How did our spouse know to pick up milk on the way home from work?

It's amazing how something so small has transformed our everyday lives and it makes me wonder where technology will be 25 years from now. I'm sure in 2033 the features on the current iPhone or Blackberry will be laughable and a five inch-long phone will seem huge. My grandkids will probably laugh at the notion of texting and I'll be confused when they try to show me how to make a call on their new gadget. So here's to another 25 years of wireless communication, may it be just as enjoyable and life-altering as the last two and a half decades.

Correction

Thank you to our observant readers for catching our number transposition in last week's Various Voices question. You're right, Christopher Columbus had already discovered the Caribbean islands by 1942. It would have been a very long trip since he set sail in 1492. We hope you enjoyed your Columbus Day holiday.

Ready Army:

Are you prepared?

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

The emergency siren sounds as a tornado approaches. Local authorities warned the public to take shelter, and you are at work — separated from your family.

As the hours pass, do you know where your family is?

Ready Army, launched in September, can help you plan for such emergencies.

"This is a brand new approach," said Karl Nagel, the Fort Benning point of contact for Ready Army. "We look and help plan for all hazards."

Soldiers and families at Fort Benning are concerned primarily with severe weather, such as thunderstorms, tornadoes and hurricanes, but Nagel said Ready Army helps families plan for all types of emergencies.

The Ready Army kit includes checklists for basic items such as food, water, baby formula, first aid kits, passports, birth certificates, and the ability to access cash, as well as a family emergency plan, local maps and other items designed to help families during the initial 72 hours following an emergency.

"If a family can last through the first 72 hours, we can get to the most needy first," Nagel said. "It takes a lot of the burden off the first responders.

"If a Soldier is deployed and his or her family is here and something happens, does the Soldier know where his family is or where they would go? It is a combat multiplier if they (Soldier) know everything is OK."

Ready Army is also kid-friendly.

An easy-to-read activity and resource sheet has been designed specifically to include children in planning for emergency situations. The activity sheet provides a fun way for children to learn, and includes games like Kit Spy Word, to remind kids of basic items like water, first aid, and food; recommended preparedness books like Stop, Drop and Roll, a book on fire safety; and pet emergency planning.

"It is a very simple program," Nagel said. "You just have to sit down and do it. Get a kit, make a plan and be informed. That is Ready Army."

Although the program is still in its early phases of implementation, Nagel said Ready Army is included in the monthly newcomers briefing and will be discussed at Care meetings and safety fairs.

"Right now, we are already in all the housing areas, community centers and libraries," Nagel said.

Nagel also said he plans future displays at Martin Army Hospital, MEDDAC, the pharmacy, Post Exchange and Commissary.

For more information on Ready Army, contact your family support group leader, visit the Fort Benning Ready Army Web site at www.benning.army.mil/readyarmy, or call Nagel at 706-545-5276.

ACAP helps Soldiers prepare for retirement

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Retiring is "not as easy as some people think," said Alphonso Copelin, who retired Aug. 1 after 22 years in the Army.

In the past five years, Copelin deployed to Iraq three times. Before he realized it, retirement was here.

"I felt that I was lost at the last minute," he said. "I'd been ripping and running. When you have other stuff you're worried about, you don't have time to think about (retiring)."

The Army Career and Alumni Program came to the rescue.

"They gave me all the tools and the daylight to see what I'm trying to accomplish and what direction I really want to go," said Copelin, who met with a counselor for a one-on-one discussion about the opportunities open to him.

That's when he learned about financial assistance through Veterans Affairs that would help him earn a degree in business. The counselor also helped him map out short-term and long-term goals, including paying off his mortgage in five years and securing a federal job on post.

One of the best resources ACAP provided was resume writing, said Copelin, who was able to translate his military experience into civilian terms with the help of a counselor.

"I couldn't have done it myself," he said.

Copelin advises Soldiers to take advantage of as many ACAP services as possible.

The program offers small business seminars, workshops about federal jobs, help with resumes, and interview skills and employers' days where participants can meet potential employers.

Pre-separation counseling, another feature ACAP offers, must be completed at least 90 days before a Soldier leaves the Army. All ACAP services are available free of charge for life for retirees and for 180 days after the last day of active duty for Soldiers separating from the Army.

"It's quite successful," said John Boddie, ACAP manager. "The people who come through here and take advantage of all the opportunities have a better chance of being successful with finding a job, going to school or whatever their endeavors are."

Copelin agreed. He said he feels better prepared to tackle the future after going through the program and he plans to return to ACAP as needed as he advances from an interim job to his full-time career.

"It's like they say, you can't win if you don't play," Copelin said. "Unless you're going to strike it rich, become a millionaire, hit the lottery or something of that nature, you need to take full advantage of the ACAP process. Don't waste it. It really does matter."

For more information about the program, call 706-545-2308 or visit the ACAP office between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday to Friday, Building 2634, Soldiers' Plaza.

Soldiers overcome Bolton's obstacles

THE BAYONET

More than 40 Soldiers took on the Bolton Confidence Course Oct. 10, just five days into their training in the Direct Commission Officer Course.

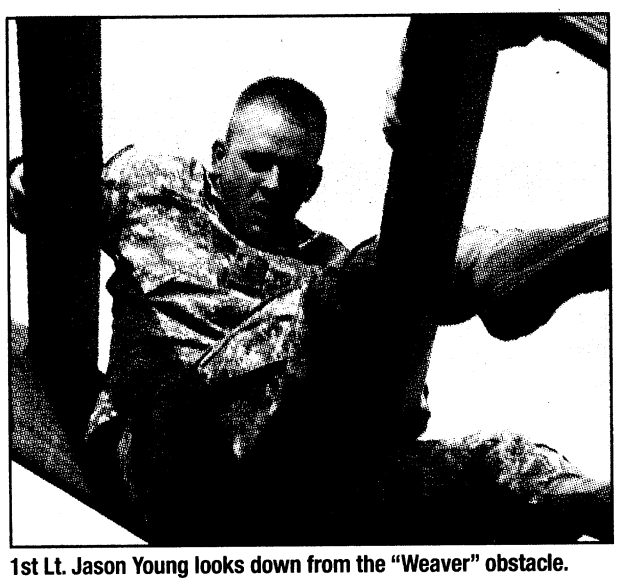
"Many of these Soldiers have not had military training before," said Maj. Brent Allen, officer in charge and mentor for the course. "This is their familiarization with basic Soldier skills prior to moving on to BOLC II."

Most of the Soldiers were JAG officers. The four-week class — and courses like Bolton — teaches warrior skills, including marksmanship and land navigation, and important character skills like leadership, Allen said.

For 2nd Lt. Christina Rudolph, who donned a Soldier's uniform only days before tackling Bolton, the obstacle course taught her teamwork and leadership.

"In order to be a good leader, you have to be a part of the group as well," Rudolph said. "If you were to come here and do this on your own, you'd get tired perhaps at one point and stop, but when you're with your whole team, you have to complete the whole course. It's a fantastic feeling, because not only are you accomplishing more than you could ever envision yourself doing, you're helping each other through it."

The course featured more than a dozen obstacles, including the "Tarzan," the "Skyscraper," the "Weaver," and a 20-foot climb called Jacob's ladder. After two days of land navigation in the field and a morning ruck march, Soldiers ran through the course as individuals and squads, competing for the best time.



1st Lt. Jason Young looks down from the "Weaver" obstacle.

"Personally, I don't like heights that much," said 1st Lt. George Colclough, after climbing down the ladder and returning to solid ground. "Every time I get to an obstacle course, I get worried about the high obstacles. My knees shake, my heart starts to race, and I have visions of somebody falling. But I keep going, trying to control my breathing, calm my thoughts, envision myself finishing the obstacle. I haven't fallen yet."

Colclough said he felt good after facing his fear of heights.

"I think one of the important skills in life is doing something you're afraid of," he said. "The more you're afraid of it, the more you have to push yourself to do it."

The Soldiers will graduate from the course Oct. 31.

Soldiers visit Italian airborne school

THE BAYONET
Bridgett Siter and Rachel L. Watkins

Ten Soldiers from the Airborne School at Fort Benning spent a week in Italy assessing the possibility of using the Italian airborne school facilities to train American Soldiers.

Col. Terry Sellers, 199th Infantry Brigade commander, and Lt. Col. Jon Ring, the commander of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, and cadre from the regiment observed training earlier this month in the Tuscany region. More than a year ago, Italian airborne officials invited the Americans to consider using their established facilities to launch mobile teams to train American Soldiers stationed there.

Ring said it would take several modifications to the site, but it's feasible that such a partnership might pan out in the future. The Italians use the same aircraft and much the same parachutes as the U.S. paratroopers. But, with the Italian paratroopers set to deploy to Afghanistan very soon, it's likely a decision won't be made for at least another year.

If the decision is made, it will be the first time the American school will have mobile teams at the Italian school, said Maj. Fabrizio Salerno, Fort Benning Italian Liaison Officer.

"They do everything very, very similar to us,.but not the same," Ring said of the four-week airborne course, which includes an initial assessment, or "weeding out" phase, and a written exam. "It gives us another perspective, another way of attacking the same training."

The Italian airborne school, which dates back to 1938, a full two years before the U.S.Army launched its training, is considered one of the most elite units in the Italian military, Ring said. On average, nearly 600 soldiers will graduate from the course and qualify to serve in the brigade each year, whereas thousands graduate annually from the course at Fort Benning, which conducts about 40 classes each year.

A partnership with the Italians might be beneficial to the U.S. military, Ring said, because mobile training teams can save the Army money. But what's in it for the Italians?

The airborne community, here and abroad, is a brotherhood, Ring said. Italian paratroopers fight alongside Americans in the Global War on Terrorism.

"Anything we can do to strengthen those bonds with our allies is good for everyone," he said.

Fort Benning paratroopers earned their Italian jump wings while they were there. The Italian wings are unique in that they are numbered. Sgt. 1st Class Michael Christian's number, 103,218, means he was the 103,218th paratrooper to graduate from the course since it's inception in 1938.

"The Italians are really proud of their airborne history. They live it," Christian said. "It's cool to be a part of that history, because we are a brotherhood, we're airborne brothers, and really we have the same goals and the same pride in what we do."

AFAP: Gives community voice

AFAP in creating real change within the Army community.

"We're in our twenty-fifth year," she said. "And as of July 2008, as a result of the AFAP process, we have had 102 legislative changes enacted, 154 policies and regulations changed, and 173 programs that have been changed, implemented or improved."

Community members not chosen as delegates can get involved in the process by volunteering at the symposium, or by submitting an issue through the form available on the web site www.benningmwr.com. Volunteers are needed for staff support, issue support, facilitating workgroups, and recording and transcribing.

Singleton said she hopes community members come to the symposium to observe the legislative process.

"It's a great opportunity to see the process in action," she said.

The AFAP symposium will last from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 22 and 23, and from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Oct. 24. For more information, or to volunteer, e-mail Singleton at Barbara.singleton2@us.army.mil.

BENCH NOTES

Bowden ousted

Clemson football coach Tommy Bowden resigned Oct. 13, after the Tigers lost to Wake Forest and went to 3-3.

Quarterback Cullen Harper pulled no punches when talking about Bowden's exit. "He got what he deserved," Harper said.

Bowden was with the Tigers for 10 seasons, and the team never won an ACC championship.

Promising player dies

Cherepanov, 19, returned to the bench near the end of the game, collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack.

Big Brown retires

Big Brown, the horse who won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness and finished dead last in the Belmont, ended his career after injuring himself during a routine workout less than two weeks away from the Breeders' Cup Classic.

The horse is expected to fully recover, and will be used to stud.

Cowboy down

After a 30-24 overtime loss to the Arizona Cardinals Oct. 12, it was announced that Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Tony Romo broke his pinkie on his throwing hand.

Romo could be out for up to four weeks.

Brad Johnson, 40, will be the starter when the Cowboys play at St. Louis Sunday. Johnson hasn't started a game since 2006.

Burton wins at Lowe's

Jeff Burton made himself a major contender in the Chase for the Sprint Cup with a win Oct. 12 at Lowe's Motor Speedway.

With the win, Burton is just 69 points behind leader Jimmie Johnson. Greg Biffle is third, followed by Carl Edwards.

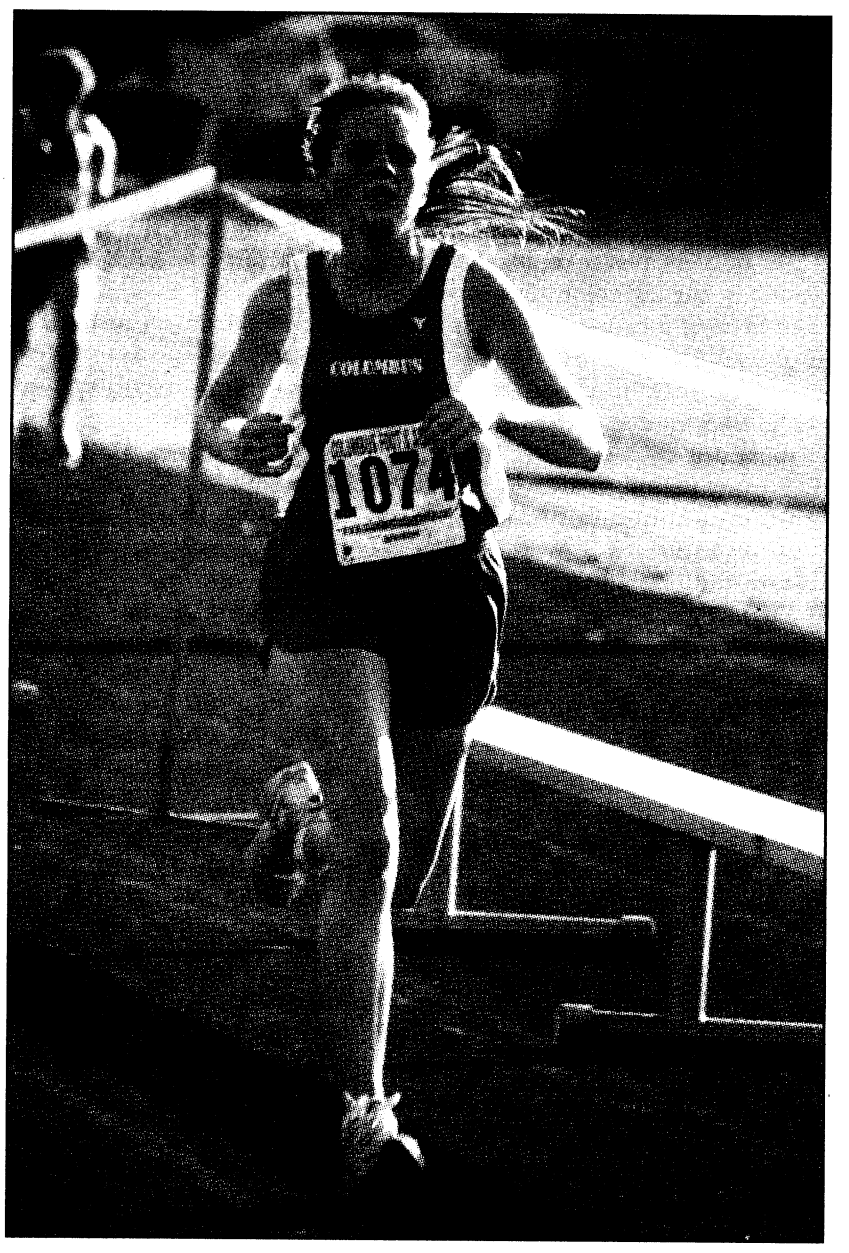
Longhorns top poll

The Texas Longhorns made it to the number one spot on the Associated Press Top 25 poll after beating Oklahoma, 45-35. It's the first time Texas has been at number one in 24 years in the regular season.

Alabama continues to roll at second, followed by Penn State at third. Oklahoma dropped to fourth, and Florida moved up six spots to fifth after creaming LSU, 51-21.

Local runner hits personal record



Jessica Ridley enters Kinnett Stadium Tuesday during the cross country meet. She finished the 5K in 19:23.78, setting a personal record. "She has the best work ethic of anybody on the team," said coach Randy Whitt. The junior has been running since her freshman year, joining the team as a way to meet new people, she said. Last year Ridley placed first in the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs during the Georgia High School Association Region 2-AAA track and field meet.

CHS junior surprises family with her ability

THE BAYONET

Columbus High School junior Jessica Ridley started running cross country as a freshman to keep in shape for soccer. Now the 16 year old is the fastest girl on the No. 1 ranked team in the state's AAA division.

In Tuesday's local meet at Kinnett Stadium, she ran the 5K in 19:23.78.

"She has the best work ethic of anybody on the team," said coach Randy Whitt. "She came out as a freshman, saw what she could do if she worked hard … now she is one of the best runners in the state."

Jessica, who plans to major in business when she goes to college, is all business when it comes to training, she said. She's running with the boys on a team that includes Charlie Sparks, who is ranked seventh in the nation.

"Who knew she could run?" said her father, Lt. Col. Mark Ridley, CSU's professor of military science and former Fort Benning deputy chief of staff. The two of them used to run Country's Midnight Run together.

"Now he's trying to keep up with me," she said.

"We used to joke that if she didn't hit her (personal record), I'd chase her in the car," Ridley said.

"Yeah, but she'd still beat her family home," said teammate Amelia Bowden.

Instead of running the 10K in Saturday's Oktoberfest (she placed first overall for women last year), Jessica will be at a meet in Gainesville, Ga.

Competing against runners from different divisions, including the elite schools, she'll be competitive, Whitt said.

"We hope to place at state," Ridley said. "That's the place to peak."

In the spring, Jessica ran on the CHS track team, where she placed first in the region for both the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs.

"Jessica's very driven," Ridley said. "Her mother and I encourage her to work hard, but she plays to win. It's the same with practice."

Just kickin it

The Benning Bandits fell to the Orange Snakes, 4-0, Saturday at French Field. This was the third game of the season for the 5- and 6-year-old teams.

"Good game," both teams said as they smiled and high-fived each other at the end of the contest.

Lindsey Merritt, 5, said even though his team didn't win, he had fun anyway.

"I loovvvee soccer," he said. "I like to run and see if I can get the ball from the other team."

Merritt said he uses his imagination in the game.

Five-year-old Elsa Hallman likes soccer too.

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Erin A. Nash

Another sports season has begun, and I'm back up on my soapbox.

My son is on the 9- and 10-year-old Fort Benning Bengals tackle football team. It's his first year playing tackle football, which is the case for a lot of the others on the team. There is a lot of learning involved in football, from the positions they play, to the different plays and much more.

Luckily, we have a few men who stepped up and volunteered to coach the boys. The coaches have their own lives, their own families, and some don't have children on the team. Yet, they are out there for two hours every night teaching the boys the fundamentals.

What bothers me is a lot of the parents choose to blame the coaches for every little thing that goes wrong.

It has been heartbreaking to see our team lose so badly in their two games. But, to blame the coaches for most of what happened is wrong. Sure, there were times I got frustrated, when our team was penalized for having only nine players on the field.

This happens to coaches all the time — at every level. Aren't there 11 guys on that field at one time that shoulder should some of that blame?

Is it the coach's fault if a snap is fumbled, or a quarterback throws an interception? I have a great appreciation for my son's coaches for giving up their time and volunteering to spend their evenings with my son and the other 24 players. The coaches do the best they can with the kids they have. Every child is given the chance to play.

Early in the season, over a month and a half ago, the coach sent our kids home with a play sheet. He told them to study them. If your child doesn't know the play, even after endless rehearsals at practice, then that's not the coach's fault.

Coaches make easy targets for anger. It's unfortunate that they should bear the brunt of a parent's frustration.

If you think you could do a better job why not volunteer to coach?

The Columbus High School Blue Devils (1-5 overall, 0-3 Region 2-AAA) lost to the Shaw High School Raiders (2-5 overall, 2-1 Region 2-AAA) 46-7 Saturday at Kinnett Stadium.

Shaw led 13-0 at the end of the first quarter. Shaw scored their final touchdown of the quarter to lead 20-0 at the intermission. Shaw continued to rack up 26 more points in the second half, while Columbus scored its lone touchdown of the game with 7:25 remaining in the game.

"I think we could've worked together more as a team and been a little faster," said Columbus linebacker Steven Drisker. "I'm gonna try and push the team harder next time."

Drisker has been playing football for about eight years.

"You always gotta go into a game doing your best," he said.

Senior Blenner DaSilva thought there were a lot of mistakes on defense.

"For the next game, we need to play a stronger defense to turn the game around faster," he said.

The Blue Devils played against Kendrick High School Thursday. Columbus has three more games to play before the season is over. They play LaGrange High School at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium. For a game schedule, go to http://www.columbushighga.org/studentactivities.aspx.
