Pow Wow begins today

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The 12th annual Ossahatchee Pow Wow and Indian Festival starts today in Hamilton, Ga. It will include Native American crafts, food, music and more.

"It's different," said Lisa Scully, coordinator for the festival. "It's not like going to a ball game or a movie. Everything is bright, colorful. The flute music is gorgeous. The dancing is beautiful. It's learning but fun."

The festival is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Harris County Soccer Field, Highway 116, Hamilton.

There will be drum competitions, dancing contests, storytelling and demonstrations of native skills, such as hide tanning, basket weaving and archery. Okefenokee Joe will be on hand with several of the world's most venomous snakes. Handmade crafts, from pottery to leather goods, will be on sale both days.

Everybody is going to learn something, Scully said, for example, how Native Americans made sure no part of an animal went to waste.

"You might as well have called the buffalo Wal-Mart. You used it for clothing, tools, food and shelter," said Bernie Talley, part Cherokee Indian, who has been volunteering with the festival since it began.

"Before it was called a Pow Wow, it was a celebration," Talley said. "It was a time to meet old friends and make new friends."

This festival will give the public "a taste of native culture" and ancient celebration, he said.

The public can taste authentic Native American food, from buffalo burgers to Indian tacos and even fry bread, a native concoction similar to funnel cake. The festival will include representatives from tribes across the country.

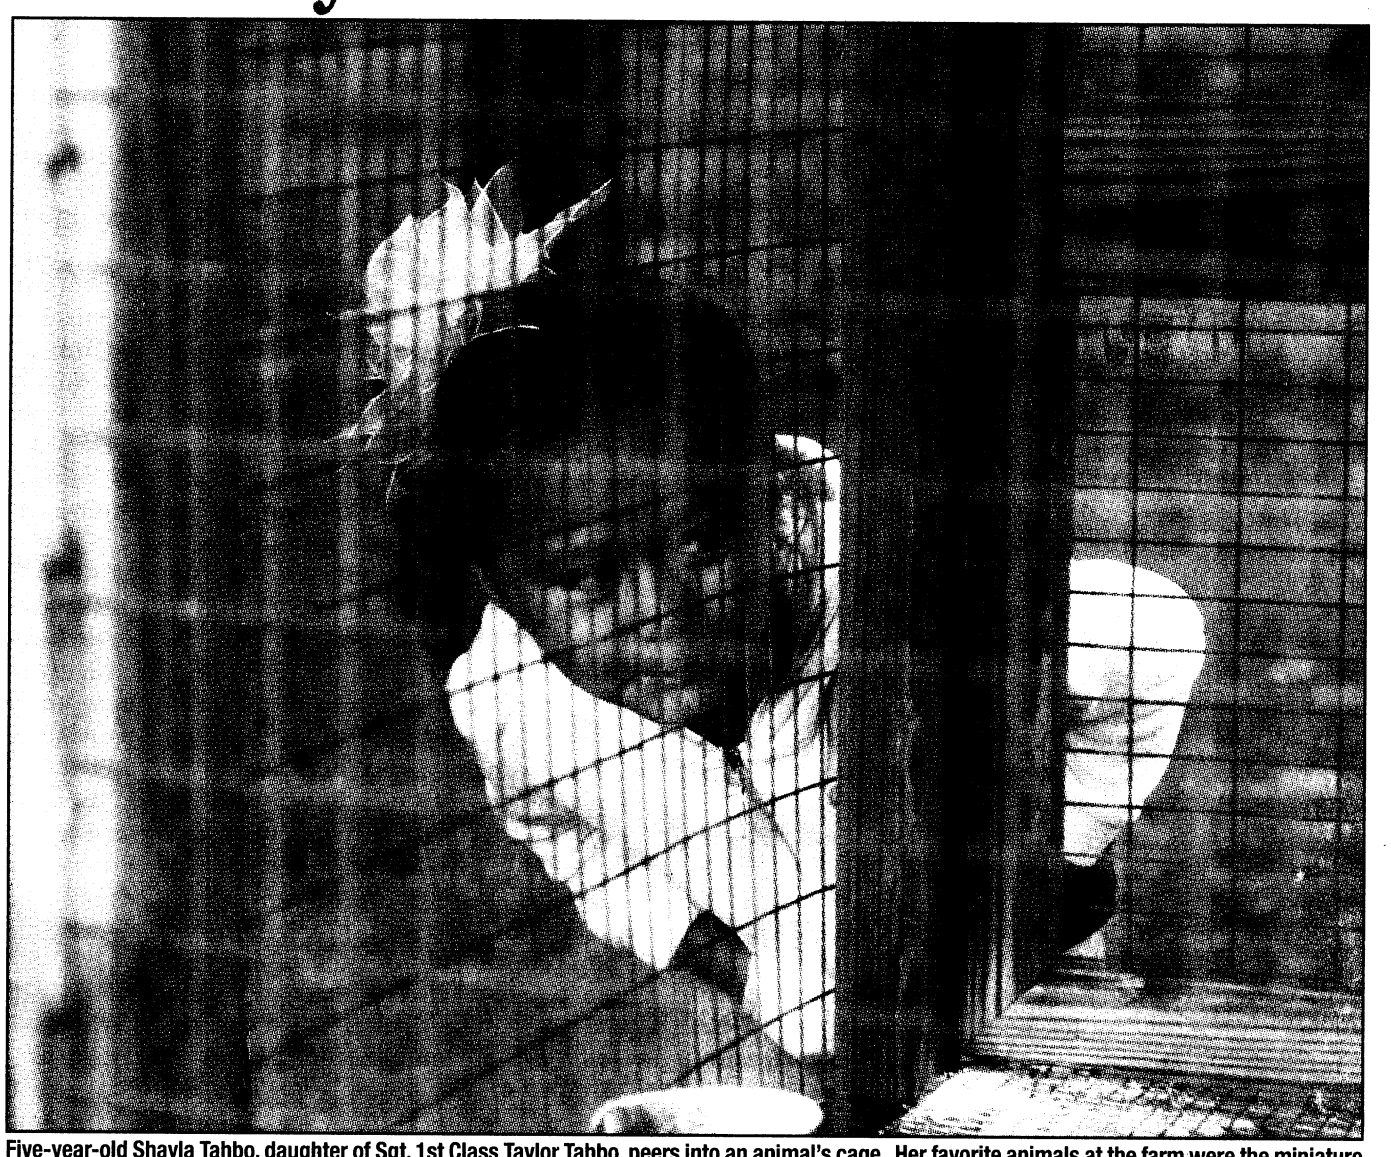
It's the only place around to see a dress covered in bells, teepees and hoop dancing, a "nonstop" dance, Scully said.

"This is a once-a-year experience," she said. "It's worth the trip."

Admission is $8 for adults, $5 for children 6 to 12 and free for children 5 and younger Saturday and Sunday. Admission for school groups from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. today is $2 per person. Parking is a $1 donation to Boy Scouts of America.

For more information, call 706-628-7653 or visit the Web site at www.ossahatchee.org.

Farm-style fun



Five-year-old Shayla Tahbo, daughter of Sgt. 1st Class Taylor Tahbo, peers into an animal's cage. Her favorite animals at the farm were the miniature horses, Shayla said. She also enjoyed picking out pumpkins, she said, which will be used later for jack-o-lanterns and pumpkin pie.

A chicken peers out from inside its cage at Marengo Creek Farms near Opelika, Ala., about 50 minutes from Fort Benning. Animals living on the farm include pigs, a turkey, chickens, goats, miniature horses, racing pigeons, a calf, ducks, rabbits, border collies and more than 300 sheep. The sheep lamb in September. The farm currently has more than 100 babies, which have arrived in the last few weeks. Watching the young lambs interact with their families is fun, said Candy Harvard, who owns the farm with her husband, Stewart.

Marengo Creek opens for fall

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Through the end of the month, visitors can pick out a pumpkin at Ms. Candy's Pumpkin Patch, play in the corn pools and enjoy the hay maze and hayride. On the weekend, try a meal from the concession stand or bring a picnic to eat at one of the shaded tables.

Stewart and Candy Harvard have opened up their farm for seven years now, with the hope of bringing everyday life on the farm to modern families, Candy said.

This working farm has chickens, ducks, goats, rabbits, pigs and a turkey who is "quite a showman," she said. It also boasts more than 300 sheep, several racing pigeons and miniature horses.

Fall is such a wonderful time of year, with its crisp mornings and bright colors, Candy said. On the farm, it's also the season for new arrivals in the sheep family.

"We have about 100 new baby lambs," she said. "They're almost like a group of children. They'll run and chase each other (like) kids playing on a playground. We call it the lamb races."

Besides the "lamb races," there are sheep herding demonstrations with a trained border collie and a 20-minute hayride that loops through the farm, passing a lake, several pumpkins and "fishing" scarecrows.

Seven-year-old Ryan Tahbo, son of Sgt. 1st Class Taylor Tahbo, said his day at the farm was "awesome," especially the hayride, seeing the lake and swimming in the corn pools.

"It's fun because we get to play in corn," he said. "I don't have a big tub of corn at my house."

Reading about a farm in a book or seeing it on TV isn't the same as experiencing it, Candy said.

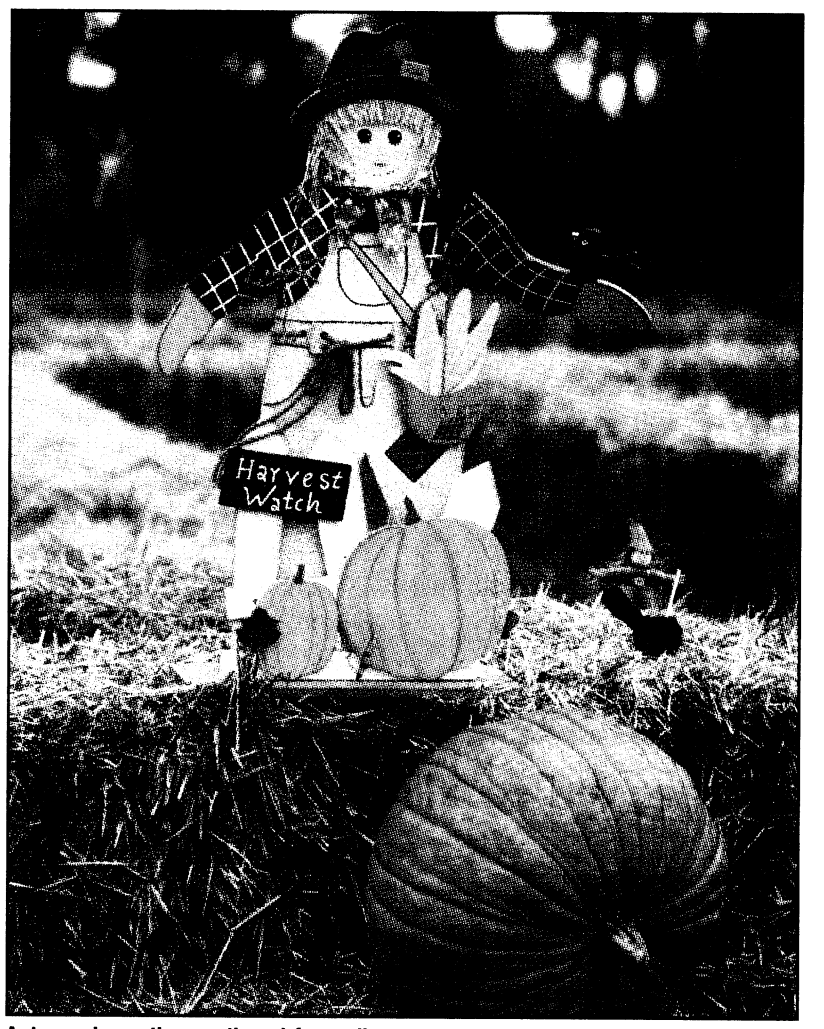
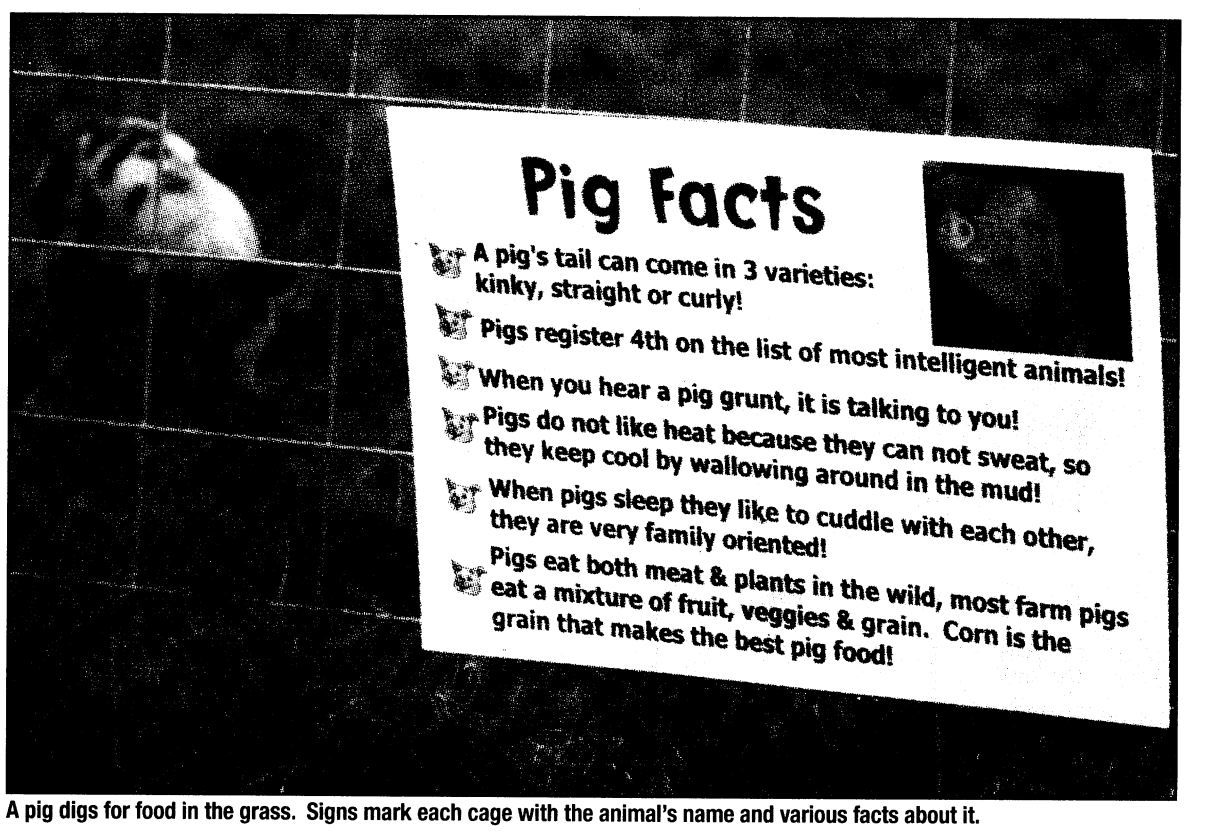
Admission is $7 per person from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Farm tours are available through November. For more information, visit www.marengocreekfarms.com or call 334-448-6050.



Autumn decorations gathered from all over ornament the hay maze, which is short enough for all visitors to feel at ease, Candy said.

A goat tries to get the attention of 17-month-old Rexford Lockwood, son of Sgt. 1st Class Robert Lockwood, who visited Marengo Creek Farms Sunday.



A pig digs for food in the grass. Signs mark each cage with the animal's name and various facts about it.

Be prepared for a disaster

GEORGIA SOCIETY OF GSCPA

ATLANTA — Natural or man-made disasters can strike at any time. Of course, your family's health and security are the most important considerations. Once safety concerns have been addressed, regaining order in your finances is essential for returning to normal life. The Georgia Society of CPAs advises proper planning and preparation before disaster strikes is crucial. CPAs offer these tips on how to do it.

In the wake of a disaster, documentation, including personal identification, insurance papers and banking and investment information may be necessary. CPAs advise that you keep all of these important materials in a bank safe deposit box or a secure, fireproof home safe. Documents to store include birth, death and marriage certificates; divorce and custody agreements; passports, military records; copies of drivers' licenses; deeds and contracts to real property; and stock and bond certificates. Other important papers include those with information and contact details for your insurance policies, and retirement plan beneficiary information.

You'll also want easy access to information on checking, savings and investment accounts; car titles; copies of wills, living wills or medical powers of attorney; and trust documents. You may also consider storing copies of some documents with a trusted relative or friend who lives in another location. That's added protection in case you are unable to gain access to a home safe or even your local bank after a disaster.

When storing a will, remember that the original is necessary in the event of your death. Since a bank safe deposit box may be sealed after a death, do not store an original will there. Instead, keep the original at your lawyer's office or other secure and accessible location.

TAKE PICTURES

Among your records, remember to store photos of your home and what's inside it, including the contents of closets, garages, attics and basements. Photograph your cars, as well, and any other belongings that could be damaged in a disaster. It's also a good idea to make an inventory of your possessions, along with your best estimates of what it would cost to replace them.

HAVE SOME CASH ON HAND

If the power goes out in your area, banks or ATMs may be unavailable. That's why it's a good idea always to have enough cash on hand to cover your family's expenses for at least five days. Keep this money in a safe location where it can be easily accessed.

USE FREE RESOURCES

These are a few of the steps that CPAs recommend to make sure your family is prepared for a disaster. For more guidelines, check out www.aicpa.org.

"Financial Planning: A Guide for Financial Preparedness," a booklet made available to you by the American Red Cross, the American Institute of CPAs and other sponsors.

PROCLAMATION

Domestic Abuse Prevention Month

Our Fort Benning community depends on the Four Cornerstones of Army Well-Being: To Serve, To Live, To Connect, and To Grow. Domestic abuse undermines Army well-being.

We need all Soldiers, Family Members, and Civilians on this installation to dedicate themselves to the prevention of domestic abuse.

We need the commitment of the community at large to collaborate with us in the prevention of domestic abuse. In this high-stress, OPTEMPO environment, we need our community to recognize:

The commitment Soldiers and Family Members are making every day.
The strength of Soldiers comes from the strength of their Families.
The strength of Families is supported by the strength of the community.
The strength of the community comes from the support of employers, educators, civic and business leaders, and its citizens.

The Fort Benning Family Advocacy Program works every day to build community partnerships that support the self-reliance, resiliency, and readiness of Soldiers and their Family Members during times of war and peace. This is the power to prevent domestic abuse. By working together, Soldiers, Families, and the community form the perfect combination for prevention. The mission of the Family Advocacy Program is to educate and prevent domestic abuse. If you have any questions, contact the Family Advocacy Program at 706-545-7594 or 706-545-0892.

I call upon every Soldier, all Families and the total community to join the campaign to prevent domestic abuse. To reinforce that commitment, I hereby declare October 2008 as Domestic Abuse Prevention Month at Fort Benning.

— Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski
Commanding general,

Museum donation ceremony to take place at AMU's Pool complex

U.S. ARMY MARKSMANSHIP UNIT
Paula J. Randall

The new National Infantry Museum will receive a contribution from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit at a ceremony to be conducted Saturday.

Former Fort Benning Commanding General retired Maj. Gen. Jerry White, president of the National Infantry Association and chairman of the National Infantry Foundation, which is overseeing the construction of the new National Infantry Museum, will participate in a ceremony at the Pool International Shooting Complex in which he will accept a donation of Korean battlefield soil from the USAMU.

USAMU three-time Olympian Sgt. 1st Class Daryl L. Szarenski, son of Sgt. Frank Szarenski who served during the Korean War as a forward observer, will lead the USAMU Honor Guard in the Battlefield Soil Presentation Ceremony and present the Korean battlefield soil to White for the new museum. The USAMU honor guard will consist of Distinguished Service Cross sniper retired Master Sgt. William E. Krilling, Silver Star sniper retired Master Sgt. Burl Branham and Olympic Bronze Medalist Sgt. 1st Class James Todd Graves.

The soil was collected from various Korean battlefields by Soldiers of the USAMU on behalf of all U.S. Army Infantry Soldiers.

Both Krilling and Branham were veterans of the Korean War and Graves patrolled the Korean demilitarized zone.

More than 300 Soldiers, civilians and family members, past and present, of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit are gathering together to celebrate the USAMU's 52nd birthday Oct. 16-18 at the USAMU Headquarters and ranges. The Military Marksmanship Association is conducting the reunion in honor of the 52nd anniversary of the founding of the Army Marksmanship Unit.

CSC plans Benning Bazaar for Oct. 25-26

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

The Benning Bazaar, a local tradition that kicks off the holiday season for many Fort Benning residents, said co-chair Kara Jacobs, is Oct. 25-26 at Infantry Hall.

"We have the entire first floor of Infantry Hall this year," she said. "We're hoping for more than 100 vendors."

So far, the wares include jewelry, baskets, beauty products, wind chimes, stained glass and arts and crafts items.

New to the Benning Bazaar is a kiddie carnival, which will be on York Field. There will be inflatables, a merry-go-round, bounce house and slide, she said.

"This is where we make the money we give away through our welfare and scholarship fund," she said. Last year, the CSC gave nearly $26,000 in scholarship and welfare requests.

"A lot of people know of the Benning Bazaar because of OSC (the Officers' Spouses' Club). We need to let people know although the club's name has changed, the Benning Bazaar hasn't — it's still the way to start the holidays, shopping for gifts," Jacobs said.

The entrance cost is $2. Look for the gingerbread men pointing the way to Infantry Hall, she said. For more information, visit the CSC Web site at www.fortbenningosc.org.

Civil War re-enactors to gather in Westville

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Westville Historic Village, near Lumpkin, Ga., will be the site where Civil War re-enactors will gather to participate in Sparks of Secession. The event will portray the life of Civil War Soldiers in a typical 1861 Georgia Town.

Civil War enthusiasts from around the Southeast will gather this weekend at the Westville Historic Village near Lumpkin to participate in Sparks of Secession.The event, open to the public Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., will feature re-enactors portraying life in a typical 1861 Georgia town. Blacksmiths, cooks, cotton brokers and others will be on hand, as well as military recruiters and newly enlisted members of the 21st Georgia, I Company, Stewart Infantry. Visitors can tour the site independently or with an interpretive guide.

"We've got a whole host of very knowledgeable people who will be participating in the reenactments," said Jim Butler, member of the host group Southeast Coalition of Authentic Re-enactors and coordinator of Sparks of Secession. "We have about 110 participants coming, and about one-third of them, or maybe even more, are active duty or retired military."

Butler said the military's emphasis on history may explain the high percentage of active duty and retired participants.

"A lot of Soldiers have an interest in history, and I think the military lends itself well to that," he said.

"People who become involved in the military are generally patriotic and interested in our country and its history. Not only are they learning about our history through classes or through their work, but they're also making history, so they have a deep appreciation for it," he said.

Stieghan will act as gunsmith for the event, demonstrating Civil War era repair and cleaning techniques. Many of his demonstrations will focus on converting flintlock rifles to percussion, which in the early 1860s, was still an emerging technology.

"Just before the war, they started converting to percussion, and when the war began, they had to convert a lot of older guns," he said. "It's what gunsmiths across the country were doing at the time."

For Capt. Thomas "Skip" Owens of Fort Meade, Md., participating in re-enactments has been a life-changing experience.

"As a young boy, I started re-enacting the War Between the States, which drove me to attend college in the hope of getting a commission in the U.S. Army," he said.

"We feel that we honor all those who served by teaching the public about their story."

Owens's will portray a veteran of the first battle of Bull Run.

"As a veteran of the war in Iraq, I find the ability to portray Soldiers throughout time a great honor," he said. "In each conflict, Soldiers have all made sacrifices no matter what the political cause."

One point of pride for SCAR is that Sparks of Secession will be historically accurate, Butler said. Many participants are experts in their field, and have conducted extensive research to ensure accuracy.

"We won't have any re-enactors walking around drinking beer, because the Soldiers didn't have that then," Butler said. "We do a more serious, historically accurate re-enaction.

In keeping with SCAR's emphasis on accuracy, visitors will not see any re-enacted battles at Sparks of Secession, since the Civil War had not yet reached the Lumpkin area in 1861. Instead, the emphasis will be on the Civil War home front, Butler said.

SCAR aims to use Sparks of Secession to dispel some commonly held myths about Civil War life, and to educate visitors about our country's past, he said.

"It wasn't like in Gone With the Wind," Butler said. "People weren't strutting up and down in ball gowns."

Admission to Sparks of Secession is $10 for adults, $8 for seniors, active duty military, and children, and $4 for students. For more information, call 229-838-6310 or 888-733-1850.

Pope's Haunted Farm offers scares, surprises

It's not uncommon to find Jason, the Jigsaw Killer and Freddy Krueger lurking in the shadows at Pope's Farm. The farm offers plenty of scares to get in the Halloween spirit.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Pope's Haunted Farm, located off a dirt road in Salem, Ala., offers plenty of scares to get in the Halloween spirit.

Masked actors linger in the darkness of the haunted barn grabbing ankles, stalking people, flying 10 feet off the ground on wooden platforms and hiding in unexpected places waiting for their next "victim."

While standing in line, 18-year-old Kim Willis said, "I'm scared. I don't want to go in. The scariest thing to me is not knowing what's around the next corner."

Many "victims" said the barn, full of dark hallways, is one that is sure to scare those who enter.

Willis said it was worth the 45-minute drive from Columbus.

In the haunted forest, abandoned trailors, clowns and chain saws scatter a path lit only by bundles of red lights. It's not uncommon to see Jason, the Jigsaw Killer, Freddy Krueger and a host of other characters.

"I'm nervous," said 15-year-old Kyndall Hamby. "I hope there aren't any clowns because I can't stand them — they're creepy."

The least scary attraction is a 1 1/2 mile hayride through dark woods. According to Pope's Web site, this is the only attraction appropriate for children 10 and younger.

The haunted forest, lit only by bundles of red lights, has plenty of surprises including clowns, wolves and a host of other characters.

"People like to be scared — it's an adrenaline rush," said Troy Pope, who opened the farm 15 years ago with his wife, Kelly.

When the Popes aren't scaring folks in October, they are making improvements to the attractions.

"It's an ongoing project," Troy said. "We try to make it bigger and better every year."

Troy said new surprises have been added for those who came last year.

The farm is open from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. every Friday and Saturday through Halloween. The farm will be open additional days from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Oct. 26 and 30. Admission prices are $10 to $26 for adults and $8 to $21 for children.

For more information or directions, go to the Web site at popes-farm.com or call 706-566-7766.

OPENING TODAY
THE SECRET LIFE OF BEES

Lily Owens is a young girl who lives on a peach farm that her abusive father owns. Rosaleen is a black woman hired by Lily's father to be a stand-in mother for Lily. (Her real mother died in a horrendous accident that happened when she was a toddler.) When Rosaleen insults some of the biggest racists in their town, Lily is forced to take Rosaleen and run away to a town Lily believes her mother once lived. They go to live with three estranged sisters on a honey farm, and Lily soon learns what it is like to have a real family.

W.

W. takes viewers through Bush's eventful life — his struggles and triumphs, how he found both his wife and his faith, and of course the critical days leading up to Bush's decision to invade Iraq.

W. stars Josh Brolin, Elizabeth Banks and James Cromwell. It's rated PG-13 for language including sexual references, alcohol abuse, smoking and war images.

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic anti-hero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld. As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence including shooting sequences, drug content, sexuality and language.

NOW SHOWING
QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911 distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown.

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

Entering the apartment unit, they find an old woman in a nightgown, standing alone in the dark. She is covered in blood, her breathing erratic and raspy, but when a policeman approaches to help her, she attacks with her teeth.

The group subdues the woman and tries to get help for the injured policeman, but when they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Although ostensibly his allies, Ferris questions how far he can really trust these men without putting his entire operation — and his life — on the line.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens. Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

BLINDNESS

When a sudden plague of blindness devastates a city, a small group of the afflicted band together to triumphantly overcome the horrific conditions of their imposed quarantine.

Blindness is a thriller starring Don McKellar, Julianne Moore, Mark Ruffalo and Sandra Oh. It is rated R for violence including sexual assaults, language, sexuality and nudity.

AN AMERICAN CAROL

A cynical, Anti-American "Hollywood" filmmaker sets out on a crusade to abolish the 4th of July holiday. He is visited by three spirits who take him on a journey in an attempt to show him the true meaning of America. An American Carol is stars Kevin Farley, Kelsey Grammer, Jon Voight, Trace Adkins, James Woods, and Leslie Nielsen.

It is rated PG-13 for rude and irreverent content, and for language and drug material.

NICK & NORAH'S INFINITE PLAYLIST

Nick frequents New York's indie rock scene nursing a broken heart and playing the bass with his queercore band, The Jerk Offs. Norah is questioning pretty much all of her assumptions about the world. Though they have nothing in common except for their taste in music, their chance encounter leads to an all-night quest to find a legendary band's secret show and ends up becoming a first date that could change both their lives.

Nick & Norah's Infinite Playlist is a comedy starring Michael Cera and Kat Dennings. It is rated PG-13 for mature thematic material including teen drinking, sexuality, language and crude behavior.

BEVERLY HILLS CHIHUAHUA

A pampered Beverly Hills chihuahua named Chloe finds herself accidentally lost in the mean streets of Mexico without a day spa or Rodeo Drive boutique anywhere in sight. Now alone for the first time in her spoiled life, she must rely on some unexpected new friends — including a street-hardened German Shepherd named Delgado and an amorous pup named Papi — to lend her a paw on their journey back home.

Medal of Honor recipient, retired Col. Bob Nett, 86, died Sunday after a short illness. He was buried Thursday in the Fort Benning Cemetery after a funeral Mass was celebrated at the Follow Me Chapel on Main Post.

Nett earned the Medal of Honor for his actions on the island of Leyte during World War II. But he found out he had been recommended for the award through a news article in the Stars and Stripes, said Russ Eno, Infantry Magazine editor and long-time friend of Nett's.

He received the award in his hometown of New Haven, Conn. Lt. Gen. Oscar Griswold presented the medal on behalf of President Harry Truman who had to go to San Francisco at the last minute to resolve a crisis threatening the founding of the United Nations.

"Colonel Nett was a very humble man," Eno said. "He always said he accepted the Medal of Honor on behalf of the wonderful Soldiers he served with. He was very sincere."

Santa's Castle extends deadline

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Bob Purtiman

To ensure all families have the opportunity for a happy holiday, Fort Benning's Santa's Castle program has extended their application deadline to Friday.

Santa's Castle, entirely supported by donations, provides toys to children of Fort Benning Soldiers, who because of financial difficulties, would otherwise not have toys at Christmas.

Santa's Castle provides safe, quality toys to children up to the age of 18, said Jeff Saeli, the organization's chairman.

The program is open to any Fort Benning Soldier in the pay grade of E-1 to E-4 with a financial need. Factors such as no pay due, severe illness and garnishment of pay are considered in the selection criteria.

"We need help from leaders of every company at Fort Benning," Saeli said. "We need them to evaluate their Soldiers and submit those that they feel are most in need during the holiday season."

Soldiers not referred by their units, must apply for assistance through the Army Community Service. For more information, call 706-685-4422.

"Any regular person can get behind a gun, learn the fundamentals and pull the trigger. It's the guy next to you who's making the wind adjustments and calling all the adjustments for the scope," he said. "If you miss left or right, the guy behind the gun doesn't know, but the spotter is watching." For more on the competition, see A4.

Defense releases numbers

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

The Department of Defense recently released its fiscal 2008 recruiting and retention statistics for active and reserve components.

All branches of the service met or exceeded their goal for fiscal 2008 for active duty. The Army led all branches of the service at 101 percent, topping the goal of 80,000 with 80,517 accessions. The Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force also met their goal, achieving 100 percent accessions.

In retentions, both the Army and Navy exceeded their target while the Marine Corps and Air Force missed their goals for the fiscal year.

Competition tests Riggers' skills

THE BAYONET

Pfc. David Lewis Jr. will be presented the Rigger of Year award at 2 p.m. today in Infantry Hall. He competed with three other riggers in E Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, in the annual competition last week. It featured several events, including packing a regular T-10 and a reserve parachute, a written test, rigging a heavy load and patching a chute.

Being a rigger is a complex task, said Lewis, who tried for the award last year.

"Everybody thinks all you do is pack parachutes, but there's also the aerial delivery department (and) the maintenance part of it. No one really knows that parachute riggers have to know how to sew," he said.

Although his father and grandfather were Army recruiters, Lewis followed the career path of his uncle, now a sergeant major, who joined the Army 27 years ago.

"He was a rigger," Lewis said. "He told me all about his experiences, how much fun it was to be

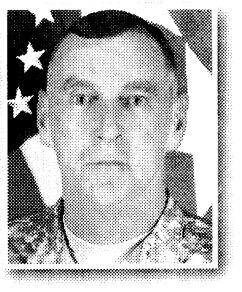
COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Tough, realistic training is the key to success

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

Executing a checklist of tasks to achieve desired results proves to be less relevant in an Army adapting to an evolving enemy and an ever-changing environment. As Fort Benning continues to produce new Soldiers, Officers, Rangers, pathfinders, snipers and a myriad of Soldiers with other skill sets, we cannot lose focus on the importance of quality training.



Quality training begins here, and resonates throughout the Army, as Soldiers and leaders apply training standards in their operational units. Every day our trainees observe how ranges are conducted, how after action reviews are facilitated, and how trainers display doctrinal knowledge. For instance, officers attending the Basic Officer Leader Course (BOLC) I through III learn more than just basic officer skills; they learn the correct methods of training and how to apply those methods in their gaining unit.

Fort Benning must continue to revise programs of instruction to avoid the "business as usual" mentality in training. A well-executed training event will challenge students to learn while pushing the instructor to develop the desired outcome; enabling both parties to learn and develop skills.

By placing an increased focus on the commander's intent for training, outcomes based training evolved as an innovative means to evaluate and assess training programs. The outcome is the ultimate goal of what the program is designed to produce. Once defined, the outcome drives how training is designed to achieve the desired endstate. A less rigid structure of how to train (step-by-step checklists are out) allows trainers to call on their combat experience, leader knowledge, and innovation to improve and enhance training. Leaders conducting training become more comfortable with subjectivity in evaluations and determining measures of success. This approach enables both trainer and trainee to understand the desired outcome prior to conducting the event, and enhances the overall learning environment.

Another key aspect of quality training is ensuring safety to the greatest extent possible. Tough and demanding training has defined our Army for decades. But, the ability to conduct tough training under hot and humid environments, such as ours at Fort Benning, requires additional risk management, planning, and resourcing to ensure safety while lessening training distractions. A simple foot march in July can produce a major heat injury if proper planning is overlooked. Resources such as ice sheets, designated routes, an ambulatory vehicle, rest stops, cadre presence, and prior hydration must all be considered part of a relatively simple training event. The number of heat-related incidents across Fort Benning continues to remain relatively low, even as our work load and the number of Soldiers trained continues to increase. This proves that our training units are taking the additional time and precautions to maximize training effectiveness and take care of Soldiers.

Fort Benning continues to provide quality Soldiers to the operational force. Feedback from battalion commanders and command sergeants major throughout the force remains positive about the quality and adaptability of the Soldiers coming from our schools. As our Army continues to transform and adapt to various changes in the contemporary operational environment, we will remain at the forefront of innovative ways to train our Soldiers. Follow me!

OPINION

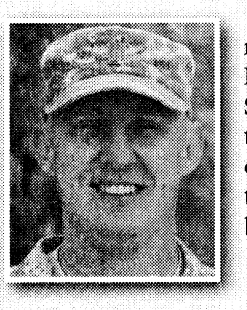
What makes a hero?

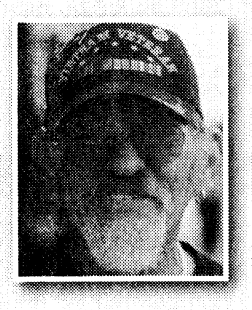


You do what you have to do regardless of the cost to yourself. Leaders lead from the front. The Soldier who charges to bunker puts the safety of his unit ahead of his own. A lot of parents sacrifice for their children. It's going above and beyond what you're required to do.

— 2nd Lt. David Hamilton
2nd Battalin, 29th Infantry Regiment

Somebody you look up to could be your hero. A teacher could be your hero. A father could be a hero. You put someone else's life before your own.

— Sgt. Theophilus Taylor
11th Engineer Battalion



I think a real hero is somebody who can overcome fear and still perform their mission. I did a few tours over in Vietnam. You're always scared — if you aren't, you're crazy — but you do your job.

— Michael Quesnell
Fort Mitchell, Ala.

I think it's someone who goes beyond the call of duty, a person who gives of themselves, their time and their talents just to help others. It could be anybody. Somebody who feeds the hungry, volunteers with Red Cross, a mom who works hard for her kids. They don't have to give, but they choose to.

— Kimberly Neely
Family member

I think it's putting others before yourself and doing the right thing. The right thing can be loyalty to your country or giving your family a better future. You're not in it for yourself. That's how I see it.

Every American should visit a Warrior Transition Unit

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Col. Jimmie O. Keenan

As a Soldier, officer, trauma nurse, military spouse and mother, I live every aspect of Army health care, and I know what works and what doesn't.

Nothing is more disappointing than to see other people doubt what the Army is doing to take care of wounded, ill and injured Soldiers without having the facts right. It might not make the headlines, but Soldiers taking care of Soldiers is what we do. It's our ethos, it's our passion and it's our job.

Since the war on terrorism began, the Army faced the necessity of putting into place the infrastructure to handle the extraordinary number of outpatients a protracted war generates. I know I certainly did not see the attack of Sept. 11 coming, nor did the Army medical system. We also did not expect to be into our seventh year of war either.

Once we realized the care requirements an ongoing war placed on the Army, we moved quickly to bring about needed changes. In less than a year, we developed and opened 35 Warrior Transition Units, or WTUs, and nine Community Based Health Care Organizations to provide the necessary support structure to care for the more than 30,000 wounded, ill, and injured Soldiers we have treated since the war began.

Today, we provide health care, counseling and leadership support along the entire continuum of care, all within an environment mirroring the Soldier's former unit. This care goes beyond medical care and includes specialized help with personal relationships, stress management, counseling and a whole range of offerings aimed at encouraging each warrior to take positive steps toward overcoming adversity.

This effort is done in conjunction with the Soldier Family Assistance Centers which are specifically designed to offer recovering Soldiers and their Families education, vocational, and financial services. Veterans Benefits Administration counselors also provide support at these centers. We have come as far as we have because we listened to our Soldiers, and our medical and personnel professionals. We continue to gather their thoughts and ideas to further transform the system to make it more responsive. We conduct town hall meetings, make available to Soldiers and their Families ombudsmen who are able to cut through mountains of red tape to provide needed assistance, and operate a 24-hour-a-day hotline (1-800-984-8523) to provide two-way communication with our Soldiers and their families.

This is not an example of an organization in denial — it's proof that we are agile, adaptable and responsive. Today these WTUs provide our wounded, ill and injured Soldiers more personalized care than ever before in our history. We ask these Soldiers to focus on their healing, and, in turn, we offer them a familiar environment of support, focus, and discipline.

As we wrapped our arms around all Soldiers with complex medical issues, the WTU population grew. It grew because we added Soldiers into the program whether they were injured in combat, had a sports injury or were going through the medical evaluation system. We felt that this approach was the morally right thing to do, and yet over and again I see the Army being criticized for doing what is right.

We need to work on how we communicate our story to the American public and the media because I find the coverage to be off target. We may not be exactly where we want to be today, but we are working hard to get there. The healing process takes all of us.

Recently, I met a 14-year-old daughter of a Soldier who was wounded in combat, and she told me that when her dad was wounded, their whole family was wounded and needed to heal. These wounds, illnesses, and injuries touch families, communities and industries — all of us. I would encourage every American to go visit a WTU or become a volunteer to help our wounded, ill and injured warriors and our nation heal. To sign up, go to http://giftstoarmy.army.mil.

Letter to the editor

Thank you, Good Samaritan

Recently I was driving my wife, her 90-year old dad and 89-year old mother through Alabama near Fort Benning. I had a severe blow out and pulled well off the interstate for safety reasons. I had everyone exit the vehicle, again for safety reasons, and my mother-in-law was having difficulty standing with her walker.

I am in my 60s, and am able to change a tire but with great difficulty because of arthritis in my hands.

A young Army officer from Fort Benning, on the other side of the highway, saw my dilemma and made a U-turn to come to my aid.

He was returning from serving on a military funeral detail and was wearing his Class A's but with his blouse removed so I could not see his name. All I know is that he was a captain and the commandant of one of the airborne schools. I also know he saw a fellow Soldier (albeit retired) in difficulty and stopped to help.

Thanks to that young captain and to all Soldiers for all that you do. From an old Vietnam combat veteran and retired sergeant major, I salute you.

I-HITS keeps its eyes on Soldiers during land nav

Although the system is not new to Fort Benning, the U. S. Army's Initial Homestation Instrumented Training System (I-HITS), formerly referred to as DSTAR, continues to provide units like the Ranger Training Brigade, Basic Officer Leadership Course, the Noncommissioned Officer Academy and the 75th Ranger Regiment a safe training environment for Soldiers on land navigation courses, said Ernesto Sanchez Jr., Regional Manager and operator of the I-HITS system.

He said the Army wanted to ensure the safety of its Soldiers following the death of a West Point cadet in the Pre-Ranger course in 2003.

I-HITS provides the additional safety of having an "eyes on," real-time monitoring system for individual Soldiers, with the capability of also being used for force on force training.

Currently, 250 MILES 2000 vests and 125 OC vests are in the Fort Benning inventory being used with the I-HITS system. The electronic components on the vests interface with the I-HITS system software in a mobile trailer through a relay radio, located at the base of a 130-foot antenna system at Yankee North.

"The system was shown to the Army and Fort Benning, and the RTB commander wanted it," Sanchez said. "We got the system up for the land navigation course, I believe, in November 2003 for the Rangers," said Sanchez, who has been monitoring Soldiers at Fort Benning since.

"I have to tell you, this (I-HITS) is second to none," said Sanchez who retired from the Army in 1995 as a sergeant major with the 75th Ranger Regiment.

Capable of pinpointing a Soldier to a 10-digit grid, Sanchez said he can monitor around 300 Soldiers at a time.

"I monitor all movement," Sanchez said. "In less than five minutes I know if there is a problem and if they go out of the redline boundary, I notify the on-site NCO."

Sanchez said the MILES 2000 vest is equipped with a panic button that can be activated by the Soldier in case of a problem.

Through his experience, Sanchez said he can usually tell about 30 minutes prior to the conclusion of a land navigation exercise whether a Soldier is going to make it in time or not, and will alert the on-site NCO with the location of the Soldier.

Sanchez said the system is equipped with the ability to pinpoint the Soldier from point-to-point in degrees and meters allowing for a quick reaction response.

"In my five years here, we have always gotten the Soldiers back because of this system, knock on wood," Sanchez said. "This system is great."

National Infantry Foundation launches In the Footsteps of Heroes

THE NATIONAL INFANTRY FOUNDATION
Cyndy Cerbin

The National Infantry Foundation launched In the Footsteps of Heroes, a commemorative paver program designed to give permanent recognition to heroes of all kinds at the new National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center in Columbus, Ga.

The Foundation will sell 4-by-8-inch granite pavers that can be engraved with a custom message. The pavers will line Heritage Walk, a 1,000-foot long, 20-foot wide path connecting the new museum and the parade field in Patriot Park. A kiosk will allow visitors to look up the exact location of their own paver.

Foundation Chairman retired Maj. Gen. Jerry White said the intent is to honor all patriots, no matter their role in supporting our country.

"We welcome everyone, active-duty Soldiers and retired veterans, Infantry, Armor, Airborne, Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard. And most importantly, we want to honor all the wives, parents and children who have sacrificed so much for their loved ones."

Each paver holds three lines of text; each line has room for 20 characters. The $250 cost is tax deductible and includes one free 2-by-4 inch replica paver that purchasers or honorees can keep on a desktop. Orders can be placed online or with a downloadable order form at www.nationalinfantrymuseum.com. Brochures are available for mailing. Proceeds will be used to complete construction of the museum.

Pavers that have been purchased by Jan. 30 will be placed along Heritage Walk in time for the National Infantry Museum's grand opening on March 20.

Brigades buy all-terrain vehicles, save money on fuel

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Gas and diesel prices are falling but Fort Benning is still trying to find ways to save money.

"The drive for all-terrain vehicles at Fort Benning has become popular," said J.R. Edens, safety specialist at the Fort Benning Safety Office.

They are being used by the 192nd, 197th, 198th and 199th Infantry brigades, the Sniper School and the Ranger Training Brigade.

Instructors use the vehicles for mission use — to monitor training, carry ammunition, medical supplies and water and police road marches.

"With gas and diesel prices nowadays, it's important to save as much money as we can," said Master Sgt. Robert Boudnick, 198th Infantry Brigade operations sergeant major.

The ATVs will replace the use of a few diesel 4x4 trucks at training sites.

"Why take a big truck with a few supplies on a training site when you can take a smaller vehicle that gets better gas mileage?" Edens said.

A 50-gallon 4-by-4 truck costs about $175 to top off, whereas a nine-gallon ATV costs $28 per tank.

In addition to the cost effectiveness, the smaller vehicles are safer and more maneuverable than trucks, Boudnick said.

"There are some areas you can't get to with a 4x4 and sometimes, the trucks get stuck," he said.

ATVs are being used Army-wide, including operational environments, said Capt. Mark Granen, 198th Inf. Bde. operations officer.

"It'll help Soldiers get acclimated to what vehicles they will see in combat areas," he said.

ATVs are used in combat to carry ammunition, first aid supplies and casualties.

AMU first team to win sniper competition two years in a row

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit won the eighth annual International Sniper Competition for the second consecutive year, hosted by the Sniper School under C Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, Oct. 16 through Tuesday. They were one of more than 30 sniper teams from France, Canada, Spain, Denmark, Ireland and different branches of the U.S. military.

Snipers tested their skills in several events, including aerial shooting, convoy live fire and night shooting.

"They're meant to simulate real world scenarios they could encounter in a combat environment," said Capt. Jason Lojka, C Co., 2nd Bn., 29th Inf. Regt., commander.

Participating in this premier event not only helps snipers identify their own weaknesses but also provides a forum for different branches of the military and snipers from around the world to learn from each other and perfect their techniques, Lojka said.

The competition is also good preparation for deployment, said Spc. Taylor Smith, a spotter with the 10th Mountain Division, which will deploy later this year.

"The scenarios you get here are probably the best training you can get in the Army before you deploy," Smith said. "It's good because the situations here are more elaborate than what a lot of posts can provide. It's a lot more detailed as opposed to going out to your usual range and placing your basic target just so far away. It's a challenge."

The exercises weren't exactly stressful, said Smith, who has been a sniper for a year, "but it does get a little high-paced."

Many of the events, such as counter sniper, were timed. Three points behind first place, AMU ranked second in that event, finishing with two seconds to spare.

"That's what puts the stress on you — the clock," said Sgt. 1st Class Jason St John, the spotter for the team.

St John and shooter Sgt. 1st Class Robby Johnson identified and engaged four targets, but one was non-hostile, costing the team 10 points. After hitting the bonus target, they were allowed to go downrange to search for intelligence and earn extra points.

In all the exercises, their success depended on clear communication, Johnson said.

Even after the events, they discuss how they can improve.

"The scenarios and targets that are put out there are so phenomenally difficult," St John said. "There isn't an event that we haven't stopped and looked at and said we should have done this a little bit different. This is an extremely difficult match, top to bottom."

The 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, based out of Fort Lewis, Wash., placed second overall. D Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st Special Warfare Training Group, came in third.

60th (Vertical) Engineer Company builds from the bottom up

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Forty Engineers from the 60th (Vertical) Engineer Company got out their saws, hammers and measuring tape Tuesday to build urban terrain buildings, tent pads and guard towers at a Sand Hill training site for the 2nd Battalion, 47th Infantry Regiment.

The 60th Eng. Co. is the only vertical engineer company at Fort Benning. They build structures from the ground up — towers and buildings — unlike horizontal companies, which build over instead of up — bridges and road repair.

The company, consisting of plumbers, electricians, carpenters, machine operators and masons, builds everything from wooden shelters to structures with plumbing and electricity.

"Many of these guys are fresh out of AIT, so this is a good exercise for them to learn from the more experienced engineers," said 2nd Lt. Seth Sanders, platoon leader.

This project is less intricate than one they might see later, including installing plumbing and electricity, he said.

Engineers have to be flexible when it comes to working at a site, said Cpl. Rodney Young, squad leader and mason and carpentry specialist who has been with the company for three years.

"One site might have sand and another site might have Georgia red clay and these are factors that will affect how you build a structure," he said.

The most rewarding part of Young's job — seeing the end product.

"When you start, you have a vision of what'll look like and when you are done, you get to see that vision become a reality," he said.

The nine-day project will be completed next week and after that, the company is looking for new projects.

Riggers: Pack, test chutes

Airborne and the pride of being a rigger."

Lewis' next goal is to learn how to rig freefall drops at HALO School at Fort Bragg, N.C., but first he will PCS in May to join a special forces battalion in Germany.

"I'll be a rigger for the next 16 years. I don't know if I'll retire at 20 years or not, but I'm definitely staying in for the full haul," Lewis said. "I'm proud of the Airborne. I'm proud to be a rigger. You couldn't pay me enough money to change my MOS. I enjoy doing what I do."

Riggers have no room for error when they patch or pack a chute, Lewis said. They must reach 100 percent every time.

Before a Soldier jumps with a parachute, it is inspected five times — first by the packer, then the NCO before a final inspection in the pack shed, then the rigger who issues the parachute and finally the jumpmaster.

Quality control and the rigger motto, "I will be sure always," is the standard, said Sgt. 1st Class Thomas Mayes, the platoon sergeant.

Fort Benning packs about 110,000 parachutes a year, more than any other installation in the world, he said. In his two years at the pack shed, Mayes has not seen one parachute malfunction.

"I know who I work with everyday," he said. "If you're jumping one of our parachutes, it will open, no doubt about it."

A trained rigger can pack a chute in less than 10 minutes and up to 25 a day.

That doesn't happen right away, Mayes said. After basic training, future riggers attend the Airborne

Spc. Emily Ryles packs her parachute.

Riggers fresh out of AIT usually pack about 10 a day, but after training here, they meet the industry standard — 25 a day, no more, no less, Mayes said.

Another test of "quality control," riggers periodically jump with one of the parachutes they pack. It instills confidence in them, Mayes said, knowing they will use one of their own chutes.

It's an important responsibility, said Mayes, a rigger for 18 years, just like being a doctor.

"If I'm laying on the hospital table, I expect the surgeon to be able to do the job to save my life," he said. "We're at that level. If someone's jumping out of an airplane, they expect that parachute to open."

That requires trust, Mayes said.

"If you're not scared of jumping, don't have a little bit of butterflies, something's wrong with you, but you have to have faith that it's going to open up," he said. "I like knowing what we do saves lives."

REWARD

A reward of $2,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for armed robbery of a Soldier on Sept. 8 behind the Kelley Hill Shoppette, Building 9177.

The person is described as an African-American male, approximately 6 feet tall and 230 pounds with an athletic build, round face, clean shaven. He was wearing a black do-rag, white baggy T-shirt, black shorts, and black sneakers.

Anyone having knowledge of the incident, but not wishing to be identified, will be briefed on available options for maintaining their confidentiality and are encouraged to call the Fort Benning CID Office at 706-545-7905 or the Military Police desk at 706-545-5222. The reward offer expires Sept. 18, 2009.

RANGERS IN ACTION

The public is invited to a Rangers in Action demonstration at 10 a.m. today at Victory Pond. Graduation will follow. For more information, call 706-544-6602.

RED RIBBON WEEK

Meet the Army Marksmanship Unit's Olympic gold medal winners 10 a.m. today in Marshall Auditorium during the "Go for the Gold — Not Drugs" training session sponsored by the post Army Substance Abuse Program, Warrior Transition Battalion, Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation and Fort Benning Schools. Open to all military, civilians and family members, it is mandatory training for unit prevention leaders and civilian train the trainers. For more information, call Oskar Schlomer at 706-545-7027. National Red Ribbon Week ends Friday.

COMMISSARY SALE

The commissary is having a sale from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday with a variety of items at 30 to 80 percent off retail prices. The store will close at 6 to prepare for the sale. "Shoppers will be excited to see the low prices on their favorite items," said Lillie Burns, grocery manager. "Most items at the sale will come in cases or bulk packaging, so eligible families are encouraged to shop together to enable splitting cases after purchase."

For more information, call 706-544-3965.

TOWNHALL MEETING

Garrison Commander Col. Thomas Macdonald will host a townhall meeting for the Indianhead community 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Wilson Elementary School. Ranger gets Silver Star for actions in Afghanistan

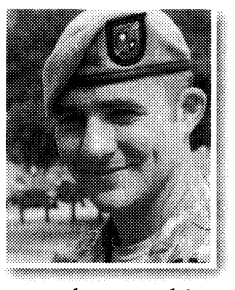
75TH RANGER REGIMENT
Tracy A. Bailey

What started as a several-day, hundreds-of-miles, over-desert-terrain presence patrol in Southern Afghanistan, turned into a near ambush by enemy forces.



According to the citation narrative, Sgt. 1st Class Ray Plasterer and his team were conducting a patrol in a rural area and were caught in a surprise attack initiated with rocket propelled grenades, small arms fire, and fragmentary grenades resulting in five wounded friendly forces and four friendly forces killed in action. Plasterer's actions, along with his team, saved numerous lives and led to a decisive victory and the death of 22 enemy combatants.

"We did not really feel threatened during the initial part of the patrol but we had the feeling that we were being watched prior to the actual ambush," said Plasterer.

Upon the initiation of the enemy contact, Plasterer found himself in the middle of the kill zone, receiving effective enemy fire from two locations. He immediately returned lethal fire to the north and south of the convoy in an effort to provide suppressive fire for the vehicles caught in the kill zone, the citation said.

"We were about one day into our mission when we were attacked," said Plasterer. "We were in a convoy of approximately 20 vehicles and I was about four vehicles from the back of the convoy."

Plasterer immediately took control of a nearby interpreter and a five-man squad and this allowed the element to move to a more defendable location to fight from. Plasterer identified two enemy combatants and quickly eliminated them, according to the citation.

"These types of missions are what we train to do," said Plasterer. "It's something, when it actually happens, you don't even think about the danger. Nobody does, you just do your job."

Soon after, a team member identified another member of the team who had received a serious gunshot wound to the neck. Plasterer identified the need to get to a radio and request emergency close air support, as well as MEDEVAC for the wounded individuals. With complete disregard for his own personal safety, Plasterer moved from his covered position, under a barrage of AK-47 and RPG fire, through an open area to reach a vehicle that would have a radio to report the situation. Realizing the radio was inoperable, he moved back to his vehicle in the middle of the kill zone under a high volume of enemy fire to contact higher headquarters, the citation said.

"Sgt. 1st Class Plasterer did what every good Ranger NCO does, he took charge of the situation and got it under control," said Lt. Gen. Robert Wagner, U.S. Army Special Operations Command commanding general.

According to the citation, while Plasterer was calling for close air support and MEDEVAC, his vehicle came under heavy small arms fire, and knowing that he was pinned down and needed to link back up with the five-man squad, he used the vehicle and drove it in reverse back to the squad. As the vehicle was moving backward, the volume of enemy fire increased and the truck became disabled. He exited the vehicle and once again braved the intense small arms fire to link up with the squad. Once back with his squad, Plasterer reassumed command and control and contacted the ground force commander.

"Sgt. 1st Class Plasterer's team turned what the enemy hoped to be a decisive victory over the Rangers into a decisive defeat of the enemy," said Wagner.

Plasterer's assessment of the situation allowed him to pass critical information to the ground force commander who was able to maneuver forces into a position to fix and kill a seven-man, enemy-flanking element. Additionally, Plasterer's decision-making put his own element into a position that allowed them to engage the enemy with deadly precision to maintain superiority over the enemy, enabling the remainder of the force to enter the larger building and kill the last of the enemy combatants, the citation said.

"Many of you don't realize how important your work is; you put your lives on the line everyday to serve our nation and the impact you have on the war is tremendous," said Wagner addressing the Rangers. "You have been engaged in this conflict since the beginning and your skills and ability continue to amaze and impress me."

The attention that receiving the Silver Star has generated makes Plasterer quick to point out that he did what anyone else would have done that day.

"Nobody does it for the attention that you get out of it, you do it for job satisfaction," said Plasterer. "And you have the knowledge that what you are doing is important as well as the friendships that you make that will last a lifetime."

His date of birth was smudged, Eno said, describing the way Nett had folded the birth certificate in half and rubbed the crease to blur the date.

"The sergeant said 'You were born in 1921' and Robert said, 'If that's what you say, Sergeant,'" Eno said. Nett's mother found out he joined the National Guard when she saw him marching in a parade wearing a uniform.

His father died when Nett was 8, and his mother raised him. She conditioned him to always ask if there was anything else he could do after he finished any type of errand, Eno said. This trait worked in his favor in the Army, by the time he was a staff sergeant he recognized what needed to be done.

While on Christmas Island in 1941 with the 102nd Infantry Division, he received orders for Officer Candidate School. Graduating in December 1942, he was commissioned an Infantry officer. While with the 77th Infantry Division, Nett was a first lieutenant commanding E Company, 305th Infantry Regiment, when the division made a surprise amphibious landing behind enemy lines in December 1944. During a battle against a reinforced enemy battalion, Nett killed seven with his rifle and bayonet. Seriously wounded — in the neck, in the chest, which collapsed his lung and sent a rib through his back — he turned his command over to another lieutenant and started to walk to the aid station, according to Medal of Honor: Portraits of Valor Beyond the Call of Duty.

He met his wife, Frances, who served in the Army Nurses Corps, in the Philippines. They were married for 66 years.

After Nett received the USO's Spirit of Hope Award Jan. 24, 2007, in Marshall Auditorium, he told The Bayonet, "Any success I can claim, I owe to her. She often found herself having to fill the roles of mother and father while I was away for months at a time. She gave freely of herself. She raised our family and helped generations of Soldiers and their wives. I couldn't have done it without her."

A veteran of three wars, Nett served 33 years in the Army. One of his assignments was as the battalion commander of the Officer Candidate School.

John W. Peeler

Soldiers with the Ranger Training Brigade provide the honor guard for retired Col. Bob Nett's funeral Oct. 23 at the Follow Me Chapel.

He was the father of OCS, said Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, Fort Benning's commanding general during a ceremony honoring the five Medal of Honor recipients who called Columbus home.

"I am among the thousands who consider him one of my mentors," Wojdakowski said.

Nett, who taught industrial arts in the Muscogee County School System for 17 years, touched the lives of many people, Eno said.

"What I learned from Colonel Nett is the importance of respect," Eno said. "He felt people want to do the right thing. Set a good example for them and they would rise to the occasion."

Nett had high standards and elicited the same from others, Eno said.

"He will be missed and fondly remembered," Eno said.

Nett is survived by his wife; his son, Dr. Robert B. Nett Jr. and wife, Patti Ann, and their children, Erica and Nicholas, of San Antonio, Texas; his daughter, Frances Anne Randall and husband, Doyle, of Roswell, N.M., and their daughter, Yvonne, of Las Vegas.

Benning: Meets retention mission

Fort Benning did its part of the Army mission, reaching 108 percent of its ETS mission, 112 percent first-term mission, 108 percent mid-career goal and 106 percent career goal.

"Our goal for active-duty retention across-the-board was 697 and we exceeded that with 753," said Sgt. 1st Class Arnetta Williams, Installation Retention Operations NCO.

The top producing large brigade was the 197th Infantry Brigade, exceeding their assigned mission at 124 percent and coming out on top as the top small brigade was the 192nd Infantry Brigade at 135 percent, she said.

Reserve and National Guard components met their accession goal with the Air National Guard reaching 126 percent of its assigned mission followed by the Army Reserve at 106 percent, Air Force Reserve at 105 percent, Army National Guard at 103 percent and the Navy Reserve and Marine Corps Reserve each reaching 100 percent.

Fort Benning met its reserve component goal, which includes the Army Reserve and National Guard, by nearly doubling its assigned mission to reach 197 percent of its goal, said Williams.

"These are active-duty Soldiers who are getting out but say they still want to stay with the team," she said. "Yes, we met our goals."

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

World Series begins

The World Series kicked off Oct. 22 at Tropicana Field in St. Petersburg, Fla. The Phillies won, 3 to 2 over the Rays. Game three between the Rays and Phillies will be at 8 p.m. Saturday on Fox at Philadelphia. Game four will be at 8 p.m. Sunday.

I'm going to pull for Tampa Bay, because everyone loves a Cinderella story, and going from worst to first in the American League in one season is very commendable.

NASCAR

Jimmie Johnson won the QuikPak 500 Oct. 19 at Martinsville. Dale Earnhardt Jr. finished second, followed by Carl Edwards in third.

Johnson leads by more than 100 points for the Sprint Cup championship.

NASCAR heads to Atlanta Motor Speedway this weekend. The Pep Boys Auto 500 begins with coverage at 1 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

Jones out

Adam "Pacman" Jones, cornerback for the Dallas Cowboys, entered an alcohol treatment center, owner Jerry Jones told the press Oct. 20.

Jones was suspended for at least four games Oct. 14 for yet again violating the NFL's personal conduct policy after getting into an altercation with one of his bodyguards.

Jones will be lucky to ever see any more playing time in the NFL. What a waste of talent.

Ballesteros stable

Golfer Seve Ballesteros, 51, was listed as stable Oct. 16 following surgery to remove part of his skull to relieve pressure following brain tumor surgery a week earlier.

Ballesteros retired last year because of a history of back pain and now designs golf courses.

Get well soon, Seve.

Texas remains on top

Texas stayed at the number one spot in the newest Associated Press college poll with a win over Missouri Oct. 18.

Alabama retained the second spot. Penn State jumped to the third spot, followed by Oklahoma at fourth and Florida at fifth.

Chamberlain trouble

New York Yankees pitcher Joba Chamberlain was arrested Oct. 18 in Lincoln, Nebraska, for driving under the influence of alcohol and speeding.

Chamberlain released a statement apologizing to the Yankees and fans for "an error in judgment."

He's scheduled to appear in court Dec. 17.

Chattco Panthers slash Pacelli Vikings

Win puts team two games behind region first place

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Chattahoochee County High School Panthers (4-2 Region 4-A, 5-2 overall) slashed the Pacelli Vikings (2-4 Region 4-A, 2-5 overall) 30-8 Saturday at Pacelli High School.

The game was Chattco's first victory against Pacelli, said head coach Josh Kemp.

At the half, Chattco led 16-0. Pacelli's lone touchdown came with 8:55 remaining in the fourth quarter. With a sucessful two-point conversion, the Vikings closed the gap 16-8, Chattco scored two more touchdowns at the 3:45 and 1:32 mark to secure the win.

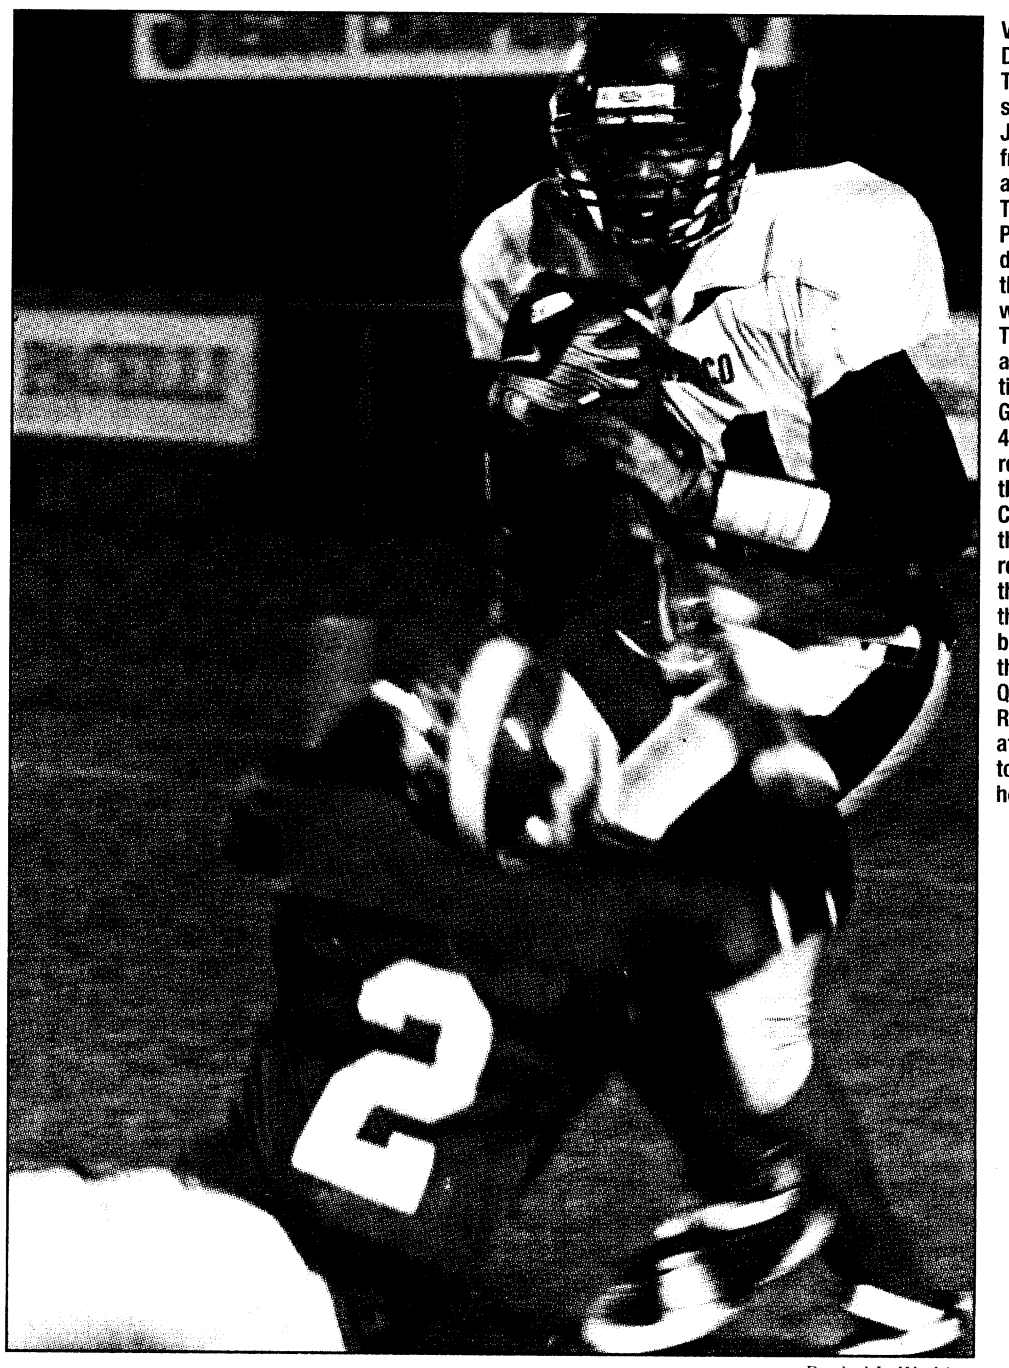
"Keeping control of the ball in the rain was challenging, but we did it," said Panther junior Corey McCoy. "At the beginning of the season, I said Chattco was going to make something of themselves. When we lost to Schley County, people gave up on us, but we turned it around."

Panther senior Ian McDonald was excited about the win, he said.

"Our defense came out and dominated the Vikings. I know we can play the next game just like this one," McDonald said. "And I'm confident that we have a shot at the state championship."

Chattco is currently tied with Greenville (4-2) for third place in the region and trails second place, Schley (5-1) and Marion counties (5-1). Chattco is two games behind region leading Brookstone (6-0).

Chattco has three games remaining in the season. The Panthers take on Stewart-Quitman Royal Knights at 7:30 p.m. today at home. For a schedule or more information, go to the school Web site at www.chattahoochee.k12.ga.us/highFOOTBALL.htm.



Rachel L. Watkins

Viking Devonte Taylor tries to stop Panther Jacovi White from scoring a touchdown. The Chattco Panthers dominated the game and won 30-8. The Panthers are currently tied with Greenville, 4-2 in the region for third place. Chattco has three games remaining in the season, the next will be against the Stewart-Quitman Royal Knights at 7:30 p.m. today at home.

Soldier shatters world record for rucksack run

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

2nd Lt. Dustin McClure set a new world record for fastest 5,000-meter run with a 40-pound rucksack Oct. 12 at Fort Benning's Stewart Field. McClure completed the run in 20:06, shattering the previous record of 22:20 set by Spc. Jake Truex in 2006 in Hanau, Germany. McClure finished 24 seconds under his personal goal, and his feat qualifies him for a spot in the 2009 Guinness Book of World Records, he said.

"I feel good about it," he said.

ON POST

HARVEST REPORTING

Hunters are reminded that all deer, turkeys, hogs, doves, squirrels and quail harvested on Fort Benning must be reported using the TELTRACK Hunter Control System by calling 706-545-8387 and selecting menu item number 4.

EAR TAGS

Auburn University is conducting a study of the feral pigs on Fort Benning to understand their population size, reproductive rates, movement patterns and food habits.

This information will help determine what impacts feral pigs have on habitat, wildlife populations and military training. Pig hunters, please report the ear tag number, ear tag color, date harvested and general location of harvest to the Conservation Branch.

Several pigs have been fitted with radio-tracking collars to help determine habitat use. Please attempt to identify and avoid harvesting collared pigs. If a collared pig is harvested or found, please return the collar to the Conservation Branch, First Division Road, Building 5884, Harmony Church.

For more information, call 706-544-7079, 706-544-7516 or 706-544-7319.

OFF POST

OMEGA FUN RUN/WALK

The Omega Psi Phi Fraternity will host a fun run from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at the Riverwalk near Rigdon Park in Columbus to raise money for scholarships.

Registration costs $20 in advance and $25 the day of the race. Awards and prizes will be given at the end of the event. For more information, call 706-576-4888.

MEMORIAL RUN

The Aaron Blake Reynolds Memorial 5K will begin at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 1 at Hardaway High School in Columbus. The run will raise funds for a wrestling facility for the school. Aaron, who died of a brain aneurism last year, was formerly the captain of the Hardaway wrestling team.

The deadline for early registration is Wednesday, and the cost is $10 for students and $15 for adults. Registration is $20 for adults and $15 for students Oct. 16 through Nov. 1.

A moisture wicking shirt is available while supplies last. A one-mile fun run will begin at 9 a.m. Trophies will be awarded after both races. For more information or to register, contact Lynne Williamson at 706-615-1480 or e-mail lynnew67@yahoo.com

PIE GOLF TOURNAMENT

Partners in Education will host its annual golf tournament at 11:45 a.m. Nov. 7 at Bull Creek Golf Course in Midland, Ga. For more information, contact Dana Whaley at 706-596-7005 or dwhaley@columbusgachamber.com.

CHEERLEADING CHAMPIONSHIPS

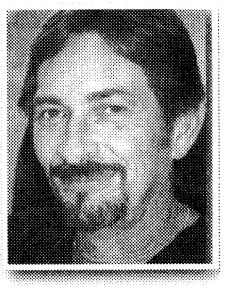
Winning the big one, the game of life

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

In last week's edition, Bayonet correspondent Erin Nash wrote about a parent's expectations of today's coach — and I could not agree more with her opinion.



As a former sportswriter and coach of 12 years, I can tell you being a volunteer coach is both the most unrewarding and rewarding job there is.

From a coaching perspective, there is nothing better than being able to watch a child grow in a sport. I consider myself lucky to be able to say that I have watched child athletes grow from youth sports through high school programs, all the way to professional sports.

On the down side, there are always those very few parents who make coaching a difficult job at best.

In my last stint as a coach and writer in north Georgia, I graduated, so to speak, with a child I coached when he was 8 years old. I watched him grow from a kid who knew nothing of the sport to a young man who played through his senior year on the high school football team. He was also on the GHSA AAA state wrestling team three of his four high school years — I felt proud to have been a part of his athletic career. It is ironic though, he was one of my first players on a team in my newfound north Georgia home, and the day he graduated was my final day of work at the paper as their sportswriter — it seems like in the game of life we graduated together.

Then, there is Edwin Jackson. Jackson is a major league pitcher with the American League champion Tampa Bay Rays.

I was fortunate enough to be able to coach Jackson in both football and baseball at Fort Benning. While he has struggled at times as a pro, he met his childhood goal of playing in the majors. It would take a short story to describe how Jackson, as an early teen, approached sports — he was a competitor in the strictest sense and took his duty to the team very seriously.

What do these two players have in common? When they were on my team, they understood winning took a back seat to learning the fundamentals.

As I told them, "winning will take care of itself, and the victories will come when the team is fundamentally sound."

Being a coach is a tough job. Sure, parents want to win games and so do coaches, but a coach has a bigger responsibility to the growth of an athlete than to the overzealous parent who would rather win "more than anything."

Only a very small percentage of high school athletes ever make it to play college ball and even fewer go on to play professional ball — no matter how many wins they have in youth athletics.

What they do carry forward in life are the lessons they learn and personal growth they achieve from playing sports.

They also learn parenting skills, good or bad, from watching their parents in the stands. Ask yourself — "what am I teaching my athlete about being a parent, sportsmanship, and how to act as an adult?"

So, what can you do as the parent of an athlete? Sit back, enjoy your child and their athletic prowess while you can, and realize that while the word fan is short for fanatic, there is no need to be fanatical.

Your time will be more enjoyable, and in the end, winning will take care of itself, whether it is in sports — or life.

Paintball helps Soldier readjust after deployment

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

For years, paintball was a favorite pastime for Jorge Cruz, but when he joined the Army, he had little time to play. Now, after returning from a yearlong tour in Iraq, he's picked it up again, and it's made all the difference in his transition to life in the States.

"When I came back from Iraq, I started having problems with social skills, PTSD and lower back problems, which caused me not to be able to run," said Cruz, who medically retired to further his treatment. "I couldn't even go into the PX or the commissary. It was a phobia — or I'd get angry at the person standing there in line not knowing what they want. But ever since I started doing this and learning how to socialize, I (realized) I'm not in Iraq anymore. I'm back in the States. It was a readjustment."

It's not a quick fix, he said, but his lower back pain and social skills have improved. He feels calmer, even while stalking his enemy during the game, and has met a variety of people.

After being stationed on Fort Benning for four years without knowing about the course, Cruz wants to get the word out, he said.

The paintball course, located off Dixie Road, near the golf course, is open daily from dawn to dusk. Cruz meets up with Soldiers and civilians, adults and children, who play several games from noon to 5 p.m. Sundays. On a busy day, as many as 60 players show up.

Everyone is invited to join in the "hide and seek for grown-ups," Cruz said, as long as they bring their own equipment and adhere to the park rules of no digging, littering or cutting down trees.

Safety is a priority, said Staff Sgt. Dennis Santos, one of the veteran players who helped build several of the bunkers on the course.

"The whole thing about this is just to come out and have fun," said Santos, who got his wife, son and daughter involved in the sport. "You get a good workout. It teaches the kids how to move tactically in these wood lines without necessarily having to be an expert shooter. It makes you think. Even if you lose, you learn something."

Measuring about 220 by 600 meters with more than 30 bunkers and available for use free of charge, the paintball course on post is a great option for people interested in picking up a unique sport, he said.

"It's just an adrenaline rush, especially when you get out there and you have six people coming after just you," Santos said. "If anyone wants to come for a challenge, this is the place to come. I guarantee it."

Supplies and equipment for paintball are available at Outdoor Recreation. For more information, call 706-545-7978.

MEDDAC remains undefeated with 27-0 victory

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The MEDDAC Dawgs demolished the 2nd Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, Rock Force Practice Team, 27-0, Oct. 15 on Essenbagger Field.

The Dawgs scored two touchdowns in the first half and two more in the second for the win.

On their second possession of the game, MEDDAC scored from outside the 40-yard line on a pass from quarterback Larry Addy to receiver Chris Thomas, but were unable to convert the extra point. The Dawgs scored again on the following possession with Addy passing to Terrence Crimiel. The Dawgs failed to convert a two-point conversion and lead for a 12-0 halftime.

On MEDDAC's opening possession in the second half, Addy took it in from 10 yards out for the touchdown. The team made up for their earlier losses with a three-point conversion with Addy hitting Thomas in the end zone from 20 yards. On their next possession, Johnny DuBose ran the ball in from 17 yards out to close out the scoring.

For the Dawgs, the biggest challenge of the game was changing their offensive strategy at the last minute, said assistant coach Johnny Dubose.

"We were shorthanded," he said. "We had an emergency quarterback, and our original line wasn't here, so we had to throw some people in. We struggled a little bit, but at the end, we got it together. And our defense held strong. Our motto for our defense is "We bend, but we don't break". We bent a little, but we never broke."

Sound defense, teamwork and perseverance won the game for them, said receiver Chris Thomas, who scored the first touchdown.

Thomas said all he did was catch what was thrown at him — the real secret to their success was the Dawg mindset.

"Play hard. Play unselfishly. Every game, no matter what," he said.

MEDDAC is undefeated with nine wins and will be heading to the playoffs. At last year's championship game, they came in undefeated, but lost the game after going into triple overtime.

That won't happen this year, Dubose said.

"Our plan is to go all the way like we did last year," he said. "We'll go again this year, and this time we'll come away with the championship."

2-19 head coach Troy Vaughn said the team needs to work on play efficiency.

Despite their name, they don't have much time to practice, Vaughn said.

The loss, coupled with losing their final two games, will keep them out of the playoffs this year.

At left, MEDDAC Dawgs quarterback Larry Addy takes the ball around the end. Addy's pass to receiver Chris Thomas scored the Dawgs their first touchdown of the game.
Thomas credits the Dawgs' success to their focused mindset. "Play hard. Play unselfishly. Every game, no matter what," he said. Dawgs assistant coach Johnny Dubose said the team aims to overcome difficulties they faced last year to win the championship. The undefeated MEDDAC Dawgs have nine wins this season, and will be heading to the playoffs.

McClure trained for less than two months for the run, but was "very confident" he would easily break the record. Many of McClure's colleagues turned out to cheer him on, which he said helped him stay motivated during the run.

"I had a bit of a chest cold, and so my breathing was different," he said. "It definitely played a role."

McClure's success comes three years after he first considered going for the record, and he credits his drill sergeant with inspiring him.

"When I joined the Army in 2005, I ran two miles in under 10 minutes," he said. "My drill sergeant was impressed and showed me an article about the guy who held the record for the rucksack run. He challenged me to set a new speed record."

McClure said he didn't give much thought to his drill sergeant's challenge until he began running with a Soldier who was training for a marathon and realized that he could keep up.

Because of the high number of record attempts that Guinness receives each year, the company can't guarantee that McClure's record will make it into print. But, his record-breaking days are far from over. After learning of McClure's success, Guinness representatives contacted him with a challenge of competing in a 10,000-meter run.

"Guinness has waved the carrot in front of my face," McClure said. "I'm definitely going to attempt it as soon as possible."

Soldier takes top spot in Oktoberfest 10K race

1st Lt. Philip Sakala finished first overall in the Oktoberfest 10K Cross Country Run at Uchee Creek Campground and Marina Oct. 18 with a time of 34:45.

"I'm pretty happy with my time," Sakala said. "I do a lot of road running, so this was a nice change from that."

Sakala, a former member of the Army World Class Athlete Program, said running in the Army Ten-Miler race in Washington, D.C. Oct. 5, where he took fourth place, prepared him for the Oktoberfest race.

The race route, which began outside the Uchee Creek activity center, featured several areas of difficult terrain. After looping through woods and campgrounds, the second half of the course wound through the Uchee Creek Archery Range and the Sheriff's Department Shooting Range. Both areas are on uneven ground, muddy from Friday night's rain, and are home to many varieties of wildlife, including deer, snakes and hornets.

"With the mud from the rain, the footing was difficult," Sakala said. "I thought I might wipe out at a few points."

None of the runners were seriously injured by any obstacles on the race route, said race worker Jessica Troutman, of the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare, and Recreation Sports and Fitness.

"I think it was a success," she said. "Any opportunity for people to have fun and incorporate fitness is great."

Operation Slow Down promotes road safety

Signs go up to remind residents to slow down during PT hours

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Operation Slow Down, a speed limit policy designed to promote safe driving during morning physical training hours, is in effect across Fort Benning. From 6 to 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, the speed limit on most roads is reduced to 15 mph.

The policy was implemented at Fort Benning about 10 years ago, after two Soldiers were seriously injured in separate incidents while conducting PT on roadways.

"The goal of OSD is to reduce vehicle speeding and Soldier injury during morning PT hours," said Capt. Joseph LaBranche, operations officer for the Directorate of Emergency Services.

Special speed limit signs have been posted informing drivers of the times and reduced speed limits during OSD. On Harmony Church, flashing lights have been installed over the speed limit signs, and are activated during OSD hours to ensure that motorists take note and slow down. The DES has pushed to install more flashing lights on Main Post signs, but has not yet secured the funding to do so, LaBranche said.

Several exceptions to OSD are in place. Areas on Main Post where PT is prohibited, including 10th Mountain Division Road, 82nd Airborne Division Road, Marne Road and portions of Dixie, Sunshine, and Custer roads, are not affected by OSD. On Sand Hill, OSD is in effect from 5:30 to 7:30 a.m., and Kelley Hill is closed to all vehicles from 6:25 to 7:30 a.m.

Violators of OSD face strict penalties, LaBranche said.

"Individuals are subject to armed forces traffic tickets in which the commander will take corrective action," LaBranche said. "For civilians, the traffic ticket will be forwarded to their supervisor for appropriate action. Unaffiliated civilians that may not be informed of the policy will be issued a warning."

LaBranche said that the best way for Fort Benning motorists to contribute to OSD is by driving at a safe speed.

"Drive slowly yourself," he said. "It will remind people that OSD is going on and they'll reduce their own speeds. As long as everybody is paying attention to what time it is in the morning, that will help."

Oktoberfest celebrates food, fun, and all things German

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

German festivities were in full swing at Uchee Creek Campground and Marina Oct.17-19 during Fort Benning's fifth annual Oktoberfest, sponsored by the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation. The event, which highlighted German food and music, included a variety of games, rides, and crafts.

Oktoberfest got off to a rainy start Friday evening, but inclement weather proved no obstacle for some patrons.

"The rain couldn't keep us away," said Col. Doug Flohr, who attended the festival with his wife and son. "This is the first time we've been out here, and we're still having fun."

A ceremonial keg tapping, performed by Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski, German Liaison Officers Lt. Col. Walter Schleef and Sgt. Maj. Georg Hof officially kicked off the festivities Friday night.

Food and drink vendors provided plenty of German fare to fest-goers throughout the weekend. Sauerkraut, bratwurst, potato salad and pretzels were just a few specialties available, as well as a variety of German beers.

"My favorite thing is the food and beer," said Stephanie Haumschild. "Also, it's a great family celebration for everyone."

"It's good!" said Michael Johnson, who sampled a German pretzel served by DFMWR worker Angie Cufaude.

For 8-year-old Scout Hadley, attending her third Oktoberfest, the inflatable rides were the event's highlight.

"There's a lot of cool rides," she said

Sponsor hosts students

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

For 30 years, Eva Aiken has opened her home to visitors from across the globe, places as diverse as Kenya, Israel, Venezuela and Romania. It began when a Swiss family asked her to host a soldier in the International Student Training Detachment, only 12 years after she immigrated to the States from Germany as the young wife of an American Soldier. She agreed and hasn't looked back since.

"You just don't know when to stop," Aiken said. "I started off at first being like a sister, then I became their mom, and now I'm the grandmother. I just can't stop caring for people who need help."

Hosts stay in touch with their students and get together with them every few weeks.

It doesn't have to be anything big, said Aiken, who went to the post Oktoberfest last weekend with some of her students.

"You do as much as you want to, as little as you want to. It's all volunteer," she said. "You invite them to your family affairs, take them out to parks, play cards, have dinner. You don't have to have a big house. You don't have to be rich. It's just being willing to reach out to people."

Soldiers attached to ISTD speak English, although some may bring families with them who don't. On average, they stay for about five months.

It's not a big time commitment, but it makes a difference to them, Aiken said.

"I never forgot how it was when I came," she said. "You want to feel at least somebody is there to contact in case you have a problem or question. When people come, they need to have one person or one family where they can say, 'I'm at home.' This is why you sponsor them."

Finding a home in America kept Capt. Chih-Chieh Chang motivated when he came to America last year for the Infantry Officer Basic Course. Before leaving Tawain, he had Aiken's name and number. When he arrived in Columbus, that was his only link to the community.

"I had no experience being in the United States, no idea what life was like here," said Chang, one of

Counselor advises parents to watch children's Internet use

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Internet brings many benefits — a place where one can chat, learn, shop and surf, said Faith Middle School counselor Gerald Madler. But along with the benefits come the disadvantages — anonymous people, pseudonyms, predators and bullies.

"Anyone can open an account," Madler said. "It's scary to think that the person you are talking to could be lying about who they are. It's even scarier to think there are people out there that would want to hurt anybody."

Because of the anonymity of the Internet, bullies aren't afraid to send people insulting e-mails and predators aren't afraid to lie about their age or location, so it's important parents talk to their children about appropriate and inappropriate Internet use, he said.

Julie Mejia has a daughter in seventh grade and is an advocate of setting Internet guidelines for children.

"The Internet is pretty popular with kids nowadays — we need to keep them safe," she said.

Mejia said monitoring her child's Internet use is key in her child's safety online.

Whether it's restricting her daughter from certain pages including myspace and YouTube, or checking out a Web site before her daughter is allowed to use it, she stays active in keeping up with her child's Internet use.

"Parents need to realize that even though their child is going to an innocent Web site, something not so innocent might pop up," she said. "The ads might look cool to young kids and so they'll click on the ad, not knowing it's anything bad."

Mejia said parents should have "some idea" of what their children are looking at and where they are going online.

Parents should establish rules on what is and isn't allowed, she said, and make sure children understand the rules.

In December 2008, Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) staff will initiate the Survey of Interest (SOI) and volunteer process (VP)for placement opportunities against positions in the Maneuver Center of Excellence (MCOE). Even though there will be several recruitment iterations necessary to fill all anticipated vacancies, the first placement efforts will be dedicated solely to permanent mission employees whose positions will be realigned to the MCOE.

To be considered for placement under this process, all permanent employees must volunteer as no one will be "automatically" reassigned to the MCOE. This process will entail (1) the preparation/update of employee resumes; (2) prepositioning of those resumes in RESUMIX; (3) responding to a formal Survey of Interest (SOI); and, (4) ultimately volunteering for positions under the VP.

Resumes should be created and/or updated in the Resume Builder on the Armyís CPOL Web site located at https://cpolst.belvoir.army.mil/public/resumebuilder/builder/index.jsp and must be submitted to the centralized RESUMIX database. Resumes must be completed and posted in RESUMIX NLT COB Thursday, 15 Jan 09. No mailed, hand carried, digitally transmitted, or faxed resumes will be accepted.

In order to facilitate ease of computer use for those without immediate access, staff members of the Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) have coordinated the use of computer classrooms beginning 14 October 2008 thru 31 December 2008. Computers will be available for resume update during the hours and at the locations indicated below. HR Staff will be on-site during 1400-1600 each day.

Residents of The Villages of Benning

FROM: PINNACLE An American Management Services Company

SUBJECT: Resident Satisfaction Survey

Surveys were hand delivered to your door last week. The survey is part of our performance assessment program and your participation is critical. Residents are being surveyed to identify likes and/or dislikes related to the property management services, the property, and our performance. With your cooperation and candid responses, we can continue to improve our service to you.

The survey is called REACT© and was designed by the nationally recognized real estate consulting firm of CEL & Associates, Inc. The survey will take approximately 10 minutes to complete. Once you have completed the survey, please seal it in the pre-addressed, pre-paid return envelope and mail it immediately to CEL & Associates, Inc.

Only CEL & Associates, Inc. employees will open the return envelopes and they have been instructed not to disclose the responses of any individual survey to us. The survey results are completely confidential and anonymous, so please express your true feelings and thoughts. (The bar code, number and black boxes on the survey and the color-coding on the return envelope only identify your community -- they do not identify you individually in any way.)

If you want to elaborate on a particular issue or would like to be contacted regarding a specific concern, please complete the Comment Card that is provided. Your Comment Card will be forwarded to Pinnacle for review and, if requested, direct response.

It is important that you complete and return the survey within 7-10 days of receipt for your opinions to be included in the tabulation and analysis process.

Thank you for your support and cooperation on this very important project.

Combat dive team suits up for Help the Hooch dive operation

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Eight Soldiers of the combat dive team, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, suited up Saturday for Help the Hooch at the Fourteenth Street bridge in Phenix City. Their mission: run a dive operation while cleaning up the river.

"This is a win-win situation for Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City," said Sgt. 1st Class Stuart Hirsh, NCOIC of the combat dive team. "We get to practice our recovery techniques while Columbus and Phenix City get a cleaner river."

Among the dive team were boat operators, a land crew, a medical technician and divers. Divers found shopping carts, bicycles, cans, a wheel chair, a desk chair and a light cover.

"Water is a precious resource so we should do everything we can to keep it clean," said Spc. Chris Decklemann, boat operator.

After excavating the trash from the water, they tied it to a line from a utility truck where it was lifted to land and thrown away.

This training is good because it includes everything from making a plan and executing it to learning how to work as a team, he said.

On post, the team clears debris from water in ranger training areas. If a Soldier drops equipment in the water, the dive team recovers it.

While on post, the dive team usually covers the same areas — Victory Pond and airborne operations — so the change in scenery was beneficial, Hirsh said.

"At Victory Pond, there is zero visibility. At the Chattahoochee River you can see better, but there is rubble and obstacles because the dive operation area is located under a bridge," he said. "You have to watch out for things like fishing line and fallen trees."

Getting a feel for the Chattahoochee River is good because if there was an actual search and rescue in Columbus or Phenix City, the combat dive team is on call to respond, Hirsh said.

Oktoberfest: 'Just fantastic'

Garrett Ledwick, 15, enjoyed the pugel sticks.

"It's my favorite thing because you get to fight people," he said.

In addition to outdoor rides, the indoor activity center featured a hula-hoop toss, an airbrush tattoo station, crafts and a video game station.

Saturday afternoon, the Top Dog Challenge provided an opportunity for Fort Benning dog owners to show off their canine pals. Dogs and owners competed in the categories of Owner Look Alike, Best Dressed Dog and Best Trick.

Cadet Seth Prosser, of Columbus State University, who entered the contest with his dog Duke, said he was impressed with the quality of the competitors.

"I don't know if we'll win," he said before the Challenge. "The competition's looking pretty tough."

Megan Siosan, whose dog Zeus won first place in the Best Dressed category wearing camouflage and a hat with attached dreadlocks, said that both she and Zeus enjoyed themselves.

"He's pretty good about being dressed up," she said. "We got the hat from people at Petco, who thought it was so funny on him that they bought it for us. The rest of the costume was donated by Zeus's grandmother."

Oktoberfest organizers were pleased with the event's high attendance, said Donna Hyatt, of DFMWR.

"It was just fantastic," she said. "I think everybody was happy."

six students currently sponsored by Aiken. "It was a little bit lonely. I didn't know anybody. My family wasn't here."

Aiken was able to help, he said, especially with "real life" questions about where to shop, local directions and American culture.

"If you think you don't belong somewhere, you won't want to stay there. You'll lock yourself in. You won't explore. You won't make new contacts," Chang said. "I felt like I was in a totally different world I didn't belong to, and then Eva came to bring me home, make me comfortable. She brought me to her house and made me a delicious meal. She made me like a son. That matters. It made me feel like I belong to this place."

Hosting can be great for the sponsors, too. It lets them get to know other countries and cultures without even leaving the state — "the cheapest way to travel," Chang said.

While hosting has allowed Aiken to visit more countries than she ever could have alone, from Korea to Norway, Italy to Singapore, those are unexpected "fringe benefits," she said. The real value of sponsoring is making a difference in someone else's life.

"They're here to learn everything about the Army and America, but where is the real true America? It's at home," she said. "They need contact with American families. That's where the heart of America is. And believe me, it's worth it."

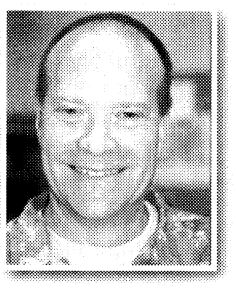
Chaplains are available to listen to Soldiers' concerns

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE SERVICES
Chaplain (Maj.) Garvey

"Chaplain, do you have a minute to talk?" While eating at the PX food court, a Soldier asks for some advice about his marriage and home life.



"Sgt. James" recently returned to Fort Benning from combat and is experiencing difficulty sleeping at night. His mind keeps taking him back to a traumatic experience where an IED ripped through his vehicle, pieces of metal pierced his body and left one friend an amputee and another one deceased.

He struggles with why he was spared significant injury. Each night becomes a battle to sleep. Every time he closes his eyes he can hear the blast, see the blood and feels "the rush" through his body.

To help him relax he drinks alcohol until his anxiety subsides. The amount of alcohol has been increasing during the last few months and several people have noticed. It has increased to the point his supervisor smelled alcohol on his breath at PT. His wife has complained that he does not spend time with her and the children and instead spends the time drinking most evenings and weekends.

In the conversation, James mentions losing his temper with his wife and children, resulting in pushing his wife and yelling names at his children.

He admits he feels safer at work with his buddies and feels accepted by them. He often struggles to go home for the evenings and weekends fearful of hurting his family and wondering what is going on with him. He knows he will be back in Iraq in a year and wonders how he could return to combat as quickly as possible.

He fears he may be in trouble and disciplined by his supervisor for being under the influence of alcohol in formation. And if social work services finds out about his abusive behavior toward his family they may get involved with his personal life. If only things could be simpler again like it was downrange.

This Soldier recognized that he needed to talk with someone. He was reluctant to speak with a counselor. He had fears of speaking about what really happened downrange, about his future in the military if he said anything and how his wife would look at him. But he finally agreed to see a chaplain with her. He is now making that journey home with a little help.

If you are experiencing problems from downrange, having difficulty adjusting to being home, or have some relationship stress, consider talking to one of our pastoral counselors.

To make an appointment, call 706-545-1760 or go to the center at 2606 Dixie Road, located in Soldiers' Plaza.

1ST BATTALION, 329TH INFANTRY REGIMENT
Chaplain (Capt.) Cliff Vicars

Not long ago I stood and watched a formation of young men as they attempted to march in step with their drill sergeant's cadence.

This particular company of Soldiers had been in the Army less than two weeks, and their level of drill and ceremony accuracy attested to the fact.

During the march, the drill sergeant kept up his cadence and acted as though everyone was an old hand at the Soldiering business.

While the sight was comical, it was also a reminder of how all Soldiers seem to begin their Army journey; feebly attempting to stay in step while aware of being out of step.

Soldiers who are new to drill and ceremony give us a glimpse of an important lesson. Staying in step isn't always easy, but if we keep at it, things are bound to improve.

The New Testament offers sound advice in Galatians 6:1, "Brothers, if someone is caught in any wrongdoing, you who are spiritual should restore such a person with a gentle spirit, watching out for yourselves so you won't be tempted also."

Just as the drill sergeant is responsible for teaching his young charges to stay in step, we all have a moral responsibility to help each other along in life.

If we find someone out of step morally, it behooves us to assist him in finding his way back to the cadence.

When I saw the new Soldiers doing their best to follow the instructions of their drill sergeant, it reminded me of the Soldiers who had graduated about three weeks earlier.

During their march across the field, with their family and friends looking on, not a Soldier was out of step.

Countless hours of being marched from one place to the other had made these young men become expert at listening to the sound of cadence and keeping in step with one another.

The truth is it doesn't matter how a company of Soldiers looks during their first few days of drill and ceremony. How Soldiers look as they march across the parade field during graduation matters much more.

On that day, being in step is a testimony to how they have spent their time during the weeks prior.

A young believer might not be much of a spiritual example, but given time, effort and encouragement, they will grow into it.

Trick or treat hours on post will be from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 31

It's a common misconception that Jack Frost causes trees to turn colors, according to www.gastateparks.org. Actually, freezing temperatures can shorten the length of time that trees are most vibrant. Experts predict this will be a great season for color, although hurricane winds have blown many leaves down prematurely. During spring and summer, leaves serve as food factories for trees. This process, called photosynthesis, takes place in the tiny leaf cells that give leaves their green color. These chlorophyll bodies make food by combining carbon taken from the air with hydrogen and minerals found in water gathered by roots. As the days shorten and the nights get cooler, a chemical clock kicks in and releases a hormone that slows the sap flow to each leaf. Eventually, the leaf is sealed off from the branch and the green chlorophyll fades away to reveal other pigments — colors that have been there all along.

Colorful landscapes part of Pine Mountain experience

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Sue Ulibarri

Early last week, as I set off for my usual morning commute, I had a revelation — I needed a sweater. For someone who sports Alaska plates on a gas-guzzling SUV, dark and cold is a good thing, no matter how meek the steps may be toward old man winter. Colder and darker days mean Mother Nature will soon dot the landscape with hues of red, amber and gold, setting in place my favorite seasonal pastime — leaf watching.

OK, so we may not have the same intensity of the northeast when it comes to fall foliage, but some of Georgia's hardwoods do a rather amazing job at displaying the fall palate.

The Georgia Department of Natural Resources said it's OK to start "leaf peeping" at state parks and historical sites. There are three within a couple hours' drive from Columbus — Franklin D. Roosevelt, High Falls and Roosevelt's Little White House state parks.

You won't get much of a show just driving through these areas. You'll need to lace up the hiking boots and hit the trail to see any real color.

We did a quick hike two weeks ago on Pine Mountain's trail, and within a few feet, we saw leaves that made our golden retriever look dull. The trail was speckled with leaves of deep, rich red and amber gold.

Collecting fall leaves makes for a fun, healthy and inexpensive family activity. We've collected leaves for years from all the different places we've lived, pressed and framed them with a simple title of species and location — Sugar Maple, Fort Lewis, Wash. It's one of the sure-fire ways I can get my kids to open a book, even if it's only to press a perfect little orange leaf they've found stuck to their shoe. We're living and learning together and preserving those memories on our walls with great, natural art that packs a lot of family nostalgia.

The Georgia State Parks Web site, www.gastateparks.org/leafwatch/, lists some of the best places to see fall colors. It also provides weekly updates on leaf conditions at each park, so visitors won't venture out too early or too late, and if reading isn't believing, the Web site also has a live Web cam.

The Pine Mountain Trail, located in FDR State Park, offers views of distant ridges. With connector trails, there are more than 40 miles of hiking trails.

Gardening enthusiasts in the Fort Benning area will have many educational programs to attend in upcoming weeks.

As part of its Saturday Seminar program, Columbus Botanical Garden presents Centerpieces! at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 15. Participants will watch demonstrations of how to build a variety of centerpieces, and will construct their own centerpiece to take home. The cost is $20 for members and $25 for nonmembers. For more information, or to register for a seminar, call 706-327-8400, or send an e-mail to watchyourgardengrow@yahoo.com.

Speakers from Horticulture Magazine will discuss techniques for gardening in small spaces at a symposium at Callaway Gardens Sunday. The symposium is from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m., and will showcase expert gardeners, designers, and nursery owners from across the country.

"We're excited to have these speakers here," said spokesperson Rachel Crumbley. "It's great to be able to add a fall event to our calendar, and being able to partner with such a high level publication is a real treat."

Participants arriving Saturday will take a complementary private tour of Callaway Gardens led by David Chambers, manager of Mr. Cason's Vegetable Garden, and Hank Bruno, Callaway Gardens director of horticulture. The tour will begin at 3:30 p.m. and will be an exciting way to learn about the gardens from professionals in the field, Crumbley said.

Callaway Gardens is located in Pine Mountain, 30 minutes north of Columbus. Symposium registration fees are $128 for members of Callaway Gardens and readers of Horticulture Magazine, and $138 for nonmembers. Space is limited to 150 participants. For more information, or to register for the symposium, call 877-436-7764 or visit www.hortprograms.com.

Hills and Dales Estate in Lagrange presents Autumn Kaleidoscope Nov. 1 at 10 a. m. Executive director Carleton Wood will discuss topics relating to local fall color plants, including how plants develop fall color. Participants will receive an informational handout. The cost is $10, free for annual pass holders. To register, call 706-882-3242, or visit www.hillsanddalesestate.org for a printable workshop registration form.

OPENING TODAY

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 3: SENIOR YEAR

This third film in the High School Musical series follows teens Troy and Gabriella through the trials of their senior year. Faced with the prospect of separation upon departing for college, they stage an elaborate spring muscial reflecting their experiences, hopes and fears. The entire Wildcat crew joins in the muscial fun.

SAW V

In the fifth installment of this horror series, Hoffman finds himself the last survivor left to carry on the Jigsaw legacy. Or is he? When Hoffman's secret is threatened, he must go on the hunt to eliminate any remaining loose ends.

Saw V stars Laura Gordon, Tobin Bell, Scott Patterson and Costas Mandylor. It is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture, language and nudity.

NOW SHOWING

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic anti-hero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld. As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence including shooting sequences, drug content, sexuality and language.

QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911 distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown.

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

Entering the apartment unit, they find an old woman in a nightgown, standing alone in the dark. She is covered in blood, her breathing erratic and raspy, but when a policeman approaches to help her, she attacks with her teeth.

The group subdues the woman and tries to get help for the injured policeman, but when they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Although ostensibly his allies, Ferris questions how far he can really trust these men without putting his entire operation — and his life — on the line.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens.

Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

BLINDNESS

When a sudden plague of blindness devastates a city, a small group of the afflicted band together to triumphantly overcome the horrific conditions of their imposed quarantine.

Blindness is a thriller starring Don McKellar, Julianne Moore, Mark Ruffalo and Sandra Oh. It is rated R for violence including sexual assaults, language, sexuality and nudity.

AN AMERICAN CAROL

A cynical, Anti-American "Hollywood" filmmaker sets out on a crusade to abolish the 4th of July holiday. He is visited by three spirits who take him on a journey in an attempt to show him the true meaning of America. An American Carol is stars Kevin Farley, Kelsey Grammer, Jon Voight, Trace Adkins, James Woods, and Leslie Nielsen.

It is rated PG-13 for rude and irreverent content, and for language and drug material.

NICK & NORAH'S INFINITE PLAYLIST

Nick frequents New York's indie rock scene nursing a broken heart and playing the bass with his queercore band, The Jerk Offs. Norah is questioning pretty much all of her assumptions about the world. Though they have nothing in common except for their taste in music, their chance encounter leads to an all-night quest to find a legendary band's secret show and ends up becoming a first date that could change both their lives.

Nick & Norah's Infinite Playlist is a comedy starring Michael Cera and Kat Dennings. It is rated PG-13 for mature thematic material including teen drinking, sexuality, language and crude behavior.

BEVERLY HILLS CHIHUAHUA

A pampered Beverly Hills chihuahua named Chloe finds herself accidentally lost in the mean streets of Mexico without a day spa or Rodeo Drive boutique anywhere in sight.

Now alone for the first time in her spoiled life, she must rely on some unexpected new friends — including a street-hardened German Shepherd named Delgado and an amorous pup named Papi — to lend her a paw on their journey back home.

HOW TO LOSE FRIENDS AND ALIENATE PEOPLE

Sidney Young, a bumbling, British celebrity journalist, is hired by an upscale magazine in New York City. Sidney enters high society and burns bridges with bosses, peers and superstars. After disrupting a black-tie affair, he catches the attention of Clayton Harding, editor of Sharp, and accepts a job with the magazine in New York City. Clayton warns Sidney that he'd better charm everyone he can.

Instead, Sidney instantly insults fellow writer Alison Olsen and upsets his boss. His saving graces: a rising, sexy starlet who develops an odd affection for him, and Alison, whose friendship with him might be the only thing saving Sidney from torpedoing his career.

How to lose friends stars Kirsten Dunst, Simon Pegg, Jeff Bridges, Danny Huston and Gillian Anderson. It is rated R for language, nudity and drug material.

The March of Dimes is saving babies...

After the March of Dimes defeated polio in the 1950s, we turned our attention to preventing birth defects and other threats to infant health. Today, we're fighting premature birth — the leading cause of newborn death. Half a million babies are born too soon every year. We're working to find out why ... and how premature birth can be prevented.

Top gunner fires Javelin

$80K missile takes 17 seconds to target

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Once every two weeks, Soldiers taking the Javelin Gunnery Course witness a live-fire demonstration, the most recent one Oct. 23 on Coolidge Left Range.

There's only one shot, said senior instructor Sgt. 1st Class Chris Smith, B Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, and it's fired by the best student in the class: the top gunner.

That's because of the large price tag that goes with the demonstration — more than $80,000.

"It's not like going to get a bucket of bullets," Smith said.

Wireless radios save money, energy

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Fort Benning is saving money with wireless radios — as much as $150,000 annually, said Vernon Duck, post energy manager.

The radios control energy-using devices like PT lights, air conditioning and a chiller plant. By making sure the devices are turned on and off at the appropriate time, the radios avoid wasting energy, a cost savings for the installation, Duck said.

"We spend an enormous amount of money on energy here," he said. "When you start saving in excess of 30 to 40 percent, it doesn't take long for those pennies to start adding up into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The more money we save on our utilities out here, the more money we can spend on facilities to make living conditions for our Soldiers better."

Before purchasing the radios, the installation was using an "antiquated" FM system, Duck said. The Directorate of Public Works started buying the radios from AIC Wireless last year to replace the older system as a preventive measure.

Annual symposium identifies issues

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Michelle L. Gordon

More than 75 issues affecting the Fort Benning community were discussed by delegates at the annual Army Family Action Plan Symposium, which was held Oct. 22-24.

At the three-day conference, volunteers from around the installation were divided into seven working groups to discuss issues submitted throughout the year. The issues were then prioritized and the top three from each group were briefed to Fort Benning Commanding General Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski at the conclusion of the conference.

"Each group looked at between 15 and 20 issues submitted by the community," said Sarah Hertig, 75th Ranger Regiment Family Readiness Assistant and AFAP volunteer. "So even though only three from each group were briefed, all of the issues were addressed, discussed and will be acted on by the command group."

One of the top issues presented this year was improving deployment cycle support for Reserve Component Soldiers. The scope of the issue stated that reserve Soldiers are at risk for suicides, domestic violence and undisclosed mental issues because they are released from active-duty status immediately upon returning home. The work group recommended extending active-duty status to 60 days for reintegration purposes.

Wojdakowski said this is a top initiative with the Chief of Staff of the Army and it will definitely be an issue Fort Benning sends forward for further action by the Department of the Army.

"Ten years ago, reserve component and National Guard Soldiers were considered the 'strategic reserve of the Army,'" he said. "They are not that anymore. They are an operational force. They are routinely deployed alongside active-component Soldiers and we can't afford to desert those Soldiers when they return home after serving 12 to 14 months in Iraq."

In addition to deployment support, improving the Fort Benning medical system was also at the top of the list. Citing already slow wait-times and limited appointment availability, the scope of the issue stated the new hospital would not adequately meet the needs of Fort Benning's projected population growth. The group recommended increasing the availability of healthcare in anticipation of the expanding post needs due to the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

"We got it," said Wojdakowski. "The last thing I, or anyone in this command, wants to do is build a hospital that is already too

3rd review looks at Soldier feedback

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Soldier Systems Review 3, hosted by the U.S. Infantry Center at Fort Benning Oct. 16, brought together general officers and representatives from across the Army for a discussion on ways of improving Soldier systems. The event, co-chaired by Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski and Program Executive Officer Soldier Brig. Gen. Mark Brown, focused on incorporating Soldier feedback into proposed improvements.

This was the third SSR held in 18 months, and its focus differed from that of previous SSRs.

"The focus was really on looking at user feedback," said Dave Libersat, Soldier Systems Branch deputy.

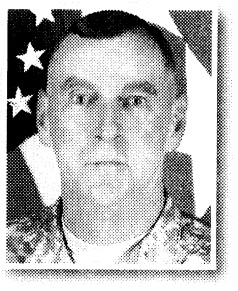
COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Battlefield success comes from mastering basics

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

The Global War on Terrorism continues to challenge the Infantry Center to produce the best Soldiers and Infantrymen in the world. To accomplish this mission we infuse Soldiers and Infantrymen with basic combat skills that make us the premier fighting force in the world. We do this by enforcing accountability, improving basic rifle marksmanship and combat qualification, conducting live-fire training, implementing battlefield first responder training, and teaching modern Army combatives. These areas prepare Soldiers to be ready to close with and destroy the enemy by fire, movement, and close combat.



Battlefield success often depends on individual accountability — this means Soldiers are responsible for their own actions. Our new rifle marksmanship program helps instill this. Soldiers learn to treat every weapon as if it is loaded. Soldiers never aim at anything they don't intend to engage, they keep their finger off the trigger until ready to engage, and they maintain situational awareness at all times — that is, they know what is in front, to the left and right of, and beyond their target before engaging.

The fight we face today can be a close fight, so the new rifle marksmanship program trains Soldiers to quickly identify, engage, and neutralize enemy forces at close range. We are also developing a new combat qualification to better train Soldiers in these tasks. Targets do not go down on the first hit. This trains the Soldier to engage the enemy until he no longer poses a threat.

To test the confidence and competence of our Soldiers, dummy rounds are used to force malfunctions during qualification. Soldiers will also make decisions on when to reload and move from position to position. These challenges mirror combat conditions and help us train Soldiers to be lethal.

Soldiers also learn they are accountable for the decisions they make during live fire exercises. During these exercises Soldiers choose their movement techniques and are responsible for the consequences of their decisions. If they choose a poor movement technique or firing position, realistic corrective training will be used to reinforce a better choice.

We also achieve success on the battlefield by treating our casualties quickly, effectively, and safely. We have incorporated first responder training and combat lifesaver certification into the training of all new Soldiers. Now, every graduating Soldier will have the skills to provide lifesaving treatment to those injured, thus dramatically increasing casualty survival rates in combat.

On occasion, we face a close fight in controlled spaces. We engage the enemy house to house and room to room. At this close range magazine changes and weapon malfunctions may mean the difference between life and death. This means we must prepare our Soldiers to lethally engage the enemy even when their weapon systems become inoperable, or when the weapon cannot be used safely and effectively in a fight. We do this by providing modern Army combatives training to Soldiers and graduate them with Level 1 certification and the confidence to win in combat.

We achieve success on the battlefield because our Soldiers are masters of the basic combat skills of our profession. Our ability to close with and destroy the enemy in any situation will make us successful in the Global War on Terrorism.

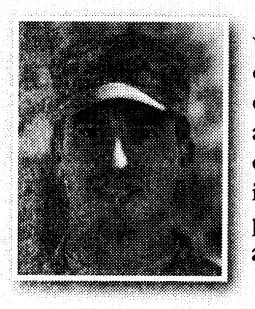
OPINION

VARIOUS VOICES

Why should you vote?

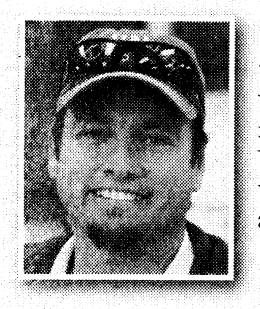
It affects how the country is going to turn out. It affects everyone, whether it's the middle class, the rich or you own your own business. I think it is important, no matter where you come from or what job title you have.

— Pfc. Tashina Jones
3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team



Because that's the ideal America was founded on — that we can choose our leadership. I figure I can do my part. I already voted by absentee ballot. It's only one vote out of however many million, but it's important to take part in the process. Plus, that way if I get mad, at least I can say I tried.

— 2nd Lt. Michael Goodman
2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment

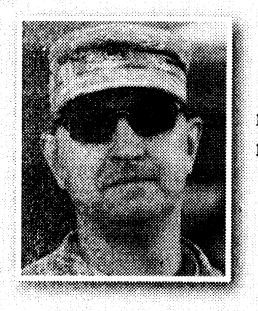


I absolutely think it's important to vote. It's a right given to us, and we should exercise that right, and if we don't, we shouldn't complain. Your vote definitely does count and will affect the outcome, one way or another.

— Retired Chief Warrant Officer Erik Tavares
Cataula, Ga.

I think every vote, especially in this election, is going to count. I don't see how people can go out and have an opinion if they don't cast a ballot. It's even just the participation in the process. That's how the Constitution is set up: by the people, for the people.

— Retired Sgt. 1st Class Rebecca Robinson
Richland, Ga.



Because of policies in the past. If no one votes, no one has the say, and no change happens.

— Sgt. Julius McKenzie
2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

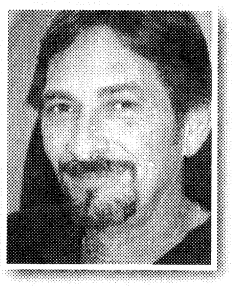
What will your future hold?

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler



Tuesday Americans will be asked to cast their vote for the next president of the United States, along with many other important local political offices.

Regardless of the candidate chosen to fill the office of the president and commander in chief, those who are served — the people, will decide this election.

So, how important is each vote? Just ask the people from the state of Florida who voted in the last presidential election. I am sure most of us remember that chain of events.

I have heard many say they are not sure just how much one vote counts, but after coming from a small community in north Georgia, I have witnessed political races for local offices won and lost by just a few votes, so I know first-hand that every vote truly does count.

Voting is just one of several very fundamental rights we Americans sometimes take for granted, but shouldn't.

Why? Because our elected officials are responsible for our future, and I believe we all want to be involved in deciding our collective future.

A sergeant major I once worked for while on active duty told me a theory about how things get done in the world. Rather than recite the entire theory, I will just summarize it by saying — those who vote will elect the person who makes the policies for everyone — think about it.

So, in a manner of speaking, those who vote will decide the future for those who choose not to vote.

I would much rather have a voice in my future than leave it all to chance or to those who have drastic differences in the direction I see my future going. My voice is my vote.

Gas prices, medical care, the economy, taxes and a vast array of other issues are just a few of the common items we ask our elected officials to make decisions on and the only way your voice can be heard is by going to the ballot booth or voting by absentee ballot.

My voice is not only one voice in the upcoming elections, but coupled with the many other voices — these are the voices that will be heard, and they are the voices that will help shape our future.

If you want your voice to be heard, get out and vote, otherwise those who voted may be making the policy and rules, through their vote, for your future.

Soldiers welcome new commander

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Lt. Col. Richard Unda assumed command of the 1st Battalion, 329th Infantry Regiment, from Maj. Michael Miller during a change of command ceremony at the battalion's headquarters on Sand Hill Oct. 22.

Col. Daniel Kessler, commander of the 198th Infantry Brigade, presided over the ceremony.

"In an Army loaded with talent, we are fortunate to welcome Lt. Col. Unda," he said.

Before coming to Fort Benning, Unda served as commander of the 1st Battalion (Training and Support), 334th Infantry Regiment, and resided in northern Illinois. In the course of his military career, Unda deployed in support of operations Desert Storm, Joint Guard, and Iraqi Freedom. He was called to active duty to assume his new position at Fort Benning. Unda, a native of Columbus, received his commission from the University of Georgia ROTC program in 1986, and spent his first military assignment at Fort Benning with the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment.

Unda's willingness to relocate with just four weeks' notice epitomizes Army values of duty, selfless service and loyalty, Kessler said.

"His personal sacrifice provides an excellent example for us all to emulate," he said.

Outgoing commander Miller said he and his Soldiers are "ready and willing" to follow Unda's leadership.

"I am deeply honored and humbled to be standing here today as the new commander of an Infantry training unit," Unda said.

He emphasized the importance of strong leadership in training units and outlined his commitment to providing his Soldiers with quality leadership.

"I will provide you with genuine caring leadership, the type of leadership that will allow you to make the decisions you need to make to be responsible and to be successful," he said. "In return, I will demand tough leadership from you."

Unda described his goals for the unit, saying they could be summed up in single phrase.

"Be successful," he said. "Simply stated, there will be no second priorities, as I will not allow anything to interfere with our training."

Javelin: Weighs 50 pounds, will defeat bunkers

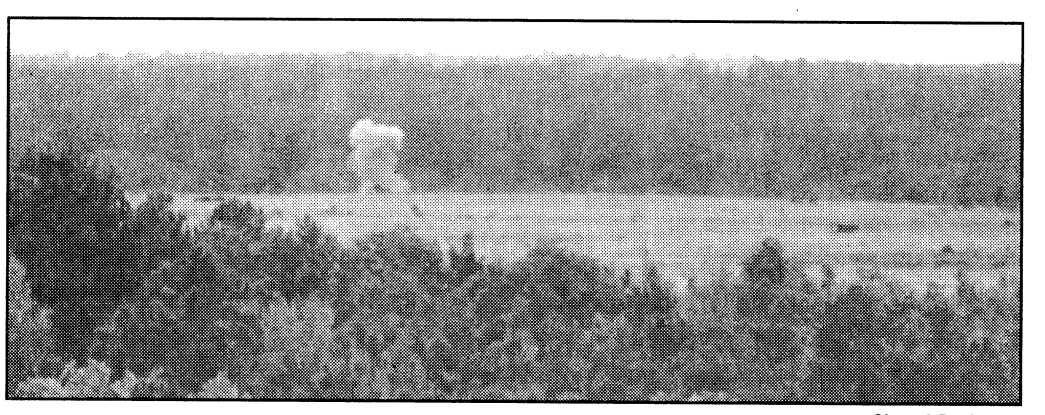
More than a thousand students from units across the Army attend the two-week course yearly. Soldiers become proficient in the Javelin weapon system through hands-on training and discussion classes, learning to shoot from a standing supported, sitting, kneeling or prone position. Many return to their units to train fellow Soldiers in the Javelin system.

"What we do is we take a guy from knowing nothing to being an expert like this gunner here," said Smith, pointing out top gunner Sgt. James Cuhn. "They learn the skills leading up to actually firing a live missile. This just shows them exactly what's going to happen once they pull the fire trigger and the capabilities of the round."

Firing that round is an honor for the top gunner, he said.

"I'm definitely excited. I get to fire $80,000 downrange and blow something up — always a good time," said Cuhn, B Company, 2nd Battalion, 121st Infantry Regiment, who will return to his unit in Newnan, Ga., as the team leader of a heavy weapon squad.



Cheryl Rodewig

After top gunner Sgt. James Cuhn fired the Javelin, it took 17 seconds to hit the target 1,800 meters away.

Cuhn said the training was timely, because he will deploy to Afghanistan next year.

"Fire-and-forget" weapons like the 50-pound, portable Javelin, which has no recoil and can accurately lock onto a target 2,000 meters away, are the best for use in combat, he said.

From the time the trigger is pulled, the missile takes 17 seconds to reach its destination.

It can wipe out almost anything, from helicopters to tanks, and is especially useful in bunker defeating, said Capt. Keithner Tucker, company commander, but the gunner must know how to compensate for distance, wind and other factors to successfully hit the target.

It's all about vision and precision, he said.

"Today is actually a good example with the overcast. You don't have the clear skies. You have the wind coming in from right to left. (Cuhn) has a two-to-three second window where he needs to lock it in and it's gone, so he has to determine all those factors," Tucker said. "Especially when you're talking about ... firing in combat, he's not going to have that much time before the enemy gets eyes on him. He needs to be precise. This isn't something he needs to be procrastinating on."

Cuhn didn't waste time at the live fire. After locking on the target, old tank parts roughly 1,800 meters downrange, he released the missile.

"My heart was racing just waiting for the go ahead, trying to keep from shaking and keep it locked on the target," Cuhn said. "It was a good feeling to see the impact, especially when it hit what it was supposed to hit."

The students graduated from the course Monday. B Company, which teaches more than 25 classes annually on post and off post through mobile training teams, will begin its second class of the fiscal year Monday.

"In SSR 1, we looked at whether equipment was meeting requirements and performing to Soldiers' expectations, as well as its funding and fielding status. In SSR 2, we focused on equipping Soldiers based on the Army Force Generation schedule. This time, we asked ourselves how we are doing in equipping Soldiers to meet their mission needs and needs in combat. To accomplish this, we surveyed units returning from deployment."

The purpose of SSRs, Libersat said, is to help the Army prioritize necessary capabilities so that it can request appropriate funding.

"Our leadership has to make some tough choices," he said. "We don't have the money to do everything, so we have to identify what the most important things are, and that's where the SSR helps us."

Senior Army participants in SSR3 will submit a memorandum outlining the main points of SSR 3 to the Army Chief of Staff. The memorandum will aid officials in making decisions concerning prioritization of Soldier capability funding.

The number one priority will be accelerating the process of getting Soldiers into a communications network, Libersat said.

In keeping with the emphasis on communication, SSR 3 had joint participation for the first time from members of the U.S. Air Force and U.S. Marine Corps.

Several changes to Soldier equipment and training will be implemented as a result of SSR 3 discussions, some of which are already affecting Soldiers. The Army will work more closely with its labs and with industry to develop more durable, effective equipment. Equipping strategies will be shifted to focus on providing proper equipment to units about to deploy, and Soldiers at training bases will be given opportunities to work with new systems before arriving at their organizations.

"We want to eventually start fielding more equipment to training bases such as NCO and officer professional development courses," Libersat said. "A new lieutenant arriving at his first unit has enough to worry about without having to work with a system he's never learned."

small to meet the needs of Fort Benning 2012 and we will not quit until we have the appropriate size hospital."

Issues such as reserve Soldier reintegration and hospital size can not be addressed on a local level, so they will be forwarded to the Training and Doctrine Command AFAP conference and ultimately to the Department of the Army. However, issues such as providing evening child care at Smith Fitness Center and establishing an on post department of motor vehicles office will be worked and discussed by on post agencies over the next few months.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of AFAP. Since its inception, thousands of issues have been raised and more than 600 of them were elevated to the Department of the Army level. Hertig has volunteered with AFAP for the last seven years and she said she continues to get involved despite the workload because she understands the importance of the program.

"I know the power of AFAP," she said. "It allows Soldiers and families to have their voices heard by leadership. It's a mechanism of change and a great way for the Army community to have a say in what their Army looks like."

Radios: Save $$$, energy

"If (the system) failed completely, all these ball field lights, your running track lights, your school crossing lights, they would fail to the 'on' position, which means the lights would be on all the time. That's the default."

The radios were purchased just in time, he said. The older system failed just a few months after the new one was in place.

The radios, which have a communication range of more than six miles, can link together to send data from one to another. They can control lights on Sand Hill, Main Post and Kelley Hill. Harmony Church will be included in the coverage as that area develops with the incoming Armor School.

Not only do the radios save the installation money, but they also help the Army with its commitment to "go green" by limiting the amount of greenhouse gases released into the air, Duck said.

Fort Benning has always been a leader in environmental responsibility, he said.

"We still consume the least amount of energy for an installation over 10 million square feet in the Southeastern region, and that's good," Duck said. "But we're always looking for ways to save money — save energy, save money."

The wireless radios, first used by a military installation on Fort Benning, now have been adopted by other installations, including Charleston Air Force Base, S.C., Fort Custer, Mich., and the Marine Corps Logistic Base in Albany, Ga.

"The kind of people who actually make the Ranger Challenge team aren't just athletes. They're the guys who have the proper Army mentality ... It's not just a personal struggle. It's about being a team."

— Catlan Sardina

Cadet Benjamin Vonderheide, a student at Troy University in Alabama, plans his next move while watching a teammate tackle one of more than 20 obstacles on the Warrior Training Center confidence course Friday during the annual Ranger Challenge competition. The Ranger Challenge was the largest one in the history of cadet command, said Lt. Col. Mark Ridley, military science professor at Columbus State University and liaison for the event. The competition included 42 teams of nine students and one alternate — 420 cadets in all.

Ranger Challenge teaches teamwork

History was made last weekend on Fort Benning during the largest ROTC Ranger Challenge since its inception. Forty-two teams — double the number from last year — represented universities from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Puerto Rico.

"This is the largest Ranger Challenge competition in the history of cadet command," said Lt. Col. Mark Ridley, military science professor at Columbus State University. "What better place to bring the Ranger Challenge than the home of the Ranger Training Brigade?"

The cadets began the challenge in the rain Friday morning with a two-mile road march. They also took on the water confidence course at Victory Pond, the Malvesti Obstacle Course, the Army Physical Fitness Test, the one-rope bridge, the Warrior Training Center confidence course, land navigation and weapons firing and disassembly.

It helps them learn "what Ranger training is all about," Ridley said. "It's designed to build a leader. It's designed to challenge. It's designed to (help you) overcome fear. When they go back to their campus and they're wearing that Ranger Challenge Tab on their uniforms, that's something to be proud of."

Cadets volunteer to participate in the competition, which not only shows them a different aspect of Army life but can also help recruit new cadets, Ridley said.

This is something most college students won't experience in a lifetime, he said.

The cadets returned to their schools this week having conquered a variety of challenges. For Sharon Wheelock, a junior at the University of Alabama, the biggest challenge was the "Dirty Name," one of more than 20 obstacles on the WTC confidence course.

"You had to jump and flip yourself over the (log)," Wheelock said. "We would just end up hitting it and falling off."

Even though she and her teammates were tired, they pushed through the course together, she said.

Many teams train during the school year and even the summer for the annual event. Selection for the Ranger Challenge team is often competitive.

"The kind of people who actually make the Ranger Challenge team aren't just athletes," said Catlan Sardina, team captain for Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach, Fla., which placed ninth in the competition.

"They're the guys who have the proper Army mentality," he said. "It really comes down to the fact that these guys do not care if they're hurt. We aspire to be the best at everything we do. There is a group of guys here willing to drive through any pain, anything at all, in order to be the best at what they do. It's not just a personal struggle. It's about being a team."

The competition ended Sunday morning with a six-mile road march. The Florida Institute of Technology placed first overall. Teams were also divided into tiers according to program size. For its tier, Columbus State University placed second.

Cadets from the University of Mississippi secure their one-rope bridge by pulling on the rope before crossing the bridge Friday.

Christopher D'Alessandro, a freshman at the University of Georgia, and Andrew Murphree, a senior, exit "The Tunnel."

Aaron Boyer, Ryan Quinn and Anthony Sabatini, cadets from the University of Florida, help Tad Schnaufer reach the next level of "The Skyscraper." Completing the obstacles on the Warrior Training Center confidence course was a timed event. The obstacles included monkey bars, tunnels, balance beams and more — covering what cadets have to do with obstacles like "Swing Stop Jump," to what they have to be, "The Tarzan."

Airborne names Black Hat of Year

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Staff Sgt. Brian Ross was presented with an Army Commendation Medal for winning the Black Hat of the Year competition during a ceremony at Marshall Auditorium Oct. 24. Tech. Sgt. Kevin Lynch and Staff Sgt. William Pittman, first and second runners-up, were presented with Army Achievement Medals. The Black Hat is the headgear worn by Army Airborne instructors to distinguish them from other Soldiers and units.

Ross competed against six other Soldiers in a monthlong competition that tested participants' expertise in all aspects of Airborne training.

"It was a pretty hard competition," he said.

Soldiers were required to have passed the six week Black Hat certification course in order to be eligible, and to have been certified for at least six months prior to the event.

The competition consisted of six events: knowledge of the Black Hat formal instruction book, an Airborne physical fitness test, knowledge of basic Airborne course standard operating procedures, practical work in aircraft, a jumpmaster personnel inspection, and ability to conduct sustained Airborne training. Each event was graded by a master trainer and supervised by Command Sgt. Maj. Michael Catterton.

"The formal instruction was the hardest part of the competition," Ross said. "We had to memorize about six pages of lessons, and recite them word for word, without mistakes, in front of a lot of people. I'm not really that good with public speaking, so it was difficult."

Despite the challenges he faced, Ross earned the highest scores, winning the competition.

"I feel pretty good, and I'm proud that I won it," he said.

Ross has no plans to slow down just yet. He is going to continue his Airborne training, he said, and has set more goals for the future.

"I'd like to become a master trainer at Airborne school," he said, "and also earn a Master Parachutist Badge."

REWARD

A reward of $2,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for armed robbery of a Soldier on Sept. 8 behind the Kelley Hill Shoppette, Building 9177.

The person is described as an African-American male, approximately 6 feet tall and 230 pounds with an athletic build, round face, clean shaven. He was wearing a black do-rag, white baggy T-shirt, black shorts, and black sneakers.

Anyone having knowledge of the incident, but not wishing to be identified, will be briefed on available options for maintaining their confidentiality and are encouraged to call the Fort Benning CID Office at 706-545-7905 or the Military Police desk at 706-545-5222. The reward offer expires Sept. 18, 2009.

ELECTION DAY

Employees may be excused without charge to leave or loss of pay for up to three hours immediately after the polls open or immediately before they close.

Generally where the polls are not open at least three hours before or after an employee's regular work hours, an activity may grant a limited amount of excused absence that will permit the employee to report for work three hours after the polls open or leave from work three hours before they close, whichever requires the lesser amount of time off.

For example, if an employee is scheduled to work from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and the employee's polling place is open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., the employee should not be granted excused absence for voting since the employee would still have at least three hours after the end of the work day to vote. However, if the employee is scheduled to work from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., the employee may be granted one-half hour of excused absence from 4 to 4:30 p.m., if requested.

For more information, call your human resource specialist.

LENDING CLOSET MOVES

Army Community Service's Relocation Readiness and Lending Closet has moved. It is now located in Building 2621 at Soldiers' Plaza. For more information, call 706-545-0403.

CUSTOMER EVALUATION SYSTEM

It's easy to rate the services you receive from organizations on Fort Benning or anywhere in the world via the Interactive Customer Evaluation system.

Log onto the ICE Web site at http://ice.disa.mil from any computer, pick out the installation and service of interest and complete the online customer comment card, which will be sent for action directly to the organization rated. Those who leave their contact information will receive a response from the organization. ICE kiosks and terminals are located in customer service areas around Fort Benning or comments can be submitted from any computer using the Web site.

ID CARD OFFICE GOES TO APPOINTMENTS ONLY

Effective Saturday, the post ID card section will operate on an appointment only basis to serve each customer in 10 minutes. There will also be same day appointments available for people with emergencies, including lost or stolen ID cards or an emergency medical situation. For appointments, call 706-545-4068.

MCOE COMMUNITY UPDATES

The public is invited to attend the Maneuver Center of Excellence community update the first Tuesday of each month at 3 p.m., Classroom 6, in Infantry Hall, on Fort Benning.

The community update is an effort to educate the public on the latest news, timeliness, milestones, and progress being made as Fort Benning makes the historic transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence. For more information, call 706-545-4729.

AMMUNITION SUPPLY POINT CLOSURE

The Fort Benning Ammunition Supply Point will close for quarterly inventory Nov. 6-10. However, the ASP will not re-open until 8 a.m. Nov. 12 because of the Veterans Day holiday. To prevent training stoppages, all requests for ammunition and explosives should be submitted in sufficient time on a DA Form 581. Pickup and turn-in dates will be scheduled around the closure dates. Emergency issues during the inventory period must have G3 and G4 approval. Storage time in the Vehicle Holding Area will be extended accordingly. For more information, call Bill Floyd at 706-544-6015.

OPEN SEASON, FAIR

The Federal Employee Benefits Open Season is Nov. 10 through Dec. 9. The Civilian Personnel Advisory Center will host a health fair Nov. 12 in Meloy Hall. Representatives from several health, dental and vision carriers will be available to answer questions from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Enrollment and changes to Federal Employee Health Benefits must be made through the ABC-C Web site. Information on 2009 premiums is available at www.opm.gov/insure/. Open season information for Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program is available at https://benefeds.com/. For more information, call Felicia Griffin at 706-545-2681.

CLEAN OUT E-MAIL

The Directorate of Information Management encourages post e-mail users to perform routine house cleaning of all mailboxes to reduce overall database size of the e-mail system. If a server fails, it can be restored faster, and the system runs more efficiently. Empty deleted items weekly and move e-mails from your inbox to a personal folder offline or information may be lost. For more information, call 706-545-2178 or e-mail benndoimhelpdesk@conus.army.mil.

MOTORCYCLE SAFETY CLASS

To register for Motorcycle Safety Foundation courses, visit https://airs.lmi.org, select available courses, select Fort Benning in the garrison drop-down list, select the course from the drop-down list and select the date of the course desired using the calendar that pops up on the page.

There are two courses for each date: one for personnel using their own motorcycles and one for those using the trainer motorcycles. Those experiencing difficulty registering should contact the Combat Readiness Office (Safety), Building 18, or call the MSF instructors at 706-545-0893.

HOUSING OFFICE RELOCATED

The housing office has relocated from Building 2621 in Soldiers' Plaza to Building 2619 in Soldiers' Plaza. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For questions about off-post housing, call 706-545-3921. Unaccompanied personnel who have questions about on-post housing can call 706-545-2751.

CID RECRUITING

CID special agent duties comprise investigating felony crimes involving U.S. Army personnel and assets, crime prevention, and personal protection of U.S. and foreign dignitaries. CID special agents are federal law enforcement officers. CID needs qualified Soldiers.

The qualifications are: U.S. citizen, at least 21 years old, have a GT score of at least 110, possess two years of military experience, be a specialist or nonpromotable sergeant, suitable character established by a Single Scope Background Investigation leading to a Top Secret clearance, no record of psychological or pathological personality disorders, no record of unsatisfactory credit, at least 60 semester hours of college, no civil or courts-martial convictions, normal color vision and have a physical profile of 222221 or higher.

The training includes U.S. Army Military Police School Special Agent Course; advanced training in specialized investigative disciplines; opportunities to attend training at the FBI National Academy, the Canadian Police College, Scotland Yard and pursuit of a master's degree in forensic sciences from George Washington University. For more information, call Special Agent Jeremy McCormick at 706-545-0247.

Phillies win World Series

The Philadelphia Phillies beat the Tampa Bay Rays, 4-2, in a delayed Game 5 Wednesday to win their second World Series title. The Phillies won their first title back in 1980.

Phillies' pitcher Cole Hamels was awarded the World Series MVP.

Willingham to step down

Tyrone Willingham, Washington Huskies coach, said he will step down at the end of the football season. After the past weekend, Washington was 0-7.

Willingham was asked if it was his decision to step down, and he said no, that it wasn't in his makeup.

Willingham was the coach of Notre Dame for three seasons before being fired in 2004.

Titans still undefeated

The Tennessee Titans won their 10th straight regular-season game, dating to last season, which makes it the second-longest in franchise history. The Titans beat the Indianapolis Colts, 31-21, Oct. 27.

LenDale White ran for two touchdowns, and Chris Hope picked off two throws by Colts' QB Peyton Manning.

The Colts fell to 3-4 on the season, the first time under .500 since Manning's rookie season in 1998.

Edwards wins at AMS

Carl Edwards won his seventh career race at Atlanta Motor Speedway Oct. 26. Although he finished first, he didn't manage to gain many points on leader Jimmie Johnson in the Chase for the Sprint Cup.

Johnson remains in first, followed by Edwards, who is 183 points behind him. Greg Biffle is just two points behind Edwards.

This week's race is the Dickies 500 from Texas Motor Speedway. Coverage begins at 3 p.m. on ABC on Sunday. Only three races remain in the season.

Johnson not playing

Hours later, the Chiefs said Johnson, a two-time Pro Bowler, would not being playing in future games, though they didn't put a timeline on it.

It's the fourth time in five years he has been accused of assaulting a woman.

Seve update

Golfer Seve Ballesteros was listed in stable but serious condition after a six-and-a-half hour operation Oct. 24 for removal of the rest of a cancerous brain tumor.

In the first half of the game, after several unsuccessful series of plays for both teams, the 598th Maintenance Co. took the lead on a third-down play from the 30-yard line with 598th's Greg Miller scoring the first touchdown of the game. With a successful extra point conversion, 598th led, 7-0, at the end of the first half. In the final half, the 598th racked up another touchdown and extra point conversion, making the score 14-0. The 75th Ranger Regt. scored their lone touchdown of the game, but failed to convert the extra point to close out the scoring with the 598th taking the 14-6 victory.

"When you are out there on the field, play as a team and win as a team," said 598th's coach Beshaen Hollis to his team before the game.

Memory Walk at Brookstone School set for Nov. 8

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Alzheimer's Association of Columbus will host the sixth annual Memory Walk Nov. 8 at Brookstone School in Columbus.

It will raise funds for Alzheimer's patients while bringing awareness of the disease to the community, said Christina Vogler, development director at the Alzheimer's Association.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, 199,000 people in Georgia have Alzheimer's disease, including 10,000 people in Columbus.

"Alzheimer's is a debilitating disease and it can get really expensive — some of the costs aren't covered by insurance plans and the patients need full-time care," Vogler said.

All of the money raised from the walk will stay in the Columbus community and go toward caregiver expenses, support groups, training, literature on Alzheimer's and supplies for patients.

Since 1989, the Memory Walk has raised more than $230 million nationwide.

The turnout for this year's walk is bigger than ever, Vogler said.

Participants in this year's walk have raised around $51,000 so far. The goal is $60,000. Last year, there were 22 teams who participated in the walk and this year, the number has doubled resulting in around $9,000 more being raised than at this same time last year.

Participants can raise money for the cause, but it isn't required. Those who raise $150 will receive a Memory Walk T-shirt. The cost to walk is free.

Registration will start at 9 a.m. before the opening ceremonies and the walk will start at 10 a.m. at Brookstone School. Coffee and doughnuts will be provided before the race and lunch will be provided following the walk for free.

Individuals or teams of up to 10 people can participate in the walk. Walkers can pre-register or sign up race day. To register or for more information, go to http://columbusmemorywalk.kintera.org or call 706-327-6838.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

Fit Facts is back.

Sorry to all you guys that read my column.

I have been on a bit of a break recently, but I am back and ready to keep you guys informed with fitness facts.

This week, however, I want to take a second to say thank you to everyone who reads my column. I didn't really realize that people actually read it until a lady who works in my office reading my article mentioned it while sitting in the hospital waiting room.

She said several people were talking about it and taking some of the advice. I got to tell you guys I do appreciate it.

I know I read many articles in magazines and newspapers and I tend to think — what does this person really know? They probably spend their whole day working out, getting free diet foods, and new exercise equipment to try out.

But for those of you who don't know me, I am just a normal, everyday girl. I don't "love" exercise and I work full time with MWR and am always looking for easier ways to get my workouts into my daily schedule. I always struggle with weight: I love to eat pizza, nachos and sweets.

So, when I think about what articles to write, I really do try to think about what would help me, a normal working person with a life, and what I would want to know about staying healthy and fit — so I hope these columns help and readers know you can trust that the article is coming from someone who struggles with being healthy.

This week? Halloween and how you can help control all those treats for the kids —and you — and how to make this Halloween just a little healthier.

Try these ideas:

•Let your children enjoy some of their Halloween candy in moderation when they have finished trick-or-treating — after you have inspected the treats for safety. Just remember, keep a close eye on how much they eat.

•Set limits. Moderation is the key. Enjoy the candy for a day or two then throw the rest away. Many think this is wasteful, however, if kids or parents have difficulty controlling their candy consumption, this may be what you need to do.

•Put the extra treats into a high cabinet in your kitchen or pantry. Out of sight is out of mind, and you can control how many treats your kids get over the next few days.

•Don't buy Halloween candy early.You will tempt yourself and your kids to eat too much before the trick-or-treating starts.

•Give out individually packaged non-sugary treats or alternatives to candy. Treats such as nuts, raisins, sunflower seeds, cashews, chips, microwave popcorn and stickers.

•Skip the Halloween candy sale tomorrow. Cheap bags of candy may sound like a good buy, but you don't need the sugar and calories. I know you want them, but best leave them in the store.

I love candy just as much as the next person, but moderation is best.

Enjoy a few pieces of candy and enjoy Halloween, there is nothing wrong with that. Just remember not to go overboard. Make good choices and set good examples for the kids.

Have a safe and happy Halloween.

A Tradition of Therapy, "The Roosevelt Way"

Hands-on approach achieves results.

Roosevelt Warm Springs has been a leader in therapy since the Second World War. Returning military therapists were among the first to develop "The Roosevelt Way," a hands-on approach that became the model for dealing with polio and more recently spinal cord injuries and amputees. Veterans are encouraged to again take advantage of this tradition in the following therapy disciplines:

Physical Therapy | Occupational Therapy | Recreational Therapy
Respiratory Therapy | Speech & Language Pathology

this — I believe in my players," he said.

At halftime, Hollis said his team was "playing sloppy."

"This win and being in the playoffs is why we worked hard all season," he said after the game. "I think we played a good game and had a strong defense."

"Any day you get to play football is a good day," he said.

He said in the beginning, the wind and cold had an effect on both teams.

"We were both struggling to move the ball, but as the game went on, we adjusted." Schmidtz said.

It was a tough competition, said 75th Ranger Regt. player Jacques Migues.

"I think we played hard but I guess it wasn't hard enough," he said.

The 75th Ranger Regiment moves to the losers bracket. To make it to the championship game, they need to win seven games in a row.

The 598th Maintenance Co. took on 14th Combat Support Hospital Wednesday in the second round of the playoffs and won 25-19. They advanced to the quarter finals Oct. 30. Sixteen of 30 teams will fight it out to make it to the championship Thursday.

Chattco volleyball team goes to state, falls to St. Vincent's

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Chattahoochee County High School varsity volleyball team (1A-AA) advanced to the Georgia High School Association state volleyball tournament after placing second in Region 1-AA behind Early County, but were ousted from the state tournament following an opening round loss to the St. Vincent's High School Lady Saints Saturday at Wesleyan High School. The Lady Panthers lost three consecutive games to St. Vincent's.

During the opening round match, sophomore Kamara Riley racked up one kill, seven assists and three digs. Senior Ryan Rogers registered one kill, one ace and two blocks. Senior Georgeshia Embry made two digs and three aces.

Junior Kristina Dixon made four assists and two digs. Senior Kamona Riley captured four digs and Junior Noelani Conley made two kills and one ace.

"After the first game (13-25), I felt disappointed, but I still thought we had a shot at winning," said Conley, daughter of Sgt. 1st Class Wendell Conley. "After the second game (9-25), I think we just quit because we knew there was only one game left and no matter what we did, we weren't going to win."

The final game was 6-25. Noelani said she wanted to win but she was happy just to be at state.

"Not everyone gets to go to state, I feel lucky," she said.

"It's a big deal to go to state. Volleyball is new to this area and for us to even go to state is outstanding," she said. "We can use this loss as a learning tool for next year. I think now that the team has been to state, they know what to work on before it comes around next year."

BOSS Soldiers lend a hand to Special Olympics

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

Soldiers from several units on Fort Benning gathered at the Lumpkin Center on the campus of Columbus State University Oct. 24 to help special Olympians from the greater Columbus area during the Area 10 2008 Special Olympics indoor winter games.

"The BOSS program was the main volunteer source for the games," said Daniel Lockart, Regional Manager for Special Olympics, Georgia. They have been volunteering for more than five years.

Even the bad weather could not deter the more than 200 Olympians who participated in the basketball-themed games.

"We had to make some adjustments to the schedule, but we're here," said Lockart.

BOSS turned out in force for the Olympics with 118 volunteers assisting in the games, said Sgt. Zkmain Mahoney, Fort Benning BOSS Program president.

"The BOSS Program did an excellent job working with the athletes and volunteering throughout the day," Lockart said. "Teachers and parents came up to me and thanked me for a job well done regarding the games ... this thankfulness should resonate with every Soldier who participated because they directly impacted the joy, courage, and strength of our athletes.

"I am not sure if these games would have been possible without the support of the Fort Benning BOSS Program Soldiers."

"We just want to get out and be able to help the kids," Mahoney said. "We want them to see that we are here to support them no matter what."

Mahoney said the BOSS Program participated in the spring Special Olympics and were invited back to the winter games.

"It is one of our top priorities," Mahoney said. "We hope to be able to participate in the games as long as they are around."

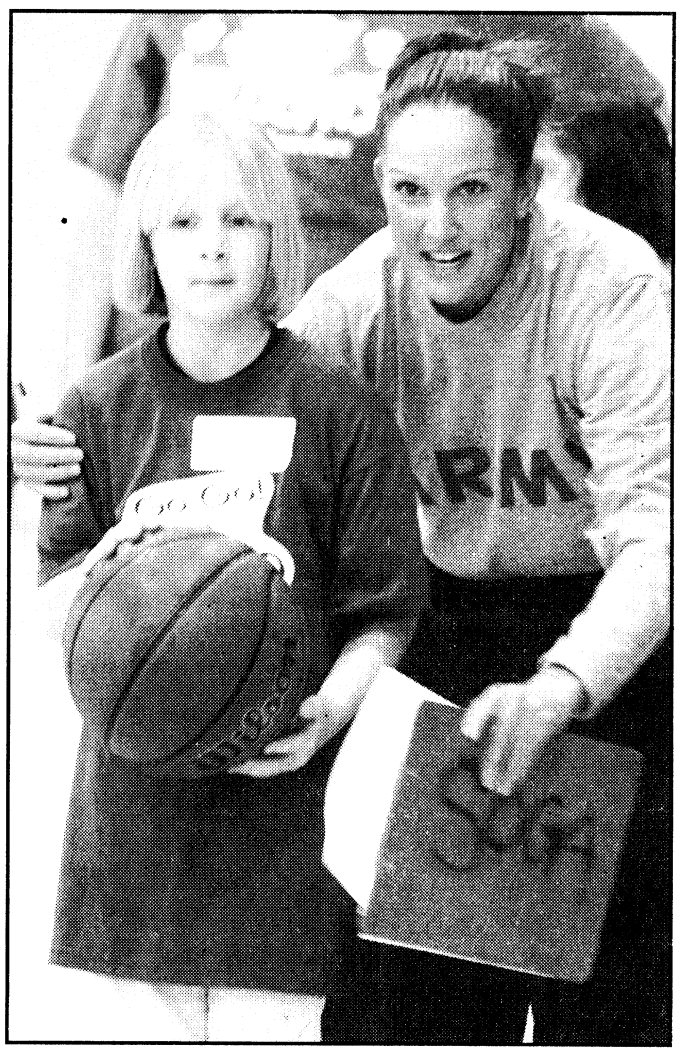
The Soldiers really enjoyed the entire event," Mahoney said. "It made us realize that these kids have goals too and want to be accepted by society and are willing to do something like this."



John W. Peeler

Eighth-grader focuses, trains for football

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Eleven months out of the year, 13-year-old Tyler DeNova is either playing football or wrestling.

"I love sports. I don't think I could live without them," DeNova said. DeNova is a co-captain, linebacker and running back on the Fort Benning Bengals 12- and 13-year-old football team and is also a wrestler at Fort Benning.

DeNova started playing football at the age of 10 after he moved from Fort Lewis, Wash., to Fort Benning with his family. DeNova would've started football earlier, but Fort Lewis didn't have a team for his age group, he said. When his dad, Master Sgt. Bill DeNova, was transferred to Fort Benning, Tyler said he was happy there was a team for his age group.

"Being part of a football team is fun. We are a family — we know each other so well. We are together whether we win or lose," Tyler said.

The 5-foot-10-inch, 160-pound Faith Middle School eighth-grader said football is a balance between mental and physical strength.

"You have to be able to focus, be disciplined, train hard and do your best," Tyler said. "And, sometimes it's hard to give 100 percent. But, if you give 100 percent and don't succeed, you can always keep trying and you'll get it."

His other love is wrestling.

Last year, Tyler was a first place champion in the 12 and under 130-pound weight class at the Georgia Kids' State Championship. He also took seventh place last year at the ASICS United States of America Wrestling Folkstyle Nationals in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Rachel L. Watkins
Faith Middle School eighth-grader, Tyler DeNova, is co-captain, linebacker and running back on the Benning Bengals 12- and 13-year-old team and also is a wrestler at Fort Benning.

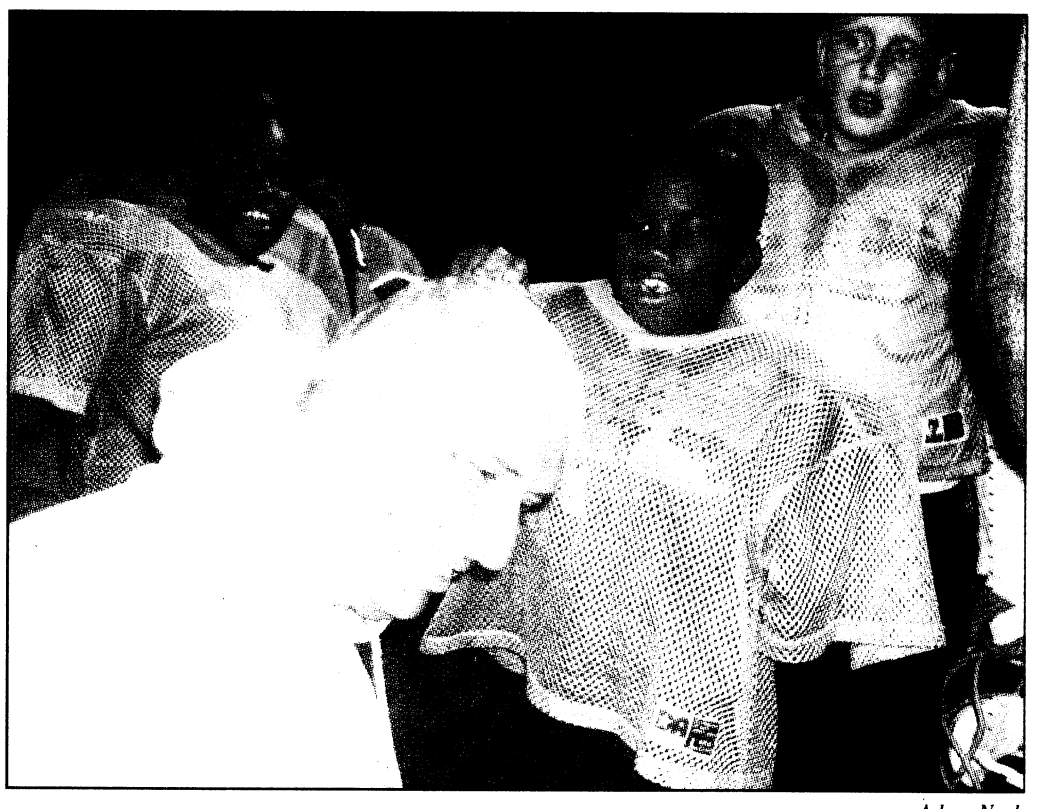
"We are a sports family," Tyler said.

Joe wrestles, his dad coaches football and wrestling, his mom, Sharon, played volleyball and basketball in high school and his sister, Jackie, is at Ole' Miss on a soccer scholarship.

"When the kids were young, we got them involved in many sports to see what would stick," said Bill, who played football in college and started playing football when he was 10 years old. "When I was a kid, sports were what I did. I went outside every day and played some kind of sport. It's important to keep kids in sports in today's day and age because it's one of the few activities that keep kids active, unlike playing video games."

"I like being able to spend the extra time with my kids," he said. "Sports really is a bonding experience for us."

Taking one for the team



Adam Nash

USAMU Soldiers compete in world cup finals

USAMU
Paula J. Randall

Two Soldiers of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit are competing in the prestigious International Shooting Sport Federation World Cup Final.

Rifle and pistol shooters will participate in the elite World Cup Finals Nov. 1 to 6 in Bangkok, Thailand. The ISSF only invites the top shooters in the world to compete in this exclusive match, which is the traditional closing competition of the international shooting season.

Three-time Olympian Sgt. 1st Class Daryl L. Szarenski and Sgt. Michael D. McPhail, both of the USAMU, will compete in the World Cup Final.

Also competing are 2008 Olympic silver medalist Matt Emmons in Men's Three Position, Prone and Air Rifle, 2008 Olympic bronze medalist Jason Turner in Men's Air Pistol, 2008 Olympian Jaime Beyerle and Morgan Hicks in Women's Three Position Sport Rifle and 2008 Olympian Emily Caruso in Women's Air Rifle.

McPhail won the bronze medal in Prone Rifle and Szarenski took the bronze medal in Free Pistol at the World Cup in Beijing, China, in April. They will be competing in the same matches at the World Cup Final.

Two-time Olympian Sgt. 1st Class Thomas A. Tamas of the USAMU, who received the silver medal in Men's Prone Rifle at the Beijing World Cup, also qualified for the Prone Rifle competition but will not compete.

Benning plans Retiree Appreciation Day

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Fort Benning will host its 25th annual Retiree Appreciation Day Nov. 7.

The event, sponsored by Retirement Services, will feature a special breakfast and luncheon for retirees, as well as booths with information from a variety of participating sponsors.

"Lots of retirees look forward to this day," said Retirement Services Officer Verna Clemons. "It's a time for people to see friends who they haven't seen in a long time. We'll have people coming from all over the country."

The day will begin with breakfast at Sand Hill. Participants will be invited to attend a graduation ceremony for OSUT, a training course for new Soldiers specializing in the Infantry, before attending a luncheon at the Benning Club. Retired Lt. Col. Gary Quintero, Deputy Chief of Army Retirement Services, will be the featured guest speaker. Guests attending the event will be eligible to win a variety of door prizes.

"We're going to have about 20 prizes," Clemons said, "including microwaves, fishing rods, vacuum cleaners and luggage. They're all items people can actually use, and were all purchased at the PX."

Beginning at 1 p.m., vendors from around Fort Benning and Columbus will be on hand at the Benning Club with information about their products and services.

"The commissary will be there, as well as the PX, and we'll also have flu shots available," Clemons said.

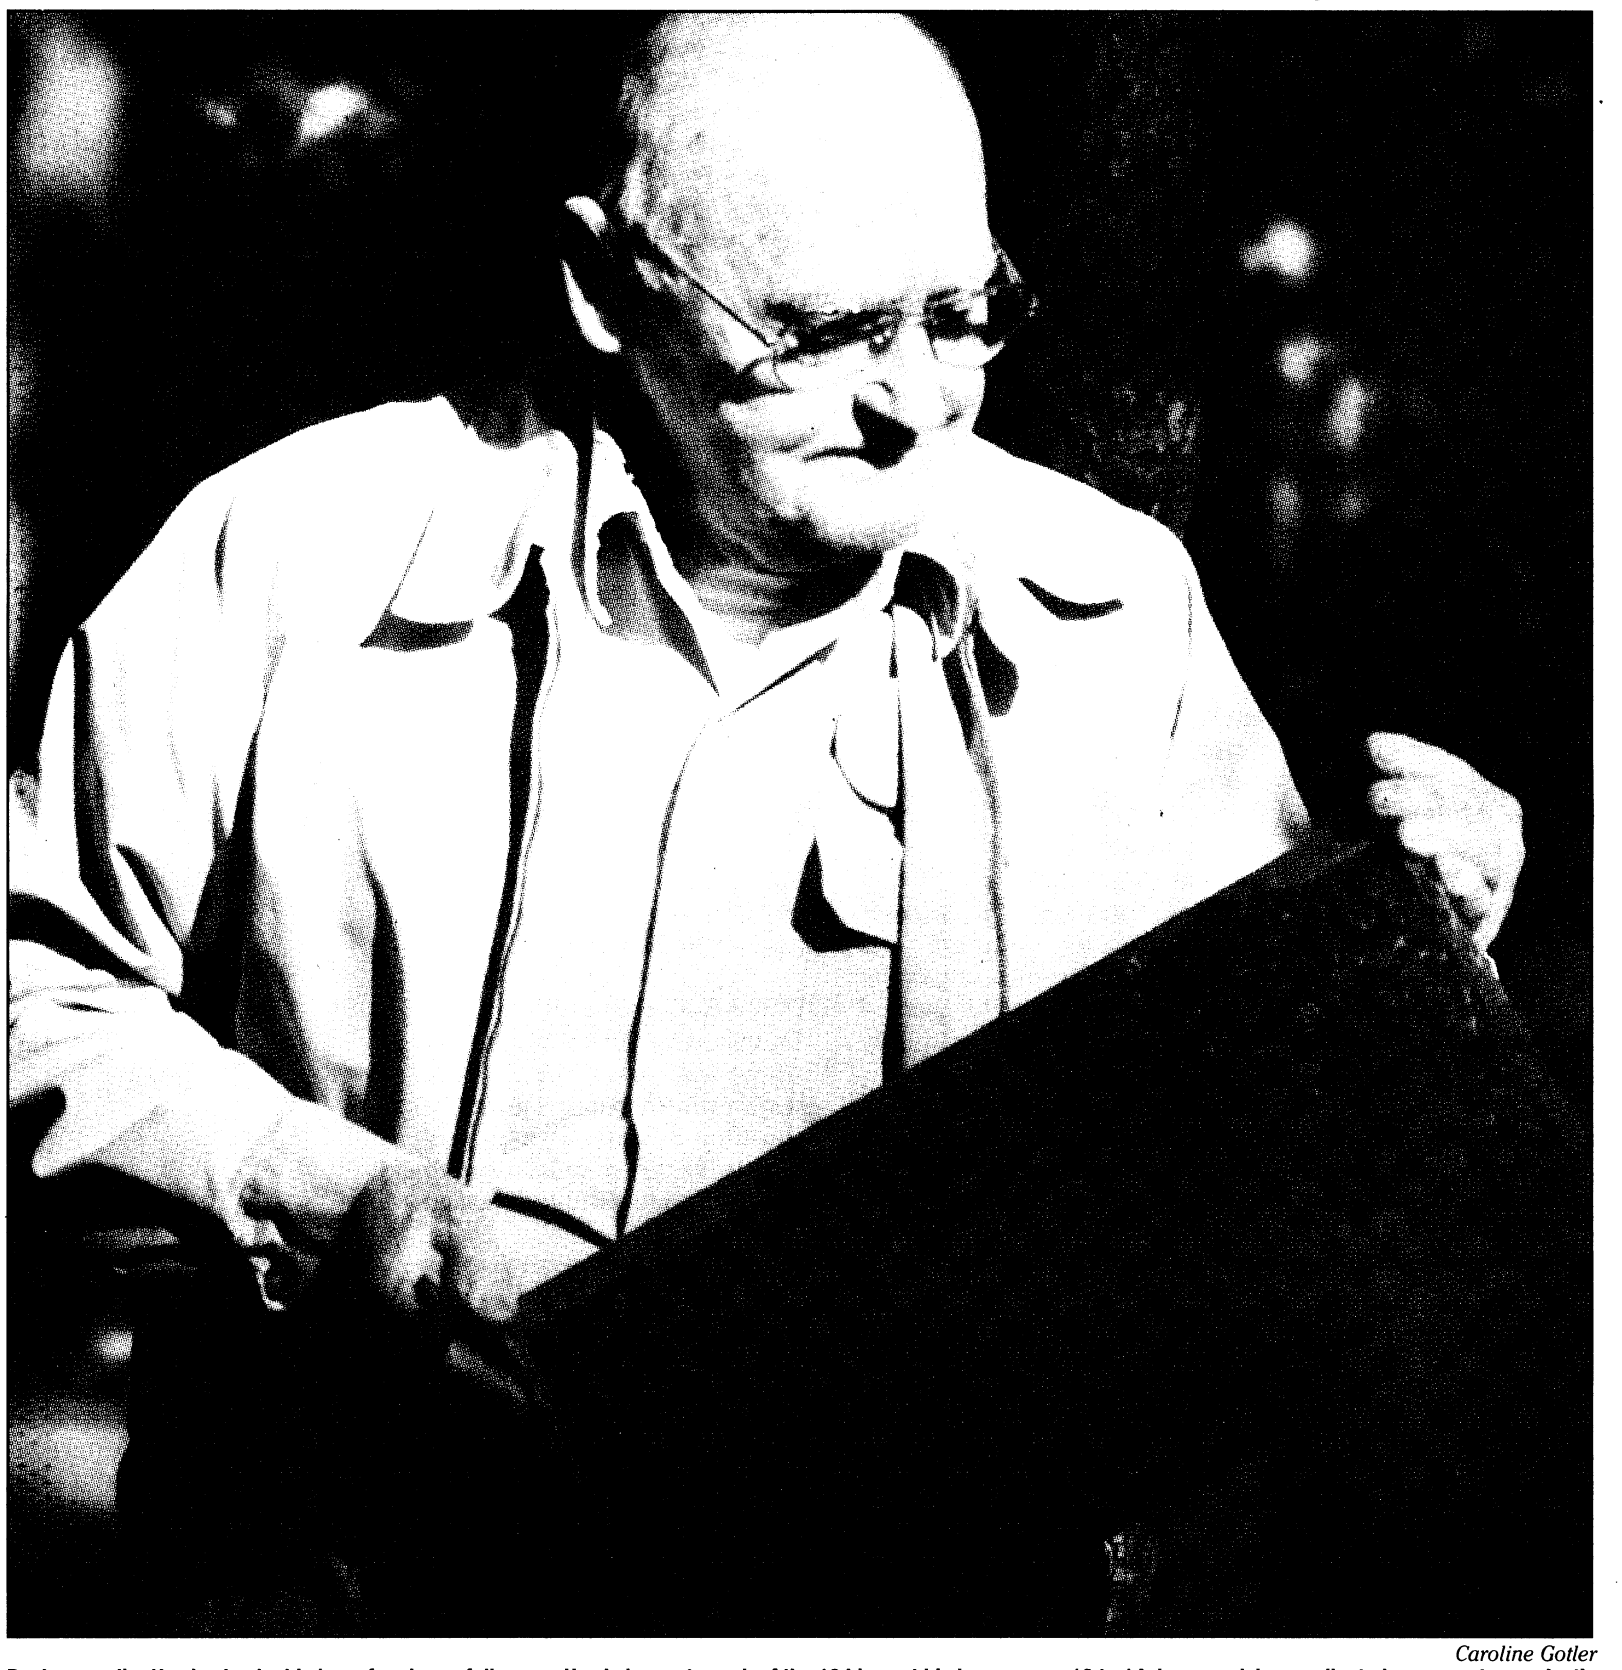
Clemons said she expects strong attendance this year, which she credits to the high quality of life at Fort Benning.

"Everybody wants to come to Fort Beninng," she said. "We're the best installation in my opinion. People who have retired from Fort Benning want to come back and see how it's doing."

All retired military personnel, their families and spouses are eligible to attend. Retirees may also register guests who do not hold military ID cards. The cost to attend breakfast and lunch is $16.60 per person, and the cost for lunch only is $14.50.

For more information, or to register in advance, call Verna Clemons at 706-545-1805.

Columbus beekeeper living the sweet life



Caroline Gotler

Beekeeper Jim Harris checks his bees for signs of disease. Harris inspects each of the 10 hives at his home every 10 to 14 days, applying medicated sugar water or plastic strips when necessary. His bees are suceptible to diseases caused by certain invasive species of mites from Africa, which can kill an entire honeybee colony, Harris said.

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Jim Harris wears a button pinned to his jacket proclaiming him "The Honeybee Man."

The Columbus resident and retired Soldier has been keeping bees for more than 30 years, and has been an active force in educating the local community about the benefits of beekeeping. He is the founder of the Chattahoochee Valley Beekeepers Association and speaks about bees at schools, clubs, and churches.

"Anywhere that they want to hear about bees, I'll talk," Harris said.

Harris is also responsible for starting a short course on beekeeping at the Oxbow Meadows Environmental Learning Center, which he said grew out of his desire to help others avoid the mistakes that he made as a beginner.

"I made every mistake you could think of," he said.

"I put them where they couldn't get any sunshine, and I also didn't know how to check them for disease. Since I made so many mistakes, that's the reason why I got this course going."

Harris' work has not gone unrecognized. The Georgia Beekeepers Association honored Harris with an award for Beekeeper of the Year at their fall meeting Sept. 26.

"I was very surprised," he said.

Harris credits his son with first sparking his interest in bees.

"When he was going to the University of Georgia, he learned a little about honeybees," he said. "He liked it so well that when he came back home, he got a hive and put it in the backyard."

After Harris' son married and moved away, Harris took over his hobby. Now 81, he said he has no plans to slow down.

"It keeps me doing something," he said. "I'm retired, and I don't sit around and watch the tube all day. I'd rather watch honeybees."

Customer survey allows post officials to assess services

CUSTOMER SERVICE OFFICE

The window for the inaugural Customer Service Assessment survey officially opened Oct. 20 and will close Nov. 7. During this time, everyone who lives, works or does business on Fort Benning is asked to take the survey and provide ratings for all of the garrison's services.

Customers need to log into the survey at www.myarmyvoice.org/Community2008 and be willing to spend 20 to 30 minutes online in order to answer all the questions.

They will first answer a number of basic, demographic questions which will steer them to the set of questions about services relevant to them.

Each question has two parts: the first asks for a one to five rating on the importance of a service, the second asks for a performance rating from one to five. Customers will be required to provide comments only for those services they give ratings of one (very poor) or two (poor).

"This survey empowers customers — installation leaders, Soldiers, Department of the Army Civilians, retirees and family members — to have a real voice in evaluating all services," said Tony Patino, the Installation Management Command West Region Customer Management Services coordinator.

"The voice of the customer lets us know how we're doing. In turn, we let

High School Night set for Thursday

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Faith Middle School and the post School Liaison Office will host High School Night for upcoming high school students from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school.

The evening will offer students and parents the opportunity to learn about area high schools and ask questions about the transition from middle school to high school.

Representatives from Muscogee, Chattahoochee and Russell county schools will provide information about admission requirements and deadlines, school programs, special needs assistance and extracurricular activities.

"Many schools require students to meet certain criteria for admission," said Tawanna Brown, post school liaison officer. "We want to provide that information to families early so they can prepare children to succeed in their school of choice."

This is the first year the school has hosted High School Night in the fall.

A similar night is held every year in January, but it's geared toward eighth-grade students and their parents, said Gerald Madler, Faith guidance counselor. This night is open to eighth-graders, but seventh-grade students and their parents are strongly encouraged to attend.

"There has to be some plan of action," Madler said.

"The kids need to know — this is what you need to do this year and next to set yourself up for success," he said. "It gives them an overview of all the different programs, (and) it gives them a sense of responsibility and ownership of their academics. That's what it's all about."

Light refreshments will be provided.

For more information, call Brown at 706-545-3062 or Faith Middle at 706-545-5524.

HELP IS AVAILABLE!

Martin Army Community Hospital stands ready to assist our Soldiers and their families who may be experiencing behavioral and/or family problems. The stress of being a Soldier in today's environment may be too much for the Soldier or their family to handle on their own. Help is available from multiple resources which support the Army mission. The following is a list of available resources that provide virtually 24/7 access to behavioral health care.

Martin Army Community Hospital Resources

Soldiers can self-refer to any mental health clinic on post, a referral is not required. You can either walk-in or call for an appointment. The main Outpatient Mental Health Clinic number is 706-544-3590.

Social work services handles marital problems or domestic violence issues, they can be reached at 706-545-1661.

For alcohol or substance abuse issues call the Army Substance Abuse Program (ASAP) at 706-545-8362.

Other sources available:

Military One Source, 1-800-342-9647.

National numbers are 1-800-SUICIDE or 1-800-273-TALK, available 24/7.

The Tricare behavioral health care appointment line is 1-877-298-3514. Soldiers with a referral can call this line to obtain an appointment in the network, family members can also call to obtain an appointment but they are not required to have a referral first.

The Army does not attach a stigma to Soldiers seeking help with day to day pressures. The idea is to make the Soldier and the family whole, which supports the Army's overall Mission. Don't hesitate to call if you are experiencing problems and need help.

Redeployment requires communication

AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Mary Markos

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany — All Eva Creel wanted for 12 months was for her husband to come home from Afghanistan to be by her side.

When he returned, she found she wanted nothing more than her own personal space.

Creel — like many spouses of Soldiers returning from deployments — discovered firsthand that the rush of emotions after redeployment can both draw a couple together and pull them apart.

"When they're gone, you miss them terribly, but you become very independent," she said. "I had my routine, my schedule and my plans. He kind of got in the way of all those things."

Redeployment is an overwhelming joy and a roller coaster ride of emotions, including everything from feelings of guilt from a newfound independence to the insecurity and frustration of getting to know one another again. But these emotions are 100 percent normal, said Chaplain (Lt. Col.) David Scheider, deputy chaplain for the U.S. Army Garrison here.

The key to getting back on track, he said, is communicating expectations and emotions with one another.

During extended separations, Scheider said, it is common for couples to develop unrealistic expectations of a physical and emotional reunion. One of the most common types of expectation building is for Soldiers to develop an unrealistic image of their spouse in their minds. A very high number of deployed troops do this.

"There is really not much of a place to get away from it all (while deployed)," he said. "So they develop a place in their brain to go to, in their memories. And they start to build this safe place. The star of that safe place in their mind is usually their (spouse).

"After awhile, they'll begin to develop this expectation of (the spouse) as this perfect person," he said. " It is totally unrealistic. It is half fantasy and half reality."

Back at home, Creel said, a spouse may experience the same thing.

"I did turn him into this perfect husband (during the deployment)," she said. "The reality is different."

To prevent reality shock from upending the marriage, the Soldier and spouse should reevaluate the "fantasy" image they have created of their loved one, Scheider said. Because everyone changes during deployments, couples must evaluate the reality of who they have become and get to know each other again when they're reunited after a deployment.

In doing so, they shouldn't take anything for granted, he said. Couples should communicate even the most obvious expectations and desires, even something as simple as how much time you expect to spend alone or who will take out the trash.

Some spouses look forward to handing over the job of disciplinarian and household organizer to the redeploying Soldier, Scheider said, but recently returned service members often can't make this decision because they are unsure of what the rules were in their absence, or what the rules should be. At the same time, the spouse is ready to hand off the disciplinarian hat, the Soldier, having missed birthdays and other important family events, is ready to make up for lost time by overindulging the child.

Talk, talk and more talk is the key, Scheider said, as maintaining open communication — detailing both large and small expectations — is one of the only ways to weather the emotional storm of reintegrating.

Another sticking point, the chaplain said, is when increasingly confident spouses who have grown independent during the deployment, begin to resent when their redeployed Soldiers expect them to put their lives on hold and devote all of their time to them.

While each couple will experience variations of these common scenarios, each relationship and every individual is unique, Scheider said. The bottom line and the driving factor for a smooth reintegration is to make reconnecting as a couple a top priority.

Soldiers may find themselves feeling both hurt and proud that their spouse coped so well without them, he said. They may question whether or not they are needed in the relationship, and may even feel like an outsider in the family. Spouses should understand these feelings and attempt to make the Soldier feel needed, he said.

Both spouses will need affirmation that their relationship is as strong as ever, or at least growing, Scheider said, but connecting on an emotional level after redeployment may take some time. Soldiers who experienced a high level of stress during the deployment may feel shame for something they did or guilt for something they did not do in combat. This can be a contentious area, the chaplain said.

"The most hurtful thing (to a spouse can be) wanting to have that significant reconnection, waiting for this time to really sit down and talk, and (the Soldier) stiff-arms her, thinking, 'I want to protect her from who I am,'" he said.

While spouses may be curious about their Soldier's experiences, the chaplain said, the best thing they can offer the service member is space to work through their feelings. Spouses should avoid asking questions about what happened in combat and never should pressure the Soldier for details.

Soldiers still struggling after six weeks, Scheider said, should seek help.

Throughout reintegration, as Soldiers readjust to their new home life, they may seek a comrade in arms to confide in and relate to, the chaplain said. This may leave the spouse feeling unloved and alone.

"It calls into question the whole relationship — the loyalty and the bond," he said. Soldiers should resist the urge to close their circle of support to only those they served with.

And just as Soldiers do, he said, spouses learn to rely on those around them for support and assistance during the deployment. When troops return, they may experience hurt feelings and disappointment if those support groups begin to crumble.

"I had a few friends whose husbands were deployed at the same time as mine," Creel said. "We were like family. We talked to each other every day. They were in my routine. But when our husbands came back, we barely talked to each other. It is sad that you lose that friendship."

It is important, however, Scheider said, for the marriage, not the friendships, to be the couple's main priority.

For couples who still are having trouble reconnecting on an emotional level after six weeks, Scheider suggested reaching out for professional help.

"Healthy couples," he said, "gang up on the problem, not each other."

ASK THE JUDGE

OFFICE OF STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE
Aletha Friedel

Q: My car was damaged on post. Isn't the government responsible?

A: The government is not a substitute for private insurance. The fact damage occurs on post does not create an entitlement.

However, the government does provide some coverage in limited circumstances. There are two separate types of coverage with separate rules.

First, the government is a self-insurer. The Army Claims Office acts as the government's liability "insurance company" for damages caused by the negligent or wrongful acts of Soldiers or civilian employees acting within the scope of their assigned duties. This is similar to the liability coverage on your car.

Also Congress has seen fit to cover some on-post risks not caused by the government as an "employee benefit." This type of coverage is provided to active-duty Soldiers and, to a lesser extent, government civilian employees. It provides a type of disaster relief; it covers hurricanes, tornadoes, floods etc. It provides very limited coverage for damages from criminal acts, such as theft or vandalism. However, you must be able to independently prove that the loss or damage was caused by theft or vandalism and not the result of your own negligence. This coverage is limited. It only covers certain out-of-pocket expenses not covered by your private insurer. You must first file a claim with your own insurance company.

For more information, call the Claims Office at 706-545-2285.

Honey: 'Best thing you can eat'

Harris specializes in a species called Italian honeybees, which can produce up to 10 gallons of honey per colony each year. For Harris, who keeps up to 24 colonies at a time at his Columbus home and another location near Cusseta, Ga., that equals between 200 and 300 gallons of honey per year, which he sells to friends and neighbors.

Harris believes strongly in the health benefits of honey, and said occasional stings have even helped relieve his arthritis pain.

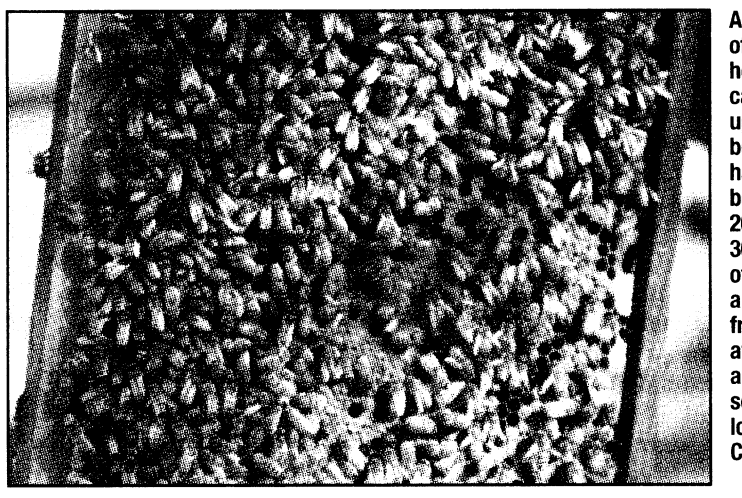
"I have not had one cold in the 30 years that I've been eating honey every day," he said. "Honey is the best thing you can eat."

Harris encourages others to get involved in beekeeping, which he said is essential to preserving the diversity of the earth's plant species.

"We need beekeepers bad," he said.

Harris said he will continue keeping bees as long as he is able.

"I'm 81 now, and I hope to do it for 10 more years," he said.



A colony of Italian honeybees can contain up to 60,000 bees. Harris harvests between 200 and 300 gallons of honey annually from hives at his home and a secondary location near Cusseta, Ga.

Survey: Needs variety of customers to respond

The data will be collected in two main categories – corporate and constituent. The corporate survey includes input from all of the unit and directorate leadership on Fort Benning, down to the company commander and first sergeant level. Soldiers not in leadership roles, Family members, retirees, veterans and civilian employees will provide input into the constituent category. All feedback will be sorted by demographic category and returned to the CMS representative for analysis.

"We'll be able to see exactly what our Soldiers and Family members think of all the Morale, Welfare and Recreation services and exactly what the commanders say about services that help them and their units accomplish their mission," said Bernard Goss, the Garrison's customer service officer. "In turn, the directorates providing the services can use the feedback to help make adjustments and improvements to programs that are important to the customers."

For information on the customer assessment, call the Customer Service Office at 706-545-0341 or e-mail Goss at Bernard.goss@us.army.mil.

Trusting in God gives one power of hope

Chaplain (Capt.) Albert E. Wall

In Hope for the Hurting, Doug Sparks wrote about the grief we encounter in life: "If you don't have (any) now, you will. If you live long enough, there'll come a time when you have to keep going even though your heart is pierced through."

There are few things in life that are as inevitable as grief; it is one of the great common grounds of the human experience. The burden of painful experiences in our lives comes in many shapes and sizes. For some, it is an ongoing financial crisis that threatens to unravel their life. For others, it is the slow disintegration of their marriage, a rebellious child, a terminally ill spouse, the long separation of a deployment, injury or career struggles. Any one of these can produce major heartache in our lives.

David had a couple of these kinds of experiences in his life. In 1 Samuel 30 there is an account of one such situation. At that point in his life he was just a private citizen and the captain of the local militia in the town he lived in, Ziklag. When the country was invaded by the army of the Amalekites, David took his men to the garrison and volunteered to go fight on behalf of the country. He was told that they could not serve in the regular army and should go home to protect their town. When they returned, the six hundred Soldiers that were with him found out that the enemy had swept through their town while they were gone, burned it to the ground, and took their wives and children captive. When they realized what had happened, and that had they been home they could have protected their loved ones, the scripture says, "Then David and the men that were with him lifted up their voices and wept until there was no more strength in them to weep." (1 Samuel 30:4)

For David it went from bad to even worse as his soldiers began to mutter mutiny among themselves, blaming him for the predicament. In the midst of the crisis, David's life was in danger. "Moreover, David was greatly distressed because the people spoke of stoning him, for all the people were deeply bitter because of the loss of their sons, daughters, and wives." (1 Samuel 30:6) It would have been easy for David to give up in fear and flee for his life, just as it is easy for us to give up when we encounter difficult circumstances in our own lives. But he did not. Instead, "David strengthened himself in the Lord his God." (1 Samuel 30:6)

The power of hope is an amazing thing. It has the ability to strengthen the weak and broken amidst insurmountable odds. Even those facing the most dangerous, difficult and heart breaking of circumstances can find the courage to go on if they have hope in their lives. Many people, when they hear about hope, think it is some pie in the sky thing where you carry on without any ground to stand on and very little chance of making it through. And, truthfully, some hope is this way ... but only because people place their hope in things that can fail. Some hope for the future based on their bank account balance. Some hope for a promotion based on their physical ability or their military record. Some hope their marriage works out because they are 'nice people.' But all of these things can fail. The kind of hope that can actually bring you strength and give you the ability to go on can be found only when you have hope in something or someone that cannot fail you.

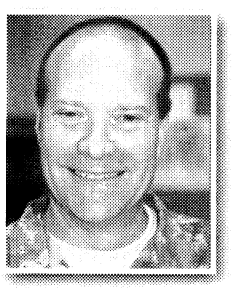
David trusted in God, he gathered his men and pursued their enemy and rescued their families from slavery by defeating the enemy when they caught up to them. Having routed them from the field, they not only returned home with their loved ones but also with the spoils of battle. David's faith never wavered because God had proven himself trustworthy and unfailing in David's life.

When the struggles and heart aches of this life crowd in on you, what do you put your hope in? Be encouraged today. There is someone who is trustworthy and able to see you through whatever you face. Place your trust in God and He will see you through.

Just like gas tank, love tank needs regular refills

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

A short time ago I was heading to Panama City, Fla., to conduct a Strong Bonds Marriage enrichment conference. I packed the car, conducted my pre-combat checks and off I went.



I only had a half tank of gas, and planned on stopping at the gas station outside the back gate. It was on my way and it is always a little cheaper than the on-post price. However, this day as I drove to the station, gas was $4.39. Are they out of their minds? I am not paying $4.39 for a gallon of gas.

Well, I thought I would stop at the next station and buy some there, so I traveled on. But station after station the price was jacked up. I could not believe what I was seeing. Everyone was upping their prices. I stopped at one station in Dothan, Ala., to fill up. But there were bags on all the pumps and a sign said "Out of Gas." Hmm, this is not good, I am not going to be able to make my trip and if there was no fuel available, how would I get home. As I continued, I noticed sign after sign that read, "out of gas."

Have you ever run out of gas? I was beginning to wonder if I was going to be able to find gas at all. Well, God's grace shined upon us and we found a station with gas, so I filled up with premium, the only gas available.

Romance is like my trip, we need to keep paying attention to the gauge and fill our tank.

When dating, we find that someone special in our life, we tend to pay attention to them, we tend to spend time with them. Our "love tank" gets filled up with premium time, attention, and emotional connection.

Life is good and our motors are purring just fine. Then after a while we decide to move to the next destination in our journey of life and we get married. Ah, life is great, can it get any better?

But once we marry, something strange happens. The romance tends to fade. Now why is this? Because we are different as men and women, we view things differently.

My wife asked me a few months after we were married if I loved her? Now what kind of question was that? I married her didn't I? What is the greatest act of love a man can do to demonstrate his love? Isn't it marriage? And that is what I told her, which was not the answer she wanted to hear.

Men normally look to romance as a pathway to marriage, not something to keep doing after marriage.

A woman looks at the romance as a lifelong event occurring again and again, as advertised in our romantic campaign. And soon after the wedding we find out we have two different plans. The romance wanes and the needle on the love tank starts to drop. Three-fourths of a tank, then one-half a tank, then one-quarter, and if nothing happens, the marriage will run out of emotional connection and you find yourself on the side of the road wondering what happened.

How do we stop this from happening? How do we stop from draining our love tank? Simply continue to do what filled your tank in the beginning. Romance the girl! Continue to invest time, attention and emotional connection.

What happens when our fuel gauge gets low? We pull into the station and fill the tank up.

We need to pull into the love station and fill up. So before your relationship creeps to a halt, be proactive and plan on renewing your romance. Plan a weekly date. Strategically place some cards or love notes. Can't think of any, go to the PX and read a few for some ideas. Call your spouse in the afternoon, just to say you love the them.

Girls, don't call the guy at work and ask him if he is thinking about you, because most likely he is not. Guys are pretty focused at work.

The best plan of action is to talk to your spouse and find out what they need or desire from you at this point in your life. Then determine to meet those needs and wants. After all, you are each other's best marriage manual.

Needing a romance tune-up? Come see one of our love experts at the Chaplain's Family Life Center. Call for an appointment at 706-545-1760 or stop by at 2606 Dixie Road, in Soldiers' Plaza.

Dear John,
You asked me about a good transmission shop, so I'm recommending: Generic Transmission in Phenix City. They're only ten minutes from post--You'll save money, and most important of all: You'll have peace of mind.
The owner, Jimmy, is as honest as they come, and does quality work. The number is: 334-297-1767, so call him now. Glad to help.
Regards, Al

Going wild this Halloween

NATIONAL WILDLIFE FEDERATION
Mary Burnette

Halloween is a holiday with lots of creepy wildlife associated with it, but are they really so creepy? From toads to bats to owls, the National Wildlife Federation shares the facts about these animals and what they are up to at this time of year, which might dispel a few myths.

BATS

Blood sucking vampire bats are real — but they mostly feed on chickens and cows and only live in Latin America. Most North American bats are insect eaters, feeding on everything from moths to mosquitoes to beetles. They use echolocation to find their prey, which is kind of like radar, rather than eyesight. They tend to have beady little eyes and weird-shaped faces which makes them look scary. But those faces help capture sound waves bouncing off of prey and other objects and funnel those waves to their ears.

Many bat species are entering into hibernation in caves or hollow trees, but some fly south for the winter just like birds.

SPIDERS

Spiders, with their eight legs and multiple eyes, are creatures right out of nightmares — and their sticky webs and venomous fangs don't help their public image either. But even though they might look scary, spiders are actually extremely beneficial predators of all sorts of insect pests. And only three species in the U.S. that have venom considered strong enough to hurt people: the black widow, the brown recluse and the hobo, and spider bites from these are very rare.

In the fall, female spiders are guarding egg sacks which hold the next generation of spiders.

TOADS

Toads are not just a key ingredient in witches' brew, they are important environmental indicators. All amphibians are susceptible to environmental toxins because of their sensitive skin. They are usually the first species to die out in polluted areas. If you have healthy toad populations in your area, it's a good sign that your neighborhood is fairly unpolluted. And no, you cannot catch warts from touching a toad.

Toads are voracious pest predators in the warm months, but go into underground hibernation by late fall and won't emerge until spring.

WOLVES

The howl of the wolf can cause either heart-rending terror or spiritual inspiration. People have either vilified or glorified wolves throughout history, but the real life wild canines are neither hounds from hell or spiritual guides. In reality, gray wolves are top predators that play a key role in balancing the ecosystem. They control deer and other prey populations as well as other predators lower down on the food chain, like coyotes and raccoons.

Once found throughout North America, the only remaining gray wolf populations live in limited regions of the United States and Canada in wilderness areas. They go out of their way to avoid humans. At this time of year, they are in the process of growing their thick winter coats to guard against winter's bitter temperatures.

SNAKES

The slithering, legless body. The forked tongue. The lidless eyes. Everything about a snake is decidedly non-human. But even though they strike fear in many people, most snake species are completely harmless. In fact, snakes are enormously beneficial, helping to control insect and rodent pests. The only time a snake will try to bite is if it's cornered or startled. The natural reaction of all snakes to people is to get away or hide.

By late October, most snakes are moving to their underground hibernation grounds, where they will doze away the cold months waiting for the warmer days of spring.

OWLS

The nocturnal habits, glowing eyes and utterly silent flight make these predatory birds the epitome of eeriness. It turns out that all of those things are simply adaptations for survival. Owls are nocturnal to avoid competition for prey with day-flying hawks. Their giant eyes and the fringed feathers that make no noise when the bird is flying allow them to hunt in the darkness.

Most owls are year-round residents and don't migrate. Listen for the hoot-hoot-hoot of the great horned owl or the whinnying shriek of the screech owl when you're trick or treating this year.

OPENING TODAY

ZACK AND MIRI MAKE A PORNO

Two lifelong, platonic friends, strapped for cash and in debt, decide to make a porno.

The movie stars Seth Rogen as Zack and Elizabeth Banks as Miri Linky.

Zack and Miri Make a Porno is rated R for sexual content, nudity and language.

THE HAUNTING OF MOLLY HARTLEY

A teenage girl discovers her parents made a pact with the devil to save her life. When the devil comes to collect, terrible things begin to happen and she must figure out if and how she can save herself.

Haley Bennett stars as Molly, Jake Weber as Robert, Chace Crawford is Joseph, Shanna Collins is Alexis and Shannon Marie Woodward is Leah.

The Haunting of Molly Hartley is rated PG-13 for violence and terror, brief strong language and teen drinking.

ALSO PLAYING

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 3: SENIOR YEAR

This third film in the High School Musical series follows teens Troy and Gabriella through the trials of their senior year. Faced with the prospect of separation upon departing for college, they stage an elaborate spring muscial reflecting their experiences, hopes and fears. The entire Wildcat crew joins in the muscial fun.

High School Musical 3 stars Zac Efron, Vanessa Hudgens and Ashley Tisdale. It is rated G.

SAW V

In the fifth installment of this horror series, Hoffman finds himself the last survivor left to carry on the Jigsaw legacy. Or is he? When Hoffman's secret is threatened, he must go on the hunt to eliminate any remaining loose ends.

Saw V stars Laura Gordon, Tobin Bell, Scott Patterson and Costas Mandylor. It is rated R for sequences of violence and torture, language and nudity.

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic antihero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld.

As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence, drug content, sexuality and language.

QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911-distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown.

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

When they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

Quarantine is rated R for violent and disturbing content, terror and language.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Although ostensibly his allies, Ferris questions how far he can really trust these men without putting his entire operation — and his life — on the line.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens.

Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

In December 2008, Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) staff will initiate the Survey of Interest (SOI) and volunteer process (VP)for placement opportunities against positions in the Maneuver Center of Excellence (MCOE). Even though there will be several recruitment iterations necessary to fill all anticipated vacancies, the first placement efforts will be dedicated solely to permanent mission employees whose positions will be realigned to the MCOE.

To be considered for placement under this process, all permanent employees must volunteer as no one will be "automatically" reassigned to the MCOE. This process will entail (1) the preparation/update of employee resumes; (2) prepositioning of those resumes in RESUMIX; (3) responding to a formal Survey of Interest (SOI); and, (4) ultimately volunteering for positions under the VP.

Resumes should be created and/or updated in the Resume Builder on the Armyís CPOL Web site located at https://cpolst.belvoir.army.mil/public/resumebuilder/builder/index.jsp and must be submitted to the centralized RESUMIX database. Resumes must be completed and posted in RESUMIX NLT COB Thursday, 15 Jan 09. No mailed, hand carried, digitally transmitted, or faxed resumes will be accepted. In order to facilitate ease of computer use for those without immediate access, staff members of the Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) have coordinated the use of computer classrooms beginning 14 October 2008 thru 31 December 2008. Computers will be available for resume update during the hours and at the locations indicated below. HR Staff will be on-site during 1400-1600 each day.

DATES	HOURS	BUILDING	CLASSROOM
November 3 - 26	0900-1600	4	21-B
December 1-31	0900-1600	4	21-B

CLASSROOMS WILL NOT BE AVAILABLE ON FEDERAL HOLIDAYS.

Top gunner fires Javelin

$80K missile takes 17 seconds to target

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Once every two weeks, Soldiers taking the Javelin Gunnery Course witness a live-fire demonstration, the most recent one Oct. 23 on Coolidge Left Range.

That's because of the large price tag that goes with the demonstration — more than $80,000.

"It's not like going to get a bucket of bullets," Smith said.

Wireless radios save money, energy

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Fort Benning is saving money with wireless radios — as much as $150,000 annually, said Vernon Duck, post energy manager.

The radios control energy-using devices like PT lights, air conditioning and a chiller plant. By making sure the devices are turned on and off at the appropriate time, the radios avoid wasting energy, a cost savings for the installation, Duck said.

"We spend an enormous amount of money on energy here," he said. "When you start saving in excess of 30 to 40 percent, it doesn't take long for those pennies to start adding up into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The more money we save on our utilities out here, the more money we can spend on facilities to make living conditions for our Soldiers better."

Before purchasing the radios, the installation was using an "antiquated" FM system, Duck said. The Directorate of Public Works started buying the radios from AIC Wireless last year to replace the older system as a preventive measure.

Annual symposium identifies issues

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Michelle L. Gordon

More than 75 issues affecting the Fort Benning community were discussed by delegates at the annual Army Family Action Plan Symposium, which was held Oct. 22-24.

At the three-day conference, volunteers from around the installation were divided into seven working groups to discuss issues submitted throughout the year. The issues were then prioritized and the top three from each group were briefed to Fort Benning Commanding General Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski at the conclusion of the conference.

"Each group looked at between 15 and 20 issues submitted by the community," said Sarah Hertig, 75th Ranger Regiment Family Readiness Assistant and AFAP volunteer. "So even though only three from each group were briefed, all of the issues were addressed, discussed and will be acted on by the command group."

One of the top issues presented this year was improving deployment cycle support for Reserve Component Soldiers. The scope of the issue stated that reserve Soldiers are at risk for suicides, domestic violence and undisclosed mental issues because they are released from active-duty status immediately upon returning home. The work group recommended extending active-duty status to 60 days for reintegration purposes.

Wojdakowski said this is a top initiative with the Chief of Staff of the Army and it will definitely be an issue Fort Benning sends forward for further action by the Department of the Army.

"Ten years ago, reserve component and National Guard Soldiers were considered the 'strategic reserve of the Army,'" he said. "They are not that anymore. They are an operational force. They are routinely deployed alongside active-component Soldiers and we can't afford to desert those Soldiers when they return home after serving 12 to 14 months in Iraq."

In addition to deployment support, improving the Fort Benning medical system was also at the top of the list. Citing already slow wait-times and limited appointment availability, the scope of the issue stated the new hospital would not adequately meet the needs of Fort Benning's projected population growth. The group recommended increasing the availability of healthcare in anticipation of the expanding post needs due to the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

"We got it," said Wojdakowski. "The last thing I, or anyone in this command, wants to do is build a hospital that is already too

ROTC Ranger Challenge

Cadet Derrick Davis, a junior at Troy University, climbs on the Weaver, one of more than 20 obstacles ROTC cadets tackled Friday on the Warrior Training Center confidence course. More than 400 cadets practiced land navigation and marksmanship, conquered obstacle courses, took the Army Physical Fitness Test and learned about teamwork during the annual Ranger Challenge competition Friday through Sunday on Fort Benning. 3rd review looks at Soldier feedback

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Soldier Systems Review 3, hosted by the U.S. Infantry Center at Fort Benning Oct. 16, brought together general officers and representatives from across the Army for a discussion on ways of improving Soldier systems. The event, co-chaired by Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski and Program Executive Officer Soldier Brig. Gen. Mark Brown, focused on incorporating Soldier feedback into proposed improvements.

This was the third SSR held in 18 months, and its focus differed from that of previous SSRs.

"The focus was really on looking at user feedback," said Dave Libersat, Soldier Systems Branch deputy.

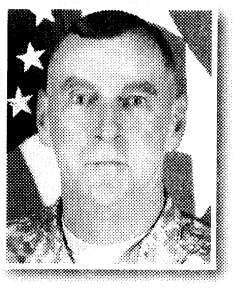
COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Battlefield success comes from mastering basics

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

The Global War on Terrorism continues to challenge the Infantry Center to produce the best Soldiers and Infantrymen in the world. To accomplish this mission we infuse Soldiers and Infantrymen with basic combat skills that make us the premier fighting force in the world. We do this by enforcing accountability, improving basic rifle marksmanship and combat qualification, conducting live-fire training, implementing battlefield first responder training, and teaching modern Army combatives. These areas prepare Soldiers to be ready to close with and destroy the enemy by fire, movement, and close combat.



Battlefield success often depends on individual accountability — this means Soldiers are responsible for their own actions. Our new rifle marksmanship program helps instill this. Soldiers learn to treat every weapon as if it is loaded. Soldiers never aim at anything they don't intend to engage, they keep their finger off the trigger until ready to engage, and they maintain situational awareness at all times — that is, they know what is in front, to the left and right of, and beyond their target before engaging.

The fight we face today can be a close fight, so the new rifle marksmanship program trains Soldiers to quickly identify, engage, and neutralize enemy forces at close range. We are also developing a new combat qualification to better train Soldiers in these tasks. Targets do not go down on the first hit. This trains the Soldier to engage the enemy until he no longer poses a threat.

To test the confidence and competence of our Soldiers, dummy rounds are used to force malfunctions during qualification. Soldiers will also make decisions on when to reload and move from position to position. These challenges mirror combat conditions and help us train Soldiers to be lethal.

Soldiers also learn they are accountable for the decisions they make during live fire exercises. During these exercises Soldiers choose their movement techniques and are responsible for the consequences of their decisions. If they choose a poor movement technique or firing position, realistic corrective training will be used to reinforce a better choice.

We also achieve success on the battlefield by treating our casualties quickly, effectively, and safely. We have incorporated first responder training and combat lifesaver certification into the training of all new Soldiers. Now, every graduating Soldier will have the skills to provide lifesaving treatment to those injured, thus dramatically increasing casualty survival rates in combat.

On occasion, we face a close fight in controlled spaces. We engage the enemy house to house and room to room. At this close range magazine changes and weapon malfunctions may mean the difference between life and death. This means we must prepare our Soldiers to lethally engage the enemy even when their weapon systems become inoperable, or when the weapon cannot be used safely and effectively in a fight. We do this by providing modern Army combatives training to Soldiers and graduate them with Level 1 certification and the confidence to win in combat.

We achieve success on the battlefield because our Soldiers are masters of the basic combat skills of our profession. Our ability to close with and destroy the enemy in any situation will make us successful in the Global War on Terrorism.

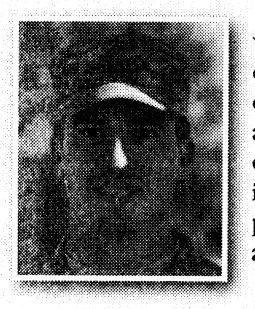
OPINION

VARIOUS VOICES

Why should you vote?

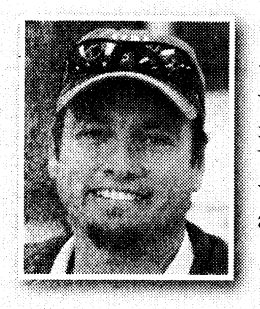
It affects how the country is going to turn out. It affects everyone, whether it's the middle class, the rich or you own your own business. I think it is important, no matter where you come from or what job title you have.

— Pfc. Tashina Jones
3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team



Because that's the ideal America was founded on — that we can choose our leadership. I figure I can do my part. I already voted by absentee ballot. It's only one vote out of however many million, but it's important to take part in the process. Plus, that way if I get mad, at least I can say I tried.

— 2nd Lt. Michael Goodman
2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment

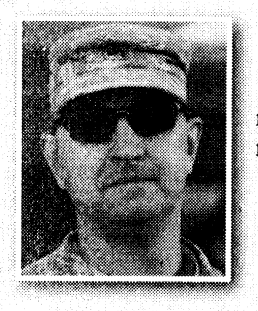


I absolutely think it's important to vote. It's a right given to us, and we should exercise that right, and if we don't, we shouldn't complain. Your vote definitely does count and will affect the outcome, one way or another.

— Retired Chief Warrant Officer Erik Tavares
Cataula, Ga.

I think every vote, especially in this election, is going to count. I don't see how people can go out and have an opinion if they don't cast a ballot. It's even just the participation in the process. That's how the Constitution is set up: by the people, for the people.

— Retired Sgt. 1st Class Rebecca Robinson
Richland, Ga.



Because of policies in the past. If no one votes, no one has the say, and no change happens.

— Sgt. Julius McKenzie
2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

What will your future hold?

THE BAYONET
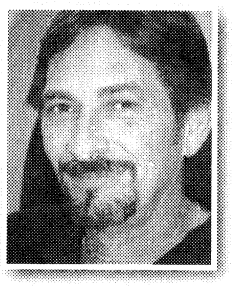
John W. Peeler



Tuesday Americans will be asked to cast their vote for the next president of the United States, along with many other important local political offices.

Regardless of the candidate chosen to fill the office of the president and commander in chief, those who are served — the people, will decide this election.

So, how important is each vote? Just ask the people from the state of Florida who voted in the last presidential election. I am sure most of us remember that chain of events.

I have heard many say they are not sure just how much one vote counts, but after coming from a small community in north Georgia, I have witnessed political races for local offices won and lost by just a few votes, so I know first-hand that every vote truly does count.

Voting is just one of several very fundamental rights we Americans sometimes take for granted, but shouldn't.

Why? Because our elected officials are responsible for our future, and I believe we all want to be involved in deciding our collective future.

A sergeant major I once worked for while on active duty told me a theory about how things get done in the world. Rather than recite the entire theory, I will just summarize it by saying — those who vote will elect the person who makes the policies for everyone — think about it.

So, in a manner of speaking, those who vote will decide the future for those who choose not to vote.

I would much rather have a voice in my future than leave it all to chance or to those who have drastic differences in the direction I see my future going. My voice is my vote.

Gas prices, medical care, the economy, taxes and a vast array of other issues are just a few of the common items we ask our elected officials to make decisions on and the only way your voice can be heard is by going to the ballot booth or voting by absentee ballot.

My voice is not only one voice in the upcoming elections, but coupled with the many other voices — these are the voices that will be heard, and they are the voices that will help shape our future.

If you want your voice to be heard, get out and vote, otherwise those who voted may be making the policy and rules, through their vote, for your future.

Soldiers welcome new commander

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Lt. Col. Richard Unda assumed command of the 1st Battalion, 329th Infantry Regiment, from Maj. Michael Miller during a change of command ceremony at the battalion's headquarters on Sand Hill Oct. 22.

Col. Daniel Kessler, commander of the 198th Infantry Brigade, presided over the ceremony.

"In an Army loaded with talent, we are fortunate to welcome Lt. Col. Unda," he said.

Before coming to Fort Benning, Unda served as commander of the 1st Battalion (Training and Support), 334th Infantry Regiment, and resided in northern Illinois. In the course of his military career, Unda deployed in support of operations Desert Storm, Joint Guard, and Iraqi Freedom. He was called to active duty to assume his new position at Fort Benning. Unda, a native of Columbus, received his commission from the University of Georgia ROTC program in 1986, and spent his first military assignment at Fort Benning with the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment.

Unda's willingness to relocate with just four weeks' notice epitomizes Army values of duty, selfless service and loyalty, Kessler said.

"His personal sacrifice provides an excellent example for us all to emulate," he said.

Outgoing commander Miller said he and his Soldiers are "ready and willing" to follow Unda's leadership.

"I am deeply honored and humbled to be standing here today as the new commander of an Infantry training unit," Unda said.

He emphasized the importance of strong leadership in training units and outlined his commitment to providing his Soldiers with quality leadership.

"I will provide you with genuine caring leadership, the type of leadership that will allow you to make the decisions you need to make to be responsible and to be successful," he said. "In return, I will demand tough leadership from you."

Unda described his goals for the unit, saying they could be summed up in single phrase.

"Be successful," he said. "Simply stated, there will be no second priorities, as I will not allow anything to interfere with our training."

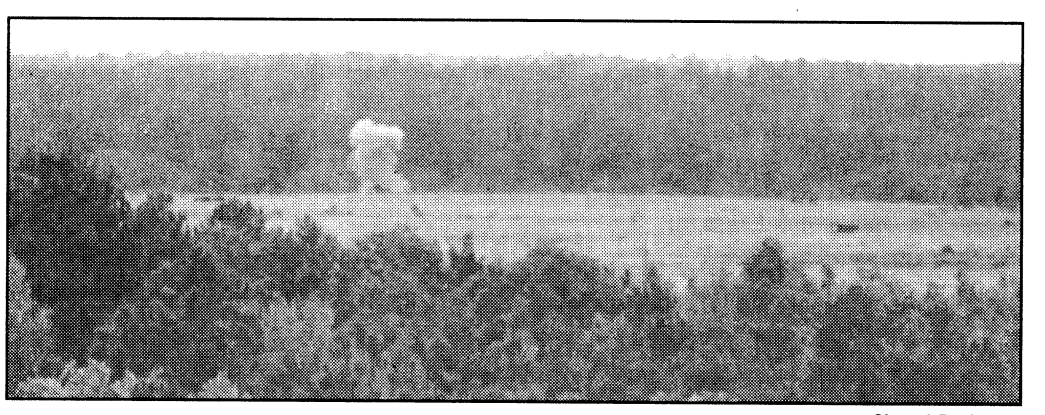
More than a thousand students from units across the Army attend the two-week course yearly. Soldiers become proficient in the Javelin weapon system through hands-on training and discussion classes, learning to shoot from a standing supported, sitting, kneeling or prone position. Many return to their units to train fellow Soldiers in the Javelin system.

"What we do is we take a guy from knowing nothing to being an expert like this gunner here," said Smith, pointing out top gunner Sgt. James Cuhn. "They learn the skills leading up to actually firing a live missile. This just shows them exactly what's going to happen once they pull the fire trigger and the capabilities of the round."

Firing that round is an honor for the top gunner, he said.

"I'm definitely excited. I get to fire $80,000 downrange and blow something up — always a good time," said Cuhn, B Company, 2nd Battalion, 121st Infantry Regiment, who will return to his unit in Newnan, Ga., as the team leader of a heavy weapon squad.



Cheryl Rodewig

After top gunner Sgt. James Cuhn fired the Javelin, it took 17 seconds to hit the target 1,800 meters away.

Cuhn said the training was timely, because he will deploy to Afghanistan next year.

"Fire-and-forget" weapons like the 50-pound, portable Javelin, which has no recoil and can accurately lock onto a target 2,000 meters away, are the best for use in combat, he said.

From the time the trigger is pulled, the missile takes 17 seconds to reach its destination.

It can wipe out almost anything, from helicopters to tanks, and is especially useful in bunker defeating, said Capt. Keithner Tucker, company commander, but the gunner must know how to compensate for distance, wind and other factors to successfully hit the target.

It's all about vision and precision, he said.

"Today is actually a good example with the overcast. You don't have the clear skies. You have the wind coming in from right to left. (Cuhn) has a two-to-three second window where he needs to lock it in and it's gone, so he has to determine all those factors," Tucker said. "Especially when you're talking about ... firing in combat, he's not going to have that much time before the enemy gets eyes on him. He needs to be precise. This isn't something he needs to be procrastinating on."

Cuhn didn't waste time at the live fire. After locking on the target, old tank parts roughly 1,800 meters downrange, he released the missile.

"My heart was racing just waiting for the go ahead, trying to keep from shaking and keep it locked on the target," Cuhn said. "It was a good feeling to see the impact, especially when it hit what it was supposed to hit."

The students graduated from the course Monday. B Company, which teaches more than 25 classes annually on post and off post through mobile training teams, will begin its second class of the fiscal year Monday.

"In SSR 1, we looked at whether equipment was meeting requirements and performing to Soldiers' expectations, as well as its funding and fielding status. In SSR 2, we focused on equipping Soldiers based on the Army Force Generation schedule. This time, we asked ourselves how we are doing in equipping Soldiers to meet their mission needs and needs in combat. To accomplish this, we surveyed units returning from deployment."

The purpose of SSRs, Libersat said, is to help the Army prioritize necessary capabilities so that it can request appropriate funding.

"Our leadership has to make some tough choices," he said. "We don't have the money to do everything, so we have to identify what the most important things are, and that's where the SSR helps us."

Senior Army participants in SSR3 will submit a memorandum outlining the main points of SSR 3 to the Army Chief of Staff. The memorandum will aid officials in making decisions concerning prioritization of Soldier capability funding.

The number one priority will be accelerating the process of getting Soldiers into a communications network, Libersat said.

In keeping with the emphasis on communication, SSR 3 had joint participation for the first time from members of the U.S. Air Force and U.S. Marine Corps.

Several changes to Soldier equipment and training will be implemented as a result of SSR 3 discussions, some of which are already affecting Soldiers. The Army will work more closely with its labs and with industry to develop more durable, effective equipment. Equipping strategies will be shifted to focus on providing proper equipment to units about to deploy, and Soldiers at training bases will be given opportunities to work with new systems before arriving at their organizations.

"We want to eventually start fielding more equipment to training bases such as NCO and officer professional development courses," Libersat said. "A new lieutenant arriving at his first unit has enough to worry about without having to work with a system he's never learned."

AFAP: Looks at issues

small to meet the needs of Fort Benning 2012 and we will not quit until we have the appropriate size hospital."

Issues such as reserve Soldier reintegration and hospital size can not be addressed on a local level, so they will be forwarded to the Training and Doctrine Command AFAP conference and ultimately to the Department of the Army. However, issues such as providing evening child care at Smith Fitness Center and establishing an on post department of motor vehicles office will be worked and discussed by on post agencies over the next few months.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of AFAP. Since its inception, thousands of issues have been raised and more than 600 of them were elevated to the Department of the Army level. Hertig has volunteered with AFAP for the last seven years and she said she continues to get involved despite the workload because she understands the importance of the program.

"I know the power of AFAP," she said. "It allows Soldiers and families to have their voices heard by leadership. It's a mechanism of change and a great way for the Army community to have a say in what their Army looks like."

"If (the system) failed completely, all these ball field lights, your running track lights, your school crossing lights, they would fail to the 'on' position, which means the lights would be on all the time. That's the default."

The radios were purchased just in time, he said. The older system failed just a few months after the new one was in place.

The radios, which have a communication range of more than six miles, can link together to send data from one to another. They can control lights on Sand Hill, Main Post and Kelley Hill. Harmony Church will be included in the coverage as that area develops with the incoming Armor School.

Not only do the radios save the installation money, but they also help the Army with its commitment to "go green" by limiting the amount of greenhouse gases released into the air, Duck said.

Fort Benning has always been a leader in environmental responsibility, he said.

"We still consume the least amount of energy for an installation over 10 million square feet in the Southeastern region, and that's good," Duck said. "But we're always looking for ways to save money — save energy, save money."

The wireless radios, first used by a military installation on Fort Benning, now have been adopted by other installations, including Charleston Air Force Base, S.C., Fort Custer, Mich., and the Marine Corps Logistic Base in Albany, Ga.

"The kind of people who actually make the Ranger Challenge team aren't just athletes. They're the guys who have the proper Army mentality ... It's not just a personal struggle. It's about being a team."

— Catlan Sardina

Cadet Benjamin Vonderheide, a student at Troy University in Alabama, plans his next move while watching a teammate tackle one of more than 20 obstacles on the Warrior Training Center confidence course Friday during the annual Ranger Challenge competition. The Ranger Challenge was the largest one in the history of cadet command, said Lt. Col. Mark Ridley, military science professor at Columbus State University and liaison for the event. The competition included 42 teams of nine students and one alternate — 420 cadets in all.

Ranger Challenge teaches teamwork

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

History was made last weekend on Fort Benning during the largest ROTC Ranger Challenge since its inception. Forty-two teams — double the number from last year — represented universities from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Puerto Rico.

"This is the largest Ranger Challenge competition in the history of cadet command," said Lt. Col. Mark Ridley, military science professor at Columbus State University. "What better place to bring the Ranger Challenge than the home of the Ranger Training Brigade?"

The cadets began the challenge in the rain Friday morning with a two-mile road march. They also took on the water confidence course at Victory Pond, the Malvesti Obstacle Course, the Army Physical Fitness Test, the one-rope bridge, the Warrior Training Center confidence course, land navigation and weapons firing and disassembly.

It helps them learn "what Ranger training is all about," Ridley said. "It's designed to build a leader. It's designed to challenge. It's designed to (help you) overcome fear. When they go back to their campus and they're wearing that Ranger Challenge Tab on their uniforms, that's something to be proud of."

Cadets volunteer to participate in the competition, which not only shows them a different aspect of Army life but can also help recruit new cadets, Ridley said.

This is something most college students won't experience in a lifetime, he said.

The cadets returned to their schools this week having conquered a variety of challenges. For Sharon Wheelock, a junior at the University of Alabama, the biggest challenge was the "Dirty Name," one of more than 20 obstacles on the WTC confidence course.

"You had to jump and flip yourself over the (log)," Wheelock said. "We would just end up hitting it and falling off."

Even though she and her teammates were tired, they pushed through the course together, she said.

Many teams train during the school year and even the summer for the annual event. Selection for the Ranger Challenge team is often competitive.

"The kind of people who actually make the Ranger Challenge team aren't just athletes," said Catlan Sardina, team captain for Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach, Fla., which placed ninth in the competition.

"They're the guys who have the proper Army mentality," he said. "It really comes down to the fact that these guys do not care if they're hurt. We aspire to be the best at everything we do. There is a group of guys here willing to drive through any pain, anything at all, in order to be the best at what they do. It's not just a personal struggle. It's about being a team."

The competition ended Sunday morning with a six-mile road march. The Florida Institute of Technology placed first overall. Teams were also divided into tiers according to program size. For its tier, Columbus State University placed second.

Cadets from the University of Mississippi secure their one-rope bridge by pulling on the rope before crossing the bridge Friday.

Aaron Boyer, Ryan Quinn and Anthony Sabatini, cadets from the University of Florida, help Tad Schnaufer reach the next level of "The Skyscraper." Completing the obstacles on the Warrior Training Center confidence course was a timed event. The obstacles included monkey bars, tunnels, balance beams and more — covering what cadets have to do with obstacles like "Swing Stop Jump," to what they have to be, "The Tarzan."

Airborne names Black Hat of Year

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Staff Sgt. Brian Ross was presented with an Army Commendation Medal for winning the Black Hat of the Year competition during a ceremony at Marshall Auditorium Oct. 24. Tech. Sgt. Kevin Lynch and Staff Sgt. William Pittman, first and second runners-up, were presented with Army Achievement Medals. The Black Hat is the headgear worn by Army Airborne instructors to distinguish them from other Soldiers and units.

Ross competed against six other Soldiers in a monthlong competition that tested participants' expertise in all aspects of Airborne training.

"It was a pretty hard competition," he said.

Soldiers were required to have passed the six week Black Hat certification course in order to be eligible, and to have been certified for at least six months prior to the event.

The competition consisted of six events: knowledge of the Black Hat formal instruction book, an Airborne physical fitness test, knowledge of basic Airborne course standard operating procedures, practical work in aircraft, a jumpmaster personnel inspection, and ability to conduct sustained Airborne training. Each event was graded by a master trainer and supervised by Command Sgt. Maj. Michael Catterton.

"The formal instruction was the hardest part of the competition," Ross said. "We had to memorize about six pages of lessons, and recite them word for word, without mistakes, in front of a lot of people. I'm not really that good with public speaking, so it was difficult."

Despite the challenges he faced, Ross earned the highest scores, winning the competition.

"I feel pretty good, and I'm proud that I won it," he said.

Ross has no plans to slow down just yet. He is going to continue his Airborne training, he said, and has set more goals for the future.

"I'd like to become a master trainer at Airborne school," he said, "and also earn a Master Parachutist Badge."

REWARD

A reward of $2,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for armed robbery of a Soldier on Sept. 8 behind the Kelley Hill Shoppette, Building 9177.

The person is described as an African-American male, approximately 6 feet tall and 230 pounds with an athletic build, round face, clean shaven. He was wearing a black do-rag, white baggy T-shirt, black shorts, and black sneakers.

Anyone having knowledge of the incident, but not wishing to be identified, will be briefed on available options for maintaining their confidentiality and are encouraged to call the Fort Benning CID Office at 706-545-7905 or the Military Police desk at 706-545-5222. The reward offer expires Sept. 18, 2009.

ELECTION DAY

Employees may be excused without charge to leave or loss of pay for up to three hours immediately after the polls open or immediately before they close.

Generally where the polls are not open at least three hours before or after an employee's regular work hours, an activity may grant a limited amount of excused absence that will permit the employee to report for work three hours after the polls open or leave from work three hours before they close, whichever requires the lesser amount of time off.

For example, if an employee is scheduled to work from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and the employee's polling place is open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., the employee should not be granted excused absence for voting since the employee would still have at least three hours after the end of the work day to vote. However, if the employee is scheduled to work from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., the employee may be granted one-half hour of excused absence from 4 to 4:30 p.m., if requested.

For more information, call your human resource specialist.

LENDING CLOSET MOVES

Army Community Service's Relocation Readiness and Lending Closet has moved. It is now located in Building 2621 at Soldiers' Plaza. For more information, call 706-545-0403.

CUSTOMER EVALUATION SYSTEM

It's easy to rate the services you receive from organizations on Fort Benning or anywhere in the world via the Interactive Customer Evaluation system.

Log onto the ICE Web site at http://ice.disa.mil from any computer, pick out the installation and service of interest and complete the online customer comment card, which will be sent for action directly to the organization rated. Those who leave their contact information will receive a response from the organization. ICE kiosks and terminals are located in customer service areas around Fort Benning or comments can be submitted from any computer using the Web site.

ID CARD OFFICE GOES TO APPOINTMENTS ONLY

Effective Saturday, the post ID card section will operate on an appointment only basis to serve each customer in 10 minutes. There will also be same day appointments available for people with emergencies, including lost or stolen ID cards or an emergency medical situation. For appointments, call 706-545-4068.

MCOE COMMUNITY UPDATES

The public is invited to attend the Maneuver Center of Excellence community update the first Tuesday of each month at 3 p.m., Classroom 6, in Infantry Hall, on Fort Benning.

The community update is an effort to educate the public on the latest news, timeliness, milestones, and progress being made as Fort Benning makes the historic transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence. For more information, call 706-545-4729.

AMMUNITION SUPPLY POINT CLOSURE

The Fort Benning Ammunition Supply Point will close for quarterly inventory Nov. 6-10. However, the ASP will not re-open until 8 a.m. Nov. 12 because of the Veterans Day holiday. To prevent training stoppages, all requests for ammunition and explosives should be submitted in sufficient time on a DA Form 581. Pickup and turn-in dates will be scheduled around the closure dates. Emergency issues during the inventory period must have G3 and G4 approval. Storage time in the Vehicle Holding Area will be extended accordingly. For more information, call Bill Floyd at 706-544-6015.

OPEN SEASON, FAIR

The Federal Employee Benefits Open Season is Nov. 10 through Dec. 9. The Civilian Personnel Advisory Center will host a health fair Nov. 12 in Meloy Hall. Representatives from several health, dental and vision carriers will be available to answer questions from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Enrollment and changes to Federal Employee Health Benefits must be made through the ABC-C Web site. Information on 2009 premiums is available at www.opm.gov/insure/. Open season information for Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program is available at https://benefeds.com/. For more information, call Felicia Griffin at 706-545-2681.

CLEAN OUT E-MAIL

The Directorate of Information Management encourages post e-mail users to perform routine house cleaning of all mailboxes to reduce overall database size of the e-mail system. If a server fails, it can be restored faster, and the system runs more efficiently. Empty deleted items weekly and move e-mails from your inbox to a personal folder offline or information may be lost. For more information, call 706-545-2178 or e-mail benndoimhelpdesk@conus.army.mil.

MOTORCYCLE SAFETY CLASS

To register for Motorcycle Safety Foundation courses, visit https://airs.lmi.org, select available courses, select Fort Benning in the garrison drop-down list, select the course from the drop-down list and select the date of the course desired using the calendar that pops up on the page.

There are two courses for each date: one for personnel using their own motorcycles and one for those using the trainer motorcycles. Those experiencing difficulty registering should contact the Combat Readiness Office (Safety), Building 18, or call the MSF instructors at 706-545-0893.

HOUSING OFFICE RELOCATED

The housing office has relocated from Building 2621 in Soldiers' Plaza to Building 2619 in Soldiers' Plaza. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For questions about off-post housing, call 706-545-3921. Unaccompanied personnel who have questions about on-post housing can call 706-545-2751.

CID RECRUITING

CID special agent duties comprise investigating felony crimes involving U.S. Army personnel and assets, crime prevention, and personal protection of U.S. and foreign dignitaries. CID special agents are federal law enforcement officers. CID needs qualified Soldiers.

The qualifications are: U.S. citizen, at least 21 years old, have a GT score of at least 110, possess two years of military experience, be a specialist or nonpromotable sergeant, suitable character established by a Single Scope Background Investigation leading to a Top Secret clearance, no record of psychological or pathological personality disorders, no record of unsatisfactory credit, at least 60 semester hours of college, no civil or courts-martial convictions, normal color vision and have a physical profile of 222221 or higher.

The training includes U.S. Army Military Police School Special Agent Course; advanced training in specialized investigative disciplines; opportunities to attend training at the FBI National Academy, the Canadian Police College, Scotland Yard and pursuit of a master's degree in forensic sciences from George Washington University. For more information, call Special Agent Jeremy McCormick at 706-545-0247.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Phillies win World Series

The Philadelphia Phillies beat the Tampa Bay Rays, 4-2, in a delayed Game 5 Wednesday to win their second World Series title. The Phillies won their first title back in 1980.

Phillies' pitcher Cole Hamels was awarded the World Series MVP.

Willingham to step down

Tyrone Willingham, Washington Huskies coach, said he will step down at the end of the football season. After the past weekend, Washington was 0-7.

Willingham was asked if it was his decision to step down, and he said no, that it wasn't in his makeup.

Willingham was the coach of Notre Dame for three seasons before being fired in 2004.

Titans still undefeated

The Tennessee Titans won their 10th straight regular-season game, dating to last season, which makes it the second-longest in franchise history. The Titans beat the Indianapolis Colts, 31-21, Oct. 27.

LenDale White ran for two touchdowns, and Chris Hope picked off two throws by Colts' QB Peyton Manning.

The Colts fell to 3-4 on the season, the first time under .500 since Manning's rookie season in 1998.

Edwards wins at AMS

Carl Edwards won his seventh career race at Atlanta Motor Speedway Oct. 26. Although he finished first, he didn't manage to gain many points on leader Jimmie Johnson in the Chase for the Sprint Cup.

Johnson remains in first, followed by Edwards, who is 183 points behind him. Greg Biffle is just two points behind Edwards.

This week's race is the Dickies 500 from Texas Motor Speedway. Coverage begins at 3 p.m. on ABC on Sunday. Only three races remain in the season.

Johnson not playing

Hours later, the Chiefs said Johnson, a two-time Pro Bowler, would not being playing in future games, though they didn't put a timeline on it.

It's the fourth time in five years he has been accused of assaulting a woman.

Seve update

Golfer Seve Ballesteros was listed in stable but serious condition after a six-and-a-half hour operation Oct. 24 for removal of the rest of a cancerous brain tumor.

In the first half of the game, after several unsuccessful series of plays for both teams, the 598th Maintenance Co. took the lead on a third-down play from the 30-yard line with 598th's Greg Miller scoring the first touchdown of the game. With a successful extra point conversion, 598th led, 7-0, at the end of the first half. In the final half, the 598th racked up another touchdown and extra point conversion, making the score 14-0. The 75th Ranger Regt. scored their lone touchdown of the game, but failed to convert the extra point to close out the scoring with the 598th taking the 14-6 victory.

"When you are out there on the field, play as a team and win as a team," said 598th's coach Beshaen Hollis to his team before the game.

Memory Walk at Brookstone School set for Nov. 8

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Alzheimer's Association of Columbus will host the sixth annual Memory Walk Nov. 8 at Brookstone School in Columbus.

It will raise funds for Alzheimer's patients while bringing awareness of the disease to the community, said Christina Vogler, development director at the Alzheimer's Association.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, 199,000 people in Georgia have Alzheimer's disease, including 10,000 people in Columbus.

"Alzheimer's is a debilitating disease and it can get really expensive — some of the costs aren't covered by insurance plans and the patients need full-time care," Vogler said.

All of the money raised from the walk will stay in the Columbus community and go toward caregiver expenses, support groups, training, literature on Alzheimer's and supplies for patients.

Since 1989, the Memory Walk has raised more than $230 million nationwide.

The turnout for this year's walk is bigger than ever, Vogler said.

Participants in this year's walk have raised around $51,000 so far. The goal is $60,000. Last year, there were 22 teams who participated in the walk and this year, the number has doubled resulting in around $9,000 more being raised than at this same time last year.

Participants can raise money for the cause, but it isn't required. Those who raise $150 will receive a Memory Walk T-shirt. The cost to walk is free.

Registration will start at 9 a.m. before the opening ceremonies and the walk will start at 10 a.m. at Brookstone School. Coffee and doughnuts will be provided before the race and lunch will be provided following the walk for free.

Individuals or teams of up to 10 people can participate in the walk. Walkers can pre-register or sign up race day. To register or for more information, go to http://columbusmemorywalk.kintera.org or call 706-327-6838.

Third place was Trystan Doyle with a five fish limit and 4.39 pounds. Fourth place was Jacob Myers who also had five fish weighing 4.20 pounds. Scott Story placed fifth with three fish weighing 2.93 pounds. Jay Edmonds took sixth place with his two fish weighing 1.55 pounds.Tanner Hope placed seventh with one bass weighing 1.18 pounds. Nicholas Story finished eighth with one fish weighing .97 pounds.

The next youth tournament will be Nov. 22 on Lake Harding. The Benning BASS Club fished its Oct. 11-12 bass tournament on Lake Martin.

Randy Duncan of Columbus took first place with 10 fish and a total weight of 15.43 lbs. Second place went to Chris Cox of Phenix City with 10 fish totaling 14.07 lbs. Third place went to Jim Lehman of Columbus with 10 fish totaling 13.25 lbs. Big Bass went to Randy Duncan with a largemouth weighing 3.31 lbs.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

Fit Facts is back.

Sorry to all you guys that read my column.

I have been on a bit of a break recently, but I am back and ready to keep you guys informed with fitness facts.

This week, however, I want to take a second to say thank you to everyone who reads my column. I didn't really realize that people actually read it until a lady who works in my office reading my article mentioned it while sitting in the hospital waiting room.

She said several people were talking about it and taking some of the advice. I got to tell you guys I do appreciate it.

I know I read many articles in magazines and newspapers and I tend to think — what does this person really know? They probably spend their whole day working out, getting free diet foods, and new exercise equipment to try out.

But for those of you who don't know me, I am just a normal, everyday girl. I don't "love" exercise and I work full time with MWR and am always looking for easier ways to get my workouts into my daily schedule. I always struggle with weight: I love to eat pizza, nachos and sweets.

So, when I think about what articles to write, I really do try to think about what would help me, a normal working person with a life, and what I would want to know about staying healthy and fit — so I hope these columns help and readers know you can trust that the article is coming from someone who struggles with being healthy.

This week? Halloween and how you can help control all those treats for the kids —and you — and how to make this Halloween just a little healthier.

Try these ideas:

•Let your children enjoy some of their Halloween candy in moderation when they have finished trick-or-treating — after you have inspected the treats for safety. Just remember, keep a close eye on how much they eat.

•Set limits. Moderation is the key. Enjoy the candy for a day or two then throw the rest away. Many think this is wasteful, however, if kids or parents have difficulty controlling their candy consumption, this may be what you need to do.

•Put the extra treats into a high cabinet in your kitchen or pantry. Out of sight is out of mind, and you can control how many treats your kids get over the next few days.

•Don't buy Halloween candy early.You will tempt yourself and your kids to eat too much before the trick-or-treating starts.

•Give out individually packaged non-sugary treats or alternatives to candy. Treats such as nuts, raisins, sunflower seeds, cashews, chips, microwave popcorn and stickers.

•Skip the Halloween candy sale tomorrow. Cheap bags of candy may sound like a good buy, but you don't need the sugar and calories. I know you want them, but best leave them in the store.

I love candy just as much as the next person, but moderation is best.

Enjoy a few pieces of candy and enjoy Halloween, there is nothing wrong with that. Just remember not to go overboard. Make good choices and set good examples for the kids.

Have a safe and happy Halloween.

A Tradition of Therapy, "The Roosevelt Way"

Hands-on approach achieves results.

Roosevelt Warm Springs has been a leader in therapy since the Second World War. Returning military therapists were among the first to develop "The Roosevelt Way," a hands-on approach that became the model for dealing with polio and more recently spinal cord injuries and amputees. Veterans are encouraged to again take advantage of this tradition in the following therapy disciplines:

Physical Therapy | Occupational Therapy | Recreational Therapy
Respiratory Therapy | Speech & Language Pathology

this — I believe in my players," he said.

At halftime, Hollis said his team was "playing sloppy."

"This win and being in the playoffs is why we worked hard all season," he said after the game. "I think we played a good game and had a strong defense."

"Any day you get to play football is a good day," he said.

He said in the beginning, the wind and cold had an effect on both teams.

"We were both struggling to move the ball, but as the game went on, we adjusted." Schmidtz said.

It was a tough competition, said 75th Ranger Regt. player Jacques Migues.

"I think we played hard but I guess it wasn't hard enough," he said.

The 75th Ranger Regiment moves to the losers bracket. To make it to the championship game, they need to win seven games in a row.

The 598th Maintenance Co. took on 14th Combat Support Hospital Wednesday in the second round of the playoffs and won 25-19. They advanced to the quarter finals Oct. 30. Sixteen of 30 teams will fight it out to make it to the championship Thursday.

Chattco volleyball team goes to state, falls to St. Vincent's

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Chattahoochee County High School varsity volleyball team (1A-AA) advanced to the Georgia High School Association state volleyball tournament after placing second in Region 1-AA behind Early County, but were ousted from the state tournament following an opening round loss to the St. Vincent's High School Lady Saints Saturday at Wesleyan High School. The Lady Panthers lost three consecutive games to St. Vincent's.

During the opening round match, sophomore Kamara Riley racked up one kill, seven assists and three digs. Senior Ryan Rogers registered one kill, one ace and two blocks. Senior Georgeshia Embry made two digs and three aces.

"After the first game (13-25), I felt disappointed, but I still thought we had a shot at winning," said Conley, daughter of Sgt. 1st Class Wendell Conley. "After the second game (9-25), I think we just quit because we knew there was only one game left and no matter what we did, we weren't going to win."

The final game was 6-25. Noelani said she wanted to win but she was happy just to be at state.

"Not everyone gets to go to state, I feel lucky," she said.

"It's a big deal to go to state. Volleyball is new to this area and for us to even go to state is outstanding," she said. "We can use this loss as a learning tool for next year. I think now that the team has been to state, they know what to work on before it comes around next year."

BOSS Soldiers lend a hand to Special Olympics

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

"The BOSS program was the main volunteer source for the games," said Daniel Lockart, Regional Manager for Special Olympics, Georgia. They have been volunteering for more than five years.

Even the bad weather could not deter the more than 200 Olympians who participated in the basketball-themed games.

"We had to make some adjustments to the schedule, but we're here," said Lockart.

BOSS turned out in force for the Olympics with 118 volunteers assisting in the games, said Sgt. Zkmain Mahoney, Fort Benning BOSS Program president.

"The BOSS Program did an excellent job working with the athletes and volunteering throughout the day," Lockart said. "Teachers and parents came up to me and thanked me for a job well done regarding the games ... this thankfulness should resonate with every Soldier who participated because they directly impacted the joy, courage, and strength of our athletes.

"I am not sure if these games would have been possible without the support of the Fort Benning BOSS Program Soldiers."

"We just want to get out and be able to help the kids," Mahoney said. "We want them to see that we are here to support them no matter what."

Mahoney said the BOSS Program participated in the spring Special Olympics and were invited back to the winter games.

"It is one of our top priorities," Mahoney said. "We hope to be able to participate in the games as long as they are around."

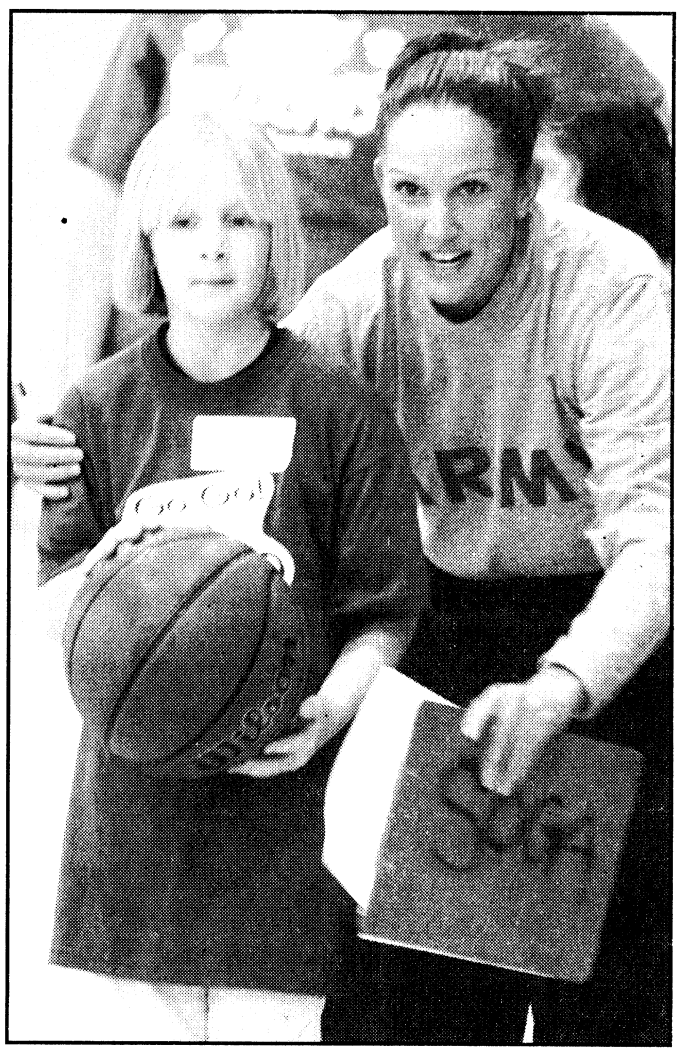
The Soldiers really enjoyed the entire event," Mahoney said. "It made us realize that these kids have goals too and want to be accepted by society and are willing to do something like this."



John W. Peeler

Eighth-grader focuses, trains for football

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Eleven months out of the year, 13-year-old Tyler DeNova is either playing football or wrestling.

"I love sports. I don't think I could live without them," DeNova said. DeNova is a co-captain, linebacker and running back on the Fort Benning Bengals 12- and 13-year-old football team and is also a wrestler at Fort Benning.

DeNova started playing football at the age of 10 after he moved from Fort Lewis, Wash., to Fort Benning with his family. DeNova would've started football earlier, but Fort Lewis didn't have a team for his age group, he said. When his dad, Master Sgt. Bill DeNova, was transferred to Fort Benning, Tyler said he was happy there was a team for his age group.

"Being part of a football team is fun. We are a family — we know each other so well. We are together whether we win or lose," Tyler said.

The 5-foot-10-inch, 160-pound Faith Middle School eighth-grader said football is a balance between mental and physical strength.

"You have to be able to focus, be disciplined, train hard and do your best," Tyler said. "And, sometimes it's hard to give 100 percent. But, if you give 100 percent and don't succeed, you can always keep trying and you'll get it."

His other love is wrestling.

Last year, Tyler was a first place champion in the 12 and under 130-pound weight class at the Georgia Kids' State Championship. He also took seventh place last year at the ASICS United States of America Wrestling Folkstyle Nationals in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Faith Middle School eighth-grader, Tyler DeNova, is co-captain, linebacker and running back on the Benning Bengals 12- and 13-year-old team and also is a wrestler at Fort Benning.

"We are a sports family," Tyler said.

Joe wrestles, his dad coaches football and wrestling, his mom, Sharon, played volleyball and basketball in high school and his sister, Jackie, is at Ole' Miss on a soccer scholarship.

"When the kids were young, we got them involved in many sports to see what would stick," said Bill, who played football in college and started playing football when he was 10 years old. "When I was a kid, sports were what I did. I went outside every day and played some kind of sport. It's important to keep kids in sports in today's day and age because it's one of the few activities that keep kids active, unlike playing video games."

"I like being able to spend the extra time with my kids," he said. "Sports really is a bonding experience for us."

USAMU Soldiers compete in world cup finals

USAMU
Paula J. Randall

Two Soldiers of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit are competing in the prestigious International Shooting Sport Federation World Cup Final.

Rifle and pistol shooters will participate in the elite World Cup Finals Nov. 1 to 6 in Bangkok, Thailand. The ISSF only invites the top shooters in the world to compete in this exclusive match, which is the traditional closing competition of the international shooting season.

Three-time Olympian Sgt. 1st Class Daryl L. Szarenski and Sgt. Michael D. McPhail, both of the USAMU, will compete in the World Cup Final.

Also competing are 2008 Olympic silver medalist Matt Emmons in Men's Three Position, Prone and Air Rifle, 2008 Olympic bronze medalist Jason Turner in Men's Air Pistol, 2008 Olympian Jaime Beyerle and Morgan Hicks in Women's Three Position Sport Rifle and 2008 Olympian Emily Caruso in Women's Air Rifle.

McPhail won the bronze medal in Prone Rifle and Szarenski took the bronze medal in Free Pistol at the World Cup in Beijing, China, in April. They will be competing in the same matches at the World Cup Final.

Two-time Olympian Sgt. 1st Class Thomas A. Tamas of the USAMU, who received the silver medal in Men's Prone Rifle at the Beijing World Cup, also qualified for the Prone Rifle competition but will not compete.

Benning plans Retiree Appreciation Day

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Fort Benning will host its 25th annual Retiree Appreciation Day Nov. 7.

The event, sponsored by Retirement Services, will feature a special breakfast and luncheon for retirees, as well as booths with information from a variety of participating sponsors.

"Lots of retirees look forward to this day," said Retirement Services Officer Verna Clemons. "It's a time for people to see friends who they haven't seen in a long time. We'll have people coming from all over the country."

The day will begin with breakfast at Sand Hill. Participants will be invited to attend a graduation ceremony for OSUT, a training course for new Soldiers specializing in the Infantry, before attending a luncheon at the Benning Club. Retired Lt. Col. Gary Quintero, Deputy Chief of Army Retirement Services, will be the featured guest speaker. Guests attending the event will be eligible to win a variety of door prizes.

"We're going to have about 20 prizes," Clemons said, "including microwaves, fishing rods, vacuum cleaners and luggage. They're all items people can actually use, and were all purchased at the PX."

Beginning at 1 p.m., vendors from around Fort Benning and Columbus will be on hand at the Benning Club with information about their products and services.

"The commissary will be there, as well as the PX, and we'll also have flu shots available," Clemons said.

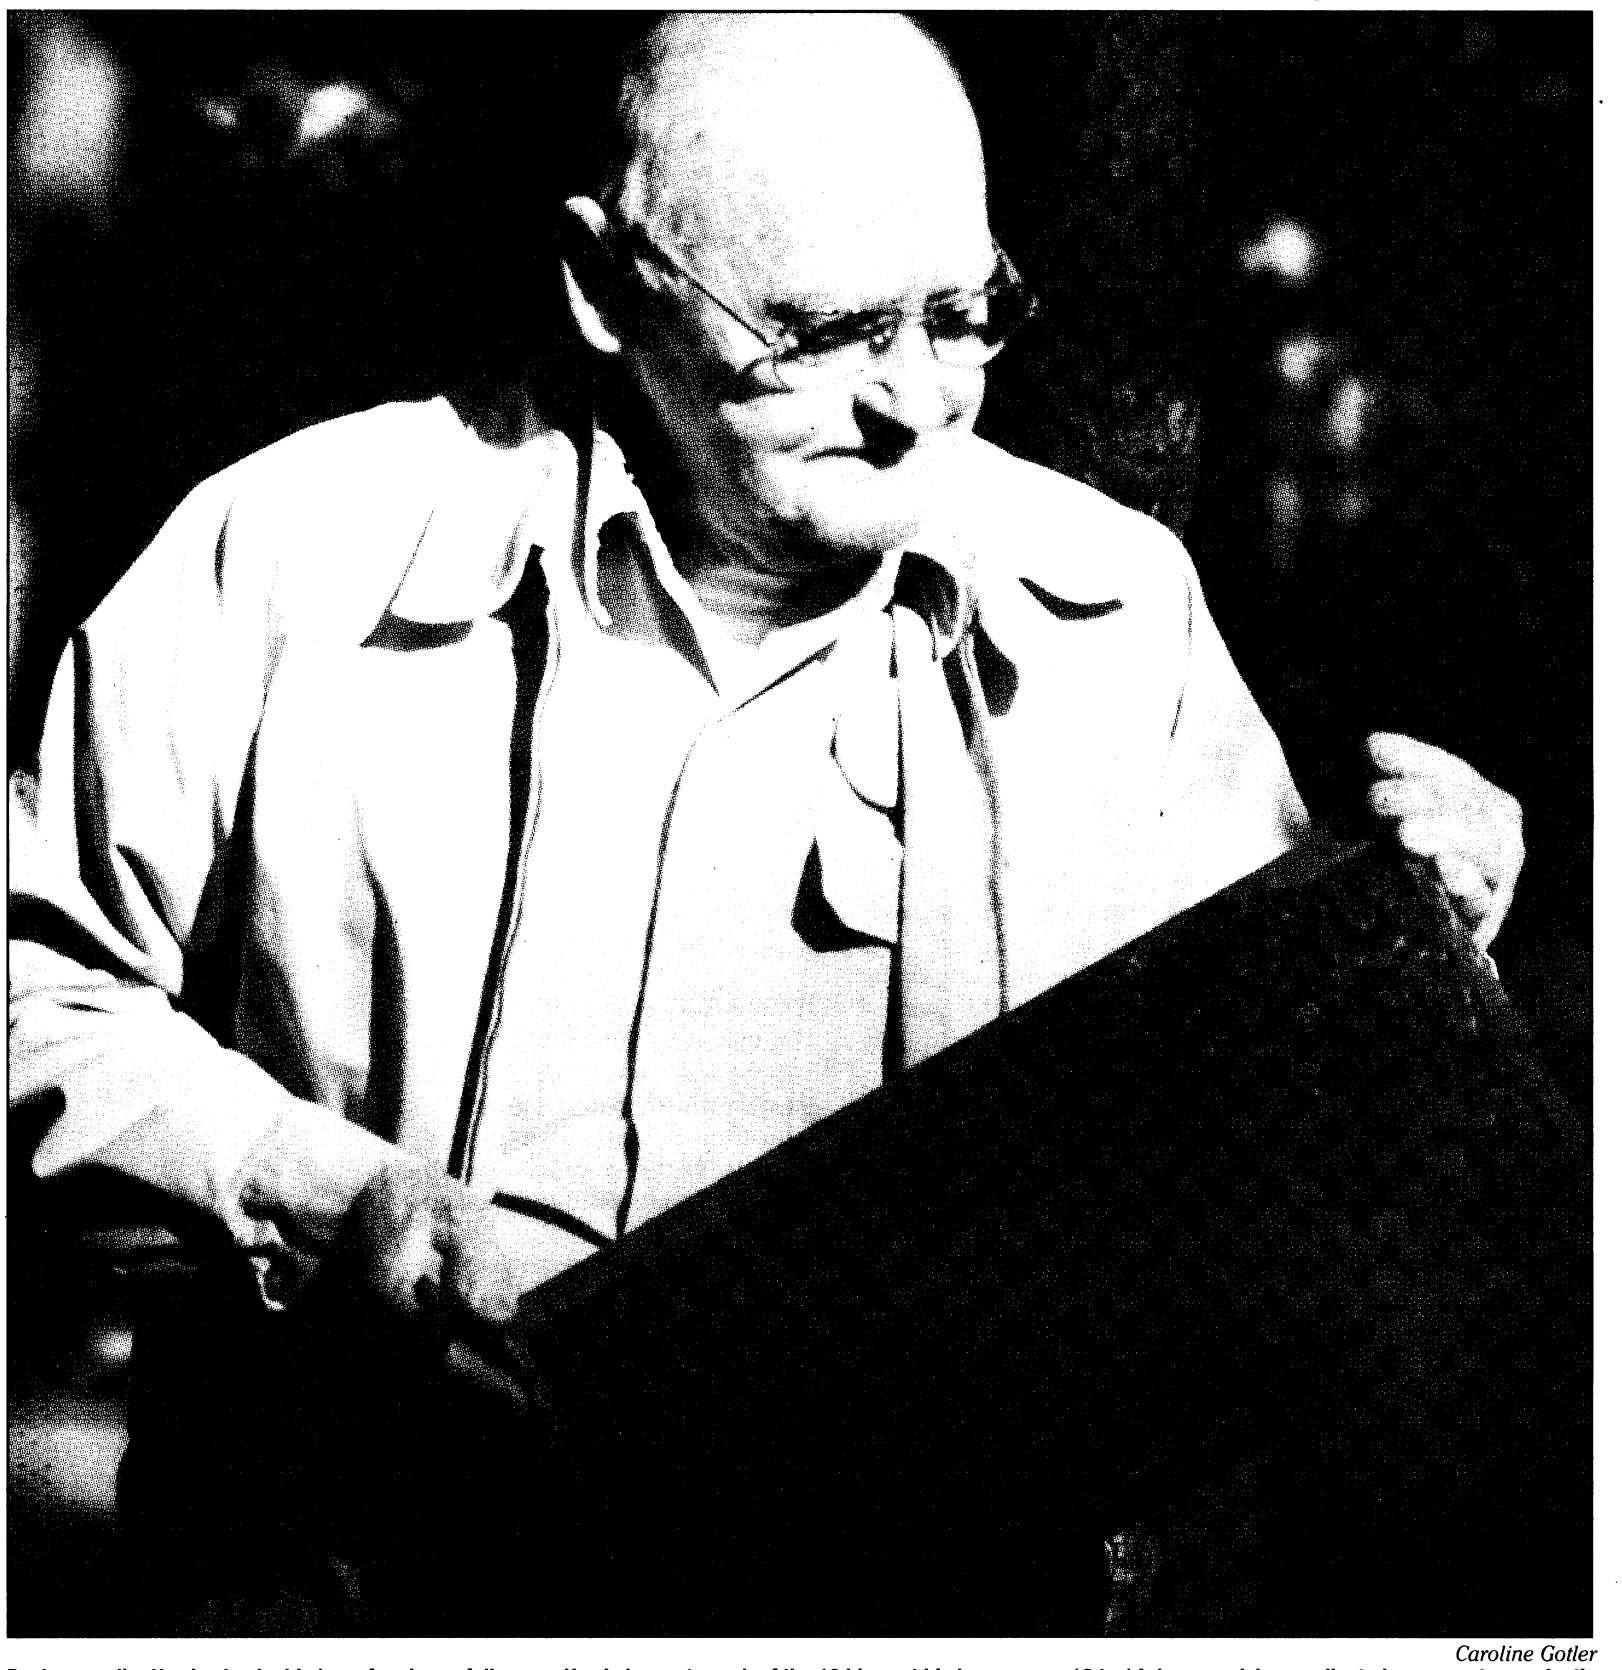
Clemons said she expects strong attendance this year, which she credits to the high quality of life at Fort Benning.

"Everybody wants to come to Fort Beninng," she said. "We're the best installation in my opinion. People who have retired from Fort Benning want to come back and see how it's doing."

All retired military personnel, their families and spouses are eligible to attend. Retirees may also register guests who do not hold military ID cards. The cost to attend breakfast and lunch is $16.60 per person, and the cost for lunch only is $14.50.

For more information, or to register in advance, call Verna Clemons at 706-545-1805.

Columbus beekeeper living the sweet life



Caroline Gotler

Beekeeper Jim Harris checks his bees for signs of disease. Harris inspects each of the 10 hives at his home every 10 to 14 days, applying medicated sugar water or plastic strips when necessary. His bees are suceptible to diseases caused by certain invasive species of mites from Africa, which can kill an entire honeybee colony, Harris said.

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Jim Harris wears a button pinned to his jacket proclaiming him "The Honeybee Man."

The Columbus resident and retired Soldier has been keeping bees for more than 30 years, and has been an active force in educating the local community about the benefits of beekeeping. He is the founder of the Chattahoochee Valley Beekeepers Association and speaks about bees at schools, clubs, and churches.

"Anywhere that they want to hear about bees, I'll talk," Harris said.

Harris is also responsible for starting a short course on beekeeping at the Oxbow Meadows Environmental Learning Center, which he said grew out of his desire to help others avoid the mistakes that he made as a beginner.

"I made every mistake you could think of," he said.

"I put them where they couldn't get any sunshine, and I also didn't know how to check them for disease. Since I made so many mistakes, that's the reason why I got this course going."

Harris' work has not gone unrecognized. The Georgia Beekeepers Association honored Harris with an award for Beekeeper of the Year at their fall meeting Sept. 26.

"I was very surprised," he said.

Harris credits his son with first sparking his interest in bees.

"When he was going to the University of Georgia, he learned a little about honeybees," he said. "He liked it so well that when he came back home, he got a hive and put it in the backyard."

After Harris' son married and moved away, Harris took over his hobby. Now 81, he said he has no plans to slow down.

"It keeps me doing something," he said. "I'm retired, and I don't sit around and watch the tube all day. I'd rather watch honeybees."

Customer survey allows post officials to assess services

CUSTOMER SERVICE OFFICE

The window for the inaugural Customer Service Assessment survey officially opened Oct. 20 and will close Nov. 7. During this time, everyone who lives, works or does business on Fort Benning is asked to take the survey and provide ratings for all of the garrison's services.

Customers need to log into the survey at www.myarmyvoice.org/Community2008 and be willing to spend 20 to 30 minutes online in order to answer all the questions.

They will first answer a number of basic, demographic questions which will steer them to the set of questions about services relevant to them.

Each question has two parts: the first asks for a one to five rating on the importance of a service, the second asks for a performance rating from one to five. Customers will be required to provide comments only for those services they give ratings of one (very poor) or two (poor).

"This survey empowers customers — installation leaders, Soldiers, Department of the Army Civilians, retirees and family members — to have a real voice in evaluating all services," said Tony Patino, the Installation Management Command West Region Customer Management Services coordinator.

"The voice of the customer lets us know how we're doing. In turn, we let

High School Night set for Thursday

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Faith Middle School and the post School Liaison Office will host High School Night for upcoming high school students from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school.

The evening will offer students and parents the opportunity to learn about area high schools and ask questions about the transition from middle school to high school.

Representatives from Muscogee, Chattahoochee and Russell county schools will provide information about admission requirements and deadlines, school programs, special needs assistance and extracurricular activities.

"Many schools require students to meet certain criteria for admission," said Tawanna Brown, post school liaison officer. "We want to provide that information to families early so they can prepare children to succeed in their school of choice."

This is the first year the school has hosted High School Night in the fall.

A similar night is held every year in January, but it's geared toward eighth-grade students and their parents, said Gerald Madler, Faith guidance counselor. This night is open to eighth-graders, but seventh-grade students and their parents are strongly encouraged to attend.

"There has to be some plan of action," Madler said.

"The kids need to know — this is what you need to do this year and next to set yourself up for success," he said. "It gives them an overview of all the different programs, (and) it gives them a sense of responsibility and ownership of their academics. That's what it's all about."

Light refreshments will be provided.

National numbers are 1-800-SUICIDE or 1-800-273-TALK, available 24/7.

The Tricare behavioral health care appointment line is 1-877-298-3514. Soldiers with a referral can call this line to obtain an appointment in the network, family members can also call to obtain an appointment but they are not required to have a referral first.

The Army does not attach a stigma to Soldiers seeking help with day to day pressures. The idea is to make the Soldier and the family whole, which supports the Army's overall Mission. Don't hesitate to call if you are experiencing problems and need help.

Redeployment requires communication

AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Mary Markos

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany — All Eva Creel wanted for 12 months was for her husband to come home from Afghanistan to be by her side.

When he returned, she found she wanted nothing more than her own personal space.

Creel — like many spouses of Soldiers returning from deployments — discovered firsthand that the rush of emotions after redeployment can both draw a couple together and pull them apart.

"When they're gone, you miss them terribly, but you become very independent," she said. "I had my routine, my schedule and my plans. He kind of got in the way of all those things."

Redeployment is an overwhelming joy and a roller coaster ride of emotions, including everything from feelings of guilt from a newfound independence to the insecurity and frustration of getting to know one another again. But these emotions are 100 percent normal, said Chaplain (Lt. Col.) David Scheider, deputy chaplain for the U.S. Army Garrison here.

The key to getting back on track, he said, is communicating expectations and emotions with one another.

During extended separations, Scheider said, it is common for couples to develop unrealistic expectations of a physical and emotional reunion. One of the most common types of expectation building is for Soldiers to develop an unrealistic image of their spouse in their minds. A very high number of deployed troops do this.

"There is really not much of a place to get away from it all (while deployed)," he said. "So they develop a place in their brain to go to, in their memories. And they start to build this safe place. The star of that safe place in their mind is usually their (spouse).

"After awhile, they'll begin to develop this expectation of (the spouse) as this perfect person," he said. " It is totally unrealistic. It is half fantasy and half reality."

Back at home, Creel said, a spouse may experience the same thing.

"I did turn him into this perfect husband (during the deployment)," she said. "The reality is different."

To prevent reality shock from upending the marriage, the Soldier and spouse should reevaluate the "fantasy" image they have created of their loved one, Scheider said. Because everyone changes during deployments, couples must evaluate the reality of who they have become and get to know each other again when they're reunited after a deployment.

In doing so, they shouldn't take anything for granted, he said. Couples should communicate even the most obvious expectations and desires, even something as simple as how much time you expect to spend alone or who will take out the trash.

Some spouses look forward to handing over the job of disciplinarian and household organizer to the redeploying Soldier, Scheider said, but recently returned service members often can't make this decision because they are unsure of what the rules were in their absence, or what the rules should be. At the same time, the spouse is ready to hand off the disciplinarian hat, the Soldier, having missed birthdays and other important family events, is ready to make up for lost time by overindulging the child.

Talk, talk and more talk is the key, Scheider said, as maintaining open communication — detailing both large and small expectations — is one of the only ways to weather the emotional storm of reintegrating.

Another sticking point, the chaplain said, is when increasingly confident spouses who have grown independent during the deployment, begin to resent when their redeployed Soldiers expect them to put their lives on hold and devote all of their time to them.

While each couple will experience variations of these common scenarios, each relationship and every individual is unique, Scheider said. The bottom line and the driving factor for a smooth reintegration is to make reconnecting as a couple a top priority.

Soldiers may find themselves feeling both hurt and proud that their spouse coped so well without them, he said. They may question whether or not they are needed in the relationship, and may even feel like an outsider in the family. Spouses should understand these feelings and attempt to make the Soldier feel needed, he said.

Both spouses will need affirmation that their relationship is as strong as ever, or at least growing, Scheider said, but connecting on an emotional level after redeployment may take some time. Soldiers who experienced a high level of stress during the deployment may feel shame for something they did or guilt for something they did not do in combat. This can be a contentious area, the chaplain said.

"The most hurtful thing (to a spouse can be) wanting to have that significant reconnection, waiting for this time to really sit down and talk, and (the Soldier) stiff-arms her, thinking, 'I want to protect her from who I am,'" he said.

While spouses may be curious about their Soldier's experiences, the chaplain said, the best thing they can offer the service member is space to work through their feelings. Spouses should avoid asking questions about what happened in combat and never should pressure the Soldier for details.

Soldiers still struggling after six weeks, Scheider said, should seek help.

Throughout reintegration, as Soldiers readjust to their new home life, they may seek a comrade in arms to confide in and relate to, the chaplain said. This may leave the spouse feeling unloved and alone.

"It calls into question the whole relationship — the loyalty and the bond," he said. Soldiers should resist the urge to close their circle of support to only those they served with.

And just as Soldiers do, he said, spouses learn to rely on those around them for support and assistance during the deployment. When troops return, they may experience hurt feelings and disappointment if those support groups begin to crumble.

"I had a few friends whose husbands were deployed at the same time as mine," Creel said. "We were like family. We talked to each other every day. They were in my routine. But when our husbands came back, we barely talked to each other. It is sad that you lose that friendship."

It is important, however, Scheider said, for the marriage, not the friendships, to be the couple's main priority.

For couples who still are having trouble reconnecting on an emotional level after six weeks, Scheider suggested reaching out for professional help.

"Healthy couples," he said, "gang up on the problem, not each other."

ASK THE JUDGE

OFFICE OF STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE
Aletha Friedel

Q: My car was damaged on post. Isn't the government responsible?

A: The government is not a substitute for private insurance. The fact damage occurs on post does not create an entitlement.

However, the government does provide some coverage in limited circumstances. There are two separate types of coverage with separate rules.

First, the government is a self-insurer. The Army Claims Office acts as the government's liability "insurance company" for damages caused by the negligent or wrongful acts of Soldiers or civilian employees acting within the scope of their assigned duties. This is similar to the liability coverage on your car.

Also Congress has seen fit to cover some on-post risks not caused by the government as an "employee benefit." This type of coverage is provided to active-duty Soldiers and, to a lesser extent, government civilian employees. It provides a type of disaster relief; it covers hurricanes, tornadoes, floods etc. It provides very limited coverage for damages from criminal acts, such as theft or vandalism. However, you must be able to independently prove that the loss or damage was caused by theft or vandalism and not the result of your own negligence. This coverage is limited. It only covers certain out-of-pocket expenses not covered by your private insurer. You must first file a claim with your own insurance company.

For more information, call the Claims Office at 706-545-2285.

Harris specializes in a species called Italian honeybees, which can produce up to 10 gallons of honey per colony each year. For Harris, who keeps up to 24 colonies at a time at his Columbus home and another location near Cusseta, Ga., that equals between 200 and 300 gallons of honey per year, which he sells to friends and neighbors.

Harris believes strongly in the health benefits of honey, and said occasional stings have even helped relieve his arthritis pain.

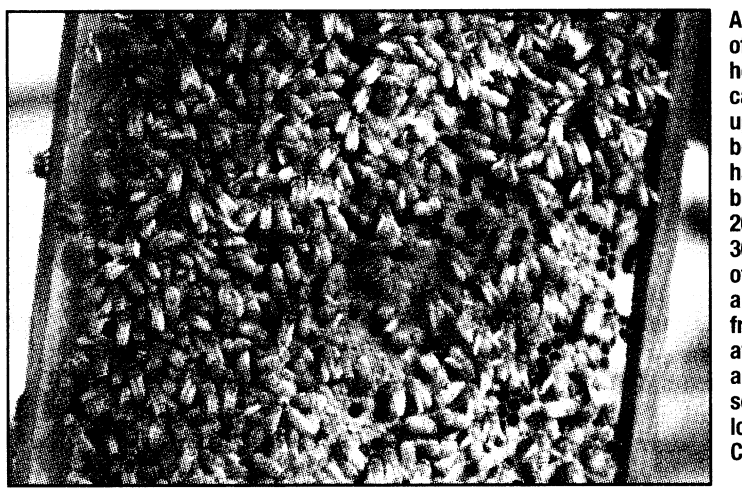
"I have not had one cold in the 30 years that I've been eating honey every day," he said. "Honey is the best thing you can eat."

Harris encourages others to get involved in beekeeping, which he said is essential to preserving the diversity of the earth's plant species.

"We need beekeepers bad," he said.

Harris said he will continue keeping bees as long as he is able.

"I'm 81 now, and I hope to do it for 10 more years," he said.



A colony of Italian honeybees can contain up to 60,000 bees. Harris harvests between 200 and 300 gallons of honey annually from hives at his home and a secondary location near Cusseta, Ga.

The data will be collected in two main categories – corporate and constituent. The corporate survey includes input from all of the unit and directorate leadership on Fort Benning, down to the company commander and first sergeant level. Soldiers not in leadership roles, Family members, retirees, veterans and civilian employees will provide input into the constituent category. All feedback will be sorted by demographic category and returned to the CMS representative for analysis.

"We'll be able to see exactly what our Soldiers and Family members think of all the Morale, Welfare and Recreation services and exactly what the commanders say about services that help them and their units accomplish their mission," said Bernard Goss, the Garrison's customer service officer. "In turn, the directorates providing the services can use the feedback to help make adjustments and improvements to programs that are important to the customers."

For information on the customer assessment, call the Customer Service Office at 706-545-0341 or e-mail Goss at Bernard.goss@us.army.mil.

Trusting in God gives one power of hope

Chaplain (Capt.) Albert E. Wall

In Hope for the Hurting, Doug Sparks wrote about the grief we encounter in life: "If you don't have (any) now, you will. If you live long enough, there'll come a time when you have to keep going even though your heart is pierced through."

There are few things in life that are as inevitable as grief; it is one of the great common grounds of the human experience. The burden of painful experiences in our lives comes in many shapes and sizes. For some, it is an ongoing financial crisis that threatens to unravel their life. For others, it is the slow disintegration of their marriage, a rebellious child, a terminally ill spouse, the long separation of a deployment, injury or career struggles. Any one of these can produce major heartache in our lives.

David had a couple of these kinds of experiences in his life. In 1 Samuel 30 there is an account of one such situation. At that point in his life he was just a private citizen and the captain of the local militia in the town he lived in, Ziklag. When the country was invaded by the army of the Amalekites, David took his men to the garrison and volunteered to go fight on behalf of the country. He was told that they could not serve in the regular army and should go home to protect their town. When they returned, the six hundred Soldiers that were with him found out that the enemy had swept through their town while they were gone, burned it to the ground, and took their wives and children captive. When they realized what had happened, and that had they been home they could have protected their loved ones, the scripture says, "Then David and the men that were with him lifted up their voices and wept until there was no more strength in them to weep." (1 Samuel 30:4)

For David it went from bad to even worse as his soldiers began to mutter mutiny among themselves, blaming him for the predicament. In the midst of the crisis, David's life was in danger. "Moreover, David was greatly distressed because the people spoke of stoning him, for all the people were deeply bitter because of the loss of their sons, daughters, and wives." (1 Samuel 30:6) It would have been easy for David to give up in fear and flee for his life, just as it is easy for us to give up when we encounter difficult circumstances in our own lives. But he did not. Instead, "David strengthened himself in the Lord his God." (1 Samuel 30:6)

The power of hope is an amazing thing. It has the ability to strengthen the weak and broken amidst insurmountable odds. Even those facing the most dangerous, difficult and heart breaking of circumstances can find the courage to go on if they have hope in their lives. Many people, when they hear about hope, think it is some pie in the sky thing where you carry on without any ground to stand on and very little chance of making it through. And, truthfully, some hope is this way ... but only because people place their hope in things that can fail. Some hope for the future based on their bank account balance. Some hope for a promotion based on their physical ability or their military record. Some hope their marriage works out because they are 'nice people.' But all of these things can fail. The kind of hope that can actually bring you strength and give you the ability to go on can be found only when you have hope in something or someone that cannot fail you.

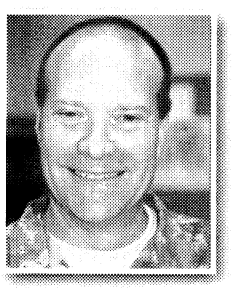
David trusted in God, he gathered his men and pursued their enemy and rescued their families from slavery by defeating the enemy when they caught up to them. Having routed them from the field, they not only returned home with their loved ones but also with the spoils of battle. David's faith never wavered because God had proven himself trustworthy and unfailing in David's life.

When the struggles and heart aches of this life crowd in on you, what do you put your hope in? Be encouraged today. There is someone who is trustworthy and able to see you through whatever you face. Place your trust in God and He will see you through.

Just like gas tank, love tank needs regular refills

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

A short time ago I was heading to Panama City, Fla., to conduct a Strong Bonds Marriage enrichment conference. I packed the car, conducted my pre-combat checks and off I went.



I only had a half tank of gas, and planned on stopping at the gas station outside the back gate. It was on my way and it is always a little cheaper than the on-post price. However, this day as I drove to the station, gas was $4.39. Are they out of their minds? I am not paying $4.39 for a gallon of gas.

Well, I thought I would stop at the next station and buy some there, so I traveled on. But station after station the price was jacked up. I could not believe what I was seeing. Everyone was upping their prices. I stopped at one station in Dothan, Ala., to fill up. But there were bags on all the pumps and a sign said "Out of Gas." Hmm, this is not good, I am not going to be able to make my trip and if there was no fuel available, how would I get home. As I continued, I noticed sign after sign that read, "out of gas."

Have you ever run out of gas? I was beginning to wonder if I was going to be able to find gas at all. Well, God's grace shined upon us and we found a station with gas, so I filled up with premium, the only gas available.

Romance is like my trip, we need to keep paying attention to the gauge and fill our tank.

When dating, we find that someone special in our life, we tend to pay attention to them, we tend to spend time with them. Our "love tank" gets filled up with premium time, attention, and emotional connection.

Life is good and our motors are purring just fine. Then after a while we decide to move to the next destination in our journey of life and we get married. Ah, life is great, can it get any better?

But once we marry, something strange happens. The romance tends to fade. Now why is this? Because we are different as men and women, we view things differently.

My wife asked me a few months after we were married if I loved her? Now what kind of question was that? I married her didn't I? What is the greatest act of love a man can do to demonstrate his love? Isn't it marriage? And that is what I told her, which was not the answer she wanted to hear.

Men normally look to romance as a pathway to marriage, not something to keep doing after marriage.

A woman looks at the romance as a lifelong event occurring again and again, as advertised in our romantic campaign. And soon after the wedding we find out we have two different plans. The romance wanes and the needle on the love tank starts to drop. Three-fourths of a tank, then one-half a tank, then one-quarter, and if nothing happens, the marriage will run out of emotional connection and you find yourself on the side of the road wondering what happened.

How do we stop this from happening? How do we stop from draining our love tank? Simply continue to do what filled your tank in the beginning. Romance the girl! Continue to invest time, attention and emotional connection.

What happens when our fuel gauge gets low? We pull into the station and fill the tank up.

We need to pull into the love station and fill up. So before your relationship creeps to a halt, be proactive and plan on renewing your romance. Plan a weekly date. Strategically place some cards or love notes. Can't think of any, go to the PX and read a few for some ideas. Call your spouse in the afternoon, just to say you love the them.

Girls, don't call the guy at work and ask him if he is thinking about you, because most likely he is not. Guys are pretty focused at work.

The best plan of action is to talk to your spouse and find out what they need or desire from you at this point in your life. Then determine to meet those needs and wants. After all, you are each other's best marriage manual.

Needing a romance tune-up? Come see one of our love experts at the Chaplain's Family Life Center. Call for an appointment at 706-545-1760 or stop by at 2606 Dixie Road, in Soldiers' Plaza.

Going wild this Halloween

NATIONAL WILDLIFE FEDERATION
Mary Burnette

Halloween is a holiday with lots of creepy wildlife associated with it, but are they really so creepy? From toads to bats to owls, the National Wildlife Federation shares the facts about these animals and what they are up to at this time of year, which might dispel a few myths.

BATS

Blood sucking vampire bats are real — but they mostly feed on chickens and cows and only live in Latin America. Most North American bats are insect eaters, feeding on everything from moths to mosquitoes to beetles. They use echolocation to find their prey, which is kind of like radar, rather than eyesight. They tend to have beady little eyes and weird-shaped faces which makes them look scary. But those faces help capture sound waves bouncing off of prey and other objects and funnel those waves to their ears.

Many bat species are entering into hibernation in caves or hollow trees, but some fly south for the winter just like birds.

SPIDERS

Spiders, with their eight legs and multiple eyes, are creatures right out of nightmares — and their sticky webs and venomous fangs don't help their public image either. But even though they might look scary, spiders are actually extremely beneficial predators of all sorts of insect pests. And only three species in the U.S. that have venom considered strong enough to hurt people: the black widow, the brown recluse and the hobo, and spider bites from these are very rare.

In the fall, female spiders are guarding egg sacks which hold the next generation of spiders.

TOADS

Toads are not just a key ingredient in witches' brew, they are important environmental indicators. All amphibians are susceptible to environmental toxins because of their sensitive skin. They are usually the first species to die out in polluted areas. If you have healthy toad populations in your area, it's a good sign that your neighborhood is fairly unpolluted. And no, you cannot catch warts from touching a toad.

Toads are voracious pest predators in the warm months, but go into underground hibernation by late fall and won't emerge until spring.

WOLVES

The howl of the wolf can cause either heart-rending terror or spiritual inspiration. People have either vilified or glorified wolves throughout history, but the real life wild canines are neither hounds from hell or spiritual guides. In reality, gray wolves are top predators that play a key role in balancing the ecosystem. They control deer and other prey populations as well as other predators lower down on the food chain, like coyotes and raccoons.

Once found throughout North America, the only remaining gray wolf populations live in limited regions of the United States and Canada in wilderness areas. They go out of their way to avoid humans. At this time of year, they are in the process of growing their thick winter coats to guard against winter's bitter temperatures.

SNAKES

The slithering, legless body. The forked tongue. The lidless eyes. Everything about a snake is decidedly non-human. But even though they strike fear in many people, most snake species are completely harmless. In fact, snakes are enormously beneficial, helping to control insect and rodent pests. The only time a snake will try to bite is if it's cornered or startled. The natural reaction of all snakes to people is to get away or hide.

By late October, most snakes are moving to their underground hibernation grounds, where they will doze away the cold months waiting for the warmer days of spring.

OWLS

The nocturnal habits, glowing eyes and utterly silent flight make these predatory birds the epitome of eeriness. It turns out that all of those things are simply adaptations for survival. Owls are nocturnal to avoid competition for prey with day-flying hawks. Their giant eyes and the fringed feathers that make no noise when the bird is flying allow them to hunt in the darkness.

Most owls are year-round residents and don't migrate. Listen for the hoot-hoot-hoot of the great horned owl or the whinnying shriek of the screech owl when you're trick or treating this year.

ZACK AND MIRI MAKE A PORNO

Two lifelong, platonic friends, strapped for cash and in debt, decide to make a porno.

The movie stars Seth Rogen as Zack and Elizabeth Banks as Miri Linky.

Zack and Miri Make a Porno is rated R for sexual content, nudity and language.

THE HAUNTING OF MOLLY HARTLEY

A teenage girl discovers her parents made a pact with the devil to save her life. When the devil comes to collect, terrible things begin to happen and she must figure out if and how she can save herself.

Haley Bennett stars as Molly, Jake Weber as Robert, Chace Crawford is Joseph, Shanna Collins is Alexis and Shannon Marie Woodward is Leah.

The Haunting of Molly Hartley is rated PG-13 for violence and terror, brief strong language and teen drinking.

ALSO PLAYING

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 3: SENIOR YEAR

This third film in the High School Musical series follows teens Troy and Gabriella through the trials of their senior year. Faced with the prospect of separation upon departing for college, they stage an elaborate spring muscial reflecting their experiences, hopes and fears. The entire Wildcat crew joins in the muscial fun.

High School Musical 3 stars Zac Efron, Vanessa Hudgens and Ashley Tisdale. It is rated G.

SAW V

In the fifth installment of this horror series, Hoffman finds himself the last survivor left to carry on the Jigsaw legacy. Or is he? When Hoffman's secret is threatened, he must go on the hunt to eliminate any remaining loose ends.

Saw V stars Laura Gordon, Tobin Bell, Scott Patterson and Costas Mandylor. It is rated R for sequences of violence and torture, language and nudity.

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic antihero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld.

As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence, drug content, sexuality and language.

QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911-distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown.

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

When they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

Quarantine is rated R for violent and disturbing content, terror and language.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Although ostensibly his allies, Ferris questions how far he can really trust these men without putting his entire operation — and his life — on the line.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens.

Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

In December 2008, Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) staff will initiate the Survey of Interest (SOI) and volunteer process (VP)for placement opportunities against positions in the Maneuver Center of Excellence (MCOE). Even though there will be several recruitment iterations necessary to fill all anticipated vacancies, the first placement efforts will be dedicated solely to permanent mission employees whose positions will be realigned to the MCOE.

To be considered for placement under this process, all permanent employees must volunteer as no one will be "automatically" reassigned to the MCOE. This process will entail (1) the preparation/update of employee resumes; (2) prepositioning of those resumes in RESUMIX; (3) responding to a formal Survey of Interest (SOI); and, (4) ultimately volunteering for positions under the VP.

Resumes should be created and/or updated in the Resume Builder on the Armyís CPOL Web site located at https://cpolst.belvoir.army.mil/public/resumebuilder/builder/index.jsp and must be submitted to the centralized RESUMIX database. Resumes must be completed and posted in RESUMIX NLT COB Thursday, 15 Jan 09. No mailed, hand carried, digitally transmitted, or faxed resumes will be accepted. In order to facilitate ease of computer use for those without immediate access, staff members of the Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) have coordinated the use of computer classrooms beginning 14 October 2008 thru 31 December 2008. Computers will be available for resume update during the hours and at the locations indicated below. HR Staff will be on-site during 1400-1600 each day.

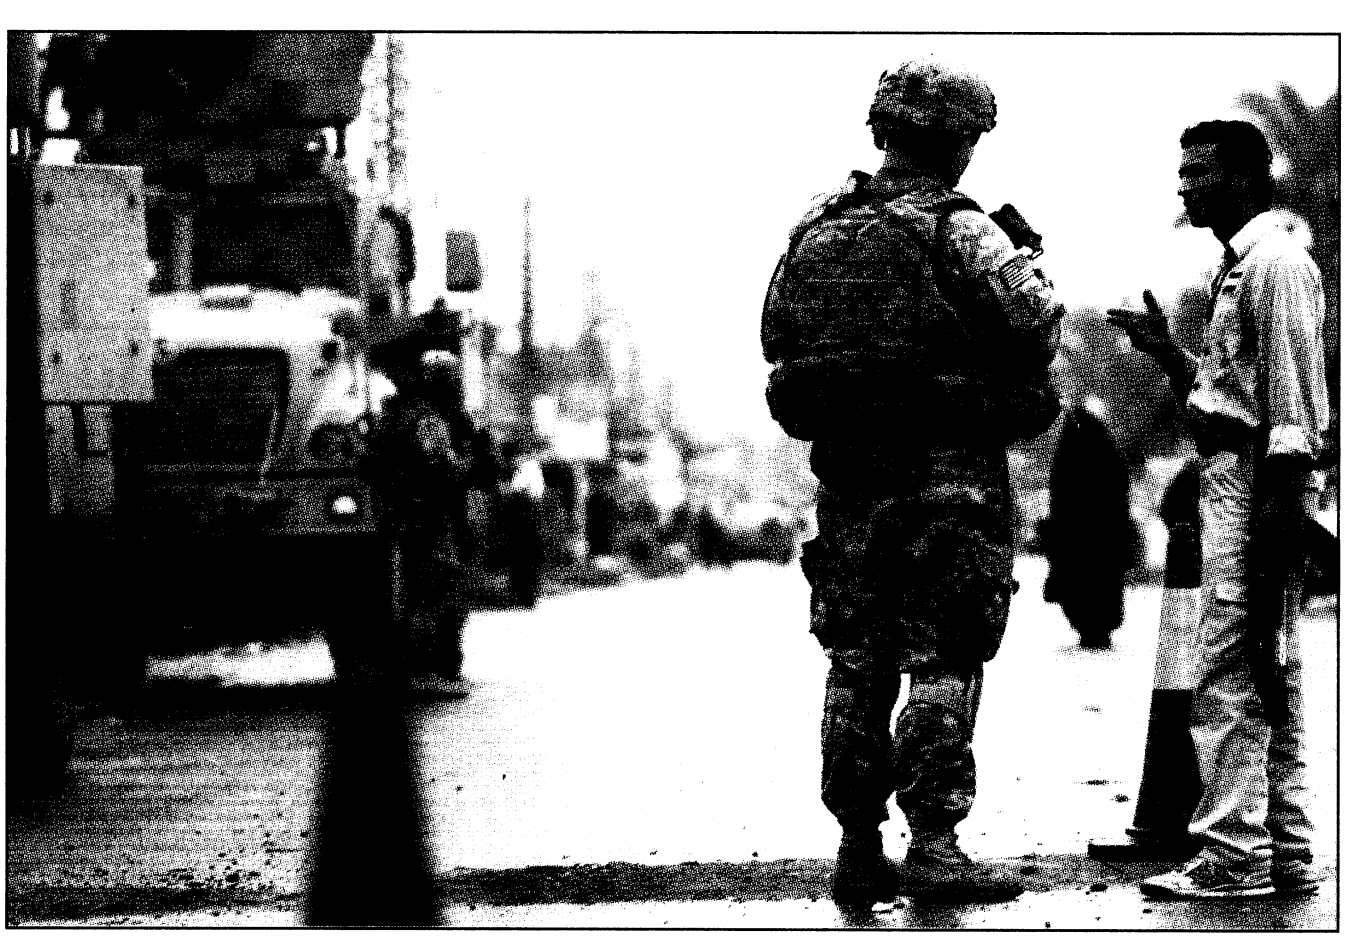
Chief: Dwell time to increase



Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Todd Frantom

A Soldier chats with a member of the Sons of Iraq, a citizen security group, at a security checkpoint in the Doura community of southern Baghdad, Iraq, Oct. 29, 2008. The Soldier is assigned to the 4th Infantry Division, 1st Brigade Combat Team.

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany — Soldiers and their families can expect to spend more time together between deployments thanks to continuing success in Iraq and the steady growth of the Army's ranks, the service's top officer said.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. George W. Casey Jr. visited with Soldiers and family members of U.S. Army Europe's 172nd Infantry Brigade in Germany Oct. 29. During a series of three roundtable discussions and a lunchtime meeting with the brigade's officers, NCOs, Soldiers and family readiness group leaders, he said dwell time — the amount of time a Soldier or unit remains at home station between deployments — will grow from 12 months to 24 over the next three years.

Bush urges support

AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE
Donna Miles

WASHINGTON — President Bush warned today that terrorists could use the government transition under way as an opportunity to attack, and urged his staff to give the incoming administration the support it needs to "hit the ground running."

Bush addressed members of his Cabinet, including Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates, and executive office staffers on the South Lawn of the White House.

Terrorists might be tempted to take advantage of the first U.S. wartime presidential transition in four decades, he warned.

"We're in a struggle against violent extremists determined to attack us, and they would like nothing more than to exploit this period of change to harm the American people," he said.

"So for the next 75 days," the president said, "all of us must ensure that the next president and his team can hit the ground running."

Warrior battalion conducts open house

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

Fort Benning's Warrior Transition Battalion will conduct an open house and cook out Wednesday at Building 2651 on Dixie Road from 11 a.m. to noon.

As part of Warrior Care Month and the open house, the Warrior Transition Battalion welcomed special guests Brig. Gen. Gary H. Cheek, Assistant Surgeon General of Warrior Care and Transition and Director of the Warrior Care and Transition Office; and Sgt. Maj. Ly M. Lac, Warrior Care and Transition Office Sergeant Major.

"I'm very lucky to have the job I have," Cheek said. We have 11,200 Soldiers in the program, all of them with unique medical and personal challenges and aspirations. What you see here today is our countries dedication to our Soldiers."

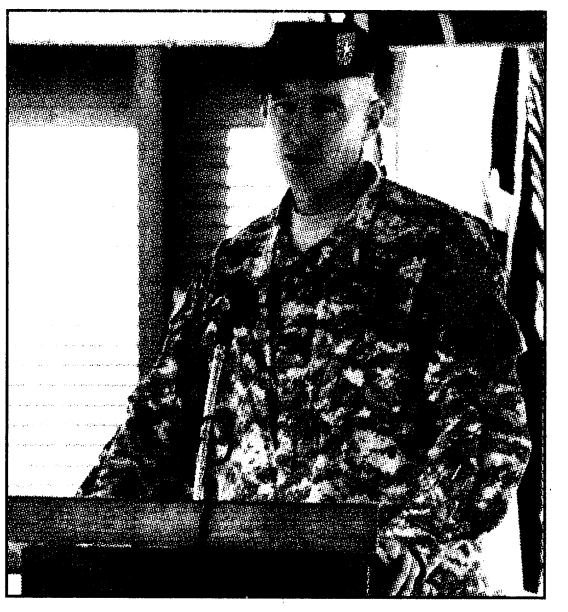
Cheek said he wants all Soldiers to feel "like a millionaire," despite their injuries. "Don't be a victim, don't be defeated by injury," he said.

A goal of the open house was to give various organizations and Soldiers the opportunity to meet and discuss available opportunities.

"One of the many objectives of the open house is to let the Soldiers know what is out there," said Lt. Col. Sean Mulcahey, commander of the Warrior Transition Battalion.

Many agencies have approached us wanting to do something for our Soldiers and asked what they can do, he said.

Representatives from VetDogs, Fly Fishing for Vets, the local chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and others attended the open house and were available for the Soldiers to talk about opportunities available with their organizations.



John W. Peeler

Brig. Gen. Gary H. Cheek, Assistant Surgeon General of Warrior Care and Transition and Director of the Warrior Care Transistion Office, told Soldiers attending the Warrior Transistion Battalion open house they should "get after their future."

"We do our best to connect philanthropists who want to help our Soldiers, and this open house will help with that. The VFW has invited us to their Veterans Day celebration and barbecue Nov. 11.

Just Duke It construction and DMS All-Star presented the battalion with a Bad Boy Buggy to be used for hunting and other types of activities during the open house.

Columbus resident Bill Brickner, who has been taking disabled veterans hunting for years, has reached out to Soldiers of the Warrior Transition Battalion on several occasions.

"I take them out hunting, and it seems to make their day," Brickner said. "They are happy they got out (to hunt). If they are married, their wife is happy they got to hunt. They leave with a smile on their face."

With the donation of the Bad Boy Buggy, Brickner's hunting excursions will be easier for the Soldiers who go hunting with him.

"The Bad Boy Buggy will let me get them from the road to the stand," he said.

Mulcahey said these types of outings and events are good for the Soldiers and help the overall transitioning process.

"We get great feedback from the Soldiers and have a high success rate of satisfaction from our Soldiers, according to our exit surveys," Mulcahey said.

In his comments to those attending the open house, Cheek agreed.

"Look at all we have done here at Fort Benning, you have a lot of great people here," he said. "I am greatful to all the cadre here, what a tremendous service they provide.

"So, what would I say to a Soldier? The Warrior Transistion Battalion is an enabler to allow you to get what I said — to be a millionaire. To the warriors in this program, get after your future."

Veterans Day ceremonies, events on post, off post set

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

In observance of Veterans Day, there will be a post ceremony at 11 a.m. Tuesday in front of Infantry Hall.

The post's deputy commanding general Brig. Gen. Lloyd "Milo" Miles will be the keynote speaker and the Infantry Center Band will perform. For those visiting Fort Benning, visitor passes can be obtained at the visitor's center at the gate. A valid I.D. is required. If there is inclement weather, the ceremony will be moved to Marshall Auditorium.

Organizations in Columbus also offer Veterans Day programs.

M.L. Harris United Methodist Church, located at 4106 Old Cusseta Road in Columbus, will co-sponsor a Veterans Day program with American Legion Post 267 at the regular service starting at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Division Command Sgt. Maj. Jesse L. Andrews Jr. of the Third Infantry Division at Fort Stewart, Ga. will be the speaker. For more information, call 706-315-9962.

American Legion post 267, located at 4027 Cusseta Road, will host a breakfast at 9:30 a.m. with a Veterans Day program starting at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Breakfast is free. Councilor Jerry "Pop" Barnes will be the speaker and a student from Kendrick High School choir will sing.

For more information, call 706-536-3387.

The Youth Orchestra of Greater Columbus will perform at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the RiverCenter for Performing Arts. The concert will include two works from Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker ballet, and a performance of Dr. Robert Rumbelow's work, Face of Honor, written in honor of military men and women.

Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for children. Military personnel with I.D. will receive free tickets. Tickets can be purchased at the RiverCenter box office from 10 a.m. Monday though Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

Maneuver Battle Lab supports current, future force

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

The mission of the Maneuver Battle Lab (MBL), formerly the Soldier Battle Lab, might be considered every Soldier's dream. Imagine having the opportunity to shoot the latest developmental weapons, to work with unmanned aerial vehicles, to fight real weaponized robots in tactical scenarios, to wear an "exoskeleton" that can double the strength and triple the endurance of the average Soldier, and to see through wood, brick or concrete walls. The best part of the MBL's mission though, is knowing the experiments it conducts each year make direct, dynamic impacts on Soldiers who are in the fight for real, every day.

One recent experiment, Reliance on Camera Vision (RoCV) tackled the problem of Situational Awareness (SA) for Soldiers in heavily armored vehicles. Future fighting vehicles must enable Soldiers to visualize their surroundings while "buttoned up" to enable immediate, effective, tactical response as they exit the vehicle. Heavily armored vehicle configurations generally impede SA and the life-saving ability to make split-second decisions on the battlefield. With a closed hatch that is virtually impossible.

Integrated camera vision systems and sensor technologies are now being designed to provide Soldiers a clear, seamless, 360-degree, day and night, close-in and extended-range view of their surroundings. The MBL's live experiment, with a fully loaded, nine-man combat squad operating from a camera-vision equipped Bradley Fighting Vehicle, served as a starting point for the analysis that will define and refine Soldier requirements and gain insights to improve fighting capabilities as these systems are fielded in theater.

Another impact area is unmanned systems; otherwise known as robots. Robots, both aerial and ground, are not the technologies of tomorrow, they are in combat environments today. The dual challenge of the Battle Lab and the Combat Developments communities is first, how to use these growing capabilities and second, how to integrate them into the tactical force so they are an enhancement and not a logistical burden. So, sometimes the value of the MBL's mission lies in identifying technologies that are not yet ready to put in Soldier's hands.

While MBL experimentation must balance between support to the current force in our Global War on Terror (GWOT) and assessing those emerging technologies and concepts for the future modular force, the past year's workload admittedly leaned more heavily toward protecting and enabling our Soldiers to conduct the current fight.

Perhaps the most visible and notable endeavor was the MBL's assessment and support of the Mine Resistant Ambush Protected (MRAP) family of vehicles. The USAIC's Soldier Requirements Division and the MBL represented the Army's interest in fielding a system that meets our unique Army requirements. This critical Soldier protection vehicle now provides our combat forces multiple mission-role platforms capable of mitigating IEDs, underbody mines, and small arms fire threats which have been the greatest casualty producers in the GWOT.

IEDs and mines, however, have not been the only threat on the radar screen. The sniper threat remains a central concern. The MBL has assessed a number of sniper and bullet detection systems, both in theater and in country, that use technology combinations to detect, locate, and "fix" snipers in cities. The goal of these systems is to detect gunfire and provide an azimuth of fire, a photo location, and ultimately the grids for location.The development process has not been an easy one. The operational environment has dynamic and complex variables that limit effectiveness and consistent performance across ranges and weapons systems. A rigorous schedule of evaluation, research and development, however, has resulted in dramatically improved performance of systems. More work remains as the Army pursues technology solutions for the sniper threat.

The Soldier is the centerpiece of each and every experiment at the MBL. Answering the critical needs like lethality, survivability, situational awareness, and combat capablility, these kinds of experiments not only affect the technologies our Soldiers will have tomorrow, but how they fight today.

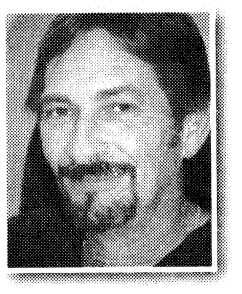
Embracing a veteran status

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

On the 11th hour, of the 11th day, of the 11th month in 1918, World War I officially came to a conclusion. The following year, President Woodrow Wilson formally declared Nov. 11, 1919 as Armistice Day — the birth of today's Veterans Day.



Although it was not officially known as Veterans Day until Nov. 8,1954, we have formally celebrated veterans and their contributions to our nation for 89 years.

Today, there is only one veteran who may remember the birth of Veterans Day — 107-year-old Frank Buckles, the last living U.S. Soldier of World War I.

Since the American Revolution, the term "veteran" has carried visions of old Soldiers with wartime experience and skills, but if you look around Columbus and Fort Benning, today's Soldiers, also veterans, are anything but old.

The veterans of today are every bit as proud to be called a veteran as Soldiers from past conflicts. Whether they serve one year or 10 years, being called a veteran is an honor and distinction.

Inside the walls of the Fort Benning Cemetery lie about 8,000 deceased veterans, their wives and children. These are veterans who gave the ultimate sacrifice — their lives.

While Veterans Day primarily focuses on those who have served, I would be remiss if I did not mention the contribution made by veterans' families — from personal experience, veterans could not function in the military without them.

As an Army brat — a term I embrace with honor — a retiree, and the father of a Marine veteran, Veterans Day is a special day for me to honor those who have served, along with the families who have — and do — support veterans.

If you have served your country, or are currently serving your county, you have earned the privilege and distinction of being called a veteran — a term you should embrace and wear proudly.

I am proud to be a veteran and I am proud to be surrounded by the many veterans on Fort Benning — now that is something to celebrate on Veterans Day.

Support our troops this holiday season

BAYONET CORRESPONDENT
Erin A. Nash

Halloween is over, and already the holiday season is in full swing.

This time of year, many friends and relatives ask me for a favorite organization to donate to that involves supporting our troops. I've referred them to many special organizations near and dear to me, and this year I've found a new organization that supports our troops in several different ways.

Through the power of social media, I found emailourmilitary.com, a non-profit organization founded in 2001. Trish Forant, wife of an Army Reserve Soldier and daughter of a veteran, started emailourmilitary.com after other mail programs were cancelled as a safe way for people to continue the tradition of mailing the troops.

Service members registered through the Web site are matched with civilians who have also registered to show support for the troops. There are a variety of projects on the site, ranging from "Send a Free Calling Card" to "Holiday Love."

Holiday Love began Oct. 13 and ends Dec. 1 to ensure that the troops receive all cards and letters. Anyone can send a card or letter to the organization, and they will send it overseas for you. It's a great project for Scout groups, churches and other organizations to get involved in.

Also, for just $5, emailourmilitary.com will send 1 pound of correspondence overseas.

One of the easiest ways to support the troops is to send a message of support through the Web site. With one click, you can e-mail a service member with your thanks. The e-mails will be either e-mailed to the troops or printed and sent to them. It really couldn't be much easier.

If you have a couple of extra minutes or dollars this holiday, I recommend visiting the site and showing your support for our troops, especially those spending their holiday overseas, away from friends and family.

There's something for everyone to get involved in at emailourmilitary.com.

Army launches sexual assault prevention Web site

ARMY NEWS SERVICE
Kelly Pate

WASHINGTON — The Army has launched a new Sexual Assault Prevention Program Web site as part of its I. A.M. Strong campaign.

The acronym I.A.M. stands for Intervene,Act and Motivate. The I.A.M. Strong campaign seeks to change the culture of the Army by stamping out sexual assaults and the sexually offensive language and gestures that create an abusive environment, said Col. Jon Dahms, chief of Planning Support, Army Public Affairs.

The Web site, www.preventsexualassault.army.mil, is part of the Army's ongoing efforts to create a climate that eliminates incidents of sexual harassment and assault in the Army.

"We're on the offensive to stop the crime of sexual assault before it even happens," said Nathan F. Evans, Army Sexual Assault Prevention and Response deputy program manager. "Commanders at all levels have been charged to aggressively implement their command's I. A.M. Strong prevention program."

The Web site features the new I.A.M. Strong video, "Band of Brothers and Sisters." The Web site provides information on how to prevent sexual assaults, what to do if a person has been assaulted, and training and leader tools. Other features include a scrolling list of upcoming events, training resources and Army regulations and policy.

The Army launched its I.A.M. Strong program in September 2008 to give leaders and Soldiers the tools they need to stop sexual assaults. At the Army's sexual assault prevention summit in Alexandria, Secretary of the Army Pete Geren stressed the significance of Army values that are at the core of the sexual assault prevention program.

"American Soldiers are members of a band of brothers and sisters, bound by common values, and duty and loyalty to each other that sets them apart from society," Geren said.

Fort Benning's Family Advocacy and Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program manager Rebecca Welch attended the summit.

"It is your duty to stand up for your battle buddies, no matter the time or place and take action, to do what's right, and prevent sexual assault," Welch said. "It is our mission to prevent sexual assault and to live the Army Values and take care of our Soldiers. We are all motivated to take action, to promote sexual assault prevention and response programs and become advocates within our communities."

Army leaders aim to put an end to sexual assault Armywide over the next five years and to make the Army's sexual assault prevention program a model for the rest of the nation, Welch said. The Army plans to change its culture through the influence of committed Army leadership and Soldiers, peer-to-peer accountability, and education and training to ensure Soldiers understand the responsibility to intervene and how to do so safely. The end product is a sustained, incident-free Army culture.

The Army plans to stop sexual harassment as well as sexual assault — neither of which has any place in the Army, Dahms said.

"This is important to the Army," Dahms said, "because sexual harassment and sexual assault hurts not only individual Soldiers and civilians, these incidents also negatively affect the readiness of units and organizations at all levels."

Manhunt forces lockdown of post schools, daycares

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

Fort Benning schools and daycares were locked down Wednesday when the search for a Columbus bank robber spilled over to Fort Benning.

The Regions Bank on Macon Road was robbed around 10 a.m. Responding to the robbery, the Columbus Police Department notified Fort Benning officials the suspect was being tracked by an electronic device in the stolen money and had fled to Fort Benning.

"We were after a tracer beacon in the money," said Lt. Col. Kevin Clarke, DES commander. "There was a very limited description (of the suspect) and they never saw the vehicle, so all we had was the beacon."

Fort Benning schools and daycares were locked down in response to the manhunt because keeping the schoolchildren safe while tracking the beacon was the priority, said Chuck Walls, deputy garrison commander.

"We were chasing a felon with a weapon," Clarke said. "But our overriding concern was protecting our residents, so we locked down the schools. "It was a prudent measure, and we erred on the side of the safety for the residents and children."

The MPs secured the area around Kawamura Street in Lower Davis Hills where the suspect had been tracked by CPD.

The MPs and CPD conducted a house-to-house search, which did not produce the suspect, and at 1:45 p.m. Walls lifted the lockdown for Fort Benning schools and daycares with the exception of Stowers Elementary School located in the Bouton Heights and Davis Hill housing area.

"Once we checked every single house and cleared the neighborhood in Davis Hills without finding anyone, we lifted the lockdown," Clarke said. "I know it inconvenienced people, but their safety was first and foremost."

"As serious as this matter was, it provided an opportunity to look at our procedures for locking down the schools," said Col. Charles Durr, chief of staff.

"We've identified some areas that can be improved upon," he said. "We need to make certain that the installation and (Department of Defense Education Activity) are working off of the same page. If or when something happens and we have to lock down the schools again, it is essential the plan be seamless and transparent to all people affected."

"This was an exceptional example of the local, federal and government agencies and interagency all working for a single purpose — the safety of the people on Fort Benning," Clarke said.

At 2:45 p.m., the search was officially called off with the DES reverting back to routine operations while maintaining a close watch for the next 24 hours.

The military police, Columbus Police Department and FBI are searching for the suspect in the robbery of the Regions Bank at 10 a.m. Wednesday on Macon Road. The suspect is described as a black male, approximately 6- to 6-foot-6-inches tall, weighing approximately 240 pounds and wearing a grey and blue hooded sweatshirt with black sweatpants.

Native American Heritage luncheon set for Nov. 19

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The annual Native American Heritage Month luncheon will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Nov. 19 at the Benning Club. This year's theme is "Living in many worlds."

"One nation under God — I like that phrase," said Chipa Wolfe, guest speaker for the luncheon. "But at the same time, for native people, it's a nation of nations."

This year, it will be "an intertribal celebration," he said, featuring American Indian dancers, singers and musicians from a variety of tribes who perform with Rolling Thunder Enterprises, a dance group based out of Jasper, Ga.

"It's important in my eyes so we can remember where we came from," said event NCOIC Sgt. 1st Class Matthew Stanley, whose mother is part Seneca Indian.

People will be surprised by how much of today's America has been shaped by native culture, he said.

Wolfe said he is honored to be speaking to members of the Army who serve their country.

He plans to discuss Native Americans' active participation in the military and also clarify some common stereotypes, all part of something he calls "edutainment."

"A little education, a little entertainment, I think there needs to be both," he said. "We savor the opportunity to recognize the contributions native people have made to the Armed Forces. They have fought in every foreign war. I'm about consciousness ... not political correctness. I don't tell people what to do, what not to do. I just bring it their attention."

That means getting away from the idea of "dressing up a Ricardo Montalban" to misrepresent native peoples and getting to know real native people and history, Wolfe said.

Tickets are $8.50 and must be reserved by Nov. 12. The Stowers Elementary School Chorus will sing the national anthem. The menu will include grilled chicken, corn, salad and a roll. For more information about Rolling Thunder, visit www.rthunder.com. For tickets, call 706-545-3196.

Dwell time: To increase

"As the demand for our forces stays at what it is now, we are growing the Army by about 75,000 (Soldiers) between now and 2010, and we will gradually add more units," Casey said. "So because of the growth and the demand being held steady, the time that Soldiers stay home between deployments gradually increases."

Dwell time is expected to increase from 18 months in 2009 to 24 months in 2011, he said.

The increase in troop strength will be completed by 2011, Casey said. At that point, about 15 brigades will be prepared to fight irregular conflicts and 14 more will be trained for other missions.

About 80 percent of the Army's brigades have been converted to modular formations in the largest organizational change the Army has seen since World War II, Casey told junior officers and senior NCOs here. These modular units are trading their Cold War-era skills for those needed for 21st-century conflicts ranging from conventional battle to asymmetric warfare.

The effects of continuous deployments accumulate and are wearing Soldiers and their families down, the general said.

"We've got to give our folks more time at home so they can fully recover from the repeated deployments," Casey said.

Units also benefit from longer times between deployments, he said, because leaders have more time to train their Soldiers to fight in conventional and unconventional warfare.

Units with a dwell time of 18 months or less should continue to train for the unconventional fight, Casey said. Units with more than 18 months at home station should enhance their conventional warfare skills.

"We have to build that depth into our force so we can truly operate across the spectrum of conflicts," he said.

The change in dwell time is one part of bringing the Army back into balance, Casey said.

"We are deploying at a pace that we cannot sustain either from the standpoint of sustaining the all-volunteer force or the strategic flexibility to do other things," he said. "So last year we started a program that would put us back into balance."

Infantrymen earn EIB

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Sgt. Natalie Rostek

Infantrymen from Fort Benning and Fort Stewart, Ga., were awarded Expert Infantryman Badges Oct. 24 at Burroughs Range on Fort Benning.

"To Infantrymen, this is the most important badge you can get," said Command Sgt. Maj. Mark Moore, 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment. "With the war on terrorism, any Soldier can be engaged in combat. But when you come out here, you have to prove that you're an expert."

Eight units, including the 4th Ranger Training Battalion, the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, and six battalions from the 3rd Infantry Division, participated in a two-week training and three-day testing event to earn the title "expert Infantryman."

Moore, along with leaders of the 1st Bn., 15th Inf. Regt., and the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt., headed the event. Training began Oct. 8 in which Soldiers perfected their skills on the various tasks they would be facing during EIB testing.

The test consisted of 35 individual warrior tasks and drills. To qualify for the EIB Soldiers must perform the tasks flawlessly, Moore said. Doing this gives the Soldier a "go" at that station. Participants are allowed two "no-gos" before failing the test.

"Every Soldier out here should be confident," said Sgt. Ricky Alvarado, 1st Bn., 15th Inf. Regt. NCO who graded the "call for fire" event. "We did one-on-one with every single guy out here."

During the testing, Spc. Mark Hays, 1st Bn., 15th Inf. Regt., while keeping the EIB in his sights, saw the experience as beneficial regardless of the outcome.

"If I get my EIB it will really help on my promotion," he said. "But even if I don't, it is still good training. We are getting a lot of resources to train with here that we usually don't have."

Standing in formation at the end of the test were 219 expert Infantrymen including Hays. In the front row of the formation were Soldiers who earned the title "true blue" meaning they completed testing with zero "no-gos." There were 65 true blue expert infantrymen total.

"This gives us the mark," said Sgt. Maj. Richard Hairston, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. "The mark of the Infantryman is the EIB."

Spc. Broc Hornaday, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, trains on a .50 caliber machine gun during Expert Infantryman Badge training on Oct. 9 at Burroughs Range. Spc. Matthew Ruckdaschel, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, provides coaching and Spc. Jered Green, also from 2nd Bn., 69th Armor Regt. observes.

According to www.hardscrabblefarm.com, the EIB is unique among skill qualification badges. The distinctive award, an infantry musket in silver on a rectangular blue background with a silver border, is among the most highly prized peacetime decorations. It can only be earned by an Infantryman. It sets him apart — not only as an Infantry Soldier, but as a Soldier who knows his Infantry subject matter. You don't have to ask whether he knows his job-you just look at the badge topping the ribbons on his chest.

The EIB was designed in October 1943 and was approved for wear on Oct. 27, 1943, by War Department Circular #269. The original EIB was awarded after a Soldier passed a battery of tests, which covered a wide range of Infantry and Infantry-related skills. Since its inception the tests have been updated to keep pace with changes in tactics, doctrine and equipment. But, one characteristic has remained: the EIB test is one of the toughest physical and most demanding mental challenges an Infantryman will ever face.

19th Medical Optometry Detachment activated

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

The 19th Medical Optometry Detachment was activated in a Oct. 16 ceremony at the unit's headquarters in Building 2394. It is the first unit at Fort Benning specifically devoted to optometry, and among the first optometry units activated in the Army.

"I'm honored to be the first commander of this new unit," said detachment commander Maj. Haby Ramirez.

Ramirez previously served as optometry chief at Fort Belvoir, Wash. After completing his residency at Keller Army Community Hospital in West Point, N.Y., Ramirez was assigned as chief of optometry at the optometry clinic in Vilseck, Germany. In 1999, he deployed to Kosovo with the 1st Infantry Division, and later served as optometry clinic chief in Landstuhl, Germany.

"It's been a challenge since we're the first unit, but we've got a great team," Ramirez said.

The unit is made up of six Soldiers, but is equipped to handle all the steps involved in prescribing lenses and making glasses, said Col. David Fulbright, task force commander, 14th Combat Support Hospital.

"It's a one stop shop," he said.

Fulbright said that the newly created optometry units will benefit the Army by streamlining the deployment process.

"Now that they have separate optometry units, it gives the Army medical department and Forces Command more flexibility to send optometry teams to specific locations where they are needed," he said.

Ramirez said that he is honored to be able to play such an important role in supporting deployed Soldiers.

"They need to see in order to fight," he said. "Being able to provide sight for the Soldiers is really an important service."

Smokeout encourages smokers to quit

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Smokers across the Fort Benning community will put out their cigarettes for 24 hours during the Great American Smokeout Nov. 20. The nationwide event, first started by the American Cancer Society in 1976, aims to encourage smokers to commit to making a long-term plan to quit, according to the ACS Web site.

"It's a day set aside to say to yourself, 'Today I'll try to quit, and perhaps it won't be as bad as I thought'," said Yasmin Cathright, supervisor of health promotions and public health nursing at Martin Army Community Hospital.

The smokeout takes place the third Thursday of November every year. Fort Benning health officials will be on hand to provide support to those trying to quit smoking. Nov. 19, the day before the event, a booth in front of the Main Post PX will offer information about Fort Benning's smoking cessation resources. There will be quit smoking survival kits containing healthy snacks and information about smoking cessation classes at Martin Army Community Hospital, as well as hotline phone numbers for quitting.

One of the most important resources that will be available is the Adopt a Buddy contract, Cathright said.

"It's a contract saying that you agree to quit smoking for that day, and there's a spot for another person to sign it that says they will support your efforts," she said. "We'll have the booth set up the day before the Great American Smokeout so you can plan ahead and help your friend quit the next day."

Cathright recommends that those helping a friend quit offer constructive support.

"You can offer healthy snacks, exercise with them, do things to get them occupied with something besides smoking," she said.

In addition to the benefits of improved personal health, quitting smoking can also greatly increase Soldier readiness, Cathright said.

"When you look at Soldier readiness, you have to look at not only how well the Soldier can maneuver, but also the Soldier's overall physical health," she said.

For Deb Manning, social services coordinator at the Soldier and Family Assistance Center, attending smoking cessation classes at Martin Army Community Hospital played an important role in her efforts to quit smoking.

"The classes were pretty much what I needed to get over some of the craziness," she said. "It helped me realize that quitting was what I needed to do. In January it will be 4 years since I quit smoking."

Cathright emphasized the importance of taking small steps and not giving up when trying to quit smoking.

"With tobacco products, whatever strides you make toward quitting are important strides," she said. "If you quit and start smoking again, that's OK, because at least you quit for that amount of time. You can still pick yourself up and move forward."

Cathright and other smoking cessation workers will travel to Fort Benning's preschools and daycare facilities during the month of November to educate children on the dangers of smoking, which she said can also help motivate parents to quit.

For more information about the Great American Smokeout and smoking cessation resources at Fort Benning, call Cathright at 706-545-1987.

Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski presented commander's safety coins to Sgt. 1st Class Matthew Kotarski and Sgt. 1st Class Edward Deal from D Company, 3rd Battalion, 47th Infantry Regiment, and Shawn King, safety specialist from the Combat Readiness Office in a brief presentation Oct. 27 in the Doughboy Room at Infantry Hall.

"Commander's safety coins are given for instances that exemplify outstanding safety actions performed," said Jill Carlson of Combat Readiness.

D Company completed all their basic combat training program of instruction events from June 5-Aug. 7 during the summer heat without a single casualty evacuation and performed all training safely and without incident according to Shawn King, safety specialist with the Combat Readiness Office.

When asked about the unit's success, 1st. Sgt. Larry North said, "Basically, I would say the drill sergeants did a great job in monitoring the Soldiers water intake, made sure they ate properly and uniformed them down when needed.

"When it was about heat category 5, we implemented the work rest cycle, he said. "We still conducted training, but after they completed their training we moved them to the shade and conducted concurrent training, made sure they had plenty water intake and continued doing what we needed to do.

"We watched the web bulb closely and adjusted the uniform as needed."

Kotarski and Deal represented 14 other Soldiers from D Co., 3rd Bn., 47th Inf. Regt., and Capt. Stephen Atwood, who has PCSed from the unit, in the presentation.

REWARD

A reward of $2,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for armed robbery of a Soldier on Sept. 8 behind the Kelley Hill Shoppette, Building 9177. The person is described as an African-American male, approximately 6 feet tall and 230 pounds with an athletic build, round face, clean shaven. He was wearing a black do-rag, white baggy T-shirt, black shorts and black sneakers. Anyone having knowledge of the incident, but not wishing to be identified, will be briefed on available options for maintaining their confidentiality and are encouraged to call the Fort Benning CID Office at 706-545-7905 or the Military Police desk at 706-545-5222. The reward offer expires Sept. 18, 2009.

WEAPONS TRAINING

Weapons training will be conducted over the eastern boundaries of Fort Benning on Dec. 3, 4, 5 and 9. The training will involve weapons firing which may cause disturbances. For more information, call the Public Affairs Office at 706-545-2238. After duty hours or weekends, call 706-545-2218.

LENDING CLOSET MOVES

Army Community Service's Relocation Readiness and Lending Closet has moved to Building 2621 at Soldiers' Plaza. For more information, call 706-545-0403.

Rate services you receive from organizations on post or anywhere in the world via the Interactive Customer Evaluation system. Log onto the ICE Web site at http://ice.disa.mil, pick out the installation and service of interest and complete the online customer comment card, which will be sent for action directly to the organization rated. Those who leave their contact information will receive a response from the organization. ICE kiosks are located in customer service areas around Fort Benning or comments can be submitted from any computer using the Web site.

ID CARD OFFICE

The post ID card section is now operating on an appointment only basis to serve each customer in 10 minutes. There will also be same day appointments available for people with emergencies, including lost or stolen ID cards or an emergency medical situation. For appointments, call 706-545-4068.

MCOE COMMUNITY UPDATES

The public is invited to attend the Maneuver Center of Excellence community update the first Tuesday of each month at 3 p.m., Classroom 6, Infantry Hall Fort Benning. The community update is an effort to educate the public on the latest news, timeliness, milestones, and progress being made as Fort Benning makes the historic transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

For more information, call 706-545-4729.

SUPPLY POINT CLOSURE

The Fort Benning Ammunition Supply Point is closed for quarterly inventory through Tuesday. It will re-open at 8 a.m. Wednesday. Emergency issues during the inventory period must have G3 and G4 approval. Storage time in the Vehicle Holding Area will be extended accordingly. For more information, call Bill Floyd at 706-544-6015.

CLEAN OUT E-MAIL

The Directorate of Information Management encourages post e-mail users to perform routine house cleaning of mailboxes to reduce database size of the e-mail system. If a server fails, it can be restored faster, and the system runs more efficiently. Clear deleted items weekly and move e-mails from your inbox offline or information may be lost. For information, call 706-545-2178 or e-mail benndoimhelpdesk@conus.army.mil.

OPEN SEASON, FAIR

The Federal Employee Benefits Open Season is Monday to Dec. 9. The Civilian Personnel Advisory Center will host a health fair Wednesday in Meloy Hall. Representatives from health, dental and vision carriers will be available to answer questions from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Enrollment and changes to Federal Employee Health Benefits must be made through the ABC-C Web site. BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Tide rolls to No. 1

The Alabama Crimson Tide took over the top spot in the BCS rankings after former number one, Texas, dropped a huge game to Texas Tech Nov. 1. Texas Tech jumped to the second spot, followed by Penn State at third. Texas fell to fourth place, followed by Florida, who jumped to fifth after a huge win over Georgia.

Texas Tech sure did shake it up this week.

Iverson to Detroit

The Detroit Pistons and Denver Nuggets finalized a deal Nov. 3 that will send guard Allen Iverson to Detroit in exchange for Chauncey Billups and Antonio McDyess. Cheikh Samb, 51st overall pick in the 2006 draft, will go along with Billups and McDyess.

Edwards wins race

Carl Edwards and crew chief Bob Osborne gambled with fuel consumption and won Nov. 2 at Texas Motor Speedway. It's the only way Edwards has any sort of a chance to beat out Jimmie Johnson for the Sprint Cup.

Johnson retained the points lead, with Edwards in second, behind by 106 points.

Only two races remain in the NASCAR season. The drivers will race at Phoenix International Raceway at 3:45 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

"Psycho T" tops list

North Carolina forward Tyler Hansbrough made his third straight Associated Press preseason All-America team – his third straight – and this time it was unanimous.

Other players selected included UCLA guard Darren Collison, Davidson guard Stephen Curry, Notre Dame forward Luke Harangody and Oklahoma forward Blake Griffin.

Culpepper returns

Quarterback Daunte Culpepper scrapped his plans for retirement after signing a two-year deal with the Detroit Lions. Culpepper was a first-round draft choice for the Minnesota Vikings in 1999 and a three-time Pro Bowl choice with the Vikings. Culpepper also played for the Raiders and Dolphins then announced his plans to retire.

Marathon jinx?

Just more proof to me that too much exercise is not good for you: two runners died within a day of completing the New York City Marathon Nov. 2. One was 58-year-old Carlos Jose Gomes of Brazil and the other is still unidentified. More than 38,000 runners participated in the marathon.

World record holder Paula Radcliffe won her third NYC marathon title. Brazil's Marilson Gomes dos Santos garnered the men's title after passing Abderrahim Goumri with a mile to go.

When it comes to rugby, the All-Air Force team knows what it is like to be a champion, but the All-Army team will try and change that this year when Fort Benning hosts the Armed Forces Rugby Championships Nov. 17-21 on Stewart-Watson Field.

Last year, the All-Army and All-Air Force teams met in the championship game with the Air Force taking a 22-5 victory, securing their fourth consecutive championship.

The best Army rugby players from around the Army began gathering at Fort Benning Nov. 1 to take part in the rugby trial camp which will determine who makes the All-Army team.

"We will have about 30 to 35 people attending the camp," assistant coach Clay Gardner said. "By the time the championships come around, we will have about 25 players on the team."

Head coach Mike Stephenson and coach Gardner will evaluate each player through work sessions during the next week to determine who makes the team.

"We will do some unit skill sessions, as well as team skills sessions," Gardner said. "We will have drills for forwards and backs and our team skills will focus on perfecting how we want to attack," he said.

The All-Army team will look to gain back the prominence it enjoyed in rugby during the late '90s and its championship seasons during 2000, 2001 and 2003.

"They have held the championship the past few years, but we had a long run in the '90s," Gardner said.

All five branches will compete in three days of competition Nov. 17, 19 and 20 to determine who has the best rugby team in the Armed Forces.

The public is invited to attend at Stewart-Watson Field.

Opening ceremonies begin Nov. 17 at 9 a.m. with the first game starting at 10 a.m. Admission and parking is free.

Abigail Ditchfield reached a historic milestone Oct. 26 by becoming the first female at Fort Benning to earn a 2nd degree black belt in karate.

Ditchfield, a 7th-grader at Richards Middle School, has been practicing karate since she was five years old. Earning the belt was the result of years of dedication and hard work, she said.

"To prepare, I came to as many classes as I could and worked as hard as I could," Ditchfield said.

In order to pass from first to second degree black belt, Ditchfield had to demonstrate a high level of proficiency in karate techniques. Among the challenges she faced were performing 50 push-ups on her knuckles, 100 sit-ups, sparring with other karate students, as well as demonstrating all the kicks, forms and techniques she had learned.

"The hardest part was the forms and sparring," she said.

"She's one of those kids

Blue Devils head to state championship Saturday

Twenty-three squads from five regions met at the Lumpkin Center at Columbus State University Saturday for the region cheerleading championships.Among them were the Lady Blue Devils of Columbus High School who competed in the Region 2-AAA championship against LaGrange, Troup County and Northside high schools. Columbus took first place and will head to the Georgia High School Association state championship finals Saturday at the Columbus Civic Center.

Each team had a maximum of two minutes and thirty seconds to perform their routine. Teams were graded on jumps, standing and running tumbling, partner stunts, pyramids, dance and cheering.

Prior to the region championship, Columbus sophomore flyer Brittney Cain, stepdaughter of retired 1st Sgt. Robert Harris, was nervous about the competition.

"This is what we have been practicing for all year long," she said. "We have spent many days practicing."

Ten minutes before the performance, Mary Jane Mitchell had mixed feelings.

"I'm excited and nervous right now. I am just ready to go out there," she said.

After the team had seen the other performances, junior flyer Cassidy Drysdale felt uneasy about the competition.

"This could be anyone's win. There is a lot of tough competition here today," she said.

After the Columbus win was announced, the girls jumped up and down.

"This is what we worked all year for. All the extra practices and long hours were worth it because of this moment," Cain said.

Merrimoore McDonald, head coach of Columbus, said she was moved by the girls' performance.

"I think I'm going to cry. They deserve this because they have worked so hard. Everything was perfect," she said.

Over 140 teams from classes A to AAAAA will compete at the GHSA state championship.

14th CSH defeats 1-15

THE BAYONET

The 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, lost to the 14th Combat Support Hospital 12-8 in the losers bracket third round of the post flag football tournament Tuesday at Essebagger Field.

Each team had several series of downs in the first half, but at the end of the first half, neither team managed to get the ball into the end zone and went into the intermission scoreless. In the second half, 14th CSH scored two touchdowns, but failed on their extra point conversions to take a 12-0 lead.

It wasn't until the last two minutes of the game that 1-15 scored their lone touchdown and two-point conversion of the game giving 14th CSH a 12-8 victory.

14th CSH player Anthony Bracken thought the game was "a tough one."

"It was a defensive struggle in the first half — no one was scoring. In the second half, we buckled down on defense and made the win happen," he said.

14th CSH coach Kenneth Petty had mixed feelings about the win.

"We established the run, and the defense stayed together and worked as a team," he said. "But I really think we could've played better. We came to the field flat-footed."

14th CSH advanced through the winners bracket Oct. 27, with a 25-6 first-round win over HHC 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt. In the second round, 14th CSH lost to 598th Maintenance Company 25-19, moving them down to the losers bracket where they defeated HHC 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regt.

With the victory over 1st Bn., 15th Inf. Regt., they moved on to the next round Nov. 5 where they took on MEDDAC. MEDDAC won the game, 7-0, ousting 14th CSH from the tournament.

Ditchfield said she enjoys karate because of the friends she has gained through it.

"I like the people," she said. "At tournaments, they're all supporting you."

Ditchfield plans to continue improving her karate skills, and has set higher goals for herself.

"I want to win the grand championship at the next World Yoshukai Karate Kobudo tournament in November," she said.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

This week, I want to talk about fat. Not the fat your're thinking — I'm talking about the fats found in the food we eat.

There is so much talk and confusion about fats, this week I want to try and clear some of that up for you.

The basic fact is that we all need fats in our diet. Fats serve a good purpose in our body including nutrient absorption and nerve transmission. But, in excess amounts, fats can contribute to weight gain, heart disease and certain types of cancer.

The problem is not all fats are created equal. Some fats promote our health in a positive manner, while others increase our risk of heart disease. The key is to replace bad fats with good fats in our diet.

There are several types of fats found in our food: saturated, unsaturated and trans. Below is a short description of the different types, and how you can get these in and out of your diet.

Saturated fats raise the total blood cholesterol as well as LDL cholesterol (the bad cholesterol) and therefore are the main dietary cause of high blood cholesterol. Saturated fat is found mostly in foods from animals and a few plants.

These would include beef, beef fat, veal, lamb, pork, lard, poultry fat, butter, cream, milk, cheeses and other daily products made from whole and 2 percent milk. Foods from plants that contain saturated fat include coconut, coconut oil, palm oil and palm kernel oil (also called tropical oils) and cocoa butter.

You should limit your intake of these types of fats to less than 7 percent of your daily calories. Be sure to always check the nutrition facts printed on the label. It will always show the saturated fat content of that particular food and help you gauge your intake.

Monounsaturated fats are good fats. They help lower your total cholesterol and LDL cholesterol while increasing HDL cholesterol (the good cholesterol).

You can find monounsaturated fats in foods like nuts, including peanuts, walnuts, almonds and pistachios. They are also in avocado, canola and olive oil.

Polyunsaturated fats also help lower your total cholesterol and your LDL cholesterol. You can find polyunsaturated fats in salmon, fish oil, corn soy, safflower and sunflower oil. Omega 3 fatty acids belong in this group of fats.

It's best to keep your total intake of fats between 25 and 35 percent of calories, with most fats coming from sources of polyunsaturated or monounsaturated fat.

Trans fats are "invented" fats. These fats are actually manufactured as scientists "hydrogenate" liquid oils so they can better withstand the food production process and provide a longer shelf life. Think of a Twinkie with a shelf life somewhere around five years.

As a result of this hydrogenation, trans fatty acids are formed. Trans fatty acids are found in many commercially packaged foods such as microwavable popcorn, fried foods, vegetable shorting and hard stick margarine.

As of January 2006, the FDA requires trans fats to be listed on nutrition labels, so remember to read the labels to help gauge the amount you are eating. Your intake of trans fats should be less than 1 percent of total calories.

To limit bad fats and get good fats, avoid using cooking oils high in saturated or trans fats like coconut oil and vegetable shortening. Instead, use oils low in saturated fats and high in monounsaturated fats such as canola oil, olive oil and flax seed oil.

You should also minimize your use of commercially packaged food, which is high in trans fats. Always read labels to look for trans-fat-free alternatives.

Try to use lower-fat versions of daily products such as 1 percent or skim milk instead of whole milk, and trim visible fats and skins from meat products. And as always, keep reading Fit Facts.

I hope this article helped clear up some of the mystery surrounding fats. Thanks for reading and have a happy and healthy weekend.

Team USA delivers

U.S. PRACTICAL SHOOTING ASSOCIATION

Two members of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit Action Shooting Team brought home medals from the World Championships last week. Four Soldiers of the Army Marksmanship Unit represented the USA at the International Practical Shooting Confederation World Shoot XV in Bali, Indonesia, Oct. 19 through Nov. 2.

The United States captured six team and four individual world titles. In team competition U.S. shooters took first in the Open, Modified, Standard and Production divisions as well as taking first in Junior Open and Ladies Open contests.

In individual competition, Spc. Kamille C. "K.C." Eusebio of the USAMU finished first among all Junior Open Division shooters while USAMU's Sgt. Travis E. Tomasie took high overall in the Standard Division. Athena Lee of Houston, Texas, was named the top Lady Open shooter and JoJo Vidanes of Norco, Calif., finished high overall in the Modified Division.

"We're extremely pleased with the performance of our shooters. We sent a very strong team to compete against the world's best and with 10 titles in hand I think it's safe to say Team USA delivered," said Michael Voigt, president of the U.S. Practical Shooting Association, the national governing body for action shooting, which runs the IPSC matches in the United States.

A total of 30 titles between team and individual competition were awarded at this year's World Shoot. The USA's 10 victories were more than twice that of its nearest competitor, Italy, which finished the World Shoot with four. The Czech Republic and Ecuador tied for third place with three titles each.

The strong U.S. Team showing was led by the Open Division Squad of Eusebio, his USAMU teammate Staff Sgt. Maxient "Max" J. Michel Jr., Chris Tilley of Raleigh, N.C., and B.J. Norris of Tyler, Texas. The Open Squad outpaced second-place Philippines by 238 points with France in third, Australia in fourth and the U.S. Junior Open Squad claiming fifth.

The U.S. Junior Open Team gave the USA its biggest margin of victory with a 646-point lead over the second-place junior squad from the Philippines. Spc. Brad A. Balsley of the USAMU led the Junior Squad finishing an impressive eighth overall. Teammates Shane Coley of Leland, Wash., James McGinty, of Tabernacle, N.J., and Forrest McCord of Houston, Texas, along with Eusebio and Norris of the official U.S. Open Team, helped the USA dominate among all junior shooters by capturing six of the top 12 spots. Australia and Germany finished third and fourth respectively.

Led by Lee, who topped all women shooters in the Open Division, the U.S. Ladies Open Team defeated the Austrians by 300 points. Joining Lee in victory were teammates Kay Clark-Miculek of Princeton, La., Lisa Munson of Marysville, Wash., and Eva Beecroft of Desert Hills, Ariz. Ladies squads from Australia and Italy finished third and fourth.

Tomasie, the 2008 USPSA Limited National Champion, continued his winning ways by taking the Standard Division World Championship and leading his U.S. Squad teammates Shannon Smith of Tampa, Fla., Taran Butler of Simi Valley, Calif., and Manny Bragg of Kirksville, Mo., to a 434-point victory over second-place Italy. The Czech Republic took third with the Philippines and Spain finishing fourth and fifth.

In the Modified Division, Vidanes led all shooters and helped teammates Michael Voigt of Chino, Calif., James Ong of Reno, Nev., and Barry Dueck to a 532-point victory over the second-place squad from the Philippines. Team Italy placed third with the Czech Republic in fourth and Indonesia in fifth.

Rounding out the team victories for the USA was the Production Division Squad of Matthew Mink of Conway, Ark., Robert Vogel of Wapakoneta, Ohio, Angus Hobdell of Mesa, Ariz., and David Olhasso of Holland, Pa. The U.S. shooters outshot the second-place Czech Republic squad by 231 points. In third was the team representing the Slovak Republic followed by Italy in fourth and South Africa in fifth.

The IPSC World Shoot is conducted every three years. The 2008 World Shoot consisted of 36 stages, which was shot over six days.

Steeplechase at Callaway

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

More than just a day at the races, the Steeplechase at Callaway is a local November tradition, which includes thoroughbred horses, pony rides, a hat competition and Jack Russell terrier races, to raise money for Columbus arts organizations.

Steeplechasing gets its name from a match race in County Cork, Ireland, in 1752, according to the National Steeplechase Association. Cornelius O'Callaghan and Edmund Blake raced about four and half miles from St. John's Church at Buttevant to St. Mary's Church in Doneraile — church steeples were the most prominent, and tallest, landmarks.

"Our mission has always been to support the arts in the community, using the steeplechase as a vehicle to do so," said Mason Lampton, race chairman. The proceeds from the race are distributed to five beneficiaries: The Columbus Museum, The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, The Historic Columbus Foundation, The Ida Cason Callaway Foundation, and The Springer Opera House. An additional partnership with the Auburn Veterinary College of Medicine is made possible through the proceeds.

Retiree has 'passion' for coaching

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Lee Obie loves coaching. He has been doing it for five years for the Child, Youth and School Services basketball, football and baseball teams on post.

Although his son is now too old to play on a CYS team, Obie still coaches.

"Coaching is my passion," Obie said. "It's so exciting to see the kids smile after the light bulb goes off and they understand a play."

Obie is the head coach of the 12- and 13-year old Bengals football team. He has some players he has coached three years and others who are new to the game, but he considers all of them "his own kids."

"Eighty percent of the team will be too old to play on the team next year and I'll be sad to see them go," he said.

"It's possible I won't ever see them again, but just to be able to coach them means a lot to me."

He recalls his first coach.

"He is someone I'll never forget because he developed me as a football player. I want to be that kind of coach for these kids," he said.

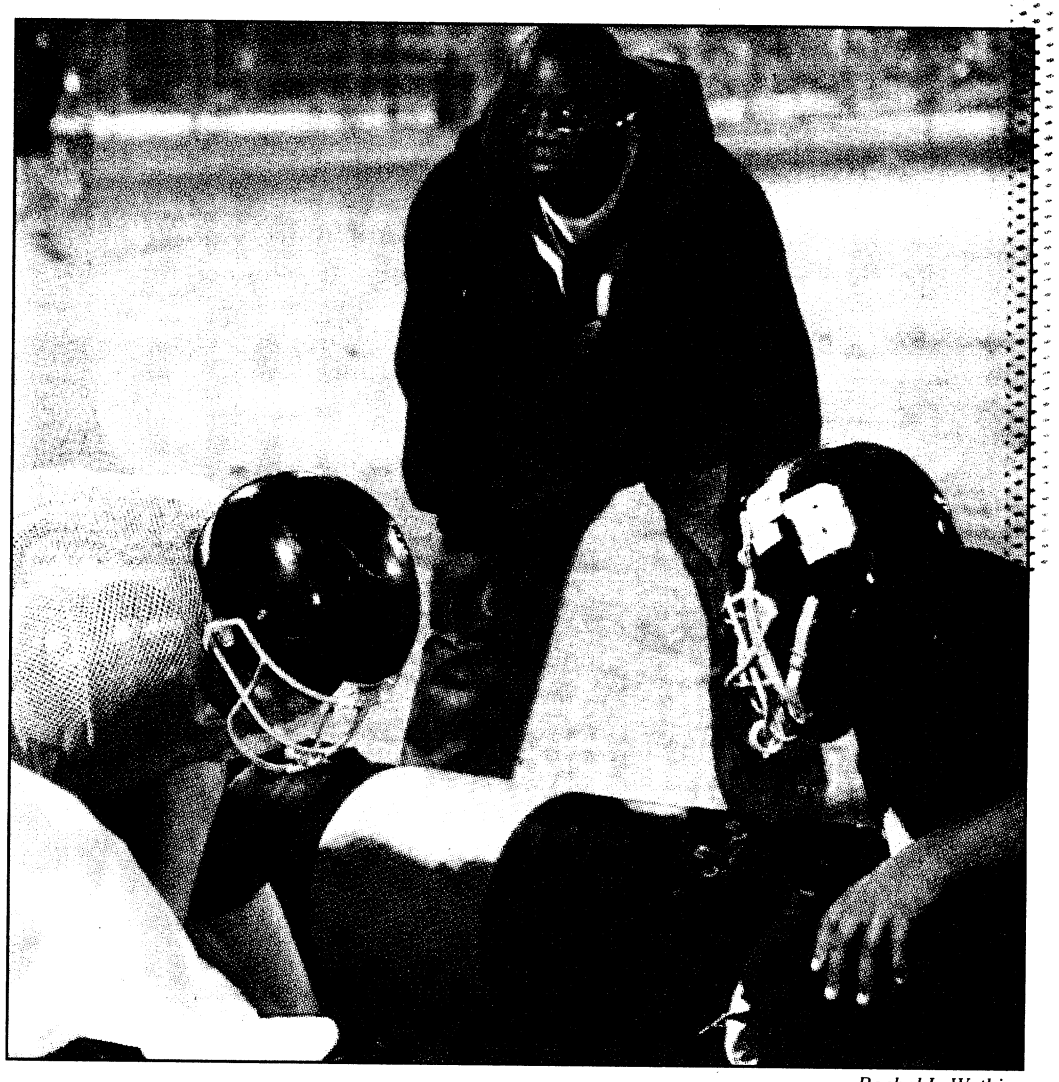
The drive from Phenix City to Fort Benning and Columbus for practice and games doesn't bother him one bit, he said.

Obie began coaching after a CYS staff member told him there weren't enough coaches for his son's baseball team.

"At first, I started coaching as a fan and I wanted to watch my son play. Then, I grew to love it," Obie said. "Unless someone tells me to quit, I am going to coach until I'm tired."

Thirteen-year-old Eugene Grace, a middle linebacker, said Obie is someone he respects.

"When I first started football, I came in not knowing everything. I have learned so much from him," he said.



Rachel L. Watkins

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Lee Obie watches as the 12- and 13-year-old Bengals football team runs tackle drills at practice. Obie has been coaching at Fort Benning for five years.

Assistant head coach Bill DeNova has seen Obie's passion for sports.

"He isn't invested in anything other than helping the kids," DeNova said. "He really connects with them and he has a passion for it. He wants to see the kids grow and get better at football."

Obie will wrap up the football season and begin basketball season at the end of November.

Yellow Jackets sting Tigers with 4-1 victory

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Yellow Jackets stung the Tigers with a 4-1 win Saturday in the 5- and 6-year-old Child Youth and School Services soccer game at French Field. This was the sixth game of the season for the two teams.

Six-year-old Yellow Jacket Avery Hughes said she felt good about the game.

"I don't get goals a lot, but when I do, it makes me really happy," she said.

"It doesn't matter that we didn't win," said 6-year-old Tiger Sam Knudson. "My favorite part of the game was when I almost got a goal."

Knudson said soccer is his favorite sport because he gets to "kick the ball and run."

After the game, the children smiled and laughed as they ran through the "tunnel," made of parents facing each other with their hands arched in the air.

Both teams, who have played since the end of September, have two games left until the end of the season. There are 34 youth soccer teams on post. Teams play from 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays at French Field. CYS offers other sports, including basketball, wrestling and cheerleading, for elementary to middle school students.

CYS is always looking for volunteer coaches, said Linda Laine, sports and fitness director at CYS.

For more information on soccer or other sports on post, call CYS at 706-545-2079 or visit Building 104 on Marchant Avenue. To volunteer, call 706-545-3582 or 706-545-1853.

Dog 'sniffs out' drugs

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

More than 400 children at Stowers Elementary School saw a military working dog demonstration Friday, the first one of the school year for the students, said Staff Sgt. Keyon Audevert, a dog handler with the 209th Military Police Detachment.

Borca, a 75-pound Belgian malinois, detected some marijuana that had been placed on the school playground for him to find.

They used the playground because public areas, such as neighborhood parks and playgrounds, can often be a place for drug trafficking, Audevert said.

"We do the demonstrations to show the kids that we have assets on the installation to protect them and help them stay safe from drugs," he said.

The demonstration was part of Red Ribbon Week, the largest drug prevention campaign in the country. Students learned about the dangers of drug addiction, prescription drugs, talking to strangers and how to resist peer pressure. They were encouraged to wear red as a reminder of their stand against drugs.

"Red Ribbon Week means to say no to drugs," said 9-year-old Cameryn Moon. "I wear something red because it says 'I believe in me drug-free.'"

Dogs like Borca are trained in either detecting narcotics or bombs, never both, Audevert said.

"He sniffed out drugs. That's what I liked," said 6-year-old Chloe Olson. "But I don't like the drugs on my playground. They're bad for you."

Directed by Sgt. Stephen Thompson, Borca's handler, Borca also attacked and subdued a decoy, Spc. Travis Vonloh, currently studying

Operation Sleigh Ride helps Santa's Castle

Participants earn Canadian jump wings

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Two hundred and fifty paratroopers from across the Southeast gathered Oct. 29 at Fort Benning's Fryar Field for Operation Sleigh Ride, an Airborne jump operation benefiting Santa's Castle, a non-profit organization.

Each participant was asked to donate a toy to Santa's Castle, which provides holiday gifts to children of Fort Benning Soldiers in financial difficulty.

The operation was a joint effort between the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, and Canadian jumpmasters.

The 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment Memorial Fund, the regiment's charitable foundation, donated $2,000 to Santa's Castle.

The operation was a tremendous help to Santa's Castle, said Jeff Saeli, president of Santa's Castle.

"It was very much appreciated," he said. "In addition to the cash donation, we received 262 toys. It will have a substantial effect on our children."

The operation's focus was two-fold, said Lt. Col. Jon Ring, the battalion commander.

"First, it's a great gesture on the part of the Soldiers," he said. "Second, we hope it advertises around the community the need for donations to Santa's Castle."

In a gesture of camaraderie, paratroopers exchanged honorary jump wings with the Canadians after completing a jump.

"It was a great opportunity to share Airborne brotherhood," said Canadian jumpmaster Sgt. Gord Whan.

Though the paratroopers can be proud of earning honorary Canadian jump wings, Ring said, the operation's main focus was on giving back to the Fort Benning community.

"Today is really about the donations," he said in a pre-jump address to paratroopers.

Operation Sleigh Ride was a success, Saeli said, but Santa's Castle is still in need of donations.

Lt. Col. Jon Ring, commander of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, congratulates Operation Sleigh Ride participants on their achievements before a jump Oct. 29 on Fryar Field.

"We have a total of 966 children applying to receive toys this year, and we still have an outstanding need for donations for children ages 1 to 3, who represent over one-third of our applicants," he said.

"The vast majority of those children come from enlisted households that may be less able to cope with price fluctuations."

New toy donations can be brought to Santa's Castle in Building 1676 on Fort Benning, and cash donations can be made at any branch of Columbus Bank and Trust.

Santa's Castle volunteers will also be on hand to accept donations at God Bless Fort Benning Day Nov. 22.

For more information about Santa's Castle, call 706-685-4422, or visit www.santascastle.org.

God Bless Fort Benning Day set

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

God Bless Fort Benning Day will be from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 22 on Broadway in uptown Columbus, between Ninth and 12th streets. The festival, which started as a grassroots movement of 20 people, has grown exponentially since it began seven years ago, said Capt. Carl Purgerson, post liaison for GBFB Day.

More than 17,000 attended in 2007, Purgerson said. This year, he expects even more.

"It has evolved into a public demonstration of support — a thank you to the troops who serve in and around Columbus," he said.

The celebration will feature new activities, he said, such as a gaming area where Soldiers can play video games for free, an expanded kids zone and discounted photos from disposable Kodak cameras for Soldiers and families.

Favorites from last year also return, including the Ranger hand-to-hand combat demonstration, wrestling matches, a free movie from Carmike, Hug a Hero, military static displays, the motorcycle rally and free calls home for Soldiers.

Runners can participate in the 5K and 10K Freedom Run, starting at 8:30 a.m. at the intersection of First Avenue and 12th Street. Register online or at the GBFB office through Nov. 17. The cost is $10 for military, $15 for students and $17 for adults. The awards ceremony will follow at 10:30.

After the pancake breakfast for the troops, the festival opens to the public at 9:30 a.m.

Children's activities will continue throughout the day. They include 10 inflatables, face painting, balloon animals, a toddlers area, carnival games and a children's ballet performance of The Nutcracker.

Thanks to community support, all the entertainment is free for visitors, said Lisa Lavallee, GBFB director, who has been planning for this day since summer.

"It's an opportunity to show our Soldiers and their families our appreciation for their service to our country," she said. "It's going to be a great day for families to come out, enjoy concessions, hear local entertainment, let the kids play and know that it's all for the Soldiers. That's why we do it."

Lavallee is still looking for volunteers to help during different shifts of the day. Anyone interested should call the GBFB office at 706-505-1358.

An Xbox 360 with games included will be raffled off during the afternoon. To purchase tickets in advance, visit the office at 1106 Broadway, Columbus. Raffle tickets will also be on sale the day of the event.

For more information, visit www.godblessfortbenning.com or call 706-545-0927.

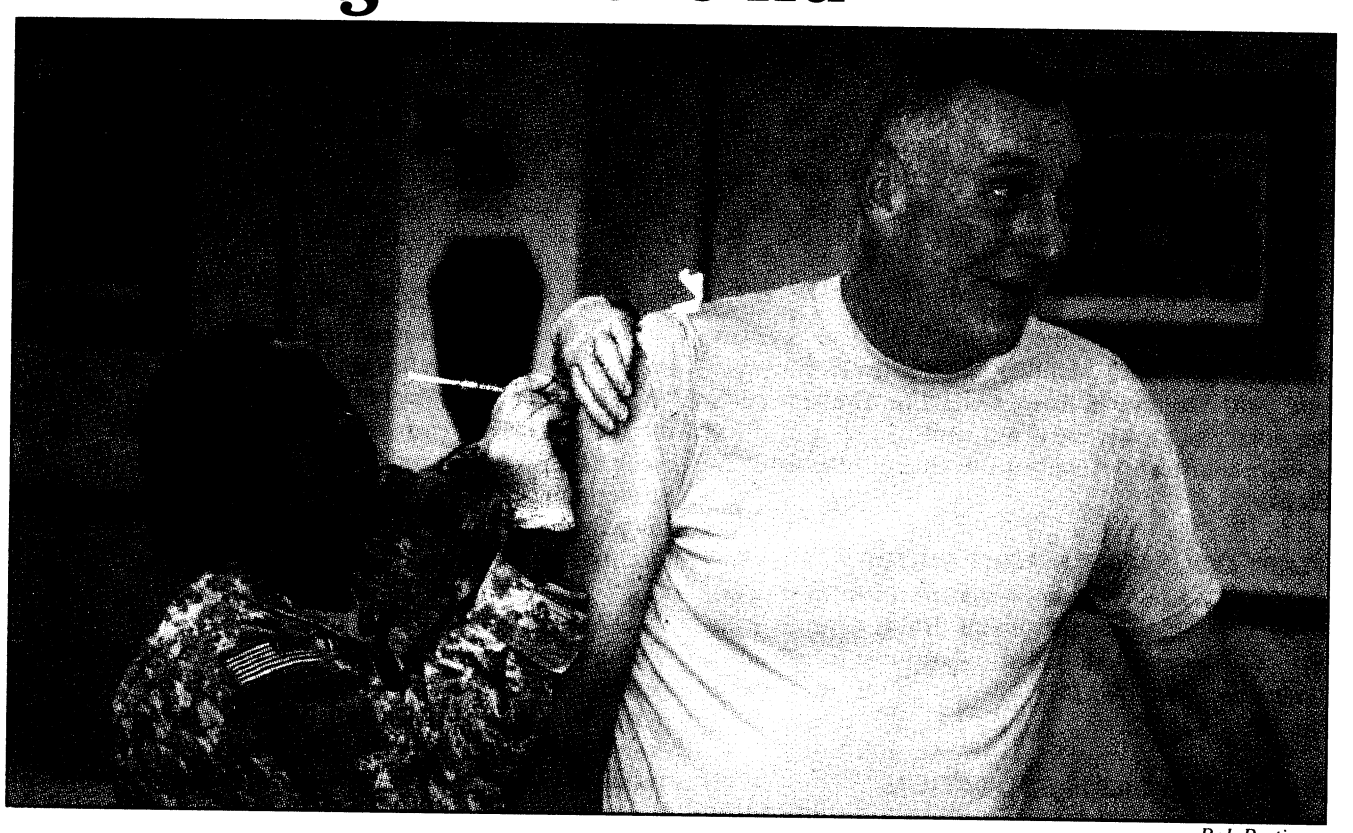
Armed against the flu



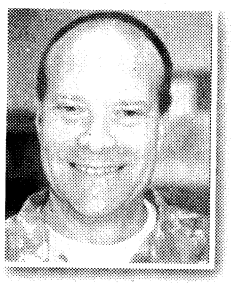
Bob Purtiman

Maj. Evelyn Townsend gives Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski a flu shot. Influenza is a contagious respiratory virus that can cause mild to severe illness, and at times can lead to death. The best way to prevent the flu is by getting a vaccination each year. Some individuals, such as older people, young children and people with certain health conditions, are at risk for serious flu complications. Starting today, the MACH Family Practice Clinic is offering influenza vaccines to all beneficiaries, including Internal Medicine and Ob/Gyn patients, on a walk-in basis, from 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 5:30 p.m. Monday to Friday. The Pediatric Clinic will vaccinate infants and children Monday to Friday by appointment. Call the appointment line at 706-544-2273. Pediatric patients who already have scheduled appointments will be offered the vaccine at that time.

Dating can keep spark in marriage

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

In my 12 years as an active-duty chaplain, I have not yet met one couple who married planning to get a divorce. I have never met one couple who decided to get married on the two year plan. After two years, they would re-evaluate their marriage and decide if they wanted to re-up for another term. In fact, just the opposite is true. Every couple who married stated they wanted to get married for life, "until death do us part." Then, life goes on and they find themselves facing difficulties and hardship, and some end up at the lawyer's office.



Now how does this happen? Why does this happen? Two people in love committed to a lifelong relationship getting separated or divorced?

One of the top three reasons people get divorced today is because they have grown apart. Simply put, they stopped connecting and moved away from each other. Remember when you were dating? Remember how you would seek to spend every free moment with your lover? Remember how you would plan to be together and do things together? You honored each other and made each other feel special. Remember how we thought we could not live without them? We committed our lives to one another, we pledged our loyalty before friends, family and God. What a great day. What an honorable commitment. And life continues on.

Pressures of the job demand our time. Little ones pop up out of nowhere. More mouths to feed, more time, money, and effort is demanded from us. We feel the stress of life's demands. Deployments remove us from the family for long periods of time. We have to adjust to being single parents (not what I signed up for) during deployments.

Have you experienced this in your life? Feeling like you may be in a rut? If so, you may need to break out of the rut. Go back to where it all began. Date your mate.

Think about this: if you did not make a conscious effort to date when you first met, would you be married today? Of course not. Dating is that time you purposely planned to be together. Dating was fun. Dating was exciting. Why did we stop? Because we got married?

A date implies we make an effort to be together with the goal of doing something fun, something out of the ordinary or something we are comfortable doing together. Dating is choosing to get out of the rut and fight complacency in our marriage. We never grow too old to date.

Now keep in mind a date is not going to church together (although this is important for families) It is not going to vote. It is not watching your child's sporting event, shopping at the commissary (although this may be helpful) or the PX. It is not going to the movie theater to watch separate movies; he goes to watch his action packed movie while she goes to the chick flick.

A date ought to be something special; it should take some planning and some coordination to protect some time to be together. It should be something that offers an opportunity of connecting through conversation (sharing and listening) with one another. It should be an opportunity of "two-getherness." Leave the children with a sitter.

If we do not purposely plan time together in our busy lives, then time together will most likely not happen. And lack of time together, lack of connection can lead to growing apart. Break out of the routine and invest in your marriage for a lifelong commitment of joy.

If you are having some struggles in your marriage, we would be happy to help at the Chaplain's Family Life Center. Call 545-1760 to make an appointment with one of our trained, professional pastoral counselors. Your conversations are completely confidential.

Call or stop by our center at 2606 Dixie Road in Soldier's Plaza. We look forward to helping with your journey. May God richly bless you and your family.

Veterans Day time to honor sacrifices

FAMILY LIFE CHAPLAIN TRAINING PROGRAM
Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Thomas C. Waynick

This week, my son told me to "be safe" when I announced that I was on orders to Washington, D.C.

At first I thought his response to be a bit strange, but then I realized that he has grown up in the shadow of 9/11 and has associated the Pentagon with a place where the threat of terror looms. This is the same young boy who, after 9/11, I came home to find building block towers and flying his metal airplane around them saying, "Look daddy, the plane doesn't hit the building and no one gets hurt."

His words then and now remind me of the constant price of our freedom and safety; a price so frequently paid by you who are reading this article. That price is service and sacrifice for this nation in the armed forces of the United States of America.

Having been in war, I have a deep appreciation for the sacrifices many in our history have made, not only on my behalf, but on the behalf of our nation. Soldiers of all generations have risen to the clarion call to bear the price of preserving our homeland. As a warrior who counsels warriors and their families, I know the cost is great. Not only is there the physical toll of war measured in blood and the loss of limb and life, but there is also an emotional toll.

For service to nation in times of war takes a cost in the human soul which veterans know all too well. Coming home from war takes time. Our valued relationships heal in due season and restore us as we continue our mission of guarding and defending our sacred soil. Take pride in your contributions and know that many are very proud of you.

Veterans Day is a recognition of you and all those who have gone before in preserving our American beliefs and values. Its history starts with the armistice that ended World War I, "the war to end all wars." It took effect on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918. The war officially ended on June 28, 1919. The following November, President Wilson proclaimed Nov. 11 Armistice Day. Eventually, the celebration became Veterans Day, a celebration to honor you, America's veterans, for your patriotism, service and sacrifice.

Since returning from Iraq, Jesus' words, "Greater love has no man than to lay down his life for a friend" have taken on even greater meaning for me. When I was stationed at Fort Stewart, Ga., I would prepare myself for the chapel service by walking across the street from the chapel through the many memorial trees, each one commemorating the loss of a fellow Soldier in Iraq. There in the midst of the names, I was reminded of the cost of our freedom and the responsibility that I now have to live in honor of their great sacrifice. That weekly journey inspired me every Sunday to remind God's people of their responsibility to live in response to his sacrifice for us, as well as the sacrifices his children have made on our behalf.

Thank you for what you have given me and the American people. I know it has come at a great cost to you and no amount of payment can make up for it. Know that this Veterans Day is a small token of the nation's esteem for you and your service. This day is for you.

Spc. Travis Vonloh, acting as a decoy during the military working dog demonstration, fends off Borca, a 75-pound Belgian Malinois dog. Vonloh was able to stay on his feet the first time Borca attacked, but the second time, the dog knocked him to the ground.

Four-year-old Gabriella Bermudez, a student in pre-kindergarten at Stowers, climbs out of a military police car Friday. She and her classmates wore vests that spelled out "Say no 2 drugs," the theme for Red Ribbon Week.

Military dogs: Train to detect drugs to be a dog handler. The second time, the dog even knocked Vonloh down.

That wasn't acting, he said.

"Every time that dog hits me, he floors me," said Vonloh, who left Fort Benning Saturday for Lackland Air Force Base where all dogs and handlers receive their training.

"I've been loving K-9 ever since I joined the military," said Vonloh, the proud owner of three German shepherds. "I love training them; I love working with them — just everything about it. You do something so long and finally you start getting paid for it, it feels good. It's not even working, it's all play."

Handlers on post are required to work with their dogs on control and detection training for 32 hours a month. Just like the MPs, they are here to keep Fort Benning safe.

"I think it's important because drugs kill, no matter what anyone says, and we need to make our children aware of this," Vonloh said.

Other activities during Red Ribbon Week included arts and crafts geared toward drug abuse prevention.

Like many of the children, 5-year-old Connor Spears said he enjoyed seeing Borca and hopes the dog visits Stowers again soon.

THE BAYONET
NOVEMBER 7, 2008

March of Dimes Nightwalk offers different view of Fantasy in Lights

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Nov. 16 is the only night you can experience Fantasy in Lights, one of the largest light displays in the country, on foot.

Walk through nearly 8 million lights set to the sound of custom and classic Christmas music at the 16th annual March of Dimes Nightwalk at Callaway Gardens. The lights depict images from Santa's workshop and The Nutcracker as well as new scenes, like the Firefly Cove, which includes hundreds of mechanical fireflies, butterflies and dragonflies.

The event is great for families, said Rachel Crumbley, public relations director at Callaway.

"You'll see people pushing strollers, pulling wagons. It's really just magical," she said.

All proceeds benefit March of Dimes and the Ida Cason Callaway Foundation.

March of Dimes began not far from Callaway Gardens in Warm Springs, Ga., when President Franklin Roosevelt founded the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said Linda Szabo, March of Dimes executive director.

Since its inception, people around the country have hosted walks and runs to raise money to promote good health for mothers and their children. This particular walk, a five-mile stroll through colored Christmas scenery, is "delightful," Szabo said.

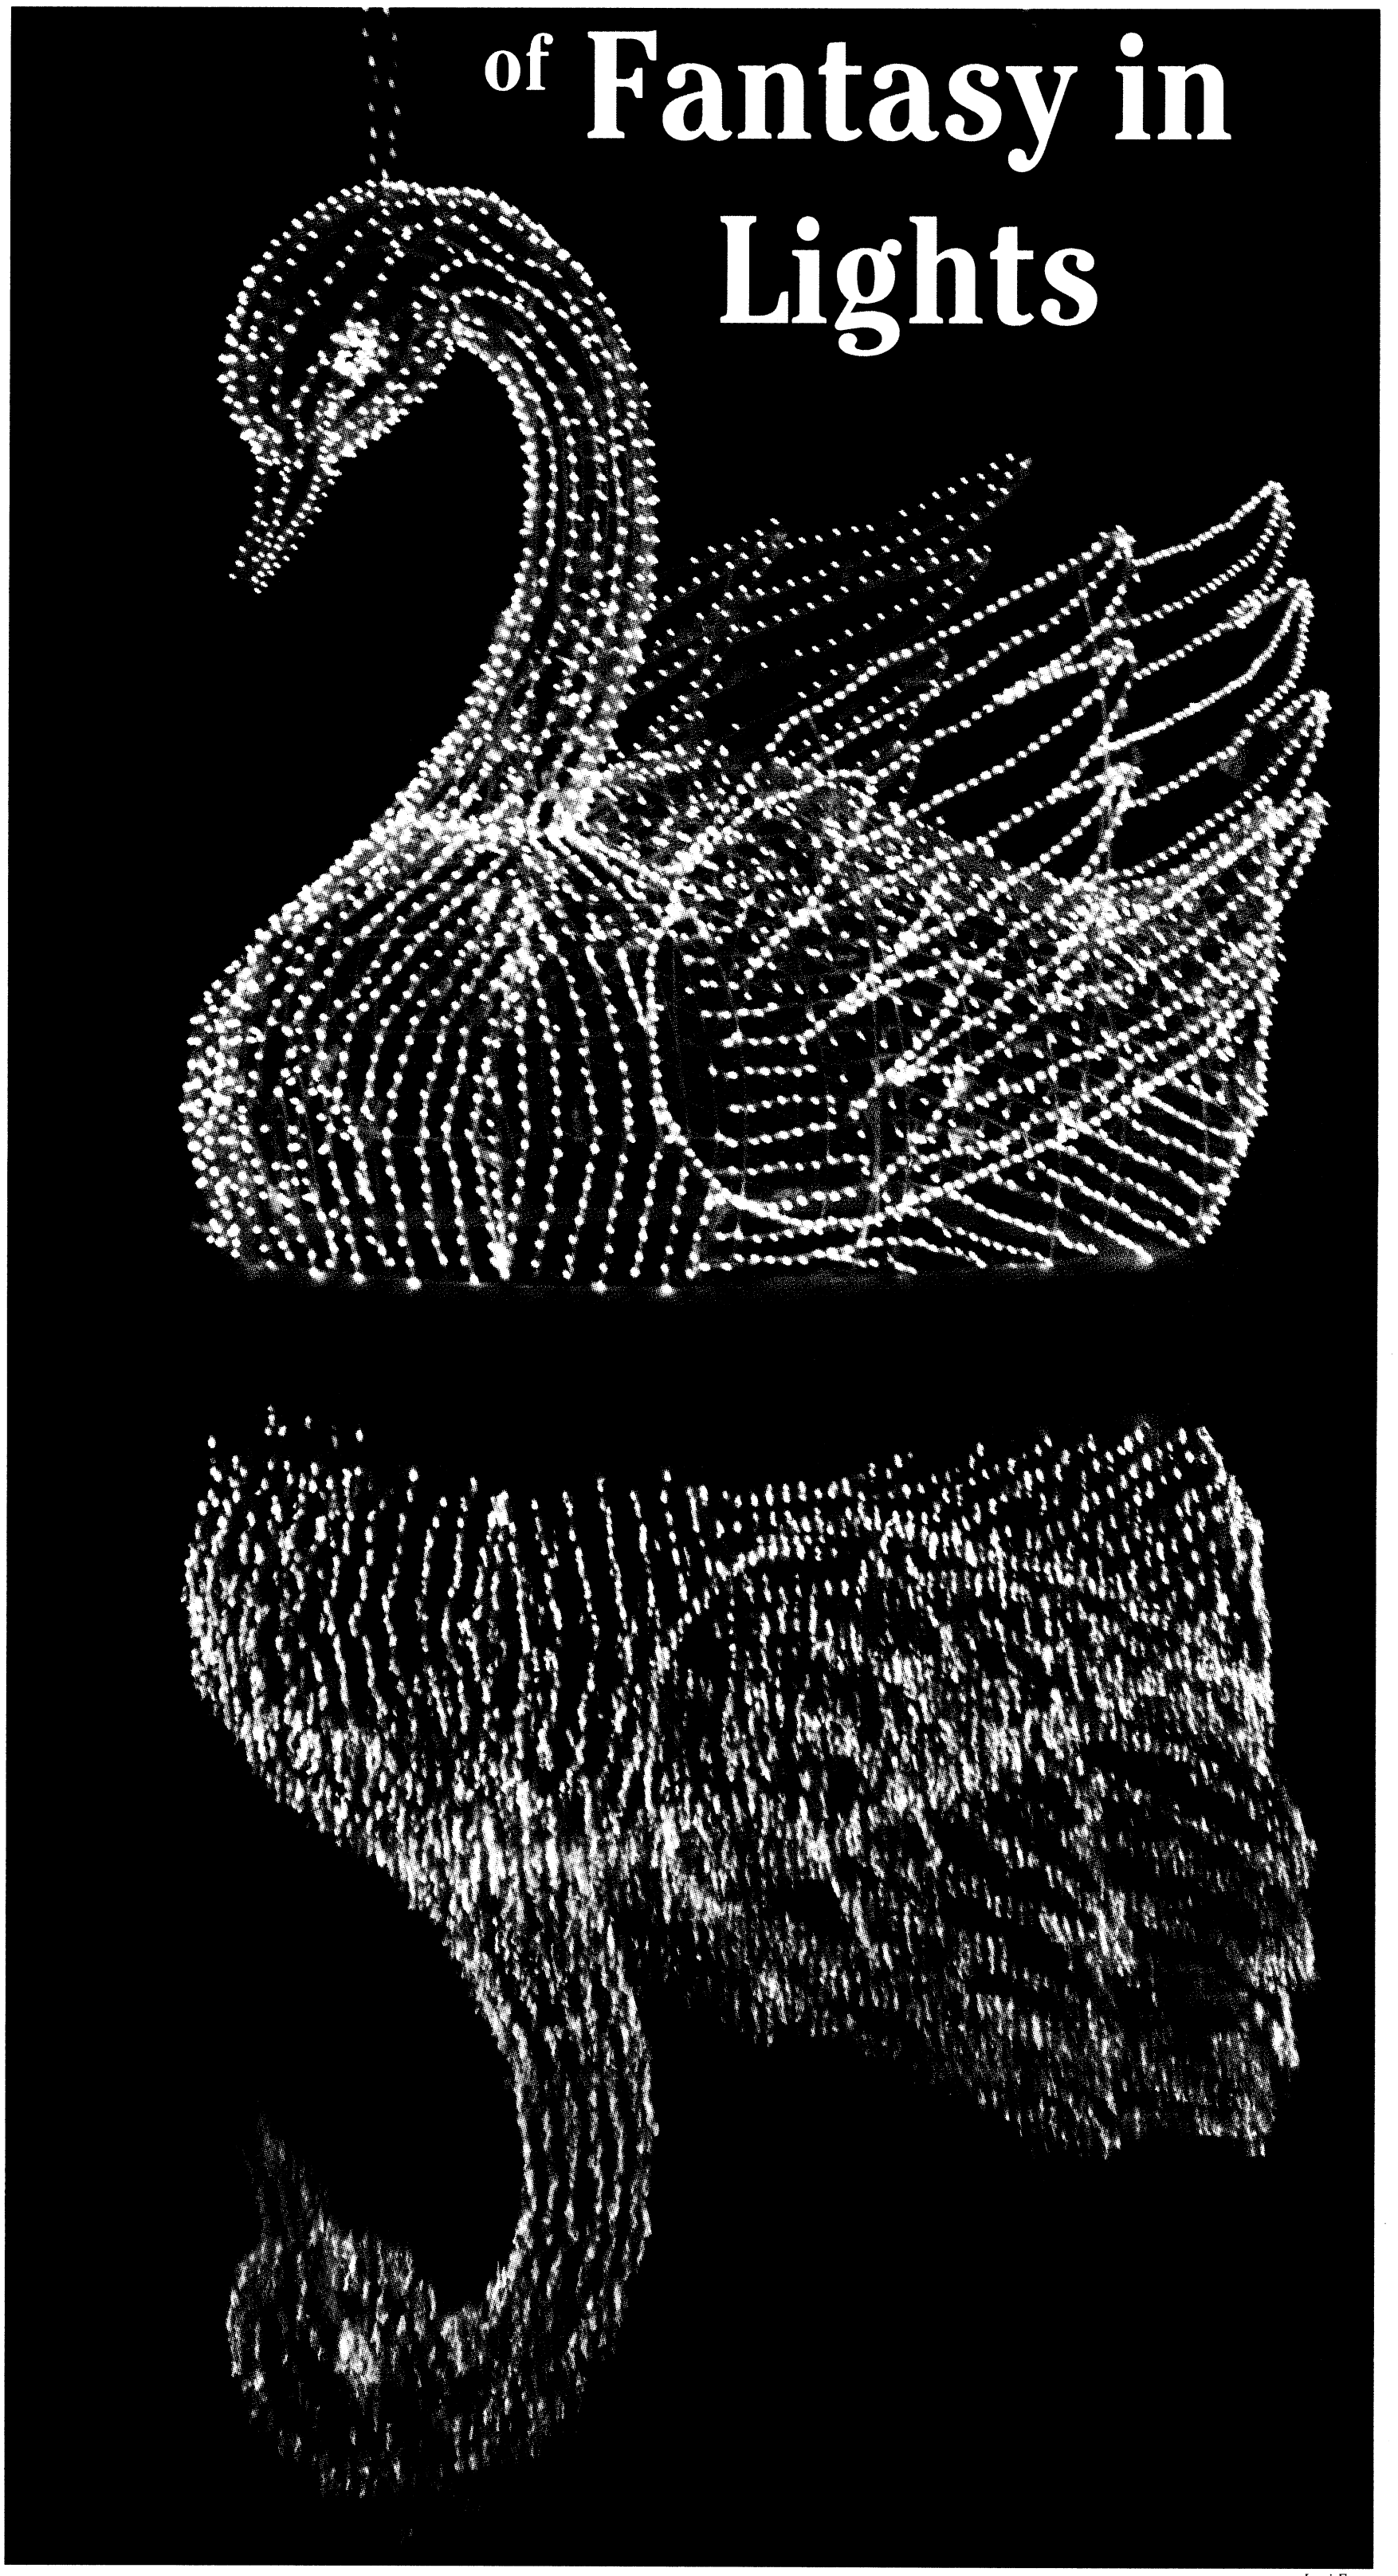
"It's an amazing event — unbelievable, I would call it," she said. "It is the best way, but not the only way, to see Fantasy in Lights — to walk through it at your own pace. There's the lights and the music and the fellowship and camaraderie between church groups, school groups, corporate employees and individual walkers. It's beautiful."

The Nightwalk makes a great Christmas tradition, in keeping with the season of giving, Szabo said. Many walkers have been coming for 15 years now, but it's never too late to start.

The walk begins at the Callaway Beach Gate entrance. Participants can choose from three groups, starting at 6, 6:30 and 7 p.m. Walkers can return to the entrance by foot, seven miles in all, or take the trolley.

Tickets are $16 for adults and $8 for children 6 to 12. Kids 5 and younger get in free but will need a ticket. Registration is available in advance at the March of Dimes office, 6501 Veterans Parkway, Suite 4B, Columbus, or at 4 p.m. at Callaway the day of for the 7 p.m. time slot.

For more information, call 706-660-0160.



Lori Egan

The swan, originally added in 1993, is just one of more than a dozen scenes, which include The Nativity, The Twelve Days of Christmas and The Night Before Christmas.

OPENING TODAY

SOUL MEN

Two former backup soul singers, Louis and Floyd who have not spoken to each other in 20 years reluctantly agree to travel across the country together to a reunion concert to honor their recently deceased lead singer (John Legend). Cleo (Sharon Leal), a beautiful young woman who is believed to be Floyd's daughter, accompanies them as a new singer.

Samuel L. Jackson stars as Louis and Bernie Mac stars as Floyd.

Soul Men is rated R for language and sexual content including nudity.

MADAGASCAR: ESCAPE 2 AFRICA

Alex, Marty, Melman, Gloria, King Julien, Maurice, the penguins and the chimps find themselves marooned on the distant shores of Madagascar.

In the face of this obstacle, the New Yorkers have hatched a plan so crazy it just might work. With military precision, the penguins have repaired an old crashed plane—sort of.

Once aloft, this unlikely crew stays airborne just long enough to make it to the wildest place of all — the vast plains of Africa, where the members of our zoo-raised crew encounter species of their own kind for the very first time. Africa seems like a great place — but is it better than their Central Park home?

ALSO PLAYING

ZACK AND MIRI MAKE A PORNO

Two lifelong, platonic friends, strapped for cash and in debt, decide to make a porno.

The movie stars Seth Rogen as Zack and Elizabeth Banks as Miri Linky.

Zack and Miri Make a Porno is rated R for sexual content, nudity and language.

THE HAUNTING OF MOLLY HARTLEY

A teenage girl discovers her parents made a pact with the devil to save her life. When the devil comes to collect, terrible things begin to happen and she must figure out if and how she can save herself.

Haley Bennett stars as Molly, Jake Weber as Robert, Chace Crawford is Joseph, Shanna Collins is Alexis and Shannon Marie Woodward is Leah.

The Haunting of Molly Hartley is rated PG-13 for violence and terror, brief strong language and teen drinking.

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 3: SENIOR YEAR

This third film in the High School Musical series follows teens Troy and Gabriella through the trials of their senior year. Faced with the prospect of separation upon departing for college, they stage an elaborate spring muscial reflecting their experiences, hopes and fears. The entire Wildcat crew joins in the muscial fun.

High School Musical 3 stars Zac Efron, Vanessa Hudgens and Ashley Tisdale. It is rated G.

SAW V

In the fifth installment of this horror series, Hoffman finds himself the last survivor left to carry on the Jigsaw legacy. Or is he? When Hoffman's secret is threatened, he must go on the hunt to eliminate any remaining loose ends.

Saw V stars Laura Gordon, Tobin Bell, Scott Patterson and Costas Mandylor. It is rated R for sequences of violence and torture, language and nudity.

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic antihero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld.

As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence, drug content, sexuality and language.

QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911-distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown.

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

When they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

Quarantine is rated R for violent and disturbing content, terror and language.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Although ostensibly his allies, Ferris questions how far he can really trust these men without putting his entire operation — and his life — on the line.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens.

Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember.

City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THE EXPRESS

The true story of Ernie Davis (Rob Brown), two-time All-American running back for Syracuse University who led his team to the national championship in 1960. In 1961, he became the first black man to win the Heisman Trophy. Later that year, he was the first pick in the NFL draft. But Davis never got the chance to play professional football — he was diagnosed with leukemia during the summer of 1962 and died nearly a year later.

The Express is rated PG for thematic content, violence and language involving racism and sensuality.

BLINDNESS

When a sudden plague of blindness devastates a city, a small group of the afflicted band together to triumphantly overcome the horrific conditions of their imposed quarantine.

Blindness is a thriller starring Don McKellar, Julianne Moore, Mark Ruffalo and Sandra Oh. It is rated R for violence including sexual assaults, language, sexuality and nudity.

AN AMERICAN CAROL

A cynical, Anti-American "Hollywood" filmmaker sets out on a crusade to abolish the 4th of July holiday. He is visited by three spirits who take him on a journey in an attempt to show him the true meaning of America. An American Carol is stars Kevin Farley, Kelsey Grammer, Jon Voight, Trace Adkins, James Woods, and Leslie Nielsen.

It is rated PG-13 for rude and irreverent content, and for language and drug material.

In December 2008, Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) staff will initiate the Survey of Interest (SOI) and volunteer process (VP) for placement opportunities against positions in the Maneuver Center of Excellence (MCOE). Even though there will be several recruitment iterations necessary to fill all anticipated vacancies, the first placement efforts will be dedicated solely to permanent mission employees whose positions will be realigned to the MCOE.

To be considered for placement under this process, all permanent employees must volunteer as no one will be "automatically" reassigned to the MCOE. This process will entail (1) the preparation/update of employee resumes; (2) prepositioning of those resumes in RESUMIX; (3) responding to a formal Survey of Interest (SOI); and, (4) ultimately volunteering for positions under the VP.

Resumes should be created and/or updated in the Resume Builder on the Armyís CPOL Web site located at https://cpolst.belvoir.army.mil/public/resumebuilder/builder/index.jsp and must be submitted to the centralized RESUMIX database.

Resumes must be completed and posted in RESUMIX NLT COB Thursday, 15 Jan 09. No mailed, hand carried, digitally transmitted, or faxed resumes will be accepted.

In order to facilitate ease of computer use for those without immediate access, staff members of the Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) have coordinated the use of computer classrooms beginning 14 October 2008 thru 31 December 2008. Computers will be available for resume update during the hours and at the locations indicated below. HR Staff will be on-site during 1400-1600 each day.

Veterans, family members, Soldiers and civilians gathered in front of Infantry Hall Tuesday for the annual Veterans Day ceremony. Some came for the first time; many, like retired MSG Jim Rhodes, a "veterans' activist," have been coming for decades.

"I've been coming here ever since '58," Rhodes said. "I'm a veteran, and I like the comradeship of seeing some of the old ones again, and seeing the new ones, seeing what an inspiring Army we still have."

The 86-year-old World War II veteran remembered brothers, cousins and uncles who served faithfully in the military. He credits that kind of service for his liberty today.

"The veterans are why we still have the freedom that we enjoy in the United States," Rhodes said. "We will cease to be a great nation when we forget Veterans Day."

Retired WO4 Harry Parr, who brought his daughter to the ceremony for the first time, said he considered it his duty to attend and show his appreciation for all that the veterans have done.

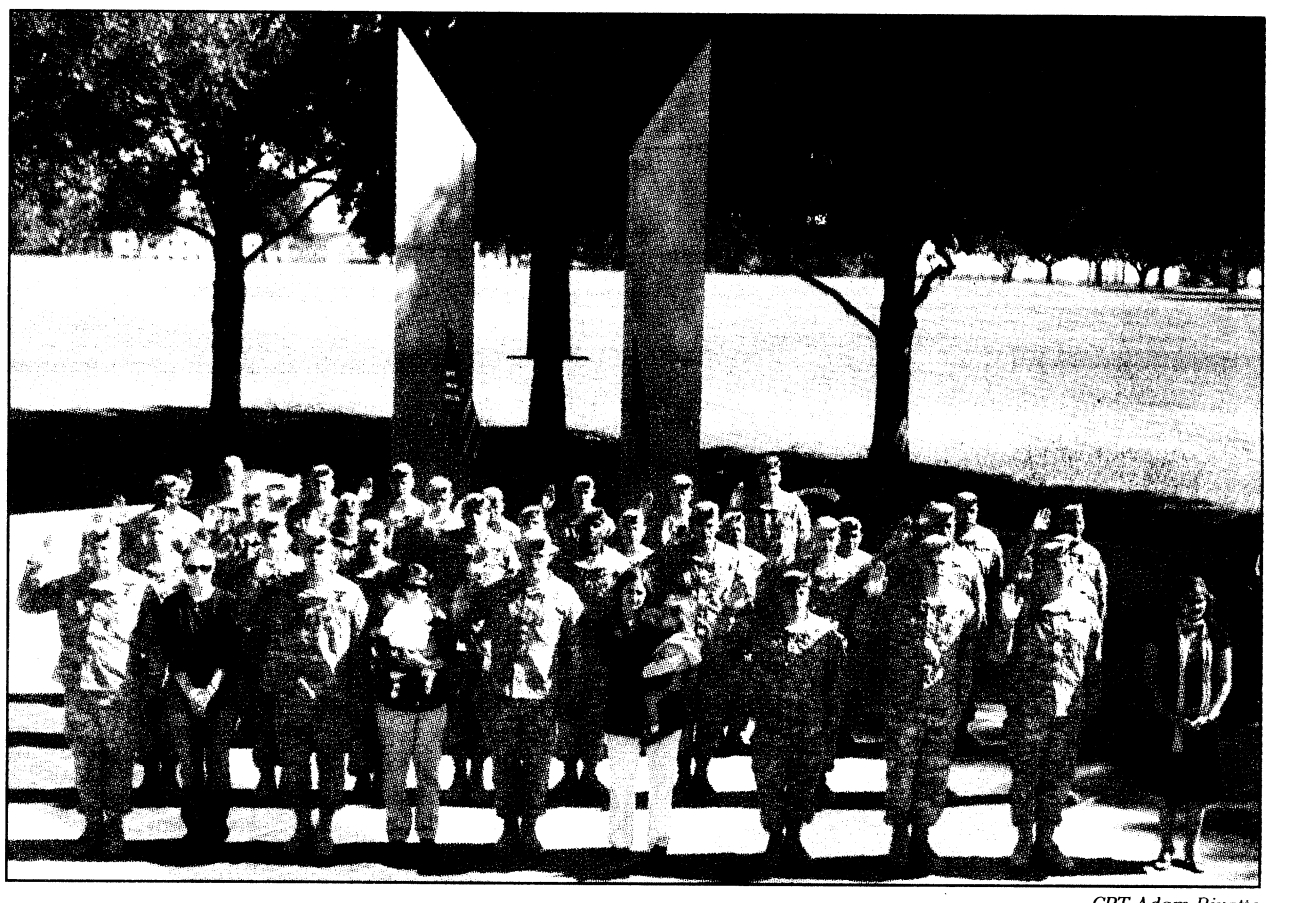
32 RTB Soldiers re-enlist



CPT Adam Rivette

32 Soldiers from Ranger Training Brigade re-enlisted en masse.

RANGER TRAINING BRIGADE
CPT Adam Rivette

It was the largest re-enlistment ceremony the Ranger Training Brigade ever conducted. Thirty-two Soldiers re-enlisted providing the Army with an aggregate of 284 years of future service.

"One of the best things I get to do as a commander is to re-enlist Rangers," said COL Douglas Flohr, commander of the Ranger Training Brigade to the Soldiers and family members gathered at the mass re-enlistment ceremony on the Ranger Memorial.

"You are the men who guard Americans in their beds at night," Flohr said. "As Rangers you are the best of the best, the heart of the United States Army, and the nation needs you to stay."

Rangers from Camp Rogers, Camp Merrill, and Camp Rudder swore their oaths of re-enlistment before a crowd of fellow Rangers, family and friends.

Rangers re-enlisted for different reasons, they said, but they all share their commitment to the U.S. Army.

SGT Deray Dorsey, a human resources specialist, said he is looking forward to attending college and starting a family. His wife, Gina, a former Soldier, said she supports her husband in his decision to serve — especially as he prepares to better himself through advanced education.

"It's very courageous, and it is something I have a lot of respect for," Gina said. "It's his job; it's what he does — it's why he joined. That's the Army."

She said families need to support their Soldiers' decisions to serve in the military.

"It's a hard job, but somebody's got to do it," she said. "They need support from everywhere they can

Biofuel project to be tested

USAIC PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
Brenda Donnell

Fort Benning is among six sites where a Tifton, Ga., company will conduct one-year tests of a process that converts plant matter, like grass clippings and wood waste, into bio-diesel.

Bell Bio-Energy, Inc.'s process naturally changes leftover plant matter, known as biomass, into hydrocarbons that can be converted to bio-diesel, and even jet fuel, said J.C. Bell, agricultural researcher and CEO of Bell Bio-Energy, Inc., who devised the process.

The start date for the experiment at Fort Benning has not yet been set, and the first test-site will be at Fort Stewart, Ga., said Vernon Duck, energy manager at the Directorate of Public Works. Fort A.P. Hill, Va., Fort Bragg, N.C., Fort Lewis, Wash., and Fort Drum, N.Y., will also be test sites.

The optimum goal is for Soldiers to produce fuel in theater using simple-to-operate, mobile equipment, said Lee Oppenheim, technical-quality business process analyst

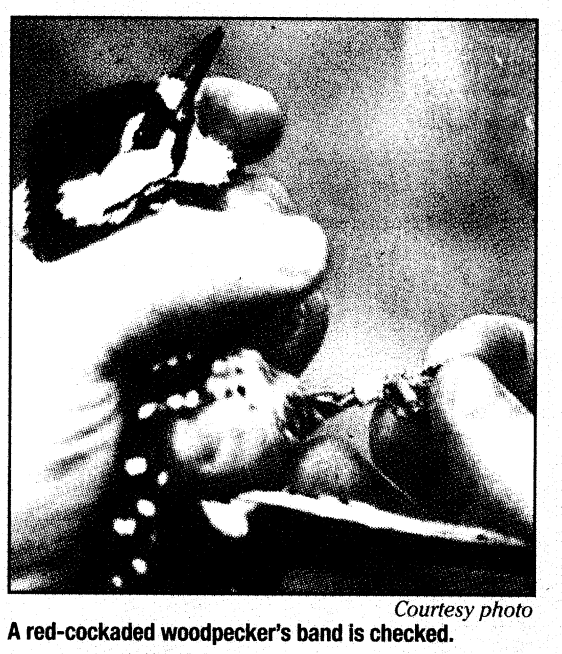
Fort Benning exports red-cockaded woodpeckers

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

It's red-cockaded woodpecker season on Fort Benning. Just a few months after nesting season, the birds are not being hunted but exported — carefully selected and trapped, then sent to other areas in need of new red-cockaded woodpeckers to build up their population.

"It's called translocation," said Michael Barron, post wildlife biologist. "Our first translocation, in 1995, was in response to a need at a national forest in Kentucky. They had one single female and were trying to find a male. Since 1999, we've been doing it every year."

This type of woodpecker, named for the few red feathers on its head, has been on the endangered species list since 1970, after losing much of its native habitat to deforestation. To help recover the species, the post Conservation Branch donates pairs of juvenile birds to national forests and other installations across the Southeast each fall. This year, they gave 10 birds to De Soto National Forest in Mississippi.



Courtesy photo

A red-cockaded woodpecker's band is checked.

This donation is particularly exciting, Barron said. It's the first time Fort Benning has donated birds that will pioneer a new population of the species.

To be translocated, birds must still be fledglings and come from a population that is growing, not declining. Because of its pine habitat, Fort Benning boasts nearly 300 clusters, or family groups, of red-cockaded woodpeckers, an estimated 650 birds.

That's not enough, however. The target number, based on the acres of suitable pine habitat, is 451 clusters. Even though the installation is years away from reaching that benchmark, giving away birds is still a priority, Barron said.

"Our primary goal is the population here, but recovery of the species is not just dependent on Fort Benning," he said. "It's dependent on all of these other federal properties meeting their goals as well."

Less than 3 percent of red-cockaded woodpecker habitat remains in the Southeast. Its ideal home, the tall, straight longleaf pine, was cut down to fuel a growing timber industry.

People also didn't understand the need for prescribed burning, Barron said, which Fort Benning performs routinely.

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

There's a great future ahead for Fort Benning

COMMANDING GENERAL
Maj. Gen. Walter Wojdakowski

To the more than 120,000 Soldiers, Family members, retirees, Civilian and contract employees living, working, and using services on Fort Benning, it has been an absolute honor to serve as your commanding general.

The responsibility of providing our nation with the most lethal and highly trained Infantrymen in the world belongs to Fort Benning. More than 115,000 Soldiers passed through the gates of Fort Benning to train this year.

Roughly 25,000 of those were Infantrymen in the world's most elite fighting force, the U.S. Army.

On any given day, more than 14,000 Soldiers participate in one of the 61 training courses conducted 7 days a week, 51 weeks a year on our installation. We are able to accomplish this important task seamlessly each year, thanks to a great group of dedicated Soldiers and Civilians who never tire of instilling the Army values in our new recruits or imbuing our new agile and adaptive leaders with the Warrior Ethos.

Fort Benning is also a power projection platform. The Conus Replacement Center (CRC) deploys and redeploys units and Civilians from anywhere in the world every week. Our operational units have all deployed and redeployed at least once in the past three years.

Since my arrival in August 2005, more than 56,000 individuals have deployed in support of the Global War on Terrorism, and another 20,000 have redeployed through the CRC.

Our fight in the Global War on Terrorism will not end soon, and I can assure you our staff will remain steadfast in ensuring we deploy and redeploy our finest to join the fight.

An exciting future lies ahead as Fort Benning continues its transformation to the Maneuver Center of Excellence. Construction on the installation is at a frenzied pace, as new infrastructure is built to accommodate more than 30,000 military personnel, Family members, Department of the Army Civilian employees, contractors, and military students who will be arriving here in 2011.

An anticipated $2.3 billion in new construction of training barracks, dining facilities, fitness centers, chapels, weapons ranges, classrooms, and maintenance facilities is planned.

In fiscal year 2007 we completed more than $360 million in new construction to include a new childcare facility, initial entry training barracks, pistol ranges, a consolidated troop medical clinic, a post exchange, a fitness center, two shoppettes, and a new service station. In fiscal year 2008, we awarded another $450 million toward additional facilities in support of the MCOE.

Congress recently approved a $507 million facility to replace the aging Martin Army Community Hospital.

Taking care of our people is our top priority. We've done this by providing state-of-the-art training and first-class service facilities to our population.

The impeccable dedication and commitment of the thousands of Soldiers and Civilians on Fort Benning is astounding. It has been an honor to serve as your commander.

Thank you for your dedicated, professional service, and for your support of our great Army.

Maj. Gen. Michael Barbero and his wife, Linda, are a great team. I am sure you will welcome them to Fort Benning. We believe Fort Benning is the best installation in the Army. Candy and I know you will continue to keep it that way.

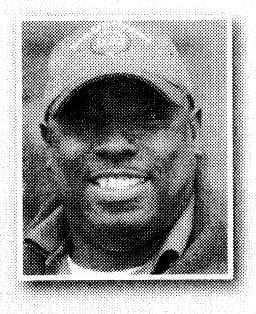
When do you start Christmas shopping?



I start Christmas shopping in December. That's when Santa Claus shops. I'm Santa Claus for everybody — nephews, nieces, cousins, sons, daughter, mother. It makes it feel like Christmas when you shop in December.

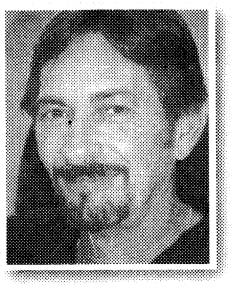
Lower gas prices: Merry Christmas

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler



With Veterans Day behind us, it is not too early to begin thinking about Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Although I am one of the worst procrastinators when it comes to Christmas shopping, I usually use Veterans Day to mark the beginning of my "Christmas shopping adventures," rather than wait until the day after Thanksgiving when hordes of people flock to the stores for the day after Thanksgiving sales.

Because the price of gas continues to fall, I believe I will have a few more dollars to spend on Christmas; and don't mind paying for the gas now that the price is going down.

Gas prices have affected the way people live their lives, so it is a welcome sight to see the price of gas beginning to decline.

In north Georgia, (I consider north Georgia to be the areas above Atlanta) a gallon of gas has dipped below $2 per gallon. I believe the price of gas will drop below the $2 per gallon mark in the tricommunity area, as well.

So, what do lower gas prices really mean to the average consumer? Well, first of all, it means consumers have more money to spend elsewhere; and second, now they can better afford to put fuel in their cars.

It is a cause and effect situation. Maybe, just maybe, the drop in gas prices will help stimulate the economy a little bit and give everyone a couple more dollars to spend on gifts.

I am looking at the drop in prices as kind of an early Christmas present, or at the very least, a Christmas savings.

For me, the best gas prices around seem to be at the pumps on Fort Benning, so although I don't know where my Christmas shopping adventures will take me, I know where they will begin — at the pumps.

Retiree visits post monuments

I want to express my enormous satisfaction after visiting Fort Benning some days ago.

This famous post is world-known as a symbol of the historic traditions of the glorious and legendary U.S.Army.

I have walked, during days, along the fields where sentimental monuments remember combat actions and brave people.

It's difficult to say which site was more sensitive, but certainly the Airborne monument made a deep impression on me. I felt nostalgic touching the most faithful aircraft ever made, Douglas C-47, a great symbol of WWII, still flying in some places in the world.

I want to express my thanks to all members of U.S.Army who responded to my questions at the places I visited on this very interesting post.

Soldier killed in action 58 years ago to be honored

One of the Chosin "Forgotten" will finally be remembered and honored at a memorial ceremony at 1 p.m. Dec. 6 at the City of Cortez, Colo. Cemetery.

CPL John A. Spruell of the 7th Infantry Division died Dec. 6, 1950, at Hagaru-ri Valley, Chosin, Korea. His family never knew the story of his death. All they received was a short telegram.

Spruell was listed as "No Known Next of Kin" for the last 58 years, until records were corrected this past summer. His remaining family received a memorial headstone, which will be unveiled Dec. 6 — 58 years to the day since he died.

The local American Legion Post senior members and his high school classmates will provide a small Honor Guard. All active-duty military and retirees are invited to attend, especially Chosin survivors.

Survivors of Chosin are passing away. Here is a chance to remember one who was truly a "forgotten hero' for 58 years. Soldiers take care of Soldiers.

Further information is available at news@cortezjournal.com or cortezcemetery@hotmail.com. If you are interested in reading Spruell's Korean War Honor Roll Biography visit http://abmc.gov/koreanwar.

Biofuel: To use grass clippings in conversion process of the Product Technology and Standardization Division, Defense Energy Support Center, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The technology provided by the Bell Bio-Energy Biomass Waste-to-Fuel Demonstration Project would reduce the risk to Soldiers who are now transporting fuel into theater and on to forward operating bases, Oppenheim said.

Bell said his system uses naturally occurring environmental microbes in the bio-fuel conversion process in a method that reduces carbon dioxide output that scientists say, in excess, raises the Earth's temperature to higher than normal levels.

"Through the production, there is a reduction of greenhouses gases," Bell said, who added that his biomass-to-waste method uses the same residue someone would have if they collected all of their grass clippings and leaves and put it in their back yard in a compost pile.

Biomass is placed into a reactor tank where it is mixed with specific beneficial bacteria and water to produce hydrocarbons on a continuous basis, according to information provided by DESC. The hydrocarbons are siphoned into a fuel receptacle, and this process continues until there is no biomass left to convert. The water is recycled for the next batch, and the biomass waste is fully decomposed into potting soil and removed. Although fuel is the main product being sought, potting soil is an additional product that can be produced by the system.

Bell's technology does not require a building, but consists of a series of 10 reactor units and 10 fuel receivers that can be moved by a tractor-trailer. Control staff will be on site to record and analyze the energy inputs and fuel outputs.

> "Through the production there is a reduction of greenhouse gases."
> — J.C. Bell

Bell Bio-Energy will keep detailed records to determine the success of the project, and the bio-diesel and other fuel products produced will be evaluated by DESC for potential use.

Each test site will provide installation pad sites, waste materials and ancillary services, such as water and electricity. DESC will reimburse the cost of utilities required by the demonstration projects.

Oppenheim said the Army is looking at alternative fuel sources to comply with the 2007 Energy Independence and Security Act, which addresses three major areas: expanding renewable fuels, reducing dependence on oil and confronting global climate changes. This project supports all three goals.

DESC provides the Department of Defense and other government agencies with comprehensive energy solutions, according to the DESC Web site.

SSG Miguel Antia, a Ranger instructor, also re-enlisted.

Duty is duty, he said.

"There is a lot the military has to offer," he said.

Ranger Soldiers who re-enlist in 2009 may receive a number of benefits ranging from Fort Benning School of choice, CONUS station of choice, college options for attendance, and selective re-enlistment bonuses up to $29,000.

"Today the Army has successfully secured its future leadership," said CSM John Burns, the Brigade command sergeant major. "Without these great Rangers' commitment and sacrifice, the Army would be a weaker organization. Rangers Lead The Way!"

Fires help keep hardwood trees, such as oak or sweet gum, in check. Without fire, the hardwoods dominated and the pines — and animals dependent on them — suffered.

It's a matter of cause and effect, Barron said.

"In the long term, we're not just restoring a species; we're restoring an ecosystem," he said. "In our efforts to bring this bird back from an endangered species status, we're bringing back longleaf pines and other plants and animals associated with that ecosystem. You have to look at all the repercussions. The forest wouldn't be much of a forest without the animals in it."

As Fort Benning transitions to the Maneuver Center of Excellence, even more woodpeckers will be given to other properties, said Kristina Witter, a wildlife biologist who assesses how BRAC will affect the species.

The first pair to make room for the incoming Armor School was donated to a private plantation in Alabama last week.

BRAC will affect the woodpecker population on post, Witter said, but without the military and the land it has preserved, the birds wouldn't be here in the first place. They will be donated to places where they can continue to breed and help the species recover.

The red-cockaded woodpecker will be considered fully recovered when 13 populations have reached their needed number of clusters.

Barron said he does not anticipate donating any more woodpeckers this year.

Veterans: 'Stepped up'

He will return next year, he said, bringing friends and fellow warriors from the Columbus community.

During his speech, BG Lloyd Miles, post deputy commanding general, focused on the purpose of Veterans Day — "to remember every man and woman who has taken up arms to defend our country" — and the common bond between service members of all branches and every era.

"If there is one concept that unites them all, regardless of their generation, it is the commitment to something bigger than themselves," he said. "When your nation needed you, you did not hide or make excuses. You stepped up to the plate and stood in the storm to be counted.

"America has needed these qualities in every generation, and every generation has stepped forward to provide them. What veterans have given our country is beyond our power to fully repay, yet today we recognize our debt to their honor. On this national holiday, our hearts are filled with thanks and gratitude for all veterans."

During the ceremony, veterans of all branches and conflicts were recognized. A playing of Taps at the close of the program commemorated all veterans who have died in the service of their country.

A long way down

Basic trainees build confidence, courage

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Soldiers in C Company, 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, took on the Sand Hill confidence course Tuesday. Although it wasn't their first visit to the course, it was the first time they would scale the higher obstacles, including the tallest, "The Skyscraper," towering nearly 40 feet high.

The exercise is intended to teach the Army value of personal courage, said SFC Billy Way, senior drill sergeant.

"You might be put in this situation. You might have to scale a wall, jump out of a window. It just depends," Way said. "You don't want to wait for the situation and freeze up. You have to overcome your fears. That's where courage comes in. Your courage sets you apart from everybody else."

A fear of heights was a challenge for many of the Soldiers, now in their third week of training. After conquering the "Tough One," PVT Adam Mears, 3rd Platoon, admitted it was difficult crossing the wooden beam suspended several feet above the ground.

"I'm not a heights person," Mears said. "I was shaking — I'm still shaking. My leg is still wobbling. It's really tough."

Nervous while climbing the rope and walking across, Mears said he felt better about facing the other high obstacles, even The Skyscraper.

"It helps build confidence, and that's important for succeeding in the Army and life in general. I would like to do it again actually," he said. "When you get up there, you realize heights aren't as bad as you think they are. Once you master it, you realize it was just a superficial fear. If you can do this, what can't you do?"

Completing the obstacles is more about mental toughness than physical strength, Way said. That's why the course is included early on in basic training.

Soldiers also learned teamwork. After completing every obstacle, they covered their faces and jumped to the ground. While falling, they shouted the name of their platoon — Wolverines, Gladiators, Punishers and Ghost Riders.

Shouting their unit name builds pride and helps them realize they are out here to surmount each obstacle as a team, Way said.

For PVT Nicholas Wright, helping his comrades get through the course was just as important as completing the course himself.

"This is my second time through basic training," said Wright, 1st Platoon, who originally joined the Army Aug. 15. "I went about three-fourths of the way, and then I broke my ankle, so I had to restart again."

Wright said he doesn't see the time as lost but as an opportunity to lead by example for other Soldiers. On the confidence course, he shared ways to complete the obstacle successfully with his teammates, "so they don't have to do what I did my first time — mess up."

There are a few things that it's helpful to know, Wright said. When they climb down the rope, for example, they should put the rope on their boots, not their legs, so it won't burn. Although Wright already knows these techniques, tackling the course for the second time let him improve on his previous performance.

"It's good to go through again," Wright said. "This gets me in better shape each time. Everything you do will make you better, even if you've done it before. Repetition is the best aid to memory."

The Soldiers may revisit the course, Way said, later in their training to see how they have improved.

They will graduate from basic training Feb. 13.

PVT Jordan Duncan flips his leg over the top rung of the "Confidence Climb" ladder before heading down the other side. The Soldiers focused on covering the tallest obstacles on the confidence course Tuesday, less than three weeks into basic training

Soldiers test technology for current, future fighting forces

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The fifth annual Army Expeditionary Warrior Experiment began Wednesday on McKenna MOUT. Soldiers in EXFOR (A Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment), will conduct day and night operations through Dec. 4 to test new technology in the context of Infantry missions.

During the missions, intelligence provided by unmanned robots, ground sensors and warrior battle systems can be uploaded on a network, so that any Soldier who needs access to that information has it, said Gary Daniel, project lead for AEWE.

"What we're trying to do is extend the benefits of an Army network to leaders at the small unit level to make them more effective — more effective meaning more lethal and more survivable," Daniel said.

Through the network, Soldiers like SPC Matthew Brito can look at the location of friendly and enemy forces and details of the terrain. He views the position of people and objects through a live video feed he can pull down in front of his eyes.

"I'm able to see exactly where everybody is," he said. "(Other Soldiers) are also able to see what the plan it. It lowers the risk of killing friendly forces."

His radio also uses advanced technology. Part of the Land Warrior System, it can hold two channels, which allows a Soldier to talk with two groups at the same time.

Cheryl Rodewig

Soldiers in EXFOR, SPC Kenneth Byram, left, SPC Mark Cataldo and 1LT Michael Martinez, inspect a map of the route to their objective Tuesday before performing a run-through of a day operation.

Soldiers receive a large quantity of information from the many sources available, so they must prioritize, always focusing on situational awareness, said intelligence non-commissioned officer SFC David Hillman.

"Communication is key," he said. "Without communication, the people around you don't know what's going on."

Hillman, who has been with EXFOR for less than a month, said this type of experimentation prepares the Army for current and future fights.

"Here, you can identify what's not going to work, so they don't field it, or identify what will work, so they do start fielding that equipment," he said. "For me, it's kind of exciting, seeing the brand new equipment coming into the field, working out the bugs, seeing what you'll see in the Army in five to 10 years."

The experiment, which includes the best technology from both civilian and military sectors, has been a year in development, said Douglas Guthrie, AEWE project officer.

Soldiers will conduct 10 day and night missions on urban, forested and open terrain. At the conclusion, they will hold an after-action review to discuss lessons learned.

"The Army is always looking ahead, always looking for ways to improve," Guthrie said. "It's about getting the right technology to the Soldier at the right time in order to save Soldiers' lives. This is where it happens. It's all about the Soldier."

Next year, the focus of AEWE will shift to include how the latest technology will affect units at the battalion and brigade levels, Daniel said.

ARMOR

RUGGED MOBILE COMPUTERS

Some jobs have to get done, regardless of the weather. So ARMOR mobile computers work in desert heat, arctic cold and any climate in between. The ARMOR C12 Convertible complies with MIL-STD-810F and IP54, so it can easily handle vibration, impact, moisture and dust. It's what you'd expect from a company that supplies computers to the US military and its allies for use in the world's harshest environments.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Rookies of the Year

Third baseman Evan Longoria of the Tampa Bay Rays won the American League Rookie of the Year award Nov. 10. It's the first time a Ray has won the honor.

Geovany Soto, catcher for the Chicago Cubs, won Rookie Of the Year for the National League.

Longoria's award was by a unanimous vote; the last unanimous vote was in 1997 for Nomar Garciaparra.

Holliday traded

Matt Holliday, an outfielder, was traded from the Colorado Rockies to the Oakland Athletics this week. The Rockies had trade talks with the St. Louis Cardinals but negotiations fell through.

Holliday finished second in the 2007 National League MVP ballots. His average was .321 with 25 home runs and 88 RBIs last season.

Johnson on path to win

Jimmie Johnson put himself on the path to winning his third straight Sprint Cup Championship with a win at Phoenix International Raceway Nov. 9. It was his 40th career-series victory and his seventh of the season.

Johnson heads into the last race at Homestead-Miami Speedway with a 141-point lead over Carl Edwards. Johnson will win the Cup with a 36th or better placing.

BCS rankings

Alabama and Texas Tech held on to their number one and two spots, respectively, with wins Nov. 8. Texas moved up to third after former No. 3 Penn State lost to Iowa. Alabama and Texas Tech are the only unbeaten teams in the BCS conferences.

Florida is sitting in the fourth spot, followed by Oklahoma in fifth.

Jets sign Law

The New York Jets signed defensive back Ty Law to a one-year deal Nov. 10. Law played for the New England Patriots from 1995-2004, with the Jets in 2005 and the last two seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Heisman watch

Though the season isn't over yet, the Heisman watch is in full effect. The leading contenders are quarterbacks Graham Harrell, Texas Tech; Colt McCoy, Texas; Sam Bradford, Oklahoma; and Tim Teebow, Florida. Teebow won the Heisman in 2007. Texas Tech wide receiver Michael Crabtree is also in the running for the top award in college football.

It's a toss-up, but I'd like to see Crabtree win the trophy. His performance in the Texas-Texas Tech game was the difference in the big win for Tech.

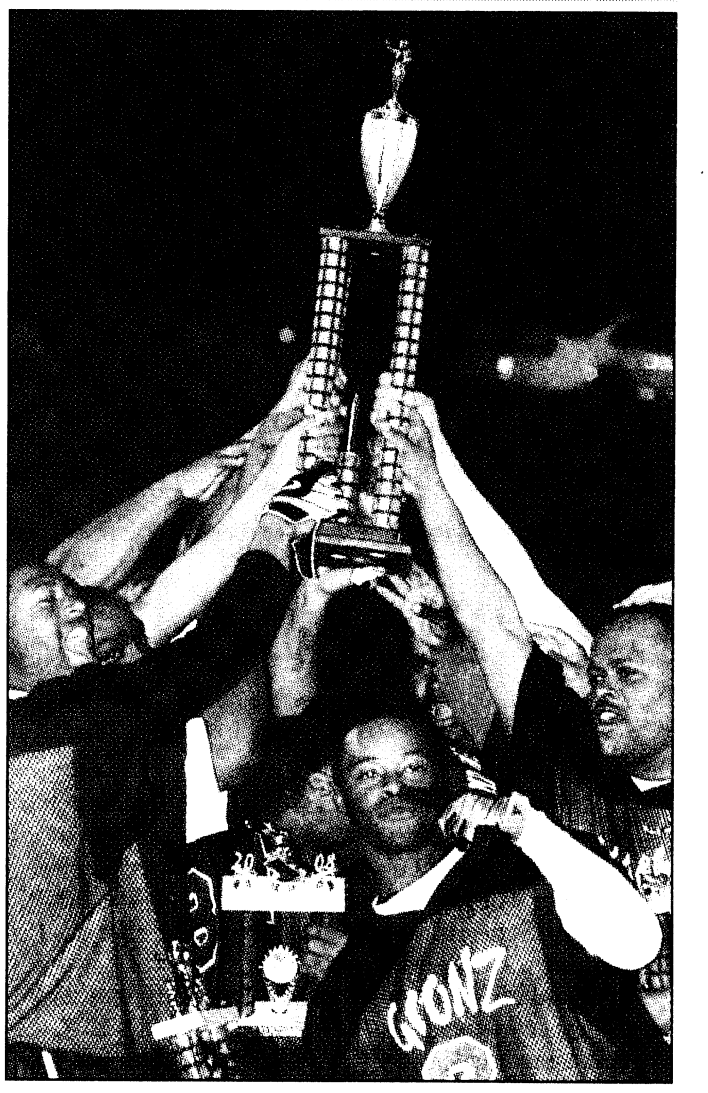
The Dawgs' Dameno Stevenson runs the ball down the field at the Commander's Cup Flag Football Championship finals Oct. 30 at Essebagger Field. The Dawgs lost to the Goonz 13-12.



The Goonz hold the Commander's Cup trophy after the game. Sixteen teams competed for the trophy. "Everyone stayed in the game and stayed focused," said coach Beshean Hollis. "That, and a strong defense is what helped us win."

'Goonz' win with 13-12 victory

598th Maintenance Company "Goonz" took a victory over MEDDAC "Dawgs," 13-12, Oct. 30 in the finals of the Commander's Cup Flag Football Championship at Essebagger Field.

On their initial series, both team defenses controlled the tempo of the game with neither team able to move the ball. The game continued to be a seesaw battle, but on the Goonz' second possession, the offense moved the ball down the field and on their fourth play from scrimmage, scored a go-ahead touchdown. And with a point after, led 7-0. The Dawgs answered the score five plays later with a 35-yard touchdown run, but were unable to convert the extra point and went into halftime trailing the Goonz, 7-6.

In the second half, the Goonz started with the ball, but during the drive the Dawgs intercepted a pass. The Dawgs were unable to capitalize on the turnover, giving the Goonz another possession with less than two minutes to go on the clock. With 1:70 remaining in the game, the Goonz' Aljanon Moore scored a touchdown putting the Goonz ahead 13-6. The Dawgs marched back down the field scoring a touchdown with less than a minute to go to pull to

With an opportunity to move up in the post-season seeding, the Fort Benning 12- to 13-year-old football Bengals, who have made the playoffs, took on the Clubview Bulldogs at Doughboy Stadium Saturday, coming away with a 42-22 loss.

If the Bengals expect to make it to the senior midget Peanut Bowl Nov. 22 they will have to go through the Bulldogs, who they play in the first round of playoffs Nov. 15 at Clubview.

Against Clubview Saturday, the Bulldogs got off to a fast start scoring on a 6-yard run in on their first possession and a 60-yard punt return to take a 14-0 lead midway through the first quarter.

With the clock winding down in the first half, the Bulldogs moved the ball 52 yards in eight plays, scoring

Lady Blue Devils take AAA state title

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Ninety-five squads from eight regions competed Saturday at the Georgia High School Association state cheerleading championships at the Columbus Civic Center. The Columbus High School Lady Blue Devils' competitive cheerleading squad went up against 15 schools and took the state title in AAA.

The squad had a maximum of two and a half minutes to perform their routine.

They were graded on jumps, standing and running tumbling, partner stunts, pyramids, tosses, dance and cheer.

After performing, sophomore flyer Brittney Cain, stepdaughter of retired 1SG Robert Harris, was excited about the performance.

"I grew up watching older cheerleaders go to state, and now I'm actually here," she said. "I have always wanted to be at state. I couldn't sleep last night because I was up thinking about it."

The performance at state was "more energetic" than the one at the region championship, she said.

"We knew we had to step it up for state and that's exactly what we did," Cain said.

Coach Merrimore McDonald said she had the "utmost confidence" in her girls and she knew they had a shot at the state title.

"C-town," said the girls as they ran up the stairs on their way to the stands to watch other teams perform routines.

After watching 26 teams, the Blue Devils made their way to the floor for the awards ceremony, where they were announced as the AAA champions.

"I have been on this squad for four years and we came so close to winning state in the past. This year, we finally won it," said senior base, tumbler and captain Missy Sobutay. "I wanted to win this so bad before I graduated and we did it. I can't ask for more."

Cain said the win was "unbelievable."

"All the extra practice and hard work has finally paid off," she said.

This is the first time Columbus has taken home the state title in competitive cheerleading, McDonald said.

$25 BOUNTY SUSPENDED

The $25 bounty paid to hunters who harvest feral pigs has been suspended until further notice.

YOUTH SPORTS REGISTRATION

Wrestling registration for children ages 4 to 15 takes place through Dec. 30. The cost is $40. Registration is at the Child, Youth and School Age Service Central Registration office, Building 104, on Marchant Street. For more information, call 706-545-3582.

HARVEST REPORTING

Hunters are reminded that all deer, turkeys, hogs, doves, squirrels and quail harvested on Fort Benning must be reported using the TELTRACK Hunter Control System by calling 706-545-8387 and selecting menu item number 4.

EAR TAGS

Auburn University is conducting a study of the feral pigs on Fort Benning to understand their population size, reproductive rates, movement patterns and food habits. This information will help determine what impacts feral pigs have on habitat, wildlife populations and military training.

Pig hunters, please report the ear tag number, ear tag color, date harvested and general location of harvest to the Conservation Branch. Several pigs have been fitted with radio-tracking collars to help determine habitat use. Please attempt to identify and avoid harvesting collared pigs. If a collared pig is harvested or found, please return the collar to the Conservation Branch, First Division Road, Building 5884, Harmony Church.

For more information, call 706-544-7079.

FLY FISHING FOR VETS

The nonprofit organization Fly Fishing for Vets will provide fly fishing excursions for Soldiers wounded in combat. The all-expenses-paid trip includes fishing lessons, equipment and lodging. The Soldier's spouse will be treated to a day at the spa. The trip is available to active-duty, Reserve and National Guard Soldiers assigned to the Warrior Transition Battalion.

For information, call Ken Griffin at 678-993-9896 or Darlene Hines at 706-545-9636.

Champions: Win on conversion

within a point at 13-12. The Dawgs went for a 2-point conversion but failed at the attempt, sealing the win for the Goonz.

"I felt very confident this game would be a victory for us," said the Goonz' Corey Thompson.

Solomon Loving, holding the championship trophy in his hands, said, "I have been waiting for this moment all season. I think the key to our win was a strong defense."

Kendric Johnson, who scored a touchdown for the Goonz, said he was happy he contributed to the win.

"Anytime you can get a touchdown and give your team a boost is a good feeling," he said.

The win was a team effort, said coach Beshean Hollis.

"Everyone stayed in the game and stayed focused," he said. "That, and a strong defense is what helped us win."

598th Maint. Co. played four games though the winners bracket to make it to the championship while MEDDAC played three games in the winners bracket before dropping to the losers bracket, playing three more games to get to the championship. The Goonz have bragging rights as the best flag football team on post — until next season.

Bengals: Will play Clubview again

on a 1-yard run with 1:45 remaining in the half. With a successful two-point conversion, the Bulldogs took a commanding 22-0 lead to close out the first-half scoring.

"I told the kids at halftime they were beating themselves," coach Lee Obie said. "I told them they needed to quit overpursuing. We went back over the fundamentals of tackling again because we were tackling poorly in the first half."

Following the halftime break, the Bengals went four-and-out turning the ball back over to the Bulldogs on their own 41-yard line.

The Bulldogs took eight plays to get into the end zone on their first possession of the second half, and would score two more times in the game.

Bengals' running back Tyler Denova scored twice in the second half, scoring on a 7-yard run in the third quarter, and an 11-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Julius Jones added a 48-yard touchdown run for the Bengals with 2:10 remaining in the fourth quarter to close out the scoring in the game with the Bulldogs coming out on top, 42-22.

"We played poorly and could have done a lot better," Obie said. "We had just played the Thursday before and I believe the kids were still a little tired and beat up from that game."

With the loss, the Bengals go into the Columbus Youth Association's senior midget playoffs as the No. 3 seed and will play Clubview again in the opening round of the playoffs on the Clubview home field beginning at noon.

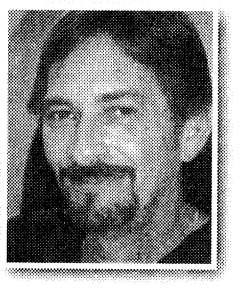
"The kids are excited about going to the playoffs," Obie said.

"I think we can win against Clubview, and although we played poorly, we can beat this team and I think we can get it right and pull it out (win) this Saturday."

Rugby championships to kick off Monday

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

The best of the best Armed Forces rugby players will begin play Monday on Stewart-Watson field during the Armed Forces Rugby Championships with the winner crowned Nov. 20.



While the Air Force has been the dominant team in recent years, winning the championship the past four consecutive years, the Army will look to win its first championship since 2003.

Although rugby can be complicated, in simple terms rugby is a sport played by two teams of 15 players who attempt to score more points than their opponent within two 40-minute time periods.

Scoring is very similar to American football. A "try" is rugby's equivalent of a touchdown and is worth five points. It is scored when a player advances the ball into the end zone and touches the ball to the ground — the origin of the term "touchdown". After a try, the scoring team is awarded a short, unopposed "conversion kick" to be put through the goal posts for an additional two points. A three-point "penalty kick" is equivalent to a field goal in American football, but occurs when a penalty is called within a team's kicking range.

If you plan to attend the Armed Forces Rugby Championships, here are some rugby terms to help you get acquainted with the game:

Pitch: playing field. In rugby, the pitch is 100 yards by 75 yards.

Rugby Team: A rugby team is made up of 15 players. There are eight forwards, who concentrate on winning possession, and seven backs, whose chief job is to advance the ball. All players, though, get involved in offense and defense.

Advancing the ball: Players advance the ball by running with it or kicking it. Forward passes are illegal. All players on a rugby team have the opportunity to run or kick the ball.

Touch: out of bounds.

Mark: place of infringement.

Call for the mark: Similar to calling for a fair catch in American football. Can only be done behind your own 22-meter line and you must catch the ball and yell "Mark" at the same time.

Lineout: method to resume play after ball has gone into touch.

Scrum: method to restart play after a minor penalty or infraction has occurred.

Drop out: method to restart play after ball has been grounded by defense in their own goal area.

On side: being behind the ball when your team is the attacking team.

Penalty kick: method to restart play after a major penalty has occurred. Team awarded the penalty has the option to kick a field goal, kick into touch (and given subsequent throw-in) or decline kick and opt for a scrum. A field goal is worth three points.

Game Schedule

(All games at Stewart-Watson Field)

Nov. 17
Navy at Coast Guard, 10 a.m.
Army at Air Force, 11:30 a.m.
Navy at Marines, 1 p.m.
Coast Guard at Army, 2:30 p.m.
Air Force at Marines, 4 p.m.

Nov. 19
Navy at Air Force, 10 a.m.
Coast Guard at Marines, 11:30 a.m.
Army at Navy, 1 p.m.
Coast Guard at Air Force, 2:30 p.m.

Nov. 20
Consolation match, 10 a.m.
Championship match, noon
Awards ceremony, 1:30 p.m.

If the kicking team is in front of the 22-meter line, the opposing team is awarded the kick from where the player actually kicked the ball.

Tackle: ball carrier is taken to the deck while being wrapped up by the tackler. Tackler must then immediately roll away and the player tackled must immediately play the ball.

Ruck: After a tackle, with the ball on the deck, two opposing players meet over the ball. A ruck is then considered form and players are not allowed to use their hands to push ball back to their side. The offside line becomes the last foot of the last man on each side of the ruck. If the ball does not come out in a timely fashion, the referee will award a scrum to the team that took the ball into the tackle.

Maul: A ball carrier is held up in the tackle (does not go to ground) by an opposing player and one more player from either team joins the fray. A maul is then considered formed and the offside line becomes the last foot of the last man on each side of the maul. Hands are allowed to be used in the maul. If the ball does not come out in a timely fashion, the referee will award a scrum to the team that did not take the ball into the maul.

Substitutions: Seven substitutions per team. Once substituted, a player cannot retake the field.

Blood bin: If a player has a bleeding wound (nose, cut on head, etc) that player may be temporarily substituted until the bleeding stops and that player can retake the field. This is the only exemption to the substitution rule.

Yellow Card/Red Card: A yellow card is awarded for repeated infractions to the rules. The offending player is sent to the "Sin Bin" for 10 minutes while his team must play a man short. Red Cards result in the player being ejected from the game. Red-carded players are suspended from league play for two or more weeks.

Try: A try is scored by touching the ball down, with pressure and under control, in the opposition goal area. Tries are worth five points.

Drop kick: A kick for goal taken during open play by allowing the ball to drop to the deck and then kicking it through the goal posts. Drop kicks are rare and are worth three points.

Referee: 'You can only call what you see'

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

John Peeler

Referee Robert Trimble watches a play during the Commander's Cup Flag Football Championship. Sixty-one-year old Trimble has been refereeing since he was 21.

Every week, retired 1SG Robert Trimble gets dressed in his black and white striped shirt, white pants, striped socks, sneakers and white hat as he puts a whistle around his neck and prepares to referee softball, baseball and football games in the tricommunity area. Sixty-one-year-old Trimble has been calling games since the age of 21.

"I wanted to be a football star when I was younger but that didn't work out, so I started refereeing," he said.

Trimble grew up in Fayette, Miss., and came to Fort Benning for basic training in 1966 at the age of 19. Two years later he started refereeing flag football games while he was stationed in Panama.

In 1978, he made his way back to Fort Benning and called games, then went to Hawaii and Arkansas and called games.

After he retired from the Army, he came back to the tricommunity area in 1992 and has been refereeing in the area ever since.

Trimble has called games for elementary, middle and high school players, Soldiers at Fort Benning and college teams.

"I love refereeing," he said. "It was fun when I first started and that hasn't changed."

Being able to be physically fit, knowing the rules and using common sense are key to being a good referee, he said.

"My motto is you can only call what you see," he said. "Some referees anticipate what players will do on the field and call before it happens — that can get them in a lot of trouble."

Not everyone agrees with calls all the time, he said. And if they don't, the best thing to do is listen to what they have to say. In moments like this, Trimble turns to his rule book because it holds the truth.

Trimble went through training, a written test and a field test to qualify for his position.

Trimble has been calling games for 40 years and he said he has no plans of stopping until he is "physically unable to move around the field."

Post nurses reach out to Columbus

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Nearly 40 people from Martin Army Community Hospital and 14th Combat Support Hospital are signed on to volunteer at shelters in Columbus.

They will bring health education, including guidance for proper nutrition and disease prevention, to the homeless and working poor, where there is a high occurrence of chronic conditions, said MAJ Janet Glenn, who is spearheading the effort.

"It's important to be aware of the issues in our community," she said. "Health education is one of the greatest needs. It's not something on a small scale."

Volunteers have six charities to choose from: The Salvation Army, Open Door, House of Mercy, Valley Rescue Mission, the Homeless Resource Network and the Enrichment Services Program.

For 2LT Rebekah Geneva, a nurse at Martin Army, Open Door and House of Mercy seem like a good fit.

"It's a way for me to integrate into the community and help other people," said Geneva, who moved to Fort Benning from Colorado less than a year ago.

She has been volunteering almost her whole life, she said, so it was natural to help out in Columbus.

"I just felt like that's the way God intended it to be — for people who are more fortunate to reach out to those who are less fortunate," she said. "I'm excited. I get to use my nursing skills, something I've been blessed with, to bless somebody else."

Geneva said volunteering helps break down stigmas that surround people. She considers time spent meeting other people's needs a good investment.

"We live in such a fast-paced society and are so focused on ourselves. When we come outside ourselves and focus on someone else, I just think it makes us healthier," she said.

MSG Patrick Garnes, chief ward master of 14th CSH, said focusing on others puts his own problems in perspective and gives him a chance to "pay it forward."

"Doing something for someone, whatever their situation is, it's a philosophy I live by every single day," he said. "I know the value of having someone support you and help you back on your feet, and I want to do that for someone else."

Garnes said he has been "down and out" himself before, but with encouragement from others, people can turn their lives around like he did.

"I know how much it really helps to have someone encourage and motivate you," he said. "I do believe

Talking turkey

Post dining facilities have been planning for Thanksgiving since September. The facilities have ordered 450 cases of pumpkin pie, more than 9,000 pounds of turkey and 3,000 pounds of grapes. Other menu items include baked ham, cranberry sauce, cornbread, salad, rolls and assorted vegetables. Nineteen of the 22 dining facilities will serve the holiday meal to about 30,000 Soldiers.

Post dining facilities prep for holiday

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Four hundred and fifty cases of pumpkin pie, more than 9,000 pounds of turkey, and 3,000 pounds of grapes—it's quite literally enough to feed an army. And, it's all part of preparations for Thanksgiving at Fort Benning's dining facilities.

Preparing to serve a traditional Thanksgiving meal to approximately 30,000 Soldiers is a process that began in September and will involve about 1,300 workers, said William Denton, Installation Food Program manager.

"It's a lot of work," he said.

Nineteen of Fort Benning's 22 dining facilities will serve a Thanksgiving meal. Several participating facilities will offer Thanksgiving fare at lunch Nov. 25, a day before the holiday.

"The Wednesday meal allows Soldiers who are here on a more permanent basis to have Thanksgiving at home with family and friends," Denton said.

The menu will include traditional items such as roast turkey, baked ham, cranberry sauce, cornbread, salad, rolls and assorted vegetables, as well as a variety of pies and fruit, Denton said, and some locations will feature ice sculptures.

Food service workers will begin preparing ingredients several days before the meal.

"It's usually two or three days of preparation to get ready for the meal," Denton said. "About 24 hours ahead of time, we'll start doing pre-prep work, like chopping onions. For sanitation reasons, we can only start cooking so far in advance, but we'll usually start at midnight the night before the meal."

Denton said he looks at historical data to determine how much to order.

"It's always a little bit of a guessing game," he said. "But, we do need to order enough to serve almost all of the Soldiers at Fort Benning."

For many Soldiers whose homes and families are far from Fort Benning, the dining facilities' Thanksgiving meal offers a welcome reminder of home, Denton said.

"It sort of brings the Soldiers back home a little bit," he said. "For at least part of the day, they can forget about the rigors of training, and just relax and enjoy a good meal."

Enough to feed an army

Just how much turkey will it take to feed Fort Benning? Here are a few of the food items purchased:

Turkey – 9,445 pounds
Ham – 4,635 pounds
Beef steamship round – 3,340 pounds
Beef prime rib – 2,870 pounds
Shrimp – 2,250 pounds
Cornish hens – 600 pounds
Pumpkin pie – 450 cases
Pecan pie – 430 cases
Sweet potato pie – 470 cases
Coconut cream pie – 280 cases
Apples – 7,050 pounds
Bananas – 5,000 pounds
Grapes – 3,000 pounds
Oranges – 4,500 pounds
Watermelon – 2,500 pounds
Tangerines – 3,500 pounds
Pears – 3,000 pounds
Mixed nuts – 1,500 pounds
Hard candy – 1,700 pounds

CHILD CARE GOES ONLINE:

Parents can access lesson plans, track progress

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Fort Benning parents of preschoolers will soon be able to track their children's progress at school through a single online portal.

As part of an Armywide initiative, Fort Benning's preschools and child development centers are in the first phase of integrating the online services of Creative Curriculum, the assessment and planning system used by Army child-care facilities.

"Parents will be able to access their child's portfolio, which shows how their child is progressing through the development continuum," said Linda Berry, early childhood training and curriculum specialist with Child, Youth and School Services.

Parents will be able to view lesson plans, activity calendars and schedules, children's artwork and updates from teachers. These tools will be especially important for parents on deployments, Berry said.

"I think one of the main benefits is that it stresses connectivity with parents during the time they're deployed," she said. "Sometimes parents will call in from deployment to talk with the child, and now they can have more easily-accessible, up-to-date information."

Fort Benning was chosen as a pilot site for the new system because it is highly impacted by deployments, Berry said.

"Staying connected is especially important for Fort Benning," she said. "Eventually, this system will be in place Army-wide, including in CONUS and OCONUS areas."

The new system has already begun to benefit teachers and children, Berry said.

"The computer system helps them see what they need to do to get that child to the next step," she said. "And that will help us improve the outcome for our children, so we can help them be better prepared once they enter the kindergarten setting."

Club offers educational, social activities for youth

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

The Fort Mitchell unit of the Boys and Girls Club of Phenix-Russell will hold a monthlong membership drive beginning Oct. 31.

"We're a new unit, only around since 2006," said Gail Jackson, unit director. "We have 46 members right now, and we're trying to get it to grow."

The unit is housed in Mt. Olive Elementary School on Fort Mitchell, and provides after-school homework support, as well as a variety of recreational, educational, cultural and social activities for youth. To kick off the membership drive, unit staff and volunteers were on hand Oct. 31 at Mt. Olive to answer questions, meet with students and parents, and register students for sports.

"It's really a positive place for kids," Jackson said. "Kids can spend time with staff who can help them, who truly care and who are invested in realizing the full potential of each young person."

The Fort Mitchell unit offers three main programs during the school year. Power Hour is an interactive homework help program, Triple Play focuses on teaching healthy habits, and Smart Moves teaches substance abuse prevention.

"All our programs are designed to develop good character, build leadership and provide guidance," Jackson said.

The club recognized members who had made the honor roll for the first academic quarter at a party Oct. 24. Thirty of the Fort Mitchell unit's members were honored for receiving report cards with all A and B grades.

The Fort Mitchell unit is open from 3:30 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday for children ages 5 to 18. Tuition discounts are available for military families. For more information, call Gail Jackson at 334-297-6164, or send an e-mail to http://www.prbgc@bellsouth.net.

DeCA scholarships now available through commissaries

DEFENSE COMMISSARY AGENCY
Caroline Williams

FORT LEE, Va., — The 2009 Scholarships for Military Children Program is now open.

The program has awarded more than $6.4 million in scholarships to more than 4,000 of the best and brightest children of military families since the program began in 2001, said Defense Commissary Agency director and chief executive officer Philip E. Sakowitz Jr.

"We know that education is the key to a better future," Sakowitz said, "and we're thrilled to be a part of something that makes it a little more affordable for military families."

The program awards $1,500 scholarships to children of military families. Only unmarried children younger than 23 who are dependents of active duty personnel, reserve, guard and retired military members, survivors of service members who died while on active duty or survivors of individuals who died while receiving retired pay from the military may apply for a scholarship.

Eligibility is determined using the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System database. Applicants should ensure that they, and their sponsor, are enrolled in the DEERS database and have a current ID card.

The applicant must be planning to attend, or already be attending, an accredited college or university full time in the fall 2009, or be enrolled in a program of studies designed to transfer directly into a four-year program. Applicants need to submit an essay on the topic "What would you place inside a time capsule to help people in the next century understand military life today?"

Applications must be turned into a commissary by closing Feb. 18, 2009. At least one scholarship will be awarded at every commissary location with qualified applicants. To get an application, go to any commissary or go to http://www.militaryscholar.org.

Nurses: Bring health education to Columbus shelters

with consistent motivation, they can start to see the light at the end of the tunnel and that they can succeed."

Although Garnes has been on post for only two weeks, he said he is ready to get started.

"If I use (my) time for volunteering, I'm not losing it. I'm doing what I enjoy," Garnes said. "You can find out so much by talking with people. I may help out somebody today who turns around and helps me out tomorrow."

The partnership between Martin Army and the shelters is an example of the Army Community Covenant in action.

It was an opportunity for the staff, as members of Fort Benning, to make good on that promise by positively influencing more people than they could in just their daily jobs, said COL Janet Wilson, deputy commander for nursing, who organized the effort.

"The Community Covenant symbolizes an active process between neighbors," she said. "We have neighbors in need, and the Fort Benning health care community would like to offer our assistance. With this partnership, we have the opportunity to reach out and make a perpetual difference in our community — in someone's life — and perhaps instill hope where before there may have been none. We have great people doing great things in our hospital each day. This volunteer effort gives us yet another opportunity to demonstrate our motto: "Dedication to Others."

To help as many people as possible, Glenn plans to go "shopping" for more volunteers. They can volunteer as little as one day a month. The important part is the commitment, she said.

"The more people we have on board, the better," she said. "It's not just something for today. It's something that will continue on and on. That is the goal: to make it a part of us ... enlisted, officers, civilians — the Martin Army family."

ROOSEVELT WARM SPRINGS CONTINUING

A Tradition of Therapy, "The Roosevelt Way"

Hands-on approach achieves results.

Roosevelt Warm Springs has been a leader in therapy since the Second World War. Returning military therapists were among the first to develop "The Roosevelt Way," a hands-on approach that became the model for dealing with polio and more recently spinal cord injuries and amputees. Veterans are encouraged to again take advantage of this tradition in the following therapy disciplines:

Physical Therapy | Occupational Therapy | Recreational Therapy
Respiratory Therapy | Speech & Language Pathology

Breast cancer: It's everyone's problem

MCGHEALTH
Dr. Thomas Samuel

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Over the greater part of the last decade, breast cancer has been the second leading cause of cancer deaths in woman today (after lung cancer) and is the most common cancer among women.

In 2007, there were approximately 200,000 new cases in the United States. Approximately 40,000 people die every year from this disease. Unfortunately few women know the dangers and complications that breast cancer can cause. A recent survey by Woman's Day magazine shows that only 53 percent of women know that getting older raises their risk of developing the disease and only 32 percent know that being overweight puts them at risk. All women are at risk of breast cancer. However the greatest risks are among women 50 and older. As early as 20, you should develop a consistent pattern of screenings and self-examinations to detect abnormal changes in the breast.

There are a number of factors that can put you at a higher risk:

Gender — Simply being a woman is the main risk factor for developing breast cancer. Men can develop breast cancer, but it is about 100 times more common among women than men.

Age — Women in their 20s and 30s should perform monthly self-examinations for any changes in breast size, redness or abnormal lumps beneath the skin. Between the ages of 40 and 49, you should decide individually with your primary care provider whether you should have annual mammograms, which can help detect 85 to 90 percent of all breast cancer. At age 50 you should consult with a primary care provider and have an annual mammogram and screenings each year as long as you are in good health.

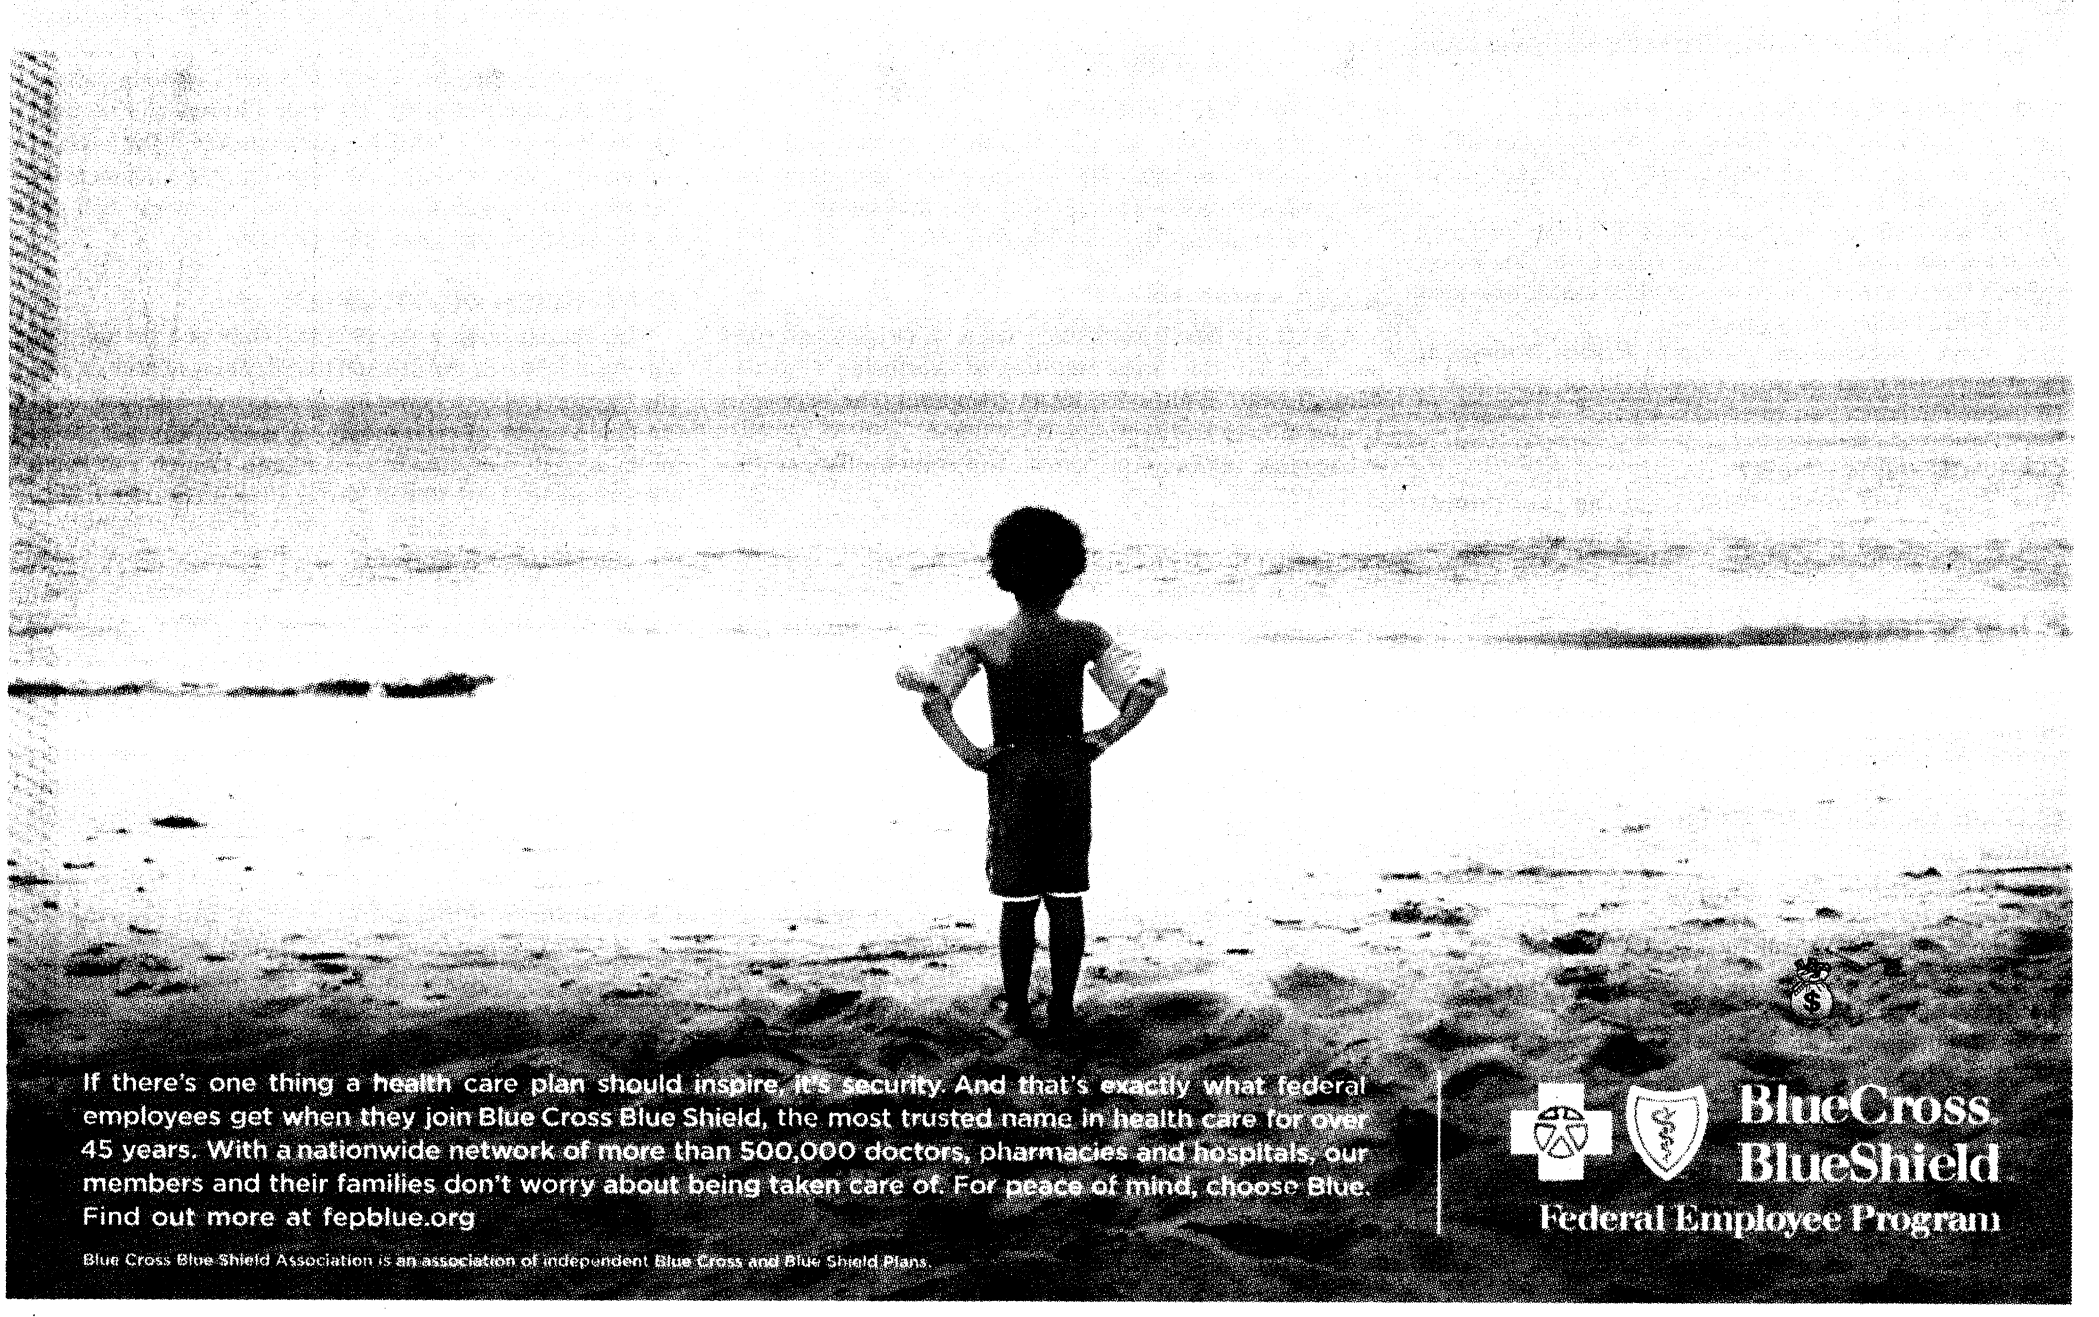
Genetics — Your risk increases if you have a history of breast cancer in your family. About 5 to 10 percent of breast cancer cases are thought to be hereditary. If a strong family history exists, genetic testing can be done to determine certain genetic anomalies that may increase your risk of developing the disease.

Race — Caucasian women are more likely to develop breast cancer, while African-American women are more likely to die from the disease.

Body mass — Patients who have a higher body mass index have higher fat tissue content in their body. Fat tissue is one of the tissues in the body that convert cholesterol to the female hormone estrogen, therefore higher estrogen levels put you at higher risk for developing breast cancer. In addition to maintaining a healthy weight, by following a low-fat diet, getting regular exercise, quitting smoking and reducing alcohol consumption all can lower your risk of developing breast cancer.

Screening exams are important because the earlier breast cancer is found and diagnosed, the better your chances are of treating it.

Once a patient has been diagnosed, there are four different treatment options. Surgical treatment consists of two breast-conserving surgeries — a lumpectomy and mastectomy. Chemotherapy is another option and is effective in reducing the risk of the cancer returning by almost a third. Radiation therapy uses a high-energy beam to damage the DNA of cancer cells, thereby preventing them from multiplying. The fourth treatment option is hormone therapy, which eliminates cancer cells that might be left behind after initial treatment with surgery, chemotherapy or radiation.



If there's one thing a health care plan should inspire, it's security. And that's exactly what federal employees get when they join Blue Cross Blue Shield, the most trusted name in health care for over 45 years. With a nationwide network of more than 500,000 doctors, pharmacies and hospitals, our members and their families don't worry about being taken care of. For peace of mind, choose Blue. God's plan for marriage began in Garden of Eden

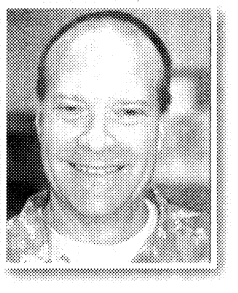
Chaplain (Maj.) Richard Garvey

My firstborn daughter turned 20 this past October. She is a full grown woman in the physical sense, but still has some growing in the emotional, relational and spiritual realms of life.



Are we ever fully developed in these areas of life? I think we continue to grow and develop in these areas for most of our adult lives. This past weekend, she was married, and moved into a new stage of life. For one year, my daughter and her husband prepared and planned for the wedding (yes, at my expense) and for their future life together. They came to the Chaplain Family Life Center to receive pre-marital counselling. They talked about their plans for the future, their hopes and desires as they looked forward to becoming husband and wife. They are fulfilling God's plan of marriage. Marriage is God's plan and was established from the very beginning in the Garden of Eden.

You may recall from the Bible, in the book of Genesis, that in the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth. As you continue to read, you find that God created all life as we know it. God recorded for us the creation account of all living creatures with man as the pinnacle of His creation. God created man, the highest earthly form of life.

Adam had everything a man could want. He had a perfect place in which to live clothing-free, and he had a perfect environment. The temperature and climate were ideal, and fruit trees bore plentiful fruit. This environment was full of animals that did not fear or seek to harm man. I have a mental picture of that time as an era in which one was able to wrap one's arms around a tiger and play with him like a common household dog. Food was plentiful, animals were all around and there was no alarm clock to jolt you out of your morning sleep. There was no work and nothing to do but to enjoy God and a life of paradise.

However, God said it was not good for man to be alone. So, a loving God created woman for man. Now, can you imagine how Adam must have responded? "WO-man!" He must have said. I guess it was love at first sight. And God established marriage in the Garden of Eden. It is for this reason a man will leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife and the two shall become one.

Yes, it was time for my daughter to leave me and my wife and cleave unto her new husband. They are to become one. They should leave us physically by no longer living under our roof and by establishing their own dwelling. They should leave us financially by establishing their own goals and dreams for the future and by figuring out how they will earn a living together. God plants in us a desire for an emotional and physical connection – a bonding of the soul – something we often refer to as love. God intended this relationship of love between a husband and wife to last a lifetime. This is only accomplished when two people choose to love each other in a committed relationship. When we fail to love as God intended for us to do, we often find difficulties in our relationships.

If you are having difficulties in your relationship, we invite you to call 706-545-1760 and make an appointment at the Chaplain's Family Life Center or stop in at 2606 Dixie Road in Soldier's Plaza. Our pastoral counselors are ready to offer you complete confidential counseling and help you with your journey. Whether you need one visit or many, we are here for you.

To my daughter and her husband: May God grant you a long and successful marriage as you see and serve him! God Bless.

Murder mystery

Brie Van de Cramp, played by Amy Laney, and her neighbor, Tom Schizo, played by James Turner, discuss the bright future of Hysteria Lane, once Brie's "heavenly housekeepers" have scrubbed and polished every home in the neighborhood. Recently broke, perfectionist Brie turns to the maid service as a way to earn a little extra cash and share her passion for vacuuming, ironing and dusting.

The Victorian-style Garrett-Bullock House, now the site of murder mystery shows, has graced uptown Columbus for more than 120 years.

Brie Van de Cramp dislikes imperfection. Before her guests arrive Friday, she dusts parts of her home. With her professional cleaning service, she plans to bring her own impeccable good taste in housekeeping to the residents of Hysteria Lane, whose dirty homes are in need of Brie's aid. But when her customers start finding their "heavenly housekeepers" quickly becoming skeletons in the closet — or elsewhere around their homes — Brie's business is in trouble.

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

The housewives of Hysteria Lane are in for more than they bargained for.

After hiring Brie Van de Cramp's "heavenly housekeepers" to help make their homes immaculate, they find them, one by one, all washed up — dead in the middle of their cleaning. The only question is who did them in.

Could it be you?

If you enjoy murder mysteries, visit the Garrett-Bullock House in Columbus for a November showing of Desperate Housekeepers, a spoof written by Nita Hardy, with flavorful local references and plenty of puns.

Patrons will savor a three-course meal, catered by The Rankin Quarter Dining and Catering Company, with the chance to play detective and figure out "whodunit" during dessert.

There are only two actors who play multiple characters. If you choose, you can become part of the theatrical experience, too, by taking on a small role.

Some of the best laughs of the night are supplied by audience members turned actors, who deliver unrehearsed lines and spontaneous gestures. You can pick up a part from one of the two performers before the show. But be careful, you may find yourself unceremoniously written out of the script as yet another victim of murder mystery theater.

The comedy contains some adult humor, so leave the kids at home. The performance begins promptly at 7 p.m. Doors open a half hour earlier for guests to mingle, tour the Victorian home and sample hors d'oeuvre. Vegetarian menu options are available upon request.

Shows are today, Saturday and Nov. 21-22. Tickets are $45 per person. To reserve yours, call 706-536-4054.

The Garrett-Bullock House is located at 1402 Second Ave., Columbus. For more information, visit www.garrettbullockhouse.com/desperate.pdf.

OPENING TODAY
QUANTUM OF SOLACE

Betrayed by Vesper, the woman he loved, 007 fights the urge to make his latest mission personal. Pursuing his determination to uncover the truth, Bond and M interrogate Mr. White who reveals the organization which blackmailed Vesper is more complex and dangerous than anyone had imagined.

Forensic intelligence links an Mi6 traitor to a bank account in Haiti where a case of mistaken identity introduces Bond to the beautiful but feisty Camille, a woman who has her own vendetta. Camille leads Bond straight to Dominic Greene, a ruthless business man and major force within the mysterious organization.

On a mission that leads him to Austria, Italy and South America, Bond discovers that Greene, conspiring to take total control of one of the world's most important natural resources, is forging a deal with the exiled General Medrano. Using his associates in the organization, and manipulating his powerful contacts within the CIA and the British government, Greene promises to overthrow the existing regime in a Latin American country, giving the general control of the country in exchange for a seemingly barren piece of land.

In a minefield of treachery, murder and deceit, Bond allies with old friends in a battle to uncover the truth. As he gets closer to finding the man responsible for the betrayal of Vesper, 007 must keep one step ahead of the CIA, the terrorists and even M, to unravel Greene's sinister plan and stop his organization.

Quantum of Solace stars Daniel Craig as Bond, Judi Dench as M, Olga Kurylenko as Camille and Jesper Christensen as White. It is rated PG-13 for sequences of violence and action, and sexual content.

ALSO PLAYING
SOUL MEN

Two former backup soul singers, Louis and Floyd who have not spoken to each other in 20 year reluctantly agree to travel across the country together to a reunion concert to honor their recently deceased lead singer (John Legend). Cleo (Sharon Leal), a beautiful young woman who is believed to be Floyd's daughter, accompanies them as a new singer.

Samuel L. Jackson stars as Louis and Bernie Mac stars as Floyd.

Soul Men is rated R for language and sexual content including nudity.

MADAGASCAR: ESCAPE 2 AFRICA

Alex, Marty, Melman, Gloria, King Julien, Maurice, the penguins and the chimps find themselves marooned on the distant shores of Madagascar.

In the face of this obstacle, the New Yorkers have hatched a plan so crazy it just might work. With military precision, the penguins have repaired an old crashed plane—sort of.

Once aloft, this unlikely crew stays airborne just long enough to make it to the wildest place of all — the vast plains of Africa, where the members of our zoo-raised crew encounter species of their own kind for the very first time. Africa seems like a great place — but is it better than their Central Park home?

ZACK AND MIRI MAKE A PORNO

Two lifelong, platonic friends, strapped for cash and in debt, decide to make a porno.

The movie stars Seth Rogen as Zack and Elizabeth Banks as Miri Linky.

Zack and Miri Make a Porno is rated R for sexual content, nudity and language.

THE HAUNTING OF MOLLY HARTLEY

A teenage girl discovers her parents made a pact with the devil to save her life. When the devil comes to collect, terrible things begin to happen and she must figure out if and how she can save herself.

Haley Bennett stars as Molly, Jake Weber as Robert, Chace Crawford is Joseph, Shanna Collins is Alexis and Shannon Marie Woodward is Leah.

The Haunting of Molly Hartley is rated PG-13 for violence and terror, brief strong language and teen drinking.

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 3: SENIOR YEAR

This third film in the High School Musical series follows teens Troy and Gabriella through the trials of their senior year. Faced with the prospect of separation upon departing for college, they stage an elaborate spring muscial reflecting their experiences, hopes and fears. The entire Wildcat crew joins in the muscial fun.

High School Musical 3 stars Zac Efron, Vanessa Hudgens and Ashley Tisdale. It is rated G.

SAW V

In the fifth installment of this horror series, Hoffman finds himself the last survivor left to carry on the Jigsaw legacy. Or is he? When Hoffman's secret is threatened, he must go on the hunt to eliminate any remaining loose ends.

Saw V stars Laura Gordon, Tobin Bell, Scott Patterson and Costas Mandylor. It is rated R for sequences of violence and torture, language and nudity.

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic antihero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld.

As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence, drug content, sexuality and language.

QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911-distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown.

Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape.

When they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

Quarantine is rated R for violent and disturbing content, terror and language.

BODY OF LIES

A CIA operative, Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio), uncovers a lead on a major terrorist leader suspected to be operating out of Jordan. When Ferris devises a plan to infiltrate his network, he must first win the backing of CIA veteran Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe) and the head of Jordanian intelligence.

Although ostensibly his allies, Ferris questions how far he can really trust these men without putting his entire operation — and his life — on the line.

Body of Lies is rated R for violence, torture and language.

CITY OF EMBER

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights — underground. Built as a refuge for humanity and powered by a massive generator, this city will only sustain for 200 years.

Now Ember is falling into darkness as the generator fails. Lina (Saoirse Ronan), a recent graduate, finds an old metal box in her grandmother's closet. Unable to decipher the meaning of the cryptic papers inside, she enlists the help of her friend Doon (Harry Treadaway).

As blackouts in the city become more frequent, Lina and Doon realize that the information inside that box could lead to the salvation of their city and fellow citizens.

Racing against the clock, the two follow the clues, maneuvering around corrupt politicians and unsavory characters hoping to keep them from their goal: restoring the light in the City of Ember. City of Ember is rated PG for peril and thematic elements.

THINGS to do

CSU lecture
TODAY

Charlie Muise, coordinator of the Atlanta Audubon Society's Georgia Important Bird Area conservation program, will give a talk at 7 p.m. Friday in Stanley Hall Room 205. The program will cover the state's Important Bird Areas, including Fort Benning, which is home to the Bachman's sparrow and red-cockaded woodpecker. The event, presented by CSU's Oxbow Meadows Environmental Learning Center, is free and open to public.

Seating is limited and by reservation only. For reservations call, 706-687-4090.

Night hike
TODAY

Pine Mountain Trail Association is sponsoring a 3.4 mile night hike at 7:30 p.m. today starting from the east Country Store Parking Lot on the corner of Veterans Parkway (US 27) and Georgia 190. Hikers are urged to arrive before 7:30 to let their eyes adjust to the dark. Bring a small flashlight. Red plastic will be provided to put over flashlight ends to keep glare down. The hike is free and open to hikers of all ages. For more information, call Jim Hall 706-569-0497.

Why Baby, Why: The Music of George Jones and Tammy Wynette
TODAY-SATURDAY

The Springer Opera House Presents Why, Baby, Why: The Music of George Jones and Tammy Wynette at 7:30 p.m. today and Saturday.

Together and separately, George Jones and Tammy Wynette had 30 No. 1 hits and nine marriages — including one they shared — between them. This cabaret spotlights the music that put them in the Country Music Hall of Fame, including Stand by Your Man, The Grand Tour and The Window Up Above.

Tickets are $32. To purchase tickets, call the box office at 706-327-3688 from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday or go to www.springeroperahouse.org.

Murder Mystery Theatre
TODAY, SATURDAY, NOV 21-22

Murder Mystery Theatre presents Desperate Housekeepers today, Saturday and Nov. 21-22 at the Garrett-Bullock House in Columbus.

The housewives of Hysteria Lane seek the perfection of Brie Van de Cramp. Brie opens a maid service. Her business cleans up, until her maids start turning up dead in the spotless homes of her best friends.

Everyone is a suspect, including audience members. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. and the play starts at 7 p.m. The cost is $45 per person ($40 for military) and includes a three-course dinner, sales tax and gratuity. Reservations are required. For reservations or more information, call 706-536-4054.

The Pirates of Penzance
TODAY

The RiverCenter for Performing Arts presents The Pirates of Penzance, a New York Gilbert and Sullivan Players Production, at 7:30 p.m. today.

The play has bucaneers, Victorian maidens, British bobbies and it's set on the rocky coast of Cornwall.

Tickets are $10 to $47. To purchase tickets or for more information, visit the RiverCenter box office anytime from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday or from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, go to www.rivercenter.org or call 706-256-3612.

RiverCenter entertainment stimulus package
TODAY

When was the last time you could take the entire family to an event for about as much as a tank of gas? The RiverCenter is offering tickets to Friday's Pirates of Penzance show for $10 each. For those who have already purchased full price tickets, the RiverCenter will provide a free ticket so you can bring a friend.

The $10 tickets and free tickets are available only at the RiverCenter Box Office. For more information, call 706-256-3657.

The Pajama Game
MONDAY

The RiverCenter for Performing Arts presents Pajama Game at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17.

An employee representative has found her match in the pajama shop superintendent and when the two get together, they wind up discussing more than job actions.

Tickets cost $34 to $44. Tickets can be purchased at the RiverCenter box office from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday though Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

For more information, call 706-256-3614 or go to www.rivercenter.org.

Oxbow Meadows
SATURDAY

CSU's Oxbow Meadows Environmental Learning Center will stage a demonstration, A Bird in the Hand is Worth Two in the Bush - Bird Banding, from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the center, 3535 South Lumpkin Road, Columbus. Charlie Muise, coordinator of the Atlanta Audubon Society's Georgia Important Bird Area conservation program, will put up his mist nets and catch some of Oxbow's wild birds for "bird in the hand" looks at resident songbirds. Guests are invited to bring cameras. Admission is $5 for adults and $2 for children ages 10 and younger. For more information call 706-687-4090.

An Evening of Astronomy
NOV 22

Constellations and planets have been an important part of human society and folklore since humans lived in caves. Join the Columbus Coca-Cola Space Science Center staff from 6 to 8 p.m. at the F.D. Roosevelt State Park amphitheater, Pine Mountain, Ga., for an evening that will include star talks, star maps, and viewing of the night sky. Parking costs $3. For more information, call 706-663-4858.

National Civil War Naval Museum
DEC 6-7

The National Civil War Naval Museum at Port Columbus offers free admission Dec. 6-7 because a Civil War Santa is coming to town. The museum will be decorated for the holidays in mid-19th century Victorian style and Thomas Nast's idea of Santa Claus will be available for pictures.

The hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Breakfast (by reservation only) will be from 8 to 8:45a.m., and photos with Santa will be available from 9:30a.m. to 4:30p.m. on Saturday, and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Infantry Center Band concert
DEC 7

The Infantry Center Band will present Sounds of the Season, the annual Christmas concert at 2 and 4 p.m. Dec. 7 at the RiverCenter. The concert is free. Tickets are available at the RiverCenter box office or by mail. Send your request for tickets along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sounds of the Season, Infantry Center Band, Building 2751, Fort Benning Ga., 31905.

Holiday tour of homes
DEC 6

The Eufaula Heritage Association will host its Christmas tour of homes Dec. 6. The tour will kick off at 11 a.m. with a luncheon at the Shorter Mansion in Eufaula, Ala. The cost of the luncheon is $25 per person. Seating is limited and reservations are required.

From 1 to 4:30 p.m., there will be four homes open to tour. From 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. another four homes will be open for candlelight tours. The theme is "Christmas Past."

At 7:30 p.m., a dinner will be served at Shorter Mansion. Tickets for dinner are $42.50 per person.

The cost to tour homes is $6 for one home, $20 for four homes and $40 for eight homes.

For more information, call 888-383-2852 or go to www.eufaulapilgrimage.com.

Miles of trails at Auburn University
ONGOING

There are miles of wooded hiking and birding trails —15 named trails through a variety of animal habitats, ponds, streams, native azalea and fern viewing areas, waterfalls and a butterfly garden at the 110-acre Louise Kreher Forest Ecology Preserve at Auburn University.

For more information, visit www.fp.auburn.edu/preserve.

Botanical gardens in Dothan
ONGOING

Reasons to visit the Dothan Area Botanical Gardens keep growing. A tranquil, paved nature trail meanders through a beautiful rose garden, through herbs, day lilies, camellias, azaleas, past a peaceful pond, Victorian gazebo and a demonstration garden. The gardens are open daily from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

For more information, call 334-793-3224 or visit www.dabg.com.

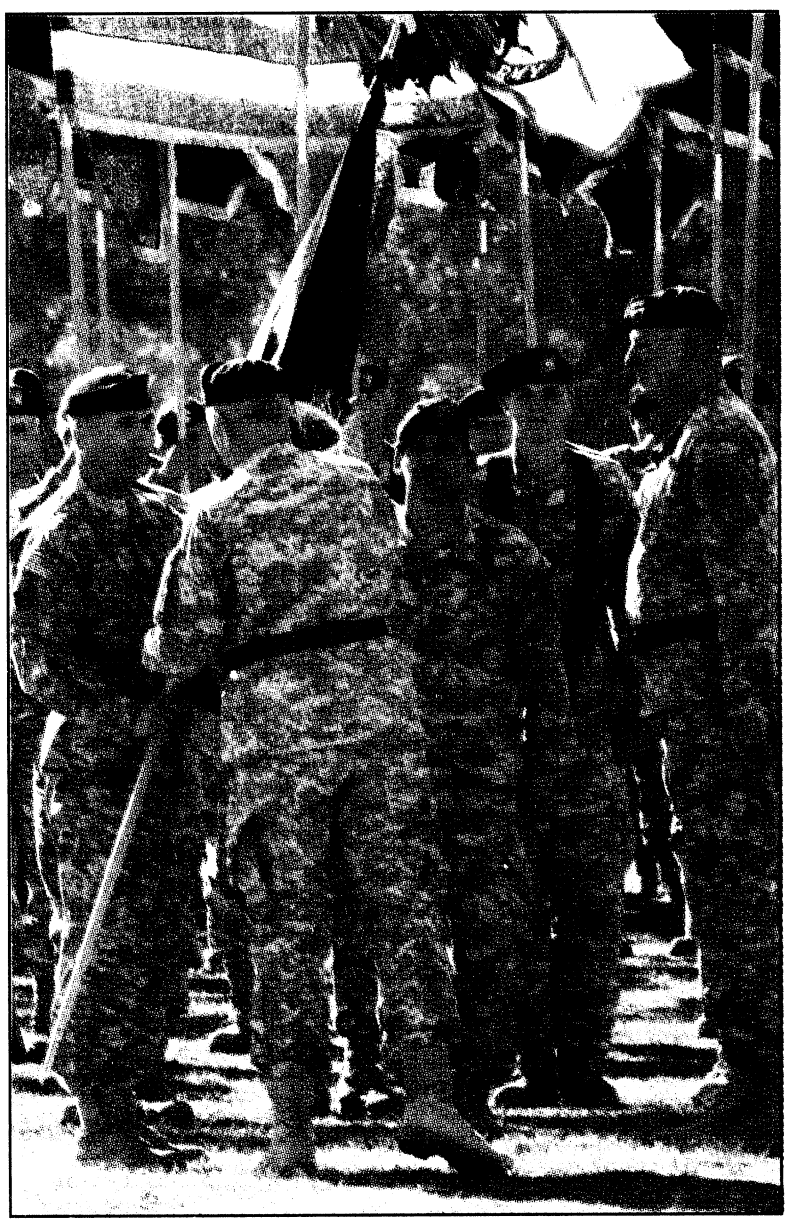
MG Barbero assumes command



John W. Peeler

MG Michael D. Barbero takes the guidon from TRADOC commander GEN William Wallace during the change of command ceremony Tuesday on York Field.

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

MG Walter Wojdakowski, outgoing Infantry Center commandant and Fort Benning commander, passed the guidon and colors symbolizing the transfer of command authority to MG Michael D. Barbero during a change of command ceremony Tuesday on York Field.

"Rest assured that as one great leader departs, another talented leader steps forward to take command," said GEN William S. Wallace, the reviewing officer.

Barbero comes to Fort Benning following a 16-month tour of duty in Baghdad, Iraq as the CJ3 of Multi National Forces, Iraq (MNF-I).

He is a 1976 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Command and General Staff Course, the Advanced Military Studies Program and the Army War College.

Barbero has served in various tactical assignments in mechanized, light, and Air Assault Infantry units and has extensive experience as an operations officer at the battalion, brigade, national and multi-national level. He has also served as the executive assistant to the Commander of Joint Forces, Command/Supreme Commander Atlantic, III Corps Chief of Staff. Barbero is a veteran of Operation Just Cause and has served two tours in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Wallace credited Barbero's leadership, vision and resolve in helping shape the current and future coalition and Iraqi security force success in his prior duty assignment as the Deputy Chief of Staff, Strategic Operations and Director of Operations, CJ3, Multi-National Force, Iraq.

"I know Mike will carry forward his vast experience, as well as the best practices and insights of our Soldiers and leaders in combat and apply them to training and leadership development here," Wallace said. "Mike is a seasoned maneuver commander, warrior and professional leader — a Soldier who will continue the time-honored tradition of exceptional leadership here at Fort Benning, building upon the great foundation set by those who have gone before."

Following the ceremony, Barbero addressed the media.

"I don't think there is an installation in the Army that is doing as much to support the current Army mission as Fort Benning and also supporting and shaping the future Army ... the transition to the Maneuver Center of Excellence is quite a big step in the future of the Army," Barbero said.

Wojdakowski assumed command of Fort Benning in August 2005.

"Every leader in the Army wants to make a difference, but Walt is a different kind of leader, Wallace said. "He has made a difference with distinction everywhere he has served throughout his career.

"Walt's experience and strategic

USA SHOOTING
Mary Beth Vorweck

A Soldier of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit has been chosen as the 2008 USA Shooting Athlete of the Year.

USA Shooting selected 2008 Olympic gold medalist SGT Walton Glenn Eller III as the 2008 USAS Male Shooter of the Year. Four-time Olympic medalist and 2008 Olympic silver medalist Kim Rhode of El Monte, Calif., was chosen as the USAS Female Shooter of the Year.

USA Shooting, the national governing body for Olympic shooting sports, made the announcement Nov. 13 at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. These athletes were chosen based on the USAS Athlete of the Year policies and procedures and were selected by a points system.

Their names will be submitted to the U.S. Olympic Committee for consideration for the 2008 USOC Sportsman and Sportswomen of the Year awards, which have been presented annually since 1974 to the Army promotes first woman to four-star

ARNEWS
Jacqueline M. Hames

GEN Ann E. Dunwoody became the first female four-star general in the U.S. Armed Forces at a promotion ceremony Nov. 14 at the Pentagon.

"History will no doubt take note of (Dunwoody's) achievement in breaking through this final 'brass ceiling' to pin on this fourth star," Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates said during the ceremony. "But she would rather be known and remembered first and foremost as a U.S. Army Soldier."

GEN George W. Casey Jr., chief of staff of the Army, hosted the ceremony, praising Dunwoody as a "premiere logistician." He thanked her for her dedicated service to the Army, and wished her well.

"What's happening here today is something our Army can celebrate and take pride in," Casey said of her achievement.

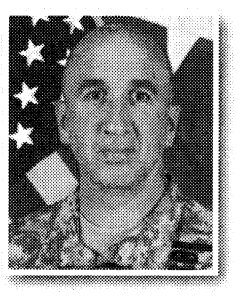
COMMANDER'S COLUMN

Fort Benning's new commander remains focused on training Soldiers while transitioning to MCOE

COMMANDING GENERAL
MG Michael Barbero



I can't tell you how proud and honored Linda and I are to be members of the Fort Benning community. We look forward to the incredible events that will take place during our time here as Fort Benning officially becomes the home of both Infantry and Armor under the purview of the Maneuver Center of Excellence.

At this time, I would like to recognize and thank MG. Walt and Candy Wojdakowski for their commitment and leadership, not only to Fort Benning, but to our Army during their 36 years of service. I wish them well as they start the next chapter of their lives.

As the 47th commanding general of Fort Benning, MG Wojdakowski pioneered the path of standing up the Maneuver Center of Excellence, from the start of the Base Realignment and Closure process, to the groundbreaking of the Armor School. My role will be to continue his great work as we move closer to training as we fight. I look forward to traveling on the path to success that he has forged for us all.

The MCOE is scheduled to be fully operational by September 2011 and we are well on our way to reaching that goal. In fact, several significant milestones worth highlighting have been achieved in recent months. Most notable was the launching of the virtual Maneuver Center of Excellence Oct. 1, which allows the Army to gain synergy and efficiency. This virtual operating capacity also allows the G-Staff and the Capabilities Development and Integration Directorates located at Forts Benning and Knox to begin working together as members of the same team.

Construction has also begun on five new small-arms rifle ranges as part of the Oscar Range Complex in the northern part of the installation, as well as a new tank range. With an expected completion date of September 2011, a total of 15 ranges will assume the training load for the four additional battalions relocating here from the Armor School.

So as I stated, many significant milestones have already been obtained and many more are within our reach. However, while the MCOE process continues to move forward we must remain focused on our number one priority — training American Soldiers. In this era of persistent conflict we have a responsibility to provide our Army with combat-ready Soldiers and adaptive leaders who are imbued with the Warrior Ethos and live the Army Values.

Once again Linda and I are glad to be part of the Benning team. Throughout my 32-year career we have traveled all over the world, and although I've attended schools at Fort Benning, we've never been stationed here. As an Infantryman I can assure you, there is no place I'd rather be than at the heart of our Army and the Home of the Infantry.

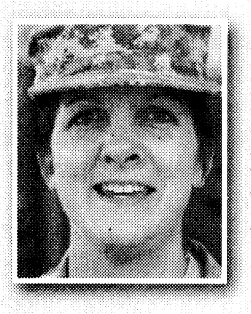
VARIOUS VOICES

How do you keep in touch with friends and family?



I left my home station Nov. 8. I keep in touch with my family a host of different ways. I hand write letters to my 12-year-old daughter, Charmaine. It's something for her to hold onto, to keep. But otherwise I e-mail — my husband, my dad.

— MAJ Laura Powell
641st Mobolization Troop Command

I do enough work e-mails, so I don't do a lot of chatting online. I call, period, nothing else. It's personal. You get a response back immediately. You know how they're doing — you can hear it in their voice.

— Retired SFC Clarence Rambo
Columbus, GA

I have MySpace and Facebook. I also use Skype, since we can't as much as we'd like. It's free, and you can see people using the Webcam. My mother can see her grandchildren. I can sing Happy Birthday to her, too, with the microphone embedded in my laptop.

— SSG Richard Robison
75th Ranger Regiment

Through e-mail and telephone. It's more convenient. It's accessible. If I need to use my cell phone, it's here. In my room, the computer is there. Keeping in touch is the most important thing.

— SGT Rhoda Johnson
Warrior Transition Battalion

Most of the time, it's Facebook. In college, it was the thing to do. You can instant message, write on their wall and even share photos pretty easily. With my family, I usually just use the phone. They're not really big on the computer. I talk at least once a week with them.

Reduce the risk of sexual assualt

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY

Commanders have a responsibility to establish a command climate where safety is promoted, where Soldiers and Army Civilian employees are educated on sexual assault risk reduction techniques, and where Soldiers and Army Civilians feel free to report incidents.

Sexual assault is a crime that is incompatible with Army values and the Warrior Ethos. Sexual assault directly and negatively impacts readiness across the force. Take the following actions to help reduce the risk of sexual assault in your unit.

Educate Soldiers and civilian employees about the definition of sexual assault, the Army policy regarding sexual assault and prevention measures they can take to reduce their risk of sexual assault.

Conduct unit refresher training on sexual assault prevention in your unit. Soldiers receive sexual assault prevention training in initial entry training.

Consider the risk of sexual assault and conduct unit safety briefs during high-risk periods such as holidays and deployments.

Ensure that Soldiers and Army Civilians feel comfortable in reporting sexual assault to the chain of command. You can do this by communicating your intention to protect and treat victims of sexual assault and by making it clear that you will follow Army policy in fully investigating all incidents of sexual assault.

Communicate that you and your chain of command will provide caring assistance to victims of sexual assault.

Make sure Soldiers and civilians know that the chain of command will take appropriate disciplinary action.

Continually assess the command climate regarding the risk of sexual assault in your unit.

Demonstrate, through your words and actions, that sexual assault is unacceptable and is incompatible with Army values and the Warrior Ethos.

Demonstrate your willingness to address incidents of sexual assault and to reject the precursors of sexual assault, such as sexual innuendos, sexual harassment, and indecent assaults by also addressing other forms of harassment or discrimination. Ensure all Soldiers feel free to contact Equal Opportunity if they believe they have been discriminated against or treated unfairly due to race, color, religion, gender, or national origin.

Ensure all civilian employees feel free to contact the Equal Employment Opportunity Office if they feel they have been discriminated against because of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, physical or mental disability, or if they have experienced reprisal in an employment matter.

"Acquaintance rape," which includes date rape, refers to those rapes that occur between two or more people that know one another.

"Date rape" refers to situations in which the one person has consented to go on a date with another person and that person then rapes him or her.

According to the Rape, Abuse & Incest National Network (RAINN), about two-thirds of sexual assault victims in the United States knew their assailants. To help prevent acquaintance or date rape:

Educate personnel on the importance of maintaining alertness by avoiding alcohol and drug use. Encourage assertiveness and communication in dating and other intimate situations. Educate personnel on the dangers of "date rape drugs."

Be especially prepared and alert in deployed environments. Deployed environments can present special risks for Army personnel.

Sleeping areas (tents, bunkers, and other buildings) may be less secure in deployed environments. Encourage Soldiers to report any unauthorized males or females in sleeping areas. Implement security measures around sleeping areas, especially at night. Encourage Soldiers to be alert and aware of their surroundings.

Different cultures may treat females differently than they are treated in the U.S. Encourage personnel, especially women, to be assertive and clearly state if they feel uncomfortable with how someone is treating them. Encourage them to report any inappropriate behavior to you immediately. Minimize your Soldier's risk by recommending they travel with a buddy.

OPINION

SOCIAL NETWORKING

Don't knock it till you try it

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

I'll admit it — I am a social networking addict. After a long day at work, my idea of relaxing is going home, kicking off my shoes and surfing the Internet. I visit three popular social networking sites — MySpace, facebook and YouTube.

To those who think social networking is a waste of time, I say pish-posh.

Social networking is just another form of communication like letters, telephones and e-mail.

YouTube is a Web site where users post videos including funny home videos, news, music, TV shows and documentaries. Categories include education, autos, news, comedy and sports. Some videos are just plain silly — like an artist painting a picture of Elvis with Cheetos and water or students conducting an experiment to see what happens when they put ketchup packets in a microwave.

Facebook and MySpace are similar to one another. Users create their own Web page where they can post photos, blogs, music and videos. I use both sites to keep in touch with old high school and college buddies and family members.

I like the convenience of the sites. Instead of writing a letter and waiting days for it to get to New York, I talk to my relatives through the instant message feature on Facebook. One of the best features is the birthday reminder — it sends a reminder on your friends' birthdays.

It doesn't matter what age you are. Anyone can be a part of social networking. I invite everyone, especially those who think social networking is a waste of time, to try it. Who knows? You might actually like it.

The military judge sentenced Land to be reduced to the grade of E-1, to be confined for five months, and a bad-conduct discharge.

DoD launches TroopTube Web site

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

The Department of Defense launched TroopTube, a video-sharing Web site for Soldiers and their families Nov. 11.

The launch comes a year and a half after the DoD restricted access to YouTube, according to the Associated Press.

"We wanted to put a capability out there to ease the strain on families and military members during deployments," said LTC Les' Melnyk, Department of Defense spokesman.

TroopTube is available through the Military OneSource Web site. Users must create an online account in order to post videos, and registration is free and open to all.

According to Military OneSource, TroopTube will not post any videos containing obscenity or violence, or videos that may compromise military missions.

"TroopTube allows for operational security, and will also ensure that the site stays family-friendly," Melnyk said. "You won't be afraid to have your 6- year-old on there."

Unlike YouTube, TroopTube will not put a strain on the DoD's already busy computer servers, Melnyk said.

"This will address the need for families to connect more closely by sharing videos in a way that doesn't potentially damage our military networks," he said.

The site's biggest benefit, Melnyk said, will be in helping Soldiers stay in closer contact with their families during deployments.

"They'll be able to see family picnics, birthday parties and school plays even though they're not actually there," he said.

Some Soldiers at Fort Benning said TroopTube could be an important resource during deployments.

"I think it's a good idea for Soldiers who are deployed," said SFC Leland McFayden, a drill sergeant with the 192nd Infantry Brigade. "Since they can't access YouTube, this way they'll be able to view videos from their families without being blocked."

SSG Guadalupe Jefferson of WHINSEC agreed.

"I'm sure the deployed Soldiers will be interested, especially if they'll be able to see their families," she said.

The site will be an important retention and morale tool for deployed Soldiers, Melnyk said.

"Anything that we can do to reduce stress on service members and their families will be good for retention and morale," he said.

Soldiers must be in PT uniforms between 6 and 7:30 a.m.

Soldiers complete Urban Ops training

THE BAYONET

Soldiers from B Company, 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, kicked in doors, checked for booby traps and maneuvered through buildings during urban operations training Nov. 7 at Malone MOUT on Sand Hill. The training was part of one station unit training, a 14-week course conducted by the 198th Infantry Brigade for new Soldiers specializing in Infantry.

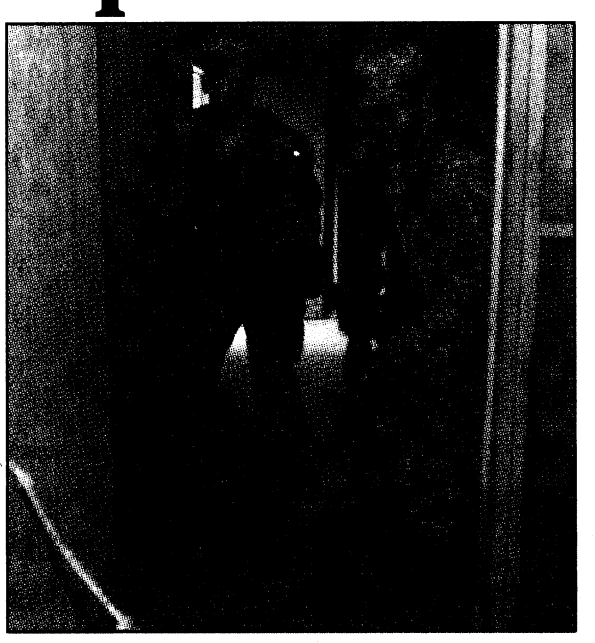
George Upson, a drill sergeant, said that the day's exercises were designed to prepare Soldiers to move effectively through urban settings similar to those they would encounter in Afghanistan or Iraq.

"The wars over there are very urbanized, so we have a pretty big focus on that here," he said. "For a lot of them, this is the only training they'll get before they deploy, so we try to keep it as realistic as possible."

Upson watched and offered feedback as Soldiers practiced entering and clearing rooms in four-person teams.

"The goal is to have each member (of the team) know the responsibilities of their positions, so we rotate them through each of the four positions," he said.

Soldiers in the first and second positions are responsible for clearing a room from its corners to its center, while Soldiers in the third and fourth positions are responsible for clearing a room from its center out, Upson said. He emphasized the importance of paying attention to detail.



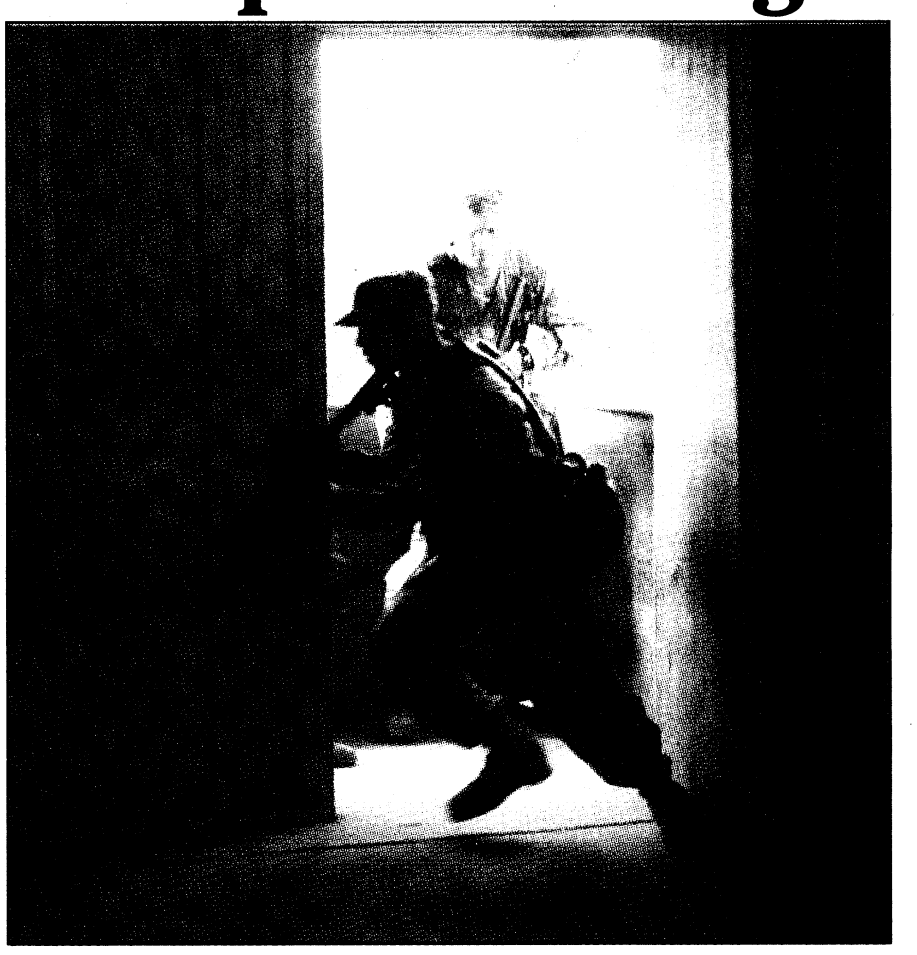
Soldiers prepare to enter a room after kicking in the door.

"This is something that's real easy to forget," he said. "We get on them a lot when they make little mistakes, because if you start doing it wrong here, you're going to do it wrong once you get over there."

PVT Luke Hamilton said the urban operations training helped him advance in his knowledge of Army core values.

"The biggest thing I've learned from this exercise is security and leadership," he said.

B Company was in the seventh week of OSUT, Nov. 7, the week concentrating on urban operations.



As the first Soldier of a four person team enters a room, the second Soldier watches. Soldiers from B Company, 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment practiced entering and clearing rooms built to resemble villages in Iraq and Afghanistan. The drills were part of One Unit Station Training, a 14-week Infantry training course.

'Buffalo' competition raises stakes in training

Soldiers from the 3rd Brigade Special Troops Battalion, 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, who participated in a warrior tasks and drills competition Oct. 20-29, were honored Nov. 3 during a ceremony on Kelley Hill.

The "Buffalo Stakes" competition was the first of its kind on Kelley Hill, however organizers plan to make the competition an annual event.

The training and competition engages the Soldiers and provides more of a real-world training scenario, said CPT Ryan Martin, 3rd BSTB plans officer and OIC of Buffalo Stakes.

"It covered all of the major warrior tasks and battle drills, plus it was more real-world," said PFC Devan R. Elk, a Headquarters and Headquarters Troop Soldier. "They put in twists and stumbling blocks just like you see in real scenarios."

Buffalo Stakes included an Army physical fitness test, a first aid knowledge event, grenade usage event, voice communications test and a chemical attack reaction test. One day was spent at Booker Range for target engagement and weapons assembly testing and the final day of the competition was at Kelley Hill for the land navigation competition and written exam.

"Teams representing every company in 3rd BSTB were scored on each task," said SFC Terry Rafael, NCOIC of 3rd BSTB operations and NCOIC of the competition. "We got teams that are made up of the best Soldiers each company had to offer."

The winning team, Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, received a trophy for their efforts, as well as bragging rights for the year.

"We really focused on enhancing warrior training, culminating in the competition that builds esprit de corps," Rafael said.

"It is a great test for the battalion," Martin said. "It shows us what tasks we excel at and provides guidance for areas to focus on for upcoming training."

vision distinguished him as the ideal Infantryman and warrior. He successfully led change in this organization without compromising standards at a pivotal and defining time in Army history."

Wallace credited Wojdakowski with being directly responsible for the training and support of more than 200,000 Soldiers throughout his tenure.

"Major General Wojdakowski meshed technological advances with traditional core Infantrymen grit and skill to produce today's 21st century Army warriors prepared for both current and future fights," Wallace said. "It has been said, and I couldn't agree more, that Major General Wojdakowski's legacy here at Fort Benning can be summarized in one word — Soldiers. By looking at the mission of the Infantry Center in this way, Walt simplified a seemingly complex mission and dynamic challenges to boil it down to the very essence of success — Soldiers. Walt's extraordinary efforts and insightful leadership has taken the Infantry's readiness and relevance to a new level."

top overall male and female athletes within the U.S. Olympic family.

Three-time Olympian Eller claimed the first Olympic medal of his career when he captured the gold medal in double trap in Beijing in August; he was an Army specialist at the time and was recently promoted to sergeant. He also won the silver medal at the Beijing World Cup in April, which served as the test event for the Olympic Games, and placed fourth at both the World Cup USA in Kerrville, Texas, and the World Cup in Suhl, Germany.

Nationally, Eller finished in first place overall in double trap at the 2008 U.S. Olympic team trials for shotgun and also claimed the top spots at the Shotgun National Championships and the Shotgun Fall Selection Match, landing himself a spot on the 2009 U.S. World Shotgun championship team.

Eller and Rhode were selected as the overall USAS Athletes of the Year, but USAS also recognized the Athletes of the Year in each shooting discipline who earned the highest number of points in their discipline.

Last year's Male Athlete of the Year and 2008 Olympic silver medalist Matt Emmons of Browns Mills, N.J., won the Male Rifle Shooter of the Year and 2008 Olympian Jamie Beyerle of Lebanon, Pa., won the honor for women's rifle. 2008 Olympic bronze medalist Jason Turner of Rochester, N.Y., won Male Pistol Shooter of the Year.

General: Will oversee AMC headquarters' move husband, Craig Brotchie, pinned on her new rank amidst applause and a "hooah" from the audience.

The promotion ceremony in the Pentagon auditorium was packed with well-wishers, friends and family.

"We invited everyone but the fire marshal," Gates said to the standing-room-only crowd. "Well, thank you," Dunwoody said with a smile after being promoted. "I wish I could begin to describe the incredible feelings of gratitude, humility and love that are absolutely consuming me at this very moment. But it's impossible."

Dunwoody said she feels fortunate to have lived a life of firsts, and believes the promotion is "as overwhelming as it is humbling."

Dunwoody was the first woman to hold the deputy chief of staff position for the Army G-4 (Logistics), where she was responsible for ensuring warfighters had the necessary supplies and services, and that logisticians had the tools and equipment necessary to deliver those supplies and services to Soldiers around the world. As the commander of the Military Surface Deployment and Distribution Command at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., from 2002-2004, Dunwoody supported the largest deployment and redeployment of U.S. forces since World War II. She has also commanded the 407th Supply and Transportation Battalion of the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C.; the 10th Mountain Division Support Command, Fort Drum, N.Y.; and the 1st Corps Support Command at Fort Bragg, N.C. She deployed during the first Gulf War with the 82nd Airborne Div. as the Division Parachute Officer from September 1990 to March 1991. Dunwoody received a direct commission as a second lieutenant after graduating from the State University of New York at Cortland in 1975. She has graduate degrees in national resource strategy and logistics management. Her family has a history of military service, including her husband, who is a retired U.S. Air Force colonel. "This promotion has taken me back in time like no other event in my entire life. And I didn't appreciate the enormity of the event until the tidal wave of cards, letters and e-mails started coming my way," Dunwoody said.

"I've heard from moms and dads that see this promotion as a beacon of hope for their own daughters, and an affirmation that anything is possible through hard work and commitment," she said.

Dunwoody also received congratulations and expressions of excitement from female veterans of previous wars. The promotion is the latest first for women in the military, dating back to 1970 when BG Anna Mae Hays was promoted the first female general officer in the U.S. military. In addition to receiving her fourth star, Dunwoody also took command of U.S. Army Material Command, headquartered at Fort Belvoir, Va. As the commanding general, Dunwoody will oversee AMC headquarters' move to Huntsville, Ala., under the 2005 Base Realignment Act. Prior to taking command, she served as the deputy commanding general and chief of staff of AMC. "Today is all about two simple words: thank you," Dunwoody said.

God Bless Fort Benning: 'Something for everyone'

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

"You need to be here," said Lisa Lavallee, who has been working since summer to make the seventh annual God Bless Fort Benning day better than any year before.

Kicking off at 7:30 a.m. Saturday with a traditional pancake breakfast for basic trainees, the day will include food, fun and family-friendly entertainment, said Lavallee, GBFB director.

"No matter who you are, there's something for everyone," she said.

The Columbus State University Cougars will let you test your skills and see how fast you can sling a baseball. GameStop is bringing out the latest and greatest games for Soldiers to preview and play.

Younger visitors can play, too. Kids can enjoy giant inflatables, face painting, puppet shows and a small children's carousel and teacup ride. For families with younger children, there will be a toddlers' area with age-appropriate toys.

Or be a spectator, Lavallee said. There will be live music, wrestling matches, a Nutcracker ballet performance, Ranger hand-to-hand combat demonstrations, military displays and a free showing of Iron Man and Kung Fu Panda from Carmike. Soldiers can also get their picture taken for free in front of four wheelers and sports cars like the Dodge Viper and Acura NSX, courtesy of PTAP.

Thanks to community support, it's all free for the Soldiers, said Lavallee, from free hugs with Hug a Hero to free phone calls home from Verizon.

Operation connects classrooms across country

Cheryl Rodewig

Nine-year-old Angel Merriweather adds to her list of "26 reasons to love America, from A to Z," one of several activities in the Operation Caring Classroom handbook, Friday morning. The third-graders volunteered several "reasons" they loved America, including liberty, recess, teachers and panthers.

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

More than 350 students at McBride Elementary School wrote their first letter — or drew their first picture — for a child in Montana last week. The exercise is part of Operation Caring Classroom, which connects military children across the country with pen pals.

Sponsored by the Armed Forces Foundation, the program includes 100 schools and more than 50,000 students nationwide. This is the first time a school at Fort Benning is involved.

McBride fifth-grader Breeanna Townsend wrote her first letter Wednesday.

"We're writing about what it's like to be an Army child," she said. "I wrote how being an Army child has its advantages and disadvantages. You can move around a lot, meet a lot of people and see a lot of places, but some of the disadvantages are you have to lose a lot of friends, and there's a chance that one day your dad might have to go to Iraq, Afghanistan or Kuwait."

Breeanna said before she became an "Army brat," she didn't understand military life. Now that her dad is deployed in Iraq, she wants children everywhere in America to understand what military families go through.

"I think it's important because they are civilians, and to me, they have it really easy," she said. "They stay in one place."

Multiage classroom provides a 'family atmosphere'

Dexter Elementary students learn from peers

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Tess Brown smiles as she reviews a Thanksgiving story with her Herbert J. Dexter Elementary School class.

"Was the turkey in the story big or small?" she asks.

"A big one!" a student replies.

The scene would not be unusual, except that Tess Brown is not the children's teacher. She's a third grader in Fort Benning's only multiage classroom, a group of 18 students ranging from first through third grades.

Barbara Culwell, their teacher, said her students often act as peer mentors and teachers to their classmates.

"They learn from each other," she said. "A lot of times, kids get intimidated by adults telling them what to do, but yet they'll listen closely to their peers."

The wide range of students' ages and abilities means that Culwell must address each child's needs on an individual basis.

"Instead of fitting the child to the curriculum, we take the curriculum and fit it to the kid," she said. "I'll think about what each one of those kids needs and meet them where they are."

One of the major differences between a multiage classroom and a traditional one, Culwell said, is in the role of the teacher.

"My role here is really more of a facilitator than a teacher," she said. "Anytime that a teacher tells them everything they need to learn, it will only stay with them a short while. But if they're actively involved in what they're doing, they'll remember it a lot more."

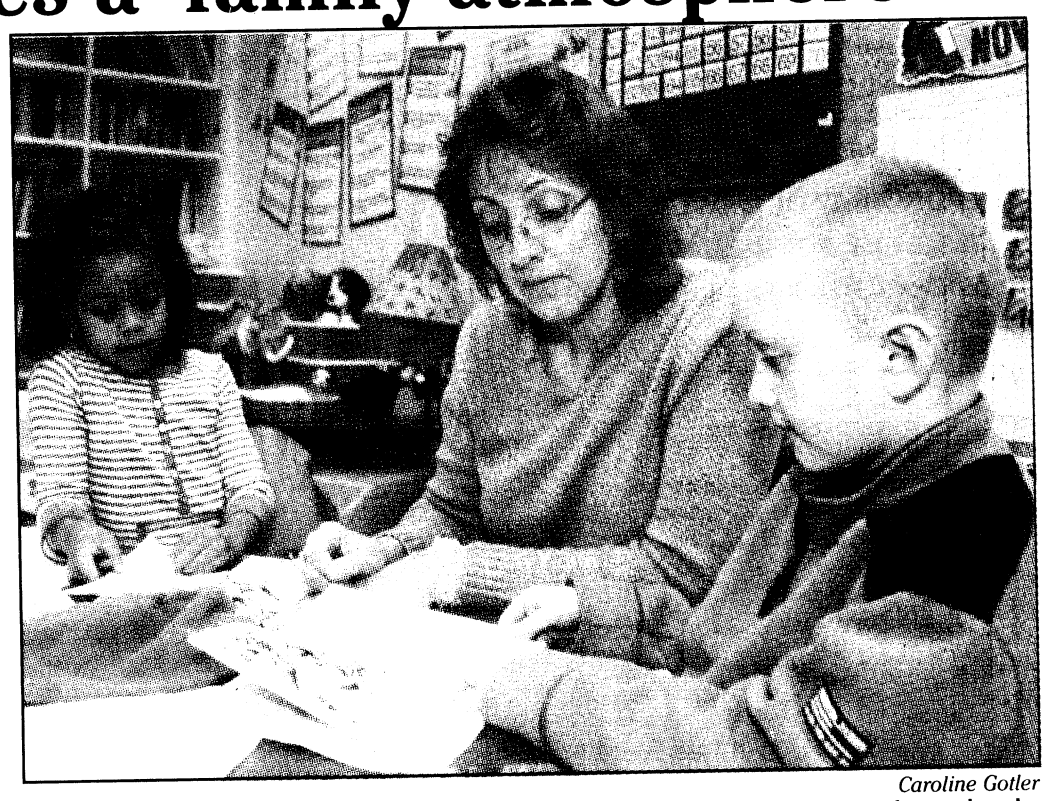
The multiage classroom was introduced at Dexter for the 2008-2009 school year after teachers and school officials received positive feedback from interested parents. Multiage classes can be especially beneficial for students in military families, Culwell said.

"Most of these kids transition a lot from one post to another," she said. "But if they're going to be at Benning for two or three years, a multiage class provides a family atmosphere.

"When I have them in my class for more than one year, I'm better able to keep up with their progress."

First grader Sarah Morgan said she prefers the multiage classroom to traditional ones.

"I like it more than just a regular classroom," she said. "We get to do fun, different stuff."



Caroline Gotler

Dexter Elementary School teacher Barbara Culwell coaches first grader Latalyia Qutaishat and second grader Brian Hanlin as they read a story. Culwell teaches Fort Benning's only multiage classroom, a group of 18 students ranging from 1st through 3rd grades. The unique composition of the class allows her to tailor her lessons to each student's individual needs, Culwell said. "It gives me a greater perspective on what they're able to do, and where I can zero in to help them," she said.

School officials plan on polling parents to determine their level of interest in the multiage class for the 2009-2010 school year, and Culwell said she is already excited about continuing to teach the class.

"I love it," she said. "I've already asked to do it again next year."

Block party to feature free food, activities and giveaways

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Fort Benning's Directorate of Family, Morale, Welfare and Recreation is sponsoring a block party today from 4 to 8 p.m. on Gaudette Street between Ingersoll and Kilgore streets.

The party will mark the opening of the Java Café, the new location of Child, Youth, and School Services' central registration office and the expansion of the Laundromat.

The block party is intended to highlight DFMWR services, many of which are located on Gaudette Street, said Donna Hyatt, a marketing specialist with DFMWR.

"It will let people know in a big way what's going on," Hyatt said.

The block party will feature a variety of booths, demonstrations and children's activities, as well as live music and free food. Attendees can register to win door prizes, including a 46-inch LCD television. All activities are free.

"There will be inflatables, games, arts and crafts and temporary tattoos for kids," Hyatt said. "And there will be information for parents on upcoming CYS programs."

Sayers Library will give away free graphic novels and Fort Benning Veterinary Services will be on hand with pets available for adoption, Hyatt said. Representatives from the Army Family Covenant will take free photos of attendees and their families.

Other activities will include an outdoor movie, free dog washes and tours of facilities including the Thrift Shop and the AAFES Mini Mall.

"It's going to be a wonderful chance for everybody on post to get to know the new services and locations available to them," Hyatt said.

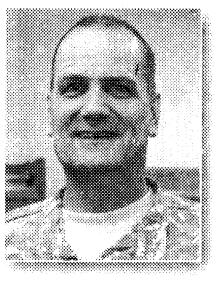
Choices define how our lives will be remembered

192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE
Chaplain (CPT) Steven Francis Doyle



George Bernard Shaw, a Nobel Laureate in the early 20th Century wrote, "Few people think more than two or three times a year." It's true, life comes at us so hard and fast that we barely have time to figure it all out. Life seems to run by us as we are living it. In Psalms 90:12 it says, "Teach us to number our days that we may gain a heart of wisdom." I don't understand...where does life go? Wasn't it just a week ago that I was in college? And it feels like it was only six days ago that I first joined the U.S. Army. It seems like five days ago that I left the Army and went to seminary. Four days ago, I was the pastor of a small town church in rural Arizona. Three days ago, I re-enlisted into the Army, and two days ago, I went to Afghanistan. Just yesterday, I came back from Iraq. Boy, how time flies!

Did you ever watch the movie "The Crow?" Bruce Lee's son, Brandon Lee, is the star. In the making of the movie, Brandon Lee is killed (literally, killed) by a malfunctioning prop.

Similarly, Brandon Lee's father, Bruce Lee, was also killed while making a karate movie a generation earlier. Anyway, the movie is not the main attraction for me for one reason: at the end of the movie, there is a trailer in which Brandon Lee is interviewed. Brandon Lee says something to this effect: that we all wake up each morning, look at the sunrise and think that we will see plenty more sunrises in our life. But do we know that for sure? In reality, each one of us will see a fixed number of sunrises and sunsets, not an infinite number. One person may see thirty-six more sunrises in his life; another may only see three more sunrises. The point is that life is not an inexhaustible well.

So, how do you make the most of these few days on good ol' planet earth? For starters, you have to settle the basic questions of life: Who am I? Why am I here? Is there a God? If so, what does God ask of me or require of me? If not, what am I to do with that? What happens to me when (and not if) I die?

These are the key questions that demand our immediate attention, for there are some things that we just can't afford to skip over in life. You see, our choices define us. You could say that life is just a pile of choices. We should not underestimate the impact of those choices on our lives. For example, you might decide to go to school. But, because you are going to school, you will not be able to do other things, like take a second job or buy a new car. Once we set out in a certain direction, it means that we are eliminating many other choices (both good and bad). It is silly to think you can have it all, for the direction of our path limits what we can see and what we can choose from.

Why is it that some people are more effective in accomplishing great things in their lives than others? It is not because they are dealt a better hand in life, but rather it is because their desires are wrapped in a greater purpose.

Great people live for great purposes. In the movie "Troy," the main character, Achilles, talks to a small boy before battle. The small boy says he could not do the same things that Achilles has done. Achilles replies, "Then no one will remember your name." Who will remember your name?

Sarah Elizabeth Parker

Sarah Elizabeth Parker, daughter of LTC Kevin and Sandra Parker, lost her 14-month battle with cancer Nov. 13. Sarah was born Oct. 5, 2005, at Ireland Army Community Hospital, Fort Knox, Ky.

Sarah was a wonderful little girl who loved all things associated with Barney. She also enjoyed pretending to be an elephant. Throughout her short life, she was a smiling, happy, independent little angel who touched everyone she met in a positive way. Her dynamic personality, sense of humor beyond her years and ability to smile even when suffering will be missed by all who knew her. Heaven will be brighter place with her arrival, just as our world will be dimmer without her.

In addition to her parents, Sarah is survived by her brothers, Wesley and Chase, her grandparents, Gene and Roberta Teany of Dunnellon, Fla., and Walter and Eileen Parker of Warner Robins, Ga., and a tremendously supportive group of aunts, uncles and cousins.

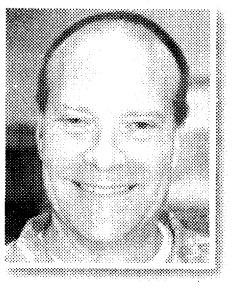
A memorial service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Follow Me Chapel, Fort Benning.

In lieu of sending flowers, the family asks that you consider giving a donation in memory of Sarah to one of the following organizations: St. Jude Children's Research Hospital (whose state-of-the-art care bought Sarah more time with her family), the Ronald McDonald House of Memphis (Sarah's home away from home for the six weeks she was receiving radiation treatment), the Alabama/Georgia Make-a-Wish Foundation (which sent Sarah and her family on a trip to Disney's Animal Kingdom), or Columbus Hospice (which helped make Sarah as comfortable as possible during her last few weeks of life).

Past doesn't have to dictate future

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (MAJ) Richard Garvey

My daughter was married recently to the man of her dreams. A new chapter in her life has begun. The wedding was great, the reception was filled with joy, laughter, friends, family, food and dancing. I think all who attended had a wonderful time.



My prayer is that they will spend a lifetime together — committed to their covenant vows to each other. As you know, approximately 50 percent of marriages end in divorce. I pray they will be among the happy and successful 50 percent!

Unfortunately, some couples begin to experience difficulties after the wedding. They married a dream and failed to prepare for life together. Some say they married too young, others say they married too fast, some say they came from a dysfunctional family, and others say they do not have much in common. Some recognize these factors after five years of marriage while it takes others longer to figure this out.

Each and every couple married because they were happy and thought by entering into a covenant relationship of marriage, things would get better, not worse. Many become disillusioned that marriage is not all rosy, but there are some thorns in this rose garden as well. What looked like a promising future is now only a mirage.

Does this sound like your marriage? Gary Chapman has a book, titled Desperate Marriages, Moving Toward Hope and Healing in your Relationship. Chapman thinks many people get trapped into believing marriage myths, which stops them from achieving the marriage they wanted in the first place.

One myth is "my environment determines my state of mind." This means if I was raised in a dysfunctional home, I will be destined to fail in my relationships too. Or if I grew up in a loving family, I will be loving in my relationships. It means you are a victim of your circumstances and that you can not change. It might sound something like this, "My life is miserable and the only way out is either death or divorce."

Our past environment has and will influence us to a large degree, but we do not have to remain enslaved to the past. It does not have to dictate how we live our lives now. The past only controls us when we allow ourselves to believe the myth that our environment determines our state of mind. Helen Keller did not let her environment stop her from living. Franklin Roosevelt did not let polio stop him from becoming president of the United States.

Will you let your past restrict your future, your marriage, your life? Or will you recognize you have the power and ability to change the future despite your environment.

In the movie, A Knight's Tale, William Thatcher changes his future from being a peasant to becoming a knight. He did not let his environment enslave him and dictate his future.

Are you believing the myth that your environment determines your state of mind?

If you are having problems in your marriage or family, take some time to sharpen your saw by stopping by our office at 2606 Dixie Road, or calling 706-545-1760 for an appointment with one of our pastoral counselors.

5K and 10K Freedom Runs, starting at 8:30 a.m. at the intersection of First Avenue and 12th Street run, or ride in a patriotic motorcycle rally, no sign-up required.

"The weather's supposed to be great: sunny skies and about 60 degrees," Lavallee said. "I've got the best food vendors coming. They're going to have fried Oreos, fried pickles, chicken on a stick ... and free popcorn and cookies from the churches. It's a great way for people in Columbus to come down and just be a part of something that celebrates the Soldier."

For retired MG Harold Bryant, who has been attending the event for the past few years, celebrating Soldiers is the best part.

"It's an inspiring day," he said, "to see these young Soldiers, to visit with them, to encourage them, to thank them. That is the most fun of the event for me.

"When you can have fun and honor our Soldiers at the same time, that's a good day."

Community support means a lot to the military, both young Soldiers and older retirees, said Bryant, a Vietnam veteran, now a board member for the annual festival.

"Everybody likes to be appreciated," he said. "To just say 'thank you for what you do,' it means a lot. And it makes you feel good to know you participated in something that's really beneficial to our country. I'll be coming back next year."

The festivities open to the community around 9:30 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. The shops and restaurants on Broadway, between Ninth and 12th streets, in uptown Columbus will be open for festival-goers to enjoy.

Raffle tickets are on sale at the GBFB office today and at the festival tomorrow for an Xbox 360 with games.

For more information, visit www.godblessfortbenning.com, drop by the office at 1106 Broadway or call CPT Carl Purgerson, post liaison for GBFB Day, at 706-545-0927.

Caring: classroom lets students share experiences

"They really don't have to worry about moving, leaving a lot of people, and their parents have jobs around the neighborhood. (By) telling them about what it's like to be an Army child, they have that knowledge of how hard it is to be an Army child and sometimes how fun it can be."

Eleven-year-old Matthew Hayes said he is excited to be writing to a pen pal.

"It's cool, because they could know what a military kid's life would be and we could know what a civilian kid's life would be," he said.

Maybe the letters will help other people know how to comfort a military child with a deployed mom or dad, and the letters will help other people know how to comfort that military child, said Matthew, who wrote about what it's like to have a parent deployed overseas.

The letters and drawings of kids in pre-kindergarten through fifth grade were mailed to students at Big Timber Elementary School in Montana Monday. The only active duty military base in the state, Malmstrom Air Force Base, is three hours away.

> (By) telling them about what it's like to be an Army child, they have that knowledge of how hard it is to be an Army child and sometimes how fun it can be.
> — Breeanna Townsend

Even if there isn't a military installation there, Soldiers come from all over, said Phyllis Parker, principal at McBride. Connecting civilian and military students helps both groups better understand each other.

"Civilian children (can) learn about the lifestyles of military families, the challenges, the accomplishments, the rewards," Parker said. "And make the comparison: what do we have in common, what's the biggest difference?"

Parker said she thinks the students may be surprised how much they have in common.

"In terms of just growing up in America as a fifth-grader, a fourth-grader, I don't think there's going to be a whole lot of difference. And that's the part I want them to see as they start to correspond with this other school," she said.

The students will hear back from their pen pals next week.

Breeanna and Matthew are both looking forward to getting their letters, they said.

"It's going to be really neat having someone way across America talking to me," Breeanna said. "I've never been to Montana and never had any friends from Montana. I can't explain it, but it's going to be really fun. I can't wait."

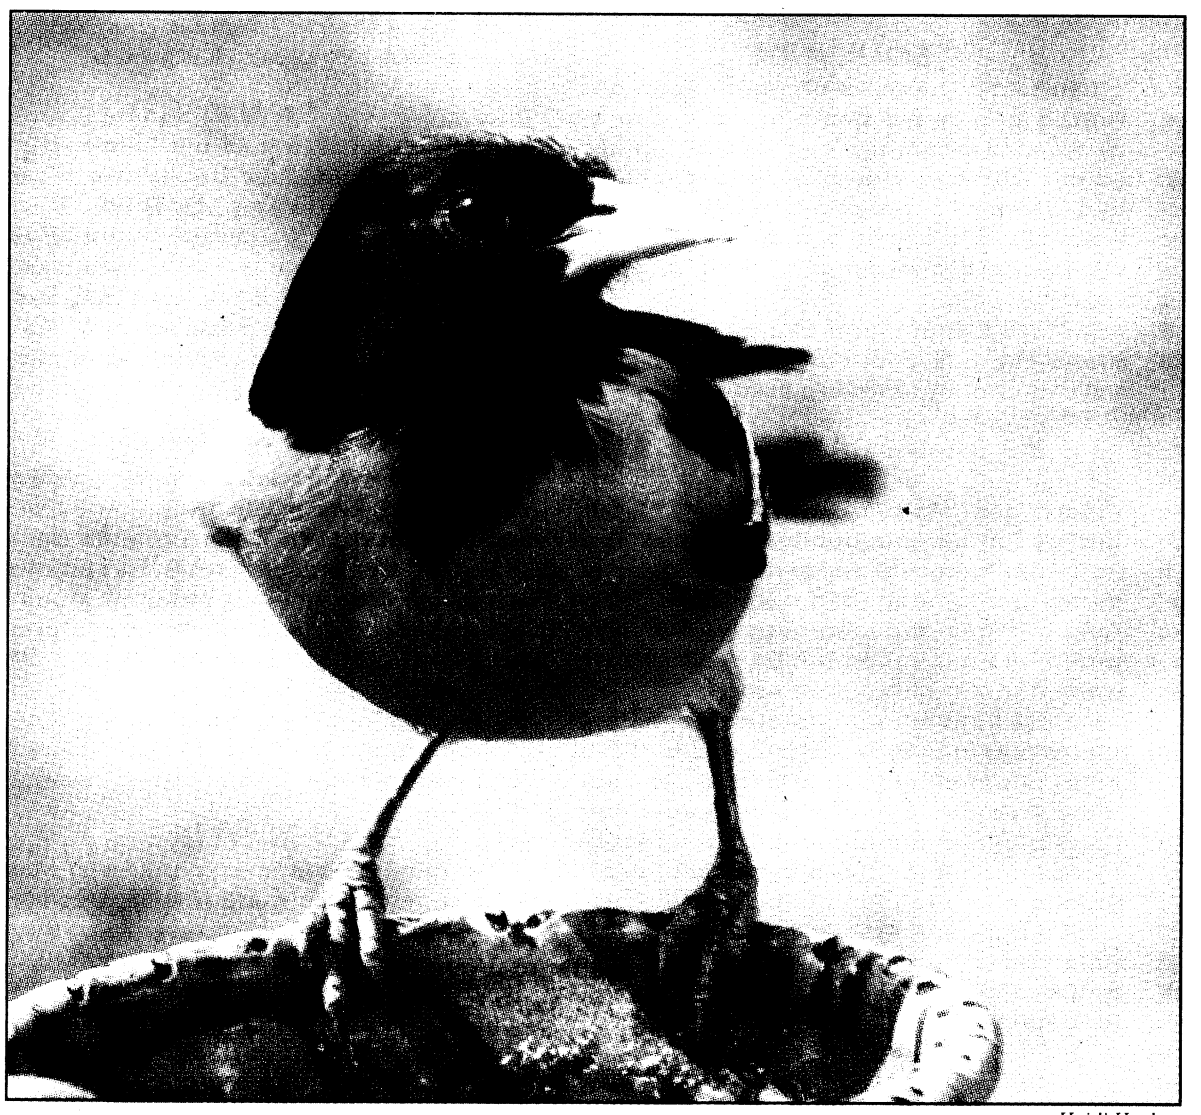
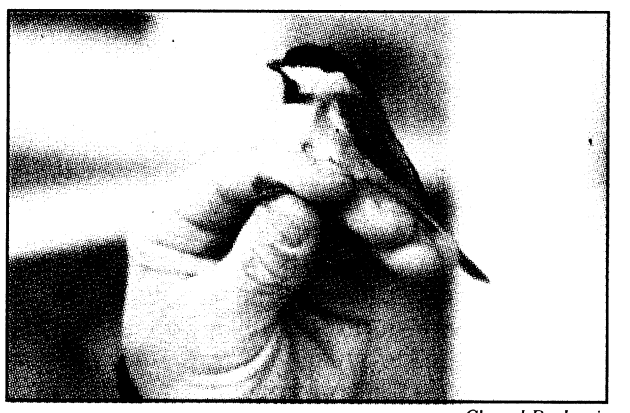
A bird in the hand



Heidi Hughes

Baltimore Orioles will come to feeders full of grape jelly during migration.



Cheryl Rodewig

This Carolina Chickadee, which weighed less than 10 grams, was caught in a net Saturday at Oxbow Meadows. After Charlie Muise, the coordinator for the Georgia Important Bird Area Program, banded the bird, it was released. After being banded and released, the birds often fly to nearby trees to preen their feathers, Muise said.

Heidi Hughes

Oxbow Meadows focuses on wild birds, animals

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Bird watching is a serious hobby at Oxbow Meadows. With a little patience and a good pair of binoculars you can spot gold finches, doves, mockingbirds, cardinals and more. You don't even have to venture far into the trails. The birds often circulate in the trees around the environmental learning center or rest at one of the many nearby feeders.

Saturday morning, bird enthusiasts gathered at the center for an up-close look at the feathered wildlife. Charlie Muise, coordinator of the Georgia Important Bird Area Program, banded different birds during the workshop, "A Bird in the Hand is Worth Two in the Bush."

Banding birds helps people keep track of specific birds in the area and changes in the population over time. The public can get involved in banding birds by taking classes at Oxbow Meadows that will start after the New Year.

But they don't have to wait to get started on bird watching, the second fastest growing hobby in the country, said Heidi Hughes, Oxbow Meadows executive director.

Birds are everywhere and readily available for watching by people of all ages. Just spending an afternoon catching glimpses of these interesting animals "makes your world richer," said Hughes, a long-time bird watcher.

"It's mesmerizing," she said. "You never know what you're going to see. You never know what they are going to do. It's absolutely breathtaking — the color, the movement, the natural beauty of birds. People call them feathered jewels. ... And there's just something about watching other living things that lowers your blood pressure, makes you feel good."

To bring these winged creatures to your own backyard, Hughes suggests a bird bath, feeder and nest boxes. You just might be rewarded with an impromptu chorus, she said.

"Watching birds isn't just with the eyes," Hughes said. "There are a lot of times when you won't see them, but you will hear them. In the summer if you have the windows open, the dawn chorus of birds is something you will never forget."

Some bird experts can identify birds by their unique calls, Hughes said.

For those of us who can't name birds by sight or sound, there are guides to identifying local birds available for loan at the center. Borrow a pair of binoculars and a checklist, and you can mark off the different types of birds you sight during your visit.

During a stroll through the wetlands, you may also sight one of the more than 250 species of animals that call the meadows home — anything from butterflies to bobcats.

The animals you see will hide everywhere on these 1,600 acres, in the grass, the trees, the water and the air, but they won't be in cages, Hughes said.

"We're going to immerse you in nature," she said. "Instead of what traditional nature centers do — 'show and tell' — we're doing 'get your hands dirty.'"

Oxbow always has something going on. The next program will be at 10 a.m. Dec. 13: "Managing the Red-cockaded Woodpecker Populations at Fort Benning."

Another bird workshop will be at 2 p.m. Dec. 14. Just when other birds are migrating south, a wild bird expert will explain how to attract different kinds of birds even in the winter.

The learning center and trails are open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children 10 and younger.

The center will be closed Saturday, Sunday and Nov. 27-30, but the trails will remain open during daylight.

Oxbow Meadows Environmental Park is located at 3535 South Lumpkin Road, Columbus. For more information, call 706-687-4090.

Heidi Hughes

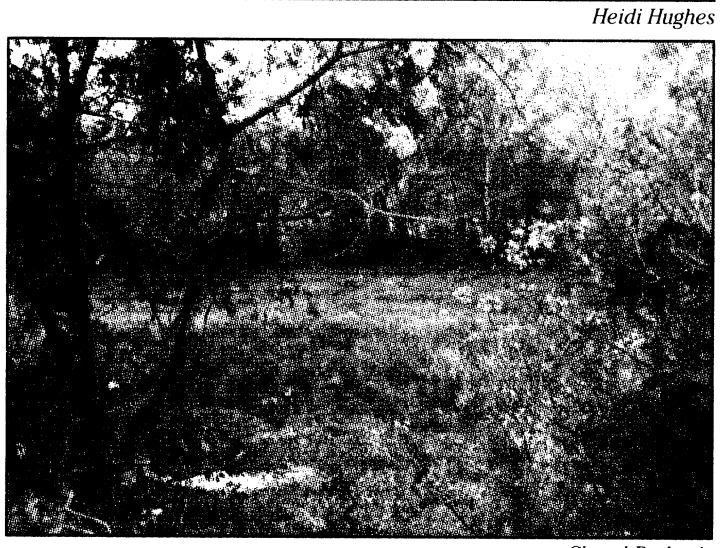
Chipping Sparrows are one of more than a dozen kinds of sparrows that regularly visit the feeders at Oxbow Meadows Environmental Park.

Heidi Hughes



Cheryl Rodewig

Now that the cages, many which housed birds of prey, have been removed, visitors can glimpse this view of the wetlands, previously hidden from sight.

Infantry Center Band to perform holiday concert

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Infantry Center Band will have their annual holiday concert, Sounds of the Season, at 2 and 4 p.m. Dec 7 at the RiverCenter for Performing Arts. Both shows are free and open to the public.

In previous years, the band only gave one performance and had to turn away people because of a full house of almost 2,000 guests, said CW4 Fred Catchings, USAIC band commander. That's why this year, they will have two performances.

"People make it a tradition to come to our concert and we hate to turn anyone away," he said. "This a good way for people to get in the holiday spirit before the holidays come."

The 45-person ensemble will perform traditional carols and contemporary pieces, Catchings said. There will also be vocal pieces and a Christmas sing-along for the audience. And Santa Claus will stop by for a visit.

"I don't want to tell you exactly what pieces we are playing — I want there to be some surprises," he said.

The ensemble has been practicing since September for the concert. Each year tickets go fast, so the earlier people get tickets the better, Catchings said.

The concert is free, but tickets are required. Concertgoers are allowed a maximum of four tickets. To get tickets, go to the RiverCenter box office any time between 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday or send an order form in (see C5) by Monday. The box office will offer tickets until they are gone. Doors will open 30 minutes prior to each performance. For more information, call the box office at 706-256-3612.

BOLT

For super-dog Bolt, every day is filled with adventure, danger and intrigue at least until the cameras stop rolling.

When the star of a hit TV show is accidentally shipped from his Hollywood soundstage to New York City, he begins his biggest adventure yet: a cross-country journey through the real world. Armed only with the delusions that all his amazing feats and powers are real, and with the help of two unlikely traveling companions: a jaded, abandoned housecat named Mittens and a TV-obsessed hamster in a plastic ball named Rhino, Bolt discovers he doesn't need superpowers to be a hero.

TWILIGHT

Bella Swan has always been different, never caring about fitting in with the trendy girls at her Phoenix high school. When her mother re-marries and sends Bella to live with her father in the rainy little town of Forks, Wash., she doesn't expect much of anything to change. Then she meets the mysterious and dazzlingly beautiful Edward Cullen, a boy unlike any she's ever met. Edward is a vampire, but he doesn't have fangs and his family is unique in that they choose not to drink human blood.

Intelligent and witty, Edward sees straight into Bella's soul. Soon, they are swept up in an unorthodox romance. To Edward, Bella is what he has waited 90 years for – a soul mate. But the closer they get, the more Edward must struggle to resist the primal pull of her scent, which could send him into an uncontrollable frenzy. But what will Edward & Bella do when a clan of new vampires — James, Laurent and Victoria — come to town and threaten to disrupt their way of life?

ALSO PLAYING

QUANTUM OF SOLACE

Betrayed by Vesper, the woman he loved, 007 fights the urge to make his latest mission personal. Pursuing his determination to uncover the truth, Bond and M interrogate Mr. White who reveals the organization which blackmailed Vesper is more complex and dangerous than anyone had imagined.

Forensic intelligence links an Mi6 traitor to a bank account in Haiti where a case of mistaken identity introduces Bond to the beautiful but feisty Camille, a woman who has her own vendetta. Camille leads Bond straight to Dominic Greene, a ruthless business man and major force within the mysterious organization.

On a mission that leads him to Austria, Italy and South America, Bond discovers that Greene, conspiring to take total control of one of the world's most important natural resources, is forging a deal with the exiled General Medrano. Using his associates in the organization, and manipulating his powerful contacts within the CIA and the British government, Greene promises to overthrow the existing regime in a Latin American country, giving the general control of the country in exchange for a seemingly barren piece of land.

In a minefield of treachery, murder and deceit, Bond allies with old friends in a battle to uncover the truth. As he gets closer to finding the man responsible for the betrayal of Vesper, 007 must keep one step ahead of the CIA, the terrorists and even M, to unravel Greene's sinister plan and stop his organization.

Quantum of Solace stars Daniel Craig as Bond, Judi Dench as M, Olga Kurylenko as Camille and Jesper Christensen as White. It's rated PG-13 for violence, action and sexual content.

SOUL MEN

Two former backup soul singers, Louis and Floyd who have not spoken to each other in 20 years reluctantly agree to travel across the country together to a reunion concert to honor their recently deceased lead singer. Cleo, a beautiful young woman who is believed to be Floyd's daughter, accompanies them as a new singer.

Samuel L. Jackson stars as Louis and Bernie Mac stars as Floyd. Soul Men is rated R for language and sexual content including nudity.

MADAGASCAR: ESCAPE 2 AFRICA

Alex, Marty, Melman, Gloria, King Julien, Maurice, the penguins and the chimps find themselves marooned on the distant shores of Madagascar. In the face of this obstacle, the New Yorkers have hatched a plan so crazy it just might work. With military precision, the penguins have repaired an old crashed plane—sort of.

Once aloft, this unlikely crew stays airborne just long enough to make it to the wildest place of all — the vast plains of Africa, where the members of our zoo-raised crew encounter species of their own kind for the very first time. Africa seems like a great place — but is it better than their Central Park home?

Ben Stiller, Chris Rock, David Schwimmer, Jada Pinkett Smith, Sacha Baron Cohen and Cedric the Entertainer, star in the movie. Madagascar: Escape to Africa is rated PG for crude humor.

ZACK AND MIRI MAKE A PORNO

Two lifelong, platonic friends, strapped for cash and in debt, decide to make a porno.

The movie stars Seth Rogen as Zack and Elizabeth Banks as Miri Linky.

Zack and Miri Make a Porno is rated R for sexual content, nudity and language.

THE HAUNTING OF MOLLY HARTLEY

A teenage girl discovers her parents made a pact with the devil to save her life. When the devil comes to collect, terrible things begin to happen and she must figure out if and how she can save herself.

Haley Bennett stars as Molly, Jake Weber as Robert, Chace Crawford is Joseph, Shanna Collins is Alexis and Shannon Marie Woodward is Leah.

The Haunting of Molly Hartley is rated PG-13 for violence and terror, brief strong language and teen drinking.

HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL 3: SENIOR YEAR

This third film in the High School Musical series follows teens Troy and Gabriella through the trials of their senior year. Faced with the prospect of separation upon departing for college, they stage an elaborate spring muscial reflecting their experiences, hopes and fears. The entire Wildcat crew joins in the muscial fun.

High School Musical 3 stars Zac Efron, Vanessa Hudgens and Ashley Tisdale. It is rated G.

SAW V

In the fifth installment of this horror series, Hoffman finds himself the last survivor left to carry on the Jigsaw legacy. Or is he? When Hoffman's secret is threatened, he must go on the hunt to eliminate any remaining loose ends.

Saw V stars Laura Gordon, Tobin Bell, Scott Patterson and Costas Mandylor. It is rated R for sequences of violence and torture, language and nudity.

MAX PAYNE

Max Payne is a maverick cop — a mythic antihero — determined to track down those responsible for the brutal murders of his family and partner. Hell-bent on revenge, his obsessive investigation takes him on a nightmare journey into a dark underworld. As the mystery deepens, Max is forced to battle enemies beyond the natural world and face an unthinkable betrayal.

Max Payne stars Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis and Beau Bridges. It's rated PG-13 for violence, drug content, sexuality and language.

QUARANTINE

For a reality TV show about people who work while the rest of the world is asleep, reporter Angela Vidal (Jennifer Carpenter) and cameraman Scott (Steve Harris) are assigned to cover a night shift with a pair of firemen at a Los Angeles fire station. A 911-distress call in the middle of the night takes them to a small apartment building downtown. Police officers are already on the scene in response to screams coming from a third floor apartment. Having stumbled onto a breaking story, Angela and Scott are determined to get it all on tape. When they attempt to leave the complex, they find the CDC has quarantined the building.

Telephone, Internet, TV and cell phone access have been cut off. The apartment complex and its residents quickly descend into panic. Trying to make sense of what's happening, the inhabitants are forced to look to each other for help. Then the attacks begin.

Quarantine is rated R for violent and disturbing

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Johnson wins third title

Jimmie Johnson cruised to his third straight NASCAR Sprint Cup championship Nov. 16 at Homestead-Miami Speedway. Although Carl Edwards won the race, he didn't have enough points to challenge Johnson for the title.

Johnson joined seven other drivers, including Richard Petty and Dale Earnhardt, to win three or more series championships.

HOF coach dies

Pete Newell, 93, died Nov. 17 in Rancho Santa Fe, Calif.

Newell coached for 14 years at San Francisco, Michigan State and California. Doctors urged him to retire because of the emotional toll it took on him.

His last job was at the 1960 Olympic Games, where he coached the team to a gold medal.

Owner in hot water

Mark Cuban, billionaire owner of the Dallas Mavericks, is being accused of insider trading by federal regulators.

Cuban allegedly got a tip in 2004 that Momma.com Inc., a company he had a six percent ownership in, was going to be sold below the market price and that he allegedly sold all his shares because of this tip.

It remains to be seen if Cuban will face criminal charges, which would be determined by the U.S. Attorney in Dallas.

BCS unchanged

The top five spots in the Bowl College Series remained the same after a pretty uneventful weekend. Alabama remained in the top spot, followed by Texas Tech, Texas, Florida and Oklahoma.

The Series could get a shake-up this weekend when Texas Tech plays at Oklahoma at 8 p.m. Saturday. Tech will have to get the win, especially if Graham Harrell, QB for Tech wants to remain in the Heisman chase.

MLB news

The San Francisco Giants' Tim Lincecum won the National League's Cy Young award, and Cleveland Indian Cliff Lee received the American League's Cy Young honor.

It was no surprise that Tampa Bay Rays' Joe Maddon was named the AL Manager of the Year. I was a bit surprised that Lou Piniella, Chicago Cubs' manager, won it for the NL. Maybe the voters liked his Aquafina commercials or they were afraid he would argue if he didn't win.

MVPs announced

The major league baseball season has been over for a few weeks now, but the awards are still coming.

Albert Pujols, first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, was named the National League's Most Valuable Player. Dustin Pedroia, second baseman for the Boston Red Sox, won the AL MVP. He was a shoe-in after winning both a Gold Glove and Silver Slugger award.

Army (in black) and Air Force rugby team players attempt to gain possession of the ball on an inbound throw during the first match of the 2008 Armed Forces Rugby Championships. The Air Force won the matchup 44-3.

Air Force wins rugby title

THE BAYONET

The Air Force claimed its fifth consecutive Armed Forces Rugby Championship Thursday on Stewart-Watson Field defeating the Navy 37-8.

Air Force advanced to the championship match by posting a 4-0 record in the round-robin tournament while the Navy posted a 3-1 record to make it to the championship matchup. Navy's only loss during regular tournament play came at the hands of Air Force, losing 26-6 in their first match.

In their march to the championship, the Air Force posted decisive wins over the Army (44-3) and Marines (76-0) on day one of the championships. On the second day of competition, the Air Force defeated the Navy (26-6) and the Coast Guard (66-3) to move into the championship match.

SPORTS BRIEFS

ON POST

$25 BOUNTY SUSPENDED

The $25 bounty paid to hunters who harvest feral pigs has been suspended until further notice.

YOUTH SPORTS REGISTRATION

Wrestling registration for children ages 4 to 15 takes place through Dec. 30. The cost is $40. Registration is at the Child, Youth and School Age Service Central Registration office, Building 104, on Marchant Street. For more information, call 706-545-3582.

HARVEST REPORTING

Hunters are reminded that all deer, turkeys, hogs, doves, squirrels and quail harvested on Fort Benning must be reported using the TELTRACK Hunter Control System by calling 706-545-8387 and selecting menu item number 4.

EAR TAGS

Auburn University is conducting a study of the feral pigs on Fort Benning to understand their population size, reproductive rates, movement patterns and food habits. This information will help determine what impacts feral pigs have on habitat, wildlife populations and military training.

Pig hunters, please report the ear tag number, ear tag color, date harvested and general location of harvest to the Conservation Branch.

Several pigs have been fitted with radio-tracking collars to help determine habitat use. Please attempt to identify and avoid harvesting collared pigs. If a collared pig is harvested or found, please return the collar to the Conservation Branch, First Division Road, Building 5884, Harmony Church.

For more information, call 706-544-7079.

FLY FISHING FOR VETS

The nonprofit organization Fly Fishing for Vets will provide fly fishing excursions for Soldiers wounded in combat.

The all-expenses-paid trip includes fishing lessons, equipment and lodging. The Soldier's spouse will be treated to a day at the spa. The trip is available to active-duty, Reserve and National Guard Soldiers assigned to the Warrior Transition Battalion.

For information, call Ken Griffin at 678-993-9896 or Darlene Hines at 706-545-9636.

OFF POST

FREEDOM RUN

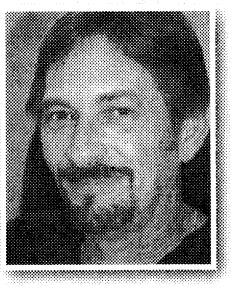
God Bless Fort Benning will host a 5K and 10K Freedom Run Saturday in downtown Columbus. Registration will begin at 7 a.m.

The race will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the intersection of 1st Avenue and 12th Street. The cost is $10 for active-duty Soldiers, $15 for students and $17 for other runners registered before Monday. The cost is $20 for all runners who register the day of the race.

To pre-register or for more information, go to www.godblessfortbenning.com or call 706-505-1358.

Getting the itch, feeling Favre-like

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler



Several months ago, the talk of the NFL was Brett Favre's "getting the itch" to play football again after announcing his retirement from football — and the Green Bay Packers.

A couple of weeks ago I got the itch again while watching the 12- to 13-year-old Fort Benning Bengals play at Doughboy Stadium.

Watching the Bengals reminded me of my first coaching experience at Fort Benning in 1990.

Actually, it was difficult to have to concentrate on covering the game rather than dissecting the offense and defense and "game-planning" the second half — but, as difficult as it was, I remained focused on just taking notes and photos.

After coaching teams at Fort Benning from 1990 to 1996, I coached for a couple more years in north Georgia, but after taking on a position as the sports editor of the local paper, I felt it would be unfair to the players and team to continue coaching if I could not give them 100 percent of my undivided attention, so I kind of retired for eight years.

But Saturday, I felt the urge to coach again.

Like most of the coaches I know, coaching really has nothing to do with the necessary evils of winning and losing, it is about taking young athletes and teaching them the game commensurate with their age level and giving them a good base to progress to the next level.

Coaching at the youth level takes a lot of patience, especially when it comes to helping players overcome some of their inner fears — like the fear of failure and disappointment.

In football, a game where every play is emotionally charged, teaching players to overcome the adversity of one bad play is much like teaching a child how to overcome a bad life decision — you learn from it, remember what you did wrong and don't do it again — then let it go and move on.

I have found that the person who is the hardest on the players are the players themselves, but by the time the season concludes with the end of the year banquet, all the players remember are the good things that happened during the season — which is a good thing.

And, by the time the next year and another season rolls around, players get the itch to be out on the field playing again regardless of the wins and losses from the year before.

As it is in life, it matters not where you begin, but where you finish. Life will have its ups and downs — its wins and losses — it is how you handle those wins and losses that will ultimately make the most difference in how you fare in the game of life.

It is said, "if you have an itch, scratch it." I probably will next year, and I hope the players I saw compete on Saturday will as well.

Even if they decide to follow a future outside of athletics they will have a firm base to grow from in the game of life — the game that really matters.

Columbus Cottonmouths take down Twin City Cyclones, 4-3

Cottonmouths take on FireAntz today

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Columbus Cottonmouths defeated the Twin City Cyclones, 4-3, Sunday at Columbus Civic Center.

The Cyclones gained control of the puck to begin the game, but Columbus stole it away and with 18:10 remaining in the first period Cottonmouth Tim Green scored the first goal of the game and Columbus took the lead, 1-0. Offensively, neither team was successful in scoring during the remainder of the first period, giving Columbus a 1-0 lead at the end of the period.

At 12:57, Cottonmouth Daryl Moor scored, giving the Cottonmouths a one-goal lead over the Cyclones at 2-1.

Before the end of the second period, Cottonmouth Ryan McCarthy scored a goal, followed by a score from Cyclone Allan Sirois, giving Columbus a 3-2 lead at the end of the second period.

With 14:41 to go in the final period, Cottonmouth Andrew Dwyer picked up a score and less than two minutes later, the Cyclones scored a goal, but were unable to pick up any more goals, securing the victory for the Cottonmouths, 4-3. Cottonmouth goalie Ian Vigier blocked 32 of 35 shots in the game.

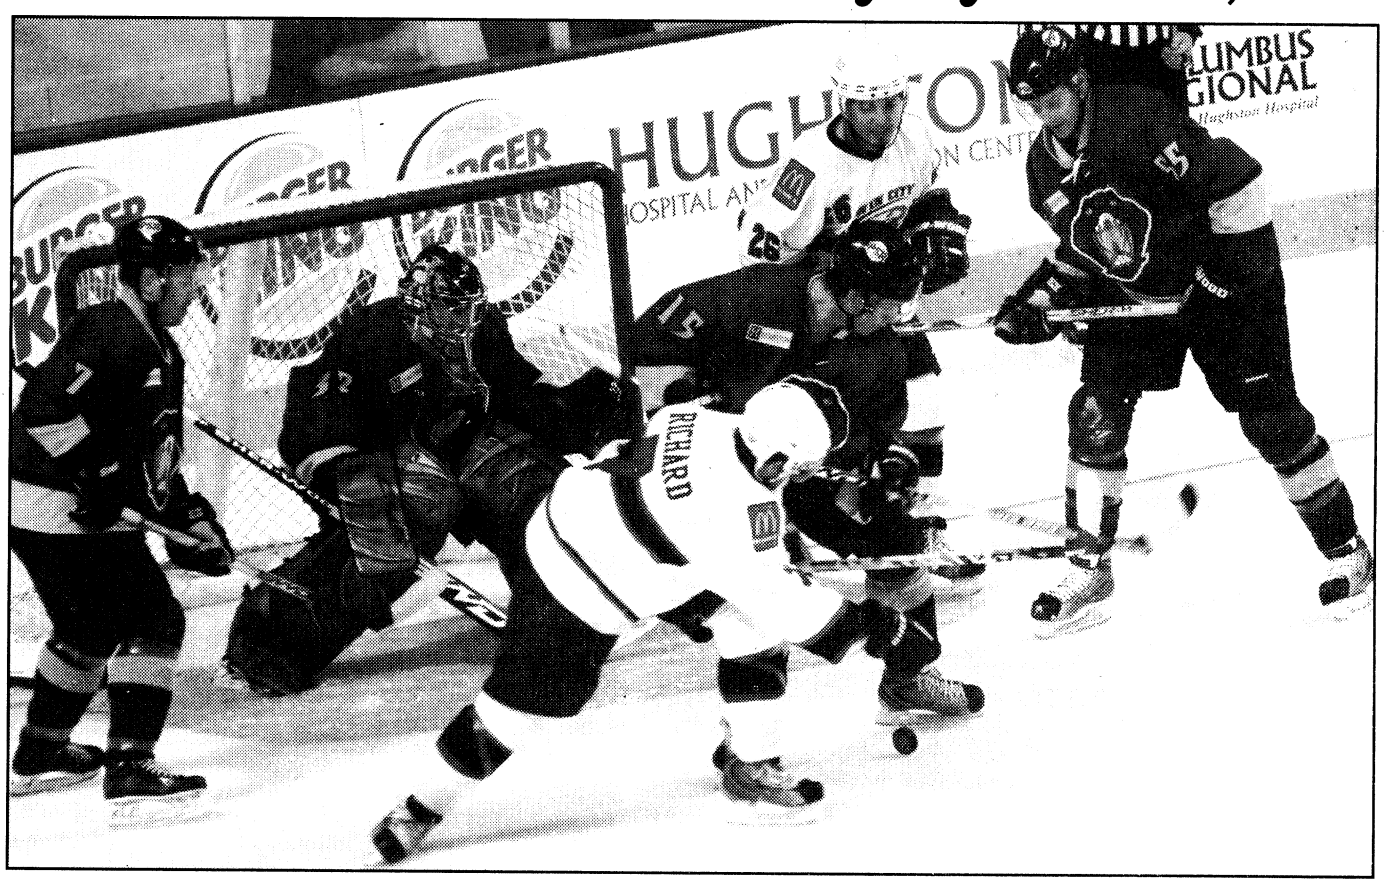
"I think overall it was a good game and we played well," said right wing forward Mark Stockdale. "We worked as a team and took the win."

Head coach Jerome Bechard said the team played "pretty good."

"I think we played fairly well defensively," he said.

Columbus has a 4-3-1 record.

The Cottonmouths will take on the Fayetteville FireAntz at 7:30 p.m. today at the Columbus Civic Center.



Rachel L. Watkins
Cyclone Michael Richard and Cottonmouth Tyler Johnson struggle to gain control of the puck as other players watch. The Cottonmouths defeated the Twin City Cyclones 4-3.

Tickets cost $12 to $22. Military and college students with ID get $3 off (upper level seats only).

To purchase tickets, go to www.cottonmouths.com or purchase tickets at the door the day of the event. For more information, call 706-571-0086.

Bulldogs defeat Wildcats, finish season undefeated

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

The Fort Benning youth services 6- to 8-year-old Bulldogs flag football team concluded their season Saturday on Blue Field taking a 14-0 victory over the Wildcats to remain unbeaten at 8-0 for the 2008 season.

Neither team found a way to score during the first half with both teams' defense digging in to stop the opposing offense.

The tone of a tough defensive struggle continued into the third quarter until the game turned on a 60-yard interception return by Bulldog Tre Addy late in the third quarter to give the Bulldogs a 7-0 lead.

Addy added another 60-yard touchdown run on the Bulldogs first possession of the fourth quarter to ice the game — and a perfect season, for the Bulldogs.

"At halftime I told the team to focus on what they had been taught, the fundamentals and the things we had taught them throughout the season," head coach Larry Addy said. "They did that in the second half."

Addy said the key to the team's unbeaten season was continued improvement.

"I saw a lot of improvement during the year," Addy said. "We had three first-timers and they caught on mid-season, so during the last game I saw a lot of improvement from the team since the beginning of the season."

Following the game, when asked about how his team responded to going undefeated, Addy added, "They were happy, but they were excited about going to Little Caesars for an end-of-season pizza party."

To the victor go the spoils, especially when the victor has an undefeated season.

John W. Peeler

Tre Addy races 60 yards following his interception of a Wildcat pass for the game's first touchdown. Addy later added another touchdown run in the Bulldogs 14-0 win. With the victory, the Bulldogs remained undefeated to finish the season at 8-0 in the 6- to 8-year-old youth services flag football league.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

This week, I want to talk about a subject that goes hand in hand with the article I wrote about fat, and that's cholesterol.

I know everyone has heard the mantra for healthful eating, "eat a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet." But, maybe you're not sure what cholesterol really is and how it affects the body.

Two weeks ago, I talked about the good and bad fats in your diet. This week, I want to do the same with cholesterol and how it ties in with fats. Fat and cholesterol go hand in hand because cholesterol is found among fats circulating in your bloodstream and in all of your body's cells.

So, for most people, the mix of fats in the diet will have a great influence on the cholesterol levels in the bloodstream. You get cholesterol from animal products such as meat, poultry, fish, eggs, butter, cheese, and whole and 2 percent milk, so you need to watch your diet as well as fats.

I am going to get into a little chemistry here — but don't drift off, it's important.

Fat and cholesterol can't dissolve in water or blood. The body gets around this basic chemistry problem by packaging fat and cholesterol into tiny, protein-covered particles called lipoproteins. Although lipoproteins can carry quite a bit of fat, they mix easily with blood and flow with it. Some of these particles are big and fluffy, others, small and dense. The most important ones are low-density lipoproteins, high-density lipoproteins, and triglycerides.

Let me explain the difference in these.

Low-density Lipoproteins (LDL) are what we refer to as the "bad" cholesterol. Low-density lipoproteins carry cholesterol from the liver to the rest of the body. Cells latch onto these particles and extract fat and cholesterol from them. When there is too much LDL cholesterol in the blood, these particles can form deposits in the walls of the coronary arteries and other arteries throughout the body. Such deposits, called plaque, can narrow arteries and limit blood flow, a condition known as atherosclerosis.

If a blood clot forms from this plaque build up, it can cause a heart attack or stroke. So for good health keep your LDL low — below 100mg/dL. (I will explain this measurement for you later.)

High-density lipoproteins (HDL) are what we refer to as "good" cholesterol. HDL picks up the cholesterol from the bloodstream, from LDL, and from artery walls and carries it back to the liver where it is then removed from your body.

Think of HDL as the garbage trucks of the bloodstream. High levels of HDL actually protect you from heart attacks, while low levels of HDL can increase your risk for heart disease. It's best to keep your HDL levels higher than 60mg/dL.

An easy way to remember these is that you want "high" levels of HDL and "low" levels of LDL — High goes with H and low goes with L.

Triglycerides make up most of the fat that you eat and that travels through the bloodstream. Triglycerides are important to good health because they are the main vehicle for transporting fats to cells. However, people who have high levels of triglycerides, have low levels of "good" cholesterol — and remember, you want high levels of HDL (good cholesterol).

In general, the lower your LDL and the higher your HDL, the better your chances of preventing heart disease and other chronic conditions.

Now how do you get your cholesterol checked and what do all those numbers and letters mean?

Well, the most accurate way to measure your cholesterol levels is to have your blood drawn and do a complete blood test or a fasting lipoprotein profile. This will give you your total blood cholesterol level, your HDL cholesterol level, your LDL cholesterol level, and your triglyceride level. This test gives you your cholesterol levels in milligrams per deciliter of blood or mg/dL.

You must also factor in things such as age, family history, smoking and high blood pressure. You can visit www.americanheart.org and see what the recommended levels are, and what they mean.

Its important to remember that adults should have their cholesterol levels tested at least once every five years.

Cholesterol is one of those things that is a silent killer. Even if your levels are high — you may not feel sick. That's why you should get your levels checked regularly.

More than 10,000 Soldiers, civilians, veterans and family members turned out for the seventh annual God Bless Fort Benning Day Saturday in uptown Columbus.

"I've been around a few years and a few places, and there is not a better hometown for Fort Benning," said the post Commanding General MG Michael D. Barbero. "This is God Bless Fort Benning Day, but we are blessed every day. We are home to the best Soldiers in the world, our great Army Families and Army kids. We also get to live in the best community there is, the most supportive, that genuinely loves its Army and its Soldiers."

Community members showed their love by giving out free popcorn, cookies, back rubs and hugs to local service members.

"I've never seen anything like it," said 2LT Drew Hansen, here for the Infantry Officer Basic Course. "This is my first time, especially in Columbus, getting to know the people. They're just very kind, very open, very warm. It's fun to come here and have a place where you know no one's going to judge you for the job you do. Just to talk to people and know that we're appreciated ... I definitely like it."

This is the last bit of home Hansen will see before he deploys to Iraq in January.

The outpouring of community support at God Bless Fort Benning Day reassured him that he made the right choice in joining the

Infantry Hall staff prepares to move

Fort Benning employees and Soldiers who work in Infantry Hall will be moving soon. As part of the first phase of a $116 million, three-year renovation project that will transform Infantry Hall into the Maneuver Center of Excellence Headquarters, all offices located in the tower of Infantry Hall will move to temporary locations beginning in December. This first phase of moves is scheduled for completion by May 2009.

"It's an extremely complex project that will take a lot of attention to detail, a lot of teamwork, and a lot of cooperation by everyone concerned," said Mike Quirion, project planner for the Maneuver Center.

Quirion said good organization will be key in ensuring successful moves.

Warrior Transition Battalion celebrates Thanksgiving

Turkey, songs and giving thanks were on the menu when Soldiers assigned to the Warrior Transition Battalion gathered with their families for WTB's annual Thanksgiving luncheon Monday at the Uchee Creek activity center.

"Some of the Soldiers probably didn't even get a good, home-cooked Thanksgiving meal last year, so we want to provide that for them today," said luncheon organizer SFC Bridgette Vickers of the WTB.

Students from Muscogee Elementary School created Thanksgiving artwork to decorate the activity center, and students from Mt. Olive Elementary School performed patriotic songs.

"I'm excited for us to perform in front of the Soldiers and make them feel more at home," said Mt. Olive fourth-grader Zaria Wiltshire. "I want them to know that fourth- and fifth-grade students at Mt. Olive really have the courage to make people happy."

For many Soldiers, the luncheon provided valuable time to connect with fellow Soldiers.

"Fellowship with other Soldiers is the best thing about this," said SPC Lee Arn. "We only see each other once or twice a day, so this gives us a bit of time to get

Trees for Troops to give away 730 Christmas trees

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

Trees for Troops, a program started by the Christmas Spirit Foundation, will provide 16,000 donated trees from 29 states to military installations across the U.S. and overseas.

Fort Benning will get 730 of those trees.

The Directorate of Morale, Welfare and Recreation will give away the trees from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dec. 8 at the parking lot across from Java Café on Gaudette Street. If there are any trees left at the end of the day, they will be available at 8 a.m. Dec. 9.

"Some of our families and Soldiers can't afford to purchase a live Christmas tree, so this gives them the opportunity to get one for free," said Darlene Hines, outdoor recreation specialist of DFMWR.

"The cost of a tree can be $50 or more. This will save families money so they can either save the extra money or spend it on other things like holiday food or presents."

With the economy nowadays, saving money is important, Hines said.

This is the fourth year of the program at Fort Benning.

The program is on a first-come, first-served basis so the earlier you come in the day, the better pick you'll have, Hines said. Most of the bigger trees are the first to go.

All active-duty Soldiers and family members are eligible to receive one tree per family.

Since 2005, the program has delivered 34,000 trees to more than 40 U.S. military installations and units overseas.

Tree netting will be available and volunteers will be there to assist people. Refreshments will be served and teddy bears will be given out, donated by FedEx, while supplies last.

An active-duty military ID or family ID is required. For more information, call 706-545-9636.

MESSAGE FROM THE TOP

Safety initiatives reduce number of accidents

CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE ARMY

Through a renewed emphasis on safety by our leaders and Soldiers, and the implementation of safety program improvements and initiatives targeted at leading accident causal factors, Army achieved significant accident reductions in fiscal 2008. Overall, accident fatalities were down 16 percent. Our Army experienced a significant reduction in on-duty mishaps and our serious aviation flight accident rate decreased by 52 percent.

We all appreciate that one accident is one too many, and we have a long way to go in reducing accidents, but we need to stop and recognize the tremendous efforts being made across the Army, and that these efforts are saving lives and reducing pain and suffering.

However, driving fatalities — again the leading cause of accidental deaths, accounting for 62 percent of accident-related fatalities — increased 17 percent from fiscal 2007.

The lives of 126 Soldiers were lost to privately owned vehicle accidents in fiscal 2008. Motorcycle accidents contributed to over 40 percent of that number. The major causes of motorcycle accidents are excessive speed and failure to follow published procedures or violation of established standards. We have got to find a way to get through to our Soldiers — particularly those in the 32-and-younger age bracket — to stop the indiscipline and high risk behavior behind many of these fatalities.

As we begin fiscal 2009, I ask that you take another look at the Army's safety objectives.

• Approximately 75 percent of our fiscal 2008 accidental fatalities occurred off-duty. While sustaining our on-duty accident prevention efforts, we need to target our loss prevention programs on off-duty accidents, primarily toward motor vehicle accidents.

• We must improve the Army's safety climate and culture. The U.S. Army Combat Readiness/Safety Center has developed some great tools — including the Army Readiness Assessment Program as well as Individual and Leader Accident Risk Assessments — to assess climate and culture.

Use your command safety professionals and the Combat Readiness/Safety Center and develop plans to fill any gaps in your command's safety climate and culture.

• Every leader must take a holistic look at his or her command environment and find ways to influence our Soldiers, their family members, civilian and contractor employees to use risk management — on, and especially off-duty. Get creative. Look to families and the community to help us save lives. Our Soldiers are our most valued assets and preventable losses impact our formations every day.

While Soldiers have clearly taken greater responsibility for their personal safety, as well as the safety of their fellow brothers in arms, leaders must continue to stay engaged in their Soldiers' lives to affect smart decision-making.

OPINION

VARIOUS VOICES

What is your favorite part of Thanksgiving?

It's just family time — and catering to the community for those who are less fortunate. We go to the homeless shelters and feed the homeless to expose our children to what it's like not to have the basic necessities of life.

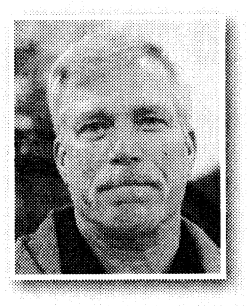
— CPT Jamal De Saussure
13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion

Family. You get to catch up on the year that you missed. Being in the military, you don't (often) get to see family. I have a 17-month-old, and during the week, I don't see her that much. I get four days — four days — with her.

— Melissa Cramer
Family member

Spending time with people you care about, like my fiance. It's quality time. Just the very presence of each other is good enough — the little things.

— PFC Soyini Stewart
Warrior Transition Battalion



I enjoy having the family get together. It is the one time of the year we have the big spread. It's probably the only time of year I'll eat pumpkin pie. It's a different setting, reflecting on years past.

— Retired MSG Richard Reed
Midland, Ga.

Football. We play three NFL games during Thanksgiving. This year, my whole family is getting together. The men sit around and watch football. It's a bonding experience.

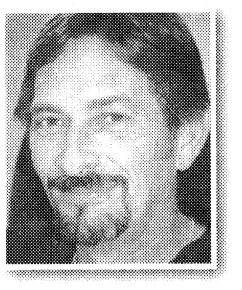
Every day is Thanksgiving Day

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

For many, the Thanksgiving holidays are a time to take a break from the normal rigors of life and work, get together with family for a delicious dinner, and for those who love football, watch the annual NFL games held on Thanksgiving Day.



Although scholars still debate the first official date of Thanksgiving, Thanksgiving Day traditions and the reason for setting aside one day a year to give thanks have stood the test of time.

While the celebrations may be more extravagant than they were at Plymouth Rock, family and friends still gather for holiday feasts and give thanks for the blessings bestowed upon them during the year.

I believe we all have some of the same basic things we like to give thanks for around the Thanksgiving holidays like our health, family and prosperity, but what about the other 364 days of the year?

I find it pretty easy to give thanks everyday for one thing or another — and I am thankful.

When I awake in the morning, I give thanks for another day of life, and another day to be a son, father and grandfather.

I give thanks for children because they love without condition and forgive so easily.

In my morning drive to work, I give thanks for the polite and professional way I am greeted at the Fort Benning gate. Although I am retired, I am thankful for the way the security guards make me feel like I still belong when they say, "Have a nice day, sergeant."

I am thankful for the phone calls from my friends and family who call for no particular reason other than to ask me how I am doing.

Believe it or not, I am even thankful for the few people I see standing on the street corners and exits off the interstate holding signs asking for donations. Why? Because they remind me how lucky I am to have a job, a place to live and food on my table.

The other day I spoke with a gentleman who was on one of the Columbus exits near my home and I found that although he was down on his luck, he too had things he said he was thankful for which only reminded me of my blessings.

I realize a few of the things I am thankful for may sound a little strange to some, but if we realize that everyday there is something to be thankful for — even the smallest of things — we learn that Thanksgiving Day is only one of 365 days we should give thanks because there are 364 equally thankful days left in the year.

As you gather for the Thanksgiving holidays to give thanks for everything in your life, don't forget the small things that are often overlooked. And remember, like the man I spoke to on the interstate exit, even in the worst of times we can all find something to be thankful for.

Better safe than sorry ... or would that be too neurotic?

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

My mom had a few key phrases she used a lot with me and my brothers and sisters. Better safe than sorry; If (insert name here) jumped off the bridge, would you? and Do as I said, not as I do.

I have to admit I've used the better safe than sorry phrase a lot with my daughter. I made her ride in a car seat until her ears were above the top of the sides of the car seat. I was thinking about whiplash when I finally took the car seat out of the back seat. In my mind, I could just see her little head bobbing back and forth when the driver behind us rammed us. She was 4, maybe 5, and taller than some of my coworkers. Better safe than sorry.

When she was a baby, I took her to a beach in San Diego, Calif. She had to wear a hat that covered her head and shoulders, a cotton onesy that most sane people would think of as long johns. Why was she covered like this for the beach? She was too young to be slathered in sun block. Better safe than sorry. Every summer, I signed her up for swimming lessons with the Red Cross. She doesn't even like to swim, but better safe than sorry.

We used to ride bikes a lot on the Riverwalk, always wearing helmets. Once I took her on a ride in Pike County. Too much traffic and a rooster run over by other bikers brought us back to the Riverwalk, where I only worried about squirrels. I was really happy we were on the Riverwalk when she wrecked and I ran over her. After we straightened the handlebars and the sheriff who heard her screams left, I had to pay her to ride her bike back to the car.

She rides horses now. And the last time she was bucked off, her helmet cracked in half. A mild concussion, a sore tailbone and a new helmet are what she gained from the experience. But I didn't have to bribe her to get back on.

So when my 15-year-old told a friend her first word was "neurotic," I said better safe than sorry.

My now 16-year-old daughter wants a flu shot. Why? Better safe than sorry. Flu season is here. The Centers for Disease Control recommends children between the ages of 6 months and 19 years get flu shots. I heard that interaction with children is how much of the older population gets the flu, and they could die from it.

Martin Army Community Hospital Family Practice Clinic is offering flu shots to all beneficiaries, including Internal Medicine and Ob/Gyn patients, on a walk-in basis, from 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 5:30 p.m. Monday to Friday. The Pediatric Clinic will vaccinate children Monday to Friday by appointment. Get vaccinated. Better safe than sorry.

German liaison officers LTC Walter Schleef and SGM Georg Hof place a wreath on the grave of a German POW at the Fort Benning cemetery. The second annual German-Italian memorial day honored German and Italian POWs buried there.

Members of the Fort Benning community gathered at the Fort Benning cemetery Nov. 19 for the second annual German-Italian Memorial Day ceremony. Fort Benning is the final resting place for 44 German soldiers and seven Italian soldiers captured as prisoners of war during World War II.

Foreign liaisons from Germany and Italy spoke about the importance of friendship and cooperation with the United States and with each other.

"Today we are here — German, Italian, American, and all allies together — because we are one team," said Italian liaison officer MAJ Fabrizio Salerno. "We are a part of this international family deployed anytime and anywhere in order to maintain freedom and democracy."

German liaison officer LTC Walter Schleef cited COL Bob Nett as an example of dedication to forging friendship with German soldiers.

"I pay deep respect to him and to the American people for fighting for democracy and freeing Germany from dictatorship," he said.

The ceremony's keynote speaker, Constance Heery, of the German Consulate in Atlanta, also expressed gratitude to the United States.

"I am always amazed by the grand gesture of generosity and conciliation ... from the decision to lay our German prisoners of war together with your own fallen Soldiers," she said. "Please accept my government's gratitude for this noble gesture."

A featured event was the laying of wreaths, in which the German and Italian liaisons laid wreaths in their countries' colors on the soldiers' graves. At the ceremony's conclusion, the Infantry Center Band played the Italian and German national anthems.

For LTC Schleef, the ceremony emphasized the points the three countries have in common.

"We came together on a base of common values, a common culture and common missions," he said. "To me this is also an American-German-Italian memorial day."

ASAP offers direct counseling services

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Fort Benning's Army Substance Abuse Program has expanded its team to include a full-time Employee Assistance Program coordinator. In the past, the Pastoral Institute, an Army contractor in Columbus, provided EAP services.

Timothy Knox, the new EAP coordinator, said his role will be to act as a liaison between ASAP, off-post service providers, and the Fort Benning community, as well as providing initial assessments, referrals and short-term counseling to those affected by substance abuse.

"My job is to make sure that we have proper initial care for these problems and to provide the initial assessment to make sure people get the proper treatment," he said.

Knox said having a full-time EAP coordinator available will benefit the entire Fort Benning community.

"One of the biggest things is that people will have services right here on the installation, and they will no longer have to go off-post for their initial assessment," he said.

"Before, the alcohol and drug control officer provided EAP services, but that was an extra duty," he said. "And because she was wearing more than one hat, we had to contract that service out. There wasn't one person designated for the job, and now there is. You can't give clients all the attention needed when you're doing more than one job."

Alcohol and substance abuse require particular attention because of their potential to interfere with safety in the workplace, Knox said.

"Our main goal is to make sure we have a drug-free workplace, and that will provide a safe environment for military and civilian personnel," he said.

EAP serves all civilians in the Fort Benning community, including Department of the Army employees, retirees and families. For more information, call 706-545-5137 or 706-545-1138, or e-mail timothy.knox@us.army.mil.

Victims of Sexual Assault Requested to Talk to Task Force

Fort Benning will host the Defense Task Force on Sexual Assault in the Military Services from Dec. 9-11 as it conducts its worldwide assessment.

Members of the task force would like to provide an opportunity for the public, or victims or witnesses of past sexual assaults who are not part of an ongoing or active case under investigation, to meet individually with a member of the task force. Additionally, victims or witnesses should not be involved in any incident subject to an ongoing or upcoming judicial proceeding.

The task force wants to make sure the public, victims and witnesses are heard in private, to have an opportunity to tell their story to someone outside of the military's chain of command. All information given to the task force will remain confidential.

When the worldwide assessment is complete, information gathered may be included in a report to Congress in 2009 about trends in the military on sexual assault programs and response.

People willing to talk to the Task Force should call Jenny Holbert at 1-703-325-6656 or 1-888-325-6640; or Fort Benning's Sexual Assault Response coordinator at 706-545-8740. Go to www.dtic.mil/dtfsams for more information about the Task Force.

Pathfinder students complete timed FTX

PFC David Lewis shoots an azimuth to make sure the marking panels are aligned on the drop zone, as 1LT Gabriel Garcia looks on.

THE BAYONET

Thirty-six Pathfinder students set up a drop zone on Dekkar Strip Nov. 18, part of their first application of techniques and operations studied in class.

Although the class work provides the foundation for what the students do in the field, hands-on training prepares them for real-world situations, said CPT Tye Reedy, 82nd Airborne Division.

"It's important to see everything we learned in class the last two weeks," he said. "If I know an equation, I can tell you the mean effect of wind at a certain time and place, but coming out here to the field and actually applying everything we've learned shows us how to put that into practice. If we didn't have the field time, I don't think we would be as effective Pathfinders as we could be."

The students set up six drop zones at different times of the day and night last week. Within an hour, Soldiers had to determine the point of impact for the drop and set up markers for the incoming aircraft.

The location of the markers needs to be precise, especially since the speed of the aircraft and wind can affect how close a package lands to the target, Reedy said.

"In Afghanistan, if you're not accurate with your markings and your measurements for the drop zone, you could put a package on the top of the mountain or give it to the enemy," he said. "You try to be as accurate as possible."

Even as a paratrooper, Reedy said, he never realized how much goes into one drop.

"Jumpers, you get on the plane; you jump; you land; you pack up and go," he said. "This is really showing me a lot of what happens prior to that person or that item exiting out of the aircraft. There's a lot ... like the different factors you have to take into account to get those jumpers or that package out of the aircraft and onto the ground. For me, that's a big part of what I've taken away from this."

Everyone had a specific role during the timed field exercise. They rotated positions after each exercise, so students learned every task related to Pathfinder operations.

SGT Kelly Dobal, 121st Brigade Support Battalion, was the internal net recorder. She stayed in touch via radio with the reconnaissance team and helped guide her teammates to the correct location to set up the markers.

1LT Ben Scott, B Company, 1st Battalion, 23rd Infantry Regiment, hammers one of the panel's stakes into the ground to mark the drop zone.

After completing the class, Dobal will take the information she learned back to her unit to apply it there.

"For me to put into words everything that I learned in the past two weeks would be virtually impossible," she said. "It is a wealth of information on everything involving helicopter operations, Airborne operations, setting up the landing zones ... aeromedevac procedures. It's just so much stuff all put together. And this is what's really cool, because you get to tie it all together in the field."

Students who attend the three-week school do not need to be Airborne qualified, said SFC Derick Herd, branch chief for Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

It is helpful to know how to perform jumps, he said, in case the terrain makes aerial entry easier, but their basic mission is to prepare a drop zone for the larger unit coming behind them.

"They find a path that nobody else can," Herd said. "They clear a path for everybody else. The Pathfinder slogan is 'first in, last out.' They're normally the first ones in and most of the time, the last ones out."

Pathfinder classes run continuously throughout the year at Fort Benning. This class graduates today at 10 a.m.

Herd hopes they have learned that a successful mission takes everyone working together.

"Teamwork is probably the biggest thing that they can get out of this course," he said. "Not one person can set up and run a Pathfinder operation by themselves. Everybody needs to know what everybody else is doing. In case something happens to one key person, then somebody else can step in."

A challenging school, Pathfinder is in high demand in the Army, Herd said. Many Soldiers attend not knowing what it entails, expecting mostly Power Point slides and written exams.

"That is not the case," Herd said. "Everything is exciting about Pathfinder, from start to finish. It's like an adrenaline rush from day one all the way up until this morning. It's a tough school. Not a lot of people make it through. But when you do ... you stand out."

"I am really proud to be a part of the cavalry."

Soldiers earn spurs

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE
PVT Erik S. Anderson

Soldiers from the 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, completed a series of tests and training, culminating in earning their cavalry spurs during a ceremony Nov. 6.

The "spur ride," a first for 3rd HBCT, drilled Soldiers in many categories, including operating in urban settings, combat life-saving, weapons assembly and cavalry knowledge. The Soldiers completed an Army physical fitness test, an obstacle course and a road march as part of the training.

The "spur ride" is a cavalry tradition and, for this event, it was combined with warrior ethos training, said CSM Dan Huell, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cav. Regt.

"In order for them to earn their spurs, as every cavalry Soldier should want to do, they have to go through a series of obstacles that will make them a better team, more close-knit," Huell said.

"We put a spin on it to make our Soldiers better warriors and ready for combat operations," he said.

To many cavalry Soldiers, earning their spurs is an important goal, said PFC Kristopher Schleis, who took part in the spur ride.

"It means a lot to be a part of this group," Schleis said. "I am really proud to be a part of the cavalry. It cements you into that brotherhood."

The tradition is important to many new cavalry Soldiers, Schleis said.

"We try to keep the traditions of the cavalry alive even though so much has changed," he said. One thing that hasn't changed is the effect of the spur ride experience.

"It builds camaraderie and esprit de corps," Schleis said.

"There is a special mud pit for the troopers, to remind us we don't have our spurs yet," said Schleis. "When I came in, my uniform was green, and when I leave I will be orange from head to toe."

Becoming a spur holder makes it all worthwhile, Huell said.

"Being a part of cavalry is very special," he said. "You wear your spurs proudly."

Fort Benning celebrates Native American heritage, culture

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

Fort Benning recognized Native American Indian Heritage Month Wednesday with a luncheon at The Benning Club.

"Throughout our history, Native American Indians have been an important part of our national character, contributing many values and ideas to the fabric of the American spirit," said master of ceremonies SSG Frank Williams. "Native American Indians have participated in nearly every American war, even before being granted citizenship by Congress in 1924. They have fought with bravery and distinction ... and continue to serve proudly."

The guest speaker, Chipa Wolfe, said his goal was to break down stereotypes about Native Americans.

They don't all live in teepees, and they don't wear their full regalia when grocery shopping, he said.

Guests at the luncheon were treated to an intertribal performance by Rolling Thunder Enterprises, the oldest Native American company in the state. Native artists played flute music, danced and sang.

Each of these acts is sacred, said Wolfe, who heads up the company, especially the steady beating of the drum.

"It represents the heartbeat of the earth mother," he said. "They're dancing in sync with the rhythm of the earth. They understand their role of responsibility over the earth."

The cliché of the Indian war drums, with an irregular, menacing beat, has nothing to do with Native Americans, Wolfe said. That sound of that beat would mean one thing, "mother earth in cardiac arrest."

Georgena Haywahe, of Chippewa descent, said she is glad she can preserve part of her native heritage through dancing.

"That's one thing we have surviving from our culture, all these years," said Haywahe, who performed the Ladies' Fancy Dance Wednesday. "It was a way of expressing emotion and comforting each other, having a physical representation of what was going on in their lives. Now, other people can understand how we celebrate. Dance is how we get together, not as tribes but as one nation of native people."

Georgena Haywahe performs the Ladies' Fancy Dance Wednesday at The Benning Club.

So many different cultures celebrating in so many different ways is part of what makes America unique, she said.

"We are a nation of nations — many people across this continent," Wolfe said. "However, we also understand one nation under God, and we're good with that."

Leadership Columbus offers tour of Benning

THE BAYONET
Lori Egan

Members of the community gathered at Fort Benning Wednesday for Leadership Columbus, a Columbus Chamber of Commerce sponsored leadership training program that focuses on future leaders in the community. The participants spend one day each month learning about government, business, health and human resource issues in the tricommunity.

While here, the Commanding General MG Michael Barbero spoke about how Fort Benning transforms Americans into Soldiers with leadership — by setting the example, how leadership is a process, and how leaders adjust their style, but not their principles.

"Soldiers remember the standards enforced, not the ones discussed," he said.

During the day, the future leaders visited Sand Hill as new Soldiers inprocessed into the Army, toured Sand Hill to watch training, lunched with Infantry Soldiers, fired weapons on Red Cloud Range and jumped from the 34-foot towers on Eubanks Field.

"Leadership Columbus solidifies the strong relationship we have with the community and educates future leaders on what we do and who we are," said Chuck Walls, garrison deputy commander.

"Many haven't been on Fort Benning," said Bob Brown, the director of Plans, Training, Mobilization and Security. "They gain a greater appreciation of how we train, (get to) shoot weapons and a better understanding of the noise."

Columbus State University students in Phi Mu offer free back rubs to Soldiers, one of the most popular booths set up at God Bless Fort Benning Day Saturday in uptown Columbus. At other booths, people gave away popcorn, baked goods, water, stuffed animals and hugs.

GBFB Day: Shows patriotism

military, he said.

He also enjoyed the opportunity to talk "eye to eye" with someone — a Springer Opera House stilt walker towering just under seven feet — for the first time in a while, said the 6-foot-9-inch Soldier.

Other Soldiers sang karaoke, posed for pictures next to sports cars, sampled local cuisine and, like several basic trainees in C Company, 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, received unexpected hugs, handshakes and thanks.

"You don't think that so many people will actually appreciate what you do when you first sign up," said PVT Brian Eubank, who graduates from C Co. today. "I'm from Atlanta. People don't thank you for what you do every day. People don't walk up to you and give you a hug and say 'thank you for what you do for our country.' It's a reality check. I didn't think that many people would actually come up to us and thank us for what we do. I didn't think it actually affected so many other people."

Eubank said he was surprised the celebration had such a big turnout.

"It's nice to see this many people showed up just to support the troops, that this many people actually care," he said.

For Gail Sorrows, whose dad was in the 75th Ranger Regiment, seeing so many people come out to say thanks was nothing new. She makes the drive from Perry, Ga., every year to join with the community in supporting the military.

"If people think patriotism is dead, all you have to do is look around," she said. "It's great the way people in Columbus support troops at Fort Benning. They need to know that we care, that everybody is behind them 100 percent."

Four-year-old Latavia Clay sits on Santa's lap at the Santa's Castle corner of God Bless Fort Benning Day. The nonprofit organization received several donations of toys during the festival from community members.

Standing behind the troops of today is what this yearly festival is all about, said Vietnam veteran COL (R) Bob Poydasheff.

"The whole purpose of this celebration is to show our respect for our Soldiers to see to it that the Soldiers and their families at Fort Benning or living in this area recognize the fact that we support them," said the GBFB chairman. "We are honored to do this, we're delighted to do this, and if God gives us the strength to continue doing this forever and ever, that's exactly what we're going to do."

Move: 'Significant project' for post

a 2,500-square-foot house occupied by just four or five people," he said. "Now multiply that by hundreds. Infantry Hall is occupied by several thousand people on a daily basis, so to avoid chaos, the moves must be well-organized."

The Donovan Research Library, Maneuver Captains Career Course and the Combined Arms and Tactics Directorate will be among the first offices to move out of Infantry Hall in December when they relocate to the old post exchange, Building 9230.

In March, the offices of Fort Benning's administrative headquarters, including the Maneuver Battle Lab, Soldier Requirements Division, Quality Assurance Office, and International Liaisons will move to Building 35. G3 offices will relocate to new modular buildings on Gardner Field and remaining WHINSEC staff will move to new modular buildings on Honor Field.

The Garrison Command Group, Public Affairs Office, TRADOC Capability Managers, Chief of Staff and Capabilities Development and Integration Directorate will move to Building 35 in April. See next week's paper for more information on the move.

Each affected organization has a coordinator, who is responsible for providing the garrison office with a list of excess furniture, and the Defense Reutilization Office with a list of broken furniture.

"This is a significant project for Benning because we're going to get a new headquarters," Quirion said. "Virtually everything in Infantry Hall is going to be renovated, from the floors and ceilings to the furniture."

The new Maneuver Center of Excellence Headquarters, slated for completion in March 2012, will be environmentally friendly, Quirion said, thanks to the inclusion of solar panels and a rainwater collection system.

to know each other better."

For others, it was a time to reconnect with family.

SSG Thomas Taylor attended with his 6-year-old daughter Savannah, who said spending time with her dad was her favorite part of the luncheon.

"I think it's good for morale," SSG Taylor said.

And for some Soldiers without family near Fort Benning, the luncheon provided a Thanksgiving meal they may not have otherwise had.

"It gives the Soldiers a chance to come together as one and enjoy the food," said SSG Jonathan Looney. "A lot of Soldiers don't have family here, so for them to be able to come and eat is great."

Scouts honor retiree

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

SGM(R) and Eagle Scout Tom Lytle achieved a rare feat in the world of scouting.

In an Oct. 22 ceremony, the Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts of America presented Lytle with the Boy Scouts of America Heroism Award for saving his neighbor's life.

"It's a very rare award," said Don Sharitt, executive director of the Chattahoochee council. "This is the first time I've ever seen it given out."

Lytle was honored for his actions on June 3, 2007, when he saved the life of a neighbor who had tried to hang himself. Working in his backyard, Lytle heard a woman screaming several houses away. He jumped over two fences to reach her.

"I hesitated after the first fence, but then I heard something hit the ground, and I jumped over the second fence," he said.

When Lytle arrived on the scene, he discovered Ethelyn Kirkland bending over her husband, Walter, in their backyard shed. The sound Lytle had heard was that of Walter landing on the ground after Ethelyn had cut the rope he had used.

Lytle quickly discovered Walter was not breathing, and began to administer CPR. He credits his military training and extensive scouting experience with helping him quickly identify the proper course of action.

"It was because of my military background — I did 25 years in the Army — and nearly 50 years of Scouting that I realized he was choking on something," Lytle said. "I made sure his airway was open and began to administer CPR."

Even after EMTs arrived, Lytle did not leave Ethelyn's side. She had begun hyperventilating, and he worked to calm her.

"She hadn't taken her medicine that morning, and had gone into a sort of shock," Lytle said. "She couldn't breathe, so I had to calm her down."

Walter Kirkland survived, and EMTs credited Lytle with keeping him alive until they arrived. Kirkland lived for 13 months after the incident, until a stroke claimed his life in July 2008.

"We just couldn't have brought him back if it hadn't been for Mr. Lytle," Ethelyn said. "He gave me 13 more months with my husband."

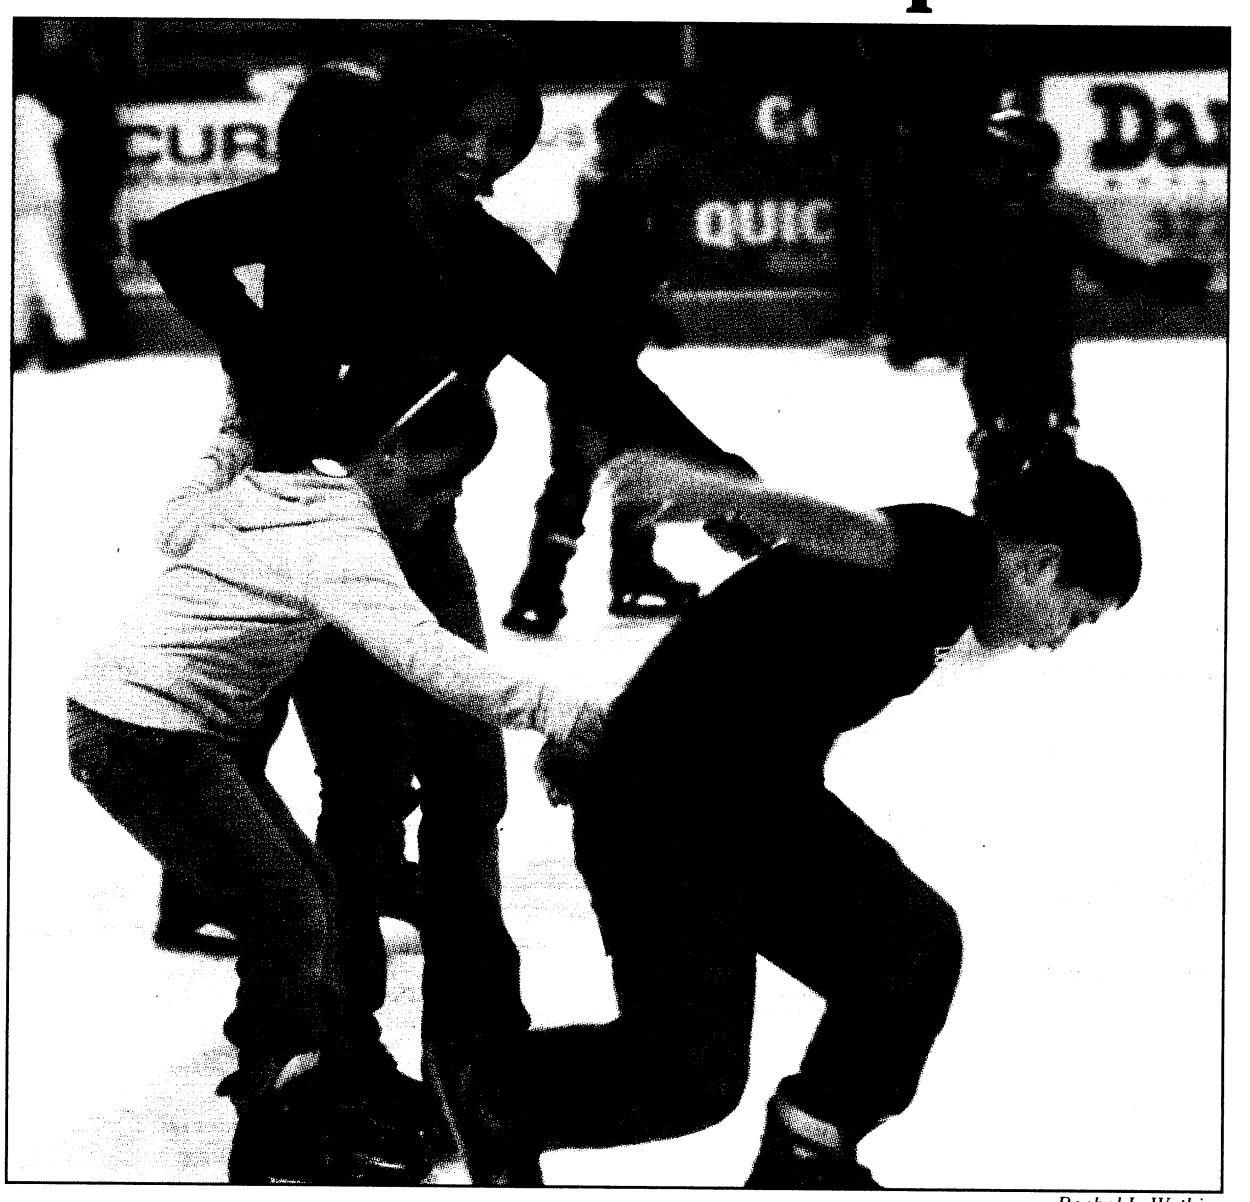
Civic Center offers public ice skating



Rachel L. Watkins
Diana Fennern and Alyssa, 9, laugh as 11-year-old C.J. falls and breaks their three-person chain. "(Skating) is scary at first, but after a while, you get the hang of it, and it becomes fun," C.J. said.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

When the Columbus Cottonmouths and youth and adult hockey teams aren't playing on the ice, the public can. The Columbus Civic Center, a 25-minute drive from Fort Benning, offers public ice skating from 2 to 3:30 p.m. and from 4:30 to 6 p.m. today, Friday, Sunday and days throughout December.

Diana Fennern and her two children, 9-year-old Alyssa and 11-year-old C.J., went skating for the first time Sunday.

"This was one of my top picks to do with the kids," Diana said. "It's a chance to get out of the house, get some exercise and it's for any age."

And as for C.J., he liked it too, despite his falls.

"It's scary at first, but after awhile, you get the hang of it and it becomes fun," he said.

SGT Jordan McEvers skated with his 4-year-old daughter Jaymisen.

"This is our first time ice skating and it looks like Jaymisen is showing me more about it than I'm showing her," McEvers said.

The best part about the ice skating at the Civic Center is that it's so close to Fort Benning, said his wife, Candace.

Sunday was the opening day of public skating for this season and there was a large crowd — 330 skaters, said Lisa Thomas-Cutts, box office manager.

Santa's Castle prepares for Christmas

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The holiday season is here and Santa's Castle has been preparing all year for it. Santa's Castle, an organization that has been around since 1986, provides toys for Christmas to Soldiers' families who may be facing financial challenges, said Jeffrey Saeli, president of Santa's Castle.

"This organization is to ensure that all children on post have a happy holiday season," Saeli said.

The organization will give 3,000 toys, 500 board games and 1,000 stocking stuffers this year to 500 military families who applied to receive the toys. In those 500 families are 1,000 children.

The only problem is the organization hasn't received enough toys yet.

"We are in desperate need of toddler toys," Saeli said. "We also need bikes and board games."

Santa's Castle accepts new toys. Toys will be given to the families starting Tuesday.

They also accept cash donations, which are used for toys and promotional items for fundraising events.

"We are so thankful to the community, because without them, we wouldn't be able to have this program," Saeli said.

Santa's Castle is always looking for volunteers too, Saeli said.

Volunteer jobs include moving toys from the warehouse to the shopping area, signing in families, and providing child care for the volunteers' children. Shifts usually last about three hours.

Joanna Thomas has volunteered at Santa's Castle for three years.

"I have extra time — I might as well put it to good use," she said. "The work at Santa's Castle is worth it just to see parents come in and have a sense of relief that they can have a good Christmas."

Monetary donations can be dropped off at any CB&T bank or at Santa's Castle (Building 1676) at NCO Avenue on Main Post.

Donated toys can be dropped off anytime from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Santa's Castle.

Rachel L. Watkins
Volunteer Joanna Thomas inventories toys at the Santa's Castle warehouse. Santa's Castle has toys but more are needed, said Jeffrey Saeli, president of Santa's Castle.

For more information, go to www.santascastle.org or call 706-685-4422.

Deadlines set for holiday mail to Iraq, Afghanistan

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

As the holiday season approaches, now is the time to begin sending holiday packages overseas, post office officials said. To ensure packages arrive in Iraq and Afghanistan by Dec. 25, the U.S. Postal Service has set a Dec. 4 mailing deadline.

"All priority mail needs to be sent by Dec. 4 in order to arrive by Christmas," said Wendy Langdon, sales service associate at the Fort Benning branch of the post office. "After that date, it could get there on time, but it is more likely that it will be late."

Packages mailed to Iraq and Afghanistan can weigh up to 70 pounds. To avoid surcharges, Langdon recommended limiting packages to less than 107 inches long.

For packages weighing more than 1 pound, customers must fill out a large customs form, which are available at the post office and online.

"You can get customs forms online, but this time of year, it's faster to get them in person at the post office," Langdon said.

Some of the most common items sent to Soldiers are snacks, toiletries, blankets, books and pillows, Langdon said. Cookies are one of her favorite items to include in packages to Soldiers, she said.

"I personally send a lot of them," Langdon said. "They do great if you send them in airtight containers."

She cautions about sending perishable items abroad, as they may spoil before the package arrives, but said that liquids such as canned soft drinks travel well.

Another source for holiday packages is the Defense Commissary Agency's Virtual Commissary, which offers 53 items available for purchase during the holiday season.

The Virtual Commissary has set a Dec. 15 deadline for orders to arrive by ground transportation before Dec. 25. The deadline for orders shipped by two-day air service is Dec. 22, and the deadline for orders shipped by next-day air service is Dec. 23.

Most items can be shipped to any address in the continental United States, including APO addresses. The Virtual Commissary is available at www.commissaries.com.

It's important to send packages to deployed Soldiers because the holiday season can be a lonely time for them, Langdon said.

"We have a lot of Soldiers without family near them, and it's hard mentally," she said. "Even just receiving a simple letter can make a difference. It makes them feel like somebody's thinking about them."

Holidays can be dangerous time for pets

FORT BENNING VET CLINIC
CPT Jacob L. Barnoski

The holiday season is a time filled with trees, lights, presents, candy, cakes, turkeys and many other things meant to bring joy into our lives. However, with these items in our households, there is a certain level of danger added for our four-legged friends. Many of the items listed above can pose serious health hazards for our pets. I would like to outline a few examples of hazards during the holidays.

Christmas lights are one of the first things to come out of the attic this time of year. They are strung all over our yards, on our houses, and often on a Christmas tree indoors. For puppies and cats especially, those strands of lights can pose a real hazard. Every year pets are brought in to veterinarians with electrical burns caused by chewing on Christmas light cords. The most common signs associated with this injury are burns around the mouth and fluid accumulating in the lungs. Both of these injuries are very serious, and in the latter case, life threatening. If you suspect your animal has suffered an electric shock, take them to a veterinarian immediately.

Tinsel is another holiday item that can be dangerous for pets. Cats are notorious for playing with tinsel because it acts just like yarn or string. The problem is that if it is eaten, tinsel will sometimes get stuck in the intestinal tract and form a linear foreign body. This is a very dangerous, life threatening situation that requires immediate medical attention. If your dog or cat has a history of playing with string or tinsel, monitor them for signs of GI upset (vomiting, diarrhea, loss of appetite, or painful abdomen) and take them to a veterinarian if you notice anything abnormal.

Chocolate and raisins are two ingredients found in many holiday treats. They are both very tasty to humans, but can be very dangerous for pets. When eaten by our pets, chocolate causes symptoms such as excitement, tremors, vomiting, heart racing, seizures, coma, and death. Different types of chocolate contain different amounts of ingredients toxic to pets. The form of chocolate most potently toxic to pets is baker's chocolate. If you suspect your pet has eaten any chocolate, or see your pet exhibiting any of the signs mentioned, call or see a veterinarian immediately. Raisins are toxic to the kidneys of our pets. As little as 1 ounce of raisins can be toxic to a 20-pound dog. If you suspect your pet has eaten raisins, call a veterinarian as soon as possible.

Poinsettias and mistletoe are plants commonly used for decoration around the holidays, but they can have adverse effects on pets. Poinsettias are not directly toxic to animals, but can cause some irritation to the mouth and stomach if eaten. Mistletoe, however, is toxic and can cause conditions ranging from liver damage to seizures based on the type of mistletoe eaten. If you suspect your pet has eaten any mistletoe, Call a veterinarian immediately.

Finally, sharing foods that we eat around the holidays with pets can also cause problems. It is tempting to want to include our pets in our holiday celebration by sharing our food with them, but this sudden change in their diet can cause them some significant problems. Vomiting and diarrhea are common after a pet ingests human food that it is not used to. While these side effects are bad enough, more serious conditions can occur from eating human foods, as I mentioned earlier.

Save the human food for the humans, and the pet food for the pets. Remember, all treats should be given in moderation, and anything can be unhealthy if taken to the extreme. Pets that are on restricted diets based on a medical condition should not deviate from their special diet.

Always ask your veterinarian first if you have any questions regarding your pet's diet.

Safe treats for dogs and cats:

For your pet's health and safety, skip the turkey and try these treats instead :

Milkbones
Rawhide bones
Baby carrots
Green beans
Tuna
Other commercially marked pet foods

Red Cross needs blood

AMERICAN RED CROSS
April M. Phillips

The American Red Cross needs your help this holiday season to encourage individuals in our community to donate blood and platelets.

The need for these valuable donations does not take a break for the winter holidays. In fact, the need for blood often increases due to the higher number of traffic accidents associated with travel and adverse road conditions.

Blood and platelet donations are needed every day of the year to prevent critical blood shortages and help patients who require life-saving transfusions. The Red Cross is asking you to partner with us to educate the community about the importance of donating blood this winter as we ask donors to challenge friends and family to give the gift of life by saying, 'I Give Blood. Will You?'

Every two seconds someone in the United States needs blood, and one unit of blood can help save the lives of up to three individuals. The blood supply of our local hospitals can remain at safe levels, should our loved ones or neighbors ever require a life-saving transfusion.

Cutts is expecting an even larger crowd for the Thanksgiving holiday.

"We usually get more people around the holidays," she said. "Ice skating is a fun way to burn off Thanksgiving turkey."

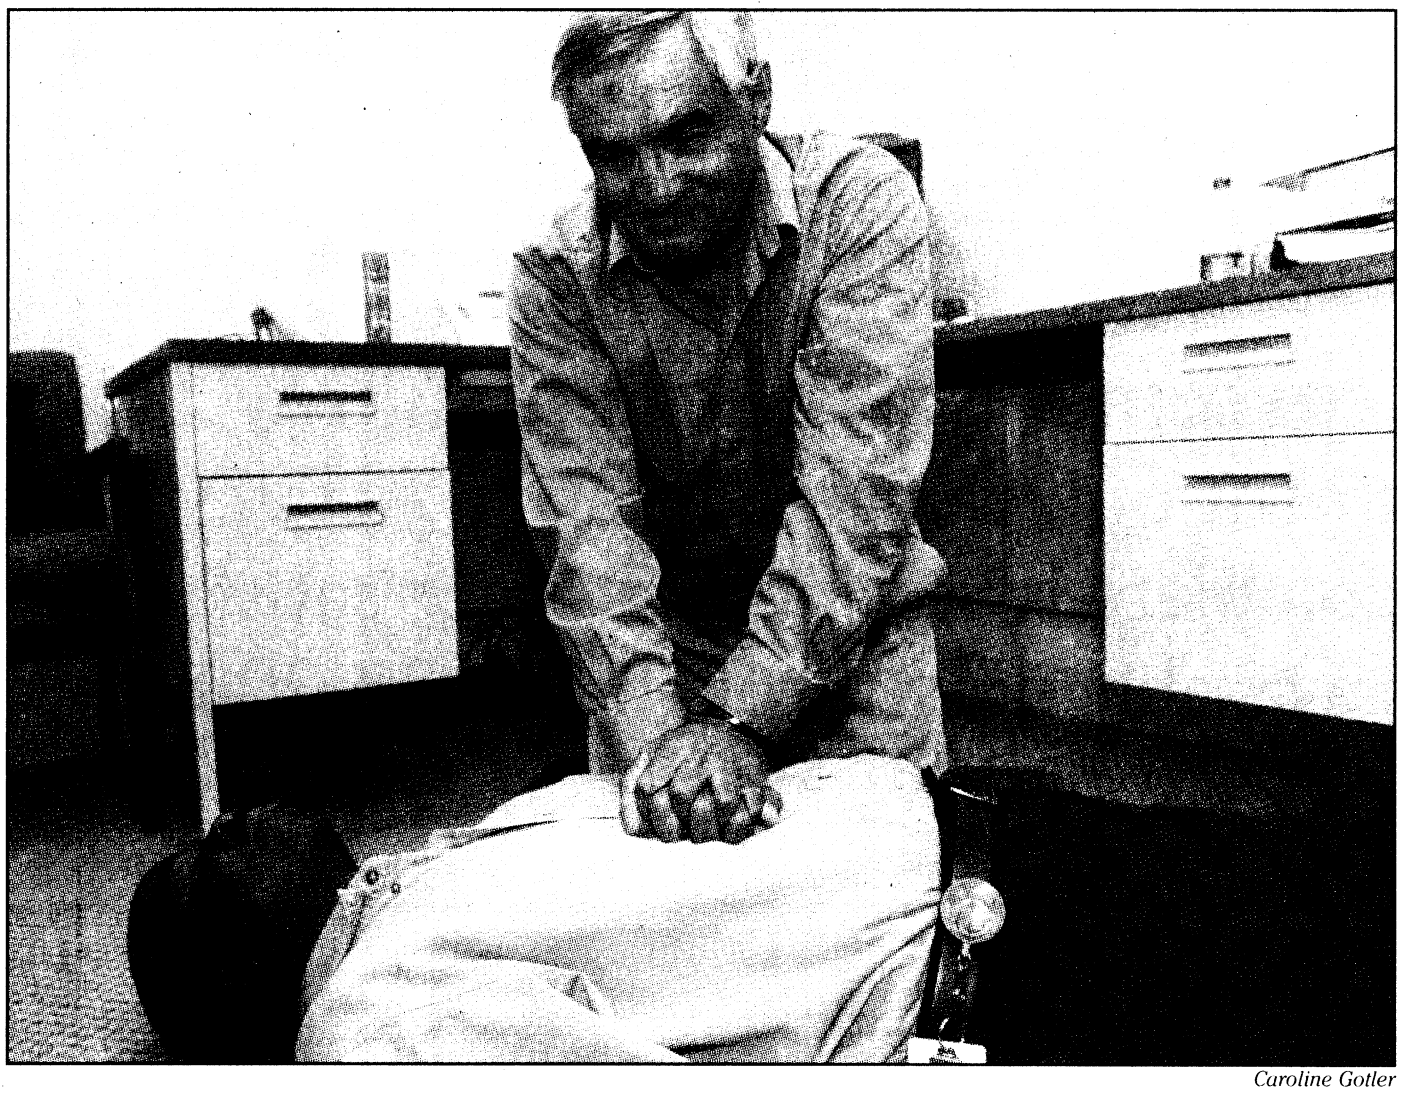
Tickets are available at the box office the day of the event. Admission is $7 per person and skate rentals are $3 per pair. Make sure to bring a jacket and gloves.

For more information, call 706-653-4460 or go to www.columbusciviccenter.org/event_skating.html.

Rachel.Watkins@militarynews.com

Public ice skating is available 2 to 3:30 p.m. and 4:30 to 6 p.m. on the following dates: Today, Friday, Sunday Dec. 13-14, 21-23, 26-29, Jan. 4-5. Admission is $7 and skate rental is $3. Call 706-653-4460 or go to www.columbusciviccenter.org/event_skating.html.

Retiree: Plans to keep Scouting, pass training to kids



Caroline Gotler

Tom Lytle demonstrates the CPR technique he used to save Walter Kirkland's life on a coworker at his Omega Training Group office. Lytle, a retired sargeant major and longtime Eagle Scout, credits his military background with giving him the skills he needed to save his neighbor.

"It was because of my military background -- I did 25 years in the Army -- and my nearly 50 years of Scouting that I realized he was choking on something," Lytle said.

Kirkland's wife, Ethelyn, said she is grateful to Lytle for his actions that day, and remains in close contact with him.

"We just couldn't have brought him back if it hadn't been for Mr. Lytle," she said.

A neighbor of Ms. Kirkland encouraged her to contact the local council of the Boy Scouts of America to tell them about Lytle's feat.

Lytle said he was very surprised to learn that he would be receiving the Boy Scouts of America Heroism Award because it is so rarely given out.

Though Lytle was not previously well acquainted with the Kirklands, he helped them with chores and yard work for months after the incident, Ethelyn said.

Sharitt said the respect and care Lytle showed toward the Kirklands is typical of his character.

"Knowing the type of person Tom is, and how he treats others, I wasn't surprised," he said.

Lytle said he never thought about himself that day. His concern, he said, was for the Kirklands.

"I wouldn't hesitate to do it all over again," he said.

Lytle plans to continue Scouting, and aims to pass his knowledge on to the boys he works with.

"I'm going to continue scouting for as long as I can," Lytle said.

"I try to make sure the boys get proper training because it's really a worthwhile program," he said. "Always be prepared — that motto helped me save my neighbor's life."

Don't skip Thanksgiving in Christmas rush

192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE
Chaplain (MAJ) Steve Cantrell

Psalm 100:4 Enter His gates with thanksgiving.

It was another father-daughter errand into town. I was rushing, thinking about the camera batteries I needed to buy, what part of the store are they in, will they be out.

"They always skip Thanksgiving," my 9-year-old daughter Melissa said as we walked through the shopping center.

"How can you tell?" I asked.

"It's the month of Thanksgiving and they're doing Christmas stuff." Melissa's comment focused my attention, and I looked away listening. Sure enough, Christmas music was playing in the background. Until she spoke up, I hadn't even paid attention to the numerous Christmas trees with shiny, gold and green decorations.

I don't want to skip Thanksgiving this year.

I'm taking a clue from my sweet Melissa. If we don't decorate, cook, serve, drive to and fro and dress up for Thanksgiving, it could look like we're skipping it. I think the number one way to engage in thanksgiving is through acts of service. After all, acts of service are what we say thank you for when we show gratitude.

We might skip this Thanksgiving if we rush through it without pausing to think about some things. We have a Thanksgiving holiday in a free country celebrated by free people. Our country is home to people who sacrifice, serve and observe solemn gatherings for centuries past in American history.

In my unit, the 192nd Infantry Brigade on Sand Hill, we avoided skipping Thanksgiving by celebrating it a week early at our first Cadre Thanksgiving Prayer Breakfast last week. Ranger Chaplain (CPT) Steve Doyle of 3rd Battalion, 47th Infantry Regiment, suggested we do it around the Thanksgiving holiday theme. Our unit ministry team of chaplains and chaplain assistants worked hard to create a world-class event. The Panther Battalion, 2nd Bn., 47th Inf. Regt., hosted the big event. We scheduled the prayer breakfast late enough so we could still do PT.

We had two special guests at the prayer breakfast. Our guest musician was Pastor Chris Eldridge from the Cornerstone Church of God who sang Toby Keith's hit, American Soldier. Eldridge thanked the cadre for their service. Our chaplains remembered the nation in prayer and thanked the Lord for his hand on our nation throughout her history. Our guest speaker was COL(R) Ralph Puckett. Author of Words for Warriors, he is a recipient of two Distinguished Service Crosses, one from service in Korea and one from service in Vietnam, not to mention five Purple Hearts. The Distinguished Service Cross is just one notch below the Medal of Honor. The colonel is a beloved friend of Fort Benning and Columbus and he is a man who serves selflessly. One of his favorite verses is Isaiah 6:8, when God asks Isaiah who will go for us, he answers, "Here am I, send me." Isaiah was ready to serve.

Thanksgiving is about being grateful for the accomplishments, small and large, of others. We put on our dress blues to serve at the dining facility. We give so the less fortunate can have a holiday meal. We prepare and deliver meals of delicious turkey, dressing, cranberries and pumpkin pie. You see, Thanksgiving is about our relationships. Service is about relationships. Give those encouraging words of appreciation to them. Just a few days after my daughter talked to me about skipping Thanksgiving, she bent my ear again with another cute remark. Melissa said to me, "Dad, there's one thing good about wars and stuff." I paused, surprised by how she started off. She finished, "without them there would be no history to learn."

The veterans and their families are our nation's warriors making history by answering the call to serve. Here am I, send me. Find your own special way to celebrate this Thanksgiving. Enter into God's gates through prayer and worship. Pass that faith and love on to others in service.

It's never too late to be the person you want to be

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (MAJ) Richard Garvey

Have you ever heard the saying, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks?" And, if you have been in the Army more than a day, when you ask someone, "Why do we do it this way?" You know the standard response, "That is the way we have always done it." One thing for sure is that if we continue to do the same old thing, you can expect the same old results. In fact, insanity has been defined as "doing the same thing and expecting different results."

Many people get into a rut in their marriages and continue to "do the same thing." They desire to be happy in their marriage. They desire to see their situation get better, but they get stuck doing the same thing. One naturally formulates the belief that people cannot change. They begin to wonder if they or their spouses are always going to be this way or that. A sense of desperation falls over them and their future. Will it ever get better?

Gary Chapman in his book Desperate Marriages describes four myths that lead to a desperate marriage. Last week we looked at the first myth, "my environment determines my state of mind."

The second myth is that "people cannot change." This myth purports that if someone has behaved in a certain manner for many years, he or she will not and cannot change. Well, I have a news flash for you – people can change. Look what happens to us through life, we go to school, for what? We go to learn and gain an educated in order to learn a skill. We go to boot camp and we change. We transform from being a civilian to becoming a Soldier of excellence, learning and adapting to the military life. Spouses develop and become stronger spouses as a result of the experiences and demands of the military life. We have children and learn to become parents. We can change and we do change. In fact we live in a world where change seems to be the only constant.

In relationships we often develop a bad habit and fail to recognize we need to change. The reality in relationships is that a small change can make a big impact in the relationship, for good or bad.

If your interactive habits are not producing the kind of fruit you desire, maybe you need to make some small positive changes in order to improve your life and your marriage. Maybe a few kind words to your spouse on a daily basis would make a big impression. Maybe if the name calling stopped the escalation would cease. It is never too late to change and be the person you want to be.

When Michael was in high school, he tried out for the varsity basketball team. Michael was told he was too small and was not good enough for the varsity team. He was cut from the team roster, but he was determined to get better and set his mind to the task.

Michael would later impress his coaches and go on to play varsity high school basketball and college basketball. He started as a college freshman, only the fourth freshman ever to do so under his coach at the time. During the 1982 National Collegiate Athletic Association championship game against Georgetown University, however, Michael Jeffrey Jordan earned fame by making a last-second jump shot to seal a 63-62 Tar Heels victory and the national title. Michael would go onto win six NBA championships. Can people change? What if Michael had only believed the myth that people cannot change?

Feel like you or your spouse cannot change? Call 706-545-1760 for an appointment to speak with one of our marriage coaches at the Chaplain's Family Life Center. Or stop by our office at 2606 Dixie Road, in Soldier's Plaza.

Warriors attend Troy game B4

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Crew wins title

The Columbus Crew beat the New York Red Bulls, 3-1, to claim their first Major League Soccer title Sunday.

Guillermo Barros Schelotto, named league MVP just days earlier, contributed to the effort with three assists. Schelotto finished the season with 25 assists in the regular season and playoffs combined.

BCS shakeup

After being ranked No. 2 in the Bowl Championship Series, Texas Tech dropped to seventh after a 65-21 loss to Oklahoma Saturday.

Alabama, who was idle over the weekend, stayed at No.1, followed by Texas, who jumped up to take the second spot.

Oklahoma jumped to third, followed by Florida in fourth and USC in fifth.

The next few weeks should be interesting for all teams.

Paterno has surgery

A day after the Penn State Nittany Lions clinched a Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl, coach Joe Paterno had successful hip surgery.

Paterno, 81, is expected to return to coaching Monday, when the players return from Thanksgiving break.

Paterno has already said he will return next season to coach. Nothing can stop Joe Pa.

Jones on last chance

Cowboys' defensive back Adam "Pacman" Jones is down to his last chance after his reinstatement to the NFL following 30 days in a rehab facility.

Jones must follow the terms of his reinstatement, and any missteps could result in a lifetime ban.

Jones has returned to practice and is eligible to play Dec. 7 at the Pittsburgh Steelers.

He's been given so many chances I hope he doesn't mess this up. It would be a lot of talent gone to waste.

Reid benches McNabb

Philadelphia Eagles' quarterback Donovan McNabb was benched for the first time in his career at halftime Sunday.

The Eagles lost, 36-7, against the Baltimore Ravens.

The back-up quarterback, Kevin Kolb, also played poorly, and coach Andy Reid said he would start McNabb Thursday night against the Arizona Cardinals.

The 12- and 13-year-old Benning Bengals were defeated by the Clubview Bulldogs, 8-6, in the Columbus Youth Football playoffs of the Senior Midget Peanut Bowl Nov. 15 at Lakebottom Park.

In the first quarter, both teams battled for the ball but neither scored any points. The game remained scoreless until 7:24 in the second quarter when the Bulldogs drove down the field for a touchdown and a 2-point conversion, putting the Bulldogs on top, 8-0.

Starting at the Bulldogs' 48-yard line the Bengals gained 44 yards but were unsuccessful at scoring any points. The Bulldogs got the ball back but were unable to score and went into halftime leading 8-0.

Neither the Bulldogs nor the Bengals were able to score in the third quarter, but Bengal Reed Hundertmark scored a touchdown for the Bengals in the final quarter. The 2-point conversion failed, giving the Bulldogs an 8-6 victory.

"We went out to the field and tried our hardest and we gave it everything we had," said running back Julius Thomas. "It was a pretty close game. We didn't win, but I am happy just to have made it this far."

At halftime, Bengals' head coach Lee Obie

CYSS teams prepare for basketball season

THE BAYONET

With the youth services football and soccer teams done for the year, teams have begun practicing for the 2008-2009 youth services basketball season, said Dorrie Wagner, sports specialist with Child Youth Schools and Services.

This year, there are 13 teams from ages 6 to 13, Wagner said. "Each team will play one game per week on Saturdays with the first game on Dec. 13 and the final games Feb. 14," she said.

All games will be played in Santiago Gym due to upgrades being made at the CYSS gym.

The 2008-2009 wrestling season is underway with practices at the Bryant Wells Field House.

First-year CYSS coach Antoine Maynard had his 9- to 10-year-old team on the court practicing Monday for their final practice before the Thanksgiving holiday break.

"This will be my first year coaching at CYSS," Maynard said. "I just got the kids Nov. 14, so I have had them a couple of weeks, but they have come a long way and shown a lot of progress."

Maynard said his team has six or seven players who will be playing basketball for the first time, so he has been spending practice time working

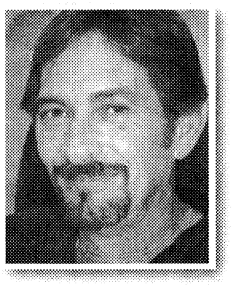
Tennessee Titans, the Rodney Dangerfield of the NFL

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler



The corks popping from the champagne bottles from Miami Dolphins players and fans around the world could be heard Nov. 23 when the final seconds ticked off the clock on LP Field in Nashville as the Tennessee Titans lost to the N.Y. Jets, 34-13.

Funny though, when the New England Patriots were on a roll last year, all you would hear on the sports shows were "the Patriots this, and the Patriots that." But, this year, it seems no one was giving the Titans any credit, or even thinking about them being able to match the Dolphins 1972 undefeated season.

Last year, toward the end of the season, Paul Warfield, a former Dolphin player was being asked about the Patriots and their run at an undefeated season. This year, I cannot remember any such interviews with former Dolphin players.

I guess you could say the Titans were getting no respect.

Sure, winning 10 games is a long way from an unbeaten season, yet at this same point last year, everyone was saying the Patriots would unseat the '72 Dolphins — but we know how that ended — with a N.Y. Giants 17-14 win over the previously unbeaten Patriots.

Now, for the record, I am a not a fan of any of these teams, but I wonder why there was not much talk about the Titans.

Could it be because they lack the high-profile quarterback and wide receiver? Maybe not. Taking a look back at the 2006 and 2007 final standings, the Patriots did play a tougher schedule based on the final 2006 standings. They did win nine games against teams .500 and below, and they did face five playoff teams from the year before.

The Titans have had an easier schedule this year based on the 2007 final standings, but they too will face five playoff teams from 2007 when the season is said and done.

Should the Titans run the table and make it to the Super Bowl, will they be mentioned in the same breath as the 2007 Patriots when it comes to having one of the best seasons of this decade?

I hope so. It seems as no one took them as a serious threat to unseat the '72 Dolphins. Like I said, I am not a fan of either team, but I also believe that when a team can run off a string of games like the Titans have, they deserve credit for their successes— as long as they do it honestly — ahem, Patriots organization, take note.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

Let's talk a bit about happy, healthy travels. This time of year brings a lot of traveling. Most will be traveling to visit family and friends for the holidays. But many times travel can take a big toll on your body and wreak havoc on your immune system, not to mention increase your stress levels.

So, I want to talk about ways to avoid some of the more common health pitfalls. Then, next week I want to give you tips to stay physically healthy and active — even while out of town.

One of the most common issues many have is back pain. Whether from sitting in a car, plane or bus, or sleeping on a mattress that's just too soft, back problems seem to get the best of us.

Well, here are a few options to avoid that.

While traveling, try to get out of your seat every hour to stretch your legs and walk around. If you have to sit for too long — try rotating your ankles or moving your foot in a vertical motion (like stepping on the gas) to keep the blood flowing in your legs. Also angle overhead vents away from you; cool air can stiffen your neck and shoulder muscles which lead to a stiff back.

If you find yourself in a bed that's just too soft, ask if someone can slide a board under the mattress for more support. Hotels normally have these available for people who ask.

However, I am not really sure your in-laws will — so, plan ahead. You may want to purchase a good orthopedic pillow. These have been shown to really help people with chronic back pain.

Another problem many people face during trips is getting or having an irritated stomach.

The best advice I can give is to try and prevent it before it happens. Many professionals suggest trying probiotics. These are healthy bacteria found in food or supplements, which may help reduce gas, bloating, and diarrhea. You can find probiotics in food as well as a pill form. Visit your local pharmacy and ask a trained pharmacist what they would recommend and try to start taking the supplements a few days before the trip.

Once you arrive, remember to drink plenty of water and consume at least 25 grams of fiber daily to keep things running smoothly.

Germs — everyone's worst enemy. The best way to avoid these nasty creatures is to wash those hands. You can also pick up small travel size antibacterial gel and wipes to help fend off germs when you can't find a place to wash.

Another tip is to try and avoid coffee and sip some warm green or black tea with lemon. It's especially high in helpful antioxidants.

Plus, it keeps you hydrated; a study published in the Journal of Environmental Health Research found that dry airplane air increases your risk of getting a case of the sniffles. A thin layer of mucus in your nose and throat normally flushes out bacteria and viruses, but when the air is dry, this lining gets parched, leaving you vulnerable to infection. Nasal sprays and gels can also help.

Have a great holiday.

said he was "a little nervous" about winning the game but said he thought his team could pull out the win.

Although the Bengals aren't going to the Peanut Bowl, Obie said he is proud anyway.

"I think it was a well played game and the kids really went out there and put everything they had into the game," he said. "It was the hardest I have seen the Bengals play this season."

The Bulldogs advanced to the Senior Midget Peanut Bowl while the Bengals' season is over.

on the fundamentals.

"A lot of them have never played basketball before, so I have been teaching them defense, the fundamentals of basketball and how to shoot," Maynard said. "My primary goal, though, is to have fun and teach them teamwork."

To further his goal of teaching teamwork, Maynard encourages the kids to help motivate each other, he said.

"Right now, we have come a long way," Maynard said. "I am allowing the kids to motivate each other. If they are shooting, they congratulate each other. They are clapping their hands and working as a team."

Maynard hopes the foundation will help the kids further their basketball skills and prepare them for basketball down the line.

"They are going to learn the fundamentals, and hopefully it will help them when they go and play at the middle school and high school," he said. "It is going to be a learning process.

"December 13 is our first game, and the kids are really excited and ready to go."

Hunters are reminded that all deer, turkeys, hogs, doves, squirrels and quail harvested on Fort Benning must be reported using the TELTRACK Hunter Control System by calling 706-545-8387 and selecting menu item number 4.

EAR TAGS

Auburn University is conducting a study of the feral pigs on Fort Benning to understand their population size, reproductive rates, movement patterns and food habits. This information will help determine what impacts feral pigs have on habitat, wildlife populations and military training.

Pig hunters, please report the ear tag number, ear tag color, date harvested and general location of harvest to the Conservation Branch.

Several pigs have been fitted with radio-tracking collars to help determine habitat use. Please attempt to identify and avoid harvesting collared pigs. If a collared pig is harvested or found, please return the collar to the Conservation Branch, First Division Road, Building 5884, Harmony Church. For more information, call 706-544-7079, 706-544-7516 or 706-544-7319.

GOLF CART RENTAL RATES

The price of an 18-hole golf cart rental at the Fort Benning Golf Course is $13 per rider. The nine-hole rate of $8 per rider will remain the same.

Active-duty sergeants and below playing fees are $6 for nine holes and $9 for 18 holes. Active-duty staff sergeants and above rates are $10 for nine holes and $18 for 18 holes. For more information, call 706-687-1940.

FLY FISHING FOR VETS

The nonprofit organization Fly Fishing for Vets will provide fly fishing excursions for Soldiers wounded in combat. The all-expenses-paid trip includes fishing lessons, equipment and lodging. The Soldier's spouse will be treated to a day at the spa. The trip is available to active-duty, Reserve and National Guard Soldiers assigned to the Warrior Transition Battalion. For information, call Ken Griffin at 678-993-9896 or Darlene Hines at 706-545-9636.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The Fort Benning Bandits will play the Tyndall Tigers Saturday at the Tyndall Fitness and Sports Center, Tyndall, Fla. The women's game starts at 1 p.m. and the men play at 3 p.m.

For more information, call 850-283-2631.

Wounded warriors attend Troy victory over Sun Belt rival

TROY UNIVERSITY
Dr. Lou Tomasi

Fort Benning and Troy University arranged a day trip for local wounded warriors to Troy University's 48-3 victory Nov. 22 over the University of Louisiana-Lafayette at the Movie Gallery Veterans Stadium in Troy, Ala. Attending the game from Fort Benning were wounded warriors and their families as guests of the university.

The day was part of Troy's Salute to Armed Forces Day with SGM Marilyn Sullivan, from the Wounded Warrior Transition Battalion, representing the wounded warriors at the pre-game coin-toss..

Chancellor Dr. Jack Hawkins spoke privately with the wounded warriors and was accompanied by his surviving platoon mates from a Marine Corps firefight during the Vietnam War.

Troy-Fort Benning's site director, Mr. William Glisson, director of logistics at Fort Benning, Dr. Ron Sheehan (Troy adjunct professor), and Mr. Eric Williamson, Marketing Director for Troy athletics coordinated the event.

"Troy University-Benning is pleased, honored, and proud that Troy-Benning and Ft. Benning's logistics were provided this opportunity to demonstrate our appreciation to the wounded warriors," Glisson said.

Sheehan expressed his admiration on behalf of the post commander to Troy University for the patriotic gesture to the men, women, and their families attached to the Wounded Warrior Transition Battalion.

Troy University is a Division I-A University that provides all Soldiers an opportunity to earn their University-level degree via Troy-eCampus, GoArmyEd, and EArmyU tuition assistance programs. Two-time defending Sun Belt champion, Troy University represented the Sun Belt in the R&L Carrier's New Orleans Bowl. College football's fifth bowl game will be held in the Louisiana Superdome on Dec. 21 at 7 p.m. and televised live on ESPN.

Used Cars To Be Sold
THIS WEEKEND
For As Low As $49

In one day, local Columbus dealer must eliminate Millions of Dollars worth of pre-owned vehicles. That day is Saturday, November 29, 2008

Columbus, GA
Saturday, November 29, 2008 Carl Gregory on Victory Drive is holding its biggest pre-owned super sale in the history of the company.

Saturday, November 29, 2008, they plan to eliminate their entire pre-owned inventory by means of a

$49
"Eliminator Sale,"

During this one-day event, every pre-owned vehicle will be offered for Incredible low prices - including vehicles for only $49.

Why price them so low? Ricky Spencer, Used Car Manager at Carl Gregory on Victory Drive, offers this explanation for this unprecedented sale. "We've already had record sales in our new car department this year, and we're overstocked with trade-ins. Then we've added a big inventory of factory program cars and some real bargains we've gotten at the auction. So, now we're over-loaded with inventory. It's that simple." Spencer adds, "Our goal is to reduce the amount of our overall inventory to a more manageable number, and to do that, we've got to price this inventory ridiculously low. Expect cars to be marked with incredible prices."

Spencer further added, "The community has shown us great support throughout the years, and we're very grateful. We would rather give these great deals to the customer than unload these vehicles at the auction. We believe that people will not only enjoy getting a great deal, they'll also have a lot of fun doing it. Imagine the excitement of being able to buy a vehicle for just $49. Not $49 down, $49 flat."

Almost 200 pre-owned cars, trucks, vans & SUV's are available for this huge event. "We absolutely must reduce our pre-owned inventory at all costs; so customers can expect these vehicles to be sold at incredible low prices," he stated. "We truly will have a vehicle for everyone's budget."

These vehicles are available at this price, Saturday, November 29, 2008, at Carl Gregory on Victory Drive, in Columbus, GA. Special arrangements have been made for a record number of customers, with event parking clearly marked.

According to Kevin Bragg, General Sales Manager at Carl Gregory on Victory Drive, here's how the $49 "Eliminator Sale" works: Saturday, November 29, 2008, precisely at 9:45 am, the gates will be opened so that customers may inspect the vehicles. When the $49 "Eliminator Sale" begins at 10:00 am, whoever is sitting behind the wheel of the vehicle will have the first chance to purchase the vehicle at the "Eliminator Sale" price. Prices will be marked one time to the "Rock Bottom" price, including vehicles for only $49. This "Eliminator Sale" is not for auto dealers, employees of the dealership, and its affiliates, are not permitted to participate. Carl Gregory on Victory Drive has arranged for special finance and credit analysts to be on hand. If you've had trouble in the past securing auto credit, don't count yourself out. If you'll bring your current payroll stub and your driver's license, chances are we can arrange your financing.

The "Eliminator Sale" will be the biggest event we've ever had," stated Bragg.

Customers are required to come early and register for entry to this incredible sale. Registration to participate begins at 8:00 AM. "We expect a record number of people to leave with great vehicles at unheard-of, low prices."

"If you've been waiting for a great deal on a great pre-owned vehicle, your wait is over. The $49 "Eliminator Sale" will be held Saturday, November 29, 2008. You'll have the perfect opportunity to get a quality vehicle at a substantial savings while we drastically reduce our inventory." The will be held Saturday, November 29, 2008 only at Carl Gregory on Victory Drive.

$49
"Eliminator Sale,"

Only one $49 vehicle per family, please. Questions may be directed to any sales consultant at (706)-324-4161.

Where can you see an Airborne reindeer, a snowball fight between seven-foot snowmen and a dancing Christmas tree? Where else, but the Ludy's Christmas Light Spectacular.

This one-story Columbus home takes on a whole new look for the holiday season. Decked out in candy canes, wreaths and marked with a sign reading "North Pole," it has been twinkling and glowing from Thanksgiving through New Year's Eve for six years now. If you go for the opening Thursday, don't expect a neighborhood house trimmed with a few icicle lights and an inflatable Santa in the yard. For the Ludy's, this is the event of the year.

"I've been doing this since I was 13," said Jerry Ludy, the creator behind the light show. "My mother let me decorate the outside of the house, and it just escalated from there."

Since then, it has "escalated" to more than 130 amps of power, 70,000 lights, two of his neighbors' houses and a radio station, 90.1FM, which plays Christmas music specially coordinated with the glittering lights.

"Everybody has hobbies," said Ludy, a self-avowed Santa who plays holiday music in July. "I work on Christmas 365 days a year: drawing up plans, building different displays, doing new songs. I really get excited bringing joy to kids. It's a lot of work; it's a lot of expense, but it brings a lot of joy."

That's how retired CSM Cleo Childress got involved. A longtime neighbor, he used to stand out on the sidewalk, watching the expression on children's faces as they looked up in awe at the Ludy light extravaganza. He decided he wanted to be a part of it.

"It brings out the kid in me," Childress said. "It's just fascinating … all the decorations, the excitement of the lights. I reckon if you could see it, you could understand where I'm coming from. If you see how Jerry has it set up with the music and the lights flashing, synchronized and dancing together, you'll believe."

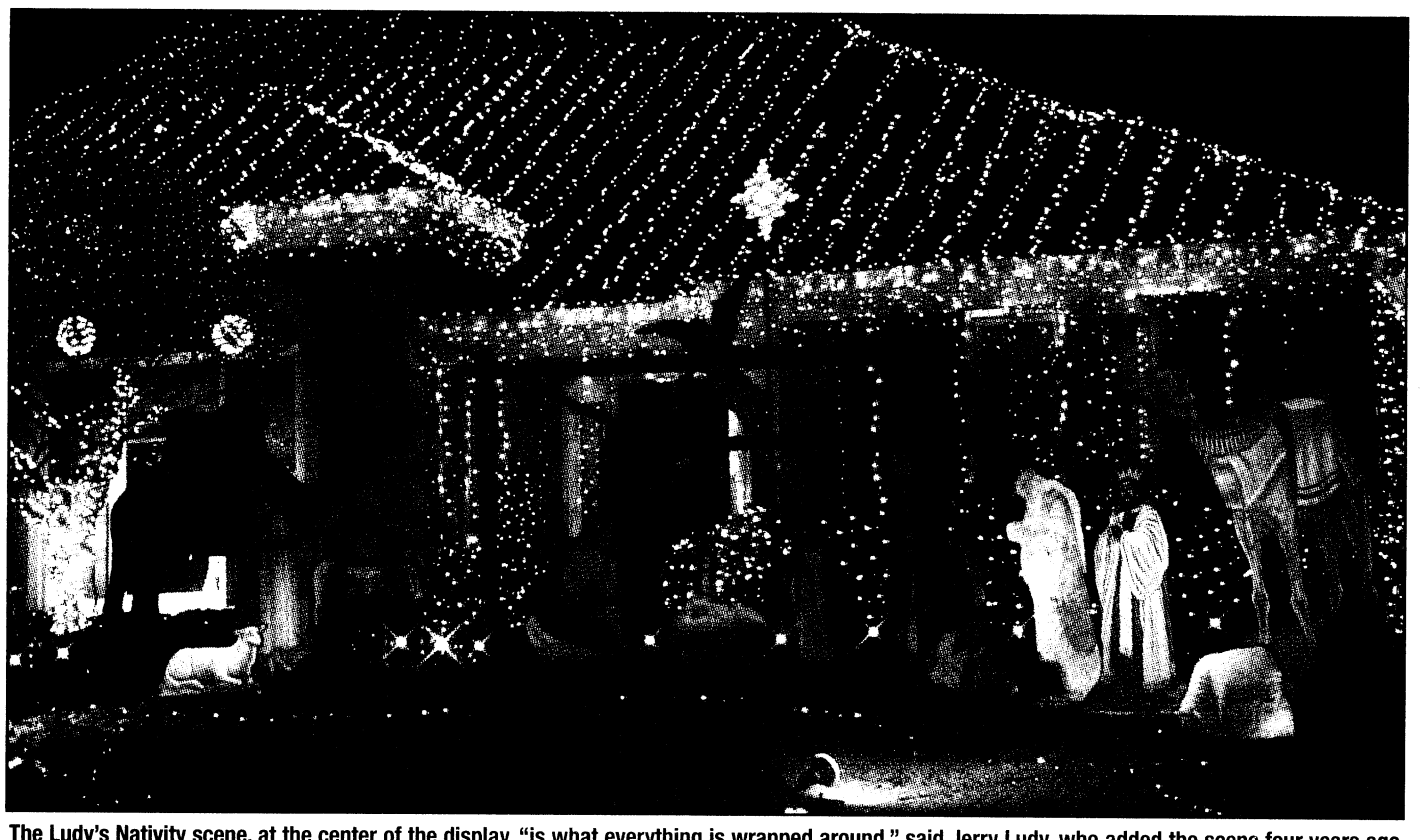
Presents thrown by a lighted Santa land on a trampoline and bounce into Childress' chimney. A snowman in his yard throws sparkling snowballs at neighboring snowmen. But Childress has something a little extra special for Fort Benning visitors. He paid tribute to his eight years as an Airborne instructor by placing a paratrooper reindeer over his house. He might do something to honor the Rangers next year, said the former Ranger instructor.

For Ludy, making each year better than the last is a personal goal. A few years back, Santa Claus — Ludy in full Christmas regalia — started visiting on the weekends with hot chocolate and cookies for all the good boys and girls, moms and dads, too. Children can sit on his lap, get a candy cane and pose for a photo as they read off their wish list. For kids who can't make it, those with a life threatening illness, the Ludy's have added something else to their show: the Make-a-Wish Foundation.

People volunteered donations for so many years, Ludy said, that he finally decided to let them contribute, not to his power bill, but to something more important. The family raised $1,800 last year and are going for $4,000 this year.

Giving isn't required at all, however, Ludy said. The shimmering display, with a Nativity scene at the center, is there for people to enjoy as a reminder of what Christmas is all about, and after a few minutes with the lights and music, Ludy guarantees you will leave with a brighter outlook.

The house is located at 5784 Ironstone Drive, just a few minutes from Fort Benning. The lights are on from dusk to about 10 p.m. For more information and a schedule of Santa's appearances, visit www.ludychristmas.com.



The Ludy's Nativity scene, at the center of the display, "is what everything is wrapped around," said Jerry Ludy, who added the scene four years ago. "Jesus is the reason for the season. We get so wrapped up in the world, we forget what life is all about. After 10 minutes at my display, you forget about the things of the world and focus on Christmas. You leave with a whole different outlook."

OPENING TODAY

FOUR CHRISTMASES

When upscale, happily unmarried San Francisco couple Kate and Brad find themselves socked in by fog Christmas morning, their exotic vacation plans morph into the family-centric holiday they had, until now, gleefully avoided.

Out of obligation — and unable to escape — they trudge to four relative-choked festivities, increasingly mortified to find childhood fears raised, adolescent wounds reopened ... and their very future together uncertain. As Brad counts the hours to when he can get away from their parents, step-parents, siblings and an assortment of nieces and nephews, Kate is starting to hear the ticking of a different kind of clock. And by the end of the day, she is beginning to wonder if their crazy families' choices are not so crazy after all.

Four Christmases stars Vince Vaughn, Reese Witherspoon, Robert Duvall and Sissy Spacek. It's rated PG-13 for sexual humor and language.

AUSTRALIA

An English aristocrat inherits an Australian ranch the size of Maryland. When English cattle barons plot to take her land, she reluctantly joins forces with a rough-hewn cattle driver to drive 2,000-head of cattle across hundreds of miles of the country's most unforgiving land, only to face the bombing of Darwin by the Japanese forces that had attacked Pearl Harbor months earlier. The movie stars Nicole Kidman, Hugh Jackman, David Wenman and Bryan Brown. It's rated PG-13 for violence, sensuality, and language.

TRANSPORTER 3

Frank Martin has been pressured into transporting Valentina, the kidnapped daughter of Leonid Vasilev, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency for the Ukraine, from Marseilles through Stuttgart and Budapest until he ends up in Odessa on the Black Sea.

Along the way, with the help of Inspector Tarconi, Frank has to contend with the people who strong-armed him to take the job, agents sent by Vasilev to intercept him, and the general non-cooperation of his passenger. Despite Valentina's cynical disposition and his resistance to getting involved, Frank and Valentina fall for each other, while escaping from one life-threatening situation after another.

Transporter 3 stars Jason Statham, Natalya Rudakova, François Berléand and Robert Knepper. It's rated PG-13 for action and violence, sexual content and drug material.

ALSO PLAYING

BOLT

For super-dog Bolt, every day is filled with adventure, danger and intrigue–at least until the cameras stop rolling.

When the star of a hit TV show is accidentally shipped from his Hollywood soundstage to New York City, he begins his biggest adventure yet: a cross-country journey through the real world. Armed only with the delusions that all his amazing feats and powers are real, and with the help of two unlikely traveling companions: a jaded, abandoned housecat named Mittens and a TV-obsessed hamster in a plastic ball named Rhino, Bolt discovers he doesn't need superpowers to be a hero.

The movie stars John Travolta, Susie Essman and Miley Cyrus. It's rated PG for action and peril.

TWILIGHT

Bella Swan has always been different, never caring about fitting in with the trendy girls at her Phoenix high school. When her mother re-marries and sends Bella to live with her father in the rainy little town of Forks, Wash., she doesn't expect much of anything to change. Then she meets the mysterious and dazzlingly beautiful Edward Cullen, a boy unlike any she's ever met. Edward is a vampire, but he doesn't have fangs and his family is unique in that they choose not to drink human blood.

Intelligent and witty, Edward sees straight into Bella's soul. Soon, they are swept up in an unorthodox romance. To Edward, Bella is what he has waited 90 years for – a soul mate. But the closer they get, the more Edward must struggle to resist the primal pull of her scent, which could send him into an uncontrollable frenzy. But what will Edward & Bella do when a clan of new vampires — James, Laurent and Victoria — come to town and threaten to disrupt their way of life?

MADAGASCAR: ESCAPE 2 AFRICA

Alex, Marty, Melman, Gloria, King Julien, Maurice, the penguins and the chimps find themselves marooned on the distant shores of Madagascar. In the face of this obstacle, the New Yorkers have hatched a plan so crazy it just might work. With military precision, the penguins have repaired an old crashed plane—sort of.

Once aloft, this unlikely crew stays airborne just long enough to make it to the wildest place of all — the vast plains of Africa, where the members of our zoo-raised crew encounter species of their own kind for the very first time. Africa seems like a great place — but is it better than their Central Park home?

Ben Stiller, Chris Rock, David Schwimmer, Jada Pinkett Smith, Sacha Baron Cohen and Cedric the Entertainer, star in the movie.

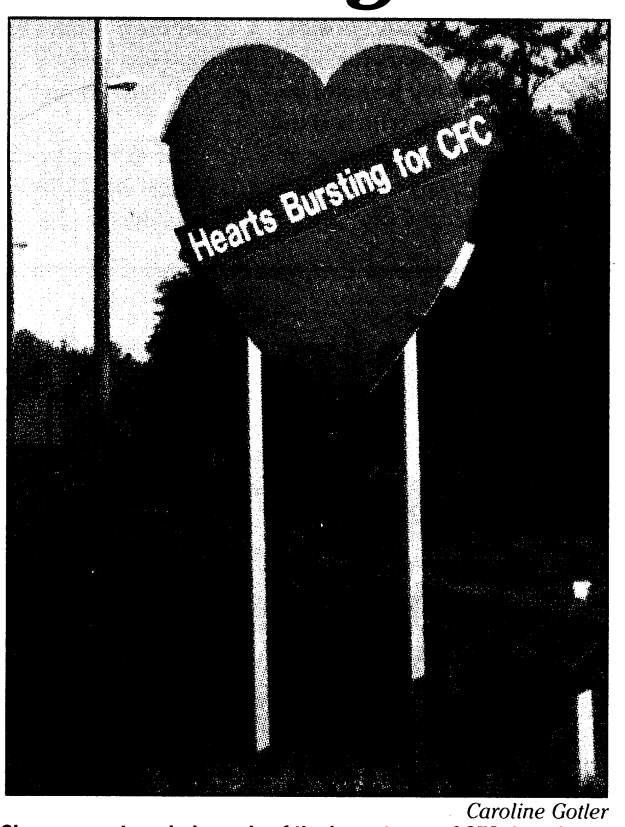
Benning donates nearly $1M to CFC



Caroline Gotler
Signs on post remind people of the importance of CFC donations.

The Fort Benning community donated nearly $1 million to the Combined Federal Campaign, a federally operated workplace charity campaign. The record amount was collected during CFC's annual campaign, which began Aug. 29 and ended in late October.

"Fort Benning did an absolutely outstanding job this year with the CFC," said Chuck Walls, deputy garrison commander. "What's particularly amazing about it is that, despite what you hear about the economy, we still raised nearly $1 million, and that's unprecedented for Fort Benning."

This year's campaign was so successful, organizers decided to extend it.

"We left the doors open for people to give for about another four weeks because of the success we saw during the campaign season," Walls said. "We wanted to make sure all the units that wanted to be involved, got involved."

The CFC supports approximately 2,000 charities, ranging from local initiatives like the Columbus Alliance for Battered Women's Hope Harbour shelter, to international funds like UNICEF. Any amount donated can make a difference, Walls said.

"It's not the amount," he said. "Whether you gave $2 or $2,000, it's the fact that you want to give to a charity that you feel near and dear to."

Heart-shaped roadside signs at Fort Benning's entrances were a new addition to this year's campaign. The signs, which were decorated with messages about CFC, were meant to highlight the campaign and its progress, said Cindy Cain, CFC chair.

"We wanted to have something out there to let people know what was going on," she said.

To make a donation during campaign season, Fort Benning employees should contact their supervisor, Cain said. Although monetary donations are only accepted during CFC's campaign, Cain emphasized the importance of getting involved in other ways.

Soldier receives top firefighter award

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

SSG Kevin Duquette was named Alabama Firefighter of the Year Nov. 15 by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Duquette, a captain in the Fort Mitchell Volunteer Fire Rescue squad, was nominated for the award by the commander of VFW Post 5180, Mike Craig, and VFW member SFC(R)Jeffrey Klein.

"I was really surprised," Duquette said. "I knew that I had won an award at the district level, and I was pretty happy about that. But, I had no clue that I was going to win an award for the entire state — the thought never even crossed my mind."

Duquette, who is currently assigned to the Warrior Transition Battalion at Fort Benning, said his family influenced his decision to become a firefighter.

"I've got a history of firefighters in my family, so one day, I just decided to go down to the station and see what it's all about, and whether I could help them out," he said.

Duquette said he instantly felt welcomed by the other firefighters, and began devoting much of his free time to the fire department.

Duquette's dedication to helping others and his leadership skills as a firefighter earned him the award, Craig said.

"He's a selfless server," Craig said. "He spends all of his free time at the fire department. He's directly responsible for saving lives in Russell County."

"Just being a full time Soldier is enough as it is, but being a volunteer firefighter on top of that is a real plus," Klein said.

SSG Kevin Duquette, winner of the VFW Alabama Firefighter of the Year award, demonstrates fire fighting techniques.

Even though Duquette has only been a member of the Fort Mitchell fire squad for a year and a half, he has already earned the rank of captain — a quick rate of promotion he credits to his military background and dedication to excellence.

"I've been in classes since February to become certified as a volunteer firefighter," Duquette said. "It's a rare thing for volunteer firefighters to be certified, and I'm one of only a handful in the entire county."

Such commitment is typical of Duquette, Klein said.

"His character is impeccable, beyond reproach," Klein said.

Duquette plans to continue firefighting, and would like to become a full-time firefighter after he gets out of the Army.

"It's become a career path for me," he said. "It's nice to be able to do good things for other people and to have a sense of helping the community."

For information on how to become a volunteer firefighter, contact the Fort Mitchell Volunteer Fire Rescue at 334-855-2074. Volunteers must live in the Fort Mitchell area. Experience in firefighting is not required..

Loaded 45 campaign promotes safe holiday driving

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Fort Benning's Loaded 45 traffic safety campaign is underway. The campaign, which refers to the 45 days between Thanksgiving and New Year's Eve, aims to reduce drunken driving during the holiday season and promote safety. The last 45 days of the year are some of the most dangerous for drivers, officials said.

"This is the time of year when people have a lot of parties," said CPT Kevin Sparks, Fort Benning traffic supervisor. "It can also be difficult for Soldiers who are away from home during the holidays and they may turn to alcohol."

To reduce drunken driving, MP patrols will be stationed in on-post areas identified as having a high concentration of DUI incidents, and MPs will be present in increased numbers on all roads.

"We do training classes to teach our folks to be more aware and what to look for," said Sparks. "We also ask our guards at the gate to be more vigilant and report anything unusual to us."

Digital message boards will be placed at post gates to let drivers know how fast they are driving and to remind them to slow down. According to the Georgia Governor's Office of Highway Safety, safe driving is especially

OPINION

VARIOUS VOICES

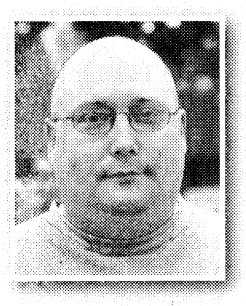
What special measures do you take to keep your holiday guests safe?

People who come to my house and have something to drink are going to stay there or have somebody pick them up. Today our brigade sergeant major said his daughter was hit by a drunk driver. She's in a coma and the driver died. It's not safe. They're not drinking and driving if they come to my house.

— SPC Bernard Ford
13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion

I'm moving all the glass stuff out of the way because I have family coming with kids. I move all my tall statues that could fall over. It's for the safety of the children.

— Katrina Reynolds
Family member



The big thing for us in our light display is we have a power strip. We use those for the tree, the windows, everywhere. You've got a mini-breaker inside a power strip, so if you overload the circuit, it will turn off. It gives you double protection. If it remains overloaded, the lights get hot and a fire could start.

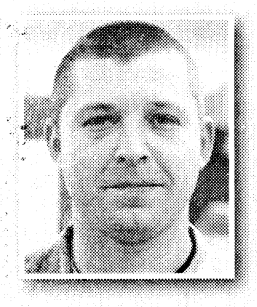
— Jeff Shuck
Installation Plans and Operations

I'm big on safety. You know kids like to put everything in their mouth. I make sure my son can't pull the ornaments off the tree and put them in his mouth because he could choke on them. With my friends, I make sure there's always a designated driver.

— Officer Candidate Nicholas Cooreman
Officer Candidate School

My husband and I make sure our kids are out of the kitchen and away from the stovetops when we're cooking for Christmas and all other times. We have those childproof gates. We don't want our children to get hurt. We don't want any accidents.

— SGT Lakeshia Smith
1st Battalion, 329th Infantry Regiment



I make sure they have a designated driver if they need one, so that way at least somebody is sober and being responsible. My wife and I swap weekends going out and being the designated driver.

— SPC Brad Wittendorf
203rd Brigade Support Battalion

I try to keep stuff away from the little kids. I make sure all the pans are pushed back on the stove, so they don't pull a pot of hot grease on themselves. When it gets cold, we start a fire in the fireplace. It's part of the Christmas atmosphere. We make sure the fireplace screen is closed. You certainly don't want your Christmas season ruined by having your children get hurt or the house burn down.

— Scott Meyer
Family member

When I have people come over, I make sure I confiscate the keys to make sure no one takes off driving if they've been drinking, period. If they're coming over to my house, the keys will be taken before the drinks are consumed.

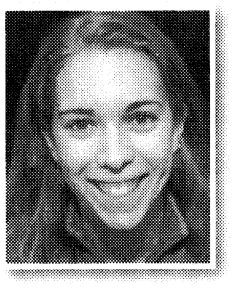
Sounds of the season

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

"Woosh! Aaah! Thunk!"

Each new season of the year announces its arrival with unique sounds—the singing birds of spring, the rustling leaves of fall or the chirping crickets of summer. But in Oxford, Ohio, the arrival of winter is announced by an entirely different kind of sound: the falling of girls in high heels on icy pavement.



I lived in Oxford for four years while attending Miami University. I thoroughly enjoyed my time there, but the town doesn't offer many activities for students. So, like countless other college towns, Oxford boasts a disproportionately high number of bars for its population. The bars are concentrated in a single area of approximately five city blocks, which is the nighttime destination for students; and because of the town's small size and proximity to campus, the preferred way to get to the bars is on foot.

If you've ever spent winter in Ohio, you're probably familiar with the biting winds and coating of ice on the sidewalks. But wind and weather have never prevented Miami's female students from putting on their best heels and sequined tank tops for a 20-minute hike from the dorms to the bars on a Saturday night in December. They may be frozen, but they'll still look good.

Even though this practice is a great way to catch pneumonia, it's still much safer than attempting to drive home after a night of drinking. Falling on an icy sidewalk may hurt for a short time, but it's nothing compared to the permanent damage that a drunken driver can cause to themselves and others.

So, please, if you decide to celebrate this holiday season by having a few drinks, don't drive. Always go out in groups and designate a driver. If you're hosting a party, make sure your guests stop drinking at least two to three hours before they leave, and monitor them closely for any signs they may have had too much.

If you do need a ride, call SafetyCab at 706-660-6069.

Be safe, have fun this holiday season, and if you're going out in Ohio, don't forget to wear your coat and sensible shoes.

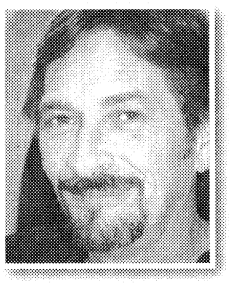
It's beginning to look remarkably like Christmas

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

With Christmas drawing near, what do you expect to find under the tree this year?

The day before Black Friday I was asked what I would like for Christmas, and as I do every year, I said I really didn't want anything and that I had everything I really needed, and that is the truth.

Not wanting to be the Grinch who stole Christmas, or Scrooge, I went ahead and gave out my Christmas list — all practical things.



Once you get to be my age things become less important, while the thought of the gift and the memories associated with Christmas become more important.

I was reminded of how things change from Christmas to Christmas when I looked at where I will be this year as opposed to last year — a different town and a different job.

While I have my own family and loved ones, I now have new family members — my Bayonet family. So, I am fortunate that this year both will all be in the same town.

It will be another memory to add to the number of Christmases I have spent on this earth — a Christmas present in itself.

There are some things money just can't buy, and as I have said so many times before, things are just that — things — and things can be replaced.

Two of my fondest Christmas memories are very similar, and strangely enough, one memory was one of receiving, and one of giving.

As a teenager, I remember one Christmas of only wanting one thing, a 12-gauge shotgun. I loved going to my aunt's house and squirrel hunting on her property, but I always had to use one of my cousin's shotguns, so I wanted my own.

Christmas Day came and as I looked under the tree, there was nothing there that remotely looked like it could be the gift I most coveted - a shotgun.

Either my mother was having some fun with me, much like I do at Christmas time, or she was teaching me a very valuable lesson about "things." I have never asked her which.

After all the gifts were handed out and there was nothing left under the tree, my mother told her seemingly disappointed son to look in the closet, and there it was — a Mossberg 12-gauge pump shotgun.

She has never disappointed me, but gave me something more important than a shotgun — she gave me a memory.

Many years later I had the chance to apply what I had learned from her with my son and his first shotgun.

The year he got his first shotgun he awoke Christmas day and didn't find anything remotely resembling the gift he most coveted — a shotgun. So, after all the gifts were opened, only one small box remained. He opened the box only to find a small riddle sending him to another location, and there, another riddle, before finally sending him to the end of his rainbow. At the end of that rainbow he found his pot of gold — a shotgun.

Beneath two empty trees, decades apart, two young men found something more important than a shotgun, they found a memory of Christmas.

Memories, a kind word, a smile, forgiveness, love, understanding, togetherness and family — all things that can be given for Christmas — priceless gifts.

Victims of Sexual Assault Requested to Talk to Task Force

Fort Benning will host the Defense Task Force on Sexual Assault in the Military Services from Tuesday to Thursday as it conducts its worldwide assessment.

Members of the task force would like to provide an opportunity for the public, or victims or witnesses of past sexual assaults who are not part of an ongoing or active case under investigation, to meet individually with a member of the task force. Additionally, victims or witnesses should not be involved in any incident subject to an ongoing or upcoming judicial proceeding.

The task force wants to make sure the public, victims and witnesses are heard in private, to have an opportunity to tell their story to someone outside of the military's chain of command. All information given to the task force will remain confidential.

When the worldwide assessment is complete, information gathered may be included in a report to Congress in 2009 about trends in the military on sexual assault programs and response.

People willing to talk to the Task Force should call Jenny Holbert at 1-703-325-6656 or 1-888-325-6640; or Fort Benning's Sexual Assault Response coordinator at 706-545-8740. Go to www.dtic.mil/dtfsams for more information about the Task Force.

THE BAYONET

The fifth sergeant major of the Army died Saturday. SMA(R) William G. Bainbridge, who served as the Army's top NCO from 1975 to his retirement in 1979, was 83.

His 36-year career included serving as Fort Benning's sergeant major of the U.S. Army Infantry Training Center, from September 1966 through August 1967, when he was "by-name" selected to become the sergeant major of First Army at Fort Meade, Md., where he worked as the "eyes and ears" for Lt. Gen. Jonathon O. Seaman, according to Bainbridge's book Top Sergeant written with Dan Cragg. In the book, Bainbridge explained the rank of command sergeant major was introduced in 1968, and in December 1968 he was selected for the rank from the first list after being recommended by Seaman.

But Bainbridge didn't start his Army career as a sergeant major. He volunteered for the draft and on June 7, 1943, he was in the Army. During the Battle of the Bulge, Bainbridge was assigned to the 106th Infantry Division's 423rd Infantry Regiment. He became a prisoner of war when the Germans surrounded the regiment.

"After I was captured, I still didn't let them break my spirits, and I definitely learned from that experience," Bainbridge told The Bayonet after accepting the Doughboy Award in June 1998.

He was the third NCO to receive the Infantry's Doughboy Award.

Bainbridge was the first sergeant major of the U.S. Army Sergeants Major Academy at Fort Bliss, Texas, when it was authorized in 1972 and he helped develop the curriculum.

Bainbridge's legacy is the development of the NCO education system, said SMA(R) Jack Tilley, the Army's 12th sergeant major of the Army.

"He never quit serving," Tilley said. "He was always developing Soldiers, being a mentor. When I was the sergeant major of the Army, I called him. He was always very helpful, honest and no nonsense. His opinion was always very helpful."

In Top Sergeant, Bainbridge wrote, "Two accomplishments as Sergeant Major of the Army I was particularly proud of had to do with the training and preparation of soldiers as NCOs."

After serving 31 years on active duty, Bainbridge retired and became the first enlisted Soldier appointed as an officer at the Soldiers' and Airmen's Home in Washington, D.C. When he retired from that position in July 1991, he moved to Palm Bay, Fla.

Bainbridge is survived by his wife of 63 years, Hazel, and their daughters, Kathryn Koop and husband Steve, and Mary Moore and husband Paul; two grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Burial with full military honors will take place at Arlington National Cemetery. The date has not been determined.

important on rural roads, such as those found in many areas on and around Fort Benning. Although only one-quarter of Americans live in rural areas, more than half of all traffic fatalities occur on rural roads, according to the GOHS.

Sparks encourages everyone to exercise caution and to plan ahead when celebrating this holiday season.

"Designate a driver — that's probably the biggest thing you can do," he said. "Always have a workable plan for how you're going to get home safely."

Safety Cab, a free service that provides rides home to anyone who has been drinking, is another great resource, Sparks said.

For those throwing parties at home, Sparks recommends establishing a cutoff time two to three hours before guests leave to stop serving alcohol.

"If you're hosting a party, have activities planned so that there will be more activities than drinking, and always serve food," he said.

Sparks said he hopes the campaign will help prevent needless injury or loss of life.

"We want to encourage people not to drink and drive because this is a time of year when many families lose their loved ones, and it's unnecessary," he said.

• Christy Kuriatnyk, wife of Navy LT CDR Alex Kuriatnyk, was selected as one of 10 finalists for the 2009 Military Spouse of the Year contest. Alex was previously assigned to the 36th Engineer Group on Fort Benning as a design engineer but has since moved to other duty stations. Daughter of a Korean War veteran and an Operation Homefront volunteer, Christy remains in Fort Benning to let her children remain at the same school. As a Certified Child Passenger Safety Technician, she has volunteered at Martin Army Community Hospital and developed a successful Booster Seat Program for elementary children, which has since been presented in over 37 area schools. She also organized a "Skateboard Jam" for children which taught skateboard safety and a Lead-Safe Toy Program for daycares.

CFC: Uses time donations

"If you can't give monetarily during the campaign season, you can give of your time during the off season," she said. "There are a lot of opportunities within the local community during the year where you can volunteer."

The record donations reflect the quality of the Fort Benning community, Walls said.

"The great thing is the giving itself," he said. "Benning will get the benefits of giving by being such a giving post. It speaks volumes about the people here on the installation."

Donovan Research Library will close Dec. 5 while the library moves from Infantry Hall to its new location in Building 9230, the old PX. The library is expected to reopen in mid-January. It will remain in Building 9230 for nearly three years until its new facility in the Maneuver Center of Excellence is complete.

Donovan Research Library will be one of the first facilities to move out of Infantry Hall in preparation for the renovations. Patrons will not be able to check out books while it is closed. After the library reopens, any previously checked out books can be returned to Building 9230.

"Patrons can still visit any of the other libraries on post during that time," said Ericka Loze-Hudson, director of the Donovan Research Library.

FURNITURE MANAGEMENT AND FACILITY CLEARANCE PROCESS FOR SWING SPACE MOVES

Each organization will identify what furniture will relocate to the swing space, what is unserviceable, and what is excess serviceable. Unserviceable furniture will be turned in thru DOL to DRMO for scrap. Serviceable excess furniture will be available to other authorized Fort Benning organizations to acquire as needed. Serviceable excess furniture not immediately cross-leveled will be stored in the Donovan Research Library from mid-January until May

1. Commanders, Directors, and Staff will insure accountability is maintained throughout and that fraud, waste and abuse is prevented.

Transportation support of excess furniture will be available in the movement contract. Organizations will clear their areas with the DPW Facilities manager, Sam Whitt, IAW USAIC Reg 405-7. Areas must be cleared of all furniture, furnishings, equipment, debris, and trash. Keys will be turned over to DPW.

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS
PVT Erik S. Anderson

Soldiers from the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, celebrated their successful completion of Air Assault school Nov. 25 during a ceremony on Kelley Hill at Fort Benning.

The 10-day course included physical training exercises, classroom courses and skills tests to successfully complete the school and earn Air Assault badges. On the first day 201 students stood in formation, preparing for the grueling challenge ahead. On the day of graduation, 112 Soldiers were awarded their badges.

For SGT Zena Landron, Company A, 203rd Brigade Support Battalion, the ceremony was special because she shared a unique connection with another graduate. Her husband, SGT Israel Landron, Troop D, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, also successfully completed the course and earned his Air Assault badge.

"We planned to complete the school together all along," said Zena, the only female from the graduating class.

The couple, approaching their third anniversary, agreed that the school was difficult.

"The 12-mile road march was the toughest thing for me," Zena said.

"For me, it was the obstacle course with the two mile run, I almost didn't pass," her husband said.

Despite the challenges presented by the Air Assault school, the couple tackled the hurdles head on, as a team.

"It was great doing it together, we were able to accomplish challenges we never thought we could," Israel said.

The difficulty of the class was noted by another graduate.

"The first couple of days were pretty strenuous," said PFC Zachary Mills, Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, Brigade Special Troops Battalion. "But toward the end with the sling load portion, you really had to know your stuff."

For Mills, attending the school was a natural choice.

"I wanted to do it because I want to go as far as I can in the Army, do as many schools as I can," he said.

Mills and the Landron's agreed the best part of the school was rappelling from the UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters.

"I wasn't nervous at all, I like thrills like that," Mills said. "It is something I probably won't ever get to do again in my life."

11th Engineer Battalion changes command

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

LTC Dwayne Smith assumed command of the 11th Engineer Battalion from LTC Paul Owen Tuesday at York Field.

Owen

It's not Smith's first time at Fort Benning. His Army career started on post in 1986 when he was an enlisted Soldier. He was a draftsman, surveyor and soils analyst. In June 1990, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant through the ROTC program at Columbus State University. Smith headed to Fort Rucker, Ala. In 1991 and served as an assistant operations officer with the 1st Aviation Brigade. It was five years later that Smith made his way back to Fort Benning and served for three years as personnel, assistant brigade engineer and company commander of the 317th Engineer Battalion. He went to South Carolina National Guard's 178th Engineer Battalion before coming back to Fort Benning as an operations officer and executive officer for the 36th Engineer Brigade. Before assuming command of the 11th Eng. Bn., Smith was a military assistant to the assistant secretary of the Army (civil works), at the Pentagon.

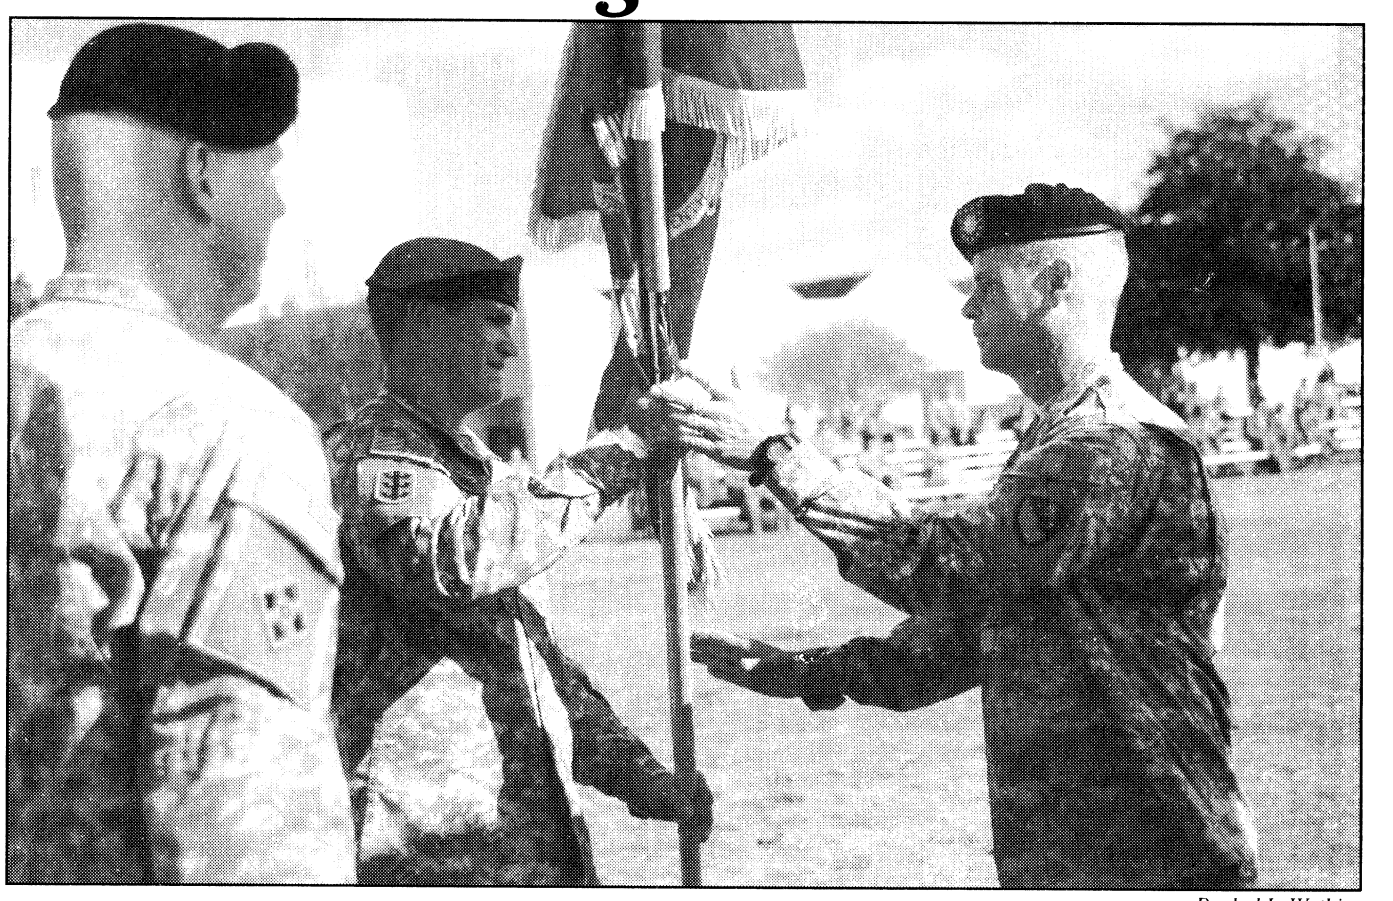
"I'm excited to be back at Fort Benning — it was my first choice," Smith said.

His mission for the battalion: combat readiness.

"We don't have a deployment order at this minute, but we could get one at any time so it's important that we are prepared," he said.

His plan for being prepared includes engineer training — building bridges, buildings and doing construction on post.

Owen remembers when he came to Fort Benning two years ago. The battalion was activated at the time and he didn't have an office or a motor pool. He had around 300 Soldiers. Now, there are more than 700 Soldiers.



Rachel L. Watkins

Col. Kent Savre, commander of the 36th Engineer Brigade, passes the 11th Engineer Battalion colors to Lt. Col. Dwayne Smith as outgoing commander Lt. Col. Paul Own watches Tuesday at York Field. Owen will assume a position as the division engineer at Fort Bragg N.C.

"I will always remember Fort Benning as the best place to work," he said. It's been an honor to serve here and I know this battalion is in good hands."

Owen will assume a position as the division engineer with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Col. Kent Savre, 36th Eng. Bde. commander, said Owen is a "truly spirited and enthusiastic warrior leader."

"Soldiers need guidance, direction, purpose and leadership to achieve mission success and for the past two years, Lieutenant Colonel Paul Owen has been that leader." He said. "Paul's visionary planning, spot-on decision making and inspirational leadership allowed this battalion to excel as they stood up, transformed, trained for combat, conducted combat operations, reset and really showcased everything we do as Army engineers."

DEFENSE TASK FORCE ON SEXUAL ASSAULT

Fort Benning will host the Defense Task Force on Sexual Assault in the Military Services from Tuesday through Thursday as part of its worldwide assessment of Army, Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force installations.

Members of the task force would like to meet with victims or witnesses of past sexual assaults who are not part of an ongoing or active case under investigation. Victims or witnesses should not be involved in any incident subject to an ongoing or upcoming judicial proceeding.

The task force wants to make sure the public, victims and witnesses are heard in private, to have an opportunity to tell their story to someone outside of the military's chain of command. All information given to the task force will remain confidential.

When the worldwide assessment is complete, information gathered may be included in a report to Congress in 2009 about trends in the military on sexual assault programs and response.

People willing to talk to the Task Force should call Jenny Holbert at 703-325-6656 or 1-888-325-6640; or Fort Benning's Sexual Assault Response coordinator at 706-545-8740.

For more information on the task force, go to www.dtic.mil/dtfsams.

BUENA VISITA ACP OPENS

The Buena Vista Road access control point is open. Soldiers and civilians with a Fort Benning decal and proper identification can use the ACP, which provides access to Sand Hill, Kelley Hill, Harmony Church and all points north. The hours of operation are 5 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION

The Directorate of Public Works, in conjunction with the Columbus Water Works and their contractors, will make upgrades to the underground utility lines beneath Moye Road in Sand Hill, beginning at 8 a.m. Dec. 9. All work should be completed by 5 p.m. the same day.

A temporary detour road (gravel) will be constructed to allow travel around the construction area. Alternate routes around this road closure or detour include Wildcat Road and 2nd Armored Division Road.

Detour areas will be clearly marked.

ROAD CLOSURE

The Directorate of Public Works, in conjuction with its contractors, will close Lavoie Avenue on Main Post to remove the smoke stack from the old power plant, which is on the corner of Lavoie Avenue and Lenahan Street. Lavoie Road will be closed from 8 a.m. Dec. 15 until 5 p.m. Dec. 19. Alternate routes around Lavoie include Sightseeing Road, Lenahan Street, Eckel Avenue and Riordan Street. The detours will be marked.

MILITARY MENTORS FOR SENATE YOUTH

Applications are now open for military mentors for the U.S. Senate Youth Program. The USSYP is a weeklong program for high school students interested in pursuing careers in public service. Each group of six to eight student delegates is assigned a military mentor, who is responsible for them during the week. Military mentors will be selected based on military career, history of working with youth groups, eduactional background, maturity and leadership skills. Eight officers from each branch of service will be selected.

For more information, visit www.ussenateyouth.org.

NATIONAL INFANTRY FOUNDATION PAVER PROGRAM

The National Infantry Foundation has a commemorative paver program, In the Footsteps of Heroes, designed to give permanent recognition to heroes of all kinds at the new National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center.

The 4" x 8" granite pavers will line Heritage Walk, a 1,000-foot long, 20-foot wide path connecting the new museum and the parade field in Patriot Park. The $250 cost for the pavers is tax deductible and includes one free 2" x 4" replica paver that purchasers or honorees can keep on a desktop. The pavers can be engraved with a custom message. Pavers purchased by Jan. 30 will be placed along Heritage Walk in time for the National Infantry Museum's grand opening March 20.

Orders can be placed online or with a downloadable order form at www.nationalinfantrymuseum.com. Proceeds will be used to complete construction of the museum.

REWARD

A reward of $2,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for armed robbery of a Soldier on Sept. 8 behind the Kelley Hill Shoppette, Building 9177. The person is described as an African-American male, approximately 6 feet tall and 230 pounds with an athletic build, round face, clean shaven. He was wearing a black do-rag, white baggy T-shirt, black shorts and black sneakers.

Anyone having knowledge of the incident, but not wishing to be identified, will be briefed on available options for maintaining confidentiality and is encouraged to call the Fort Benning CID Office at 706-545-7905 or the Military Police desk at 706-545-5222. The reward offer expires Sept. 18, 2009.

LENDING CLOSET MOVES

Army Community Service's Relocation Readiness and Lending Closet has moved to Building 2621 in Soldiers' Plaza. For more information, call 706-545-0403.

CUSTOMER EVALUATION SYSTEM

Rate services you receive from organizations on post or anywhere in the world via the Interactive Customer Evaluation system.

Log onto the ICE Web site at http://ice.disa.mil, pick out the installation and service of interest and complete the online customer comment card, which will be sent for action directly to the organization rated.

Those who leave their contact information will receive a response from the organization. ICE kiosks are located in customer service areas around Fort Benning or comments can be submitted from any computer using the Web site.

ID CARD OFFICE

The post ID card section operates on an appointment only basis to serve each customer in 10 minutes. There will be same day appointments available for people with emergencies, including lost or stolen ID cards or an emergency medical situation. For appointments, call 706-545-4068.

CITIZENSHIP STUDY GROUP

Army Community Service offers a biweekly study group to provide information needed for the U.S. citizenship test, such as information on government structure, history and American customs. This class also refers students to citizenship counseling for help with U.S Citizenship and Immigration Services forms or for obtaining U.S. citizenship.

In order to maximize the understanding of the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services test and interview, a strong-to-intermediate comprehension of English is required. (ESL information will be given to students.) The class is every Tuesday from 10 to 11 a.m. or every Wednesday from 6 to 8 p.m. in Building 2625, Soldiers' Plaza.

For more information or to register, call 706-545-4043.

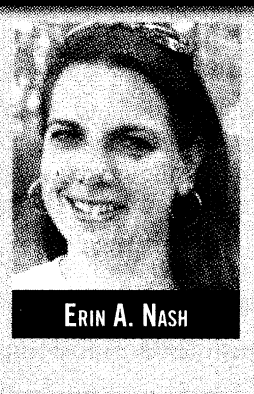
BENCH NOTES



ERIN A. NASH

Tuberville resigns

After 10 seasons as the head coach of the Auburn Tigers, Tommy Tuberville resigned Dec. 3.

The Tigers, 5-7, are a huge disappointment this season.

A representative for Auburn was said to have made contact with Texas Tech coach Mike Leach as a possible replacement for Tuberville if interested.

BCS tightens

With a big win over Oklahoma State Nov. 29, Oklahoma leaped over Texas to take the second spot in the BCS standings, just behind Alabama. Texas dropped to third, followed by Florida in fourth and USC in fifth.

My pick for the game of the week has got to be Alabama versus Florida, at 4 p.m. Saturday on CBS. Talk about a huge SEC matchup.

Burress charged

New York Giants' receiver Plaxico Burress was charged with two felony counts of criminal possession of a weapon in the second degree Dec. 1.

Burress accidentally shot himself in the right thigh Nov. 28 at a nightclub in Manhattan.

He was charged and released on $100,000 bond and ordered to return to court March 31.

If Burress is convicted, he could face from 3 and one-half to 15 years in prison.

NFL heads back to UK

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers will "host" the New England Patriots at Wembley Stadium in London, England, Oct. 25, 2009.

It will be the third straight year an NFL game has been played in London. Both games previously played at Wembley sold out.

Marbury in between

Stephon Marbury, point guard for the New York Knicks, was told to stay away from the team until they can figure out a way to cut him free from the team.

Marbury was offered a buyout by Knicks' president Donnie Walsh, but he didn't like it, so there's been no resolution.

MLB HOF ballots

The smallest list ever of players on the baseball 2009 Hall of Fame ballot was announced Dec. 1, with just 23 names.

Those names include Jim Rice, career steals leader Rickey Henderson, Don Mattingly, Andre Dawson, and of course, Mark McGwire.

McGwire only received 23.6 percent of the 75 percent votes needed for induction in the 2008 election.

Army, Navy square off Saturday

Senior Fullback Collin Mooney leads the Army Black Knights against the Naval Academy on Saturday in Philadelphia. Mooney, who leads Army in rushing with 1,285 yards, needs just 54 yards in the game to become West Point's single-season rushing leader. Kickoff from Lincoln Financial Field is 12:06 p.m. and can be seen on CBS Sports.

ARMY ATHLETIC COMMUNICATIONS

One of the most storied rivalries in all of sports resumes Saturday when the Army-Navy contest will be played in Philadelphia for the 81st time in the 109 games between the two service academies. CBS will broadcast the game nationally for the 13th consecutive season. Kickoff is scheduled for noon.

Army is looking to snap a three-game losing streak after a 30-3 defeat at Rutgers Nov. 22. The Black Knights last victory came Oct. 25 against Louisiana Tech.

The annual rivalry game will feature two of the most prolific rushing offenses in the nation.The Black Knights, in their first season running the option since 1999, boast the country's ninth-rated rushing offense at 254 yards per game while the Mids lead the nation. averaging 292 yards per contest.

The Army defense is hoping for a repeat peformance of last year's game when the Black Knights held Navy. the nation's number one running team at nearly 350 yards per game, to 287 yards on the ground and forced the Mids to punt a season-high six times. The 2008 Black Knights rank 32nd in the nation against the run, allowing 124.82 yards per game. No team has gained more than 184 yards rushing against Army this season, and the Black Knights have held three foes to under 100 yards. In its first service academy

The 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, moved into the quarterfinals of the post preseason basketball tournament with a resounding 74-47 victory over Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, at the SFC Paul R. Smith Fitness Center Tuesday.

1/19, last year's preseason tournament champions, is hoping to repeat its feat of a year ago and returns most of the starters from last year, said coach Keith Goddard.

Although Joseph English led the charge for HHC 1/29 with 17 first-half points, 1/19, led by Karl Ivey's eight first-half points, jumped out to an eight-point 33-25 lead at the half.

Following the intermission, 1/19 continued its dominance offensively, and at the five-minute mark led 45-25. 1/19 maintained a

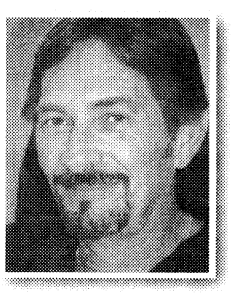
Role models: be careful who you choose to follow

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

As a former player, coach and sports editor I have heard the words "role model" thrown around when it comes to the role professional athletes play in today's society, specifically when it comes to how child athletes look up to the pros.



Many people chastise professional athletes, especially the media, when they have a run-in with the law, citing how they are role models and should be held to a higher standard than the rest of us.

I say hogwash.

N.Y. Giants wide receiver Plaxico Burress is in trouble with the law again and the grumblings of him being a "role model," simply because he is a professional football player, are being tossed around — again.

Maybe the use of the term "role model" is misunderstood. Sure, when I was a kid I loved to get out and play a little street ball and pretend I was my favorite football player, but was that player a role model — no, I just admired the way he played football.

My favorite football player was Alan Page of the Minnesota Vikings. While he has done great things since he left professional football like becoming an attorney, moving on to becoming the first African-American Minnesota State Supreme Court Justice and beginning the Alan Page Foundation, an agency that provides underprivileged young adults the opportunity to go to college, I still do not know enough about him to call him a "role model," but from what I know about him, I admire him. Admiration is a long way from being a role model though.

In my opinion, most people take the definition of the term "role model" to the extreme. Emulating someone in one aspect of life or another is not bad — we all learn from imitating others behaviors under certain circumstances, but that does not make everyone a role model, and neither should that make professional athletes role models under every circumstance.

Sure, if you have a child who plays sports, there is nothing wrong with them wanting to be the best at every level they play. Just make sure you explain that what they see on the field is only one small part of the athlete — it is what they do and not neccessarily who they are.

Athletes, just like everyone else, are only human. Do I condone the shenanigans of Burress? No, but people make mistakes in judgment sometime, and he is no different.

Holding professional athletes to a higher standard, in my opinion, only says they are better than the rest of us and should be looked at on a pedestal, but in reality, they started out playing on the same types of playgrounds, playing on the same types of athletic fields, and going to the same types of schools as you and me.

Are they different? No.

Are they better? No.

Are they human? Yes, and they make the same mistakes you and I do. They are just in the limelight more.

I will be waiting for the e-mails from those who have not made mistakes in their lives, but until then, I will continue to think about my role models — my mom and dad.

Being a role model begins at home; at least that is where I learned about being a role model.

FIT FACTS

MWR FITNESS DIRECTOR
Lori Smith

This week I want to give you some tips on how to stay active while traveling.

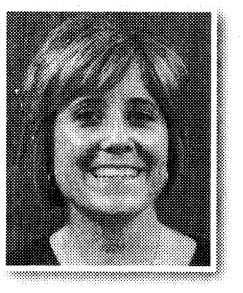
I know it's hard to want to get up and exercise when you're on vacation, but it's important to stay active. And it won't be so hard to get back into that routine when you get home. Plus, that second helping of pie will go down much easier after you get a workout in.

Below is a plan of action that may give you some ideas to help you stay focused to work out on the go.

Before you head out, research the area you are going to. Look for parks, playgrounds, stadiums and similar areas that can lend themselves to working out.

Many places have walking or hiking trails, stairs for running or walking, walking tours of the city or playgrounds to take the kids.

If you're staying in a hotel, ask the concierge for a map of the city and find out how many destinations you can get to by foot. Many hotels also have pools and fitness centers, maybe not a great as Smith Fitness Center, but it's something to stay active with.



Also, ask the local gym if they give weekly memberships and ask for a discount. Many places offer military discounts.

Bring along a jump rope or stretchy bands. These are lightweight, easy to transfer and a great way to get in some cardio and resistance training. There are a number of Web sites that offer workout instructions for each body part using these items.

Another great option is body weight exercises, such as pushups and crunches, which require no equipment. Just try to find a routine that works and suits your needs and time.

Have fun. Make sure that you enjoy yourself and make the most of the area you are traveling. Spend time with family, take a walk or play with the kids. Just make sure you enjoy this time. Even if you're trying to stay healthy and feel better, it can be fun.

Be realistic with yourself. If you are running crazy visiting with family and friends, don't add stress by trying to do too much. Tallying up just 15 minutes of brisk walking can do a world of good.

The point to this week's article is to try and stay active, even if it's only for a few minutes, several times a day.

Being active for just a few minutes is better than no minutes at all. You're doing this for you and your health, and you will feel much better.

Have a wonderful weekend and stay happy and healthy. Thanks for reading.

BSTB defeats CSC 2/29 in preseason matchup

THE BAYONET
John W. Peeler

Brigade Special Troops Battalion overcame a gamelong press defense from Combat Support Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, in the post 2008 Preseason Basketball Tournament to advance to the quarterfinals with a 57-43 victory at the SFC Paul R. Smith Fitness Center Tuesday.

The scoring duo of Charlie Landary and coach Curtis Hinton led BSTB to a 22-19 halftime lead, putting up a combined 18 points in the period against a stingy CSC defense while James Manning and Derrick Thomas kept the score close with seven and five points, respectively for CSC.

Following the first half, Hinton told the team to play aggressive and to play hard.

"I told them we are just playing sloppy right now, and let's just turn it up," Hinton said. "Our whole agenda was to just play aggressive and take it to the hole."

CSC stayed with a press defense after the halftime break and continued to pressure the BSTB offense, but by the six-minute mark, BSTB began to pull away with a 37-24 lead.

BSTB increased their lead to 16 points with five minutes remaining in the game and cruised to a 57-43 win to advance to the quarterfinals.

"We played a little sloppy in the first half," Hinton said. "We came out in the second half with a little more intensity and countered their press ... I believe that was the difference in the second half."

Hinton said the team was able to work around the press by making a strategic halftime adjustment.

"Instead of having the guard sitting on the outside, we put a guard in the middle to break the press and that made them pause a little and we were able to create a shot," Hinton said. "That caused a little bit of havoc with them and put them in foul trouble.

"Defensively, in the second half we went from a 2-3 to a man-zone defense and that seemed to give them a little trouble and handling the ball and caused them to shoot over us, rather than go to the hole."

Scoring: CSC 2/29 (43), Manning (17), D. Thomas (9), Cummings (6), Morce (6), Hicks (2), J. Thomas (2), Savage (1); BSTB (57), Hinton (19), Landary (14), Hall (12), January (9), A. Williams (3).

At press time, 1/19 and BSTB are involved in a quarterfinal matchup. For results of the game, see next weeks's edition of The Bayonet.

game this season, Army held Air Force, the nation's sixth-ranked rushing offense to 142 yards, its second-lowest output of the season.

Navy enters the 109th meeting between the arch rivals with a 7-4 record. The Mids have already accepted a bid to play in the inaugural EagleBank Bowl in Washington, D.C. Dec. 20. It will be the program's sixth straight bowl game. As a team, Navy is allowing 358.9 yards and 23.4 points per game.

While Army enjoyed the upper hand against Navy during the majority of the decade of the 1990s, Navy has turned the tide in recent years.

The Midshipmen have captured nine of the last 11 meetings, including the past six, to grab a 52-49-7 advantage in the classic rivalry. The Mids current six-game winning streak is the longest in the series by either academy.

On offense, Army senior fullback Collin Mooney ran for 112 yards on 20 carries at Rutgers to move into second place on the Black Knights' single-season rushing ledger with 1,285 yards and needs only 54 yards in his last game to break the Army standard of 1,338 set by Mike Mayweather in 1990. Mooney is the 10th Army player to rush for 1,000 yards in one season.

Defensively the Black Knights have held its opponent to 13-or-fewer points in each of its three victories this season. The 13 points allowed at Tulane and versus Eastern Michigan marked the first time since the 1996 season that Army has held its foes to less than 14 points in two straight games.

Tourney: 1/19 rolls past HHC 1/29 in preseason matchup

20-point lead for most of the second half, ultimately winning 74-47.

Donnell Bing and Julian McMillian led the scoring in the second half with 15 and 10 points respectively for 1/19, and English led the charge for HHC 1/29 with 14 second-half points and a game-high 31 points.

"They held it together," Goddard said. "Even though the other team was shorthanded, we played well."

When asked what the biggest factor in the victory was, Goddard said he felt it was because the team played "team ball."

"We played within ourselves and played within our roles," Goddard said. "No one is bigger than the team and everyone knows their position and role within the team. We know each others tendencies and have good team chemistry. The key to victory was our 2-3 defense ... defense wins championships and we expect to go all the way to the championship."

Offensively 1/19 finished the game with four players in double digits while HHC 1/29 had one player in double-digit scoring.

Scoring: HHC 1/29 (47), English (31), Sawyer (6), James (4), Torres (4), Jones (2); 1/19 (74), Bing (21), McMilian (12), Jenkins (11), Williams (10), Ivey (8), Lockett (6), Smith (6).

At press time, 1/19 and BSTB are involved in a quarterfinal matchup. For game results, see next weeks's edition of The Bayonet.

The March of Dimes is saving babies...
After the March of Dimes defeated polio in the 1950s, we turned our attention to preventing birth defects and other threats to infant health. Today, we're fighting premature birth — the leading cause of newborn death. Half a million babies are born too soon every year. We're working to find out why ... and how premature birth can be prevented.

CPT Josh Powers tries to deflect a cross collar choke from CPT Ari Martyn in the final round of the middleweight division. The future company commanders learned combatives so they can train their Soldiers how to fight. "Like an Infantry Soldier, you have to be a jack of all trades," said CPT Tyler Patterson, winner in the cruiserweight division. "You can't just be a good runner, a good shooter. You have to have the fighting skills as a foundation to fall back on. You need to be able to defend yourself."

Soldiers compete in combatives

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

More than 130 Soldiers in the Maneuver Captains Career Course gathered at the Bryant Wells Fitness Center Nov. 26 for a Level I Combatives tournament. Following 40 hours of combatives training, the voluntary tournament showed captains how to execute similar tournaments in their own units.

"This is not for your certification. This is just good training," said combatives instructor CPT Jim McKnight to the students after the championship rounds.

McKnight said he hoped the training students received would convince them how critical combatives is to the Army's success, so they would continue training in their own units as company commanders.

"It's important to me that a captain can execute an arm bar, but the most important thing is that he will train Soldiers to execute arm bars," he said. "Most of our Soldiers are not going to find themselves in a hand-to-hand combat situation, but every Soldier is going to be faced with adversity on the battlefield. This is one of the ways we train them to get over their fear and to close with an opponent, whether that's with a rifle, with their bare hands or with a mortar round."

CPT Joby Bennett said combatives training was new to him.

"Every Soldier should be prepared to fight," Bennett said. "(Combatives training) gets the Soldier over their fear of that human contact, so it directly relates to being out there fighting the enemy. If you've never had that interaction before, that close contact with others in training, then how can you do it when you're out there on the streets in the real world?"

Bennett said much of his training has become "instinct" through repetition — techniques learned in class that are practiced until they are habit.

Committing these techniques to memory was the key to heavyweight champion CPT Brandon Hathorne's win.

"In my weight class, I was probably the lightest guy there. You can't always rely on size and muscle to win the fight," Hathorne said. "Technique, if you have it, can definitely be beneficial. Going against guys 60 to 80 pounds heavier than me, I'm able to use that (technique) instead of them muscling me around. It's definitely the turning point in a fight."

Division champions fought three or four fights before starting the final round. CPT Josh Powers, middleweight division champion, said he felt like he just ran a marathon.

"It's like endurance training," he said. "You can't breathe so well, it's hard on your body, and the whole time you're trying to do something bad to him, he's trying to do the same thing to you. You're in it for the long haul. It's competition, and that always brings out the best in Soldiers."

Competition encourages Soldiers to try their hardest, said Matt Larsen, who developed modern Army combatives techniques.

Having tournaments at each level in the Army motives people to train, and training is what makes Soldiers "willing and able to fight when called upon," he said.

The students have completed their course training, although they can work on Level II Combatives and sustainment training in small groups, McKnight said. They will graduate in February from the Maneuver Captains Career Course.

The Faith Middle School Lady Warrior Bears fell to the St. Luke School Lady Lions in their second basketball game of the season, 17-13 at St. Luke gym.

The Lady Lions scored the first nine points of the game, putting them in the lead, 9-0. Lady Warrior Bear Kelsey Taylor scored two points, but the Lions answered the score giving the Lions an 11-2 lead at the end of the period.

In the second period, the Lady Warrior Bears picked up four points, but still trailed the Lady Lions and by the end of the period, found themselves on the short end of an 11-6 game.

After halftime, the Lady Warrior Bears cut the Lady Lion's lead to three points but by the end, Lady Lions still dominated the scoreboard, 12-9. In the final period, the Lady Warrior Bears outscored the Lady Lions 4-2, but the game still remained close. Despite several attempts, the Lady Warrior Bears remained scoreless, while the Lions took three more points to seal their victory, 17-13.

"This was an extremely close and hard fought game — I am proud of the girls," said coach Larry Addy.

The Lady Warrior Bear top scorer of the game was Kelsey Taylor with 10 points, followed by Kristiana Jones with 2 points and Brenae Addy with one point.

Forward Lady Warrior Bear McKenna Lane said she was disappointed about the game.

"We didn't do as good as we did in our practices," she said. "I think we got a little nervous, but if we practice hard enough and learn what we did wrong in this game, I think we can win the next game."

The Lady Warrior Bears will take on St. Anne's School at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at Faith Middle School.

Warrior Bears take on St. Anne's School Tuesday

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The Faith Middle School Warrior Bears defeated the St. Luke Lions, 40-30, Tuesday at the St. Luke gym.

The Warrior Bears scored the first game points which was answered by a 2-point shot from the Lions. The first period was a seesaw battle to score points. By the end of the period, the Lions picked up 10 points but the Warriors led 12-10.

In the second period, the Lions scored five points before Fort Benning answered with a 2-pointer closing the gap on the Lions, 15-14. The Warrior Bears' defense shut down the Lions and scored eight points, putting them back on top, 24-15 at the half.

In the third period, the Lions hit a free throw, but didn't have a chance of dominating the scoreboard after the Warrior Bears scored 10 points. By the end of the period, the Warrior Bears led 34-16.

The Lions outscored the Warrior Bears 14-6 in the final period but it wasn't enough to match the Warrior Bears' 10-point lead, ending in a 40-30 victory.

The Warrior Bears' top scorers were Brett Barrientes with 12 points and Shawn Tandarich with eight points.

"I am so happy about the win," said guard Karl Ivey. "I think we had a good defense and everyone worked as a team for the win."

Coach Roy Bolar was happy for the win too.

"There was a great defensive effort, especially for the first three quarters," he said. "The whole team contributed to the win and it was a successful night."

The Warrior Bears will take on St. Anne's School at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at Faith Middle School.

This light was born to do it all--it is very bright and very dim, and hooded (Hey-No wasted light out the side!) It switches from NVG Secure White to a second color (red green or blue) and right into infrared without filters!

It runs on AA batteries (Who ever thought using expensive, fancy batteries was a SMART idea?) And will not burn your fingers or melt your gun or need new bulbs every 10 seconds. It is jumpable, droppable, waterproof (200 feet) and temperature proof (no matter where you are.) It even flashes in several modes!

We also offer engraving with your unit or name for free if you mention the code AUG08.

Call or email today and we will give you the information to get rid of the ENEMY in your rucksack and replace it with the best buddy a SOLDIER can have!

DoDEA to offer $30 million grant to schools

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

As the Base Relocation and Closure decision of 2005 progresses, schools in and around Fort Benning are gearing up to welcome the estimated 6,800 school children who will arrive in the area by September 2011. To help schools better prepare for the influx, the Department of Defense Education Activity is offering $30 million in grants for educational and professional development programs to those schools most affected by BRAC.

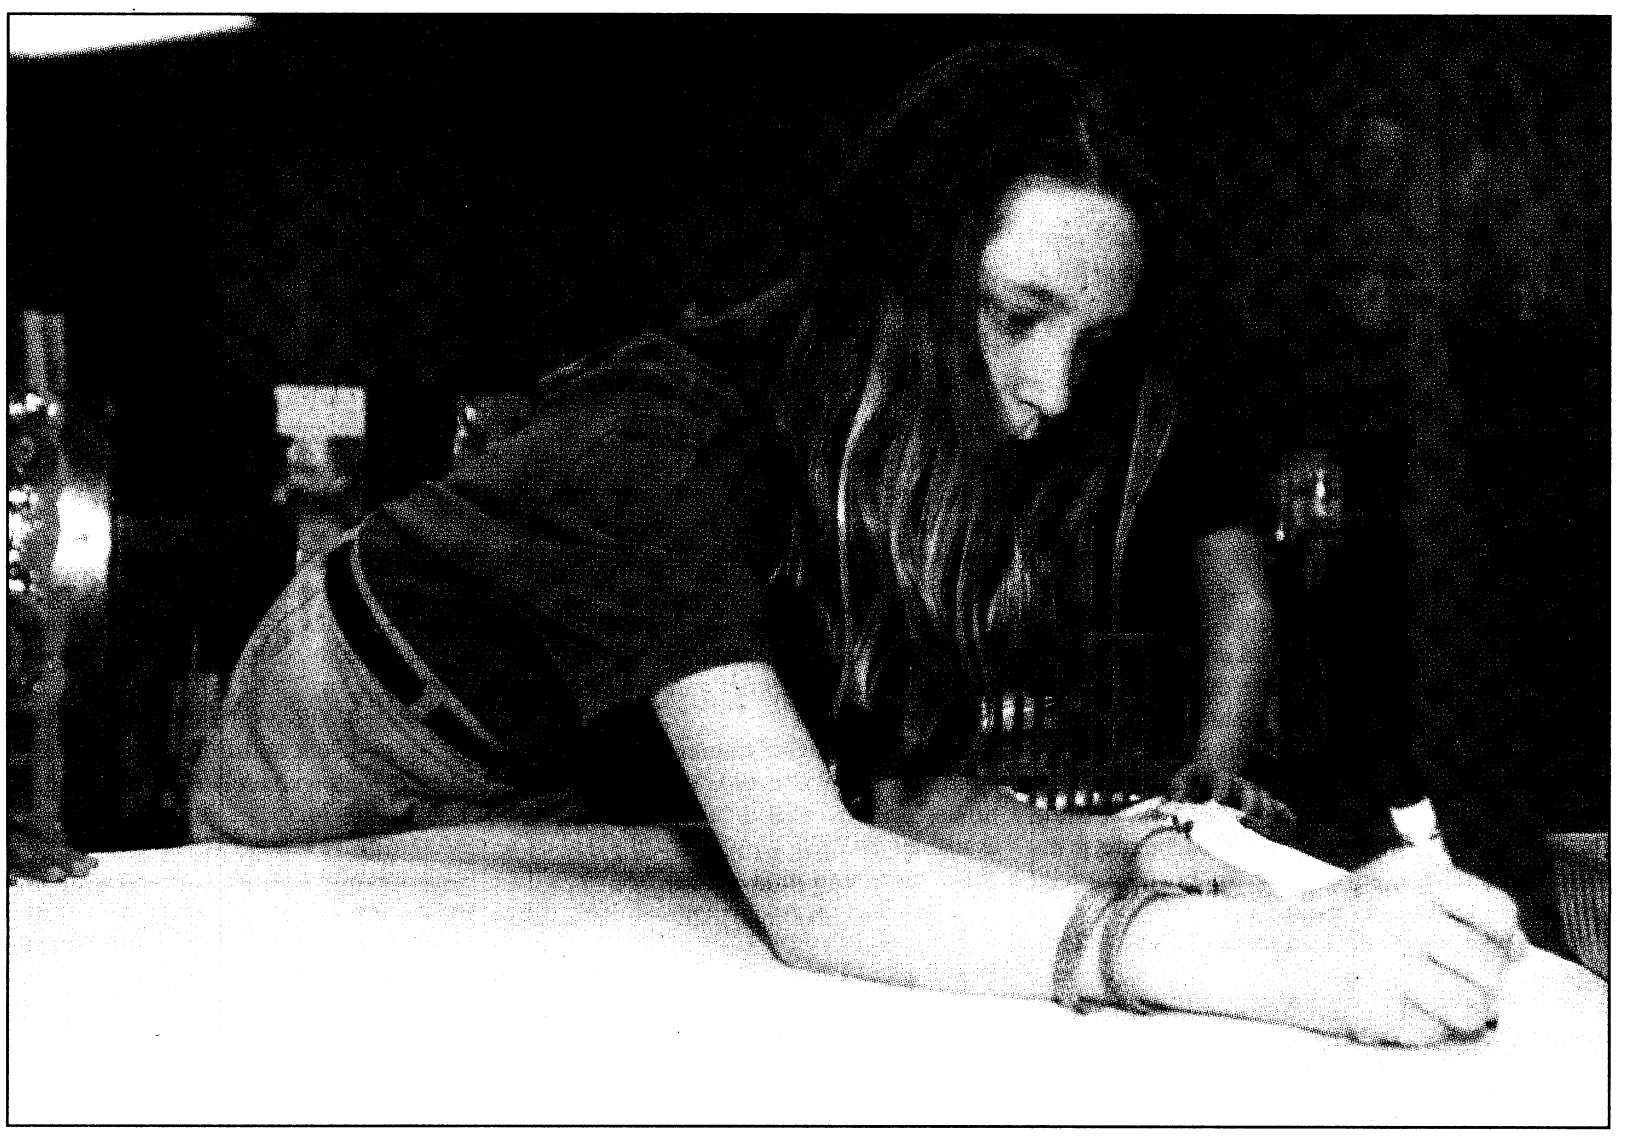
"This is a great step in the right direction, and we're delighted to have the opportunity to be able to compete for these grants," said Gary Jones, senior vice president of military affairs at the Greater Columbus Georgia Chamber of Commerce.

For a school to be eligible for the grants, at least 15 percent of its student body must be made up of students from military families, and the proposed project must serve at least 200 students from military families. Awards for individual schools will range from $300,000 to $2 million. School districts in the Fort Benning area potentially eligible to apply for the grants are Chattahoochee County, Harris County, Lee County, Muscogee County, Phenix City and Russell County. The chamber is currently developing a regional growth management plan to identify which areas of the 10 affected counties will experience the highest growth.

"We're trying to more readily define the growth clusters, based on factors such as existing educational system, transportation and distance to Fort Benning," Jones said. Final grant proposals are due May 1, 2009, and awards will be announced in June 2009. Schools that receive grant money can expect to begin seeing its effects as early as the 2009-2010 school year, Jones said.

"We're excited that this grant has been provided, and we look forward to other opportunities in the future," he said.

Faith Middle students take stand against bullying



Caroline Gotler

Faith Middle School sixth-grader Samantha Kurtz creates a banner for No Bullying Week, one of the anti-bullying activities students participated in to learn about the dangers of bullying and ways to prevent it. While anti-bullying classes are a regular part of Faith's guidance curriculum, this is the first time a full week has been dedicated to the topic.

Anti-bullying classes encourage student communication

THE BAYONET
Caroline Gotler

Faith Middle School students took a stand against bullying during the school's first ever No Bullying Week. From Dec. 1-5, students participated in anti-bullying activities each morning in their advisory classes. The goal of No Bullying Week is to raise awareness about bullying and what can be done about it, administrators said.

"We wanted to let the kids know that we care about them, and that no kid is going to be allowed to bully in this school," said Dr. Julio Gonzales, Faith Middle School principal.

While anti-bullying classes are a regular part of Faith's guidance curriculum, this is the first time a full week has been dedicated to the topic. Gerald Madler, school counselor at Faith, said dedicating a week to bullying issues helped draw more attention to them.

"It sends a very strong message to not only our students, but also to parents and the community at large that we're very serious about bullying," he said. "We know it goes on, and we want to put a stop to it."

Retirees, Soldiers take 'little brothers' fishing

THE BAYONET
Cheryl Rodewig

MSG(R) Michael Mosley wanted to be a big brother. A past volunteer with Big Brothers Big Sisters, a program that pairs adult leaders with youth in the community, Mosley wanted to mentor kids in need of a caring role model, but with family responsibilities, he didn't have time.

That's when he decided to be a "Big For a Day," a program that lets volunteers mentor a group of children for one day.

"With Big For a Day, it allows you the opportunity to do your part, even if you can't commit full time," said Mosley, who organized a fishing trip Sept. 27 for eight boys on the waiting list for a big brother.

"We talked to them a little bit about life and a little bit about what it is to be a man," he said. "Our goal was to show them you can accomplish things in life, you can be whatever you want to be. It was a fun day. I think they got something out of it — something positive."

Mosley and 10 other retired and active-duty Soldiers taught the boys how to fish and talked about life choices, drawing on their personal and military experience.

A lot of these children come from families where there is no male role model in the home, Mosley said. Just showing them leadership, respect and patience is meaningful.

Eleven-year-old Dominique Washington, who attended the trip, said it was easier to talk to the men "since they're boys" than it was to women.

He liked talking with the retirees and Soldiers and learning a new hobby that he hopes to try again soon.

"It was my first time fishing, so I felt good about being able to do something I never got to do before," Dominique said. "It was hard for me to be patient when I was fishing, but they would keep telling me to be patient, and then next thing I knew, my line was moving."

All the boys received participation ribbons and fish to take home, two received trophies for catching the most fish, and everyone shared a lunch of fresh catfish.

Mosley said he hopes to organize another excursion soon for boys waiting to be someone's little brother.

Big For a Day is geared toward boys, since they have to wait much longer than girls to be matched with a mentor, said Shanae Griffin, recruitment and community relations specialist for Big Brothers Big Sisters of the Chattahoochee Valley.

Some wait more than a year, she said. Right now, about 60 boys are on the waiting list.

"Big For a Day lets them know we haven't forgotten about them," Griffin said. "It makes them feel special. It gives them positive male interaction, which a lot of these boys don't have. And they have the opportunity to do different things that they wouldn't usually be able to do."

Activities can be anything from skating or swimming for a few hours to bowling or a simple cookout.

The important part is that there is some group discussion of life skills, so these kids learn from other men that they, too, can succeed, Griffin said.

SSG Robert Ferguson, of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, shows off a catfish caught by 14-year-old Hassan, Ferguson's little brother during the fishing trip.

"It's motivational," she said. "Why not get involved now to help change the direction of a child's life? I think they need to know anything is possible with the right attitude, and if they take that with them, they'll be productive young men."

Mentors must be at least 18 years old. They must complete an application, background check and group orientation. Staff will be present during the event.

Big Brothers Big Sisters also offers a traditional community-based program where adults mentor a child for at least one year, spending two to five hours of quality time together every two weeks. Individuals are paired based on common interests, preferences and needs. People can also choose to mentor children of prisoners.

For more information about available programs, call 706-327-3760 or visit www.bbbschattvalley.org.

Give the gift of toy safety this holiday season

SAFE KIDS EAST CENTRAL Rene Hopkins

Each year, more than 118,000 children under 14 are treated in hospital emergency rooms for toy-related injuries. Don't allow your child to be one of them. Give the gift of safety the next time you buy a toy.

Toys sold in the United States are the most highly regulated and monitored in the world. But the manufacturers and the government can't protect children from unsafe toys unless you do your part. Every year toys are recalled because they are deemed unsafe, and unfortunately this often happens after they are in the hands of kids.

Here are some ways to ensure your presents have all the bells and whistles but, hopefully, no alarms or hazards:

Select age-appropriate toys. When shopping for toys, keep in mind the child's age, interests, skills and abilities. Another thing to consider is a parent's willingness to supervise the use of the toy. Read the toy packaging labels for age ranges and safety warnings. A toy intended for an older child could be dangerous in the hands of a younger child. For example, innocent-looking toys, such as marbles and balloons, present a choking hazard to toddlers.

Do recall research. Do your homework before shopping by checking for toy recalls to avoid buying these items. Although firms generally take steps to remove products from the market, it is impossible to police toys sold at thrift stores, garage sales and Internet auction sites. So buyer, beware.

Take a pass on lead paint. There were several major toy recalls in 2007 because the toys were made with lead paint. Infants and toddlers put most toys in their mouths, which increases their risk for lead poisoning. Exposure can cause serious damage to a child's brain, kidneys and nervous system.

Be leery of loose parts. When selecting a toy for your child, avoid those with small removable parts that can pose a choking hazard to children under age 3. There are a couple of methods to test toys with loose parts. You can either buy a small parts tester from a toy or baby specialty store, or you can use a cardboard toilet paper tube. If the piece fits entirely inside the tube, then it is considered a choking hazard. Of course, toys with multiple, loose parts are OK for older children, but make sure these are not within reach of younger siblings. Also, no small magnets for children under 6. When swallowed, magnets can cause serious injuries and death.

Shun sharp objects. Don't get toys with sharp edges and points for children under 8. Children tend to run with toys frequently, and they could fall onto a toy with a sharp edge. If buying craft supplies, consider safety scissors for toddlers and preschool kids.

Beware of burn potential. Electrical toys can be a burn hazard. Toys with plugs are also an electric shock hazard. Read instructions and warnings on battery chargers; some are unable to prevent overcharging and can cause burns. Its best to avoid toys with a heating element such as batteries or electrical plugs for children under age 8.

Protect the ears. Toys that produce loud noises are dangerous. There are many of these, and some examples include toy guns and high-volume music players. If guns are shot too close to the ear, or if music is played too loudly, it can permanently impair a child's hearing. It can happen from just one too-loud exposure.

Protect the eyes. Do you remember this famous quote from the movie A Christmas Story, "You'll shoot your eye out?" This is a real possibility with many toys. Nearly 6,000 children under the age of 15 are treated in emergency rooms each year for eye injuries, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. BB guns, darts and paint ball guns are among the toys that pose a threat to the eyes. Any toy that can eject or propel an object can lead to a serious eye injury if used incorrectly, and this includes innocuous appearing toys such as a popgun or a paddleball set.

Keep strings short. Avoid toys with strings, straps or cords longer than seven inches because they can become wrapped around a child's neck and unintentionally strangle him or her.

Get all the gear. If you plan to give sports equipment to children, include the appropriate protective gear, such as helmets, face masks or safety goggles. Riding toys, skateboards, scooters and in-line skates go fast, and falls could be deadly. Gloves, elbow and knee guards, along with a helmet, should accompany these kinds of gifts. Safety gear should be sized to fit to provide the wearer with maximum protection.

After gifts are opened, be sure to immediately discard plastic wrappings, twist ties, staples, pins and other packaging items.

The coming season is a time for celebration and merriment, but a serious injury can quickly end the fun. So, follow these guidelines when toy shopping and do your part to keep the "happy" in "Happy Holidays." For more information, visit mcghealth.org.

Bullying: Prevented by communication, mentoring

Bullying can take many different forms, and occurs differently between girls and boys, Madler said.

"It's not always a physical attack," he said. "Girls bully differently than boys — they'll get their friends to be a part of the bullying process by ignoring or ostracizing, while boys are much more upfront about it."

Sixth-grader Samantha Kurtz said she had experienced bullying firsthand, and she learned a lot during No Bullying Week.

"You shouldn't bully because people might get hurt," she said. "I got bullied last year by two girls in fifth grade, and it felt really bad."

Faith Middle has a 40 percent annual student turnover rate, which poses unique challenges for administrators dealing with bullying, Madler said.

"Our problem comes from continually integrating new students into a middle school and dealing with all the inherent emotional and social issues that come with students coming from all over the country and from overseas," he said.

One way administrators have dealt with this problem is by implementing a mentor program where incoming new students are paired with experienced students. The program has been a success, Gonzales said. He plans to implement similar programs in the future as a result of No Bullying Week.

"One thing we're going to do is to create areas in each hallway where students can anonymously drop a note informing teachers and administrators about bullying," he said. "The key approach here is that they have a place where they can complain anonymously if somebody is bothering them."

Open communication between parents, students, teachers and administrators is the best way to stop bullying, Madler said.

"We need parents to talk with their children and let us know what's going on," he said. "If we don't know about it, it's very difficult to stop it. And for it to stop, it really comes down to one thing — students, parents and faculty trusting that we're going to do something about it."

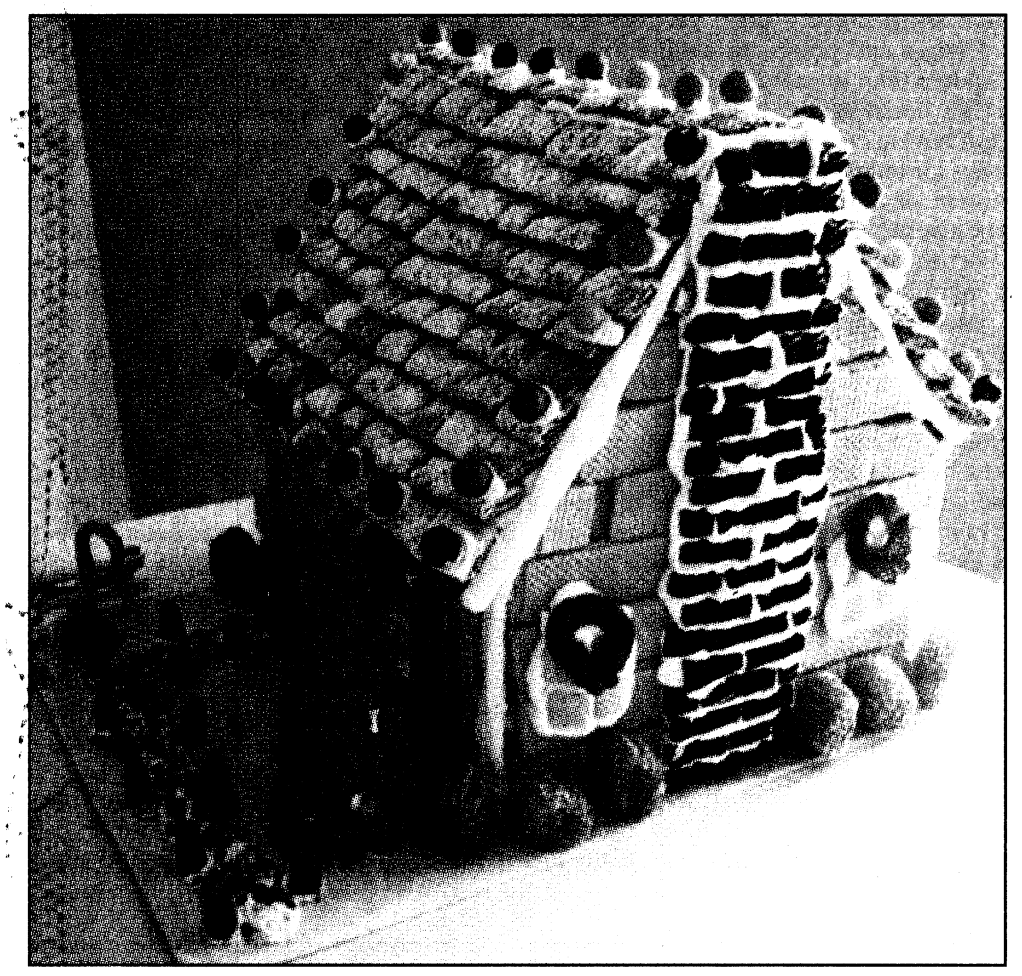
Gingerbread house workshop set for Saturday



Courtesy photos

This gingerbread house incorporates different kinds of candies to add color to the design.

THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

What's sweet and spicy and with a little icing and candy, a house can be made of it. What is it? Gingerbread.

Gingerbread dates back as far as the first crusades in the 11th century. In the past, gingerbread cakes were prepared and eaten to celebrate the winter solstice throughout Europe. Churches used ginger breads for religious celebrations and in medieval times, people had "gingerbread fairs."

Gingerbread houses became popular in the 19th century after the Brothers Grimm adapted the German fairytale of Hansel and Gretel where they encounter a gingerbread house covered in candy and icing:

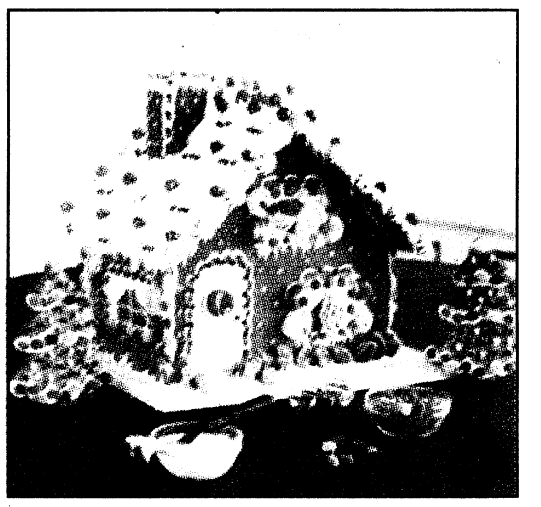
"And when they approached the little house they saw that it was built of bread and covered with cakes, but that the windows were of clear sugar....Hansel reached up above, and broke off a little of the roof to try how it tasted, and Gretel leant against the window and nibbled at the panes."

After the fairy tale was published, Nuremberg, Germany, became known as the gingerbread capital of the world where bakers baked Lebkuchen — also known as honey cake — houses. German settlers brought the tradition to America.

It is customary to make the gingerbread house and wait until New Year's Day to eat it but Karla Tompson's family doesn't follow that, she said.

"Day by day, the kids eat away at the houses and by the end of December, it's gone," Tompson said.

Tompson has made gingerbread houses with her family for the past five years. Every year, she buys kits and her children create their own gingerbread houses.



Many gingerbread houses have decorations outside of the house, including trees, sidewalks, shrubs or, as pictured above, people peeking out of a window.

"It's a fun activity for the kids because it's something they can get really creative with — they can add whatever candy and decorations they want," she said.

She makes her own gingerbread house.

"The thing I love the most about making a house is if you mess up, you just eat your mistake and start over," she said.

Tompson, who teaches fondant, cookie and cake classes in Columbus is instructing a class Saturday on how to make a gingerbread house from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Elizabeth Bradley Turner Center.

She'll teach how to put together a house and how to make a tree with fondant and a cake cone. The cost for the class is $59, which includes a gingerbread house kit and tuition for one adult and one child age five or older. To sign up for the class, go to conted.colstate.edu or call 706-507-8070.

Want to make a gingerbread house?

Pick up a gingerbread house kit for $6 to $15 at a local store or online. The kit usually includes icing, candy and pre-made gingerbread walls. If you want to have a variety of candy, have a gingerbread house party and have everyone bring candy

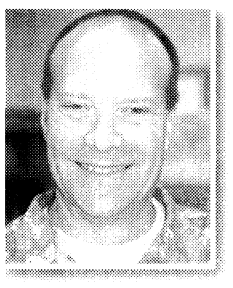
There is hope for healing after marital unfaithfulness

CHAPLAIN FAMILY LIFE CENTER
Chaplain (MAJ) Richard Garvey

This week I have another TDY. Like so many people, our work often takes us away from home at one time or another. Those in the military know the heartache of being away from family and friends for extended periods of time.



What happens when we return from a deployment or TDY and find there was another man (or woman) in our home? What happens when we hear the dreaded news that our spouse was unfaithful?

You may think to yourself — "We have been married for 15 years. We have three children. How could you do this? I have been faithful and never once stepped outside the marriage. I do not deserve this."

Ever experience this or hear this from a friend? You were walking along the path of contentment and suddenly your world is shattered, your life turned upside down in a matter of minutes. What do you do? Who do you tell? Where can you get help, guidance, and advice? What do you do with these overwhelming emotions that will not let you sleep or eat? What does the future hold?

Too often many feel imprisoned by their limited options. They believe they can either get a divorce or live a life of misery. They believe happiness is a fleeing fantasy which can never be achieved. This is the third myth Gary Chapman describes in his book Desperate Marriages.

He describes four myths which keep us from having a great marriage. The first myth is "my environment determines my state of mind." Last week we looked at the second myth that "people cannot change." Today, I want to look at the third myth of extremes and limited options.

Emotionally you may feel you have only two options when fidelity is broken: to live in misery for the rest of your life or get a divorce.

Many people are not totally surprised when they find out or hear the confession from their spouse. There was an affair prior to this one, or maybe there was an emotional affair that took place. Since these events, there has never been that full trust. You never really let go of your bitterness. You have resolved yourself to live the rest of your life in misery.

If you don't stay in the marriage, what would your mother say to the news? Everyone thought you had such a great marriage, what would people think about you now? What would your friends say? Which side would they take? What about the children, what would it do to them?

Yes, it is personal. Yes, it hurts. Yes, it is confusing. But there are more options than a quick divorce or resolving yourself to misery. Many people often tell me they are afraid to stay with their spouse once they cheated. They feel they would be a fool to stay and try to work through their issues. However, I think just the opposite. I think they are strong and committed.

After all, every couple married for life. No one marries on the two-year plan. And most couples made a covenant vow to love one another in the good times and bad, for better or worse. Well, consider a situation like infidelity as their worse. I admire those who say they will try and work it out.

Isn't it funny how self-righteous we get when someone cheats on us? Last time I checked, I haven't found a perfect person, except the Jesus of the Bible — never in all my years as a counselor. Be careful before you throw stones of righteousness. We all make mistakes. We all need forgiveness.

Are you struggling with the myth of divorce or misery? Most people who reject this myth and choose to work together through their issues build a stronger relationship and recognize the dangerous traps to avoid. Are there some adjustments needed in your marriage? Or maybe you are having some other issues in your life and need to talk to someone about it. Give us a call at 706-545-1760 for an appointment at the Chaplain's Family Life Center, or stop by 2606 Dixie Road in Soldiers' Plaza. May God richly bless you.

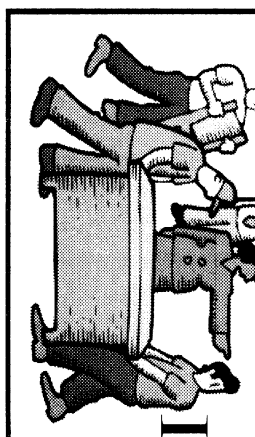
Computer classroom available for those updating resumes for MCOE

This month, Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) staff will initiate the Survey of Interest and volunteer process for placement opportunities against positions in the Maneuver Center of Excellence (MCOE). Even though there will be several recruitment iterations necessary to fill all anticipated vacancies, the first placement efforts will be dedicated solely to permanent mission employees whose positions will be realigned to the MCOE. To be considered for placement under this process, all permanent employees must volunteer as no one will be "automatically" reassigned to the MCOE.

This process will entail (1) the preparation and update of employee resumes; (2) prepositioning of those resumes in RESUMIX; (3) responding to a formal Survey of Interest; and, (4) volunteering for positions under the volunteer process.

Resumes should be created or updated in the Resume Builder on the Army is CPOL website located at https://cpolst.belvoir.army.mil/public/resumebuilder/builder/index.jsp and must be submitted to the centralized RESUMIX database. Resumes must be completed and posted in RESUMIX by January 15. No mailed, hand carried, digitally transmitted, or faxed resumes will be accepted.

Staff members of the CPAC have coordinated the use of a computer classroom in Building 2764 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through December 31. Computers will be available for resume update. Staff will be on-site from 2 to 4 p.m. each day.



The Donovan Research Library is moving.
It will close at 5 p.m. today and re-open at 8 a.m. Jan. 12
in Building 9230 (the old PX on Marne Road)

The Virtual Reference Service will be available at DonovanRefDesk@conus.army.mil.

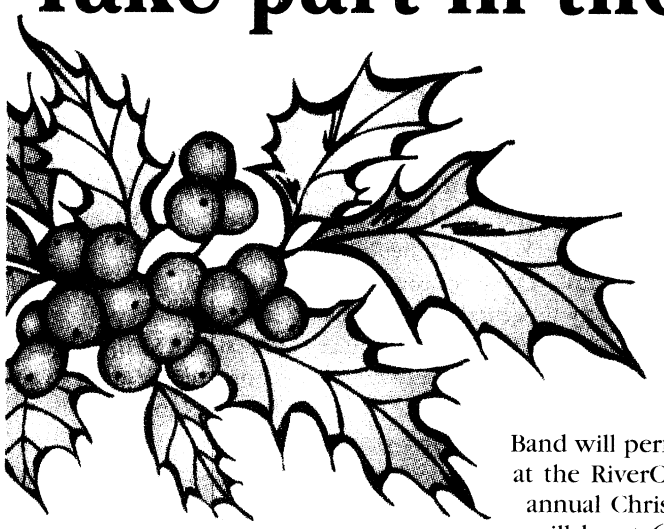
R&R

Springer dishes up tuna for Christmas D3

Take part in the most wonderful time of the year



THE BAYONET
Rachel L. Watkins

The holiday season is here and so are the activities that come with it.

Carols by Candlelight will be at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Infantry Center Chapel. Refreshments will be served. The Infantry Center Band will perform at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Sunday at the RiverCenter for Performing Arts. The annual Christmas tree and menorah lighting will be at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Field of Four Chaplains. The lighting ceremony will include scripture readings, a performance by the Infantry Center Band and Wilson Elementary School choir and an appearance by Santa Claus. Parents can bring cameras to take photos of their children with Santa Claus. There will be a reception at the Infantry Center Chapel following the ceremony.

Santa Claus will make another stop at 6 p.m. Dec. 11 at Riverside, the quarters of Commanding General MG Michael and Linda Barbero. There will be youth activities and prizes, stilt walkers and face painters. Hot chocolate will be provided.

Santa will be on post again Dec. 12 for the 17th annual Airborne tower lighting at Eubanks Field. Activities including a Stryker and Bradley Fighting vehicle static display, a holiday movie and a Stryker ride, will kick off at 3:30 p.m. The public will be able to jump from the 34-foot tower from 3:45 to 5:45 p.m. Santa and the Silver Wings Command Exhibition Parachute Team will drop in by parachute. The night will end with the tower lighting around 6 p.m.

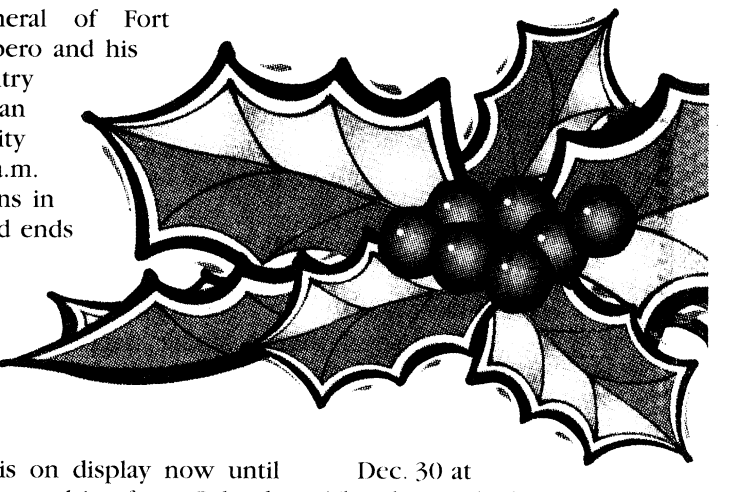
"This is the perfect way to get in the holiday spirit," said 1LT Gary Khoury of the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment. "Sometimes we get caught up in holiday shopping or work, so this is a good time to get out and spend time with the family."

The Community Spouses Club will have their annual tour of homes from 5:45 to 9 p.m. Dec. 16. Tour booklets will be picked up at Riverside at the start, and include eight homes around post. A reception at Riverside will follow the tour. Tickets, which include the tour and reception, cost $7 for one ticket and $12 for two. Tickets can be purchased in advance at Bit of Benning or the Fort Benning Thrift Shop by Dec. 10. For more information, e-mail benning.toh@gmail.com.

Santa Claus will make his way to Columbus for the Broadway Holiday from 6 to 8 p.m. today at the 1100 block of Broadway. The event will include a tree lighting, treats and music from Hardaway High School Marching Band, Richards Middle School and Shaw High School Mixed Chorus. Admission is free.

The Civil War Naval Museum at Port Columbus will offer free admission from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday for a Civil War Santa visit. The museum will be decorated in mid-19th century Victorian style and the Civil War Santa will be available for photos. For more information, call 706-327-9798 or go to www.portcolumbus.com.

The commanding general of Fort Benning, MG Michael Barbero and his wife Linda, and the Infantry Center Band will make an appearance at the Bi-City Parade beginning at 10 a.m. Dec. 13. The parade begins in Columbus at 9th Street and ends at 17th Street in Phenix City. Cartoon characters will hand out candy and Santa Claus is in the parade.



One of the Southeast's biggest light shows, Fantasy in Lights, is on display now until Dec. 30 at Callaway Gardens, a 45-minute drive from Columbus. The show, which spans 22,000 square feet and has 8 million lights, including swans, trees, snowflakes and toy Soldiers. It begins at 6 p.m. nightly. Admission is $16 to $22 for adults and $8 to $11 for children.

For more information, call 706-663-2281 or visit www.callawaygardens.com.

Climb inside a merry mystery this holiday with Dial S for Santa.

Produced by the Columbus Mystery Theatre, a new drama company based in Columbus, the story involves a missing Santa Claus, mythical creatures and employees of the local Peachfuzz Mall. When Santa is kidnapped, everyone is suspect — even you.

If you pick up a speaking part when you enter the Empire Mills Room at the Historic Columbus Marriott Hotel, you may be the one "whodunit." Even if you don't sign up for a role with the cast, you could still be an ace detective and get your picture taken with the actors … if you can figure out in time who the culprit is.

While intrigue unfolds around you, you can enjoy a three-course meal designed especially for your visit. This weekend's menu is spinach and bacon salad, smoked pork loin, roasted potatoes, rolls, chocolate cake with fruit, coffee and tea. If you have dietary restrictions, be sure to call Columbus Mystery Theatre in advance. You can also purchase a bottle of wine or champagne from the Marriott in advance.

Performances are at 7 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Jan. 3. Arrive a few minutes early to check in. Doors close before the show begins.

The third murder mystery show of the year for the murder mystery company, Dial S for Santa was written by local playwrights JJ and Kate Musgrove. It is rated PG-13 for adult humor, so leave the younger kids at home.

Attire is casual, or come dressed as your favorite sleuth or mystery character. Tickets are $45 plus tax and must be reserved in advance. For more information or to audition for upcoming shows, call the box office at 706-718-7494, send an e-mail to info@columbusmysterytheatre.org or visit the Web site at www.columbusmysterytheatre.org.

OPENING TODAY

CADILLAC RECORDS

This biopic directed by Darnell Martin details the rise and fall of Chess Records, founded by Leonard Chess. During two turbulent decades of history, Chess Records launched the careers of artists including Muddy Waters, Etta James, Bo Diddley and Chuck Berry.

Leonard Chess scoured the South to find the best blues scenes and sold records from the back of his Cadillac. This true-life musical drama chronicles not only the life of Leonard Chess, but also the racial issues of the day and the many colorful personalities who contributed to the company's success.

Cadillac Records stars Adrien Brody, Jeffrey Wright, Beyonce Knowles, Gabrielle Union and Columbus Short. It's rated R for language and sexuality.

PUNISHER: WAR ZONE

Ruthless vigilante hero Frank Castle continues waging his one-man war on the world of organized crime in this second Punisher installment.

Castle has set his sights on Billy Russoti, an overeager mob boss. Russoti was left horribly disfigured by Castle, and now he's setting out for vengeance under a new alias of Jigsaw. Castle has the Punisher Task Force hot on his trail, and the FBI is unable to take Jigsaw in. Now Castle must stand up to the army Jigsaw has recruited before more of his evil deeds go unpunished.

Punisher stars Ray Stevenson, Dominic West, Doug Hutchinson, Wayne Knight and Julie Benz. It's rated R for violence, language and drug use.

ALSO PLAYING

FOUR CHRISTMASES

When upscale, happily unmarried San Francisco couple Kate and Brad find themselves socked in by fog Christmas morning, their exotic vacation plans morph into the family-centric holiday they had, until now, gleefully avoided.

Out of obligation — and unable to escape — they trudge to four relative-choked festivities, increasingly mortified to find childhood fears raised, adolescent wounds reopened … and their very future together uncertain. As Brad counts the hours to when he can get away from their parents, step-parents, siblings and an assortment of nieces and nephews, Kate is starting to hear the ticking of a different kind of clock. And by the end of the day, she is beginning to wonder if their crazy families' choices are not so crazy after all.

Four Christmases stars Vince Vaughn, Reese Witherspoon, Robert Duvall and Sissy Spacek. It's rated PG-13 for sexual humor and language.

AUSTRALIA

An English aristocrat inherits an Australian ranch the size of Maryland. When English cattle barons plot to take her land, she reluctantly joins forces with a rough-hewn cattle driver to drive 2,000-head of cattle across hundreds of miles of the country's most unforgiving land, only to face the bombing of Darwin by the Japanese forces that had attacked Pearl Harbor months earlier. The movie stars Nicole Kidman, Hugh Jackman, David Wenman and Bryan Brown. It's rated PG-13 for violence, sensuality, and language.

TRANSPORTER 3

Frank Martin has been pressured into transporting Valentina, the kidnapped daughter of Leonid Vasilev, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency for the Ukraine, from Marseilles through Stuttgart and Budapest until he ends up in Odessa on the Black Sea.

Along the way, with the help of Inspector Tarconi, Frank has to contend with the people who strong-armed him to take the job, agents sent by Vasilev to intercept him, and the general non-cooperation of his passenger. Despite Valentina's cynical disposition and his resistance to getting involved, Frank and Valentina fall for each other, while escaping from one life-threatening situation after another.

Transporter 3 stars Jason Statham, Natalya Rudakova, François Berléand and Robert Knepper. It's rated PG-13 for action and violence, sexual content and drug material.

QUANTUM OF SOLACE

Betrayed by Vesper, the woman he loved, 007 fights the urge to make his latest mission personal. Pursuing his determination to uncover the truth, Bond and M interrogate Mr. White who reveals the organization which blackmailed Vesper is more complex and dangerous than anyone had imagined.

Forensic intelligence links an Mi6 traitor to a bank account in Haiti where a case of mistaken identity introduces Bond to the beautiful but feisty Camille, a woman who has her own vendetta. Camille leads Bond straight to Dominic Greene, a ruthless business man and major force within the mysterious organization.

On a mission that leads him to Austria, Italy and South America, Bond discovers that Greene, conspiring to take total control of one of the world's most important natural resources, is forging a deal with the exiled General Medrano. Using his associates in the organization, and manipulating his powerful contacts within the CIA and the British government, Greene promises to overthrow the existing regime in a Latin American country, giving the general control of the country in exchange for a seemingly barren piece of land.

In a minefield of treachery, murder and deceit, Bond allies with old friends in a battle to uncover the truth. As he gets closer to finding the man responsible for the betrayal of Vesper, 007 must keep one step ahead of the CIA, the terrorists and even M, to unravel Greene's sinister plan and stop his organization.

Quantum of Solace stars Daniel Craig as Bond, Judi Dench as M, Olga Kurylenko as Camille and Jesper Christensen as White. It's rated PG-13 for violence, action and sexual content.

BOLT

For super-dog Bolt, every day is filled with adventure, danger and intrigue–at least until the cameras stop rolling.

When the star of a hit TV show is accidentally shipped from his Hollywood soundstage to New York City, he begins his biggest adventure yet: a cross-country journey through the real world. Armed only with the delusions that all his amazing feats and powers are real, and with the help of two unlikely traveling companions: a jaded, abandoned house cat named Mittens and a TV-obsessed hamster in a plastic ball named Rhino, Bolt discovers he doesn't need superpowers to be a hero.

The movie stars John Travolta, Susie Essman and Miley Cyrus. It's rated PG for action and peril.

TWILIGHT

Bella Swan has always been different, never caring about fitting in with the trendy girls at her Phoenix high school. When her mother re-marries and sends Bella to live with her father in the rainy little town of Forks, Wash., she doesn't expect much of anything to change. Then she meets the mysterious and dazzlingly beautiful Edward Cullen, a boy unlike any she's ever met. Edward is a vampire, but he doesn't have fangs and his family is unique in that they choose not to drink human blood.

Intelligent and witty, Edward sees straight into Bella's soul. Soon, they are swept up in an unorthodox romance. To Edward, Bella is what he has waited 90 years for – a soul mate. But the closer they get, the more Edward must struggle to resist the primal pull of her scent, which could send him into an uncontrollable frenzy. But what will Edward & Bella do when a clan of new vampires — James, Laurent and Victoria — come to town and threaten to disrupt their way of life?

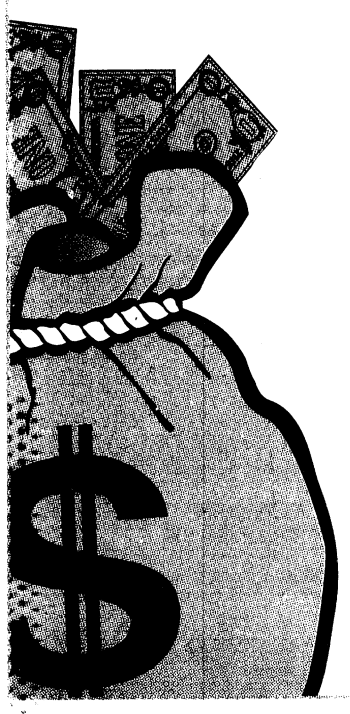
THE BAYONET HOLIDAY GIVEAWAY

LAST CHANCE!!!

Call WIN $300

Want To Win? It's Easy...Here's How!



1. Each week, four (4) Moneybags will be hidden in advertisements in the Bayonet.

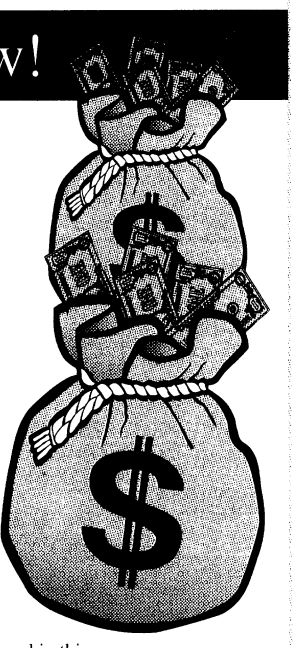
2. Just read the ads, find the Moneybags and write down on your submission form which advertisements you found them in.

3. Each week we will randomly select a winner from the correct submissions.

4. If we do not have a correct submission, that week's Moneybag will be added to the next week's Moneybag.

5. No purchase necessary. Winner must be 18 years of age or older to win. Winners will give permission to use name and photo for contest promotion without further reimbursement and assumes all taxes.

6. Employees of The Bayonet and their relatives are not eligible to win.



Actual Size of Moneybag

Moneybags found in this and other promotionals are not eligible. Only Moneybags found in paid advertisements can be counted.

The Bayonet would like to congratulate our Week 3
