ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive.

Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF MEATBALLS

Inspired by the children's book, the film focuses on a town where food falls from the sky like rain. Bill Hader voices Flint Lockwood, a young inventor who dreams of creating something that will improve everyone's life. Anna Faris takes on the role of Sam Sparks, a weathergirl covering the phenomenon who hides her intelligence behind a perky exterior. Mr. T plays the by-the-rules town cop Earl Devereaux, and Tracy Morgan takes on the role of Earl's rule-breaking son, Cal.

The movie is rated PG for brief mild language.

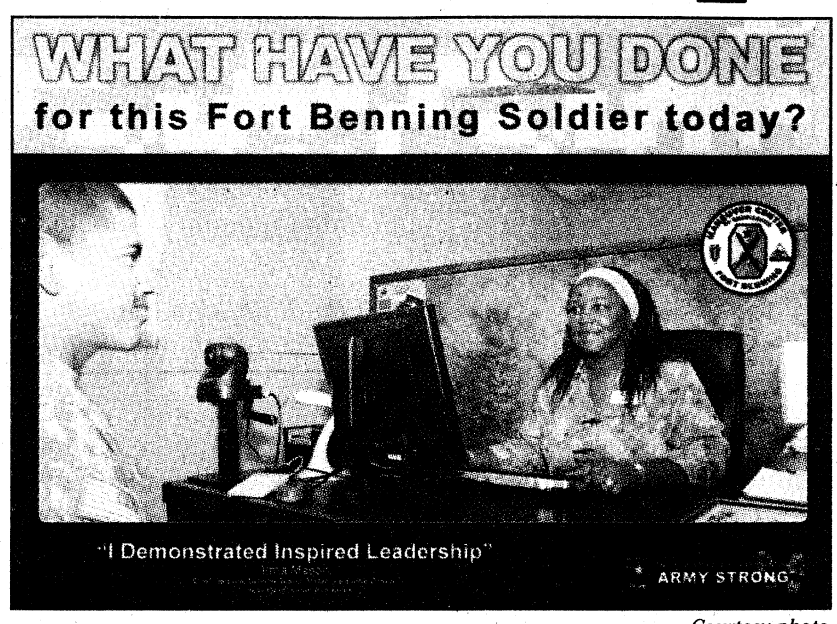
Inspired leadership

Program recognizes excellence in the Fort Benning community

Sue Ulibarri
MCOE PAO

During a shopping trip with his wife back in July, shortly after taking command of Fort Benning, MG Michael Ferriter met Douglas Mack, an employee at the AAFES Power Zone in the PX. Mack didn't recognize the new post commander. If he had, Ferriter is fairly certain it wouldn't have made a bit of difference.

"Mr. Mack is the kind of individual who treats every private like a general and every general like a private," said Ferriter, who was so inspired by the commitment of Mack and others just like him that he launched a program to recognize inspirational leaders who serve the Soldiers and families of Fort Benning.



"As commanders and leaders, we're expected to lead and inspire Soldiers each day, and we do an outstanding job of it on Fort Benning," said Ferriter, who recently added "Demonstrate Inspirational Leadership" to the list of command priorities. "I think it's also very important to recognize the civilians in our organization at every level who inspire us to live the Army Values and look for opportunities to positively impact others.

"Whether it's the lady who hands out boots to our newest Soldiers at the Reception Battalion or the clerk at the Main Gate Visitors Center, the way they serve our Soldiers and visitors leaves an indelible impression that reflects on our entire installation."

The Commanding General's Inspired Leadership Recognition Program serves two purposes, Ferriter said. It recognizes those who demonstrate inspirational leadership, and it inspires others to follow their lead.

Alan Singleton was one of the first to benefit from the new program. Ferriter presented Singleton, a manager at the Auto Skills Center, a certificate of appreciation last month for his hard work and dedication to customer service.

"I'm honored and I think it's great that the CG and the command group took the time to come out here and do this, but it's just normal business here," Singleton said. "We take care of our Soldiers and their families — all of our customers are important."

Irma Mason, chief of Personnel Services Branch, Military Personnel Division, was one of the first recipients of the Inspired Leadership award.

More than 35 individuals have been recognized since the program's inception. The recognition includes a visit from the commanding general and the presentation of a certificate. Presentation are generally done weekly and coordinated through the Maneuver Center of Excellence Public Affairs Office.

Leaders, Soldiers, family members and civilians across the installation are encouraged to nominate individuals for recognition. Army combatives program changes lesson plan

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

The U.S. Army Combatives School has adopted a new teaching plan.

The Army is revamping the curriculum to take lessons learned from Iraq and Afghanistan and build more effective close-quarters fighters, said Matt Larsen, the school's director. The goal is to push advanced techniques down to the small-unit level, including basic training.

"We want Soldiers to be agile, adaptive and competent (so) they can adjust to the realities of the battlefield," Larsen said.

The modifications are based on feedback from across the Army and other factors, he said. More than 900 interviews were conducted with Soldiers who saw hand-to-hand combat in the villages, houses and streets of Iraq or Afghanistan.

Soldiers most often enter small houses and rooms during combat operations, so the Army wants to take the ground-grappling principles taught in combatives and emphasize them from a standing position, Larsen said.

President recognizes Military Family Appreciation Month

No one pays a higher price for our freedom than members of our nation's military and their families. As sons and daughters, husbands and wives, and mothers and fathers are deployed, military families endure with exceptional resilience and courage. They provide our troops with invaluable encouragement and love, and serve our nation in their own right.

During Military Family Month, we honor the families of our Armed Forces and thank them for their dedication to our country.

Though only a small percentage of our nation's population, our troops bear the great responsibility of protecting our people. They, along with their families, serve us every day with courage and dignity. Ensuring military families receive the respect they deserve and the support they have earned is a top priority for my administration.

The strength of our nation is measured not just by our success on the battlefield, but also by our ability to support those families who have made so many sacrifices for us.

Time and again, military families have shown their heart in the face of adversity. We have a solemn obligation to ensure that while our men and women in uniform discharge their duties, we do all we can to promote and preserve the well-being of their families.

We must also support the families of our wounded warriors and our fallen heroes who have paid the ultimate price for the freedoms we enjoy.

In November, we celebrate the tremendous contributions of military families, convey to them our deepest respect and appreciation, and recommit ourselves to their support.

I call on all Americans to honor military families through private actions and public service for the tremendous contributions they make in the support of our service members and our nation.

Editor's note: In observance of Military Family Week, the Fort Benning Family Advocacy Program will have a display at Building 241, Baltzell Avenue, next to the old Infantry Museum, with free educational materials and promotional items. Drop by and pick up a free canvas tote bag in appreciation for all you do.

How much does it take to feed an Army for Thanksgiving?

Michelle L. Gordon
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

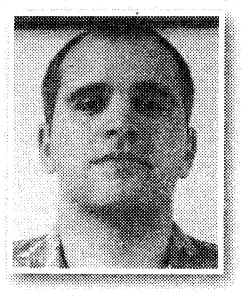
With less than a week to go before Thanksgiving, most people have already been to the grocery store to buy turkey and all the fixings, and Fort Benning is no different.

Well, OK, we're slightly different because I'm guessing "most people" did not purchase more than 7,800 pounds of turkey in preparation for the big day.

It may seem like a lot of turkey, but that's how much it takes to feed an Army on Thanksgiving, not to mention the other options, such as ham, prime rib, shrimp, suckling pig and all the sides and desserts commonly found on a Thanksgiving Day table.

All this food was ordered three weeks ago and it was based on the estimated number of Soldiers and visitors who may eat in one of the 20 dining facilities on post. However, even though the food is ordered weeks in advance, it's not prepared until the night before to ensure freshness.

This year Fort Benning plans to feed about 10,000 Soldiers a Thanksgiving meal, said James Jenkins, Food Service specialist.



Jenkins has worked on the installation for more than 40 years so he knows a thing or two about ordering food and filling Soldier bellies. Also, each dining facility will receive a holiday makeover, complete with festive decorations, streamers and ice molds. And, of course, no Thanksgiving Day is complete without pumpkin pie, 402 of them to be exact. However, if you don't like pumpkin don't worry, there will be 12 other dessert options available.

So, as you stuff your turkey, peel your sweet potatoes and get ready to feed a house full of relatives Thursday, just be glad you aren't cooking a meal for 10,000 hungry Soldiers.

As you sit down to eat your meal don't forget to take a moment and be thankful for all the Soldiers who aren't able to be at home with their own families this year.

Share a Scare realistic, raises money

1LT Micheal Chandler
13TH COMBAT SUSTAINMENT SUPPORT BATTALION

On Oct. 22, the scariest thing in the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion wasn't CSM Stanley Richards.

After a solid month of planning, two full days of set up and two hours of spooky Halloween music, the 104th Transportation Company's Share in the Scare Haunted Field unleashed the ghouls and ghosts on Engineer Field.

Visitors were met by a collection of ghastly zombies, creepy clowns and Darth Vader — talk about scary.

2LT Victoria Wynn, coordinator of the Share in the Scare Haunted Field, reported more than 120 Soldiers worked tirelessly from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and 4 to 11 p.m. Saturday to make the inaugural Share in the Scare Haunted Field a huge success.

"I have never been so impressed by the efforts of my Soldiers than I was during this mission," said the scarer-in-chief.

"They literally turned empty standard-issue Army tents into an exhilarating, frightening, not-to-miss event."

Soldiers, family members and volunteers served as face painters, pumpkin patch farmers and stylists of hair-raising hairdo makeovers.

The scare crew roamed the field until the haunted house opening.

They spent some of the time shambling and lurching to the fun — and sometimes ominous — sounds of SFC Conrad Leach, who played The Monster Mash and The Time Warp to the delight of the guests, Wynn said.

"All we were doing was screaming and laughing through it," said SFC Patricia Howard. "It was so realistic."

The donations received at the Share in the Scare Haunted Field benefited the 104th Family Readiness Group. CPT Max Donaldson, 104th Transportation Company commander, said he feels the FRG should be one of the main priorities for the unit because it supports the family as well as the Soldier.

The event, which drew more than 700 Soldiers, family members and civilians, raised more than $500 for the 104th Family Readiness Group. The proceeds will go toward FRG activities such as company barbecues, redeploying Soldier care packages and small gifts for families with newborn babies, Donaldson said.

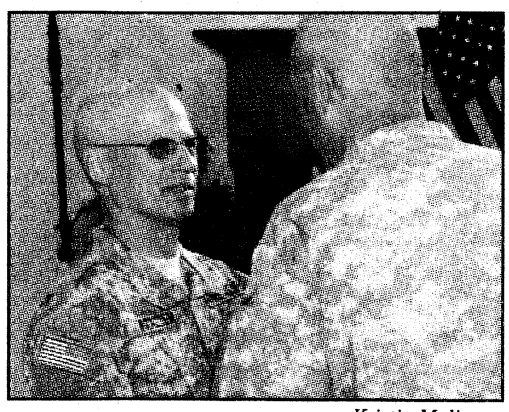
MCOE Band conductor's baton passes to new leader

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET



The Maneuver Center of Excellence Band welcomed a new leader Monday.

CW4 William Brazier Jr. succeeded CW4 Fred Catchings as commander and conductor in a ceremony presided over by chief of staff COL Charles Durr at the Benning Conference Center.

"The band will continue to double time and move forward to bring the new bandmaster on board without a misstep," Durr said. "A testament to Chief Catchings will be how the band continues after he's gone."

The MCOE Band, formerly the Infantry Center Band, supports nearly 600 events each year in the tricommunity area including parades, military graduations and dinner receptions.

"Everybody loved Chief Catchings," Durr said. "And everybody will love Chief Brazier. He will have his own style, his own leadership and it will complement the band.

Kristin Molinaro
COL Charles Durr passes the guidon to CW4 William Brazier Jr. in a ceremony Monday.

"This is the busiest band in the Army. Every event they perform at brings people from off post, every graduation brings family members from the four corners of the Earth. I have absolute confidence the ceremonies conducted yesterday under Chief Catchings' command and the ceremonies they will conduct tomorrow under Chief Brazier will be (seamless)."

Brazier, who hails from Woodbury, N.J., has held music and band director positions at many high schools. His bands have performed in concert at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the White House, the Junior Orange Bowl Parade and in the 1995 Carquest Bowl, Bowl Games of America halftime show. Brazier has served with the 98th Army Band, 28th Infantry Division Band, 282nd Army Band and the U.S. Army Medical Command Band.

His most recent assignment was serving as the bandmaster of the 2nd Infantry Division Band in South Korea for the third time.

"I started playing piano about 47 years ago," said Brazier, who considers the trombone his instrumental love. "Then I learned the trumpet and trombone and all the other instruments as I became a teacher. Now I primarily play the (conductor's) baton."

Brazier said he enjoys conducting civilian bands, choirs and community orchestras in addition to his role as a military bandmaster.

"I try to bring the music to life so people feel like a part of it," he said.

Brazier said the challenge in being in an Army band is the mobility of the Soldiers.

As new Soldiers come in and others PCS, it changes the makeup of the instrumentation and that's the No. 1 challenge, he said.

Brazier said he looks forward to his new assignment and plans to bring some new songs to the band.

"Some are swing style, some are patriotic tunes," Brazier said. "The Soldiers here are outstanding, they've been playing great music with Chief Catchings."

Catchings, who retires in December, was lauded for his successes with the band and induction into the Order of St. Maurice. He commanded the band for three years and has served with bands at Fort Hood, Texas, Germany and Fort Stewart, Ga. In his 23-year tenure, Catchings deployed twice to Iraq and holds the distinction of being the first Army band commander to deploy his unit to Iraq, according to his biography.

While Catchings said he's not made firm plans for his retirement, he will remain in the Columbus area.

weapons and how to maintain control of them," he said. "That will be taught all the way down to basic training."

Knee strikes, clinch drills, fighting with weapons and combat equipment, and pushing terror suspects against the wall are among the upper-echelon combatives techniques Soldiers will now be exposed to at lower unit levels, Larsen said.

Larsen said the school will stick with the four pillars — instruction based on universal, foundational, motivational and tactical attributes — that allowed the program to thrive. But Soldiers often struggled to retain knowledge gained in unit combatives training, so adjustments were needed.

Levels 1 and 2 are being changed to the basic and tactical combatives courses, while the basic and tactical combatives instructor courses replace Levels 3 and 4. Under the new construct, the number of training hours at each tier remains the same — 40 in basic, 80 for tactical and 160 each within both instructor phases. The school will begin implementing the new methods in the next month.

"Combatives is an integral part of what we do as Soldiers," Larsen said. "You can't effectively train in close-quarters combat without combatives. You're going to need it any place you can be hands-on with potential enemies."

He said more than 57,000 troops have graduated from the Army Combatives School since its inception in 2002 — including 50,374 (Level 1), 5,255 (Level 2), 1,408 (Level 3) and 564 (Level 4).

Briant Wells Fieldhouse, home of the U.S. Army Combatives School, has extended its hours to 6 to 8 a.m., 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday for Soldiers, civilians and family members who want to do combatives on their own time.

Senior officer candidates Michael Stinson and Ryan Gilliam provide security Tuesday while SOC David Senn rescues a downed pilot during a training mission at McBride's Bridge Training Area. The candidates are in week nine with E Company, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment's Officer Candidate School. They completed five missions a day during the six-day field training exercise. The students were given an hour to complete each mission.

Students 'race against the clock' in field

THE BAYONET

Rustling leaves and snapping twigs was what gave away the squad of Soldiers moving through the forest. It was just enough warning for the two Soldiers posing as members of a terrorist bomb-making cell to take cover behind trees and prepare for the attack. The squad of "Thundercats," Soldiers with 1st Platoon, E Company, 3rd Battalion (Officer Candidate School), 11th Infantry Regiment, swept around the enemy encampment toward higher ground and quickly grouped into an ambush pattern for the assault. Yellow smoke signaled the attack. Within minutes, the squad disabled both terrorists and confiscated their weapons and bomb-making equipment without suffering one casualty. The mission was a success, but success of the mission is not the only thing these Soldiers were being evaluated on.

"These aren't templated, cookie-cutter missions," said CPT David Niederauer, company commander. "Their tactics will be very rough in some areas. But what we are truly getting after is what decisions the squad leaders are making and do they make sense. Is the decision fundamentally and doctrinally sound based upon what these Soldiers have learned?"

The Soldiers are all senior officer candidates in their ninth week of training. Friday through Wednesday the Soldiers were out at McBride's Bridge Training Area for Field Leadership Exercise 2, a culmination of the tactics and techniques they've learned for leading fire teams and squad-sized elements into combat. Each squad was given half an hour to plan each mission and an hour to execute it successfully.

The candidates, all of whom graduated to senior candidate status after week seven, conducted nearly 30 missions during the six-day exercise.

In most of the missions, squads carried out deliberate attacks, movements to contact and ambushes, Niederauer said.

One mission that differed from the rest involved the recovery of a downed pilot in the middle of the forest. The scenario involved a downed coalition aircraft that both the enemy and U.S. forces were trying to locate.

"It's a race against the clock to secure it and get the pilot out," Niederauer said.

But the most surprising part of the mission is that a real aircraft exists.

"Candidates are expecting a mock-up, but no, it's a real F-9F Navy jet with a mannequin inside," Niederauer said.

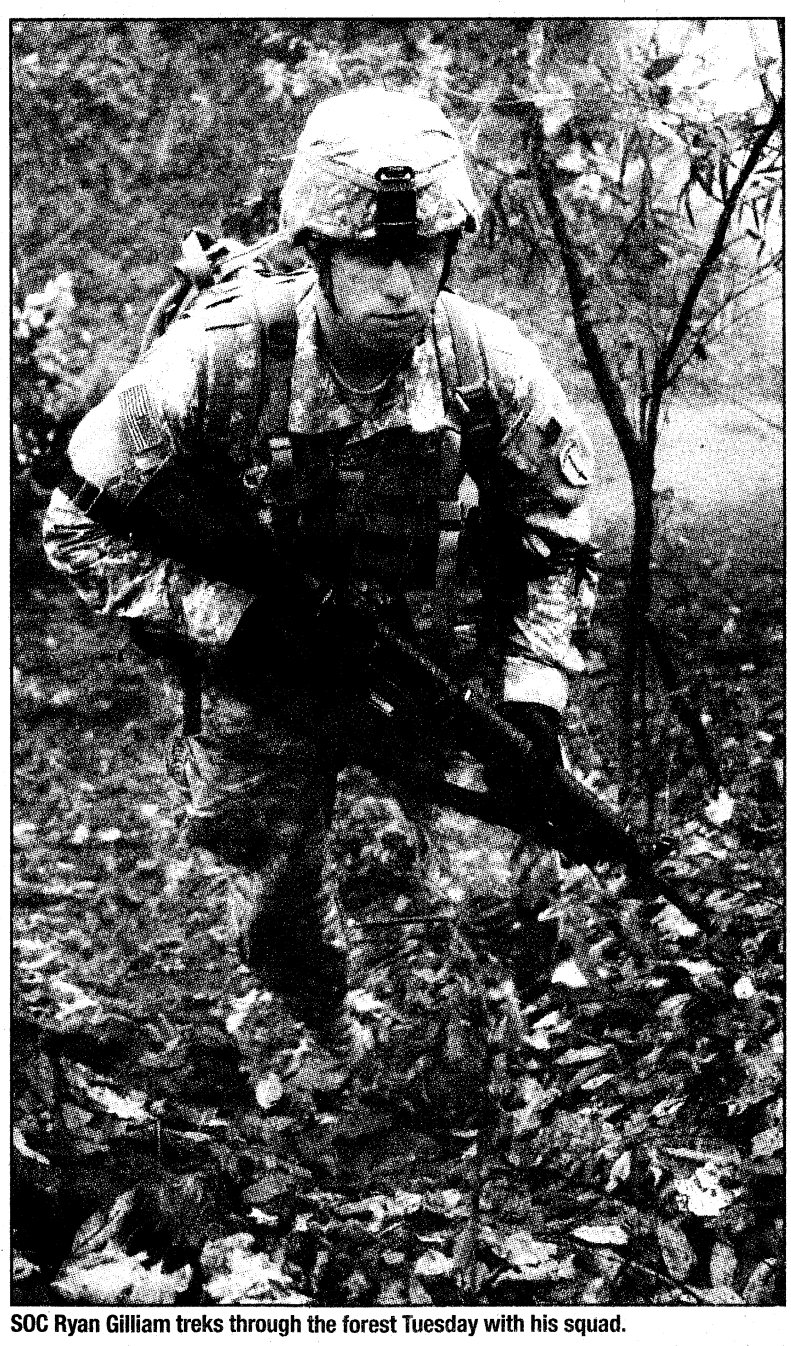
SOC John Cappiello watches for the enemy Monday while his squad leader and team leaders prepare to execute the next mission.

"I half expected to see something jerry-rigged to look like a plane," said SOC Andrew Cassidy, a former Infantryman from the 82nd Airborne Division.

Cassidy's squad took heavy casualties in the fourth day of the exercise but he said it brought out the best in the candidates.

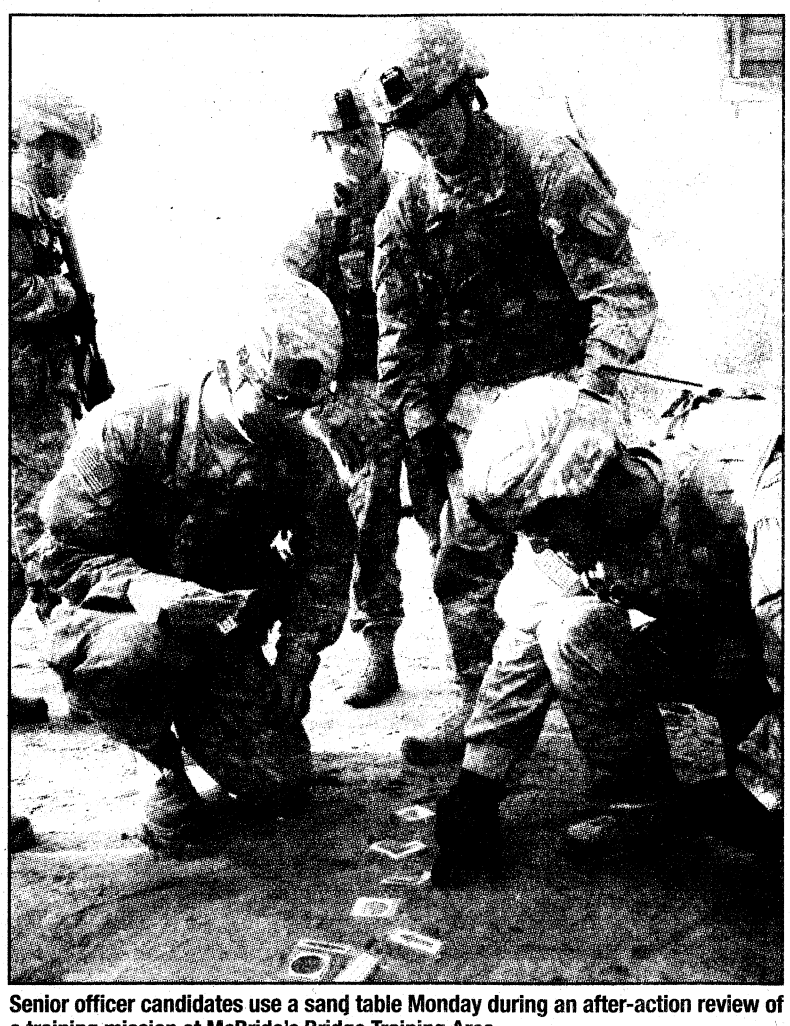
"Everyone relies on everyone out here," he said. "It's a total team and there's no room for showboats."

SOC Shawn Pierce said he anticipated encountering some sort of aircraft on the mission but finding a jet made the mission a lot more real.



"It's very realistic," he said. "Even though we're firing blank (ammunition), the atmosphere, the terrain and the attitude are of someone going into combat."

Pierce said the training challenged him.



"My mission as a team member or squad leader is to make sure every Soldier on my team makes it home, so if we take a casualty during a scenario, I think about what I would do if that happened in real life," Pierce said. "It's given me more motivation to watch out for everyone and lead with confidence."

After completing military history and the officer professional development phase, the senior officer candidates graduate Dec. 10.

At this time the Martin Army Community Hospital has the H1N1 vaccine for family members, retirees and their family members who are in the above categories on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Hospital staff anticipates more mist and vaccine in the near future. Active-duty personnel are receiving their seasonal and H1N1 immunizations through the Preventive Medicine Department teams who are visiting all units.

Fort Benning school children who have parental consent are receiving their H1N1 vaccine this month at school. Children who are 10 or younger will receive their second dose at school in January.

All non-active-duty patients may also use their Tricare benefits as stated below:

Tricare Coverage and Availability

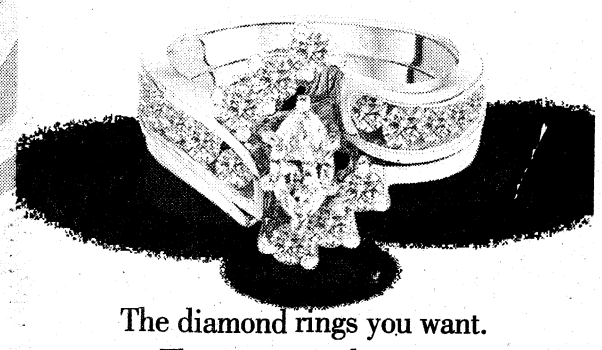
1. The vaccine can be obtained at the Martin Army Community Hospital Flu Clinic, located on the eighth floor of the hospital, between the hours of 8 a.m. and noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

If a person is unable to obtain the vaccines at Martin Army Community Hospital, Tricare will cover the seasonal flu shot, the seasonal nasal spray and the H1N1 vaccine for qualifying beneficiaries when administered in a doctor's office or a network Minute Clinic.

Immunizations obtained at pharmacies (excluding CVA Minute clinics networked only in the Atlanta area), grocery stores, country health departments, etc., are not covered by Tricare.

2. No referral is needed for vaccinations or other clinical preventive services.

3. The nasal spray vaccine is not covered for ages 50 and older.



4. For Tricare for Life beneficiaries, Medicare covers flu vaccines, and Tricare pays as second payer if needed.

5. This year, standard and extra beneficiaries may obtain the flu vaccines with no cost share applied.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Iverson departs

The Memphis Grizzlies announced Monday that the team was parting ways with 10-time All-Star Allen Iverson. So far, the only team to express interest in Iverson is the New York Knicks.

Iverson played three games with the Grizzlies before taking an indefinite leave of absence Nov. 7 to deal with personal issues.

Larry Johnson a Bengal

Running back Larry Johnson signed a one-year contract with the Cincinnati Bengals (7-2) Tuesday.

Johnson was released by the Kansas City Chiefs. Bengals coach Marvin Lewis told Johnson he would be fourth on the team's depth chart.

Johnson served two suspensions for bad behavior with the Chiefs. Good luck, Bengals.

Wie wins

Michelle Wie, who played her first pro event 10 years ago, won her first LPGA tournament at the age of 20 Sunday in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Wie beat Paula Creamer by two strokes, and finished the Lorena Ochoa Invitational with a 3-under 69.

She had previously finished second six times in her career. This was her 65th LPGA Tour event.

J.J. on historic path

Jimmie Johnson won his fourth race of the Chase for the Sprint Cup at Phoenix International Raceway Sunday, all but clinching his fourth consecutive Cup.

Johnson leads Mark Martin by 108 points. If Johnson finishes 25th of better in the last race of the year, he will be the first driver in history to win four consecutive championships.

Catch the history at Homestead-Miami Speedway, with coverage beginning at 3:15 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

BCS standings, Week 5

There are no surprises in this week's BCS standings — Florida remains on top, followed by Alabama, Texas, TCU and Cincinnati.

Ohio State climbed back into the top 10, right at the 10th spot.

Boise State is ranked sixth, Georgia Tech seventh, LSU eighth, and Pittsburgh is in the ninth slot.

Woman in Pitino case charged again

The woman accused with trying to extort money from Louisville basketball coach Rick Pitino has had four more charges brought against her by a federal grand jury.

Karen Cunagin Sypher filed a criminal complaint against Pitino for rape following her indictment on intent to extort.

The new charges include two counts of intent to extort, one of lying to the FBI and another for retaliation against a witness.

Air Force wins rugby title

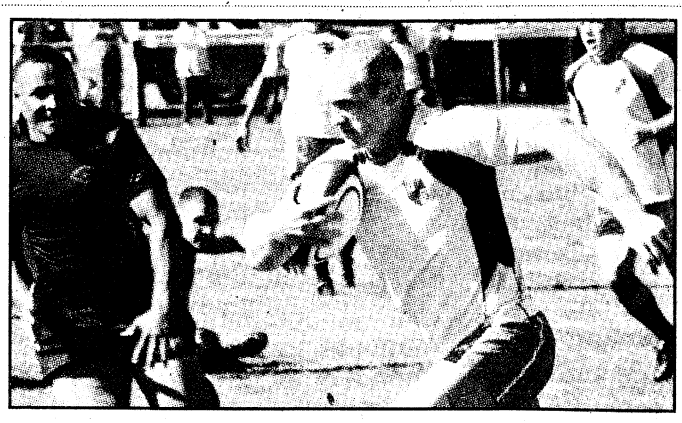
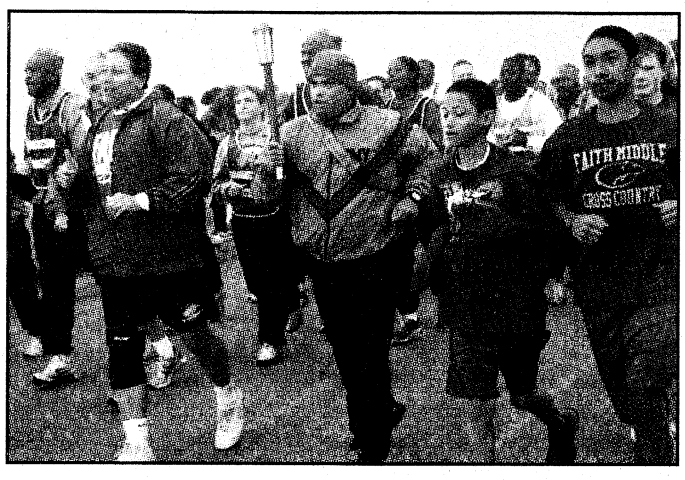
Make it six in a row for the Air Force.



Air Force punctuated another dominant run in the Armed Forces Rugby Championship by beating Army 34-0 in Friday's title match at Stewart-Watson Field. In five tournament games, Air Force outscored its opposition a whopping 226-3.

"It feels great," said Air Force second-row player Ty Terrazone, named the game's co-MVP by his teammates, along with fly half John Feely. "This team was special. We had a lot of young guys, but some veterans like me, as well … It's good to come out and dominate like we do, and have fun doing it."



Air Force's sixth straight gold medal came in equally convincing fashion as it did a year ago, when the team outscored the other service branches by a 248-19 clip.

On Friday, Air Force dictated field position and controlled the ball while forcing the

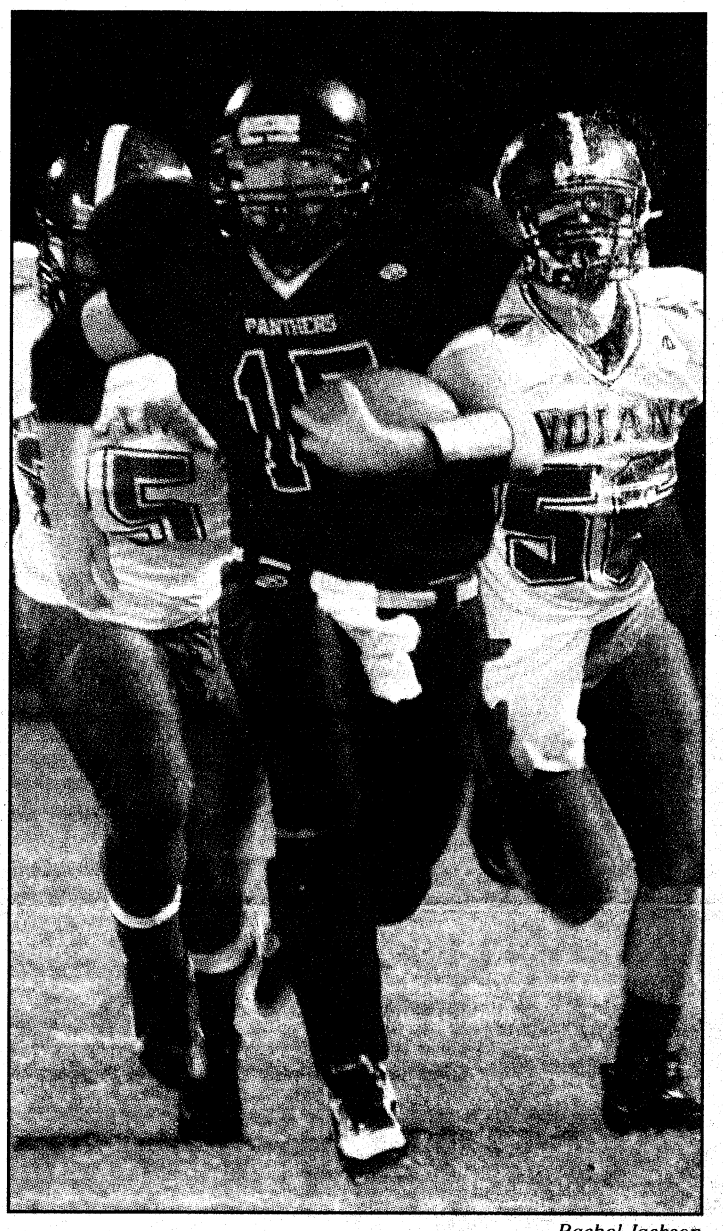
More than 20 runners from the Warrior Transition Battalion embarked on a journey from Martin Army Community Hospital to Freedom Hall on two missions Monday — to run an Olympic torch across post and finish the 6-mile run. The torch was obtained from the Olympic training center in Colorado Springs, Colo.



"The Olympic flame represents the endeavor for perfection and the struggle for victory," said WTB commander LTC Sean Mulcahey. "This relay run is going to represent our struggle for victory as individuals and more importantly, as a team. It's going to demonstrate that WTB Soldiers are motivated and they are struggling for victory and they will succeed."

On their journey, WTB Soldiers stopped by Faith Middle School and were greeted by the school's band playing the Star Spangled Banner and a flag ceremony. The Faith Middle School cross-country team led the runners while students cheered and clapped as the WTB Soldiers ran with the torch.

Panthers edge Seminole County in GHSA Class A playoff opener

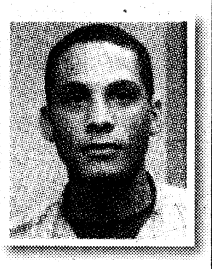
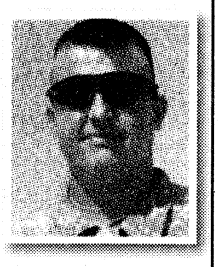
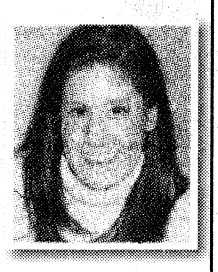
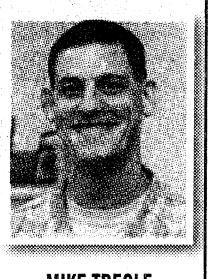
CUSSETA, Ga. — The Chattahoochee County High School (Region 4-A) Panthers scored on a 66-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter to win 34-27 against the Seminole County High School (Region 1-A) Indians of Donalsonville, Ga., Friday in the first round of the GHSA Class A state football playoffs.

In an offensive slugfest pitting the Region 4-A second seed against the Region 1-A third seed, the teams tied three times before Chattco scored the deciding touchdown in the waning minutes of the game for the win.









In the first two minutes of the first quarter, Chattco took the lead on a Tyquan Bazemore 54-yard touchdown run. Cochran added an 11-yard touchdown pass to Barbin to give the Panthers an early 14-0 lead.

The Indians' Chris Brown answered with a 3-yard run in the final 14 seconds of the quarter to give Chattco a 14-7 lead.

WTB: Run takes 'will power' with the torch. Koloc has a shrapnel wound in his left leg from a deployment to Afghanistan.

"It was moving to carry the Olympic torch," he said. "The run was challenging, but it made me feel mentally and spiritually good. I was hurting, but there was something about it — I didn't want to walk."

SPC Michael Dusch of B Company carried the torch on the last stretch of the relay. He said carrying the torch was an honor but wished the run was longer.

"I just had it in my heart that I wanted to run longer," he said.

Dusch, who is recovering from an ACL injury, a neck and back injuries after he was hit with an IED, said what kept him going was words of encouragement from the other runners.

"Everyone had my back and told me to keep pushing myself," he said. "We were all in it together."

SSG Nick Philoctete, B Company, didn't run in the relay but said he was inspired by it.

"It shows a lot of courage and dedication from the Soldiers," he said. "Everyone here has some kind of issue whether it is mental, physical or emotional. And you have people that have pain, but they still have the will to keep going. It takes a lot of will power to finish this relay."

The torch run was the first event of the WTB Commander's Cup. Other events of the cup include a talent show, water polo, bowling, volleyball, tug-of-war, basketball and a triathlon. Companies and platoons competed against each other with the last day of competition wrapping up today.

the score with an 11-yard touchdown run in the second quarter, but with 1:34 left in the quarter, Chattco's Niko Jones caught a 19-yard touchdown pass from Cochran to take the lead at the end of the first half, 21-14.

Seminole County came back in the third quarter with an Antwan Buggs 1-yard run with 3:59 to go in the quarter to knot the game at 21. Stephen Howard Jr. put the Indians in the lead for the only time in the game with a 12-yard interception return for a touchdown.

Trailing 27-21, Cochran brought the Panthers back, scoring on a 1-yard touchdown run to tie the game at 27 with 10:57 remaining.

Chattco broke the stalemate with 7:31 remaining on the clock with a 66-yard Cochran to Barbin touchdown pass and held on for the win, 34-27.

"It was a close game," said Chattco coach Josh Kemp. "We did what was necessary, and we got it done. I thought we could jump on them a little bit and knew (we) were going to have a lot of heart and make good plays."

"One (game) down, four to go. This season isn't over. If we bring it, we can't be beaten," Kemp said to the team following the win.

Chattco running back Bazemore said the game was close and the team will have to make some adjustments before the next round.

"We didn't give up," he said. "We had some miscommunication, but hopefully we can improve it before the next game."

This is just the beginning, said defensive back Corey McCoy, who was on last year's team that lost in the first round of the playoffs.

"We have a lot of work ahead of us," he said.

"We won this, now we have to win the rest .... In the next game, we'll go out there and handle business."

The Panthers will play in round two of the state playoffs today against Twiggs County Cobras, the Region 2-A No. 1 seed, in Jeffersonville, Ga. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Air Force: Blanks Army, 34-0

Soldiers into some turnovers.

"I'm happy with our performance today, but you can't make mistakes against the Air Force. You've got to play you're A-game," Army head coach Mike Stephenson said. "We misplayed a couple balls, and the Air Force has a very aggressive defense. They were able to capitalize on those mistakes. They're really good."

Air Force converted a few miscues into points by spinning the ball out wide and getting its attackers into open space.

"It's always a physical match against Army," head coach Dan Lockert said. "We were fortunate to take advantage of a couple mistakes ... The fact we could keep them under pressure was a big key for us."

After heavy rain from Tropical Storm Ida led to postponement of the Nov. 10 start, the clubs had to cram five games into three days. In Friday's consolation match, the Marine Corps beat Navy 34-10 to lock up third place. The Coast Guard finished fifth.

Only Navy managed to score against the Air Force in a 52-3 loss Nov. 11 on Day One of round-robin play. A day later, the Airmen shut out the Coast Guard 52-0 and Marine Corps 45-0 to reach the championship game.

Army, meanwhile, opened with a 3-0 victory over the Marines before falling 43-0 to Air Force later that day. The Soldiers posted a 3-2 mark in the tournament.

"This has been one of our better years," said Stephenson, who's led the squad for the past decade and hopes to return in 2010. "Each game we played, we grew a little bit."

Army won nine consecutive Armed Forces Rugby championships from 1993 to 2001. Stephenson played on seven of those title teams.

During their nine-year run, the Soldiers always benefited from a wealth of veteran players, he said.

Right now, Air Force is at a "different level," Stephenson said. "You've got to have the stars align in a perfect storm (to beat them) ... They bring the wood. All their guys have great hands and good tackling skills. They play pretty error-free ball, and they dominate when you make mistakes."

Lockert said depth, flexibility and versatility are "what gets us this far every year."

Terrazone, an F-15E weapons system officer about to deploy to Afghanistan, has been a member of the last five Air Force championship teams.

"On the field, we don't like the Army, Marines or Navy," he said. "Off the field, we're brothers in arms ... We're all part of the same team when it comes to that bigger part of life, fighting for the same cause."

More than 120 teams competed in the tournament. The Southern Flyers, a travel hockey team based out of Nashville, Tenn., made it to the finals in their double-bracketed division. Captains 'push through' combatives tournament

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

"Not backing down" — that's what CPT Tommy Ryan said won him first place in the heavyweight division of the Maneuver Captains Career Course combatives tournament.

"It's everything you've been taught in the combatives program: not letting your opponent know you're in an uncomfortable situation. If you remain calm the entire time, you usually come out," Ryan said.

Ryan was one of about 180 Soldiers who participated in the single elimination tournament Monday at Briant Wells Fieldhouse.

The culminating combatives event for the course, the tournament builds morale while instilling the warrior ethos in the students, said SSG Timothy Farris, U.S. Army Combatives School, who assisted with the tournament.

"It's right up there on the wall: 'the defining characteristic of a warrior is the willingness to close with and destroy the enemy.' That's what combatives is," Farris said. "If you're timid when you're fighting you usually get beat. A more aggressive person, even with limited skills, is generally going to win the fight because he's going to be the guy on top, he's going to be the guy pushing the action."

In the submission grappling tournament, fighters won by either submission with a chokehold or joint manipulation or by gaining the most points in six minutes. Points were awarded for gaining and maintaining dominant body positions. Strikes were prohibited.

Although most of the captains started combatives training only two months ago, MAJ Dan Rausch, primary combatives instructor for the MCCC, said he was impressed with several of their moves.

"Just to watch them progress and get scrappy like they're doing now is great," said Rausch, who competed in the tournament and made it to the finals in the lightweight division. "I've seen quite a bit of joint manipulation and quite a few chokes as well, so that's pretty impressive."

Now that the captains know what right looks like, they are prepared to bring combatives training to the companies they will soon head as commanders, Rausch said.

"It's good to give them a structured tournament environment, basically teach them how to do it," he said. "However, we're going to continue to reinforce the teaching throughout the rest of the time they're here at the career course."

The students, who will graduate Feb. 26, are already Level 1 certified in combatives. A few are working toward their Level 2 certification.

"Everyone needs to learn a little bit to survive," said CPT Rob McQueen, who will finish his Level 2 certification in the next two weeks. "It gives you basic skills if it gets down to that point, which is good, but it really builds confidence in Soldiers and their ability to fight against another human being."

When he's out on the mat, McQueen said time seems to move slowly as he tries to anticipate his opponent's moves.

"But things change quickly," he said. "You never really know what's going to happen. It just takes one mistake and someone could capitalize (on it). It comes down to who's patient, who gets the move in and who just sticks with it. You'll be in a lot of positions when you're close to getting choked out or you're close to getting in an armbar. You can either take it and give up or you can push through."

Cheryl Rodewig
CPT Keenan Ellison places a rear naked chokehold on CPT Chris Zagursky before beating him in one of the early bouts of the combatives tournament heavyweight division.

McQueen pushed through to the cruiserweight division finals, losing by submission to CPT Chris Mercado on a cross collar choke.

"You never stop learning," McQueen said. "It's good to challenge your peers and learn something from everyone and just have a good time and get beat up a little bit. You're going to feel it whether you win or lose."

Junior shooters from around nation sharpen skills at USAMU camp

Michael Molinaro
USAMU PAO

Junior shooters from across the country descended on Fort Benning Nov. 6-8 as the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit's Action Shooting team hosted a junior camp at Krilling Range.

With two national champions, a two-time international sniper champion and a previous attendee at the camp among the instructors, the opportunity to learn from the best was a chance 48 of the top up-and-comers in action shooting couldn't pass up.

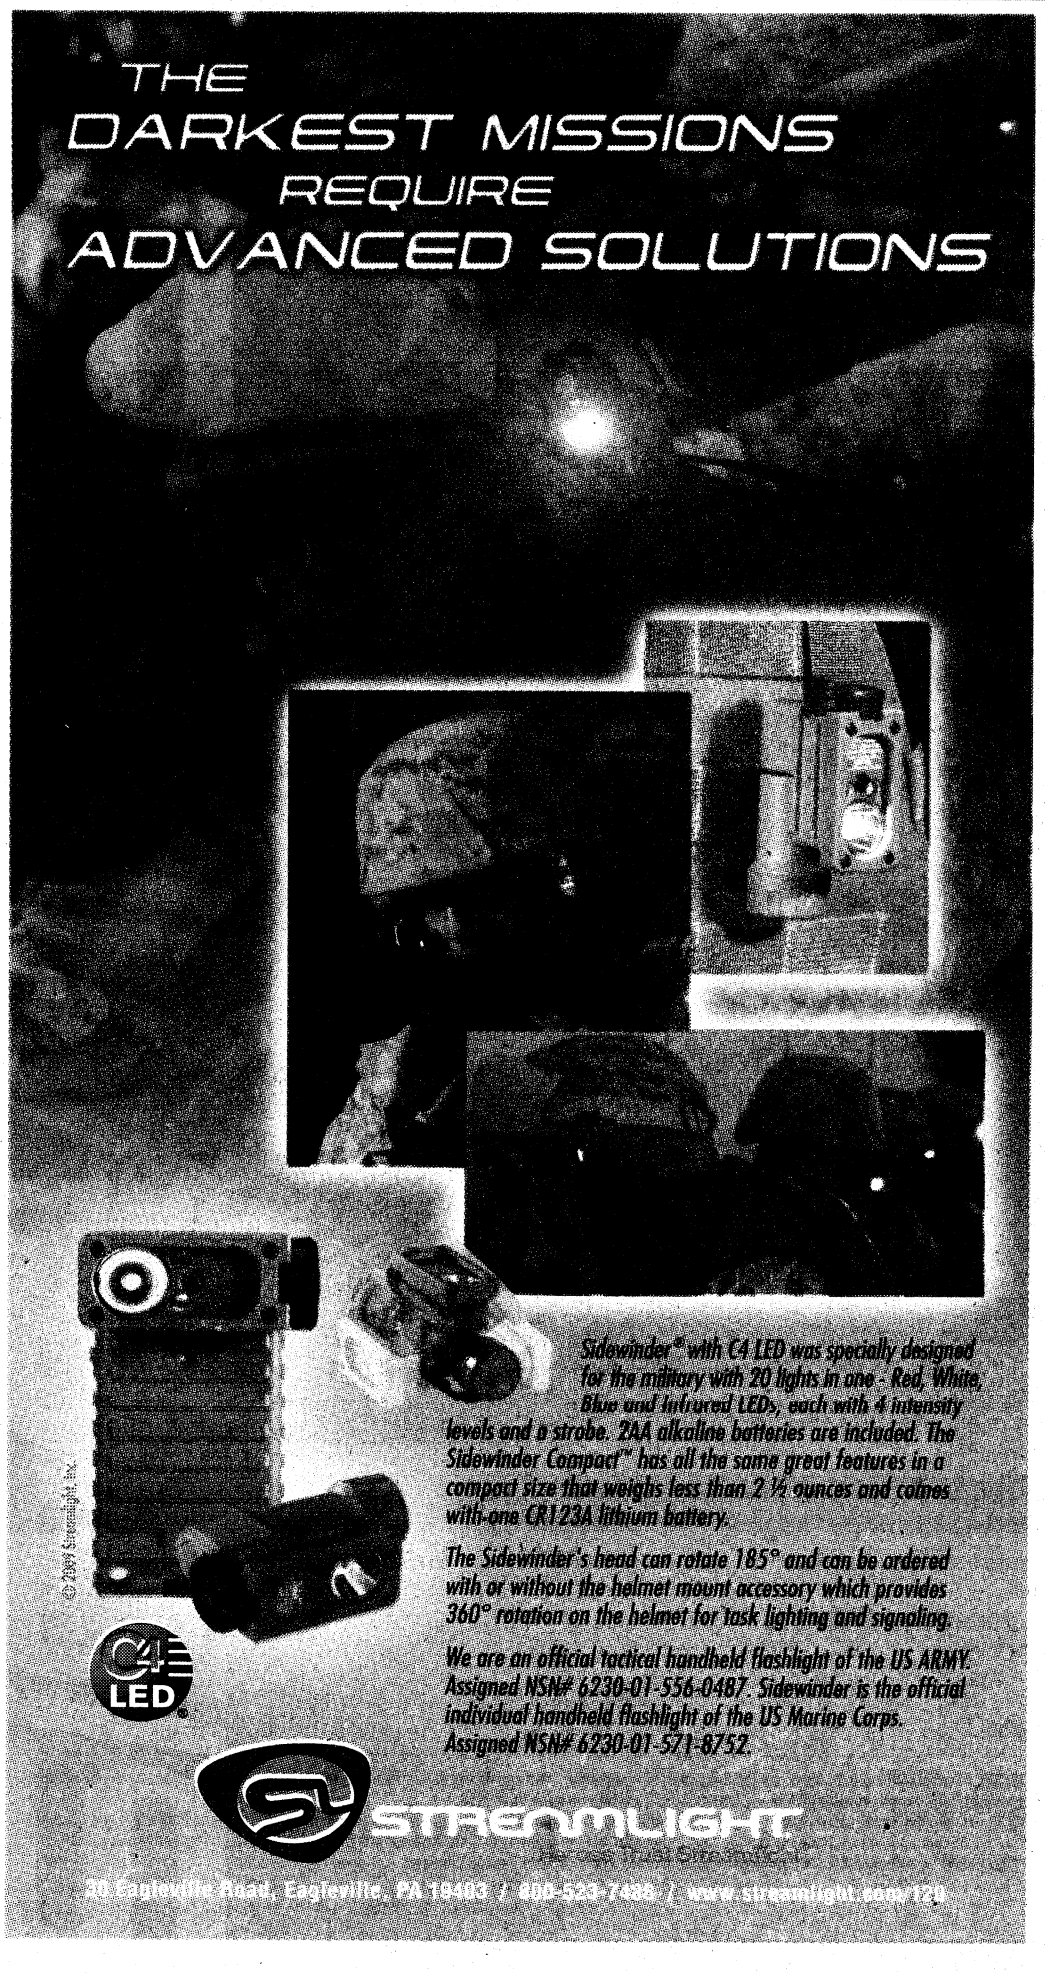
"I needed more training, and my Mom thought if I came here I would meet new friends and have a lot fun," said 9-year-old Lee Wills, the camp's youngest participant and a native of Gainesville, Va. "She was really right."

The kids were picked to attend the camp after a thorough selection process, said SFC Aaron Hampton, the camp director. Each junior had to meet criteria such as being a ranked U.S. Practical Shooting Association competitor or able to show a good deal of shooting experience.

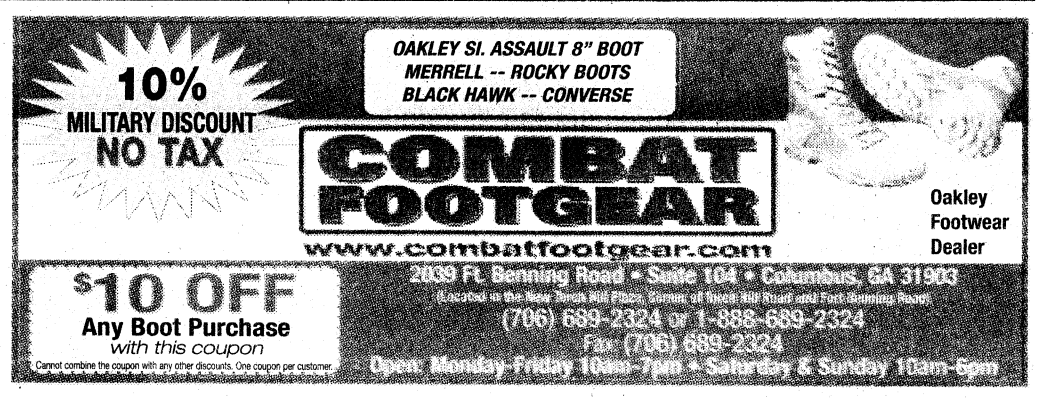
"This isn't a beginner's class," Hampton said. "By no means is it geared to teach the fundamentals. Our goal is to help grow the sport."

Once the criteria was met, the prospective campers had to submit an essay on what they wanted to gain from being at the camp and what the Second Amendment meant to them. Many submissions included a fondness for the Army and desires to one day join the ranks.

Michael Molinaro
James Wall, 13, of Parma, Idaho, fires on a target as SGT Lee Dimaculangan of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit watches.



"I wanted it to be something that was personal and heartfelt but also something that they'd have to spend a little bit of time to research and understand," Hampton said. "If you have 9-year-olds who can write you a two-page essay on the Second Amendment, they probably want to show up. It was designed to be a litmus test on how dedicated they were."



Attendees had the opportunity to learn from the best. SGT Daniel Horner, who recently won the Multi-Gun National championship in Boulder City, Nev., worked with the juniors on drawing and accuracy. SFC Robby Johnson, a two-time International Sniper Competition champion, gave a block of instruction on the introduction to the rifle. The attendees also learned movement techniques, transitions, and reloads.

"I was here last year and had lots of fun," said Mark Saffery, a 13-year-old from Jacksonville, Fla. "I've been competing for three years now. This camp is the best part of the year. We get to learn something from every AMU mentor. They are so awesome and really great guys."

Instructing campers on reloads was PVT Shane Coley, the newest member of USAMU, who attended the camp last fall during its inaugural year. Before attending the camp, Coley said he didn't have plans on joining the Army. That changed after the camp.

"It helped me so much when I came here," Coley said, who arrived at the USAMU after completing basic and advanced individual training three weeks ago. "I got to meet a bunch of new people in the sport, but I also had great mentors and great teachers in the Soldiers on the team.

Post authorities crack down on juvenile crime

Penalties imposed for juvenile misconduct

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Getting caught breaking the law on post can leave a juvenile's family looking for a new place to live.

The garrison command sergeant major said restriction from entering and living on post, which could force a family to move if the child has nowhere else to live, is the most severe penalty imposed by the Juvenile Misconduct Action Authority and is used as a "last resort."

CSM James Foreman leads the JMAA board that disciplines Soldiers' children for juvenile misconduct, such as vandalism or theft.

Although he doesn't recall exercising this option, Foreman said he wants the community to be aware of how severe repercussions can be.

"We want to get the word out that (misconduct) won't be tolerated," said the command sergeant major.

Detective Clarence Rambo, chief of military police investigation, and his staff are responsible for preparing incident reports for the installation hearing officer, who has the option to refer the case to JMAA, based on the severity of the offense.

The JMAA includes representatives from the Military Police Investigation, Department of Social Work Services, Garrison School Liaison and Community Life Service. The process can take up to three months, but is an alternative to state or federal law

Girls Inc. tries 'little bit different' sport

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Twenty girls with bobbing ponytails jumped to the beat of Rhiana as a red and white rope ticked time on the gym floor.

Elementary and middle school girls from across the city participated in the annual jump rope competition at the South Columbus Girls Inc. Baker Center Wednesday.

Four teams competed for the top spot in five categories. The Georgia Peaches took first place in double dutch creativity and rapid fire. The Baker Bouncers took first place in double dutch speed, jump in and single rope speed.

> "Jumping is not easy. It takes stamina, discipline and dedication."
> — Walter McKee, Girls Inc. sports director

"I like it a lot," 7-year-old Arliyah Turk said. She had been looking forward to the competition and was sure her team was the best. SFC(R) Chucky Turk, her father, said this was Arliyah's first time competing, but her desire to jump better had been productive. She attends St. Mary's Elementary School and goes to the center afterward.

Columbus Girls Inc. Sports director Walter McKee said the organization strives to get as many girls involved as possible. Jumping rope is a constructive option for having fun while promoting physical fitness, he said.

"We're not competing with the outside distractions they have at school," McKee said. "The girls can come in an environment of their own (at Girls Inc.) and enjoy themselves."

The retired Army major said although jumping rope is an international sport and is more popular in other U.S. states like Virginia and North Carolina, the girls here have embraced it as a competitive hobby.

"We were looking for something a little bit different to keep the girls physically active," McKee said. "Jumping is not easy. It takes stamina, discipline and dedication."

McKee has worked with Girls Inc. for nine years and started the competition seven years ago. After noticing some of the girls had exceptional talent, he formed a traveling competitive team, the Glory Girls.

Last summer, the team was the only Girls Inc. team to make it to the Amateur Athletic Union Junior Olympic Competition after qualifying at an invitational, winning one silver and two bronze medals.

Gingerbread Jubilee set for weekend

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

More than 50 participants from the tricommunity will gather Sunday and Monday at the RiverMill Event Centre in Columbus to compete in the first Gingerbread Jubilee.

Jamie Keating, chief executive chef, created the event after he attended The National Gingerbread House Competition and Display in Asheville, N.C.

"I think this will be a good way for people to kick off the holiday season," he said. "I don't think there has been anything like this in Columbus before."

Aside from a good time, it's for a great cause, Keating said. All of the profits from the event go to the Children's Miracle Network.

Participants will build gingerbread houses and compete in professional, amateur, student and celebrity categories. Their creations will be judged by local judges, including RiverMill Event Center's executive sous chef Tyler Mock, on creativity, originality, effort and craftsmanship. Attendees can vote on which house they like the best by spending a dollar. The person with the most votes will receive the people's choice award. Following the contest, the houses will be auctioned off.

Red Cross needs blood

'Giving blood saves lives'

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Without blood donations from the American Red Cross, SSG(R) Vernon and Dr. Cheryl Swanier would have lost three of their four children.

"It's the difference between life and death," said Cheryl, a resident of Upatoi, Ga.

Olubunmi, Cheryl's oldest child, now 20, was in a near-fatal car crash Aug. 7, 2006. It was the first day of her senior year in high school.

"She could have bled to death, but because the American Red Cross had the blood available and was able to get (it) to the hospital in a timely fashion, they were able to save her life," Cheryl said.

Blood transfusions, like the one Olubunmi received in 2006, have been a way of life

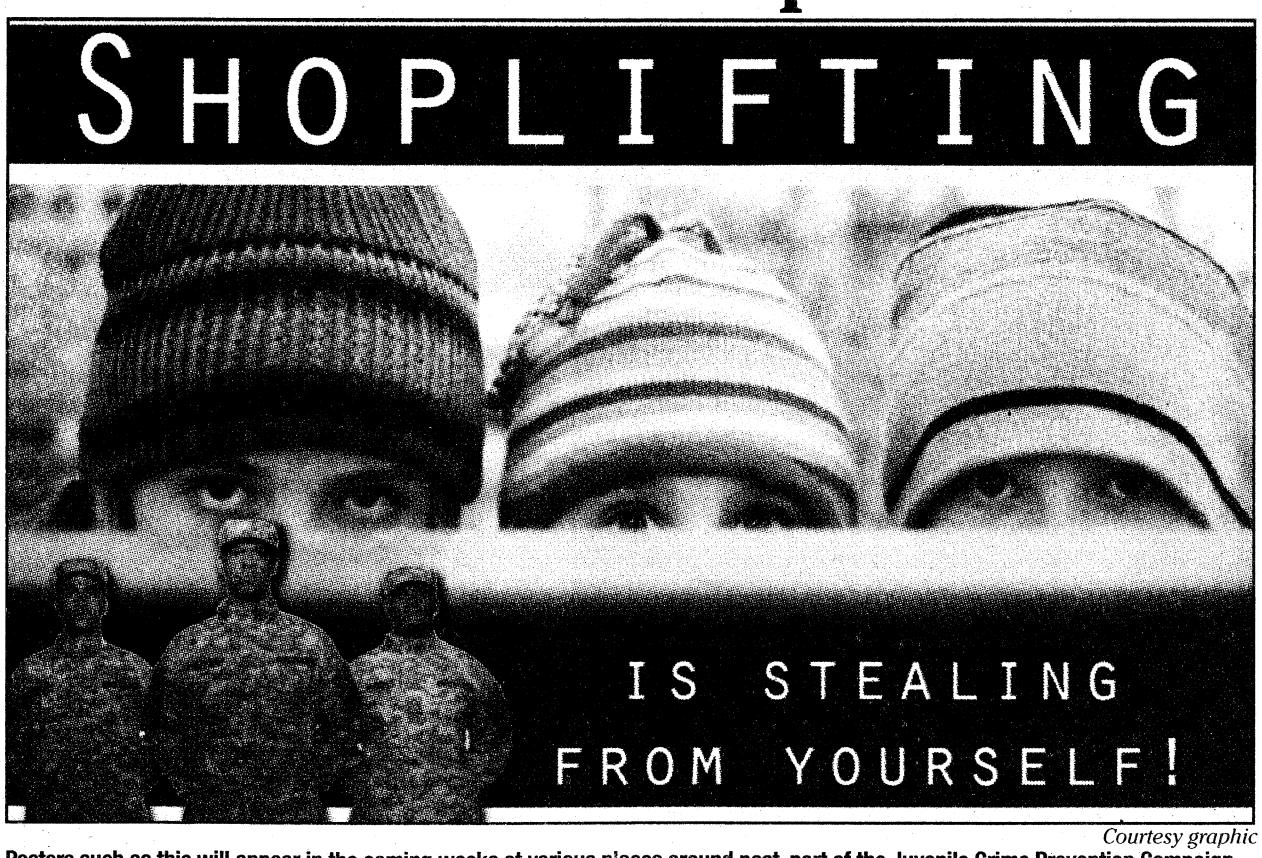
A three-day seminar on behavioral health and traumatic brain injury stemming from deployments will take place Jan. 27-29 at the Roosevelt Warm Springs Institute for Rehabilitation. The sessions are scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. daily.

The Center for Deployment Psychology will present resources and materials to civilian and military providers that offer behavioral health services for troops who have deployed. Deployment-related issues such as suicide risk, post-traumatic stress disorder, depression and traumatic brain injury will be discussed.

Professional service providers, military personnel and family may participate. A $175 fee covers the seminar, continental breakfast each morning, afternoon snack and Continuing Education Units. For more information or a registration form, e-mail Meg Sturdevant at meg.sturdevant@dol.state.ga.us or visit www.rooseveltrehab.org.

MOAA OFFERING LOANS, GRANTS AND SCHOLARSHIPS



More than 1,600 students will receive up to $5,500 each in interest-free loans or grants from the Military Officers Association of America's scholarship fund for the 2009-2010 school year.

The loans and grants are awarded annually for up to five years of undergraduate study — or until a student graduates. Eligible applicants are students younger than age 24, who are children of former, active-duty, or retired commissioned or warrant officers (including Reserve and Guard); and children of active or retired enlisted military personnel (including Reserve and Guard). Active-duty, retired, Reserve, and National Guard officers and warrant officers of all branches are eligible for MOAA membership.

If a child served in the military before completing college, his or her maximum age for eligibility increases by the number of years he or she served, up to five years. Applicants may be high school seniors or full-time college students working toward their first undergraduate degree.

For MOAA Educational Assistance applications for the 2010-2011 school year, or for more information about making a contribution to the scholarship fund, go to www.MOAA.org/education or e-mail edassist@MOAA.org. Students may apply online through noon March 1.

Prevention: Aims to protect military youth enforcement.

"This program is designed for military kids to try to steer them in the right direction," Foreman said.

The board seeks to understand why the juvenile committed the crime and to deter them from getting in trouble again.

Juvenile misconduct is anti-family, Rambo said, because everyone who lives on post is part of the Army family. For example, "shoplifting is basically stealing from your family."

Rambo said he has seen a decline in juvenile incidents in recent months, and Foreman considers the alternative successful.

"If you compare the amount of kids on post and the amount who are getting in trouble, it's in the 1 to 2 percent range," Foreman said.

Less-severe penalties include writing an essay, completing community service and touring a jail.

Ultimately, the goal is taking care of military youth, Foreman said.

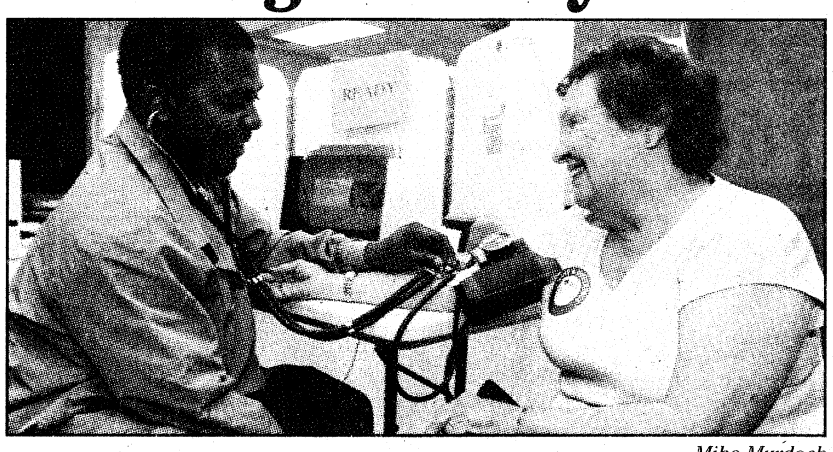
Need: Rises with travel during holidays for two other Swanier children, both diagnosed with sickle cell anemia at birth. Eleven-year-old Anna received several blood transfusions through the Red Cross before her bone marrow transplant from her sister Kalei two years ago, Cheryl said.

Eight-year-old Joshua, however, still depends on the occasional transfusion.

Knowing other families face similar challenges, Cheryl said she and her husband donate blood regularly.



"Giving blood saves lives ... saved my kids," Cheryl said. "You never know when it may hit your own household. The need is there. If the blood supply is not available, people could die."

Blood donations are in even higher demand around this time of year, said Michele Walton, Fort Benning's Red Cross station coordinator.

"At the holiday season, the need is greater because more people are traveling; more people (get in accidents) on the road," she said. "But the need is always great. I've been with the Red Cross a long time, and I can't ever recall when we've had enough blood or we've been close to having enough blood. It saves lives every day. There is always a shortage."

For people with busy schedules, Walton said the blood donor center is flexible. They allow appointments and walk-ins. Regular donors can get on a rotation schedule for every six weeks.

This year, Walton encourages community members to "give the gift of life," she said.

Red Cross staff member Houston Hughey checks Jacqueline Smith's blood pressure before she gives blood.

To donate, those 17 and older can call 800-448-3543 or stop by 7490 Veterans Parkway. The next blood drive will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday at Columbus State University.

The donor center is open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday. For more information, call 706-317-3529 or visit www.givelife.org.

Jubilee: Benefits children for a good organization," said pastry chef Alyson Helton, who has spent the last three weeks building a 3-foot tall gingerbread house. "I love kids, and anything I can do to help them is worth my time."

The house, which is made of roughly 120 pounds of dough and 25 pounds of icing, will be a centerpiece at the jubilee.

"This is what I enjoy as far as pastry work — decorating gingerbread houses," she said. "I like trying to make things look realistic out of sugar."

The lighted gingerbread house includes a steeple, a bell, stained glass windows made of dumdum pops, pretzel railings and a roof and chimney of gum.

"You can use just about anything to make a gingerbread house as long as it's edible," she said. "You can really get creative with it. I think adults like building gingerbread houses because it brings back good memories from being a child and the kids like it because it's candy."

Although the deadline for entries has passed, the event is open to spectators. Admission is free. There will also be cooking demonstrations by Keating and a station where children can decorate gingerbread houses for a cost. The event is from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday and from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday. Commissary shopping makes holidays affordable

Kay Blakley
DECA

FORT LEE, Va. — If money is so tight this year you're thinking of skipping the traditional holiday meal, consider this: All you need to do is shop the commissary and you'll be in surprisingly fine shape. Would you believe it's possible to purchase ingredients for the entire meal for eight to 10 people for just $50? I'm here to tell you the answer is yes — I just did it.

I helped a young military couple, who had a $50 limit, didn't want a lot of leftovers, didn't want to spend a lot of time in the kitchen and wanted to keep the meal easy.

The menu consisted of:

A 6-pound, bone-in turkey breast

A 5-pound, quarter-spiral sliced ham

Turkey gravy (made with the gravy packet included with the turkey breast)

Dressing (celery, onion and chicken broth added to a bag of stuffing mix)

Southern-style marshmallow yams (using canned yams)

Spiced, fresh green beans with walnuts

Hot rolls (ready-to-serve)

Pumpkin pie (ready-to-serve)

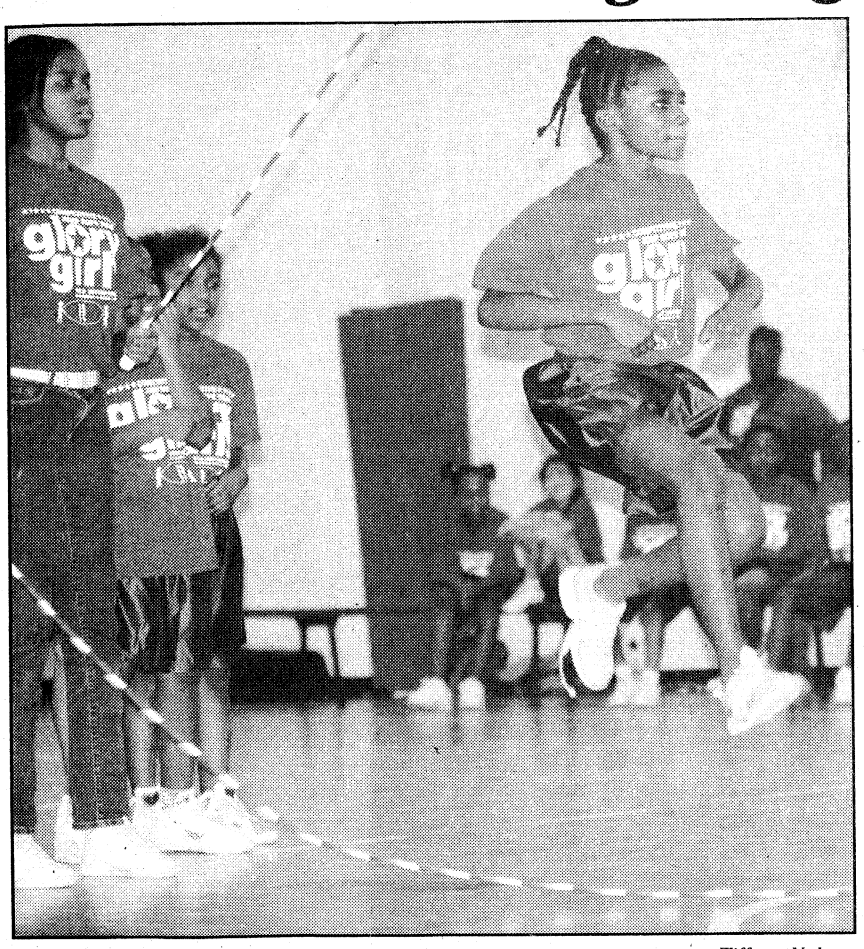
Pecan pie (ready-to-serve)

Whipped topping for the pumpkin pie

The cost: $48.06 plus 5 percent surcharge of $2.40 brought the grand total to $50.46.

Using ingredients such as milk, butter and spices the couple already had on hand and a $4 coupon for the ham allowed the couple to buy the ready-to-serve pies, which saved a lot of prep time.

To garnish the meat platters, they use can leaves harvested from the celery, along with two apples and a lemon.



Visit Kay's Kitchen at www.commissaries.com for more holiday cooking ideas.

To make sure both the ham and turkey were ready at the same time, roast the turkey breast in the oven, but cook the ham in the slow cooker.

If sticking to a budget is top priority, shop with a detailed list, and buy only what you need.

Don't know how much turkey or ham it takes to feed the number of guests you're inviting? Go to Kay's Kitchen at www.commissaries.com for the answer. Need to know how long it takes to thaw or roast the turkey you choose? That answer, plus a collection of holiday recipes, is there too.

"It's very fun, and it motivates you to do more," she said.

She most enjoys getting to travel around the country and meeting other girls who like to jump rope.

McKee said the activity has also encouraged them to work together.

"There's a lot of sisterhood among the girls," McKee said. "They learn to work as a team."

The girls practice twice a week during the school year and every day during the summer.

This year, Futrell said, they are going for the gold.

Army offers Web-based claims process

CPT Robert J. Rauckhorst Jr.
OFFICE OF THE STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE

The most common personnel claims filed against the government are for household goods that were lost or damaged during shipment. Personnel claims may also be filed in other situations, such as when Soldiers sustain losses due to fire or flood at on-post quarters.

Now a Web-based claims computer program — the Personnel Claims Army Information Management System — allows service members and Army civilian employees to file personnel claims for property loss or damage online.

In the past, the service member or Army civilian employee had to submit a written claim for property loss or damage to the local military claims office. As of Oct. 1, there is a choice.

However, the basic requirements necessary to file and settle claims, has not changed.

Service members and Army civilian employees have 70 days from delivery of their property to file the Report of Loss or Damage (DD Form 1840/1840R).

When submitting a claim, a list of all the lost or damaged property, the purchase dates and cost, and the replacement or repair costs is required. Supporting documents, including receipts, government bills of lading (for transportation-related claims), estimates of repair and photos of the damaged property, can be scanned and a digital copy included with the claim.

Using PCLAIMS, claimants can track the progress of their claim.

After the claim has been verified, it will be sent electronically to a military claims office, which will investigate and determine whether the claim is compensable, and arrange for payment, as appropriate. Claimants will be asked to provide a current e-mail address or telephone number so that the claims office can contact them with any questions. Keep in mind that if a claimant cannot be contacted, payment may be delayed.

PCLAIMS can be accessed through Army Knowledge Online at www.us.army.mil. Click on the Self Service tab and then click on the My Legal link. Under the My Legal Links section, click on the Claims link. Once on the U.S. Army Claims Service page, click the PCLAIMS link under the Personnel Claims Section.

PCLAIMS can also be accessed at the Judge Advocate General's Corps Internet site at www.jagcnet.army.mil. Click on the U.S. Army Claims Service link and then click on the PCLAIMS link.

Cook your bird, not your kitchen this Thanksgiving

NATIONAL FIRE PROTECTION ASSOCIATION

QUINCY, Mass. — The National Fire Protection Association is calling on cooks across the nation to include fire safety in their recipes because Thanksgiving is the leading day for home-cooking fires.

U.S. firefighters responded to roughly 1,300 home fires involving cooking equipment on Thanksgiving in 2007, roughly three times the daily average of cooking fires, according to NFPA.

"Incorporating fire safety into your holiday preparations can mean the difference between putting on a fantastic holiday feast for family and friends or having to call the fire department to put out a fire," said NFPA's Vice President of Communications Lorraine Carli.

Cooking is the leading cause of home fires. During 2003-2006, U.S. fire departments responded to an estimated average of 150,200 home structure fires involving cooking equipment per year, according to the newly released NFPA report Home Fires Involving Cooking Equipment.

These fires caused an annual average of 500 civilian deaths, 4,660 civilian injuries, and $756 million in direct property damage.

Other key findings from the report on fires during 2003-2006:

Cooking equipment was involved in 40 percent of all reported home fires, 17 percent of home-fire deaths, 36 percent of home-civilian injuries, and 12 percent of the direct property damage resulting from home fires.

Unattended cooking was by far the leading contributing factor in these fires. Something that could catch fire was too close to the equipment ranked second and unintentionally turned on or not turned off ranked third.

Three-fifths (57 percent) of reported home-cooking fire injuries occurred when victims tried to fight the fire themselves.

NFPA recommends the following cooking tips:

Be on alert! If you are sleepy or have consumed alcohol, don't use the stove or stovetop.

Stay in the kitchen while you are frying, grilling, or broiling food. If you leave the kitchen for even a short period of time, turn off the stove.

If you are simmering, baking, roasting or boiling food, check it regularly, remain in the home while food is cooking, and use a timer to remind you that you are cooking.

Keep anything that can catch fire — oven mitts, wooden utensils, food packaging, towels or curtains — away from your stove top.

If you have a cooking fire:

Keep a lid nearby when you're cooking to smother small grease fires. Smother the fire by sliding the lid over the pan and turn off the stovetop. Leave the pan covered until it is completely cooled.

For an oven fire, turn off the heat and keep the door closed.

If you try to fight the fire, be sure others are getting out and you have a clear way out.

When in doubt, just get out! When you leave, close the door behind you to help contain the fire.

Call 911 or the local emergency number after you leave.

NFPA has been a worldwide leader in providing fire, electrical, building, and life safety to the public since 1896.

The mission of the international nonprofit organization is to reduce the worldwide burden of fire and other hazards on the quality of life by providing and advocating consensus codes and standards, research, training, and education.

Great News For Home Buyers,
Home Buyers Tax Credit Extended.

Tax Credit Applies To New Home Buyers and Current Home Owners.
Here are some facts to review.

The extension and expansion of the popular first-time home buyers tax credit, gives both new and move-up buyers a tax incentive to buy a home until at least April 30, 2010, and longer for military personnel.

1) The new tax credit extends the existing credit for first-time home buyers, worth up to $8,000, and offers a new credit of up to $6,500 for some existing homeowners.
2) The reduced credit for existing homeowners is available to those who have been in their current residence for a consecutive five-year period.
3) The new rule also raises the qualifying income limits to $125,000 for single taxpayers and $225,000 for joint taxpayers, from the current $75,000 and $150,000.
4) The maximum allowed home purchase price is $800,000.
5) A home buyer must have a sale agreement in hand by April 30 and close escrow by June 30, 2010.
6) Military personnel, deployed overseas for a minimum of 90 days in 2008 or 2009, would have until April 30, 2011 to claim the tax credit.

Fried Green Tomatoes

The Whistle Stop Cafe in Juliette, Ga., played a major role in the making of the 1991 drama Fried Green Tomatoes with Kathy Bates.

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

Although the downtown area of Juliette, Ga., is smaller than the size of the Post Exchange parking lot, it is home to The Old Mill Motorcycle Museum and has been used for the movie sets of the 1986 drama, The Killing Affair and the 1991 drama Fried Green Tomatoes with Kathy Bates.

Located northwest of Macon, Ga., less than two hours from the tricommunity area, Juliette is known as the town saved by Hollywood. Juliette's main attraction is the Whistle Stop Café. Known for its signature fried green tomatoes, the Whistle Stop Café offers dishes from barbecue to chicken fried steak, creamed potatoes to fried okra and sweet potato sticks — all at reasonable prices.

Strolling through Juliette only takes about 10 minutes, if you're not stopping at one of the many antique stores or other businesses like the Whistle Stop Gift Shop.

If sitting back and doing a little taste testing is more to your liking, you can try the Southern Grace, Habersham Winery just down the street from the Whistle Stop Café. The winery features Habersham wine made in Georgia. Muscadine, Peach and other wines are also available. Wine sales on Sunday begin at 12:30 p.m. at Southern Grace which also features cookbooks from the Irondale Café (the Whistle Stop from the movie). T-shirts, aprons and books are also available. The winery is open Tuesday through Sunday.

Not a wine connoisseur? Then try the espresso coffee and other treats at The Juliette Expresso.

Coffees, smoothies and homemade ice cream are just a few of the reasons to visit the Expresso. Souvenirs and other gifts are available and you can have your coffee or smoothie sitting out on the front porch.

When you have seen all the downtown sights, The Old Mill Motorcycle Museum is just across the railroad tracks.

Owner Les White, purchased Juliette's gristmill in 2000. He renovated two floors of the mill, about 2,500 square feet for the museum, which houses motorcycles from the 1930s to 1960s.

Eight of his bikes have claimed the coveted winners' circle status from the Antique Motorcycle Club of America, an organization that judges bikes on a point system for accuracy in restoration of everything from tires to taillights.

Each motorcycle took between 315 to 400 hours to restore, with each is worth between $20,000 and $35,000, according to his Web site.

So, whether you are in the mood for a little back-road touring and good ol' fashioned food or are looking to become an aficionado of antique Harley-Davidson motorcycles, a visit to Juliette is well worth the trip.

Each motorcycle in The Old Mill Motorcycle Museum took between 315 to 400 hours to restore, with each worth between $20,000 and $35,000. The museum also houses a restoration shop where owner Les White refurbishes the bikes.

The 1948 Harley-Davidson Panhead is one of the many restored motorcycles on display at The Old Mill Motorcycle Museum in Juliette, Ga. Owner Les White renovated two floors of the old Juliette Mill, approximately 2,500 square feet for the museum.

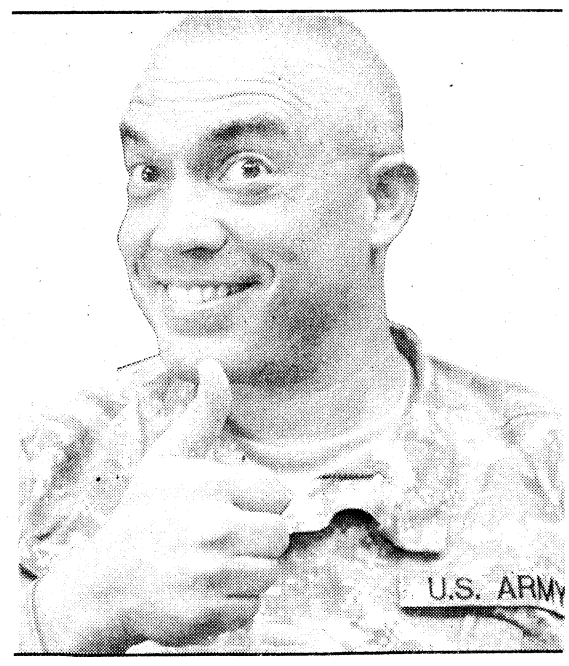
THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW



The Box: Would you push the button?

SGT Junius Stone
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

Director Richard Kelly delves into the world of the strange. He likes swimming around in that collective unconscious Carl Jung talked about. He likes taking those symbols that sing to the soul and arranging them in new and revelatory patterns. He likes to paint in the abstract. Though his films usually begin with surface meeting, you cheat yourself if your appreciation for his films ends there because it's possible you could miss the meaning entirely. The extra effort you take for understanding his films will usually reward you far beyond the time it took to watch the film. Thus as it was with his first film, a tale of time paradox called Donnie Darko, thus as it is with his new film, The Box.

The Box is an adaptation of Richard Matheson's "Button, Button" episode of The Twilight Zone. (Matheson also directed I Am Legend, Hell House.)

The Box involves a couple (James Marsden and Cameron Diaz) who receives a wooden box with a big red button on top.

A horribly scarred, mysterious man named Arlington Stewart (Frank Langella) tells the couple they have limited time to use the box. If they push the button, they will receive a briefcase full of $100 bills, up to $1 million. But someone in the world, someone they don't know, will die.

The couple is a typical young suburban couple — comfortable with some financial pressure. They do press the button, which sets forth a sequence of events that moves far beyond their payout and someone dying.

The film does move into paranoia, with dimensional gateways, otherworldly influences and the idea of constantly being watched. But those are trappings. The film is really about sacrifice and altruism versus self-centeredness and abstraction of human life. What does the life of a stranger mean to you? Would you do something horrible to a person you didn't know to gain some advantageous position? Would you need to be desperate to consider this? Or would just mere material gain be enough? What does that say about you? And what larger conclusions about humanity should we come to as a result?

Provocative questions asked by The Box.

Check it out.

OPENING THIS WEEK

THE TWILIGHT SAGA: NEW MOON

Following Bella Swan's ill-fated 18th birthday party, Edward Cullen and his family abandon the town of Forks, Wash., in an effort to protect her from the dangers inherent in their world.

When a chance encounter brings Bella face to face with a former nemesis, only the intervention of a pack of supernaturally large wolves saves her from a grisly fate, and the encounter makes it clear that Bella is still in danger.

In a race against the clock, Bella learns the secret of the Quileutes and Edward's true motivation for leaving her. She also faces the prospect of a potentially deadly reunion with her beloved that is a far cry from the one she'd hoped for.

This film stars Kristen Stewart, Robert Pattinson and Taylor Lautner. It is rated PG-13 for some violence and action.

THE BLIND SIDE

Michael Oher, a homeless African-American youngster from a broken home, is taken in by the Touhys, a well-to-do white family who help him fulfill his potential. At the same time, Oher's presence in the Touhys' lives leads them to some insightful self-discoveries of their own.

Living in his new environment, the teen faces a completely different set of challenges to overcome. As a football player and student, Oher works hard and, with the help of his coaches and adopted family, becomes an All-American offensive left tackle.

This film stars Sandra Bullock, Tim McGraw and Quinton Aaron. It is rated PG-13 for brief violence, drug and sexual references.

PLANET 51

American astronaut Captain Charles "Chuck" Baker lands on Planet 51 thinking he's the first person to step foot on it. To his surprise, he finds that this planet is inhabited by little green people who are living in a white-picket-fence world reminiscent of an innocent 1950s America, and whose only fear is that it will be overrun by alien invaders — like Chuck!

With the help of his robot companion "Rover" and his new friend Lem, Chuck must navigate his way through the dazzling, but bewildering, landscape of Planet 51 in order to escape becoming a permanent part of the Planet 51 Alien Invaders Space Museum.

This film features Dwayne Johnson as the voice of Captain Charles T. Baker, Gary Oldman as the voice of General Grawl and John Cleese as the voice of Professor Kipple. It is rated PG for mild sci-fi action and some suggestive humor.

PRECIOUS

Clareece "Precious" Jones (Gabourey Sidibe) is an overweight, illiterate African-American teen in Harlem. Just as she's about to give birth to her second child, Jones is accepted into an alternative school where a teacher helps her find a new path in her life.

Precious also stars Sherri Shepherd, Paula Patton and Mariah Carey. This movie is rated R for child abuse including sexual assault, and pervasive language.

NOW PLAYING

THE FOURTH KIND

In 1972, a scale of measurement was established for alien encounters. When a UFO is sighted, it is called an encounter of the first kind. When evidence is collected, it is known as an encounter of the second kind. When contact is made with extraterrestrials, it is the third kind. The next level, abduction, is the fourth kind. This encounter has been the most difficult to document — until now. Set in modern-day Nome, Alaska, where — mysteriously since the 1960s — a disproportionate number of the population has been reported missing every year. Despite multiple FBI investigations of the region, the truth has never been discovered. Here in this remote region, psychologist Dr. Abigail Tyler (Milla Jovovich) began videotaping sessions with traumatized patients and unwittingly discovered some of the most disturbing evidence of alien abduction ever documented.

The Fourth Kind is rated PG-13 for violent and disturbing images, some terror, thematic elements and brief sexuality.

THE BOX

An unhappily married couple receive a small wooden box on their doorstep. At the push of a button, the box brings its bearer instant wealth but also instantly kills someone the bearer doesn't know.

The Box stars Cameron Diaz, James Marsden and Frank Lagella. It is rated PG-13 for thematic elements, some violence and disturbing images.

THE MEN WHO STARE AT GOATS

Reporter Bob Wilton (Ewan McGregor) is in search of his next big story when he encounters Lyn Cassady (George Clooney), a shadowy figure who claims to be part of an experimental U.S. military unit. According to Cassady, the New Earth Army is changing the way wars are fought. A legion of "Warrior Monks" with unparalleled psychic powers can read the enemy's thoughts, pass through solid walls, and even kill a goat simply by staring at it. Now, the program's founder, Bill Django (Jeff Bridges), has gone missing and Cassady's mission is to find him. Intrigued by his new acquaintance's far-fetched stories, Bob impulsively decides to tag along. When the pair tracks Django to a clandestine training camp run by renegade psychic Larry Hooper (Kevin Spacey), the reporter is trapped in the middle of a grudge match between the forces of Django's New Earth Army and Hooper's personal militia of super soldiers. In order to survive this wild adventure, Bob will have to outwit an enemy he never thought possible.

The Men Who Stare at Goats is rated R for language, some drug content and brief nudity.

Never before has a date in history been so significant to so many cultures, so many religions, scientists and governments. A global cataclysm brings an end to the world and tells of the heroic struggle of the survivors.

This film stars John Cusack, Amanda Peet, Thandie Newton, Oliver Platt, Woody Harrelson, and Danny Glover. It is rated PG-13 for disaster sequences and some language.

DISNEY'S A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Ebenezer Scrooge begins the Christmas holiday with his usual miserly contempt, barking at his faithful clerk and his cheery nephew. But when the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Yet to Come take him on an eye-opening journey revealing truths Old Scrooge is reluctant to face, he must open his heart to undo years of ill will before it's too late.

A Christmas Carol stars the voices of Jim Carrey, Gary Oldman, Bob Hoskins, Colin Firth, Robin Wright Penn and Cary Elwes. It is rated PG for scary sequences and images and is offered in 3-D.

SAW VI

Special Agent Strahm is dead, and Detective Hoffman (Costas Mandylor) is the unchallenged successor to Jigsaw's legacy. However, when the FBI draws closer to Hoffman, he is forced to set a game into motion, and Jigsaw's grand scheme is finally understood.

Saw VI is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture and language.

MICHAEL JACKSON'S THIS IS IT

A rare glimpse into the final days of Michael Jackson, the documentary is compiled from an estimated 80 hours of rehearsal and behind-the-scenes footage of the legendary entertainer preparing for his 50 sold-out shows at London's O2 Arena that were scheduled to commence in July 2009 before his untimely death in June at age 50. Interviews with collaborators and close friends of the late performer are also featured.

Michael Jackson's This Is It is a documentary and is rated PG for some suggestive choreography and scary images.

CIRQUE DU FREAK: THE VAMPIRE'S ASSISTANT

Fourteen-year-old Darren (Chris Massoglia) is like most kids in the neighborhood. He gets decent grades and usually stays out of trouble. But when he and his buddy stumble upon a traveling freak show, things begin to change inside Darren. That's the exact moment when a vampire named Larten Crepsley (John C. Reilly) turns him into something, well, bloodthirsty.

Cirque Du Freak: The Vampire's Assistant is rated PG-13 for sequences of supernatural violence and action, images, thematic elements and language.

ASTRO BOY

Set in futuristic Metro City, Astro Boy (Freddie Highmore) is a young robot with incredible powers — super strength, X-ray vision, unbelievable speed and the ability to fly. Powered by positive "blue" energy, Astro Boy was created by a brilliant scientist named Dr. Tenma (Nicolas Cage).

Embarking on a journey in search of acceptance, Astro Boy encounters many colorful characters. Through his adventures, he learns the joys and emotions of being human, and gains the strength to embrace his destiny. Ultimately learning his friends and family are in danger, Astro Boy marshals his awesome superpowers and returns to Metro City in a valiant effort to save everything he cares about and to understand what it means to be a hero.

Astro Boy is rated PG for action and peril, and language.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Max, a rambunctious and sensitive boy feels misunderstood at home and escapes to where the Wild Things are. He lands on an island where he meets mysterious and strange creatures whose emotions are as wild and unpredictable as their actions. The Wild Things desperately long for a leader to guide them, just as Max longs for a kingdom to rule. When Max is crowned king, he promises to create a place where everyone will be happy. Max soon finds, though, that ruling his kingdom is not so easy and his relationships there prove to be more complicated than he originally thought.

Where the Wild Things Are is rated PG for mild thematic elements, some adventure action and brief language.

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN

Clyde Shelton (Gerard Butler) is a family man whose wife and daughter are brutally murdered during a home invasion. When the killers are caught, Philadelphia prosecutor Nick Rice (Jamie Foxx) is assigned to the case. Nick is forced by his boss to offer one of the suspects a light sentence in exchange for testifying against his accomplice. Fast-forward 10 years. The man who got away with murder is found dead and Shelton admits his guilt. Then he issues a warning to Nick: Fix the flawed justice system that failed his family, or key players in the trial will die.

From his jail cell, Shelton orchestrates a string of spectacularly diabolical assassinations that can be neither predicted nor prevented, and only Nick can stop the killing.

He must outwit the sociopath in a harrowing contest of wills in which even the smallest misstep means death. With his own family now in Shelton's crosshairs, Nick finds himself in a desperate race against time facing a deadly adversary who seems always to be one step ahead.

Law Abiding Citizen is rated R for violence and torture, a rape scene and language.

ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive. Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

CSU Theater to stage Cloud Nine
TODAY-SUNDAY

Columbus State University Theatre will stage British playwright Caryl Churchill's comedy Cloud Nine at 7:30 p.m. today and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday at CSU Theatre on the Park Mainstage in downtown Columbus. Directed by professor Becky Becker, the play's first act satirizes late-19th century British Empire and the repressive nature of the Victorian family. Ticket prices are $15 for adults and $13 for seniors, children, active military and CSU alumni and free for CSU faculty-staff (limit two) and students (limit one).

For more information, call the theatre box office at 706-507-8444.

Thanks a million!

The post's Combined Federal Campaign drive hit $1million Monday. A large donation from the Soldiers of 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, helped Fort Benning reach its goal. The regional campaign, which began Sept. 2, continues through early December. The mission of CFC is to promote and support philanthropy. The CFC raises millions of dollars annually to support eligible nonprofit organizations that provide health and human service benefits throughout the world.

Fort Benning hit the $1 million mark for the Combined Federal Campaign Monday.

"We definitely have a hit a milestone. It is amazing," said Laura Walker, manager for the Columbus/Fort Benning Regional CFC.

The regional campaign kicked off Sept. 2 with a $1 million goal set by MG Michael Ferriter, post commanding general.

The goal became reality when SFC James Kuhl, CFC key person for 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, turned in his unit's donations: $38,000 that put Fort Benning over the top.

"It's outstanding," Kuhl said. "I think command support really made a difference."

Kuhl helped make 100 percent contact with cadre members and basic trainees in the battalion, letting them know about the opportunity to donate.

Kuhl said he appreciates the opportunity to donate through CFC as a way to reach multiple organizations — around 3,000 are listed in the CFC booklet — that support his interests, such as helping animals and children in need.

"But I can't have 3,000 people come to my door and solicit a donation," he said. "I've donated to CFC for probably the past 20 years because it's an easy way to do the right thing for people who need help."

Walker said she appreciates the help of the key persons and the community's willingness to give.

"I am extremely grateful, as are the organizations that are going to benefit from their donations," she said.

"This is such a tough time economically and some of the funding is drying up for many of these agencies, so the generosity of the CFC donor is more important than ever."

The units will turn in their donations by early December, but Walker said people who haven't given still can. The campaign's total dollar amount will be finalized Dec. 15.

Probe ongoing in Kelley Hill incident

MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The Army's Criminal Investigation Division continues to investigate a potential threat against Fort Benning that was discovered Nov. 19.

A Soldier discovered a suspicious package and note in the area of a motor pool on Kelley Hill. The Soldier notified his supervisor, who called 911.

Military police and the Department of Emergency Services personnel secured the area around the motor pool without incident. The criminal investigation was initiated immediately.

On the same day, the Department of Defense Schools had a planned training exercise to rehearse procedures for lock down in the event of a bomb threat. Additionally, post security forces were preparing for the annual SOA Watch protest, resulting in an increased security presence throughout post.

These separate, unrelated events led to some confusion throughout the community, said COL Charles Durr, Maneuver Center of Excellence chief of staff.

"It was sheer coincidence that all three events happened on the same day," Durr said. "The school exercise and SOA Watch security concerns are a part of our normal battle rhythm.

"Our focus now is the ongoing criminal investigation into the incident on Kelley Hill."

"As the investigation continues, the post remains open and accessible," said MG Michael Ferriter, commanding general. "The Directorate of Emergency Services, Criminal Investigation Division and military police did an exceptional job responding to this incident and ensuring the community was protected.

"Our number one priority is to ensure Fort Benning is a safe place to live and work," he said. "We have the appropriate force protection measures in place as we approach Thanksgiving and the holiday season."

Anyone with information regarding this incident can call the Criminal Investigation Division office at 706-545-3984.

Mass H1N1 vaccination planned

MACH PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The staff of Martin Army Community Hospital has immunized more than 25,000 active-duty Soldiers and 1,000 Department of Defense civilians with the seasonal flu vaccine or mist.

"We've been working closely with all the units on post to ensure that every active-duty Soldier receives their influenza immunization," said MAJ Renee Busse, chief of Community Health Nursing. "We also have a mass immunization planned for the H1N1 influenza in the very near future."

The hospital is getting the H1N1 stocks from various sources, said Dr. Cynthia D. Borel, chief, MEDPROS.

The state of Georgia supplied the H1N1 vaccine for the non-active-duty patients, family members and retirees, she said. The supply from the federal stock is designated for Soldiers.

A shipment designated for non-active-duty patients arrived, Borel said, which will allow pregnant patients, older adults (50 years and older) who take care of infants 6 months and younger, and patients who have chronic medical conditions.

The inactivated H1N1 vaccine is recommended for pregnant women, Borel said.

Soldier loses eye but keeps dreams in sight

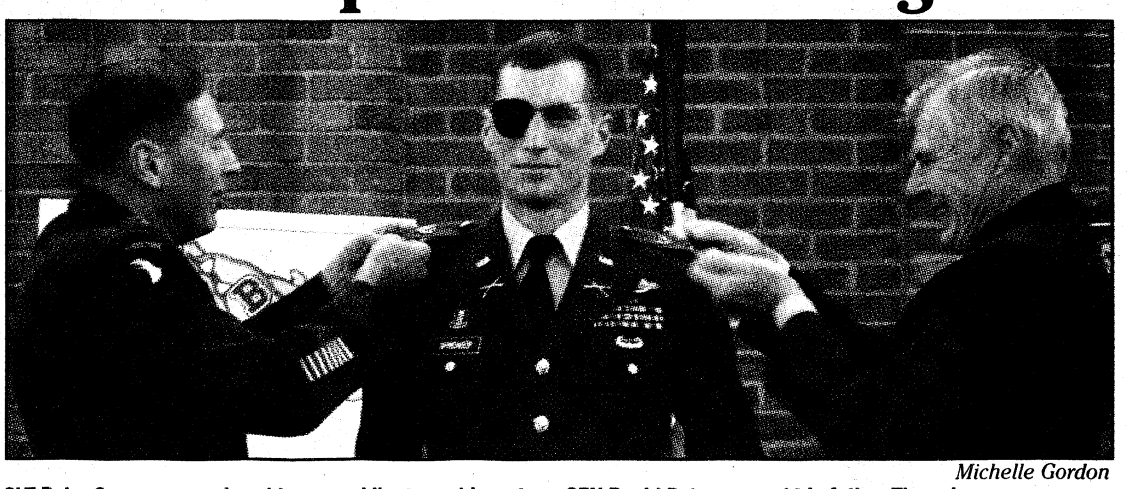
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS



Ten months into his deployment with the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault), Peter Sprenger lost an eye when an improvised explosive device detonated near the forward operating base in Tal Afar, Iraq.

But he didn't lose his focus as an Infantryman.

"I was a little irritated that I lost my eye," he said, "but I didn't want to quit."

During his rehabilitation, Sprenger wanted to remain in the Army, but he didn't want a desk job, so he contacted his former 101st commander, now the U.S. Central Command commander GEN David Petraeus for assistance.

"Ordinarily such an injury would have resulted in a medical retirement," Petraeus said. "However, (then) CPL Sprenger was no ordinary Soldier."

2LT Peter Sprenger receives his second lieutenant bars from GEN David Petraeus and his father Thursday.

The most seriously wounded Soldier during the attack on his forward operating base, Petraeus said he tracked Sprenger's progress.

"He's taught me about sure determination, perseverance and strength in the way of diversity," Petraeus said. "The way he's responded has been truly inspirational."

After earning the Ranger tab in 2005, Sprenger again deployed to Iraq with the 101st for a second time. When the unit redeployed to Kentucky,

One of Columbus' oldest veterans attended the city's first Veterans Day parade in 50 years Nov. 14.

Roy Brooks, 96, who fought in the South Pacific during World War II, and his wife, Reva, who've been married for 76 years, watched from the reviewing stand with other World War II vets — Jim Rhodes, who fought in the Philippines and New Guinea; Vincent Melillo, a Merrill's Marauder who fought in the China, Burma and India theaters; George Ward, who fought in Burma; and Frank Steven Losonsky, one of the "Flying Tigers" who fought the Japanese in China and Burma.

The parade was the culmination of Veterans Appreciation Week, said LTC(R) Sam Nelson, who along with his wife, Sallie, helped Columbus city councilman Jerry "Pop" Barnes make the parade a reality.

Russell County High School student Mallory Lynn, 16, won the VFW's essay contest at her school to ride on one of the floats. Her father, SFC Robert Lynn, returned from Afghanistan recently. More than 900 entered the essay contest.

Thanksgiving wishes

COMMANDING GENERAL

After surviving a very harsh winter in the New World, the English colonists celebrated their first bountiful harvest in the fall of 1621. They hosted a banquet to show their appreciation to their Native American neighbors and to celebrate their blessings. Today, we call it Thanksgiving. Each year, we gather with family and friends to give thanks for the blessings we share as citizens of a free nation.

In this age of persistent conflict, many Soldiers and Army families face various forms of hardship, including separation and loneliness, not unlike what those first colonists faced when they left their kinfolk and homeland to seek freedom and prosperity in a new land.

A wise man once said, "Thanksgiving is possible only for those who take time to remember; no one can give thanks who has a short memory." Recognizing that many of us will struggle to find reasons to be thankful this holiday season, I encourage you to take time to remember. I believe each of you will find that you have much for which to give thanks.

I encourage you to count your blessings, not just for your own benefit, but for those around you as well. As you are able, share your abundance with others less fortunate. Share your presence with those who have lost loved ones. When you do, you truly will be expressing thanks for what you have received this past year.

God bless you, and God bless Fort Benning!

That is what we call thanksliving

Bridgett Siter
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The story is told of a country vicar who preached incessantly, or so it seemed, to his congregation, about Christians' call to a life of thanksgiving. Service after service, sermon after sermon, and no matter the subject of his discourse, the cleric interjected a lesson on thankfulness. In the early days of his ministry, his was a prosperous parish and the flock of the little country church found much to be thankful for.

Come harvest, when the townsfolk worked from dawn to dusk, from Monday morn till Saturday night, and dragged themselves to Sunday service for respite, the vicar was thankful for God's bountiful blessings, and his congregants nodded their weary heads in agreement.

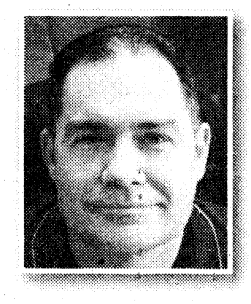
When the rains came in the spring and thick rivers of mud flowed from the hills and covered the valley in a miry blanket, the villagers left their wagons in the barn and plodded to church to hear the vicar give thanks to God for the gift of umbrellas and rubber boots. Seated comfortably on the pews of a dry and cozy sanctuary, the faithful flock smiled good-naturedly.

At the funeral of an elderly, much beloved church member, the vicar was thankful for the memories of a life well lived, and, yes, in spite of their grief, the congregation could see his point.

But as the times grew tough, and the parish grew poor, the vicar's relentless gratitude began to grate. And finally, after a very muddy spring and a very dry summer and a very bleak harvest, the congregation lost all patience with their pastor. They rolled their eyes and heaved great sighs of frustration each time he encouraged them to be thankful.

Early that winter, in the wee hours between midnight and the dawn of a Sunday, a storm smothered the little town in several feet of snow — more snow than anyone could ever recall. The streets were covered in ice and the cows couldn't give milk and the townsfolk shivered under their blankets. Little good it did to pile wood upon the fire.

When the church bell called the village to worship, it looked for a time as if no one would show. Then, an idea was born somewhere in the village, whispered around the breakfast table and echoed across the valley. What on earth could the vicar possibly be thankful for in this day? Single-mindedly, the villagers donned their coats and scarves and boots and scrambled across snowdrifts shaped like rooftops and filed into the church, anxious to hear a new sermon. At last!



The organist made quick work of the processional and jammed her frozen fingers back into her mittens. Silence fell upon the little church and all eyes turned to the vicar standing before them, wearing his vestments under layers of thick wool. Instead of speaking to his flock, the vicar turned his eyes heavenward and spoke in a voice strong and clear:

"I am so thankful today, Father, that every day is not like today."

I don't know if there's any truth to that story, but I know that there's truth in its message. It's easy to be thankful in times of prosperity and peace. Gratitude can be a response to positive circumstances in our lives, in which case it will wax and wane accordingly, or it can be our constant companion, an attitude that colors our perspective of the circumstances in our lives. That is what we call "thanksliving."

Reality is not good medicine (and it can't dance)

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

After seven months back in the United States, it's become clear I didn't miss a single thing on TV while in Japan for seven years. Prime-time has become nothing more than a cesspool of smutty reality shows, mediocre medical and cop dramas, and carbon-copy comedies.

Seriously, how many different versions of Law & Order, NCIS and CSI must we be subjected to? Perhaps CSI: Cusseta is next. One can dream.

The glut of TV shows mimicking the same genre reveals not only the laziness of today's Hollywood writers, but also their incredible lack of creativity and imagination. It's far easier — and more lucrative, apparently — to give viewers Rock of Love Charm School, Keeping Up with the Kardashians and Jon & Kate Plus 8 than to produce something original. And personally, I don't care who's at fault for the split; they're both contemptible.

I've never watched an episode of The Mentalist, Numb3rs or Criminal Minds but can't imagine they vary at all to any of the half a dozen CSI versions. And medically speaking, is there any real difference between House, Grey's Anatomy and Scrubs?

If I want to laugh, the choices include Two and a Half Men, The Office and How I Met Your Mother — all of which border on obnoxious and annoying. Somehow, we're supposed to believe Neil Patrick Harris is genuinely happy to hang out with single, attractive women as a matter of routine — not that there's anything wrong with it.

I'll confess to one guilty reality pleasure: Years ago, I got lured into watching Survivor via an office pool and have been hooked ever since. (Russell has made this one of the most entertaining seasons ever. His knack for finding immunity idols — without even the first clue on two occasions — is unmatched in show history. He's been a lot like the Florida Gators and Indianapolis Colts this fall — they all find ways not to lose.)

Obviously, these reality shows wouldn't be on the air if ratings didn't back them, which is an even sadder indictment on us as Americans. I have no doubt an alarming majority could tell you who got bounced from Dancing With The Stars last night before they could name one of their two U.S. senators. Frightening.

I'm truly amazed a reality dance show can dominate ratings in the year 2009. For crying out loud, it's a bunch of quasi-celebrities and unknowns dancing before a panel of condescending judges. Why not just bring back Dance Fever?

The Soup on E!, however, is a fantastic way to spend 30 minutes. Nobody on TV skewers the litany of Hollywood sycophants, blowhards and self-promoting reality "stars" better.

Recently, I tuned in to HBO's Curb Your Enthusiasm for the first time, only to catch the long-awaited Seinfeld reunion. I never watched Seinfeld during its 1990s prime-time run, but can't get enough of it in syndication. The reruns converted my wife and me into "Latvian orthodox," "man-hand" fearing, "Festivus-loving" fanatics.

Otherwise, for clever writing and originality, I'll stick to the animation — South Park, Family Guy and The Simpsons — and Comedy Central's Reno 911, easily among the funniest non-animated shows on television. The rest of the landscape is pretty barren.

With the help of a German soldier, Fort Benning German liaison officer LTC Walter Shleef, left, places a wreath in honor of those who died during World War II.

German, Italian Memorial Day observed

The graves of the 44 German and seven Italian soldiers buried at the Main Post Cemetery are markers of peace, said Fort Benning German liaison officer LTC Walter Shleef.

While standing near the flags of the two nations, Shleef spoke to those who gathered to observe German and Italian Memorial Day Wednesday.

The holiday is observed at all U.S. military installations where World War II prisoners of war from Italy and Germany are buried.

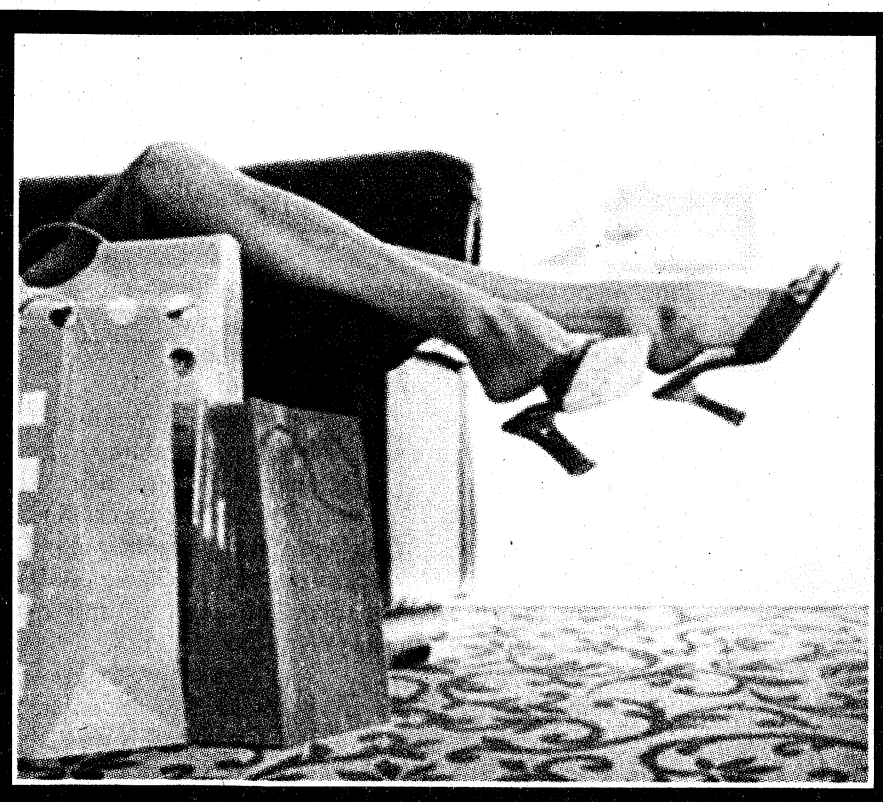
"These (Soldiers) died ... far away from their homes and families," he said. But they are resting in peace, shoulder to shoulder, with American Soldiers. Isn't it wonderful that former enemies have now become close and trusted friends?"

A. Della Costanza Turner, honorary consul general of Italy, and Constance Heery, deputy of the Atlanta-based German general consulate, also spoke, expressing hopefulness for the progress that has been made as the three nations move into the future.

Turner said the graveside service was an appropriate setting for the memorial because seeing the headstones was cause for reflection.

"It's one thing to see news on TV and to hear about it, but to come to this cemetery ... you get a sense of the true (cost of war)," she said.

Former Columbus mayor Robert Poydasheff said recognizing German and Italian casualties is a lesson on unity.



"We certainly need the support of the Germans and the Italians in the war on terrorism, particularly in Afghanistan," Poydasheff said.

Shleef said America is Germany's greatest partner.

"World War I and World War II, ... the Holocaust and other crimes executed by Germans are still in our hearts and minds and shape our emotions even today," he said. "The German people are very grateful because of what America did for us."

Italian liaison officer LTC Fabrizio Salerno said the work of soldiers should never go unrecognized.

"Without the sacrifice of our soldiers of the past, and unfortunately the present, we can not have a free country or a free world," Salerno said. "Now (those who died) rest in peace, but they are here forever in our hearts. And we will never forget them."

More than 20 ROTC cadets from Columbus State University were given a mission Sunday — rescue two U.S. Special Forces Soldiers and a member of the American Red Cross.

In a mock mission at Buchanan Range, insurgents captured the town of Ridleyville and ousted the mayor. It was the cadets' job to rescue the prisoners and secure the two-story building that was used as the insurgents' headquarters.

The exercise was part of the CSU Cougar Battalion's first field training exercise this semester. It was designed to hone leadership skills, said LTC Mark Ridley, military science professor at Columbus State University. Senior cadets, who will graduate and commission in the spring, "managed" the problem-solving process, Ridley said, and junior cadets led at the squad and team level. They were evaluated on their performance.

To be successful, the cadets were required to develop a solid plan but remain flexible as circumstances evolved, said MAJ Scott Jones, ROTC operations officer.

"You always want to go in with a good plan, but when you go up there, you get a first time view of what it looks like, you confirm, deny or possibly have to void your plan based on your leader's recon," Jones said in an after action review.

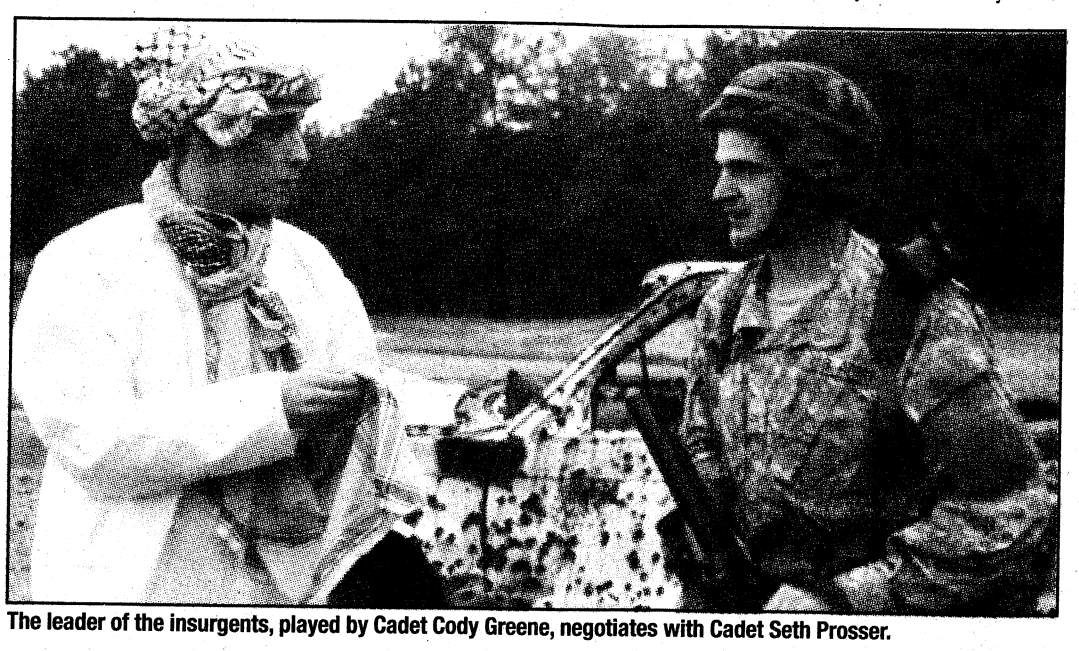
"Very few times ... does the plan you rehearse ever go down exactly the way you planned and rehearsed. Something always changes."

The cadets planned to move in on Strykers, dismount and approach the insurgents' headquarters through the woods behind the building. They didn't expect to encounter snipers on the roof, hysterical civilians roaming the streets and aggressive reporters complicating the situation. These complications led to the "deaths" of two ROTC squad leaders.

"We wanted to make it stressful for them," Ridley said. "It's important to have civilians in their training, because that is what they will see the majority of their time in theater in Iraq and Afghanistan. We put them in these situations so they can figure out how to deal with them and how to apply the rules of engagement toward them."

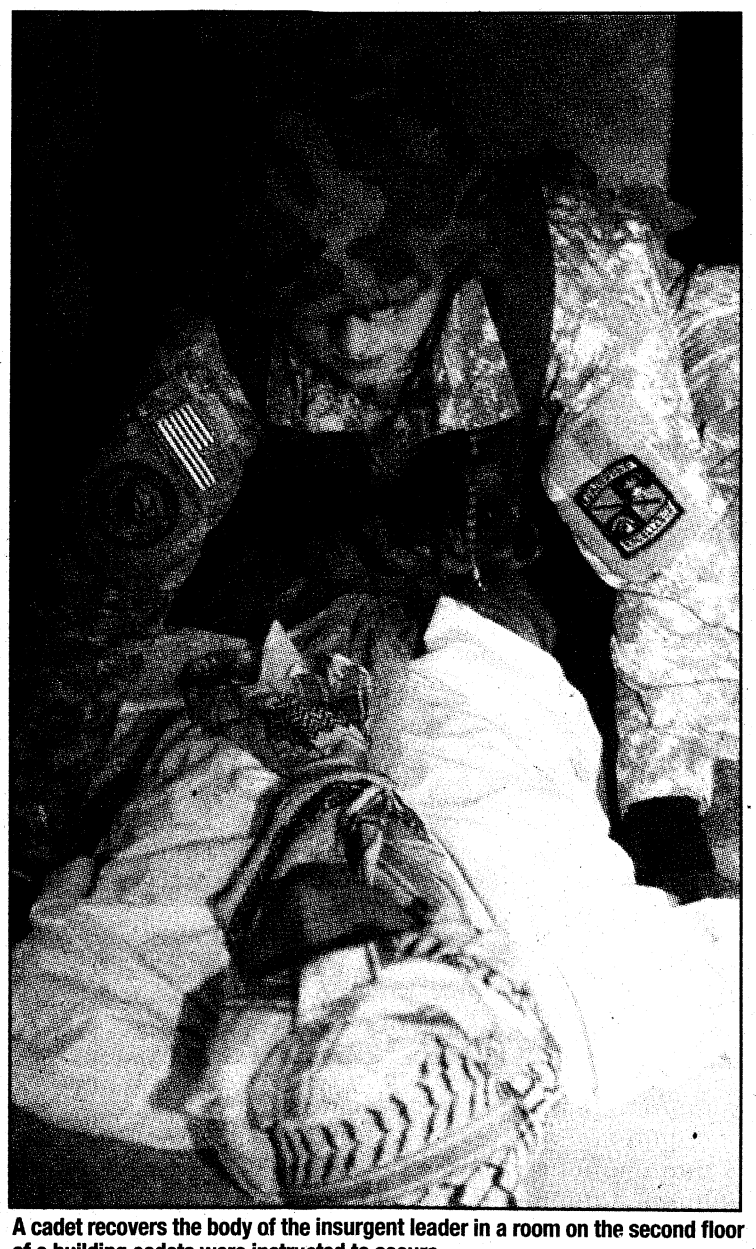
Cadet Seth Prosser was surprised to find himself assigned to lead the mission.

"In a situation like this, you never know what is going to happen," Prosser said. "They threw in some wrenches, like the (civilians) walking up to the platoon and talking. You have to be able to stay focused, think on your feet and make a quick, but smart, decision."



Cadet Gwen Hill, a junior, said the exercise taught her about the responsibilities of holding various positions and the need to remain flexible when it comes to carrying out a mission.

"You have to have a plan, but be able to adjust it if (something) goes wrong," she said.



Cadets also practiced ambush, reconnaissance and squad tactic drills and wrapped up their three-day FTX Sunday.

USAIS announces instructors of the year

Smith, Bowlan, Henderson named top instructors

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

U.S. Army Infantry School selected the Instructors of the Year. They are junior enlisted winner SSG William Henderson, senior enlisted winner SFC Bruce Bowlan and officer winner CPT Nathan Smith.

Smith

Smith was the third quarter winner and is a senior platoon trainer with the Infantry Officer Basic Course.

Senior civilian instructor Charlie Beard said nominees were judged on method of instruction, classroom appearance and implementation of safety policies, among other categories. The competition has been honoring outstanding instructors since 1964.

Of the 1,500 instructors on Fort Benning, an average of 30 are nominated each quarter.

"This is a very high honor," Beard said. "One sergeant out on the field will influence about 1,000 Soldiers. People will live or die from our instruction. That's an awesome responsibility."

Soldiers receive military instruction equivalent to that of civilian instruction, and credits can often be applied to civilian degrees.

Fourth-quarter winner Smith, A Company, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, said he is responsible for three of the 13 weeks of IBOLC instruction.

"The goal of this course is to make sure young lieutenants are competent enough to lead Soldiers in combat," said Smith, who deployed to Iraq in 2005. "When they leave here, they should be ready to lead from the front."

Bowlan

He said building rapport with his students and making lessons relate to real-world experiences was key.

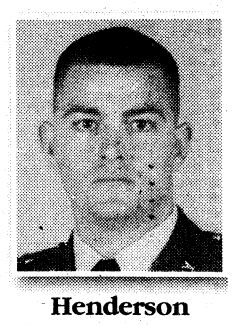
"I know I'm capable and a good instructor, but I was pleasantly surprised," said the 2004 West Point graduate. "It's nice to be recognized for the job you've done."

Likewise, Bowlan, C Company, 5th Ranger Training Battalion at said he appreciated the distinction.

"It's an honor to be able to represent my company and the battalion in this award," he said. "Being able to stand out in a group of very well-rounded, professional instructors is a pretty good feeling."

After a 17-year career "on the line" with the Infantry and two Iraq deployments, Bowlan said going to Camp Merrill in Dahlonega, Ga., in 2008 to guide students through Ranger School's mountain phase was "like a whole other world." It marked the first time as an NCO he didn't have his own platoon in the field.

"Learning how to instruct properly was one of the biggest obstacles I had to overcome," he said.



He not only bridged the gap but also distinguished himself with a unique teaching brand and passion for mentoring Ranger students, colleagues said.

"He grabs their attention," said SFC Corey Hawkins, a team sergeant with C Company. "Anybody who's in front of him will be drawn in by his technique. It's his energy; he gets into what he teaches."

Bowlan has two years left at Camp Merrill and said he'll maintain the same approach to connecting with his Ranger classes.

Second-quarter winner Henderson, Company D, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 197th Brigade, said he wasn't expecting the award but was honored by the distinction.

After joining the Army in 2001, he spent six and a half years with the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., where he deployed twice. He arrived at Fort Benning in 2007 and will become a drill sergeant here in 2010.

Henderson

Among other awards, he has received a Purple Heart, ARCOM with oak leaf cluster and a Combat Infantry Badge.

Henderson credits his success to the flexibility he has been allowed during his past two years as an engagement skills trainer instructor. EST is a simulated firing range used to teach marksmanship and rules of engagement.

"Traditionally, it takes months, even years, to modify training and doctrine so we are training current techniques to our young Soldiers," he said. "With the EST program, I have the ability to modify training on the spot to train those critical tasks."

TRADOC instructors of the year are typically announced in January.

Construction to begin on access control points projects

Bridgett Siter
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The access control point on Custer Road near McBride Elementary School will be closed, Dec. 18 to Jan. 4, for renovations. The project was scheduled at a time when many post residents and civilian employees will be on leave to minimize traffic delays, said Dave Benefield, an engineer with the post's Directorate of Public Works.

Work will continue at the Custer Road site until Feb. 1, with minimal interference to traffic, after the ACP is reopened.

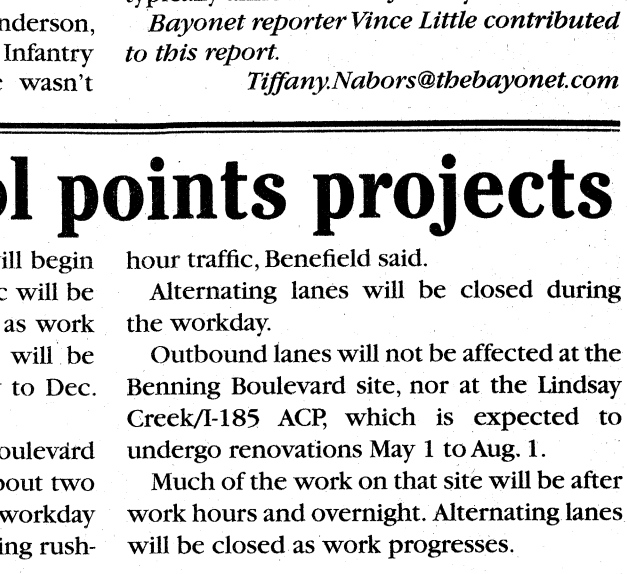
The Custer Road ACP renovation is one of several road construction projects announced earlier this week by the DPW. In each project, measures will be taken to reduce impacts on traffic.

Work on the access control point on Sunshine Road near Eddy Bridge will begin Monday, weather permitting. Traffic will be rerouted for short periods of time as work progresses on the project, which will be completed in two phases, Monday to Dec. 17 and Feb. 1 to March 1.

Renovations on the Benning Boulevard ACP will begin in March and last about two months. Contractors will start their workday at 9 a.m., so as not to impede morning rush-hour traffic, Benefield said.

Alternating lanes will be closed during the workday.

Outbound lanes will not be affected at the Benning Boulevard site, nor at the Lindsay Creek/I-185 ACP, which is expected to undergo renovations May 1 to Aug. 1.



Much of the work on that site will be after work hours and overnight. Alternating lanes will be closed as work progresses.

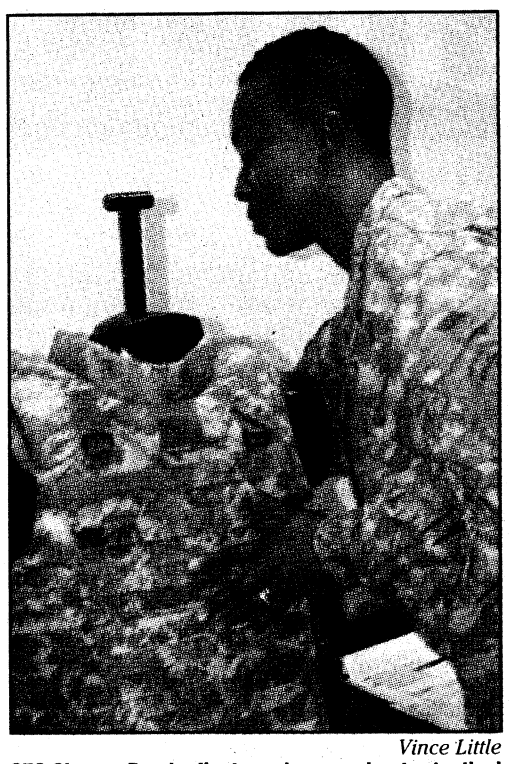
TCM-Soldier puts sharper eye on equipment, uniform issues facing women in the ranks

Vince Little
THE BAYONET



For some time, TRADOC Capability Manager-Soldier considered bringing in its own czar of sorts dedicated to gaining the female perspective in clothing and individual equipment across the Army.

Until the arrival of SFC Simone Reed in late April, the Fort Benning organization never had one before.

"Having a senior female NCO in that position is probably something we should've had a while back, but we were finally able to put something together and get a female NCO who could help us specifically with female issues," said Pat Berger, the deputy TCM-Soldier. "Some of us old guys have been in the Army a long time and don't necessarily understand those matters ... We needed to have a female NCO who could go out and talk to female Soldiers from the user perspective about equipment issues — but not to the exclusion of other Soldiers."

Reed isn't new to Fort Benning. Prior to joining TCM-Soldier, she was a platoon sergeant with B Company, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment — which teaches Basic Officer Leader Course II — and has been here for more than four years.

She said TCM-Soldier wants to get better user feedback from women about potential changes to uniforms and equipment that can benefit female Soldiers. But as the clothing and individual equipment representative, she's not limiting herself to the concerns of one gender.

Vince Little
SFC Simone Reed adjusts an improved outer tactical vest, among many items she gathers feedback on.

"In this office, we deal with anything Soldiers use, consume or wear," she said. "We act as a sounding board for the Soldiers, whether they're male or female, officer or enlisted."

Still, there is added emphasis on women's uniforms and equipment that didn't exist before Reed, unit officials said.

Reed said she acts as a liaison between the Soldiers and product managers at Fort Belvoir, Va. The feedback gathered in the field ultimately reaches the Natick Soldier Research, Development and Engineering Center in Massachusetts.

"It's a collaborative effort," she said. "We provide information and they make decisions on any changes."

The office addresses all uniform items — everything from physical-training gear and ACUs to dress greens and boots. Surveys cover preferences, dislikes and what Soldiers might alter if given the option.

From the female Soldier's viewpoint, Army body armor and how well it fits has been a longtime concern, Reed said. Deployments in the war on terrorism have magnified the issue, she said, because "you're in it more than 12 hours a day."

In December, Reed will deploy to Afghanistan for three to four months to collect Soldier feedback on the uniform.

TCM-Soldier, engineers and product managers are working on a new ACU uniform for female Soldiers, officials said. The variations remain under development and it's unclear how soon it will be available.

"They'll always look at uniform issues ... for corrections," Berger said. "The camouflage pattern on ACUs may not be appropriate for all. It's something that's being assessed, and certainly (Reed) has some input in that."

Reed's work as a platoon sergeant and squad leader with brigade combat teams in the past made her a strong choice for this position, Berger said.

"We wanted someone who was pretty experienced and articulate," he said, "We wanted someone who has a good military presence and could relate well to Soldiers and be able to ask the right kinds of questions, and be able to draw out their feedback and put that into a form where she could make recommendations on improvements."

The position isn't recognized as a required billet by the Army or TRADOC, but it figures to have a lasting impact on all female Soldiers since TCM-Soldier is the proponent for CIE issues Armywide and cuts across every formation, Berger said.

"I don't know how long it'll take to see the fruits of this, but we're going to try to maintain a senior female NCO within our office as long as we can," he said. "And we'll go out and seek from a unit on post a female NCO to replace (Reed) when it comes time for her to move on."

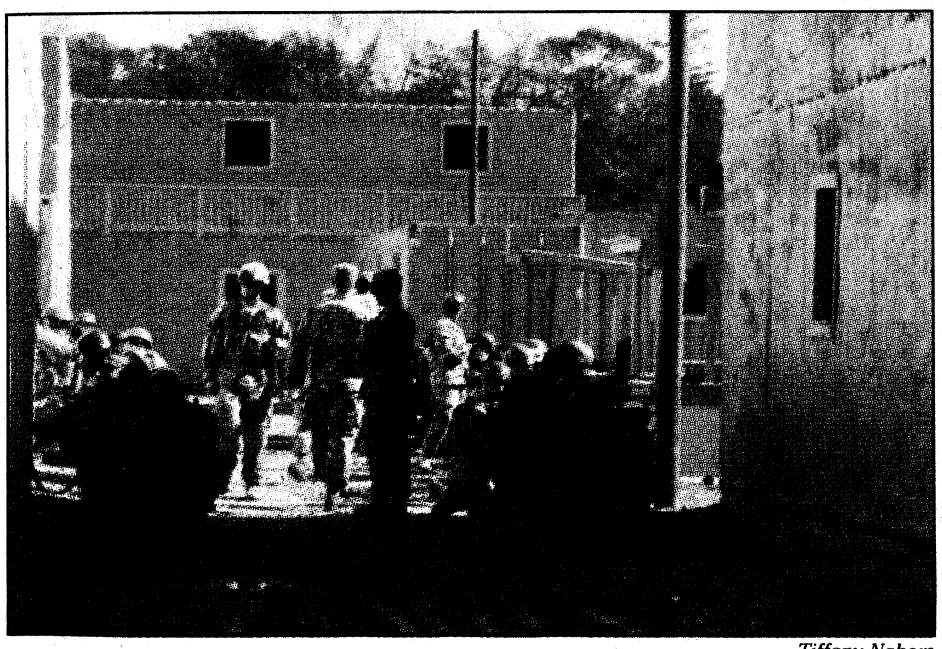
Soldiers prepare to react at new IED training village

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Fort Benning Soldiers have a new place to learn about improvised explosive devices — a training village on Sand Hill. Construction on the nearly $500,000 site began in August, and Soldiers with 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, were the first to use it Thursday.

IEDs are the No. 1 killer of U.S. Soldiers in both theaters of operation, said Louis, Francis, IED defeat analyst and trainer.



"This is the first (IED training site) on Fort Benning to this scale," said project manager Dave Nolan, with the Directorate of Public Works' Engineering Division. The facility replaced junk cars and small wooden structures that served as the previous training site.

"There was a lot of imagination used," he said.

Complete with a gold-capped mosque, an open market, draping telephone wires and an Arabic sign, Nolan said the site was designed with input from Soldiers to be as close to real as possible. There are even speakers for broadcasting Muslim prayers.

CPT Terry Jones said the enemy changes its tactics often so IEDs are not predictable, but with the training Soldiers should be more prepared to identify possible targets and how to react when they do.

"If they see one thing that looks familiar to them in Iraq or Afghanistan that they saw here ... that could save their life," Jones said.

The village, which was designed to mock a realistic theater situation, features a mosque and an open market.

Flu: Vaccine given at clinics

Patients not contacted by the doctor for the flu shot can get the immunization at the walk-in clinic. Patients in the above categories can schedule an appointment with the Family Medicine and Pediatrics Clinic by calling 706-544-2273 or visiting the Flu Clinic, located on the eighth floor, 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

However, all hospital clinics are closed Thursday and Friday in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

The 76 parade entries included area high-school marching bands and ROTC units, along with the Columbus State University ROTC, Gold Star Wives, Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion posts, Boy Scout troops, Sons of the American Revolution, Patriot Guard Riders, Sons of the American Revolution and the Shrine clowns.

Columbus Mayor Jim Wetherington and Phenix City Mayor Sonny Coulter, both Army veterans, addressed the crowd, as did Smiths Station, Ala., Mayor LeFaye Dellinger. Master of ceremony Scott Goodknight, a Gulf War Ranger, praised the service of all veterans.

GEN(R) William Caldwell, a veteran of three wars — World War II, Korea and Vietnam — was the grand marshal. He rode on the Knology float with veterans who visited the World War II Memorial with the Honor Flight in September.

Caldwell said it was an honor to be the grand marshal of a community parade that thanked veterans, and honored the military.

"All the young people who hold up their hands today and enlist know that in six months' time, they may be getting shot at," Caldwell said. "It's a very dedicated American who wants to serve our country today."

A platoon of Soldiers from 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, marched in the parade and CSM Matthew Walker, U.S. Army Infantry School command sergeant major, represented Fort Benning.

The parade was "high speed," Walker said. "To participate in the first Veterans Day parade in how many years? It was an honor and I wish I had an opportunity to thank the citizenry for their support."

Anyone wanting to help plan the 2010 Veterans Day parade, which will be the second Saturday in November, can attend an 11 a.m. meeting Dec. 5 at the VFW on Victory Drive.

Sprenger: Returning to 101st Airborne

he left the Army to complete his college degree.

But Sprenger missed the Army, Petraeus said.

"It was those with whom he used to serve and the important missions they all performed together and what individuals like him would term 'the brotherhood of the close fight,'" he said.

The four-star general told Sprenger's story to 152 newly commissioned officers who graduated from OCS Nov. 19.

Sprenger was one of them.

"Over the past 12 weeks, you've shown the ability to lead and to follow and displayed physical and mental toughness and you've been team players as well as team builders," Petraeus said.

"Of course, this is not the first time you have displayed such special qualities. After all, several of you are combat veterans and already proven your ability to lead Soldiers in challenging missions, under tough conditions. Each of you has your own story, and while your own personal story may not rival that of 2LT Sprenger, few do, the route you followed to earn your commission demonstrates your commitment to excellence, determination, leadership ability, a commendable work ethic, intelligence and sheer resolve. None of you is proud to be merely average."

Following the ceremony, Sprenger's father and Petraeus pinned the second lieutenant bars on the new officer.

His next assignment is again with the 101st Airborne Division, where a third combat deployment is in his future.

It's been six years since he lost his eye, but Sprenger said to judge him on his abilities, not his disabilities.

"I don't really like people calling it a disability because I think with training, and training yourself, I know I can do things just as well as a lot of the other guys I work with, and honestly, losing one eye is only 30 degrees of your vision. So it's not that bad really," he said.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Johnson makes history

Jimmie Johnson managed to do what no other NASCAR driver has ever done – Sunday, he won his fourth consecutive Sprint Cup championship.

Mark Martin finished second, the fifth time he's been the runner-up.

Kyle Busch edged out Carl Edwards to claim the Nationwide title Saturday.

Hendrick does right thing

Rick Hendrick, team owner of Hendrick Motorsports and owner of Jimmie Johnson and Mark Martin's cars, was not in Florida to witness the record-tying ninth Sprint Cup championship Sunday because of a family emergency.

Hendrick's 29-year-old niece, Alesha Gainey, was undergoing an emergency liver transplant. Gainey is the daughter of John Hendrick, who was killed in the 2004 plane crash near Martinsville Speedway.

Injury-ridden Steelers

Ben Roethlisberger, quarterback for the Pittsburgh Steelers, left Sunday's game after taking a knee to his helmet while being sacked. Second-string QB Charlie Batch came in for Roethlisberger, and suffered a wrist injury that will require surgery and keep him off the field for six weeks.

The third-string QB is Dennis Dixon, and he's only thrown one pass in his NFL career.

BCS stays steady

The top seven teams remained in the same positions this week in the BCS standings.

It's looking like the winner of the Florida-Alabama Southeastern Conference title game Dec. 5 will play Texas in the BCS title game Jan. 7 at the Rose Bowl.

Iowa and Penn State will be vying for an at-large BCS bowl bid with Boise State, which is sixth. Boise State is two wins away from a 13-0 regular season.

Colts, Saints still perfect

The New Orleans Saints continued their perfect season Sunday with a 38-7 win over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. They are now 10-0, but have a tough matchup Monday night against the New England Patriots.

The Saints' remaining schedule includes the Atlanta Falcons and Dallas Cowboys, along with the Redskins, Buccaneers and Panthers. The Colts also remained unbeaten and have Houston, Tennessee, Denver, Jacksonville, the N.Y. Jets and Buffalo remaining on the schedule.

Bayonet Challenge decided

After 41 NASCAR races, Don Sando took the checkered flag in The Bayonet Challenge 09, NASCAR Chase for the Sprint Cup picks. Sando scored 6,612 points in the challenge and beat out second-place finisher CSM Bruce Acker, who had 6,561 points. Bayonet correspondent Erin Nash finished third with 6,519 points, followed by CPT Gordon Guillot with 6,513 points.

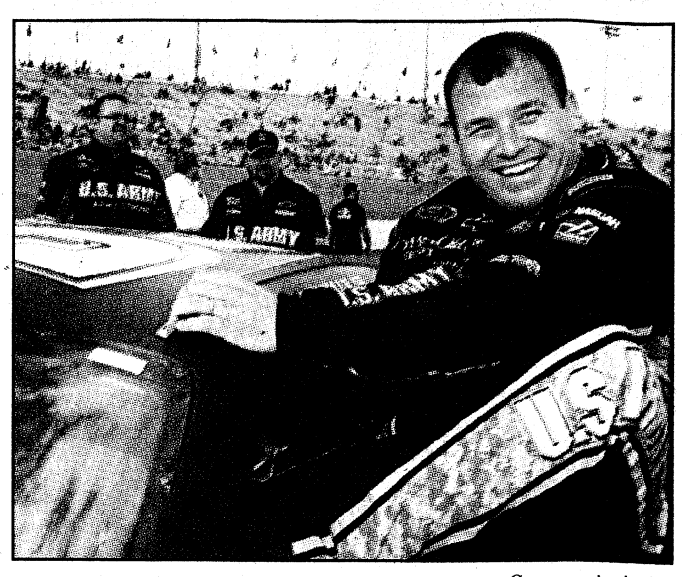
Bayonet Editor Lori Egan took fifth place with 6,486 points while Carl Pignato took sixth with 6,456 points. SFC Brandon Barnett took seventh and Jeremy Haick took eighth with 6,387 and 6,378, respectively.

U.S. Army to continue driver sponsorship

U.S. Army Accessions Command
ARMY NEWS

FORT KNOX, Ky. — The U.S. Army Accessions Command announced the U.S. Army will continue its sponsorship of Tony Schumacher's Top Fuel dragster in the National Hot Rod Association and will return as a primary sponsor of Ryan Newman and the No. 39 Chevrolet Impala SS for 15 NASCAR Sprint Cup Series races in 2010.

"Tony Schumacher and Ryan Newman are not only outstanding drivers, they are also powerful and effective advocates for the great men and women of our Army," said LTG Benjamin C. Freakley, commanding general of U.S. Army Accessions Command.



"Both drivers possess and demonstrate a passion for our Army Strong Soldiers and their families. They and their teams share our Army values and demonstrate the mental, emotional and physical strength which are the hallmark of our Soldiers."

The 2010 season will mark the Army's 10th with Don Schumacher Racing and the NHRA since its return to the sport in September 2000. Tony Schumacher has won six consecutive championships while piloting the 22-foot U.S. Army Top Fuel dragster.

Schumacher captured the NHRA Full Throttle world championship Nov. 15 during the Auto Club Finals in Pomona, Calif.

"I am extremely proud and humbled to represent the U.S. Army and the brave men and women who make it possible for us and our families to live in freedom," Schumacher said. "My team and I are motivated by the dedication, sacrifice, and service of our Soldiers and their families."

"The U.S. Army will serve as the primary sponsor on Schumacher's top fuel dragster for all 23 NHRA national events and as an associate sponsor on all Don Schumacher Racing cars.

In the Army's inaugural year with Stewart-Haas Racing, Newman and the No. 39 team were able to deliver two poles and a berth in the coveted Chase for the Championship thanks to 15 top-10 finishes and a staggering lap-completion rate of 99.76 percent.

Off the track, Newman and co-owner Tony Stewart have experienced Soldier greening at different Army posts, including Fort Bragg, N.C.; Fort Knox, Ky.; Fort Jackson, S.C.; and Fort Benning. They also visited Soldiers at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, and met with the Golden Knights parachute team.

"It's an honor driving the No. 39 U.S.Army Chevrolet and representing the men and women who serve and protect our country," Newman said. "And much like them, we're never satisfied. We want to achieve more, and the dedication, teamwork and passion of the Soldiers who defend our country is all the inspiration we need to deliver on the racetrack. There is no group of people more dedicated to service and committed to excellence than the men and women of our armed forces."

The U.S. Army will also serve as an associate sponsor on Tony Stewart's No. 14 Office Depot, Old Spice Chevrolet, with yearlong placement on the car's B-post.

"We're obviously very proud to continue our representation of the U.S. Army," said Stewart, co-owner of Stewart-Haas Racing. "We accomplished a lot in our first year together, but we want more. It's our never-ending goal to put the Soldiers' car in victory lane, and we appreciate the opportunity to do just that in 2010."

At the break, the All-Stars led 32-30.

Trailing, the Hawks came back in the second period, scoring a 3-pointer to take the lead 44-43 with 7:56 to go in the game. The All-Stars tied the game at 56, with less than three minutes remaining and broke the stalemate on a 3-pointer by Antonio Anthony and held on to win, 67-59.

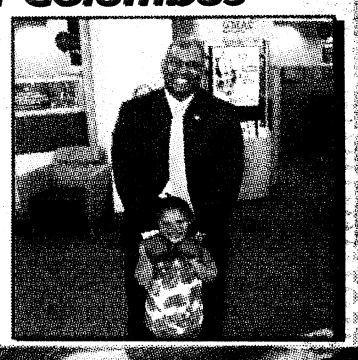
"It was a close game, but it shouldn't have been," said 50-year-old Leo Preyer, a first sergeant at the Warrior Transition Battalion. "We missed nine shots in a row and we didn't have a rhythm going. In the second half, we started getting a rhythm and everything started coming together."

The team decided to switch a 2-3 defense in the second half to create better matchups, SFC(R) William Campbell said.

"In the first half, the matchups weren't good," he said. "Some of the guys on the other team were younger and faster. We started the game slow and we offside shots."

The All-Stars are 11-1 and have three games remaining with their only loss coming at the hands of the Celtics.

In 2008, the All-Stars took third place in the Old School Basketball Championship tournament.



The All-Stars will take on the 76ers at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the A.J. McClung Y.M.C.A.

USAMU: Closes season with silver, bronze medals

Starting things off in the Men's rifle 50-meter prone match, SGT Michael McPhail earned his first medal in a World Cup event winning a silver medal. McPhail missed out on the gold by .04 of a point.

In Men's double trap, SPC Jeff Holguin earned a bronze medal. Holguin placed fourth in the 2008 Olympics on the same.

"It was great to be back on the Olympic range of Beijing, and this time walking out with something in my hands," he said.

Holguin's USAMU teammate, SGT Vincent Hancock, won a silver medal in men's skeet. Hancock withstood a driving snowstorm to earn the medal on the same range where he was crowned an Olympic champion in 2008.

SSG Ryan Hadden, a two-time World Cup match winner in 2009, overcame the falling snow to place fifth place in men's trap.

A number of other Soldiers earned medals at the 300-meter National Rifle Championships at Fort Benning's Pool Range.

SPC Joseph Hein won a gold medal in the 3x40 match, outlasting McPhail by one target. McPhail also claimed a silver medal in the men's 3x20 match beating out SFC Eric Uptagrafft, who took home the bronze.

In the women's 3x20, SPC Sherri Gallagher won the silver medal in the women's 3x20 event. LTC Rhonda Bright earned a bronze medal.

USAMU will host the 2010 Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol championships Feb. 3-5 and Feb. 10-12.

After the March of Dimes defeated polio in the 1950s, we turned our attention to preventing birth defects and other threats to infant health. Today, we're fighting premature birth — the leading cause of newborn death. Half a million babies are born too soon every year. States, communities stand to gain in 2010 census

THE BAYONET

The 2010 census will determine where more than $3 trillion in federal funds will be allocated over the next 10 years and pave the way for local communities to gain funds for new roads, hospitals and schools, according to the Census Bureau.

The census, taken every 10 years as outlined in the U.S. Constitution, is a count of everyone residing in the U.S., Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands and American Samoa, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. Federal money for services are distributed based on the population count. Census data can impact political representation in Congress as well as redistricting of state and local districts.

"Fort Benning's population is increasing as a result of Base Realignment and Closure and construction for the Maneuver Center of Excellence," said Raul Brown, the post's deputy chief of housing. "We want to ensure we are fully represented in the census. Depending on the population, senators and (congressmen) get 'x' amount of dollars for projects to benefit the tricommunity area. If the numbers are high, the entire area will benefit."

Brown said the post had a low turnout in the last census and hopes more residents will take the time to fill out and return the survey, knowing it could impact local funding and political representation.

The census questionnaire will be mailed to residents in March. Census takers

Native Americans share 'sneak peek' of culture

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Audience members got up out of their seats Thursday to join with Native American performers in a tribal dance expressing friendship and unity at the Native American Indian Heritage Month luncheon. Others tried their hand at a game of stickball, a Muscogee Indian tradition originally used as training for war.

"It's going to be different," said Kenith Duncan, one of the Native American dancers, before the performance.

"We want to teach our culture to everyone else because we're proud of it," he said. "It's just going to be a little sneak peak of what the performance (usually) is — it can go a full 24 hours."

"I liked the audience participation," said LTC Marty Barr, deputy commander for the Ranger Training Brigade, one of the first to join the stomp dance. "It brought us into their culture, which gives you a better appreciation for what they've done and where they've come. I appreciate them sharing that with us."

Acee Buckner, guest speaker for the luncheon, stressed the theme of unity despite differences throughout the presentation, which included historical Native American anecdotes, songs and stomp dances.

"We want to be as one today," said Buckner, a Muscogee Native American who served in the 82nd Airborne Division. "With the military, it seems like we volunteered so much

"This isn't your typical Christmas party," said Brittany Beadle, Outdoor Recreation specialist. "We'll have a Hawaiian shirt contest, build your own cheeseburger in paradise and a Jimmy Buffet trivia contest."

"Most people talk about Christmas in July. This is a taste of summer in December."

The shirt contest will be judged on tackiness, originality and creativity.

"There is no telling what kind of Hawaiian shirts we will see," Beadle games including volleyball, corn hole, horseshoes and board games, and Outdoor Recreation will provide canoes, kayaks and paddleboats for use free of charge.

Pinup calendar raises money for wounded warriors

Tanya Deegan, wife of SSG Sean Deegan, poses for the cover of "For Our Boys," a Dixie Pin-Up charity calendar for the Wounded Warrior Project.

THE BAYONET

The idea came while Tess Crosby was planning her Halloween costume as a pinup girl. Wanting to create a fundraiser for the Wounded Warrior Project, Crosby hit upon a plan for a 1940s-style charity pinup calendar.

"The idea clicked that in World War II, pinup girls were a show of support to the military and were very uplifting for morale," she said. "And that was it."

Crosby began working on the project in September. Creating the calendar is a way to rally public support for wounded warriors, she said.

"Our community and every community is impacted with the effect of these multiple deployments," she said. "I think everybody focuses so much on supporting the troops who are deployed, and that's a necessary thing ... but what happens with the guys who come home who need some support?"

"I think everybody focuses so much on supporting the troops who are deployed, and that's a necessary thing ... but what happens with the guys who come home who need some support?"

— Tess Crosby

Crosby found 11 other women to pose for the calendar, many of them wives of Fort Benning Soldiers.

In keeping with the nostalgic theme, the backdrop for the calendar features restored World War II planes at the Dixie Wing Commemorative Airfield in Peachtree City, Ga. One calendar model wore an original nurse's uniform used in one of the airfield's museum displays, Crosby said.

The public will have the opportunity to meet several of the "pinup girls" Dec. 5 in Columbus. Dressed in full costume and make up, they will autograph calendars from noon to 3 p.m. at Commandos Military Supply and from 7 to 9 p.m. at Scruffy Murphy's, where free food will be served.

Calendars will be available at both locations for $20 each, Crosby said. All the money goes directly to wounded warriors.

HooahMail means speedy delivery to Afghanistan

C. Todd Lopez
ARMY NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The Army's HooahMail program makes it possible for friends and family members to put a paper letter and photograph into the hands of their loved ones in Afghanistan, in some cases, on the same day it's sent.

The one-year pilot program is scheduled to begin Tuesday and makes use of the Internet combined with physical mail delivery to create a hybrid mail system that can get letters into the hands of Soldiers in remote locations much faster than regular-mail delivery alone.

"This gives Soldiers actual printed correspondence that is sent from their family members that they can take out on a mission with them and read and reread again," said Bill Hilsher, Army postal program manager.

> "It'll give friends and families a way to send a message to their loved ones in a timely manner for the holiday season."
> — Bill Hilsher

Family members who want to send a letter and a photograph to a Soldier in Afghanistan would log on to the program's Web site at www.hooahmail.us. There, they type in their message and attach a digital photo. They also add delivery information for their Soldier, as though they were addressing a paper envelope.

Their electronic letter is sent via the Internet to one of 10 locations in Afghanistan, where special equipment will automatically print it, fold it, stuff it into an envelope, address it and seal it. The sealed envelopes are then placed into the regular intra-theater APO mail delivery system.

Hilsher said depending on where Soldiers are in Afghanistan, the paper letter from home could be in their hands the same day as mother sent it, or it could take as many as four days.

A paper letter sent directly from the states takes much longer, Hilsher said.

"Compared to traditional mail ... it reduces it from an average of 14 days down to same-day or next-day, ready for delivery," he said.

The HooahMail program is free for family members and friends, and is available for Soldiers in Afghanistan only.

Hilsher said the Army postal service expects the program to benefit the service during the holiday season, when it typically sees increases in mail traffic.

"During the holiday season, that's your busiest time and this is going to augment that system," he said. "It'll give friends and families a way to send a message to their loved ones in a timely manner for the holiday season."

Hilsher also said he thinks the improved delivery time will have a positive effect on Soldier morale.

Service for the Army's HooahMail pilot program is provided by "SuperLetter," which provides similar services to the British military for its "e-Bluey" program and the U.S. Marine Corps for its "Motomail" program.

Census: Offers multiple job opportunities are sent out to collect information from residents who don't return the questionnaire.

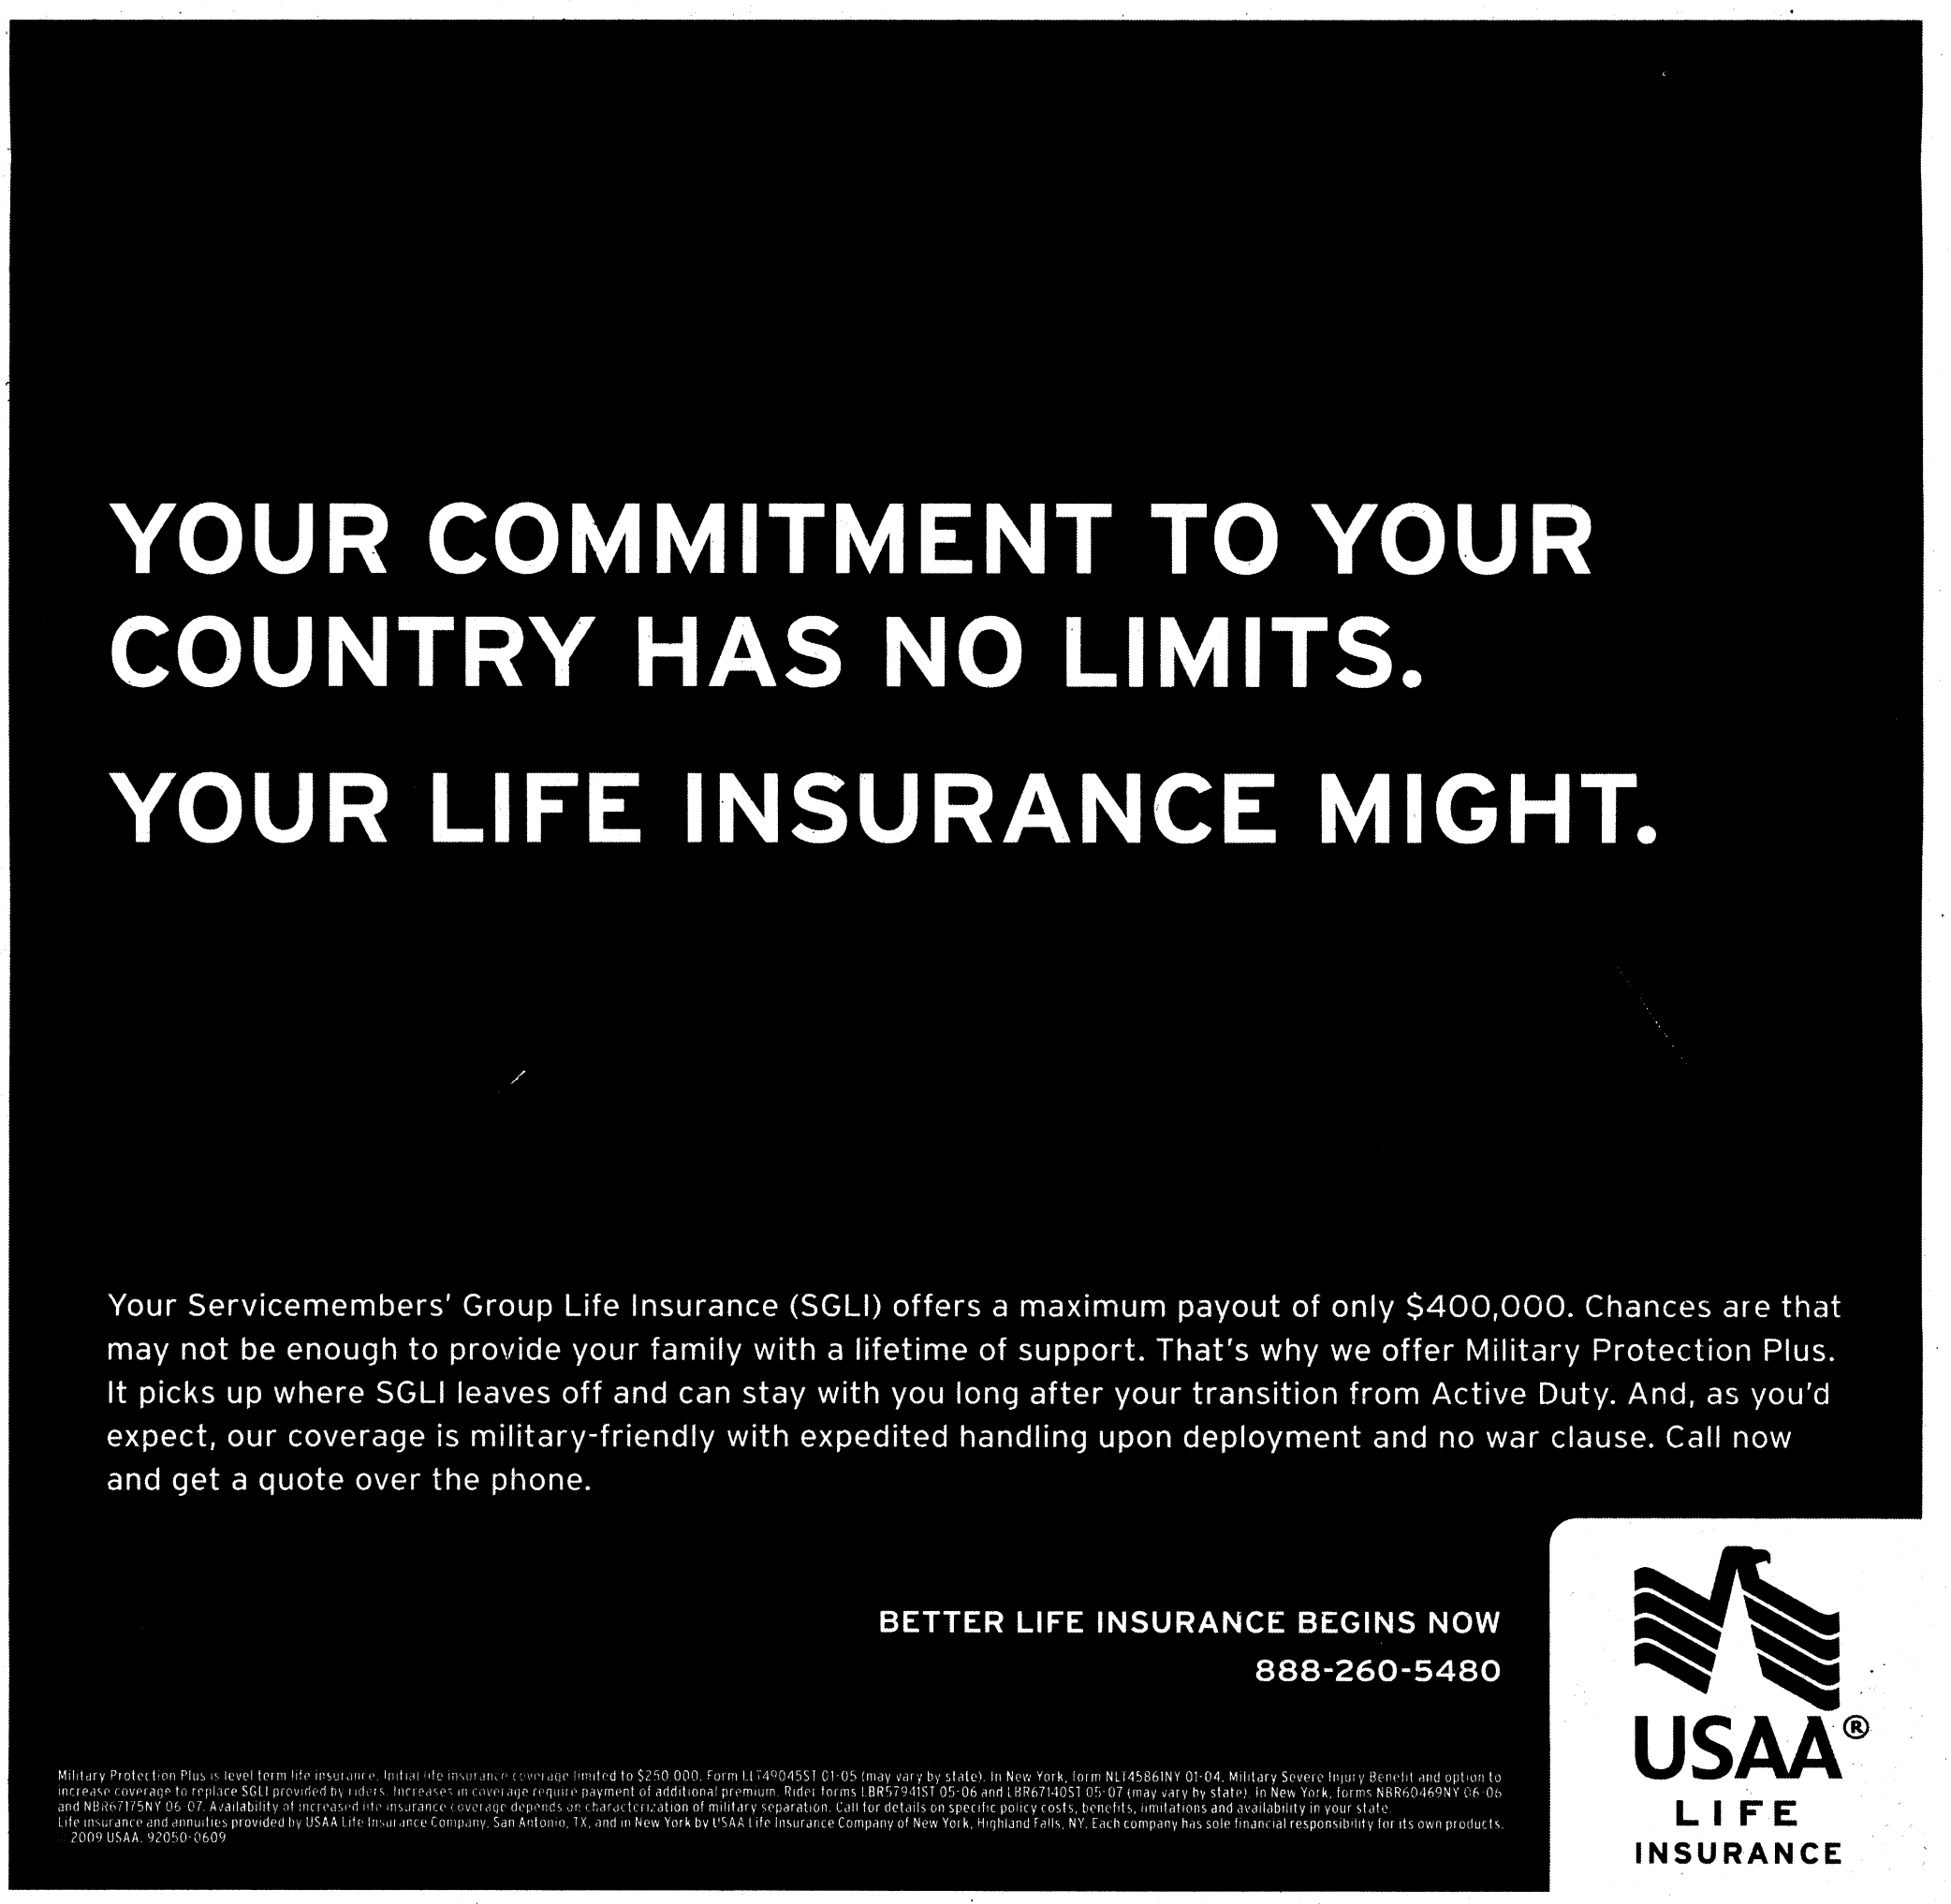
The bureau reports that unlike the previous census, next year's census will not involve a long questionnaire, just 10 basic questions.



The census will not ask for bank account information, salary or income, citizenship or immigration status or a Social Security number. People can view the questionnaire online at http://2010.census.gov.

There are several employment opportunities with the 2010 census.

The bureau is hiring census takers, crew leaders, crew leader assistants, recruiting assistants and census clerks.

Most of the jobs are temporary, lasting between five and 10 weeks, and offer flexible work hours, competitive pay, reimbursement for mileage where applicable and weekly pay.

because we had the same values — a devotion to protect our families, to better protect our way of life and protect our own land. We volunteered in every war that the United States had ... when we weren't even citizens. The Indian feeling is, 'if I give my life for it, that is the best thing I can do.' But the honor was that we fought side by side as one country, as one person."

Barr said he enjoyed hearing about the history of the Muscogee Creek Nation and its parallels with the Army values.

"We're a diverse nation, a true melting pot, and because of that we have no one common heritage," he said. "We get a chance to celebrate everyone, and that's what makes us strong."

to get in the holiday spirit," said Hines, who came up with the idea to have the Hawaiian-themed party at Fort Benning after she saw one similar somewhere else.

Participants are welcome to bring dogs, coolers and fishing poles.

The free event is open to the public. Registration by Dec. 4 is preferred, but not required.

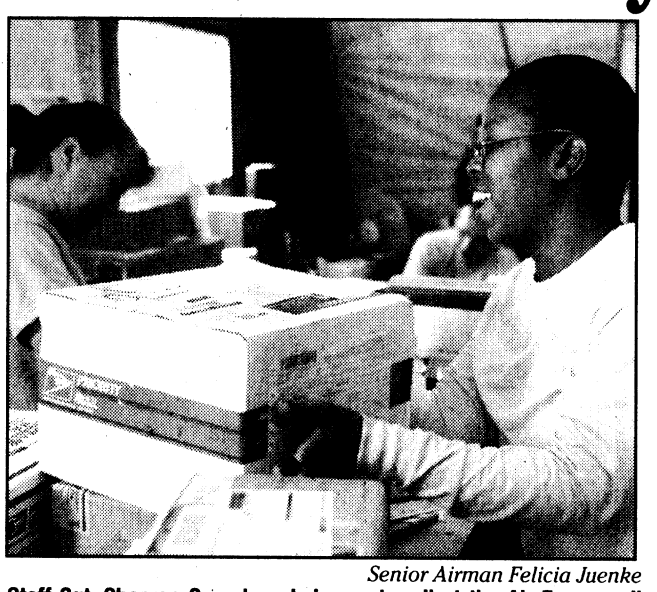
USPS announces holiday mail guidelines

Tech. Sgt. John Jung
SPECIAL TO AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE



BAGRAM AIRFIELD, Afghanistan — U.S. Postal Service officials have announced recommended mailing dates for delivery by Christmas to U.S. service members serving in Afghanistan and other overseas locations.

First-class and priority mail for service members stationed in Afghanistan should be sent by Dec. 4 for arrival by Christmas. The deadline for parcel airlift mail is Tuesday.

A chart with recommended mailing deadlines for all types of mail to various APO and FPO addresses is available at www.usps.com/communications/newsroom/2009/pr09_082.htm.

Express mail cannot be used to mail packages to Afghanistan; however, priority mail is available.

Priority mail packaging products, including priority mail flat-rate boxes, can be obtained free at any post office, or online at http://shop.usps.com.

Senior Airman Felicia Juenke
Staff Sgt. Shervon Greenhow helps sort mail at the Air Force mail center on Camp Cunningham, Afghanistan.

The priority mail large flat-rate box can be used to mail to any overseas military address, no matter the weight of the box, for $11.95.

The Postal Service offers free military care kits, designed for military families sending packages overseas. To order by phone, call 800-610-8734 and ask for the military care kit. Each kit includes two "America Supports You" large priority mail flat-rate boxes, four medium-sized priority mail flat-rate boxes, six priority mail labels, a roll of priority mail tape and six customs forms with envelopes.

"All packages and mail must be addressed to the individual service member by name, without rank, in accordance with Department of Defense regulations," said Air Force Master Sgt. Deb LaGrandQuintana, the 455th Expeditionary Communications Squadron official mail manager here.

Military overseas units are assigned an APO or FPO ZIP code, and in many cases, that ZIP code travels with the unit wherever it goes, LaGrandQuintana added.

The Postal Service places APO and FPO mail to overseas military service members on special transportation destined to be delivered as soon as possible.

Mail sent to APO and FPO addresses may require customs forms.

All mail addressed to military post offices overseas is subject to certain conditions or restrictions regarding content, preparation and handling.

For general guidelines on sending mail to service members overseas, visit http://www.usps.com/supportingourtroops/.

Postal Service officials recommend taking the following measures when sending packages:

– If you use a regular box, use one strong enough to protect the contents with no writing on the outside.

– Cushion contents with newspaper, bubble wrap, or Styrofoam. Pack tightly to avoid shifting.

– Package food items like cookies, fudge, candies, etc. securely in leak-proof containers.

– Use pressure-sensitive or nylon-reinforced packing tape.

– Do not use wrapping paper, string, masking tape, or cellophane tape outside the package.

– Print your return address and the service member's complete name, without rank, followed by unit and APO or FPO delivery address on one side only of the package.

– Place a return address label inside the package.

– Stuff fragile items with newspaper or packing material to avoid damage.

– Remove batteries from toys and appliances. Wrap and place them next to the items inside.

– Purchase insurance and delivery confirmation service for reassurance of package delivery.

currently deployed with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, said working on the calendar helped her keep her mind off her husband's deployment, his first since they married last year.

"I thought it was something really wonderful to do to benefit the Wounded Warrior Project, (and) the calendar was something to look forward to the first couple weeks while he was gone," she said. "All of us girls got together and did our photo shoots and had a really good time. It brought us together as a community."

Sarah was allowed to pick out her outfit for the calendar — a white dress with black polka dots and red trim.

"It was very classy, and I felt it represented the 1940s style," she said. "I would recommend the calendar to anybody. It would make a wonderful present; it isn't something you see every day."

Crosby received her first shipment of calendars Thursday. The final result? "Glamorous," she said, and very tasteful.

"I'm so relieved," said Crosby, who coordinated with Sarah Caudel of Dixie Pin-Up to create the calendars. "We're just very, very excited to write that check (to the Wounded Warrior Project) at the end of the year. That's the big thing."

For more information, call Crosby at 706-987-7528 or Caudel at 770-265-0441 or visit www.dixiepinup.com.

THE MOST DRUNK DRIVING FATALITIES OCCUR DURING THANKSGIVING.
THIS HOLIDAY, BE THANKFUL YOU DESIGNATED A DRIVER.

Pause for thanks, even in difficult times

Chaplain (CPT) Lee Greenfield
2ND BATTALION, 47TH INFANTRY REGIMENT

At Plymouth Harbor, one can see the reconstructed Mayflower II.

This simple and serene piece of our country's history belies the monumental struggle of the pilgrims' journey to the "promised land." Where volunteers dress in period costume answering tourists' questions, men, women and children once huddled, miserably cold and damp, as fierce storms buffeted the ship.

"According to the usual manner," the old records relate, "many were afflicted with seasickness." As the ship had only the crudest of conveniences and no sanitary facilities of any kind except the bucket, the air in the narrow, crowded quarters below deck must have been nauseating.

Since the Mayflower had left England nine weeks behind schedule, the New World's harsh weather threatened their very survival. The men went ashore in December to construct crude shelters; women and children spent the winter aboard the ship anchored in the bay.

Winter took its toll. Journal entries feature the same melancholy theme week after week, for months on end.

That winter, more than half the heads of households perished. Aboard ship, only five of 18 wives lived through the ravages of scurvy, pneumonia and tuberculosis.

But spring finally came, and by the third week of March, the weakened survivors rowed ashore in the longboat to take up residence in "New Plimoth."

How could the pilgrims talk about Thanksgiving in the midst of life's most difficult trials? We wonder. Why not just curse God and die? They gave thanks for God's presence in their adversities because they knew that struggles did not have to make them bitter; struggles could make them better.

These remaining pilgrim daughters and sons, mothers and fathers, placed their trust in their God and laid the enduring foundations of a great nation.

Thanksgiving Day 1621 did not just celebrate wild game and Indian corn; it celebrated the human spirit reaching out to God in gratitude for the blessings the pilgrims still possessed.

No, the pilgrims did not lack for courage. And neither should we. The pilgrims courage was based upon a knowledge and trust that God was with them even when life seemed to show otherwise. Their motivation to come to the new world and their willingness to endure hardship and suffering was driven by the belief that God had a special purpose for their lives.

God has a great purpose for your life, too. As you are discovering that, and as we enter a new holiday season, take time to give God a big "thank you" for the favor our God has shown to us.

For we are the end product, the beneficiaries of the pilgrim struggle, endurance and faithfulness to their God. This holiday season look for the grace of God all around us, pause … and give God thanks.

Implementing prevention tactics can deter bicycle theft on post

DIRECTORATE OF EMERGENCY SERVICES

There has been an increase in bicycle thefts on the installation, but most could have been prevented by incorporating a few security measures.

It is a good idea to photograph and document the serial number of your bicycle. If the bicycle has a serial number, it can normally be located underneath the pedal cylinder or somewhere on the frame. If the bicycle is not equipped with a serial number, it is recommended that owners engrave a serial number on the bicycle that is not noticeably visible.

Residents are encouraged to secure their bicycles, with an approved bicycle lock, when it's unattended outside. When stored overnight or for long periods of time, bicycles should be secured in a closed facility such as storage sheds or quarters.

Fort Benning military police ask that residents report any suspicious people or activity around their areas Document identifiable features such as height, weight, hair and eye color, complexion, race and clothing. Also, attempt to obtain direction and mode of travel. It is not recommended that residents approach a suspected perpetrator. Victims of bicycle theft should immediately report the incident to the military police desk at 706-545-5222.

Bicycles are sometimes turned in to the Military Police as found property. Victims can also check with the Evidence and Found Property Custodian at 706-545-9492 or 706-575-8119, to determine if their bicycle has been recovered. Please have a complete description, and if possible, a serial number and proof of ownership.

Snack gift boxes help patrons spread cheer during holidays

Kevin L. Robinson

FORT LEE, Va. — Commissaries are making the joy of giving much easier for customers who want to spread a little cheer to fellow service members and their families. The Defense Commissary Agency is stocking snack gift boxes in its stores just in time for the holiday season.

Gift boxes include popular single-serve fruit and nut mixes, cookies, crackers and a macaroni and cheese cup. Each box also bears a coupon for $1.25 off the purchase price. They can be purchased ready to ship, donate or simply deliver to any special person or military organization.

"We want our customers to put the commissary at the top of their holiday shopping list," said DeCA Director and CEO Philip E. Sakowitz Jr. "These snack boxes are a convenient way for our patrons to help put a smile on someone's face during the holidays."

Customers should look for the snack boxes on display pallets near the cash register under the sign: "Special Delivery For: The Serious Snacker." Military activities that want to be drop-off points for customer-donated gift boxes must seek approval from their installation officials in advance. Once approved, these organizations can set up collection bins or staff a booth at the front of commissaries.

The gift box program is a wonderful example of DeCA working with its industry partners for this holiday promotion for military commissaries, said Randy Chandler, DeCA's director of sales.

"These boxes are designed to help our customers show their appreciation for the military with a collection of top-selling snack items," he said. "We owe thanks to our industry partners for providing our customers another way to give the gift of groceries."

In addition to the gift boxes, commissaries are also offering gift vouchers in $25 denominations and redeemable by any commissary authorized shopper. Anyone, including those who are not authorized shoppers, can purchase the gift vouchers by visiting any commissary's customer service department. There is no limit on the number of vouchers someone can purchase. But for large purchases of more than $1,000 in vouchers at a time, you must notify the store at least one week in advance. This allows commissaries to maintain enough vouchers for other customers.

Oh, Christmas Tree

'Tis the season for finding the perfect tree

Story and graphics by Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

The countdown to Christmas officially begins the day after Thanksgiving. So if your heart is set on an authentic Christmas tree this year, it's time to start scouting local tree lots and farms for the perfect addition to your home.

When I was younger, my family often celebrated the holiday with an artificial tree decorated in tinsel and ornaments. It was convenient and easy to clean up. When I was a teenager, we moved to Colorado and were swept into the yuletide spirit of getting a natural tree. A week before Christmas, my dad hauled in a bushy, 12-foot fir nearly as wide as it was tall. It was nothing like the artificial tree we abused over the years, which was missing limbs and had leftover tinsel from Christmases past.

It was fun to watch my parents try to make the tree fit in our den. Our house had 10-foot-high ceilings. After a lot of pushing and some scraping of wall paint, we stood the tree up in the den. It hit the ceiling and hunched over, so we didn't use the angel tree topper.

It took several days to place ornaments, lights, garland and tinsel on the tree, but when we finished it sparkled like a star. It was the best Christmas tree we've ever had.

Pfc. Steven McKimm of the 60th Engineer Company helps Mary King and her children, Whitney and John, carry a tree to their car during last year's Trees for Troops event at Fort Benning.

Christmas trees come in a variety of shapes and sizes. The most commonly used are firs, which maintain their color and scent while not shedding needles as they dry out. Other popular species include the Leyland and Monterey cypress, eastern juniper and blue spruce. The Virginia pine is common in the southeastern U.S.

The Lakeside Christmas Tree Farm in Phenix City offers Virginia pine, Leyland cypress, eastern red cedar, Carolina sapphire and Frasier firs. The Gilbert Christmas Tree Farm in Lanett, Ala., offers Virginia pine and Leyland cypress. Both farms offer visitors the option of cutting down their own tree using farm-provided tools, or purchasing a pre-cut tree. Trees for Troops will be held behind the Fort Benning Main Post car wash starting at 10 a.m. Dec. 8. Approximately 650 free trees donated by Christmas tree growers will be distributed to active-duty Soldiers and family members with identification. The trees will be given out on a first come, first-served basis.

The history of the Christmas tree

The Germans, who are credited with starting the tradition of the Christmas tree — or the paradise tree as it was originally dubbed — in the 16th century, brought fir or pine trees indoors to celebrate the winter season and the annual Feast of Adam and Eve. One theory is the evergreen tree was chosen to signify the celebration of life during the winter season.

Centuries later in Great Britain, holly and mistletoe were placed on the branches of evergreens as symbols of eternal life.

The first lighted Christmas tree is traced by some historians to Martin Luther, the Protestant reformer, who wanted to simulate the starlight of heaven using candles.

In 1856, President Franklin Pierce arranged for the first tree to be brought into the White House. The White House's National Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony began 67 years later by President Calvin Coolidge.

For those who prefer artificial trees, which are easier to maintain and leave less mess to clean up, it's interesting to note that, again, the Germans were first in creating these. The first artificial trees were created in the 19th century and used dyed green goose feathers. Over the years, artificial trees have evolved from brush bristles and aluminum to recycled plastics and fiber optics.

Though artificial trees can be reused, natural Christmas trees are often recycled as woodchips or mulch, so be sure to look for tree recycling points after the holiday.

Artificial and natural trees each have their own qualities, and when it comes to finding the right tree, it comes down to this: One was built to last a lifetime, the other grown to make lasting memories.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

Pirate Radio: Commandeers the screen

SGT Junius Stone
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

British broadcasting is an interesting animal. For much of it's history, it was controlled by one entity, the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Depending on the whims of the parliamentarians, which, according to Pirate Radio always leaned toward the dry and stuffy, viewers had the choice of whatever inoffensive and safe material that would be sure not to ruffle any culturally conservative feathers.

According to historical materials, the programming preference on the radio, musically, was jazz.

But that's not the point of Pirate Radio.

It sets up the very real scenario of an oppressively, no fun British government and the pirate radio station that was a thorn in its side in the war for young British hearts, minds and, more importantly, ears. But as fun as the ensuing conflict looked, the passionate radio warriors at the heart of the story were playing to win.

The shots were being fired from Radio Rock, an old freighter sailing off the English mainland.

Radio Rock is crewed by a band of misfits and rebel broadcasters hailing from both England and the United States.

The Count (Phillip Seymour Hoffman) captains this motley crew. His comrades include Quentin (Bill Nighy), Dave (Nick Frost), Angus (Rhys Darby), the mysterious Midnight Mark (Tom Wisdom) and others.

Carl (Tom Sturridge) — a young man trying to get his life together — joins the crew of Radio Rock. Carl, inexperienced and searching, finds a wealth of possibilities in knowledge and wisdom in the magical radio brew being generated by the men and women crewing this floating radio station.

While all these personalities interact and begin to chart their own course, there is of course the larger mission: broadcasting loud, rude, untamed rock-and-roll to the eager youth of Great Britain.

The crew of Radio Rock takes to this with gusto, using their personalities like any good deejay should, to give each show that unique touch that complements the music and separates it from just an audio jukebox, truly where the art of music radio lies.

But naturally, the British government isn't inclined to take all this lying down. Thus, the battle lines are drawn.

Despite the long odds Rock Radio faces, it is indeed marching into battle with the cooler soundtrack.

And that is what it really comes down to. Like Good Morning, Vietnam, this is a fictionalized account of real people and some real events in history, where rock radio, in its fresh rawness, influenced young people. This same music is remembered decades later, and is continually discovered by new generations. Oh, and the movie is loaded with star talent, funny and moving as they burn up the airwaves.

Pirate Radio rocks. See it.

NINJA ASSASSIN

Raizo is one of the deadliest assassins in the world. As a child, he was transformed into a trained killer by the Ozunu Clan, a secret society. But he disappears after the clan executes his friend. Raizo waits, preparing his revenge.

In Berlin, Europol agent Mika Coretti stumbled on a money trail linking several political murders to a network of untraceable assassins from the Far East. Defying the orders of her superior, Ryan Maslow, Mika digs into secret agency files to learn the truth behind the murders. Her investigation makes her a target, and the Ozunu Clan sends a team of killers to silence her forever.

Raizo and Mika must trust one another if they hope to bring down the Ozunu Clan.

This film stars Rain, Naomie Harris and Ben Miles. It is rated R for violence and language.

FANTASTIC MR. FOX

Mr. and Mrs. Fox live an idyllic home life with their son Ash and visiting young nephew Kristopherson. But after 12 years, the existence proves too much for Mr. Fox's animal instincts.

Soon he slips back into his old ways as a sneaky chicken thief and in doing so, endangers not only his beloved family, but the whole animal community. Trapped underground and with not enough food to go around, the animals band together to fight against the evil Farmers — Boggis, Bunce and Bean — who are determined to capture the audacious, fantastic Mr. Fox.

Starring George Clooney, Meryl Streep, Jason Schwartzman and Bill Murray, this film is rated PG for action, smoking and slang humor.

OLD DOGS

Two best friends — one unlucky-in-love divorcee and the other a fun-loving bachelor — have their lives turned upside down when they're unexpectedly charged with the care of 7-year-old twins while on the verge of the biggest business deal of their lives.

The bachelors stumble in their efforts to take care of the twins, leading to one debacle after another, and perhaps to a new-found understanding of what's really important in life.

This film stars John Travolta, Robin Williams and Kelly Preston. It is rated PG for humor.

THE ROAD

In a post-apocalyptic tale of survival, a father and son journey across a barren America destroyed by a mysterious cataclysm. The Road imagines a future where men are pushed to the worst and the best that they are capable of — a future in which a father and his son are sustained by love.

This film stars Viggo Mortensen, Kodi Smit-McPhee and Robert Duvall. It is rated R for violence, disturbing images and language.

THE PRINCESS AND THE FROG

A female twist on the traditional Frog Prince tale that takes place in New Orlean's French Quarter.

This film stars Anika Noni Rose, Keith David, Jenifer Lewis and Oprah Winfrey.

It is rated G.

NOW PLAYING

THE TWILIGHT SAGA: NEW MOON

Following Bella Swan's ill-fated 18th birthday party, Edward Cullen and his family abandon the town of Forks, Wash., in an effort to protect her from the dangers inherent in their world.

When Bella encounters a former nemesis, only the intervention of a pack of supernaturally large wolves saves her from a grisly fate. It's clear that Bella is still in danger.

In a race against the clock, Bella learns the secret of the Quileutes and Edward's true motivation for leaving. She faces the prospect of a potentially deadly reunion with her beloved.

This film stars Kristen Stewart, Robert Pattinson and Taylor Lautner. It is rated PG-13 for violence and action.

THE BLIND SIDE

Michael Oher, a homeless African-American teen from a broken home, is taken in by the Touhys, a well-to-do white family who help him fulfill his potential. At the same time, Oher's presence in the Touhys' lives leads them to insightful discoveries of their own.

Living in a new environment, the teen faces a completely different set of challenges to overcome.

As a football player and student, Oher works hard and, with the help of his coaches and adopted family, becomes an All-American offensive left tackle.

This film stars Sandra Bullock, Tim McGraw and Quinton Aaron. It is rated PG-13 for violence, drug and sexual references.

PLANET 51

American astronaut Captain Charles "Chuck" Baker lands on Planet 51 thinking he's the first. To his surprise, he finds the planet is inhabited by little green people who are living in a white-picket-fence world reminiscent of an innocent 1950s America. Their only fear is the planet will be overrun by alien invaders — like Chuck!

It is rated PG for sci-fi action and humor.

PRECIOUS

Clareece "Precious" Jones (Gabourey Sidibe) is an overweight, illiterate African-American teen in Harlem. Just as she's about to give birth to her second child, Jones is accepted into an alternative school where a teacher helps her find a new path in her life.

Precious stars Sherri Shepherd, Paula Patton and Mariah Carey. This movie is rated R for child abuse, sexual assault and language.

THE FOURTH KIND

When a UFO is sighted, it is called an encounter of the first kind. When evidence is collected, it is an encounter of the second kind. When contact is made with extraterrestrials, it is the third kind.

The next level, abduction, is the fourth kind. This encounter has been the most difficult to document — until now.

Set in modern-day Nome, Alaska, where — mysteriously since the 1960s — a disproportionate number of the population has been reported missing every year. Despite multiple FBI investigations of the region, the truth has never been discovered.

In this remote region, psychologist Dr. Abigail Tyler (Milla Jovovich) videotapes sessions with traumatized patients and discovers evidence of alien abductions.

The Fourth Kind is rated PG-13 for violent and disturbing images, terror, thematic elements and sexuality.

THE BOX

An unhappily married couple receive a small wooden box on their doorstep. At the push of a button, the box brings its bearer instant wealth but also instantly kills someone the bearer doesn't know.

The Box stars Cameron Diaz, James Marsden and Frank Lagella. It is rated PG-13 for thematic elements, some violence and disturbing images.

THE MEN WHO STARE AT GOATS

Reporter Bob Wilton (Ewan McGregor) is in search of his next big story when he encounters Lyn Cassady (George Clooney), a shadowy figure who claims to be part of an experimental U.S. military unit. The Men Who Stare at Goats is rated R for language, drug content and nudity.

Obama calls for more troops

Jim Garamone
AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — It is in America's vital national interests to send another 30,000 U.S. troops to Afghanistan, President Barack Obama said Tuesday night during a speech at West Point, N.Y.

Obama said this surge of U.S. forces into Afghanistan will begin to ebb in July 2011 — when U.S. and NATO forces and allies begin turning over security responsibility to Afghan security forces.

"I make this decision because I am convinced that our security is at stake in Afghanistan and Pakistan," he said to the corps of cadets at the U.S. Military Academy.

"This is the epicenter of violent extremism practiced by al-Qaida. It is from here that we were attacked on 9/11, and it is from here that new attacks are being plotted as I speak."

The United States must rise to the challenge of al-Qaida and the Taliban. The extremists still operate in the border areas of Afghanistan and Pakistan, and still threaten America

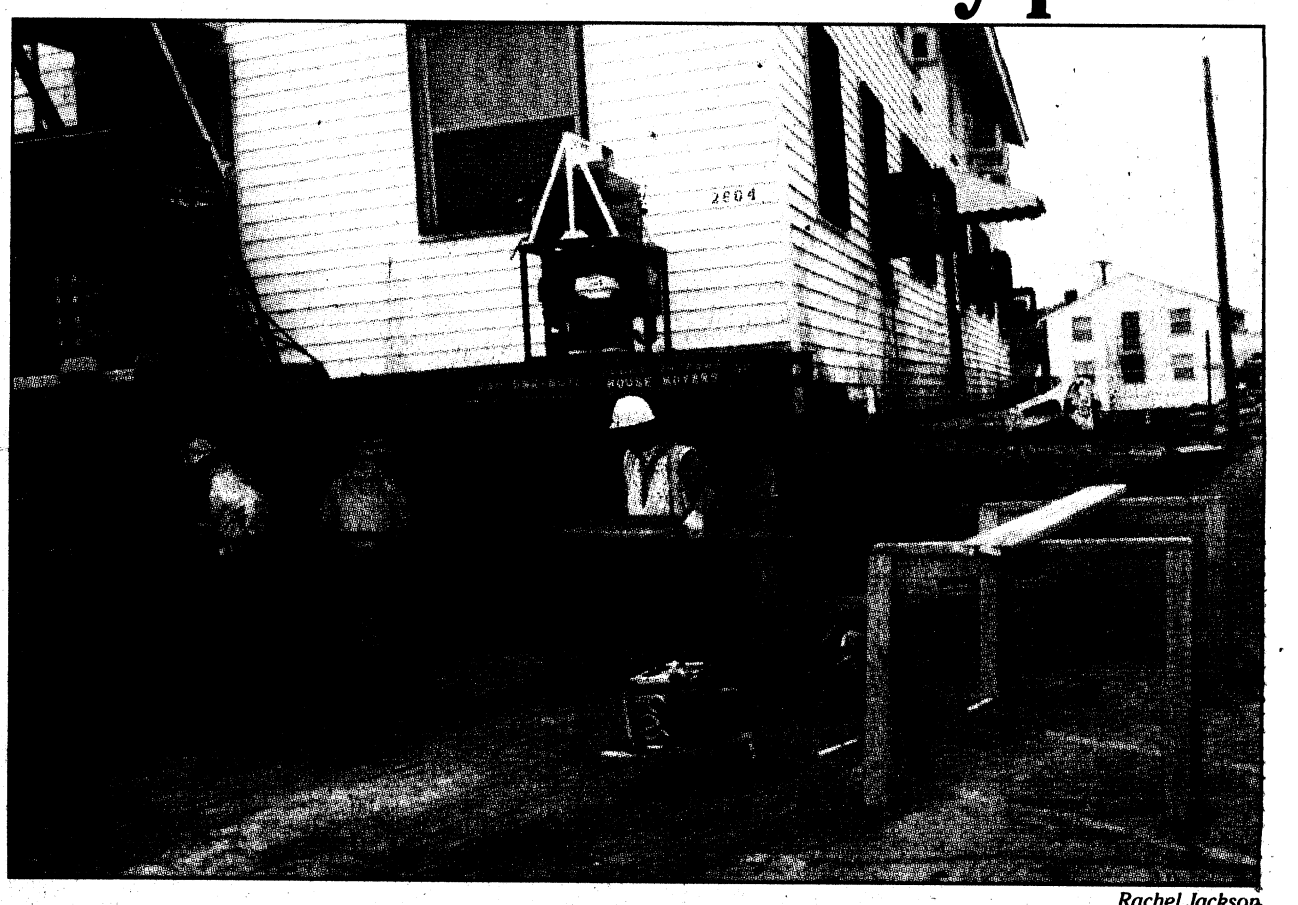
BRAC construction nears midway point

MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The post has completed 40 percent of the construction related to the $3.5 billion BRAC buildup and awarded $2 billion worth of contracts, a Maneuver Center of Excellence spokeswoman said Tuesday at the monthly Base Realignment and Closure update.



On Main Post, the greatest proof of progress is seen on Eckel Street, where the Building 4 tower has been stripped to its shell in preparation for extensive renovations.

The $172 million project will be completed in two phases, and the first phase — the tower — is expected to be complete this time next year.

Eighty percent of the materials removed from the "old Infantry Hall" are being recycled, said Bridgett Siter, who headed up the meeting in the absence of Jay Brown, the former BRAC project manager who recently filled a position new to Fort Benning — that of the chief, knowledge officer on the G3, operations and training staff.

Most of the construction is taking place in Harmony Church, where the Armor School will be Solomon Core, a contractor, carries a piece of rotted wood Nov. 23 as workers rebuild boards on Building 2604 to prepare it for a move to the back of Soldiers' Plaza, which occurred the following day. It's one of four buildings that are closest to Dixie Road. One building in the front row of Soldiers' Plaza has been demolished. One more will be demolished and the other one will be moved to the back of Soldiers' Plaza by mid-January to prepare for the widening of Dixie Road as part of BRAC, said Danny Worthy, on-site supervisor superintendent. The houses have to be moved because of force-protection regulation.

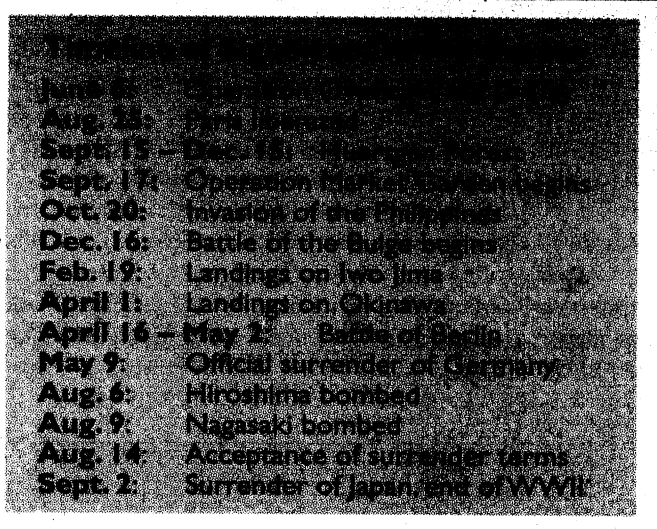
Flu shots advised for pregnant women

Terry Beckwith
THE BAYONET

With flu season in full swing, Martin Army Community Hospital healthcare providers are encouraging people to take preventive measures seriously, especially pregnant women.

"A pregnant woman who gets the flu is 10 times more likely to be hospitalized than infected people in the general population," said MAJ Renee Busse, chief of Community Health Nursing. "The best protection for pregnant women and their babies is to make sure they get both the 2009 seasonal and H1N1 flu shots."



Although there is a mist version of the seasonal flu vaccine, Busse said pregnant women are only eligible for the injectable shot. Both seasonal flu shots and 2009 H1N1 flu shots are recommended for pregnant women at any time during pregnancy.

"We want our pregnant women to get the injectable version of both the seasonal and H1N1 vaccine," Busse said. "One of the benefits is that they can get both flu shots at the same time." Both are

FORT BENNING HISTORIAN

Throughout this year and into the next, the world marks the 65th Anniversary of many important World War II events. Those listed below are the ones that had the greatest impact on American forces, including the end of the war in the European and the Pacific theaters.

Those men and women who participated in these events as members of the armed forces at the end of the war are at least 83 years of age today. More than 15 million of these Americans gave up the best years of their young

Operation Just Cause commemoration Dec. 17

MANEUVER CENTER OF EXCELLENCE

Fort Benning will host a 20th anniversary commemoration of Operation Just Cause, the invasion of Panama, Dec. 17. Beginning Dec. 20, 1989, the U.S. military conducted a "truly joint, surgical strike" when capturing the Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega, said Dave Stieghan, Infantry and Fort Benning historian.

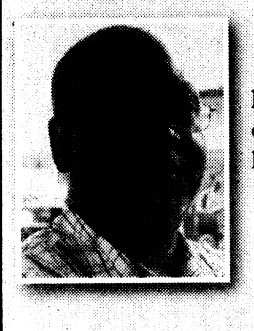
The invasion, ordered by President George H.W. Bush, was for regime change, the historian said. Noriega hijacked a national election and trafficked drugs from South and Central America to Main Street, and the president cited four reasons for the invasion — to protect American citizens living in Panama, defend democracy and human rights in Panama, combat the drug trafficking and protect the Panama Canal treaties, which transferred the canal to Panamanian control in 2000.

Operation Just Cause was well planned, Stieghan said. It was the first operation after the Goldwater-Nichols Act to get all the services working together and the first time the military used the special operations forces — Rangers, SEALS and Delta Force — as a single instrument.

And it was the reason CSM John Troxell, the Armor School command sergeant major, made the Army a career, he said.

A tank commander with C Company, 3rd Battalion, 73rd Armor Regiment (Airborne) assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division's 1st Brigade, said the spirit of the paratrooper came out in that operation.

"I went from 'proud to be in the Army' to 'I don't want to do anything else,'" Troxell said. "We fought like we trained."



CSM(R) Doug Greenway was a platoon sergeant with 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, who had just returned to Fort Lewis, Wash., from a three-week training exercise, which, unknown to them, was a rehearsal for the invasion.

"Within 24 hours of returning, we received orders to redeploy via Benning to Panama. Luckily all of our stuff was still somewhat configured," Greenway said.

VARIOUS VOICES

What would you like to see in The Bayonet?

I retired from Fort Benning, and I would like to know what's going on with the new hospital and how long it's going to take to build it.

— Robert Ivey
2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

World news and more information from outside post. I'm not really a newspaper reader, but that's what I used to read in The New York Times.

— 2LT Rick Bobeen
Basic Officer Leader Course

I usually pick the paper up because of striking headlines and to be nosey. I've been here for a week now for Airborne School, but I've picked up the paper to find out what units are doing here on this post.

— SSG Thomas Carroll
1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment

I'd like to see more ads on the deals out there. A lot of people go off base for that reason because they don't know what's offered on base. I hear a lot of Army wives say that because we don't know. It would be so much more convenient because I already travel too much.

— Jeanette Brenner
Family member

I would like to see more regarding Soldiers who have come back from Iraq and Afghanistan. I like to learn from them because I haven't been deployed yet. I like to see what they've experienced because this is new to me.

— 2LT Ryan Todd
2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment

More activities for my age group, people in their 20s or 30s. There are a lot of family-oriented activities in there, but we don't have children.

My life as a 'recon pilot'

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

It's been said we all have a twin somewhere along the universe's space-time continuum.

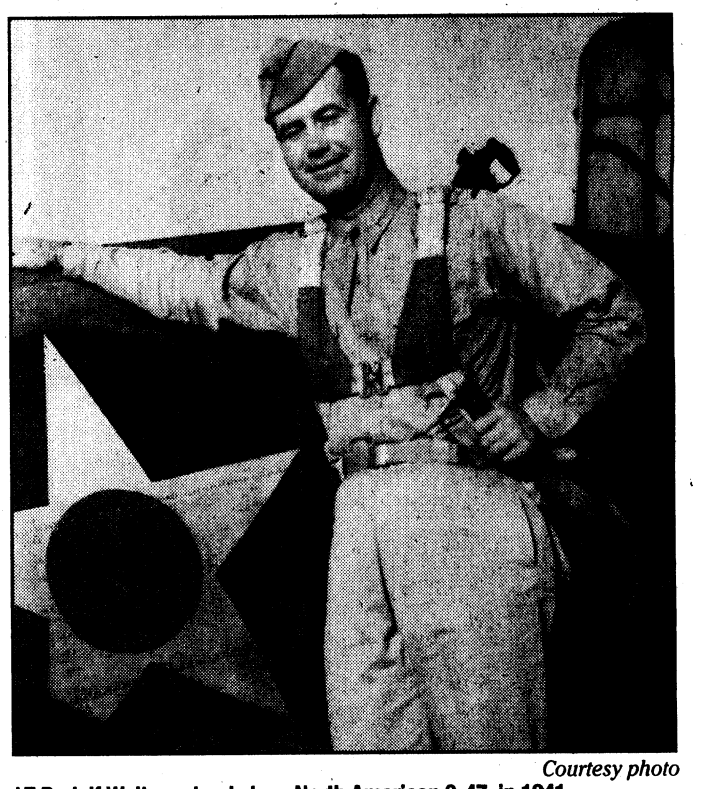
As a college student 20 years ago, a guy once told me I looked just like country music star Randy Travis. "If I could sing like him," I replied, "I wouldn't be wasting my time in this dull history class — I'd be out on the road somewhere tonight wondering which champagne goes best with shrimp cocktail and lobster."

My wife claims I'm a dead ringer for Steven Seagal. (But I'm no deputy sheriff, and never banked a dime at the box office busting heads on the silver screen.)

In the case of LT Rudolf Walters, however, we all agree the resemblance is uncanny.

Occasionally, people stop by my desk in The Bayonet office at Ridgway Hall and ask, "Is that you? I didn't know you were a fighter pilot."

At the very least, I must be a descendant, they insist.



Well, I'm not — and unfortunately, we know very little else about my World War II-era look-alike.

It all started a few months ago when Bridgett Siter went rummaging through some old files in the Maneuver Center of Excellence Public Affairs Office and came across the photo, which was taken by Robert de T. Lawrence.

On the back, an address label shows the name, Treville Lawrence of Marietta, Ga. Handwritten in cursive are the words: "1941 ... Lt. Rudolf Walters ... Ft. Benning, Ga. ... Lawson Fld ... O-47 Observation Plane."

Walters is pictured standing with his right hand draped over a North American O-47, which was an observation fixed-wing aircraft monoplane used by the U.S. Army Air Corps. It had a low-wing configuration, retractable landing gear and a three-blade propeller.

According to an online search, Lawrence, the photographer, passed away in recent years but had been married to Perk Lawrence, 89, of Marietta, following the death of her first husband in 1994.

LT Rudolf Walters stands by a North American O-47 in 1941.

"Perk laughs often and her eyes twinkle when she talks about the ten wonderful years they shared," reads a posting on the High Museum of Art Web site in Atlanta, where she was cited as a donor last year.

I'd love to learn more about LT Rudolf Walters. His flight path out of Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield likely led to action in World War II over the skies of the Pacific or Europe, where ironically, my own journalism career carried me in the past decade. Maybe he scoped out landing zones for D-Day and the Allied Invasion of Normandy in June 1944. Sometimes, I peek at the photo above my desk and wonder.

Perhaps this might generate a few clues about what became of him.

In the meantime, I'll continue regaling visitors with tales of my past life as a recon pilot.

Historic photos have stories to share

Bridgett Siter
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

I take issue with the old adage "a picture's worth a thousand words." Not really. Imagine this newspaper without cutlines.

During a recent forage through an old file cabinet in the Public Affairs Office, I came across hundreds of very old — some might say historic — photographs of people and places and events on Fort Benning and its predecessor, Camp Benning, which existed for about a minute, circa 1918, in Columbus. Unfortunately, there's very little information attached to these photos.

I've posted them on our Fort Benning Flickr account in hopes that you can help us identify the folks in the photos or tell us when, where and why they were taken. If not you, then maybe someone you know, perhaps a grandparent or uncle who served at Fort Benning back in the day.

In the coming weeks, we'll drive traffic to our Flickr site at www.flickr.com/photos/fortbenning/ in hopes of learning more about the photos. I'll see to it that our Facebook and Twitter audiences know about it. But I'd really appreciate it if you could help us spread the work.

On Flickr, you can post a comment telling us what you know about the people, the place or the event taking place in the photos. Maybe you weren't there but you went through similar training and you can tell us about it.

I'll keep you posted about our progress. If you have any questions, shoot me an e-mail at bridgett.siter@us.army.mil.

• 2LT Milton Honeman, a Parachute School instructor, fell 10,000 feet in seven minutes to set the height record for a static line jump on Fort Benning.

• World War II: Allied forces continued to press forward throughout Italy. The British 56th Division overcame fierce German resistance to capture Monte Camino as the U.S. II and VI Corps repelled the Germans and attacked Monte Sammucro and San Pietro.

Italian and French troops moved forward, strengthening the Allied line, and Canadian units reinforced the British Eighth Army that drove through Orsogna while making its way along the Moro River. The success of many such efforts afforded the Allies the opportunity to consolidate their position and begin withdrawing seasoned units to send them to Britain in preparation for Operation Overlord.

Elsewhere in Italy, the Allies suffered a significant setback as German bombers sunk an ammunition ship and 18 transport vessels carrying 38,000 tons of supplies in the harbor near the port of Bari.

On the Eastern Front, the Soviets captured Dovsk near Gomel and Mederovo, having successfully crossed the River Ingulets only days before. The offensive concentrated on isolating Znamenka, which the Soviets attacked after cutting two major rail lines to the city.

In the Marshall Islands, five battleships and 12 destroyers joined six carriers and nine cruisers as the U.S. launched a series of successful attacks against Kwajalein at the cost of only five of its own aircraft. Japanese forces defending the island sustained losses of 55 planes and six transports, with additional damage befalling two cruisers and one destroyer.

75th Ranger Regiment Ranger receives Silver Star

Tracy A. Bailey
75TH RANGER REGIMENT PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Valor is defined as boldness or determination in the face of great danger; it is the quality which enables a man to encounter danger with courage and personal bravery.

Valor describes men like SSG Michael E. Norton, a squad leader with A Company, 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, who risked his life to save the lives of two Ranger brothers.

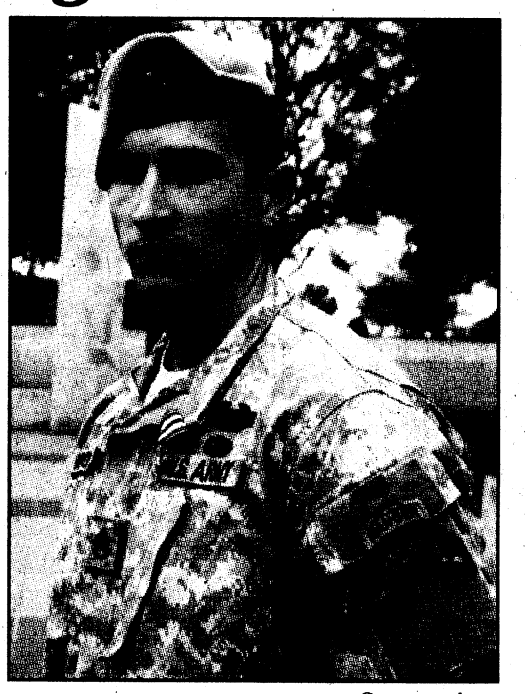
"Any Ranger would have done the same thing," Norton said. "The Ranger Creed says, 'I will never leave a fallen comrade.' There was no moment of thinking about what to do. I had to get my brothers and the most important thing in my mind was how hurt they were."

On Aug. 4 and 5, Norton led his squad on an objective to raid an enemy's headquarters camp in the mountains of northwestern Khowst Province, Afghanistan.

While moving to the objective, Norton and one of his team leaders were alerted to possible enemy combatants along the route and moved forward to assess the situation. As Norton and his team leader were attempting to identify the possible enemy in the valley, seven to nine men attacked Norton's squad from the high ground with rocket-propelled grenades and small-arms fire from a position of 25 meters to the squad's front.

"The fire came from our 12 o'clock and then maybe a couple of seconds later from our right and left," Norton said.

Behind the first enemy rocket-propelled grenade team, a medium machine gun on elevated ground to the northwest engaged them with highly effective fire. Two more enemy combatants on the slope of the valley to the west engaged the Ranger squad with an AK-47 and rocket-propelled grenades along the long axis of their formation, while another group of enemy fighters on elevated terrain to the east raked them with small-arms fire from the rear of the Ranger squad formation.



The enemy positions had effectively enveloped Norton's squad from multiple directions at a distance of 25 to 50 meters, leaving Norton and his element pinned to the floor of the valley by the intense and accurate small-arms fire.

The valley left no room for maneuver; Norton, his squad and the machine-gun team element behind them immediately returned fire, but they were unable to gain fire superiority over the well-established enemy.

After the second rocket-propelled grenades knocked two of his Rangers temporarily unconscious and blasted the rest of his squad with shrapnel and debris, and realizing his element could not gain fire superiority, Norton shouted for his squad to break contact.

When Norton realized that two Rangers had not gotten up and were still exposed to the heavy volume of enemy fire from the high ground to the east and west, and with complete disregard for his own safety, Norton turned around and with marked distinction, purposefully charged back into the interlocking fire of the enemy ambush kill zone in order to recover his downed Rangers.

"The example of personal courage that Staff Sergeant Norton showed, to get his men out of the kill zone is a testament to his character," said MAJ Keith Carter, A Company commander. "NCOs such as Staff Sergeant Norton are the reason I wanted to serve in the 75th Ranger Regiment, and it is an honor to lead them."

SSG Michael Norton, pictured in front of the Ranger Memorial on Fort Benning, was awarded a Silver Star Nov. 24 for valorous actions while serving in Afghanistan.

Without hesitation, Norton dove down into the midst of enemy fire with his unconscious comrades, uncertain of their status.

"There was nothing fancy going on in my head besides hoping they weren't dead," Norton said.

While the rest of the element attempted to suppress the enemy, and lying next to the Rangers, Norton "started shaking and yelling as quietly as I could."

After reviving his Rangers, Norton led them back to cover through the hail of direct fire and rocket-propelled grenade strikes, saving their lives and bringing his entire squad out of the enemy onslaught intact.

"I'm proud of the actions of my squad, because we continued the mission after that," said Norton. "It was just two minutes out of our overall mission."

As his platoon fought off the enemy ambush with direct fire, mortars and close air support, Norton quickly assessed his casualties and reorganized his squad to return to the fight. Norton continued leading his squad in the follow-on assaults through two more direct-fire contacts, killing two enemy combatants.

"We receive a lot of great training here at 3rd Ranger Battalion and I was just acting on instinct," Norton said.

The training conducted by Rangers means everything on the battlefield.

"The goal of the company and battalion is to create the most realistic scenarios possible while minimizing risk," Carter said. "We constantly integrate new enemy tactics from overseas into our training so that we are ready in any situation."

The overall assault force killed 20 enemy fighters, destroyed two enemy anti-aircraft guns and several other weapons, explosives and military supplies on the objective resulting in the disruption of a major enemy headquarters and encampment.

Norton joined the Army from his hometown of Pensacola, Fla., in June 2004, after graduating from West Highland Christian Academy and has deployed six times in support of operations Enduring and Iraqi Freedom. He is the son of Jimmy and Deborah Norton of Holly, Mich.

Army to separate Soldiers who don't extend to deploy

J.D. Leipold
ARMY NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Soldiers who don't agree to extend their enlistments in units slated to deploy on or after Jan. 1 may be involuntarily separated up to three months early.

The new Enlisted Involuntary Early Separation Program will affect active-duty Soldiers scheduled to separate during the first six months of their unit's deployment. These Soldiers will be asked to re-enlist or extend so they can stay with their unit through its full deployment and two months after returning.

Soldiers who participate in the Deployment Extension Incentive Program will receive an extra $350 or $500 for every month extended.

Those who extend at least six months before deploying will receive the full $500 per month.

Those who don't re-enlist or extend will not deploy and will be separated up to three months prior to their contractual separation date, said MAJ Jennifer Walkawicz, personnel policy integrator, G1.

The involuntary separation program applies only to regular Army enlisted Soldiers with more than 36 months of active service and less than 71 months of total service, Walkawicz said, when they have an ending term-of-service date during their unit's first six months of deployment.

Soldiers with an ETS date occurring during the last six months of their unit's scheduled deployment will still deploy and simply return early to out-process if they choose not to extend, she said.

Walkawicz estimated the EIESP program will result in 1,350 to 1,450 Soldiers being separated early with an annual cost savings of about $8.5 million.

"The Army is implementing this program now as part of the Stop Loss Reduction plan," she said.

The Stop Loss program will be phased out beginning Jan. 1, in favor of voluntary extensions or early separation.

"This program allows the Army to identify Soldiers preparing to ETS who will not deploy with the unit, then provide replacements for those Soldiers prior to the unit's deployment date," Walkawicz said.

She said the new guidance will ensure ample time for newly reporting Soldiers to train on individual and collective tasks and settle in their families. She said those Soldiers who have decided to leave the Army are generally first-term enlistees and will not lose any entitlements.

She said Soldiers who chose not to re-enlist or extend for the deployment duration and are separated will retain all rights, privileges and benefits such as the Post-9/11 GI Bill benefits.

However, EIESP Soldiers will not be entitled to pay and allowances for the period not served.

The involuntary early separation does not apply to Soldiers facing courts-martial or under investigation for Uniform Code of Military Justice offenses.

The Army has mandated battalion commanders notify affected Soldiers at least 90 days prior to their adjusted date of separation. Due to the 90-day written notice requirement, Human Resources Command will phase in the EIESP.

As the program is phased in, Soldiers with an ETS between April 1-30 will be separated one month earlier, Walkawicz said. Soldiers with an ETS between May 1-31 will be involuntarily separated two months earlier than their ETS; and Soldiers whose ETS is on or after June 1 will be separated three months earlier than their contract stipulates.

Ranger students get swamped in Florida

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Murky swamp water, cold temperatures and a heavy downpour weren't enough to dispel the motivation of more than 140 U.S. Army Ranger School students in their final week of training Tuesday with the 6th RTB at Camp Rudder near Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

"I've realized I can embrace the 'suck' factor," 2LT Todd Klinzing-Donaldson said. "The hardest part of today was the weather but the rain hasn't bothered me as it would have before. There were times during the mountain phase when it rained all day like today and it was horrendous. But now I know there's more mentally I can overcome."

The Ranger School is split into three phases: Benning, mountain and swamp.

"Ranger School is designed not just to make a guy tactically and technically proficient but also to put a leader in a position where he has to lead in the most uncomfortable situations, whether it's in the swamp or the mountains," said CSM Lawrence Elder, senior NCO for the 6th Ranger Training Battalion.

Ranger School is more than 60 days long and tests the mental and physical endurance of each Soldier.

The 18-day final phase focuses on training students for missions in coastal and swamp environments while overcoming the challenges of severe weather, terrain, limited sleep, food deprivation, and mental and physical fatigue.

On Day 11 of swamp training, students hiked miles through forested swampland to engage an enemy camp, accompanied by MG Michael Ferriter, commanding general of Fort Benning, COL Thomas Macdonald, garrison commander, and the 6th Ranger Training Brigade command team, LTC Matthew Seifert and Elder.

Typically, Day 11 consists of a 400-meter walk through waist-high swamp water, known as the "boiler," to reach the intended target, but water or air temperatures below 50 degrees create a potential for hypothermia so training was altered, Seifert said.

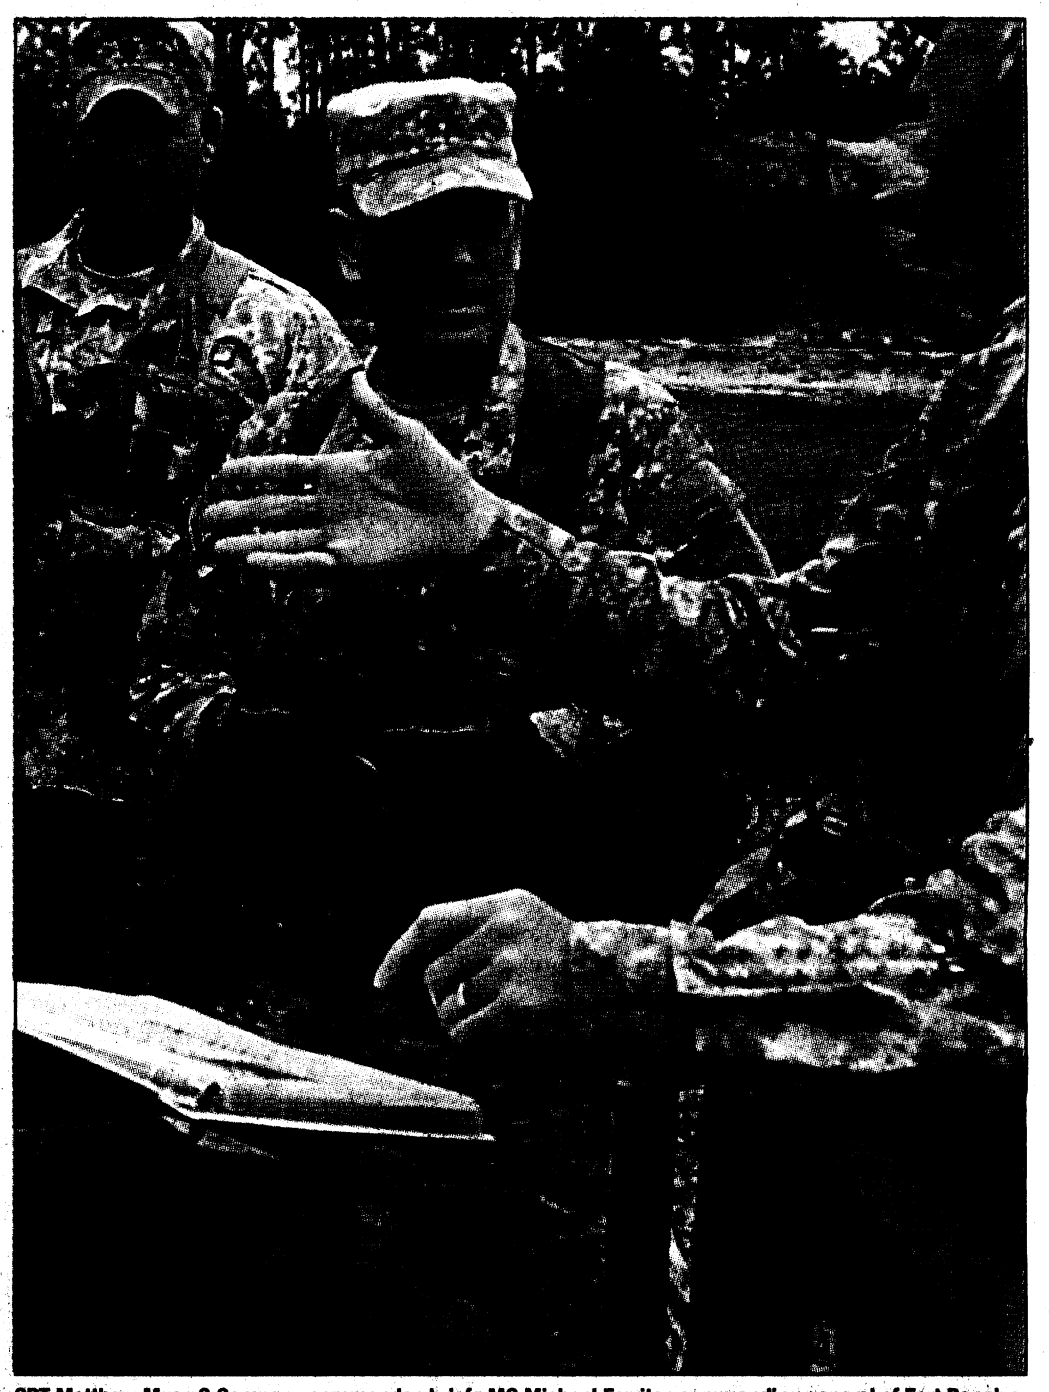
Instead, the students hiked nearly eight kilometers, skirting the deeper areas of the swamp to reach the target on the other side.

The modified training ends up being more of a challenge, Seifert said.

Despite the additional trek and inclement weather, motivation remained high among the students, said SFC William Clancy, a primary instructor.

"By this phase, it's pretty uncommon to see people quit," he said. "What's going through their heads is that they're almost done. Mental and physical fatigue may overtake them but we tell them to block it out and let the brain tell the body what to do."

Students average four hours of sleep a night, he said, to prepare them for mental and physical stresses during deployment.



"Many times overseas you are out on long patrols day and night," he said. "So if they deal with the lack of sleep issues here in training, they will be better prepared down the road. They will know what their breaking point is and what it isn't."

Hiking alongside the students a good portion of the way, the commanding general said the training stirred memories of his final weeks of Ranger School.

"Standing about halfway to our knees in the water brought back memories of when I was doing the same thing," said Ferriter, who completed the school in December 1983. "Seeing the professional Ranger instructors in charge doing the right things was inspiring to me and lets me know we are in good shape down here."

Each student has to decide they won't quit or let one of their comrades fall, and that's the best part of this course, he said.

Following an air-assault insertion today and boards next week, the students are set to graduate Friday.

CPT Matthew Myer, C Company commander, briefs MG Michael Ferriter, commanding general of Fort Benning, on the 10-day field training exercise students undergo in the swamp phase, which includes Airborne and waterborne movements and air assaults.

MG Michael Ferriter, commanding general of Fort Benning, joined a platoon on patrol through the swamps Tuesday.

Army develops new program to combat suicide

Program to assess mental well-being

SGT Lindsey Bradford
MULTI-NATIONAL CORPS-IRAQ PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

The Army released suicide statistics for October and the total number of suicides, suspected and confirmed, for 2009. Data indicates the number of Soldiers taking their own lives has surpassed figures recorded at the same time last year.

Since those statistics were released, seven active-duty Soldiers and two Reserve-component Soldiers committed suicide, Army Vice Chief of Staff GEN Peter Chiarelli said Nov. 17. But the numbers of suicides are decreasing, indicating the success of various programs the Army has implemented to address the issue.

"We attribute this reduction in the number of suicides to the many actions we have taken since February to inform and educate leaders and Soldiers on this important issue," he said.

The newest program, the Comprehensive Soldier Fitness program, was put into practice Oct. 1.

The program will allow Soldiers to assess their mental well-being twice a year, much like the Army Physical Fitness Test measures their physical well-being.

"It gives the same emphasis to psychological, emotional and mental strength that we have previously given to physical strength," he said.

Psychological, emotional, spiritual and mental strength provide balance to an individual, said Chaplain (COL) Kenneth Stice, command chaplain for Multi-National Corps-Iraq.

"The balance between physical and mental health is essential to high self-esteem and to fostering healthy relationships," said Stice, a College Park, Md., native.

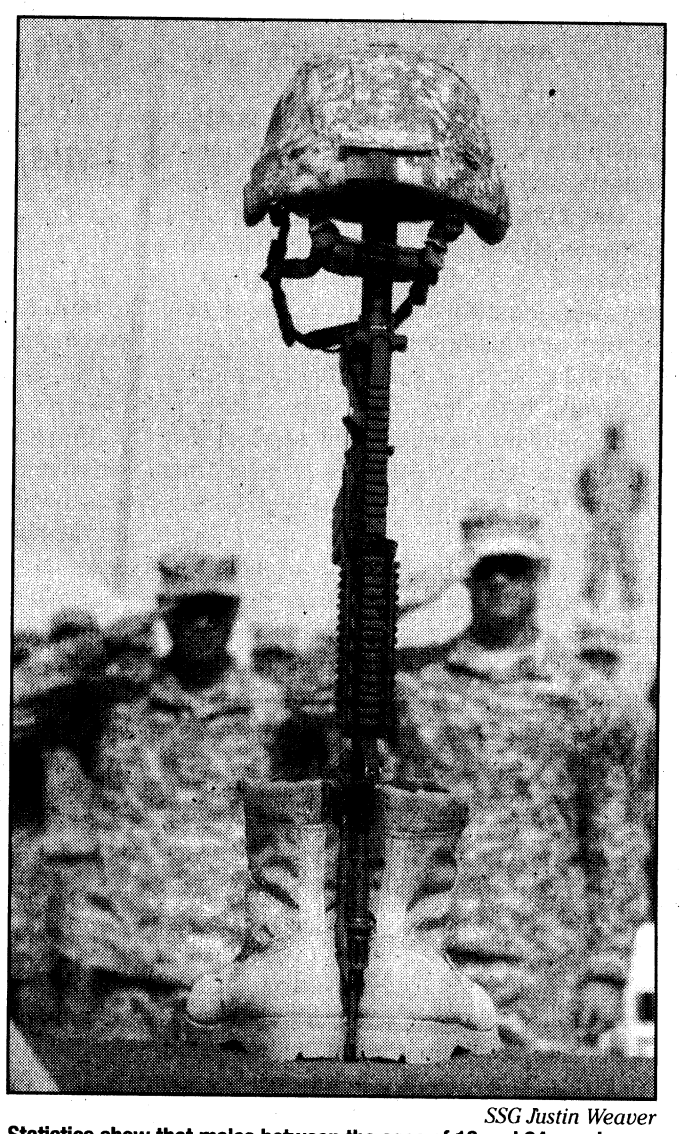
The CSF program begins with the Global Assessment Tool, an online self-assessment that Soldiers can access using their Army Knowledge Online accounts.

The survey consists of 175 questions, and takes about 30 minutes to complete.

Once complete, the GAT will provide individual feedback in five areas — physical, spiritual, family, emotional and social.

The Soldier can evaluate his or her total comprehensive fitness level. No one has access to individual answers or scores and the GAT is not used as a selection tool for promotion, command or schooling.

"No one will see your answers," Stice said. "Instead, your answers will focus on weaker areas of mental well-being, and point you in the right direction for help. It's all up to the Soldier whether he or she takes those crucial steps to seeking the help they may need at that time."



Each time a Soldier accesses the GAT, which will be biannually at a minimum, the program will track his or her progress. This will enable the Soldier to see performance changes in response to training, experience and maturity.

In contrast to other programs the Army has instituted, the GAT and CSF programs are not aimed at suicide prevention, Stice said.

"The suicide stand down we did, and the 'Stomp the Stigma' video we watched, were aimed at recognizing those who are most at risk for suicide and finding ways to intervene before they make the choice to commit suicide," Stice said. "The Comprehensive Soldier Fitness program focuses on keeping people strong, showing areas that may be weaker than others and preventing Soldiers from developing an imbalance. It helps build a stronger force."

Between Jan. 1 and Nov. 17, there were 27 suicides in Iraq — 19 Army, seven Marine and one Air Force. For the same period, Armywide, there were 140 active-duty and 71 Reserve-component Soldiers who committed suicide.

Leaders can access current health promotion guidance in the newly revised Army Regulation 600-3 (Health Promotion).

SSG Justin Weaver
Statistics show that males between the ages of 18 and 24, serving on their first deployment, are more likely to commit suicide during the first six months of their tour.

Commission to evaluate MACH

Melissa House
MACH PAO ASSISTANT

Martin Army Community Hospital will conduct an accreditation visit by The Joint Commission Monday through Friday. The Joint Commission, formerly known as The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, has been evaluating hospitals and other programs since 1951. MACH is one of the more than 15,000 health-care organizations and programs in the United States rated by the independent, not-for-profit, accrediting body.

The commission notified hospital Commander COL Koji Nishimura of the visit Nov. 24.

"We look forward to this survey process, as it provides us an opportunity to validate the high-quality care we provide our Soldiers and family members." Nishimura said.

A team of surveyors, consisting of a nurse, doctor, behavioral health practitioner, facilities engineer and administrator, will evaluate all aspects of MACH operations. The team will follow patients' care from department to department, looking for teamwork, good communication and safe delivery of services in compliance with appropriate regulatory guidelines.

To earn and maintain The Joint Commission Accreditation, an organization must undergo an on-site survey at least every three years. MACH has maintained full Joint Commission accreditation since 1998, and has held additional Joint Commission certifications in the areas of Behavioral Health, Pathology and Clinical Laboratory Services. The MACH Department of Pathology is accredited by the College of American Pathologists and the Department of Radiology has staff certified by the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists.

Notices and facts about TJC are posted on the hospital's Web site, www.martin.amedd.army.mil, and throughout the hospital. More information about The Joint Commisssion and Martin Army Community Hospital's accreditation history is available at www.jointcommission.org.

Pilot program allows officers to change career path

C. Todd Lopez
ARMY NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — A new test program will allow some officers to transfer into a new branch or functional area.

The Officer Service Management Pilot Program allows officers who meet the rank, time-in-service and career-field criteria to be considered for acceptance into a new branch or functional area.

Regular Army captains or promotable captains, with less than nine years of active federal commissioned service, may participate in the OSMPP. Also, regular Army majors with less than 14 years of AFCS may participate.

The program is designed to help the Army balance out the officer force by moving officers from overmanned career fields to undermanned career fields, said LTC Eric Brunken, Army Human Resources Command, chief retention branch, leader development division.

> "It's not a one-time shot. If officers see a branch they want to go into and it is not available this time, they should look again in May or in October."
> — LTC Eric Brunken

And the program serves as a retention tool for officers.

"Primarily, that is a matter of job satisfaction," he said. "The officer, because he gets to voluntarily pick his branch, gets to go into a branch that he feels more comfortable or more excited about going into."

Brunken said the Army will convene quarterly panels to approve or disapprove officer applications for branch and functional area transfers. The first such panel, for the second quarter of fiscal year 2010, meets Feb. 1-5.

Those officers who want to transfer into a new branch or functional area under the program must complete a DA Form 4187 and submit it before Dec. 31, Brunken said.

Two MILPER messages, 09-243 and 09-259, address the OSMPP. The first describes the program and details basic requirements for participation. The second lists the specific details for applying to the second quarter/FY10 panel.

In particular, the second message spells out the branch and functional areas and year group combinations for officers who are eligible to participate in the program. It also lists the branch and functional areas and year group combinations that are available as choices to be transferred into.

If officers apply for the program and are not chosen the first time, or they do not see that a branch or functional area they are interested in is available, they can apply again to a later panel, Brunken said.

"It's not a one-time shot," he said. "If officers see a branch they want to go into, and it is not available this time, they should look again in May or in October. Eventually there will be an opportunity to branch transfer into something they want to do."

It is expected the Army will offer additional OSMPP opportunities in both May and October.

Troop expansion: Comes with exit strategy for 2011

and its allies.

"This danger will only grow if the region slides backwards and al-Qaida can operate with impunity," the president said.

The United States and its international allies must keep pressure on the terror group, and that also will mean increasing the stability and capacity of partners in the region.

The 30,000 service members and their equipment will flow into Afghanistan in the first half of 2010, Obama said. White House officials, speaking on background earlier in the day, said this will entail at least two or three Army brigade combat teams, and many Soldiers and Marines to train the Afghan security forces. Air Force and Navy personnel also will be called on to support this effort.

A military counterinsurgency effort aimed at protecting the Afghan people is only one part of the strategy, the president said. The second is a civilian surge that reinforces positive actions, and the third is an effective partnership with Pakistan.

The military strategy is aimed at reversing the Taliban's momentum and will increase Afghanistan's security capabilities over the next 18 months, Obama said. The strategy has at its core disrupting, dismantling and defeating al-Qaida and its extremist allies as the president announced in March.

The 30,000 additional troops will target the insurgency and secure key population centers.

"They will increase our ability to train competent Afghan security forces, and to partner with them so that more Afghans can get into the fight," Obama said. "And they will help create the conditions for the United States to transfer responsibility to the Afghans."

The president also will ask for international military contributions. Some nations — Britain and Australia, for example — already have provided additional troops, and he expects more nations will come forward soon.

> — President Barack Obama

"Our friends have fought and bled and died alongside us in Afghanistan," the president said. "Now, we must come together to end this war successfully. For what's at stake is not simply a test of NATO's credibility — what's at stake is the security of our allies, and the common security of the world."

Obama used the experiences in Iraq as a yardstick. Just as in Iraq, additional forces will provide the time and security needed to train local forces, thus accelerating a handover of security responsibility to Afghan forces beginning in July 2011.

"Just as we have done in Iraq, we will execute this transition responsibly, taking into account conditions on the ground," he said.

The civilian strategy will entail working with allies, international agencies and the Afghan people "to pursue a more effective civilian strategy, so that the government can take advantage of improved security," he said.

Aid to Afghanistan must be based on performance, the president said. "The days of providing a blank check are over," he said.

Obama said Afghan President Hamid Karzai's inauguration speech sent the right message. The United States will support Afghan ministries, governors and local leaders that combat corruption and deliver for the people, he added.

"We expect those who are ineffective or corrupt to be held accountable," he said. "And we will also focus our assistance in areas — such as agriculture — that can make an immediate impact in the lives of the Afghan people."

Obama stressed that the United States is not interested in occupying Afghanistan or subjugating its people.

"We will seek a partnership with Afghanistan grounded in mutual respect — to isolate those who destroy; to strengthen those who build; to hasten the day when our troops will leave; and to forge a lasting friendship in which America is your partner, and never your patron," he said.

Obama stressed that the United States will not run out on Pakistan.

"We are in Afghanistan to prevent a cancer from once again spreading through that country," he said. "But this same cancer has also taken root in the border region of Pakistan. That is why we need a strategy that works on both sides of the border."

The Pakistani people were shocked by Taliban offensives that took them within 60 miles of the capital of Islamabad this year. They realize the extremists are a grave danger to the country and are addressing it. Obama praised the Pakistani military for its recent offensives in South Waziristan and Swat.

"Moving forward, we are committed to a partnership with Pakistan that is built on a foundation of mutual interests, mutual respect and mutual trust," Obama said. "We will strengthen Pakistan's capacity to target those groups that threaten our countries, and have made it clear that we cannot tolerate a safe haven for terrorists whose location is known, and whose intentions are clear."

The United States also will provide resources to support Pakistan's democracy and development.

"And going forward, the Pakistani people must know: America will remain a strong supporter of Pakistan's security and prosperity long after the guns have fallen silent, so that the great potential of its people can be unleashed," the president said.

Flu shots: Seek advice

endorsed by the Centers for Disease Control and are safe for pregnant women.

Any pregnant woman battling flu-like symptoms should call her doctor right away, Busse said, because antiviral medicine is most helpful if it is started within the first 48 hours after they become sick. The current antiviral medication being used to treat the flu includes oseltamivir, also known as Tamiflu, and zanamivir, also known as Relenza. The antiviral medicines fight the flu by keeping flu viruses from replicating in the body, which results in a milder illness and makes you feel better faster, Busse said. Antivirals can also prevent serious flu complications.

"At this time, Tamiflu is the best medicine to treat pregnant women who have 2009 H1N1 flu," she said. "Please also realize that we're only giving antiviral medication to high-risk beneficiaries, such as pregnant women, who may not recover as well from the flu."

Currently, there are no studies that suggest pregnant women or their babies will have adverse outcomes from taking antiviral medication. Busse recommends women talk to their doctor if they have questions about the medication.

"We're here to answer questions," she said. "Take advantage of it so that you're comfortable with getting the vaccine and if needed, antiviral medication."

For more information about the seasonal and H1N1 viruses, visit the CDC Web site at www.cdc.gov.

Pregnant patients can get their vaccines by scheduling an appointment with the Family Medicine and Pediatrics Clinics by calling 706-544-2273 or by visiting the Flu Clinic, located on the 8th floor of MACH, from 8 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Monday to Friday. Up-to-date information is available at the MACH Web site, www.martin.amedd.army.mil, and at the post's Web site, www.benning.army.mil.

Protect yourself, protect your baby

Pregnant women need both the 2009 H1N1 flu shot and the seasonal flu shot.

Take everyday precautions - practice and preach good cough etiquette, good hand washing and avoid sick people.

If you have been exposed to someone who likely had the flu and you are pregnant, call your doctor.

If you are pregnant and start to feel sick, call your doctor right away. Take the medicines your doctor prescribes and let your Army health clinic know if you did not receive antiviral medication from a local national hospital.

Having a fever can cause problems for a pregnant woman and her unborn child. Acetaminophen (Tylenol) is the best way for pregnant women to lower a fever.

Plan to breastfeed as soon as your baby is born.

Just Cause: Marks 20-year anniversary this month

"We had eight hours for coordination and synchronization."

The Air Force dropped 1,000-pound bombs on objectives, the former U.S. Army Infantry School command sergeant major said.

"Crossing over the beaches into Rio Hata, we sounded off with the Ranger Creed and we were out the doors just after midnight — filling the skies with paratrooper silk at 500 feet.

"We had plenty of ammo and an MRE," he said. "We had great leaders like CSM (Mariano R.C.) Leon-Guerrero and COL Buck Kernan, but then, like now, it's the team leaders and their teams that carry the fight and win the day."

Forces from the 5th Infantry (Mechanized) Division, 7th Infantry (Light) Division, 82nd Infantry (Airborne), 193rd Infantry Brigade, 75th Ranger Regiment, 5th and 7th Special Forces Group, worked together in a joint effort with other U.S. Army, U.S. Marine, U.S. Navy, and U.S. Air Force units to capture Noriega and halt his dictatorial regime.

Fort Benning is celebrating the anniversary of Operation Just Cause with a jump Dec. 17 and a dinner later that night in Heritage Hall at the National Infantry Museum. Anyone who jumped then, and is still on Airborne status, is invited to participate in the commemorative jump, said CPT John Savell, OIC at the National Infantry Museum. Others who served in Operation Just Cause are invited to participate in all other activities.

For more information on the jump or the dinner, call Savell at 706-545-2771 or 706-905-0926.

located on both sides of Highway 27/280. Roadwork and the widening of Eighth Division Road Bridge impacts traffic in that area on and off post. Drivers are encouraged to use caution and give themselves more traveling time when moving about Harmony Church or passing through via 27/280.

Siter announced the construction schedule for access control points on and around Main Post.

The Custer Road ACP, near McBride Elementary School, will be closed during the holiday break, from Dec. 18 to Jan. 4. When it reopens, construction will continue, with minimal impact to traffic, until Feb. 1.

The Eddy Bridge ACP, accessed from Alabama, will undergo construction in two phases, now through Dec. 17 and Feb. 1 to March 1.

Work on and near the Benning Boulevard ACP will start March 1 and take approximately two months. Work there will start at 9 a.m. each day to minimize traffic impedance.

The Lindsay Creek ACP, commonly called the I-185 entry, will undergo work from May 1 to Aug. 1. Most of the work there will take place after regular work hours.

The outbound lanes on Benning Boulevard and Lindsay Creek will not be affected.

Siter said there will be no BRAC Community update in January, but it will resume Feb. 2. Meetings are held at 3 p.m. at the National Infantry Museum on the first Tuesday of each month.

Slides from this month's meeting are available. Send a request to bridgett.siter@us.army.mil.

lives — and more than 400,000 made the ultimate sacrifice.

Their numbers are dwindling by several thousand each day as time passes. While they will remember these trials vividly all their lives, it is important that we who are too young have experienced these events remember these who stepped up when their nation called and said, "Send me."

While there are other anniversaries of crucial events that deserve commemoration, these 65th anniversary events have a special meaning. Many of the World War II era veterans groups are no longer travelling to annual reunions.

These are the last years that they will be able to come to us when we observe the meaning of their sacrifices at special events and monument dedications. We will seek them as they enjoy years of rest and reflection before they join their young buddies who await them.

There are a lot of songs and poems written to honor these warriors, but my favorite appeared as anonymous graffiti found during the war on a wall in the Philippines. It honors the young men who served in the Infantry.

Letter to St. Peter

Let them in St. Peter, they are very tired;
Give them the couches where the Angels sleep.
Let them wake whole again to new dawns fired
With sun not war. And may their peace be deep.
Remember where the broken bodies lie-
And give them things they like. Let them make noise.
God knows how young they were to have to die!
Give swing bands not gold harps, to these our boys,
Let them love, Peter,— they have had no time —
Girls sweet as meadow wind, with flowing hair-
They should have trees and bird song, hills to climb
The taste of Summer in a ripened pear,
Tell them how they are missed. Say not to fear;
It's going to be alright with us down here.

Officers beat NCOs in annual Turkey Bowl

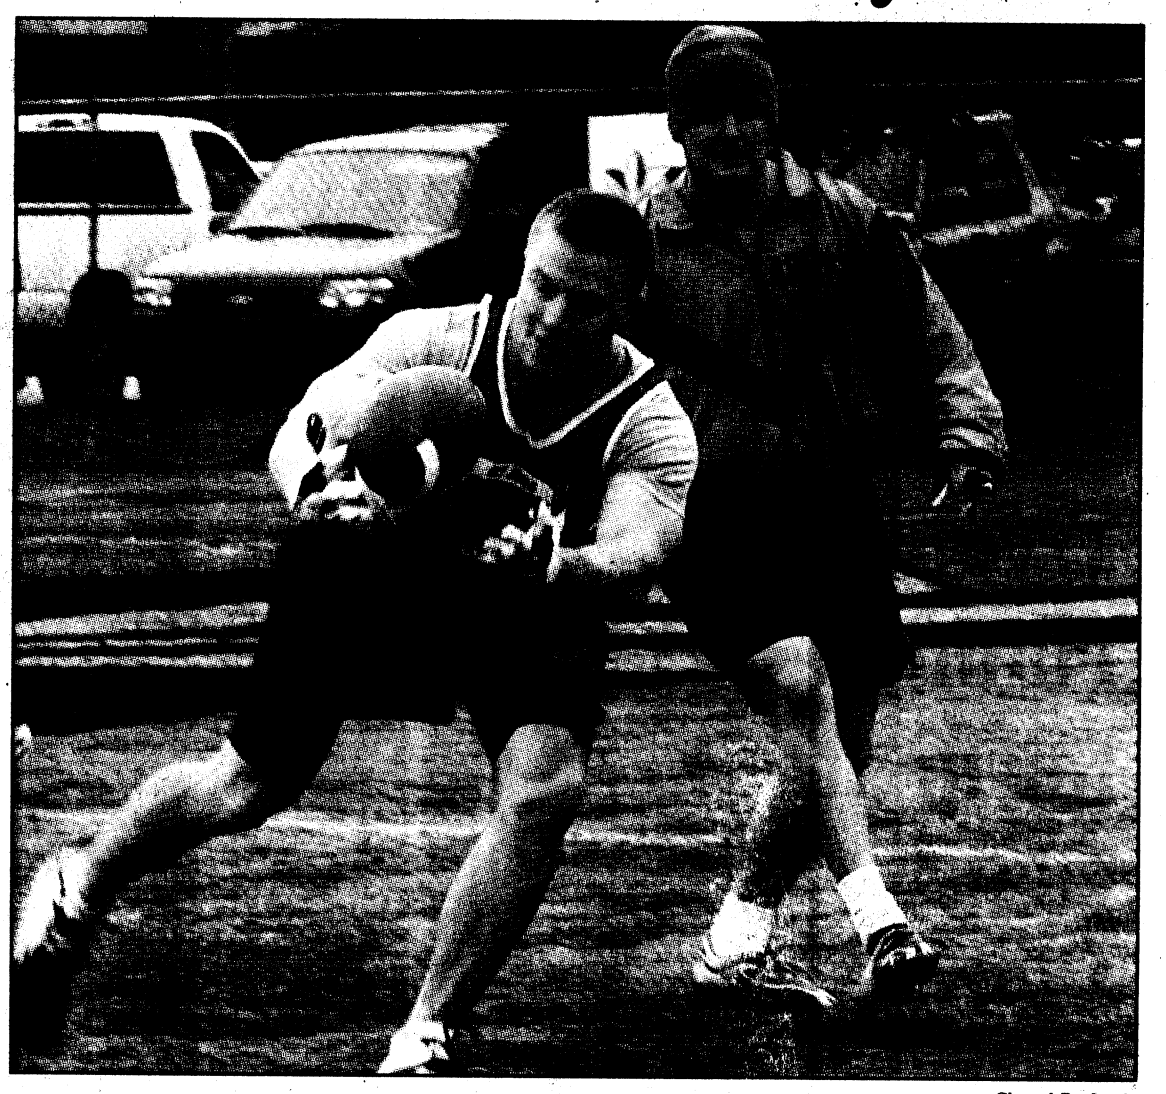
THE BAYONET

Soldiers in the 11th Engineer Battalion played to win and for esprit de corps Nov. 25 in a game of ultimate football. A three-year tradition and the annual day-before-Thanksgiving PT, the Turkey Bowl pitted officers against NCOs.

"It's just a day of building morale," said LTC Dwayne Smith, battalion commander and coach for the officers' team.



"Ultimately, we all had a great time; it's not about winning," said SFC Otis Walker, who played for the NCOs. "It's just … enjoying each other's time. You don't get to do this often. A lot of the time you're out there working side by side but it's always giving orders, executing missions, and this time we get to just relax and have a good time."

The game was played with a running clock, and one point was awarded for each touchdown in the two 24-minute halves. The officers took home the trophy for the third year in a row with a 12-8 win.

The officers took the lead five minutes into the game with the first touchdown and led 5-3 at halftime. The NCOs tied the game four minutes into the second half, but their comeback was short-lived. The officers pulled ahead and maintained the lead, scoring the final touchdown in the final seconds of the game.

"Anytime you can be the first ones to score it just really ups your motivation," said 1LT Jason Dence, who scored the first touchdown. "It pumps

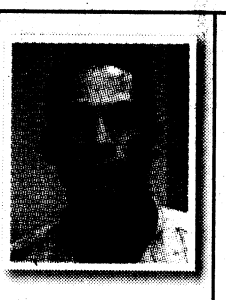
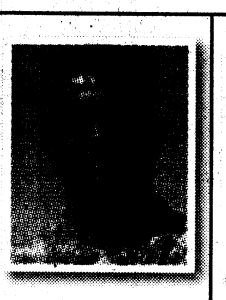
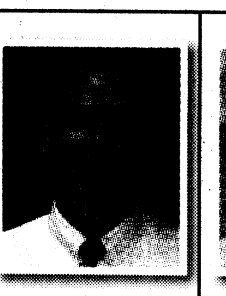
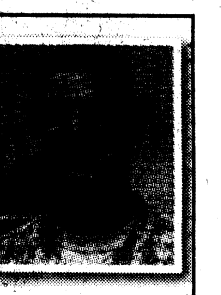
Rock Steady played one man short in the final minutes of round one of the Commander's Cup preseason intramural basketball tournament Monday at Smith Fitness Center but managed to get past Mailed Foot 54-43.

In their only lead of the game, Mailed Foot, with 2nd Battalion, 54th Infantry Regiment, led 6-4 in the first half, but Rock Steady, from 1st Bn., 19th Inf. Regt., regained the lead and didn't let up. By the end of the first half, Rock Steady led 26-22.









Mailed Foot closed the gap to 29-24 in the second half, but Rock Steady kept up the scoring pace, taking their biggest lead, 40-30.

With less than four minutes remaining in the game, Rock Steady's five-point lead was put in jeopardy when Ian Trowers fouled out, leaving Mailed Foot with a five-on-four advantage, but Rock Steady held on to win 54-43.

"It was frustrating to be down a player," Rock Steady's Alex Araugo said. "It could have went either way when we lost a player, but we up your whole team, so it gives them a little extra energy."

Walker said there were changes planned for next year's game in hopes of moving the trophy to CSM John Etter Jr.'s office.

"We have a lot of people who want to play … and no continuity," said Walker, one of nearly 60 Soldiers who rotated in for the 10-person team. "We're going to do it different next time. We're going to actually have tryouts, and we're going to break down our team to 20 people: the 20 best, 20 who practice."

After the game, the unit leadership served a Thanksgiving-style lunch to Soldiers at the dining facility.

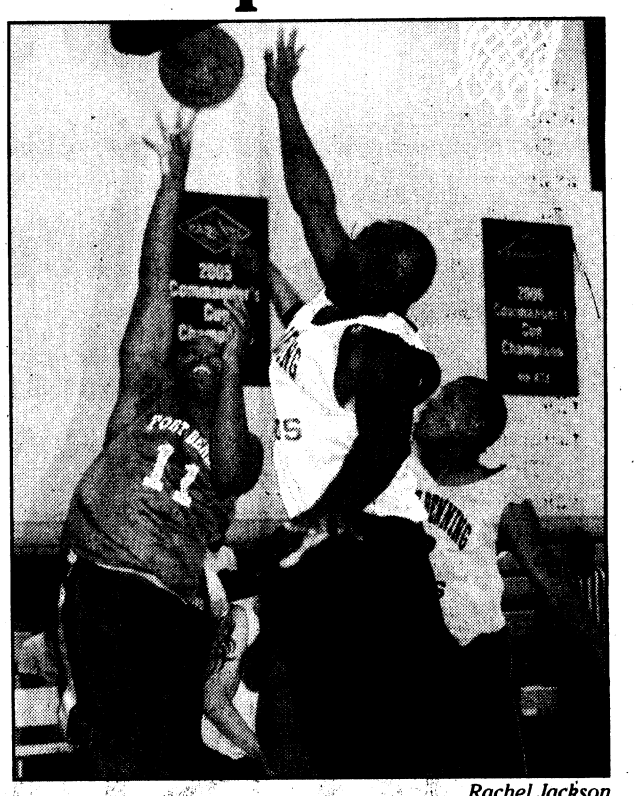
kept our head in the game, stayed motivated and focused on working smarter and not working harder."

"Our defense was good, but our team has work to do," Rock Steady coach Buford Grigley said. "We need to work on our team chemistry."



Rock Steady advanced to the second round of the winners bracket while Mailed Foot fell to the losers bracket.

"If we keep playing as a team, hopefully we can stay in the winners bracket," Grigley said after the game. "Nobody likes to play in the losers bracket."

Rock Steady took on MEDDAC Team One Wednesday and lost, 59-43, falling to the losers bracket.

More than 20 teams will fight for the preseason Commander's Cup championship basketball title. Competitors will play tournament games from 6 to 7 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays until Dec. 16 at the Smith Fitness Center. Two teams, the top team in the winners and losers brackets will play in the championship game at 7:15 p.m. Dec. 16. Spectators are welcome at all games.

75th Ranger Regt. on target in shooting competition

Tracy Bailey
75TH RANGER REGIMENT
PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Two NCOs from the 75th Ranger Regiment competed in the 2009 Rifles Only Shooter Bash Competition Nov. 6-7 in Kingsville, Texas.

SGT Christopher Wooten and SGT Nicholas Irving, both assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regt., placed first and second, respectively.

During the competition, Wooten and Irving conducted multiple sniper tasks not commonly taught within the sniper community.

Shooters Bash was specifically designed for precision rifle shooting, ranging from 400-1,000 meters, with targets ranging from 1 inch in diameter to 11 x 18-inch targets.

"Throughout the competition, every shot had to be well calculated from the range, temperature, barometric pressure, humidity and wind in order to make a 1,000-meter shot on an 11-inch target," Wooten said.

Rarely did competitors shoot from the standard prone position. Much of the shooting was conducted from alternate positions, including standing, kneeling and sitting.

Tracy Bailey
SGT Nicholas Irving, left, and SGT Christopher Wooten, right, took first and second place, respectively, in the 2009 Rifles Only Bash Competitions Nov. 6-7 in Kingsville, Texas.

"As a sniper platoon, we need to focus more towards alternate shooting positions, partially exposed targets and combat-focused pistol shooting," Irving said.

Stress shoots were also conducted, which consisted of shooting from inside buses, makeshift sniper hides and building structures. Combat pistol shots not commonly practiced nor taught were also a major portion of the competition.

During the combat pistol shoot, competitors shot one-handed from 10 meters to 100 meters as they were moving forward and dragging an 80-pound bag, simulating a wounded individual, as well as shooting moving targets.

"We are fortunate enough to be around and train with the most motivated, physically and mentally toughest individuals I have had the privilege of serving with in close to 10 years of service," said MAJ Richard Taylor, commander, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 3rd Bn., 75th Ranger Regt. "These two Rangers are not only gifted snipers, but they are extremely gifted and talented leaders and are the highest-quality Soldiers.

"One of the great qualities within this organization is the fact that these two Rangers will now take their high skill set and their advanced level of training and spread their wealth of knowledge throughout their platoon, company and the battalion."

The competition consisted of 60 competitors from both the military and civilian shooting communities.

Lady Hawks soar past Lady Greenwave 90-37

THE BAYONET

Hardaway High School (Region 1B-AAAA) soared past Spencer High School (5-AA) 90-37 Tuesday at Spencer High School.

The Lady Hawks got off to a fast start, putting 17 points on the scoreboard while their defense limited the Lady Greenwave to one point. At the end of the first period, Hardaway led 24-5.

Spencer attempted to close the gap in the second period, but the Lady Hawks outscored the Lady Greenwave 24-18 to lead 49-19 at the half.

The Hawks kept up the scoring onslaught finishing the third period with a 30-point lead and cruising to a 90-37 win.

"In past games, we haven't been shooting the ball well, but we have our rhythm back," said Lady Hawks assistant coach Jeffery Todd, who works for the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit. "We worked well as a team, played good man-to-man defense, shared the ball and everyone scored."

Freshman Alexcia McNeal, a guard and forward, said she was pleased with the results, but the team still has work to do.

"We had a lot of good shots, good passes and good defense, but we need to still work on being patient and throwing screens," she said. "We will keep working on improving our skills."

Junior Olivia Staley said her team worked well together to get the win.

"We worked good on offense, hustled and we tried our best," she said.

The Lady Hawks are now 3-2 and will take on Wesleyan (7N-A) at 7 p.m. today in Norcross, Ga.

The Lady Greenwave will take on Carver (2-AAA) at 6 p.m. today at home.

Scoring: Lady Hawks: Ellison (17), Lawrence (14), Burgos (13), Robinson (12), Chisolm (9), Lowe (9), Keith (5), McNeal (5), McElroy (4), Staley (2).
Lady Greenwave: Muhummad (9), Williams (9), Crowley (6), Snipes (4), McCrary (4), Tripp (3), Reeves (2).

Cancer-stricken boy becomes honorary Ranger

Brenda Donnell
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

CAMP FRANK B. MERRILL, Ga. — His pale face and the scar on the back of his head are indications that Kenny Stewart is seriously ill.

A year ago, the 8-year-old was diagnosed with cancerous brain tumors. One was surgically removed, but two others remain.

Kenny will turn 9 Monday, the same day he will have an MRI to find out if the tumors have become smaller. The chemotherapy to shrink the tumors leaves him weak and depressed, said his mother, Anna Miles.

Kenny was definitely not depressed Tuesday when he visited Rangers from the 5th Ranger Training Battalion, she said.

The battalion, located near Dahlonega, Ga., conducts the mountain phase of the U.S. Army Ranger School.

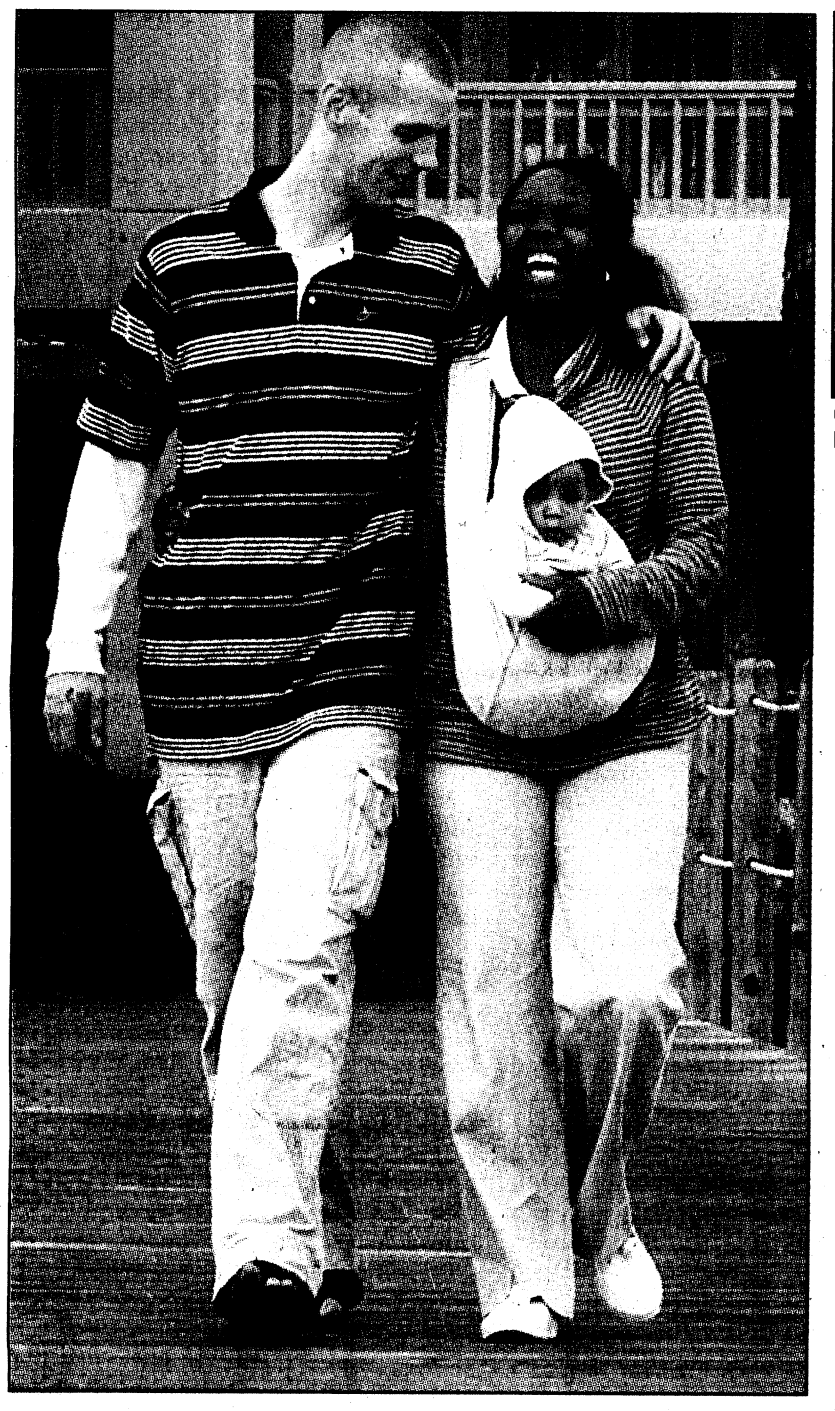
"It was a dream-come-true for him," Miles said as tears filled her eyes. "It has been over and beyond what Kenny was expecting and what part he would play in it."

Kenny was made an honorary Ranger and promoted to his present rank of sergeant first class during his visit with the Rangers.

Known as "The Soldier" in his hometown of Dawsonville, Ga., where an Army Reserve unit made him an honorary Soldier with the rank of specialist, Kenny is a big fan of the Army and of guns. His mother said Kenny has wanted to be a Soldier since he was about 2.

Wayne Watkins, president of the Georgia Council of Vietnam Veterans of America, heard about Kenny's illness and talked to Dee Rawlston, whose husband, SFC James Rawlston, is assigned to 5th RTB.

When the Rangers at 5th RTB heard about Kenny, they decided to give him a "day in the life" of an Army Ranger.



"He wants to grow up and be a Soldier, so hopefully when he has the opportunity to make that decision he will sign up to be a Ranger," said MAJ Wayne Pare, 5th RTB operations officer. "His heart is in the right place, and he knows what being a Soldier means. His strength as a young man who wants to do something like this is impressive, and he has Kenny Stewart gets a ride down a rappel wall Tuesday with Dave O'Rear, 5th Ranger Training Battalion mountaineering training specialist. Later, he traversed the wall without aid. Kenny, who has cancerous brain tumors, was treated to a day at Camp Frank B. Merrill near Dahlonega, Ga., where he also shot military weapons and rode in a UH-60 Black Hawk.

The humor-based series focused on helping couples understand their mates' differences in order to help strengthen their relationships and avoid conflict.

Guests at the Strong Bonds retreat had a view of the bay outside their hotel, the Bay Point Marriott Resort in Panama City Beach, Fla.

PANAMA CITY BEACH, Fla. — Twenty-nine couples with the 198th Infantry Brigade laughed their way to a better marriage Nov. 20-22. Sponsored by Strong Bonds, a chaplain-led program designed to enrich and strengthen marriages, the weekend retreat centered on the theme of laughter with Mark Gungor's "Laugh Your Way to a Better Marriage" teaching curriculum.

"He pointed out stuff we never thought about looking into ... like my nothing box," said SSG John Massey on Gungor's theory that each man has a space in his brain where he can truly think about nothing.

"Oh, he definitely has something like that," said John's wife, Laura. "(When) he gets home from work, he just immediately goes into that. But now I understand why he goes into it. I'm not going to push so hard."

Laura said the presentation was interesting and recommends it to every married couple.

"We thought of it as time away together to make things better," she said. "We all go through the same obstacles, the same deployments. You don't have to have problems to go to a marriage retreat."

A marriage influences other aspects of a person's life, like kids or career, so it's important to keep it healthy, said John, a drill sergeant with 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment.

"It affects everything in your life," he said. "If you're happy with each other, you're going to be a lot

Hunt Club to offer clinic

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Horseshoeing professional Dave Wiggin will offer horse care and maintenance tips during a clinic at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Fort Benning Hunt Club on Marne Road. Wiggin has more than 25 years of horseshoeing experience, including 15 years working with the Budweiser Clydesdales.

The former Marine volunteered to do the presentation when he recently sat beside post commander MG Michael Ferriter on an airplane.

"I just wanted to do something for the troops," Wiggin said. "I think every American should do something."

With clients in three countries and 37 states, Wiggin typically charges up to $200 for a consultation, but Saturday's event is free and open to Soldiers, family members and civilian employees who are interested in learning more about fitting their horses with shoes.

Known as "Dr. Dave," he is a graduate of three farrier schools and four university farrier science programs. Likening horseshoeing to fitting athletes with proper shoes for their sport, the Florida resident has worked with national champion Arabians, Olympic-level jumpers and derby reining winners.

Hunt Club acting president Michelle Rowan said this is the first horseshoeing event she recalls hosting at the club and is hopeful about its success.

"Hoof care is an important issue for horse owners, so this clinic should be very interesting," she said.

Wiggin said the clinic will be totally hands-on. He said he will cover a wide variety of issues centered around the concerns of those in attendance and will demonstrate shoeing techniques on the various horses housed at the club. Balance, movement and any other problems owners may be facing will also be addressed.

Fort Benning's recycling center has cranked up again in Harmony Church as post environmental officials plan for a permanent facility to be built nearby in three years.

A new Material Recycling Facility — which opened last month on Jamestown Road, just south of 1st Division Road — is recycling paper, cardboard, aluminum cans, plastic, wood, wood pallets and glass. Community readies for holidays

THE BAYONET

From live reindeer to an Airborne Santa Claus, holiday celebrations abound in the Fort Benning community.

Christmas events are currently underway and setting the mood for holiday cheer. Most area events are free and, in keeping with the season, often include free gifts and food.

To jump-start seasonal decorations, military families can receive a free live Christmas tree at this year's Trees for Troops starting at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Main Post car wash parking lot.

Through the contributions of FedEx and the Christmas SPIRIT Foundation, 650 trees will be given to Soldiers and family members who show their identification.

In light of the current economy, event coordinator and Outdoor Recreation manager Darlene Hines said she anticipates this year's event will be very popular.

"It's a huge savings for families who want a live tree," she said. "It can be a very hard time for many people, financially and emotionally, especially if you have a loved one who is away. But getting a free Christmas tree usually makes most people happy."

The event will end when all trees are distributed or at 6 p.m. Leftover trees will be given out the following day at the same location.

Also on Tuesday, the annual Christmas tree and menorah lighting ceremony is scheduled for 6 p.m. at the Field of Four Chaplains. Prior to the tree lighting there will be a holiday musical performance by the Maneuver Center of Excellence Band and Fort Benning community schoolchildren. After the tree lighting, children can tell Santa their Christmas wishes.

The free event is open to the public and will include refreshments.

Other upcoming community events include:

- Columbus's annual Christmas tree lighting is from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. today in the 1100 block of Broadway. The event will include flurries of manmade snow, choirs, reindeer and Santa's parade.
- The MCOE Band's

down. That spot was cleared for a new access control point to handle the anticipated swell in traffic when the U.S. Army Armor School arrives from Fort Knox, Ky.

Structural steel from the old MRF was reused at the newer facility, which is merely a stopgap collection point for the post until a larger recycling center goes up about a half-mile away sometime in 2012, said Ellis Leeder, the air, noise and MRF manager for the Directorate of Public Works' Environmental Management Division. A site survey is under way for the permanent facility.

Leeder said Fort Benning is making a big push to recycle more and send less into area landfills.

"We are adding to our future list of recycling materials by what we see in our dumpsters, and brainstorming ideas to reduce weight as well as bulk items going to the landfills via the dumpsters," he said. "We're looking at everything being thrown away and asking, 'How can we recycle that?' We're doing anything we can to keep from going to the landfill."

Unlike the old MRF, the recycling center at Jamestown Road accepts wood and wood pallets, which reduces weight at post dumpsters. The facility collects containers of all sizes and may begin recycling foam because of the massive amounts being thrown away, he said.

All Fort Benning personnel are encouraged to recycle and the new facility should make that effort easier, said Tannis Danley, an environmental compliance analyst contractor for DPW's Environmental Protection Management Branch.

Recycling trailer locations around Main Post include the parking lot on the west end of Soldiers' Plaza, the old museum on Baltzell Avenue, the parking lot behind Gowdy Field and the vehicle registration building parking lot near the Benning Road Gate. The trailers have bins labeled for glass, plastic, paper, cardboard and aluminum cans.

Vince Little

Frank E. Griffin clears cardboard and paper Tuesday at the Material Recycling Facility, which opened last month on Jamestown Road in Harmony Church, just south of 1st Division Road.

Following simple sorting, delivery and pickup rules will keep recycling areas clean and maximize bin capacity, said Dorinda Morpeth, Fort Benning's solid waste program manager.

"Participants can help the recycling effort by sorting materials according to the bin labels," she said. "It will also help on the other end and allow us to have a successful operation at the new facility."

When the recycling trailers were returned Nov. 16 following the program's late-summer hiatus, post residents and employees certainly noticed, Leeder said.

"The people of Fort Benning just swamped us with recyclables as they were saving them anyway with the news we stopped picking them up," he said. "For a whole week, all we did was try to empty them, put them back and they would be full again in two days."

Danley said it's important for everybody to play a role in recycling.

"Every piece of plastic, paper, cardboard, can and bottle that goes to the recycling center is one less piece that enters the landfill," she said. "By reducing, reusing or recycling, we as a community can reduce our carbon footprint and mitigate adverse effects on our environment."

The MRF is open 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Post residents should bring bulk items and large material quantities directly to the recycle center or call for larger pickups.

Leeder said the facility will collect Christmas trees this year and give them to the Department of Natural Resources for use in local ponds to improve fish habitat. Curb pickup dates are Dec. 30 and Jan. 6, or residents may bring their trees to the MRF from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays between Dec. 28 and Jan. 8.

For more information about post recycling needs, send an e-mail to ellis.leeder@us.army.mil or call 706-545-7576 or 706-545-5337.

Retreat: Helps couples understand differences

happier with everything."

Gungor's program covered a variety of marital facets, from communication and conflict resolution to romance.

"The way he presents it in the videos, it's hard to walk away," said Chaplain (CPT) Andrew Ropp, who facilitated the retreat. "You could turn the lights out and you could heat up the room, and no one will be sleepy."

Tools learned at the Strong Bonds retreat have real application, especially for military couples, he said.

"With all the deployments, the family separations ... Soldiers are faced with challenges in their marriage relationships that are unequalled in most civilian sectors," said Ropp, who has been married 24 years.

"I've had a number of couples who've come to me and said the things they learned at this (retreat) have really made a difference in their marriage relationships. Some have said it has even saved it."

Gungor's video series, titled A Tale of 2 Brains, is just one aspect of the weekend. Couples also completed an online personality test to learn more about their spouses. The result was a "flag page" showing the talents and interests important to them and a detailed write-up of how those characteristics affect their behavior.

"These things that are unique about us as individuals are easily things that can get in the way of us getting close to each other," Ropp said, explaining the flag page to the couples after they had finished the online quiz.

"They become points of conflict that we argue and debate and fight over."

If both people in a relationship consider each other's unique differences with love and respect, those differences can be the "glue" that binds them together, he said.

In the third portion of the retreat, couples were allowed personal time to reflect on what they had learned and discussed. Professional care providers provided an on-site kids camp with plenty of activities for children, so parents could enjoy time alone.

That was the most important part of Strong Bonds for 1LT Kafui and Vivian Avotri, they said.

While Kafui serves as the executive officer for B Company, 1st Battalion, 330th Infantry Regiment, Vivian and the kids live in Canada with family.

"You come here and you don't have to worry about anything besides being together. Your only responsibility is to be a couple," said Vivian, who was recently separated from her husband while deployed.

"We've been married three years, and I think sometimes we take it for granted that that person is there for you," she said. "I think (Strong Bonds) taught me I have to appreciate the marriage, and I have to appreciate my husband. I think I have a renewed sense of my own marriage."

The 198th Infantry Brigade typically completes about six Strong Bonds retreats each year. Accommodations at the Bay Point Marriott Resort, meals, the kids camp and marriage-related books are included free of charge for military couples who need only pay for transportation.

Strong Bonds is Armywide and many units on post participate in the program. For more information, call the Chaplain Family Life Center at 706-545-1760 or visit www.strongbonds.org.

"It's a safe environment," Vivian said. "Everybody's laughing. There's no pointing fingers. You can't lose."

Chaplain (MAJ) Carlos C. Huerta
30TH AG BN (REC) BATTALION CHAPLAIN

I must have been 18 years old at the time. It was the Chanukah-Christmas of '68. It's memorable because I had become of legal age to drink in New York — my birthday was only a few days prior.

Being drafted and going to Vietnam was on all our minds since the Tet Offensive had just occurred a few months earlier.

There it was Christmas Eve, late at night, and I didn't have anything to do. Chanukah, which lasts eight days, had ended the night before and I was now the most dangerous thing on Earth — a bored teenager.

I visited my friends who lived five houses down the block on the top floor of a five-story walk-up. Irene and Tony Fernandez had four children, which meant a lot of presents in need of assembly and wrapping. I was also hoping that maybe they would have some teenage girls visiting.

To say Irene and Tony were not rich people would be an understatement, but I never knew that as a kid. I thought they were rich because they had four wonderful children, an abuela (grandmother) who lived with them, and they all loved each other. It never dawned on me they were poor, although they only had a kitchen and two small rooms for three adults and four children to live in.

When I got there, they had just come back from Christmas Eve mass. The kids were on their way to bed, and the wrapping was beginning. It was a relatively warm night, so Papo (their oldest son) and I sat on the fire escape to wrap presents.

He asked me if there was any difference between Chanukah and Christmas, and for the first time in my life, I thought about it.

I knew we celebrated Chanukah because of two miracles. It was about 165 B.C. when the Syrian-Greeks took over Jerusalem and defiled the Temple with pagan worship. Maybe we could have lived with that, but not when they said we couldn't teach our faith to our children and would kill anyone who did.

We raised an under-equipped, highly-motivated, ragtag army that was out-speared, out-shielded and out-catapulted, and the miracle was that we won. Chanukah is a warrior's holiday where the miracle was the few over the many, the right over the wrong. It is a holiday that shows one of the most important things in battle for a Soldier to possess is a warrior's heart.

The second miracle occurred in the temple. When we went to light the Holy Menorah, we found we only had oil for one day. You see, the menorah had to be lit all the time. To find out after you won the temple back you didn't have enough oil to properly begin the temple service was a heartbreaker.

So we lit what we had and did what we could, and the miracle occurred. The oil, which was sufficient for only one day, lasted for eight days.

So what does this have to do with the birth of Jesus, the Prince of Peace?

Sitting on that fire escape, hearing gunshots in the Brooklyn distance, hearing the latest Vietnam body count on the 2 a.m. news, I suddenly realized that Chanukah and Christmas had everything in common. Sure, they celebrate different events during different periods of time, but they were talking about G-d's love for man. The hyphenation of this name is a common practice in Judaism in deference to the sanctity of the name.

Later as a field artillery Soldier primed to go to Vietnam, I saw another connection between Chanukah and Christmas. Traditionally, Chanukah comes before Christmas, and this is often the way it is in life. As Soldiers we know that the sweet sounds of peace often come only after the terrible noise of battle.

Peace is not something that comes naturally; rather, it is something we work for, a commodity that costs a price. That price is our dedication as Soldiers to duty, often far away from home, away from our loved ones. But just as Christmas always follows Chanukah, our sacrifice and dedication will bring the peace that Christmas promises.

To the diversity that is our Army and our nation, let me wish you a Happy Chanukah, a Merry Christmas, Happy Kwanzaa or a safe trip back home from Hajj.

Whatever you may believe or not believe in, may this be a season that binds us closer together, not despite our diversity, but, rather because of it.

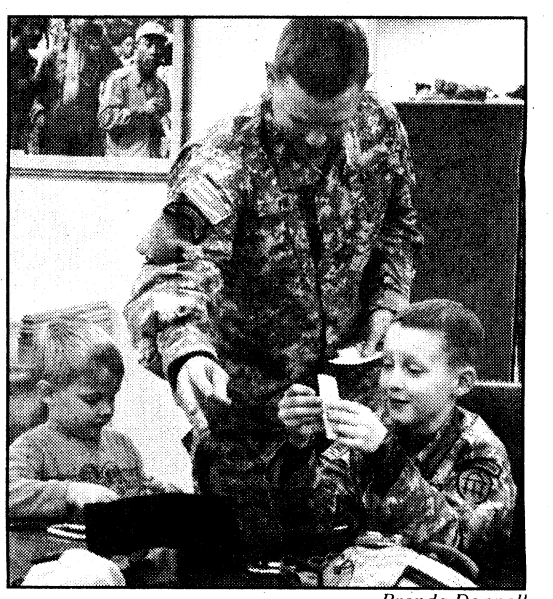
a lot of people supporting him and wishing him well on his recovery."

Kenny's day included rappelling and riding in a UH-60 Black Hawk helicopter, but the activity he said he was most looking forward to was shooting a machine gun.



"It didn't even kick," Kenny said, smiling, as he finished firing the M-240B machine gun, which was mounted on a Humvee. "I liked shooting the machine gun best, but I liked shooting them all."

SSG Matthew Johnson, 5th RTB Ranger Support Element squad leader, demonstrated and assisted Kenny as he shot an M-4 carbine, an M-249 and looked at other equipment Rangers use. He also tried on a parachute and a helmet with night-vision goggles.

"He's an amazing kid," Johnson said. "He already knew how to load the weapons and how to fire them. He was a natural."

Despite his illness, Kenny's huge smile and shining eyes were testament to a day that he won't soon forget, his mother said.

"He has been speechless, but he has a look on his face that is definitely not a look that says I have been on chemo for a week and shouldn't be talking or smiling right now, because he was doing nothing but smiling," Anna said.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

A Christmas Carol: Classic revisited

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

When I was a kid, the road to Christmas was marked with certain signs that brought the onset of the Yuletide magic, the feeling of enchantment. The lights going up in the city always helped with the mood.

My brother and I eagerly awaited the arrival of the Sears and JCPenny Christmas catalogs, where we would pour over the new toys. We would prepare our ridiculously long lists to deliver to Santa. He was always waiting at the mall — every mall.

Yuletide classics were dependably viewed on the one-eyed monster in the living room. There was always Merry Christmas, Charlie Brown, with that sad little tree, Clarence the Angel trying to get his wings in It's A Wonderful Life and those weird stop-motion puppet shows, like Frosty The Snowman and Santa Claus is Coming to Town. And, as always, there were many, many versions of the story of Ebeneezer Scrooge.

Charles Dickens wrote A Christmas Carol (originally titled, A Christmas Carol in Prose, Being a Ghost Story of Christmas) in 1843. Apparently, at some point, Christmas in the United Kingdom and the U.S. had become a somber occasion, so he wrote the story in an attempt to get holiday cheer going. Apparently, it worked. Some have described his work as a critique of capitalism and how it had been shaped by industrialization in England.

With it's many themes, the story did take hold, and since it's publication, has never been out of print. It has been adapted many times, in theater, radio and film. The latest is 2009's adaptation directed by Robert Zemeckis and starring Jim Carrey as Ebeneezer Scrooge.

The basics are the same. Ebeneezer Scrooge is a powerful business man in Victorian London. He's mean, stingy and abusive, especially around Christmastime. He's dismissive to charities, rude to his nephew and his entreaties every year for Christmas dinner and cruel to his employees, especially his put upon accountant, Bob Cratchit.

But he has those who seem to care about his fate, including his deceased former firm partner, Jacob Marley. This Christmas, he'll be visiting Scrooge with the intent to instill some Christmas spirit. And he's bringing some seasonal friends along to help.

Zemeckis used the motion capture animation technology for this film that he used in Polar Express and Beowulf. And it's clearly improved. This film is stunning, especially in 3-D. The gently wafting snowflakes make you want to reach out and catch them. The characters move naturally, and the city itself seems to be a living place, rather than a series of computer generated images. The actors plunge into their roles, especially Jim Carrey. He owns the screen as Scrooge, chewing his way into Scrooge's "Bah, Humbug," and later embraces a change of heart.

Good for families, good for the holidays. A Christmas Carol, go see it.

ARMORED

A crew of officers at an armored transport security firm risk their lives when they embark on the ultimate heist against their own company. Armed with a seemingly fool-proof plan, the men plan on making off with a fortune with harm to none. But when an unexpected witness interferes, the plan quickly unravels and all bets are off.

This film is rated PG-13 for violence, disturbing images and language. It stars Matt Dillon, Jean Reno, Laurence Fishburne, Amaury Nolasco and Fred Ward.

TRANSYLMANIA

Located deep in the heart of the "cursed land" of Transylvania in a centuries-old castle, Razvan University isn't your typical institution of higher learning — and the black leather-clad professors, 3-foot-tall dean, instruction in crucifix-wielding and topless vampiresses lurking in dark corners are just the start.

This movie stars Patrick Cavanaugh, James Debello, Paul H. Kim and Jennifer Lyons. It is rated R.

NINJA ASSASSIN

Raizo is one of the deadliest assassins in the world. As a child, he was transformed into a trained killer by the Ozunu Clan, a secret society. But he disappears after the clan executes his friend. Raizo waits, preparing his revenge.

In Berlin, Europol agent Mika Coretti stumbled on a money trail linking several political murders to a network of untraceable assassins from the Far East. Defying the orders of her superior, Ryan Maslow, Mika digs into secret agency files to learn the truth behind the murders. Her investigation makes her a target, and the Ozunu Clan sends a team of killers to silence her forever.

Raizo and Mika must trust one another if they hope to bring down the Ozunu Clan.

This film stars Rain, Naomie Harris and Ben Miles. It is rated R for violence and language.

FANTASTIC MR. FOX

Mr. and Mrs. Fox live an idyllic home life with their son Ash and visiting young nephew Kristopherson. But after 12 years, the existence proves too much for Mr. Fox's animal instincts.

Soon he slips back into his old ways as a sneaky chicken thief and in doing so, endangers not only his beloved family, but the whole animal community.

Trapped underground and with not enough food to go around, the animals band together to fight against the evil Farmers — Boggis, Bunce and Bean — who are determined to capture the audacious, fantastic Mr. Fox.

Starring George Clooney, Meryl Streep, Jason Schwartzman and Bill Murray, this film is rated PG for action, smoking and slang humor.

OLD DOGS

Two best friends — one unlucky-in-love divorcee and the other a fun-loving bachelor — have their lives turned upside down when they're unexpectedly charged with the care of 7-year-old twins while on the verge of the biggest business deal of their lives.

The bachelors stumble in their efforts to take care of the twins, leading to one debacle after another, and perhaps to a new-found understanding of what's really important in life.

This film stars John Travolta, Robin Williams and Kelly Preston. It is rated PG for humor.

THE ROAD

In a post-apocalyptic tale of survival, a father and son journey across a barren America destroyed by a mysterious cataclysm. The Road imagines a future where men are pushed to the worst and the best that they are capable of — a future in which a father and his son are sustained by love.

This film stars Viggo Mortensen, Kodi Smit-McPhee and Robert Duvall. It is rated R for violence, disturbing images and language.

THE TWILIGHT SAGA: NEW MOON

Following Bella Swan's ill-fated 18th birthday party, Edward Cullen and his family abandon the town of Forks, Wash., in an effort to protect her from the dangers inherent in their world.

When a chance encounter brings Bella face to face with a former nemesis, only the intervention of a pack of supernaturally large wolves saves her from a grisly fate, and the encounter makes it clear that Bella is still in danger.

In a race against the clock, Bella learns the secret of the Quileutes and Edward's true motivation for leaving her. She also faces the prospect of a potentially deadly reunion with her beloved that is a far cry from the one she'd hoped for.

This film stars Kristen Stewart, Robert Pattinson and Taylor Lautner. It is rated PG-13 for some violence and action.

THE BLIND SIDE

Michael Oher, a homeless African-American youngster from a broken home, is taken in by the Touhys, a well-to-do white family who help him fulfill his potential. At the same time, Oher's presence in the Touhys' lives leads them to some insightful self-discoveries of their own.

Living in his new environment, the teen faces a completely different set of challenges to overcome. As a football player and student, Oher works hard and, with the help of his coaches and adopted family, becomes an All-American offensive left tackle.

PLANET 51

American astronaut Captain Charles "Chuck" Baker lands on Planet 51 thinking he's the first person to step foot on it. To his surprise, he finds that this planet is inhabited by little green people who are living in a white-picket-fence world reminiscent of an innocent 1950s America, and whose only fear is that it will be overrun by alien invaders — like Chuck!

With the help of his robot companion "Rover" and his new friend Lem, Chuck must navigate his way through the dazzling, but bewildering, landscape of Planet 51 in order to escape becoming a permanent part of the Planet 51 Alien Invaders Space Museum.

This film features Dwayne Johnson as the voice of Captain Charles T. Baker, Gary Oldman as the voice of General Grawl and John Cleese as the voice of Professor Kipple. It is rated PG for mild sci-fi action and some suggestive humor.

THE FOURTH KIND

In 1972, a scale of measurement was established for alien encounters.

When a UFO is sighted, it is called an encounter of the first kind. When evidence is collected, it is known as an encounter of the second kind. When contact is made with extraterrestrials, it is the third kind.

The next level, abduction, is the fourth kind. This encounter has been the most difficult to document — until now.

Set in modern-day Nome, Alaska, where — mysteriously since the 1960s — a disproportionate number of the population has been reported missing every year. Despite multiple FBI investigations of the region, the truth has never been discovered.

Here in this remote region, psychologist Dr. Abigail Tyler (Milla Jovovich) began videotaping sessions with traumatized patients and unwittingly discovered some of the most disturbing evidence of alien abduction ever documented.

The Fourth Kind is rated PG-13 for violent and disturbing images, some terror, thematic elements and brief sexuality.

THE BOX

An unhappily married couple receive a small wooden box on their doorstep. At the push of a button, the box brings its bearer instant wealth but also instantly kills someone the bearer doesn't know.

The Box stars Cameron Diaz, James Marsden and Frank Lagella. It is rated PG-13 for thematic elements, some violence and disturbing images.

Never before has a date in history been so significant to so many cultures, so many religions, scientists and governments. A global cataclysm brings an end to the world and tells of the heroic struggle of the survivors.

This film stars John Cusack, Amanda Peet, Thandie Newton, Oliver Platt, Woody Harrelson, and Danny Glover. It is rated PG-13 for disaster sequences and some language.

DISNEY'S A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Ebenezer Scrooge begins the Christmas holiday with his usual miserly contempt, barking at his faithful clerk and his cheery nephew. But when the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Yet to Come take him on an eye-opening journey revealing truths Old Scrooge is reluctant to face, he must open his heart to undo years of ill will before it's too late.

A Christmas Carol stars the voices of Jim Carrey, Gary Oldman, Bob Hoskins, Colin Firth, Robin Wright Penn and Cary Elwes. It is rated PG for scary sequences and images and is offered in 3-D.

SAW VI

Special Agent Strahm is dead, and Detective Hoffman (Costas Mandylor) is the unchallenged successor to Jigsaw's legacy. However, when the FBI draws closer to Hoffman, he is forced to set a game into motion, and Jigsaw's grand scheme is finally understood.

Saw VI is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture and language.

MICHAEL JACKSON'S THIS IS IT

A rare glimpse into the final days of Michael Jackson, the documentary is compiled from an estimated 80 hours of rehearsal and behind-the-scenes footage of the legendary entertainer preparing for his 50 sold-out shows at London's O2 Arena that were scheduled to commence in July 2009 before his untimely death in June at age 50.

Interviews with collaborators and close friends of the late performer are also featured.

CIRQUE DU FREAK: THE VAMPIRE'S ASSISTANT

Fourteen-year-old Darren (Chris Massoglia) is like most kids in the neighborhood. He gets decent grades and usually stays out of trouble. But when he and his buddy stumble upon a traveling freak show, things begin to change inside Darren. That's the exact moment when a vampire named Larten Crepsley (John C. Reilly) turns him into something, well, bloodthirsty.

Cirque Du Freak: The Vampire's Assistant is rated PG-13 for sequences of supernatural violence and action, images, thematic elements and language.

ASTRO BOY

Set in futuristic Metro City, Astro Boy (Freddie Highmore) is a young robot with incredible powers — super strength, X-ray vision, unbelievable speed and the ability to fly. Powered by positive "blue" energy, Astro Boy was created by a brilliant scientist named Dr. Tenma (Nicolas Cage).

Embarking on a journey in search of acceptance, Astro Boy encounters many colorful characters. Through his adventures, he learns the joys and emotions of being human, and gains the strength to embrace his destiny. Ultimately learning his friends and family are in danger, Astro Boy marshals his awesome superpowers and returns to Metro City in a valiant effort to save everything he cares about and to understand what it means to be a hero.

Astro Boy is rated PG for action and peril and language.

Operation Just Cause vets remember

Seven Operation Just Cause veterans joined hundreds of students from the U.S. Army Airborne School in Thursday's jump to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the operation, including the Armor School's top NCO, CSM John Troxell.

"It was the first and only time I've ever jumped into a combat zone," he said.

Troxell was a tank commander with C Company, 3rd Battalion, 73rd Armor Regiment (Airborne) assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division's 1st Brigade, when the unit made Armor history by parachuting Sheridan tanks and their crews into Panama. Operation Just

USAMU Soldiers deploy on historic mission

Michael Molinaro
USAMU PAO

Soldiers from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit set out on a historic mission — deploying to Afghanistan Dec. 11 to train Afghan security forces in marksmanship proficiency.

It is the first time in the history of the unit Soldiers will work in concert with indigenous soldiers. The USAMU offered its marksmanship training capabilities to the military leadership in Afghanistan for as long as they need it, and having this persistent marksmanship training presence for the Afghani soldiers falls right in line with President Barack Obama's intent of training competent Afghan security forces to create the conditions for the United States to transfer responsibility to the Afghans.

"This unit is ideally suited for this type of mission," said LTC Daniel Hodne, commander. "Our Soldiers — the best shooters, gunsmiths and marksmanship instructors in the world — will enhance the overall readiness of forces executing counterinsurgency in Afghanistan through a marksmanship train-the-trainer program. In this way the USAMU will make an invaluable contribution to the war effort."

An array of Soldiers from the various shooting disciplines within the USAMU and the custom firearms shop will make up the cross-functional teams that will deploy on a rotational basis until the mission is accomplished. The USAMU is the only unit of its kind in the Army: providing support to Army accessions and performing at the highest level possible in

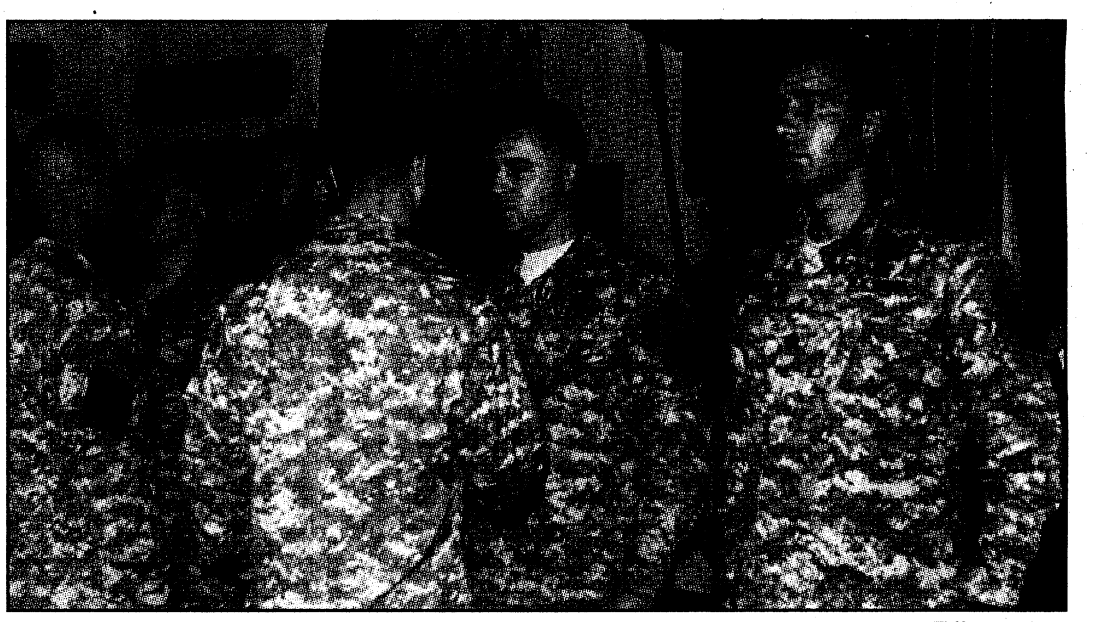
Four Soldiers get medals for combat valor



Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

More than a year removed from the enemy confrontations where they risked their lives for fellow service members, four former 503rd Infantry Regiment Soldiers were honored for their bravery in combat Monday at the Benning Conference Center.

SSG Justin Grimm received the Silver Star for gallantry, SSG Clifton Anderson and SGT Michael Lawrence received the Bronze Star with V device, and SSG Zachari Rushing received the Army Commendation Medal with V device.

Before pinning the medals, MG Michael Ferriter, Fort Benning commander, talked about how the Soldiers never wavered during the 15-month deployment, living in a very rugged, undeveloped and contested region in Afghanistan's Hindu Kush Mountains near the Pakistan border.

BAH rates set for '10

SFC Michael J. Carden
AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Military members will see an average raise of 2.5 percent in housing allowance rates in 2010, a BAH program analyst for the Defense Department said Wednesday.

The increase comes to an average of around $37 per month for the more than 900,000 service members expected to draw the basic allowance for housing in 2010. Some areas will see a higher increase, while others will see less, Cheryl Anne Woehr said.

The 2010 raise is down from 2009's 6.5 percent average, and is the smallest percentage increase since the inception of the BAH program in 2000. This because of the recession and declining housing market, she said.

"Rates are set based on actual housing data, so as the economy has declined, vacancy rates have increased (and) rental prices have declined, which results directly to lower BAH rates in various areas," Woehr said.

The 988th Military Police Company cased their colors Tuesday in a furling ceremony at Freedom Hall. The company of more than 80 Soldiers is moving to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., to join the rest of the 92nd Military Police Battalion.

During the ceremony, CPT Jeremy Prince took command of the unit from outgoing commander CPT Samuel Meyer and 1SG Tony Gifford took responsibility from 1SG Kenton Allen.

The furling ceremony signifies the official end of the company's tenure at Fort Benning, said LTC Dennis Zink, commander of the 92nd MP Bn.

"After (43) years of professional and loyal service to the Army and the Fort Benning community, it is truly a heartfelt day for the 988th MP Company to say farewell," he said.

The company redeployed in August after a yearlong tour in Iraq. Unit leadership received orders for the relocation in February.

"During the time we were sending the 988th to Iraq, we also moved the 92nd MP Battalion headquarters to Fort Leonard Wood to be part of the 4th Maneuver Enhancement Brigade," Zink

Make safety first priority during holidays

COMMANDING GENERAL

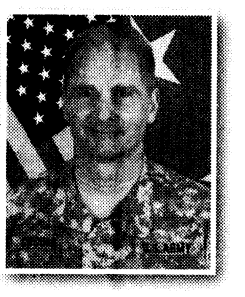
Throughout this holiday season, let's make safety a priority. We don't want to lose even one member of the Fort Benning team, which includes our great Soldiers, civilians and family members. Leaders, please encourage your Soldiers to take precautions to prevent accidents and injuries of any sort.

The greatest threat we face this time of year is the danger inherent to driving during periods of increased travel, traffic congestion and inclement weather, on roadways used by aggressive drivers and those who get behind the wheel without sufficient rest or under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Though we cannot eliminate all of these hazards, we can minimize their impact on our community by reducing the probability of an accident.

Let's work together to make sure we all return safely after the holidays. Please take the following precautions:

- Ensure your vehicle is well maintained, plan your travel route carefully, make sure someone knows where you're going and when you expect to return, check weather reports and adjust your travel time according.
- Give yourself more travel time than you might allow at a less harried time of year. Reduce your speed and increase your following distance.
- Realize that the speed limit posted is recommended for ideal travel conditions, and rarely are travel conditions ideal at this time of year.
- Go to https://crc.army.mil to document your trip if you are planning to travel more than 100 miles from post.
- If you need assistance while traveling, call 706-545-2218 or e-mail INFHALL-SDNCO@us.army.mil, and we will make sure you are taken care of.
- If you plan to drink or attend a function where alcohol is being served, designate a driver who will agree not to drink. Or call Safety Cab at 706-660-6069 for a free ride home. Save that number in your cell phone.



My goal is to celebrate this holiday season safely and start the New Year without the loss of any member of our great community. Please help me by making safety your priority. Army Safe is Army Strong!

Once Force, One Fight!

A 'Dogface' holiday greeting from the front

MG Tony Cucolo
3RD ID COMMANDING GENERAL

Happy holidays from all our deployed locations! We might be writing this tonight from Contingency Operating Base Speicher in Northern Iraq, but I know CSM Andrews and I speak for all deployed Dogface Soldiers — from Iraq's western border with Syria all the way to Afghanistan's eastern border with Pakistan — when we tell you we miss you and think of you every day. Oh, there might be the chance for an e-mail or a phone call or even a video call now and then, but there is simply no substitute for "home" and everything and everyone that comes with it. And home is where we'd like to be.

Though we are far away from the places and faces we love so much, we're doing what American Soldiers have done in similar circumstances during holiday seasons for the last 234 years: when we miss home, we turn to each other for strength — our battle buddies and our units — because we're all in this together.

And we hope our families turn to one another — other Army families — for strength because our families are all in this together, too.

But there is something else you should know about life out here: the deep longing to be with our loved ones is mixed with an intense pride in who we are and what we do. You see, when we look at what war and inhuman cruelty has done to the people we are trying to protect in both Iraq and Afghanistan, we are more determined to make a difference. And when we fight to bring good people the same simple freedoms we enjoy in the United States and allow young democracies to take shape, we appreciate so much more what we have at home and feel a great sense of pride that we voluntarily chose to serve our Nation and do our duty, this duty, at this moment in history.

And all of that makes us even more thankful this time of year to be who we are — American Soldiers — Dogface Soldiers! — because, while others can wish and hope for peace this holiday season, we deliver it.

So the command sergeant major and I will close with the Dogface Soldiers' holiday wish:

"Peace on earth to people of good will ... all others must deal with us."

Happy holidays, everyone!

Installation funding levels on the decline

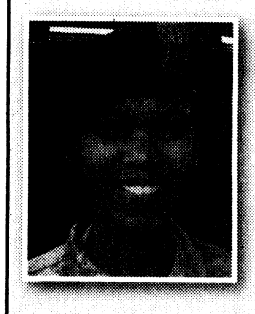
LTG Rick Lynch
3RD ARMORED CORPS COMMANDING GENERAL

In recent years, the Army and its installations have enjoyed unprecedented levels of funding. In fiscal year 2008, the Army hit a high water mark in its fiscal history with a total annual budget exceeding $250 billion — three times more than fiscal 2001 funding level.

Much of this growth is attributed to funding the war, rebalancing our Army through investments in the force structure, equipment, infrastructure and key Soldier and family programs.

Funding levels of this magnitude are unsustainable year after the year, and as the country faces some stiff economic challenges, we are forced to reduce funding and exact a greater level of stewardship over our resources.

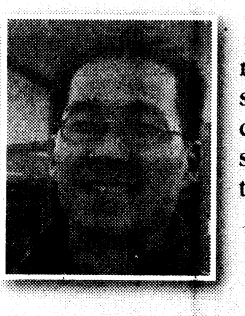
The Installation Management Command — like other commands throughout our Army — will operate at reduced funding levels. This means that starting in 2010, performance levels for some installation services will be notably less than what we have had in recent years and will remain at that level for the foreseeable future.



Our challenge is to ensure those key, higher priority programs across our installations do not suffer. We will maintain our full support to Life, Health and Safety programs, the Army Family Covenant and those services that prepare our Soldiers and their families for deployment in support of the Army's Force Generation model.

These are non-negotiables that will remain fully funded. This is our commitment; we will not depart from it. However, there will be other installation services that will clearly be reduced.

We have grown accustomed to some very high levels of service across the board in recent years and we all need to be forthcoming with the expectation that things will be different in some areas. Help manage this expectation across your garrisons. Educate everyone as to which changes they can expect to see. A simple explanation can go a long way to helping understand the changes some of our installation services will undergo.



Across the Army's installations, we can do much to help ourselves by becoming better stewards of our resources. It starts with the individual; everybody has a role. Simple things like turning the lights off, powering down your computer at night, driving tactical vehicles instead of transportation motor pool vehicles or conducting a video teleconference instead of traveling to a distant site unnecessarily all save money — and no savings is too small to forego.

Liberian delegates observe officer-NCO interactions

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

A Liberian military defense delegation is looking at ways to build respect in the ranks of the newly reformed Armed Forces of Liberia by modeling its professional relationship between officers and NCOs after the U.S. Army.

The AFL restructured in the last year after 15 years of war.

A three-member delegation visited Fort Benning last week and toured several sites to observe NCO-led training. The visit, aimed at furthering Liberia's efforts to build an army capable of sustaining security as the U.S. transitions to an advisory role, was to observe NCO-led training, said COL A.L. Rumphrey, chief of the Office of Security Cooperation, U.S. African Command, at the U.S. Embassy in Monrovia, Liberia.

Rumphrey escorted the delegation during the visit, which ended Friday.

In the last year, the AFL added basic and advanced training courses modeled after the principles of the U.S. military. Now, the army wants to develop the officer-NCO relationship that it lacked in previous years, said AFL Command Sgt. Maj. Bamidele Awofeso, senior regimental NCO for the army.

Awofeso is a member of the Nigerian army attached to the AFL as part of a bilateral agreement between the two countries.

Kristin Molinaro
SFC Julius Bryant, with the 11th Engineer Battalion, explains bridge operations to the Liberian delegation Dec. 10. The delegates, accompanied by COL A.L. Rumphrey, of the U.S. African Command, got a firsthand look at officer and NCO interactions, which they hope to model in the Armed Forces of Liberia's ranks.

"Our officers don't look at NCOs as colleagues," Awofeso said. "After what I've seen here, I'm going to preach the idea of officers looking at NCOs as partners in progress."

LTC Waidi Shaibu, chief of staff for the AFL headquarters, and LTC Solomon Gonny, the operations officer for the AFL, joined Awofeso in observing the pre-ranger course, Expert Infantryman Badge program, phase 1 combative training and the interactions between officers and NCOs.

Rumphrey said the AFL would like to bring the EIB program to its ranks.

Because 75 percent of the AFL is light infantry, the EIB program would give them more self-confidence in their abilities as infantrymen, he said.

Rumphrey said the delegates are learning the importance of NCOs in executing training.

"The NCO corps is the bedrock of any army," said Gonny, who has completed several courses in the U.S. including Intermediate Level Education at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. "When you have a well-disciplined and trained NCO corps, then you have an army."

Gonny said developing the NCO corps is part of regaining the confidence of Liberia's people.

"Over the years, we've had problems with the military trying to use its own power against the civilian forces," Gonny said. "We want to divorce ourselves from that with this new army. We want to create civil military relations and let our civilian population know that our army has changed."

Shaibu, another soldier from the Nigerian army attached to the AFL, said the benefits of building a strong army in Liberia would be felt throughout the western subregion of Africa, which includes Nigeria.

"Nigeria is part of the standby force that responds immediately to any crisis in the subregion," he said. "Once the Liberian army is strong it can contribute to quelling crisis and keeping the subregion stable."

Suspect sentenced

MANEUVER CENTER PUBLIC AFFAIRS

PFC George D. MacDonald, 198th Infantry Brigade, was sentenced Dec. 12 to life in prison without the possibility of parole, reduction to E-1 and a dishonorable discharge for the death of another Soldier in the brigade.

MacDonald was found guilty of all charges and convicted of premeditated murder by court-martial Dec. 11.

MacDonald stabbed Pvt. Rick Bulmer numerous times with a knife May 18, 2008. When confronted by other Soldiers who responded to Bulmer's cries for help, MacDonald assaulted one of them with a knife and tried to flee. Later, he was apprehended by a drill sergeant after a struggle and another attempt to flee.

MacDonald will serve his sentence at the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

WHINSEC Board of Visitors gathers

The Board of Visitors for the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation held its annual session Dec. 4 at the National Infantry Museum classroom.

The board is a federal committee chartered to oversee the institute and reports to Congress on the institute's performance.

The BoV can consider all aspects of the operation, including fiscal matters and curriculum. Although the board is required to meet annually, it usually meets twice a year — once in Washington, D.C., and once here.

Ambassadors Charles A. Ford and Lino Gutierrez, Dr. Johanna Mendelson Forman and Dr. Joseph Palacios, newly appointed civilian members of the board, arrived early for orientation. CPT Armando Rancaño, WHINSEC legal advisor, administered the oath of office to the four.

COL Felix Santiago, WHINSEC commandant, reported on recent activities, issues and initiatives and GEN Douglas Fraser, commander of U.S. Southern Command, told the board WHINSEC is essential to SOUTHCOM's security cooperation strategy.

Keith Whitaker, with the State Department, gave an overview of U.S. activities and concerns in the region. BG Robert Felderman, representing U.S. Northern Command, talked about the relationships between NORTHCOM units and the Institute.

The final act of the day, Ford was elected chairman of the board and Forman elected vice chairman.

Maneuver Battle Lab tests new mortar system

Soldiers say change could reduce weight, maintain firepower

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

The Army wants to decrease the weight Soldiers carry on missions, and Fort Benning's Maneuver Battle Lab is part of the effort.

Last week, 10 Soldiers evaluated a lightweight base plate being developed for the M224 Lightweight Company Mortar System during a series of live-fire, static and movement exercises at McKenna Urban Operations Complex, Fergusson and Buckner ranges.

The current M8 base plate limits the direction and distance a mortar can be fired, said Rusty Schulten, a project officer for MBL's Soldier Team, and Soldiers still have to carry the M7 base plate — weighing more than 14 pounds — in order to fire in any direction and at maximum range.

"The new base plate will reduce the need to carry both during offensive operations when there may be a need to fire beyond hand-held range," Schulten said. "(It) can support firing at maximum range, which could eliminate the need to carry the M7 base plate, significantly decreasing the weight of the Soldiers' total equipment load."

Rusty Schulten

SSG Justin Jay and SGT Marvin Fowler, both of D Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, prepare to conduct a handheld fire with the 60 mm mortar with the M8 X Lightweight Baseplate.

Factoring in the cannon and bipod, the current 60 mm M224 mortar system weighs 46 pounds. The M8 X is 4.8 pounds, so the goal is to get the entire package down to about 33 pounds, said Alex Wright, mortar projects officer for the Soldier Requirements Division.

The Army is trying to reduce weight and improve performance on all mortar systems, said Chris Therkorn, who works at the program manager's office for mortars in Picatinny Arsenal, N.J.

"It's all about getting the best equipment for Soldiers and enhancing efficiency," he said.

After using both the old and new base plates, the Soldiers, mortar instructors with 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, provided feedback to the Maneuver Battle Lab.

"It could be very, very successful," said SGT Marvin Fowler. "They're just giving us a template and asking, 'What do you think? What can we modify?' We're the ones out there manipulating the mortar systems in Iraq and Afghanistan. We know what works and doesn't work.

"The technology is there where you can have something smaller that's just as strong. The biggest thing is to make sure it sustains the cannon and gets the proper stabilization to support the mortar itself," Fowler said. "The more stable the bipod, the more accurate we're going to be on the battlefield."

"If they can make it multipurpose and you just have to carry one, it would be a great advantage to the Lightweight Company Mortar System," said SSG Justin Jay. "The base plate overall has a lot of potential — once they work out some of the initial design flaws."

Even if the M8 X is ultimately fielded, the Army will continue to use the M7 base plate for all sustained operations, Schulten said.

British NCO 'leads by example,' earns Ranger tab

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

A senior NCO is setting the example for NCOs and students with B Company, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment (Infantry Basic Officer Leadership Course).

British Sgt. Maj. Alan Bissett, B Company's first sergeant, graduated Friday from the U.S. Army Ranger School.

"It's leading by example," Bissett said. "I've got young NCOs and lieutenants who aspire to do this, and I am now in a position to answer any questions they may have."

Bissett is one of three British soldiers serving in an exchange program at Fort Benning, said British army Lt. Col. Pat Tracy, the British liaison officer for Fort Benning and Fort Knox. An officer serves as an instructor at the Maneuver Captain's Career Course and an NCO serves with the 75th Ranger Regiment.

"We send people to America for these jobs and they are very carefully chosen, no surprises," Tracy said. "But it has surprised me how dedicated (Bissett) is. He never gives up and it's a good mark of the man."

Bissett, 44, may be one of the oldest students to graduate from the school, but his age didn't concern him.

"I didn't feel it. I prepared for it physically," Bissett said. "I wasn't going to use that as a reason to quit."

Bissett said the weather was an unexpected challenge.

"It is similar to courses I've taken in the British army, though they don't focus as much on the lack of sleep and lack of food," he said. "It's not so much the course, but the weather that is challenging. It has its moments but we are all in the same boat."

Bissett said he feels the camaraderie among Rangers that comes with earning the Ranger tab.

"It's a good link we have with the American Army. Next year, I am off to Afghanistan, Helmand Province, and if in some godforsaken place I run into an American with a Ranger tab, it will be another forged link," he said.

CSM Angel Ortiz, the senior NCO for 2nd Bn., 11th Inf. Regt., said Bissett has set the bar for future NCOs.

"He's got a great operational background throughout the world," said LTC Scott Halstead, commander of the 11th Inf. Regt. "The British army is very good at counterinsurgency, and he's brought those lessons learned to our cadre and students."

Bissett, a 23-year veteran, has served as B Company's first sergeant for nearly a year and a half. He completed the U.S. Army Airborne School last year. Prior to that, Bissett served on the Queen's Guard in England.

"I consider it a privilege and the best of all experiences," he said of his role at Buckingham Palace. "I've traveled to 38 countries and done nine operational tours."

Kristin Molinaro

CSM Angel Ortiz, top NCO for 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, pins the Ranger tab on the uniform of British Sgt. Maj. Alan Bissett, who graduated Friday from the U.S. Army Ranger School. Bissett serves as the first sergeant of B Company, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment.

Blind officer graduates Maneuver Captain's Career Course

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

The first blind student to attend the Maneuver Captain's Career Course graduated with his class Tuesday in a ceremony attended by family and friends.

MCCC is a 20-week course that prepares captains for company commands and serving as staff officers at battalion and brigade level.

"When I came here, I was kind of skeptical of how I would be received, being the blind guy," CPT Ivan Castro said. "I thank my cadre and classmates for their support. I learned a lot from my peers, and I hope I taught them something. We all have a cross to carry. You have to pick up the pieces and move on."

Castro, who's served in the Army for 21 years, was injured during offensive operations in Yusifiyah, Iraq, Sept. 2, 2006, while deployed with the 82nd Airborne Division. Shrapnel from a 82 mm mortar that landed five feet from his position on a rooftop struck Castro, a sniper reconnaissance platoon leader, and several others. The mortar killed two Soldiers in his platoon and left him blind. Castro also suffered a bilateral aneurysm, collapsed lung, pulmonary embolism, bone fractures and a nicked artery.

Kristin Molinaro

LTC Fredrick Dummar, commander of the Special Operations Recruiting Battalion at Fort Bragg, N.C., congratulated CPT Ivan Castro on graduating from the Maneuver Captain's Career Course. Castro, who will be assigned to the recruiting battalion, is the first blind student to attend the course.

"Without command, without reservation, without hesitation, my guys jumped into action," said Castro, crediting his Soldiers with saving his life. "If it wasn't for the training my guys received, I wouldn't be here right now."

Castro spent six weeks on life support in an induced coma. At Bethesda Naval Medical Center, he underwent rehabilitation to help him adjust to life without sight and, within a year, he was running the Marine Corps Marathon. It was a "grueling" process, said his wife, Evelyn.

After completing his rehabilitation, Castro returned to work as the executive officer for the 7th Special Forces Group at Fort Bragg, N.C.

"One of your classmates is here today because his fellow warriors refused to cut him away like a bad parachute or let him fall behind," said BG Michael Repass, the commanding general of the U.S. Army Special Forces Command, speaking to the graduates. "Our Soldiers will go into the jaws of hell if they believe we aren't going to leave them behind. That faith has to stick with our Soldiers if they are wounded or otherwise incapacitated. We leaders cannot put them on the sidelines and walk away from them. I remain encouraged by the obvious courage ... of Ivan Castro."

Throughout his life-changing transition, Castro insisted he not be treated differently, said LTC Fredrick Dummar, who worked with Castro at the 7th Special Forces Group and attended his MCCC graduation.

"It was critical for him to attend MCCC," said Dummar, commander of the U.S. Army Special Operations Recruiting Battalion. "You can't stay on active duty as a captain without it. It would've been not only a fight to keep him on active duty with his injuries, but also to keep him on active duty without attending a mandatory school."

Dummar said because Castro was a Special Forces Soldier and wanted to remain on active duty, they reviewed his case.

"We saw what his potential still was instead of what he can't do," Dummar said. "He may not be able to do every job in the Army, but by doing the job he can do, he's freeing up someone who can see to be doing something else."

To keep up in classes, Castro said he used a voice recorder and computer screen-reading software. Castro enlisted his roommate, CPT Gerard Torres, as a running buddy to ensure he kept on the track during physical training.

Torres, who attended the Infantry Officer Basic Course with Castro in 2005, said Castro has been an inspiration to him.

"We've laughed so hard and hated each other like brothers," Torres said. "The things he's taught me since the time I've known him are invaluable. Sometimes you sit there and start feeling bad for yourself and then you look over, and there's Ivan, running 20 miles."

In the coming weeks, Castro will report to his new assignment as the operations officer for the U.S. Special Operations Recruiting Battalion.

USAMU: Team to teach marksmanship in Afghanistan

competitive shooting, to include the Olympics, while also training thousands of Soldiers every year.

The dedication, professionalism and expertise of the USAMU showcase the best of Army Soldier skills that instill positive impressions of the Army all over the country as they connect America's people to America's Army; they will take those same values with them to train the Afghan forces, Hodne said.

"This deployment is consistent with the depth and breadth of the USAMU mission," said SGM Martin Barreras, the unit's senior enlisted advisor. "On any given day, USAMU Soldiers could be executing such disparate missions as training Afghan security forces, instructing Soldiers throughout the entire Army on marksmanship fundamentals, improving weapons and ammunition through research and development for the warfighter, coaching junior shooters at various high school clinics and winning a world championship in China, all simultaneously."

This is not the first time that Soldiers from the USAMU have deployed in harm's way. A cadre of Soldiers deployed to Vietnam in 1968 to serve as sniper instructors for American forces, providing sniper training and the know-how of the USAMU gunsmiths, the most competent in the world. Members of the custom firearms shop developed and tested the M21 sniper rifle, which was successfully used in Vietnam. The Army's current M24 sniper system is also a product of the USAMU.

Michael Molinaro

LTC Daniel Hodne, commander, U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, talks with one of his Soldiers moments before Soldiers from the USAMU boarded a plane headed for Kuwait.

The USAMU has had an indirect impact on the global war on terror since its initial stages by training Soldiers from units throughout U.S. Army Forces Command and U.S. Army Special Operations Command, as well as National Guard Soldiers preparing to deploy for the first time. They have also conducted numerous train-the-trainer missions for drill sergeants, who subsequently use the tools they learned to train basic trainees set to fill the ranks after graduation.

In 2003, the USAMU sent a team of Soldiers to Iraq to train officers and noncommissioned officers from the 1st Armored Division on marksmanship fundamentals. While there have been boots on the ground previously, this mission is unlike any other for the unit.

"I'm extremely proud of how the USAMU Soldiers and civilians execute their wide-ranging mission, from supporting Army recruiting and accessions, to supporting the warfighter through marksmanship training and small-arms research and development initiatives," Hodne said. "This historic undertaking by the Soldiers of this unique unit demonstrates yet another facet of the tremendous capability that resides within it."

Soldiers: Honored for actions in Battle of Wanat

"Where you find the fight and you take the fight, you stand, and you don't give up an inch," he said. "That kind of endurance and courage only comes through training and discipline that starts long before the fight. That's the kind of dedication to duty that we see in out great NCOs."

COL William Ostlund, the 75th Ranger Regiment's deputy commander, commanded 2nd Battalion (Airborne), 503rd Infantry Regiment, 173rd Airborne Brigade Combat Team, during the deployment. He said Grimm, Anderson and Lawrence, all part of the 503rd's 2nd Battalion, performed with valor through one hostile engagement after another, including what has become known as the Battle of Wanat, in which nine American Soldiers were killed in action and 27 wounded.

"(They) had a simple task — to deploy with honor and redeploy with honor. They did so like no others," Ostlund said of the 2nd Battalion, which earned three Medal of Honor nominations, one Distinguished Service Cross, 27 Silver Stars, 93 Bronze Stars and more than 300 army Commendation Medals.

Grimm's team, while deployed with the 2nd Battalion's C Company, was attacked by an estimated 200 insurgents at Vehicle Patrol Base Wanat on July 13, 2008.

According to the Silver Star citation, the squad leader ran forward to prevent the enemy from overrunning the outpost. He manned a squad automatic weapon to suppress the enemy and bring relief to the beleaguered defenders. On numerous occasions, he left his covered position to render first aid to wounded Soldiers and help move them to safety. Despite a heavy volume of enemy fire impacting all around his position, he refused to abandon his post, detonating a mine and lobbing grenades into the enemy ranks, thwarting their advance and forcing them to retreat. During a lull in enemy fire, Grimm acted with complete disregard for his own personal safety, leaving his defensive position to emplace a claymore mine and deny the enemy a critical avenue of approach.

Grimm said the biggest honor was being in the company of those who fought the Battle of Wanat.

"To get an award is great, but in a lot of these tough fights, everybody out there deserves valor awards," said Grimm, who is currently with the 198th Infantry Brigade. "It's just that certain individuals get recognized. But I would say the greater honor was being able to be out there with Chosen Company."

Anderson and Lawrence led the defense of Seray Vehicle Patrol Base in Chowkay Valley June 23, 2008, during multiple enemy attacks.

According to Anderson's Bronze Star with V device citation, his tactical acumen enabled his team to lay effective suppressive fire on concealed enemy positions, causing the enemy to break contact and preventing friendly casualties. With complete disregard for his own safety, he sprinted across open terrain through enemy fire on multiple occasions to coordinate his element's return fires.

Anderson, now an instructor with 6th Ranger Training Battalion, said the award is significant because the team didn't allow the shortage of manpower that day to prevent the team's proficient reaction.

"We handled that situation pretty well," Anderson said. "I'm glad that our events there got acknowledged. This award is pretty big for me."

According to Lawrence's Bronze Star with V device citation, his tactical acumen enabled his team to lay effective suppressive fire on concealed enemy positions, causing the enemy to break contact during the early engagements and preventing friendly casualties. With complete disregard for his own safety, he sprinted across open terrain through enemy fire to coordinate the indirect fires, which ultimately stymied the final and most concerted attack on the vehicle patrol base.

Lawrence, now with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, said he appreciated the honor and recognized the cumulative effort.

"Not a lot of people know about the Chowkay Valley," he said. "It was a pretty hot place for a while, but it's due to the platoon that was out there fighting alongside one another that we had little to no casualties. They deserve it just as much as I do."

Rushing earned the Army Commendation Medal with V device while serving with the 503rd's 1st Battalion. According to his citation, following a catastrophic improvised explosive device strike in Charbaran District, the senior line medic's leadership and decision-making, while at risk for his own safety, were instrumental in saving the lives of three of his fellow Soldiers.

"It's great to be here and see people we know (recognized)," said Rushing, now with 6th Ranger Training Battalion. "I'm thankful we saved some lives."

The Soldiers are now serving in training units on Fort Benning where their knowledge will inspire the Army's newest combatants, Ferriter said.

"How appropriate that they are using their experience today to inspire and lead," he said. "We are an Army at war, and recognizing that we face many tough challenges ahead, we take this opportunity to applaud the kind of selfless sacrifice and courage that will lead this great Army to victory."

Visit from TRADOC

John Helms

MG Michael Ferriter, commanding general of the Maneuver Center of Excellence at Fort Benning, talks with LTG David Valcourt, deputy commanding general and chief of Staff for Training and Doctrine Command, Wednesday during a tour of the Armor School construction on Harmony Church. During Valcourt's visit, he received the latest information on Fort Benning's construction progress, Base Realignment and Closure and Maneuver Battle Lab. Valcourt ended his trip with a tour of the National Infantry Museum. It was his first visit.

Just Cause: 'Surgical strike'

Cause is the reason Troxell made the Army a career, he said.

"I went from 'proud to be in the Army' to 'I don't want to do anything else,'" he said. "We fought like we trained.

"On the flight down, you've got mortar base plates digging in one leg and a dragon missile jump pack digging in the other because we're all packed in there like sardines," Troxell said. "The minute the doors opened up, instinct took over, training took over and we executed."

Operation Just Cause was a well planned, "truly joint, surgical strike," said Dave Stieghan, Infantry and Fort Benning historian, to capture the Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega.

President George H.W. Bush cited four reasons for the invasion — to protect American citizens living in Panama, defend democracy and human rights in Panama, combat the drug trafficking and protect the Panama Canal treaties, which transferred the canal to Panamanian control in 2000.

It was the first operation after the Goldwater-Nichols Act to get all the services working together and the first time the military used the special operations forces — Rangers, SEALs and Delta Force — as a single instrument, the historian said.

CSM(R) Doug Greenway was a platoon sergeant with 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, who had just returned to Fort Lewis, Wash., from a three-week training exercise, which, unknown to them, was a rehearsal for the invasion.

"Within 24 hours of returning, we received orders to redeploy via Benning to Panama. Luckily all of our stuff was still somewhat configured," Greenway said. "We had eight hours for coordination and synchronization.

"Crossing over the beaches into Rio Hata, we sounded off with the Ranger Creed and we were out the doors just after midnight — filling the skies with paratrooper silk at 500 feet."

The Air Force had more than 300 aircraft in the air during the invasion. The coordination of those assets on multiple targets was an immense task — huge, said Greenway, the former U.S. Army Infantry School command sergeant major.

Attack C-130s were overhead the whole time and the 105 mm howitzers and 40 and 20 mm cannons were the best Air Force asset, causing less collateral damage, Greenway said.

"Overall the mission went as we'd planned and trained for," said Troxell, a staff sergeant when he landed at the Torrijos-Tocumen International Airport Dec. 20, 1989.

"When we hit the ground and moved out and took our objectives, there were some bumps and bruises but it was exactly how I thought it would be."

The paratrooper spirit came out in that operation, said Troxell, who jumped Thursday with a recent Airborne graduate, SGT Brian Bingham, assigned to HHC, U.S. Armor Center.

"I brought him here because I wanted him to be part of the 20th anniversary jump so 20 years from now, when he's a command sergeant major, he can say 'I jumped with those old, crusty (Soldiers who) 40 years ago made the jump into Operation Just Cause.' He's carrying the Airborne Armor legacy forward for me."

said. "With the relocation of this great MP company to Fort Leonard Wood, it completes not only the transformation of the 92nd MP Battalion but the 4th MEB as well. All the pieces and parts of the (brigade), including engineers, logisticians, signalers, and of course, a great bunch of MPs is now complete."

The move will be bittersweet, said Prince, who served as the rear detachment commander while the company was deployed.

"Fort Benning is a great community, so it's going to be tough to leave ... but Fort Leonard Wood is the home of the military police corps. There are a lot of opportunities they can provide there we can't do (here)," he said.

With all four of its companies in one location, the battalion can cover all its bases simultaneously — one company deployed, one in training, one on reset cycle and one working law enforcement, Prince said.

"He is an outstanding leader," said Meyer, who has known Prince since 2003. "There is no other person I would feel more comfortable turning this guidon over to."

As Meyer awaits his next military assignment, he said he is sure the unit has great things in store for them.

The company is almost entirely moved, Meyer said, with their equipment shipped and housing ready for them at Fort Leonard Wood. All unit personnel will be on location by Feb. 16.

The unit will uncase its colors Jan. 22.

Ingram wins Heisman

University of Alabama running back Mark Ingram was named the Heisman Trophy winner Saturday in New York City.

In the closest vote in the 75-year history of the award, Ingram finished 28 points ahead of Stanford running back Toby Gerhart. Ingram is the first Alabama player to win the Heisman. Texas quarterback Colt McCoy finished third, followed by Nebraska's Ndamukong Suh and Florida's QB Tim Tebow finishing fifth.

Winter meetings

Though the regular season is many months away, major league baseball winter meetings are heating up. Roy Halladay, Toronto's All-Star pitcher, is heading to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phillies are trading Cliff Lee to Seattle as part of a three-way trade. Nothing has been said who the Mariners would receive from Toronto or Philadelphia.

The Red Sox added former Angels' pitcher John Lackey to their starting rotation. Lackey agreed to a five-year, just-over-$82.5-million contract.

Tiger's sponsorship fizzles

While only the juiciest of gossips seem to care about Tiger Woods' personal life, his admittance to "infidelity" in his marriage and his indefinite leave from golf has started to affect his sponsorships.

Accenture dropped Tiger from their ads, although Swiss watch maker Tag Heuer said they will spend the next few weeks assessing their relationship with the golfer. Spokeswoman Mariam Sylla said Tag Heuer does not care about his personal life.

Mark your calendars

Even the most fair-weather baseball fan will be excited to know major league baseball's Sunday night opener will be the rivalry of all sports rivalries, the Boston Red Sox versus the New York Yankees. The game will be April 4, a Sunday, as opposed to the original date of April 5.

The Yankees will end their season at Fenway Park, and will play the Sox six times in their last 10 games.

College basketball rankings

While the Kentucky Wildcats moved up a spot in the ESPN/USA Today's men's college basketball rankings to claim the third spot, Kansas and Texas remained unchanged, at No. 1 and 2, respectively.

Villanova, who previously held the third spot, fell to No. 9 after losing, Saturday to Temple.

Purdue is in the fourth spot, followed by Syracuse in fifth.

Teams compete in Red Star Challenge

More than 70 soccer teams from Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida competed in the Red Star Challenge Saturday and Sunday at the Woodruff Farm Road Soccer Complex despite rain and temperatures dipping into the 40s.

The fields were soaked and the majority of games were determined by penalty kicks because of the rain, said Scott Barton, co-tournament director. Trophies were awarded to finalists and champions.

"It's always frustrating when the kids are playing a tournament and rain moves in," he said. "The kids came to the tournament to play soccer. No one wants to determine games by penalty kicks, but on the other hand, no one wants to go

2/29 defeated MEDDAC Team One 64-45 to win the Commander's Cup preseason basketball championship title Wednesday at Smith Fitness Center.

Six minutes into the first half, 2/29 led 10-4, but MEDDAC took a 17-15 lead with 9:40 remaining in the half. By the end of the first half, MEDDAC led 30-24.

"We only had four fouls in the first half," said 2/29 coach Ernest Borden. "I told the team 'if we only use four fouls, that means you are not putting enough energy on defense. We have fouls, use them.' I wanted them to play hard defense."

Dameno Stevenson and Christopher Thomas added MEDDAC's lead in the second half, while 2/29's Eddie Brown answered with two free throws to close the gap to 34-30. With 11 minutes to go, 2/29 came back and overtook MEDDAC and led for the remainder of

Ride: Open to all ages

"Now that the weather has cooled down, I'm hoping for a big turnout," she said.

The ride is similar to real poker, Hines said.

"Nobody has control over what cards will be dealt — it's the luck of the draw," she said.

Participants will be given a map, which will have four locations marked where they will pick up four cards. All locations will be on Main Post. Participants are allowed to choose the location they go to first.

After getting the cards, participants will meet at Outdoor Recreation and the one with the best hand will win a prize.

Participants can take as little or as much time as they need to get the four cards.

"This isn't a race — it's the best hand that matters," Hines said.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. at Outdoor Recreation and the ride will begin at 9 a.m.

Helmets are required and all bicyclists most obey Fort Benning safety regulations. Children must be supervised by parents. The cost is $12 per person and the deadline to register is Jan. 7. The event will be canceled if there is inclement weather.

To register or for more information, call 706-545-9636 or 706-545-7978 or go to www.benningmwr.com.

Red Star: Ends season with tournament

home empty-handed."

"This is probably the worst weather we have had for this tournament," said LTC(R) Michael Dempsey, coach of the 17-to 19-year-old Columbus Futbol Club Red Star Gold team.

Dempsey's team came in second place in the 17-to-19-year-old Red Star Black division, falling Sunday in the finals 1-0 in a penalty kick match against CFC Red Star Premier.

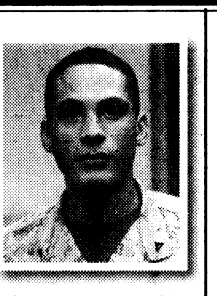
"There was tough competition," Dempsey said. "Overall, I think the team did well. To get as far as we did in the tournament is pretty good. It's a great way to end the season."

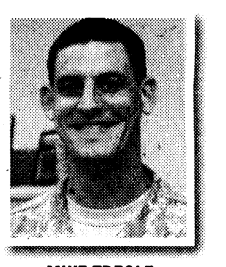
The CFC Red Star team, age 14 and younger, took second in their division.

In the first game, they defeated the Central Georgia Soccer Association Strykers 3-0, with goals by Zane Ketchum, John Aschenbach and Daniel Steinwach.

"We had good passes and shots," said Trevor Dempsey, son of LTC(R) Michael and Evelyn Dempsey, after the game.

Aschenbach, 13, said he looks at the tournament as a way to sharpen his soccer skills.





"There are a lot of good teams here," he said. "It improves our skill level to play teams that are better than ours."

The tournament was the last event of the season for Red Star.

Reindeer Run yields more than $15,000 for charity

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

Although the numbers of runners were lower than previous years, the holiday spirit was in the air as children, pre-kindergarten to eighth grade, braved the cold and rain to compete in the 10th annual Reindeer Run Saturday at Country's on Broadway in Columbus.

"This year, runners raised more than $15,000, which is the most ever raised since the Reindeer Run was started," said Scott Ressmeyer, Country's Barbecue co-owner.

In nine years, more than 2,200 runners have raised more than $50,000 for the Children's Miracle Network, according to the Columbus Regional Health Care System Web site.

"The run is a tradition in the tricommunity area," Ressmeyer said. In its first year, there were about 60 runners and last year there were more than 690, Ressmeyer said. This year, about 475 participated.

About 475 runners participated in the 10th annual Reindeer Run Saturday in Columbus. All of the proceeds from the run benefit the Children's Miracle Network at the Medical Center.

All of the proceeds from the event benefit the Children's Miracle Network at the Medical Center. The money is used to purchase state-of-the-art equipment, education for clinicians and program development, said Jennifer Joyner, Children's Miracle Network manager at the Medical Center.

"This is a season of giving and that is what we are trying to do," Ressmeyer said. "The run is about kids helping kids. All of the money from the run stays in the Chattahoochee Valley — it doesn't get better than that."

The top three runners in each grade category received awards and the overall boy and girl received awards. The school with the most runners, Lakewood Elementary School, received a trophy and will receive a catered meal at their school.

The overall winner in the boys' category was Cameron Hite, son of CWO Jason and Sherry Hite. This was his second consecutive first-place finish in the event.

"I am happy to win two years in a row," said Hite, an eighth-grader who runs for the Faith Middle School Cross-Country team. "It was cold out there and everyone was bundled up, but it didn't change the race. I had a pretty good lead. I didn't know who else was running, but I was confident that I would take first."

Hite finished with a time of 5 minutes, 31 seconds and received a trophy, medal and a $50 gift certificate to Dick's Sporting Goods.

The event concluded with free popcorn, cotton candy and hot dogs and a visit from Santa Claus.

2/29: Makes comeback in second half to take win the game ultimately winning 64-45.

"It's amazing to win the preseason championship," Borden said. "I figured MEDDAC was going to be a hard team to beat. We beat them earlier in the playoffs by nine points. (MEDDAC'S) Ray Wilhelm and Brandon Sparks are good shooters, so we wanted to put a lockdown on them. We wanted to make sure we stayed close and we knew since they played a game before this one, they would run out of gas eventually."

Reggie Kennedy of 2/29 said overall, his team played a good game.

"In the first half, we came out pretty sloppy, but in the second half, we turned our defense up," he said. "They were the champs last year.

"We knew that coming into the game and we knew we would have to play hard. We stuck it out and kept our heads in the game and kept playing defense and that's what won us the game."

Brown said the team's defense was on target in the second half.

"We played good defense," he said. "I thought if we came out strong in the second half and picked up the intensity on defense, we would be fine."

Regular season games will kick off Jan. 11.

Army calls for blood donors C7

Organization donates PCs

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Christmas came early for 100 Fort Benning families when Chicago-based Operation Homelink gave free refurbished computers Saturday at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center.

This was Operation Homelink's first donation to Fort Benning families.

"What a great Christmas gift!" said Andrea Young, Family Readiness Support assistant for 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team. "You don't a get an opportunity very often where an organization comes, finds you and says 'Can we give you a computer?' A lot of people can't afford $300 to $400 to spend on a computer. This is above and beyond generosity."

"It's a blessing," said Shatavia Morris, whose husband is on his first deployment to Iraq. "(My son) will be able to see his dad all the time, and that makes a big difference."

Sharen Hicks said the computer couldn't have come at a better time. Although she and her three girls have used the school's Internet a few times since see her husband and their father deployed, the communication wasn't good.

"Now, I will be able to communicate with him everyday," she said. "Instead of my husband standing in a long line and waiting on the phone, he can get on the computer, and I can see him. This is right on time."

Dan Shannon, president and founder of the non-profit organization, teared up while greeting families, and committed to distributing webcams next

Making Merry

Tiffany Nabors
Ashworth Vestal, 9, told Santa Claus he wanted camoflouge gear during the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment's annual tower lighting ceremony Friday.

Rachel Jackson
Hannah Wienburgh, a fourth-grader at McBride Elementary School, throws a candy cane to a basic trainee Dec. 11 at Sand Hill. The McBride Elementary chorus sang Christmas songs and handed out candy canes to Soldiers in the 192nd Infantry Brigade, their partners in education.

Lori Egan
SSG Stanmore Hinds of the Maneuver Center of Excellence Band decked the halls of Ridgway Hall with holiday music when the brass quartet visited Dec. 10.

It's all about the hat

Depending on which way you looked last week, as Fort Benning celebrated Christmas here, there and everywhere, the jolly guy you spotted in the red hat might have been a girl, actually. Post schoolchildren donned Santa hats to spread holiday cheer on Sand Hill, the Maneuver Center Band "bent" the rules and wore the same head gear for a caroling session at post headquarters, and Santa dropped in for the annual tower lighting ceremony.

Christmas reading program reinforces literacy

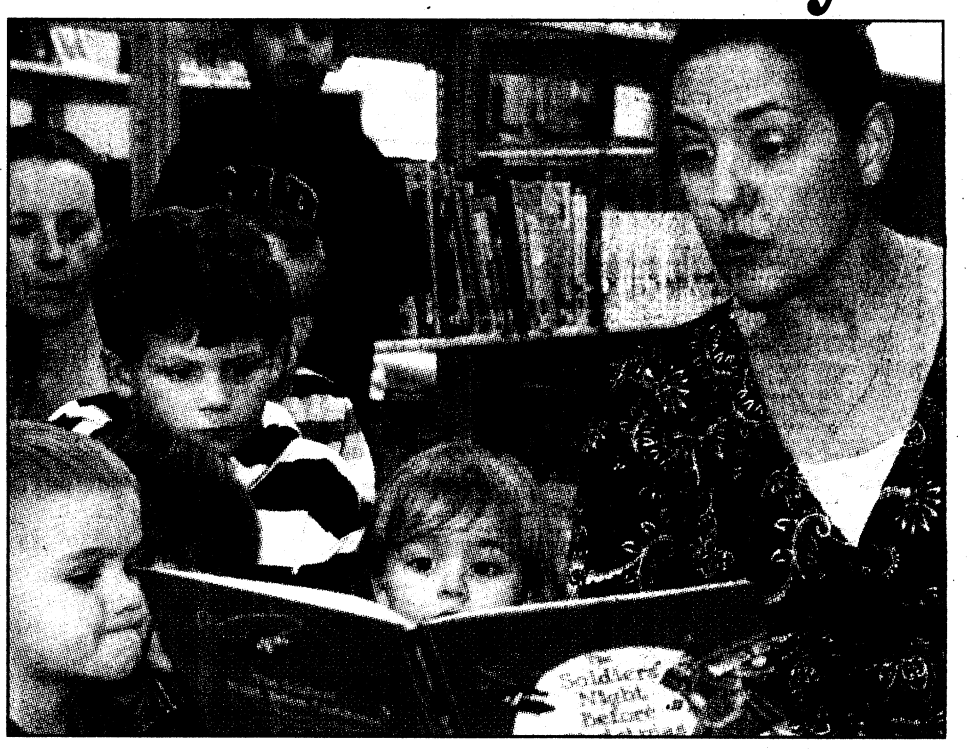
Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

"'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the base only sentries were stirring — they guarded the place."

Fort Benning children listened as Amy Kowatch, the team leader for Parent to Parent, read from The Soldiers' Night Before Christmas.

Part of a monthlong program, the book introduced "the Santa of Soldiers," a 6-foot-6-inch, crooked-nosed NCO named Sergeant McClaus. And reinforced early childhood literacy, said Kowatch, who helps coordinate the themed reads.

"We try and let the parents know early literacy is the best thing they can do for their child at this age," she said. "From birth all the way up to 4, it's imperative to get that reading. We feel if we do something themed it makes a connection. For instance, this is about troops being deployed, and we're sending Christmas cards to the troops who are deployed."



Children made and decorated the greeting cards after listening to the story and singing Christmas songs. The P2P team — Kowatch, Jenny Rasmussen, Deeanna Enfinger and Samantha Banister — led the activities Dec. 3-14 at libraries and playgroups on and off post.

"We loved it," said Jessica Ramirez, who attended the Dec. 8 reading at Sayers Memorial Library.

"It teaches him calm time, and it teaches him to listen," Ramirez said of her 2-year-old son Aurelius. "It's good for him. It will help him do well in school and be able to focus better. He doesn't have to struggle so much on learning how to read ... it'll be easier for him along the way."

Early literacy workshops are open to the public but geared to military children ages 4 and younger. Parent to Parent offers several other workshops on a variety of subjects, including transitioning to a new school, the college application process, math and science for early years, help with homework and good communication. The workshops and resources are free for service members and their families.

For information about upcoming events or to schedule a workshop, call 706-405-9857 or e-mail FortBenningP2P@yahoo.com.

Faith Middle School students track Jupiter's temperatures

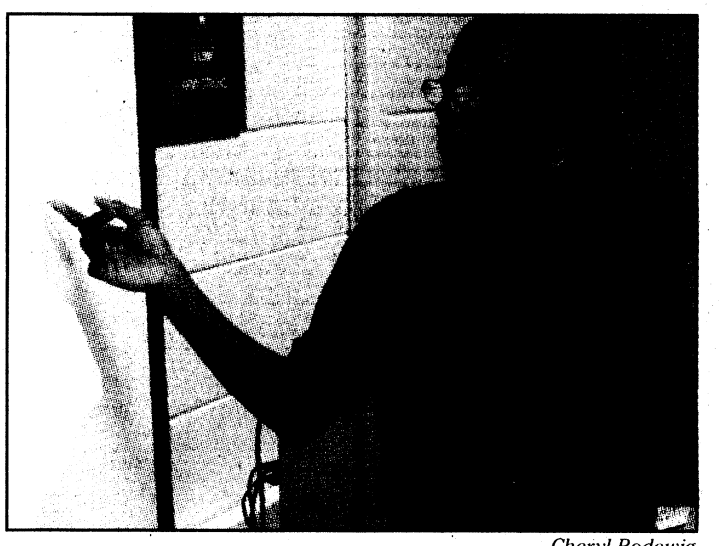
Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Students in the Faith Middle School Science Club collected data about Jupiter that will aid NASA in its research of the planet.

Using a radio telescope, students located Jupiter and captured its radio waves with the telescope Dec. 9 before recording the data, which translate to degrees Kelvin, to send to NASA.

"This is actually a radio telescope that was (originally) in NASA's bag of tricks. They were going to scrap it and ... a teacher in California spearheaded the program to buy it and make it available to kids all over the world," said Mary Matthews, club facilitator. "Last time I checked, we were the only middle school in Georgia doing this. This is real-time research for these kids, not just something they're reading about."

The GAVRT program, which stands for Goldstone Apple Valley Radio Telescope, has assisted NASA for the past 10 years.



"NASA wants this information (because) they have been monitoring Jupiter's temperature through its electromagnetic waves for over 40 years," Matthews said. "These emissions, called synchrotron emissions, have varied as much as 50 percent over the years. Scientists want to know why."

The Science Club, which has been involved in the project for the past five years, schedules antenna time with mission control in California annually. In preparation for the project, students researched information about Jupiter, such as distance and atmosphere.

Sixth-grader Tatianna Minter said she enjoyed learning about Jupiter and was impressed radio waves could travel such a distance. Jupiter's orbit is more than 300 million miles from earth's orbit.

"I've never done this before. I think it was an awesome experience to have," said 11-year-old Tatianna, who plans to participate again next year. "Ever since I started learning about science ... about the planets, and how far away they are and how they rotate ... science has always been my favorite subject."

Christmas parade

John W. Peeler

MG Michael Ferriter, accompanied by his wife, Margie, was the grand marshal of the Bi-City Christmas Parade Dec. 12. A number of Fort Benning families and Soldiers, including the Maneuver Center Band, participated in the annual event.

Club: Gives data to NASA

The club currently has 15 members. Activities are completely student-led, Matthews said, and many are interactive. In the past, students have shot off air pressure rockets, created mock tornadoes inside soda bottles and studied geology, chemistry and physics in Columbus State University labs.

Seventh-grader Isaiah Cray said he joined the club because "it's made science more fun for me."

"I used to be good only in math and kind of average in science, but when I joined the Science Club, my B in science went up to an A," he said.

"Science tells us some of the answers people really want," said Isaiah, who hopes to be a scientific researcher for a hospital some day. "It's really hands-on. That's why I like it. You get to mess with a lot of things ... like elements from the periodic table. Maybe I can make something new no one has ever created before with science."

Students must maintain a B average in science to join the club. It is open to all grade levels at Faith. For more information, call the school at 706-545-0310.

Chicago–based Operation Homelink gives free refurbished computers to 100 Fort Benning families Saturday at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center. This was Operation Homelink's first donation to Fort Benning families.

week to those who received computers.

Although no money is exchanged, Shannon said there is a cost with the computers.

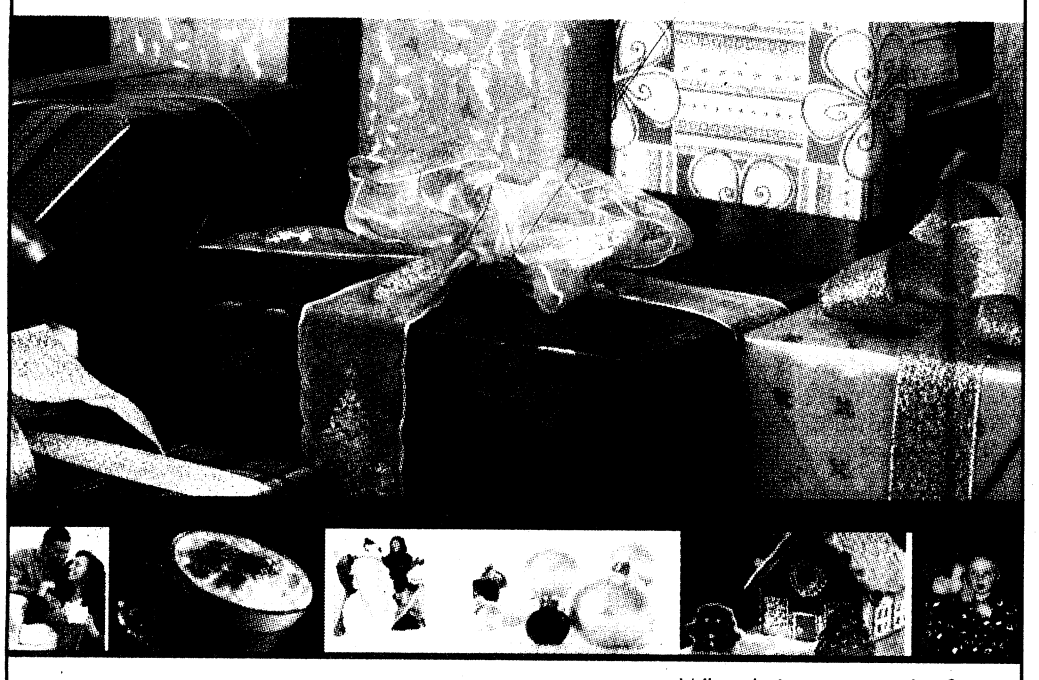
"There were earned when each of these Soldiers signed up," he said. "They're earned every morning when they strap on their boots and do the heavy lifting for the rest of America, and they're earned by all of these folks ... who are going the extra mile to hold down the fort while their loved one is deployed."

Businesses like Raytheon, which donated Saturday's computers, give laptops to the organization, Shannon said. And then they refurbish and sell the laptops to purchase two desktops.

Shannon arranged for first the donation of 10 computers shortly after 9/11.

"The news was filled with stories of men and women being called to serve, and I imagined what it would be like to say goodbye to my wife and four kids," he said.

Operation Homelink has donated totaled 3,100 computers, and Shannon said he expects to give out at least 1,000 next year.



Families of deployed or soon-to-be-deployed Soldiers in the pay grade of E-1 to E-5 are eligible for the gift.

Young said she hopes to see more Operation Homelink distributions and urges local businesses to donate their unused computers.

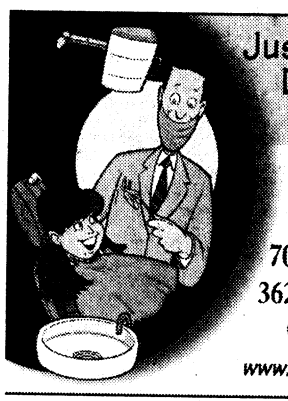
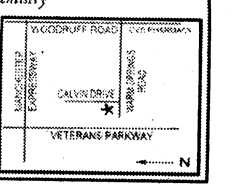
Fourth-graders from E.A. White Elementary School pose with Martin Army Community Hospital staff in the Pediatric Clinic Tuesday. The students collected several hundred books during a week of community service activities. PTO board member Donna Bottcher said parents recognized a need for the books in the clinic's waiting area. "It was just an overwhelming success," Bottcher said. "We're just happy to do this." Members of the hospital staff met and talked with the students about the project. "I'm sure that the kids who come here will be very happy to see these books," said Dr. (MAJ) Kevin Horde, chief, Department of Family Medicine. "Thanks for all the efforts for us."





The Bayonet wishes everyone a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. The next paper will be Jan. 8.

- urinate frequently, usually eight or more times in 24 hours?
- awaken two or more times in the night to urinate (nocturia)?

It could be overactive bladder (OAB). Most people don't realize that OAB is a real medical condition. It affects 33 million men and women in the United States. That's 1 in 6 adults. It's more common than you might think.

Army blood donor centers face new requirements

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

The Army is increasing its call for blood donors.

The Armed Services Blood Program office has revised the weekly product requirements at Army blood donor centers around the United States as Central Command switches its operational focal point from Iraq to Afghanistan, according to a Surgeon General message distributed by the Pentagon last month.

The change is necessary to support the growing medical mission and compensate for the Department of the Navy assuming responsibility for all frozen blood collection and freezing requirements for the Defense Department.

In addition to the routine collections needed to support medical treatment facilities, Fort Benning has been tasked to provide 65 type O, 17 type A, 12 type B and 20 type AB blood donors each week.

"As everyone celebrates the holidays, probably the last thing on their minds is donating blood," said Rick Lumzy, public affairs specialist for Fort Benning's Armed Services Blood Program.

"We have several units on post that are deployed and what better way to take care of them than to ensure they have blood product readily available if needed," he said.

As Christmas and the New Year approach, Soldiers on Sand Hill will be on holiday leave until about mid-January.

"They normally ensure that we meet our weekly mission," Lumzy said. "The Armed Services Blood Program still has a weekly mission of blood products ... that's why we are asking all Soldiers, civilians and contractors to help give the gift of life to a Soldier, Sailor or Marine who may get injured during this time."

The Surgeon General asked all Army commanders to provide maximum support and resources to blood donor centers to make sure they can meet the rising demands, the Pentagon release stated.

"We have always received great support from the command at Fort Benning," Lumzy said.

"Unfortunately, we don't have a blood donor center here ... just a processing facility. All blood drives that we conduct are mobile. We will come to you."

Regulations prohibit the ASBP from soliciting donors, he said.

Units of blood are prepared for centrifugation. On post, donors are called to provide type O, type A and type AB blood. Type O, often called the universal donor, is in highest demand.

Mike Murdock

But they can collect blood on federal property, he said.

Lumzy said the ASBP encourages every unit to name a blood donor coordinator and schedule a blood drive.

For more information about donor procedures and general guidelines, visit www.militaryblood.dod.mil or call 706-544-9427.

Give the gift of life

The Armed Services Blood Program has scheduled a series of blood drives this month at Fort Benning:

Dec. 28-30: Post Exchange, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

Dec. 29: Martin Army Community Hospital (second floor), 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Dec. 30: Kelley Hill Recreation Center, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

10 tips for healthy holidays

TOPS

The holiday season doesn't have to create havoc on weight. According to TOPS Club, Inc., (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) following these 10 strategies can help navigate the holidays without weight gain.

1. Don't go hungry. Arriving at a party on an empty stomach is a recipe for disaster that can lead to overeating and poor choices. Have a low-fat, high-fiber snack before you go, such as yogurt, an apple with peanut butter, string cheese or vegetables with dip. It'll curb your appetite and help you control your intake.

2. Treat yourself. There's no need to ban your favorites; decide what you want to try and then set a limit. Cakes, cookies, and pies are available year-round, so indulge in small portions of only the best seasonal, holiday foods.

3. Take control. Offer to bring a low-calorie dish. By preparing something you know fits into your meal plan, you'll have at least one healthy item on hand and others will appreciate it, too.

4. Slow your pace. Eat slowly until you are satisfied, not stuffed. It takes your body about 20 minutes to signal that you're full, so give yourself time to know when you've had enough.

5. Mind your beverages. Drink plenty of water to help feel full and hydrated. Adding lemon or lime to sparkling water is an alternative to alcohol and coffee drinks. Alcohol can impair your judgment and make it difficult to stick to healthy resolutions. If you choose to imbibe, select light beers and wines, and limit your intake. Drink high-calorie favorites, like egg nog, punch and hot chocolate, in moderation, if at all.

6. Pair up with a friend. Make a pact that you'll keep each other on track. Lean on each other for encouragement. Remember, you're not the only one refraining from holiday overindulgence.

7. Keep moving. It's easy to let workouts fall by the wayside. If you aren't able to set aside time each day for exercise, commit to at least 30 minutes three days a week. Consider walking in malls or the building where you work or skating at a municipal ice skating rink. Maintaining a routine can also help you manage holiday stress.

8. Rest up. Get at least seven to eight hours each night. Adequate rest helps repair your body, keep you mentally sharp, and enable you to be more productive.

9. Make friends and family a priority. Although food can be a big part of the season, it doesn't have to be the focus. Set aside time to make memories with friends and family.

10. Keep your perspective. Be realistic and maintain a long-term view of your goals. Overeating one day won't make or break your plans. Focus on maintaining your present weight and look toward the new year as a fresh start.

Ensure holiday toys won't harm small kids

MAJ Renee L. Busse
MARTIN ARMY COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

More than 16,000 injuries are caused by toys each year, half to children younger than 5.

Most toy accidents result from misuse or from tripping on the toy rather than from a defect or design flaw in the toy.

Non-inflated balloons or pieces of popped balloons cause most injuries to toddlers and are the most dangerous toy there is for small children.

Buy toys with safety in mind. Ask yourself, will my child use this toy the way it was intended to be used? Does it have strings or clothing an infant could choke on? Do arms and legs of this doll pull off easily?

As eye-catching as a toy may be to you, it may not be suited to a toddler's age, interests or developmental stage. Read the age range on toy packaging. Properly using a child's building blocks, for instance, requires skills too advanced for most infants.

A baby might also get hurt playing with toys incorrectly or by crawling over them. Many tots choke on marbles, small parts or tiny batteries of toys belonging to older siblings. Both you and your children need to be on guard.

Have everyone in the family put things away and out of reach, especially before meals or when leaving the room. Remind your school-age children if they leave little toy parts lying around, they probably won't have them for long.

Keep play areas separated by closing bedrooms doors or installing baby gates. Even if you have childproofed your home, be aware the homes of friends and relatives offer potential hazards when you bring your baby to visit. Such outings require closer supervision than usual.

TOO EASY CAKE

Submitted by Elsie Jackson

1 18-ounce box cake mix
3 ounces instant pudding

1/3 cup vegetable oil
4 extra large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Directions:
1. Grease and flour two 9-inch round pans or one bundt or tube pan.

2. Cool cake in pan for 10 minutes before removing.

CHOCOLATE DROP COOKIES

Submitted by Kristin Molinaro

My mother makes these every Christmas and they're always a hit. For fun, you can switch out chocolate Hershey kisses for the candy-striped ones. The recipe makes four dozen cookies.

Ingredients:
1 bag of Hershey kisses
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 and 1/2 teaspoons pure vanilla
2 cups all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons milk

Directions:
1. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees
2. In a medium-sized bowl, beat butter, sugar, egg and vanilla until well blended. In a separate bowl, stir together flour, baking soda and salt.
3. Add flour mix and milk, alternately, to butter mixture, beating until well blended.
4. Shape dough into 1-inch balls and place on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 8-10 minutes or until edges are lightly browned and cookie is set.
5. Remove from the oven and cool 2-3 minutes. Press a kiss into each cookie, then cool on a rack.

CRANBERRY WALNUT HOLIDAY SALAD

Submitted by Cheryl Rodewig

This one's actually a Thanksgiving recipe my mom used to make every year to go along with the turkey and stuffing.

However, I've seen it well received at Christmas festivities as well.

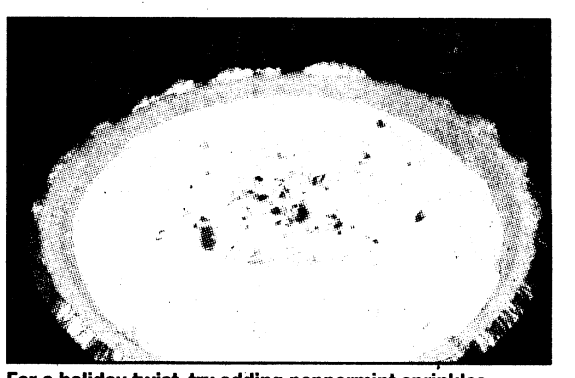
You can assemble this dish in a matter of minutes and even make it the night before for those busy holiday parties.

The recipe also lends itself well to alterations. To cut the fat, try substituting half or all of the sour cream with fat free plain or vanilla yogurt. If you prefer pecans over walnuts, those work well, too.

Top the finished product with whipped cream as pictured or chill it in a mold and serve it with cranberries on the side.

This quick salad can be made sugar-free by using sugar-free Jell-O and cranberry sauce and omitting the whipped cream.

Ingredients:
6 ounces cherry Jell-O
2 cups boiling water
2 cups sour cream
1 16-ounce can whole berry cranberry sauce
1 cup walnuts
toppings: walnut slivers, fresh cranberries, whipped cream (optional)



Directions:
1. Pour boiling water over Jell-O.
2. Mix in cranberry sauce, stirring to dissolve.
3. Add sour cream and walnuts.
4. Pour in mold and refrigerate.
5. During the first several minutes of the chilling period, stir the walnuts periodically to ensure even distribution. Stop stirring when the gelatin begins to thicken and the nuts tend to stay distributed.

15-MINUTE NO-BAKE CHEESECAKE

Submitted by Tiffany Nabors

There are a number of ways to prepare a cheesecake — baked from scratch or even out of a box. But if you're looking for a quick, easy pie that's sure to impress this holiday season, try this no-bake "cheesecake" that is as versatile as it is simple.

And true to its name, you can finish it in a quarter of an hour flat.

For a holiday twist, try adding peppermint sprinkles.

Ingredients:
1 pre-made pie crust
8 ounces cream cheese, softened
14 ounces sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cherry pie filling, chilled, or any other fruit in season (optional)

Directions:
1. With a mixer, beat cheese until fluffy.
2. Gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth.
3. Add lemon juice and vanilla.
4. Pour into crust.
5. Chill at least three hours.
6. After the pie has set, top with fruit, whipped cream or other garnish of your choice.

AVATAR

We enter the alien world through the eyes of Jake Sully, a former Marine confined to a wheelchair. But despite his broken body, Jake is still a warrior at heart. He is recruited to travel light years to the human outpost on Pandora, where corporations are mining a rare mineral that is the key to solving Earth's energy crisis. Because the atmosphere of Pandora is toxic, they have created the Avatar Program, in which human "drivers" have their consciousness linked to an avatar, a remotely-controlled biological body that can survive in the lethal air. These avatars are genetically engineered hybrids of human DNA mixed with DNA from the natives of Pandora ... the Na'vi.

Reborn in his avatar form, Jake can walk again. He is given a mission to infiltrate the Na'vi, who have become a major obstacle to mining the precious ore. But a beautiful Na'vi female, Neytiri, saves Jake's life, and this changes everything.

Soon he will face the ultimate test as he leads an epic battle that will decide nothing less than the fate of an entire world.

This film stars Sam Worthington, Zoe Saldana and Sigourney Weaver. It's rated PG-13 for epic battle sequences and warfare, sensuality, language and smoking.

DID YOU HEAR ABOUT THE MORGANS?

Paul and Meryl Morgan are a Manhattan couple whose marriage is in danger. But it turns out all they may need is a change of scenery. When the Morgans witness a murder and are sent by the government to small-town Wyoming to hide from the killers, their marriage shows signs of recovery.

The film stars Hugh Grant and Sarah Jessica Parker. It's rated PG-13 for sexual references and violence.

INVICTUS

The true story of how Nelson Mandela joined forces with the captain of South Africa's rugby team, Francois Pienaar, to help unite their country. Newly elected President Mandela knows his nation remains racially and economically divided in the wake of apartheid. Believing he can bring his people together through the universal language of sport, Mandela rallies South Africa's underdog rugby team as they make an unlikely run to the 1995 World Cup Championship match.

Starring Morgan Freeman, Matt Damon and Clint Eastwood, this movie is rated PG-13 for language.

THE PRINCESS AND THE FROG

This film stars Anika Noni Rose, Keith David, Jenifer Lewis and Oprah Winfrey.

It is rated G.

EVERYBODY'S FINE

A widower embarks on an impromptu road trip to reconnect with each of his grown children only to discover that their lives are far from picture perfect.

This film is rated PG-13 for thematic elements and brief strong language. It stars Robert De Niro, Drew Barrymore, Kate Beckinsale and Sam Rockwell.

BROTHERS

Thirty-something Captain Sam Cahill and his younger brother Tommy Cahill, are polar opposites. A Marine about to embark on his fourth tour of duty, Sam is a steadfast family man married to his high school sweetheart, the aptly named Grace, with whom he has two young daughters. Tommy, his charismatic younger brother, is a drifter just out of jail who's always gotten by on wit and charm. He slides easily into his role as family provocateur on his first night out of prison, at Sam's farewell dinner with their parents, Elsie and Hank Cahill, a retired Marine. Shipped out to Afghanistan, Sam is presumed dead when his Black Hawk helicopter is shot down in the mountains. At home in suburbia, the Cahill family suddenly faces a shocking void, and Tommy tries to fill in for his brother by assuming newfound responsibility for himself, Grace, and the children.

This film is rated R for language and some disturbing violent content. It stars Tobey Maguire, Jake Gyllenhaal and Natalie Portman.

ARMORED

A crew of officers at an armored transport security firm risk their lives when they embark on the ultimate heist against their own company. Armed with a seemingly fool-proof plan, the men plan on making off with a fortune with harm to none. But when an unexpected witness interferes, the plan quickly unravels and all bets are off.
