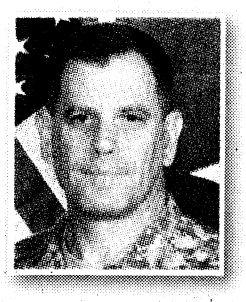
PROCLAMATION

Domestic Abuse Prevention Month

Army leadership is fully committed to taking care of its people and investing in the health and mission preparedness of Soldiers and families. Domestic abuse undermines that commitment.

Therefore, the Army is committed to emphasizing prevention, assuring that victims of domestic abuse are protected through a combination of reporting options and multiple sources of support and intervention, and to holding offenders responsible through treatment and administrative action for those who continue to abuse.

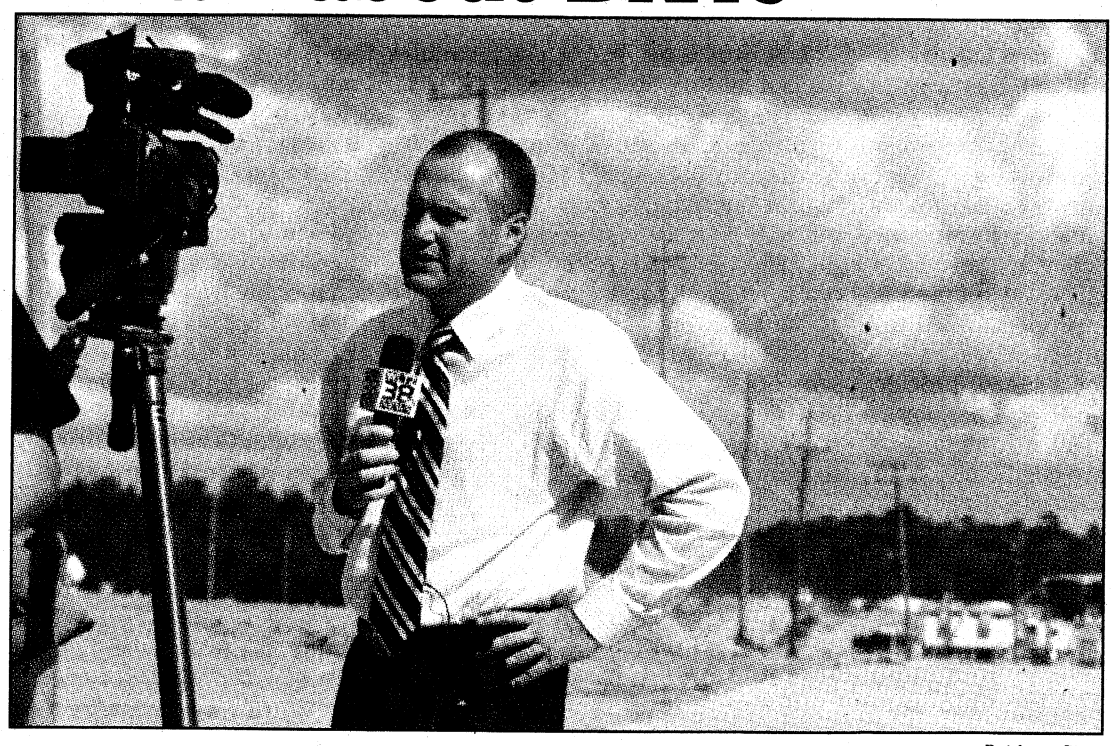
When it comes to domestic abuse, the entire Army Family should reflect on the Army values of Loyalty, Duty, Respect, Selfless Service, Honor, Integrity and Personal Courage. The vast majority of the Army Family is neither offenders nor victims, but may be bystanders who witness domestic abuse. The Army Family has the power to change the climate around domestic abuse. When "bystanders" recognize the signs of domestic abuse they should willingly assume responsibility and take action to prevent abuse before it occurs.



Make the Right Choice! Act to Prevent Domestic Abuse.

Doing nothing is the only wrong choice. The right choice is to do something positive to end ongoing abuse and to prevent abuse from happening in the first place. Each person can lead from the front.

Everyone in the community can make a difference. Abuse exists on a continuum. It may start with ignoring small warning signs, progress to relationship distress and escalate to severe violence. Every positive action helps to change the climate.



The key to effective prevention is a commitment from command and all members of the community to get involved. The mission of the Family Advocacy Program is to educate and prevent domestic abuse. If you have any questions, contact the Family Advocacy Program at 706-545-7594 or 706-545-0892.

I call upon every Soldier, all Families and the total community to join the campaign to prevent domestic abuse. To reinforce that commitment. I hereby declare October 2009 as Domestic Abuse Prevention Month at Fort Benning.

On air about BRAC

Georgia Lt. Gov. Casey Cagle speaks to reporters Sept. 24 at a construction site on Harmony Church during a tour of Fort Benning. Cagle visited the post to see the progress on BRAC projects. "It's simply amazing," Cagle said of the massive buildup in the Harmony Church area, where the Armor School will be located. "The expansion and transformation of this whole campus is absolutely amazing. This kind of growth is good news not only for Fort Benning and the local communities, but for the whole state."

Paratroopers mark 65th anniversary of Operation Market Garden in Netherlands

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Soldiers with the 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, traveled to the Netherlands to celebrate the 65th anniversary of Operation Market Garden with Dutch, British, Polish, Canadian and German paratroopers Sept. 17-21.

"It was a great experience," said LTC Jon Ring, the battalion commander. "There was an unbelievable feeling of appreciation in (the Netherlands) from the oldest generation all the way down to the youngest children."

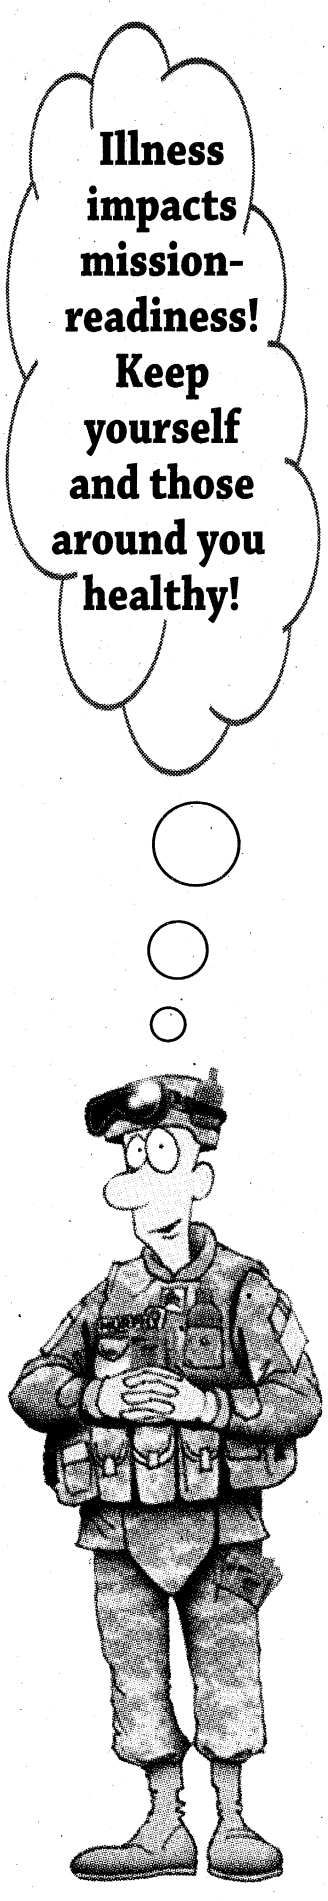
In 1944, more than 34,000 paratroopers dropped into Germany and German-controlled areas of the Netherlands, whose western region is better known as Holland, to seize river and canal crossings in an attempt to liberate the Dutch. Operation Market Garden was successful in taking bridges between Eindhoven and Nijmegen. But in Arnhem, British forces were overrun when relief forces failed to arrive. In the end, the Allies failed to cross the Rhine River, which would've allowed them to encircle Germany's industrial heartland, until future offensives in 1945.

The operation was the subject of the 1946 film Theirs is the Glory and the 1977 film A Bridge Too Far.

SSG Kyle Seamans, an Airborne instructor with A Company, 1st Bn., 507th PIR, said thousands of Dutch lined the streets in each city the troops visited and shared their stories of that day. Seamans earned his master-level jump wings and British jump wings on the Arnhem drop zone. It was the 65th jump of his career.

"When I was flying over, I could see 20,000 people standing all around the drop zone. It was an amazing thing," he said.

The battalion participated in several events celebrating the liberation of the Dutch, including a torch light parade through the streets of Eindhoven, where the 101st Airborne Division fought to free the city and secure surrounding bridges 65 years ago. The next day, approximately 900 paratroopers jumped onto the Arnhem drop zone.



Most of the 507th PIR troops used a British parachute from a Royal Air Force C-130 and earned their British jump wings, said CPT Joe Maliszewski, commander of A Company, 1st Bn., 507th PIR.

On Sunday, the battalion joined in the commemoration of the 82nd Airborne Division's crossing of the Waal River in Nijmegen. Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands, the Duke of Edinburgh and GEN David Petraeus attended that event. Members of the battalion also attended a memorial ceremony at Oosterbeek, where approximately 2,000 Allied soldiers were buried after the Battle of Arnhem.

This was Ring's second trip to the Netherlands to participate in an Operation Market Garden anniversary.

"The brotherhood and camaraderie between the coalition of Americans, British, Polish and Canadians of that day parallels the coalition of today," he said. "We are still fighting alongside each other in Iraq and Afghanistan, and that companionship was exemplified here."

Foot technology takes step in right direction

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

A painful foot blister or stress fracture can slow a Soldier down. One way the 30th Adjutant General Battalion (Reception) is helping troops combat the effects of daily ruck marches and running is to ensure they are properly fitted for combat boots and tennis shoes.

Boots and tennis shoes provide protection and support for the foot in a variety of environments, from sand to grass to asphalt but to get the benefit of the support, the footwear must fit right, said Willie Smith.

Smith has worked at the 30th AG's Clothing Initial Issue Point for more than 30 years. He fits approximately 175 Soldiers a day for combat boots.

The shop issues boots to Soldiers all over Fort Benning, not just basic training troops, he said.

When fitting a Soldier with a pair of boots "we rely partly on what they say and partly on what we see," he said.

Smith takes foot measurements using a standard measuring tool called a Brannock device. It measures the length and width of each foot. The CIIP offers boots in a range of sizes and widths to accommodate nearly any Soldier walking through their door, he said.

Occasionally, a Soldier walks through the door with a unique pair of feet requiring custom-made boots.

"Last week, we had a Soldier who needed custom boots because his feet were long and thin," said SSG Glenville Challenger Sr., a senior processor with A Company, 30th AG Bn. "They could fit him in one type of boot, but not the other."

Challenger said special cases are often referred to the podiatry clinic at Martin Army Community Hospital to have a mold of their feet taken and sent off for the custom boots. Smith said depending on the modifications required some boots take between six to eight weeks to make.

But the wait is worthwhile when Soldiers receive custom boots made just for them, he said.

Another way processors at the reception battalion ensure Soldiers get the best fit is with the Aetrex iStep machine.

The iStep offers a comprehensive digital foot analysis in 30 seconds or less, Challenger said.

The device uses nearly 3,800 barometric sensors to measure the pressure exerted by each foot and captures the foot type (such as a low arch or high arch), pressure points and shoe size.

It also gives a digital readout with recommendations on ideal footwear and sizing information related to manufacturers of military footwear.

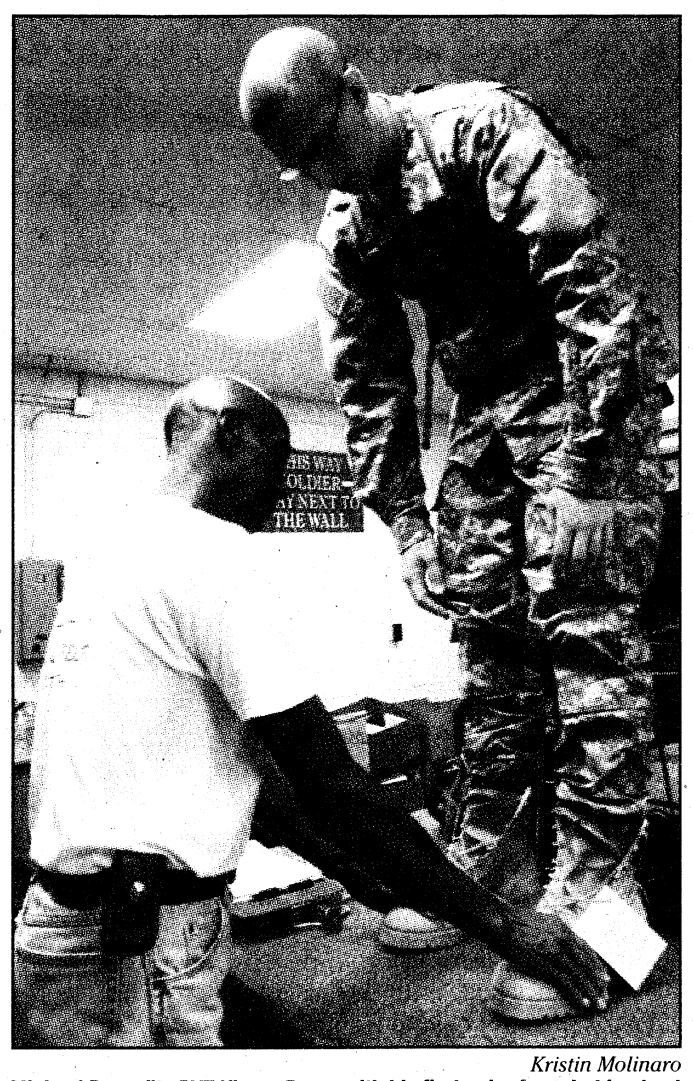
One of the benefits of the device is it shows where the most stress on the foot is, whether on the heel, the toe or both.

But because computers are not infallible, Challenger said the Soldiers still get measured with the Brannock device after using the iStep.

When getting fitted, Soldiers often have the final say in what's comfortable.

"We check to make sure the boots feel snug, not tight," Smith said. "But we are also asking the Soldier how it feels to him."

"It's about comfort," Challenger said. "We want to make sure when a Soldier leaves the boot rack, he's comfortable with the boots he has."



PVT Steven Harris, a one station unit training Soldier, said he went through two sizes of boots before finding the right fit in a pair of size 12s.

"I've never worn boots before," he said. "I just hope I don't get blisters. I heard a lot of people saying they get blisters and I'm just trying to get the right size so I won't have to go through that."

Challenger said even with proper fitting boots, blisters are a fact of life for new Soldiers.

"You're probably going to get blisters if you've never worn boots before," he said.

Minor blisters may not indicate an improperly fitted boot, but Soldiers with severe blisters should return to the 30th AG to be refitted, he said.

Rehab program keeps injured Soldiers in fight

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Days before his graduation from one station unit training with 198th Infantry Brigade, PVT Richard Rittle broke his left foot during a 12-mile ruck march. Nearly three months later, Rittle recalls the disappointment and frustration he felt when he learned he would not graduate with his fellow Soldiers and move on to a career as an Infantryman.

Rittle was transferred to D Company, 30th Adjutant General Battalion's Warrior Training Rehabilitation Program, where he expected his newly-acquired skills and physical fitness would languish until his foot healed and he could return to basic training. What Rittle didn't expect was a daily fitness plan designed for his needs, drill sergeant-led combat task training to keep his knowledge fresh and a command team that continually finds ways to keep Soldiers like him motivated.

Rittle said the hardest thing to overcome was his first few days at the WTRP.

"No one when they first get here is happy to be here," he said. "It's not where you want to be. But it's the best place to be when you're injured. Without the WTRP, I could've been sent home and that would've been the end of my career."

The WTRP takes in Soldiers from Sand Hill who are injured during basic training and deemed by their physician able to be rehabilitated. But the program is much more than a temporary way station for recovering Soldiers.

"There's nothing like having the goal of becoming a Soldier," said 1SG Sean Miles, senior NCO for D Company. "And then somebody telling you you're injured and you can't do anything about it. So we take them in and go through the rehabilitation and recovery process with them. And if there is something we can do to keep them training, we do it."

A WTRP Soldier's average day consists of company-wide PT in the morning, followed by open gym time or aquatic fitness classes, and a late-afternoon session of core muscle strengthening exercises called Four For the Core. Throughout the day, Soldiers without medical appointments conduct combat training with drill sergeants. If a Soldier entered the WTRP late in his basic training phase, it's possible for him to learn and qualify on the remaining skills to graduate directly from WTRP, Miles said. For the most part, the only make-up training the WTRP can't offer is weapons training at the ranges, he said.

Soldiers train on a variety of tasks including drill and ceremony, first aid, battle drills and individual movement techniques.

But physical training is only half the battle in rehabilitating Soldiers, said CPT Matthew Larson, D Company's commander.

"We are constantly battling their urge to quit," he said. "You can never underestimate the psychological component."

Larson, who is a certified physical therapist, has instituted programs to boost morale and team cohesion within the unit — whose numbers fluctuate from month to month but on average contains 100 Soldiers.

In January, the WTRP introduced morale trips, Soldier of the month boards and fitness and training competitions to keep Soldiers motivated and focused.

One of those programs, the Iron Knight monthly competition, is gaining popularity within the ranks, Larson said.

The competition, which is different each month and incorporates running, swimming or upper body strength components based upon Soldiers profiles, is part of the honor platoon program that awards streamers to platoons who demonstrate their expertise in areas such as safety, drill and ceremonies, leadership, fitness and morale.

"We started the competition to inspire Soldiers," he said. "It's based upon their profiles so they feel they can impact the game despite their injury."

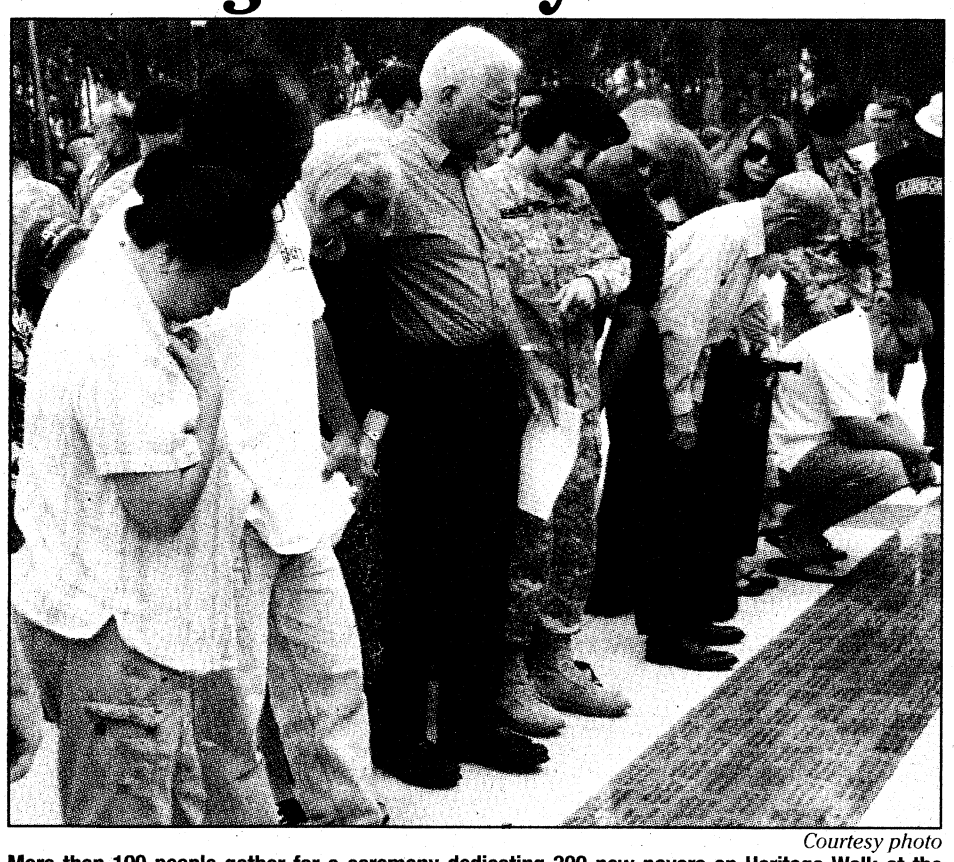
SPC Nicholas Bartley said the competitions have kept him motivated since he arrived two months ago with a sprained ankle.

"We have to push ourselves and I know I will leave here stronger because of that," said Bartley, who was in his final week of basic training and preparing for Officer Candidate School when he was injured during combatives.

Bartley said he requested to come to WTRP.

"I couldn't do PT with my unit when I was injured, so I kept getting pulled out of formation for other duties," he said. "I was worried that I wouldn't be prepared to lead Soldiers once I graduated and headed to OCS."

Bartley hopes to be able to make up the final field training exercise and graduate directly from the WTRP in time to start OCS with the November class.



Even if Bartley has to return to basic training to make up his final week, he said it is no loss.

"I got a second chance and I'm taking advantage of it," he said.

As for Rittle, he is now in the process of choosing a new specialty. He continues to have symptomatic pain in his foot so his career as an Infantryman will be delayed about seven months, he said.

In the meantime, Rittle has narrowed his job choices to three: "Counter intelligence, human intelligence collector or a tanker," he said. "As much as I wanted to be an Infantryman, I want to be a Soldier more."

More than 100 people gather for a ceremony dedicating 300 new pavers on Heritage Walk at the National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center. The custom-engraved granite pavers — about 2,000 so far — give people a way to honor loved ones, whether they are in the military or not, said Cyndy Cerbin, communications director for the National Infantry Foundation. Proceeds from the paver sales help fund the operation of the museum and Soldier Center.

intelligence on Iranian threats and would provide protection sooner, officials said.

"It allows for a full collaboration with NATO members," Obama said. "And we are very optimistic that it will achieve our aims and deal with the very real threat of ballistic missiles."

The two leaders also agreed on the importance of reaching out to Moscow in an effort to further collaborate with Russia on missile defense.

"We want to improve generally not only U.S.-Russian relations, but also NATO-Russian relations, while making absolutely clear that our commitments to all of our allies in NATO is sacrosanct and that our commitment to Article 5 continues," Obama said, referring to the point in the NATO charter stating that an attack on one member is an attack against all members.

The meeting included discussion about a strategic concept review that will articulate the role NATO is expected to play in the future.

"NATO has been so successful that sometimes I think that we forget this was shaped and crafted for a 20th-century landscape," Obama said. "We're now well into the 21st century, and that means that we are going to have to constantly renew and revitalize NATO to meet current threats and not just past threats."

He's worked with heavy and light forces as well as counter-insurgency operations, so he knows a lot of aspects in working with the Afghan military and police. There's a fine line between training the Afghans to meet the needs of their populace and completing the mission."

Bohn entered the Army in 1982 as an Infantryman. Bohn has held every leadership position from team leader to command sergeant major in 26 years of serving. His assignments include serving with the 502nd, 506th and 508th Parachute Infantry Regiments and the 1st Ranger Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment.

He is a graduate of the Special Operations Training Course and the U.S. Army Sergeants Major Academy.

"He's going to be a key player in getting the Afghan forces trained," said U.S. Army Infantry Center CSM Earl Rice. "He knows what resources we have here at Fort Benning at his fingertips, so he has that reach-back capability. He's creating this position from scratch and growing it while we are in combat. It takes a level-headed, competent leader to pull that together so it speaks volumes for Bohn that he was selected for this job."

Hospital: To include 70 in-patient beds, two wings serve Soldiers, military retirees, and families of the Fort Benning community with a range of specialties. The design is split into two wings — a clinic and hospital section, equipped with two parking decks for patients and staff members. Design and construction is likely to begin shortly after the Corps of Engineers issues a notice-to-proceed in October and will span 1,200 calendar days. An estimated completion date is set for summer 2013.

Like all Army construction, the new hospital will satisfy the silver criteria established by the Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design rating system, in accordance with the U.S. Green Building Council standards, Kertis said.

"It's been a long road to get this project awarded because it is funded with both military construction dollars and BRAC (Base Realignment and Closure) funding," said Alan Bugg, the resident engineer for the project.

"Also, we changed the location from a site beside the existing hospital to a new site about a half-mile away. The relocation will help alleviate parking issues and allow for a faster construction schedule."

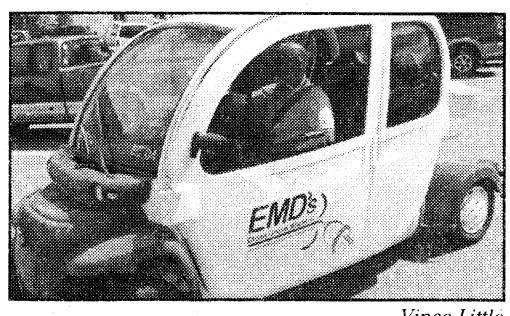
The future of the existing hospital, now more than 50 years old, is yet to be determined.

Post to receive 44 electric cars under Army plan

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

Fort Benning expects to receive 44 new electric cars under an Army leasing plan announced earlier this year, said Peter Lukken, the garrison sustainability planner.

The effort is tied to an environmental executive order requiring federal agencies to increase acquisitions of alternative fuel, hybrid and plug-in hybrid electric vehicles when commercially available.



"This shows the commitment by Fort Benning and the Army to energy reduction. We're doing our part to get us off dependence on foreign oil," Lukken said. "It's a strategic move as well as a sustainable move. We're trying to reduce all the emissions we can."

In January, the Army said it planned to lease 4,000 neighborhood electric vehicles, or NEVs, in a bid to replace gasoline-powered vehicles. The non-tactical electric vehicles will be used on installations for passenger transport, security patrol, and maintenance and delivery services.

The Army expected to lease nearly 800 NEVs this year and 1,600 each in 2010 and 2011, according to a story posted on army.mil in January. The lead-acid battery-powered cars could save up to $45 million and 11.5 million gallons of fuel over six years.

The environmental office at Fort Benning's Directorate of Public Works is getting maximum use out of half a dozen electric cars it purchased in the past two years, said Tom Tuten, the organization's program manager. They include a pair of two-seat utility trucks and a six-seat passenger vehicle. Two of the cars have logged more than 1,000 miles.

"We were looking at ways to reduce air pollution and energy use, and that's what got us looking at the electric cars in the first place," Tuten said. "It's a clean, green machine. No air emissions, no fossil fuels."

Vince Little
Tom Tuten, the environmental office's program manager, drives a two-door electric car Tuesday.

Global Electric Motorcars, a Chrysler subsidiary, manufactured the environmental office's six cars. Tuten said they're charged overnight for eight to 10 hours and last up to 40 miles.

"Their top speed is only 25 miles per hour," he said. "They are street legal, but you cannot take them on a street or highway that is higher than 35 miles per hour ... We use them for short hops. They can go anywhere around Main Post, so they work real well for us."

He said the environmental office spent between $11,000 and $16,000 per vehicle. Heaters, fans, bumpers, doors, dome lights and windshield wipers were among the accessories added after purchase.

Tony Westbrook, a pollution prevention planner for DPW's environmental management division, said the cars generated savings of about $335 per vehicle in fuel costs and 2,248 pounds total in carbon dioxide emissions.

"It's a good way to promote clean air and reduce pollution at the same time," he said.

Lukken said the 44 electric cars set to arrive here are "more versatile" and capable of traveling longer distances on a single charge. The Directorate of Logistics will handle distribution to units across post.

'Papa' calls it a career after 49 years with USAMU

Michael Molinaro
USAMU PAO

After more than 50 years, William O. Harden, with the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, said it's finally time to mow the lawn.

Harden, who was honored Sept. 11 at the National Infantry Museum, retired after serving 52 years of active and civilian service.

Warden

"W.O.'s lifetime of service with the United States Army Marksmanship unit is almost a complete reflection of its history," said LTC Daniel Hodne, commander, USAMU. "He has been an instrumental part of every one of the unit's weapons development projects. A vital unit function to the Army in an effort to increase its combat readiness and a vital unit function to the nation as it is not always foreseeable when we may find ourselves fighting a long war."

Known as "Papa" to those who work with him, Harden has been with the unit for 49 of its 53 years of existence. He entered the Army as a Soldier in 1957 and started on a company-level two-man rifle team and continued until a piece of paper came across his desk in 1960 that changed his life forever.

"When I got a set of orders assigning me to the (USAMU) you can't believe how high my morale was to know I was walking into a unit known worldwide, the 'Home of Champions'," Harden said. "You had to work your way from the bottom to the top to get to the great Army Marksmanship unit. That was everybody's goal — to get assigned to the (USAMU).

He served a tour in Vietnam in 1967 before returning to the USAMU and gradually made the move from the service rifle team to the custom firearms shop where he became the noncommissioned officer-in-charge of the shop in 1975 until his retirement from the active Army in 1982 as a master sergeant. He was hired as the chief of the custom firearms shop six months later.

Under Harden's tutelage, the custom firearms shop has equipped Soldiers with specially modified and accurate weapons to increase their effectiveness on the battlefield. He led teams that developed all of the M-21 Sniper System for Vietnam, said Bob Aylward, executive officer, USAMU. He led the team that planned and supervised the testing and evaluation of 16 prototypes for the M-24 Sniper system. The modified M-16A4, designed by Harden's team for competition, has become the weapon of choice for special operations Soldiers.

"His ability to think, as well as form a team around him that could think for tomorrow, was extraordinary," Aylward said, who has worked with Harden since 1973. "His team is in the business of deeming what is needed in the future, developing the idea and in many cases creating the item and testing it."

Dedicated and hardworking are the two words Harden said he hopes people remember him by. His old-school demeanor may have scared a private or two at first but those that worked with him understood the real W.O. that many who met him briefly may have never known.

"The side of him I admired the most was when he would hear about one of his Soldiers or civilian employees having a hard time and very quietly give them help, with a threat to 'keep it quiet'," said SFC John Haidu, USAMU custom firearms shop NCOIC.

"He never helped anyone to get recognition for it. He was always there for his guys and sincerely cares about all the members of this unit and the Army as a whole. He is a patriot."

With the boxes in his office packed and the custom firearms shop firmly in the hands of Haidu and Steve Young, Harden isn't about to settle down in a recliner.

"I'm going to complete the unit library and get it up to standard," Harden said. "But I've got some things I have to do first. My wife told me to go get a job. So I'm going to paint the house and do some yard work that I haven't done in years."

Project: To bring back 'normalcy' for Ranger, wife

"It has been the most difficult thing I've ever done. I lost my husband, soul mate and best friend," she said. "But in the past two years, I've grown in my faith, and grown stronger emotionally and mentally. I've learned that not just from my husband, but also the guys on the floor, about what it means to persevere. They never give up."

RyAnne has not only been a caregiver and spouse, she's also become an advocate for long-term rehabilitation of Solders with "signature wounds" such as quadriplegia and traumatic brain injury stemming from the war on terrorism.

In late April, she testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee about difficulties in the aftermath of a severe battlefield injury, saying there needs to be adequate living facilities, resources and compensation available to troops and family members.

"I believe this country wants the best for these Soldiers coming home. They work so hard to get these guys functioning again back in society," she said. "The (Defense Department) spends billions of dollars on research for battlefield medical technology. It's superb. (But) rehabilitation science has not caught up to what they're able to save on the battlefield."

RyAnne said she wants to see Tricare legislation rewritten in a way that differentiates treatment of minimally conscious, combat-injured service members and those still on active duty.

"I believe they want to do what's right. It just takes time for change, like everything else that happens in the government. They just have to figure out how to best take care of them," she said. "I am so grateful to (Veterans Affairs) for what they've done for my husband."

The 75th Ranger Regiment has remained in contact with Scot and RyAnne and continues to fight for him, she said.

SFC George Smith, now NCOIC of the regiment's public affairs office, served in the same company with Noss in Afghanistan.

"We see him trying to fight and know he's still inside. It's just a matter of time before he gets out," Smith said. "It shows a true Ranger right there, continuing to fight, even with all the adversity he's facing. It just shows the true meaning of being a Ranger: Never quit, never give up."

RyAnne said the house in Alabama will allow them to be closer to her family in Birmingham.

According to the organization's Web site, Homes for Our Troops was founded in 2004 by John Gonsalves, a construction supervisor from Raynham, Mass. Through the end of last year, it had built more than three dozen homes across the country for service members with serious disabilities and injuries. About 30 more are in the build phase this year.

"(Gonsalves) is the most generous man I've ever known," RyAnne said. "They called me up and said we need to apply for a home. They found us somehow. He is a huge patriot and wants to give back, and he has. The effort has been huge.

"When people want to give you homes or vans or money, I've been told it's their way of saying 'thank you.' It makes me happy to know people do care and are aware of what Scot sacrificed for this country."

Throughout his recovery, RyAnne said she maintains her spirits through faith in God and inspiration from Scot.

"I gain strength from Scot each and every day I walk in that room," she said. "He is still fighting to regain function. And I gain strength from that. If he's not giving up, I'm not giving up."

RyAnne said she provides updates on his condition and progress via a Web site called caringbridge.org. To access it, type "ScottNoss" into the visitor's block.

"Looking at these men and women fight every day to regain function, it's amazing what it does to your own strength," she said. "It hasn't been rosy the whole trip. It's been an emotional roller coaster. But if God had told me before we got married that this is what would happen to Scot, I still would've married my man. I've seen wives pack up and leave. I've seen so many families who are not supportive, leaving these Soldiers to fight for themselves. I'm sticking it out.

"You can be bitter and not want to do anything for anyone, or you can be better, and work to better the situation — use the situation to grow as a person to help others. I chose to better myself, better Scot and help others who are in the same situation, because there are going to be others like Scot who come back from this war."

For information about donating to the Noss project, visit www.homesforourtroops.org/site/PageServer?pagename=ScotNoss.

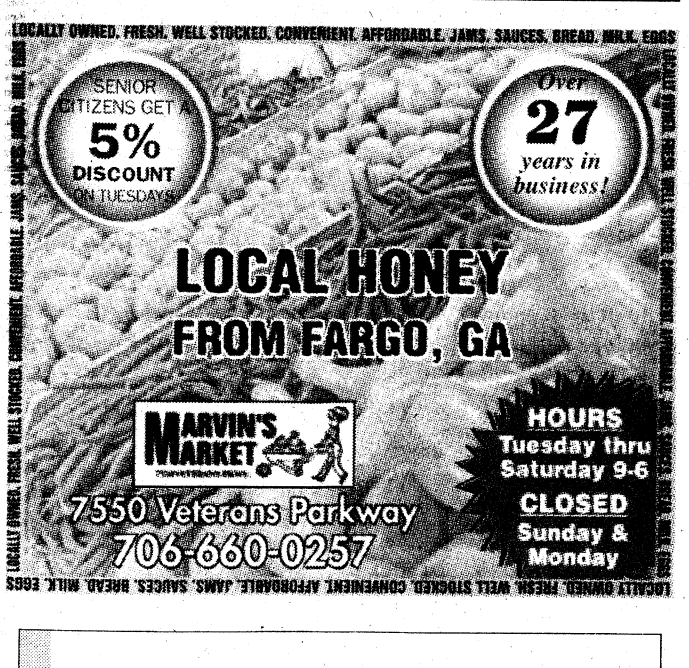
Flu: Prevented by good hygiene limited supply starting in mid-to-late October. Additional information on the H1N1 vaccine will be forthcoming as it becomes available.

Fort Benning implemented a flu-condition scale, a subjective yet metric-based tool the installation commander can use to measure flu activity on post, said Terry Beckwith, the hospital's public affairs officer. It is a five-step scale, going from green, which signifies no flu activity, to black, meaning a severe flu pandemic.

"We are currently at FLUCON Orange due to the H1N1 flu strain that has been circulating worldwide since last spring," Beckwith said. "We are taking fairly aggressive preventative measures. Everyone entering the hospital is asked to use hand gel at the entrances and at the entrances to all medical treatment facilities."

Patients can be a member of the "flu team," Beckwith said, by practicing good hand hygiene at all time, keeping hands away from their mouths and eyes, staying home when sick and asking for a mask if visiting Martin Army Community Hospital, not only to protect themselves but also the staff at the hospital. The staff is monitoring the schools, trainees, Fort Benning personnel and clinics on a daily basis for any evidence of increased flu activity.



"Lastly, we are very actively planning for expansion of our services, should the need arise," she said.

1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, dedicated a monument to an Airborne legend Sept. 25. Geronimo, a German shepherd mix, was the regiment's airborne mascot in the early 1940s.

SFC(R) Jesse Mendez, a dog handler who served three tours in Vietnam, places a flag for the ceremony. Maxine Schwartz created the bronze plaque mounted on a black granite pedestal to memorialize Geronimo and PVT Ken Williams. It was placed near the War Dog Memorial on Sacrifice Field.

During World War II, Geronimo, the mascot of the 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, received national recognition when an article covering his eighth parachute jump appeared in the Sept.13, 1943 edition of Life Magazine. More than 60,000 spectators in Alliance, Neb., witnessed the four-legged paratrooper descend to earth and stand in place until disconnected from his chute by PVT Ken Williams, a paratrooper who purchased the German shepherd mix while training at Fort Benning.

A monument on Sacrifice Field was dedicated to the Airborne mascot Sept. 25.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Pennington out for season

Miami Dolphins quarterback Chad Pennington is expected to miss the rest of the season with a torn capsule in his throwing shoulder. Pennington said he will get a second opinion from an orthopedic specialist who has performed two other surgeries on his shoulder.

Pennington was hurt Sunday in San Diego, where the Dolphins lost 23-13 to the Chargers.

Chad Henne is expected to make his first NFL start Sunday at home against the Buffalo Bills.

Meyer hopeful for Tebow start

Florida coach Urban Meyer said he is hopeful quarterback Tim Tebow will start in their biggest game of the year Oct. 10 at LSU.

Tebow sustained a concussion at Kentucky Saturday and was taken to the hospital via ambulance.

Tebow said he still has a "little bit of a headache."

Was there ever a doubt?

Although Phil Mickelson won the Tour Championship in Atlanta Sunday, it was Tiger Woods who claimed the FedEx Cup title.

Woods also won the Cup in 2007, and Vijay Singh cruised to victory last year while Woods was sidelined with an injury.

Johnson posts win at Dover

Jimmie Johnson won the second race in the Chase for the Sprint Cup Sunday at Dover International Speedway, leaving him just 10 points behind leader Mark Martin in the standings.

Johnson has won three straight championships, and could make history by winning his fourth in November.

Joey Logano, driver of the No. 20 car, had a scary moment after being involved in an accident that launched his car and caused it to roll eight times. Logano, 19, walked away from the wreck and was fine.

This week's race begins at 2 p.m. Sunday from Kansas Speedway. All remaining races will be shown on ABC.

Top 25 shake up

Although four top-10 teams lost, the top three remained the same in The Associated Press college football poll.

Florida, Texas and Alabama remained in the top three. LSU moved up to fourth, and Boise State claimed the fifth spot. Virginia Tech (No. 6), USC (No. 7) and Ohio State (No. 9) are back in the top 10.

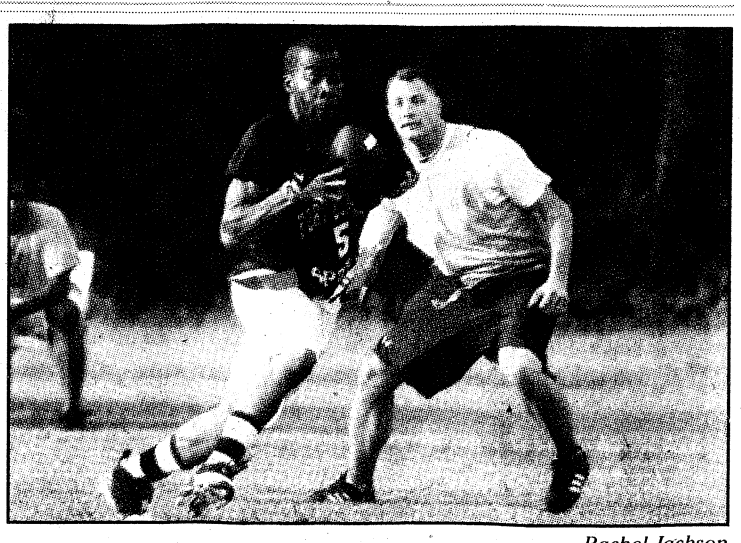
Oklahoma is No. 8 and Cincinnati claimed the 10th spot, its best ranking ever.

Kelley Hill wins 25-18

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

Kelley Hill defeated the Rangers 25-18 in an intramural flag football game Monday at Essebagger Field.

Galvin Smith scored on Kelley Hill's first possession of the game with a touchdown run and with the one-point conversion led 7-0.



Michael Brown added another score for Kelley Hill returning a fumble recovery 38 yards for a touchdown to increase Kelley Hill's lead to 13-0. Ranger Robert Etheridge closed Kelley's Hill lead to 13-6 scoring on a two-yard touchdown run to end the first half with Kelley Hill leading 13-6.

Kelley Hill added two more scores on a 26-yard interception return by Smith for a touchdown and a Kateesh McDonald touchdown catch to lead 25-6.

The Rangers came back in the closing minutes of the game, scoring on two V.J. McDonald touchdown runs but time expired on the Rangers, sealing a Kelley Hill 25-18 win.

Chimene Evans and Hands of Stone go over the sixth jump of the cross-country course in the beginner novice division at Poplar Place Farm Sunday during the September Horse Trials. They placed 11th in the division. The three-day event features dressage, cross-country and show jumping events. Poplar Place Farm is in Hamilton, Ga. The next horse trials at Poplar are Nov. 14-15. Race for a Cure set for Oct. 24

Event promotes breast cancer awareness

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

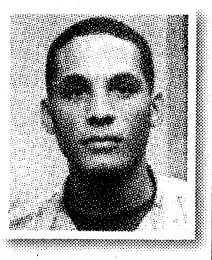
In observance of breast cancer awareness month, the Martin Army Health Promotion Center will host Race for a Cure, a two-mile run and walk, from 10 a.m. to noon Oct. 24 at Stewart-Watson Field next to Smith Fitness Center.

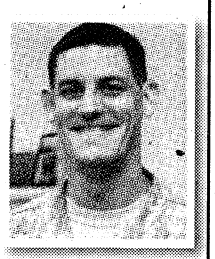
"The main goal of the run is to get the word out about breast cancer prevention," said public health nurse Patrice Cathright of the Department of Preventive Medicine at Martin Army Community Hospital.

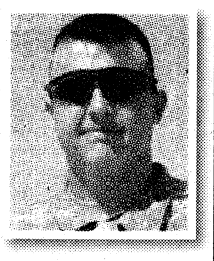
"Early detection is the best prevention. That way, you can know early on if there any problems and you can go with the latest treatment and have a better outcome."

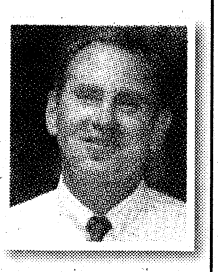
Aside from non-melanoma skin cancer, breast cancer is the most common cancer among women, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Web site. Breast cancer is ranked in the top 10 causes of death for women in the United States.

Breast cancer can be detected early by self-breast exams, mammograms and yearly exams, Cathright said.

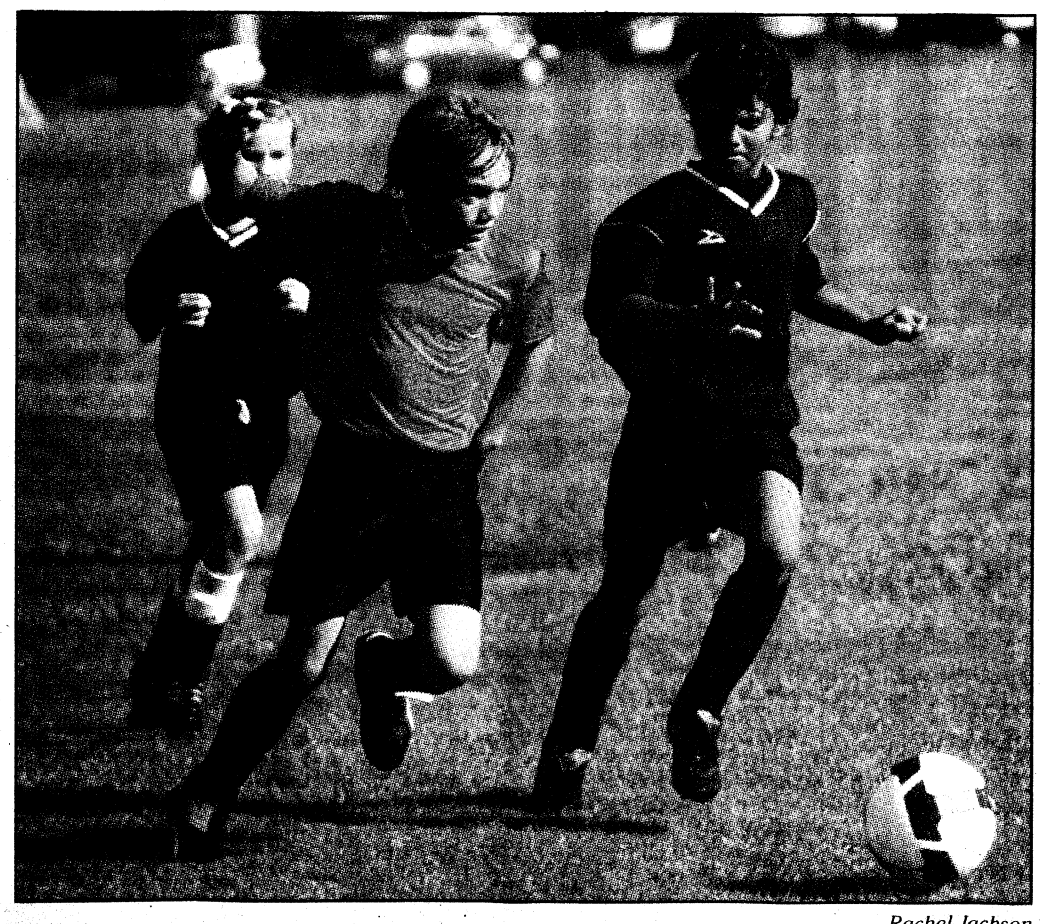








Participants can get information about breast cancer prevention and ask hospital staff questions they have about breast cancer at the event.



Cathright said people should take preventive measures not only for themselves but for their family and friends because cancer is devastating for both the patient and family and friends.

The health promotion center had 100 participants in 2008, but Cathright said she is hoping for more this year.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. on the day of the event. To preregister, call 706-545-1987.

Blazing Dragons blaze past Black Bandits 2-1

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

The 9- to 11-year-old Blazing Dragons defeated the Black Bandits 2-1 in their first soccer game of the season Saturday at French Field.

After both teams battled back and forth, Black Bandit Gabbi Brobeck scored. Brobeck's goal was set up after her team was awarded a corner kick.

The Blazing Dragons answered with a goal by Samuel Solomon tying the score, 1-1. Solomon scored another goal in the second half, putting the Blazing Dragons on top 2-1. The Black Bandits were in scoring territory late in the game but before they could score, the game ended with a Blazing Dragons 2-1 win.

"It was a hard game," Solomon said. "The other team's defense and offense was really good. We had great teamwork and leadership. I think our team will do well this season. If we lose any games this season, it's okay as long as we have fun."

Blazing Dragons coach Tammy Donahue said the first game of the season went well.

"I think both teams fought hard and stuck with it to the end," she said.

Teams from ages 3-11 will play soccer from 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays until Nov. 14. Spectators are welcome.

Kelley Hill: Ends season

at first but we got back in the game," said Smith who coaches Kelley Hill.

"We were missing key players and only had eight players, but we pulled together as a team for the win."

Brown said the game was challenging.

"We played around a little bit in the beginning but when they got back in the game, we got serious," he said. "It got pretty close toward the end of the game but we stayed strong on defense."

Because Kelley Hill will leave for a one-year deployment, it was their final game of the season.

"Winning our game was a good way to end the season," Brown said.

Never give up, no matter what

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

I have my own version of the DirecTV commercial for the NFL Sunday Ticket — it goes something like this — "There's 12 seconds left in the game, Brett Favre escapes defensive pressure and launches the ball toward the end zone ..." Then, the screen goes blank.

As the commercial goes, the actor says, "But you missed it because ..." you were attending a baby shower or some other lame excuse and why you, the viewer, would not have missed it if you had DirecTV and the NFL Sunday Ticket.

This was not the case for me Sunday when Favre threw a game-winning touchdown pass with two seconds remaining in the game against San Francisco.

I relearned a valuable lesson Sunday — never give up.

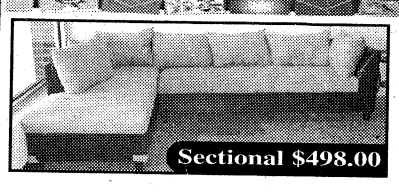
Although I wasn't attending a baby shower, I had left the Sports Page where I was watching the game, with less than two minutes remaining. Minnesota was out of timeouts, the 49ers had the ball, and based on the history of the Vikings in recent years, I thought the game was over. Minutes later, my brother sent me a text message. It had two letters — "TD."

I hit the browser on my Blackberry. The score read: Minnesota 27, San Francisco 24 — I almost cried.

Why? Not from joy because my team had won. No, it was because I forgot an important lesson I drilled into my children and every athlete I coached over 12 years — never give up on yourself or your team.

Another lesson I learned early in life was "practice what you preach." I didn't do a very good job of that Sunday.

I have often said sports teaches lessons that last a lifetime, but sometimes we have to be reminded of those lessons.



I will never give up again.

Soldier looks to make mark driving

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

Curtis Haney is following a dusty trail blazed by his father in the world of dirt track racing. Now, he's hoping to make a mark during his second season at East Alabama Motor Speedway.

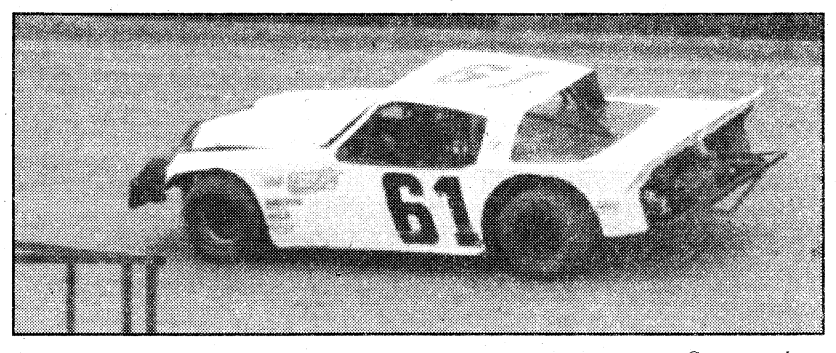
The 25-year-old sergeant, who's assigned to Fort Benning's 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, appeared in six events this year in the Hobby Class at the 3/8-mile dirt track in Phenix City. Driving the No. 61 entry, he earned a fifth-place finish June 16 and a career-best second during an Extreme Power Sports Tuesday Night Thunder race two weeks later.

Haney said he plans to compete in the 35th annual National 100 next month — unless the Army calls him to duty in Iraq first. He's set to deploy with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team but might not go with the main body. It will be his fourth deployment.

Nicknamed "Tater," Haney said he was a teenager growing up in Winder, Ga., when his dad introduced him to dirt track racing. Mark Haney also built the engine for his son's race car, a combination 1971 Chevelle frame with a 1981 Camaro body.

Last December, Haney re-enlisted in the Army and used some of the bonus money to completely overhaul his car, he said. The motor is worth $5,000, with the chassis valued at $10,000.

Haney wasn't a factor in this year's Hobby Class point standings due to his part-time status on the circuit. But working on the car gobbles up about 75 percent of his spare time.



He said it's all worthwhile when he gets behind the wheel.

"The feeling you get running around the track — it can't be explained," he said. "The adrenaline is pumping, you get tunnel vision in what you're doing ... It is a great sport and we need to get more fans. Most people are into NASCAR but the thing to remember is, 'Dirt is for racing; asphalt is for getting there.'"

Haney said funding and sponsorship is key to climbing the racing ladder. Occasionally, he'll win enough prize money to cover the entrance fee and fuel. But his tires cost $130 a piece.

"We put a lot of time and money into this sport, with little or no sponsor funding. I get some help from other racers. We are like a family out here," he said. "But I'm not there to make money. I'm in it for the fun."

Haney said he'd like to slide up to the modified division after the Iraq deployment but ultimately wants to drive in late model, the premier series at East Alabama Motor Speedway.

Northeastern Packers defeat Benning Bengals

Rachel Jackson

Fort Benning's Calvin Lowery runs the ball as Northeastern's Derrick James (24) and Essang Bassey (7) try to tackle him Saturday at Midland Middle School. The Packers won 12-6.

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

The 11- to 13-year-old Northeastern Packers defeated the Fort Benning Bengals 12-6 Saturday at Midland Middle School in their first game of the season.

Essang Bassey scored on the Packers first possession on a 34-yard touchdown for a 6-0 lead over the Bengals. The Bengals had five possessions before halftime, but couldn't put the ball in the end zone.

Following a scoreless third quarter, Bassey scored another touchdown with 6:51 remaining in the final quarter to increase the Packers' lead to 12-0. After a Bengals' interception, the Bengals rallied with 2:46 remaining in the fourth quarter, scoring on a 38-yard touchdown run by Calvin Lowery. The Bengals were in scoring territory once more in the final minute of the game, but fell short with an incomplete pass in the end zone.

"It was a tough game," Packers coach Frank Watts said. "Fort Benning has a pretty aggressive football team. Our guys hung in there against a bigger football team and we came out on top. The game could have went either way. Both teams played well on defense. Neither of our offenses were able to get anything going today.

"At halftime, we talked about keeping our composure," he said. "We had a couple times we could have scored and we didn't — we had a couple of points get away."

Bassey said he knew the game was going to be tough.

"Fort Benning has a good quarterback and most of the older kids were on the line, so I knew it was going to be challenging," he said. "We tried our best and we worked really hard. Even though we had some mistakes, we still pulled through for the win. Our defense is what helped us win this one. And our pass coverage was great."

Up next for the Packers is a game against The Eastway Cherokees at 2 p.m. Saturday at Shirley Winston Park. The Bengals take on the Clubview Bulldogs at 10 a.m. Saturday at Lakebottom Park.

USAMU Soldier gets perfect score of 600

Soldiers from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit shot their way onto the medal stand Sept. 23 at the 2009 International Rifle and Pistol Fall Selection "Champion of Champions" matches at Pool International Shooting Complex.

SFC Eric Uptagrafft won first place in the Men's Rifle 50-meter prone event and was followed by SPC Joseph Hein, USAMU. Uptagrafft scored a perfect 600 to advance to the final round and outlasted his USAMU teammate. Former USAMU Soldier Steve Goff rounded out the top three.

In the Men's 50-meter free pistol match, three 2008 Olympians battled for first place. Brian Beaman came out on top, defeating SFC Daryl Szarenski of the USAMU, and Jason Turner.

Shooters are attempting to qualify for spots on the national team to compete in the 2010 World Championships as well as multiple World Cup events in 2010.

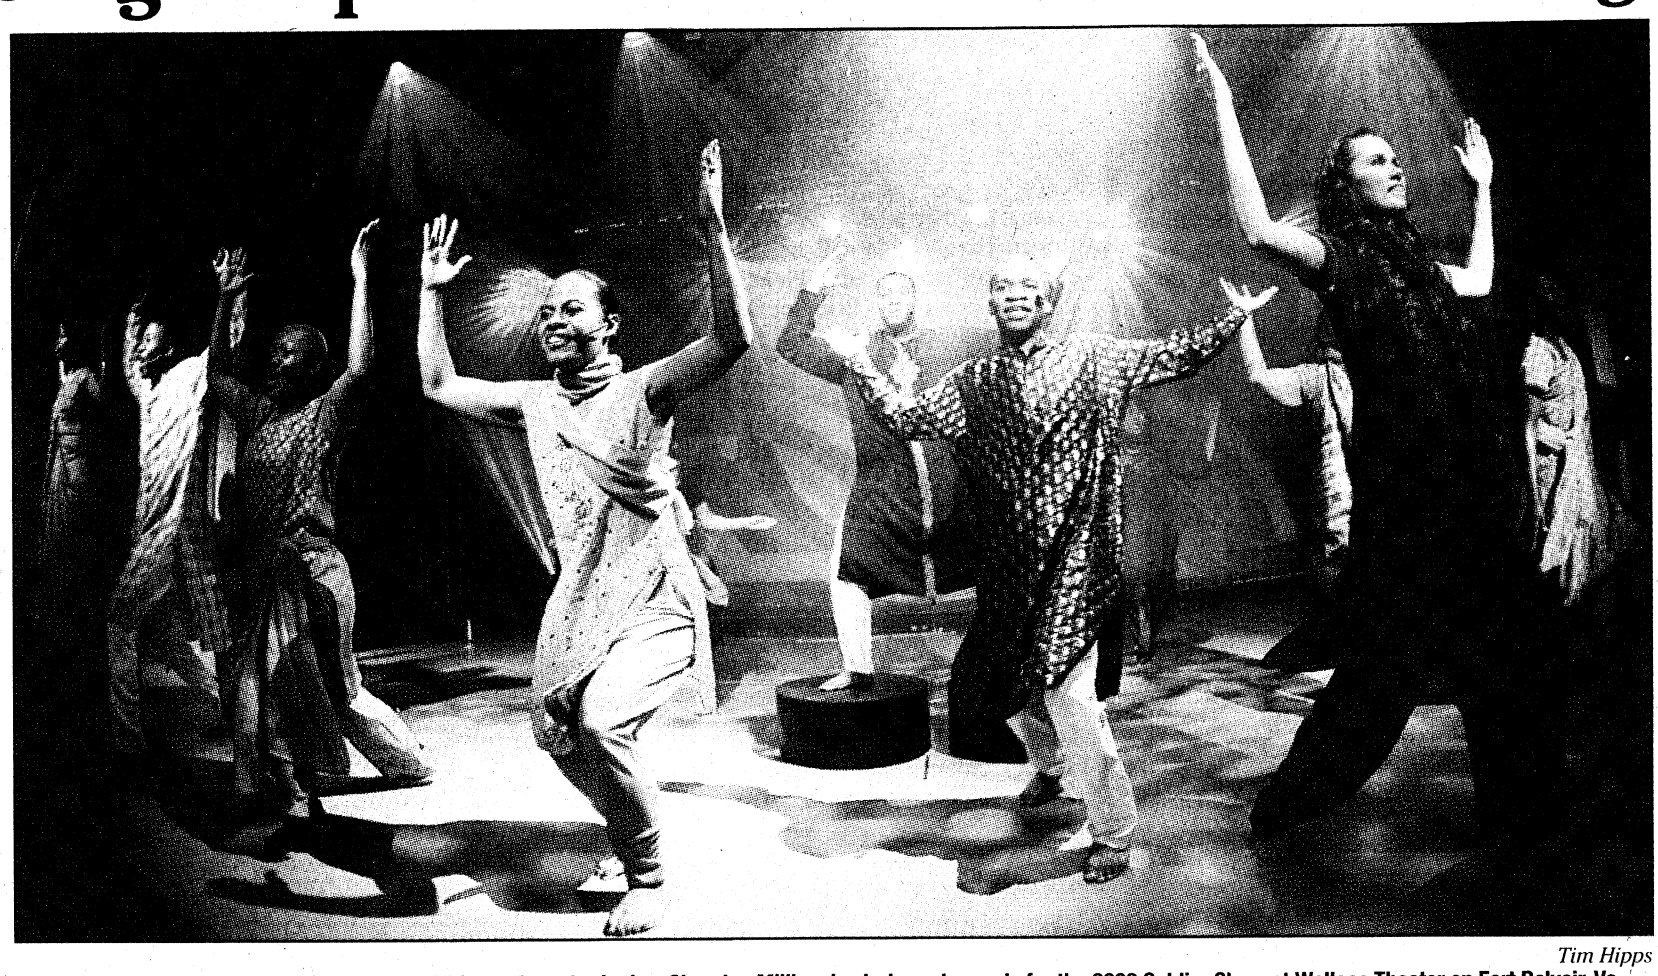
Army stars light up Soldier show at Fort Benning

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET



The 2009 U.S. Army Soldier Show takes center stage at Wetherby Field at 8 p.m. today.

The show is sponsored by I. A.M. STRONG, the Army's Prevention of Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault Program, and AT&T.

The theme of this year's production is "Lights! Camera! Action!" and features a wide range of popular music and dance numbers from artists such as Kenny Loggins, T-Pain, Duffy, Solange Knowles, Kanye West and Rhianna.

The 90-minute live production showcases the talents of 22 active-duty Soldiers — 15 performers and seven technicians — who represent various specialties within the Army, from a combat medic to a petroleum specialist. Their ranks include a graduate of the North Atlanta High School for Performing Arts, a roller-skating jamskater and a former morning radio show personality.

Woman shares 'breast cancer journey'

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

"I'm going to die one day, but it's not going to be from breast cancer," said Carmen Davis, marketing manager for Army Community Service. It was the same sentiment she told herself nearly six months ago when she was diagnosed with ductal carcinoma in situ, or "stage-zero" breast cancer.

The second-leading cause of cancer death in women, breast cancer affects about one in eight women, with about a 3 percent mortality rate, according to the American Cancer Society.

"I was not supposed to be that one in eight," Davis said. "That was something the neighbor's wife got, your co-worker, the postal lady; it was just not supposed to be me. I had other plans that did not include breast cancer.

"I walked in a fog for about a week. And then one day a light went off in my head, and I said, 'I have breast cancer; it doesn't have me.' And I never looked back."

After three surgeries, Davis is cancer-free. Now, she wants to get the message out to women of all ages that the best chance of recovery lies in regular examinations.

"I am a product of early detection and a product of due diligence on a yearly examination. I had no lump, no bump, no mass. I didn't have anything that would have led to tell me I needed to go. I just go every year at the same time," she said. "I've had women tell

Find cool gifts at Benning Bazaar

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

If you are looking for the perfect gift for a loved one this holiday season, check out the Community Spouses' Club's Benning Bazaar Oct. 17-18.

The bazaar is the nonprofit organization's largest CSC fundraiser of the year, with all proceeds going toward scholarships and welfare requests in the community, said Kaye Goldthorpe, chairwoman of the Benning Bazaar.

Last year, CSC contributed $38,000 toward scholarships and organizations such as the Springer Opera House, Santa's Castle, 'PAWS Humane Society, Army Community Services, Challenger Little League Baseball, Girls Inc., Army Family Team Building and Disabled American Veterans.

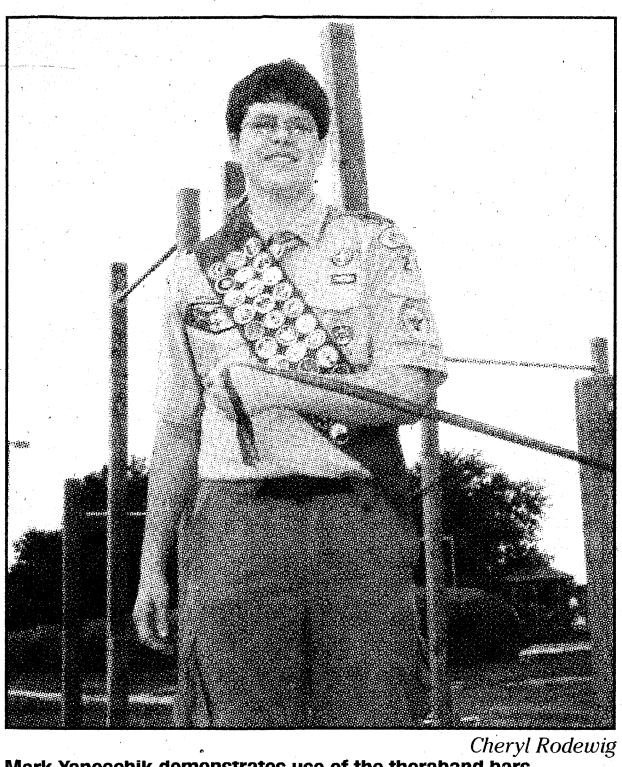
Club president Mary Ring said the CSC hopes to match that number if not exceed it this year.

The CSC will raffle an Americana quilt at the bazaar. Shoppers must guess at the number of goldfish in a jar on display, then submit their answer for $1. The winner will take home a one-of-a-kind quilt.

The "shop 'til you drop" event continues to draw in vendors and Goldthorpe said she hopes to fill 100 booths.

"The bazaar is a chance for shoppers to see what local crafters are creating," she said.

Monogrammed purses, art, pottery, antiques, wooden crafts, glassworks, jewelry, textiles and food items will be available for purchase.



The event will also offer a kiddie ride area with a train.

Kids can ride all day with a $5 wristband.

The bazaar is still accepting vendors and applications are available at www.fortbenningosc.org.

The bazaar will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 17 and noon to 4 p.m. Oct. 18 inside Building 2491at Lawson Army Airfield. Admission is $2 for adults; children 12 and younger are free.

Scout builds PT field for wounded warriors

Mark Yanoschik demonstrates use of the theraband bars.

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Fort Benning has a new PT field, researched and engineered by 15-year-old Mark Yanoschik.

Mark began his Eagle Scout project, a PT course designed with the needs of wounded warriors in mind, in February. With the help of LTC Sean Mulcahey, commander of the Warrior Transition Battalion, Mark measured the materials, discussed the construction with engineers and physical therapists and finally broke ground in April.

Most Scouts try to finish their projects during the summer, but Mark said he wanted the field to be available to WTB Soldiers as quickly as possible.

"I just figured the sooner the better; the sooner they had the PT field, the sooner these Soldiers could go out and use it," said Mark, a sophomore at Columbus High School. "I was trying to do the Eagle project at the same time (as) school work, and it was freshman year, so I was still getting used to all of that. I found it very hard, but in the end it was rewarding."

Like a traditional PT field, the new field, located inside the WTB complex, includes push-up, sit-up, pull-up and dip bars. However, it also has a set of bars designed for use with a theraband, a rubber exercise band used in rehabilitation, and a lowered pull-up bar for wheelchair-bound Soldiers.

"It gives our Soldiers an opportunity to enhance their rehabilitation," said Mulcahey, current Scoutmaster for Troop 27, Mark's Boy Scout troop.

"A lot of our Soldiers want to get through their injuries and their wounds

PIE kicks off new school year

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

The 2009-2010 Partners in Education school year kicked off Friday at the Columbus Convention and Trade Center. Partners in Education pairs businesses, military units and civic organizations with schools to foster children's academic, physical and personal growth.

"'Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has,'" said COL Thomas Macdonald, Fort Benning garrison commander, quoting anthropologist Margaret Mead during the opening welcome Friday.

The idea of a few committed individuals making a difference with inspirational leadership is what drives Partners in Education, he said.

"The mission of Partners in Education is to enhance the quality of education of our citizens by establishing and maintaining

DISABILITY EMPLOYMENT AWARENESS MONTH

October is Disability Employment Awareness Month and Sayers Memorial Library has a display containing books, Exceptional Family Member Program resource materials and guides related to various disabilities.

Soldiers and family members may visit Army Community Service's EFMP office in Building 2624 at Soldiers' Plaza to pick up resource magazines, directories and giveaways.

Family members enrolled in EFMP who meet specific medical and educational criteria may qualify for respite care services. For more information, call 706-545-5521.

THRIFT SHOP, BIT OF BENNING

The Thrift Shop and the Bit of Benning gift shop will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. The Thrift Shop will take consignments until noon.

The regular hours for each shop are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and the first Saturday of each month. The Bit of Benning, which is also open from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. every Friday, hosts after-hours events, which can be scheduled by calling 706-225-7436.

Leftovers from the Postwide Yard Sale can be donated to the Thrift Shop. They can be left on the loading dock in the back of the building. Tax receipts are available at 10 a.m. Tuesday when the shop reopens.

Volunteers are needed at both shops. Anyone interested can stop by during regular business hours. The shops are in Building 229 at the corner of Ingersoll and Dixie roads, behind the new Child Development Center.

COMBINED FEDERAL CAMPAIGN

Two events are scheduled to highlight the 2009 Columbus/Fort Benning regional Combined Federal Campaign.

The CFC Hero Competition, a version of Guitar Hero, and Agency Fair are set for 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the PX GameStop location. The competition starts at 11 a.m. Prizes will be awarded for top scores.

A "Lunch and Putt Competition" takes place 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Oct. 13 at the Fort Benning Golf Course. The lunch will be pay-as-you-go, while the top putters on post battle for prizes and bragging rights.

Each event is open to the Fort Benning public. For more information, call Laura Walker at 706-545-9782.

TROOPS TO TEACHERS PROGRAM

Bill Kirkland, manager of the Georgia Troops to Teachers Program, will conduct a 90-minute "Transition to Teaching" seminar at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in Module C's Classroom 7. The Module C trailer is closest to the running track on the corner of Eckel and Chesney streets.

Veterans who qualify for the program are eligible to receive a stipend of up to $5,000 to pay for teacher certification and a one-time bonus up to $10,000 once they start teaching. Call 706-545-3299 for more information. For information on the Georgia Troops to Teachers or Georgia Spouses to Teachers programs, call 800-745-0709 or visit www.tttga.net.

PATIENT EDUCATION CLASSES

The Department of Family Medicine has many group visits available to all Tricare beneficiaries. The voluntary, interactive sessions are set up to enlist and validate patients as their own caregivers and address their concerns.

All group visits are held at Martin Army Community Hospital in the Department of Family Medicine's Connelly Conference Room. Future meeting topics include:

"Tobacco Cessation" from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3 and Dec. 1. Other sessions are scheduled for 3 to 4:30 p.m. Oct. 20, Nov. 17, Dec. 15 and Jan. 12.

"Hypertension Education," a discussion about high blood pressure led by a family physician, clinical pharmacist and dietician, takes place 9 to 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 5 and Dec. 3. Call 706-544-4853 for more information.

Other sessions include "End of Life Care and Advanced Directives," 2 to 4 p.m. Nov. 24; "Fall Prevention As We Age," 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 8; "Herbal Supplements: Helpful and Harmful," 2 to 4 p.m. Feb. 16; and "Treatment of Osteoarthritis," 2 to 4 p.m. March 2.

Appointments are not required.

BENNING BAZAAR

The Fort Benning Community Spouses Club will hold its annual Benning Bazaar Oct. 17-18 at Lawson Army Airfield Hangar. It's scheduled for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the opening day and noon to 4 p.m. Oct. 18.

The event features more than 100 vendors offering antiques, arts and crafts, jewelry, pottery, glassworks and other unique items. There also will be food and kiddie rides. The entry fee is $2 but children ages 12 and younger get in free.

For more information, call 706-405-7477 or send an e-mail to ftbenningbazaar@yahoo.com.

'HELP THE HOOCH' CLEANUP

Outdoor Recreation is holding its annual "Help the Hooch" cleanup event Oct. 19. Volunteers will meet at Building 4 at 8 a.m. before heading to the Uchee Creek Campground and Marina. Gloves, trash bags and other supplies will be provided.

Participants receive a free lunch and T-shirt. For details, call 706-545-9636.

NEWCOMERS ORIENTATION

Army Community Service has a Newcomer Orientation and Bus Tour from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Oct. 23 for Soldiers, families and civilians new to Fort Benning.

The program is free and child care is provided. For more information or child-care reservations, call 706-545-0403.

'SHARE IN THE SCARES' AT 13TH CSSB HAUNTED HOUSE

The tricommunity is invited to "Share in the Scares" Oct. 23-24 at a Haunted House presented by the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion. It will be open 5 to 10 p.m. nightly at Engineer Field behind the water tower at the intersection of Dixie Road and Way Avenue.

For more information, call 706-545-0275.

TELL ME A STORY

Fort Benning's Parent to Parent group will sponsor "Tell Me A Story" — featuring special guest reader George DelGobbo — at 2 p.m. Oct. 25 on the lawn at Riverside.

For more information, call 706-405-9857 or send an e-mail to fortbenningp2p@yahoo.com.

HALLOWEEN GROUND RULES

Residents will observe Halloween with "trick or treating" for children ages 13 and younger from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Trick or treaters" should observe all basic safety precautions to include wearing reflective, fire-resistant costumes that are short enough to prevent tripping, using makeup instead of masks that may restrict vision, carrying a flashlight and exercising caution when crossing streets. Post residents are encouraged to limit "trick or treating" to the housing area in which they live.

Pet owners should confine their pets to prevent them from being a nuisance.

WIC PROGRAM CHANGES

Participants in Fort Benning's Women, Infants and Children supplemental nutrition program can choose from a wider variety of healthy foods such as fresh fruit and vegetables, whole-grain rice, cereal, tortillas, bread, soy, and lactose-free milk and tofu. Parents will be able to select either skim, 1 percent or 2 percent milk for their children age 2 or older.

WIC also has increased healthy food choices for mothers who choose to breast-feed only.

For those receiving WIC services at Fort Benning or local health departments, the new food packages will be phased in during October, November and December. Vendors will continue accepting old vouchers as the new vouchers are introduced.

The Fort Benning WIC office is in Building 2613 at Soldiers' Plaza. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 706-682-8455 to make an appointment or 800-789-5502 for more information.

TAPS SURVIVOR SEMINAR AND GOOD GRIEF CAMP

The Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors will be at Fort Benning Nov. 13-14 to provide its free "Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp."

The conferences offer information, resources and personal contact with fellow survivors. Workshops are designed to help survivors heal and cope with life after loss.

The TAPS Good Grief Camp for children and teens provides a safe, supportive atmosphere to conduct activities and opportunities to learn coping skills, establish and identify support systems, and create awareness that they are not alone in the grief of a loved one.

Register at www.taps.org/events. For more information, call Survivor Outreach Services at 706-545-7517 or visit www.benningmwr.com/acs-sos.php.

CONVENIENT CARE CLINIC

The Convenient Care Clinic at Martin Army Community Hospital is a health-care option that provides easy access and more choices.

The clinic, open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, features specially trained nurse practitioners who provide a variety of care services, including prescriptions for appropriate medications. It's available to adults and children 2 weeks and older. Appointments are not necessary but sick-call hours (8 to 10 a.m.) are limited to military only.

For more information, call 706-544-4810.

PARENTSHARE MEETINGS

ParentShare, a group of military parents with children who have special needs, meets from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the second Monday of every month at Sayers Memorial Library.

Children are welcome and a brown bag or pot-luck lunch is normally planned.

For more information, contact Cristina Castillo at 706-409-1224 or e-mail her at SpecNeedsAdvo@aol.com.

CVCC'S CAREER ADVANCEMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS

Chattahoochee Valley Community College offers courses for the Military Spouse Program, including diplomas and degrees in management, health care, business, accounting, homeland security, fire science and more.

The college also offers two free courses, Preparation for GED and English as a Second Language.

For more information, call Clovie Quick at 706-687-3420 or send an e-mail to clovie.quick@cv.edu.

SOUND CHOICES PREGNANCY CLINIC FUNDRAISER GALA

The Sound Choices Pregnancy Clinic will host its biannual gala and pro-life fundraiser at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 20 in the Columbus Convention and Trade Center. The guest speaker will be author and conservative commentator Star Parker.

Individual tickets are $35 and the fee includes dinner. The cost to sponsor a table of eight starts at $500 and there are various levels and advertising incentives.

The clinic provides free life-affirming medical, educational and counseling services for women in the community.

For more information call 706-322-2054.

WEDDINGS FOR WARRIORS

The Savannah Wedding Tourism Council is offering a free program called "Weddings for Warriors" on Veterans Day.

The project will allow military personnel from all branches to get married for free in Savannah on Nov. 11 as a token of appreciation for their service. Guard and reserve members also are eligible.

"Weddings for Warriors" organizers said a mass ceremony is not the intent. Instead, they want to provide each couple with a private setting to briefly exchange vows.

For more information, call Becky Byous at 912-656-6541 or visit www.weddingsforwarriors.com.

INFANTRY STORIES ONLINE

BAE Systems has launched a new Web site that allows Soldiers to share stories about their experiences with Bradley Fighting Vehicles. It's available at www.BradleyStories.com.

Strong Bonds retreats strengthen marriages

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

> "Most people go into marriage without a plan. They agonize for hours and hours about their retirement plan or what color to paint the bedroom, but they can't say where they want their marriage to be in five years or what their goals are for their marriage."
> — Chaplain (CPT) Al Wall

Finances, romance, communication, parenting, the in-laws — those are just a few of the topics discussed on a Strong Bonds marriage retreat, said Chaplain (CPT) Al Wall, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment.

The retreats help Soldiers work on their marriages and identify relationship goals, Wall said.

"It's pretty amazing that it's the biggest commitment we make in our life, and it's the one we put the least amount of planning into," he said. "Most people go into marriage without a plan. They agonize for hours and hours about their retirement plan or what color to paint the bedroom, but they can't say where they want their marriage to be in five years or what their goals are for their marriage."

The 198th Infantry Brigade holds about seven retreats per year for its cadre. The next one will be Nov. 20-22 in Panama City Beach, Fla. The retreat is free for Soldiers and their spouses and includes child care.

"My wife and I enjoyed it very much," said CPT Dan Keslar, who attended the brigade retreat Sept. 11-13. "We went just to reinforce some of the ideas and ideals we hold to. (Marriage) is forever. You stay committed no matter what, but just like every couple, we go through our hard times. We're striving to understand each other more, care for and appreciate each other more."

With a "captivating" and down-to-earth speaker, Keslar said he learned about gender stereotypes and how to appreciate the differences in the way men and women work.

Keslar's wife, Denyelle, said Strong Bonds was enlightening.

"The retreat meant a lot, just because we did spent quality time with each other; subjects were brought up that we needed to talk about in a setting that was relaxed. It opened up conversations," she said.

"Sometimes after you've been married for a while, you want to go out and do something where you can laugh together, something different. It was just a lot of fun. I loved it."

Laughter is a theme at the retreat. Couples learn about marriage and each other with the "Laugh your way to a better marriage" program. The issues the seminars help couples work through, however, are no laughing matter, Wall said.

"I've had couples teetering on the edge of divorce come away recommitted to each other," Wall said. "The divorce rate in the Army is pretty astronomical. The Army is just trying to help strengthen Soldiers and families, so that the support is there when they need. Keeping the family together as a unit is important. To strengthen families is to strengthen our nation, and that should be a priority."

The weekend isn't just for marriages on the rocks, he said.

"It's a tool every couple should have to assess their marriage and identify areas in their marriage that are causing problems," he said. "Marriage, like anything else in our lives, goes through wear and tear over time. It's just like your body. If you don't take care … things creep in over time that you don't want."

Strong Bonds retreats are Armywide, said Chaplain (MAJ) Douglas Hoover, Family Life chaplain.

"There are Strong Bonds retreats for married couples, families and singles," Hoover said. "All of us can benefit from learning about positive relationships."

Strong Bonds has a unique military focus that deals with some of the difficulties faced with multiple deployments, field time and extended TDY assignments, he said.

"It's not therapy," he said. "They're dynamic and fun. People have real positive reactions and positive feedback. I highly, highly recommend going on one. It'll give you a boost."

For more information about Strong Bonds, visit www.strongbonds.org. For other resources to help with your marriage, call the Chaplain Family Life Center at 706-545-1760.

Soldier Show: Opens today

"The Soldier Show is in line with the old World War I traveling entertainment shows," said Donna Hyatt, publicity and acting marketing manager for Fort Benning's Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation office. "People dance, sing, play music and tell jokes. That was the show's history and they keep to it today."

"Critics are hailing this as one of the best shows to come around in years," said Hyatt, who poured through blogs and MWR reports once the show premiered. "It's a family-friendly event so definitely bring the kids."

Soldier Show production director Victor Hurtado, said the audience will get to feel they are a part of the show.

"This audience is going to have the rare experience of feeling and being in a live television studio, including commercial breaks," he said.

Prior to the show's premiere at Fort Belvoir, Va., in April, Hurtado worked on TV productions Nashville Star, America's Got Talent, Clash of the Choirs and country performing artist Michael Peterson's My Real Life — Strong for America Tour.

Special features in this year's show include Frankie Smith's 1981 funk song Double Dutch Bus, performed while Soldiers jump rope on stage and Jai Ho from the multiple Oscar Award-winning film Slumdog Millionaire.

The show is open to the public and admission is free. Gates open at 6:30 p.m. Blankets and lawn chairs are recommended. Food and drink vendors will be on site. For directions and more information, visit www.benningmwr.com.

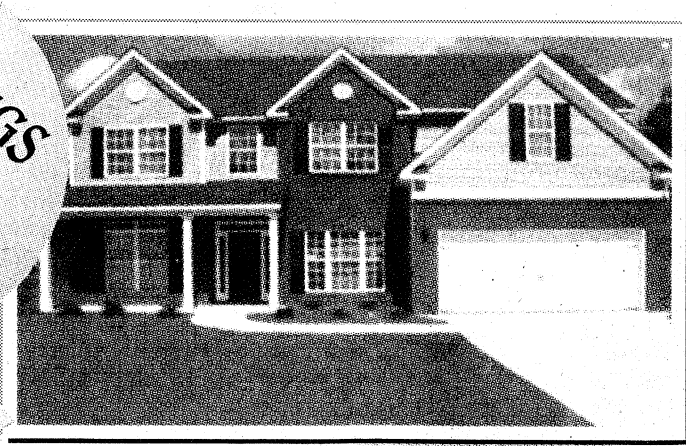
and get back to duty, and this gives a great opportunity for them to do it right here without having to go to the gym," he said. "It gets used pretty much every day. I use it myself every time I do PT along with my Soldiers."

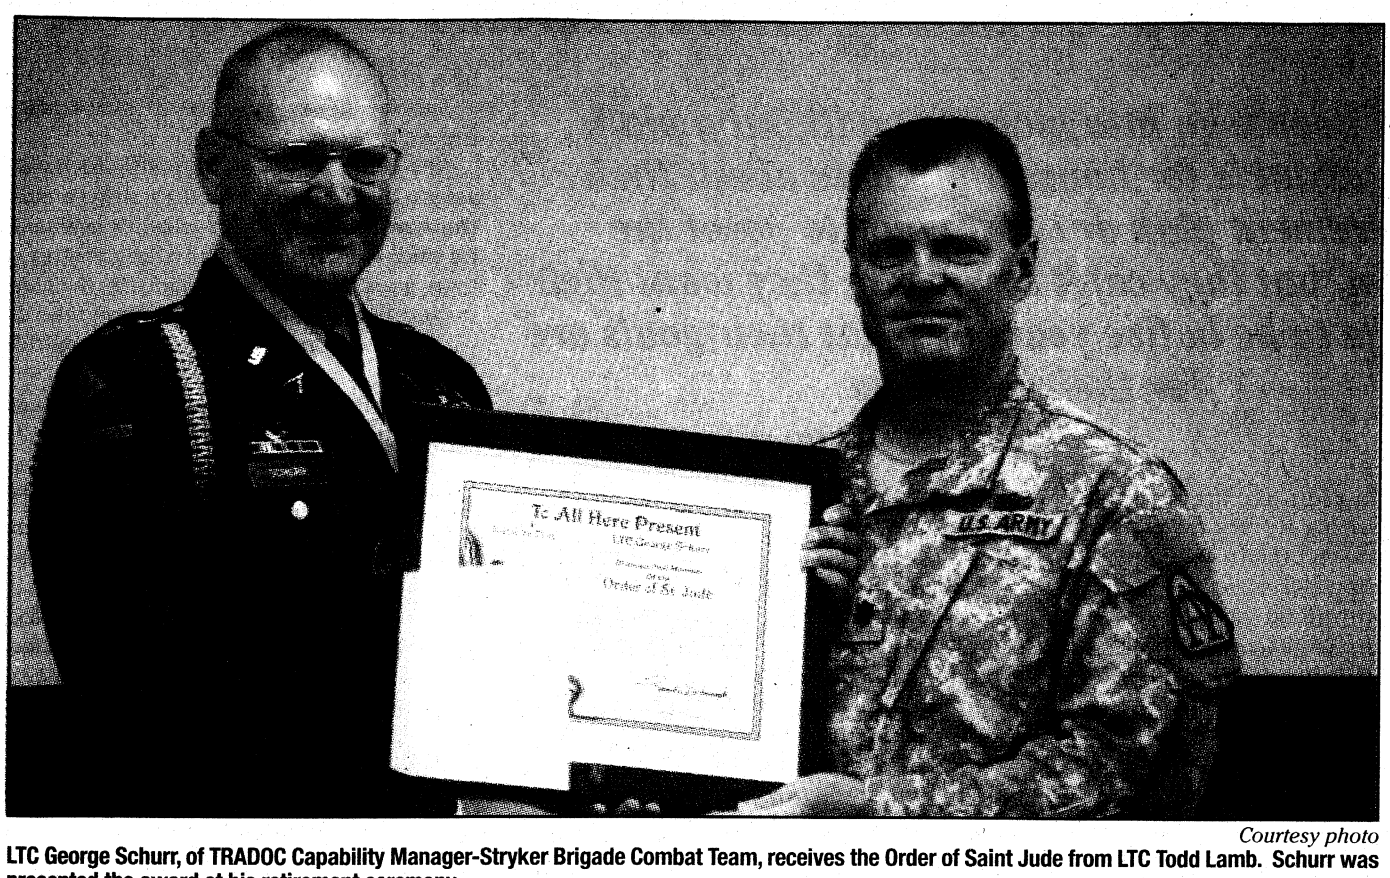
Mark, who lived on Army posts for his first 14 years, said he was happy to see the finished product helping Soldiers.

"It's hard when you're doing the work … you just wonder if it's really all going to be worth it. But once you look back on it, you can just be happy. You see that it's being put to use, it's helping people," he said. "The Army's been a lot in my life. I love being on post and seeing the Soldiers. Some of these Soldiers here are wounded because they're helping our country, so this was just a small contribution I could make to help them."



Last year, only 5 percent of Boy Scouts earned the rank of Eagle Scout, according to the Boy Scouts of America Web site.

"Making Eagle really is one of the first significant achievements for many young boys as they're going through the Scouting program," Mulcahey said. "I made my Eagle Scout in 1983. It's something that does last throughout your life — and most of the time you will find Eagle Scouts who will go on to bigger and better goals."



Mark was honored for his achievement Wednesday at the Benning Conference Center.

"It's a functional project that Soldiers are using, and I'm especially proud because it benefits wounded Soldiers," said LTC(R) Tom Yanoschik, Mark's father said assistant Scoutmaster for Troop 27. "As long as the unit is there, they'll be using it."

dynamic partnerships throughout the greater Columbus area," Macdonald said.

The program enriches the life experience of students, improves their academic performance, exposes them to potential career opportunities, contributes to faculty development and provides a great example of personal values."

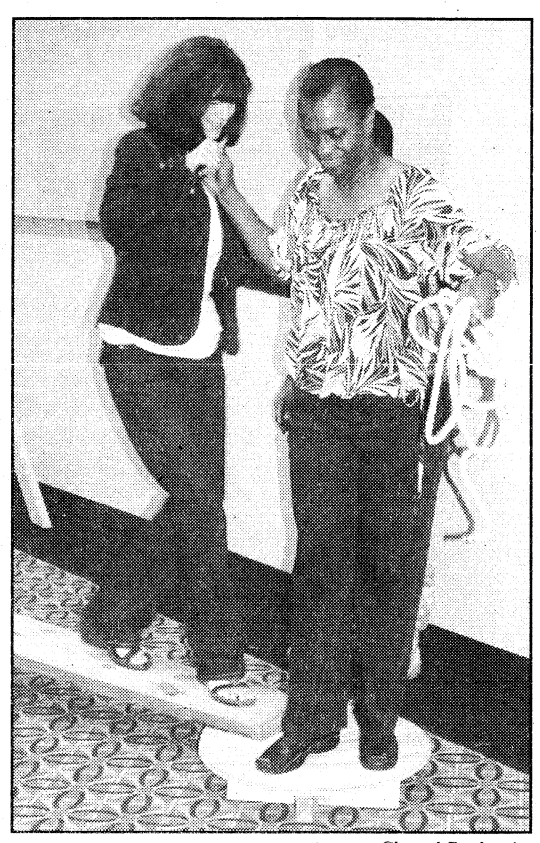
Ten-year-old Alejandra Mares, a member of the Loyd Elementary Choir, which sang at the conference, said she enjoys being part of the partnership.

"It's good that they work with us. We need help," she said. "They tell us all the cool things they have done. They are strong. They (are) role models for us."

Currently, 36 units on post partner with area schools, said Tawanna Brown, post school liaison.

The kickoff conference is an opportunity for teachers, administrators and partners to develop a strategy to take their PIE program to the next level, she said.

The event includes several breakout sessions, guest speakers and an overview of the award application for partnership of the year.



After an end-of-the-year evaluation, the top three partnerships will receive a grant for $1,000.

"Every year the partnerships are challenged to sit down and reevaluate their plan for the year — figure out what we can do better," Brown said. "It's just looking at things that are concerns for the schools and seeing how partners can assist."

Brown said she hopes the number of post units involved in PIE will increase as Fort Benning gains new Armor units.

"The benefits of the PIE program are immeasurable, and Fort Benning is honored to be part of such a great initiative," Macdonald said.

"What a privilege it is when a Soldier can give back to the community by helping children improve in their academics or helping them to build their self-esteem. Let's have a great school year."

Survivor: Warns women

me 'I don't want to know.' I've had women tell me 'I'm a little late this year but maybe I'll go next year' or 'I really need to do that; I haven't been in five years.' And I'm amazed."

Davis said she had none of the common precursors to cancer, such as a family history.

"The first thing I asked the doctor is 'What did I do wrong?' And she says, 'If we knew that, you and I wouldn't be sitting here talking.' We all have cells that could turn into cancer," Davis said. "They can turn at any time. I knew a young lady — she was 20 or 21 — invasive breast cancer, lost both of her breasts. You just never know."

Through what she calls "cancer encounters," Davis found many women younger than 40 were struggling with breast cancer. She met people of all ages and walks of life dealing with breast cancer in their own or their loved one's life.

"Iowa, Ohio, North Carolina, Tennessee — I kept meeting these people. We talk; we e-mail; we exchange pictures," Davis said. "So my therapy has been there's always somebody out there. What I want to do is make a difference."

Yasmith Cathright, a public health nurse with Martin Army Community Hospital, said preventative medicine is the best way to deal with breast cancer.

Although conventional wisdom suggests it is women ages 40 and older who need yearly mammograms, younger women may need regular check-ups as well. Cathright said women should know their family history and consult with their doctor in regards to mammogram frequency.

Cathright, who lost her aunt to breast cancer 23 years ago, said the seriousness of taking preventive steps hit home for her when two of her four female coworkers where diagnosed within six months of each other.

"It really brought it home," she said. "We should never get slack on our health, and we should always make sure we do what we need to do regardless. It's not a lengthy procedure to do self breast exams or to take care of yourself. Just take a minute out to do what you need to do: less stress, eat well, try not to smoke, anything that will assist. It falls into the realm of prevention."

During October, nationally recognized as Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the hospital is trying to get the word out about prevention, treatment and symptoms.

A Breast Cancer Festival, with one-on-one counseling and resource information, will be held at the PX Oct. 15. A two-mile fun run, where the public can run in honor of survivors and victims to breast cancer, will be held Oct. 24 at Stewart-Watson Field. For more information, see the related article on B1.

For information about support groups, workshops, scholarships and literature related to breast cancer, call Alice Gammage, the Fort Benning American Cancer Society liaison, at 706-324-4573.

As for Davis, she is 50 days past reconstructive surgery, taking tango lessons, planning a trip to South America and living life.

"This has been my breast cancer journey, and it's not over. Life as you know it no longer exists. You're living life in recovery," she said. "It's going to be fine."

Don't go MIA when it comes to family

3RD BATTALION, 1ST CAVALRY REGIMENT

A couple wanting marriage counseling came into the chaplain's office. The issue? Even though he is home, he is not at home. He is neglecting the family.

Soldiering definitely is a draining business — it takes a physical, mental, emotional and spiritual toll. When so little energy is left, it is tempting to serve families the leftovers.

Even when at home, it can seem as if you're missing in action — computers, video games, sporting events and hobbies can and do destroy marriages.

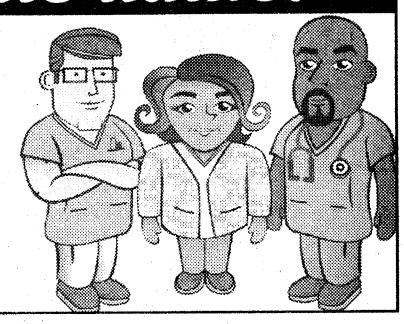
Soldiers allow these things to occupy their time to the neglect of their families. Soldiers should be asked — what means more to you, (fill in the blank) or your family? As challenging, exciting and rewarding as Soldering may be, no amount of success as a warrior will ever compensate for failure as a husband and a father.

The word of God tells us that whosoever finds a wife, finds a good thing. The word of God also shares with us that children are a heritage of the Lord. So, why would you want to replace your wife and children with things of this world?

Listed below are some thoughts to help you resolve some issues you may have.

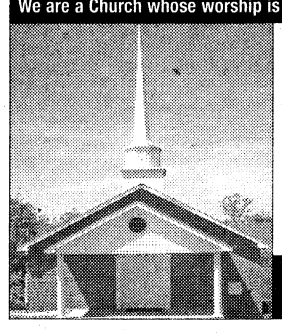
Use the drive home after work to unwind. Use that time to remove your war face and put on your family face. If the drive home is not enough time, negotiate with your wife for some extra time when you get home. Play your video games for an hour or less while she finishes supper. Once supper is done, help her and the kids clean up and spend the rest of the evening being the husband and father you should be.

Praise your wife and family frequently. When is the last time you paid your wife compliments? List 10 things you appreciate or admire about your wife and share the list with her. Do the same thing for your children. Let them know that you love them and appreciate them. If you do not, someone will. Then you will be headed for divorce court.

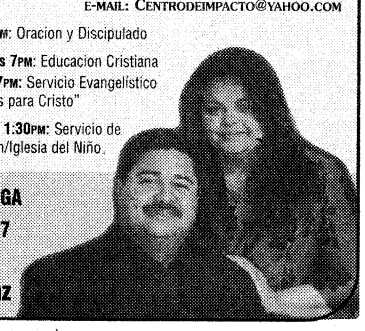


Everyone has the same two desires in life, to be loved and shown attention. Does your wife and children know you love them? Would they honestly say you show them attention? Listen to your family when they are talking to you. Multitasking is possible but not when it involves listening.

Stop what you are doing, and listen. Give your family your full attention. Be the husband and father you should be.



Choose your words wisely. Sometimes it is not what we say, but how we say what we say. A good proverb to hold onto is this, even a fool, when he holds his peace, is counted wise. Do not be so quick to have the "next word" or the "last word."



Take a break and do something else when an argument begins to get really heated. Then revisit the issue once you have had time to cool off. Remember, she is your wife, would you want someone else to talk hateful to her? Then, why do you do it?

Always seek self-improvement as a husband and father. If you think there is no room for growth, then you are fooling yourself and destroying your family tie that should be strong — Army Strong.

Members of the Southern Outlaw Racing Club, out of Byron, Ga., race lawn mowers around a hay bale track.

The train conductor drives families in a loop around the activity area Saturday during Fall Family Fun Days at The Rock Ranch. Attractions include a hay bale maze, dodgeball, family bicycles, live music, inflatable jump houses, slides and more. All are included in the admission price of $14 per person. The Rock Ranch's next event is today. It will show the movie Fireproof on a giant inflatable screen. The movie is open to adults only and admission is $5 per car. Concessions will be available, but people are welcome to bring picnics, chairs or blankets to spread out on the lawn. Alcohol is not allowed on the premises.

The Rock Ranch petting zoo sits in front of the pony riding station, where guests can enjoy free pony rides.

Reconnect with rural roots at The Rock Ranch

THE BAYONET

Pony rides, cane pole fishing and corn mazes — at The Rock Ranch, they call it "agritainment."

The 1,250-acre farm, owned by Chick-fil-A founder Truett Cathy, focuses on helping kids and adults reconnect with the land and each other through engaging and educational activities.

The biggest event of the year, Fall Family Fun Days, is every Saturday through Nov. 14. Attractions include train rides, face painting, paddle boats, hay rides and inflatables as well as other activities unique to The Rock Ranch, such as the giant jumping pillow, cow train, a corn-filled playhouse and a pumpkin cannon.

New this year, the Lincoln Penny Corn Maze, which reflects the profile of America's 16th president, commemorates the 100th anniversary of the penny and the 200th anniversary of Lincoln's birth. Scattered throughout are facts and quizzes relating to the president. Clues help guide people through the maze, a challenge for children and adults alike.

Each Saturday has a different theme. The kickoff, "The Rock Ranch Rural Round-up," included lawnmower racing, a principal dunk tank filled with sweet tea and an arm wrestling tournament. Saturday, it's Grandparents Jubilee, connecting generations with a fishing rodeo, model train exhibit, crafts, a Red Hat Society tea party and more.

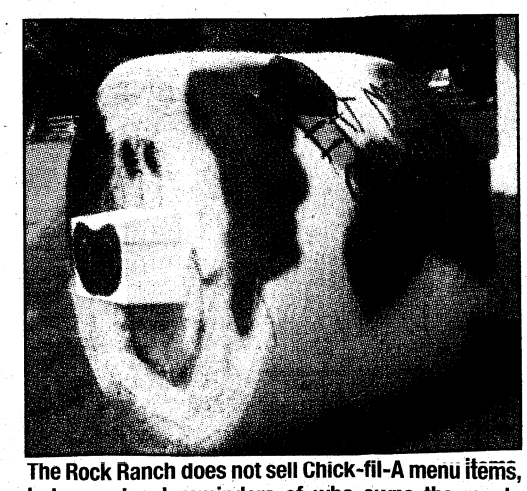
Gear up for Wagon Wheel Weekend Oct. 10 with a special arts and crafts festival including live bluegrass music, a puppet show, vintage airplane parade, antique tractor show and old West re-enactors.

Try your luck at the ranch's annual scarecrow contest. Teams and individuals can enter a homemade scarecrow with the goal of winning "most creative," "best celebrity look-alike," "cutest" or other titles.

Entries are due 5 p.m. Thursday and are judged and awarded Oct. 10.

It's also military appreciation weekend when staff at The Rock Ranch will say thank you to the military with half-off admission for service members during the day.

Most Fall Family Fun Days begin at 10 a.m. and close at 10 p.m. The Rock Ranch Hot Air Balloon Rally, however, begins an hour earlier Oct. 17 with more than 20 hot air balloons on display.



For a complete listing of themed weekends and special discounts, visit www.therockranch.com. Admission is $14 for ages 4 and older and includes all activities. Coupons are available at participating Chick-fil-A restaurants.

Be sure to bring sunscreen, bug repellent and anti-itch cream in case a colony of fire ants, common on the ranch, attacks. Concessions are available on-site.

The ranch is located about an hour and 45 minutes from Columbus in The Rock, Ga. For more information or directions, visit the Web site or call 706-647-6374.

A staff member of The Rock Ranch sends a pumpkin into the air from the pumpkin cannon, a novelty at the farm.

The Rock Ranch does not sell Chick-fil-A menu items, but occasional reminders of who owns the ranch, such as this hay bale styled after a Chick-fil-A cow, can be found on location.

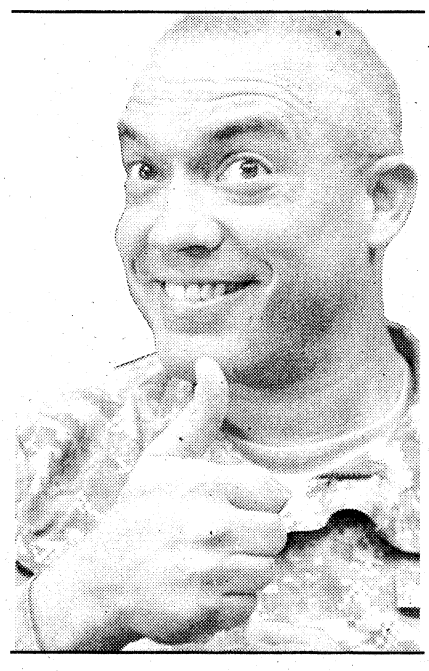
THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW



Surrogates: Takes you out of reality

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?; the speculative fiction writer Phillip K. Dick wrote. Deep, deep stuff — the thought of an intelligent machine. Can a machine have a soul? Can they say,"Who am I?" and grasp the meaning of the question one day? OK, that's a machine, but can they be like us as we envision ourselves, which is an endlessly fascinating question that has been explored extensively in science fiction media and literature. But we are also entering the era of the man and machine interface. We are exploring ways and methods of interfacing closer and closer with the machine.

We are also checking out ways of using the machine as our surrogates in the world around us.

From work to play to war, when we seek to accomplish an objective, we already do many of them through the machine.

What if we chose to do everything? What if we could build lifelike surrogates and an interface so physically, mentally and sensationally complete, that using our surrogate to interface with the world felt for all practical purposes like you were doing it yourself? Except with a body that didn't have the vulnerabilities you possess, didn't age and if it got damaged, was a simple task to repair or replace?

Does this kind of world sound attractive to you?

FBI Agent Tom Greer (Bruce Willis) lives his professional and much of his personal life through his surrogate. He finds himself as the man front and center when the first murder in years intrudes into the Surrogate sanitized world. There are some who don't care for the world made what it is by the almost universal use of the surrogate technology. They are willing to kill to fight it. And they have developed a weapon which can kill a user through their Surrogate. The game is afoot.

Willis is solid as always, bringing his sensible flatfoot persona to these heavy, weighty matters that really dress up a clever whodunit and chase film. This is a good thing, by the way. Jonathan Mostow is a hit or miss director. He is one of a category of directors who demonstrates technical acumen, but he's not really that much as a visionary or a driven storyteller. So the end product depends on the script and the source material. But with all the above in question, he turns in good work this go around.

Speaking of the source material, this originally was a comic book, one of the few non-spandex crime fighting books that has been translated to the silver screen. So if anything else I have mentioned hasn't convinced you, the novelty of that fact alone should get you to boot up and download.

Surrogates. Some good film here. If you are looking for a good thriller with some imaginative twists, with solid talent in all the necessary parts, this movie is worth your sheckles this weekend.

OPENING THIS WEEK

CAPITALISM: A LOVE STORY

In Michael Moore's latest documentary, he wonders what America pays for its love of capitalism? Years ago, that love seemed so innocent. Today, however, the American dream is looking more like a nightmare as families pay the price with their jobs, their homes and their savings. Moore takes the viewers into the homes of ordinary people whose lives have been turned upside down; and he goes looking for explanations in Washington.

It is rated R.

THE INVENTION OF LYING

In an alternate reality, lying — even the concept of a lie — does not even exist. Everyone, from politicians to advertisers to the man and woman on the street, speaks the truth and nothing but the truth with no thought of the consequences. But when a down-on-his-luck loser, Mark (Ricky Gervais) suddenly develops the ability to lie, he finds that dishonesty has its rewards. In a world where every word is assumed to be the absolute truth, Mark easily lies his way to fame and fortune.

This comedy also stars Jennifer Garner, Rob Lowe, Tina Fey, Jeffrey Tambor, Jason Bateman and Edward Norton. It is rated PG-13 for language, sexual material and a drug reference.

WHIP IT

In Drew Barrymore's directorial debut Whip It, Texas teen Bliss (Ellen Page) is tired of being pushed into beauty pageants by her parents. She finds herself after joining a female roller derby team. Marcia Gay Harden plays Bliss' disapproving mother. Also in the movie are Jimmy Fallon, Zoe Bell, Kristen Wiig, Juliette Lewis, Daniel Stern and Alia Shawkat.

The movie is rated PG-13 for sexual content including language and drug material.

ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive. Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

NOW PLAYING

SURROGATES

People are living their lives remotely from the safety of their own homes via robotic surrogates — sexy, physically perfect mechanical representations of themselves. It's an ideal world where crime, pain, fear and consequences don't exist. When the first murder in years jolts this utopia, FBI agent Greer discovers a vast conspiracy behind the surrogate phenomenon and must abandon his own surrogate, risking his life to unravel the mystery.

The film stars Bruce Willis, Radha Mitchell, Rosamund Pike, Boris Kodjoe and James Francis Ginty. It is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence, disturbing images, language, sexuality and a drug-related scene.

FAME

A reinvention of the original 1980 hit film, Fame follows a talented group of dancers, singers, actors, and artists over four years at the New York City High School of Performing Arts, a diverse, creative powerhouse where students from all walks of life are given a chance to live out their dreams and achieve real and lasting fame ... the kind that comes only from talent, dedication, and hard work. As each student strives for his or her moment in the spotlight, they'll discover who among them has the innate talent and necessary discipline to succeed.

The film stars Kherington Payne, Anna Maria Perez de Tagle, Paul McGill, Asher Book and Kristy Flores. It is rated PG for thematic material including teen drinking, a sexual situation and language.

PANDORUM

When two men emerge from a deep sleep in the middle of space, they discover they have no memories of who they are and where they're going. But their memory loss pales in comparison to the problem of the murderous warriors on board their ship who don't want to leave anyone alive.

The film stars Dennis Quaid, Ben Foster, Cam Gigandet, Norman Reedus and Cung Le. It is rated R for strong horror violence and language.

JENNIFER'S BODY

A cheerleader with the perfect life becomes the girl from hell when she gets possessed and begins killing boys in a small town.

The film stars Megan Fox, Amanda Seyfried and Johnny Simmons. It's rated R for sexuality, bloody violence, language and drug use.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF MEATBALLS

Inspired by the children's book, the film focuses on a town where food falls from the sky like rain. Bill Hader voices Flint Lockwood, a young inventor who dreams of creating something that will improve everyone's life. Anna Faris takes on the role of Sam Sparks, a weathergirl covering the phenomenon who hides her intelligence behind a perky exterior. Mr.T plays the by-the-rules town cop Earl Devereaux, and Tracy Morgan takes on the role of Earl's rule-breaking son, Cal. It's rated PG for brief mild language.

LOVE HAPPENS

When a self-help author arrives in Seattle to teach a sold-out seminar, he unexpectedly meets the one person who might finally be able to help him help himself.

The film stars Aaron Eckhart and Jennifer Aniston and is rated PG-13 for language including sexual references.

THE INFORMANT!

What was Mark Whitacre thinking? A rising star at agri-industry giant Archer Daniels Midland (ADM), Whitacre suddenly turns whistleblower. Even as he exposes his company's multinational price-fixing conspiracy to the FBI, Whitacre envisions himself being hailed as a hero of the common man and handed a promotion. But before all that can happen, the FBI needs evidence, so Whitacre eagerly agrees to wear a wire and carry a hidden tape recorder in his briefcase, imagining himself as a kind of de facto secret agent.

Unfortunately for the FBI, its lead witness hasn't been quite so forthcoming about helping himself to the corporate coffers. Whitacre's ever-changing account frustrates the agents and threatens the case against ADM as it becomes almost impossible to decipher what is real and what is the product of Whitacre's rambling imagination. Based on the true story of the highest-ranking corporate whistleblower in U.S. history.

Powered and enabled by the invention known as the Great Machine, the world's machines have turned on mankind and sparked social unrest, decimating the human population before being largely shut down. But as our world fell to pieces, a mission began to salvage the legacy of civilization; a group of small creations was given the spark of life by a scientist in the final days of humanity, and they continue to exist post-apocalypse. With their group so few, these "stitchpunk" creations must summon individual strengths well beyond their own proportions in order to outwit and fight against still-functioning machines.

The film features the voices of Alan Oppenheimer, Tom Kane, Christopher Plummer, Martin Landau and John C. Reilly. It is rated PG-13 for violence and scary images.

TYLER PERRY'S I CAN DO BAD ALL BY MYSELF

When Madea, America's favorite pistol-packing grandma, catches 16-year-old Jennifer and her two younger brothers looting her home, she decides to take matters into her own hands and delivers the young delinquents to the only relative they have: their aunt April. A heavy-drinking nightclub singer who lives off Raymond, her married boyfriend, April wants nothing to do with the kids. But her attitude begins to change when Sandino, a handsome Mexican immigrant looking for work, moves into April's basement room. Making amends for his own troubled past, Sandino challenges April to open her heart. And April soon realizes she must make the biggest choice of her life.

The flim stars Taraji P. Henson, Adam Rodriguez, Brian J. White, Hope Olaide Wilson and Mary J. Blige.

It is rated PG-13 for mature thematic material involving a sexual assault on a minor, violence, drug references and smoking.

WHITEOUT

A lone U.S. marshal stationed in Antarctica is drawn into a shocking murder investigation. With only three days until winter, she must solve the crime before the continent is plunged into darkness and she is trapped with the killer. U.S. Marshal Carrie Stetko is the only law enforcement in this unforgiving territory. She's been sent to investigate Antarctica's first homicide. A shocking discovery in itself, it will plunge her into an even more bizarre mystery and the revelation of secrets long-buried under the endless ice–secrets that someone believes are still worth killing for.

The flim stars Kate Beckinsale, Columbus Short, Gabriel Macht, Tom Skerritt and Alex O'Loughlin. It is rated R for violence, grisly images, brief strong language and some nudity.

ALL ABOUT STEVE

Mary Horowitz is a cruciverbalist — a crossword puzzle constructor. She can come up with the perfect word — and dozens with the same meaning — at a moment's notice, but "normal" behavior eludes her. For Mary, nothing is typical, especially relationships. When she is set up on a blind date with handsome cable-news cameraman Steve, Mary thinks the chemistry is undeniable — that Steve is "the one."

Steve, on the other hand, thinks Mary is crazy. Mary begins to pursue Steve relentlessly. With Mary never far behind, Steve becomes increasingly unhinged. But when Mary becomes embroiled in the news story of the year, Steve and Hartman begin to see her differently. Mary, with her upbeat, unaffected manner, brings together a small community of new friends. And all who encounter Mary will realize that sometimes the ones who don't fit in are the ones who really stand out.

The film stars Sandra Bullock, Thomas Haden Church and Bradley Cooper. It is rated PG-13 for sexual content including innuendos.

Kids in Science OCT 10

In celebration of National Energy Month, Callaway Gardens presents Kids in Science from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Oct. 10 at Callaway Gardens. Kids participate in a hands-on class making a simple circuit using a light bulb and copper wire. Learn to add switches and take home supplies, directions, facts about T. Edison.

Columbus Jazz Society OCT 11

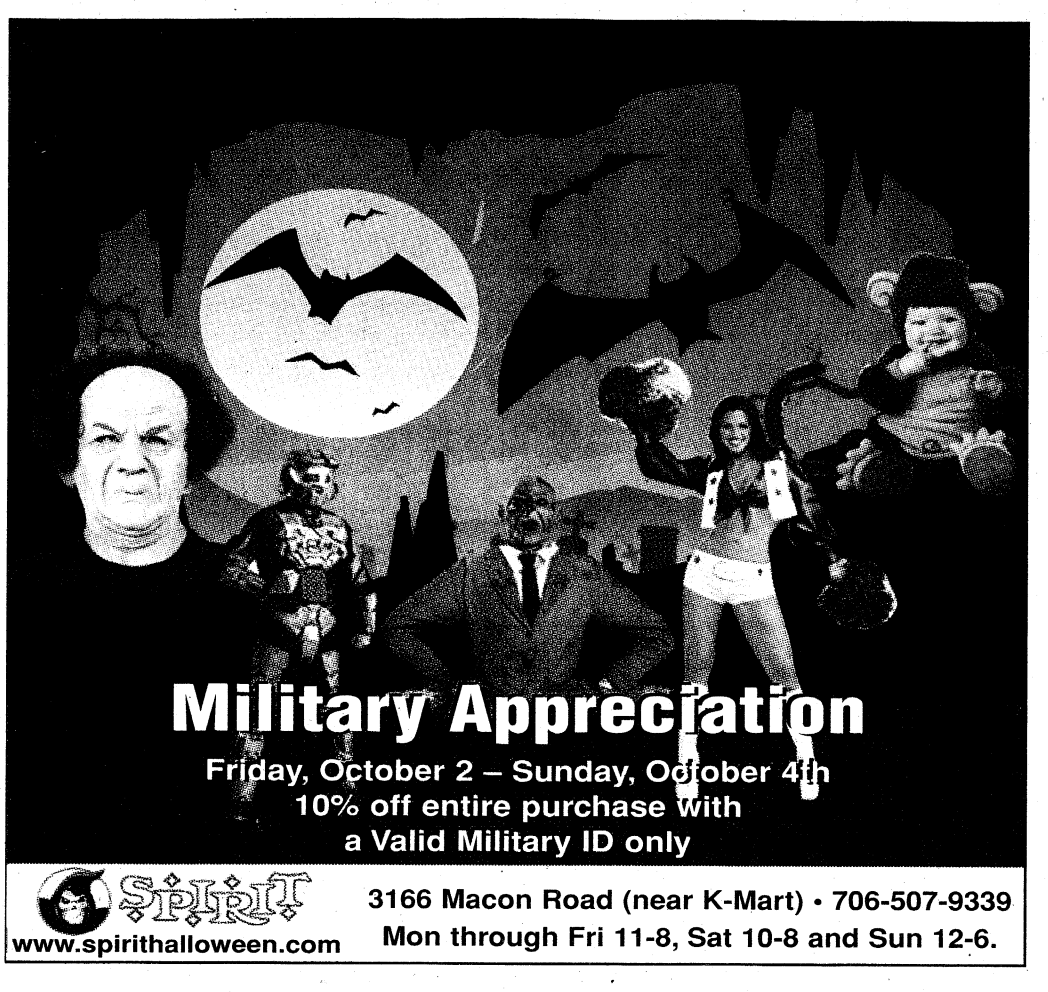
The Columbus Jazz Society will host jazz pianist Tyrone Jackson in concert Oct. 11 at the Liberty Theatre, 813 Eighth Ave., Columbus.

The concert and jam session is held from 6 to 9 p.m. Admission is $7 and free for musicians who sit in. For more information, call 706-660-9295 or visit www.columbusjazzsociety.com.

Boots on Broadway OCT 24

UPtown Columbus will debut Boots on Broadway Oct. 24, a military heritage celebration from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the 900 and 1000 blocks of Broadway.

Service members can register to win vacation giveaways and other prizes. The day will include live music, food and several activities. Admission is free. For more information, call 706-596-0111 or visit www.bootsonbroadway.com.



Steeplechase at Callaway NOV 7

The Steeplechase at Callaway Gardens features thoroughbred horse racing over timber and brush hurdles, stick pony races for children, pony rides, Jack Russell terrier races, a rock climbing wall and the Kids Corral. There are bagpipers and blacksmiths, as well as the Midland Foxhounds parade, the Southern Views Hat Contest, the Sunny 100 Tailgate Competition and the Ledger-Enquirer Terrace Box Competition. The Steeplechase, always the first Saturday in November, benefits local arts organizations. For more information and ticket prices, visit www.steeplechaseatcallaway.org or call 706-324-6252. Part of the ticket price is tax-deductible.

3rd HBCT headed to Iraq a fourth time

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

On the eve of a fourth deployment to Iraq in seven years, the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team cased its colors Wednesday at Kelley Hill's Sledgehammer Field.

Just 16 months removed from its last homecoming, the unit is sending 3,600 Soldiers into five provinces south of Baghdad. About 700 Soldiers took part in the 30-minute casing ceremony.

"You're in the presence of history … because you live it so often," MG Tony Cucolo, the 3rd Infantry Division's commanding general, told the crowd. "I hope the Army knows how lucky she is to have Soldiers like the ones in formation before us …This 3rd (Heavy) Brigade Combat Team is one hard outfit."

The battle streamers rolled up Wednesday by unit leaders included three from Iraq. It now becomes the first Army brigade to deploy there four times.

"Not too many units can say that," Cucolo said. "It's been a treadmill of deployments for us. It's hard on the Soldiers and hard on our families …We do not take your support for granted."

He said the casing is mostly "symbolic," but the ceremony readies the colors for movement and pays tribute to

NCOs prepare Soldiers for deployment

3RD HBCT PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Soldiers of the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team boarded a plane at Lawson Army Airfield Wednesday. Many of them were making their first trip outside the country; others were headed for their fourth tour in Iraq.

Before embarking, noncommissioned officers answered questions and offered words of encouragement to their subordinates.

"My NCOs are in charge during the whole deployment process," said 1SG Lawrence Jordan, Headquarters Company. "Wherever our Soldiers will be, our NCOs will be there ensuring everything is running like it should. Whether it is clearing out of the barracks, zeroing

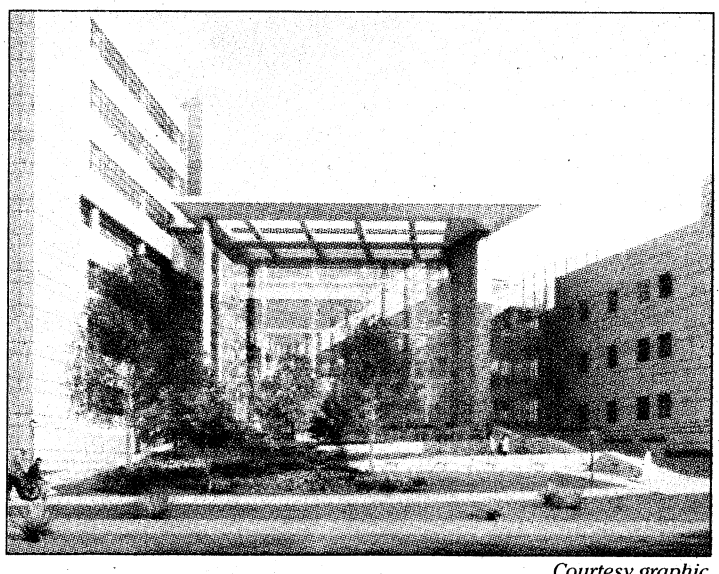
Staff heeds flu-related concerns

Terry Beckwith
MARTIN ARMY COMMUNITY HOSPITAL PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

The community is anxious about the flu season, and at Martin Army Community Hospital, staff is taking patient concerns into the development of care plans for the flu season, said Dr. Thomas Backenson, chief, Allergy.

The most frequent question is, "When can I get my flu shot?" Backenson said. "The answer is soon — we will share all information with you in future Bayonet articles, blog posts and via our Web site at www.martin.amedd.army.mil."

In accordance with guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Department of the Army, "we are required to immunize deploying Soldiers, basic trainees and health-care workers first," said COL Kyle Campbell, hospital chief of staff.



"As we complete our prioritized members and receive more vaccine, we will schedule all other beneficiaries for vaccinations."

For those patients who would like to get their flu shot right away, Tricare will cover the seasonal flu shot or the seasonal nasal spray for qualifying beneficiaries when administered in a Tricare

Post officials plan 'absolutely gorgeous' hospital

Fort Benning's new $333 million hospital will be an architectural icon that incorporates the latest technological advances in medical facilities and equipment and elevates the quality of life for Soldiers, veterans and their families, the project's resident engineer said.

Alan Bugg, who represents the Savannah District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said the design improves accessibility for patients and staff by cutting down on the time it takes to park and enter the building.

"It's a more efficient layout. All the clinics and related specialties are grouped together and everything will be housed inside the new hospital," he said. "When people go in, they are going to see a state-of-the-art facility that's absolutely gorgeous. It will be much more patient-friendly and doctor-friendly.

"The hospital has been renovated many times in the last 50 years. But the air-conditioning, heat and electrical systems are old. We are really excited about upgrading to a state-of-the-art facility."

The Savannah District awarded the contract Sept. 29 to Turner Construction Company Inc. of Huntsville, Ala. The $333.4 million deal is the district's largest for fiscal 2009.

It calls for construction of a 745,000-square-foot facility to replace Martin Army Community Hospital, the second-oldest in the Army.

The project essentially doubles the size of the current

HLN personalities visit Soldiers on Fort Benning

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

HLN financial expert Clark Howard is tired of Soldiers being taken advantage of, he said, so he came to Fort Benning Friday to take questions and provide financial advice.

"Take care of Soldiers, that is why I am here," Howard said. "One thing that has stunned me through the years, is here these fine men and women who make these wonderful sacrifices for our county, end up getting ripped off everywhere they turn when they come back stateside from an overseas deployment.

"In many cases, they lack the necessary skills or experience not to get ripped off by people taking advantage of them. And, that's why I have come to Fort Benning … to answer the questions of Soldiers to keep them out of harm's way."

Howard broadcast his radio show at the National Infantry Museum, located just outside Fort Benning.

Howard wasn't the only HLN personality to visit post, though. News anchor Robin Meade, host of the Morning Express with Robin Meade show, helped Howard with a live radio show and taping of his television show to be aired at a later date. Meade's show hosts a segment acknowledging the sacrifices of the military and their families.

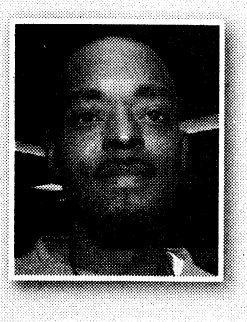
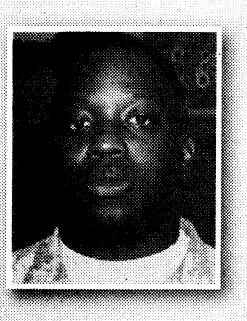
OPINION



VARIOUS VOICES

How do you save money?



The biggest thing I cut out in order to save money was fast food. I no longer eat out until the weekends. I pack my lunch during the week. I also make sure to turn the air conditioner off in the house every morning before I leave for work. I turn the fans on during the day to keep the house cool.

— SSG Deanna Herrera
209th Military Police Detachment

I work it out each month so that I only spend 75 percent of my money on paying bills and buying things I want. I save the rest. To do that, I eat at home a lot. I like using my crock pot to slow cook meals so they are ready when I get home.

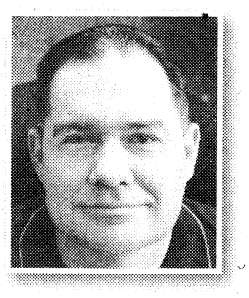
— Kendall Iverson
Environmental Management Division

My strategy for saving money is to save. I started investing in stocks at a young age. My dad, who retired from the Army, prompted me to do it so that I have retirement savings. I'm about to leave for my fifth deployment, so that's another reason I'm able to save a lot of money — no place to spend it.

— SSG Jimmy Bolden
115th Infantry Regiment

My family saves money by shopping for groceries at Sam's Club and the commissary. We can buy in bulk and still save money. The money we save goes toward buying things we want.

— Rita Benner
Commissary



I shop at the commissary because they have the best deals. I also try not to eat out. I realized six months ago that eating out was costing me at least $20 per meal. The other thing I do is use my Military Star Card to pay for gas when I pump on post. It saves me three to five cents per gallon on gas. The money I save goes toward paying off my motorcycle.

Simple ways to climb out of debt

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

In my younger days, it took a few painful lessons to learn that carefree spending beyond your means is not the path to financial utopia.

I always heard the mantra "pay as you go and you'll never owe," but never fully grasped the concept until the near loss of a vehicle to the repo man (or woman) and subsequent visits to payday loan establishments in the mid-1990s. Aside from having to pay rent again — after seven years of free housing on an Air Force base overseas — I stand debt-free today.

But that's hardly the case for most Americans, who show very little restraint in the pursuit of their daily indulgence and bliss. Many simply lack the discipline, self-control and will power to evade overspending.

The numbers are alarming.

In the United States, there was a record-high $946.1 billion in credit card debt as of November 2008, the last month for which data is available, according to report by the Center for American Progress. The American Bankers Association says the average family carries $8,000 in credit card debt.

With the holiday shopping season on the horizon and a jobless rate approaching 10 percent, one might say it's not exactly the best time to start stashing away money. But there are simple, yet effective ways to make it happen — and what better time than now.

About a decade ago, I caught this gem from an Atlanta-based nationally syndicated radio talk show host: At the end of each day, take the leftover $1 bills from your wallet and stuff them in an envelope. It's become a ritual ever since.

You'd be surprised how quickly the dollars accumulate. That approach to saving has provided me a fistful of food, drink and tip money during twice-a-year jaunts to Las Vegas, and freed up funds for other Sin City pursuits. But whatever your goal, it's a nifty method for building up a small nest egg and getting on track toward stability.

In the long term, I urge all to take full advantage of a Thrift Savings Plan, 401(k) or other individual retirement account. Have fun in life, but stick to personal budgets and limit your spending and borrowing. Set aside money whenever possible.

It will pay off nicely in added security, peace of mind and some extra cash for a rainy day, stocking stuffer or future trip.

Fist bumps: Solution to handshakes

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Let's talk about the importance of hygiene. While the mainstays of deodorant and regular bathing are still encouraged, I'm talking about more than just body odor. With concerns about H1N1 and germs in general wreaking havoc on our immune systems, we can't be too careful.

Use antibacterial soap. If you're coughing, cover your mouth. If you're sneezing, cover again. Conventional wisdom is to use your hand. Others suggest coughing or sneezing into your sleeve or elbow. I'll go further and recommend covering your cough with at least four walls — preferably your house or other place of residence — to keep your healthy co-workers from the risk of infection. Even the regular flu isn't nice to share.

If you think you can come to work and keep the ick to yourself, realize those particles of noxious snot can travel up to 100 miles an hour. A single sneeze can send 5,000 droplets and 10,000 bacteria 12 feet from your nose, according to www.sneezing-specifics.info — yes, there's a Web site for everything.

But sneezing and coughing, which can also, incidentally, involve liquid particles, aren't the only media for germs. Direct contact can do the trick, too. Institute whatever rule you wish in your own home. At my house, we're considering replacing hugs with head pats. It still says "I love you" but in a "keep-your-diseases-to-yourself" kind of way.

However, for the workplace, the most common form of spreading germs through contact is via handshake. A handshake usually signals agreement or acquaintance, or it can function as a professional way to say hello or goodbye. In ancient times, it meant you weren't concealing a weapon in your hand.

But since we're now almost a decade into the 21st century, I think it's time for a change, time to catch up with the hygiene-conscious modern era.

I propose the widespread introduction of the fist bump. After hearing a co-worker casually suggest phasing out handshakes in favor of fist bumps, I realized this was a valid suggestion. According to preliminary studies based on the relative gross factor I felt when shaking hands and bumping knuckles with various people, I theorize that fist bumps could cut down on 55 percent of germs transferred through handshakes.

Most of the germs get on the inside of our hands where we hold things, cough, eat, etc., leaving the knuckles relatively clean. The fist bump is also briefer than a typical handshake, allowing less time for a single-celled organism to hop from a questionably washed hand to yours.

If you want to start fist bumping, I suggest rehearsing your technique. If possible, find a cool person to practice with. Cool people have the innate ability to fist bump with the right level of jocosity and intimidation.

A few other tips to keep in mind: most importantly, try to look casual. Make eye contact while you aim your hand in the direction of the other person's hand. If you don't make contact, prepare to play it off like you meant to do it that way. Also important — don't punch. Although you're making a fist, remember: this is a friendly gesture and not an assault.

You'll need to decide on your own style. A proper fist bump can be delivered vertically, like you're holding a coffee mug, or horizontally, like you're holding a handle bar. I hear it's all in the wrist. You'll also want to decide which hand to use. According to my research, either the left or right hand is appropriate but never both at the same time.

Lastly, watch out for pointy rings. A high-velocity fist bump combined with either expensive or particularly cheap jewels can lead to some pretty nasty cuts.

If you need any more help, contact your nearest cool person.

And remember, waving, bowing and thumbs-up signs require no contact at all.

• MG Jerry White assumed command of Fort Benning from MG Carmen Cavezza. Cavezza, who was selected to command I Corps and Fort Lewis, Wash., jokingly warned his future troops, "Tie up your dogs and keep your kids out of range of the golf course! God and the U.S. Senate willing, the Cavezzas are on the way!"

• A monument to the 70th Infantry Division was dedicated at Sacrifice Field. The division saw 86 consecutive days of combat, liberated 58 cities in France and captured hundreds of prisoners during World War II. The division lost 3,945 Soldiers.

LTG Tommy Franks, a speaker at the ceremony, said to the veterans, "You grew up in the midst of the worst depression in history. Hard times and uncertainties were the staples of your youth. As young men you faced a war to decide the fate of humanity. There was no doubt then as to the justice of your cause."

• Reports surfaced of a 10-foot alligator at Kings Pond, which prompted a post conservationist and an endangered species biologist to attempt to catch the wayward critter. Visitors to the pond were warned not to handle or feed the alligator.

• A columnist wrote about the costs of getting things for free. A free used, green, swivel chair ended up costing the columnist his pride after his wife discovered some "idiot" had finally taken home the ugly, green chair with a "free, take it" sign on their neighbor's lawn. The teasing lasted for a month, to which the columnist wrote, "Yes, the chair was free, but boy, did it cost."

'Failure not an option,' Army secretary says

C. Todd Lopez
ARMY NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The way ahead in Iraq and Afghanistan will be tough, but America's Soldiers can handle it, said Secretary of the Army John McHugh.

During the Monday opening of the Association of the United States Army 2009 Annual Meeting in Washington, the new Army secretary spoke to an auditorium of thousands of Soldiers, saying he believes they can meet the challenges that face them.

"The days ahead are of great challenge," he said. "But I can tell you this as well: Failure is not an option. We will, we can, we must succeed, and as more than 230 years of the history of this great U.S. Army has shown you, the men and women who put that uniform on will be equal to this challenge as long as we stand by them."

McHugh introduced the event's keynote speaker, Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates. The defense secretary spoke about what the Defense Department is doing for Soldiers, what it needs to do in the future and where the Army needs to go in the future.

SPC Matthew McKinny

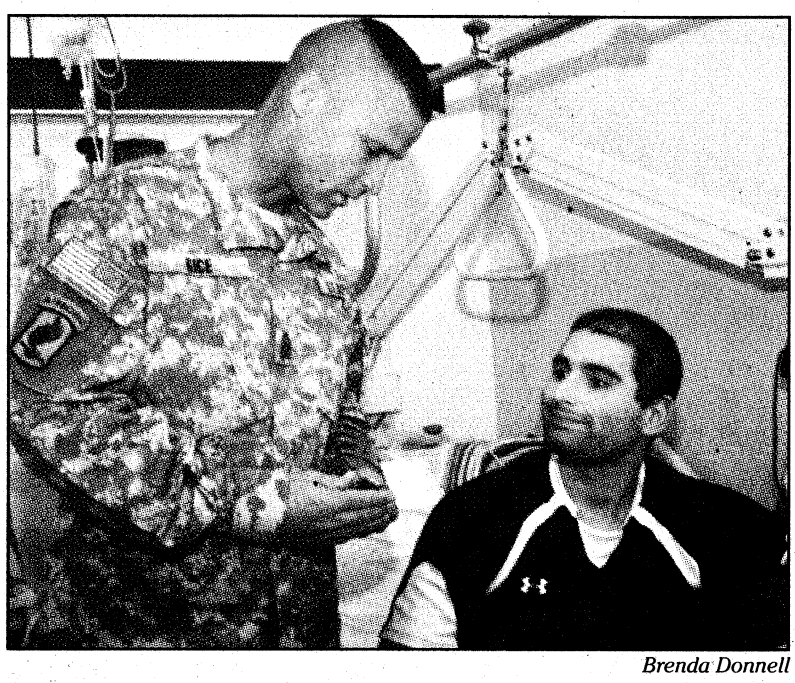
LTC Jeff Cantor shakes the hand of an Afghan boy Sept. 25 outside Bagram Airfield in Janquadam, Parwan province, Afghanistan. Cantor, chief of the Civil Affairs Team, 353rd Civil Affairs Command, was assisting the Kentucky National Guard Agribusiness Development Team with conducting a quality-control inspection of a local vineyard.

He spoke about the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, mentioning the recent changes in Iraq, where responsibility for security in cities was handed over to host nation forces.

"That was a significant step," Gates said, saying that the U.S. will continue to reduce its presence leading up to elections next year — as it shifts to an advisory role.

The secretary talked about the successes in Iraq, notably the reduction of violence there.

"General Odierno said last week violence is down 85 percent during the past two years, an accomplishment made possible by the hard work and sacrifices of many thousands of Soldiers," Gates said.



At the same time, Gates said, Afghanistan has been on a "different and worrisome trajectory," with violence up 60 percent from last year. He said he believes the changes President Barack Obama makes regarding Afghanistan will be some of the most "important of his presidency."

He also said as the military considers the future, he is prepared to continue to get Soldiers what they need.

"IEDs remain the No. 1 cause of casualties in Afghanistan," Gates said. "Let there be no doubt, as long as our troops are in harm's way, the DoD will do everything it can to destroy the IED networks and protect those heroes in the fight."

The secretary said the Army surpassed its recruiting goal, but that he has authorized additional force strength, temporarily, for an increase of some 22,000 Soldiers to get though the current "high demand period." He said the new Soldiers will not add additional force structure, but will fill out units the Army already has.

"The goal is to end stop-loss and increase dwell time," he said.

Fort Benning CSM Earl Rice explains the meaning of the symbols on a U.S. Army Infantry Center coin he presented to SPC Daniel Camino, a medic with a leg wound who is now a patient at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington. Rice, MG Michael Ferriter, Fort Benning and Maneuver Center of Excellence commanding general, and his wife, Margie, visited 13 Soldiers Sunday while they were in Washington for the AUSA annual conference.

"This is the most humbling place in the entire world. You're going along in your wheelchair, and you see someone missing both legs, and you look at your leg and you think, I can't complain," said SPC Daniel Camino, a medic with a leg wound who is now a patient at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington.

He was one of about 13 Soldiers who received visits Sunday from Fort Benning and Maneuver Center of Excellence Commanding General MG Michael Ferriter, his wife, Margie, and Fort Benning Command Sergeant Major, CSM Earl Rice. The group was in town for the Association of the United States Army Annual Meeting and Exposition: A Professional Development Forum.

"Most of the time when we come to the Washington area, we like to take advantage of the opportunity to visit our wounded warriors and talk to some of our Soldiers," Rice said. "It's hard to come here and miss an opportunity. Most of them are looking for visitors, and we understand fully how important it is for them to have visitors."

Rice said the inspiration he receives from the Soldiers is uplifting.

"When we think we are having a bad day, we think about our Soldiers at Walter Reed and say there is no way that anything we do we can cause us to have a bad day," Rice said.

With specks of paint dotting the side of his face, SPC David Tuiteleleapaga could do nothing but laugh when he was the first Soldier eliminated during a second round of paintball Sept. 29 with troops from the 988th Military Police Company. A few minutes later, the rest of Tuiteleleapaga's team was defeated and they marched out of the woods at Fort Benning's Woodlands Paintball Area covered in orange and purple paint. Despite losing for the second time in a row against the red team, the yellow team was all smiles.

"We like to have fun in our unit," said Tuiteleleapaga, yellow team's captain and, like many of his teammates, a first-time paintball player.

But the day wasn't just about having fun.

The 988th MPs returned from a yearlong deployment to Iraq seven weeks ago and are one of the first Fort Benning units to participate in the Army's Warrior Adventure Quest program.

Billed as equal parts rehabilitation and adventure, WAQ is now part of curriculum for Soldiers reintegrating back into garrison life after deployment, said Darlene Hines, program manager for Outdoor Recreation, which is responsible for running the adventure program.

"They've been living on high alert for the last year and when they come home it can be very difficult for them to adjust," Hines said.

The program, funded by the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, aims to introduce Soldiers recently returning from the war zone to high-adventure, adrenaline-boosting outdoor activities such as whitewater rafting, skiing, paintball, rock climbing and scuba diving, at no cost to the Soldier.

The program is coupled with the Army's psychological resiliency building program, Battlemind, to enhance communication in the ranks. Battlemind training helps Soldiers recognize and respond to fear during combat, and builds mental toughness and self- confidence to reduce the impact of a combat deployment once they return home.

The 988th MPs chose between whitewater rafting, discovery scuba, rock climbing and paintball.

Hines said WAQ is part of an Armywide effort to address motorcycle and vehicle-related deaths of redeploying Soldiers.

Soldiers may be looking for that adrenaline rush when they come home, and rather than going out and buying a fast motorcycle they don't know how to drive, we can offer a safer alternative, she said.

A red team Soldier peeks out from his hiding spot Sept. 29 during a round of paintball at the Woodlands Paintball Area.

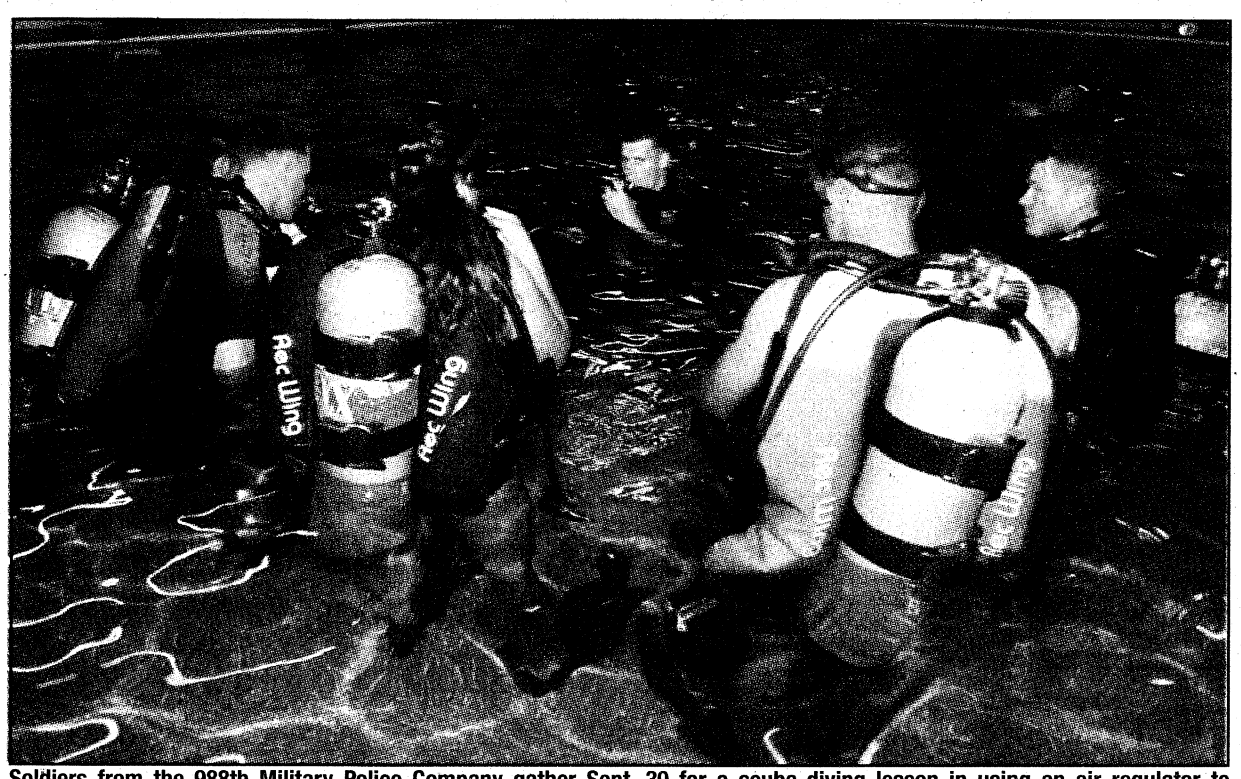
Tuiteleleapaga, a gunner and military policeman with the 988th, admits he thought about buying a fast car when he got home.

"A Mustang 3000 GT, that was definitely on my list," he said. "But knowing people get into a lot of trouble buying fast cars, wrecking them and getting hurt, I've started to think twice about it."

Instead, Tuiteleleapaga said he's ready to take up paintball as a hobby.

"I'm glad I came out and did this, I saw what I was missing," he said. "There are a lot more things to do than drive fast cars. I can go out to the Woodlands and shoot my buddies with paintballs ... instead of getting behind the wheel and driving 150 miles per hour down the block. It's less expensive and less dangerous."

SSG Jonathan Kelso, a retention NCO for the unit and another paintball first-timer, said the adventure program benefits more than just Soldiers who might otherwise engage in risky behavior.



"It affects morale," said Kelso, who recalled knowing a Soldier in a former unit who died in a motorcycle accident after returning from a combat deployment. "When you lose a Soldier after returning home, the loss is sometimes harder to accept. Downrange, you may expect one or two losses — you hope not — but if you get everybody home in one piece and you lose a Soldier here, it's a lot harder."

For more information on the Warrior Adventure Quest program, call the Outdoor Recreation office at 706-545-7048.

PFC Thomas Guess reloads his paintball gun. The participants used high-powered BT4 air rifles with 200-round hoppers to hold the paintballs. All of the equipment, including the face masks, is available for rent at the Outdoor Recreation Equipment Rental office.

Soldiers from the 988th Military Police Company gather Sept. 30 for a scuba-diving lesson in using an air regulator to breathe under water.

The Soldiers got a crash course in scuba diving at Chattahoochee Scuba in Columbus Sept. 30 in partnership with the Warrior Adventure Quest program. The Soldiers took a beefed-up version of the Discover Scuba course, an introduction to scuba. The daylong course included instruction on safety in the water and types of diving certification.

Network doctor's office.

Campbell said the following information is important for hospital beneficiaries:

- No referral is needed at a Tricare Network doctor's office.
- The nasal spray vaccine is not covered, nor recommended for ages 50 and older Tricare For Life beneficiaries. These individuals will receive the flu shot.
- Medicare covers flu vaccines (Tricare pays as second payer if needed.)
- This year, Tricare Standard and Extra beneficiaries may obtain the flu vaccines with no cost share applied.
- Tricare does not cover immunizations obtained at pharmacies, grocery stores, county health departments or non-Tricare Network doctor's offices.

Pending vaccine availability, Campbell said, plans are in place to make the flu shot available to retirees and their spouses at Fort Benning's annual Retiree Open House Nov. 9 at Benning Conference Center.

Health-care professionals will be on site with a wide variety of information.

The hospital will offer flu shots in the primary care clinics Dec. 6-12, National Influenza Immunization week.

the brigade's rich history.

"It marks the starting clock of deployment," the general said. "It's a visual for everyone."

The brigade's lineage is built on the "sacrifice of those who have gone before us," said COL Pete Jones, the 3rd HBCT commander. During the first three Iraq rotations, which spanned 42 months, the unit lost 70 Soldiers while more than 200 were wounded.

"As we case these colors, the past and future successes of the Sledgehammer Brigade cannot be mentioned without the selfless service of our families and the (tricommunity)," he said. "We cannot serve without their love and support."

The ceremony stands as a symbol that the brigade is ready, Jones said.

"This is that last step. The colors are the embodiment of our heritage, but it's time to go and close this mission out," he said.

The brigade's mission this time couldn't be more different than the drive into Baghdad it spearheaded in March 2003, Cucolo said. The unit will primarily advise and assist Iraqi security forces.

"It's still an incredibly important fight," he said. "They are counting on us to finish this ... I see us as the closers for Iraq, and we take pride in knowing that."

By Christmas, the 3rd Infantry Division will have 14,000 Soldiers in either Iraq or Afghanistan, he said.

"We have this ceremony because we have a sense of history ... in this wonderful corner of southwest Georgia," Cucolo said. "I look forward to the day we can uncase these colors, right here on Kelley Hill."

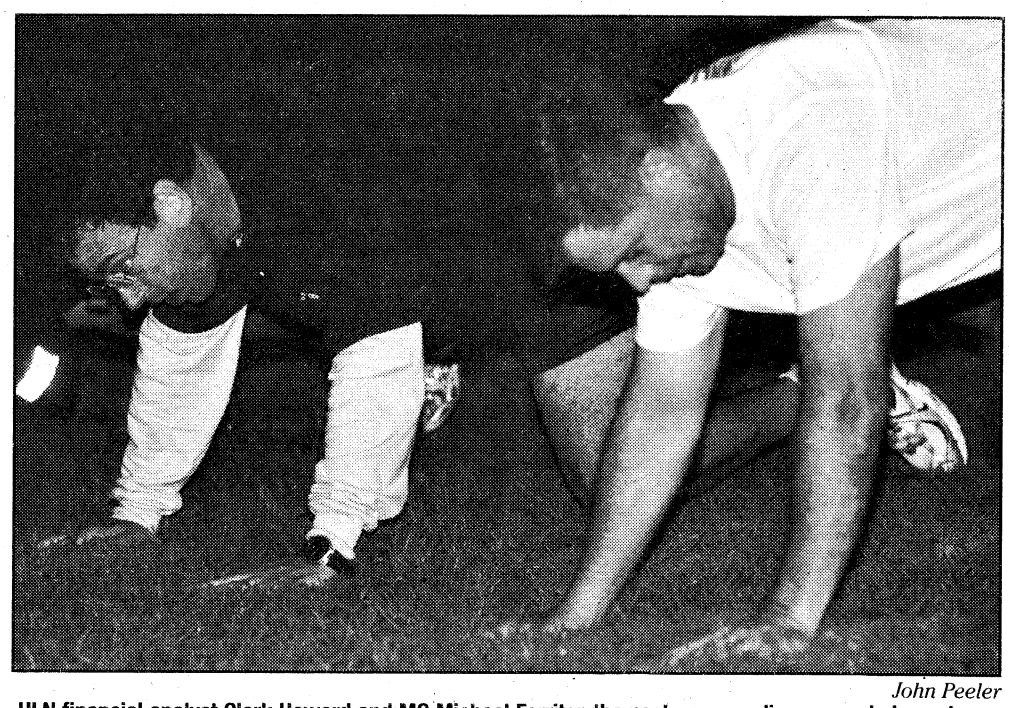
touches my heart because we know that the men and women in uniform sacrifice so much, but sometimes we really don't hear about the family stories and they sacrifice just as much. My heart goes out to all sides of the family, whether they are in uniform or not. It's just a way to say thank you, it's the least we can do."

Fort Benning's commanding general, MG Michael Ferriter and National Infantry Foundation president MG(R) Jerry White joined Howard for the radio show, where Howard told the audience about doing circuit training with the Maneuver Center of Excellence's commander and Soldiers of B Company, 1st Battalion, 50th Infantry Regiment, on Sand Hill.



"This morning, you embarrassed me," Howard said of Ferriter. "You run so fast. You are so fit and you did the routine with 18-year-old recruits better than they could. This is really something, and I work out every day of my life. Today, I felt like the biggest wimp in a long time."

"Every day we wake up and lace up our running shoes," Ferriter said. "I believe strongly when you show up in great shape as a leader in the Army, that is what the men and women expect. They would be let down if you showed up not in shape, so that makes it a duty to stay in shape.

"This morning 250 brand new privates, in their third week of training, observed you, up in the morning and doing it with them ... they were inspired by your presence, so don't sell yourself short."

Howard took questions from the audience on investments, getting rid of credit card debt and student loans.

During the televised taping, Soldiers questions revolved around housing loans and thrift savings plans. The show will air several times in early November, probably around Veterans Day, said Michelle Gordon, a public affairs specialist with the MCOE.

Hospital: To have two wings, 2,000 parking spaces hospital, which measures about 393,000 square feet.

Bugg said the new one will be built half a mile west on 65 acres nestled in a "wedge" between I-185 and Upatoi Creek. Following site preparation, construction is expected to begin after the new year and should be completed by the summer of 2013.

The blueprint was drawn up for two wings — an outpatient clinic and hospital section — and equipped with twin parking decks, one for staff and another for patients and visitors. In all, there will be 70 in-patient beds, while parking spaces increase from 1,000 to 2,000.

Terry Beckwith, a spokeswoman for the hospital and U.S. Army Medical Department Activity at Fort Benning, said collocation of departments such as pharmacy, lab and radiology will enhance convenience by allowing patients to receive ancillary services in order.

"While we aren't adding new services, we are enhancing our services and making them more accessible, like bringing the MRI into the hospital," she said.

Bugg said the hospital's operational effectiveness should be enhanced by a single main entrance, private ambulance drive and separate service loading area. In addition, the patient drop-off entry point has an immediate connection to the parking garage.

The architectural design is a mixture of precast concrete, glass and natural stone — offering views of landscaped courtyards, natural lighting and water effects.

Bugg said the latest research shows that nature scenes provide distractions for patients that promote healing, shorten recovery times and reduce reliance on pain medication.

"The setting is a scenic, beautiful site," he said. "A hospital should not be a totally bland and sterile place. Patients need some kind of interaction with nature. It's part of the healing environment."

The location embraces the "medical home" theme, a nationwide shift in health care, Beckwith said.

"Medical home is all about the hospital becoming a patient's home away from home, not only in environment, but also in care and including the entire family in the care plan of the patient," she said. "The all-glass front will face Upatoi Creek for a calm, healing, scenic view. The green space will allow for physical therapy in close proximity to the river. There is even a waterfall incorporated in the design for meditation or quiet relaxation time."

Bugg said the new hospital will receive a dedicated exit ramp off I-185 in addition to the one that now services Marne Road. But there won't be any traffic or road closures in the area because the construction site is on undeveloped land.

The Army hasn't made a decision on what will become of the present Martin Army Community Hospital, which opened in 1958.

Bugg said U.S. taxpayers are "getting excellent value for their money" with Turner Construction.

In the past decade, Turner has completed more than 600 major health-care projects, including hospitals, cancer and heart centers, and medical research facilities, according to the company's Web site. The firm also engineered some famous American sports and entertainment venues during the course of its 107-year history, with Yankee Stadium, Madison Square Garden and the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame among them.

NCOs: Train Soldiers in Kuwait, Iraq

weapons at the range, or attending classes of the barracks, zeroing weapons at the range, or attending classes in Kuwait, our NCOs will make sure that our Soldiers are doing what they are supposed to and getting everything they need."

SFC Jose Lopez, a platoon sergeant in Troop C, 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, said he takes his job as an NCO very seriously.

"I am responsible for 25 Soldiers and their families," he said. "My job is to ensure that 25 Soldiers are focused and not worrying about home. It is also to ensure 25 families will see their Soldiers return here safe and sound."

Part of that means training, which keeps Soldiers sharp and focused, Lopez said.

"We will continue to train in Kuwait," he said. "We will continue to train in Iraq. The training never stops. The day our Soldiers quit training will be the day they leave the Army."

CSM Antonio Jones, Brigade Special Troops Battalion, said he expects his NCOs to "set the standard out front."

"Our Soldiers need to know what is expected of them before we land in Kuwait and Iraq," he said. "We cannot allow them to go on vacation for a year."

The new security agreement means less combat patrols and more time on the forward operating bases. Soldiers will be asked to remain ready to assist their Iraqi counterparts.

This will be a huge change for the 3rd HBCT's combat veterans and may be a disappointment for Soldiers on their first deployment, Jones said.

"All that work in the past, has set the stage for today," he said. "Our new Soldiers will be an important part of this when this is over, whatever role they play. This is much bigger than 3rd Infantry Division. This is about making history."

Lopez said he has seen Iraq change from a country on the verge of economic collapse and torn apart by sectarian violence to a country ready for America to leave. He was there with the 3rd HBCT the first time it deployed to Iraq in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

"Whether a Soldier was there at the beginning or coming to Iraq for the first time, we are all doing something to help the change that has occurred in Iraq," he said. "It is something that everyone can be proud of at the end of the day. My job is to ensure that my Soldiers will be able to finish what we started."

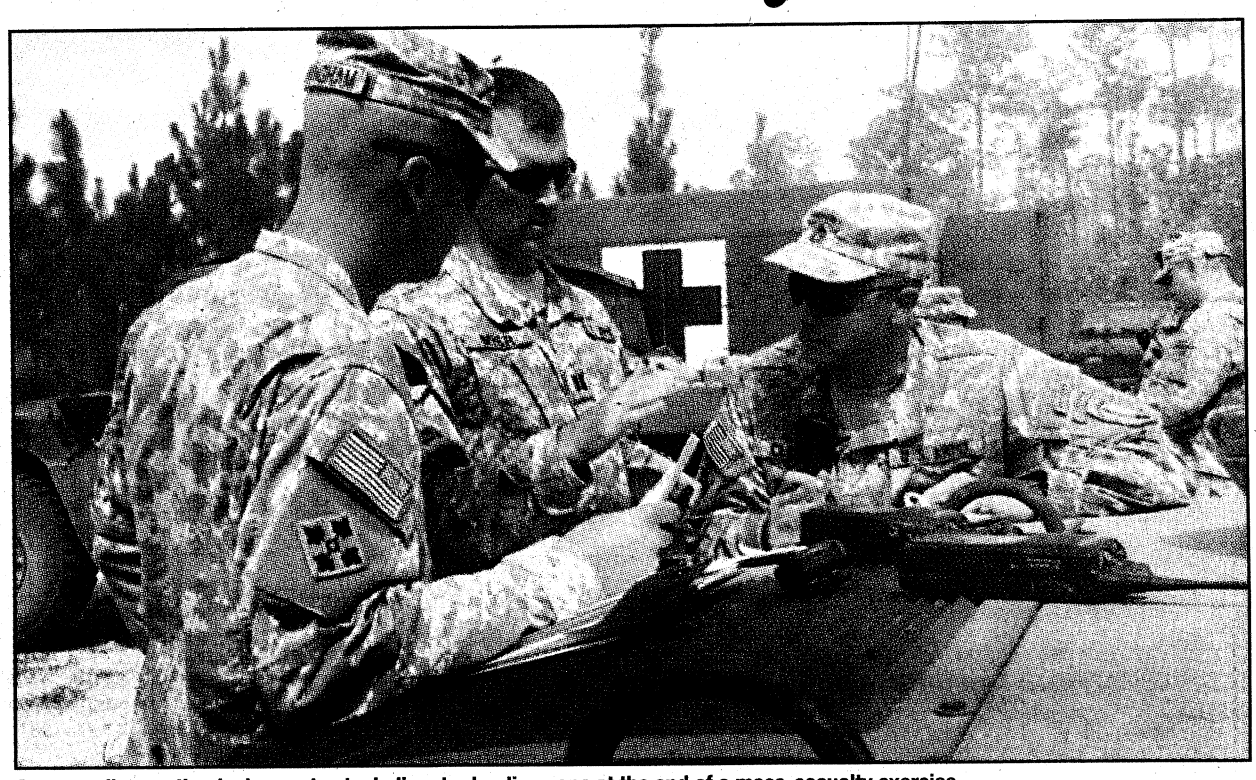
6th RTB put to test in mass-casualty exercise

Samuel King Jr.
TEAM EGLIN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. — Four consecutive horrific "accidents" left bloody bodies of 6th Ranger Training Battalion Soldiers strewn all over the Eglin ranges Oct 1.

That was just part of the 6th RTB's annual mass-casualty exercise to examine how effective the battalion responds as a group and how well it communicates and works with outside emergency agencies in the event of a catastrophe on the range.

"This is a high-risk scenario," said LTC Charles Seifert, 6th RTB commander. "We have to be able to coordinate and orchestrate chaos and maintain command and control procedures as well as interact effectively with outside agencies. That's the goal today."

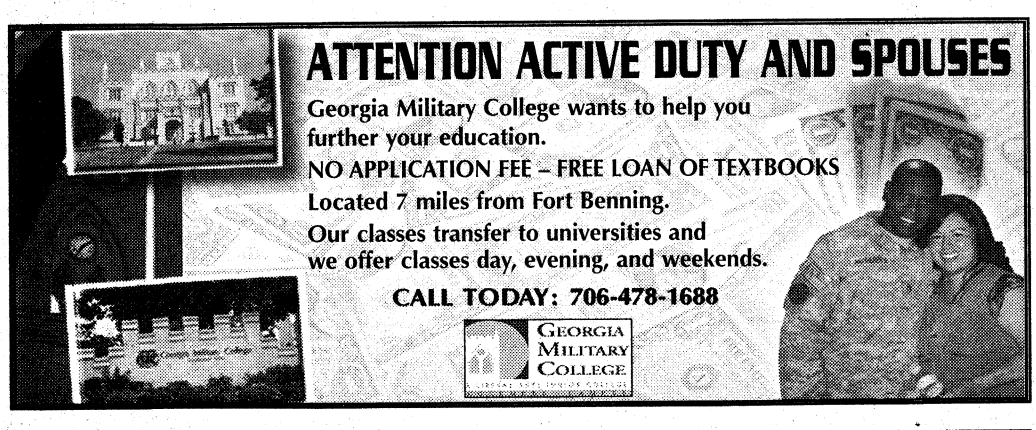


The exercise was dubbed "The Weaver" due to its proximity to Weaver River, which runs through the range. The event was also meant to mirror some of the scenarios the 6th RTB faced in 1995 when four Soldiers died from hypothermia. The accident now referred to as "Crane Lake," and its events inspired the annual training.

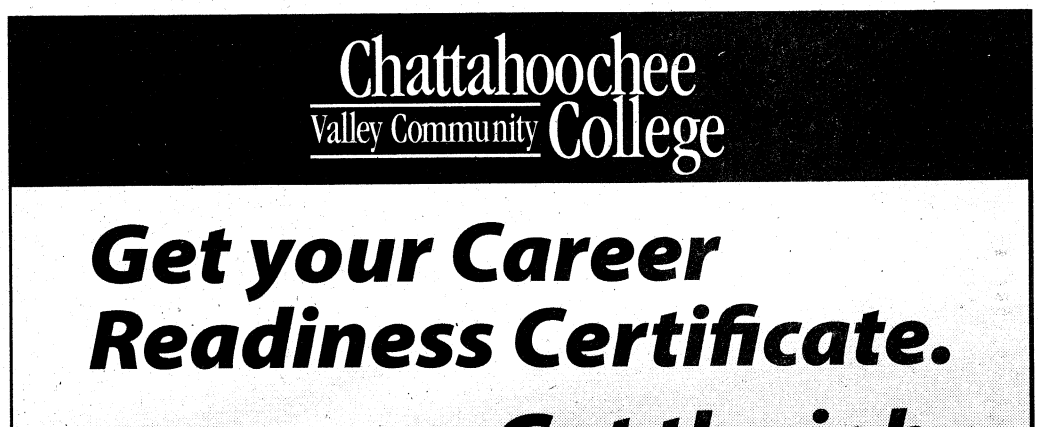
The exercise was meticulously planned out with many "what if" scenarios discussed prior to the kick off.

"Airborne Rangers want to perform well, but we need to make sure we all learn something today," said CPT Matthew Myer during a pre-brief.

The exercise simulated four casualty events. The first accident involved a broken rope bridge putting soldiers in the river and one suffering an eye injury. Another had Soldiers in the water suffer hypothermia with simulated temperatures similar to "Crane Lake." Further down the river, a Soldier had an allergic reaction to a bee sting. As Soldiers moved the bee-sting victim to be evacuated, they encountered a civilian vehicle with three casualties — one trapped inside.



Soldiers had to respond to the incidents and make contact with civilian paramedics and firefighters to either evacuate the victims by ambulance or helicopter. Evaluators watched closely to ensure proper procedures were in place and the radio constantly buzzed with updates to "75" (primary instructor) from across the range. The evaluators let the scenarios play to see what choices the Soldiers would make to best rescue the wounded and extract the victims.



Rangers discuss the day's events at a helicopter landing zone at the end of a mass-casualty exercise.

Many moving parts worked together to accomplish the mission much more timely than expected.

"We were able to extract and treat all 10 casualties within that all-important 'golden hour,' even those who only sustained minor injuries," Seifert said. "Honing our procedures and combining with all these other agencies to meet a goal like that is a tremendous success."

BENCH NOTES

JOHN W. PEELER

What's in a name?

National Football League fans set a record Monday watching the long-anticipated matchup of Minnesota Vikings quarterback Brett Favre playing against his old team, the Green Bay Packers, on Monday Night Football.

The game was the most-viewed television program — sports or otherwise — in the history of cable television excluding late-breaking news events, according to ESPN. More than 21.8 million viewers watched Favre guide the Vikings to a 30-23 win, moving the Vikings to 4-0.

Favre also set a record as the only quarterback to earn wins over all 32 NFL teams.

No matter what team Favre is on, his name still sells.

Crabtree signs

Rookie holdout Michael Crabtree finally came to his senses by signing a six-year, $32 million contract with the San Francisco 49ers. Crabtree was the 10th overall pick in this year's draft. I wonder if the 49ers' 3-1 record, and seeing the team could win without him, influenced his decision.

Stewart closes gap

NASCAR driver Tony Stewart closed to within 67 points in the Sprint Cup standings with his win last week at Kansas Speedway. With seven races left in the Chase for the Cup, less than 100 points separate the top six spots with Stewart in fourth place.

The next race in the Chase is at the Auto Club Speedway in California. The race will be televised Sunday at 3:15 p.m. on ABC.

Auburn climbs into top 25 poll

Auburn made the AP top 25 for the first time this season, moving to No. 17 after running its record to 5-0. Several other teams also moved into the top 25 with South Florida at No. 23, Missouri at No. 24 and South Carolina at No. 25.

The top four teams — Florida, Texas, Alabama and LSU — remained unchanged in the poll, Virginia Tech moved up one spot to No. 5 while Boise State slid to No. 6.

USC remained at No. 7, Cincinnati moved into the No. 8 spot ahead of Ohio State at No. 9, while TCU moved up one spot to No. 10.

MLB playoffs continue

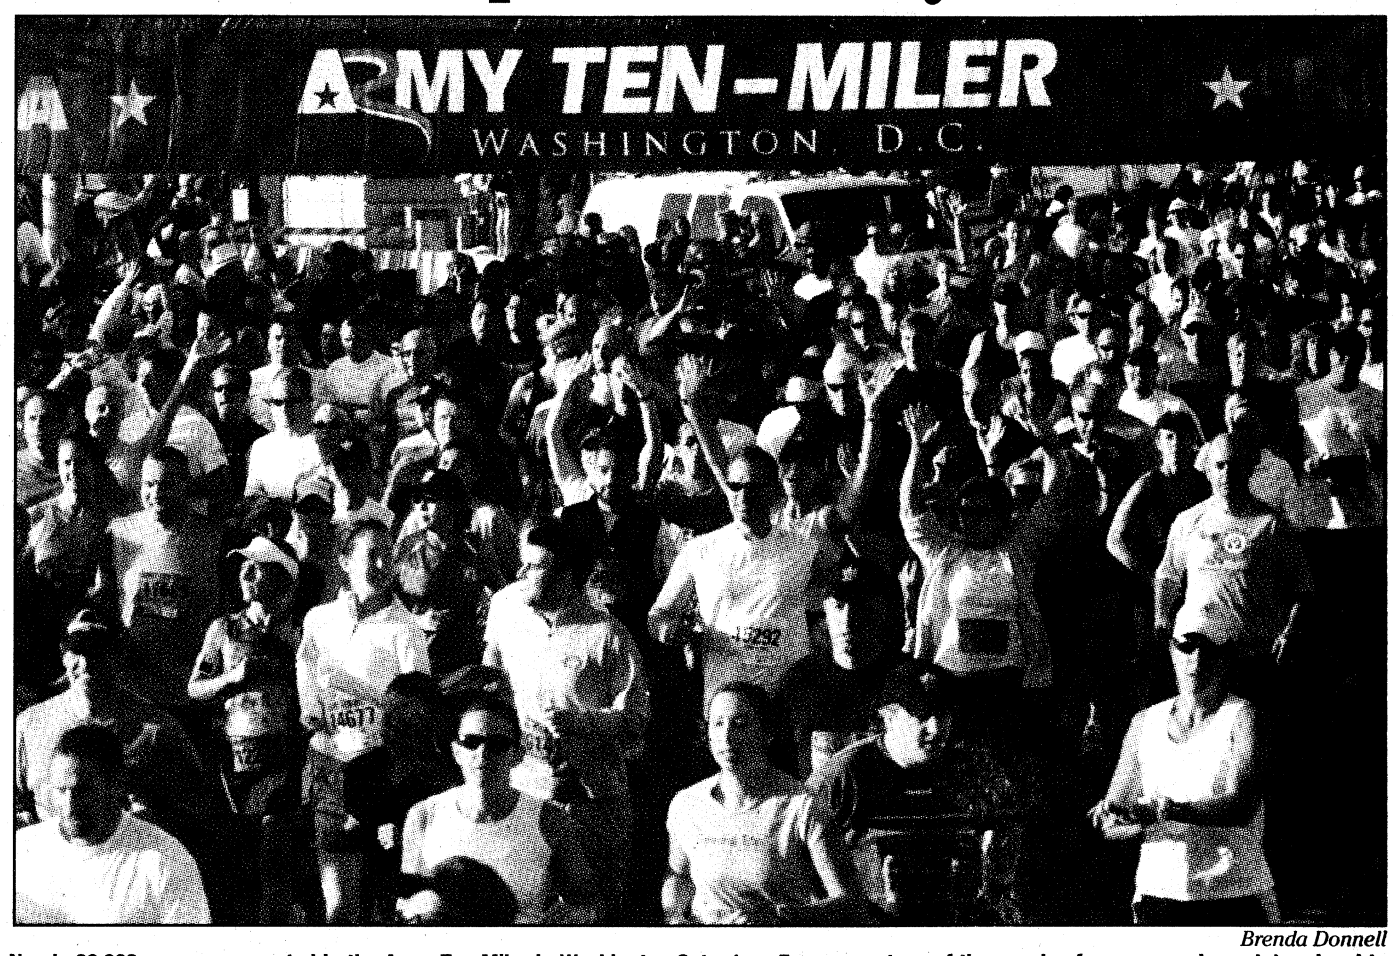
The MLB playoffs began Wednesday with the New York Yankees defeating the Minnesota Twins in Game 1 while the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in Game 1 of their series.

The Twins and Yankees play Game 2 today, which airs on TBS at 6:07 p.m., followed by the Boston Red Sox against the Los Angeles Angels at 9:37 p.m.

For a schedule of playoff games, visit www.espn.com.

Benning Soldiers compete in Army Ten-Miler

Brenda Donnell
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS



Fort Benning Soldiers and civilians, along with nearly 30,000 other runners, competed in the Army Ten-Miler in Washington Sunday.

The post's Army Ten-Miler team placed 17th overall and fifth in the men's active-duty division.

Both the men's and women's overall records were broken this year. Samia Akbar posted a time of 55 minutes, 25 seconds in the female event and Alene Reta's time for the new men's record was 46:59.

Fort Benning and Maneuver Center of Excellence Commanding General MG Michael Ferriter said the annual race, now in its 25th year, is a chance for Soldiers to inspire one another and others.

Nearly 30,000 runners competed in the Army Ten-Miler in Washington Saturday. Every year, tens of thousands of runners and spectators head to Washington to participate in the race, which starts and ends at the Pentagon, passing by the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and Capitol Building. The post's Army Ten-Miler team placed 17th overall and fifth in the men's active-duty division.

Chattco Lady Panthers ranked No. 1 in Area 1-AA/A

THE BAYONET

The Chattahoochee County High School varsity Lady Panthers are the top seed in Area 1-AA/A after winning their last volleyball game against the Greenville Lady Patriots. The Lady Panthers took two straight games, 25-15, 25-22, Tuesday.

The Lady Panthers are headed to Blakely, Ga., today to compete in the 1-AA/A area tournament for a chance to be one of the four teams that advance to the state tournament.

"Finally — we did it," said junior setter Kamara Riley, after the Lady Panthers were named top seed in the area. "I'm happy but we still have work to do. We can win it as long as we stay focused and keep playing how we have been all season."

In 2008, Chattco also went into the area tournament as the top-ranked team but lost to Early County to finish in second place.

The Lady Panthers made it to the state championship, but lost in the first round.

This year, team members expect a different outcome.

Annual 10K Cross-Country Challenge set for Oct. 17

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

Runners, get ready to lace up your sneakers. Oktoberfest's 10K Cross-Country Challenge begins at 9 a.m. Oct. 17 at the Uchee Creek Activity Center.

"The 10K is different than your regular PT run down the road," said Ken Wetherill, race director. "The first five kilometers are open walking trails and wooded areas and the last five kilometers are a little more technical with ravines and hills."

Everybody, no matter what skill level, is invited to participate, Wetherill said.

The six age groups in both male and female categories range from 12 and younger to 50 and older with the top three runners in each age category receiving awards.

There were more than 100 participants in 2008 and Wetherill said he is expecting the same amount this year.

The first 200 participants to register will get a free T-shirt. Participants can preregister until 5 p.m. Friday at Smith Fitness Center or from 5 to 10 p.m. Friday at Uchee Creek. Late registration is from 7 to 8:45 a.m. on the day of the event at Uchee Creek. The cost is $20 per runner. Spectators are welcome.

For more information, call 706-527-2275 or for a registration form, go to www.benningmwr.com.

Faith Middle School takes second at first cross-country meet

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

The Faith Middle School cross-country team competed in its first season meet Sept. 30 at the Brookstone Invitational.

Almost 150 runners from Fort Benning, Columbus, Phenix City and Ellaville, Ga., schools competed at the meet.

The boys' and girls' times were combined for a team score. The first place team win went to St. Luke with a score of 101, with Faith in second with 96 points and Brookstone in third with 77 points.

Brookstone School's Martin Ramos came in first in the boys category with a time of 12 minutes, 9 seconds on the two-mile course.

"It feels good to come in first," said eighth-grader Ramos. "I have never come in first before. The course was good but tiring. I worked on pacing myself and just forgot about everything else and concentrated on running."

Faith Middle School's Cameron Hite came in second at 12:17.

"This is my best time so far," said eighth-grader Hite. "I'm excited about the season. My personal goal for this season is to get first and a time of 11 minutes."

Brookstone School's Rachel Moore took first in the girls category at 13:45 and St. Anne's Abbey White took second with 14:04.

"It was a tough competition," said Faith's Monique Hess. "A lot of girls were confident and motivated to get to the finish line."

Faith head coach Melissa House said she is pleased with the results.

"The kids are doing phenomenally well," House said. "I have seen so much improvement in times since the kids first began running. The season is going well and the kids are enthusiastic about the upcoming meets."

Faith's next meet is the St. Luke invitational at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at Lakebottom Park. Spectators are welcome.

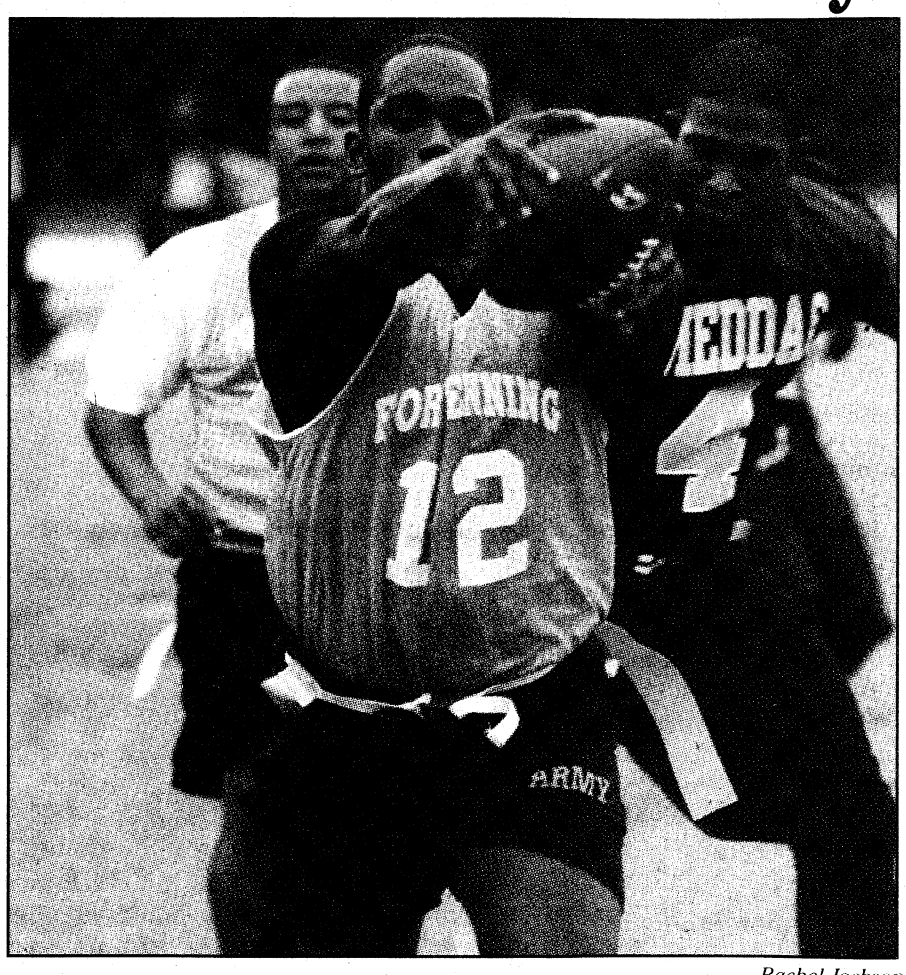
Jungle Cats spoil MEDDAC's undefeated record with 13-6 victory

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

The Jungle Cats spoiled the Dawgs' undefeated regular season in intramural flag football with a 13-6 win Monday at Essebagger Field.

The Dawgs of MEDDAC posted the first score after Dwayne Randall threw a 20-yard pass to Anthony Neloms who ran five yards for the touchdown. The Jungle Cats of 11th Engineer Battalion answered with a 15-yard pass by Darnell Williams and a 10-yard run in the end zone by Sanqwey Walker to tie the score at 6-6. The score was tied at the half.



It wasn't until the last 38 seconds of the game that the Jungle Cats' Williams scored a touchdown on a 15-yard pass from Scottie Thibodaux. Travis Lampley scored the one point to give the Jungle Cats a 13-6 lead. The Dawgs had one more possession before the game ended, but Walker intercepted the ball and ended the game cutting off the Dawgs' chance to score.

"It was a good game," Lampley said. "We knew they had a good defense. We just worked on the basics — pounding and running the ball, making short passes and being consistent."

Walker, the Jungle Cats coach, expects to play MEDDAC again.

"We knew it was going to be a hard game. We knew they were undefeated, but we played hard and we pulled through as a team," Walker said. "We had great defense and offense too. MEDDAC is a well-organized and skilled team. I'm sure we'll see them in the playoffs."

The Commander's Cup intramural football tournament begins Tuesday at Essebagger Field. After winning a game against 2nd Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, Monday following the game against the Dawgs, the Jungle Cats have a 5-1 record. They are tied with the Dawgs for first place in the league.

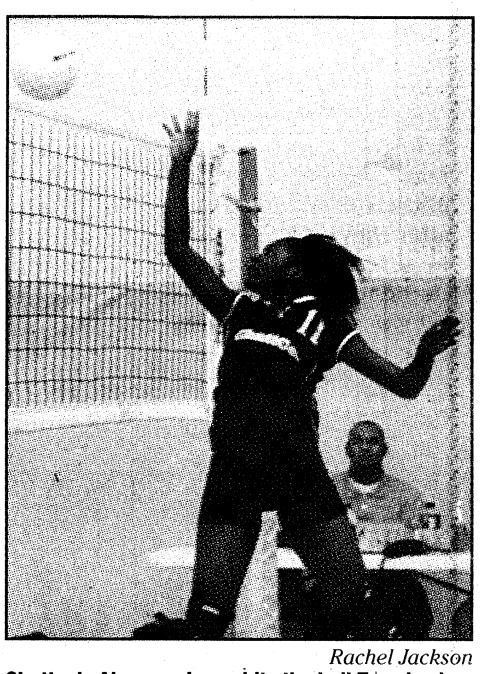
are going to win the tournament this year," said senior team captain and spiker Noelani Conley. "As long as we work as a team, move our feet and communicate, we can win.

Lady Panthers assistant coach Beverly Riley said this season has been the team's best season since she began coaching at Chattco in 2007.

The Lady Panthers hold a 15-1 area record and an 18-1 overall record. Their lone loss was at the hands of Brookstone School Lady Cougars, losing in two straight games, 25-28, 25-14.

Lady Panthers head coach Dorothea Bolen said the team has encountered a few bumps along the way but are meshing well.

"We have had a rough season. We have had a couple of injuries so I have seven players instead of nine," she said. "Overall, I have seen so much improvement from the beginning of the season and the team has grown so much."



In the beginning of the season, the team played more as individuals than as a team, but after the loss against Brookstone, Bolen said, the team realized they had to work together.

Bolen said 30 percent of her players are new to the team and some are new to volleyball.

"I have been telling them all season it's not one person winning or losing a game, it's six people winning or losing a game," Bolen said. "I also tell them the only way they are going to get anything done is to do it together. They really understand that now."

Bolen said because the competition is so good, she couldn't narrow it down to one team that would present the biggest obstacle to winning an area title.

"It could be anyone's win," she said.

Spyder Monkeys edge Roos in MCCC Mega Bowl

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

After going undefeated during a three-month season with an 8-0 record, the Spyder Monkeys took the Maneuver Captains Career Course Mega Bowl 5.0 title, bragging rights and a trophy after defeating the Roos 11-10 in an ultimate football game Saturday at French Field.

The MCCC Bowl is in its fifth season. It's a tradition at MCCC that has been going on about three years, said Mike Reber, Spyder Monkeys coach and MCCC instructor. So is the Toilet Bowl, which features the two-bottom ranked teams in the even and odd conferences.

"The event is a way for the students to blow off steam and relax before they take their big (end of class) test," he said. "We put our own little twist on the game to make it as fun as possible for the students. It's unconventional with rock, paper, scissors instead of a coin toss but it makes it more fun."

Both teams in the MCCC Mega Bowl were the two top ranking teams out of 11 teams in the even and odd MCCC conferences. Because the Roos and Spyder Monkeys were in different conferences all season, this was the first time this season they played against each other.

After an official rock, paper, scissors showdown, the Roos, seminar five, won with a rock over the Spyder Monkeys, seminar four, scissors. The Roos gained the lead early with six touchdowns. The Roos' defense remained strong and held the Spyder Monkeys to three touchdowns while they led 6-3 at the half.

The Spyder Monkeys made a comeback in the second half, capitalizing on eight touchdowns to take the lead, while the Roos scored four touchdowns and were one run short of tying the game. Before the Roos could catch up, the game ended, sealing the 11-10 win for the Spyder Monkeys.

"This is the first time we were behind all season," Reber said. "At halftime, I told the team being behind is nothing to be scared of. I told them to get the points back and play hard. When the chips were down, the boys did what they had to do and executed and they didn't get frustrated."

Spyder Monkey Dan Pace said he has been looking forward to the Mega Bowl all season.

"The Roos came out and played a whole lot harder than any team we have seen so far," Pace said. "I was pretty optimistic at halftime. I knew we were down, but I didn't think it would be a hard turnaround. Overall we played a good game."

Graham Genrich said his team's success was in the second half.

"We were told they were going to be our toughest opponent and we came out in the right mindset," he said. "We had a little pre-game jitters but got over it after the half. We gained our momentum in the second half which was key to our success."

The Spyder Monkeys have one more task — paint the trophy green, which is their jersey color.

Ten-Miler: Chance 'to demonstrate warrior ethos'

"The Army Ten-Miler signifies the coming together once a year of all leaders and all Soldiers ... and is a chance for Soldiers to demonstrate the warrior ethos," he said.

Eight active-duty Soldiers assigned to Fort Benning were chosen for the team after they participated in several races prior to the Ten-Miler.

"We take the best times in three qualifying races," said Lori Smith, Fort Benning fitness and recreation director.

Aaron Totten-Lancaster, Jason Horsager, David Reyes, Jason Mitchler, Jason Geiger, James Mahurin, Travis Bradley and Darren Riley made up the post team.

Riley, a Maneuver Captains Course student, was running in his fourth race. However, his girlfriend, Amanda Rivers, ran it for the first time.

Rivers said running the course this year was an eye-opener.

"I loved watching," said Rivers, who was running this year in honor of her sister's deployed husband and all for all deployed Soldiers. "However, being a runner and being cheered on is thrilling."

Every year, tens of thousands of runners and spectators head to Washington. to participate in the race, which starts and ends at the Pentagon, passing by the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and Capitol Building.

The 10-mile race promotes the Army, builds esprit de corps, supports fitness goals and enhances community relations, according to the Army Ten-Miler Web site. More than 500 military and civilians teams competed this year to win the Commander's Cup, International Competition and USCAA Ten-Mile Championship.

For more information about the winners of this year's race, visit http://www.armytenmiler.com/index.cfm.

Soldier Show brings Army family together

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

From the looks and cheers of spectators, the U.S. Army Soldier Show was a hit Friday night. The show, sponsored by I.A.M. STRONG, the Army's Prevention of Sexual Harassment and Sexual Assault Program, and AT&T, drew nearly 5,000 people to Wetherby Field to hear a wide range of popular music, from Taylor Swift's Love Story to T-Pain's Freeze.

The 90-minute live production showcased the talents of 22 active-duty Soldiers — 15 performers and seven technicians — who represent various specialties within the Army, from combat medic to petroleum specialist.

This year's show, "Lights! Camera! Action," included rap, R&B, country, gospel, rock, oldies and patriotic tunes mixed with dance numbers and visual effects.

The show opened with Kirk Franklin's upbeat Declaration (This Is It), co-written by Kenny Loggins and Michael McDonald, about surviving everyday trials and tribulations through a positive declaration of one's purpose in life.

Other songs included Duffy's Mercy, Dominican Juan Luis Guerra's La Llave de Mí Corazón, which translates in English to Key to My Heart, and I Decided, by Solange Knowles. The performers wore traditional attire from India for Jai Ho, from the Oscar-winning film Slumdog Millionaire. The evening wrapped with Make Them Hear You/Warrior's Anthem, a combination of Michael Peterson's The Warrior's Anthem and Robert Humphrey's Warrior's Creed.

Zaire Motley, 9, said she enjoyed her first concert.

Fort Benning starts AWANA program

Fort Benning kicked off its first night of AWANA Sept. 30 at the School Age Services Center, welcoming more than 50 volunteers and 115 children.

What is AWANA?

"AWANA stands for 'approved workmen are not ashamed' and it's from 2 Timothy 2:15," said Rachel Bogle, AWANA secretary.

"Basically, it's saying we should study the Bible. That's what Paul was telling Timothy: we should study the Bible and know what it's saying," said AWANA commander, Chaplain (LTC) Tom Wild, 198th Infantry Brigade chaplain.

"The goal of AWANA is to reach boys and girls with the gospel of Christ and train them to serve him."

A worldwide Christian-based program, AWANA is open to Fort Benning children ages 3 to sixth grade. The free program will be from 6:30 to 8 p.m. every Wednesday at the new School Age Services building on Ingersoll Street.

It's held there because more people signed up than the Follow Me Chapel could accommodate.

"Kids have fun when they go to AWANA," Bogle said. "It's just different than any other experience they've ever had. They get to play games and do crafts, and it makes learning about God and (scripture) memorization fun."

Typical activities include an opening ceremony, team-based games, songs and small group time, where children work through age-appropriate handbooks.

When they finish workbooks, bring a friend or "wear a crazy hat for crazy hat night," they can earn rewards, badges for their vests or even plaques, Bogle said, similar to Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts.

"It's exciting," said 9-year-old Ryan Figgins, who attended AWANA at a church in Illinois before he moved to Fort Benning. "They have great games, and it's really fun to memorize the verses with your friends."

Many of the kids attending AWANA Wednesday, including

'Teenager at heart' helps youth club grow

Club Beyond benefits from CFC

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

"I thought he was weird at first," said 17-year-old Tyler Caraballo, recalling the time as a Faith Middle School sixth-grader when he first met Steve Paquette, the Fort Benning community youth director.

"I saw just one guy out of the ordinary standing in my lunchroom, coming up to people, and he decided to come up to me. I thought he was real weird," Caraballo said. "But then we started talking, and once he started talking about God, that interested me."

Since that first meeting, Caraballo has been part of Club Beyond, the onpost teen organization Paquette heads up.

"He's pretty cool — better than cool … he's a teenager at heart," said Caraballo of his mentor. "Whenever I'm down and I need somebody to help me lift myself back up, I would talk to him, and he would help me. He'll pray for me. He helps calm me down. … When you go to Club Beyond, that whole day is peaceful."

"Club Beyond is an outreach ministry to middle and high school kids," said Paquette, who celebrated his fifth anniversary with Club Beyond Oct. 1. "We are trying to reach every teen with the love of Jesus Christ. We do the events to draw kids in, so they can hear about Jesus and what he's done for them."

"Events" have included shaving cream hairdos, doughnut Olympics, inflating surgical gloves and, most recently, eating rain gutter ice cream. More than 60 middle schoolers were undeterred when they saw ice cream sundaes filling a new rain gutter at the weekly club meeting Oct. 1 at the Chapel Teen Center. Kids scooped individual servings from the gutter and chowed down after playing some outdoor games and participating in a Bible study, led by Paquette.

It may seem like a strange concept, but Paquette said he just wants to draw the kids in and make them feel comfortable.

"My goal is to break down walls so these kids will be able to be who they are," he said. "I want Club Beyond to be a place where they can come and not have to put up a face, not have to put up a mask, where they

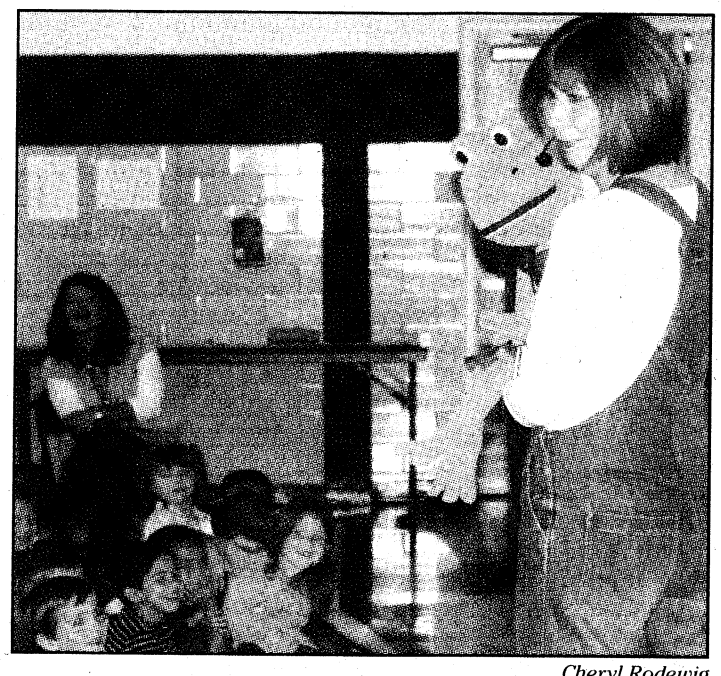
Dexter students meet author, illustrator

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Dexter Elementary School students wrapped up two weeks of studying Georgia Tuesday with a visit from the author and illustrator of several Georgia history children's books.

Pam Alexander, a former eighth-grade history teacher, presented the history and geography of Georgia to more than 200 Dexter students through the point of view of a Vidalia onion named Yumion and a time-traveling tree frog named Jeremiah.

Eight-year-old Alexandra Trujillo, who moved to Fort Benning from California last September, said she liked reading the books and finding out more about Georgia.



"I never really knew about Georgia till I read all these books," she said. "The books told me about Georgia's history and things that are here and places you can actually go. I like having the information because we live here. Now, it's not learn to read; it's read to learn."

Alexandra said she liked knowing Alexander visited the places before drawing them, instead of just "making it up."

Alexander, who visits about 100 schools every year, said she and fellow teacher Rhonda Frost Petty, who writes some of the lower elementary books, decided to start making children's books about Georgia as resources for teachers.

"And then we realized the students love it," she said. "It's just not boring. You add a character in there and you tell about his experiences. He has things happen to him in these places and these are things that could happen to the kids if they go there

Oct. 28 at White Elementary School for East Main Post Village; Nov. 4 at McBride Elementary School for McGraw Village; Nov. 9 at Wilson Elementary School for Indianhead Village; Nov. 19 at McBride for Custer Village; Nov. 24 at McBride for Patton Village; and Dec. 2 at Stowers Elementary School for Davis/Bouton Village.

For more information, call Raul Brown at 706-545-0667.

HALLOWEEN GROUND RULES

Residents will observe Halloween with "trick or treating" for children ages 13 and younger from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Trick or treaters" should observe all basic safety precautions to include wearing reflective, fire-resistant costumes that are short enough to prevent tripping, using makeup instead of masks that may restrict vision, carrying a flashlight and exercising caution when crossing streets. Post residents are encouraged to limit "trick or treating" to the housing area in which they live.

Pet owners should confine their pets to prevent them from being a nuisance.

SIXTH ANNUAL 'MONSTER SALE'

The Fort Benning commissary will have its sixth annual "Monster Sale" from 8 to 11 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Humans" can join the fun and receive $10 off their grocery bill by being one of the first 50 customers to arrive in costume — but masks do not count. The store closes at 6 p.m. to prepare for the sale, which will include various items at 30 to 80 percent off retail prices.

Commissary grocery manager Lillie Burns said most items will be sold in bulk or cases, so eligible families are encouraged to shop together to enable splitting after purchase."

Products available include Halloween candy, cereal, fruit drinks, juices, soda, canned goods, snacks; baby needs, including diapers; paper, household and frozen products; meat, produce and water.

DISABILITY EMPLOYMENT AWARENESS MONTH

October is Disability Employment Awareness Month and Sayers Memorial Library has a display containing books, Exceptional Family Member Program resource materials and guides related to various disabilities.

Soldiers and family members may visit Army Community Service's EFMP office in Building 2624 at Soldiers' Plaza to pick up resource magazines, directories and giveaways.

Family members enrolled in EFMP who meet specific medical and educational criteria may qualify for respite care services. For more information, call 706-545-5521.

WIC PROGRAM CHANGES

Participants in Fort Benning's Women, Infants and Children supplemental nutrition program can choose from a wider variety of healthy foods such as fresh fruit and vegetables, whole-grain rice, cereal, tortillas, bread, soy, and lactose-free milk and tofu. Parents will be able to select either skim, 1 percent or 2 percent milk for their children age 2 or older.

WIC also has increased healthy food choices for mothers who choose to breast feed only.

For those receiving WIC services at Fort Benning or local health departments, the new food packages will be phased in during October, November and December. Vendors will continue accepting old vouchers as the new vouchers are introduced.

The Fort Benning WIC office is in Building 2613 at Soldiers' Plaza. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 706-682-8455 to make an appointment or 800-789-5502 for more information.

TROOPS TO TEACHERS PROGRAM

Bill Kirkland, manager of the Georgia Troops to Teachers Program, will conduct a 90-minute "Transition to Teaching" seminar at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 3 in Module C's Classroom 7. The Module C trailer is closest to the running track on the corner of Eckel and Chesney streets.

Veterans who qualify for the program are eligible to receive a stipend of up to $5,000 to pay for teacher certification and a one-time bonus up to $10,000 once they start teaching.

Call 706-545-3299 for more information. For information on the Georgia Troops to Teachers or Georgia Spouses to Teachers programs, call 800-745-0709 or visit www.tttga.net.

TAPS SURVIVOR SEMINAR AND GOOD GRIEF CAMP

The Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors will be at Fort Benning Nov. 13-14 to provide its free "Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp."

The conferences offer information, resources and personal contact with fellow survivors. Workshops are designed to help survivors heal and cope with life after loss.

The TAPS Good Grief Camp for children and teens provides a safe, supportive atmosphere to conduct activities and opportunities to learn coping skills, establish and identify support systems, and create awareness that they are not alone in the grief of a loved one.

Register at www.taps.org/events. For more information, call Survivor Outreach Services at 706-545-7517 or visit www.benningmwr.com/acs-sos.php.

Fort Benning students place in statewide art contest

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Photos by Kristin Molinaro

Michael Lewis, Chloe Lippert and Alexa Lyman were honored by former President Jimmy Carter at the Plains Peanuts Festival Parade Sept. 26. Michael and Chloe won first place in their respective categories at the Plains, Peanuts and a President art contest; Alexa won second place in her category. There were approximately 21,000 entries in the annual contest, which coincides with the president's birthday celebration.

A dancing peanut in a blue birthday hat won first place in the fifth-grade category at the Plains, Peanuts and a President art contest. The dancing peanut, drawn on postcard-sized paper by Morris R. McBride Elementary School student Michael Lewis, earned the 10-year-old a medal and a handshake from former President Jimmy Carter at the annual Plains Peanuts Festival Parade Sept. 26.

Lewis, one of three Fort Benning students to take home a prize in this year's contest, beat out hundreds of entries from across the state.

There were more than 21,000 entries submitted for 13 categories divided by grade level. The annual contest was held by the Jimmy Carter National Historic Foundation in conjunction with the president's 85th birthday celebration.

The other post winners were Chloe Lippert, a fourth-grader at Edward A. White Elementary School, and Alexa Lyman, a third-grader at the school. Chloe won first place for her category; Alexa took second.

"I was really surprised that I won," said Chloe, 9, who drew a peanut sailing on a Navy boat with a rainbow in the background. "I like creating my own pictures, not just drawing what someone tells me to draw."

Chloe's winning entry has inspired her to think about drawing professionally when she grows up, but she said she has also thought about owning a pet store.

"I love dogs," Chloe said. "I volunteer at an animal shelter downtown every Tuesday."

Alexa, 8, drew a peace-themed postcard to win the runner-up spot for the third-grade category.

"We talked about our ideas in art class. President Carter tried to make peace, so I drew hands reaching out for peace," said Alexa, whose drawing also included American flags in each of the corners, a peanut border and several peace signs to illustrate her idea.

Alexa said her favorite class is art but she doesn't plan on drawing for a living when she gets older.

"I want to work with sea animals," she said. "I love the aquarium."

Michael said he was surprised by his first place win, his first since he began entering art contests.

"I just entered it for fun," he said. "The art had to have peanuts in it so I thought animating a peanut would be better than drawing a town with peanuts in it."

Michael's parents, SGT Robert Lewis, a special agent with the 86th Military Police Detachment, Criminal Investigation Division, and Kristi, said their son has been drawing since he was old enough to hold a pencil.

"We like to say he was born with a pencil in his hand," Kristi said.

Michael said he hopes to become a cartoonist when he grows up.

"I like to trace newspaper comics, like Garfield," he said. "I'm also in a Pokémon phase."

Michael's art teacher, Judy Stern, said she had no doubt Michael would win this year.

"I saw his picture and thought it was excellent," said Stern, who encouraged all her fifth-grade art students to participate in the contest. "I've seen the winning artwork up on the Web site from previous years, and they were good, but I thought Michael's was better."

or (to) a character they take there."

Learning about Georgia is great for Fort Benning kids because many of them haven't lived in the state for a long time.

"Most of them are not from Georgia, and Georgia has so many different aspects. We've got mountains; we've got trails; we've got beaches; we've got swamps — all of these different things they don't know. It's so much right here in our state."

Roger Ingram, information specialist at Dexter, said he invited Alexander because he wanted to help the school achieve one of its goals for the year: "to extend and evaluate the meaning of reading."

"I think when you have a live person in front of them, speaking to them, it means so much more than them reading a book and saying, 'OK, the author was such and such,'" Ingram said. "It's a whole lot different when they see the author, they get presentations from that author, and then they can use it afterward to extend the meaning, so they fully understand what they read and why the person wrote the book."

After the presentation, students gathered in the library to meet the illustrator and have her sign their books.

Alexander visited four schools on post this week, including Stowers, Wilson and McBride.

Cheryl Rodewig

Pam Alexander, illustrator of Sails, Pails and Alligator Tails, autographs the book for 6-year-old Elizabeth Brown, a kindergartner at Dexter Elementary, with the message "be sweet." The phrase "be sweet" is hidden multiple times throughout the drawings of the book, Alexander said.

MAJ Patrick and Rachel Wilkins pose for a photo with their family and former President Jimmy Carter Sept. 26 after the Plains Family Fun Run in Plains, Ga., during the annual Peanut Festival. The family was recognized as the first Road Race Family on the railroad platform stage where Carter launched his presidential campaign. The family received a plaque from Carter thanking them for their service to America. Hanah Wilkins, 5, placed first in her age category and 5-year-old Sarah Wilkins placed second. Hunter Wilkins, 11, took second in his age category, while Rachel Wilkins came in third in the 5K.

House of Heroes repairs homes for military

Volunteers with Lockheed Martin pose for a picture in front of a House of Heroes home. The project, performed in September, helped Mamie Grate, widow of Alonzo Grate, who retired from the Army after 20 years of service and two tours in Vietnam.

Members of the Fort Benning chapter of the Sergeants Major Association helped repair the Columbus home of Mary Linn in October. Linn is the widow of SSG(R) Darvin Linn, who served in four major campaigns in Vietnam and retired after more than 23 years of service. The project included repairing walls and the ceiling, installing storm windows, cleaning the yard and painting the house. House of Heroes is a community program that provides free home repairs for elderly or disabled military and public safety veterans and their spouses as a way of saying "thank you" for their sacrifices.

Ryan Hunt and Madeline Miller compete in a bean bag relay race Sept. 30. Miller, who has previously attended AWANA, is wearing the Sparkies vest for children in kindergarten through second grade.

AWANA: Free for post kids

10-year-old Kate Miller, had never been to the program before. Kate saw a sign-up sheet at the Follow Me Chapel and heard good reviews from other kids, so she wanted to try it out, she said.

"I like it," Kate said, after one night of activities. "It's impressed me how the people are so nice. They encourage you. They teach you about God in a way you can understand. And you can have fun while you're learning."

Spanning 80 denominations, all 50 states and more than 100 countries, AWANA is great for military kids because it gives them something familiar nearly anywhere they move, Wild said.

"This is the fourth installation I've been at that I've had the privilege to be part of starting up an AWANA club," said Wild, who left clubs of about 100 kids each in West Point, N.Y., Fort Polk, La., and Bamberg, Germany, that are still going strong today.

"So I have seen how much the kids enjoy it and how much the parents like to see the kids in AWANA. Once people get involved and see what a great program it is, they don't want it to stop.

"All the chaplains and congregations on post have been very supportive, and we really appreciate the staff at SAS Center for allowing us to use their beautiful new facility."

All volunteers undergo background checks and receive training in advance.

Ne-yo," she said. "It looked just like the music video."

Zaire's older sister, Kenya, 10, said she preferred Beyoncé's Single Ladies (Put a Ring on it) because of the performers glittering dresses.

"I want one of those dresses in my closet," Kenya said. "I thought they were pretty and awesome."

SSG(R) Eddie Coleman and his wife, Ruth, said they enjoyed singing out loud to the "oldies but goodies" during the show.

"It's very entertaining, people from all walks of life are here," Eddie said. "Tonight we're one big, happy, Army family."

Club: Needs volunteer help, CFC funds can just be who God intended them to be."

Sixteen-year-old Liz Hardin, a junior at Chattahoochee County High School, moved to Fort Benning in December.

She has been a Club Beyond member for six years, including clubs at installations in Kentucky, Alaska and South Carolina.

The funny activities Paquette does with the club help draw people closer together, Hardin said.

"It's loosening up time," she said. "It gives people a chance to show who they are without feeling like they're going to be judged or looked at in a certain way. It's really fun, just to do little games you would have never thought of, but it just kind of brings everybody together."

It might be the odd games that have helped the club grow in the past five years.

Currently, around 80 middle and high school students participate in the club, which holds weekly Bible studies and game nights, summer camps and youth retreats.

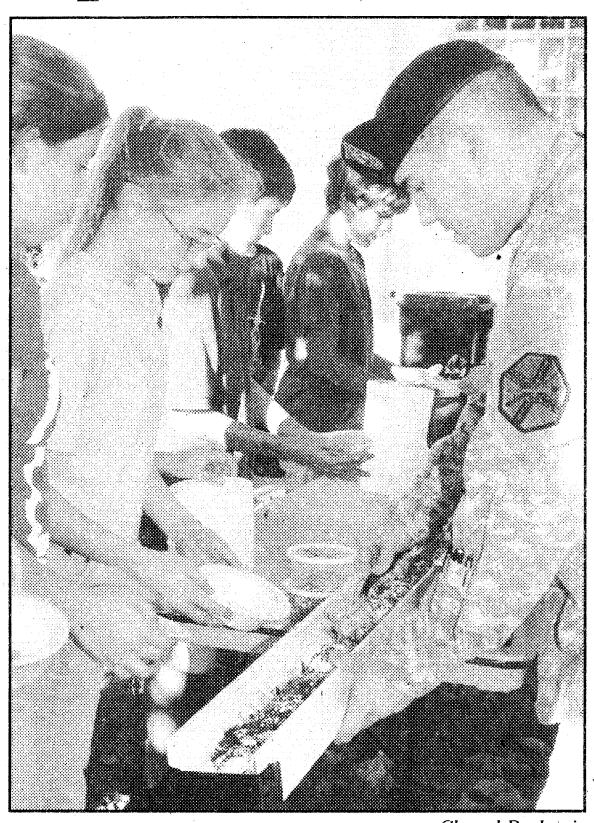
It's larger now than it has ever been before, Paquette said, but the club still needs help financially.

Paquette attended the Combined Federal Campaign Agency Fair Saturday at the PX and presented his organization and its mission to people visiting the fair. Through the CFC, Soldiers and DA Civilians can contribute to a variety of nonprofit groups.



Club Beyond is one of more than 3,000 agencies that receive funds from the CFC, said Laura Walker, manager for the Columbus/Fort Benning Regional CFC.

Paquette said he uses CFC donations to help with operating costs and to continue improving the club.

"This has been the most rewarding job I've ever had," he said. "I'm 36 years old, and I could not see myself being anywhere else but out here helping military families."

To volunteer with the club or join, contact Paquette at 706-681-8948 or spaquette@ctvea.net. To contribute to Club Beyond through the CFC, contact your key person.

The next CFC event will be the Lunch & Putt Competition at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday on the Fort Benning Golf Course. People can vie for prizes or watch the competition while enjoying lunch. For more information, call Walker at 706-545-9782 or visit www.columbusbenningcfc.org.

• Have a strong, sudden urge to urinate?
• Experience the involuntary loss of urine immediately following an urgent need to urinate?
• Urinate frequently, usually eight or more times in 24 hours?
• Awaken two or more times in the night to urinate (nocturia)?
It could be overactive bladder (OAB). Most people don't realize that OAB is a real medical condition. It affects 34 million men and women in the United States. That's 1 in 6 adults. It's more common than you might think.

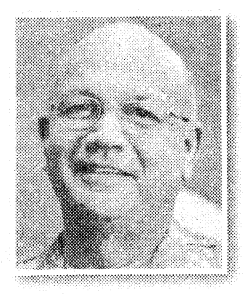
Care for others with selfless service

Chaplain (LTC) Lyn Stike
DEPUTY GARRISON CHAPLAIN



According to sermonillustrations.com, Ernest Gordon, who wrote the book Through the Valley of the Kwai, tells the story of a man who literally transformed an entire Japanese prison camp during World War II.

The man's name was Angus McGillivray, a Scottish prisoner in one of the camps filled with Americans, Australians and Brits who helped build the bridge over the River Kwai.

The situation in the camp was ugly. Allies would literally steal from each other and cheat each other; men would sleep on their packs and yet have them stolen from under their heads. Survival was everything. The law of the jungle prevailed — until the news of McGillivray's death. Rumors spread in the wake of his death. No one could believe McGillivray died. He was strong, one of those whom they had expected to be the last to die. Actually, it wasn't the fact of his death that shocked the men, but the reason he died.

The Argylls (Scottish soldiers) took their buddy system very seriously. Their buddy was called their "mucker," and these Argylls believed it was literally up to each of them to make sure their "mucker" survived. McGillivray's mucker was dying — everyone had given up on him — except McGillivray, who made up his mind his friend would not die.

Someone had stolen his mucker's blanket. So McGillivray gave him his own, telling his mucker that he had just come across an extra one. Likewise, every mealtime, McGillivray gave his rations to his friend, forcing him to eat, saying it was extra food. McGillivray was doing anything and everything to see that his buddy got what he needed to recover.

But as McGillivray's mucker began to recover, McGillivray collapsed and died.

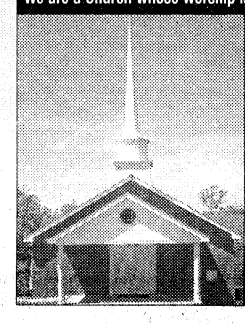
The doctors said starvation complicated by exhaustion killed McGillivray. He gave his own food and shelter. He gave everything he had — even his life.

The ramifications of his acts of love and unselfishness had a startling impact on the compound.

As the reason for McGillivray's death spread, the camp began to change. The men began to focus on their mates, their friends and humanity of living beyond survival, of giving oneself away. They began to pool their talents — one was a violin maker, another an orchestra leader, another a cabinet maker, another a professor. Soon the camp had an orchestra full of homemade instruments and a church, the Church Without Walls, that was so powerful, so compelling, even the Japanese guards attended. The men began a university, a hospital and a library system. The place was transformed, all because one man named Angus McGillivray gave all he had for his friend.

In the next calendar year we will receive many new Soldiers (our muckers). How are we going to care for them? Are we going to share our knowledge, experience and wisdom? Or are we going to sit back and wait for them to stumble?

Selfless Service is a value the Army has lived out in both peace and wartime. You can make the difference. Selfless service demands we focus on others, not ourselves. It requires we share freely that which made us successful.



We must develop the art of giving. During this holiday season may we become intentional in our efforts to care and share for others living the Army values.

Families get comfortable Sunday for the 20-minute hayride around Marengo Creek Farms steered by Shelby Martin. The working sheep farm opens for a month each fall to offer fun activities to families. This year, the farm has a hay maze, tubs of shelled corn and a pumpkin patch. The farm is located 12 miles west of Phenix City.

Friendly scarecrows and Halloween decorations dot the landscape of the children's hay maze at the farm. Next to the maze are three large tubs of shelled corn for kids to play in.

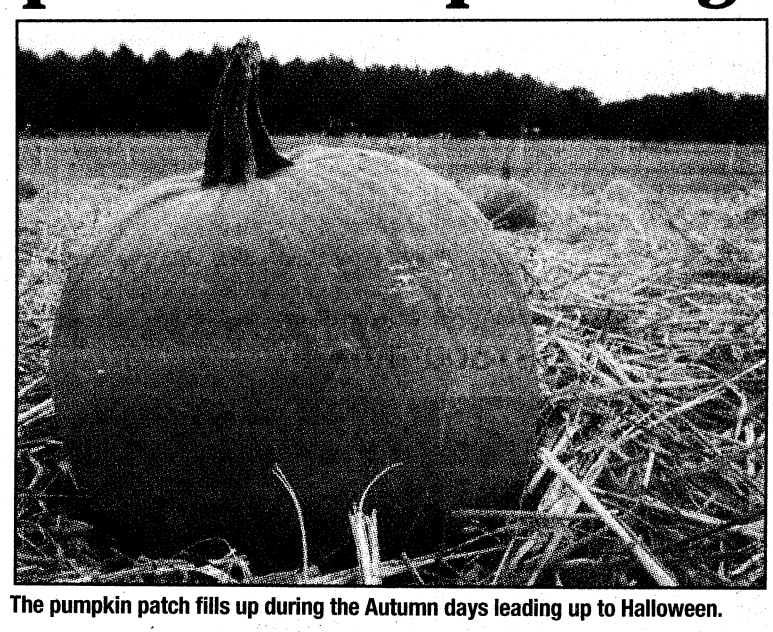
THE BAYONET

Fall activities are ripe for the picking at Marengo Creek Farms.

Through Oct. 31 visitors can pick out their future jack-o'-lanterns and pies at the pumpkin patch and check out the assortment of farm animals at Marengo's working sheep farm. This year, the family-friendly farm boasts a hayride, hay maze and shelled corn boxes for children to play in.

"Marengo Creek offers a family farm experience," said Stewart Harvard, a self-described "agri-entertainer."



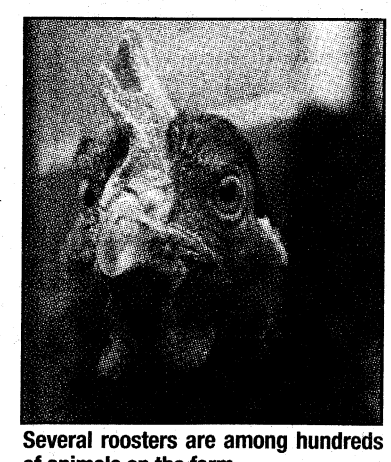
Harvard and his wife, Candy, began offering autumn activities at the farm eight years ago.

"A lot of kids have never seen farm animals before so it's fun for them to come here and stay the whole day," Stewart said.

Among the animals at the farm are turkeys, chickens, ducks, goats, sheep, sheep dogs, racing pigeons, cows and a miniature horse. Autumn is a prime time to see the newborn lambs on the farm, said Shelby Martin, who has worked at the farm for six years.

Martin takes visitors on a 20-minute hayride along a dirt trail leading to a lake on the property. Along the trail are painted hay bales, scarecrows and a variety of other Halloween decorations, all kid-friendly.

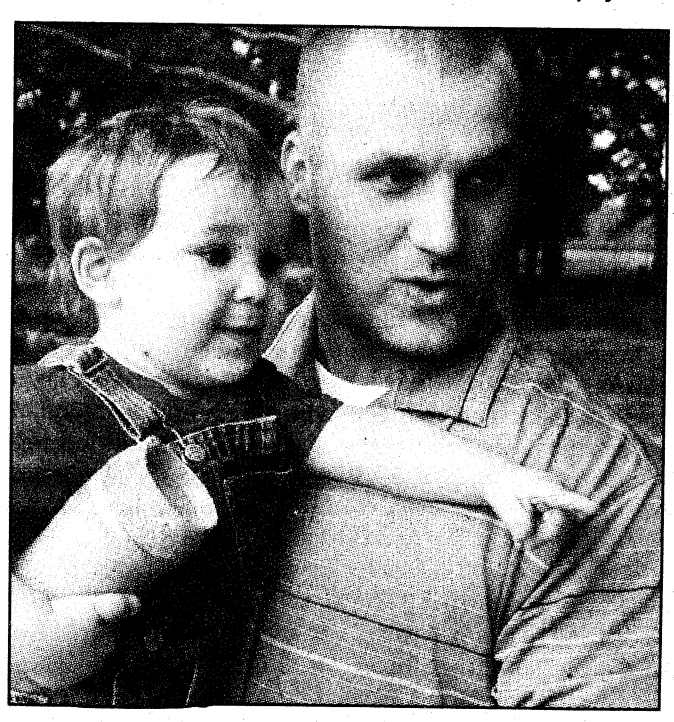
"The hay ride is mostly for children, so we don't want it to be too scary," he said.



The pumpkin patch fills up during the Autumn days leading up to Halloween.

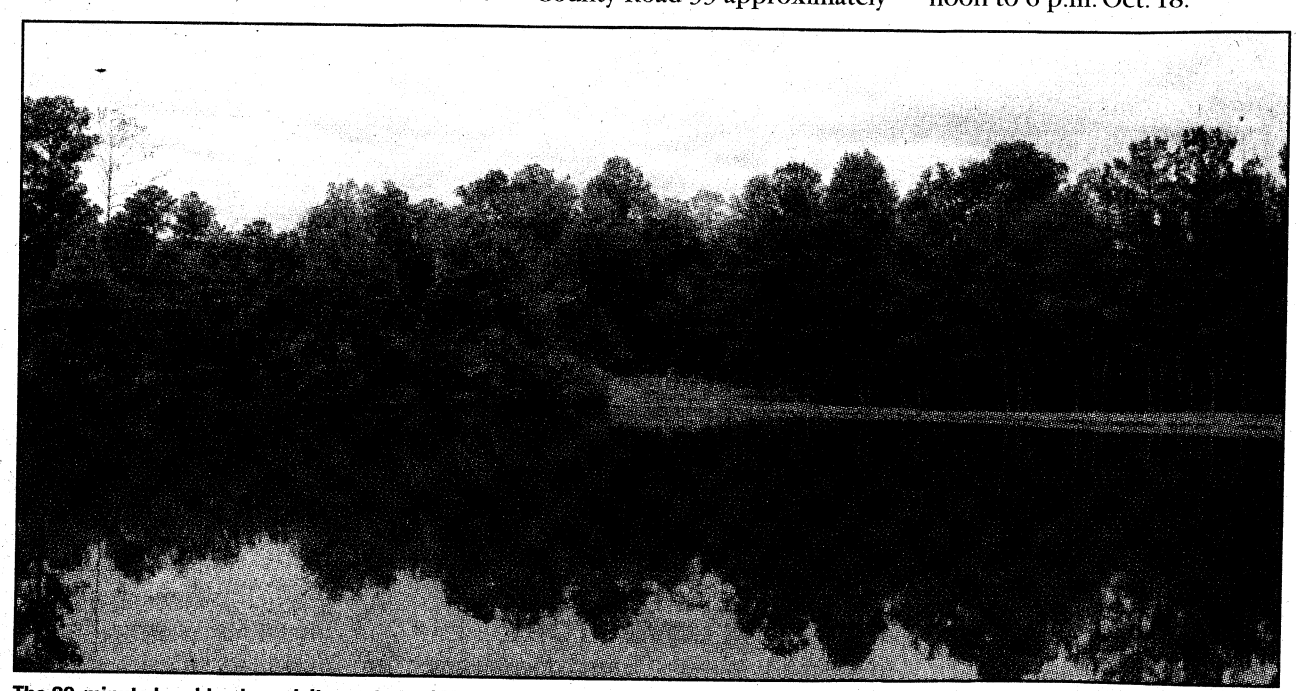
After a photo-op at the lake, visitors hop back on the hayride and it winds back around the property to the pumpkin patch, where they can search for a pumpkin souvenir to take home.

Khonnor Dorminey, 2, was out Sunday with his parents, Matt and Erin, looking for pumpkins to decorate their home.



"I'd never even heard of this place until recently," said Matt, who made the drive from Columbus to see the farm. "This was a great way to kick start the season."

The farm is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays through Oct. 31. Admission is $7, children two and younger are free. The farm is located off Russell County Road 33 approximately 12 miles west of Phenix City. For more information and directions, visit www.marengocreekfarms.com.



Several roosters are among hundreds of animals on the farm.

Fort Benning's annual Oktoberfest, held this year from Friday to Oct. 18, also feature a free pumpkin patch. Hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 17 and noon to 6 p.m. Oct. 18.

Two-year-old Khonnor Dorminey shouts "Sheep!" as he points out newborn lambs to his dad, Matt, on a trip Sunday to Marengo Creek Farms.

The 20-minute hayride gives visitors a tour of Marengo Creek Farms and its picturesque lake.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

Zombieland: Give up the Twinkies

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

When you are getting the travel guide for the world at its end, it's interesting to know where and how the end started. But for those who are caught up in the aftermath, it's really kind of beside the point.

When the ravening dead wish to gnaw on your intestines, you usually have to have other things on your mind to get you through the days. Cue the heavy strains of Metallica, and we are introduced to the world known as Zombieland (formerly the planet Earth, home to homo sapiens, now an endangered species).

Our first unlikely hero is a young and somewhat nerdy guy (and he admits this) who goes by the moniker "Columbus," referencing the town he wishes to reach, hoping to find his family.

He seems an unlikely candidate to survive in the world of the flesh-hungry dead, but survive he does. In fact, he just about has it down to a science.

He has made extensive notes of the traits and habits that separate humans from zombies and he has no problem sharing with the audience as he describes how the world got the way it did. Some examples:

1. Cardio — the variety of zombies populating Zombieland are the fast variety. And they don't get tired. They are stupid as heck, but if you can't outrun or outmaneuver them and you don't have a handy weapon, being smarter won't help much. According to Columbus, the fat people died first.

2. Beware of bathrooms — you are at your most vulnerable in this state. Do a thorough sweep and clear before you do your business, and do it quietly.

3. Seat belts — lots of debris on the road in Zombieland. If you don't want to be street grease, wear your seat belt.

4. The double tap — when you take down a zombie, be sure to give the critter an extra one in the brain. Just to be sure.

5. Don't be a hero — self-explanatory.

Eventually, Columbus is joined by Tallahassee, a gunslinging tough guy seemingly thriving in this harsh land.

What kind of guy is Tallahassee? Take Mel Gibson's Mad Max character. Give him a Southern drawl and a cowboy hat. Make him a bit of a doofus, with a real mad-on for zombies. And there you have Tallahassee.

On a post-apocalyptic road trip, two girls, who call themselves Wichita and Little Rock, are headed west to California. Rumor has it the L.A. area amusement park, Pacific Playland, is a zombie-free zone. No zombies, roller coasters and a chance for Tallahassee to finally obtain a Twinkie, his heart's desire.

Admittedly, the zombie genre hasn't been a favorite of mine. Zombies by themselves aren't the most interesting menace, so you have to spice them up somewhat. Your best bet is to put in interesting protagonists whose exploits you are interested in, whose fates you care about. The good zombie films manage to pull this off, especially my favorite zombie film to date, Shaun of the Dead.

Zombieland gives its own spin, and does it well.

The players clearly were having a good time. A convincing world was created without drowning everyone in exposition. And of course, Bill Murray rocks in a cameo appearance.

And guess what? It was filmed in Georgia. Go see it and support local filmmaking.

OPENING THIS WEEK

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN

Clyde Shelton (Gerard Butler) is a family man whose wife and daughter are brutally murdered during a home invasion. When the killers are caught, Philadelphia prosecutor Nick Rice (Jamie Foxx) is assigned to the case. Nick is forced by his boss to offer one of the suspects a light sentence in exchange for testifying against his accomplice. Fast-forward 10 years. The man who got away with murder is found dead and Shelton admits his guilt. Then he issues a warning to Nick: Fix the flawed justice system that failed his family, or key players in the trial will die.

From his jail cell, Shelton orchestrates a string of spectacularly diabolical assassinations that can be neither predicted nor prevented, and only Nick can stop the killing.

He must outwit the sociopath in a harrowing contest of wills in which even the smallest misstep means death. With his own family now in Shelton's crosshairs, Nick finds himself in a desperate race against time facing a deadly adversary who seems always to be one step ahead.

Law Abiding Citizen is rated R for violence and torture, a rape scene and language.

THE STEPFATHER

Michael Harding (Penn Badgley) returns home from military school to find his mother (Sela Ward) happily in love and living with her new boyfriend, David (Dylan Walsh). As the two men get to know each other, Michael becomes suspicious of the man who is always there with a helpful hand. Is he really the man of her dreams or could David be hiding a dark side?

The Stepfather is rated PG-13 for violence, disturbing images, mature thematic material and brief sensuality.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Max, a rambunctious and sensitive boy feels misunderstood at home and escapes to where the Wild Things are. He lands on an island where he meets mysterious and strange creatures whose emotions are as wild and unpredictable as their actions. The Wild Things desperately long for a leader to guide them, just as Max longs for a kingdom to rule. When Max is crowned king, he promises to create a place where everyone will be happy. Max soon finds, though, that ruling his kingdom is not so easy and his relationships there prove to be more complicated than he originally thought.

Where the Wild Things Are is rated PG for mild thematic elements, some adventure action and brief language.

NOW PLAYING

ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive. Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

CAPITALISM: A LOVE STORY

In Michael Moore's latest documentary, he wonders what America pays for its love of capitalism? Years ago, that love seemed so innocent. Today, however, the American dream is looking more like a nightmare as families pay the price with their jobs, their homes and their savings. Moore takes the viewers into the homes of ordinary people whose lives have been turned upside down; and he goes looking for explanations in Washington.

It is rated R.

THE INVENTION OF LYING

In an alternate reality, lying — even the concept of a lie — does not even exist. Everyone, from politicians to advertisers to the man and woman on the street, speaks the truth and nothing but the truth with no thought of the consequences. But when a down-on-his-luck loser, Mark (Ricky Gervais) suddenly develops the ability to lie, he finds that dishonesty has its rewards. In a world where every word is assumed to be the absolute truth, Mark easily lies his way to fame and fortune.

This comedy also stars Jennifer Garner, Rob Lowe, Tina Fey, Jeffrey Tambor, Jason Bateman and Edward Norton. It is rated PG-13 for language, sexual material and a drug reference.

WHIP IT

In Drew Barrymore's directorial debut Whip It, Texas teen Bliss (Ellen Page) is tired of being pushed into beauty pageants by her parents. She finds herself after joining a female roller derby team. Marcia Gay Harden plays Bliss' disapproving mother. Also in the movie are Jimmy Fallon, Zoe Bell, Kristen Wiig, Juliette Lewis, Daniel Stern and Alia Shawkat.

The movie is rated PG-13 for sexual content including language and drug material.

SURROGATES

People are living their lives remotely from the safety of their own homes via robotic surrogates — sexy, physically perfect mechanical representations of themselves. It's an ideal world where crime, pain, fear and consequences don't exist. When the first murder in years jolts this utopia, FBI agent Greer discovers a vast conspiracy behind the surrogate phenomenon and must abandon his own surrogate, risking his life to unravel the mystery.

The film stars Bruce Willis, Radha Mitchell, Rosamund Pike, Boris Kodjoe and James Francis Ginty. It is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence, disturbing images, language, sexuality and a drug-related scene.

FAME

A reinvention of the original 1980 hit film, Fame follows a talented group of dancers, singers, actors, and artists over four years at the New York City High School of Performing Arts, a diverse, creative powerhouse where students from all walks of life are given a chance to live out their dreams and achieve real and lasting fame ... the kind that comes only from talent, dedication, and hard work. As each student strives for his or her moment in the spotlight, they'll discover who has the talent and discipline to succeed.

The film stars Kherington Payne, Anna Maria Perez de Tagle, Paul McGill, Asher Book and Kristy Flores. It is rated PG for thematic material including teen drinking, a sexual situation and language.

PANDORUM

When two men emerge from a deep sleep in the middle of space, they discover they have no memories of who they are and where they're going. But their memory loss pales in comparison to the problem of the murderous warriors on board their ship who don't want to leave anyone alive.

The film stars Dennis Quaid, Ben Foster, Cam Gigandet, Norman Reedus and Cung Le. It is rated R for strong horror violence and language.

JENNIFER'S BODY

A cheerleader with the perfect life becomes the girl from hell when she gets possessed and begins killing boys in a small town.

The film stars Megan Fox, Amanda Seyfried and Johnny Simmons. It's rated R for sexuality, bloody violence, language and drug use.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF MEATBALLS

Inspired by the children's book, the film focuses on a town where food falls from the sky like rain. Bill Hader voices Flint Lockwood, a young inventor who dreams of creating something that will improve everyone's life. Anna Faris takes on the role of Sam Sparks, a weathergirl covering the phenomenon who hides her intelligence behind a perky exterior. Mr. T plays the by-the-rules town cop Earl Devereaux, and Tracy Morgan takes on the role of Earl's rule-breaking son, Cal. It's rated PG for brief mild language.

LOVE HAPPENS

When a self-help author arrives in Seattle to teach a sold-out seminar, he unexpectedly meets the one person who might finally be able to help him help himself.

The film stars Aaron Eckhart and Jennifer Aniston and is rated PG-13 for language including sexual references.

THE INFORMANT!

What was Mark Whitacre thinking? A rising star at agri-industry giant Archer Daniels Midland (ADM), Whitacre suddenly turns whistleblower. Even as he exposes his company's multinational price-fixing conspiracy to the FBI, Whitacre envisions himself being hailed as a hero of the common man and handed a promotion. But before all that can happen, the FBI needs evidence, so Whitacre eagerly agrees to wear a wire and carry a hidden tape recorder in his briefcase, imagining himself as a kind of de facto secret agent.

Unfortunately for the FBI, its lead witness hasn't been quite so forthcoming about helping himself to the corporate coffers. Whitacre's ever-changing account frustrates the agents and threatens the case against ADM as it becomes almost impossible to decipher what is real and what is the product of Whitacre's rambling imagination. Based on the true story of the highest-ranking corporate whistleblower in U.S. history.

The film stars Matt Damon, Scott Bakula and Joel McHale and is rated R for language.

TYLER PERRY'S I CAN DO BAD ALL BY MYSELF

When Madea, America's favorite pistol-packing grandma, catches 16-year-old Jennifer and her two younger brothers looting her home, she delivers the young delinquents to the only relative they have, Aunt April. A heavy-drinking nightclub singer who lives off Raymond, her married boyfriend, April wants nothing to do with the kids. But her attitude changes when Sandino, a handsome Mexican immigrant looking for work, moves into April's basement room. Sandino challenges April to open her heart.

The flim stars Taraji P. Henson, Adam Rodriguez, Brian J. White, Hope Olaide Wilson and Mary J. Blige. It is rated PG-13 for material involving a sexual assault on a minor, violence, drug references and smoking.

SEXUAL ASSAULT Myths

MYTH: Women claim rape to get even with men.
False - Although it may happen on rare occasions, false rape charges are on the least reported crimes, nationwide.

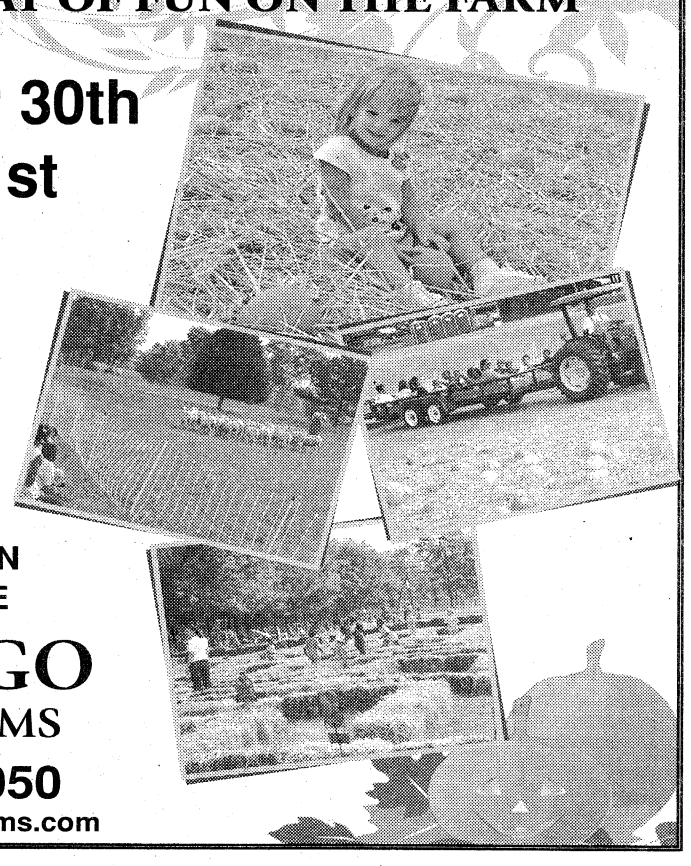
MYTH: The victims "ask for it" by their dress.
False - No one "asks" to be assaulted. In addition, when most attackers decide to assault someone, how they are dressed is of little consequence.

MYTH: It's easy to spot a sex offender. They are creepy and have shifty eyes.
False - Sex offenders come from all walks of life and ethnic backgrounds, sex, and age. Do not let your guard down on first impressions.

MYTH: Rape is a sexual crime.
False - Sexual assault is a violent assault acted out in a sexual way.

MYTH: Sex crimes are crimes of passion or desire.
False - Sex crime is a crime of violence, anger and power not passion.

MYTH: Sexual offenders commit these crimes because they never have sex.
False - Many sex offenders are married and engage in normal sexual relations with their partners. The reason they sexually assault their victims is because they get gratification from intimidating, humiliating and degrading their victims.



MYTH: The victims secretly want to be raped.
False - Fear of ones life or disfigurement to oneself or a loved one can immobilize anyone. Always remember, the goal is to survive the attack.

For additional information, please contact Rebecca Welch, Family Advocacy and Sexual Assault Prevention and Response Program Manager, at (706) 545-0892 or Michelle Fonseca, Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC) at (706) 545-8740. 3rd HBCT leaves for fourth Iraq rotation

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

The 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's main body left for Iraq over the Columbus Day holiday weekend in a wave of departures that began Oct. 7 and ended Monday.

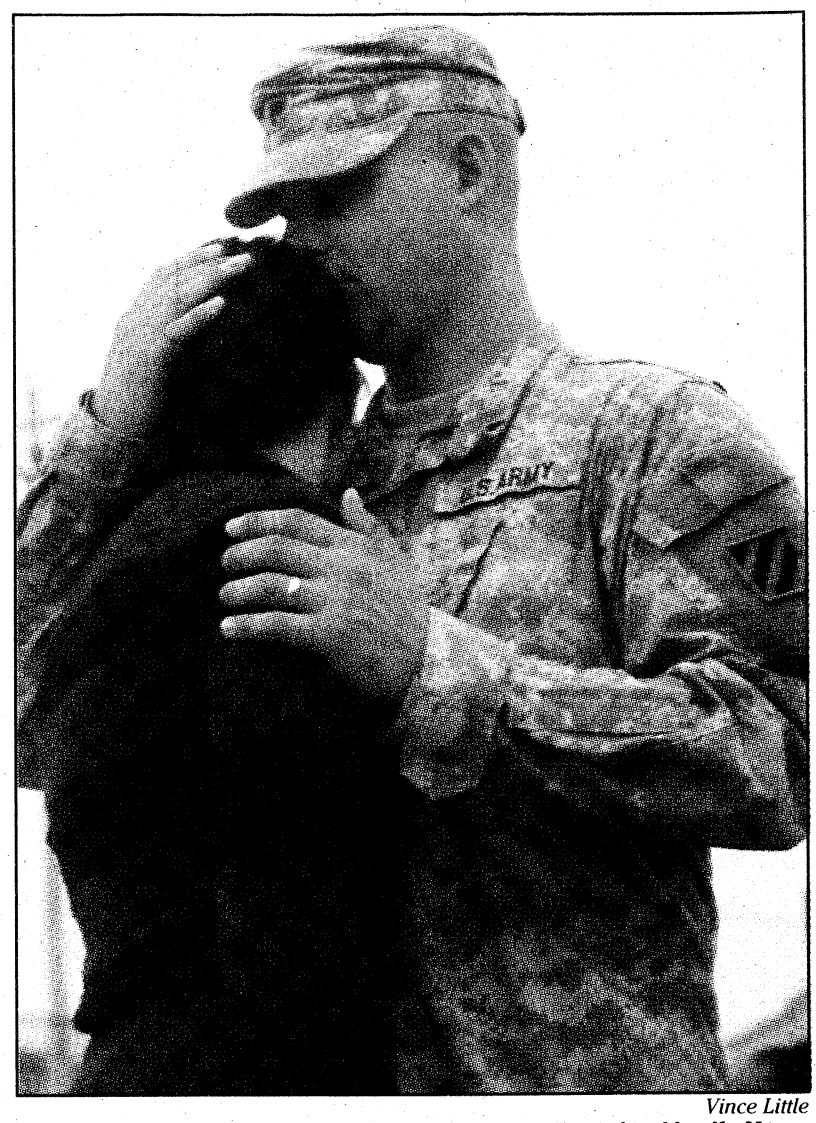
The unit that led the drive into Baghdad in March 2003 is now the first Army brigade with four deployments to Iraq.

In the next year, Sledgehammer Brigade will have 3,600 Soldiers spread across five Iraqi provinces, said CPT Charles Barrett, a 3rd HBCT spokesman. Counting individual augmentees, its representation will total about 4,000 in country.

Each morning, family and friends gathered outside Kelley Hill Recreation Center to bid farewell before the Soldiers boarded buses bound for Lawson Army Airfield and a flight to Kuwait.

SPC David Cubillos, 23, was part of the group that departed Monday. He's making his second Iraq deployment but said this one has a much more somber feel — as he was single last time.

"It's a really difficult experience for me this time," Cubillos said. "I didn't think I was going to get this emotional. The first time was no problem, but I had no responsibilities or family to worry about."



His wife, Amanda, who's stationed at Fort Stewart, Ga., will deploy to Iraq in December with the 3rd Infantry Division's 1st Brigade. The couple is leaving daughter Carlysa, who turned 1 on Saturday, behind with Amanda's parents.

"It's going to be really hard on our daughter for both of us to be gone. We're worried she's going to forget us," Cubillos said. "We'll do a lot of webcam, e-mails and send photos — so hopefully, she'll see us every day and recognize us when we come home."

2LT James Delongchamp, 28, a chemical officer for 3rd Squadron, 1st Cavalry Regiment, was gearing up for his first deployment. Earlier Monday, he said goodbye to his wife, Jennifer, and their two children — daughter Ashlyn, 5, and 3-year-old son Jackson.

"It's pretty rough. We've separated for training, but never for this long," he

Vaccinations key during flu season

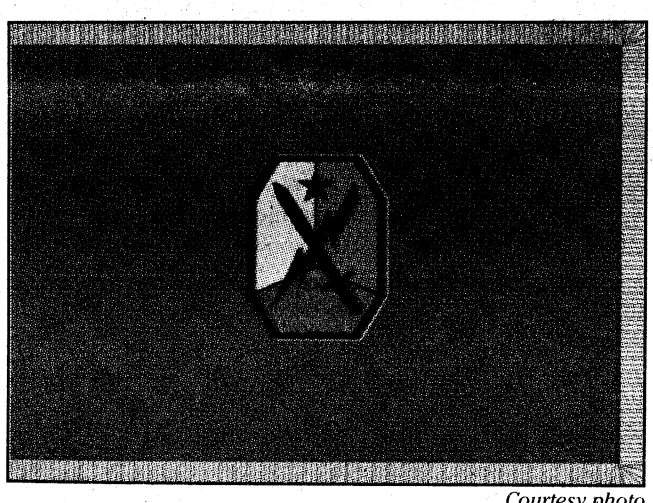
Terry Beckwith
MARTIN ARMY COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

Vaccination against both seasonal influenza and H1N1 is an important step in keeping our beneficiaries healthy and in the overall strategy for defeating pandemic influenza, said Dr. Thomas Backenson, allergy chief at Martin Army Community Hospital.

"Though we are projected to receive adequate doses of H1N1 vaccine for everyone, certain groups of patients appear to be more at risk and are being targeted for H1N1 vaccination initially," he said.

These groups include pregnant women, people who live with or care for children younger than 6 months, health-care workers, people between 6 months and 24 years of age, and people ages 25 through 64 who are considered high risk because of immune compromise and chronic health conditions.

As more vaccine becomes available, these groups should also be vaccinated — healthy adults 25 through 64 years old, and 65 years and older.



At Martin Army Community Hospital, vaccination against seasonal influenza has already started for basic trainees, deployable Soldiers and

BRAC community updates show progress

Lori Egan
THE BAYONET

The ceremony recognizing the activation of the Maneuver Center of Excellence is set for 1:15 p.m. Thursday behind Ridgway Hall and in front of the Benning Conference Center.

Although the MCOE officially stood up Oct. 1, there are very few outward symbols to mark the occasion, said Fort Benning's chief of staff Oct. 6. Now, 14 Soldiers and 29 civilians are assigned to the MCOE but in the next two years, 450 Soldiers and 1,200 civilians will be assigned to the center.

During the monthly Base Realignment and Closure community update, COL Charles Durr talked about the installation's progress in prepping for the arrival of the Armor School and Center and introduced eight employees, and their families, who moved from Fort Knox, Ky., to coordinate the logistics of moving the Armor School and Center to the Harmony Church area of the installation.

Collocating the Infantry and Armor schools is good for the Army and good for Fort Benning, Durr said.

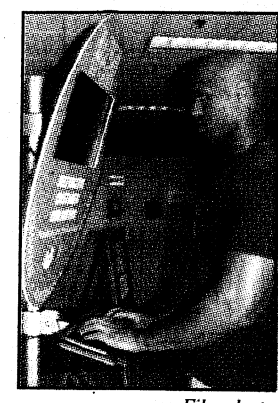
Benning customers turn in most ICE comments

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Out of all Department of Defense installations and forward operating bases, Fort Benning had the most Interactive Customer Evaluation surveys submitted during fiscal 2009.

"We had almost 50,000 comments submitted," said Bernard Goss, customer service officer for Fort Benning. "We also had one of the highest satisfaction ratings for installations that had more than 30,000 submissions: we tied with Fort Stewart and Fort Bragg at 96 percent."

All response requested ICE comments are read and evaluated, Goss said. When the customer requests a response and provides contact information, the owner of the service will follow up within 72 hours.



Fort Benning receives around 1,500 ICE submissions weekly, and those submissions can translate to real changes on post, Goss said.

Within the last year, ICE comments have influenced Internet availability at Uchee Creek and longer hours at Smith Fitness Center.

It has also helped the ID card process move faster and more efficiently, said Danny Wilson, adjutant general for the Directorate of Human Resources.

Hybrid electric vehicles travel farther for less

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

The Army is encouraging installations to trade in the keys of gas-guzzling cars for hybrid electric sedans that can net an average of 675 to 775 miles on a tank of gas.

In furthering the Army's efforts to go green, the Army has partnered with the General Services Administration to bring more than 500 hybrid electric vehicles to 33 installations and commands, including Fort Benning.

Fort Benning has eight hybrid sedans in its non-tactical vehicle fleet and may gain another 12-15 in the next year as older, high-mileage GSA vehicles are replaced, said Ron Johnson, chief of the post's transportation division.

The Ford Fusion hybrids, leased from GSA, contain both an electric motor and a gas-powered engine that work in tandem to provide the vehicle with the most efficient use of gasoline available in cars today, he said.

The hybrids average 36 miles per gallon in the city and 41-47 mpg on the highway and cruise along at speeds comparable to a gasoline engine. The hybrids

VARIOUS VOICES

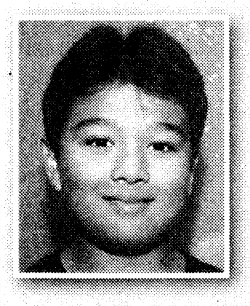
What is your favorite thing about fall?

I like fall because my birthday is in October. I also like to watch the leaves change to another color besides green. My favorite colors in the fall are brown and orange. I also look forward to Halloween because we get candy. This year, I'm planning to dress up as Luigi.

— Drew Shelley
Morris R. McBride Elementary School

My favorite thing about fall is dressing up for Halloween. I like to help decorate the house, carve pumpkins and put up scary Halloween signs in our front yard. The other thing about fall is that I can play outside more on my trampoline and in the treehouse because it's cooler.

— Kathryn Brown
Stowers Elementary School



I like Thanksgiving because you get a school break so you can spend more time with your family and friends. I can play in the leaves. It's a very pretty time of the year. Last year, we had a lot of our family come down for Thanksgiving.

— Lauren Hodne
Edward A. White Elementary School

My favorite thing to do in the fall is to jump in the piles of leaves my parents rake up. It's very fun. My friends and I like to make giant bird's nests in the leaves and play in them. I also get to play soccer in the fall.

— Tommy Heffernan
Dexter Elementary School

I like the cooler weather, piles of leaves and watching the football games. I love the start of the football season. My favorite team is the Miami Dolphins even though they're doing horrible right now. They did win in the last seven seconds of last week's game against the Jets. One tradition I have is to wear my lucky Gator hat whenever we watch Florida play during college football.

—Jacob Walrath

I like when the leaves turn orange and begin to fall. I like to decorate with leaves. I also like Halloween because I get to dress up. This year, I'm going to be Superwoman.

'BPA free' not necessarily needed, just demanded

Michelle Gordon
PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

Before I buy anything I like to go online and read reviews and recommendations in order to learn about other people's experiences with the product I'm considering. I do this because it saves me the hassle of purchasing something and then finding out about the flaws. However, it's not always conducive to shopping. Sometimes there just isn't time for comparison. For instance, had I known that my hairdryer would get so hot it would melt after only five months of use, I wouldn't have bought it. I didn't have the time to research hairdryers after mine died and I needed a replacement. But I digress. The bottom line is I love finding exactly the right products that will meet my needs.

This is helpful when I shop for items I'm totally clueless about and have no frame of reference. When my daughter was born nearly three years ago, I spent a lot of time researching baby items. I looked up everything — from which diaper pail will best contain the stink (none of them) — to which car seat got the best safety ratings. Having put so much effort into my purchases, we saved everything. Now with child No. 2 about to make an appearance, it's truly a cost savings. However, when I was researching bottles three years ago, Bisphenol A wasn't a concern.

You may have heard about the toxic chemical commonly known as BPA and how it leaches from plastic containers into our food and beverages. Shortly after the potential threat of being poisoned by plastic hit the news last fall, the makers of plastic products started to produce new and improved "BPA free" versions. I wasn't too concerned because although BPA was supposedly found in baby bottles my daughter had already switched to sippy cups. Not much I could do about what could have been in her bottle for the past year.

Now that we're expecting our second baby, I researched BPA, and after some reading, I wanted to throw away all the old bottles and buy new BPA-free ones. My husband was shocked. He argued that our daughter was obviously fine, why can't we reuse the bottles? Armed with my Internet knowledge, I listed off the reasons and he eventually conceded. Then I got mad. He was right. Why did we have to replace our bottles simply because the company was negligent and included a harmful substance during the manufacturing process? I sent an e-mail to the bottle maker and requested to be reimbursed for new BPA-free bottles. No response. So I called and spoke with Diane, a customer service representative. She told me there is a lot of misinformation on the Internet and she directed me to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration Web site, www.fda.gov.

Diane also told me that yes, the company she works for did pull all the old bottles off store shelves and replaced them with new BPA-free versions, but it wasn't because they were dangerous. It was because that's what demand is calling for now. Apparently, people like me are reading unreliable information and deciding to only buy BPA-free products so that is what the company is selling now. She said yes, my old bottles contain trace amounts of BPA, but the amount is so negligible that it barely registers when tested. She said if it were her, she would reuse the bottles and not worry about replacing them. I did some research on fda.gov, turns out Diane was right.

In fact, on June 3, the FDA commissioner, Dr. Margaret A. Hamburg, testified before the House Committee on Energy and Commerce's Subcommittee on Health that although BPA remains safe in food contact materials, she takes questions about the substance very seriously, and the FDA scientists are taking a fresh look at the science of BPA. The results of this review should be released in soon. However, that's good enough for me.

Sure I'll probably go back to the fda.gov site later to read the final report, but for now at least we'll be keeping our old bottles and using them for baby number two. Now I can focus my attention on finding that stink-proof diaper pail, maybe it's been developed in the last three years. Hey…a girl can dream, can't she?

Laugh your way to a happier life

Chaplain (LTC) Scott Weichl
U.S. ARMY CENTER FOR HEALTH PROMOTION AND PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

Have you ever been told to "lighten up" or not "take things so seriously"?

Most of us have, and we often do just the opposite of this wise counsel. What Soldiers do as warfighters is dangerous, serious business, yet most of the time — especially in garrison —we are doing boring, repetitive tasks.

Do you want to know a way to feel better about yourself, your workplace and possibly increase your health?

Researchers have found that humor and laughter actually strengthen the body against disease, reduce stress levels, lower blood pressure, increase energy levels and help improve relationships with others. Indeed, we need to become more serious about laughter!

Humor is used in medical and nonmedical situations to improve healing, maintain sanity in a stressful world and also help deal with losses.

Over the years, I have realized that if I expected too much of myself, feelings of guilt and inadequacy overcame me when I thought I had not quite measured up. The ability to lighten-up and laugh helped reduce the tiredness, irritability, feeling of helplessness, lack of productivity and higher level of stress that often accompanied this guilt.

By laughing at your difficulties, even in the most trying moments, you will not feel sorry for yourself. Rather, you will feel uplifted, encouraged and empowered — the core meanings of resiliency. So:

Plan to use humor in your approach to everyday situations. A little planned humor for potential upsets and losses is like having a psychological insurance policy.

Reading humorous stories and watching comedies is an excellent way to improve your laughter skills. Readers Digest has two sections devoted to humor — Laughter is the Best Medicine and Humor in Uniform. The Internet also has plenty of resources.

Remember to smile at yourself and others. Laughter is contagious, and humor can give you a sense of control in an otherwise powerless situation. Best of all, laughter is a free tool for improving mental and physical health. Laughter is one human response we were all born with, but work so hard as adults trying to prevent.

Take advantage of the power of laughter for a new perspective both at home and at work. Use laughter to decrease your stress, increase your energy and maintain balance. Belly laughs are best (in my opinion), but develop a laugh that works for you.

Researcher Lee Berk of Loma Linda University said in a Los Angeles Times article that "the benefits of laughter are similar to exercise."

Maybe we should all be laughing during Army physical fitness training.

Tattoos topic of book by former 3rd HBCT Soldier

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

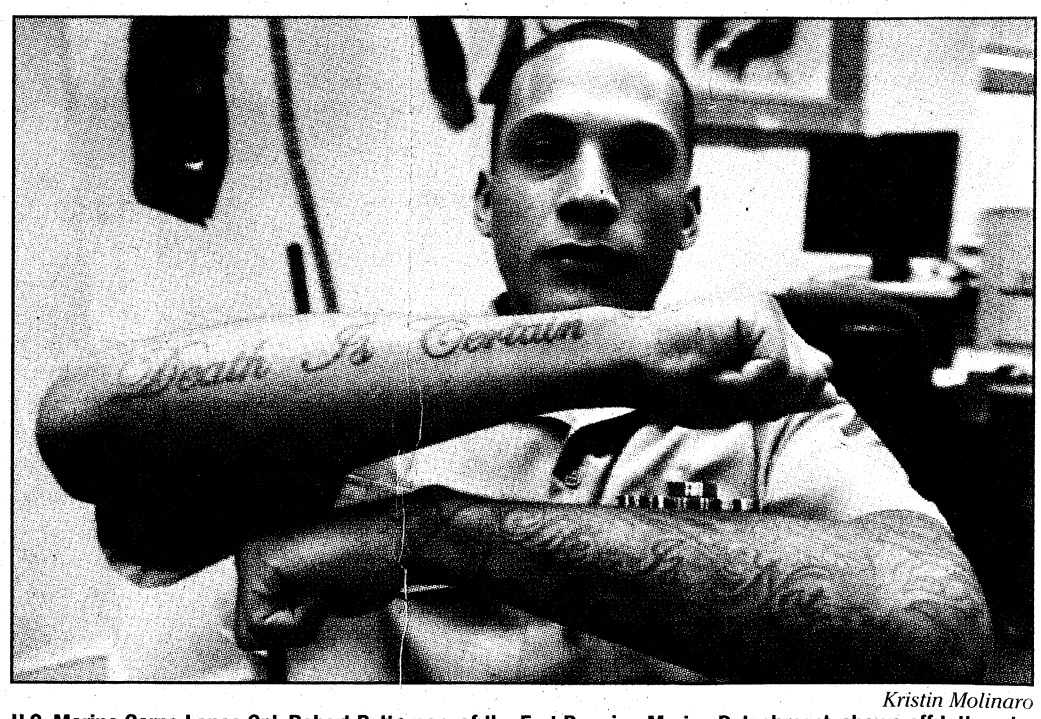
Since the early 1900s, American troops have tattooed themselves to declare pride in their units, remember loved ones and keep alive the memory of fallen comrades, according to the Vanishing Tattoo Web site. In a History Channel documentary titled The Kill Zone, troops recounted military tattoos that served as a reminder of hardships and struggles born together as a unit, and of troops left behind.

And now a Columbus man is working to bring memorial tattoos to the printed page.

As a medical platoon sergeant in Iraq, James Elmer said he saw the faces of the wounded and dying while serving with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team in the Sunni "triangle of death" during Operation Iraqi Freedom 3. Now medically retired, Elmer's experiences have inspired an as-yet-untitled book, a collection of memorial tattoos, to portray the personal side of combat.

The Wounded Warrior Project is sponsoring Elmer's project, said Sam Vaden, coordinator for strategic partnerships for the WWP.

All of the proceeds will be donated to the foundation, which helps wounded troops transition back into the military or to civilian life, Elmer said.



"There are too many people with no connection to the military and all they see is that 5,000 Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines have been killed," he said. "They don't see the faces that go with those numbers."

Elmer said the project has been "cathartic" in helping him to heal from his combat experiences and the loss of a friend, SGT Michael Robertson. Today, Elmer bears a tattoo of Robertson's name wrapped around a purple heart on his right arm.

"Better men than me have lost their lives defending our country and people need to know that," he said. "Getting a tattoo for somebody, that's serious dedication, that's forever."

Elmer knows he is not unique in his desire to memorialize a fallen warrior in ink, and hopes to receive 100 submissions from others who've done the same.

Elmer's project, which he refers to under the working title Scars of War, may take up to a year to complete, he said, as he compiles photos of memorial tattoos and those they are in honor of as well as personal stories from tattooed troops. Elmer plans to dedicate a full page to each tattoo.

U.S. Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Robert Patterson, of the Fort Benning Marine Detachment, shows off tattoos he received two years ago. James Elmer, a medically retired Soldier, is putting together a collection of Global War on Terrorism tattoos to feature in an as-yet-untitled book expected to be published next year.

Elmer said he would accept tattoo submissions involving the Global War on Terror and fallen troops from any service.

Army meets recruiting goals for quantity, quality

C. Todd Lopez
ARMY NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The Army and other services met their recruiting goals in fiscal 2009, many exceeding both numeric goals and quality benchmarks for new recruits.

"We are pleased to report that for the first time, since the advent of the all-volunteer force, all of the military components — active and reserve — met their number as well as their quality goals," said Bill Carr, the deputy undersecretary of defense for military personnel policy during a Tuesday press conference at the Pentagon. "That's the first time that's been achieved for every component since the start of the all-volunteer force in 1973."

All branches of the service, as well as their respective Guard and Reserve components, met or exceeded recruiting numbers for the period between Oct. 1, 2008, and Sept. 30.

For the active Army, that meant 70,045 accessions in that time period — or 108 percent of its goal of 65,000 new Soldiers.

The Army National Guard met 100 percent of its goal and the Army Reserve exceeded its goal, achieving 105 percent.

The quality component of last year's recruiting success refers to both the education level of new recruits and their performance on the Armed Forces Qualification Test, a subset of the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery, or ASVAB.

The Department of Defense set a benchmark for services, stating that 90 percent or greater of new recruits should have a high-school diploma.

Last year, some 95 percent of Army active-duty recruits had a high school diploma or greater. The Reserve components of the Army exceeded that standard.

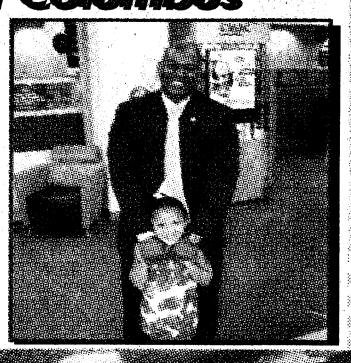
Additionally, in fiscal 2009, 66 percent of new Soldiers in the Army scored at the 50th percentile or higher on the AFQT — the DoD benchmark being 60 percent. Again, both Reserve components, like the active Army, exceeded that goal.

While the economic downturn has contributed to recruiting numbers, MG Donald M. Campbell Jr., commander, Army Recruiting Command, also said having the right number of recruiters — across all components — contributed to Army success.

"I think the most important thing that helps us with success — whether you're talking money, resources, or advertising — is having the right number of recruiters, Soldiers, on the ground," he said. "That's what it really comes down to."

Campbell said there were more than 8,000 recruiters in the field in fiscal 2009, across all components of the Army.

Together, those recruiters brought in about 162,000 new Soldiers.



Campbell said that waivers, for such things as misconduct, have gone down 37 percent.

For fiscal 2008, there were about 370 adult misconduct waivers and for 2009, that number was about 220.

"I think what we are seeing is a good trend in the Army, that we are able to continue to recruit young men and women," he said. "And we see waivers on our side going down."

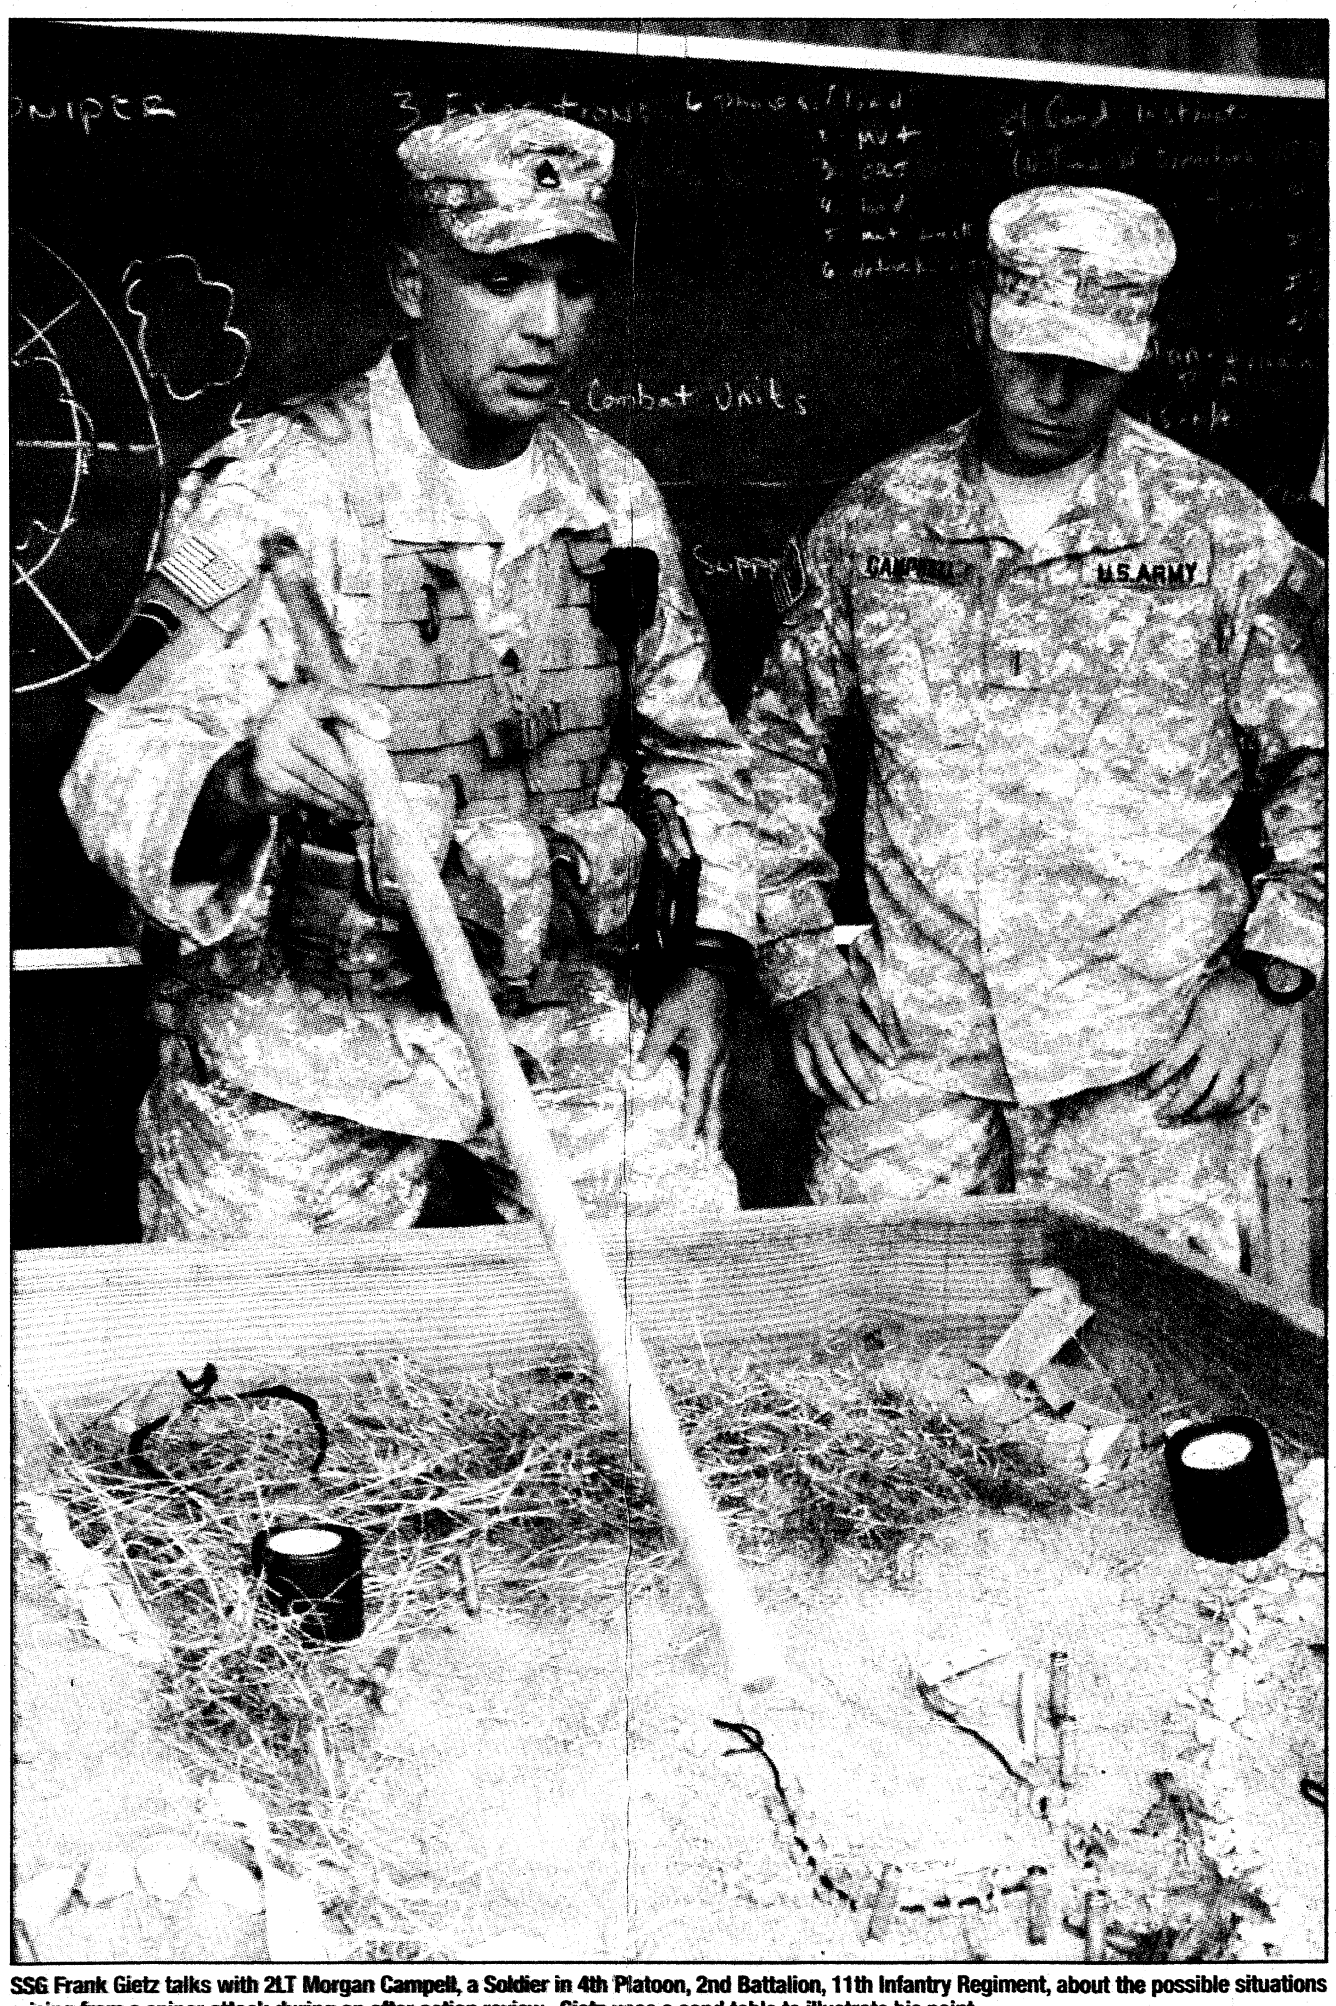
2LT Scott Fairies motions to Soldiers behind him after giving the platoon leader their situation report Tuesday during a scenario-based mission outside the FOB.



2LTs Darrell Scroggs and William Stephens watch for enemy activity near their forward operating base from a security tower Tuesday on TAA Leader.

2LT Richard Mooney waits for enemy activity at a listening post in the woods outside the forward operating base.

SSG Ricardo Johnson watches as 2LT Anthony Vennekotler, acting as the medic, and 2LT Andrew Reyneso, acting as the platoon sergeant, pull 2LT Gerry Holloway toward a medical evacuation pick up point. The lieutenants marked the evacuation point with smoke. Holloway was "wounded" when he failed to take cover during an explosion.

SSG Frank Gietz talks with 2LT Morgan Campell, a Soldier in 4th Platoon, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, about the possible situations arising from a sniper attack during an after action review. Gietz uses a sand table to illustrate his point.

2LTs complete Leader Forge

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Soldiers in Infantry Basic Officer Leadership Course completed their culminating exercise Thursday — the nine-day scenario-based Leader Forge.

"This is where they really become certified as leaders," said CPT Darrell Fawley, platoon trainer.

"It's a chance to bring all the skills they learned in the first 10 weeks and apply them in a tough and stressful environment," Fawley said. "The goal is at the end of the time they've learned a lot but also been challenged through stress, through physical and mental strain, exhaustion, the confusion of battle ... We're forging leaders."

The lieutenants conducted day and night operations, negotiated with sheiks, led security patrols and faced ambushes in preparation for their future roles as platoon leaders. Students rotated positions, so they learned to fill a variety of roles, from medic to platoon leader.

"The big thing for me is just learning to operate on the platoon level," said 2LT Daniel Loeffler, an Infantryman who has deployed once to Afghanistan and twice to Iraq. "I've always seen it from the squad level down, so operating more at the platoon level and having to maneuver all of my squads instead of just maneuver my fire teams is a little bigger picture for me."

Loeffler said he perfected his field craft during Leader Forge and learned to understand the fight at a company level, too.

Leader Forge is designed to be as realistic as possible to help prepare the students, many of whom will deploy soon after graduation, Fawley said. Although several students have prior experience in the enlisted ranks, others have never deployed.

"We want to make sure the first time they really feel stressed, knowing how tough it is, it's not going to be when everything's on the line," he said. "It's better to have it back here in the situation where they can make the mistake and learn from it than make the mistake over there."

2LT Randy Hodge said the practice in field helped prepare him for what he might see when he deploys.

"It puts you in a situation similar to what you might encounter overseas," he said. "You have to assess the situation that's being presented, what troops you have at your disposal, the terrain, your mission. Then, taking all those factors into account, you can find the best way to solve the problem. It's chaotic."

The exercise has given him confidence, Hodge said.

"Just being able to practice it over and over, that's what gives you confidence — confidence you'll make the right call in a timely manner," he said.

"It may seem a little difficult at first. You can't be overwhelmed by it. Everybody's running around yelling; there's gunshots going off. They call it tactical patience — taking a moment to assess the situation. You have to be able to make decisions. And the more times you're put in that situation, even in a training environment, it just reinforces making those good decisions."

Hybrids: Save money

come with the added bonus of a self-charging battery, which means they don't need to be plugged into an electrical source overnight to recharge.

"This is the wave of the future," said Johnson, who is responsible for oversight and management of the GSA non tactical fleet at Fort Benning. "The hybrid electric vehicle is a transition between the gas-guzzling engine and a pure, electric motor-driven vehicle. As technology grows, we will see hybrid vehicles getting better mileage."

Hybrid vehicles reduce fuel consumption and "greenhouse" gas emissions and have the potential to impact not just the Army budget but reliance on fossil fuels.

Executive Order 13423 and The Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 require the Army to reduce its total fleet consumption of petroleum products by 2 percent each year until 2015. The Army is required to reduce petroleum use by 20 percent while increasing alternative fuel use by 10 percent in the next six years, according to an Installation Management Command memo.

A directive from the Installation Management Command states, "The Army recognizes that every dollar spent on fuel is one less dollar spent on equipping Soldiers and caring for their families ... The Army of the future is an expeditionary Army. We cannot be tied to giant fuel convoys crossing deserts and mountains that the enemy strives to attack and control."

Kristin Molinaro

The dual-powered transmission of the hybrid electric Ford Fusion is connected to both the electric motor and the gasoline engine. The gas engine is smaller than in most vehicles, allowing the hybrid to cut down on fuel emissions.

Johnson said the door is now open to begin converting all sorts of gas-powered machines to hybrids.

"I think it's a matter of the whole nation pulling together to try to rid ourselves of, or at least reduce, our reliance on petroleum fuels," Johnson said. "The future may include hybrid generators, lawnmowers, pressure washers and tractors. Who knows? Maybe at some point we will all be driving vehicles powered by electricity alone."

Surveys: Led to changes at post's ID Card Section

the CAC lengthened the amount of time it took to produce a card. The process added several minutes to customer wait time, which used to take only 15 minutes on a walk-in basis.

"When the new CAC came out ... all those individuals who were walking in now were having to wait anywhere between 30 minutes to three and a half hours just to get an ID card," Wilson said.

The ID Card Section's customer satisfaction rating averaged 95 percent before the upgrade, but after March, "it nosedived to 77 percent," he said. "We finally came to a conclusion that we could no longer satisfy our customers by having a walk-in basis, because there was just too long of a waiting period."

After instituting an appointment-only system in November, customer satisfaction measured through ICE rose to 96 percent.

"And we guarantee — unless the system goes down — that we'll service the individual within 15 minutes of his or her appointment, and we're pretty successful in accomplishing that," Wilson said. "That way we're satisfying customers."

Wilson sets aside at least two hours every afternoon for emergencies, like people losing their card, and retirees who may not know about the appointment requirement, to help keep things running smoothly.

Wilson said he welcomes comments about the ID card process or any other aspect of DHR, which receives the largest number of ICE submissions every year — around 23,430 for fiscal 2009.

"If they have any good suggestions, we'll use them. If they come up with something that would be an improvement, then we'll make the improvement," he said. "Sometimes they can think of a good idea we didn't think of, so we always respond to (comments) personally."

If a customer has praise for a specific employee, that is reflected on the employee's performance appraisal, Wilson said. Complaints are noted as well after they are validated.

"We measure customer service in virtually everything we do here in the Directorate of Human Resources," he said. "We're here to serve."

With more than 270 providers listed on Fort Benning, like School Age Services, housing, Central Issues Facility and the Sand Hill snack bar, Goss said he hopes people will submit ICE feedback about a variety of services they use.

"It'll make our program better across the board," he said. "It's about taking care of that Soldier and taking care of that family that's with the Soldier. That has a direct impact on mission and quality of life.

"We are listening. Sometimes it may seem like it takes a long time for things to change, (but) we are listening, and we do our best to respond."

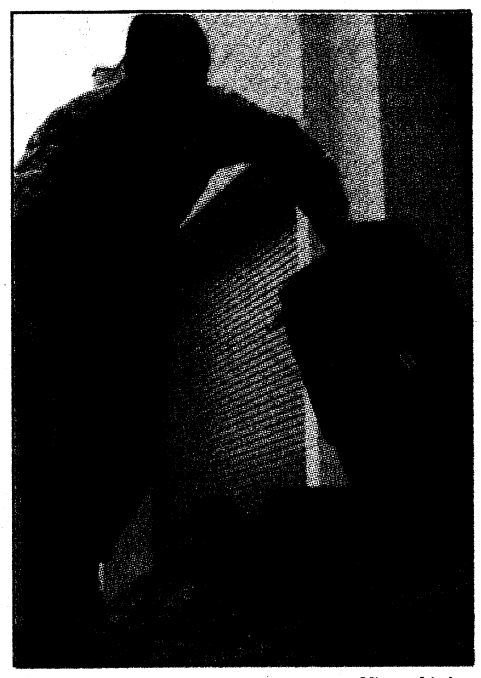
'STRYKER UNIVERSITY'

Seabees, SEALs study Strykers

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

It's known across the military as "Stryker University."

Each year, the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment's Stryker Bradley Instructional Company leads 500 to 600 service members through three programs at the Collins Training Center — the Stryker Transition Course, Stryker Leader Course and Stryker Master Trainer Course. Instructors said all are dedicated to building proficiency with the eight-wheeled light armored vehicles that can operate on all types of terrain and under extreme weather conditions.



SFC Doyle Lockard, the Stryker branch chief, said joint service training on the Stryker Infantry Carrier Vehicle is conducted exclusively at Fort Benning and his unit delivers thorough instruction on the machine's components and capabilities — covering everything from simple maintenance to firing the weapons systems.

"We provide world-class training to all the services who ask for it," Lockard said Tuesday. "Our job is to train the guys (from Special Operations Command) to get in the fight. But we have Navy, Air Force, some Marines and National Guard."

A SEAL platoon from the East Coast went through the basic transition course recently. They were followed this week by a small group of Seabees — mostly construction mechanics — assigned to Navy Special Warfare Group 2, a logistics support unit out of Naval Amphibious Base Little Creek, Va.

"We're here to familiarize ourselves with this vehicle in case we get deployed to a certain area," said Petty Officer 1st Class Christopher Fleming, an equipment operator. "We're getting basic general knowledge of the vehicle, so the mechanics can learn how to break it down and put it back together if we have to ... We're getting up to speed so we can support SEALs and whoever else might use it."

In general, the two-week transition course is limited to service members in pay grades E-1 to E-5, while the leader course is given to E-6 through O-6 in three-week sessions, Lockard said. The master trainer course, which lasts six weeks, is a "train-the-trainer" program designed to provide senior enlisted members and officers with the ability to teach their own units about Stryker use.

Vince Little
SSG Karam Angulo, a Stryker instructor, teaches vehicle orientation Tuesday to a group of Sailors.

After learning the vehicle's mechanics, students enter the common drivers trainer, a simulator that replicates all-weather terrain, night driving and attacks — including rocket-propelled grenades, roadside bombs and small-arms fire.

"It's a good tool," Lockard said. "We can test them in this before they get in the real thing. All the switches and gauges are in the same place."

The students later steer the Strykers through obstacle courses, ditches full of water, and over tank tracks, he said.

"Strykers are less damaging to the road and they get there faster and quieter than tracked vehicles," he said. "The challenge is keeping it on the road, keeping it straight and keeping it from rolling over. These vehicles are top heavy."

Lockard said rollovers are rehearsed and students are taught about procedures and contingency plans to follow.

"We beat safety pretty hard here," he said.

He said students are graded on all aspects of the training, but live-fire scenarios are reserved for the leader and master trainer courses.

SSG Arthur Moran, the Stryker master trainer team chief, said his course was stood up in 2008 and only gets taught five times a year. It's capped at a dozen students per session, which enhances the one-on-one training.

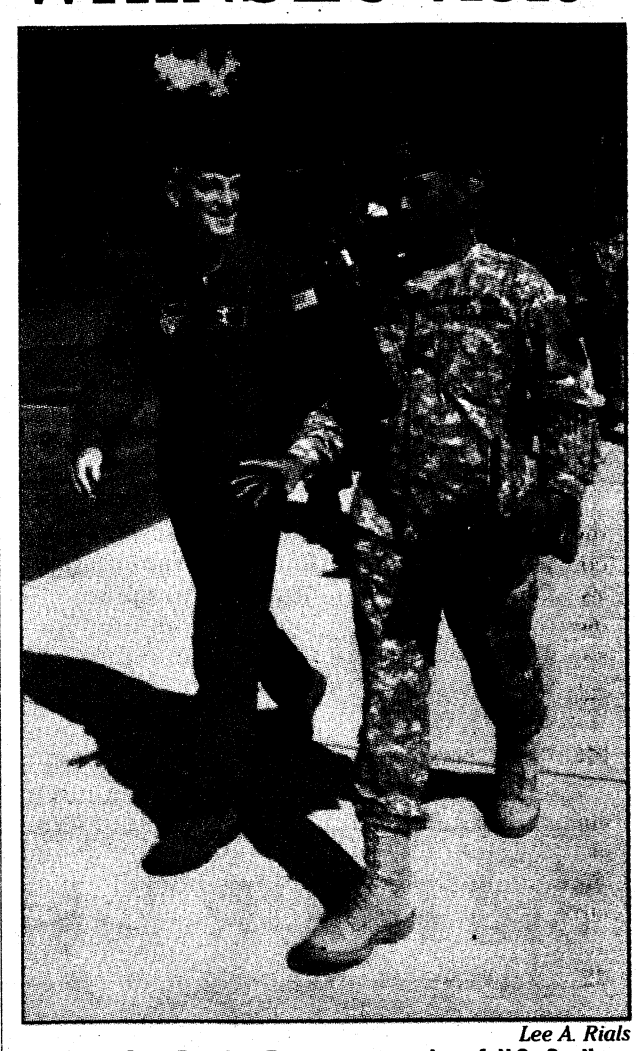
If requested through 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, however, mobile training teams can be dispatched around the globe to teach the master trainer course, Moran said.

"We try to make them as much an expert as we can," he said, "so they can put together a training plan and execute it for their respective units.

"It's the most challenging instructional course we have ... You have to give them the most accurate, best knowledge. We're here as part of Stryker University. That's why we have the other branches and SOCOM coming to us."

Fleming, the Sailor, said the transition course instruction was valuable and would definitely be employed by the Seabees in future operations.

"There is no wasted time here. It's vital training for us," he said. "The speed and quietness of the vehicle, its ability to sneak up on (targets), has been effective for Soldiers. We'll be glad our SEALs are able to use it, too."



Lockard said demand for Stryker training is growing as the Army plans to add two more Stryker brigade combat teams to its arsenal. Currently, there are six units on active-duty status and another in the National Guard.

Students normally enroll in the company's Stryker branch individually and not with a unit, Lockard said. But he offered a piece of advice to all.

"Come here as a sponge," he said. "Have an open mind and be prepared to learn."

WHINSEC visit

Lee A. Rials
Air Force Gen. Douglas Fraser, commander of U.S. Southern Command in Miami, talks with Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation Commandant COL Felix Santiago during a Sept. 8 visit to the institute, one of the command's supporting organizations. Fraser addressed an audience of WHINSEC staff and faculty, students and instructors of the Command and General Staff Officer Course and Captains Career Course. Fraser's focus for the presentation was his vision for the region and SOUTHCOM's activities in working with all the nations of the Caribbean and the nations south of Mexico on the continent.

said. "There's not really any way you can prepare for it emotionally."

SGT Chad Vanderhoof was joined at the send-off by his wife, Christie, who cradled their 6-month-old son, Charlie. The baby makes leaving even more difficult, Vanderhoof said.

"Just the fact (I'm) not going to be there to hear his first word, or see that first step," he said.

Christie said she's been through two of her husband's three deployments.

"It's hard, but when you're an Army spouse, this is what you face," she said. "I want to make sure he's OK with what he's facing, and knows we'll be OK here."

Vanderhoof said the separation never gets easier, but he was trying to keep a clear mind and focus on mission outcome.

"You never know what kind of adversity you'll face," he said. "The enemy is always adapting to our techniques."

While the brigade assumes an advise-and-assist role with Iraqi security forces, Delongchamp said it's vital to maintain diligence.

"All you have is your fellow Soldiers over there, your brothers and sisters," he said. "You just talk to each other and motivate each other to do the right thing (and) don't ever get complacent … Help each other out, and we all go home together."

Delongchamp said he tried to gain insight from other unit members who have gone on multiple tours to Iraq, but he's not sure what to expect in the desert.

"I know what people have told me, but obviously you don't really know how it's going to be until you go through it yourself," he said.

have been awarded, said Jay Brown, the BRAC program manager, with many containing multiple buildings.

The largest contract awarded in September was for the new hospital, which was $170 million less than the Army budgeted for the construction, Brown said.

"The (cost of building the hospital) is a lot less than the Army estimated three or four years ago," he said, citing the shortages in fuel, construction materials and labor caused by the Gulf Coast hurricanes.

Brown also discussed the Web sites that list job openings for the MCOE and other employment opportunities on post: http://acpol.army.mil/employment; http://usajobs.com and the MCOE employment link at https://www.benning.army.mil/mcoe/content/employment.htm.

medical staff, said COL Kyle Campbell, hospital chief of staff.

"Immunization of our beneficiaries against H1N1 will begin as soon as vaccine is received from the Department of Defense and the Georgia Department of Health," Campbell said. "Expect announcements shortly."

"In the interim, if you are an active-duty family member, military retiree or family member of a retiree, belonging to one of the target groups listed above, you may seek vaccination immediately by contacting a doctor's office in the Tricare Network," said MAJ Brian Freidline, chief of the Healthcare Management Division at the hospital.

Tricare has waived referrals as follows:

To obtain the Seasonal Flu or the H1N1 Vaccine with a Tricare Network provider, a referral is not necessary and no co-pay will be charged for those enrolled in Prime. Patients who are Standard will also not incur a charge. However if a Prime patient seeks immunizations with a non-network provider, they will have to have a referral and be assessed a co-pay for the office visit (unless they are an active duty service member or the family member of an active-duty service member).

BENCH NOTES

JOHN W. PEELER

Goat of the week

San Francisco 49ers defensive back Dre Bly gets my goat of the week award. Bly picked off a pass intended for Atlanta Falcons receiver Roddy White and in true Deion Sanders form, placed his hand behind his helmet and began high stepping on his way down the field.

The problem? Bly forgot he was covering one of the fastest receivers on the Falcons. He was caught from behind by White and stripped of the ball. Atlanta recovered, giving them a first down.

It was more than a faux pas — it was the bonehead play of the week. Showboating when you're losing by 25 points is just not smart in my book.

Limbaugh ousted

Radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh will not be a limited owner of the St. Louis Rams. He was officially dropped from a group spearheaded by St. Louis Blues chairman Dave Checketts in their attempt to buy the Rams.

Some current NFL team owners, as well as players, have been vocal in opposition of Limbaugh becoming a part owner of an NFL team because of comments he made when part of ESPN's Sunday NFL Countdown in 2003.

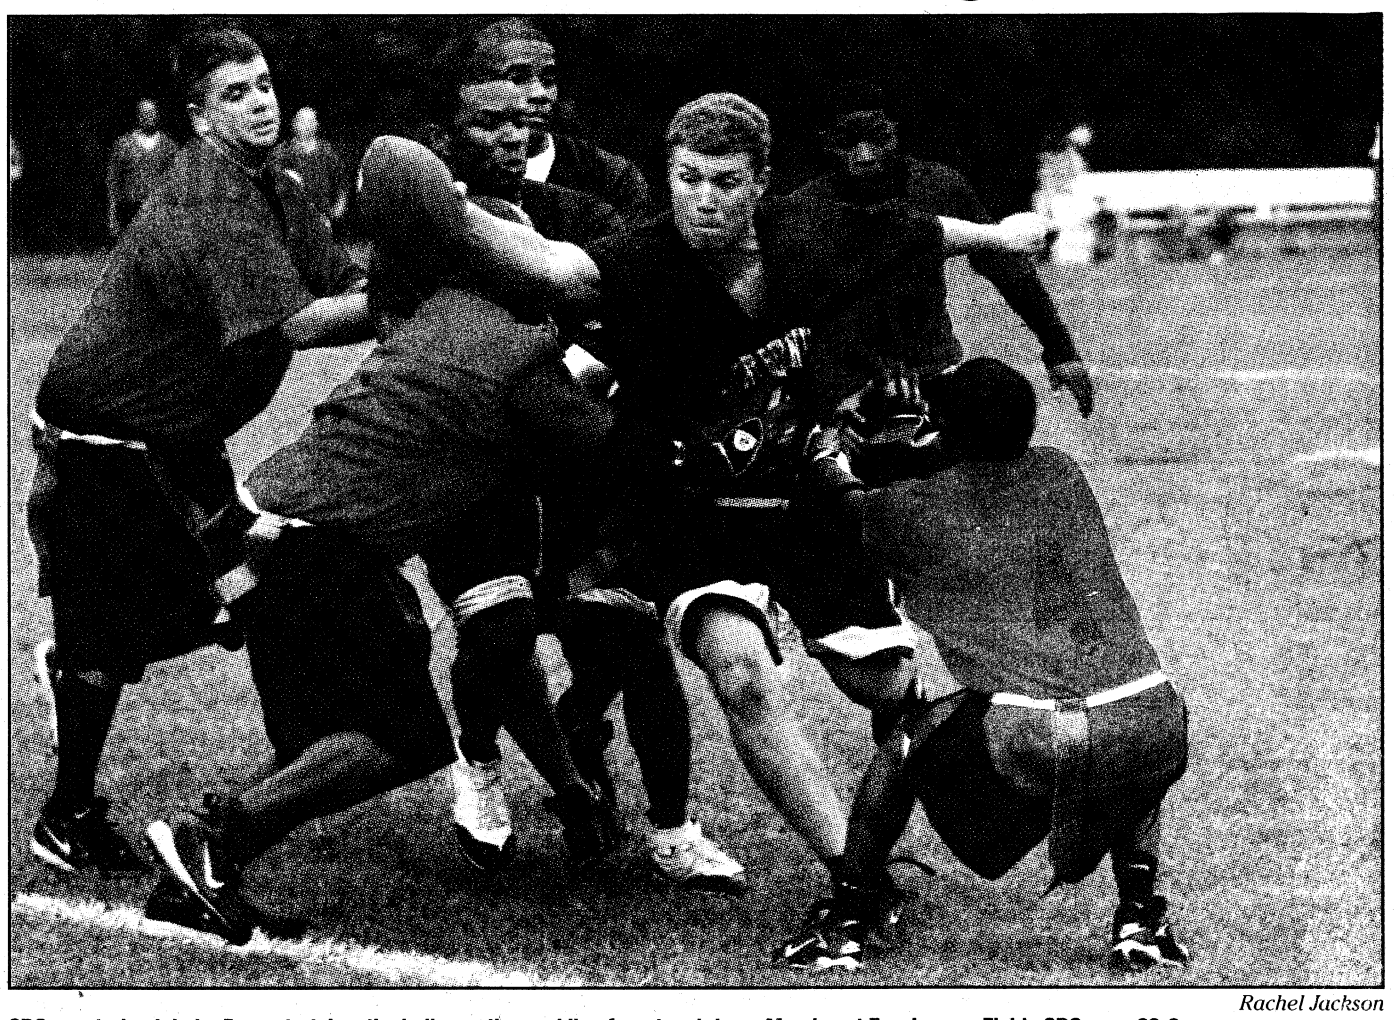
Johnson on top

NASCAR driver Jimmie Johnson sits atop the points standings in the Chase for the Cup this week after a victory at California.

Johnson's win put him on top of the standings for the first time this season. He leads Mark Martin by 12 points going into this week's race at Charlotte. Johnson's win was his fifth Sprint Cup victory of the season and 45th of his career. The win puts Johnson on pace for a record fourth straight title.

This week's race at Charlotte will be televised Saturday on ABC beginning at 7:25 p.m.

Chattco to host state tourney Saturday



Chattahoochee County High School will host the first round of the Georgia High School Association state volleyball championship for Area 1-AA/A Saturday. Chattco will play North Cobb Christian School from Kennesaw, Ga., at 1:30 p.m.

Good luck to the Lady Panthers.

Pick 12 correction

Last week's edition of the Fort Benning Pick 12 contained two errors in prognosticator Don Sando's picks in the Atlanta-San Francisco and N.Y. Jets-Miami games. Sando's picks were incorrectly recorded as San Francisco and N.Y. Jets but should have read Atlanta and Miami. Although Sando believes longtime nemesis Carl Pignato is responsible, the error was due to our staff. This week's standings reflect the corrections.

CRC defeats Road Dawgs 22-2 in playoffs

CONUS Replacement Center defeated the Road Dawgs 22-2 in an intramural flag football game Monday at Essebagger Field.

It was the first game for both teams in the Commander's Cup Flag Football tournament.

The Road Dawgs of 104th Transportation Company picked up a safety in the first half while CRC scored on a 1-yard touchdown run by quarterback Luke Page. With the two-point conversion by Nick Spinks, CRC led 8-2. Shicana Murant added a one-yard touchdown run to increase the lead to 14-2 at the half.

CRC's Demetrius Minor returned a 35-yard interception for a touchdown in the second half and with the two-point conversion led

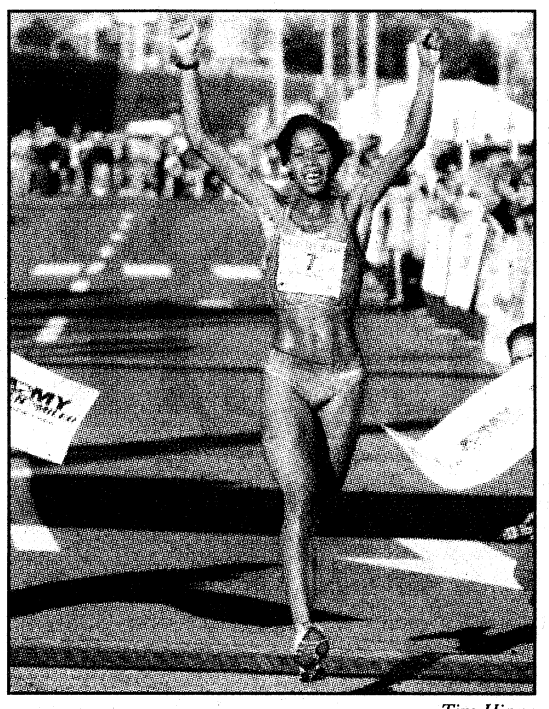
Runners set records at 25th Army Ten-Miler

Tim Hipps
FMWRC PUBLIC AFFAIRS



ARLINGTON, Va. — The silver anniversary running of the Army Ten-Miler produced record times in the men's and women's divisions. The event also featured the highest number of registered runners in the history of America's largest 10-mile road race.

Ethiopian Alene Reta, 27, won the race around Washington's monuments in 46 minutes, 59 seconds — 33 seconds faster than the record established in 2004 by three-time race champion MAJ Dan Browne, who finished third Sunday with a time of 47:49 while competing for the U.S. Army World Class Athlete Program.

"My plan was to break the course record, and I did," said Reta, a 27-year-old who lives in Manhattan, N.Y. "After three miles, nobody was coming, and I went to my pace and kept it."

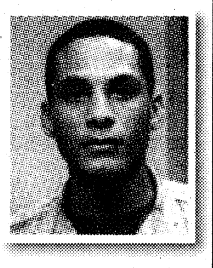
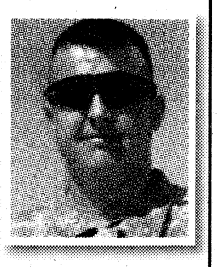
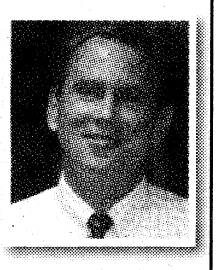
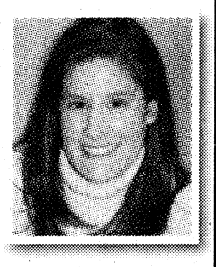
THE BAYONET

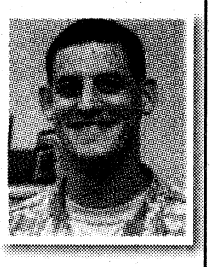
Thirty-five rugby players from across the Army will come to Fort Benning to compete in the All-Army rugby trial camp Oct. 28. The trial camp runs until Nov. 6.











"The players who compete at the trial camp are the best rugby players in the Army," said Lori Smith, director of fitness facilities.

"They play at more of a professional than recreational level. These guys have probably played rugby for years and grew up playing rugby on a local team and in college."

The trial camp is a tryout to see

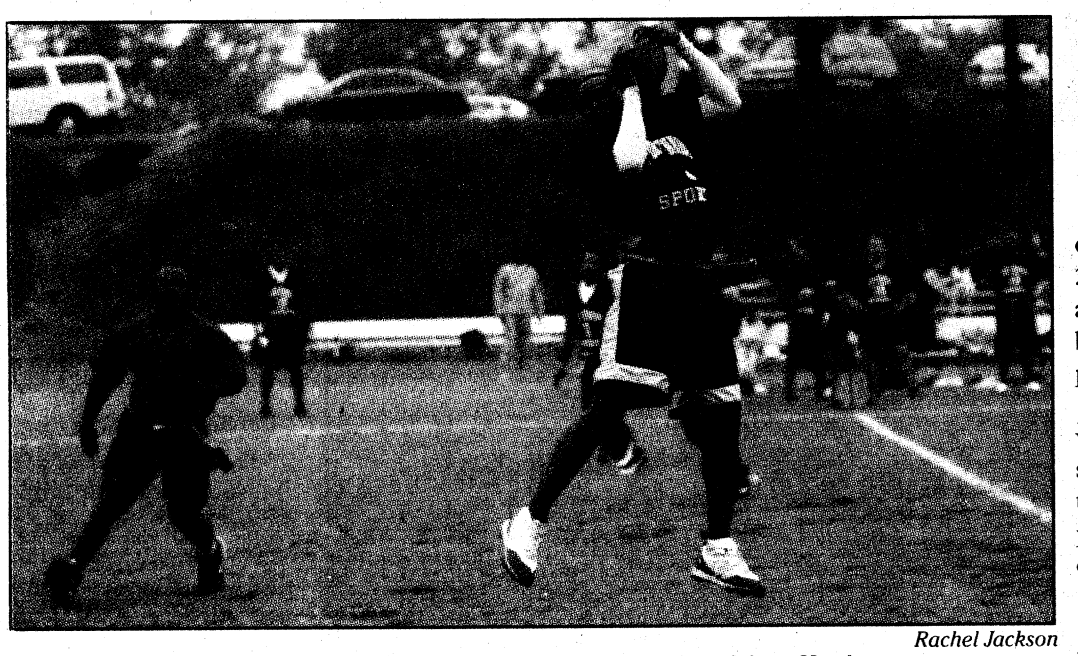
Annual Youth Sportsman Day set for Oct. 24

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

The U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit and Outdoor Recreation will host the annual Youth Sportsman Day, sponsored by the U.S.Youth Sportsmen's Alliance, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Oct. 24 at USAMU's Hook Range.



"This is will give kids a chance to get outdoors, have fun and learn about outdoor sports," said Brittany Beadle, outdoor recreation specialist. "And hopefully they will continue whatever sport they learn."

Boys and girls, ages 5-16, can participate in the free event. Youth Sportsman Day will include a BB gun and shotgun shoot, an archery shoot, casting lessons by the youth Benning Bass Club, turkey call demonstration, hunting dog demonstration by Mulberry Creek Kennels and a shotgun demonstration by 2008 Olympic gold medalists SPC Glenn Eller and SPC Vincent Hancock.

Outdoor Recreation will provide free lunch from Destiny Dogs.

In previous years, there has been around 300 people in attendance at the event, Beadle said. This year, she hopes for the same turnout or better.

Beadle said preregistration is encouraged but not necessary. To preregister, call Beadle at 706-545-9636 or go to www.ussportsmen.org/trailblazer/fortbenning. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. on the day of the event. The event is open to the public.

CRC: Grabs early wins in flag football playoffs

22-2. CRC ended the game with a win and a chance to advance in the winner's bracket of the Commander's Cup playoffs.

"The first half was a defensive battle and we finally got going and got the victory," said Minor, CRC coach. "At halftime, we talked about keeping up the intensity, playing together as a team and keeping our composure.

"Everyone is in the playoffs for a reason — because they have winning records. It's all tough games from here on out," Minor said.

Page said his defense played really well.

"They scored on the safety but we held them from scoring for the rest of the game," he said. "We started off slow on offense but picked it up at the end. If we keep cutting teams out, we can win this."

CRC played A Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, in the second round of the winner's bracket Wednesday and won 14-0 to advance in the winner's bracket against the 11th Engineer Battalion.

Rugby: Armed Forces tournament held at Benning which players are the strongest, Smith said.

Ten players will be cut before the camp ends. Twenty-five will make the All-Army team and play in the Armed Forces Rugby Tournament Nov. 9-13 against the Navy, Coast Guard, Marines and Air Force.

The Armed Forces Rugby Tournament will be at Fort Benning 's Stewart-Watson Field.

Smith said rugby is an interesting sport to watch.

"It takes a lot of skill and guts to get out there and play rugby," she said. "It's an amazing sport. You see heart, passion and drive in the players you don't see that in a lot of other sports."

Spectators are welcome at the trial camp and the Armed Forces tournament. The All-Army team hopefuls will compete in scrimmage games and drills.

Smith said a trial camp scrimmage schedule hasn't been released yet, but she anticipates scrimmages will be from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. on weekdays. Scrimmage games will be played at Stewart-Watson Field next to Smith Fitness Center.

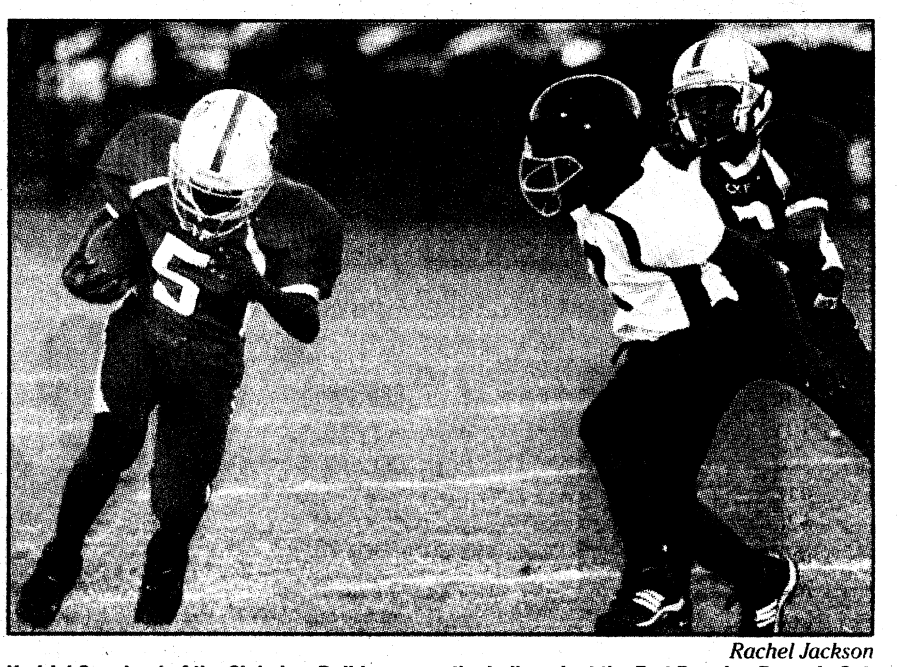
Bulldogs shut out Bengals

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

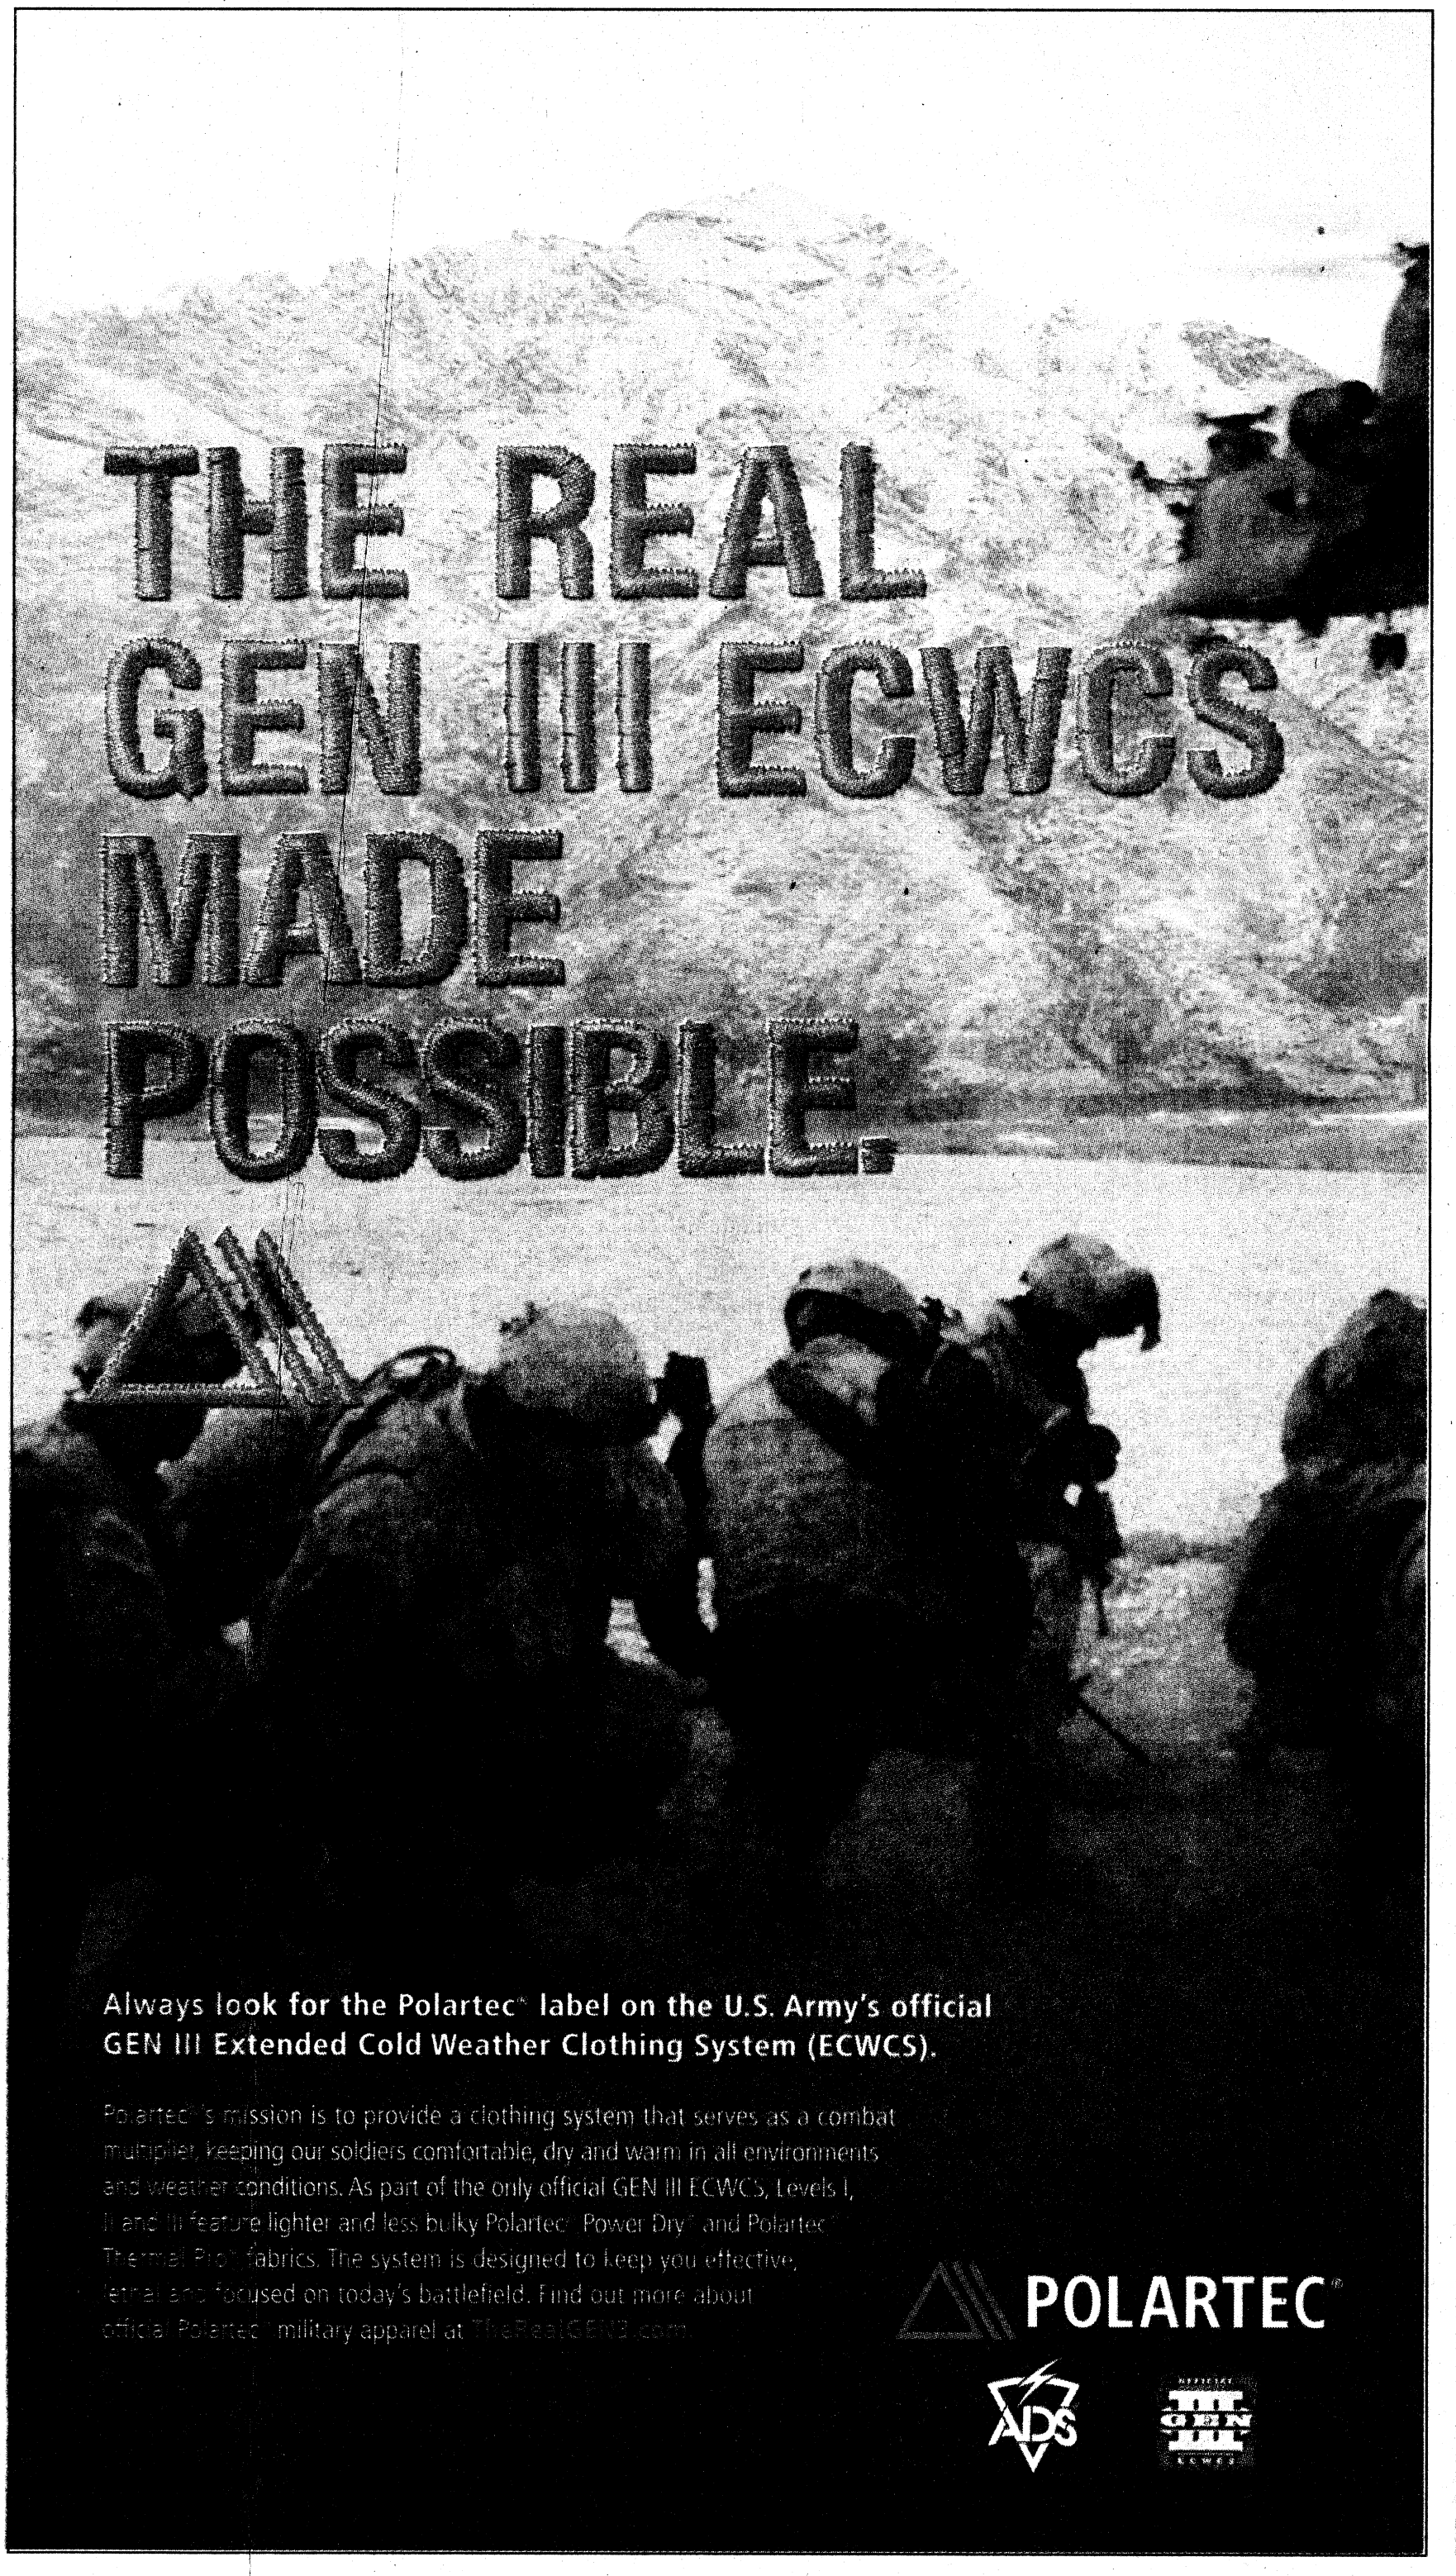
The 11- to 13-year-old Clubview Bulldogs defeated the Fort Benning Bengals' Gold team 38-0 in a Columbus Youth Football game Oct. 8 at Lakebottom Park.

Bulldog Quoyai Shorter scored on touchdown runs of 1 and 5 yards, followed by a 16-yard touchdown run by Jamal Couch to lead 18-0 at the half.



Following a Bulldogs interception at the Bengals' 35-yard line, Kordell Braxton scored to put his team ahead 24-0. Layshun Nelson scored on a touchdown run late in the third quarter and with the two-point conversion by Ontario Rambo, led 32-0. Jacoby Hawkins scored on a 15-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter, ending the game with a Bulldogs win.

"The score doesn't show it, but it was a hard-fought game by both teams," said Bulldogs coach Mike Smith. "We played good defense and offense, had good blocks and finished plays and passes. At halftime, we talked about settling down, making our blocks and staying in the game."



Braxton, son of SFC Kenneth and Denise Braxton, said his team got off to a rough start.

"In the first quarter, we came out a little bit bad but in the second quarter, we got them right on the ropes," he said. "The quarterbacks read the play and we had good teamwork."

With the win, the Bulldogs remained undefeated at 3-0. The Bulldogs take on the Northeastern Packers at noon Saturday at Midland Middle School while the Bengals play the Eastway Cherokees at 10 a.m. Saturday at Shirley Winston Park.

CYS&S Bulldogs blank Black Bandits, 5-0

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

The 9- to 11-year-old Bulldogs defeated the Black Bandits in a Child, Youth and School Services soccer game Saturday at French Field.

Both teams battled for the ball until the Bulldogs' took a 1-0 lead on an "own goal" shot by the Black Bandits. Bulldog Kris Beck added a goal for a 2-0 lead at the half.

Beck began the second half scoring another goal for the Bulldogs to increase the lead to 3-0.

The Black Bandits drove the ball within scoring range several times in the second half, but Bulldogs goalie Jacob Medure blocked the shots while the Black Bandits had some shots pass just outside the goal. Beck scored two more goals before the game ended, with the Bulldogs winning 5-0.

"We played hard. We stayed focused on the ball and played well," Bulldogs coach Sylvia Flores said.

Beck, 10, said he was looking forward to the next game.

"We went out there and tried our best and that's what matters," he said."Overall we played well."

"We had a lot of good passing and teamwork," said the Bulldogs' Ben Sellers, 9. "I think we are going to do awesome this season."

Up next for the Bulldogs are the Raptors at 10 a.m. Saturday, while the Black Bandits take on the Blazing Dragons at 9 a.m. Both games are at French Field. Spectators are welcome.

Scouts create memorial garden, fence

David Hoover glues a plaque to its base. A memorial garden designed by Hoover sits on the lot of the former OSJA building, which burned down Feb. 6.

THE BAYONET

David Hoover, 14, remembers the night the historic Office of the Staff Judge Advocate's building, the second-oldest building on Fort Benning, burned to the ground. His family lived blocks away from Building 5 and used to drive past it everyday. But the night of Feb. 6 the building was engulfed in flames and the next morning only a shell was left. A tall privacy fence was erected on the site and remained for several months as clean-up crews worked to remove debris.

"When they took the fence down, it was nothing but an empty lot," David said. "I could barely remember there was once a building there, and it made me sad."

This prompted David, a senior patrol leader with Boy Scout Troop 27, to find a way to use the space as part of his Eagle Scout project. David wanted to ensure the historic building, which once held court over the famous "United States v. Calley" trial and served as a home away from home for many OSJA workers, would never be forgotten.

Eagle Scout is the highest rank in the Boy Scouts of America and to earn the distinction, Scouts must complete a community service project, among other requirements.

With the help of COL Tracy Barnes, chief of SJA; COL Thomas Macdonald, garrison commander; Ed Howard, historic preservation specialist; and Bill Spires, a project coordinator, David was able to make his vision come true.

A memorial garden now sits on the northeast corner of the lot. It was completed at the end of August. The garden sits on one-tenth of an acre and includes azalea bushes, hydrangeas, a dogwood tree and a redbud tree because "they are durable and friendly looking," David said.

Although sod had been planted, David and a group of volunteers planted grass where the sod had eroded and brought in three benches for visitors. The finishing touch was the placement of four plaques, each facing a represented direction, capturing the

Volunteers to pick up litter to Help the Hooch

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

A rusted 55-gallon drum, an old couch and several used tires — those are just a few of the things found in and around Fort Benning's waterways during last year's Help the Hooch, said Jesse Taylor, clean water technician for the Environmental Management Division on post.

Taylor said Soldiers and civilians can make a difference again this year by helping pick up litter Monday as part of the 15th annual Help the Hooch, a community-wide cleanup event.

Interested volunteers should meet at 8 a.m. Monday at Building 6 for a safety briefing and to receive trash bags and gloves, said Brittany Beadle, recreation specialist with Outdoor Recreation. All ages and ability levels are welcome.

Volunteers will divide into teams and fan out to 18 sites, including Uchee Creek, Upatoi Creek, Russ Pond and Kings Pond. People can gather litter from the water's edge or from inside a boat or canoe.

DA Civilians are allowed to participate, mission permitting, without taking leave, Beadle said.

At noon, a free lunch, catered by Country's Barbecue, will be served at Uchee Creek Campground and Marina for volunteers.

Beadle encouraged people to come out with their families, units or coworkers for a good cause.

"Our waterways give us drinking water, and they're also great recreation opportunities for canoeing, fishing, kayaking and boating. They're great places that provide a break to our busy lifestyle," she said. "Keeping them clean is important, so people can continue to enjoy their natural resources."

Cheryl Rodewig
Dorinda Morpeth, solid waste program manager for Fort Benning, climbs back up to the road after gathering trash from the water's edge during the 2007 Help the Hooch. The program is in its 15th year in Columbus and 11th year on post.

"And it's just a fun time," Taylor said. "You're outside and you're working with people, and you know when you're done, you have a cleaner environment, a cleaner place to play in."

People who want to help clean up the Chattahoochee River in Columbus can volunteer today and Saturday. They can also drop off their electronics, paint and other hazardous waste

AVID students prep for college with 'personal grit'

"I know I'm going to college," said 13-year-old Aubrey Sanders, an eighth-grader at Faith Middle School. So Aubrey signed up for AVID, a program designed for kids who might not go to college if their grades and determination don't improve.

Aubrey said the course taught her note-taking and organizational skills and helped her improve her grades in other classes.

"It helps us with everything for college — being mature about college, knowing how to study, knowing when to get our (work) done. I know it's going to be hard, but I know I can succeed in college. I know I can do whatever I put my mind to," she said.

"That kind of personal grit is the driving force behind AVID, which stands for Advancement Via Individual Determination," said Ruby Lee Strickland, AVID teacher at Faith. "The AVID class alone is not a magic pill for success; it is a combination of hard work, parent support and student-to-teacher

FCC offers needed service

Kathy Curry
FMWR MARKETING ASSISTANT

Fort Benning Family Child Care is a Directorate of the Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation program that certifies individuals to become authorized professional child-care providers who can operate their own businesses from the comfort and convenience of home.

Many people are not taking advantage of the free FCC program and benefits but illegally act as on-post babysitters, violating the on-post child care policies. Now is the time to become authorized.

"Whatever your reason for not being a part of the FCC team, trust us and come aboard," said Earnestine Neal, Fort Benning family child care director.

The question that is common among on-post child care providers is, "When is the time I spend providing child care over the limit?" In order to clarify the gray areas, the Army came up with the 10-hour limit rule where a person cannot care for a child in their home for more than 10 hours per week on a regular basis.

It's OK to watch a neighbor's child Monday through Friday for one and a half hours a day because it equals seven and a half hours in one week and is within the 10-hour limit regulation. A person can also offer child care when a neighbor takes a day long shopping trip for 10 hours (or less) every once in a while.

What is not legal is watching a neighbor's child three hours a day, five days a week. That equals 15 hours and exceeds the 10-hour rule. Nor can a person watch a neighbor's child one time per week for 11 hours on a regular basis. A perk of the 10-hour rule is that two children from the same household count as one. So watching a brother and sister at the same time in the same home for 10 hours is within the guidelines. Anything over 10 hours per week, in any combination, is forbidden until FCC certification is obtained.

The FCC can authorize people and help them start their own business. This opportunity to earn money while caring for children at home requires only training and certification.

"Not only is this a home based business, but it is a business that will transfer with you to your next duty station," said Mary Shipp, Fort Benning training and curriculum specialist.

FCC offers free training, the tools to become an authorized caregiver, free library resource materials for kids, financial support for meals served to registered children and the opportunity to run a home business. The next scheduled training is 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Middle School and Teen Building, Bldg. 1056. For more information on becoming an authorized provider, call 706-545-4368.

AAFES, FIRESTONE OFFER DISCOUNT AUTO REPAIR

Firestone Complete Auto Care recently partnered with the Army and Air Force Exchange Service to bring tire and battery, oil, brake, alignment, steering and suspension, and general automotive repair services to Fort Benning.

Firestone's repair prices are discounted 10 percent while lubrication costs will be 5 percent lower than off post. The car care center also will include free tire rotation, balancing and repair for authorized shoppers who buy tire service agreements from AAFES.

BENNING BAZAAR

The Fort Benning Community Spouses Club will hold its annual Benning Bazaar Saturday and Sunday at Lawson Army Airfield Hangar. It's scheduled for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the opening day and noon to 4 p.m. on Day Two.

The event features more than 100 vendors offering antiques, arts and crafts, jewelry, pottery, glassworks and other unique items. There also will be food and kiddie rides. The entry fee is $2 but children ages 12 and younger get in free.

For more information, call 706-405-7477 or send an e-mail to ftbenningbazaar@yahoo.com.

'HELP THE HOOCH' CLEANUP

Outdoor Recreation is holding its annual "Help the Hooch" cleanup event Monday. Volunteers will meet at Building 4 at 8 a.m. before heading to the Uchee Creek Campground and Marina. Gloves, trash bags and other supplies will be provided.

Participants receive a free lunch and T-shirt. For details, call 706-545-9636.

CHILD-CARE CERTIFICATION

Family child-care provider certification classes begin Monday and will run through Oct. 27. For more information, call 706 545-4368.

SURVIVOR OUTREACH SERVICES

Survivor Outreach Services has two upcoming events this month:

A support group social and teen club meeting is scheduled for 6 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Mellow Mushroom restaurant. Icebreaker activities for adults and youth will be provided. RSVP before the end of today by calling 706-545-7517.

A two-day class called "Coping with Loss and Gaining Resiliency" will take place at 10 a.m. Oct. 27 and 6 p.m. Oct. 28. The SOS support coordinator will discuss the psychological and physical reactions to grief and loss and ways to cope. The event is open to the public, and free child care will be provided. Those planning to attend should RSVP no later than Wednesday by calling 706-545-7517.

PATIENT EDUCATION CLASSES

The Department of Family Medicine offers group visits to all Tricare beneficiaries. The voluntary, interactive sessions are set up to enlist and validate patients as their own caregivers and address concerns.

All group visits are held at Martin Army Community Hospital in the Department of Family Medicine's Connelly Conference Room. Future meeting topics include:

"Tobacco Cessation" from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 17, Dec. 15 and Jan. 12. The same sessions are scheduled for 6 to 7:30 p.m. Nov. 3 and Dec. 1.

"Hypertension Education," a discussion about high blood pressure led by a family physician, clinical pharmacist and dietician, takes place 9 to 11 a.m. Nov. 5 and Dec. 3. Call 706-544-4853 for more information.

"End of Life Care and Advanced Directives," 2 to 4 p.m. Nov. 24; "Fall Prevention As We Age," 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 8; "Herbal Supplements: Helpful and Harmful," 2 to 4 p.m. Feb. 16; and "Treatment of Osteoarthritis," 2 to 4 p.m. March 2.

Appointments are not required.

SHAKE, RATTLE AND ROLL AT PARENT TO PARENT WORKSHOP

Child, Youth and School Services staff and parents of young infants and toddlers are invited to Shake, Rattle and Roll at the Parent to Parent workshop, scheduled for noon Wednesday at McGraw Village. For more information, call 706-545-3732.

BOSS PROGRAM HEADING TO MEDIEVAL TIMES SHOW

The Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers program is traveling to Atlanta for the Medieval Times Show on Friday.

The normal entrance fee of $59.99 is just $15 for those who sign up at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center by Wednesday. Round-trip transportation to and from post is included. For more information, call 706-544-1411.

NEWCOMERS ORIENTATION

Army Community Service has a Newcomer Orientation and Bus Tour from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Friday for Soldiers, families and civilians new to Fort Benning.

The program is free and child care is provided. For more information or child-care reservations, call 706-545-0403.

'SHARE IN THE SCARES' AT 13TH CSSB HAUNTED HOUSE

The tricommunity is invited to "Share in the Scares" Friday and Oct. 24 at a Haunted House presented by the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion. It will be open 5 to 10 p.m. nightly at Engineer Field behind the water tower at the intersection of Dixie Road and Way Avenue.

For more information, call 706-545-0275.

TELL ME A STORY

Fort Benning's Parent to Parent group will sponsor "Tell Me A Story" — featuring special guest reader George DelGobbo — at 2 p.m. Oct. 25 on the lawn at Riverside.

The event requires an RSVP. For more information, call 706-405-9857 or send an e-mail to fortbenningp2p@yahoo.com.

STORYBOOK CHARACTER PARADE

Strong Beginnings Pre-K will stage a parade featuring area and school marching bands and storybook characters at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 26 at the Main Post Child Development Center.

Children will celebrate the importance of literacy skills, beginning with listening to foot-stomping cadence movements. Everyone will have the opportunity to dress as a character from one of their favorite children's literature books.

For more information, call 706-545-3732.

SCHOLASTIC BOOK FAIR

The Scholastic Book Fair is open to Benning Preschool and family child-care providers at the Main Post Child Development Center from 3 to 6 p.m. Oct. 26-30. Children will learn about numbers and operations by making purchases from the book fair. For more information, call 706-545-3732.

TOWN HALL MEETING SCHEDULE

A series of town hall meetings are scheduled in housing areas across post. All start at 5:30 p.m. and take place on the following dates:

Oct. 28 at White Elementary School for East Main Post Village; Nov. 4 at McBride Elementary School for McGraw Village; Nov. 9 at Wilson Elementary School for Indianhead Village; Nov. 19 at McBride for Custer Village; Nov. 24 at McBride for Patton Village; and Dec. 2 at Stowers Elementary School for Davis/Bouton Village.

For more information, call Raul Brown at 706-545-0667.

CYSS COMMUNITY CONCERT

Child, Youth and School Services hosts a community concert for parents and children at 10 a.m. Oct 30 on the Main Post Child Development Center lawn. Shawn Brown will present a show filled with energetic musical-movement activities.

For more information, call 706-545-3732.

HOWL-O-WEEN AT THE DOG PARK

Outdoor Recreation's Howl-o-Ween at the Dog Park party is slated for 4:30 to 7 p.m. Oct. 30 at the new larger facility behind Faith Middle School.

A costume parade and obstacle course are planned, while there will be food for owners and a competition with prizes.

For more information, call 706-545-7978.

HALLOWEEN GROUND RULES

Residents will celebrate Halloween with "trick or treating" for children ages 13 and younger from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Trick or treaters" should observe all basic safety precautions to include wearing reflective, fire-resistant costumes that are short enough to prevent tripping, using makeup instead of masks that may restrict vision, carrying a flashlight and exercising caution when crossing streets. Post residents are encouraged to limit "trick or treating" to the housing area in which they live.

Pet owners should confine their pets to prevent them from being a nuisance.

SIXTH ANNUAL 'MONSTER SALE'

The Fort Benning commissary will have its sixth annual "Monster Sale" from 8 to 11 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Humans" can join the fun and receive $10 off their grocery bill by being one of the first 50 customers to arrive in costume — but masks do not count. The store closes at 6 p.m. to prepare for the sale, which includes various items at 30 to 80 percent off retail prices. Most items will be sold in bulk or cases, so eligible families are encouraged to shop together to enable splitting after purchase."

Available products include Halloween candy, cereal, fruit drinks, juices, soda, canned goods, snacks; baby needs, including diapers; paper, household and frozen products; meat, produce and water.

DISABILITY EMPLOYMENT AWARENESS MONTH

October is Disability Employment Awareness Month and Sayers Memorial Library has a display containing books, Exceptional Family Member Program resource materials and guides related to various disabilities.

Soldiers and family members may visit Army Community Service's EFMP office in Building 2624 at Soldiers' Plaza for resource magazines, directories and giveaways.

Family members enrolled in EFMP who meet specific medical or educational criteria may qualify for respite care. For more information, call 706-545-5521.

TROOPS TO TEACHERS PROGRAM

Bill Kirkland, manager of the Georgia Troops to Teachers Program, will conduct a 90-minute "Transition to Teaching" seminar at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 3 in Module C's Classroom 7. The Module C trailer is closest to the running track on the corner of Eckel and Chesney streets.

Veterans who qualify for the program are eligible to receive a stipend of up to $5,000 to pay for teacher certification and a one-time bonus up to $10,000 once they start teaching.

Call 706-545-3299 for more information. For information on the Georgia Troops to Teachers or Georgia Spouses to Teachers programs, call 800-745-0709 or visit www.tttga.net.

TAPS SURVIVOR SEMINAR AND GOOD GRIEF CAMP

The Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors will be at Fort Benning Nov. 13-14 to provide its free "Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp."

The conferences offer information, resources and personal contact with fellow survivors. Workshops are designed to help survivors heal and cope with life after loss.

The TAPS Good Grief Camp for children and teens provides a safe, supportive atmosphere to conduct activities and opportunities to learn coping skills, establish and identify support systems, and create awareness that they are not alone in the grief of a loved one.

Register at www.taps.org/events. For more information, call Survivor Outreach Services at 706-545-7517 or visit www.benningmwr.com/acs-sos.php.

RECYCLING CENTER ALTERNATIVE

Fort Benning residents can take their recyclables to the recycling center off Victory Drive across from Dolly Madison bakery. The center is behind the Summit gas station at 25 22nd Ave.

For more information, call 706-653-4000 or visit www.columbusga.org.

DONATE BOOKS FOR SOLDIERS

Used paperback books are accepted at Sayers Library on Main Post. The books are given to Soldiers and other personnel who deploy from Lawson Army Airfield.

For more information, call LTC(R) Kenneth Sines at 706-323-0570 or e-mail kennethsines@bellsouth.net.

OFF POST

HAIRCUTS FOR CHARITY

Great Clips at Amber Place in Columbus is cutting for a cause this month.

From 6 to 8 p.m. every Saturday and Sunday in October, the cost of a haircut is $10 and all proceeds will be donated to the Children's Miracle Network of Columbus.

The salon is at 1648 Whittlesey Road. For more information, call 706-322-3628.

DRIVING SAFETY FOR TEENS

Teens preparing to get a driver's license can spend some time this fall learning the rules of the road through Columbus State University's Continuing Education Center.

Students, who must have a valid learner's permit to enroll, will spend six hours behind the wheel with an instructor. The class will cover vehicle laws, defensive driving, simple maintenance, and an alcohol and drug awareness program.

For more information or to register, visit conted.colstate.edu, e-mail assistance@colstate.edu or call 706-507-8070.

FAIR ON THE SQUARE BIKE RIDE

The Eighth Annual Fair on the Square Bicycle Ride is set for Saturday in Lumpkin, Ga. Registration is at 8 a.m. followed by the start an hour later.

There are routes of 20 miles, 50 miles and 100 kilometers through Green Grove Church and Providence Canyon State Park. The ride, held in conjunction with the 36th annual Fair On The Square, starts at United Methodist Church on Broad Street and ends with the festivities in Lumpkin.

The entry fee is $25 and all proceeds benefit the Stewart County Historical Commission.

For more information, call Gail Lynch at 706-580-8723, e-mail her at glynch@knology.net or visit www.freewebs.com/faironthesquarecycleride.

SOUND CHOICES PREGNANCY CLINIC FUNDRAISER GALA

The Sound Choices Pregnancy Clinic will host its biannual gala and pro-life fundraiser at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Columbus Convention and Trade Center. The guest speaker will be author and conservative commentator Star Parker.

Individual tickets are $35, which includes dinner. The cost to sponsor a table of eight starts at $500 and there are various levels and advertising incentives.

The clinic provides free life-affirming medical, educational and counseling services for women in the community.

For more information, call 706-322-2054.

JOB FAIR AND ADA WORKSHOP

The fifth annual Job Fair and ADA Workshop will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 29 at the Columbus Public Library, 3000 Macon Road.

The event, sponsored by the Mayor's Committee for Persons with Disabilities and the Georgia Department of Labor, will feature top area employers, information from disability organizations and vendors with accessible products. For more information, call Suzanne Barnes at 706-243-2686 or Candace Head at 706-649-7423.

ALVIN DARLING AND CELEBRATION

Alvin Darling and Celebration, one of America's top gospel choirs, will perform at Columbus State University's University Hall Auditorium during a three-hour concert starting at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 30.

Other featured artists will include BLESSED of New Orleans, Sharon Clarke of Columbus, the Franchise Missionary Baptist Church Youth Choir of Phenix City, Angel Anderson and Chris Godwin.

Tickets are $20 in advance and may be purchased online at www.rossreportnews2.net. They cost $25 at the door. For more information, call 706-324-3809 or 706-442-6431.

VETERANS APPRECIATION WEEK

Veterans organizations in the tricommunity have organized a week of activities Nov. 8-14 to honor veterans from all wars and every service branch.

The veterans will be honored at local churches and also visit area schools and retirement homes. Blind Veterans Emphasis Day is Nov. 13. The week gets capped by a Nov. 14 Veterans Day Parade in Columbus and Air Force flyover.

For more information, call Sam Nelson at 706-568-4592 or Jerry "Pop" Barnes at 706-442-0249.

WEDDINGS FOR WARRIORS

The Savannah Wedding Tourism Council is offering a free program called "Weddings for Warriors" on Veterans Day.

The project will allow military personnel from all branches to get married for free in Savannah on Nov. 11 as a token of appreciation for their service. Guard and reserve members also are eligible.

"Weddings for Warriors" organizers said a mass ceremony is not the intent. Instead, they want to provide each couple with a private setting to briefly exchange vows.

For more information, call Becky Byous at 912-656-6541 or visit www.weddingsforwarriors.com.

WORLD AIDS DAY FUNDRAISER

The Chattahoochee Valley Better Way Foundation Inc. hosts its First Annual World AIDS Day Red Ribbon Fundraiser Banquet from 4 to 9 p.m. Dec. 1 at Columbus State University's Cunningham Center Banquet Hall. Admission is $10 and includes meal.

communication that steers students toward college success."

"The mantra is we can advance, but we have to be willing to study; we have to be willing to sacrifice now," Strickland said.

Students meet for 35 to 50 minutes daily in the AVID elective class, where they learn skills that prepare them for high school and college. Activities include tutoring by college students, field trips and programs with guest speakers.

Dr. Robert Wright Jr., a Columbus native and recipient of the 2009 Horatio Alger Award, will speak at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Faith Middle computer lab.

"He was born during the Depression," Strickland said. "He has worked extremely hard in civil rights over the years and was elected to the Columbus City Council. He sold the company he created, Dimensions International, a few years ago for more than $230 million.

"I'm trying to get speakers into the school who can talk to the children about the importance of math, science, reading and writing skills — that knowledge is power. And his life certainly exemplifies that. People's life stories are compelling."

The Tuesday program is open to anyone who wants to learn more about AVID, said Debra Alexander, AVID regional director for Domestic Dependent Elementary and Secondary Schools.

"Guest speakers are those people out there in the business world whose lives can serve as models of success for students," she said. "Students can see the impact a college degree can make in the world in the world, not only to themselves but for others."

Enrollment in AVID, which begins each semester, is open to motivated, college-bound students who have a grade point average between 2.0 and 3.5.

AVID takes care of middle-of-the-road students who are smart but don't necessarily push themselves, Alexander said.

"The gifted and talented students get supported; the special needs students get supported. Then we have those students in the middle who just get by on their own," she said.

"Those students are going to be the working force of the future. AVID provides support for those students who desire to create great future for themselves by putting in sweat equity now. The system really works. It's just amazing."

It's working right now at Faith, preparing 75 children for the academic and social challenges of college life, Strickland said.

"I'm seeing such phenomenal growth with them. They've made up their minds, 'I can do this,'" she said.

"The stronger my children are, the stronger this country will be one day. That is my goal for these students and their families."

For more information about AVID, call Alexander at 706-545-8236 or Faith Middle School at706-545-0310.

Scouts: Complete Eagle Scout projects on Fort Benning

history of the post. The sign facing north informs visitors about the land's original owner, Arthur Bussey, a farmer who started a creamery for his plantation dairy in the original Building 5. Two signs facing south discuss the history of Building 5 and its many uses throughout the years. The sign facing east gives the history of Riverside, the summer home of the Busseys.

Hoover, a freshman at Columbus High School, said he feels the project has been a success.

"A lot of the JAG workers were really happy about the garden," he said. "Building 5 was a nice place for them to work."

Hoover's dad, Chaplain (MAJ) Doug Hoover, a family life chaplain, said he feels David's project may bring closure to those who worked in Building 5 and lost so much in the fire.

"There is something there to remember it by, it won't just go away and be an empty field," he said. "I hope it brings a little closure for the folks who worked there, many of whom came out to work on the project with David."

David is not the only Troop 27 Scout who has completed an eagle project on Fort Benning recently.

Matt Zollinger, 14, collaborated with the principal of Edward A. White Elementary School, Glenn Hughes, and the school's volunteer gardener, Owen Ditchfield, a retired media specialist, to create a fence for the school's vegetable garden as part of his Eagle Scout project. The garden is tended by Ditchfield and the school's second-graders as part of a project to learn about gardening. However, the garden is next to a playground area.

Zollinger said he came up with the idea to fence in the garden after talking with his younger brother, Joseph, a fifth-grader at the school.

The fence is designed to protect the vegetables from being trampled by children or being eaten by animals such as deer, David said.

Though the project took months to plan, design and approve, the actual work took only three days.

"Installing the fence was a tedious process," said Matt, who currently serves as a patrol leader in his troop. "Even with 11 people, painting 403 pickets is not an easy task."

The tightly packed fence now leaves no room for even the smallest critter to enter without the gardener's say-so.

"This project has taught me to be a better citizen," Matt said. "It's shown me what you can do outside of videogames and computers. It feels good to help somebody out and do something for the neighborhood."

Matt's parents, LTC Todd and Leigh Zollinger, said they were impressed by their son's tenacity to get the project done.

"It was a big undertaking, bigger than we realized," Leigh said. "He had to take ownership of the project, manage it and follow through. We are very proud of him."

Both of the Boy Scouts still have a few more requirements to fulfill before they can reach the eagle court of honor, but in the meantime, they will continue to visit their accomplishments.

"Even though the memorial garden was finished a month and a half ago, I still go down and water some of the plants that haven't rooted in yet," David said.

And Matt is already planning "a second coat of paint for the white picket fence."

Army raises awareness on depression

Jerry Harben
U.S. ARMY MEDICAL COMMAND

With a theme of "One of the bravest acts is to ask for help when you need it," the Army is using National Depression Education and Awareness Month activities to combat a stigma associated with behavioral health care and teach Soldiers and their families how to recognize depression and get help.

Depression affects some 18.8 million Americans, according to the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences. Symptoms include sadness, irritability, anxiety, fatigue, lack of energy, changes in appetite, weight or sleep pattern and thoughts of death or suicide.

Almost everyone experiences some of these symptoms at some time. But the more symptoms there are, the stronger they are and the longer they last, the more likely the person is suffering depression.

"Depression is a medical illness caused by malfunctioning of certain neurochemical systems in the brain," said COL C. J. Diebold, chief of psychiatry at Tripler Army Medical Center and the Army Surgeon General's consultant for psychiatry. "Factors contributing to depression can be psychological stress, physical illness, medical conditions such as anemia or a malfunctioning thyroid gland and side effects of certain medications. Depression can also occur with other psychiatric conditions like post-traumatic stress disorder."

The Fort Benning Army Substance and Abuse Program expects to screen more than 2,000 people at its National Depression Screening Day.

Fort Benning was one of the first installations to take part in National Depression Screening Day in 2002. In the first year, over 619 screenings were completed. The highest number of participants screened was 3,498 in 2007, followed by 1,075 in 2008.

"We have been recognized as the top screening site in the United States on a few occasions," said Yvonne Wilbanks, Alcohol and Drug Control Officer. "We've trained over 1,200 people in our Heart to Heart program,".

This year's plan includes making questionnaires available to patients at the hospital and other areas on post.

"I have noticed at Fort Benning this was one of the events that helped change some of our Soldiers' attitudes about depression and getting help for PTSD," Wilbanks said.

The Department of Defense and Department of Veterans Affairs offer anonymous behavioral-health assessments online at www.militarymentalhealth.org and www.mentalhealth.va.gov/depression.asp.

The DoD approved revisions to question 21 on the Questionnaire for National Security Positions, Standard Form 86, regarding mental and emotional health counseling. The change allows people who have been treated by a behavioral-health professional due to marital or family reasons not related to their violence or to adjustments from service in a combat environment, to answer "no" to the question about receiving behavioral health care.

"Major depression is a remarkably treatable disorder and the majority of people who receive treatment overcome the illness and return to normal lives," said Dr. Jack Smith, acting chief medical officer of the TRICARE Management Activity.

"Possible interventions include talk therapy and medications to treat symptoms associated with depression," Diebold said. "The success rate is very high if a person follows the treatment plan."

For mild depression that doesn't require professional treatment, USUHS suggests proper diet, exercise, adequate rest, avoiding alcohol, surrounding yourself with people important to you, communicating your feelings to someone you trust and joining a social support group.

For more information on National Screening Day or ASAP, call 706-545-1138 or go to https://benna0shrpt2/sites/ag/asap/default.aspx.

Hooch: Needs volunteers

from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at the recycling warehouse on 22nd Avenue off Victory Drive.

The annual Watershed Festival, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at Golden Park in Columbus, raises awareness about litter, environmental management and the importance of clean water, Taylor said. It includes games for kids, inflatables, food and informational exhibits and is open to the community.

Participating in Help the Hooch helps people understand just how much trash ends up in the water, where it hurts animals and pollutes rivers, said Taylor, who started volunteering six years ago.

"I participated in one event, and that completely changed the way I thought about everything," she said. "We only have one environment. Some people think, 'everybody does it; it's just one plastic bottle.' Nobody really thinks of it as a pollutant, but it is, (and) it's cumulative. Some environmental studies now show there's more plastic in the ocean than plankton."

Free T-shirts are available for volunteers while supplies last. For more information about volunteering on Fort Benning, call 706-545-9636. For more about volunteering in Columbus, call Keep Columbus Beautiful at 706-653-4008.

Change neither good nor bad, just inevitable

Chaplain (LTC) Tom Wild
198TH INFANTRY BRIGADE

Although I enjoy the bright sun and the balmy weather, I can feel the excitement of fall in the air — bright-colored leaves, cooler nights and days, with football and soccer games. I assume God thought change was good for us. I think the Army feels the same way; maybe that is why we move every two or three years.

I have heard it said there is only one bad assignment and there is one good assignment: the one you left and the one you're going to. Sometimes we want new surroundings or perhaps those around us need the change. Fort Benning hasn't had a lack of transformation this summer and undoubtedly there will be more around the corner.

It's very true — the only thing constant, is change.

How do you react to change? I guess that depends on what the change is. Will it make life easier for me? Will I like the change? Will it increase my chances of advancement?

Many changes are brought upon us and don't leave us with much option but to adapt. I saw a funny plaque that read, "Most people don't change because they see the light but because they feel the heat." I have seen that truth in action. I used to like the thrill of growing older, but not anymore. But there isn't much we can do about that except maybe have a midlife crisis. So we have to accept aging, welcome it and grow old gracefully.

It's said when you stop changing you are probably dead or close to it and that doesn't sound like an exciting option.

Unwillingness to adjust is often seen in marriage. One of the more familiar cases is when a new husband or wife isn't letting go of his former single lifestyle, and doesn't want to accept a new role as a husband or father.

Most times we have to let go of the old if we are to experience the enjoyment and rewards of the future. And there is often just as much enjoyment in the next passage of time but just in a different way. We just don't see it yet.

But, the biggest change of all is the change that takes place in our hearts and minds — which often requires divine assistance

What I have seen is God is continually changing those who are open to his transforming power and are willing to try and see things from a heavenly perspective. How the great creator changes us is often different than how we would have imagined or preferred. It is my belief we are being fitted for a better place. So with this in mind we try to embrace the change trusting his promises: "For I know the plans that I have for you, says the Lord, plans for good and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope." The Apostle Paul wrote to fellow believers ... "we will all be changed — the perishable for the imperishable and mortal with immorality."

With that in mind we can look forward to change. Enjoy the new colors of autumn — it's one of the best times of the year.

Quick Facts :

WHO: the public

WHAT: food, kids' activities, sports, music and more

WHERE: Uchee Creek Campground and Marina

WHEN: 4 to 11 p.m. today
9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday noon to 6 p.m. Sunday

The annual 10K cross-country run is held during Fort Benning's Oktoberfest and draws hundreds of competitors from on and off post.

The Gootman Band and Dancers perform a traditional German dance during last year's Oktoberfest at Uchee Creek. The group will perform today and Saturday. To find out specific show times, visit www.benningmwr.com.

Oktoberfest: 'The most fun event of the year'

Weekend offers food, music, dancing, dog competition, hayrides, games

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

German food and beer, Bavarian yodelers and a whole batch of children's activities highlight the revelry as Oktoberfest cranks up at 4 p.m. today.

Several thousand visitors are expected to descend on the Uchee Creek Activity Center during the three-day event, which runs through Sunday. The celebration is in its sixth year on post.

"It's probably the most fun event of the year," said Donna Hyatt, publicity and acting marketing manager for Fort Benning's Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation. "Even those of us who work the event, we all look forward to it."

The ceremonial keg tapping, set for 5:45 p.m. today, features handcrafted beer from the Benning Brew Pub's microbrewery, which has been the event's top seller for several years, said Al Gelineau, the DFMWR director.

Today and Saturday, there will be traditional German sports and games and musical performances by the Gootman Band and Dancers. The Maneuver Center of Excellence Band is set to play Saturday.

The annual 10K Cross-Country Challenge gets under way at 9 a.m. Saturday. A Volksmarch, or noncompetitive fitness walk, will begin at noon.

Free children's activities all weekend include hayrides, pontoon boat rides, a pumpkin patch, and arts and crafts. The cost is $5 a day per child for unlimited play on the giant inflatables.

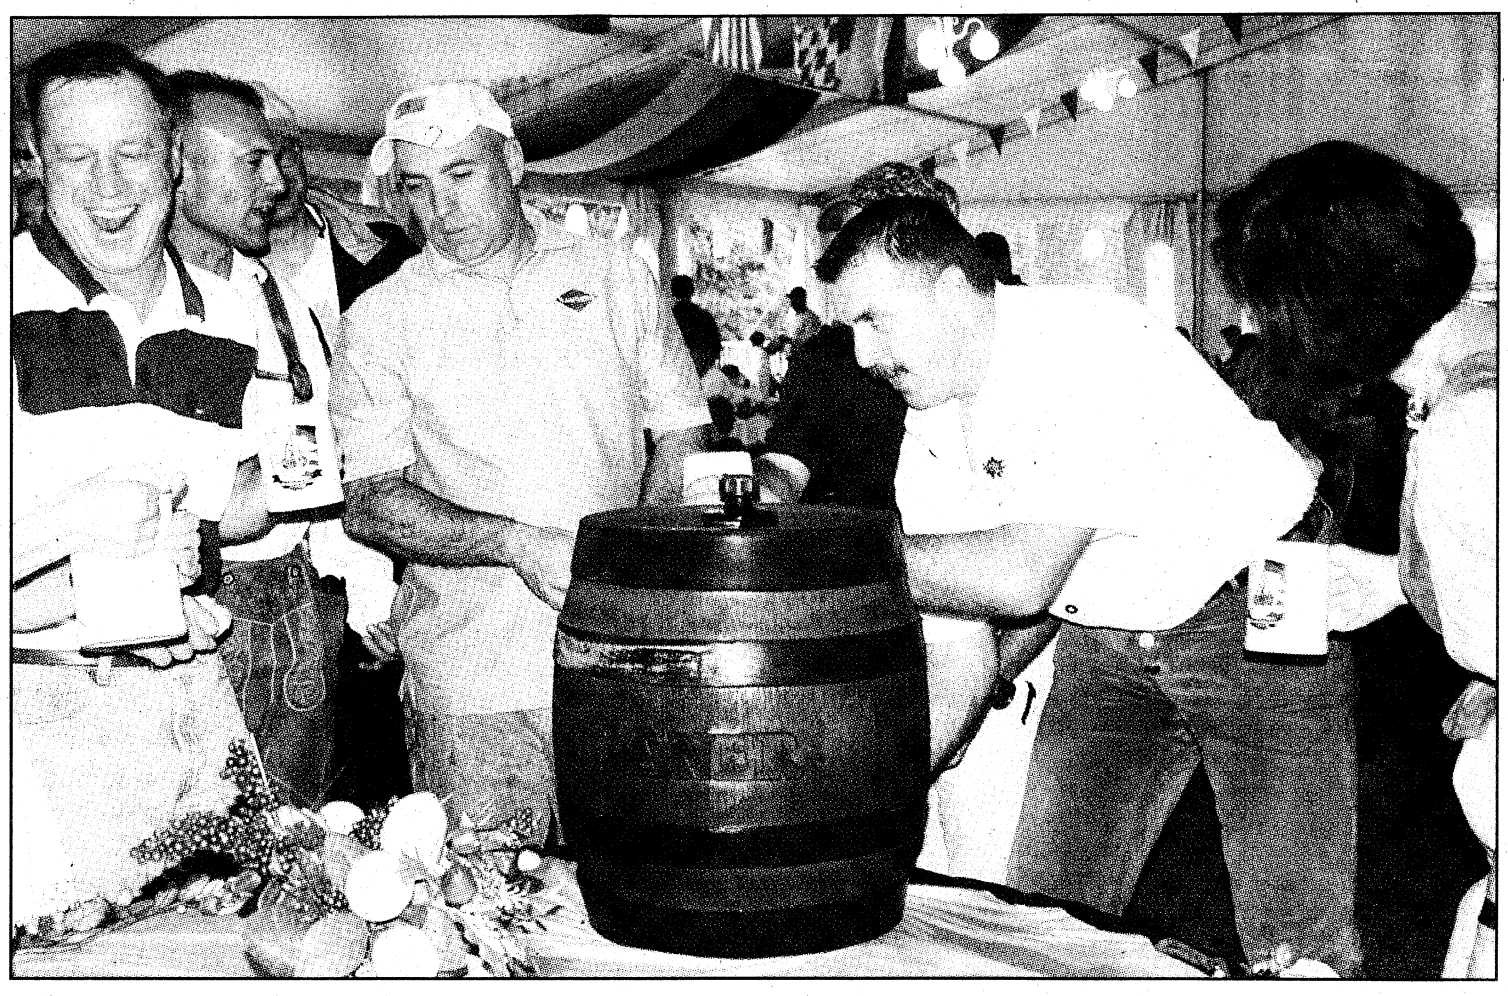
But during Sunday's Family Fun Day, children of deployed Soldiers who present an Army Family Covenant card receive a free wristband and 5-by-7 photo.

Because of its popularity, Oktoberfest was expanded from one day to two in 2006 and then went to three days last year, Hyatt said.

"I think a lot of it goes back to World War II days when American Soldiers were exposed to Oktoberfest, and would come back and tell their friends about it," she said. "That's how it grew around the world, and that's how it grew here."

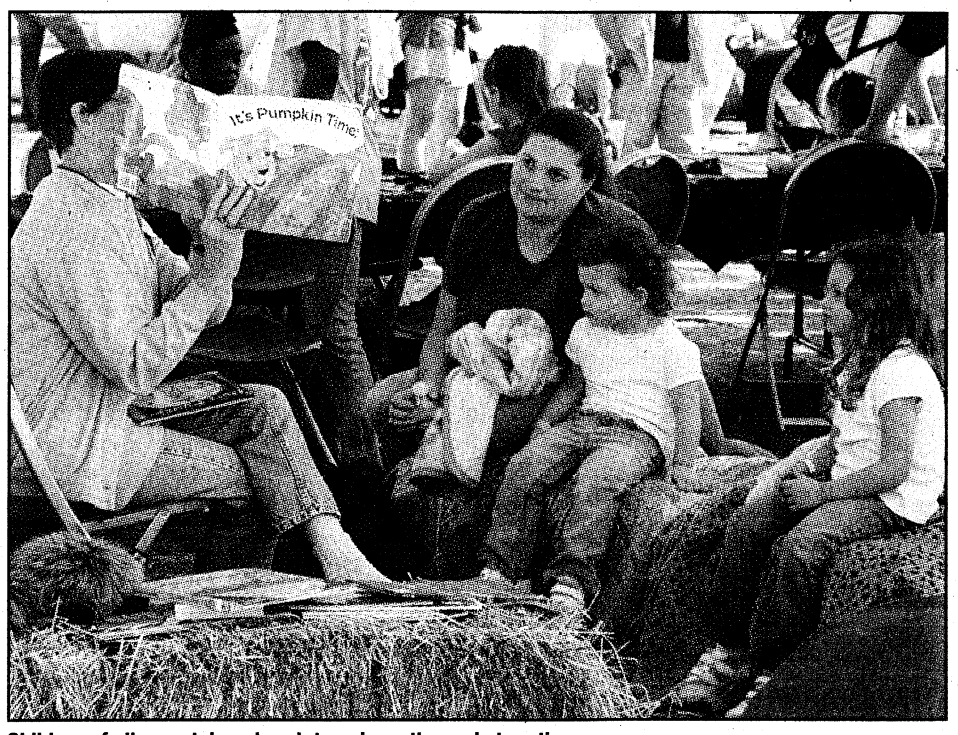
And organizers always try to spice up the atmosphere every year, she said.

The Bavarian yodelers from Mittenwald, Germany, were added to the entertainment lineup and will perform all three days.



"Yodeling is how people would communicate between the valleys in the old days," Hyatt said.

"Today, it's an art form. If you've never heard it, you're in for a treat."



Also new this year is a Saturday dog competition featuring Best Dressed Dog, Best Dog Trick and a Dog/Owner Look-a-Like contest. It will be followed by a family movie that night.

Oktoberfest is open to the public with free admission and parking. A shuttle service from Main Post to Uchee Creek will be available and include stops at the Mall Bowling Center, Afterhours Club and Benning Brew Pub every hour during the event.

The festival runs from 4 to 11 p.m. today, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. For more information, maps to Uchee Creek, race registration or a daily events schedule, visit www.benningmwr.com.

Opening the ceremonial beer keg during the "keg tapping" marks the official start to Fort Benning's Oktoberfest.

Children of all ages take a break to enjoy a themed story time.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

Pandorum: Insanity awaits at end

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

Here's the scenario; You awake in a metal tube, fluorescent lights blazing. A breathing apparatus covers your mouth like a vice grip. Cables, tubes and other sundry implements surround, impede and penetrate your body. You are bound, gagged and secured. As your mind clears, you remember you volunteered for this. But as you free yourself and exit this chamber, it is clear from the darkness, silence and cold isolation that something dreadful happened. Welcome aboard the colony ship Elysium, carrying the last remnants of humanity to a promising new world. Apparently, the mission has run into a few snags.

Meet Cpl. Bower (Ben Foster). Disoriented, bewildered and awakened to a darkened ship, he stumbles across Lt. Payton (Dennis Quaid), who woke up under similar circumstances. The ship is dark on minimum power. There is no other crew and no information available about them, the thousands of passengers and cargo, including millions of plants and animals being carried to their new home.

Bower and Payton manage to get a station working and formulate a plan. Bower is an engineering technician and since something is clearly off with the ship's power, he decides to crawl his way through the bowels of the Elysium to see if he can get her working again.

Bower begins to realize things are even more wrong than they thought. He is jumped by a strange, almost feral woman, Nadia (Antje Traue), and encounters creatures that aren't apparently human. Where did they come from? What is wrong with the ship? Where are they? Are they alone?

Using the natural dark of space and claustrophobic close quarters of a spacecraft to spook the characters, the lack of information and the unfamiliarity of the conditions they find themselves in works equally well in spooking the audience. The set design is incredible, effectively painting a massive interstellar spacecraft equally sterile and squalid, confining yet colossal. Just the idea you are in this gigantic tomb with no way of escape is heebie-jeebie inducing enough. The sense of isolation is enough to generate a quiet, simmering fear. Now add to that you may not be alone after all. Do you really want the company of these companions? Also, there is the question of perception. Are you even sensing what is really real? Or have your environment and circumstances begun to separate you from your wits, your sanity?

How would you even know?

Pandorum is a small science fiction film, relatively speaking. It is European in its feel, which is apt, considering that it was funded by German film concerns (and Traue is from Germany and totally smoking), so it has the Gothic vibe that fantastic fiction from that area of the world often does.

It's a small film with big ideas and potential.

OPENING THIS WEEK

ASTRO BOY

Set in futuristic Metro City, Astro Boy (Freddie Highmore) is a young robot with incredible powers — super strength, X-ray vision, unbelievable speed and the ability to fly. Powered by positive "blue" energy, Astro Boy was created by a brilliant scientist named Dr. Tenma (Nicolas Cage).

Embarking on a journey in search of acceptance, Astro Boy encounters many colorful characters. Through his adventures, he learns the joys and emotions of being human, and gains the strength to embrace his destiny. Ultimately learning his friends and family are in danger, Astro Boy marshals his awesome superpowers and returns to Metro City in a valiant effort to save everything he cares about and to understand what it means to be a hero.

Astro Boy is rated PG for action and peril, and language.

SAW VI

Special Agent Strahm is dead, and Detective Hoffman (Costas Mandylor) is the unchallenged successor to Jigsaw's legacy. However, when the FBI draws closer to Hoffman, he is forced to set a game into motion, and Jigsaw's grand scheme is finally understood.

Saw VI is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture and language.

CIRQUE DU FREAK: THE VAMPIRE'S ASSISTANT

Fourteen-year-old Darren (Chris Massoglia) is like most kids in the neighborhood. He gets decent grades and usually stays out of trouble. But when he and his buddy stumble upon a traveling freak show, things begin to change inside Darren. That's the exact moment when a vampire named Larten Crepsley (John C. Reilly) turns him into something, well, bloodthirsty.

Cirque Du Freak: The Vampire's Assistant is rated PG-13 for sequences of supernatural violence and action, images, thematic elements and language.

NOW PLAYING

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN

Clyde Shelton (Gerard Butler) is a family man whose wife and daughter are brutally murdered during a home invasion. When the killers are caught, Philadelphia prosecutor Nick Rice (Jamie Foxx) is assigned to the case. Nick is forced by his boss to offer one of the suspects a light sentence in exchange for testifying against his accomplice. Fast-forward 10 years. The man who got away with murder is found dead and Shelton admits his guilt. Then he issues a warning to Nick: Fix the flawed justice system that failed his family, or key players in the trial will die.

From his jail cell, Shelton orchestrates a string of spectacularly diabolical assassinations that can be neither predicted nor prevented, and only Nick can stop the killing.

He must outwit the sociopath in a harrowing contest of wills in which even the smallest misstep means death. With his own family now in Shelton's crosshairs, Nick finds himself in a desperate race against time facing a deadly adversary who seems always to be one step ahead.

Law Abiding Citizen is rated R for violence and torture, a rape scene and language.

THE STEPFATHER

Michael Harding (Penn Badgley) returns home from military school to find his mother (Sela Ward) happily in love and living with her new boyfriend, David (Dylan Walsh). As the two men get to know each other, Michael becomes suspicious of the man who is always there with a helpful hand. Is he really the man of her dreams or could David be hiding a dark side?

The Stepfather is rated PG-13 for violence, disturbing images, mature thematic material and brief sensuality.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Max, a rambunctious and sensitive boy feels misunderstood at home and escapes to where the Wild Things are. He lands on an island where he meets mysterious and strange creatures whose emotions are as wild and unpredictable as their actions. The Wild Things desperately long for a leader to guide them, just as Max longs for a kingdom to rule. When Max is crowned king, he promises to create a place where everyone will be happy. Max soon finds, though, that ruling his kingdom is not so easy and his relationships there prove to be more complicated than he originally thought.

Where the Wild Things Are is rated PG for mild thematic elements, some adventure action and brief language.

ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive. Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

CAPITALISM: A LOVE STORY

In Michael Moore's latest documentary, he wonders what America pays for its love of capitalism? Years ago, that love seemed so innocent. Today, however, the American dream is looking more like a nightmare as families pay the price with their jobs, their homes and their savings. Moore takes the viewers into the homes of ordinary people whose lives have been turned upside down; and he goes looking for explanations in Washington.

It is rated R.

THE INVENTION OF LYING

In an alternate reality, lying — even the concept of a lie — does not even exist. Everyone, from politicians to advertisers to the man and woman on the street, speaks the truth and nothing but the truth with no thought of the consequences. But when a down-on-his-luck loser, Mark (Ricky Gervais) suddenly develops the ability to lie, he finds that dishonesty has its rewards. In a world where every word is assumed to be the absolute truth, Mark easily lies his way to fame and fortune.

This comedy also stars Jennifer Garner, Rob Lowe, Tina Fey, Jeffrey Tambor, Jason Bateman and Edward Norton. It is rated PG-13 for language, sexual material and a drug reference.

WHIP IT

In Drew Barrymore's directoria' debut Whip It, Texas teen Bliss (Ellen Page) is tired of being pushed into beauty pageants by her parents. She finds herself after joining, a female roller derby team. Marcia Gay Harden plays Bliss' disapproving mother. Also in the movie are Jimmy Fallon, Zoe Bell, Kristen Wiig, Juliette Lewis, Daniel Stern and Alia Shawkat.

The movie is rated PG-13 for sexual content including language and drug material.

SURROGATES

People are living their lives remotely from the safety of their own homes via robotic surrogates — sexy, physically perfect mechanical representations of themselves. It's an ideal world where crime, pain, fear and consequences don't exist. When the first murder in years jolts this utopia, FBI agent Greer discovers a vast conspiracy behind the surrogate phenomenon and must abandon his own surrogate, risking his life to unravel the mystery.

The film stars Bruce Willis, Radha Mitchell, Rosamund Pike, Boris Kodjoe and James Francis Ginty. It is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence, disturbing images, language, sexuality and a drug-related scene.

FAME

A reinvention of the original 1980 hit film, Fame follows a talented group of dancers, singers, actors, and artists over four years at the New York City High School of Performing Arts, a diverse, creative powerhouse where students from all walks of life are given a chance to live out their dreams and achieve real and lasting fame ... the kind that comes only from talent, dedication, and hard work. As each student strives for his or her moment in the spotlight, they'll discover who has the talent and discipline to succeed.

The film stars Kherington Payne, Anna Maria Perez de Tagle, Paul McGill, Asher Book and Kristy Flores. It is rated PG for thematic material including teen drinking, a sexual situation and language.

PANDORUM

When two men emerge from a deep sleep in the middle of space, they discover they have no memories of who they are and where they're going. But their memory loss pales in comparison to the problem of the murderous warriors on board their ship who don't want to leave anyone alive.

The film stars Dennis Quaid, Ben Foster, Cam Gigandet, Norman Reedus and Cung Le. It is rated R for strong horror violence and language.

JENNIFER'S BODY

A cheerleader with the perfect life becomes the girl from hell when she gets possessed and begins killing boys in a small town.

The film stars Megan Fox, Amanda Seyfried and Johnny Simmons. It's rated R for sexuality, bloody violence, language and drug use.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF MEATBALLS

Inspired by the children's book, the film focuses on a town where food falls from the sky like rain. Bill Hader voices Flint Lockwood, a young inventor who dreams of creating something that will improve everyone's life. Anna Faris takes on the role of Sam Sparks, a weathergirl covering the phenomenon who hides her intelligence behind a perky exterior. Mr.T plays the by-the-rules town cop Earl Devereaux, and Tracy Morgan takes on the role of Earl's rule-breaking son, Cal. It's rated PG for brief mild language.

LOVE HAPPENS

When a self-help author arrives in Seattle to teach a sold-out seminar, he unexpectedly meets the one person who might finally be able to help him help himself.

The film stars Aaron Eckhart and Jennifer Aniston and is rated PG-13 for language including sexual references.

THE INFORMANT!

What was Mark Whitacre thinking? A rising star at agri-industry giant Archer Daniels Midland (ADM), Whitacre suddenly turns whistleblower. Even as he exposes his company's multinational price-fixing conspiracy to the FBI, Whitacre envisions himself being hailed as a hero of the common man and handed a promotion. But before all that can happen, the FBI needs evidence, so Whitacre eagerly agrees to wear a wire and carry a hidden tape recorder in his briefcase, imagining himself as a kind of de facto secret agent.

Unfortunately for the FBI, its lead witness hasn't been quite so forthcoming about helping himself to the corporate coffers. Whitacre's ever-changing account frustrates the agents and threatens the case against ADM as it becomes almost impossible to decipher what is real and what is the product of Whitacre's rambling imagination. Based on the true story of the highest-ranking corporate whistleblower in U.S. history.

The film stars Matt Damon, Scott Bakula and Joel McHale and is rated R for language.

Fort Benning changes colors

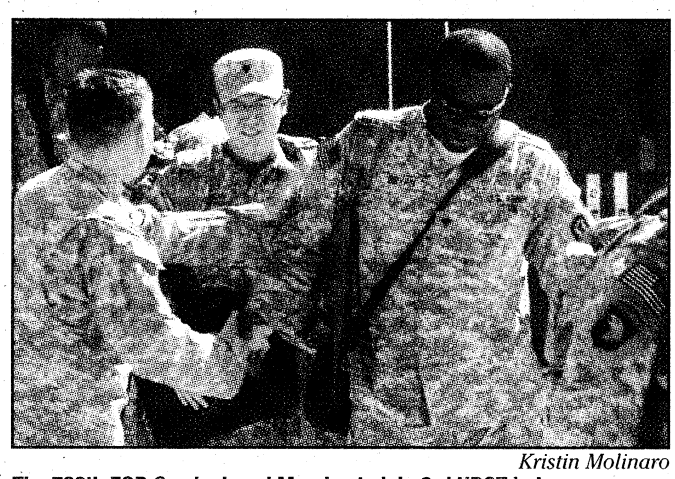
THE BAYONET

The Maneuver Center of Excellence made it official Thursday afternoon.

In a largely symbolic event — since the MCOE officially cranked up operations Oct. 1 — the command's flag was unfurled and its leaders' new roles highlighted during an activation ceremony in the courtyard behind the Ridgway Hall headquarters building.



"It's a great day, any way you look at it," said MG Michael Ferriter, Fort Benning's commander, who became the inaugural MCOE commander on the first day of the fiscal year. "It's a great day to be a Soldier serving in the greatest Army in the world. It's a great day to serve at the greatest Army installation in the world — an installation that's making history here today.

"Collocating Infantry and Armor will allow us to capitalize on the strengths of the two greatest military forces in the world. They will train as they fight — together. One force, one fight.

789th EOD 'bomb squad' to train Iraqi units

Fort Benning's bomb disposal experts are returning to Iraq for the second time with the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team.

Forty-two Soldiers with the 789th Explosive Ordnance Disposal Company departed Monday from Lawson Army Airfield to begin a yearlong deployment to Iraq.

The Soldiers will join Taskforce Troy and the 3rd HBCT to focus on improvised explosive device and counter-IED operations, said CPT Jeffrey McCullough, 789th EOD's commander.

The Soldiers will be headquartered at Forward Operating Base Kalsu and serve dual missions of countering the IED threat and training Iraqi bomb disposal companies, said McCullough, who took command of the unit following his return from a Taskforce Troy deployment in April.

The 789th EOD Co. will relieve its sister unit, the 49th Explosive Ordnance Disposal Company based out of Fort Campbell, Ky.

"We provide mobility on the battlefield," McCullough said. "IEDs can impede movement on the roads so we are called in to disable devices and recover evidence. In laymen's terms, we are a bomb squad, but we

MACH offers flu vaccine for children

Terry Beckwith
MARTIN ARMY COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

Martin Army Community Hospital has added pediatric patients to the groups of patients receiving seasonal influenza shots.

"Parents can now call the CARE line at 706-544-2273 to set up an appointment," said CPT Thomas Agnew, head nurse at the Family Medicine Clinic.

While CDC guidelines have included children up to 18 years of age, the hospital currently has only enough vaccine on hand for the younger children at this point, Agnew said.

All eligible Tricare pediatric patients ages 6 months to 36 months are being seen either by appointment or at the walk-in clinic.

"Parents may bring their children to the Family Medicine Clinic, Monday through Friday, between the hours of 8:30 and 11 a.m. or 1 and 3 p.m. to obtain the shot," said LTC (Dr.) John Faught, deputy commander for Clinical Services. "We highly recommend that parents have their children immunized."

For other patients who are curious about obtaining their immunizations, the hospital has established a flu line at 706-544-2273. Updates are available on the hospital's Web page at www.martin.amedd.army.mil.

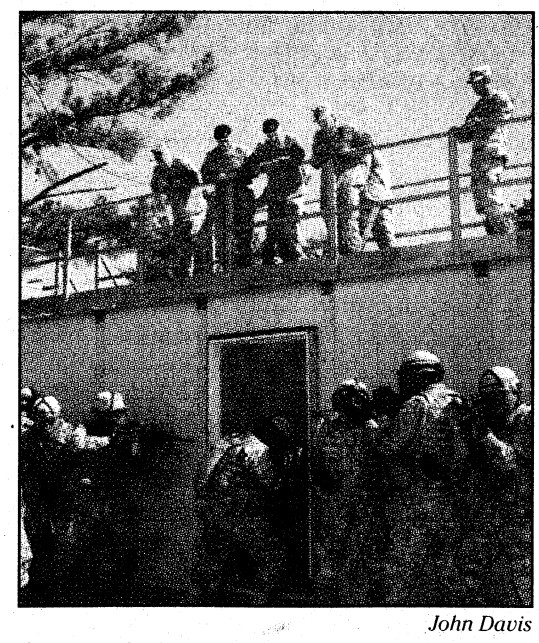
Casey: Merger boosts 'full-spectrum' operations

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

The Army chief of staff was back at Fort Benning Tuesday.

GEN George Casey got an aerial peek at the massive expansion effort under way for the Maneuver Center of Excellence and observed urban combat training on Sand Hill. Along the way, he toured the National Infantry Museum for the first time and re-enlisted five Soldiers — including two Purple Heart recipients — at the Follow Me Statue in front of the museum.



"It gives me great pleasure to re-enlist these Soldiers, and keep their families on the team," he said. "As an Infantryman, coming back to Fort Benning is like coming home. Every time I fly around the post, or drive around this post, there are great memories."

Casey discussed Army recruiting benchmarks, efforts to increase time between deployments and the impending unification of the Infantry and Armor centers at Fort Benning.

Last week, the Pentagon announced the Army and other service branches — along with their respective Guard and Reserve components — met or exceeded recruiting goals in fiscal 2009. The Army added 70,045 new Soldiers, or 108 percent of its targeted number of 65,000.

Counting the Army National Guard and Army Reserve, recruiters completed 125,000 new contracts overall while 32,000 Soldiers joined up via the delayed entry program, Casey said. The crop of active-duty recruits included the highest number of high school graduates — roughly 95 percent — in five years.

One shot, one kill: It's the creed of every sniper.

More than 30 two-man teams from around the globe put that battle cry to the test — minus any lethality in this instance — on Fort Benning's ranges during the ninth annual U.S. Army International Sniper Competition, which began Oct. 15 and ended Thursday.

The field included duos from Ireland, Spain, Great Britain, the Air Force, Marine Corps and Army National Guard. SWAT teams from around the U.S. were represented, and there were state police tandems from Massachusetts and San Diego.

A wide range of skills was tested as competitors fired rifles and pistols at fixed and moving targets, from various distances and positions, both day and night. An aerial shoot was among the events and most required sharp communication between shooter and spotter.

All the scenarios are relevant to real-world missions and operations,

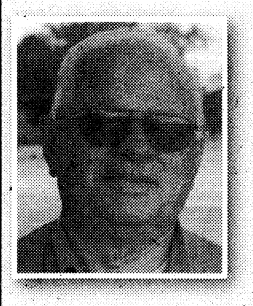
OPINION



VARIOUS VOICES

How do you handle problems with your significant other?

We're involved in each other's lives. That helps. We talk about things before we act on it. I don't wait till the last minute to let him know about something. We go to church together. We do almost everything together on our off time. We pray about things. Prayer helps, and everything just falls into place.

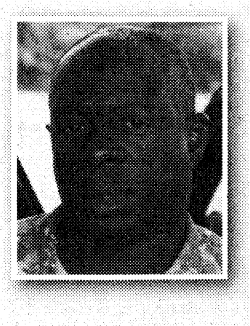
— SFC Deidre Crowell
Warrior Transition Battalion

We work it out. I've been married 44 years — same woman. We have a very open and frank relationship. We know who's boss: both of us. We're able to sit down and discuss our priorities. We've had no real hard misunderstandings. It's because of love, patience, religion ... I guess actually when we married, we became one. The only separation was when I was in the service and I had to go overseas and she couldn't go. We're a close family.

— Robert Brooks
Maneuver Battle Lab

We just talk, then come to agreements, meet halfway, whatever the problem is, try to resolve it. If you're willing for the relationship to work, you're willing to work out the problem. Take a break. Think about what the problem is and discuss it afterward. (Yelling) just leads to anger.

— SGT Deanna Whitehead
988th Military Police Company



Pray. I believe God can do anything, and he told us to take all of our cares and concerns and give them to him. When we do that and believe, it always seems to work out. I'm quick to listen and slow to speak. It's something you have to learn over the years. When you start yelling that doesn't accomplish anything. Words are so powerful and so strong, and you can't take them back. If you just take your time and listen ... you'll be able to approach it in a different way, so you don't hurt that person's feelings.

— Rose Mullins
Directorate of Human Resources,
Fort Lewis, Wash.

When we have a disagreement, we typically just talk it out. I don't raise my voice. I don't argue. I like to call it debating. If you're going to start going into name calling, and you can't deal with it in a civil manner, then it's probably not a healthy relationship. Keep it civilized and treat your significant other as an adult who deserves respect.

— SPC Reid Grapes
2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment

First, we just take a time out, give us time to work on it, and then we go back and talk. That gives us time, so we can sit down and think what the problem was. And if that doesn't work, we try to get up some counseling. If you want your marriage, that's what it takes. It takes two to make it work.

— SSG Randy Boley
Warrior Transition Battalion

I think the best thing is to talk it out and also give the person time to think it out. If you give them time, usually they can come to an agreement or a compromise. Time heals wounds. (Arguments about) not doing the dishes might take 10 minutes to cool down... not paying the light bill and having your lights cut off might take a couple days. Communication and time are definitely the answers.

Breast cancer awareness should last longer than 31 days

Michelle Gordon
MANEUVER CENTER OF EXCELLENCE
PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

I was in college when I met my best friend Becca. I was 18, and she was slightly older, but I didn't think much about it since college is filled with people of all ages and backgrounds. Becca was older because she put her college career on hold after she was diagnosed with breast cancer at 21-years-old.

Most people know breast cancer is one of the leading causes of death among women, second only to lung cancer, but it generally doesn't develop until later in life. Becca was in her 20s — she shouldn't have had to worry about it, especially since less than 7 percent of all breast cancer cases occur in women younger than 40, according to www.webmd.com.

The odds increase with age or if you have certain risk factors, such as smoking, obesity or a family history of cancer, but Becca had none of these. She was a normal, healthy, college girl, and then one day she discovered a lump in her left breast while conducting a self-exam.

So while her classmates were choosing majors and pledging sororities, Becca was making life-changing decisions about a mastectomy and chemotherapy. It wasn't fair, but no one says life is fair. We have to deal with the hand we're dealt, so that's what Becca did, and by the time I met her three years later, no one could tell she was a recovering cancer patient. She graduated at the top of her class and went on to earn a master's degree in psychology. She had beaten cancer.

Fast forward to 2007, nearly 10 years after Becca and I first met. I had just had my daughter and Becca was expecting her own baby girl within a few short months. We lived across the country from each other, but we still kept in touch. One night I was checking my e-mails when I noticed I had one from Becca. It was pretty short, but it basically said the cancer had returned.

After the initial shock I picked up the phone and called her without any regard for time zones, thankfully she was still up. She told me she had discovered a lump in her right breast, again with a self exam, and it was malignant. It wasn't aggressive, so she and her doctors agreed to postpone treatment since she was pregnant. Seven weeks later they induced labor and baby Grace was born perfectly healthy with no complications. Two days later Becca had her second mastectomy.

You never fully get the all-clear with breast cancer, but Becca likes to point out that she's been in remission for 14 years on the left and 2.5 years on the right. She's beaten the disease twice now and she hasn't slowed down. She works full time and is the mother of two precious kids.

However, had it not been for her rigorous attention to detail and knowing her body, her life might have been very different. In fact, even though she's had a double mastectomy, she continues to watch for signs with daily self-exams, yearly mammograms and bi-annual blood tests, bone scans and chest X-rays.

She's amazing, and I think I look at breast cancer a little different than most people because I'm able to put a face on the disease. Sure, I enjoy the month of October with all of the pink products for sale and I love the pink shoes, armbands and hats worn by the NFL players this year, but it's more than that. And it should be more than 31-days of awareness. So remember, just because October is nearly over and it's almost time for turkey, doesn't mean it's time to shift our focus to the next cause.

Breast cancer is a very real and very aggressive disease. It can strike anyone at anytime and the only way to beat it is with early detection. Once the symptoms start it's often too late, so make self-exams part of your daily routine and hopefully you can stop it before it starts.

Stop domestic violence now

Rebecca Welch
FAMILY ADVOCACY PROGRAM

Did you know every 15 seconds a woman is assaulted physically in her home? One in four women will experience domestic violence in her lifetime.

Children from violent homes believe violence is a reasonable alternative to solving problems. More than half become abusive adults. A large percentage of women and children living on the streets today are homeless because of domestic violence.

Questions come up time and time again, "Why do women stay in an abusive relationship? Why don't they just leave?"

The fact is many people who are abused by their intimate partner want the violence and abuse to end, but not the relationship. There is always concern over finances, children, losing transportation and negative responses from friends and family members, especially if they're not believed or taken seriously.

The victim is often judged as a bad mother, father or partner and worries about being a burden to family and friends by asking for help.

Under the best circumstances, it's not easy to end a relationship with an intimate partner. Think about it — love, family, memories and commitment are bonds that are hard to break. There may be cultural or religious beliefs that are barriers to ending a marriage.

Telling a victim that leaving is not always the safest or best option is a very hard thing to do. The victim must be made aware the threats and violence will most likely get worse, resulting in more harm to the victim, children, family, friends or pets. There is the risk of continued harassment, stalking, verbal and emotional attacks, especially if the abuser has court-ordered visitation.

There is the possibility of increased risks to children if the abuser has unsupervised or poorly supervised visitation. There are cases where children are kidnapped by the abuser, and we must not forget the impact on children as a result of "breaking up the family."

Domestic abuse affects everyone. You can make a difference by getting involved and helping prevent domestic abuse.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Vet wishes Godspeed to 3rd HBCT Soldiers

After the hugs and farewells with family and friends at Kelley Hill were finished, our 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team Soldiers once again loaded onto busses for the short trip to Lawson Army Airfield and to planes waiting to return them for the fourth time to Iraq.

Once they arrived at Freedom Hall they were met by a quiet but enthusiastic group of community supporters that were there to thank them and to ease their wait before they loaded onto the planes.

It was clear the Soldiers appreciated the donuts at 3 a.m., the coffee and cookies at dawn, and the bottled water, sodas, goodie bags, paperback books, Bibles, exercise bands, playing cards and snacks.

But what they really seemed to value was the genuine outpouring of support from friendly faces, wishing them well and thanking them for their sacrifice.

I want to recognize the following organizations that helped organize teams of volunteers that saw off every flight: Association of the United States Army, Red Cross, CB&T, United Service Organization and Operation Homefront. Once again, we can be proud of our Soldiers and proud of our community.

God Bless the 3rd HBCT and keep them safe!

Government official pays visit to WHINSEC

Lee A. Rials
WHINSEC

Dr. Paul N. Stockton, assistant secretary of Defense for Homeland Defense and Americas' Security Affairs visited the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation Monday.

Stockton

WHINSEC is a Department of Defense education and training facility, assigned to the Combined Arms Center, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command. The institute offers 18 resident courses and eight mobile training team courses to military, law enforcement and civilian personnel of the Organization of American States. The Captains Career and Command and General Staff Officer Courses are the only yearlong course offered at the institute, and bring officers and their families from around the hemisphere, including the U.S. and Canada, to Fort Benning.

Stockton said the curriculum materials are "right on target, exactly what we need to work together to advance a shared sense of security requirements."

Stockton said the secretary of defense told him to focus on the upside of building good relations with regional nations.

"What WHINSEC does is so important to … my opportunity to serve the Secretary of Defense and President Obama … strengthening our relationships with our important security partners throughout the region," Stockton told a near-capacity audience in Pratt Hall filled with WHINSEC personnel and students in CGSOC.

Stockton, who was a senior research scholar at Stanford University's Center for International Security and Cooperation, took a copy of WHINSEC's analysis of Columbia's "False Positives" issue, relating to Columbia's measures to prevent its army from presenting innocent victims as terrorists.

Stockton's research at Stanford focused on how U.S. security institutions respond to changes in the threat (including the rise of terrorism), and on the interaction of Congress and the executive branch in restructuring national security budgets, policies and institutional arrangements.

BOSS earns gold level

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Members of Better Opportunities for Single Soldiers logged more than 3,000 hours of volunteer service this fiscal year, earning them gold in the Presidential Volunteer Service Award. To achieve the gold, organizations must log a minimum of 1,000 hours with each member contributing at least 25 hours.

"Gold says a lot about Fort Benning BOSS Soldiers," said CSM James Foreman, garrison command sergeant major and senior BOSS advisor. "In order for us to qualify for any type of award or to get any type of recognition, the Soldiers have to give of their time to come out and participate in all these volunteer events. And most of these events — I would say, 90 percent — are on a Friday or a Saturday."

Soldiers volunteer with a variety of organizations, including House of Heroes, Help the Hooch, Open Door Community House, the Special Olympics and the AFLAC Cancer Center in Atlanta.

Foreman said Soldier participation is what sets the Fort Benning BOSS program apart.

"When we send out a request for volunteers, we get volunteers. Sometimes we get so many we have to turn some away," he said. "This BOSS program is the best I've seen … and I've been to a lot of installations."

Community service is one of the three pillars, which include quality of life and recreation and leisure, of the BOSS program, said SGT Zkmain Sanchez, BOSS president.

"I think giving to the community creates a more well-rounded Soldier," she said. "It stimulates the hearts and minds of Soldiers to see they're needed beyond their duty on the battlefield. We have Soldiers who are from different parts of the world and no matter where they go, they have to be able to adjust in their environment, and community service is the perfect way to adjust."

In 28 years of service, Foreman said he has never seen a better combination of installation and community than the one here in the tricommunity.

"BOSS plays a big part in that," he said. "And that fosters a good relationship between the community downtown and the community on the installation."

Sanchez and Noelle Phillips, the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation BOSS advisor, will receive a pin, certificate and letter signed by the president Friday at the Fort Benning quarterly recognition of excellence breakfast.

For more information about the BOSS program, call the installation BOSS office at 706-626-0242 or Sanchez at 706-604-7675. To volunteer and track hours, call Starla Desaussure, the Fort Benning volunteer coordinator, at 706-545-3016.

New dental program provides Soldiers off-post option

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Although most active-duty Soldiers are required to have their dental care performed on post, a new option gives patients the choice to go to civilian practices, said Fort Benning DENTAC Commander COL Mark McDonald.

McDonald said the Active Duty Dental Program, which officially became effective Aug. 1, was designed to better meet the needs of Soldiers. Priority has been placed on deploying and redeploying, Warrior Transition and first-term Soldiers, which has left insufficient staff and clinic space for permanent party Soldiers, he said.

"We had to delay a lot of care," McDonald said, citing the recent mobilization of 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team. "We know we need additional resources to provide the care that's supposed to occur on Fort Benning."

All Soldiers receive initial examinations on post, and, based on their diagnosis, may be given the choice to go off post, McDonald said. Those who choose the latter option must sign an agreement that outlines their responsibilities and any restrictions. Soldiers are responsible for any work done outside the original DENTAC prescription.

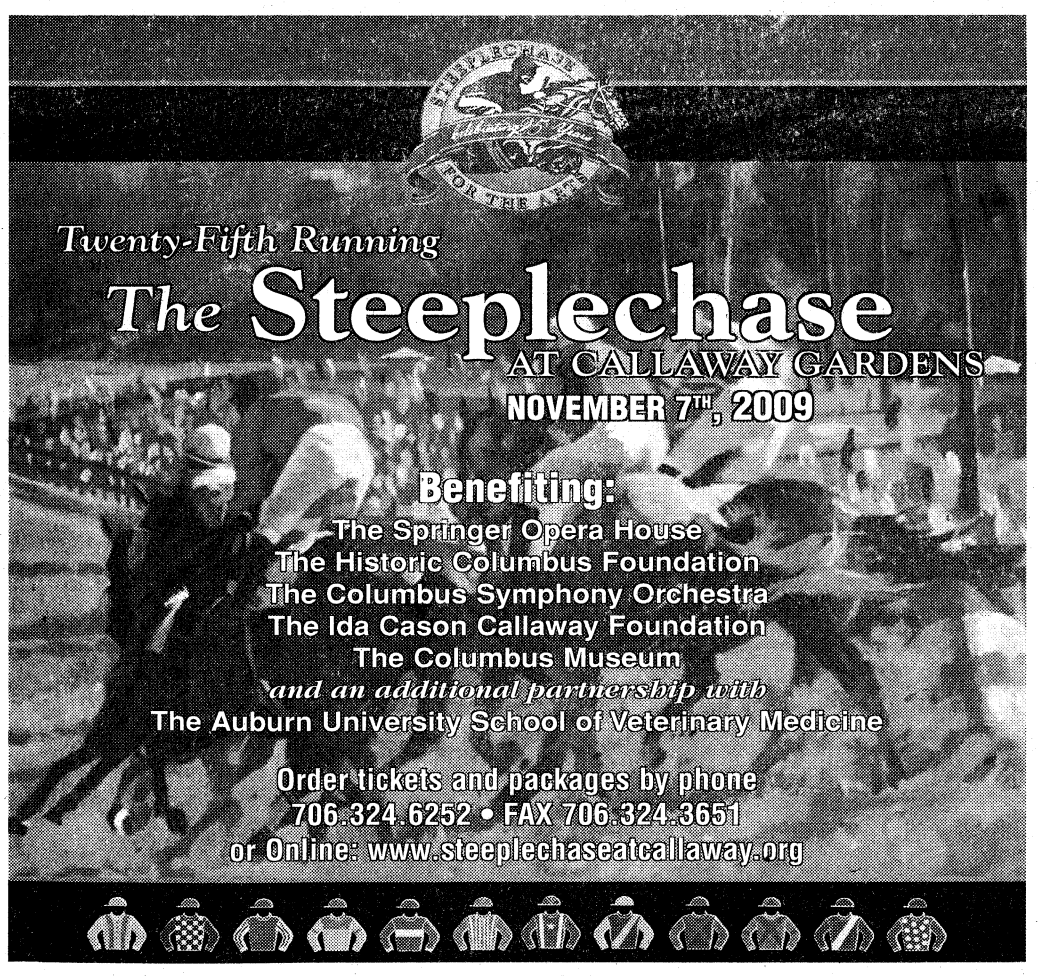
"When we do this, there's no fee for the Soldier," McDonald said. "There's no co-payment by the Soldier. There's no benefit cap. Whatever we refer, that's what the Soldier is eligible to receive."

"It's an excellent program for active-duty Soldiers," said MSG Olivia Blount, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, U.S. Army Garrison. Blount used the program to have two crowns placed on her teeth at Willow Point Dental Art Center in north Columbus. "I got in right away. The service was excellent."

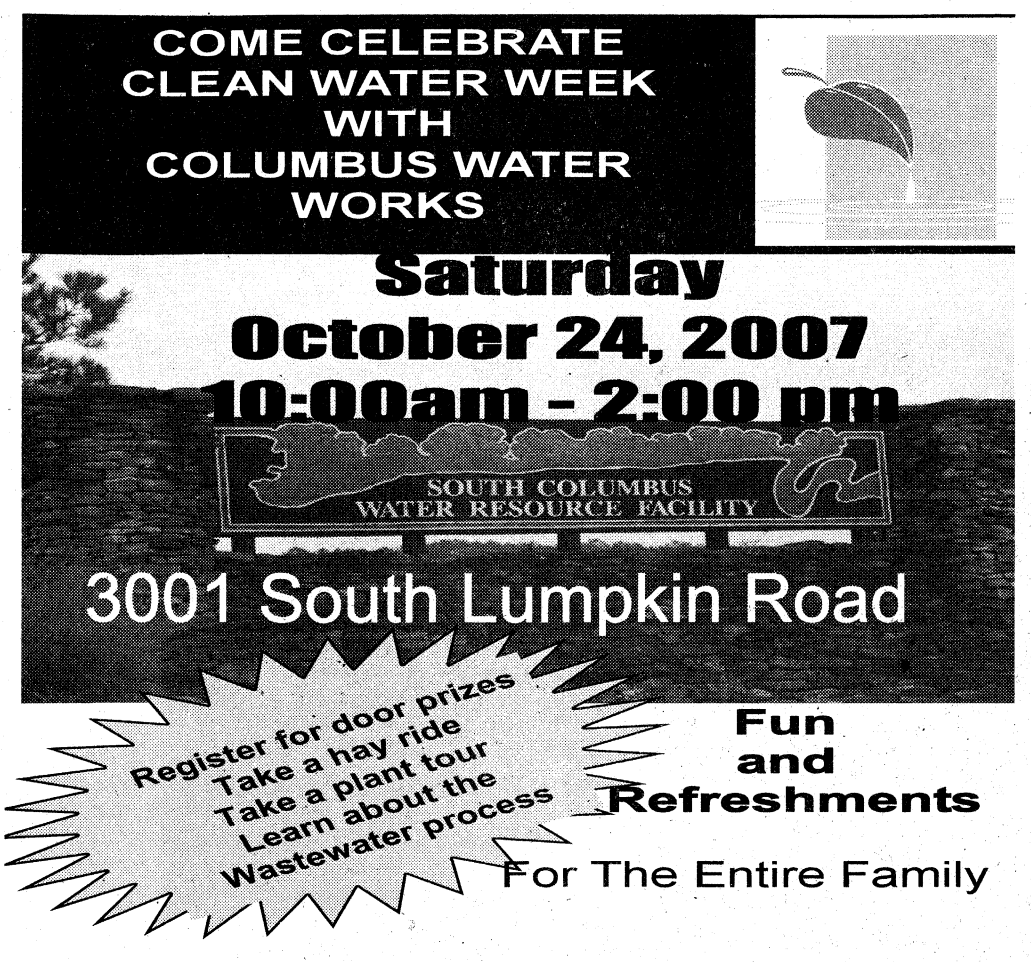
After she received the provider list, Blount said she chose the practice because it was close to her house. Convenience is another benefit of ADDP, McDonald said.

Since DENTAC uses United Concordia's current dependent provider list, active-duty Soldiers often make their decisions based on where their family already goes, which is how PFC Richard Nickles, Ranger Special Troops Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, chose his civilian dentist.

"They gave me a list of dentists and said 'pick one,'" Nickles said. "So I chose the one closest to my wife's orthodontist."



Like Blount, Nickles said there was minimal wait time.



"With the way the military is, I was surprised at how quickly I got in," he said. "It was a good experience."

The new program includes defined coverage for emergency procedures and an outlet to report negative experiences.

McDonald said the program helps accomplish the mission while allowing more Soldiers to be treated with the care they deserve.

Additional information on the program can be found at www.addp-ucci.com.

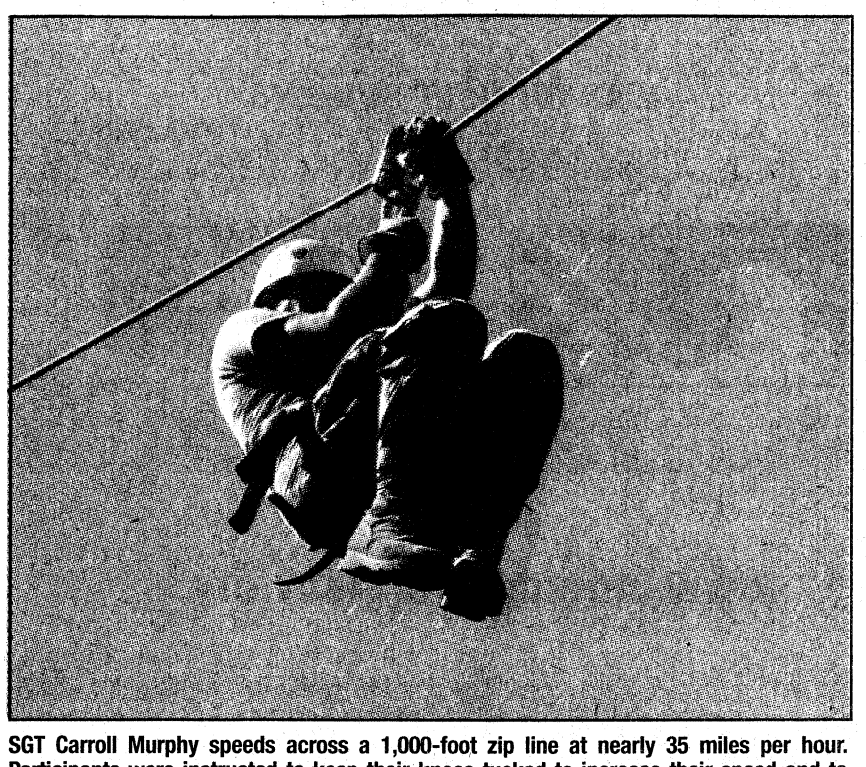
A Soldier zips across the Screaming Eagle, a 2,400-foot-long cable across Snake Creek Gorge, Tuesday at Historic Banning Mills' high ropes challenge course in conjunction with the Warrior Adventure Quest program.

Soldiers conquer Screaming Eagle, challenge course



Soldiers wait for the go ahead to zip across the Screaming Eagle.

SGT Justin Leverett was all smiles when he completed his first zip line across the valley.

SSG Jake Dixon, a squad leader with 4th Platoon, 233rd Transportation Company, negotiates a rope bridge during the high ropes challenge course. "It was a breeze after I got going," said Dixon of the course, which included seven zip lines and more than 20 rope bridges.

SGT Carroll Murphy speeds across a 1,000-foot zip line at nearly 35 miles per hour. Participants were instructed to keep their knees tucked to increase their speed and to keep one hand on the cable hook to steer straight in case they began to spin.

SPC David Ellis stood at the top of a 100-foot tower overlooking a tree-covered valley as his teammates coaxed him to make the jump. Ellis was harnessed to a 2,400-foot-long zip line that would carry him across the valley at speeds reaching 65 miles per hour. Called the Screaming Eagle, the jump is the longest and fastest at Historic Banning Mills' zip line course and aptly named for the shrieks it induces.

"It almost made me punk out," said Ellis, a truck driver with 4th Platoon, 233rd Transportation Company. "I'm afraid of heights. I was thinking of backing out but then I thought to myself 'it's a long walk back and I'm already strapped in.'"

He wasn't the only Soldier to consider backing out of the Screaming Eagle jump Tuesday.

Ellis was one of 22 Soldiers from 4th Platoon to participate in an extreme zip line course and rope challenge course Tuesday sponsored by Fort Benning's Warrior Adventure Quest program.

The 233rd Trans. Co. returned from a yearlong deployment to Iraq three months ago where they provided heavy equipment transportation in support of units from Camp Adder southeast of Baghdad all the way to Mosul.

They are the first Fort Benning unit to participate in the zip line activities offered by WAQ. The program, funded by the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, is geared toward recently redeployed Soldiers who are coping with the adjustment from a combat environment back to garrison life, said Darlene Hines, program manager for Outdoor Recreation, which is responsible for running the adventure program.

The program introduces Soldiers fresh from the war zone to high-adventure, adrenaline-boosting activities such as scuba diving, rock climbing, paintball, skiing, whitewater rafting and zip lining, at no cost to the Soldier.

The program is coupled with the Army's psychological resiliency building program, Battlemind, to enhance communication in the ranks. Battlemind is an opportunity for Soldiers to discuss how they recognized and responded to their fears and what they've learned about themselves.

The day started with icebreaker games before moving on to the low ropes challenge course, a series of teambuilding activities designed to foster communication, leadership, problem-solving and trust, said Lee Stuart, an internationally certified trainer for the challenge courses and zip lining.

"With each activity, we build up to the zip line course," said Stuart, a retired lieutenant colonel who began his Army career at Fort Benning when he was drafted during the Vietnam War. "I've been in their shoes. The extreme portion of the course is going to push them and they won't be the same person when they finish. They'll have more confidence in themselves."

The Soldiers learned to cross "islands" — platforms set six feet apart — using two boards, climb walls using their buddies for help and cross rope bridges set a few feet off the ground. After a lunch break, the troops dove into the high ropes challenge course — a series of seven zip lines and more than 20 rope bridges traversing several hundred acres overlooking the Snake Creek Gorge.

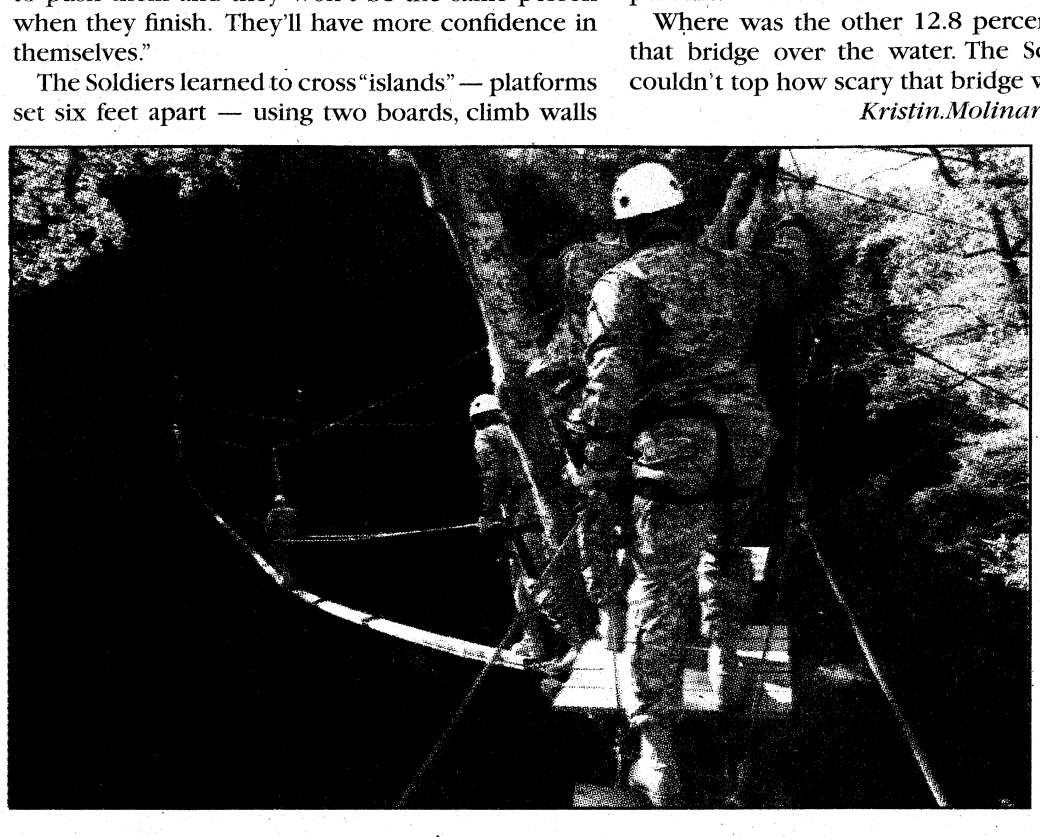
The four-hour course, dubbed one of the longest and highest canopy tours in the world by Historic Banning Mills staff, began at the top of a 60-foot observation tower with a 1,000-foot zip across Snake Creek. Along the course, Soldiers stayed primarily in treetop platforms nearly 20 feet off the ground as they crossed bridges and zip cables.

1LT Kimberly Ordonez, a platoon leader with the company, said the course taught her a lot about her Soldiers.

"I learned what some of their fears are," she said. "And how they act under pressure in certain situations."

SGT Justin Leverett, a truck driver in 4th platoon, said his fear of heights is not completely gone but he's confident he can overcome it after completing the day's challenges.

"The toughest part for me was crossing the narrow bridge over the water," he said. "There was a moment when I reached the middle of the bridge where I thought I was going to fall off. I had to man up and balance myself out."



Some Soldiers, like SGT Carroll Murphy, said the course gave them a chance to work out some problems related to the deployment.

"A lot of people in the platoon were having issues downrange," said Murphy, a truck driver for the platoon. "Coming here, you can see they've lightened up a little, come out of their shell and become joyful again instead of being serious all the time."

As for Ellis, after completing the Screaming Eagle he rated his performance on the course at 88.2 percent.

Where was the other 12.8 percent? "I lost it on that bridge over the water. The Screaming Eagle couldn't top how scary that bridge was."

Kristin.Molinaro@us.army.mil

Soldiers approach a series of bridges crossing the Snake Creek Gorge. The first single plank bridge across the creek proved to be the most difficult for most Soldiers since it leans to the left as they get closer to the middle of it. "There was a part where I thought I was going to fall off," said SGT Justin Leverett.

After a multiweek competition Sept. 24 through Oct. 14, the second time was the charm for Fort Benning's newest Black Hat of the Year, SSG Rommel Hurtado. Only one year removed from his self-described disappointing performance in last year's competition, Hurtado emerged the winner among seven Airborne cadre.

"I wasn't satisfied with my performance and wanted to redeem myself," said Hurtado, a jumpmaster instructor with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment. "So I volunteered to compete again. I didn't psych myself up so much this time — just focused on doing the best I could, and I ended up winning."

"Black Hat," a term used to identify a Soldier as an Airborne School instructor, refers to the black baseball caps worn by instructors.

"This is one of the most prestigious awards for a Black Hat," said SGM Michael Green, the senior NCO for 1st Bn., 507th PIR. "The top Black Hat is the standard-bearer for all of the Airborne instructors."

The Soldiers were evaluated and graded in areas of classroom instruction, written exams, physical fitness, oral recitation, the jump master personal inspection, rigging equipment, practical work in the aircraft and the mystery event — a board featuring master trainers from each branch of Airborne School and the sergeant major.

Hurtado came out on top with 949 points out of a possible 1,000. Hurtado trailed SSG Nicholas Kenrick, an instructor with B Company, going into the final day of competition and Hurtado took the lead with a 94 percent score for accuracy during the JMPI. Kenrick finished second with 909 points and SSG Daniel Lizanne, an instructor with A Company, finished third with 795 points.

"I was confident he would do well," said CPT Michael Rybacki, HHC commander, of Hurtado's win. "He's a true NCO dedicated to the mission at hand. It was an outright great performance and I wasn't surprised he won."

Hurtado said his level of experience and the support of peers were key in preparing for the competition.

"I had more experience this time around, I wasn't focusing on learning events," he said. "All of my peers were very supportive. Everybody pitched in and I appreciate the help they gave me."

Hurtado said winning the competition has humbled him.

"I've learned to be patient," he said. "Last year, I had a cocky attitude and thought it would be easy. I set myself up a little too high and ended up disappointing myself. Now I just think about doing the best I can."

Hurtado has served with the battalion for nearly two years. Prior to that, he was deployed four times in support of the Global War on Terrorism. Hurtado has served 10 years in the Army with assignments ranging from the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C., to the 1st Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment at Hunter Army Airfield, Ga.

FAITH MIDDLE SCHOOL
PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCES

Faith will be conducting Parent-Teacher Conferences Friday, Oct. 23. Parents may report to school from 7:30 AM to 3:PM to pick –up their students' 1st Quarter report cards and meet with their team of teachers in the gym or the cafeteria. Parent involvement is critical to students and their educational experience. One of the most important ways parents can be directly involved is to fully participate in parent conferences. Commanders are working with the school to ensure their personnel have flexibility in their schedules to allow parents to attend conferences during the duty day. Those needing to arrange a special date or time for their conference are encouraged to contact their child's teacher to make alternate plans.

There are three key elements in successful conferencing: communicating effectively; being a good listener: and hearing both teacher and parental concerns.

Casey: 'Army growth should increase dwell time'

In the past year, about 300,000 Soldiers either re-enlisted or signed up in the Army or its two Reserve components, the general said.

"Retention continues to be through the roof," he said. "What you saw these Soldiers do here today, that happens all across the United States Army. I'm very pleased with our recruiting and retention."

Casey said the Army's growth should aid plans to boost so-called "dwell time" between downrange deployments. By the end of fiscal 2011, officials still want to follow up yearlong tours to Iraq and Afghanistan with 24 months back home for the active force and four years in the rear for Guard and Reserve troops.

On a helicopter tour, Casey received a progress report while reviewing the new housing construction and Base Realignment and Closure projects tied to the 2011 arrival of the Armor Center and School from Fort Knox, Ky.

"There are places that a year ago were just woods," he said. "It was very helpful for me to get past the PowerPoint slides and actually see the buildings growing out of the forest."

Casey said the Infantry-Armor merger fits into the Army doctrine that's been rewritten in the eight years since Sept. 11. Leaders want formations to "simultaneously apply offense, defense and stability" concepts, he said.

"We call that full-spectrum operations (and) all Army maneuver formations will operate like that," the general said. "And we have to do that across the spectrum, from conventional war all the way to peacetime operations. This will help us come together and it will be much better, because all of our maneuver forces are going to maneuver similarly, particularly in the kinds of operations that we're conducting in Iraq and Afghanistan."

During a visit with basic trainees earlier at an urban operations facility, Casey mingled with new Soldiers from C Company, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment.

"You can't look these young men in the eye and not feel proud about our country," he said.

During Casey's stop at the $100 million National Infantry Museum and Soldier Center at Patriot Park, he got a look at "The Last 100 Yards," the museum's signature exhibit — which depicts lifelike scenes from eight wars.

"This is probably the most moving museum I've been in than any time in the last five years," he said. "It's a wonderful tribute to the Infantry."

As Rangers who served in World War II plan a reunion in Columbus this weekend, Casey said he's still stirred by the interaction of young and old Soldiers alike.

"We stand on the shoulders of our predecessors," he said. "What you see is, we're such a lucky country because generation after generation of American men and women believe so much in the values and ideals this country stands for that they've been willing to die for it, and that's what the Army is all about."

Competitors: Sharpen skills

organizers said.

"Every one of these training events can be related to something in combat," said SFC Robert Roof, NCOIC of the U.S. Army Sniper School. "They face moving targets, unknown distances, a defensive shoot, moving at night, communicating on target in the dialogue shoot. If they don't have communication between the two, they're never going to hit their target."

Factors such as elevation and wind must be accounted for as snipers take aim at targets the size of a playing card from up 300 yards out in the "Dialogue Shoot."

"The spotter is telling the sniper what data to put on his scope," said MSG Mike Snyder, OIC of the Sniper School. "The sniper pulls the trigger, but the spotter is doing pretty much everything else. They have to work well together to score any points or hit their targets."

In the "Shootout" and "Know Your Limits" events, competitors can score more points if they hit a 19.5-inch mark from 1,000 meters.

SGT Nicholas Irving and SPC Ryan Flager from 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment, just returned from separate deployments to Afghanistan and Iraq, respectively. They had three days to prepare for their first appearance in the competition.

"You have to be on your 'A' game," Flager said. "As soon as you screw up, the other team may be 50 points ahead.

"It's a job not everybody can do. You do a lot more math than you ever thought you'd do. There's a lot more thinking involved … We love this stuff, and this takes it to the next level."

Irving, who's made two deployments as a sniper, said shooters can't always see the targets and that's why spotters are so crucial. The competition will improve his precision, he said.

"Overseas, they rely on you to make the key shots," he said. "You can see more than anybody else."

The event also allows snipers to learn from each other and share different ideas.

"I was here two years ago and it's very difficult, very technical shooting," said Sgt. Uel Fisher of the Irish Defence Forces. "By coming here, we're picking up tips on procedures currently used in Iraq and Afghanistan."

His partner, Sgt. Tommy Campbell, agreed.

"It offers a way for us to train up our own snipers, while also learning the lessons for deploying overseas," he said.

SSGs Brandon House and Jeffrey Haskin of the Arkansas National Guard, both instructors at the Army National Guard Sniper School in Little Rock, were among several first-time competitors.

"Being in the schoolhouse, you don't get to train as much … The events are not difficult. It's just a matter of slowing down and knocking off the rust," Haskin said.

And staying on the same page, House said: "It takes good game planning. You've got to be able to talk to each other if you want to be successful here."

MCOE: Unifies Infantry, Armor

Separately, they are formidable. Together, they will make a maneuver force unlike anything this world has ever seen."

The U.S. Army Infantry Center was formally shut down Thursday and its flag cased as Ferriter's deputy, COL Bryan Owens, supplanted him as the Infantry School commandant.

MG James Milano retains his title as commanding general of the U.S. Army Armor Center and Fort Knox, Ky. He presented the Armor School flag to COL Mike Wadsworth on behalf of COL David Teeples, the school's new commandant.

Fort Knox has been Armor's home since 1940. It'll be another 18 months before the Armor School's final elements pull out for Fort Benning.

"Do we have regrets leaving Fort Knox after seven decades? Absolutely," Milano said. "But we have orders and we're moving out with our heads held high … There's a ton of work to do, but we look forward to the challenges."

The MCOE transformation began in 2005 after the Base Realignment and Closure committee's decision to relocate the Armor Center and School from Fort Knox to Fort Benning. Under the reorganization, all Infantry and Armor second lieutenants, captains and noncommissioned officers will train at Fort Benning — along with 52 percent of all new Soldiers.

Ferriter said the Infantry and Armor relationship is "long and colorful" as the two have collaborated for decades. Now, they're aiming to reshape the Army by creating a more agile, adaptive, lethal and leaner force.

"Experience tells us we win wars when we adopt a partnership and a policy of coherent operations," he said. "Transforming Fort Benning to the (MCOE) postures our Army for success. A successful Army bodes well for freedom at home and around the world. Together, we will focus on our number one priority — training great American Soldiers. In that respect, it will be business as usual at Fort Benning."

Although Armor has consolidated with the Infantry Center and School, both branches will maintain their own identities.

Milano said Thursday's ceremony was a "critical event" in Army history that transcends Cavalry and Infantry lines.

"It's bigger than either of the individual branches, and what we do from this day forward will have far-reaching effects on the United States Army," he said.

Fourteen Soldiers and 29 civilians are assigned to the MCOE but those figures will climb to 450 and 1,200, respectively, in the next two years.

"You get a sense that around the Army, folks have not yet grasped how profound, or important, this is," said GEN Martin E. Dempsey, the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command's commanding general. "Physically, we can move flags around like we did today, but it's the teamwork and leadership who will manage this transition and reach its potential."

Dempsey said the Infantry-Armor unification at Fort Benning "makes perfect sense" in a global climate ripe with complex threats and challenges facing the United States.

"We'll find places where we can integrate our activities and find the best outcomes for the nation," he said.

During the next four years, the post is scheduled to complete $3.5 billion in construction, much of it aimed at developing Harmony Church to accommodate Armor and Cavalry Soldiers and hardware in 2011. The area also will be home to an Armed Forces Reserve and Equipment Concentration Site, scheduled for construction next year, as about 1,200 of equipment are relocated from Fort Gillem, Ga., under BRAC.

Building 4, formerly known as Infantry Hall, is being renovated and expanded to house MCOE headquarters at a future date. Construction on an Armor museum is expected to begin in two years.

Dempsey called Ferriter and Milano the "linchpins" for successfully bringing the entire package together.

"I'm very confident that in the next 18 months … these two great enthusiasts will lead the way," he said.

Fort Benning supports more than 120,000 Soldiers, family members, civilians and retirees on a daily basis. That number is forecast to grow by approximately 30,000 before 2011 as the move leads to about 11,000 new jobs on the installation for Soldiers, civilians and contractors, according to projections.

The post's financial impact on the tricommunity already exceeds $2 billion annually, and the MCOE startup ultimately will bring 4,200 new families to the area, with the largest influx taking place in March 2011.

789th EOD: To gather evidence

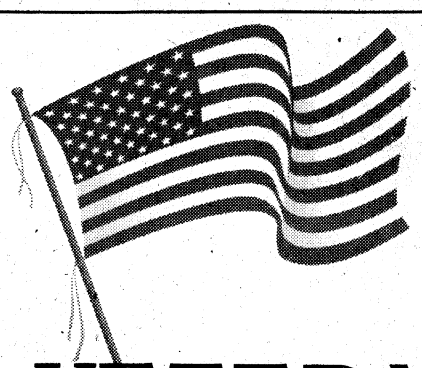
do a lot more than disabling explosives."

Part of the unit's counter-IED mission is to gather intelligence on trends and analysis of IED-laden areas to help locate the manufacturers, financiers and suppliers, he said.

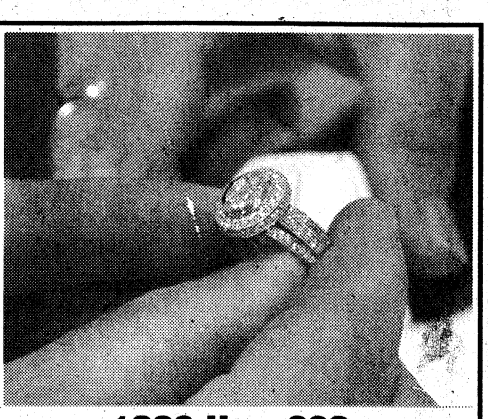
"That's how we save lives," he said. "We take that evidence and attack the IED network. It's been proven many times that when we take out a network IED emplacements drop from one a day to one a month."

The unit's last deployment to Iraq, from May 2007 to August 2008, was successful in disrupting IEDs and protecting troops.

"We disabled more than 900 bombs, IEDs and unexploded ordnance," said 1SG Adam Reyes, the unit's senior NCO. "Through the brigade's counter-insurgency operations, we were also able to identify key leaders in insurgency groups and take them down."



The brigade's greatest challenge may not be disabling bombs, but training Iraqis to do the same.



"This is not a typical mission," the first sergeant said. "We will be training Iraqi bomb disposal companies on how to handle devices and what could get them hurt. Language and culture barriers may be the hardest things for us to overcome initially."

McCullough said more than 60 percent of the unit is made up of combat veterans from the unit's previous deployment with 3rd HBCT.

The Soldiers are expected to return in October 2010.

UConn tragedy

Jasper Howard, starting cornerback for the UConn Huskies and also an expectant father, was stabbed to death early Sunday after an on-campus dance. The state medical examiner's office has ruled the death a homicide.

Brian Parker, a sophomore wide receiver, was also stabbed and released from the hospital.

Two of Howard's teammates tried to help him after the incident, and are so shaken up they will likely not play on Saturday at West Virginia.

LeBron speaks

LeBron James said his cancer scare was "nerve-racking" earlier this year while awaiting biopsy results for a growth found in the right side of his jaw.

The growth came back as benign, but James had surgery to have it removed this summer.

Zorn done calling plays

Washington Redskins coach Jim Zorn stepped down from play-calling duties after it was "strongly suggested" he do so Monday. The Redskins, who have a 2-4 record, have not scored a touchdown in two of their home games. Zorn said the move could hurt team chemistry.

Sherman Lewis, who was previously calling Bingo games, takes over calling offensive plays for Zorn. Lewis was an NFL assistant for 22 years.

JJ wins at Lowe's

Jimmie Johnson won his third of five Chase races at Lowe's Motor Speedway Saturday. Johnson has a commanding 90-point lead over Mark Martin, his Hendrick Motorsports teammate.

Johnson is well on his way to a NASCAR-record fourth straight championship.

This week's race is at Martinsville Speedway. Coverage begins at 1:30 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

Florida tops BCS standings

In the first BCS standings of the college football season, the Florida Gators garnered the top spot, followed by Alabama at second and Texas in third. Boise State is a respectable fourth, and Cincinnati is in the fifth position.

Poll points are used in the BCS formula, not rankings.

Birds of a feather?

The Oakland Raiders got a little help Sunday on special teams against the Philadelphia Eagles from a pigeon that decided to fly downfield with the Raiders on kickoff coverage.

Commentators covering the game noted the pigeon maintained his lane and kept outside containment, proving birds of a feather don't always flock together. I guess pigeons and Eagles don't get along so well. You can catch the video of the special teams bird at www.nfl.com by seaching the keyword "pigeon."

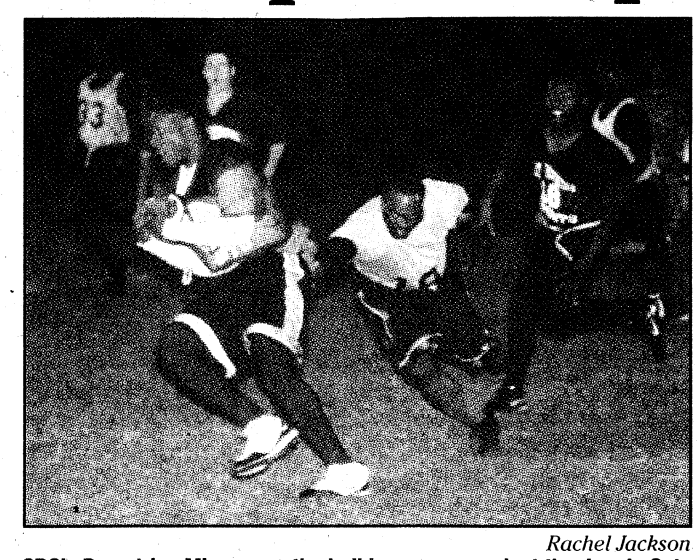
After playing three rounds in the winners bracket of the Commander's Cup flag football tournament, CRC fell to the losers bracket losing to the Jungle Cats 4-0 — but it wouldn't be the last time CRC would see the Jungle Cats.

After defeating the Goonz of 598th Maintenance Company in the losers bracket semifinals Tuesday, CRC faced a familiar foe in the championship — the Jungle Cats of 11th Engineer Battalion.

CRC was crowned as the best team in intramural flag football after winning two games against the Jungle Cats Tuesday in the double-elimination tournament at Essebagger Field.



"I have been waiting to get this trophy all season," said CRC's Jarrid Robertson. "We were a little tired after playing 598th and then playing two straight games, but we pulled together and made it happen."

In the first game, the defense prevailed and both teams remained scoreless at the half. In the final 1:50 of the game, CRC quarterback Luke Page threw a 35-yard touchdown pass to Robertson to clinch the first game, 6-0.

The second championship game mirrored the first game, with neither team scoring in the first half. Late in the second half, Page threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to Michael Fanning for the score and a 6-0 win.

The Carver High School Tigers defeated Region 2-AAA rival Shaw High School Raiders 41-0 in the Tigers' homecoming game Friday at A.J. McClung Memorial Stadium.

Isaiah Crowell scored on the Tigers' first possession and added another touchdown in the first quarter. The Tigers led 13-0 at the half.

Carver's Jabriel Decker added to the lead with a safety and with 11:23 remaining in the fourth quarter, Devin Burns scored on a 20-yard touchdown run. Kris Carson, Byron Key and Burns all added touchdowns in the final 10 minutes of the game to complete the Tigers 41-0 rout.

"The team did what they were supposed to do," Tigers coach Dell McGee said. "They played hard and cut down on some turnovers. They dominated the game. I thought we did a really good job defensively and the offense did a good job, but we were a little sloppy in the first half."

In between games, Minor said he talked to the team about staying focused and keeping the intensity up.

"We knew it was going to be a defensive battle," Minor said. "The 11th Engineer Battalion is the only team we lost to all season. We worked on containing them and kept the clock running. There was so much good competition this season so it feels good to come out on top."

"Both defenses were strong but ours was a little bit better than theirs," Robertson said.

More than 175 runners laced up their sneakers to participate in the annual Oktoberfest 10K Saturday, including the Mittenwald Yodelers, Josef Schandel and Christoph Kriner, who came from the Bavarian alpine village to Uchee Creek to perform folksongs in the fest tent. This is the first time the Bavarians performed at the Oktoberfest, which celebrated its sixth year at Uchee Creek.

2LT Derek Taylor, a student in the Basic Officer Leader Course II, took first place in the men's division Saturday at the 10K Cross-Country Challenge at Oktoberfest. More than 150 runners preregistered for the race that took people on a 6.2-mile course through the woods at Uchee Creek. Race officials told the runners to be on the lookout for deer, snakes and Fred Woods, a fixture in Fort Benning sports for the last gazillion years.

Jessica Ridley, a senior at Columbus High School and a member of the cross-country team, takes first place in the women's division of the Oktoberfest 10K. This is the third year she's run the event with her father, LTC Mark Ridley, professor of military science at Columbus State University.

focused on building endurance."

This is Kirby's seventh year running in the Army Ten-Miler and second year running for WTC. Kirby came in second place on the team with 1:07.14.

"I have ran faster in previous years, but I am pretty happy with my time," he said.

Kirby said the Army Ten-Miler is one of the biggest races of the year. A total of 30,000 runners participated in the event.

"There was some tough competition and people from all over the world and every branch of service was there," he said.

WTC's 1LT Ryan Pearse competed in his first Ten-Miler, but he made the most of it, taking first place on his team with 60:00.19.

"I set a goal of 62 minutes. It was a time I knew I could run," he said. "I told myself if I had a good day I could make 60 minutes and if I had a bad day I could run it in 62 minutes. I was hitting six-minute miles all the way through and I was happy with that. I'm not too happy about the 22 seconds though."

Pearse said the course was flat for the most part, except for the first and last two miles. He said the first and last two miles of the course were the most challenging because they were hilly and there were no fans at that point in the race cheering runners on.

"I took it one mile at a time," he said. "And before I knew it, I was at eight miles and I thought I might as well gut it out. That's when your legs start to fatigue and your side aches. The guys next to you are passing you and you pass them and you are all just kind of struggling because you know the finish line isn't far away. Before I knew it … I was done."

Pearse said he was surprised his team placed first.

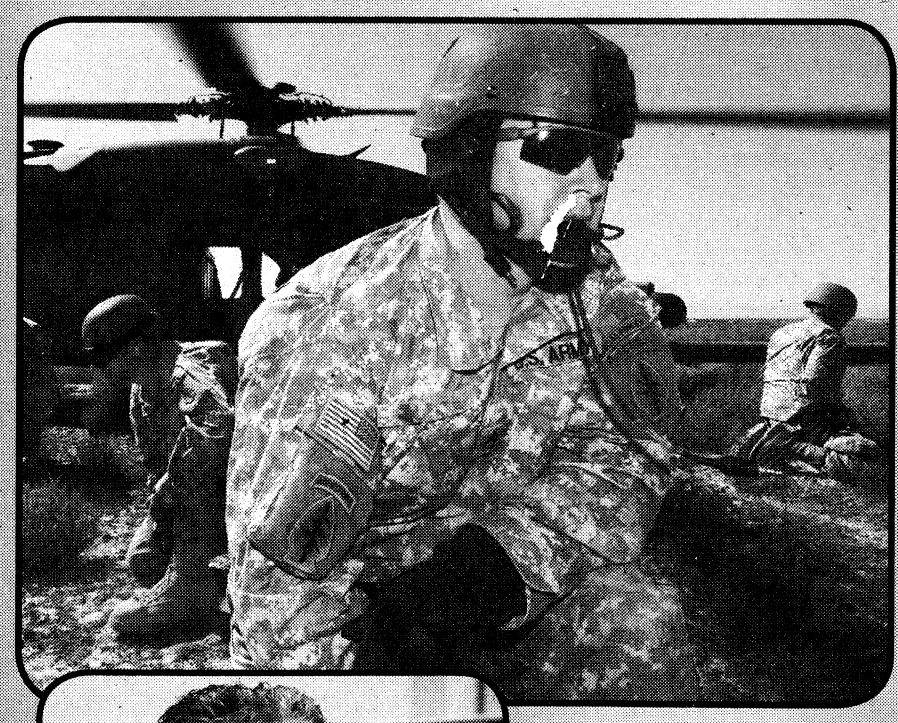
"When I found out we took first place in the team win, I said 'we won?'" he said.

Pearse said after talking to the National Guard Bureau team the day before, the team and their coach told him their times, Pearse was pretty sure the National Guard Bureau would place first.

"Even though I thought they would get first, I told myself I would run as fast as I could," he said.

SFC Scott Redovian said the scenery and camaraderie of the Ten-Miler added to the competition experience.

"Everyone is competing against each other but they all want to see everyone cross the finish line and do well," he said.



Redovian said the win was a long time coming.

"Our goal this year was to get first place," he said. "Hopefully, we can defend the title next year and get another trophy."

Lady Panthers title hopes end with loss

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

The quest for a state AA/A volleyball title ended Saturday in Cusseta, Ga., for the Chattahoochee County High School Lady Panthers (Area 1-AA/A) after losing three straight sets to North Cobb Christian School (Area 5-AA/A) in the Georgia High School Association's state tournament.

As the No. 1 seed from Area 1, the Lady Panthers entered the best three-out-of-five set match against the Area 5 No. 4 seed Lady Eagles with the home-court advantage, and although the Lady Panthers kept it close, the Lady Eagles advanced to the next round with 25-23, 25-20 and 25-20 victories.

In set one, the Lady Eagles and Lady Panthers exchanged points early with neither team gaining more than a two-point lead. Midway through the game the Lady Eagles took a 19-13 lead, but the Lady Panthers battled back to get to within one point at 24-23 before the Lady Eagles put the game away, 25-23.

The Lady Panthers jumped out to a quick lead in set two but the Lady Eagles came back to tie the score at 4-4 before running off five consecutive points to lead 9-4. The Lady Panthers trailed the rest of the game ultimately losing, 25-20.

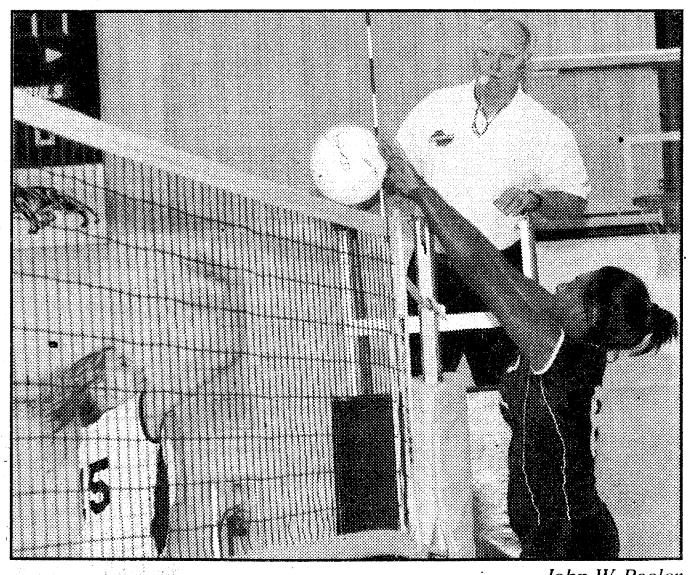
In the third and deciding set, the Lady Panthers led during the early going but with the game tied 7-7, the Lady Eagles scored four consecutive points to lead 11-7 and led the remainder of the set winning, 25-20.

Although the Lady Panthers exited after the first round of the playoffs, head coach Dorothea Bolen said she couldn't be more proud of the way the team played.

"We played a team that had some pretty good talent," she said. "But, we hung with them all three games. In our area we just don't get to play teams that hit like they do."

Bolen said one of the keys to the outcome of the game was the Lady Eagles ability to substitute players and keep the team fresh.

"We only have six players and one on the bench and that's it," she said. "They have several subs and I play my same girls all three games and they get tired."



Assistant coach Beverly Riley said that while the loss was tough, she looks forward to next year.

"We could have played better, and just didn't move our feet well," she said. "It was tough, but we just have to take it and move on."

Riley said the team will lose four seniors from this year's team and will have two players returning next year.

With the loss, the Lady Panthers concluded their season as the Area 1-AA/A champions with a 22-2 overall record and 15-1 in Area 1. The Lady Eagles advanced to the second round of the GHSA state tournament where they lost to Holy Innocents 25-15, 25-13 and 25-14 and finishing the season 19-22 overall and 5-5 in Area 5-AA/A.

Akeyvya Jones led the Lady Panthers in scoring with eight points served followed by Jennifer Murray with six points. Noelani Conley was the leader in kills with seven followed by KaMara Riley with six. Jones, Riley and Marsheda each recorded a service ace.

Benning Heat defeats Columbus Kingdom Ballers

Rachel Jackson

Norman King of Benning Heat looks for someone to throw the ball to as the Kingdom Ballers' Willie Hayes defends Saturday at A.J. McClung YMCA in Columbus. Benning Heat won 40-33. It was their first game of the season. Next, Fort Benning Heat will take on the Fort Benning All Stars at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

Fort Benning Heat began the Old School Basketball League season with a 40-33 win Saturday against the Columbus Kingdom Ballers at the A.J. McClung YMCA in Columbus.

The Heat took an early lead with a 3-pointer and a Sam Reynolds free throw.

Fort Benning maintained the lead until Columbus took the lead late in the first half. But Fort Benning took the lead to end the half, 23-16.

The Heat kept up a steady scoring rhythm in the second half while Columbus didn't sink a basket until 5:10 into the half with Charles Butler and Willie Haynes scoring. With 4:44 remaining in the game, Columbus closed the gap to 36-30, but Fort Benning tacked on four more points for the win.

"At halftime, we knew we played with intensity in the first half and we wanted to keep it going in the second half," said Fort Benning coach Clinton Harrell, 39. "It got pretty close toward the end. We played like it was the first game of the season. We have a few things to work on."

Fort Benning point guard Norman King, 40, said his team played well for the first game of the season.

"We had less turnovers (than I thought we would). Once we pressed the ball, we extended our lead a little further and went from there," he said.

Team captain Tim Elder, 43, said the competition will be tough this year for the Heat.

"We started the game slow but picked it up," he said. "We have new players on our team this year, but it'll be a good season."

Fort Benning Heat take on the Fort Benning All Stars at 11 a.m. Saturday while the Kingdom Ballers play the 76ers of Phenix City at 1 p.m. Saturday. Both games are at A.J. McClung YMCA.

the senior quarterback. "Everyone was out there working as a team and encouraging each other."

Carver defensive end Corey Crawford said although the team struggled in the first half, the team picked it up and dominated the game.

"We had good play on the front line, the quarterback did his thing and the defense came together," Crawford said.

The Tigers are 6-1, with the lone loss coming at the hands of Northside High School of Warner Robins, Ga. The Tigers take on the Kendrick High School Cherokees (2-AAA) at 7:30 p.m. today at A.J. McClung Memorial Stadium while the Raiders play Troup County High School Tigers at 7 p.m. today at Kinnett Stadium.

MG Michael Ferriter, Fort Benning commanding general, taps the spigot into the Oktoberfest keg while German LNO SGM Bernd Rabenstein and Al Gelineau, director of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, watch. This is the sixth year of the Oktoberfest at Uchee Creek and each year more Bavarian details are added, said Jim Shoemaker, with DFMWR's Community Recreation Division.

Saskia Emmons, a native of Darmstadt, Germany, never went to the Oktoberfest in the Bavarian capital of Munich, but Friday was her third trip to the annual Oktoberfest at Uchee Creek.

"It was always too crowded, too full of people," is how she described the German festival that attracts millions of tourists each year. But her husband, SSG Adam Emmons, with 4th Ranger Training Battalion, said they enjoyed the country's smaller fests and the hospitality of the villagers — the atmosphere that Fort Benning's festival captures, Saskia said.

The couple sat at one of the picnic tables outside the fest tent with their two dogs, Bonnie, a German shepherd, great Dane mix, and Budroe, a black Lab. At the next table over, Bill Player, with the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, and his wife, Jennie, sat with their 10-week-old dachshund puppy. They come every year, Jennie said. This is the sixth year the Oktoberfest has been at Uchee Creek.

Community commits to House of Heroes repairs

"It's just the right thing for us to do to pay tribute to them and to thank them for their sacrifice."
— Susan Gerkin

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Because of her husband's 40 years of service, Zita Robbins is used to giving, but Saturday it was her turn to receive.

Robbins' Fort Mitchell, Ala., home was one of 42 House of Heroes projects for the year. The local nonprofit organization repairs and makes home improvements for military and public safety veterans and their spouses who can't do the work themselves.

A team of about 15 volunteers landscaped Robbins' yard and painted two interior rooms.

"They did a good job," said Robbins, whose husband, Elmer, served in the military and the civil service before his death in 2000. "I really appreciate it. They did a lot of work. It doesn't even look the same. They were wonderful."

The 70-year-old, like all HOH recipients, was given a flag flown above the Capitol when the work was finished, a presentation she said she will always cherish.

"It was very emotional," Robbins said. "It brings back a lot of memories. I was crying, and (the volunteers) were crying too."

HOH executive director Susan Gerkin said the flags serve as tangible recognition for veterans and their families, many of which have never been formally thanked.

"It's just the right thing for us to do to pay tribute to them and to thank them for their sacrifice," Gerkin said. "This honors not just the military member, but it honors the entire family."

This was the goal of Rev. Wayne Anthony when he founded the organization in 2000, Gerkin said. He wanted to make sure veterans received a personal and practical reward for their service.

Officer Candidate Emory Erickson, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, led the team of volunteers at Robbins' home. Erickson said the House of Heroes organization fits the Army's value of selfless service.

"We are grateful to be able to give back to the Robbins family for their service and sacrifice to the country," Erickson said.

Benning's Help the Hooch collects lots of trash

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

Refrigerators, couches and toilets are common items found inside houses, but a group of volunteers collected these items Monday in the grass bordering the Chattahoochee River during Fort Benning's annual Help the Hooch project.

Although the statewide event is in its 11th year on post, Environmental Management Division Program Manager Felix Seda said this year's event was most successful.

"This was the first year we've had this much participation," he said, estimating more than 300 volunteers at 15 sites throughout post.

A number of units allowed Soldiers to participate as a part of their workday. Among those were members of the 362nd Engineer Battalion; the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion; 1st Battalion, 330th Infantry Regiment; 4th Battalion, 330th Infantry Regt.; and the 209th, 988th and Directorate of Emergency Services military police. There were also representatives from the Cub Scouts, the Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation, and the conservation and recycling branches.

The volunteers piled the trash, which included car batteries, junk tires and a fire extinguisher, onto the back of several pick-up trucks. They even found a 32-inch TV and a Michael Myers mask.

Environmental Management Division Clean Water Act Technician Jesse Taylor said about 1,000 pounds of plastic bottles and 600 pounds of scrap metal was 198th Infantry Brigade Commander, COL Daniel Kessler, receives a signed game ball during Saturday's game. Kessler played linebacker for Army, 1979-83.

Ga Tech invites Army to homecoming game

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

ATLANTA — A handful of Fort Benning Soldiers got a bird's-eye view of Yellow Jacket fever Saturday evening at Bobby Dodd Stadium.

The group took part in an Army tailgate event and was recognized on the field during halftime homecoming activities while catching No. 19 Georgia Tech's 28-23 upset of fourth-ranked Virginia Tech before a fired-up crowd of 54,405 and a prime-time national audience watching on ESPN2.

Fort Benning's contingent included SSG Robert Jones, a drill sergeant with 2nd Battalion, 58th Infantry Regiment, recently named the 198th Infantry Brigade NCO and Drill Sergeant of the Quarter; and SSG Rommel Hurtado, a 10-year Army veteran serving as an Airborne instructor and Jumpmaster with 1st Battalion (Airborne), 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment, who just won the Black Hat of the Year competition. CPTs Tom Herman and Jonas Bray, both students in the Maneuver Captains Career Course, also attended.

Georgia Tech athletic director Dan Radakovich presented a signed game ball to COL Daniel Kessler, the 198th Infantry Brigade commander, in the north end zone during the first official timeout.

"It makes me wish I was on the field again," said Kessler, who played linebacker for Army from 1979-83. "It feels awesome to be part of the Georgia Tech family. They're a great supporter of the Army."

Each year, the Atlanta Recruiting Battalion sponsors a Georgia Tech game to promote interest in the Army among its targeted 18-24 age group, said unit spokesman Jim Humphreys. Prior to kickoff, the Army set up interactive areas and displays outside the stadium to attract potential recruits.

The Fort Benning Soldiers joined Atlanta Recruiting Battalion enlistees and scholarship cadets from Georgia Tech's Army ROTC program for the halftime salute, which drew a loud ovation from the fans.

"It's a recruiting tool," Humphreys said. "If we can get Army recognition in front of 55,000 people in one fell swoop, that's a great thing for us."

Community CALENDAR

ON POST

FAITH MIDDLE SCHOOL HOLDING PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCES

Faith Middle School is having parent-teacher conferences today. Parents may report to the school between 7:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. to pick up their children's first-quarter report cards and meet with teachers in the gym or cafeteria.

Parents should plan in advance to cover important topics and keep the conference focused.

For more information, call 706-545-0310 or visit the school Web site at www.am.dodea.edu/benning/faith. To arrange an interview with principal Julio Gonzalez, call 706-545-7808.

NEWCOMERS ORIENTATION

Army Community Service has a Newcomer Orientation and Bus Tour from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. today for Soldiers, families and civilians new to Fort Benning.

The program is free and child care is provided. For more information or child-care reservations, call 706-545-0403.

'SHARE IN THE SCARES' AT 13TH CSSB HAUNTED HOUSE

The tricommunity is invited to "Share in the Scares" today and Saturday at a Haunted House presented by the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion. It will be open 5 to 10 p.m. nightly at Engineer Field behind the water tower at the intersection of Dixie Road and Way Avenue.

For more information, call 706-545-0275.

TELL ME A STORY

Fort Benning's Parent to Parent group will sponsor "Tell Me A Story" — featuring special guest reader George DelGobbo — at 2 p.m. Sunday on the lawn at Riverside.

The event requires an RSVP. For more information, call 706-405-9857 or send an e-mail to fortbenningp2p@yahoo.com.

STORYBOOK CHARACTER PARADE

Strong Beginnings Pre-K will stage a parade featuring area and school marching bands and storybook characters at 9:30 a.m. Monday at the Main Post Child Development Center.

Children will celebrate the importance of literacy skills, beginning with listening to foot-stomping cadence movements. Everyone will have the opportunity to dress as a character from one of their favorite children's literature books.

For more information, call 706-545-3732.

SCHOLASTIC BOOK FAIR

The Scholastic Book Fair is open to Benning Preschool and family childcare providers at the Main Post Child Development Center from 3 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Children will learn about numbers and operations by making purchases from the book fair. For more information, call 706-545-3732.

CHILD-CARE CERTIFICATION

Family childcare provider certification classes will run through Tuesday. For more information, call 706 545-4368.

TOWN HALL MEETING SCHEDULE

A series of town hall meetings are scheduled in housing areas across post. All start at 5:30 p.m. and take place on the following dates:

Wednesday at White Elementary School for East Main Post Village; Nov. 4 at McBride Elementary School for McGraw Village; Nov. 9 at Wilson Elementary School for Indianhead Village; Nov. 19 at McBride for Custer Village; Nov. 24 at McBride for Patton Village; and Dec. 2 at Stowers Elementary School for Davis/Bouton Village.

For more information, call Raul Brown at 706-545-0667.

CYSS COMMUNITY CONCERT

Child, Youth and School Services hosts a community concert for parents and children at 10 a.m. Friday on the Main Post Child Development Center lawn. Shawn Brown will present a show filled with energetic musical-movement activities.

For more information, call 706-545-3732.

HOWL-O-WEEN AT THE DOG PARK

Outdoor Recreation's Howl-o-Ween at the Dog Park party is slated for 4:30 to 7 p.m. Friday at the new larger facility behind Faith Middle School.

A costume parade and obstacle course is planned, while there will be food for owners and a competition with prizes.

For more information, call 706-545-7978.

HALLOWEEN GROUND RULES

Residents will celebrate Halloween with "trick or treating" for children ages 13 and younger from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Trick or treaters" should observe all basic safety precautions to include wearing reflective, fire-resistant costumes that are short enough to prevent tripping, using makeup instead of masks that may restrict vision, carrying a flashlight and exercising caution when crossing streets. Post residents are encouraged to limit "trick or treating" to the housing area in which they live.

Pet owners should confine their pets to prevent them from being a nuisance.

SIXTH ANNUAL 'MONSTER SALE'

The Fort Benning commissary will have its sixth annual "Monster Sale" from 8 to 11 p.m. Oct. 31.

"Humans" can join the fun and receive $10 off their grocery bill by being one of the first 50 customers to arrive in costume — but masks do not count. The store closes at 6 p.m. to prepare for the sale, which includes various items at 30 to 80 percent off retail prices. Most items will be sold in bulk or cases, so eligible families are encouraged to shop together to enable splitting after purchase.

Available products include Halloween candy, cereal, fruit drinks, juices, soda, canned goods, snacks; baby needs, including diapers; paper, household and frozen products; meat, produce and water.

DISABILITY EMPLOYMENT AWARENESS MONTH

October is Disability Employment Awareness Month and Sayers Memorial Library has a display containing books, Exceptional Family Member Program resource materials and guides related to various disabilities.

Soldiers and family members may visit Army Community Service's EFMP office in Building 2624 at Soldiers' Plaza for resource magazines, directories and giveaways.

Family members enrolled in EFMP who meet specific medical or educational criteria may qualify for respite care. For more information, call 706-545-5521.

TROOPS TO TEACHERS PROGRAM

Bill Kirkland, manager of the Georgia Troops to Teachers Program, will conduct a 90-minute "Transition to Teaching" seminar at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 3 in Module C's Classroom 7. The Module C trailer is closest to the running track on the corner of Eckel and Chesney streets.

Veterans who qualify for the program are eligible to receive a stipend of up to $5,000 to pay for teacher certification and a one-time bonus up to $10,000 once they start teaching.

Call 706-545-3299 for more information. For information on the Georgia Troops to Teachers or Georgia Spouses to Teachers programs, call 800-745-0709 or visit www.tttga.net.

PATIENT EDUCATION CLASSES

The Department of Family Medicine offers group visits to all Tricare beneficiaries. The voluntary, interactive sessions are set up to enlist and validate patients as their own caregivers and address concerns.

All group visits are held at Martin Army Community Hospital in the Department of Family Medicine's Connelly Conference Room. Future meeting topics include:

"Tobacco Cessation" from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Nov. 3 and Dec. 1. The same sessions are scheduled for 3 to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 17, Dec. 15 and Jan. 12.

"Hypertension Education," a discussion about high blood pressure led by a family physician, clinical pharmacist and dietician, takes place 9 to 11 a.m. Nov. 5 and Dec. 3. Call 706-544-4853 for more information.

"End of Life Care and Advanced Directives," 2 to 4 p.m. Nov. 24; "Fall Prevention As We Age," 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 8; "Herbal Supplements: Helpful and Harmful," 2 to 4 p.m. Feb. 16; and "Treatment of Osteoarthritis," 2 to 4 p.m. March 2.

Appointments are not required.

TAPS SURVIVOR SEMINAR AND GOOD GRIEF CAMP

The Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors will be at Fort Benning Nov. 13-14 to provide its free "Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp."

The conferences offer information, resources and personal contact with fellow survivors. Workshops are designed to help survivors heal and cope with life after loss.

The TAPS Good Grief Camp for children and teens provides a safe, supportive atmosphere to conduct activities and opportunities to learn coping skills, establish and identify support systems, and create awareness that they are not alone in the grief of a loved one.

Register at www.taps.org/events. For more information, call Survivor Outreach Services at 706-545-7517 or visit www.benningmwr.com/acs-sos.php.

WIC PROGRAM CHANGES

Participants in Fort Benning's Women, Infants and Children supplemental nutrition program can choose from a wider variety of healthy foods such as fresh fruit and vegetables, whole-grain rice, cereal, tortillas, bread, soy, and lactose-free milk and tofu. Parents can select either skim, 1 percent or 2 percent milk for children age 2 or older.

WIC also has increased healthy food choices for mothers who choose to breastfeed only.

For those receiving WIC services at Fort Benning or local health departments, the new food packages will be phased in through December. Vendors will continue accepting old vouchers as the new vouchers are introduced.

The Fort Benning WIC office is in Building 2613 at Soldiers' Plaza. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 706-682-8455 to make an appointment or 800-789-5502 for more information.

CONVENIENT CARE CLINIC

Martin Army Community Hospital's Convenient Care Clinic is a health care option that provides easy access and more choices.

The clinic, open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, has specially trained nurse practitioners who provide a variety of care services, including prescriptions for appropriate medications. It's available to adults and children 2 weeks and older. Appointments are not necessary but sick-call hours (8 to 10 a.m.) are limited to military only.

For more information, call 706-544-4810.

RECOVERY SUPPORT GROUP

Martin Army Community Hospital offers two Alcoholics Anonymous meeting locations on post.

On Mondays, AA meetings are held in the basement chapel of MACH. Each Thursday and Saturday, the group meets in the basement of Miller Hall, Building 241, on Baltzell Avenue. All meetings are at 7 p.m.

For more information, call 706-545-1138.

CVCC'S CAREER ADVANCEMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS

Chattahoochee Valley Community College offers courses for the Military Spouse Program, including diplomas and degrees in management, health care, business, accounting, homeland security, fire science and more.

The college also offers two free courses, Preparation for GED and English as a Second Language.

FREE SEWING CLASSES

Jennifer Herrington, better known as The Costume Mistress, will offer free sewing lessons to military spouses for a second year.

The classes, set to begin Nov. 3, consist of a holiday stocking made from ACUs and Christmas fabric, one to keep and another to share in celebration of family traditions.

The sessions are scheduled for 6:30 to 8 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday and will last for six weeks. Stocking pattern is provided and attendees will be taken for a fabric shopping trip. Basic sewing techniques will be taught, along with quilt piecing and some applique work.

Limited space is available on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information, call 706-536-2398, send an e-mail to thecostumemistress@gmail.com or visit www.thecostumemistress.com.

VETERANS APPRECIATION WEEK

Veterans organizations in the tricommunity have organized a week of activities Nov. 8-14 to honor veterans from all wars and every service branch.

The veterans will be honored at local churches and also visit area schools and retirement homes. Blind Veterans Emphasis Day is Nov. 13, while the week gets capped by a Nov. 14 Veterans Day Parade in Columbus and Air Force flyover.

For more information, call Sam Nelson at 706-568-4592 or Jerry "Pop" Barnes at 706-442-0249.

WEDDINGS FOR WARRIORS

The Savannah Wedding Tourism Council is offering a free program called "Weddings for Warriors" on Veterans Day.

The project will allow military personnel from all branches to get married for free in Savannah on Nov. 11 as a token of appreciation for their service. Guard and Reserve members also are eligible.

"Weddings for Warriors" organizers said a mass ceremony is not the intent. Instead, they want to provide each couple with a private setting to briefly exchange vows.

For more information, call Becky Byous at 912-656-6541 or visit www.weddingsforwarriors.com.

Dexter Elementary introduces Reading Rangers

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Ranger Read launched this week with one mission: To inject a touch of the Ranger mentality into Herbert J. Dexter Elementary School's readers.

"Rangers go farther and faster than anybody else," said Chaplain (CPT) Daniel Hardin, chaplain for the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 197th Infantry Brigade. "We want these kids to go farther and faster than any other student."

The Ranger Read program was created to support Dexter's School Improvement Initiative to improve reading comprehension schoolwide. The reading program is designed to motivate students in the Read 180 class by awarding pace count beads based upon the number of books read and comprehension tests passed, Hardin said.

The beads will be awarded monthly by Ranger-qualified Soldiers as part of the unit's Partners in Education program.

Read 180 is a 90-minute, customized class for readers in grades three through five. The class, which has 11 students, allows the students to learn on their level, at their pace, said Kathryn Van Horn, the school's Read 180 teacher.

The students read books that have been assigned a lexile based on difficulty — for example The Magnificent Mummy Maker by Elvira Woodrouf book rates a lexile in the 800s and No Boys Allowed! by Christine Taylor-Butler rates a lexile of 390.

In the past, when students read a book and tested their comprehension, they got a smiley face on a progress chart. Now, thanks to corporate sponsor Elbit Systems of America and Dexter's Parent Teacher Organization, the Ranger Read program beefed up the incentives, Hardin said.

In addition to pace count beads, two iPod systems will be awarded to the top performers in two categories at the end of the year — distance and speed.

For the distance category, the student who reads the most books and passes the tests will win an iPod Nano. For the speed category, the student who reads the most books and passes the tests in a month's time will win an iPod Shuffle. The runner-up and third-place winner in each category take home iTunes gift certificates.

Dr. Matthew Kralevich, principal of Dexter, said he hopes both the Read 180 and Ranger Read programs will have a lasting effect on the students.

"Reading is the foundation of all of education," Kralevich said. "By improving their reading skills, it will help them improve in science, social studies and even mathematics."

The chaplain said the bar has been set high for the students.

"Their goal for the year is to read 20 books," Hardin said. "But we've upped the ante on that goal to 50 because Rangers don't just do the standard, they exceed it."

Director to recommend changes to DoD reading programs

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Dr. Shirley Miles, director of Department of Defense Education Activity schools, visited Fort Benning for information on reading programs available at the post's seven schools. The DoDEA's literacy task force is examining current reading programs for struggling readers in hopes of standardizing offerings DoDEA-wide.

"We want to find out what program's have been the most successful so we can share them," said Miles, who has oversight of all DoDEA schools worldwide. "So when students move to a new post, they have some consistency and most importantly, sustainability in their growth."

Miles visited Dexter Elementary School Friday to observe the school's Read 180 program, a 90-minute, differentiated class customized to meet the needs of each student.

"Read 180 is an exceptional program," she said. "If it's done the way it's meant to be done, the program has shown phenomenal growth in reading. And there is also a sustainability factor. You can be in a program and do very well, but once you graduate the program, sometimes we see some regression. However, we haven't seen that in Read 180. It's had very impressive results."

Read 180 is generally a two-year program of instruction with the goal of reading comprehension. Of the students who graduated the program in the last two years, 93 percent had significant yearly growth, many of whom reached reading proficiency, said Kathryn Van Horn, Read 180's teacher.

The class is divided into whole group discussion, computer time and small group instruction. Students use computer time to learn new spelling words, test vocabulary and reading comprehension. During small group instruction, students can read independently and get one-on-one teacher time to help each student improve, Van Horn said.

"We tracked fifth-graders who graduated the program and went on to attend Faith Middle School and found their reading comprehension continued to grow," Van Horn said. "That's the success for this program. The strategies they learned here about reading and comprehension continued with them."

Miles said not only raw data, but anecdotal feedback from teachers such as Van Horn will be used to determine which reading programs could become standardized.

"In order to know where we are going, we need to know where we've been," she said. "We need to look at the scores and see what the teachers have to say. Their daily observations can tell us more about how successful programs are."

The standardized reading program recommendations are due in December to the task force. Miles said DoD schools could begin to see changes by the next school year.

Fest: Celebrates culture

Sauerkraut Band provided the music for the Edelweiss Dancers.

During the official keg tapping ceremony, MG Michael Ferriter, post commanding general, spoke auf Deutsch, telling the crowd about living in Berlin when he was a child, and Mimi Woodson, a Columbus councilwoman, talked about serving in Germany when she was in the Army.

The Mittenwald Yodelers were new to this year's three-day Oktoberfest entertainment lineup. The Maneuver Center of Excellence Band played on Saturday, there were hayrides, face painting, a pumpkin patch and German food for sale.

Kylie McKinney, who went to the fest Saturday, said the fest was very cultural and something different to do as she fed her mastiff, Mogley, a turkey leg.

Hooch: Prevents pollution collected.

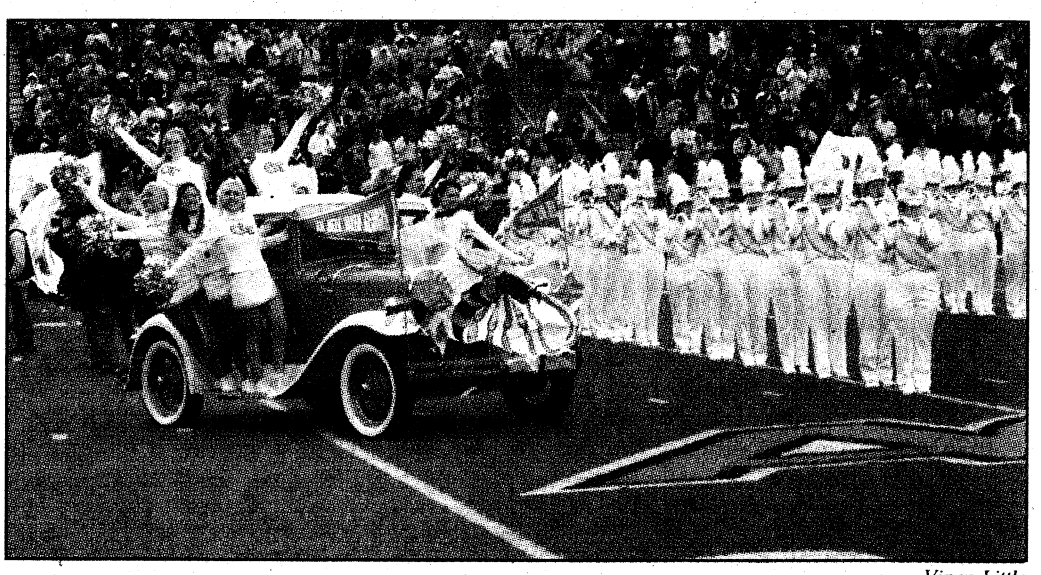
"One group found an entire trash can in the river," Taylor said. "Every year we pull out so much trash. The fact that we are pulling it out means less trash in our rivers and streams. We only have so much water to use, so we have to protect the water we do have."

Even though pollution directly affects our drinking water, Seda said people often dispose of their trash in these outdoor secluded areas because it's easy and they believe they are getting away with it. However, he said, their actions ultimately affect everyone in the long run.

"We have to be conscientious of how our own actions impact others," said Sara Forrest, volunteer and Environmental Compliance contractor. Her six-member team collected three truckloads of waste.



"The trash is just horrible," said 58-year-old volunteer Nancy Hoard, spouse of a retired Soldier who drove in from Cusseta, Ga.

"We have to leave it clean so that they can enjoy it," she said. "This is for our children and for the animals. I'm just honored to (have been) out here with these Soldiers. I consider it a privilege."

Taylor said this year's one-day event was a great success, but she emphasized the importance of making good decisions throughout the year.

"The main thing we try to pass on is that this is about pollution prevention," she said.

Help the Hooch is scheduled for October of each year. Anyone interested in finding out more can call Taylor at 706-545-0276 or Brittany Beadle at 706-545-9636.

Game: Gets fans on feet

Bray is a 2005 Air Force Academy graduate who transferred into the Army three years ago and plans to attend the Special Forces Qualification Course after completing the MCCC. He finished third in the middleweight division at last month's U.S. Army Combatives Championship on Fort Benning.

He said the Army tailgate and game was a good opportunity for Fort Benning to greet the public.

"I came out here to try to share some of my experiences (and) let them know I'm not that different from them," Bray said. "But when you wear the uniform out in public, you can't hide. People look at you a little different. It makes you think about the way you act and carry yourself."

Kessler, who was joined at the game by his wife, Kathy, and their two sons — Andrew, 14, and 12-year-old Ian, said college sports provide a great avenue to bring young Americans into the Army fold.

"It's really great when we can come together," he said. "Our Soldiers are warrior-athletes, and Georgia Tech football players are warriors in their own right. It's a great mix."

The victory was Georgia Tech's first over a top 5 team at home since 1962 — a span of 17 games — when the Yellow Jackets beat top-ranked Alabama.

HOH: Does unto others

from small jobs like clearing debris to large projects like adding vinyl to an entire house.

"Sometimes it's just little things that they can't do for themselves," Gerkin said of the veterans, who are often on fixed incomes. "It makes such a difference in the quality of life for them."

Among other projects, volunteers repair, clean, paint and install access ramps for families with physical limitations.

HOH averages about 40 houses each year, but the number of projects varies based on funding, Gerkin said.

Since its inception, more than 3,000 volunteers with varied backgrounds have contributed their time and resources.

This November, the organization will have completed 364 projects, Gerkin said. HOH will host an awards ceremony Nov. 8 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at Hardaway High School to kick off a week of Veterans Day activities and to recognize the sponsors, volunteers and veterans. There will be light refreshments, and the event is open to the public.

Book Review: The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society

Long titled book without any shortcomings

Tandi Cain-Morris
BAYONET CORRESPONDENT

I thoroughly enjoyed every page of The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society. In fact, there were so many things I loved and wanted to share that I begged my editor for a few more words. I mean, come on, the title alone takes up half of my allotment!

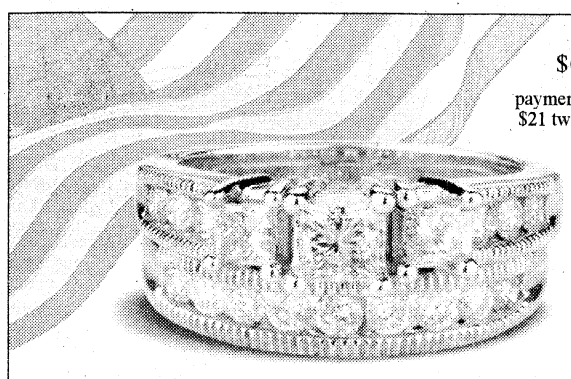
Some may find the book's style may take getting used to. It is comprised entirely of letters. One of my favorite books, A Woman of Independent Means by Elizabeth Forsythe Hailey, uses this style. Telling a story with letters makes it more intimate and more diverse because of the perspectives from the various letter writers.

Letters or not, The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society was fantastic and it hooked me within the first few pages.

And so does the narrator, Juliet, with a wicked sense of humor, which provides real laugh-out loud moments. (A rare thing for a book and a little embarrassing at the doctor's office.)

A book about writing a book, it reads like a book of proverbs with gems like: "Men are much more interesting in books than they are in real life." (Anyone who has read Twilight can attest to this fact.) "Reading good books ruins you for enjoying bad books," "I think you learn more when you are laughing at the same time," and "I never met a man half so true as a dog."

The story takes place in post-World War II London and later in Guernsey, which is an island in the British Channel Isles. Although fiction, the story within the book was based on a very real and little known part of history when the Germans occupied the Channel Islands. This book delivered a fresh perspective on World War II, quite different from works such as, The Diary of Anne Frank, Schindler's List and Night. It illuminated the German occupation and atrocities; but like a flashlight moving around a room it didn't dwell, keeping the tone of the book light but it didn't trivialize events — quite to the contrary.



I learned so much from reading this book — I love learning new things as an adult.

I never had heard of Guernsey or the Channel Isles, but this story inspired me to discover more and research its occupation.

The most important thing I learned is that not all Germans were Nazi's and many died trying to end Hitler's reign. I, watched the movie Valkyrie after I read this book and it, along with the book, shed a different light on Germans during this period of time.

It's interesting the Germans took better care of the islanders than Prime Minister Winston Churchill. When Churchill found out that the island's route for supplies (food, medicine, oil) had been cut off during the D-Day Invasion, it's reported he said, "Let them rot," and although he was referring to the Germans occupying the islands, he condemned the islanders to that same fate. Months later, when supplies finally arrived, German officers stood with their guns locked and loaded, and said that any German caught taking the supplies meant for the islanders would be shot, even though the Germans were starving as well. This is a beautiful demonstration of humanity and heroism, which the book delivers from the expected and the most unexpected characters.

To sum up by saying that this is a jewel of a book does not do it justice — it is a jewel-encrusted box full of jewels, and I think the intention of this book is best stated in the acknowledgements of one of the writers, "... the love of art — be it poetry, storytelling, painting, sculpture or music — enables people to transcend any barrier man has yet devised." Amen, and cheers to a good read.

Columbus State University students in the Phi Mu Sorority offer free back rubs for Soldiers last year during God Bless Fort Benning Day. Sorority members will make an appearance again this year at the new Boots on Broadway Saturday in uptown Columbus. They will offer massages and a kissing booth for military visiting Broadway for the free community event. CSU and several other community organizations will have booths set up on the 900 and 1000 blocks of Broadway to provide information to the public and freebies for Soldiers, veterans and families.

Boots on Broadway

Event offers chance for community to thank Soldiers, families, vets

THE BAYONET

Columbus wants to say thanks.

Community members will have the chance at Boots on Broadway from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday on Broadway.

"It's just an opportunity for us to say thank you," said Richard Bishop, president of UPtown Columbus and the Business Improvement District. "Fort Benning and the military do so much for this community, the country and the world … first and foremost, protecting us. They lay it on the line every day."

Designed as an annual event, the "Military Heritage Celebration" will feature activities for the whole family.

There'll be live music, a boxing ring, baseball throwing, karaoke, a kissing booth and Wii games, just to name a few, Bishop said.

Bishop said the outdoor event, to be held in the 900 and 1000 blocks of Broadway in uptown Columbus, will let the community show their appreciation for Soldiers, veterans and military families.

"It's military appreciation day," he said. "It's for the entire community, but we're really (encouraging) military and their families to come down."

Local businesses have donated several items for giveaways to service members, including a three-day stay in Panama City, Fla., a free wedding ceremony, several gift certificates and the choice of trips to Orlando, Fla., Nashville, Tenn., or St. Augustine, Fla.

Kids can enjoy free inflatables, face painting, clowns and crafts. Grab a bite to eat at one of the many restaurants along Broadway or stop in for some shopping at a local store, many which give military discounts. Everything should be open Saturday for the event, Bishop said.

Several organizations, including Columbus State University, PAWS and UPtown Columbus, will have exhibits on display where people can learn more about them and maybe pick up some freebies.

Musicians will play throughout the day in a variety of musical styles. The spotlight entertainer will be Scott Kirby, a guitarist similar in style to Jimmy Buffet, Bishop said.

If you want to sell a craft, food or other item, or if you want to provide an activity during the festival, visit www.bootsonbroadway.com and download an application.

For more information about Boots on Broadway, call Bishop at 706-596-0111.

Basic trainees from Sand Hill sing Ain't No Sunshine by Bill Withers at a karaoke booth during God Bless Fort Benning Day Nov. 22. Karaoke will be available this year at Boots on Broadway for Soldiers and civilians.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

Beloved children's book not children's movie

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

In 1963, Maurice Sendak wrote a book called Where The Wild Things Are. The original text is only 10 sentences with pictures of fantastical landscapes and bizarre creatures (originally horses but when Sendak's publisher said he couldn't draw, horses were changed.) The book has been adapted to several other mediums and subjected to endless analysis and interpretations. But, fundamentally, it's about the imagination of a lonely, frustrated boy and his journey.

Max has trouble relating to other people and doesn't have much in the way of friends. His sister is older and runs with an older crowd. His single mother is very busy and doesn't have much time for him. But Max has his imagination to keep him company. But as good as his imagination is, it doesn't ward off his sense of isolation. Max expresses this isolation and frustration through fits of temper and rage. One night, when his mother has a dinner date over and Max is feeling extra lonely and displeased with the meal, he stands on the table in a wolf costume and begins imperiously issuing orders. When his mother tries to get him off the table, he goes wild, snarling and biting, and then bolts from the house. He runs through the woods and finds a boat. Getting in, he sails forth and comes across an island, populated by the Wild Things. And through bluff, braggadocio and chutzpa, he's made king.

Thus, our adventure truly begins, in a land populated by carefree, yet mercurial, friendly, yet temperamental creatures that expect Max to give them purpose and give their home meaning.

Where The Wild Things Are is a difficult movie to review. The book is a short one, leaving much room for interpretation. The director, Spike Jonze (Being John Malkovic, Adaptation) decided to do much "filling in" of the work, going into implied layers of psychology and symbolism, seeking to explore why this minimalist book has had such resonance and has stayed with so many children after they have become adults. As a result, he has created a work that is very difficult to promote. The original was a children's book. But this film is definitely not a children's movie. Does it have material that is inappropriate for children, or that which parents may find objectionable? Uncomfortable, maybe, but not objectionable. No graphic violence, no sex, no profanity. But the behavior displayed, both from some of the humans and from the Wild Things, isn't always pleasant or doesn't always make sense, at least on the surface. Parents thinking they have brought their kids to just a muppet-tastic good time (creature effects provided by Jim Henson's Creature Shop) are in for a surprise. Kids will not get much of what's going on on the screen and may at times be frightened or bored.

Imaginative adults, on the other hand, are likely to love this movie, especially if they are familiar with the book. Many will relate to Max and the idea of being an imaginative, isolated child who has trouble relating to the "real world." This is a really good movie, but it's not for everyone.

OPENING THIS WEEK
ASTRO BOY

Set in futuristic Metro City, Astro Boy (Freddie Highmore) is a young robot with incredible powers — super strength, X-ray vision, unbelievable speed and the ability to fly. Powered by positive "blue" energy, Astro Boy was created by a brilliant scientist named Dr. Tenma (Nicolas Cage).

Embarking on a journey in search of acceptance, Astro Boy encounters many colorful characters. Through his adventures, he learns the joys and emotions of being human, and gains the strength to embrace his destiny. Ultimately learning his friends and family are in danger, Astro Boy marshals his awesome superpowers and returns to Metro City in a valiant effort to save everything he cares about and to understand what it means to be a hero.

Astro Boy is rated PG for action and peril, and language.

SAW VI

Special Agent Strahm is dead, and Detective Hoffman (Costas Mandylor) is the unchallenged successor to Jigsaw's legacy. However, when the FBI draws closer to Hoffman, he is forced to set a game into motion, and Jigsaw's grand scheme is finally understood.

Saw VI is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture and language.

CIRQUE DU FREAK: THE VAMPIRE'S ASSISTANT

Fourteen-year-old Darren (Chris Massoglia) is like most kids in the neighborhood. He gets decent grades and usually stays out of trouble. But when he and his buddy stumble upon a traveling freak show, things begin to change inside Darren. That's the exact moment when a vampire named Larten Crepsley (John C. Reilly) turns him into something, well, bloodthirsty.

Cirque Du Freak: The Vampire's Assistant is rated PG-13 for sequences of supernatural violence and action, images, thematic elements and language.

I HOPE THEY SERVE BEER IN HELL

A tireless and charismatic novelty seeker, Tucker (Matt Czurchy) tricks his buddy Dan (Geoff Stults) into lying to his fiancee, so they can go to a legendary strip club to celebrate Dan's last days of bachelorhood in proper style. Tucker drags their misanthropic friend Drew (Jesse Bradford) along for the ride, and before they know it Tucker's pursuit of a hilarious carnal interest lands Dan in serious trouble with the law and his future wife. The ensuing blowout leaves Tucker uninvited to the wedding and ankle deep in a mess of his own creation. If he wants back into the wedding and the lives of his best friends, he'll have to find a way to balance the demands of friendship with his own narcissism and selfishness.

I Hope They Serve Beer in Hell is rated R for nudity, strong sexual content including graphic dialogue throughout, language and some crude material.

MICHAEL JACKSON'S THIS IS IT

A rare glimpse into the final days of Michael Jackson, the documentary is compiled from an estimated 80 hours of rehearsal and behind-the-scenes footage of the legendary entertainer preparing for his 50 sold-out shows at London's O2 Arena that were scheduled to commence in July 2009 before his untimely death in June at age 50. Interviews with collaborators and close friends of the late performer are also featured.

Michael Jackson's This Is It is a documentary and is rated PG for some suggestive choreography and scary images.

NOW PLAYING
PARANORMAL ACTIVITY

After a young, middle class couple moves into what seems like a typical suburban "starter" tract house, they become increasingly disturbed by a presence that may or may not be demonic, but is certainly most active in the middle of the night. Especially when they sleep. Or try to.

Paranormal Activity is rated R for language.

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN

Clyde Shelton (Gerard Butler) is a family man whose wife and daughter are brutally murdered during a home invasion. When the killers are caught, Philadelphia prosecutor Nick Rice (Jamie Foxx) is assigned to the case. Nick is forced by his boss to offer one of the suspects a light sentence in exchange for testifying against his accomplice. Fast-forward 10 years. The man who got away with murder is found dead and Shelton admits his guilt. Then he issues a warning to Nick: Fix the flawed justice system that failed his family, or key players in the trial will die.

From his jail cell, Shelton orchestrates a string of spectacularly diabolical assassinations that can be neither predicted nor prevented, and only Nick can stop the killing.

He must outwit the sociopath in a harrowing contest of wills in which even the smallest misstep means death. With his own family now in Shelton's crosshairs, Nick finds himself in a desperate race against time facing a deadly adversary who seems always to be one step ahead.

Law Abiding Citizen is rated R for violence and torture, a rape scene and language.

THE STEPFATHER

Michael Harding (Penn Badgley) returns home from military school to find his mother (Sela Ward) happily in love and living with her new boyfriend, David (Dylan Walsh). As the two men get to know each other, Michael becomes suspicious of the man who is always there with a helpful hand. Is he really the man of her dreams or could David be hiding a dark side?

The Stepfather is rated PG-13 for violence, disturbing images, mature thematic material and brief sensuality.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Max, a rambunctious and sensitive boy feels misunderstood at home and escapes to where the Wild Things are. He lands on an island where he meets mysterious and strange creatures whose emotions are as wild and unpredictable as their actions. The Wild Things desperately long for a leader to guide them, just as Max longs for a kingdom to rule. When Max is crowned king, he promises to create a place where everyone will be happy. Max soon finds, though, that ruling his kingdom is not so easy and his relationships there prove to be more complicated than he originally thought.

Where the Wild Things Are is rated PG for mild thematic elements, some adventure action and brief language.

ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive. Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

CAPITALISM: A LOVE STORY

In Michael Moore's latest documentary, he wonders what America pays for its love of capitalism? Years ago, that love seemed so innocent. Today, however, the American dream is looking more like a nightmare as families pay the price with their jobs, their homes and their savings. Moore takes the viewers into the homes of ordinary people whose lives have been turned upside down; and he goes looking for explanations in Washington.

It is rated R.

WHIP IT

In Drew Barrymore's directorial debut Whip It, Texas teen Bliss (Ellen Page) is tired of being pushed into beauty pageants by her parents. She finds herself after joining a female roller derby team. Marcia Gay Harden plays Bliss' disapproving mother. Also in the movie are Jimmy Fallon, Zoe Bell, Kristen Wiig, Juliette Lewis, Daniel Stern and Alia Shawkat.

The movie is rated PG-13 for sexual content including language and drug material.

SURROGATES

People are living their lives remotely from the safety of their own homes via robotic surrogates — sexy, physically perfect mechanical representations of themselves. It's an ideal world where crime, pain, fear and consequences don't exist. When the first murder in years jolts this utopia, FBI agent Greer discovers a vast conspiracy behind the surrogate phenomenon and must abandon his own surrogate, risking his life to unravel the mystery.

The film stars Bruce Willis, Radha Mitchell, Rosamund Pike, Boris Kodjoe and James Francis Ginty. It is rated PG-13 for intense sequences of violence, disturbing images, language, sexuality and a drug-related scene.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF MEATBALLS

Inspired by the children's book, the film focuses on a town where food falls from the sky like rain. Bill Hader voices Flint Lockwood, a young inventor who dreams of creating something that will improve everyone's life. Anna Faris takes on the role of Sam Sparks, a weathergirl covering the phenomenon who hides her intelligence behind a perky exterior. Mr. T plays the by-the-rules town cop Earl Devereaux, and Tracy Morgan takes on the role of Earl's rule-breaking son, Cal. It's rated PG for brief mild language.

FAME

A reinvention of the original 1980 hit film, Fame follows a talented group of dancers, singers, actors, and artists over four years at the New York City High School of Performing Arts, a diverse, creative powerhouse where students from all walks of life are given a chance to live out their dreams and achieve real and lasting fame ... the kind that comes only from talent, dedication, and hard work. As each student strives for his or her moment in the spotlight, they'll discover who has the talent and discipline to succeed.

The film stars Kherington Payne, Anna Maria Perez de Tagle, Paul McGill, Asher Book and Kristy Flores. It is rated PG for thematic material including teen drinking, a sexual situation and language.

TYLER PERRY'S I CAN DO BAD ALL BY MYSELF

When Madea, America's favorite pistol-packing grandma, catches 16-year-old Jennifer and her two younger brothers looting her home, she delivers the young delinquents to the only relative they have, Aunt April. A heavy-drinking nightclub singer who lives off Raymond, her married boyfriend, April wants nothing to do with the kids. But her attitude changes when Sandino, a handsome Mexican immigrant looking for work, moves into April's basement room. Sandino challenges April to open her heart.

The flim stars Taraji P. Henson, Adam Rodriguez, Brian J. White, Hope Olaide Wilson and Mary J. Blige. It is rated PG-13 for material involving a sexual assault on a minor, violence, drug references and smoking.

H1N1 mist available

MACH PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Martin Army Community Hospital has the seasonal flu immunization available and the H1N1 mist for all eligible beneficiaries. The immunizations will be administered on a first-come, first-served basis.

The H1N1 vaccine is available for people at high risk of serious complications from infection with the virus. The H1N1 vaccine should be used in addition to the season flu vaccine and can be administered the same day.

The vaccines are available at MACH's eighth-floor Flu Clinic, from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. No referral is needed.

If an individual cannot obtain the vaccines at MACH, TRICARE will cover the seasonal flu shot, seasonal nasal spray and H1N1 vaccine for qualified beneficiaries when administered in a doctor's office or a network Minute Clinic. Immunizations obtained at pharmacies, grocery stores, and health departments are not covered by TRICARE.

The nasal spray vaccine is not covered for those 50 or older. Medicare covers flu vaccines for TFL beneficiaries. Standard and Extra TFL beneficiaries may obtain the flu vaccines with no cost share applied.

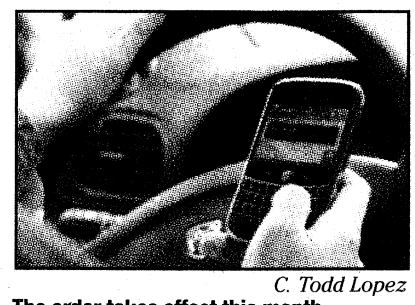
Executive order bans texting while driving

Jennifer Casteline
ARMY NEWS SERVICE



WASHINGTON — Texting took a back seat to safety this month with an executive order prohibiting text messaging while driving on military installations or driving anywhere in government vehicles.

Executive Order 13513, signed by President Obama Oct. 1, specifically bans federal employees from texting while driving government owned, leased or rented vehicles and while driving privately-owned vehicles on official government business. The policy also extends to federal contractors.

The order defines texting as "reading from or entering data into any handheld or other electronic devices," to include, "e-mailing, instant messaging, obtaining navigational information, or engaging in any other form of electronic data retrieval of electronic data communication."

"Despite the shocking accident reports and warnings, people still text while driving, said Mario Owens, safety officer for the Army's Installation Management Command.

He said a number of studies show that text messaging while driving is the "modern day top driving distraction" that causes auto accidents.

C. Todd Lopez
The order takes effect this month.

Driver distraction, which includes the use of electronic devices while driving, accounted for 16 percent of fatal crashes in 2008, according to the U.S. Transportation Department.

A recent study conducted by the Virginia Tech Transportation Institute reports that of all cell phone-related tasks, including talking, dialing, or reaching for the phone, texting while driving is the most dangerous. The study also states that for every 6 seconds of drive time, a driver sending or receiving a text message spends 4.6 of those seconds with their eyes off the road.

In 2007, Washington became the first state to ban texting while driving. Seventeen other states and the District of Columbia have followed suit.

Army Regulation 350-1 is being revised to give more Soldiers a chance to excel in Army training.

According to a Department of the Army memo released in October, Soldiers attending professional military education and functional training courses are shorter than eight weeks will no longer be administered a Army physical fitness test as a course requirement. Soldiers enrolled in courses longer than eight weeks who fail the APFT will graduate but their DA Form 1059 will state they've marginally achieved course standards and failed to meet APFT standards.

"Soldiers are coming to the schoolhouse straight out of theater who may or may not have had an opportunity to do good physical fitness training," said CSM Matthew Walker, commandant of the U.S Army Infantry School. "Guys just coming from the fight don't have the chance to get back in the shape they need to be in such a short period of time."

As a result, Walker said record physical fitness tests are no longer used as an evaluation tool in military courses less than eight weeks long.

SPC Richard Jones Jr.
SFC Scott Lund conducts accountability of Soldiers Oct. 12 before boarding a CH-47 Chinook helicopter in Logar province, Afghanistan. Lund is assigned to the 10th Mountain Division's Company A, Brigade Support Troops Battalion.

The APFT requirement will be waived for Soldiers returning from a combat deployment and reporting directly to a course within 30 or fewer training days.

Soldiers flagged for APFT failure or weight control will not be selected, scheduled or attend institutional training. Once Soldiers meet the standards, they will be considered eligible for military schools and training courses.

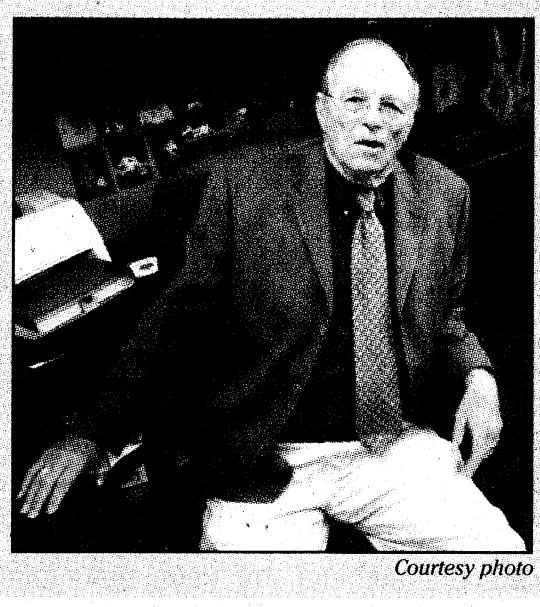
Bike trail may be added to Dixie Road project

Bridgett Siter
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The Dixie Road widening project has been pushed back to the spring in order for planners to rework the project to include a bicycle trail, said Jay Brown, project manager for Base Realignment and Closure.

Brown announced Tuesday at the monthly Community BRAC Update that the BRAC-funded project, now in the design phase, will likely include some sort of a bike trail or lane. Just what that will mean when the project is complete is unclear at this point, said Rick Clapp, a strategic planner with the Facility Plans Office.



The widening project includes the addition of two more lanes, a median, utility infrastructure, traffic lights and such. The final project, bike trail included, must be confined to a predetermined "polygon," as defined by the final Environmental Impact Study, which was completed earlier this year. Clapp said the polygon restrictions and the legal requirement to maintain a "setback" distance from the ranges and structures off Dixie Road "puts tight constraints" on the project. Those constraints might prohibit the creation of a single trail running the length of Dixie Road, about three and a half miles, from the Lindsay Creek Parkway intersection to Jecelin Road near Lawson Army Airfield.

"The designer will fit in as much as they can, but they just started the design phase this week, so we don't know how much that will be at this point," Clapp said.

A contract for the Dixie Road widening project, estimated to cost about $10 million, will be awarded by the end of March and completed by the end of September 2011. The idea for a bike trail along the heavily travelled road was first proposed by a Fort Benning resident at a town hall meeting, Clapp said.

Light and lethal: Father of 'Own the Night' retires

Doug Hughes, the deputy chief of the Electronics and Special Developments branch of the Soldier Requirements Division, retired Friday. Hughes is credited with contributing to combat development efforts for the Kevlar helmet and UH-60 helicopter. Hughes managed night vision and laser programs for the Army.

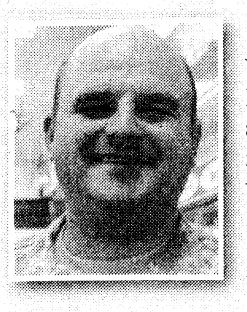
Doug Hughes wrote the requirement for the candle, or so the saying goes in the Electronics and Special Developments Branch of the Soldier Requirements Division, U.S Army Infantry Center.

"I got a candle as my retirement gift," said Hughes, who retired Friday. "That's the joke around here, that I've been here so long I wrote the requirement document for the candle."

Hughes, the deputy branch chief and a combat development specialist, has spent the past 18 years managing night vision and laser technology programs for the Army from his office at Fort Benning.



Father of the mantra, "Own the Night," Hughes was responsible for writing requirements to build lighter, better night vision equipment to help Soldiers see farther into the darkness and engage the enemy nearly as well as they could during the day. Hughes developed the original "Own the Night" master plan and small-arms integration book, which called for a number of Army objectives to introduce better computer and visual technology for weapons, said LTC Matthew England, chief of the ESD branch.

"There was a time in the Army, with the first generation of night vision equipment, where it was about as good as fighting at night without anything,"

Teachers develop future today

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

"OK Wesley, it's time to come to class."

I heard Mildred Skillern say those exact same words almost every day right after the bell rang during my junior and senior years at Baker High School.

I was notorious for hanging out in the stairwell between classes making out with my girlfriend. And, now I am in trouble with my mom since she reads The Bayonet. But don't worry mom, Mrs. Skillern pretty much kept me in line.

Having Mrs. Skillern as my English teacher in both my sophomore and junior years, we established a rapport, I guess. I can pretty much say she is the reason I have been as successful as I have as a writer because she pushed me to be the best I could be.

And then, there was Addie Cunningham — my ninth-grade science teacher. She had a way of making science a fun subject, but there was never a doubt who was in charge.

Both teachers encouraged me to do the best I could. I didn't quite understand it at the time, but they saw my potential and wanted to make sure I made the most out of it.

From both teachers, I learned a couple of things I use today at work and in my personal life — have fun and work or learn at the same time.

I was lucky to have good teachers beginning with my kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Kathleen Lavender, at Muscogee County Elementary School. Although she didn't do me any favors by telling my mother how high I scored on an I.Q. test, I know she had my best interest at heart. I may not have appreciated it at the time, but today I appreciate everything she, and all my other teachers tried to get across to me.

Teachers are often overworked and underpaid. Rarely do they see the "final product" of their work, but believe me, without teachers society would not be as advanced as it is today.

Today, I look back to the teachers who pushed, mentored, and in some cases, dragged me through my school years and wonder how they managed to do it. People tell me it is because it was their job, but I believe it is because they cared.

While I may not have appreciated it as much then, I know I wouldn't be where I am today without their help.

If you are in school, thank your teacher for what they do. If you have a child in school, take the time to say thanks because they will be an influence your child's future.

Who knows, with the help of the right teachers you may have a future Einstein on your hands.

Wounded warriors stay positive

SFC Michael J. Carden
AMERICAN FORCES PRESS SERVICE

WASHINGTON, — On Oct. 27 I went to Karen Wagner Gym at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center complex here to interview and photograph wounded warriors playing wheelchair basketball.

Basketball is just one of a host of sports wounded warriors have the opportunity to participate in as they rehabilitate in military medical facilities around the country. Although I've never covered wheelchair basketball, I imagined it would have the same positive effect on our recovering veterans as other activities I've covered, such as Paralympic track and field, hand cycling and weightlifting, to name a few.

I was right. Jeremy, a Marine wounded in Iraq, looks forward to the basketball games here. A single-leg amputee who's been rehabbing at Walter Reed for the past two years, he said the wheelchair basketball and other rehabilitating sports are invaluable therapy.

"It's fun," he said. "Learning you can still do certain things and be competitive does a lot for us who come out for these games every week."

I was glad to have met Jeremy and to have the chance to chat openly with him for a bit. He was fairly apprehensive at first when I told him I was there to interview and photograph guys like him playing ball. He remained somewhat guarded, and didn't want to be identified, but he shared with me that his doctors were in the process of deciding whether or not to amputate his other leg.

Like any hardcore Marine Infantryman, he just said, "Oh well, I'll learn to deal with that, too."

Jeremy ended up being the only wounded warrior to show up for the practice yesterday because of a new schedule the coach started this week. Practice begins two hours earlier now, and he and the volunteer coach, Billy Demby, guessed that a lot of the guys had other appointments or just didn't get the word on the time change.

Jeremy, Demby and I continued chatting around the bleachers for a bit, along with Heather Campbell, a site coordinator for the U.S. Paralympic Military Program, as we waited and hoped for more players to show up. Unfortunately, their guess was right. Apparently, Jeremy was the only guy to get the memo.

About 45 minutes passed, so I reluctantly began packing up my gear to go back to the Pentagon to work on other assignments. Basketball has always been one of my favorite sports to play since I was 7 years old, and I was really looking forward to my first wheelchair basketball game. But as I was thanking Demby, Jeremy and Campbell for the invitation, Demby suggested we play a little two-on-two.

I was a bit confused at first, because Campbell, Demby and I aren't disabled. But Coach pointed me in the direction of a closet where extra wheelchairs were stored, and he was eager for me to experience playing the game in a wheelchair. "You want me to be the fourth?" I asked excitedly.

The next thing I knew, I was in a chair, learning the variations of wheelchair basketball rules. Coach explained that you can spin your wheels twice before having to dribble, shoot or pass the ball. Otherwise, it's a traveling violation. When shooting free throws or three-pointers, the rear wheels have to stay behind the respective lines. You can bump another player with your chair, but if you do it too hard, it's a foul. And of course, you can't lift your body out of the chair to gain a shot, rebound or defensive advantage. Otherwise the rules are fairly the same as those for ordinary basketball.

The strategy, however, is a different story.

I consider myself a pretty quick and agile guy, so not being able to use my speed was pretty difficult. I'm also pretty competitive, and when my first few shot attempts didn't even hit the rim, I was pretty discouraged, not to mention that almost every time I had to set the ball in my lap to spin my wheels to move, Jeremy stole it from me. Needless to say, there was no shortage of jokes at my expense.

But after a few possessions, my determination paid off. Coach filled me in on the importance of setting picks for my teammates and trying to shoot the ball while not rolling too fast. I started to make some shots, and Campbell and I were developing a rhythm.

By this time, though, my hands were blistered and my shoulders were throbbing with pain from trying to compensate for my lack of legs with my hands. "How do these guys do this for two hours straight twice a week?" I thought.

I'm in the gym at least five days a week, lifting weights, and I run just as often. But after about 20 minutes of wheeling myself around the court, I was smoked. Jeremy was too, but there wasn't nearly as much sweat dripping from his forehead as from mine. He was just moving along, playing the game almost as naturally as if he were playing on his feet. I really envied him — not because he'd spent the last hour schooling me on the court, but because of his attitude and courage.

I've spent a good bit of time covering wounded warriors over the past year or so that I've been assigned to American Forces Press Service. Jeremy reminded me, as have many wounded warriors I've met, that life is too short not to enjoy it. He and thousands of other disabled veterans across the country have overcome obstacles and adversities that could make even the most optimistic people crack.

They've stared death in the face, and are now living their challenging lives to the fullest when it would be so much easier to just give up. But they don't give up. Beyond the prosthetics, bandages and screws holding them together physically, they're still Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines, and in traditional military fashion, they just keep driving on.

Demby, who was wounded in the Vietnam War, said it best: "Although these guys' lives have changed, they look at living with their disabilities as a second chance, a new beginning. Their resiliency is an example to all of us."

When you say it like that, Coach, you make a good point.

National Guardsman to serve as 4th RTB CSM

Tiffany Nabors
THE BAYONET

CSM William Paul made history Oct. 29 when he became the first National Guard Soldier to serve as the 4th Ranger Training Battalion senior NCO.

COL Douglas Flohr, Ranger Training Brigade commander, said he is confident Paul will succeed in the position because of his background.

Paul was a first sergeant for three years in the Pre-Ranger program at the National Guard Warrior Training Center and has worked with RTB since he arrived here in 2005.

"So when we started looking for a (command) sergeant major, he was the obvious choice," Flohr said. "We've been very lucky to make this whole thing work."

Paul said he was honored to have been selected and excited to begin working with the unit.

"To be the command sergeant major of the 4th Ranger Training Battalion, ... it's a dream come true," Paul said.

Paul replaced SGM Kevin Martin, who became the operations sergeant major for the Ranger Training Brigade.

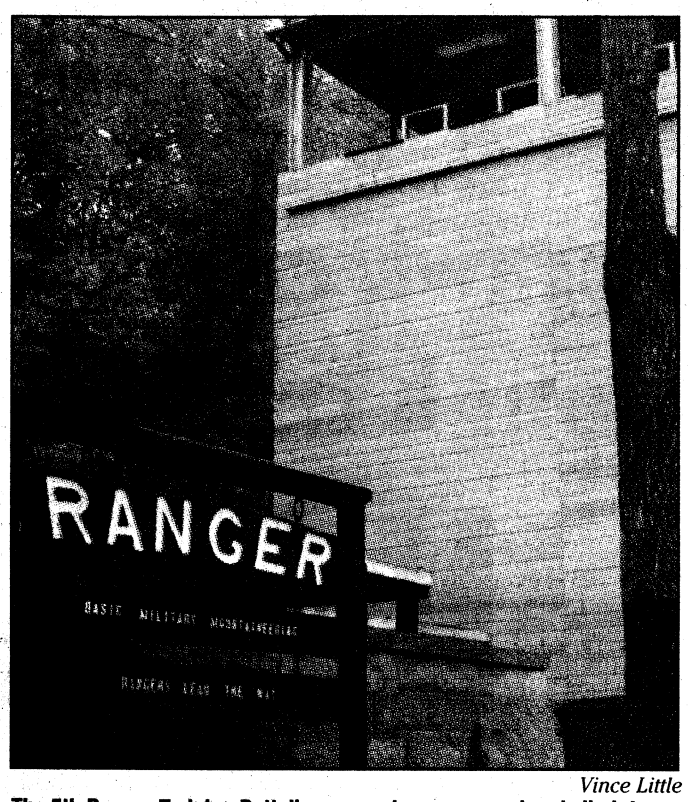
Tiffany Nabors
CSM William Paul became the first National Guardsman to assume the position of top enlisted Soldier with the 4th Ranger Training Battalion Oct. 29.

Flohr said he didn't remember a guardsman ever becoming the battalion's senior enlisted Soldier. The arrangement benefits both units, Flohr said.

"We'll get a great sergeant major here, and they'll become even more synchronized with our efforts," Flohr said. "Since the war started, we've always tried to work toward one Army between active duty, the Guard and Reserves. With the fact that we are in the eighth year of a very long war, we're closer now than we've ever been. It just behooves both of us to work together. I think this is going to help Ranger School tremendously."

COL Steven Bapp, special assistant to the commanding general for Army National Guard, said Paul contributed to making the WTC Pre-Ranger program one of the best in the Army. He believes Paul will bring back insight to the WTC.

SGM(R) Tom Siter, the former WTC command sergeant major and its current executive officer, said Paul is a perfect fit for 4th RTB.



"Billy is a very hard-working, selfless, dedicated individual who is truly committed to training Soldiers," Siter said. "For the Ranger Training Brigade and 4th RTB to give the National Guard and (CSM) Paul this opportunity is just amazing. It speaks volumes of the relationship that the active component and the reserve component have on this installation."

At Thursday's change of responsibility ceremony, Paul told those in attendance he was appreciative of the opportunity.

"This is an awesome day for me," he said. "4th RTB has a long history of outstanding leadership, and I plan to continue that leadership."

New rappel tower a boost to Ranger mountain training

Vince Little
The 5th Ranger Training Battalion opened a new rappel and climb tower in late summer. It replaced a wooden structure built in the early 1960s.

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

CAMP MERRILL, Ga. — A new four-story rappel and climb tower has given the Army an added boost in Ranger training's mountain phase.

Just a few hundred yards outside the main camp on the outskirts of Dahlonega, home to the 5th Ranger Training Battalion, the facility opened in late summer, replacing a wooden structure that had been used since the early 1960s. It's run by Dave O'Rear, a mountaineering training specialist and retired first sergeant hired to lead the unit's mountaineering program about five years ago.

"The old one had become a burden — we were spending an extraordinary amount of time and effort just to maintain it ... It was equal to an old barn built in the 1950s," O'Rear said. "Most of the towers on Fort Benning are for rappelling or climbing only, but this is a true multiuse facility. We can do dozens of different things here."

The complex measures 30 feet tall and each side is 30 feet wide. There are two rock-climbing walls and windows were installed to practice second-level entry and exit. The wooden floors feature classroom and instruction areas.

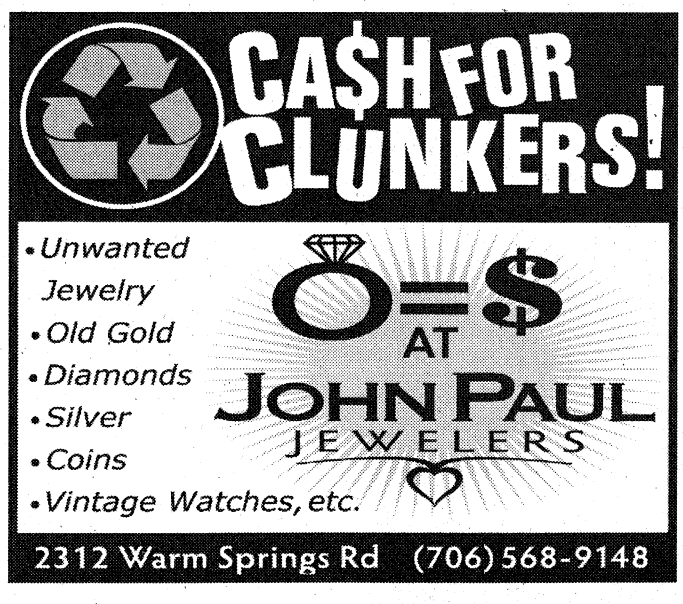
The facility, which took over a year to build but cost under $750,000, also is a training platform for casualty evacuation, rope climbing, fast roping and building sweeps.

The new tower has 16 rappel lanes, compared to a dozen on the old wall. O'Rear said setup and inspection for night training is easier and safer because there are interior lights. It can accommodate 120 trainees an hour, twice as many as before.

"It's easier to cycle students through this one," he said. "It's much more efficient as far as student movement ... This one is virtually maintenance-free for the most part."

He said bugs, termites and snakes infested the old tower. A concrete retaining wall was put up in its place. During construction, the Army worked closely with the National Forest Service, which owns the land.

"The old tower had become a sinkhole. We were throwing good money after bad," said LTC Chris Stone, the 5th Ranger Training Battalion commander. "It was too much to keep up. Drainage off the hill was a problem because of the wood.



"This is a good investment and big improvement."

O'Rear said the tower is the opening phase of mountaineering training before students go to nearby Mount Yonah for the advanced tier. While the facility is primarily in place for Ranger students, units from all four service branches use it.

Military mountaineering techniques have evolved significantly since Sept. 11, he said. Training has become more tactical to better prepare troops for Afghanistan rotations.

"We refer to it as mountain mobility training, more so than mountaineering," O'Rear said. "We're training guys to move in the mountains ... The new tower has made it much more efficient for us. We can do a lot more things."

One station unit training Soldiers with B Company, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, 198th Infantry Brigade negotiated nearly 25 obstacles Tuesday.

"I don't want a desk job. I want to be outside, getting dirty," said PVT Jeff Norwood, who is in one station unit training with B Company, 1st Battalion, 19th Infantry Regiment, 198th Infantry Brigade.

Norwood was one of hundreds of new recruits doing the first hands-on Army training of their careers Tuesday at the confidence course on Sand Hill.

"These are five-day-old Soldiers," said SFC Timothy Simmons, senior drill sergeant with 4th Platoon. "All of them come from different backgrounds, different upbringings. So when we get them here, we try to instill an initial level of teamwork."

"Right now they are in the stunned phase, everything they've known for the past 18 or so years has crumbled to their feet," said SSG Michael Preece, a drill sergeant with 1st Platoon. "They aren't sure about themselves or what's happening at this point. Events like this will bring them together and give them the confidence they're going to need from here on out."

Preece, a veteran of seven previous OSUT cycles, said he's seen many Soldiers make the transition from civilian to Infantryman in the 14-week course, and his eighth cycle, his last, will be no different.

"By the end of the eighth week, they will be pretty confident in themselves," he said. "We're their first taste of the Army so we will be telling them what they really need to know."

The confidence course consists of approximately 25 obstacles, including climbing towers, swinging on ropes, walking across rolling logs, scaling cargo nets and navigating the "Weaver" — a series of wood planks placed at an incline and then a decline to resemble an upside down "V."

The Soldiers didn't have much trouble negotiating the towers, which required a team effort to boost each Soldier to the platforms on the tower, or the log obstacles, which focused on balance. However, the weaver "Tarzan" — a series of log and monkey bar challenges — and the wall hanger proved to be the more difficult challenges.

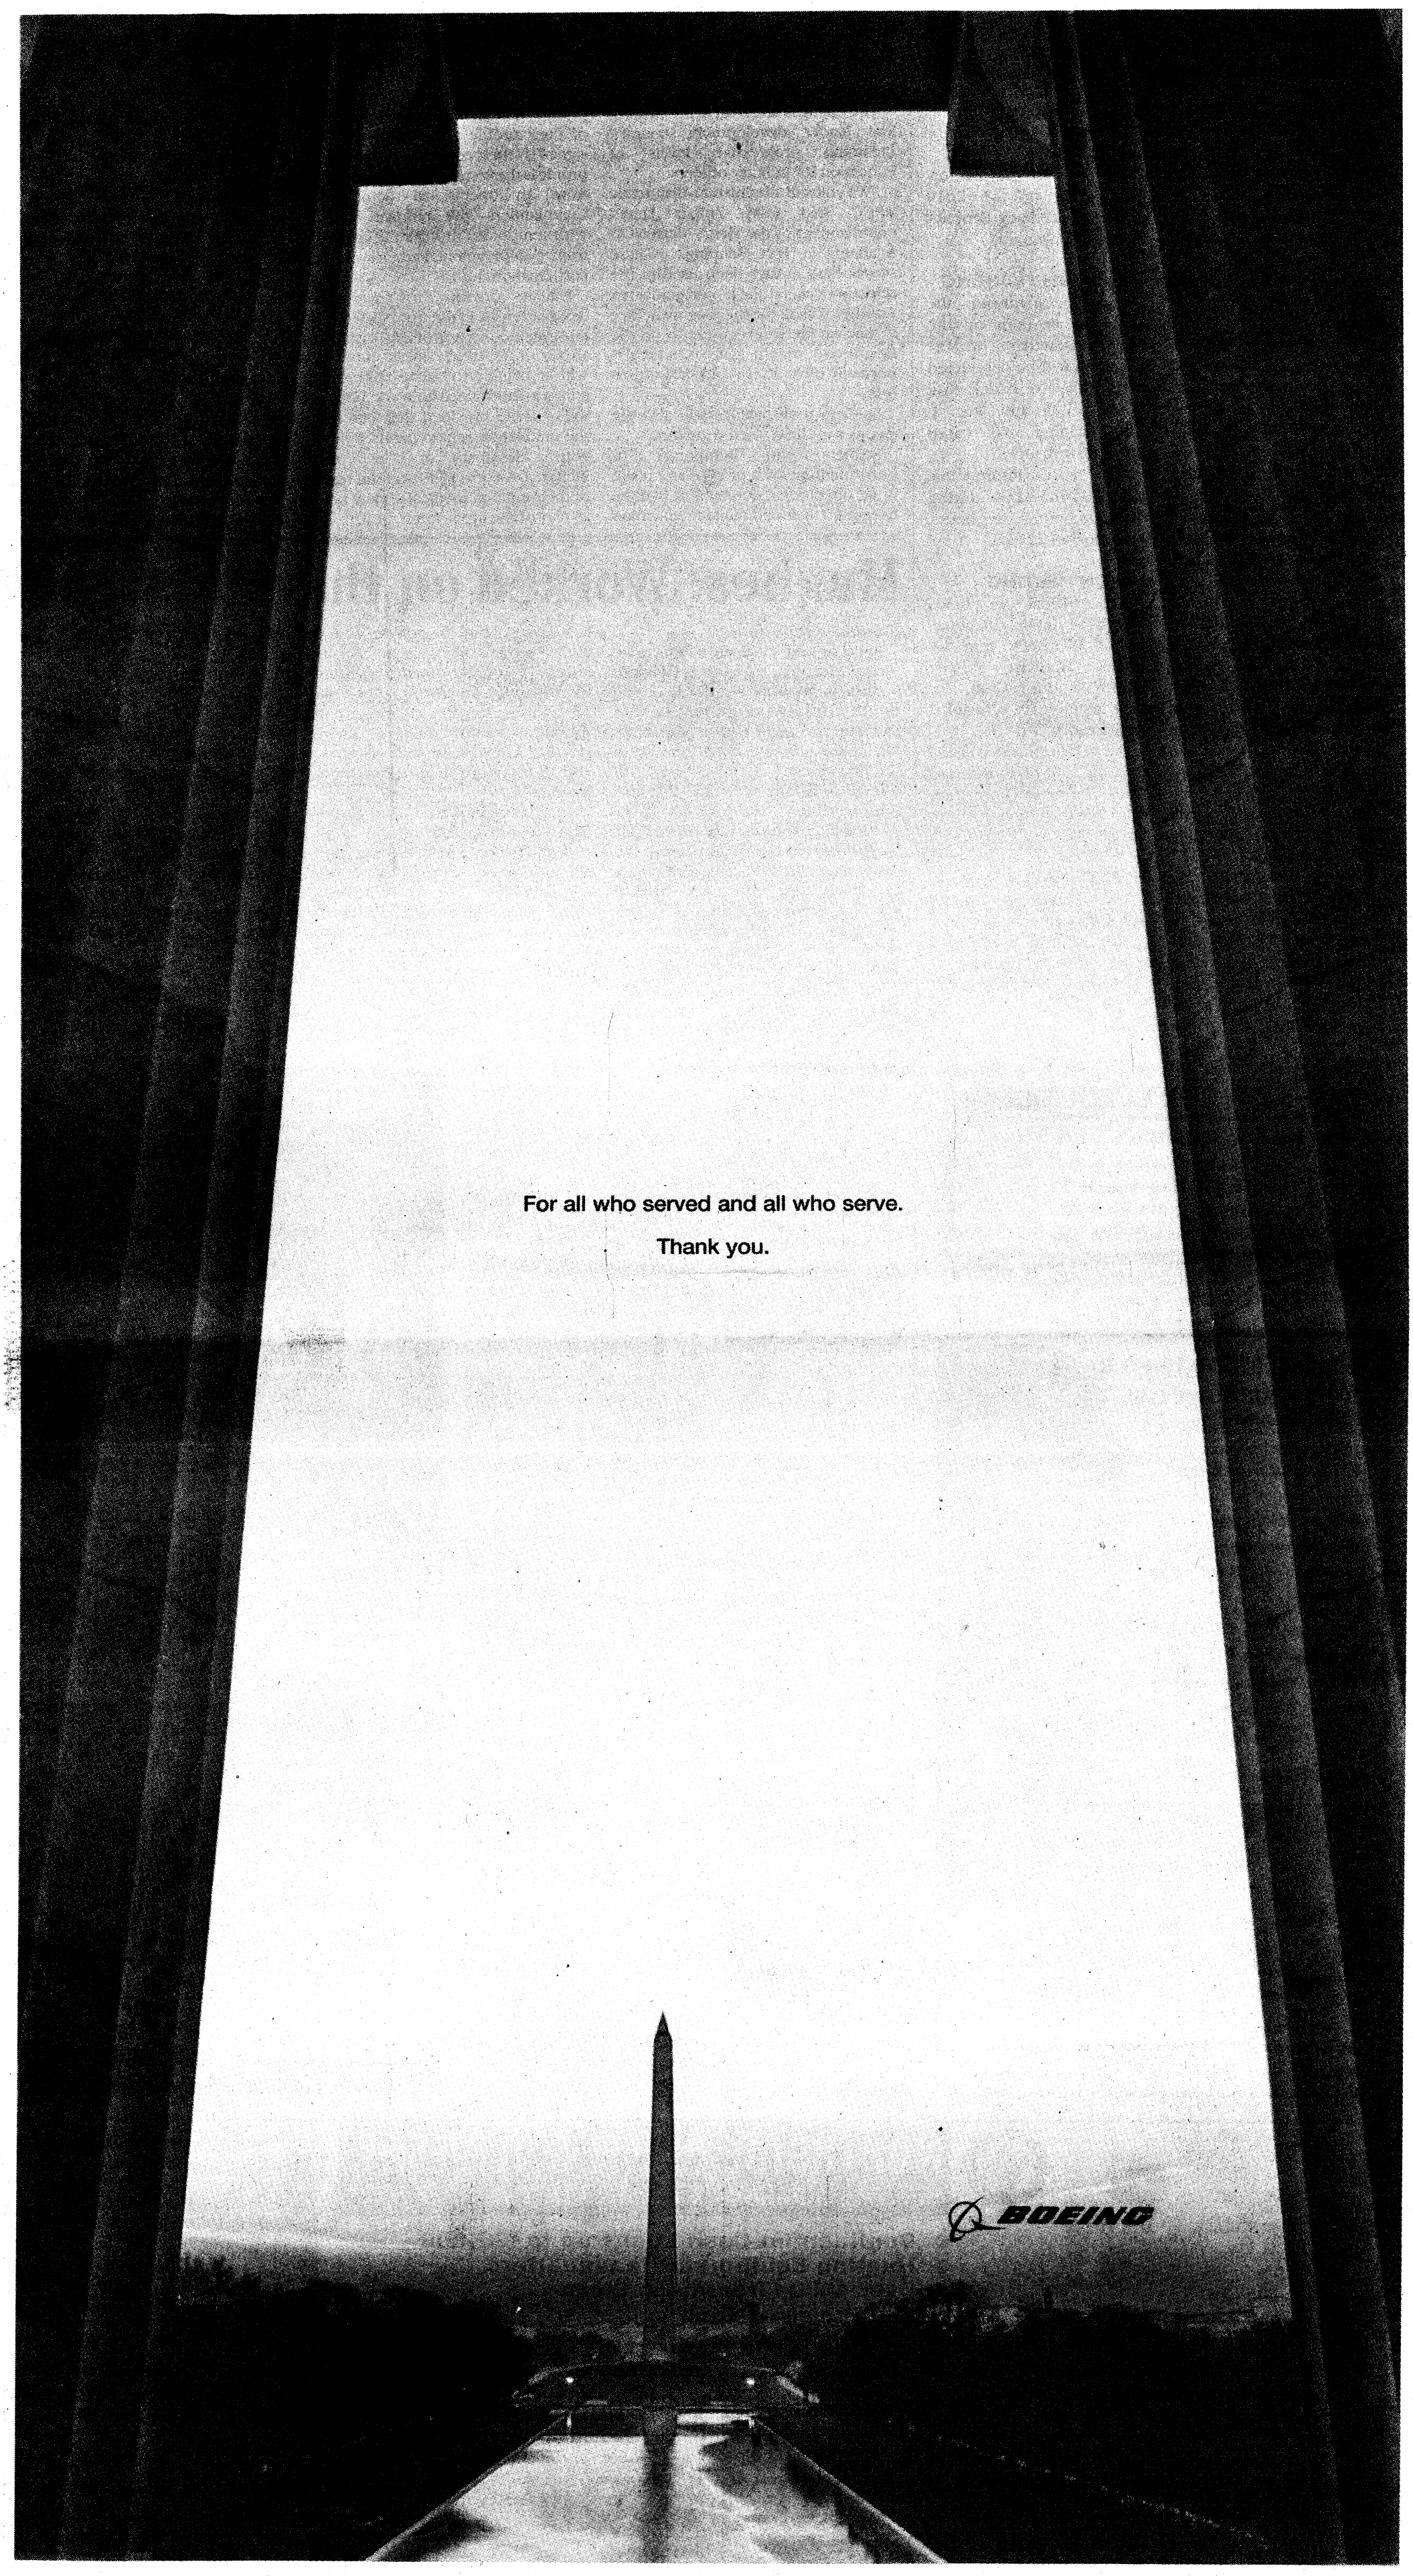
Soldiers climb up a tower using teammates for help.

"I fell down on the monkey bars," said Norwood, of Garden City, Mich. "I haven't done those since elementary school."

PVT Charles Bert, a former New York City firefighter, said his greatest challenge of the day was the "Weaver," though he managed to muscle through without falling.

"I thought it was going to be harder going up the planks than down, but it was the opposite," Bert said. "As you're swinging your weight going down, if you miss the next plank you'll fall off."

"That's one of the toughest obstacles out here," said SSG Bradley Freeman, a drill sergeant with 1st Platoon. "I came through OSUT back in 1991 and I had the same problems they have … it's breaking through the mental barrier."



Bert said he looks forward to basic rifle marksmanship training in the coming weeks.

"I can't wait to get to the range and start firing a gun," said the New York native. "That's your life right there, that weapon, so you want to learn to shoot to the best of your ability."

The company graduates Feb. 19.

Soldiers jump over hurdles to test their balance and ability.

For all who served and all who serve.
Thank you.

Changes: AR 350-1 to take effect

The changes affect all Army training and leader development courses, including progressive levels of education for military officers.

"We will still administer a diagnostic APFT," said CSM Zoltan James, commandant of the Henry Caro NCO Academy at Fort Benning. "These scores have always been used in the selection criteria for honor graduates. Another reason for the diagnostic test is that we are still required to do the height and weight analysis, which is normally done after a physical fitness test."

Soldiers with profiles will also see changes in the revised regulation.

Soldiers with temporary or permanent medical profiles as a result of an operational deployment will be permitted to attend military education courses within the guidelines of their profile. Soldiers must have a copy of their profile and a memorandum signed by their commander stating the profile is the result of injuries sustained from an operational deployment. Commanders will remove Soldiers with temporary profiles not resulting from a deployment and prevent full participation.

Soldiers with a permanent designator of 2 in their physical profile must include a copy of DA Form 3349 as part of the course application. They will be eligible to attend appropriate courses and train within the limits of their profile provided they can meet the graduation requirements. Soldiers with a designator of 3 or 4 must include DA Form 3349 and the results of their military medical review board as part of the application.

Soldiers who've been before an MMRB, awarded medical limitations and allowed to retain their occupational classification will be eligible to attend courses and train within the limits of their profile.

Soldiers receiving temporary or permanent physical profile limitations after enrolling in resident training courses will be evaluated by school commandants and commanders for continued enrollment.

James said he expects the changes will give more Soldiers the opportunity to attend military courses.

"The old school way was to administer the APFT at the start of the course and send Soldiers back to their units if they failed," James said. "But the standard now, post-9/11, is that all Soldiers need to be trained regardless of their physical fitness level."

Hughes: Worked on thermal sight

England said. "In Doug's tenure, we went from that to fighting at night almost as good as we could during the day. If we went out tonight with the current night vision capability, we could engage targets almost to the maximum effective range of our rifles. Twenty years ago that was unimaginable."

Prior to coming to the ESD branch, Hughes served nearly 22 years in the Army, including two tours in Vietnam as a pilot, before retiring and entering the civil service at Fort Benning as an Infantry organizational structure development specialist until the section's consolidation in 1991.

Though Hughes said he landed in ESD "by mistake," his successes have been well documented. Projects he has had a hand in include weapon night sights, night-vision goggles, lasers, counter-sniper systems, electro-optics initiatives, night vision programs for Infantry vehicles, ground robotic systems, directed energy systems, Army technology objectives and a variety of Soldier enhancement programs.

These programs are valued at more than $4.5 billion, England said.

"He always stressed everything needed to be smaller, lighter and consume less power," said Bruce Davis, a former co-worker in SRD who is now part of the Infantry School commandant's management staff. "He liked to defy physics. He wanted night vision to be like a contact lens that you could pop into your eye."

Hughes said one of the first projects he worked on was a thermal weapons sight.

"It was pretty new technology at the time," he said. "The heavy thermal sight weighed five and a half pounds. The ones we're making now weigh less than three pounds."

A recent project Hughes wrote the requirement for was the enhanced night-vision goggle, which combined both the old night-vision technology and thermal technology.

The "fused" technology, as it was dubbed, extended the maximum effective range of the goggle to match close to the range of the weapon, he said.

"We've saved some lives and I'm really proud of that," Hughes said. "Soldiers can do things at night that they couldn't do before."

BENCH NOTES

PGA player suspended

Doug Barron, a player on the PGA Tour, was suspended for one year after he violated the policy prohibiting performance-enhancing drugs. Barron only played once this year on the Tour and didn't even make the cut.

The PGA Tour policy was implemented on July 1, 2008, and random testing has been administered tour events, to include major championships.

BCS, AP differ

While the BCS Standings and the Associated Press Top 25 both have Florida, Texas and Alabama at one, two and three, the BCS has Iowa in fourth and Cincinnati in the fifth spot. The AP has Cincinnati fourth, and Boise State fifth. TCU is sixth on both lists, LSU is ninth and Georgia Tech rounds out the top 10.

Two games to watch Saturday are LSU at Alabama (3:30 p.m. on CBS) and Ohio State at Penn State (3:30 p.m. on ABC).

Both games have the potential of shaking up next week's polls.

Spikes plays dirty

Florida Gators linebacker Brandon Spikes was suspended for Saturday's game against Vanderbilt by coach Urban Meyer, who had faced criticism after initially saying he would only sit out the first half.

Spikes appeared to try to gouge the eyes of Georgia running back Washaun Ealey during Saturday's 41-17 win over Georgia.

In a later interview, the aggrieved player, Ealey, said it was just something that routinely happens in football games.

Talk about forgiving.

Jamie who?

After an 86-race winless streak, Jamie McMurray captured the checkered flag Sunday at Talladega Superspeedway. Jimmie Johnson, who finished sixth, essentially is the winner of his fourth straight record-setting Sprint Cup championship.

The usual "big one" at Dega happened twice, the first time to Ryan Newman, whose crash left him upside down and trapped in his car for 15 minutes before he could be cut out. With two laps left in the race, Mark Martin flipped across the track, which had the race finishing under the caution flag.

This week's race is the Dickie's 500 at Texas Motor Speedway. Coverage begins at 3:15 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

Yanks roll to 27th title

The New York Yankees are again the envy of baseball after polishing off the Philadelphia Phillies 7-3 in Game 6 of the World Series on Wednesday and capturing their 27th championship.

Say what you want about the Evil Empire, but this franchise, which has the most titles in all of sports, is thoroughly dedicated to winning.

Outdoor Recreation to host paintball event

Paintballers are invited to suit up and participate in Paintball at the Woodlands from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday at Woodland Paint Ball area off Dixie Road by Soldiers' Plaza. The event is open to the public.

"I think there are some people at Fort Benning who don't know about the paintball area," said Brittany Beadle, Outdoor Recreation specialist. "We want them to know it's here and they are welcome to use it."

The paintball gatherings are a monthly addition to Outdoor Recreation activities, Beadle said. Outdoor Recreation staff conducted surveys in spring and summer and asked what people

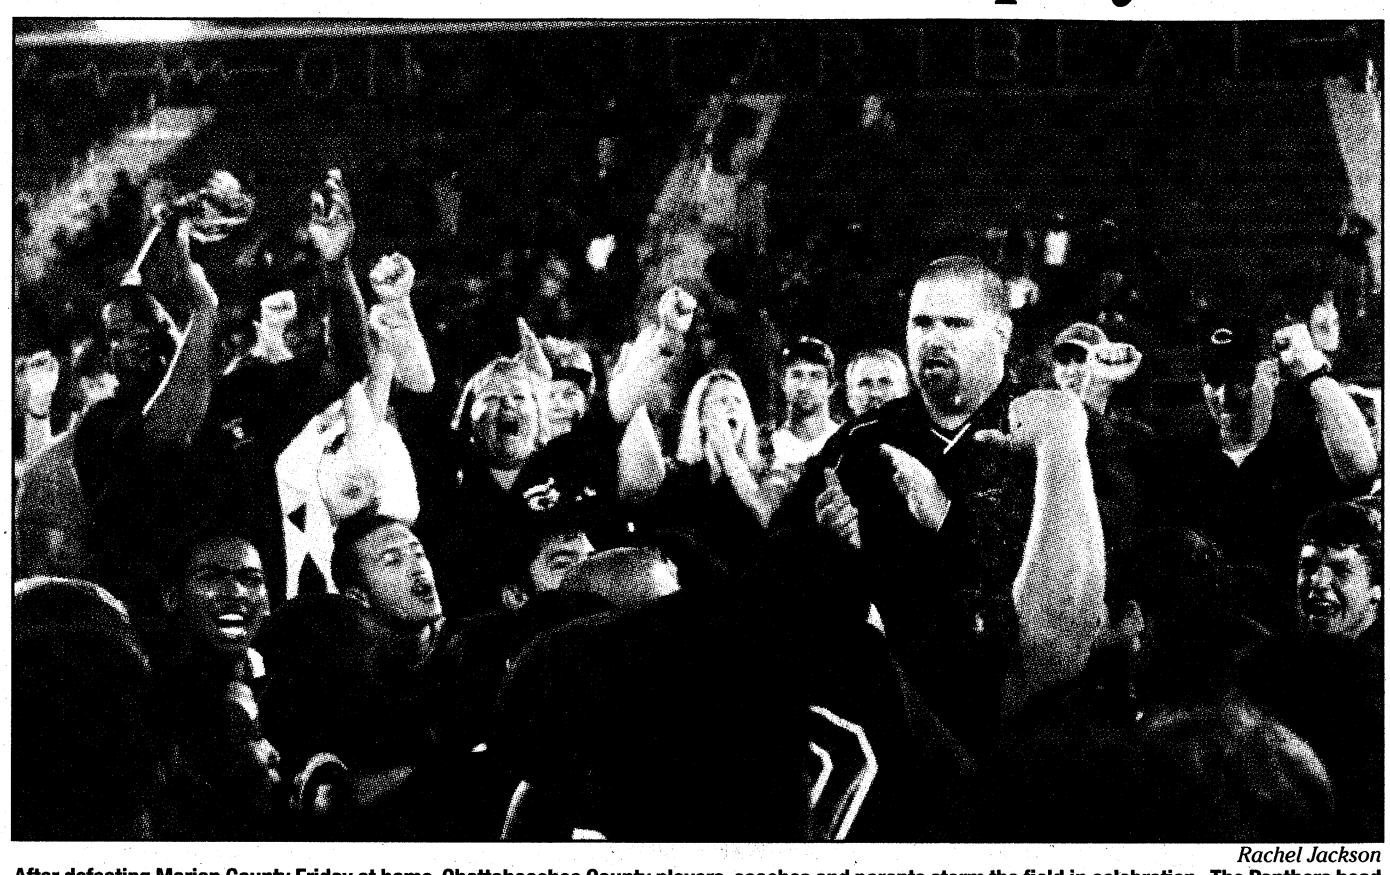
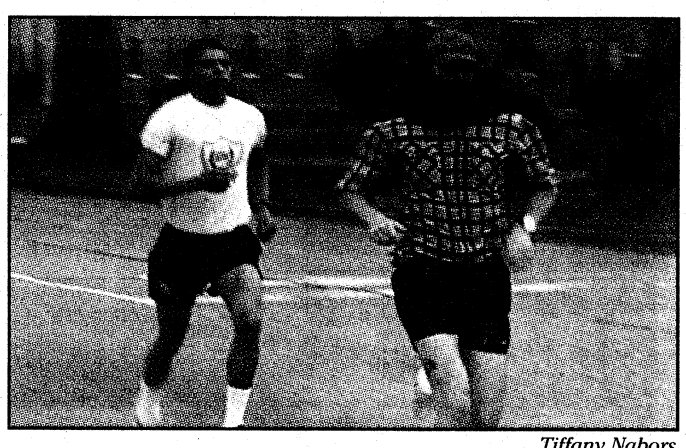
Chattco Panthers storm into state playoffs

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET



The Chattahoochee County High School Panthers are heading to the state football playoffs as the No. 2 seed in Region 4-A, after defeating the Marion County High School Eagles 29-14 Saturday in Cusseta, Ga.

Chattco coach Josh Kemp said the Eagles are the team's biggest rivalry.



"It was a big game," said Kemp after the game against the Eagles. "We knew it was going to be a hard-fought game and they were going to play great defense. We knew we had to match their physicality and then some. We did that. That's why we won."

Both teams put up a strong defensive battle, with Community run combines fun, fellowship and fitness

It was much like the movies— Forrest Gump was running again, and there was nothing stopping him.

However, it was a look-alike who ran Saturday morning with Fort Benning Soldiers and family members participating in the third postwide 5K run.

With his extra-long beard and running shorts, SFC Aaron Totten-Lancaster, who was one of about five costumed runners, crossed the finish line first in 16:44. Totten-Lancaster, of 75th Ranger Regiment, said he just couldn't resist the opportunity to combine Halloween tradition with physical training.

Late score pushes Raiders past Bengals 20-12

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

Although the rain showers subsided by the time the 11- to 13-year-old Fort Benning Bengals Black team kicked off to the South Columbus Raiders Saturday at Shirley Winston Park in Columbus, the slippery field didn't stop the Raiders from sliding past the Bengals 20-12.

The Raiders moved the ball to the Bengals 25-yard line on their first possession but the drive ended when the Bengals' William Holloway intercepted a pass setting the Bengals up with a first-and-10 on their own 8-yard-line. The possession lasted one play, ending on a Raider sack of Bengals quarterback Calvin Lowery in the end zone for a safety and a Raiders 2-0 lead.

After exchanging punts following long drives by each team, the Bengals' caught a break after stopping the Raiders on third-and-24. With the Raiders in punt formation, the snap from center sailed over the punter's head and was recovered on the Raiders 4-yard-line. One play later, Lowery scored on a 4-yard run to give the Bengals a 6-2 lead with 4:22 remaining in the first half.

Following a 42-yard kickoff return, the Raiders needed five plays to retake the lead at 8-6, scoring on a 2-yard run with 2:26 remaining in the half.

In the third quarter, both teams established long offensive drives but were unable to score until the Bengals final drive of the quarter. Facing a second-and-5 from their own 35, Michael Cavazos put the Bengals on top 12-8 with a 35-yard touchdown run with 1:00 remaining in the third quarter.

The Raiders came right back on the ensuing possession with a seven-play, 49-yard drive culminated by a 21-yard touchdown pass with 6:36 remaining in the game. The Bengals had three more possessions in the fourth quarter, but a staunch Raiders defense limited the Bengals to three-and-outs to seal the win 20-12.

John W. Peeler
For Benning's Michael Cavazos cuts behind William Holloway's block, scoring on a 35-yard touchdown run with one minute remaining in the third quarter against the Raiders Saturday at Shirley Winston Park in Columbus.

Head coach Lee Obie said several factors contributed to the Bengals loss, specifically the number of players on the teams.

"Our defense played wonderful, magnificent," Obie said. "But, the blocking on the offensive line didn't give our quarterback time to do what he needed to do, but when you have 13 out of your 15 players playing "Iron Man" football (offense and defense), with basically no rest at all … they gave it all they had though, and I am proud of that."

Players compete for spot on rugby team

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

Rachel Jackson
All-Army rugby hopefuls run a play Monday at Stewart-Watson Field. Of 34 players, 25 will be on the team.

Rugby players from as far away as South Korea, Japan, Hawaii and Germany converged on Fort Benning Oct. 24 for a two-week All-Army rugby trial camp at Stewart-Watson Field.

Thirty-four hopefuls came to camp, but only 25 will represent the U.S.Army and compete in the Armed Forces Championship Monday through Friday at Stewart-Watson Field.

After playing in the Battleship Tournament in Mobile, Ala., Saturday, All-Army head coach Mike Stevenson said he will make the cuts.

"It'll be tough to decide who to cut," said Stevenson, who has coached All-Army rugby for 10 years. "The players are all highly motivated and fit. They are good rugby players and they give 110 percent all of the time."

The players' skills and abilities are diverse, said Stevenson, who is stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

"You have some guys who have been playing rugby their entire lives and other guys who have been playing for a year," he said.

The training camp includes two practices a day and a practice game on Saturdays.

The camp is intense to prepare the players for five games in four days at the Armed Forces Championship, Stevenson said.

"The practice games give you a better look at what you have," Stevenson said. "You get a look at the players' skills, reactions and way you are going to execute things."

SFC Noah Tupea, who is stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., has competed in the All-Army trial camp for 11 years and made the team seven times.

He said there is a better level of competition this year than in 2008.

SSG Josh Lashley, HHC, 3rd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, plays scrum half. He was one of the 25 Soldiers who made last year's team but didn't play because he broke his right hand.

"The amount of skill and experience here is unmatched with any group of players I have ever played with before," he said.

Lashley said it would be an honor to represent the Army.

"Any way that I can represent the United States Army is a privilege and to represent the Army against other armed forces is even better," he said.

The first game of the Armed Forces Championship is the Navy facing the Air Force at 10 a.m.Tuesday, followed by the Army taking on the Marines at 11:30 a.m. Spectators are welcome.

Chattco: To take on Seminole High School in playoffs

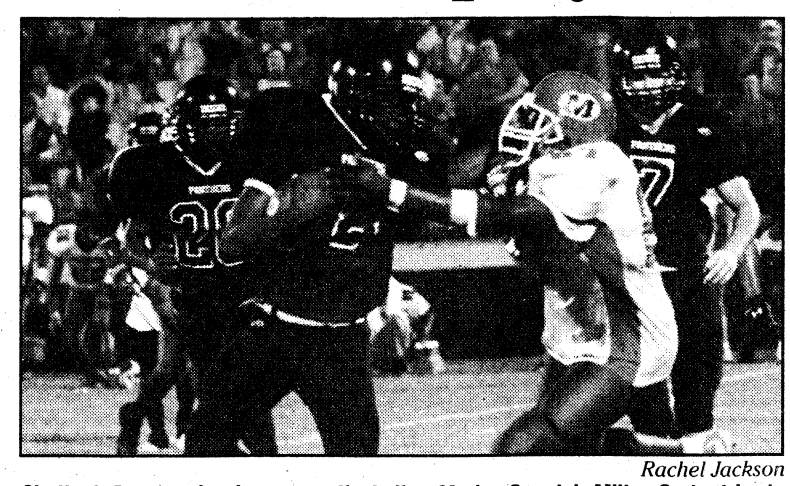
neither team scoring in the first quarter.

Chattco's Demarquise Jones scored the game's first touchdown on an 8-yard run with 9:47 left in the second quarter, to give the Panthers a 7-0 lead. Marion County's Ykeem Wells answered with a 1-yard touchdown to tie the game. But Chattco broke the stalemate with a Daquavious Barbin 68-yard interception return for a touchdown to close the first half leading 14-7.



Chattco scored on a Niko Jones 1-yard touchdown run and a 55-yard Tyquan Bazemore interception return for a touchdown in the third quarter and increased its lead to 29-7. It wasn't until the last five seconds in the third quarter Marion County's Solomon Jones scored on a 7-yard fumble return. Neither team scored in the final quarter.

"This was a very important game to us and I'm glad we came out with the win," said Barbin, son of SFC(R) Anthony Barbin. "We let up in the third quarter and the defense was kind of sloppy, but I think overall, we played a good game."

There is still work to be done, Kemp said.

"Overall, it's been a great year," he said. "We accomplished what we set out to accomplish in the regular season, now the second season starts."

Because Chattco is the second seed in the region, they will get home-field advantage and host the first round of the state playoffs. The Panthers will take on the Seminole County High School Indians (Region 1B-A) of Donalsonville, Ga., at 7:30 p.m. Friday at home.

5K: Runs slated for upcoming months

weekend of each month, were implemented in August.

"I see it as a two-fold mission," said CSM Earl Rice, post command sergeant major. "First and foremost, it's to maintain a healthy force around here. People who regularly conduct physical fitness exercises spend less time in the clinics and the hospital. It (also) brings the community together."

Fort Benning commander MG Michael Ferriter and Rice ran alongside spouses with their strollers and Soldiers with their dogs during Saturday's run. Participants can run, jog or walk and are encouraged to bring their children.

Like Saturday's costume run, which was coordinated by the 192nd Infantry Brigade, each month features a different theme.

Despite the impending rain, which began to fall shortly after the final runners returned to the start, there were double the number of runners this month than the two previous months, said COL Terrence McKenrick, 192nd Inf. Bde. commander.

McKenrick said 131 runners participated and the costumes made the event more fun.

Fun was what Jason Nachowicz had in mind when he arrived dressed in neon '80s wear. He said running justified the extra candy he had planned for the evening.

"This run (was) just for fun," the Maneuver Captain Career Course student said. "It (was) for the fellowship of it all."

Diego Cuellar, a cadet from El Salvador, finished second at 17:15.

The next run will be hosted by the Ranger Training Brigade on Nov. 28. Participants will meet at Doughboy Stadium at 7:45 a.m. The run begins at 8 a.m.

For more information, call 706-527-2275.

Scheduled 5K runs:

Nov. 28 Thanksgiving Trot, Host: RTB
Dec. 19 Holiday Hustle, Host: 199th IN BDE
Jan. 30 Resolution Run, Host: MEDACC
Feb. 27 Winter Dash, Host:NCOA

All races start at Doughboy Stadium.
Participants will meet at 7:45 a.m. and races begin at 8 a.m.

wanted to see more of on post. A majority indicated paintball.

Outdoor Recreation had its first paintball activity in September and around 25 players came, Beadle said. In October, Beadle said the number rose to around 40 players. She expects a large turnout for the upcoming event.

The event is open to ages 14 and older and includes attack and defend, capture the flag and games lasting as long as 30 minutes each.

Paintballers can either bring their own equipment or rent from Outdoor Recreation, located at Building 1707 on Gillespie Street. The cost to rent a gun, mask, hopper, 500 paintballs and a 20-ounce carbon dioxide tank is $30 or without paintballs, the cost is $25.

Registration by Monday is encouraged, but not required, Beadle said. To register or for more information, call 706-545-7978.

YOUR COMMITMENT TO YOUR COUNTRY HAS NO LIMITS.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE MIGHT.

Your Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance (SGLI) offers a maximum payout of only $400,000. Chances are that may not be enough to provide your family with a lifetime of support. That's why we offer Military Protection Plus. It picks up where SGLI leaves off and can stay with you long after your transition from Active Duty. And, as you'd expect, our coverage is military-friendly with expedited handling upon deployment and no war clause. Call now and get a quote over the phone.

BETTER LIFE INSURANCE BEGINS NOW

PGA Tour vet, analyst stages exhibition, observes training

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

Vince Little
Bobby Clampett, who played 15 seasons on the PGA Tour and has been a full-time commentator at CBS since 1995, addresses a group of Soldiers, players and retirees during an exhibition Oct. 29 at the Follow Me Golf Course on Fort Benning.

Former PGA Tour star and current CBS Sports golf analyst Bobby Clampett came to Fort Benning last week to see an old friend and participate in a series of events around post.

Clampett conducted an hourlong exhibition at the Follow Me Golf Course and signed copies of his book, The Impact Zone. He also observed Airborne training and engaged in a 6 a.m. physical training session with 192nd Infantry Brigade Soldiers at Sand Hill and MG Michael Ferriter, the Maneuver Center of Excellence and Fort Benning commanding general. The two attended high school together in California.

A private pilot, Clampett flew his personal airplane into Lawson Army Airfield for the three-day visit, which kicked off Oct. 28.

"It's a short trip, but a wonderful one," he said. "I got a chance to see some training here. It's so awe-inspiring to watch the commitment, discipline and focus these Soldiers have to protect our country."

Clampett earned more than $1.4 million in 15 seasons on the tour. His lone victory came in the 1982 Southern Open, played at Green Island Country Club in Columbus. He worked the 1991 PGA Championship for CBS as an on-course commentator and joined the network full time four years later. In recent years, he's gotten involved in golf course design.

During the Oct. 29 exhibition, Clampett offered playing tips and performed a few trick shots at the range before a small crowd of Soldiers, retirees and onlookers.

"I'm proud to be an American, and I'm proud of you," he told the group. "Thank you for what you do."

Illustrating a point about the golf swing, Clampett did impersonations of Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Lee Trevino — a legendary trio who's won a combined 33 major championships.

"Three of the best players of all time," he said, "with three of the most unusual swings ever … But it's not so much about swing style; it's about what you can create at impact."

Clampett recounted an early interview he did with Tiger Woods after the 1997 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, where the world's future No. 1 player had just fired rounds of 63 and 64 over the weekend, only to finish a shot behind champion Mark O'Meara. Asked about the result, Woods turned to the camera and said, "Finishing second sucks."

"He's probably the greatest this game has ever seen. It's amazing what he can do on a golf course," Clampett said. "Not only does he have the physical tools, he has a great creative mind. And nobody has a stronger or harder work ethic, I promise you."

CSM(R) Danny Pasion, 69, who retired at Fort Benning in 1985, has played the sport for more than four decades and said golf is the "game of a lifetime." He was among those who picked up an autographed book after the demonstration.

"That was enjoyable. I thought he was great," Pasion said. "I watched him at a young age play the game, when he entered the tour. I watch a lot of golf. It's nice to see him out here."

Following the exhibition, Clampett played with Ferriter in the same foursome during the CG's Golf Scramble. He attended the commander's quarterly excellence breakfast Friday.

Clampett is one of three multiple winners of the Haskins Award, presented annually to the nation's top collegiate golfer. The three-time All-American captured the honor — the equivalent of football's Heisman Trophy — in 1979 and 1980 while playing at BYU. Ben Crenshaw and Phil Mickelson each won it three times.

He still plays in a few pro events each year and has appeared on the Nationwide Tour.

Clampett, who turns 50 in April, said he plans to join the Champions Tour in 2010 and will attend qualifying school in Arizona later this month to compete for one of five open spots.

AFAP conference tackles Fort Benning issues

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

Housing and the proposal of a high school on post were among the 73 issues addressed at the annual Fort Benning Army Family Action Plan Conference Oct. 27-29.

AFAP is an Armywide program that gives Army personnel and their families a forum to improve quality of life and make recommendations for changes.

As the post prepares for expansion and the influx of families, residents wondered about the feasibility of a high school being built.

Debbie Deas, an instructional systems specialist for curriculum, said construction of a high school (on post) would have to be approved at the Department of Defense Education Activity level.

"Currently, there are 11 public high schools that serve our students in the surrounding DAHLONEGA, Ga. — Not even the rain could chase away the array of "creatures" that gathered Friday at Porter Village.

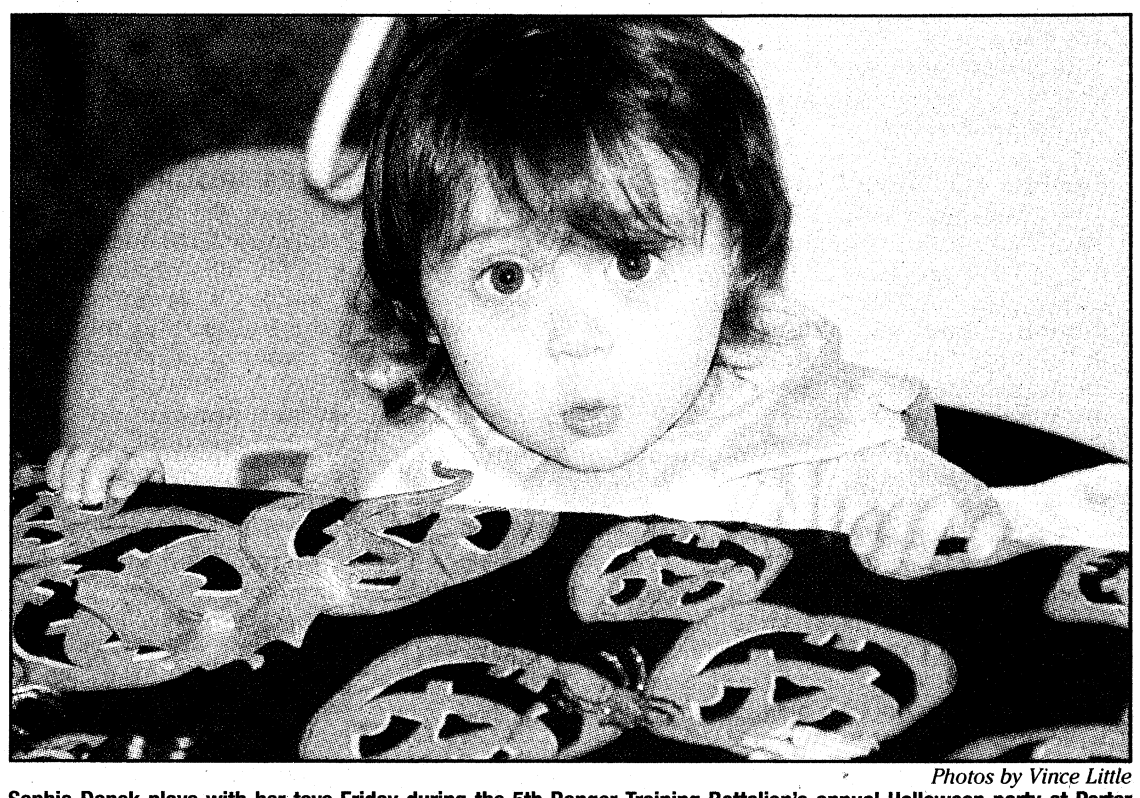
Soldiers and families — many dressed up in outfits both ghoulish and charming — turned out in the military housing area for the 5th Ranger Training Battalion's annual Halloween party. The event featured a chili cook-off, costume contest, inflatable bouncy castles for the kids and a bonfire as a nightcap.

The unit was on a six-day break between cycles following a stretch of six weeks training Ranger students in the North Georgia mountains. Another 42-day stint began Sunday.



"It's one of the few times we can get everybody together," said LTC Chris Stone, the 5th Ranger Training Battalion commander. "Besides functions like this, we don't get a chance to see everybody that often."

Fort Benning pooches put their best paw forward Friday at the Howl-o-Ween at the Dog Park Party, competing in a high jump contest and four costume categories.

Vying for most original, cutest, scariest and best owner-dog duo, the canine costumes included a school bus, cowgirl and horse, a pirate, a pumpkin, Yoda and three cows.

"That costume just fits her," SSG Jacques Vickers said of 18-month-old Destiny, a Staffordshire Bull Terrier dressed as a small cow.

"She's just a lap dog. We call her chunky monkey," CPT Kayla Vickers said. "She loves coming out here and playing with the other dogs, so we decided to bring her out for Halloween."

"It was awesome. Whenever they have something at the dog park, we'll be here."

Sponsored by Outdoor Rec, Howl-o-Ween, sponsored Rec, is the second dog park event this year, following the Bark to the Park Dog Park Party in April.

"I love dogs," said Darlene Hines, Outdoor Rec manager, who coordinated both events. "People are so into their dogs here, so we want to be able to offer more opportunities for pet owners and their dogs."

Hines said she plans to hold at least two events each year.

"I think it's just a great opportunity for community to come together and share a common interest. It's all about the dogs," she said.

Activities during the Howl-o-Ween included a dog-friendly obstacle course, doggie bags with treats and toys, and hot dogs for pet owners.

Allie Knight said she enjoys coming to the dog park, even while her husband, SGT Joshua Knight, a dog handler with the 209th Military Police Detachment, is deployed.

"It's great for them to get socialization while their dad's not here because I can't give

Commissary icon retires

Michelle Gordon
MCOE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

When I walked into the Fort Benning Commissary Director's office, he was at his desk on the telephone, but he motioned for me to sit down. As I waited, I couldn't help but overhear his part of the conversation. He was talking to a customer about purchasing ground beef in bulk and he told him of course he'd sell it, saying, "That's the business we're in, customer service. I'd sell you this desk if I thought you'd buy it."

To me, that pretty much sums up Gary Hensley— he'd do anything to help the customer and he goes out of his way to avoid saying "no." That is also why he will be missed now that he retired.

Yep, last night after nearly 35 years in the commissary system, Mr. Hensley closed the store and locked the doors— just like any other Monday night— only this time he turned in his keys. I guess it makes sense that he would retire at Fort Benning, after all this is where it all started. In 1975 Mr. Hensley came to visit his older sister who lived in Columbus. A native of West Virginia, he liked it here and enjoyed the weather so took a job as a cashier at the Fort Benning Commissary. Always a hard worker he quickly moved up within the system. His career took him to Fort Meade, Md., Fort Bragg, N. C., back to Benning, Fort Polk, La., and even the frontlines of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. Then in 2001, he returned to Fort Benning to become the store director, promising to stay two years. He ended up staying eight.

During those eight

McBride students learn about veterans

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

It's "living history," said Margaret Koger, gifted education teacher at McBride Elementary, who coordinated a Veterans Day assembly Tuesday for third- through fifth-grade students.

Puckett

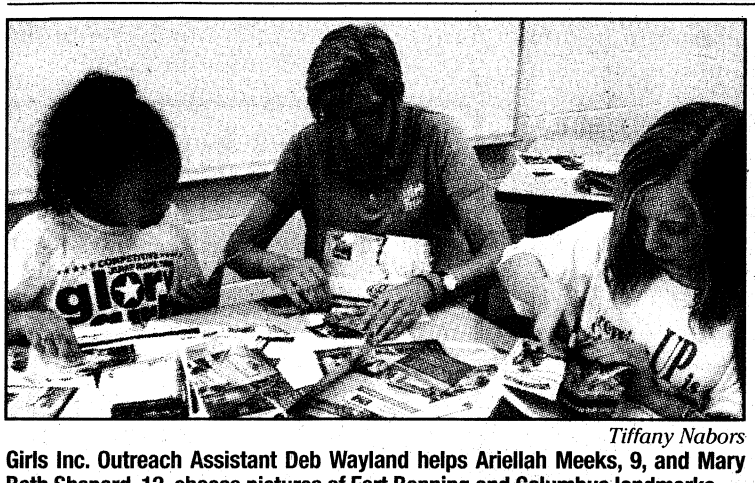
Several veterans attended the program, including some from the 192nd Infantry Brigade, McBride's Partner in Education, and from the VFW Post 5180, in Seale, Ala.

Koger said interacting with and listening to veterans helps the children better understand what the veterans' service means to America.

The keynote speaker was COL(R) Ralph Puckett, a veteran of Korea and Vietnam who received two Silver Stars, two Bronze Stars, three Legions of Merit and five Purple Hearts during his 28-year Army career. Puckett gave credit for his accolades to the Soldiers who served with him and today's veterans.

"I know that everything I was ever able to accomplish is because I was carried on the shoulders of my Soldiers," he said. "Without them, I would have been nothing."

Puckett said students should appreciate veterans, including their parents who currently serve.



"When our country asked, 'Whom shall I send?' your parents said, 'Send me; I am here.' Everybody who serves today is a volunteer," Puckett said.

The White House chose youth organizations across the country to add local distinction to ornaments recycled from previous years, said local Girls Inc. Executive Director Dorothy Hyatt. Because of its connection to the military, the Columbus chapter was one of two

TOWN HALL MEETING SCHEDULE

Town hall meetings are scheduled in housing areas across post. All start at 5:30 p.m. and take place on the following dates:

Monday at Wilson Elementary School for Indianhead Village; Nov. 19 at McBride Elementary School for Custer Village; Nov. 24 at McBride for Patton Village; and Dec. 2 at Stowers Elementary School for Davis/Bouton Village.

For more information, call Raul Brown at 706-545-0667.

DENTAL ACTIVITY CLOSURES

U.S. Army Dental Activity will participate in the post training holidays Tuesday and Nov. 27. Sand Hill's Salomon Dental Clinic, Building 3255, 11th Airborne Division Road, will remain open for patient care. Sick-call patients should report between 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

All dental clinics will be closed Dec. 24 and 31. For dental emergencies, report to the emergency room.

PARENT TO PARENT WORKSHOPS

Fort Benning's Parent to Parent team has scheduled a series of family workshops this month. The topics include:

"Early Literacy Program," 11 a.m. Tuesday at Sayers Library and 10:30 a.m. Thursday at Donovan Library. Both are open to the public and feature story time with the book My Many Colored Days.

"Math Literacy Program," noon Friday at McGraw Village Community Center, open to the public.

"Science Literacy," 9 a.m. Nov. 17 at St. Joseph's Child Development Center in Fort Mitchell, Ala., open to parents and CDC staff.

"Deployment Activities," 12:30 p.m. Nov. 17 at Sante Fe CDC, open to the public.

"Early Literacy Program," 11 a.m. Nov. 18 at Sayers Library, open to public. Story time with the book, My Many Colored Days.

"Chart Your Course," 6:30 p.m. Nov. 19 at Sayers Library, open to the public. Map out an academic plan with this informative workshop, which includes a poster, passport and an interactive CD to keep and use throughout a child's academic career.

For more information, call 706-405-9857 or e-mail fortbenningp2p@yahoo.com.

MCCW PLANS 'JOURNEY OF FAITH'

Fort Benning's Military Council of Catholic Women invites all to take part in its "Journey of Faith."

The free event begins at 6:30 p.m. Friday with a reception in the home of MCCW president Susy Roe. From 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Nov. 14 at the Follow Me Chapel, the group will explore the Catholic faith through four courses: Navigate the Journey, Share the Journey, Food for the Journey and Celebrate the Journey. A light continental breakfast and lunch will be provided. Child care is available but must be reserved by Friday.

To reserve a seat, call Roe at 706-464-6066 or send an e-mail to FtBenningMCCW@yahoo.com and include your name, address, phone number and children's names and ages if child care is needed.

TAPS SURVIVOR SEMINAR AND GOOD GRIEF CAMP

The Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors will be at Fort Benning Friday and Nov. 14 to provide its free "Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp."

The conferences offer information, resources and personal contact with fellow survivors. Workshops are designed to help survivors heal and cope with life after loss.

The TAPS Good Grief Camp for children and teens provides a safe, supportive atmosphere to conduct activities and opportunities to learn coping skills, establish and identify support systems, and create awareness that they are not alone in the grief of a loved one.

Register at www.taps.org/events. For more information, call Survivor Outreach Services at 706-545-7517 or visit www.benningmwr.com/acs-sos.php.

NEWCOMERS ORIENTATION

Army Community Service has a Newcomer Orientation and Bus Tour from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Friday and Nov. 20 for Soldiers, families and civilians new to Fort Benning.

The program is free and child care is provided. For more information or child-care reservations, call 706-545-0403.

PATIENT EDUCATION CLASSES

The Department of Family Medicine offers group visits to all Tricare beneficiaries. The voluntary, interactive sessions are set up to enlist and validate patients as their own caregivers and address concerns.

All group visits are held at Martin Army Community Hospital in the Department of Family Medicine's Connelly Conference Room. Future meeting topics include:

"Tobacco Cessation" from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 17, Dec. 15 and Jan. 12. The same session is set for 6 to 7:30 p.m. Dec. 1.

"End of Life Care and Advanced Directives," 2 to 4 p.m. Nov. 24; "Fall Prevention As We Age," 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 8; "Herbal Supplements: Helpful and Harmful," 2 to 4 p.m. Feb. 16; and "Treatment of Osteoarthritis," 2 to 4 p.m. March 2.

"Hypertension Education," a discussion about high-blood pressure led by a family physician, clinical pharmacist and dietician, takes place 9 to 11 a.m. Dec. 3. Call 706-544-4853 for more information.

Appointments are not required.

THANKSGIVING BRUNCH AT BENNING CONFERENCE CENTER

Celebrate Thanksgiving with brunch from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Nov. 22 at the Benning Conference Center. The cost is $14.95 per person. Children 6-12 are half price and kids 5 and under eat free.

Reservations are requested. For more information, call 706-682-0640.

CAMP COURAGE APPLICATIONS

Camp Courage is taking applications for children in kindergarten through fifth grade to attend the Nov. 23-27 session. Kids will enjoy many educational and recreational activities in a safe environment.

CYSS registration is free but space is limited. For more information, call 706-545-3605.

TROOPS TO TEACHERS PROGRAM

Bill Kirkland, manager of the Georgia Troops to Teachers Program, will conduct a 90-minute "Transition to Teaching" seminar at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 8 in Module C's Classroom 7. The Module C trailer is closest to the running track on the corner of Eckel and Chesney streets.

Veterans who qualify for the program are eligible to receive a stipend of up to $5,000 to pay for teacher certification and a one-time bonus up to $10,000 once they start teaching.

Call 706-545-3299 for more information. For information on the Georgia Troops to Teachers or Georgia Spouses to Teachers programs, call 800-745-0709 or visit www.tttga.net.

VILLAGES OF BENNING TO THROW HOLIDAY PARTY

The Villages of Benning will have a holiday party for residents from 5 to 8 p.m. Dec. 8 at its welcome center.

The event will feature Santa's elves, live reindeer, food, drinks and treat bags. Children may get their photos taken in a sleigh with Mrs. Claus.

The Villages of Benning Welcome Center is at 601 Lumpkin Street, across from the AAFES gas station. For more information, call 706-685-3939, ext. 205.

WIC PROGRAM CHANGES

Participants in Fort Benning's Women, Infants and Children supplemental nutrition program can choose from a wider variety of healthy foods such as fresh fruit and vegetables, whole-grain rice, cereal, tortillas, bread, soy, and lactose-free milk and tofu. Parents can select either skim, 1 percent or 2 percent milk for children age 2 or older.

WIC also has increased healthy food choices for mothers who choose to breastfeed only.

For those receiving WIC services at Fort Benning or local health departments, the new food packages will be phased in through December. Vendors will continue accepting old vouchers as the new vouchers are introduced.

The Fort Benning WIC office is in Building 2613 at Soldiers' Plaza. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call 706-682-8455 to make an appointment or 800-789-5502 for more information.

PARENTSHARE MEETINGS

ParentShare, a group of military parents with children who have special needs, meets from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the second Monday of every month at Sayers Memorial Library. Children are welcome, and a brown bag or pot-luck lunch is normally planned.

For more information, contact Cristina Castillo at 706-409-1224 or e-mail her at SpecNeedsAdvo@aol.com.

JEWISH WORSHIP SERVICE

There is a Jewish Sabbath worship service at 6:30 p.m. every Friday in the Regimental Chapel on Sand Hill.

OFF POST

CAREER EXPO AND JOB FAIR

The Fountain City Classic Career Expo and Job Fair will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. today at the Columbus Convention and Trade Center, 801 Front Ave. The event is expected to draw 60 employers with job openings.

It also will include about 30 resource and community service providers. Among them are two- and four-year public and private educational institutions and technical colleges whose representatives will provide information about other opportunities.

Job seekers should bring their work history, updated resumes, be prepared to fill out applications, and dress appropriately to interview for openings. They will have access to more than 100 computers for online job search and resume preparation.

AMERICAN LEGION BARBECUE

Charles S. Harrison American Legion Post 35 at 3361 North Lumpkin Road in Columbus hosts its annual membership barbecue from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and Saturday. The event is open to the public.

Post members who bring their membership cards receive a free barbecue plate. The cost is $6.50 for non-members. The American Legion Auxiliary also will host a bake sale, country store, silent auction and purse swap.

All proceeds will go toward the post's veterans, youth and children's welfare programs. For more information, call the American Legion at 706-687-0788.

VETERANS APPRECIATION WEEK

Veterans organizations in the tricommunity have organized a week of activities Sunday through Nov. 14 to honor veterans from all wars and every service branch.

Veterans will be honored at local churches and also visit schools and retirement homes. Blind Veterans Emphasis Day is Friday, while a Veterans Day parade starts at 9 a.m. Nov. 14 in Columbus and Phenix City. Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 5180, located in Seale, Ala., is among the groups entering a float. The event will include an Air Force flyover.

A program honoring veterans is set for 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Nov. 14 at the Columbus Public Library Auditorium, 3000 Macon Road.

For more information, call Sam Nelson at 706-568-4592 or Jerry "Pop" Barnes at 706-442-0249.

COLLEGE WEEK AT CCHS

Chattahoochee County High School will participate in the second annual "Georgia Apply to College Week" Monday through Friday. It's designed to assist Georgia high school seniors as they navigate the college application process using www.GAcollege411.org.

GAcollege411 is where students can plan and pay for college. The site serves as a valuable resource for research, application and financial aid information. Participating seniors will have an opportunity to complete and submit online applications to the Georgia colleges of their choice.

CCHS will have its annual College Night from 6 to 7 p.m. Tuesday. Area colleges and recruiters are invited to set up booths.

To reserve a spot at College Night or for more information about the week, call school guidance counselor Beth Cook at 706-989-3678, ext. 227 or e-mail her at bcook@chattco.org.

CSU VETERANS DAY PROGRAM

State Representative Carolyn Hugley will speak as part of Columbus State University's Veterans Day Celebration and Remembrance Observance at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Davidson Student Center auditorium. The program is free and open to the public.

For more information, call CSU's Office of Veterans Affairs at 706-507-8866.

WEDDINGS FOR WARRIORS

The Savannah Wedding Tourism Council is offering a free program called "Weddings for Warriors" on Veterans Day.

The project will allow military personnel from all branches to get married for free Wednesday in Savannah as a token of appreciation for their service. Guard and Reserve members also are eligible.

"Weddings for Warriors" organizers said a mass ceremony is not the intent. Instead, they want to provide each couple with a private setting to briefly exchange vows.

For more information, call Becky Byous at 912-656-6541 or visit www.weddingsforwarriors.com.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S CLUB LUNCHEON

The Columbus Christian Women's Club monthly luncheon is set for 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday at Green Island Country Club, 6501 Standing Boy Road, in Columbus.

The club will have its annual holiday marketplace bazaar items for sale to include fall arrangements, Christmas decorations and baked goods. A silent and live auction also is planned. Music will be provided and guest speaker Penny Wright will discuss how she overcame poor lifestyle choices.

The cost is $15. For reservations, call Velma McGriff at 706-568-6138 by Tuesday.

KOREAN IDENTITY LECTURE

Columbus State University political science professor Tom Dolan will give a talk titled, "Korean Ethnic Identity in the United States, 1900-1945," at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the Spencer Event Hall at CSU's International House.

The program, part of the lecture series "Twenty Years After the Wall: (Inter)National Identity and the Future of Democracy in the post-Cold War Era," is free and open to the public. For more information, call 706-565-7875.

AUTHOR MORTENSON TO SPEAK AT COLUMBUS STATE UNIVERSITY

Greg Mortenson, the New York Times bestselling co-author of Three Cups of Tea, will speak about the book at 7 p.m. Thursday in Columbus State University's Lumpkin Center.

The book is based on Mortenson's relationship that began in 1993 with a small, impoverished Pakistani village. Mortenson helped establish the village's first school in return for the community aiding and sheltering him following a failed mountaineering expedition. His effort evolved to the Central Asia Institute, which has established 131 schools across rural Pakistan and Afghanistan.

The program, presented by CSU, Chattahoochee Valley Libraries and Brookstone School, is free, but a ticket is required. Tickets are available on campus from the Office of Human Resources, Schwob library and RiverPark campus dean's office. The public can get tickets at all library branches. For more information, e-mail rayfield_stuart@colstate.edu.

OPERATION HOMEFRONT CARE AND SHARE GROUP

Operation Homefront is hosting a family support group meeting from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the USO in the Suburban Extended Stay Hotel, 3662 Victory Drive, in Columbus.

Harold McRae, a licensed psychotherapist with more than 30 years of service to the military, will lead a discussion about how the brain reacts to combat stress and how to recover from trauma.

For more information, contact Operation Homefront at 800-390-2115 or e-mail PTSDFamilySupport@gmail.com.

END-OF-LIFE LECTURE SERIES

VistaCare Hospice Foundation and the Chattahoochee Valley Libraries will present an End-of-Life Lecture Series featuring Dr. Ira Byock, a nationally recognized authority in palliative and end-of-life care and longtime advocate for the seriously ill and their families. He will give three lectures Friday on various topics, including:

"Physician Assisted Suicide: Why Both Sides Are Wrong," 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. on the third floor of Columbus State University's Illges Hall, Room 318. It's open to nursing students and clinicians. Call Dwan Grooms at 706-536-8045 for more information.

"The Nature of Suffering and the Nature of Opportunity through the End of Life," 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. at the John B. Amos Cancer Center Conference Room. The session is open to area physicians by reservation only. Lunch will be provided courtesy of the Columbus Regional Healthcare System. For more information or to RSVP, call Juanita Thomas at 706-536-1672.

"Saying The Four Things That Matter Most," 7 p.m. at Columbus Public Library. The event is free and open to the public. Call Henry McCoy at 706-243-2689 for more information.

Byock's books may be purchased at all presentations. Book signings will take place after each session.

'NERDACON V4' GAMING EVENT

Campus Nerds, a Columbus State University student organization, will stage its fourth annual gaming event, "Nerdacon v4," from 6 to 11:30 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. Nov. 14 in the Davidson Student Center. The event is free and will feature anime viewing, video game tournaments and martial arts demonstrations.

For more information, call 706-568-2273 or go to www.nerdacon.com.

PACELLI OPEN HOUSE

St. Anne Pacelli Catholic School will have a fall campus open house from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Nov. 17. Families interested in pre-K through 12th grades may attend. The event will feature classroom visits, guided tours and refreshments.

For more information, e-mail Pat Nobes at pnobes@sasphs.net or visit the school's Web site at www.sasphs.net.

FREE EVENT FOR CHILDREN OF FALLEN SOLDIERS

Snowball Express sponsors a free charity event each year in which the children of fallen military heroes who died on active duty are brought together for an all-expense-paid gathering of healing. This year's event takes place Dec. 9-13 in Dallas, but the registration deadline is today.

Children and the accompanying surviving parent or legal guardian will be treated to a series of fun activities, including a dude ranch visit, the Mesquite Rodeo and Texas BBQ dinner. Dallas will have a parade honoring the families and they'll be hosted by the Dallas Cowboys. It culminates in a concert by Gary Sinise and the Lt. Dan Band at the new Dallas Cowboys Stadium.

The children will meet others who have also suffered this loss and get an opportunity to make new friends. Organizers expect more than 1,300 attendees from all over the world.

Eligible children are only those listed on the fallen service member's DD Form 1300 Report of Casualty. For more information, visit www.snowballexpress.org.

Kids learn with music

Rachel Jackson

Musical performer Shawn Brown performed a concert for about 400 children ages 2 to 5 from child development centers around post Friday at the Child, Youth and School Services Gym. Brown, a children's music artist who has produced seven albums, has been singing children's music for seven years. His music includes songs about the alphabet, numbers and improving motor skills. The performance was a wrap-up to the day care's scholastic book fair.

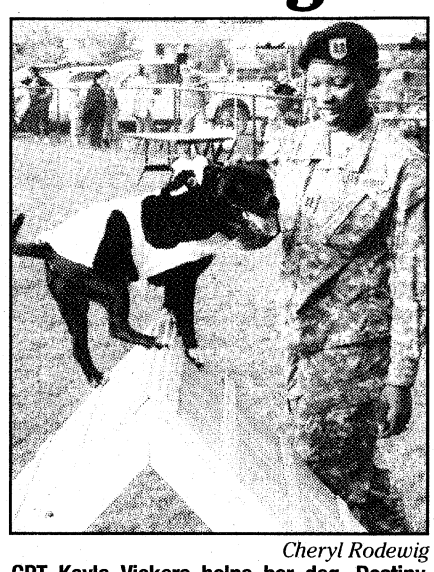
them all the attention they deserve while he's gone," she said. "(And) it gets me out of the house, as opposed to locking myself in the house for a year when my husband's deployed. If I bring them out there, it gives me a break to sit here and read ... I can just let them run."



Allie dressed up her two yellow labs, Dallas and Rudy, as a devil and a firefighter.

All the dogs looked cute in their outfits, said Kayla, who claimed a prize on Destiny's behalf for the high jump.

"I'm so happy. I didn't think she was going to win," Kayla said. "It was awesome. Whenever they have something at the dog park, we'll be here."

Hines said she expects to do another Halloween event for dogs next year, though it may be at the new five-acre dog park near the intersection of First Division Road and Yeager Avenue, which opens next spring.

The Fort Benning Dog Park, located on Edwards Street behind Faith Middle School, is open only to dog owners who have a pet registered with the Fort Benning Vet Office. Outside the park, dogs must remain on a leash at all times. The park is not open to banned dogs, including pit bulls and rottweilers. For more information, call 706-545-7978.

Bash: Rewards best costumes members served as judges of the chili cook-off.

The weather, which forced postponement of planned hayrides, didn't bother Tom Danek. The staff sergeant sat underneath the big outdoor tent for a hot bowl of chili with his wife, Kimberly, and their 19-month-old daughter, Sophia, who was decked out in an elephant costume.

"It's a good showing," Danek said of the turnout. "There might be even more people if not for the rain."

Four-year-old twins Joshua and Cameron Staugler, dressed as a Soldier and Army aviator, respectively, won in the "cutest child category" during costume judging.

SFC Thomas Flaherty, wearing a large, inflatable deer costume, was "chased" around the grounds all evening by his 5-year-old daughter, Holly, who wore camouflaged hunting gear while brandishing a bow and arrow. Collectively, they were named "best family costume."

Lilly Morgan, 3, was selected "best overall child costume" as Snow White. Her older sister, Lacey, 9, wore a dead bride costume and took first place in the "scariest child" category.

"My mom put on a really cool video (Tim Burton's Corpse Bride). I saw how pretty she looked and I wanted to look like her for Halloween," Lacey said. "I'm happy 'cause I won. I really, really liked (the party)."

Crafts: To adorn White House

Girls Inc. chapters selected to complete 10 ornaments.

Girls Inc. is a national youth organization dedicated to preparing girls to lead successful and independent lives, according to its Web site. The organization has four centers located in Columbus.

Although the organization was given the option to cut and paste images of local and state landmarks on the large silver ball ornaments, Ruby Moler-Wilks, program director, said they used only local points of interest.

"We are proud of our heritage, so we chose to focus on Fort Benning and Columbus," she said.

The Mildred Terry Library, Columbus Museum, Ma Rainey's house and Naval Museum join the National Infantry Museum as a few of the 10 landmarks chosen.

"I just think it's an amazing place," Hyatt said of the National Infantry Museum. "We just had to do it."

After visiting the museum this summer, Hyatt said the girls have an appreciation for soldiers.

"To teach the girls that their freedom has a cost is incredible," she said.

Monique, whose father redeployed from Iraq two months ago, said she doesn't normally like craft projects, but this was different.

Her father, SSG William Marshall of the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion, said he was proud his daughter could be included in the special project.

"I was excited and surprised," said Alyssa Donaldson, who also helped out with the ornaments. The 12-year-old said being slightly nervous didn't stop her from participating.

Although the ornaments will be mailed to the White House next Friday, Moler-Wilks said the knowledge the girls received doing the project will always be with them.

Students: To write books

"They're volunteering, which I think is the basic responsibility of a citizen of this country, and that is to be prepared and defend his country when he is needed."

It's important to remember the sacrifices made for the sake of freedom, he said.

"One of the things I think we should remember always — every day, not just Veterans Day or July the Fourth or any other patriotic holiday — freedom is not free," Puckett said. "It has to be bought. It has to paid for. It has to be defended. And our Soldiers are defending it. They're defending it by being stationed throughout the world: over 100 places, and they're defending it by preparing themselves for battle right here."

After the program, children shook hands with the veterans.

"I thought it was pretty cool to shake somebody's hand who was in the war," 11-year-old Nathan Vanover said. "They're the ones who made this country what it is today, and they've kept us safe. They're the ones who've founded freedom."

As part of the living history project, McBride students in third through fourth grades will hear from a different veteran each month throughout the school year, Koger said.

"If they hear it from a primary source, they're going to remember it a lot more than if they just read it in a book," she said. "They'll have a personal connection with the person and with the history. Living at Fort Benning, I think it's important ... that they have an appreciation for what those Soldiers have done for them and are still doing today."

Students will interview the veterans and write books about them as class projects. The books will be published in the spring.

Energy Awareness Month

Charles Marshall, resource efficiency manager for Fort Benning, gives a presentation about how to reduce energy consumption Oct. 13 at Lloyd Elementary School. The presentation, which coincided with Energy Awareness Month, dealt with recycling, reusing products and renewable energy sources, such as solar energy. In partnership with the Fort Benning School Board, Atmos Energy, Georgia Power and Flint Energies Inc., Fort Benning provided presentations to the fourth and fifth grades at McBride Elementary School and Lloyd Elementary School, teaching them about conservation and resources.

Band commander retires

Cheryl Rodewig

Fort Benning Manuever Center of Excellence CSM Earl Rice, left, and MG Michael Ferriter, the post commanding general, congratulate CW4 Fred Catchings, commander of the Maneuver Center of Excellence Band, on his years of service and leadership. Ferriter presented Catchings with a coin for exellence Oct. 25 during a jazz concert at Riverside. After 23 years of Army service, Catchings will retire in December. "I've come full circle, so it's time to retire," said Catchings, who began his Army career at Fort Benning, his station of choice, as a woodwind specialist. "Just the experience of playing in front of worldwide audiences is what's so great about the Army. I've represented the United States in Germany, Korea, Qatar, Kuwait, Kosova, Macedonia and Bulgaria — all these wonderful audiences that love American music, and it's been tremendous."

AFAP: Addresses families' concerns

districts," Deas said.

The housing issues ranged from speed limits to establishing an educational program on basic allowance for housing, said Stacie Boyer, the AFAP program manager.

"A lot of housing issues were discussed in detail and most will be addressed locally," said Bob Chenowith, community director for Pinnacle.

Nine issues will be forwarded to the Training and Doctrine Command AFAP conference next year, Boyer said. Bernard Goss, the Customer Services officer, will work the other issues for the installation.

The nine to go forward are:

Access to Routine Care Appointments

The medical and dental work group discussed a lack of access to routine and follow-up medical appointments at Martin Army Community Hospital primarily affecting dependants and retirees.

The recommendation is to establish an immediate referral system anytime a routine care appointment cannot be made within seven days or require hospital staff to provide individuals with information about the system in order to make a timely appointment.

Revision of Orthodontic Plan Coverage

The medical and dental work group discussed insufficient coverage of orthodontic treatment. The lifetime cap is currently $1,500 per family member. The issue read, "The existing lifetime cap does not accurately reflect 50 percent of coverage of orthodontic treatment. Military families are incurring exorbitant out of pocket expenses due to orthodontic treatment."

The recommendation is to eliminate the lifetime cap on orthodontic care or amend coverage to include a cap on out of pocket expenses that do not exceed 20 percent of orthodontic care.

Immigration and Citizenship fee exemption for dependants of military personnel

The family support and consumer services work group discussed paying citizenship and immigration fees for dependants of military personnel. The issue stated the result as an emotional and financial hardship for military families. The work group recommended an exemption of fees for dependants of military personnel applying for citizenship and naturalization who meet the basic requirements for citizenship and immigration.

Customer Management Services program collects local issues from ICE comment cards, surveys and focus groups. To submit an issue, visit the AFAP Web page on the Fort Benning DFMWR Web site.

Lack of Support and Communication for Family Members of Individual Augmentees

The family support and consumer services work group discussed the lack of support and communication to family members of individual augmentees. The work group recommended developing, implementing and funding a standardized program for augmentees and their families, or revising the deployment cycle support checklist to include support to family members of augmentees.

The housing and force support work group discussed impairment of attendance and participation at town hall meetings. The issue called for changes to allow greater community involvement.

The work group's recommendation was to establish and maintain a town hall Web site where archived, televised recordings and interactive questions and answers can be accessed.

Matching Funds for the Thrift Savings Program Contributions for Military Service Members

Service members do not receive matching funds for TSP contributions. "The Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act authorizes the Secretary of Defense to designate matching contributions to service members. Increased participation by those who serve less than 20 years will result in improved benefits toward personal retirement. Matching funds would encourage more participation in the TSP and provide an incentive for recruitment and retention," stated the issue. The work group recommended matching contributions to the TSP for service members.

Educational Program for BAH Distribution

The benefits and entitlements work group discussed the lack of knowledge surrounding BAH, leading to low morale, resentment and frustration. "Soldiers of different pay grades are living in the same housing division paying varied amounts for rent, which causes concern regarding BAH," stated the submitted issue.

The committee recommended establishing and implementing a program to explain how BAH is used.

Army Career and Alumni Program and Transition Services Awareness

The education and employment work group discussed the lack of education regarding ACAP and transition services throughout a Soldier's career, which can lead to difficulty transitioning out of the Army when they are not aware of the existence of transition services.

The work group's recommended incorporating mandatory ACAP awareness briefings at orientation, mid-level and career-level courses or implement ACAP awareness briefings at family readiness group meetings and Army family team building courses.

Funding for Military Impacted Schools Association Principal Workshops

The education and employment work group discussed the lack of sufficient funds to implement the MISA workshops, an existing program that fosters sensitivity and awareness among educators and school staff toward military children. The work group recommended funding MISA for the implementation of principal workshops.

The annual Department of the Army AFAP conference is in January.

Feedback and issues from the Fort Benning AFAP conference can be found at www.benningmwr.com. Feedback and issues from the HQDA AFAP conference can be found at www.myarmyonesource.com.

FROM THE FORT BENNING BLOG

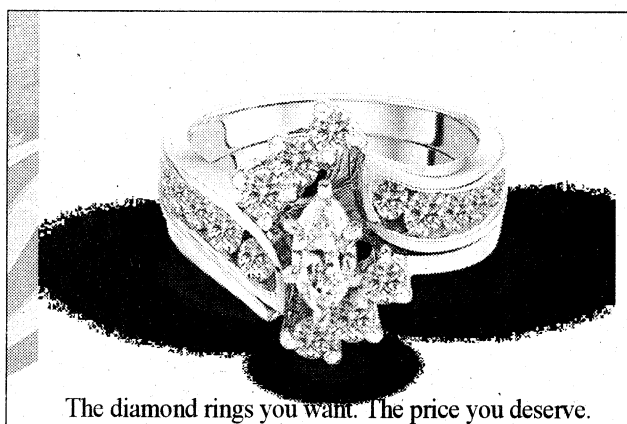
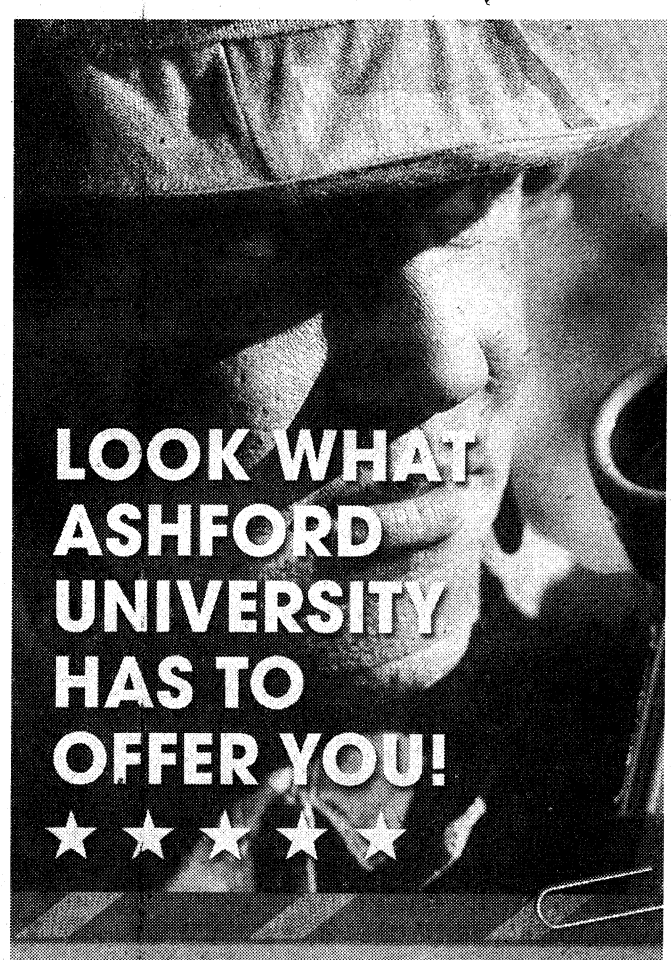
years Mr. Hensley worked tirelessly to help Soldiers and their families. He increased truckload sales and the frequency of sidewalk sales. He entered every contest and promotion offered by vendors to win prizes and money that could be returned back to the Fort Benning community. He's particularly proud of the 2005 Wisk Laundry Detergent "Win a Dream Field" contest, when Fort Benning beat all of the other commissaries, as well as national retail chains to win money to renovate a baseball field and a visit from baseball legend Cal Ripken Jr.

"We beat Walmart," he said with a smile. "And we won $20,000 to fix Gowdy Field."

However, after 34 years with the Defense Commissary Agency he knew it was time to move on. He kept his retirement quiet, but that didn't stop MG Michael Ferriter from honoring his service at the quarterly Excellence Breakfast Friday, where he received a bayonet plaque and a standing ovation. He said he was thankful, but ever humble, Hensley said he's not big on that sort of thing.



"I get paid to do a job and it's an honor to serve Soldiers," he said. "This has been a really fun job and we've done a lot during my time here. We've had two huge welcome home celebrations and even though they're a headache to plan, when the Soldiers come home and you see all the smiles, it's worth it." When I asked him what he planned to do during his retirement he smiled and said he was looking for a job. "There are a lot of places that need help with customer service and I think I can teach them a thing or two."



He's right. There are a lot of places that need help with customer service and there are even more managers and directors who have forgotten that they aren't too good to do the jobs they ask of their employees. Just ask any of the 147 plus commissary employees and they'll tell you it wasn't uncommon to see Mr. Hensley mopping floors, picking up trash, bringing in shopping carts or stocking shelves— nothing was beneath him. For the past 35 years he's devoted his life to the betterment of the quality of life for our Soldiers and their families and he will surely be missed by the entire Fort Benning community.

Workaholics can lose more than a job in long run

Chaplain (CPT) Steve Doyle
3RD BATTALION, 47TH INFANTRY REGIMENT

Some of us enjoy work. Some of us hate work. Some of us put up with work. And some of us make work our life.

I'd like to speak to the last group, here: workaholics. I'm talking to those among us who are never able to let go — you know who you are. You go to work when it's dark and come home when it's dark. It's not so much that you don't know when to stop; it's just that you can't. You're driven from deep within to keep on charging forward, no matter what. It's not your fault: you can't turn it off. Many of these qualities are admirable in their own right if seasoned with common sense and balance.

Employers love workaholics, especially if the boss is a workaholic. What workaholics fail to see is the heartache they can create in their lives and in the lives of those around them. They follow a pretty predictable pattern. Since their job is their priority, they can suffer from broken relationships, failed marriages and broken promises. There's a true story of a Soldier deployed to the National Training Center who told his sergeant, "I have two wives: the Army and my second wife." The seasoned NCO answered him, "Then you will probably lose one of the two fairly quickly. If you don't watch it, you will lose both of them for sure."

Everyone appreciates a competent worker and a job well done. Nevertheless, there are many other moving pieces to the puzzle of life. How easy is it for our strengths to turn into our weaknesses? People know if you care about them or if you just care about getting the job done. We can't treat people like they're fast food meals, using and abusing them, then throwing them away.

Finally, balance is a word you will never hear in a workaholic's vocabulary. The workaholic is far too busy for that. By failing to prioritize, all things become important, and, as a result, nothing becomes important. Now, the workaholic must work at both ends of the candle to accomplish all the things that really don't need to get done. And what gets left behind is you — the real you.

So, let me ask you, what are you working for? Is it bringing you what you want out of life? Is this really your idea of happiness? And what are you avoiding by staying at work so long? Does being constantly busy help you solve any of the core issues of your life?

Go home and work on living your life and if you are someone's boss, let your subordinates go home, too.

Deter, detect identity theft with proper precautions

CPT Keith Stewart
OFFICE OF THE STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE

Most of us have heard of the horror stories associated with identity theft and how difficult it can be to erase the harm inflicted by identity thieves. The Federal Trade Commission suggests ways to substantially decrease the chances of having your identity stolen by using the three Ds: deter, detect and defend.

The first step is to deter identity thieves by protecting your personal information. You should always shred all financial documents that contain sensitive information before they are discarded. This includes bank statements, credit card statements, student loan information and any other sensitive financial documentation that may be used to steal your identity. To minimize the potential risks of these type of documents falling into the wrong hands, many financial companies offer an electronic bill option, as opposed to the traditional paper option. Not only is this option safer, it is also more environmentally friendly. Always protect your Social Security number. Don't carry your Social Security card in your wallet or write your number on a check. Give it out only if absolutely necessary or ask to use another identifier. Never use obvious passwords when banking online, such as your birth date, mother's maiden name, or the last four digits of your Social Security number. Use a password you can remember but that wouldn't be obvious to anyone. Keep your personal information in a secure place, especially if you live in barracks or with roommates.

The second step is to detect suspicious activity by routinely monitoring your financial accounts and billing statements. Specifically, you should be alert to signs that require immediate attention including bills that do not arrive as expected, unexpected credit cards or account statements, denials of credit for no apparent reason, and calls or letters about purchases you did not make. Make sure you inspect your credit report. Credit reports contain information about you, including what accounts you have and your bill paying history. The law requires the major nationwide consumer reporting companies—Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion—to give you a free copy of your credit report each year if you ask for it. Visit www.AnnualCreditReport.com or call 877-322-8228, a service created by these three companies, to order your free credit reports each year. You also can write: Annual Credit Report Request Service, P.O. Box 105281, Atlanta, GA 30348-5281.

Lastly, if you think someone has stolen your identity you must defend against identity theft as soon as you suspect it. The first thing you should do is place a "Fraud Alert" on your credit reports, and review the reports carefully. The alert tells creditors to follow certain procedures before they open new accounts in your name or make changes to your existing accounts. The three nationwide consumer reporting companies have toll-free numbers for placing an initial 90-day fraud alert; a call to one company is sufficient: Equifax: 800-525-6285, Experian: 888-EXPERIAN (397-3742), TransUnion: 800-680-7289.

If you are deployed and do not expect to seek new credit while you are deployed, consider placing an "active-duty alert" on your credit report. An active-duty alert requires creditors to take steps to verify your identity before granting credit in your name. It is effective for one year, unless you ask for it to be removed sooner. If your deployment lasts longer than a year, you may place another alert on your report. To place an active duty alert or have it removed, call the toll-free fraud number of one of the three nationwide consumer reporting companies. The law allows you to use a personal representative to place or remove an alert. Placing a fraud alert entitles you to free copies of your credit reports. Look for inquiries from companies you haven't contacted, accounts you didn't open, and debts on your accounts that you can't explain.

Close any accounts that have been tampered with or established fraudulently. Call the security or fraud departments of each company where an account was opened or changed without your OK. Follow up in writing, with copies of supporting documents. Use the ID Theft Affidavit at ftc.gov/idtheft to support your written statement. Ask for verification that the disputed account has been closed and the fraudulent debts discharged. Keep copies of documents and records of your conversations about the theft. File a report with law enforcement officials to help you with creditors who may want proof of the crime. Report the theft to the Federal Trade Commission at 877-438-4338 or 866-653-4261 or Identity Theft Clearinghouse, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. Your report helps law enforcement officials across the country in their investigations.

To learn more about identity theft, visit ftc.gov/idtheft, the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, Legal Assistance Division, located in Building 359, 7021 Ingersoll St. or call 706-545-3281.

The March of Dimes

Rings in season of sharing at Callaway

A multicolored Fantasy in Lights sign greets visitors as they enter the largest light show in the Southeast, featuring a dozen illuminated, Christmas-themed scenes.

Lori Egan
THE BAYONET

I look forward to the March of Dimes Walk at Callaway Gardens every year because it combines four positives in one activity — walking, looking at beautiful lights, listening to Christmas music and the cost goes toward a good cause.

Fantasy in Lights is one of the signature holiday events in the South. Always on a Sunday around Thanksgiving, Callaway opens its Fantasy in Lights five-mile trail to walkers alone — no trolley or cars — only walkers, wagons and baby strollers.

Last year, nearly 6,000 people walked for the March of Dimes, and because the entry times are staggered, not everyone is on the trail at the same time. And regardless of what anyone might say (Tom Siter) — it's not a competitive walk.

A tree at Callaway Gardens is reflected in Mountain View Lake.

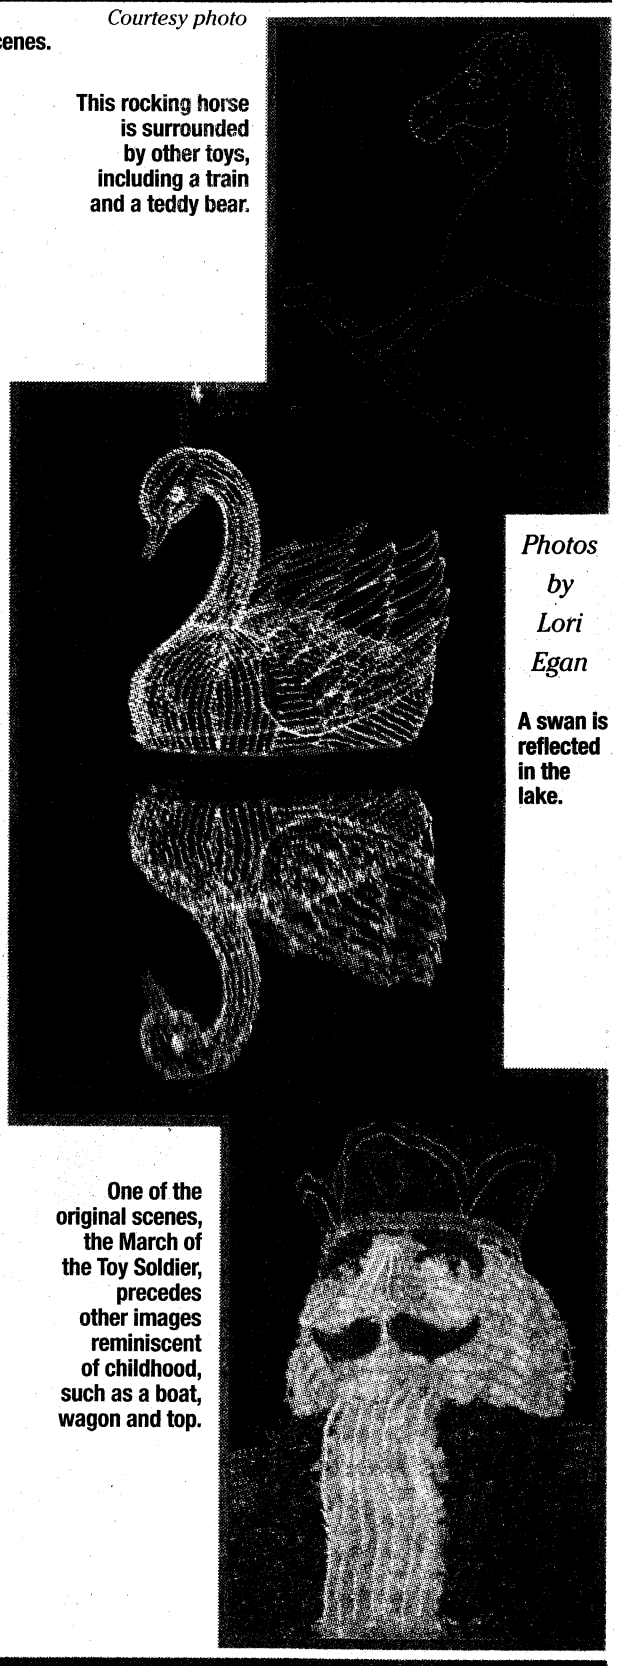
With more than a gazillion lights — trust me, I've counted them — Fantasy in Lights is the southeast's largest light show with holiday scenes set to classic Christmas music. The lighted displays include snowflakes, a frog jumping on a lily pad, ice skaters, toy soldiers and Santa's workshop.

When Fantasy in Lights opened in 1992, there were five scenes. Now, there are more than 12 — connected to power and sound by more than 32 miles of cable, using 12 million ties to keep the cables in place and more than 3,500 extension cords keep the lights on. The newest scene, Enchanted Rainbow Forest, has 410 controlled images, almost three times the number of images used in The Twelve Days of Christmas.

To turn on the show, it takes two people at least 45 minutes to flip more than 1,000 switches. And at the end of the night, they have to flip all the switches again.

One year, after convincing friends and co-workers to experience the lights on foot, they talked about the "forced march" for weeks afterward. They didn't know my goal is to walk the Twelve Days of Christmas scene in only one repetition of the song.

One of my most favorite scenes, I actually stop, is the reflection of a tree on Mountain View Lake. I drive my daughter nuts trying to get the perfect picture. Every year, I think I've got it, but I don't, and I refuse to carry a tripod.



If you don't take the shuttle bus back to Robin Lake, you get to walk another two miles.

And on Robin Lake Beach, there are two more scenes — 'Twas the Night Before Christmas and The Nativity. These include narration and last about 10 minutes a piece. Entry for the walk costs $16 for adults, $8 for children 6 to 12, and children 5 and younger get in free, but they need a ticket in advance. The start times are 6, 6:30 and 7 p.m. For more information, call the March of Dimes office at 706-660-0160.

And Callaway Gardens has a spectacular offer for military who want to see Fantasy in Lights. This year, Soldiers and their families can purchase a voucher from Omega World Travel for $6 a person. To purchase the voucher, they must present their military ID card.

Omega World Travel is located in the old PX, Building 9230 on Marne Road. To contact them, call 706-685-1151 between 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. weekdays or 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays or send an e-mail to mpizarro@owt.net.

The vouchers are valid Nov. 23-24, 29-30 and Dec. 1-3, 6-10, 13-17 and 27-30.

This rocking horse is surrounded by other toys, including a train and a teddy bear.

A swan is reflected in the lake.

One of the original scenes, the March of the Toy Soldier, precedes other images reminiscent of childhood, such as a boat, wagon and top.

With lighted trees in a variety of colors, Christmas Tree Lane is both the beginning and ending point of the Fantasy in Lights journey. The scene was added in 1993.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

Sorority Row: Don't rush to see it

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

Jennifer's Body, a horror movie that delved into female power and its sometimes problematic nature, is a movie that gave me hope for the slasher movie Sorority Row.

Sorority Row is mostly about girl power and doesn't strive for any deeper meaning.

The opening scene introduces the main girls, who are setting up a guy because he dissed one of the sisters. They fake the death of one of the sisters, and in commission of the prank, the death becomes real. They, and the guy they were punking, freak. Cassidy (Brianna Evigan) urges the group to own up to the accident. Jessica (Leah Pipes) argues there is no sense in letting a tragic accident ruin their lives. Jessica sways the group and they dump the dead girl down a well. That's that until they start getting weird cell phone calls and people show up dead.

To be honest, the slasher isn't my kind of horror film because the subgenre depends more on shock and less on atmosphere. However, there are exceptions, such as Psycho, the first couple of Nightmare on Elm Street movies and the original Halloween. (Rob Zombie should consult with John Carpenter.) So it can be done.

Sorority Row tries. Although the girls start out uniformly unpleasant, after the initial killing different personalities develop. Jessica is the ruthless power grabber. Cassidy has the conscience and a heroic streak. Ellie (Rumer Willis) starts out as a wuss, but redeems herself with a late moment of kick butt.

And of course, Carrie Fisher, the original refined tough babe, proves she still has it as a shotgun-toting housemother protecting her girls.

Really, this is not a good movie.

OPENING THIS WEEK

THE FOURTH KIND

In 1972, a scale of measurement was established for alien encounters. When a UFO is sighted, it is called an encounter of the first kind. When evidence is collected, it is known as an encounter of the second kind. When contact is made with extraterrestrials, it is the third kind. The next level, abduction, is the fourth kind. This encounter has been the most difficult to document — until now. Set in modern-day Nome, Alaska, where — mysteriously since the 1960s — a disproportionate number of the population has been reported missing every year. Despite multiple FBI investigations of the region, the truth has never been discovered. Here in this remote region, psychologist Dr. Abigail Tyler (Milla Jovovich) began videotaping sessions with traumatized patients and unwittingly discovered some of the most disturbing evidence of alien abduction ever documented.

The Fourth Kind is rated PG-13 for violent and disturbing images, some terror, thematic elements and brief sexuality.

THE BOX

An unhappily married couple receive a small wooden box on their doorstep. At the push of a button, the box brings its bearer instant wealth but also instantly kills someone the bearer doesn't know.

The Box stars Cameron Diaz, James Marsden and Frank Lagella. It is rated PG-13 for thematic elements, some violence and disturbing images.

THE MEN WHO STARE AT GOATS

Reporter Bob Wilton (Ewan McGregor) is in search of his next big story when he encounters Lyn Cassady (George Clooney), a shadowy figure who claims to be part of an experimental U.S. military unit. According to Cassady, the New Earth Army is changing the way wars are fought. A legion of "Warrior Monks" with unparalleled psychic powers can read the enemy's thoughts, pass through solid walls, and even kill a goat simply by staring at it. Now, the program's founder, Bill Django (Jeff Bridges), has gone missing and Cassady's mission is to find him. Intrigued by his new acquaintance's far-fetched stories, Bob impulsively decides to tag along. When the pair tracks Django to a clandestine training camp run by renegade psychic Larry Hooper (Kevin Spacey), the reporter is trapped in the middle of a grudge match between the forces of Django's New Earth Army and Hooper's personal militia of super soldiers. In order to survive this wild adventure, Bob will have to outwit an enemy he never thought possible.

The Men Who Stare at Goats is rated R for language, some drug content and brief nudity.

DISNEY'S A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Ebenezer Scrooge begins the Christmas holiday with his usual miserly contempt, barking at his faithful clerk and his cheery nephew. But when the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Yet to Come take him on an eye-opening journey revealing truths Old Scrooge is reluctant to face, he must open his heart to undo years of ill will before it's too late.

A Christmas Carol stars the voices of Jim Carrey, Gary Oldman, Bob Hoskins, Colin Firth, Robin Wright Penn and Cary Elwes. It is rated PG for scary sequences and images and is offered in 3-D.

COCO BEFORE CHANEL

This is the story of Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel (Audrey Tautou), who begins her life as a headstrong orphan, and through an extraordinary journey becomes the legendary couturier who embodied the modern woman and became a timeless symbol of success, freedom and style.

Coco before Chanel is rated PG-13 for sexual content and smoking.

NOW PLAYING

AMELIA

After becoming the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, Amelia (Hilary Swank) was thrust into a new role as America's sweetheart — the legendary "goddess of light," known for her bold, larger-than-life charisma. Yet, even with her global fame solidified, her belief in flirting with danger and standing up as her own, outspoken woman never changed. She was an inspiration to people everywhere, from First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt (Cherry Jones) to the men closest to her heart: her husband, promoter and publishing magnate George P. Putnam (Richard Gere), and her long time friend and lover, pilot Gene Vidal (Ewan McGregor). In the summer of 1937, Amelia set off on her most daunting mission yet: a solo flight around the world that she and George both anxiously foresaw as destined, whatever the outcome, to become one of the most talked-about journeys in history.

Amelia is rated PG for some sensuality, language, thematic elements and smoking.

PLAY THE GAME

A young ladies man teaches his dating tricks to his lonely, widowed, grandfather, and plays his best mind games to meet the woman of his dreams.

Play the Game stars Andy Griffith, Doris Roberts and Paul Campbell, VII. It is rated PG-13 for sexual content and language.

SAW VI

Special Agent Strahm is dead, and Detective Hoffman (Costas Mandylor) is the unchallenged successor to Jigsaw's legacy. However, when the FBI draws closer to Hoffman, he is forced to set a game into motion, and Jigsaw's grand scheme is finally understood.

Saw VI is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture and language.

MICHAEL JACKSON'S THIS IS IT

A rare glimpse into the final days of Michael Jackson, the documentary is compiled from an estimated 80 hours of rehearsal and behind-the-scenes footage of the legendary entertainer preparing for his 50 sold-out shows at London's O2 Arena that were scheduled to commence in July 2009 before his untimely death in June at age 50. Interviews with collaborators and close friends of the late performer are also featured.

Michael Jackson's This Is It is a documentary and is rated PG for some suggestive choreography and scary images.

ASTRO BOY

Set in futuristic Metro City, Astro Boy (Freddie Highmore) is a young robot with incredible powers — super strength, X-ray vision, unbelievable speed and the ability to fly. Powered by positive "blue" energy, Astro Boy was created by a brilliant scientist named Dr. Tenma (Nicolas Cage).

Embarking on a journey in search of acceptance, Astro Boy encounters many colorful characters. Through his adventures, he learns the joys and emotions of being human, and gains the strength to embrace his destiny. Ultimately learning his friends and family are in danger, Astro Boy marshals his awesome superpowers and returns to Metro City in a valiant effort to save everything he cares about and to understand what it means to be a hero.

Astro Boy is rated PG for action and peril, and language.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Max, a rambunctious and sensitive boy feels misunderstood at home and escapes to where the Wild Things are. He lands on an island where he meets mysterious and strange creatures whose emotions are as wild and unpredictable as their actions. The Wild Things desperately long for a leader to guide them, just as Max longs for a kingdom to rule. When Max is crowned king, he promises to create a place where everyone will be happy. Max soon finds, though, that ruling his kingdom is not so easy and his relationships there prove to be more complicated than he originally thought.

Where the Wild Things Are is rated PG for mild thematic elements, some adventure action and brief language.

THE STEPFATHER

Michael Harding (Penn Badgley) returns home from military school to find his mother (Sela Ward) happily in love and living with her new boyfriend, David (Dylan Walsh). As the two men get to know each other, Michael becomes suspicious of the man who is always there with a helpful hand. Is he really the man of her dreams or could David be hiding a dark side?

The Stepfather is rated PG-13 for violence, disturbing images, mature thematic material and brief sensuality.

CIRQUE DU FREAK: THE VAMPIRE'S ASSISTANT

Fourteen-year-old Darren (Chris Massoglia) is like most kids in the neighborhood. He gets decent grades and usually stays out of trouble. But when he and his buddy stumble upon a traveling freak show, things begin to change inside Darren. That's the exact moment when a vampire named Larten Crepsley (John C. Reilly) turns him into something, well, bloodthirsty.

Cirque Du Freak: The Vampire's Assistant is rated PG-13 for sequences of supernatural violence and action, images, thematic elements and language.

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN

Clyde Shelton (Gerard Butler) is a family man whose wife and daughter are brutally murdered during a home invasion. When the killers are caught, Philadelphia prosecutor Nick Rice (Jamie Foxx) is assigned to the case. Nick is forced by his boss to offer one of the suspects a light sentence in exchange for testifying against his accomplice. Fast-forward 10 years. The man who got away with murder is found dead and Shelton admits his guilt. Then he issues a warning to Nick: Fix the flawed justice system that failed his family, or key players in the trial will die.

From his jail cell, Shelton orchestrates a string of spectacularly diabolical assassinations that can be neither predicted nor prevented, and only Nick can stop the killing.

He must outwit the sociopath in a harrowing contest of wills in which even the smallest misstep means death. With his own family now in Shelton's crosshairs, Nick finds himself in a desperate race against time facing a deadly adversary who seems always to be one step ahead.

Law Abiding Citizen is rated R for violence and torture, a rape scene and language.

ZOMBIELAND

Two men have found a way to survive a world overrun by zombies. Columbus (Jesse Eisenberg) is a big wuss — but when you're afraid of being eaten by zombies, fear can keep you alive. Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson) is an AK-totin', zombie-slayer whose single determination is to get the last Twinkie on earth. As they join forces with Wichita (Emma Stone) and Little Rock (Abigail Breslin), who have also found unique ways to survive the zombie mayhem, they have to determine which is worse: relying on each other or succumbing to the zombies.

The movie is rated R for zombie horror, violence, gore and language.

CLOUDY WITH A CHANCE OF MEATBALLS

Inspired by the children's book, the film focuses on a town where food falls from the sky like rain. Bill Hader voices Flint Lockwood, a young inventor who dreams of creating something that will improve everyone's life. Anna Faris takes on the role of Sam Sparks, a weathergirl covering the phenomenon who hides her intelligence behind a perky exterior. Mr. T plays the by-the-rules town cop Earl Devereaux, and Tracy Morgan takes on the role of Earl's rule-breaking son, Cal. This movie is rated PG for brief mild language.

VETERANS DAY

Raymond Weeks of Birmingham, Alabama, organized a Veterans Day parade for that city on November 11, 1947, to honor all of America's veterans for their loyal service. Later, U.S. Representative Edward H. Rees of Kansas proposed legislation changing the name of Armistice Day to Veterans Day to honor all who have served in America's Armed Forces.

In 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed a bill proclaiming November 11th as Veterans Day and called upon Americans everywhere to rededicate themselves to the cause of peace. He issued a Presidential Order directing the head of the Veterans Administration, now the Department of Veterans Affairs, to form a Veterans Day National Committee to organize and oversee the national observance of Veterans Day.

In 1968, Congress moved Veterans Day to the fourth Monday in October. However, it became apparent that the November 11th date was historically significant to a great many Americans. As a result, Congress formally returned the observance of Veterans Day to its traditional date in 1978.

The Veterans Day National Ceremony is held each year on November 11th at Arlington National Cemetery. At 11 a.m., a color guard, made up of members from each of the military services, renders honors to America's war dead during a tradition-rich ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknowns. The President or his representative places a wreath at the Tomb and a bugler sounds "Taps." The balance of the ceremony, including a "Parade of Flags" by numerous veterans service organizations, takes place inside the Memorial Amphitheater, adjacent to the Tomb.

SFC David Chatham with a Bradley

Sergeant First Class (SFC) David Chatham lost a leg after the Bradley Fighting Vehicle he was commanding was struck by a rocket propelled grenade.

Staff Sergeant (SSG) Javier Villanueva suffered nerve damage to his foot when his Stryker unit was ambushed.

An IED explosion caused nerve damage and traumatic brain injury to First Sergeant Mario Cirinese (1SG).

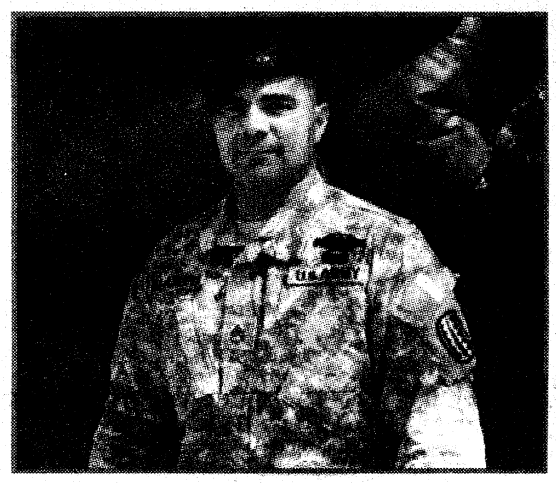
Despite these severe injuries, all three are back on active duty and serving Soldiers at Fort Benning.

In the past, severely wounded Soldiers were medically discharged but now many are being retained. All Soldiers found unfit for duty by a Physical Evaluation Board are eligible to apply for Continuation on Active Duty regardless of the extent of their injuries.

According to the Army, the culture is changing and severely wounded, injured, and ill Soldiers continue to serve the country productively in every field, grade, assignment, and component. Most Army Wounded Warrior (AW2) Soldiers who request to continue to serve the nation have been able to do so.

Duties range from administrative and training, to testing equipment for other Soldiers. Some Wounded Warriors continue to work within the Warrior Transition Units (WTUs) or become recruiters or instructors. Many elect to return to their units or to other worldwide assignments. They are eligible for promotions, and both military and civilian education and professional development.

"Wounded warriors are a walking example that the Army takes care of its own… we have a place for you and work for you to do," says SFC Chatham. The Silver Star recipient was one of the first to push to stay in the service. With 14 years in the Army, he was concerned about what else he could do not just physically but emotionally. "I can't think of life without the Army. I was thinking I don't want some insurgent to make the decision about my career," he recalls.



Since he felt he could still contribute, SFC Chatham applied to return to active duty. "The Army spends tens of thousands in the course of your career," he explains. "The last thing you want to do is get rid of that guy and get rid of the knowledge. Instead you want to put him in a practical setting to pass on (the knowledge) and he can still be useful." The Army agreed with Chaham's belief and for three years the amputee was a platform instructor. He is now writing doctrine with the 1st battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 197th Infantry Brigade.

1SG Cirinese is back with his unit, the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division (3rd HBCT, 3rd ID). "I don't want to be away. I love working with soldiers," he says and adds "The Army invested a lot in my training and I owe it to them."

Although he had to watch in October as his fellow soldiers boarded planes for Iraq, 1SG Cirinese is still mission focused, serving as the Rear Detachment Sergeant Major. He has deployed three times with the unit and says although he would like to go again he feels he is still contributing. "My experience level is high. I've been here a long time and know the ins and outs," he explains. "I hope to bring something to the fight."

The 17-year veteran says not only did the leadership of the unit support his desire to return, they are understanding of his physical limitations. "The job works out perfectly. If the headaches are too bad, they tell me to pack up and go home. The unit one hundred percent supports me."

Not only has 1st battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, 197th Infantry Brigade supported SSG Villanueva so have strangers. "The most satisfying thing is the overwhelming thankfulness I get from everyone. I'm overwhelmed sometimes," he says. "For my family, this is our way of life," he adds explaining that his wife is a military brat and his children know no other culture.

SSG Javier Villanueva with a Stryker

All three wounded warriors plan to continue working with soldiers even after they retire. SSG Villanueva plans to return to school when he retires in two years and study to be a social worker. He hopes to serve with the Army as a counselor with wounded warriors. "Counselors should have the experience of what other soldiers are going through. I think I can help a lot more," he explains.

With the relocation of the Armor School to Ft. Benning, 1SG Cirinese hopes to get a civil service position in training. Since he is an Armor master gunner he feels there is a place for him.

(SFC) Chatham has more than 20 years of service and could have already retired but says he has personal as well as professional reasons for staying. "I want to see positive closure in Iraq and Afghanistan. For me this is personal. I went in during desert storm and would like to see us finish the job."

At least six other dedicated wounded warriors are continuing to serve at Benning according to the Warrior Transition Battalion. The battalion is committed to providing health care to warriors in transition and assisting them and their families in reintegrating into society.

In 2007, the Army created 35 warrior transition units (WTUs). The caseload has doubled from 6,000 to 12,000 in 2008. The Army believes the WTU system has completely reformed care for wounded warriors.

"Command Sergeant Major Plass has remained true to his fellow Soldiers for generations. Whether it is a Soldier with whom he served in World War II or the newest private assigned to Fort Benning, Frank Plass will stand-up for that Soldier through thick or thin."

CSM Frank Plass and wife Julian

A MILITARY TREASURE

By Borden Black
Special to the Ledger-Enquirer

He is a Fort Benning icon. Command Sergeant Major (retired) Frank C. Plass has fought in three wars: World War II, Korea and Vietnam; attended or taught most of the courses offered at Benning; served with four of the installation's units and is currently the Honorary Sergeant Major of the storied 29th Infantry Regiment now the197th Infantry Brigade.

There is no doubt he is Infantry to his soul. The 87-year-old still has the unmistakable posture and piercing eyes of an Army man and his bushy white eyebrows bristle when he barks out commands. On formal occasions, he wears a chest full of medals ranging from the Legion of Merit and Silver Star with one cluster to the Vietnamese Medal of Honor and French Fourragere with Palm and the rare Combat Infantryman's Badge with 2 stars.

Although physically sidelined recently by the aftermath of an old shrapnel injury, CSM Plass still has vivid memories from his 33 years of distinguished active service and 71 total years of taking care of soldiers.

He fought against both the Germans and Japanese in WWII and particularly remembers VE (Victory in Europe) Day. "We were all lined up and the German citizens were waiting for us," he recalls. Injured twice in Europe; in southern France in 1944 and Czechoslovakia in 1945 and then again in 1950 in Korea, CSM Plass holds a Purple Heart with two clusters.

"We got slaughtered up at Osan," he remembers of his tour in Korea with the Third Battalion 8th Cavalry. "It was cold and miserable." He does have some fond memories of times at the headquarters. "We turned over a jeep and it had the commander in it. We got him straightened up and off he went," CSM Plass chuckles.

During his Vietnam service he remembers calling wife Julian every day. "I had to go to the post office," she reminisces. "That's where the call came in every noon."

When he was serving, CSM Plass says most of the soldiers had little more than an eighth grade education but they were tough. "Today they are more educated," he says. As for the equipment; "All we had was M1s and two-and-a-half ton trucks." He is impressed by all the armament and technology used by today's Army.

When CSM Plass first returned from combat, Veterans Day was marked by a parade downtown and a visit to the cemetery where General Benning was buried. That changed during Vietnam. He says that now the welcome is much better. "Taking care of soldiers is the most important thing."

General, Carter Ham who served as commander of the 29th Infantry Regiment while Plass was honorary CSM, says Plass's belief in Soldiers was always apparent. Ham "He's always quick to praise others, including the great young men and women serving today, but he doesn't talk easily about his own experience," General Ham recalls. " That's true humility."

General Ham adds: "Command Sergeant Major Plass has remained true to his fellow Soldiers for generations. Whether it is a Soldier with whom he served in World War II or the newest private assigned to Fort Benning, Frank Plass will stand-up for that Soldier through thick or thin. In his daily life, sometimes quite publicly, other times in a quiet moment, Frank Plass always does what is right for the Soldier. He, better than anyone I know, understands the bonds that tie Soldiers together. Doesn't matter to Frank Plass if you're old or young, whether you served 1 year or 30; what matters is that you were a Soldier. He has shown us through his life of service that there is no greater honor than to have served our Nation. But, if you ask him, he will tell you that he was just doing his duty. That's what makes him so special."

World War II veterans have said they can't fathom what the current soldier goes through in mission after mission in Iraq but members of the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division (3rd HBCT, 3rd ID) look at the old timers and "can't fathom the stuff they went through," according to Sergeant Major Gregory Proft. "These guys went into combat and their protection was their shirt," he points out. "You have to take your hats off to them."

BACK TO IRAQ

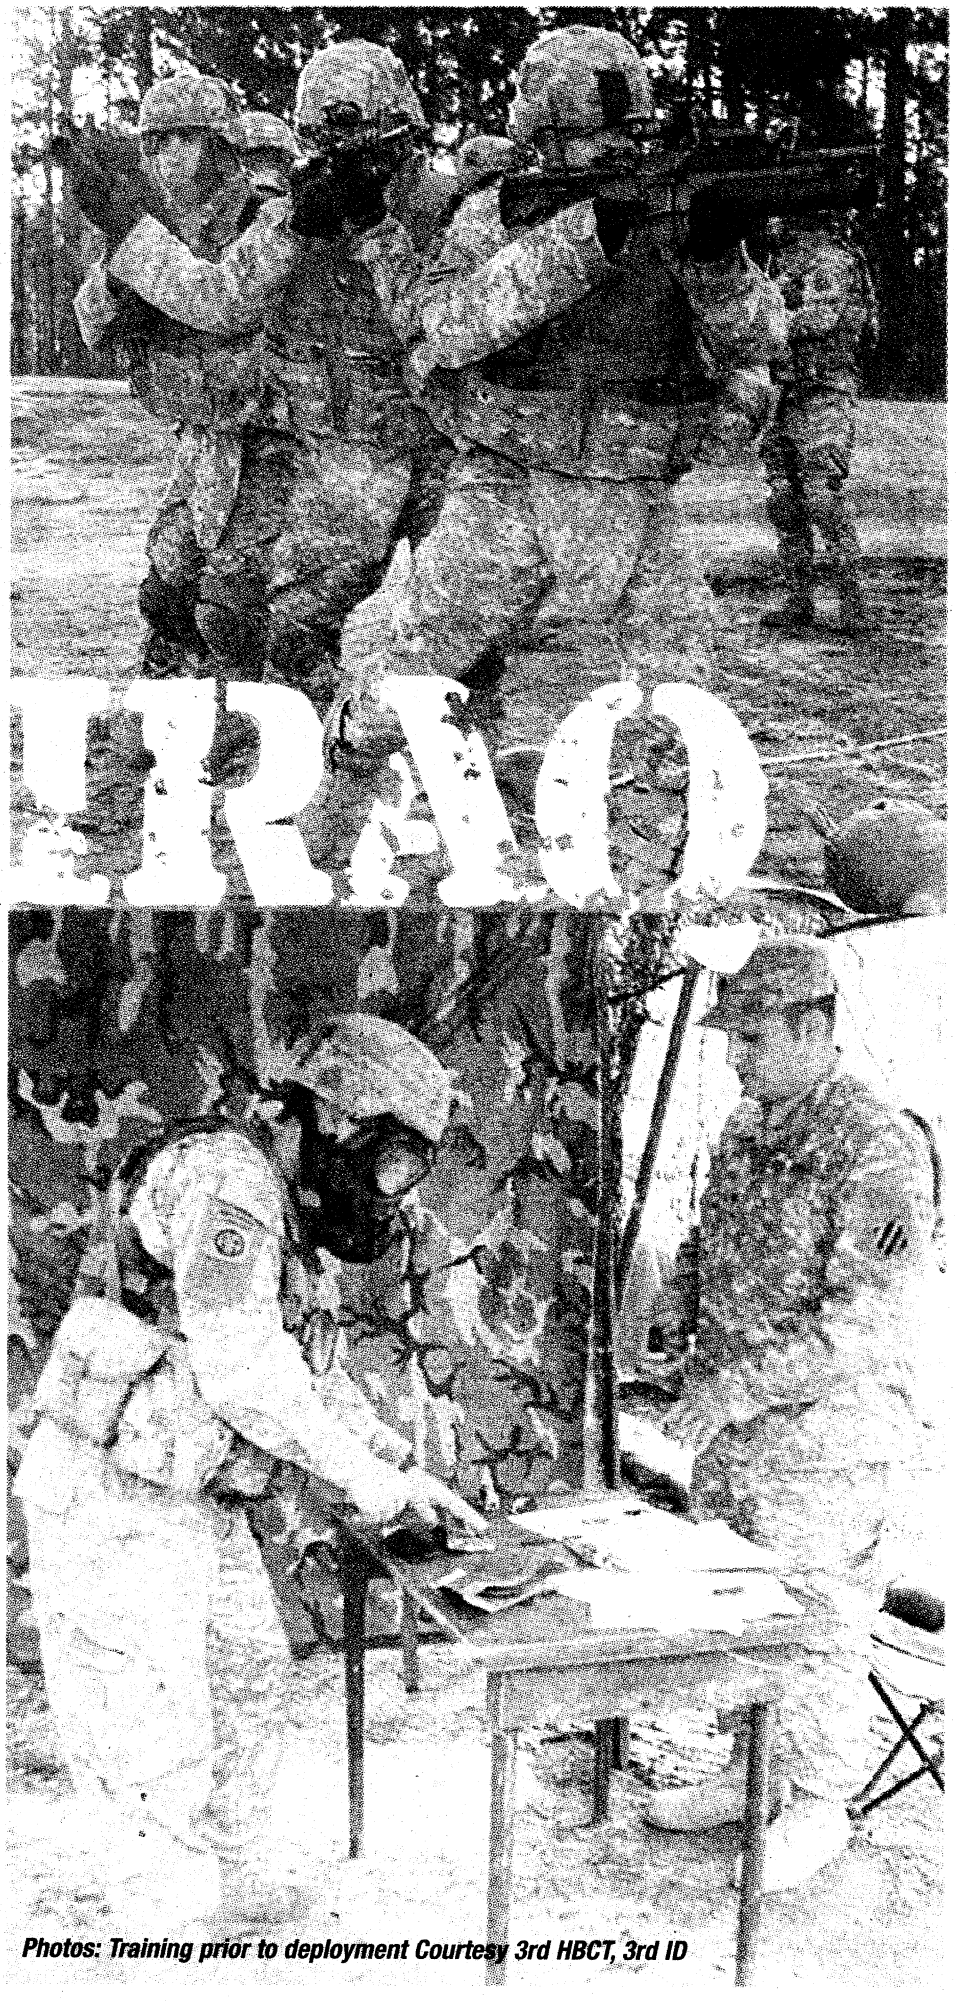
By Borden Black
Special to the Ledger-Enquirer

The BCT from Kelley Hill at Fort Benning is in Iraq for the fourth time. The 4000 soldiers deployed in October this time as an Advise and Assist Brigade.

It is the third deployment for SGM Proft, Brigade S3 and Command Sergeant Major Mark Moore 1-15 Infantry. Both feel the brigade has never been better prepared. Moore says when the HBCT last returned from Iraq Soldiers began training in individual tasks such as weapons qualifying, air assault and sniper, leadership skills and professional development. "Every time we have gotten back the training has been better because we take the lessons we have learned in the train up and deployment and we roll them over and make them better," SGM Proft explains.

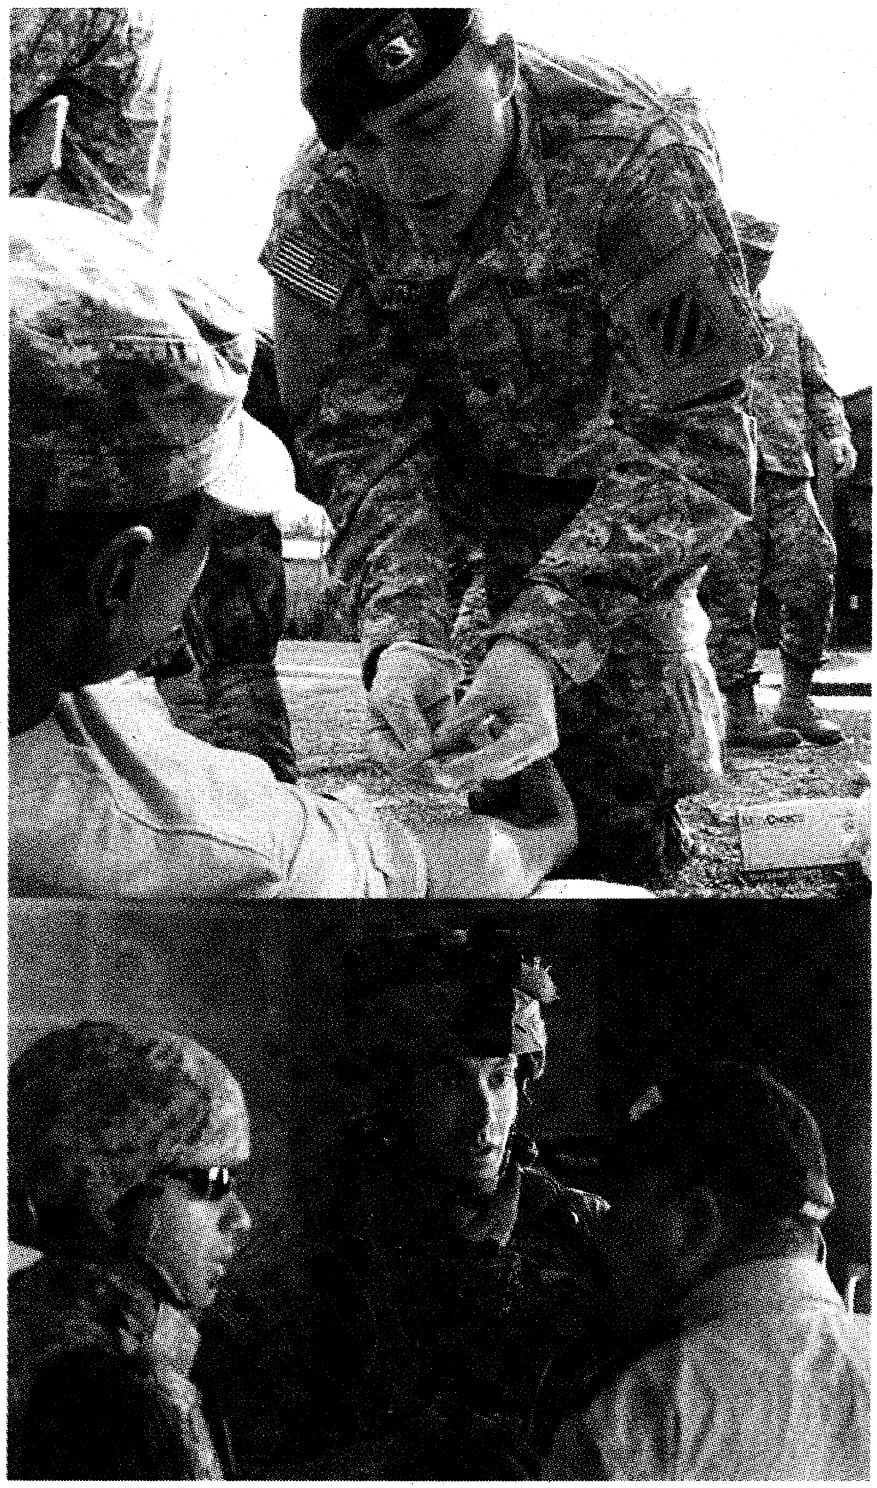
Organized initially as the 197th, the Brigade deployed to Operation Desert Shield / Desert Storm in October 1990 as part of the 24th Infantry Division. Along with the 3rd Brigade of the 3rd Infantry division, they spearheaded the coalition attack to the Euphrates River.

During the total 42 months the 3rd Brigade has spent in theater in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom, the mission has evolved.



In 1996, the Brigade Combat Team at Kelley Hill became the 3rd Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division and under that flag deployed to Kuwait in 2003. The Sledgehammer brigade spearheaded the coalition ground attack into Iraq, leading the 3rd Division's attack during three major battles.

The 3rd Brigade Combat Team again deployed to Iraq during January 2005 and contributed to the success of the constitutional referendum and Iraq's first free national elections.



During its third tour as part of the "surge of forces" the Brigade established Forward Operating Base Hammer and seven combat outposts or patrol bases and 4 joint security centers. CSM Moore says the mission then was two-fold dealing with the counter insurgency and with the local populace, doing "non- traditional" things from an infantry standpoint. SGM

Proft has seen the Iraqi army "develop and come into its own."

"I don't know what to anticipate," SGM Proft says of this deployment. The

Photos: Training prior to deployment Courtesy 3rd HBCT, 3rd ID

Brigade will partner with the Iraqi army. "We are supporting their operations and are there to advise and assist," he points out.

CSM Moore has also seen a marked improvement during his three tours. "The populace couldn't move around in their own villages and cities and feared for their lives. By the time we left the change was pretty dramatic. Folks were outside doing things. Iraqis are responsible for their security now. It's a huge win from what we've seen before."

Both leaders credit the Sledgehammer Soldier for the improvements. "This is a phenomenal group of men and women serving their country," says Proft. "I've had 26 years of service and never been prouder of the people I work with."

Although the deployments are hard on families Proft and Moore say the communities are incredibly supportive. "The amount of support we receive from the area is amazing," says CSM Moore. Those who want to help during this deployment are advised to contact the rear detachment about sending e-mails, letters and packages to the Soldiers.

VETERANS DAY 2009

A NEW MEDICAL HOME FOR FORT BENNING

Artist rendering of the new Martin Army Community Hospital to be built by Turner Construction Company, Inc., of Huntsville, Alabama

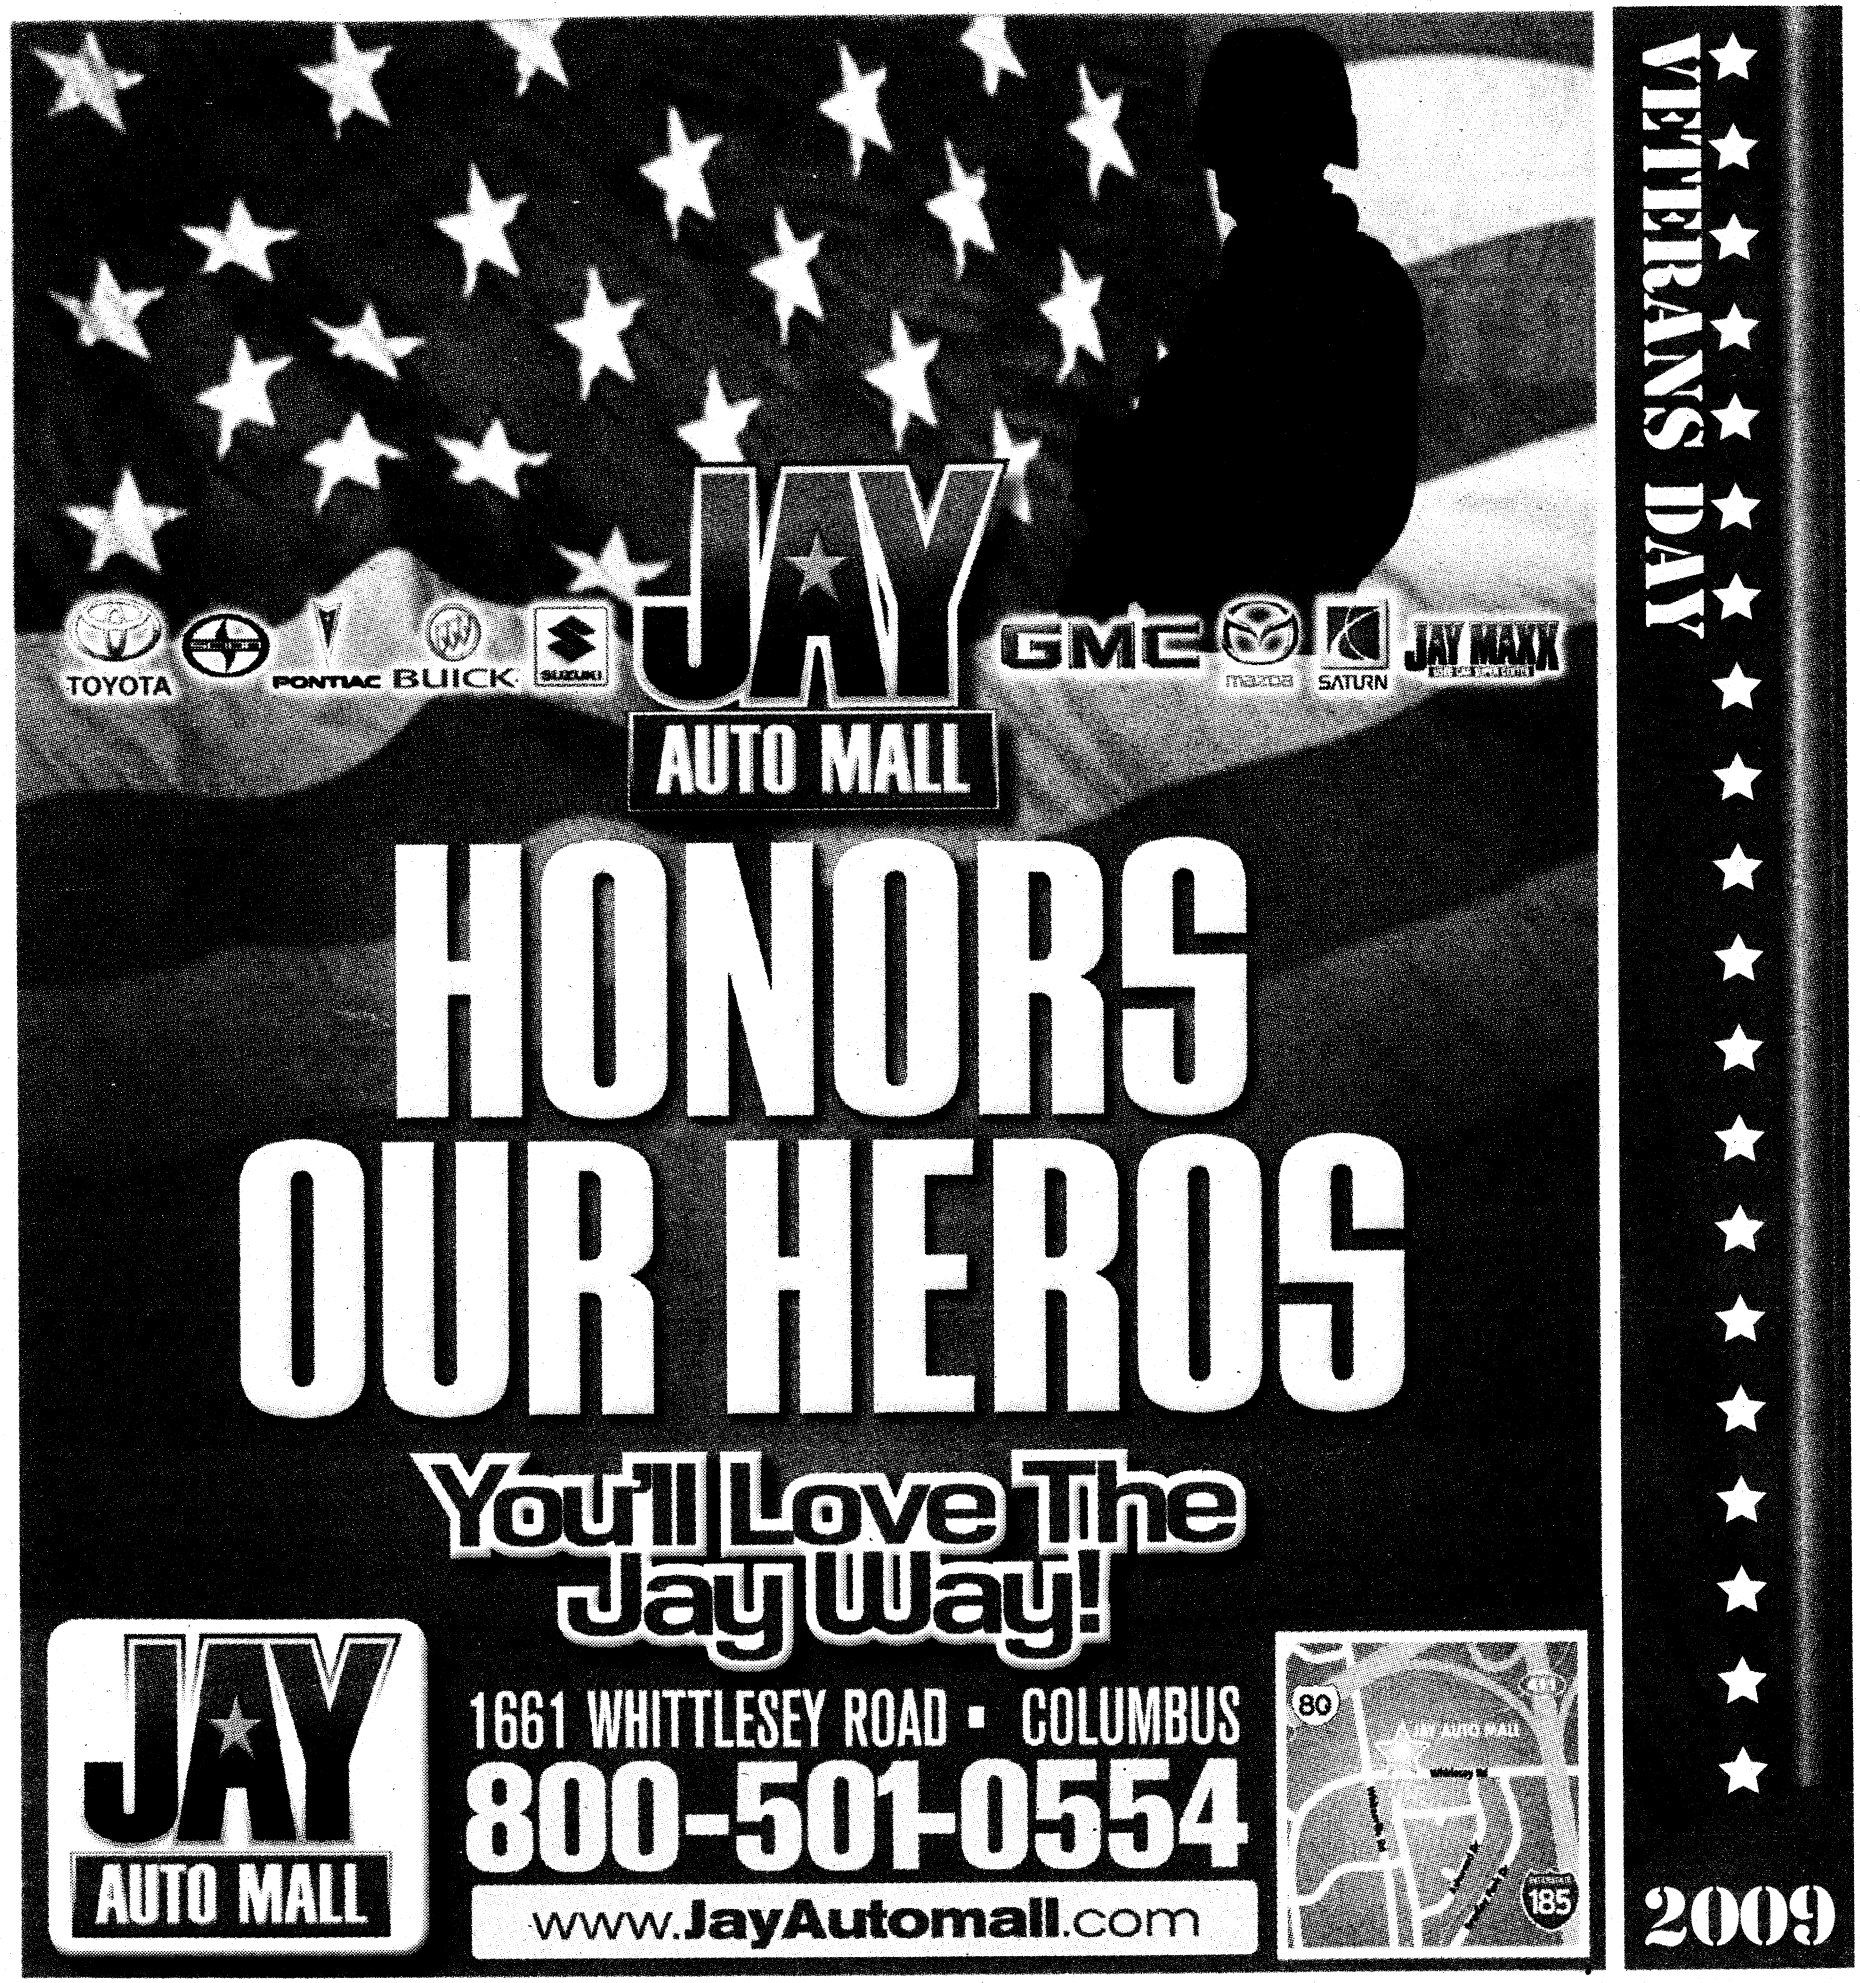
By Borden Black
Special to the Ledger-Enquirer

Instead of towering over the trees, the new medical facility at Fort Benning is designed to blend into the countryside according to Jay Brown, BRAC coordinator. The more than $ 333 million hospital is designed to sprawl along the banks of the river. The all glass front is to face the Upatoi with green space for physical therapy and healing between the hospital and the river. This is the new concept of ."the soldiers medical home."

"The goal is to provide our soldiers, our veterans, and their families with a modern medical facility that will offer the highest quality of patient care," said Congressman Sanford D. Bishop, Jr in a statement.

The new 745,000-square-foot hospital will not only serve active duty soldiers and their dependents but will also accommodate veterans from a larger geographic area. Brown says it will expand the population served from a 40 to an 80 mile radius, which will reach south of Atlanta. That includes part of the area served by Fort McPherson, which has closed.

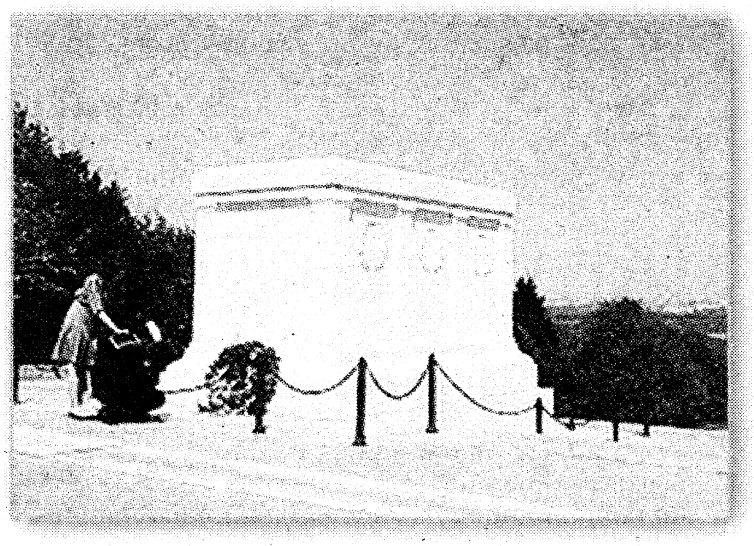
The medical building will be nearly twice as large as the existing 393,000-square-foot hospital. It is designed to have 70 in-patient beds and two wings. One will house clinics the other the hospital. Access will be easier with a central waiting room to allow patients to have a single number for pharmacy, laboratory and x-rays and wait for all three at one time.



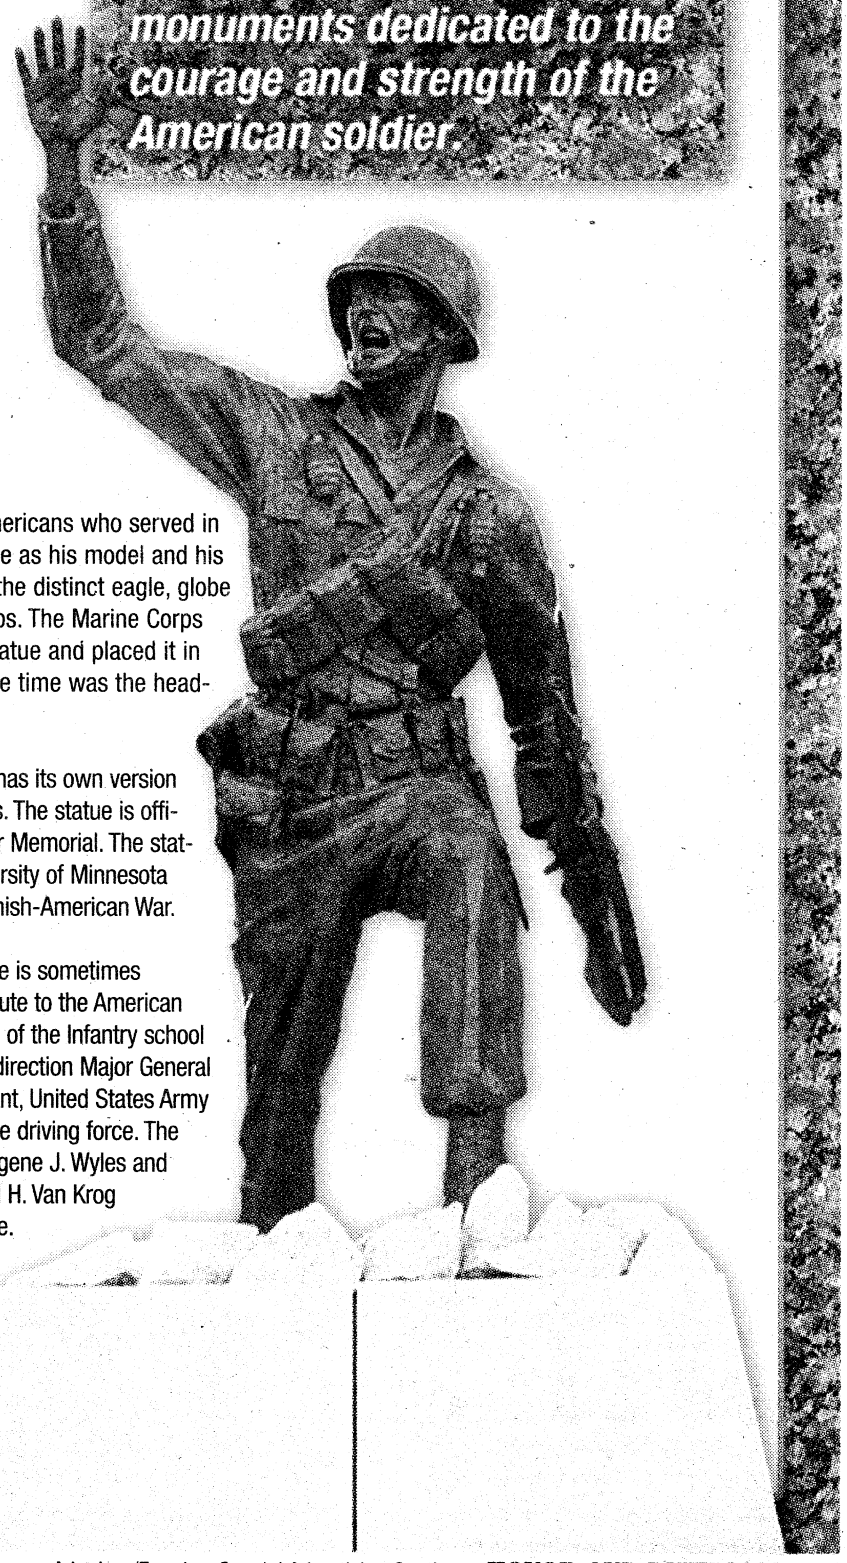
It will also be more convenient for the motorist. There will be two parking garages and access will be from a new interchange on I185.

Although there are no plans at present to include new services, the hospital will expand existing services and the MRI now located outside will be inside the building. Martin Army Community Hospital currently includes a surgical suite with same-day capabilities, a labor-delivery and recovery suite, and over 36 ambulatory care clinics. It maintains a fully accredited laboratory service, diagnostic radiology with computerized tomography and nuclear medicine, extensive pharmacy service, and many other ancillary support services.

The fifty-year-old building Army officials say requires constant repair to rusty plumbing, an underpowered electrical system and a leaky roof.



Design and construction is likely to begin shortly with completion expected in the summer of 2013.



The future of the existing hospital has not been determined, but Brown says the Veterans Administration has expressed some interest in using a portion of the fifty year old building.

MONUMENTS & MEMORIALS

A great way to learn about veterans and their role in our nation's history is to study America's war memorials and monuments. There are a number of monuments dedicated to the courage and strength of the American soldier.

Tomb of the Unknown Soldier

In 1921, an American soldier—his name "known but to God"—was buried on a Virginia hillside overlooking the Potomac River and the city of Washington, DC. The burial site of this unknown World War I soldier in Arlington National Cemetery symbolized dignity and reverence for America's veterans.

Similar ceremonies occurred earlier in England and France, where an "unknown soldier" of the Great War was buried in each nation's highest place of honor. These memorial gestures all took place on November 11, giving universal recognition to the celebrated ending of World War I hostilities at 11 a.m., November 11, 1918 (the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month).

Iron Mike

Although they have distinct names, many memorials have come to share the nickname "Iron Mike".

Fort Bragg's statue is officially called The Airborne Trooper. It depicts a World War II-era paratrooper shortly after landing on a drop zone. With his weapon at the ready, the paratrooper surveys the area before continuing on his mission. The facial expression illustrates the determination and compassion of the American soldier.

Quantico's is officially titled Crusading for Right. It depicts a World War I Marine holding a Springfield rifle. The statue was sculpted by Frenchman Charles Raphael Peyre to commemorate the Americans who served in France. Peyre selected a Marine as his model and his final statue was adorned with the distinct eagle, globe and anchor insignia of the Corps. The Marine Corps subsequently purchased the statue and placed it in front of Butler Hall, which at the time was the headquarters building at Quantico.

The University of Minnesota has its own version of Iron Mike right on the campus. The statue is officially entitled the Student Soldier Memorial. The statue is dedicated to the 218 University of Minnesota students who served in the Spanish-American War.

Fort Bennings Follow Me statue is sometimes referred to as Iron Mike. The tribute to the American combat Infantryman and symbol of the Infantry school was created in 1960 under the direction Major General Paul L. Freeman, Jr., Commandant, United States Army Infantry School. Soldiers were the driving force. The model was Officer Candidate Eugene J. Wyles and PFC. Manfred Bass and PFC Karl H. Van Krog designed and sculpted the image. The statue bears the Infantry's motto "Follow Me," which speaks to the courage and sacrifice that the American fighting man has always demonstrated.

VETERANS SERVICE ORGANIZATIONS

Veterans service organizations are groups of veterans that come together to promote and support veterans' issues. Many organizations consist of members that share a common experience, such as those that served in the same military unit or period of war. The following is a list of organizations that serve on the Veterans Day National Committee. Many of these groups have chapters throughout the country with veterans who are eager to share their experiences with younger generations.

For veterans, new GI Bill offers new opportunities

(ARA) - Today, unprecedented numbers of retired and active duty military personnel are wondering what the next step in their lives might be. After having a very clear path of serving their country, they may now be at a professional crossroads – sign up for another tour or retire and pursue another profession.

For many, this is an appealing option – more command of your personal schedule, more time at home. And thanks to the newly implemented Post 9-11 GI Bill, obtaining a high quality education without a financial investment just got easier.

"With this money, I now have the opportunity to be whatever I want to be," says 38-year-old Gilbert, Ariz. resident Christopher Van Huss, who left the military in April 2004.

The new bill, available to vets or active duty personnel who served after the 2001 terrorist attacks, requires no pay-in, and the tuition is paid directly to the college, so enrollees don't have to pay money up front or wait for reimbursement. The benefits can also be transferred to spouses and dependents.

"Many individuals may have aborted plans to obtain their degree earlier in life when they fulfilled a call to serve," says Wendy Proffitt, director of the military division at Grand Canyon University. "At this point in their lives they likely have much more maturity and self-discipline to pursue their education."

For Van Huss, who started classes at GCU this fall, responsibility for a growing family fueled both his desire to serve and now, his quest to finally obtain a degree. As a single dad raising two young sons, a teaching career is now a very real possibility.

"Sometimes life gets in the way, but now I'm at a place where I have to be here and can see what my future might be," he says.

Grand Canyon University is one of nearly 600 private colleges that have signed onto a program that enables the GI benefits to be used for private-school tuition. Proffitt and her team of veteran and retired-military recruiters spread the word about scholarship packages available to active duty, retired military and their spouses to cover the tuition difference between what the bill provides and the private university's higher tuition rates – essentially providing a private-school education entirely tuition-free.

GI Jobs Magazine recently recognized the university as one of the most military-friendly institutions in the country.

According to national statistics, the unemployment rate for Iraq and Afghanistan veterans is estimated at 11.2 percent – or one in nine veterans without a job.

"With the new legislation, those who are coming out of the service might seriously consider an education in conjunction with the option of reenlisting," Proffitt says.

VETERANS DAY 2009

VETERANS HISTORY PROJECT

The United States Congress created the Veterans History Project in 2000 in order to collect, preserve, and make accessible the personal accounts of American war veterans. These collections of first-hand accounts are archived in the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress for use by researchers and to serve as an inspiration for generations to come. The stories can be told through personal narratives, including audio and video-taped interviews and written memoirs; correspondence such as letters, postcards, v-mail and personal diaries; and visual materials including photographs, drawings and scrapbooks. The project includes first-hand accounts of U.S. Veterans from the following wars: World War I (1914-1920), World War II (1939-1946), Korean War (1950-1955) , Vietnam War (1961-1975), Persian Gulf War (1990-1995) and Afghanistan and Iraq conflicts (2001-present)

In addition, those U.S. citizen civilians who were actively involved in supporting war efforts (such as war industry workers, USO workers, flight instructors, medical volunteers, etc.) are also invited to share their valuable stories.

In order to participate, print the Veterans History Project Field Kit and use the online form , which can be found at www.loc.gov/vets/kitmenu.html. Then prepare for the interview, conduct the interview and send your collection to the Library of Congress.

You may interview yourself, or have a friend or relative do it. The Field Kit contains tools to help with the interview process. You may also recount your experiences in a written memoir of at least 20 pages. Memoir Guidelines offer information on how to create a written record of your memories.

The Purple Heart Award

It is one of the most recognized and respected medals awarded to members of the U.S. armed forces. Introduced as the "Badge of Military Merit" by General George Washington in 1782, the Purple Heart is also the nation's oldest military award.

The Story of Taps

Based on a French signal to end the soldier's day, the melancholy bugle call now is also heard at military burials and memorial services.

Gun Salutes

From visiting naval vessels saluting the host country to rifle volleys at a military funeral, the ceremonial firing of guns is a centuries-old tradition of showing honor and respect.

They Did Their Share

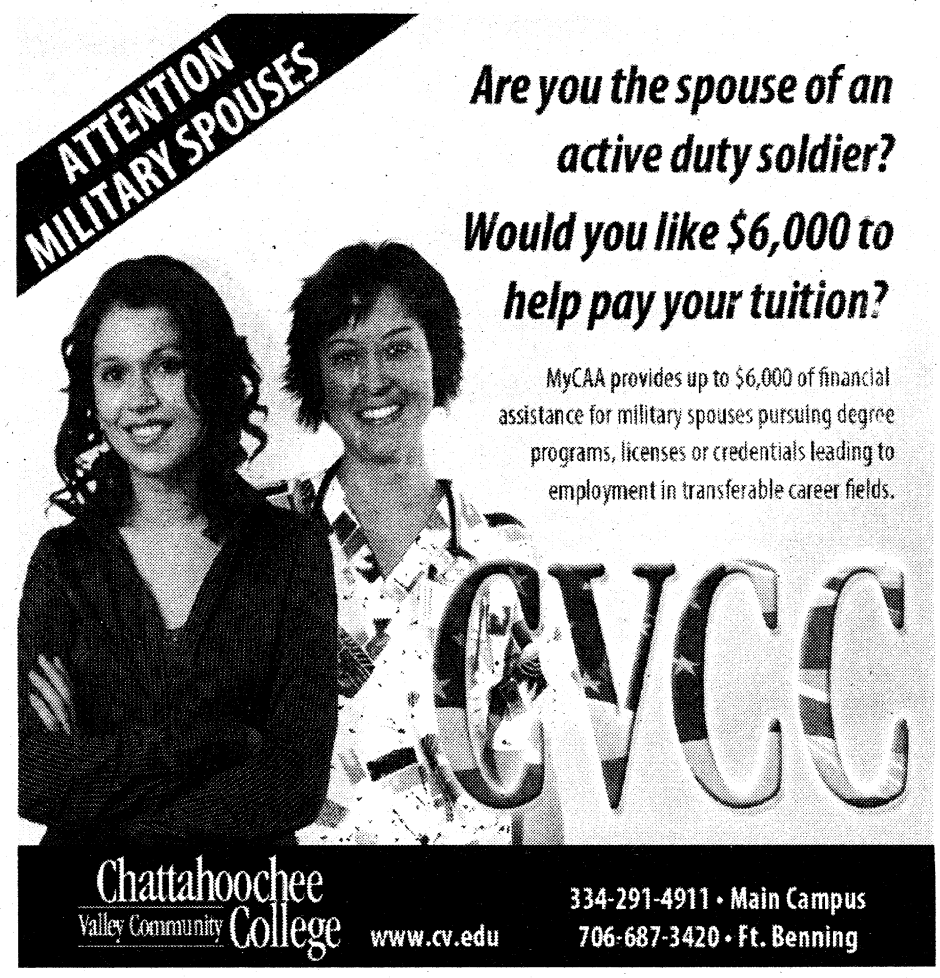
On Veteran's Day we honor
Soldiers who protect our nation.
For their service as our warriors,
They deserve our admiration.

Some of them were drafted;
Some were volunteers;
For some it was just yesterday;
For some it's been many years;

In the jungle or the desert,
On land or on the sea,
They did whatever was assigned
To produce a victory.

Some came back; some didn't.
They defended us everywhere.
Some saw combat; some rode a desk;
All of them did their share.

No matter what the duty,
For low pay and little glory,
These soldiers gave up normal lives,
For duties mundane and gory.



Let every veteran be honored;
Don't let politics get in the way.
Without them, freedom would have died;
What they did, we can't repay.

We owe so much to them,
Who kept us safe from terror,
So when we see a uniform,
Let's say "thank you" to every wearer.

VETERANS DAY

Show your PRIDE for veterans and soldiers

(ARA) - The conflicts overseas are ongoing, which means much of the American military are continuing to serve far from home. While support for the men and women in uniform has proven strong for the past several years, the forces who protect our country and their families waiting at home continuously deserve recognition of and support for their efforts now and in the years to come.

Here are several ideas on how you and your family can show your pride for the military, both locally and directly to our heroes in uniform overseas:

Organize a letter campaign:

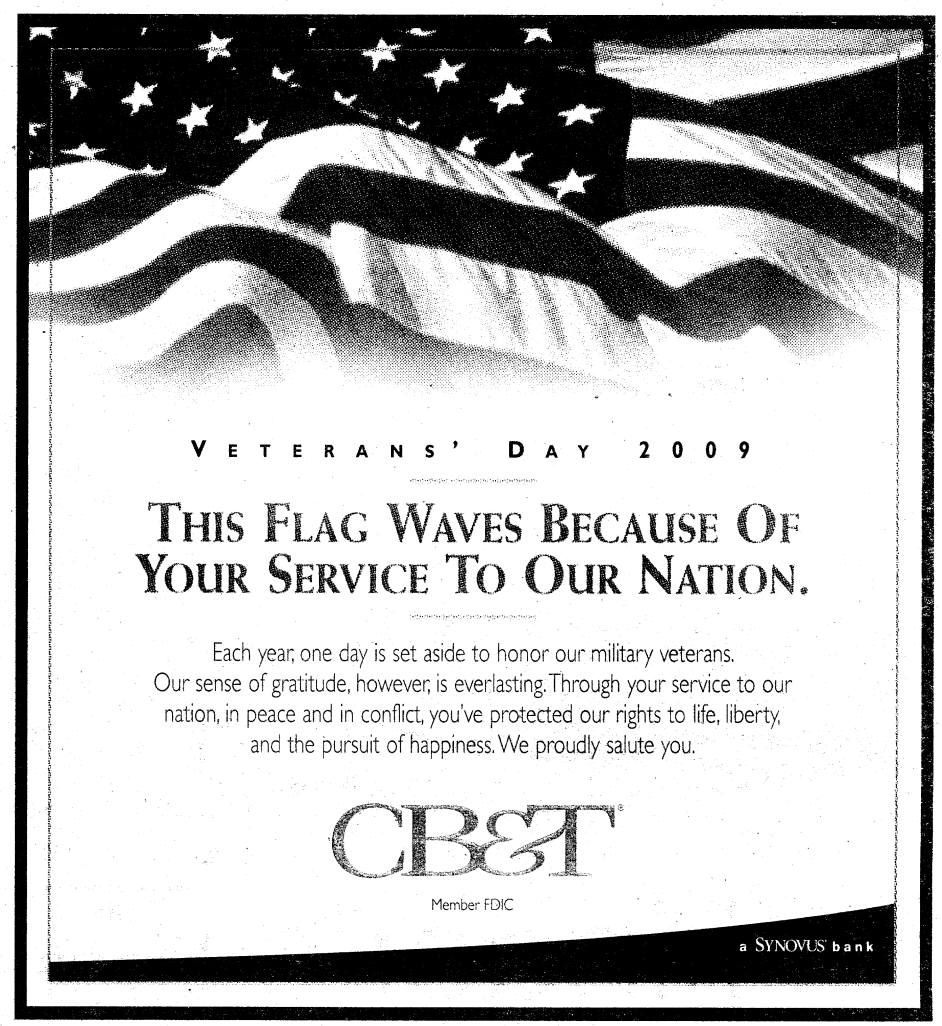
If you have children in school, ask the classroom to create homemade cards and letters for the military. Creativity is appreciated, as are the messages and stories children can share about their school, what they're studying and the activities they enjoy. If you don't have children, ask some of your family members, friends and coworkers to join you in creating cards. Even if you don't personally know anyone who is currently serving, you can contact your local Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion or Red Cross chapters, or the person leading a Family Readiness Group in your community to find out where to mail the letters.

Show your pride:

Demonstrate your loyalty to our men and women in uniform and their families. Tie yellow ribbons on the trees in your yard, hang the American flag in front of your house and use products displaying military emblems and logos to remind people of those serving overseas. For example, Bank of America offers military-themed banking products such as check cards, credit cards and checks so customers can show their pride for the military and demonstrate their appreciation of the sacrifices veterans and active duty military personnel have made. Find out more at www.BankofAmerica.com/MilitaryBanking.

For over 85 years, Bank of America has supported the military community, most recently with the Intrepid Foundation. The Intrepid Fallen Heroes Fund assists wounded warriors with traumatic brain injury, and the Fisher House Foundation provides family members with homes on the grounds of major military and VA medical centers. Bank of America provides specialized financial services to military personnel as well, including special rates, products and services for all active duty, retired or former military members and their dependents. Through a contract with the Department of Defense, Bank of America manages about 100 banking centers in 11 foreign countries to help provide members of the military and their families with banking services while they're serving abroad.

Plan a package packing party:



Men and women serving overseas really appreciate care packages containing everything from food to games to items that remind them of home. Invite all your friends over for a care package packing party. Ask each person to contribute an item for 20 packages. Some suggested items to include are magazines and books; toiletries like deodorant, toothpaste, shampoo, conditioner, unscented baby wipes, hair brushes and packaged food items that are not pressurized and not susceptible to heat or cold.

Care for those at home:

If a local unit has been deployed from your area, find out if any of the families need meals delivered or if you can meet with them for a social visit. You can invite families over for dinner at your house, take them out for a social activity, or simply prepare a meal and drop it off.

These are just a few of the ways you can show your pride and appreciation here at home for our men and women in uniform.

On Sept. 22, 2008, 96 World War II veterans and a number of volunteers and guardians from around the Chattahoochee Valley traveled on a daylong West Georgia Honor Flight trip to Washington D.C. to visit the National World War II Memorial, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Korean War Veterans Memorial, the Marine Corps War Memorial and Arlington National Cemetery. The flight, dubbed the Pilgrimage of honor, was the first time many of these veterans had seen the memorials that stand in their honor.

American veterans deserve the nation's deepest appreciation and respect, according to President Barack Obama's Veterans Day proclamation. "Our nation's servicemen and women are our best and brightest, enlisting in times of peace and war, serving with honor under the most difficult circumstances and making sacrifices that many of us cannot begin to imagine."

LaFaye Dellinger, mayor of Smiths Station, Ala., told the audience at Fort Benning's Veterans Day Ceremony Wednesday it wasn't possible to express how much she appreciated their service.

Hood, nation pay tribute to shooting victims

Andrew Evans

A 1st Cavalry Division bugler plays Taps Tuesday at the conclusion of a memorial ceremony honoring 13 Fort Hood shooting victims, outside the III Corps headquarters building on Fort Hood, Texas. More than 15,000 attended the memorial.

Andrew Evans
FORT HOOD SENTINEL

FORT HOOD, Texas — The mournful and all-too-familiar scene of a bugler playing Taps occurred again here Tuesday as the Fort Hood community paid its respects to fallen warriors struck down last week allegedly at the hands of a lone gunman, who also happened to wear an Army uniform.

"No words can ever express our sadness," LTG Cone, III Corps and Fort Hood commanding general, said before President Barack Obama took the stage.

"We can never accept the loss of Soldiers at home," Cone said. "Our Army family shares in the loss of your loved ones."

The general also praised the courage of the Soldiers who disregarded their own safety to render aid to others at the scene.

Prior to his public address, the president spoke with many of the survivors and the families of the fallen. Speaking to an estimated 15,000 people at the memorial, Obama vowed that justice will be done in the attack that left 13 dead and 43 wounded.

"No faith justifies these murderous and craven acts," Obama said, noting that Soldiers who responded to the attack "remind us of who we are as Americans."

Although the president told the families that "no words can fill the void that has been left," he said, "your loved ones endure through the life of our nation.

"Their life's work is our security and the freedom that we too often take for granted. Every evening that the sun sets on a tranquil town; every dawn

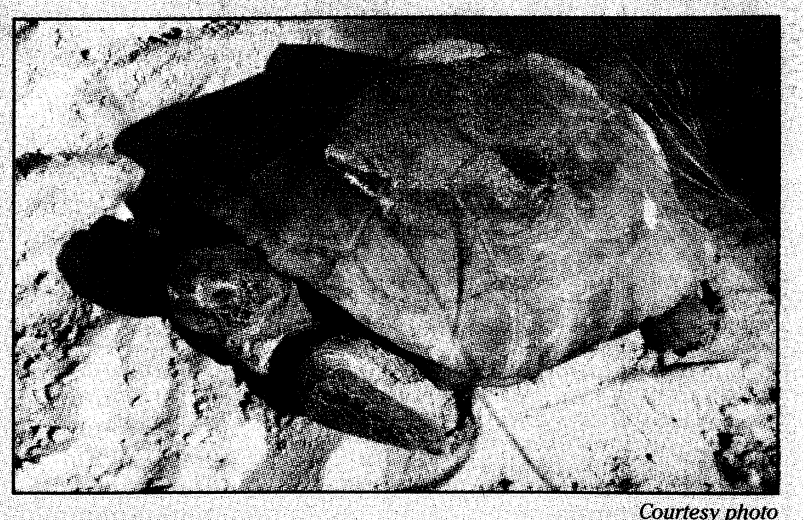
Gopher tortoise species thrives in post's sandy soil

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

From 2,500 to 3,000 gopher tortoises call Fort Benning home. This particular tortoise is recognized in Georgia as a threatened species and thrives in the state's coastal plains, including Fort Benning with its areas of sandy soil, ideal for burrowing, said Mark Thornton, endangered species biologist for the Conservation Branch, Environmental Management Division.



A threatened species is one step away from an endangered species in terms of its danger of extinction, Thornton said.

On post, the tortoises are found mainly on the northern two thirds of the installation, including training areas such as Brittin Range, where gas chamber training is conducted.

All basic trainees are briefed about the tortoise before entering the area, said SFC Robert Frank, master trainer for General Subjects Platoon, A Company, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, which has oversight of the range.

"We are aware they're out there," he said. "We're training 200 Soldiers, averaging six days a week. Almost every day there is going to be (gas)

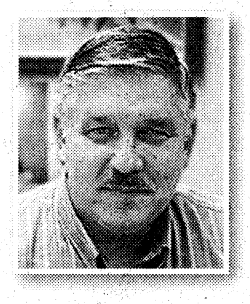
Invitation to the protesters

Lee A. Rials
WHINSEC



For 20 years, there have been protests at the gates of Fort Benning in November. The target? Since 2001, the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation.

Trouble is, WHINSEC is three miles from the boundaries of Fort Benning, so the protesters for the most part have no direct knowledge of the institute they are protesting.

The institute leadership, from that first year of its existence, has seized the opportunity to invite protesters to get an inside look, and to ask questions of the commandant and other experts about its operation.

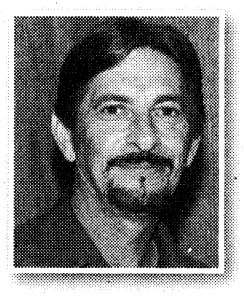
More than 550 people from 26 high schools and colleges have already signed up for the tours to be held Nov. 21. They will come in three groups, and get more than an hour and a half of face-to-face dialogue in Pratt Hall auditorium. As they depart, they will be driven through the present-day site of WHINSEC, seeing the flags of the 34 member nations of the Organization of American States flying in front of the campus of the institute.

In Pratt Hall, the visitors will get a very short introduction to the institute, then a question-and-answer period with COL Felix Santiago, commandant; Dr. Tony Raimondo, the director of the Democracy and Human Rights program; Chap. (MAJ) Pablo Perez-Maisonet, the institute chaplain; Mr. Steve Schneebaum, former chairman of the WHINSEC Board of Visitors and a human rights attorney; COL Linda Gould, now with the Inter-American Defense College and a former Military Assistance Group commander in Guatemala; Dr. Arnold Vela, a Department of State foreign service officer and currently on the WHINSEC faculty; and Dr. King, dean of academics at the Combined Arms Center, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

The panel of experts format has been developed over the years to ensure that all questions can be answered by knowledgeable people, not only about the institute but about U.S. foreign policy in the region.

The best way to get to know the institute is to come during the workweek, when visitors may sit in classes, talk with students and faculty, and review instructional materials. Most of the protesters arrive late Friday or early Saturday, so they don't have the chance to see WHINSEC in normal operation.

For those few who do get to Columbus early enough on Friday, and ask, they will come to the institute Friday. Five schools with 54 young people are participating in the Friday visit.



The Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation was established in public law to "provide professional education and training to eligible persons of the nations of the Western Hemisphere within the context of the democratic principles set forth in the Charter of the Organization of American States."

The institute's mission includes fostering mutual knowledge, transparency, confidence and cooperation by promoting democratic values; respect for human rights; and an understanding of U.S. customs and traditions. Specific subjects set by Congress include leadership development; counterdrug; peacekeeping; resource management; and disaster-relief planning.

From Benning to the big league

John W. Peeler
THE BAYONET

Fifteen years ago I stepped out onto Blue Field here and looked over a group of 13 bright-eyed young men eager to get out on the football field for their first practice.

Although some had played football before, there were many who were playing their first year.

Then, it hits me — what can I do to help these players learn the sport and have fun at the same time?

Each kid is different about how they learn and play the game.

In 1994, Edwin Jackson was one of those bright-eyed kids on my football team. It didn't take long, one practice, for me to realize Edwin was a special athlete. It also didn't take long for me to realize his parents, Edwin Sr. and Regina, were special, as well.

Rarely do you get that combination from a coaching standpoint — a good player with equally good parents.

After the football season, I joined the Youth Services Cardinals baseball team in the spring as an assistant coach with Edwin Sr. and Brian McCall. Edwin was on the team and I was amazed at what a tremendous athlete he was.

Now, he towers over me. Edwin, the major league baseball pitcher who pitched in the 2008 American League Championship Series, the 2008 World Series and the 2009 All-Star game, is still a bright-eyed young man with all of the qualities that made him special the first time he stepped onto my practice field.

As a young man, he worked hard, gave 110 percent, was respectful and courteous and always seemed to bring out the best in others. He was a good listener and always tried to do what I and the other coaches wanted. Edwin considered himself just another player and never bragged about his athletic talent. He was reserved and let his actions on the field speak for him.

Saturday, I had the rare honor to be a part of his return to post where he began playing youth football and baseball. I say it's a rare honor because as a coach you always hope one of your players will make it to the big leagues, but rarely does it happen.

What I saw was a little older, a little bigger bright-eyed young man who still possessed all the qualities that got my attention 15 years ago — a rare thing in today's professional sports.

It was Edwin's turn to teach and coach Saturday. From the smiles I saw on the kids faces, he was successful, but I knew he would be.

While the baseball season is over for Edwin, I am sure kids from his camp will be watching him next season and wondering if their start at Fort Benning will lead them to the professional ranks like it did him.

Anything can happen with the right attitude and parent's support — just ask Edwin.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Teacher thanks bowling center for enjoyable trip

On behalf of my students, the English as a Second Language Program at Tillinghurst in Columbus, and myself, I would like to take the opportunity to extend my sincere appreciation to the staff at the Fort Benning Main Bowling Center.

Our bowling outing on Oct. 6 was a success mainly due to the kindness and patience displayed by the staff. It was a wonderful learning experience as well as a memorable time for all.

Thank you for making all of us feel welcome.

College fair Wednesday

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

The American Education Week College Fair will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Main Post Exchange.

Representatives from eight colleges will be available to discuss opportunities and answer questions. The attending colleges will be Georgia Military College, Columbus State University, Columbus Technical College, Vincennes University, Chattahoochee Valley Community College, Troy University, American Military University and the University of Phoenix.

Other representatives will have information on the Career Advancement Account, Troops to Teachers, Post 9/11 G.I. Bill benefits and Army Emergency Relief college funds.

Shannon Gardner, program manager for Army Continuing Education Services, said the education center offers weekly briefings on CAA, a scholarship program for spouses, for those interested in learning more.

School liaisons will be available to talk with high school students interested in making the transition to college.

Brian Smith, chief of work force development for the Directorate of Human Resources, recommends participants bring a list of questions and education goals.

The college fair is open to military and Department of the Army personnel and their families.

For more information, call the education center at 706-545-7397.

It is located inside Building 2602 in Soldiers' Plaza. Office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Tumor doesn't stop WTB troop from reaching goals

Soldier medically separated on Veterans Day

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

A lemon-sized brain tumor ended SPC Henel Blaise's dream of a military career but, with the help of Fort Benning's Warrior Transition Battalion, Blaise is finding a new path.

Blaise, who medically retired on Veterans Day, was assigned to the WTB in March 2007.

A 29-year-old from Port-au-Prince, Haiti, he was diagnosed with a benign tumor in 2007 after a series of "immobilizing" headaches that left him with double vision and nausea. He had graduated from basic training, but instead of joining his unit for its deployment to Iraq, Blaise, a quartermaster and chemical equipment repairman, was reassigned to the WTB. After six months of the migraine-like headaches, Blaise had lost most of the vision in his right eye, developed nerve palsies and lost sensation on the right side of his face.

"I was scared at first of what would happen to me, if I was going to die or if I was going to make it through," he said.

While in surgery to have the tumor removed, doctors discovered the tumor had grown around Blaise's right carotid artery and the optical nerves behind his right eye, making it too risky to remove. They prescribed medications to control the pain.

More than a year later, Blaise said he has regained some sight in his right eye, though his vision is limited. The doctors said he may not regain all the sight he lost.

As a result, Blaise said "the bubble burst" on his hopes of returning to his unit.

"It's a tough transition at first, going from an active-duty unit to the WTB," said Blaise, who was previously assigned to 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team's 203rd Brigade Support Battalion. "Everyone is used to doing things their way. But after a while, you learn each other's stories and you realize your day may not be their day, but it's just as tough."

"The military taught me how to be a man, that anything worth doing is worth struggling for," Blaise said. "It was hard. There were days I sat in WTB thinking to myself, 'All right, I'm in this unit and supposed to be getting healed but I'm still in pain.' I felt useless."

Blaise said he credits his squad leaders, chaplains, occupational therapists and others at the WTB for helping him "to get out of the rut" and onto a career path.

WTB personnel helped him draft a resume, locate job fairs and look at career options. His comprehensive treatment plan — a program developed by the WTB to assess progress on treatment and transition goals for each wounded Soldier — helped him chart his progress.

"I told him to stay positive, if he put his mind to it I knew there was nothing he couldn't do," said SGT Tenea Moore, one of Blaise's squad leaders with A Company, WTB.

Thanks to the encouragement he received, Blaise said he enrolled in Columbus Technical College. He starts his fourth semester in January and is pursuing a degree in criminal justice.

In October, Blaise attended the VFW Job Fair in Columbus and landed an interview to become a corrections officer at J.T. Rutledge State Prison. A few weeks later, he was hired and plans to start his new job Monday.

Twenty-seven percent of WTB Soldiers medically separate from the military and nearly 60 percent return to duty, according to WTB statistics.

"Coming to the WTB, does not mean Soldiers will be separated from the Army," said LTC Sean Mulcahey, commander of the WTB.

Blaise said he's looking forward to his new career.

"I'm pretty excited about my life," he said. "I want my chance to do something for the community."

267 Ranger students take on Malvesti

Soldiers use 'intestinal fortitude,' teamwork to push through obstacles

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Shouts of "Ranger" and "keep going" came from Soldiers Friday as they negotiated the Malvesti Confidence Course.

For 267 students in Day Five of Ranger School, the morning started with a timed buddy run in 35-degree weather.

After the three-mile run, Soldiers faced Malvesti, a course featuring a cargo net more than 30 feet high, several pull-up bars and muddy trenches with barbed wire, among other obstacles.

"It was challenging … exhaustive.. You jump in that cold water, and it shocks (you)," said SFC Rodolfo Ruiz after finishing the course.

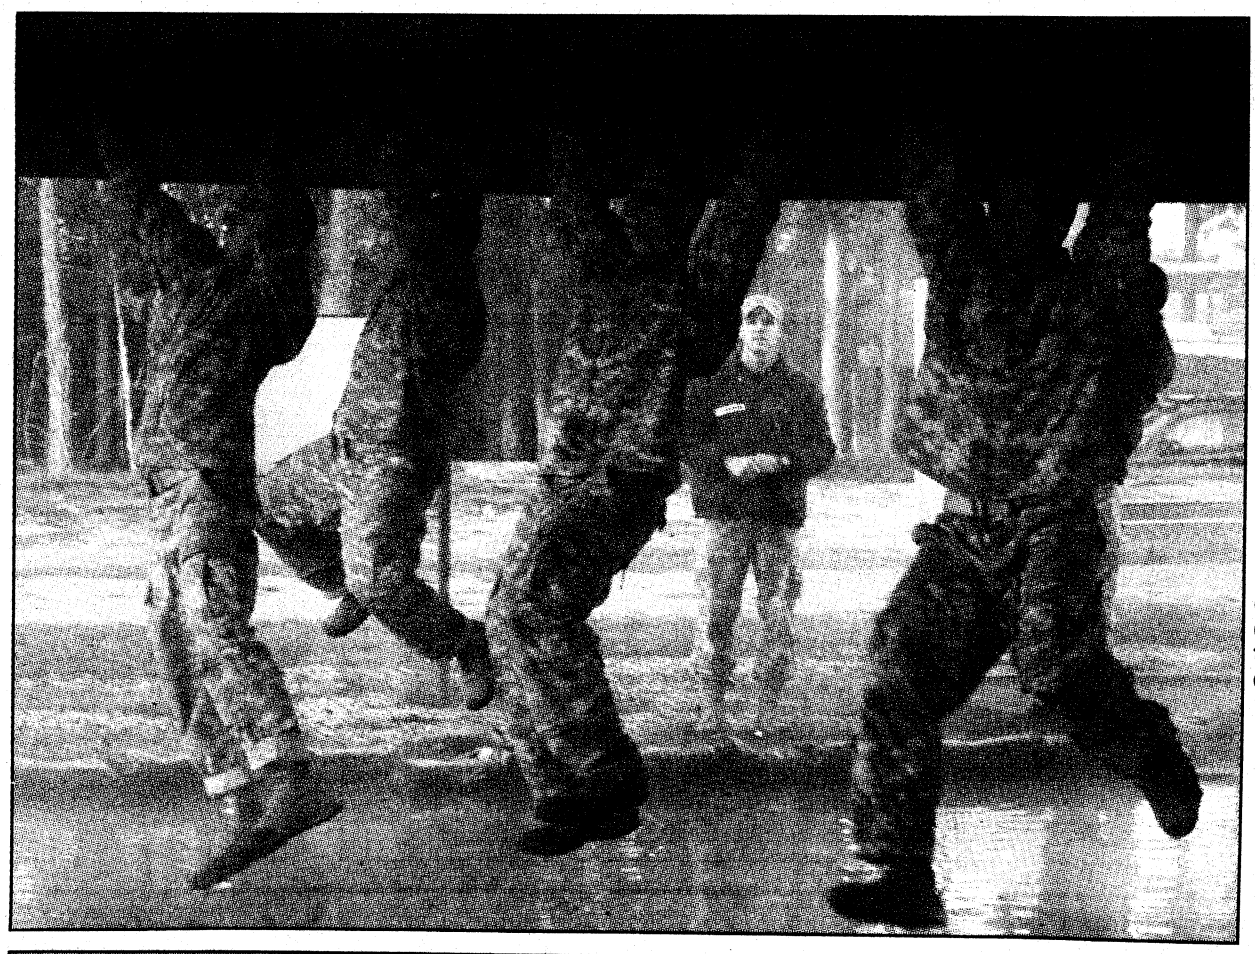
"But you have to dig deep and see the next obstacle. See what your body can take and continue to push forward."

Ruiz said he took the Pre-Ranger Course four times as a private but failed the swim test each time.

Now that he finally has made it to Ranger School, he finds challenges such as Malvesti "motivating," he said.

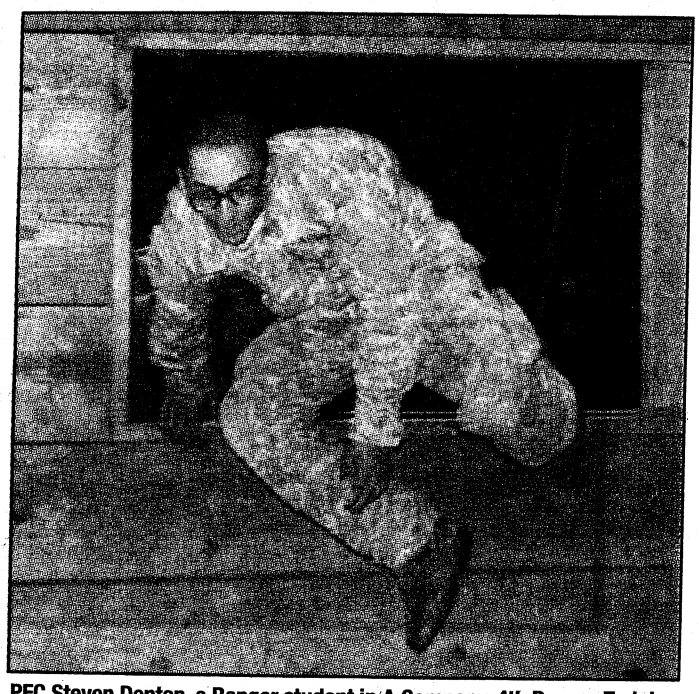
The "muddy Malvesti" course primarily teaches team-building and confidence, said SFC Jeremy Scribner, senior Ranger instructor for C Company.

The students complete the exercise in pairs. If one Ranger buddy is slower or needs help, the other has to motivate him, Scribner said.



"They are tired at this point," he said. "You've got high obstacles you have to climb and then obviously the weather right now is cold. It's not really facing (your) fears; it's getting the intestinal fortitude to get in the water … do things you wouldn't normally do."

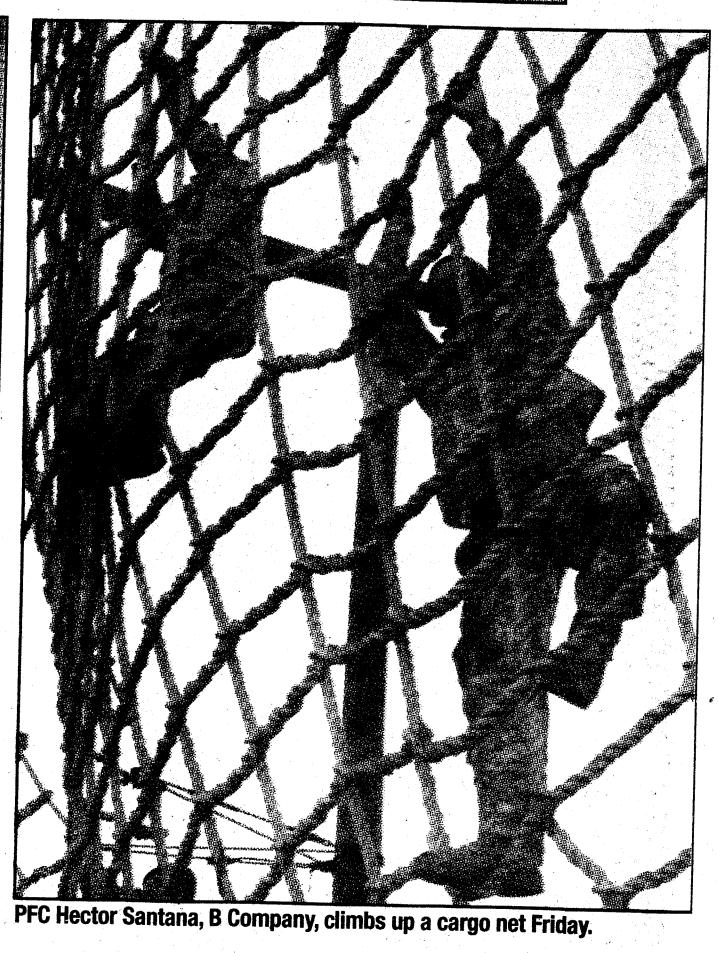
"You definitely have to help your buddy out," said 2LT Andrew LeMarquand, a Ranger student attached to the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team.



LeMarquand said he was surprised how motivated he felt having his Ranger buddy with him during the course.

"You can't succeed without your Ranger buddy," he said.

"It doesn't matter if you make it to the finish line by yourself; if you leave your buddy behind, you're not going to complete the mission."



CPT Robert Milmore, a Ranger instructor with B Company, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, watches as the last group of Ranger students, Soldiers in B Company, maneuver across a pool of water. Instructors oversaw each portion of the course, giving directions on how to complete the different challenges.

PFC Steven Denton, a Ranger student in A Company, 4th Ranger Training Battalion, jumps through a window, the first obstacle on the Malvesti Confidence Course.

The students head to Camp Merrill, near Dahlonega, Ga., for the mountain phase of Ranger School next week. After completing the final portion, the swamp phase at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., they will graduate Jan. 22.

H1N1 immunizations

Lori Egan

SPC Joshua Brown, MEDDAC, gives MG Michael Ferriter, commanding general of Fort Benning, and other essential personnel the H1N1 vaccination Monday. Martin Army Community Hospital now offers both the seasonal flu and H1N1 mist immunizations for all eligible beneficiaries on a first-come, first-served basis.

The H1N1 vaccine is available for people at high risk of serious complications from infection with the virus. The H1N1 vaccine should be used in addition to the seasonal flu vaccine and can be administered the same day.

The vaccines are available at MACH's eighth-floor Flu Clinic, from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. No referral is needed.

If an individual cannot obtain the vaccines at MACH, Tricare will cover the seasonal flu shot, seasonal nasal spray and H1N1 vaccine for qualified beneficiaries when administered in a doctor's office or a network Minute Clinic. Immunizations obtained at pharmacies, grocery stores, and health departments are not covered by Tricare.

The nasal spray vaccine is not covered for those 50 and older. Medicare covers flu vaccines for TFL beneficiaries. Standard and Extra TFL beneficiaries may obtain the flu vaccines with no cost share applied.

Soldiers keep the lines of communication open

SGT Ben Hutto
3RD HBCT

FORWARD OPERATING BASE KALSU, Iraq — When CPT Josh Beard, commander of Company B, Brigade Special Troops Battalion, arrived at FOB Kalsu, he knew his unit was prepared, he said.

The countless hours his troops spent preparing for the 3rd Heavy Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division's deployment had proven his Soldiers could set up and tear down all of the brigade's communications fast. He just didn't know they would be lightning fast.

"In two days, we had the brigade's net up," said Beard, a native of Opelika, Ala. "As a leader, I didn't expect it, but a year's worth of training will make things like that possible. For my guys, it's all muscle memory now."

Company B has an important job, said SGT Orlando Sarabia, the joint network nodes section sergeant from Truckee, Calif.

"Basically we are responsible for setting up and maintaining all the secure and non-secure Internet and communications," he said. "We enable commanders to talk to their Soldiers on the battlefield."

To complete the mission, Soldiers must constantly maintain and protect their equipment in the sandy and hot environment of Iraq.

"Proper maintenance is one of the most important things we do out here," said SGT Jason Sanders, a team leader from Bradenton, Fla. "We have a lot of complex equipment that takes years to understand and master, but it doesn't do us any good if it's not working."

Sanders said maintaining equipment entails everything from blowing out air filters on a daily basis to ensuring that all computers are kept in a cool environment.

"The 52nd Signal Battalion has been a great unit to follow," said Beard. "We learned things from them right off the bat. Not that we didn't know what we were doing, but we relearned how to do some of the things they do really well. They are outstanding dealing with issues like power generation, cooling and maintenance."

Using the experience gained from the National Training Center and their predecessors, the NCOs are making sure Soldiers deployed for the first time are ready for whatever is thrown at them.

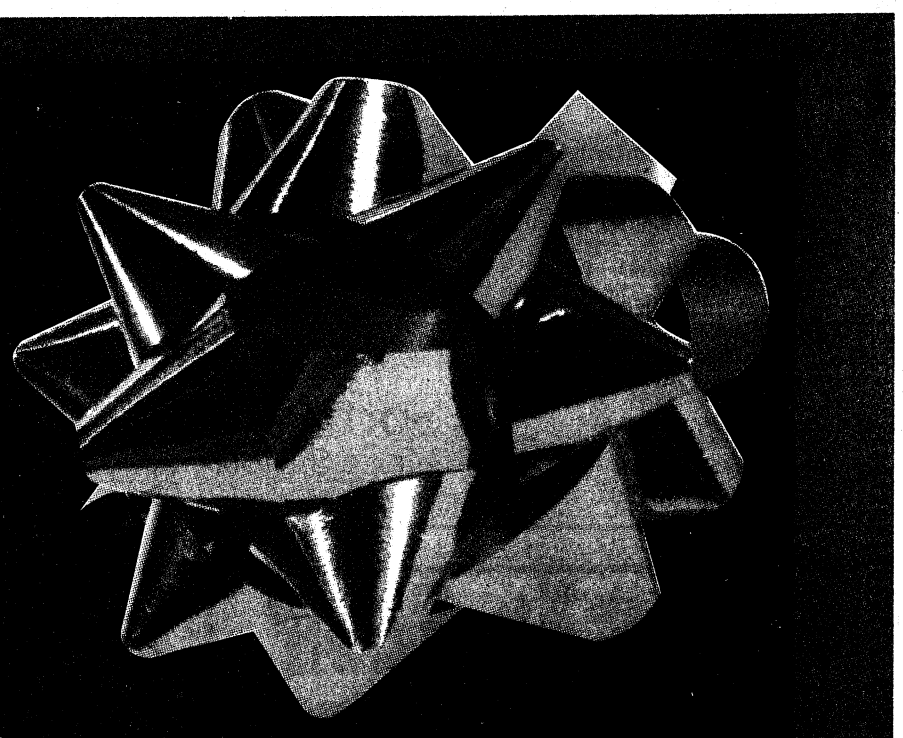
"Training in a school environment is much different than what will happen here," said Sarabia. "Out here our Soldiers are working against the clock. They need to processes information much more quickly."

"We've had some Soldiers join the unit straight out of AIT (advanced individual training) and they didn't get to go through Hammer Focus and NTC," said Sanders. "We are working hard to get them to be able to logically think through problems. There is a process to what we do. It is just a matter of getting them to see it."

PFC Alex Buza, one of Sanders' subordinates from Puyallup, Wash., is one of Anderson's Soldiers deployed for the first time and trying to learn as much as he can.

"For me, it is all about keeping a good attitude," he said. "I'm working with some awesome people. If you like the people you are working with, it makes it easier to learn."

Beard said his company will be taking over the communications node from the 52nd Signal Battalion soon.



SGT Ben Hutto

SPC Robert Ruiz, a Soldier in B Company, Brigade Special Troops Battalion, maintains a communications satellite Nov. 2 at Forward Operating Base Kalsu, Iraq.

"I anticipate the transition being seamless," he said. "It will be the biggest things we will do this deployment, but it isn't something we haven't done and done well."

Veterans: Reflect on experiences in Vietnam, Korea

like you ... that we still have the freedom of worship, the freedom of speech, the freedom of whatever we want to do as long as it doesn't impart on someone else's freedom," she said. "From the bottom of my heart, I want to say 'thank you.'"

Maneuver Center of Excellence Commanding General MG Michael Ferriter and CSM Earl Rice laid a wreath in honor of fallen troops.

COL(R) Ralph Puckett, the former honorary colonel for the 75th Ranger Regiment, and SSG Nicholas Bailey, a drill sergeant who was wounded while deployed, assisted with the wreath ceremony. Following a moment of silence, the MCOE band played Taps.

George Ward, 83, who deployed to Burma as an 18-year-old, served almost nine years in the Army as a military police officer. He said military pride keeps him returning to the Fort Benning ceremony each year.

> "I think it brings the focus to what the price of freedom really is and how tough it is to keep it."
> — LTG(R) Ben Register, veteran of Vietnam and Korea

LTG(R) Ben Register, who served in the Korean War and deployed to Vietnam twice, also attended the ceremony.

He said he identifies with the sacrifice Soldiers and their families make.

"I just say thank you for their commitment and their repeated deployments," Register said. "And a special thanks to their families because I know they serve too."

Former Fort Benning Commander MG(R) Ken Leuer, who served 33 years in the Army, said he can remember celebrating veterans even as a young boy because his father was a World War I veteran.

"(Veterans Day is) about freedom, about paying respect to those who gave us our freedom," he said.

"It's a great time for reflection and appreciation," Register said. "I think it brings the focus to what the price of freedom really is and how tough it is to keep it."

It's freedom, and the pursuit of which, said Columbus City Councilman Wayne Anthony, that links American service members to world events like the protests in Iran and the collapse of the Berlin Wall. "It was all for one word, for one cause," he said. "Freedom."

Memorial: Honors fallen, families

"Peace and freedom are continually under attack," Walrath said. "But all is not lost because of our brave veterans and their families."

Walrath thanked the veterans who fought in the past who are fighting overseas now, and recognized those who made "the ultimate sacrifice" for their country.

"Because of you brave veterans, we remain the land of the free," he said. "And your nation should be eternally grateful."

Ally Keller, a spouse who attended the ceremony, said remembering the fallen and veterans should be a daily occurrence. She knew Ganczewski, a fallen Soldier who was recognized at the ceremony.

Rangers lay wreaths on the memorial.

"We need to remember the Soldiers of the past and those who are fighting now and the sacrifices they have made," she said. "(Many) gave their lives for our country and have served and are serving and they deserved to be honored."

Tortoise: Is threatened species

chamber (training) out on Brittin Range."

Mission comes first, Frank said, but protecting the threatened species doesn't conflict with mission. Soldiers are instructed to leave any turtles or burrows alone and alert a cadre member.

"It is their habitat. They were here before us," he said. "We're just trying to conserve their environment, so that way they can continue to grow. I think if we protect the environment, they can make a comeback."

The animals are usually safe from Soldiers on foot since they spend most of their time underground, except during the breeding season from April to June, Thornton said. Training restrictions, such as prohibiting vehicles within 50 feet of a known burrow, protect the species.

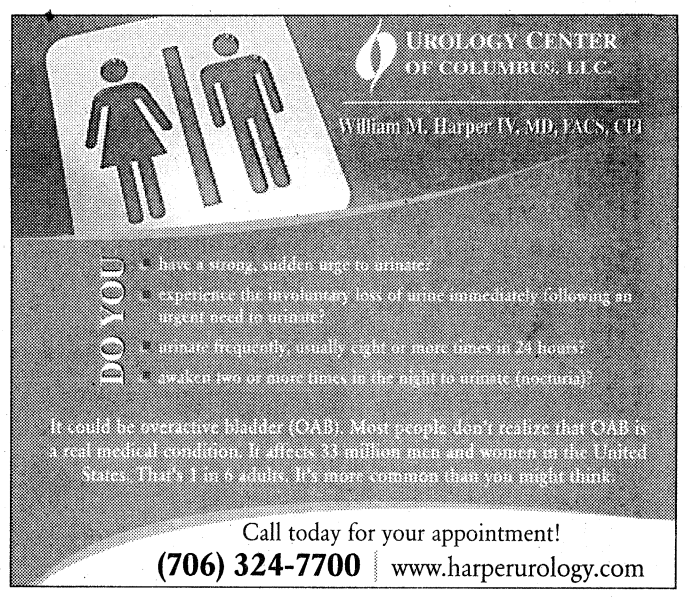
In regards to Maneuver Center of Excellence related construction, Conservation Branch officials try to remove the tortoises before construction, but if one is spotted after it starts, they're called in to pick up the animal, he said.

Gopher tortoises are relocated to fenced areas on Fort Benning until they establish new burrows; then the fences are taken down, Thornton said.

"The biggest problem with the gopher tortoise is loss of habitat," he said. "They love these high sandy soil areas and people love to put subdivisions on them, and that is what has caused the tortoise to become rare."

Because the species lives so long — more than 60 years, with one in 100 eggs surviving to adulthood — Thornton said they don't yet know if the population is growing or stable. However, they do know installations like Fort Benning, Fort Stewart, Ga., and Fort Rucker, Ala., have large populations of tortoises.

"There's a significant portion of the species on military installations," he said. "What the Army does can make a difference toward the recovery of that species. Being proactive with the management of the species could prevent it from becoming an endangered species."



Because of its burrows, which provide homes for various amphibians, insects and reptiles, the gopher tortoise is a keystone species. Its loss could directly influence scarcity of other animals, Thornton said.

Until now, the Conservation Branch has focused on protecting the species, he said, but it's moving toward "more intensive monitoring" to gather more data about the growth of the tortoise population.

that a flag is unfurled; every moment that an American enjoys life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness — that is their legacy," the president said.

The Fort Hood community has lost 545 Soldiers in Iraq and Afghanistan, Cone said, "but never did we expect to pay such a high price at home."

The Army chief of staff, Gen. George W. Casey Jr., added, "Grieve with us. Don't grieve for us.

"Those who have fallen did so in the service of their country," he said. "They freely answered the call to serve, and they gave their lives for something that they loved and believed in."

The fallen came from 11 different states and from all walks of life to answer the call of service, Cone said, emphasizing their diversity. The deadly incident will motivate Soldiers to renew their resolve and commitment to win the nation's wars, the general said.

"May our continued service be a tribute to them," Cone said.

Like generations before them, Obama said this generation of service members has paid the price for freedom. At the conclusion of the memorial ceremony, Obama and first lady Michelle Obama laid a presidential coin before each of the 13 battlefield crosses — the helmet, boots and rifle representing each of those killed — before family members and comrades filed past.

BENCH NOTES

ERIN A. NASH

Chiefs chuck Johnson

On the day he was supposed to come back from his second suspension of the year, the Kansas City Chiefs released running back Larry Johnson. Johnson was 75 yards away from breaking the team rushing record held by Priest Holmes.

On Oct. 25, Johnson insulted fans on Twitter, and also questioned the coaching credentials of Todd Haley.

The Chiefs are 1-7 on the season.

Johnson's lead shrinks

Jimmie Johnson, who's on track to win his fourth consecutive Sprint Cup championship, finished 38th at Texas Motor Speedway after crashing on the third lap. Johnson's points lead over teammate Mark Martin shrunk from 184 to 73.

After Kyle Busch ran out of gas with under three laps to go, big brother Kurt claimed the victory. Denny Hamlin finished second, followed by Matt Kenseth in third.

Only two races remain in the NASCAR season. Coverage from Phoenix International Raceway begins at 3:15 p.m. Sunday on ABC.

Colts, Saints still perfect

Halfway through the NFL regular season, the Indianapolis Colts and the New Orleans Saints are a perfect 8-0.

The Saints play the St. Louis Rams at 1 p.m. Sunday. There should be no reason they won't be 9-0 after the game.

The Colts play the New England Patriots at 8:20 p.m. Sunday.

Horned Frogs leap

TCU took over the fourth spot in the BCS standings released Sunday, giving the Frogs a slim light of hope of playing in the national championship game. TCU made history by having the highest BCS ranking ever from a conference without an automatic bid to a BCS bowl game.

Florida remained in the top spot, and once again Alabama and Texas swapped places, landing the Crimson Tide in the second spot.

Florida and Alabama will meet in the SEC championship game Dec. 5.

If it quacks like a duck ...

Michael Heisley, owner of the Memphis Grizzlies, has denied rumors that Allen Iverson is retiring from the NBA at the age of 34. Iverson took an indefinite leave of absence over a personal family matter last week.

Heisley said he would be the first to know if Iverson was set to retire, but was also quoted as saying, "If he does retire, I'll be tremendously disappointed." He doesn't sound too sure about Al's return himself.

Rangers race in New York City marathon

Kristin Molinaro
THE BAYONET

For CPT(R) Chad Fleming, failure was not an option. The last few miles of the New York City Marathon loomed ahead Nov. 1 as Fleming stopped again to readjust his prosthetic leg.

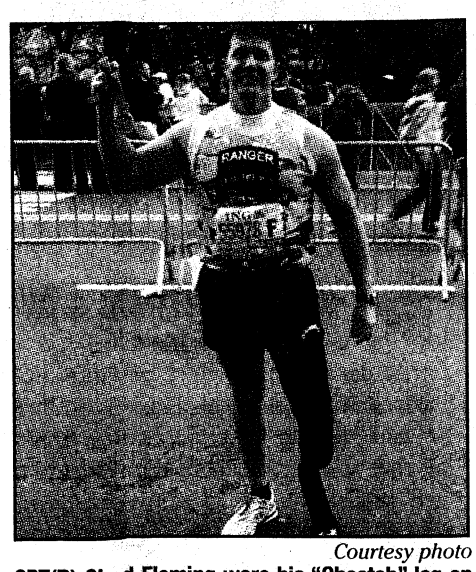
"It's kind of like having a shoe that's too big and you keep putting socks on to make it fit," said the former Ranger with 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment. "The smallest alteration in the way your leg fits changes everything."

But Fleming wouldn't quit, he said, because he knew his friend and fellow amputee, SFC Joe Kapacziewski, was waiting for him at the finish line.

"We'd agreed to split the distance, so he ran the first 16 miles, and I ran the last 11," Fleming said.

The two were wounded in the same grenade attack in northern Iraq in 2005, and spent the majority of their recovery together, first in Landstuhl, Germany, and later at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, before returning to Fort Benning.

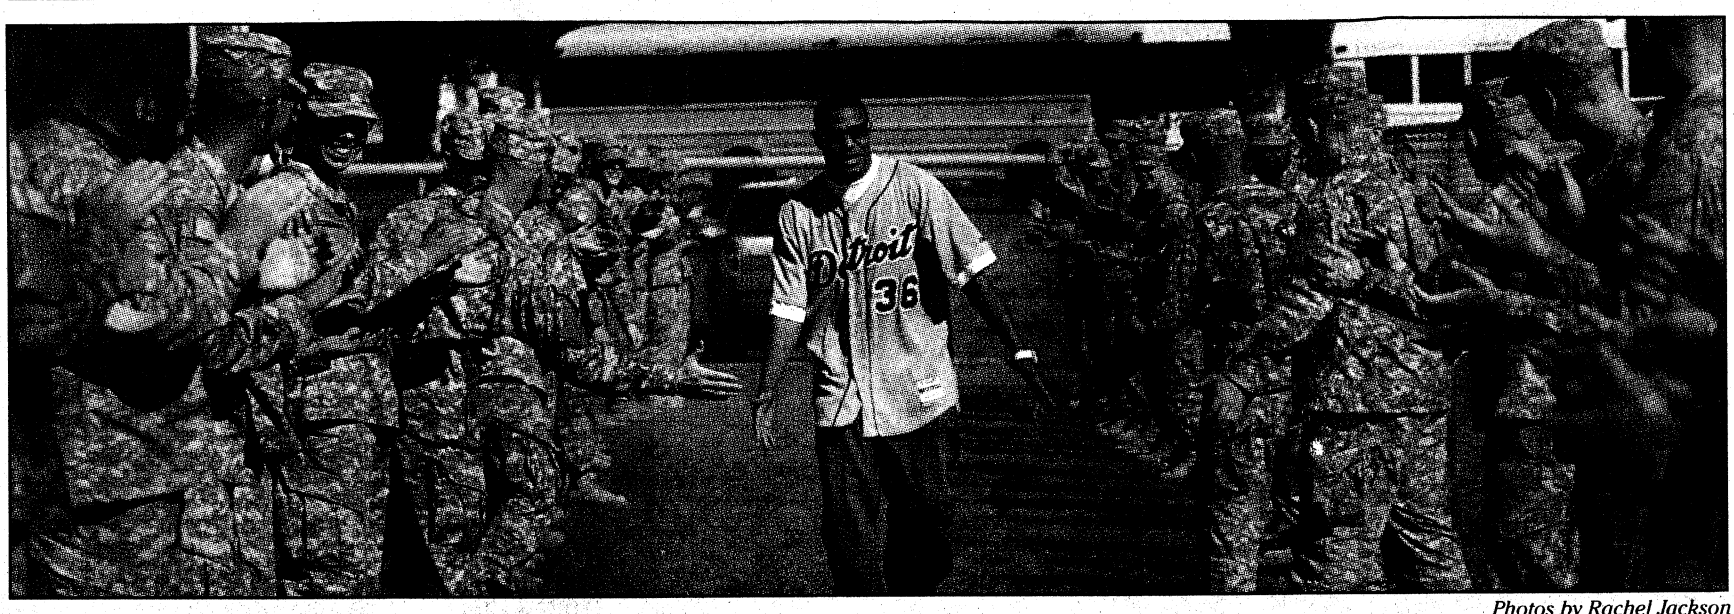
"We made the journey together," said Fleming, who medically retired Friday.



"I lost my right leg, he lost his left, so we share a pair of shoes on occasion," joked Kapacziewski, who just returned from an Afghanistan deployment with the 3rd Bn.

"We have a bond no one can replicate," Fleming said.

Fleming, Kapacziewski and 22 other charity runners ran the marathon to raise awareness of the Lead the Way Fund, a program to help ease the financial burdens of the families of Rangers killed or wounded in action. The annual marathon, which treks through the five boroughs of New York City, drew approximately 42,000 runners.



Jim Regan created the fund

Around 150 children gathered Saturday at the Child, Youth and School Services Youth Sports Complex to participate in a mini baseball clinic led by Detroit Tigers pitcher Edwin Jackson and Shaw High School baseball players.

"It's good to be back at Fort Benning," said Jackson, who played baseball and football for CYS&S at Fort Benning in the 1990s when his father, Edwin Sr., was stationed here. "My favorite part about the camp was seeing the smiles on the kids' faces and talking with them."

"Wow, it's really neat that I get to meet Edwin Jackson," said Jackson Hunter, 10, who saw Jackson play against the Minnesota Twins. "It's cool to think he used to play at Fort Benning when he was a kid."

Among those at the camp was Jackon's former CYS&S coaches, including John W. Peeler and Brian McCall.

McCall said he saw Jackson's early potential.

"I saw talent," McCall said.

Jackson: Perseveres through ups and downs of career

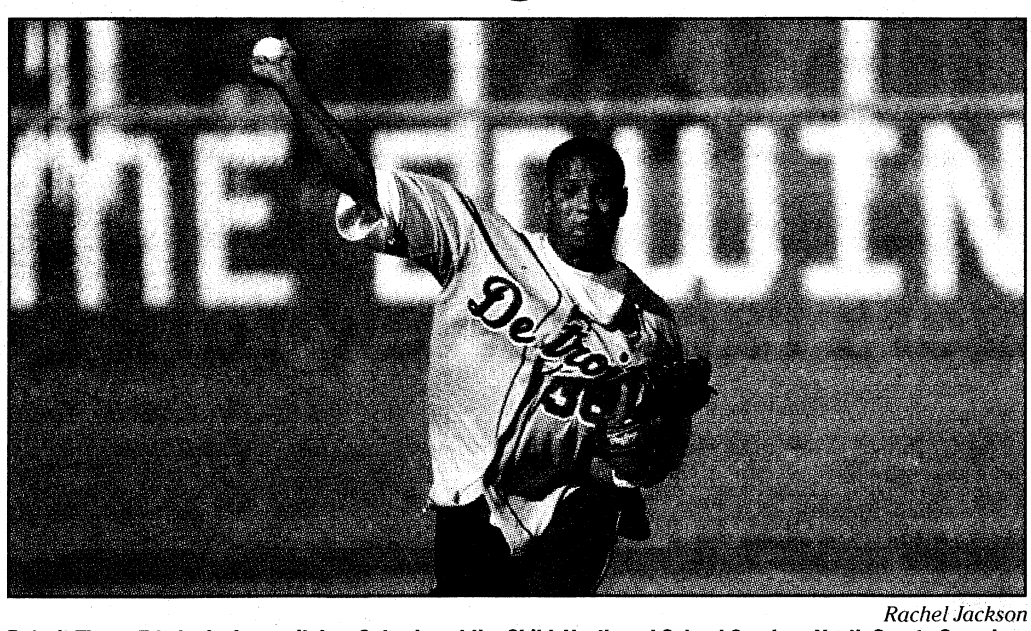
"With some kids you have to use redundancy (but not with Edwin). He picked up things quite quickly and he would run with it. I would use him as a peer instructor to help the other players."

The prep star played basketball, football and baseball until his sophomore year at Shaw High School, when he decided to put all his efforts into baseball.

"To make a long story short, his heart was in baseball and he stuck with it and it panned out for him," Edwin Sr. said.

But school came first, said his mom, Regina.



"I always told him, 'You get good grades, you play sports. You get bad grades, you can't play sports.'"

Jackson's big break came in 2001, his senior year.

"There were two other kids scouts were looking at and it just so happens at this particular game we were playing at Golden Park against Columbus High School," Edwin Sr. said. "Edwin was the center fielder and he threw one ball from center field all the way home and got the guy out. And from that point in time, the scout asked about him, but we had no intention of thinking he would be drafted because they never really came to look at him up until his senior year."

McCall remembers the throw by Jackson.

"It was close to the wall — close to 400 feet," he said. "Edwin threw a dart to home plate. There was no bounce, no nothing. It was a straight line drive probably at 95 miles per hour. It was incredible."

Rachel Jackson

Detroit Tigers Edwin Jackson pitches Saturday at the Child, Youth and School Services Youth Sports Complex.

Shortly after the game, the Jacksons received a phone call from a major league scout saying they wanted to draft Jackson.

"It was an unexpected surprise to be drafted straight out of high school but playing in the major leagues was always a dream of mine," Jackson said.

Jackson was drafted in the sixth round by the Los Angeles Dodgers as an outfielder and later became a pitcher.

Jackson played with the Dodgers until 2006 when he was traded to the Tampa Bay Rays, where he led the team with a team-record 14 victories, but was left off the club's American League Division Series roster.

"There wasn't much I could do about not being selected for the (ALDS) game, so I just went on with a positive attitude," Edwin said.

"When Edwin was left off the roster, I was hurt for him because he was hurt," Regina said. "Edwin would never say anything (though). When we saw him, me being his mom, I could see his face and (saw) that he was hurt. He said 'it is what it is.' (But) I told him it's OK."

His parents always emphasized to him there would be ups and downs and he had to roll with them, Edwin Sr. said.

"Every game whether it's good or bad, I call him and tell him 'it's OK,'" Regina said. "I always tell him to give 110 percent and you can't control what the other players do, you just have to do your job."

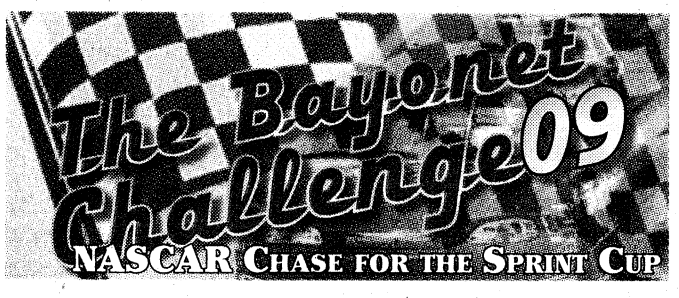
Edwin's positive attitude paid off as he was put on the American League Championship Series roster. He pitched two innings in relief and went on to pitch two innings in Game 4 of the 2008 World Series against the Philadelphia Phillies.

"It is something I will never forget," Edwin Sr. said. "When he came out of the bull pen, it was excitement, nervousness and joy all bundled up in one. It was a feeling you never dreamed that you would be sitting watching your kid play in the World Series."

"It's hard to explain what it felt like to be on that field and play in the World Series," Jackson said. "It was amazing."

Jackson pitched in the 2009 All-Star game. In his career, he has 472 strikeouts, and a 4.66 earned run average, with 38 wins and 39 losses and is tied for the most wins in a season by a Rays pitcher with 14. In 2009, Jackson was traded to the Detroit Tigers, where he went 13-9.

"If you have a dream, don't let anyone tell you you can't do it and it won't come true," Jackson said to the children at the camp. "And remember, grades come first, then sports."



Jackson closed the camp autographing balls and T-shirts for the children.

Runners: Race for Lead the Way

in honor of his son, SGT James Regan, who was killed in Iraq while serving with the 3rd Bn., in 2007.

The charity runners raised approximately $100,000 for the organization, Regan said.

Fleming and Kapacziewski finished the race in 5 hours, 1 minute and 52 seconds.

MSG Scott Stetson, the force modernization NCO with 75th Ranger Regt., was another runner with the Lead the Way pack.

Stetson said he's completed five marathons and one ultramarathon in the last two years but this was the first where he pushed himself to run as fast as he could.

"I wanted to leave it all out there for Jim," said Stetson, who finished in 3:38:21.

Stetson said strenuous physical activity such as running relieves back pain associated with an injury he suffered while deployed to Mosul in 2005. Stetson fell off a 20-foot wall and fractured his back.

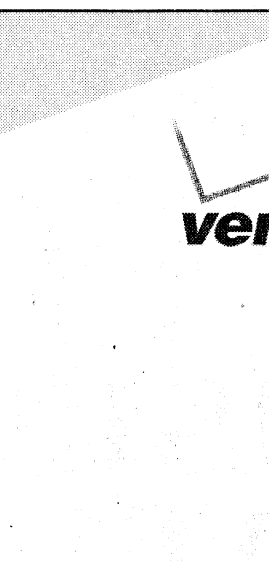
SFC Kyle Margelofsky, SFC Joseph Kapacziewski, COL Richard Clarke and MSG Scott Stetson prepare for the start of the New York City Marathon Nov. 1.

Stetson said organizations like Lead the Way bring Soldiers and families together.

"The legacy isn't gone when the Ranger, or Soldier, dies," Stetson said. "It lives on through men and women that Soldier touched with their lives, and lives on through their families. We have to come together to make sure we honor them the best we can."

Fleming said now that he's completed the marathon, he's looking forward to a 450-mile bike ride from Jacksonville, Fla., to Tampa with Ride to Recovery in December.



"I've got nine or 10 legs, from swim legs to bicycle legs to mountain-climbing legs," said Fleming, who used his "Cheetah" leg for the race. "I've got a leg for just about everything you want to do, and some things you may not want to."

Faith students watch wrestling demonstration

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

Wrestling season is here. It gears up in November and lasts through March, making the perfect winter activity for kids who play sports during other seasons, said Air Force Lt. Col. Hiram Morales, head coach for the Child, Youth & School Services wrestling team.

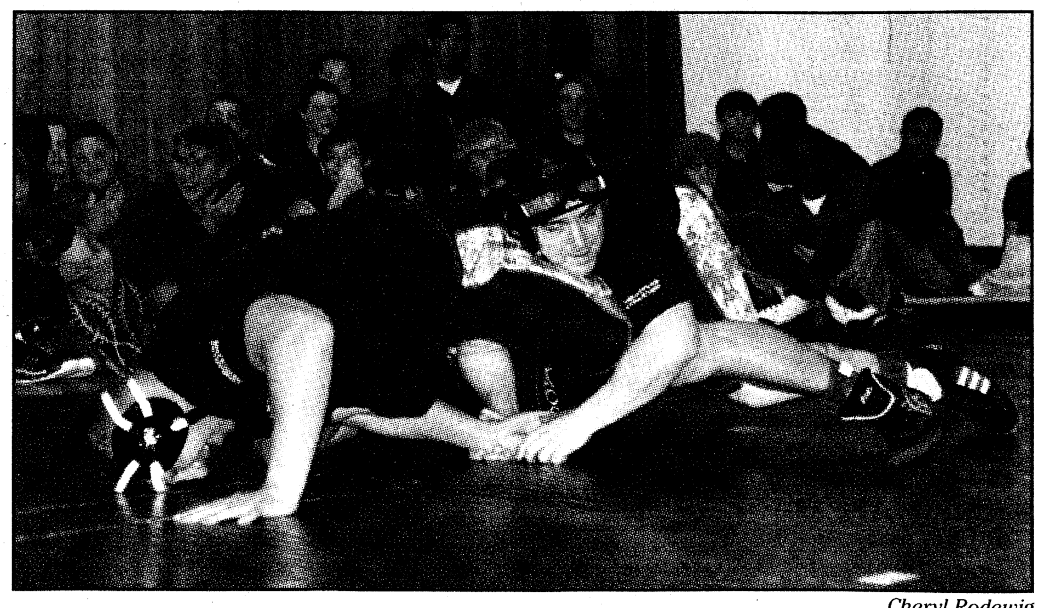
"We at Fort Benning have a one-of-a-kind program — the largest program in the city, and for some age groups, probably the largest in the south Georgia area," Morales said. "We know many kids over the winter are not active with sports. Many are football players; others are baseball players, so this provides the perfect cross-training opportunity for them to stay fit in strength, in stamina, aerobic fitness, and also to remain flexible."

Members of the U.S. Army Combatives School demonstrated wrestling techniques for students Nov. 4 at Faith Middle School. They covered headlocks, how to defend being taken down, reversals and ways to escape.

Eleven-year-old Heath Suich, a sixth-grader at Faith Middle School and member of the Fort Benning wrestling team, practiced several moves with SSG Stephen Schmeichel, 2nd Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment.

"It's really fun, and it's something to do during the winter," said Heath, who started wrestling in kindergarten. "You get to tackle them on the mat and get them on their back and pin them. It's really awesome to be able to do the flips and take the other person down."

Heath said he enjoys wrestling because it helps him stay fit and helps with other sports. When he played soccer, it helped with balance; with baseball, it helps with arm strength for pitching, he said.



Eighth-grader Nikolas Dowdy, 14, said wrestling makes him a better football player.

"It helps with being more flexible with the twists and turns of football and being able to run farther," he said. "It (also) helps with your mind coordination. It's sort of like chess ... but in wrestling, you have to think quicker."

Morales, who has taught wrestling to children for 13 years, said the sport definitely has a mental side to it.

"It's not just the confidence he needs to have ... he has to be able to solve a problem very quickly before it turns into another problem," Morales said. "So many kids who are good at problem solving tend to do fairly well at wrestling."

Nikolas, who moved to post four months ago, said he enjoyed the demonstration and plans to join the team.

Cheryl Rodewig

SSG Stephen Schmeichel gains wrist control after his single-leg takedown over SSG James Stelly. Instructors at the U.S. Army Combatives School at Fort Benning, the NCOs demonstrated wrestling techniques to Faith Middle School students Nov. 4.

"It was pretty interesting to watch," he said. "Since they showed us the flips and I knew majors are going to be teaching us, I got excited, and I want to join. I can't wait."

Along with Morales, nine coaches help lead wrestling practices Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays at Briant Wells Fieldhouse. Children are divided into two age categories: pre-K to fourth grade and fifth to eighth grades.

Morales said he is putting together a competitive team and is looking for more middle school students. For more information, call CYSS at 706-545-2079.

Runners meet for museum's first Follow Me run

Rachel Jackson

About 200 runners participated in the Follow Me National Infantry Museum 5K and 10K run Saturday at the National Infantry Museum.

Rachel Jackson
THE BAYONET

About 200 runners participated in the first Follow Me National Infantry Museum 5K and 10K run Saturday at the National Infantry Museum.

The museum wants to make it an event as big as Country's Midnight Express, said MG(R) Jerry White, National Infantry Museum Foundation chairman and president.

"I think this could be a big event for the tricommunity area," said Cyndy Cerbin, director of communications. "There are many avid runners in this area."

Participants of the 5K and 10K began the course at Heritage Walk and ran on South Lumpkin Road by the Columbus Waterworks.

The top three runners in 14 age divisions and the top male and female in Masters and Grand Masters received awards.

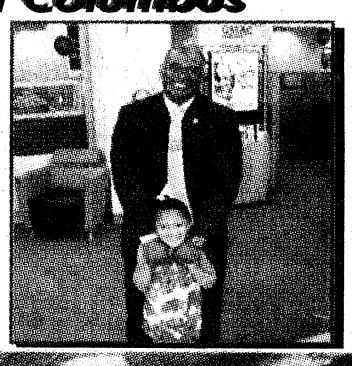
The first to cross the finish line in the 10K was 2LT David Anderson, 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry Regiment, who was the male overall winner with a time of 35 minutes, 31 seconds.

"It feels good to be first," Anderson said. "It was a nice trail. It was relatively flat, really fast and good for any level runner. Next year, I would recommend everyone to come out."

Tucker Oliver, 12, who ran in the 10K, said he enjoyed the race.

"It was a long way, but it was fun — I like running," said Tucker, who runs cross-country at St. Luke School. "It was a pretty good course. The turnaround killed you because you ran back the same way. I'll be back next year."

Cerbin said the turnout was great for the first time, but she hopes more runners will participate next year.



This year, the money from the race went toward paying for the race. But Cerbin said in the future, she hopes the race can be a fundraiser for the museum.

For race results, go to http://results.active.com/pages/index.jsp.

Third-graders face off in 'Classroom Jeopardy!'

Vince Little
THE BAYONET

Here's the clue: An electronic version of a famous TV quiz show that can be tailored by educators to suit their specific curriculum while bringing the game's familiar images and sounds into the schoolhouse.

What is "Classroom Jeopardy!?"

Sarah Whitcomb, a Jeopardy! Clue Crew member who presents video clues on the show from locations around the world, visited Michelle Ossa's third-grade class at Frank R. Loyd Elementary School on Monday to play the interactive classroom edition with 30 students divided into three teams: the Panthers, Loyd and Brain Busters.

"A high volume of parents are deployed from this group. Hopefully, they can get a chance to see it online," Ossa said. "We've been practicing this game for a week to get the rules down."

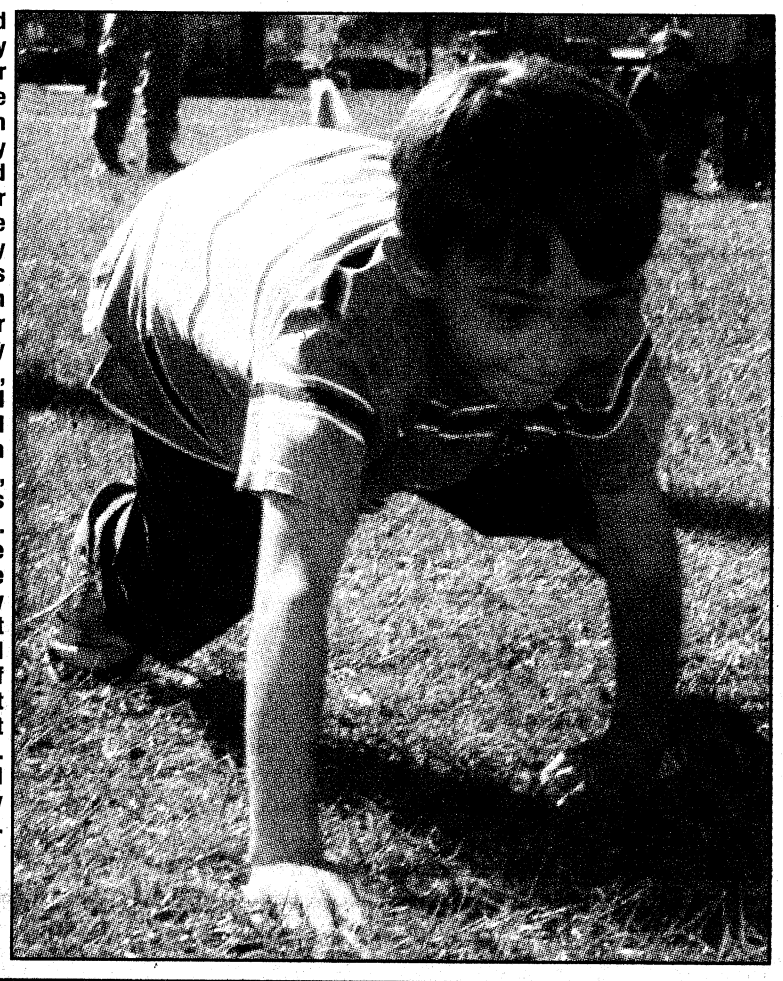
"Classroom Jeopardy!," found in more than 30,000 schools nationwide, allows teachers to customize their own games. They can input specific clues, categories and Final Jeopardy! to cover subjects their students are studying.

The game features the television show's trademark Daily Doubles, the Jeopardy! theme music and wireless buzzers.

On several occasions, however, Whitcomb had to remind the students to phrase their answers in the form of a question — a ritual many Jeopardy! contestants and viewers often forget, despite the occasional warning from host Alex Trebek.

Opening categories included sports, cereals, animated movies and the zoo. It progressed to fast math, holidays and celebrations, classic word games and candy bars during the Double Jeopardy! round. The Final Jeopardy! category highlighted Loyd's school vision.

The Panthers emerged on top with $16,200, finishing ahead of the runner-up Brain Busters.



"We came in second place," said 8-year-old Austin Terry, "(but) it's OK. It's not whether you win or lose.

"It was awesome. I learned that there's nothing better to a game than being Seven-year-old Michael McCoy does the bear crawl while 6-year-old Dylan Kohl gets ready to start behind him. The bear crawl was one of many relay races students competed in Nov. 4 at Dexter Elementary School. Inside, kids participated in simulated mountain climbing, guerrilla drills and low crawls. At many of the stations, the students not only learned about the physical exercises of boot camp, but also facts about MAJ Herbert J. Dexter's life and the seven Army values.

Students attend boot camp

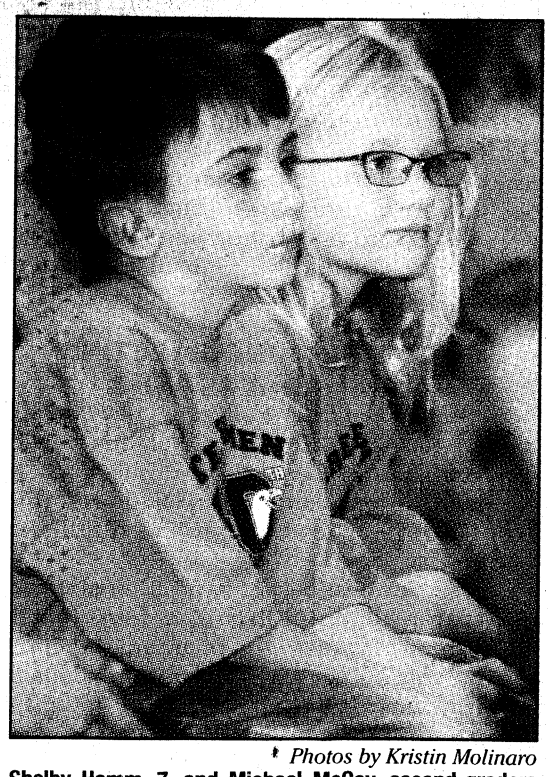
Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

More than 240 Dexter Elementary School students attended "boot camp" Nov. 4 in honor of the school's 40th year. The camp featured activities similar to those MAJ Herbert J. Dexter, the school's namesake, likely encountered at Fort Benning in the 1950s. Kids spent the afternoon doing sprints, jumping jacks, low crawls, guerrilla drills, mountain climbing techniques and bear crawls.

"Each of the exercises they're doing today would have been something that he did in boot camp. Every one of them was pulled from the period," said SSG Jason Nicholson, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Regt., who helped coordinate the event.

"These kids are having a blast," he said. "That's the idea: to have fun, maybe make some connections to his lifestyle, some of the stuff he had to do on a daily basis — and then the seven Army values."

"I get tired and sweaty, and I get really thirsty for cold water … but it's not really hard," said 5-year-old Macy Sanders, explaining her afternoon of basic training.



Macy said she learned about the Army value of respect, "like don't jump on the couch."

THE BAYONET

For 40 years, Herbert J. Dexter Elementary School has gone without a picture of its namesake. That changed Nov. 6 when, for the school's 40th anniversary, the parent teacher organization presented a portrait of MAJ Herbert Dexter.

"That face right there," said Vicki McGorray, Dexter's oldest child, of the portrait. "That's dad's face when he chased us on Sunday morning playing Frankenstein, but we think it may have been the one he showed his men too.

Four of Dexter's five children attended the celebration, which included performances by the children's choir and school band, a poetry reading by Aidan Sloan and words from LTC(R) Thomas Carlisle.

Carlisle is the former commander of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment at Fort Benning, which is linked to the school through the Partners in Education program. Carlisle's daughter also attended third grade at Dexter.

The school's PTO commissioned a local artist last year to paint a portrait of MAJ Herbert J. Dexter based on a black and white photo provided by his family.

The school, which opened in 1969, was named about Dexter, who died in Vietnam Sept. 18, 1965. Dexter was fatally wounded by enemy fire while leading a platoon of men to recapture a hill so U. S. aircraft could land safely, Carlisle said.

Dexter, who served with 2nd Battalion, 502nd Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the military's second-highest award for valor.

Four years later, his widow, Beverly, and five children attended the school's grand opening.

"MAJ Dexter was a guy like many of us," Carlisle said. "He was a father and Soldier; he liked baseball and he dreamed about his children's futures. But on Sept. 18, 1965, he was called on to make a personal sacrifice."

Following the unveiling of Dexter's portrait, his children

Heritage luncheon planned

Cheryl Rodewig
THE BAYONET

The Native American Heritage Month luncheon will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday at the Benning Conference Center.

The theme for this year's luncheon is "Understanding Native American Heritage Now and Then." The theme focuses on where Native Americans have come from and where they are today.

"They haven't forgotten their past," said SFC Matthew Stanley, the equal opportunity advisor in charge of the event. "Even though they've been moved around, they've still maintained their customs and their cultures. There's still a tribal identity."

Much of the luncheon will center around the Muscogee Creek Nation, Stanley said.

The guest speaker, Acee Buckner, is a Muscogee Creek Indian from Oklahoma. He enlisted in the Army in 1966 and attended Airborne School at Fort Benning before assignment to the 82nd Airborne Division. Now, he performs songs and

The country music artist, who's most famous for his hits, The Devil Went Down to Georgia and He's Coming Back, will perform at 7 p.m. Nov. 18 at the RiverCenter for the Performing Arts. Jonathan and Lisa Moore will open the concert.

During the day, there will be a luncheon and silent auction from noon to 1:30 p.m. held in the lobby. All proceeds will go toward the completion of Camp Laughing Child, a camp for kids with HIV or AIDS.

Also, during the luncheon, Columbus Mayor Jim Wetherington will present Daniels with a key to the city and declare it Charlie Daniels Day. Eastwind Bluegrass Band will perform while those who attend eat Mike and Ed's barbecue.

Daniels said he looked forward to returning to Georgia to support the Christ-centered therapeutic adventure camp that provides a recreational escape for institutionalized children living with the

Community CALENDAR

OFF POST

NEWCOMERS ORIENTATION

Army Community Service has a Newcomer Orientation and Bus Tour from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. today and Friday for Soldiers, families and civilians new to Fort Benning.

The program is free and child care is provided. For more information or child-care reservations, call 706-545-0403.

PARENT TO PARENT WORKSHOPS

Fort Benning's Parent to Parent team has scheduled a series of family workshops this month. The topics include:

"Math Literacy Program," noon today at McGraw Village Community Center, open to the public.

"Science Literacy," 9 a.m. Tuesday at St. Joseph's Child Development Center in Fort Mitchell, Ala., open to parents and CDC staff.

"Deployment Activities," 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at Sante Fe CDC, open to the public.

"Early Literacy Program," 11 a.m. Wednesday at Sayers Library, open to public. Event features story time with the book My Many Colored Days.

"Chart Your Course," 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Sayers Library, open to the public. Map out an academic plan with this informative workshop, which includes a poster, passport and an interactive CD to keep and use throughout a child's academic career.

For more information, call 706-405-9857 or e-mail fortbenningp2p@yahoo:com.

MCCW PLANS 'JOURNEY OF FAITH'

Fort Benning's Military Council of Catholic Women invites all to take part in its "Journey of Faith."

The free event begins at 6:30 p.m. today with a reception in the home of MCCW president Susy Roe. From 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the Follow Me Chapel, the group will explore the Catholic faith through four courses: Navigate the Journey, Share the Journey, Food for the Journey and Celebrate the Journey. A light continental breakfast and lunch will be provided.

Child care is available but must be reserved today.

To reserve a seat, call Roe at 706-464-6066 or send an e-mail to FtBenningMCCW@yahoo.com and include your name, address, phone number and children's names and ages if child care is needed.

TAPS SURVIVOR SEMINAR AND GOOD GRIEF CAMP

The Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors will be at Fort Benning today and Saturday to provide its free "Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp."

The conferences offer information, resources and personal contact with fellow survivors. Workshops are designed to help survivors heal and cope with life after loss.

The TAPS Good Grief Camp for children and teens provides a safe, supportive atmosphere to conduct activities and opportunities to learn coping skills, establish and identify support systems, and create awareness that they are not alone in the grief of a loved one.

Register at www.taps.org/events. For more information, call Survivor Outreach Services at 706-545-7517 or visit www.benningmwr.com/acs-sos.php.

PATIENT EDUCATION CLASSES

The Department of Family Medicine offers group visits to all Tricare beneficiaries. The voluntary, interactive sessions are set up to enlist and validate patients as their own caregivers and address concerns.

All group visits are held at Martin Army Community Hospital in the Department of Family Medicine's Connelly Conference Room. Future meeting topics include:

"Tobacco Cessation" from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15 and Jan. 12. The same session is set for 6 to 7:30 p.m. Dec. 1.

condition. Camp Laughing Child was founded by his longtime friend and Columbus native Shane Clark. The two met 10 years ago on a benefit tour.

"He is a true servant of mankind and of God," Daniels said of Clark. "He really has a heart for pediatric AIDS cases. He just feels such a burden to do something about it."

Clark said Mother Teresa prompted his passion for the cause while working with her for six years in India.

The camp is located in Mexico, where Clark currently lives, and is half finished.

"We've been working really hard and doing things really simply with the goal of impacting the lives of those children," Clark said. "And Charlie (Daniels) gets it."

The performer said he was honored to help and gave all the credit to Clark.

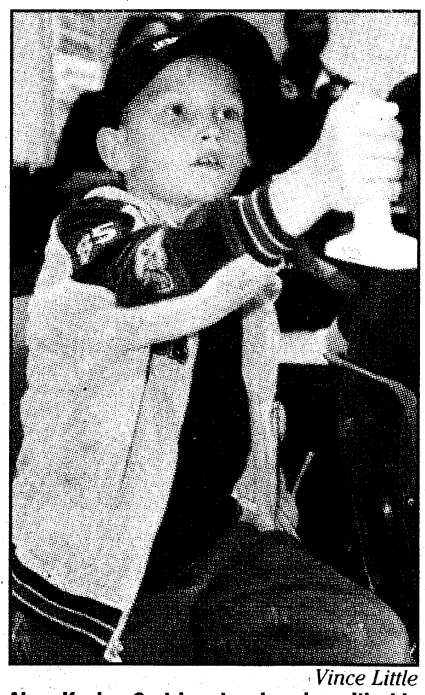
"I just feel this is important work," Daniels said. "But Shane (Clark) is doing all the work, and we're just lending a hand with it. It's just one night out of my life."

The boys dormitory at the camp is named in honor of Daniels, and the girls house is named in honor of Daniels' wife, Hazel.

MG Michael Ferriter will also thank Daniels for his support of the military during the luncheon.

Event director John Boyd said Daniels is recognized as a military supporter, and Fort Benning's proximity was one of the reasons Columbus was chosen for the concert.

"He has performed for Soldiers at more than 300 shows domestic and abroad," Boyd said. Daniels recently returned from an annual trip to Iraq.



"(Service members) are just the best we've got," Daniels said. "I realize that if it wasn't for the military, there would be no America. We love entertaining the troops."

Tickets for the concert, which are discounted for military, can be purchased at www.tickets.com, the RiverCenter, Golden Acres Baptist Church in Phenix City or at the Sanctuary Bookstore in Columbus. Those who buy at the bookstore will be entered into a drawing for a Charlie Daniels autographed guitar.

Tickets for the luncheon, which will be from noon to 1:30 p.m. the day of the concert, can be purchased at any Mike and Ed's restaurant for $10.

With the help of the event's proceeds, Clark estimated the camp's completion date to be November 2010.

"The success of this event will be heard by heaven in the laughter of those children who receive healing and hope at Camp Laughing Child," he said.

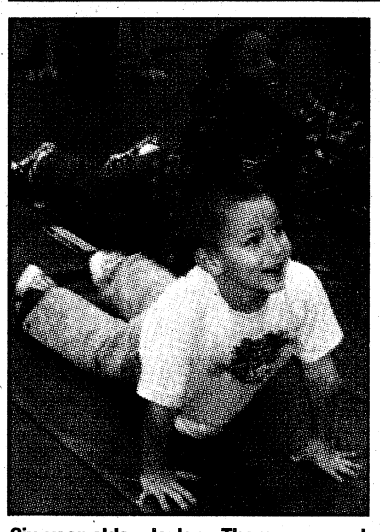
able to play ... And I also learned a lot of interesting stuff."

The "Classroom Jeopardy!" unit was donated to Loyd by the show and WRBL-TV Channel 3, one of the school's Partners in Education and the main organizer for Monday's event.

"It was wonderful to see how the kids were able to work in groups, assign leadership roles and coordinate with each other," said Ossa, the PIE coordinator at Loyd. "The students were able to combine the school vision with mission standards and make it fun ... There was a cause and effect to every decision they made."



Whitcomb has traveled the globe for more than eight years as a roving correspondent for Jeopardy!, taping visual clues that are incorporated into the show. She also visits schools frequently.

"Working for Jeopardy! is a natural partnership with education. We host various events to promote different programs," she said. "This shows students it pays to be smart — and you really feel like you're watching and playing Jeopardy! at home. It makes for a more fun way to learn. This product really brings together the sights and sounds of Jeopardy!"

Since the Clue Crew's formation in 2001, the team has recorded clues in more than 200 different cities, spanning 45 states and 25 countries.

Whitcomb said some of her favorite experiences involved the U.S. military. She's delivered clues while sky diving with the Army's Golden Knight parachute team, pulling 9.2 Gs with the Air Force Thunderbirds and being catapulted off a Navy aircraft carrier in the middle of the Pacific Ocean with the Blue Angels. Whitcomb said she's made countless installation visits and USO tours, too.

"To be able to give back is a privilege. It was a great day," she said. "Hopefully, they'll continue to play Jeopardy! and watch it on television for many years to come."

Kids: Learn about Dexter, Army values

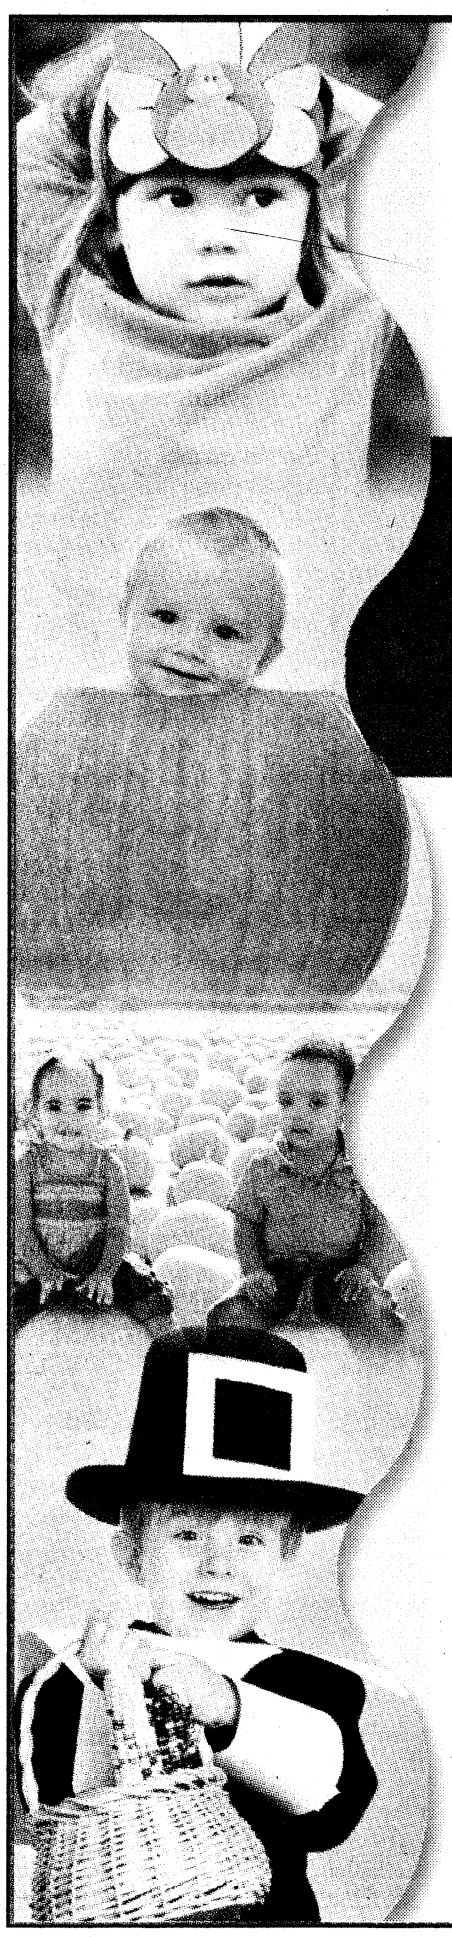
"It's been pretty much like you're actually in the boot camp. It gets you motivated," said 11-year-old Rielly Bassett.

"I like it. I never knew about (Dexter) before, but now I know about him, and I think he's pretty cool," Reilly said. "It actually got me a little bit closer to him. When you're running and doing all the activities, it feels like he's doing it with you."

The entire week focused on Vietnam War hero Herbert Dexter through classroom and hands-on activities.



"Each day we've had different events that commemorate his life and what was done in his life," said Dr. Matthew Kralevich, the school's principal. "We're trying to immerse them into everything there is to know about Herbert Dexter, so ... they can have a greater appreciation about what he went through, who he was as a man, as a Soldier. As our school vision statement says, we learn from the past to create our own future."

Children learned about Dexter's history, the medals he received, Vietnam and even a few words in Russian, which he studied for his special operations training.

The school's partners in education, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry Regiment, and 1st Battalion, 10th Field Artillery Regiment, helped with the weeklong activities.

"It was awesome," said 10-year-old Alani Hairston.

"Sometimes it can be a bit hard, like push-ups I really don't know how to do, (but) it's fun," she said. "I want to be in the Army when I grow up."

Luncheon: To include game demonstration, dances dances at American Indian celebrations across the country.

He will be bring 18 Creek Indians with him to perform music and dancing demonstrations, Stanley said.

People who attend the luncheon will see Stomp dances, a friendship dance and a performance of "stickball," also called "Little Brother of War," said Charles Coleman, warrior and tribal historic preservation officer for Thlopthlocco Tribal Town in Oklahoma.

"It's a game that lacrosse came from, and it's played on ceremonial grounds during the summer," Coleman said. "We didn't have guns before the white man brought us those 'firesticks,' so the combat was hand-to-hand, and (stickball) was good training."

The game, which was used to prepare individuals for battle "like basic training at Fort Benning," involves two sides: east and west, black and red, he said. It's still in use today among native people.

"Now they play it more for sport and competition rather than a 'we're-out-to-get-'em' type of thing," Coleman said.

The dancers will also perform Stomp dances, similar in style to a victory dance.

"It may be from a blessing a person has received or something good has happened, and they are dancing to rejoice ... kind of a thank you to the great spirit," Coleman said.

"Turtle shells provide the rhythm of the dance. I think people will be (tapping) their feet."

The luncheon will culminate with a friendship dance with audience participation, a symbolic gesture of the ties between the Creek nation and the people of Fort Benning.

"Out of our tribe, 37 percent of those who are 18 and older have served in the military, so we're proud of that," said Coleman, who served in the Army from 1955 to 1970.

"The closing dance ... is basically that you reach out and invite somebody into the circle," he said

Coleman said he believes people will be entertained and educated about native people and their heritage.

Tickets for the luncheon are $8.50 and should be reserved by Monday. The menu is baked chicken, mashed potatoes, salad, corn and peach cobbler.

Freedoms come from past sacrifice

Chaplain (MAJ) Richard Garvey
199TH INFANTRY BRIGADE

Wednesday was Veterans Day. How did you celebrate? Did you thank a veteran or visit a gravesite? Did you pray for our service members at home and abroad?

What is this day about? The roots stem back to 1918 — the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month — when the Allies and Germany ceased fighting. Designated as Armistice Day in 1938, Congress made it a legal holiday to celebrate world peace and honor veterans of World War I. Following the Korean War, President Eisenhower signed legislation in 1954 to change the holiday's name to Veterans Day to honor service members of all U.S. wars.

In 1968, Congress signed the Uniform Holiday Bill to give federal workers four three-day weekends — designating the observation of four national holidays on Monday — Washington's birthday, Memorial Day, Columbus Day and Veterans Day, which moved to October.

In 1975, President Gerald R. Ford signed a bill to return Veterans Day to its original date of Nov. 11, beginning in 1978.

Look around you and see what we have today. Most of the physical, social and religious freedoms we have today are a result of the sacrifices brave men and women of the past. We continue to experience these freedoms because of the sacrifices made by the men and women of our armed forces. Jesus said in John 15:13, "Greater love has no one than this that he lay down his life for his friends."

Many veterans have made the ultimate sacrifice for us, for our freedoms. Jesus willingly laid down his life for our spiritual freedom, so that we might have eternal life, giving us freedom over sin and its destructive power in our lives.

I am thankful for my freedoms. I am thankful for the opportunity to practice my faith freely. I am thankful I live in the greatest country on earth, the United States of America.

Thank you veterans and God bless you for your dedicated service.

FORT LEE, Va. — The holidays are fast approaching — a fun family time as children away at college come home and other students get their holiday break. It's also a time for students and parents to apply for the 2010 Scholarships for Military Children Program.

Scholarship applications are available in commissaries worldwide and online through a link at www.commissaries.com and directly at www.militaryscholar.org. Since the program began in 2000, it has awarded $7.3 million in scholarships to almost 5,000 children of service members.

The November scholarship kickoff coincides with National Military Family Month and is an example of commissaries supporting their local communities by improving quality of life for military families, said Defense Commissary Agency Director and CEO Philip E. Sakowitz Jr.

"Being part of something that makes higher education more affordable for military families is thrilling, as we feel it makes a better future possible for their children," he said. "The program awards $1,500 scholarships to well-rounded, accomplished service members' children, enabling these families to save some on their children's tuition."

Only dependent, unmarried children, younger than age 21 (age 23 if enrolled as a fulltime college student) of active duty, Reserve, Guard and retired military members, survivors of service members who died while on active duty, or survivors of individuals who died while receiving retired pay from the military may apply for a scholarship. Applicants should ensure that they, as well as their sponsor, are enrolled in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System database and have a current ID card. They must be planning to attend or already be attending an accredited university full time in the fall of 2010, or be enrolled in a program of studies to transfer directly into a four-year program.

Applicants will submit an essay on the following topic: "You can travel back in time; however, you cannot change events. What point in history would you visit and why?" Applications are due by close of business Feb. 17 at a commissary. At least one scholarship will be awarded at every commissary location with qualified applicants.

presented the school with their father's Army fatigue uniform, which was sent to the family along with Dexter's personal effects following his death.

"For you, this is a building, it's an edifice," said Doug Dexter, youngest of Herbert's children. "For us, it's dad. It's a very different dynamic so it's neat to come back and share this with you."

Another of Dexter's children, Herbert "Jay" Dexter joked that his dad would be surprised to know his nickname is Herbie.

"Dad's real nickname was 'Dutch'," he said. "If he heard it was Herbie, I don't know quite what he would say.

THE BAYONET
NOVEMBER 13, 2009

Photos by Lori Egan

The first horse race of the day, the W.C. Bradley Maiden Timber Race, featured a purse of $15,000. Bernard Dalton and Plum Brush won the race, earning $9,000. The proceeds from the annual Steeplechase at Callaway Gardens benefit the Columbus Museum, Columbus Symphony Orchestra, Historic Columbus Foundation, the Ida Cason Callaway Foundation, the Springer Opera House and the Auburn Veterinary College of Medicine.

Steeplechase at Callaway Gardens

THE BAYONET

The 25th running of the Steeplechase at Callaway was the best yet — beautiful weather, great field, friends, food and plenty to do.

For Patti Rice, from Salem, Ala., Saturday was the 10th year she's attended the event that supports the arts. With a chart to track the races, food on the grill and a corn hole challenge in the making, Rice said the Steeplechase is a great way to relax with friends.

Veteran tailgaters Terri Ezell, Beverly Yarborough and Celia Jenkins, all from Columbus, have had the same spot for 18 years — reserved rail at the top of the turn. The idea for their floral centerpiece came from this year's tickets — shaped like a jockey's silks.

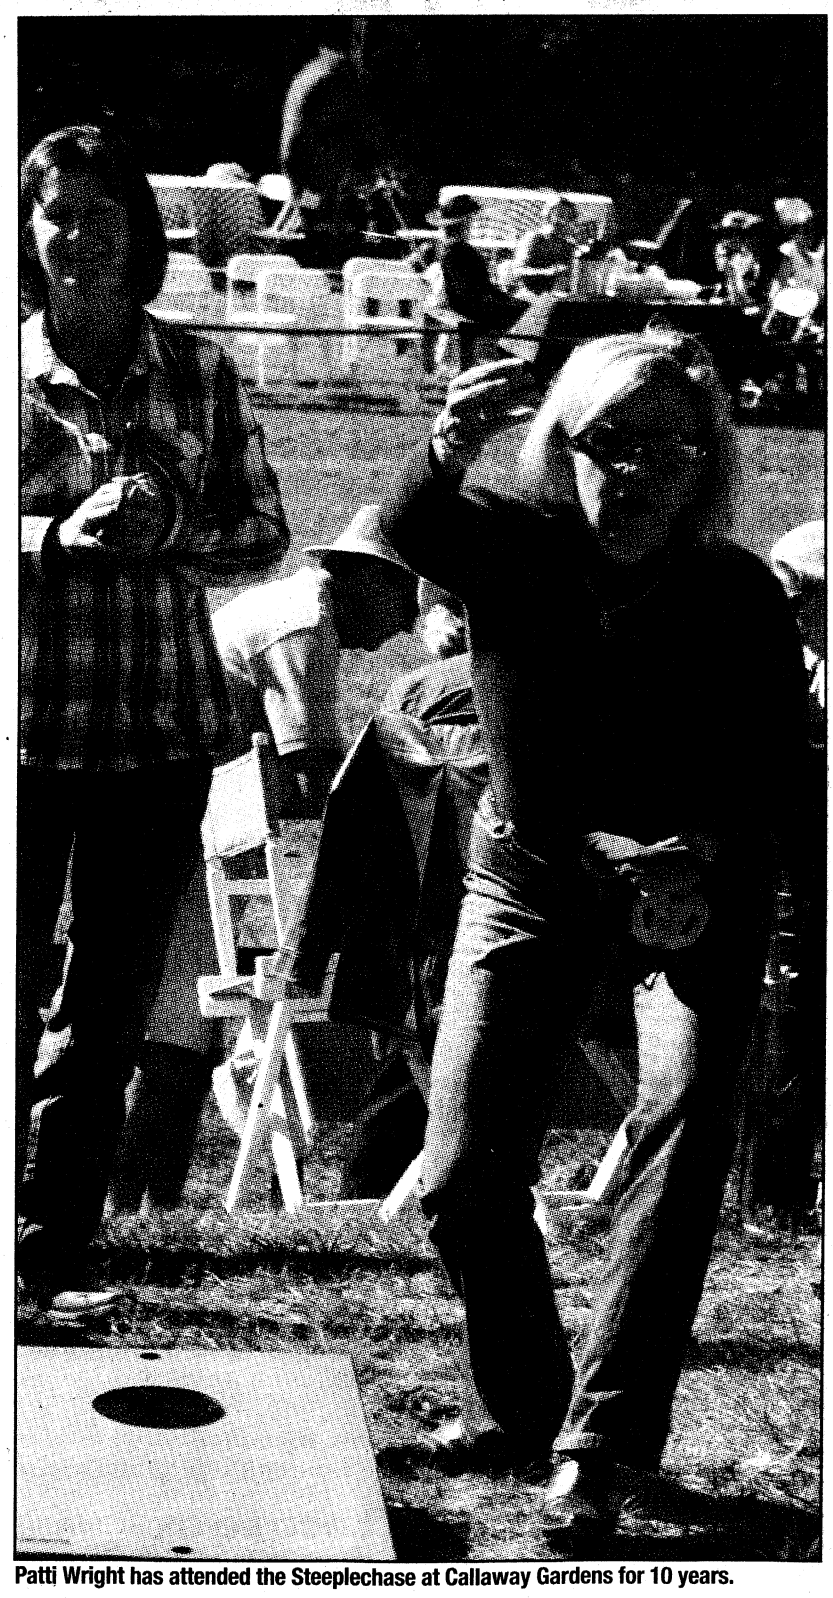
LTC Allen and Susan Price attended their first Steeplechase Saturday.

With tickets to the infield and the Galloping Gourmets tent, the Prices said preparing for the day was easy — a cooler for some drinks and they were ready.

A tailgater's floral centerpiece was part of The Sunny 100 Tailgate Competition, a Steeplechase at Callaway tradition.

Allen, who likes to cook, said he was curious about the chefs' dishes and glad he sampled their work.

In the third race, the Aflac U.S. Championship Supreme Hurdle Novice, when jockey William Dowling pulled Tricky Me up on the far side of the course, it was Susan who ran the knife out to him to cut the bridle off.



The Jack Russell terrier races are part of the infield fun.

Dorothy Rogers, from Thomaston, Ga., waits for the Southern Views Hat Contest. She said the hatter described her hat as "dramatic and elegant, but terribly bodacious."

Patti Wright has attended the Steeplechase at Callaway Gardens for 10 years.

THE MOVIE GUY'S REVIEW

Goats: Fun on the DoD fringe

SGT Junius Stone
192ND INFANTRY BRIGADE

Various governments of the world have researched paranormal and psychic phenomena, with intriguing results. Such efforts also sidle up next to interesting and bizarre techniques in psychological warfare, custom made for target cultures as well as individuals.

This mix of actual human endeavor and results, combined with rumor, fiction and lunacy, produced a heady brew that constantly pops bubbles that spatter all over us. The flavors read like The National Enquirer, the X-Files or the weird stuff shouted by the wino claiming the end of the world is nigh (conveniently 2012).

The way the movie The Men Who Stare At Goats tells it (according to a tag graphic at the beginning, most of this is true), an Ann Arbor, Mich., journalist (Ewan McGregor) stumbles onto a story when he finds a man claiming to be a former Fort Bragg, N.C., psychic warrior. This man shows the journalist footage of an oddly acting hamster, which the man claims was induced by him. And he tells the journalist of another Soldier who supposedly could drop goats with his mind.

War in Iraq breaks out and, spurred on by the breaking of his own heart, the journalist goes to Iraq. Not finding a place with embedded journalists, he "accidentally" meets the psychic troop Lyn Cassady (George Clooney), who attempts to give the journalist the brush off.

Cassady doesn't believe in chance and odd coincidences tell the warrior the journalist is on his intended path. The Soldier explains that the Fort Bragg program was designed to train "Jedi Warriors," and was just one among several psychic research programs conducted by the United States as well as other nations.

We are then treated to a series of flashbacks at opportune points in the film which give glimpses into this world where people attempted to push the boundaries of the possible, and gave tantalizing glimpses into their successes, as well as showing some of the, ahem, more colorful philosophies and training techniques designed to help troops tap into their psychic potential.

In the interest of full disclosure, I'm open-minded about this sort of phenomena. The pursuit of it, like most esoteric subjects like this, has proven elusive, but the successes you do hear about can be nothing short of astounding in both their own accomplishments as well as the deeper and broader suggestions made by them. But that's not the point of the movie. The Men Who Stare At Goats is intended to take you on a psychic-psychological-psychotic journey in a particular back alley of American policy, and suggest how it might have influenced things in the past and even how it may be influencing things now.

Mostly, though, it's well-written insane fun, with an extremely talented cast relishing the madness.

I predict you will, too.

at the Movies

OPENING THIS WEEK

2012

Never before has a date in history been so significant to so many cultures, so many religions, scientists and governments. A global cataclysm brings an end to the world and tells of the heroic struggle of the survivors.

This film stars John Cusack, Amanda Peet, Thandie Newton, Oliver Platt, Woody Harrelson and Danny Glover. It is rated PG-13 for disaster sequences and some language.

PIRATE RADIO

In the 1960s, a group of eight disc jockeys on a boat in the middle of the Northern Atlantic played rock records and broke the law all for the love of music. The songs they played united and defined an entire generation and drove the British government crazy. The government did everything in its power to shut them down.

This film stars Philip Seymour Hoffman, Bill Nighy, Rhys Ifans, Nick Frost and Kenneth Branagh. It is rated R for language and sexual content.

NOW PLAYING

THE FOURTH KIND

In 1972, a scale of measurement was established for alien encounters. When a UFO is sighted, it is called an encounter of the first kind. When evidence is collected, it is known as an encounter of the second kind. When contact is made with extraterrestrials, it is the third kind. The next level, abduction, is the fourth kind. This encounter has been the most difficult to document — until now. Set in modern-day Nome, Alaska, where — mysteriously since the 1960s — a disproportionate number of the population has been reported missing every year. Despite multiple FBI investigations of the region, the truth has never been discovered. Here in this remote region, psychologist Dr. Abigail Tyler (Milla Jovovich) began videotaping sessions with traumatized patients and unwittingly discovered some of the most disturbing evidence of alien abduction ever documented.

The Fourth Kind is rated PG-13 for violent and disturbing images, some terror, thematic elements and brief sexuality.

THE BOX

An unhappily married couple receive a small wooden box on their doorstep. At the push of a button, the box brings its bearer instant wealth but also instantly kills someone the bearer doesn't know.

The Box stars Cameron Diaz, James Marsden and Frank Lagella. It is rated PG-13 for thematic elements, some violence and disturbing images.

THE MEN WHO STARE AT GOATS

Reporter Bob Wilton (Ewan McGregor) is in search of his next big story when he encounters Lyn Cassady (George Clooney), a shadowy figure who claims to be part of an experimental U.S. military unit. According to Cassady, the New Earth Army is changing the way wars are fought. A legion of "Warrior Monks" with unparalleled psychic powers can read the enemy's thoughts, pass through solid walls, and even kill a goat simply by staring at it. Now, the program's founder, Bill Django (Jeff Bridges), has gone missing and Cassady's mission is to find him.

Intrigued by his new acquaintance's far-fetched stories, Bob impulsively decides to tag along. When the pair tracks Django to a clandestine training camp run by renegade psychic Larry Hooper (Kevin Spacey), the reporter is trapped in the middle of a grudge match between the forces of Django's New Earth Army and Hooper's personal militia of super soldiers. In order to survive this wild adventure, Bob will have to outwit an enemy he never thought possible.

The Men Who Stare at Goats is rated R for language, some drug content and brief nudity.

COCO BEFORE CHANEL

This is the story of Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel (Audrey Tautou), who begins her life as a headstrong orphan, and through an extraordinary journey becomes the legendary couturier who embodied the modern woman and became a timeless symbol of success, freedom and style.

DISNEY'S A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Ebenezer Scrooge begins the Christmas holiday with his usual miserly contempt, barking at his faithful clerk and his cheery nephew. But when the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Yet to Come take him on an eye-opening journey revealing truths Old Scrooge is reluctant to face, he must open his heart to undo years of ill will before it's too late.

A Christmas Carol stars the voices of Jim Carrey, Gary Oldman, Bob Hoskins, Colin Firth, Robin Wright Penn and Cary Elwes. It is rated PG for scary sequences and images and is offered in 3-D.

AMELIA

After becoming the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, Amelia (Hilary Swank) was thrust into a new role as America's sweetheart — the legendary "goddess of light," known for her bold, larger-than-life charisma. Yet, even with her global fame solidified, her belief in flirting with danger and standing up as her own, outspoken woman never changed. She was an inspiration to people everywhere, from First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt (Cherry Jones) to the men closest to her heart: her husband, promoter and publishing magnate George P. Putnam (Richard Gere), and her long time friend and lover, pilot Gene Vidal (Ewan McGregor). In the summer of 1937, Amelia set off on her most daunting mission yet: a solo flight around the world that she and George both anxiously foresaw as destined, whatever the outcome, to become one of the most talked-about journeys in history.

Amelia is rated PG for some sensuality, language, thematic elements and smoking.

SAW VI

Special Agent Strahm is dead, and Detective Hoffman (Costas Mandylor) is the unchallenged successor to Jigsaw's legacy. However, when the FBI draws closer to Hoffman, he is forced to set a game into motion, and Jigsaw's grand scheme is finally understood.

Saw VI is rated R for sequences of grisly, bloody violence and torture and language.

MICHAEL JACKSON'S THIS IS IT

A rare glimpse into the final days of Michael Jackson, the documentary is compiled from an estimated 80 hours of rehearsal and behind-the-scenes footage of the legendary entertainer preparing for his 50 sold-out shows at London's O2 Arena that were scheduled to commence in July 2009 before his untimely death in June at age 50. Interviews with collaborators and close friends of the late performer are also featured.

Michael Jackson's This Is It is a documentary and is rated PG for some suggestive choreography and scary images.

ASTRO BOY

Set in futuristic Metro City, Astro Boy (Freddie Highmore) is a young robot with incredible powers — super strength, X-ray vision, unbelievable speed and the ability to fly. Powered by positive "blue" energy, Astro Boy was created by a brilliant scientist named Dr. Tenma (Nicolas Cage).

Embarking on a journey in search of acceptance, Astro Boy encounters many colorful characters. Through his adventures, he learns the joys and emotions of being human, and gains the strength to embrace his destiny. Ultimately learning his friends and family are in danger, Astro Boy marshals his awesome superpowers and returns to Metro City in a valiant effort to save everything he cares about and to understand what it means to be a hero.

Astro Boy is rated PG for action and peril, and language.

WHERE THE WILD THINGS ARE

Max, a rambunctious and sensitive boy feels misunderstood at home and escapes to where the Wild Things are. He lands on an island where he meets mysterious and strange creatures whose emotions are as wild and unpredictable as their actions. The Wild Things desperately long for a leader to guide them, just as Max longs for a kingdom to rule. When Max is crowned king, he promises to create a place where everyone will be happy. Max soon finds, though, that ruling his kingdom is not so easy and his relationships there prove to be more complicated than he originally thought.

Where the Wild Things Are is rated PG for mild thematic elements, some adventure action and brief language.

THE STEPFATHER

Michael Harding (Penn Badgley) returns home from military school to find his mother (Sela Ward) happily in love and living with her new boyfriend, David (Dylan Walsh). As the two men get to know each other, Michael becomes suspicious of the man who is always there with a helpful hand. Is he really the man of her dreams or could David be hiding a dark side?

The Stepfather is rated PG-13 for violence, disturbing images, mature thematic material and brief sensuality.

CIRQUE DU FREAK: THE VAMPIRE'S ASSISTANT

Darren (Chris Massoglia) is like most kids in the neighborhood. But when he and his buddy stumble upon a traveling freak show, things begin to change inside Darren. That's the exact moment when a vampire named Larten Crepsley (John C. Reilly) turns him into something, well, bloodthirsty.

Cirque Du Freak: The Vampire's Assistant is rated PG-13 for supernatural violence and action, images, thematic elements and language.

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN

Clyde Shelton (Gerard Butler) is a family man whose wife and daughter are brutally murdered. When the killers are caught, prosecutor Nick Rice (Jamie Foxx) is forced by his boss to offer one of the suspects a light sentence in exchange for testifying against his accomplice. Ten years later, the man who got away with murder is found dead and Shelton admits his guilt.

From his jail cell, Shelton orchestrates a string of diabolical assassinations that can be neither predicted nor prevented. With his own family now in Shelton's crosshairs, Nick finds himself in a race against time facing an adversary who is always one step ahead.

Law Abiding Citizen is rated R for violence and torture, a rape scene and language.
