LAST MINUTE PREPARATIONS—Practically the last thing done to their ship by the ground crewmen of the C-47 transport is the refueling job.

HEAVY DUTY—A tractor, used to move planes at Lawson field from one part of the ramp to another, is an every day occurrence at all Army Air Force bases, where planes are given a careful "check-up" after each flight.

THE FIGHTING SHIP—Four P-51 Mustangs, long an active part in the recent Air Indocination course at Lawson field.

ALONG THE FLIGHT LINE—Looking down from Lawson field's glass-enclosed control tower, the famous C-52 "Flying Boxcars" present a massive picture of America's air might.

OUT OF THE PAST—This 0-49 observation plane, used by the 16th Observation Squadron when it was station at Lawson field in the 1930s, is a relic of the past history of the base.

THE STRIKING ARM—The A-26 Douglas Invader is another ship which played a major part in the Air Indocination course held at Lawson field recently.

SPRAYING INSECTS—In addition to use as a training ship another peacetime mission of the C-47 at Lawson field is to aid the medical corps in preventing diseases by spraying DDT over breeding points on the reservation.

Army Air Forces Observe Fortieth Birthday Aug. 1

On August 1, the Army Air Forces will observe the 40th anniversary of its existence—40 years which saw its growth from a unit consisting of three men and no airplanes to a war-time organization of over 2,411,000 men which could put as many as 2,000 planes over a single target on a single day.

The AAF came into being August 1, 1907, when the Aeronautical Division of the Signal Corps was created to handle "all matters pertaining to military ballooning, air machines and kindred subjects." It acquired its first airplane nearly two years later in July, 1909. It was a fabric-covered bi-plane, capable of a speed of 40 miles per hour and cost $30,000.

Slow Process

From that time until World War I, the Aeronautical Division progressed slowly. New personnel were recruited and training schools activated, but there was no great expansion. At its peak strength, in 1918, the Aviation Section numbered a little over 195,000 officers and men. It had started out with only 35 planes but acquired 13,901 from American industry and bought 5,151 more in Europe during World War I.

After the war it continued to move uphill with new building, training, and experimental programs. In March, 1935, the General Headquarters Air Force was established. This new unit was merely a change in designation for the Air Corps, but a new organization within the Army, GHQ, as it was called, was on the same level as the Office of the Chief of Air Corps, but it was concerned with operational work while the Air Corps continued to handle supply and training administration.

In June, 1941, the Army Air Forces came into being, fulfilling the need for an overall air arm which would combine the functions of the Air Corps and GHQ. Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, who had placed in command.

Lost 18,000 Planes

During the war against Germany, the AAF had at its peak point of origin and destroying his capacity for war.

The Tactical Air Command, equipped with jets, improved fighters and attack bombers. TAC is organized to cooperate with ground and naval forces and to train and equip fighter forces anywhere in the world. It is a vital part of the AAF's program to meet the requirements of air power in the atomic age. Other aspects of TAC responsibility are attacking aircraft on ground and in the air, striking hostile lines of supply and communication, photo reconnaissance, and tactical troop carrying. (TAC directed the Air Indocination Course at Lawson Field last spring.)

The Air Defense Command, ADC is new in name, purpose, and mission. It is charged with the responsibility of guarding the United States against hostile attack. Made up of fighter-interceptor and night-fighter units, ADC is aided by well-coordinated aircraft control and warning system.

Air Materiel Command, AMC, plays one of the most important roles in air defense by helping to assure the quality, efficiency, and strength of the AAF. Its function is to conduct a vital part of the research and development work necessary to maintain American air superiority. Its main concern involves rockets, jet propulsion, guided missiles, and improved personal flight equipment.

Unit Training

Air Training Command, ATC is responsible for all phases of individual training, except for advanced courses at the Air University. It supervises the unit training conducted throughout all three combat commands. Through its two subordinate headquarters, the Flying Training and Technical Training Division, ATC controls virtually all Air Force schools.

Air University, AU, directly supervises such AAF institutions as the Air War college, the Air Command and Staff school, The Air Tactical school, the Special Staff school and the AFF School of Aviation Medicine. In this capacity it is responsible for crystallizing and passing on to the field the latest Air Force doctrine in operation.

Air Transport Command. This is the globe-girdling organization that provides the entire Army with non-tactical personnel and freight transportation wherever required. In addition it operated air search and rescue, and evacuation of sick and wounded. This is the command which serves as a tactical testing laboratory for AAF and the U. S. with the assurance that its air weapons, materiel and equipment will provide the air strength needed to insure continued peace. In addition to the eight commands the AAF has more air power in the Air Reserve, made up of thousands of men who served in wartime and the Air Wing of the National Guard, composed of local units in each of the 48 states.

Doughboys Face Test In Thomaston Tilt

Play Mill Nine Tomorrow Night at Gowdy Field

BY MURRAY HARDING

After five days of inactivity due to the cancellation of first night games, and a touch of inclement weather, the Post nine will try to take its third straight victory tomorrow, at the expense of Thomaston Mills, the Georgia State champions, in the first of a four-game series with Thomaston. Starting time will be 8:15 p. m. at Gowdy Field.

This will be the second attempt to play Thomaston, the first scheduled for last Monday, being rained out after one and a half innings of play, at which time Thomaston led, 3-0.

The Thomaston team will have an advantage in playing experience over the Doughs, including their recent triumph in the Georgia State playoffs, the Mills team has a record of 26 wins against only 8 losses, while the Doughs have played only two games, winning both.

First Trip Saturday

Saturday the Doughs make their first trip of the season, when they journey all the way to Columbus (Ga.) to play the Columbus Senators for League all-stars, a (traditionally) sound team.

Then on Sunday the Benning nine will see action against Thomaston again at Fort Benning, in the second game of what promises to be one of the year's better series. Wednesday and Friday of next week, the Doughboys will travel to East Thomaston for the last two games of the set.

In last Monday's trial attempt the Mills picked up a run in the first on a single by Deal, Gallagher's throwing error, and a two-base overthrow of first by Jack Forbes on Martin's grounder. Lehner retired the side without further incident. In the second two more Mills runs crossed the plate on singles by Nipper and Sanders, a passed ball, and a double off the scoreboard, and the Thomaston pitcher, Duncan.

In the one inning he pitched, the Duncan was fouled out by a single by Burt, gave up a walk to Dickson, and saw Burnett go to second when his ground smash escaped the third baseman, but was saved from scoring embarrassment when McCowan, attempting to sacrifice, popped into a double play.

Play Postponed

After Forbes had opened the Doughboy second by reaching first on the second baseman's muff of his bounce, came the deluge, postponing further play.

The Doughs had their first two games showed strong evidence of a powerful offensive. Thirty-six hits came off Doughboy bats and

Doughboy Games This Week

Friday, August 1, 8:15 p.m. at Gowdy Field—Thomaston Mills.
Saturday, August 2, 8:15 p.m. at Golden Park—Senior League All-Stars.
Sunday, August 3, 8:15 p.m. at Gowdy Field—Thomaston Mills.
Wednesday, August 6, at East Thomaston—Thomaston Mills.

Thirty-seven Doughboys runs scored in the first two outings, at the expense of seven enemy pitchers. The team batting average reached an amazing .416.

George Dickson led in the extra base hit department with three, all fours. Blondie Burnett and Tom Gallagher hit a double each, while Watts and Kinard each tripled once to round out the team's extra bases.

The pitchers used, Ken Watts and Dick Gerhart, had nothing to worry about, and consequently didn't bear down as hard as they could, but their records were still good. Watts gave up only three earned runs on seven hits, and Gerhart allowed only five tallies on four hits. He fanned eight and Gerhart ten.

Defensively Benning has made three errors in approximately 15 innings of play, but have made up for them with three double plays. Leamer's outfield play has been sparkling, while the whole infield has been steady.

Jack Forbes, back from furlough for some plays in the infield that will leave the opposition gasping. His arm, if he can control it, is capable of cutting down the fleetest runner. There are times, however, when he aims a little high, and scatters spectators standing around the ooke stand, but with additional work those times should be few and far between.

Several members of the team are nursing injuries. Chick Shivers has temporarily left the squad to let his long injured right hand heal up, and Woody Burt has been hit and out of the lineup with a rock bruise on his foot. He injured it again slightly Monday, when he beat out an infielder. Paul Bonair still complains of a sore thumb on his catching hand, and Lefty McCowan has an ailment of the same nature. Bo Boland is giving his sore pitching arm plenty of rest before he tries it again. None of the injuries will keep their owners out of the lineup fortunately.

ISD DOWNS STUDIO

The ISD Raider's softball team outfit Burt's Studio nine in a slugging match at Wildwood park, Thursday night, July 24, to edge the Boys in Blue 11-9. It was anybody's game from start to finish but with help from the ROTC camp, ISD managed to chalk up the necessary winning runs.

Doughboys Play at Golden Park Saturday Night

After tomorrow night's Thomaston game, the Doughboys will meet the Columbus Senior League All-Stars at Golden Park Saturday night, game time being 8:15.

The Senior League team will have the best players from the various teams in the town's Industrial League, among which are the Army-wide touring and the company, Bibb City, Phenix City Panthers, and Rosenberg's Jewellers.

Admission to Saturday's game, which will be held at the Columbus Cardinals' home park on Fourth and First avenue, will be 70 cents for civilians and 50 cents for soldiers in uniform.

The Doughboys play a return game with the All-Stars later on in the season.

Panthers Drop Engineers-13-5

Collecting 13 hits off three Engineer pitchers, the Phenix City Panthers trounced the 78th Engineers 13-5, Monday night at Gowdy Field. Overcoming star Engineer lead, the Panthers hit their stride in the sixth, taking a 3-2 lead.

John Leitch, ace left-hander for the 78th, held the Panthers to only three hits in four innings, but had to be relieved by Ramon in the fifth because of an ailing arm.

The Panthers took the lead in the sixth when Jackson singled to right, moving to third on a stolen base and a fielder's choice. He then scored on a wild pitch by Ramon.

However, it was not until the seventh that the Panthers really began to roll. On four hits and two Engineer errors, the Phenix City nine pushed seven runs across in that inning. Burt led off with a triple and scored on an error by Tartaglia. 78th pitcher Brown, hard hitting Panther right fielder, shot a single into left field, later scoring on another single by Jackson. Another error, a walk, a hit batsman, and a single by Bowland led to the other Panther runs.

The 78th enjoyed a slight lead in the early part of the game, scoring single runs in the second and third. The Engineers tallied their last three runs in the seventh on three walks and two Panther errors.

Faxar, cool-headed Panther pitcher, went the distance giving up only five scattered hits, and fanning 14 Engineer batters.

The Engineers led the Panthers only in errors, 9-8.

Large Field Seen For Golf Tourney

Entries in the Army Championship golf tournament to be held here in August are coming in at an ever-increasing rate, and it appears that a capacity field of close to 200 will tee off on the Officers' club course.

54-hole elimination play to choose the Fort Benning entries in the tournament was completed yesterday afternoon, with 27 golfers still in the running for the completion of the first 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

Other Low Scores

Following these were: Capt. Wandell 161, Maj. Flungate 162, Capt. Beach 163, Capt. Tallis 165, Col. Fred 166, Capt. Augustus 167, Col. Ward 168, Sgt. English 168, Sgt. Rankland 169, Lt. Col. Warren 169, Capt. Lindstrom 170, Col. Hill 170, Col. Everett 172, Lt. Twichell 172, Capt. Carroll 172, Lt. Messen 173, Col. Gibb 173, Col. Molien 179, Col. Meyer 179, and T-Sgt. Ross 179.

Names not yet been decided how many entries Benning will be allowed in the tournament, as that will depend on the number of applications received from other camps. However, the four golfers who finished with the lowest scores on yesterday's competition will represent Benning as a team in the championship tourney.

The Army-wide tourney will be an individual competition primarily, but each camp has been asked to designate four men as a team, and there will be an award for the team with the lowest quality-quantity scores Young.

The following are some of the entries received during the past week:

Many Entries
Representing the Caribbean Air Command will be Capt. Donald E. O'Neal, Capt. Edward Acker, Lt. William H. Prince, M-Sgt. Fred T. Thompson, and Sgt. Richard W. Colas. The average score of the group is 153 for 36-hole play. Maj. Gen. Hubert R. Harmon, commanding general of the Caribbean Air Command, is entering in the Senior Tournament, which will be a sideline event for older men.

Another major general, Paul L. Williams, commander of the Ninth Air Force, is entered in the regular tournament, and he is supposed to be a line player.

Coming from Fort Worth Army Air Field in Texas are Maj. James C. Merrill, Lt. Stanley Rowland, M-Sgt. Hales, T-Sgt. Robert Kirkland, T-Sgt. Harold Ridgely, S-Sgt. Daniel Nevin, and Sgt. Paul Stevens. All are said to shoot in the seventies.

Capt. Lawrence E. Brown will be here from the Atlantic General Distribution Depot. He has participated in numerous club, Army, N. J., and invitational tournaments in 1933 to 1940, placing in the championship bracket in all but three.

Capt. Cecil Ward White will be here from the ROTC at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. He ranked second in 1942 college tournament, and William S. Coleman, from Camp Gordon, has also entered. Right now his average score over a standard course is 87.

Coming from the Military District of Washington are Lt. Col. C. Clifford, Maj. M. L. Riley, Maj. J. W. Fitching, Capt. John Barr, Capt. Peter Lipski, and M-Sgt. J. W. Hoyt.

TAC GOLF CHAMP—Col. Benning. Kelly, representing Langley field, Va., won the Tactical Air Command's golf championship tourney July 22 with a score of 141, just three above par. He will represent TAC in the Army tournament to be held here Aug. 12-17 and will play in the AAF meet at Maxwell field, Ala., later in August. Col. Kelly is pictured above on the Officers' club golf course.

and Sgt. William C. Harvill from Camp Gordon, has an average score of 90.

Representing the First Army are Capt. James Young, from Fort Monmouth, N. J.; Maj. Walter G. Angers, from First Army Headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y.; Lt. Kenneth Hughes, from Fort Dix, N. J., and Pfc. John Mahoney, from Fort Dix, N. J.

Mahoney won the medal-play championship of the First Army 18 years old and one of the leading junior golfers in New Jersey. He is a 1946 graduate of West Point and was the match-play champion of the First Army, shooting a 160 in the district tourney. He is a 1946 graduate of West Point and was runner-up in the 1941 Fort Benning Officers' club championship. Maj. Angers and Capt. Young both shot 159's in the First Army tourney.

Doughs Trounce Silvertown, 16-6

Opening night for the Doughboys was last Thursday, with Silvertown Mills from Thomaston, Ga., on hand at Gowdy Field to help Benning inaugurate its 1947 baseball season.

"Help" is the right word, as the Doughs tore into the Silvertown nine, scoring in every inning but the first and last. When the shooting was all over, the scoreboard showed Benning to be on the long end of a 16-6 tally. Wishing to get back to Thomaston in time to report to work in the morning, the Silvertown players agreed to call it quits after their turn at bat in the seventh.

The Silvertown manager said that the club had left its pitchers behind, and there would seem to be an element of truth in his explanation as the Doughboys batters slugged away with abandon against Peck, Litsy, and Mullinax, in that order.

With the exception of Bonair and Brooks, every batter in the Benning line-up contributed to the team's sixteen-hit onslaught. The man with the big stick was Tommy Gallagher, who poked out four successive singles in as many times at bat. The Dough catcher drove in three runs and scored two himself.

Ken Watts, who hurled the opener for the Benches, was right behind Gallagher with three for four, one of his blows being a long triple to deep left-center, hit while he was batting left-handed.

Fred George Dickson smoted two doubles, both to left field incidentally, and Blondy Burnett and Lefty McGowan each collected two singles.

Silvertown drew first blood, scoring two runs in the top of the second, but the Doughs roared back with five in their half of the inning, six more in the third, one in the fourth, and four final tallies in the fifth.

With all this batting support, Ken Watts didn't have to bear down too much on the mound. Half of the runs scored by Silvertown were unearned, as the big southpaw finger gave up only seven hits and struck out nine in his seven-inning stint.

A snappy double play, engineered by Bob Kinard, pulled Watts out of a ticklish situation in the sixth. Herb Lauve also made two good catches in right field to save further trouble.

Silvertown seemed to have left home not only its pitchers, but fielders as well. The Thomaston team made errors in every Doughboy scoring inning, committing three in the five-run second.

A large crowd that had gathered at the start gradually disintegrated, going away with the quite correct belief that the Doughboys were well on their way to victory number one.

Netmen From 25th Score In Town Tennis Tourney

With Lt. Benjamin T. Layton, 25th Infantry, and 1st Sgt. Richard Collins, Casual Detachment, Section 2, teaming up to win the men's doubles championship, the second annual Fifth Avenue Y.M.C.A. open tennis tourney was presented before capacity audiences July 25-27 on the Spencer High school courts.

The outstanding feat of the three-day tourney was performed by E. E. "Ironman" Farley of Columbus. Mr. Farley, who was displaying championship form when most of the competitors were unaware that there was a sport known as tennis, upset the dope bucket by battling his way to the finals of the men's singles where he was finally edged out by Rudolph Hines.

Dominantly carrying on, he joined forces with Chaplain Howell, and surged onward to the finals, where they were set back by a Layton-Collins combine after a grueling struggle.

In the women's singles, Miss Mildred Allen had to go all out to wrest the laurel leaf from her formidable opponent, Miss Olga Coffey. Their first set, which Miss Allen won 10-8, was one of the most sensational matches of the tournament.

25th Presents Summer Card Of Five Bouts

One exhibition and four all-star matches highlighted the summer's initial fight card which was presented last Thursday night before a medium-sized crowd in the 25th Infantry field house. Lt. Anthony S. Priola, regimental boxing coach, said that the 25th ring masters will show their wares on another classy card Thursday evening, August 7, at the Sand Hill sports emporium.

During the initial bout of the evening, H. Osborne, 161, 99th Field Artillery, edged Leroy McKee, 161, Second Battalion, in three torrid heats. Charlie Myers, 148, hard hitting, counter puncher from the First Battalion, scored heavily during the second and third rounds to annex a decision over Murphy Pea, 149, classy and clever middleweight from the 899th.

In his last local appearance prior to leaving for separation, Mathew McClain, 131, Second Battalion, gained a decision over the rugged and highly improved Rob Rogers, 135, Second Battalion; 25th Infantry's Lightweight Champion Lawrence Jones, 158, Second Battalion, opening up with lightning-like hook and right crosses, scored a one minute ten second TKO over the Airborne's Robert Hurth in the first canto.

During the finest four-round exhibition bouts ever presented at Sand Hill, Welterweight Champion Norval Clark and Middleweight Titleholder Billy Williams thrilled the cheering audience with their skillful display of ringmanship. Employing the use of the jab, hooks, counter punching, blocking, and clever footwork, the match carried an aura of professionalism seldom witnessed in these parts. At the close of the match, both fighters were roundly cheered as they left the ring. Ring officials for last week's bouts were: Lt. Anthony S. Priola, matchmaker; Lt. Barney Q. Hopkins, referee; Lt. Thurman R. Wyatt, announcer; judges, Lt. Joseph Watson and First Sgt. John Wilson; timekeeper, Lt. Robert Burnes, and Lt. Robert L. Raphael, ringside physician.

Doughboys Jolt Columbus Nine

The Columbus Manufacturing Company, leaders in the Columbus Senior Baseball League, paid Benning and the Doughboys a visit last Saturday night, and were treated rather rudely by their hosts, going home on the short end of a 21 to 5 score. Dick Gerhart went the distance for the Doughboys, parceling out 10 hits, but keeping them from scoring enough to do any serious damage.

The Doughboys got their winning margin in the second inning, off Hasty, second pitcher to be used by Columbus, but Webb, the starter, who faced only four men and retired none of them, was charged with the loss.

The first four hitters in the soldier lineup collected 15 hits and scored 13 runs. George Dickson was the ring-leader in the assault, hitting safely five times. Burnett was right behind with four. McGowan had three, Burt had two, and Forbes, Burt's replacement, got the other.

Score 4 Times
The Doughs scored four times in each of the first two innings, but were held scoreless by Hasty in the third and fourth. They began to gain momentum again in the fifth when they scored once, and they were really rolling in the sixth and seventh, when they scored five and seven respectively. Columbus announced at the end of the seventh that they had had enough, and went home, but the Doughboys would give them one more bat. The Doughboys were more than agreeable. The Columbus team batted once more, did nothing, and left, ending what was beginning to look like an unequal match.

Webb, the starter for Columbus, was greeted heartily by the home crowd. Dickson started things with a single to left, Webb's control was a little shaky and he walked McGowan. Burnett followed with a single to left, scoring Dickson, and when the left fielder foolishly tried to throw George out at the plate, Burnett took second and McGowan third. Burt promptly singled through the box, scoring McGowan and Burnett, at which point Webb was excused from duty for the evening. Hasty's first pitch to Kinard was just what Rob had ordered and he smote a triple to the right center field fence, scoring Burt. Hasty then settled down and retired the side.

Sacrifice to Third
Hasty retired the first batter to face him in the second, giving him a string of four in a row, but clear-

Dickson halted his flawless progress with his second single. He promptly stole second and was sacrificed from there to third by Lefty McGowan. Burnett brought him home with his second single. Burt singled Blondie on to second, and when the left fielder couldn't seem to pick the ball up, both advanced another base.

Hasty clamped down then, and gave up no more hits for the remainder of the inning. He achieved this worthy end by walking the next three batters in succession, Kinard, Benair, and Lauve, forcing two runs across the plate. His catcher, Owens, was responsible for the other run, letting one of Hasty's throws roll behind him, permitting Kinard to score.

was doing its level best to maintain the pretense that they belonged on the same field with the Doughs. They scored once in the second on walks to Hurston and Corley, and a single by Hasty, and tallied three more in the third when Kenzi doubled and scored on Hurston's single. Corley drove Hurston all the way home with a two-base shot to right field, and Owens knocked Corley in with a single.

Get Ninth Run
The Doughs got their ninth run in the fifth on singles by Gerhart, that fellow Dickson again, and McGowan, and in the sixth they finished things.

Forbes, subbing for Burt, bounced a single to left, and stole second. Kinard grounded to third, and was thrown out by a mile.

only the first baseman forgot to pull his hand out of the way when Kinard crossed the base, so a moment later he was without both ball and glove. Forbes scored and Kinard went to second.
Bonair laid down a perfect bunt and beat it out easily. Then Kinard and Bonair tried to work a double steal, but, though Bonair reached second with no trouble, Kinard was cut down at the plate. The catcher, glowing with success, tried to push a good thing too far when he tried to pick Kinard off second. The throw went into center field and Bonair went to third.
Lauve walked and took second on the next pitch. One pitch later, the catcher was guilty of a passed ball, Bonair scoring and Lauve advancing. Gallagher fanned, but Gerhart singled Lauve across. Dickson followed with his fourth single, sending Gerhart to third, and McGowan walked, loading the bases. Burnett smacked a double to right, sending two more runs home, and Hasty departed. Hurston replaced him, and after walking Forbes to load the bases, retired Kinard and the side.
It was even worse in the seventh, when seven runs scored on only four hits, and three Columbus errors. Corley replaced Hurston during the frame, and finally got the third out after striking out three batters, two of whom reached first when the catcher missed the third strike.

Motorcycle, Midget Auto Races Return To Idle Hour Tonight

Motorcycle and midget auto racing return to Idle Hour Park this week, with the two-wheel machines in action tonight, and the little speed cars on the track at the regular time tomorrow night.

The return of the motorcycle speed demons is expected to attract a near capacity crowd, since the last two shows were thrillers, and close struggles marked almost every race. There is the possibility Ted Edwards and Paul Brown, both of Atlanta, will appear here this week, since Brown's broken foot is almost healed and Edwards has announced he will ride if he can make the local date.

Promoter Alex Brewer, who had charge of the other motorcycle events and is in charge of the midget races, made a trip to Atlanta Sunday to line up added talent for his Friday night midget events, and many of the Atlanta drivers have promised to appear here for both the cycle and the midget races.

Brewer feels that the speedy driving of Bob Johnson, who has stood out as the local midget track this season, may scare some of the less experienced drivers away, but the better known racers are planning an attack on Johnson's records at the Phenix City circle.

Johnny Suggs and Jimmy Reed have been pushing Johnson hard in recent weeks, and with the three battling for top honors, there is the chance for all to share in the spoils. Johnson has won the feature only once in the past three weeks.

The motorcycle races and the midget races will follow the same pattern, with the qualifying heats starting at 7:30 p. m., followed by the various heats as soon as qualifying tests are completed. It is planned to have both the events completed by 10 p. m.

Airborne Softball Club Outfits 37th

The Airborne Reds chalked up another win to their credit when they outscored the Barnstormers 11-3 Thursday night, July 24. In this twilight game at Wildwood Park both teams were at their best. The Barnstormers held a 5-2 lead going into the fourth, but the Troopers tied it all up when Sherriff, Marland, and Smith were batted in for three runs.

In a slugging rampage in the fifth, the Reds outfit and outscored the Barnstormers by pushing six additional runs in. The Barnstormers tallied three times, to make the final score 11-3.

Smith and Daughtry shared the mound work for the Airborne team, while Harries went the distance for the Barnstormers.

Airborne Reds Defeat ISD Raiders Nine, 11-3

Behind the scatter-hit pitching of Smith, the Airborne Reds shellacked the ISD Raiders 11-3 at Rose Hill Tuesday night July 22. With the bases loaded, in the first, Ohsosorgen let loose with a four run homer to give the Reds a 4-0 lead which was never threatened. Outfitting the Raiders in the second and third, the Airborne pushed their lead to 10-2, but did not make their final marker until the sixth. The last Raider run came on Clark's double with Corey making the score. Smith went the distance for the Reds, while Scott suffered the loss for the Raiders.

A fat lady was standing on the broken scales with the indicator stuck at 75 when a drunk happened out of a nearby saloon and looked over her shoulder. "My God!" he exclaimed, "she's hollow!"

Barnstormers Lose

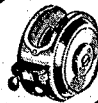

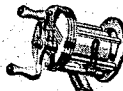

Behind the three-hit pitching of Wyatt, the R&R Club of the Airborne Tactical Section, trounced the 97th Infantry Barnstormers 5-1, on five hits off Harris, the Infantry fireball. The game was played at Wildwood Park Tuesday night July 22. The Barnstormers were only able to cross the plate one time on two hits by Massey and one by Shiftlet.

501st And Airborne Lead In Post Softball League

Two Airborne units, the Airborne Battalion and the 501st Parachute Battalion, are leading the way in the post softball league with two victories apiece.

The 501st took its second straight win by defeating the 78th Engineers, 12-6, the first loss of the season for the Engineer team. Major 501st first baseman, was the hero of the game, driving in over half of his team's runs. While the 501st has had to fight for its victories, the Airborne Battalion, co-league leader, has had a much easier time, winning its first two games via the forfeit rule.

After losing a close game in its opener against the 78th Engineers, the 30th Medical Group played good ball in its next two outings to climb up to second place in the league standings. The Medics defeated the First Battalion, STR, 14-8, and the 83rd Field Artillery, 13-4.

Big upset of the week was the defeat of the 15D Monday night by the 37th Infantry. The Troop won their opener in grand style, trouncing the 204th, 26-3, while the 37th lost its opener.

The 204th Truckers, First Bat-tion, STR, and the 83rd Field Artillery are holding up the bottom of the league, with each team having lost two out of two.

The 328th Ordnance Battalion is tied with the 15D, having split even in its first two contests.

Winner of the ten-team league play will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army tournament to be held at Fort Jackson in late August.

Sport Quiz

(AFPS)—1. Louis "Bobo" Newson recently was sold to the New York Yankees. One of the most widely traveled players in baseball, he now has been on how many different major league teams: 6, 8 or 10?

2. Whenever a baseball club, deep in the second division, makes a surge toward the top during a season, they are usually compared to the "Miracle Braves." Who were the "Miracle Braves" and what makes them unique?

3. Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson's hitting streak of 21 straight games fell one short of the all-time record for a National League rookie. The record was held by: Bill Nicholson, Johnny Mize or Joe Medwick?

4. Who was the first Negro to be signed by an American League team and which team signed him?

- Answers:
1. Eight.
 2. The Boston Braves, last in the National League pennant race on July 4, 1914, played sensationally throughout the remainder of the season, winning the flag and taking the World Series in four straight games. They have been called the "Miracle Braves" ever since.
 3. Mize.
 4. Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians.

Doughboy Bats Ring Out Hits

Finding it not too difficult to solve Columbus Manufacturing and Silverton Mills puzzles, Doughboy players were able to run their batting average to meteoric heights after the team's first two games.

Lead-off man George Dickson had a cool 700, collecting three doubles and four singles in ten trips to the plate. Lefty McGowan was even higher with a .714 (five-for-seven), while Blond Burnett slumped with a .500 figure.

Ken Watts was up only four times, and he hit safely three times, so he has a .750. Tom Gallagher garnered five for nine, giving him a .555. Woodrow Burt, up only three times, banged out two singles for a .667. Jack Forbes and Ralph Terry both had one-for-two, putting them at an even .500. Dick Gerhart, who even pitched the second game, had a two-for-four, giving him a .500 BA also.

Other Doughboy averages are: Kinard, .250 (two-for-eight); Bonair, .167 (one-for-six); Latta, .167 (one-for-six); and Brooks, .000 (0-for-4).

REDS HUMBLE R & R

Playing their fourth and last game of the season, the Columbus Reds overcame a first-inning lead to humble the R & R Club 8-2 at Wildwood Park, Thursday night, July 24. On Catcher Ferrody's home run with one man aboard, the R & R Club enjoyed a brief lead, but were overpowered later on home runs by Bush in the sixth and Hendrix in the seventh. It was a one-hit victory for the city team.

Eight-year-old daughter: "What does it feel like when a man kisses you, Mother?"
"Heaven on earth, child!" was the surprised reply.
"I thought so," replied the child.

Women Golfers Invited To Georgia WGA Meet

An invitation has been extended to Fort Benning's women golfers to attend the annual tournament of the Georgia Women's Golf association to be held at Thomasville, Ga., September 8-12.

Headquarters of the women golfers in Thomasville will be at the Three Toms. It was announced by Mrs. Frank Lumpkin of Columbus, president of the association. Arrangements have been made for the following rates: double room with private bath—$6.00 ($3.00 per person); single room with connecting bath—$3.50 per person. The hotel operates on the European plan.

Second Guessing

By MILT MOSKOWITZ
Although they won their first two games by landslide proportions, it's still too early to be boasting about the Doughboys as a championship club.

Columbus Manufacturing and Silvertown Mills were only able to offer opposition of the feeblest kind, and very little effort was required on the part of the Doughs to score their runs.

The coming four-game series with Thomaston this week should give a clearer indication of the Doughs' ability, for the Georgia State champions are no pushovers. They proved that Monday night, when they grabbed a quick 3-0 lead before the rains came down to wash out the contest.

Thomaston will be tough to beat, and, as Captain Bench told the squad before the season began, the pressure will be on the pitchers. The Doughboys seem to have plenty of punch at the plate, but so do the New York Giants and they're not much over the .500 mark.

In a close game, such as the Thomaston battle shapes up to be, the pitching has to be tight, and Columbus Manufacturing and Columbus Silvertown were neither of these games went nine innings. And Monday night Lefty Lehner was being cutted around by the Thomaston batters.

Beginning tomorrow night, Benning plays five games in the next eight days, four of them with Thomaston. The pitching will have to be better than it has been up to now if the Doughs are to win more than they lose.

Aside from having big, smoking bats, the Doughboys have an

Post Pistolmen Will Compete In National Meet

Fort Benning will be represented by a five-man team in the 67th Annual National Rifle Association pistol team match to be held August 11-14 at Camp Perry, Ohio, officials said today.

Capt. Frank Palmer of the Provost Marshal's office, team coach and captain, has been drilling his crew carefully in preparation for the national matches. Comprising the unit are Capt. Frank Graham, M-Sgt. Joseph Gallo, 1-Sgt. Russell A. Stow, M-Sgt. Curtis Frichman, and Capt. Jesse Halprin.

Arriving at Mitchell range over a national team match course, the members have been practicing in their spare time to develop and improve their firing for a present-day showing. The squad sports an average of 242.1, with Capt. Graham topping the list with an aggregate of 263. Captain Stow and M-Sgt. Gallo are both life-long members of the National Rifle Association.

Scheduled to compete in the Armed Services division which commences August 11, the squad will leave here August 9th.

Archie Corley, the man who has been selling peanuts at Gowdy field during the intra-mural season, must have been watching the game closely. He played right field for the Columbus nine and in five times at bat he hit a double and walked on three other occasions.

He came in to pitch in the eighth inning and struck out Forbes, Terry, and Brooks. However, his catcher couldn't hold all those third strikes and both Terry and Forbes reached first safely.

An otherwise dull game was given a bit of life in the eighth, when a skunk meandered across the outfield, took a look at the scoreboard and then hid behind it.

The post softball league seems to be a little Airborne-dominated.

Some of the men who played on ISD company teams in the Detachment softball league (in which H. Company finished first, incidentally) are bitter because they claim that notices to come out for the ISD team were never posted on their bulletin boards and they never had a chance to come out for the team.

The Benning softball team which will go to the Third Army tournament in August will be chosen in a similar manner, as the first-place team in the post league will represent the Doughboys and go to Fort Jackson.

With the Army-wide championship less than two weeks away, Benning is getting ready to be host to the best golfers in the service. Applications have been coming in from camps all over the world and it's quite a star-studded field that will be entered.

A cracker-jack four-man team is coming from the Far East, three from Japan and one from Korea. They are all young golfers, two of them being 19, one is 20, and the oldest is 21. Another youngster, 18-year-old John Mahoney, is on the First Army team.

The entries range from the gamut from Pfc. to General. Mahoney and William Ferguson, on the Far East team, are both on the list, while two Maj. Generals are entered, Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, commander of the 9th Air Force, is supposed to be a fine golfer.

Incidentally, two doughboy coaches both carried a 165 for the first 36 holes of the medal-play held this week to chose the Benning entries. Capt. Cedric Tallis, coach of the Doughboy baseball team, and Capt. Herbert Bench, manager of the baseball team, are the two aspiring linksters.

National Guardsmen Plan To Study TIS Courses

Fort Benning's Army Field Printing Plant began the print- ing last week of approximately 40,000 copies of Subject Schedules for the use of National Guard units.

The Infantry School's subject schedule committee, headed by Lt. Col. Frank Coltraco, has prepared a total of 74 schedules for distribution to the National Guard. Twenty-seven of these are basic and general which are common to all arms and services while the other 47 deal with technical and tactical subjects peculiar to the infantry arm. Subject Schedules prepared by the Infantry School follow the teachings of the school and are based on the academic department. Three months of work in conjunction with all sections of the school have gone into the preparation of these guides which will enable all units of the National Guard to profit by the experiences and teachings of the world's largest infantry school. Although the use of the schedules is optional and intended for a guide only, they follow the procedure prescribed by the National Guard training program of August 1, 1946, which is to take effect on Sept. 1 of this year.

The current printing covers only the first year of the NGTF which is a long range plan designed to bring all guard units up to a specific standard of proficiency. The subjects covered in the first year's training vary in time from one hour to 96 hours of armory training and the two weeks of field training required of units during the year beginning Sept. 1, 1947.

Distribution of the finished Subject Schedules will be made by the National Guard Bureau down to, and including, company or troop levels.

Bishop To Administer Apostolic Rites Here

The Rev. John Moore Walker, Episcopal Bishop of Atlanta, will administer the Apostolic Rites of Confirmation to a group of candidates Sunday, Aug. 3, at 9 a. m. in the Main Post chapel, it was announced today by Chaplain (Maj.) Emmett G. Jones, assistant post chaplain, who will present the candidates.

Following the ceremony Bishop Walker will deliver a short address and immediately afterwards Holy Communion will be distributed.

Chaplain Jones said that anyone desiring to attend the services is welcome and especially urges that all Episcopalians here take communion and meet the bishop.

ROTC Problems To Be Discussed

Problems of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be considered at a series of three-day regional conferences, the first of which will be held at the Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, Ga. August 7 and 8. Four other conferences will be at universities to be designated in other areas, each at a school which has been associated with the ROTC for many years.

During these conferences, the executive heads of institutions at which ROTC units are now established or are in process of establishment and the army officers there on duty with the ROTC, will meet with representatives of the Army agencies concerned with the conduct of the ROTC program. A full expression of views on the numerous features of the ROTC program will be sought.

A national ROTC conference will be held in mid-October at the War Department. It is expected that representatives of various educational associations and other interested groups will be present, as well as representatives of War Department agencies.

20th Corps' War History Compiled

A history of the XX Corps, which spearheaded Gen. George S. Patton's drive through France, is being prepared in Chicago, it was announced today by Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding general of the Fifth Army and former commander of the Twentieth "Ghost Corps."

General Walker, who led the Twentieth Corps across France and Germany and into Austria, said that an attempt is being made to compile a roster complete with the names of the thousands of officers and enlisted men who were assigned to non-divisional units of the Twentieth. It is his plan to place a copy of the history in the hands of every soldier of the corps.

To date, only 6,000 names and addresses of former Twentieth men have been collected. Special troops of the corps alone totaled 32,000 men. All former members of the Twentieth are invited to send their names and addresses to Fifth Army headquarters, 1600 East Hyde Park Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. Attention XX Corps.

Army's First Golf Tournament Begins Here On Tuesday

PROGRAM All Entrants Assured Four Straight Days of Competition

200 To Compete For Individual And Team Prizes

August 12—First 18 holes of stroke competition for qualification.
August 13—Second 18 holes of stroke competition for qualification. Based on the 36-holes of stroke competition, players will be placed in divisions of 32. This phase also will be used to determine the team championship.
August 14—First round of match play (18 holes). This will place players in flight of 16. Winners in the first division will surprise the Championship Flight, losers the First Flight, and so on through the other divisions.
August 15—Second and Third rounds, all flights (18 holes).
August 16—Semi-finals, all flights (Championship and First Flight 36 holes, all others 18 holes).
August 17—Finals, all flights (Championship and First Flight 36 holes, all others 18 holes).

The first Championship Golf Tournament ever to be held by the Army gets underway next Tuesday on the Officers' golf course here with about 200 golfers ready to compete for individual and team prizes. 350 applications reached the post before August 1, and the golf committee was consequently forced to bring the field down to the course's capacity. The first hole to be settled in the tournament, which runs to August 17, will be the team championship, as that will be based on the 36-hole qualifying scores shot in the first two days, August 12 and 13. The four-man team with the lowest aggregate score in the qualifying rounds will retire the team trophy for its command until next year's tourney.

Finals Aug. 14
On the basis of the qualifying scores contestants will be placed in divisions of 32 for the first round of match play on August 14. Qualifiers will continue then until Sunday, August 14, when the finals will be played. Presentation ceremonies will be held immediately upon completion.

Air Force Unit Leaves Friday For Greenville

Negro personnel of Squadron F, 319th AAF Base Unit at Lawson field, will be transferred Friday to the 319th AAF Base Unit, Greenville AAB, S. C., Col. Gilbert T. Collar, base commander, announced today.
The transfer will include approximately 100 enlisted men who will be absorbed by a new Negro squadron which is being organized at Greenville. All the men are scheduled to be flown to their new station with 1-Sgt. Raphael Showell in charge.
The move will deactivate Squadron F as a base unit at Lawson field, officials said. The squadron commander, Maj. Jerome Schweickert, will be transferred to Squadron A, the only remaining squadron on the base.
When Squadron F leaves to Greenville, it will be replaced by the 319th AAF Base Unit, Greenville AAB, S. C., Col. Gilbert T. Collar, base commander, announced today.

Hunting Horns Silent As Stables Prepare For Sale

Gone from Fort Benning will be the sound of the hunter's horn, polo games, horsehoses, and riding classes as all Army horses in the Infantry Center stables go on the auction block Aug. 13 under auspices of the War Assets Administration.
Missing from the scene around old Fort Benning will be such show champions as Blue Point, 20-year-old gray mare and winner of many trophies. Also any other horse in the history of the Infantry School, and often blue ribbon winners, Bob Arnold, Reno Jason, and Commack.
Benning mounts have been winning awards since the post was established. From 1939 until this year they have hung up an enviable record both in individual and team performance.
Of all performers, however, Blue Point stands out as top winner. A middle-weight hunter standing 15.3 hands, she does her best jumping at four-and-one-half feet and over. Along with rider Lt. Col. Jake Moon, Blue Point attained high places in Army equestrian circles.
In southeastern horsehoses last fall the Infantry School team won 42 ribbons, nine of them in blue. Closing of the stables will bring to an end Fort Benning participation in riding circles but the fest of 15 horses and riders will long be remembered.

90 Candidates Get Commissions Here Saturday

Approximately 90 members of Army Officers Candidate class No. 8 are scheduled to receive their commissions as second lieutenants Aug. 9, officials announced today.
Of the total number expected to graduate, 21 have chosen to further Army study with the Infantry, 17 with the Engineers, 10 with the Medical Administration, eight with the Signal Corps, 10 with the Ordnance Department, seven with the Field Artillery, four with the CAC, two with the Transportation Corps, two with the Corps of Military Police, three with Finance, three with QMC, two with Coast Artillery, and two with Chemical Warfare.
Final parade and review for the class will be held today at 1:15 p. m.
Kenneth P. Carlson, Pupskey, Minn., has been selected honor graduate and will be presented to the class formally at graduation exercises Aug. 9. Candidate Carlson attended St. John's Military School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Post PIO Schedules New Radio Program

A new informative radio program, entitled "This Day," will be presented, beginning Monday, Aug. 11, by the public information office through the facilities of station WDAR.
The new program will present a cavalcade of important American historical events of each year from 1776-1946, beginning separate events for each day. The show will be broadcast daily except Sunday from 6:10-6:15 p. m.
The public information office also presents the news picture of the post on "Fort Benning on the Air" daily except Saturday and Sunday from 5:55-6:15 p. m. over radio station WBR.

New Enlistees Now Ineligible Under GI Bill

Accrual of veteran benefits under the GI Bill of Rights has been terminated effective midnight, July 24, and any person who enlisted after that date will not be entitled to those benefits, it was officially announced last week.
Misunderstanding plus the delay in disseminating information has prompted officials to call attention to Public Law 239 which states that men enlisting, reenlisting, or extending enlistments in the regular Army after midnight, July 24, 1947 will not accrue veterans' benefits under the GI Bill of Rights.

These benefits include education and training, guarantee of loans, unemployment compensation, and vocational rehabilitation. Since enactment of this legislation, men have enlisted with the impression that they were eligible for veterans benefits. These men will be offered the following options:
Discharge for the convenience of the government under the provisions of paragraph one, AR 615-365, or retention in the service notwithstanding the fact that legislation had been enacted which deprives the individual of the aforementioned benefits.
Individuals who contracted a first enlistment prior to October 1946, will continue to accrue veterans' benefits for the duration of that enlistment. Men who enlisted on or after Oct. 8, 1946, but prior to midnight, July 24, 1947, are privileged to continue to accrue benefits from the accrual of further benefits for service on or after July 25, 1947.

WEATHER OUTLOOK

7 Recommended For Regular Army

Seven Army nurses stationed here have been recommended for permanent commissions in the Army Nurse Corps of the Regular Army.
To be appointed Regular Army nurses pending Senate confirmation are Sarah C. Butts, Annie M. Mills, Gladys Moore, Edna M. Parker, Geraldine Rollins, all temporary captains recommended for permanent grade as first lieutenants; and Sally M. Perkins and Inez A. Robinette, temporary first lieutenants, also recommended for permanent grade of first lieutenant in the Regular Army.

Jewish Chaplain Gets Japan Duty

Chaplain Morton Kaufman, who has been conducting Jewish services in the Post chapel the past two weeks, left for Yokohama, Japan, last Monday.
A native of New Orleans and recent graduate of the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York City, Chaplain Kaufman was under the personal direction of Post Chaplain Wallace Hale during his Benning visit.
Chaplain Kaufman has been active in Jewish community life, holding important positions in many organizations. After one year at Tulane University, he transferred to Columbia where he obtained his Bachelor of Science degree. He also holds the Master of Hebrew Letters degree.

Squadron A Presented Outstanding Unit Award

Squadron A of the 319th AAF Base Unit received the Lawson Field "Outstanding Unit Plaque" at a presentation ceremony last Saturday morning. The award, which is presented each month to the Lawson unit with the highest record of proficiency in performance of duties, was made by Lt. Col. Fred G. Henry, base executive officer.
For the four previous months the plaque was held by Squadron F. The next presentation of the award will be made on September 1.

College ROTC Students Finish Summer Course

Closing exercises for the approximately 840 college ROTC students, who completed an intensive six-week summer training course here last week, were held Friday at 8 a. m. in the gymnasium.
The ceremonies were opened with music by the 72nd Army band, and the invocation was read by Chaplain L. M. Hall. Col. Samuel A. Gibson, professor of military science and tactics at North Carolina State college and commanding officer of the summer camp, made the closing remarks and presented the awards.
Following announcements by Col. A. J. Thackston Jr., and the benediction by Chaplain Hall, the band rendered the National Anthem.

Get Reserve Status
More than 130 students were recommended for reserve commission and completion of the course. Of the total, seven were students of Agricultural and Mechanical college at North Carolina, Greensboro, N. C.; 10 were students at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.; four were students at Clemson college, Clemson, S. C.; 17 were students at North Carolina State college, Raleigh, N. C.; and 10 were students at North Georgia college, Gainesville, Ga.

AGF Planning New Training Programs For All Recruits

All Army Ground Forces recruits will receive the benefits of new training and off-duty programs tested successfully by the Fort Knox, Kentucky, Universal Military Training Experimental Unit, it was announced today by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding Army Ground Forces.

Basic training organizations which will revamp their training programs to comply with General Devers' directive are the newly reactivated 4th Infantry division, Fort Ord, California; 5th Infantry division, Fort Jackson, South Carolina; 8th Infantry division, Fort Dix, New Jersey, and the 3rd Armored division at Fort Knox. These units train all Army replacements other than those for Air Forces.

Methods and policies to be adopted immediately by the four divisions, formerly designated Replacement Training Centers, include off-duty activity programs, increased moral and religious guidance, instruction in Citizenship and Morality in the training schedule, and formation of local civilian advisory committees. For disciplinary purposes, training courts and the demerit systems will be left to the discretion of the division commanders.

Off-Duty Programs
"Major emphasis," General Devers said, "will be placed upon extensive use of off-duty programs, one of the features of the UMT Experimental Unit training policy."
These off-duty programs offer to the trainee the opportunity to pursue a hobby, participate in amateur theatrical productions, join guided tours to points of interest outside the camp area, enroll in educational classes, enjoy good music, and take part in competitive athletics.

"The divisions will follow closely the UMT Experimental Unit's moral and religious training program in which trainees are allowed to choose between attending Sunday church services of their religious preference, or one hour lectures on non-religious topics such as ethics, conduct and character. Greater stress will be placed upon citizenship and preparing the young soldier for a more active role in community activity."

Volunteer Committees
Local volunteer civilian committees will be formed to assist in matters of off-post conduct, recreation, participation of civilians in post functions, and of military personnel in off-post activities.
Division commanders may also institute the UMT training courts and demerit system for enforcing military discipline and providing military justice. This program, if adopted, would be coupled with a positive merit system awarding credit for outstanding good behavior and achievement. Personnel will not be subject to the trainee court system. Successful personnel will be in the older age brackets and will have already experienced the rigors of military law.

The ultimate goal of the divisions, according to AGF headquarters, is the attainment of the highest standards of pride in self and unit, esprit, discipline and thorough training through leadership and improved instructor-student relationships. Profanity and "hardboiled" tactics will not be condoned; enthusiastic and tireless application of sound leadership principles will prevail.

This incorporation of proved UMT policies and methods into the training procedure, was brought about through the findings of a board of officers formed by General Devers and composed of Maj. Gen. W. W. Eagles, commanding general, 5th Infantry division, Fort Dix, New Jersey; Maj. Gen. J. A. Doe, commanding general, 4th Infantry division, Fort Ord, California; Brig. Gen. R. T. Medlock, commanding general, 3rd Armored division, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

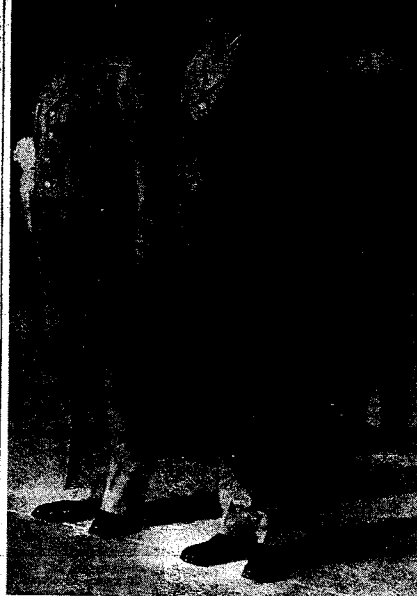

The board convened at Fort Knox, and attended UMT instruction periods, conferred with General Devers, and considered suggestions from representatives of the commanding general, AGF, and the commanding general, First, Second, Third and Sixth Armies, who attended board meetings. Their findings were compiled in a report forwarded to General Devers, and the latter directed that immediate and vigorous application be made of the approved training policies and methods.
The adoption of UMT tested policies will not lengthen the current period of basic training of the four divisions.

morrow, Lawson Field will be without Negro personnel for the first time since June, 1945, when the 434th Aviation Squadron was transferred to the base from Fort Wayne, Ind. At that time Lawson field was a Troop Carrier Command base. The 434th was later absorbed by the 34th Base headquarters and AB headquarters. Squadron F, received its present assignment in June, 1946 after serving as Squadron B, Squadron N, and Squadron D during the war years.

Negro personnel have played an important role in Lawson field's war and peace-time training program. As members of the base unit they have filled assignments ranging from administrative work in Base headquarters to aircraft and automotive duties on the flight line. They also aided in training Negro personnel for TCC's Air Supply Cargo Groups at Lawson field during the war and many of them left for overseas duty from the base.

Among them is Sgt. Clifford Howard, who came to the base with the 434th, left for overseas last year returned to the base and reenlisted with Squadron F. At present he is in charge of the mess hall. Pic. Dock Martin is another enlisted man who has served at the base since 1943. Since January, 1947, the squadron has won the Lawson field "Outstanding Unit Plaque" for four consecutive months. The plaque, which is presented each month to the base squadron with the most outstanding record of proficiency in performance of duties, was awarded to the unit when it was under the command of Maj. Harvey L. Rogers, who headed the squadron until his recent assignment overseas.

Paying officials of the armed services also pointed out that under the amendments signed into law Saturday by President Truman, former servicemen are given an option of receiving cash or interest-bearing bonds in settlement of their terminal leave. Those who have already filed claims but who have not yet received payment will be able to receive bonds of $25 denomination and bonds will be immediately cashable at the holder's option under provisions announced by the treasury, as will bonds already received by claimants. The revised law applies to former officers and former enlisted men who are owed to all bondholders whether now in or out of service.
Men who desire payment of claims in cash should use the form "Claim for Settlement—Un-used Leave" and should mark clearly in the margin the words "Check payment desired." In the absence of this notation, paying officers will assume that bonds are desired and will pay claims accordingly. The forms are available at all post offices.

Grant Extension To Nurses Seeking RA Commissions

The War Department announced today that the time limit for applicants seeking Regular Army commissions in the Army Nurse Corps and the Women's Medical Specialist Corps has been extended to September 30, 1947. The previous expiration date was July 31.

The authorized Regular Army strength for nurses, dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists is approximately 2,900. Applicants for the Regular Army Nurse Corps must be unmarried registered nurses with previous military service, have no dependents under 14 years of age and be between the ages of 21 and 35.

Women's Medical Specialist Corps applicants must be in the 21 to 45 age group, unmarried and no dependents under 14 years of age. Those applying for a commission in the Occupational Therapist Section of the Women's Medical Specialist Corps must have served honorably at any time since December 7, 1941 as a qualified occupational therapist with the Medical Department of the Army in a civilian capacity.

Five hundred nurses have already been commissioned or nominated for commissions in the Regular Army Nurse Corps. Pay and benefits will be the same as for all other Regular Army officers.

Application forms may be secured at Army hospitals, Army headquarters, Placement and Counseling Service for State and District Nursing associations or from the Surgeon General's office, War Department, Washington 25, D.C.

The reason so few reach the top is because no successful method has yet been devised by which a person may sit down and slide up hill.

Officer's French Wife Imports French Poodles

France really invaded Columbus when Maj. B. Frank Watson, assistant staff judge advocate here, brought his French-born wife and her two fuzzy-haired French poodles to this country. Repeatedly ribbon winners at dog shows, the two poodles, because of their mistress' ingenuity, managed to survive the long years of German occupation even though there was little or no meat and very little else to eat.

Putzi, the male, has a brown coat of hair, while his wife, R'Diamée, is a brunette. Both the poodles are clever, but the female has a larger repertoire of tricks.

Almost Shot Once

The tall, stately Mrs. Watson, the former Suzanne Alexandra Dolly Delvalle, recalls how close Putzi and Diamée came to being shot by the Nazis just before the liberation of Paris. She had taken for a walk in the Bois de Boulogne when a truck of German soldiers rolled along the group jumped town and informed her that they were going to shoot her dogs.

Having no defense against the soldiers, she, naturally, told them to go ahead with their plan. Suddenly, however, they loaded back into the truck and left her dogs alive. She learned later that they were probably spared because she refused to become panicky. The Germans had shot a French boy a short time after that incident when he became frightened and ran away.

Nazis Impounded Dogs

Brown-haired Mrs. Watson also reported that her pet came close to death many other times. It seems that the Germans confiscated all dogs they could find who were 15 inches in height, and used them to walk over suspected minefields. Fortunately, for Putzi, however, she was usually warned by friends when the Germans were coming, and managed to hide him away until the danger subsided.

Putzi was born in 1938 and R'Diamée in 1943. Despite friends' suggestions that she shoot them, Mrs. Watson cared for them throughout the occupation.

Dolly met Maj. Watson in August, 1945, at the Officers' club in the Hotel Crillon on the Place de la Concorde, where she was employed at the information desk. Maj. Watson said he realized like most at once that he would like to know her better, and shortly afterwards they were married.

Both Putzi and R'Diamée are old-fashioned "wags" who are trimmed in a modern way according to Mrs. Watson. They

The Army Nurse

It is with great pleasure that the Bayonet learned of the integration into the Regular Army of members of the Army Nurse Corps, a small group of women whose lives, like those of the regular profession, are dedicated to the alleviation of pain and suffering.

And with even more pride and pleasure we learned this week that eight of our own nurses here at the station hospital had been notified of their recommendation for admission into the Regular Army family. Of course, we have come to expect great things from people here at Benning, so it certainly was no surprise to learn of the nurses' elevation to full commissioned status.

We have always admired the ladies of mercy. We admired them even before the war, and during those dark days at the outbreak of hostilities, when the foreign-born nurses, endured the same hardships as the soldier of battle, our esteem soared higher. On all battlefronts, wherever the fighting was heaviest, there were the Army nurses, fighting as hard to rekindle that spark of life as the enemy was to snuff it out.

The Army nurse was mother, sister, girl friend, and companion to the weary soldier. She listened to his troubles, wrote his letters, soothed him, talked to him, and comforted him. She was always at hand to let him know that she was suffering with him.

During the war the Army Nurse Corps expanded from a few hundred to more than 57,000. These young ladies left the comfort of immaculate hospitals from all over the United States to become an integral part of the Army. They braved the cold, the heat, the rain, the storm, the sea, the air, and of course, disease. They took over a man's job, and acquitted themselves well.

No praise can be too high for these young women. Their lives, dedicated to the cause of medicine and the alleviation of pain wherever possible, should be shining examples of what a glorious thing womankind can be.

The sergeant strode into the squad room. "All right you lazy apes, fall out!" he exclaimed.

The soldiers grabbed their hats and swarmed out—all but one who continued to lie on his bunk blowing smoke rings.

"Well?" roared the sergeant.

"Well," remarked the rookie. "There were a lot of them, weren't there?"

A sweater is a good investment for a girl. She gets out of it what she puts in it—she draws considerable interest, too.

She reminded him of a switchboard operator when she walked, because all her lines were busy.

She was a hula dancer. He was a gob from the fleet. He forgot the sugar he left at home.

When she shook her shredded sweat.

If a girl speaks to everyone, she's forward;

If she doesn't, she's bashful.

If she talks she's a flirt;

If she doesn't, she's a high-bait.

If she's smart in school, she's a highbrow;

If she isn't, she's dumb.

If she talks about others, she's a snitch;

If she talks about herself, she's conceited;

If she's popular, she's talked about;

If she isn't, she's a dud.

If she goes with the boys, she's a wallflower;

If she doesn't, she's a wallflower.

Most of all we look sharp in civies; do we try as hard to do the same in our uniforms?

"Oh, damn," said the ram as he fell over the cliff, "I didn't see that U-turn."

'Two Views Of Life'

CHAPLAIN ROBERT R. CANIS
 Out in the desert country of California and Texas a pinched old lady with a disposition as sour as the expression on her face was viewing some desert landscapes painted by a desert artist. She had one of those mouse-like expressions so meek with humility but so squish with meanness. As she looked at the paintings she commented, "I don't like any of them. Nobody ever seems to capture their color as I see them."

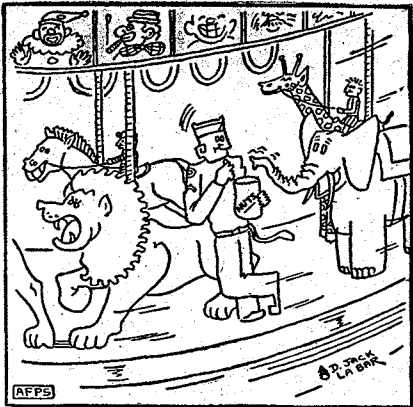

The artist standing by asked, "And how do you see the desert, Madam?"

The pinched old lady squeaked back at him, "I see them as a mouse-like grey."

That's the far away look. Another tourist went out to that desert and drew close to its bottom. He lived in it. He lived with it. And there at his feet he saw a riot of color. Tiny plants—one half inch high were springing up all about him. The ground was swined with millions of tiny flowers.

Now there are also two ways to view a desert. One is to view it wasteland to those who desert from afar. It is meaningless, worthless, burning, and away like a candle until it burns itself out.

Be sure to get down into life. Dare to live with life. Dare to be alive, and suddenly there are the grass, meadows of them growing in unexpected places. One is awakened to the realization that there is beauty every where in life. One is awakened to the realization that there are the darker moments of life; and we find meaning and purpose even in life's disappointments.

 "Set the pace, lady—set the pace."

Then there's the joke about the traveling salesman who married the farmer's daughter because he was in love with her.

Lad looking through a telescope: "God!"
 Friend: "Aw, gwan, it ain't that powerful!"

From a village newspaper:
 "Due to the shortage of paper a number of births will be postponed until next week."

Cpl: Boy, that was some blonde you were out with last night!
 Where did you get her?
 Sgt: Don't know. I just opened my wallet and there she was.

Friend: I'm surprised that he didn't pay you what he owed you. I thought the fellow had at least some 20 localities.

He: Yep, so have pins, yet they'll stick you.

He: Do you believe kissing is unhealthy?
 He: You've never—I've never!
 He: You've never been kissed?
 She: No, I've never been kissed.

Stage Manager: Our Burlesque Queen refuses to go on stage tonight.

Boss: How come?
 Stage Manager: Says she doesn't feel in the mood.

"Gracie, do you ever awake with a jerk?"
 "Golly no, I'm not married yet."

Teacher: Junior, I am surprised.
 Do you know any more rude old fellows?
 Junior: Lots, teacher.
 Teacher: Well, you'll stay in after school.

She: "I'm Suzette, the Oriental Beauty."
 He: "Shake."

"I met the most wonderful man last night. He invited me to a wonderful dinner at his apartment with champagne and everything, and afterwards he showed me a dozen mink coats and told me to choose one for myself."

 "Amazing! And what did you have to do?"
 "Just shorten the sleeves."

Satan: "What are you laughing at?"
 Imp: "I just had a woman locked up in a room with a thousand hats and no mirror."
 Gracie Says
 "It makes me mad; just when I start playing hard to get he gets convinced—that I am."

Father: Sonny, I'm going to tell you a story.
 Sonny: Okay, but keep it clean; the old lady might hear you.

The origin of the saying, "Oh, Yeah," has been attributed to an unbelieving bridegroom who, upon hearing his bride say "Now I lay me down to sleep," said to himself, "Oh, Yeah."

Little Jane walked into the corner drugstore and ordered "issu paper. The clerk wrapped up three rolls and handed them to her.

"Charge them, please," said the little girl.
 "Certainly," the clerk said, "but who are they for?"
 The little girl sighed as she turned at the door. "All of 'em," she said.

More good advice: "People who live in glass houses shouldn't talk."

"Timid Husband: "I want to get a corset for my wife."
 Clerk: "What bust?"
 Husband: "Nothing—it just wore out."

"You simply have to hand it to Alfred!"
 "Well, he's so shy and backward!"

Your Red Cross
 BY MURRAY F. HILL
 Your Red Cross moves forward to new horizons of service to humanity. Thursday, June 12, 1947, will be recorded in history as a momentous day, for it was on that day the Red Cross inaugurated a national blood program to provide, without charge, the products of blood and blood derivatives for use wherever they were needed throughout the United States.

The goal of the Red Cross is to make these products available on a nation-wide scale for medical use to help save lives and prevent sickness.

The idea for a national blood program grew out of increasing needs in modern medical practice for blood and blood derivatives. Physicians in military service, many of whom have returned to civilian practice, know at firsthand that thousands of lives were saved because blood plasma and other derivatives were readily available when needed during the war. They know that lives can be saved in peacetime if these products can be provided readily.

As yet, science has found no satisfactory substitute for human blood and blood products in its laboratory. Approximately 3,700,000 pints will be required to meet the full need for blood and blood products in this country.

The general plan of operation for the program is that will be carried out by the Red Cross chapter, which will collect and process in some 20 localities selected geographically. From thence it will be distributed where it may be readily accessible to all communities.

In addition to whole blood and plasma, the national blood program will provide other blood derivatives of proven value: serum albumin, used for shock, certain kidney diseases, and other conditions; immune serum globulin, for modification or prevention of measles; antihemophilic globulin, effective in the treatment of "bleeders"; fibrin films, used in kidney surgery; red cell suspensions, for treating certain anemic conditions. Many other products found useful in medicine and surgery will also be provided. There can be no doubt that this program of this kind will be of consequential one to the people of this country.

Army To Push NG Enlistments

The 1,780 stations of the Army recruiting service will actively aid the National Guard in reaching its goal of 652,000 men, the War Department announced today.

"The new National Guard will be a tactical force ready for immediate service in the event of any enemy aggression, and the Army Recruiting Service will lend positive assistance in the further development of this 'New Guard Force,'" a spokesman for the Military Personnel Procurement Service Division said.

"Our primary mission is, and will remain, the procurement of personnel for the Regular Army. However, the early development of the National Guard is vital to a well-rounded military establishment. It will guarantee the peace, and every possible assistance will be given The Adjutants General of the several States in their recruiting programs," he added.

"The aid of the Army recruiting service should give increased impetus to the organization of the new National Guard which has as its ultimate goal a strength almost three times as large as that which existed before World War II," Major General Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, said.

"I have advised The Adjutants General of the several States of the assistance offered by the War Department and urged them to take immediate steps to put the program into operation," he added.

Specific steps to be taken by the Army Recruiting Service in assisting the National Guard in recruiting were outlined in a recent War Department Memorandum, signed by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff.

They are:

1. Army recruiting stations will furnish information on the National Guard to individuals who are interested in the National Guard or to individuals who are no longer prospects for enlistment in the Regular Army. Such individuals will be directed to local units of the National Guard.

2. Army recruiting stations will assist unit commanders of the National Guard in setting up a recruiting system similar to the one which has proved so successful for the Regular Army.

3. Army Recruiting Stations will lend advice in the preparation and placement of publicity and advertising campaigns.

Former Military Intelligence Officer Now Training Here

One of the men who played an important role in the operations of Military Intelligence during the war is Maj. Maxwell Grabove, a student in Officers' Associate Basic No. 4.

In November, 1943, Major Grabove, then a first lieutenant, assumed command of a newly-activated company at Camp Ritchie, Md. The second of its kind ever organized, the second Mobile Radio Broadcasting Company was composed of 20 officers and 115 enlisted men.

Chosen for reasons of their technical abilities and talents, the group consisted of radio operators, announcers, radio technicians, printers, writers, interrogators and linguists. Thirty-five various languages and dialects were spoken fluently by personnel in the company, which was equipped to carry out its purpose with powerful radio sets, loudspeakers, and printing presses capable of turning out thousands of leaflets an hour. After organization the group was sent to the European theater.

To accomplish its mission, principally lowering the enemy's psychological will to fight and his efficiency by undermining his morale, the unit had a unique system. Town newspapers were operated to keep down rumors, and leaflets distributed. An interrogation team would converse and associate with prisoners to "squeeze out" all information possible concerning the enemy's morale. These findings were carefully studied and printed in leaflet form, attacking the weaker points.

Cleverly arranged so as to depict and drive home the truth to the troops wherever possible, loudspeakers were sent to the front line and radios made daily broadcasts to the Germans. By carrying out the policy of truthful propaganda, the operation was made more effective, winning respect and building prestige in the eyes of the German soldiers and civilians.

With the Intelligence unit's mission successfully carried out, Major Grabove left his company in Paris and joined the Information Service Control, which took charge of all German propaganda agencies.

POST THEATER GUIDE

BLACKMAIL (murder-mystery) with William Marshall and Adele Mara. Double-dealing dames, disappearing bodies, mysterious shot—all involve a private eye in plenty of mystery until he solves the case. Recommended for family.

GAS HOUSE KIDS GO WEST (melodrama) with the Gas House kids, Chill Williams, and John Shelton. The gang thought they were going out on a vacation, but when they get tangled up with crooked auto dealers and "hot" cars, they get more "vacation" than was bargained for. Recommended for family.

NEW ORLEANS (story of jazz) with Arturo De Cordova, Dorothy Patrick, and Louis Armstrong. "Satchmo" Armstrong gives out with some hot tunes in this story of jazz from its beginning on Basin street to its present day popularity. Recommended for family.

LAST OF THE RED MEN (early frontier days in Vitacolor) with Jon Hall, Michael O'Chee, and Evelyn Ankers. There's action a-plenty as a small party tries to reach the safety of a fort during the troubled days of the French and Indian War. Recommended for family.

THE TRESPASSER (melodrama) with Dale Evans and Warren Douglas. Newspaper reporters tangle with foggers of first edition while a reporter is killed to prevent the disclosing of his racket. Recommended for family.

THE LONG NIGHT (trapped killer) with Henry Fonda, Barbara Bel Geddes, Vincent Price, and Ann Dvorak. With the police trying to blast him out and his girl friend trying to persuade him to come out, a confused killer spends the night barricaded in his room, trying to understand how it all happened in the first place. Recommended for mature.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. George L. Mabry are newcomers to quarters at 100-A Running, but not new to the Post since they have been living in Columbus for the past 11 months. With them is their 17-month-old daughter.

Back to Fort Benning for the fifth time are Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward, who first came here in 1920. Colonel Ward has just returned from China and during his absence Mrs. Ward had the interesting position of managing the Women's National Democratic club in Washington, D. C. Friends on the Post will remember the Wards' three children. The former Peggy Ward is now Mrs. E. S. Groneweg and is living in Florida. Her husband, Captain Groneweg, has been retired from the Army. Capt. James F. Ward Jr. is serving with the AAF on Oklawaha and Robert M. Ward is a cadet at West Point in the first class. He will be home early this month on leave.

Mrs. Ward will be remembered for organizing the Gray Ladies for the Red Cross at the St. John hospital at the beginning of the war.

Just back from Germany and new in quarters on the Post are Col. and Mrs. C. W. Pence who were in Europe together for a year and had an opportunity to travel in Germany, France, Switzerland, Italy and England. Colonel and Mrs. Pence were here from 1931 to 1935 just after he returned from a tour of duty in China.

Maj. and Mrs. Robert H. Bull and their 2-year-old son are newcomers in Post quarters. The couple have just returned from Austria where they spent 14 months while their son stayed with his grandparents in Columbus, S. C. Major Bull has been here twice before, but both stays were before his marriage to this is Mrs. Bull's first time at the Infantry Center.

With their two children, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John T. Ewing have moved into quarters on the Post. Colonel Ewing is here for a second time, having attended school here in 1941. They lived in Columbus at that time. The Ewings moved here from Yuma, Ariz., where she stayed with her parents overseas for 28 months in Korea. The two children are a son, 5, and a daughter, 2.

Just back from a year in Germany, Maj. and Mrs. Louis R. Moore Jr. have taken quarters at 202 Austin Loop and reminding them of their time in Europe is the handsome Boxer dog named Knut which they brought from Denmark. During the time Major Moore was overseas Mrs. Moore stayed with her parents in Philadelphia, Pa., but before he left he was at the Post for a time in 1943 as an instructor.

Mrs. George A. Brinsman of Fort Worth, Texas, is houseguest at the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank Colacicco.

Miss Mary Margaret McCusker of Washington, D. C., is a houseguest at the quarters of Mrs. Robert T. Larson. She is the sister of Mrs. Larson.

Surprise Party Is Get-Together Of Younger Set

A surprise birthday party and general get-together for a group of young people on the Post featured the strikies at the Officers' club last Thursday night when Bill "Dink" Rhinehart Jr. was fêted on his seventeenth birthday.

In addition to being a birthday celebration, the gala party also was a greeting to several young people who have recently arrived on the Post and a farewell for some who will be leaving soon. Swimming featured the early part of the evening and later light refreshments, including a birthday cake trimmed in pink, green and yellow, were served at the table decorated with colored balloons. Games and dancing completed the entertainment which was arranged by the honoree's parents, Maj. and Mrs. William C. Rhinehart.

Mrs. Eisenhower Attends Lunch Of AGF Board

Mrs. John Eisenhower, wife of Capt. John Eisenhower, who recently came to Fort Benning, was introduced to the ladies of the AGF Board Friday afternoon when he attended the monthly luncheon of the group held at the Officers' club.

Mrs. Eisenhower was the guest of Mrs. James Luttrell, who was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon. The long table was decorated with a centerpiece of white and lavender flowers in a silver bowl with smaller bowls of flowers at either end of the table.

Mrs. Frederick Herman of Seattle, Wash., was another guest for the event. She is the mother of Mrs. Ralph Wiltamuth and has six children with her daughter and Lt. Col. Wiltamuth of Fort Monroe, Va.

Also attending the luncheon were Mesdames Reuben Jenkins, Earl Johnson, Dwight Rosebaum, William Coughlin, Leon Lichtenwalter, James Pence, Edward Sachs, Richard Boyd, Donald Thompson, Samuel McDowell, Thomas Lawler, Edwin Markel Jr., Robert Blumhagen, Carl Sachs, Jobby Stewart, Harry J. Thielis Jr., Francis Wilson Jr., Theodore Clark, Thomas Cathcart, and Miss Doris Lee Blackmon. During the afternoon several groups of the ladies enjoyed bridge.

Mrs. Tole Entertains At Bridge Party

Mrs. Grady Tole entertained a few of her friends Tuesday afternoon when bridge was played at her quarters, 119 Ingersoll Loop. The guests were served light refreshments and the decorations for the event were asters and dahlias in crystal bowls.

Those attending were Mrs. Harvey Allen, Mrs. Russell Stow and Mrs. John Dobrosky.

Gunn, Master Sergeant and Mrs. Curtis Fritchman and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil O'Blennes all were celebrating wedding anniversaries at the event.

VISITING IN TEXAS — Mrs. George S. Stevens and her daughter Kaye just before they left for Texas where they will visit Kaye's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Dumas in Fampus. Major Stevens and his family drove to their home state and are to be gone for about two weeks before returning to the Post where 8-year-old Kaye will continue school at the Post Children's School. Pictured with Mrs. Stevens and her daughter is their dog Texas.

Mrs. Duvall Hostess At Tea Honoring Mrs. R. L. Dulaney

An extremely pleasant social event last week was the tea given Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Everett W. Duvall at her quarters to honor Mrs. Robert L. Dulaney, who will be leaving the Post this month for Washington, D. C.

Mrs. John W. O'Daniel and Mrs. Daniel P. Burchard presided at the tea table which was gracefully decorated with a centerpiece of red roses in a low silver bowl flanked by branched silver candelabra holding tall white tapers. The table was overlaid with a lace cloth and the guests were served tea, coffee and punch. Floor baskets of summer flow-

Gastons Entertain At Formal Dinner

Lt. Col. and Mrs. James A. Gaston entertained a group of their friends at a formal dinner party Friday evening at the Cherokee lodge in Columbus.

Cocktails were served before dinner, which was a farewell event for the Gastons, who left the Post this week for Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Colonel Gaston will attend the Command and General Staff college.

The guests found the table beautifully decorated with arrangements of zinnias used with green leaves and green tapers. Places were set for Col. and Mrs. C. E. Beauchamp, Col. and Mrs. Oscar B. Beasley, Col. E. A. Johnson, Col. and Mrs. A. C. Haley, Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. A. Tolve, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank Colacicco, Mrs. George M. Griswold, Maj. and Mrs. William R. Taber, Maj. and Mrs. Charles E. Dunn, Maj. and Mrs. Dan Kingman, Maj. and Mrs. William McDowell, Capt. and Mrs. George S. Peck and the hosts.

Miss Blizzard Has Group Of Friends At Dinner Party

Miss Janie Blizzard, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John C. Blizzard, entertained a group of her friends at a delightful dinner party at her quarters last week soon after her return from Valley Forge hospital in Pennsylvania, where she has been since May 4. She has been treated for an X-ray burn.

Guests at the party were served cocktails before dinner and later in the evening went to the Officers' club for dancing.

Guests for this event enjoyed picnic fare cooked at the lodge and dancing later in the evening.

Morning Party Given For Niece Here From Ohio

Miss Frances Williamson, a houseguest at the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ellis Williamson, was complimented Saturday morning when Mrs. Williamson invited a group of young ladies to the Post as a coke party at her quarters. Miss Williamson is leaving today for her home in Dayton, Ohio. She is a sophomore at Miami University in Ohio, a member of Theta Upsilon social sorority, and niece of the Williamsones. Guests for the informal morning party were Misses Jane Blizzard, Mary Margaret McCusker, Madge Barclay, Leslie Tibbitts, Helen Moore, Martha Thompson, Millie Scudder, Phyllis Strook, Shirley Burke, Terry Deane, Sally Watson, Jessie Sanderson and Janis Adams.

Weapons Section Ladies At Lunch

Ladies of the Weapons Section held their monthly luncheon meeting Thursday afternoon at the Officers' club with Mrs. Howard D. Sallett and Mrs. John E. Tilton as co-hostesses in charge of arrangements. Colorful arrangements of floating hibiscus blossoms in silver bowls were used on the long table set for 31 ladies in the Palm room. Punch was served before lunch and later several tables of bridge were in play in the lounge.

Parents Feted At Dinner Party

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Warren C. Chapman entertained with a formal dinner party at their quarters Saturday evening honoring Mrs. Chapman's parents, Col. and Mrs. Howard Cloud. Table decorations were garden flowers in silver bowls and white tapers in silver candelabra. The Clouds were stationed here in 1923 and many of the guests were their old friends. Others attending besides the hosts and honorees were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Col. and Mrs. John C. Blizzard, Col. and Mrs. Hutton Thorn, Col. and Mrs. O. T. Bragan, Col. and Mrs. W. T. Moore, Col. and Mrs. Gilbert T. Collier, Col. Irvine Scudder, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ben Harrell, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles Johnston, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Henry L. Crouch and Lt. Col. Jack English.

AOCC No. 9 Has Party

Officer candidates of AOCC No. 9 held a stag party recently at Victory lodge with the entire company attending and participating in the activities. Touch football, volleyball and basketball filled the afternoon and later refreshments were served. Members of the class are now looking forward to an outing at Pine Mountain.

Joint Luncheon For Teen-Agers

A luncheon Tuesday on the porch of the Officers club marked the fourteenth birthday of Miss Mickey Cardona, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. A. Cardona. Mickey just returned last week from Washington, D. C., where she spent several weeks visiting relatives and friends. The event was also a farewell party for Polly and Nancy Sochs, Ann Woodliss and Roberta Jones who are leaving the post soon with their parents for new stations.

Decorations for the teen-age affair were garden flowers in silver bowls. Others attending the gala event were Harriet Grizzard, Betty Davidson, Jean and Joan Goss, Susie Stullinger, Jessie Westman, and "Bubbie" Burman.

Schaefer's Hosts At Dinner Dance

To compliment a group of their friends, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William H. Schaefer entertained last week at an informal dinner dance at the Officers' club and served cocktails at their quarters earlier in the evening. Summer flowers in silver bowls were used to decorate the rooms open to the guests at the Schaefer's quarters and bright flowers also were arranged on the table on the club patio. Guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McKinnon from Seaside, N. Y.; Mrs. Tom Houston of Miami, Florida, and Mr. Edgar Bullock of Columbus.

Tea Dance Marks Event At Lawson

Lawson field officers and their wives celebrated Air Force Day with a delightful tea dance at the Officers' Club August 5. Guests were served refreshments at 5:30 p. m. and dancing to the music of the Swingsters took place until 10:30. The club was decorated with large clusters of greenery and colored lights. Among the guests were Col. and Mrs. Gilbert T. Collier, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Henry L. Crouch, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William B. Purinton, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Fred G. Henry and Maj. and Mrs. John Wretschko.

Lawson Briefs

Pfc. Robert C. Gardner, Special Service, is due back this week from Madison, Wis., where he attended a five-day USARF conference. Capt. John Bryden, base chaplain, who spent 25 days in Pittsfield, Mass., visiting Mrs. Bryden, returned to the base Friday. S-Sgt. John Lane, pinch-hitting for the chaplain, started his leave on the same day. Capt. Ernest Murray, base surgeon, leaves today for civilian life and private practice in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Both Sgt. Andrew E. Stewart and Cpl. Truman A. Parker were made staff sergeants, which they qualified for AAF OCS recently. They began the grind for their gold bars at Fort Benning, Tex., on July 7. Other EM from the base who are enrolled in the same class are: Sgt. John Polityk and S-Sgt. John Clark. The Base Photo Lab was taken over last week by S-Sgt. Royal Gansling, Field, Tex. Lester Childers from the 12th Photo Tech Unit, Greenville, S. C. One of their first assignments was the pleasant job of shooting the "Miss Georgia" contestants who visited the base on Air Force Day. Lt. Edward Hanks is the new photo officer.

Thorn Dinner At Officers' Club Honors Clouds

Col. and Mrs. Hamilton Thorn held a dinner at the Officers club Wednesday to honor Col. and Mrs. Howard Cloud, who are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Warren C. Chapman. The Clouds have just returned from Hawaii and after their visit will go to their new station at Orlando, Fla. Before the dinner aperitifs were served at the quarters of the host. Summer flowers in crystal bowls were used as table decorations for the dinner, and guests, besides the honorees, were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Col. and Mrs. O. P. Bragan, Col. and Mrs. W. Moore, Lt. Col. John English and Miss Jane Ellis.

Bullocks Hosts At Buffet Supper

To compliment a group of their friends, Col. and Mrs. Edgar Bullock entertained Wednesday evening at the Officers club when a buffet supper was enjoyed by the party on the patio. Decorations for the party were zinnias and snap dragons as they centered and ivory tapers in crystal candelabra. Cocktails were served earlier in the evening.

Dancing followed the supper and guests for the evening were Col. and Mrs. Daniel P. Buckland, Col. and Mrs. Ralph E. Tibbitts, Col. and Mrs. Helmut E. Beine, Col. and Mrs. Robert M. Crawford, Lt. MUSIC AND EDUCATION—T-5 John Chambers, left, Troop Information discussion leader, explains the advantages of the Army Educational program to T-4 David Ingraham, company clerk of the 72nd Army band.

CLEANING HIS WEAPON—Pfc. Sanford J. Larson spends an hour daily, just as other members of the 72nd Army band, cleaning his instrument.

A JAM SESSION—T-5 Fred Halgreen, right, with piccolo, the smallest instrument in the 72nd Army band, T-4 David Ingram, with the tuba, Pfc. Charles McCrary, piano, and S-Sgt. Raymond Laway, clarinet, most recent member of the band, do an old number with a new arrangement.

AT THE POST NCO CLUB—I-Sgt. Manuel Sousa wields the baton at one of the regular Post NCO club dances at which a section of the 72nd Army band usually provides dance music.

AT THE OFFICERS' CLUB—This section of the 72nd Army band, under the baton of T-Sgt. Ben Cortese, plays every Wednesday and Saturday night at the Officers' club. They also provide tea dance music each Sunday afternoon.

BEHIND THE SCENES—The 72nd Army band spends long hours practicing for dances, reviews, parades, special occasions, and radio broadcasts.

READY FOR THE PARADE—The 72nd Army band plays for all parades, reviews, and formal guard mounts on the post. Here they are pictured just before passing in review.

Army Band Life Not All Glamour

By LORRIS HOLLIDAY

It's in-a-boomp-te-a-comes the band! With white helmets and leggings flashing and the sun gleaming on dazzling instruments no other unit on the post makes a more spectacular appearance.

Wherever there is a parade of any size within a 200-mile radius of the post, the band will be the center of attraction. This year they led both the St. Patrick Day and the American Legion parades at Savannah, Ga. Nearer home they took part in Army Day and United Daughters of Confederacy parades in Columbus. These immaculate musical robots lead all formal reviews, parades and guard mounts of school troops here at Fort Benning.

Benning Tradition

Four occasions, which have become a part of the tradition of Fort Benning, that would be as flat as wine without sparkle but for the band, are football games, the Easter Sunrise service, polo and baseball games. Serving Joe Passerelli's baton, whirling with perfect timing through intricate marching maneuvers, as a touch down or a home run.

Sergeant Passerelli, coming into the Army in 1926, played with the 29th Infantry Band until 1940, when he was transferred to the 4th Coast Artillery Band in Panama. Later in New Caledonia he played with the 26th ACF Band for a short time. He came to Fort Benning with the 222nd Band in Lawson Field in 1945, later joining the 267th Band. This year he designated the 72nd Army Band.

The 72nd Army Band is not limited to just marches. From the Officers club on Wednesday and Saturday nights may be heard the sweetest strains from an orchestra that ever caused a gentleman to whisper sweet nothings into the ear of a beautiful lady.

Band Tops

Whether it be a Viennese Waltz, their favorite Rumba, "Siboney," "Where or When," "Star Dust" or any of the popular hit parade numbers, T-Sgt Ben Cortese and his boys can play it with the best of them.

Sergeant Cortese was directing his own band at the age of 16. He has played in and directed orchestras at many of the exclusive nightclubs of New York. Among these in the early 20's were the Lambs club and the Sauts and Sinners club, which had a famous clientele of circus performers and theater actors and actresses. Since coming into the Army in 1940 he has had six different orchestras. He played with the 177th Engineers and the 99th ACF Band in Alaska before coming to Fort Benning in 1945.

On Wednesday and Saturday nights at the Main Post NCO club may be heard another orchestra. This one is under the direction of Sgt. Manuel Sousa, who joined the Army in 1924 and played for the next 20 years with the 6th Infantry Band. This year he was changed to the 71st Division Band which came to Fort Benning in 1944 later becoming the 267th ACF Band.

Play For 'Em

Sweet music, that is danceable, whether it be at the NCO Club, the Service Club on Friday night or ROTC dances during the summer. For those who still cling to the more gymnastic tapershoren careers, Sergeant Sousa and his orchestra have numbers such as "Hoodie Addie" and "Jumping at the Woodside."

CWO Richard E. Velasco is the maestro of the 72nd Army Band. Even before being assigned to the 26th Infantry Band in 1937 he had had a musical career. In the days of silent pictures as a special attraction he played at the Bonita theater, Tampa, Florida. He also traveled with the Roy Smits Scotch Highlanders band from 1922 to 1924. Later in 1941 he attended the Band Leaders School, D. C. He directed the 4th Armored Division Band in Europe from 1942 to 1945.

During this time in the ETO he helped provide the headquarters security guard for this division.

This inter detail is part of the duties of a band during war. They also help execute wounded, applying first aid and otherwise helping care for the injured.

Mr. Velasco is ever on the lookout for replacement talent and qualified musicians for his band. He wants men that can read music and are willing to work to improve their skill. This work is not all glamour as you see it on

THE DRUM MAJOR STEPS—T-4 Joe Passerelli demonstrates the form and precision that resulted in his being made drum major for the 72nd Army band.

Stern parent, to applicant for daughter's hand: "Young man, can you support a family?"
Young Man: "I only wanted Sarah."

With graceful feet, a maiden sweet was tripping light fantastic. She suddenly tore, for the dressing room door—
You can't trust this wartime elastic.

Employer: "Myrtle, who told you that you could neglect your office duties just because I give you a kiss now and then?"
Stenographer: "My attorney."

Mrs. Brown: "Look dear, how picturesque, the Smiths are bringing in a yule log."
Mrs. Brown: "Yule log, my eye, that's Smith's."

Officer: "I thought you said your locker contained nothing but old clothes. What's this whiskey doing in it?"
G.I.: "Oh, That's my night-cap, sir!"

Ardent Swain: "Your hair is like sun gold, your eyes like two pools, your lips, gee, what a mess you must make on the rim of a coffee cup."

the parade field or on the dance floor. Averaging 20 hours a week of painstaking practice and playing from three to five engagements at night leaves very little time for loafers.

Although according to Army Regulations a bandsman is a musician and does not pull KP, guard, or any detail, each man is issued a rifle and equipment and must keep it ready for regular inspections. A knowledge of its functioning and use of this weapon is required of every man.

Before becoming affiliated with an overworking urge to join the band—remember, the sun—of Georgia shines on bandsmen with the same unmerciful force it does on the man with the gun. To march with a rifle on your shoulder in a parade is no small detail, but to march with an instrument in your mouth and draw formation of a 72nd Army Bandsman, seems no less than the impossible. The Fort Benning Bandsman do it and love it. With morale high, no other unit its size on the Post can lay claim to a better record of soldiering.

National Guard Ground Units Get Aircraft

Ground units of the National Guard will begin to receive the first shipment of 780 light aircraft for use in artillery observation and liaison. Major General Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced today.

There are vacancies for 850 pilots in this program. They will be commissioned and authorized up to 100 hours flying time annually under the Army Ground Forces training program, General Miltonberger said.

The Military Occupational Specialty number of ground force pilots is 13B1. Former Army Air Forces pilots who can pass Class I or II physical examinations and flight for commissions are eligible. They attend a 60-day orientation course in the various phases of ground force, small plane operations, including liaison, artillery observation, reconnaissance, personnel and cargo carrying.

Begin Aug. 15

Classes for former AAF pilots are scheduled to begin Aug. 15, 1947, at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. A second class is scheduled to start October 17 at Fort Sill, with new classes planned periodically thereafter as justified.

Non-fliers who meet necessary physical and aptitude requirements may be chosen for pilot training. It is planned to send such pilots through an eight and one-half month course at Fort Sill and San Marcos, Texas.

Planes used under the program will be made drum major for the 72nd Army band.

Use L-4s and L-5s

The National Guard Bureau has set up a project with Headquarters, Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson, Ohio, to process L-4 and L-5s through various depots. Now stored as AAF surplus stock, the planes will be moved to depots and put in shape for active service.

A contract for 47 Navions has been let by the North American Aviation Company with delivery expected to be completed by September 17. The Aeroquip Aviation company is due to complete delivery on 376 L-16s by December.

Under current plans the 780 planes will eventually be assigned to units of the National Guard on an equitable percentage basis as follows:

Three planes to each division headquarters; two planes to each division artillery headquarters, group artillery headquarters, corps artillery headquarters and artillery battalion; and one plane to each infantry regiment and engineer battalion. The command, reinforced division, combat, infantry division tank battalion, and separate tank battalion.

FIRST ONES HERE—The four golfers above, representing the Far East Command in the Army-wide tourney beginning Tuesday, were the first to arrive here. Left to right, they are: Pfc. William Ferguson, winner of the 25th Division championship in Japan; S-Sgt. Raymond Colton, Jr., Korea golf champ; T-4 Donald Spomer, medalist in the all-Japan tourney; and Cpl. Jack Walton, all-Pacific champion. The four linksters are entering in the Southeastern Amateur to be held in Columbus this week as well as the Benning meet.

tion of the 36-hole championship match on August 17.
Sidelines will be an 18-hole special event for all contestants wishing to enter on the afternoon of August 16 and the Seniors' Tournament, to be held August 14-17, open to any person more than 50 years of age in active or retired status.

First Arrivals
First participants to arrive at the post were the four golfers representing the Far East Command, S-Sgt. Raymond Colton, Jr., T-4 Donald Spomer, Cpl. Jack Walton, and Pfc. William Ferguson.

They arrived last week and expect to warm up for the Army-wide tournament by competing in the Southeastern Amateur play being held in Columbus starting today and lasting until Sunday. Benning is also entering a four-man team in this tourney.

The majority of the entrants noted on their application blanks next Monday will find many of those experimenting on the greens and fairways of the post course for the first and last time before play begins.

Some, however, will be familiar with the Benning links from having been stationed here previously. Maj. Gen. George H. Decker, ioned from the Hawaiian Army Area, once held the Benning course record with a 68. Lt. Kenneth Hughes, on the First Army team, was stationed here this year and was runner-up in the Officers club championship tourney.

List of Command
The following is a list of a good part of the various commands which will be vying for the team championships: Fort Benning, Fort Jackson, Maxwell Field, Fitzsimons General Hospital (Denver).

Non-commissioned officers, here for the Army championship golf tourney, will be honorary members during their stay of the post N.C.O. Club, it was announced today.
The visitors will also be entertained at a buffet supper and dance in the parachute room of the N.C.O. club August 16. All visiting non-commissioned officers and their civilian guests will be invited to the event.

Colo., Fifteenth Air Force, Sixth Army, First Army, Third Army, Keesler Field, Fort McPherson, Fort Knox, Headquarters, AAF Tactical Air Command, Mitchell Field, Air Transport Command, MacDill Field, Caribbean Air Command, Far East Command, Camp Gordon, District of Washington, Fort Worth Army Air Field, Atlanta Ordnance Depot, Hawaiian Area Army.

Some of the better golfers who will be fighting it out for the individual crown are as follows: Pfc. John Mahoney is 18-year-old junior golfer from New Jersey; Maj. Gen. Paul Williams, commander of the Ninth Air Force; the aforementioned Maj. Gen. George H. Decker; Benning's Lt. Col. William R. Cole, Lt. Col. Matt C. Bristol, Maj. William H. Wilcox, Maj. Albert Tait, and Maj. J. H. Hingate; Sgt. Alton Age, '41 and '42 amateur champion of Kentucky; Capt. Hugh Walker (on Hawaiian Area Army team), former South Carolina collegiate champion. Also S/Sgt. W. D. Behler, from Clemson Agricultural College; Lt. Stanley Rowden, T/Sgt. Harold Ridgley, and S/Sgt.

Daniel Nevins, all from Fort Worth Army Air Field, all shoot between 70 and 75; the four Far Eastern golfers mentioned above, M/Sgt. Fred T. Golias, from Caribbean Air Command, winner of his command's golf tourney; M/Sgt. Burl W. Quimby, from MacDill Field, shoots 72.

Twelve golfers entered from Fort Riley, Kans., all claimed on the entry blanks that they shoot in the low 70s. They are: Maj. Henry F. Hauser, 1st Lt. Max E. Young, 1st Lt. Robert E. Flynn, 1st Lt. Theodore A. Ewalt, Lt. Col. Thomas J. Lowe, Maj. Ebon R. Jones, S/Capt. Jesse Baines, T/Sgt. Perry F. Riley, Col. William J. Bradley, Lt. Col. Arthur A. Washburn, Jr., Capt. James L. Miller, and T/Sgt. Eugene Kirk.

Other entries are Capt. Fred G. Mosley, on the Air Transport Command team, one of the leading California amateur golfers; Lt. Col. Robert Kelley, from Tactical Air Command, Headquarters at Langley Field, shoots 147 for 36 holes; S/Sgt. Ralph N. Frank, March Field, Calif., shoots 148; Maj. John F. Holt, Shaw Field, shoots 149; Capt. Leo Robert Biggs Field, shoots 152; S/Sgt. Raymond Hoskins, Keesler Field, shoots a 74; Col. James Wilson, on Air University Command team; 1946 AAF golf champion, Alameda City Open Champion in '46, runner-up in the first flight of the Southern Amateur Tournament held this year in Louisville, and winner of the Andalusia, Alabama '47 Open Tourney and Birmingham, Alabama '46 Invitational Open Tournament.

Also S/Sgt. Chester E. Sealy, Air University team also, average score is 74, member of the '46 Ohio State University team which finished third in the National Intercollegiate tourney, and runner-up in the Southeastern Ohio Golf Association Championship tourney held last July.

Burns Studio Nine Loses To R And R Club, 8-2

Although Burns Studio softball team outdid the R and R Club 6-4 they came out on the losing end of a 8-2 score at Wilwood Park last Thursday. Garnering two runs off four hits in the first inning the Studio team was unable to cross the plate again for another score during the game.
Travis' homer in the second started the steady scoring of the R and R Club. Horlacher, in the fourth, and Scallorn in the fifth, hit homers to tie the game and led. Bobby Cecil pitched to Fitzpatrick for the losers and Horlacher to Hallett for the winning team.

Doughs Have Easy Time With Columbus All-Stars

Columbus Senior League All-Stars proved to be no match for the Doughboys last Saturday night in Golden Park, dropping a 10-1 decision to Capt. Bench's club.
Ken Watts pitched his best game of the season, setting down the local club with two hits and striking out six batters. The two hitters he gave up were successive singles by John Wright and Alton Lewis in the sixth. Lewis' hit drove in Rose, who was hit by a pitched ball, for the only run scored by the All-Stars.

Close at First
For six innings it was a close game, as Ralph Stephens allowed but four hits and one unearned run during the time. Bondy Burnett, second man up in the seventh, broke the deadlock by clouting one of Stephens' pitches over the left-field wall.

From there the Doughs went on to make a route of the contest. Woody Evert followed Burnett's homer with a line single to left, and Jack Forbes sent him home with a double down the third base line. McGowan hit to the first baseman, Wright, whose throw got away from Stephens, Forbes scoring and McGowan making third. The fourth and final run of the inning came in on Gallagher's fly to right.

Several Miscues
With proper fielding support Stephens might have gotten by the eighth, but his catcher, shortstop, and first baseman each kicked in with miscues, and the Doughboys made singles by Kinard and Forbes count for three runs.

Stephens' wildness cost him the last two runs in the ninth. He walked Lefty Lehner to start the inning, and after Lefty had stolen second, Watts drove him home with a single to right. The Doughboy pitcher went to third on a single by Bill Froebes and strolled home on a wild pitch.

Leading the Doughboys at the bat was second baseman Bob Kinard, who chipped in with three singles in five trips to the plate. Bondy Burnett and Jack Forbes each contacted two base hits to the Benning 12-hit attack.

The Doughs play a return game with the All-Stars September 2 at Cowdy Field.

Phenix City Nine Lambasted, 16-5

The Phenix City Tigers gambled on the right arm of John Hicks, an early season ace with Opelika, last Sunday, and, as sometimes happens with winners, they lost. The Doughboys took Hicks in three straight falls, and proceeded to a leisurely 15 to 5 victory, their fourth of the season.

Hicks' falls occurred in the first, third, and fifth innings when he was felled for five, four, and three runs, respectively. Although he was able to prevent the soldier nine from scoring in the second and fourth, they picked up at least two hits in every frame he pitched.

Letty Lehner went the distance for the Doughs, and but for one off-color inning, the ninth when the Tigers got him for four runs, he pitched a nice game, allowing seven hits, and fanning twelve.

Pick Up Runs

The Doughboys picked up as many runs in the first inning as the Tigers could put together all afternoon, and they did it before a man was retired. Dickson and Kinard hit Hicks in two pitches for singles, and the first run came across on the next pitch, when Hicks threw Terry's bunt into right field, Dickson crossing the plate and Kinard stopping at third.

Woodye Burt picked out a fat one and lined it into left center for one base and Kinard scored. Forbes doubled into the right field corner, Terry counting and Burt holding on at third, passed ball scored Burt, and the by-now un-nerved Hicks wild pitched Forbes in with run five.

The Doughs had to wait until the third inning to get the winning run, but they wasted no time in that frame. Bonair singled into right, and went on to second on Lauwe's one-baser to the same area. Shiver sacrificed and both scored easily on Lehner's double to the scoreboard in left center.

Lehner scored on pinch-bitter Brooks' single to left, Brooks going down to second on the throw to the plate. He went to third on a sacrifice bunt, and scored on the first of four singles that Ralph Terry picked up during the afternoon.

A pitcher named Lee finally replaced Hicks in the sixth, after that worthy had given up three more tallies in the fifth on singles by Brooks, Terry, and Forbes, plus a walk and a pair of errors.

Lehner singled, McGowan singled, Kinard tripled, and Terry singled, all with two ways to account for the balance of the six-tener. Lee miraculously retired the side in order in the eighth, Benning's last tap.

501st Tied With TABB In Softball

Both Airborne units, the Airborne Battalion and the 501st Parachute Battalion, continued to set the pace last week in the post softball league, both winning single games in league play.

The 501st took its third game by overpowering the 83rd Field Artillery 6-0, while the Airborne Battalion showed its power in a 26-1 rout of the 204th Transportation Battalion. This was the first game that the Airborne actually played as the first two wins were results of forfeits.

Both the ISD and the 37th Infantry gained on the idle 78th Engineers and the 30th Medical Group with the ISD defeating the 83rd Field Artillery 11-5, and the 37th shacking the 328th Ordnance 15-4.

With a 7-0 forfeit by the First Battalion, STH, the 204th Transportation Battalion climbed out of the cellar last week, leaving the 83rd and the First Battalion, STH, to share the dubious last-place honors. The 204th has played more games than any other team in the league, but have managed to capture but one game of the four they have played.

While the Airborne units seemed little troubled by the feeble opposition they have thus far encountered, the ISD and the 37th Infantry showed great strength last week and may very well make a sharp bid for loop honors when the ISD meets the 501st, and the 37th Infantry takes on the troop-

Second Guessing

BY MURRAY HARBING
 The Doughboy's hubbub as he assaulted and battered against what ever pitcher they face continued apace last week, sometimes with striking results. The funniest result from the spectator point of view was the manner in which some pitchers took their drubbing. Last Saturday night the Doughs played the Columbus All-Stars at Golden Park, the home of the Cardinals, and were pitched by a young right hander named Stephens. Stephens was not too long out of high school, where he was some shaken, apparently. But he throws kept the Doughboys pretty well in check for six innings, but in the seventh Blondie Burnett hit a home run over the left field fence, breaking a tie, and the rest of the Doughs, inspired by Blondie's blow, began knocking Stephens around rather roughly, with the end result that four runs scored.

More trouble piled up in the eighth for Mr. Stephens, runners were clogging the bases, his team mates were erring, the umpire wasn't giving him the corners, etc. etc. Midway through the frame Stephens whipped his cap off, gave it a flare, and thrust it into his pocket. The incident prepared to pitch. The umpire stopped him and told him to put his cap back on. Stephens refused. The umpire prevailed and Stephens finally shouted over to his manager, "Do you have a pen?" We couldn't hear what the manager said, but Stephens slowly placed the offending headgear back on his head, glared at the umpire, and resumed his duties. He never recovered his early game calm, and what started out to be a close contest ended 10 to 1.

Ralph Terry was explaining the other day why it is that while most of the other Doughboys can run the bases in slightly over or under 16 seconds, it always takes him mwell upwards of 17 to get around them.

"You see," began Terry. Selma, Alabama's All-American boy," Della like Dickson is a good fast fielder I can run him around this field four or five times and beat him." I'm longwinded, that's what it is."

We agree.

Last week, for the second time this season, a baseball team threatened to walk off the field over an umpire's decision. As usual, the tea mibat was going to leave, finally got the decision reversed, at least partially, which reminds us of the neighborhood kid who owned the only baseball in the block. He either pitched or he went home, taking his baseball with him.

The incident occurred during the Thomaston-Dough game. In the fifth inning, the Doughboys had a man on third, Bonair, and two-out. Herb Lauve was the batter. Lauve went down swinging on a third strike that was so low it bounced in the dirt before the catcher scooped it up. Lauve and the rest of the Doughs started to trot to their positions, thinking that the third one had been caught on the fly.

Chick Shiver, sidelined with a sore hand, had noticed the discrepancy, and shouted to Lauve to tag and start running. By the time he had gone back to first, most of the Thomaston team had left the field, so Lauve and Bonair sprinted around the bases, both of them scoring.

Umpire Harris shouted, and rightly so, that both runs counted, and a rubarb started that lasted twenty minutes. All the Thomaston team rubbed over and settled at Harris, but were rapidly getting nowhere until one of their members began packing up the team bats and making as if to leave.

In order to keep the game going, the Doughs agreed to have Bonair go back to third, and Lauve to first, and continue the inning. The next batter made the third out. The Doughs eventually lost by one run.

Speaking of umpires and their decisions, the pair that worked the Dough-Columbus All-Star game were in a class by themselves. The umpires that were supposed to work that night were for one reason or another, and one suspects that lots were drawn among the audience as to who would umpire. The two that did the job didn't appear to be too well qualified.

The game took an unusually long time, and one of the chief reasons was that one player or another, generally the pitcher, disputed a decision after almost every pitch—and they had every right to. Wait, the lowest pitcher that night, said the plate umpire seemed to get a little better progress, but no man had a kind word for the other. He called one play at first strike with his back turned to it, but he called it correctly which better than he did on some occasions when he was right on top of the play.

I have recently run afoul of AR 15 (Exhibit A, et al.) and this column is my last. Thanks to one and all who have cooperated with, or helped, me while I was here.

Colonel Crouch Leaves For Air University Today

Lt. Col. Henry L. Crouch Jr., is leaving Fort Benning today for Maxwell Field, Ala., where he will attend the Command and General Staff School at the Air University.

Col. Crouch, a graduate of the United States Military Academy and a veteran of the Southwest Pacific theater, was assigned Lawson Field in August, 1936, and has served as base executive officer since that time.

Also leaving Lawson field for the Air University is Lt. Col. William R. Purinton, base deputy commander. He came to Lawson field with the Air Indentration course last October. Colonel Purinton will leave the post within the next few days.

Another Lawson field officer who received a transfer recently was Maj. Harvey E. Rehner. He left for a California Overseas Replacement Depot last week and from there will sail for duty in the Pacific. The major, a former fighter pilot, commanded Squadron A.

328th Holds Swimming Meet

The 328th Ordnance Battalion will hold an intra-battalion swimming meet this afternoon at Russ Pool to pick the battalion team which will be entered in the post swimming meet next week.

Individual and relay events will be run off and Lt. Murphy, coach of the Doughboys squad, will give an exhibition of swimming through burning water.

Many Drivers Due For Races

The midget auto racers, who provided the most exciting evening of the summer season last Friday night, will be back this week with the largest assortment of drivers in recent weeks, and with the boys who wheel them, for the cash awards, featuring the U-2 of Bud Swanson, a newcomer.

Swanson sped around the track in near-record time last week in the trials, but could not get his motor tuned up for the regular races, and finished well back in a couple of the events, but was a distinct threat in the pursuit and the Australian pursuit.

At present Swanson must be considered with the favorites, also must Hank Blalock, an old favorite who returned to the Phenix City track last Friday night. With 11 cars in the big races, the winner can no longer be picked at random, since almost every driver poses a threat to the long reign of Bob Johnson.

Johnson has not quit, of course. He's been battling for the checkered flag in recent weeks, and he's promised that none of the newcomers will scare him off the track. So Johnson, Elroy Hicks, Bud Swanson, Hank Blalock, Johnny Suggs, and the rest of the speed merchants are all hustling for top honors, and it appears the race cards from now on will be loaded with thrills.

There were the usual spills last week, with the cars battling around the sharp curves, and more are due Friday night when the large group tangles with the time trials scheduled for 7:30 p. m. The more cars the more thrills, and with 11 out there in one arena, chase in the Australian Pursuit, the event developed into the most spectacular of the entire season.

This week's race program promises just as much or more excitement.

Army Air Forces' New Climatic Hangar Now in Full Operation

The Army Air Forces' climatic hangar at Eglin Field, Fla., headquarters of Air Force's Ground Command, is now in operation. The hangar, which can simulate extreme weather conditions, was developed to meet AAF needs for a central testing site where new aircraft and engine test rigs are subjected to climatic conditions which might actually be encountered in operational flying. Before the hangar was developed, such test work was accomplished in natural locations which presented many problems, chief of which was the distance which the equipment had to be transported and the time spent in waiting for proper temperature conditions.

The climatic hangar unit consists of a main insulated hangar, 200 by 250 feet, with ceiling heights varying from 48 feet at the sides to 70 feet at the center; an equipment and engine test room 30 by 118 feet and 23 feet high; a cold test room, hot test room, desert test room, jungle test room, and tropic-marine test room, each approximately 13 feet square; a 13 by 34 feet all-weather room for physiological testing; and a refrigerated strato-chamber, 10 by 14 feet. In addition, provisions have been made for simulated wind storms of velocities up to 100 miles per hour, in combination with sleet, snow, rain, and sand.

Great Size
The great size of the main hangar makes possible to subject the largest military airplane now in service to climatic testing. Facilities have been provided so all aircraft, including jet-engine and prop-jet planes, and their parts can be tested. Engines can be run up and ground tested, weapons fired, simulated landings and take-offs made to test landing gear, tire brake action checked, and the functioning of electrical, hydraulic, and heating systems tested. Even bomb dropping is possible in the huge hangar, for a bomb testing pit has been provided. The pit is 80 feet long, 10 feet wide, and nine feet deep. Planes are towed into position over the pit and dummy bombs are dropped to test release mechanisms and bomb racks.

Observation rooms are located high up on both sides of the hangar, to permit test personnel to observe the work in progress through non-freezing glass windows. In addition, there are wheeled observation rooms within the hangar.

The equipment and engine test room occupies a separate wing adjacent to the main hangar.

INSURANCE? YES!
AND NATION-WIDE SERVICE, TOO
Columbus Interstate Insurance Agency
Insurance Agency
Dial 3-5871 7-11th St.

Principal uses of this room are engine block-testing for reciprocating jet and turbo-jet engines, testing of motorized vehicles, and testing of ground equipment. An exhaust collection system has been provided to lead the engine exhaust gases outside the test room. The room is constructed so the noise of engine testing will not interfere with test work in other parts of the hangar.

Although the small test rooms—the hot, cold jungle, tropic-marine, and desert test rooms—produce the same general climatic effects as the main hangar, they provide a much cheaper method of testing.

Has Hot Test Room
The hot test room, designed for inside temperatures from 70 to 165 degrees Fahrenheit, can duplicate relative humidities between 10 and 95 percent. The walls, floor, and ceiling are insulated with four inches of glass wool board and two inches of asbestos rock.

A cold test room can be reduced in temperature from plus 10 to minus 70 degrees Fahrenheit in 24 hours and can hold at that temperature indefinitely with a maximum of 10,000 pounds of ice. Humidity control has been provided. Floor, walls, and ceiling are insulated with 12 inches of cork-board.

In order to simulate the cycle day and night in a jungle, the jungle room can be varied from a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit with 90 percent relative humidity to 70 degrees Fahrenheit with 100 percent humidity within three hours, to simulate life day and night tropical conditions. The room is capable of testing 10,000 pounds of equipment, and, like the jungle room, can produce rainfall of 12 inches an hour. The tropic-marine room is also equipped with a salt spray system.

Simulate Weather
Day and night desert conditions can be duplicated by varying the temperature in the desert test room from 60 degrees Fahrenheit to 120 degrees Fahrenheit with 40 percent relative humidity to 120 degrees Fahrenheit and seven per cent relative humidity. The room is equipped with a bank of 144 sun lamps, the total radiation of which produces a close approximation of noonday desert sun.

The all-weather room is used for physiological proof testing of personnel and personal equipment under extreme weather conditions. It consists of a main chamber and an ante-room or entrance lock. The main chamber is insulated with corkboard 12 inches thick covered with a stainless steel interior liner. Large non-freezing observation windows are provided for viewing the testing from outside the chamber. Temperatures can be reduced in the main chamber from plus 40 degrees Fahrenheit to minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit in six hours, and to minus 70 degrees Fahrenheit in 24 hours. Temperatures can also be raised from 70 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit, with relative humidities ranging from five to 95 per cent. A rain and mist-making apparatus is available for simulating rain storms from five to 35 miles an hour. The room can be partially filled

Bridge Party Held In Ladies Lounge For Bride-Elect

Mrs. J. A. Radcliff was hostess at a dessert bridge honoring Miss Betty Ross, bride-elect, on Wednesday afternoon in the ladies lounge at the Officers' club.

A bride in the center of a miniature gate with an overhead trellis covered with ivy and long streamers gathered around the table served with the centerpiece. Nappkins, tallies and individual favors were carried out in a brown color scheme.

Guests, other than the hostess and honoree, were Mrs. Fay Ross, Miss Connie Gosh, Miss Frances Hug, Miss Nancy McDonald, Miss Mary Frances Kelley, Miss Charlotte Tarboe, Mrs. Fred Harris, Mrs. George Everett, Mrs. John Foley and Mrs. Ralph Flynn.

Buffet Party Fetes Young Lady Soon To Leave Benning

Miss Martha Thompson feted Miss Madge Barclay at a buffet supper Sunday evening when she entertained at the quarters of her parents, Col. and Mrs. James V. Thompson.

The event was a farewell party for Miss Barclay, who is leaving the Post this month with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Robert L. Dull, of Columbus, D. C.

Other special guests at the party were Miss Thompson's grandparents, Col. and Mrs. H. E. Mann of Athens, Ga., who were here for the weekend, and her mother's aunt, Mrs. R. B. Powers of Lynchburg.

Later in the evening the younger members of the party went to the Officers' club for dancing.

Guests Entertained At Week End Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reed, week end guests at the quarters of Maj. and Mrs. C. W. Garland, were honored at a no-host dinner on the patio at the Officers' club Saturday evening.

Mr. Reed, a former captain, was with the automotive section of the infantry school, prior to his separation from the service. He served one year in Korea.

The Reeds with their one-year-old son, Curry, are now making their home in Macon. Also attending the event were Maj. and Mrs. Werner Bush.

10 Earn Stripes

Appointment of ten enlisted men of the Airborne Battalion, Company A to the grade of private first class was announced today. They are Pvt. Albert C. Callarelli, William M. Danzler, John W. with water for testing life rafts and immersion suits.

In conjunction with the all-weather room, a strato-chamber has been provided for proof-testing personnel and personal equipment at various altitudes and corresponding temperatures. Temperatures can be reduced from plus 70 degrees Fahrenheit to minus 70 degrees Fahrenheit within 12 minutes, with 10 men in the chamber.

Temperature can be further reduced to minus 94 degrees Fahrenheit with only two men in the chamber. Pressure can be reduced to correspond to that of 30,000 feet.

Due to the extreme temperatures which will be encountered by test personnel in the main hangar and various test rooms, special clothing must be worn. For hot testing a special hooded coverall has been provided which is ventilated by air cooled to 43 degrees Fahrenheit. The cooled air is introduced through a tube attached to the suit, and is released through the arm and leg openings and a vision aperture in the hood. Clothing for cold test work includes both Arctic ground clothing and electrically heated flying suits. The electrically heated suits are supplied with power from mobile transformer units.

Little Miss Fortune Presented Here By Alabama Drama Group

BY ALYSEN E. WISE
 Conducted under the combined sponsorship of the Tuskegee Veteran's Administration Hospital, recreation and entertainment section, Special Services Division, and Service Club No. 2, a highly successful showing of the three act comedy "Little Miss Fortune" was presented by the Alabama Drama group last Wednesday evening before an appreciative audience in Sand Hill's Theater No. 7.

The action, plot, and climax takes place in the living room of widow Cooper's home which is situated in a small New England town. Mrs. Cooper, a conscientious, hard toiling woman supports her family, which consists of an attractive daughter who recently graduated from college, and a 16-year-old son. The family's chief means of support is through the manufacturing and sale of potato chips. The owner of the town's candy store.

Plot Thickens
 While at summer camp, Katherine meets Randolph Blaney, who becomes extremely fond of her, and since he wishes to woo and win her without the wealth forming any attachment whatsoever, he conceals this from her until a more opportune time. At this period in the play, Katherine is awaiting a visit from Blaney to her home.

Messable, Mrs. Cooper and her daughter are informed by Calvin Proctor, local attorney, that they have been left a vast inheritance from a recently deceased uncle, and from here on the tempo increases from the widow's reluctance to accept wholeheartedly her good fortune: a clothing charging spree by the Cooper daughter and son; Blaney's visit to the Cooper home and the momentary disrupting of their proposed engagement by Augusta Smythe, nouveau riche, and spiteful society flapper, and the wooing of the widow by Proctor, which in turn is thwarted by William Cooper and his bobby sox girl friend.

Taking an apathetic turn for the worse, the Coopers are informed that the inheritance was a mistake, their favor seeking friends turn against them, and Blaney turns the balance of fate in their favor by proposing to Katherine, is accepted, and then informs her of his wealth.

Cast Listed
 The play was directed by Muzelle Eberle and Mrs. Della Sullivan. Ella Mae Rainey, Harriet Jean Watkins, Emmet Allen, Otis D. Wright cleverly enacted the respective roles of Mrs. Cooper, Katherine Cooper, William Cooper, er. Randolph Blaney with deft familiarity. Edna Veronica Allen, Gloria V. Branham, and Horace Reeves, respectively scored in portrayals of the society flapper, retired actress-dressmaker, and a sinister man of gloom. Geneva Mae Morse's hilarious treatment of the gossip-selling bobby sox sweetheart of William Cooper literally brought the house down. William K. Brown's assignment of the Lawyer Proctor role was spotless. Juretta Hamons and Edith Hamons as the snobbish society matrons delightfully completed the balance of the experienced cast.

Miss Frances L. Drye was musical director. Properties were supervised by Betty Egan Shulls and Mary Liza Cross; make-up and costumes, Elizabeth Tucker and Rose Brown; ushers were Anne James, L. M. Huxley, Mary Daniels, and Juanita Graham.

Bishop Introduces Mess Council Idea

Something unique in the way of improvements in the Army mess—a mess council—has been established here by Army Officer Candidate class No. 8.

Suggested by Candidate Jack W. Bishop of Dallas, Tex., the new system employees observations, suggestions, and experience of all students.

Approved by the student body and Company Commander Capt. Ernest Shelton, the plan was put in operation with Candidate Dean J. Schlueter of Nebraska selected first mess officer. The council members include table leaders, who are posted at a definite table to observe and report findings at council gatherings.

During the course of the class, the various mess councils and student mess committees contributed greatly to the efficiency and smooth operation of the mess.

Lerew Praised By Candidates

Officer Candidate Paul A. Lerew, member of the Student Training Regiment's 16th Company, is according to his classmates, "one of those enviable characters who excels in everything he sets out to do."

His long list of achievements began in San Francisco's Mission high school where he was the youngest person ever to be commissioned in the ROTC unit in the history of the school. That same year he was also chosen the outstanding cadet.

Candidate Lerew finished high school in three years and was at that time a cadet captain. During his three years, however, he had found time to be active in journalism and radio work and graduated with honors and a life membership in the California Scholarship association.

Prior to entering the Army in August, 1946, the young candidate was employed by a California sporting goods company. He will have been in the service a little more than one year when he is commissioned next month.

In addition to his other accomplishments, Candidate Lerew has according to his associates, a fine singing voice and is always in demand at class parties as an entertainer.

Maj. Woodyard Named Squadron A Commander

Major William T. Woodyard has been appointed commanding officer of Squadron A, Lawson officials have announced. He succeeds Maj. Harvey E. Behrer, who left the base recently for an overseas assignment in the Pacific.

The new commanding officer is a former B-29 pilot and a veteran of the Pacific and ETO theaters. He joined the 75th Troop Carrier Squadron at Lawson field last April and later transferred to the 81st AAF Base Unit where he served as Base Recruiting Officer prior to his appointment to head Squadron A.

Two French Officers Tour Airborne Section

Lt. Col. Mansard and Capt. De Grasset, of the French Army, arrived here August 1 for a three-day tour of the Airborne Section. Capt. De Grasset has been on duty in Washington, D. C., for approximately two years as a military attaché of the French Government, and is acting as interpreter for Col. Mansard while he is in this country.

The French Army is interested in the American technique of training Airborne troops and hopes to incorporate many of the American methods in the development of French Airborne units.

U.S. Slang Costs American Soldier Valuable Watch

Language barriers have often led to many strange misunderstandings between American citizens and peoples of other countries, but Capt. Blaine E. Young, Company G, the Airborne Battalion, claims he had the most humorous experience of his career while stationed in China.

Capt. Young relates that during a "hitch" in the Orient as a sergeant he had occasion to be desperately in need of extra funds. Having failed to acquire the necessary money from his fellow soldiers, he turned to an old Chinese friend.

He finally succeeded in making the elderly gentleman understand that it was money he needed and that he would leave his wrist watch as security. Capt. Blaine, however, made the mistake of forgetting that the Chinese, although accustomed to American colloquiums, take everything literally.

The captain told his Chinese friend to "put the watch on ice" for him, not realizing what the results would be. He recalls with great humor now that, upon returning to retrieve the watch, his foreign buddy had done exactly what he thought had been asked of him. He had actually kept the wrist watch on real ice during the entire time.

Capt. Blaine smilingly reported that the watch manufacturers received a rather lengthy and very sad letter along with a greatly corroded wrist watch.

Kiwanians Hear Capt. Anderson

Capt. Major Anderson, liaison supply officer at Lawson field, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Columbus Kiwanis club August 5, at the Ralston hotel. The captain's topic was the "U. S. Armed Forces and Alaska."

Ground Radars Given To CAA By Air Forces

Radar ground control approach units loaned by the Army Air Forces to the Civil Aeronautics Administration and currently in use at Washington, New York, and Chicago municipal airports were given to CAA outright today by the AAF in a move guaranteeing continued use of the GCA units by civil aviation.

Representatives of the CAA, Air Transport Association, Aeronautical Radio, Inc., Gilliam Bros., Inc. and the Air Forces met at AAF headquarters this morning to discuss termination of the joint tests of radar GCA by civil aviation which have been conducted since the units were installed last winter. All conferees agreed that GCA, developed during the early part of World War II, had proved its value for civil aviation and would no longer be considered experimental equipment.

The original plan called for the CAA either to return the GCA units at the completion of the agreement, which terminated June 30, or to buy the equipment from the AAF. Drastic reduction of CAA's appropriation precluded the latter possibility and the CAA requested the loan arrangement be continued another year.

Due to the termination of the joint tests, the AAF's decision was to give the equipment plus spare parts sufficient for at least six months to CAA under the provisions of public law 166, which authorizes the military service to transfer equipments to CAA on a non-reimbursable basis. Under the new agreement, the GCA units will remain at the present sites and new GCA units purchased by CAA in the future will be used at other major air terminals.

In today's meeting, the CAA and the AAF agreed to confer on specifications and requirements of new GCA models being developed for the AAF, thus enabling civil aviation to obtain equipment requiring minimum modification for civil use and at the same time giving CAA the savings obtained from larger military contracts. CAA has received appropriations for only two new GCA units, but by combining the CAA's requirements with those of the AAF, the manufactured cost of each unit will be considerably reduced.

This is the first time representatives of civil and military aviation have agreed to confer on future specifications of radar GCA.

Lack of Funds

The CAA further advised that the AAF offer of 20 additional standard GCA units for civil use could not be accepted because no funds were appropriated for their operation and modification. Therefore, the units will be used instead by Army and Air Communication Service crews at AAF installations.

At the conclusion of today's meeting, Brig. Gen. Milton W. Arnold, U. S. A. retired, vice president of the Air Transport Association, complimented the AAF and CAA for their efforts in furthering the development of radar GCA for use by civil aviation. General Arnold said, "speaking for the major airlines, it is gratifying to note the efforts made by the AAF and the CAA in introducing GCA to civil aviation. The wartime use of radar GCA by the Air Forces proved its value beyond any question."

90 Supervisors To Study Accident Prevention Here

A ten-hour course in Accident Prevention Training got under way here Monday with 90 military and civilian supervisors attending the session.

Designed to provide all supervisors with complete understanding of responsibility in promoting safe working habits, the course was held in a two-hour session with Sidney Stapleton, of the Safety Director's office, Third Army Headquarters, presiding.

Approximately 65 civilian supervisors sat in on the opening session in the Civilian Training room at the Civilian Personnel building. Capt. Freeman Jones, Post safety director was appointed to direct training activities.

Scheduled to run through Aug. 15, the course will cover extensive ground in order to curb the tremendous waste in life and property at government installations.

Col. Milligan Named WAC Deputy Head

Colonel Mary A. Hallaren, director of the Women's Army Corps, today announced the appointment of Lieutenant Colonel Mary Louise Milligan as Deputy Director of the Women's Army Corps. Colonel Milligan has been designated as Executive Officer of the Procurement and Administration Branch, Personnel and Administration Division, War Department General Staff.

A member of the WAC since its inception, Colonel Milligan was commissioned a second lieutenant on completion of the course for its first class of officer candidates in August 1942. She was associated with the First WAC Training Center at Fort Des Moines as Assistant Commandant of the Training Center and later as Director of the Training Center. In March 1945 she was appointed Executive Officer of Fort Des Moines, following which she has served in the Procurement and Separations Branch, Personnel and Administration Division, War Department General Staff, until her appointment as Deputy Director.

In recognition of her service at Fort Des Moines, she was awarded the Legion of Merit. She also wears the WAAC, American Theater, and Victory ribbons.

ISD Men Promoted

Promotions were awarded last week to ten enlisted members of the Infantry School Detachment, many of which have announced. They were Pvt. Glen L. Watson, Detachment headquarters, to the grade of T-5; Pfc. Lloyd E. Watson, Detachment headquarters, to T-5; Cpl. Joseph R. C. Paveur, Company A, to sergeant; Pfc. Robert B. Bress, Company A, to corporal; Pfc. Vernon D. Force, Company A, to T-5; Sgt. George L. Ebbitt, Company B, to technical sergeant; T-4 William G. Thomas, Company H, to T-3; and Pfc. Daniel Zion, Company H, to corporal.

Slated For Discharge

T-B Billy R. Browning, first cook in the Airbase Battalion's Company A, reports to the Separation Center here today, officials announced. T-B Browning, who enrolled as an Airborne student May 15, 1946, received his wings July 11, 1947. He plans to study advertising in San Antonio, Tex. Dial WGCA-PM-84-5-Megacycle

Automatic Street Sweepers Replace Straw Brooms Here

No stones are being left unturned to keep Fort Benning "America's most complete Army post." To keep abreast of the times, the days of sweepers manning brooms has now gone with it and addition of an automatic street sweeper, the first of three to be put in service on the post.

The streets presently are manually swept by garrison prisoners and the refuse picked up by refuse wagons. The new vehicle, as well as wetting the pavement and sweeping clean the streets, will also collect the debris for delivery to the sanitary fill. This eliminates double handling of the refuse and adds greatly to the sanitary program so widely stressed by the Army.

Approximately 780 Alabama National Guard officers and enlisted men began a week's intensive training program here Monday morning under the command of Maj. Gen. John C. Persons, a Birmingham banker with a long combat tour during World War II.

Organized into the 31st Division, the National Guard unit saw the under Gen. Persons during the war years. It is composed of 204 officers and 575 enlisted men. Accompanying the Guard Unit to Benning were 16 Regular Army officers and 25 non-commissioned officers.

The most important event of this week at Fort Benning is the All-Army golf tournament that will see some 200 contestants matching their individual skills for honors in the first tourney of its type in military history.

On Tuesday morning at nine o'clock the first of many qualifying rounds began with 18 holes scheduled for that day and Wednesday. Almost every entry among the 200 or so, who will tee off in the qualifying rounds, has held some sort of honors in the links world although many of these laurels were gained on isolated courses and against competition that cannot be considered top-notch.

Nothing To Do?

It is surprising that there are people here who do not know, or try to find out, what recreational facilities are available for their use every day in the week. We were amazed to read the letter, reprinted elsewhere on this page, from a soldier who complains that there is nothing to do except get drunk either at the post exchange or in Columbus.

The letter was referred to the special service officer for his remarks, and he obliged by sending to The Bayonet editorial offices a reply, requesting that both his and the soldier's letters be published on the editorial page. The Bayonet was only too glad to comply with his wishes, for we feel that the soldier has no reason to complain about activities here.

As was pointed out in the special service officer's letter, there is entertainment of some sort practically every hour of every day in the week. There are service clubs, theaters, a gymnasium, athletics of all kinds—not only baseball—dances, parties, and amfitum. As a result we cannot understand why there should be any dull moments here at Fort Benning. On the contrary, we often find it hard to decide which activity would be more fun.

Fort Benning, as America's most complete Army post, certainly has more facilities within the reservation than most other U. S. installations of a similar size. In fact, the social life here is even fuller now than it was during the war years when USO camp shows made tours of all military posts and Hollywood stars made personal appearances almost weekly.

In addition to the many activities provided the soldier by the special service office, there are frequent passes which can be used to take the Fort Benning soldier either home, to a larger city, or even to the beach. Certainly he can't want to "do something" every night in the week. Sometimes there are evenings he can spend seeing a good movie or reading a good book. He can swim in one of the best pools in the South. If he doesn't know how to swim, he can take lessons from qualified personnel whose job it is to teach those who want to learn.

If he has any ambition to better his education, there is the vocational night school with dozens of courses taught by registered school teachers. There are hobby shops for wood work, metal work, and many other trades. In addition there is an airplane hobby shop down at Lawson field which is open to all military personnel whether ground force or air force.

No, "lonely soldier," we believe that you have no reason to complain about the recreational activities here on the post. We can't imagine why you should have any cause to write to the commanding general and ask him why the baseball season ended so early. It has not ended, actually, because the post team is still playing and there are softball games almost daily. Certainly, there are other forms of entertainment besides baseball and drinking. Surely, life is not so barren as you would have us believe.

Women are like newspapers because: They have forms. They are made up. They have hold types. They always have the last word. Back numbers are not in demand. They have a great deal of influence. They are well worth looking over. You cannot believe everything they say. They carry the news wherever they go. They are thinner than they used to be. Every man should have one of his own and not borrow one from his neighbors.

She: "Whatliva mean, your date with me was like a string of pearls!"
He: "Neckless, gal, neckless!"

Soldier: to waitlps in Petersburg, Calif. "Glorious" one of your hash. I like to live dangerously."

Chaplain's Corner.

"DOES A SOLDIER NEED GOD?"

By Chaplain Wallace M. Hale

Few men dare to phrase the question into words, but many soldiers say by their actions, words and attitudes, "Why Do I Need God?"

My answer is that a soldier needs God just like anyone else. Being in uniform does not give a soldier immunity from God's law, whether he be officer or enlisted man—if there is a God and if there is a law.

I do know, from the many thousands of soldiers I have talked with, that we need to be saved from the sins we commit against ourselves, our friends, our families, and our world. We are not ordinary animals who can endure, one longer than the other, because of blind savage power. We are blinded and maimed by our own lack of world purpose, world plan, and world attitude. We need to know God. Surely His presence and personality is written in every sunrise and sunset, every petal of every flower, every color of the tiniest wing of the beautiful butterfly, and in the eyes of every man who will look past his own outer crust.

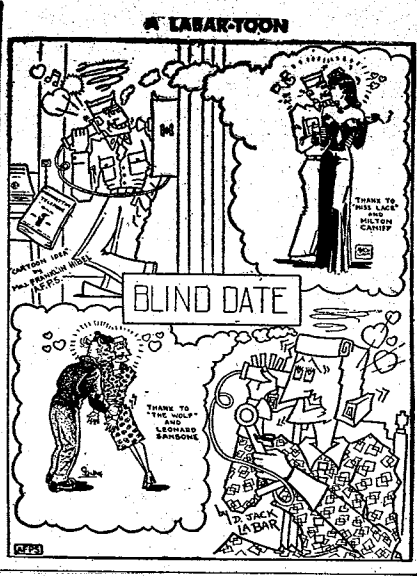

We can be as low as any animal or as high as children of the King; but we have to look up or live in our own prescribed and limited circle. When man looks down, he feels his littleness and sees something of the greatness of God. He usually hates to see something big because he doesn't like the striking that dissatisfies within his mind and heart the great thing. But if he is to save himself, his children, and his children's children, he must look up to God and imitate what he sees there.

Your Red Cross

It could have happened in Columbus. It could have happened in your home-town, but it did not. It happened in Texas City, Texas, on that fateful April 16, 1947, at 7:12 a. m.

The facts are a matter of history. Even the fact that the Red Cross was already serving by the time the emergency relief plan that has been revised and approved weeks before in a disaster preparedness conference with area Red Cross officials.

Now, Texas City did not expect a disaster. They were not warned of the coming events. The meeting of the disaster committee of the Red Cross chapter March 29 was nothing out of the ordinary. Such a meeting was a monthly occurrence in Texas City as in the other 4,000 chapters scattered throughout the United States.

Since its founding in 1881, the Red Cross has been the nation's disaster relief agency by its congressional charter. In 58 years it has assisted in 2,498 disasters at home and abroad. Since 1881 it has expended approximately 200 million dollars in disaster relief. During the past 20 years it has served 136 disasters annually. Disasters occur in all the states. No country or state is immune.

Every community has a disaster plan to go into effect immediately when a disaster strikes. Subcommittees charged with the following responsibilities are permanently set up to act independently and cooperatively: survey, rescue, medical aid, food, shelter, clothing, transportation and communication, and registration and information.

Nor does the Red Cross cease its interest in the community once the disaster is over, for then comes the all-important job of rehabilitation on the basis of need to families affected by the disaster. It will be well to remember that if disaster strikes in your community, the Red Cross will be on hand to assist your community. It will also be well to remember that the Fort Benning Red Cross chapter, in case of disaster in your community, will be able to get information concerning your relatives in a disaster area.

Letter Box

August 6, 1947.
Commanding Officer, Fort Benning, Ga.
Dear Sir: I believe the Baseball League ended too soon. With no sports, we have but few places to go to movies, P. X. and get drunk or Columbus and get drunk.

Why couldn't the league have lasted through August? Thank you.

Yours truly,
Lonely Soldier.

Editor's Note: This letter was referred to Col. Norman M. Winn, Infantry Center special service officer, and he submitted the following reply to the anonymous soldier. As a rule, The Bayonet does not print replies to unsigned letters, but we feel that the reply forwarded by Col. Winn is so deserving of attention that we are using this space to pass it along to all our readers.

August 11, 1947
Dear Lonely Soldier: Your letter was referred to this office for information. Not knowing your name or organization we are forced to take this method of making our reply.

You state the baseball league ended too soon. For your enlightenment there were 141 baseball games played at this station to August 6, 1947. The Post baseball team is now playing an average of four games a week at Gowdy field.

We most sincerely regret that you feel there are insufficient recreational activities provided for your entertainment at this Post. At present due to seasonal conditions, we are

Air Maneuvers Slated At Lawson During October

Tactical Air Command will present "Operation Combine" a 31-day air-ground combat cooperation maneuver, at Lawson field in October, base officials learned last week.

An advance echelon of Ninth Air Force headquarters, who will direct the maneuver, is scheduled to arrive at Lawson field September 1, to begin laying the ground work for the month-long exercise which will be attended by service school personnel from every branch of the armed forces.

Demonstrating the latest AAF techniques and developments in tactical cooperation with ground units, the maneuver will be designed after the Air indoctrination Course staged at Lawson field last spring by TAC for over 2,000 students and foreign observers.

Air-Ground Team

In displaying the full capabilities of aerial cooperation to ground personnel and providing valuable tactical air training for participating air units, the maneuver will accomplish a two-fold purpose, Air Force officials said. Among the AAF units taking part in the demonstrations will be the following:

- The 47th Bomb Group, Biggs Field, Texas; one squadron of the First Fighter Group, March Field, California; 20th Fighter Group, Shaw Field, South Carolina; 363rd Photo Reconnaissance Group and 450th Air Service Group at Lawson field, Virginia; 502nd Tactical Control Group and 934th Signal Battalion, Greenville, South Carolina; 216th Troop Carrier Group, Pope Field, North Carolina; 40th Motor Transport Squadron and the 863rd Chemical Company.
- Part of the First Fighter Group will be based at Robbins field, Ga., along with aircraft and equipment of the 363rd Reconnaissance Group. The 47th Bomb Group and 502nd Tactical Control Group will be based at Lawson field during the maneuver.

Airborne troops for the demonstration will be provided by the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C.

The TAC-sponsored maneuver will be directed by Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, commanding general of Ninth Air Force and Brig. Gen. J. V. Crabb, Ninth Air Force deputy commander. Maj. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, TAC commander, will supervise the presentation.

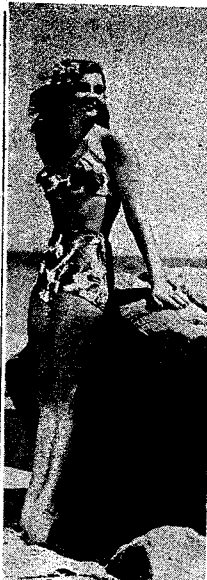

Stressing training under simulated combat conditions, graphic air cooperation maneuvers will be directed from a giant control center composed of a series of mobile trailers set up at Lawson field. Advanced "Combat" headquarters is scheduled to be completely set up by September 15 and two full scale practice demonstrations will be held late next month. The main maneuver in October will consist of five separate air-ground demonstrations. Each presentation will consist of the following:

1. Reconnaissance, intelligence lectures, model and equipment displays, planning conferences for joint operations center; and a tour of advance headquarters.
2. A tactical air demonstration, employing fighter planes, bombers, jet-propelled reconnaissance aircraft and troop carrying planes and gliders.

Each individual presentation will come to a close with the aerial demonstration which will include the following:

- FP-60 jet-propelled reconnaissance flights, low and high level bombing by A-26s, rocket attacks, smoke bombing, laying of smoke screens, dive bombing, a glider and drop, incendiary bombing, and resupply and evacuation of wounded.

Two very cute nurses, slipping in late, two inmates just going out. "Shh, we're coming in after hours," said one of the nurses. Replied an inmate: "Think nothing of it. We're going out after ours."

Local Winners Of Pix Contest To Get Prizes

Prizes have been announced for photographs submitted by local entries in the Army-wide photography contest which is now under way. No entries will be accepted after the deadline October 12, according to Lt. Col. Tito G. Moccitelli, in charge of post competition.

A first prize of ten dollars will be awarded to the local winner in each category. Second prize in each category will receive five dollars. Winning entries will be entered in the Third Army Contest, prizes for which will be announced later.

The winning entries from the Third Army contest will in turn be entered in the War Department competition, with a host of grand prizes going to the photos selected as the best.

All military personnel are eligible for the contest, with only amateur photographs entered in the competition. The use of Signal Corps material and equipment which is not normally available for troop use is prohibited.

Conservation Board Seeks To Reduce Utility Consumption

Emphasis was placed on the conservation of water and electricity at the meeting of the Conservation Board held Monday at the Post Engineer's office.

With Lt. Col. Lyle J. Fitzpatrick presiding in the absence of Col. Harold A. Stewart, chairman, the board also stressed the follow up and compliance of water conservation measures by the Provost Marshal's office.

Continued efforts are also being made to conserve the use of government transportation and gasoline.

Post Theater Guide

DEEP VALLEY (tragedy) with Ida Lupino, Dane Clark, and Wayne Morris. A lonely girl, her estranged parents, an escaped convict, and a sheriff's posse are interwoven into a tragic love affair.

SLAVE GIRL (technicolor adventure comedy) with Yvonne De Carlo, George Brent, and Albert Dekker. Made strictly for laughs, this elaborate technicolor production of desert shikies, beautiful dancing girls, dashing heroes, and high adventure, introduces the new Personality Kid—Humpty the camel! Recommended for family.

375 Join AAF At Lawson Field

A total of 375 men joined the Army Air Forces at Lawson field in July. Capt. James Sever, base recruiting officer, has announced.

The high recruiting record gave the base the lead over 13 Tactical Air Command recruiting bases all over the country for the second consecutive month, officials said. Lawson field gained the lead in June when 319 men were sworn in.

Men signing up last month included former members of the Air Forces, Army, Navy, and Marines as well as 1947 high school graduates signing up for their first hitch. Most of the men enlisting at Lawson field are residents of Georgia and Alabama, according to Capt. Sever.

The base transfers enlistees to the Air Forces Training Center at San Antonio, Tex., for basic training and after 18 weeks there they are transferred to one of the AAF training schools. Former service men signing up at Lawson field are given assignments with Tactical Air Command bases.

Miss Ross will become the bride of Major Robert James McDonald at a ceremony to be performed in the Main Post chapel Aug. 16. Several recent social events have honored the bride-to-be.

Bride-Elect Feted At Shower Party

Miss Betsy Ross, bride-elect, was honored at a delightful shower Friday night given by Miss Mary Frances Kelley at her home in Columbia.

Miss Ross, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Fay Ross, is to be married on Aug. 19 to Maj. Robert James McDonald.

Rooms open to the guests were decorated with red radiances roses and other summer flowers. Refreshments were served and the honoree was presented with linen and lingerie shower gifts.

Attending the party were the honoree, Mrs. Fay Ross, Miss Ruth Ross, Mrs. Ralph Flynn, Miss Nancy McDonough, Miss Frances Hug, Mrs. J. A. Radcliff, Mrs. Fred Harris, Mrs. Frank Kidler and Miss Connie Oesth.

On Saturday Mrs. Flynn and Miss McDonough complimented Miss Ross with a luncheon at the Officers' club.

The long table was decorated with pink roses in a silver bowl as the centerpiece and tapers lit with white ribbon.

Guests for the afternoon event were the honoree, Mrs. Ross, Miss Ruth Ross, Miss Oesth, Miss Hug, Miss Kelley, Mrs. Wiley O'Mohundrow, Mrs. James McDonough, Mrs. Radcliff and Mrs. J. T. Flynn.

Capt. John Kelleher, legal officer, will look after the Officers' club until August 28, while Lt. Fern, club officer, enjoys his leave in Florida. Lawson golf fans are rooting (silently, of course) for Lt. C. E. Maloney and Cpl. E. E. Yow, from the base, who are playing for TAC in the Army Championship Golf tourney at the post.

Opal Hankins and Bertha Williams, civilian personnel section, and May Figoit, Base information, left Friday for a two-week vacation in Tennessee. Lt. Hershel Fansler, who recently transferred to Greenville, S. C., dropped in a line recently and asked to be remembered to all his friends. He reports he has been pretty busy getting settled in his new home and making preparations for junior's arrival next month. Horace Tillis, civilian personnel, and Mrs. Tillis, went to Cuba last month for their vacation. Warren is back on the job at Base operation, after a short vacation.

S-Sgt. Horace Williams and Sgt. Arthur Gilhooley, recruiting team, are selling their wares in Alabama this week. They are scheduled to show the AAF movie "Appointment in Tokyo" in the Alexandria, Ala. City Hall tomorrow. A corporal from Squadron 4 reports that he had to take an emergency furlough last week to dig his house out of the sand. It seems he built his domicile at the foot of a Georgia hill and every time it rains his home begins to disappear.

Patrick Scott Bench
Capt. and Mrs. Herbert G. Bench announce the birth of a son, Patrick Scott, on August 10. Capt. Bench was the 1947 Doughboy baseball coach.

Golf Participants Feted At Supper In Polo Hunt Club

To honor the participants in the Army Championship Golf Tournament an informal stag "get-together" and buffet supper was held at the Polo Hunt Club Tuesday evening. Arrangements for the delightful event were in charge of the Golf Tournament committee headed by Lt. Col. R. Myers.

Guests invited to the affair by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel were Brig. Gen. W. P. Sheppard, Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, Col. J. C. Blizard, Col. Daniel E. Buckland, Col. Walter M. Johnson, Col. Club Patio Scene Of Dinner Party

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lloyd Ramsey and Lt. Col. and Mrs. D. A. King were co-hosts to a group of their friends at a formal dinner party at the Officers' club Saturday evening. The event was a farewell party for the Kings who are leaving the post for Washington D. C. where Col. King will attend Army Industrial College. Col. King has been an instructor at the Infantry School for the past year. Tables were placed in the form of a horseshoe and were decorated with zinnias in crystal bowls and green tapers in crystal candelabra. Cocktails were served before dinner and later in the evening dancing was enjoyed on the club patio.

Boys Hosts At Dinner

To honor their houseguests, Mrs. Joe Short and Mrs. R. Rodriguez of Jasper, Ala., Col. and Mrs. Logan B. Bell held a formal dinner party at the Officers' club Saturday evening. A beautiful bouquet of summer flowers was used as a centerpiece for the table. Cocktails were served earlier in the evening. Guests were the honorees, Col. and Mrs. Leon Boineau, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard D. Maj, and Mrs. Maurice Hathaway and Maj. H. G. Peabody.

ORC In indoctrination Class Honored At Reception Here

An outstanding social event this week was the informal reception given by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel for ORC indoctrination Class No. 5 at the Officers' club Monday night. The guest list included the honorees and their wives, all regimental commanders in the 31st Division, and the special guests invited by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Mrs. O'Daniel.

The guest list included. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. W. P. Sheppard, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. R. E. Jenkins, Maj. Gen. F. L. Parks, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. A. G. Paxton, Maj. Gen. John C. Persons, Col. and Mrs. J. C. Sand Hill Area Called 'Post Within A Post'

By ALYSEN E. WISE

Reactivated here at Fort Benning during the 1946 spring season, the 25th Infantry and its attached 890th Field Artillery, have constantly added to and improved their Sand Hill installation to such a degree that it is—proverbially—a post within a post.

Activities are wide and varied among the Sand Hill units. Since late last fall, the Second Battalion, 25th Infantry, and the 890th have been conducting problems for School Troops. Bolstered with a large number of World War II battle-hardened vets, who saw action in all theaters, commissioned and enlisted members, as a result of their keen interest and inspiring efforts, have won for their outfits widespread recognition.

Sports Record

Seasonal sports have been sponsored with tremendously successful results. As an honorary member of the Southeastern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference which is maintained by outstanding Negro universities and colleges in seven states, the 25th scored medium successes during last year's grid season, had one of the most outstanding court quintets, during the basketball season, and last spring had the top nine during the conference diamond sessions.

Instrumental in the pleasing results of the commanding officer's morale program is the Regimental Athletic and Recreation section, which planned and completed the 3,000-seat field house, nine-hole golf course; huge outdoor amphitheater; six alley bowling emporium; 5,500-seat baseball stadium with the very latest in lighting systems for night contests; regal photo lab for official work and camera hobbyists; special sports fields for groups up to bat-

Other Activities

Sand Hill has two chapels and three chaplains. Maj. John A. DeVeaux, Capt. Lewis M. Durden, and Capt. Theodore R. Owens, interdenominational services prevail. Service Club No. 2 is supervised by Mrs. Katie L. Trent and a capable staff of enlisted assistants. Dances, parties, both inside and on the patio, and musicals, feature well-attended programs. Library No. 2 is under the direction of Mrs. Ethie J. Dorsey. This collection of books and periodicals. Theater No. 7 purveys Hollywood's latest to avid fans. Miss Margaret Slaughter is in charge of the guest house.

Strategically located post exchanges, barber shops, cleaning establishments, a gas station, and a fire house complete the area's facilities. From early morn until 11 p. m. a post bus provides transportation on an hourly schedule. After duty hours, and with a special schedule maintained for Wednesdays, Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, there is continual bus service between Sand Hill and Columbus.

The little post within a post is the scene of many visiting friends of the Sand Hill personnel. In fact, it has everything to offer on a comparative scale that any Army installation affords.

GI Humor

A singer, giving a rendition of "My Old Kentucky Home," noticed a man in the audience weeping copiously. Afterward, he sought him out.

"I noticed, sir," he said, "that you seemed very sentimental during my song. Are you a Kentuckian?"

"No, madam," he replied. "I'm a musician."

Judge: "Your profession?"

Witness: "Agricultural expert."

"What was your father?"

"A farmer."

"And your grandfather?"

"A peasant."

On the morning of a world series game an office boy braced his boss and started "Sir, my grandmother . . . The boss caught him short.

"Oh, come now, son, you don't think you are going to get away with that old chestnut about your grandmother having died?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. "She's home on furlough."

A salesman in a rustic district noted that his prospect's grocery was stocked with nothing but salt.

"Him," he said, "You must sell lots of salt."

"Nah," replied the groceryman, "I don't sell no salt hardly at all. But the guy who sells it to me—HE sells lots of salt."

Doughs Capture Pair From Bragg

325th Glidermen Prove No Match For Benning Nine

The 325th Glider Infantry proved no match for the hard-bitting Dough boys here at Gowdy field over the week end as the Benchemen thoroughly trounced the North Carolinians in a two-game series, 12-3 and 4-0, to stretch their wins to eight in nine starts.

Frank Kruger whitewashed the troopers from Fort Bragg Saturday night by a score of 12-3, allowing only five hits and fanning eight Bragg batters. Although the Doughs collected only eight hits off the 325th pitchers, Bragg errors paved the way for the vicious onslaught that the Doughboys put on for some 800 anxious spectators, who watched the Doughs score in every inning but the ninth.

Actually Doughboy batters had very little chance to show off their hitting skill in the ball game since both Bragg pitchers were too busy walking the eager Doughboys. Tom Walker and Johnson, starter and relief hitter respectively, collaborated for 12 free trips to first. Gallagher caught both mounds-hard singles in his four times at the plate. "Lefty" McGowan got credit for the longest sweat for a hit when he connected for a triple that nearly put a hole in the right field fence.

Boland Hurlis Shutout Sunday's game was a much different story as the Doughboys put all they had into helping Bo Boland win their Doughboy shut-out of the season. Boland held complete mastery of the mound from start to finish allowing only three singles and striking out six Bragg hitters. He also contributed to the Doughboy attack with a three bagger in the seventh.

Terry Glenns Triple It was in the second frame that the Doughs scored first. Ralph Terry led off with a triple that sent the left fielder running around in circles, but was tagged at home as he attempted a steal. Eddie Bonnie had taken first on a walk. Lauve drew another stroller, and the bases were loaded as Shiver made first on Smith's error. Bonair scored as Boland reached first on a miscue by Handker, trooper third sacker, while two more Doughboy markers were made on a fielder's choice and a bad throw home. The final tally came in the seventh when McGowan circled the bases on a host of wild throws by bewildered opponents.

Early in the fifth, Jupiter Plutius had an inning, but it may have been a good thing in as much as the 325th looked as though they would fare well with some cooling off. However, the deluge stopped temporarily, and the game was resumed only to be completely rained out in the seventh.

Messenger went the distance for Bragg, giving up five scattered hits, but miscues by his teammates resulted in disaster for the big right hander.

Terry led the field in Sunday's tilt with a triple and a double while Boland banged out another triple for the Doughs. Both Burt and Burnett tagged Messenger for singles.

Haltner collected two of his team hits to take whatever honors there were left for the 325th from Fort Bragg.

Mother: "Now before you get out over that young man, I want you to be sure he is always kind."

Daughter: "Oh, I'm sure he is. I heard him say he put his dirt on a horse that was scratched."

Doughs Defeat Thomaston Nine

A highly inspired Doughboy team took the field Wednesday night at Thomaston, battering two pitchers for seven hits, and a 6-0 decision over Thomaston Mills. This victory evened the count in the three-game series between the two teams.

The Benchemen were a far better looking team than the club that went down before the Millers a week ago 5-8. Committing but two errors, the Doughboys capitalized on every break that happened to come their way.

Doughs Score First Bob Kinard drew first blood when he slugged a sizzling triple into center field in the first inning, taking third on Burt's slunder. Shiver made first on a single into left field scoring Kinard. It was a quiet second inning for the Doughs, but the Thomaston starter, retired Terry, Lauve and Gallagher in that order. George Dickson led off with a walk. George Dickson led off with a walk. George Dickson led off with a walk. George Dickson led off with a walk.

Watts across the plate for the second Benning tally, Dickson scarcely relaxed his pumping legs when Burt sliced a single into center field, sending him home.

Thomaston monopolized on four singles, and two Dough errors, and scoring single runs in each of the first three innings. At that point field ball game was all tied up at three-all.

Rally In Fifth George Dickson took bat in hand as lead off man in the fifth, and proceeded to hammer a vicious single into center field. But Bob Kinard was not finished for the evening as he slammed his second double of the night deep into left field sending Dickson on to third while he viewed the bewildered Millers from second base.

Sanders, Thomaston left fielder, overthrew third base and Dickson trotted home on his error. Ken Watts drew another walk, reaching second on Farker's error. It was on Burt's pop-single that the two remaining Doughboy runs were tallied.

Terry Saves Rally It looked as though the Thomaston boys were going to take a quick lead in the opening frame, but the accurate arm of Ralph Terry prevented such an event.

With the bases loaded, and two outs, Sanders knocked a single over the mound to advance Martin home. Carter, too, was rounding third on his way for the home sack, when Terry hurled a button nose throw to Tommy Gallagher, who tagged Carter inches before he reached past dirt.

Big Ken Watts scattered six Thomaston hits for his third straight win of the season. He also scored two of the Dough runs. He is now the leading hurler in the Benning line-up and has shown:

Burt Raps Homer For Eighth Victory

By RALPH GREENE
Dick Gerhart, ace Doughboy right-hander, limited Thomaston Mills to six hits Friday night as the Doughs went on to drub the Millers on eleven hits 7-4 at Thomaston.

Although the field was wet, the Doughs played the finest game to date this season, fielding superbly, and committing but one miscue in the entire nine innings of play.

Woolie Burt led the Doughboys in the first and second, Thomaston thought it best to replace the lifeless left-hander, and Flowers took over the hill duties. From that point on the game was close, for the Doughs were only able to tag Flowers for four hits which were well enough scattered to prevent any more score in the game.

Gerhart pitched his finest game of the year in Thomaston Friday night striking out six Miller batters and collecting two important singles for himself. It was Gerhart's second win of the season. Woolie Burt led the Doughboys eleven hit onslaught with his home run and one single driving in four runs. Bob Kinard slapped a pair of doubles, while Burnett was good for one two-bagger and a single. Both Forbes and Gerhart connected for twin singles.

In winning this game the Doughs clinched a three game series from Thomaston by a count of two-to-one. The Millers edged the first hit by a score of 9-8 last week here at Gowdy Field.

But Burt had entirely different ideas for Lefty Sweat. As a high inside pitch neared the plate, Burt leaned forward with his bat high, sending the hapless spheroid sailing over the fence and scoring for a home run. Before Burt had rounded the diamond, three more Dough runs were in as a result of his four bagger. Burnett doubled into center field, scoring easily on Kinard's second two-bagger of the ball game.

Thomaston came back in the bottom of the second to score three runs on singles by Sanders, Cochran, and a long triple by Turner. Two runs were scored on Turner's triple, and he tallied on Gerhart's low pitch to first. After this inning the Millers were kept pretty well in check, and scored but one more time in the six-inning Sanders made first on a fielder's choice and was scored on Cochran's triple into the center field score-board.

After the flurry of Dough runs great control and ease in each of his three mound performances, and will probably return to the hill to meet Fort Bragg next week.

After six innings of play the elements in the form of a heavy downpour forced the game to a premature end.

Butch Kendrick Named Benning Gridiron Coach

The appointment of Captain Robert "Butch" Kendrick as coach of the 1947-48 Doughboy football team was announced by the Post Athletic and Recreation Department Saturday.

Captain Kendrick is an alumnus of Louisiana State University where he graduated in 1940 after playing four years of college football. He has a long record of athletic accomplishments, having participated in sports from the time he was in high school.

Entering the Army in January, 1942, Captain Kendrick was assigned to the 513th Parachute Battalion, later going overseas with the outfit. While the 513th was in Europe, Captain Kendrick coached the battalion football team.

Although there are only two remaining members of last year's team, Bob Schertz, for back and Carl Robinson, guard, Captain Kendrick takes an optimistic viewpoint on the coming season. To quote the new coach, "Good prospects, and I think we'll have a fine team."

First call for football practice is slated for August 15, when those men who have been contacted will report for play. Regular practice for any and all men who have played football or are interested will be August 18. Captain Kendrick has made it explicit that he wants everybody who has ever had any football experience to turn out.

CAPT. ROBERT "BUTCH" KENDRICK

Captain Kendrick can be contacted at the office formerly occupied by the Post Safety officer at the northeast corner of Doughboy stadium.

No other coaches have been named to date.

Former Mercer End Appointed Assistant To Football Coach

S-Sgt. Pete Demetres has been named to assist Captain Robert "Butch" Kendrick in the coaching of the 1947-48 Doughboy grid team.

Sgt. Demetres attended Mercer university, where he played varsity end from 1934-37, after which he took up duties coaching at Tech High in Atlanta under the direction of Alan Shi. He also acted as line coach at Wright Military Academy in Mobile, Ala., in 1940-41.

Entering the Army in January, 1942, Demetres attended Officer Candidate School and was commissioned a second lieutenant April 1, 1943.

Later he was assigned to the 196th Field Artillery Battalion and served with this outfit through five European campaigns receiving decorations for meritorious service overseas.

He was discharged a first lieutenant and recently re-enlisted as staff sergeant.

Enrolls At Tech

Pfc. Phil Talley, Company B, Airborne Battalion, who played guard for the 1946 Doughboy eleven, will be discharged Aug. 18 and will report to Georgia School of Technology Aug. 20 to begin his college practice.

A native of Macon, Ga., Talley, played for two years with Lanier High school there, and in 1944 was selected guard on the G.I.A.A. second team. He entered Tech in 1945 and saw action with the freshman team.

Football Practice Begins August 15

With the month of August at the midway mark, the scent of football is beginning to tickle the nostrils of all interested parties.

Official practice will commence August 15, when the locker rooms will be opened to issue equipment, Captain Kendrick said. The locker rooms will be open all day Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, and all ball players are urged to draw uniforms at this time in order that the team will be equipped and ready for full practice Monday.

For those in the Basic Class, a practice will be conducted as night so that those men will have a chance to play ball.

The Doughs will play a ten game schedule this year with the season's opener with the Cherry Point Marines at Cherry Point, N. C. All but four games will be played here at Doughboy stadium.

Midget Auto Races Return To Idle Hour Park Tonight

The "speed demons of the Idle Hour track, both midget and cycle racers and midget and cycle racers and midget and cycle racers will be back after a week's absence. The motorcycle riders will occupy the spotlight tonight, while the gas-bagies battle for honors tomorrow night at the Phoenix City race.

Recent rains will provide new hazards for both racers, but while times may be slower, there will be added thrills. Rusk and Robyn Rogers, the two Columbus motorcycle racers, are scheduled to give outsiders plenty of competition, even though the Atlanta stars are burning for revenge.

Several new drivers have said they will be on hand tonight, but such stars as Paul Goins, Howard Hardy, D. C. Anderson, Norm Schroeder, Rusk, Rogers, and the old stars can provide plenty of entertainment once they take the track.

The regular program of events will be held, while the midget auto racing will follow the same lines as usual.

The small cars have had a week to tune up motors and Bud Swanson has reported his speedy U-2 will be able to go at top speed. Swanson had it wide open in the qualifying tests here two weeks ago, but developed motor trouble and could not get the machine to work in the actual races.

New owners and new drivers have provided added thrills to the Friday midget car races and predicting victories is as tough as they come. "It used to be that Bob Johnson could be favored to sweep the field, but now Swanson, Jimmy Reed, Hank Blalock, and Leroy Hicks all have staunch followers.

In fact, every race looks like a wide open event.

Post Pistol Team Competes In Match

A five-man team representing Fort Benning, left for Camp Perry, Ohio, last Saturday to compete in the 67th Annual National Rifle Association's pistol match which is to be held Aug. 14-15.

Headed by Capt. Frank Palmer of the Provost Marshal's office, coach and captain, the team is comprised of Capt. Frank Graham, Capt. Jesse Halprin, M-Sgt. Joseph Galle, M-Sgt. Curtis Fryman, and 1-Sgt. Russell A. Stow.

Sporting an average of 242, the team will compete with hundreds of other crackshots in the Armed Services division.

Reds Defeat R And R

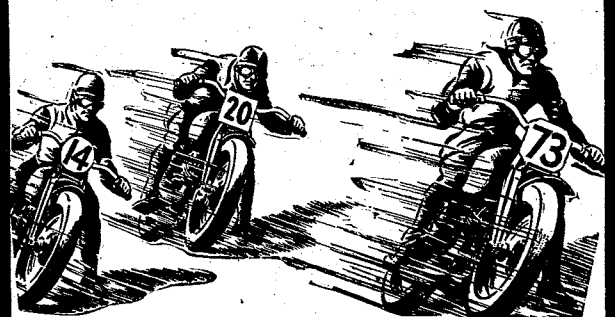

Tuesday night August 5, the 501st Airborne Battalion defeated the R and R Club 9-1 at Rose Hill Park. Kurtz and Baker were the big stars for the Reds, each getting two hits including a homer. Smith pitched a one-hot game for the Reds. Wyatt was the losing pitcher for the R and R Club.

BARNSTORMERS LOSE

The Burns Studio team ended their softball season by defeating the 37th Infantry Barnstormers, 8-1 at Wildwood Park Tuesday night, Aug. 5. This was their first win of the season.

Adamzay honored for the Barnstormers in the third for only run of the game. The Studio boys snagged the lead in the first run. They again scored in the second and third respectively.

Second Guessing

BY RALEIGH GREENE

A famous Civil War general, Forrest, by name, is quoted as saying, "Get there fustest with the mostest." This pithy adage is certainly applicable to the fast pace that the Doughboys have been setting on the ball diamond this season. The Benchesmen have now copped eight wins in nine starts, losing only to Thomaston in the first game of a three-game series 9-8, a series that the Doughs went on to take with a two-one count.

It is safe, and most certainly in order, to predict that the Benning baseball team will be out on top this season. The Doughs started their home games and stand here at Gowdy field last Saturday night when they encountered the 2nd Georgia Infantry from Fort Bragg in a two-game series. There is little need to go into much detail on that pair of bits, for as most of us remember, the Doughs humbled the troopers twice by scores of 12-3 and 4-0. Seven games remain to be played before the team leaves for a road trip that will carry them from South Carolina to Mississippi.

Bo Boland pitched the first Benning shutout of the year against the 24th Sunday afternoon, and those who saw the game will agree that he did more than an admirable job. The boys from Bragg were only able to tag the cool right-hander for three scattered singles, while the Dough fielders backed him up superbly to insure the shutout victory.

Perhaps the closest game the Doughs have played this season was against Thomaston Mills last Friday night, when the Benning nine captured a 1-4 decision from the Millers. Dough hits were smoking in the first two innings during which time all seven runs were tallied. It was in the big second frame that Woodie Burt plouted his first four-bagger of the season with two aboard.

Dick Gerhart got back in his usual style that night, limiting the Millers to six hits and striking out six Thomaston batters. But the Millers were determined to win that game and relieve Sweet, back-starter, after he gave up seven hits with an equal number of runs. Flowers, Sweet's replacement, kept the Doughs pretty well in check as the Millers began to sneak a run in here and there. It was in the fifth that Thomaston saved what appeared to be a rally, but the accurate arm of Ralph Terry saved the day. As men were scurrying for home, Terry let fly a button-nose throw that dropped squarely on the plate making it a simple matter for Gallagher to tag the would-be runner.

No one will contradict the statement that a winning ball club regardless of the sport, must have good material and the will to win. The Benning Dough baseball team fortunately is blessed with both these requisites. However, if a team is appreciated and supported by those for whom that team plays doesn't it seem logical that that club will excel even its normal capabilities?

The reference here is to the skimpy attendance that has been coming out for the dough games here on the Post. But there are those who quite agree with the opening lines of this paragraph, and it gives me much satisfaction to mention the name of S/Sgt. James F. Way, of the Airborne Battalion, who has been at every ball game here and even some that have been played away.

As your writer sits in the press box each night the team talk to another opponent, he wishfully hopes that there will be more men like Sgt. Way at the next night's tilt. His voice has belloyed on practically every play the Doughs have executed, and there is little doubt that such support goes a long way in giving the team an incentive to win. So once in awhile deny yourself of that cooling drink or the little trick in town, and come out to give the Doughs a little personal boost.

Well, the scent of football is again in the air, and word comes that Capt. Kendrick is expecting a fine team this season. We certainly hope so after witnessing the All Service Team of 1946, which incidentally was the Fort Benning team. Although such names as John Green, Dick Pitzer and a host of others will be absent from the line-up this year, we have no doubt that material here on the Post will compensate entirely for their loss. Two from last year will again romp the grid turf this fall. Carl Robinson and Bob Seibert, who were Dough stand-outs in last year's championship team. We'll be looking forward to seeing them again.

Did you know that the long beaked-stork made a trip to Capt. and Mrs. Beech's home last Sunday? Yep, the Doughboy baseball coach and his wife became the proud paler and mater of a six-pound and 15-ounce baby boy. His new name is Patrick Scott, but we all hope the youngster will be affectionately called "Scotty."

Here's a little story of real team spirit. "Boney" Bonair, shortstop on the Benning nine, extended his enlistment to three years in order to play football with the Doughboys this season. That's what is called true love for "ye olde alma all the way."

If anyone really wants to enjoy himself this week, the All Army Golf Tournament, being held at the Officer's club course, is the best place to go. There were so many applications for the tourney that some names had to be dropped much to the distress of all.

Teams and individuals from all over the world will compete for honors in the first tournament of its kind in military history. Privates will be matching their skill with generals in the meet with over 200 contestants teeing off Tuesday morning in the first of qualifying rounds. The final match will be played Sunday after which Lt. Gen. Guilem will make the presentations and awards.

We haven't had a team threaten to walk off the ball field all week. Looks as though opponents are coming to the conclusion that the Doughboys are winning the ball games—not the umpires, and the little boys that sell the peanuts.

- (AFPS)—1. If you have been following football in recent seasons you must know that Tom Lombardo, Arnold Tucker and Doug Kenna have something in common. What is it?
2. What position did Yankee outfield star Johnny Lindell play when he first entered the majors?
3. Currently, one of the top money-winners in American golf is a foreigner. Who is he and where is he from?
4. Once an outstanding National League pitcher and more recently a manager in the same loop, he has the same last name as one of the early heavyweight boxing champions. Who is he?
5. Everyone knows that most of the passes the immortal Don Hutson caught while playing professional football were thrown by Cecil Isbell and Arnie Herber. But who made Don his target when the great end was a star at Alabama?

- ANSWERS:
- All three were Army quarterbacks during the Davis-Biancard years.
 - Fitcher.
 - Bobby Locke of South Africa.
 - Fred Fitzsimmons, former Giant and Dodger ace and for a brief spell, the manager of the Phillies. The boxer in question would be "Rudy Robert" Fitzsimmons.
 - Dixie Howell. The two gained their greatest fame when Bammy upset Stanford in the Rose Bowl of 1935.

Airborne Still In Lead As ISD Dumps 501st

The Airborne Battalion remains the only team this week which can boast an undefeated record, as it downed the 37th Infantry last Friday 4-2, stretching its winning streak to four straight.

Probably the most significant game of last week's league play was the ISD's 10-1 rout of the 501st Parachute Battalion, which had been topping the league since the inauguration of the Post softball loop last month. Wyatt hurled effectively against the Main Post troopers, while Scallorn banged out a pair of four baggers, aiding considerably in the important victory.

Although the ISD is still behind the 501st, since it has played fewer games, the detachment boys are fast becoming a serious threat for loop honors, and may very well turn the tide their way before the league play comes to an end.

While the 37th Infantry, 78th Engineers, and the 38th Medical Group split games last week, the 328th Ordnance captured a pair of wins to climb up to the first division in loop standings. The 328th took a forfeit from the First Battalion, STR, 7-0, and banged out 10 hits to humble the 78th Engineers 8-5. The 78th also won on a forfeit from the First Battalion, STR, while the 30th Medical group fell victim of a 3-2 edging by the 501st, later taking a forfeit from the 294th Transportation Battalion.

The 83rd Field Artillery went deeper into the hole with a 7-2

Doughs' Hitting Remains High

Although Doughboy bats have tumbled down in the past four games, the team average remains at a high point. The Benchmen are now slugging at a .350 pace which is good in anybody's ball club.

Dick Gerhart, ace righthander, leads the Doughs with an even .500, while "Blondy" Burnett has collected the most hits totaling 17 in seven games. "Lesty" McGowan has nine runs batted in to his credit with Kinard leading in runs scored.

The following are the individual

we are only able to furnish the following extra-curricular activities in addition to baseball. Perhaps you can find some congenial method of passing idle time from among the following:

Softball league games average 9 games per week, the Post swimming team is going full swing, the Post football squad is working out daily with good men competing for various positions, and soon to start is basketball and boxing. There are three libraries well stocked with books of every description: new books, magazines, and periodicals. A most competent, congenial, and willing staff will assist you in selecting reading matter for pleasure, recommend reference texts if you want to further your education, or even help plan your lessons if you are interested in "Self-Course." The three service clubs offer at least one dance each week, with girls furnished—nice girls, too. At the clubs you will find refreshments, piano lessons, voice recordings, dance lessons, games, radios, phonographs with latest records, pool tables, ping pong, musical instruments, and a friendly hostess to help you plan your recreation.

The USO in Columbus offers you about the same facilities as the Service Clubs. In addition, picnics are scheduled by the USO, to nearby lakes and mountains, and we furnish the transportation for your convenience. The Army-Navy Club in Columbus welcomes you to participate in their recreational program.

Five theaters show every evening, plus matinees featuring the latest films. The gymnasium is open daily with various types of equipment available for your convenience in getting a workout. Fishing in well stocked ponds can be had on your free time. Tennis and handball courts are available every day of the week. Swimming pools are open daily. The Hobby Shop, well equipped with power tools and materials, is open from 1 p. m. to 9 p. m., Tuesday through Saturdays, for all military personnel.

This office was not aware of any lack of entertainment at this post and if you will but reveal your identity and present us with constructive criticism, we shall be too glad to give you full cooperation and consideration in passing your lonely hours.

We are well aware of the fact that our program, perhaps, was not well publicized as it should be, however, in the future, we shall make every effort to further advertise our programs.

It is our hope that you and other "Lonely Soldiers" will take full advantage of what is being offered.

Parade Honors Colonel Harrell

A special parade and ceremony honoring Lt. Col. Ben Harrell, School Troops command officer who has transferred to the Academic Department, were held last Saturday at Stillwell Field.

Colonel Harrell, who arrived at Fort Benning in December 1945 and took over command of School Troops in September 1946, will be replaced by Charles H. Royce.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy, Colonel Harrell served with the Fifth Army in Italy and with the Third Division in Africa, Sicily and France.

Participating in the African, Sicily, Anzio, Rhinoceros and Southern France campaigns, Colonel Harrell amassed ten battle stars and a series of medals and decorations. Among the awards received by the colonel were the Silver Star, Bronze Star with cluster, Legion of Merit with cluster and several foreign decorations.

Taking part in the parade Saturday were the First Battalion of the 97th Infantry Regiment and one company each from the 75th Combat Engineers, 501st Parachute Infantry, and 756th Tank Battalion, and one battery of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion.

HONORS COLONEL HARRELL—Lt. Col. Ben Harrell, right, takes the salute for the last time as commander of School Troops during a special parade and review held in his honor last Saturday morning at Stillwell Field. Colonel Harrell has been assigned to the Infantry School's Academic Department. To the left of Colonel Harrell is Lt. Sol John A. Gloriot, 83rd Field Artillery Battalion commander.

Through their efforts and their love of horses Colonel Moon and Captain Lillyman attained high places for Fort Benning throughout the nation.

Barren of the flesh which won award after award and accomplished feat after feat, the stables bear a melancholy appearance with only 15 mules left to bring back memories of days gone by. Only one man will still left at the stables — a horshooper.

39 Candidates Enter Final Training Phase

Thirty-nine members of Army Officer Candidate class No. 9 have reached the final phase of instruction with their graduation day set for Thursday, Aug. 28 in the Harmony Church bowl.

The candidates still must pass the final reviewing boards, graded tests from the Infantry School's Academic Department, and a final physical achievement test. More than 150 days of training and study have already been completed by the candidates.

Assisting Gen. Persons are Brig. Gen. A. G. Paxton, assistant to the commanding general; Col. Walter J. Hanna, commander of troops, and Col. Leon L. Mathews, chief of staff.

The main purpose of the summer camp is to "brush up" on the latest methods of instruction and to get acquainted with the Army's newest weapons.

Units represented in the division include the 11th Field Artillery Battalion, 200th Infantry Regiment, and the 993rd Field Artillery Battalion.

Artillerymen Promoted

Pfc. Woodfin D. Pitcher, Battery A of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, and Pfc. Benjamin McIntosh, Battery B of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, have been promoted to grade of technician fifth grade, military officials announced today.

In Separate Divisions

After the qualifying round, the players will be bracketed in separate divisions for match play with the 32 low scorers bowling it out for the All-Army crown.

Three life titles were won by Mac Dill Field, Florida, arrived Monday. They are Capt. Talmadge M. Heath Jr., Capt. Bantam M. York, and M-Sgt. Jack L. Goodman.

It is planned to make this tourney an annual affair with the 1947 winner having the honor of being the first to take such an award.

Lt. General Alvan C. Gillem will make the presentations and awards to the winners immediately after match play Sunday, August 17.

Masonic Body Plans Meeting Here Tonight

Plans are under way to reconstitute Fort Benning's Chapter No. 8 of the National Sojourners at a meeting to be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the Polo Hunt Club.

One of the most active chapters in the United States until the summer of 1942, the original charter was presented to Chapter No. 8 March 9, 1932, by Major General Amos A. Fries. Since 1942, however, it has been inactive, and only five of the approximately 166 members remain or have returned to Fort Benning.

The purposes of National Sojourners is to organize commissioned officers of the armed forces, who are Master Masons, into chapters for the promotion of good fellowship among its members and the cultivation of Masonic ideals.

All commissioned officers, regular, reserve, National Guard, either active or inactive, who are Master Masons, are invited to attend the session.

Recent Graduate Of AOCC No. 8 Veteran Of OSS

Among the 90 members of Army Officer Candidate class No. 8 commissioned here Saturday was Charles Wagner, former member of the Office of Strategic Services who also served with the famous 84th "Raisplitter" Division in Europe.

Lt. Wagner, veteran of 11 years Army service, joined the 84th Division in November, 1944. At that time the division was assigned to the capture of Sauerbrunn and had already begun to advance on Gellenkirchen, the strategic German mining and transportation center.

After the fall of the German city, Wagner remained with the division until the capture of Sauerbrunn, Lindern, Beck, and Leitfarn.

Prior to joining the 84th, Lt. Wagner had been a member of the OSS in their behind-the-lines operations in Greece and Yugoslavia. He worked with the unit also during their capture of the Dalmatian islands.

The battle-wise veteran was discharged in October, 1945, but reenlisted one month later. He has chosen the infantry as his branch of service.

Airborne Insignia Available Here

A series of 30 insignia representing all Airborne units that served in World War II has been completed by Sgt. Leopold Boritz, Infantry Center information and education artist.

Masterfully portrayed in silk screen pattern, the series memorializes parachute units of the Army. Presented to visiting dignitaries in the past, they are currently in demand by Airborne veterans in and out of service. Sergeant Boritz has announced that a few sets are on hand to fill any requests. He can be reached at the Infantry Center information and education office.

Personnel Check

Capt. Elmer F. Hurst, of Third Army's adjutant general's office, arrived here Monday afternoon to review personnel accounting records and procedure. He will be on the post approximately 10 days.

Ground Force Liaison Plane Ready For Test

The Boeing XL-15, a new liaison plane being ordered by the Army Air Forces for use by the Army Ground Forces, has completed its initial flight tests at Wichita Division of Boeing Aircraft company.

The plane, unconventional in appearance with its gondola-type fuselage and inverted tail surfaces, will soon be delivered to the AAF for routine performance tests.

With its 125-horsepower Lycoming engine, the all-metal, high-wing monoplane is designed to take off and clear a 50-foot obstacle in 600 feet, to climb 628 feet a minute, to cruise at approximately 100 miles an hour, and land at 45 miles an hour. The XL-15 was designed specifically for use in connection with Army Ground Force operations and can be used for aerial observation, photographic or communications assignments.

Armor Plated
Provisions are made for armor plate to provide protection for the two-man crew. The observer, who sits directly behind the pilot in the "gondola" is provided with a full-swiveling seat, all-around visibility, and basic flight controls for use in an emergency. The transparent doors at the rear of the crew compartment can be opened in flight for dropping supplies or communications equipment. Large windows which slant inward at the bottom permit observation directly forward while a transparent section in the top of the "gondola" offers a clear upward view.

Col. Henry Named Lawson Executive

Lt. Col. Fred G. Henry, liaison officer for the Infantry School since last November, has been appointed base executive officer at Lawson Field, succeeding Lt. Col. Henry L. Crouch Jr., who has been appointed to the Air Command Staff School at the University, Maxwell Field, Ala., officials reported today.

A native of Butler, Missouri, Col. Henry received his pilot's wings at Kelly field, Texas in 1940, and graduated from the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1944.
As a Troop Carrier Command pilot he served a total of 39 months in the Southwest Pacific and ETO theaters during the war. He wears the DFC with two clusters, Purple Heart Medal, and the French Croix de Guerre.

Vocational Night School Enrollment Still Increasing

Although the present heat is making some inroads on attendance at the Vocational Night School, enthusiasm and interest still prevail as the school enters its third week.

Major credit is now enrolled, with two new changes having been made in the staff. Robert Croder, Columbus artist, has replaced Sgt. Leopold Boritz in the commercial art class, while Pfc. Robert Pearson, opportunity and illiteracy class instructor has been replaced by Mrs. Frank Farr, also of Columbus.

The entire catalogue will be released for the next term in October with several new courses to be added. A much more comprehensive program is in store with full coverage of modern languages, mainly Russian, planned plus a new course in elementary physics and chemistry. It is also contemplated that the opportunity and illiteracy class will be made compulsory during the next fall term.

Applicants are still being received daily and it is believed that by the time the next quarterly term rolls around the enrollment will have doubled.

O'Daniel Speaks At Civic Gathering

Major General John W. O'Daniel, Post commander, was the featured speaker at a luncheon and Wednesday in the climax of the 1947 Hi-Neighbor Day series in Columbus.

Speaking before a gathering of officials from 21 counties, honored in the gigantic good-will program, General O'Daniel's speech was broadcast from the Ralston hotel, where the luncheon was held.

Wednesday's program was the climax to the 1947 series which has included 11 day-long feasts. Mayors of 45 Chattahoochee Valley towns were invited to participate in the celebration. Founded last year, the Hi-Neighbor program honors different counties of the valley each Wednesday during the summer with emphasis on hospitality designed to cement friendship among neighboring cities.

Guard To Aid In Mobilization

The National Guard will take a leading part in the training of key personnel to staff any future selective service system needed to mobilize the manpower of the nation in an emergency, Major General Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau announced today.

Tables of organization of National Guard state staffs have been expanded to include selective service sections, General Miltonberger said.

In most instances, trained former selective service personnel will form the nuclei of the new sections.

Adjutants General of the various states, as representatives of the Governors, will be responsible for the preparation of state selective service plans and for training in emergency mobilization activities.

They will have at their disposal the full assistance of the Office of Selective Service Records, successor to the selective service systems which mobilized American manpower during the war.

Purpose of the program is to utilize knowledge gained in operating past selective service systems to conduct a progressive training program that will assure a civilian mobilization organization prepared to go into immediate operation when needed.

This is in line with the basic purpose of the National Guard which is an M-Day force trained and equipped for immediate call to service in national emergency.

Office of Selective Service Records national headquarters, through their field staffs, will cooperate and coordinate with the National Guard in training of selective service personnel, by providing training material and assistance during field and army training periods.

Jefferson Graduates From Service School

Pfc. Frederic Jefferson, Service Company, Student Training Regiment, has been graduated from the information education course at the Army Information School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., it was announced this week.

Pfc. Jefferson, who entered the service in December, 1946, at Fort Riley, Kan., completed his basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. Later he was transferred to the Quartermaster Administration School at Camp Lee, Va., where he held the typing championship. At present he is assigned to the Student Training Regiment's troop information and education office.

Moseley Crowned Army Golf Champ

Ground force participation in the 31-day maneuver, "Operations Combine," scheduled from Sept. 23 to Oct. 29, at Lawson Field, is being outlined to stress training under simulated combat conditions, officials said today.

The maneuver in addition to displaying the full capabilities of aerial operations will also show the role of tactical cooperation of the air-ground team in action.

TAC Supervises

The maneuver will be given under the supervision of the Tactical Air Command with the Ninth Air Force playing a major role. The 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C., will furnish airborne troops for the exercise.

Thousands of service school students, representing all branches of the service, are scheduled to attend classes and aerial demonstrations. The Infantry School will conduct demonstrations in addition to the aerial maneuver. Several groups of foreign officers are scheduled to attend.

Schools Attending

The first week will be set aside for the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. and the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Va. The second week's demonstration will be for the benefit of the Army school, Fort Knox, Ky., and the second half of the Command and General Staff college. The Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla., and the Ground General school, Fort Riley, Kan., will be scheduled for the third week. From Oct. 20-24, the Infantry school and miscellaneous personnel will witness the demonstration. Oct. 27-29 has been set aside for the Air university, Maxwell Field, Ala.

COL. L. A. DILLER
... Heads 25th

Diller To Head 25th Infantry

Colonel Le Grande A. Diller, possessor of a distinguished World War II record with General McArthur's Staff, assumed command of the 25th Infantry regiment, August 14.

His present tour of duty marks the second here, the initial occasion occurring following the expiration of a term of service in Panama—1924 to 1927—when he took the Company Commander's course at the Infantry school. Upon completion of the course, he was assigned to the 29th Infantry from 1927 to 1931.

Served in PI

Following his graduation from the Staff and Command School, in 1937, he served for a two-year period at Fort Harrison, Ind., following which he was named S-3 of the 23rd Brigade at Fort William McKinley, Philippine Islands. When U. S. dependents were evacuated to the states in 1941, Mrs. Diller and their son, Dick, returned.

When Gen. McArthur was recalled to active duty, Col. Diller became a member of his original staff.

Capt. Norman Nolan Jr. arrived at Lawson field last week and has been named budget and fiscal officer, base headquarters has announced.

Separated from the service in December, 1945, at Hartman field, Newfoundland, after more than three years duty, the captain was recalled to active duty last month as a first lieutenant in the regular Army.

Prior to entering the AAF in 1942, he was associated with the National Cash Register company in Indianapolis.

Victor Defeats Lt. Worthington On 35th Green

Captain Edward Moseley was crowned the first All-Army Golf champion Sunday afternoon after he had defeated dark-horse Lt. Joe Worthington on the 35th hole 2 and 1 following five days of match play in which 196 golfers from all over the globe had participated.

It was a victory that most everyone in the large gallery following expected since Moseley had captured the medalist honors with his 38-hole 140 to set the pace for the first GI meet of its kind. But Worthington battled all the way, and played with a never-say-die spirit until the final stroke that repaid Moseley for the coveted crown.

Although Worthington played in the bull-rushes a great deal of the time, he invariably came through with spectacular shots that kept him in the running. As the 26th hole was completed, both finalists were all squared up, but Worthington again got the swing of his club to chip one within inches of the cup to take a 1-up lead on the 27th as Moseley muffed a pull-up shot.

From that point on, it was a grueling match on the rain soaked course, with Moseley clinching the title on the 35th.

Moseley played under a tournament strain in every match he won since it was he who caught the favor of the spectators, as well as being the man who cinched.

Belgium Honors 9th Air Force

Lawson field officials were informed today that Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, chief of Ninth Air Force, with headquarters in Greenville, S. C., has received an engraved bronze plaque from the people of Brussels, Belgium, in tribute to the Ninth's war-time role of liberating their capital city.

The face of the plaque contains the Belgian seal, and exterior view of one of the city's huge cathedrals, and flags of the United States and Belgium.

The inscription accompanying the award reads:

"Presented by the people of Brussels to the Commanding General, United States Ninth Air Force, in commemoration of Brussels liberation September 3, 1945."

Lt. Ray Assigned To Lawson Field

Lt. William L. Ray, of John Day, Ore., who arrived in the States August 3, after 14 months in Germany with the U. S. Army of Occupation, reported for duty at Lawson field August 15 and was assigned to the plans and training section, base officials have announced.

A fighter pilot, Lt. Ray was stationed at an air base in Neuburg, Germany, near Munich. He entered service in 1942 and received his flying training in Victoria, Texas.

POST VET BOASTS 13 PURPLE HEARTS

A combat veteran with a Purple Heart is considered an honored soldier, but a veteran with a Purple Heart and 12 clusters is something else again.

Such is the achievement of T. S. Henry Fontenot, 561st Parachute Infantry battalion. In service for a little over eight years, Sergeant Fontenot, during World War II, performed feats of valor and achieved distinction accorded very few soldiers. In wide and varied lines of duty the sergeant served as Chinese guerrilla chief, parachute instructor in the Chinese Combat command, liaison pilot, and demolition man as well as serving with the Russian Army Secret service.

Other Decorations

In both European and Pacific theaters of operation Sergeant Fontenot, aside from the Purple Heart with its clusters, acquired the Bronze Star, Silver Star, Chinese Heroic Star, and Asiatic-Pacific theater ribbon with five battle stars.

Being his overseas experiences Sergeant Fontenot gives a little idea of what the China-Burma-India area and the vast expanse of the Pacific had to offer for the American G.I.

"Our first job was voluntary," relates Sergeant Fontenot. "We were scheduled to make a jump in Burma on an ammunition dump. We carried enough explosives to blow up the entire jungle in that area."

"After landing, I started to gather my men for the mission and found all had been killed except another man and me. The two of us came upon the Burmese Churkas, a rugged jungle tribe. They led us to a hideout where the Chinese had hidden their planes, and a Chinese pilot agreed to fly us over the "Hump" to meet the Americans."

Plane Crashes

"Just outside of Kunming, China, the plane crashed and we were pounced up by Chinese guerrillas. Thinking at first that we were the enemy, the guerrillas were about to treat us as such. But my partner and I could speak the language, and when we explained the situation to them, they took us into their confidence."

"We were off with the guer-

Salute To The WAC

A fortnight ago the Bayonet heaped praise on the Army Nurse Corps. There they lauded the admirable and courageous role their group played during World War II and congratulated them upon their admission into the Regular Army family. This week we are going to throw a few bouquets to another uniformed group of women, who also played an equally important role during the war years—the Women's Army Corps.

We understand that there is legislation pending in Congress at the present writing, which, if passed, will give the members of the WAC the same status now enjoyed by the Army Nurse Corps. We want to go on record as favoring such a bill because we feel that the WAC is just as important a fixture to the new and modern peace-time Army as the nurse.

During the late war, thousands of American womanhood, as did the nurse, left their home to don the khaki of the Army. They took their basic training, pulled KP, did details. They lived in barracks and generally followed a similar schedule to that of the male soldier.

Later the WAC boarded troopships for the long journey to foreign shores. There they relieved the combat soldier, enabling him to do his job on the fighting front. Here in the States they held down many administrative posts, enabling the male soldier to aid in the training of combat leaders and at the same time to be free to travel to a battle position himself.

They worked in hospitals as technicians. They worked in mess halls as cooks. They worked in motor pools as mechanics and drivers. And they worked in offices, keeping the male soldier's record straight. They did all these jobs efficiently and calmly, and above all, they added a bit of femininity to an otherwise drab assignment.

The WAC was a great factor in helping America bring the war to a quicker end. Their presence in these jobs gave us more fighting troops than would have been possible under ordinary circumstances. And we all know the more fighting men we have at our disposal the sooner we can win on the battlefield. Yes, we might even go so far as to say that the WAC was indeed exceedingly instrumental in winning the war.

Since the termination of hostilities the WAC has continued to carry out her job the same as the male soldier. She serves overseas in many positions where a woman's touch is better than a man's. She serves in the United States with as much value. Her job is usually the one that can't be handled as well by the male soldier.

We have here at Fort Benning only a token WAC force, but we know from our association with them that they have done and are doing a fine job. Take for the instance the case of WACs serving in the capacity of Personal Affairs officers. This office has been abolished now, but during its lifetime the guiding hand of a WAC helped many a troubled soldier. A woman's touch, her understanding heart, was able to pull soldiers over many difficult barriers. This kind of work, although capably handled by male officers, lacked the added punch given it upon the advent of the WAC.

So, the Bayonet salutes the Women's Army Corps, and hopes that Congress sees fit to admit them into the Regular Army.

Mark Twain, in his reporting days, was instructed by an editor never to state anything as a fact that he could not verify from personal knowledge. In this case, to cover an important social event soon afterward, he turned in the following story: "A woman given the name of Mrs. James Jones, who is reported to be one of the society leaders of the city, is said to have given what purported to be a party yesterday to a number of alleged ladies. The hostess claim to be the wife of a reputed attorney.

When writing a letter to your girl, it's always an act of precation to begin: "My dear sweet-heart and gentlemen of the jury."

THE STORY OF MRS. MURPHY
For the first time in many months the Story has a popular book which stands out as an example of good reading, clear logic and delightful characterization. In other words, American life at its most realistic.

There have been contrary reviews of the Story of Mrs. Murphy, but the reader will find that these reviews do not coincide with his own. For a bit of insight into one of the prevalent diseases of mankind, the Story of Mrs. Murphy is magnificent. The tale deals with the likeable Rags Murphy, handsome, charming, intelligent and kind, and the great love of his life: Mrs. Murphy. Mrs. Murphy, his wife, is not a woman with flesh and bones, but alcohol in its worst form. At first Rags is able to quit his drinking spree, but they have too great an ill-effect on his mind and body, but as he grows older and his drunken stupors increase, there is a marked change in his personality.

His former first woman in his life is the trusting and simple, who loves James Murphy, the young man. She bears his child and endeavors to get him off the bottle. She is the victim of losing him, can not allow herself to become a nagging female. He never marries her.

The second woman is the vivacious Dolores, wife of a wealthy Westerner, whose physical attraction to Jimmy can make him forget his troubles. She never tries to make him stop drinking, because she finds him most attractive when he has just begun to drink. Then, too, she can always leave him when he gets too bad.

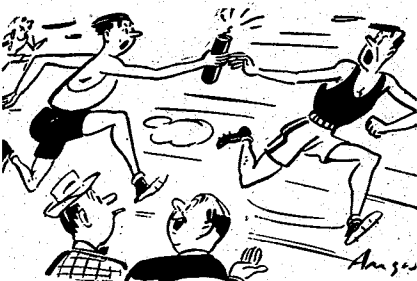

The third woman is Kay, the lovely artist, sweeter even than Sue, who gives up her life to him and tries to follow him along the "Boulevard of Broken Dreams." She soothes him when he is crazed with drink. She lets him knock her around when he is near madness. She works for him and spends three years in prison.

The fourth woman is perhaps the wisest of all is his mother, who devotes her entire life to making him happy and giving in to his smallest whim. She can never believe that he has ever committed a crime, and blames his life troubles on the women in his life.

The author takes the reader down to the lowest ghettos of humanity where the schoolboys and prostitutes make their headquarters. The filth and human degradation is almost unbelievable. The rags and tatters, broken spirits, stench and dirt, and loss of all reasoning ability, make it unbearable to respectable people. It makes the reader glad to get out.

There are many people in this story of man's crime against himself, and many realistic situations. It is the American novel at its best.

"I don't know the size of his collars, but my fingers just meet around his neck."

"I get a training team every year with that little idea"

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL
Your Red Cross has been greatly interested in the statement issued by the U. S. Children's Bureau advising the Federal Emergency Maternal and Infant Care program began gradual termination July 1.

"THIS ONE THING"
BY CHAPLAIN C. B. WHITMAN
A well known writer tells the story of a man of great wealth at a certain dinner party who seemed very ill at ease. The hostess tried to interest him in various subjects but to no avail. She talked about music, but it made no appeal to him; she spoke of travel and journeys across the seas, but that brought forth no response. She told him of social works, but that did not concern him. At last, knowing the hostess was having some difficulty, he blurted out, "Try me on this."

This was the man's specialty, and he had made thousands from it. But that brought forth no interest in all other things while things, music, travel, books, sports, and most of all, human beings and their Creator, God. How dull a specialist's life like that must be. As some wag has said, "A specialist knows more and more about less and less."

Strange as it may seem, I am pleading in this short article for the man who knows how to do good. In Paul's letter to the Philippians, the third chapter, he declares, "... but this one thing I do: I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ." This was Paul's major and he concentrated all his energies and talents upon it.

Christ is the healthy and efficient, and makes for happiness, that every person have some worthy goal to strive for. One young man who was being lectured about playing the "game of life" answered, "How can we play the game when we don't know where the goal posts are?"

The plan for the completion of the program is as follows:
1.—Maternity and infant care for wives or infants will be completed prior to June 30, 1947.
2.—Maternity care will be authorized after June 30, 1947, if the mother was eligible under the program as of June 30, 1947, even though she may have applied for care subsequent to that date.

3.—Infant care will be authorized after June 30, 1947, if the mother or infant was eligible for care, or received care, under the program as of June 30, 1947. For example, if the wife of an enlisted man in the eligible pay grades became pregnant before June 30, 1947, and will be eligible to apply for and receive services under the EMIC program until six weeks post-partum, and her infant will be eligible for service provided under the program for one year.

All soldiers, who were expecting to make use of the Federal EMIC program and are running into difficulty, are invited to call at the Red Cross office on Vickers Avenue for further information and aid. The Red Cross chapters in all home-towns have been made acquainted with this program and are adapting their own programs to render aid to the wives when and if necessary, also said, "For I determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified."

Everyone of us needs some great devotion or some passionate desire for a great cause.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

WILD HARVEST (action drama) with Alan Ladd, Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston, and Lloyd Nolan. Alan Ladd, Robert Preston, and Lloyd Nolan supply plenty of action in this story which deals with, you guessed it, wheat harvesting. Dorothy Lamour capably fills the female lead and causes quite a rivalry among the male leads, who are members of a combine crew. There's a great deal of excitement with enough love interest to keep everyone happy. Recommended for mature.

FUN AND FANCY FREE (Disney cartoon feature in technicolor) with Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Dmah Shore, Mortimer Snerd, Donald Duck, and Mickey Mouse. The singing of Dmah Shore, the cartoon characters of Disney, and the wise-cracks of the Bergen-McCarthy-Snerd trio are combined to produce another enjoyable cartoon fantasy. Recommended for family.

CROSSFIRE (murder mystery) with Robert Young, Robert Mitchum, and Robert Ryan. Packing a wallop from the opening scene to the last, this murder yarn handles its theme—prejudice—with a frankness not often found in motion pictures. Recommended for mature.

STORK BITES MAN (comedy) with Jackie Cooper and Gene Roberts. Many amusing situations occur in this light comedy when the superintendent of an apartment house, where no children are allowed, learns that he's about to become a father. After he is forced to move, the superintendent institutes a boycott of the apartment and is successful in being reinstated. You'll find many laughs in this one. Recommended for family.

Alabama Guard Units Complete Training Here

More than 700 officers and men of the Alabama National Guard left here Saturday following a week of intensive instruction by the Infantry School in which leadership and the stages of military instruction were emphasized.

Attending the camp were representatives of units from the 31st Infantry Division in command; the John C. Persons in command; the 226th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group, under the command of Col. John D. Sides, of Mobile, Ala.; and the 116th Engineer Combat Group, which is commanded by Col. Carl T. Jones, of Huntsville, Ala. General Persons resides at Birmingham, Ala., and commanded the 31st during World War II.

This was the first time in the history of the Infantry School that elements of an entire National Guard division and two separate groups attended the school en masse.

Training of the group was reviewed Thursday by Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Third Army commander. Officers and enlisted men were especially selected for the training in order that they might become better acquainted with post-war developments of the Army and to refresh them on basic subjects.

Alabama units represented included those from Birmingham, Montgomery, Prichard, Talladega, Greensboro, Tuscaloosa, Clanton, Selma, Guntersville, Cullman, Bertsville, Jacksonville, Lanette, Opelika, Ozark, Foley, Prattville, Geneva, Ewington, Adalusia, Florida, Greenville, Evergreen, Enterprise, Elba, Troy, Florence, Tusculumbia, Russellville, Moulton, Talladega, Sylacauga, Anniston, Arab, Jasper, Bay Minette, Luverne, Atmore, Huntsville, Fort Payne, Decatur, Athens, and Hartselle.

Brig. Gen. James S. Saliba, adjutant general of Alabama, and members of his staff, visited the school last Thursday.

3 School Troops EM Extend Enlistments

M.-Sgt. James S. Green, Service Company, 37th Infantry Regiment, T-4 Orville B. Thomas, 27th Transportation Car Company; and Pvt. Oscar Serrato, Company C, 37th Infantry Regiment, recently extended their short term enlistments to a period of three years. T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly, School Troops recruiting sergeant, disclosed today.

Sgt. Green, who served during the first World War in the field artillery, is now assigned to the 37th Infantry regimental supply base at Camp Polk, La., is planning to enter Airborne training in the 37th Infantry's regimental here.

Zazzi Named Signal Officer

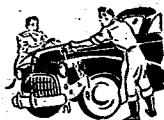

Lt. Col. Melvin A. Zazzi has been appointed post signal officer it was announced this week. Acting signal officer since his arrival at Fort Benning in July of this year, Colonel Zazzi came here from Headquarters, Third Army signal section.

A native of San Francisco, California, Colonel Zazzi was commissioned in the National Guard in 1931 and called to active duty with the 40th Infantry Division in 1941. He spent 4 1/2 months overseas participating in the African, Italian, and Southern France campaigns. He also served with the Allied Force Headquarters in Algiers.

motor pool, expects to attend another post school shortly. Pvt. Serrato, who took Medical Corps basic at Camp Polk, La., is planning to enter Airborne training in the 37th Infantry's regimental here.

Couple United In Impressive Ceremony Tuesday Evening

Of sincere interest to Army society was the beautiful wedding solemnized Tuesday evening when charming Miss Betsy Margaret Ross, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Fay Ross, became the bride of Major Robert J. MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. MacDonald.

The candlelight ceremony was held in the Post Chapel at 8:30 P. m. with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hill officiating. The many guests found the chapel entrance decorated with wooden candelabra twined with ivy. The aisle was arranged with candles in holders with gladioli and amalia tied to them with white satin bows. Four baskets of ginger lilies decorated the altar as well as candelabra twined with ivy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was beautifully attired in a dotted swiss nylon gown with long sleeves featuring pointed cuffs. The fitted bodice was accented with a deep sweetheart neckline while full ruffles formed the yoke. The full skirt was finished with a wide ruffle at the bottom, continuing into the long train, and a heavy ruffle attractively outlined the sweetheart neckline. The bride's only ornament was a single strand of pearls and her bouquet featured a white rose in a circle of tube roses. Her fingertip veil of white tulle was caught at the crown by a wide tiera outlined with tiny white flowers.

Miss Ruth Ross, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor and wore a beautiful gown of green taffeta with sweetheart neckline and fitted bodice. A bustle of taffeta was accented with a row of green flowers and her green veil was caught with two red rosebuds. Her arm bouquet was of red roses tied with crimson ribbons and she wore long green lace gloves.

Serving in the role of ring-bearer, John P. Foley Jr., three- and-a-half-year-old son of Capt. and Mrs. John P. Foley, wore a white two-piece suit with pearl buttons down the front and around the waistband. The collar, short sleeves and front were trimmed with tiny organza ruffling and the shirt featured tiny tucking on both sides. He carried the bride's ring on a white satin pillow trimmed with a ruffle of satin.

Standing with the groom to meet his bride at the altar was Captain John P. Foley, who acted as best man, and assisting as ushers were Lt. Col. Otto Holman, Capt. Joseph Radcliffe, Capt. Peter S. Kelley and Capt. Barry Albright.

Mrs. L. H. Averitt played the nuptial music, which included "Because," and "I Love Thee."

The bride's mother wore a gown of pale moss green crepe, long orchid lace gloves and a crest of orchids in her hair. Her corsage was of tallismar root and white roses. The groom's mother chose a gown of grey crepe trimmed in gold. Her accessories were of pink and her corsage was of pink roses.

Immediately following the impressive ceremony the guests were invited to a reception on the terrace of the Officers' club, where approximately 175 friends

Farewell Party Honors Couple Going To Virginia

To compliment Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank H. Linnel who will be leaving the Post next week, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William E. Roberts entertained Wednesday evening at a buffet supper party at the Officers' club when dancing was enjoyed later in the evening.

Before going to the club the party was served cocktails at the quarters of Colonel and Mrs. Roberts where the hostess used arrangements of bright summer flowers as decorations. Also attending the event were Major and Mrs. Robert E. Phelps.

Colonel and Mrs. Linnel are going to Quantico, Va., where he will be in the senior course of the Amphibious Warfare school. The couple has been here over a year and Mrs. Linnel was at Benning in 1936-37 with her parents, Major and Mrs. Clarence L. King. The hosts for the Wednesday party, Colonel and Mrs. Roberts, recently moved to the Post after living in Benning Hills since last November.

Newcomer to U. S. Living On Post

A charming newcomer to the Post is Mrs. Emil Edmonds, wife of Major Edmonds, who comes from Alsace, France, and with her husband arrived in the states June 4. The couple were married in France in June, 1946, and were together in Germany for the past year. Since coming to the states they visited in Connecticut, the home of Major Edmonds. He is now serving as an instructor in the Infantry school.

The couple, now living in quarters on the Post, brought a Scottie dog with them from Europe.

They were served champagne punch, cake and light refreshments. The bride's table was centered by a three-tiered cake which the bride cut with her father's saber. Ferns and ginger lilies were used around the cake while a bridal party of miniature figures was used as decorations on either side of the cake. A miniature bride and groom under the shelter of a huge wedding bell decorated the cake.

For going away the bride chose a black faille suit with flared skirt. Shell buttons decorated the front of the jacket and she wore an attractive black faille hat and black summer suede pumps. Her corsage was a white orchid and she carried a black corday bag, and white gloves.

The couple will be at home at Fort Knox, Ky., following their wedding trip.

Among the out-of-town guests present for the ceremony were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, of Lake Hubert, Minn.; Lt. Col. Calvin E. Brown, of Atlanta and Miss Mildred Murray of Atlanta.

Parents Honored During Visit Here From Minnesota

Complimenting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Rainville of St. Paul, Minn., Capt. and Mrs. Leon H. Rainville entertained Saturday evening at an interesting dinner-dance at the Officers' club. The table for the event was arranged with zinnias and white astoria and white tapers in crystal candelabra. Guests for the evening were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Bryer, Mrs. Helen Hulvac, Major and Mrs. William Rhinehart, Major and Mrs. Frederick Outlaw, Capt. and Mrs. John Reeves and Capt. and Mrs. Gerson Lesser. Mr. and Mrs. Rainville left Tuesday to return to their home in St. Paul. During their stay in the South the guests and Capt. and Mrs. Rainville visited in Atlanta and Tennessee.

O'Daniels Hosts At Lawn Party For Golf Players

To honor the officers and ladies here for the Army and Air Force last week, Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel entertained Saturday evening at a lawn party given at the commandant's quarters.

Approximately 250 guests attended the delightful event where barbecue was served and movies were shown during the evening. Among the guests were Lt. Gen. Hammond, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. A. C. Gillem, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. B. Reynolds, Major Gen. E. L. Parks, Major Gen. G. H. Decker, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins, Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard and Col. (ret.) and Mrs. H. A. Well.

Personals

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas H. Beck left the Post Monday for Norfolk, Va., where he will attend the U.S. Forces Staff college. The Beck's came here a little over a year ago for a second tour of duty after being here in 1938-39 when Col. Beck was a student at the Infantry school. The couple drove to their new station in Virginia and took their young daughter, Brenda, with them.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Edridge of Columbus are houseguests this week at the quarters of M-Sgt. and Mrs. R. C. Haig.

Recently moved into quarters on the Post are Lt. Col. and Mrs. George C. Walker with their four-year-old son. The couple came here from their home in Tallahassee, Fla., where they visited after Colonel Walker's tour from Adak. Colonel Walker was here for OCS training, but this is Mrs. Walker's first visit at Benning.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. Robert C. Haig and 1st Sgt. and Mrs. Ewald Knuth spent the past week end in Panama City, Fla., and did some deep sea fishing.

Costume Prizes Awarded Guests At Block 12 Club

A gala event of the past week end was the barn dance held at the Block 12 Officers' Club when the guests enjoyed the music of a string orchestra.

Costumes were in order for the evening and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Robert Short and Sgt. Charles Mitchell for their attire. This week the club will feature a juke box dance Saturday evening. Members are invited to bring their children and leave them in the club nursery where a reliable attendant is in charge.

Wednesday evening is game night at the club and members and their guests are invited to participate.

Stag Party At Lodge

Members of AACC No. 13 held a stag party at Victory lodge Saturday afternoon with refreshments served during the afternoon and a barbecue featuring the evening activities. Competitive sports were staged with both officers and students participating.

Plan Class Party

The entertainment committee of AACC No. 9 has announced plans for a graduation party to be held in the Mirror room at the Ralston hotel in Columbus August 27, it was announced recently.

A program is being outlined for the event to include guest speakers, music and presentations by talented members of the class.

Huge Painting Program Gets Underway Here

Anything and everything on the post that looks as though it needs a coat of paint is going to get a going over, according to the Post Engineers.

In an extensive painting project, started in July, plans are being made to give the Post a new coat of paint from the smallest sign to the largest building. According to the Post Engineer's office the project is so extensive that it may take 12 months to complete.

One of the main tasks has already been completed, that of repainting and decorating the interior of the Infantry School. Interior painting of the Post Chapel and several bachelor officers' quarters have also been visited by the paint brigade.

Approximately 1,380 buildings of mobilization type have also been contracted for painting. Over 100 men comprise the painting crew. Most of the interior work will be done by the Post Engineer's department, while most of the exterior work will be contracted.

A partial list of the jobs to be completed include the marking of streets and curbs and repainting of all signs, hydrant, fire boxes, cyclone fences, interior and exterior of the hospital, and interior of the courtyards.

Lawson Officers Attend AF's schools

Major William T. Woodyard, commander of Squadron A at Lawson field, and Capt. Ivan Hale, base adjutant, will leave the base in the next few days for Tyndall field, Fla., where they will attend the Air Tactical School for 16 weeks, according to base officials.

Other officers who left the base last week to attend AF schools include Capt. Purcell Rae, who was transferred to Craig field, Ala., to attend a 16-week general air inspector's course, and Lt. George McAnnelly, Squadron F adjutant, who is participating in a six week court martial proceedings course at Langley field, Va.

All the officers are scheduled to return to the base upon completion of their studies.

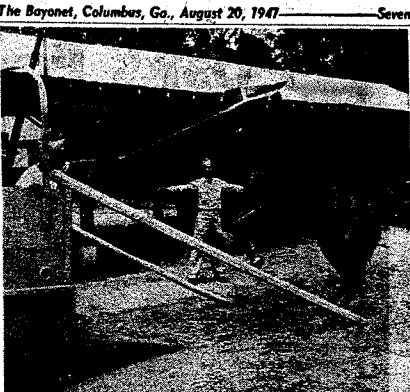

Sojourners Group Arranges Meet, Names Officers

Fort Benning Chapter No. 8, National Sojourners, was reactivated at a meeting held last Thursday at the Polo Hunt club. The chapter has been dormant since about 1942, because many of its members have been shipped overseas.

New officers elected to serve for the reactivation late in the afternoon were: Major Allen E. Cato, president; Lt. Col. Richard J. Dial, vice president; and Lt. Edgar G. Gibbs, secretary and treasurer. Trustees elected were Lt. Col. William D. North to serve for one year; Col. Robert B. Hill to serve for two years; and Col. O. P. Bragan to serve for three years.

Meeting will be held the second Thursday of each month at the Polo Hunt club, with the next meeting on September 11. All Master Masons who hold or have held commissions in the armed forces are eligible for membership, and an invitation is extended to them to attend.

Gloom, Sombreness Settle Over Benning Stables

BY ANDY FLANEY

Gloom and somberness as depressing and dismal as night itself has settled over the Infantry School stables.

What was once a beehive of equestrian activity is no more, as spirited bidding to the speedy chant of the auctioneer last Wednesday brought to a close one of the most colorful chapters of recreational activities at Fort Benning.

All but a few horses stationed here now have new homes and new owners as they went by way of the highest bidder. A total of 112 mounts and 15 mules were bid farewell by their dejected handlers and stablemen as the post embarked upon a horseless era.

Big-Time Auction
Just as forlorn as the personnel at the stables—whose devotion and care for the mounts only animal-loving sportsmen can understand—were the animals themselves who put up a pitiful struggle as riders hoisted up yards to be taken away. Not one of them boarded the vehicles willingly.

In bidding reminiscence of some of the big-time auctions, Reno Jason brought the highest price, $225. Ben Hardaway Jr. of Columbus, laid down the high price for the 12-year-old mare, champion jumper and winner of many a blue ribbon. The loss of Jason was a special blow to Capt. Frank Allman, who has ridden the horse in many a show, carried home with ribbon after ribbon.

Vets Open Bidding
The auction began Wednesday morning with the priority group, mostly veterans, opening the bidding. Rightly hoped for, many were sold in the priority sale, but some thoroughbreds, jumpers, and show horses, as well as mules, were auctioned off in a more spirited auction late in the afternoon. One of the hottest bidding sessions was carried on by two women who had a sentimental attachment for a horse named Brady. He was bought by Mrs. C. Martin of Lexington, Ky. for $277.50. Other mounts which brought high prices were Shandygaff, who

Doughboy Power Humbles Marines

Overcome 8-Run Lead To Capture First Game, 13-12

BY RALPH GREENE
A determined Fort Benning Doughboy baseball team turned the tables on the Parris Island Marines Saturday night when they overcame an eight-run lead to defeat the Marines in the first game of a two-game series 13-12 in ten exciting innings. The Doughs had a comparatively easy time of it Sunday in copping the second tilt 6-2.

Things looked bad for the Doughboys and Lefty Lehner from the first pitch of Saturday night's meeting. The devil-dogs from Parris Island lashed out at Lehner for six safeties, netting them nine runs before the game was three innings old. Lehner was forced to leave the mound at this point, and Andy Boland, cool Dough righthander, was assigned to stem the Marine onslaught.

Zorn, Parris Island center fielder, took Boland's first pitch and sent it sailing into center field for a double, scoring on error in right field. The end of the inning saw the Doughs on the short end of a 10-4 score.

Doughs Score Early
The Benchmen tallied in the first and second on five singles, but were unable to keep pace with the Marines as they only pushed four men across for paid.

Both moundsmen kept things quiet in the third, and neither team scored. It was in the fourth frame that the Marine tagged Boland for their last two runs. Dunkerton belted a single through the infield with no outs.

The Doughs were again in trouble. The next batter popped out to right, and Carter, Marine left fielder, came to the plate. A high, outside pitch was what the doctor ordered for Carter, for he took a vicious swing, and the hapless ball went sailing over the left field for a home run. Boland settled down to retire the next two batters. The score now stood 12-4, as the Marines had what most fans considered an insurmountable lead.

boys were not disposed to a defeat at the hands of Marines, and their hustle and determination were never lagging. Tagging Wall, Marine hurler, for three safeties in the sixth, the Doughs added two more runs to their early four, bringing the count to 12-6.

After McGowan took first on the shortstop's error, Watts was safe on a fielder's choice advancing McGowan to second. Tommy Gallagher popped one into short right for a single, and McGowan scored the seventh Dough run.

The Marine infield was slipping badly now, and Boland was safe at first on a fielder's choice as Gallagher was tagged at second. After two strikes, Dickson lashed out at Wall for a two run triple, and scored on Burt's single. The Doughs were now going wild, and Manager Zorn thought it best to retire the battered Wall. Schum, Marine relief, walked the next two batters and the tying run was made on an error at the plate.

With the score tied, both teams took counsel to outmaneuver the opponent long enough to tally the winning run. The ninth inning saw the two pitchers in a grueling mound match, and Boland retired the side without allowing a Marine to advance farther than first.

Schum hit Watts with his first pitch, and the big left hander was safe at first. Gallagher sacrificed Watts to second while Boland's grounder advanced him to third. With two away, Shiver batted for Dickson, but the threat died as Shiver was caught at first.

Boland again retired the Marine batters, and the Doughs came up for another attempt at victory. Schum fanned Burt, but Blondy Burnett, who had saved the day many times with beautiful stops, snapped a double into center field taking third on an overthrow, and Dough bids began to boil. Kinard walked putting a man at first and third. Ralph Terry came through at the right moment with a single to right, and the speedy Burnett crossed the plate for the winning run.

Bo Boland's six-hit pitching was the finest exhibition that has been put on for Dough fans all season. Never losing his coolness and control, he methodically buckled Marine hitters. His was a well deserved win, for he had to overcome an eight run deficit to clinch his third victory of the season.

Sunday Game

Sunday afternoon, Dick Gerhart went to work on the Parris Island nine, holding them to five hits, as the Doughs copped their second on seven safeties off Carter.

Although the Marines drew first blood, scoring a lone run in the opening frame on a single by Dunkerton, and an error in the field, the Doughs came back to take the lead which they never relinquished. Gerhart held command mastery of the field as his teammates proceeded to score runs in the first, second and fourth frames for a total of six runs.

After Burt and Kinard reached safely on infield errors, Watts slapped a two bagger into left scoring both men. In the next inning Brooks belted a hot triple into right, scoring on an error at second. The last Dough tallies came in the third on singles by Burt and Watts, and a pair of Marine miscues, which cost the Marines three more runs.

The Parris Island nine started an uprising in the ninth when Dunkerton doubled, with two away, but Gerhart blocked the gap, and immediately, and the third out was executed to eliminate the first.

Evans Scores Triumph In Airborne Ring Debut

Cpl. James C. Evans, Company C, the Airborne Battalion, made spectacular ring debut last Thursday night when he outstayed his opponent from the opening bell to knock him out before the end of the first round. The badly beaten opponent evidently feels that a lucky blow was landed, and has requested return bout which will be staged at the Airborne Boxing arena in the near future.

Out-door boxing bouts are held each Thursday night at the Airborne Arena with six bouts scheduled weekly. They are sponsored by the Airborne Battalion.

Doughs Face Test During Road Trip

On Friday, August 22, the Doughboys will pack their bags in preparation for a road trip in which they are scheduled to meet the Marines at Parris Island Saturday night, August 23, and Sunday, August 24.

The Doughs copped a two-game series from the devil-dogs last week end, and, if they continue to hit as they have been doing this week, there is no reason why they cannot repeat their Gowdy Field performance at Parris Island.

Although the first game with the Marines showed that the Doughs have plenty of rough spots to smooth out, the Benchmen have learned that they must play their best ball when up against a team such as Parris Island. It may be a good thing that Saturday night's game was so close, for it proved to the team that it was not playing a sand-lot club.

On their return trip from South Carolina, the Benchmen stop off at Maxwell Field to meet the Airborne two-game series that was to be played at Gowdy field was snuffed out because of torrential rains. However, in the first game, that lasted only one and one-half innings, the Benchmen jumped to a quick 4-0 lead before the airman were even accustomed to the turf. Yet, Maxwell is reported to be strong, and the Doughboys will again be put to the test.

It appears that Captain Bench has done a wise thing in revamping his line-up. Up until the Parris Island series, much of the hitting power had been denuded action and was forced to sit the games out because of filled positions. With such men as Ken Watts, and Bill Brooks in the line-up, the scoring capacity for the Doughs should be greatly augmented. In the Saturday night tilt with the Marines, Big Ken personally drove four runs across the plate. In placing Brooks in left field, bringing Terry to third, and shifting "Blondy" Burnett to short, Bench has capitalized on his heaviest hitters, and has in no way injured the efficiency of his infield.

Third Army Meet

The games with Tyndall field, Florida, Keesler field, Miss., and Fort Jackson, S.C. have been cancelled. The two-game series with Fort Bragg has been set aside with the Doughs meeting the 325th Glider Infantry Sept. 6 at Fort Bragg.

The big goal in Doughboy eyes is the Third Army Championship here Sept. 15-21. To date, the number of teams to participate is not known, but it has been rumored that the Navy and Marines may be invited.

Bullets Take 4-Game Series

Celebrating a brief moratorium from rainy skies, Capt. William H. Pender's 25th C. T. Bullets took a busman's holiday over the week end by defeating the Alabama All-Stars 13-1 Friday night, the vaunted Tuskegee faculty, 5-3 Saturday afternoon, the Opelika Blue Sox, 7-6, in a stellar ninth inning rally, and on Monday the Lanett, Ala., nine by a 10 to 4 count.

Team Captain Gordon Burke, reconverted from an infielder to a moundman's role, held the All-Stars hitless for eight innings while his teammates were merrily pounding the horseshoe for scores in all but the second and the seventh. Burke's brief let-down in that inning when he gave up a brace of singles for one run, was all that the visitors were able to enter into the record book.

The Tuskegee faculty became the victims of righthander Lawrence Hall, whose hooks, fast ones, and control were working superlatively Saturday. Hall was in trouble only once, that in the ninth when three consecutive Bullet errors placed the possible single and winning markers on the sacks, but the Sand Hill hurler fanned the remaining two stickmen and forced the third to ground out to the first baseman.

501st Captures Swimming Meet

Winning blue ribbons in three events and placing in every other, the 501st Parachute Battalion amassed 34 points to capture the Post swimming and diving meet at Russ Pool last Wednesday. The Student Training Regiment took second honors with 27 points.

Petrie Cops Honors
Cpl. Keith Petrie, 37th Infantry Regiment, captured individual laurels, carrying away firsts in the 50-yard back stroke and 150-yard individual medley, a race in which the swimmer must perform various styles before crossing the tape. Petrie also swam with his team's medley relay squad which took third place, giving him an aggregate total of 11 1-2 points.

Running close behind Petrie was Capt. William Thomas, who took top honors in the 50- and 100-yard free style races for a total of 10 points. Bill Bax, an amputee and ex-parachutist, showed superb skill and stamina in placing second in the 200-yard free style, longest race of the meet.

Exhibiting beautiful form in each of seven dives, Harold Lutz, 501st Parachute Battalion, outclassed and outpointed all other entries to gain first mention in that phase of the meet. Lutz performed front, back, half-twist, and half-gainer, as his requisites, and a one and one-half outway, full gainer, and a one and one-half with full twist as his options. Lt. Crilly, Student Training Regiment, took second place.

Other winners in the meet included the Student Training Regiment, 200-yard relay; 501st Parachute Battalion, medley relay;

Orff, Student Training Regiment, 200-yard free-style; and Lyon, 501st, 50-yard breast stroke.

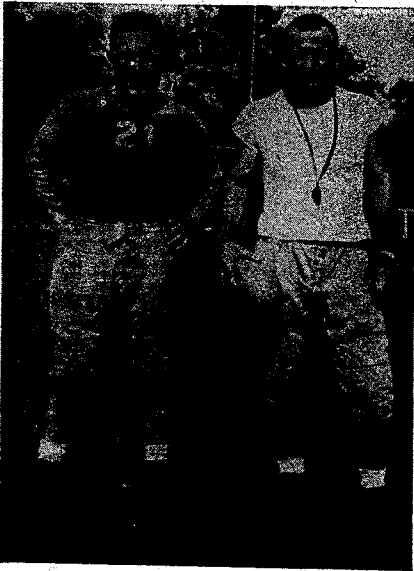

Gold medals were awarded to first place winners, while second honors went silver. The third place men were presented with bronze pins.

Of the possible 120 points, the 501st Parachute Battalion took 34 followed by the Student Training Regiment's 27. The Airborne Battalion took third place with 17, while the 1st and the 37th Infantry tied with 14 each. Ordinance men from the 328th totaled 12, as the 78th Engineers took the cellar position with 2.

An interesting life saving exhibition was staged at the conclusion of competition by Pvt. Lutz, 328th Ordnance Battalion, and Pvt. Ward, 501st, who demonstrated the most modern techniques in the rescue of helpless swimmers.

Doughs Begin Grid Practice

If you wander over to Doughboy stadium any afternoon this week, you will see the 1947 Doughboy grid team hard at work conditioning for the coming season that gets under way September 27, when the Doughboys make their debut against the Cherry Point Marines at Cherry Point, N. C.

Some 70 men turned out Monday afternoon and Butch Kendrick, new Doughboy grid mentor, went right to work getting his new "recruits" in shape for the coming season.

Headliners Missing
Although headliners like John Green, Johnny Sauer, and Dick Fitzer will be missing from the line-up, the first day of practice showed a fast team that boasts plenty of good hard muscle.

Calisthenics comprised most of the exercises for the first day, and will probably be the subject for thought during the entire week. Loose muscles, and extra fat will be worked off before the boys have any contact work which is due to start about the first of September.

There was a familiar face at Doughboy stadium Monday, as Carl Robinson, one of last year's great tackles, was on hand for the initial practice. Bob Seibert, fleet fullback on the '46 All-Serv. vice team, is on furlough, but will report for practice Thursday afternoon.

Doughboy stadium is undergoing a complete remodeling and will be in shape when the Doughs play here October 4. New bleachers are being erected, and the field has been taking a great deal of doctoring during the past few weeks.

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center Commander, was on hand to watch the gridders work out on the first day. Gen. O'Daniel is a confirmed supporter of Post teams, particularly football, and has always shown a great deal of interest in Benning athletes.

AIRBORNE STILL LEADING AS LEAGUE NEARS END

Troopers from the Airborne Battalion continued their victory drive this week as the Softball League nears the final mark. League play terminates Friday, Aug. 22.

The Airborne Battalion edged the Engineers from the 78th last Wednesday to run their win total to five. Unless a big upset comes within the next few days, the troopers will annex the Post Softball title with an undisputed record.

501st, ISD Close

Both the 501st Parachute Battalion and the ISD kept in the running with the 501st taking a forfeit from the First Battalion STR, while the ISD edged out the 320th Ordnance in a 3-2 thriller that went went ten innings, when the Detachment boys rallied to score their winning run.

For the first time in league play, the 204th Transportation Battalion showed a burst of power, dumping the 37th Infantry, 12-3, and taking a close one from the 78th Engineers, 1-0, in the week 4-3. As a result of their two wins, the 204th climbed to an even position with the 76th Engineers and 37th Infantry whose percentages dropped considerably because of their losses this week.

Was First Game

The 83rd Field Artillery came through with their first win of the season with a 7-0 forfeit from the First Battalion STR. The student Training Regiment has managed to hold tight to the cellar position, having lost every one of their seven scheduled games.

With the Third Army Tournament but 14 days in the future, competition for spots on the Post Softball team has reached its highest point. Those men who showed superior ability during league play will be picked to comprise a team to represent Fort Benning in the tourney at Fort Jackson, S. C., Sept. 1-7.

The most important game scheduled this week is the tilt between the Airborne Battalion and the 501st Parachute Battalion, which is to be played Friday, Aug. 22. The troopers from the Main Post can garner enough power to lick the Battalion team, a play-off will no doubt be effected to determine the champion. The 501st has played one more game than the battalion and for this reason a play off will be necessary. However, if the 501st is defeated, there will be no question about the Post title; the crown will go to the Airborne Battalion.

Doughboy Nine Outhits Atlanta Ordnance, 15-7

Everybody but the announcer had an opportunity to play baseball at Gowdy field Friday night in a three ring circus which saw the Doughboys knock three pitchers around the diamond for eleven hits and a 15-7 victory over the Atlanta Ordnance Depot.

The Ordnance boys from Atlanta had a chance to get their legs up in the first frame as they tugged Martin for four singles and six many runs, but found that they had hit their fun since Martin settled down holding the Depot nine to two safeties during the next six innings.

Taking bats in hand, the Doughs proceeded to score runs in every inning but the second and ninth, when right-hander Ralph managed to retire benchmen batters one, two, three. The big Dough uprising came in the third when Dickson connected for a double with Kinard and Bonair sagging the staggering Hale for singles, all of which netted the Benchmen six markers. After the third inning, the Atlanta team lost all hustle, while the Doughs continued to bang away, scoring seven more runs and running up an almost insurmountable lead.

As the eighth frame came to an end, the Depot boys found themselves on the short end of a 15-4 score. It was at that point that the force really got under way. Capt. Bench, Dough coach, began substituting freely, and played his own debut behind the plate with Lauve doing the hurling.

Columbus Reds Top Second-Half Of City League

The Columbus City league softball team wound up its summer schedule last week at Rose Hill Park, with the Columbus Reds finishing the second half of league competition with an undefeated record.

Although the Airborne Reds, of Fort Benning, swept the opening half of league play without a loss, the Columbus Reds gained momentum during the final chapter of the league to bang the Troopers two straight losses, their only defeats of the season, against ten wins.

The Airborne Training Committee and the R&R Club finished third in league standing, each winning four of their ten games, while the 37th Infantry Barnstormers took next place with three wins in nine games. The dubious cellar honors were shared by Burns' Studio, and the Infantry School Detachment teams.

A five-game play-off will be staged at Rose Hill Park in the near future to determine the season championship.

ed four batters, conked another on the noggin, and Bench had committed his misdeed, the Dough lead was narrowed to 15-7. When Capt. Bench noticed that the fans were beginning to get sleepy, (the game had only lasted three hours), he signalled to Lauve that it was time to go home. So Lauve started using his right arm, and retired the next two batters ending the game.

Dickson led the Dough swatters connecting for a double and a pair of singles, while Mulholland collected two singles to cap batting honors for the Atlanta players.

'Dream Game' Set Saturday At Sand Hill

The "Sand Hill Dream Game" is scheduled at Bulleit field Saturday at 2:30 p.m. when the 25th Cavalry Troop engages an all-star galaxy of former diamond "greats," from within the organization, known as the Oldtimers. Managed by 1st Sgt. James A. Barnes, the Oldtimers line-up, consisting of players with 10 years and over in service, has former regulars from the 24th and 25th, Infantry regiments and the Ninth and 10th Cavalry.

Daily practice sessions for the Oldtimers started last Monday with the following players answering the call:

First Sergeant James A. Barnes, coach and utility; S-Sgt. Eddie K. Baldwin, infield; Pfc. Ulas Hale, catcher and infield; 1st Sgt. Amos Snowdon, pitcher; 1st Sgt. Ruben Randall, infield; and M-Sgt. Purvis L. Harris, infield, all of whom formerly played with the 24th Infantry.

From the prewar 25th Infantry Bullets are:

T-Sgt. Ed Harrison, T-Sgt. John Lewis, Pfc. Fulton, and 1st Sgt. Jerian Emanuel, outfielders. For the 9th and 10th Cavalry regulars consist of 1st Sgt. Lee Graves, catcher; M-Sgt. James H. Coles, and M-Sgt. Godfrey Langrum, infielders.

Under the ten-year ruling, the Bullets will lose two of their hard-hitting regulars in S-Sgt. Eddie K. Baldwin and Pfc. Ulas Hale.

BY RALPH GREENE
Many sports fan on the reservation are curious to know just how the 1947 Doughboy grid team will stack up against the All-Service eleven of the past year. Along with some 70 candidates who turned out for the initial practice, came scores of onlookers to get their first glimpse of the fresh squad. Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel was on hand, too, as Dutch Kendrick made his coaching debut at the Post. And I might add he made an impressive spectacle.

Kendrick is no little man, and really put the team through it from the minute they hit the field until the sun started fading in the West. Contact work is scheduled to commence about the first of September, so until that time the squad will be hardening up and learning plays.

Two of last year's mainstays are back with the Doughs again, Carl Robinson and Bob Seibert. Other names that bear merit are Harold Lutz, who has been prominent in sports around the post, and Bob Cole, who has seen plenty of football before he came into the Army. Both these boys are from the 501st Parachute Battalion. Dick Gerhart, ace Doughboy right-hander on the baseball team, has donated cleats and pads, and hopes to fill a backfield position this year. Word comes to me that Dick was quite a football whiz in high school. After his performances on the diamond, it is safe to say that Gerhart is plenty fleet with his feet.

But the football team isn't the only thing that is undergoing a good conditioning. Doughboy Stadium has been literally sacked of the old bleachers, while new ones are being installed every day. The field, too, is under constant care, and by the time the Doughs make their first appearance here on October 4, Doughboy stadium will be in the finest condition that fans have seen in many a year.

Although football is beginning to get into the news again, baseball continues to be the main topic of conversation. The Doughs have been going strong, and are set for the run trip which will carry them to Paris Island next week-end to return the Marine visit here. The Doughs played host to the devil-dog last weekend, but I'm afraid the Paris Island boys went home with a hurt in their throats, after losing two to the Benchmen. The team is to be congratulated on its remarkable feat in defeating the Marines last Saturday night—every man on the Post should be proud to see the Doughboys, for they exhibited more determination and fight in that game than any team I have ever seen.

And the tilt brought about a change in the line-up which appears to be the missing factor in past Dough games. Until the Paris Island series, too much of the hitting power rested harmlessly on the bench, and as a result the Doughs' scoring capacities were minimized. However, Bench used his trump card Saturday, placing all his hitters on the field.

The result, a 13-12 victory. Terry has come in from left field to fill this hole, with Brooks going to shortstop. Brooks has replaced Terry's vacancy in left field while Ken Watts has been holding down first. Of course, Watts is one of the most effective hurlers that the Doughs have, but why should his hitting ability be confined to a game a week? Since Watts has appeared regularly in the lineup, he has knocked in a total of six runs, and has been hitting at a .666 pace. Yes, it looks as though Bench has done the smart thing, for the Doughs are now monopolizing on every good batter the teams has... and runs are scored with hits.

The Third Army Baseball Championship is to be played at Gowdy Field September 15-21. So many Army teams have been formed, the A&R Office that they won't be able to make the tourney, that much thought has been given to inviting any service team within a radius of 300 miles. This strikes most people as a splendid idea, for since the Armed Forces have been merged, there can be little said against the suggestion. Should this thought become a reality, the tournament will surely be far more interesting as well as providing very keen competition. Who's to win? Why the Doughs, of course!

Learned not long ago that the Post now has an archery club. They journey out into the dense forests last Sunday, but only brought back one rabbit. Incidentally one of the Robin Hood gang is reported to have stepped on said rabbit. But it sounds like good sport. After the big season blacks hit, perhaps the archers will be able to see the game.

With the Third Army Softball Tournament only two short weeks away, the teams are really trying to put on the show for representation of Fort Benning in the coming tourney that will be played at Fort Jackson, S. C. Sept. 1-7. It looks as though the Airborne Battalion is heading toward the championship as it has beaten every opponent on the field. League competition ends August 22, and the various sports organizational teams will comprise the Post softball team. From that date until the tournament day, the team will be hard at work conditioning for tourney competition.

The microphones at Gowdy field were on the bum the other night, but nobody was very worried about it. We still have S-Sgt. Vay informing the fans and the players what the score is. We're all for those strong lungs, however, and are all holding out for more like him.

A young lady finding herself stranded in a small town, asked an old man where she could spend the night.

"There ain't no hotel," he said. "If you can stay with the station agent."

"Sir," she exclaimed, "I'll have you know that I'm a lady."

"That's all right," drawled the old man. "So is the station agent."

Glasses definitely help to cure that tired feeling, any oculist will tell you.

The trouble is that most people can't afford to fill the glasses.

8 Women Golfers Sign For Tourney

Eight Post golf enthusiasts have already signified their intentions to compete in the Georgia Women's Golf association tournament to be held at Thomasville Sept. 8-12. The following linksters will enter the meet: Mrs. Robert D. Hill, Mrs. D. P. Buckland, Mrs. James Hungeat, Mrs. Frank Goss, Mrs. Donald London, Mrs. E. M. Edis, Mrs. James V. Thompson, and Mrs. Ed Curtis.

Women from the Post interested in competing in the tournament can contact Mrs. Robert D. Hill, chairman of the board of the formation.

Penner Named Coach Of Sand Hill Team

With Lt. John Smith having been transferred to another station, the baseball coaching reins of the 25th Bullets has been assumed by Lt. William H. Penner. A native of Newport, R. I., Lt. Penner was a first-stringer on Newport High's football, baseball, and basketball teams. He is also well known as an amateur boxer in New England pugilistic circles. Since joining the 25th, he has refereed boxing matches, and recently piloted the First Battalion to the '47 round-robin baseball title.

Georgia Women's Golf association meet can contact Mrs. Robert D. Hill, chairman of the board of the formation.

Doughboy Battering Drops Slightly During Week

Doughboy battering dropped but a few points this week, with hot Benchmen bats still burning the fingers of every pitcher that has taken the mound against them.

However, it is in the field that the Doughs have improved remarkably. Heretofore, the Doughs have allowed many unscathed runs to be scored as a result of too many miscues in the field, but during this past week of play, the team has greatly improved. Such men as Moody Burnett, Alford Boesman, and Murray Dickson, fleet center fielder, have made some near-impossible stops and catches, saving many potential runs.

Bartosek, is leading the batters with an even .500, and has been at the plate but twice during the entire season. Dickson, Burnett, Watts, Lehner, and Gallagher are still hitting the ball hard and consistently, and are all well over a .400 average. Dickson is also leading his teammates in hits, having an aggregate of 19 in ten games, while Kinard has retained his run lead with 18. As a result of the two Farris Island games, McGowan punched his total of runs batted in to 12.

Marble Shaft Honors Dead

A monument honoring the nation's prisoner-of-war dead, erected at Benning and Cassella roads, was unveiled during ceremonies Wednesday afternoon before a gathering of Muscogee county citizens. Servicemen and civilians, who are former prisoners of war, and friends and relatives of men who died in overseas prison camps were present as Col. O. O. Wilson, a former prisoner in a Japanese prison camp unveiled the 11-foot white marble structure. The Rev. M. D. Reed, pastor of the Baker Village Baptist church, opened the services with the invocation. Following the dedicatory speech by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, post commander, the monument was accepted by T. G. Reeves, executive chairman of the Muscogee County Commission, on behalf of the county. Richard E. Thayer, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, served as master of ceremonies. More than $1,700 was contributed for the monument. A scroll bearing the names of all contributors has been sealed in a metal box within the concrete. Post Pistol Men Take Individual Honors in Meet

Fort Benning's pistolmen captured two fifth places in individual matches in the 67th Annual National Rifle association pistol matches staged at Camp Perry, Ohio, last week.

Sgt. James W. Foster placed fifth with a score of 192 out of a possible 200 in match No. 63, center firing match of the .45 caliber pistol. Master Sergeant Curtis C. Fritchman posted a score of 196 in match No. 58, which was the .22 calibre firing.

Teams total scores and team match winners have not as yet been announced, but Sgt. Hink Benner of the Armored Force School, Fort Knox, Ky., paced the field in individual National Rifle association pistol matches, winning the .22 calibre and 38 calibre meet and other matches.

In the War Department National Trophy individual match, the championship went to the Navy. Chief Petty Officer Joseph A. Young became the first Navy man to win the trophy in over 40 years.

12 Win Promotions Here During Week

School Troops promotions last week included T-4 George A. Lee to technician third grade, Pfc. Robert B. Grace to technician fourth grade, Pfc. Charles C. Fox, Pfc. Harold L. Marsh, and Pfc. Russell P. O'Brien to technician fifth grade, and T-5 George M. Ford to sergeant. All are members of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Pfc. James F. Duncan was promoted to corporal and Pfc. Delmar C. Wharf and William L. Fahn to the grade of sergeant. All three are assigned to the 37th Infantry's Company C.

Privates Herman L. Waradli, William C. Cart and Ernest C. Hare, Service Company of the 37th Infantry, were promoted to technician fifth grade.

Active Duty Men Younger Than Vets

WASHINGTON (APFS) — The average man still in the armed services is four years younger than the average veteran of World War II, 29 years old, the Veterans' Administration has disclosed.

In a summary of its age distribution charts, the VA made these additional observations of age:

- (1) Average age of the World War I veteran is 53.7 years.
 - (2) Spanish-American war veteran, 71.1 years.
 - (3) Indian wars, 85 years.
 - (4) Civil War, 100.7 years.
- The charts said that of the 14,361,000 World War II veterans, 28 per cent are less than 25 years of age, thirty-three per cent are from 25 to 29 years old and 30 per cent are from 30 to 39.

This is a part of the Regular Army's program to standardize clothing of officers and enlisted men, and issue of the cap has already begun, officials said.

The overseas cap will become obsolete eventually and all Army troops will wear the new style garrison cap. It comes with four interchangeable covers, two cotton khaki twill and two olive-drab wool.

Another new item which is slated to become standard equipment here is the combat cargo pack. This newer, more up-to-date pack replaces the 1917 model haversack and pack carrier. The combat cargo pack was issued during the latter part of World War II, but has not yet been used as regulation issue here.

The cargo pack is broader with a better distribution of weight. Straps are more adjustable and allow the load to be carried higher with less fatigue. The upper half, demountable from the lower, has compartments for toilet articles separated from the clothing bag by a waterproof shield.

He: "No, of course not."

She: "Well, you'd better start now, for that's my husband coming up the walk."

Sand Hill Plans Popularity Contest

With several late changes made by the booking offices, the Miss 25th Combat Team popularity contest and ball will be held in the Harmony Church Sports Arena Sept. 15 with the famed All-Star girl's orchestra, the International Sweethearts of Rhythm, furnishing music; it was announced today by Mrs. Kate L. Trent, hostess at Service Club No. 2.

Each company and battery has already selected contestants for the popularity contest which will be staged under an admission ticket-vote plan. The unit selling the most tickets under a comparative unit strength arrangement will be adjudged the outstanding contestant and its contestant will receive the title.

Won Play-Off

But it was Worthington who battled nip and tuck with every opponent to reach the finals. After he had won a sudden death play-off, he had to go extra holes in each of the three subsequent matches. In reaching the finals, Worthington defeated First Sergeant Ray Schneider 1-up, 20 holes; Lt. Col. Fannie Kelley, 1-up, 19 holes; and Staff Sergeant Frase, who was the last enlisted man to be eliminated in the championship fight, 1-up in 19 holes. It was a sad Saturday for Captain Edwin Kingsley for he lost his match to Worthington by default. It must have been an exceptionally good lunch that caused the seeded golfer to arrive 20 minutes tardy for his scheduled match, and the 1200 short seconds denied him the chance to vie for the title. As the tourney opened last Tuesday, it was anybody's match as the opinions for winners were so diversified that the spectators were taking the cadaver word over the sports casters. Although Colonel Jim Wilson was considered the outright contender for the crown at the outset of tournament play, his past skills were missing on the course, and he had to fight hard to clinch finalists honors in the second flight.

Long Downs Maloney

Lt. C. M. Maloney, who had posted a 68 to top all linkmen in the first 13 qualifying holes, slipped badly and was defeated by Staff Sergeant Harley Long on Thursday.

In fact, as tourney play advanced to the point where finalists were determined, only Moseley, who had played sensational golf from the outset, remained in the running. Worthington, who was just another golfer, fought his way to top all pre-tourney favorites and capped the finalists' honors.

In the senior division, Colonel Edward V. Macaker, Fort McPherson, Ga., chipped in from the rough, 80 yards from the cup, to capture medalist honors in that phase of tourney competition. His sensational shot putting him on the 18th green in two, gave him a 79, 18 holes. In the junior division, Thomas M. Belshe, AAF Headquarters in Washington, who tied for second honors with 80. Major General John W. O'Daniel, commander of Fort Benning, and Lt. Gen. B. E. Emmons, Army War College, Norfolk, Va., were both entries in the senior tournament, but met defeat in flight play.

M-Sgt. Curtis D. Smith, of Barksdale Field, La., wore the biggest smile of the tournament, when he made a hole in one on the 13th hole during match play Thursday, but was defeated the following day by Capt. Percival Feigel.

Lt. General Alvan C. Gillem, commanding general of the Third Army, presented Captain Moseley with a beautiful individual trophy during the presentation ceremonies which took place immediately after Moseley had defeated Worthington in the final match. Air Transport Command took team honors.

staff, receiving the appointment as the general's aide de camp. At the outbreak of war, he was given additional duties as theater public relations officer.

Upon General MacArthur's departure from Corregidor December 27, 1941, Col. Diller was a member of the party they sailed on P. T. boats over China seas to Mindanao where they were picked up in two B-17s and transported to Australia.

MacArthur's PEO

He saw continuous service as Gen. MacArthur's public relations officer through the Papua and New Guinea campaigns; the reconquest of the Philippines, and during the initial stages of the Japanese occupation. Upon cessation of hostilities, Col. Diller returned to general staff duty where he organized the office of secretary, general staff, in which capacity he served until June 1947, when he returned to the states to assume command of the 25th Infantry.

During his term of service, he rose from the ranks to the grade of brigadier general, which rank he held from February 14, 1945 until April 1, 1946.

Col. Diller graduated from Syracuse university with a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering. He received his second lieutenant's commission in 1923 by virtue of being an honor graduate of the university. ROTC recognition for services during the late war, he wears the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, and the Philippine Distinguished Service Star.

Royce Heads School Troops Organizations

Col. Charles H. Royce, former Public Relations officer for General Douglas MacArthur, assumed command of School Troops last week, replacing Col. Ben Hartell who was transferred to the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

A graduate of West Point, Colonel Royce was deputy chief of Staff of the IX Corps in Japan prior to his arrival here. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff School and the British War College.

Comprising about one-third of the strength of the post, the School Troops organization plays an integral part in most functions and activities. With wide and varied duties its primary mission is furnishing demonstration troops for the Academic department at these demonstrations, as well as providing assistants to instructors in the Academic department at these demonstrations, including all formal ceremonies, the units also provide honor guards for visiting dignitaries, both national and foreign.

Duties Extensive

Indicative of the extensiveness of the school troops duties, is the presence of a platoon now at West Point, N. Y., conducting demonstrations for the United States Military Academy. The unit is expected to return at the end of this month.

School Troops consists of six battalions and the 72nd Army Band. Battalions include the 756th Tank, 83rd Field Artillery, 78th Combat Engineers, 204th Transportation, First Battalion, 37th Infantry, and the 501st Parachute Infantry.

The 756th Tank Battalion, commanded by Maj. D. L. Benton Jr., went overseas in 1942, participating in the African, Italian, and Southern France campaigns. The unit received the Croix de Guerre for distinguished performance in the Southern France campaign.

Commanded by Lt. Col. John W. A. Gloriot, the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion is a descendant of the

Airborne Unit Increases Education Opportunities

Not to be caught napping in this fast-moving modern Army, the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion has embarked upon a program of increasing education and education opportunities.

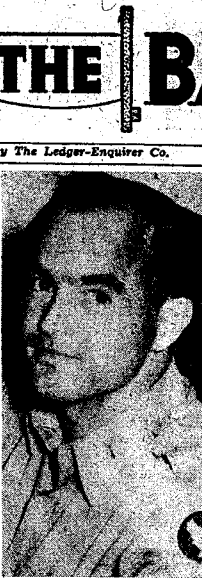

Time will eventually prove that, just as in civil life, the Army is going to pay off in its speedier advancement to the educated soldier.

The installment of a public address system for daily news broadcasts is only one of the many mediums slated to be established in the Battalion. Aside from the daily local and post news, a national and general summary of news events will be carried. The public address system will enhance the fullness at troop dinners, social events, ceremonies, forums and musical programs.

CAPT. H. D. ELIOT

Eliot Appointed Base Adjutant

Capt. Harold D. Eliot, formerly finance officer at Lawson field, has been appointed Base Adjutant, Col. Gilbert Collier, base commander, announced today.

He succeeds Capt. Ivan L. Hale, who has left the base to attend Air Tactical school, Tyndall field, Fla.

A native of Canton, Okla., Capt. Eliot entered service as an enlisted man in June, 1941, and graduated from the Air Forces Army-engine flying school at Miramar field, California, in May, 1942.

During the war he served in the Southwest Pacific theater flying troops and equipment in unarmored transport planes of the Fifth Air Force. He remained overseas for 22 and a half months, in July, 1946, he was assigned to Lawson field from Sedalia, Mo., and the following month went to Finance Officer's school in St. Louis, Mo. Since returning here last November, he has served as base finance officer and later as budget and fiscal officer.

The new adjutant is credited with 3,700 flying hours and was awarded the DFC with cluster, Air Medal, and Unit Citation with cluster. He also wears the Pearl Harbor, American Defense and Southwest Pacific ribbons.

Promotion Policy Enters New Phase

The policy governing promotion of enlisted men here has entered until the proposed permanent career planning program goes into effect next year, it was revealed today.

To insure an equitable and consistent policy in the promotion of enlisted men the newly proposed career plan will be carefully studied to avoid promotion of enlisted men who may be subsequently reduced because of lack of qualifications.

Post Archers Organize Club

Plans for an archery club to be known as the Benning Bowmen have been approved by Maj. Gen. John O'Hanlon, commander of the Infantry Center, and officials have already begun work on a archery course, it was announced today.

The course, described by a club spokesman as comparable to the famous Swan club, and San Francisco Archery courses, will be located behind the old post housing alleys.

Membership is open to officers, enlisted men, and civilians, it was revealed. There will be no dues.

The course will be open for shooting at all times under the rules of the National Field Archery association.

A club room for the Benning Bowmen will be set up in the screening Center area, behind the Main theater. A number of archery books, Archery magazine, and catalogs of leading bowyers and fletchers will be available there to all interested personnel Monday through Friday from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. it was pointed out.

Two trophies have been donated to the organization and are in the exhibit in the Main post exchange. Fort Benning personnel desiring additional information are requested to call 2215 between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Announcement

Labor Day—Monday, Sept. 1—will be a legal holiday for all military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning. All duties except necessary administration and guard will be suspended, officials said.

World War II Victory Medals Now Available At Screening Center

Civilian World War II Veterans are who desire the American Defense Medal and the World War Victory Medal may secure them by contacting the Screening Center, it was announced today.

Designated to handle applications here, the screening center will procure, record, and distribute American Defense Medals, Foreign Service clasps and World War II Victory Medals.

Columbus Plans To Terminate Lease Aug. 31

The million-dollar Benning Park Homes project, home of 350 Fort Benning officers' families, will be transferred to War Department jurisdiction August 31, it was officially announced last week.

The management of the project was taken over by the Columbus Housing Authority in September, 1942, and after five years the housing authority asked a resolution last Wednesday, terminating its lease on the project.

During five years operation under the Columbus Housing Authority in September, 1942, and after five years the housing authority asked a resolution last Wednesday, terminating its lease on the project.

The project had paid Muscogee county $12,000 annually in lieu of county taxes in addition to the refund to the federal government. It is expected that approximately $28,000 will be saved by the government monthly through the use of the project.

The transfer was designed to prevent the sale of the project to private individuals. None of the tenants will be affected by the move.

Plans are being made for improvements of quarters and facilities, and equipment necessary for the upkeep of the project, such as lawn mowers and other tools, it was pointed out.

New Officers' Mess Opens On Main Post

The Student Training Regiment's Officers' mess began operation on the Main Post Monday following a week of renovation under the supervision of M/Sgt. Paul Insinga.

Improvements on the building included repainting both the interior and exterior and installation of fluorescent lights. A special feature of the new mess is that its walls will be adorned with oil paintings made by German prisoners of war, continued here.

STR's Second Company Boasts Unique Record

Probably the only company on the post that can boast membership ranging from legislators and prospective doctors to philosophy top-notch athletes is the Student Training Regiment's Second Company, it was pointed out today.

Previous occupants of the barracks of the Second Company were commanding officers of the company, expressed it. "This outfit is not unique to fame."

Maj. Decatur P. Butler is a member of the Mississippi state legislature, which is at present on vacation awaiting the fall session. A veteran of the Third Infantry division, the major was a second lieutenant for a long time.

One of the heard complex of the France campaign, he had his men lying low beside an artillery barrel out of the jeep and without approaching on the road. Rising from his position, he got the men out of the jeep and without commanding words, told them to "keep under cover." The elder of the two jeep occupants asked Butler for "Second Lieutenant Butler," replied, "I've been one for a long time."

Gets Promotion

The next morning he went to regimental headquarters, where his commanding officer had called him. "You're now a captain," the gentleman said. "The gentleman you chewed out last night was Gen. Alexander Patch, corps commander."

Career Planning

The Army has had some pretty unfair publicity since the end of the war, ranging from the so-called caste system to the system of promotions. Living such a glass-house life, it is sometimes hard to defend ourselves without causing hard feelings, but at least we can do our best.

Officials, thinking perhaps there might be room for complaint, have worked out much new legislation, foremost of which is the plan labeled career planning.

Regardless of what might be said for the former method governing promotions of enlisted men, we still feel that the newly adopted policy which goes into effect next month is just about the best thing that has happened in a long time.

Not only will the enlisted man have more incentive to do a better job, he will also be able to see concrete evidence of his efforts. The career plan will in all its far-reaching manifestations give the Army better non-commissioned-officer material, men whose lives are more in tune with the progressively improving military might.

Here at Fort Benning officials have been quick to recognize the need for an extensive educational program suited to the new legislation and at the same time geared to future planning. From lessons learned during the war years, top administrative leaders compiled facts which led to the conclusion that American youth today really seeks to better himself, provided he is not pushed. He wants to think that he is doing the planning all alone. Consequently, the vocational night school, the expanding education and information services are gaining more adherents daily. Everyone wants to be qualified fully when the time comes for a promotion.

We have watched with growing pleasure, the ever-increasing enrollment at night school. It's an old American habit, the earnest desire to learn something new. It's an old American habit, this business of learning. When this country was developed, hardy pioneers held on to their smattering of knowledge and tried in every way to better their institutions of learning. Today we have facilities for education which would amaze those men who braved the wilderness and unknown areas of this country; but their old spirit of grasping for additional "book-learning" is still as prevalent as ever, and the American soldier is certainly no exception.

This career plan is certainly the greatest change in the post-war Army. If for no other reason, it is great because it awakes the average man, who thought he had enough education, out of his lethargy long enough to realize that he had better do something if he wanted to remain at the helm of his job.

Career planning will, in addition to making promotions dependent strictly on qualifications, help to swell the rolls of enlistments. It's only natural for a man to decide upon the Army as a career when he knows that his non-commissioned officers are of the highest caliber.

Perhaps those persons who have falsely branded the Army as a place for the ner-do-wells and misfits will take another inventory and realize that the United States Army is still one of the greatest organizations in the world today.

No where's the story making the rounds about the rescourer GI who invented the "meat ball" pen point. It writes under gravity.

I took her to a night club. I took her to a show. I took her almost everywhere. A boy said a girl was in love with me. I took her to swell dances. I took her out to town. When all my dough was gone I saw she had been taking me.

1st Vet: "Did you volunteer or were you drafted?"
2nd Vet: "Well, it was like this. My number came up, I had no dependents and I was a physical... so I volunteered."

I always thought she had a face just a mother could love. I heard she was going to inherit a million dollars. I suddenly discovered I was going to become a mother.

MP arrived on the scene of the crime. "Well," he said, "this is more serious than I figured. The window is broken on both sides."

The guy came to the hospital swathed in bandages. Nearly said one of his buddies. "What happened?" he inquired anxiously.

"Well," said his buddy. "It was that way pay day. You laid two to 1—you could jump out of a second floor window, fly twice around the barracks and in the window again."
"Ohmigod," groaned the GI. "Why didn't you stop me?"

First soldier—"How'd your girl like the bathing suit you bought her?"
Second soldier—"Swell. You should have seen her beam."

Middle age is that period in life when one's stomach goes out for a career of its own.

Chaplain's Corner.

WORLD'S CONCEPT OF LOVE

Chaplain J. J. Jedlowski
Man's end is simply to know love and God this world in order to possess Him eternally in heaven. Each and every creature, according to its nature, can assist us to obtain that end.

TO KNOW GOD. The order of the world reveals to us His wisdom. "The heavens show forth the glory of God" (Ps. xviii:1). They place in a manner under our eyes His infinite perfections and, principally, His power and grandeur. The ocean declares His immensity, the flowers of the field recall His beauty. Even the existence of the wicked is a homage to His justice and mercy.

TO LOVE GOD. It is His goodness which bestows upon us with such abundance not only that which we need, but that also which is agreeable and useful to us. His love works in the thought of each of His creatures. It is He who lights up our eyes through the bright sun who nourishes us by the fruits of the earth. God became as it were our servant, serving us with a much tenderness and constancy. Was a motive to love Him!

TO SEE GOD. Every one of these creatures serve the creator. (Ps. cxvii). "The wind and the sea obey Him" (Mark vi:40). How do His loves work in the world? They do it with pleasure. "The stars have given light in their watches and rejoiced" (Job iii:24). They do it with respect. "He sendeth forth light and it goeth, obeyeth Him" with trembling" (Bar. iii:33). They do it with promptness. "Who walketh upon the wings of the wind who maketh His angels, spirits, and ministers a flaming fire" (Ps. cii:6). They do it with immutability. "By Thy ordinance the day goeth on, for all things serve Thee" (Ps. cxviii:91).

They do it by the God against their natural inclination. If He will have it so, the most ardent heat will be cooled; the sea will become solid under man's feet; the rivers will ascend toward their sources. What a hymn of praise is sung by all nature to God's glory!

As men, as Christians, we should have been the soul of that concert; but alas! too often we have our- selves distanced. We have refused to serve Him. Was it because we were of all others under the strongest obligation to do so?

Roving Law Officer: Sorry, miss you can't swim here!
Pretty Swimmer: Why didn't you tell me that before I undressed?

Officer: We ain't got no law against undressing.
"What is it that has horns, a pointed tail, and carries a pitchfork?"
"I give up."
"I don't know either, but it's been following us ever since we left that last bar."

A LABAR-TOON

Your Red Cross

BY CHARLES F. PARKER, AFD
Mutt: 25-35: "For I was hungry and Ye gave me meat . . . naked and Ye clothed me . . . sick and Ye visited me in prison and Ye came unto me."

The spirit of Red Cross is symbolized in the above scripture. The ideals of Red Cross are akin to all great religions. This kinship consists of meeting the needs of those who suffer hardships. It may manifest itself in supplying bundles of clothing, blood plasma or food and shelter in times of disaster. In a real sense the Red Cross is a group of 30 million members who give aid of themselves in time, physical effort, and money to relieve distress and suffering caused by war, famine, and natural disasters.

The Red Cross knows no boundary of color, nationality, or creed. It is an organization which belongs to you. When a little girl in Holland or a little boy in France gets a warm coat or a pair of shoes, it is you who gave it. The word gave is correct, too—it's all voluntary and no one is coerced or forced to help.

In keeping with the quotation from the scripture, here are some instances of the Red Cross ideals in practical application. During World War II the Red Cross gave help to 75 million sick and destitute victims in 46 countries. The supplies alone amounted to an estimated value of over $152 million.

"When I was in prison Ye visited me." The last war brought destruction and misery unparalleled in history. Through all this wrangle of hatred, suspicion, bloodshed, and disruption of morals, there shines a gleam of hope for peace—the spirit of Red Cross. You ask, "Why?" It's the ideal and principles of Red Cross.

founded on Christian faith. These ideals tower above the littleness of hate and war in such acts as the delivery of tons of food, clothing and thousands of messages to men who suffered in enemy prison camps. Without this great neutral force, dedicated to the service of all humanity, thousands more would have perished. If men can rise above their jealousies and suspicions in acts of mercy, may we not have expedient to dissolve selfish ambitions in the interest of peace and good will.

"When you see a man who has been hurt by the roadside, you help him. When a hotel burns in Atlanta or an explosion occurs in Texas City, you may not be close by physically, but your Red Cross is a part of yourself lending a helping hand to a neighbor who needs food, medicine, and a place to live.

The spirit of Red Cross in practice concludes the promise from the above verse of scripture. "In as much as Ye did it unto one of the least of these Ye did it unto me."

A Georgia school girl included in her prize essay this recipe: "Take one regular natural-born fool, add two or three drinks of liquor and mix the two in a high-powered automobile. After the fool is thoroughly soaked, place his foot on the gas and release the brakes. Remove the foot from the wreckage. Place in a black, satin-lined box and garnish with flowers."

The magician's wife knew he was up to his old tricks when she found a hare on his shoulder.

Tony practically had his citizenship papers in his pocket, when the magistrate asked him a question about the American flag. "Think now," said the magistrate—"What is it you always see flying over the courthouse?" Tony brightened and answered triumphantly—"Pigeons!"

"Mrs. Clark, your little Junior is sure spoiled."
"He is not spoiled."
"Oh no?"
"Just come and see what the steam roller did to him."

INSIDE U. S. A.

John Gunther, author of Inside Europe, Inside Asia, and Inside Latin America, has come here to do the finest work of the series: Inside U. S. A., a down-to-earth travelogue of this great country of ours.

Most Americans are already familiar with the beautiful style which has made Mr. Gunther famous and his books eagerly sought after; however, few have considered him top-notch as a writer. With the publication of his latest "inside" book, there is no doubt about his greatness.

The mere thought of compiling data about each of the 48 states of America is a terrifying assignment, but Mr. Gunther has done exactly that with an excellent piece of non-fiction resulting. As precise it is not completely true, it will be long remembered, but as a chronicle of the history of the United States, there is none to compare.

Mr. Gunther begins with California and proceeds slowly up the West Coast, giving the reader a clear insight into the personalities of these states, their politics, their social and intellectual topography. Then he inspects the great Northwest, swinging down into the Rockies and emerging into the Great Plains.

He penetrates the Middle West, making an upward detour into New England and dropping down to New York. He circles Pennsylvania and proceeds slowly down the Atlantic Seaboard, inspecting the unpredictable border states and the Deep South. The climax of the journey is Texas, largest of all the American states. He concludes with the looking-glass trip with a quick tour of the great Southwest.

During his year of travel, Mr. Gunther talked with governors, senators, representatives, city officials, political leaders, businessmen, church officials, and the man-in-the-street. He found out what made America what it is—a complex of political thought, religious fanaticism, and gentleness, it is today. He found out what we are doing in the Atomic Age, what we did before the last war.

Inside U. S. A. takes on a hame-spun air with the calling of names prominent in government, politics, the church, and society and business. He describes some of the better known, such as Henry Kaiser and Henry Ford, with minute detail. He digs into the background of their wealth, their world outlook, their social and economic problems.

One of the most valuable assets any book of this kind has is an accurate picture of the economic condition of the states. We have it all in this book, with many figures to give it authenticity.

The reader will find many things which will shock him, especially the facts about our public health, standards of education, and religion. He will find out how much money was spent on the race track during 1945 and how little attention was paid to a bill introduced in Congress to carry on the fight against cancer.

The reader will learn many things about the crackpotism of the North, East, West and South. He will find that all the K. K. Klans are not in the South, that all Lynchings do not occur below the Mason-Dixon line only, that the gangsterism does not exist solely in the thickly populated Eastern seaboard or Chicago. He will learn that not all Latter Day Saints adhere strictly to the tenets of the church, and that there are many Mormons outside Utah.

For a wonderful trip through the United States of America, inside U. S. A. is tops.

Post Theater Guide

MARGIE (comedy-drama in technicolor) with Jeanne Crain and Glenn Langan. A gay, nostalgic journey back to the period of the Roaring Twenties when flaming youth in rolled stockings and raccoon coats and brightly painted jalopies caused much eyebrow-raising among the older folks. Recommended for family.

THE PRETENDER (melodrama) with Albert Dekker, Catherine Craig, and Charles Drake. Some crooks are too smart. Especially this one who finds himself the target of his clever murder plot. Recommended for family.

THE OTHER LOVE (melodrama) with Barbara Stanwyck, David Niven, and Richard Conte. Caring for a patient becomes involved when the doctor falls in love with the patient and the patient is not for mature.

SOMETHING IN THE WIND (romantic drama) with Deanna Durbin, Donald O'Connor, John Dall, and Charles Winninger. Anything that offers you a million dollars, does it a fad? That's what happened to Deanna. As a singing disc jockey, she finds herself involved in a kidnaping and attempted bribery—all because of mistaken identity. Recommended for family.

BULLDOG DRUMMOND STRIKES BACK (mystery) with Ronald Randall, Gloria Henry, and Pat O'Moore. A huge fortune, missing heir, and murdered Scotland Yard inspector. Drummond again finds himself involved in a crime and has to solve it to save his own neck. Recommended for family.

SMOKY RIVER SERENADE (action musical) with Hooper Hotsots, Paul Campbell, and Ruth Terry. The Hotsots are up to their eyes in holding a beauty contest. Recommended for family.

Traveling Units Slated To Test Aviation Cadets

Special tests used to select Army Air Forces aviation cadets during the war proved so successful that the Army Air Forces now plans to give the tests in traveling examining units which will visit all parts of the country. Applicants who are Army Air Forces pilot training can undergo final tests at Army Air Forces bases near their homes when the mobile units visit more than a score of Army Air Forces installations throughout the United States.

The tests which saved millions of dollars during the war by helping the Army Air Forces choose the men most likely to succeed in flight training, will eliminate applicants physically and mentally unsuitable for military flying.

Planned by the Army Air Forces School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field (San Antonio), Texas, each traveling unit consists of two 45-foot truck trailers and three staff cars. The trailers are air-conditioned and divided into six testing rooms. Each unit is operated by officers and enlisted specialists from the Psychological Research and Examining Unit at Randolph Field.

The written tests and apparatus examinations, prepared by many of the country's leading psychologists, were used for examining more than 600,000 men during the war. Among the equipment in the Army Air Forces mobile examining units is apparatus used to test finger dexterity, arm and leg coordination, and various reaction times. The Army Air Forces has pointed out that the tests were not designed to measure intelligence or scholastic achievement, but to indicate an applicant's aptitude for flying duty.

Unmarried men between the ages of 18 and 26½ who have completed two years of college or who pass an educational examination can take preliminary tests at Army Air Forces bases in many parts of the country. Local Army Recruiting Officers and all Army Air Forces bases can supply detailed information to interested men.

Applicants who are accepted as cadets will be trained in a 52-week course leading to a commission and a pilot's rating in the Army Air Forces. While in training their pay will be $75 a month plus $1 a day ration allowance. Cadets' uniforms and equipment will be supplied by the Army Air Forces, and a $10,000 life insurance policy underwritten at Government expense for all cadets in training.

When commissioned as second lieutenants, they will receive monthly pay and allowances ranging from $336 for single officers to $372 for married pilots. Applications are being accepted now for the cadet class beginning October 15; another class will open March 1, 1948.

blue and gold colors of the air forces and the colonel's table was covered with a white floor-length cloth and centered with a white cake embossed with the numerals 30 in red. Summer flowers and burning tapers completed the centerpiece.

Seated at the head of the table with Colonel Collar were Mrs. Collar, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Fred Henry, Maj. and Mrs. John Wretschko, and Maj. and Mrs. Evelyn E. Trent. More than 150 guests attended.

After the guests were served, Col. Collar thanked his hosts briefly, and was presented with a gift.

An orchestra presented background music and later the guests enjoyed dancing.

Col., Mrs. Cole Fete Houseguest

Mrs. Hazel Foutz of Fayetteville, Ark., was a houseguest at the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William R. Cole over the week end and left Tuesday morning to drive to New York where she plans to enter the real estate business. During the past year Mrs. Foutz was an instructor in English at the University of Arkansas.

Saturday evening Colonel and Mrs. Cole entertained in honor of their guest when they had a group of friends in for cocktails before going to the Officers' club for dancing.

In the party were Mrs. Foutz, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joseph A. Remus, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Matt C. Bristol, Major and Mrs. Billy E. Salter and Major James M. Browning.

Sunday evening the Coles again entertained at a cocktail party at their quarters and Mrs. Cole used bright bouquets of zinnias to decorate the rooms open to the guests.

The guests were Mrs. Foutz, Maj. and Mrs. Harry D. McHugh, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Davis, Capt. and Mrs. Winston L. Olson and Capt. and Mrs. James C. Griffin.

Graduates Have Party At Club

Officer-graduates of the basic class of the Airborne School and their ladies held a dinner-dance at the Officers' club Saturday evening with eight couples present. Cocktails were served at the quarters of Major and Mrs. J. T. Murphy before dinner.

In addition to the eight couples who were members of the class, Major and Mrs. John Urban were also present at the aperitif party where Mrs. Murphy used pastel flowers and tapers to decorate the rooms open to the guests.

Most of the officers who graduated from the basic class have left for duty at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Jerry McDonald

Lt. and Mrs. Edwin T. McDonald announce the birth of a son, Jerry Thomas, on August 25 at the Fort Benning hospital.

Mrs. McDonald is the former Miss Doris Leitch, of Findley, Ohio. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Leitch, of Mt. Blanchester, Ohio. Lt. McDonald is the photo officer at Lawson field, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald of Findley, Ohio.

Lawson Field Club Elects Officers

Lawson field officers held a general meeting of the Officers' club last Friday evening and elected Maj. James Hayden, club president; Capt. J. H. Schweickert, vice-president; and Lt. Fern, secretary.

A new board of governors was also installed. The new members are Capt. Joseph Lewandowski, Capt. William L. Clement, Maj. Maloney and Lt. E. T. McDonald.

Co-Hosts Have Formal Dinner At Officers' Club

Major and Mrs. D. L. Benton and Major and Mrs. E. G. Owens of School Troops gave a formal dinner party Friday evening at the Officers' club.

Those present were Col. C. H. Wheeler, Major commanding officer of School Troops; Lt. Col. Ben Harrell, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Mary B. Grayland, Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. T. Yarnall, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. M. Duncan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. M. Flynn, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. A. Giorio, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Bryer, Lt. Col. J. Greuday, Major and Mrs. E. W. Meade, Major and Mrs. E. E. Haddaway, Major and Mrs. H. E. Law, Major and Mrs. C. A. Sachs, Miss Helen Hulvat, and the hosts. Tapers in crystal candelabra and mixed summer flowers in glass baskets were used to decorate the long table arranged on the patio.

Picnic Supper Honors Linnels

Honoring Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank H. Linnel, who have since left the Post, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Warren C. Chapman entertained informal picnic supper served in the yard at their quarters.

Cocktails were served earlier in the evening and Colonel Chapman presided at the barbecue pit where steaks were prepared for the guests. Small tables set for four in the yard were covered with colorful cloths and decorated with striped balsa wood and tinsel candies. Later in the evening games were enjoyed. Linnel have gone to Quantico, Va., where he will attend the senior course of the Amphibious Warfare school.

GI Humor

Two battle-weary German infantrymen crouched in the muddy protection of a shellhole somewhere on the Western front. Finally the barrage subsided and the besplattered men sighed with relief and sat for a few moments in contemplative silence. Then one glanced sharply at the other.

"Fritz, you look worried—is something troubling you?"

Fritz glanced furtively about him before replying, "Heinrich, it is only that these bullets are always chasing us, and we seem to be advancing backward."

"How dare you say such a thing, Fritz! Did you not hear Herr Goebbels say over the wire- less that we were merely completing strategic withdrawals and that everything is proceeding according to plan?"

Fritz subsided into pensive silence. Then he spoke innocently. "Yes, but which side is making the plan that everything is proceeding according to?"

Hubby wandered in at 0300, at a glorious evening. In a few minutes a sort of unceremonious howled out of the radio discovered him twisting the dial back and forth frantically.

"For heaven's sake, what are you doing?" she exclaimed.

"G'way, G'way. Don't bother me," he yelled. "Somebody's locked the radio and I've forgotten the combination."

Mrs. A: "Oh, I'm so happy. My husband is going in for anthropology. I've always known that he was capable of doing something worth while."

Mrs. B: "How did you find out?"

Mrs. A: "I found some little green tickets in his pocket and upon them was written 'Mud- pore at Fort.'"

Tourist: "That's a quaint little village! Truly one half of the world is ignorant of how the other half lives."

Native: "Not in this village, mister, not in this village."

First Mess Sergeant: "I have my Kie tried so they eat out of my hand."

Second M. S.: "Saves a lot of dish-washing, doesn't it?"

It was reported to the Skipper that a certain man was in the habit of absorbing more alcohol than was good for him. He determined to do his duty and look into the matter. The next day he met the man in question shortly after breakfast and asked: "Jones, do you drink?"

"Why, yes, Captain, but not so early in the morning, thank you."

A Des Moines home owner, wearing his oldest clothes, was mowing his lawn when a woman in a fine car stopped and asked him:

"What do you get for mowing lawns?"

"The lady who lives here lets me sleep with her," replied the home owner. The lady in the car, without a comment, drove away.

"No."

"No more put sand in bed?"

"No."

"Okay. No more put dish water in coffee."

NG Officers Now Eligible For RA

Commissioned officers of the National Guard may compete for commissioning in the Regular Army under the new competitive program recently announced by the War Department, Major General Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced today.

This is an excellent opportunity for qualified young National Guard Officers to win Regular Army commissions," General Miltonberger said.

Appointments will be made under a new program for bringing large numbers of young officers into the Regular Army. It is estimated that during the next several years approximately 2,000 appointments will be made yearly from all civilian components.

National Guard officers applying for the competitive tour of duty must have successfully completed two years of college and be between the ages of 21 and 25 years and six months at the time application is filed through State Adjutants General.

Competitive tours will be for a period of one year with applicants agreeing to remain on active duty for a minimum period of two years. Applications must be filed 60 days prior to January 1, 1948 and July 1, 1948, which will be the starting dates of competitive tours.

During the competitive year the applicant must demonstrate his fitness for appointment. Successful candidates will be commissioned in the Regular Army the completion of the one-year tour. Those not selected will remain on duty until completion of the two-year period. If still eligible they may elect to try another competitive tour during the second year.

Guard Air Units Given Opportunity To Fly Jet Planes

Air National Guard pilots will be afforded an opportunity to fly modern, post-war aircraft sometime next spring, it was disclosed today with the announcement that the Army Air Forces had signed a $2,500,000 contract with Lockheed Aircraft Corporation to purchase 32 new Lockheed P-80B "Shooting Star" jet fighters to be used to equip Air National Guard units.

Although the AAF is responsible for the procurement of the planes, the funds will be provided by the National Guard Bureau.

This will bring to 86 the number of P-80Bs on order for the Air National Guard, since a total of 100 "Shooting Stars" was allocated to the ANG from the AAF's last purchase of 134 of the high-speed jet fighters three months ago.

The P-80B, an improved version of the earlier "Shooting Star," features greater firepower than its predecessor, with six machine guns in the nose, each capable of firing 1200 rounds a minute. In addition, it boasts greater resistance to battle damage, with structural improvements including a thickened skin and strengthened bulkheads.

Other improvements over the earlier model include a pilot ejector seat to enable the pilot to leave the plane in an emergency at high speed, air conditioning in the pressurized cockpit, and the enclosure of radio masts and antennae within the canopy over the pilot's head to reduce drag.

The P-80B will also employ water injection in its J-33 turbojet engine to increase take-off and climb performance. The engine, designed by General Electric, is manufactured by the Allison Division of General Motors.

A modified "Shooting Star" designated the P-80R, recently set a new official world speed record when it flew 623.8 miles an hour at Maroo Army Air Base in Southern California.

The biological purpose of pain, although it may seem harsh to accept, is undoubtedly protective.

Ground Force Units Prepare For Cold Weather Operations

Advance units of AGF troops scheduled to participate in operations exercises this winter began arriving at Pine Camp, New York, August 28 to start preparations for the cold weather operations. It was announced by General Jacob L. Devere, commanding general, Army Ground Forces.

Approximately 150 officers and men are included in the initial complements sent from Fort Campbell, Kentucky, and Fort Meade, Maryland. By the time the exercises get under way on November 1, about 2800 soldiers will be quartered at the upper New York camp site.

The winter maneuvers, which will be directed by General Courtney H. Hodges, Commander of the First Army, with headquarters in New York, have been labeled "Operation Snowdrift." They will comprise a complete airhead operation. Climaxing the exercises will be a large-scale operation an airstrip in virgin country covered with deep snow. Heavy engineering equipment and supplies such as bulldozers, tractors and runway mats required for constructing an airfield will be brought in by gliders. Following this, troops will be brought into the airhead by plane.

A regimental combat team of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, North Carolina, will furnish more than 2100 troops to take part in the exercises. Backed by the Parachute Infantry Regiment of World War II fame.

The regiment made its initial combat jump at Gela on the southern coast of Sicily. Following this it jumped into the Italian campaign near the ruins of the ancient Greek colony of Paestum in Salerno Bay, where the 36th Infantry Division made the beach landings. Later, as a part of the VIII Corps, it dropped on the beach of the Cherbourg Peninsula in France and became the first American unit to liberate French towns. The town of Ste. Mere was the final combat jump of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment when the soldiers were forced to land on the hip as they came down in order to clear the ground of the waiting enemy.

Commanding officer of the 505th Airborne Regimental Combat Team is Lieutenant Colonel William E. Likman who has been in command of the outfit since April, 1944. Colonel Likman is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, and has been twice decorated with the Silver Star for gallantry in action.

Transportation Air
The 810th Troop Carrier Group, stationed at Pope Field, North Carolina, will provide the transportation for the airhead operations during the "Snowdrift" exercises. Commanding Colonel John R. Lackey, this group is equipped with the new Fairchild

C-82 Packet "Flying Boxcars," the new twin-engine aircraft of the Air Forces.

In addition to the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment, the "Snowdrift" combat team will consist of the following Army Brags: 456th F. A. Battalion Parachute; Co. B, 37th Engineer Maintenance Company; and the 82nd Signal Company.

Besides the advance units now pouring troops for the operation will be ordered to Pine Camp from Fort Jay, New York.

A carefully planned program has been prepared by AGF experts for acclimating the troops to cold weather maneuvers.

The first phase of the operation will be devoted to instruction of the individual soldier in survival methods in both bivouac and combat in snow and extremely cold weather. He will receive instruction in cold weather hygiene, personal health practices, and first aid methods. They will be taught to construct shelters and holes in the ice crusted snow covered terrain. How to wear the northern winter operations, the use of snow shoes and skis and arms and equipment in snow and extreme cold will receive considerable attention.

Emphasis will be placed during initial training phase, on maintenance of mail driving in deep snow, and exercises will be held in loading, lashing and using loggans and sleds.

Upon the completion of the program for training the individual soldier, the second phase will stress unit training at squad and platoon levels. Extended order marches and snowshoes, cross-country marches and bivouacs, and problems including parachute drops are included in the schedule. The succeeding phases of the operation will amplify the unit instruction to company, then battalion and finally regimental levels.

Much of the equipment that was tested and found satisfactory last winter during the Alaskan tests for the "Task Forces 'Frigid'" and "Williwaw" will be put to tactical use during the "Snowdrift" operation.

Airborne Class Grows
The total number of trainees in the Airborne Battalion's class B-38 rose to 171 this week with the addition of one officer and 13 enlisted men. The students enter their second week of training Monday.

Observes UMT Unit
Capt. Woodrow W. Millsaps, commanding officer of the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion's company A, returned Monday from Fort Knox, Ky., following a week's observation of the Army's universal military training experimental unit at Fort Knox, Ky.

Attains Typing Speed
Pvt. Frederic Jefferson, Student Training Regiment, attained a typing speed of 91 words per minute while a student in the Quartermaster School's basic enlisted administration course at Camp Lee, Va. It was learned here today.

Air Force Plans To Modernize 'Shooting Stars'

The Army Air Forces has let a contract to the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation for the modernization of 508 Lockheed P-80A "Shooting Star" jet-propelled fighter planes.

The modification order directed that certain changes be made in the early model P-80 to give them some of the features of the new model "Shooting Star" the recently-announced P-80B. These modifications are necessary to make modern first-line fighters craft of the older P-80s, due to the rapid advancement in jet airplane development. Certain engineering incorporations which were in an early stage of development when the P-80A went into production, are now considered essential.

Modernization items include injection of water-alcohol fuel for jet-assisted take-off; modification of wing tips; attachment of rocket launchers; and canopy detaching and cooling.

Five of the modified planes will be coming off the production line by the end of November, with as many as 120 planes in the factory at one time. The entire job will be completed by next spring.

In addition to modernization of all P-80A within the United States, preparation of 52 kits of parts necessary to modify "Shooting Stars" overseas.

Infantry Division Plans Convention

The 30th Infantry Division association will hold a three-day convention in Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 29 to Aug. 30. It was announced today by Mr. Robert L. Sloan of Nashville, secretary-treasurer of the association.

Registration of guests for the reunion will begin at 9 a. m. on Thursday, Aug. 28, at the Andrew Jackson and Hermitage hotels in Nashville.

Major General Leland S. Hobbs, former commanding general of the "Old Hickory" division, now commander of the 2nd Armored division at Camp Hood, Texas, and an honorary president of the association, will be a principal speaker during the three-day convention.

Now a National Guard division for North Carolina and Tennessee, the 30th Infantry division participated in both World Wars. In the first World War, units of the division took part in the Somme offensive, broke through the Hindenburg line near Bellecour, participated in the Battle of the La Salle river and St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensive. In the last war, the division earned battle credits in Normandy, Northern France, the Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe.

Former members of the 30th Infantry division desiring to attend the convention are asked to write to the 30th Infantry Division Association, Post Office Box 238, Nashville, Tenn.

Qualified Reserve Officers May Now Fly NG Aircraft

Qualified officers of the Air Corps will be eligible to fly National Guard aircraft upon being attached to a specific National Guard air unit, Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltenberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced today.

The "National Guard is happy to welcome reserve air officers to make use of its facilities," General Miltenberger said.

The general added, however, that to prevent overloading of current facilities for flying, preference will be given to reserve officers who have been appointed in their State National Guard and have applied for commissions in the Federal National Guard.

To qualify for National Guard flying, reserve officers must hold a commission in the Organized Reserve Corps with currently effective rating of Command Pilot, Senior Pilot or Pilot and have been physically qualified for flying within the last six months. They must have orders attaching them to a specific guard unit for flying duty.

Reserve base unit commanders have been authorized by the Army Air Forces to issue orders attaching reserve officers to an Air National Guard unit upon request of the Air National Guard unit commander concerned.

Army Engineers Reveal Plans For New Type Arctic Shelter

A pre-fabricated temporary arctic shelter for troops, capable of providing an interior temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit while the outside thermometer registers 70 degrees below zero, and also capable of withstanding the impact of a 125-mile-an-hour wind, is being designed by the corps of engineers, the War Department announced today.

The shelter is designed for use for a building light enough in weight to be transported by airplane or glider and so simple in construction that it can be erected quickly by unskilled men wearing Arctic clothing, including gloves.

Construction also must be of a character that will permit removal and quick reassembly; must be in units that will permit various sizes of buildings, from personnel housing to administration buildings; and the housing must be adaptable to warehousing, either hot or cold storage, shops, post exchanges, hospitals, mess halls and such other buildings as are necessary in the operation of an Army post. The buildings must be of a character to be fitted to any terrain.

Humidity Control

A few of the other problems confronting the corps of engineers in designing this housing are humidity control in troop housing, hospital wards, laundry and other such buildings; heating in hospital buildings and troop housing; heating where required and particularly in wards and hospital technical buildings, using liquid fuel; a minimum of two entrances to each building used for troop housing; weight and size of package units limited to that permissible by air transport and having particular reference to the capacity of a standard glider.

To meet weight requirements the engineers are using aluminum in their preliminary plans, although design is such to permit use of other materials if necessary. They are preparing to construct building units eight by twenty by nine feet. This unit is capable of being expanded in two directions to any size without using special connecting devices. No vertical expansion is contemplated. Panels composed of two thin sheets of aluminum with insulation in between, and eight by four feet in size, will be used for walls, flooring and roof. They will be interchangeable, and will require no points of similar protection.

Essentially the design comprises a rigid frame assembly consisting of a roof beam and two jacks, two insulators, two columns and a roof beam. The floor beam is an open truss aluminum joist and has a jack at each extremity and jacks will eliminate any necessity for precise workmanship in the field, being adjustable to any terrain. The building is flat roofed, thus obviating necessity for special end panels and valley connectors when the building is increased in width on the 20 foot dimensions or when a wing is placed at right angles to the main structure.

Rigid Frame

The two columns and the roof beam form a bent. The gusset plates will be attached to the columns. In the field, the roof beam will be fastened to the columns with tie bolts. The rigid frame assemblies are held firmly in place by 5 transverse aluminum rods. Necessary to serve as hangers to which the wall panels are attached. The rods are tied together with a channel near the top and channel near the bottom, and there is a channel on the longitudinal center of each connector. The roof beams.

Plans call for fixed windows and efforts are being made to develop a plastic window, light in weight and strong enough to resist the rigors of the Arctic. The doors will be of the same material as the walls and will be attached with refrigerator type hardware and gaskets. Screen doors must be provided for summer use.

Floor panels will be the same material as the walls with the addition of a wood surface, 1-8 of an inch thick. The interior finish will be paint, completely shop applied, with some texture to nullify the metallic appearance and to introduce a warm color into the interior. Floors will have a natural wood finish.

Exterior finish will be in accordance with particular field conditions, which may call for paint or natural finish. Necessity for camouflage will influence the choice.

The type of substructure for the building will be determined by the geographic area in which it will be used. The condition of the terrain, the use to which the building will be put, and the length of time it will be used. The construction will be in a permafrost area, and if it is intended to maintain the buildings throughout the winter, or freezing period, through spring or fall, conditions peculiar to permafrost areas must be recognized and dealt with.

Several types of insulation for the walls and roof will be being considered by the Army engineers, but so far no selection has been made.

Air Force To Conduct Bomb Tests

Heavy bombers of the Army Air Forces will conduct tests of new types of penetrating bombs of American and British design against the German submarine assembly factory at Farge near Bremen, Germany.

Three Boeing B-29 Superfortresses of the Strategic Air Command have arrived at the AAF airbase at Giebelstadt in the American zone of Germany and the tests will begin as soon as the first bombs are ready.

The Royal Air Force will provide 13 missiles, modified versions of the "Tall Boy" bombs, with the new bombs weighing 1,650 pounds. At least two direct hits will be required to conduct the British tests. AAF aircraft are being used in order to obtain the required altitude needed for the experiments.

American bombs to be used include new versions of the 25,000-pound Amazon and some of the bombs. Thirty of these giant bombs will be dropped by the B-29s and all the bombs used will be without high explosives due to the proximity of villages and other dwellings. Due to the nature of the tests, perfect conditions must exist and AAF Ordnance officers estimate that at least three months will be required before the completion of the tests.

Name Given Project

"Operation Harken," the project name given to the current tests, is a pun on the name of the "Operation Ruby" tests which were conducted in 1945 and 1946 when AAF crews destroyed the Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress dropped live bombs on Heiligoland and non-explosive bombs against Farge, in experiments to prove the effectiveness of new bombs which had not been developed in time to be used in World War II. Since the "Ruby" project, Heiligoland has been destroyed and the target at Farge was selected because of the construction of the U-Boat assembly plant which has reinforced concrete walls and ceilings 24 feet thick. Farge is 14 miles northwest of Bremen and is located on the Weser river. The target area is about 300 miles from Giebelstadt.

When the bomb drops begin, officers and technicians from the RAF and the AAF will be on hand in the target area to observe the results and provide valuable meteorological information. After each mission the group of experts will evaluate and assess the damage to the Farge structure and the large bombs, which will be dropped from high altitude. Upon completion of the tests, the group will prepare a final summary which will be used in determining the value of the new bombs against specialized targets. The best of the American bombs will become standard AAF equipment.

Select Air Crews

Because of the precise requirements of the "Harken" tests, specially trained crews were selected for the project and the three B-29s required special modification to their bomb-bays in order to carry the long Amazon and Samson bombs. The pilots and bombardiers received additional training at Muroc, California, Army Air Base before leaving for Europe, dropping 10 practice bombs similar to the 25,000-pound missiles they will use against Farge. They will continue practice bombing after the completion of the British tests, with each crew allowed at least one additional dummy bomb of cast iron to be dropped from high altitude before the tests begin with the Amazon and Samson type bombing.

The air crew personnel were selected from operational units of the Strategic Air Command. The bombardiers will use the Standard Norden bombsights which were so effective during the last war. The Farge target is over 1,400 feet long and about 300 feet wide, although only about one-third of the target area will be used, as the entire structure varies in thickness. The crews must drop the bombs on the section of thickest construction.

Former MP Gives 'Major' Hard Time

DETROIT (APFS) — Bernard A. Mullins, former military policeman now making use of his Army training as a policeman, was pounding his best when a youthful-looking major approached. Their conversation ran as follows:

"How old are you major?"

"Nineteen—Sir."

"How long have you been in the service?"

"Three years."

"May I see your identification please?"

Here their talk ended. Fourteen-year-old Ernest Barton Bleit 3rd, a Boy Scout in his father's old uniform, was brought home for demobilization.

"Harken" tests will provide excellent training to air and ground crews in long-range strategic operations and at the same time will evaluate the effectiveness of the newly designed bombs against underground, reinforced targets. These same officials point out that the need for bombs effective against underground targets has existed for a long time, and that these bombs had been developed during World War II, many of the Nazi underground factory producing jet fighters and V-1 Buzz Bombs might have been destroyed. With the introduction of atomic warfare in World War II, it is logical that the need for these specialized types of bombs may be even greater for future defense.

Air Force Faces Vast Changes

Lawson field will not be affected immediately by the Ninth Air Force's sweeping reorganization program of base and tactical units, base officials said today.

The reorganization, which is being carried out in the interest of increased mobility, will embrace Lawson field units later this year, according to base officials. At present the only immediate change expected is an increase of officer personnel.

The reorganization will inaugurate the wing set-up which is the long-time AAF practice of a base commander directing all activities at an installation. In the future, wing commanders will perform this job.

The new streamlined postwar plan which is being adopted throughout the AAF molds all individual units on a base into close-knit organization capable of moving anywhere intact in a minimum of time. Major General Williams, Ninth Air Force chief, said.

Ninth Air Force bases slated to initiate the new program include Greenville Army Air base, Greenville, South Carolina; Bergstrom Field, Texas; Langley Field, Virginia; Shaw Field, Sumter, South Carolina; and Lockbourne Army Air Base, Columbus, Ohio.

Self-Supporting
Commenting on the innovation, General Williams pointed out that the wing and its subordinate operational groups will be completely self-supporting and flexible organizations and may move as an entity into the field.

"During the war," the general continued, "we learned that tactical units must have all phases of their housekeeping work—communications, right along with them in order to be effective in modern combat when our headquarters may move scores of miles in a single day."

In the past, tactical outfits have moved from base to base constantly changing maintenance and supply personnel, thereby creating a tremendous operating problem.

Other Benefits
Several other benefits expected from the wing organization include:

1. Clean-cut command channels.
 2. Elimination of split jurisdiction.
 3. Provision for a strong central control with decentralized operations.
 4. Command positions for company and grade officers.
 5. Individuals will be clothed, housed, paid, promoted, worked and administered by their commander.
 6. Limits the size of the basic functional unit to a maximum of 250.
- A typical wing organization under the new plan is to consist of a headquarters and headquarters squadron in addition to a combat

Officer Groups Slated To Learn Food Supervision

Sixth Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force officers will be accepted by the Army Quartermaster Corps up to August 25 for an opportunity to make a career of preparation and service of food for the Armed Forces. Accepted candidates will be sent to the Quartermaster School at Camp Lee, Virginia, where the first class of the nine-month Advanced Food course will start September 29.

The Quartermaster Corps is training officers with the educational requirements and aptitude, how to teach a cook to add the extra something to food that will make the soldier want a second serving, and preparing them generally for Food Service supervision on the highest levels.

The Advanced Food course at Camp Lee will be complementary to a course of the Quartermaster Subsistence School in Chicago, where officers are instructed in methods of determining the grades of raw food necessary to meet the rigid specifications for procurement of subsistence for the Armed Forces.

Applications will be accepted for the course until the August 25 deadline set by the Quartermaster Corps' personnel and training division.

Major General T. B. Larkin, Quartermaster General, emphasized that "we really are looking for the type of officer who volunteers. He is the one who will have the greatest opportunity because he has already recognized the importance of food and when he volunteers it is an indication that in addition to liking food, he is likely to have aptitude for service."

Lieutenant General George E. Stratemeier, commanding general of Air Defense Command, announced that he anticipated no change in Civil Air Patrol activities or policies as a result of the transfer. It will operate as a separate command as do the six numbered air forces in Air Defense Command. The regular air forces units of Air Defense Command will continue to assist the Civil Air Patrol in every way possible.

The Civil Air Patrol, a volunteer semi-military organization of public spirited, air-minded civilians, was organized in 1941 and initially operated under the Office of Civilian Defense. In 1943 it was made an auxiliary of the Air Forces and last year it was granted a federal charter by Congress giving it the same status as other patriotic public service organizations, such as the American Red Cross.

It is organized into 49 wings—one for each state and Hawaii. Each wing is commanded by a civilian prominent in aviation circles in his own state. These wing commanders and the members of their staff are unpaid volunteers who donate their services to further the development of aviation in America.

Since the end of the war, the principal function of the Civil Air Patrol has been the training of American youth in the fundamentals of aeronautics. In the past year alone about 35,000 boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 17 who are given ground training by approximately 35,000 senior members of the Civil Air Patrol so that its activities will complement those of the Air Re-

Air Cadet Age Limits Raised

The age requirement for applicants for the AAF cadet training program was lifted August 1 from the 18 to 26 1-2 year limit to from 20 to 28 1-2 years, according to the Lawson Field Cadet Examining board.

The change was brought about by the cancellation of the section of the Flight Officer's Act of 1932 which authorized men to be commissioned in the AUS at the age of 18, the examining board said. Under the new minimum age requirement cadets will complete their training and receive a commission in the Officer's Reserve Corps at the age of 21.

To qualify for cadet training, in addition to the age requirement, applicants must be unmarried citizens of the United States, have completed at least two years of college education, or pass a two year college level examination, and they must be of sound mental and physical health.

The 52-week flying training course is open to enlisted men from all branches of the service. At present applications are being accepted at Lawson field for the class which will begin October 15, at Randolph field, Texas. Another class will start March 1, 1948.

The Airborne battalion's company E, which is slated to be demobilized around Sept. 15, will graduate its first class Sept. 2, officials announced today.

A total of 124 enlisted men and three officers comprise the class which began Aug. 18 with 169 students.

Air Radar School Moves To Keesler

The Boca Raton, Florida, Army Air Field has been declared excess and orders have been issued to move the Army Air Forces radar school and its personnel to Keesler Field, Mississippi.

The Army Air Forces air mechanics school also is located at Keesler Field, so the current move will consolidate two schools into one, resulting in considerable savings.

The radar school is expected to begin moving immediately and it is contemplated the move will be completed within six months. Consolidation and centralization of Army Air Forces communications have been studied for about a year and the result was the decision to relocate the radar school. Transfer of the school to Keesler Field will include the movement of about 530 officers and 3,650 enlisted men.

The Boca Raton radar school has been the Army Air Forces principal radar training center for floors and enlisted men, and thousands received instruction there during the war.

SPORTS Doughs Split Pair With Marine Nine

Devil-Dogs Edge Benning Team 4-3 To Take Opener

A ninth inning rally fell short by one run as the Doughboys split a doubleheader with the Paris Is-land making Sunday afternoon at Parris Island with the Devil-Dogs edging a determined Dough nine 4-3 in the opener only to fall vic-tim to Doughboys bats in the sec-ond to wind up victory on the wrong end of a 5-3 decision.

Right hander Dick Gerhart took the mound against the devil-dogs in the opener while Carter drew the pitching assignment for the Marines, and the two capable hur-lers vied in a grueling mound duel from the first pitch until the final out. Although each hurler al-lowed but seven hits, the marine took advantage of three doubles to score the winning run in the last of the eighth.

Doughs Score First
Jack Forbes, who has been miss-ing from the Benning lineup for the past 10 days because of an ailing foot, reached first on the shortstop's miscue, advancing to second on Brook's fielder's choice. Leuner grounded out and Forbes reached scoring ground. Tommy Gallagher, lined a single into right, scored. But the Marines came back in the next inning to tie Gerhart for a single and a long two-bagger, the flurry netting the Paris Is-land nine two runs, and a lead that the Doughs were never able to wrest from them. Again in the sixth frame, the Marines regained their stride, belting out another double and a single tallying a lone run. The final Devil-Dog marker was scored in the eighth when Beyer, Parris Island right fielder, was batted by Gerhart, later scor-ing on Maxwell's double into left field.

Dickson Leads Off
The Doughs missed a scoring opportunity in the third that would have been the tying run and a chance to clinch the victory. Dick-son led off in that frame with a vicious double that sailed over the center fielder's head. Gerhart popped out to third, and Kinard's high bounding ball to right field was covered. However, Dickson failed to tag up on the out, and remained harmlessly at second. Burnett then slipped a safety to left advancing Dickson to third, but Forbes ground out and the threat died in the field.

A lone Doughboy marker was tallied in the seventh on singles by Burt and Kinard, but the side was relieved before further damage could be done.

Rally Falls Short
As the Doughs trailed but for the last time the Marine held a 4-2 lead, and Bench decided to call pinch hitters in an attempt to snatch the lead. Gerhart drew a walk, taking second on Watt's fielder's choice. Dickson belted a single to center advancing Gerhart to third. With two away

Burt filed out to right, and Gal-lagher scored. As Gallagher fal-tered, Burnett reached third and the tying run was a base from say dirt. With two away, and Burnett on third with the tying run, Kinard popped out to left field, and the Marines had won their first ball game from the Doughs.

Watts took the hill against the devil-dogs in the final hit, scot-tering five hits and fanning ten Dough Island batters, as the an-ti-gun Doughs lashed out at starter Schum for eleven safeties and five runs.

Take Early Lead
The Benchmen took an early lead in the second when Brooks drove the spheroid through the left and center fielders making second before the Marines could recover. Burt found his range again and fired a single into right field bringing Brooks home. Watts had a shag third inning although Flia, Marine shortstop, was the only man to tag the big left hatcher for a hit. Zorn, Par-ris Island left man, drew a walk and Carroll made first on Watt's wild throw to the bag. Both batters were out, the one leav-ing man on second and third with none away. Flia singled to left and both Brooks and Carroll crossed the plate, while Flia, third on the throw home. Carter's fly to right brought Flia home, and the Marines had a 3-0 advantage. Watts quickly recov-ered with a solo, retiring the next two batters and ending the rally.

But the Benchmen were not disposed to dropping two games to the Marines, and lashed out at Schum for a double and a pair of singles in the fifth, all of which netted the Doughboys four more runs. Terry made safety on a miscue at third, as Burnett pushed home the way to third with a line-drive into left field.

In an attempt to nab Terry at third, the left fielder tried a but-ton nose throw to the bag, but the ball sailed high over the third baseman's head, and Terry trotted home on the error. Watts, who personally accounted for two safeties, clouted a long double into the fenceless left field, sending Burnett home. Watts scored on another Marine error at first, as Gallagher made the bag on the same field foul, and was caught an outside curve sending it over the secondbaseman's head for a single, and two more Dough runs were tallied.

The battered Schum was then ready for the cooling waters of the shower, and Walls replaced the naggard hurler in the fifth.

That point on, the game was pretty quiet, with Walls hold-ing the Marines to one hit, while Walls limited the Doughs to two more safeties.

Brooks and Watts took batting honors for the Doughs in the sec-ond and fifth with both men collect-ing a double and a single.

Motorcycle, Midget Auto Races To Feature Idle Hour Program

Racing enthusiasts have a big weekend in prospect at Idle Hour Park, where an eight-event motor-cycle card will be run on Thurs-day, with the regular auto race program scheduled Friday night.

The motorcycle races will fea-ture a three-sided rivalry among Ed Rusk, who just won a feature at Rocksville, Fla., Robin Rogers, who won the Jackson Miss. fea-ture Sunday, and Paul Goins, last winner at Idle Hour. No driver has ever won the Idle Hour feature more than once. So Rusk, Rogers, and are going up against a jinx Thursday night, counting on a heavy throttle-hand to over-come the one-shot tradition. Eight-teen entries were received early in the week by Promoter Alex F. Brewer.

The motorcycle races start at 8 p.m. Friday night, Old Reliable Bob Johnson will be on the hot-spot, after having seen off stout challenges from Hank Blalock and Jimmie Reed to retain his league pin-plate and lead in the week.

Johnson failed to capture the title in the final, but on the main-fair, he stomped on the gas-gadget and pushed mighty, Columbus-builit No. 77 around the oval 20 times, to catch the check-ered flag two lengths ahead of Blalock.

Blalock won the first heat, Reed the second, and Bud Swanson the third. Swanson and wrecked his racer at McRae, Ga., the day be-fore, and raced Friday in ban-galoes.

Grid Team Ready For Contact Drill

The middle of next week will see the Fort Benning Doughboy grid team getting a taste of its first contact work of the 1947 season. It was learned early this week, Up until this time, the squad has been dealing primarily with fundamentals and acquainting itself with plays that will be run from the Notre Dame box and "T" formation.

Although "Burch" Kendrick is still looking for a kicker, a number of promising backs have turned out, and are filling the gaps in the Doughboy line-up. Eddie Roberts, head of the 37th Infantry, is probably the fittest back the Doughs can boast right now.

Roberts worked out with the University of Georgia last year, but received his beckon from Uncle Sam before he had an opportunity to play any college ball. Reporting to Fort McClellan, Ala., he became the member one block-ing back on the McClellan team, playing alongside the great Ole Miss All-American from Ohio University.

Colleagues On Roster
Capt. Overlier, a pilot at Law-son field, has been working nights with the Doughs, and is consid-ered a rather valuable addition to the Benning eleven. He has played three years of college football, at Compton Junior College in California and one year at the University of Kansas. Another night worker, Tom Wilkins, for-merly of the Texas Tech team, is showing up well this week. Kendrick has hopes for a little more than the 501st's own chute battalion, Casimo Cutri, who was a track standout this year.

The Doughs are probably strong-est at the ends and Guard Bill Leonard and one year at the University of Kansas. Another night worker, Tom Wilkins, for-merly of the Texas Tech team, is showing up well this week. Kendrick has hopes for a little more than the 501st's own chute battalion, Casimo Cutri, who was a track standout this year.

3rd Army Sets Baseball Meet For September

Fort Benning will play host to the Third Army Baseball tourna-ment at Gawdy field September 15-21. The number of teams to take part is not known.

A number of awards and tro-phies will be presented with the winning team receiving the Third Army Championship baseball plaque. The installation winning the annual Third Army tourney three times will gain permanent possession of this plaque. In-dividual awards will be presented to members of the winning and runner-up teams.

Before a team can be eliminated from tourney play, it must be beaten twice. All games will be played under the 1947 Ameri-can League Rules of 1947. Entries will be limited to one team per players per station, and no team will be allowed to have more than eight officers as either an enlisted or officer, be-coming from each installation provided the tournament, but no tournament will be allowed in which its installation team is par-ticipating. An additional official will act as chief umpire for the entire tournament. All enlisted men who act as umpires will be reimbursed.

Two tackles, both over 200 pounds, Leonard and Pfeifer and Charlie Smith are to be top-ping the list for the mainstays at that position.

At the center, Kendrick has three men who will be vying for the first position slot. Art Talent, of the 501st, and Charles, who have two years at Purdue, and Bill Tumella.

Many of the men who have been turning out for the ball team have had to work on their own time, and certainly deserve a great deal of credit for their spirit and im-foh, another promising guard, the 501st's own tackle, Bill, of the Airborne Battalion, and has been coming out for night practice faithfully. There are many others who have been appearing regu-larly this season for Benning who are under the same handicap.

The scheduled game with Green Cove Springs, Florida, has been cancelled, but a game with Fort Gordon is in the making. Inciden-tally, Glenn Davis, All-American from the 1946 Army gridders will be seeing action at Reilly this year.

Before the Doughs open the season against the Cherry Point Marines Sept. 27, Kendrick hopes to schedule a practice game with the 501st.

All in all the Doughs are shap-ing up well and should produce a fine team. Besides his ex-cel-lent coaching, the squad has more than its share of talent, and Benning edge theory why the Fort for the season should fall short of a highly successful season.

Negro Teams Clash At Sand Hill Today

On the top end of a four game win streak, the 25th Infantry, holders of the cur-rent round robin baseball crown, lengthens its feud with the ball-club tonight at Bullfield. The game starts at 8 p.m.

Last Monday night, the "Figh-ning First" was very impressive dur-ing an 8-4 win over the vaunted "Bama All-Stars on Bullfield.

empty holes to be filled. The Doughs are in dire need of a good triple threat man in the form of another Johnny Staut, who spark-ed last year's club. Fred Meigier of the 501st has been playing in the quarterback and is the best bas-ser the Doughs have—in fact, he is the only man who has really shown any ability at passing. His is a hard job running a T for-mation, and the Cherry Point has plenty of deception and art to ex-ecute the plays with any hope of outwitting yardage.

For the next five weeks, plenty of sweat will be lost, for Ken-drick insists on having a fully trained ball club. There is still time for any new men to go out for the team. They are always welcomed, and can certainly be used, according to Kendrick.

Bullets Football Squad To Open Season Sept. 13

BY AL WISE

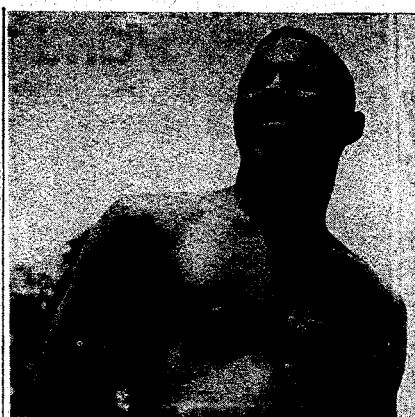

With sixty odd candidates vying for regular berths during strenuous daily sessions, the 25th C. T. Bullets' current grid squad, coached by Lt. Lloyd D. Jones, former Tuskegee luminary, will face the vaunted Tuskegee Institute Tigers on Saturday, Sept. 13, at Tuskegee for the season's opener.

Coach Jones has six members of last year's team returning to the fold. They are: Eddie Williams, fullback; D. C. O'Reilly, George Wardell, and L. J. Johnson, tackles; and Harold Tubbs and Gordon Burke, backfield.

Eleven games are already scheduled, and Lt. Jones stated today that he expects to fill the November 27 date in the very near future. The schedule follows:

- Sept. 13—Bullets vs. Tuskegee at Tuskegee.
- Sept. 20—Bullets vs. Grambling College, Grambling, La.
- Sept. 27—Bullets vs. Lane College, Jackson, Tenn.
- Oct. 4—Bullets vs. Pensacola Naval Base, Fort Benning.
- Oct. 11—Bullets vs. Atlanta Panthers, Fort Benning.
- Oct. 18—Bullets vs. Clark College, Fort Benning.
- Oct. 25—Bullets vs. Jacksonville Bears, Fort Benning.
- Nov. 2—Bullets vs. Atlanta Panthers at Atlanta.
- Nov. 9—Bullets vs. Pensacola Naval Base, Pensacola.
- Nov. 15—Jacksonville vs. Jacksonville Bears, Jacksonville.
- Nov. 27—Open.

BREAKS RECORD—Chester W. Odin, member of the Airborne Battalion's Company D, is the first student to make a perfect score of 500 points on the physical fitness test.

Negro First To Attain Perfect Score In Physical Fitness

Chester W. Odin Jr., a colored student of Company D, airborne battalion, has become the first man in the history of airborne training to complete the physical fitness test with a perfect score of 500 points.

Odin, a native of St. Paul, Minn., entered Father Flanagan's famous Boy's Town in 1942 where he excelled in all fields of sport until his graduation in 1946. As a student at Boy's Town, Odin won varsity letters in football, boxing, baseball and track, and was later offered football scholarships from a number of universities. Track too was another specialty of Odin's for he runs the 440 in a flat 50 seconds, besides having been a member of a relay team that went on to set Nebraska state high school records.

Standing an even six feet, Odin weighs 150 pounds. He is an impressive lad, exhibiting fine poise and marks of good training no doubt received as a student at Boy's Town. Odin has nothing but praise for the Nebraska institution, and he speaks of it as "the greatest place there is."

Entering the Army in February, 1947, Odin enlisted for airborne training which he completed early this week. He expects to further his education at the termination of his Army enlistment, and has high hopes of playing college football on one of the Big Ten teams in the Middle West.

In the test that is required of all aspirants to the paratroops, a man must do 54 push-ups, 75 squat jumps, 20 pull ups, and 79 sit ups in a space of two minutes. He must also run a three hundred-yard shuttle course in 44

Black Barons Nine Slated For Bullet Field Friday

BY AL WISE

Friday night marks the initial post-war appearance at Fort Benning of the Negro American League's Birmingham Black Barons, nine which is slated for action against the 25th C. T. Bullets at Bullet Field. The contest will start at 8 p.m.

Successful recently during a seven game series with the Memphis Red Sox when they collected six games, the Barons are rated the team to watch during the league's current stretch. The Memphis Red Sox, incidentally, the club which recently sold its star pitcher, Don Bankhead, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for the reported tag of $10,000.

Last week, the Barons staff had a quartet of stickmen who were bolting the horsehide for the 200 mark or better. They are: Lorenzo "Piper" Davis, 2b, 368; Art Wilson, ss, 354; Johnny Britts, 3b, 341, and Eddie Steele, rf, 304. On the Bullet side of the ledger, Eddie K. Baldwin, rf, 3b, 2b, and what have you, continues to lead his cohorts with an impressive 358; Gordon Burke, ss, holds the second spot with 337; Jimmy Wills, ss, 318; Booker T. Jones, lf, 307; Charley Nichols, rf, 304, and backstop Uss Fiale, 300.

Plans on making tomorrow night's game the stellar diamond affair of the training season are underway with the Regimental Band under the direction of T-Sgt. Alonzo Martin providing musical highlights.

Post Equestrians Take Top Honors At Atlanta Showing

Lt. Col. Jacob R. Moon and Capt. Frank R. Lillyman went to the Adams Park Horse Show in Atlanta last week end where they took top honors as Blue Point, ridden by Colonel Moon, was crowned hunter champion and Sir Milton, ridden by Captain Lillyman, was named reserve hunter champion.

Blue Point, owned and ridden by Colonel Moon, also took first place in the open jumper class, first place in the hunter stake, second place in the middle third heavy weight hunter class and third place in the hunter stake.

Milton, also took second in the hunter stake, third in the open jumpers, third in the lightweight hunters, and fifth in the jumper stake.

Reno Jason, ridden by Captain Lillyman, took first place in the open men's pleasure class, second place in the lightweight hunter class, third place in hunter hacks, and fourth place in the jumper stake. Lillyman was mounted on Foxes Shadow for fifth place in the heavyweight hunter class.

A former Fort Benning horse, Sunfast Jamaica, took third place in the hunter championship stake.

Second Guessing

By RALEIGH GREENE

The Farris Island Marines managed to break the Doughs eight-game win streak, with a 4-3 victory in the first game of a double-header Sunday afternoon at Farris Island. That loss was the first setback the Doughs have suffered since they bequeathed a 9-8 decision to the Marines from Thomaston in the season.

With 13 wins against 17 seasonal starts, the Doughs face the remainder of their road journey during which they will meet Maxwell Field, Ala.; Keester, Field, Miss., and Fort Bragg, N. C.

After acclimating themselves to a none-too-good ball field, Benchman bats were rejuvenated with their customary nest, and lashed out at two Marine hunters to humble the devil dogs in the second game 5-3. That victory gives the Doughs a 3-1 count over Farris Island, as the Doughboys copped two tilts from the Marines when they played here.

Dick Gardner, the Doughs' breaker in the first game, pitched seven-hit ball and showing excellent control for the entire evening. Actually, the Doughs were far from their usual game, and missed a number of opportunities to clinch the ball game. Early in the opener, Dickson belted a double with none away and though another single hit during the same frame, Dickson wasn't able to advance past third base. The loss that run was either the fault of the runner, or bad coaching at third. However, the Doughs showed their customary determination to win, when they began a last ditch effort in the ninth to turn the tide. Although the Benchman was playing wrong end of a 4-2 score going into the ninth, they tried vainly to rally, but the threat died after a single run had been tallied by Gallagher.

A gay time was had by all, and the Marines at Farris Island showed much hospitality toward the Army.

The recruits at Farris Island certainly don't lead an easy life. They are trained so rigidly that they were scarce ever privates, and with gusto at that. Frankly, it is safe to say that no one from Fort Benning who went along on this trip will ever have any aspirations of being a United States Marine. The cry now runs about like this, "I'm glad I'm in the Army." Sounds like good material for the recruiting service.

We had a rather nice trip coming to the island in that we flew up in a C-47. However, there were a few who were a bit skeptical about boarding the plane. Martin surveyed the ship, and found that the tail was taped up. Well, he was a little jumpy all the way, and kept trying to peer through the prop-glass to see if that tail was still intact. It was decided to make Terry the jumpmaster should anything go wrong, and Gallagher was detailed to guard the chutes. Incidentally, little Tommy gave the Marines a hard time of it about this jumping business. . . didn't seem to have much patience with those non-jumpers. Everybody at Farris Island had the idea that all who came up there were troopers.

Although it will be history when this is read, the Doughs journeyed Maxwell field Tuesday to meet the Air University there in a scheduled two-game series. They will return to Benning Wednesday night, and depart again Friday morning for Keester field, Miss. Monday will see the team

Bishop Gets Bronze Star

Lt. Clifford D. Bishop, Infantry Center postal officer, has been awarded the Bronze Star medal for "exemplary conduct in ground combat against the armed enemy during the period on or about Jan. 20, 1944, in the Mediterranean theater of operations." It was learned here today.

Lt. Bishop, a graduate of the Officer Candidate School here, entered the Army in 1936 for duty with the 14th Infantry Regiment in the Panama Canal Zone. He served later at Fort Bragg, N. C., Carlisle Barracks, Pa., Camp Claiborne, La., and Camp Gordon, Ga.

The young lieutenant went overseas in 1943, serving in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, Southern France, and Germany. He returned to the States in 1945.

Lt. Bishop also wears the Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge, and ETO ribbon with four battle stars and bronze arrowhead.

2 School-Troops EM Get New Assignments

T-Sgt. Kloe Stevens, School Troops intelligence NCO, has been transferred to the Infantry Center's 2-2 section. His duties were absorbed by T-Sgt. Paul Pierce, chief of the S-3 section.

It also was announced that T-Sgt. Paul Smith has been transferred to the troops requirement section of the S-3 office.

Benning Soldiers Prove Art Lovers

Fort Benning soldiers are definitely art-inclined judging from the attendance record set by students enrolled at the Infantry Center's vocational night school.

According to Mike Freedland, charcoal drawing instructor, his class boasts the highest percentage of students in the entire school.

The class, designed for beginners, is open to anyone who can "double on a telephone directory," according to the instructor.

The school has now reached the half-way mark with the fall quarter slated to begin around the middle of September.

Collar Reaches 30-Year Mark

Col. Gilbert T. Collar, commander of Lawson field since June, 1946, completed 30 years Army service August 15. The colonel began his Army career in August, 1917, as a second lieutenant with the Field Artillery. He later transferred to the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps and in 1920 graduated from flying training school with the rank of captain. The following year he received further training in the Air Force Bombardment Training School.

Col. Collar's first tour of duty overseas was in the Philippines from 1922 to 1924. He returned in the States until 1935 when he left from March Field, California, for the Panama Canal Zone. Upon returning home in 1937 from his second tour of duty overseas he was appointed commander of Barksdale Field, La., and Hunter Field, Savannah, Ga.

During the early part of World War II, Col. Collar served as commanding officer of Daniel Field, Augusta, Ga., and later of Columbia AAB, S. C. His wartime overseas assignment was with the Fourth Composite Bomber Group of the Seventh Air Force. He served in the Ellis-Biggs, Marshall and Marianas campaigns. He commanded the Army Garrison Force on Guam.

A command pilot and a rated combat and technical observer, Col. Collar assumed command of Lawson field last summer after a tour of duty with the office of the Secretary of War in Washington, D. C.

Mooty Assigned Guard Duty At Macon, Ga.

T-Sgt. Raymond E. Moody, chief of School Troops second section, has been notified of his appointment to the administrative staff of the National Guard unit at Macon, Ga., it was announced here today.

Sgt. Moody, a graduate of Brantley county high school, Nahata, Fla., has been in the Army since 1936. During the war he served with the Fourth Division in the Normandy and Southern France campaigns as battalion sergeant major.

The Benning Bowmen will hold a barbecue next Sunday at 5 p. m. at the field archery range here.

12,000 Guard Officers Get Federal Recognition

The number of National Guard officers who have received Federal recognition since post-war reorganization began a little more than a year ago, almost equals the entire officer strength of the National Guard shortly before its induction into federal service began during the national emergency prior to World War II, General Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the National Guard Bureau announced today.

"With 12,000 officers federally recognized to date, the new National Guard is well on the way to acquiring the high-quality leadership necessary to meet the strict standards set up for the building of the post-war organization," General Miltonberger said.

Reorganized Last June
Inactivated when its men were separated from service at the end of the war, active reorganization of the National Guard started in June, 1946.

More than 100,000 men have since joined the guard with 2,565 ground units and 286 air units having won federal recognition out of an eventual strength of 6,382 units.

In June, 1940, three months before federal induction began, there were approximately 14,500 officers and 227,000 men in the National Guard.

Allotted strength of the new guard, token of its importance in the national defense picture, is approximately 682,000, more than three times its pre-war strength. Ratio of officers to men is about 1 to 16, under post-war tables of organization. This takes into consideration winning of commissions by National Guard enlisted men—enlisted men in the guard are encouraged and given every opportunity to advance in grade and commissioning from specialized civilian sources.

General Miltonberger said that all officers for the National Guard are chosen through a strict system of selection. Required to meet the highest standards, officers must be prepared to assume the same responsibilities as those of the regular Army if the National Guard is to effectively meet its new assignment as the nation's M-Day force, equipped and trained for immediate action in case of attack.

Both officers and men are chosen on a basis of quality rather than quantity, he said. The highly selective system adhered to in commissioning officers in the federal National Guard will assure a professionally qualified leadership, General Miltonberger said.

All officers must meet the physical and mental standards required by the regular Army. In addition, they must show at least six months honorable, active service in World War II. Second lieutenants, however, may be chosen from qualified enlisted men of the first three grades whose service records during the war prove their professional fitness.

General officers, in addition to meeting all other requirements, must prove their professional qualifications before the secretary of war's general officer board. Commissions in the guard may also be granted to qualified men from among the following: Graduates of senior ROTC units; graduates of officer candidate schools; graduate aviation cadets; flight officers with honorable war service; Reserve Corps officers; specialists with previous military training such as aerlogymen, doctors and dentists.

150 Enroll In Airborne Training Course Here

Approximately 150 students enrolled in the six-week Airborne training course here last Friday, it was announced this week.

The students, who have been assigned to the Airborne Battalion's Company B, began training Monday. The course will include five days of jumping and one night jump. Graduation is scheduled for Oct. 4.

WAC Expects RA Admission

Legislation establishing a Women's Army Corps in the Regular Army, effective early in 1948, is now under way, it was learned today, from Headquarters, Third Army.

The WAC of the AUS will be terminated as of July 1, 1948, under Public Law 209, and authority to enlist former WAC personnel in the AUS will terminate at midnight September 30, 1947. If pending legislation is passed the WAC will then become a part of the Regular Army.

According to WAC recruiting officials there is still a critical need for Military Occupational Specialties such as Medical Laboratory Technicians, Medical Technicians, X-Ray Technicians, Cooks, Stenographers, and Clerks-Typists.

Extend Enlistments

The following enlisted members of School Troops units extended their short term enlistments here last week:

George Williams, 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, 18 months; Frederick Wilson, 156th Tank Battalion, 18 months; and Lawrence J. Hofstetter, 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion, 18 months.

Recruiting Film Completed Here

Held back by inclement weather for several days the camera team of RKO-Pathé News, Inc., finally completed shooting of a two-reel recruiting publicity film here last Tuesday.

With Major Frederick G. Bull as guide the camera crew trekked over hill and dale shooting scenes for the film "Army Ground Forces at Work". Shots were taken of the infantry in a simulated combat attack, artillery firing in the field, and infantry weapons firing.

Various scenes of the post, mostly exterior and landscape, including the Infantry School Building and immediate area and the Airborne section, were filmed simultaneously to be used in a commercial film of the "This is America" series.

Accompanied by Lt. Col. Harry D. Knight of the Public Information office, Army Ground Forces, the crew arrived here August 11, shortly after the advance party of directors and executive writers, the cameramen will visit Fort Knox, Ky., on the next leg of the circuit, where the armored phase of the film will be taken.

WD Announces Plans For Special Weapons Project

The War and Navy Departments announced today the approval by General Eisenhower and Admiral Nimitz of a program and plan of operation for the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project.

The Armed Forces Special Weapons Project has been established as a joint Army-Navy organization which will coordinate all military service functions relating to atomic energy. The project has assumed the responsibility of carrying on those military service functions of the Manhattan Project which were retained under control of the armed forces at the time of turnover of the Manhattan Project to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The program of the AFSWP includes training of special personnel, military participation in the development of atomic weapons of types and developing and effecting joint radiological safety measures in coordination with established agencies. The project maintains close liaison with the Atomic Energy Commission through the Military Liaison Committee.

In June of this year, the residual functions of Joint Task Force One were incorporated into the Special Weapons Project. JTF-1 was the combined organization of the armed forces which conducted the Bikini tests last summer.

The project is commanded by Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves; his deputy is Rear Adm. William S. Parsons, director of atomic defense for the Navy Department. General Groves and Admiral Parsons are both members of the Military Liaison Committee to the Atomic Energy Commission, General Groves having been appointed to that committee January 31, 1947. Admiral Parsons has been a member since its inception in November, 1946.

The principal field installation of AFSWP is Sandia, located at Albuquerque, N. M. It is

8 Infantry School Units Of STR Discontinued

Discontinuance of eight Infantry School units of the Student Training Regiment was announced today by military officials.

They are: Headquarters and Headquarters Company, First battalion; Service Company, First battalion; Headquarters, Third battalion; and 13th, 14th, 15th, and 17th companies.

Personnel rendered surplus by this action will be reassigned to other units by Infantry center headquarters, it was revealed.

204th Promotions

Promotions of enlisted men of the 204th Transportation Truck Battalion this week included Pfc. John Paul Jones, Henry Scott, Clem E. Feary, and Abraham A. Cameron, all members of the 66th Transportation Truck Company, to technical fifth grade.

Commanded by Brig. Gen. Robert M. Egan, former commandant of the Antisubmarine and Guided Missiles Center at Fort Bliss, Tex.

113 Troopers Given Wings

A total of 113 enlisted men and 14 officers of Company D, the Airborne Battalion, were honored at graduation ceremonies and a review parade last Saturday at the Airborne section drill field.

Completing a six-week training course, Company D came through with a fine record in all of the five day and night jumps. Heading the list of new paratroopers is Charles W. Oadin who has performed a feat never before accomplished here—a perfect score of 500 in the physical fitness program.

Opening date for the next class is set for Sept. 8, when Company B will enter for its six weeks course.

Agreement Reached Regarding Use Of Anti-Aircraft Batteries

Army Air Forces air defense units throughout the country can obtain additional anti-aircraft batteries from the Army Ground Forces should they be required in an emergency, under the terms of an agreement effected between General Carl A. Spaatz, commanding general of the AAF, and General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces. The joint agreement was drawn up to provide a clear definition of authority and to eliminate any duplication in the utilization of anti-aircraft. Certain anti-aircraft units are assigned to the AAF for aerial defense, while others are assigned to the AGF for field use.

old First Cavalry. It was first activated in 1918, served in the first World War and then returned to Fort Benning as school troops. In 1944 the 83rd was activated in England and later campaigned in the Ardennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe. A comparatively new unit is the 8th Combat Engineers, which replaced the 120th Engineer Battalion. The 78th was charged with the clean-up of France, removing body traps and land mines, and later became a part of the occupation troops in Europe. Lt. Col. Houston, who now commands the organization, was originally activated in July, 1916, at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. The 37th Infantry regiment first was formed on the Mexican border in 1916. It was reactivated in World War II, after battling in the Aleutians, the 37th returned to the States in 1945 and is now under the command of Lt. Col. Ralph M. Flynn.

Formed from the Parachute Test Platoon at Fort Benning in 1940, the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion later saw action in Belgium, Africa, Sicily and Italy as part of the 101st Airborne Division. Deactivated in England in 1945, it was reactivated here in 1946.

Equipped with approximately 700 vehicles, the 204th Transportation Truck Battalion furnishes transportation for School Troops, transporting personnel and equipment from Infantry School classes. Under the command of Lt. Col. Jesse F. Wheeler, the 204th also conducts the drivers training school.

No outfit is complete without a band, and School Troops has one of the finest in the 72nd Army Band. Under the direction of Chief Warrant Officer Richard E. Velasco the band plays at all formal parades and ceremonies, social functions and athletic affairs.

'Army Talk' Renamed 'Armed Forces Talk'

Brigadier General Charles T. Latham, chief of the Army Information and Education Division, War Department Special Staff, has announced that the War Department's weekly publication Army Talk will be known henceforth as Armed Forces Talk.

Effective with issue No. 189, August 16, the change in name reflects a change in policy to make this publication carry information of interest to members of all Departments in the New Department of National Defense in consonance with recent unification legislation.

Prepared by the War Department for use as a discussion leader's guide in the Army's weekly discussion period for soldiers, Army Talk has long been distributed to Navy and Marine Corps installations for information purposes.

A technical sergeant adopted soon all technician grades will be abolished, and the designation of second and third grades will be changed. A technical sergeant will be called a senior sergeant while a staff sergeant will be designated sergeant first class. All other grades will remain the same.

The qualified enlisted man, under the new career system, will be able to reach positions in proportion to his capabilities. The Army will thus be provided with the best qualified personnel in responsible positions.

Lawson Field Library Inherits 9,000 Volumes

BY ORA CARNOT
The happiest and busiest people at Lawson field this summer should be the bookworms.

The base library has just announced inheritance of 9,000 volumes, ranging from the best sellers, from the Library at Sherman field, Kansas, which closed its doors recently. All the books are new editions and in good condition, according to Maj. James Hayden, base individual services officer.

Now Has 11,800
Consisting of 72 large wooden crates, the gigantic book shipment was flown to the base last month and, when prepared for circulation, will swell the library's stock from 2,800 to 13,600 volumes. The books are being made available to personnel as fast as shelves can be added to the library. So far, over 250 feet of new shelves have accommodated only a small part of the shipment.

Among the new books are famous religious and historical works, biographies, fiction, best seller and book-of-the-month selections, encyclopedias, reference books, and manuals covering a large variety of educational subjects, as well as a complete line of aircraft and aeronautical engineering manuals.

Clean-Up Campaign
The enormous task of sorting, cataloging, indexing and stocking the new material is being done by Mrs. Donna I. Stillinger, base librarian, and her two assistants, Efc. Steven Smith and Efc. Robert Gardner.

Earlier this summer the library held a thorough clean-up campaign and all damaged books were repaired and obsolete books removed from the shelves. Its walls, floors and windows were cleaned and new tables and chairs were added for reading and studying comfort. As a decorative feature, attractive arrangements of potted plants were added to the reading room windows.

The Lawson field library dates back to June 1941, when it was started in a small room of one of the administrative buildings, with a handful of books purchased with Welfare Enlisted Men's funds. It continued to expand through the Victory Book Drive.

personal donations and WEMF, and, in 1942, it was moved to its present location in back of the headquarters building. Since that time it has been listed among the AAF technical libraries.

In addition to the excellent collection of books, the library offers a full line of newspapers from the New York Times, and subscribes to 78 weekly and monthly national magazines and all AAF and service journals.

In an effort to give its members a well balanced reading diet the library is at present compiling a reading list featuring both pleasure and educational reading.

The library hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Division Schedules Annual Convention

The first annual reunion of the 89th Division society of World War II will be held in St. Louis August 29, 30, and 31.

Information on the reunion and housing accommodations may be obtained by writing the 89th Division society of World War II, 910 Syndicate Building, St. Louis.

Activated in 1917 at Camp Funston, Kans., the 89th played a prominent part in the St. Mihiel offensive and took part in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. After the Armistice, it joined the Army of Occupation in Germany. In World War II, the 89th again won battle honors in the Rhineland and Central Europe capturing 20,000 German prisoners, advancing a total of 350 miles, and losing less than 900 casualties. In their first three days under fire, the 89th line advanced more than 50 miles to the west bank of the Moselle. They stormed across the river and established a bridgehead through which the 11th Armored division passed.

GIs, Vets Asked To Cooperate In Settling Government Claims

Major General Edmond H. Leavy, Army chief of transportation, today asked the cooperation of military personnel and veterans who still have pending claims for reimbursement for travel performed or for transportation of personal and household effects and baggage. There are approximately 20,000 such claims awaiting adjudication and settlement.

"Such a high number of claims can not be reduced immediately on chart," General Leavy said. "Some sort of system had to be established. Consequently, all claims are processed in the order of priority that are received. The only deviation from this rule will be for the settling of an estate of a deceased person. The public's understanding and cooperation in this matter is urgently requested."

Originally, when a claim was submitted to the chief of transportation although it was given a file number and properly processed, it was not acknowledged. As a result, there were many follow-up letters which the shortage of available personnel precluded from answering. At present, claims submitted are acknowledged by a postcard and, although it might take some time to be processed, the claimant can be sure that his case is being duly considered and will be disposed of when his turn comes.

Shortly after VE-Day the number of reimbursement claims submitted to the chief of transportation were more numerous than the personnel available would permit to keep current. At first the adjudication task was undertaken with the help of the Service Commands, but by September, 1945, it was decided to accomplish the complete job in the General Traffic Branch of Movements Control Division. At present all adjudication of reimbursement claims is handled directly in the office of the transportation chief.

The backlog of claims has risen at times to as much as 22,567 but a steady reduction has been accomplished and at present there are about 20,000 claims pending. The weekly average of claims processed has risen from 191 during the period January 3

54 Cooks Finish Food Course Here

Fifty-four enlisted students were graduated from the Food Service School here last Monday, following a three-month Army cook course, it was announced today by Maj. Patrick Dean, commandant of the school.

Honor graduates included T-5 James A. Ayers, Fort McPherson, Ga., and Pvt. Gregory J. Schartz, Service Company, 33rd Field Artillery Battalion, who made grades of 91.5 and 90.5, respectively. Of the total number of students, 61 were from Fort Benning units.

A new class of 47 future cooks arrived Monday to begin the course.

Automotive Section Prepares For School

Approximately 35 members of the infantry school's Automotive section will complete a two-month assistant instructor's automotive review course Sept. 6.

The review course is designed to prepare auto mechanics for the 11-week, enlisted motor course which is slated to begin Sept. 8 with students from units throughout the Army.

A 10-week course for officers will follow.

Rininsland Resigns As Civilian Chief

Herbert A. Rininsland resigned his position as civilian personnel officer and chief of the civilian personnel branch here Sept. 1 to enter private consultant work, it was announced today. He has been replaced by his former assistant Tillman A. Barefoot. Formerly an Army captain, Mr. Rininsland served as assistant chief of the civilian personnel branch here from March, 1943, to December, 1945. Mr. Barefoot has served as assistant chief since September, 1945.

In replacing Rininsland, Mr. Barefoot has announced that the same policy, program, and objectives which prevailed under the former chief will continue.

Replaced Parkins

Mr. Rininsland entered government service, following his separation from the Army, as field liaison officer for Seventh Army headquarters' civilian personnel division. He came to Fort Benning as civilian personnel chief when Maj. R. A. Parkins, military head of the civilian personnel branch here, was separated from the service.

Prior to entering the Army, Mr. Rininsland helped to organize and direct the division of retail sales and use tags for the state of Iowa for eight years. He plans to take three months' rest before entering private personnel consultant work in the midwest where he has a wide acquaintance in the field of industrial relations. He calls Des Moines, Iowa, his home.

Mr. Barefoot, who hails from Tennesse, Ala., arrived here in 1940. He was originally engaged in personnel work with the construction quartermaster.

Final Plans For Second AIC Bared

Operation "Combine," a series of demonstrations presenting the air-ground team in action, will get underway at Lawson Field September 29 with students from the Command and Staff school of the Armed Force Staff college slated to witness the first exercise.

This series of demonstrations on applied air-ground operations is a sequel to the similar "Tactical Air Induction" course which was held at Lawson Field last February and March. The Ninth Air Force, with its headquarters set up in trailers at Lawson, will carry out the main part of the operation under the direction of the Tactical Air Center, with the cooperation of the Infantry Center, and the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Quesada, Superintendent, Maj. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, commanding general of Tactical Air Command, Langley Field, Va., will supervise Operation "Combine." Directing operations at the scene will be Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, commanding general of the Ninth Air Force, and Brig. Gen. Jared V. Crabb, deputy commanding general of the ninth.

Advance echelons of the various units taking part in the operation will be in place by September 15. Based at Lawson Field, in addition to Ninth Air Force headquarters, will be the following units: 1st Fighter Squadron of the 1st Fighter Group (jet propelled); 12th Air Force outfit from March Field, Calif.; 47th Bomb group from Biggs Field, Tex.; 12th Air Force unit; detachments of the 161st Recon Squadron. Lawson Firemen Stage Exhibition

The Lawson field fire department, which was staffed with service personnel last November, staged its first fire fighting exhibition at 10 a. m. Wednesday with local airport officials, aviation enthusiasts and members of Columbus and Phenix City fire departments as special observers.

Supervising the demonstration was John Henderson, base fire chief since 1945, and his assistant Travis Whaley. The base fire department is headed by Capt. Harry Grover, chief structural fire marshal, and Lt. Melvin Norum, crash fire marshal. Prior to last November the department was entirely civilian operated.

Using special air forces fire fighting apparatus and fire cooling and smothering chemicals, the soldier-firemen and their civilian chiefs demonstrated both aircraft and air base fire fighting methods with speed and effectiveness.

The aircraft fire fighting and rescue work phase of the program was carried out by setting on fire the bulk of a condemned C-46 from the base home yard, which had been stripped of all usable parts and equipment. The proceeding was a hot and fast-spreading fire resulting from a gas tank leak, was demonstrated by discarding a motor dismantled and piled. The fire crews brought the scorching and smoky exhibition to a close with the risky job of extinguishing a fire caused by an underground gasoline storage tank explosion.

Apparatus Displayed Following the demonstration the visiting firemen and other guests were escorted on an inspection tour of the fire department, where they heard a commentary on base fire prevention and safety measures.

Apparatus on display included: A six-ton crash truck, equipped with four centrifugal pumps, capable of discharging 1,000 gallons. Continued on Page 20

Gun-toting hunters with polished bores anxiously await the opening of the sporting season which is scheduled for Nov. 1.

It has been announced by Col. Robert Hill, president of the Fish and Game commission, that the dove hunting season, usually the first of the sporting seasons to open, will not be legalized until Dec. 3. Other changes include the shift from the vermin list of wild hogs to a closed season to be announced later.

An abundance of "rocket" birds has been reported for this season. Much of the wild life which left here during the war due to scarcity of food, has returned following the planting of an aggregate preserve of 300 acres of small grains throughout the reservation. The hunters' paradise for doves is near Belbeck.

Wild hog hunting, considered the "king of sports" here, may be carried on only with permission from the president of the game commission until a season is authorized. At present permission is granted to lodges and organized societies.

Squirrel season is slated to open November 1, while the season on quail, turkey gobblers, and rabbits opens Nov. 20. Nov. 23 is the date set for wood ducks. Ducks and wild geese season commences Dec. 8.

Daily bag limits remain the same as in 1946, with the exception of ducks which has been reduced from two to one four and geese from two to one and four.

Personnel desiring to hunt on the preserve can obtain shotguns from the companies of School Troops.

Post Schools Plan Opening

Final plans have been laid for the opening of the post children's school Sept. 8, it was announced today by school officials.

Registration for children's school No. 1 will be held at the school Thursday and Friday, Sept. 4-5 between 8 a. m. and 3 p. m. Registration fees of three dollars will be payable at that time.

Children entering kindergarten must be five years old on or before Jan. 1, 1948 and will also be subject to a fee of three dollars and a tuition of 15 dollars for the initial three months.

Registration for Children's school No. 2 will be held Sept. 8 at 8:30 p. m. Fees and tuition charges will be the same as for No. 1.

Children of dependents living south of Uptoui creek will be furnished transportation to attend Children's school No. 1, while those living north of Uptoui creek, including Belbeck, will attend grammar school at Tillinghurst. Registration there will be held from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Sept. 3. Those attending high school will continue on Page 20

300 GI Students Slated To Complete Night School Here

With only three weeks remaining in the first session of the Infantry Center's vocational night school, officials are already aiming for an enrollment of 1,000 students for the fall quarter.

Approximately 300 students are expected to graduate at the end of the first term which ends Sept. 8. After a two-week recess, the school will reopen Oct. 6.

Several new courses are in the offing for the fall term, including Russian, German, Spanish, and French. Officials report that there are encountering difficulty in securing the services of a Russian instructor but expect to engage one in time for the opening. Other new courses to be added include radio maintenance and repair, auto mechanics, cabinet making and plastics.

A plan is under study now where the school will offer a high school course for students who wish to complete their high school education.

13 ISD Enlisted Men Awarded Promotions

Promotions in the Infantry School detachment last week included the following members of Company C:

T-Sgt. Kioe Stephens to master sergeant; S-Sgt. Ralph Holt, Arthur F. Johnson, Shirley D. Jones, and Luther S. Stout to technical sergeant; T-3 Abraham A. Toner to technical sergeant; Cpl. Peter J. Nicholas to sergeant; Pfc. Richard Snyder to corporal; and Pvt. Willie E. Camp, Robert A. Holmes, and Edgar M. Payne to private first class.

Other ISD promotions were: Cpl. Archie L. Ready, Company B, to sergeant; Pfc. Walter J. Griffin, detachment headquarters, to technician fifth grade.

Post Repair Project Nearing Completion

The extensive building and repair program under way here is moving along at a fast pace with most of the major projects nearing completion, post engineers said today.

Construction and development work has been completed on the Children's School in preparation for opening day Sept. 8, and installation of fluorescent lights. The new site for Children's School No. 2 has undergone a complete installation program, it was revealed.

Re-roofing and remaining of 600 temporary buildings on the Main Post are three-quarters completed. Work is also progressing on the Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church. Custer road to the Sand Hill area has been completely resurfaced and has been turned into a super-highway.

Post engineers officials also announced that the conservation program is producing results. Since inauguration of the water conservation program, the restriction on the use of water has come well within the limitations of the program.

37th Motor Pool Rolls To Mishap-Less Record

Completing 162 days operation and 9,000 dispatches without accident, the 37th Infantry motor-pool has established a record of accident prevention unexcelled by any unit on the post.

Rolling up a mileage equivalent to encircling the globe about 13 times the 37th has operated for the past 5 and one-half months minus a mishap with nearly 270 different drivers at the wheel. Stressing the importance of careful driving, personnel of the 37th must pass a rigid test, including a written examination on the knowledge of driving rules, an aptitude test, and a demonstration of driving ability. Personnel stand a good chance for pro-grade vehicles.

No driver of the 37th Infantry motor pool has been disqualified within the last year because of an accident and only one has served 30-day suspensions, the motor pool claims. The 78th Engineer Combat Battalion was also compiled an enviable record for the past six months. The 78th's last accident occurred in January of this year.

Plagiarism

The Bayonet has been amazed at the regularity with which our editorials have reappeared without credit in the publication of one of our colleagues. We do not yet know whether we should feel happy or irked over the flagrant abuse of the journalistic code. However, we do feel that we are due an apology since we often spend hours in research prior to putting the printed word on paper. Of course, we should be delighted to provide copies of all our work here if our editor colleague would be fair enough to designate the source of his information.

One editor has even gone so far as to substitute the name of his newspaper and installation for The Bayonet and Fort Benning. This unfair practice is without precedent in our career as a newspaperman, and needless to say, we resent it.

We are proud to be members of the Fourth Estate proud of the fact that our training has made us capable of passing along to the public a compilation of the week's news, and we fail to see humor in a situation such as this. There is nothing to be done about it—but we don't want our editor friend that such a practice is definitely a deterrent to the advancement of the profession of journalism, and we sincerely hope it will be stopped immediately.

Although it doesn't feel much like it down here in Georgia, the fall season is almost upon us. Synonymous with American sport, football, that rough and tumble game which has so much appeal for old and young alike.

Here at Fort Benning our own Doughboys, 1946 All-Serve champs who went through the entire season last year without once tasting defeat, are getting ready for their opening game on September 27 when they play the Cherry Point Marines at Cherry Point, N. C. Any day in the week, and at night too, the Doughs can be seen over on the polo field scrimmaging, blocking, tackling, losing that excess weight so easy to pick up during the lazy, summer months.

The Bayonet, in addition to following the Doughboys this year with as much interest as their other fans, bringing to our readers a play-by-play account of all ten games.

We have one word of suggestion to Fort Benning troops: Support the Doughboy eleven! Attend the home games. By doing so, the team will feel that Fort Benning is behind them one hundred per cent. Consequently their morale will be higher. The result is obvious: another victorious year!

To the Editor:

In your issue of Aug. 28, 1947, you made a statement that I untrue. You state the Company H of the Infantry School detachment is the only unit in the post having private mail boxes for its personnel.

I am a member of Headquarters and Services company, Airborne Battalion, and I know that statement is not fact. Our company was the first on the post to have such mail boxes, and we still have them. Furthermore, we are the only unit that donated 140 mail boxes to Company H from our company property.

I would appreciate it very much if you would publish this letter to set the matter straight. Thank you.

Cpl. Gene R. Moore.

The Bayonet regrets having made this error and hopes that publication of the above letter will serve as a correction. The Editor.

GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT

To quote the dictionary: "Prejudice: A judgment or opinion formed without due regard; a prejudice; a premature or biased opinion."

Books concerning prejudices are certainly not rare, with the last few years having seen "Kingsblood Royal," "Strange Fruit" and even "Inside USA," but definitely among the best of such books, particularly when they take the novel form, is this story by anti-Semitism which is a fine novel and at the same time presents a solid argument backed by facts and well-drawn situations.

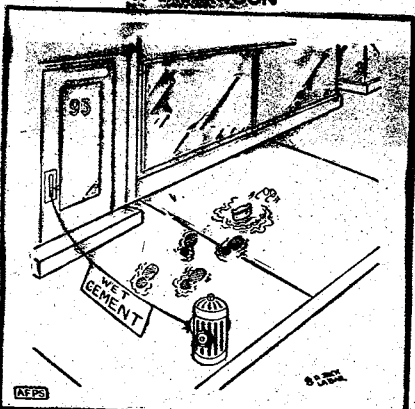

Essentially this is the story of an anti-Semite, and Mrs. Hobson also weaves an interesting love story well-connected to the central problem. Into her novel which makes the entire book hold together.

This book is the story of a man assigned to write a series of articles for magazine publication on the subject of anti-Semitism. Coming from an Episcopalian background, he is rather mystified about the possibility of actually feeling the problem until he decides to assume the role of a Jew. While playing this role for two months, he learns much which is passed on to the reader through his personality. The situation is one that hardly fails to draw attention and keep it throughout the entire one of the 275 pages of the volume.

Among the interesting facts brought to the attention of the reader is that there is no Jewish race. The situation is a result of a conversation between Phil and a young son when the writer explains, "You can be an American and a Catholic, or an American and a Protestant, or an American and a Jew. Or you could be French or German or Spanish or any nationality at the same time you're Catholic or a Protestant or a Jew."

The importance of considering the Jew only as a member of a religious group rather than of a race or nation is brought out over and over in this sincere attempt to clarify the problem and to start readers thinking, considering the roots of their feelings. Further, through being a Gentle himself, but assuming the role of a Jew, Phil Green is able to point out how the prejudice against Jews, as a whole, is applied to an individual regardless of his character.

The story, concerning Phil Green and Kathy also becomes much involved in anti-Semitism as the couple find it difficult to be able quite to understand each other in the light of this question. Kathy repeats the link which she claims to be a liberal, will talk to such a manner among people who are not Jewish, but when faced with a situation which involves action on the subject, finds agreement" which is anti-Semitic to the point of rejecting Jews from the community, clubs, and on against Jews as a class rather than as individuals. The lack of understanding of the attitude of Kathy when she is with her friends who are anti-Semitic. The style of Mrs. Hobson's

BY MURRAY E. HILL

We are often asked if it is all tragedy in the Red Cross office and if anything funny ever happens. That question brings to mind the old phrase, "It is fun to some people is tragedy to others." Nevertheless, we do have occasions for smiles from time to time.

It was just a short while ago that a greatly disturbed young girl for three weeks, and now she writes me a letter like this, "I haven't heard a thing from my soldier for three weeks, and now she said that she knew he would be satisfied until he got even by writing her in Japanese." Then there is the humorous pathetic instance that we see so often. Not long ago two of our Red Cross workers noticed a small girl standing near our doorway looking very worried. Finally one of the workers approached her and asked if she could be of help.

The little girl, looking perplexed, asked to get a loan. The place where I am stationed here, and I came to see him, but he's not here, and I have no money to get home out. The Red Cross worker assured the little girl that this was the place she could get a loan.

Thinking the child had come from some distant city, the worker asked how much money she would need and prepared to send a telegram to a distracted family. The little girl quickly replied, "Fifteen cents. I live all the way in Columbus." The worker handed her the fifteen cents and said, "Thank you very much," the child said earnestly. When can I repay you?" Suppressing a smile, the Red Cross worker gravely explained that the Red Cross would consider this an outright grant and would not expect to be repaid.

The writing is extremely well-suited to the story she has to tell. It is modern, easy-going and the conversation is convincing. Too often a book dealing with such a subject is filled with phrases that are too oratorical, too planned to bring out the author's point of view. In this book the author's point is smoothly presented through natural conversation between characters moving according to their own personalities rather than being forced into situations through the author's will to present a view.

The book itself is far more convincing than "Kingsblood Royal" which also attempts to deal with a prejudice. The lack of the author's characters and the entire situation makes it really "Gentleman's Agreement" definitely has

"A CHALLENGE"

By Chaplain Theodore R. Owens

Let us love life and laughter, and tolerance and good fellowship. Let us hate cruelty in all its forms. Let us dedicate ourselves to the children of the world so that they may get a fair and equal chance of life and happiness. Let us have courage above all to face life, this strange adventure, whatever it brings in hardship or peril.

Throughout all the struggles and striving of the human race, all its misgivings and shortcomings, all its blunderings and conflicts, all its devastations and destructions, all its failures and stupidities, all above mentioned ideas have lived in many a simple and noble mind before and after such as characters as Socrates and Plato and Isaiah and the Christ. That faith helped them through and enabled them to make their contributions to the world. Likewise it will help you to make a contribution to the world.

Only by such faith again, reawakened and strengthened by new knowledge, reaching out across the world, controlling the masses, distributing more fairly the fruits of toil working for peace, and raising the standard of charity, we go forward to meet the unknown future unafraid.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

NIGHT UNTO NIGHT (melodrama) with Viveca Lindfors, Ronald Reagan, and Osa Massen. Hiding away in an old mansion to escape from reality, a man meets the widowed owner who undertakes to restore his faith and confidence in the future. Recommended for mature.

GREEN FOR DANGER (crime and humor) with Sally Gray, Trevor Howard, and Rosamund John. Photographed against the background of a small English hospital, when that country was being buzz-bombed by the Germans, this murder story involves five suspects and a Scotland Yard inspector who maintains a sense of humor despite the grim aspects of his duties. Recommended for family.

ADVENTURE ISLAND (tropical melodrama) with Rely Colboun, Rhonda Fleming, and Paul Kelly. When three beachcombers with black posts and dim futures try to steal a shipload of champagne, they find their cargo has more "kick" than they bargained for. Recommended for mature.

SINGAPORE (oriental adventure) with Fred MacMurray and Ava Gardner. The Orient, with its mysteries and secret police, provides the excitement and background for MacMurray's adventurous escapades as a smuggler. Recommended for mature.

KEY WITNESS (murder melodrama) with John Beal, Trudy Marshall, and Jimmy Lloyd. An innocent victim of circumstances, accused of murder, switches his identity and finds himself accused of committing a second murder. Recommended for mature.

THE MARAUDERS (western) with William Boyd and Andy Clyde. An oil deposit discovered under a ramshackle church in a ghost town stirs up plenty of action when two factions start fighting for the oil well. Recommended for family.

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of columns dealing with the important events of World War II, a chronicle depicting the progress and highlights that mark each day of the struggle. Today's column recalls the events between Aug. 29 and This Day Sept. 4.

August 29, 1947—Three years ago today American troops captured Soissons. General Patch's Seventh Army was wiping out the bulk of the German army in the Rhine Valley.

August 30, 1947—Three years ago today the British Second Army drove into Amiens, virtually isolating a 100-mile stretch of the robot coast of northern France. Germany's Balkan front collapsed. Nice, France, was captured without opposition.

August 31, 1947—Five years ago today Field Marshal Montgomery attacked the British on the Egyptian front.

Sept. 1, 1947—The Americans two years ago today were planning their entry into Tokyo and the former capital of the Japanese. Four years ago U. S. forces were attacking tiny Marcus Island in the Pacific. U. S. forces were fighting in Guadalcanal and the Solomons. The Atlantic Charter had just been agreed to by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Sept. 2, 1947—Seven years ago today the U. S. exchanged 50 over-age destroyers for British bases in St. Lucia, Trinidad, Antigua, British Guiana, and the Bahamas.

Sept. 3, 1947—Five years ago today Japanese forces were in southeastern Solomons. The U. S. Marines had consolidated their positions on the Guadalcanal-Telaga area. The British repulsed Rommel's attack in Egypt. The Russians fell back northwest of Stalingrad.

Sept. 4, 1947—Three years ago today the British second Army took Brussels and the port of Antwerp. The Dutch border was crossed.

Kadzis Commended

S-Sgt. Joseph E. Kadzis, mess sergeant of the Airborne battalion's Company G, last week received, for the third time in 10 months a commendation for the "high standards of food handling, preparation, and serving" that are maintained in his mess hall, it has been announced.

Pan-Hell Plans Supper At Club For Sept. Meet

In place of their monthly luncheon, ladies of the Pan-Hellenic association will hold a party September 10 at the Fort Benning Officers' club with buffet supper and dancing on the program which will be an open meeting to include husbands.

Mrs. George T. Colvin, who can be reached at phone number 2413, and Mrs. W. D. Wise who can be called at 3905, are in charge of reservations and arrangements for the event to be held next Wednesday.

Student officers' wives who are interested should contact Mrs. Colvin or Mrs. Wise if they are new on the Post and sorority members.

Sand Hill Units Observe Labor Day With Parties

Highlighted by a large attendance of visitors from Columbus and communities adjacent to Fort Benning, Labor Day at Sand Hill was celebrated by a series of functions sponsored by Pine Lodge Officer's Club, Service Club No. 2, and the 25th Infantry NCO Club.

At Pine Lodge Officer's Club, the De Veauxville wives presented a winner roast and lawn party which was conducted under the supervision of Mrs. Julian E. Miles and Mrs. Valerie Deslandes. The festive occasion terminated at a late hour with a large gathering of members, wives, and guests enjoying the affair to the fullest.

Service Club No. 2, under the direction of Mrs. Kate L. Trent, presented a day-long series of events which started off with a swimming party in the Sand Hill pool, buffet luncheon, card party and games which was followed by dancing to recording.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, T/Sgt. John Williams of the 25th Infantry NCO Club supervised the committees which entertained a capacity attendance of membership and guests which also enjoyed a lawn party, barbecue, and a Rockola dance.

Couple Honored At Buffet Supper

Capt. and Mrs. Austin D. McQuinn were honored Sunday evening when Capt. and Mrs. Treadwell were hosts at a buffet supper at their quarters.

Other guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. C. Brill and Major and Mrs. S. A. Satterfield.

Captain and Mrs. McQuinn are leaving the Post as he is being sent to Italy for duty. Mrs. McQuinn will join her husband in Europe as soon as possible.

Couple Recite Vows In Chapel Ceremony Friday Afternoon

Of social interest here last week was the ceremony Friday afternoon when Mrs. Sarah St. John, of Hopkinsville, Ky., became the lovely bride of Major Arlo W. Mitchell at the Post Chapel with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace Hale officiating and Mrs. L. H. Averitt furnishing the nuptial music.

The chapel was beautifully decorated with floor baskets of gladioli and burning tapers in the tall candelabra on the altar. The bride wore an attractive two-piece dress of champagne satin fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves, self buttons and a V-neckline. Her hat of emerald green was a bonnet style with latticed back and her corsage was of yellow daisies and white rose buds.

Mrs. C. B. Hewitt Jr., of Columbus, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a frock of brown crepe with a pink and white corsage of carnations and roses. Major Blackburn Stephens acted as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony cocktails and a wedding supper were served at the Officers' club where the party included the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt, Major and Mrs. Stephens and Capt. Carlos Lozano.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrette Brown, of Hopkinsville, Ky., and was graduated from Bethel Women's college in Hopkinsville. She also attended Christian Women's college in Columbia, Mo.

The groom, whose home is Wichita, Kans., was graduated from Wichita university and took graduate work at Colorado State college. After teaching for four years in Jataona, Kan., he joined the Army in 1941 and served in the Pacific during the war. He is now with the Inspector General's office and on September 8 will enroll in the Advanced Infantry course.

Coffee Club To Meet

Members of the Block 12 Coffee club will meet Thursday morning at 9:30 at the quarters of Mrs. John Seville at 115 Ingersoll Loop.

The Coffee club meets every Thursday morning and all newcomers in Block 12 are invited to join the group.

Parents Honored At Formal Party On Week End Visit

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Thee, of Tulsa, Okla., and Dallas, Tex., were the guests of honor when Capt. and Mrs. J. H. Miller entertained Saturday evening at a formal dinner party on the patio of the Officer's Club, with dancing later.

Mr. and Mrs. Thee were house guests at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Miller in Columbus for the Labor Day week end and are the parents of Mrs. Miller.

Before going to the club the Millers served cocktails at their home and the guests included the honorees; Lt. and Mrs. F. J. Zigman, and Mr. and Mrs. John Deeden. At the club the guests found the table attractively decorated with a centerpiece of cut flowers.

Crafts Taught At Service Club

Instructions in basket weaving, hand painting, leather craft, home decorating, sewing and utilization of waste materials are among the subjects being taught in the classes in arts and crafts given every Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock at Service Club No. 4 on the Main Post, it was announced today by the club director.

The classes are primarily for wives of enlisted men, but any enlisted personnel, who may be free from 1 to 4 p. m. are invited.

Mrs. Valeria Deslandes, USO-YWCA worker from Columbus, is in charge of the classes and is assisted by Miss Kemp.

An exhibit of the work done in these classes is being planned for the near future.

No-Host Event At Club

Dinner and dancing at the Officers' club featured the gala no-host party attended last week by Lt. and Mrs. John T. Dunphy, Lt. and Mrs. Walter H. Murphy and Lt. and Mrs. R. J. Smith. The couples enjoyed the dinner and dancing on the club patio.

Tenth Wedding Anniversary Sees Gala Celebration

Their tenth wedding anniversary was the occasion for a colorful celebration Wednesday evening by Capt. and Mrs. Gerald M. Henderson as they entertained a group of friends at a buffet supper and dance at the Officer's club. Before going to the club the guests were served cocktails at the hosts' quarters.

A brass Chinese bowl with bright zinnias and matching candelabra with white tapers made the graceful decorations for the table set on the patio.

Col., Mrs. Bragan Entertain At Club

Col. and Mrs. O. P. Bragan were hosts at a delightful dinner dance last week when they entertained at the Officers' club after serving cocktails at their quarters earlier.

Guests for the evening were Col. and Mrs. Hamilton Thorn, Col. and Mrs. John Frederick and Col. (ret.) and Mrs. P. H. Camp.

Guest From Boston Feted At Several Events On Post

Mrs. Margaret Chaloff, of Boston, Mass., was feted at a lovely buffet supper party Wednesday evening at the Officers' club when Col. and Mrs. C. W. Pence entertained for their houseguest who is the sister of Mrs. Pence.

Mrs. Chaloff arrived on the Post Sunday by plane from Los Angeles where she had been visiting her mother. She plans to leave Friday for Boston.

For the Wednesday evening event Mrs. Pence arranged the table set on the patio with bright flowers in crystal bowls and green tapers in crystal candelabra. Approximately 25 guests attended the formal party.

Monday evening Mrs. Chaloff was honored at a dinner given by Col. and Mrs. Robert B. Hill at their quarters. The guests were served buffet supper in the yard where the hostess has a colorful flower garden.

Company D Holds Gala Party Before Location Change

Holding their last get-together before leaving for the Harmony Church area, members of Company D, 25th Infantry, and their guests celebrated with a gala party and buffet luncheon recently with their mess hall especially decorated for the occasion.

Guests of honor were Capt. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Willis, Capt. W. H. former commanding officer of the unit, is on orders to attend an advanced course at the Army School. In a brief talk he expressed his thanks to the unit for its cooperation during his tour of duty as commander.

Capt. William R. Royston, present. C. O., also spoke.

Present at the guest table were Capt. and Mrs. Willis, Capt. and Mrs. Royston, Lt. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Thomas, Lt. Holmes, Sgt. and Mrs. Antoine Pierre, T-Sgt. and Mrs. T. H. Murtin, T-Sgt. and Mrs. C. A. Wiggins and S-Sgt. and Mrs. J. E. Mott.

Dinner on Patio Honors Visitors

To honor Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Winstead and their son Robert, who were visitors here last week from Poplar Bluff, Mo., Major and Mrs. Basil M. Winstead entertained during the week at a colorful dinner dance on the patio at the Officers' club.

Other guests for the evening were Major and Mrs. Arthur Salguero and Capt. and Mrs. Robert W. Chambers.

Mr. Winstead is Major Winstead's brother.

Third Division Reunion Sees Col., Mrs. Collins Hosts At Dinner

Victory Lodge was the recent scene of a gala annual reunion buffet supper and dance for former members of the Third Infantry Division and their wives who are stationed at Fort Benning and in the vicinity.

The route from the Main Post to the Lodge was well-marked with replicas of the division route markers so well-known to "Marine Men" overseas and the Lodge itself was decorated with blue and white streamers and the division insignia.

The only entrance to the party was via a covered slide and as each guest landed on the well-padded floor, the master of ceremonies introduced the arrival. Music was furnished by Sgt. Ben Cortese and his band, including the feature of the evening, a singing skit of "Dog-Face Soldier", the song which was adopted by the Third Division while overseas.

The guest list included Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Brig. General and Mrs. Winfield P. Shepard, Col. and Mrs. J. A. Nichols, Col. and Mrs. L. W. Boyd, Col. and Mrs. W. H. Monahan, Lt. Houseguest Feted At Several Special Events On Post

Miss Gellie Gibson of Charlotte, N. C., the houseguest of Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. C. Gibson, was feted several times during her visit on the Post recently.

Last Wednesday Colonel and Mrs. Gibson entertained Miss Gibson at a delightful buffet supper at the Officers' club when dancing was enjoyed later in the evening on the patio. Other guests for this event were Major Edythe Turner, Capt. Edna Parker, Major James L. Packman, Major Leonard H. Estes and Capt. Rudolph P. Czaja.

Earlier in the week Lt. Col. and Mrs. William D. North honored Miss Gibson at a dinner party at their quarters where the hostess arranged the table, overlaid with a white lace cloth, with a crystal epergne holding mixed flowers and pink tapers.

Guests at the North's party, in addition to Miss Gibson, were Colonel and Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Allen Thayer of Clear Water, Fla.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. H. A. Stewart entertained Miss Gibson at her quarters with a dining bridge. Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. North were also present.

Choir Members Hold Picnic Party

Members of the choir at the Main Post Chapel enjoyed a picnic party Thursday evening following their regular practice hour when they went to the Skeet club.

The group left the Post Chapel by a special bus at 8:30 p.m. and enjoyed games and a picnic during the evening. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace Hale and Lt. S. James Sully were in charge of the arrangements. Mrs. Lily C. Garrett is the choir director.

Mrs. and Mrs. Dan Stewart of Harriman, Tenn., were house guests at the quarters of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Ralph Marwood over the Labor Day week and a week.

Capt. and Mrs. Leslie Hunter and their two children were in Columbus for several days, last week on their way from Panama to Oklahoma and visited with M-Sgt. and Mrs. G. E. Tole on the Post during their stay.

Miss Pat Hostead of Columbus spent the Labor Day week end visiting at the quarters of M-Sgt. and Mrs. G. E. Tole. She is the sister of Mrs. Tole.

Col. and Mrs. L. A. Diller recently moved into quarters on the Post after returning from a year spent in Tokyo. With them in Japan was their 15-year-old son, Dick. The Dillers are old-timers at Benning and were married when Colonel Diller was stationed here from 1927 to 1931 and Mrs. Diller was here with her parents, Col. and Mrs. H. A. Wells. Colonel Diller was in the Pacific during the war and Mrs. Diller stayed in Charlotte, N. C., and San Francisco, Calif.

Newcomers to the Post are Col. and Mrs. William M. Linton who have just come from California where Colonel Linton earned his masters degree in civil engineering at Cal. Tech. The couple are the parents of a 3-month-old son, David. During the war Colonel Linton was in Europe and his wife was in Plainfield, N. J., where she kept busy doing nurse's aide work at Camp Kilmer.

After being at Fort Leavenworth for the past year, Col. and Mrs. C. R. Eltzer have returned to Benning where they were previously stationed for a year after the colonel returned from the Pacific. With the Eltzers are their children—a 13-year-old daughter and a four-year-old son.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Mitchell, of Jackson, Miss., arrived Tuesday evening and is being entertained on the Post as the houseguest of Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Millican.

Miss Jane Brown and her fiancé, Jack Coons, were guests at the quarters of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Fred Brown Sunday. The couple came over from Fairfax, Ala. Miss Brown is the sister of Sergeant Brown.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. R. E. Lamb have returned to quarters on the Post after being away for six months while they were stationed in Paris, Ill. The Lambs are at Benning for the third time, having been here about 12 years altogether. The couple have two sons, 13 and 10, and two daughters, 7 and 5.

Stepped-up activity was noticeable over the field Monday as base personnel merged with TAC personnel to get the ball rolling for Operation Conquest. During the long weekend the field's single gals were trying to estimate the number of bachelors coming to the base on the new assignment. Competition from stenographers coming down with organizations was also considered, we hope. . . . Speaking of girls—a popular one on the base these days, who spends her time romping at the Officer's club and BOQ, is "Baby" Capt. Kellehers glamorous blond coquet spaniel puppy.

Going from the gay to the sad: Pvt. John T. Gorman, of Sqd. A, was given an emergency furlough over the week-end to attend his grandmother's funeral in Tennessee. . . . and Cpl. Russell F. Collins, of some unit, left for Climax, Ga., when he was notified of the passing of his newborn infant.

The World War II Victory Medal was presented to 192 enlisted men from Squadron A, on August 16.

Sunday School Classes Resume Sunday Morning

Sunday school days will return to the Post next Sunday when the classes will convene at 9 a. m. in the Children's school at Lumpkin and Wolf.

Parents have been invited to attend the opening day program, to see the opportunities their children will have. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale will welcome the older pupils at a special devotional program to be held in the school auditorium from 9:15 and following the parents will be invited to visit each class. Eight classes of children from one year of age to young people of 17 years will be conducted each Sunday. The Cradle Roll class, one to three years, will be taught by Mrs. Lamar Holcomb and Mrs. Francis E. Griffin.

Beginners, four to five years will have a class taught by Mrs. Winston L. Olson and Mrs. James M. E. Browning while the Primary Class, six to seven years will be led by Mrs. Robert B. Mathis and Mrs. Wallace M. Hale. Mrs. Richard J. Dial will conduct Primary Class No. 2, eight to nine years.

Donald Reed teaches the Junior Girls, nine to 11 years. The Intermediate class, 12 to 13 years will be conducted with Mrs. Robert P. Caris and her Young People's Class, 14 to 17 years, has been organized. Chaplain Hale will be their teacher.

Bus transportation will be available each Sunday morning, picking up the children in the residential areas and returning them to their homes after Sunday school. In addition to the driver, an enlisted man will be on each bus to facilitate the delivery of each child to his home. Parents can assist the bus driver and the enlisted man on duty by writing the name of the child and his home address and placing it in the child's pocket or pinning it on his coat lapel.

Planners for the Sunday school will be Mrs. Albert Pfeifer, Mrs. E. A. Callahan, Mrs. Wallace M. Hale and M-Sgt. John T. Scoville. Wednesday evening all teachers and assistants in the Sunday school program met at the quarters of Chaplain and Mrs. Hale for orientation and conference. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Morning Party Compliments Guests From Swainsboro

House guests at the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph A. Tolve this week are Mrs. Arthur Thompson, mother of Mrs. Tolve, and Mrs. Tolve's niece, Miss Margaret Thompson. The guests are both from Swainsboro, Ga., and Miss Thompson is a junior at Brenau college, where she is a member of Phi Mu sorority.

To compliment her niece, Mrs. Tolve entertained Tuesday morning at her quarters when she invited a group of young people to a coke party to meet Miss Thompson.

Guests for the morning party were Jessie Sanderson, Bobbie and Connie Freund, Millie Scudder, Marie Colston, Ruth Ross, Gloria Halprin, Martha Thompson, Leslie Tibbetts, Pat Bush, Joan Veal, and Marilyn Flemming. Both of the guests will return to Swainsboro Friday as Miss Thompson will be returning to college soon.

Lawson NCO Club Scene Of Welcome For Newcomers

The Lawson field NCO club entertained with a "Welcome Party" Saturday night in honor of Operation Combine non-commissioned officers who arrived at the base last week.

Dinner was served buffet style in the club's main lounge at 8 p. m., and dancing to the music of the Georgians was enjoyed on the club patio until midnight. The club entertained 9th Air Force personnel, who arrived during the first part of this week, at game night Wednesday from 8 p. m. to midnight.

On September 6, club members will entertain 7-Sgt. and Mrs. Victor Vandervort with a tea dance in honor of their sixth wedding anniversary.

1,500 Officers To Be Admitted In Army Yearly

WASHINGTON (APFS)—Due to increased requirements of the peacetime Regular Army, approximately 1,500 officers will be commissioned each year from sources other than the Military Academy at West Point, the War Dept. has announced. Qualified personnel, both civilian and military, may obtain commissions in either the Officer's Reserve Corps of the National Guard through attendance at Officer's Candidate Schools. Two years of active duty will follow OCS, with the opportunity for Regular Army careers, if selected, after one year of active service.

To qualify for admission into Officers Candidate School, candidates must:

Be at least 20 years, six months of age; not more than 28 years for Reserve Corps and not more than 25 years for subsequent Regular Army career.

Be citizens of the United States. Be possessed of high moral character.

Have completed two years of high school or equivalent for Reserve commission and two years of college for Regular Army career.

Be able to pass physical examination. Complete basic military training if no previous military experience is recorded.

Candidates qualified for admission to Officers' Candidate School may submit applications through channels to their Army or overseas commander.

Any enlisted first three grades may apply for direct appointment into the Officer's Reserve Corps if he is at least 21 years of age and not more than 25; is a citizen; has a complete high school education; and has a score of 110 or more in Army General Classification Test.

Procedure for application is the same as that for admission of Officer's Candidate School. However, all applications must be submitted prior to December 31, 1947.

Officers in the Organized Reserve Corps, National Guard and Army of the United States may apply for re-entry on a one-year competitive tour for Regular Army appointments. Only those in the above categories with two years of college and who will not yet have reached their 25th birthday prior to the commencement of their active tour are eligible to apply.

BACK TO THE ARMY—State Demetrios Demetrios, 19, of the recruiting office here, shows going in to re-

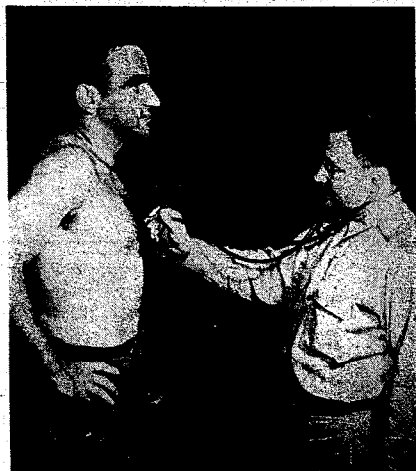

THE CLASSIFICATION—Prior to being sworn into the new Regular Army, Demetrios must successfully pass the classification test. William B. Brockett, right, standing, gives instructions to Demetrios, seated at front desk.

TALKING THINGS OVER—First step at the Central Recruiting Board for Demetrios is with S/Sgt. Thomas E. Birdsong, counselor, who interviews the applicant for admission into the Army to see what he determines a suitable enlistment.

FINAL STEP—The new Army wants only healthy young American manhood. Here Demetrios gets a thorough physical examination by an Army doctor.

WELCOME TO THE NEW ARMY—Mal Allen E. Cole, head of the examining board, welcomes the new applicants to Fort Benning and outlines the benefits of the new Regular Army. Demetrios is on the right in the first row.

Examining Board Work Is Revealed In Pictures

The Bayonet, wondering just what went on behind the scenes at the Central Examining Board, decided to send a photographer and reporter there to cover the activities. We got there in time to follow the processing of Pete Demetrios, a former lieutenant, who re-enlisted as a staff sergeant. Reproduced on our regular story page this week are the results of our tour.

Sergeant Demetrios, after being assigned to the 83rd Field Artillery's Headquarters battery, was named an assistant coach of the 1947 Doughboy grid team. He played football for Mercer University before the war.

HIS NEW HOME—Demetrios, now a staff sergeant, reports to 1st Sergeant Gilmore E. Currier, Headquarters Battery, 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, for his new assignment.

Benning Corporal Recalls March Through Germany

Germany to some Yank soldiers is a beautiful place, but after traveling approximately 500 miles through the country from prison Truck Company, views it in a different light.

Assigned to the 13rd Infantry of the 36th Division, Ward landed in Africa in April 1943 and soon was at Salerno beach-head. He was captured and began his long, hazardous journey through Germany from prison camp to prison camp.

Escape Cut Off

At Salerno Cpl. Ward found himself about eight miles inland with his company. Sent up to relieve a company in the line, it was discovered that the Germans had cut off the only avenue of escape by blowing up a bridge. Unable to escape, the company was cut to pieces. Eight men were left. Orders were to get back the best way possible and in the attempt four were casualties and the other four, among whom was Ward, taken prisoner.

Once captured the prisoners were marched toward the rear lines, a march that took better than two months and covered a rugged terrain of approximately 800 miles to Brenner Pass. With very little food to sustain them during the trek, the Germans suffered from malnutrition, finally finishing as practically "walking skeletons."

Begins Long March

At Brenner Pass Ward, along with about 600 other soldier-prisoners, boarded a train for Stalingrad at Mossburg, Germany. From there the group was sent to Stalingrad where the first and third Ranger battalions were issued. The diet at Stalingrad was passable through the addition of Red Cross parcels. On the move again Ward and the prisoners found themselves in Furtwengler on the Oder river. The food situation was becoming near camp with the sound of

FOR GOD AND COUNTRY—Maj. Cato administers the oath of enlistment to this group of new Regular Army enlistees. Demetrios is at the right end.

TIME OUT FOR PLAY—While awaiting final orders assigning them to units here or at some other installation, the new enlistees participate in sports activities. Demetrios is at bat.

Joe: "I hear the first sergeant is back from his furlough."
 Mac: "Yeah. Everything is back to abnormal."

When women get a run in those new synthetic stockings, made from coal, wood and rubber, they won't know whether they have a splinker, a splinter or a blowout.

Sgt: Squads right!
 Pvt: After all these months he finally admits it.

booming guns in the distance. The Germans once more marched them away this time in a southeastern direction.

The prisoners were kept on the march, going for days without food. On several occasions the captives in charge of the prisoners, kept the men going. At several camps along the way, food was scarce that they were ordered to be shot. This the captain refused.

Picking up little scraps of food here and there along the way, the prisoners received word that the Russians were breaking through and killing everything in their way. With the Russians ahead and the prisoners too weak to turn back, the Germans came up with a proposition that was to end in their own selves. The German guards decided to turn themselves over as prisoners of the Americans if they promised not to shoot them. This was agreed and the Germans surrendered to the prisoners.

After a walk of a few miles, with the procedure now reversed, the group met a U. S. staff car and was directed to an MP outpost.

Sergeant, Held Jap Prisoner, Became 'Fed Up' With Mining

Coal mining may be essential to national economy but T-4 James Schrock of 33rd Transportation company is "fed up" with of malaria and has had all of it he wants.

As a prisoner of war of the Japanese, mining coal was one of the arduous tasks Schrock was forced to perform.

Sgt. Shamrock arrived overseas as a regular in September 1940 and was assigned to the 31st Infantry regiment stationed at Manila in the Philippine islands.

Following the attack on Pearl Harbor, it was just a short time before Schrock and thousands of other Americans were taken prisoner by the Japs. Conditions at the camp were none too good, and Schrock suffered several attacks of malaria and was hospitalized. The treatment at the hospital was an improvement, but there was a definite lack of proper medical supplies.

After his recovery he was on his way with the other POW's to the island of Nyushu, one of the main islands of Japan.

There he was put to work in the coal mines. Here the work was the grueling, 12 hours a day and sometimes more, with rations at the lowest level, consisting mostly of rice and left overs. Sabotage at the mines was prevalent, and as a result treatment of others was brutal. Schrock, among others, was brutally whipped and beaten as a result of these sabotage acts.

Sometime later American planes bombed and set fire to the coal piles and ruined the fuel efforts of the Japanese. Continuous bombardment meant the gradual tension of the American lines and before too long Jap Day arrived and the thousands of prisoners in Nyushu and other prison camps were freed.

Lee Presented Military Medal

S. Sgt. M. M. Lee, Company E, Airborne battalion, recently received word that he has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for participation in the 1944 Anzio landing with the First and Third Ranger battalions.

Serving with the First, Third, and Fifth Ranger battalions, Sgt. Lee saw action in both the European and Pacific theaters.

In 1942, as a member of the famous First Ranger battalion, Sgt. Lee took part in the British Commando raid on Dieppe. The Rangers held the escape corridor open while the commandos were making the attack.

Following the Dieppe raid, they proceeded to Africa where they went into Oran. The Rangers continued to move, this time advancing to Sicily, Italy, and finally into Salerno.

At Salerno Sgt. Lee received the Silver Star for distinguished service and was later awarded a Purple Heart for the medal at San Pietro, Italy. After the Anzio campaign the First and Third Ranger battalions were deactivated.

Sgt. Lee went to the Pacific, following two months in the States, where he participated in the raid on Cabatagan prison camp.

Among his other decorations, Sgt. Lee also wears the Purple Heart with cluster, Bronze Star, and French Croix de Guerre, Philippine Liberation ribbon, Occupation, American Defense, and the ETO and Asiatic-Pacific ribbons.

SPORTS Hit-Happy Doughs Trounce Keesler

3 Home-Runs Help Benning Nine Take Two-Game Series

Rejuvenated Doughboys batted the Keesler Field Fliers Friday and Saturday, as the Benchmen collected his two hits to cop both games of a two-game series played at Keesler field by respective scores of 6-1 and 13-0.

The series marked the first meeting of the two teams, but Keesler proved no match for the win-eager Doughs, although the fielding of second baseman Cooran, ace Flier infielder, made the spectators stand up and take notice on many occasions.

Gerhart Pitches

Fireball Dick Gerhart took the hill against the Mississippians Friday night, and effectively bruised the corners limiting the batters to five scattered hits, and one lone run which came in the form of a ninth-inning circuit hit by Keesler, the only man who seemed to play no Dough ball.

But Coates was the only man who sent the spheroidal sailing out of the park, for Gerhart connected with Ashburner's high outside pitch in the third for another trip around the bases with one aboard. It was in that inning that the Doughboys pushed three runs across, the first being on Forbes' steal, after he had reached first on a walk, to take a lead that was never in jeopardy.

Two away in the fifth, Dickson sent a vicious line drive into right field coming home on Burnett's double, and another Dough run was in.

Score Most In Ninth

But it was not until the final canto that the Benchmen really started their bats swinging for pay dirt. Burt led off in the ninth with a single base drive over the first baseman's head, scoring on Shiver's centerfield double. McGowan, pinch hitting for Dickson, took Ashburner's first pitch lashing out the second single in the inning and scoring Shiver. Elbioy Burnett connected for his third safety of the day, with a bounding single into right center, sending the fleet McGowan safely home. Ashburner recovered somewhat after the four-run flurry and retired Forbes and Pritchard in that order, but "Leity" Lehner tagged the righthander for another safety, reaching third before Ashburner could retire a man for the final out.

With the exception of one error in the field, the Doughs played superb ball, the type that they have played all year with the exception of a few games.

It looks as though the Dough-boys are beginning to develop home-run pitchers, for in the second game, when Frank Kruger drew the mound assignment, he, too, like Gerhart, belted the ball for another circuit saucer. Pitching fine ball from the opening inning, Kruger held the Fliers to three singles, all of which skidded over second base, winning his first shut-out victory of the season. Kruger seems to have developed a valuable rock before some of his pitches, and it does much to confuse a batter, and make his fast ball much more effective.

Get 16 Hits

Keesler used two pitchers, but neither were able to stem the tide of the Benchmen onslaught, as the Doughboys collaborated for 16 hits, two of which were homers.

Kruger rated only 24 players in the seven innings of play, striking out ten of the same. Keesler field never placed a man past second base, as Doughboy fielding nipped him, two of which were homers in five plays. The most spectacular fielding feat of the ball game was Bonair to first for Tom Forbes to put-out Bonair took Forbes' throw beautifully, and made a button-nose pitch to McGowan second before the runner reached the bag.

Scoring in every inning but the last, the Doughs teed off with a single run in the first frame after hits, two of which were homers, which included Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, and North Carolina. Despite serious inroads suffered when transfers, and separations from service robbed the team of several regular members, the Bullies' board of strategy were able to draw from the pool of intra-mural teams to successfully supplement the losses.

Gets 4 Singles

In each of the next four innings, the Benchmen continued blasting the beaten baseballs for hit after hit, scoring two runs in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. By the time the seventh inning was over, the Doughboys had an insurmountable lead of some 12 runs, so the Fliers decided to call it quits before the slaughter got any worse.

Woodye Burt, had a perfect day at the plate, collecting four singles in his four trips to the plate. Every man that faced the Keesler hurlers connected for at least one hit.

The only thing that hampered the Doughs was the sweltering heat under which they were forced to play in Friday night's tilt. The players were drenched in sweat, and had great difficulty getting last. The Doughs' top job on game Saturday afternoon was played beneath a sun that beat down on the field with unrelentless ferocity.

Bullets To Close Baseball Season With Road Trip

BY AL WISE

Closing their home game season with a 3-1 win over the Alabama All-Stars Sunday afternoon, at Bullet Field, the 25th C. T. Bullets locked the door on another successful diamond season with 48 wins and 21 losses.

On Sept. 7 and 8, the Bullets traveled to Montgomery and Birmingham and the face the highly touted Birmingham Black Barons in the remaining session of their three-game series.

Starting off the season with an impressive string of wins against the leading opponents of the Southeastern Inter-collegiate Athletic conference teams, the Bullets renewed their contacts with Fort Benning fandom by playing before capacity attendances both on Gowdy Field and their home grounds on Sand Hill's Bullet Field.

Coached by Capt. Austin D. McQuinn, with assistants, Lt. John F. Smith, and 1-st. Sgt. Charley Toliver, serving major roles, the team traveled over a wide area which included Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, and North Carolina.

Despite serious inroads suffered when transfers, and separations from service robbed the team of several regular members, the Bullies' board of strategy were able to draw from the pool of intra-mural teams to successfully supplement the losses.

When Capt. McQuinn assumed the post of regimental athletic and recreation officer, Lt. William H. Bean took over the coaching reins during the season's stretch run for the second successful showing of the Bullets diamond engagements.

Sport Quiz

(AFPS).—1. Since the retirement and death of Lou Gehrig, many Yankee firstbasemen have come and gone. Which one of these was never a candidate for work at the initial sack in the Stadium: Joe Gordon, Tommy Henrich, and Red Dente?

2. Frank Filchuk will play professional football in Canada this fall. Why his Canadian sojourn?

3. Who are Bobo and Jorgenson, Sam Dente and Jack Lohrke have in common?

4. The reason why Ted Williams did not become a star after the 1946 baseball season was: he was injured in the final game of the World Series. Do you own Tom Yawkey paid him not to play; the hunting season was opened in his hometown; he was ashamed of his failure in the Series?

Answers

1. Sears. Gordon tried-out during the spring training session; Henrich, often mentioned for the job, has filled in at first; and Lavy alternated between first and the outfield while with the Yanks.

2. Filchuk, former Redskins and Giant star, was barred from pro ball in the states along with Merle Hapes as the result of an attempted "fix" in Giant game last Fall.

3. All three are rookie third-basemen — Jorgenson with the Dodgers; Dente with the Red Sox and Lohrke with the Yankees.

4. It is reported that Yawkey gave Ted a bonus on the stipulation that Williams would not play post-season ball.

Benning Gridders Sated To Meet Marines Sept. 27

Now that the month of September has rolled around, and the hum-drum of Labor Day week end has come to an end, the eyes of the Fort Benning Doughboys and gridders are trained on the game with the Cherry Point Marines which will be played at Cherry Point, Sept. 27.

While the baseball team has been showing up well at Gowdy field, and setting themselves for the Third Army tournament, Dough boys are being prepared the relentless heat at Polo field, working every day getting in shape for a season that gives promise of being a tough one for the Benning eleven.

New Players

"Butch" Kendrick, hard-working Dough grid mentor, is anxiously awaiting the arrival of some of the baseball players who have made it clear that they intend to report for practice just as soon as they can be released from their diamond duties. Paul Bonair, second baseman on the Dough nine, is expected out very soon, along with Dick Gerhart, and George Dickson. Bonair played a lot of back field before he entered the Army, and should be a valuable addition to the backfield. Unfortunately the baseball season runs right up to the week when the football team journeys to Cherry Point, and as a result a great deal of ability will have to be left behind.

There are a few ailments on the team. Tom Wilkins, who has been showing up in the fullback slot splendidly, is permanently out of the line-up because of a bad knee, while Tom Draper, one of Kendrick's most able ends, is suffering from an infected foot and will not be able to play any ball at all this year.

The costliest loss this week comes in the form of a tackle, "Robby" Robertson, who was one of last year's "great." Robertson will be discharged about Sept. 16, and will be returning to the University of Utah where he played before entering the Army. Besides being one of the two hold-overs from last season's All-Service eleven, Robertson was the most valuable lineman that Kendrick has.

Ends Weak

At present, the Doughs are weakest on the ends and at the tackle spots, while the "T" formation has been left unworked because of the lack of capable being worked out date are all coming from the Notre Dame box.

Tom Ward, and Harold Lutz seem to be outstanding men on the front line. Lutz has been holding down left end well, while Ward is the best guard the Doughs have. Lutz tips the scales at 185 pounds, while Ward falls short of

Second Guessing

By RALEIGH GREENE

The Doughboys left the heat of Mississippi behind them Saturday night, and returned to home ground finishing a week on the road with a double win over the Keesler field fliers.

Although the Benchmen didn't return with their past spectacular record, they did bring back three wins in their six road starters, which is an even 500 average. It looks as though the Doughs will go great guns from here on out, judging from the rific onslaught they looked at Keesler field when they hammered baseballs around for 27 hits in two games, and chalked up three more curcuit blasts to their credit.

While on the subject of home runs, it might be worth while citing the fact that two of those homers were blasted by pitcher Gerhart in the first game and Kruper in the final tilt. Looks as though the Benning nine has been coaching their pitching staff in the art of sending baseballs out of parks. At any rate it was certainly a surprise to the hundreds of spectators that looked on as the Doughboys defeated the Keesler nine in spite of scorching heat.

After Dick Gerhart had pounded the spheroid for the first homer, all the team began inquiring the spectators that that was his 33rd homer of the season. Well, one would have gotten the idea that there was another Johnny Mize on the ball field, for each time Dick came to the plate thereafter, the crowd grew quiet waiting to see if the little right-hander would do it again.

Maxwell field proved to be the first team that the Doughs have met this year who were able to keep the Benchmen pretty well handcuffed. In the opener, the Maxwell nine shutacked the Doughs 8 to 0, and it was a little hard to understand. However, it was later learned that the pitcher was the proper Birmingham and at least one other player was out foreign to GI dress. The loss did not seem too bitter after this has been picking up during the last few games.

While the ball team was on the road, the Softball League was continuing with untiring fury. The detachment boys from the ISD turned the tables on the Airborne Battalion, dumping them in the finals of the play-off match, 3-0, right to journey to Fort Jackson, S. C., for participation in the Third Army tournament that commenced Sept. 1.

Bill Wyatt, of the ISD, practically did the impossible in the play-offs in that he pitched two games in one day, and all 14 innings he worked he held his opponents scoreless. In the semifinal game with the 30th Medical Group, the ISD had to play early in the afternoon of the same day that the final game was to be played because the game had been rained out the previous day. After Wyatt and company had humbled the Medics 7-0, they turned around to snatch the championship from the Airborne Battalion with another shut-out victory. Although the ISD has been in the division since league competition began back in July, there were three teams that managed to stay in the lead, so the ISD can feel proud to have marched across the field to their undisputed championship.

Word comes that there is some talk about playing a baseball game after the regular season is over with the RA men with ten years and overmen against the short timers with less than ten years. The latter group would be comprised of such standouts as Chick Shiver, with his mere nine years, and a host of other short timers. But the old men would really be loaded, since "Blondy" Burnett, "Woodie" Burt, Bill Brooks, and Lefty Lehner would be eligible for that ten year bracket. It has often been said that people with age... doesn't go for ball players, however. The four men mentioned above have all been hitting the ball plenty hard this season while Burt and Burnett have been the batting averages practically all year. What it ought to be a pretty good tussle if anything comes of it.

Although all the horses here on the Post were sold some weeks ago, the polo field is still filled each and every day, but these days gridders are replacing the horses. Captain Kendrick's quad is looking better every day, while most and more men have been turning out. A number of ball players plan to report for practice in a very few days, and their addition to the team will help materially.

"Boney" Bonair, 195-pound second baseman on the baseball team plans to work out just as soon as he can be released from his baseball duties. Bonair is reported to be quite a line pouter, and will be a good man to fill up the back-field in the Notre Dame box. George Dickson, who was head of the team, is another diamond devil who expects to shed his cap and gown for a helmet and pads.

The 1947 grid team still has almost a month to condition themselves before their opener with Cherry Point, Sept. 27, and Butch Kendrick is trying to get a scrimmage game with Auburn and Travis Tidwell.

It has recently been learned that a game has been fixed with Fort Riley, Kansas, so all here at Fort Benning may expect to see the sensational Glenn Davis, All-American from West Point in action in Doughboy stadium late in October. However, his line-busting running mate, Doc Blanchard, will not be with him unless the 'big fullback's plans change, since Blanchard expects to become a pilot and take his training at Randolph field, Texas.

Gallagher and Forbes, both members of the baseball team, are feeling pretty good these days since "Dem Bums" appear to be on their way to the National League pennant. With only 30 days to go, it does look as though these last minute uprisings of the St. Louis Redbirds are not to be repeated this year. Even if the Cardinals should win all the rest of their games, and the Dodgers managed to win only seven of their remaining games, the pennant would still come to roost to the benefit of the Yankees.

And Johnny Mize continues to blast away at the Babe's record of 89 homers in a season. As you will remember, the Babe started the month of September with only 38 curcuit blasts in 1927, but raised havoc in the stretch to set the record. The immortal Lou Gehrig was the only man to really threaten the Bambino's feat when he nearly tied it with 59. Mize still needs 18 more out he has 30 games to make it.

ISD Softball Nine Capture Post Title

The ISD softball team shut-out the Airborne Battalion Wednesday afternoon 3-0 to capture the Post Softball crown. Although the ISD has been in the upper division since the league commenced, they have had to climb from a fourth place position to snatch the championship laurels from the former top contenders, the Airborne Battalion and the 501st Parachute Battalion.

Medical Group, Bill Wyatt, ace hurler for the detachment boys, held complete mastery of the game from start to finish, limiting the medical group team to four safeties which were so scattered that no medic was advanced beyond second base. Wyatt has been hurling efficiently throughout league play, and has been one of the most important factors in the ISD's march to the championship.

Semi-Final Champ
In the other semi-final game, the Airborne Battalion romped over the 501st Parachute Battalion lashing out at pitcher Spoon for 11 safeties and 13 runs. Perrody, who took the hill against the Main Post troopers, fanned seven 501st batters, and was tagged for only two hits in the entire seven innings of play.

The Airbourne Battalion drove four runs across in the first canto, adding five more in the third, while their bats sang out for another run in the fourth frame, tallying their final three markers in the sixth. Although the 501st was guilty of seven miscues in the field, the Airborne Battalion completely outplayed the 501st in every phase of the game.

The strain under which the ISD was forced to play should be mentioned. The detachment team had to play two tilts in one day since their first game was rained out Tuesday and had to be played Wednesday.

Bill Wyatt, for the second time in one day, drove the mound as signment, and by shutting out the Airborne Battalion, now boasts 14 scoreless innings in one day—this is quite a record.

In the championship game Wyatt pitched one-hit ball, but the Airborne was able to tally three runs on a number of field errors. As the ISD came to bat at the bottom of the fifth, they were on the wrong end of a 1-0 score.

However, ISD bats got hot in the fifth frame and lashed out at Pitcher Perrody for four safeties and three runs.

Now that tourney play is at an end, drills for the Third Army Softball tournament, to be played at Fort Jackson, commencing Sept. 1, have gotten underway. The standouts from the teams who participated in league play have been selected to comprise the Fort Benning squad. The following list was received from the athletic and recreation office. These men will journey to Ft. Jackson Saturday morning as the Fort Benning entries in the tournament.

Jack Hallet, Stanley Whitman, Hiram Duncan, Paul Markland, Frank Hinzey, Ed Leland, Joe Steeman, John Wyatt, Bill Wallon, James Dickson, Robert Scallorn and Donald King have been selected from Company B, the Airborne Battalion.

Dave Perrody, Lyde McCauley and Harold Hines are the Headquarters and Service Company, the Airborne Battalion, while Jesse Budt and Bryant Fitzpatrick from the 501st Parachute Battalion, and Lloyd Watson from Company A, ISD, comprise the remainder of the Benning players.

Heavy Hitters
Fort Benning will have two excellent pitchers with them—Wyatt and Perrody, who have bolstered their team throughout league play. Perrody has hurled for the Airborne Battalion since their inaugural game, and Wyatt has won seven straight games for the ISD. Both moundsmen boast a low winning run average, and should be in the shape for the coming tourney.

The ISD and the Airborne Battalion men who comprise most of the team are bled with heavy hitting. During league play these two teams consistently humbled their opponents by impressive scores.

The tournament will be run on a double elimination basis. Should a team be defeated twice, that team will be knocked from tourney play. The finals will be held as soon as all but two teams have been summarily eliminated. Since the number of teams entered is not known at the present time, no date has been set for the finals.

Rolfe Visits Benning

"Red" Rolfe, famous former third baseman of the New York Yankees, came to Fort Benning last week for one day with Capt. Cedric Tallis, last year's post basketball coach.

Rolfe is traveling as a scout for one of the big leagues, and was in Montgomery when the Doughs played the Maxwell field Flyers early last week.

Benchmen Tally Season's 18th Win

Some 800 anxious spectators turned out Monday night to see the Doughboys romp over the Dixie Mills from LaGrange, Ga., 15-3 in their first game at Gowdy field since the Doughboys returned from their recent road trip. The win over the Millers made it 18 victories for the Doughs in their 22 seasonal starters.

"Bunk" Geter, Dixie hurler, went the distance for the Millers, but suffered greatly from the 13 hit onslaught staged by the Doughs who tallied runs in every inning but the last. The game makes it evident the Dough's hitting power has really come to its own again. The play in the field was exceptional except in the fifth frame when a pair of Dough errors, and two line singles, netted the Dixie boys two runs.

Millers Score First
The Millers looked quite strong as they opened the ball game at the plate with the Woodruff brothers tagging Andy Boland for two consecutive hits and a lone run which gave the LaGrange nine a 1-0 lead before the Doughs took their turn at the plate.

However, Burt and Kinard lashed out singles. Lefty Lehner had taken a walk, scoring two runs, and grabbing a lead that continued to single. Lefty Lehner had taken a walk, scoring two runs, and grabbing a lead that continued to single. Lefty Lehner had taken a walk, scoring two runs, and grabbing a lead that continued to single.

Forbes led off in the sixth with a triple into right field scoring on an error at first base. Boland drew a walk and came trotting home after Lehner sent a vicious single flying into left field. George Dickson connected with an inside pitch for a single, scoring on Lehner's second safety of the ball game. No double. There seemed to be no stopping the rejuvenated Doughs, for the fourth catch the right-hander Geter for three more hits, one of which was a triple by Blondy Burnett, and two more Benning markers were made.

Burt Homers
"Woodie" Burt, who has been leading Dough swimmers for the last few weeks, came to the plate in the fifth looking as calm as ever. Geter pitched Burt a "suck er" ball, but Burt wasn't disposed to playing the part, and sent the hapless pitcher bounding out into center field. As the ball hit some five paces in front of the approaching fielder, the spheroid took a bounce and went out of the reach of the would-be catcher, rolling all the way to the center field fence. Burt's long legs set forth, and "Woodie" was home before the catcher had even received the ball. Lehner was on base when the blow was hit, and also scored on the play, in the sixth, Geter

Doughs Slated To Play Bragg In Final Series

The Doughboys will again take to the field Friday, when they leave for Port Bragg and a two-game series with the 325th Glider Infantry Sept. 6-7. This will mark the end of the Doughboy season during which they have dropped only four games, three of them by single runs.

Battling .350
The team will leave here boasting batting averages well over the .350 mark, and will no doubt return with that average increased. For the boys from Bragg didn't seem to have anything that could humble Doughboy bats when they were here.

In the opening canto, Brooks robbed Lester of a hit with a beautiful shoe string catch that he had to practically dig out of the turf, while Burnett, made a catch on a line drive when virtually lying on his side. Towards the end of the ball game, Knighton blasted a long high fly ball into center field sending Dickson all the way back to the scoreboard where he made a running catch. Had the ball gotten away from George there is little doubt that it would have netted the batter a circuit blast.

Sand Hill Golf Course Gains In Popularity

With a weekly average of 50 players from each battery and company attending during off-duty sessions, Sand Hill's golf course is vying with baseball and swimming for the number one sports attraction on the Fort Benning outpost area.

During last week's play, Capt. William R. Royston, commanding officer of Dog company, T-Sgt. Floyd T. Canady, 899th S. A., and Frank Chester, Columbus, Ga., set the pace with startling marks. Among the new comers, Mesdames Langrum and Collins showed vast improvement during weekly courses of instruction under the supervision of T-4 Elphedy Ivy, assistant pro.

Plans for a busy fall schedule are being instituted by Lt. Joseph Watson, club officer and senior instructor, and his capable staff of assistants.

Dial WGRA-FM-94.3 Motorcycles

have been doing, there is no reason why the Benning nine should place anywhere but on top of all entries in the meet. Although there is still talk about inviting all service teams in a radius of 300 miles of the post, it is not known just how many teams will be entered in tourney play.

Post Swimmers Cop Second Place In 3rd Army Meet

Fort Benning swimmers amassed 39 points in the Third Army Tournament in Atlanta August 25, to bring home the red ribbon and second place honors, while the Port Bragg team went back to North Carolina carrying the coveted crown.

Donald Lyon and Walt Murphy, each collected 3-1/2 points to lead the Benning swimmers. Murphy won the 100-yard free style and swam in two relays with the Post team who took first place in the 300-yard medley, and second spot in the 400-yard free style. Lyon finished in front of a host of tired swimmers to cop first position in the 50-yard breast stroke, and swam on the same relay teams with Murphy.

Jim Craft was close behind with his 7 1-2 winning two seconds, one in the 400-yard free style and the other in the 200-yard free style, as well as participating in the 400-yard free style relay.

Harold Lutz, who copped diving laurels in the Post meet two weeks ago, captured a second slot ribbon in that phase of the meet. Malcolm Greenidge, came through with a fourth in the 50-yard free style, while Keith Petrie, who was high point man in the Post meet, captured second place in the 150 yard back stroke.

Doughboys Drop Two-Game Series

The Doughboys had a rough time of it at Maxwell field Tuesday and Wednesday as the Maxwell field Fliers lashed out 23 hits in two games to capture both games of a two-game series from the Doughs 10-1 and 8-4. To date the benchmen have dropped three of the four hits they had played on the road.

After the game had been rained out once Tuesday, it was decided later that the tilt would be played anyhow, so the Doughs had to redress and begin playing a game of baseball on a foreign diamond when they were already cold. The Fliers played havoc with three Dough pitchers, blasting out 14 hits to five scattered singles; that the Benchmen were able to tag starter Chandler for

Boland Gets Double

Boland, who has been most effective this season with his slow curves, was belted for two doubles and a single in the first canto as the Maxwell field nine jumped to a first inning 2-0 lead. All went well with Boland in the second as he retired Slay, Harris and Chandler in that order. However, as the armen came to bat in the third frame, Boland's good fortune began to falter, and Maxwell tagged the right-hander for four safeties scoring five runs to take a 7-0 lead, and the ball game was virtually sewed up for the Fliers.

After that a six run out was virtually sewed up for the Fliers. "Lefty" Lehner was assigned mound duties in an effort to save the game, but the Fliers continued to unleash their power on "Lefty" scoring two more runs in the fourth on the three singles.

The final Maxwell marker came in the sixth after Coburn, Maxwell catcher who had a perfect day with four bingles in his four trips to the plate, belted a double into center field, scoring on a single by Slay, his fourth safety of the ball game. Coburn and Slay collaborated for eight of their team's hits.

As the Doughs came to the plate for their final time at bat, they

Black Barons Ouhit Bullets For 8-3 Win

BY AL WISE

Playing a superb brand of ball behind the masterful hurling of veteran pitcher Lawrence Kinard, Hall, 25th C.F.'s Bullets, who held a 1-0 lead for five innings, finally bowled to the famed Birmingham Black Barons 8-3 last Friday night before 2,000 fans at Bullett field.

At the beginning it appeared as though Hall's dream had come true. For five full innings, plus able backing from his teammates, he handuffed the Barons with three scanty hits, one a double by the visitor's keystone sacker Robinson, and a pair in the sixth which tied the score. From the second through the fifth he manacced them without a bingle.

In the disastrous seventh, a pair of errors and misjudgment on a play turned the tide against the locals, and Hall left for the showers while Pat Young did the fireman's job.

Same Lineups

Hall hurled against the same lineup of players which had previously defeated the highly publicized Don Bunkhead of the Memphis Red Sox, who was recently purchased by Brooklyn. The visitors invaded the Sand Hill fortifications with the precise idea of putting the contest on ice in a hurry, but Hall and his cohorts had a different viewpoint which for six full cantos was a reality.

For the Bullets, fielders Charley Nichols and George King spearheaded the attack with two hits each, doubles and singles. Nichols, who was the first to select the Bullets' initial blow in the first on a two-bagger to left, but was untried in the field, and Tharalkil also scored two of the Bullets' three runs, and dependably. Slay, who had covered second during the game, was credited with the single which brought in the Sand Hill final score.

Following the immortal Ty Cobb's theory of "hitin' em where they ain't," the Barons coolly personified what the well-coached club does when it is so directed. But, whether or not it was just thinking, we firmly believe that the results might have been of a different nature if the Bullets' defenses been a bit more flexible during that seventh inning.

But Forbes' high ball into right field was nabbed and the Doughs retired with a 1-0 advantage.

Siefert Relieved

It was at this point the Maxwell nine gave Siefert a rest and brought Adertolt to the hill. It was rather odd that the Doughs found such difficulty in hitting Siefert's relief in that all the team agreed that he had nothing other than the Lord's prayer on his mind. However, the relief hurler limited the Doughs to only three hits in the seven frames he worked.

After the Doughs had scored their four runs in the second, Maxwell came back in the same canto to tally a lone run. But it was not until the eighth that the Fliers really began to march. Adertolt led off in that inning with a single taking third on Tennyson's double. Currie filed out to Dickson and Adertolt scored. The singles, a walk, and an error on Burnett brought in four more runs, and the Doughs left the field on the wrong end of a 6-4 score.

Trying frantically to come back in the ninth, Kinard lashed out a double over third base, but died in the field on three consecutive infield flies.

Actually, the Doughs haven't been playing their par ball this week, but there have been many factors that have done much to hinder the winning capabilities of the ball team.

Friday, August 29, the Doughs will meet Keelefer field, Miss. in the first of their scheduled two-game series there. The second tilt will be played Saturday. The Doughs return home Sunday, and will meet Steveau No. 10 Monday, at Gowdy field, and The Columbus All-Stars on Tuesday.

The automobile motor pounded when stopped.

"I wonder," wondered the GI, "what knock that is?"

"Maybe," mused the blonde, "it's opportunity."

Former Golden Gloves Champ Now Training Local Talent

By GEORGE W. ASAWA

If you happen wander into the Post gymnasium any evening during the week, you will find a soldier giving instruction to potential Benning boxers. This man is Pvt. William F. King, Company A, Airborne battalion, who has been fighting for the past 14 years.

William King was born in Richmond City, Tenn., and began his pugilistic career by participating in novice fights at the age of 11. He entered Golden Gloves competition at 15 and won the featherweight title for the state of Tennessee the following year. He also held bantam and lightweight titles for two neighboring states: Georgia and Alabama.

King entered the Army June 24, 1940, at Charleston, S. C., and was assigned to Fort Jackson for basic training. Landing at Belfast, Ireland, in preparation for the invasion of Europe, he was attached to a special service unit and participated in exhibition bouts for American soldiers.

On D-Day plus six hours he landed on Omaha beach with the Fifth Infantry division and fought with the unit until he was wounded at Luxembourg. He returned to the States Sept. 5, '45, for discharge.

24 and volunteered immediately for airborne training.

Because of previous ring injuries however, he has been unable to compete in boxing bouts and has devoted most of his time to training boxers of the Airborne Battalion's Company A. A few of the prospects who have come to his attention include S-Sgt. William T. Harris, Jefferson City, Mo.; Pfc. Carl Brown, Sumter, S. C.; Pvt. John H. Gardner, Milwaukee, Wis.; and Pvt. Harry Little, Chicago, Ill.

Company A plans to enter many future boxing "greats" in bouts during the coming season.

DOUGHBOY BATTING AVERAGE STILL HIGH

Since the Doughs went on the road ten days ago their batting has dropped a few points here and there, but the team is holding away at an impressive .329 pace, and should improve that average this week since they play four games at Gowdy field before leaving for Fort Bragg Friday.

It was at Maxwell field that the Doughs had their roughest time of the season as they were only able to garner 16 hits in the two games that were played there. Although 16 hits for two games is far from a sub-par average, the team has done considerably better in their past performances, especially when they have played at home.

During the six games the

Archers Hold First Meeting

The Henning Bowmen, post archery club, held its official opening last Sunday afternoon with a barbecue and open shoot at the archery course.

A large number of archery enthusiasts turned out for the event with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, cutting the cake at the inauguration.

Following the opening ceremonies, speeches welcoming club members into the fold were given by Lt. Col. John L. Hutchings, club governor; Capt. M. E. Elliott, shooting master; and Lt. J. E. McWilliams, whose crack shooting made the barbecue possible. Lt. McWilliams killed the 225-pound wild sow with a single arrow through the heart Aug. 24.

A feature of the meet was open shooting by all members and guests at a miniature gallery set up for the occasion. A cross-bow, designed and shot by Sgt. Felix Pipkin, was demonstrated during the afternoon.

Plans are underway to affiliate the club with the National Field Archery association and it is further hoped to hold the Georgia State championship on the Infantry Center range, club members announced.

Doughs have played during the last ten days, they have accounted for three more circuit blats which raised the total to five. Forbes, Gerhart, and Kruger, collected the home runs for the Benchem, and these were wrested from Kesler field pitchers.

"Woody" Burt, who has topped all batters in the line left for their road trip, has been having his hey-day at the plate, returning to Benning with a .374 average. Burt has batted 71 times to date, lashing out 27 safeties. Although "Mike" Sulcox has a perfect 1.000 he has been at bat but once when he flamed out a single during the final game at Kesler field. Burt also leads the Doughboys with his 21 runs, but is followed closely by Burnett and Lauve, who have 20 each.

"Lefty" McGowan slapped a single in the final Kesler field game Saturday, knocking in two more runs, for a total of 14 runs batted in this season to retain his lead in that phase of plate performance.

To Join Gridiron Team

A number of Doughboy baseball players plan to enroll in the ranks of the grid team at the termination of the season.

"Boney" Bonair, Dough second baseman, is reported to be an excellent half-back. Dick Gerhart, one of the Doughs most valuable pitchers, will be reporting for practice in the near future. George Dickson, who has been on top with his .365 batting average, is expected to work-out sometime soon, too. George was All-Army for two years while overseas, and should be a good addition to the increasing football ranks.

Units Take Over Separation Duties

The 37th Infantry Regiment has taken over the duties of processing men for discharge from its units, it was announced this week.

Previously discharged at the separation center here, personnel now are discharged from their own company by the personnel section of their parent organization. The shift speeds up the processing and at the same time allows a man to perform regular duties within the company. Eliminating the loss of time in reporting to the separation center, the enlisted man to be discharged under the new set up reports to other pertinent information.

Officer Group Stated To Get Overseas Duty

A total of 18 school troops' officers have been alerted for overseas shipment to Germany, Italy, England, Korea, Guam, Japan, and the Philippines, it was announced today by CWO Kenneth M. Fisher, chief of School Troops' officers' section.

Those slated for duty in Bremerhaven, Germany, include Lt. Col. E. C. Moyers and Lt. F. W. Sturgis, 78th Engineer Combat battalion;

Lt. C. F. Moyers, 666th Transportation company; Capt. R. E. Anderson, Headquarters company, 37th Infantry regiment; Capt. D. G. Hopper, Headquarters company, 501st Parachute battalion; and Lt. R. C. Springer, Headquarters company, 304th Transportation battalion.

Get Korea—The second largest group is scheduled for duty in Korea. They include Lt. V. O. Drum, Headquarters company, 37th Infantry Regiment; Lt. R. E. Chandler, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 501st Parachute Infantry regiment; Lt. D. O. Knipher, Company A, 37th Infantry regiment; and Lt. L. O. Smith, Headquarters company, 501st Parachute Infantry battalion.

Chief Warrant Officer E. O. Iorrite, Headquarters and Service Company, 78th Engineer Combat

Battalion, and Capt. H. E. Kops Jr., are expected to leave during the first two weeks in December for Guam.

Study at Oxford—Lt. A. A. Jordan, Battery A, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, leaves Oct. 1, for England where he will undergo special training at Oxford university while Lt. R. C. Blair, Headquarters, and Headquarters company, First Battalion, 37th Infantry regiment, is slated to leave Oct. 10 for duty in Lefkorn, Italy.

Lt. W. R. Phillips, Headquarters company, 501st Parachute Infantry battalion, and Lt. R. A. Desort, Company A, 501st Parachute Infantry battalion, leave for Japan in December.

Lt. A. C. Odum, Headquarters, 50th Parachute Infantry battalion, has been alerted for shipment Dec. 15, to Manila, P. I.

RETIRES FROM SERVICE—Col. Robert H. Chance, assistant general of the Infantry Center, retired from active duty last week following 30 years of military service. He was honored last Friday at a special parade and review at Stilwell Field during which all elements of School Troops passed in review.

Our Mistake

The Bayonet erred last week with the statement that Col. Charles H. Royce was a former public relations officer for Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Col. Royce served as deputy chief of staff for the IX Corps in Japan during his tour overseas.

The Bayonet was also mistaken in stating that Lt. Ben Harrell had been assigned to the Command and General Staff school. Col. Harrell is now with the Academic Department here.

Post Units Reveal Week's Promotions

Eleven enlisted members of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion received promotions last week, military authorities revealed today.

Promotions included the following: Headquarters and Headquarters Battery.

Privates first class Vincent M. DeFilippi, Luther M. Brown, Robert B. Allen, Jr., Christ DeLeuw, Jr., Aaron L. Langston, Wilbur W. Turner, Edward A. Kirkland, Russell T. Foster, and Albert L. Miner to technician fifth grade.

Two members of Battery A were also promoted. They were T-4 William C. Johnson to the grade of T-3 and T-5 Gene T. Newsome to T-4.

Other School Troops promotions last week included T-5 Charles N. Mailen, Company D, 37th Infantry regiment, to T-4; T-4 Willis S. Varnadore, Company D, 37th Infantry regiment, to T-3, and Sgt. Alvin E. Moore, Company D, 37th Infantry regiment, to T-3.

Georgia Names War Souvenir Committee Here

Following Presidents Truman's warning of the increasing number of lives being lost as a direct result of dangerous war souvenirs, a joint War Trophy Safety Committee has been set up for Georgia.

Col. Charles M. Crawford, Post Ordnance Officer, one of the members of the committee, has been designated as the officer to examine these trophies. Comprising the remainder of the War Trophy Safety Committee are E. F. Howell, Sheriff of Muscogee county, William C. Kjelstrom, representing the National Rifle association and a former officer now associated with Bentley's Sport Shop in Columbus, and Grady C. Cook, investigator for the Alcohol Tax unit, U. S. Post Office, Columbus.

Approximately 1,000 lives have been lost to date as a result of war souvenirs. The public is being urged to cooperate with the Army, Navy, National Rifle as-

MOVES TO MAIN POST
Members of Army Officers Candidate class No. 12 moved from their Harmony Church area last Saturday to the Main Post where they will complete their final nine weeks' training course. Capt. Jack V. N. Herndon is commanding officer of the class.

NEW ASSIGNMENT
Pfc. David M. Danielson has been assigned to school troops following his discharge from Brook Army Medical center at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., where he underwent treatment, it was announced today.

The association and the Treasury Department, who have set up the new committee. Veterans and families of veterans, or anyone possessing these war souvenirs are urgently requested to bring them in and have them examined by experts.

If deemed necessary the trophies will be rendered harmless, with all possible effort made to retain the value without detaching or damaging them in anyway.

The committee, organized for the expressed purpose to inform the public of the increasing danger involved in the handling of souvenirs brought back from the battlefields of the war, will handle the territory adjacent to Columbus.

WAC To Comprise 2 Per Cent Of RA

CHICAGO (APPS)—Approximately 20,000 enlisted personnel and 1,000 officers, about two per cent of the strength of the Army, will comprise the peacetime Women's Army Corps, Lt. Col. Mary L. Milligan, deputy WAC director, said at the closing session of the first WAC-Vets national convention.

Already approved by the Senate, a bill calling for the WAC as part of the regular Army awaits expected House approval at the next session.

"In demanding the right to help win the war," stated Col. Milligan, "women also gained the responsibility of maintaining the peace. Those who served are much better equipped than others." She said that the Army's plans are certain to include women in the light of their important position in wartime.

The strength of the WAC today is 10,000. It was 100,000 during the war. Above one third of the WAC still on active duty are stationed overseas.

Political leaders all have something in common—they believe it is more blessed to give than to receive conversation.

98th Division Plans Reunion

The 98th Infantry Division association will hold its first post-war reunion at Columbia University club in New York city, September 4-5, it was announced today by James T. Loomie, acting secretary of the newly organized association.

Now a reserve division for New York, the 98th was activated at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., in September, 1943, and was inactivated in Japan in February, 1946. During World War II, the division served as a source for trained replacements for combat units and later was placed on occupation duty in Japan.

Former Inoquoians desiring to join the association or attend the two-day reunion in New York city may obtain details from Mr. Loomie, 22 Stoneleigh Circle, Watertown 72, Mass.

Fighter Unit Moves To Turner Field

The 31st Fighter group of the Ninth Air Force has been assigned to Turner field, Ga., by Tactical Air Command, whose headquarters are at Langley field, Va., it was announced Tuesday.

Turner field, which has been temporarily inactive, was formerly assigned to Training Command. It was recently re-activated and transferred to Tactical Air Command.

The 31st Fighter group has been stationed in Europe, but was transferred, without personnel and equipment, to Tactical Air Command. It will be re-manned and re-equipped with North American P-51 Mustangs at Turner field. In addition to the fighter group itself, its supporting units will be stationed at Turner field, including an air service group, a base complement, and a station hospital.

Authorized strength of the base will be approximately 1,500 military personnel and 225 civilians but will be considerably below strength when the group moves to Turner field. It will be built up gradually and eventually will have full strength.

The 31st Fighter group is a part of the 35-group program of the Army Air Forces.

6 End First Phase Of Flight Training

Six of the 15 air crews from the 25th Infantry Regiment who are receiving courses of instruction at the Tuskegee School of Aviation have successfully passed the first phase and have embarked on solo flight training.

The group includes Sgt. Joseph M. Peterson, T-Sgt. Stanford Garrison, S-Sgt. Albert Van Slyke, T-4 Marjorie Keeler, Pfc. Nathaniel Lomax, and T-Sgt. Charles Warren.

The students attend classes on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, and all day Sundays. A drive is presently underway to enroll additional students from the 25th Infantry and other installations on the post.

Shivers Now Attending Communications School

Capt. George F. Shivers, commander of the 108th Army Airways Communications System detachment at Lawson field and supervisor of control tower activity, entered an 18 weeks course at the Air Communications Officers' Staff school at Gunter field, Ala., September 2.

He is scheduled to rejoin the crew's staff upon completion of his training.

A veteran of 21 years service and a pioneer in Army communications work, Capt. Shivers spent 41 months in the CBI with Air Service command headquarters.

register at Baker Village high school on the same dates. Considerable work has been done on the various post school buildings to improve conditions and facilities, officials said. Glenry V. Bonner, Pennington, Ala., has been appointed principal. This year's school will consist of a kindergarten and grades from the first through the seventh.

Organized in 1921, the Children's school through the years has continued to develop with increasing effort toward a high standard of education. Operating under the Georgia State System of Education, the school offers a seven-year course of elementary and qualifies as a class A elementary school.

Two crash trucks equipped with piston pumps, capable of pumping 800 pounds pressure per square inch and 60 gallons of water per minute, and 300-gallon water tanks, also were shown.

A radio-equipped crash jeep, which carries two 50-pound CO-2 tanks with 50 feet of hose for each tank, was also on display. The jeep's primary duty is to speed to the scene of the fire and take control until heavier apparatus arrives.

The Lawson field fire station, located on the flight line, is manned by 28 enlisted men, two officers and three civilians. Fire watch is kept over the base 24 hours a day, with crew rotating every 24 hours. Each shift is manned by one chief, trained with safety precautions necessary in such realistic maneuvers. Throughout the series of demonstrations, the students will be flown to Lawson Field and back to their schools in C-82s of the 8th Troop Carrier group. Headquarters of the group is at present at Pope Field, N. C., along with the 36th Troop Carrier squadron. The 37th and 75th Troop Carrier squadrons are based at Greenville Air Base, S. C.

This mission will be accomplished through the medium of conference planning kits, static displays of tactical equipment, demonstration of the operating principles of Tactical Air Direction Center and Joint Operations Cent-

Other techniques in tactical air-ground operations during Operation Combine, which will be demonstrated to the students, include strafing and dive bombing by P-80s of the 1st Fighter group; combat evacuation and courier service by R-5E helicopters of the 163rd Liaison squadron, Marshall Field, Kansas; landing of airborne troops in the target area by troop carrier aircraft. Maximum effort is being expended to simulate actual combat conditions during air-ground demonstration. However, Ninth Air Force officials stated that all personnel will be thoroughly indo-

Post Sergeant Wins Citation

T-Sgt. Verne D. King, Army Ground Forces Board No. 3, was awarded the Army Commendation ribbon for "meritorious achievement as a member of Task Force Fridal" during special ceremonies Saturday morning on the third quartel drill field.

The award was presented to Sgt. King by Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of the board.

According to the citation accompanying the ribbon, the sergeant rendered "outstanding services as test project non-commissioned officer of the equipment test staff, Task Force Fridal."

Sgt. King served with the task force from Sept. 1, 1946, until Feb. 28, 1947, testing mortars. While engaged in this assignment, according to the citation, he was "exposed to the elements for many hours, with very little physical activity, conducting firing on the mortar range under the most severe conditions. In spite of the hardships his efforts contributed greatly to the success of the test project to which he was assigned."

10,000 Students Are Expected At TIS During School Year

Lawson Readies For Maneuvers

Infantry School officials are busy making plans to house students and instructors from the Command and General Staff college and Armed Force Staff college expected to arrive here during the last week in September to witness the initial presentation of the Ninth Air Force's spectacular Operation Combine, scheduled for Oct. 1 at Lawson field.

The air-ground action, sequel to last spring's impressive Air indoctrination course, will be followed by a group of special demonstrations by the Infantry School similar to those conducted here previously.

Service school students attending Operation Combine will witness a new technique in conducting modern warfare—landing of troops by large powered aircraft at the battle scene, according to an announcement "this week" by Ninth Air Force officials at advance headquarters at Lawson.

New Training Program Begun By AGF Board

The Special detachment of AGF Board No. 3 has embarked upon a new training program designed to familiarize the men with the newest type of Army equipment.

Each member of the detachment has a personal letter from Brig. General Reuben E. Jenkins, board president, for the high standard of military conduct and efficiency displayed in performing his duties.

Specialists and technicians in small arms, clothing, radio, motor mechanics, and clerical phases, detachment personnel must keep up with the latest improvements in the board recommends. The newest and latest type of equipment gets a close scrutiny and examination in order to find out why and how it operates under various tests and weather conditions.

The new training class brings the entire detachment together for the first time since August, 1946. Many of the men returned from Task Force Furnace last week, completing the task force tests which included Frost, Frigid and Williwaw.

Several promotions in the detachment were announced this week, including Sgt. Ernest E. Postle to staff sergeant; Sgt. Henry T. Willis to 3d Corps; Raymond Bostwick, James McCrery.

Use C-52s

Present plans for the initial aerial demonstration call for the delivery of four giant Fairchild C-52s loaded with hard-hitting airborne troops to the scene of the battle.

Officials pointed out that the C-52s, largest twin-engine troop and cargo carriers in the Air Force, would make a low tactical approach and land on Dekker airstrip, adjacent to the target area.

In addition to landing fully armed combat troops by powered aircraft, other units will come in by glider and parachute for the assault upon the "enemy."

Message Service will be used for messenger service.

Brig. Gen. J. V. Crabb, deputy commander of the Ninth Air Force, arrived at Lawson field this week to assume command of advance headquarters.

'Aid Of Benning Bowman Sought By Station Hospital

The Benning Bowman, post archery club, has made great strides since inauguration last week with their aid now being sought in the recuperation of physiotherapy patients at the hospital here.

Archery has been recognized as one of the chief aids of recovery in the post-war period for veterans in the physiotherapy wards. Patients at the hospital will attend archery classes given by the Benning Bowman Wednesday 7 p. m. Instructions will also be given to patients in making bows, bow strings, arrows and other equipment.

The 14-target course, located behind the old post bowling alley, has been described as one of the most beautiful and scenic in the country as well as one of the most difficult courses.

A club room for the Benning Bowman has been authorized in the screening center area, behind the main theater. A number of archery books, magazines, catalogs and other literature on archery will be available.

A competition ladder has been arranged at the course with the scores of competitors posted. Capt. M. E. Elliott is leading the parade with a score of 89 in the field arrow class followed by Lt. Col. J. L. Hite with a 44. In the target arrow class Lt. Col. Richard arranged with an aggregate of 55, followed by Capt. M. E. Elliott, who is showing the way in the Ladies class with a 44.

Any communications regarding the Benning Bowman may be addressed to Lt. Col. John Hitchings, club governor, at the screening center.

Classes To Include Foreign Officers

Approximately 10,000 students, both officers and enlisted men, are scheduled to attend classes here at the world-famous Infantry School during the 1947-48 academic year, it was announced today by Brig. Gen. Whitefield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Among the students expected here during the school year are representatives from England, Canada, Argentina, Colombia, Cuba, France, Sweden, Turkey, Mexico, El Salvador, the Philippines, and Belgium as well as United States Army personnel from all over the country.

The foreign students will take courses ranging from advanced officers' basic airborne. Distinguished members of the foreign delegations include Maj. Count Yvan du Monceau, the Belgian embassy's military and air attaché, and Lt. Col. M. Torrijas, of Colombia. Count du Monceau will attend basic airborne course No. 1, while Col. Torrijas will enroll in communications course No. 1.

Two commissioned officers from Turkey are slated to attend the Infantry non-commissioned officers' course which opens Sept. 15. During the 1947-48 school year there will be 25 officer classes and approximately 40 classes for enlisted men. Officials also announced that for the first time in the history of the Infantry School the advanced classes will include instruction in the infantry and airborne divisions' general courses.

Jewish Troops To Celebrate High Holy Days

National Jewish Welfare board preparations to serve Jewish servicemen at Fort Benning during the coming High Holy days have been completed, according to an announcement made today by Maurice Rothschild, chairman of the JWB Army and Navy committee.

Mr. Rothschild paid high tribute to "the understanding and warm cooperation of Army officials and Christian chaplains in this area for making adequate observance of the Jewish New Year possible."

Jewish New Year
The Jewish New Year (5708) begins at sundown Sunday, Sept. 14, and continues to sunset Tuesday, Sept. 16. Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, begins at sunset Tuesday, Sept. 23, and lasts to sunset Wednesday, Sept. 24.

Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are among the most holy of the religious celebrations of the Jewish people. Rosh Hashanah is referred to as the day of the blowing of the Shofar and is considered the day of judgment. Rosh Hash-

Local Military Policemen Observe Birthday Sept. 26

The Military Police detachment will commemorate the sixth anniversary of the Military Police corps with a barbecue at Victory. Sept. 26 it was announced.

Plans are being formulated to make the occasion complete with appropriate ceremonies, music and a live-wire show in the offing.

At one time the MP detachment, which is known as the MP section of the Infantry School and later became Company D of the Academic Regiment. On Sept. 26, 1941, the MP section became a separate branch of the armed forces, now designated as the Military Police corps. For administrative purposes, the detachment is attached to the headquarters of the Infantry School, 3440 A.S.U., at Fort Benning, Ga.

Operations of the detachment is under the supervision of the chief of the detachment, Col. Wiley E. O'Mulholland. For operations the detachment is under the command of Capt. Howard Wells.

The 194 men attached to the detachment are divided into sections No. 1 and No. 2, under the command of Capt. Howard Wells.

Sections No. 1 and No. 2 are engaged in patrolling, police, patrol, traffic, stockade, administrative and investigation duties, which are handled by the policing details in Columbus and Phenix City as well as at the post.

Patrols are maintained on highways based for duty in Columbus and Phenix City. This crew

Ellis Scheduled For PIO Duty At Turner Field

Lt. Rex M. Ellis, public information officer at Lawson field since June 1946, has been appointed public information officer for Turner field, Albany, Georgia, base officials announced today. He is scheduled to report to his new assignment this week.

Turner field, which was inactivated in the latter part of 1945, was reopened last month as the home of Tactical Air Command's 31st Fighter Group, and will be Lt. Ellis' third PIO assignment, having served with public information in Sedalia, Mo., prior to coming to Lawson field.

Lt. Ellis, a native of Luray, Kansas, served as a B-17 pilot during the war and was a German prisoner of war.

321 Join AAF During August

Capt. James Sever, base recruiting officer, has announced that a total of 321 men joined the Army Air Forces at Lawson field during the month of August.

Men signing up last month included former members of the Air Forces, Army, Navy and Marine as well as a great number of 1947 high school graduates coming in for the first time. Approximately 260 men were assigned to the Air Training Command at San Antonio, Texas, for basic training and after 13 weeks there they will be transferred to one of the AAF training schools. Thirteen men were assigned to duty at Keeler field, Mississippi, and 49 to Lawson field.

Captain Sever also announced that two new men were assigned to the base recruiting office during the month of August. They are Sgt. Harold S. Norton and Sgt. Alca Pankau. Sgt. Pankau, recently re-enlisted with 44 months previous service credit. His duties will be assisting chief clerk in the recruiting office. Sgt. Pankau, also re-enlisting during the month of August, has five and one-half years previous service and his duties will be assistant contact canvasser.

Joseph I. Weiss will conduct services in the latest to facilitate planning for home hospitality, Louise Roberts, Jewish Welfare board director, has asked that all servicemen register at the tables which will be provided in the lobbies of both congregations during services. Jewish services will be conducted at Miss Robins at the Ninth Street USO over the week end.

Jewish services will be conducted at the Post Chapel Friday night, Sept. 12, at 8 p. m.

Train Staff Officers
The second advanced class got underway last Monday with 115 student-officers enrolled for the 38-week course.

The two advanced courses are designed to provide instruction that will insure the most effective development and employment of the infantry to train battalion and regimental combat team commanders, train officers to perform the duties of the division general staff. During the 38 weeks students will study the employment of all types of units beginning at battalion level. Organization, equipment, and tactics emphasize the units that compose the combat team, combat command, artillery group, and division staff.

Other study courses include the duties of an infantry commander of a battalion team and regimental combat team, duties of staff officers. Special operations, including amphibious and airborne and river crossings, are also slated to come up for study. Students will, in addition, receive instruction in the latest developments in a survey of infantry weapons and a course in air transportability.

The 13-week associate advanced course began Sept. 15. Its purpose is to provide National Guard and Organized Reserve officers with a condensed version of the basic courses. The 13-week associate basic course, also for National Guard and Organized Reserve officers, was begun on the same day. Its mission is to produce junior officers well-grounded in the principles and technique of the infantry. This is the class also attended by all infantry graduates of the Army Officers' candidate school.

26 Study Motors
Twenty-six students reported for the 12-week officers' motor course which opened Sept. 4. This course is designed to train selected officers to perform the duties of motor and motor maintenance officers in infantry units.

Subjects covered include preventive maintenance, use of tools, welding, trouble diagnosis, organization and maintenance details, selection of drivers and the driver-training, loading of vehicles, conveyance planning and operation, and shop procedure and inspection.

Officers' communication course

No. 1 opens today for an 18½-week run. Officials expect approximately 50 students to be enrolled for the class, whose purpose is to produce communication officers thoroughly grounded in technique, characteristics, installation, and maintenance of infantry communications systems. Among the subjects covered are radio theory, including both FM and AM radio transmission and reception; study of radio sets and test equipment, including installation, maintenance, operation, and anti-jamming devices of radio equipment.

Fallunder Course
The Airborne section's fallunder course got underway Sept. 5. This class includes both officers and enlisted men and runs for eight weeks. Object of the course is to teach selected personnel of airborne or air transported force the latest methods of establishing communication with troop carrier aircraft formations and to aid in making accurate delivery to a predetermined area of operation. Subjects include operation of radio, radar, and visual aids for navigation and assembly.

The basic airborne course is slated to open Sept. 22, six weeks. Including both officer and enlisted personnel, the course will deal with service in airborne technique, including parachute jumping and landing.

The enlisted men's rigger course No. 1 began an eight-week session here Sept. 2. This course is designed to teach parachute packing, maintenance and repair and technique of air supply and resupply.

The 18½-week infantry non-commissioned officers' course will begin Sept. 15 with around 200 students expected to attend. This course prepares NCOs for tactical and administrative duties within the infantry regiment.

COMING ATTRACTIONS
KISS OF DEATH (crime-melodrama) with Victor Mature, Brian Donlevy, and Colton Gray. Murders, double-crosses, and stog and suspenseful mystery. Recommended for mature.
HIGH TIDE (mystery) with Don Castle, Lee Tracy, and Anabel Shaw. A smartly contrived and well handled yarn involved with the ruthless campaign of an editor to secure ownership of a newspaper. Recommended for mature.
BLACK GOLD (horseracing in emecolor) with Anthony Quinn, Katherine Delille, and Ducky Louie. Produced in color, highlighted by an outstanding performance by Anthony Quinn and based upon fact this is the story of the Indian, Harley Eagle, whose horse, Black Gold, won the Kentucky Derby in 1926. Recommended for family.
THE YEARLING (Picola pioneers in technicolor) with Gregory Peck, Jane Wyman, and Claude Jarman Jr. This story about people who pioneered the Florida frontier in 1887 deals with the struggles of the Baxter family to make a home for themselves. Recommended for family.
PHILO VANCE'S SECRET MISSION (murder-mystery) with Alan Curtis, Sheila Ryan, and Frank Jenks. Vance joins with a book more than he bargained for when the publisher is murdered. Recommended for family.
BLONDIE IN THE DOUGH (domestic comedy) with Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, and Larry Sims. Blondie's cookie recipe and Dagwood's radio engineering ability almost ruin radio and the cookie business. Recommended for family.

4 Presented Army Awards

Three Army Commendation ribbons and one Bronze Star were presented to four Fort Benning soldiers last Saturday morning at a special review and parade at Stillwell field.
 Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the Infantry Center, awarded the commendation ribbons to Col. Harry S. Wilbur, Stanley A. Sharpe, and T/Sgt. Star went to 1st Sgt. Hubert H. Jordan.

Colonel Wilbur, assigned to the Infantry School, received the commendation ribbon for his work in the publication section here from January 1942, until July 1943.
 Colonel Frederick's, Army Ground Forces Board No. 3, was presented the commendation ribbon for his performance as commander of Task Force 14, Task Force One, at Bikini. His detachment exposed Army equipment to the effects of the atomic explosion on the Pacific atoll.

Sergeant Sharp was awarded the commendation ribbon for his experimental collapsible field kitchen cabinet, which "aided materially toward better mess facilities in the field."
 Sergeant Jordan, Airborne section, received the Bronze Star for "meritoriously setting up command posts from June 9, 1944, until acting regimental sergeant major of the 507th Parachute Infantry Regiment."

Following the presentation of awards, elements of the 37th Infantry, which was inspected and passed in review. These units included one company from the 37th Infantry's first battalion, one company from the 507th Parachute Infantry battalion, one company from the 756th Tank battalion, one

We Can Have Peace

The North and South American continents have proved conclusively that nations can get together and work out suitable plans for peace and prosperity, a fact evidenced by the recent conferences held at Brazil's Quitandinha hotel. During this unrelievedly brief meeting between members of our country and those south of us, a joint hemispheric defense plan has been admirably worked out to the complete satisfaction of all concerned. The success of this parley serves to strengthen further our arguments that the world can have peace if only the nations of the world will sit down and discuss things calmly and sanely.

The Bayonet has advocated such a defense plan, whereby all nations in our hemisphere would benefit equally, ever since the President urged such legislation on the Congress early this year. We voiced our approval of the plan in these columns at that time and endeavored to explain our stand. Although we realize fully our impotence in the final outcome, it is still a pleasant feeling to learn that there were others—who felt as strongly as we did—strong enough to make it become a reality.

We watched the proceedings through the newspapers and were frankly amazed at the lack of violent dispute since we had little faith in it from the beginning. We can now admit our error and rejoice because we find it so comforting indeed to have friendly neighbors both to the north and south.

Despite the luxurious surroundings of the famous Swiss-style Quitandinha and the apparent high cost of living there and despite the minor diplomatic brushes several American delegates encountered, the entire conference was an example of good-will. The appearance of Truman, a man who seems to radiate friendliness wherever he goes, was also a major factor in the rapidity with which the meetings came to an end.

Reviewing the accomplishments has made us wonder why similar treaties can not be resolved by all nations of the world. This hemispheric defense plan embraces practically one-third of the nations, but we would like to see three-thirds come forward voluntarily asking admittance into a world alliance. It certainly is not impossible.

We give a great deal of credit to General George Marshall for his untiring efforts on behalf of the United States and his strong personality which caused the delegates to forget their differences. We give credit to the other delegates, one in particular, who made such brilliant speeches during the conference that other delegates planted kisses of brotherhood on his cheek.

Purpose of the Inter-American Defense treaty is to bind the nations of the South and North together to resist attack against any one of them, whether by an outside nation or by a member republic. We hope member nations will never be called upon to render aid in an aggressive move, but we may definitely enjoy our freedom now with greater ease, knowing that we are completely surrounded by friends.

There is still one thing we should always bear in mind, however: the United States must never become isolationist again. Just because we have been successful in our dealings with other American nations is no reason to assume that we will always be successful in our dealings with other nations. We must be vigilant. We must strive to make treaties with all the nations of the world. We must be sensible.

As two men were returning from work late one evening, one of them noticed a spat-bling on a pier they were passing. "Look Ed, here's a girl's coat," he exclaimed, "there must have been a suicide. Deep male voice from under the pier: 'You leave that coat alone or there will be a murder.'"

Blonde: An established bleach-head. A Wolf: A guy who's devoted his best years of his life to women. Zipper: The undying of the modern girl.

I think that I shall never see a girl again like the one I fixed. Upon a drink that's being mixed. A lot of do-das in her hair. But girls are loved by fools like Cuz I don't like to kiss a tree.

The automobile pounded—then stopped. "I wonder," wondered the GI, "what that knock is?" "Maybe," mused the blonde, "it's opportunity!"

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of columns dealing with the important events of World War II, a chronicled deprecating progress and highlights that mark each day of the struggle. Today's column recalls the events, August 5 and This Day, Sept. 11, 1947.

Sept. 5, 1947. . . Seven years ago today the heavy daylight air raids which the Germans were to make on Great Britain began, and on that same day Polish Squadron 305 of the U. S. F. fought down 31 German planes. . . During Sept., 1940, they brought down more than 100 German planes.

Sept. 6, 1947. . . Three years ago today the U. S. First Army took Namur in Belgium and crossed the Meuse River. The First Army was gaining ground on a wide front and making preparations to cross the German lines.

Sept. 7, . . . On This Day five years ago the U. S. Government celebrated Labor Day by launching 147 warships and laying the keels of 48 more. On the same day troops were fighting in the Solomon Islands and on Guadalcanal. The Japanese landed reinforcements but at heavy loss of life and ships.

Sept. 8, . . . Five years ago today, U. S. Army Air Force bombers raided the island of Iwojima. The Germans were gaining in their Stalingrad offensive. . . Field Marshal Rommel withdrew forces in Africa again. . . and the Japanese were attacking mountain passes in a drive to Port Moresby.

Sept. 9, 1947. . . Four years ago today the U. S. Fifth Army established the South Pacific Area. The resistance was fierce.

Sept. 10, 1947. . . Five years ago today, the Japanese landed an Auxiliary Ferry command was created. These women pilots ferried planes to Port Moresby. . . their flying was non-combat, they were a helpful cog in the war machine by getting the planes where they were needed.

Sept. 11, 1947. . . Five years ago today the Nazis were at Stalingrad. British troops were fighting in Africa. . . Japanese invasion forces were meeting stiff resistance in the South Pacific. B-29 bombers dropped tons of explosives on Dusseldorf.

"MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE"

CHAPLAIN DANIEL P. JENKINS
I like to be present when history is being made, don't you? Well, that is exactly what we are doing—making history. As we read Acts 26:19, where Paul says that he was "not disobedient to the heavenly vision," he was saying to Agrippa, "I have been true to the vision and my dreams have come true."

Let us look at Paul's dream. It was a worthy dream; all heavenly dreams are worthy. The dream he had on Damascus road became his magnificent obsession—the vision of turning man from sin into Christ, from evil to right. No all dreams are worthy. We need more people like Gladstone who will make for their foundation book, the root of all knowledge. Would that every young person would think himself before the Throne of God and cry, "Where is my heavenly vision?" What would that vision be?

In Psalm 127 we read, "The children are a heritage of the Lord." The text speaks its own message, for it is a glorification of childhood. With the coming of Jesus there is a new era in childhood. He dignified the little child when he said, "of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

It is a glorious thing to be a parent, yet it is an inescapable injunction to parenthood. The world is growing pagan at the rate of six million yearly. It is the Christian home above every home that ought to bear children. It is a sacred thing, bearing children. It is glorious because the parent realizes that he is forming the pattern which will be reflected in his children: it can bring its regrets.

Oh, how a child likes to follow his daddy, and a little girl at play with her dolls literally mimics her mother at work. But there are certain duties attached to this glorious privilege. God's word is to be taught; it is inescapable. What are you doing about your duty to your child? The best way to teach is by example. Can your child say, "I have a praying father; I have a praying mother?" Do you take them to church and Sunday school. If so, you are on the Damascus road of heavenly vision. There is also the sin of bad example. Just where are you leading the God-given heritage. Think as you go; remember son may will be in your foot prints.

MURRAY E. HILL
Through Red Cross community service to camp and hospital those extra that help make life more cheerful are being provided veterans in hospitals the country over. This Red Cross service coordinates community resources to eliminate confusion and duplication of effort.

Some 52,000 local organizations—social, fraternal, church, veterans, professional, and youth—representing approximately five million members, took part in peacetime projects. These groups give not to but through the Red Cross to hospitalized servicemen, veterans, and patients in non-profit community institutions. Approximately 10,000 Red Cross volunteers administer the program.

Typical projects include furnishing comfortable leisure time rooms and providing radios, phonographs and records, books and magazines, small games, birthday gifts and cakes, Christmas gifts, trees, and decorations, portable wheel chairs and special reading devices, sports equipment, and gardening local and seeds. The service arranges for men to visit in homes in the community, attend sports events, circuses, county fairs, concerts, and the theater. Tours of local industry and historical spots are organized as boat rides, fishing trips, horse-back riding, picnics, and other outings.

Professional entertainment is brought to the hospital by community service, which also recruits thousands of women to act as hostesses at hospital parties.

The award, presented each month to the Lawson unit with the highest record of proficiency in performance of duties, was made by Maj. James H. Hayden, individual services officer.

Post Truck Unit Boasts 3 Months Without Accidents

Attesting the attention stressed in accident prevention, the 663rd company of the 204th Transportation Truck battalion has compiled an enviable record of no vehicle accidents in the past 100 days.

As part of the 204th, which is entrusted with 700 vehicles, the 663rd participated in the European campaign, supplying General George Patton's Third Army through the famous Red Ball route.

During the past 100 days of operation the company successfully filled 3,486 dispatches and traveled over 100,000 miles without a mishap. Capt. Francis E. Abley is commanding officer of the 663rd.

20 Victory, Defense Medals Issued Here

Approximately 20 American Defense and World War II Victory medals have been issued to veterans in this area at the Post's screening center.

Civilian World War II veterans who desire the medals may secure them by contacting the screening center. Designated to handle applications here, the Benning unit will procure, record and distribute American Defense Medals, Foreign Service clasps, stars, and World War II Victory Medals.

Newcomers in quarters on the Post, but not entirely new to Fort Benning, are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Laurence C. Brown, who recently moved here from Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where they had been for the past 10 months. The couple was here in 1931 but lived in Columbus at that time. With Colonel and Mrs. Brown are their two sons, Larry, who has just entered the third grade, and four-year-old Richard, who is now in kindergarten.

Colonel Brown served with the 45th Division during the war and was in Europe for two years. During that time Mrs. Brown stayed at her home in Oswego, N. Y.

A charming newcomer to the Post is Mrs. N. P. Barnes, the former Miss Hazel Miller, of Macon, Ga., who recently became the bride of Lt. Col. N. P. Barnes in a ceremony solemnized at the Mulberry Street Methodist church in Macon. Colonel Barnes, who is from Willamette, Ore., has been at Fort Benning since January.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. Robert C. Haig spent several days in Atlanta last week in celebration of their third wedding anniversary. During their visit they visited the Rainbow Room at the Ansley hotel where they enjoyed the music of Glenn Gray and his orchestra. They also attended a ball game between the Atlanta Crackers and Memphis Chicks.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. B. Wilson are now in Columbus on the Post since moving here from Washington, D. C. Mrs. Wilson is a former stewardess for American Air Lines and worked during the time her husband was overseas in the European—and—Pacific theaters. While working in Europe she and her husband were in New York and Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Lillyman Hostess At Lunch Honoring Visitor

Mrs. Oma Diebler, of Oneida, N. Y., is a houseguest at the quarters of Capt. and Mrs. Frank Lillyman this week and is being complimented at several social events during her visit.

Monday afternoon Mrs. Lillyman feted her guest at a colorful bridge luncheon at her quarters where two tables were in play. The luncheon table was covered with a lace cloth, was gracefully decorated with an arrangement of summer flowers in a silver bowl, flowers were used as decorations throughout the rooms open to the guests.

Other ladies attending the event were Mesdames Wesley U. Moran, Robert N. Skaggs, Alan M. Strook, George W. Everett, John T. Evans, and George S. Beatty Jr.

AGF Board Ladies Meet For Lunch

Ladies of AGF Board No. 3 held their monthly luncheon meeting Friday afternoon at the Officers' club when Mrs. Thomas Cathcart was hostess for the evening.

A large crystal bowl filled with colorful mixed flowers made the beautiful centerpiece for the long table and gleaming floating in crystal bowls were used at each end. Approximately 25 ladies attended and later in the afternoon several tables of bridge were in play.

Places Set For 51 At Section Lunch In Palm Room

Ladies of the General Section met Thursday afternoon for their monthly luncheon with Mrs. Theodore H. Andrews and Mrs. Charles Knaub as the hostesses in charge.

Places were laid for 51 ladies at the table set in the Palm room at the officers club. Decorations featured a color scheme of green and lavender carried out with three crystal bowls of flowers and green tapers in crystal candelabra.

Following the luncheon six tables of bridge were in play and during the afternoon the ladies were introduced to Miss Ollie Connor, houseguest of Mrs. A. O. Connor, who is here from Helena, Montana, to visit her son and daughter-in-law.

Lawson Club Honors Couple On Anniversary

T/Sgt. and Mrs. Victor Vandervort were guests of honor at the Lawson field NCO club Saturday night when the club entertained the couple on their sixth wedding anniversary with an informal dance.

The Vandervorts received a large white cake and a crystal ice tea set from the club members. Making the presentation were M/Sgt. James Vance and M/Sgt. Robert Brightwell, of the entertainment committee.

Approximately 100 guests attended and music was presented by the Georgians from 8 p. m. until midnight.

Fourth Birthday Sees Swim Party For Robbie Etzler

The fourth birthday of Robbie Etzler, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. C. E. Etzler, was the occasion for a party complete with swimming and a birthday cake Wednesday afternoon.

The patio of the Officers' club was the scene of the gala affair, and after a swim, the young guests were served cake and ice cream. Each guest received colorful paper hats and toy favors. The cake, decorated with four candles held in circus animal holders, was iced in white and trimmed with yellow.

Guests for the afternoon were the honoree, Sammy McDowell, Terry Verbeul, Jeff Sausser, Carol Davis, Jeff Ballett and Roberta Skaggs.

Colston Family Back From China

Newcomers at Post quarters, but already well known at Fort Benning and Columbus, are Lt. Col. and Mrs. George W. Colston who, with their two children, Marie and Charles Jr., have just returned from a year in China.

Marie is busy getting ready to start back to the University of Alabama where she is a sophomore. She and Charles, who is now a sophomore at Columbus High school, both missed a year of school while they were in the Orient.

The Colstons came here in 1941 and Mrs. Colston and the children stayed here during the war while Colonel Colston was in France. He went to China a year ago last October where he was stationed in Nanking with the Army Advisory Board as senior advisor to the Chinese Infantry school. A year ago last May his family joined him there.

Whetstones Return From Florida

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Russell E. Whetstone and their children, Bradley and Rusty, recently returned from a month's vacation in Florida, where they visited friends and relatives.

In Tampa the Whetstones saw Col. and Mrs. H. W. McMillan. Colonel McMillan was the youngest lieutenant colonel on the Post in 1941 and during the war he was stationed in Paraguay as an American attaché.

In Orlando Col. and Mrs. Terry P. Orron were visited by Colonel and Mrs. Whetstone. Colonel Patterson, who was with the Post in 1942, is retired now and practicing law. Col. and Mrs. Dick Sutton, who have been with the Post since they retired, are now living in Jacksonville and the Whetstones saw them, too.

West Palm Beach, home of Colonel Whetstone, the vacationing family visited Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Whetstone. Mrs. Jackson is Colonel Whetstone's sister and Mr. Whetstone is his brother.

Food School Has Gala Dinner Dance At Cherokee Lodge

Personnel of the Third Army Area Food Service school and their families and guests attended a gala dinner party and dance Friday evening at Cherokee Lodge in Columbus with Tommie Dukes and his Swing Masters supplying the smooth music and Johnnie Barfield and the Troubadours playing hill-billy tunes for part of the evening.

All ladies were presented with bouquets for the event.

1st Sgt. Hills and T-Sgt. Simmons assisted with the refreshments, while S-Sgt. Hinton entertained with several numbers on the mandolin. A midnight snack of sandwiches and cake was arranged by T-Sgt. Gardner and M-Sgt. Mitchell.

Theater Party Highlights Festive Birthday Event

A gala social event over the weekend was the matinee party Sunday afternoon celebrating the sixth birthday of Rusty Whetstone, six-year-old son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Russell E. Whetstone.

Before going to the theater at 3 o'clock, the young guests enjoyed refreshments served in the yard of the Whetstone quarters where the table was beautifully decorated with a color scheme featuring aqua marine and gold and centered with the decorated cake bearing the legend, "Happy Birthday, Rusty."

Also arranged on the table were aqua tapers in crystal candelabra and bright golden marigolds in a silver and gold dish.

A high point of the festivities in the yard was the drawing of surprise prizes from a wishing well with strings.

Guests for the event were the honoree, Bill Oglesby, Gordon Schrader, Choddy Conway, Jimmy Roberts, Tommy Robertus and Bradley Whetstone.

Lunch To Precede Blind Bogey Play

Fort Benning women golfers will hold luncheon Friday, Sept. 19, at noon at the clubhouse with all types of players welcome, including beginners and professionals.

Following the luncheon there will be a blind bogey tournament. Anyone interested may register at the Golf club on or before Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Announce Birth

1st Sgt. and Mrs. Edwin H. Alcorn have announced the birth of a son on August 23 at the Columbus City hospital.

Sergeant Alcorn was formerly with the Student Training Regiment and is now on terminal leave. He expects to be employed by the National Cash Register company upon being discharged from the Army.

Baggett-lunghuhn Rites Saturday

Of interest to their many friends on the Post and in Columbus will be the wedding Saturday afternoon of Miss Gloria Baggett of Columbus, and Major David W. Lunghuhn, of Fort Benning and Beaufort, N. C.

The ceremony will take place at 4 p. m. in the Post Chapel with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace Hale officiating. Immediately following the ceremony the couple will meet their guests at a reception to be held in the Officers' club.

P-TA Notice

The first meeting of the Parent-Teacher association for the school year will be held next Thursday at 7 p. m. in the auditorium of the Children's School.

All parents and others interested in the P-T-A are urged to attend this meeting.

Connors Entertain At Aperitif Party Before Tac Dinner

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert E. Connor were hosts at a delightful cocktail party Saturday evening at their quarters when they entertained for the officers and ladies of Group A of the tactical section before the section dinner at the Officers' club.

Approximately 35 guests were present for the event which started at 4:30 p. m., and the guests found the rooms attractively decorated. An ivy centerpiece was used on the serving table which was overlaid with a beautiful white runner which Colonel Connor brought from Ireland. White tapers were used in brass candelabra and mixed zinnias completed the arrangements.

Club Patio Scene Of No-Host Party

Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. F. Ramee entertained a few of their friends Saturday evening when the group stopped at their quarters for cocktails before going to the Officers' club for a no-host dinner.

At her quarters Mrs. Ramee decorated the rooms open to the guests with beautiful arrangements of garden flowers in green pottery bowls. At the club the table was set on the patio for the formal dinner.

Lawson Briefs

Cpl. Luke M. Miller, Squadron A, is taking a two weeks' Link Trainer operator's course at Randolph Field, Texas, and Sgt. Clifford E. Adams, of the same squadron, spent one day on TDY at Annisston ORD, last week.

Attending a three-day on-the-job training conference at TAC headquarters Langley Field, Va., last week were Maj. John C. Wretchko, Maj. John Moore and Capt. Merton J. Smith. S-Sgt. Lewis Justice, Squadron A, and Lieutenants Ed McCree and William P. Poole, Squadron F, have just returned from Smyrna, Tenn., where they spent three days on TDY. Capt. James D. Volosen, 20th Airdrome group, Shreveport, La., will spend 29 days on the base. M-Sgt. James Sims, NCOIC of AACCS, has returned from a recent throat operation and is back on the job.

Lt. Col. Selden R. Ebner, 9th Air Force Air Inspector, is making his headquarters with the base at Columbus during his stay here with Operation Combine. Maj. Walter A. Gremban, Capt. Warren E. Harris and Lt. Nunzio E. Ceruolo, fighter pilots who recently returned from Germany, have also joined the Base Air Inspector's Office. Lt. J. R. Wilson, of Penn., who was recently recalled to active duty on the new assistant recruiting officer.

Guests On Post Honored At Party Given On Patio

Mrs. C. M. Roberts, of Cardiff, Wales, and Mrs. O. M. Cutler, of Atlanta, were special guests at an interesting no-host dinner party at the Officers' club Saturday evening when a group enjoyed dinner and dancing on the club patio.

The table, set near the swimming pool, was attractively decorated with pink and yellow flowers and green tapers.

Mrs. Roberts is the mother of Mrs. A. E. Pendley and is visiting here at the quarters of Major and Mrs. Pendley. She came to the United States for her first visit early in July and will be joined here by her husband in early October. The couple plan to visit California while here and return to Wales in November.

Mrs. Cutler was on the Post for several days last week as the guest of Col. and Mrs. H. E. Beine. Others attending the Saturday party were Colonel and Mrs. Beine, Major and Mrs. Abraham Pfeifer and Major and Mrs. Pendley.

Eleven Candles On Cake At Party For Miss Millican

The eleventh birthday of Miss Carolyn Millican, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Millican, was the occasion for a delightful party Saturday afternoon which was a highlight of social activity for the young set last week.

All the trimmings for a birthday party were included in the celebration held at the Millican's quarters and the young guests were served refreshments they found the table beautifully decorated and featuring a huge angel food cake decorated with pink icing and bearing the legend, "Happy Birthday, Carolyn." Eleven pink candles marked the cake and also on the table, overlaid with a cut work cloth from the Philippines, was a large crystal bowl of mixed flowers.

Individual favors were found on the table in the form of bright crepe paper-covered pulls with surprise prizes in each one. Games played in the yard completed the festivities for the guests, including Barbara Skaggs, Robert Lindquist, June O'Mohundro, Jean Gibb, Frank Redwine, Douglas Dial, John McCrane, Anne Thomas, Clara Sullivan, Sandra Mikkelson, Raymond Millican, David Summers, Harold Wilson, Barbara Beasley, Harriet Naeff, Keith Cole, David Henderson, Bob Moscattelli and Borden Wilson.

Dinner Dance At Lawson Field

The beautifully decorated Lawson Field Officers' club formed the setting for an informal buffet dinner and dance given last Saturday night. This event was given to welcome the officers who will participate in "Operation Combine."

Supper arrangements of pine boughs well-placed throughout the dining room and lounge added color to the decorations.

Music was furnished by Hank Pudley and The Youngest Band in America.

Four Army Teams Match Bats Here For Coveted Title

The Third Army Baseball tournament will get underway at Gowdy field Monday, Sept. 15, as four army teams match bats for the coveted baseball crown.

To date, only four teams have entered the tourney: Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Jackson, S. C., and Fort McPherson, Ga. However, there is a possibility that before competition begins Monday night, other teams will have contacted tournament officials.

Because the Doughboys have not met Fort Jackson this year, it is difficult to predict their strength, but it has been reported that the South Carolinians boast a very strong ball club and are expected to be strong contenders for tourney laurels. Fort Jackson defeated Fort Benning's softball team 2-1 in the Third Army Softball tournament at Fort Jackson last week. At the time Jackson was scheduled to play the Doughboys, the games were cancelled because of their tremendous losses in players. Since that time, however, they are rumored to have added a great deal of talent to their club and are expected to make a good showing here.

The Doughs split last week end with the Fort Bragg All-Stars, losing the opener, 4-3, but coming back the following day to clinch an 8-3 decision. The All-Stars have one of the best teams the Benchesmen have played this year, yet, it is safe to predict that the Doughboys will humble the North Carolinians when they play here.

In the ball games at Bragg last week-end, the Doughs exhibited a new rejuvenated ball club with Shiver and Bonair adding the missing spunk to the line-up. Capt. Bench now has the finest club he has had all year, and altogether with his fine pitching staff, the Doughs should go on to capture the title.

Fort McPherson will be collaborating with the Atlanta Ordnance nine and should bring a fairly formidable ball club to Gowdy field. When the Doughs met the Atlanta team some weeks ago, they smothered them, but with additions from McPherson, their team should be greatly improved.

As it was pointed out before, the Doughboys are at their best for the tournament. As a team, the Doughboys are new hitting in the neighborhood of an impressive 350 pace, while some men who have been in slumps have suddenly bloomed forth, hitting the ball harder than the usual swatmen.

Chick Shiver, who has been playing too much ball all year, has come into his own, and has been sparking the team for the past week. Bonair, too, has shown remarkable improvement, both at the plate and in the field. Bill Brooks continues to hit the ball hard and consistently, while Burt and Burnett have managed to be the most dependable hitters on the team.

In the games at Bragg, the Benchesmen committed only one miscue in two games, a big improvement over their past performances. But the factor to be considered is the admirable team spirit that has shown so much this past week. The club has a determination to win in spite of some losses in the line-up, and this will be the deciding element in a Dough victory.

Each team will furnish one umpire, while Fort Benning, by capacity as host, will furnish the chief umpire, T-Sgt. Harris, who has worked behind the plate in most of the games at Gowdy field. However, the duties of the chief umpire do not deal with the calling of f the games, but rather to instruct the other umpires in ground rules and American league rules under which the tourney is to be played. No umpire will call a game in which his respective team is participating.

Each team must be eliminated twice before elimination, and, since competition will be run on a double-elimination basis, a play-off will not be necessary.

The tournament will continue through the week, ending Sunday, Sept. 21.

Doughs Split Pair With All-Stars

Dropping the first game of a two-game series with the Fort Bragg All-Stars, 4-3, at Fort Bragg Saturday night, the Doughs came back to explode three pitchers Sunday afternoon to win the final tilt, 8-3, though the Benchesmen outscored the All-Stars, collecting ten safeties to Bragg's seven, a triple with two men aboard in the seventh afforded Bragg two runs, and enough lead to edge out the die-hard Doughs.

Little Dick Gerhart, who has been selected to meet some of the strongest Dough foes this year, suffered the loss. However, he pitched a superb game, sacrificing one of his team's runs early, and tagged winner Cline for a single in the ninth when the Benchesmen tried vainly to overcome a two-run lead and turn defeat into victory.

Bragg Leads

Bragg took an early lead, scoring a lone run in the first frame, after Gerhart had walked Kenny, who scored on Cooley's flunk double in left field. Cooley caught Gerhart's fast ball on the end of his bat, and the ball bounced off Burnetts' head, head, rolling foul after it had landed fair.

Although the Doughs tagged Cline for two singles in the first, they were unable to score as McCowen was nabbed at third as he attempted to take two on Kinard's single. Two successive pop-outs retired the side eliminating an early Dough threat. But in the end, Chick Shiver, who hustled his teammates throughout both tilts, snatched a lead for a trip to the er. Bragg sacrificing to score Shiver.

Doughs Take Lead

Cline retired the first two Dough batters in the sixth, but Burnett drew a walk. Lefty Leuhner took a vicious single in left field, advancing Burnett to second, and the shifty third baseman came home as Brooks belted a line drive into left field. Bonair, another sparkler in the Dough line-up this week, grounded to second, leaving the Doughs with a 2-1 advantage.

But the North Carolinians came back in the sixth to wrest the lead from the Doughs as they failed a pair of runs to make it 3-2. Bragg catcher, Erp, was stopped abruptly at second on Odum's fielder's choice. Langbehn slumped over a deep into left center for a triple, sending Odum home, while he brought home the lead-run on a fly into left field. In the eighth Bragg scored the run that proved to be the winning margin over the Doughs. Going into the ninth, the Doughs held a 4-2 lead over the Doughs.

Shiver Scores

Shiver was hit by a pitched ball, taking first and advancing to second on Gerhart's single into center field. Cline fanned the next two Dough batsmen, but Woodie Burt made first on an error by the first baseman, filling the bases. Another error in the field sent Shiver home with the third Dough run.

The tight moment was at hand as Gerhart scurried home in the squeeze play, but was called out on a top-tee play.

Watts limited the All-Stars to three hits in the closing game Sunday, as his teammates outbattered three moundsmen for eleven runs and an 8-3 victory.

Starter Stanfield was chosen retired. Kinard drew a walk, but was tagged out at second on Burnetts' choice. Burnett lined a base hit into center scoring Kinard. Brooks kept up his recent hit-spike with a single into left, and both he and Burnett followed Kinard for pay dirt as Bonair lashed out a centerfield single. Lauve walked, leaving two aboard when Shiver's turn at the plate came. Bonair rushed home double, but Shiver's double was caught at third to retire the side.

Stanfield was relieved by Cincinnati in the fourth, and held the Doughs in that frame. But fortune did not beam as graciously on the troops after that, for the Benchesmen made three walks and three runs net them through the fifth. The Doughs virtually sewed up a Benning victory. Cincinnati was finished after the sixth in a single run in the sixth to run the Dough's afternoon total to eight.

Trussel Hits Double

Ken Trussel pitched faultless ball until the sixth as he never allowed a man to reach first. But in the sixth, Trussel ruined any hopes of an outstanding performance with a double into center field. Trussel scored the first Bragg run on a grounder by Cooley, in the seventh, Bragg tagged Watts for two additional safeties, scoring two other runs to make the score 8-3. From that point on both teams were handcuffed by on-posting pitchers as neither club hit for scores.

The Doughboys played magnificent ball in both games, and the work of Chick Shiver and "Bon-Bon" was outstanding. Shiver worked on batter after batter behind the plate, as the fielding of Bonair was the equal of any performance all year.

In the first game, Shiver connected for a triple, while in the Dough victory Sunday afternoon, the cagey catcher blasted out two doubles and a single in his five trips to the plate, driving in five runs. Bonair also had a near-perfect day at bat, lashing out a double and a pair of singles for scores.

In general the entire ball club was superb, playing the finest type of ball they have played all year. Bragg was among the top teams that the Doughs have met this season, and from those games, it is evident that Capt. Bench put the nine best men he had on the field.

Ordnance Grid Team To Open Season Friday

Another phase of gridiron news was announced this week as the 328th Ordnance battalion formed its 1947 football team, which will open its season against Central High, of Phenix City, at Doughboy stadium, Friday, Sept. 12. The team, which is an aggregation of men selected from various companies in the battalion, is comprised of athletes who are either too light or to inexperienced for positions on the Post squad. Although a complete schedule has not been announced, the battalion will engage outgoing high schools and military academies.

Burke Head Coach
Capt. Al Burke, commander of the 516th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance company, has been named head grid mentor for the team. Capt. Burke has been very active in athletics for many years, playing football from the time he entered high school until his graduation from St. Mary's University in Texas in 1938. A backfield man, he played varsity ball at St. Mary's during his freshman year. Subsequent to his entry into the Army in 1938, Capt. Burke continued his interest in football, playing with various Army teams for five years. After the war came to an end, Burke coached and played with the 328th Ordnance Battalion "Bombers," then at Fort Lewis, Wash., leading them to an undefeated season during which time the battalion eleven had only six points scored against them.

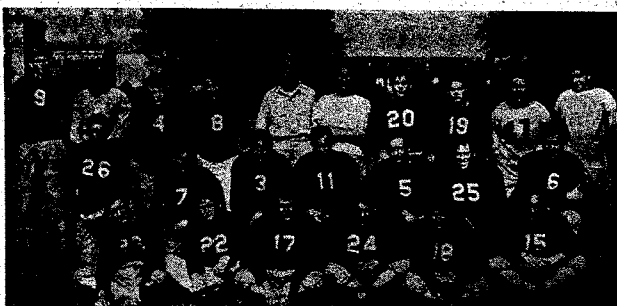

Burke will be assisted by Captain W. C. "Bull" Durham, former

All-Conference center from Western Kentucky College. Durham is also a graduate of the Physical Training and Athletic Director's school at Camp Lee, Va.

The squad, though light, looks good and boasts some very fleet backs. A hard working ball club, the battalion eleven is determined to insure their undefeated record of last year when they were stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Capt. Burke was not inclined to make much comment on this year's prospects and, when approached about the chances of another perfect season, remarked, "We had a fine squad last year, but we're working with an entirely new set of men this season. I'll be able to say more about the team's chances after our first game."

A complete schedule of games will be announced later.

LaGrange was the scene of the Doughboy's twentieth game of the season Wednesday as the Doughmen met and over the Dixie Mills, 13-2. Pitcher "Ike" Silcox split the plate and worked the corners so effectively that the Mills were able to score only two runs on a pair of singles and two Dough miscues in the seventh.

Geter, who proved to be the biggest sorehead of the Doughs having faced all season, took to the hills after the Benchmen had belted the shaky right-hander for 12 safeties and 13 runs and was relieved by Bridges, who finished the hit allowing the Doughs three hits in the two innings he pitched. Tallying runs in every inning but the eighth and ninth, the Doughs got off to a fast start by tagging Geter for a pair of bingles in the initial count, scoring three runs to take a lead that swelled with the coming of each successive inning.

McGowan Gets Homer

With two away in the second, "Lefty" McGowan took a high outside pitch from Geter, and sent the hapless spheroid sailing into right center field, far out of the reach of any fielders, for the only circuit blast of the ball game. Before the Dixie fielders could retrieve the ball, Lefty had scurried around the bases and was resting comfortably on the bench. There was no one aboard when McGowan connected for his home run.

Again in the third Dough went to work on Geter as Bloddy Burnett jolted the big right hander for a triple, scoring Watts' ground-er to second. Two runs in the fourth and lone tallies in the fifth and sixth swelled the Doughs' run total to eight.

Geter was still confident that

Post Baseball Team Still Playing 'Heads Up' Ball

When a team picks up in its batting toward the end of a season, one may be sure that that club has been playing head-up baseball. This situation is to be found on the Doughboy team this week, since the club's average swelled to an impressive .335 as the Doughs conquered four of their last five starts by overwhelming majorities.

Fielding, too, has greatly improved as the Benchmen committed only five errors in their last five starts. Many would-be hitters have been robbed of safeties by the spectacular catches of Brooks, Burt and McGowan in the outfield, while the improved playing of Boney Bonair at shortstop has been one of the factors in the Doughs' sudden burst of power this week. Chick Shiver has been behind the plate all week, effectively working batter after batter. His batting average swelled from a mere .199 to .300.

Increases Average
Perhaps the greatest leap taken by any batter this week, was that of Bill Brooks with his season's average jumping almost 100 points to .368, besides knocking in six of the team's runs in the week's schedule.

Although Watts dropped off this week, his average is still high, and he leads the batting row with .405. Burnett topped Burt this week, posting an even .400 for the week, boosting his marks to .384. Burt dropped a few points to .381. In last week's figure there was an error in George Dickson's average in that it read .332. However this mistake has been found and George is slamming the ball at an even .400 pace, only five points behind Watts. Dickson is also tied with Lefty McGowan for honors in runs batted in, as both ball players are credited with 16. Woodie Burt, who has hit consistently all year, having gone hitless in only two of the 26 games he has played, leads in total hits with 35, and in runs scored with 17, one better than Burnett.

Lefty Lehner, who went into a slump during the road trip, came blistering back to end the week with a high .376.

Bullet Gridders Meet Tuskegee Tigers Sept. 14

Boostered by the addition of a trio of well-seasoned players who were unable to report for grid practice until the diamond season was over, the 25th Bullets will present an untried but well-drilled squad when they clash with the powerful Tuskegee Institute Tigers in the season's opener Saturday afternoon at Tuskegee, Ala.

Eddie Baldwin, Charley Nichols and Gordon Burke are the ball-toters expected to add speed and punch to the Bullet backfield. Burke and Baldwin, both tremendous sprinters, were known for their speed on the baselines with the Bullet baseball squad.

Lt. Lloyd D. Jones, head coach, returned Monday from Jacksonville, Fla., where he attended the annual football coaches' meet of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in which the 25th Combat team athletic squads hold honorary membership.

This week, the Bayonet begins a series of stories on members of this year's grid team. Any information ball players render to the Public Information office will be greatly appreciated.

TRIPLE-THREAT—Bob Selbert, see backfield man on the Doughboy football team, shows his skill as he exhibits the art of evading would-be tacklers. Selbert is the only returning letterman from last year's All-Service eleven and will be seeing a lot of action from the fullback slot this year.

Kennedy Appointed Business Manager Of Post Gridders

Lt. Thomas J. Kennedy, Headquarters and Service company, Airborne Battalion, has been named business manager for the post football team, it was announced last week by Capt. Robert Kendrick, head Doughboy mentor.

Lt. Kennedy was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and attended high school there where he won varsity letters in football.

Entering the Army in 1940, Kennedy attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Knox, Ky., and after graduation went on to win his wings at the parachute school here at Fort Benning. Kennedy jumped with the 506th Parachute Battalion in Normandy on D-Day, later acting as executive officer in his company overseas. He was seriously wounded in action in Europe when a jeep in which he was riding, exploded two Teller mines. He holds the Purple Heart, Bronze Star, French Fourragere, Unit Citation, European Theater of Operations Ribbon with one arrowhead, and the American Theater Ribbon.

Marrying in England, Kennedy returned to the States in 1945 and took up work as an instructor in the parachute school where he has been working ever since.

Ward To Fill Guard Position On Grid Team

Robert R. Ward, Company A, 501st Parachute battalion, has been playing first string guard on this year's grid team and will be seeing a lot of action in the coming game with the Marines at Cherry Point, N. C.

Ward hails from Elizabeth, N. J., where he attended high school at Thomas Jefferson, graduating in June of 1946.

Ward was an outstanding athlete while in high school, winning varsity letters in football for three years, and was selected all-state guard in New Jersey in 1946.

Entering the Army in 1946, Ward took his basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., after which he came to Fort Benning where he won his jump wings in the parachute school here.

After jump training, Ward became active in Post sports, and played with the Airborne battalion basketball team that went on to clinch the Post championship. He also played with the team when they journeyed to Atlanta to compete in the third Southeastern tournament.

He was transferred to the 501st Parachute battalion this past June where he took up duties as life guard at Russ pool.

SCOVIL

Scovil To Play Right End Slot For Doughboys

Another man from the 501st Parachute battalion, Doug Scovil, who hails from San Francisco, Calif., has won a position on the 1947 Fort Benning Doughboy eleven. Scoville is now playing right end, and is a very promising defensive man on Butch Kendrick's new squad.

Before Scovil entered the Army in August 1946, he worked as an athletic instructor in California, and prior to joining the grid-team, was an instructor in a stage of jump training.

Scovil attended Lowell high school in San Francisco where he won letters in all varsity athletics, excelling in football and basketball. Lowell won the California state high school basketball championship in 1945-1946 with Scovil playing varsity forward on the all-state team. In track, the lanky end, broke the record in the 880-yard race, turning in a neat 2:02.3.

While at Fort Knox, Ky., where he took basic training, Scovil was well known in basketball circles, and played with his battalion team that won a regimental championship. Leaving Fort Knox in November, he came here for jump training, where he won his wings early in March.

PASS SNATCHER — Harold Luis, who has been sparking the "Doughboy line during practice sessions for the coming game with the Cherry Point Marines, grabs a big pass in a recent scrimmage at Doughboy stadium. Luis is the outstanding end this year, and has been showing up well on defensive play.

Cycle Races Set Tonight

A national motorcycle championship holder, Ted Edwards of Atlanta, will race on the Idle Hour park speedway Thursday night against an experienced field of former winners.

Challenging Edwards will be Paul Goins, the only rider who ever won more than once at Idle Hour. Ed Busk, Johnny Butterfield, and Robin Rogers, each a one-time winner; Cal Downy, Norman Schroeder, Howard Hardy, D. O. Anderson, Clarence Gray, An Cliff Johns, and Charles Lamb. Invitation is extended to all such Edwards recently finished in the officers to attend.

money at the national championship events at Lacomia, New Hampshire. He holds several track titles, and he captured the Laughorn, Pa., final last month.

Goins broke tradition two ways by winning the last two features at Idle Hour.

Thursday's standard A. M. A. schedule of seven events will begin at 8:30 p. m. Thursday.

SOJOURNERS TO MEET

The monthly meeting of Fort Benning chapter No. 8, National Sojourners, will be held at the Polo Hunt club at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Sept. 11. The Sojourners is a national organization of Masons who are, or have been, commissioned in the armed forces. An invitation is extended to all such officers to attend.

MEAGER

Frank Meager Shows Up Well In Pivot Post

Frank Meager, Headquarters company, 501st Parachute battalion, is holding down the quarterback slot on the Doughboy team and will be doing a lot of the passing from the "I" formation that will be used this year.

Born in Eastmore, Md., Meager attended Loyola high school, later beginning his college education at the same institution. While in high school, Meager made letters in all varsity sports, excelling in football and wrestling. He won the Mason-Dixon wrestling championship in the 165-pound class in 1946.

Entering the Army in July 1946, Meager was sent to Fort Bragg, N. C., for basic training, and later came to Fort Benning's Parachute School where he won his wings early in December.

Meager is a very fine passer, and will be the key man in the "I" formation attack. A fast runner, he has been showing up well in the Notre Dame box.

WARD

Airborne Group Ends First Training Phase

Airborne students in Company A, the Airborne battalion, entered their fourth week of training last Monday.

During the week they were scheduled to receive training on the 250-foot jump towers and take the physical training test. Next week the students will participate in their first parachute jump, and the final week will deal with loading and lashing equipment in gliders.

Graduation day is set for Sept. 20.

Second Guessing

BY RALPH GREENE

Stowdy field will be a busy place next week, what with the Third Army tournament commencing Monday night as four crack army teams go into action in pursuit of the Third Army baseball crown.

Little can be said at present about the teams that will match bats with the Doughboys, but it is safe to say that the Doughs are definitely victory bound. To date the Benchmen have humbled 21 of their 26 opponents and have exceeded opponents' runs and hits by long strides. Before the series with Fort Bragg, the Doughboys had battered challenging hurlers for 78 hits in five games and had tallied a neat figure of 72 runs. In the face of this remarkable achievement it is easy to see that Capt. Bench and company can, and have, garnered plenty of power in defeating so many teams.

Even though the Doughboys dropped the opener to Bragg last week-end 4-3, their brand of ball was the finest they have played all year, while the team spirit and hustle was up at least 100 percent. Should the team, and no one doubts they will, continue to play this type of ball with the same sort of drive and hustle, there can be little doubt that the laurels of the Third Army tournament will come to rest in the bosom of the country's most complete Army post; namely, Fort Benning.

As the team made preparations for departure for Fort Bragg last Friday, the absence of two men was noted, but no explanation was, or had been, given as to why these players were absent when the time for departure was at hand. But a team cannot formulate plans and arrangements to the liking of certain individuals, and therefore has to leave without them. However, their absence was not due to sickness or any other reasonable excuse, but rather as a result of indifference. Perhaps all concerned were a little skeptical as to the results of the coming games in the face of these individuals' absence at the time when the plane took off . . . I say perhaps.

However, after the series was over, I dare say, there was not a man on the Fort Benning baseball team who didn't consider the team that played at Fort Bragg as the best that could have been put on the field. Why? It gives me pleasure to tell you why. Two men, Chick Shiver, and "Boney" Bonair, who have heretofore played less ball than most of the team, took respective positions behind the plate and at shortstop in the series with the Bragg All-Stars and were instrumental in the fine showing the Doughs made. No team has ever been more enthusiastic on the field, and no team has ever been more determined to win a game than the Doughs were at Fort Bragg, not only for the sake of a victory, but because each and every member of the ball team wanted to show to these abscensees that they, no matter how much they may have been missed, were not the keys to the Doughboy victory which was proved beyond all doubt.

Shiver is a smart ball player who has played a lot of baseball and knows how to work batters. Bonair played the best ball game that he has probably played in his life and will, in every event, continue to play that type of ball. For the series Bonair hit at a 400 pace, while Shiver tucked a neat 500 average away as well as knocking in five Dough runs.

Yes, the team and Capt. Bench are proud of these two men, for they came through when their fight was most needed.

There has been on the team this year a certain amount of difference on the part of some men. Capt. Bench has made it a policy all year to do his bottom best for all his ball players, and I don't think there is a man on the team that could honestly say that he has not received a square deal. On many occasions, Bench has, for the sake of team unity, somewhat given in to the wishes of some individuals. But now, there will be no more of this individuality on the team, and the man wants to play ball, . . . if not—there are plenty more who can fit the uniform.

No group of people has to be dependent on any one man. And in sports, although there may be some outstanding athlete, a team can win, and usually does, when that will to win is permeating each and every player. And it is far better to have conscientious players who work for the team and not for their selfish selves, than to have some man, no matter how skilled he may be, who plays for the sake of setting his name and disregards the welfare of the team for which he is playing.

When oldies like "Lefty" Lehner and Bob Kinard voice their opinion on a team, one may be sure that they know what they are talking about. Both of these men were ready to say that the team that played at Bragg was the best that they had ever seen.

So I feel that the team will go on to win the Third Army crown in the branch of the tournament it has played this year. I don't see how they can miss. And you fans be on hand for the Doughboys, your teams need your support. These ball players are not playing for themselves or for their able coach, but for you, and Fort Benning.

Well, school days are here again, and all the way from the sandpits to 500-yard sanctuaries, stadiums will be filled before the month is out as football has only three weeks more of preliminary practice. But our Doughboys are working hard for their coming tilt, when they clash with the Fort of Benning on Saturday, the team went through the roughest scrimmage of the year in a football practice, trying to take a much brighter outlook for his Doughboys.

The work of Bob Seibert and Harold Lutz has been outstanding, and the backfield will be looking to Seibert for the lead in the labor. Bob is a dangerous triple threat man, who can kick expertly, pass with real terrific fury, and pass well enough to frighten most defensive players. Lutz has been proving at his pass receiving while his defensive work on the line has been outstanding. Bob Herrick has been missing from the roster of late, but his kicking is good at the guard position, along with Jack Seibold and Tom Tommy Pope, who starred with the All Senior eleven, is back with the Bulldogs at the University of Georgia. When Tom left Georgia at the end of his freshman year to enter the Army, he was voted "most likely to get ahead in football." Tom lived up to expectations, in spite of the fact, that the little guard had to play behind the Army's All-American John Green, for he donated greatly to the strength of the Doughboy line. Pope will see a lot and play in football at Georgia, which is a good prospect for top honors in a few years.

Another former Doughboy star is Jack Stroud who will be playing with the University of Tennessee this winter. Jack, who is from California, but decided late last year that he would attend Tennessee. He was a star at Georgia. Doughs had last year Stroud as one of the most important men in the Doughboy front line.

Carl Robinson, who has been working with the Doughs this year, will be discharged in a few days, and plans to return to the University of Utah. His loss will hurt the Doughs since Carl was the finest guard Kendrick had.

Archery is coming into its own here at Fort Benning with more and more people enlisting in the ranks of the Robin Hood men. Lt. Col. John L. Hines, commanding officer of the screening center, is the governor of the club and has been making great strides in getting the new club well established. On Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, lessons are given to beginners on the 15-foot course behind the old bowling alley. On Sundays, the members go on the range to keep in shape on the various hunts that are conducted periodically.

On one of the recent jaunts into the dense woods surrounding the Post, the clasmen nabbed a big boar, but are still on the look-out for one particular boar who has been named "Old Slewfoot." A taken from a magazine featuring the famous novel "The Yearling." A boar is an extremely hefty animal, and very difficult to kill in that its hide is very tough. Even with a rifle, it is a huntsman's delight to nab one of these big animals. With bow and arrow it takes even more skill, for the huntsman must have precision in his aim or his arrow will fly so much as slow the boar down.

The Post softball team lost out in the finals of the Third Army Tournament 2-1 to Fort Jackson, which played host to the tournament.

Winter Season Sport Calendar Revealed Here

A complete athletic program for the 1947-1948 season, embracing a host of activities on and off the post, has been announced by the athletic and recreation department.

The intramural leagues will be conducted at battalion level and will be under the direction and supervision of the Infantry's Center's athletic officer. In the intramural schedule, each unit will appoint one officer to officiate in the particular sport in which a team is entered. The intramural sports schedule is as follows:

Boxing—Sept. 15-Dec. 15, 1947.
Basketball—Oct. 1-Nov. 30, 1947.

Bowling—Nov. 1-Dec. 15, 1947.
Volleyball—Jan. 6-Feb. 29, 1948.

Baseball—April 1-June 30, 1948.
Track—TIC track meet on or about April 15, 1948.
Tennis—TIC tennis tournament on or about May 15, 1948.
Swimming—TIC swimming meet on or about July 15, 1948.
Softball—July 16-Aug. 31, 1948.

The A series of scheduled dates have been posted for the beginning of practices for the various post teams. In addition to the regular squads, tournaments will be held in tennis, golf, softball, basketball, and volleyball, and other players, as well as the winners, will be selected to represent 1948.

Squadron A Gets New Commander

Command of Squadron A, 319th AAF Base unit at Lawson field, was assigned last week to Capt. Richard B. Overfield, the squadron's former adjutant, base official reported. He succeeds Maj. William Woodyard, who has been transferred to Tyndall field, Fla. in service since 1941. Capt. Overfield has logged 2,500 flying hours as a transport pilot and has served two tours of duty overseas. During the war he served in the ETO with the 498th Troop Carrier group for 18 months. He was transferred to Lawson field last January after 12 months in Bogota, Colombia, South America, where he trained South American pilots.

The captain, a native of Independence, Kan., and a former member of the University of Kansas football team, has been awarded the Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters, Presidential Unit citation and the ETO ribbon with seven battle stars.

Sasser Returns From Japan Duty

S/Sgt. Roy C. Sasser, of Lawson field, returned to the base recently after a four-month tour of duty at Yokota air base Japan.

He has been reassigned to the base teletry section, an assignment he held from the time he re-enlisted at Lawson field in February, 1945, until ordered to the Pacific on a special communications assignment last April. A member of the Air Forces since 1942, Sergeant Sasser served in the ETO with a communications unit during the war.

Other base personnel accompanying Sergeant Sasser on the Pacific assignment were Sgt. Grady Smith, S/Sgt. Edward Testenson and Cpl. Raymond Alexander.

The group was flown to and from their overseas assignment and visited several islands en route.

Win Promotions

The following members of the Infantry School Detachment's Company C were promoted to the grade of private first class last week:

Pvt. Bernard L. Randy, Ernest R. Hale, John H. Iverson, Glenn W. Farrah, and Charles A. Thompson.

Former Post Officer Reenlists In Air Force

Former 2nd Lieut. William C. Rivers has reenlisted in the Air Force at Lawson field as a master sergeant, base recruiting officials announced this week.

Sergeant Rivers, who has 88 months Army service, graduated from the Army Officer Candidate school here and served with the post transportation department.

The young sergeant, who hails from New York City, attended Howard university in Washington, D. C., where he was a pre-med student, prior to enlisting in the Army.

Henley Assigned To Lawson PIO

Cpl. James O. Henley, Jr., of Anniston, Ala., recently reenlisted in the Air Force at Lawson field for a period of three years and has been assigned to the Public Information office as an information specialist.

Corporal Henley has had 30 months previous service in the Air Forces and served overseas with the 318th Bomb wing of the 20th Air Force as a radio operator. After leaving the service in March 1946, Corporal Henley was affilated with American Overseas Airlines at the Westover field, Mass., as a public relations and press release man. In April 1947 he joined the staff of the Calhoun Broadcasting company in Anniston as news and promotion manager.

Burman Named Head Of 30th Medical Group

Maj. John H. Burman has assumed command of the 30th Medical group, succeeding Maj. Tom F. Little, who has left the post for the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., military authorities announced today.

Troops of the medical group honored Maj. Little at a parade and review Aug. 30. At the same time Maj. Burman presented M-Sgt. Frank L. Cook a letter of merit on the occasion of his retirement after 30 years' active service.

Units of the 30th Medical group include Headquarters detachment, 121st Evacuation hospital, 651st Motor Ambulance company, and 375th Medical Collecting company.

Russell Gets Active Duty

M-Sgt. Allen F. Russell, budget and fiscal office, was re-called to active duty with his former rank of second lieutenant last Friday. Lawson Field officials announced.

Capt. Harold D. Elliot, base adjutant, administered the oath of commission.

Lieutenant Russell enlisted in June 1943 as an aviation cadet and was graduated from the Air Force Navigation school at Saltman field, La., in February 1945. He received his commission as flight officer and came to Lawson field in December 1946 where

Old To Head 9th Air Force

Maj. Gen. William D. Old, who will succeed Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams as commander of the Ninth Air Force Sept. 15, arrived at Lawson field Tuesday morning for an inspection tour of Ninth Air Force Advance headquarters, base officials reported.

General Williams, who took over command of IX Troop Carrier Command (later redesignated Ninth Air Force) from General Old in September 1946, has been appointed commanding general of Second Air Force with headquarters at Offutt field, Omaha, Neb.

Lawson field was under General Old's command during the war years when the base was a component of I and later IX Troop Carrier Command, which he commanded from Stout field, Indiana.

The general is a veteran of the CBI theater. Since his return from overseas he has commanded the 12th Air Force, March field, California, and, prior to being designated chief of Ninth Air Force, was a member of the Air Forces General Staff, Washington, D. C.

he served as budget and fiscal officer until June when he was separated and re-enlisted as a master sergeant.

Lt. Russell cleared the field this week and is being transferred to March field, California, where he will participate in operation MAW.

Darkroom Developments

Editor's note: Darkroom Developments, which was a regular feature until last June 3, returns to the pages of The Bayonet with this issue. This column is designed for Fort Benning shutterbugs.

Now that the season for curvaceous quines in skimpy ensembles is on the wane, don't feel that the sole reason for camera consciousness has gone with it. Granted your sugar in a short sarong provides a compelling desire to haul your Brownie out of mothballs and snap said sugar in said sarong, feel not, fine friend that the pasting of those snapshots in your scrapbook ends a pleasant friendship not to be resumed until next summer. Unlike a French bathing suit or tennis racquet, your camera can provide pleasure during all seasons.

One thing that makes photography fun is that there are so many ways to present or interpret subject material, assuming, of course, a necessary mechanical ability.

Let's illustrate how flexible photography really is and what can be done with your camera. Have you ever thought of someone as a horse's neck? With your camera you can make him look like one. Or have you ever thought of a pretty blonde as a Venus? Using your camera properly, she can become just that. Or perhaps she's cool, and you think of her as an iceberg. Using your camera, you can make her an iceberg. All one needs is the idea, a little ingenuity, and patience. But to prevent the idea.

Don't let this business of "the necessary mechanical ability" throw you. It's easy. Although there are many methods of accomplishing the same end, here is one.

Take a picture of a horse, the neck, that is. Enlarge the neck to the required dimension. Fit a picture of your subject to the composition of the horse's neck. Cut an outline of the horse's head, leaving his neck. Enlarge your subject to fit the resulting space. Place your subject's head behind the outline and take a picture of the resulting composite. Easy, isn't it?

This is a simplified illustration. Can you see further possibilities? Develop or have developed your film as soon as possible after exposure. Film is frequently usable for a short time after its expiration date, but once it has been exposed the undeveloped film deteriorates rapidly, particularly in hot, damp weather. To get it developed quickly and save that precious picture.

4 Airborne Soldiers Promoted During Week

Promotions last week in the Airborne battalion's Company H included the following:

S-Sgt. James H. Way to technical sergeant, Sgt. Donald F. Gross to staff sergeant, and Pfc. Robert J. Marale and William J. Paminella to corporal.

Other promotions during the week included the following members of the Infantry School Detachment's Company A:

Cpl. William L. Tyson to corporal, Pfc. Merle M. Morrow to sergeant, T-5 Howard H. Dehn to technician fourth grade, and Pfc. Roland M. Glasser to technician fifth grade.

Hospital Red Cross Gets New Home

Formal opening of the new hospital Red Cross recreation center, located in Building A-10 on Baltzell avenue, is scheduled for tonight at 7:30 p. m. It was announced this week by Miss Lacy Darter, assistant field director at the station hospital.

Col. Robert B. Hill, commander of the hospital, is expected to attend the ceremony, and invitations have been issued to Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the Infantry School, and Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and commanders of all major installations at Fort Benning.

Local entries have but 24 days to submit their photographs in the Army-wide photography contest which is now under way. No entries will be accepted after the deadline, Oct. 12, according to Capt. Cedric Tallis, who is in charge of post competition.

Entries are to be submitted to the Infantry Center special service officer. All entries will be judged by a qualified committee of photographers.

A first prize of ten dollars will be awarded to the post winner in each category. Second prize in each category will receive five dollars. The winning entries here will be entered in the Third Army contest, prizes for which will be announced later.

The ultimate winners in the Third Army contest will in turn be eligible for the All-Army War Department competition in the final contest. Only amateur photographs may be entered, with all military personnel eligible. The use of Signal Corps material and equipment which is not normally available for troop use is prohibited.

Photographs may be entered in any of the following categories:

1. The mission and duties of the Army (daily life at a military installation, special events, etc.).
2. The Army off-duty (recreation activities, etc.).
3. Foreign countries and people (landscapes, architecture, people, customs, etc.).
4. General pictorial photographs (human interest, still lifes, portraits, miscellaneous photos).

Air Maneuvers To Begin Sept. 29

TIC Schedules Big Motor Show During October

Plans are being made for the Infantry Center motor show which is scheduled to be staged at Blue and French fields the morning of Oct. 25 and the afternoon of Oct. 26, officials announced today.

Included in the show, an elaborate display of motor vehicles and equipment, will be some of the largest mobile units in the Army, housed here at the Maintenance and Museum section, plus various other vehicles and equipment from post units.

The show will get underway Saturday morning, Oct. 25, with the motor vehicle display at Blue field. Each participating unit will enter vehicles by classes with one vehicle in each class. The following units will compete:

Participating Units
The 37th Infantry regiment, 999th Field Artillery battalion, 25th Infantry regiment, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, 78th Engineer Combat battalion, 758th Armored Tank battalion, 30th Medical group, 32nd Ordnance battalion, 204th Transportation battalion, Post motor pool and sub-pools, and Army Ground Forces board No. 3.

In addition to competition in vehicle classes, the program will also include a drivers' competition course for the jeep and two and one-half-ton truck at French field Sunday afternoon, Oct. 26. A drivers' course will be laid out at French field for this exhibition.

Gun Drills Slated
Sandwiched in between the jeep and truck competition will be gun drills of 105 mm howitzers by batteries of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion and 155 mm howitzers by sections of the 999th Gun Drills.

Weather Outlook
Friday—Cloudy. Maximum temperature 89.
Saturday—Partly cloudy. Maximum temperature 90.
Sunday—Partly cloudy. Maximum temperature 92.

Infantry School To Present Series Of Demonstrations

Student-officers from the Armed Forces Staff College and Command and General Staff College, expected to attend the opening presentation of Operation Combine during the first week in October, will also have an opportunity to observe the latest development in infantry "mad minute" at Hook range Sept. 29.

More than 400 students and instructors from the two service schools, representing all branches of the American armed forces as well as China, South America, and Britain, will see one of the most colorful exhibitions of ground force equipment during the 60-minute display at which time all modern infantry weapons are fired simultaneously.

Group Attack
That afternoon the visitors will witness an infantry-artillery-tank team in attack. Both this demonstration and the "mad minute" were presented last spring as a climax to the Air indoctrination course sponsored by Ninth Air Force.

The Monday afternoon show, presented by the Infantry School's tactical section, is designed to demonstrate the coordination and cooperation of the various ground combat arms in the attack of an organized enemy defense position. Tuesday, Sept. 30, Ninth Air Force's advance headquarters will open their part in the demonstration with preliminary exercises at Lawson field. During the afternoon the students will observe a battalion in defense problem presented by the Infantry School's tactical section.

Night Vision Show
On Sept. 31 Ninth Air Force will be in charge of the show all day. That night half the students from the Command and General Staff College will attend.

French General Now Inspecting Infantry Center

La General Maurice Mathenet, French military attaché, arrived Wednesday morning for a two-day visit at the Infantry Center. He is scheduled to depart Thursday afternoon.

General Mathenet attended ceremonies at the State Capital in Atlanta Tuesday where the French Croix de Guirre was awarded to the 17th Field Artillery battalion of the Georgia National Guard.

Following his reception by an honor guard at outpost No. 1, General Mathenet was officially welcomed by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel.

After reviewing the Infantry center athletic program, Wednesday afternoon, the French general paid a visit to a fellow countryman, Captain Jean Mestel, a student officer at the Infantry School.

Thursday morning's itinerary calls for a visit to the Airborne section and a review of special operations of rifle grenades, rocket launcher, flame thrower, machine gun marksmanship, 57mm and 75mm rifles.

Thursday afternoon General Mathenet will witness the technique of fire of the 60mm, 81mm, and mortars. He is scheduled to depart Fort Benning late in the afternoon.

Progress Seen In 'Face-Lifting'

Definite progress is being made in the extensive building and repair program underway here, post engineers announced today.

Renovating of the Biglerville mess, including painting, decorations, and installation of new facilities and equipment, has just been completed. Extensive work on the exterior is expected to be completed in a matter of days.

Most of the repaving and resurfacing of roads is completed along with most of the construction work. Installation of the air conditioning system at the Infantry school is about complete.

In a meeting of the conservation board last week emphasis was still being stressed in conserving water and electricity. A reduction in the size of street light bulbs on the main post and in the residential area is being contemplated, engineers.

Mail Xmas Parcels Early, Army Warns

Christmas packages for Army personnel stationed overseas should be mailed between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15, Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, adjutant general, who operates the Army's postal system, announced today.

This is the same mailing period for Christmas packages as last year. If the suggested mailing period is used, there is more definite assurance that Christmas packages will actually arrive just before or during the holiday season.

Emphasizing that American families this year know exactly where on the world's map their soldier-relatives is stationed, postal authorities urge the use of judgment in mailing dates. The geographic location of the individual should decide this. Packages to distant bases should be sent during the early part of the mailing period.

TIC Schedules

Field Artillery battalion. A series of competitions in tire changing by drivers of jeeps and demonstrations of tank transporters by the 75th Tank battalion will also be on the program.

In the Oct. 25 show winners will be determined by points scored in appearance and mechanical condition of vehicles and equipment. The appearance of drivers, their proficiency and skill in operation, will be the determining factor in Sunday afternoon's session.

Following presentation of awards by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the Infantry Center, a review of the bases will be staged. Examination of the display of vehicles and equipment by the spectators will wind up the show.

Jones To Inspect

Colonel Gardiner B. Jones, veterinary consultant from the Chicago Quartermaster depot, will visit Fort Benning Sept. 26 in connection with inspection matters, it was learned today.

Col. Jones will confer with the veterinary section there on inspection of meats, meat-food, and dairy products, particularly that pertaining to the points of origin inspections, including Moultrie, Jacksonville, Albany and Macon.

college will witness a night vision demonstration by the Infantry School. Thursday night, Oct. 2, the second half of the class from Fort Leavenworth will see the same demonstration.

Again on Oct. 2 the Ninth Air Force will provide demonstrations all day, and on Friday, Oct. 3, the Infantry School will take over operations, presenting the Battalion in attack on a fortified position. This problem will be observed by students from the Command and General Staff college only.

Highlight of Operation Combine, the mammoth air-ground demonstration, is slated for Oct. 2 when the ground and air forces will combine their power for a mass invasion by air.

The students from the Armed Forces staff college are expected to return to their home station following Thursday's air show, while the Command and General Staff college troops will remain throughout the Friday demonstration by the Infantry School.

Hospital

The room will be used by all patients visiting the Red Cross. The main room contains table games, writing desks, radios, phonographs, and sofas and chairs.

A long, screened porch runs the length of the building and will be used for ping pong and pool. Steel porch furniture in green and white with matching awnings will afford the hospital patient a cool retreat on hot evenings, officials said.

Plans are underway to landscape the area surrounding the building and to place lawn furniture there, Miss Darter revealed.

New drapes have been hung in the lounge. These were made by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the St. Luke Methodist church in Columbus.

The social service office in the hospital Red Cross is open daily from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m., Miss Darter said. Emergencies will be taken care of at any time, however, she pointed out, since one member of the staff is always on duty.

The recreation building is open daily until 8:30 p. m. except Wednesdays and Saturdays when it closes at 5 p. m.

Miss Darter announced that the same program of activities would continue in the new location. This includes parties with girls from Columbus each Tuesday and Thursday nights and movies on Thursday in the auditorium of the old recreation building.

Visiting USO shows will continue to be engaged twice monthly for both ward and ambulatory patients.

Monday night is game night at the hospital Red Cross, Miss Darter said, and Sunday open house is held for patients and friends. Refreshments are served during the open house and there is usually musical entertainment, it was pointed out.

Outside trips are arranged twice monthly through the cooperation of the Columbus chapter of the Red Cross and civilians who offer the use of their summer estates. These outings are usually in the form of picnics and fishing parties.

Ward parties are also arranged periodically by the staff of the hospital Red Cross, and movies are regularly shown to bed patients.

Musical instruments are available for use of the patients and a small library is maintained, featuring pocket-book editions, magazines, and a few recent books. Table games are available at all times as well as ping pong, pool, badminton, shuffle board, and voice recording equipment.

The hospital Red Cross staff includes, in addition to Miss Darter, Miss Hazel Turnage, head recreation worker, Miss Josephine Clark, social worker, Miss Stasia McNeese, social worker, Miss Annette Lovins, recreation worker, and Miss Fatty Sparks, recreation worker.

Navy Blimp Is Flown Here To Escape Tropical Storm

Out-thinking all aircraft at Lawson field early this week was the giant two-engine Navy blimp which arrived here Sunday at 6:45 p. m., seeking refuge from the hurricane menacing the Georgia coast.

The blimp, a veteran of submarine warfare and escort duty in World War II, was flown to Lawson field by a crew of ten from Glynco Naval Air base, Brunswick, Ga., after having been evacuated to that station from its home base in Key West, Fla., on Saturday.

Piloting the Navy's lighter-than-air ship was Lt. Melvin M. Hill. The 280-foot-long silver ship was moored to one of the two 85-foot blimp masts which were installed at the base by the Glynco Naval Air base only a few weeks ago for just such an emergency. In the event the storm threatened Lawson field, the blimp was ready to move to its next evacuation station, Houma Naval Air base, Houma, La. The blimp is equipped with the latest airship apparatus, including reverse pitch propellers, which enable the ship to travel backwards, and an automatic pilot instrument. It is powered by the two 425-horse-power Pratt and Whitney engines, measures 50 feet in diameter and is covered with rubberized fabric. The ship was built by the Goodyear Aircraft Manufacturing company.

Complete Fixtures

The 30-foot car, located in the center of its belly, has a Plexiglass enclosed nose and tail. It houses the pilot and co-pilot's compartment, navigator's and radio operator's station, a galley, complete with an electric cooking range, a small lounge furnished with leather upholstered chairs and a storage section.

The enormous balloon included Lt. Hill, pilot; Lt. Gordon Cousins and H. L. Eberly, co-pilots; CAR Wilmer L. Pfeiffer, ACRN Lawrence J. McPherson, Arm-2 Howard J. Kelly, ACGM; Emil Klase, Sen. AMM-2 Edward J. White and AR-2 Robert H. Ferguson.

A blimp ground crew was dispatched to the base ahead of the ship to set up the mooring mast. They were flown in from Key West Naval Air base by Lt. J. B. Grotts, and were accompanied by Lt. Warren M. Thompson, hurricane liaison officer for the Glynco Naval base.

A Shocking Situation

Newspapers are full of stories of hunger and want in Europe, of misery and bloodshed in India and China. The radio brings us eye-witness accounts of tales hard to believe, especially since we live in a country where such things could not possibly happen—or so we tell ourselves.

So long as we maintain a strong Army, a strong Navy, and a strong Air Force, it won't happen. So long as we keep our productive capability, it won't happen. So long as we have no fear in our hearts as we close our eyes at night. There is no gnawing hunger in our stomachs, no brittle and crooked bones in our children, no hollow cheeks from lack of proper diet and sunshine.

As American citizens, we should be so proud to be members of the greatest form of government the world has ever known that we would never tire of shouting its praises. Yet let even to the extent of giving up their citizenship and embracing another.

We read with no small amount of shock the other day that 20 ex-GIs, who were stationed in Australia during the war years, had returned Down Under to make their homes. Some of them had taken their Aussie wives and children; others were single. All, however, made it plain that it wasn't through the insistence of their wives or girl-friends left behind in Australia that they were making the trip back. They were fed up with America! Shocking, isn't it?

We are completely baffled and make no pretense at understanding the acts of these men. We had no idea things were so bad in this country. Further, we do not believe that things could be so bad as to warrant their leaving; however, that is entirely a personal matter. Feeling the way these men do, they perhaps could never find a place in the world to suit them. Certainly if America does not offer a young man more opportunities than any other country in the world, we are quite sure that nowhere on earth will they find happiness.

People like those who have decided to cast their lot with another country remind us of those who followed Hitler blindly before the war when everything seemed to be working out the way the "mastermind" had predicted. We can not forgive them. What a rude awakening they will have someday.

The United States is, with all its admitted faults, still the greatest nation mankind has ever known. What can be gained by such a move is not clearly seen by The Bayonet. Perhaps the cost of living has risen, but we do not believe it to be so outrageous as to cause a man to deny his own country, especially when that country is America. Perhaps he can not get a job, but we do not believe this, either. Perhaps he can not adjust himself to civilian life. Then we have but one answer: Join the Army!

CHAPLAIN LEWIS M. DURDEN

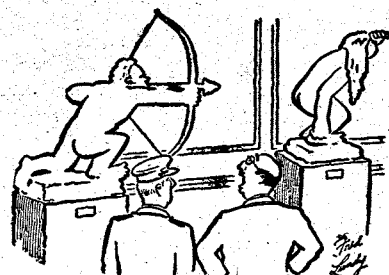

No man who lives under the protection of the American Flag can be completely indifferent to the influence of the church. He may be a professed Christian, an infidel, or an agnostic, but directly or indirectly, his life is influenced by the church. The church stands for law and order, good government, and good morals; it is, without doubt, the greatest force in America for righteousness. Its influence means more for our security than a million policemen. It restrains evil deeds and is dynamic force in the lives of all good citizens. The church mark of civilized people.

Those who knock the church are digging at the foundations of their own homes, happiness, and security. Only the ignorant and the low minded sneer at the church. To all others the mere act of worship, however inane and unedifying, is a sacred thing. Forth and holiest have walked; forth from the shrines, dedicated to the living God, men and women have gone to all the glorious martyrology; out of this worship have come those restraining baser passions and those commanding aspirations which led the march of civilization.

Dr. Alexis Carrel, physician, scientist, and co-inventor with Charles A. Lindbergh of the mechanical heart, once said a nation to "go to church; you will feel better; you will feel back the intelligent person who knows that church-going really works; his psychologists, whose life-work is devoted to examining the minds of church-goers get along better with themselves and with others than those who do not go to church.

You do feel better when you go to church, and there are many reasons for it. When you go to church you have a sense of belonging—belonging to a group of people devoted to a common cause. You gain a feeling of restfulness, the sense of peace that comes from quiet period of meditation undisturbed by worldly affairs. You get a feeling of security in the situation which has witnessed the buffets of more than 1900 years up to strength, the faith to carry throughout the week with the inspiration given you by the church, "Go to church; you'll feel better."

"I think one of these statues should be turned around"

This Day Your Red Cross

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of columns dealing with the important events of World War II, a chronicle depicting the progress and high-lights that mark each day of the struggle. Today's column recalls the events between Sept. 12 and This Day, Sept. 18.

Sept. 12—Five years ago today there was fierce fighting on Guadalcanal. Twenty Japanese planes were shot down as they tried to aid their troops. The opposition to the Japanese was stronger than they had thought. America had rallied quicker than was generally expected.

The Red Cross chapter at Springfield, Ill., should certainly take a bow. Recently this office received a letter from the Red Cross chapter in Springfield stating that its home service workers were unable to locate a serviceman's wife about whom a welfare report had been requested direct from the soldier. Summoning the sergeant to our office, we asked him when he last heard from her. He replied that it had been several weeks.

"In view of the long time since you've heard from your wife, are you sure she is still living in Springfield?" exclaimed the soldier. "Check no, my wife lives in Philadelphia."

"Then why on earth did you write the Springfield chapter?" we asked the man when we recovered our amazement. "Because the Red Cross in Springfield did such a wonderful job for a buddy of mine once."

Sept. 13—Three years ago today U. S. troops were crossing the German border near Treves, and other U. S. forces were recapturing the old Maginot Line. LeHavre, France's second largest port, surrendered to the British by the Germans. The Nazis were being pushed back to their own land.

There is nothing the Red Cross can not be asked to do as evidenced by the following case:

Quite recently there appeared in a nearby Georgia newspaper an advertisement starting off: "Want To Buy A Mule?" Such notices are common in this section of the country, probably nobody but a person in the market for a mule would have given it a second thought had it not been for the fact that the County Home Service, DeKalb County, Red Cross Chapter, was advertising a mule for sale.

This is Home Service. A soldier who recently realigned grew concerned because nobody was left at home to feed or work his mule. He came to this office asking for advice as to how to sell the animal and we set him in communication with the chapter.

There followed a visit to the soldier's home by a chapter worker for a quick appraisal of the critter, and a catchy item appeared in a local newspaper. As usual the Red Cross came through and the soldier's mule was sold.

Sept. 14—Seventeen years ago today Congress passed the Selective Service and Training Act. Realizing the possibility that the European war might spread over the entire globe, Congress was taking precautions to protect our national defense. By October 1940 the machinery was in order by which thousands of Americans would enter the services of the U. S. Army.

These cases are not to be considered light or trivial. They involved light or trivial persons. They are serious problems. Your Red Cross at Fort Benning is always ready to help you with any problem giving you concern. You may be assured that the entire Red Cross staff here will do everything in their power to help you.

Sept. 15—Five years ago today the U. S. Aircraft carrier Wasp was torpedoed in the Guadalcanal Battle. At that time the Pacific ocean was infested with Japanese submarines which were dealing blows in every area. The Americans were beginning to rally and the battle of Guadalcanal was being fought as Tokyo had predicted.

There followed a visit to the soldier's home by a chapter worker for a quick appraisal of the critter, and a catchy item appeared in a local newspaper. As usual the Red Cross came through and the soldier's mule was sold.

Sept. 16—Seventeen years ago today the turning point came in the Battle of Britain. On Sept. 15, 1940, the RAF downed 185 German planes. This gave encouragement to the world as well as the British.

These cases are not to be considered light or trivial. They involved light or trivial persons. They are serious problems. Your Red Cross at Fort Benning is always ready to help you with any problem giving you concern. You may be assured that the entire Red Cross staff here will do everything in their power to help you.

Sept. 17—Four years ago today the Japanese lost one of their important ports in New Guinea. While this island-to-island fighting was going on, U. S. troops were fighting in Italy. Speculation was also rife as to where the second front would be opened in the European continent.

Sept. 18—Three years ago today American radio audiences heard the German bombers tell of a daring campaign in Europe; how airmen were hounded deep into the Holland and surprised the German defenders. They were able to reach their objective without much opposition. The British Second Army had failed in its attempt to form a junction with the airborne troops near Arnhem. Heavy fighting was still ahead as a result.

GI Humor

"The off-spring of a single rat," stated the lecturing biology professor, "may number several hundred."

"Gee, whis," came the startled exclamation from the boy in the front row.

"What would the off-spring of married rats be?"

Instructor: "What is a maneuver?"

Iowa Recruit: "Something you put in the ground to make it rich, sir."

They say that if you don't drink, smoke or run around with women, you'll live longer.

"It's a lie," it only seems longer.

He: "Would it be proper for me to kiss your hand?"

She: "It would be decidedly out of place."

Alcohol: A liquid good for preserving almost everything except secrets.

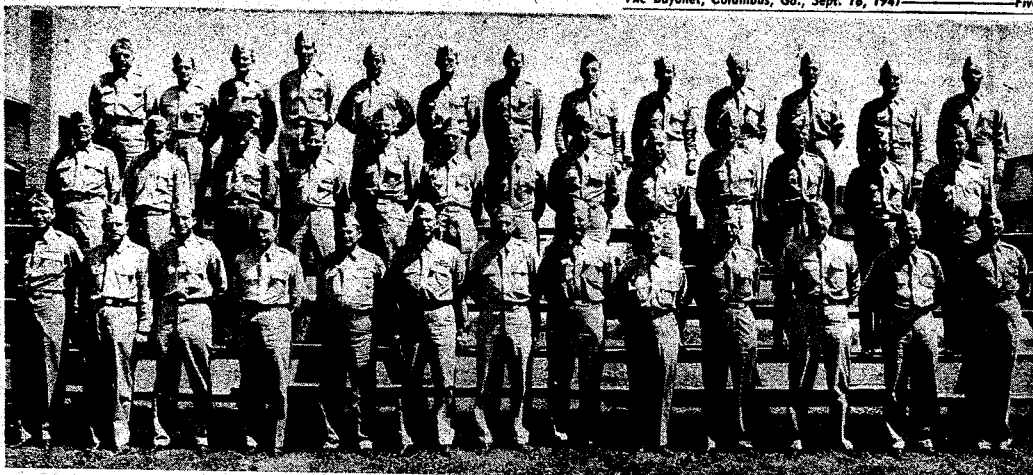

A wolf, anxious to escort a girl home, said: "We'll have a little talk. She fell for his line. As soon as they entered the house, she put her arms around her hands." She said with meaning, "Oh, sure," confessed the wolf, "but I'm only whispering now, 'fool!'"

"Some women strain their ends by not taking enough exercise."

MERTON OF THE MOVIES (comedy) with Red Skelton, Virginia O'Brien, and Gloria Grahame. Against a background depicting the film industry in its hectic early days, Skelton takes his correspondence school diploma in hand and goes forth to prove he is a great dramatic actor. Results: plenty of laughs. Recommended for family.

RED STALLION (horsing around in cinecolor) with Robert Paige, Norseen Nash, and Td Donaldson. Climaxed by a hip-sporting fight between a horse and a bear, this color production concerns the training of a race horse in spite of the difficulties encountered by the horse's owner. Recommended for family.

MOTHER WORE TIGHTS (musical comedy) with Betty Grable and Dan Dailey. As the feminine member of a vaudeville team, Betty Grable has many opportunities to give out with the gongs and dances that made her famous. Dan Dailey, a newcomer to the screen, makes a solid hit as the other half of the team. Lavishly produced in technicolor, this is tops from start to finish. Recommended for family.

EXPOSED (detective mystery) with Adele Mara and Robert Scott. A feminine private eye lends glamour to the detecting business when she tracks down the murderer of his client. Recommended for family.

Lawson Introduces New Recruit Drive

Capt. James E. Sever, base recruiting officer, announced that a new system for increasing enlistments in the Air Force had been put into operation at Lawson field. Any man stationed at Lawson, who feels that there are men in his home town who are possibilities for re-enlistment or enlistment in the Air Force and whose home town comes under the jurisdiction of the Lawson field recruiting office, can be put on a temporary duty status and sent along with a recruiting canvasser to contact these prospective enlistees. Captain Sever also stated that if a man had any success at all that he would be considered for a return trip.

Eisenhowers Honor Events At Farewell Party

Captain and Mrs. John Eisenhower honored Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Evert Saturday evening at the Officers' club when they gave a farewell party for the couple who are leaving as Mr. Evert is going back to law school at Northwestern university in Chicago. During the past season he has been the tennis pro at the Officers' club.

Members of the party enjoyed dinner and dancing on the club patio after being served cocktails at the quarters of Major and Mrs. William D. McDowell. The dinner table was attractively decorated with white daisies and pink roses in crystal baskets.

Guests for the evening were the honorees, Roger McDonough and Miss Margaret Norman, Mr. and Mrs. David James, and Major and Mrs. McDowell.

Fourth Infantry Group Entertained At Buffet Dinner

Col. retired, and Mrs. C. O. MacVeely, of Columbus, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. George L. Mabry were co-hosts at a party Saturday evening at the quarters of Colonel and Mrs. Mabry when they entertained for the officers and their wives of the Fourth Infantry division who are stationed here.

In addition to being a Fourth division get-together event, it also was in celebration of Colonel Mabry's birthday and a colorful cake decorated with pink and green icing marked the anniversary. The table for the buffet dinner was decorated with white tapers.

Guests for the evening were Lt. Col. and Mrs. William T. Linton, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Bouchard, Major and Mrs. F. T. Kent, Jr., Major W. J. Bouton, Capt. and Mrs. E. W. Smith, Capt. W. E. Mill by and Lt. and Mrs. Paul Bouchard.

French General Feted At Dinner

To compliment Lt. Gen. Maurice Matheson of the French army who was a guest on the Post this week, Major General John W. O'Daniel entertained Wednesday evening at a formal dinner in the lounge of the Officers' club.

Other officers attending the event were Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, Col. Lloyd D. Brown, Col. Charles H. Royce, Col. L. A. Diller, Col. Bernard A. Byrne, Col. A. D. Smith, Col. John Blizard, Col. O. G. Wilson, Major George S. Beatty Jr., Major J. E. Dwan, Capt. Carlos Lozano and Capt. Jean Meisel.

son, Christopher, who is two and a half years old. Mrs. Roberts came to the United States in July and will be joined here by her husband in October.

Miss Baggett, Maj. lunghuhn Exchange Vows In Chapel

Beauty and simplicity marked the marriage of Miss Gloria Marie Baggett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Baggett of Columbus, and Major David William Lunghuhn, of Beloit, Wis., and Fort Benning, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon in the Post chapel with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale officiating.

The guests found the chapel beautifully decorated with quantities of chrysanthemums, ferns, doli, and stock, accentuated by tall gladioli and white tapers. Mrs. H. Avertis played the nuptial music and "Mr. Charles Wood, soloist, sang "Always" and "At Dawning."

Major Henry F. Daniels acted as best man and the usher-groomsman were Capt. James C. Griffin and Lt. David H. Presson. The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Olin Baggett, was attractively dressed in an ivory gown designed with a bertha of lace and a full skirt extending into a graceful train. Her veil of illusion was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried an orchid bouquet showered with Stephanotis. A single strand of pearls was her only ornament. Mrs. Thelma Presson, matron of honor and the bride's only attendant, was lovely in a gown of powder blue marquisette and lace fashioned with a high neckline, tight bodice, and bustle skirt. A matching Mary Queen of Scots bonnet and lace mitts completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of pink gladioli.

Following the ceremony, the guests were invited to a reception in the Palm Room of the Officers' club where the bride had a four-tiered cake. Gladioli, stock, doli, and fern adorned the room, and the bride's table, overlaid with a linen cloth, was centered by the cake. Miss Lilly Wilson kept the bride's book.

Mrs. Baggett chose a rose crepe dress and a corsage of white carnations for her daughter's wedding.

For their wedding journey, the bride wore a blue gabardine suit with brown accessories and a corsage of white orchids. The couple left for Wisconsin where they will visit for a month. When they return they will be at home on Norris road in Columbus.

Out-of-town guests present for the ceremony were Miss Bobbie Prim, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prim of West Columbia, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Register and Miss Joane Register, of Dothan, Ala.

Medics Enjoy Dinner At Club

Buffet supper and dancing at the Officers' club was the evening of entertainment Wednesday for the Station Medical department when 75 guests attended the party. Working on the committee for the gala gathering were Mrs. Robert B. Hill, Mrs. H. Gibson, Mrs. W. Hurd, Major L. Estes, Capt. G. Rollins and Miss S. McNeese.

Cocktails were served before dinner and the guests found the four tables for their party arranged with flowers and burning tapers.

Gen., Mrs. O'Daniel Hosts At Affair For Classes 1, 2

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel entertained for the officers and ladies of Advanced Classes No. 1 and 2 of the Infantry school at a delightful reception and dance Friday evening on the patio of the Officers' club.

In the receiving line for the event were General and Mrs. O'Daniel, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Whitfield P. Shepard, Col. and Mrs. John C. Blizard and Col. and Mrs. Bernard A. Byrne. Sgt. Manuel Souza and his orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Surprise Shower For Mrs. Sausser Given Tuesday

A no-host luncheon completed by a dessert bridge and surprise shower was the interesting entertainment Tuesday afternoon given to honor Mrs. A. J. Sausser.

At noon a group of Mrs. Sausser's friends met at the Officers' club for lunch and, later in the afternoon, went to the quarters of Mrs. C. S. Stanley, where they were served dessert and two tables of bridge were in play. Climax of the afternoon was the surprise shower for Mrs. Sausser.

Ladies attending the event were Mrs. Sausser, Mrs. Stanley, Mrs. R. H. Cole, Mrs. H. D. Bullett, Mrs. Walter Wickerbolt, Mrs. S. T. McDowell, Mrs. L. D. Brown, and Mrs. C. R. Eizler.

Georgians Play At NCO Dance On Lawson Field

The NCO club at Lawson field climaxed the week's activity with a dance Saturday night for all members and their guests.

M-Sgt. and Mrs. Ed Frances, assisted, celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary at the dance last night with a private table and a party of nine.

Music for the dance was furnished by the Georgians and the majority of dancing was done in the center ballroom. The Georgians have been engaged to play for the NCO club every Saturday night during the month of September. They will return for next Saturday night's dance.

Last Wednesday the club had its usual game night with a large number of members attending.

Personals

Lt. and Mrs. Hubert Odum and their son Jan are guests on the Post this week at the quarters of Major and Mrs. E. A. Krellick. Mrs. Odum is the former Janice Krellick and was on the Post with her parents while her husband was overseas and before she was married.

The couple are here for the Third Army Baseball tournament and Saturday evening they were at the Officers' club for an informal get-together with a group of old friends.

Major and Mrs. F. N. Hathaway and their children, and Major and Mrs. D. L. Benton and their children are planning to drive to Wakulla Springs, Florida, for the week end.

The Merrills have just come here from Fort Leavenworth and prior to their ten months there, they were at Camp McCoy, Wis. Green Bay, Wis. and they are both Colonel and Mrs. Merrill.

With the Merrills are their four children, Kate, age 18, Freddy, 7, Ann, 5, and Pat who is just seven months old.

During the war Colonel Merrill was in Iceland for 18 months with the 5th Division and also saw service in Europe. During that time Mrs. Merrill was in Green Bay.

Army Daughters Seek Newcomers

All ladies who have recently moved to the Post and are Army daughters are being asked to get in touch with members of the local Army Daughters group.

The Army Daughters will resume activities this month with a get-together party, the date to be announced later.

The newcomers are asked to call Mrs. Daniel P. Buckland at 3454, Mrs. William J. Mullen at 2502, or Mrs. J. V. Thompson at 4508.

Woman's Club To Open Year With October Meet

The Fort Benning Woman's club, formerly designated the Infantry School Woman's club, is making preparations for a useful and enjoyable season during 1947-48. It was announced today by Mrs. Robert B. Hill, president of the organization.

The new name of the group is an indication of the wider scope, and membership is expected to include ladies of families of officers of the armed services, active or retired, as well as female commissioned personnel at Fort Benning. In addition, as before, the ladies of Columbus will be represented.

The object of the club can best be expressed in this excerpt from the minutes of a meeting, Mrs. Hill said, "This object of this association shall be to study and propagate those subjects, agencies, and influences which tend to develop us as individuals, render us more valuable as members of our community and more competent as citizens to discharge our obligations to our country."

The club has succeeded in the past in fulfilling its high aims, and this year expects to accomplish even more, Mrs. Hill pointed out.

Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, honorary president, is active in promoting the success of the club. Mrs. Hill, president, and her assisting officers have spent a busy summer starting the constitution of the club and planning

Quarters Scene Of Buffet Supper, Dessert At Club

Col. and Mrs. William O. Blandford were hosts at a colorful party Wednesday evening when they entertained the officers and ladies of the Leadership committee of the Infantry School.

The guests were served a delightful buffet supper at the quarters of Colonel and Mrs. Blandford where the hostess decorated the buffet side table with a floral centerpiece in silver and a yellow theme was carried out in yellow lapers in silver candelabra. The guests were seated at several tables.

After the buffet the party went to the Officers' club where they were served dessert and enjoyed dancing the rest of the evening.

The Woman's club will have from three to five regular meetings and a large number of special club meetings. It will be possible for every lady to find her special interest in some phase of the activities of the club, according to present plans.

The music, book review, and dramatic sections have always been popular with the ladies at Fort Benning and bridge classes, both beginners and advanced, attract many other members. Last year French and Spanish classes were held and the 1947-48 program may include a course in German.

The Woman's club has sponsored the Post Nursery school as well as a teen-age club, Brat's barracks.

Majors Entertain Officers, Ladies Of Committee

Major P. B. Yeager and Major H. Peabody were hosts Wednesday evening at the Officers' club when they entertained for the ladies and officers of the Defense Committee of the Infantry School.

The guests were seated at a long table centered with a floral arrangement and before the buffet supper cocktails were served. Later in the evening the guests enjoyed dancing.

Among the guests were Col. E. F. Eatenbrook, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lester Ward, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lee Wallace, Lt. Col. Ellis Williamson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles Ferris, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Merrill, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Herbert Eitt, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Merrill, Lt. Tea To Follow P-TA Meeting

All parents and others interested in the Parent-Teacher Association on the Post are invited to the meeting this afternoon at 3 p. m. in the auditorium of the Post Children's school. It has been announced by Mrs. Albert C. Haley, president.

This will be the first meeting of the P-TA for the 1947-48 school year and after the regular meeting tea will be served and parents will have an opportunity to meet the teachers of the Post school.

Anniversary Noted By Party

In celebration of the seventh wedding anniversary of Major and Mrs. D. L. Benton, several couples got together Saturday evening for a no-host dinner party at the Officers' club.

The guests are going to the club for the formal dinner and dancing, the group was served cocktails at the quarters of Major and Mrs. Benton.

Others with the party were Major and Mrs. E. H. Harlan and Major and Mrs. Gordon Owens.

Sections acquiring new officers last week included classification, individual services and air installation. The new men in classification are:

Capt. Harold W. Barrett, a former master sergeant who reclaimed his bars last month, Lt. Donald Wagner, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Lt. Robert H. Jones, Iowa City, Iowa, who were recalled to active duty from civilian life.

Capt. Harry E. Grover, air installation officer, is still in the hospital, but is expected to be out soon. His new officers are Lts. Chester Economics and Horace W. Dyer, both of Ft. Benning.

Maj. James Hayden's two assistants in individual services are Lt. Clara L. Hillecock, and Capt. William R. Wate. Also working with the major on a temporary status are Lts. William C. Shoemaker and Fred Sicilio.

Pfc. Thomas O. Dill has been placed in charge of Base reproduction at the Post. He is from Nebraska, and recently returned to the field from Camp Lee, Va., where he took an eight-week office machinery repair course. S-Sgt. Russell L. Smith, classification sergeant, was in the field for the past week. M-Sgt. James Vance, personnel sergeant major, is visiting in his home town, Knoxville, Tenn., for a few days this week. After several days of golf at Maxwell Field, Ala., where he represented the field in the AAF Golf Tourney several days ago, he is now flowing back at his job at headquarters. He played in the tourney's championship flight and finished with a 148 score, two strokes over par.

S-Sgt. John Lane, Personal Affairs Consultant, returned from a new furlough last week. His new office is located in the Chapel. The chapel, by the way, is revising its schedule of services and will publish the new program next week, according to Chaplain Bryant. Lt. William Ray has been named to succeed Lt. Ellis, as recorder for the Cadet Examining board.

Picnic To Open Girl Scout Work Of New Season

A picnic Friday afternoon at 5 p. m. at the Girl Scout cabin will cap the activities of the "Girl Scouts on the Post" season. It was announced this week after the girls gathered Monday and Tuesday at the Children's school. All former Girl Scouts and new members have been invited to the outing.

Mrs. Harry H. Walker is the new commissioner of Girl Scouts for the coming season and under her direction the girls are looking forward to an active and enjoyable year.

Mrs. George T. Colvin is secretary and Mrs. J. V. Thompson is treasurer.

Some of the leaders from last year will continue their work with the girls. Several new newcomers have volunteered their services. Most of these ladies have had extensive experience in Girl Scout activities and are enthusiastic about this year's program.

Girls from 10 to 18 are invited to join the Scout program, while girls from 8 to 10 years of age may be interested in the Brownies. Girls or parents who wish further information may call Mrs. A. C. Brill at extension 2644.

and Mrs. R. E. Tibbets, Col. and Mrs. G. C. Collier, Col. and Mrs. B. A. Byrne, Lt. Col. and Mrs. M. Moore, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ben Harrell.

Mrs. H. M. Grizzard was in charge of arrangements for the decorations and music was furnished by the 72nd Army band.

Mrs. Royce recently returned from Japan with Colonel Royce. She joined her husband here after staying in Washington, D. C., for a while to visit her parents, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Walter L. Reed, and other friends there.

First Division Party Gala Affair At Lake House

Members and their ladies of the Fort Benning branch Society of the First Division, gathered for a gala evening of entertainment recently when they held a party at Cunningham's Lake House near Buena Vista road with 35 guests present.

The house was decorated with red, white and blue crepe paper streamers centered on an enlarged insignia of the First U. S. Infantry division.

During the evening guests enjoyed an elaborate barbecue of pork ribs and a variety of appetizers.

Several dancing games were played. Climax of the entertainment was a combat team bottle cap race in which six members of the 16th, 26th, and 18th Combat teams of the First division participated. The members reviewed old acquaintances and engaged in singing numbers made famous by the division.

Prior to leaving the party members made plans for a branch meeting and smoker to be held at the Horseshow bowl September 26. Plans were also outlined for a dinner dance November 6.

SILVER TON

Fan Names Irish Nation's Top Team

BY ANDREW H. PLANEY
Bayonet Staff Writer

It's here! What is expected to be the greatest season in the 75-year history of football has already arrived.

Everyman an All-American and every team a champion. If pre-season dope on the collegiate gridiron scene is any criterion of things to come we are going to have more All-Americans and more national and sectional champions than we can account for.

Yes, they have even gone so far as to pick the coach of the year. You can't blame them. Football is a fascinating game and once the bug bites you, you are apt to enthrall all over the place. No one is immune—no one, that is!

There is but one ultimate criterion of certainty—namely performance on the gridiron under playing conditions. No matter what games are won on the field and not on paper we know, but why take all the fuss away. Why all like to get in our few words before the season begins. Most of the big games of the year are already sell-outs. There is no doubt about it, some real games are lined up throughout the collegiate world for the coming season.

More Coming Up

Such shining stars as Davis, Blanchard, Tucker, Yost and Case are gone, but do not despair until you take a look at what is coming. St. Mary's (Notre Dame), Herman Wedemeyer, (St. Mary's), Bill Gompers and Jim Melle (Notre Dame), Ribs Baysinger (Navy), Gene Russies and Lou Kusserow (Columbia), The Levi Jackson (Yale), Harry Gilchrist (Alabama), Charlie Justice (North Carolina), Shorty McWilliams (Mississippi State), and Travis Edwall (Auburn) and Bob Chappuis (Michigan). Several of these All-Americans are expected to repeat, along with the other potential All-Americans. And who knows by November what may turn up? Pre-season stars may dim and unknowns enter the picture.

In a glance at the powerhouses of the nation it looks like Notre Dame will remain as mythical champion, followed closely by Michigan, Penn., North Carolina and Illinois.

The Mid-West will again dominate the powerhouses with the Big-Nine ever powerful, Michigan again showing the way.

A bushellful of All-American prospects should place Navy, Rice, LSU, Georgia, and Yale among the first ten teams of the country. In what order they finish depends on a lot of "ifs." An upset victory by a lesser eleven may throw any one of the above mentioned out of the selected circle.

Rush Training

A good many of the squads have had to rush their training schedules in preparation for early season tangles. The Georgia-North Carolina tussle early this year may have a great bearing on a possible bowl bid later on.

The Georgia Tech-Tennessee clash can go long way toward deciding national status. The Navy-Columbia, Rice-LSU, and the UCLA-Northwestern games early in the

Halstead Named Backfield Coach

L. Daniel P. Halstead, Academic section of the Infantry School, has been named to assist Capt. Butch Kendrick and Capt. Joe Sheppard in the coaching of the 1947 Doughboy grid team. Halstead will be working with the backfield this year.

Born in Rye, New York, Halstead moved to California with his family at an early age, receiving his high school and college education in the West. After graduating from Castlemont High school in 1930, Halstead entered college in San Francisco where he majored in physical education.

Halstead entered the Army in 1942, and graduated from Officers Candidate School here March 9, 1943.

The new backfield coach has been active in athletics for a number of years. He played football, basketball, and softball from the time he began high school. He played football at San Francisco State college, and in one game completed seven consecutive forward passes with a perfect record. He played with a D class basketball on the coast that went on to the national championship. From 1932 to 1939, Halstead played softball at Oakland, Calif., and his team became champions three straight years.

Halstead was in on the invasion of Normandy, and acted as platoon leader early in that campaign, and was later assigned as company executive. He holds the ribbon at San Francisco, the TVO Ribbon, and American Theater.

Bullets Feted At Banquet

Closing the door on the current diamond season with the impressive record of 49 wins and 21 losses, the 25th C. T. Bullets were feted at a banquet and dance last Friday night in the 25th Infantry NCO club. Highlighting the affair was the presentation of gold baseballs to the team members, coaches, and managers by Col. L. A. Diller, regimental commander, and Lt. Col. James E. Griffin, holder of the team batting average.

The function was arranged and presented under the sponsorship of the regimental athletic and recreation office, and during a brief, informal program which was featured by the presentation of the awards, Col. Diller, Lt. Col. James E. Tarrant, and Capt. Carl H. Griffin lauded the team for its fine display of sportsmanship and team work. During the program, Lt. William H. Pender, team coach, presided over a series of ceremonies. Music for dancing was furnished by the regimental dance orchestra.

Bullet Grid Team To Play Collegians Saturday Afternoon

Upset 22-0 by a powerful Tuskegee Institute eleven which had been given pre-game rating of at least seven touchdowns over them, the 25th C. T. Bullets squad overcame this week over last Saturday's misadventure at Thursday morning for a Saturday session with Grambling college at Grambling, La.

The Sand Hill squad, possessing few offensive powers, held the vaunted Tuskegee team to a standstill on power plays.

Coach Jones has uncovered several new formations both in line and backfield for use against the Gramblingites. The Bullets face these college football champions, next Saturday week before returning to Fort Benning for their final home game of the season with the Pensacola Naval Base griditers.

Mighty Doughs Beat 23 Foes

Captain Herbert Bench and his doughy Doughboys brought their highly successful baseball season to a close Friday with a 5-2 decision over the Phenix City Panthers.

Opening the season with a 16-8 trouncing of Silvertown Mills, the Doughboys reeled loudly during the summer months winning 23 of their 28 games. The team was defeated decisively only by the Maxwell field flyers, but were forced to play those ball games when Maxwell was strengthened by players foreign to GI ball games.

Parris Island edged the Doughs once in the four times the two trips, finishing up with an even close but by a slim 4-3 margin, 400.

Fort Bragg All-Stars copped a win over the Benchmen by the same score, but were shellecked in the second meeting 8-5. At the beginning of the season, Thomas Mills were more or less given Watts has been most effective against all batters he has met and has struck out more than 80 that they were getting a rough deal.

Once at Maxwell field were the Doughs ever outlit, and though they lost a pair of tilts there, they topped Maxwell in every respect and it was the one thing that counts—the final score.

Impressive Record

Taking the count of the entire season, it will be found that the Doughs scored more than 100 more runs than their opponents, and although some of the Doughs were not of the same standard as the Doughboys, they is an impressive record. In no game were the Doughs ever shut out and no game were they ever limited to less than five hits.

Since the beginning of the season back in July, the Benchmen has been hitting the ball exceptionally hard, and when the final tally was made, the team average was .330. The Doughs led the regulars have swelled their averages above a .300 pace, while George Dickson and Ken Watts, pitcher and ace hurler respectively, have chalked up a final mark above .400.

Dickson has been one of the steadiest hitters on the club, and has been hitless in only two tilts all year. Although Watts has not been at the plate as many times as Dickson, his hitting, especially in the pinches, has pulled the team out of many a hot spot.

Dickson, capped the batting laurels for the season with his blistering .410 and is followed closely by Watts with .405. Other swatsmen who found above par averages are Blundy Burnett at .399; Lefty Lehner, .400; Woodie magnificent spirit they have shown for their team and their coach. Although there has been some mis-feeling on a few occasions, the squads have worked well together and have demonstrated their will to win when the odds were certainly against them.

Doughs Improve

Perhaps the greatest improvement at the plate this year came from Bill Brooks, Chick Shiver, and Lefty Lehner. As the time when Brooks began playing regularly, he was topping the ball at an unimpressive .240, but in the four weeks he held down the left field slot, he boosted that average by some 100 points. A similar situation was noticed with Shiver. Chick had been confined to the bench much of the season, but in his hand, but once he was able to place in the starting line-up, his mark came from a sub .200 past the .300 mark. Lefty Lehner went into slump some weeks ago, but bounced back into the hit column half-way through the road

Airborne Group Holds Golf Meet

"Across the green to victory" was the shout of 43 Airborne officers as they took to the Officers' club course Sept. 7 for the opening qualifiers in the Airborne golf tourney which is scheduled to end October 25 when the two top linksmen match their shots for championship honors.

All present and former officers who have won their parachute wings were invited to take part in competition, while Frank Goss, professional at the club, was in charge of all arrangements. Since many of the wingmen are on duty in the Academic section of the Infantry School, the tournament will be played over a period of weeks in order that all entries will be able to complete their matches.

Match play begins Wednesday, Sept. 17, when Capt. Nelson L. Linstrand meets Lt. Col. "Moe" Meyers in the first round of the championship flight. In addition to the championship flight there will be four other flights with trophies awarded to the winner and runner-up in each of the respective flights.

The qualifying round was only 18 holes, with Capt. Nelson L. Linstrand, pre-tourney favorite, copping the medalist honors with his five over par 77.

Capt. Herbert Bench, Doughboy baseball coach, posted a 78 to tie for second place honors with Lt. Col. Shields Warren.

Capt. (Chaplain) Charles B. Whitman, who was considered the dark horse of the tournament, came through with an 80 to reap a third place position in the qualifying round. His golf was much the same as that of Lt. Joe Worthington, who came in both the Airborne Army tournament, and the National Air Forces tourney, who had to come from behind time and again to hold his position in the championship flight.

Eight men have been selected for play in the championship flight, with the match between Capt. Linstrand and Col. Meyers leading the field.

English joke:

"I say, old bean, do you know the invention that has been most beneficial to the human race?"

"No, old fellow, what is it?"

"The wheelbarrow. It taught them to walk on their hind legs."

Field Artillery Battalion; Maj. Ernest W. Chapman, recently assigned to the Command and General Staff school, and Lt. Martin B. Roller, School Troops athletic and recreation officer.

Doughboys Drop Tourney Opener

Some 2,000 anxious spectators stayed until the final pitch Tuesday night to see whether or not the Doughs could turn defeat into victory, but a ninth inning rally staged by the Benchemen with two away fell short by one run, as the North Carolinians downed the home team, 4-3, to take an undisputable lead in the Third Army tournament.

In Tuesday afternoon's tilt between Bragg and Fort McPherson, Fort Bragg calmly snuffed the Atlantans 9-0 to gain their right to meet the Doughboys in the second game of the tourney. As a result of Tuesday night's win by Bragg, the North Carolinians emerged from the day as the only undefeated team in the tournament.

Going into the final stanza of the ball game, the Bragg soldier nine found themselves on the wrong end of a 4-0 count, and winner Lindquist felt quite safe in achieving a shut-out. However, the never-say-die Doughs bounced back with a barrage of hits that stirred throughout the post.

Gallagher pop-flied to center

Blondy Burnett sent a drive through the infield, sending Sisco home with the third run. Gerhart was the next batter, and with a safety ball game could have been all tied up, as Burnett stood restlessly on second base with the tying run. But Lefty Lindquist retained his pre-ninth inning mastery, and retired Gerhart on strikes.

Bragg took an early lead in the second frame when they tallied a lone run after Earp had singled, coming all the way to pay dirt on a pair of Dough miscues. A fourth-inning flurry in the third netted the North Carolinians two more markers, while the final and winning run came in the ninth when Keeney dashed home on Allbritton's double.

Time and again, Ken Watts, who pitched a superb game, pulled himself out of the hole, trying vainly to save the ball game. In the eighth, the bases were loaded three different times, but Watts came through the gauntlet without allowing a single run to come in. Watts also accounted for eleven strike-outs, while his mound opponent retired nine Doughby swatmen by a like route.

Until the ninth Lindquist scattered five Dough hits, and while Dough runners were in scoring position four different times, the final punch was lacking.

Bragg tagged Watts for 12 bingles, but excellent field plays saved many threats staged by Bragg.

No Grid Team For Lawson

Lt. Clement Moloney, athletic officer at Lawson field, announced this week that the fliers have been unable to form a base football team because of the shortage of funds and players.

Since the end of August, Squadrons A and F have been turning out for daily practices in the hope of forming their separate ball clubs, which they had planned to have in shape by the end of September. However, these practices have been abandoned since a sufficient number of players were not available. In fact, there is such a acute shortage of gridlers at Lawson field that the command will not be able to garner up enough power to put a Lawson field team on the field.

Loop prospects at the field look much better, however, for at the first practice, which was held last Monday night, it was reported that a considerable number of men with ability were out for the initial workout. Lawson field plans to be in tip-top shape when the inter-post season begins Oct. 1.

Doughs Drop Panther Nine, Ending Season

Chalking up their 23rd victory of the year, the rampant Doughboys downed the Phenix City Panthers at Gowdy field Friday night, 5-1, behind the two-hit pitching of Lefty Leher.

Although Brounman Hicks, Panther loser, allowed but six hits, three of them were circuit blasts with Leher. Bill Brooks and George Dickson, each taking his turn at slapping the ball across the fence.

George Dickson led off in the initial inning with a single that started a Benchmen barrage netting the Doughs three runs and giving them a lead that was never threatened. With Dickson at first, Bob Kinard grounded out, advancing Dickson to second. Woodie Burt, consistent hard hitting right fielder, belted a triple that sent Dickson home with the first run. Blonny Burnett grounded out, with Burt still at third, but with two away.

Bill Brooks, who has been swelling his average at the plate for the past few weeks, found the dream ball, and sent the hapless spheroid to the other side of the right field wall for a home run. When the Doughs were finally retired, the count stood 3-0 against the Panthers.

A single Panther tally came in the fourth frame on a pair of Benning errors, and was an unearned run against Leher. After Cullpepper had made first on an infield miscue, advancing to second on a walk, Walford sent a sizzling drive through shortstop scoring Cullpepper.

But in the fourth, the Benchmen again got uncontrollable, tallying two more runs as Dickson and Leher, connected for circuit trips. The homers came in succession with Leher tagging performance duplicated by the next batter.

Leher worked well on the mound in the six innings he worked, striking out nine Panther batters, and allowing only two men to pass third.

George Dickson and Woodie Burt led the Doughboy swatmen with both collecting double hits in their three trips to the plate. After six innings the game was called.

Lawson Golf Scores To Be Compiled Soon

Scores and handicaps of Lawson field golfers are being collected by the Base athletic office and will be posted soon on the headquarters bulletin board for the convenience of individuals in selecting partners, according to the athletic officer.

The information may be used later in the event a handicap match should be planned, he added.

Sport Quiz

(APPS)—1. The pre-season starting backfield for the Chicago Rockets of the All American Conference included Bill Daley, Elroy Hirsch and Bob Hoernschemeyer, each of whom played for two major universities. Name of the schools.

2. Which one of the following never played first base for the Boston Red Sox: Lou Finney, Tony Lupien, Elsie Fletcher, Jimmy Fox?

3. Spec Sanders, New York Yankee football ace, received little publicity while playing for Texas because of the fame of two other Longhorn backs. Name the two other 1940 and 41 Texas aces.

4. From the era of John L. Sullivan to the Joe Louis days, more heavyweight champions' given names began with the letter "J" than did not. How many can you name?

ANSWERS

- Daley, Minnesota and Michigan; Hirsch, Wisconsin and Michigan; Hoernschemeyer, Indiana and Navy.
- Fletcher.
- Cowboy Jack Crain and Pistol Pete Layden. Both gained All-American mention, Crain as a broken field runner and Layden as a passer and punger.
- Joe Louis, Jim Braddock, Jack Sharkey, Jack Dempsey, Jess Willard, Jack Johnson, Jim Jeffries, Jim Corbett and John L. Sullivan. And now you know what to name your children.

Nolan Succeeds Eliot As Lawson Adjutant

Capt. Alton Nolan, Jr., has been appointed Lawson field adjutant, Col. Gilbert T. Collar, base commander announced today. He succeeds Capt. H. D. Eliot who has left the base for temporary duty at Turner field, Ga.

This assignment is an added job as he is also budget and fiscal officer at the base.

Capt. Nolan was recalled to active duty last month with the rank of first lieutenant in the Regular Army. He was separated from service in 1945 after having spent more than three years in the Army.

KINEHAN PROMOTED

S-Sgt. Vincent W. Kinehan, Company A, Infantry School detachment, has been promoted to the rank of technical sergeant, military authorities announced today. Other Company A promotions this week include Cpl. Ray A. Switz to sergeant, Cpl. Woodrow W. Simms to sergeant, and Pfc. Leo L. Ventimiglia to corporal.

Midget Auto Racing Program Changed To Saturday Night

The midget auto races at Idle Hour park will be scheduled on Saturday for the remainder of the 1947 season, promoter Alex P. Brewer has announced. The change from the regular Friday night date was made because of conflicts with high school football engagements.

The full seven-event program will be continued, and the first races on the new schedule will begin next Saturday, with trials starting at 7:30 p. m. and the first heat set for 8:30 p. m. Last Friday's five-mile final was won by Jimmie Reed, who narrowed the points - standing margin between himself and the Georgia-Alabama league leader, Bob Johnson.

Reed apparently inspired by the sleek new paint job on racer No. 30, bore down on Johnson from the start of the feature, and the fans saw some six laps of hard, race driving as Reed tried to pass Johnson on the outside or against the rail. The duel ended abruptly when No. 77, Johnson's car, de-veloped engine trouble and dropped from the race.

A three-car smash-up added to the excitement in the final feature. Bank Blalock hit Suiges' racer, and Joe Savage crashed the rear of Blalock's car, knocking the three racers into a pin-wheel position. No one was injured, but all three cars were out for the rest of the race.

Blalock won the Australian pursuit and the first heat, Reed, having run third in the first heat, second in the second, and falling in the pursuit, won the consolation margin between himself and the second driver in track history to win the consolation and the final feature on the same evening. The first driver to perform the feat was Leonard Curry, who won the 30-lap, championship final trophy the fans saw some six laps of hard, race driving as Reed tried to pass Johnson on the outside or against the rail. The duel ended abruptly when No. 77, Johnson's car, de-veloped engine trouble and dropped from the race.

By RALEIGH GREENE
 Congratulations to Captain Herbert Bench and his Doughboys at the termination of their exceptionally successful baseball season. Phenix City brought their Panthers to Cowdy field Friday night to help the Benchmen add one more to their impressive record. With the 5-2 decision that the Doughs scored over the Panthers, the season record was set at 23 wins in the 28 games the Doughs played this year.

Coming through their rugged schedule with the team batting a blistering .350, the Doughboy nine was downed by only five clubs, and only at Maxwell field did the Benchmen find themselves more or less handicapped. Harris Island managed to take a one run decision from the Doughs, but the Marines were decisively defeated by the Benchings on three other occasions.

At Kessler field, it was ground force day as the hapless flyers were able to garner little power to stem the Dough onslaught that was staged under a sweltering Gerhart for a heart-breaking 4-3 win, but the Doughs came back the following afternoon to set the Stars afire with an 8-3 romp, that saw Ken Watts pitch one of his finest games.

Fort Bragg, in the form of their All-Stars, were able to tag Dick Gerhart for a heart-breaking 4-3 win, but the Doughs came back the following afternoon to set the Stars afire with an 8-3 romp, that saw Ken Watts pitch one of his finest games.

Captain Bench, who has worked faithfully and untiringly in his role as coach and manager, is to be especially commended on the splendid job he has done this year. His attitude toward his team has been an inspiring feature to all the players, and that same attitude has done much to bolster the team spirit when the club was up against the ropes. A coach's job is many times that of a thankless one, for the coach is denied the glory of field play, and must devote himself to the task of keeping his team at winning peak level. The previous statement epitomizes the efforts of Captain Bench.

But it is on the field that ball games are won and lost, and it is the team and the individual players that go to make up defeat or victory. And the Fort Benning Doughboys can boast, without reserve, of their ability to put a winning ball club on the field. The playing of Blondy Burnett and Bob Kinard in the infield has been spectacular in every game, with their error average being a bare minimum. Both men have been with the Doughs, and have been playing baseball for many a moon and have probably been two of the most dependable players that Benning has had this year. Blondy finished the season with a .391 average, taking a third spot in the batting laurel order.

In the out-field, the team has been strong, for with such men as Bill Brooks in left, George Dickson in center, and Woodie Burt in right, any opponent had to fight hard to get a ball through any one of the three above mentioned men. George Dickson has perhaps been the most showy of the three, for his first little legs travel fast and have afforded Dickson many opportunities to make impressive catches. In a game with the Dixie Mills from LaGrange, Dickson literally stole a hit from one of their players by dashing back against the fence to pull one out of the sky when he was practically standing on his head.

Chick Shiver and Boney Bonair have shown tremendous improvement during the road trip and have been playing excellent ball since that time. Shiver is probably the smartest catcher on the team, and knows how to work a batter well. His hitting at the beginning of the year was far below his average, for Shiver has always been one of the finest hitters here at Benning. However, late in August, the clever backstopper found his range and began hitting the ball all over the park and finished up with a .307 average. Bonair, too, has improved his feeling considerably and has been doing an admirable job at shortstop since the Fort Bragg game.

When you read this, the Doughs will be on their way to the Third Army crown. The tourney will continue through the 21st of this month, and if you want to see some good baseball, come out to Cowdy field. Be sure that you will experience no disappointments.

In nine more days, Butch Kendrick, and his hardened gridders will take the field against the Cherry Point Marines in the first game of the 1947 season. The All-Services eleven of last year have worked hard for the past six weeks, conditioning themselves for their approach to the schedule. Should the team continue to show the improvement they have of late, there is little reason why the Doughboys of 1947 cannot repeat last year's performance.

Bob Seibert, the only hold-over from last season's "greats" has been sparking the Dough backfield with his fleet running, distance kicking, and power-house blocking. Bob will play his last football for Fort Benning this year since his discharge comes in a few months. He will return to Auburn.

At the ends, Harold Lutz, and Don Scovil, have exhibited great ability, and Kendrick has much hope in the possibilities of these two boys. Lutz is terrific on a defense, managing to break up all interference before a play ever gets by the line of scrimmage. Scovil is the best pass receiver Kendrick has, and during recent "game condition" scrimmages, the lanky Scovil has pulled passes out of the blue that would surprise even the great Tom Hutson, former All-American at Alabama.

At the tackle slots, Charlie James, and Frank Tatum, have been promising, and will be seeing plenty of action this year. It is at the tackles that Kendrick is most short-handed, and the few good men he has at those positions will have to carry an overload through the season.

With almost 400 pounds between them, Jack Seabold and Bob Ward have been filling up the guard holes. The Doughs will be strongest at the guards this season, and will therefore be quite impregnable down the middle.

Backing up the line and over the ball will be Art Tallant and Frank Turnmeila who have both been playing fine football during pre-season practices.

Eddie Roberts, hard running Dough back, will be alternating with Seibert at the fullback position as well as lending his efforts at the halfback slot. Roberts is fast and shifty, and has proved exceptional in picking his holes. Bob Scallorn, Hal Fordy, and Cassino Cutri have been filling up the backfield deficiency, with Cutri showing up more and more as a promising set back.

It is always difficult to appraise a team, before, that is, when a club comes in contact with an opponent, but this year's Doughboy squad should have a fine season.

A PIPE FOR ANY MOOD—M-Sgt. Eugene Crawford, 76th Engineer Combat Battalion, exhibits parts of his collection of pipes. Numbered among the group are pipes from a dozen different countries.

'MISSOURI MEERSCHAUM'

Corn Cob Provides Sweetest Smoke, Pipe Collector Says

The smoothest, sweetest smoke to be had from any pipe can be inhaled through the good old American corn-cob pipe.

That's the word for M-Sgt. Eugene Crawford, sergeant major of the 76th Combat Engineer battalion, who collects pipes as a hobby. Sgt. Crawford ought to know, for he has over 700 pipes of all varieties and styles in his collection.

Among his array of burners is the giant Tyrolene model, acquired from the Tyrol district of Austria. The huge blast-furnace size of the pipe reflects the strong lungs and husky voices of the people in that area, according to Sgt. Crawford. Purely a collector's item, the pipe is delicately carved with intricate decorations.

Also included in his collection is a graceful long-stemmed Church Warde bought in Chilternham, England, and several Chesterfields ranging in size from two inches up. Sgt. Crawford also boasts the English calabash, the Sherlock Holmes type. With a trumpet-shaped bowl, two inches across made from calabash gourd and lined with fish, this one is not recommended for Army pockets.

In his German collection is the large Dutch pipe with covered bowl from a concentration camp near Kearns, Germany. Another of the same type was acquired near Reims and still another far more rare pipe is the massive Meerschaum, found in Saarbrücken, Germany.

The most enjoyable of his collector's items to smoke is the Scottish Compal, contends the sergeant. But Crawford, who hails from Olive Hill, Ky., still maintains that for a good old-fashioned smoke, it's the "Missouri meerschaum," or the "corn-cob."

pany promotions included Cpl. Clifford Thoden, Jr., to the grade of sergeant and Pfc. Lindsey Fant and Pvt. Victor R. Suchar to the grade of corporal.

T-4 James Northeratt was promoted to the grade of staff sergeant and Pfc. Leo L. McCombe to technician fifth grade. Both men are members of Company C.

The 12th Photo Tech unit from Greenville Army Air base, Greenville, S. C., recently moved to Lawson field to be on hand to process and develop all film connected with Operation Combine, base officials have announced.

The photo unit will also work with the Lawson field public information office, officials said.

Capt. B. H. Jones commands the 42-man unit and laboratory officer is Lt. D. N. Hurley.

Primary purpose of the unit is to carry out mass production for Operation Combine shows, according to Lt. Hurley. They will do chart work, reproduce newspaper articles, and many more important photographic jobs connected with the air operation, he said.

During each class, serial photographs will be taken of all spectators and the film turned over to the photo unit to be processed. Before that particular class is completed each student will be given a personal photograph. This work is done in a matter of minutes and demonstrates the fast procedure by which each man has been taught to carry out his assignment, Lt. Hurley said.

'Guard' Troops Now Enrolled In Food School

The Food Service school here, along with five other Army Area Food Service schools, is currently conducting courses for officers and enlisted men of the National Guard.

Enlisted men's courses consist of mess steward, four weeks; food service technician, four weeks; cooks, 12 weeks; pastry baking, four weeks; bakers, eight weeks; and meat cutters, eight weeks. Officers' courses consist of food service supervisor, four weeks and mess management, four weeks.

Others Requested
Three National Guardsmen are now enrolled in the school here with more expected to attend from time to time, officials said. Doyle C. Efinger and Herbert J. Mayo, both from Panama City, Fla., and members of the Florida National Guard, and Walter F. George, Fuscumbia, Ala., member of the Alabama National Guard, are taking the three-month cooks' course. They are now in their seventh week, holding the rank of sergeant.

Capt. John Eisenhower, honor graduate in last month's mess management course, also was honor student in the Food Supervision course from which 12 students graduated Monday.

Honor Grad

MPs Complete Plans For 6th Birthday Celebration Here

Plans have been completed for the Military Police detachment's barbecue slated at Victory lodge Sept. 25-26 in celebration of the sixth anniversary of the Military Police corps.

The affair is scheduled for two days in order to give all personnel of the detachment an opportunity to attend. Section No. 1 will have their barbecue Sept. 25-26 at Victory lodge, while Section No. 2 will gather at Special units' rest camp Sept. 25.

Activities will get under way at 4 p. m. both days and conclude at midnight. An orchestra composed of personnel from section No. 1 will play for dancing. Plans are still afoot for a dance show.

S-Sgt. John Riley has been chosen chairman for section No. 1, while M-Sgt. Ernest Trotman and S-Sgt. Freddie Tyson will handle the arrangements for section No. 2. Transportation will be furnished from the detachment to Victory lodge and the rest camp.

Fla., was high among 12 graduates in the mess sergeant's courses. Honor student among 11 graduates in the pastry course was S-Sgt. George R. Mixon, 516th Ordnance company.

Pfc. Herman W. Pluck, recent re-enlistee, has been assigned to the instructors' training course. After completion of his course here he will go to the Camp Lee, Va., Food Service school for a four-week course in advanced instruction. He will return to Fort Benning as an instructor.

Sabatini To Attend Army Food School

Capt. Eugene J. Sabatini, Food Service supervisor at Lawson field, will leave the base this week to attend a nine-month course at the Advance Food Service school, Camp Lee, Va., base officials reported.

The captain reported to Lawson field in May 1946. His original base assignment was commanding officer of Squadron A, and he later commanded Squadron F. He entered service in October 1941 and graduated from Officer Candidate School at Camp Lee in 1943. He served with the Eighth and Ninth Air Forces in the ETO during the war.

Capt. Sabatini calls Bristol, Penna., home and is a graduate of the high school in that city.

Final OC Class Graduation Set For November

In eight more weeks the Infantry School, which turns out thousands of officers during the war, will be devoid of officer candidates.

The graduation of AOC No. 9 last week leaves only one class, AOC No. 12, which is scheduled to graduate the first part of November. Comprised of 57 candidates, class No. 12 has moved to its new location on the Main Post in the new Student Training Regiment area near Block 23.

The last remaining class has just completed the second phase of training, which included every weapon used by the infantry. The third and last phase of training will deal with infantry tactics and airborne operations.

All future Army Officer Candidate classes will be conducted at Fort Riley, Kans.

STR Unit Moves To New Location

The Student Training Regiment's information and education office is now located in Building 1204, directly in front of regimental headquarters.

The new location puts the services of the regimental information and education office practically "at the back door" of all troops of the regiment with the exception of the airborne battalion which is served by its own unit, officials said.

Student Training Regiment troops are urged to make maximum use of the office. A E authorities announced. They pointed out that their office is equipped to give troops information and advice on USAFI and university extension courses and the Infantry Center's vocational night school. In addition to information on educational and career opportunities for those planning to return to civilian status.

Darkroom Developments

Requests have been made to this department by a number of amateur photographers for specific technical information. In view of the catholicity of the subject, we feel it would be unfair to the beginner to publish a technical pamphlet with dye-coupler developers and dices of confusion when all he wants to know is "Why but don't I press on my Brownie to get a good picture?"

In fairness to those who have tried but to no contact with photographic techniques, this column will carry a simple technical progression in the fundamentals of photography each week.

The word photography comes from the Greek, Photos, meaning light, and Grapho, to write. So every time you push the button on your Brownie you write with light. This is commonly conceived to be a modern development, the subject has an ancient and honorable past. Three hundred and fifty years before the birth of Christ, Aristotle recorded the observation that light admitted through a small opening in a dark room formed an image on the wall opposite the hole of an object outside the room.

Later references were made to the same phenomenon by Alhazen in the 12th century, Roger Bacon in the 13th, Leonardo da Vinci, and others. These gentlemen were describing the first camera. They could walk into a darkroom, close the door, open a small aperture; wall behind were able to observe what was going on outside. There were several apparent difficulties, but the first one formed was very dim and hard to see; secondly, the image was inverted and thin; the third could be seen only by those who were within the room.

The first camera was hordled by an Italian nobleman named Danillo Barbaro in the 16th century, who, by placing a simple lens such as a four-inch eye-glasses in the aperture in the room, increased the brilliance of the image, making it easier to see. But, the other two "holdups" to the popular acceptance of photography remained until the early 19th century, although nature had pointed the way for millions of years.

Next week, we will discuss the history of photographic films and other light sensitive materials.

TIPS TO THE TYRO
Let there be no waiting, no gnashing of teeth, no sack cloth and ashes because you would need make some contact prints and have no contact printer. An effective substitute calls for two pieces of glass, as large or larger than your negative, and a strip of adhesive tape to bind one edge of both pieces together to form a hinge. Place negative and paper together, lift upper piece of glass, insert film and paper with film uppermost and lower upper piece of glass. Snap on ceiling light; count. One white elephant, two white elephants, etc. until the paper is properly exposed. Develop paper. If the procession of elephants is too long, change to a larger bulb in the ceiling light.

Two small boys were sitting on the curb. One turned to the other and said: "I'm five. How old are you?"

"I don't know," was the reply. "I guess I'm five, too."
"Do you like girls?" the first asked.
"None!"
"Then you're only four!"

An increasing number of women are taking up the study of law while the usual number, of course, continue to lay it down.

Air Chaplains 'Dig In' Here For 'Combine'

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Floyd S. Smith, staff chaplain for Ninth Air Force, who left Lawson field in October, 1-943, for an overseas assignment, reenacted his wartime role last week when he moved his Greenville Army Air Base office into a mobile trailer and joined the Operation Combine caravan here.

"During AIC last spring our chaplains visited Advanced Headquarters for short periods only, but during Operation Combine we are remaining with our men throughout the maneuvers," he announced while setting up his temporary office in Ninth Air Force Advance Headquarters area.

Ellot Leading Post Archers

Capt. M. E. Ellot toured the tough 14-target archery course here Saturday and came back with an aggregate score of 121 to retain top position on the Benning Bowman-competition ladder.

Following Capt. Ellot in the field arrow class is Lt. Col. John L. Hitchings, club governor, with an 82. In the target arrow class Lt. Col. Richard Mays is showing the way with 54, while Mrs. M. E. Ellot holds 55 in the Ladies class with Mrs. John Hitchings close behind with a score of 36.

Plans are progressing in the aid given by the archery club to physiotherapy patients at the hospital. They will attend archery classes given by the Benning Bowman on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

Biggs Named Assistant Base Provost Marshal

Lawson field's new assistant provost marshal is Capt. Wilton D. Biggs, a former master sergeant who was recalled to active duty as an officer recently.

He is a graduate of the Air Force Navigator's school and served in the ETO with the Eighth Air Force during the war.

Schupp Ends Course

Capt. Donald L. Schupp, headquarters, 63rd Field Artillery Battalion, returned recently from Carlisle Barracks, Pa., where he attended a three-month course at the Adjutant General's school of administration for officers, officials said today.

MILITARY POLICE OBSERVE 6TH ANNIVERSARY TODAY

The Military Police detachment will commemorate the sixth anniversary of the Military Police Corps with a two-day barbecue at Victory lodge Thursday and Friday, Sept. 25 and 26.

The affair is being given in honor of the M.P. detachment an opportunity to attend. A complete program has been outlined with appropriate ceremonies, music, dancing and a stage show.

Section No. 1 will hold its barbecue Thursday and Friday at Victory lodge, while section No. 2 will hold its gathering at Special Units' rest camp Friday.

The program for both days will get under way at 4 p. m. and conclude at midnight. An orchestra composed of personnel from section No. 1 will provide music for dancing at the section No. 1 outing. A live-wire stage show will be presented both days, officials said.

M-Sgt. Ernest Trolman and S-Sgt. Freddie Tyson, who are handling arrangements for the section No. 2 get-together Friday, have a complete program rounded out, including orchestra for dancing and entertainment from Columbus.

S-Sgt. John Riley is chairman for the section No. 1 committee which also includes Capt. Howard Wells, 1st Sgt. Robert Muddox and S-Sgt. Paul Hayes.

Transportation will be furnished from the detachment to Victory lodge and the rest camp.

PVT. WILSON D. WATSON
... Medal of Honor Winner

CMH Winner Attending Food Service School

Free from the vexations of warfare that netted him the Congressional Medal of Honor, Pvt. Wilson D. Watson is now occupied in more tranquil surroundings at the Food Service school here where he is currently a member of the cooks class.

Private Watson of Squadron G, 3501st AAF Hq. Base Station, Fla., was presented with the nation's highest award by President Harry S. Truman on October 5, 1945, at the White House. Private Watson received the medal for conspicuous gallantry as automatic rifleman serving with the Second Battalion, Ninth Marines, Third Marine division, during action against enemy Japanese forces on two Jima, February 26 and 27, 1945.

The Congressional Medal of Honor winner hails from Earl, Arkansas, where he enlisted in the Marine corps, serving for a period of 38 months. Private Watson served as a cook.

After separation from the Marines, Private Watson enlisted in the Army in September 1946. He will be graduated from his course of instruction here in November and will return to his home in Arkansas.

In addition to the Medal of Honor, Private Watson also wears the Presidential Citation, Purple Heart, Asiatic-Pacific theater campaign ribbon with three battle stars and the American Theater ribbon.

Post Artillery Unit Gets New Officers

Recent additions to the 83rd Field Artillery battalion's officer personnel include Lis. Clinton O. Muehleisen, Michael H. Goff, and Frederick J. Cobb.

Lt. Wainwright served in Europe with the Fifth Infantry division, returning to the States in March 1945.

Lt. Goff, a graduate of Army Officer Candidate class No. 5 here, completed his branch training at Fort Sill's Artillery division.

Lt. Cobb served as sergeant major of the Seventh Cavalry division overseas in the Philippines. He States in September 1946 to attend Army Officer Candidate class No. 4. He is also graduate of the Artillery School.

400 Students Will Witness Big Air Show

Four hundred students of the Command and Staff college and the Armed Forces Staff college will arrive at Fort Benning Sunday to witness the initial presentation of Operation Combine, month-long maneuver designed to show the air-ground team in action.

In conjunction with the announcement concerning the arrival of the first class of students, Fort Benning and Ninth Air Force officials announced that the public would be invited to witness the gigantic aerial demonstration held in conjunction with each week's course.

Public Invited

The public will be asked to enter the Dekker strip area, from the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee river. They will witness the air exercise from a hillside overlooking Dekker strip at a point approximately 2,500 yards from the main target area.

Spectators attending will be afforded a complete commentary of every phase of the fast-moving 92-minute exercise.

The demonstration will be held on the following dates: October 2, 8, 15, 22 and 29th.

On Sunday in Fairchild C-82 "Flying Boxcars" will enter their first class Monday for a series of ground and air lectures, displays, tactics and equipment.

Jets To Fire

A different group of service school students will arrive every Sunday during October for the series of courses. Jet-propelled fighter planes of the Air Forces will fire live ammunition for the first time as part of a maneuver during operation combine. Ninth Air Force officials announced today.

In the past, the only times jet-propelled aircraft fired have been during experiments conducted at Eglin field, Fla., and Muroc Air Base, Calif.

During Operation Combine, 26 C-54 Lockheed P-38 "Shooting Stars," of the famed First Fighter group's 71st squadron, will fire 50-caliber machine guns mounted in the nose and carry napalm bombs, as part of a 150-plane attack.

DEADLINE SET FOR ENTRY IN DRIVERS COMPETITION

Deadline for entries in the drivers' competition to be staged during the Infantry Center's big motor show Oct. 25-26 has been set for Oct. 15, it was announced today by officials in charge of arrangements.

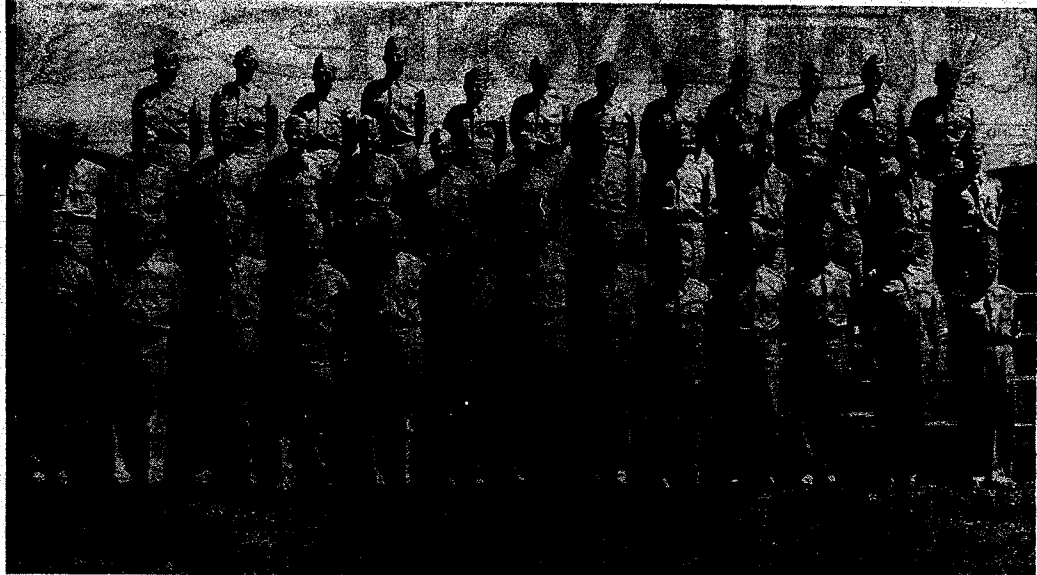

Two judges have been named for the static display of motor vehicles, officials said. They are Col. Charles M. Crawford and Lt. Lee E. Tucker.

The show, which is open to the public, will get underway Saturday morning, Oct. 25, with the motor vehicle display at Blue field and will end Sunday, Oct. 26, with the drivers' competition and final examination of equipment by spectators.

Some of the largest mobile units in the Army will be included in the show. Each participating unit will be limited to one vehicle in each class entered.

A drivers' course has been laid out at French field for that competition. It will include a course for jeep and conventional ton truck. Also on the program will be gun drills on the 105 and 155 mm howitzers by members of the field artillery battalion.

Awards will be presented to the individual and unit winners in each competing class. Following the final exhibition and demonstration Oct. 26, the elaborate display will be open to the public.

Hunting Season To Open Here On November 1

Anxious hunters are beginning to polish their boxes for the opening of the sporting season scheduled for Nov. 1.

The open season for squirrels and wild hogs starts the session on Oct. 1, followed by quail, turkey gobbler and rabbits Nov. 20. The open season on doves usually the first to open, will not begin until Dec. 3. Ducks, geese and wood duck can be hunted beginning Dec. 8. The season closes Feb. 28, 1948.

Except as indicated by hunting and fishing regulations, no person will hunt or fish on the reservation without a permit issued by the provost marshal. The only persons who may hunt or fish without a permit are range guards and minors under 16 years of age. Minors will not require a permit for fishing but must have a permit to hunt.

Fishing ponds and streams on the Fort Benning reservation, including King's pond, will be open every day of the fishing season and not restricted to certain days for fishing unless prohibited by notice published in the Daily Bulletin.

Hunting may be permitted anywhere within the game sanctuary or restricted area, and will be prohibited at all times within the limits of the Post proper, as defined in garrison regulations.

Shotguns are the only authorized firearms. It is forbidden to hunt with any type rifle, pistol, or carbine or to use a shotgun larger than a No. 12 gauge.

The bag limit on quail is 10 per day with a possession limit of 20. Other daily bag limits are rabbits, two; squirrels, six; doves, 10; ducks, four; and geese, one. Only one wild hog per person each season may be taken. Hogs may be taken by shotgun, bow and arrow, or with dogs. Only one turkey gobbler each season may be taken and there is no open season on turkey hens. Swans and snow geese cannot be killed in Georgia.

The season is wholly closed on deer, beaver, and Wilson's snipe. Foxes, wildcats, raccoons, opossums, and vermin may be hunted at any time during the hunting season.

Canis To Conduct Worship Services At Chapel No. 4

Sunday, Sept. 21, marked the reopening of chapel No. 4 in the Harmony Church area with a worship service conducted by Chaplain Robert P. Canis at 9:00 a.m.

Closed for more than a year, chapel No. 4 was reopened at the request of members of the 30th Medical group and the 121st Evacuation hospital. Since it is conveniently located half way between the medical unit and the 16th Tank battalion, an invitation has also been extended to the Tankers to use the chapel.

During the time chapel No. 4 was closed, it became all but completely concealed by the low drooping pine trees which surround it and a heavy growth of underbrush which had grown up around its lower walls. For two days a detail of men from the medical unit worked to clean and the underbrush outside.

The reopened chapel will be known to the men of that area as the Roadside chapel.

In addition to worship services Chaplain Canis will be on duty with the medical unit on Thursdays and Friday afternoons for conferences with unit personnel.

Army Nurses Still Eligible For RA

Major Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, surgeon general of the Army, today sent out notice that applications for Regular Army commissions in the Army Nurse Corps and Women's Medical Specialist Corps may be submitted up to Sept. 30.

Applicants who are unmarried with no dependents under 14 years of age and who have had previous military service are eligible for commissions in the Regular Army Nurse Corps and the Women's Medical Specialist Corps. During the integration period the age limit for nurses is 21-35 years and for members of the Women's Medical Specialist Corps 21-45 years. After Sept. 30, 1947, the age limit for Regular Army appointments in both corps will be 21-29 years.

Pay and benefits for members of the Army Nurse Corps and Women's Medical Specialist Corps will be the same as that of all other Regular Army officers. While it is presumed that persons entering these corps are making the Regular Army a career, resignations will be accepted under

New Liaison Plane Added To Benning Unit's 'Air Force'

The 83rd Field Artillery battalion has added an L-17A Navion plane, latest development in Army Ground Forces liaison aircraft, to their growing "air force," officials revealed today.

This is the most recent addition to the liaison family which heretofore consisted only of L-4 Cubs and L-5 Stinsons.

Characteristics of the new plane are a seating capacity of four, to accommodate pilot, copilot, and two passengers; and their baggage; cruising range up to 500 miles at speeds up to 150 miles per hour; and retractable landing gear and all metal construction.

The plane was flown here in 16 hours by Lts. Dayton L. Warren and Eugene A. Wilson, 83rd Field Artillery battalion liaison pilots, from the North American Aviation corporation's Inglewood, Calif., plant. Stops were made at Prescott, Ariz., Albuquerque, N. M., Childress, Tex., Denton, Tex., Vicksburg, Miss., and Lawson field.

THE BAYONET

MEMBER FORT BENNING PRESS ASSOCIATION
VOL. 7 COLUMBUS, GA., SEPT. 25, 1947 NO. 2

The Bayonet is published by the Ledger-Pooler Company as a civilian enterprise in compliance with Pub. L. W. D. Circular 454 (dated Dec. 1944) in the interest of the officer and enlisted personnel of Fort Benning and distributed to all units that make up Greater Fort Benning.

An Explanation

The Bayonet has received numerous complaints regarding the exclusion of certain articles submitted for publication; and, in an effort to clarify this matter, we will attempt to explain the difficulties encountered in publishing a newspaper.

Most unit reporters do not yet realize, although we have endeavored to inform them on many occasions, that we have a definite deadline for both news stories and pictures; and unless this deadline is adhered to strictly, we can not promise that an item will appear in the issue of The Bayonet for which it was intended.

Of course, there are exceptions to this rule, for we realize that not established precedent can be iron-clad. There must be deviations, but so far as straight, routine news or features are concerned, we must adhere to this rule.

As everyone knows, the size of a newspaper is dependent largely upon the inches of advertising sold. This being a fact, we are limited to a certain extent on the number of pages we are allowed to publish each week.

It is no easy job to edit a newspaper with only a six-man staff. There is of necessity a great deal of rewriting every week, which means our time is extremely limited.

We have also observed that a number of unit reporters submit items which are of no interest whatsoever. In such cases we must relegate the copy to "File 13" regardless of our reluctance to do so.

Our main purpose is to present a well balanced newspaper, covering all phases of life at Fort Benning. The enlisted man is of primary importance, and we believe you will find that the amount of publicity given him is far greater than that given officer personnel.

We hope that this brief statement will serve to explain our position and will eliminate any misunderstanding. We want our readers to know how we stand and will welcome any comments, especially those of a constructive nature.

THE LOVE OF GOD

by CHAPLAIN E. M. CARPENTER

At the very start of the human race mankind began to disregard the loving presence of God. The whole long story of God's dealings with His people in the Old Testament is a story of repeated backslidings, repentance, and re- statement. Always when the bitter experience was over, the re- deem- ing love was there to heal.

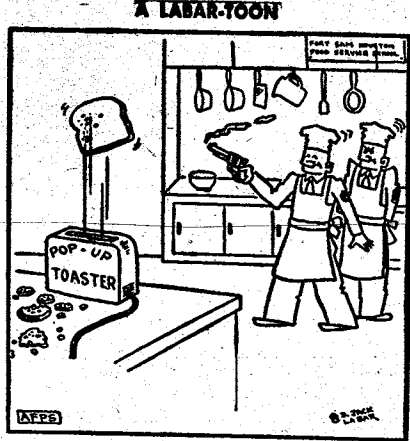

At times ap- tasy and sin combine to form a situation black that all seems to be lost. But all that is not lost. One thing that can never die is the love of God. The plea of the Divine heart has ever been, "How can I love thee up; how can I execute the fierceness of mine anger; how can I destroy man?"

When we can interpret God in terms of love, we are on firm ground. The intention founded His supreme and clearest expres- sion in Jesus. So plain did Jesus make this that one of His disci- ples, in trying to love God, said, "God is love." This state- ment is one that was made, not by a life of sunshine and flowers but the result of the testings and trials of life.

The man who is content with the superficialities of the world and who seeks to avoid the things that hurt; who is not compelled by some deep loyalty to defy the perils of duty and thinks of life only in terms of pleasure, is not likely to come to any deep con- clusion as to the love of God. In- deed, he is not qualified to reach a final conclusion on anything.

The sense of smell is usually only very indistinctly located in invertebrates. In these animals, the sensory cells, which react to chemical stimuli are distributed over large areas of the skin.

Your Red Cross

A subject of general interest to many overseas veterans is the ad- mission to the United States of alien fiancées.

In general, alien fiancées are admitted to the U. S. under regu- lar immigration laws. Exceptions, however, are made for alien fian- cées under Public Law 471 which has been extended to Jan. 1, 1948.

If you are planning to bring your fiancée to the U. S. and have any questions, you should contact your nearest Red Cross office at your earliest convenience.

that valid marriage has been con- cluded. This bond may be a cash or surety bond from companies approved by the U. S. Treasury.

The American Red Cross here is thoroughly familiar with the procedure to be followed by the serviceman in arranging for the entry of his fiancée to the U. S.

This Day

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of columns dealing with the important events of World War II, a chronicle depicting the progress and highlights that mark each day of the struggle. Today's column recalls the events between Sept. 19 and This Day, Sept. 25.

Sept. 19. . . Five years ago today as the Nazis were being pushed back from Stalingrad, U. S. fortresses drove off strong Japanese naval forces from the Solomons. After nine months of war the Japanese were learning that world conquest was not going to be an easy job.

Sept. 20. . . Three years ago today in the Pacific area the U. S. forces took complete control of Angaur Island, a part of the Palau group in the western Carolines.

Sept. 21. . . Three years ago today there was heavy fighting in Holland. The Allied divisions were meeting stiff resistance. In Italy there was fierce fighting in passes. In the Pacific there were naval engagements around Luzon, but most people were predicting the war would be over in a matter of days. They did not foresee the Belgian Bulge or the last ditch stand of the Nazis.

Sept. 22. . . Four years ago today, in the Italian campaign, Allied commanders reported the occupation of most of the Serenian Peninsula north of Salerno. On the same day the Germans admitted that Sardinia had been lost, but they claimed they still occupied Corsica. And French said that they were fighting the Germans in Corsica.

Sept. 23. . . Had you been listening to the news five years ago today, Sept. 23, 1942, you would have heard something like this as the main news of the day: "The Germans are stalled at Stalingrad. The capital of Madagascar has been entered by the British. British patrols raiding deep into Libya territory had destroyed about 30 planes at Benghazi. General Wilkie is visiting Russia."

Sept. 24. . . Five years ago today U. S. soldiers were fighting desperately in Guadalcanal. Navy losses were mounting in the Solomons. War had been going on for about 10 months, and a determined America began hitting its stride with the giant mass production of materials for war.

Sept. 25. . . It was six years ago today that the Nazis attacked the suburbs of Leningrad. Even though they were aided by bombers they were driven back. On the same days a change in the government of Norway was announced. Norway was not able to withstand the Axis aggression, and it was not until 1945 that Norway, along with the rest of occupied Europe, was liberated.

Meeting For Federal Employees Set Tonight

A meeting of Federal employees under the auspices of the National Federation of Federal Employees, Washington, D. C., will be held Thursday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p. m. in the Veterans Administration offices at 1209 11th St.

Open to federal employees of the Columbus area, the meeting will be held to discuss the formation of a local group to be affiliated with the national organization, M. F. F. E. of Washington, D. C., which represents the national organization.

All federal employees at Fort Benning and other government agencies are urged to attend this meeting.

Post Theater Guide

THE UNSUSPECTED (melodrama) with Joan Caulfield, Claude Rains, and Constance Bennett. Because of his thefts from the estate of his ward, a man tries to murder those who suspect him before they can obtain evidence to convict him. Recommended for mature.

DRIFTWOOD (melodrama) with Walter Brennan, Dean Jagger, and Ruth Warrick. A little girl, a dog, an ambitious doctor, and a hostile community are the ingredients that make up this story of the fight against the superstition and ignorance that constantly burden the steps of progressive medicine. Recommended for family.

GOLDEN EARRINGS (melodrama) with Ray Milland, Marlene Dietrich, and Murvyn Vye. Sometimes humorous, sometimes dramatic, but always unusual, is this love affair between a stifiy, reluctant Britisher and a voluptuous and uninhibited cypriot. Recommended for mature.

ROBIN HOOD OF TEXAS (western) with Gene Autry and Sterling Holloway. Gene and the boys try dud ranching, and every thing is swell until bank robbers decide to hide their loot on the ranch. Recommended for family.

White Ordered To Active Duty

The latest Lawson field noncom to be recalled to active duty as an officer is M-Sgt. William R. White, chief clerk in the base file section since last February.

He received his former rank of captain at base headquarters last Wednesday morning and was transferred to the 13th Training Carrier Wing, Greenville AAB, S. C.

Captain White, a transport pilot, came to Lawson field originally in February, 1944, with the 42d Troop Carrier squadron, after serving 15 months in Alaska. When the squadron was deactivated shortly afterward, he was assigned to the base unit, where he remained until his separation from the service last January. During his commissioned career at the base he held various section head assignments, including parachute flight section officer and motor pool officer.

He reenlisted as a master sergeant here at the expiration of his terminal leave last February.

Benning P-TA Opens New Year At Large Meeting

The opening meeting of the 1947-48 year of activities for the P-TA of the Fort Benning Children's school proved highly successful last week with Mrs. Albert C. Haley presiding at the session which was followed by a tea in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Haley expressed her hopes for an outstanding year and asked for the whole-hearted cooperation of the parents and other members of the P-TA.

Following a prayer given by Chap. (Lt. Col.) Wallace Hale, the minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report was given.

Mrs. G. V. Bonner, principal of the Children's school, was introduced by Mrs. Frederick Bull, program chairman. He gave the chief address of the afternoon. Mr. Bonner spoke on the structural development of the public school system in the United States, giving an outline of the history of education and stressing modern problems in connection with schools, such as lack of money, lack of teachers, and lazy thinking.

Mrs. E. P. Ramee, chairman of the P-TA study group, was introduced and announced that the topic of this year's study will be problems of the school-age child. Meetings will be held the Tuesday following each P-TA meeting.

After the business session the ladies were served fruit punch and cake at a table arranged with a low silver bowl of mixed dewberries, white tapers in silver candelabra, and overlaid with a white linen cloth.

The next P-TA meeting will be held at 8 p. m., October 16, in the school auditorium.

Group C Has Gala Party

Officers and ladies of Group C of the attack committee of the Tactical section enjoyed the dinner Saturday evening at the Officers' club when they held a party to initiate a series of monthly events for the group.

The social event was planned as an opportunity for Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. M. Miner at the meeting. The officers of the group to get acquainted. Colonel Miner assumed command of the group in August.

Following the dinner, for which the table was decorated with glass in crystal bowls and burning tapers, dancing was enjoyed.

Guests for the evening were: Colonel and Mrs. Miner, Major and Mrs. Leslie Harner, Major and Mrs. Charles Schrader, Major and Mrs. Robert Eddy, Major and Mrs. Robert Marsh, Major and Mrs. Pete Donaldson, Major and Mrs. Joseph B. Missal, Major and Mrs. Chester M. Freudenorth, Major and Mrs. Charles W. Ryger, Major and Mrs. J. W. MacIndoe, Major and Mrs. R. B. McCall Jr., Capt. and Mrs. V. W. Campana, Capt. and Mrs. H. V. Latin American Officers Fete Friends, Celebrate Holidays

Latin American officers here for various classes in the Infantry School played hosts to a group of their friends Saturday evening when they gave a party in celebration of several Latin American holidays.

The party falling on September 20 was a triple celebration of Mexican Independence day on September 16, the Independence day of Chile on September 18, and the first day of spring in Argentina, September 21.

The guests, seated at a large table on the club patio, were served cocktails before dinner and the table was attractively decorated with pink gladioli and green and white tapers.

Place cards for the formal event marked places for the guests, including Col. and Mrs. Douglas Sugg, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard Diaz, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard J. Mays, Major and Mrs. Maurice Hathaway, Major and Mrs. George S. Beatty Jr., Major and Mrs. Achille Fiselde, Major and Mrs. J. G. Martin, Capt. and Mrs. Wallace C. Hutchinson, Miss Mary Frances Kelly, Miss Mary Margaret McKusker, Lt. M. R. Gansiers, and Capt. Carlos Lozano.

The hosts for the party, which was arranged by Capt. A. Garcia A. and Capt. Enrique Pusineri, represented six Latin American countries. From Argentina were Capt. F. Castro, Capt. E. Pusineri, Capt. J. C. Reyes, Lt. H. L. Anel, Lt. G. M. Galichar, and Lt. C. A. Palacio. Officers from Colombia were Lt. Col. Manuel Torrijos and Capt. Ernesto Laverde. F. Cuban officers attending were Lt. Sierfriedo Diaz, Bert and Lt. Ricardo Pardo and from El Salvador were Capt. R. Cardozo Z. Capt. R. Callarado, Capt. A. Garcia, Capt. R. Gonzalez G. and Capt. E. Hernandez R. Lt. and Mrs. M. Hernandez A. Lt.

Col., Mrs. Moon Hosts At Buffet Honoring Visitors

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jacob R. Moon were hosts at a buffet dinner party at their home Saturday evening when they entertained a group of friends and honored Mr. and Mrs. L. Moore Sr., of Monticello, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore Jr., of Madison, Fla.

Following cocktails, the guests were served supper from a table decorated with a pair of English silver candelabra and a bowl of yellow flowers. Small tables were arranged on the porch and in the dining room.

In addition to the honorees the guests attending the party were Col. and Mrs. John Bizzard, Col. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, Col. Walter Johnson, Col. and Mrs. Charles Pence, Col. and Mrs. O. P. Biragan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. O. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. William Nielsen, Capt. (ret.) and Mrs. J. E. Miles and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Moore Sr. are the uncle and aunt of Colonel Moon, and Mr. and Mrs. Moore Jr. are cousins. They left Sunday for their homes.

Col., Mrs. Davis Entertain Friends

Playing host to a group of their friends, Col. and Mrs. Kermit Davis entertained Wednesday evening at the Officers' club after serving cocktails to eight guests from their quarters earlier in the evening.

Fall flowers were used as decorations at the quarters of the hosts and at the club the table for the formal dinner was arranged with a bouquet featuring chrysanthemums.

Guests were Col. and Mrs. Oscar B. Beatty, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William J. Mullen, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Alexander Stewart and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Eric Ramee.

Mrs. Ward Gives Tea For Daughters Visiting Benning

A particularly charming social event of the week was the Tuesday afternoon given at her quarters by Mrs. Frank Ward to honor her daughter and daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. S. Groneweg of Bradenton, Fla., with Mrs. J. Frank Ward Jr. of College Park, Ga.

Approximately 60 guests attended the party held from 4 to 6 p. m. Ladies serving were Mrs. Fay Ross, Mrs. J. A. Lynch, Mrs. R. B. Hill, and Mrs. E. M. Bullock. Assisting about the rooms were party husbands, Duggan and Mrs. William McNulty.

The tea table, set with silver tea service and centered with a silver bowl of pink roses and small blue flowers, was overlaid with a beautiful white silk candelabra and Colonel Ward brought from China. The One Hundred Children design is embossed in the lovely cloth.

Captain (ret.) and Mrs. Groneweg and their daughter Lee came up from Florida and are spending a week on the Post. Mrs. Ward and her daughter Wendy also arrived here Sunday and will make a visit for some time. In College Park she has been living with her parents while her husband, Captain Ward, is in Okinawa with the Army Air Forces.

Quartermasters Entertain At Club

Officers and ladies of the Quartermaster Corps held an interesting party at the Officers' club Saturday evening with 22 guests attending the dinner and dance for which the table was arranged on the club patio.

Major and Mrs. Abraham Pfefer were in charge of arrangements for the event and the table was decorated with yellow tapers in crystal candelabra and a mixed bouquet of garden flowers.

Col. and Mrs. O. M. Cutler and Mr. Duval were also present. They were houseguests of Col. and Mrs. H. E. Beine for the week end and also attended the party. Miss Genevieve Scully of Atlanta was also a guest.

Benning Ladies Open Fall Golf

After a summer vacation, the enthusiastic Fort Benning women golfers turned out in force last Friday when about 40 ladies enjoyed a double aitch teat lunch at the golf club.

In spite of the wind, after a short burst of rain, a number of the ladies played the course, while others participated in a putting contest.

There will be a tournament, weather permitting, every Friday during the fall months and each of the players may choose her own time for play. The first tournament will be held tomorrow with a bring-your-own lunch to be held at noon in the club house.

Major Gen. and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel entertained officers and ladies of the general staff at a delightful buffet supper last Thursday evening at their quarters. The event was an informal affair with 36 guests attending.

Col. and Mrs. Joseph A. Nichols left last Friday for a trip to Florida and planned to be gone for two weeks. In St. Petersburg they planned to visit Col. (ret.) and Mrs. C. C. Griffin. In Miami they were to see Mr. and Mrs. John Cole. Mr. Cole is a nephew of the Nichols. From Miami they planned to go on to Palm Beach and then drive on up the east coast of Florida.

Mrs. Albert Page of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and her four-year-old son, Ronnie, are houseguests at the quarters of Major and Mrs. Leslie Harness. Mrs. Page, sister of Mrs. Harness, arrived last Thursday for a two-week visit.

Mrs. John W. O'Daniel left Sunday for New York, where she will visit her daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Grossbeck Jr.

Recreation Center Opening Marked By Social Event

Open house Thursday evening at the Station hospital marked the opening of the new Red Cross recreation center and guests for the evening were shown the new arrangements and served sherbet, punch and cookies.

Approximately 150 guests attended the event with Col. and Mrs. Robert Hill as honor guests. Other special guests included hospital personnel, guests from the other Red Cross organization on the post, Red Cross personnel from the chapter in Columbus and the main field office at Fort Benning. The serving table was uniquely arranged with a punch bowl made of the plexiglass nose from a dive bomber and a bouquet of dahlias, cut flowers and greens. Background music was furnished by records.

Arrangement for the open house were made by Miss Lacy Darter, assistant field director, and the Red Cross staff at the hospital.

Col. Easterbrook Honored At Party

Officers and ladies of the defense committee and the Ladies' section of the Infantry School met Wednesday evening for a buffet supper at the Officers' club to honor Col. E. F. Easterbrook who is leaving the Post temporarily and will join his family in Carmel, Calif.

Guests for the evening in addition to Colonel Easterbrook were Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. E. Eitt, Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. O. Russell, Lt. Col. O. A. Leahy, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. B. Means, Lt. Col. and Mrs. P. Gala Party For Miss Gilmore Marks Thirteenth Birthday

Miss Suzanne Gilmore, daughter of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Ernest R. Gilmore, celebrated her 13th birthday Thursday at a gala party held at the Block 12 Non-Commissioned Officers' club. Miss Rita Ates acted as mistress of ceremonies for the various games, and prizes were given to the winners.

The guests were seated at a large table for refreshments, and the decorations featured a mixed bouquet of gladioli and asters in an antique pottery vase. Miss Gilmore wore an attractive dress of aqua gabardine, trimmed with eyellet embroidery, and a corsage of pink tube roses. Her cake was a chocolate pastry decorated with pink roses and the legend "Happy Birthday Suzanne" in green icing. The guests were also served ice cream and fruit punch.

Guests included Robert Luke, Gloria Ates, Evelyn Jacobs, Rita Ates, Jeff Toie, Nancy Bush, Mar-

Parents To Learn Of Brats Barracks

Plans for the re-activation of the Brat Barracks club for Teenage boys and girls at Fort Benning are underway, and parents interested in the club are invited to a meeting in the East Lounge of the Officers' club this evening at 5:30.

The meeting is planned to acquaint parents with the constitution and by-laws of the club and to determine whether or not there is sufficient interest to warrant a reopening.

Copies of the constitution and by-laws are in the G-1 Section, Room 317, the Infantry Center office of the secretary of the Officers' club, Post NCO club, and the Block 12 NCO club. Anyone interested may examine them before the meeting.

Sixth Birthday Occasion Of Gala Party at NCO Club

A pink and white color scheme was featured in the decorations of the extremely merry birthday party Monday afternoon at the Block 12 Non-Commissioned Officers' club to honor Frances Dobrosky, daughter of T-Sgt. and Mrs. John T. Dobrosky, on her sixth birthday.

Following several games which started at 4 p. m. the young guests were served refreshments at the large table decorated with the birthday cake as a centerpiece flanked by pink tapers in crystal candleholders. The cake was decorated with pink rosebuds on white icing and pink icing marked "Happy Birthday, Frances."

The guests were served ice cream and cake and the favor baskets of pink and white held candy mint in large number. Each guest also received a balloon as a favor.

Lawson Club Plans Buffet Saturday

The Lawson field NCO club entertained with a dance Saturday night with music by the Georgians.

Last Tuesday was stag night for all members and drew a large attendance. Wednesday night drew its usual large number of members for the weekly game night program.

Saturday night the club will climax the month's activities with an informal buffet dinner-dance and music for the occasion will be presented by the Georgians.

INTRODUCTION TO THE 501st—This sign hanging at the headquarters of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion, lists the European campaigns in which this famous combat unit participated during World War II.

THE TEST FOR MEN—Keeping physically fit is one of the top assignments of a Paratrooper, and the 501st is no exception. Men, like those pictured here, can be seen almost every morning flexing their muscles to keep fit for the rugged life of an airborne soldier.

THE PATHFINDERS—This group of ten men, commanded by Lt. Alison C. Odum, left, is known as the pathfinder group. They precede the main body of paratroopers from 15 minutes to one hour to guide the way. The 100 or more extra pounds of equipment carried by this 501st unit are necessary to perform their mission.

The Colorful 501st

One of the most critical periods of World War II was in December 1944 when the die-hard fanatics of the Fuehrer's Army were hammering at a small town in Belgium named Bastogne. Here in the United States headlines were spreading across papers a story of a courageous group of American soldiers, men who faced the black-hearted Hitlerites and turned the tide of battle. If that group of men had failed, untold numbers of Allied soldiers would have died in vain.

But instead, the hearts of our populace swelled with pride and anguish as the isolated 101st Airborne division held. Stationed here at Fort Benning today is one of the more decorated units of that division, the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion.

The 501st stemmed from the regiment of the same name in August 1946 when they were reactivated here to perform as a model group for the Airborne school. They still perform with the same exactness and surety they had in Bastogne in 1944. The shine of the brass, the spring in the step, and the ever-ready alertness of the snappy soldier is more than apparent among members of this unit.

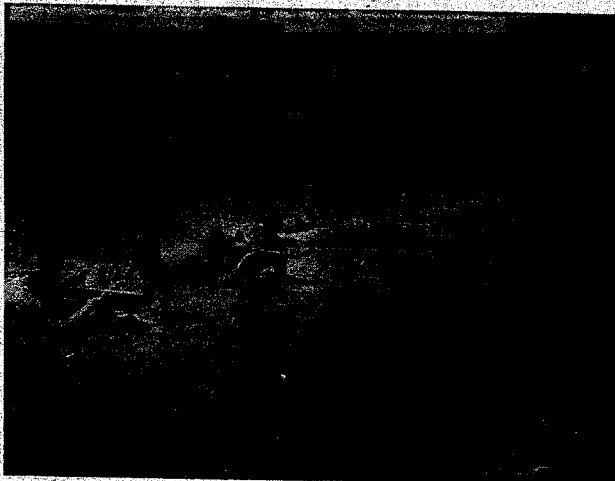

The 501st, now commanded by Major Royal R. Taylor, was awarded the Belgian Pour le Merite and Croix de Guerre, the Dutch Orange Leynard, the French Croix de Guerre with palm, and the Distinguished Unit citation with cluster. At present it is assigned to School Troops.

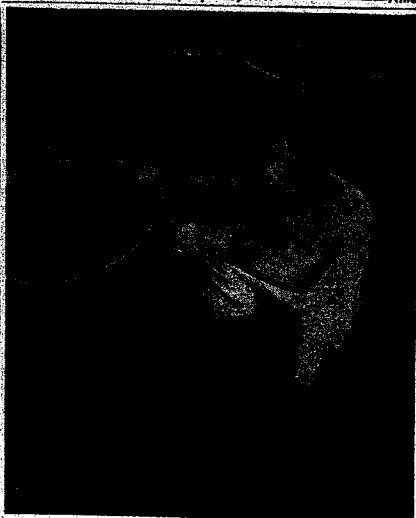

TRAINING FOR ACTION—The Infantryman's big game of World War II is still a part of the airborne infantry battles. This 501st 81 mm crew is sighting in on the "enemy" during one of their regular training periods.

JUMPING TAILOR—After graduating from the rigger's course at the Infantry School's Airborne section, Pfc. Carl Johnson, Headquarters company of the 501st, is qualified to repair anything that needs mending. Here he is repairing a rip in an aerial canopy, commonly referred to in paratroop society as the G.I.

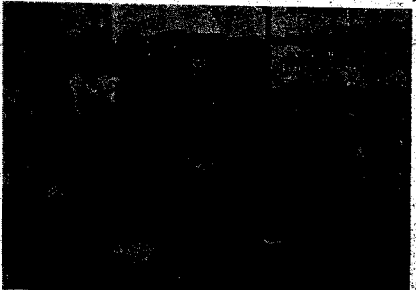

READY FOR THE FIRING LINE—The primary aim of any infantry unit is the M-1 rifle. These 561st troopers polish up on their "shooting eye" with the coach and pupil method on the "dry fire range."

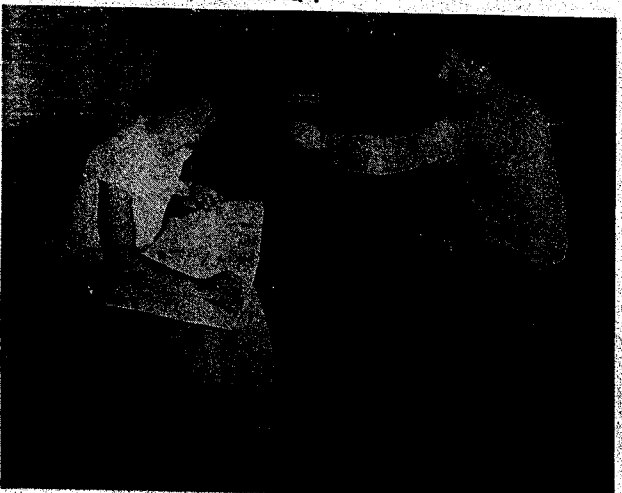

A FRESH COAT OF PAINT—Believing that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," Sgt. Robert S. White, Headquarters company of the 561st, dresses a GI can in a fresh coat of paint just before a Saturday inspection.

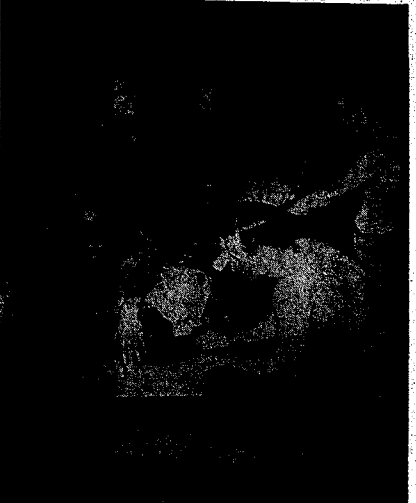

FLOATING ARTILLERY—The answer to a fighting man's prayer is to produce a 75 mm from a hip-pocket draw. Cpl. Lynn Mortimore, left, and Pfc. Billy Wilson demonstrate the fastest way to get this 75 mm on the objective. This container which carries the weapon through the air was developed and tested by a member of the 561st.

WEAPON CARE—Cpl. Jenzie Crow, Company A of the 561st, gives his 57 mm recoilless weapon a final going over before returning it to its felt-lined case until needed again.

RELAXING FOR A MOMENT—It's not all work in the 561st, but it's not clear whether Pfc. Jerald Freed, Company A, left, is more interested in The Bayonet or the radio being played by Cpl. Wiggins Deaton, also of Company A.

GETTING READY FOR THE JUMP—Men of the 561st have to "hit the silk" about every two weeks. This group from Headquarters company and Company A are signing for their chutes just before boarding the plane.

Doughs Capture 3rd Army Title

Post Team Edges Fort Bragg, 4-3, In Tourney Finals

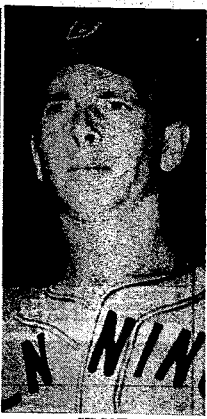

Blazing back with the fury of a Florida hurricane, the Doughboys tripped Fort Bragg in the championship (game) of the Third Army tournament 4-3 to capture the coveted divisional crown, putting a golden finish to the rugged schedule the Benchmark faced this season.

The Third Army plaque swayed occasionally in the balance as Bragg burst forth on the opening day of the tournament to cop a double win, while both Fort McPherson and the Doughboys fell victims to defeat. Skepticism was high in the training camp after Bragg had succeeded in turning the same old Ferguson 5-0 in the afternoon till Tuesday, topping it off with a 4-3 edging the Doughs to a 1-1 tie. Nones was too eager to voice an opinion as to the ultimate victor, but one thing was certain—the Doughs would have to go some if they expected to overcome the strong North Carolina team.

Benchmark Confident
Only Captain Bench and his team felt confident. Fort McPherson was decisively eliminated from tourney play Wednesday afternoon, when the Doughs looked a little better than the team which had been hitting sprees that saw the Atlanta team sink beneath a 10-3 slaughter. But could the Doughs play above-par ball again the same day? That was the question circling around the post.

Dick Gerhart, who has frequently come through in the pinches, was assigned the task of bringing the Doughs back on an even keel with Bragg. With two victories tucked well under their belts, Bragg took the field as the heavy psychological favorites. The fireball right hander turned the tide, leading his teammates to a 1-1 tie. Bragg jumped to an early 2-0 lead, and it looked as though nothing was on the verge of the little lauded runner-up honors. But as Gerhart settled down to sandwich Bragg with his accurate pitches, Dough swatmen began to find their range.

Woody Burt, who slugged the ball at a 602 pace for the tourney, slammed out a circuit blast in the fifth as the Doughs took a 7-5 lead. Burt accounted for four hits that night in his four trips to the plate. The Doughs' aggregation added runs in every inning but the last, swelling their total of 11. As Bragg came up for their final try at victory, they found themselves 12 runs behind the burly Bench-men. Attempting a last ditch rally, Bragg pushed three more runs across, but the threat died, as Gerhart recovered from the uprising.

All Tied Up
At the point of competition, Benning and Bragg were all tied up with the deciding game scheduled for Thursday night.

No one was surprised when Ike Silcox took the mound against Bragg in the championship game. His pitching opponent was Charlie Lindquist, ace Bragg lefthander, who had humbled the Doughs in their initial tilt. In spite of a bad shoulder that has caused Silcox to work only in relief roles, the chance was his.

This temporary setback didn't appear to phase the unaffected pitcher because he bore down on his pitching opponent. Patiently waiting for the moment when he knew Dough bats would get hot, he continued working, holding Bragg at every corner.

Silcox tallied the first Dough run in the seventh after he had doubled into right, when Bob Kinard slammed out his third hit of the evening, a double. This looked like the time, but Lindquist had different ideas and brought about the necessary outs before the uprising could get any worse.

The tie was up for Lindquist for in the next stanza, three hits and two consecutive walks brought about the winning run and the championship.

2,500 Set Finals
Not a spectator ventured from the stands, as some 2,500 anxious Benning rovers stood waiting, but not patiently, for that big moment. They were not disappointed.

After Lindquist had fanned Left McGowan, Tom Gallager and Booney Egan, Bragg was hit. Ike Silcox suffered the same treatment, McGowan had been handed, as Lindquist succeeded in effecting the second out. But Chick Shiver, who had been quiet most of the game, came through in the pinch to belt the tattering Lindquist for a single, as Bonair came scurrying home with the Dough's second run. Still two away, still two runs from the crown, there were two men aboard.

Bob Kinard was probably the most nervous person at Gowdy Field as he came to bat at that crucial point. Yet Kinard wasn't so nervous as to throw the game back into Bragg's lap as he slammed out a double that sent two more Benningites home with the winning run.

Charlie Lindquist reluctantly left the hill being relieved by Ritzmeyer. The Doughs went down one, two, three in the ninth.

Silcox had had his bad inning—there were to be no repeaters in his ball game. He grounded out for the first out, while the big right-hander fanned the next two, bringing his total to twelve.

Immediately following the hat in game, Colonel Norman Wynn, representing Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, made the presentation of awards on the field. Captain Herbert Bench, and his team captain, Bob Kinard, and Bill Burnett, were awarded the handsome Third Army plaque, and every player a pair of silver cups.

Court Season Slated To Open Here October 1

Intramural basketball will get underway here Oct. 1, and will continue through Nov. 30, it was announced today by the Physical and Recreation department.

Men competing will be members of the Infantry, Cavalry and Ordnance basketball league.

All games will be played according to the official 1946-47 NCAA basketball rules, and the standard robin system of play will be used. All teams will play every other team during league competition at least one time.

Should any team drop from the league, their remaining games will be lost to their opponents by forfeit. In case of a tie for first place, a playoff will be held. This playoff will be determined according to the number of teams involved in the tie.

Trophies will be awarded to the winner of runner-up teams in league play.

Players must be members of the organization or of which they are playing, and at least 50 percent of the team members must be enlisted men. Any individual transferring from another organization will not be eligible for league play unless a transfer form has been filed and the sanction of the special services department.

Each organization entering a team in competitive play will supply one person authorized to officiate in basketball.

The schedule of intramural games will be announced later.

Post Gridiron Season Opens Next Saturday

Rough scrimmages and final briefings marked the closing week of pre-season football practice at Gowdy field, as the 1947 edition of the Fort Benning Doughboys set themselves for their opener against the Marines at Cherry Point, Saturday.

With team enthusiasm mounting daily, and the final touches being laid on the Doughboy offense and defense, all eyes are trained on the season's opener, while Butcher coaching staff, whose confidence that the Doughs will come through with a victory.

The All-Service eleven is trim for heavy duty, and is set on turning in a repeat performance of their formidable predecessors.

Stress Timing
With only one day remaining, stress has been particularly laid on timing, blocking, and tackling. Kendrick's passing attack, slow in getting started, now seems to be in smoother order, and packs much of the Doughboy frontal attack.

At the end of six weeks' rugged conditioning and exhaustive work, the Doughboys appear to be in tip-top shape, with many of the injured players back in the line-up. With the exception of a few bruised noses and black eyes, the time stage was very few major hurts.

However, there have been some serious blows dealt to key members, and there is much concern whether Meiers, rough and burly tackle from Minnesota, will be in shape for the Cherry Point clash. During practice two weeks ago, a dislocated knee has kept him out, and has been off the field since crushing lineman has given recent evidence of improvement and may see action Saturday.

Meager Reconverted
Frank Meager, cagey quarterback, has returned to duty, following his recovery from a bruised hip. Meager is one of the most accurate passers on the squad.

Kendrick hasn't a lineman that while the zip and spirit of the team is at its highest peak. Averaging 195 pounds, the front wall squad has perhaps the fastest center of that forward line impenetrable to be near the heart of the Doughboys.

Jack Seybold and Bob Ward, both 290 pounders, are holding down the first string guard positions, and the competition is high for starting berths in that line. But Cotton, Bob Herrick and Oscar Browa have been pushing the starters Ward and Seybold. A plenty of excellent play from these men is expected.

At center there are two outstanding gridlers, Bob Tummella and Art Plant, while Bob Lyons and Bill Current have been showing steady improvement at that position.

With added talent at the tackles, Coach Kendrick is finding some difficulty in deciding on his starters. Charlie James, Leonard Priefer, Dick Gromizinger, Frank Tatum, Cliff Whitaker, Lyle McCallie, Joe Bass, Garrett-Crawford have all shown a great deal of ability.

Strong Defense
Wiry ends, strong in defensive play, finish off the strong forward wall with Harold Lutz at left and Bill Draper at right. In Don Scovill, Kendrick has found a fine pass receiver, who has proven himself valuable in hauling down pass from nearly impossible positions.

Carrying the ball this season will be some of the fleetest backs Benning has had in many a moon. Sparked by Bob Seibert, soon returning left half from last year's sensational team, the backfield will be fast, shifty and very deadly.

While Seibert will be doing most of the kicking, the running assignments are slated to fall to Eddie Roberts, hard charging left half, Bob Scallion, a threat from any position, and Cosmo Gutter, perhaps the fastest back turning left half from last year's sensational team, the backfield will be fast, shifty and very deadly.

Running from a Notre Dame box and a modified Alabama formation, the Doughboys will be depending heavily on their line. Power running, perhaps the fastest and necessarily accompany these methods of attack, and Kendrick has spent this final week running his boys in head on blocking and tackling.

The Dough's probable lineup is as follows:

Lutz, lc; James, lt; Ward, lg; Tummella, c; Seybold, rg; Pfeifer, rt; Draper, re; Scallion, qb; Perrody, rb; Cutri, lb; Seibert, fb.

Colorful Grid Season In View

From every corner of the nation, the thrill of kick-off whistles and the thud of body against body will be heard, as most of the nation's major colleges and universities open their 1947 grid season this Saturday.

As the Yankees sit patiently awaiting the World Series, and the Dodgers continue to swell their lead over the St. Louis Cardinals, grid mentors are squirming, wondering how summer-time football frolics will affect their seasons' records.

Although a few important games were played last week, and most of the major clashes will take place Saturday with the Southern gridders initiating the toughest schedules. Choo Choo, Charlie Justice and his Chapel Hill compatriots will take the field against Wally Butts' mighty Bulldogs, in the outstanding game of the day. North Carolina has for all practical purposes, the same Sugar Bowl squad that Trippi and company had difficulty downing 20-10, last New Year's day.

Tech meets Tennessee, while the highly rated Tigers from LSU tackle the Rice Owls.

Frank Leahy's mighty Irish have another week of preliminary work before going into action with Pitt. Notre Dame, with the exception of their scheduled tilt with Nebraska, play the same teams they met last season. With the exception of Johnny Lujack, holding down the pivot post for the third time, and men like Jim Mello, Bill Compers, Emil Sliko, Pete Ashbaugh, and Bill Leonard, promising All-American line-men back with the Irish, there is little doubt that Notre Dame will top the 1947 gridders.

Messrs. Inside and Outside will be away when Army plays their old stand-in Villanova, Saturday, but the game will no doubt run about the way it did last year—a runaway. Army is no clinch this year, in spite of the loss of Blanchard and Davis, for Rip Rowan, Jay Steffy, Goble Bryant, Bill Gustafson, Bob Folsom, and Jack Stuart are all back at the Point. The "V" will continue to be the method of attack for Army, although the pivot post is reported weak.

Midwest Strong

Most of the nation's football strength seems to be centered in the midwest section, with every mid-western team taking the field except Notre Dame and Tulsa. Illinois tees off with Pitt, while Indiana opens up against Nebraska. Iowa tackles last year's Rose Bowl coach UCLA, while Michigan meets State in their seasonal rivalry game. Northwest-ern travels south to Vanderbilt,

Scallorn Sparks Running Attack

A triple threat quarterback from Company H, the Airborne battalion, Bob Scallorn has been sparking much of the Doughboy's running attack during the final week of practice in preparation for the Cherry Point game Saturday at Cherry Point.

Scallorn, tipping the scales at 175 pounds, has landed a top berth position in the Dough's already powerful backfield and will be doing a great deal of the passing this year.

Attending high school in San Antonio, Texas, the caged Dough back, played varsity football and baseball, was a member of the softball team. In 1944 and 1945, Scallorn was selected on the All-City and All-District teams, and was later mentioned for honors on the All-Texas State grid squad.

and the promising Aggies from Oklahoma clash with TCU.

In our section of the nation, most eyes are leveled on Georgia Georgia Tech, Alabama and Auburn. The latter, bruised with injuries, and minus the talented Travis Tidwell meets Mississippi Southern in a brezer. Auburn will probably have another rough year of it, but should Tidwell make the grade with his bum knee, most anything can happen. If you will recall the Florida-Auburn game of last year, you will remember that it was Tidwell, and only Tidwell, that beat the Gators. The blond-haired boy with the casual and winning smile literally flew through any and all Wolfmen.

In spite of all the added talent at Georgia, the Bulldogs won't be as spectacular as they have been in the past, and will more than likely fall before North Carolina. It's a hard game to pick a winner, but Justice and aggregation are out for revenge this year, and will go all out to stomp the Bulldogs.

It looks as though Harry Gilmer will be back in the limelight this season, for Gilmer will have been in the post, and in line-up to snag all his fire-ball chunks. Steiner was the boy who did all the pass catching in the Rose Bowl two years ago when Bama handed Southern Cal their first big defeat, and Trippi won't be in the backfield to steal so many of Gilmer's passes. Can Alabama lick Georgia this year? It's more than probable.

After Navy's shocking exhibit against the great Army team in 1946, who can say what the 1947 grid season will hold. Frankly, it's all second guessing.

Airborne Golfing Tournament Moves Into Match Stages

Competition was keen on the links over the week end, as the Airborne golf tournament moved into match stages with most of the pre-tourney favorites eliminated from competition.

Capt. Nelson Lindstrand, expected to cop the tourney by virtue of winning medalist honors, dropped his match to Lt. Col. Monk Myers 2 and 1 in one of the tightest battles of the day. Tournament heat was on from the first hole. Accurate putting kept Myers in the battle, and when the final hole was encountered, Myers fowned the fighting medalist.

Accepted as the dark-horse of the tourney, Chaplain Charles

Whitman, turned his match into a relentless rout by defeating Capt. Clyde Carroll, 5 and 3.

The only other match played Sunday was between Capt. Herbert Bench, Dough baseball coach and manager, and his opponent Maj. C. L. Warren. Bench, a cool golfer, systematically humbled Warren, 2 and 1. Although the battle was tight most of the way, Bench managed to keep a slight edge over Major Warren.

More flight matches will be played next week end while the final championship match is slated to take place the latter part of October.

Large Field Of Racers Seen For Saturday Night Event

The midget auto races at Idle Hour Park Saturday evening are expected to draw 16 or 17 entries. It all depends on whether Big Lee Roy Hicks feels like trying it again after his narrow escape of last Saturday night.

The hard-driving former Decatur traffic cop had won the two fastest events of the evening, the first heat and the Australian pursuit, and he was trying hard to move up from third position. It was halfway through the 20-lap final. Hicks swung wide on the north turn, attempting to catch up to Bob Johnson. He crashed into the stone guard wall, and his racer hurtled 14 feet into the air, made a 160-degree turn, and crashed to the ground.

Hicks was pinned under the wheel, and it took a bunch of strong men with crowbars to pry the wheel away from his chest. He was rushed to Columbus city hospital for treatment and X-rays. Three days later he was discharged. But he still hasn't made up his mind about racing next Saturday.

The other 14 entries in last week's races are all expected to return, plus two and probably three who failed to arrive last week. Hank Blalock was among the trio entering and failing to appear. His mechanical crew was on hand, but without the husky Atlanta driver who still holds the track qualification time.

The final feature, called because of the accident, was credited to Bob Johnson, who was leading at the time. Jimmie Reed placed second.

11 Sand Hillers Answer Miff Call

Bolstered with two champions of the 25th Cir. 1947 tourney, Lt. Anthony S. Priola had ringmen from the 25th Infantry and 599th Field Artillery answering his call to arms Monday for the initial stages of training for fall and winter boxing shows, slated for the Sand Hill field house.

Heading the list of mittmen are light heavyweight tilist Lawrence Jones, who will perform in the middleweight class this season, and Jake Williams, middleweight champion, who enters to the light heavyweight class.

Other well-known performers speaking action on the Sand Hill team are: Clifford Wilburn and Walter Mason, welterweight; Zack Williams, heavyweight; and an impressive array of newcomers such as Charley Myers and Limmie Jones, welters; Robert Rogers, lightweight; Richard Hill, middleweight; and Johnnie Randall, heavyweight.

Lt. Priola stated that challenges for bouts will be issued to the 558th Parachute Infantry battalion, Fort Jackson, S. C., and various other service teams in this sector.

Baker Village High Using Russ Pool For Swim Lessons

Fort Benning has been selected as the site for Baker Village "School of the Sea."

Since Capt. B. Baker Village high school has been conducting accredited swimming courses at Russ pool under the supervision of the American Red Cross on the Post and the chapter in Columbus. Murray Hill, director of Red Cross classes at Fort Benning, has been placed in charge of these classes. Miss Jean Penland, physical education supervisor at Baker Village high, has been giving instructions to the eighth and ninth grade girls, running five classes a day from 9:30 a. m. until 2:30 p. m.

The high school accredits these courses and has made it mandatory for all students, who do not know how to swim, to take the course. Beginner and intermediate lessons are being given, and each student is taught up the Red Cross strokes that make up the swimming program with the familiar crawl, the mermaids are further instructed in the fundamentals of the breast, side, and back strokes.

Male students will begin their classes in swimming on Oct. 15. A. D. McLain and Alex Truitt will be in charge of the boys.

Assisted by three Red Cross instructors, S-Sgt. Homer R. Pope, has been named chief supervisor of pool activities during the time these classes are in session.

Overheard in city park: "I don't care if you were a fireman in civilian life, keep your hands off my nose."

"Well, I guess I might as well put the motion before the house," said the chorus girl as she danced out onto the stage.

Seybold To Fill Guard Position For Doughboys

Among the many stars on this season's Doughboy team is Jack Seybold, Company A, Infantry School detachment.

Jack's home is in New Orleans, La., where he attended public schools, earning a letter for three consecutive years in football during high school. He played on the championship team of 1944 and on the All-Section and All-State teams.

In 1945 Seybold played at Tulane university and won South-eastern and All-American mention. He played guard under the name of Caston Bourgeois.

Jack entered the service in August, 1946, at New Orleans. He served at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., in August and September, 1946; Fort Knox, Ky., from September, 1946, to January, 1947, and finally at Fort Benning. Football fans can be sure of hearing more about Jack Seybold in the coming football season.

Second Guessing

BY RALPH GREENE

Fur coats and wraps come out of the closet this week as Georgia let its first cold snap, positive evidence that baseball is on the ebb and football on the verge of one of its most sensational seasons. But before we venture into that all-embracing football, let's look back for a moment and weigh the results of the Doughboys' diamond demons.

The Brooklyn Dodgers were no more exultant than the Doughs this week after Captain Bench and his worthy Doughs had swept through the Third Army tournament, copping the crown with a 4-3 victory in the championship game with Fort Bragg. Repetition is apt to be onerous, and that might very well be applicable to reviewing the tournament and this season as a whole. However, in view of the fact that the Doughboys have such a remarkable record, it seems fitting to gamble on being onerous.

Although baseball was the major interest on the Post as far back as June, the ultimate goal in the eyes of the Doughboys was the wresting of the baseball crown from Fort Bragg. Strengthening themselves for that goal, the Doughs put all their eggs into their regular season, copping 23 of their 28 games. Army teams, as well as some formidable civilian aggressions, fell before the mighty blows of Dough batting, while Capt. Bench continually revamped his line-up in an effort to find a combination capable of capturing the Third Army crown stand alone, and the crown, it seems senseless to ramble on a subject accepted by all interested parties.

Although the Doughboys produced many stars during the season, Ike Silcox now stands alone as a result of the superb ball he pitched in the championship game. Silcox, unfortunately, suffered a bruised shoulder during the early days of the season, and was forced to lend his hand to other players in roles and assist Capt. Bench in coaching the team.

But Bench was quite aware of Ike's potentialities, and chose him to pitch the final game, win or lose. No one was more surprised when Silcox ascended the hill that night of the game, and all felt that if there was a man of the team who could stop Bragg, it was Silcox.

Silcox was no different from any other athlete, for he, too, ran into trouble. After the tilt had reached the half-way mark, Bragg began to lag the big right-hander for hits, and in the fifth, Silcox gave up four singles that netted the North Carolinians three hits. But the Doughs had been behind in each of the two previous games with Bragg, and had come from behind in one game to climb to an even keel with them.

In short, the Doughs did come from behind; in fact, they practically bumped Bragg off the diamond. Silcox scored the grand slam on Kinard's double, for the first run. Three more runs in the eighth clinched the ball game and the crown.

An ovation comparable to none omitted from the grandstand for the final out came, and Colonel Norman Wynn, who made the presentation of the trophy, presented the award of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel found difficulty in quieting the crowd so he could present the trophies. It was some spectacle to see both teams lined up on the field surrounded by cameramen, as the awards were presented. It is daresay there were more than a few tears running down the faces of the Doughs.

Capt. Herbert Bench and his team captains, Blonny Burnett and Bob Kinard, accepted the Third Army plaque for the team, while each member of the champion nine received handsome silver cups.

All is again quiet at Gowdy field, with only an occasional glancing on the empty diamond, perhaps thinking to himself that he stayed and looked long enough, teams would come scurrying out of the dug-outs to start another game.

But the best can be expected next year, for the ranks of the best team will, for the most part, be intact. So, in a final farewell, we say congratulations Capt. Nelson Lindstrand and your team. You have done Fort Benning and the Army proud.

Some little man in a striped shirt will sound the kick-off whistle Saturday, and the 1947 edition of the Fort Benning grid team will hustle down the 100 yards of ground at Cherry Point, N. C., as the Doughs open their grid season. Combat nervousness hasn't been too pronounced in the Benning camp this week, but it is safe to say that most of the squad is wondering just how their power will stack up Saturday. The team is certainly in shape, since Butch Kendrick, hard working Dough grid mentor, has put his boys through the roughest sort of drills and workouts since they started their pre-season practice back in August.

Kendrick had to start from scratch with his team, for of the 100 men that turned out for the initial workout, only one letterman from last year was present. Bob Selbert, who had seen a lot of action with All-American eleven, was the only man back. Great names like John Green and Dick Pitzer, both All-Americans from Army, who had played such sensational ball during the 1946 season were gone. Johnny Bauer, the Dough's little pack of dynamite, was off for school and a further assignment.

Where could Kendrick start? Who was the man he could select and train to build his offense around? What formation would be best suit his squad? These and many more questions faced the newly appointed coach. He had but one alternative—trial and error. But after six weeks of hard work, continuous revamping of line-ups, and steady planning, the Doughboys are more than ready for their initial gridiron clash.

Injuries plagued the squad for a few weeks, but most of the bruised bones have healed, and the team will be ready by Saturday. Capt. Meiers, one of the sturdiest frontal men Kendrick has at his disposal, after dislocating his knee some weeks ago. Although the big tackle is only able to work in a presiding capacity, he may be ready for the Cherry Point tilt.

In addition from the baseball team, have been strengthening the backfield, lending the team more speed and a more fluid single wing formation. Dick Gerhart, who pitched fireball baseball for the Doughs last season, has been showing signs of improvement, and is expected to work up better than had even been hoped for. Gerhart will probably work out another week, before seeing any action. Exceptionally fast, with more fight than 16 ordinary men, Gerhart will no doubt be ready when the Doughs meet Parris Island at Doughboy stadium Oct. 4.

If the final criterion in predicting the merits of any team is the play of that team on the field, the Dough Point will be strong—they always have been—but we feel that Benning will be just a little better—good enough to win their first game.

Intramural basketball got under way early in the week, with the ISD the first team to take to the court. Capt. James Walker, newly appointed executive officer of Company A, Airborne regiment, has been appointed the detachment's loop coach this year.

A regular round robin schedule of games will commence Oct. 1, and continue through Nov. 30.

There is still activity at the Officers club golf course, as the Airborne golf journey advanced into match play last weekend. Capt. Nelson Lindstrand, who had clinched medalist honors with his 77, was defeated by Lt. Col. Monk Myers, 2 and 1. Captain James Whitman routed his opponent Capt. Clyde Carroll by an overwhelming 2 and 1. Captain Herbert Bench retired Maj. C. L. Warren from competition by a 2 and 1 score.

Sport Quiz

(AFPS) — 1. The first night baseball game was played in: 1883, 1893, 1923, 1933?

2. The record for the most consecutive scoreless innings pitched in World Series competition is held by: Walter Johnson, Ty Cobb, Christy Mathewson, Babe Ruth, Rube Waddell, Frank Baker?

3. A Notre Dame quarterback with the same name as one of the greatest writers who ever lifted pen and whose passes to Wayne Miller are part of the Irish football legend, made the All-Americans about a decade ago. Name him.

4. Why does a golf ball have dimples instead of being smooth surfaced?

ANSWERS

1. In 1883, at Fort Wayne, Indiana. Seventeen lights of 4,000 candle power were used.

2. Ruth. He hurled 29-2-3 scoreless frames in the era before he returned to hitting for a living.

3. Bill Shakespeare.

4. Balls, traveling through space, create swirling air eddies—semi-vacuums with suction-like qualities. When they become strong enough, they check the flight of the ball and make it drop. The dimples dump air into those vacuums, so that their strength is not enough to stop the ball. Honest.

Meiers Expects To Be Ready For Opening Tilt

Carl Meiers, rough and burly tackle on the Dough's grid team, is back for duty with the squad, after recovering from a dislocated knee he suffered in a practice some weeks ago.

The 29-year-old St. Paul bonecrusher, had been one of Coach Kendrick's most dangerous linemen, and should be ready for the opener against Cherry Point, the Dough's front line will be greatly strengthened.

Meiers will be travelling with the team this week end, and Kendrick has voiced hope that the big, 210-pound tackle will be able to get into action.

Capt. Donald I. Schupp has been appointed public information officer for the 53rd Field Artillery battalion, military authorities revealed today. Capt. Schupp is assigned to the battalion's Headquarters and Headquarters battery.

School Troops Air Section Consolidates 'Air Force'

The Air Liaison section of School Troops has been organized as a consolidated unit under the direction of the S-3 section, it was revealed today by Lt. Col. Jack M. Duncan, S-3 of School Troops.

The organization has five L-5's and 3 L-4 planes, which formerly came under the different battalions of School Troops. The planes, usually referred to as "bubs," are used for messenger service for problems of The Infantry School.

Lt. Eugene Wilson, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, who is the air officer of this new consolidation, the air-minded leader seems to be in demand, officials said.

Each pilot is required to fly 15 hours per month. The new plan will help pilots make better use of their allotted training time.

The L-5 has a cruising speed of 70 miles per hour with a hovering speed of 30. It carries 3 1/2 hours supply of gasoline for a range of 300 miles. It has an engine rating of 185 horse power. This plane is equipped to be used as a "bitter carrier" where rapid evacuation from battle fields is necessary.

More familiar to combat men of the European theatre of operations is the L-4. This plane was used for artillery observation. It has a 65 horse power engine with a fuel supply to last 2 1/2 hours for a 150 mile range. To this plane and the observer was accredited almost uncanny skill in spotting the German "88."

Confirmation Classes Slated To Begin Soon

Episcopal confirmation classes are scheduled to begin at once and anyone interested in the Episcopal church is requested to get in touch with Chaplain (Mal.) Emmett G. Jones at the post chapel, it was announced today by Chaplain Jones' telephone number is 2112.

wing, Greeney, Capt. Robert W. Tindall and Capt. John E. Rice, Langley field, Va.

In 1943 when Col. Smith was the chaplain at Lawson, the base chapel, which is located on a hill light, inspired him to write and across the street from the beacon light, inspired him to compose the words to a hymn which he set to the music of "The Little Brown Church in the Woods." He named it "There's a Chapel on the Hill."

To this day the hymn is a favorite at chapel services, according to Chaplain John Brydson, base chaplain, and hundreds of copies have been mimeographed and distributed. When informed that his hymn was still included in the chapel hymn book, the author said he was happily surprised.

"I thought it had been forgotten here long ago," he said modestly.

The words to his three verse hymn are as follows:
"There's a Chapel on the hill by the beacon,
No spot is so dear to my knowledge,
No little white church on the hill.

"O come, come, come—Come to the Chapel every Sunday.
O come to the Chapel on the hill.
No spot is so dear to my knowledge,
No little white church on the hill.

"How sweet on a clear Sunday morning,
To listen to the church bugle call,
Its tones so sweetly are calling,
Come to the Chapel on the hill."

Col. Smith, a minister of the Christian church, is a native of Medicine Lodge, Kan., and a graduate of the Bible College of Phillips university, Enid, Okla. He joined the Reserve Corps as a first lieutenant in 1936 at Stafford, Kan., where he was pastor of the Stafford, Christian church. In January, 1942, he was called to active duty.

He was assigned to Lawson field from Langley field, Va. in September, 1942, and joined the 50th Troop Carrier wing at Pope Field, S. C. for overseas assignment in May, 1943. His tour of duty in Europe extended until April, 1946, and prior to returning home, he did graduate work at Cambridge university, Cambridge, England.

His wife is the former Miss Pearl L. Martin of Medicine Lodge. They have two sons, Arthur, 18, a student at Phillips university, and Bob, 18, attending high school at Greenville, S. C., where they make their home.

ial armada participating in the demonstration.

In addition to firing as part of the aerial demonstration, the fast jets will escort Fairchild C-82 Flying Beavers loaded with airborne troops and patrol the area about the target for scores of miles.

Approximately 2,500 service school students are scheduled to attend Operation Combine, which is designed to show the latest techniques and developments of air facilities co-operation with ground units.

The presentation to each class will include the following: reconnaissance, intelligence lectures, model and equipment displays, planning conferences for joint operations center, a tour of advance headquarters, and a tactical air demonstration employing fighter planes, bombers, jet-propelled reconnaissance aircraft and troop carrying aircraft and gliders.

The First Fighter group, oldest fighter group in the Air Forces, whose past members included such names as Rickenbacker, Arnold, Spaatz, and Matouev was one of the first postwar air units to fly jet-propelled aircraft.

Air Force Testing New Jet Fighter

The Curtiss XP-57, the Army Air Forces' newest fighter airplane and the first ever powered by four jet engines, has been removed from its hangar at the Columbus, Ohio, plant of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, to begin ground and test tests. The jet power plants are manufactured by Westinghouse Electric corporation.

Operated by a two-man crew, the airplane has a wing span of approximately 60 feet and an overall length of approximately 65 feet. It is designed to operate under the most extreme weather conditions and will incorporate the latest development in anti-icing equipment.

Assigned To Faculty

Lt. Norman A. Melton, formerly with the 25th Infantry regiment, has been assigned to the faculty of the Food Service school here and will teach mess management and food service supervision. Maj. Patrick C. Dean, school commandant, announced today.

New Promotion Plan To Begin During October

The Army's new promotion system will get under way next month when selection boards meet in Washington to consider officers for promotion to the permanent grades of colonel, brigadier general and major general.

The selection boards will study the records of about 2,000 officers. The number of promotions which will result from the boards' recommendations has not yet been determined. Similar boards for the selection of officers in the grades of captain, major and lieutenant colonel probably will not begin operation until early next year.

No Air Corps officers will be included in the selection boards' deliberations. Separate boards will be established by the Air Force.

Prerequisites for officers to be considered for promotion by the October boards are:

To major general, Regular Army: All permanent brigadier generals and all officers with 30 years service as of Dec. 31, 1947, who have served as temporary general officers.

To brigadier general, Regular Army: All permanent colonels and all officers with 25 years service as of the end of this year who have served as temporary generals.

To colonel, Regular Army: All permanent lieutenant colonels with 20 years service as of the close of 1947 and all officers with 18 years service who have served as temporary generals.

Promotion eligibility will be extended to Medical, Dental and Veterinary Corps officers and to chaplains along somewhat similar lines.

These are initial promotions to the grades mentioned. After June 30, 1949, the law prescribes that officers must serve a minimum of one year in the next lower permanent grade.

NG Squadrons Slated To Get Shooting Stars

Three fighter squadrons strategically located throughout the United States have been selected to receive the first allocation of the jet-propelled P-80s Shooting Stars ordered for the air arm of the National Guard, Major General Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced today. Delivery of the new aircraft is expected to begin prior to June 30, 1948.

They are the 132d Fighter squadron of the Maine National Guard, based at Dow Field, Bangor, Maine; the 173d Fighter squadron of the Nebraska National Guard, based at the Lincoln Army Air Base, Lincoln, Nebraska; and the 196th Fighter squadron, based at the San Bernardino Army Air Base, San Bernardino, California. The 196th and 173d Squadrons now are equipped with P-51 Mustangs, and the 132d Squadron with P-47 Thunderbolts.

The Army Air Forces recently announced that a $2,500,000 procurement order for an additional 32 P-80's has been placed with the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, bringing to 86 the number on order for the Air National Guard. The P-80B is an improved version of the earlier "Shooting Star," featuring greater fire power and greater resistance to battle damage.

"The problem of supply and maintenance were major considerations in the selection of fighter squadrons," General Miltonberger said. "The Regular Air Forces have a P-80 Group at Dow Field and a P-80 group at March field near San Bernardino, and there is an AAF supply depot at Okla.ahoma City which will serve Lincoln AAB."

Only six airfields in the entire United States at which the National Guard facilities can accommodate the P-80s, which require runways of at least 7,000 feet at sea level.

"Eight-week transition course for National Guard pilots who will fly the jet fighters have been scheduled between January 3 and January 17, 1948, at Williams field, Chandler, Arizona," said General Miltonberger.

Thirteen pilots from each of the three selected squadrons will be eligible to attend this school, and upon successful completion of the course will be utilized to check out all remaining pilots of the squadron.

Plans also are being made to provide transition training for approximately 33 qualified airplane and engine mechanics from each squadron during the period from January 1 to May 31, 1948. The duration of the mechanical transition courses will be from six to eight weeks.

... Joins AGF Board

Lewis Assigned To Board No. 3

The roster of AGF Board No. 3 has been amplified by the addition of T-Sgt. Lee R. Lewis, formerly section chief of the liaison section with AGF Board No. 4, Fort Bliss, Texas, it was announced today.

T. Sgt. Lewis, in his new assignment, will be test NCO and will assist in the numerous tests conducted by AGF Board No. 3.

Hailing from Abbeville, Ind., Sgt. Lewis entered the army in January, 1941 and later attended Officer Candidate school here after serving two years as an enlisted man. During the war he served as a captain in the 20th Infantry regiment of the 8th division. He reenlisted as a technical sergeant in June of this year.

During his 26 months overseas, Sgt. Lewis acquired a number of ribbons and medals, including the Asiatic-Pacific theater ribbon, Philippines Liberation ribbon, American defense, American Theater, and Army of Occupation ribbons, Bronze star, Silver star, and Combat Infantry badge. He participated in the battle of Matfin Bay (Sarrail), Sanspore, New Guinea, Luzon and served with the Army of Occupation in Korea.

Berrien To Teach Firing Principles To Post Truckers

If the personnel of 204th Transportation battalion fail to qualify with their weapons on the range, it will not be because they have not had proper coaching.

Men of the 204th will be coached and taught mechanics of marksmanship by one of the best qualified instructors on the post, 1st Sgt. Troy Berrien, who holds the distinguished Marksman medal.

Sergeant Berrien won the medal against the toughest competition in the country at Camp Perry, Ohio. To be eligible for the award, three "legs" must be won in as many consecutive years. To win a "leg" the rifleman must post a score in the top 140 of approximately 2,000 competitors.

Sergeant Berrien first fired in the national matches at Camp Perry in 1930 as a representative of the 144th Infantry regiment. He returned to competition in 1936 and the next two years to qualify for the medal.

Sergeant Berrien has been in the country 27 years, 20 of them at Fort Benning.

Division To Stage 2-Day Convention

Veterans of the 29th (Blue and Gray) Division association will hold their annual reunion in Asbury Park, N. J., October 11 and 12, it has been announced by Milton E. Broome, Washington, D. C. association secretary.

The 29th division was organized at Fort McClellan, Ala., in July 1917 and served overseas in World War I, it was inactivated in May, 1919. Reorganized in February, 1941, it was given combat training at Fort Meade, Md., and Camp Blanding, Fla., and departed for Europe in October, 1942.

The 29th participated in the Normandy invasion, the capture of St. Lo, and the fighting in Germany. After VE Day, the Blue and Gray Division served on occupational duty in Bremen.

Upon return to the United States in January, 1946, the 29th was inactivated, and was later designated as a National Guard division for the states of Maryland and Virginia.

Veterans of the 29th Division desiring further details on the two-day reunion are asked to write Mr. Broome at 1710 New York avenue, N. E., Washington 2, D. C.

Team from Infantry Center headquarters, will be of the continuing type. No schedules of inspections will be furnished in order not to interfere with demonstrations and normal school activities. The inspector general will directly contact commanding officers or heads of activities concerned, regarding dates and order of inspection.

Troops will be inspected in ranks and equipment will be displayed in quarters. All unit or organizational records, Army regulations, files or memoranda, directives, orders from higher headquarters, company orders, menus, mess records, food handlers' certificates, mail order's authorization and records, council book and unit fund account, records of property, classified documents, and copy of last annual general inspection report will be made available to the inspector general upon arrival at the unit to be inspected.

Mathis To Get Hawaiian Post

Chaplain (Capt.) Robert B. Mathis, School Troops chaplain, has been alerted for overseas shipment to Hawaii, it was learned today.

Chaplain Mathis, a graduate of Baylor university, entered the service at Camp Robinson, Ark., in November 1941. His first assignment was with the reception center at Fort Logan, Colo. The following year he was transferred to the Alaskan department, serving at Fort Randall and on Kodiak island until he returned to the States in March 1944.

After a month's duty at Fort Bliss, Tex., Chaplain Mathis went to Europe, where he was stationed at Ghent, Belgium with the 17th

Recruit Caravan Readies For Tour

Something new in the way of recruiting will be undertaken by School Troops units here.

The most colorful recruiting caravan in the history of Fort Benning will embark October 3, it was revealed this week by Col. Charles F. Royce, School Troops commander.

In an effort to increase the army enlistment program for his unit, Col. Royce is launching a unique recruiting program that calls for a full coverage of the highways and by-ways of Georgia in a nine-day tour.

British Officer Group Visiting Infantry Center

A group of top-drawer British Army officers, headed by Maj. Gen. Arthur A. B. Dowler, KBE, CB, director of Infantry for the British War Office, are observing training methods here on the second half of a tour of several U. S. military installations.

Accompanied by Brig. M. W. Alston-Roberts-West, DSO, commander of the British School of Infantry, Col. J. Campbell, British Army staff, Washington, Lt. Col. J. O. Crewle-Read, British War Office, and Lt. Col. Sidney V. Singham Jr., aide and tour conductor, the general arrived by plane at Lawson field Sunday at 4:30 p. m. and was met by a guard of honor and Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the Infantry Center.

Monday morning the group witnessed the infantry fire power demonstration at Hook range, and that afternoon was on hand at Helmet trail for the infantry-artillery-armor team in attack.

The Airborne section was on the itinerary for Tuesday morning, and the battalion in a defense problem was viewed during the afternoon.

Wednesday Gen. Dowler visited the coordinator of training and the operation section at the Infantry Center.

ENLIST NOW US ARMY

Highlight of Course

Today's show is the highlight of the week-long Operation Combine which began here last Monday morning when more than 400 students from the Command and General Staff college witnessed an infantry fire power demonstration at Hook range.

The appearance of the Shooting Stars, 12 B-29 Superfortresses will fly over the ball.

"We know that there are a lot of men in the state of Georgia who would like to get back into the Army, and many more who would like to join if they could only be shown and explained the advantages offered," Col. Royce said.

Men chosen to represent the units of School troops in this drive are S-Sgt. R. D. Irwin, 78th Engineers; Pfc. Donald J. Madden, 501st; Cpl. Robert White, 37th Infantry, and T-4 C. F. Henry, mess sergeant. The men will be under the direction of T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelley, recruiting sergeant. This group intends to see personally as many men as possible in the nine-day tour and to explain the highlights of the service and its many advantages, officials said.

The caravan will leave Fort Benning October 3. It will be in Milledgeville October 4, Blakely Oct. 5, Gainesville Oct. 6, Thomasville Oct. 8, Valdosta Oct. 9, Tifton Oct. 10, Cordele Oct. 11, and Americus Oct. 12.

MPs Celebrate Corps Birthday

Another chapter has been written in the annals of the Military Police Corps as the Military Police Detachment celebrated the anniversary of the corps with a barbecue last Thursday and Friday.

Featured by the cutting of a huge 200-pound birthday cake by Col. Wiley M. O'Mahandoo, commanding officer of the 340th Army Service Unit, the gathering of Section No. 1 at Victory lodge was well attended on both days of the affair. The outing, which was held two days in order to give all personnel of the M. P. detachment an opportunity to attend, featured a complete program with approx-

Air-Ground Show Slated For Today

First In Series Of Spectacular Demonstrations

Civilians will mingle with high ranking Army officers this afternoon at Dekker strip when Ninth Air Force combines its aerial might with ground force units to present the first in a series of demonstrations designed to show the air-ground team in action.

The spectacular demonstration of U. S. military might, sequel to last spring's Air Indoctrination course will get underway promptly at 1:50 p. m. when two P-50 Shooting Stars of the 333rd Photo Reconnaissance group zoom over the target area on a photo mission.

During the air-ground show today practically every type of tactical aircraft will join forces to present a mammoth display of U. S. air power.

Following the appearance of the Shooting Stars, 12 B-29 Superfortresses will fly over the ball.

Sergeant Reverses Situation, Captures His Kraut Captors

Among the many combat-seasoned students attending courses at the Infantry School this year is T-Sgt. Harry E. Younklin, assigned to the Student Training regiment's B Company, who claims the unique distinction of being a German prisoner for the shortest time of the war.

Sgt. Younklin was in Germany with the First Infantry division in late October 4, Blakely Oct. 5, Gainesville Oct. 6, Thomasville Oct. 8, Valdosta Oct. 9, Tifton Oct. 10, Cordele Oct. 11, and Americus Oct. 12.

Much to the consternation of Sgt. Younklin and his companion, the Germans, instead of surrendering as was usual under such circumstances, quickly made them prisoners. Mounting the sergeants' jeep the Germans ordered them to drive to the front.

Fortunately, however, the first village they entered was American-occupied, and upon arrival there, the two sergeants effected a complete reversal of the situation. The Germans became their prisoners, and the Americans became the two shortest term prisoners of the war.

Sgt. Younklin has been in the Army 12 years and has eight brothers who saw military service during World War II. He spent his childhood in the South Pacific.

At the end of the radio repairman's course at the Communication School here he will return to the Second Infantry division at Fort Lewis, Wash.

AIRBORNE MESSENGER—An R-5-F helicopter hovers over Lawson field during a practice mission in preparation for Operation Combine which got under way here this week. Helicopters of the 163rd Liaison Squadron at Marshall field, Fort Riley, Kans., will deliver message during the big aerial demonstration scheduled for 2 p. m. today.

Winter Uniform Is Now Optional

The wearing of either the winter or summer uniform has been declared optional for officers and enlisted men, when off duty, during the period from October 1 to October 31, it has been announced.

Effective at reveille, November 1, the uniform for all personnel will be winter. When the winter uniform is worn a necktie is required.

15 Units Enter Motor Exhibition

Entries from practically all the units competing in the Infantry Center motor show scheduled at Blue and French fields on October 29-30 have already been received, officials announced today.

Ribbons for winners in competing classes have been secured and the program, in its final stages, is expected to be completed next week.

Fifteen units are entered, including the static display and the drivers' competition. Nine drivers will vie for honors in the Jeep drivers' competition Oct. 26 at French field. Eight drivers entered in the two and one-half ton vehicle contest and nine more will battle for the Jeep tire-changing championship on the same day.

The show will begin Saturday morning, October 26, with the motor vehicle display at Blue field. In addition to competition in vehicle classes, the program will also include the various drivers' competition at French field Sunday, October 26.

Work on the drivers' course, to be constructed at French field, is expected to get under way soon. The show, open to the public, will also give the spectators a good look at some of the most modern mobile units in the Army.

Major A. E. Pendley, Q.M.C., has been selected master of ceremonies for the occasion.

Army's Signal Chief Expected In Early October

Major General Spencer B. Akin, chief signal officer, is expected to arrive here October 6 for observation of matters relating to the Signal Corps.

Prior to his appointment as chief signal officer, General Akin served as chief of staff of the U. S. Army Forces in the Far East and as chief of the civil and postal communications section on the staff of the Supreme Commander, Allied powers in the Pacific.

Served Under MacArthur

General Akin's war service was entirely in combat under General Douglas MacArthur. He was assigned to the Philippine Islands in 1941 and became signal officer of the U. S. forces in the Far East. In March 1942 he accompanied General MacArthur to Australia, and served as chief signal officer throughout the subsequent Philippine campaigns, during southwest Pacific operations, and in the Japanese occupation. He also served as chief of Signal Intelligence service and chief of Radar and

Utilization Program Undertaken Here

Initial action in the survey for electrical utilization program conducted by the Army is being undertaken here, Post engineer officials have announced.

Leroy D. Martin, chief electrical engineer of the Third Army, who paid a two-day visit this week in connection with the program, is conducting the survey.

The survey, begun sometime ago by the Army, is getting under way here and it is anticipated that developments will be extended to all Army posts and installations throughout the country.

The Pathfinders will lead the way for a mass jump of paratroopers from other C-82s including artillery troops. Eight CG-15 gliders will then be released by four C-82s. The gliders will carry additional airborne artillerymen. A resupply mission will be carried out by three C-52 Packets.

Dive-bombing, aerial dog-fights, rocket attacks, strafing and laying of smoke screens by various types of Ninth Air Force aircraft will consume the remainder of the afternoon. The show will end at 3:30 p. m. when an R-57 helicopter lands in front of the stands with photographic equipment.
 Many top-flight Army, Navy and Marine officers are here for the gigantic air-ground show, including Lt. Gen. Leonard Gerow, commander of the Command and General Staff college who arrived late yesterday.

The Infantry School will provide night vision demonstrations for the visitors tonight, followed tomorrow afternoon by the final exhibition. The last of the students are expected to leave Fort Benning during the week end.

General Gerow Arrives For Operation Combine

Lt. Gen. Leonard Gerow, commandant of the Command and General Staff college, arrived here Wednesday afternoon at 5 p. m. to witness the maximum air-ground demonstration at Dekker strip this afternoon.

More than 200 students from the Fort Leavenworth college he commands arrived last week end for week-long demonstrations by the Infantry School and Ninth Air Force.

Russ Pool's Efficiency Attributed To Sergeant

People who enjoy the excellent swimming facilities that Russ pool has to offer probably do not realize how much work and supervision is required to operate a pool of this type efficiently.

All this excellent direction can be attributed to S-Sgt. Homer R. Pope, who has been connected with Russ pool in various capacities for more than 23 years.

When Sgt. Pope first came to Fort Benning in June, 1923, there was just a dam and a mud hole in place of the modern pool which stands there now. Work was started to improve the pool in 1924 by the boys are senior life-guards.

Sgt. Pope left Fort Benning in 1941 for duty in Texas and later served overseas with the 760th Tank battalion for two years.

5 Win Promotions

Five enlisted members of the Infantry school detachment were awarded promotions during the past week, officials have revealed. Sgt. Frederick E. Herriot, Company C, was raised to the grade of staff sergeant, while Pvt. Willie Myers, S-Sgt. Harry Gould, T-4 P. Brown, Charlie W. Chaney, Jack Odum, T-5 John Luke, Pvt. Malcolm Greenidge and Pvt. Four Awarded Army Medals

In an official ceremony and review Saturday morning on Silverwell field a Silver Star, Purple Heart with oak leaf cluster and two Bronze Star medals were awarded to four men by Col. Charles H. Royce, commanding officer of School Troops.

T-5 Joseph R. Powers of Company B, ISD, was given the Silver Star while T-5 Ralph E. Blaylock of the 56th Ordnance company received the Purple Heart award. Bronze Star medals were presented to Capt. Francis E. Neighbour, Company H, ISD and Pfc. Jacob D. Rhymer, First battalion, 37th Infantry.

Music for the ceremony was furnished by the 72nd Army band and also in the parade were the First battalion, 37th Infantry, 294th Transportation battalion, 78th Engineer battalion; Headquarters and Headquarters company, 37th Infantry, and the 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

Monteith Assigned Four New Duties

Lt. R. E. Monteith has been appointed public information, information and education, athletic and recreation, and soldier voting officer for the 760th Tank battalion, it was disclosed this week.

Lt. Monteith, who enlisted in the Army in 1939, graduated from Officer Candidate School here in 1942. He served with the Sixth Infantry division's 63rd regiment in the Pacific during the New Guinea and Philippine campaigns. He was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star for participation in those campaigns. Lt. Monteith returned to the States in November 1945 for reassignment to Germany for duty with the Third Constabulary brigade at Stuttgart. He has been assigned to the 760th since January.

Grant Named Assistant S-1

Capt. Phillip S. Grant, who recently returned from Europe, has been assigned to School Troops headquarters as assistant S-1, military authorities announced today.

Capt. Grant, who graduated from the United States Military academy at West Point, N. Y., is the son of Maj. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. W. S. Grant.

He first came to Fort Benning in 1944 to attend the Officers' Basic course. Assigned to the 71st division, the captain served overseas with the unit as S-2 of the 66th Infantry regiment. Later with the Ninth division's 47th Infantry regiment, he was a company commander and S-4.

Prior to coming here he was a personnel officer in the First division at Camp Saurburn military post near Munich, Germany. He was announced to school day. He has been in the Army since graduation from high school at Irwin, Kans., in 1945.

Watch Out For Colds

The Bayonet does not pretend to be a medical doctor, but we believe that we have a few ideas regarding the prevention of colds that would bear passing along. This sudden onslaught of cooler weather has caused not a few persons here on the post to have red noses, the sniffles, and stuffed up nasal passages.

Most of these discomforts can be minimized, if not entirely eliminated, provided we follow a few simple rules of precaution. As the old saying goes, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Being a bit old-fashioned, we still place a great deal of faith in the adage.

Plenty of fresh air is a prime requisite for preventing the old red nose, regardless of what anyone might think. When going to bed at night, it is always a wise procedure to open a window. By the same token it is not wise to sleep with your head in a draft.

Secondly, there should be blankets on the bed. When retiring, it may not be necessary to use more than a sheet since the earlier part of the evening is usually much warmer than the so-called "winds of Spring," it is sensible to have another blanket handy to put into use when the winds get higher.

When going out in the evening, despite the apparent warmth of the night air, it is always a good habit to carry along some sort of coat or jacket, for these Georgia nights are often deceitful. Although the temperature is somewhere around the middle seventies at 8 p. m., it can take a sudden lurch for the bottom of the mercury tube a few hours later.

Attending outside sports activities is another way to wake up with swollen eyes the next morning. Provided these simple rules have not been followed. Always carry a wrap of some sort, and even though it might become exceedingly warm in the stands during a particular spectacular play, it should be kept on.

Getting wet and then failing to change into dry clothes as soon as possible is an easy way to be sorry the next day, and for days afterward. Wearing worn shoes on wet ground is also likely to lead to a cold.

Actually, colds are minor ailments, and we all suffer their inconveniences at some time during our lives. However, there can be serious complications provided we do not abide by these little "do's and don't's."

If, in spite of precaution, a cold swooped down, report at once to the dispensary for professional treatment. If properly attended at the beginning, there is no cause for alarm and few will last even a day from work.

None of us enjoy colds because they make us irritable, to say nothing of the aches and pains which can often accompany. But it is not necessary to suffer their discomforts. Just exercise simple judgment, and your cold need never appear at all.

'KIND WORDS'

Chaplain T. F. RAFFERTY

Chaps nowhere - are kind words spoken with greater effect than in an army. They may be spoken over the bed where a man suffers from physical or mental pain. They may be spoken anywhere. The subordinate looks to his superiors for the spoken word of kindness which will help him to overcome the sadness of the hour, or the time, and is disappointed if, instead, he receives only harshness or rebuke.

Kind words are the music of the world. They have a power which seems to be a power which comes from the heart, as if they were some angel's gift which had lost its way and come to earth to sing undyingly, smiling the peace of heaven into the hearts of men with sweetest sounds and in-lining for the right and angelic nature into us.

RAFFERTY

They seem to do what God alone can do - to lift the hard and angry hearts of men. Many a friendship, long, loyal, self-sacrificing and first on a thicker foundation than a kind word. The two soldiers were each one regarded the other with mistrust. They had possibly been set against each other by a rivalry, regarded by one as the enemy with the success of the other. A kind word, perhaps a mere report of a kind word, was enough to set all things right and to be the commencement of an enduring friendship.

Kind words produce happiness. Let us think of how often we ourselves are unable to explain. Thus kind words, by their power of producing happiness, have also the power of producing holiness and so winning men to God. They prepare men for conversion. They convert them.

But those who hitherto have been abusing our God-given authority to make life tough for our subordinates by our choice of harsh and cruel words for our subordinates, or our choice of a white on the virtue of kindness. Let us bear in mind how much more is accomplished by kindness, especially by a kind word.

Your Red Cross

MURRAY E. HILL

It's not a bad idea, this being in the Army. The Army provides everything for a man's material needs: housing, food, clothing, training, medical care.

But a lot of things can happen to a man during his service: wife ill, family allowance delayed, new baby, business troubles, mother needs operation, etc.

Suppose something does go wrong at home or you do have a personal problem - that's where we come in. Let the Red Cross help him that burden off your "aching back."

The 3,746 chapters located in counties all over the U. S. give you the Red Cross field director here access to every community in the country. Home service in your local chapters can be direct contact with your family and offer a helping hand.

Let us big as it is, the Red Cross can do everything. For example, while it can not grant a leave, it can help make up the family income, trouble your commanding officer, and help you turn grant a furlough. If an emergency arises, it can help after verification from the chapter and transportation is needed, we can help you get home. Tell your family to set their local Red Cross chapter if an emergency arises when you are absent at home. If you have an emergency that arises between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m., contact your officer-of-the-

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of columns dealing with the important events of World War II, a chronicle depicting the progress and highlights that mark each day of the struggle. Today's column recalls the events between Sept. 26 and Sept. 30.

THE MONEYMAN

From the pen of Thomas B. Costain, one of America's foremost contemporary authors, has come another historical novel designed to take its place in the ranks of the best of the genre. This time, Costain includes the Black Rose, the story of a great conspiracy and a great love. The Moneyman, Mr. Costain's best to date.

Sept. 26: Six years ago today was known as the Battle of Britain. It was set aside to commemorate the deeds of the RAF, the anti-aircraft gunners, the Civil Defense and the Royal Observer corps, the aircraft workers during the trial by bomb and fire in 1940 and 1941. Of the Royal Air Force, Prime Minister Churchill stated, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Many authors have tried, most of them without marked success, to recapture the era during which Charles XII of France was the ruling monarch, during the fiery days of the Hundred Years' War, and during the days of unbelievable fashions; but not until Mr. Costain published The Moneyman have we had such a superb story of romance and action.

Sept. 27: Six years ago today was Liberty Day. The celebration 14 Liberty ships were launched. These ships were a part of the United States defense program which was speeding into action, a program which was to become a United Nations in four short months.

Normally, as in the hands of the English, Charles XII is on the throne, and the court is packed with corrupt and unscrupulous members of the nobility, there emerges a commoner, called Jacques Coeur, who has the Midas touch, a man who has the love for his country, who has a Frenchman's understanding.

Sept. 28: Six years ago today Adolf Hitler ordered the execution of Heinrich Heide and Reichprokurator Bohemia-Moravia. There followed immediately a "reign of terror" in which innocent Europeans were brutally slaughtered by criminal Heide, whose atrocities earned him the title of hangman. The name and personality will live forever in infamy.

Unfortunately for France - the economic situation in the country is desperate. Only Jacques Coeur, the King's moneyman, has any great amount of wealth. The people of France earnestly desire to be themselves of the English invader, but the King has no money with which to buy the aid of the king's mistress, the beautiful Agnes Sorel. The moneyman is able to persuade the King to accept his wealth for the expedition.

Sept. 29: Five years ago today the forces of the United Nations reentered a ridge on the south side of Mount Moresby, 36 miles from Port Moresby, New Guinea. The great victories have been won. The blood of the war has erased these early gains from the memories of many, but these victorious victories which were won in 1940 had tremendous importance. They led to the defeat of the Japanese which we find so difficultly in remembering.

The campaigns are a success but the King is not the same. His spirit is, on her deathbed. She urges the moneyman to select a new mistress, so that her plans may be carried out. Here the intrigue begins and develops into one of the world's most infamous trials. Although everything turns out according to history in the end, one can hardly fail to be completely captivated by the action-packed drama which unfolds so carefully and smoothly.

Sept. 30: Five years ago on Sept. 30 in 1942 Adolph Hitler made a speech. He said and we quote: "The German war effort is a gigantic success and no human being shall ever again be taken away from that spot." Hitler's bling will not bring his real handwriting on the wall. The irony of that speech was that Hitler probably believed what he was saying, but the world soon found out differently.

Mr. Costain has a gift. He can mix history with fiction, drama with comedy, and reality with the unreal. He writes so skillfully that the reader finds it hard to differentiate between fact and fiction. His style and research of the period about which he writes have paid off to the reader by giving him a novel long to be cherished. Without doubt, Costain is the most accurate and interesting historical novelist of this era. His work has passed the amateurish Daphne du Maurier and the unlikeliest works of Somerset Maugham.

(Editor's Note: Next week will begin a new series of This Day Book shelves of the Battle of World War II. It will present a chronicle of American events and incidents of the history of our nation.)

If history books were as charmingly and entertainingly presented as the historical novels of Thomas B. Costain, our children would all make "A's" on their report cards.

"You've already had leave, Ferguson, to see your wife off on her journey, for your mother-in-law's funeral - for your little girl's funeral - for your boy's christening. What is it?"

"I'm going to get married, sir."

"I draw the line at kissing," she said in accents firm. But he was a football hero. So of course he crossed the line.

Rapid Reunions For GI Families In Europe Seen

General improvement in transportation and housing conditions in the European command will make it possible for personnel authorized transportation and housing at government expense to have their dependents follow them closely and, in many cases, to accompany them to European posts. It was announced today by the Department of the Army. Full implementation of the accelerated program is expected by November.

Personnel affected are Army and Air Force officers, warrant officers, enlisted men of the first three grades, and civilian employees above the grade of CAF-6 or its equivalent, who serve with the Army or Air Force in Europe. It was emphasized that in order to coordinate the movement of qualified personnel with that of their dependents, it will be necessary in some instances to have dependents quartered temporarily in dependent centers in Europe until appropriate quarters have been obtained at or convenient to duty stations to which personnel are assigned. It is expected, however, that the improved program will shorten the period of family separation even where temporary housing in dependent centers is necessary.

Submit Lists
The European command is already submitting monthly priority lists to the adjutant general, showing the names of dependents of personnel who have quarters in European stations without their families and who have requested that their families join them overseas. These dependents are moved as quickly as possible after receipt of the lists.

In addition to dependents shown on priority lists by name, the European command will indicate the additional number of family groups that can be received during the month. This statement will be used as the basis for coordinating the movement of dependents with that of assigned personnel.

Normally orders for the assignment of personnel to European stations will be issued at least two months before embarkation in order that necessary arrangements may be made by the assigned personnel and their families.

Accommodations now available on Army transports will not as a rule permit the berthing of family units together, although the situation in that respect will improve upon completion of an extensive ship reconversion program now under way.

Meanwhile, the Department of the Army reported that the first start of the program to unite families in Europe in April, 1946, through August, 1946. Dependents have been transported to, and provided with living accommodations in, Europe. The peak monthly figure was reached in December, 1945, with the transportation of 4,357 persons.

Then there's the fellow with a stern look because his mother was frightened by the rear end of a fryboat.

Post Theater Guide

OUT OF THE PAST (melodrama) with Robert Mitchum and Jane Greer. Finding himself being used as bait for a murder trap, a private detective has to move fast to make the trap backfire on those trying to kill him. Recommended for mature.

WHEN A GIRL'S BEAUTIFUL (comedy-drama) with Adele Jergens and Marc Platt. Using six girls to fake a photograph for a perfume ad, the agency is on edge until their client demands to meet the model. Recommended for family.

HER HUSBAND'S AFFAIRS (comedy) with Lucille Ball, Franchot Tone, and Edward Everett Horton. Trying to market such screwball inventions as embalming fluid that turns people to glass, hair raising cream and "everlasting" fluid which will preserve people and materials forever, lands Franchot Tone in a pack of trouble and laughs. Recommended for family.

HEAVEN ONLY KNOWS (fantasy) with Robert Cummings, Brian Donlevy and Marjorie Reynolds. Left out of the Book of Life, Donlevy rules a town with a six-gun. To rectify the oversight, a heavenly messenger is sent to earth with instructions to straighten out Donlevy's tangled life. Recommended for family.

THE LONE WOLF IN LONDON (mystery) with Gerald Mohr and Nancy Saunders. When two fabulous diamonds are stolen, the Lone Wolf is suspected and has to trap the real thief in order to convince the police of his own innocence. Recommended for family.

SWEET GENIEVEVE (musical romance) with Jean Porter and Jimmy Lydon. Preferring a Broadway chorus to an exclusive girls' school, Jean Porter has quite a time preventing her parents from discovering the truth. Recommended for family.

Columbus Girl Weds O-C Bailey At Post Chapel

In a quiet but impressive ceremony Sept. 21 in the Post chapel, Miss Velma Pauline Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Monroe Bartlett, of Columbus, became the bride of Officer Candidate Paul O. Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Bailey of Waukegan, Ill. Chaplain Daniel P. Jenkins officiated.

Matron of honor was Mrs. J. A. Watson, sister of the bride. She wore a gray two-piece suit with a pink blouse and black accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

J. A. Watson, brother-in-law of the bride, was the best man. The bride was lovely in an aqua two-piece suit with matching blouse and wine accessories. A white orchid and purple throat completed her costume.

The groom spent four years in the Navy during the war and wears the American, European, Asiatic-Pacific theater ribbons, Navy Good Conduct medal, Japanese Occupation, and Philippine liberation ribbons and World War II Victory medal.

For the present the couple will be with the bride's parents in Columbus.

Young Dancers Entertain At Party

Members of Battery A, 63rd FA Battalion, had a party at the School Troops Best Camp September 25 with wives and friends attending. Refreshments were served and the high spot of the evening was the presentation of a floor show by a troupe of talented youngsters from the Virginia Houseman School of Dancing in Columbus.

The director and pianist was Mrs. Houseman.

Following this program of entertainment, supper was served, including southern fried chicken and all the trimmings. Dancing to recorded music and ping-pong furnished further entertainment throughout the evening.

The Pine Lodge Officers' club were given to Mesdames Nina M. was the scene of an impressive Sixth Annual ceremony Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Mildred Thomas, Louise pins were awarded to volunteers Hairrington, Mabel Miles, and Juanita Batley, who have helped with club activities during the past year. A reception followed the formal program.

Mrs. V. H. Deslandes, area director of USO-WVCA activities in Columbus, is in charge of the program and presented the volunteers who earned pins for their work. Chaplain L. A. Ellis acted as the master of ceremonies, and the opening number was a piano prelude by Sgt. Troy L. McCall.

The invocations readings were given by Capt. J. C. Robinson, Capt. William R. Royston, Lt. B. P. Smith and Lt. K. L. Thomas. The Lord's Prayer was sung by Mrs. T. W. Smith and further selected music was presented by the Army-Navy USO Trio under the direction of Mrs. Corinne F. New.

Chaplain L. M. Durden introduced Mrs. Kate L. Trent, hostess of the club, who gave the main address. Following her talk, Sgt. John E. Williams played several piano selections. Dr. J. H. Brewer, chairman of the advisory board of the USO-WVCA, awarded the pins and the program closed with a benediction by Chaplain T. R. Owens after Mrs. Dorothy Fox sang several numbers.

Pins for 500 hours were presented to Mesdames June Johnson, Gladys H. Theresa Suggs, Dorothy Cox, Mabel Burns, Edith Maecon, Sarah Penner, Ann George, and Capt. C. O. Robinson and Lt. Kenneth Thomas.

Four-1,000-hour pins went to Mrs. Mabel Logan, Virginia Stewart, Lena Wallace and Catherine Robinson. The 2,000-hour pins were awarded to Mesdames Myrtle Sneedcor, Mamie McWee, Tiny Terry, and Roala Russell. Three thousand-hour awards

Committee Set To Arrange Fall Program Of Club

The Board of Governors of the Lawson Field Officers' club has appointed an eight-man committee to take charge of the club's fall entertainment program, it was announced today.

Officers appointed to the committee were Maj. Byron E. Trent, Maj. John J. Bragg, Capt. Robert Clark, Capt. Clayton J. Suttelle, Capt. Harry Grover, Capt. Edward R. Regis, Lt. Clarence L. Hitchcock and Lt. Nunzio B. Cetaolo.

The schedule of coming events for October announced by the new committee includes a game night each Tuesday at 8 p. m. for members and their guests. The weekly dances during next month will be held on Saturday nights with a popular dance band providing the music.

The committee also announced that a gala Halloween dance is being planned for October 31.

Lawson Club Sets Halloween Party For October 25

The board of governors of the Lawson Club NCO club has released partial plans for recreational activities during October, it was announced by M-Sgt. James Vance today.

The Georgians have been engaged for the month and will play football every Saturday night except every 25. An old-time game will be given them to celebrate Halloween and costumes will be optional.

The NCO club highlighted last month's activities with a buffet-dinner dance Saturday night.

Members of the entertainment committee have announced plans also for a variety program in the form of a smoker.

CAP Cadets May Fly With 'Guard'

As a means of furthering the interest of American youth in aviation and its relation to defense of the nation, Civil Air Patrol cadets will be permitted under certain conditions, to fly with National Guard pilots on orientation flights, Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced today.

"Some 70,000 cadets throughout the United States will now be able to complement their aviation ground training by the opportunity of flying with experienced pilots in National Guard planes," General Miltonberger said.

Flights of the junior members of the Civil Air Patrol, high school students of both sexes 16 through 17 years of age, will be made only with the consent of their parents or guardians and under maximum conditions of safety.

Flights used for cadet flights will be limited to cargo types C-47 and AT-11, and AT-6 trainers and will be piloted by the most experienced and competent National Guard flyers selected by National Guard unit commanders. Flights will be under daylight conditions and limited to local flying, excluding formation flying, gunnery or any other type of flying special hazard.

As a part of the war-time Civil Air Patrol which is being continued and last year was granted a charter by Congress. Approximately 8,000 senior members, 18 through 65, many of them veterans, are being instructed in ground fundamentals of aviation, including meteorology, navigation theory, flight, and radio communications.

The Civil Air Patrol was organized a week before Pearl Harbor with 48 wings, one in each state for coastal and border patrol. A wing was recently organized in Hawaii. Base units of the CAP cadets are organized in 4,320 towns, cities and villages.

Miller Awarded Bronze Star 'Guard' Seeks More Airmen

Chaplain (Major General) Luther D. Miller, Army Chief of Chaplains today was presented with the Bronze Star medal by Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, acting chief of staff. It was awarded for Chaplain Miller's service in the Southwest Pacific as Corps Chaplain, First Corps.

Chaplain Miller was born at Leechburg, Penn., and was graduated from the Chicago Theological Seminary in 1917. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree by Trinity college, Hartford, Conn., in June 1946.

Appointed acting Chief of Chaplains in May 1945, Chaplain Miller became Chief of Chaplains in July 1945.

Among those present for the ceremony were Lt. Gen. C. F. Hall, director, Organization and Training Division; Maj. Gen. Stephen J. Chamberlain, director, Intelligence Division and Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad, director, Plans and Operations Division.

The citation follows: "Major General Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, performed meritorious service in the Southwest Pacific Area, from October 1942 to February 1943. As Corps Chaplain, I Corps, Chaplain Miller displayed marked competence and resourcefulness in organizing and coordinating the religious activities of widely separated troops. Arriving in Australia with the main elements of the Corps, he made all initial arrangements with Australian Clergymen, both military and civilian, and rendered outstanding services in maintaining the morale at high standards and assuring the welfare of those he so capably served. Through his

With the National Guard ground force air program well under way, additional qualified pilots are needed to fly the 780 latest-type observation and liaison planes assigned to ground units, Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the National Guard Bureau announced today.

"There are more than 700 vacancies still open under the program," General Miltonberger said. "Qualified pilots, particularly former AAF pilots who can pass Class I or II physical examinations, will be commissioned and authorized up to 100 hours flying time annually."

Pilots accepted for participation in the Army Ground Forces training program will be given a 30-day orientation course in the various phases of ground force, small plane operation at Fort Sill, Okla. By the end of the year approximately 600 of the light planes will be delivered to federally recognized ground units of the National Guard. They will include L-4 and L-5s, L-16 and L-17s. The L-17 is the new four-place Navion, all-terrain plane of the Army Ground Forces.

"This is an excellent opportunity for wartime pilots to keep their hand in as part of the new National Guard," General Miltonberger said.

Non-flyers meeting necessary physical and other requirements may be chosen for pilot training under the program. Those accepted will undergo an eight and one-half month course at Fort Sill and San Marcos, Texas.

exceptional organizing ability, initiative and devotion to duty, Chaplain Miller made a noteworthy contribution to the well-being of I Corps personnel."

HISTORIANS COMPILE WORLD WAR II SAGA

The War Department today released the initial volume of a new series which will give the U. S. Army and the American public the first comprehensive authoritative history of the Army's performance in war. Entitled The United States Army in World War II: The Organization of Ground Combat Troops, this volume, prepared by historians at the headquarters of the Army Ground Forces during the war, tells how the ground army was mobilized and shaped for combat.

Other volumes in "The U. S. Army in World War II" soon to appear will tell how the ground and air forces were trained, how they were directed and supplied, and how they fought their way to victory in every quarter of the globe. In this unprecedented series, the work of professional historians who have had access to the records of the War Department and who did much of the work in the Army during the war, the American public will be presented with a complete story of an army of 8,000,000 men. The Army will obtain the means of studying its experience in every aspect and students will find the records charted. Ex-soldiers will have not only a memorial of their effort and sacrifice but a means of seeing where and how they contributed to the outcome of the war.

Begins With 1940

The volume just published tells how the men who fought on the ground in World War II were forged into a team of combined arms. It begins with GHQ, activated as early as July 1940, with Major General Lesley J. McNair as its chief of staff, chosen by General Marshall to handle the great task of training field forces for modern combat.

For the great mass of men and officers being mobilized in 1940 and 1941 training had to begin from scratch. At the same time momentous decisions were being made as to what arms and types of fighting units would have to be created and trained to cope with the mechanized and mobile forces with which the Nazis were over-running Europe.

The vital role of GHQ in all these decisions is described. In the maneuvers under its direction, culminating in the fall of 1941, when two great armies were pitted against each other in Louisiana, new arms and tactics were taught and tested realistically. When war came in December 1941, General McNair was able to report that of the 34 divisions then under GHQ control 14 infantry divisions, one cavalry, and two armored divisions were ready for combat.

When the War Department and the high Army command were reorganized in March 1942, and the Air Forces became autonomous, the task of expanding, training, and shaping a balanced ground army was carried forward by General McNair, then commanding general of the new Army Ground Force. The rapid expansion of the air arm, the demands of war industry, and shipping limitations quickly led to the critical decision to develop a comparatively small force of ground arms, finally consisting of only 89 U. S. divisions, all but two of which had been committed to combat when German resistance collapsed in May 1945.

To the Army ground forces fell the task of streamlining and balancing the organization and making up of this force with economy as the goal, reasonably anticipated.

How and under what difficulties this was done is described in the present volume.

New light will be found in this volume on the major reorganization of the War Department which was carried out in March, 1942. It also traces from the first the process of incorporating into the U. S. Army new arms and organizations required to meet the modernized forces of a resourceful enemy. The result is described—the Army's development of an armored force, the creation and arming of tank destroyers, the devising of means for cooperating with air and defending against an attack, of striking with airborne forces, and landing large forces on hostile shore. It deals with successive experiments which finally gave the United States fighting teams capable of meeting the war against the professional and seasoned armies of Germany and Japan.

The volume finally reviews the lessons learned in battle about effective organization as these were embodied in plans for redeployment against Japan made in 1945 when victory in Europe came into view.

A reading of this volume is a "must" not only for officers of the armed services but for any stand-what kind of Army we had in the war and under what difficulties it was created. It is also the first installment of a large scale effort which combines first-hand experience of the war with careful scholarship, at the same time charting mass records for the guidance of future historians.

The authors of the volume are Kent Roberts, chief, colonel, ORC, formerly chairman of the department of history of Johns Hopkins university and now chief historian of the War Department; Robert B. Palmer, now professor of history at Princeton university; and Bell H. Wiley, lieutenant colonel, ORC, now chairman of the department of history at Louisiana State university. All worked at Headquarters, Army Ground Forces during the war, enjoying full access to its records and the officers who made the history recorded. Their work is published under the direction of the historical division, War Department special staff, headed by Brigadier General Harry J. Malony.

The volume is illustrated with documentary photographs, fully annotated, and is equipped with numerous charts and statistical tables and bibliographical and archival aids to further study.

The price of the volume is $3.25. It may be obtained by application to the superintendent of documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

RADIO CHECK—The radio repair section checks all radio equipment daily and performs 20-hour, 100-hour, and 1,000-hour inspections to insure perfect operation.

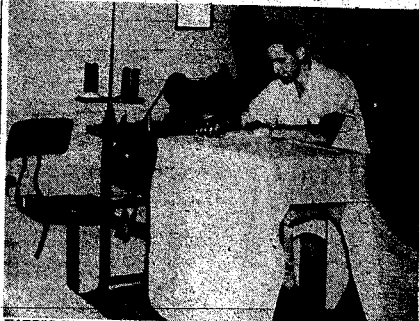

Aircraft Maintenance Vital Job At Lawson

The Aircraft Maintenance unit at Lawson field has one of the most important jobs on the base—keeping aircraft in the air. To do this job the unit is divided into various departments, each responsible for a certain section of the aircraft. All repairs made by the maintenance unit are in accordance with Air Force technical orders, and, as a result, all personnel working in this unit are skilled in the particular job to which they are assigned.

Capt. Fred Z. Gearhart, aircraft maintenance officer, and C. S. Latona, civilian aircraft supervisor, are jointly responsible for all functions of this unit. There is, in addition, a department head in each of the various sections, who serves in a supervisory capacity.

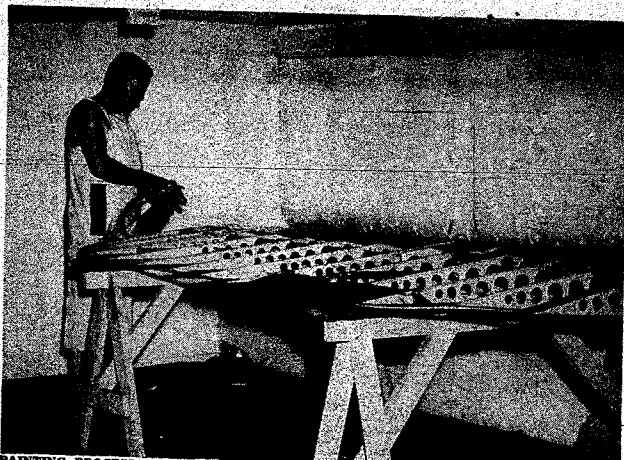

OVERHAULING PROPELLER—J. M. Chambliss, left, and C. H. McClung, propeller repairers, overhaul a quick-feathering hydro-matic propeller for a C-47 aircraft.

FABRIC DEPARTMENT—Norman Chambers, aircraft leather and fabric worker, sews busting in a warning flag used by vehicles on the flight line at Lawson field. This department is responsible for the repair and maintenance of the various parts of an aircraft where fabric is used.

CUTTING BOLTER PLATE—John Dice, foreman of the welding and heat treat department, cuts bolter plate for the manufacture of engine boxes.

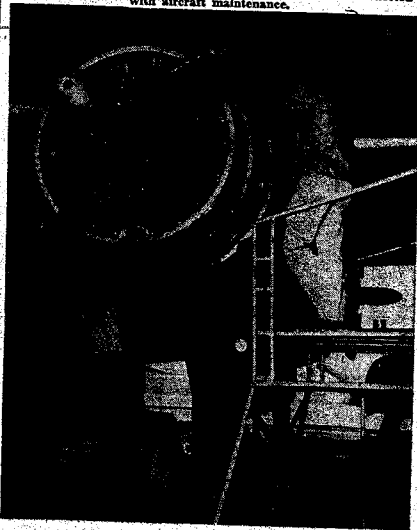

PAINTING PROCESS—Nelson Toland, foreman of the paint and dope department, applies zinc chromate primer to the control surface of a wing-tip. The painter stands facing a constant flow of water which absorbs fumes and extra paint.

MAKING WHEEL CHOCKS—Z. Colwell, left, and C. A. Owen, aircraft wood workers, cut lengths of wood for aircraft wheel chocks. The wood work department has the job of rebuilding all wooden parts on aircraft and servicing all departments connected with aircraft maintenance.

MACHINING PARTS—C. Trawick, left, general machinist, and J. F. Duke, machine shop foreman, manufacture fittings and bushings for a wing cowl. The machine shop makes aircraft parts, using precision tools and the latest Air Force machines.

ENHANCING ENGINES—H. Jacobs, rear; G. Taylor, center, and H. G. Stewart, make a complete engine change on a C-82. Mr. Jacobs and Mr. Taylor are aircraft service mechanics, and Mr. Stewart is an aircraft maintenance inspector. This department is responsible for keeping aircraft engines in Class A operating condition.

CHECKING ELECTRICAL PARTS—Felo Mirka, foreman of the aircraft electrical department, checks a voltage regulator for accuracy and efficiency.

TESTING WING COWL—Freston Strether, foreman of the hydraulic and landing gear department, tests a wing cowl taken from a C-82 aircraft.

Doughs Defeat Cherry Point, Meet Parris Island Saturday

Benning Gridders Hosts To Marines

Returning to Fort Benning with an initial victory tucked snugly beneath their belts, the Doughboys set to work this week in preparation for their Sunday meeting with the Parris Island Marines.

Determined to score a decisive win over the Parris Island eleven, ironing out failings in the Doughboy attack, both on the ground and in the air. Sunday will probably see the Doughboy backfield drastically revamped, since Kendrick hopes to appoint a combination that can supply the scoring punch that was so wanting last week at Cherry Point.

With the exception of Bill Tumminella replacing Jim Tallant at center, the Doughs' forward wall will appear as it did last week. Doughboy line play, both offensively and defensively, showed genuine spark against the Marines last week, but the offensive power seemed to bog down before the team could reach the dirt.

Fail To Score

On five different occasions at Cherry Point, Kendrick's charges marched deep into the enemy territory, but for five times the striking force failed, and the Pointers took possession of the ball on downs.

After the initial tussle, it seems that the center of the Dough line is virtually impregnable, for the Marines were unable to gain against that porous but sturdy wall. The fine play of Bob Ward and Jack Seybold at the guards was superb, and it is no doubt that those same two front-liners will get the starting berths Sunday. Carl Myers, who nursed a game knee throughout the Cherry Point tilt, came up to expectations in that his offensive and defensive performance was outstanding.

The burly 210-pound tackle smashed many plays with his fast hitting tackles. Dick Gringer, who worked the other tackle, also played excellently with men who will probably start Sunday.

Considerable changes may be expected in the Dough backfield. Eddie Roberts, who showed much running ability against the Marines, will be in line for a transfer to left half. Herebefore the 185-pound line-buster has been alternating with Bob Seibert at the fullback slot. However, because Seibert is too valuable both from an offensive and defensive standpoint, Roberts was forced to spend too much of his time looking on the quarterback position, but on the right half slot is still undetermined. A good guess for the starting berth at the other half would be Don Perody.

Evenly Matched

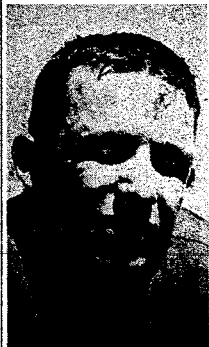

It weighs have been bearing on a football game, and that's a controversial topic, the soldier and Marine eleven will be the first pretty evenly matched. Holding a lead totals in poundage, Parris Island boasts a 400-pound average, while the Doughs aggregate weight totals an even 200. At Seatrice, Marine fullback, has the scales at 202, giving the Marines a slight edge in advantage in the backfield. Parris Island backs average 189, while the Doughs round off at 184.

Last week, Parris Island fell before Jacksonville Naval Air station 28-13, but the Flyers had to put on a closing quarter power squirt in downsing the tricky Marines. The Doughs will also meet the Jax Flyers here at a halfback, ran amuck against the Jacksonville, and added much to the Marine attack with fireball passing. Judging from the gossip, that inevitably follows a football game, Pickett will be the man to stop Sunday. Another ace back, Ed Bolton, a 189-pounder, will be doing most of the punting.

Play Fine Ball

Two formidable linemen, Pete Swezey, end, and Dan Lawson, first string center, played fine ball last week. It was reported by the Benning scouts.

Parris Island employs a modififormation be used Sunday, Frank Heagler will draw the quarterback slot. However, nearly all the Benning plays have been run from a modified single wing, and would have been most effective, save the fact that down field blocking was weak against Cherry Point.

The Parris Island eleven will arrive here in time for the Auburn-La. Tech clash Saturday. The entire team will see that game. Parris Island also scrimmaged against Auburn in early practice sessions.

Probable starting line-ups for Sunday's game are as follows:

Bench, Meyers Move Into Golf Tourney Finals

Captain Herbert Bench, and Lt. Col. "Monk" Meyers defeated their respective opponents over the week-end and moved into the final position in the Airborne golf tourney that got under way at the Officer's club course two weeks ago.

Captain Nelson Lindstrand, pre-tourney favorite, and medalist winner, dropped from the championship flight last week, when Col. Meyers belted the medalist from top flight play with his 2 and 1 decision over Lindstrand.

Captain Charles Whitman, dark-horse in the tourney, who surprised the competition with his expert putting that sent him into the championship flight, lost his footing as Monk Meyers systematically downed the game champion 2 and 1.

Capt. Bench, who has played steadily 70 golf, downed Capt. John Hoberich, 2 and 1, to clinch the finalist honors along with Colonel Meyers.

In first flight play, Major Irwin A. Edwards eliminated Capt. Robert J. Kilgus, 2 and 1, while Major Harris B. Mitchell defeated Colonel Roy Lindquist 2 and 1.

The Airborne golf crown will be decided Oct. 11 when Capt. Bench and Col. Meyers, battle it out in the championship match at the Officer's club course. The final match will be an 18-hole affair, and trophies and prizes will be presented immediately following the honor match.

Winners and runner-ups will be given trophies, while the champion will be presented with a beautiful silver cup.

Baldwin Named Leading Batter

Compiling the amazing season's average of 362, Eddie K. Baldwin, veteran 5'11 1/2, T. Bullets right fielder and infielder, once again paced his mates for the team's mythical batting crown, and as a final gesture of respect, named the Bull's most valuable player.

Baldwin's current skill at the plate was a replica of the 1946 season when he headed the Sand Hill batters with a .335.

A native of Columbus, Baldwin enlisted in the Army in 1938 and was assigned to the 24th Infantry, participating in all sports, his naturalness and skill made him a votee of baseball, football, tennis, golf and tennis.

During the war, he served both at the Asiatic-Pacific and ETO. As a member of the 107th Combat Team, later designated the 25th C. I. He is platoon sergeant of Company C, 24th Infantry, during baseball season holds down the positions of rightfield and, at times, second base.

Post Team Tallies Safety, Wins 2-0

A gale-like wind nearly turned victory into defeat Saturday afternoon, but a determined soldier forward wall stood impregnable for five downs at the goal line as the Doughboys clipped the Cherry Point Marines, in their initial 1947 clash 2-0 on a first quarter safety.

With a 35-mile an hour wind chilling players and fans alike, both teams found difficulty passing and kicking. In the final minutes of the see-saw battle, Seabert, Marine general halfback, booted with the wind, and the pigskin sailed out of bounds leaving the Doughs with their backs to the wall on their own one yard line. Two running plays gained nothing, so quarterback Bob Sealtorn called Bob Seibert to kick.

Seibert's talent to couldn't fight the wind, and the ball was downed on the Doughs' 14. Don Gholsen, hard charging Marine fullback carried it to the Dough's two-yard marker in three running

One minute and 45 seconds after Cherry Point kicked off, Captain Kendrick's charges took a 2-0 lead in the ball game on Seibert's 69-yard punt. Trying two running plays in an avail, the Doughs kicked to Cherry Point from their own 30. The ball, given an extra push by the fierce wind, bounded over halfback Quinn's head, but only after Quinn's holy fingers had slid across the bounding pigskin. Quinn scurried back into his end-zone in an attempt to recover the ball and carry it back on the field, but a host of blockers, led by Bob Ward, Jack Seybold, Jim Tallant, and Bob Seibert, swamped the helpless Quinn, and the Doughs tallied a safety.

High Wind

Cherry Point took the ball out on their own 20, but were unable to penetrate the Dough's line and kicked. Phil Secrier's punt floundered in the wind, falling short on the Cherry Point 40. Seibert totted twice for a first down on the Marine 25, while Quinn picked up four more to put the Doughs on the Cherry Point 21. But a determined Sealtorn line held fast, and the Doughs lost the ball on downs.

Great Defense

Great defensive play was the deciding factor in keeping the score so low. The Dough line was superb in its stand against Marine line barrages, and the Devil-dogs were able to pick up only 98 yards on the ground. Air defense was even more impressive as the ever watchful backers completely covered every down against Marine line smothering play after pass. Bob Ward and Jack Seibert, fast charging guards, topped the Cherry Point center time and again on all passing attempts.

Bob Sealtorn, who was in the mood throughout the game. The all round playing of fullback Bob Seibert sparked the Dough attack, both in the air and on the ground. Seibert collaborated Sealtorn, the only man who seemed to make yardage against the Kendrick aggregation, spun on a take reverse, and moved to the 30. But again, Dough defense and Carl Meyers handcuffed the Marine running attack, and Secrier was forced to kick.

A fresh Benning team took the field as the first quarter ended, and Wilbur Rees, Eddie Roberts, and Harry Sloan, carried the Doughs to the Cherry Point 19. The threat ended, however, when

Seibert Is Named Player-Of-Week

Beginning this week, the Bayonet will name a player of the week in Post football circles. This athlete will be selected by coaches and spectators alike, and his worthiness to reap this honor will be determined from his performance on the field and his sportsman-like conduct against opponents.

This week the choice of who was unanimous in naming Bob Seibert, ace fullback on the Doughboy aggregation, as the player of the week. Not only the Doughboy coaches gave their personal nods, but even the tutors of the Cherry Point Marines delegated Seibert as one of the main reasons the Doughboys came home with a victory over the rugged Leathernecks.

Bob is no novice at football, having played the game since he was a very small boy. Hailing from Lancaster, Ill., Seibert attended schools in his home town and was picked on the All-State team in 1944. After graduating, Seibert enrolled at Auburn where he had won a scholarship to play college football. After playing with the Tigers his freshman year, the call from Uncle Sam beckoned and the young Seibert and Bob entered the Army.

Took Airborne Course
Following basic training, Seibert came to Fort Benning where he successfully completed the Airborne course winning his wings late last year. He is now a member of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion.

With the coming of fall in 1946, came Bob Seibert, too reporting for practice with the All-Service team of the past season. Seibert saw heavy duty with the yearling team, holding down the first string full back slot during the final part of the season. Playing along with All-Americans John Green and Dick Pitzer, the 190-pound fullback showed more than his share of power and ability.

As the 1947 edition of the Fort Benning Doughboys came into being, Seibert evolved as the only returning letterman from last year's sensational squad. From the beginning of practice sessions, the hefty Seibert was slated for the starting berth in the Dough's opening game.

But past accomplishments are no criterion for honors of the present. Against the Cherry

A RUNNER'S HEADACHE
Although the above picture of ace fullback Bob Seibert shows his running finesse, the Cherry Point Marines are still recovering from his terrific tackles. As a result of his superb performance in the tussle with the leathernecks last Saturday, Seibert has been chosen the player-of-the-week.

Point Marines Seibert's great defense play sparked the entire Dough-team. Collaborating on at least 75 per cent of the tackles, Seibert gummed up hole after hole with his bone-breaking attacks on hopeful runners. Seibert is perhaps the best defensive man that Butch Kendrick can boast, and his work backing up has added considerably to the Dough's defensive game.

Seibert is blessed with a talented toe, which trumps the Marines into a turmoil more than one time. It was on one of Seibert's punts that the Dough's winning score came about.

During the see-saw tussle with the Leathernecks, Seibert also exhibited his aptitude in running and passing.

No other man on the team could have been selected over Seibert this week, for it was his play that stood so far ahead of all other players on the traces field.

Archers Choose Indian Arrowhead As Official Emblem

Fort Benning's Archery club now has an official mark of distinction—an Indian arrowhead, it was announced this week by the club's governor, Lt. Col. John L. Hitchings.

The adoption of the Indian arrowhead was given the nod early this week, and leather emblems will be available to members at no cost at a later date, it was also announced.

Last Sunday, following the regular afternoon shooting, they held an informal wiener roast at camp.

Bowling Alleys Officially Open At Sand Hill

By AL WISE

Inaugurated by an informal ceremony and attended by a large gathering, a six-alley bowling center was officially opened at Sand Hill Monday night for members of the 25th Infantry and 998th Field Artillery.

Lauding the efforts of Col. Robert L. Dulaney, former regimental commanding officer, and Lt. Col. Harry L. Mayfield, former regimental athletic and recreation officer, whose tireless planning and keen interest in the sports center made the largest addition possible, Col. Le Grande A. Diller, regimental commander, stated that he felt it a privilege and an honor to dedicate the new project for the benefit of all attached units concerned.

Col. Diller then introduced Lt. Col. G. Strong, regimental commander, officer, under whose supervision the alleys will be maintained. Col. Strong added that he felt a very personal interest in the alleys since they were under his charge when he shelved, under capacity at Camp Shelby, Miss.

The regimental commander then officially opened the alleys by bowling the first string. Officers, enlisted men, and their guests kept on coming at full swing until closing time.

Included among those whose efforts spurred the project toward its scheduled opening are Frank Chester, post exchange supervisor, and Capt. W. Griffin, regimental A and R officer.

Master Sergeants William T. Canine and E. Brown are the managers. The daily schedule is Monday from 6 until 10 p. m., and Friday evenings from 6 until 10 o'clock for enlisted personnel, and Wednesdays, Saturdays, and Sundays from 6 until 10 p. m. open house.

Sport Quiz

By Armed Forces Press Service
1. Did any pitcher in World Series history participate in two of the fall baseball classics more than 15 years apart?

2. Has any player ever made as many as nine hits in one major league baseball game?

3. Tradition has it that the Philadelphia Phillies always root for a filly to win the Kentucky Derby. Why?

4. Has any pitcher in major league history ever hurled shutouts in both ends of a doubleheader?

5. How much do you believe Americans will spend for sporting goods in 1947—$10,000,000; $275,000,000; $350,000,000; $425,000,000 $500,000,000?

ANSWERS

1. Yes. Herb Pennock pitched with the Athletics in the 1914 World Series and with the Yankees in 1932, both times in the relief role.

2. Johnny Burnett of the Cleveland Indians made nine hits in his 18-inning game in 1922.

3. The Phillies won their only National League pennant in 1915. Regret, the only filly ever to win the Kentucky Derby, was a victor the same year.

4. Ed Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs allowed five hits in the opener and three in the nightcap—a double shutout triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the home stretch of the 1908 pennant fight.

5. The National Association of Sporting Goods Manufacturers estimates that approximately $425,000,000 will be spent on sports goods this year.

Loop Teams Open Season October 7

Four loop teams take the floor next week as the intramural basketball league officially gets under way Tuesday, Oct. 7, with other titles will be played at the Main Post gym, while two of the Airborne A Stage gym.

All games in league competition will be played according to the official 1947-48 NAA basketball rules, while games will be scheduled on unit levels. Each team will play each other at least once during the league season, and perhaps even more often since there are 11 teams entered in the inter-post tourney. Since a round robin system will be used, no team can be eliminated from competition.

Should a team drop out of the league at any time, the wins and losses will remain as the records indicate, and all the remaining games will be forfeited to their opponents. Should any two or more teams be for first place honors, a play-off at the termination of their regular schedule will be held. At least 10 per cent of the players must be enlisted men in accordance with Army regulations pertaining to athletics.

Lists Rules
Any individual transferring from one organization to another will not be eligible to play for that unit to which he has been transferred unless that individual was transferred for military reason. In addition to other players, students will be able to play for the units to which they are assigned.

As more and more teams turn out for pre-league practices, enthusiasm mounts daily, and this year's intramural competition promises to be closer and tighter than last year's. During the 1946 league, the Airborne battalion completely dominated the entire league, exhibiting such a fine team that the strong post five team had difficulty quieting the rampant troopers. However, there will be teams this season who have a very fine chance of coping post laterals, and one of the strongest contenders promises to be the boys from the ISD.

Ken Kovales, who played varsity ball for the detachment last fall, will spark the ISD five. Being last year's returning players from around the lanky pivot-postman.

Games will be played every Tuesday and Thursday night, with two games scheduled for the Main Post gym and two others at the Airborne A Stage gym in the Airborne battalion. The first games will be played at 8:30 p. m., while secondary tilts are set for 8 p. m.

The ISD tees off against the 156th Tank battalion at the Main Post gym Oct. 7, in the night's first game, while the 328th Ordnance battalion takes on the 37th Infantry battalion. Down at the Airborne A Stage gym the Airborne battalion, meets the 83rd Field Artillery, with the second game between the Lawson field flyers and the 78th Engineer battalion.

Schedules for the following Thursday and Tuesday are as follows:

- Thursday, Oct. 9—6:30 p. m. AGF Board No. 3 vs. 204th Truck battalion—Main Post gym.
- 8:00 p. m. 501st Parachute battalion vs. 78th Engr. Bn.—ISD—Main Post.
- 6:30 p. m. Lawson field vs. 37th Infantry battalion—A Stage gym.
- 8:00 p. m. Airborne battalion vs. ISD—A Stage gym.
- Tuesday, Oct. 14—6:30 p. m.—758th Tank Battalion vs. 204 Transp. battalion—Main Post gym.
- 8:00 p. m. 83rd Field Artillery vs. ISD—Main Post.
- 6:30 p. m. 328th Ordnance battalion vs. AGF Board No. 3.
- 8:00 p. m. 501st Parachute battalion vs. 37th Inf. Bn. —A Stage gym.

The most important game of the first week's play will be between the ISD and the Airborne battalion. Because of last season's Airborne loopers, who finished with a spectacular record, the troopers will begin the league as the team to beat. Nothing much is known of the chute-men to date, but their debut will come about soon enough. But, while the troopers will be set on taking a quick lead in the league standing, the ISD loopers will be out for an important victory that will give them a sound position in Post competition.

Troy Defeats Ordinance, 45-0

An outfight but highly spirited 328th Ordinance battalion eleven went down before a powerful Troy State Teacher's machine at Troy, Alabama, Saturday night by a lopsided 45-0 score.

Although the collegians completely outclassed the pre-game underdog, the battalion team fought valiantly until the last play, and thought the score was entirely against them, Coach A. Burke's charges showed genuine fight and determination throughout.

From the opening gun to the final whistle, it was a speedy Troy backfield doing all the threatening. The Alabama squad faded to pass but fumbled. The got off to a shotgun start when the teachers grabbed a quick 6-0 lead after Marvin Carlton, Troy left half back, skirted his left end for 19 yards and the first tally, 45-0, with the teachers far ahead.

Minutes later, right half Ernie Queen galloped through the batting team to boost the score to 12-0, and Troy seemed to be on their way to an undisputed win.

Score Twice

In the second stanza the future professors cracked through for two more scores, while the Troyian defense held strong, holding their soldier opponents to gainless tries. But the 328th managed to prevent the after touchdown pointers, and the half whistle sounded with the Ordinance eleven on the wrong end of a 24-0 score.

Opening the third frame Screws Troy center kicked off to left half Bracealand on the five yard stripe. Returning the punt to the 22, Bracealand bobbed the ball and an alert Troyian snatched the runless pickup and raced goalward to add the teachers' fifth tally. Troy's sixth marker came when tackle McCall struck pay dirt standing up. In the final period, the battalion's Ralph Gill,

The battalion eleven took the field as the definite underdogs, for their players are on a par with any high school team, and there was an inconspicuous deviation in weight and experience between the two teams. The battalion's 200-pound fullback, Erickson, was playing with a torn shoulder, and shattered leg ligaments. Bill Gordon, 275 lbs. tackle, is absent on leave, while Bob Whittaker and Dick Wiggins, both star ball carriers, played with injuries suffered during previous games. But the cagey Ordinance boys fought with real spirit, and on many occasions supplied real competition for the rampant teachers.

Next week, when the Ordinance team takes the field, Coach A. Burke will be able to put a more potent eleven against his opponents. The game is set with the Atlanta Ordinance team, and will be played in Atlanta. In two weeks, Troy will journey to Doughboy stadium for the second meeting with the Ordinance team. Coach Burke is confident that his squad will make a much better showing in the second tilt than they did this past Saturday.

Bullets Engage Naval Gridders Here Saturday

Embarked upon a do or die schedule which has resulted in three successive defeats during away-from-home contests, Coach Lloyd D. Jones' 25th Combat Team Bullets will officially open the 1947 grid season here Saturday when the Sand Hillers engage an unknown quantity in an invading eleven which appears under the banner of the Pensacola Naval Base.

Clashing against the cream of the Southeastern Inter-collegiate Athletic conference clusters during their first trio of games this season, the Bullets were subdued in their season's opener by Tuskegee Institute 22-0, were overwhelmed 53-0 by Grambling college and dropped the third 53-4 with Lane college.

Saturday afternoon's session marks the Bullets' initial set in the service team sector with Pensacola being the first of three against whom the locals are scheduled.

Regardless of their present record, the Jonesmen with seven victories from last year's team show potential power. With a wealth of experience garnered from their three outstanding collegiate opponents, the Bullets are in top shape for Saturday's game. The contest is slated to start at 2 p.m. Musical highlights will be furnished by the 25th Infantry band under the direction of T-Sgt. Antonius P. Martin and Sgt. David A. Johnson, drum major.

Stakes Now Enrolled In Advance Course

Capt. Carlisle Stakes, formerly with the Infantry school's Weapons section, is now a student in the Officers' advanced class. It was reported today.

Capt. Stakes, who was assigned to the Infantry school in July 1945, supervised the construction of several new ranges here and was responsible for the upkeep of all ranges prior to his present assignment. Before coming to Fort Benning, the captain served through every phase of its European combat. He holds both the Silver Star and Bronze Star for heroic action in Italy and Southern France.

Air Force Reenlisted Promoted To Sergeant

Robert R. Fields, a former resident of Columbus, Ga., was promoted to the grade of sergeant after re-enlisting recently as a private.

Sgt. Fields served 12 months in the European theater of operations with the Air Force and participated in 23 missions as a gunner. He was awarded the Air Medal with the two oak leaf clusters and three battle stars.

GREENE SCORES IN PREDICTIONS

The score—10 right, 4 wrong. That's the way our predictions of major football games turned out last week.

We certainly missed the boat on the Alabama-Tulane affair, the Vanderbilt-Northwestern upset, California's victory over Navy, and Utah over Stanford. All these games resulted in scores quite opposite to the opinion of most efficient prognosticators, and Vanderbilt's dumping of the powerful Wildcats was certainly a blow to the football prophets.

It just goes to show that anything can happen in a football game, in spite of Georgia's poor showing against Furman two weeks ago, there were not too many folks who were anxious to throw points around in favor of Charlie Justice and company. And if you saw or heard the Georgia-North Carolina game, you would understand why. Although Charlie Trippi has gone, the Bulldog line is still something to crack. Justice couldn't do it, and the Snavely charges had to let Walter take to the air to trim the Bulldogs.

The Tar-Heels travel to Austin this week to meet Texas, and Texans play rough football. North Carolina should take them, but with trouble. Alabama should nip Texas in spite of Vandy's upset last week, and Bama's fall before Tulane. The Greenies won't do it against another Tech, and another to their SEC record. LSU has a breather at Georgia—I'm ducking.

The Duke-Tennessee clash is a toss-up, but let's give the nod to the General Neyland's boys.

Irish Make Debut

All eyes will be turned to the Midwest this week, however, as the Notre Dame aggregation make their 1947 debut against Pitt. Of course, there is no doubt in anybody's mind that the team—that was picked the 1947 champions two months ago will slaughter Pitt, but fans are anxious to see just what the Irish will show. Army travels West, too, to meet Colorado, a new one on the Cadets' schedule. So many feel that Army is finished as a football team this year, but we take a different stand on that subject, and hold that Army will make better than an average showing during the season. Winner of the Colorado-Army game? Silly, boys!

After last week, we have simmered down in our expectations of the Middies, but will stand by them one more week, and pick them to down a strong—and that is said with much conservatism—Columbus eleven. Michigan will naturally bowl over Stanford.

While on the subject of Michigan, it might be interesting to point out that most sportscasters have placed Michigan close behind the Irish. Unfortunately, two teams will not meet this season. Should the Wolverines and the Irish finish their seasons undefeated, it will be a headache picking the National champion. However, the big nine schedule is always a tough one to bite off, and anything can happen.

The Rice-Southern California clash should be a rough one, but the Owls are slated here to top the Coasters. I'm afraid somebody is chewing off a long one, calling that one.

Naturally the games mentioned are only a few of the notables this week, but they will prove to be the most outstanding. We feel 1947 will be the greatest year football has seen in many a moon, and certainly even grandpa is a little anxious to keep tabs on the game that has definitely set the country ablaze.

Cool Weather Promises Better Auto Races At Idle Hour Park

Track records are expected to fall at the midweek auto races at Idle Hour Park Saturday evening as the supercharged engines hit their keenest performance in cool October weather.

Some fifteen cars are on the tentative entry list, led by such nationally known hotrods as Lew Perry, of Lexington, Ky., Buzz Hudson, of Terre Haute, Ind., George Geis of Indianapolis, and Dick Croop, of Marietta.

League-leading Bob Johnson, who won last week's photo-finish thriller, will be back with Jimmy Reed, the Georgia-Alabama runner-up.

Also scheduled to get the green starter's flag Saturday evening are Howard Hady, Dan Coker, E. G. Blackmon, Joe Savage, Johnny Suggs, Jack Owens, O. C. Chupp, and two undesignated drivers for two fast new cars.

Last week's feature race was one of the track's finest events, and despite the sudden chill, the crowd was kept at a fever-heat through 20 laps in which the lead changed hands three times. Johnson set a new track record by winning the Australian pursuit in 42 seconds from starting time. It took him only two and one-half laps to move from his starting position to first place.

Time trials Saturday will begin at 7:30 p. m. with the first heat scheduled at 8:30 p. m.

Second Guessing

BY RALEIGH W. GREENE
RAYNOLD SPORTS EDITOR

Little boy blue come blow your horn—and that was about the situation in the Cherry Point game, for the Doughs' 2-0 victory was almost shattered by a last minute TD.

Yet the Doughboys launched their 1947 campaign with a win over the Leathernecks, and have weathered the initial tilt tenseness that inevitable accompanies every grid team to the field the day of their first game.

It was the overall determination of the squad that saved the day for Coach Kendrick's charges Saturday for the Devil-dogs pounded threateningly on the door of victory. It is now a proven fact that Fort Benning's forward wall will be the deciding factor in this season. Cherry Point made most of their yardage around the ends, and not cut-backs through the tackles. The center of our line appeared impregnable.

Let's digress for a moment from the prospects of the team, and concentrate on the game at Cherry Point. Kendrick's 200-pound line played a magnificent game from end to end. Every man knew his job, and that cooperation pretty well bottled up the Marine attack all afternoon. Hard-charging guards in the persons of Bob Ward and Jack Seybold played havoc with the Leatherneck line-busters. Both men showed great ability throughout the see-saw battle. When the team was up against the wall in the final minutes of the ball game, the line held—they couldn't have been moved by all the king's horses.

For five downs Marine assaults hammered the Dough line, but for five downs not one Marine was able to crack the forward wall.

Many of us have heard of the Leathernecks' feats at Okinawa, two Jims, Salpan, and so many other invasions. Heard they were fighting Marines stormed the beaches with guns spitting smoke and fire, a glorious feat. But the Leathernecks at North Carolina's Cherry Point have certainly surpassed down since those eventful days—they were plumb cold. It was the Army that turned the tide this time.

During that last ditch stand, every man played his best ball of the afternoon. Don Perrody clipped Marines bounding back on their Don Cholson with a shoestring tackle that saved a touchdown. Bill Draper drove hard into half-back Seibert to pin the antelope-like amblor for no gain. Bob Seibert threw a block into Jon Quinn that sent him out of bounds. Two full plays down the middle resulted in a pileup—the Doughs were on top. Defensively the team is strong, and with more of the same line will be stronger. Not only in running did the squad excel, but in also in passing. Cherry Point actually topped six passes. They completed one which was thrown in desperation, but the completion netted them a scanty two-yard gain.

Although the Marine line was formidable, it didn't come up to par with that of the Doughs. Yet the Benning attack would bog down every time Kendrick's charges advanced into scoring position. On five occasions Dough drives carried past the Cherry Point 30-yard marker, but after the Marine line developed an assault would continually collapse, and Cherry Point would take possession of the ball on downs.

The question that faces Kendrick now is simply this: What combination of men develop that will supply the team with that necessary scoring punch? Because this scoring combination was lacking against Cherry Point, there will definitely be a revamping of the starting backfield. Of course, Bob Seibert will be stationary in his fullback slot, and Bob Seidlorn should draw the quarterback call again this week. Seidlorn did some good job as field general at Cherry Point. The switch will come at the halves. Eddie Roberts, who has alternated with Seibert at fullback, showed plenty of running power, and may be able to substantially strengthen the running attack. My guess is that he will get the starting berth at left half. Don Perrody is first choice for the other half slot. However, Boney Bonair, Dick Gerhart, or Jim Mitchell could give the added gusto, and may be worked against Farris Isiane.

As far as I can see, the line should remain about the same, with the exception of Bill Finnelly replacing Jim Tallant at center. Bill Draper and Art Hyman will return to the ends. Both men showed great in wrecking Cherry Point's interference.

A winning ball club will take the field Sunday, I predict. I am quite confident that my prediction will find grounds after the final whistle has sounded. The team has spent most of its practice sessions ironing out miscues in plays, and smoothing out the air assault. It is my guess that the Doughs will concentrate more on passes against the Islanders since it was through the air that the Naval team from Jacksonville downed their last week 29-13.

Last week, a strong, almost hurricane speed wind, nearly sent the Doughs home with a defeat rather than a victory. Bob Seibert's talented toe often sent the Marines bounding back on their heads, but on some occasions the wind turned the ball into a helpless balloon. In all probability the air will be fairly still at Doughboy stadium. It is an enclosed field, free from sudden bursts of harm-score, but we will name a winner—the Fort Benning Doughboys.

Saturday's win gave Fort Benning a record of eleven straight victories. Although it is a little early to predict the All-Service winner of 1947, it might be interesting to point out that should the team go through an undefeated season and cap the crown, they will become the only service team to win the championship two years consecutively. It's a goal worth working for.

Major Gen. W. O'Daniel made a fine gesture in meeting the team at Lawson field upon their return from Cherry Point. Little things such as that really give a team a morale lift.

Captain Al Burke's 328th Ordnance battalion gridders ran around the Troy State Teachers college last Saturday night, and came home with defeat. The Teachers completely outclassed the light battalion team, and trounced them 45-0. But the defeat didn't stir the team too much, since the squad played a valiant game in the face of such heavy odds. Atlanta Ordnance plays host to the 328th in Atlanta Saturday, and Capt. Burke is confident that his gridders are due for a win. Many of the injured players have returned to active duty.

Eleven loop fives have formed to participate in the inter-post basketball league that gets under way Tuesday, Oct. 7. As you may recall, the league last year was dominated by the troopers from the Airborne battalion, but Keener competition seems to be in the making this season.

The detachment team, under the guidance of Capt. James Walker, will put a strong team on the floor, and is looking forward to the first clash with the Airborne battalion, Oct. 9.

Games will be played twice a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, with two games played at the Main Post gym, while two others are scheduled for the A-Stage gym.

The World Series started Tuesday—all we can say about baseball now is that New York will win. Picking either the Dodgers or the Yanks as the 1947 world champions is really sticking one's neck out, but we can cite a few facts that could determine the winner. Both teams are weak in their pitching, so the games should be pretty much of a slugfest all the way through. But the Yanks have never finished a World Series without knocking at least two circuit batters—a repeat of this record will have a great deal of bearing on the series this year.

Many think that the much-talked about DiMaggio is the answer to the Yanks' chances for another baseball crown—we'll see. Joe has certainly been hitting steady enough during the season, and World Series is his meat.

2 School Troops EM Qualify As Experts

Pvt. Robert C. Mulkey, 37th Infantry Company D, and T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly, School Troops recruiting office, each with a score of 200, lead the experts during range firing recently completed by the 37th Infantry regiment.

Lt. Zeb Delancy, Company B's platoon leader, led the officers with a score of 192 to qualify as an expert. Of a total of 482 men firing, 192 qualified as experts.

POWER LADEN PACKAGE—A 75 mm rifle container, designed by 1st-Sgt. Raymond Ashe of the Airborne section, was recently test dropped by the Aerial Delivery group. The new container is patented and adopted from a container originally designed by the 561st Parachute Infantry Battalion. The one designed by the 561st consisted of only the weapon, mount, and tripod. Sergeant Ashe improved the container, and the finished product is now a complete unit ready for operation immediately after being dropped. It carries the rifle, mount, tripod, telescopic and panoramic sights, plus ammunition. The container, successfully dropped and quickly put into operation on Normandy field recently, was tossed overboard with a triple cluster (3 G-I parachutes). Photo by 1st-Sgt. Wolfe.

a mistake in signals caused a loss of ten yards, which the Doughs were unable to make up.

Again with their backs to the wall, the Marines kicked, but hard-charging Leonard Pfeifer partially blocked Quinn's punt. Again deep in Marine territory, the Doughs took over on the 30. Eddie Roberts tossed 20 yards to Don Sevil, but two more plays found the Doughs back on the 27.

Frank Wallington's 22-yard gallop, together with a pair of end sweeps by Len Robbins, gave Cherry Point the ball on the mid-career field stripe. A 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness sent the Marines down into Dough territory, but the drive stalemated as the entire forward wall crushed any further Marine advances.

Robbins kicked to the Dough 20 with Seibert returning the compliment, and the half ended with the ball midway between the two goals.

Bob Kersey, former All-American from Purdue, was called to action, but the big fullback couldn't move against the Dough-boy line. Kersey opened up with a bullet shot intended for Aus Shoemaker, but Bob Scallorn dashed on the scene to intercept. The play was nullified by a holding penalty, and after the ball had been moved to the Dough's 43, Phil Secret hit the center for five. The drive ended at that point.

After two successive no gain tries, Don Perrody scooted through a narrow slit in the Marine line for a first down on Cherry Point's 49. Again the Dough running attack bogged down, and Seibert tackled the coffin corner with a beautiful punt that gave Cherry Point the ball on their own seven.

Robbins returned Seibert's punt, and little Cosmo Lutz grabbed the ball on the 25, but John Chemchek, who played a spectacular defensive game for Cherry Point, flogged the fleet scot-back with a body-breaking tackle that sent the ball slithering from his hands, and Damien Albanese recovered for the Cherry Pointers.

After Bill Austin had ripped through the Marine forward wall to throw Robbins for a seven yard loss, Secrist kicked and the Doughs took possession on their 43-yard marker.

For the fifth time, Dough power began to show, but again the scoring punch was lacking. Bob Scallorn pulled a quarterback sneak for five, but Cherry Point put the Doughs temporarily in the hole, when Don Perrody was pulled down for a 12-yard loss after he failed to find a receiver for an intended pass. Seibert tagged Hyman with a cross shot for 18 yards, and Perrody went the needed distance for a first down.

With the ball resting on Cherry Point's 43, Perrody fired to Cutri for eight while Seibert added three down the middle for another first on Cherry Point's 34. Bob Seibert knifed off tackle, inches short of a first, but Perrody picked up the necessary yardage for a new start.

With the ball on the Marine 18, a hard-charging Cherry Point line smothered the thrust, and the ball fell to the Marines.

The scare of the afternoon came as the final whistle was near at hand. On Seibert's flunk kick, the Cherry Pointers stood two yards before the goal line. Bill Draper, and Harold Lutz played magnificently from their ends, twice bottling the runner with hard tackles. Don Perrody saved a touchdown at the goal when he shoestringed Don Tolson as he rounded right end. Bob Scallorn, Jack Seybold, and Carl Mierer kept the middle impregnable. The Dough's best ball was played at the end of the game, when their power slowed and they held the Marines scoreless.

Starting lineup: Doughs: Hyman, le; Mierers, lt; Seybold, lg; Tallant, c; Scallorn, qb; Perrody, li; Cutri, rh; Seibert, fb; Marines: Shoemaker, le; Chemchek, lt; Clark, lg; Reinacker, c; Minich, rg; Bailey, re; Thompson, rt; Sakcs, qb; Quinn, lh; Secrist, rh; Robbins, fb.

WFBS Becomes One-Man Station

The Post hospital's radio station WFBS has now become a one-man station.

With the departure of former station manager Johnny Johnson, WFBS is now under the direction of S-Sgt. Don Lattore, one of the original "Dead End" kids of stage, screen, and radio fame.

Sgt. Lattore is station manager, engineer, script writer, program director, announcer, and jack of all trades. He was once staff announcer at the Lake City, Fla., radio station, where former Sgt. Gene Dealiast of the "Fort Benning on the Air" program, is now announcing.

Sgt. Lattore as one of the original "Dead End" kids, appeared in over 60 films and numerous stage productions including "Dead End," "What a Life," "Two on an Island," and "Tobacco Road." He appeared on radio in Big Town, Lux radio theater, and for many 100,000 Salesmen at Your Service!

On Thursday, September 25, the 100,000th car rolled off the Kaiser-Frazier assembly line. Next week that car will be in the hands of a customer; a customer, who will immediately become a Kaiser-Frazier salesman.

Never in the history of the automobile business has there been such widespread owner approval of an automobile. Such acceptance can only be accorded a truly great product. And so we say with pride,

The Airborne battalion's Company D began training last week with 161 enlisted students and 13 officers. Among them are six Air Force medical officers and five enlisted men from Air Rescue service. In addition there is one Argentine Air Force officer enrolled in the class.

Post Unit To Provide Searchlights For Fair

Several pieces of the mobile and towed fighting equipment housed at the Maintenance and Museum section here will be displayed at the Chattahoochee Exposition which is scheduled for Oct. 6-11, it was announced today.

Included in the display will be towed artillery, light and heavy anti-aircraft artillery, armored vehicles, jet-propelled artillery, and searchlights. Searchlights will be in operation throughout the fair.

Reach Half-Way Mark

Students in the Airborne battalion's Company C have reached the half-way mark of their training, and graduation has been set for Oct. 18, officials said today. This week was set aside for physical fitness tests.

Benning Engineer Reports On Storm Damage In Florida

The recent tropical hurricane, worst ever to hit southeastern and eastern Florida, left most of the area devastated and ravaged, according to Eugene M. Hornot, chief electrical engineer on the post, who has returned after a visit to the stricken area.

Mr. Hornot, who assumed his duties here as chief electrical engineer Sept. 18, is the author of the hurricane evacuation program for Fort Benning. While at Palm Beach and Morrison field, Fla during the hurricane, Mr. Hornot had a chance to see a similar program in actual operation. No immediate damage was caused because of the effectiveness of the program, he said.

Moderate damage was done at Morrison field, where the strong gale blew the top off the control tower. The last reading of the anemometer was 115 miles per hour before it fell to the ground. Prior to his arrival at Fort Benning Mr. Hornot was chief electrical engineer at Morrison field. He holds two degrees, bachelor of electrical engineering and mechanical engineer, from Tulane University. He served one year overseas during World War as a lieutenant in the Engineer Corps. Later he was engaged in the petroleum industry, designing and operating oil refineries and marketing facilities.

5 Universities Picked To Train ROTC Students

ROTC students who volunteer for such study will be trained at five universities in the Fifth Army Area in the purposes and methods of military intelligence, according to a new plan announced by General Jacob L. Devers, commander of Army Ground forces.

The schools are: University of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri; University of Illinois, Champaign, Illinois; Michigan State Agriculture and Applied Sciences College, Lansing, Michigan; University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska; and the University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyoming.

General Devers said the plan is pointed towards keeping alive in peacetime the intelligence techniques so important in event of a national emergency. He said:

"After World War I military intelligence training was allowed to deteriorate to such a low that we were hard pressed for trained officers when we entered World War II. Its chief fields are highly specialized and range from gathering information of enemy movements to language and cryptographic skills. We can ill afford to neglect this important phase of ground forces' training."

The plan is experimental and its purpose is to increase the amount of voluntary, extra-curricular training in military intelligence.

The two principal aims of the program are:

1. To indoctrinate all the selected personnel with the purposes and methods of military intelligence with a view to disseminating such purposes and methods to all ROTC personnel.

2. To screen from such personnel those having aptitudes, capabilities, or an inclination toward military intelligence, which would permit their further training and development as military intelligence personnel after graduation.

The five schools selected for the training experiment represent a

Lt. Russ To Study At Chemical School

Lt. Kenneth L. Russ, platoon leader of the 37th Infantry regiment's Company B, is scheduled to leave Fort Benning soon for Edgewood Arsenal, Md., where he will attend the Chemical Warfare school, it was learned today.

Lt. Russ served with the Third Infantry division's Seventh regiment in Naples, Foggia, Rome, Arno, Southern France, Ardennes, Alsace, Central Europe, and Rhineland campaigns. He won a battlefield commission at Nuemern, Germany, April 13, 1945.

The lieutenant was awarded the Silver Star near Osthurn, France, in August 1944 for directing fire "while riding on a tank to a machine gun nest which was stopping the Allied advance." He also wears the Purple Heart with two clusters.

The special training will include lectures in the various types of intelligence and operations, intelligence functional organization and agencies, demonstrations by intelligence specialist teams, local contacts with the FBI and other investigative agencies, classroom problems and field maneuvers.

The cross-section of the ROTC enrollment in the Fifth Army area, covering both agricultural and industrial, and rural and urban sections.

Choral Group To Make Debut On October 5

Featuring "The Lord's Prayer" and "Listen to the Lambs," the first public appearance of the recently organized 30th Infantry male chorus will take place Sunday morning, Oct. 5, when the Grand Hill group will be singing at the 37th Infantry chapel.

Originated by Chaplain John A. DeVeaux upon the request of Col. LeGrande A. Diller, 25th Infantry commanding officer, the chorus, containing 16 voices, has been undergoing rehearsals nightly for the past month.

T-Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson is choral director, assisted by Sgt. Willie B. Mullin. Troy M. McCall Jr. accompanies the group both on the piano and organ.

The sections include: M-Sgt. Robert L. Renfro, Sgt. Willie B. Mullin, and Pfc. Eddie Morris, tenors; Sgt. Joseph L. Peterson, Col. Fred Dowd, Cpl. Freddie Batham, second tenors; T-Sgt. Frankie G. Lumpkin, T-4 Samuel Lewis, Pvt. Perry Thomas, baritone; T-3 John Vaughn, Cpl. T. Harry Williams, T-5 Lester B. Leonard, Pfc. William Louis, and Pvt. David Smith, bass. Officers are M-Sgt. Renfro, business manager; Col. Harry Williams, publicity and recording secretary; and Sgt. Joseph T. Peterson, librarian.

A handsome young truck driver was seated on a davenport with his latest flame.

"I'm going to kiss you till the cows come home," he said.

"Oh, but my father and brother are policemen."

"Then I'll kiss you till the bulls come home."

The honeymoon is over when the husband resumes his setting-up exercises in the morning.

AN ARMFUL—Col. Drew C. Scudder, right, commander of the Student Training Regiment, shakes hands with 3-Sgt. Charles Gular, who has so many dress stripes, wound stripes, and chevrons that he has a hard time finding room for them all. Sgt. Bolard, who has 30 years in the Army, served overseas with the 24th Infantry in Guadalcanal.

Most Air Force Enlistees Make High IQ Scores

An analysis of scores made by recruits in the U. S. Air Force, in tests which measure intelligence and aptitudes, has disclosed that more than three-fourths of the enlistees made scores high enough to qualify them for almost any of the USAF technical schools.

The analysis was based on tests given enlistees arriving at the USAF basic training center in San Antonio, Tex., during July and August.

More than 76 per cent of the enlistees made scores of 100 or higher on their Army general classification test.

A perfect AGCT score would be 161. A score of 120, which is considered a high IQ, is required for attendance at Officers' Candidate school, and a score of 100 will qualify an enlistee for most of the USAF technical schools. A minimum score of 90 is required for enlistment in the Air Force.

In addition, a survey of students enlisting for specific training courses under the Air Force aviation career plan disclosed that the average AGCT score of those now taking the course was 122.

Under the aviation career plan, which was announced last June, any youth with a high school diploma or its equivalent can apply, before he enters the service, the technical courses he wishes to take and be assured he will be given them.

Personnel experts at USAF headquarters said that, although no comparable statistics were available, the current score indicated a steady increase in the intelligence level of American youth seeking to enlist in the Famous Divisions Send Enlisted Men Here For Training

Practically every enlisted rank and many famous infantry divisions are represented by members of Infantry Non-commissioned Officers' course No. 1, which is now entering its fourth week of training here.

Assigned to the Student Training Regiment's Eighth company, commanded by Capt. Paul Sullivan, the class consists of 32 Regular Army men from the rank of private first class to master sergeant.

These men, who have any where from one to 14 years service, came here from the 82nd Airborne division, Fort Bragg, N. C.; Second Infantry, Fort Meade, Md.; Lewis, Wash.; and Camp Carson, Colo.

Three students are newly enlisted National Guardsmen from the 45th Infantry division, while four students are from the Philippine Army. Two Mexican officers and two Turkish officers, here to observe U. S. Infantry NCO training, complete the class roster.

During the first few weeks, members of the class studied the M-1 rifle, including range firing, and map reading.

Old-Time Fighter Group At Lawson

One of the oldest fighter units in the Air Force—the 71st Fighter squadron — is at Lawson field to participate in Operation Combine.

The 71st Fighter squadron and its P-50 jets will engage in an actual "dog fight" with the conventional propelled P-51 over the grandstand, presenting a clear picture of their speed and effectiveness. They will also participate in various other maneuvers, as part of a 150-plane aerial armada during Operation Combine.

Lt. Col. Gerald J. Dix is commanding officer of the 71st squadron of the First Fighter group and will lead his squadron of 26 P-50 Shooting Stars in all aerial demonstrations. Colonel Dix was commissioned in the Air Force as second lieutenant in September 1941 and served in both Europe and the Pacific, flying all types of fighter planes. He is credited with destroying six enemy planes. The colonel was shot down on June 8, 1944 in Europe. The present organization of the First Fighter group was activated as the 412th Fighter group (P-80 Jet) in November 1945, at Murco, California, and began flying work in the then secret field of jet propulsion with the P-59 Aircroft. Former members of the First Fighter group flock, famed 412th on the California desert to fly the new Shooting Star, and as the First Fighter group it was reactivated July 1, 1946, at March field, Calif., its present station.

The original First Fighter group was formed in France during the World War I and is the oldest fighter group in the Air Force. Men whose names stand high on the roll of honor in the history of aviation, such as Rickenbacker, Maloney, Luffberry, Luke, and Coolidge were, are among the original members of the group. Other great leaders who received part of their training with this organization are General Arnold, General Spaatz, General Eaker, General LeMay and many other Air Force officers whose names made history in World War II.

Board 3 Shows Army Equipment At Alabama Fair

Drawing top attention at the Alabama State Fair this week is the colorful display of the latest Army weapons, clothing, and equipment which was arranged by Army Ground Forces board No. 3 under the direction of Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of the board.

Following a request by the Alabama Military district and the Birmingham Recruiting Service which was forwarded through Third Army headquarters at Atlanta, the display was set up last Saturday and Sunday with Capt. Robert J. Frost in charge of the program.

The display is being shown to a capacity crowd on the second floor of the grandstand in Birmingham where 600 square feet are devoted to the exhibit which is announced at the grandstand entrance by a M-29-C amphibious vehicle.

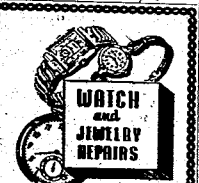

In the display room, brightly draped with vari-colored paracord, spectators are greeted by the sight of a dummy attired in the complete combat uniform of a paratrooper. In the background more figures display other standard uniforms, including an Arctic outfit with a dog sled, skis, and the latest equipment for winter use.

The newest items in clothing such as parkas, parka linings, sleeping bags, Sox, sweaters, gloves, mittens and many other items are shown on a large messtable which is followed by an exhibit of weapons ranging from the standard M-1 rifle to the latest developments in infantry weapons.

Highlight of the show is the display of some of the larger weapons, such as the recoilless rifle, machine guns, and mortars. Five men from AGF board here are staying with the tour to explain the various items to spectators, and two men from the 501st Parachute battalion are also on hand to aid in explaining the exhibit. From AGF board are Maj. Verne King, 1st Sgt. Leo R. Lewis, 1st Charles P. Weeks III, Eugene A. Kac, the airborne men are 2d Sgt. Roy B. Knutson, and Sgt. Dale N. Johnson.

Lawson Field Gets New PIO

Lt. Louis H. Button, a graduate of the Army Information school at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., has been appointed public information officer at Lawson field, base of officials announced today. He succeeds Lt. Rex M. Ellis, who was recently named public information officer for Turner Field, Ga.

In service since 1941, Lt. Button served overseas with Air Transport Command during 1944-45. He was later based at Long Beach Army Air Base, Long Beach, Calif., and Morrison field, Fla. He underwent paratroop training and received his jump wings at Fort Benning early this year. Lt. Button reported to Lawson field from Pope field, S. C., where he was assigned to the 36th Troop Carrier Squadron.

Lieutenant Button was born in Honolulu and is the son of CWO Allen M. Button, U. S. Army, retired, of Sumnerville, S. C. He received his education at Millton, Mass., and claims Summerville as his hometown.

Spoke: "It's a fine lad you have there, a magnificent head and noble features. Could you loan me two dollars 'til pay day?"
Mittie: "Sure, and I could not. 'Tis my wife's child by her first husband."

Philippine Sergeant Says Signal School Here Nothing New

Signal schools are nothing new to the Philippine Army's M-Sgt. Augustine Dionisio, a 10th company, who is now attending the radio repair course at the Infantry school.

Sgt. Dionisio is already a qualified telephone repairman, powerman, radio operator, radio repairman, and communications chief. He took most of his courses at the Western Pacific Signal Corps school, which the United States has turned over to the Philippine Army.

Sgt. Dionisio served with the 33rd Regimental Signal platoon of the 31st Division from the beginning of the war until the fall of Bataan. Forced into the Death March, he escaped into the jungle at the end of the third day and, until the liberation, wandered from town to town to avoid recapture.

He had one narrow escape between Bolango and the town of Hagano y. The Japanese picked him up and took him to their headquarters for questioning. He was released after 24 hours, however. Upon liberation of the islands he joined the 757th Field Artillery, remaining with that unit until the end of the war.

Sgt. Dionisio will return to the Western Pacific school as an instructor following completion of the course here.

Chapel Announces Sunday Schedule

The Lawson field chapel has announced a new schedule of weekly services which include a 30-minute broadcast of religious address over the base public address system on Sunday mornings.

The new arrangement of services was announced by Capt. John Bryden, base chaplain, and includes Protestant worship on Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and Fellowship class on Wednesday at 7 p. m. During Operation Combine, Catholic Mass will be held on Tuesdays and Wednesdays at 7 a. m.

Cpl. Charles Hartoon, chapel clerk, is in charge of the Sunday morning broadcast, which begins at 10 a. m. and is followed by Protestant services at 10:30 a. m. during the 30-minute program over the public address system during the 30-minute program during the 30-minute program. Among the recordings played are: "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," "Saviour Like a Light," "Holy, Holy, Holy," "The Old Rugged Cross," and "Onward Christian Soldiers," and "Rock of Ages."

Capt. Bryden has also extended an invitation to all base personnel to visit the chapel on off-duty

Community Chest Drive Begun Here

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center Commander, established today the Fort Benning Community Chest Fund for the purpose of raising and distributing funds to nine charitable or character-building organizations.

The organizations benefiting from the concerted drive are the Community Chest of America; National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis; joint Army emergency relief-Army relief; Fort Benning American Girl Scouts of America; Teen Age club; Fort Benning nursery school; and the Fort Benning Christmas Christmas party.

4 Civilians Get Cash Awards For Suggestions

Four Infantry Center civilian employees were presented cash awards for their recent money-saving suggestions to the Army during brief exercises Tuesday morning in the commandant's office. Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, presented the checks in the absence of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commandant.

Those receiving awards and citations included Matthew Carlisle, filter plant; James F. Martin, Ordnance; Paul A. Watkins, Ordnance; and Clarence E. Radway, Ordnance.

Mr. Carlisle submitted two suggestions, both of which were adopted. His first suggestion was the installation of flood lights on the storage room in the new filter.

Pet Show Set For November 1

Plans are being formulated for a Pet Show to be held November at the Horse Show Building. The show, scheduled for 2 p. m., will be jointly sponsored by the Officers' club, Block 12 NCO and Main Post NCO clubs.

Three events headline the show: a jumping exhibition by privately owned horses as one of the feature attractions. In the first event pets other than dogs, cats and horses will be entered. Cats will feature the second phase of the show while the dogs will have their day in the third event. Feasibility in the cat and dog competition will be the bench show of the best cat and dog.

Ribbons will be awarded for five places in each event. A jumping exhibition by privately owned horses will also be staged as an added attraction.

Entries are open to all officers, enlisted men, civilian club members and dependents. Members of the Columbus chapter of the American Kennel club will post entries in the best dog, low dog and best bird dog events. Columbus civilian judges will judge the two serious dog events. Col. H. B. Ribbets, secretary of the Officers' Club, announced.

The committee selected for the affair includes Capt. W. E. Geauge, Capt. J. W. Ault, Lt. O. E. Cranzin, and Lt. F. J. Stone-wacker, jr.

Benning Equipment Displayed At Fair

As complete a display of Army equipment and weapons as has ever been assembled is on exhibition at the Chattahoochee Valley fair in Columbus which opened Monday for a six-day run.

The public is in for a grand view of some of the latest Army equipment and weapons developed recently and displayed by the various units of Fort Benning.

Three huge tents house the equipment and weapons, ready to answer any and all queries.

In one of the tents is a display of infantry weapons with training aides illustrating how the soldier is trained in the use of these weapons and a complete explanation of their functions. Arctic equipment, including uniforms and paraphernalia used in extremely cold weather, is also on display in this tent.

Tent No. 2 features the Airborne and Airborne equipment in the intersection of the Armed forces, with a full exhibit of all types of parachutes and airborne equipment. An information and education illustration of the vocational training program is another highlight of tent No. 2.

The latest developments of equipment used in Task Force Frigid is on display in the third tent. The "Snowmobile," the only one of its kind in possession of the U. S. Army, is expected to draw plenty of attention.

The Weazel, another snow vehicle, plus sleds, toboggans and other equipment used in Task Force Frigid are also included. A mobile laundry unit, a mobile shower unit, and pigeon display add to the long list of exhibitions in the third tent.

Several pieces of the mobile and towed fighting equipment housed at the Maintenance and Museum section here are also on display. Included in the display will be towed artillery, light and heavy anti-aircraft guns, armored vehicles, self-propelled artillery, and searchlights.

Kirsch Succeeds Mathis As School Troops Chaplain

Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsch has been named School Troops chaplain, succeeding Chaplain (Capt.) Robert E. Mathis, who has been transferred to Hawaii, officials announced today.

Chaplain Kirsch, a graduate of the General Theological Seminary of New York City, entered the Army in 1943. Following completion of his military education at Harvard university, he served overseas with the 93rd Medical Treatment Battalion at Southampton, England.

The chaplain landed in Normandy on D-Day, plus 16, and remained with his unit through the campaigns in Brittany, Central Europe, and Belgium. Later he was transferred to the 83rd Armored battalion and served as chaplain through the campaigns in Ardennes, Alsace, Rhineland, and Central Europe.

When the armored units became the First Constabulary regiment, Chaplain Kirsch became regimental chaplain. He remained at Kassel, Germany, until June 1946 when he was named chief of chaplains for the Third Constabulary Regiment at Stuttgart, Germany. Fourteen chaplains were assigned to this unit.

Record-Setting Enrollment Seen For Fall Term

School bells will ring Monday night at 6 p. m. for more than 1,200 Fort Benning soldiers as the Infantry Center's vocational night school, biggest in the history of the U. S. Army, opens its winter quarter with a curriculum of 27 courses.

The large enrollment expected is attributed to the newly established Army career plan, which restricts promotions to knowledge of certain jobs, school authorities pointed out. Registration began Oct. 1 and will continue for two weeks after the opening date. Lt. John E. Cunningham, assistant information and education officer at the Infantry Center, said today. No students will be accepted after Oct. 27, he said.

Most Popular Based on present enrollment, the most popular courses for the fall term are Russian, automotive mechanics, small business management, and mechanical drawing, officials said. The enrollment fee for each course has been set at 50 cents. Lt. Cunningham reported.

General Morgan Ends Post Tour

General Sir William D. Morgan, KCB, DSO, MC, commander of the British Army staff in Washington, D. C., returned to the nation's capital Tuesday afternoon following a two-day tour of the Infantry Center.

Gen. Morgan arrived here at 7:15 p. m. Sunday aboard a C-54 transport plane and was met by Lawson field by Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and a group of Infantry Center officers. The British general was guest of honor at an officers' dinner given later that evening by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commandant of the Infantry Center.

Following a conference with Gen. O'Daniel Monday morning, Gen. Morgan conferred to Hawaii, officials announced today.

Hook range presented by the Infantry School in conjunction with Operation Combine.

Prior to leaving the post Tuesday afternoon, the four-star general of the British Army visited the Infantry School's airborne, automotive, and communications sections.

Gen. Morgan was accompanied on his trip to Fort Benning by Gen. Charles H. Hall, U. S. chief of the War Department War Plans division.

Enters West Point

T-5 Charles S. Fyne, Service Battery, 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, left Fort Benning for the U. S. Military Academy, where he will attend the West Point Preparatory school, officials announced today. T-5 Fyne has been a member of Service Battery for more than seven months, serving as battalion gas clerk and heavy truck driver.

School Units List New Promotions

Promotion of enlisted members of the Infantry School Detachment last week included the following from Company A:

S-Sgt. Victor D. Garvey to technical sergeant and Pvt. George B. Staples to private first class.

Other ISD promotions included Pfc. James B. Dickson, Company B; and the following members of Company C:

Cpl. Albert A. Stephens to sergeant, S-Sgt. George W. Hill to technical sergeant, and Sgt. Arthur R. Pruitt to staff sergeant.

Tomorrow Last Day To Enter Photo Contest

Fort Benning entries have but one more day to submit their photographs in the Army-wide photography contest which has been conducted over the past two months. No entries will be accepted after tomorrow's deadline, October 12, according to Capt. Cedric Tallis, who is in charge of post competition.

Entries are expected to pour in during the last day. It is believed that most personnel here are hesitant in entering the contest because of the general belief that their photos may not measure up to par. As announced previously, any amateur photographer is eligible to submit any picture in any of the named categories.

All entries are to be submitted to the Infantry Center special service office. All photos will be judged by a qualified committee of photographers.

A first prize of 10 dollars has been announced as the award for.

Neel To Head Medical Group

Major Spurgeon H. Neel Jr., who recently returned from Europe, has assumed command of the 36th Medical group, it was announced today.

Prior to his arrival here Major Neel had served as brigade surgeon of the First Constabulary brigade.

A graduate of the University of Tennessee's School of Medicine, he entered the Army Oct. 7, 1945, and was awarded a Regular Army commission July 5, 1946.

Major Neel served overseas from Dec. 1, 1944, until August of this year. He wears the Bronze Star, Combat Medical badge, Purple Heart, American theater ribbon, Occupation ribbon, and Victory medal.

plant. Purpose of the floodlights was to lessen the hazard of plant operators working there at night.

His second suggestion dealt with the storage of chemicals used in water treatment. Mr. Carlisle suggested that opening at the top of the stairs leading to the chemical storage room in the new filter plant be boxed with some suitable material and a door installed at the top of the stairs. Officials estimated that these measures would result in a saving of $200 yearly.

Mr. Radney's suggestion concerns the use of an inserting tool for installing head lock rubber channels in Mack bus windshield.

International bus entrance doors and rear panel glasses, and GMC rear cab glasses. This step is estimated to save a total of $420 annually.

Mr. Martin and Mr. Watkins made a joint suggestion regarding the cleaning of government vehicles with steam when available. Official estimates indicate a saving of $11,700 yearly.

Lawson Prepares For Biggest Class

Ninth Air Force officials at Lawson field prepared to welcome next Sunday the largest class scheduled to attend Operation Combine, 634 students representing the Artillery School, Ground General School, and observers of several branches of the service as the gigantic maneuver moves into its third week of operation here.

Today 528 students of the Command and Staff college, the Armored School, and 36 observers will witness the main aerial demonstration.

In addition to the military personnel present, approximately 3,500 civilians will witness the fast-moving 92-minute aerial spectacle from a hilltop overlooking Lake Field.

Public Invited

Officials pointed out that the public would be invited to attend all subsequent air demonstrations which will be held on October 15, 22, and 29.

Concentrating more aerial firepower than has been used by the United States Air Force in a single demonstration since V-J Day, 200 airplanes will drop a battalion of hard-hitting airborne troops in the target area and then blast away at a mythical enemy with bombs, rockets, napalm, and strating attacks to show the future military planners how land can be taken and held from the air.

A peacetime innovation in the Air Force's bag of lethal weapons, the sleek, 500-mile-per-hour jet-propelled P-80 "Shooting Stars" open the show by flashing over the target at tree-top level on photo reconnaissance missions.

In addition to photo reconnaissance, the fast jets are firing live ammunition and dropping napalm bombs during "Operation Combine" for the first time as part of a large scale maneuver or exercise.

After the reconnaissance missions, huge, four-engine B-29 Superfortresses from Strategic Air Command, MacDill field, Fla., will fly over at 20,000 ft. to give spectators an idea how the sky giants look on the way to a strategic target. Later in the program, they re-appear at 10,000 ft. to simulate the tactical bombing of a target.

Thunderbolts, heroes of tactical air missions against the Axis during the last war will roar in next and bateman away at the target with 50 calibre ammunition in preparation for the main body of paratroopers that will drop a few minutes later from 12 Fairchild C-82 "Flying Boxcars."

As the airborne troops advance on the village, Ninth Air Force, employing a complex communications network, will begin displaying their varied coordinated air strikes timed to the second with scores of fighters, fighter-bombers, and jet-propelled aircraft.

Features of the show are the resupply missions flown by lumbering C-52 Packets and evacuation of wounded by glider snatch pick-up.

Messenger service from the battle area rear headquarters will be provided by R-5-F Helicopters of the 163rd Liaison squadron.

In preparation for the aerial demonstration, students will wit-

Squadron A Awarded Outstanding Unit Plaque

Lawson field's Squadron A received the Outstanding Unit Plaque last Saturday morning during the regular monthly parade.

The award, presented each month to the Lawson unit with the highest record of proficiency in performance of duties and appearance in formations, was made by Lt. Col. Fred Henry, base executive officer.

Transferred To ISD

Lt. Eugene A. Wilson, former 33rd Field Artillery battalion, has been transferred to the Infantry School detachment's Company E for duty with the Infantry Center's air section, officials revealed today. Lt. Wilson will serve as personal pilot for Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the Infantry Center.

He will conduct a series of planning conferences, skits, and displays of all types of tactical aircraft.

Eight Infantrymen Earn Promotions

Eight enlisted men of the 37th Infantry regiment were awarded promotions last week, officials have revealed.

They include the following members of Headquarters and Headquarters company:

T/4 Al M. Berg to sergeant, Pfc Odo E. Lang to corporal, T/5 Joseph Kiley, Roy L. Ray, and Robert Vermillion to corporal, and T-5 Richard L. Nelson to sergeant.

Pfc Theodore H. Andes, Company A, was promoted to technician fifth grade, while William Swarmer and Alvin B. Moore, Company, were promoted to technician third grade and staff sergeant respectively.

Waste Less Food

We have mentioned in these columns several times heretofore the plight of a hungry Europe and Asia and the unrest and dissatisfaction in which a situation results. We have long commended the Army, especially Fort Benning, for its food conservation program, and have attempted to enjoin the public to pay more attention to food waste.

Now President Truman has used the air waves to plead with Americans to waste less food in order that we may send more to starving peoples abroad. Here in America we know nothing of gnawing hunger. We have no idea what it would be like to see our children cry because they haven't enough to fill their little stomachs. We have never been forced to look in garbage cans for a few scraps from the rich man's table with which to eke out our meager rations. Prices are high, true, but at least we have enough money to buy food necessary to keep us going.

As champions of democracy we should feel obligated to the people of the world. We want other nations to know that our form of government is better than any other, and what better is there than to give them food when other governments, alien to our own, are endeavoring to force their own false brand on them? We have plenty here provided we don't waste it in the garbage cans.

Food conservation is actually quite easy. We know this to be true because we visited the Food Service School here several days ago and found that only two pounds of food had to be thrown away after a meal at which 125 men had been fed. This amount is almost negligible when compared to wastage elsewhere in homes and mess halls.

Not long ago we saw a cartoon showing a mess inspector giggling a mess steward for food found in garbage cans. Somehow this was not funny to us because there are too many hungry people in the world to throw even a bone in a garbage pail. We do not believe in leaving the table before getting enough to eat. We do not believe either in taking more than is possible to eat and then throwing it away.

Most mess halls have signs requesting that troops take only what they can eat. And despite the world-wide food shortage, some laugh at these signs, joke about them, and deliberately overfill their trays. This is an extremely selfish habit and is certainly not to be commended. On the other hand there are many who heed the requests, thus helping to save food.

Everyone can help in this program tremendously. Every slice of bread saved means one less slice the Army has to buy or bake. If fourteen or fifteen people save one slice each day, think how much this would mean over a period of 365 days. Multiply this one slice by every soldier in the Army and the saving would be astounding. Multiply this one slice by 140,000,000 American citizens and the figure would be astronomical.

Cooperate with the President by wasting less. Eat all you want, but don't put anything in the garbage can.

Uncle and niece stood watching the young people dance about them.

"I'll bet you never saw any dancing like that back in the twenties, huh, uncle?"

"No, niece—the place was raided."

"Doc," said the mountaineer, "if you should fix up my son-in-law, I shot him in the leg yesterday and named him to you."

"Shame on you shooting your own son-in-law!" scolded the doctor.

"Wal, doc," rejoined the mountaineer. "He wasn't my son-in-law when I shot him."

"My, that's certainly a handsome patient in 402," exclaimed one student nurse to another.

"He sure is, but don't let him talk you into giving him a bath," replied the second nurse. "He's had five already this morning."

A Western sheriff confiscated a bunch of slot machines on the back of a law banning the use of slot traps for catching dumb animals.

He knows all our sorrows and all our joys.

He knows all the girls that chase the boys.

He knows all our troubles and all our strife.

He knows every man that steps out on his wife.

If the bartender told all he knows He would turn all our friends to bitter foes.

He would start forth a story which, gaining in force, Would cause all the wives to sue for divorce.

He would get all our homes mixed up in a fight.

He would turn our bright days to sorrowful nights.

In fact, he would keep the whole world in a stew.

If he told just one-tenth of all that he knew!

So when out on a party and for home you steal, Drop in for a drink—the bartender won't squeal!

As one drunken tonil said to the other: "We must be in Capitranco, here comes another swallow."

WEIGHED IN THE BALANCES

BY CHAPLAIN J. E. BRIDEN

In the days of the Prophet Daniel there occurred an event that has living and dramatic interest even to this day. It is the story of Belshazzar's feast in which the King of Babylon and his drunken guests profaned the sacred vessels carrying from the Hebrew temple by drinking from them. At the height of festivities a hand was seen writing on the wall. All the astrologers and soothsayers were called in to interpret the writing, but no one could. Then the captive Hebrew Prophet Daniel was called to see what he could do.

Daniel, a true prophet of God, turned to Belshazzar and said, "O Thou King, the most high God gave by father a kingdom and majesty, glory and honor, because when his heart was lifted up and his mind arrogated in pride, he was deposed and he and his sons were cast from the throne. And thou his son hast not humbled thine heart, though thou knowest all this. Thou hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of Heaven and praised the gods of silver and gold, of brass, iron, wood and stone, which see not, nor hear, nor know. This is the interpretation of the writing on the wall. Thou art numbered thy kingdom and finished it. Teke! Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting. Peres, Thy kingdom is divided, and given to Medes and Persians."

That night Belshazzar was slain and Darius took the kingdom. This incident is illustrative of the course of history on whose scene many great empires of old appeared, waxed strong, declined and fell. God in His judgment weighs the nations in the balance and found them wanting.

Today America is the nation making history. God's judgment is being lifted into the scales for weighing. Will history repeat itself? Will we have there. "Those who forget God shall perish."

There is still time to swing the balance by turning from the worship of gold, steel, oil, mirth to the faith of our Creator. Our emphasis on religion and Christian brotherhood can save us from the doom of the nations which are weighed and add to the total. How do you weigh in God's balances?

We invite you to weigh and add to the total. How do you weigh in God's balances? Recall that your Creator, while the evil days come not.

Penny: Well, after his behavior yesterday, I will never go fishing with that soldier again. Rosie: Heavens, what did he do? Penny: Oh, he just fished!

A GI who had cleaned up in game entered his barracks in a happy mood and called out, "I'll give a five dollar bill to the laziest man here!"

Everyone rushed forward to tell how lazy he was—except one tall, lanky Texan.

Drawled he: "Just roll me over buddy and slip it in my pocket."

An English club reporter, frequently reprimanded for relating too many details and warned to be brief, turned in the following: "A shooting affair occurred last night. Sir Dwight Hopless, a guest at Lady Pamphre's ball, complaining of feeling ill, took a highball, his hat, his coat, his departure, no

This Day

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, high lights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between October 1 and This Day, October 9.)

October 1, 1843... On This Day, October 1, 105 years ago, Lt. John C. Fremont returned to St. Louis after one of the most successful expeditions in early American history. Fremont led his peace-time soldiers over new and difficult trails which provided the government with important geographic and scientific data. Fifty-seven years ago the Weather Bureau became a part of the Department of Agriculture. . . . Twenty-five years ago in 1920 on This Day, Captain A. W. Stevens with George W. Polk of the Army Air Service took aerial photos of 670 square miles in Tennessee that paved the way for new approach in peace and war.

October 2, 1869... Fifty-eight years ago on This Day the first Pan American conference convened in Washington, D. C. . . . And on This Day in 1909, 38 years ago Orville Wright made a flight that set a world record when he flew at a height of 1,631 feet in Berlin, Germany. . . . On This Day 23 years ago in 1925, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross was elected to fill the unexpired term of her husband as governor of Wyoming to become the first woman governor in the United States.

October 3, 1787... One hundred and sixty years ago, on This Day, Congress passed a resolution which provided for the stationing of 700 troops on the frontiers to protect settlers from the Indians. . . . After the Revolutionary War, Congress disbanded the Army, but recurrence of Indian attacks forced Congress to re-organize the troops to give birth to the Federal Army. . . . On This Day in 1867, 80 years ago, Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, died in Brooklyn, New York. . . . On This Day in 1920, 27 years ago, President Woodrow Wilson in a letter addressed to voters asked for the endorsement of the League of Nations. He failed and his dreams were not realized until after World War II with the formation of the United Nations Organization.

October 4, 1777... On This Day 170 years ago, the American Army under General Washington was defeated by the British in the battle of Germantown. . . . On This Day in 1924 Lt. H. H. Harts of the Army Air Service won the Pulitzer Trophy race with an average of a little over 216 miles per hour.

October 5, 1805... On This Day, 142 years ago Captain Meriwether Lewis and Lt. William Clark arrived in their expedition at an undiscovered branch of the Columbia river. Sent by the U. S. Army with four sergeants, 23 privates, and several Indian interpreters, the explorers covered the entire distance of the continent. On This Day, 134 years ago, in 1813 the great Indian chief Tecumseh was killed by General William Henry Harrison's troops in the battle against the British, near Detroit.

October 6, 1818... On This Day, 129 years ago, the town of Astoria, Oregon, was returned to the United States. . . . On This Day nine years ago in 1938, German troops began the occupation of the Sudeten region of Czechoslovakia.

October 7, 1826... On This Day, 121 years ago, the first tramway with metal tracks was opened, the forerunner of the first American railroad. . . . On This Day, 86 years ago, the "Pony Express" was officially discontinued. It was supplanted by the telegraph line.

October 8, 1817... On This Day 130 years ago, John C. Calhoun was appointed by President James Monroe as Secretary of War. . . . On This Day in 1917, the great Chicago fire broke out. . . . And On This Day in 1919, 64 airplanes took off from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts across the continent in what was the greatest race up until that time.

October 9, 1812... On This Day 135 years ago, the British vessels Detroit and Claudonia were captured off the Great Lakes. . . . On This Day in 1910 forest fires in northern Minnesota destroyed six towns with a loss of 400 lives and a property loss estimated at $100,000,000.

Buzzett Commended For Storm Service

Lt. Harry A. Buzzett, Battery B, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, recently received a letter of commendation from A. V. Benson, American Red Cross chairman at Apalachicola, Fla., for his valuable services to the people of that city during the recent Florida hurricane. It was revealed today.

According to the letter Lt. Buzzett, home on leave from Fort Benning, "volunteered his services during the entire period of emergency and performed most valuable services in first-aid, rescue, and relief." Mr. Benson wrote that Lt. Buzzett assisted in recovering the injured from collapsed homes and rendered first aid to fracture and injury cases during a driving rain in the middle of the night.

Post Theater Guide

THE FOXES OF HARROW (period drama) with Rex Harrison, Wanda Hendrix, Richard Haydn, and Victor McLaglen. The colorful and amusing story of the goddess of dance, who provides the lavish background for a professional gambler who decides to build a great plantation and become a gentleman. Recommended for adults.

RIDE THE PINK HORSE (melodrama) with Robert Montgomery, Wanda Hendrix, Thomas Gomez, and Andrea King. Montgomery plays a grim Saterberg, arriving in New Mexico, intent on blackmailing a war profiteer who ordered his pal's murder. The going gets rough when Montgomery finds that the man he is tracking is also tracking him. Recommended for adults.

DOWN TO EARTH (musical fantasy in technicolor) with Rita Hayworth, Larry Parks, and Marc Platt. This is an imaginative and amusing story about Terpsichore, the goddess of dance, who dislikes the way she is impersonated in a musical show and comes down to earth to teach the producer a thing or two about dancing.

DICK TRACY MEETS GRUESOME (detective story) with Boris Karloff, Ralph Byrd, and Anne Gwynne. Tracy again battles weird characters as he works to solve a bank robbery and capture the crooks. Recommended for family.

Lawson Briefs

S-Sgt. Seaborn Underwood, of Columbus, signed up for another three-year hitch last week and was assigned to the Base Recruiting Office, Seaborn is Lawson field pioneer, having served in that office in 1941. He is the first enlisted man to serve with the base public information office and worked on the first issue of 'Tail Skid,' a neat weekly office publication during the war.

Capt. P. R. Heinmiller, flight section, is spending two weeks pheasant hunting in his Minnesota hometown. May Pritchard, Bertha Williams boarded the Man O'War Sunday for Atlanta to catch Wayne King's appearance at the Atlanta auditorium. May reported to work Monday morning with a dreary look in her eye, but snapped out of her reverie long enough to announce that the "Waltz King" had presented an enchanting musical program.

T-Sgt. Henry Gill, weather observer from Tinker field, Oklahoma, recently and has been appointed section chief. Westbrook, publications NCOIC, left Monday for Cumming, Ga., where he will be in charge of a ten-day furlough. Sgt. Roy B. Johnson, his neighbor over in reproduction section, is in charge of publications while B. W. honeymooners.

Last week was Cpl. Frank Rozell's turn to travel to the Atlanta General depot for supplies. He was accompanied Cpl. James W. Hogan, Pfc. William H. Burroughs, and Pfc. Charles W. Hughes to Warner Robins field, Ga. on an Operation Combine mission.

S-Sgt. Horace Williams, recruiting canvasser, visited Selma, Ala., last week. S-Sgt. J. G. Clineby, who also expounds the good merits of an Air Forces career to eligible young men in Georgia and Alabama, spent several days on the job in Carrollton, Ga., recently. Sworn in at the base last week were Dan H. Dickerson, who was given the rank of staff sergeant and assigned to base supply and William L. Dickerson, who reentered with the grade of corporal and was placed with communications.

Lawson Women Start New Year

The Lawson field Women's club opened its 48 year with an informal get-acquainted meeting at the Lawson field Officers' club Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Wilfred Hinton, acting president, as hostess and newcomers to the base as special guests.

The gathering took place on the club's sunporch, which was decorated with arrangements of mixed flowers in crystal vases and burning tapers. Guests were entertained with the technician film, "America's Beauty," and refreshments were served. Mrs. Hinton presided at the short business meeting.

Have Son Oct. 2

On Oct. 2 a son, Johnny Raye, was born to S-Sgt. and Mrs. James McKenzie at Station hospital. Mrs. McKenzie is the former Miss Margaret Kimbrel of Dawson, Ga. Sergeant McKenzie is the battalion communication chief of the 78th Tank battalion.

Fennell-Elder Marriage Event In Phenix City

Of cordial interest is the announcement of the marriage October 1 of Mrs. Allene Beckum Fennell, of Columbus, and S-Sgt. Paul F. Elder, of Fort Benning. The marriage was solemnized at the Central Baptist church in Phenix City, Ala., with the Rev. W. H. Cook officiating. J. D. Anglin served as best man, and Mrs. Anglin was the bride's only attendant.

Mrs. Elder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Beckum, of Sylvester, Ga. She is connected with the personnel department of the Central Baptist church in her home in Columbus for the past several years.

The bridegroom is a member of Headquarters battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion. Before entering the service his home was in Greenville, S. C.

Sergeant and Mrs. Elder will be at home to their many friends at 1815 Twenty-seventh street in Columbus.

Party Honors Col., Mrs. Linton

To honor Lt. Col. and Mrs. William M. Linton, officers and ladies of the 78th Engineers held a delightful party at the Officers club recently when dinner and dancing were enjoyed. Colonel Linton is the new commanding officer of the 78th Engineer battalion.

Cocktails were served and the table was beautifully arranged with burning tapers and cut flowers.

McLaughlin-Carp Marriage Is Told

Mrs. Carolyn Barbara McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. McLaughlin, of Columbus, became the lovely bride of Lt. Edward J. Carp, of Chicago and Fort Benning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Carp in a beautiful double ring ceremony performed Sunday afternoon at the Rose Hill Baptist church in Columbus with Rev. A. Judson Burrell reading the marriage vows.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin entertained with a reception in the church parlors where ferns and flowers were used as decorations and the bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Immediately following the reception the bridal couple left for a wedding trip and for traveling. The bride wore a brown wool gabardine suit with green reptile accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Miss Jerdon, Lt. Schumacher Wed At Candlelight Rites

Miss Frances Sarah Jerdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Jerdon of Montgomery, Ala., became the bride of Lt. David J. Schumacher, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Schumacher of Park Ridge, Ga., Saturday in a beautiful candle ring ceremony solemnized in the Infantry Center chapel with Chaplain (Major) Emmett G. Jones, officiating.

Miss M. T. Denny, organist, presented the nuptial music and Mrs. L. C. Garrett, vocalist, sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride was lovely in her bridal gown, a creation of cream satin with a sweetheart neckline, long fitted sleeves coming to a point at the back of her hands and buttoned at the wrists. The gown was cut with fitted bodice and full skirt completed with a train. Her veil was of finger tip illusion net with a design and rose point lace headed across the crown with orange blossoms lace across the top of the veil.

The couple carried a beautiful orchid on an old prayer book which has been in her family for over a century. They carried the orchid were Stephanotis from which fell streamers of white satin ribbon. A single strand of pearls, a gift from the groom, was the bride's only ornament.

Miss Curtis, sister of the bride and matron of honor, wore a gown of pink taffeta with a low neck and long sleeves. She carried quarter length silver fitted boots and full skirt. She wore a nosegay of pastel roses and gladioli.

The bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth McMannus, wore a dress of powder blue tulle in the same style as the matron of honor.

Ten-year-old Dorthea Morrow, of Columbus, was the flower girl, wearing a white gown with sweetheart neckline and fitted sleeves, fitted bodice, and full skirt. Her flowers were wristlets of white carnations. Lt. and Mrs. L. A. Gerald—Billingsley was best man, and ushers were Lt. Robert F. Creson and Lt. Scott H.

Woman's Club Opens Year At Successful Meeting; Outlines Plans To Meet Interests

Initiating the new year with a meeting of interest and success, ladies of the Fort Benning Woman's club met Monday afternoon in the main lounge of the Officers' club with Mrs. Robert Hill, president, presiding and the various committee heads presenting reports.

Following reading of the minutes by Mrs. Arden Brill and the treasurer's report by Mrs. J. R. Davidson, the committee reports were called for. The first was given by Mrs. Harry VanTuy, who is in charge of the Friday Post, and told what is being done in that activity and expressed appreciation to the volunteers who have aided in carrying out the project.

Plan Annex

Mrs. J. E. Morey, in charge of the nursery school, reported that the school is experiencing a successful year with three qualified teachers. They plan to open an annex to take care of the waiting list when additional teachers are available.

The membership chairman, Mrs. Daniel P. Buckland, gave a report on her committee which includes Mrs. E. J. Curtis and Mrs. W. J. Muller. The reports were set up on the club porch and memberships were sold. This committee was assisted by Mrs. S. A. Satterfield, Mrs. Earl Cooper, and Mrs. Edwin Gravel.

Explaining that the current events and book review groups of last year have been combined in the literature and book review group, Richard Sandusky, chairman, announced that the comprehensive program being planned with meetings set for the second Monday of each month at 2:30 p. m. at the Officers' club.

The home and garden group was reported on by Mrs. Frank Ward, chairman, who explained that the meetings will be held the fourth Monday of each month with the first to be Oct. 27 at 2:30 p. m. in the Officers' club. Mrs. Ward, whose committee includes Mrs. Julian Dayton, Mrs. C. U. Knaub, and Mrs. W. J. Curtis, told of plans for meetings to discuss gardening, house plants, indoor decoration, Christmas gifts, and helpful household hints.

Speaking for Mrs. Arne Millipeds, who could not be present, Mrs. John Grollemund told of plans for the bowling group. Meetings will be held starting this week, every Wednesday morning at the Post bowling alley.

Message From O'Daniel

Mrs. Wiley O'Mohundro, chairman of the bridge group, reported on plans for this year with an announcement that meetings will be held the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at the Officers' club with tables for advanced, intermediate, and beginner players.

Mrs. W. E. Montgomery, of Columbus, will teach the Spanish classes this year. It was reported she is to be held on Mondays and Wednesdays with the exact time of meetings to be announced later. With the conclusion of the reports, Mrs. Hill turned the program over to Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, program chairman.

Mrs. Scudder opened the program with a message from Major General John W. O'Daniel, who sent a message expressing his wishes for a successful season. A highlight of the afternoon was the musical program presented by Rex Lavender who was accompanied by Mrs. K. C. Mercer.

Mrs. Scudder introduced Miss Margaret Evans who explained the Concert Series Told As Highlight Of Club Meeting

Highlighting the opening meeting of the Fort Benning Woman's club Monday afternoon was the announcement that the club will sponsor a concert series for the Post during the coming season. Miss Marian Evans of Chicago, Ill., western manager of the Community Concerts Services, was introduced by Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, program chairman of the Woman's club, and explained the membership plan to be used for the concert series which is to bring at least four artists to the Post.

It was pointed out that this will be the first time such a series has been undertaken by a military installation but is in operation in many cities throughout the United States. Mrs. Robert Hill, president of the Woman's club, is in charge of the series membership and said further announcements will be made in the near future.

Robert Hill, Reuben Jenkins, John Blizard, Lloyd Brown, Frank Ward, Irvine Scudder, C. Royce, Harry Van Tuy, and John Frederick. Mrs. Hamilton Thorn, hospital-ly chairman, arranged the tea and the tea table with the assistance of Mesdames Gilbert T. Collier, L. A. Diller, C. F. Royce, W. North, H. A. Stewart, O. B. Bragan, Carl E. Frisby, and John Davies.

Another feature of the afternoon was an exhibit of eight panels by Mrs. James Stevens, displayed at the back of the lounge. Two flower arrangements and six portraits were included in the

Funchess, French Engagement Told

Of sincere interest to their many friends here and in Columbus was the announcement made recently by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Funchess of Weston, Miss., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Funchess, of Columbus, to Lt. Carl E. French, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. French of Charlottesville, Va.

The bride-elect has been at Fort Benning for the past two and a half years a civilian employee and is secretary to the adjutant general. She is a graduate of Copiah-Hooper college in Wesson, Miss.

Lieutenant French served in Europe during the war and is now with the 328th Ordnance battalion.

Halloween Theme Features Luncheon

Mrs. V. P. Warren and Mrs. J. V. Morey were co-hostesses for the delightful luncheon meeting of the ladies of the General Subjects section of the Infantry School last Thursday when a Halloween theme was gaily presented in the decorations.

Down the long table set for 35 guests were spread a streamer of bright orange berries, leading from the centerpiece, which featured a real life pumpkin made completed with a black ribbon as a highlight.

The place cards were miniature pumpkins on little legs and orange tapers were held in green crystal candelabra. The tally cards for the bridge game after luncheon also carried out the bright Halloween theme.

Col. Fry Feted At Reunion Party Of 88th Division

A reunion of the 88th Infantry division Wednesday evening at the Officers' club was a gala event at the honor Col. James C. Fry, formerly assistant division commander of the 88th, who is visiting on the Post.

Colonel Fry is in Italy with the Office of Director of Personnel department of the Army, in Washington. Colonel and Mrs. Fry have lived at Fort Benning in the past and have many old friends here. Lt. Col. and Mrs. James R. Davidson were hosts at the Wednesday party which was a reunion for the officers who served with the evening they enjoyed the buffet dinner and dancing. The table was set in the Palm room and was arranged with orange berries and orange tapers in silver to carry out the Halloween theme.

Those invited were Col. Fry, Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. M. Davis, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Wallace M. Hale, Mrs. Eugene A. Callahan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. B. Ayres, Major and Mrs. Fred Harris, Major and Mrs. E. H. Mark, Major and Mrs. Joseph Morey, Capt. and Mrs. Clyde M. Davis, Capt. and Mrs. Roy E. Gray, Lt. and Mrs. Ed E. Smith and Capt. Paul R. Behnke.

General Morgan Feted By O'Daniel

General Sir William Morgan of the British Army, who is visiting the Infantry Center this week was feted by the Officers' club at a buffet supper given by Major General John W. O'Daniel at his quarters. Approximately 45 guests attended the event Sunday evening and Monday night 40 guests attended the dinner given by General Morgan in honor of General Morgan.

Monday evening the guest from Britain gave a banquet and special guests at the event as well as the Sunday buffet were Lt. Gen. C. A. Hall and Major General John W. Leonard who are both guests on the Post this week.

STR Ladies Name Mrs. C. A. Easton At Luncheon Event

Opening the fall season with a delightful luncheon and election of officers, ladies of the Student Training Regiment held their monthly luncheon Tuesday at the Officers' club with Mrs. Richard Dial, retiring president, presiding. Mrs. C. A. Easton was named president for the new year and the ladies serving with her will be Mrs. Dial, vice president; Mrs. James Short, secretary; Mrs. Robert E. Jones, treasurer; and Mrs. Robert Eikenberry, publicity.

Mrs. Warren C. Chapman was coon and assisting her were Mrs. Eikenberry and Mrs. William V. Church.

The committee arranged the luncheon at the club porch where the long table was set for 45 ladies and overlaid with a charming cloth of matching napkins. The unique centerpiece was of pine cones and pine boughs interspersed with bright fruit. Each lady was given a name tag which carried out the fall theme with a small pine cone attached to it.

Personals

Sgt. and Mrs. James K. Anglin have as their house guest Mrs. Bertha Harris, the mother of Mrs. Anglin. Mrs. Harris is from Franklin, Tenn., and has been visiting here for the past week.

Mrs. Fred E. Bliss, of Tulsa, Okla., sister of Mrs. Roy E. Gray, will arrive on the Post tomorrow with her two children to visit Captain and Mrs. Gray for several weeks.

New comers to Fort Benning are Major and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, who have recently returned from Yokohama, Japan, where Major Frisby was in charge of the Japanese radio. Their daughter, Betty, was with them in Japan and has now returned to college in Huntington, West Virginia.

Miss Ruth Mitchell, of Jacksonville, Ala., arrived last week to visit Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. O. Jones. Miss Mitchell is the sister of Mrs. Jones.

Capt. Ralph Sciolla had as his houseguest recently his father, G. Sciolla, of Philadelphia, Pa. During his visit here he attended a party at the School Troops rest house which was entertained at the Officers' Club. Capt. Sciolla commands the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion at Battery A, Mr. Sciolla returned to Philadelphia, Sept. 30.

Major Alvert Schultz of Edgewater, Maryland, and his youngest of Major and Mrs. A. Bangert last week. He was here for Operation Colone.

Doughboys Maul Parris Islanders

Cosmo Cutri Paces Post Team To Easy 20 To 0 Triumph

A near capacity crowd cheered wildly to the back breaking tackles of a strong forward wall and the scintillating backfield exhibition of Cosmo Cutri as the little pack of dynamite paced his Doughboy teammates to a 20-0 rout of the Parris Island Marines Sunday afternoon at Doughboy stadium. Football fans took advantage of their first opportunity to see the Doughboys in action and thrilled to the game that saw the Post gridlers explode with touchdown-in the first period and finish magnificently with a 50-yard drive in the final stanza that carried the soldier gridlers over the leatherneck goal.

Sporadic Strength
Although Parris Island showed sporadic evidences of strength, and the Benningsites suffered from the loss of important players by injuries, nothing seemed to hold the Doughs very long as they took complete control of the hard-fought fracas. Three plays after Rebel Pickett, Marine ace, had kicked off to Captain Bob Seibert, Cosmo Cutri had carried the pigskin down to the Parris Island eight. Seibert returned Pickett's kick to the Dough '41, and two plays later, Cutri took two yards from deceptive Bob Scallorn and scored his own left end, racing 63 yards before Pickett could bring the swivel-hipped scat back earthward. After three futile attempts to score, Don Perrody kicked his accurate arm, and hit Cutri in the end zone for a touchdown.

Art Hyman was Perrody's next target, taking Don's cross fire steps away from the nearest Parris Islander, and the Doughs led 7-0. It looked as though Parris Island would come crashing back with Rebel Pickett clipped-off 16 yards in his first running try, but the dashing line play of Bill Puminella, Jack Seybold, and Bill Drapper dampened the devil-dog outburst, and Pickett was forced to kick.

An exchange of kicks, and Jim Mitchell's fumble gave the Marines a first on the Dough's '20. Ed Bolton backed up with an intended shot to Fay Swezey, but Cutri again came on the scene and sighted the big right end of glory by stealing the ball. Before Don Weinacht could run Cutri down, the sparkling halfback had reached the Parris Island 34. Bob Scallorn tagged Bill Drapper for five over the center, and Don Perrody tried to Ben O'Brien, who made a spectacular appearance in the Doughboy line-up Sunday afternoon, for 31 more and a first-down on the Parris Island 19. Perrody faked a tackle side interlocking to O'Brien who scurried the distance untouched for the second Bennening marker. Harold Lutz's kick was wide, and the Doughboys were on top 13-0.

WHOA, THERE!—Rebel Pickett, No. 21, speeds Parris Island half-back Ed Bolton, who was brought down by Bob Seibert, Doughboy fullback. After Pickett had picked up a short run, Bill Drapper, No. 51, is also seen giving chase.

Running ability was not the only outstanding feat exhibited in the Doughboy victory. Each lineman played superb ball, and kept the Marines hounded most of the time. Bill Lyman, Dick Groninger, Art Hyman, Bob Ward, and Carl Meiers played their finest ball. On O'Brien's touchdown scamper, Lyman laid a block that sent a hapless Islander from the game.

Bolton Intercepts
Another Bennening drive was nipped by Ed Bolton when he intercepted Frank Meagher's rife intended for Ricky Harold Lutz. Parris Island kicked, and big Jim Mitchell returned 29 yards to the Leatherneck's 36. Referee Monk Myers' almost ended up on the bottom of a 22 men pile up, when the ball slithered into Don Perrody's hands into Myers' relaxed mitts. The former All-American had to call on all his potential cunning in evading both teams. After a few minutes of laughter from the stands, football was resumed.

Both teams traded a pair of punts, and the half ended with the over-threatening Doughs on the Parris Island 45. The ball game got a little doughty the third canto as both teams were penalized constantly for their over-ambitious blocks and the linemen's quarter, with both forward walls settling down to a grueling battle of scumage. The ball exchange hands frequently, with neither team doing too much damage. Except for occasional spurts by Don Perrody, Eddie Roberts, Rebel Pickett, and Ed Bolton, it was a linemen's fight. The middle of the Dough line, led by Captain Bob Ward, slighted the Parris Island runners, as Art Hyman teamed with his flank mate Harold Lutz to discourage any attempts around the Kolter. But the other side of the fence was not quiet either. Bob Scallorn, an ever dangerous tackle stalwart, ripped the Dough line making superb tackles, while another tackle from the left side, Don Weinacht, took his toll the Doughboy amblers. The middle of the Parris Island was its best showing, but scoreless, but brutal third stanza.

Sparkling Runs
Boney Bonair, made his bid for a permanent spot in the Dough backfield with sparkling runs. As the third period neared its end, Benning running power again began to get going. Bonair opened the fourth quarter with a 25-yard jaunt, but the play was called back on an offside penalty. An unnecessary roughness, call against the Leathernecks gave the Doughboys a first down on the Parris Island 53. Bob Scallorn, working efficiently from the pivot post, caught Cutri in the clear with a 15-yard pass and a first down. Cutri took a hand-off from Scallorn, skirting his left end for a yard spot, but the line to the line through for the needed yardage.

Bonair was called to pass, but not finding a receiver, he threw down. Evading three tacklers, and shaking off two more, the blond-haired kid, smashed down to Parris Island five, but a bone-breaking tackle by Ed Bolton sent the ball bounding back to the center, and a host of Leathernecks recovered the free ball. Pickett faked a kick behind his goal, but Groninger, Ward and Carl Meiers dashed through and almost added two more points to the Dough's total. However, Pickett slipped away, and was finally brought down inches before the goal line.

Pickett's kick was short, and the Doughs again found themselves deep in Marine territory. But the power temporarily waned, and Parris Island took over on downs. With the minutes running out on the Leatherneck drive, and Parris Island took over on downs. With the minutes running out on the Leatherneck drive, and Parris Island took over on downs. With the minutes running out on the Leatherneck drive, and Parris Island took over on downs.

Post Grid Eleven Seeks 3th Victory

Victorious in their first two starts, the Doughs hope to make it three straight and their 13th consecutive win Sunday when they entertain the Fort Jackson Red Devils at Doughboy stadium. Kickoff time is at 2 p. m. sharp.

Showing genuine All-Service spunk in their 20-0 rout of the Parris Island Marines last Sunday, the Doughs' charges have been hard at work all week prepping for their next big game. Butch Kendrick has been working his recent limelights into the red devil's eyes, and Power galore drowned out the leathernecks last week, as the Doughs put on their first real exhibit of a championship team. It was a soldier eleven that did all the threatening, and though Bob Seibert and Eddie Roberts incurred injuries early in the fracas, the substitute backs carried on with unsurpassing vigor.

Spectacular Runs
Cosmo Cutri's spectacular runs and Don Perrody's accurate arm smothered off the Dough's attack with the devil-dogs helpless against the ever-pounding Bennening line. The third quarter, when the team was racked by fumbles and penalties did the Doughs' offense suffer from the absence of a dangerous opponent. It was a Doughboy key-day at jam-packed Doughboy stadium with the Doughs winning everything but the kitchen sink.

For the second time in as many weeks, the Bennening forward wall played superbly. Co-captain Bob Ward, and Jack Seybold, guards in the middle of the line, did so well that the Islanders had to give up their center plunges, and the Bennening backfield collaborated with their linemen, Bill Drapper and Harold Lutz, to discourage running the end. The Doughs' backs, Dick Groninger and Carl Meiers, clipped through the Parris Island line.

traced before the waiting Bolton and intercepted. Tallant returned to the Parris Island 19, but four tries still left the Doughs short, and Parris Island regained the ball.

Doughs Take Over
Charlie James highlighted the temporary running stalemate with some scintillating tackles. The whole Bennening forward wall kept the Islander backfield in a continuous turmoil. An interception of Herb Boney's beautiful pass intended for Hyman, halted another drive, but Frank Meagher came right back to steal another Bolton bullet, and the Doughs took over on the Marine 47. Meagher fired on the Marine 47. Meagher fired on the Marine 47. Meagher fired on the Marine 47.

Seibert, Harold Lutz, and Bill Thurman finished off the Dough's drive with a beautiful pass. Starting Lineup: Doughboys—Hyman; Seibert; Groninger; Drapper; Seibert; Parris Island—Dunn; Kendrick; Swezey; Charnock; Ross. Scoring: 13 0 0 7-20 Marines 0 0 0 0—0 time and again to snuff out Marine running attempts. What lacked at Cherry Point was an hand Sunday afternoon, the Doughs' offense suffered from the absence of a dangerous opponent. It was a Doughboy key-day at jam-packed Doughboy stadium with the Doughs winning everything but the kitchen sink.

The Dough running attack clicked splendidly, and except for some costly fumbles, Doughboy runners ran amuck. The passing arm of Don Perrody, with Frank Meagher, Bob Scallorn and robust Eddie Roberts lending their help, proved fruitful in the Marine's defense. Unmanned by a strong wind that kept them glued to the ground was Cherry Point, the Doughs opportunities nearly cutting the Doughs to wind up on the wrong end of the slim score. But such was not the case against a Marine team that was actually more formidable than Cherry Point.

Long Gains
But no runner can expect to get glory without effective blocking. Bob Seibert's work on many occasions dropping would-be tacklers as his ball carriers made beautiful passes for long gains. Bill Lyman, a guard who has been pushing the starters, laid the groundwork for the Dough's second tally. Downfield blocking was superb with Kendrick's tight guards pulling out of that line to clip halfbacks before they came near the play.

For all practical purposes, Kendrick will set last week's eleven against Fort Jackson. Bill Tuminaella will again get the call at center, while his second, Jim Tallant, will be alternating continuously. Both men are dangerous on defense.

Bob Seibert, flashy mite-sized Cosmo Cutri, Don Perrody and Bob Scallorn will make up the starting backfield foursome. But big Jim Mitchell, Ben O'Brien, Frank Meagher, Wilbur Ross, Boney Bonair and Harold Lutz will all be seeing plenty of action. Mitchell and Bonair both made their mark in the Doughs' Sunday, and showed that they are well able to make their bids for starting casts in the Dough lineup. Ben O'Brien, who accounts for 30 yards, and the Dough's second tally, is another back who gives promise.

Kendrick now knows that he is deep in all positions and will be substituting continuously from here on out. All his regulars showed well against the Marines. However, the Doughs mentor has been working his squad in a week and hopes his team will make an even more impressive show against Fort Jackson.

Last week Fort Jackson downed a highly favored Atlanta Ordnance Depot eleven, with co-captain Ed Cossig and fullback Bob Scalpio leading the way in the running and passing attack, while Boney Bonair, Carl Meiers, and Ed Bolton sparkled both offensively and defensively.

Cosmo Cutri Cops Gridiron Laurels

Sensational runs and flashy pass catching, and intercepting, marked the Doughs' win over the Ferris Island Marines last Sunday, and won for little Cosmo Cutri player-of-the-week honors.

Cutri galloped 42 yards in the opening minutes of the ball game, and took Don Perrody's pass a few plays later to tally the first scoring score. Later in the quarter, Cutri stole Ed Bolton's pass, setting up the Doughs' second touchdown with his return to the Ferris Island 54. Cutri continued his final play to the final whistle, and emerged the outstanding soldier of the day.

The mite-sized human racer came from California. He attended school in San Diego, where he was a well-known prep athlete, playing varsity football for two years and running with the varsity track team for three seasons. Before Cutri's debut on the Post grid, he won a letter with the Fort Benning track team that annexed the coveted Third Army crown in May. Cutri was the outstanding dash man on the running aggregation, and carried home plenty of blue ribbons in his meets.

Claim to Fame

Cutri's chief claim to fame has been his play on the gridiron. As a prepster back in sunny California, little Cosmo made the All-Southern California eleven in his junior year, while he won a starting berth on the All-City squad over two straight years. In the two years that Cutri held the All-City halfback slot he topped all punt-kickers, and was the outstanding player in his junior year, only to top that with '79 his farewell year in high school.

Immediately following his graduation from high school, Cutri enrolled at UCLA, where he had won a scholarship to play football with the rugged Bruins. Ernie Case was then making his way to coast of glory at the Los Angeles university.

Won Wins Here

But the call to service was near at hand, and Cutri headed for the Army in September, 1946. After completing his basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., he came to Fort Benning to attend the Parachute school and won his wings in February of this year. He is now a member of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion.

The lightest back on the Doughboy team, Cutri headed for a great season with the Benning footballers. He has shown vast improvement since he came out for the opening practice sessions back in August and will be seen extensively in the rest of the Doughs' games.

After discharge from the service, which will come late in August of next year, Cutri plans to return to UCLA to continue his academic and athletic education.

Officers Playing Handicap Tourney

Hard at it since Sept. 15, a group of officers golf enthusiasts from the 25th Infantry are engaged in a handicap golf tourney which takes place on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons on the post golf course.

Sport Quiz

(APPS)—1. Although the famed "four horsemen" of Notre Dame were all worthy of All-American consideration in 1924, it was necessary to keep one of them out of top-honor backfields to make room for: Albie Booth, Chris Case, Red Grange, Pug Lund, Willie Heston.

2. During the war, when Pete Phos won All-America honors at both end and fullback in different years, it brought to mind one of the greatest games in football history. What Minnesota ace gained fame first as a tackle and later as a line-busting ball carrier?

3. What do the following have in common: Johnny Layack, Francis Carideo, Harry Stuhldreher and George Ratterman?

4. Which one of the following pitchers did not win 20 or more games in 1947: Warren Spahn, Hal Newhouse, Ralph Branca, Larry Jansen, or Ewell Blackwell?

5. Billy Herman has resigned as manager of the Pirates. Although the former second base star wound up his career as a regular player with the Dodgers and Braves, his greatest days were spent with another National League team. Which one?

ANSWERS

1. Grange, perhaps the greatest of them all.
2. Bronko Nagurski, now a professional wrestler.
3. All played quarterback for Notre Dame.
4. Newhouse.
5. The Chicago Cubs. The combination of Ryan Heck, Billy Hughes and Herman at third, short and second was one of baseball's finest.

Atlanta Downs Ordnance Team On Passes, 19-0

A strong Atlanta Ordnance depot team struck pay dirt twice in the first half and added another 32nd Ordnance eleven, 19-0, at Doughboy stadium last Friday night.

Although the 32nd forward wall was heavily outweighed, the Atlanta team failed to show against it and were forced to take to the air. Fluke passes were the keys to the Atlanta team's victory, and Johnny Mazza's interception in the first quarter set up the depot's first tally. Dick Gill fired to lineman Will Lancaster, but the ball was thwarted in the air, falling into the hands of Mazza, who immediately threw it straight down by a host of 32nd tacklers. On the next play, Mazza bulled his way over for a touchdown.

A miscue in the 32nd signals netted the Atlantans another score late in the second period, and the depot eleven led, 12-0, at halftime.

A passing attack in the fourth stanza accounted for the final marker. Atlanta's quarterback, Johnny Mazza, and left half Dick Postell took the spotlight with brilliant running and blocking. Dick Gill, a flashy little sack-back, got the 32nd, and Jack Kunchak spoiled the local running assault.

Outgaining the Atlanta team, the 32nd picked up nine first downs to four for Atlanta, but seemed to lack the necessary power to keep one of them out of top-honor backfields before they Coach Al Burke's charges take on Phenix City's Central High at Doughboy stadium tomorrow night at 8 p. m. Burke has been doing some shuffling in his backfield, hoping to find a winning combination. R. A. P. Erickson, heretofore benched, has been showing vast improvement and will get the starting berth as one of the halves.

Bowlers Prep For Post Play

The Post Intramural bowling season will have its official opening Nov. 1 and will continue through Dec. 15, it was announced today.

No information on the number of teams that will compete in the league is available at present. All matches will be played according to the official 1947-48 ABC bowling rules, and competition will be between teams of battalion or similar level. A round robin system of play will be used, and each team will play each other at least once, and each match will consist of three games.

Handsome trophies will be presented to the teams finishing first and second in league play, and the outstanding players selected from the league will represent Fort Benning in the Army tournament later in the season.

Students are eligible to bowl for the 32nd Ordnance if they are assigned, but no man transferring from one organization to another will be recognized as eligible unless it is proved that that individual's transfer came about for military purposes.

A list of teams and their schedules will appear in the Bayonet as soon as official word is received.

Saturday's Upsets Mangle Forecasts

By ROY GREENE

Chie Young has a very famous funny paper character, affectionately known as Blamie. Blamie often finds it necessary to sentence her husband, Dagwood, and the two children to temporary banishment behind the kitchen door. That's just where this come-again, go-to-the-week-in-fact, it should be barred up.

But if you heard any of the major football games last Saturday, you might tend to take it a little easy on us for Old Miss football really played havoc with the specialists. We call football "Miss" this week for one reason—so unpredictable. Women have always been the medium for comparing something that goes opposite to what you might expect. Women certainly don't have anything on that old rugged 'em up game of football. Except for the way it's played, the game is strictly feminine.

Pick One Winner

Praise Allah for the fact that Notre Dame is still a football school. We felt the consolation of having picked at least one winner. The Irish's rout of Pitt was expected, and their game with Purdue Saturday is forecast to go about the same way—we pick the South Bend boys without too much worry.

But what about those spectacular upsets? Many thought that Wally Butts' beaten Bulldogs would crash into the limelight with a vengeance, and that the powerful aggregation from LSU? But it happened, and the smoke still is in the clearing process. Could Vanderbilt beat Northwestern and turn the tide to down formidable UCLA again? What happened. What about Alabama and her Harry Glimmer? Vandy didn't seem to glow, but she even there and ripped the Red Tide to two touchdowns. General Ney's Volunteers steamed and stormed but couldn't do much about Duke. The Buckeyes from Ohio State fell victim to an evidently underrated Purdue squad 24-20. Who says women are the only things in this world that are unpredictable?

Go to Win Again

We should go back to the woods, and leave football alone this week, but let's try our luck once more. Keeping in the South for a moment, let's look over the Rebel situation for this Saturday. Although the Gators have been beaten twice, one by an exceptionally weak North Texas nobody, we'll pick Florida to edge the Auburn Tigers. Kentucky should go down before Georgia's surprising 1947 team, while LSU should get back in the column with a close one over Texas A&M. Dinky Bowen and George Matthews are slated for the day-Saturday when the Yellow Jackets play host to VMI. Tech is fast showing their leadership in the Southeastern Conference and should get through with a perfect record. Ole Miss, in spite of pass-slugging Charley Connerly, will fall victim of that up and coming Vandy aggregation, while Tennessee should grab their first season's win over Chattanooga. The Green Wave was waved off by Tech last week in notorious New Orleans, and are due for another spanking when they meet Rice's Owls at Houston. So much for the South. But wait a minute. Didn't we see North Carolina—they still have a team, you know. Bobby Lane certainly made his bid for All-American honors with his spectacular showing in Texas' rout of Justice and company. But Wake Forest should fall before North Carolina this week; Justice may even shine.

Army still good. Army's fine showing against an accepted undefeated Colorado rates the favorite honors in their tussle with Illinois. California should romp over injury-plagued St. Mary, while the game between Southern Cal. should show down last week's defeated Ohio State.

The Big Game. Many thought that the one between California and Southern Cal. and the winner will very likely fall on the coast with the Rose Bowl. Columbia's rampant Lions, still hot from their win over the Midgies (another one we missed) are our choice over Yale's powerhouse. Another interesting tussle this time takes place in New England is the Dartmouth-Brown affair—it should be Dartmouth.

Pittsburgh doesn't have a chance against the mighty Wolverines who continue to chop away at a leg of the National championship. Never shy away from a good winner, so let's pick Northwestern over Minnesota on game week—cheering on a long arm.

Once more we come to that little lieutenant to memory—the Navy. But why let our old stand-bys down. Navy will upset Duke—just wait and see. UCLA should bowl over Oregon, while Holy Cross is my guess to humble Villanova.

That about winds up the most important games of the week, but here are a few more calls that you can take or leave. Arkansas over Baylor; Boston College over La. State; M. O. to edge Clemson; Alabama finally should win a game over Duquesne; Furman over South Carolina; Iowa over Indiana; Texas over Oklahoma; Santa Clara over Stanford.

Perhaps next week we can come back with a few a little higher—we continue to cheer for the Doughboys, and feel certain in that call.

Joe: "With whom was your wife quarreling last night?"

Moe: "She was scolding the dog."

Joe: Poor beast! I heard her threaten to take the front door key away from him.

Fort Benning, Atlanta Golfers Vie At Post Course Sunday

Twenty golfers from Atlanta's North Fulton Country club will invade Fort Benning Sunday, Oct. 12, to match strokes with the post's 20 top linksmen. This match is a return affair and will give the Benningites a chance to avenge their appalling defeat at the hands of the Atlanta team some weeks ago.

North Fulton numbers among its players Wilfray Crossley, 1947 Public Links champion. The remainder of the team presents a formidable array for any team to compete against and their ability closely parallels Crossley's. North Fulton has a strong team, and while Crossley tops the list of experts, there are many others worth mentioning. Aaron Jackson has been a stand-out in North Fulton tournaments in which North Fulton has participated, while Charlie Barnes, a member of the famous Barnes family that boasts seven boys who are all top linksmen, is another specialist.

Fort Benning's team, which suffered a 7-13 setback last time the two teams met, is bolstered by some new golfers, Maj. Bill Wyoff and Maj. Jim Himgate, both quite familiar in post golfing circles, will be shooting for the Benning team. Captain Lindstrand, who copped medalist honors in the Airborne tourney two weeks ago, will add strength to the Benning team. Other outstanding players are Lt. Col. W. R. Cole, Col. Matt Bristol, Lt. Col. Chuck Davis, and Capt. A. Augustauskas.

Play will begin at approximately 1 p.m. with Frank Goss, Officers' club pro, in charge of the matches.

Post, Columbus Golfing Clubs Plan Matches

The Fort Benning Women's Golf club is holding inter-club matches with the ladies from the Columbus Country club. It was announced this week by Mrs. Robert B. Hill, president of the Fort Benning group.

Qualifying has already started and there will be 18-hole matches as well as nine-hole for those who only play nine.

Ladies who have not signed up yet for this event are asked to do so as soon as possible by adding their names to those already at the Golf club. The entry fee for the matches is $1.00.

To qualify, players must play 18 or nine holes at Fort Benning and the same at the Columbus Country club. These scores are to be turned in at the Golf shop by October 19.

Match play will start at Fort Benning at 10 a. m., Tuesday, October 21, at the Country club at 10 a. m., October 22, and at Fort Benning again on October 23 at 10 a. m.

Prizes are being offered for the day.

In the putting contest held September 26 at the local club, Mrs. Frank Goss took first place with the successive places going to Mrs. E. J. Curtis, Mrs. W. F. Gonske, and Mrs. L. Hickala. On October 10 the ladies played a poker hand with Mrs. R. B. Hill taking first place in the A class and Mrs. J. B. Thompson taking second. First place in the B class went to Mrs. J. D. Cone with Mrs. E. W. Edis a second. The nine-hole first place was won by Mrs. M. J. Mastalar.

Doughboy Juniors Open Season Here

The Fort Benning Junior Doughboys opened the season at Blue Polo field last Saturday with the 'A' team a 13-0 victor in the initial skirmish.

The juniors are made up of boys in the 6-7-8 grade brackets, and are being equipped by their parents who are here on the Post. These same juniors may be seen at Doughboy stadium at a later date.

This Saturday, Baker Village will travel out to Blue field to take the Juniors on a 30-day relay for 2:30 p. m., and all are invited to attend. It was announced by the team coach.

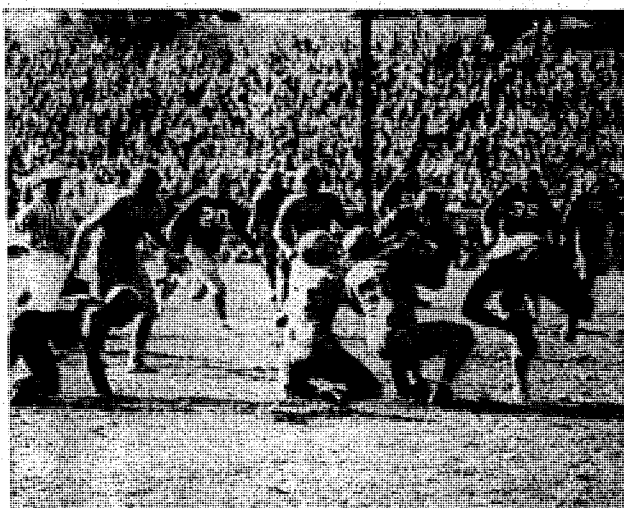

Bullets Defeat Navy Team, 15-0

BY AL WISE
Pay-off passes by quarterback Gordon Burke during the first and second periods, plus a safety by several other linemen, paved the way for the 25th C. T. Bullets 15-0 win over the hitherto undefeated Pensacola Naval Base eleven before a packed house at the Doughboy stadium last Saturday afternoon.

With about one-quarter of the initial period having elapsed, the Bullets had the pigskin in their possession on their own 35. Burke cocked his right arm back and heaved a beautiful 40-yard toss to swingman Jimmy Green, who scampered all the way into the end zone unmolested. Burke's pass to end Eddie Williams zipped the extra point. Bullets 7, Navy 0.

Three minutes of the second quarter had elapsed when Burke decided the time was about ripe for another passing attack. This time it was Eddie Williams, end, who was on the receiving end of the neat toss from the Bullets' 35 for the second TD. The extra point attempt via placement failed. Bullets 13, Navy 0. Alertness on the part of the local forward wall trapped a Navy ball on his own five and rushed him into the end zone for an added 2 points via a safety. Bullets 15, Navy 0.

The final two periods featured thrills, fumbles, and some excellent passing by the visitors which failed to register tallies. Coach Jones used a heavy assortment of subs during the final quarter.

Bob Herrick, (51) Bill Drapper, (25) Leonard Feifer, (15) Bill Lyman, all Doughboys; Parris Islanders are (45) J. W. Leroy and (47) Mike Kreamer.

Airborne Golfers To Vie For Crown Saturday Afternoon

Capt. Herbert Bench and Lt. Colonel Myers will take to the Officers' club golf course Saturday afternoon to match their strokes for the Airborne golf title.

Match play will consist of 18 holes, and the final match will begin at 12:48 p. m. All other matches, those of the other flights, will also be played Saturday.

Capt. Bench fought his way into the finalist slot with a 2 and 1 victory over Capt. John Hebrecht last week, while his opponent, Col. Myers, downed Chaplain Charles Whitman by a similar score.

Both men are excellent golfers, and the championship match promises to be a tight battle to the end. Trophies and individual prizes will be presented immediately following the championship match. Both the winner and runner-up in the championship fight will be cited while the winners in each of the other flights receive handsome cups.

Airborne Five Ready To Play

With sights set to repeat last year's perfect record in the Post Intramural Basketball league, an entirely new Airborne team will take the floor against a highly-touted ISO five tonight at 8:30 in the Airborne gymnasium in what may prove to be the crucial game of the season.

Captain Herbert G. Bench, who led the Fort Benning baseball team to a successful season and the Third Army crown, has been named head mentor of the trooper loopers. Bench's sweat and blood is being dished out copiously in his race with time to knit a stable of strangers, hailing from California to Maine, into a synchronized ball club.

Bob Kinard, who has starred with the baseball team for many seasons, is being currently one of the guards, while Wynn Wooden, a 6'11" bruiser from Garber, Okla., and Phillips University, has emerged from pre-season sessions as the leading forward. The pivot post is being currently handled by Bob Henderson, a shifty lad from Pensacola, Fla. Harry Gross, Bill Larsen and Tony Zwicker promise to help make the competition tough for the rest of the Post league.

Demetros Praises Alabama, Auburn

Pete Demetros, former Merced end, now assistant line coach on the Doughboy football team, returned from Montgomery, Ala. last week after addressing the Quarterback club there.

Demetros outlined why he thought Alabama and Auburn were approaching a highlight in their football careers and went on to predict that these two schools will soon be leading SEC teams.

After his address, he was asked to make a few comments on the Doughboys' chances of repeating their undefeated record last season. Demetros had little to say on the subject, but warned that the Doughs were an ever improving team and had the potentialities for a championship club.

Referee Myers Recovers Football For Doughboys

Lt. Col. Monk Myers, who called the Fort Benning-Parris Island game last Sunday, really had to put on his All-American showmanship when he nearly tumbled on the bottom of a 22-man pile up.

The former West Point stellar fullback found himself in possession of the ball in the third period when Marine Fullback Ed Belton fumbled on a line buck.

Both teams turned on the agile referee and nearly floored him, before realizing he was an official and not a player. After hilarious laughter from the stands and a few side steps by Myers, the ball game was resumed.

Little fly upon the wall. Ain't got no modesty at all! Such behavior is truly shocking; six bare legs and not one stocking!

BY RALEIGH GREENE

It's still a little early to make any rash commitments, but it certainly isn't too early to begin making a few comparisons and drawing a few conclusions on the Doughboys' chances of copying another All-Service title.

It was a slow soldier eleven that edged out a mediocre Cherry Point team two weeks ago. With the exception of fine line play, the Doughs lacked practically everything. But after one week of arduous work the Doughs came roaring back to thump Farris Island 20-0 last week as we all know. If you saw that game, you would remark that Kendrick's boys played fine football and were definitely the best team on the field. But you might, and in all probability would, point out that the same winning club missed plenty of additional opportunity, and had they played to their limit the score would have been even more lopsided.

Now I am not criticizing the Doughs' fast improving team, but merely trying to point out their potentialities. In a little over a week, Kendrick has whipped his team into a scoring ball club. He has chapped up his passing attack to the stage where it has a better than par average. In the past two games, Doughboy artists have lost 52 passes and have clicked for 16—an average of 500. At Cherry Point, the Dough backfield bogged down on five different occasions, failing to score. Although they had over three touchdowns here last Sunday, the Doughs missed at least two other opportunities to reach pay-dirt. A few costly fumbles, and penalties snuffed out other scoring chances.

Yet, all realize that the club is still very young in experience and will continue to show improvement. This Sunday Fort Jackson will take on the Doughs, but from my corner it looks like another victory on the Doughs fast filling belt. Why? Last week they impressed in humbling the Atlanta Ordnance depot team fell, but not lightly, before Fort Jackson 19-0. According to reports, Jackson didn't look very impressive in humbling the Atlantans. And another reason, one which is closer to home, that the 226th game with that same depot aggregation went to the Atlantans on three fumble passes. Benning should have a fairly easy time of it this week, but after that the going will be tough.

Quantico is a team that will give the Doughs plenty of competition. Fort Ricks who has been recently annexed All-American Glenn Davis, will journey to Fort Benning Nov. 4 and you may be sure that the Kansas visitors will be loaded. Word reached us this week that Fort Sam Houston had confirmed their game with the (APPS)—Sign of the times: race tracks throughout the country are reporting a 10 to 12 per cent decline in perimutuel betting.

Sports Chat

Larry MacPhail, whose loud call puts him on Commissioner Chandler's Axminster more than frequently, dispels rumors he may quit as president of the Fort Benning Yankees by announcing his contract has eight years to run. . . . Joe Louis-Joe Wolcott title bout in Madison Square Garden, Dec. 5, may have a $30 top. 'Taint worth half that, but.

Bob Kipphut, the veteran Yale coach who will direct America's swimmers in the 1948 Olympics, expects France, led by Alex Janz, to present the stiffest challenge to a great array of U. S. talent. Wonder what will happen if Bob Feller adheres to his announced intention of ignoring Chandler's warning against post-season barnstorming in South America. . . . High in optimism: Amos Alonzo Stagg, 54-year-old dean of football coaches, signing a 10-year contract and precluding college football in his greatest era.

Branch Rickey's refusal to shift World Series games scheduled at Ebbets field to Yankee stadium, which can seat more than twice as many spectators, is a gesture of loyalty to the Flatbush faithful which will cost him and the Brooklyn Dodgers much mazzuma. . . . In the horse racing business and in the Calumet Farm, S. P. Clark is doing all right this season, with total prize earnings of over $1,000,000. . . . The highest salary of an owner in one season previously was Wright's $601,660 in 1934.

Hooper Transferred

T/5 William C. Hooper, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 33rd Field Artillery battalion, has been transferred to the Airborne battalion's Headquarters and Service company for airborne training, officials said today.

away at Farris Island, spurts of cheer came from the stands, someone with a radio pinned to his ear and his eyes on the football game, would have caught the most recent score, Tommy Tucker, who announced the football game, kept the stand in suspension, so we all were able to keep tabs on the score, and, brother, was I sick!

Well, this year's victory for the Yanks gave them 11 wins in 15 Series tries. But, although the Yanks won a championship, they lost a president, Larry MacPhail. After more than 20 years in the game, MacPhail had to retire because of poor health. Yet, he record of a great manager, and he was happy he was leaving with a winning ball club.

Bowling and basketball get under way on the Post very soon, and there will be plenty to do for the athletic soldier. All too many times, I have heard a number of GI's complaining among themselves that Fort Benning is as dead as a doornail. "There just isn't anything to do except get drunk any more," some have said. Right now, the fall season, the Post is simply buzzing with activities of all kinds. Football, of course, has taken the lead in Post interest, but we grant it every other day on the Post football. But if you will take a look around, you will notice that in a few weeks every night will have some point of interest to offer. Basketball games will be held every Tuesday and Thursday nights, while howling will supplement the lax days of A-Week, which is rapidly capturing the interest of more and more folks on the Post, has been organized into a regular affair, while the entertainment committee on the Post now is mapping out a tremendous social program for the year. Oh, no, there is plenty to do around Fort Benning. Just be glad you are here—I assure you, Benning has any Post beat by a mile.

Three Receive Bronze Stars

Sgt. Walter W. Grager, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 37th Infantry regiment, has been awarded the oak leaf cluster to the Bronze Star, it was learned today.

According to the citation accompanying the award, Sgt. Grager demonstrated "exemplary conduct in ground combat against the armed enemy during the Rhineland campaign in Europe. Two other members of the 37th Infantry regiment also have received the Bronze Star, officials said. They are Sgt. William Wyzard, Company B, and T-Sgt. Stanley E. Sharp, Headquarters and Headquarters company.

Sgt. Wyzard was awarded the medal for "exemplary conduct on or about June 19, 1944, while serving with the Eighth Infantry regiment in Europe. Sharp received the medal while serving with the 10th Infantry regiment on or about Aug. 31, 1944.

New Recruit Plan Set Up At Lawson

Capt. James E. Sever announced today that a wide scale recruiting program has been put into effect at Lawson field during the month of September. . . . S-Sgt. Arthur E. Gilhooley, recruiting canvasser, have made numerous visits to different towns in this locality, showing Air Force motion pictures, assisting with street corners, and various other activities. Mobile loud speakers have been set up and talks concerning the Air Force have been given during the month of September.

One hundred and sixty-nine men were sent to Air Training Command, San Antonio, Texas, for 13 weeks of basic training. Upon completion of the training, they will be sent to Air Force technical schools, subject to specific qualifications. Eleven men were assigned to Keesler field, Miss. Fifty-one men were assigned to Lawson field, and one man was sent to Randolph field, Texas.

Latest Jet Bomber Ready For Testing

The U. S. Air Force's latest jet-propelled bomber, the Northrop YB-49, a flying wing-type aircraft has been rolled out of its construction hangar at Hawthorne, Calif., to begin ground and taxi tests.

The YB-49, a jet-propelled version of the Northrop B-35 Flying Wing, spans 172 feet across the wing, but is only 53 feet long, due to the absence of the conventional fuselage. Instead of the four reciprocating engines on the B-35, the YB-49 is powered by eight General Electric J-35 jet engines built by the Allison division of General Motors. The engines, arranged in groups of four on either wing, produce a total thrust of 32,000 pounds. Service ceiling of the plane exceeds 50,000 feet.

Crew capacity of the jet-propelled bomber is 13 men, including a pilot, co-pilot, navigator, radio operator, flight engineer, bombardier, and gunner, with space for six reserve crew members for relief duty on long missions.

The landing gear of the YB-49 is of tricycle type, consisting of two main wheels, 5 feet, 6 inches in diameter, and a single nose wheel, 4 feet, 8 inches diameter. The YB-49 is controlled by elevators, a control surface which performs the functions of both elevators and ailerons. The plane is equipped with four vertical air separators, which extend above the wing surface, to increase directional stability.

Nine Complete Army Careers Recruiters Stage Water Exhibition

Nine enlisted men with an aggregate of 198 years of service were retired from the Army during a retreat ceremony and parade Sept. 30 at Stillwell field.

Heading the list of men who heeded the adjutant's call for the last time was M-Sgt. James E. Freeman with 27 years of service; one of the five men from Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section No. 3, 344th Army Service unit who were retired. Other 344th men completing their Army careers were 1st Sgt. Stanley Adkin with 24 years service; M-Sgt. Charles B. Vining with 21 years service; 2d Sgt. Robert L. Brewer also 21 years, and S-Sgt. Roy Harden, 20 years service.

Rounding out the remainder of the retiring list were M-Sgt. Pasquale DiFebbrino of the Medical department who has 22 years of service; S-Sgt. Joel E. Rhoads, 378th Ordnance, 22 years; M-Sgt. Eugene C. Tinsley, Company (AS) with 20 years; and S-Sgt. Harris M. Bryant, Company B, 37th Infantry, who is leaving the service after 21 years.

Lt. Col. Harry M. Grizzard, executive officer of School Troops, presented the citations and commendations to the retiring personnel.

Members of the recruiting force at Lawson Field staged a water demonstration in conjunction with the large outdoor program sponsored recently by the Martin Boat club at Alexander City, Alabama.

Demonstrations of operations of the Army Duck (amphibious) were conducted by Cpl. Earl G. Middlebrook from the Lawson field recruiting office, driver of the vehicle. Cpl. Middlebrook, as a member of the Combat Engineers Corps, drove a similar Duck across the Rhine during World War II.

Constituting the Lawson field crew which participated in the show were S-Sgt. Horace Williams, recruiting canvasser; S-Sgt. James E. Gilbree; Sgt. Allen J. Pankau; and Cpl. James O. Henley Jr.

Return To Fort Knox

M-Sgts. Max D. Lawrence, Doyle S. Acres, Jr., Charles L. Todd, and 1st Sgt. Calvin Windom left Fort Benning last week to return to their units at Fort Knox, Ky., following assignments with the 204th Transportation Battalion.

They had been on duty with the 204th since February, holding jobs in operations, post drivers' school, motor pool, and with battalion headquarters.

Base Vocal Group Perform For Baptist Church In Alabama

Squadron F's Singing Airmen, popular Lawson field singers, made their first appearance in several months last Sunday when they presented a musical program at the Bell Street Baptist church in Auburn, Ala., at 8 p.m.

The group became inactive early in this summer when several of its members were transferred. At present the group has only six members and is managed by Col. Thomas T. McQuitty. The other members are Sgt. W. T. Brown, Sgt. Grady Mitchell, Cpl. Andrew A. Matthews, Pvt. Jack James and Pvt. Robert Cunningham.

October 21 will be Squadron F Day at Chapel No. 3, with the Singing Airmen in charge of the musical program for the morning services. Capt. Leonard Ellis, has invited all Squadron F personnel to attend services that morning at 11 a.m.

The Singing Airmen have appeared in churches in Georgia, Alabama, and Florida and have made several radio appearances and recordings.

Short Termers May Extend Enlistments

The Lawson field recruiting office has announced a plan for extension of enlistments to three, four, or five years in accordance with War Department Circular No. 258.

Capt. James E. Sever, recruiting officer, stated that the purpose of the circular was to eliminate a great amount of paper work for men who are interested in staying in the Army and are serving shorter terms of enlistment.

1st Sgt. Alvin E. Knotts, contact canvasser for the base recruiting office, was the first person to take advantage of the new system. Sgt. Knotts, who reenlisted October 1, 1945, for a period of three years, had served two years when he extended his enlistment to five years.

Assigned To Monroe

Cpl. Alan A. Brister, formerly a member of Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, has been transferred to Fort Monroe, Va., for duty as a clerk in Army Ground Force headquarters. Cpl. Brister was a radio operator for the 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

Guardsmen Slated To Attend Ground Training Schools

Approximately 2,000 National Guardsmen assigned to ground force units are expected to attend Army Ground Forces training schools during the academic year 1947 to 1948, it was announced today by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general, Army Ground Forces.

"The school program for the National Guard is one of the most important adjuncts of our overall six-year training program," General Devers stated. "It is hoped that the maximum number of National Guardsmen will avail themselves of the opportunities offered in our training schools."

Courses are currently being conducted at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia; the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Oklahoma; the Armored School, Fort Knox, Kentucky; the General Staff School, Fort Riley, Kansas; and the Physical Training School, Camp Lee, Virginia.

Approximately 75 courses are being offered, among which are those in air transportability, radio repair, air mechanics, meteorology, radar repair and maintenance, seasort artillery, gunnery communication, and photo-interpretation. A six months' course for AGF pilots is being conducted at Santa Marcos, Texas, by the Air Training Command, AAF. Upon successful completion of this course student officers are eligible to attend a two months' operational course at Fort Sill. Ex-AAF pilots may attend a one months' course at Fort Sill to qualify as ground force pilots.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

'Chutist Plans To Use Training Professionally

Like father, like son! This old axiom really holds true in the case of Pfc. George A. Parks, of the 82nd Airborne division, who is a student in 10th Company of the Student Training Regiment. A veteran of some 13 jumps, Pfc. Parks is still an amateur compared to his father, Joe Allen Parks, of Rustyville, Ala., who made over 2,000 jumps in a period of 37 years. Jumping in the early days, when it was somewhat more hazardous than now, Parks' father made his jumps from balloons. In those days a window sash cord was used to tie the chute around an accordion fold. Following his release from the balloon, he would open the 'chute by cutting the cord with a paring knife. One of Parks' uncles was killed when he was unable to cut the cord as it slipped back of his chute. Touring the country with Mrs. Parks, who also made many jumps, the Parks attracted huge crowds with their daring feats. A dangerous performance, parachuting from balloons required split-second timing with jumps usually being made at 3,000 feet. Despite their dangerous undertakings, Mr. and Mrs. Parks averaged a mere five dollars per jump, plus anything the audience was willing to contribute. Pfc. Parks, who is attending the radio repairman's course here, has another year before his enlistment expires. He intends to follow in the footsteps of his father as a professional parachute jumper. You might say he was born a paratrooper.

Benning Colonel To Participate In Winter Tests

Lt. Col. Richard K. Boyd, airborne director of AGF Board No. 3, is scheduled to represent the board exercise "Snowtop" Army Ground Forces maneuver, scheduled for this winter.

Col. Boyd is slated to embark for Alaska to participate in another Army maneuver at the Big Delta in the Yukon and upon his return will lead for Pine Camp, New York, to take part in exercise "Snowtop." Several test officers of AGF Board No. 3 will make periodical visits to the exercise in their newly acquired Navion plane.

The Combat team, consisting of the second battalion of the 50th Parachute Infantry Regiment, Fort Bragg, N. C., plus supporting units will arrive at Pine Camp, New York, during the last part of October. From there the "Snowtop" exercise will begin Nov. 1, under the direction of Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, commander of the First Army.

The exercise will comprise a complete airborne operation in snow-covered country. During the maneuver the individual soldier will learn survival methods and operation of equipment in both bivouac and combat in snow and extremely cold weather, officials said.

Sojourners To Meet

The Fort Benning Chapter No. 8 of the National Sojourners will hold a regular monthly meeting Thursday evening, October 9, at the Polo Hunt club. Major Allen E. Cato, president has extended an invitation to all Master Masons who hold, or have held, commissions in the armed forces to attend.

Attends Army School

Lt. Max H. Sinofeld, Headquarters battery 3rd Field Artillery battalion, left Fort Benning Oct. 5 for Carlisle Barracks, Pa., where he will attend a three-month course at the Army Information School.

The 43rd Infantry division last October on its reactivation as part of the National Guard. Before the war he had served as commander of the 169th Infantry, a part of the 43rd division, and was inducted in Federal service with his outfit early in 1941.

As lieutenant of infantry during the first world war, he won the Purple Heart medal. General Cramer wears the Silver Star with three oak leaf clusters, the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star and Air Medal for his services in World War II.

General Miltonberger, a member of the engineering staff of the state of Nebraska before the war, was assistant division commander of the 35th Infantry division during the war.

Bishop Walker Slated To Conform Candidates

The Rt. Rev. John Moore Walker, Episcopal Bishop of Atlanta will confirm a class of candidates in the Episcopal church at services in the Infantry Center chapel at 8:50 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 12. It was announced today by Chaplain (Maj.) Ernest C. Jones, assistant Infantry Center chaplain.

The confirmation service will be followed by a Holy Communion with music at which time Bishop Walker will deliver the sermon. Chaplains Russell O. Kirsch and Jones, both Episcopal chaplains here, will assist in these services.

Chaplain Jones said the public is invited.

18 HIGH-RANKING TURKS END VISIT

Gen. Salih Omurtak, chief of the Turkish General staff, and 17 other high-ranking Turkish officers left Maxwell field, Ala., Wednesday evening after a one-day tour of the Infantry Center.

Gen. Omurtak, accompanied by Lt. Gen. Zeki Dogan, commander of the Turkish Air Force, Rear Admiral Necati Ozdeniz, deputy chief of staff for the Turkish Navy, and other military officials arrived here at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday aboard a C-47 transport plane and were met at Lawson field by a guard of honor.

Heating Service Now Available

Heating service in all living quarters, barracks and other buildings on the post is now available, post engineer officials have announced.

Heat living quarters, as provided by the automatically controlled heating system, was turned on earlier this month, while service in all other buildings became available Wednesday.

The operation of the automatically controlled heating system now is one of conservation as laid down by the War Department in its fuel utilization program. In answer to many complaints on the post, the post engineer's office emphasizes that the system is one authorized by the War Department in order to conserve much needed fuel in the world-wide campaign against fuel shortage.

Installed to keep a normal temperature of 72 degrees while in operation, the automatic system is adjusted to begin operation when the temperature outside is less than 65 degrees. When the temperature outside reaches 65 or better, the heat is automatically disconnected. When the room clock cuts off the heat between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m.

It must be stressed that unauthorized personnel are not to tamper with the automatic systems. Possible disrupting of service, plus serious hazards may easily result.

Heating service in coal-fired and gas-fired barracks and buildings is now available and can be provided when the occasion demands.

Chambers Returns

T/S John E. Chambers, I and E NCO of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, has returned to his unit from the USAF conference in Madison, Wis. While at Madison Chambers learned the general functions of USAF, the Army Vocational school system, and assisted in scoring some of the Army GED tests.

MATUSKA IS NAMED HEAD SURGEON HERE

Lt. Col. Walter H. Matuska has been named chief of surgical service at the Station hospital in Houston, Tex., where he will do announced today.

Col. Matuska, who took his university's school of medicine entered the Army in 1928 at Fort Thomas, Ky. He served on the staff at the Station hospital there until 1937.

Leaving the Army, the colonel became associated in private practice with a major hospital at Gallipolis, Ohio, remaining there until he received his reserve duty April 2, 1941, at Fort Knox, Ky. He served as chief of the surgical section at the Kentucky hospital until 1945 when he went to Naples, Italy, as chief of the 118th Station Hospital. He returned to the States in July, 1945.

Prior to reporting here, Col.

Following a visit at the office of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, General Omurtak and his party were guests of honor at an official dinner Tuesday evening.

Wednesday morning the Turkish officers attended an infantry fire-power demonstration at Hook range, and prior to leaving the post Wednesday evening witnessed the air demonstration, Operation Combine.

The visiting officers, making a tour of U. S. installations, plan to observe American Army training methods and the industrial and cultural life in this country. They are expected to visit in New York, Washington, Fort Belvoir, Va., San Diego, N. C., Miami, Fla., San Antonio, Tex., Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Bliss, Tex., White Sands, N. M., San Francisco, Calif., Colorado Springs, Camp Carson, Colo., Fort Leavenworth, Kans., Fort Knox, Ky., West Point, N. Y., Chicago, and Detroit.

In addition to General Omurtak, Lt. Gen. Dogan, and Read Admiral Ozdeniz, the Turkish military delegation included Brig. Gen. Mustafa Erdelgun, Maj. Gen. Saim Onhon, Lt. Gen. Zeki Unerar, Col. Hussein Aiman, Col. Midhat Tavikmaz, Col. Seyfi Turgay, Lt. Col. Seyfi Kurtbek, Engineer Capt. Mustafa Yildirim, Capt. Tevrik Samurkas, Lt. Col. A. Yasin, Maj. Emin Divranca, and Maj. Tacetin Fevin.

Philippine Army EM Take Courses Here

Listed on the roster of the Student Training regiment's 10th company are five Philippine Army soldiers, who are attending courses at the Infantry School.

Among the group are M-Sgt. Virgilio Enriquez, and M-Sgt. Pedro Cusi, both veterans of Philippine guerrilla warfare waged against the Japs during the occupation period.

The five students are taking courses here through opportunities granted them under the Rehabilitation Act of 1945. The normal three-year enlistment period in the Philippine Army does not begin until they return to the islands.

Col. Harrell, who reported to the Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston yesterday, was chief of surgery here since July 19, 1946. He is a graduate of Baylor university's school of medicine, and served as surgical chief at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Camp Bourne, Va., and Camp Livingston, La. From 1942 until 1943 he commanded the 41st Evacuation hospital, which saw service in Europe with the First and Ninth Armies.

Barracks Become Family Quarters

Married EM Of Lower Grades Eligible For Rent-Free Homes

More than 90 barracks located in the Harmony Church area were turned over this week to the billeting office here for assignment to married enlisted men below the first three grades for use as quarters; officials revealed today.

Billeting officials contacted today reported that approximately 70 families have already made application for quarters in the area. Some 48 have been assigned to date, and it is expected that the remainder will be assigned by the week's end, they said.

Entrants Still Being Accepted For Pet Show

Entries are still being accepted for the Pet Show to be staged at the Horseshoe Bowl Sunday afternoon, Nov. 2. The show is jointly sponsored by the Officers' Club, Black 12 NCO, and Main Post NCO clubs.

Several entries have already been accepted, including dogs in the various breeds, cats, and numerous birds. A number of dogs and animals brought back from overseas will be entered in the show which gets under way at 2 p. m.

Entry blanks are available at any of the three clubs sponsoring the affair or at any of the major unit headquarters on the post. Col. R. E. Tibbets, secretary of the Officers' club, has announced.

The show is divided into three events. In the first, pets other than dogs, cats, and horses, will be entered. Cats will be featured in the second phase of the show, while the dogs will show in the third event. A jumping exhibition by privately owned horses will be one of the added attractions.

Ribbons will be awarded for the first five places in each event. The competition is open to all officers, enlisted men, civilian club members, and dependents.

Unit Discontinued

The discontinuance of the Seventh company, Student Training regiment, effective October 15, has been officially announced.

Post Chest Fund Officials Named

Representatives have been appointed here as Fort Benning prepares for a 100 per cent contribution in the Local Community Chest Fund drive, which is now under way.

Heading the long list of fund officials is Lt. Col. Wesley U. Morgan, adjutant general's office, who has been designated Fort Benning Community Chest Fund representative.

Two indicators, denoting the progress of the drive, will be posted, one on the Main post and another on the First Division road. The amounts pledged, plus a barometer of contributions, will be posted.

In effect during the months of October and November, the drive was established by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel for the purpose of raising and distributing funds to the following organizations:

Community Chest of America; National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; Joint Army Emergency Relief society; Fort Benning Children's school; Boy Scouts of America; Girl Scouts of America; Teen Age club; Fort Benning Nursery school; and Fort Benning Children's Christmas party.

Although no quota has been set, efforts will be put forth for a goal of 100 per cent contributions. The appeal for funds will be made each year during the period the Community Chest of America conducts its annual drive, and it is possible that within a year's time the Benning Chest fund will have sufficient funds on hand to contribute to the organizations listed, officials said.

Gen. Dahlquist Slated To Speak Here Oct. 24

Brig. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, acting director of personnel and administration, will speak to the students, faculty, and other officers of the Infantry Center October 24.

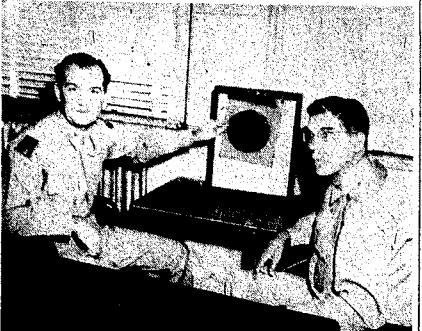

General Dahlquist, co-author of the new promotion legislation, will discuss the provisions of the act with the members of the Main Theater at 1 P. m.

King Awarded Army Citation

The Army Commendation ribbon was presented to S-Sgt. U. J. King, 30th Medical group, last Saturday morning during a special service at the Army Medical Center.

Col. Wiley H. O'Mahondro, commander of the 30th Medical group, made the presentation to Sgt. King.

According to citation accompanying the ribbon, the sergeant "performed outstanding services as section chief, Medical Center, Task Force Frigid, during the period from Sept. 1, 1946 to Feb. 28, 1947. Sgt. King, who entered the service from Texas, supervised the building of a warehouse to be used as a mobile headquarters during the winter maneuver. The award cited "the most important enlisted man in the section" because of his "ability in planning, installing, maintaining, and field operations."

Weather Unit Gets Excellent Rating

The 168th Squadron detachment of the Airways and Air Communications Service, now on duty at Lawson field, received an excellent rating from the inspection team of the 33rd AACGS group at Kelly field, Texas, last week.

The detachment was judged on records, operation of radio tower, efficiency of the operators, maintenance men and radio range and the Lawson airways air-to-ground station.

will be supplied, and each occupant will be required to attend the post engineer's heating school, authorities said. All tenants must also keep the certificate from the school displayed in the boiler room and will comply with all regulations relative to the proper method of firing and maintaining heating equipment, they warned. Electric light bulbs will be limited to 60 watts with the exception of two 50-watt bulbs, it was reported. The maximum number of bulbs to be used will be 15, and two 16-inch fans will be authorized. Electric lockboxes may be installed upon approval by the post engineer, officials said.

Pay for Utilities

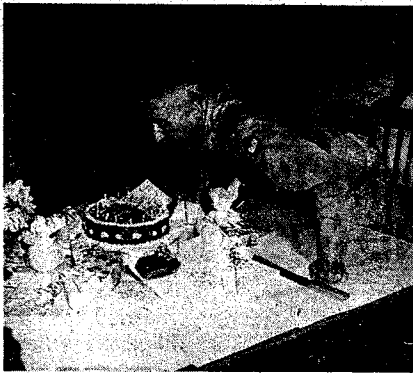

The only cost to the tenant will be his utilities. There will be no charges for rent. Officials said that the total cost for electricity, coal, and water would be approximately five dollars monthly.

All quarters will be assigned to enlisted personnel through the Infantry Center's billeting office located in the annex headquarters building on Vibbert avenue.

Necessary school buses will be provided for children attending schools, but no other transportation will be furnished, officials announced. Bus schedules will be announced later, they said.

Some items of quartermaster property, such as beds, mattresses, miscellaneous tables and chairs, may be obtained from the quartermaster here. Only one family will be assigned to each room.

Officials also reported that at least one centrally located telephone will be made available to each area.

5 Air Force Officers Get RA Commissions

The rank of first lieutenant in the Regular Air Force has been awarded to five Ninth Air Force officers at Lawson field, Maj. John J. Moore, Base S-1, announced.

Receiving commissions were Captains Joseph W. Lewandowski, Merton V. Smith, Raymond J. Bathurst, Harold W. Barrett and 1st Lt. Ernest C. Ford.

Five Detachment Men Awarded Promotions

Five enlisted members of the Infantry School detachment were awarded promotions last week, officials said today.

They included the following members of Company A: T-5 Frank N. Ansel to technician fourth grade and Pfc. Joseph A. Phillips to corporal.

Also promoted were T-4 Joseph P. Fahnholz, both members of Company B, and Cpl. Robert W. Holman, Company H, to sergeant.

Two Benningites Receive Private Pilot's Licenses

Two members of the 25th Infantry cadsas who are taking courses in flying, Staff Sergeants Albert E. Van Slyke and Elmore E. Anderson, successfully passed the initial examinations and received private licenses last week from the Tuskegee School of Aviation.

Late last June, several members from the regiment applied for courses of instruction under the GI Bill of Rights, and during the months of July and August, membership swelled to such a degree that there are now more than 40 students enrolled from the Sand Hill area.

FOOD CONSERVATION TREMENDOUS HERE

Following President Harry S. Truman's recent proclamation on conservation of food to the fullest extent, the Food Service School's savings have reached tremendous proportions, it has been revealed.

It can easily be determined that if all other Army food schools and government installations were to follow the program as close as the Food Service School here, the saving in food would be so tremendous that the battle against the shortage of food could be made much easier, officials said.

The savings in bread, meat and eggs here have been largest. From October 9 to October 15 the school saved 2,118 pounds of bread, or enough to feed three meals per day for 4,236 people. A total of 19,110 people could have eaten eight ounces per day on from this enormous saving of meat.

On eggless Thursdays the amount of eggs saved amounted to 1,374 dozens of eggs, or enough to give two eggs to 8,741 people.

Steps have been taken in the readjustment of troop menus to conform with the program. In addition to the reduction of bread, meat, and egg issue, close supervision is being conducted over all food service activities within the post to effect maximum reduction of waste.

Large Officer Group To Get Foreign Service

All battalions of School Troops have officers alerted for overseas duty, it was learned today from CWO Kenneth Fisher, chief of the assignment section.

The 37th Infantry will lose three men in the near future, while the 75th Tank battalion has four men alerted for overseas shipment.

Three officers are scheduled to depart from the 83rd Field Artillery, and three more leave the 501st Parachute Battalion. The 78th Engineers battalion and the 204th Transportation battalion each have one man alerted.

Men scheduled to leave the 37th are Captain Olaf J. Carlson, regiment motor officer, who is alerted for the ETO; Lt. Robert C. Blair, who goes to the Mediterranean area; and Lt. Constantine Politis and WOJG Milford W. Bell, who will be transferred to Yokohama.

The 75th Tank battalion will lose the following officers: Capt. Wilbur T. Daly, who is scheduled for Japan; Lt. James W. Watkins, Yokohama; WOJG Leonard A. Morton, Guam; and CWO William F. Culpepper, slated for Korea.

Scheduled to depart from the 83rd to Korea are Capt. William H. Hickman, Lt. Bill Fowler, and Capt. William C. Cogswell.

Lt. August G. Falen, Lt. James K. Felty, and Lt. Malcolm A. Martin, all of the 501st, draw assignments to the ETO. Korea is the destination of CWO Leader K. Thomas of the 78th engineers, while Lt. Robert P. Cavery of the 66th Transportation is headed for the Pacific-Asiatic China theater.

First Line of Defense

For months we have been reading in newspapers and listening to radio broadcasters warn us of the danger of becoming completely demobilized. Most of us have paid little attention to these people, branding them either as warmongers or representatives of capital and big business. The time has come, however, when we must face the cold hard facts. The time has come when we must be realists. We can no longer afford to hide our faces in the sand and go merrily along our way without a thought about the future. Actually, the future seems to be closing in on us.

Last week there appeared in Look magazine an article entitled, "We're a Third-Rate Power in the Air." Now to the ground soldier this might not seem so ominous, but it can assure him that this in deed a dangerous situation. What with air transported ground troops fast becoming the rule rather than the exception, think what this means in terms of getting troops to the location when needed, supplying them rapidly, and taking out of the country as soon as they fall.

Despite our loyalty to the infantry, air power is really the first line of defense. Without aircraft to soften up the enemy with incessant bombing and strafing, our ground troops would be forced to move more slowly and with greater loss of life. Without air power to meet and repulse enemy planes before they reach our shores with bombs and troops, America could be paralyzed overnight.

Here is what has happened to our once great aircraft factories:

At the Consolidated-Vultee plant at San Francisco where, during the war, ten B-24 Liberators were produced daily and 101,000 persons were employed, there are only 190 orders on hand and only 26,000 employees. Half the plant is used for production, the remainder for warehousing.

At Douglas' Santa Monica plant, which built 30,000 warplanes, including DC-4's, approximately $750,000 was lost by the company during the first half of this year.

Lockheed, employing 94,000 people during the war, now has fewer than 15,000 on its payroll. The company plans to build only 20 Constellations for commercial use, some P-80's, and a few Navy bombers during the year.

Finally, at Willow Run, built at a cost of $100,000,000 to produce B-24's, the huge aircraft plant is, as we all know, leased by Kaiser-Frazer to build automobiles. Converting to plane production would be a long and difficult process.

Our economy-minded Congress is making more and more cuts in War Department appropriations. We can expect, unless they have a rapid awakening to the needs of this country, such drastic changes that not only will America be third-rate in the air but on the ground and at sea. How ironic when it is so easy to remember a few years ago when the size of our armed forces was so large that Congress can not be blamed for these cuts, however, they merely represent the people of the U. S. We want to see taxes reduced, we want more and more pay for our services, veterans demand more and more for having been in the services during the war years. That is, we want to come from somewhere. The result is that Congress decided to cut down on the money slated to be used for the armed forces. Some how and some way this mistake must be rectified before it's too late. We must not allow our country to be demobilized.

It was a dreadful night, raining with a touch of thunder and lightning. In one of the flashes of a cool saw a drab standing at a door. "Whatsa matter, mister?" he asked.

"Nuthin, I live here."

"Why don't you go in?"

"I lost my key."

"Why don't you ring the bell?"

"Ring. An hour ago."

"Did it again?"

"Heck with them—let 'em wait."

The little fellow awoke from his nap, looked down at his triangular trousers, and shouted over to the occupant of the room. "Hey, you, did you throw water on me?"

"None."

"Huh, musta been an inside job."

Bill: What are you doing in jail?
Neal: Aw, it was because of a fight.
Bill: What was the fight for?
Neal: My wife sent me out to see if the butcher had pigs feet.
Bill: So?
Neal: So he didn't like the idea of my taking his shoes off.
She: Darling, if I marry you, I'll lose my job.
He: But darling, we'll keep the marriage a secret.
She: But suppose we have a baby?
He: Oh, we'll have to tell the baby, of course.
Little dog, looking up at parking meter: "Hell, you gotta pay now!"

THE VISION GLORIOUS

By Chaplain R. O. Kirsch

When our Blessed Lord said to His disciples: "I can send forth from the Father and am come into the world; again I leave the world and go to the Father," he was stating more than the mere fact of the cycle of His Incarnate Life. He declared that He came with an assigned mission that it was His purpose to accomplish it, that all His life His eyes were fixed upon the goal, that He would return when His assigned work was done. He had ever before Him the Vision Glorious—the doing of His Father's will. And this is also our mission in life.

The story is told of an inquisitive visitor to the site of the construction of a church building. He asked one workman: "What are you doing?" and received the weary reply, "Chipping stones." He asked a second and was told, "I am building a cathedral." "These two classes have not caught the Vision Glorious."

This story is a parable of modern times. For many people are just chipping stones, doing a routine job of living with no interest, no vision, no sense of mission or purpose. Others are just putting in their time. They, at least, have some sort of objective beyond mere existence, but such a miserably inadequate one it is. They are utterly selfish and are either unable or unwilling to see beyond themselves and their desires. These two classes have not caught the Vision Glorious.

A rewarding here below and infinite rewards above what we can receive here beyond are reserved for those who have caught the Vision Glorious. They are simple and great, strive to do their Heavenly Father's will in thought, word, and deed. To know that they were sent by Him to do His Father's work; it is always before their eyes; it gives meaning and purpose and vision to life now. They are building something worthwhile and enduring all because they have the Vision Glorious.

Once upon a time there were seven brothers. The first one was a lawyer and the second one a banker and the sixth occupied the cell next to him. And the seventh was a bachelor-like his father.

"Jimmy is taking me to France on our honeymoon."
"That's nice, but a pleasant surprise; how did he spring it on you?"
"He said as soon as we were married he'd show me where he was wounded in the war."

A LABAR-TOON

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL

To you who are looking forward to immediate discharge this week's column will be of special interest.

Right now at Fort Benning about 33 or 40 men are being separated from the service daily for reasons other than disability. Before leaving the Army, the specialists is interviewed by the military of his rights, benefits, and privileges. In addition Red Cross personnel are available for further counsel. The Red Cross is specifically charged with the responsibility of filling out Veterans' Form No. 526, "Application for Claims." All separates before leaving the post, should consult the Red Cross relative to filling out this application form.

If the medical examiner thinks you should fill out one of these forms, you should certainly do so before leaving the post. If you believe you have service-incurred disability, you should certainly fill out this form. The importance of doing this can not be overstressed, for if it is filled out while being separated, the answers to the questions on the form are fresh in your mind. Of greater importance yet is the fact that your papers are brought together into one file for future reference. If, at a later date, as a person, you attempt to fill out this form, a long delay usually occurs since you must gather all your papers for action to be taken.

Service to the separate by Red

Cross personnel is only the beginning of service you can expect from the Red Cross when you become separated from the service.

In your home community the Home Service worker will help solve personal and family problems, provide financial assistance, help with your claim for government benefits, and aid in referral to other agencies in your community. Chapters have close ties with field directors at Veterans Administration offices whereby special assistance is made available in presenting and prosecuting claims for compensation, pensions, and other benefits.

Red Cross staff members in Veterans Administration offices, wherever they have access to Veterans Administration records and are able to give chapter workers advice on the type of evidence needed to file claims. These specialists will also appear in your behalf before the Veterans Administration Rating board and Board of Veterans Appeal to present evidence in your case. It is their responsibility to expedite action and assist in obtaining all benefits to which you are entitled.

When you return home after separation, you should keep in close contact with your Red Cross chapter, or they have for latest data on government regulations affecting your status. A constant flow of information from the National Red Cross in Washington keeps the chapters abreast of any changes and developments.

If, on being separated, you fail to file Form No. 526 and find it necessary to do so at a later date, your Red Cross chapter will have these forms and will be glad to assist in filling them out. If you wish, you may give the Red Cross the power of attorney to represent you in prosecuting your claim. They will help collect evidence and such other documents needed.

The Red Cross here especially invites you, who are being separated, to our office for counseling before leaving the post. We have valuable information which will be beneficial after you become a veteran.

VICTORY DRIVE — NEXT TO "SNACK SHACK"

Concert Series Membership Drive Oct. 29 To Nov. 5

With the endorsement of Major General John W. O'Donoghue, the Fort Benning Women's club started work this week to organize the membership plan for the concert series to be held on the Post this season, the first such series ever sponsored at a military installation.

The membership drive, to be held from October 29 to November 5, was planned at a meeting held Tuesday morning at the quarters of Mrs. Robert B. Hill, president of the Women's club. Ladies serving with Mrs. Hill on the executive committee for the concert are Mesdames Frank Ward, Irvine C. Scudder, Richard Dial, and Fay Ross.

Headquarters for the drive will be at the Officers' club and teams to collect the membership dues will contact each individual on the Post. The entire drive will be held during the one week, according to the plans laid by the committee, and admittance to the concerts, which are to be held in the Main theater, will be through membership only.

The concerts to be given here will be furnished by the Community Concert Series, including the drive William Richards, organization director from the Service, will be here to work with the local committee.

Lawson Ladies To Name Officers At Next Meeting

At an informal gathering of the Lawson Field Women's Club October 7, Mrs. Alfred Hinman, acting president, announced that election of officers and committee members will take place on October 21 when the club holds its second meeting of the 1947-48 year.

The first meeting for the club will be held at 1:30 p. m. in the Officers' club's main lounge and will be followed by bridge and refreshments.

Mrs. Hinman presided at the gathering which marked the club's first meeting for the year. Assisting her were Mrs. Malcolm Sponenbergh, secretary, and Mrs. Bryon E. Trent, treasurer.

Minutes of the club's last meeting, which took place in July at the Fort Benning Post, were read by Mrs. Sponenbergh and the financial report was given by Mrs. Trent.

New business brought up included the forming of a bowling team and a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

Entertainment for the afternoon included a technical film and cards.

Among the ladies present were Mrs. Gilbert T. Collar, Mrs. Wilfred Hinman, Mrs. Malcolm Sponenbergh, Mrs. Bryon E. Trent, Mrs. John Weretschko, Mrs. Frank Pohlman, Mrs. Harry Grover, Mrs. Joseph Lewandowski, Mrs. Gonske, Mrs. George Potter, Mrs. J. L. Tissue, Mrs. C. W. Young, Mrs. William R. Edgar and Mrs. Robert J. Clark.

WED. FRIDAY—Pvt. and Mrs. Calvin C. Vick who were married October 16 at the home of the bride's parents. She was married by Miss Nell Ester Kennedy, of Columbus.

Miss Kennedy Weds Pvt. Vick At Parents' Home

Of sincere interest to their many friends at Fort Benning was the wedding October 10 of Miss Nell Ester Kennedy of Columbus and Pvt. Calvin C. Vick.

The marriage was quietly solemnized in the home of the bride's parents with the Honorable Judge J. S. Bursch officiating.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kennedy of Dothan, Ala., was lovely in a two-piece gray suit and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. H. C. Willis was the bride's only attendant, and wore a brown two-piece suit.

Cpl. H. G. Willis acted as best man for the ceremony which was witnessed by several friends and relatives of the couple.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Vick of Lebanon, Tenn., has been in the Army for two years and is attached to Co. C, 37th Infantry regiment as a truck driver.

The couple are now at home in Columbus.

Autumn Motif Seen At Section Lunch

Using an attractive autumn motif for table decorations, ladies of the Faculty section held their monthly luncheon last Thursday in the Palm room of the Officers' club with Mrs. J. DeMers and Mrs. G. B. Pickett Jr. as co-hostesses.

Flowers were laid for 38 guests at the long table which was arranged with a streamer of ivy and orange berries with jack-o'-lanterns as the center of attraction. The clever place cards were made of apples with the names inserted on stiff paper, and tall white tapers were held in crystal candelabra.

Lawson NCO Club Host To Visitors

The Lawson field NCO club was the scene of much activity last Saturday night when members played host to 15 young women from LaGrange, Ga., at a dance. Music was furnished by the Georgians.

The club observed game night Wednesday with a very large attendance and many members and their guests were awarded valuable prizes.

Extensive plans have been made for an old fashioned square dance, Saturday night, October 25, celebrating Halloween. Costumes for the occasion will be optional.

Lt. Kelly, Mr. Troxel Wed In Station Hospital Chapel

In the first wedding to be performed in the new Protestant chapel at the Station hospital, Lt. Anna Kelly, Army Nurse, became the bride of Mr. Charles F. Troxel, of Allentown, Pa., in a double-ring ceremony beautifully solemnized Saturday at 6 p. m. with Chaplain (Capt.) Robert P. Canis, hospital Protestant chaplain, officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Carey Kelly, of Memphis, Tenn., and she chose of a green tulle dress with black corsage as the occasion. Her bridesmaid was white orchids.

Mrs. James Allen, of Memphis, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and wore a gray tailored dress with black accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

James A. Kelly, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and James Allen was the usher. The guests found the chapel beautifully decorated with mass bouquets of salmon pink gladioli and heavy ferns.

Lieutenant Kelly has been on duty with the Station hospital here since February of this year. She entered the service in 1943 and served for three years overseas with the 12th General hospital in Africa and Italy.

During the war Mr. Troxel was lieutenant commander in the Navy and is at present a captain with the American Export Lines.

A reception for 50 guests was held in the reception room of the Main Nurses' quarters following the ceremony and there the bride cut her beautiful tiered cake,

Literature, Art Group Opens Activity; Mrs. Moon To Play

The literature and art group of the Fort Benning Women's club opened activities Monday afternoon at a meeting held at the Officers' club when Mrs. Richard Sandusky, chairman, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Robert B. Hill, president of the Women's club; Mrs. Frank Ward, vice president, and Mrs. Irvine C. Souder, program chairman, and approximately 30 other ladies were present for the meeting which was planned to discover the interests of the majority. Mrs. Sandusky explained that two of the three divisions which have been combined into the literature and art group, namely, the music, current events, and book review groups will be featured at each meeting this year. At the next meeting, which will be held November 10 at the Officers' club, Mrs. Maureen Moon, violinist, will be featured on the program with her accompanist, Mrs. Kendrick Kierce. Two chaplains, who have served recently in Italy and Germany, will also appear on the program, and will tell what is happening among the people of those countries.

Future programs will include a book show at the December meeting and a later meeting will be devoted to listening to classical records with help in understanding and appreciating good music.

Mrs. Hill discussed the Community Concerts which will be given at Fort Benning this season and asked for volunteers to help with the membership drive. Mrs. Souder announced that the next general meeting of the Women's club will be held December 15 at the Officers' club, and Joe Callaway, professor at Michigan State college, will give his dramatic review of current Broadway shows, "Broadway By Play." Mrs. H. A. Stewart will assist Mrs. Sandusky as chairman of the current events section this year and Mrs. R. G. Collins will assist on the book review section. Mrs. William Rhinehart, co-chairman of the group with Mrs. Sandusky, spoke of her enjoyment in working with the group and said she anticipates an interesting year.

Bunting-Newsom Wedding Event

Miss Henrietta Bunting, of Columbus, became the bride of T-4 Gene T. Newsome, of Fort Benning, and Norman Okla., in a ceremony solemnized October 4 at the parsonage of Rev. W. H. Cook of the Central Baptist church in Phenix City, Ala. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. E. Bunting of Columbus, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Newsome of Norman, Okla. He has been at Fort Benning since January 16, 1947, and is a member of A battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion. The bride was attractively dressed in a blue-gray dress with a white lace collar and corsage of yellow rose buds. Cpl. Angus Jenkins acted as best man and the ceremony was witnessed by the bride's mother and Mrs. Elmer Cole, aunt of the bride. Several other friends and relatives also attended. The couple will be at home at 204 Peabody avenue in Columbus.

Gen., Mrs. O'Daniel Are Grandparents

Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel have been visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Groesbeck, in New York City on the occasion of the birth of their first grandchild, a daughter born October 8 at Doctor's hospital in New York City. The baby has been named Brownyn Charles. Her mother is the former Miss Anne O'Daniel. General O'Daniel returned to Fort Benning Monday afternoon while Mrs. O'Daniel is continuing her visit in New York.

Red Devils Plan Reunion Saturday At Victory Lodge

Former personnel of the 508th Parachute Infantry regiment from all over the United States are expected to attend the reunion party, which will include a dinner and dance, Saturday evening at Victory lodge, it was announced today by the committee in charge of arrangements. This will be the first reunion of the "Red Devils," an outfit activated in October, 1942, at Camp Blanding, Fla., under the leadership of Col. Roy E. Lindquist, now chief of the Airborne Section here. In a succession of moves the 508th was stationed at Camp Blanding, Fort Benning, Camp Mackall, N. C., and the Tennessee Maneuver area before going overseas in December, 1943, to be attached to the 82nd Airborne division. A part of that division, the 508th parachute into Normandy, and later into Holland. The unit fought in the Battle of the Bulge, and at the end of the war was selected to serve as General Dwight Eisenhower's honor guard in Frankfurt, Germany. A full-scale reunion is being planned for next year, and any one interested in further information, either concerning the party Saturday or the reunion for 1948, can contact Lt. Col. O. A. Holmes or Capt. E. L. Killey at the Airborne section.

Personals

Commander M. A. Orr, NNC, Naval Hospital staff, Dublin, Ga., who was recently the houseguest of Major and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, was seriously injured October 5 in an automobile accident while en route from here to her base station. Mrs. Frisby left Sunday to spend several days with her friend at the Naval hospital. T-4 Clyde Crews has left for Jackson, Fla., to visit his wife and their new-born daughter. Sergeant Crews is a member of Service battery 83rd Field Artillery battalion and is an automobile mechanic in the battalion's motor shop. Major General (ret.) and Mrs. R. M. Pennell, of Lawton, Okla., will arrive Sunday to visit on the Post for about a week. They will be guests at the quarters of their two daughters and sons-in-law, Lt. Col. and Mrs. O. A. Leahy and Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. K. Boyd while here.

Bowling Activity Sees Large Group At First Meeting

Opening the winter season with a highly successful meeting, ladies of the bowling group met last week at the Post Bowling alley and heard Mrs. A. L. Millican, chairman of the Women's club group, outline a program promising a most successful season. Bowling for the first meeting brought high scores of the day to Mrs. A. L. Van Oosten with 161 and Mrs. E. M. Kreilick with 147. The group will meet each Wednesday morning during the year at 9 a.m. at the Post Bowling alley. Ladies assisting Mrs. Millican are the co-chairman, Mrs. John R. Grollemund, and Mrs. Ethel Bangerter, Mrs. Frank Blake, Mrs. Robert Phelps, and Mrs. Marshall Bullock.

SETTING UP—Pfc Donald J. Madden, left, and T-Sgt. E. D. Irvin set this bulletin board in place in preparation for an inspection before leaving the post. This is one of three such bulletin boards which show the many attractions at Fort Benning.

LIAISON CALL—At every stop along the route in south Georgia, School Troops recruiters make contact with regularly assigned recruiting personnel. Here T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly shakes hands with M-Sgt. Douglas C. Jeffers, head of the recruiting team at Thomasville. To the right is T-Sgt. Curran M. Poite, assistant recruiter. Sgt. Poite served with the 83rd Field Artillery battalion here several years ago.

Weekly Picture Story

In The Bayonet two weeks ago we reported a new and unique idea in recruiting—a colorful caravan touring Georgia.

This idea, originating with School Troops, offered something to the citizens of Georgia. It was a good way to present the Army, to point out its many advantages and its innumerable opportunities.

After looking it over carefully, we thought you would like to know just how it operates. In order to bring you a true picture of the "show on the road," we visited the caravan when Col. Charles F. Royce, School Troops commanding officer, inspected it just before it rolled south. Three days later we contacted it in Thomasville, Ga., to get a camera-eye view of the functions in the field.

Here then are the results of the tour.

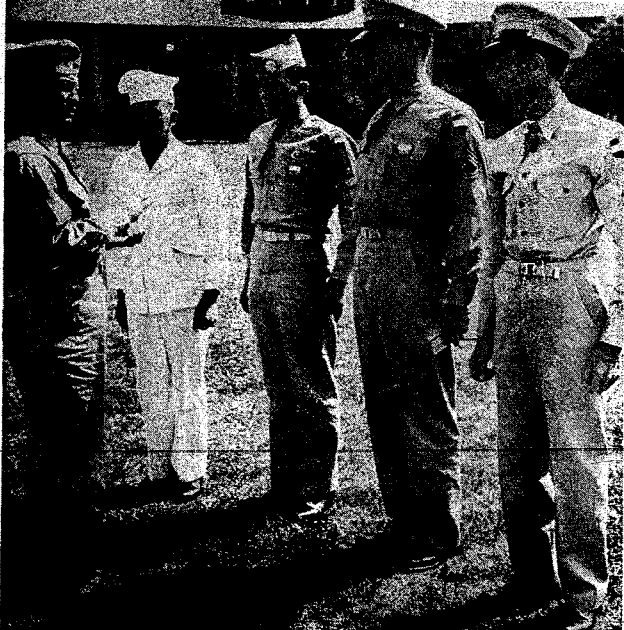

KITCHEN INSPECTION—Col. Charles F. Royce, School Troops commander, inspects the newly equipped mobile kitchens to assure that it is in top-notch condition before beginning the tour. Sgt. C. F. Henry, cook for the caravan, is at the right.

STORING FOOD FOR THE LONG HAUL—Sgt. C. F. Henry, caravan chef, checks his stored food before beginning the tour through south Georgia. Sgt. Henry has a complete kitchen built in the rear end of a GI bus. In the front there are two double-decker beds where the personnel sleep.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS—This giant trailer-office, once a part of the caravan that rolled across Europe with the field headquarters of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, is now the office and testing room of the School Troops recruiting caravan which is touring south Georgia.

FINAL BRIEFING—Col. Charles F. Eayoe, commander of School Troops, gives a bit of last minute advice to Sgt. C. F. Henry, S-Sgt. R. D. Irvin, T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly, and Cpl. Robert White, all members of the recruiting caravan, prior to their departure from Fort Benning.

Ervin, T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly, and Cpl. Robert White, all members of the recruiting caravan, prior to their departure from Fort Benning.

in a series of mental tests. These tests determine the eligibility of a man to enlist in the Army. Both Mr. Hurst and Mr. Matlock enlisted for duty with the 16th Engineer Combat battalion.

CHECKING THE ANGLES—T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly claims you can not miss a single cue when presenting the Army as a career to a future top-kick. Here Sgt. Kelly, who serves as caravan commander, tunes in a stirring march recording before announcing to the citizens of Thomasville, "We are now open for business."

RECRUITING ON THE AIR—Robert Altman, chief announcer for WFAX, Thomasville, gives the School Troops caravan a plug on the air waves, while Pfc Donald J. Madden looks on.

Navv Challenges Dough Win Streak

Post-game celebrations came to an abrupt end early this week as Butch Kendrick started his rampant Doughboys prepping for Sunday's tilt with the Green Cove Springs Navy due to arrive here Saturday from hurricane-swept Florida. Kickoff is set for 2:00 p. m. at Doughboy stadium.

Not since Nov. 18, 1945, when the Air Transport Command turned back Bill Meeks' boys 23-7, has a Fort Benning football team been better. From that date, the Doughs have bowled over 15 opponents, and topped all scores in their 16-game win streak last Sunday with a 60-0 rout of an outclassed Fort Jackson eleven.

As many of the undefeated teams in the nation face the test as this, the most unpredictable year in football history, Fort Benning's doughy Doughs continue to show their strength, and hold mastery over most of the service teams in the country. Green Cove Springs becomes the Doughs' 16th foe since that fateful day in Nov. of 1945, and both teams will be fighting furiously for a victory, Benning for one reason, the Navy for another.

9,000 See Game
Kendrick's power-laden Doughs put on a show for some 9,000 spectators here Sunday that hasn't been equaled by any Benning football team in 15 years. Accurate passing, faultless running, and superb downfield blocking proved the impetus for one of the biggest scores any Benning team has run up during its gridiron history.

But Butch Kendrick, an ever driving coach, has not allowed his charges to coast. Working more and more on that air assault that netted the Doughs 106 yards Sunday, Kendrick hopes to whip his passers into even a more precise combination. Don Perrody, who took top position among the Doughboy pass-artists, but such men as Harry Sloan, Wilbur Ross, and a burly quarterback, Jim Mitchell, have been showing steady improvement in the art of dropping the pigskin in the hands of waiting receivers.

For the fourth time this season, Benning will take on a team of definite favorites, but Kendrick is aware that an upset is always possible and has been in his bottom best to iron out any deficiencies in his attack.

Changes Line-Up
The Doughs' starting line-up may see some drastic changes this week. Jack Seybold, who was pulled at the last minute Sunday because of an ailing knee, has been replaced by Eric Dawson, a Lyman, who began as a scrub guard, has become one of Kendrick's most valuable linemen and is slated for the starting berth at left guard again this week unless Seybold shows rapid recovery. Harold Haberman, the man that was the in-between on a tricky pass-lateral play introduced Sunday while Harold Lutz should hold down the right flank. Lutz, built his way up from a second string position, sparked in line play Sunday and showed off his talented toe, kicking six of the Doughs' extra points. The balance of the Benning eleven and the Navy probably remain intact. Bob Ward, still making his bid for All-Service honors, is back at right guard alongside Dick Groninger, a soft-spoken but dangerous tackle. Carl Meyers, the blond-haired 210-pound pick of dynamite, continues to hold mastery at the left tackle slot. Bill Piumella, a roving and grade-down an abrupt end early this week. Kendrick started his rampant Doughboys prepping for Sunday's tilt with the Green Cove Springs Navy due to arrive here Saturday from hurricane-swept Florida. Kickoff is set for 2:00 p. m. at Doughboy stadium.

In the backfield there will be no change except at quarterback. Jim Mitchell will get the call at that position with Bob Scallion acting as an able alternate. Don Perrody will start at left half, while Cosmo Cutri will again take his place at right half. Big Bob Seibert is slated to work from the fullback hole.

At this point, the Doughs stand third in the nation with their undefeated record. Should the Doughs come up to expectations Sunday and down Green Cove, they will have run their streak to that record, and Notre Dame leads the Doughs by one or two games. Should the Doughs get by Green Cove, they should have little trouble in taking a second decision on Fort Jackson. From then on the going will be tough. Quantic, Fort Sam Houston, Fort Kan, and Jacksonville Naval Air Station provide the four formidable teams to be beaten this year.

Little is known of the Navy team from Green Cove, since their game was tentative until early in the week. Benning scouts had no opportunity to get a glimpse of the sailors last week. The game, however, played an inter-squad game. But an Army-Navy game is always the most unpredictable of football games.

Troopers. 204th Humble Foes

The Main Post gym was alive again Tuesday night, as Section II of the Post intramural basketball league got underway, with the 204th Trunkers blanking Squadron F, 34-28.

It was the precision shooting of Fred Williams that kept the 204th in the lead from the start. His lanky center accounted for 14 of his team's 26 points. But the all-round fire of the Trunkers insured the victory as the 204th was never behind.

In the second tilt of the evening, the troopers from the 555th completely outclassed their motor transport opponents, sweeping to a 40-6 rout. Eric Dawson, a sharp shooting pivot postman, stole the limelight for the aviators, tallying ten field goals for an aggregate of 20 markers. It was the most impressive show that any one player has put on for the fans since the league began last week. On this week's agenda, the 204th Transportation Battalion is slated to match shots with the Student Training regiment Tuesday night at 8 p. m., while the 555th takes on Squadron F early in the evening.

DEVASTATING INTERFERENCE—Wilbur Ross hops, skips, and jumps for a long gain against Fort Jackson in last Sunday's game at Doughboy stadium. Bob Seibert (on ground) has just finished knocking Emile Scalpio (14) out of the play, while Bill Piumella (35) is ready for any oncoming tacklers.

Doughs Slaughter Jacksonites 60-0

A powerful Doughboy football machine ran and passed at will last Sunday at Doughboy stadium in slaughtering an out-fought and outclassed Fort Jackson eleven by a lopsided 60-0 score before the fast-moving eyes of some 9,000 spectators.

The Red Devils from South Carolina got a brief glimpse of the layout of Benning's goal line when a clipping penalty carried the up-country Army boys to the Doughs' 47-yard line. One play after that, a seemingly invincible forward wall surged up to set the Jacksonites back across the midfield stripe.

Scoring in every period and battering down Jackson's vain attempts to threaten, the Doughs swept to their 13th consecutive victory since the Benning team of 1946 made its first showing with a 34-0 rout of Fort McClellan, Ala. Last Sunday's overwhelming win was more decisive than any score the 1946 edition compiled last season.

Doughs Score Early
Before the ball game was five minutes old, the Doughs had vaulted to a 14-0 lead that grew to preposterous heights every time the Doughs got the ball. Two successive 15-yard penalties, in the off from Harry Sloan and scooted across the goal untouched. Ben O'Brien chewed a leg off the glory leg when he evaded three tacklers, scurrying through seven yards of Jackson intended territory for another score. Wilbur Ross had hit Doug Scovil for 15 and added 22 yards on a beautiful fake pass to put O'Brien and the Doughboys in scoring position.

The final marker came in the waning minutes of the ball game. Bob Scallion retortified Cassidy's kick 40 yards, Frank Meagher passed to Scovil, who lateraled to Wilbur Ross, and the Doughs were in scoring position on the six. Boney Bonair picked up five through the center, and Herbert Blair crashed over from the one. The game ended a few seconds later.

Bob Cassidy was the only man who sparked the Jackson running attack, gaining 16 yards on the ground and completing three passes for 19 yards. Fred Oliver and Ollie Small stood out for their defensive play.

Harvey Recoveres
Another fumble was recovered by Al Harve seconds later, giving the Doughs the ball on the Jackson 40. Bob Scallion pulled a sneaker, bulging his way for a first down on the 27. Harry Sloan tossed ten yards to Harold Haberman, who quickly passed off to Boney Benair. The play was finally halted inches before the goal.

Bob Cassidy kicked as soon as the ball fell to the Jacksonites in the final half. Jim Mitchell's 19-yard shot to Harold Haberman earned 14 to the Jackson 25, and Don Perrody took over from that point, accounting for another touchdown on a beautiful off-tackle jaunt. Another kick by Cassidy gave the Doughs the ball on the Jackson 47. Bob Seibert plowed his way through a congested Jackson backfield for 16 yards, and a first down, and on the next play Perrody loosed a 32-yard pass that fell into the hands of Cutri. The Doughboys were running wild.

53-Yard Drive
Another 53-yard drive marked by passes from Jim Mitchell to Harold Haberman, and Don Perrody to Bob Seibert, sent the Doughs hurtling down to the Jackson 11. Cosmo Cutri ended his touchdown spree with a hand-off to Harold Haberman.

	Fl.	Doughboys	Jackson

second period took the Butchemen back to the Jackson 40 and, although Cosmo Cutri shook his way back to the seven, the long run fell short of a first down. Benning's first tally came when Harold Perrody, ace punter, artfully returned the kickoff to the Jackson 34. In three tries the Doughs crossed the stripe for a score. Little Cosmo Cutri elicited off his first of three markers with a 25-yard sprint around left end.

Jackson went nowhere when they finally got their hands on the ball, and quarterback Bob Cassidy was fanned to kick. Cutri took a snap from Bob Scallion, faked an end run, and fired to Bob Seibert in the end zone. Harold Lutz's talented toe again split the uprights, and the Doughs led 14-0.

A few minutes after the second period opened, Bob Cassidy faded back behind his goal to pass, but a host of Doughboy linemen swarmed over the unprotected quarterback with such ferocity that the ball went sailing from his hands and watchful Bob Herrick pounced on the loose pig-

For over a year now service elevens over these United States have been trying, but to no avail, to defeat a seemingly invincible Fort Benning Doughboy football team.

Yet the Doughs have come along their long journey, and have waylaid 15 consecutive opponents to top third position in the nation's list of undefeated records. Not since a cloudy Sunday afternoon, Nov. 18, 1945, to be exact, has a football team humbled a Doughboy eleven. On that day almost two years ago, the Air Transport Command turned back Billy Bock's soldier aggregation, 23-7. Only the great Army teams of 1944-45-46, and the ever formidable Irish from Notre Dame have succeeded in boasting a record greater than the Doughboys. But, while teams around the nation continue to threaten Army's record, the Doughs continue to make themselves one of the greatest, if not the greatest, service team in the United States. Should Benning trample through another undefeated season, and it is not too probably, they will become the first service eleven ever to clinch the national honor for two consecutive years.

Last week we talked about the Doughs' chances of building to another championship. We pointed out that the season was too young to make any rash statements because of the rugged schedule that was yet before Fort Benning. We stuck to that original premise, but venturing a little further into the daylight to point out that, after last Sunday's spectacular exhibition of power and precision, the Doughs' possibilities have increased one-hundred fold.

From the spectators' point of view, from the coaches' point of view, even from the viewpoint of the kids sitting cokes in the stands, the Doughs played faultless football. Fort Jackson was never able to stop the Benning attack—on the ground or in the air. Each time the Doughs took possession of the ball they traveled goalward. Completing 11 of 15 attempted passes, Butch Kendrick's boys convinced everybody that there were great potential aerial artists on the team.

The fact that the Doughboys are so loaded in every position makes their running and passing attack even more deadly. They digress for a moment and take a survey of a team in our neighborhood, Georgia Tech, the Wildcats of Kentucky last Saturday. Everybody was amazed when the final score read 26-0 in favor of Kentucky, for hadn't that same Bulldog team upset a highly rated LSU eleven the week before that with their defeat of 26-0 in lack of LSU watchmanship that cost the Tigers their defeat? Well, let's point out a fact or two, and you draw your own conclusions. Georgia's attack is centered around Johnny Rauch—who is, naturally, since he is the man that handles the spirit. But Rauch is the only man that has been doing the passing for Georgia. Kentucky was Rauch's kind-of-toe into the daylight to point out that, after last Sunday's spectacular exhibition of power and precision, the Doughs' possibilities have increased one-hundred fold.

In contrast to this, the Doughs have five excellent passers in Meagher, Henry Sloan, Wilburn Ross, Jim Mitchell and Frank Passes, too; a grand total of seven men who are capable of putting on a passing exhibition. But the good feature about this is the fact that all seven men have managed to chuck up good records with their legs. Jackson was at a complete loss, and never knew just what the play would be.

That 200-pound forward wall is becoming one of the surest in this part of the country. The troops of 150 yards have been continually gained against them, while the line has continually crashed through their opponents' forward wall to smash their running foes for costly losses.

It's a long stretch to home-plate, but my dough is going to stay on the Doughs.

Something that surprised this corner was the fact that speedy Dick Gerhart didn't get into Sunday's game. We would like to retract that statement somewhat since he did play a few minutes (and that's all he did) but he was in there). Many are wondering just why he didn't get a chance to make his bid as a Doughboy runner. For the time Gerhart was in the game, he was never assigned a running job, and, consequently, never had the chance to show where his fast-moving legs might carry him.

Basketball is beginning to come into its own around the Post again, and 11 teams got off to a fiery start last Tuesday night in this part of the country. The champions of last year, the 100th, got off to a good start, downing the ISD 33-24 and taking a forfeit from the 33rd Field Artillery. To date four teams, the 37th Infantry, AGF Board No. 3, the Airborne battalion, and the 77th Engineers are all tied up for league leadership. This year's Post league should wind up being a much more contested affair than was the case last season. The league continues through Nov. 25, and I wouldn't want to say ahead for the winner, whoever that is. Every coach will still a long road team, and every interested fan has his ideas. I wouldn't want to say I got into too much ditch picking every all season.

Atlantians Rout Post Linksters

Twenty expert linksmen from the North Fulton Country club had little trouble in routing the picked group of Fort Benning golfers at the Officers' club course Sunday afternoon 53-10.

The Atlanta team took all seven matches, and scores overwhelming victories on six of them, and only in the final match did the Atlantians have any difficulty. The seventh-match was the closest of the day, and Dr. Franklin Cox and N. E. Hughes had to match strokes with Lt. Col. E. P. Eschenbury and Maj. J. M. Browning to the last hole to edge their opponents 5 and 4.

In the first match, National Public Links champion, Will Crossley, teamed with Roy Sulzer to down Lt. Col. W. R. Cole and Maj. W. H. Wilkoff and 1, while the second match ended much the same way with Arnon Jackson and J. D. Carter slaying Maj. J. Hunsdale and Lt. Col. E. Bristol 7-2.

A powerful Fulton pair, Dick Wright and Jim Davis, held Capt. Augustaukas and Capt. Nelson Lindstrand pointless in coping the only shut-out of the afternoon 9-0.

14 Teams Compete In Bowling League

Competition in the newly organized Officers Bowling League opened Monday evening with 14 teams entered in the league.

In the first night's play six teams opened the season with the Weapons section taking a three-game set from the Airborne battalion. The 25th Infantry copied two of three from Lawson field, and the 204th Truck battalion swept three games from the 37th Infantry regiment.

The 25th Infantry squad posted the highest team score with 528, while Maj. John Moore of Lawson field tallied 541 for the highest three-game aggregate. Capt. Smith of 25th Infantry led individual scorers with a 213.

Teams entered in the loop are Airborne battalion; Weapons committee; 204th Truckers; 37th Infantry; 25th Infantry; Lawson field; 33rd Field; Gen's section; Communication section; STR; ISD; T.L.&V.A.; TIC; and AGF Board No. 3.

Harold Lutz Cited As Grid Standout

Although unheard of at the outset of the present gridiron campaign, Harold Lutz, left end of the Fort Benning Doughboys, has earned the honor of being picked "player of the week." If you were at Doughboy stadium Sunday you can understand the reason why. Harold literally tore the opposing Fort Jackson gridders apart.

Starting the season as a reserve end, Lutz, who is 20 years old and fires the scales at 187 pounds, has pushed his way right into the starting lineup. The two coaches of last Sunday's elevens state that had he been called by his teammates, should show many an opposing forward wall a hard time in future Doughboy games.

Football is Harold's favorite sport but he excels in many other forms of athletics. This summer he won the Post diving crown and went on to cop second honors in the Third Army competition. He also was the leading pole vaulter on the Doughboy cinder team, and in the Third Army meet he attained the height of 11 feet for blue ribbon honors.

Lutz entered the Army last summer and after finishing basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., volunteered for the paratroopers here at Benning. Upon graduation he was stationed here and has been giving his talents to Post athletic teams ever since. He is now assigned to the 501st Parachute battalion.

Hailing from Clinton, Iowa, where he received All-State honors for two consecutive years, Lutz has proved himself a valuable player to Coach Butch Kendrick's soldier elevens and with the same spirit and determination he has shown thus far this season should rank high along side the leading flankers in service football. Harold has one of the best place-kicking toes seen in these parts. Aside from kicking off he

Deacons, Wildcats Confuse Experts

By RALEIGH GREENE

Someone was heard talking the rite North Carolina-Wake Forest game last Saturday and commented that Choo Choo Charbe Justice might do well to start looking for a new home. It does seem a pity that such an advertised figure as Justice should fall so completely in his "great" sophomore year.

Well, in the South, Wake Forest's win over the Tarheels was unbelievable. That 219-pound line really must have looked like a pack of onrushing elephants. Did we say that Justice might shine last week?

Around this wide expanse of territory, affectionately known as the United States, football again played havoc with the experts, but this past week of gridiron history certainly didn't come nearly the proportions of last week's acts.

Somebody's All-American candidate, Johnny Rauch, surely took a tumble, and his unpredictable Bulldogs proved no match for an underdog Kentucky, grasshopper. Although the great Notre Dame compiled the biggest score, little Purdue really gave the Irish a scare, and it was only the bulls' eye pitching of lusty Johnny Luck that saved the day. Underdog Tech had difficulty with their breather opponent VMI, and Tulane fell heavily before an ever-improving Rice. Baylor had its day in upsetting a highly touted Arkansas eleven, while Travis Tidwell slaughtered my prediction that Florida would break its long losing streak against Auburn.

No More Warm-Ups

Most of the warm-up games have been filed in dusty cabinets, and the rough road is just ahead, for all the contenders for the nation's top honors. Many teams still rank among the unbeaten, but this week should see topple from their lofty heights and take their places among the secondaries.

Looking over this week's schedule it is evident there will be many close ones, while some teams like Army will have a rest. Army is slated to add another one to their long string when they play MPI, while Navy will certainly strike pay dirt in her tussel with little Cornell.

Week's Predictions
Have in the South, we shouldn't have too much trouble picking the winners out on second thought, we might run afoul. After learning of Georgia's complete rout by Kentucky, who can say who's who?

Nevertheless, here we go on this week's grid schedule. In the South, Florida has its Red Tide, and Alabama boasts a Crimson Tide. We polled red all the way around last week, but only managed to get a few dollars. For our money it's Alabama over Tennessee. As valiant and remarkable as Travis Tidwell is, the Tigers from Auburn haven't a ghost of a chance against the Yellow Jackets. Tech in a breather. Let's do a little second guessing and bank on Florida to upset N. C. State—it could happen. (Ed Note—Bitty Boy!) I recall the year that Georgia romped over Florida 19-0, and two weeks later fell victim to a 27-13 defeat by Auburn which had bowed to Florida the week before 6-0. Anything can happen. Vandy's line will be too much for Kentucky, while LSU is our long shot to go down before Boston College. Tulane, still suffering from her 33-0 rout by Rice and trying to recover from sophomore fever, is picked as the underdog against Mississippi.

In the East there are six games that warrant mention, besides Army and Navy. We'll pick Dartmouth over Brown, Wake Forest to dump George Washington, Holy Cross over Harvard, Penn over Columbia, in a tighter game than you may think, Penn State to rout Syracuse, Princeton to edge Colgate, and little old Rutgers to take one from Fordham.

Illinois Over Minnesota
It'll be loud and furious in the Midwest when Illinois takes on Minnesota, but Fighting Illini put a powerful line on the field against Army last week and warrant my choice. It will be Illinois in what may be the toughest game of the 1947 season. Those Wolverines are running like a mad pack this year and will turn their game with Northwestern into a rout while the Irish should have a pretty easy time slugging away at Nebraska. Ohio State, still a year away from its peak, should get by a scrappy Iowa. Oklahoma A & M should fall before Georgia.

Let's venture out to the power-laden west coast and see what's in store this week. California will continue to match with a win over Washington State, and her chief competitor, Southern Cal will trample her up-country Oregon neighbor. UCLA will top Stanford in a breeze. Sunday, St. Mary's should whip Nevada.

And that's about the story for this week. Like the tired old man sitting in the only stands after the ball game said, "It's always better to sit back, son, and just say—fold you so."

FIGHTING SPIRIT—The reason why the 78th Engineer battalion "Pioneers" took the lead in the 1947 intramural basketball league. The Pioneers' guard, Murray Popelsky, takes one-away from the 501st Paratroopers' guard, Jesse Budd, for a basket in a close game at the Main Post gym. The Engineers won 20-21.

Four Teams Tied For League Lead

Eight teams took the floor last week in two gymnasiums to give the Post Basketball league one of its fiercest send-offs in many seasons.

The first week of competition was marked by high scoring and close games, with every outfit fighting hard for a top berth in the league standings. The 37th Infantry regiment, 78th Engineers, the Airborne battalion, and Army Ground Force Band No. 3 emerged the top teams of the week.

The 37th Infantry had to battle to the last minute, in both their games to come out with a pair of wins. The closest and tightest game of the week was played at the Main Post gym Oct. 7 when the infantrymen from the 37th edged out the 329th Ordnance battalion 46-45 in the waning minutes of the tilt. Until the third quarter, the Ordnance held a ten-point advantage all the way through, but a gust of power in the third stanza gave the 37th a one point lead. The last canonic was lit for fat, and a last minute basket by Harry Upchurch gave the 37th its margin of victory.

Drop Lawson Five
Two nights later, the 37th defeated a scrappy Lawson field five 34-29.

Perhaps the most noteworthy tussel of the week was the Airborne's victory over the ISD at the Airborne gym last Thursday night. Many have said that the Airborne-ISD game would be the deciding factor in the championship, but many have said that Choo Choo Charlie Justice lost a sure bet for All-American honors.

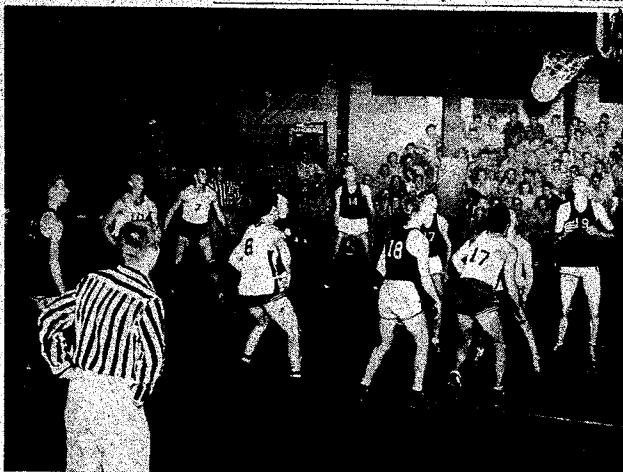

Until the final quarter both teams kept within striking distance, and exchanged the lead on four different occasions. But the troopers swept to a 20-20 lead with three minutes to go and went on to down the detachment team. The Airborne also took a forfeit from the 83rd Field Artillery to keep on top with the pace-setting teams.

AGF Board No. 3 sailed to a 38-8 triumph over the 204th Transportation Truck battalion in their only game of the week.

Upset Predictions
In spite of pre-league predictions, the engineers from the 78th supplied the surprises of the week with a Tuesday night victory over the highly touted 501st Parachute battalion and a win over Lawson field two moons later to top the flyers 43-38.

Only the tankers from the 768th failed to play their scheduled game, but the tilt has been re-set for this week. They meet the ISD in an off-night.

Tension is high in every camp, with four teams showing great power and promise. Although the ISD dropped their initial game, they are by no means out of the running, according to Capt. James Walker, ISD coach.

The league will continue through Nov. 23, and the outstanding players will be selected for try-outs with the Post basketball team which begins practicing the latter part of November.

MYER BESTS BENCH FOR TITLE CROWN

Lt. Col. Monk Myer overcame some tough breaks with amazing putts and drives to clinch the Airborne golf crown at the Officers' course Sunday, defeating an ever-threatening Capt. Herbert Bench 3 and 2.

In a match that was marked by errors on the part of both finalists, the two linksmen fought furiously until the 16th hole, when Myer hit the gimmy with a spectacular drive that enabled him to cop the title.

On the first hole down to number 16, both finalists were nip and tuck, and at the end of eight holes the score was all tied up. Myer's knocked out of bounds on the initial try, and ended up with an unimpressive six. But Bench didn't fare as well as his opponent tallying a less impressive seven. Capt. Bench, who has played excellent golf throughout the tourney, found his stride, and the two finalists got a new start on the ninth.

Myer birdied on the ninth with a beautiful distance putt, and led one-up at the turn.

All was even on the 10th hole, but Col. Myer bounced back to edge Bench on the 11th. Twelve, thirteen, and fourteen saw both men saw-buck their way to halve those three holes, but Capt. Bench got a bad break on the 15th when he hit a tree on his drive, and the hole was halved.

Things began to look up for the underdog Bench when Myer missed his drive, and the ball popped no more than twenty yards down the course. But a beautiful drive that hit the gimmy armings gave Myer the title.

In the first flight, Maj. Irwin Edwards set the course on first, trouncing Maj. Harris Mitchell 9-7 in one of the biggest routs of the tourney. Maj. Edwards carried one-of the best scores of the tourney in his win over Mitchell, and many agreed that the sharp-shooting lightman was unbeatable last Sunday.

Capt. Fred Perry copped honors in the second flight with a 4-3 decision over Lt. Barney Hopkins, while in the third flight Maj. George Stevens took a forfeit from Col. D. P. Schorr.

The cellar fight honors were captured by Maj. Ben Delemantre defeating Capt. Vic Campana 5-3.

Troopers Fight To 33-24 Win Over ISD Five

In a hard fought, tight contest that was nip and tuck to the last minute of play, the Airborne basketball team took the measure of the Infantry School messengers 33-24, before a thrifty crowd of 250 fans at the Airborne gymnasium last Thursday.

With the tradition of keen rivalry providing additional spark and tension, and with the realization that the game might well be the deciding factor in the final top-standings in the Post league, both sides took the floor determined to set up a sharp offense.

The trooper five jumped to an early lead, and held a 9-5 advantage when the quarter ended. A new team took the floor for the Airborne in the second stanza, while the detachment boys took on my life and traded by the lone point as the half ended 12-11.

ISD continued to threaten in the opening seconds of the third quarter and copped the lead twice, 14-13 and 18-16. When the whistle sounded the end of that third canto, the score was tied up at 18-18.

The stretch quarter saw the ISD take a basket as soon as they got their hands on the ball, but this temporary lead was the last one for the detachment. After a barrage of precision firing by Bob Henderson and Lyle McCauley, both troopers, ISD lagged despairingly behind, 26-20, with three minutes remaining in the ball game. The outcome of the tight fustle was not in doubt from that responded to the final whistle with a nine-point winning margin.

High point honors for the tilt went to "Long Bob" Henderson, who connected for four goals and six free throws for an aggregate total of 14. Starting with Henderson were court artists Lyle McCauley and Bob Kinard.

Central Thumps Ordnance 26-0 For 4th Defeat

Coach Al Burke's charges of the 328th Ordnance battalion here received a shallicking last Friday night, October 10, when they played Central High of Phenix City in Doughboy stadium. The final score was 26-0.

After only seven minutes of play Central's fullback Tom Pike hit pay dirt on a fluke pass bringing the score up 6-0. The 328th's backfield held firm throughout the game giving their opposition plenty of competition, but their line couldn't hold against the Central giants.

Bob Saunders, Central's right half scored in the second quarter after completing a beautiful aerial thrown by fullback Pike. Both Saunders and Pike played excellent football during the game. Central's star, Pike, scored again in the third quarter after bolting around the soldiers' left end and running 28 yards for a touchdown. In the fourth quarter, with only a few minutes left to play, Central's left half Jim Dittler scampered 30 yards to pay dirt after completing a lateral from Pike, bringing the score to 25-0. Saunders' placement for the extra point was good.

The 328th has been hindered by many handiaps. Several of the players were injured in previous games, and one of their star players is on emergency leave.

Saturday, October 17, the 328th will play Spartan, Ala., there

Center Tuminella Shows Improvement

Bill Tuminella, Doughboy center, has been doing a whate of a job backing up the Benning forward wall all season. The 200-pound line-backer has shown steady improvement since the Doughs opened their 1947 season with a 2-0 decision over the Cherry Point Marines.

His excellent defensive play has been outstanding all season, and his added weight has made it difficult for opposing passers to connect for shots over the line.

Mesdames Curtis, Brown Cop Honors In Golf Tourney

For their regular weekly golf meeting on Friday, ladies of the Fort Benning Women's Golf club played a blind bogey tournament with Mrs. I. Curtis taking first play in flight A and Mrs. C. Brown first in flight B.

In the nine-hole play Mrs. Joel Olson won.

A different type tournament is played each week under the direction of Mrs. Robert E. Hill, president of the group, and Mrs. K. Landon, chairman of the tournament committee. The ladies make up their own twosomes and foursomes and select their times to play. Ladies may play their first nine in the morning, and after lunch at the club house, resume play in the afternoon. Others, depending on personal preferences, may play either in the morning or afternoon.

The play scheduled for this week will be a straight handicap tournament.

Lawson Bowlers in Post League

Eight top-notch bowlers of the Lawson field Officers' Bowling league will make up the team which will represent the base in the Fort Benning league. Capt. Malcolm Sponeberg, league manager has announced.

Base bowlers will include Col. Gilbert Collier, Fred G. Henry, Maj. John J. Moore, Capt. Joseph Lewandowski, Capt. Richard O'Neil, Capt. E. L. Sponeberg, Lt. Edward Hamel, and Lt. John Lackey.

The Lawson field athletic office will continue to sponsor the officer's inter-office bowling league which was inaugurated this summer to afford additional recreation for base personnel.

The base league, consisting of 12 teams, recently completed its first round robin series, with the bowlers team claiming first place and Maj. Moore holding the highest personal average for the series with 170.

The league opened its second round robin series this week with bowling on Tuesday and Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the Lawson field.

Sponsoring teams in the league are base headquarters, 5-2, 513 and 514.

Doughboy Backs Compile Envious Record In Games

Fort Benning's rampant Doughboys have compiled an envious record since their season opened three weeks ago.

In three games the Doughboys have held all opponents scoreless and have averaged over 27 points a game. Their greatest show came in last week's game when they routed the Fort Jackson team.

Statistically, the Doughs have outclassed their rivals point for point. Gaining 604 yards on the ground and 308 through the air, the Bennign team has one of the most impressive records in this section of the country.

Dough passing artists have completed 27 passes in 47 tries, while their opponents have managed to sneak only 11 safeties through the Bennign backfield.

Wilson To Bring War Dead Home

1st Sgt. John H. Wilson, Company B, Infantry School detachment, left early this week on detachment service to escort a war dead back to this country.

Sergeant Wilson has been prominent for many years in athletics on the post and has been boxing coach for many seasons. In his more than 20 years in the Army, Wilson has been an ardent supporter of the fistic art and instrumental in furthering Post boxing teams.

Since August, Wilson has acted as equipment manager, working with the Doughboys.

Carroll Transferred To Albuquerque, N. M.

T-3 Wesley W. Carroll, personnel sergeant major of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, will be transferred to the 38th Engineer Special battalion, Albuquerque, N. M., officials have announced.

Sgt. Carroll has been a member of the 83rd since May 1946. During World War II Sgt. Carroll served with the 75th infantry division overseas.

Motor Course Begins

Enlisted men's motor course No. 2 got underway here this week with approximately 60 students reporting, officials have announced.

Students attending this course have been assigned to the Student Training equipment's Eighth company. Other students assigned to the Eighth company include those enrolled in Infantry Non-commissioned Officers' courses No. 1 and 2.

Fumbles Costly In Bullet Loss

In a game highlighted by sensational runs by Bullet backs, yet marred by their own frequent fumbling of the ball, the Bullets muffed the chance to cap their second win of the season Saturday at Dough-boy Stadium when they dropped a close 8-7 decision to the Atlanta Panthers.

The loss was a heartbreaker to the Bullets as well as the large gathering of fans, who saw the home team amass a total of 261 points during the hold the visitors to two. The Panthers were outplayed in every department, but their alertness and ability to take full advantage of Bullet miscues gave them victory on the final score card. Yet the Panthers were definitely on the alert. The breaks favored them and they were ever-cautious to use them advantageously.

Most of the game was played in home territory and four times the Bullets turned up within the visitors 5-yard stripe, but their own fumbles halted their scoring chances.

A safely early in the first period gave the Panthers a two-point lead which they held until the late stages of the second quarter when the Bullets scored their only touchdown of the game. Quarterback Gordon Burke scored up a Panther punt on the 50-yard line and squirmed his way to the 35. Brilliant running and bone crushing line plunges by Beasley, Burke and Taylor carried the ball to the three-yard mark. At this point Hurricane Bill Beasley whose spectacular running had kept the fans well supplied with thrills all evening, bullied his way over for the score. Jimmie Green held on to Burke's pass in the end zone for the extra point. The rest of the first half was highlighted by the running of Beasley and Burke who ripped off jaunts of 18-and 15 yards respectively.

Late in the third quarter the Panthers began shooting passes all over the lot. Taking the ball on the Bullets' 49-yard stripe, David Harper who played a whale of a game for the visitors, fired to Claude Holt over the goal line to score. Though George Wardell blocked the try for the extra point, the six point touchdown was sufficient, giving the Panthers an 8-7 lead.

Despite the fact that the Bullets lost, they supplied the crowd with plenty of thrills and a galaxy of ball toting stars who ran the Panthers dizzy. Piston-legged Atlas Jones was unstoppable. The broad-shouldered Ohioan was a human thunderbolt. Time after time he pierced the Panther's forward wall with devastating force that practically ripped them to threads. Twice he set himself up as a one-man show by side-stepping and self-arming his way for gains of 17 and 28 yards. The stellar player of Hurdie Langston, Leroy Griffin, Henry Taylor, and Nickerson in the backfield and Oded Kennedy, Murphy, Jimmie Parker and Leroy Garvin on the line added much to the excitement.

Former Doughboy Ranks High With Georgia Bulldogs

Dick Pope, former Doughboy star lineman, has been playing great ball with the University of Georgia this year.

Pope, a scrappy little 165-pound guard stood out in Georgia's surprise win over LSU two weeks ago, and has been pushing the Bulldogs starters since he returned to the University early this summer.

Playing behind All-American John Green last year on the All-Service eleven, Pope was a limelighter in all the Dough's games, and was one of the best offensive and defensive linemen Billy Meeke had.

School Troops Dedicate New Cuartel Chapel

The new School Troops Chapel in the first Cuartel held its dedication service Sunday Oct. 12 with Chaplain Russell O. Kirsch conducting the service.

The new chapel has been completely furnished and decorated under the direction and supervision of Col. Charles F. Boyce, commanding officer of School Troops, and Chaplain Kirsch. This was the second in the series of services, especially arranged for officers and enlisted men of School Troops and their families. The first of these services was held in the open air assembly at the first quartel, Oct. 5. The glee club of the 25th Infantry regiment furnished hymns for the devotional services, while the 72nd Army band provided appropriate music. Chaplain Kirsch, who has replaced Chaplain Mathis, has also moved his office to the cuartel near the chapel.

Former Cartoonist Decorates Walls At Unit Mess Hall

Attracting plenty of interest as well as lending a little comedy with meals, are three cartoons recently painted on the walls of the mess hall, used by Batteries A, and B, 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

The cartoons, painted by Captain G. Groom, a former student at Hastings' School of Animation in New York City, are well transcribed with application of many colors.

One cartoon depicts a rotund mess steward carrying an enormous hot dog on a plate. Another shows a struggling mess attendant headed toward the kitchen with a huge armful of plates and staggering under the weight of the china. The third portrays a cook with raised cleaver in hot pursuit of a small dog who is really on the run to escape the fate that store for him as evidenced by the gleam in the cook's eye.

Capt. Groom was assisted by 1st Lt. Fred C. Horton, Corporal Joseph L. Capron, and T/5 Euclide J. Quette, all of Battery B.

Most Deserving O-C To Get Reward

A special award is in the offing to the most deserving officer candidate upon graduation from the Student Training Regiment, it was learned today.

The special honors and ceremonies planned for the occasion arose from a letter of gratitude received recently from the father of a local graduate, Lt. Godron A. Moore, who was killed in Korea in July of 1946. George L. Moore, of Oklahoma City, Okla., father of the late Lt. Moore, recently received the clothing and personal effects of his son. The father wants his son's belongings to be placed with some deserving young officer—enlisted man about to be commissioned, who could use them to advantage.

Since Lt. Moore received his commission at Fort Benning and was a graduate of Class No. 530, January, 1946, the father, in his letter to Chaplain (Capt.) Daniel P. Jenkins felt that someone here at Benning could find use for his son's effects.

In an answer to Mr. Moore Chaplain Jenkins pointed out that the proposed ceremony will honor the former Benning student. A board of honor will help the chaplain select the most deserving officer candidate who will receive the award upon graduation. The presentation will be made at a ceremony in which Lt. George L. Moore, will be memorialized.

Officer Group To See Special Demonstrations

A total of 39 military and air attaches, representing 31 nations who arrived here on Sunday afternoon from Washington, are now observing infantry training methods and techniques at the Infantry School.

Thursday the attaches will witness an infantry fire-power demonstration at Hook range and the battalion in defense fire problem at Buffalo road, presented by the Academic department of the Infantry School.

A tour of the Airborne section, where the latest innovations in technique and equipment will be illustrated, and a demonstration of the infantry-artillery-tank team in attack, is on the schedule for Friday. The week's program will be topped by an official party Friday evening at the Officers' club. Leave Saturday.

The group will depart for Washington, D. C. Saturday morning from Lawson field.

The visitors, who arrived by plane at Lawson field, were greeted by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, and his staff. Following a 15-gun salute in their honor, the higher ranking officers inspected the guard of honor.

Monday morning the group attended a planning conference at Lawson field and witnessed skills by Ninth Air Force personnel in preparation for Wednesday's "Operation Combine." Monday afternoon the visitors viewed displays of combat aircraft, communications procedure, and radar technique.

Visit Control Center
A visit to the tactical air control center of the Ninth Air Force highlighted Tuesday's itinerary, which also included lectures in joint operation, briefing in fighter squadron tactics, and a visit to the tactical air direction center.

More conferences were listed on Wednesday morning's program, including a planning conference, Troop Carrier-Air Force conference, and an Airborne commanders conference, a prelude to the air-ground maneuver Wednesday afternoon.

Among the highest ranking officers are Lt. Gen. Leopoldo C. Ruiz of Mexico, and Maj. Gen. Carl C. J. Fors of Denmark. Other military and air attaches in the party are Air Commodore J. L. Findlay, New Zealand; Gen. Leopoldo Poedrahitia, Colombia; Brig. Gen. Juan L. Garamendi, Argentina; Gen. Henrique B. D. T. Lott, Brazil; Brig. Gen. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, has received a message of appreciation from Maj. Gen. Sir Arthur Dowler, Director of Infantry, British Army, who visited Fort Benning recently.

Plans Announced For Vehicle Show

Plans have been completed for the gigantic Infantry Center motor show which will be staged at Blue and French fields Saturday morning, Oct. 26, and Sunday afternoon, Oct. 27.

Included in the huge show, an extensive display of motor vehicles and equipment, will be some of the largest mobile units in the U. S. Army, housed here at the Maintenance and Museum section, and other equipment from vital post units.

Military vehicles, ranging from a bicycle to huge tank transporters, and military equipment, ranging from the 75 howitzer to the 8-inch gun and 240 mm howitzer, the Army's largest mobile artillery, will be displayed.

Begin at 8 a. m.
The show will get under way Saturday morning at 8 a. m. with the static display of vehicles and equipment at Blue field. Each participating unit will enter vehicles by classes with one vehicle to each class. Also included in Saturday's program, which goes on until 12 noon, is the drivers' competition with two-and-one-half-ton trucks. The exhibition resumes Sunday afternoon at 1 p. m. with competitive gun drills between sections of the 90th and 93rd Field Artillery battalions using 105 and 155 mm howitzers. Following the drill, drivers will compete in the one-quarter-ton truck contest at French field. A drivers course has been laid out at French field for the series of contests in driving, and a feature act by "Joe Doakes."

Local Hospitality Results In Letter Of Appreciation

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, has received a message of appreciation from Maj. Gen. Sir Arthur Dowler, Director of Infantry, British Army, who visited Fort Benning recently.

Following is the letter by Gen. Dowler:

"On conclusion of my visit to the Infantry Center, Fort Benning, I wish to express with the permission of the commanding general, to express to all officers, warrant officers, enlisted men and civilian personnel concerned with its preparation and execution, the deepest appreciation and gratitude of myself and my staff. I know something of the detailed work involved in a visit such as ours, and I have been able to thank personally some of you for making it the great success which it undoubtedly was. But there are many of you of all grades whom it has not been possible for me to thank personally and I should like to do so most sincerely through this message.

As Infantrymen we are proud of our association with your fine Infantry Center and I would like to take this opportunity of wishing a biding good fortune to all ranks.

Yours truly, Gen. BA" Gen. O'Daniel has added his appreciation to all for their interest and helpfulness to our distinguished guests which prompted General Dowler's message, officials said.

Post Activities Give Liberally To Fund Drive

A number of post activities have already come through with 100 per cent contributions as the Fort Benning Community Chest fund drive gets into full swing here, officials reported today.

The two indicators, denoting the progress of the drive, will soon begin to zoom upward as representatives begin this week to put effort behind the goal of 100 per cent post donations.

No quota has been set, but it is hoped that enough funds can be garnered in this one big concerted drive in order to enable Fort Benning to contribute to the following organizations:

Community Chest of America; National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis; Joint Army Emergency Relief society; Fort Benning Children's school; Boy Scouts of America; Civil Service; American Legion; Teen Age club; Fort Benning Nursery school; and Fort Benning Children's Christmas party.

Lt. Col. Wesley U. Morgan, adjutant general's office, who heads the Fort Benning Community Chest fund drive, has named the other local representatives. They are:

Maj. Thomas M. Cathcart, AGF Board No. 3; Maj. A. W. Petroski, Headquarters, the Infantry Center; Capt. R. H. Russell, Academic Dept.; Capt. Robert M. Miller, Scout Troops; Capt. Wis-

Stonebraker Named Chemical Officer

Lt. Frank J. Stonebraker has been appointed acting chemical officer of the Infantry Center, replacing Capt. Thomas H. Bothwick who has taken over new duties as engineer, property officer. It was announced this week.

Formerly guide officer with the Student Training Regiment, Lt. Stonebraker served with the 15th Infantry Regiment in Europe during World War II. He was with the regiment from the Coltrane river campaign until the close of the war. Entering the army with the 37th Ohio National Guard division in 1940, Lt. Stonebraker left the 37th O. N. G. in 1942 to attend OCS here at Fort Benning. After graduation from OCS he was assigned to the 76th division, Fort Meade. After his arrival, overseas, he joined the Third Division.

Whaley, Bertrand Presented Bronze Star Medals Here

Officials Name New Unit Head

Two enlisted members of School Troops' Headquarters company were this week awarded the Bronze Star medal, officials announced today.

They were T-4 Jack Whaley, 135th Infantry regiment veteran, and T-5 Virgil V. Bertrand, 319th Infantry regiment veteran.

T-4 Whaley was decorated for "exemplary service with the ground forces against an armed enemy in the campaigns of Rome-Arno, Po valley, and Apennine mountains." At present he is assigned to the legal section in School Troops.

T-5 Bertrand received the medal for "meritorious service during the campaigns of the Rhineland gaged with the enemy at Malabon, Navotas, and Manila, Luzon."

He participated in the Solomon island and Philippine liberation campaigns and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for "courage and heroism while engaged with the enemy at Malabon, Navotas, and Manila, Luzon."

Lieutenant Davidson also has two brothers in the armed forces. They are Lt. Col. R. O. Davidson, on duty in Washington, and Maj. Cy Davidson, adjutant general of Operation Combine.

1st Lt. Shirley Davidson has been appointed commander of the 37th Infantry regiment's Company A, replacing Capt. George F. Monsarratt who has been assigned to the legal office of School Troops, officials revealed today.

Lieutenant Davidson, who joined the Army in 1939, graduated from the Fort Benning Officer Candidate school in early 1943 and was assigned to the 37th Infantry division as a platoon leader.

Freedom Vs. Slavery

The Bayonet has lambasted Communism and Communism-dominated organizations, institutions, and countries for so long that it is almost a cliché. We may have given some readers the impression that we are slightly over-mindful, that we fail to analyze any other topic in the news, that we have become stale in our reporting. Despite this, however, we still feel that no news media can ever overlook the fact that the Communist way of life is opposed to our own, and until there is some sort of agreement contracted between Democracy and Communism that there can be no real and lasting peace in the world.

Today we lie at the crossroads of civilization, on the one side is the powerful red flag of the Communist and on the other is the even more powerful freedom-loving flag of Democracy. Both are poised, waiting for the other to strike. What would be the outcome of such a struggle? Would it mean the end of the world? Who can say?

Actually, there is no conflict between two countries or between two peoples. It is a smouldering conflict of dissenting ideas. Here in America, as well as in other democratic nations who have prospered through the years, we have found that our own way of life is the best for our own needs. We know that we do not need, nor want, any other way of life. We resent that element of our population who would attempt to force any ism, whether it be Communism or Fascism, upon us. We have had democracy these many years and have always been satisfied with it. There is no reason we should want to change it now for a radical form which would deny us the basic freedoms we have always enjoyed.

On the other hand, there is Communism. This form of government may be popular in some countries. This way of life may suit some. We here in America firmly believe that all nations should employ the form of government best suited to their own temperaments and tastes. If those countries where Communism is practiced find that life there is pleasant and comfortable, we will say nothing. Provided, of course, that the majority of the people in those countries want it that way. Let them have their petty dictators, their secret police, lack of the basic needs of the good life. But, by all means, keep them in their own backyard.

The basic difference between our way of life and the way of life under Communism may be defined as freedom versus slavery. Here in America we freed our slaves around the middle of the 19th century. We even fought a war to do it. And we certainly do not intend to stand idly by and watch this land of hope overrun by a few people who see themselves as savagous. America was settled and colonized by people who were escaping tyranny and persecution, and our shores have long been seen by oppressed peoples the world over as the land of new hope, new life, and new freedoms.

We have never tried to force democracy as we know it on any other nation. We would never attempt to do such a thing. We believe in government by the people. We believe in allowing people select their own form of government, thus dependent almost entirely upon the form of government under which he lives. The reason we have so many arguments with those countries who practice Communism is that they fear our way of life. They fear that their people would rebel should they discover the true facts about America. We do not fear their way of life. We just don't want it.

We do not mind any country establishing Communism so long as it does not endanger Democracy as we know it. But, real Americans agree with that great American statesman, Patrick Henry, who said, "Give me liberty or give me death."

One of his flock met the preacher's little son on the street. "Well, son," he said, "I hear that your father has received a call to his city church. Is he going to accept it?"

"I don't know. Father's on his knees in his study praying for guidance."

"And your mother?"

"Oh, she's upstairs, packing the trunk."

"A little boy from the city who had been to the country was describing to another boy friend the big pig he had seen.

"It was in a little yard with a fence around it," he explained. "And it was afraid of the little pigs. They'd chase the big pig around the yard, and after he fell down the little pigs pounced on him the big pig and ate the buttons off his vest."

Book Shelf

IN A DARK GARDEN
Frank Slaughter has already earned fame as an author with books, such as Battle Surgeon and Starvation, but his novel, In a Dark Garden, concerning the War Between the States and which is a well-known real character, is enough in itself to make him a well-known writer of the novel form.

AS A MAN THINKETH

by
Chaplain L. A. Ellis

It was wisely said that living things always follow their food. Animal life is scarce, or, if absent, in areas where food is usually unobtainable. On the other hand, it is also true that all living creatures swarm where there is plenty of nourishment. Careless and dirty housekeepers attract mice, rats and other low forms of life by permitting scraps of food to accumulate in pantries, on shelves, and by a general lack of cleanliness everywhere.

Experience and events are also living things, and they, too, stick and follow after the food. Another way of saying this is that the food events is thought.

Our habitual thoughts, our attitudes, acts, and conditions, cause them to increase in one sense or another. Thoughts of honesty, hate, fear, prejudice, and selfishness are the food of unwholesome, failure and ignorance. When we supply this unwholesome food in abundance to our thinking, the things tend to direct and control our lives. In like manner, thoughts of goodness, kindness, honesty, love, peace, and love for our fellow man and God, in furnishing ourselves a constant supply of this kind of wholesome food, we will more likely attract to us the things we desire.

If we want to get unworthy attitudes or conditions out of our lives, we suggest starving it out by refusing to furnish the necessary food upon which it thrives. We might be surprised to see how rapidly it leaves us and goes somewhere else, where food is more easily obtained. The following quotation from Proverbs 4:23 has this to say: "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life."

AGONY COLUMN

A man lost a valuable show dog and advertised in a newspaper for the dog, offering a reward. No one called regarding the ad so he called the newspaper office. "I want to see the advertising man," "He's out," said the office boy. "Well, his assistant?" "Well, then the editor?" "He's out, too." "Great. Give everybody out?" "Yes, they're all out hunting your dog."

The book deals with the life of Julian Chisholm, a young surgeon who was born in the South, and more because of his birth than his beliefs, determines to join the Confederate forces as a surgeon. Playing opposite Julian was Anderson, who as his bride returns to America with Julian from Scotland, although the marriage has been completed entirely as a business deal to enable Jane to return to the South where she quite obviously plans to operate as a spy for the Union.

This strange situation, complicated by the love Julian feels for the bride and his feelings toward the other man, makes a beautifully woven background for a deeply interesting story, which shows the author's bright threads, carefully tied together to give the story the touch which makes it not only by an experienced author.

The style of writing is perfect for the kind of matter. The dialogue is natural, while the descriptions give clear pictures but do not clutter the movement of the story. The humor which Slaughter employs is not direct jokes, but humor is achieved with the subtle means of simply presenting situations which can be looked at as the humor of everyday life. Sometimes a little ironic, but nevertheless, having a funny side.

An unusual feature for a novel are the long descriptions devoted to details of the brilliant operations performed by Julian, a removal of the appendix which is described as the first operation of that type being one of the most interesting. This particular feature could be written only by a surgeon, a lay person will quickly realize, and Slaughter is a doctor, a fact which gives the descriptions a reality that keeps them interesting to their length.

Love Interest
Romance plays a heavy role and is evidence that Slaughter, who makes full use of the love interest, not just adding it to gain more revenue but using it as a definite part of the plot and essential to the whole book. The romance is more than a subplot, it is a relationship with Lucy, an early love, is mentioned that could be written only by a man with an understanding of personalities.

To readers who enjoy historical novels this is an interesting book, although the plot is not so involved with history as to make it heavy or to detract from the interest.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL

When Red Cross is mentioned, do you think of it as the Red Cross doing so and so, or do you think of it as your Red Cross doing that and that?

One of the greatest things about Red Cross is its democratic membership. Its congressional character grants membership privileges to everyone, regardless of color, creed, nationality, or religion, who makes a yearly contribution. To those who are Red Cross members, I would like to bring out forcibly the point that you make it possible for the various services to be rendered here at this post and throughout the world.

For instance, it was your organization, your Red Cross, who had personally on duty the other night to meet the mother of a dying soldier at the airport at 1 a. m. You would have credited me knowing more about this case. How the Red Cross lady remained with the mother throughout the night and the next day. How she helped prepare wires to relatives. How she helped with the making of funeral arrangements, and when the body was finally shipped out, only by an experienced mother back to the airport. It takes not only a sympathetic nature, but training, well, to help in a case such as this. That is the reason so many people turn to the Red Cross in distress. They know they will receive not only sympathetic attention, but also the help that comes through long experience in handling similar cases.

Take, for instance, the case of the soldier who came in the other day and said he had just filed for an allotment and wanted financial assistance for his family. Anyone but an experienced Red Cross man would probably have given him financial aid and considered the case finished. But good cases work through out. The fact that this man thought he had filed last April for his wife and four children, if military could have no record of it, Family Allowance Division disclaimed any knowledge of having received the application. The soldier had lost the slip given him.

This did not discourage the Red Cross worker, however. He knew that if he could produce evidence that the soldier had actually filed, he would be entitled to allowances retroactive to last April. After several days of research, he was able to produce evidence, and in the near future the soldier will receive nearly $900 in past allowances.

These are just a few of the cases handled by the Red Cross daily. You are directly a part of the handling of these cases, for the American Red Cross is after all an organization of individuals, such as you, you, and you.

Visiting Attaches Honored At Gala Dinner Dance

The 39 military and air attaches from 31 foreign countries visiting the post this week were honored at a formal dinner dance at the Officers' club Tuesday evening when Major General John W. O'Daniel was host.

Approximately 160 guests attended the colorful party, and dinner was served in the main dining room where tables of eight were arranged. General O'Daniel and several of his honor guests were seated at a large round table.

Lawson Club Sets Halloween Dance

The Lawson field NCO club has completed plans for an old-time square dance and buffet dinner Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Nine awards will be made at the party, ranging from costume prizes to the best couple on the dance floor. The party is a costume affair but the program committee states that it is optional.

"Fun and Frolic" will be the theme and all members have been invited. Food and refreshments will be on the club. Music will be furnished by the Singing Soldier and his Hillbilly Boogie Boys, featuring Slim Williams and his bass fiddle.

Memberships For Concerts Here Available Next Week

Increasing interest is being shown here in the Community Concerts to be presented this season under the sponsorship of the Fort Benning Woman's club, it reached as many people individually as possible and troop commanders will have memberships available for all units.

Mrs. Hill explained that every dollar put into the association will be spent for artists and small local expenses incident to their presentation in concert here. The artists will be selected by the local committee at the end of the membership drive and Mrs. Hill said that "the more memberships secured, the more concerts possible."

William Richards, organization director for the Community Concerts Services, will be present at the dinner to assist the local committee and will explain the various phases of the series which will be carried out entirely on a membership basis. Each member will pay annual dues, entitling him to attend all concerts presented by the association during the season without additional expense.

Mrs. F. H. Bockoven will be chairman of the dinner and will be assisted by Mrs. Wesley U. Meigs.

Headquarters for the campaign will be at the Officers' club and memberships can be obtained there.

Army, Air Force Plan Warrant Officer Corps

Under a program designed to offer permanent warrant officer status to qualified enlisted men through competitive examinations, the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force today announced that January 1 they would open a 5,000-man procurement program for a permanent Warrant Officer Corps.

Part of a broad career guidance schedule, the plan envisions the progressive advancement of enlisted men from the grade of private to the equivalent of major—the fourth warrant officer grade. All four warrant officer grades will carry with them pay and allowances equivalent to those of the four lower commissioned officer grades.

To establish this program within the Army and Air Force departments, legislation will be submitted jointly to the 80th Congress, the announcement said.

Beginning Jan. 1 following submission of applications for permanent warrant officer status beginning January 1, appointments will be made in the summer of 1948. An Army-Air Force circular in preparation will explain procedures on procurement and submission of applications.

It was pointed out that all present permanent warrant officers and those holding letters of intention for permanent appointments will be integrated into the new structure on an equitable basis. Men recruited in the future for wartime service, efficiency, and age. Women in these categories will be made application for appointment.

Following the initial procurement, temporary warrant officers will be permitted to compete with enlisted men for the next two years for permanent appointments. Temporary appointments will be made only by advancement from enlisted grades.

List Qualifications: Eligible to apply under the initial program are:

- Enlisted men in the first grade (P-2) sergeant or master sergeant.
- Enlisted men in the first three grades (first or master sergeant, technical sergeant, and staff sergeant), who on VE Day or subsequently held the first enlisted grade in any of the armed forces.
- Enlisted men in the first three grades who on December 7, 1941, were serving in that grade in any of the armed forces.

Temporary warrant officers. Temporary commissioned officers. This authority will permit temporary officers to apply in order to give competent wartime temporary officers a lifetime opportunity for appointment as permanent warrant officers. Men also to afford the many enlisted men who attained, and now hold, officer positions in World War II an opportunity without requiring their relief from active duty. All applicants must be on active duty on date of application. All appointments under the initial 5,000-man procurement will be in

26 Sand Hillers Get Permanent NCO Warrants

Col. Le Grande A. Diller, 25th Infantry commander, highlighted a review of the 25th Infantry and 999th Field Artillery with the issuing of permanent warrants to 26 non-commissioned officers last Tuesday morning at the Sand Hill area parade grounds.

The ceremony was preceded by the units passing before the reviewing stand which consisted of Col. Diller and the regimental staff. Upon completion of the parade, the units formed into a square consisting of the reviewing officer, the honorees, 25th Infantry, and 999th Field Artillery.

Col. Diller said that the War Department considered the NCO promotion program of great importance, hence the issuance of permanent warrants. He added that in the future, similar ceremonies would be supervised by the respective battalions. Each man was warmly congratulated by the regimental commander as he stepped up to receive his certificate.

Limited Air Travel Authorized Families Bound For Pacific

A limited number of dependents of Army and Air Force enlisted and officer personnel stationed in the Pacific area will be flown to their destinations to avoid delay during the reconstruction of many Army transport vessels for peak time use, the Department of the Army announced today.

Those traveling by air will be flown in four-engine planes of the Army, Air Force Air Transport Command, departing from Fairfield-Suisun Air Base, California. All dependents under this program will fly as through passengers from Fairfield-Suisun to their destinations, it was emphasized.

Aircraft used for the travel of women and children will carry special equipment for the preparation of baby foods en route since infants of six months and over may now be flown. Meals for both adults and children also may be procured at regularly scheduled stops.

All dependents will be given the opportunity to indicate preference for air or surface travel to Pacific stations. Air accommodations will be furnished those requesting them within the capacity of the Air Transport Command. While limited, space will be placed on the amount of luggage carried by airplane passengers, the balance will follow on first available ships leaving for their destination.

Benton Is Transferred

Sgt. Homer R. Benton, formerly a member of Battery A, 83rd Field Artillery, has been transferred to the Infantry School detachment's Company A for duty with the 5th section. It has been reported.

Colonel Phillips Is Named Chief Of Nurse Corps

Appointment of Lt. Col. Mary G. Phillips of Washington, D. C., as Chief, Army Nurse Corps, with the rank of full colonel to succeed Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, who has retired from the Army after almost 30 years of service, was announced today by Brig. Gen. George E. Armstrong, deputy surgeon general of the army.

Col. Phillips entered the Army Nurse Corps Sept. 28, 1925. She served during World War II as deputy superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, and later as director of nurses, Pacific theater of operations. A graduate of the former Army School of Nursing, and of Columbia university, she has been awarded the Legion of Merit and the Army Commendation ribbon.

The retiring superintendent, Col. Blanchfield, had headed the Army Nurse Corps since June 1, 1945. A veteran of both World Wars, she was presented the first commission in the newly-created Regular Army Nurse Corps July 18, 1947, by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower. Col. Blanchfield has been credited by the Department of the Army with having contributed more than any other individual to the establishment of the Army Nurse Corps in a permanent commissioned status; thereby winning full recognition, in place of relative rank, for Army Nurses.

Because of an increased number of Army nurses, the Department for commission in the Regular Army, the date for submission of application by qualified nurses who served satisfactorily in the Army Nurse Corps during World War II has been extended to November 30. Col. Phillips explained that the Army now accepting applications from qualified nurses for commissions in the Officers Reserve Corps will require nurses graduated from schools of nursing approved by the surgeon general, and eligible, she said, for commissions in the Regular Army to 44 for applicants who served satisfactorily in the wartime Army Nurse Corps, and from 11 to 14 for nurses without previous military experience.

Army Sets Dates For Mailing Yule Parcels Overseas

In order to assure timely delivery, Christmas parcels for soldiers overseas should be mailed between October 15 and November 13, Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, adjutant general, stated today.

Gen. Witsell, under whom the Army Postal service operates, advised that discretion in the choice of gifts should be used this year, as the soldier overseas now is amply provided with food and clothing. He can also purchase candy, gum, cigarettes and lighters, toiletries, and other comfort items. Gifts should be packed securely, Gen. Witsell advised, in box materials of metal, wood, or very strong fiberboard. He also recommended that the addressee's name together with a list of the contents be written on a slip of paper inside the box, to enable delivery to be made if the outside address should be obliterated by numerous handlings. The addresses should be placed directly on the box or wrapping and not on gummed labels, which may become moist and loosen.

The weight limit is 70 pounds and maximum measurements 100 inches length and eighth combined. This is approximately the size of a foot-locker.

ISD Units Reveal Week's Promotions

Promotions in the Infantry School detachment last week included the following members of Company A: Ptes. Leonard M. Watson and Raymond S. Blanchard to technicians fifth grade and Pvt. During a day-long tour of the installation, demonstrations of weapons and equipment, and sporting events, the first annual Visitors' Day, sponsored by the 25th Infantry and 899th Field Artillery units at Sand Hill, was attended Saturday by a large group of civilian guests.

The tour began at 10 a. m. under the direction of S-Sgt. Jesse R. Owens, at regimental headquarters, the initial point of the tour. Guests were greeted by M-Sgt. Rogers Porter, who headed the welcome committee, which also included M-Sgt. Robert L. Renfro, M-Sgt. Jenover W. Davis, M-Sgt. J. B. McIntosh, and T-5 John Ratliff.

See Jap Equipment

In the office of the regimental commander, Col. Le Grande A. Diller, the groups were shown a display of captured enemy equipment and documents, which are the personal properties of Col. Diller, Lt. Col. Everett W. Duvall, and CWO Nicholas Hromadka.

Col. Diller's collection consists of one of the few existing photostatic copies of the original Jap surrender terms, a piece of roofing tile from the building at Hiroshima which received a direct hit from the first atomic bomb; a 300-year old ceremonial robe worn by Jap royalty; a hand-calculating machine declared to be even faster than most modern types; ornately decorated Sumari and Hori Kari swords; a wide assortment of Jap weapons, and a Rising Sun flag.

Col. Duvall's collection contains a huge Nazi swastika and numerous German pistols. Mr. Hromadka's donation consists of stamp collections from countries overrun by the Nazis, rare pottery, a set of Apostolic aprons, and a U. S. first edition stamp collection dating from 1857.

The visitors were then shown the trophy room, where athletic cups and plaques won by 25th Infantry sports teams were displayed.

A large world map was also set up showing the various locations of the 25th Infantry's campaigns since 1869. Prominently displayed adjacent to the map was the regimental battle flag with its numerous battle streamers.

Visit Offices

Other points visited were the Service club, library, guest house, and public information, personnel, recruiting and separation offices. The tour was then conducted to Seventh street where anti demonstrations were presented.

Introduced by M-Sgt. Rogers Porter, Col. Diller, during his welcoming address, credited S-Sgt. Jesse R. Owens, Headquarters Battery, 899th Field Artillery with originating Visitor's Day. He further stated that he felt honored by the large attendance.

Proportionally distributed among the various units, the guests had dinner and were then transported to Doughboy stadium for the moonies during half-time were conducted by the regimental band under the direction of T-Sgt. Antonio P. Martins, band leader, and Sgt. David A. Johnson, drum major. A precision drill platoon from Dog company also performed.

Returning to the Sand Hill Area, the guests attended the formal dance at the Service club and socials at the 25th Infantry and 899th ACO Clubs. Among those present were students from Spencer high school of Columbus. The group was attended by Principal C. W. Duvall, Mrs. N. Seats, Miss Laura Benjamin, and Miss C. Webb, faculty members.

YES, HE SCORED—Flashy halfback Schley Williamson, No. 11, swung around his own right end during the second period of the Bullet-Clark college gridiron encounter last Saturday for the collegians' initial touchdown. The game took place in Doughboy stadium as a part of Visitor's Day exercises. Clark college won 13-9.

WELCOMES VISITORS—Col. Le Grande A. Diller, commanding officer of the 25th Infantry regiment, welcomes visitors to the Sand Hill area during last Saturday's Visitor's Day activities.

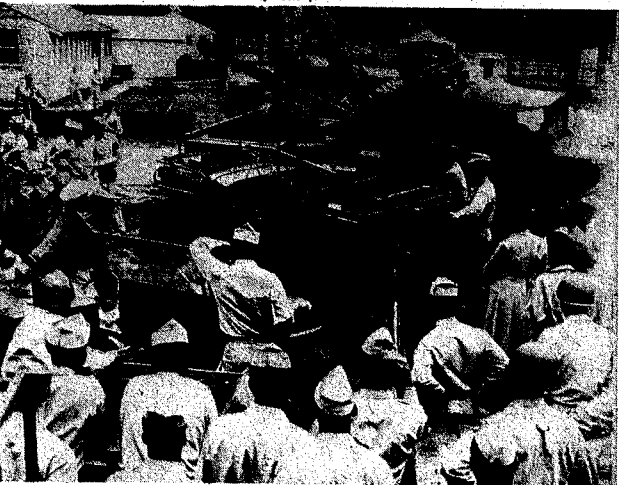

ON ROUTE TO DEMONSTRATION AREA—Personnel from various platoons shown here enroute of the area. The group pictured above, leader during first-hand inspection into the lower workings the entrance of S-Sgt. Jesse R. Owens, left front, are en route to the demonstration area from the recruiting and separation office.

VISIT PERSONNEL OFFICE—Army administrative methods are explained to this Spencer high school group by M-Sgt. Jenover W. Davis, 25th Infantry personnel sergeant major. Behind Sgt. Davis is C. W. Duvall, Spencer principal.

IT GOES LIKE THIS—Motorized equipment displays, including operating procedures, are described to Visitor's Day guests over the public address system by M-Sgt. John H. Williams, S-Sgt.

Doughboys Meet Jackson Sunday

Benning Gridders Heavy Favorites Over Red Devils

After three victorious showings at Doughboy stadium, Benning Gridders and his win hungry Doughboys leave tomorrow for their scheduled game with the Fort Jackson Red Devils. Sunday's game will mark the second meeting of the two teams.

When Fort Jackson were guests of Fort Benning two weeks ago, they were treated rather rudely, in that the jaw-jaw soldiers sent them home with a humiliating story. It all boiled down to 60 points for the Doughs to a big nothing for the Jacksons.

In view of the Doughs' rout of the South Carolinians and their highly commended record this year, Kendrick's charges will be heavy favorites. In the first meeting between the two elevens, Jackson got only one brief glimpse of the Benning goal line, when a clipping penalty sent them over the middle stripe to the 47-yard line. Only once were they able to make any noticeable gain against that vicious forward wall, when Rebel Pickett, started 16 yards in the early minutes of the first stanza.

Fifth Game

When Jackson played the Doughs the soldier attack was faultless and was marked by the individual abilities of a host of Benning gridders.

Saturday's tilt will be the fifth of the year, and should be the fifth victory for the Doughboys and Fort Benning. To date Benning has come through five games without a blemish, and should they take this next one, their record will equal that of Georgia, the Bulldogs, with the help of Charley Trippi, tallied 17 straight wins, but that record was exploded this year in their opener with North Carolina.

Against Jackson, both offensively and defensively the Doughs were superb. Their running attack, sparked by long hops by Willie Cosmo Cutri, was never stalemated, while the aerial assault elicited so effectively that Benning pass artists were able to connect for 11 completions in 18 attempts, gaining 188 yards through the air.

Stresses Passing

Kendrick is slated to work even more intensely on passing this week. This weeks practice has been marked by day and night sessions, with stress given to slinging that pigskin and dropping it in the right place. Downfield blocking that enabled Dough runners to advance at ease, has been emphasized more and more. Against the Red Devils, as well as the same last Sunday, downfield blocking was the real key to the Benning onslaught. Before the Doughs were completely broken in, their blocking was weak, but within two weeks, Kendrick and his assistants have whipped their boys into a blocking ball club.

Kendrick will use substantially the same starting line-up that he played last week. Bob Seibert, who is one of the finest offensive blockers with the Doughs, will be left half slot. Cosmo Cutri, who has continuously made the headlines this year, should be recalled at right half, with Jim Mitchell handling the pivot post.

Strong Line

On the line there will be Bill Tumminella over the ball. Tumminella has been a real defensive spark on the squad this season and is fast becoming an ace pass blocker behind the line. With Seibert and Tumminella backing up the forward wall, opposing passers have found it virtually impossible to penetrate the immediate area around the line. Harold Lutz, and the talented toe seem the choice again at left end, with Bill Drapper rounding off the other end of the wall. Leonard Pfeiffer may replace Dick Greaser at right tackle Saturday if Groninger isn't recovered from a slight hip bruise.

Carl Meiers, who has played exceptionally fine ball at the left tackle slot all season, will be back at his regular position. Jack Seybold, still ailing from bad knee injury, will probably be out of the line-up again, and will be replaced by the able Bill Lyman. Bob Ward, who was praised highly by the Georgia scouts who saw the Green Cove Springs game, returns to his right guard spot. But plenty of action can be expected from backfield men such as Harry Lyon, Boney Bonar, Ben O'Brien, Eddie Roberts, Bill Thurman, and Frank Meyer. Roberts has bested himself considerably during the past two weeks and has been punting Seibert steadily for a starting berth. Excellent on blocking and tackling, Roberts is one of the best line buckers on the Doughboy squad.

Huberman to Play

Bill Huberman has been playing fine ball at end this year and stood out brightly with spectacular catches during the recent Jackson fracas. He will see plenty of guidion combat Saturday.

Saturday's session, and the subsequent games this season, should stress the Doughs employing more and more of the "T". Kendrick hopes to sharpen up his attack for the rough games ahead, and be able to use switch-offense at will. Frank Meagher, an alternate quarterback, has been doing a lot of the ball and passing from the "T" position, showing steady improvement in his running and offensive play, has been getting some lessons in that field, too. Much is still to be seen for the Doughs this year. After the Jackson game Sunday, they will have come through a grueling and trying of their rugged schedule. And it must be pointed out that the first five games are comparable to the last nine holes on a golf course. The worst is yet to be. Kendrick's team, and all Fort Benning are looking for another undefeated record, but Butch Kendrick has been doing something about it. He is hoping to bring his squad to their peak by the time the Doughs journey to Quantico, Va., a week from Saturday. Quantico presents the first real threat to the Doughs' unblemished record of victories, and Quantico is reported to be a very strong team this year. After that will come the Doughs' toughest opponents, the Jacksonville Naval Air station, Fort Sam Houston, and the most formidable West Coast strengthened, Fort Riley and Glenn Davis.

Four Basketball Squads Vieing For First Place

Six games took place last week in the Post Basketball league, and when final whistle sounded, four squads emerged on top of the heap with perfect starts.

These were no major upsets in any of the contests, but the 37th Infantry, Airborne battalion, and AGF board No. 3 quintets by no means walked away with any of the encounters that saw them hold their bids for top standings.

The closest tilt, witnessed by fans in the Airborne gym Tuesday night, saw AGF board No. 3 basketball shooters their way to a 45-30 victory over a fast-moving 32nd Ordnance battalion. Two nights later on the same hardwood the AGF five showed down the flyers from Lawson field 42-28.

Scores 12 Baskets

In their only meeting of the week Thursday night, an Airborne battalion quintet, paced by Bill Lewis who garnered 12 markers, won 40-20 over a scrapping 75th battalion at the Airborne gym, 56-21. Two nights before the Truckers were taken to camp by the 75th Tank battalion in a defensive battle, 24-18 in the Main Post gym. The 75th hoopers were not as fortunate when they ran up against the powerful 32nd Ordnance battalion, however, and a result were shellacked 44-18 by Dave Rattner and his sharp-shooting teammates on the Post hardwood Oct. 18.

The 37th Infantry regiment slayed in the running for the blue victory on Tuesday night when they hit the bucket for 15 field goals and handed the Troopers from the 50th to a 28-16 thrashing.

One contest was cancelled when the 78th Engineers were rushed to the hospital by a menacing hurricane. They were scheduled to fight against the Doughboys from the 37th.

Post Grid Eleven Scores 16th Win

By CHARLIE MARTIN

A rampaging Doughboy powerhouse thundered over a surprised Green Cove Springs eleven 60 to 0 at Doughboy stadium Sunday as the local team ran their win streak to 16 straight.

The 4,000 fans who witnessed the gridiron spectacle sat in awe as the vast aggregation of soldier backs raced like mad goaldrawers and galloped 21 yards to another previous, the Doughs now have 142 points to their credit and so far have kept opponents from treading on their goal.

Coach Enoch Kendrick's boys drew blood early in the contest, to kick from behind their own goal, Cutri, the California comet, took a hand-off from Wilbur Ross and galloped 21 yards to another six pointer. Lutz again failed to convert.

Score Again

On the following kick-off Bill Tumminella giant center booted the ball behind the sailors' last man and the extra point was set back further than his own eight. Jim Kriston attempted to kick out of the one, where Forber Blain spun a distance of 12 yards where it went out of bounds. Paul Bonair understudy for Bob Siebert showed his wares on the next play and bulled his way down to the one, where Forber Blain spun over for the tally. Ben O'Brien crashed through the Navy line for the extra 25 yard line.

The final stanza was a repetition of the preceding periods, and Doughboy second and third stringers all but masted the weary socks as they swept over for three more tallies. The whistle blew as J. E. Sluyt flipped a 15-yard pass to Captain John Paulicki of the Navy who was downed in his tracks on this own 25 yard line.

At the outset of the second quarter the Doughboys sent in an entire new team, and at this point the sailors came to push their own. They were driving deep into Doughboy territory when Dick Griffin, lifter for the Navy eleven, tossed a long pass which was intercepted by Bob Scallion, rangy quarterback, whose beautiful interference all the way from his own 25 to the end of other marker.

Take to Air

A target-hitting Doughboy backfield took to the air waves just before half time, and streaked successive passes put the leather on the Green Cove one-yard strip. Harry Sloan punched over the fourth TD of the afternoon. Meiers took a placement and looped a perfect aerial to Douglas Scoville who took it in the end zone.

Another goaldraw bound drive started after intermission when Don Perrody flipped a flat pass to Seibert, who doctored weak blockers to move the pigskin down the sailor 20. But after a fumble which cost the soldiers 10 precious yards the Navy held on scores and staved off what probably would have been a Benning score.

The Doughboys weren't held in check, long after crossing Dough stalwarts forced the sailors

Lawson Field Bowlers Form 4 League Teams

The Lawson field Bowling League held their first meeting lesterday afternoon at the bowling alley and four five-man teams were formed.

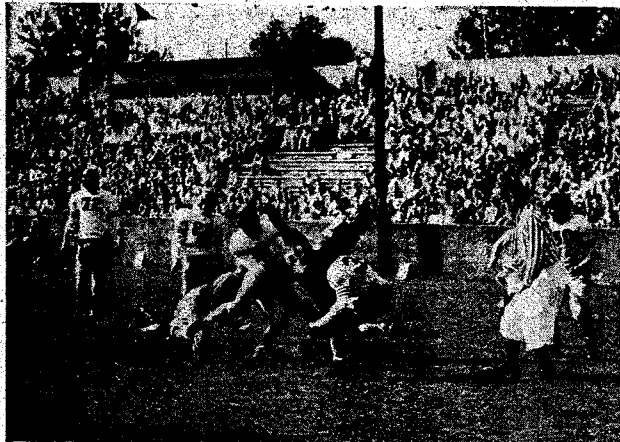

Plans are being made to increase the teams to five, any man interested in bowling should contact either James H. Haycreek or S.-Sgt. J. C. Beaton at individual services or call 2127.

Sgt. Frank served with the First Cavalry division in Japan during the past war. He reenlisted as master sergeant at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Ordnance Gridders Drop Sunday Game To Prisoners, 20-0

The 328th Ordnance battalion was defeated 20-0 by Draper Prison, 8th Speigener, Ala., Sunday, October 19. . . Shortly after the kickoff Draper scored when Roland Benfield, left end, completed a beautiful aerial. Draper's placement for the extra point was good and the score was 7-0.

Draper's quarterback Sha w scored in the second quarter, running 35 yards to pay dirt. Again Draper's placement for the extra point left the score 14-0 at half time.

The 328th's left half Ed Braceland played good football along with left half Edgar Gravelly, who made 75 per cent of the tackles in the game. In the third quarter, Draper's left half, Pete Marston, ran 30 yards, dodging in and around the 328th's left end for a touchdown to bring the final score to 20-0. The placement for the extra point was wide.

The 328th is still hoping to break their record of "no score" games and really deserve the breaks because they are a hard fighting team and play football with all the spirit of the game.

Pet Show Entry Deadline Set

Deadline for entries in the Pet Show to be staged at Horseshow bowl Sunday afternoon, November 2, has been set for October 25, officials have announced.

Quite a few entries have already been posted, and those wishing to enter their pets must deliver their entries by October 25.

The show, jointly sponsored by the Officers' club, Block 12 NCO and Main Post NCO clubs, will feature all types of pets and animals. Entry blanks are still available at any of the three club sponsoring the event. A jumping exhibition by privately owned horses will be one of the feature attractions.

Attractive ribbons will be awarded the winners. Competition is open to all officers, enlisted men, civilian club members and dependents.

Seybold Expected To Play In Marine Game November 1

Jack Seybold, starting guard for the Doughboys who received a knee injury in the Fort Jackson game two weeks ago, is still in the Main Post Hospital but Army medical authorities report that the ex-Tulane griddler is rapidly recovering.

By the time the Quantico Marine encounter rolls around one week from Sunday, Seybold should be right back in the lineup where he played so ably before his misfortune.

After completing his Army enlistment, the stocky 190-pound, 5 foot, 10 inches guard plans to return to his home in New Orleans to continue his feats on the gridiron for the Green Wave of Tulane.

Benning Riders Place Winners

Fort Benning was well represented both with spectators and participants at the horse show sponsored by the Junior League in Columbus last Saturday.

The star of the show among Post entries was Capt. Frank Lillyman riding his own horse, Sir Milton, and fourth in the horsemanship and fourth in the horsemanship classes and also placed fifth in the championship horsemanship stake.

Pat Bush, in her first civilian horse show, placed fourth and fifth in horsemanship classes on Jimmy, occupied by Lt. Col. J. R. Mays while Miss Elizabeth W. Clark, occupational therapist of the Station hospital, also riding Jimmy, took second place in hunter hacks, pleasure class, and adult pleasure. Miss Clark also took third in the road hacks.

Riding his own mount, Bulldozer, Lt. Francis Baker placed second in models and road hacks, while his sister, Lt. Dwan Baker, riding her own horse, Joe, placed fourth in the model class.

Sgt. Irvin Tweed, riding Light Tail for T-Sgt. Charles W. Britton, and Elmer for Capt. William Fannin, took second in the middle weight hunters and fifth in the hunter stake on Light Tail and fourth in the pleasure class and fifth in road hacks while Mrs. Mrs. Elliott Watkin's Blackie got a fourth in the pleasure class and fifth in road hacks while Mrs. Watkin rode her own horse to a third place in the open adults pleasure.

The Infantry School hunt courses in models and road hacks, the hunter and jumper courses and a detail of men from the 23rd Infantry was in charge of setting up the jumps.

Lt. Col. Jacob R. Moon and Capt. Lillyman both served as officials for the show held at the fair grounds.

SPORTS EDITOR PICKS WINNERS

By RALEIGH GREENE
 Last week we closed our little discussion of football games with the story about the old man who advised sitting back until the game was over and said, "I told you so." This week I have the honor of saying exactly that to a number of hecklers who chided my prediction that the Florida Gators would upset the highly-touted Wolfpack from North Carolina State. It was a long shot, but I told you so.

Over the nation football again caused a great many comments from a greater number of people. The upsets for the week, and there always will be upsets as long as the season spells 1947, came from almost every point in the nation. Those mighty Bulldogs, not Georgia this time, fell unimpressively before a battling bunch of Badgers from Wisconsin. Vanderbilt, and its heretofore effective single-wing formation, wasn't a match for Bear Bryant's "T" formation advocates at Nashville. Two undefeated records went byvire. And this column was wrong.

Tech Downs Tidwell
 Georgia Tech, the only remaining undefeated team in the Southeastern conference went all out in downing Tidwell and company, but not before the blond-haired Birmingham contribution had a chance to entertain some 37,000 spectators with his famous pitching arm. North Carolina edged its way past unbeaten William and Mary, while Georgia came up to expectations with a win over Oklahoma A&M. We mentioned last week that Illinois' game with the Minnesota Gophers might well be one of the toughest battles of the season—40-13? Hardly a sparring match, was it? Illinois has proven to be one of the top teams in the Big Nine and will rate high this year when the poll is taken. Frankly, I think Army was plumb fortunate. Olie Kline is beginning to show some of his old stuff again, and his lending a hand is going to make that fast moving backfield even more formidable.

Out on the coast things went true to form—that West Coast is loaded. California clipped Washington State, South Cal bowled over Oregon, and UCLA went on the plank Stanford. The Rose Bowl this year will probably find Southern Cal and Michigan as the guests—a tough one? Who can say?

Week's Predictions
 But enough of this looking back. Our percentage is fast coming up again, and I run a little more often, to try my hand in picking a few winners this week. Starting in our own Rebel backyard, we'll over a little known Hardin Simmons.

Going East we see a big A in the crystal ball, with Army in a close one over Columbia. Boston College over Villinova, and Colgate over Brown should be fairly safe. Cornell should top Princeton, and Dartmouth is our choice over Harvard. Yale is a good bet against little Springfield. Navy goes back on the rocks this week, victim of a strong and growing stronger Penn. Penn State, another power in the East, rates the favorite over West Virginia. There's plenty of power in the East this year—Army will find out when they meet Penn Nov. 15.

Irish Reach Peak
 The kettles are still boiling west of the Mississippi, and the gridiron is really alive out that away. The fighting Illini meet Purdue and though they are our pick to win, it won't be too easy a job. Only the singing of Johnny Lujack spelled defeat two weeks ago, and Illinois will have to go some to humble those rugged Boile-

QUARTER-CENTURY AT BENNING—Joseph N. Stevens, known to thousands of Benningites as Steve, celebrated his 25th year of barbering at Fort Benning today. He is surrounded by men on Pfc. Lee Butler, Baker company, 25th Infantry regiment.

Sand Hill Barber Celebrates Twenty-Fifth Year At Benning

BY AL WISE
Attributing his 53 consecutive years as a barber—25 of which have been spent here at Fort Benning—to the discipline, balanced diets, and training received as a member of both the Army and Navy, Joseph N. "Steve" Stevens, barber for the first battalion, 25th Infantry regiment, saw last Thursday mark a quarter-century of barbering for him on the post.

Born in Worcester, Mass., Steve enlisted in the Navy in 1894 as ship's barber, and, during a 16-year period which took him through the Spanish-American War, he piled his trade among such later greats as Admiral Ernest J. King, Admiral Frank H. Brumley, both of whom were ensigns at the time, and Admiral Rowley D. "Fightin' Bob" Evans.

Mustering out of the Navy in 1911, he enlisted in the 24th Infantry at Jamestown, N. Y., remaining with the outfit until 1942. Assigned as unit barber, tours of duty with the regiment took him to Arizona, and Mexico.

During his long career of barbering, Steve's list of customers reads like an edition of Who's Who. It includes Generals of the Army John J. Pershing, Lt. Gen. Leonard G. Coville, Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, Gen. Frank M. Clegg, Brig. Gen. Benjamin W. Clure, Brig. Gen. Davis Jr., and Lt. Col. Charles Young, the majority of whom held lesser grades during that time.

An advocate of Universal Military training, Steve says that the highlight of his long military career is based on the fact that he saw the Army rise from 25,000 in 1909 to World War II record high of 11,000,000, and the Navy from 8,000 to 3,000,000.

24 Detachment EM Graduate From TIC Vocational School

Certificates of proficiency were presented to 24 Infantry School detachment enlisted men recently upon graduation from the Infantry Center vocational school.

The group included Pfc. David L. Barr, for bookkeeping and accounting; Pfc. Raymond S. Blanchard, for psychology and life and algebra; Sgt. Ralph C. Booker, for basic mathematics; S/Sgt. Charlie L. Hornsby, for English grammar; 1st Sgt. George G. Long, for English grammar; T/Sgt. David K. Lunsford, for English grammar; and Cpl. Bernard M. Malloy, for psychology and life. Others awarded certificates were:

T/Sgt. Jonas C. Milam, for English grammar; 1st Sgt. Albert H. Miller, for review arithmetic; S/Sgt. Johnnie Miller, for plane trigonometry; Pfc. Robert A. Olney, for psychology and life; S/Sgt. Joseph J. Stachniak, for psychology and life and English grammar; Pfc. David Stefan, for radio announcing; T/Sgt. Eugene F. Von Arx, for review arithmetic; M/Sgt. Clarence W. Wilson, for shorthand; T/4 Eugene E. Taughey, for English grammar; and T-Sgt. W. Wright, for sketching.

WOODBURY PROMOTED
Pvt. Alexander Woodbury, Battery A, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, has been promoted to the grade of private first class, officials announced today. He has been in the Army since January,

BELGIAN NOBLEMAN AIRBORNE STUDENT

Major Count Yvan du Monceau, military attache for Air, Army and Navy at the Belgian Embassy in Washington, began training as an Airborne student Oct. 13 with Basic Airborne Class No. 3A, Company E, Airborne battalion.

"My purpose in taking airborne training here is two-fold," stated Major du Monceau. "First, it is my objective to create a close liaison between the Belgian Air Force and Belgian parachute troops. As a member of the Air Force I feel it is my duty to attain a thorough understanding of airborne procedures and problems. It we hope to form a team that is to operate with maximum efficiency in training and combat."

Describes Belgian Trooper
"Secondly," continued Major du Monceau, "it is my desire to take back to my country the obvious advantages of having undergone Airborne training at the Infantry School. A knowledge of American airborne schooling methods and tactics will, of course, be of immeasurable benefit in the planning of future training programs for our parachute units."

The Belgian paratrooper, the major pointed out, is furnished

Burr Assigned Weapons Duty

Capt. Edward Burr, II, commanding officer of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion's Battery B, is expected to leave Fort Benning soon for an assignment with the Armed Forces Special Weapons project at Sandia Base, Albuquerque, N. M.

Following his graduation from the United States Military Academy in June 1943, Captain Burr joined the 83rd Infantry division and served with the division artillery through the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe.

He joined the Fourth Constabulary regiment in Germany in March 1946, and returned to the States in December of the same year. Joining the 83rd last January, he assumed command of Battery B the next month. He wears the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, and ETO ribbon with five battle stars.

with a distinctive uniform which sets him apart from other Army personnel and gives him high "esprit de Corps." The Belgian paratrooper is also allotted extra pay for hazardous duty. Currently the Belgian Army has one parachute regiment, British trained, which is scheduled to be shipped to the Belgian Congo to set up a parachute school of its own.

War Experiences
During World War II, the young Belgian nobleman escaped from Belgium via the Marseille-Oran-Casablanca route to England, where, with many other of his countrymen, he joined the Royal Air Force. In 450 combat flying missions as a Spitfire pilot, during which time he downed 12 enemy planes, Major du Monceau escaped without a scratch. His plane was hit only once.

"I am a very fortunate fellow," the Belgian observed. His comrades, however, were not all so fortunate. Forty-five per cent of the Belgian pilots who joined the RAF were wiped out, contributing their lives as a part of the Belgian share in the price of Allied victory.

Major du Monceau has served as Belgian military attache for the past year. He first visited the United States in 1944 when he attended the Command and General Staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Asked what he liked best in America, he replied quickly, "Football. Know where I can get tickets to it?"

Rivette Appointed Personnel Officer

Capt. Donald E. Rivette, formerly assigned to the Infantry School's Training Literature and Visual Aids section, has been named School Troops personnel officer during the temporary absence of Capt. Bernard Big, who is now on leave.

Captain Rivette entered the Army July 7, 1941, as a reserve officer and served with the 28th Infantry regiment through the campaigns of Tunisia, Sicily, Normandy, North France, Ardennes, and Rhineland.

The captain returned to the States in April 1945 and was assigned to Fort Benning. He was promoted from the service in October of the same year, but was recalled to active duty as a Regular Army officer in June 1946.

He wears the Silver Star, Bronze Star with cluster, and Purple Heart with cluster.

Second Guessing

By RALEIGH GREENE

It was the same old story at Doughboy stadium as the star-studded Doughs added another to their long string of victories. The count now stands at 16, just half of what Army's sensational teams have chalked up. Everybody is beginning to talk about these Doughboys of ours, and it looks very much like Butch Kendrick has gathered another strong contender for the National Service crown.

Saturday, the Doughs warmed up again with Fort Jackson. You remember the last game, I'm sure, just to refresh your memory, the final count read 60-0—a little one-sided. Saturday's game will make it five in a row for 1947 and tie Georgia's record of 17 consecutive victories.

Since I have been absent from the sporting scenes of Fort Benning, I should like to concentrate this week on the heavy side-line quarterbacking that has come to my attention. Time and again you see a person, sincere, I'm sure, with "up" and "down" didn't F. U. Andrew play in last week's game? It's a good sign to see individuals take an interest in their team, and that team's respective players, but it's not good when those who don't know begin to criticize because some of their favorites isn't playing ball. Each day, the Doughboys are sent through grueling drills and scrimmages, there are lots of expert observers to determine what is and what is most beneficial to the team. Those men have been selected because of their knowledge of and familiarity with football. If they weren't capable they wouldn't be there. Since they are capable, they are still running the show—a good performance if you will look over the records.

On the Doughboy squad there are some 40 players. These men comprise the sum total of the most talented gridirs at Fort Benning. They have been screened and tested—if they come up to standards, they play ball.

No man, who is unknown, is recognized immediately. I grant that there may be men who would be stars if they played more. But those men will be sought out, and are being sought out each and every day. I doubt whether any of them will be missed. Naturally, the coach, or anyone else for that matter, will use a man who is reported to be good. His chance comes first—it's all in the hall game. But that first choice must come up to expectations if he expects to last very long.

So, if your buddy, or someone you think should be playing football with the first test just hasn't come as he hoped he would, stick around, and perhaps you will see him in a more illuminating way. Saturday afternoon at the Bayonet. But if he doesn't don't be disappointed. The best eleven men Butch Kendrick has will be playing ball—you may be sure of that.

The pet show that begins Sunday, Nov. 2, at the Horseshoe bowl will be one of the most interesting events of its kind ever to be conducted by the Fort Benning. All members of the Post and civilian members of the Officer's club are eligible to enter pets in the show. An interesting assortment of animal beauty is in store for those who wish to see the show. All pets, other than dogs, cats, and horses, will be displayed in the first event, while the cat gets the spotlight in the second and the K9's in the third. An added attraction of the pet show is the fact that all pets are to be sponsored by the Officer's club, the Post NCO club, and the Block 12 NCO club. There are still applications blank available, according to Col. R. E. Tibbets, secretary of the Officer's club, so if you want to give your dog, or rattle snake, and we assume that they will be accepted, get yourself an empty blank and fill in the open spaces. It's as easy as that.

Word comes from Bill Reed, a former sports writer at the Bayonet and now editing the Paraglide at Fort Bragg, that many former Doughboys are playing bang-up ball with big schools this year. Do you remember Shad White, the famous scoring poll in the national last year? He played handily in the 1946 Dowd battlefield and is the same lad who caused so much comment in Texas' overwhelming victory over North Carolina last week.

Coach Billy Meeks, who led the Doughs through two successful seasons at Fort Benning, is doing the coaching at Maryland this year. Up there with him is the former Captain Frank Cudmore, who was the line coach at Benning. Bob Hightman, who was a secondary fullback with the Doughs in '46 is now a big name among the "Old Liners." Ollie Kline, an All-American from Ohio State in 1945 and back with the Buckeyes this year, is another Benning contributor to the sporting world. If you'll look over your roster of stars you will find plenty of big names that formerly sparked a Fort Benning football, basketball, and basketball team. Remember Bill Johnson?

Coach Al Burke's 328th Ordnance gridders have been having a pretty rough time of it this year. However, the 328th team is one of the most hustling aggregations I have ever seen, and their coach, and the team as a whole, deserve plenty of credit.

Just a reminder to all you fellows who plan to try-out for the Post basketball team that you'll be playing Eddie Tollis will again hold the reins in 1947 and hopes to have his loggers working by the end of the month. If you want, and are eager for a spot on the team, better start working up the old eye, and make this intramural tourney count as your last shot on the squad when things really get rolling the first of December.

Read somewhere not long ago that Capt. Ed Mosely had been defeated in the National Amateur contest. It was a real pity, Mosely being back in August. Mosely played at Maxwell Field, Ala., two weeks later and won the title for the All-Army Air Force championship which he won in a close match. Mosely was perhaps the sharpest golfer that has plodded the links at the Officer's club course. He will be remembered for his amazing coolness, and accurate putting—that's the story of his two well-earned victories.

ANOTHER BIG GAIN—Dashing through a terrific hole in the Green Cove Springs line, half-back Don Solt (with ball) is on his way toward one of the long runs the Doughs clicked off in swamping the visitors 60-0. No. 19 is Meager of Benning. Two Benning linemen throw No. 71, a Green Cove lineman, out of the play with a beautiful block.

Panthers Blank Bullets, 13-0

By BOB PHILLIPS

A homecoming gathering of approximately 4,000 shirt-sleeved fans cheered themselves hoarse Saturday afternoon at Doughboy stadium as the Clark College Panthers stretched forth their legs and paws to push across seven points in the fading minutes of the second quarter and six in the fourth period to blank the hard fighting Bullets 13-0.

The game was enlivened from beginning to end by vicious tackling, bone-crushing blocking, and long runs, with each team making its share of thrilling contributions to the closely fought contest.

The first team went scoreless as both teams dug in and fought like beasts to stave off the scoring threats of the other.

Bullets Immovable
The Bullets' line power rose to its greatest heights of efficiency in the initial scoring period of the second quarter.

With their backs jammed close against the wall and the Panthers pounding ferociously at the door they gave not an inch, but stood firm like a rock in the face of a truck back-bounced off-like rubber balls. Eight times the hard running ball-toting backs from the Atlanta school lunged head-on without success into the Bullets' forward wall from within the three-yard stripe, and eight times the seven iron men of the Bullets' line hurled them back for exactly no gain. With such stalwart support as Jeff White, Bill Holmes, Doc. Garvin, Odell Kennedy, and Matthew Baigie the Bullets could well afford to display such goal-line gallantry, which is not too often seen in football.

Williamson Gallops 85 Yards
The longest run of the day was turned in by Schley Williamson for the visitors. With less than four minutes left to play in the second stanza the ee-hipped, fast-stepping lug gathered in a goal-point on his own 45-yard line, faked to his left, then dashed to the right and three would-be Bullet tacklers and stretched the rest of the way to put the Collegians out front by a 6 to 0 score. The kick for extra point was good and the Panthers rested at half-time with a 7-0 bargain. A 20-yard run by plunging Atlas Jones went for no good when a Bullet was detected off side.

The third period was duplication of the first with both teams going scoreless. Though neither team offered any serious scoring threat, the stanza was not without spectacular plays. Time after time Bill Beasley gathered up from the secondary to nail the Panther backs dead in their tracks. Linemen E. White, Odell Kennedy, and Bill Holmes bottled up the

Entire Squad Get Gridiron Laurels

P foregoing the usual selection of the player-of-the-week, honors were not by-passed this week as the entire Doughboy squad and its coaching staff received a pat on the back for their overwhelming 60-0 win over Green Cove Springs last week.

Since the victory was so devastating, the attempt at singling out an individual standout is almost an impossibility. So—bait off to the entire Doughboy team.

As the score plainly shows the Benning gridders were superb in all phases of play. Evertime the vast array of feet soldier backs started pushing goalward they were right behind four and five man interference. This clearly shows the magnificent spirit in which teamwork has played such a vital part in winning four straight grid contests so far this season.

visitors' running attack. They consistently broke through the Clark line to throw their backs for enormous losses.

Green Gets It Down
Jimmie Green gave the fans a demonstration of his pass-catching brilliance by making a finger-tip snag of one of Gordon Burke's flips over the line of scrimmage for a first down. A clipping penalty nullified a 39-yard run by Clark's slippery Schley Williamson. Sixty Bob Murphy, whose whole-of-a frame was a powerhouse on both defense and offense, pried into Williamson, mouth first, and had to be taken out of the game.

A Bullet fumble deep in their own territory in the fourth period paved the way for the Panthers' second 10-0 start on the losers' 22-yard mark. The Collegians, aided by a 5-yard Bullet penalty and the utilization of three perfectly executed plays, advanced to 1-yard line. Thomas Brown slipped over right tackle for the score. The try for extra point was blocked and the Panthers emerged the victors by a 13-0 count.

DIFFERENT PLACES—Following the task assigned in preparation for the Emergency Officer Candidate School in the Pacific at Wake and Hawaii fields, Benning graduate, Oct. 15 and 16, exercise are being used to test the use of the large aircraft from which will be dispatched. This is a first step of the many phases of heavy equipment that will not be done in time.

Benning OCS Graduate Now 'Shooting Star' Pilot

Among the pilots flying P-80 tactical missions in Operation Combine at Lawson field is ribboned Capt. Lewis W. Powers, a 1942 graduate of Fort Benning's Officer Candidate school.

He arrived here last month from March field, Calif., where he is stationed with the First Fighter group, the first P-80 unit organized by the Air Force after the war. His group acquired another distinction on Oct. 3, during Operation Combine's first aerial demonstration at Dekker strip, when it successfully completed the first P-80 tactical mission ever attempted in an actual maneuver using live ammunition.

In service since 1938, Powers served as an enlisted man with the cavalry at Fort Bliss, Tex., and the infantry at Schofield

Barracks, Hawaii. He received his commission at Fort Benning in November, 1942, and one year later entered pilot's training at Moore field, Tex. After graduating as a pursuit pilot, he saw action in Europe from March, 1944, to March, 1945, and is credited with flying 114 P-51 missions against the enemy.

Captain Powers, a native of Albuquerque, New Mexico, began flying "Shooting Stars" in July, 1945. He participated in the jet division of the 1947 Cleveland Air races and finished third in the Quadrangle Pylon race, completing the 22 and a half mile course in a little over 20 minutes.

Two 37th Infantry Officers Promoted

2nd Lt. Dwight O. Kniphfer, Company A, 37th Infantry, and 2nd Lt. James C. Nix, Headquarters and Headquarters company, first battalion, 37th Infantry, have been promoted to the rank of first lieutenant, it was learned today.

Lt. Kniphfer, a native of Calhoun, Ala., served overseas as first sergeant of a rifle company with the 110th Infantry regiment from 8, 1945. His decorations include the Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

Lt. Nix, a native of Fairfax, Ala., served overseas with the 104th Coast Artillery, Fifth Depot, Supply squadron of the Eighth Air Force, and the 48th Infantry. He was commissioned a second lieutenant following graduation from Officer Candidate school at Fountainebleau, France, in 1945. He holds a Regular Army commission.

Cogswell Leaves Here In Development For Korea

Capt. William C. Cogswell, assistant operations and training officer for the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, is scheduled to leave Fort Benning in December for a new assignment in Japan, Korea, officials announced today.

During the war Capt. Cogswell served in Panama and the Philippines. He will attend a three-week course in air transportability prior to leaving the post.

School Troops EM Assigned To USAFI

Pfc. Donald J. Madden, member of the School Troops recruiting caravan now touring south Georgia, has received orders authorizing his transfer to the New York branch office of the Army's Information and Education division for duty with the United States Armed Forces institute mobile unit, it was revealed today.

Pfc. Madden, who entered the Army in 1945, is a graduate of the Airborne section and has been a member of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion here until released recently for duty with the recruiting caravan.

His new assignment will be with an educational unit touring U. S. cities in an effort to publicize educational opportunities of the Army, officials said.

Script Writer Gathering Material For Army Film

Sherman Beck, attached to the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island, N. Y., has started work here on the development of the story for the Army Ground Forces training film, "Regimental Communications System."

Mr. Beck, who arrived October 15 from Fort Monroe, Va., will be on the post for approximately another week gathering data for the film's script. The writer, who served in the armed forces for three years, is getting technical assistance from the Communications section of the Infantry School.

TO BE DISCHARGED

Sgt. Roy Williams, duty sergeant for the Airborne battalion's Company D, is slated to be discharged this week; officials have announced. He plans to return to his home in Flagstaff, Ariz.

Capitol Group Sunday Guests

Nine members of the House Agricultural committee and their aides toured Fort Benning Sunday as guests of Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander.

The committee is conducting a nation-wide tour to seek a "true picture" of the farm situation throughout the nation. Headed by Clifford R. Hope (R-Kans.), veteran farm legislator, the committee indicated that the nation's soil conservation program would be continued. Traveling by bus, in order to get a better picture of their efforts, the group left here for Montgomery, Ala.

Included in the party visiting Benning were Stephen Pace (D-Ga.); Willard R. Hope (R-Kans.), chairman of the committee; Charles B. Hoeven (R-Iowa); Chester H. Gross (R-Pa.); Thomas G. Abernathy (D-Miss.); Ernest K. Brambley (D-Calif.); Walter K. Granger (D-Ill.); George M. Frank (D-Ala.); Anderson Latham (D-Ga.); Hugh H. Soper, committee professional staff member; H. W. Wingo, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau; Richard Tokey, executive secretary of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce; John J. Heimburger, committee professional staff member; Wilson Williams, R. H. Van Sant, D. W. Brooks; W. S. White; William Smith; T. S. Bute; O. C. Medlock, and George Wilson.

Water Wastage Reported Here

The daily per capita consumption of water on the post has been 73 gallons per person, while the allotted amount for the month of September, Post engineer officials have revealed.

Considered the main contributing factors in the excessive use of water are leaky faucets and pipes and leaky shower heads and toilets. Unnecessary sprinkling of lawns last month also helped to swell the total amount of water consumed.

Losses are augmented especially when hot water is being used. It becomes a dual loss, fuel oil is consumed to heat the water that is wasted. The huge conservation and utilization program as laid down by the War Department calls for conservation in all possible phases, including heat, fuel, soil, food, lumber, paper, and other facilities subject to waste. The Post engineer is stressing the fact that water leaks of all kinds should be reported to their office and the situation will be corrected at once. The conservation program in effect now can only be as effective as the cooperation of the personnel on the post make it, they said.

Eleven STR Members Awarded Promotions

Eleven privates of the Student Training regiment's Service company were promoted to the grade of private first class last week, officials have announced.

Those promoted were: Pvt. Barron D. Brown, Frank D. Conyers, Edward Fuller, Cortez Hamilton, Cecil Jones, John L. Jones, Milton Lanier, John W. Morgan, Robert Owens, Jerry Ramsey, and Warren G. Whitefield.

Interim Training Is Inaugurated At Lawson Field

The Air Forces Interim Training program, which the Department of the Air Force inaugurated recently for officers with less than six years active commissioned service, has been set up at Lawson Field with Major George W. Potter, head of the air-ground training division, in charge, base officials have announced.

The course is nine months long and is designed to provide officers with a thorough military background. Training is carried out in a series of lectures covering every phase of military organization and training. Military history and tradition are also stressed.

Lawson field officers attend one-hour classes each Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday morning and written examinations on Thursday. Officers who are unable to attend classes during the week are required to make a satisfactory grade in the written examination are required to attend a review of the week's lectures on Saturday morning.

The Air Forces Interim Training program was scheduled to go into operation at approximately the same time. The program will continue to keep up with the training regardless of transfers.

Camera Club Sets Meeting For Today

The Fort Benning Officers' Camera club will open its winter season with a meeting in Parlor A of the Officers' club Thursday evening at 7:30.

The program will include the election of officers, the forming of beginners, still and movie groups and a discussion of plans for the coming year.

All officers and their wives are invited to attend the meeting. Neither equipment or experience is required to participate. The organization was formed last year by Lt. Col. A. M. Stroek under a plan to pool knowledge and equipment for the benefit of all members, officials said.

Further information about the club can be had by calling Major P. H. Brownfield at extension 3762.

Loretz Gets New Post In Benning Tank Unit

Lt. Ernest B. Loretz, recently returned from occupation duty in Europe, has been assigned to the 756th Tank battalion as a platoon leader of Company C, it was announced today.

Lt. Loretz, who entered the service in June 1942, graduated from Officer Candidate School in April 1943. He served overseas with the 66th division's 362nd Infantry regiment as a platoon leader and took part in the Rhineland campaign. Later he was motor officer for a unit of the Fifth Infantry division and prior to his return to the U. S. he served as S-3 for the 24th Construction squadron.

Mock Combat Conditions Prevail During 'Combine'

By LOUIS BUTTON

Imagine, if you can, a situation where an enemy has actually invaded the United States and has been successful to the extent of vital industrial centers of this country.

Stretch your imagination still farther and watch this enemy overrun Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, and parts of Alabama. With constant pressure from the invading forces, the United States theater commander has been forced constantly to withdraw and fight only a defensive, delaying action.

Rapid Advance

After four months of fighting, however, the rapid advance of the enemy has resulted in the over-extension of his supply lines, while our counter attacks have been increasing in numbers and intensity. As a result, the advance is halted and the front lines are generally stabilized for about 30 days.

During these 30 days the American forces are reorganized for an operation designed to drive the invaders back into the sea. Rapidly-trained troops, become available to build up a pool of reserves and our war production has accelerated to the point where a sustained offensive can be supported.

The operation is planned, coordinated, and carried to completion by both air and ground forces working together in close cooperation. The name given to the operation is "Operation Combine."

This, then, in a few words, is the theoretical situation around which "Operation Combine" is based.

A complete airborne operation, from planning stage to execution, is presented each week to students attending the three-day course at Lawson Field. The very phase of the air operation is demonstrated.

The early stages of the course are spent in viewing programs that face tacticians in planning such an attack, the equipment employed, and the discussion of air-ground cooperation in planning the attack.

Brazilian Army Officer Expected Next Month

Lt. Col. Mirabeau Pontes, chief of the Joint General staff of the Brazilian Army, is scheduled to arrive here this part of November, it was learned today.

In his 60-day tour of U. S. installations, Col. Pontes is studying housing, storage, recreational and medical facilities, maintenance, airfields, utilities, schools, and training areas in order to plan for the construction of an armored division post in southern Brazil.

Manley Is Cited For Test Work

The Army Commendation ribbon was presented to M-Sgt. Carlton B. Manley, Army Ground Forces board No. 3, Oct. 17 by Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, board president, for "outstanding services with Task Force Willway from Aug. 22, 1946, to April 29, 1947."

Sgt. Manley was awarded the commendation ribbon, according to the citation, for "his technical knowledge, untiring efforts, devotion to duty, and superior recording and compiling of information during certain tests in which he participated while a member of the Task Force."

He conducted hundreds of personal interviews and was responsible for the drying and issuing of clothing to be tested and for recording and compiling test data, the citation said. His suggestions for the conduct of clothing tests were valuable to the exercise.

During the exercises, Sgt. Manley was also responsible for the supervision of all tests assistants of the local board who participated in Willway.

Eighth Company Houses Three Student Groups

Three non-commissioned officer groups, attending Infantry School courses, are currently assigned to the Student Training regiment's Eighth company.

They are Infantry Non-Commissioned Officers' classes No. 1 and 2 and Enlisted Motor class No. 2.

The INCO classes have been in session four weeks and have a total of 62 students, while the motor course students in session since last Monday, total 59.

Numbered among the students in the three classes are four from the National Guard Reserve Corps, 72 from the Regular Army, 41 from the National Guard, and four from the Philippine Army.

THE GENERAL AND THE CHAMP—Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, left, Infantry Center commander, congratulates Pfc. Edward Green, Service battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, who won the grand prize in the big motor show held here during the week end. Pfc. Green's huge wrecker, according to the judges, was in perfect condition. He is holding the ribbons he won.

Large Group See Post Motor Show

A large group of civilian and military spectators were on hand at Blue field Sunday afternoon when awards were presented to the winners of the Infantry Center's two-day motor show. The grand award went to Pfc. Edward Green, Service battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion who drove a huge Army wrecker. His vehicle was adjudged the best all-round piece of equipment. A team of technical inspectors said they were unable to locate any deficiencies in the wrecker.

During competition between sections of the 998th Field Artillery battalion, judges crowned Section 1 the winner, while in the second event, between batteries of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, first place honors went to Battery A.

The one-quarter ton truck drivers' competition was won by T/4 J. M. McCreary, Army Ground Force Board No. 3, while second place laurels were topped by Pfc. Ernest L. Dyer, Company D, 37th Infantry regiment and third place by Pfc. James E. Hines, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, 30th Medical group.

Special Ceremonies Here To Mark Armistice Day

Appropriate ceremonies and religious services have been scheduled for Armistice Day, November 11, which will be observed as a holiday by all civilian and military personnel on the post.

The flag will be at half mast from reveille until noon "in memory of those who gave their lives in the service of their country during time of war." The 25th Infantry band will render appropriate selections from a point near the flag staff immediately before noon.

At noon a 21-gun salute will be fired by a battery of the 83rd Field artillery battalion. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the flag will be hoisted to full staff. An Episcopal Memorial Holy Communion service will be celebrated at the Infantry Center chapel at 10 a. m. on Armistice Day, in memory of the fallen. It was announced today by Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsch, School Troops chaplain.

Chaplain Kirsch, a priest of the Episcopal church, was recently assigned to Fort Benning. In addition to his duties at School Troops, he has taken charge of the Episcopal congregation from Chaplain (Major) Emmett G. Jones, formerly assistant Infantry Center chaplain, who has been transferred to the European command.

Final O-C Class Graduates No. 1

O'Daniel Expected To Give Address

Fort Benning's final Army Officer Candidate class, composed of 52 students, is scheduled to graduate Saturday morning, November 1, at theater No. 8, officials announced today. The class, which opened last May 12 with 89 prospective second lieutenants, is the twelfth to be organized since Fort Benning was established as a training school for all officer candidates regardless of branch.

Commanding officer of the final class is Capt. Jack V. N. Herndon, and tactical officers are Lt. Henry E. Thomas and Lt. Robert E. Dickerson.

The final parade for AOC class No. 12 will be held today at Blue field, Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel.

(See Pictures Pages 8-9)

Infantry Center commander, will review the troops. Officials also said that Gen. O'Daniel would be guest speaker at the graduation exercises Saturday morning.

Honor Grad Unnamed
The honor graduate, who will be the last man to receive his commission and the last man to graduate from the Fort Benning school, will be selected today, officials revealed.

The Officer Candidate school was established here July 9, 1941, in an effort to provide the U. S. Army with additional second lieutenants needed for rapid mobilization. Since that time a total of 67,190 students have graduated out of a total of 92,044 enrollments. There have been 465 classes organized since the school opened.

According to statistics released this week by Col. Hamilton Thorne, director of officer candidates, the total number of graduates represent more than four times the number of graduates of the United States Military Academy in its entire history, and approximately 10 times as many.

Brazilian Officer Due November 9

Lt. Col. Mirabeau Pontes, chief of the Joint General staff of the Brazilian Army, will arrive here November 9 on one of many stops in his tour of the U. S. It was announced this week.

Making a 60-day tour of military installations, Col. Pontes is studying housing, storage, recreational, and medical installations, national and airfields, utilities, maintenance, airfields, utilities, schools, and training areas.

The Brazilian chief also plans to visit Brookley field, Ala.; Randolph field, Texas; Fort San Houston, Texas; Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Knox, Ky.; Fort Jackson, S. C.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Fort Belvoir, Ill.; Washington, D. C., and New York.

Canadian Joint Service Group End Post Tour

Twenty officers, comprising a Canadian joint service group of Army, Navy and Air Force personnel, are scheduled to depart Friday morning after a week's visit here. The Infantry Center during which time they have observed the latest Infantry techniques and witnessed the Ninth Air Force maneuver "Operations Combine".

The joint service group arrived at Lawson field Sunday evening by plane from Ottawa, Canada via Washington, D. C.

In the last leg of their week's visit here the Canadians will begin Thursday with a tour of the Airborne section. Following the Airborne visit, they plan to view the training aids exhibit and confer with the coordinator of training. A visit to Army Air Commandos, F. C. Gordon, will wind up the week's activity.

Heading the list of the Canadian group are Maj. Gen. C. M. Mann, CBE, DSO, vice chief of the General staff of the Canadian Army and senior Canadian officer of the Joint Canadian-American defense council; Lt. Commander R. R. Parker, representing the Navy and Air Force; and Capt. R. Godwin, J. G. Kerr and H. H. Godwin of the RCAF.

The group began observing the air indoctrination course Monday in preparation for "Operations Combine" which was held Wednesday afternoon. Following the opening session of the course Monday morning, the Canadians visited Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander. An official dinner given by Gen. O'Daniel was the highlight of the American delegation visit.

Receiving instructions and training each day prior to the air maneuver, the visitors were given a full illustration of their efforts in the air-ground maneuver Wednesday afternoon.

Argentine Party Benning Visitors

Major General Juan Sanguinetti, Inspector General of Training of the Argentine Army, headed a group of 14 observers from several branches of the Argentine Army who landed at Lawson field Tuesday afternoon for a three-day visit at the Infantry Center.

The Argentine party is particularly interested in the methods of instruction employed by the American Army which might be applicable to the Argentine Army.

After brief visits to some of the major Army installations, the party will be broken down into teams and assigned to U. S. service schools equivalent to their respective branches for more detailed study of teaching techniques.

In General Sanguinetti's party are Brigadier General Angel Solari, Brigadier General Moises Rodio, Brigadier General Enrique Quiroga, Colonel Jose De Delano, Colonel Enrique Romero, Colonel Jaime Molina, Major Lamirola, Major Enrique Castro, Major Mauricio Gomez, Major Carlos P. de la Cruz, Captain Fuentetaja, Captain Carlos Creco, and Captain Anibal Reyes DeBora.

Football Game Proceeds Go To Post Chest Fund

Representatives of the Fort Benning Community Chest fund received continued an all out effort to reach the goal of 100 per cent donations.

The drive will be augmented by funds from two football games later in the season. It was announced by officials. Admission will be charged for the Fort Rife and Jacksonville Navy football games here November 23 and 30. General admission tickets for enemy chest drives will go for 25 cents and 50 cents for officers and civilians, while reserved tickets have been set at seventy-five cents. The proceeds from those two games will go to the Fort Benning Community Chest fund.

Two indicators, denoting the progress of the drive, have been placed on the post. Showing the number of pledges, the indicators also point out the amount contributed from time to time in thermometer style.

In many organizations pledged to full donations, a number of activities on the post have already come through with 100 per cent contributions. No quota has been set, but if all pledges are met in this one big drive, Fort Benning will be able to contribute liberally to the following organizations:

 Approximately six times the number of officers in the entire Regular Army in 1930.

Statistics Revealed
 The statistics also show that graduates are nearly twice the strength of the entire Regular Army in 1915, and approximately the strength of four and one-half the number of officers in the World War II infantry divisions. The school provided enough company grade officers to fill 515 war strength infantry regiments under present tables of organization, and only slightly less than the total number of officers in the Regular Army engaged in the War of 1812-14, according to the report.

Other figures made available by Col. Thorne include the fact that Infantry Replacement Training centers supplied nearly two-thirds of the candidates and high school graduates predominated in their educational background.

During the war years, the report reveals, very few candidates had had foreign service. There were 10 different races represented among the candidates, including white, Negro, Japanese, Chinese, Polynesian, American Indian, Korean, Filipino, and Semitic, and these races spoke 33 different languages.

Approximately 28 percent of the candidates were screened out by resignation or board action during the six years the school was here as compared with 32.7 percent screened out by the United States Military Academy in its 144-year history.

Col. Irvine C. Scudder serves as commanding officer of the Student Training Regiment, which was responsible for the administration and housing of all officer candidates.

Following the skit was the tire changing competition. First place in this event was won by Pfc. James E. Hines, 30th Medical group; second place by Pfc. Ernest L. Dyer, 37th Infantry regiment; and third place by S/Sgt. Otto Kelly, 328th Ordnance battalion.

Another highlight of the show was the demonstration by a tank transporter. As a Sherman medium tank rumbled over the field, trouble was simulated which necessitated the calling for a tank transporter to remove it. Using wrenches, the transporter, which is capable of carrying 84 tons, lifted the 31-ton tank and set it gently in place upon the massive piece of equipment.

The final demonstration was the passing in review of all the winners of Saturday's competition. The column of motorized vehicles was led off by the grand winner, Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander addressed the crowd over the public address system after the review. He expressed his appreciation to all those "who made this show possible." He announced that there would be a similar show held next spring.

In Saturday morning's show, first day of the two-day demonstration T/5 Roland L. Boyd, Service battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, T/4 L. C. Dunning, Service battery, 98th Field Artillery battalion, finished in a tie for top honors with a total of 34 points. Pfc. Jack W. Shackleford, 378th Ordnance battalion, was third.

Winning vehicles were Class I, Sedans; 204th Transportation Truck battalion; Class II, jeep truck; 25th Infantry regiment; Class III, three-quarter ton truck; 204th; Class V, wreckers, 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

Class VI tanks general, 76th Tank battalion; Class VII, 150 SP, 99th Field Artillery battalion; Class VIII, 105 howitzers; Battery A, 83rd Field Artillery battalion; and Class IX, tractor drawn howitzers, 99th Field Artillery battalion.

A majority of the static display was furnished by the Infantry Center's Museum and Maintenance section, which was in charge of the arrangements for the show.

Col. Thomas M. Brinkley acted as chief judge of the static display, while Lt. Col. George M. Davis judged the truck drivers competition.

REALIZES LIFE AMBITION

WAC Proves Women Make Good Weather-Eyes

Chestnut-haired Shirley Golden has finally realized her life's ambition. She has become a weather forecaster, thus disproving the old theory that here at last is a job for which women are not suited.

Shirley is now a staff sergeant in the Women's Army Corps and a graduate of the Air Force's Weather School at Chanute field, Ill., but her desire to become a predictor of the weather began while she was an undergraduate at Hunter college in New York City.

Sgt. Hunter, although she holds a bachelor's degree in business administration, claims that meteorology is her real first love, and at Asheville, N. C., working at the during her college days spent a Asheville-Hendersonville airport as great deal of her time studying an observer. She was getting at the Weather Bureau in New York. But when she found out that civilian airports frowned upon using women as weather forecasters, she decided to try her luck with the Army.

"Missing in the WAC Feb. 14, 1945, she was sent out to Des Moines, Iowa, for basic training. From the Iowa station she went down to Dale Mabry field, Fla., where she remained until the base was closed in November of the same year."

Sgt. Golden then found herself became the Army's only female weather forecaster. Shirley says that their successful completion swept away all doubt that women would make as good forecasters as men.

Of the six female graduates, three went to California, one went to Williams field, Ariz., one remained at Chanute field, and Shirley returned to Greenville for an assignment with Ninth Air Force.

Sgt. Golden is now at Lawson field with Ninth Air Force Advanced headquarters as a weather forecaster for Operations Combine. While on the post, she is attached to the Base Weather detachment for duty and quartered with the Fort Benning WAC detachment.

She likes the WAC, but hasn't decided whether to make the Army her life career as yet. As usual there is a man in the picture. He's a sergeant, too.

Grant Named S-3

Capt. Wilbur E. Grant has been appointed S-3 of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion, it was learned today.

He is a 1942 graduate of Officer Candidate School, and during the war served in Panama and the Pacific area.

A Reluctant Farewell

Next Saturday Fort Benning bids a reluctant farewell to the Officer Candidate school, for on that day the last of the officer training classes will graduate. Army officer candidates will become merely a memory to those who watched a small but ambitious program mushroom overnight into a vast organization of three training regiments which turned out between July 9, 1941, and November 1, 1947, almost 68,000 second lieutenants.

A total of 465 classes were organized during the school's more than six years existence, and 92,044 American youths were accepted for training. The 87,190 graduates represent more than four times the number of graduates of the United States Military Academy in its entire history and approximately six times the number of officers in the entire Regular Army in 1930. This total is nearly twice the strength of the entire Regular Army in 1915, and approximately the strength of four and one-half World War II infantry divisions.

The Officer Candidate School graduated enough company grade officers to fill 515 war strength regiments of infantry under present tables of organization, and only slightly less than the total number of graduates of the United States Military Academy in its entire history and approximately six times the number of officers in the entire Regular Army in 1930. This total is nearly twice the strength of the entire Regular Army in 1915, and approximately the strength of four and one-half World War II infantry divisions.

Nine races were represented by officer candidates during its history. These included white, Negro, Japanese, Chinese, Polynesian, American Indian, Korean, Filipino and Semitic, and 33 different languages were spoken. Most candidates had high school educations, and the percentage of those screened out by resignation or board action reached 28 per cent.

From these figures provided by the director of officer candidates, Col. Hamilton Thorne, it is easy to see the high esteem in which this training was held by officials of the school. This painstaking compilation would doubtless not have been completed provided Fort Benning was not interested in the candidate.

It was a matter of family pride among Fort Benning troops that Washington thought we had facilities and material good enough to provide the type training needed to turn out leaders of infantry. It was a matter of family pride when we boasted that Fort Benning officer candidates, who became second lieutenants, made top-notch leaders in combat. We may have appeared vain when we shouted their praises, but we felt we had something to be vain about. Not every military installation was fortunate in having the superior instructors, administration, and facilities with which we were blessed.

Although Saturday marks the end of an era at Fort Benning, we feel that here at "America's most complete Army post," our job of training officers has not ended. The background they received while studying here will ever be a source of intense pride. They won't soon forget their Fort Benning alma mater, nor will their alma mater forget them. We will continue, as we did during the war, to look to them as leaders in time of peace, and, should another war come, then in time of war as well.

The officer candidate's college was not one with ivy-covered towers, but we can't help but feel that it was just a little bit better. Here on their mud-caked campus and in their temporary class rooms they learned one of the greatest assets a man can have: how to be real men at all times. They learned to take orders as soldiers and to give orders as soldiers would give them.

Looking back over the years, we feel that the people responsible for the organization and the successful completion of the officer candidate program here deserve indeed a pat on the back for a job well done.

At the old Settler's Reunion a very deaf old man sat down to talk with an old lady he had not seen for years.

"Remember, Silas, how we used to play together?"

"Heh, heh," chuckled the old man.

"Remember, when you used to get fresh hell I used to spank ye, Si?"

"Heh, heh," laughed the deaf man, "ye wouldn't know the old place now, Marthy."

A woman was driving along a country highway when she noticed two men climbing a telephone pole a short distance ahead.

She turned to her companion in disgust and said: "Those men are fools. They probably think I never drove a car before."

A Texan entered a saloon with a friend and small boy. He ordered two drinks. His boy quizzed the youngster, "Ain't na drinkin'?"

This Day

(Ezra's Note: This is the third in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between October 24 and This Day (October 30).)

October 24, 1852. . . . On This Day, 95 years ago, the late American statesman, Daniel Webster, died. Webster was a master of eloquence and had gear in his time, but he failed to attain the one office he desired above all others: that of presidency of the United States. . . . On This Day, October 24, 1907, 40 years ago, the Illinois and Mississippi canal was formally open to navigation. . . . Sixteen years ago, on This Day in 1931, the observance of Pennsylvania Day, in honor of the birth of William Penn, was officially proclaimed by Governor Fincham.

October 25, 1812. . . . On This Day, 135 years ago, Captain Stephen Decatur, of the U. S. Navy, captured the British frigate "Macedonia." The battle took place about 600 miles off the coast of the islands and lasted about an hour-and-a-half. . . . On this day, 14th Oct. 1843, Lt. John C. Fremont, of the U. S. Army, and his exploring party reached the junction of the Walker Walls and Columbia rivers. . . .

October 26, 1825. . . . On this day, 122 years ago, the Erie Canal was officially opened by Governor Clinton of New York. . . . On this day, 54 years ago, in 1893, the U. S. S. Oregon was launched at San Francisco, and was later to become the flagship of Admiral Dewey. . . . On this day 22 years ago, in 1925, Lt. James H. Doolittle, of the U. S. Service, established a new world's record for planes at 232 miles an hour.

October 27, 1890. . . . On this day, 89 years ago, Theodore Roosevelt was born in New York City. . . . On this day, 43 years ago, in 1904, the first successful subway line was opened in New York City. . . . Twenty-five years ago in 1922, Navy Day was officially created for the first time. . . .

October 29, 1793. . . . It was on this day, also, that the original specifications for the cotton gin were sworn to before a notary public 29, New York. The gin was invented by Eli Whitney.

On this day, 81 years ago, in 1866, the Statue of Liberty was unveiled in a stirring ceremony. . . . In 1919, 28 years ago, Congress passed the National Prohibition Act, more commonly known as the Volstead Act.

October 29, 1814. . . . On this day, 133 years ago, the first warship, the "Demolisher," was launched. It was propelled by steam and launched. . . . It never saw duty but was a blast-up while docked in Brooklyn. . . . On this day, 62 years ago,

By CHAPLAIN W. M. HALE
I am a poor fellow because I want to be, and one of my greatest satisfactions is to meet up with a good soldier. I like to compare his appearance, attitude, and skill with that of other good soldiers. I have known a few. I have known, I make a mental note of it and try to help him overcome that one weakness. At the same time, I try to help myself and others who have fallen into the same pitfall.

I believe the greatest weakness of the modern American U. S. soldier is the lack of an overall plan for his entire life. Most men live today with little concern for the future. Today—and what I mean by that—is the chief item of my thoughts.

Most of the fellows around us are doing the same things we are, and most of our children are going to walk in our footsteps. . . . It's time to raise our sights and take the long look. It's time to be a soldier for tomorrow—as well as today.

In 1885, General George B. McClellan died suddenly at his home in Orange, N. J. . . . In 1946, seven years ago, the nation inaugurated peacetime military services.

October 30, 1781. . . . On this day, 166 years ago, Benjamin Franklin was appointed Secretary of War by the Continental Congress. Not very widely known, Ben Franklin served his country best by his participation during the Revolutionary War as a major general and later on quelled Shay's rebellion. . . . Eighteen years ago, on this day in 1929, President Hoover presented a basket of apples to Mrs. Marie Curie to purchase a gram of radium. It was a gift from the people. . . . On this day six years ago, a B-24 bomber landed at Washington, D. C., completing a record round-the-world flight of 24,700 miles.

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL
This week I would like to pay tribute to the Red Cross girls in charge of recreation work. So often we think of Red Cross in terms of distress, disaster, and heartaches, and overlook the good Red Cross girls from a recreation standpoint.

To the able-bodied soldier at Fort Benning there are offered recreation and amusement comparable to a three-ring circus. Certainly the able-bodied can never complain of nothing to do, no place to go, or nothing to see at Fort Benning.

When one studies the Red Cross at the Station hospital, he is amazed at the amount and variety of recreation offered by Miss Hazel Turnage, head recreation worker, and her two associates. It is an old story to American public and the American soldier that Red Cross furnishes books, pictures, board games, cigarettes, and other things of that nature. The program at the Station hospital and Red Cross takes 25-30 patients to see the show presented in the Alabamaria.

There are always two parties weekly with hostesses brought out from Columbus by the local chapter. Last week I saw one of many patients who were horse lovers to the Columbus horserow in cooperation with the Junior League. During summer fishing trips are arranged. Individuals interested in cosmetics have been taken to concerts.

It would be impossible in this short space to describe one week's program, for it seems as though the imagination of Red Cross workers could never be in planning a well diversified program. This is just another instance of your Red Cross work. You are invited to go by the recreation hall at the Station hospital for convenience and see for yourself the splendid program carried on by your Red Cross.

A small boy carrying a basket on the train the other way going bound for South Park. He found the car full and stood in the aisle as it unkindly took me. A gentleman who was occupying a seat with his grip beside him, put his foot on the boy's basket on the rack above his head and offered the lad part of his present. The gentleman felt something trickling down on his head from the basket above. "My boy," said he, "your pickles are leaking."

"Them ain't pickles," replied the boy, "them's puppies."

There was a young lady named Skipper. . . . Who took a night ride on the Clipper. . . . She dreamed and she dozed, . . . She woke quite exposed, . . . For someone had pulled on her zipper.

Waiter: "May I help you from the soup, sir?"
Customer: "Whaddya mean, help me FROM the soup?"
Waiter: "Well, sir, judging from the sound, you ought wish to be dragged ashore."

TWO WIN PROMOTIONS
 T-1—Edgar J. Mullikin, Headquarters battery, 88th Field Artillery battalion, has been promoted to technician third grade, officials said today. It was also announced that Cpl. Bill I. Smith, also of Headquarters battery, had been promoted to technician fourth grade.

War II Veteran Cited By Army
 Sgt. George M. Frost, Headquarters, First battalion, 37th Infantry regiment, was awarded the Bronze Star medal for distinguished service against the enemy in the South Pacific during World War II, it was revealed today.

Physically unfit for military service because of infantile paralysis during the first part of the emergency, Sergeant Frost waged a great uphill battle to whip the dreaded disease and recovered sufficiently to enter the Army by the early part of 1942.

In addition to the Bronze Star medal, he was also awarded the Combat Infantryman badge, the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with two battle stars, the Philippine Liberation ribbon with one battle star, the American theater ribbon, the Occupation medal, and the Victory medal.

Sergeant Frost at present is assigned as message center chief of his unit.

STARK PROMOTED
 Pfc. Harold J. Stark, Company B, Infantry School detachment, promoted to technician fourth grade of corporal, officials said today.

Custodial Plan To Be Adopted

A pilot custodial service, charged with cleaning walls, floors, and windows of Fort Benning buildings, is expected to be established here provided preliminary plans of the War Department materielize, post engineer officials announced this week.

The custodial service, similar to the one now in effect at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., will function under the direction of the Post Engineer. All cleaning services of administrative buildings, hospitals, and mess halls will be carried out by custodial personnel.

Charles E. Wrinkle, who recently completed 30 days of special training as custodial supervisor, has been assigned here for the purpose of surveying local conditions.

Valentine Assigned To Base PM Office

Capt. Valentine Day, former Lawson field staff sergeant, returned to the base last week after 12 months with the American Expeditionary Force in Weisbaden, Germany, and was assigned to the base provost marshal's office.

The captain began his service career more than 13 years ago and in 1941 served at Lawson field as operations sergeant with the 16th Observation squadron. He was commissioned at Fort Knox, Ky., in January 1942, and later attended the Provost Marshal's school at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

After transferring to the Air Forces in July 1942, he served as provost marshal at Tyndall field, Fla., and Moody field, Ga., and went to the ETO in August 1946.

Overseas he was assigned to the European Air Transport Service and was on duty with the First Constabulary of Headquarters brigade in Weisbaden, Germany.

School Units List Recent Promotions

The following promotions have been announced by the School Troops unit:

The 83rd Field Artillery battalion, Pfc. George O. Seberg to corporal, T-1; Edgar J. Mullikin to T-3; Cpl. Bill Smith to T-4; Pfc. Melvin D. Bell, 37th Infantry, to corporal.

Promoted in the Service company, 37th Infantry, were T-5 Albert T. Rogers to T-4 and Pfc. Bray S. White to T-5.

The following Pfc. were promoted to T-5 in Headquarters and Headquarters company, 7th Infantry, Homer M. Mills, Robert P. Jordan, Jesse L. Bentley, and Russell D. Thorp.

Hunting Season Opens Saturday

After a thorough polishing of rifles, gun toting hunters will begin to flock to the fields and reservations as the long-awaited hunting season opens Saturday, November 1.

The open season for squirrels and wild hogs begins Saturday, followed by quail, turkey gobbler, and rabbits November 20.

The dove hunting season, usually the first to open, will not get under way here until December 3. Other changes include the shift from the vermin list of wild hogs to a closed season to be announced later. Ducks, geese, and snow geese will be given to holders of hunting and fishing permits who present to the Police and Fish and Game office any one of the following vermin in the quantity indicated: two hawks head; four crows head; one fox tail, and one widgee tail.

Must Have Permit
 No person will hunt or fish on the reservation without a permit issued by the provost marshal, except as indicated by hunting and fishing regulations, officials warned. Only persons who may hunt or fish without a permit are range guards. Minors are not required to have a fishing permit, but must have one to hunt, they said.

Fishing ponds and streams on the Fort Benning reservation will be open every day of the fishing season and not restricted to certain days, unless prohibited by notice that will be published in the Daily Bulletin, authorities pointed out.

Hunting will be prohibited at all times within the Post proper, but may be permitted anywhere within the game sanctuary or restricted area. Shotgunners are the only authorized firearms. Forbidden to be used are any type of rifle, pistol, or carbine, or any shotgun larger than a 12 gauge.

Bag Limits
 Bag limits have also been announced. The limit on quail is 10 per day with a possession limit of 20. Other daily bag limits are: rabbits, two; squirrels, six; doves, 10; ducks, four; and geese, one. Only one wild hog per person may be taken each season. Hogs may be hunted with shotgun, bow and arrow, or with dogs. Only one turkey gobbler each season is allowed, and there is no open season on turkey hens. Swans and snow geese cannot be killed in Georgia.

The season is wholly closed on deer, beaver, and Wilson's snipe. Foxes, wildcats, raccoons, and opossums may be hunted at any time during the hunting season, and vermin may be killed at any time. Officials said that one box of shotgun shells will be given to holders of hunting and fishing permits who present to the Police and Fish and Game office any one of the following vermin in the quantity indicated: two hawks head; four crows head; one fox tail, and one widgee tail.

Beautiful Ceremony Marks Saturday Wedding In Chapel

Of sincere interest to their many friends in Columbus and on the Post was the ceremony Saturday afternoon when Miss Johnnie Ruth Parrish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Parrish, of Columbus, became the lovely bride of Lt. John B. Cortese, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cortese, Jr., of Paterson, N. J.

The wedding took place at 2:45 p. m. in the Infantry Center chapel with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale officiating. The nuptial music was played by Mrs. L. H. Averitt on the organ.

The guests were seated by the ushers, Capt. Fred Scott, Lt. Robert Kelly, and CWO Hazzie Stafford. The groom walked to the altar with his best man, Capt. John D. Becher, and preceding the bride were her attendants, Mrs. Mary Jo Scott, as mistress of honor, wore a yellow taffeta gown with an orchid shaded colonial nosegay and colonial hat. Miss Mary Adams, Mrs. Hill Parrish, and Miss Violet Tucker, as the bride's bridesmaids, wore in orchid taffeta gowns with yellow colonial nosegays and colonial hats.

The bride, entering with her father who gave her in marriage, was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin with a lace bodice outlined in seed pearls. The basque was trimmed with a full skirt which fell to a train, and her veil was of imported illusion with a train of seed pearls, holding the veil which fell the full length of the train. Her colonial bouquet of ten orchids was showered with tube roses and stephanotis.

At a reception at the Officers' club, the newlyweds greeted their guests on the sun porch and with her husband's saber the bride cut her cake, made in the form of the Infantry Center chapel with a miniature bride and groom leaving the chapel. Ferns and white blooms flanked the cake. Approximately 100 guests were served.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Scott and their daughter Joan, Miss Anne Scott, and Mrs. J. K. Hudson of Atlanta.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Parrish wore a floor length gown of an aqua shade and an orchid corsage.

For going away the bride chose an aqua colored suit with brown accessories and an orchid corsage.

The couple left for a wedding trip to New York and New Jersey and will be at home at 2727 Tenth avenue in Columbus when they return.

The bride attended Florida State college in Tallahassee and was graduated from the Florida Nurse's school. She took post graduate work both at Baylor university in Dallas, Texas, and Charity hospital.

Lieutenant Cortese entered service in May, 1942 and served in the European theater during the war. He is now platoon leader with Ninth company of the Student Training regiment.

General Section Dinner Party

Officers and ladies of the General section of the Infantry School held a formal party Saturday evening with the operations and training committee as hosts and Capt. and Mrs. Ben Harrell acting as chairman.

In the receiving line, with Capt. P. O. Gordon introducing, were Col. and Mrs. Fay Ross, Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Whitfield Shepard, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. J. B. Davidson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. D. Cone, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ben Harrell, Lt. Col. and Mrs. M. J. Dugas, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. O. Blandford, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. E. Roberts, and Mrs. P. O. Gordon.

Before dinner cocktails were served from a table in the middle of the main dining room, and the two L-shaped tables were decorated with pumpkins, orange berries, and black and orange tapers.

A highlight of the event was the skit written and directed by Col. A. O. Connor, depicting as a satire, a normal diet in an office of the General section.

Lt. Col. Charles W. Davis was in charge of arrangements, and after dinner the guests enjoyed dancing in the main lounge.

DISCUSS CONCERT SERIES—Mrs. Robert Hill, president of the Fort Benning Women's club, poured tea and discussed plans for the concert series to be held here with Miss Marian Evans of Chicago when she was on the post recently. Miss Evans, standing, is western manager of the Community Concerts Services and explained the membership plan which will be used for the concerts at Fort Benning.

Concert Memberships Open For 1947-48 Season On Post

The membership drive for the 1947-48 concert season at Fort Benning got off to a lively start Tuesday evening with the official opening taking the form of a dinner. Members of the executive board and volunteer workers attended to learn the details of the program planned to bring artists here.

Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, general chairman of the Concerts Services, presided and introduced William Richards, organization director of the community Concerts Services, which will furnish the artists to appear here. He spoke to the group of 130 guests and explained the membership plan and various phases of the series which is being sponsored by the Fort Benning Women's club.

Memberships are now available and the drive will be for one week, after which no more memberships will be admitted. Headquarters for the drive have been set up in the conference room in the Old Post Headquarters annex building, and ladies are there from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m., each day except Sunday to accept memberships and give further information. Memberships are available at two prices, the majority being six dollars with a lesser number at four dollars.

Guests at the formal dinner learned that a membership entitles the holder to attend all the concerts to be given this season in the Main Theater at no additional cost. Only members will be admitted to the concerts.

Mrs. F. H. Bockoven arranged the dinner held in the main dining room and was assisted by Mrs. Wesley U. Moran. At the main table guests were Major Gen. and Mrs. John A. O'Daniel, Col. and Mrs. Robert E. Hill, Col. and Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, Mr. William Richards, Mrs. Frank Ward, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard D. Dugas, Mrs. Fay Ross and Col. L. A. Diller. The main table was decorated with a Halloween motif carried out with orange tapers, pumpkins, fall fruits and vegetables, complementing the bright orange lights. Other guests were seated at small tables around the room which were decorated with orange berries and greens.

Under the plans for the membership drive as many people as possible will be contacted individually, and troop commanders will have memberships available for all units, Mrs. Scudder explained.

T-5 and Mrs. Julian E. Ovalle have announced the birth of a son, Raymond Julian, on October 26 at the Station hospital. Mrs. Ovalle was the former Miss Lucille Souster of Keyes West Virginia. Corporal Ovalle served with the 101st Airborne in the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, Central Europe, Ardennes-Aisne, and Rhineland.

Communications Ladies Set Bridge Play For Season

Ladies of the communications section held their monthly luncheon Friday when Mrs. Paul Hamilton acted as hostess. The table was arranged on the sun porch with bright yellow carnations tied with gold streamers which were later given to the guests as corsages.

The group made plans for luncheons to be held at the club the second Friday of each month, and bridge parties will be held the other Fridays at the quarters of the various members. Hostesses will be selected alphabetically, and members of the group who are unable to attend are requested to call the hostess for the week between 8 and 8:30 a. m. the Wednesday morning before the meeting. The first bridge session will be November 7.

Army Nurse Weds Lt. Cox In Catholic Chapel Oct. 22

Capt. Mary L. Gardiner, Army Nurse Corps, daughter of Mrs. J. D. Gardiner of Washington, D. C., became the lovely bride of Lt. Edward A. Cox, son of Mrs. Alice Cox of Nashville, Tenn., October 22 in a beautiful ceremony solemnized in the Main Post Catholic chapel with Chaplain (Major) F. Rafferty, Catholic chaplain officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Henry S. Matthews, wore a beautiful white gown of corded white tulle trimmed with Irish lace and cut with a full skirt and fitted bodice. The long sleeves were fitted at the wrist and came

Christening Event Followed By Party

The daughter of Capt. and Mrs. C. B. Carroll, Marjorie-Jane, was christened in a beautiful ceremony Friday afternoon in the Catholic chapel with Chaplain John F. Rafferty (Major) officiating.

Cocooner of the baby who was two months old October 26, is Miss Jane Mary Mullen, of New York City, the child's aunt. In her absence, Mrs. Robert Kitz acted as proxy. The godfather is Capt. George W. Everett.

For her christening Marjorie-Jane wore a beautiful dress of white linen with embroidery and val lace as decorations. Her corsage of baby chrysanthemums tied with a pink satin ribbon was a gift from Lt. Col. and Mrs. David Schorr. Mrs. Kitz presented the honoree with a gold cross. Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. L. Hittinger gave her a silver spoon.

Following the ceremony the guests were invited to a delightful cocktail party given by Captain and Mrs. Carroll at the quarters. The decorations for the occasion included bright gladioli and ivy, and the guests were seated at small tables and served light refreshments.

Personals

Col. and Mrs. E. S. Chickering, of Maxwell Field, Ala., are on the Post this week in connection with the Air Combine program. Sunday evening the couple were guests of Major and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby at a delightful dinner party at the Officers' club. Mrs. Chickering is president of the Women's club at Maxwell field.

Col. and Mrs. Logan W. Boyd have recently returned from Colorado and Canada where they visited for four weeks. On their return trip they visited Yellowstone National park and Colonel Boyd's brothers in Denver, Colorado and Knoxville, Tenn.

T-5 and Mrs. Andrew Watcher have announced the birth of a daughter, Anna Beana, at the Station hospital October 23.

Mrs. Watcher was the former Miss Bertha Kalinich of Tottsville, Pa. Corporal Watcher was overseas with the Ninth Infantry regiment of the Second division Headquarters when the bride cut her tiered cake on a table decorated with gladioli.

After her wedding trip the couple will be at home in Baker Village.

Miss Lundberg, Major Craig Take Vows In Post Chapel

The Infantry Center chapel was the scene of the beautiful ceremony Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Hazel Lundberg, of Chicago, became the lovely bride of Major Clayton C. Craig, of Missouri. Mont. and Fort Benning, with Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale officiating. The bride wearing an attractive two-piece suit of beige with brown accessories and John Fredericks hat and veil with the brim faced with coque feathers, was given in marriage by Lt. Col. N. W. Dragnoff, of Detroit, Mich. The bride's corsage was white orchids.

Attending the bride was Mrs. N. W. Dragnoff, of Detroit, who wore a champagne-shaded suit with brown accessories and an orchid corsage.

The nuptial music, played by Lt. L. H. Garrett included "At Dawning," "Because," and "The Wedding March." Guests were seated by Major R. J. DeMers and Major John Dwan, and Capt. J. K. Eakin acted as best man. The chapel was beautifully decorated with white flowers, and the altar arrangement featured colorful chrysanthemums.

Among out-of-town guests were Dr. H. W. Slaughter of New Orleans; Major Arthur McPhail, of New Orleans; Miss Lucille Kinsey, of Boston, Mass.; Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. H. Crown, Jr., of Philadelphia, Pa.; and Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Ryan, of New York, N. Y.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Palm Room of the Officers' club where approximately 100 guests were served champagne and brandy punch after the bride cut her tiered cake which was centered on a table beautifully banked with fall flowers and greenery.

Major Craig met his bride while in Rome, Italy. He has been in service for approximately eight years and served overseas in the European theater with the Third division during the war. He is now at Fort Benning as a member of Advanced Officers course No. 2.

The bride has been employed by the Rubber Development corporation in Brazil and was working for the Foreign Economic administration when she was in Italy.

O'Daniels Hosts At Supper Party

Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel entertained at a delightful supper party at their quarters last week for a group of friends.

Among the guests were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John E. Dahlquist, Maj. Gen. Ernest Harmon, Brig. Gen. R. M. Bathurst, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge who is now on active duty as a lieutenant colonel. Later in the week the O'Daniels were hosts at another party when they held an open house at the commandant's quarters to honor the 29 military and air attaches representing 31 nations, who were guests on the Post last week, and a number of the senior officers and their wives from the Post.

Newlyweds Come to Benning After Rites In Minneapolis

Miss Eleanor Lois Ingebretsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingebretsen, of Minneapolis, Minn., became the lovely bride of Major John L. Campbell, son of Mrs. L. G. Campbell, of Marion, Ind., in a ceremony in the Mount Olivet Lutheran church in Minneapolis October 4 with the Rev. Neuben Youndahl officiating.

The 350 guests, seated by ushers Erickson, Charles Ingebretsen, Jr., Ira Elsham, and Arthur Peil, all of Minneapolis, found the church beautifully decorated with candelabra palms, and white altar bouquets.

The wedding music was played by Miss Vera Bertalot. The attendants were Mrs. Allen Erickson, sister of the bride and matron of honor, and Miss Lavern Ingebretsen, brides maids. The matron of honor wore a gown of pale blue, and the brides maids wore attire in gowns of rose taffeta fashioned with sweetheart necklines and bows for the bustle effect.

Met at the altar by the groom and best man, Dr. Dale W. Harvey, of Lafayette, Ind., the bride wore a gown of heavy antique ivory satin with a square neckline, long sleeves and fitted bodice. The full skirt was completed with a long train and the bridal veil was of illusion pink French net and fell to a train. Flowers formed the halo coronet and the bride carried a basket of Stephanotis and white orchids.

Approximately 160 guests attended the reception following the ceremony which was held in the left for a motor trip through the south. For going away the bride chose a brown and white checked suit with brown accessories and an orchid corsage.

The couple are now making their home at Fort Benning. The bride attended the University of Minnesota and was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1944. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega social sorority.

Major Campbell, who attended De Pauw university and was graduated from Indiana university, took graduate work at the Indiana university School of Dentistry and Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York. His civilian occupation was as a dentist. He entered service in November, 1940. During the war he served in the Pacific theater and has been decorated with the American Defense ribbon, Philippine Liberation ribbon, Japanese Occupation ribbon, and Victory medal. At present Major Campbell is at the Station hospital here in the oral surgery section.

Pictorial Review Of The

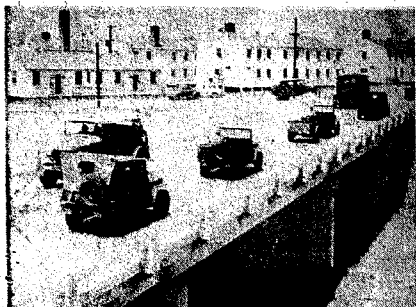

TONS OF BOOKS—This smiling candidate was caught by the cameraman as he gathered the group of textbooks he would be required to study during his period of training as an officer candidate. This picture was taken several years ago when the Harmony Church area flourished.

A SHORT BREAK—Candidate Lieber, whose first name could not be found here, is reading a copy of the Shavetail, weekly publication of the Officer Candidate school. More than a year has passed since the Shavetail was in publication.

BAYONET TRAINING—This is really an "oldie." These two candidates get together for a brief moment of note comparison on the bayonet course during their rough training to become infantry officers. An idea of the year this was made can be determined by the helmet worn by the candidate to the left.

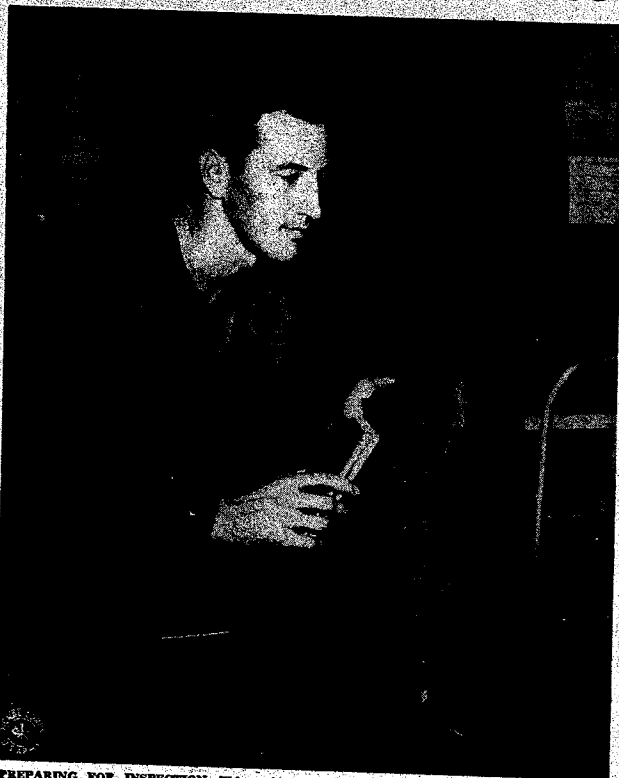

HARMONY CHURCH TRAFFIC—Harmony Church was new when this picture was taken, and the entire area was packed with eager young American manhood, all intent on making themselves into good second lieutenants of infantry. The super highway (see area below bridge on right) was not even completed at that time.

RIVER CROSSING—This group of officer candidates were learning how to cross rivers when this picture was taken back during the hey-day of the school here. This was just one of the many arduous training programs they were required to complete successfully.

PREPARING FOR INSPECTION—This serious looking candidate was likely looking far ahead into the future to the day he would be called Lieutenant. Shoe shining, brass polishing, and floor scrubbing were all in the day's routine for these young men as they studied and trained for graduation day and combat.

"I WON, MOM"—August J. MacIntosh, 50,006th graduate from the Fort Benning Officer Candidate school, beams happily as his mother, Mrs. James P. MacIntosh, pins these shining gold bars on his collar. MacIntosh graduated in September, 1944.

LEARNING TO EAT IN THE FIELD—Candidate Falkenstrom, we couldn't learn his first name, gets his first taste of chow in the field during one of many all-day and all-night problems his class completed before graduation from the Fort Benning Officer Candidate school. Falkenstrom was among the graduates back in 1941.

DRY FIRING—Officer candidates received the highest calibre instruction the Infantry School had to offer right from the beginning. Here a group of O-C's, one of the first to begin training here back in 1941 (note blue uniforms as men third from left and old style fatigue caps) brush up on their eagle eyes, which were to come in mighty handy when they joined thousands of other Fort Benning graduates on the far-flung battle fields in Europe and the Pacific.

MORTAR TECHNIQUE—Officer candidates learned the technique of practically every weapon used by the modern infantryman during their three-month course back in the early days of the war. Here a group of candidates get instruction on the 81 mm mortar.

Doughs Face Test In Saturday Game

Local Grid Eleven To Meet Powerful Quantico Marines

Taking to the road for the second week in a row, the Fort Benning grid juggernaut journeys to Virginia to engage the powerful Quantico Marines Saturday in a battle which will result, say Doughboys eleven to a stern test.

Conquerors of the Fort Jackson Red Devils last Sunday the Doughboys are looking for a perfect record of five straight victories this year against a powerful Marine team composed of former college and professional stars.

In beating the Fort Jackson eleven the Doughboys have run up a string of 17 consecutive wins which extends over the period of three seasons. They have tied the Georgia Bulldogs streak which Charlie Trippi and company set last year in the Southeastern Conference.

Score 171 Points

So far this season the Benningites have run up a perfect record of 17 points while their goal line is still untouched by grid opponents. The Quantico eleven has an impressive record so far this year and have been playing against some stiff competition. Last week they polished off the Camp Lee Generals by an overwhelming score of 57 to 0 which proves that the Doughboys will be in for a tough afternoon come Saturday.

Camp Lee was the team that brought George Tallifero to Doughboy stadium last year.

The Doughboys will be at near top strength against the Marines. Bob Seybold will be back in the line-up at his guard position where he played so ably before he injured his knee in the first Fort Jackson encounter. It is doubtful whether he will get the starting nod, but you can be sure he will be in there tearing opposing backs apart.

Cutri Injured

Captain Butch Kendrick has not stated whether Cosimo Cutri, flashy right halfback, will be able to take the trip to Virginia in the event of injuries last week in the Fort Jackson game. Cutri fell on his shoulder and sprained it pretty badly, but luckily no bones were broken.

The same backfield will probably get starting assignments. Bob Siebert will be in at the fullback slot, where he is ably assisted by Ed Roberts. Roberts was unable to take part in the tilt last week, but should be back in action against Quantico. At left halfback will be Don Perrody, who has been the outstanding passer this year for the Doughs and who also shows many a would-be tackler his heels as he races goalward. Perrody has two or three able understudies who are ready for action at a moment's notice. The boys who have been pushing Perry long all season for a regular berth are Wilbur Ross, Don Sult, and Paul Bonani, who was the regular short stop on the Doughboys Third Army championship baseball team.

Just in case Cosimo Cutri isn't ready for the opening gun his right halfback spot is by no means vacant. Ben Owen will more than likely get the nod in his place after the beautiful performance he showed last week in running a punt back 70 yards for a touchdown. Harry Sloan also will see plenty of action as he has shown definite improvement since the season got under way.

Ready Replacements

Rounding out the Doughboy backfield will be big Jim Mitchell who started the season as a reserve fullback and has since pushed his way 195 pounds right into a starting position. Mitchell has done a bang up job of a signal calling post. Bill Thurman, a big boy from down in Florida, has been placed in as a reserve. Mitchell is pulled out of the line, he will have a capable replacement in Bob Scallion, who has done a bang up job of a signal calling post. Bill Thurman, a big boy from down in Florida, has been placed in as a reserve.

The gigantic Doughboy forward line will be raring to go come game time, and these boys who have held five teams scoresless this season are in the best physical shape. The Doughs are at least three deep in every line position and this fact has kept the regulars hustling to retain their starting rolls.

Starting at left end will be the ever improving Harold Lutz who is another boy that started the season as a reserve. Doug Scoville will also make a place Lutz, when Butch Kendrick gets the word, and get in there to snag some long aerials which he is capable of doing. At the other flank Bill Draper is ready to go after making a fine showing last week against the Red Devils.

Fort Jackson Draper bruised his knees in this melee but is in top shape. Lanky John Walker and Hal Barber will also make the trip to Quantico.

Show Up Well

At the tackle slots Carl Meir and Dick Cronin will tip the scales at 210, will be starting as they have in previous grid games. These gigantic stalwarts showed up exceptionally well in the Jackson encounter and will be backed up by veterans Frank Tatum and Lyle McCauley, who have been tested and found able reserves.

In the middle of the rough Benning line are at least four or five men capable of seeing a considerable amount of action in the forward wall. Likely starters are a pair of 190 pounders, Bill Lyman and Robert Ward, in which the latter has been a standout all season long. Bill Austin and Bob Herrick will also be called on for relief rolls as they have shown plenty of pep and vigor in all of the five tilts already played. John Lutz, Bob Cotley, and Frank Baglioni make the guard slot four deep.

At the pivot point there are no less than four candidates fighting it out for top berths. Bill Turnella has been Line Coach Pete Deane's choice for getting the nod, but Jim Tatum has been making noise for opposing halfbacks. Don Lyon and Bill Curran round out the line which has paved the way for Doughboy backs and their goalward drives.

When the Doughboys return home after the Quantico battle they will play the four remaining games here at Doughboy stadium. Next Sunday they will tangle with Fort Sam Houston followed by scraps with the Cherry Point Marines and Fort Riley. They will complete their season when they run up against the powerful Jacksonville Naval Air Base.

After an exchange of punts at the opening of the game, the Doughs started a drive on the Benning side, pass from Don Perrody to left end Harold Lutz good for 17 yards, and several plunges. The drive ended with Fort Jackson 14-yard marker, but the Jacksonville line stiffened and took the ball over. The Devils weren't able to penetrate the tight Doughboy defenses, and when they attempted to kick out of danger, a bad center got lost in the end-zone and tackles Carl Meir and Dick Cronin nailed the halfback Ron Sharkey who stepped on the leather behind the goal line.

Doughs Score On Safety

With the Doughboys out in front by a 2-0 result on account of safety the Red Devils started marching when Cutri fumbled the ball on his own 40. Halfback Perrody was the only one who picked up the ball on the Benning eight-yard stripe. Four incomplete aerials gave the Doughs the ball on downs. This was the closest the Devils ever got to the goal line.

The Doughboys were held to a standstill the remainder of the contest as the Benning defense played a brilliant game at guard and punts from the Devils line and flung his frame in front of the ball to pounce on the ball on the next play behind the line. This put 10th graders in the lead 17 to 0.

Score Again

Fort Jackson made the free punt from its own 20, and the ball bounced off the playing field at the mid-field stripe. Perrody started the goalward rush again with an eight-yard punt around right end, followed by a first down plunge on the Jackson 39 by fullback Bob Siebert. Two end sweeps by Perrody and Cutri, good for five yards apiece, placed the ball on the Benning 15. The next play that Cutri was injured after he had moved the ball down to the 11-yard stripe, pass to quarterback Jack Mitchell, which fell short of its receiver, and a run by Perrody which failed to make any advantage, made it last down. Siebert plowed his way across for the six-point after he had taken a reverse from Mitchell. Lutz attempted placement for the extra point, missed, and the Doughboys led 23 to 0 as the tilt went into the final cant.

Benningites Score 17th Straight Win

Fort Benning's Doughboys got off to a slow start against the Fort Jackson Red Devils Sunday but regained their feet and won their 17th straight win, 23 to 0 at Quantico stadium two weeks ago in South Carolina.

In the second meeting of the two teams this season, in which the Doughs won their first 110 to 0 at Doughboy stadium two weeks ago, the Devils looked like a fierce squad as they checked the powerful Army backs to short gains at many points.

Just before the initial half received on his own 30-yard line and raced behind beautiful interference for 70 yards and the first score of the afternoon. The gallop, which was the longest run of the day, put a spurt in Doughboy offense, and from that point on the contest was a one-team show.

Devils Gamble

The Red Devils were shooting the works in this encounter and since they had nothing to lose, they gambled at every opportunity. They threw 22 forward passes, but the Doughboy secondary kept on their toes and held the Carolina line to only six completions, which were good for only 52 yards.

Cosimo Cutri, the little California comet who has sparked the Benningites in previous games this year, was forced to leave the field in the second half when he fell on his shoulder and sprained several ligaments probably causing him to miss the Quantico Marine game Saturday.

Troopers Coast To Easy 50-28 Win Over 328th

The Airborne battalion baselines continue the winning ways last week as they coasted to a 50-28 victory over the 328th Ordnance Company for their fourth straight triumph.

The troopers are now tied with the ACF for the top of the league, as their new members for the league lead.

Using reserves most of the way, the Airborne squad picked up a 21-8 lead in the third quarter and had little trouble staying ahead. "Long Bob" Henderson tallied 12 points top the high scorers, followed by Kinard and Powers with nine and six points respectively.

Nine ISD Baseballs Presented Sweaters

Nine members of the Infantry School detachment were awarded sweaters last Saturday during informal ceremonies in the unit area by Lt. Col. O. Wilson, detachment commander, for achievement in intramural baseball.

Sweaters were presented to Frank Kruger, Blondy Burnett, Chief Stiver, Herb Lanvin, Al Smith, Bob Johnson, Wiley Al, Woodie Burt, and Ike Sileo. John Seymour, Bill Taylor, Letty Lehner, and George Hill also received sweaters, but were unable to be present for the ceremonies.

Bullets Stage Comeback, Tie Paratroopers

By CHARLIE MATHEW
If some of you Fort Benning fans are wondering why the Doughboys didn't make a better showing last week up at Fort Jackson, don't let it get you down. You probably think that since they had played the same team once before, they should have given them a worse licking than the 50 to 0 margin run up in the first game.

This corner has one thing to state on that subject. When a team walks over four straight opponents as the Doughs did in their opening games, they are bound to run around somewhere along the line. The Doughboys were fortunate they weren't upset like so many college teams have been in the past. Remember back before the war when the Texas Longhorns were supposed to be in a class by themselves and a little Baylor squad came along and bowled them off their feet?

In many cases this helps a team considerably and in the Doughs' case it did. This Saturday they ran up against a powerful eleven at Quantico, Virginia, and that little scare was just what the doctor ordered to put them back on their toes.

During the war and the years following, I had the opportunity to see a great many service football games, and although they lack the former professional and college status, the game always lacked that spirit that makes a gridiron clash a thrill. But it's different after seeing the Doughboys in all of their contests so far. It's like to go so far as to say that they have more pep and team spirit than any ball club in the service. You can tell that by the way every man on the squad hustles about the field like a colt—led or high school play when the Doughs' back is brought down to earth, he always stretches for that extra yard and when they tackle or block they always put that extra oomph into it.

It is a little early in the year to bring up the subject of basketball, but I thought I'd pass the word along to you hoopsters who are interested in the game. The Doughs had an outstanding record of 37 wins in 39 starts and went on to win the Southeastern AAU tournament. Of that squad which represented Fort Benning, not one side started in back to fill his uniform. This means it will be you fellows, carrying the banner for individual units, who will be taking their places. Those are pretty hard shoes for any one to wear, but if anyone who can put the pill in the hoop will be his utmost, I am sure Fort Benning will get the blue ribbons again as they have in the past.

Getting back to the topic just about everyone discusses—football—the Doughs had to cope with one of the best aerial armies last week up at Fort Jackson which will encounter the balance of the season. The boy mentioned is Ronald Sharkey, who has one of the most dangerous throwing arms yet witnessed by Fort Jackson football fans. Sharkey kept the Doughboy secondary constantly on its toes, and if they hadn't been, he might have proved a hot potato to handle. In Sunday's game he tossed a total of 22 forward passes, and though he only completed 6, it was through the fault of his receivers and the tight Dough pass defense that he didn't connect with more.

In a game last week played by the 8th Air Force Bombers and the Randolph Field Flyers, Doc Blanchard and Arnold Tucker proved they could do without fleet Glenn Davis and his end sprouts. Tucker threw numerous passes to "Mr. Inside" for long gains, two for touchdowns. Big Jim Enoe who played on the same team with Blanchard and Tucker last year at West Point was outstanding in the line as the Flyers went on to victory over the Bombers. So far this season the Randolph Field Flyers are undefeated and are gunning to capture the service championship the Doughboys won last year.

Word has come from Fort Riley that the Kansas grid aggregation boasts at least five or six stars and the West Point eleven that ran wild over collegiate opponents last year. If not now, I am sure whether All-American Glenn Davis will take part in the tussle between the Big Jim Enoe who played at Doughboy stadium November 23, but you can be sure that even without the aid of made gridiron history at Army the last three years it will prove to be quite a striggle.

While the Fort Riley battle is still three weeks off, Coach Butch Kendrick is setting his sights for Saturday's engagement with the strong Quantico eleven from Virginia, and this game will probably be the first real test the Doughboys have had this year. Scouts who were sent to spot the Leatherneck squad have brought back the information that the Marines have a steady running attack, and the Doughs will have to be on their toes to keep them from making long gains. Line coach Joe Shepherd will be drilling his big line in some hard tackling in an effort to stave off any goaldrivers through by the Virginia backs.

The Doughs by no means will be playing a defensive game which is the record clearly shows. They have been slugging both on ground plays and passes just in case one or the other fails to click. In last week's game with Fort Jackson the Benningites didn't take to the air often but when they did every completed aerial was for substantial yardage. They only attempted 10 tosses but four of them were good enough for 72 yards.

All in all the Doughboys should be ready to go come game time Saturday and when the opening whistle blows they will be in there putting all they got into the fracas.

Trailing by 13 points going into the fading minutes of the fourth period the 25th Infantry Bullets struck with the quickness of lightning and mustered two quick touchdowns and one point thereafter to earn a 13-13 tie with the Winged Panthers of the 56th Parachute Infantry at Doughboy stadium Saturday.

The Bullets utilized only six minutes in accomplishing this comeback feat. In those six minutes they displayed one of the most brilliant and superb exhibitions of football one would ever want to see. The acting and passing of the talented George Wardell, the pass catching of elongated Travis Moore, the sleeping of ice-hipped Phil Tindrell sparked "the Bullets' drive."

Hard running Frederick Bell, who ran like a deer all afternoon, gave the 55th Troopers a head start in the second quarter when he sprinted 15 yards through the Bullets' entire line to score. The fearless third period was highlighted by the sensational running of Moore, Ashby, and Squali. The 20 yards, respectively. The air-20 yards Troopers spread their power wings and took to the air at the very beginning of the fourth period. Trooper Moore, who passed and ran with the best of backs flipped to Ingram, who slipped into on the Bullets' 14-yard line and scampered over for the visitors' second tally. The try for point failed and the Panthers rejoiced.

The Bullets never gave up, but accepted the 13-0 deficit as a challenge and fought back mightier than ever. George Wardell cranked up his chinkin' arm and started pitching. Two successful completions to Tindrell and Green moved the oval to the Troopers' 35-yard mark. A lateral from Burke to Tindrell carried to the 27, where the drive bogged down and the ball went over to the 55th. The Troopers kicked an diminutive Hurdie Langston scooped up the ball on his own 40 and raced 27 yards to the Panthers' 13.

Plunges by Bradford, Tindrell, and Langston advanced to the 12-yard stripe. Two attempted passes failed, but on the next play fleet-footed Phil Tindrell shook himself loose. The fast running toward race to the right, cut back over

Lawson Sergeant Claims 17 Years Golf Experience

It has often been said that one has to acquire a desire to play golf, otherwise it's just a matter of going through the motions. That's an erroneous statement as far as Sgt. Eugene Yow, of Lawson field, is concerned. He states that he has liked golf as far back as he can remember, and began his golf career as a child at the age of eight, gradually taking part in the sport while performing his duties on the course.

While working on the golf course, he was fortunate enough to cadoodle for some famous golfers who would always take an interest in his sports ambitions by giving him tips that would enable him to improve his skill in the game.

Sergeant Yow has participated in a number of tournaments over the U. S., always making a good showing for himself and usually shooting in the low seventies.

In 1940 he was awarded the championship for the state of Tennessee, shooting well under par. During the following year he was runner-up for the state championship, shooting one under par. He is also holder of quite a few medals for low scores in other tournaments.

During the Second Army golf right tackle, was stopped momentarily by a whole host of Trooper tacklers, then continued on across the field.

The try for extra point failed. On the first play after the kickoff Atlas Jones leaped high into the air and brought down an enemy pass on the Troopers' 33-yard line. At this point bedlam broke loose. Moments were tense and minutes were few. Langston pitched and Green caught and lit out for pay dirt, only to be hauled down on the 20-yard line. Here again the drive bogged down, but Eddie Williams enhanced the Bullets' chances, seconds later when he slung Moore for an eight-yard setback.

A freak kick by Moore didn't help the Troopers' cause one bit. The ball deflected off the left side of his foot and went sailing backwards over the rear on the 25-yard line. Jimmie Green, of the Bullets, used his lanky frame to give it complete coverage. The Wardell-Green pass combine clicked again for the point after touchdown and the game was deadlocked at 13-13. In desperation to pull out front again, the Troopers took to the air-ways, but fortunately bore no fruit.

tournament held at Maxwell field, Alabama, recently, representing Lawson field. The fact that Lawson's field Command's team, Yow shot two under par for 36 holes, challenging up the lowest score for anyone on the team. The team itself came out in third place.

You hail from Memphis, Tenn., where his name is always associated with golf. Even though in service, he has managed to pursue his sports profession during his off-duty time. Having reached the age of 23 and having spent 11 years playing golf, Yow feels that he learns something new and interesting about golf every time he plays.

Shenk Named To Head Headquarters Company

Capt. Frank L. Shenk has been appointed commander of Headquarters Company, First battalion, 37th Infantry regiment, succeeding Capt. Robert M. Miller, who has been assigned to the S-1 office of the First battalion. It was disclosed today.

Capt. Shenk, veteran of six years in the Army, graduated from Officer Candidate School at Camp Hood, Tex., in March, 1933, and was assigned to a tank destroyer unit.

He served in the Central Postal Directory from October, 1934, until last August.

37th Infantry Officer Gets Japan Assignment

Capt. Gines A. Gabarron, supply officer of the 37th Infantry regiment, has been alerted for overseas shipment to Yowahama, Japan, where he will be assigned today. Captain Gabarron entered the Army in August 1940 and served in the Normandy, northern France, and Rhineland campaigns as a rifle company commander. He wears the Bronze Star medal and the Purple Heart with two clusters.

For his outstanding play against the Fort Jackson Red Devils Sunday, both on offense and defense, Robert Ward, left guard on the Doughboy grid eleven has been chosen, player-of-the-week.

Ward was in the Red Devils' backfield so frequently that he was considered the fifth man in their backfield. His spectacular type of play has made Fort Benning football fans forget All-American Johnny Green, who was the stalwart in the Doughboys' forward wall on last year's All-Service championship squad.

Hailing from Elizabeth, N. J., where he was awarded All-State honors, Ward is living up to all advance publicity heaped on his shoulders before the season got under way. At the age of 20, he carries 190 compact pounds in his five-foot, 11-inch frame.

In Sunday's game with Fort Jackson he repeatedly smashed his way through the huge Red Devil forward wall and tossed the Carolina backs for enormous losses.

Midway in the third period with the Devils' backed up against their goal post, Ward charged through the Jackson would-be blockers and smothered an attempted punt by Ronald Sharkey who fell on the ball in the end zone to give the Doughboys an automatic safety.

Ward was voted by his teammates to captain the Doughboys in their second battle of the season against the Farris Island Marines in which, with his help, they subdued the Leathernecks 20 to 0.

Several scouts from leading colleges in the nation have highly praised Ward for his outstanding ability to crash through opposing linemen both on offense and defense. His mental ability to spot where the next play is going is another asset of which he is exceptionally clever.

Four Contests Held Last Week in League No. 2

Four contests took place in the potent basketball league No. 2 last week and most of the contests were featured by high scoring on a fast break system.

The 204th Truck company outlasted a stubborn 304th Motor squadron, and when the final whistle blew the Truckers were on top by a margin of 38-14.

Jim Willis, who was the outstanding man on the Main Post floor Monday night, tallied 12 points to lead both teams in the tilt. Gene Chandler played a bang-up floor game for the victors and through his efforts the Truckers held the medics to only five field goals.

Sawson field's Squadron F couldn't keep pace with the sharp STR quintet and went down to a crushing defeat by the score of 38-18.

Tommy Taylor was high point man for the Student Training regiment as he garnered 14 markers on the Main Post hardwood.

The 555th Parachute battalion showed amazing power when they crushed the Squadron F basketballers two nights later to win their third straight contest by the overwhelming margin of 43-10.

At half-time the Toppers were out in front 22-6 and held the flyers to only two baskets in the final canto.

Larry Griffith, who was really hot in the scrap, fired eight field goals through the hoop to lead the scorers with 16 markers.

In their second encounter of the week the 204th Truckers couldn't find the basket, and as a result were edged by the STR quintet in a close battle 36-25.

STR had only a one-point margin going into the second frame, but Tommy Taylor, who paced his team in their battle with Squadron F, got his sights fixed and ran up 12 tallies to pace all shooters.

Artillerymen Split Bowling Matches

The 83rd Field Artillery battalion's officer bowlers split even in their first two league matches in the Post Officers' league.

In their first league match they defeated the General section, 2167-1808, in a three-game match. Lt. Dayton L. Warren of the artillerymen with 186 was high point man with an aggregate of 186.

Anyway it's Johnny Luqack and his talented throwing arm to subdue the Middles.
Pittsburgh had plenty to celebrate by upsetting Ohio State, but they shouldn't prove a match for a powerful Minnesota eleven that held Michigan to two touchdowns last week. Indiana got a surprise spanking by Purdue Saturday, but George Tallafiero and company will walk away with their conference battle with Ohio State. In other Big Nine tussles Northwestern over Wisconsin, Purdue over Iowa.
Skipping over to the Southwest there is one of the biggest gridiron melees of the 1947 football season for the undefeated and unified Texas mates have been one of the classiest clubs in the country this year, but since no upsets have been picked so far, take SMU over the Longhorns in a rough and tumble mixup. Texas A & M showed plenty of power last week, so the nod goes to them over Clyde Scott and his Arkansas Razorbacks. Baylor has a knack of popping up and whipping some highly touted teams, but they won't be able to find enough steam to corral Texas Christian. In the view of their fine record—TCU by a nose.

Finally reaching the blue waters of the Pacific, where predicting the outcome of a football game is as hard as predicting good weather for Georgia, the top encounter of the day takes place at Berkeley.

SCRIBE SELECTS GRID WINNERS

"It can't be true." This is what you probably said when you opened your Sunday paper to the sports page.

At Baker field Saturday afternoon Columbus Lions shattered the Cadets' hopes of going through their fourth season without defeat as the Lou Little's boys came back in the last half to edge the powerful Army eleven 21 to 20.

Other games in the East pretty well went as expected with the Quakers from Pennsylvania obtaining their rampage at the expense of the Middies of Annapolis. Penn State stayed in the running for grid honors by winning over West Virginia. One of the biggest upsets in modern gridiron history took place in Pittsburgh when the Panthers, who have been trampled all season by major teams in the country, took the measure over the Ohio States Buckeyes.

Getting to the encounters that take place this week on the grid-iron turfs all over the land, here is an attempt to keep pace with the boys who are supposed to have this football situation all doped out.

In the big inter-conference battle of the South two undefeated teams, Georgia Tech and Duke, will fight it out for possible New Year's Day invitations in what promises to be one of the top ball games of the year. It will more than likely be a running game with Duke's George Clark and the Yellow Jacket's, George Mathews, fighting it out for top honors. After Duke's bruising tussle with Wake Forest, Tech must be given the nod in a real thriller. Georgia should regain its feet this Saturday in a contest against Clemson, and Johnny Fauch and his Bulldogs will get back in the win column. Florida's rested up enough to eke out a win over Dartmouth, but only after a hard fought contest. Penn State had a close call in their tilt with West Virginia Saturday and will be on the rebound against Colgate. The University of Pennsylvania should have an easy afternoon with Princeton and get the nod in a battle at Franklin field, Philadelphia. Elsewhere in the East it's Holy Cross over Brown, Rutgers over Harvard, and Boston U. over Fordham.

Out in the Midwest, where they really play a tough brand of football, the number one team in the nation, Michigan, risks its clean slate against an always dangerous Illinois eleven, and after what the mighty Wolverines have done to all their opponents this season, Bob Chapuis and his Michigan machine will roll over the Illini. In Cleveland's Municipal stadium Saturday the Fighting Irish from Notre Dame should have little trouble in running over the luckless Annapolis midshipmen, but Navy has a surprising ball club, and it might turn into a real scrap.

Coach Carl Snavely's North Carolina Tarheels look well on the road back to recovery as a result of their win over Florida and will hand the oft-beaten Tennessee Volunteers a rude going over. Kentucky's Wildcats have been the surprise team of the Southeastern Conference, but after having three grueling battles on successive week-ends, Alabama and Harry Gimer will take this one after a stiff fight. In the other engagements of the day it's LSU over Ole Miss, Tulane over Mississippi State, Vanderbilt over Auburn, and Wake Forest over William and Mary.

Up in the East Army should hit the comeback trail by skunking little Washington and Lee. Bobby Jack Stuart and the powerful Cadet line will prove too much for the boys from Virginia. Lou Little's aggregation, with a victory over Army under their belt, will be too strong for the Big Red of Cornell and will take this one. Auburn, and Wake Forest, Yale, and two or three touchdowns. Yale, with a breather last week, should

501st Gets Back In Win Column; Defeat Tankers

It was a different story last Thursday night at the 'A' Stage gym as the 501st basketeers, who dropped their first three starts, bounced into the win column with a 51 to 14 triumph over the 756th Tankers.

The Airborne crew employed an air tight zone defense with Glawe and Hokkenbeck controlling the backboard and setting up the fast break. Myers accounted for 23 points and Cook netted 13 to pace the victors.

The 501st five clashes October 30 with the Airborne battalion, last year's Post champions.

Flyers Win
Also chalking up their initial win of the season were the Lawson field Flyers, who won out over the 756th Tankers in a wide open contest in the 'A' Stage gym.

Tuesday night. It was still anybody's ball game as the play reached the third stanza with the Flyers holding a two point margin, 19 to 17, but in the final canto the boys from Lawson got hot and walked away with a 45 to 38 decision.

Lew Button who couldn't hit the old hoop in the first half came back after intermission and racked up 14 markers to lead the scorers for the winners, Bob Duckin who was on the losing five was high point man for his squad with 15 points.

The Troopers from the Airborne battalion, who have yet to be beat, continued their bid for the Post title by walloping the twice beaten 323rd Ordnance 50 to 28. Getting off to a rousing start at the outset of the fracas the Troopers used exactly three teams as they made it four out of four this season.

Defeat Engineers
AGF board No. 3 continued their rampage as they knocked the potent 78th Engineers out of the ranks of the unbeaten by a 33 to 23 margin. The contest, which took place in the Airborne gym last Thursday night, was never in doubt as the AGF quintet got off to a flying start and held the reigns the entire game.

Steve Juszick paced the victors as he chalked up 15 buckets to keep his squad in a first place tie with the 37th Infantry and the Airborne battalion.

Two nights before the AGF team won out over the 501st basketeers in a defensive struggle 26 to 14 on the Main Post hardwood. Jack Frost, lanky center, on the winning club, garnered over half of his team points as he led the titts scorers with 14 buckets.

ISD Trounces 756th
The ISD quintet served notice that they were still in the running for blue ribbon honors as they soundly trounced the Truckers from the 294th, 41 to 21, in a little on the Main Post floor Thursday night.

Ken Knowles ace forward on the ISD five looped in 14 markers as he led both teams in the scoring department. He was ably assisted by Lloyd Watson who followed up with 10.

Captain James Walker and his quintet were handed a setback in their first engagement of the season by the Airborne netters but since then they have vastly improved and are still gunning for the crown.

With the completion of the Post League coming up November 25 the Post team should have plenty of fine material to fill the shoes of last year's Southeastern AAU champs. The Doughboy squad will be picked entirely from these clubs representing their individual units.

Boyle Appointed Unit Commander

1st Lt. Peter J. Boyle has been named commanding officer of the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, Battery B, replacing Capt. Edward Barr. Lt. Boyle has left the post for an assignment in Albuquerque, N. M., artillery officials announced today.

Lt. Boyle, who has been executive officer of Battery B for the past five months, has been a member of the 83rd since November 1946.

During the war he served with the 37th Infantry division in the Pacific and the 34th Infantry division in Europe. He wears the Asiatic-Pacific theater ribbon with one battle star for action at Midway and the ETO ribbon with five battle stars for campaigns in Italy and Africa.

Trooper Taking Radio Repair Course At TIS

Typical of the former combat men now attending school here, Pvt. Martin L. Tucker, 505th Parachute Infantry regiment and presently assigned to the Student Training regiment's 10th company, was a member of the 80th division's recon element which broke through near Bastogne to rescue the 104th Airborne division during the Battle of the Bulge.

Pvt. Tucker, who became an airborne soldier after seeing what he termed the "courage, stamina, and determination of the 101st," now has 27 jumps to his credit. He is enrolled in the radio repairman's course here and will return to the 505th upon graduation.

999th Men Get NCO Warrants

A total of 46 non-commissioned officers of the 999th Field Artillery were presented warrants at a colorful review in honor of their battalion commander, Lt. Col. James E. Parratt, Monday afternoon on the battalion's airstrip. Col. Parratt has been alerted for reassignment to another post. Music for the occasion was furnished by the 25th Infantry band under the direction of T-Sgt. Antonio P. Martins. Sgt. David A. Johnson was drum major.

Following the passing in review ceremony, the NCO's were awarded the permanent warrants. Those receiving certificates were: T-3 Joseph Johnson, T-4 Wavelan Sims, T-3 Sgt. Edgar G. Henderson, T-4 Alpheus Holmes, T-4 Theodore Thompson, T-3 Andrew C. Fleming, Cpl. Alfred Johnson, Cpl. Levy Vanderhoef, T-4 Everett D. Laws, T-4 James P. Banks, T-5 Howard C. Wyatt, Cpl. The Bayonet, Columbus, Ga., October 30, 1947

ALERTED FOR OVERSEAS

Lt. John M. Tracy, Student Training regiment's Eighth company, who is presently working with the staff of Operation Combina, has received orders for overseas shipment, officials revealed today. He is expected to report to Camp Stoneman, Calif., early in 1948.

T-4 L. C. Dunning, T-3 Robert L. Stevens, T-3 Eugene Robinson, T-5 Harold Tubbs, T-5 Zack Williams, Cpl. Austin Dorne, T-4 Russell Bennerman, S-Sgt. Henry D. Laws, T-4 James P. Banks, T-5 Willard R. Cherry, T-5 Edwyn N. Riley, and Cpl. Conrad J. Collins.

186 Students Begin Airborne Training

A total of 178 enlisted men and eight officers began training Oct. 20 as members of the Airborne battalion's Company B.

Reportedly the largest class to train with the organization since last June, the troopers are slated to graduate Dec. 4.

Among the students are a Mexican Army captain, four non-commissioned officers from the Philippine Army, two reserve officers from the Reserve Training detachment of Fifth Army headquarters, and 48 enlisted men from the 82nd Airborne division.

Final Plans Made For Pet Parade

The stage is set for the pet show to be held at 2 p. m. at Horshoew bowl, Sunday afternoon, November 2.

Jointly sponsored by the Officers' club, Block 12 NCO and Main Post NCO clubs, the show will feature all types of pets and animals. A number of animals brought back from overseas will also be entered in the competition.

The show is divided into four events. In the first, pets other than dogs, cats, and horses, will be entered. Cats will headline the second phase, while dogs are featured in the third event. The best animal in the show will be judged in the fourth event, and following the animal competition, a jumping exhibition by privately owned horses will be staged.

A silver bowl will be awarded the best animal in the show, while ribbons will be awarded for the first five places in each event.

The committee selected for the affair includes Capt. W. E. Teague, Capt. R. E. Gray, Lt. O. C. Granzin, Lt. F. J. Stogbaker, Lt. J.

'Candidate' Chosen Mascot For Final Benning O-C Class

It is always "the kind to animals week" in the Army. Down through the years, any animal found wandering around an Army post immediately has become a candidate for mascot.

Thus practically every organization has a mascot, and so too, the Army Officer Candidate class No. 12 has as its standard bearer a lively pooch, affectionately called "Candidate".

"Candidate's" entry into the ranks was unceremonious except for the usual "GI bath" and de-leasing. He strayed into the area one day, liked the atmosphere, and gradually worked himself up to official mascot.

As "Candidate" passes "Candidate" is fast learning the duties of mascot. He has memorized the company schedule and marches to chow and to class with the rest of the company in his honored position, one- and one-half paces to the rear and one pace to the left of the student company commander. He attends most classes, walks out when bored, but as yet hasn't taken any graded tests.

R. Siska, and Lt. C. H. Dalton, II. Judges named are Doyle S. Estes, R. E. Butler, Leon Shiver, C. E. Sengoy, A. Less, P. A. Tatum, and Major and Mrs. B. F. Goodsell.

Appearing in the jumping exhibition are some of the best known horses in this area, including Sir Milton, Light Tail, Elmer, Double Time, Reno Hastings, Reno, Jason Tim and Blue Point.

Music for the show, which is open to the public, will be provided by the 72nd Army band.

Camera Group Holds Meeting

Plans for the coming year were discussed in the first meeting of the season held Thursday, Oct. 23, by the Fort Benning Officers' Camera club.

In laying the ground work for the coming months the club was divided into three groups: (1) Elementary group, emphasizing the basic principles of photography; (2) Still group, improvement of photo technique; and (3) movie group, which concentrates on cinematic technique.

The first Thursday of each month was set aside as the meeting date for the main body, while the other three Thursdays were set aside for the other three groups. The first meeting of the main group is set for Nov. 6.

It was decided to continue with the present slate of officers until the next election which is scheduled after Christmas. The officers include Lt. Col. Aime Strook, president; Lt. Col. James Jones, vice president; Major William Wise, secretary and Lt. Col. Robert Skaggs, treasurer.

Gets Lawson Duty

Capt. Walter L. Records, a September graduate of the Air Forces Meteorology school at the University of New York, has been assigned assistant weather officer at Lawson Field.

A native of Oklahoma City, he served as a pilot during the war.

L. L. Woolbright Celebrates 25th Year At Benning

Serving with the government for the past 25 years, Lawrence Woolbright, Quartermaster chief clerk, passed another milestone in his long, assiduous service on October 22, marking the completion of 25 years at Fort Benning.

It was a dual celebration October 22 for it was on that day, his birthday, in 1922, that he arrived at Fort Benning to assume his duties in the Quartermaster office as principal clerk in the property branch. He was transferred here from the Atlanta General depot.

Mr. Woolbright's long service with the government dates back to August 8, 1917, when he entered the army, where he served at Camp Wheeler, Edgewood Arsenal, and Boston depot. He was discharged November 6, 1919.

Shortly after leaving the armed forces, Mr. Woolbright went to work in December 1919 at the Atlanta General depot where he was put in charge of the distribution division. He has been with the Quartermaster ever since. He has received the civilian award for 25 years of service and also holds the award for meritorious service.

Born in Dawson, Ga., Mr. Woolbright is a graduate of Emory university. The father of four children, the youngest of whom are 12-year-old twins, the Quartermaster veteran now makes Columbus his home.

Infantry Units Issued New Type Army Glove

A new type, dual purpose glove was issued last week to units of the 37th Infantry regiment, supply officials have revealed.

The glove comes in either black or brown horsehide in small, medium, or large sizes. It may be worn with the old style wool knit glove as a liner or used separately for dress, officials said.

THE BULLETIN

Alvertson Chosen Final Honor Grad

The curtain rang down on one of the most colorful chapters in the history of Fort Benning last Saturday morning as the final Army Officer Candidate class, composed of 52 students, was graduated in ceremonies at theater No. 8.

Honor graduate James J. Alvertson, of Sioux Falls, S. D., became the last man to receive his commission as Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, presented him with second lieutenant's bars in the final presentation of commissions through the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Col. Irvin B. Scudder, Student Training regiment commander, opened the ceremonies by introducing Gen. O'Daniel who delivered an inspiring address, stressing traditions, responsibility, discipline and morale, and the upholding of these standards and principles of a commissioned officer in the future.

Following the general's address Lt. Col. Warren C. Chapman, commanding officer of the Second battalion of the Student Training regiment, certified the class. Capt. Jack Henson, commanding officer of the first class, then administered the oath of office to the graduates.

After being introduced by their respective battalion commanders, the students were awarded their certificates. In the final presentation, Gen. O'Daniel pinned the gold bars on honor graduate Alvertson, who thus became the last man to be commissioned from the officer school.

Brazilian Colonel To Arrive Monday

Lt. Col. Mirabeau Pontes, chief of the Joint General staff of the Brazilian army, is scheduled to arrive here Monday, November 10, for a week's inspection tour during which time he will confer with engineer officials.

The Brazilian will come to Fort Benning from Fort Knox, Ky., and will proceed from here to Fort Jackson, S. C. Making a 60-day tour of military installations, Col. Pontes is conducting a study of housing, storage, recreational and medical installations, maintenance, airfields, utilities, schools and training ranges.

Other stops on his itinerary to include Fort Belvoir, Ill.; Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; Washington, D. C., and New York City.

10 Benning Units To Parade Nov. 11

Armistice Day Declared Holiday At Fort Benning

Armistice Day, November 11, has been declared a holiday for all civilian and military personnel on the post, Fort Benning officials announced today.

Appropriate ceremonies and religious services have been scheduled in observance of the holiday.

The flag will be at half mast from reveille until noon "in memory of those who gave their lives in the service of their country during times of war." The 2nd Infantry band will render appropriate selections immediately before noon, and at noon a 21-gun salute will be fired by a battery of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion. The flag will be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

Chaplain (Capt.) Russell O. Kirsch, School Troops chaplain, will officiate at the Episcopal Memorial Holy Communion service which will be celebrated at the Infantry Center chapel at 10 a. m. in memory of the fallen.

Gillem, O'Daniel Review Troops At Alabama Fete

Ten Fort Benning units will be represented by men and equipment in Birmingham, Alabama, next Sunday and Monday in a parade and one of the south's largest Armistice Day observances.

Reviewing officer for the parade and the principal speaker for the day at Birmingham will be General Omar T. Bradley, head of the Veteran's Administration.

Plans being developed for the Infantry Center's participation call for movement of the local troops and equipment to an assembly point at Fort McClellan, Alabama, Monday where they will remain overnight, moving on to the parade on Tuesday. The return movement will be made to Fort Benning Tuesday afternoon where the troops will spend the night of Nov. 11 returning to Fort Benning the following day.

A total of 56 vehicles and 550 men will make the trip. An advance detail of 18 vehicles is scheduled to leave Fort Benning Sunday, and the remainder of the Post Monday and will consist of 38 vehicles. Two M-4 tanks left by rail Wednesday for Birmingham.

In addition to the tanks there will be three armored cars, nine one-quarter ton trucks, two ambulances, one command car, one three-quarter ton truck, one section one-one and one-half ton truck, and 36 two and one-half ton trucks in the convoy.

Participating units are from the 75th Tank Battalion, 78th Engineer battalion, First battalion, 37th Infantry Service Company, 37th Infantry 83rd Field Artillery battalion, 501st Parachute battalion, Headquarters Company, 37th Infantry MP Detachment, Section I, 3440 ASU, and the 72nd Army Band.

Mothers will be four 105-mm howitzers in the parade, and an Annual Poppy Day Will Be Observed Here On Saturday

It will be "Poppy Day" Saturday, November 8, at Fort Benning.

The "poppy," a flower symbolic of the sacrifices of American soldiers in both world wars, will be sold here Saturday by the American Legion Auxiliary in observance of Armistice Day which falls on November 11.

The official flower of the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary is fashioned from paper and made by hospitalized veterans under the supervision of the ladies of the Auxiliary. Proceeds from the sale are used solely for rehabilitation and child welfare work and to augment the income of disabled veterans.

John S. B. Hill, president of the Fort Benning Woman's club, will be in charge of the sale at Fort Benning. Mrs. Cecile Tallis is general chairman, assisted by a number of Fort Benning ladies.

Engineer Staff Increased Here

The Post Engineers' staff was strengthened this week with the addition of Maj. James W. Burpitt and Capt. William Buys, who have assumed duties as assistant Post engineers.

Major Burpitt, who has just returned from Guam, entered active service in 1942 in Atlanta, after 10 years in the Coast Artillery reserve. He was assigned to Camp Shelby, Miss., where he was stationed until March, 1947, when he went overseas. He served in Japan and Guam until August of this year.

Major Burpitt's last overseas assignment was that of assistant post engineer at MARBO, Guam.

He arrived at Fort Benning November 1. Captain Buys, who hails from Washington, N. C., entered the Infantry Center in 1942. After attending OCS at Fort Belvoir, Va., he was assigned for duty in Canada. Upon his return from Canada, he was attached to the 1310th Engineer regiment at Camp Claiborne, La.

Serving in the ETO from January, 1944, until July, 1945, Captain Buys was transferred to Manila. Upon his return to the states he was discharged in January, 1946. He reentered the service at Fort Benning last Oct. 27.

Lt. Buzzett Takes Over As Executive Officer

1st Lt. Harry A. Buzzett, 1944 graduate of the United States Military Academy, has been appointed executive officer of the 83rd Field Artillery's battalion's Battery B.

Lt. Buzzett, who has been a member of the third signal company, served in Europe during the war, participating in the Northern France campaign. At the end of hostilities, he was on duty with the occupation forces, returning to the States last May.

Civilian Employee Gets Cash Award

Chris Guillary, civilian employee at the Post motor pool, was presented with a check for 50 dollars Tuesday morning by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry center commander, for a money-saving suggestion.

Maj. Guillary's suggestion, adopted by the motor pool, concerned the arrangement of the air hose that the air hose be hung overhead rather than be left on the floor, thus eliminating the possibility of a stubble over it.

Officials said the suggestion had resulted in eliminating a hazard for workers at the Post motor pool and in a saving of 500 dollars yearly. They also pointed out that the suggestion resulted in an increase in efficiency and better morale.

NEW COMMANDER

Capt. L. Rogers has been named commanding officer of the 83rd Field Artillery's Battalion B. Training regiment's Eight company, succeeding Capt. Paul F. Sullivan, who has been appointed executive officer of the Battalion B. It was announced today.

Chest Donations Show Increase

The drive for 100 per cent contributions to the Community Chest picked up more steam the past week as donations reached the 70 per cent mark in the Fort Benning drive which is now under way.

A number of past activities have already come through with 100 per cent contributions, and civilian personnel of Special Services office, Post Ordnance, and Armament shop, recently joined the growing list of 100 per cent contributors.

STR Leads

Among military activities, the Student Training regiment has reached 73 per cent in its drive for full donations, with more expected this week to put them over the top. Airborne battalion and Headquarters and Headquarters company have reached their quota with 100 per cent, followed by the First battalion with 100 per cent, Advanced Officers class, No. 1 and 2 with 51 per cent, Service company with 72 per cent, and the Second battalion 59 per cent.

Tickets for the Fort Riley and Jacksonville Nov. 8 football games, scheduled at Doughboy stadium Nov. 23 and 30, are now on sale at all organizations. It was announced by Col. Wesley U. Moran, chief representative of the drive. Proceeds from these two games will augment the Fort Benning Community Chest drive. General admission tickets will be sold for 25 cents to enlisted men and 50 cents for officers and civilians, while reserved tickets will be sold for 75 cents.

Wynn Attending Capitol Parley

Col. Norman N. Wynn, special service officer of the Infantry Center, is attending the conference of Army special service officers being held this week in Washington, D. C.

Recreational facilities for army personnel, including U.S.O. activities, service clubs, inter-company athletics, band groups, and other general operations of special services are being discussed at the conference which began Tuesday and concludes Friday. The extension of the All-Army golf tournament held here in August will be shown at the meeting as an example of the extensive recreational facilities and functions in the army. Any particular phases of the operations of these recreational installations will also be discussed. At the end of the 1948 A.A.A. Dismounted also be discussed. It is planned to make the conference an annual event, officials said.

Benning Chaplain Off For Germany

Making 104 ocean crossings in five years as Transport Chaplain during which time he touched every continent on the earth, Chaplain (Major) Emmett G. Jones, former assistant TIC chaplain, is more than qualified to speak on the life and habits of the American soldier.

The chaplain, who left last Friday for Bremerhaven, Germany, for a new assignment, will complete a "complete cycle" of the boys when they went overseas before and during the war and was still with them when it was all over.

Five Years At Sea

In the five years he served as Transport Chaplain, four in the Atlantic and one in the Pacific, he served aboard the Tanker H. Bliss, S. S. Monterey, H. M. T. Queen Elizabeth, S. S. Yukon, U. S. T. James Parker, and U. S. A. T. Gen. W. P. Richardson.

He served two and one-half years on the Queen Elizabeth, one of the largest ships in the world and considered the largest vessel used as a transport during the war. He was Transport Chaplain aboard the Mary when she put into New York harbor with the largest single load of the war, 15,280 GIs, including 3,000 hospital patients.

Chaplain Jones' experiences aboard these transports would be enough to fill volumes. Aboard the Elizabeth at one time he was in charge of 120 chaplains, who held as many as 15 services per day and between 20 and 25 services on Sunday. Then again he recalls the time he was the only chaplain with 10,000 men.

Met Celebrities

Prior to the outbreak of the war, Army chaplains supervised recreation as well as religious services aboard ship. This Chaplain Jones had an opportunity to come in personal contact with a host of famous theatrical, sports, radio, movie, and literary personalities, as well as high ranking military officials in a good many countries.

The chaplain entered the service in April, 1941, at Denver, Colorado, and was assigned to Camp Wallace, Texas. After serving there six months, he volunteered for overseas duty. In August, 1941, he was assigned to the Tanker H. Bliss as chaplain, which was the beginning of five years and over 100 ocean voyages on six different transports.

Came Here In 1946

His first trip took him to the Philippines just before the Pearl Harbor attack, and on his return trip to the States, the ship stopped at Honolulu to help up Army dependents shortly after the Japanese attack. He was in the first convoy that hit Australia, North Africa, Europe and New Zealand. He arrived here Dec. 9, 1945, and was named assistant Infantry Center chaplain.

An interesting comparison of church attendance among GIs before and during the war and on the trip back home, Chaplain Jones revealed, is that there was only a two per cent difference.

O'Daniel to Review
Lt. General Alvin C. Gillem, Jr., commander of the Third Army, and Major General John W. O'Daniel, commanding general of the Infantry Center, will be reviewing stand on the balcony of the Tutwiler hotel located on the corner of 20th street and 5th avenue. Many other high ranking officers from the Navy and reserve components are expected.

Commander of the Fort Benning troops will be Colonel Charles H. Royce, School Troops commander and his executive officer will be Lt. Col. Harry M. Grizzard. In charge of troop operations and social commander is Lt. Col. Jack M. Duncan.

In addition to the Army units from Fort Benning, the National Guard and Reserve organizations of Alabama will be in the line of march. Also represented will be marching units of the Navy and Naval Air Corps.

The gigantic two-mile parade will start from the Jefferson county court house at 21st street following a color ceremony at the court house at 9 o'clock.

Donations

for the games now in order to be assured of obtaining good seats. A sellout crowd is anticipated.

Quota has been set for the drive, but if all pledges are met in this one big drive, Fort Benning will have raised enough funds to contribute liberally to eight organizations and retain enough in "reserves" to fulfill any other commitments that may arise. Established by Maj. Gen. William W. Quinn, Infantry Center commander, the Fort Benning Community Chest drive, is the drive conducted to raise and distribute funds to charitable and character building organizations.

The two indicators, placed on the spot to donate the progress of the drive, are expected to zoom upward at the end of this week as representatives reveal determination of activities to reach 100 per cent contributions.

In the past military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning have always contributed liberally to the Community Chest and this year the Infantry Center hopes to retain its fine record with all signs pointing to full donations, officials said.

The organizations benefiting from the contributions are: Community Chest of America; National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; Emergency Relief Society; Fort Benning's Children's school; Boy Scouts of America; Girls' Club of America; Teen Age Club; and Fort Benning's Children's Party. candidate ranks at Fort Benning. The Officer Candidate School has been transferred to Fort Riley, Kansas.

Following the benediction by the Rev. J. M. Alverson, center, who also delivered the invocation, the newly commissioned officers will march with the Army band to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," climaxing their tough training with a march parade brought to a close the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Following their graduation to various branches, with the greatest number, 15, going to the Infantry. Other branch assignments included Corps of Engineers, 6; Field Artillery, 6; Signal Corps, 3; Chemical Corps, 1; Coast Artillery Corps, 3; Cavalry, 4; Transportation, 4; Finance, 4; GIC, 3 and MP, 2.

The graduating class, which opened last May 12 with 89 prospective second lieutenants, was brought to be organized since Fort Benning was established as a training center for all officer candidates regardless of branch.

When the need for Army officers began to increase with rapid mobilization, the Officer Candidate School was established here July 15, 1941, in a building previously the U. S. Army with additional second lieutenants. A total of 67,199 students have graduated out of an enrollment of 92,044 candidates.

School Units List Recent Promotions

A total of 15 recent promotions have been announced in the various units of School Troops.

Promotions listed in the 204th Transportation Troop include Pfc. 1. James Hill, Leroy Nickols, John E. George, Charles E. Clay, Earl McLeod, Chester J. Washington, Kenneth Thomas and Frank T. Davis, all promoted to the rank of T-5.

Advanced to the grade of T-4 were T-5s James W. Butts and Francis Benjamin. Pfc. Joel Jones and T-3 Robert Reed and Theodore Burnette were promoted to the rank of corporal.

Advanced to the rank of corporal in the First battalion of the 37th Infantry were Pfc. Kay M. Driskill and John R. Harris.

Sgt. Engel Discharged

Sgt. William H. Engel, 83rd Field Artillery battalion's Battery B, has been discharged from the Army after serving as chief of the 105 mm howitzer section for more than a year, it was learned today. During the war, he was with the 166th Infantry regiment in Europe. Sgt. Engel, whose home is in Madison, Wis., plans to enter college after Christmas.

Twenty Troopers Complete Airborne Pathfinder Course

Certificates of proficiency were presented last Friday to 20 members of Pathfinder class No. 1, six-month course which began here Sept. 9.

Ten students enrolled in the course are members of the 82nd Airborne division's 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment, while seven are assigned to the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion here. There were also three officers attending the course, including one from the British Army.

Among the subjects covered during the course were Morse code, aerial photograph reading, demolitions, surveying advance landing fields, and operation and maintenance of airborne radio sets and radar beacons.

The primary mission of pathfinders is to precede the main elements of troop carrier aircraft in an airborne invasion by 15 minutes or one hour. They jump on the drop zone and establish radio, radar, and visual aids communications to assist in making accurate delivery of parachute troops, air-landed troops, and supplies airdrop.

Pathfinders also aid in assembling troops after landing, set up advanced landing fields, and give aircraft instructions in landing the initial echelon.

Infantryman Receives Bronze Star Medal

The Bronze Star medal was recently awarded to S-Sgt. Edward H. Ellis, supply sergeant of the 37th Infantry regiment's Service Company for "action in the ground forces against an armed enemy on Feb. 8, 1945, in the Pacific area," it was announced today.

Sergeant Ellis, who enlisted in the Army in 1929, served overseas with the 108th Infantry regiment during the campaigns of Guadalcanal, New Britain, and Northern and Southern Philippines.

South American Officers Leave For Washington

A group of 14 observers from several branches of the Argentine army, headed by Major General Juan Sanguinetti, Inspector General of the Argentine army, left Fort Benning last Saturday for Washington, D. C., after a three-day tour of the Infantry Center.

During their visit here the Argentines viewed the latest developments in equipment and methods employed by the U. S. Army which they plan to apply to the Argentine army.

Last Friday the South Americans toured the Airborne section, automotive section, and the training aids exhibit.

The visitors began Thursday's itinerary by attending an infantry drill - post-graduate - and after visiting the coordinator of training and operations section, they will assist in making arrangements for students attending classes at the Infantry School.

The group saw "Operations Combine," the final phase of the 31-day air-ground maneuver, held Wednesday afternoon at Dekker strip on the Alabama side of Fort Benning.

Accompanying General Sanguinetti were Brig. Gen. Angel Solari, Brig. Gen. Moses Rodrigo, Brig. Gen. Enrique Quiroga, Col. Jose DeLano, Col. Federico Romero, Col. Jose Sosa Molina, Major Lamirio, Major Enrique Castro, Major Mauricio Gomez, Major Faustino Pedrosa, Captain Raul Fuentetaja, Captain Carlos Groco, and Captain Reyes DeBora.

Following brief visits to other major Army installations, they will continue to make a more detailed study of U. S. methods of instruction.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

THE FABULOUS TEXAN (western) with William Elliott, John Carroll, and Catherine McLeod. In the days of hard riding and fast shooting; days when men had ideas of establishing empires for themselves at the expense of their neighbors. Recommended for family.

SPIRIT OF WEST POINT (football) with Felix "Doc" Blanchard, Glenn Davis, and Anne Nagel. Against a background story based on the careers of Air Force aviators Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, this picture gives the highlights from many of the games in which they helped make football history. Recommended for family.

"THE LOST MOMENT" (melodrama) with Robert Cummings, Susan Hayward, and Agnes Moorehead. A spooky old mansion, locked room of mystery, candle light, all provide a creepy setting for a 105-year old woman and her strange niece. Into this eerie household comes a publisher seeking the solution to an old love story. Recommended for adult.

KILLER MCCOY (boxing) with Mickey Rooney, Brian Donley, Ann Blyth, and James Dunn. Quite a change from the usual Mickey Rooney pictures. Rooney, a tough kid out of the New York slums, tries to become a boxer and gets fooled up by crooked gamblers who decide it would be more healthy for him if he lost his fights. Recommended for the family.

THE MARK OF ZORRO (action) with Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, and Basil Rathbone. Presents all the swashbuckling and sword play needed to survive in "we goode olde days" when plots and intrigue were part of a man's daily life. Recommended for adult.

T-5 Moysse, a graduate of the Airplane Mechanics school for ground force aircraft at Fort Sill, Okla., served as an airplane mechanic with the 83rd's Air Section.

School Troops Recruiting Unit Leaves On Tour

The second expedition of School Troops recruiting caravan will left Fort Benning on November 4 for a 15-day tour of six south Georgia towns, it was announced today.

Launched by Col. Charles H. Royce, School Troops commanding officer, in an effort to boost Army enlistment, the caravan has just completed a successful initial tour of Georgia towns. The new recruiting procedure has met with great success, enlisting men for a unit or section of the Ground Forces of immediate choice.

The caravan consists of a colorful van-trailer, which is used as the office, and a converted passenger bus, which serves as kitchen and quarters. A jeep sound unit is an integral part of the unit.

During the trip the caravan will visit Blakely, Nov. 4; Thomasville, Nov. 10; Valdosta, Nov. 12; Moultrie, Nov. 14; and Americus, Nov. 16.
Comprising the caravan's crew are S-Sgt. R. E. Irving, Sgt. Francis P. Daly, Sgt. Robert White, T-4 E. Henry, and T-Sgt. Leo G. Kelly, School Troops recruiting sergeant.

3 Combat Veterans Awarded Medals

Three former combat veterans who are now assigned duties with the 37th infantry regiment's Headquarters company have received Bronze Star medals, officials said today.
They include T-4 Paul M. Kominski, clerk in the sergeant major's office, Sgt. Arthur J. Keith, communications section, and Sgt. Roy M. Kirby, motor sergeant.
Sergeant Keith served overseas with the 50th division in the 1st infantry regiment, while T-4 Kominski was with the Fourth Airborne battalion, 82nd Airborne, in the Normandy, Ardennes, Northern France, Central Europe, and Rhineland campaigns.

Fire Patrol Group Organized On Post

An aircraft fire patrol, to patrol the Fort Benning reservation, has been established here, it was revealed this week.
The entire area around Fort Benning will be patrolled daily by the School Troops Air section in an effort to observe, locate, and report any fires on the reservation.
Before starting out on patrol each evening at 4:30 p. m. the pilot will check with the range officer for coordination and briefing on the range firing and will report the location of any observed fires to the Lawson Field tower. The tower officer then will relay the report to fire station No. 1.

Candidates For RA Commissions Must Accept By Nov. 30

The Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force announced today that all persons who have been tendered Regular Army and Regular Air Force commissions must accept on or before November 30, 1947. All tenders of appointment not accepted by that date will be revoked.
The commissions were tendered under an act of Congress which authorized the Army a total of 50,000 Regular officers. The act expires December 31, 1947.

Because of the necessity for both the Army and Air Force to begin implementation of the new Promotion Act, passed during the closing days of the last Congress, the establishment of this limiting date is imperative. Field commanders have been instructed to utilize every means at their disposal to apprise every applicant of the November 30 date and to obtain an acceptance or notice of declination from each.
Appointees who have not kept the adjutant general's office informed of changes of address and have learned of their appointments through the press, but have still received no official notification should wire the adjutant general of the United States Army immediately, stating their present address.

Band Promotions

Promotions last week of members of the 72nd Army band included Pts. David A. Bennett and Albert Spenyong to the grade of private first class.
Other promotions were Ptes. Charles J. McCray, Sanford J. Larson, Rudolph B. Heist, and William J. Everts to technicians, fifth grade.

Armistice Day

As the nation pauses for a moment next Monday, November 11, to pay tribute to the gallant men and women who gave their lives in two world wars fighting for the right to live in freedom, we here at Fort Benning would do well to recall the events of history which led us into these conflicts. Perhaps by so doing we can in our own way help to prevent a third disaster, which might conceivably result in complete annihilation for the civilized world.

Armistice Day was set aside at the end of World War I as a day on which the U. S. would honor the fallen of that war. Ever since, November 11 has been observed as a national holiday, a day for honoring our war dead. We still observe that day, but now, instead of honoring the men of World War I only, we must double our tribute to include those who fell in battle during the latest war. It's a sad commentary on the abilities of the people of the world to live in harmony when such becomes the case. It is even sadder when we stop to realize that there is already talk of another war.

Following the end of World War I, the U. S. was plunged into a fight to make money, to forget about European affairs, to demobilize our fighting forces, to cut appropriations, and to forget our sacrifices to make "the world safe for democracy." Compare this with the trends existing here today. How ironical that they should be almost identical!

Will these 1919 ideas; so prevalent in 1947, lead us into another and even worse conflict? What will happen to our civilization? Everything looks mighty dark right now, but perhaps we will be sensible enough to overcome our foolishness before it is too late.

If America is to live in peace, it is necessary to change drastically our views on the future. Many think it unnecessary to have a large standing army. Many more think it justifiable to cut army appropriations in an effort to reduce taxes. And more yet assail our plans to help Europe out of the abyss of despair in which the entire continent finds itself at this moment. We did the same thing at the end of World War I, and look what happened. Fortunately, we have survived this second war, but the outlook is not so bright for a third.

Taxes are a necessary evil. We say evil just for those who are favorable to anti tax legislation, although we do not think them evil at all. The American nation has a share in the future of the world, but without money to back up our commitments, we will fall short of our promises, fall those who look to us for succor in their hour of depression, and become too enmeshed in our own personal welfare that we lose sight of the chaos which will break loose if we do fail. And in order to have money there must be taxes. We can't simply print it, for we must have something with which to back it up.

As Americans we all have a share in our country. Will we see it lose its place as a leading power? Will we see our army lose its potency? Will we sit idly back and watch the rest of the world sink into a bottomless pit without hope of recovery? Will we be content to see Communism spread throughout Europe because we lack the incentive and the far-sightedness to help now when the need is greatest? Since we have unwavering faith in the American way of life, we will say no to that question. We don't believe that the people of this great land will fail again as they did in the early '20's. One mistake, yes, but not two.

Here in the U. S. we can do even more than we think. We can help to put out the fires of Communism which seem to be spreading, not rapidly or even to any great extent, but dangerously just the same.

So on this Armistice Day, we should resolve that we will do all within our power to be better Americans by supporting the overall plans of our leaders to keep the peace forever; keep our fighting forces intact, help Europe and Asia to recover from their wounds, and fight Communism.

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL

As a civilian dependent living on the post, you will be interested in the need of the hour, for it is about your Red Cross.

I say "yours" unreservedly, for by Army regulations and Red Cross directives, the Red Cross office here enjoys the responsibility of serving you just as much as the military.

The number of families and dependents on the Fort Benning reservation approximate the number found in a good size rural community, namely, about 5,000. Such a community elsewhere would boast and enjoy a Red Cross chapter. A military post does not have a chapter, but there is a Red Cross office organized to serve both the military and their dependents.

The services we render to dependents are the same as those rendered by chapters throughout the U. S.

Your Red Cross office can contact your military relatives stationed elsewhere regarding emergency ferretouts or matters of a confidential nature. While speaking of confidential matters, you may be assured that all conversations with your Red Cross are strictly confidential. You may write to your Red Cross your ailments, allowance problems, financial difficulties, and marital problems. Worries about relatives can be alleviated by bringing your problems to your Red Cross office.

Health and welfare inquiry about your family will be given prompt attention by wire to your Red Cross back home.

Perhaps many of you miss contact with Red Cross in your home-town community. You should remember that you have a Red Cross office on the post.

So, to you civilian dependents, we say: the door to your Red Cross is always open. Yes, always. For Red Cross personnel can be reached at night as well as during the day.

We urge you to visit your Red Cross at each opportunity. Come and get acquainted, and by all means, feel that you are a part of your Red Cross.

A man stopped girl friend in Brussels.

And chanced "You are wearing two bullets."

She declared "That's not true. It's a thing I don't do."

"You are merely observing my muscles."

He: "Honestly, you'd never think I sound like car second-hand, would you?"

Her: "Gosh, no. I thought you put it together yourself!"

GI Humor

You sit and sing a little song,
 You have a little chat,
 You make a little candy fudge
 And then you take your hat,
 You hold her hand and say good-night.

As sweetly as you can,
 Nod ain't that a helluva evening
 For a great big healthy man?

Two Wacs were airing their troubles.
 "I'd like to get a divorce," said the first, "My husband and I just can't get along."
 "Why don't you see him for incompatibility?" asked the other sympathetically.
 "I would if I could catch him at it," announced the second.

Love makes the world go 'round—but so does a good swallow of tobacco juice.

He held her close as the music drifted into a dreamy waltz.
 "Doesn't this dance just make you long for another?" She: "Yes, but he couldn't come tonight."

Golf Pro: "My advice is to go through the motions of driving without hitting a ball."
 Golfer: "That's exactly my trouble."

THE CROSS OF CHRIST
 By Chaplain E. M. Carpenter

From the time the cross became a historical reality on Calvary until today men have tried to shake it. The Chief Priests and Scribes said, "Let Christ descend from the cross that we may see and believe." That plea has been made over and over again. Let Christ forsake the ugly cross and induce some progressive movement which seeks the welfare of mankind without self renunciation. The cross has always been the object of offense to those who have tried to make life easy. But to those who have been confronted with their own moral lapse and the fatal results of sin, it has proven to be the one power of attraction in the world.

But Christ would not come down from the cross. His hanging there was the final and complete revelation of that redemption which had been seeking lost men from the beginning. Something has entered the world whose tendency it is to let it stray, blast its beauty, and bring final ruin at last. No human wisdom can tell us what is wrong, much less suggest a cure. No human power can overcome it. We have sinned. Every remedy we devise has failed. Only one thing has proven sufficient to stem the tide of evil, and that is the cross of Christ.

Man needs God. He cannot face life alone. He may clothe himself with the garment of courage and pretend to stand in his own strength, but when the final chapter of the story of conflict is told, it will contain a confession of failure. The soul requires a greater conviction than our triumph can suffice. Life has its bitterness, disappointments, trials, and losses for each of us. And if we know our evils, we are assured that whatever life holds for us, we need not be overwhelmed, for God has made provision for our triumph through the Cross of Christ.

The ship was sinking and the captain called: "Who can pray?" "I can," said a quartermaster. "Then shh—shh," ordered the captain. "The rest of you put on your life jackets. We're just one short."

The origin of the saying, "Oh, Yes, You're a Great One," is attributed to an unbelieving big game hunter who, upon hearing his bride say, "Now I can't sleep," said to himself: "Oh, Yes."

Candle Roll Tots Carter Couch Enjoy Halloween Wedding Told Party On Friday

Members of the Candle Roll department of the Protestant Sunday School met at the quarters of Mrs. F. E. Griffin Friday afternoon for a Halloween costume party with 36 members of the class and four guests attending.

Tots ranging from one and a half to four years were brightly costumed as witches, clowns, gnomes, ghosts, and pirates. Prizes for the best costumes were awarded to Mrs. F. E. Griffin as a pirate and Janet Sue Fleisch as a peasant girl. The lucky prize went to Frank Kaufman.

Mrs. Griffin, a teacher in the department, decorated her quarters with pumpkins, black cats, and black and orange streamers for the occasion. Mrs. Lamar Holcomb, also a teacher and several of the mothers assisted with the party for which refreshments were served after songs and games. The Halloween theme was also used for the napkins and plates and favors were given at the end of the afternoon.

Special guests were Mrs. W. A. Hale and Mrs. F. A. Callahan.

Wives Back From Europe Missed U. S. Shopping Most

BY ORA CARNOT
Among Columbus' newest residents are five Air Force wives who returned to the states recently from Germany where their pilot husbands were stationed with the American Army of Occupation.

When interviewed, each one agreed that traveling was great fun and a wonderful experience but that it was good to be home again.

The young wives, who hail from parts of the United States, landed at Fort Hamilton, New York, with their husbands during August and September, and after brief visits to their respective homes, moved to Columbus when their husbands were transferred to Lawson Field.

The overseas returnees include Mrs. H. A. Weaver, of Phoenix, Arizona, and her two-year-old daughter, Carol, returned home aboard an Army transport, arriving at Fort Hamilton August 27. Mrs. Weaver and little Carol left the states last Christmas. They landed at Bremerhaven, Germany, and later settled in Straubing, Germany, where Lieutenant Weaver was stationed.

Mrs. Weaver remarked that although war-torn Europe was not pleasant to see, Uncle Sam's care made their stay in the foreign country comfortable and interesting. They visited several points of interest in Europe and enjoyed a trip to Switzerland.

Also making the return voyage home on the same boat with the Weavers were Mrs. Irene Harris, a native of Rochester, Minn., who flew to Frankfurt, Germany, last November, and Captain Harris, and their three-year-old daughter, Kathleen, of Bellingham, Wash. Mrs. Thwaites and Kathleen went to Germany via ship and spent nine months in Straubing, arriving in New York September 2 were Capt. and Mrs. W. E. Waters and their two children, Linda, 3, and Billie, 17 months. They now make their home at 47 Barry street, Baker Village. The Waters spent nine months in Kassel, Germany, where they occupied a completely furnished two-story house and the children learned to speak German through their three servants. Mrs. Waters is the former Doris Harell, of Montgomery, Ala., and Captain Waters' home town is Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. William R. Edgar, who spent nine months in Mainz, Air depot where Lieutenant Edgar was stationed, returned to the states by ship in Bremerhaven August 8. They had a home in an American housing community located near the air base. Lieutenant Edgar was stationed in Germany for 18 months and they traveled to Paris, Bad Wiessee, center, and Munich.

One of their proudest possessions is Jeep, a six-month-old wire-haired terrier they bought in Germany. Jeep followed his masters home by express.

Entertainment for American families overseas consisted of theaters and recreation located at their bases, and recreational programs and newscasts of the Army radio network. Visiting each other and bridge were also very popular pastimes for the wives.

Although some of the families had to live without refrigeration and window screens for a time, the wives agreed that what they missed most overseas was the good old American custom of shopping. Mothers in the group said their children had taken the trip nicely and enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Lawson Ladies Name Officers For New Year

Mrs. Wilfred Hinman was elected president of the Lawson field Women's club at a meeting at the Base Officers' club.

The club's honorary president is Mrs. Gilbert T. Collier, wife of the base commander.

Mrs. Robert Clark was appointed vice president, Mrs. Malcolm Sponenbergh, secretary, and Mrs. Byron E. Pratt, treasurer. Mrs. Joseph Lewandowski was named social chairman, Mrs. Harry Grover, public relations chairman, Mrs. Fred G. Henry, liaison officer; and Mrs. Alison Nolan, welfare chairman.

At the conclusion of the business meeting members were served refreshments and later enjoyed a bridge game.

The officers for the coming year are: Mrs. James Sever, Mrs. Wilfred Hinman, and Mrs. John W. Eschko.

Members present included Mesdames Gilbert T. Collier, Wilfred Hinman, Harry Grover, Malcolm Sponenbergh, Joseph Lewandowski, Frank Pohlman, Robert Clark, Frank Sever, Fred Goehart, John Wreschicko, William Sponenbergh, Fred G. Henry, and Ivan Hale.

Co-Hosts Give Informal Party

Entertaining approximately 100 of their friends, Major and Mrs. Fred V. Harris and Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. B. Ayres were co-hosts at an informal get-together Saturday evening at the Polo Hunt.

Buffet supper, was served earlier in the evening on tables brightly decorated with green crepe paper covers, yellow tapers and orange berries. Later dancing was enjoyed.

Vincent Lopez To Play On Post

Vincent Lopez will play at the Post Non-Commissioned Officers' club November 16, it was announced today by M. Sgt. O. T. Outland, chairman of the publicity and entertainment committee.

The formal dance will be held from 7:30 to 11:30 p. m. Saturday, November 16.

All members of the club and their guests are invited.

Couple Exchange Vows Friday In Lawson Chapel

Miss Lois Haisten became the bride of Cpl. Charles B. Goodman in an impressive ceremony at the Lawson field chapel last Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The bride was attended by Miss Thelma Edwards and Ray Gamel served as best man.

Miss Haisten chose for her wedding a light gray two-piece suit with white gloves and black shoes and purse as accessories.

The ceremony was officiated by Capt. John Bryden, performed the double-ring ceremony by candle light with soft organ music in the background.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Julia Haisten, of Columbus, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Goodman, of Columbus.

Girl Scout Plans Heard At Parley Held In Columbus

Members of the Fort Benning Girl Scout council and leaders took an active part in the three-day training course recently in Columbus.

The meetings were held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the auditorium of the Coca Cola building with Miss Katherine Park, training advisor of the national branch of Girl Scouts in Atlanta, and Miss Grace Morgan, Girl Scout director in Columbus, in charge. Mrs. O. C. Thompson, drew, Columbus field director for Girl Scouts, assisted.

During the three-day meeting the ladies representing the Fort Benning council drew up plans for the coming year, which will be presented to the entire council in the near future.

The Wednesday meeting was for council members. Fort Benning representatives included Mrs. H. H. Walker, commissioner; Mrs. George T. Colvin, secretary and registrar; Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, house chairman; and Mrs. Wallace M. Hale, Juliette Low member.

Craft work was featured in the meetings Thursday and Friday with the display being given by Mrs. Cooper Campbell Jr. and Mrs. Jim Miner. Fort Benning representatives were Mrs. Arne Millican, first deputy; Mrs. Colvin, Mrs. Frisby, Mrs. H. H. Walker Jr., Mrs. O. C. Thompson, senior leader; Mrs. M. J. Mastalar, Brownie leader; Mrs. Corster Green, senior leader; Mrs. M. J. Mastalar, Brownie leader; Mrs. E. D. Mioliola, program consultant; Mrs. E. L. Warren, intermediate leader; Mrs. Earl Cooper, intermediate leader; and Mrs. Roy Gray, Brownie leader.

Approximately 70 girls are now active in Girl Scout work at Fort Benning, and council members and program consultants are revising the program for the coming year in order to emphasize outdoor activities.

Ladies To Hear Mrs. Moon Play At Monday Meet

Highlighting events of next week will be the meeting Monday afternoon at 2:30 of the literature and art group of the Woman's club.

Mrs. Maureen Moon, of Columbus, well-known violinist, will be the guest for the afternoon and will be accompanied by Mrs. Kendrick Kierkegaard of Fort Benning, who promises to be an outstanding musical event.

Also on the program to be held in the small lounge of the Officers' club will be Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale and Chaplain (Capt.) R. O. Kirsch, who have both recently been in Europe and will speak on conditions there.

William of the grand Sandusky, chairman of the program, and William C. Rhinehart, co-chairman, have announced that all ladies who are members of the Fort Benning Woman's club are invited to the Monday meeting.

Club At Lawson Notes Halloween At Gala Party

A colorful masquerade dance was held at the Lawson field Officers' club Halloween night with the Lawson field Women's club and the Officers' club entertaining as co-hosts.

Traditional Halloween characters, including black cats, witches, skeletons, and bats decorated the club. The main lounge, where dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Southern Cavaliers, was decorated to represent a farm harvest with arrangements of tall corn cobs, big yellow pumpkins, and scare crows.

Prizes for best costumes were presented to Lt. Col. Fred G. Henry, who wore a hill billy costume, and Miss Peggy Scott, for her harem girl attire.

Formal Dinner Honors Mullenes

To honor Lt. Col. and Mrs. William L. Mullen, who are leaving for Fort Sill, Okla., officers and ladies of the Machine group held a no-host party last week at the Officers' club.

Buffet supper was served to 20 guests at a table decorated with a lovely centerpiece of garden flowers. Later in the evening dancing was enjoyed.

Major and Mrs. Robert K. Hamilton were in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Tucei Sails For Italy To Visit Family In Rome

Mrs. John R. Tucei and her daughter, Dea Patricia, sailed October 24 from New York for Italy where they will visit Mrs. Tucei's parents in Rome. She is the former Miss Juliana Rivarolo.

Captain Tucei accompanied his wife and daughter to New York where they sailed aboard the USS Vulcania. They were married October of 1945 while he was assigned to the "Blue Devil" 88th Infantry division.

Mrs. Tucei's sister, Leda Rivarolo, is a ballerina on tour with the Corp of Ballet of the Theater del Opera of Rome. Until an injury cut short her career, Mrs. Tucei had also won considerable recognition as a ballet artist.

Captain and Mrs. Tucei plan to send their daughter to the same school of art which Mrs. Tucei Captain Tucei plans to visit Rome next year.

Taking over Katie's job is Marina Johnson, who has been with the club for several weeks.

50 Ladies Tour Airborne Area

Approximately 50 ladies took advantage of a tour opened for them last week at the Airborne section. Col. Roy E. Lindquist conducted the program, opening with an orientation lecture at theater No. 3.

After seeing a film on the new basic airborne training, the ladies were taken to the mock-up area for a demonstration of the loading of vehicles in the Airborne type cargo aircraft and gliders. In a visit to the rigger group, the guests were led through the rigger school where men were undergoing training to learn the maintenance of parachutes and parachute equipment.

At the next stop the visitors saw the ground training area, where a demonstration of physical training, parachute landing falls, and wind machine training was presented. Visiting the pack training group, the ladies observed students packing parachutes and witnessed a pull-off demonstration, a slow motion of exactly how a parachute functions when a man jumps from a plane.

A talk on the methods and techniques of the riggers was given when the guests arrived at the aerial delivery group. There they inspected the various types of parachutes and parachute equipment used in aerial resupply. They also saw a demonstration of dropping equipment bundles and witnessed a howitzer assembly demonstration.

The final stop brought the group to the tower training area, where they saw jumps from the free tower, mock tower, and controlled tower training. The climax of the afternoon came as each lady was given a ride in the buddy seat.

Nursery School Sponsored By Woman's Club Is Success

Under the sponsorship of the Fort Benning Woman's club but 100 per cent self supporting, the Post Nursery school is enjoying a highly successful year with 33 students enrolled and 33 more on the waiting list. It was explained this week by Mrs. Joe V. Morey, chairman of the project.

Three teachers are now employed through the Woman's club to act as regular teachers with Mrs. Martha Ruben as head teacher and Mrs. Frances Gordon and Mrs. Addie Church as assistants. A music teacher, Mrs. T. H. Andrews, was added to the staff last week and will instruct for two hours each Tuesday morning. Her plans call for singing groups, instruction in general music, and the formation of a rhythm band.

Youngsters from two through five whose parents are members of the sponsoring organization, the Woman's club, are eligible to attend the school, but at present lack of space is restricting further expansion. Mrs. Morey explained the school is located at 106 Madden in a cottage which includes three class rooms and a central music room. A charge of $7.00 per month is made for each child, and parents must furnish transportation to and from the school.

Activities for the youngsters who attend the school from 9 to 11:30 a. m. five days a week are varied, with games and art work being featured. A highlight of each morning is the serving of fruit, juice and crackers.

Halfway morning a colorful party with games was held for the youngsters, and for Christmas a special program will be given in the central meeting room on the afternoon of December 17 with all parents invited.

Assisting Mrs. Morey on the Woman's club committee in charge of the project are Mrs. L. B. Ramsey and Mrs. Robert Eddy.

Bowling Group In Two Parts

Because of the large classes that have turned out for the activity, the bowling group of the Woman's club has been split into two sections. It has been announced by Mrs. Arne Millican, chairman of the group.

The advanced class will continue to meet Wednesday mornings at 9:30 at the Post bowling alleys, while beginners will meet each Friday at 9:30 a. m. Instructors are Capt. Frank Blake and Capt. Arne Millican.

Over 1,100 Enroll In Vocation School

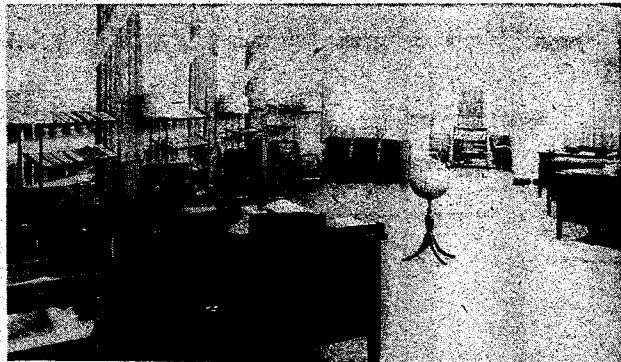

As the Infantry Center's vocational school, only one of its kind in the history of the U. S. Army, enters its fourth week more than 1,100 students are enrolled for the 52 different courses.

A total of 27 qualified civilian teachers are employed by the school as instructors in everything from instrumental music to English grammar. Classes are in session every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday from 6 p. m. until 10 p. m.

Head of the school is Capt. Willard Chambers, Infantry Center information and education officer, assisted by Lt. John Cunningham, assistant information and education officer. Lt. Cunningham, who is himself a former school teacher, has just returned from a week-long United States Armed Forces Institute conference at Madison, Wis., with reports that authorities consider the Infantry Center's information and education program the most complete in the Army.

The Infantry Center's information and education section boasts the largest enrollment in the Army for USAFI courses with a total of between 200 and 300 troops taking advantage of the over-the-counter service available here. More than 360 courses are offered by the local information and education section under the new policy of providing students with textbooks and study materials at the time of enrollment rather than waiting for their arrival from USAFI headquarters at Madison, Wis.

In an effort to give Fort Benning personnel who are not enrolled for courses in the vocational school a picture of school activities, The Bayonet is this week presenting a brief glimpse, through the medium of the picture found on these pages, of the ambitious program to make local citizens a better informed group. Here, then, is our picture story of the week.

READIN', 'RITIN', 'RITHMETIC—Fort Benning soldiers are interested not only in learning a vocation, but in improving their education academically as well. Here is the arithmetic class at the Infantry Center's vocational school working out a problem while their instructor, William Wall, looks on.

PLASTIC MAKING—One of the most popular courses at the Infantry Center's vocational school is plastics. Here the instructor, Charles Freund, right, watches while his student demonstrates what he has learned.

NATURALLY!

She was a mild and gentle maiden from the Deep South, visiting the big city for the first time. He was a smoothie from a swank eastern college, intent upon showing his innocent one lip with a capital L. The pair was seated in a big-time night club.

"Do you know," she said, gingerly squirming about in her chair, "I've been in misery for a week. Sometimes I could almost scream with pain."

"Why, what's the matter?" he inquired sympathetically.

"I was vaccinated last week," she replied, "and it has taken dreadfully."

He gazed at her curiously. He saw no scar.

"Why, where were you vaccinated?" he asked impudently. She lowered her glance modestly. A faint blush suffused her cheeks.

"Would you really like to know?" she shyly exclaimed.

"Yes!"

"Right here in New York," she replied.

Funeral Director: "How old are you, sir?"

Aged Mourner: "I'm 98."

Funeral Director: "Hardly worth going home, is it?"

A mint Julep is a depth bomb with a southern drawl.

Percy: "Let's hear you define a wrinkle."

Lily: "Very simple; it's something that if a prune hasn't got some of it's a plum."

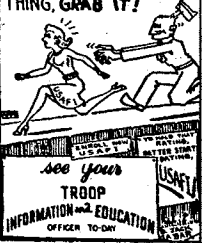

Lieutenant to pretty stenographer: "Are you doing anything Sunday evening?"

Stenographer (hopefully): "Not a thing."

Lt.: "Then try to be at the office a little earlier Monday morning, will you?"

Then there's the poke about the traveling salesman who married the farmer's daughter because he was in love with her.

The fellow who invented the davenport should be proud because millions have been made on his invention.

"They must have a girl's ball team in the harem."

"What makes you think so?"

"I just heard one of the girls ask the Sultan if she was in tomorrow's line-up."

Papa Robin: "How did that speckled egg get into our nest?"

Mama Robin: "I did it for a lark!"

"Sometimes," said the mistress to the new maid, "it will be necessary for you to help the butler upstairs."

"I understand, madam," replied the girl. "I drink a bit myself."

She's my pilot light—just an old flame that's always lit.

GI Humor

"Boy am I glad I'm not Russian," said Rodney.
 "Why?" said Ephram.
 Rod: "I can't speak a word of it."

Cigarettes are like girls: They came packed. They get lit, hang on your lips, make you puff, go out unexpectedly, leave a bad taste in your mouth—yet they satisfy.

Chaplain: "Who is the possessor of all riches but whom we have to know and understand before we can expect to receive them?"
 Yardbird: "The Supply Sgt."

The best way to get rid of a noise in your car is to leave your wife at home.

A young stenographer overslept one morning and dashed madly down to the kitchen in her sheerest pajamas to gulp down a cup of coffee.
 Suddenly she heard footsteps on the back porch—masculine, heavy and slow.

"The ice man," she thought in terror of discovery. No time to flee. Just enough time to step inside the closet. The footsteps approached to the closet. The door opened.

The poor little steno screamed. It was not the ice man at all. It was the meter man who came to read the meter located in the closet.

"Oh my goodness," she stammered. "I was expecting the ice man."
 "Lucky dog," replied the meter reader.

His best girl told him she had a place in her heart for him and he made the mistake of trying to find it.

"Hey boss, I've got a real story, the most unexpected thing happened today."

"What happened," asked the editor, "that was so unusual. Did a man bite a dog?"

"Nope," said the reporter, "Bull threw a sergeant."
 "Never petted?"
 "Never objected."

Respectable dowager to modern miss: "Shame on you child, for smoking in this restaurant! I would just as soon get intoxicated as be caught smoking!"

Modern Miss: "So would I." Said the sympathetic counselor at the separation center to the bowlegged discharge, "Cavlyr—big horse?"

"Nope," he replied, "QM—short bunk."

He whispered in her tiny ear. Then waited for her word.

He saw the "yes" form on her lips.

Before the sound was heard. His mind at once began to dwell On the pleasures he would reap.

For here, at last, he'd found a girl Who'd do his laundry cheap.

"Well, Doc, was my operation a success?"
 "Sorry, old man. I'm Saint Peter."

The sailor said to the waitress, "I'd like a couple of hard-boiled eggs to take out."
 "All right," she replied, "but you'll have to wait, Mamie and I don't get off until 10."

"And there, my son, you have the story of our dad and the great World War."

"Yes, Daddy, but why did they need all those other soldiers?"

A drunk stook on the corner singing "Amapola." A little Airdale walked up and said, "Okay bud, you asked for it."

A wedding limousine rolled up Fifth avenue a few weeks ago with a large placard tied to the rear bumper. It read, "Careless talk caused this."

My latest flame is Dorothy Storm Never meet anyone Half as warm!

A gal I hate Miss Mickey Bilis She slobbers up Her goodnight kisses!

"Do you object to petting?"
 "That's something I've never done."
 "Never petted?"
 "Never objected."

She was only a dairyman's daughter, but what a calf!

SOLDIER PRINTERS—A group of students in the vocational night school's printing class examine one of the job presses used in teaching the fundamentals of printing.

USING THE POWER DRILL—Cabinet making courses at the Infantry Center's vocational school also attract a great number of Fort Benning soldiers. Here the civilian instructor, Christopher Owen, right, gives a few pointers to his student on the use of the large power drill for boring holes.

AUTO MECHANICS—Working with one's hands has always been a favorite American pastime. This is such in evidence at the Infantry Center's vocational school where soldiers flocked to enroll in the auto mechanics class. Here a group of students gather around the instructor, Sam Breedlove, to observe the parts of an automobile engine.

Benning Cricketers Meet Fort Sam

Locals Gunning For Sixth Win In Seven Starts

Returning home after two road trips, the Fort Benning Doughboys go up against Fort Sam Houston Sunday at Doughboy stadium, gunning for their sixth win in seven starts.

Coch Butch Kendrick's gridders are in fine shape after their bruising tussle with Quantico last week and are anxious to get back in the win column at the expense of the Texans. The Doughs have put in long hours of practice this week in preparation for the scrap and are expecting the Houston gridders to shoot.

The Benningites will be in top condition for the first time since the first Fort Jackson encounter with Cosimo Cutri, shifty right halfback, expected to be back in the lineup after his absence in the Quantico fray. Jack Seybold, right guard, got back into action last week and made a fine showing both on offense and defense.

Win Streak Broken

Fort Benning's string of victories was cut off at 17 straight last week but the Doughs are by no means out of the running for the service crown. They have four more contests to play on their schedule, and if they emerge victorious in these scraps, they have a good chance at the title.

The Doughs looked ragged last week in their blocking department and Line Coach Joe Shephard has had his gridders back in on the mistakes they made Dick Groninger played bang up ball last week, and the bug-tick is expected to repeat his performance against Fort Sam. He is backed up by several young linemen who have drilled hard in the daily scrimmages held by Coach Kendrick.

In the backfield Bob Siebert, ace fullback, is expected to carry his share of the burden in the running and passing department, and also will do all of the punting while he is in the game. Don Perrody will get the nod at his old left halfback slot, and he, along with Ben O'Brien, will do his share of the ball logging.

Plenty of reserves will be called upon. The Doughs will have plenty of reserve power in the backfield, and after a couple showings in the Quantico tilt, will probably see a lot of action in this week's clash. Harry Sloan, Wilbur Ross, and Don Sult have shown up well in previous games and are capable pigskin taters. In case their running attack is throttled, the Doughs will have able passers in Siebert, Perrody, and Francis Meagher.

Bob Scallorn tested several aerials last week and will be called upon to shoot passes again to flankmen Harold Lutz and Bill Draper. Doug Scoville snatched quite a few tosses for long gains in previous tussles and has done a swell job in backing up the regular flankers.

Fort Sam Houston boasts an eleven that is power-packed in every department and two and three deep at every position. The Doughs and the Texans haven't run across the same squads in earlier scraps thus far this season so there isn't any way to compare the two clubs.

Former Grid Stars

In the Houston forward wall are some former stars as Bill Donnalley, of Holy Cross; Ed Carter, of Texas College; O. C. Conwell, of Texas A. & M.; and several high school aces from all over the country.

Fullback Albert Tice was a standout for the University of Kansas before the war and is the leading runner on the Texas squad. At the left halfback slot is Terry Lura, who played with Sidney Lanier high school before he entered the service. The boys from Fort Sam Houston rely mostly on a ground game but take to the air waves in spurts to keep opposing defenses baffled.

After Sunday's contest the Doughboys will be playing before the Post fans for the remainder of the 1947 campaign. They meet the star-studded Fort Riley Centaurs a week from Sunday and round out their season against Cherry Point Marines and Jacksonville Naval Air station.

Bullets Avenue Loss, Humbling Panthers 13-12

BY BOB PHILLIPS

Trailled by 12 points, the Bullets staged an uphill struggle and came from behind to eke out a 13-12 decision over Atlanta Panthers Sunday afternoon at Harpers field. Having dropped a close 6-7 verdict to the Panthers, earlier in the season, the Bullets were a vindictive group of warriors all the way.

The Panthers started out fast, tipping the Bullet line to threads and piling up 12 points before the visiting team realized a football game was really in progress. Starting on the Bullets' 36-yard line, the Panthers, on the beautiful running of long snatched Claude Holt and the line plunging of Dave Harper, worked the half way to the seven yard mark, where Holt bulled over for the score. Francis Johnson broke through to knock the try for the extra point.

Runs Amuck

Claude Holt, the Panthers ranga bulled and ran amuck. Despite the wet field his speed seemed to gain momentum as he moved about the gridiron lanes.

A fumble on the 21-yard line plus a 15-yard penalty paved the way for the Panthers' second TD. Wardell kicked to Holt, who grabbed it on the 45-yard stripe, shook off three tacklers, headed for the right side lines, and outstreaked the whole Bullet team. The try for the point failed again, and the Panthers led 12-0.

Far as the Panthers were concerned Claude Holt was the whole show. Not only did he account for both of his team's scores, but kicked, blocked, passed, and tackled with unusual effectiveness and accuracy.

Start Rolling

The Bullets started rolling midway through the second period. Gordon Burke returned a kick 36 yards and after a 15-yard penalty 22-yard mark, a lateral from Burke to Bradford was good for a first down on the 12. An end-sweep by Bradford around the right side of the line put the Bullets in the game. A bad pass from center gained the try for extra point. The half ended with the Panthers in the lead 12-6.

The rejuvenated Bullets kept moving in the third period, passing from Wardell to Green that traveled 40 yards put the ball on the Panthers 30-yard line. Burke picked up 15 yards and then lateraled to Tindrell, who was stopped on a five. The Panthers dug in and held the Bullets at bay for four consecutive downs. Harper's attempt to kick the team out of the danger zone was foiled when Henry Sanderson charged through to block the boot on the two-yard stripe. Burke cracked the line for the score. A pass from Wardell to Green, who took the ball over his head, while yet on the run, made good the point after TD. The Bullets went out front for keeps, 13-12, as they fought the Panthers to a dead standstill the rest of the game.

The scoreless fourth period was highlighted by a sensational 65-yard sprint by Horace Northeast in the Bullets after a pass interception. Francis Johnson, who worked the central spot the half, was a menace to the Panther backfield before giving over to the veteran Odel Kennedy.

Quantico Snuffs Doughboy Streak

Fort Benning's dreams of another undefeated season were turned into a nightmare Saturday as the Quantico Marines snuffed the Doughboys' win streak at 17 straight, 58 to 0.

Fumbles were costly for the Doughs in this contest in which five punts within the Benning 50-yard line resulted in losses for the Leathernecks. The Doughboys couldn't get a drive under way because of the expert punting of Bob Dove, former Ohio State ace, whose series out of bounds on the soldiers' four-and-a-half-yard line constantly.

The Devildog attack was spearheaded by Joe Bartos, ex-Aarp oilis halfback, who crashed through the Benning line three times for touchdowns with 22-, 10-, and 8-yard jaunts. Tony Messina, right half for the Marines, put on a dazzling performance when he converted eight out of eight tries through the uprights.

Cosimo Cutri, who suffered a shoulder injury in the Fort Jackson encounter, was unable to play over two plays in the contest and his absence in the lineup was sorely missed. Ben O'Brien, who got the starting nod in place of Cutri, got the biggest run from scrimmage for the Doughboys when he galloped around left end for 22 yards in the first quarter.

The Doughs' punting defense wasn't up to par as it has been in previous games, and as a result the Marines connected with three long aerials in the Benning end zone. Rudy Flores was the star of the Marines and besides tossing the three touchdown passes, he only connected with another aerial out of 15 attempts.

Fort Benning's aerial game was really in progress, and one pass, thrown by Don Perrody, was disastrous when Bill Jesse, big leatherneck center, fumbled the pigskin on the Benning 47-yard marker and streaked all the way for another Marine tally.

The Doughs forward wall played extremely well against a team which had a quick opening plays, run off a lightning field goal, proved too much for the soldier defense. Bob Ward, left guard, and Bill Tummler, huge pivot man, were the standouts in a battle that saw every man on the Doughboy squad put everything he had into a losing struggle.

When the hit got under way, the Marines gained an extra change of punts, and started a goalward spurt on the Dought 37-yard stripe. A long pass from Flores to Franc Pucykowski, ranga end, placed the leather on the right where big Joe Bartos bulled over for the initial score. Messina converted as he did after all eight of the Marine markers.

Just before the final canto got underway the Doughs were about to start their comeback when Bob Siebert faked a punt on his own 10-yard stripe and fired an aerial to Don Perrody, who was good for 30 yards. This drive backfired however on the next play when Perrody's pass was intercepted by Flores who ran it back for a score.

The Marines got their last counter in the waning minutes of the battle after a Doughboy fumble on the Benning 30. Two incomplete passes by Flores kept the ball on the 30 and then Art Schmagle faked back and looped a perfect toss to end Joe Yornik, who was waiting for it in the end zone.

Coch Butch Kendrick's charges came out of the scrap in excellent shape and should be on the rebound in the Fort Sam Houston contest, which is scheduled to take place at Doughboy stadium this Sunday.

PLAYER-OF-THE-WEEK—Right tackle Dick Groninger, 210-pound Hoosier, who has been named this week's Doughboy grid standout.

Lineman Awarded Gridiron Laurels

Although the Doughboys took a vicious scalping at the hands of a mighty Quantico eleven last Saturday the play of a stellar line stalwart, Dick Groninger, by name, was so superb that coaches and players alike agreed that the 210-pound tackle rated first choice in this week's poll for the "Play-er-of-the-Week."

In defeat, Groninger's ferocious blocking and tackling outshined even the admirable line play of the victors, and the burly line-man seemed to be playing the entire field at times. Moose Stewart, head grid mentor at Quantico, was so impressed with the youthful Groninger that he made it a point to make public his opinion of the star gridder after the game.

But, last Saturday's play was not unusual for doofy Dick who has been one of the most outstanding linemen on the Doughboy eleven this year. When he made his appearance as a probable varsity man, little was known of Groninger, and when the Doughs met Cherry Point in the season's first tilt, his starting position was in doubt. But at Cherry Point Groninger played in such a manner that his starting spot at right tackle was insured. Since that opening game, Groninger has been the regular starter, and has played long and hard with the team this year.

Hailing from the Midwest, Groninger attended high school in Plainfield, Indiana, where he won varsity letters in football, basketball, baseball and track. For two seasons Groninger starred with his high school team at center, and later received tentative college scholarships from noteworthy universities. His heavy-set frame aided handsily to his setting a conference record in the shot putt while a member of the track team.

At the termination of his high school education, Groninger enlisted in the Army and was sent to Fort McClellan for basic training. After his graduation from the training center, Dick came to Fort Benning where he was assigned to the Military Police detachment. During his assignment as an MP, Groninger served on the town patrol and held positions at the Provost Marshal office.

As football season goes into its final period, Dick's enlistment near its end. Early next month Groninger will discard his olive drab, and return to civilian life. He plans to enter Purdue next spring to major in mechanical engineering. He also hopes to play more football.

His coping this week's player honors is a double victory for Groninger, since it is more than difficult to shine in the face of a lopsided 56-0 score.

BENNETT PROMOTED

T-4 Joseph E. Bennett, Company G, Airborne Battalion, has been promoted to the grade of staff sergeant, officials said today.

Hennage Returns To Fort Benning

Lt. Caddie Hennage, former commander of the 33rd Transportation company, has returned to Fort Benning and the 204th Transportation Truck battalion after a year's tour of duty in the ETO.

During the war Lt. Hennage was with the 83rd Infantry division. He entered the service in April, 1941, and was commissioned here in January, 1943.

Lt. Hennage has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze star with oak leaf cluster, Purple Heart with three clusters, ETO ribbon with five campaign stars, Victory Medal, World War II, American Defense, Occupation medal with clasps, and the Combat Infantry badge.

CLOUGH ASSIGNED HERE

1st Sgt. William C. Clough, veteran of over 12 years Army duty, was recently assigned to the 83rd Field Artillery battalion's Battery B. Sgt. Clough, who came here from Fort Knox, Ky., served with the 325th Field Artillery battalion during the war.

PETERSON TRANSFERRED

T-Sgt. George E. Peterson, Company E, Airborne Battalion, left Fort Benning Oct. 29 for Fort Bragg, N. C., where he joined the 82nd Airborne division. Sgt. Peterson, who came here from Camp Stoneman, Calif., holds the Combat Medical badge.

Second Guessing

BY
RALEIGH GREENE

Another long winning spree came to a disastrous end at Quantico, Va., last Saturday when the Doughboys were ripped and scraped unmercifully by a strong and pugnacious Marine eleven, 56-0. Until last week's defeat, the Benning team had sailed merrily over 17 consecutive opponents.

I saluted forth, this morning, eager to catch the opinions and comments of Doughboy football fans but my ears had to content themselves with the echo of "Whys," "Hows," and "What did they have up there?" An atomic bomb dropped squarely on the Infantry Corps wouldn't have caused more wonderment and disbelief as that tremendous score that belied the Doughs from ten undated ranks.

The Doughs played four straight games here at Doughboy stadium before the eyes of full stands, and in each and every game the soldier eleven appeared to be one of the most improving teams in this section. A mediocre ball team clipped Cherry Point 2-0 in the season's initial tilt, but only in that game did the Benningites look mediocre. I was so impressed with their rapid improvement that I ventured to discuss the possibility of another undefeated season for the Doughs. I did caution my readers that the discussion was premature, but pointed out a number of plausible reasons why the team could cop another Service championship. There's nothing that can be said except that I was wrong, and that the Quantico Marines are one of the strongest service teams in the nation.

Statistics would confuse the reader, when he realizes that the count was 56-0. In first downs, Quantico led 7-5. In the air and on the ground, the Marines netted 278 yards for an aggregate-impressive try, but very little for such a score. It was just a matter of sheer and unadulterated power that caused the loss, although some consideration must be given to the fact that Benning fumbled seven, and I repeat, seven times within their own 30-yard line. Doesn't sound like Butch Kendrick's boys, does it?

Each and every one of the seven times the Doughs miscued, the Marines tallied. Benning's forward wall was, and still is, strong, but Joe Santos, former Navy stellar back, found little difficulty in slashing through the middle. The man that covered the game, for us remarked that sometimes our tackles weren't even blocked because the dash through the middle was so terrific and fast.

I suppose when your team loses, you may be prone to put forward excuses and alibis. We don't have to do that—it would constitute a insult to Quantico, and to Benning's pride. We have a time-honored club that is capable of shaking off this recent blot and go on to defeat their remaining opponents.

For the first time, it was evident that Kendrick's charges are young and sadly lacking in experience. This is not the fault of the team or the coach; it is merely a fact that can't be remedied. Fourteen returning lettermen contributed to Quantico's team, while Bob Seibert is the only man that played with the Doughs last year. In 1946, the much-heralded Doughs, who went undefeated to a national crown, boasted more than their share of stars, and even All-Americans. Look over the roster of stars playing at various colleges and universities this year, and note where they played ball. But as strong as the team was in 1946, Quantico fought valiantly before howling

Well, it's a bit of a sad week here on the Post but "You can't take it with you," so the thing before the team now is the remainder of the football season. If the team spirit is as good as I think it is, then I feel that Sunday, when the Doughs tangle with Fort Sam Houston here, a different and rejuvenated ball team will take the field.

In just three more weeks Captain Cedric Tallis will launch his Fort Benning backfield team on another loop venture that he hopes to make as successful as last year's stand. As the intramural league nears the stretch, Tallis is becoming more and more solicitous about the talent that will fall to him in a few weeks.

With the Airborne battalion and the 37th Infantry all tied up for the league leadership, speculation as to the winner mounts daily. The ISD still carries plenty of weight along with ACP Board No. 3.

You have probably noticed that most of the work in this corner has been given to the Doughs this week. Naturally, we can't stop talking about this terrible sheikening that the team took. Let's hope that this week will see the team bounce back victoriously.

Irish, Michigan Vie For Crown

Michigan and Notre Dame continued to set the pace in intercollegiate football this week with the mighty Wolverines virtually sewing up Rose Bowl bid as a result of their 14-7 victory over Illinois, while the much-heralded Irish from South Bend slid by the defeat-plagued Middles 21-0.

But, while 25 college elevens weathered the first November week end with their slates unblemished, one major team was hurled from the unbeaten ranks by a pugnacious Southern Methodist aggression. Many in this section of the nation gasped when the news was relayed to their homes that the Longhorns came out on the wrong end of a 14-13 loss. Many wondered, "How did it happen? Who was Bobby Lane?" Bobby Lane, a magnificent Doak Walker passed, ran, and kicked so superbly that the rolling Texans were turned back. Texas coming by SMU can not be termed an upset; SMU just hadn't gotten the publicity here in the South that Texas has. When the Longhorns smashed North Carolina, some were content in the thoughts that the Lone Star slaters were just plain "it." Well, it's another for the books.

Week's Predictions
But let's abandon the writing on the wall and get on with what's in store this week. As I've used usually comments, "Times a-wastin'." Last week, our able scribe, Charlie Martin, came through with an impressive record of 20 right, 5 wrong, and one tie—pretty accurate. But we'll dive right into the football picture this week, and begin here in our own Rebel country.

Alabama, on the comeback trail, has an idle week to prepare for their classic struggle with the Jackets from Georgia Tech. Southeastern Conference fans are holding up a big question mark about the game, Alabama, which was just another football team three weeks ago, has made a remarkable recovery and has emerged as the biggest threat to Tech's unbeaten record. But while the big Red rests, the Engineers tussle with an unpredictable Navy team at Baltimore. Navy, still trying to shake off "lose" fever, will be out for this one after being edged last season. Tech, plagued by injuries from the Duke game will be understrength and will have a tough job on their hands. Nevertheless, we pick Tech in a close one.

Auburn must go down before Mississippi State — Tidwell isn't enough. Florida are the underdogs against Wally Butts' none-too-impressive Bulldogs. But watch this one; those 'Gators are an up and coming team. Kentucky, still stung from their defeat by Alabama, is my guess to sprinck back into the winner's column. A decision over West Virginia, Tennessee, being consistently pushed that should be about the top game in the Midwest as far as the Rose goes. We'll pick Purdue in spite of the Gophers' great show against the Wolverines two weeks ago.

Texas Over Baylor
Bobby Lane and company are slated to bounce back with a win over formidable Baylor (with SMU to another Texas A&M. SMU has now been virtually enthroned as the Southwestern champion. Rice and Arkansas present another guesser's delight, but we'll lean towards the Owls in that one.

One can hear Southern Cal howling all the way to the East coast—they're loud and mighty this year. Stanford is the next victim, California, who reached a fourth step in the national poll, was kicked around brutally by the Trojans two Saturdays ago, and the Trojans have become the team on the coast and the likely opponent of Michigan in the Rose Bowl. UCLA should get by Oregon State while California is almost a sure bet against Washington.

Let's take another quick trip across our nation and stop briefly at the East. The pigskin will get plenty of activity up there, most of the best games of the week will feature Eastern teams. Penn will add another to their victory when they meet Virginia, while Penn State has a breather with Temple. Boston College and Wake Forest meet, and the Bostonians rate the choice of this corner. Other games in the East that merit mention run like this: Yale over Brown, Holy Cross to dump Colgate, Harvard in a win over Penn-leston Princeton, and the Old Liners from Maryland to edge roaring Rutgers.

LAWSON FIELD BOMBERS—In spite of a slow start and three defeats this season the Lawson Field Bombers are looking forward to happier basketball days, according to Toxic Bridges, team coach. Two of the reasons for the coach's optimistic outlook are M-Sgt. William C. River, center, and Cpl. Roy A. Farnell, guard, the team's newest members. The Bombers, shown above modeling their new maroon and white uniforms, are left to right: back row, Pfc. John C. McVoy, guard; Pfc. Fred D. Williams, center; Sgt. Eddie McCray, forward;

The team has entered the Infantry Center intramural league and the 15th Street YMCA league in Columbus.

TROOPERS CLIP LAWSON TO SHARE LEAGUE LEAD

A hot contest for the Post Intra-two weeks ago with an over-mural Basketball league lead has whelming victory over the 756th Airborne between the troopers of the Tankers, Lawson field provided the foot next climb up the ladder with soldiers of the 37th Infantry. Both the troopers booting the flyers by teams copped double wins this a top-sided 62-53 count.

Until last week, ACF Board No. 3 had ridden the victory train in five games, but fighting 37th five spanked them last Thursday night to the tune of 37-23. It was the first defeat for the Ground Force team, and sent them below with the lesser league contenders.

The infantrymen had a hey-day with the 756th Tankers, dumping them 40-13 at the Airborne gym Tuesday evening.

Bob Kinard, ace second baseman on the Doughboy baseball team, and rangy Bob Henderson have been sharing the point honors on the trooper team throughout league competition, but Capt. Bench who has been lending his hand in some of the lighter struggles, has put more of a scoring punch into the ball club.

Post Benning's Ordnance hoopers turned in the highest score of the week when Ratner and Rowlee led their mates to a 69-52 margin over the cellar spot Truckers from the 204th. Rowlee ran wild in the initial half, bucketing five baskets and adding three more in the latter frames. Ratner found his range in the second stanza of the game and looped seven baskets to run his evening's total to a neat 19 points to lead the scoring.

But the hard hitting quintet from the ISD smothered the 328th with a bucket barrage that gave the detachment boys a 56-16 victory, retaining their strong bid to a top berth later in the league stretch. Red-head Ken Nowles, who paced the ISDers last year, shot amuck against the Ordnance, getting off to a slow start, Nowles got hot in the second half, tallying eight goals.

It was the Engineers' night last

STR Bowlers Out Point 83rd

The 3rd Field Artillery battalion Officers' bowling team dropped another league match October 27 to the Student Training regiment bowlers.

The STR bested the artillerymen, amassing a neat total of 2,364 points, while the 83rd fell short, bowling the pins for 2,063.

Lt. Charles C. Magyar paced the winners with an average of 182 for his three games. Lt. George E. Beck averaged 164 to cop high point honors for the losers.

Thursday when the 78th turned in a 20-13 victory over the hapless 756th Tankers. With both quintets employing a tight zone defense, serial artists found it difficult to find their range. A final spurt by Nash gave the engineers the edge.

Will only three more weeks remaining in the Post league, competition is growing for berths on the Doughboy basketball team that opens up about Dec. 1. Players for the Post team will be selected from the host of players taking part in the intramural league, and all others who are interested, Capt. Tallis has announced.

Stellar Halfback Rejoins Doughs

Cosimo Cutri, speedy little halfback who has sparked the Doughboy attack in all contests before he was injured in the Fort Jackson tilt, will be back in the lineup Sunday against the Fort Sam Houston eleven.

In Saturday's battle against the Quantico Marines Cutri got into the struggle for only two plays before he was yanked out by Coach Butch Kendrick. His absence was sorely missed, and with him back in the lineup Benning ought to get in the win column at the expense of Fort Sam.

Medical authorities have stated that the tiny Californian's shoulder should have had ample time in which to heal, and after taking it easy this week in practice sessions would be ready to play.

Post Pet Owners Awarded Ribbons

First Sgt. John Rutka was presented a silver trophy by Major General John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, Sunday afternoon as the climax of the pet show sponsored by the Officers' club, Main Post, and Block 12 NCO clubs in Horseshow bowl.

Sergeant Rutka received the top prize of the afternoon for his entry Blue Barlark, a Kerry Blue entered in the miscellaneous section of the dog class.

The pet show, which General O'Daniel said he hoped would become a regular event with awards to be held in the spring, brought out approximately 500 spectators to the bowl which was a colorful scene with the animals in the center and bright battalion and company flags flying. Music for the afternoon was furnished by the 72d Army band.

Miss Lilyman Wines Ribbons were awarded for the first five places in most of the sections. In Class I, being designated as other pets, first place for the most unusual entry went to Miss Susan Jane Lillyman for her goat. Other places were taken by 1st Sgt. John Rutka for his parakeet, Col. R. B. Hill for his hen Gordon Singles for his parakeet, turkey, and Colonel Hill again for his tom turkey.

First place for the largest animal went to Colonel Hill for his hog, and first place for the smallest entry went to Sergeant Rutka for his parakeet.

In the Class II competition, the blue ribbon for the cat with the most colors went to Carol Sue Thompson for her tortoise, Nancy Bush received a blue ribbon for the largest cat with a Persian named Boots, and second place went to Wilber J. Whaiter for his Persian.

In the longest whiskers competition, first prize went to Nancy Bush, second to Carol Sue Thompson, and third to Miss Thompson, who entered a tortoise and an angora in this section.

In the first cat section, first place went to Nancy Bush, second to Carol Sue Thompson, third to Wilber White, and fourth to Fatu Burr.

Troopers Meet 37th Thursday In Crucial Tilt

The Airborne battalion's smashing '62-26 route of Lawson field and a subsequent 54-42 decision eased the Troopers of the battalion into a two-way tie with the 37th Infantry for the lead in the Post Intramural Basketball League.

Tuesday's bombardment of the flyers was paced by burly Bob Kinard and Herb Bench, the former sinking seven baskets and adding a charity toss for an evening's total of 15 markers.

A reorganized 301st quintet took the floor against the Troopers, from the battalion Thursday night and settled down to a steady business of hitting the three-point hoop. Although the 501st jumped to an early lead, the league leaders recovered from a slow start and climbed to an 11-11 deadlock as the initial stanza ended.

The accurate firing of Bob Henderson and Bob Kinard in the second count outshined the 501st and gave the Troopers a five-point edge at the intermission, leading 25-20.

The contest raged at a furious clip throughout the last half, but the Troopers managed to increase their lead gradually to 38-29 at the three-quarter mark and to break the tape with a comfortable 54-42 margin.

"Long Bob" Henderson loomed once again as the stellar marksman, amassing an impressive total of 23 points, while Myers starred for the 501st with a 12-mark aggregate.

Tonight, barring an upset of the Airborne by the 70th Engineers in Tuesday's game, the Troopers clash with the infantrymen of the 37th at the Airborne gym in a tilt that will eliminate one of the undefeated quintets from the ranks of the unblemished.

man, took first place for the English Setters; Randy, the entry of the 37th, took first for the Irish Setters; and Bella Von Hohen Tann, entry of Maj. W. J. Wolcott, took first in the Pointers section. In the general Bird dog section, Colonel Cole's entry was class. Colonel Cole's entry was first; Captain Lillyman's dog was second; the entry of Major Wolcott was third; John Henry, entered by Col. Gordon, was fourth; and Ginger's Lucky Star, entry of Colonel Hill, was fifth.

Following the competition, in which approximately 70 animals were shown, an exhibition of jumping was presided by a group of riders from the Post. Those riding were Major S. Beatty Jr., Point, and Lt. L. Lillyman riding Sir Milton and Blue Point, and M-Sgt. Walter Villmer riding Double Time.

Sport Quiz

(APFS)—1. Match the famed college names of recent years in column one with their equally famous receivers in column two:
 Sam Baugh Van Davis
 John Seigel John Seigel
 Frank Sinkwich Don Hutson
 Sid Luckman Don Hutson
 Dick Howell Walt Roach

2. The back who kicked three extra points and was the outstanding individual star in the 21-was: "Christy" game tie of 1926 was: Chris Castle, Tom Hamilton, "Light Horse" Harry Wilson, Buzz Borries?

3. Notoriously declared the greatest of the modern era basketball players, his first name is Angelo but he is most often called by his nickname of Hank. He played with Stanford and later with the professional Phillips Oilers. Name him.

4. The first American ever to fight for the world's heavyweight boxing championship was: Paddy Ryan, Joe Sullivan, Tom McInnean, Peter Jackson, Jake Kilrain?

5. Back at West Point now, Green has assumed duties as assistant line coach and as an official Army Scout.

"Here, here, don't spit on the floor?"

- ### ANSWERS
1. Baugh and Roach of TCU, Luckman and Siegel of Columbia, Sinkwich and Davis of Georgia, and Howell and Hutson of Alabama.
 2. Tom Hamilton, present Navy coach.
 3. Hank Luissetti.
 4. Tom McInnean, a Negro, who lost to Tommy Cribb in England in 1910.

A gambler died. The funeral was well-attended by his professional friends. In the eulogy, the speaker asserted, "Spike is not dead. He only sleeps." From the rear came the interrupting words, "I got $100 that says he's dead."

Former Dough Army's Scout

Former All-American John Green, the burly guard that captained the great Army eleven of 1945 and played superb ball with the Doughboys last year, is now a scout for Earl "Red" Blaik at West Point.

Playing through the "green" years with the Cadets, Green won three varsity letters at the Point and captured a spot on the All-American squad in 1945.

After his commission as an officer, Green was sent to Fort Benning for his Basic Officer's course, and during the time he was here, little John played under Coach Billy Meeke, adding handily to the Doughs' capture of the All-Service title in 1946.

Back at West Point now, Green has assumed duties as assistant line coach and as an official Army Scout.

Former Dough Mentor Leads 'Liner' Eleven

Billy Meeks, former head mentor of the Doughboys, has been having an exceptionally successful season as head coach of the Old Liners at Maryland this season.

Maryland, a school that has always been a lowly rated football aggregation, has bounced back into the headlines in this great year of gridiron history, and had the honor of stopping Delaware's long winning streak of 32 games early in the season.

West Virginia, who had gone undefeated until their clash with Penn State two weeks ago, is the most recent victim of the up and coming Marylanders, and was considered one of the strongest teams in the East this year.

The sole blemish on Maryland's record was a 19-7 setback by Duke's Blue Devils who went undefeated until Georgia Tech eked out a 7-0 decision last week at Atlanta.

Yet Maryland is still a year or two away from their peak. It looks as though Meeks is doing a real name before his coaching career is over.

Tankers To Play In Post League

The 156th Tankers haven't a "pin name" but they have organized a bowling team, and met for their initial practice session last Thursday.

Eight men have won spots on the Tanker team, and are led by Lt. Joe Patti, who bowled with the battalion foursome last year. There are four members on this season's agreement who bowled with the 1946 team.

Holder Is Alerted For Korean Duty

WOJG Henry D. Holder Jr., assistant motor officer of the 37th Infantry regiment, has been alerted for overseas shipment to Korea on Dec. 29, it was learned today.

Mr. Holder, who entered the Army in 1931, was promoted to warrant officer, junior grade, in 1942 at Camp Gordon, Ga., and served overseas with the Fourth Infantry division during the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes, Central Europe, and the Rhineland.

He wears the Bronze Star and the Belgian fourragere.

Del Campo To Leave Soon For Camp Lee

S-Sgt. Vincent A. Del Campo, Shreve company, 37th Infantry regiment, is expected to leave the post soon for Camp Lee, Va., where he will attend a Quartermaster and Supply School course opening November 7, it was announced today.

Sergeant Del Campo served overseas with the 36th Infantry regiment of the 7th division during the war and participated in the Leyte and Yvukus island campaigns. He has been assistant quartermaster supply sergeant of the 37th since coming here.

Two 83rd Officers Assigned To Korea

Capt. William H. Hickman and Lt. Gill Fowler, former members of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, have left Fort Benning for Camp Stoneman, Calif., and assignment to Korea, officials said today.

While at Fort Benning, Capt. Hickman was intelligence officer for the 83rd and Lt. Fowler was executive officer of Battery A and later assistant communications officer of Headquarters Battery. Both officers served in the Pacific area during the war.

Now In Fourth Week

Class B-3 of the Airborne battalion's Company A is now in its fourth week of training here with a total of 78 enlisted men and four officers enrolled. The students have completed their physical training test and 250-foot tower jump. They made their first jump from an aircraft last Monday.

This Day

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between October 31 and This Day November 6.)

October 31, 1864 . . . On This Day, 83 years ago Nevada was admitted to the Union . . . On This Day in 1926, 21 years ago Premier Mussolini of Italy escaped death by fraction of an inch. An 18-year old boy fired point blank at Mussolini while he was making a speech in Bologna. The bullet cut the sash in two and pierced his coat, but he escaped unhurt. The angry crowd killed the boy. Nineteen years later, in 1945, another angry mob put Mussolini to death before a firing squad.

November 1, 1777 . . . On This Day, 170 years ago, John Paul Jones sailed for France on the "Ranger" . . . On This Day, 58 years ago, record parachute jump was made by Sgt. Enzel Chambers, of the U. S. Army, who jumped from a ship 26,000 feet in the air over Kansas City.

November 2, 1795 . . . On This Day in 1795, James K. Polk was born in Mecklenburg county, North Carolina. In 1844, he became our 11th President . . . In 1865, on This Day, 82 years ago, the 29th President of the U. S. was born, Warren G. Harding, in Corsica, Ohio. On This Day in 1868, North and South Dakota became states.

November 3, 1796 . . . On This Day, 151 years ago, John Adams was elected second President of the United States. He was the father of a President, grandfather of a Minister to England, and great grandfather of a Secretary of the Navy . . . On this day in 1925, Lt. J. MacReady and O. A. Kelly made a non-stop record flight from San Diego, Calif., to Indianapolis, a distance of 2,060 miles.

November 4, 1791 . . . On This Day, 156 years ago, in 1791, American soldiers suffered one of their most serious defeats by the Indians. The Indians outwitted the Americans at Fort Recovery, Ohio, killing and wounding 800 as they fled in panic . . . On This Day, November 4 in 1798, the U. S. signed a treaty with Tripoli in which we agreed to pay $80,000 a year for the protection of American commerce from piracy . . . In 1859, 91 years ago, James Buchanan of Lancaster, Pa., was elected 15th President of U. S.

November 5, 1809 . . . It was on this day, 138 years ago, that William Torrey Harris died in Providence, R. I. He is listed as one of the greatest educators and philosophers of the 19th century . . . On this day, 25 years ago, in 1912, Woodrow Wilson was elected 28th President of the United States.

November 6, 1852 . . . Exactly 95 years ago on This Day, Edward Everett was appointed Secretary of State in President Fillmore's Cabinet . . . It was on This Day, 44 years ago, that the U. S. recognized the independence of Panama.

Two Officers Classes Now In Second Month

Advanced Officers classes No. 1 and 2 are completing the second month of their nine-month training course here. Class No. 1 has a total enrollment of 117 students, while class No. 2 boasts 125. Three Marine officers and five from Sweden, Peru, France, Turkey, and the Philippines are assigned to class No. 1. Class No. 2 has students from China, Mexico, Colombia, Argentina, and Great Britain as well as three National Guard officers.

Rader Awarded Medal

The Bronze Star was last week presented to T-4 Earl T. Rader, Headquarters company, 37th Infantry regiment, for "exemplary conduct in ground action against an armed enemy during the Luzon campaign as a member of the 35th Infantry regiment," it has been announced. He is at present assigned to duties in the company supply room.

M-SGT. ALBERT N. PUCKETT
... Bids Army Farewell

"WORLD'S BEST INSURANCE"
Lawson Field Sergeant Retires After 30 Years

"It's the best insurance in the world."
Those few words of advice on the subject of choosing the service as a career were expressed by M-Sgt. Albert K. Puckett, veteran of more than 30 years service, during special retirement ceremonies held in his honor at the Lawson field parade grounds last Saturday at 9 a. m.
After receiving his retirement papers, Sgt. Puckett reviewed the troops, with Col. Gilbert T. Collar, base commander, and base staff officers.
"I've been on duty a long time, one by mighty fast," the sergeant said today, looking back to 1913 and a little sadly, "when I first enlisted at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., time seems to have four years in Hawaii and was sta-

Air Force Slates 1948 OCS Opening For Early January

The first 1948 Air Force OCS class, beginning January 7 at the Air Indotrication Center, San Antonio, Texas, will be open to qualified enlisted men of all branches of the armed forces. Maj. James Hayden, president of the Air Force OCS board at Lawson field, announced today.
Local applicants for the six-month course will be interviewed by the Lawson field board until November 20, Major Hayden said.
Applicants must be U. S. citizens between 20 and one-half and 28 and one-half years old, hold an AGCT score of 110 or higher, have a high school education or its equivalent, and pass a complete physical examination.
Further information is available at Major Hayden's office, or telephone 2127.

Payne Is Transferred To Fort Bliss, Texas

M-Sgt. Houston Payne, Headquarters and Headquarters battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, has been transferred to the Artillery School at Fort Bliss, Tex., officials announced today.

Sgt. Payne, a former first lieutenant with the 746th Tank battalion, has been working with the supply section of his organization since coming here. He wears the Purple Heart for wounds received in action at St. Lo, France, during the war.
He came to Fort Benning with the 29th Infantry division in February, 1920 he spent four years out of the service and rejoined the 29th here in 1924.

Sgt. Puckett spent 16 years at Fort Benning and during that time won many honors as an expert rifleman in the National Rifle association. A graduate of Fort Benning's Automotive school, Sgt. Puckett left the post in November, 1940 for Camp Rucker, Ala., where he joined the 28th Engineer battalion. He transferred to the Air Forces in September, 1944, and was sent to Keester field, Miss. He later served with the Air Forces at Dover field, Del., and came to Lawson field in January, 1946. Until last Friday he served with the base motor pool as a technical adviser.
"I know I'll miss Army life; that's one reason I'm leaving in Columbus, so I can visit the post when I get blue for my old buddies," Sgt. Puckett said.

Sgt. Puckett and his family have called Columbus home for several years. Their children are George, a veteran of 28 months service in the ETO, and Ruth Lillian, age 9.

STEPHENS COPS ELEVENTH GRAND PRIZE AWARD

In copping the grand prize at the Infantry Center motor show, S-Sgt. Charles A. Stephens of Service battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, made it his 11th grand prize in as many entries.
Sergeant Stephens, motor sergeant of Service battery, walked off with his 11th win this time with a ten-ton wrecker. The secret of having a first prize vehicle lies in the ability to perfect the small errors, the sergeant reports. Every particle of old paint must be removed and replaced after the fashion of the finish of an automobile.
The 83rd Field Artillery was only a horse-drawn 75-mm gun battalion when the sergeant first came to Fort Benning in 1930. Until 1941, when he was sent to the ETO, he had accumulated 10 first prize vehicle awards. While overseas he served with the 550th Anti-Aircraft battalion as motor transportation sergeant, and helped set up the first POW camps in England.
The grand prize ten-ton wrecker in last week's show was driven by Pfc. Edward Green. Pfc. Green served overseas with the Third Infantry division in the Ardennes-Alsace, Southern France and Rhineland campaigns. He wears the Purple Heart for wounds received during the breaking of the Siegfried Line in Germany.

Benning Caravan Parades In 'Bama

A total of ten Fort Benning units, including 550 men and their equipment and 56 vehicles, participated in one of the South's largest Armistice Day celebrations held in Birmingham, Ala., Tuesday.

General Omar Bradley, head of the Veterans Administration, was the principal speaker and reviewing officer for the parade. A colorful ceremony at the courthouse at 9 o'clock preceded the parade.

Here at Fort Benning Armistice Day ceremonies were solemn and much quieter, but nevertheless impressive. The flag was at half-mast from reveille until 11 a. m. in memory of those who gave their lives in the service of their country during time of war. The 25th Infantry band rendered appropriate selections immediately before noon. At noon a 21-gun salute was fired by a battery of the 63rd Field Artillery battalion and the flag was hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

In the Birmingham ceremony, in addition to the Army units from Fort Benning, the National Guard and Reserve organizations of Alabama were also in the line of march. Units of the Marine Corps and Navy also were represented.

Commander of the Fort Benning troops was Col. Charles H. Royce, school troops commander, with Lt. Col. Harry M. Grizzard as his executive commander. Lt. Col. Jack M. Duncan was in.

Latin Colonel Now On Post

Lt. Col. Mirabeau Pontes, chief of the Joint General Staff of the Brazilian Army, arrived here Monday afternoon for a 10-day visit, in connection with Post Engineer officials in one of the many stops on his tour of U. S. Army installations.

The Brazilian, who came here from Fort Knox, is making a 60-day tour of military installations during which time he will conduct a study of housing, store, recreation and medical installations, maintenance, airfields, military schools, and training of U. S. military posts. Col. Pontes plans to apply the findings and results of his study to the construction of an armored division post which is being planned in southern Brazil.

Post Bares Plans For Thanksgiving

Dr. Pierce Harris To Speak At Fete

Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist church in Atlanta, will be guest speaker at a mammoth Thanksgiving celebration planned for Nov. 27 at 9:30 a. m. at Gowdy Field, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale announced today.

The Thanksgiving observance, which will be patriotic in nature, Chaplain Hale said. Several choirs and musicians, including the 32nd Army band, will also take part in the celebration, he reported. Approximately 4,000 people are expected to hear Dr. Harris, the chaplain announced. The Atlanta minister, a native Georgian, has served as pastor of churches in Columbus and Dalton, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., prior to his appointment to the Atlanta pastorate in December 1940. During his tenure in Jacksonville, more than 1,200 members were added to the Riverside Park Methodist church.

Adds 2,000 Members
Since taking over his duties in Atlanta, Dr. Harris has received 2,000 new members into his church. Chaplain Hale said that Dr. Harris is much in demand as a public speaker, and a man of great energy, delivering about 5,000 addresses a year to church groups, conferences, and conventions.

For the past three years, he has been editor of a column for the Atlanta Journal, and we now writes for the Miami Daily News as well as for several other newspapers.

A former baseball player, Dr. Harris is interested in sports and has been compared favorably with amateur golfers in the South. He has won more than 70 trophies

Dr. Pierce Harris.

Winn Returns From Parley

Col. Norman N. Winn, special service officer of the Infantry Center, returned Saturday from Washington, D. C., where he attended a four-day conference of Army Special Service Officers.

The conference, which opened Tuesday, November 4, dealt with subjects pertaining to the three services within the office of the chief of special services, the Army Recreational service, Army Exchange service, and Army Motion Picture service.

Various phases of entertainment and recreation, soldier shows, service clubs, music, manual arts, library services, recreational sports, and other general operations of special services were discussed. The Army's participation in the 1948 Olympic Games was discussed on the agenda.

Special service officers, representing the six Army headquarters, outlined a general policy for the coming year. Other matters discussed were personnel and financial matters, procurement and distribution of supplies, Army and Air Force bands, and the Special Services public information program.

Fuller Captures 2 First Places In Photo Contest

Lt. H. G. Fuller, 78th Engineer battalion, captured two first prizes in the Fort Benning competition of the Army-wide photography contest which closed here October 12.

Entering interesting views of Japanese scenery, Lt. Fuller walked off with honors in two categories, the General Pictorial division and the Foreign Landscape division. A first prize of ten dollars was awarded to the winner in each category.

Capt. Carl L. Erment, Airborne section, and Cpl. Wayne Anderson, 72nd Army band, were tied for second place in the General Pictorial category. Lt. Fuller's winning entries, along with the winning entries of the second place winners here, received five dollars each. The prizes for the Third Army competition will be announced later.

The ultimate winners in the Third Army contest will in turn be eligible for the All-Army War Department competition.

Held here over the past two and one-half months, the contest was open only to amateur photographers, with all military personnel eligible. The use of Signal Corps material and equipment not normally available for troops was prohibited.

Judges for the Fort Benning contest were B. McCollum, J. N. Parkman, and Don Johnson, all of Columbus.

Photos were entered in the following categories:

1. The mission and duties of the Army (daily life at a military installation, special events, etc.)
2. The Army of duty (recreation activities, etc.)
3. Foreign countries and people (landscapes, architecture, people, customs, etc.)

AACS Group In Celebration

The Airways and Air Communications system at Lawson Field, will celebrate its ninth anniversary as part of the Air Force with an open house, Saturday morning, Nov. 15, from 9 a. m. until 12 noon, base officials have announced.

The AACS is charged with transmitting all weather and flying conditions to pilots the world-over. Assigning and altitudes, keeping planes clear from one another, hanging and polling courses, and clearing the way for the Stars are all part of this station's work.

Before the war the AACS was just growing up. The global aspect of the work brought it into being as part of the world. Today the AACS is of particular help to the et-proposed F-100 Shooting Stars and long range bombers, as well as to the single engine reconnaissance plane.

Food School Began Post-Wide Baking

The pastry section of the Food Service school began this week baking pastries for the entire post. It was announced today by Maj. Patrick C. Dean, school commandant.

Hens which will be produced and delivered to unit messes by the Infantry Center ration breakdown section, are those appearing on the regular issue menu.

The amount of pastries baked during the past week included 32,000 hot rolls, 16,000 continental buns, 1,100 apple pies, and similar quantities of sandwiches, cookies, and other sweet meat products.

PROMOTED TO CORPORAL

Pfc. Charley E. Sewell, Battery A, 83rd Field Artillery battalion has been promoted to the grade of corporal, officials said today.

NEW REPLACES THE OLD—Pictured above is the new L-16A. Atrona replacement for the old war-time cub, which has been assigned to the 23rd Field Artillery battalion as a part of the School Troops air force. The new liaison plane has an 85 h.p. engine, weighs approximately 1,300 pounds including two passengers, flies two hours at 99 miles per hour, and lands at around 35 miles per hour. Crouching in front of the L-16A are the two officer-pilots and two enlisted mechanics. They are, left to right, Lt. Dayton L. Warren, T/4 Norman E. Moore, T/4 Bill E. Smith and Lt. Richard W. Call.—Photo by Dayton L. Warren.

INGENUITY PAYS OFF

Former Lawson Civilian Presented Cash Award

Herbert L. Langley, former civilian employe at Lawson field's Air Corps supply section, received proof this week that ingenuity pays off when he was presented a check for 75 dollars in recognition of an idea which he submitted under the War Department suggestion program.

Presentation of the award was made by Major John J. Moore, base S-1, during an informal ceremony in base headquarters.

While working in the stock record section of Air Corps supply, Mr. Langley noticed that the processing of stock record cards for reporting stock levels to Warner Robbins Air depot was a long and often inaccurate procedure. To help eliminate this burden, he studied the stock record system and found that the chief cause of delay and error was the one word "recorded."

In processing records, it was necessary for the auditor to write this word three times in a fairly small space. After checking hundreds of stock record cards and writing the word "recorded" 300-400 (or even 1,000) times, the monotonous and tiring work resulted in many errors, and often in illegible cards.

Langley, as a result of his study, decided that what was needed was a small rubber stamp which could be affixed to the end of the auditor's pencil. By using this stamp, all the recorder need do was reverse his pencil, stamp the word "recorded" three times, and initial each stamp. Adopting this suggestion has resulted in almost complete elimination of errors resulting from monotony and fatigue and has reduced the time required for processing the cards by 50 per cent.

Mr. Langley is no novice at this suggestion business. When he was working at the Post Ordnance automotive shop, he won a similar award for suggesting a bin-card system designed to facilitate identification of automotive parts. Now employed by Gordy Byco, in Columbus, Mr. Langley worked

False Thinking

We heard an amazing statement over the radio one night last week. Fact is, it startled us so that we could not believe we had heard aright; consequently we felt called upon to ask another listener to confirm it. As a rule, when such illogical ideas are poured forth, we do not even bother to comment upon them, mainly because they come from the poisonous pens and ignorant mouths of people not qualified to make statements anywhere, much less over the air. In this instance, however, we were shocked beyond credulity to hear one who is high in our government make such an obviously untrue remark, which, doubtlessly, will be fodder for those who are opposed to the Army. As a result we have decided to attempt a rebuttal.

This American statesman, apparently one of those who is against the Marshall Plan, the Truman Plan, and universal military training, said that the only reason we are having difficulty with Communism today is because high ranking Army officers fear their jobs unless they give the American people a "hooper bear."

What kind of thinking is this? We fear such ideas because they are certainly not the kind which will lend us unity in fighting a way of life opposed to ours if that way of life is determined to overthrow our way of life.

An analysis of this ideal will prove its falsity. First of all, the distinguished gentleman made a definite statement that the war time general feared the loss of his rank should we become too safe. He said that he would probably feel the same way should he suddenly find himself forced to return to civilian life and start all over again in business, knowing that he would be on the bottom rung of the ladder with a long way to go to reach the top.

What an unfounded idea that is. To begin with, a majority of the general officers—all so far as we know—who are still in the armed forces are career soldiers, either West Point graduates or those with equally good military education. They have no more intention of donning muffi, even though they be reduced to privates, than the distinguished gentleman has of entering the Army.

Secondly, they have learned, through their many years in the Army, to take what comes in their stride, to be men in the face of disappointments. We simply do not believe that any officer in whom high faith has been placed could, or would, be so ruthless as to use any person, any government, any ideal as a scapegoat merely to further his own selfish interests. It just does not sound reasonable that when the history of the Army and the careers of those who have led the Army during its long and glorious record are considered.

Thirdly, those men who left business behind to accept important posts in the Army during the war years have already returned to their civilian endeavors. These men were already business executives who had trained themselves, not for the Army but for civilian careers, and who gave freely of their organizational abilities to help America prosecute a successful war. They did not care for the Army as a career; they just wanted to help in their own way. And when the war was over, they returned to pick up their businesses, which had not deteriorated during the war, as the distinguished gentleman would have us believe. On the contrary, they had probably mushroomed.

Moreover, and in conclusion, most of the general officers who served so brilliantly during the war years could, without doubt, make more money on the outside than they could in the Army. Often when general officers retire, they accept jobs in civilian concerns with salaries far higher than those made while in uniform. Indeed, they need not stay in the Army to make good money, for capable administrators can, and often do, draw far higher salaries than the average general officer.

We believe that we have more than adequately answered the charges made against the Army and its general officers. We fail to see how such an argument as that advanced by the distinguished gentleman could possibly hold water under any circumstances.

Book Shelf

NOTHING SO STRANGE
James Hilton already has a fine reputation built on such successful novels as "Rand Harvest" and "Goodbye Mr. Chips," so another good story from him is no surprise.

Hilton is an accomplished story teller and has again put together a plot that holds the interest through what is at first a jumpy and developed against the strange background of world politics. It isn't a story of tremendous importance but is a skillful under writing of life against the background of the world at war. Actually there is terrific drama to the situation involving a young girl who becomes a successful writer and her friendship with a young scientist in a world being shaken by powerful political and scientific developments.

The story is told by Jane Waring, daughter of a wealthy American, and opens with an account of her question by Mr. Small of the government concerning her friend Brad, a scientist. Following the question she starts back over her meeting with Brad when she was in her teens, living with her parents, and going to school in London.

The story she unfolds through the book reveals the life of Brad as he studied in London, went to Europe to work with a scientist who was closely associated with the Nazis, married, and lost his wife. The war continues and brings Brad back to the United States after losing his wife under strange circumstances in America he joins the Army and after a hectic while flying is confined to a hospital for observation. The war never always left ladies a part in the situation adds highly to the interest, but the ending brings exactly the right explanation to make the book typical of Hilton's good work.

The book is not of tremendous importance but of contemporary stage of life in many ways, and yet readers will find that behind it is a feeling and a searching for a new philosophy which could only appear at exactly this stage of history. This element makes the book more important than it may appear to be after a single thought. Deeper consideration of the entire situation of the situation shown in this book may well prod the reader into thinking about the new way and in its subtle manner may lead many to face problems they have not considered before. Perhaps this is the first book to even in a subtle way point out that we are living in an atomic age whether we like it or not.

BY MURRAY E. HILL

Did you attend the formal opening of the new Red Cross chapter house in Columbus this past week?

The Red Cross chapter in Columbus is such an integral part of Fort Benning that anything affecting the chapter concerns all of us at Fort Benning.

Mark Note, chapter chairman and Miss Christine Berry are to be congratulated on their splendid building. For the first time all Red Cross activities in Columbus are under one roof. And activities of the Columbus chapter are multifarious, thanks to Miss Berry.

Fort Benning are vitally interested in these activities, for it is the Home Service department of the chapter which is directed to dependents of military personnel on the post.

The chapter in Columbus offers to the wives of all military personnel at Fort Benning an opportunity of the kind which Red Cross work anyone would wish to do.

There is ample opportunity for those who seek to help the production committee, to those who knit, to those who do needlework to be a nice thing to do. Nice for you to see what is going on, and to work with a scientist could use your help.

Then, of course, there are other committees, such as First Aid, Water Safety, Accident Prevention, Motor Corps, Nurses Aid, Canteen, Staff Aids, and that all the important committees of the Disaster committee.

Miss Christine Berry extends a cordial invitation to the ladies at Fort Benning to visit the chapter Red Cross work in doing so.

The spark plug of these activities is Miss Christine Berry, executive secretary of the Columbus chapter.

The Columbus chapter is to be congratulated on having such an efficient and energetic secretary, and we at Fort Benning are certainly fortunate in having such a fine Red Cross chapter in our adjacent community.

Let me invite you to Fort Benning to visit your new Red Cross chapter house in Columbus and meet all the wonderful people who give so freely of their time to the Red Cross.

There are less suicides among Negroes than among white persons in the United States, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica 1946 Book of the Year. Latest statistics reported that the suicide rate among white males, 756 per 100,000 negro males, 4.8 and Negro females, 1.3.

Chaplain's Corner.

LIFE'S TRAINING MANUAL
BY CHAPLAIN P. CANIS

Not many night ago I helped a neighbor assemble a new play pen for his six-month old daughter. In our anxiety to see the young miss in her new play yard we hastily screwed bolts here and there, adjusted the corner hinges and then gazed at the finished product. The floor didn't fit, the whole frame was out of shape, and it wobbled as if at any moment it would fall apart.

We decided it might be wise to consult the book of instructions which came with it. There we discovered that we had put the bolts in the wrong places, and carelessly fitted the sides; consequently we had to pull the thing apart and re-assemble it. If we had consulted the book in the first place, we could have saved ourselves all this extra time and trouble.

The Book! That's the way to get a job done right the first time. It's instructions are accurate, complete and time-saving. That is why the Army has many a training manual in them. You can find the quickest and most effective instruction for doing our various Army jobs and doing them well.

That is why you also have a Book of Instructions for your daily living. The Holy Bible. You can get along without it. You can throw your life together as we did and get lost. But it will be a disjointed thing at best, weak and tolering against the crucial experiences of life.

The Bible prepares us for these emergencies. Some of them it helps us avoid. It checks us when we carelessly get off the right path. It gives us instructions for living with others. We discover ourselves happy and contented within because we are building our lives according to God's Book of Instructions, the Holy Bible. Take your Bible out of its hiding place, open it, read it through. Give it a chance to change your life.

Doctor to Patient: "So, you're in again, Riley, and don't I tell you before about the evils of drink?"
Patient: "Yes, you did, Doc. I got in bad company."

Doctor: "And didn't I tell you that whiskey kills more men every year than bullets?"
Patient: "Yes, I remember now you did, Doc, but just the same, I would rather be full of whiskey than full of bullets."

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, and marks each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between November 7 and This Day, November 13.

November 7, 1811. . . . On This Day, 16 years ago, General William Henry Harrison defeated the Indians in the historic battle of Tippecanoe. . . . On This Day, 71 years ago, the nation voted in one of the most unusual and tightest presidential elections in history. Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio, defeated Samuel J. Tilden of New York, by the margin of one electoral vote.

November 8, 1861. . . . On This Day, 86 years ago, the famous Trent affair occurred, highlighted by the intercepting of the British ship Trent, with two diplomats of the Confederate States, bound for the U.S.S. San Jacinto, without instructions. . . . Exactly 58 years ago, in 1853, Montana became the 11th state.

November 9, 1872. . . . On This Day 14 persons lost their lives and $60,000,000 damage was done in the Boston fire. . . . It was on This Day, 41 years ago, President Theodore Roosevelt left for inspection of the Panama Canal marking the first time a president had ever left the country. . . . On This Day, 23 years ago, Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator from Massachusetts, died.

November 10, 1775. . . . Exactly 172 years ago the U. S. Marines Corps was created. . . . On This Day, 36 years ago, Andrew Carnegie, one of America's greatest philanthropists, gave $25,000,000 to the Carnegie Corporation. . . . In 1938 on This Day a new record was set, up to that time, for group parachute jumping; 16 persons leaped from a single plane at 2,000 feet over Roosevelt field, Long Island.

November 11, 1889. . . . On This Day, 59 years ago, the State of Washington was admitted to the Union. . . . It was 38 years ago that Pearl Harbor was selected as the U. S. Navy base for the Pacific. . . . On This Day, 29 years ago, in 1918 World War I ended.

November 12, 1906. . . . On This Day, 32 years ago, Thomas A. Edison was awarded the Nobel prize for Physics. . . . On This Day, 70 years ago, General William Rufus Shafter, prominent figure in the Spanish-American war, died in California.

November 13, 1817. . . . On This Day, 130 years ago, William Witt was appointed Attorney General of the United States. . . . Exactly 80 years ago, the U. S. Army established a Coast Artillery School at historic Fort Monroe, Va.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

ESCAPE ME NEVER (romantic drama) with Errol Flynn, Ida Lupino, and Eleanor Parker. Errol Flynn, as a philandering vagabond musician, brings misery to his friends and family by his irresponsible behavior and romantic escapades. Recommended for adult.

THE CRIME DOCTOR'S GAMBLE (detective) with Warner Baxter, Michelle Chierel, and Roger Dann. Visiting Paris on a holiday, Warner Baxter finds himself helping to solve a French murder mystery. Recommended for family.

LOVE FROM A STRANGER (mystery) with John Hodiak, Sylvia Sidney, and Ann Richards. A pretty girl, a 40,000-pound sweepstakes prize, and a mysterious stranger are involved in strange goings-on. Recommended for family.

DRUMS ALONG THE MOHAWK (pioneer days) with Claudette Colbert, Henry Fonda, and Edna May Oliver. The excitement and hardship of pioneer life in the Mohawk valley as the settlers battle the Indians in an effort to establish homes in the wilderness. Recommended for family.

IT HAD TO BE YOU (fantasy-comedy) with Cornel Wilde and Ginger Rogers. Pursued by a man in an Indian suit, Ginger Rogers learns he was created by her in a dream. If this sounds whacky—it is, for what follows produces plenty of laughs and one of the dizziest comedies of the season. Recommended for adult.

European Needs Discussed At Meet, Violinist Applauded

A beautiful, unostentatious program was presented by Mrs. Richard Sandusky and her co-chairman, Mrs. William C. Rinaldi, when the literature and arts group of the Fort Benning Women's club met Monday afternoon at the small home of the officers' club with a capacity attendance of members and guests from Columbus enjoying the affair.

In a gracious introduction Mrs. Sandusky expressed her appreciation to Mrs. Margaret Moon, violinist, and Mrs. Kendrick Kiere, her accompanist. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace W. Hale and Chaplain (Capt.) Russell Kersch for their interest in appearing before the group.

Mrs. Moon then played the familiar and beloved "Ave Maria" by Schubert and her second number was preceeded by a short talk on the interesting history of her copy of "Ave Maria" which she took to Russia in 1937. She then played a Russian song, "The Song of the Russian People," which she had written in the middle and the struggle with death in the end.

Chaplain Hale's response to Mrs. Sandusky's introduction was an interesting talk on conditions in present Italy. "All Italy are a result of their history and Italy is no exception," the Chaplain said. He gave a brief survey of the history of Italy, reminding the group that Italy has always been a battle ground and in the present time she is now trying to recover from the war, based by many internal problems and the dissection sowed by the Communists. There is hunger and poverty in Italy and many things which they still have something to give the world.

Her plan is one that should appeal to women because of the personal contact. She has names available of those in need so that the sender of food or clothing is giving to an individual.

Mrs. Moon's phone number in Columbus is 4-2739 and anyone interested may call her for names or information as to what to send and as to the customs and mailing procedure in the various countries.

Mrs. Moon completed her program with two Fritz Kreisler pieces, "Midnight Bells" and "Lullaby," followed by a Hungarian Gypsy number, "Zardas," by Kele Bela. Her encore was an Irish song, "The Wanderer's Air."

The meeting adjourned as Mrs. Sandusky expressed her thanks to those who made it such a successful event and all extended the ladies of the next meeting to hold December 8.

Parents Hear Of Scout Work During Council Fire Program

Approximately 100 parents attended the council fire program of the Girl Scouts of the South, which was designed especially for the parents of the Girl Scouts and Brownies on the Post.

The cabin was beautifully decorated for the event and light was furnished by tall burning tapers. The mantle and walls were arranged with bright autumn leaves.

Decorations were taken care of by the "Brownies and Intermediate Troop."

Mrs. H. H. Walker, Scout commissioner, and Mrs. A. C. Brill, program director, were in charge of arrangements for the meeting at which Mrs. M. J. Mastaler acted as mistress of ceremonies.

A bugle call opened the program and was followed by a salute to the flag. The girls gave a Girl Scout promise and the entire assembly sang America with Carolyn Milligan as accompanist.

Mrs. Carl E. Frisby gave the main talk of the program. She spoke on the serious aspect of scouting in connection with community life and cooperation. The Brownies contributed to the program as they sang their Smile song, and this was followed by an Indian story, "The Boy and the Mink." The singing of the Girl Scout song and taps brought the program to a close after all the leaders and assistant leaders had stood and introduced themselves to the parents.

Col. Wilson Feted At Party Given For Polo Players

To honor the Fort Benning polo team, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Wesley U. Moran entertained at their quarters Sunday with a delightful social party.

Highlighting the event was the presentation, made by Major General John W. Daniel, of a silver cigarette box to Lt. Col. O. C. Wilson. The gift was from the members of the Post team in appreciation of Colonel Wilson's work as team manager.

Guests were served cocktails and light refreshments and the hostess decorated the rooms with colorful arrangements of yellow and white chrysanthemums and bright fall leaves.

The guests were Major General and Mrs. John W. Daniel, Col. and Mrs. J. A. Nichols, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard G. Collins, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. Smith, Lt. Col. and Mrs. O. G. Wilson, Major and Mrs. George S. Beatty Jr., Mrs. E. B. Jacobs, Major and Mrs. J. M. Flesch, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Lillyman, Capt. and Mrs. Magnus Smith, Lt. and Mrs. G. O. Parents Invited To Visit School; P-TA Date Set

In connection with American Education Week, parents of Fort Benning school children are urged to visit their schools here in school this week, it was announced by Mrs. Albert C. Blakey, president of the P-TA.

The theme for the Education Week is "The School Is Yours," Mrs. Blakey explained, and said all parents are invited to visit the school and see the rooms used by their children.

At the same time Mrs. Haley said the meeting of the P-TA originally scheduled for November 21, with Miss Mary Brooks as speaker, has been postponed because of the concert to be given the same evening at the Main Post theater when Angel Reyes, violinist, will appear.

Tea Is Highlight Of Affairs Held At Lawson Field

Highlighting social events at Lawson field last week was the woman's club first tea of the fall season, which took place at the Base Officers' Club Tuesday afternoon.

The committee for the affair included Mrs. Joseph Lewandoski, Mrs. John Wretschko, Mrs. James Sever, Mrs. Malcolm Sprounce, and Mrs. William Waters.

The long tea table, placed at one end of the sun porch, was covered with a white floor-length cloth of exquisite lace and delicately embroidered. Brilliantly colored glass in a low silver bowl of delicate design centered the table and were flanked by white paper in three-branched silver candelabra. An elegant tea service was arranged at one end of the table and crystal trays with pastel tinted party sandwiches and silver compotes filled with mints and nuts completed the table appointments.

Parents Invited To Visit School; P-TA Date Set

Miss Brooks has agreed to speak at a P-TA meeting here in the early spring since that will be a more convenient date.

The regular monthly meeting of the P-TA will be held November 20 at 3 p. m. in the auditorium of the Post Children's school. A special feature of the program will be several vocal numbers by Mrs. L. H. Gammert.

Beautiful Table Seen At Tea Given By Mrs. R. Hill

One of the most gracious affairs of the fall season was the lovely tea given Monday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Hill at her quarters following the meeting of the literature and art group of the Woman's club, of which Mrs. Hill is president.

The event was given to honor Mrs. Maureen Moon, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, and Chaplain (Capt.) Russell Kirsch, the speakers at the literature and art group.

The tea table was particularly beautiful and was overlaid with a lovely cloth. Venetian glass centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums in an attractive low silver basket and was flanked by burning yellow tapers in large candelabra.

Silver services were at each end of the table and tea and coffee both being served. The ladies pouring were Mesdames Wiley McDonald, Richard Sandusky, Earl Johnson, and Frank Ward.

Approximately 100 guests, including the members of the Woman's club, guests from Columbus, and a wide group of friends from the Post, attended the event and found the rooms open to the guests decorated with beautiful arrangements of var-colored chrysanthemums.

AIR TO GROUND STATION—An important duty of the AAC'S unit at Lawson field is the handling of position reports, changes in flight plans, and weather broadcasts to transient aircraft. S/Sgt. Ismael Espinoza, above, is in the process of taking a position report from an aircraft, thus insuring an accurate record of its flight.

A MAN BEHIND THE SCENES—Sgt. Arnold H. Shelton, from his position in the control tower, gives landing instructions to an aircraft coming in at Lawson field. He also directs other traffic which hits the vicinity at the same time.

SPOTTING AIRCRAFT—A pair of high-powered binoculars are kept in the control tower for visual identification. Here Sgt. Austin J. Van Duzer uses them to identify an aircraft by its type and serial number. This means of identification is often used when it is impossible to contact the aircraft by radio.

GUIDING HAND—The control tower is the center of activity at Lawson field. From the tower, landing and take-off instructions are issued to aircraft along with altimeter readings, weather reports, and other messages necessary to safeguard pilots, their crew, and the aircraft.

LOGGING COMMUNICATIONS—Both incoming and outgoing messages are logged throughout the day and night by tower operators. Here Cpl. Jack E. Hough is pictured entering a transmission on the log.

Lawson's AACCS Unit Observes 9th Birthday

The Airways and Air Communications service at Lawson Field will celebrate its ninth anniversary on an activated week beginning November 17. The first flight unit directly assigned for duty to Lawson Field from Maxwell Field, Ala., began operations here May 4, 1938.

This communication detachment is charged with the operation of all air traffic in the vicinity. To do this job effectively, they have divided their department into four components: the tower, the air to ground station, the maintenance section, and the check house. Each section has a number chief who supervises the duties and reports in coordination with the detachment head.

All personnel of the unit have attended technical periodic sessions from the check house to the maintenance. They also receive instructions during the form of direction from tower headquarters. One of the many changes in personnel in the communication section.

One notable error, being the number of notices for the detachment, is a small but serious "radio station," placed accordingly on the radio, which the ground crew may be directed to about operations. It is a small error that shows the serious level of the field in providing the handling of making correct and valuable.

It is an error which may be easily corrected, as the detached tower communication, identifying the importance of the fact concerning the which has to be maintained in all lines between each aircraft and the section.

The first element of the AACCS unit is getting plans early as the first controlling these flights, and making them ready at their destination. This, however, is only a part of the many other important duties for the Airways and Air Communications service.

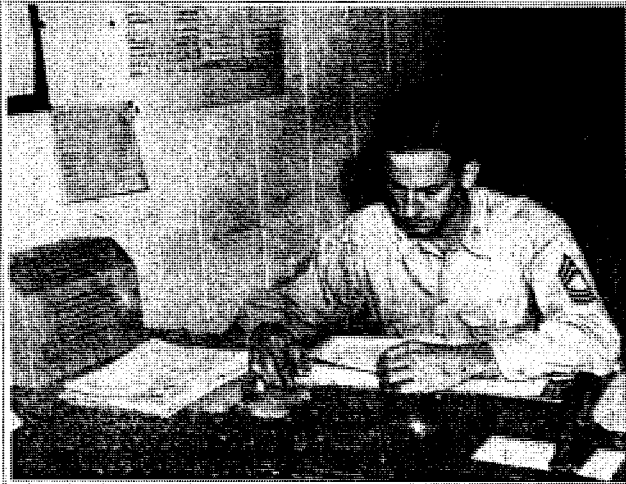

CONTROL ROOM—Used mostly during night flying and cloudy weather, the control tower's equipment without panel, directly beneath runway, markers, flood lights, rotating beacons, and other electronic marking lights. W/pt. Fred G. Jacobs, above, using tower operator, items of the lights which were used during the previous night.

MEASUREMENT INSTRUMENTS—At Lawson it is impossible to enter the crash department by radio stations, before operators demand an instrument to give advice to the crash crew located just below the tower. Here Sgt. Stanley J. Van Meter communicates this method.

MEANING REPAIRS—W/pt. Nicholas Hunsinger together a communication unit and another in his place. Who is able one of the many important jobs done by the AACCS maintenance section.

CHIEF'S HALF FROCKING—Noble and Vajshakian for daily communication changes give W/pt. James H. Sims, section chief of the Airways and Air Communications service at Lawson Field, a full-time job. It is his duty by making the necessary changes and to inform other communication personnel of the changes.

Doughs Clip Fort Sam 53-0

Perrydy Shines With Aerial Show

Don Perrydy, a do-all halfback, had his hand in everything but the water bucket Sunday afternoon as the Doughboys exploded with a burst of power that completely routed the Fort Sam Houston Warriors 53-0 before some 7,000 cheering onlookers.

The Warriors, in supplying the Doughs' sixth victim, gave the local fans a real spectacle, for the fighting Texans played to the last breath hoping to turn the tide their way with remarkable goal line stands in the second quarter after the Doughs had clicked two quick touchdowns in the first stanza. But superior weight and power whittled the Texans' lead, and before the final canto came around the Doughboys were out in front 47-0.

Butch Kendall's once-defeated soldier eleven got back into form, passing, running, and blocking with such effectiveness that the Houston aggregation could count the times they had the pigskin on two hands. It was the same Doughboy team that had been so heralded before falling heavily before Quantico, for the Doughboy attack was faultless and ferocious.

Score Early

Just three plays after Houston kicked off, the Doughs were over the goal for a score. Perrydy returned a bounding kick to the Texans' 41, and the first offensive play was a 14-yard shot to Harold Lutz. Bob Seibert added seven down the middle, and Perrydy outgassed the defense skirting his own left end for 21 yards and the initial score.

Two more threats were killed by Houston at the goal line, but late in the period the Doughs began an unsustained drive on the opening play. Perrydy's seven-yard pass to Harold Lutz, a 12-yard smash and a first down on the Sam Houston 43. Don Sull, a reserve half who played a magnificent game, fired to Seivert on the 38. Wilbur Ross found a big hole and dashed for a first down on the eight-yard marker where Seibert danced the remaining distance for the score. For the second time Harold Lutz's toe was effective, and the Doughs led 14-0.

Both teams passed furiously in the next stanza, and while most of the play was in Houston territory, deep manning, the Doughs were unable to find the scoring punch. The accurate shooting of Don Jackson, tricky fiddle seven-tailback, kept the Doughs on their toes and the Texans in the game. When the intermission was sound-ended, the Houstoners were in no more trouble than they were 15 minutes before.

Five in Third

There must have been plenty said in the Doughboy locker-room at half time for a new Doughboy team took the field in the final two periods. Houston was tagged for no less than five touchdowns in the third canto and the Lone Star Staters scarcely had a chance to catch a breath in the track to meet. Everybody, including the linemen, chewed off a piece of the "piggy cane." Charles Jones decided that Jackson wouldn't get his pass off on one occasion and impolitely started the ball from the arched arm, running go-ahead midway in the third quarter. The longest play of the day came when Don Perrydy touched Harold Lutz at the Houston 40 for a touchdown. Perrydy later

Scatback Cutri May Be Ready For Fort Riley

Cosimo Cutri, who was thought to be out of the Doughboy lineup, may be ready for the Fort Riley tilt scheduled to be played at Doughboy stadium Nov. 23.

Suffering a severely bruised shoulder at Quantico, Cutri's condition was such that the doctors were afraid the running threat scat back would be out for the balance of the season. However, Cutri has shown such improvement that he may get the go ahead in a few days.

Before his injury, little Cosimo was the main running ace on the Benning team, and had personally accounted for enough yardage to lead all teammates and opponents in rushing from scrimmage. Cutri's return to the Benning backfield would do much to smooth-out that Doughboy running attack when they meet the star-studded gridders from Kansas in a game that promises to be one of the toughest of the year.

Officers Take Bowling Match

Bowling at the 83rd Field Artillery hasn't been faring too well this year, and last Monday the lone top happy artillerymen dropped another decision to the T.L.S. V.A. of the Officers' League, 2,074 to 2,072, in one of the slightest matches thus far in competition. The 83rd won one point out of four for the match by virtue of copping the second game. Col. C. E. Beauchamp paced the starters with a 169 average, while Lt. Dayton L. Warren, main spark on the loser outfit, led the evening's scoring with a neat 170.

Locals To Battle Marines Sunday

After bouncing back into the win column with a 53-0 lopsided over the Fort Sam Houston Warriors last week, Coach Butch Kendall has been working his charges intensively for their second clash with the Cherry Point Marines to be played at Doughboy stadium Sunday.

Hoping to make it a more impressive victory than the last, the Doughboys have been smoothing out their passing and running attacks that clicked so well against the Texans. In the last meeting the Marines held the Doughs to a slim two-point winning margin, and nearly copped a victory in the waning minutes of the ball game. Since the two grid aggregations clashed last September, the Doughboys have improved considerably, and with the exception of their one set-back by Quantico, their record is clean. The soldier eleven will go into the game about a two-touchdown favorite.

Several Injuries

Injuries still plague the Benning team, Bob Cottey, an able reserve guard, was banged up pretty badly during the Fort Sam fracas and may be out for the remainder of the season. Along with him are Cosimo Cutri, ace scat back, and Bill Austin, another valuable guard. Bill Thurman and Perrydy also showed the fans that in the Doughboy lineup, are still, but should be ready for and far. Bob Seibert, perhaps the most versatile of Benning backs,

Bill Cottey Injured During Sunday Tilt

Bill Cottey, alternate right guard on the Doughboy football team, may be out of action for the remainder of the season, it was announced today by the athletic office. During the Fort Sam Houston game last Sunday, Cottey was pretty badly injured when he tackled Don Jackson, star Doughboy tailback, on a punt return. Cottey is reported to have shoulder and hip complications, but there is no danger of any permanent injury to the Benning line stalwart.

... Player-of-Week

Slinging Tailback Reaps Grid Honor

In one of his finest performances of the 1947 season, Don Perrody stole the show at Doughboy stadium, and paced his soldier teammates to a 53-0 victory over the Fort Sam Houston Warriors last Sunday.

By virtue of his splendid exhibition against the Texans, Don Perrody has been voted player-of-the-week and has now taken his place among the "heralded" Doughboys.

Hailing from Reno, Nevada, the 185-pound pass-slinging tailback is not new to football. Prior to his entry into the army, Perrody played a great deal of football, attaining high honors in high school.

Played With Kline

At Fort McClellan, Ala., Perrody played with Otis Kline, All-American fullback from Ohio State in 1945.

In last Sunday's game Perrody put on a real show for 7,000 fans, tagging receivers seven times in his nine tries. The pigskin tossing ace personally scored one touchdown on a beautiful cross buck and fired long throws for two other touchdowns. Not satisfied here, Perrody was instrumental in setting up two other tallies.

Perrody's success as Doughboy's leading aerial artist has come gradually, and with every game he seems to show even greater potentialities. In the Fort Sam Houston tilt, during Don exhibited fine running ability, and provided some fine interference for his ambulating mates.

Moves Fast

Short in stature, the sandy haired halfback whallops a mighty punch, and is one of the fleetest backs on Butch Kendrick's enviable squad. A level headed ball carrier, Perrody appears to be one of the most unconcerned of players when on the gridiron, but his dangerous arm is fast to find catchers, and his legs move high and fast when need be.

During the tilt with Fort Sam last week, Perrody looked very much like the ironman from Georgia's 1946 champions, Charlie Trippi, on one play. With the ball resting on the Texans' 35-yard marker, Bob Scallorn, then calling signals, selected a pass play. Perrody, unable to find a man open, began to dance around the field, running back and forth so long that his red jersey was practically lost in the host of purple surrounding the cornered halfback.

But, for what seemed a eternity, Perrody evaded and shook off tackler after tackler before finally dropping the ball into the hands of waiting Willie Ross, who had long before become bored standing in the end zone.

Perrody counted for 195 yards with his passes, and added nearly another 190 carrying the ball himself. His day's total nearly halved the yardage gained by the entire team.

Coady Receives First Lieutenantry in Cavalry

Capt. Gerald G. Coady, S-3 of the 756th Armored Tank Battalion, has received a Regular Army commission with the rank of first lieutenant of cavalry. It was announced today.

Capt. Coady served as a company commander with the 899th Tank Destroyer Battalion during the war and was overseas for 35 months. He has been awarded seven battle stars, Silver Star with cluster, Bronze Star, and Purple Heart with cluster.

WGBA Broadcasts Doughboy Games

Last week WGBA, new radio station in Columbus, broadcast the Fort Benning-Fort Sam Houston game from Doughboy stadium.

WGBA has made arrangements with Post officials to carry the three remaining Doughboy games over their network. Each Sunday at 2 P. m. tune in on WGBA, 620 on your dial, to get a full account of the Fort Benning-Doughboy football team.

AGF Board Sinks Tanker Five, 29-19

The AGF board sent the 756th tankers deeper into the hole last Thursday night with a 29-19 victory over the loser division five.

Although the tilt went nip and tuck for the first half, the AGF managed to show a burst of power in the closing half to mount a comfortable lead. Lt. Ken Watts, former ace southpaw pitcher on the Doughboy baseball team, paced the losers with 11 strikeouts.

Second Guessing

by
RALEIGH GREENE

Fort Benning's Doughboys again climbed on the victory train with a 53-0 victory over the Fort Sam Houston Warriors Sunday. It marked the Doughs' sixth win of the season in their seven seasonal starts.

Unfortunately, I was not on hand when Quantico handed the Doughs their sole defeat in 18 games. I was among the large group that had to ask, 'how?' And after seeing the Benning eleven bounce back yesterday in such splendid fashion, I, too, wonder just how such a defeat came about. But, every team, regardless of record, power, or potentialities, must necessarily have a bad day. Benning's came, and it looks as though the storm is over.

Kendrick's team put on another fine exhibition for the fans Sunday—the same type of play that carried them victorious in the first five games. The offense was excellent, while the line play was even above the usual admirable. Fort Benning has one of the finest forward walls in this section of the country. No team this year has been able to puncture that impregnable middle, including a fiery Quantico eleven. Benning's main trouble seems to be passing defense. Even Fort Sam was able to complete a few passes that almost netted touchdowns, and against good teams that hurts.

...However, Charlie Martin, who covered the Quantico affair, brought forth the fact that the defense against the passes was far better than it had been against the Marines. A closer formation seems to do the trick, and the feet Benning backs can cover plenty of ground when they have to. If the Doughs continue to improve their passing attack, their chances of defeating Fort Riley and Jacksonville Naval Air station will be greatly augmented.

The tilts with Fort Riley and Jacksonville will be two of the toughest on the Doughboy schedule. Both teams have plenty of depth, and are helped along by some star-studded linemen and backs. Fortunately, Glenn Davis will not be playing with Riley, but they have some former Army gridders who will be noticeable. Bill Fuson, who was an expert center at the Point in 1946, is playing first string for the Kansans.

Two scouts, Leathernecks, were up from Jax to scout the Doughs Sunday. They told me, during a conversation after the ball game, that the Doughs would run up against plenty of opposition when they meet the Sailors here Nov. 30. Both agreed that Benning's line was tops, but pointed to that pass defense time and again. Evidently, Jacksonville has a passing team, and the scouts ventured to say that unless Benning's pass defense improved considerably, Naval aerial artists might very easily pass the Soldier dizzy. It's a fault that has to be remedied fast, but I'm sure everybody knows that.

Just a word to the fans. It was pretty quiet last Sunday at the stadium. Why we could even hear the sound of peanuts above the voices of the crowd was called this morning by a number of ardent fans and reminded of the fact I didn't have to be reminded. I, too, was at the ball game, and I know exactly what those fans meant. The Doughboys are your team—I am sure every player has the good of the Post reputation at heart. It seems a little more of the "get up and yell" spirit would help. How about it?

Coach Ced Tallis, holding the reins of the basketball team for the second year, will open his Doughboys against Birmingham's Howard college, Dec. 5. Word has come that Howard is one of the toughest foes the loopsters will face this season.

Last year's Southeastern AAU Champions, the Benning five won 33 and dropped nine for a very successful season. Capt. Tallis is well known on this Post for his ability as a basketball coach. We expect that with Tallis back in the saddle Fort Benning will again see another champion basketball team.

The Intramural Basketball league is really turning into a tight affair. The Airborne battalion and the 27th Infantry continue to battle it out with the 15D and ACF Bands No. 3 fighting for the top notch spot. As I said, the league is tight, and it's really difficult to spot the best team.

A suggestion was made the other day that a playoff should be run with the top division teams, or even all the teams participating, for the championship. It sounds like a very good idea, and he who determines a winner—I'll tell you why. We'll take a hypothetical case. Joe Blow's ace team has won 10 games with no defeats, while the Slippery Rock five have dropped one in their ten starts. Now which of these teams is the better team? True one has a better record with no defeats, but is that a genuine criterion for a championship choice? I think not. So, I believe such a playoff would be highly advisable, and I certainly think it would please a lot of people.

National Crown Still A Toss-Up

By RALPH GREENE.
 But it wasn't an upset this time. Yes, the once invincible Army went down before an even more potent Irish eleven at South Bend last Saturday. We predicted it would be Notre Dame all the way, but there were plenty of candidates on the West and those West Pointers had plenty of fight. Yet, the Army was no match for the national champs, and the once mighty Army is no more.

Meanwhile, up at Ann Arbor the roving Wolverines smashed Indiana, adding another mile to their road leading to California and the Bowl of Roses. Should Michigan get by unharmed, but formidable, Wisconsin—this week there will be nothing to stop Michigan from meeting Southern Cal on Jan. 1.

Ohio State and Wake Forest shattered our pickings last week with one-point decisions over favored opponents. Still this corner came out with a fairly good average of 22 right, 4 wrong, and the Holy Cross-Colgate tie. Last week's results ran pretty much the way the "callers" anticipated, and except for Missouri's white-washing Duke, football ran in the proper channels.

Virginia Dumped
 The only major college football team to be dumped from the unseasonable was Virginia, who tripped 19-7 before the East's powerful Penn aggregation. Eight first class elevens have managed to keep their faces clean, and of course, the two top teams in the nation are still Notre Dame and Michigan. You'll be hearing those two names until next September when the '48 season gets under way.

Flyer Bowling In Full Swing

John Burniston's bowling aggregation now leads the Lawson Tech boys in the 4-241 pinning for six games. Three other teams are running close for second place honors, and a present Joe Durkey's pinners are headed by Durgey or Jim King and Shirley with 2,651 pins.

The top high averages are John Burniston and Jim King who have posted a mean score of 171. Ted Britt falls next line with a neat 162 game average.

It has been rumored that in the very near future the enlisted men's league will meet the officers' league in a three-game series, but this is still in the speculative stages, it was announced at Lawson field.

Lawson enlisted keptles missed out in the first round of the Fort Benning league, but have managed to place in the second round which is scheduled to begin Dec. 1.

situation over. There will be plenty of good football up there Saturday, and the most noteworthy game will be the contest between Penn. We like the Quakers to continue their victory march. Boston College should have little trouble with Tennessee, while Loti Telle's boys will be the victors in the contest with Wake Forest. North Carolina meets the Old Liners, and as much as we like Maryland, we'll have to give the nod to the Tarheels. Yale will defeat Virginia, and the Wolverines of West Virginia, and Michigan State rates first place with Temple. Rutgers will corral Army, and Dartmouth will another Connecticut. Brown should take Harvard and Colgate should nip Syracuse.

Out to where the power is the most powerful, the crystal ball reads Notre Dame, Michigan, Notre Dame, Michigan. The Irish should have an easy time with Northwestern, but the Wolverines will be put to test when Wisconsin takes a shot at the Big Nine leaders. Kansas will battle Oklahoma A&M, with Minnesota the easy winner over Iowa. Indiana, fully recuperated from defeat by Michigan, will bounce back to slap Marquette handily. Texas-beaten Baylor will have too much to worry about when they play once mighty Tulsa. Poor Ohio State is in for another setback his time by the fighting team.

The Southwestern conference leaders, Southern Methodist, have it in for Arkansas, and I don't see much that could hold it out. Rice will take A&M, while the Longhorns, with Bobby Lane, are defeating TCU.

Utah, still unbeaten, until, and very, very noisy in the West, will add another victory with a win over Idaho. California plays a mediocre Montana in a breather, with Oregon State and Washington State meeting in an inter-sectional affair that should see the lower countrymen triumph. Santa Clara will drizzle St. Mary's up and down the field—wait and see. UCLA, out of the running now is our choice to down Washington. Rose Bowlers will have to wait another week before they see the mighty Trojans play again.

And that about concludes our little get-together for the week's football. The best games of the week, if you are interested in football, will be Penn-Army, Aech-Alabama, Michigan-Wisconsin.

As far as statistical evidence is forthcoming, there is a preponderance of men at birth throughout the human race.

CELLAR SLOT LOOPSTER HIGH SCORING LEADER

A hot race for individual high point scoring honors goes on full blast in the Post International basketball league with Albert Ratner, 228th Ordnance battalion, leading the host of loopsters with 24 points scored in six games for a 15.5 point average per game.

Ratner, under the handicap of playing with a losing ball club, has tallied almost one-third of his team's total points, and has shown no signs of a slump this week. He has never scored less than 12 markers in any tilt.

Down at the Airborne battalion, Long Bob Henderson continues to spark the loop leaders with 24 points, but he falls far short of Ratner since Henderson has played seven games. His average dropped considerably last week when the lanky forward had an "off" night, finding the basket only once in a game with the 78th Engineers. Bob Kihard, Henderson's sharp shooting mate, started slow this season, but has boosted his total count considerably during the last three scheduled meetings. Kihard now ranks with the top scorers with 55.

Although the 264th Transportation Truckers have been kept in the cellar throughout the competition, one man has attained the honor of rising in the ranks of the high point men. Jerry Cowles has scored more points in one game than any other individual player in the league. When the 264th lost out to the 324th, 60-52, in a fast and furious affair, a lonesabbit hit forward, the same Cowley, tallied 33 of his team's markers. His total for two games, the best game point average of the league, is 53 points.

One of the finest and most polished of the loopsters now participating for the Post crown hails from the ISD, and is the chief ward of Capt. Joe Walker, who coaches the fast moving detachment. Ken Nowles, a rangy rethead from California, has been the fiery spark in every ISD victory this season. Nowles has tallied 70 points for a third place in the standings, but his defensive play has even surpassed his accurate eye. Lloyd Watson has been Nowles' main helper on the floor, scoring just half the number of points that the team's captain has.

Troopers Lead League in Post Basketball Loop

The troopers from the Airborne battalion continued to show away at the basketball championship leg with a pair of overwhelming victories in last week's competition.

While the infantrymen from the 37th dropped one to the Airborne, they managed to capture two other titles, to retain their second place position. But down at the detachment, Capt. Joe Walker's boys continued to show vast improvement and have a clean slate with the exception of their first game which went to the troopers in the final minutes of the scrap.

Bob Henderson and veteran Bob Kinard are still the stars on the trooper aggregation and did much to insure the league leaders of their victories this past week. Last Tuesday, the 70th Engineers fell the blunt of the fast moving battalion boys, and went down swinging beneath a 38-27 count. Two nights later Kinard and "Long Bob" collaborated for 40 markers, topping the 37th handily 52-29. Thursday night's defeat was the first for the 97th, and did much to augment the prestige of the trooper loopsters.

ISD Defeats Flyers

But while the Airborne squad was trimming the 97th down at the Airborne gym, lanky, red-headed Ken Nowles was leading his ISD teammates to a 43-16 decision over the victory hungry flyers from Lawson Field. Nowles personally tallied 18 points and was the dazzling spark in the detachment defense that virtually kept the flyers handcuffed in the second half. The ISD is still behind in their schedule in that they have played two less games than the other units.

But Lawson Field managed to take one from the cellar-situated Truckers from the 204th. Lawson's 71-56 rout, led by Baker and But-ton, chalked up their fifth straight defeat in as many outings, and hold on to the none too enviable cellar slot.

Little happened at the First Artillery Headquarters this week as the 83rd didn't appear for a single game. Word has come that they will forfeit the remaining games which will automatically become victories for their scheduled opponents.

ACF Board No. 3 added another

ISD Celebrates 1st Anniversary

The first anniversary of the reorganization of the Infantry School detachment from the Academic regiment was observed here last Saturday.

The Infantry School Detachment, commanded by Lt. Col. O. Wilson, has a long history which is closely associated with the growth and development of the Infantry School. The ISD dates back to 1897, when a company of five officers and 200 privates, the School of Musketry was established at the Presidio of Monterey in California. Under other designations the school unit received additional numbers as it moved to Fort Sill, Okla., and later to Fort Benning, where it became the Infantry School detachment.

The function of the ISD is primarily to furnish skilled administrative personnel for headquarters of the Infantry School, the Academic detachment, instructors in automobiles, communications, and weapons. It provides printers, messengers, draftsmen, lithographers, erasers, press operators, and shipping clerks for the Army Field Post. At present, the detachment, time, staffed the Quartermaster and provided guards and range personnel as well as military police.

The ISD, with a total strength of 1,222 enlisted men, was designated the Academic battalion of the Infantry School Service command, January 8, 1941. On June 1, 1942, the unit attained its regimental status as the Academic regiment and functioned as such throughout the war.

Today it consists of Companies A, B, C, H, and Headquarters Company, and is commanded by A. S. from the top kick's desk is 1st Sgt. Waymon V. Jones. Sgt. James H. in its administration of the company by an overhead of 32 men, who also furnish ISD headquarters with an overhead of 16 men.

One of the oldest sections on the Post is the Army Field Printing plant, an integral part of Company A, administered by M-Sgt. Harvey M. Allen, chief clerk for many years.

The top men in ISD headquarters are Lt. Col. O. Wilson, command and chief clerk, Major S. Satterfield, executive officer, Captain Edward G. Walsh, adjutant, and 1st Lt. Fred W. Jones, sergeant of their string of five with a 29-19 count over the faltering tankers from the 75th. But the ISD also out a four-point decision handing the ACF their only defeat of the season, 37-23, in one of the most outstanding ball games since the league started.

Up on the Main Post, the 501st, who started slow, are still going even slower these days. Last Thursday they fell victim to the ISD as the mass of detachment sharpshooters matched their skills to clip the troopers 54-35. Although Budd, ace 501 forward, copped the night's honors with 14 points, the lack of support from his comrades brought defeat.

But as league play moves into the final stretch, competition mounts more and more by the day. The Airborne battalion, now the lead by a vey slim margin, looks like the team to win, but hard fighting first division squads have to see many more games to play to concede a championship.

BLUE CROSS IS APPROVED FOR BENNING EMPLOYEES

Approval last week by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, of the Blue Cross plan assured Fort Benning's civilian employees hospitalization under the plan. Sam M. Butler, executive director of the Columbus division of the West Georgia Hospital Service association, has announced.

Blue Cross is the nation-wide non-profit hospital service plan which operates on a community basis, Mr. Butler pointed out, adding that it is not an insurance company but a hospital service corporation sponsored and guaranteed by hospitals. The plan pays no compensation to the officers and trustees of the service and no bonuses, dividends, profits, or commissions to anyone, he said.

Mr. Butler revealed that there are only two charges for Blue Cross: one dollar for a single person, and two dollars for the family group, which may include husband, wife, and all dependents. Unmarried children less than 18 years old.

Blue Cross participants are entitled to 21 days service during the first contract year plus 10 additional days at a 50 percent discount, Mr. Butler said. Each contract year thereafter participants are entitled to 30 days at full benefits plus 90 additional days at half cost.

Benefits under the plan provide for up to six dollars for a hospital room, meals, and special diets, use of the operating room, drugs, and medicine including penicillin, dressings, plaster casts, laboratory examinations, intra-venous solutions, oxygen, central supply room service, and many other services in the participating hospitals. Under the family contract, seven days of maternity care are provided after both husband and wife have been members for 12 months.

More than 29 million people are now covered by Blue Cross, Mr. Butler disclosed.

General Weible Recent Guest At Fort Benning

Brig. Gen. W. L. Weible, G-3, Third Army headquarters, and a party of 10 officers, toured all general reserve units here last Thursday, November 6.

Gen. Weible and his party visited the 25th Infantry, 599th Field Artillery, 78th Combat Engineers, and other units in their one-day tour.

Meatless Days Result In Huge Savings Here

Savings resulting from the food conservation program ordered by the Army has amounted to 14,169 pounds of meat here for the first two meatless days of this month, together with substantial quantities of bread and lard during the first 11 days of November, it was revealed today by the Infantry Center Food Service supervisor.

Reductions came from readjustment of the quantities of food served under the change in menus as a result of the conservation program. Tremendous savings are being made in bread, flour, meat, fats, eggs, and sugar here, officials said.

The figures released by the Food Service supervisor affect approximately 217,929 troops fed through the Infantry Center ration breakdown during the period from November 1-11. Aside from the thousands of pounds of meat conserved, a savings of 7,070 pounds of bread has been realized for the same period, along

Radio Operators Turn Repairmen, Survey Indicates

A recent survey among members of Radio Repair class No. 1 seems to indicate that the present Army trend is to make repairmen out of former radio operators.

Typical of the many former radio operators in the class is T-4 Gilberto A. Rojas, here from the 728th Military Police battalion at Fort Sheridan, Ill., who operated a radio from a half-track of the 696th A. F. A. battalion during the war.

Handling radio traffic for the battalion executive officer, T-4 Rojas went from England to France, Belgium, Luxembourg, and through Germany to the Elbe river. His long ride ended 75 miles from Berlin, near the point U. S. forces joined the Russians.

T-4 Rojas fought with the Third Army until the day of the German counter-attack during the blitz when his battalion was sent to a point some five miles from Bastogne.

with 1,404 pounds of lard, it was pointed out.

Savings of critical items used in pastry has resulted from the formation of one Central pastry plant here. In the first eight days of November, critical items conserved amounted to 1,180 pounds of lard, 1,342 pounds of flour, 1,240 pounds of sugar and 311 dozen eggs.

Throughout the Army it is expected that 1,680,000 pounds of meat will be saved by instituting four meatless days per month, while the reduction in the amount of butter served will save 420,000 pounds per month and 1,120,000 pounds of bread will be conserved per month. The use of shortening will be cut to the extent of a monthly savings of 149,989 pounds, officials added.

Supply Section Gets New Men

Three new men have been added to the 37th regimental supply office as replacements for recent losses, it was announced, this week at Fort Benning.

Capt. Donald E. Rivette has replaced Capt. Gines A. Gabberson, who is alerted for overseas shipment, as regimental supply officer. Wearer of the Silver Star, Bronze Star with cluster and Purple Heart with cluster, Captain Rivette has recently been acting as personnel officer of the 37th Infantry regiment in the absence of Capt. Bernard Big.

S-Sgt. Warren L. Miller has replaced S-Sgt. Vincent A. Del Campo who is now attending Quartermaster and Supply school at Camp Lee, Va. Sgt. Miller recently came to School Troops from an assignment in the Panama Canal zone. He wears the Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

The third new replacement is S-Sgt. Willie O. Moore, who has replaced T-4 Irvin Koon as chief clerk in the memorandum receipt section. Sgt. Koon has been transferred to Company B, ISD, Sgt. Division with the 7th Field Artillery battalion. He wears the Bronze Star medal.

Benning Detachment Reveals Promotions

Promotions in the Infantry School detachment last week included the following members of Company A:

Sgt. Hugh D. Todd to staff sergeant and Pvt. Armstrong Manfield and Eugene K. Morgan to privates first class. Officials announced also that Pvt. Gerald W. Frido, Company B, had been promoted to the grade of private first class. Company H promotions were Cpls. James S. Witley and Benjamin F. Seage to sergeant.

20-Year Vet Retires Here

S-Sgt. George F. Grimes, veteran of more than 20 years' Army service, joined the ranks of retired veterans Oct. 31.

Sergeant Grimes, who enlisted for duty with the 83rd Field Artillery battalion in 1926, remained with the unit until 1931 when he transferred to the Coast Artillery Corps. He was on duty with the Coast Artillery until 1934 when he joined the Fourth Engineers for a six-year tour of duty. The sergeant was assigned to the Casual detachment at Fort McDowell, Calif., in November 1940, serving there until November 1943. The following year he joined the 360th Field Artillery and went overseas for 20 months. In April 1946 he went overseas again, returning to the States in January 1947. Coming to Fort Benning, he rejoined his original organization.

Plans For Thanksgiving Observance Completed

Plans for the Thanksgiving celebration, to be staged Thursday, November 27, at 8:30 a. m. at Gowdy field, have been completed with a number of choirs and musicians slated to participate, it has been announced by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain.

The first of its kind ever to be held here, the observance will be patriotic in nature, with members of all religious faiths participating in a program that will appeal to every American citizen and stress the fundamentals that has made America great, the chaplain said.

Flames Sweep Post's Airborne Unit Dispensary

A fire in the attic of the Airborne dispensary at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday destroyed half the building as five fire fighting crews battled the blaze.

First detected by personnel in the building when smoke filtered through the area and the building, the fire was believed to have started in the attic. The origin of the fire has been undetermined, and an investigation is being made to determine the cause.

Half the roof on the right wing of the structure, where the fire originated, was demolished, and most of the damage was centered on the right wing, with 50 per cent damage done to the entire building, according to Fire Chief Gilbert A. Ward.

Although the blaze was well under way and spreading rapidly, it was less than an hour after it started that the firemen had it under control.

Five crews with all their apparatus answered the alarm, one truck each from stations No. 1, 2, 5 and 7 and one from the crash station at Lawson field. The dispensary is located on Indian Head road near the intersection of Indian Head road and Bradshaw road.

Begin Shooting Training Film

Eleven photographers from the Signal Corps Photo Center, Long Island, N. Y., began the shooting and compiling of data here for a training film on traffic control.

Comprised of two army officers and nine civilians, the crew arrived Saturday afternoon, included in the group are Major Gene R. Welch, unit manager; Capt. William T. Conner; James Cullen Landis, well known in movie screen actor; Philip Kandell; William T. Richards; Stanley T. Swed; Charles C. Hennigway; P. Harrigan; James J. Garland; Elysa B. Sukoff; and T-4 Arthur, unit driver.

The cameramen are expected to be at Fort Benning for at least three weeks during which time they will work with the Military Police detachment in filming and gathering information and the training film pertaining to traffic problems and control.

November Telephone Directories Available

The November 1947 telephone directory for Columbus and vicinity is now available and can be obtained from the signal office here, it was announced today.

With the supply very limited, one directory is available telephonically, per residence, per office. The directory contains phone numbers in Columbus and Hamilton, Ga., and Phenix City, Ala.

Harris To Speak

With Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist church in Atlanta as guest speaker, the program will open with an invocation by Chaplain (Major) John F. Rafferty, the Infantry Center Catholic chaplain. The audience will then join in singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee" accompanied by the 72nd Army band. Following the reading of the Thanksgiving proclamation by Chaplain (Captain) Gerald Hayden, 25th Infantry regiment, the origin of Thanksgiving will be traced by Chaplain Hale.

Special numbers will be rendered by the 25th Infantry male chorus and the Infantry Center chapel choir. The 25th Infantry male chorus is under the direction of T-Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson, and the Infantry Center chapel choir, consisting of 20 voices, is under the leadership of Mrs. Lily C. Garrett.

An address by Dr. Harris will climax the program which is expected to attract upwards of 4,000 people to Gowdy field.

Native Georgian

The Atlanta minister, a native Georgian, is considered one of the finest public speakers in the country. Much in demand throughout the South, Dr. Harris has delivered about 5,000 addresses each year to churches, groups, conferences, and conventions.

Possessing a great knack of winning friends, Dr. Harris has received 2,000 new members into his church since taking over his duties in Atlanta. He is editor of Continued on Page 2

Turkey Day To Be Holiday

Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 27, has been declared a holiday for all civilian and military personnel at Fort Benning, officials announced today.

It will be a long five-day suspension of duties for the military, from Thursday, Nov. 27, through Sunday, Nov. 30. Civilian personnel, will also be excused from duty on Friday, Nov. 28, without charge to leave or loss of pay. Individuals whose work week is Monday through Friday morning, Thursday, Friday and Saturday morning, will be released from Saturday duty provided they work Wednesday afternoon, or they can take four hours leave, officials said. Continued on Page 2

Mounting Interest In Fort Riley, Jax Football Tilts Seen

Interest has mounted to a high pitch for the Fort Riley and Jacksonville Navy football games, scheduled at Doughboy stadium, November 23 and 30, with tickets for the two battles becoming more scarce with each passing day, it was revealed by Fort Benning Community Chest officials.

As announced previously, the proceeds from these two games will be added to the Fort Benning Community Chest fund drive which is now under way. Reserved seats for the games have been practically all sold, but general admission tickets are still available. Officers of the General and Special staffs can secure their reserved seats. Continued on Page 2

Bolivian Colonel Expected Nov. 30

Lt. Col. David Terrazas, chief of staff of the Bolivian Army, and a party of high ranking Bolivian officers are scheduled to arrive here November 30 for a one-day tour of the Infantry Center, it was learned today.

Col. Terrazas will be accompanied by Colonel Hugo Ballivan, commandant of the Military School of Bolivia, Colonel Alberto Crespo Carpio, commandant of the Small Arms school, and Major Sergio Sanchez Vargas, School of War.

During their one-day tour here, the South Americans will make a brief but complete study of Infantry methods of instruction and tactics.

Scheduled to visit numerous U. S. Army installations during the months of November and December, the Bolivian officers will arrive from Washington, D. C., and after the brief stop over here will continue their tour, proceeding on to Fort Sill, Okla.

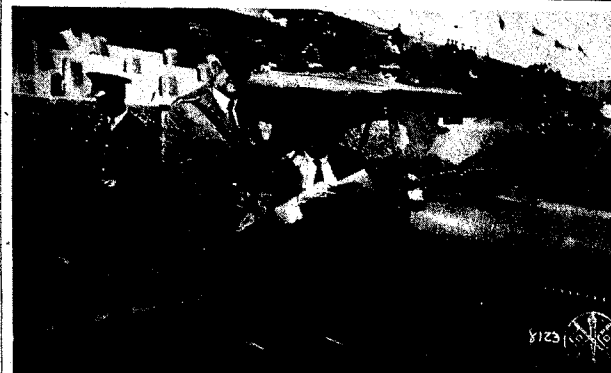

Other stops Col. Terrazas and his party are expected to make include Brookley field, Ala.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; Aberdeen Proving Grounds; Meigs S. Military Academy, West Point, N. C.; Camp Carson, Colo.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Fort Knox, Ky.; and Washington, D. C.

Lawson Recruiters Active In November

The Lawson field recruiting officer has been increasingly active during the first part of November, according to Capt. James E. Sever, base recruiting officer.

S-Sgt. Horace Williams and Cpl. Earl G. Middlebrook, recruiting campaigners, staged an Air Force recruiting campaign in Louisville, Ala., last week, also assisting veterans of the town to form a Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

On Nov. 25 and 26 Sgt. Williams will show an Air Force film on the latest developments of aircraft to three civic organizations in Sylvauga, Ala.

REMEMBER WIEN?—Back in 1929, Fort Benning was young, Doughboy stadium was new, Brig. Gen. Campbell King was commander, and Franklin D. Roosevelt was governor of New York. In the picture, taken that year at Doughboy sta-

Pence, Moore Receive Army Citations Here

Army Commendation ribbons were presented to Col. Charles W. Pence and Lt. Col. William B. Moore, Army Ground Force board No. 3 members, last Friday morning by Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, board president.

Col. Pence received the ribbon for "meritorious service from January 1946 to June 1947 with the Historical division, European Command."

While serving with this division, he organized the operational history (German) and planned and placed in operation a project which utilized several hundred reports of operations written by former German commanders and staff officers. According to the citation, Col. Pence's initiative and ability aided the War Department to obtain and develop historical information of great value.

Col. Moore was awarded the citation for his service with the Plans section, Headquarters, Army Ground Forces, from August 1945 to June 1947. He aided in the preparation of the ACF plan for War Department reorganization, and assisted in conferences among members of the Zone-of-Interior Armies.

Col. Moore was awarded the ribbon, according to the citation, because "through his sound judgment, initiative, and devotion to duty, he contributed substantially to the preparation of the Army Ground Forces portion of the Army reorganization plan and to the solution of many problems incident to its implementation." The presentation ceremony took place in Gen. Jenkins' office at board No. 3 headquarters.

Attending School

Lt. Lamar Holcomb, Headquarters company, 501st Parachute battalion, is slated to attend the Student Detachment Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla. January 5. Lt. Holcomb will receive instruction in spotting enemy artillery and directing fire on it. Upon completion of the course he will be assigned temporarily as an Air Force liaison pilot at San Marcos, Texas.

AWARDED CITATIONS—Col. Charles W. Pence, left, and Lt. Col. William B. Moore, both members of Army Ground Forces Board No. 3, were presented Army Commendation ribbons by Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, board president, Nov. 14.

Considered quite an athlete, the Atlanta minister is well known in baseball and golf circles. A former professional baseball player, he is also one of the four best left-handed golfers in the country. He has won more than 50 trophies for his golfing exploits.

The native Georgian has served as pastor of churches in Columbus and Dalton, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., previous to assuming his present assignment in Atlanta. He received his education at North Georgia schools, Reinhardt college, and Emory University.

The background decorations for the service will be furnished by color guards and guidon bearers from all units of the Infantry Center.

Get Escort Duty

Four enlisted men of the 83rd Artillery battalion have left Fort Benning for 30 days' temporary duty as war-dead escorts with the Atlanta General Distribution depot. It was announced today.

The group includes Sgt. Joseph Crittenton, Service battery; Sgt. Raymond L. Gaskins, Battery A; T-5 Richard C. Harvey, Headquarters battery; and T-5 Walter K. Campbell, Battery B.

School Troops Men Promoted

A total of 21 promotions during the past week have been announced by School Troops units here.

In the 204th Transportation battalion the following were promoted:

Pfc. John Richardson, Pfc. Robert G. Reed, Pvt. Erroy Lisher, Pfc. Ernest Mathis, Pfc. A. C. Craver, Pvt. Lloyd W. Cephas, Pfc. Charles H. Clay, Pfc. Earl McLeod, Pfc. Chester Washington, Pfc. Kenneth Thomas, Pfc. Frank T. Davis all to the rank of T-5. Advanced to the rank of corporal were Pfc. Jos. Jones, T-5 Robert Reed, and T-5 Theodore Reed. T-5 Francis Benjamin was promoted to T-4.

Advanced to the grade of T-5 in the 83rd Field Artillery battalion were Pfc. William T. Evans, Sanford J. Larson, Charles I. McCrary, and Rudolph B. Horst. Pfc. Charley E. Sewell was promoted to corporal.

The public is invited to these two big attractions, and a sellout crowd is expected for both the Riley and Jacksonville games. General admission tickets will be sold for 25 cents to enlisted men and 50 cents for officers and civilians, while reserved tickets sell for 75 cents.

Now in its fifth week the Fort Benning Community Chest drive is moving along at a fast pace with more and more activities joining the 100 per cent contribution list. The proceeds derived from the two football games and other activities are expected to augment the drive considerably.

If the drive continues at its present pace, it will not be too long before it reaches its goal of raising funds for eight charitable and character building organizations, officials said.

Instead of the widespread saying, "God bless you," when a person sneezes, the Hindus say "Live," to which the answer, "With you," is given.

GET BRONZE STARS

Capt. Robert W. Shelton, Company C, 37th Infantry regiment, was awarded the oak leaf cluster to the Bronze Star last week. Officials have announced. T-4 Denny R. Darnell, Headquarters and Headquarters company, was presented the Bronze Star; it was also announced.

Football Spirit

The Bayonet uses these columns every week to "blow off steam" about something either we do not like or something of which we approve. Today we do not approve of something we find prevalent at football games here.

Fort Benning is indeed fortunate in having a winning football team. This is due to the great amount of effort expended week after week by both the coaches and the individual members of the team. Day after day they work their hearts out in an effort to put on a good show for the local fans and to bring gridiron glory to Fort Benning. For the past few years they have succeeded in making the name Doughboys synonymous with victory. For the past few years they have received national recognition as the All-Service champions or runners-up.

Despite their success, the local fans although regularly attending the games in "Doughboy stadium, have failed miserably to cheer them "down the field." We regret that this exists, but it does. Seldom are there mass yells as the Doughboys make a spectacular play, or go over the goal line for a touchdown. And we can not understand why.

Sunday after Sunday Doughboy Stadium is bulging with humanity, all intent on seeing the Doughboys win another game, but there is absolutely no spirit from the fans. A little scattered applause here and there when someone comes out of the game after playing a good game. A little cheering when the first touchdown is made, but none as the score continues to pile pp.

We sit in the press box and look down on the big crowds below us, wondering what causes the lack of spirit. Surely, when local fans were high school and college students, they did not sit on their hands and tape their mouths at football games. We have seen some of the same Fort Benning people at Columbus high school games and have heard them join in the yells, but they do not follow through here. That is hard to understand in view of the fact that they do not come from Columbus but from Fort Benning. Yet they give more support to a civilian team than they do to their own Doughboys in which they should surely take more personal interest. The Doughboys are their team.

We are sure the Doughboys would appreciate a little more "old tie" spirit. They will certainly play a better game if they know Fort Benning is behind them.

Concert Series

The Fort Benning Concert association can take a bow this week with the opening of the concert season here Friday night. Actually, everyone attending the concert is a member of the Concert association, but in back of them stand the ladies who deserve the real credit, the members of the Fort Benning Woman's Club.

In addition to being a cultural addition to the Post, Fort Benning can take further pride in this concert series since, so far as we have been able to determine by questioning the company which furnishes the concert series, this is the first time a military installation has sponsored such a series of talent. True, artists have appeared at military installations, but not as part of a series to make up an entire concert season.

In contracting for the series, the Woman's Club has been able to bring artists to the Post at a cost far below what could be expected, bringing an opportunity to everyone to enjoy the finest talent at a cost running no higher than the admission to many first-run movies.

Orchids are indeed in order to the Woman's Club and the president of that organization, Mrs. Robert B. Hill, for this excellent series and we hope it will become a traditional event for Fort Benning.

VESPERS IN VIENNA

Francis MacManus writes of best-selling "The World's Greatest and Finest Singing Group" and another novel which is being read by the critics. The "Book of the Month" club has already chosen it for its October selection.

Vespers in Vienna is another story about post-war Europe, but it is a story with an ending that is twice as exciting as the first. The title suggests the most discerning reader. As the action takes place in the city of Vienna, jointly occupied by the American, British, and Russian armies.

The leading figure is a Colonel Nicolbar, of the British Army, who is sent to Vienna to fight subversive activities. Just what is meant by the term subversive activities, he is never able to find out. Of course, this does not help the colonel in his efforts to be efficient and the reader finds himself feeling sorry for the poor man, who hardly knows where to begin his job.

Colonel Nicolbar is quartered in a convent with the Daughters of the Holy Ghost, headed by Reverend Mother Superior. Her experiences in the convent are sometimes funny, but on the whole are usually quite serious. She learns to like the sisters, an Austrian officer, and a Russian girl who thinks of nothing but men and how to impress them.

For laughs and disgust there is the poor little English woman officer, who thinks of nothing but men and how to impress them. The Army of the crusade against misunderstanding, lack of morals, red tape, and stupidity. The Army of the crusade is often bitter, but he manages to create a feeling of friendliness in spite of his biting sarcasm and his strict adherence to rigid discipline. He pokes fun at the British Army although he is a British Army officer. He pokes fun at administration, Christianity, and love. She makes you like it.

When Colonel Nicolbar refuses to obey commands, he is relieved of his assignment, he returns to England for a very long time. Vespers in Vienna makes very pleasant light reading.

G Humor

A kind hearted gentleman, hearing of a dog howl monthly, decided to investigate the animal's ailment. He found the dog sitting on his haunches but still howling.

"What ails your dog?" he asked the bounding man.

"Oh, he's just lazy," said the owner.

"But laziness doesn't make a dog burr."

"No, but he's sitting on a sand burr."

"Was the night before Christmas - And all through the house, Not a creature was stirring, Not even a mouse. The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, They'd been worn for six weeks And they needed the air."

Many a man has made a monkey out of himself by reaching for the wrong limb.

An over-age GI who had been discharged from the Army went to his former company commander as follows:

"After all the suffering I went through in the past year, it gives me great pleasure to tell you to go to the devil."

To which the CO replied: "Sir, my suggestion is that you inquire regarding the movement of troops will be entered on Form WD 52-B, a copy of which is enclosed."

A young lady and two GIs traveling on a train were seated in the same compartment. Introduced himself, one of them said: "My name's Paul, but I'm no apostle."

"My name is Mary," said the young lady.

Sometimes we are prone to think of Red Cross in terms of disaster, undernourishment, prisoners-of-war, accidents, or other ailments and discomforts that plague mankind. There are, however, cheerier things about Red Cross, and perhaps the greatest is the uninterrupted 30 years of Red Cross service.

The Junior Red Cross was organized through the efforts of President Woodrow Wilson and officers who sought to enlist youth's idealism in a movement to promote understanding and good will. Conceived and launched in the midst of World War I, the Junior Red Cross stood for peace for school, community, country, and the world.

On its 30th birthday the Junior Red Cross has far surpassed the hopes of its founders. An organization of over 19 million young people enrolled in service to humanity, it exerts a potent influence for good.

Children of foreign lands have felt the effect of the beneficent aid of the Junior Red Cross through its National Children's Fund, consisting of pennies and nickels, which are sent to school children throughout the U. S. The organization has reached out and touched on the backs of the ragged, retreating children. They have given shoes to the bare-footed; supplied medical chests to improve their health; shipped books, school pads, pencils, and other school supplies; and brought cheer with gift boxes and soft toys made by Junior Red Cross members.

During the past two-and-one-half years alone such supplies shipped abroad amounted to more than four million dollars. Last summer the American Junior Red Cross paid the way of many pediatricians to the International Congress of Pediatrics, where they could study the latest methods of dealing with children. Children's interests about will benefit from their knowledge, thanks to the generosity of American youth acting through the Junior Red Cross.

There is hardly a school in the country, including our own here at Fort Benning, which does not have an active Junior Red Cross organization. It can be said that perhaps the greatest factor toward international peace is the future generation of leaders who are now the Junior Red Crossers.

If you have a teen-age boy or girl in school, urge them to participate in the Junior Red Cross movement.

Warships were not classified to carry out particular functions in battles until the second half of the 17th century according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Before that time naval ships of all types and sizes took part in the action at the same time indiscriminately or when the most suitable opportunity was afforded.

Chaplain's Corner

DIVINE GUIDANCE BY CHAPLAIN G. L. HAYDEN

The above subject is the title of a picture which portrayed two men climbing a treacherous, crumbling, rushing stream over a dilapidated bridge. They were unmindful of a guardian angel, who called beside them as they carefully measured each step and clung to each other as men generally do when confronted with danger or driven by necessity to pool their strength in the struggle for survival.

The picture symbolizes the ever presence of divine guidance, even God's great gifts to mankind. We are liars, deceivers, and dependent upon His faithful care to keep us from the roaring abyss of destruction. Life's pathway, with its many treacherous and unending dangers, has become firm and safe with all danger subdued. He keeps vigil over us, His children. Father, who has always turned for assistance in times of stress—man has never been sufficient unto himself.

The great tragedy of life lies in the failure of many to recognize the divine help which God has given to them. In prodding, they Pray themselves for possessing the "know-how" to succeed. When a danger has been averted, they credit themselves with being sagacious and when misfortune strikes hard upon them, they seek help from everyone but God. I do not say that we should not help ourselves in every honorable way, for God helps those who help themselves; but I am saying that we should not discount the importance of divine guidance in the shaping of our destinies. "Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me."

Under the law of Shiah (an important religion, widely followed in Persia) a husband and wife can agree to marry for any period of time, even an hour. The marriage ends automatically when the specified time runs out if it were by consent of both parties.

Couvade, an ancient classical custom, required a father to retire to bed and fast or abstain from certain kinds of food, at the time of his wife's confinement according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The custom probably arose from the desire to emphasize his bond with his child.

Archaeologists digging among buried cities discovered that Sumerian women of thousands of years ago used "vanity cases" of gold, complete with tweezers, ear-picks and head-scratchers.

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the first in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the calendar of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between November 15, and This Day, November 20.

NOVEMBER 14, 1910—Exactly 37 years ago, Eugene O'Neil took off from the deck of the armored cruiser, "Birmingham," at Hampton Roads, Va., in a Curtiss plane, in a first flight from aboard a warship. . . . It was 32 years ago in 1818 that Booker T. Washington, the foremost Negro educator in the U. S., died at Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama.

NOVEMBER 15, 1777—Exactly 170 years ago on This Day the Articles of Confederation were adopted by the Continental Congress and submitted to the states for ratification. . . . On This Day, 141 years ago, Lt. Zebulon Montgomery Pike, the man who peaked in the Rocky Mountains that was to make his name famous. . . . 113 years ago, in 1834, the Whig Party was accepted as the new name for the established political group which had been known as the National Republicans.

NOVEMBER 16, 1776—It was on This Day, 171 years ago, that the British evacuated the garrison of Fort Mifflin in New York City. . . . On This Day, 52 years ago, Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote the words to "America," died in Boston. . . . In 1914, some 33 years ago, the United States Reserve System was inaugurated.

NOVEMBER 17, 1800—On This Day, 147 years ago, the Congress of the United States met for the first time in the Federal city of Washington, D.C.

NOVEMBER 18, 1886—Chester Alan Arthur, 21st president of the United States, died on This Day, 61 years ago in 1886.

NOVEMBER 19, 1794—On This Day, 133 years ago, John Jay, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the U. S., signed a treaty with Great Britain, which is now known as one of the most famous treaties of all time. . . . On This Day, 116 years ago, James Abram Garfield, 21st president, was born in Ohio. . . . It was 84 years ago, on this date in 1863 that the National Cemetery at Gettysburg was formally dedicated, and Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous Gettysburg Address.

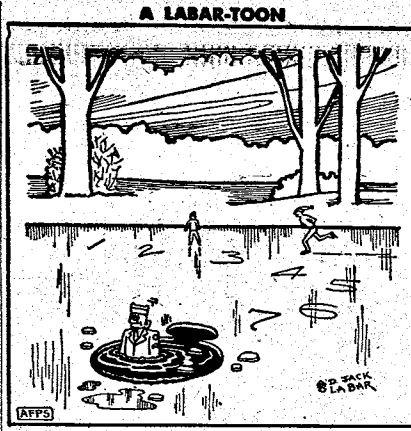

NOVEMBER 20, 1776—Exactly 171 years ago today, Lord Cornwallis captured Fort Mifflin. . . . And it was on This Day, 17 years ago, in 1930 that General Douglas MacArthur succeeded General Charles P. Summerall as the Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

PIRATES OF MONTEREY (action drama in technicolor) with Maria Montez, Red Canyon, and Phillip Reed. Laid in California in 1840, this is an action drama of the fight between Spanish Royalists and the defenders of Monterey. Recommended for adult.

THE FLAME (love triangle) with John Carroll, Vera Ralston, and Robert Faigle. Plots and counter-plots develop as a wastrel schemes to obtain his brother's fortune, and is himself the victim of other blackmailers and a love that backfires. Recommended for adult.

BIG TOWN AFTER DARK (newspaper melodrama) with Phillip Reed, Hillary Brooke, and Anne Gillis. The Big Town newspaper tangles with swindlers as the crooks try to wreck the newspaper through the editor's nose. Recommended for family.

MONSIEUR VERDOUX (comedy of murder) with Charles Chaplin and Martha Raye. It is surprising that anything as grim as murder can be funny, but Chaplin makes it so in his portrayal of a modern Blue Beard who marries and kills various rich women in order to provide money for his invalid wife and son. Recommended for adult.

BLONDE SAVAGE (jungle adventure) with Leif Erickson, Gale Sherwood, and Veda Ann Borg. A forced landing dumps an adventurer in the midst of a fight between jungle natives led by a strange white girl and a villainous diamond mine owner. Recommended for family.

BURY ME DEAD (murder mystery) with Cathy O'Donnell and Maria Montez. This mystery is based on the interesting idea of a woman returning home after attending her own funeral and suspecting that her husband had tried to do away with her. She is minded for adult.

P-TA Meeting Today At 3 P. M. In Post School

The Fort Benning P-TA will meet Thursday afternoon at 3 p. m. in the auditorium of the Post Children's school, it was announced this week by Mrs. Albert C. Haley, president of the association. Events on the program will include a presentation by the members of the sixth grade class taught by Miss L. W. Moore and Mrs. L. H. Garrett will add to the program with several vocal numbers. The meeting for November was originally slated for Friday evening, but the time was changed because of the concert program. Miss Mary Brooks was to have been the speaker, but since the change in plans, she will be heard at a meeting in the early spring, Mrs. Haley announced.

The Fort Benning P-TA was heard on radio station WGBA in Columbus Tuesday afternoon when the group presented the first in a series of four programs to be given by P-TA groups in this vicinity. Ladies taking part in the program were Mrs. H. C. Hicks, Jr., Mrs. Gerald Henderson, and Mrs. Robert Lamb. Children on the program were Don O'Mohundro, Billy Short, Charles Esher, Nancy Tolive, and Marjorie Ash.

All parents and others interested in the school activities are invited to attend the Thursday meeting.

Christmas Ideas To Be Subject Of Monday Meet

Ideas for Christmas will be the topic at the meeting of the home and garden group of the Woman's club Monday afternoon, it was announced this week by Mrs. Frank Ward, chairman.

The program will start at 2:30 p. m. in the lounge of the Officers' club, and as a special feature, a representative from the K-Mart store in Columbus will speak on new ideas in table decorations for Christmas, and also give ideas for gift wrapping.

Each of the ladies attending is asked to bring some article she is working on as a Christmas gift to give others ideas for gifts they can make. Another feature of the program will be the white elephant table which proved so popular at the last meeting. Each girl is to bring an item from her home which she does not use and in exchange she will give it for an opportunity to pick a gift from the items brought by the other ladies.

Working with the program are Mrs. W. R. Lynch and Mrs. Julian Dayton.

Dinner To Honor Parents At Cabin

Girls of the Pine Cone troop, senior Girl Scouts, made plans at their meeting this week for a dinner for their mothers and fathers about December 1. Each girl will prepare part of the menu, and as a special feature there will be an opportunity to give a gift to the Scout cabin.

The guest of honor will be Mrs. H. H. Walker, Scout commissioner. Committee workers selected by the girls for the event are Nancy Bush, Mary Lou Bernard, Babs Lewis, Ann Bragan, Mary Joiner, Susanne Stillman, Marie Raymond, Helen Wilbur, Betty Thompson and Ann Cato.

Plans are being made to give the dinner for 35 guests. Leaders of the troop are Mrs. Corston Green, Mrs. O. C. Thompson, and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby.

Holiday Theme Seen At Luncheon

Holiday fruits, fall berries, and bright leaves made the decorations for the November luncheon held by the ladies of the Woman's section last Thursday at the Officers' club.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. John I. Pray and Mrs. Donald Landon and places were laid for 25 guests. Later in the afternoon three tables of bridge were in play.

"KEEP CONTROL OF THE BALL"—Capt. Arne Millican and Capt. Frank Blake explain some of the fine points of bowling at the Friday session of the bowling group of the Woman's club as Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, honorary president, and Mrs. Robert Hill, president, look on with interest. The advanced bowlers meet Wednesday morning at the Post alleys and Friday morning the beginners meet, with Captain Millican and Captain Blake giving instructions.

Ladies Of Patton House Club Entertain At Lovely Reception

A particularly nice social event held recently was the tea Friday afternoon when the ladies of the Patton House club entertained with their annual reception and tea to honor the officers and committee members of the Woman's club.

The tea table and decorations were beautifully arranged by Mrs. James Stevens. The long tea table was overlaid with a lace cloth and decorated with a background of silver and gold magnolia leaves used with russet and pink daisy chrysanthemums. The centerpiece arrangement was held in a silver bowl, and the tall pink tapers were in silver candelabra. Silver services at either end of the table completed the arrangements, and the silver and gold leaves used with the russet and pink were used throughout the main room and on the porch.

In the reception line were Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Mrs. L. A. Diller, Mrs. Robert E. Hill, Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins, Mrs. Whitfield P. Shepard, Mrs. Arden C. Brill, Mrs. E. W. Davall, Mrs. L. B. Sealey, Mrs. Paul H. Bouchard, and Mrs. E. J. Gravel.

Mrs. Diller is the honorary president of the Patton House club and was general chairman of the event. Mrs. E. W. Davall is the hostess. Mrs. Brill is president of the group and Mrs. Shelby Sat-Bingham.

Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel entertained Thursday evening at a buffet supper at their quarters when they feted Brig. Gen and Mrs. E. K. Wright, of Washington, D. C. who were guests on the post.

In addition to General and Mrs. Wright, guests for the evening were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Whitfield P. Shepard, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins, Col. and Mrs. John C. Bizzard, Col. and Mrs. J. A. Nichols, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. O. Wilson.

Maj., Mrs. Cato Entertain Couples

Honoring two couples leaving the Post, Major and Mrs. Allen E. Cato entertained Saturday evening at a gala party at their quarters.

The honorees were Major and Mrs. Robert L. Summers, who left Tuesday for Fort Bragg, N. C., and Lt. and Mrs. Arthur Hill. Lieutenant Hill will leave around Dec. 1 for Korea and will be joined there later by his wife, who will remain on the Post for a while.

Earlier in the evening cocktails were served, and at midnight the hostess served a buffet supper from a table beautifully decorated with bright zinnias and chrysanthemums in a crystal vase.

Guests, in addition to the honorees, were Capt. and Mrs. Noble Egan, approximately the Holiday Capt. and Mrs. Arne Millican, and Lt. and Mrs. Billy the group and Mrs. Shelby Sat-Bingham.

'Miss Georgia' To Sing At Club Dance Saturday

A highlight of week-end events will be the dance Saturday evening at the Block 12 Non-Commissioned Officers' club when Miss Bobbie Sauls, of Cuthbert, Ga., better known now as Miss Georgia, will make her debut as vocalist with the Southern Cavaliers band.

This will be the first public appearance of Miss Georgia since she returned from the Miss America competition in Atlantic City.

The dance is slated from 8:30 p. m. to midnight, and all members of the Block 12 club and their guests are invited.

Col., Mrs. Chase Return To Live Near Benning

The many friends of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Thornton Chase will be glad to know that the couple are back in this vicinity and are now living in Benning, Ga.

Colonel Chase was adjutant general at the Infantry School for five years before he was retired in October, 1946.

Since the Chases left the Post they have visited in Florida and the Mississippi gulf coast and spent the summer in Maine before returning here.

Living with the Chases are their daughter, Mrs. Martha Brown, and her son.

THEY CAN BE FIXED!

Friday Night To See Opening Of Season With Angel Reyes

Opening the concert season at Fort Benning, Angel Reyes, world-famous violinist, will appear this season Friday evening at 8:30 in the Main Post theater to play a full and varied program for members of the Fort Benning Concert association.

Only members of the association may attend the concert, and anyone interested in having a membership for the series of five concerts to be given this season should contact Mrs. Irvine Scudder, as a few memberships may still be available.

Personals

Lt. and Mrs. John F. Tremblay left by plane Thursday for San Juan, Puerto Rico, where they will visit Mrs. Tremblay's relatives. Lieutenant Tremblay, mess officer of the 1st, is on a 30-day leave. Lt. Howard K. Long will act as consolidated mess officers in the absence of Lieutenant Tremblay.

Pvt. David I. Strumpf, Co. C, 756th Armored Tank battalion recently left on a 30-day furlough. He is a tank crewman on an M-26.

Miss Gwendolyn Johnson of Columbus became the bride of T-5 Jack W. Kinley November 1. Corporal Kinley is assigned to Company C, 756th Armored Tank battalion.

Mrs. Doris Smith and her mother, Mrs. Nettie Cole, both of Oswego, N. Y., have been house guests at the quarters of Col. and Mrs. Wiley O'Mohundro recently and left Sunday to return to their home.

Houseguests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph A. Tolve last week end were Miss Margaret Thompson, niece of Mrs. Tolve, and Miss Sue Jones. The girls flew in from Brenau college in Gainesville, Ga., for a visit. They attended the Georgia-Auburn football game during their visit. Also staying with Colonel and Mrs. Tolve is Mrs. Tolve's mother, Mrs. Arthur Thompson, of Swainsboro, Ga.

T-4 Grady F. Lucas, Company C, 75th Armored Tank battalion, recently left on a 30-day furlough.

First Birthday Party Occasion

In gala celebration of his first birthday, Scott Roberts, son of Capt. and Mrs. Sam Roberts, was held Sunday afternoon at a party at the quarters of his parents in Benning Park.

A highlight of the afternoon was the cutting of the beautiful cake centered with a single blue candle between two blue birds of happiness. Rosebuds and the legend "Happy Birthdays" completed the decorations on the white-iced cake. Guests were served cake, party sandwiches, fruit punch and candied cookies.

Surprise favors, party hats, and the taking of movies provided entertainment for the afternoon. The party room was festive with decorations brought from Monterrey, Mexico, by Captain and Mrs. Roberts. One wall was almost entirely covered with a colorful Mexican sombrero while another wall was draped with a bright Mexican fishing net. The table was set with hand-painted Mexican glassware, pottery, and cactus from Mexico. A special gift for Scott was a pair of hand-made Mexican sandals.

Guests for the afternoon were, in addition to their home, Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Pleasant and Jini and Dave Pleasant, Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Swain and Allen and Mike Swain; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Parker and Walter and Gary Parker, and Capt. and Mrs. E. L. Laverde, of Columbia, South America.

Ladies Invited To Bridge Meet

All members of the Fort Benning Officers' club are invited to the meeting of the bridge group Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 at the Officers' club. It was announced today by Mrs. Wiley O'Mohundro, chairman of the group.

Tables will be in play for advanced, intermediate, and beginner players, and instructors are available for the beginners.

Part I. Introduction and Allegro by Kreisler; Melody by Gluck, and Sonata in B Minor (Largo, Allegro, and Largo-Allegro) (Version by Reyes) by Leclair.

Part II. Roumanian Folk Dances (Matok, and Polanaisa in D) by Wieniawski.

Two numbers by Debussy, Prelude in A Minor and L'isle Joyeuse, will be included in Part III, which will follow the intermission.

Part IV. Concerto in G Minor, Opus 25 (Prelude; Allegro moderato, Adagio, and Allegro energico) by Max Bruck.

Songs from Spain will be featured in the first section of Part V and the transcription by Paul Kochanski will include Moutain Song from Murcia, Saeta (Invocation), and Granada. Also in this part will be heard Dance from "La Vida Breve" by de Falla-Kreisler, Zapatera (Cuban Dance) by Angel Reyes-Camejo and Caprice No. 24 by Paganini-Fuchs.

Reception After Christening Fetes Sally M. Cheston

Little Sally Morris Cheston, four-and-a-half month old daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Murray D. Cheston, III, was christened Sunday afternoon in the Infantry Center chapel in a beautiful ceremony with Chaplain (Capt.) Russell Kersch officiating.

Sally was beautifully dressed in a long dress which was worn by her aunt. The white gown, decorated with lace and pink ribbons, was worn with a white bonnet brought from Brussels, Belgium, by Mrs. A. E. McCormick.

Following the christening, guests were invited to a reception given by Colonel and Mrs. Cheston at their quarters. A color scheme of pink and green was beautifully used on the table which was overlaid with a lace cloth. Pink glass and green glass were used in silver, and punch and cake were served.

Guests were Col. and Mrs. Bernard Byrne, Mrs. James Davidson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. D. Conner, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harrell, Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. E. McCormick, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Warner, Reshard Warner, Miss Nellie Porter, Mrs. Lottie Porter, Col. and Mrs. Paul Cooper and Mrs. Charles E. Davis.

Mrs. Harrell was a god mother to Sally and Mrs. McCormick acted as a sponsor in place of Miss Augusta Cheston of Baltimore, Maryland, who was unable to be present. Colonel McCormick acted as a sponsor in place of his father, Colonel Jack E. Schuck, of Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Blake Hostess

Mrs. F. A. Blake entertained at a bride tea at her quarters Tuesday afternoon.

The guests were Mesdames O. C. Thompson, R. H. Bull, Carl Nicholason, vice president; Lt. John Fiskay, A. Bengert, C. Thomas, R. Strick, secretary, and Lt. Sterling Evert and A. F. Zeigler.

Major Edward Dupras and Major John McLaughlin. Seated are Mrs. Stearns, Mrs. Sachs, Mrs. Dupras and Mrs. Sinclair. Lieutenant Sinclair, who has 12 years of service with the Marine Corps, cut the birthday cake decorated with the Marine emblem.

Dessert-Bridge To Be In Lounge

Mrs. J. E. Tilton will entertain a group of her friends at a dessert bridge party this afternoon at the Officers' club when several tables of bridge will be in play in the small lounge.

The main table will be decorated with bright chrysanthemums, and the guests will be Mesdames E. A. Kreilick, Curtis Markland, E. O. McDonald, Jack Street, John Deane, W. C. Colburn, M. E. Bullock, R. A. Tolve, R. L. Dickerson, F. B. Watson, A. Loeuis, John Pray, R. N. Skaggs, W. F. Johnson, C. E. Dunn, P. C. Dean, and H. E. Bramlett.

Tactical Section Ladies Hold Meet

Ladies of the Tactical section held a delightful luncheon Thursday afternoon at the Officers' club when Mrs. John Evans and Mrs. John Farnell acted as co-hostesses for the event.

The long table was set for 34 guests and decorated with a bright centerpiece of fall fruits and vegetables, while the Thanksgiving theme was shown in the clever place cards made in the form of black Pilgrim hats.

Later in the afternoon four tables of bridge were in play.

Name New Council

At a recent meeting a new council was elected by the officers of the Patton House club. Lt. Paul H. Bouchard was named president, and the other officers are Lt. J. John Nicholason, vice president; Lt. John Fiskay, A. Bengert, C. Thomas, R. Strick, secretary, and Lt. Sterling Evert and A. F. Zeigler.

Communication Ladies Entertain At Lunch Event

Ladies of the Communication section held a delightful luncheon event Friday afternoon at the Officers' club. Several tables of bridge were in play later.

The table was beautifully arranged with tall white tapers in silver candleabra and a centerpiece of bright canterberries held in a silver bowl.

Mrs. Arhet Bengert and Mrs. J. Fletcher were co-hostesses. Other ladies entertaining were Mesdames Paul Hamilton, J. H. Van Vliet Jr., O. C. Thompson, C. E. Conley, R. E. Phelps, L. W. Conway, W. Whittle, E. Zeigler, C. B. Thomas, R. H. Bull, R. E. Womer, C. A. Martin, A. L. Swain, J. W. Blaker, J. F. Harrington, J.

E. McAllister, J. J. Ford, and A. W. Moldenhauer.

The hostesses for the Dec. 12 luncheon will be Mrs. Blaker and Mrs. Martin while Mrs. Arne Millikan will be hostess for the bridge meeting of the group to be held Friday at her quarters.

Heroes Of Florida Flood

After almost three days in which Florida's worst flooding, the 78th Engineer Battalion has returned to the post with proof of its versatility.

A group of 42 enlisted men and two officers of the engineer battalion were sent down to Fort Lauderdale and Belle Glade, Fla., to construct pontoon bridges for the evacuation of people and cattle stranded because of floods. Communications with 2,000 acres of land and 100 persons were restored by building three 35-ton bridges.

The bridges also provided a connecting link to the 180,000-acre Hillsboro plantation, where all but 2,000 acres was under three feet of water. Unable to reach the stranded families with supplies, it was thought the plantation would have to be abandoned, but they had reckoned without the engineers.

The bridges are still in place approximately 13 miles from Lake Okeechobee in the fertile Kissimmee valley.

On these pages is a pictorial account of the building of the bridges.

GETTING READY TO WORK—The 78th Engineers and a group of Florida volunteers get construction of a pontoon bridge under way near Belle Glade, Fla.

HEAVE HO, ME LADDIES—It takes a lot of brawn to construct a pontoon bridge, and this group of engineers, aided by local labor, accomplish a part of their task with mighty heaves and shoves. They have just slid the first pontoon into place.

THEY ARE NOT SWIMMING—The 78th Engineers enjoyed their underwater work in Florida, but suggest that no one attempt to construct a bridge in Alaska. In this picture Pfc. William Haines, foreground, and Pfc. Walter Howell place a locking pin on the adjustable transom.

CATTLE OUTLET—This M4A2 across the Hillsborough canal was used to bring thousands of stranded cattle to safety and dry land. This group of engineers are waiting for more balk—civilians say stringers—for the last section.

ENGINEERS VS. COCONUTS—Every Florida visitor at some time or other decides to determine who is master, himself or the coconut. Usually the coconut wins, but Pfc. Gene Lively, left, and Pfc. Guy Reese, both with the engineer contingent, used a hachet and conquered the milky fruit.

ANOTHER IZAAK WALTON—Pfc. Ernest T. Mase, another Benning engineer, uses a bit of his spare time trying his luck in the Hillsborough canal with an old bamboo.

GETTING READY TO ROLL—These truckers of the engineer battalion check their vehicles for the long haul back to Fort Benning from Belle Glade, Fla. Getting to and from their destination, the construction engineers depend upon their truck drivers.

Doughboys Spank Devil dogs, 53-7

Gholson's Pass Give Marines Lone Marker

Dreams of sweet revenge came abruptly to an end last Sunday at Doughboy stadium when the vicious soldier eleven took Cherry Point in, hand and thoroughly spanked the Leathernecks 53-7 before some 7,000 screaming grid-mad spectators.

Sunday's overwhelming victory gave the Doughs their seventh win in eight outings, while the Doughboy attack was so deadly that one would never have believed that the same squad had to put their teeth to the turf to eke out a 2-0 decision two months ago.

Yet Benning had to take advantage of every break to run up such a lopsided score, and it was only the watchfulness of alert linemen and backs that enabled the Doughs to steal the ball time and again. Then too, there was the outstanding Herb Gholson, a shifty and dangerous Marine half-back, who had to be contended with. Gholson shone brightly in the loss, and his accurate aerial fry constituted a constant threat to the Benning victory.

Gholson Marine Star
Herb Gholson found his range midway in the second period when he fired to Mike Cervin from his own 29. The play, perhaps the most deceptive of the day, out-smarted the entire Doughboy defense, and the feet Cervin snagged the aerial, and raced the remaining 30 yards untouched. But the sudden comeback was short-lived as the Doughs put on the steam to tally four markers in the same stanza virtually to sew up the ball game.

The crack defensive play of Bill Tuminiella and Harold Haberman nearly out-shined the running and passing feats of the solo scorers. Tuminiella and Haberman smashed the Marine line time after time to dump leatherneck backs for losses, while their blistering tackles caused many a Cherry Point fumble when the going was tough. Along with these two stellar forwards was Bob Ward, a great guard, who sparked the midsection of the Doughboy line.

After Cherry Point halted an immediate threat at the goal, the Doughs came right back, taking possession on the Cherry Point 30. Don Sult, a ferocious fireball against the Marines Sunday, teamed with both Bob Seibert to give the Doughs a first down at the Point 11. Jim Mitchell, burly field general, took Sult at the one, and carried for the initial score from that point. Jack Seybold's kick was perfect.

Doughs Threaten
The Doughs threatened twice again in the first canto, but Cherry Point held, taking possession, alternate fullback, found Sult as the first quarter neared its end. A fumble at the Cherry Point 12 was recovered by Art Hyman, and Don Perrody, leading Benning aerial artist flipped to rangy Doug Scovill for the score. No sooner had Benning kicked than Gholson arched his arm and aimed at Cervin, hitting him for the lone Flyer tally. Bob Kerey's kick was good, giving the Doughs a 13-7 advantage. The Doughboy attack was about to get under way when Bob Seibert loosed a long 59-yard spiral to Gholson began to hit receivers anew, and led his Flyers to the Benning 36, but Bill Talkington's fumble was pounced on by Leonard Pfeifer to end the threat at the 42. It was Wilbur Ross on a series of running plays to the Cherry Point four where Pfeifer again covered a fumble over the goal for the score. Bill Tuminiella kicked to Cherry Point, but the bounding ball silted through the hands of a waiting tackle, and Bill Tatum, immediately covered the silt in the Cherry Point 40. Post Gridders Set For Riley Fracas

Perhaps the toughest ball game of the 1947 season will be played at Doughboy stadium Sunday when the Fort Benning Doughboys' once-beaten eleven tangles with a star-studded Fort Riley aggregation.

The Centaurs from Kansas invade Fort Benning tomorrow afternoon and will go through light workouts Saturday in preparation for the game that has been in the eyes of all Post fans since early in the season. A capacity crowd of 10,000 is expected to witness the fracas that will see Butch Kendrick's charges face their first real test on home ground.

Back at full strength again, the Doughs will be all out for this game. The team that has been back who led the Doughs in rushing for the first five games, has been pronounced ready for the tilt. Cutti's return to the lineup will give the Benning running attack a greater range of operation. Bill Thurman, another able ball carrier, has recovered from rib injuries, while Harry Sloan should get back in shape after bruises from the Fort Sam Houston game last week. Bill Austin, a dangerous alternate guard, will also be ready for heavy duty along with Bob Cotley, who was hurt last week.

Play Finer Ball
Since Benning's 17-game winning streak was ended in a bitter 56-0 rout by Quantico, the Doughs had come back to trounce two opponents by lopsided scores, and have played finer ball during the last two weeks than the type of the ball that carried them through five consecutive victories this year. For four Sunday with two going while Don Perrody continues to set the space in the aerial achievements, Wilbur Ross and Don Sult have become real sparks on the field. Although the Benningites won last week's game by a lopsided score, the tilt at Doughboy stadium was by no means a walk-away. From the starting whistle until the final gun, both squads fought ferociously for every inch of ground. Herb Gholson with his dangerous aerial, and Phil Seibert, a superb game again, the Marine kept the Doughboy defense on its toes. Second Guessing

by RALEIGH GREENE

Columbus and vicinity had quite a week end what with the annual clash between Georgia and Auburn. Columbus and Fort Benning turned out solid for the Saturday afternoon classic, and chipped in more than ever before to make this past tilt between the two clubs bigger and better.

Fort Benning is always happy to see Georgia come to town, mainly because it means that rotund Wally Butts will pay a visit to the Post. Butts has been making an annual visit to Fort Benning every year, and always tries to get out here when the Doughboys are playing hot to some other service team.

Sunday, the Bulldogs' head grid mentor watched the locals fire away at Cherry Point's Marines, and was quite impressed with the fine job Butch Kendrick has done with his young squad this year. Sunday's game was the first that Butts has seen the Doughs play this season, and his interest in each and every griddler was noticeable from our perch in the press box.

At the intermission, Eddie Roberts, Jim Mitchell, and Bill Tuminella were called to the side by the Georgia coach, and questioned about their desire to continue playing ball in college. It is quite possible that all three of these men will be playing with the Bulldogs next season.

We are always happy to see Wally Butts at Fort Benning, and as he and his team return to Athens, the Post's best wishes go with them.

While on the subject of prospective college football players of next year, we might mention a few others who have been picked off by big schools. Harold Lutz, distinguishing himself as an after-touchdown artist as well as a great pass receiver and defensive end, has signed with the Crimson Tide of Alabama and should be heard from during the 1948 season. Bob Ward is another choice of Red Drew, and will accompany Lutz to Tuscaloosa. Ward has been a stellar stand-up all season, and his work at right guard has been superb. Bob is a probable candidate for "Player-of-the-Year" honors.

Costmo Cutri, the fireball seatback who incurred injuries some weeks ago, has been propositioned by the Uclans of U. C. L. A. Cutri led the Benning runners in total yards gained through the first five tilts this year, and all will be happy to know that the ace tailback will be back in the lineup when the locals tangle with Fort Riley Sunday.

Bob Seibert, a great ball player on anybody's club, is headed back for Auburn in a few months. Bob played with Auburn one season, two years ago.

Dick Groninger will be back at Purdue in a few months, while Harold Haberman is slated for duty with Minnesota. A number of other scholarships have been offered to Benning gridlers, but we have had nothing definite on these to date.

The big game for the local fans will be played at Doughboy stadium Sunday. Yes, the day for the Fort Riley clash is finally at hand. But I doubt very seriously whether too many people are worried about it. No matter how good the "Centaurians" may be, I feel certain that they will have to come to lick the Doughs. No team will ever come near the score that Quantico unleashed two weeks ago, and I'll wager to say that Quantico couldn't do it again if they had a dozen chances. Incidentally, Quantico had to come from behind to defeat Parris Island 27-13 last week. Could something be "rotten in Denmark?" I understand that the Doughs were to play the Quantico Marines—sounds rather like their worthy opponents might have been the Marine Corps.

Riley does have a big and rugged team. They are manned by many former stars from West Point, the most noteworthy being "Ug" Fuson. If you will remember Fuson was chosen second string All-American when he played with the Cadets in 1945. Fuson is varsity center at Riley this year.

But the Doughs will be back at full strength for the big battle, and plenty of action is in store for the local fans. A near capacity crowd is expected for the game, so I suggest you get your tickets early. I understand each organization has tickets available.

Some may wonder why the next two games are costing Post personnel. Well, let me assure you that it will not profit the Post not a penny's worth. All the proceeds from both games will go to the Community Chest. This organization takes care of charitable and character-building organizations, and is certainly a good cause.

I hope I don't sound like someone in the pulpit asking for funds, in good, it's as good a place for your money as you will ever have, and, furthermore, you'll see a real gridiron battle.

Gridders

rines' lone tally, but Gheribson and Secrist led the Marines deep into Leatherneck territory on three different occasions, and it was only costly fumbles that halted many of these thrusts.

Gholson pitched 17 times, and connected for seven, compiling 152 yards through the air. Secrist picked up nearly all the Marines' yardage on the ground.

Doughboy pass defense has improved greatly over previous games. A tighter formation, with the line backers close, seemed to bottle up the short passes over the line, while floating halfbacks were able to steal four Gholson completions with Roberts going for a touchdown on one.

Riley has lost a pair of games this year. West Point's "B" team, defeated them three weeks ago, 26-0, while a mediocre Nebraska "B" squad turned them back 18-0 on Saturday ago.

While the Centaurs have suffered two losses, the Riley eleven is manned with a host of college stars, many of whom have come from West Point. Leading the Riley stand-outs are Harold Tazvel and "Ug" Fuson, both from the Military Academy. Fuson, a played varsity fullback for Tennessee for one season, but made second string All-American as center with the Cadets. Shel Biles, another member of Army's team, is with Riley along with "Woo" West, who has seen plenty of football in his day. West was a stellar performer at Dartmouth, and played fullback on the Eastern All-Star team in 1947, being voted the squad's most valuable player. So with these stars, together with young talent that has been flowing into Riley this year, the Centaurs will put a very strong starting team on the field Sunday.

Although Riley is loaded with stars, Kendrick's capable seconds may do the trick in the battle. Three backfields have been trained by the Benning coaching staff, and all three have shown up well against any and all defenses this season.

With Don Perrody and Don Suit doing the chunking, Cutri and Ross running from the tail-back slots, and Eddie Roberts and Bob Seibert holding down the fullbacks position, Benning should set a dangerous backfield against the Centaurs.

Weights favor neither team. Riley's line averages in the neighborhood of 200 pounds, while their backfield runs around 185 pounds. Kickoff is set for 2 p.m.

FREE FOR ALL—Bob Ward (with ball) recovers a Cherry Point fumble during the Marine territorial Doughboy game last Sunday. The Benning eleven thoroughly trounced the Flyers 53. Other Doughs seen in picture are Don Sult (14), Bob Scallron (34), and Lyle McCauley. Cherry Point players are John Kreamchek (58) and Roy Bailey (19).

Doughboy Center This Week's Hero

There were plenty of big names that saw the Doughs win the Cherry Point Marine last Sunday, and most of these headlines agreed that the play of Bill Tuminella at center was the outstanding performance of the day. Because of these opinions, the burly center has won this week's choice as player-of-the-week. Tuminella, who has been action as varsity center in every Doughboy game this year, has contributed greatly to the Doughboy defense with his fine blocking and tackling. He has never failed to receive favorable mention from opposing coaches, and was handed a line tribute two weeks ago when Moose Stewart, headcoach from the Quantico Marines, remarked that Tuminella was the finest center that had played against any team he had coached.

It is of interest that this season with the Doughs is the first by burly line-backer has played since he made All-State center with Augusta Military school in Virginia. After nearly five years of athletic idleness, Tuminella has come back to put himself high in the ranks of potential college stars.

Fine Performance

The fine performance of Bill Tuminella have not gone unseen by important eyes. Rotund Wally Butts, who has made such stars as Frank Sinkwich and Charlie Trippi during his many years at Georgia, was on hand to watch the Doughboy-Cherry Point clash, and was very interested in having Tuminella back at Georgia. Butts had offered Tuminella a scholarship last year, but after working out with the Bulldogs for a summer, he returned to the Army. And Red Drew of Alabama has seen the hefty Tuminella work and has put a word in for him, too. Yet, Bill is reluctant to make his plans public at the present time, but all may be sure that if Tuminella decides to go to college, his name will not be lost among a forgotten alumni.

Hailing from a state where hundreds of stars have come, Tuminella played four years with Oakmont high school. After his graduation from Oakmont in 1941, he took a post-graduate course at the Augusta Military academy, where he excelled in football, basketball and boxing.

Immediately following his course at the military school, Bob Higgins at Pennsylvania State university talked to Tuminella about going to college and playing ball with the Nittany Lions. But these were war days, and Tuminella was off for the Army. Taking his basic at Camp Dorn, Miss., he came on to Fort Benning in September, 1944, where he completed the Airborne course.

While overseas, Tuminella was attached to the Sixth Infantry. Upon his return to the States, Tuminella was discharged. After seven months in civilian life, Tuminella re-enlisted in the service and was assigned to parachute maintenance in the Airborne battalion.

Tuminella has two more games to play with the Doughs this season. Unless some big school steals the talented center, he may be around next year to spark the Doughboy football team.

ITS OUR WAY OF MAKING FRIENDS

Week's Upsets Year's Worst

BY RALEIGH GREENE
Pontius Pilate said, "Quod scripsi, scripsi," which is interpreted to mean, "What I have written is written." So is the case with this scribe who suffered bitterly from last week's major upsets. If the opening week of the football schedule was unpredictable, just take a look across the nation this past week, and you'll really get an eye full.

Only four major football aggregations came through a blistering Saturday without a demerol. Notre Dame braved a soggy field, and eked out a winning touchdown to keep its face clean. SMU had to go the limit to edge Arkansas, while Penn State ended comfortably with two touchdowns over Navy. Only the mighty Wolverines showed power, when they severely clapped the Wisconsin Badgers, 40-6. Not a week has gone by that some potent eleven hasn't been dumped from the undefeated, untied ranks.

Gilmer Defeats Tech
The South lost its only perfect team last week when pass-happy Harry Gilmer completed 11 chucks in 13 tries to lead the way to a 14-7 victory over Georgia Tech. Penn, eager for revenge, had to come from behind to satisfy themselves with a 7-7 deadlock with the Cadets. Utah fell off the band wagon when Idaho turned the tables in the final canto. Alabama's decision over Tech threw the Southeastern Conference race into a nightmare, and sent Charlie Conerly and his Rebels surging to the top-notch spot in the running.

Iowa, that old-time beating man from Wisconsin two Saturdays ago, surprised the Gophers from Minnesota with a one-touchdown decision, while Tennessee passed to the days of yore, returning to a rough shod over an unhappy Eastern College. Oklahoma sent a lump into some threats in the Midwest, turning back Missouri, 13-7, while in the East, Princeton spanked Yale to a 17-0 tune.

And, incidentally, our average should be a tumble as a result. Our record for the week ended with 24 right, 7 wrong, and 3 ties, which have to be chalked up as miscues.

Scenty Week
This week's schedule is a hit or miss affair, with the teams are rearing up on important tilts a week from now. Army and Navy will be grinding for their annual classic nine days from now. Only SMU and Rice play major battles this week with the balance of the Midwest idle. Penn State, as will Mississippi.

But let's depart from the idle chatter and look into the business of the week—this Saturday's football. The South will eye the all-important clash between Alabama and LSU. Tittle and company have improved along with the Clemson Tigers—that game tops the Southern league. We'll string along with Bama, but caution all about Yale get the nod over Auburn, while a comeback Tar Heel eleven takes first choice with Duke, who couldn't score on the Gamecocks last week. Florida is due for a win after trying Tulane, and we'll say the Gators over Miami. Georgia teams have breathers with the Fighting Furman, while the Bulldogs are limbering up with Conerly-stung Chattanooga, Kentucky gets out the victor over North Carolina State. Wake Forest should drop Duquesne with ease, while William and Mary is defeating Bowling Green.

Yale Over Harvard
The time has come for the ancient rivalry between Yale and Harvard. The game is not considered a football game—it's whatever Webster failed to define. Nevertheless, we'll stick our necks out and try to pick a winner—Yale in a game that anything can happen. Boston College should take St. Mary's, with Columbia the winner over surprising Syracuse. We don't care to mention Brown and Colgate, but duty demands, so it's Brown in another toss-up. Princeton may win from Dartmouth, while Vanderbilt is our choice against Maryland. Penn State should like off-beaten Pitt, while West Virginia is almost sure against Temple.

History is being made west of the Mississippi—I don't have to tell you. Notre Dame has a breather with Tulane to get in shape for the most discussed game now. Michigan will duel with Ohio State in a grudge game—should I tell you who'll win? OK, MICHIGAN. Detroit over Tulsa, Illinois to clip Northwestern, Indiana to surprise Purdue, and Minnesota to whip Wisconsin. Kansas should take Missouri, while Oklahoma is facing a red hot flame at Nebraska.

Rice meets Texas Christian and SMU battles Baylor in the important franchises in the Midwest. Rice and SMU will be the winners. Southern Cal returns to the scene and will entertain the Uclans this week. Southern Cal is our choice to insure their trip to the Rose Bowl along with Michigan. California should nip Stanford with ease. Oregon and Washington clash with the State opponents in rivalry rascals. Oregon over State, and State over Washington. Can you understand that one?

We're trying to figure out our All-America team now, but are having a bit of trouble. This was the year when everybody was a star—every team a winner. Any suggestions would be appreciated—just write The Bayonet, and we will take it from there.

FLYNN TRANSFERRED
Lt. Peter F. Flynn, assistant motor officer of the 37th Infantry Regiment, has been transferred to Company G of the Airborne Training Battalion, Lt. Flynn, who recently completed OCS classes, here will attend the classes at the Airborne Training Battalion.

Columbus-Jordan Football Tickets On Sale At PIO

Tickets for the biggest high school game of the year—Columbus vs. Jordan—will be on sale at the Public Information office through Friday.

Scheduled for Memorial stadium Friday night at 8 p.m., the traditional battle finds both teams entering this year's squabble with identical records, posting four wins, four losses, and one tie apiece.

Adult tickets sell for one dollar, while student ducaats go for fifty cents.

Jim Tallant Lost For Riley Mele

Jim Tallant, alternate center on the Doughboy grid team, will be lost to the locals for their tilt with the Fort Riley Centaurs Sunday. Tallant suffered a severe cut over his right eye during the scrap with the Cherry Font Marines last week, and was given treatment at the hospital later, where stitches had to be taken.

He will be the only key man on the Dough eleven unable to see action against the Kansans.

Tailback Sees Flyer Victory

Cosimo Cutri, fully recovered from a bruise incurred in the Fort Jackson game three weeks ago, will start against the Fort Riley Centaurs Sunday.

While Cutri was resting, he was acting as an official Benning scout, and journeyed to Jacksonville last week to get a look at the Flyers, who were up the Doughboy schedule at the stadium Nov. 30. Jacksonville is manned by a heavy and speedy backfield that tore an opposing Navy team apart as the Jacksonville eleven slaughtered the Memphis Flyers 38-6.

BASKETEER CHAMPS—Victory came the easy way to this group of ace sharp-shooters Tuesday night when the Student Training regiment annexed the Infantry Center's League No. 2 basketball crown by virtue of a forfeit from the 30th

Regiment Quintet Wins On Forfeit

Not an ounce of energy was expended by the Student Training regiment's basketball quintet Tuesday night, but the sharp shooting team annexed the Infantry Center basketball championship by virtue of a forfeit from the 30th Motor Transportation

Capt. William Fannin, Post athletic and recreation officer, presented team captain John Morgan at the Main Post gym after the opponents failed to put a quintet on the floor. Coach Harris' charges, coping of the much-sought crown was a well earned victory, since the regiment loopsters had to overcome an initial competition defeat, before surging to the top of the other four contenders.

After dropping their first tilt 50-18, the STR came back to clip four consecutive fees to make their record of five wins against a sole loss. Squadron F fell twice to the STR, 39-18 and 34-9, while the regiment boys took two more from the 204th Truckers, 36-25 and 40-15, Tuesday night's forfeit, the crown-winning game, gave the STR their fifth victory.

Tom Taylor, fast moving deadly forward, led his teammates in the scoring department during league play. Although the deceptive basketballer was held scoreless when the STR was downed at the beginning of the season, Taylor came back to tally 57 points in the remaining four truces for an enviable average of 11 points per game. Joe Morgan, a smooth man on the floor, took runner-up honors behind Taylor, and was outstanding throughout league competition for his excellent defensive play.

The truckers from the 204th Transportation battalion captured a second spot when the final tabulation was made. The 204th won five games in their eight starts, and suffered the defeats at the hands of the newly crowned STR champions. The net time the two teams met the STR downed a

INITIAL COURT SESSION SET FOR MONDAY NIGHT

Swish. Yes, basketball season is almost here. Capt. Cedric Tallis, head mentor of the Doughboy quintet this year, announced early this week that the first practice session will take place Monday night, Nov. 24, at the Main Post gym.

Bob Seibert, the only returning letterman from last season's Southeastern A A U champions, heads the list of prospective 1947 cagers. Bob has been a stellar standout with the grid eleven during the season.

Capt. Herb Bench, who has been leading his Airborne five nearer and nearer another Post basketball crown, will be bringing his ace sharpshooters for tryouts with Tallis' artists. Bench, an excellent courtman himself, has a host of potential stars on his quintet. Long Bob Henderson and Bob Kinard have been leading the troopers during league competition, and will add handily to the newly organized team.

Frank Tatum, tackle on Butch Kendrick's eleven, played one year at Wake Forest, and gives promise for the coming season.

The Airborne battalion seems to have the greatest amount of talent to offer Tallis. From last year's Airborne team, that incidentally won the Post crown, are Bob Ward, Harold Haberaman, and Lyle McCauley, all Doughboy gridlers. Because of football these three men have been unable to play with Bench's team this year.

Albert Ratner, a small but deadly forward from the 322nd Ordnance battalion, is also an eager potential cager. Ratner has been leading the intramural scorers with 121 points for a 17.3 average per game.

Don Perrody, Paul Bonair, Doug Scovil, Bob Scallion, and Harold are other potential cagers for this year's squad. All these men have been giving their time to playing football, but as soon as the 1947 season is over, they plan to work on the Post court.

From the 15D will come Lloyd Watson and Frank Myers, while Bob Myers, from the 501st Parachute battalion, will be on hand for the initial practice.

Golf Becomes More Popular As Cooler Weather Sets In

As cooler weather becomes more of an accepted thing here in Georgia, more and more golfers have been trying their hand at the difficult sport of putting the ball in the tiny cup at the Officers club golf course.

A great deal of improvement has gone into the maintenance of the course and in another week or two the greens will be in fine playing condition. The tournament early this week by club officials.

A complete changeover is now taking place on the turf with winter grass being planted to replace the old, and new trees planted in the foreways.

The annual Thanksgiving turkey match is now in the final stages, and some shooters have already won themselves a turkey dinner. Major Bill Wikoff and Major Don Lawton are among the top flighters to date. Other matches will be decided this week.

A great deal of competition has been established by the current ladder tournament, and there have been a number of changes in the standings among the players. At present, the "king-pin" is Major Wikoff, who is followed by Col. Roy Cole, Lt. Col. Matt Bristol, Lt. Clem Malone, and Major Jimmy Hargate in that order.

A tentative match is scheduled with the Jacksonville Flyers Nov. 22 at the first course. More details will be announced later.

Fort Benning's team was downed two days ago when they journeyed to LaGrange to take on the up-state linkers. LaGrange defeated the Post golfers, 38-18, on a narrow but well-planned course. Because of the narrow foreways, heady hit drives were heavily penalized, costing the locals many points. LaGrange will return the next weekend sometime in the near future.

Benton Now Touring UMT Unit at Knox

Maj. D. L. Benton Jr., commanding officer of the 756th Armored Tank battalion, left Fort Benning this week for a seven-day tour of the Universal Military Training experimental unit at Fort Knox, Ky., officials announced today.

At the same time it was also announced that Robert E. Monteith, platoon leader of the battalion's Company A, had returned from Fort Knox after a week's tour.

25th Infantry Captures Pair Trooper Quintet To Take Lead

Champion Bound

The fast charging troopers from the Airborne battalion all but sewed up the Post Intramural basketball championship this week when they defeated the 25th Infantry. Heretofore, the quintet dumped the second place AGF Board No. 3, 43-27, in a game that saw Bill Fynt tally 15 markers to pace the trooper victory.

The battalion five has come through nine outings without a blemish to their record, and are now preparing themselves for the crown that should be placed upon their deserving heads in a matter of days. No team in league play has been able to threaten the troopers' mastery of the league, and every opponent has been dropped by at least 11 points.

The 78th Tops 37th

The troopers' assurance of a second championship in as many years was further strengthened Tuesday when Engineers surprised the 37th Infantry, 33-32, in a tilt that saw the lead change hands repeatedly. Both the AGF and the 37th have two losses staring them in the face. The only other major loser, the 15th, was idle this week, and as a result moved up into the second slot in league standings.

On the Main Post, the 501st returned in the most points of the season in smashing the 20th Engineers, 66-27. Bob Myers, sharp shooting forward on the 501st quintet, scored 62 markers to lead a field of other loopsters. Lawson field uncorked a barrage of shots to trample the faltering 32nd Ordnance team, 32-41, in a fast-moving flurry. Albert Ratner, high scoring basketeer in the league, led the 32nd to a 27-point night's score in defeat topping the night's scorers with 27 points. Thursday's game sent Ratner surging over the 100-point mark and widened his lead by almost 30 points.

Need One Victory

With only four games on last week's schedule, there wasn't too much activity in the Post Intramural loop. But the defeats of the AGF and the 37th Infantry, and perhaps the most important defeats since league competition commenced some weeks ago, have the troops from the battalion need only to clinch one victory to cop the coveted crown.

Should the troops come out on top, and in all probability they will, it will be the second straight season that the Airborne team has taken the laurels in this phase of Post competition. Last year the trooper quintet sailed merrily through the season and were so formidable that the Benning team had to play heads up to defeat the troopers in a pre-season scrap.

Artillerymen Down Lawson

Monday at the Post alleys, Amusing 2,332, the 83rd scored their first win after a long series of defeats. The losers totaled 2,278.

Lt. Peter J. Boyle sparked the winners averaging an impressive 174 points per game. Lt. John Lackey led the losers, and ended Lawson field howlers 3 to 1 last Monday at the Post alleys.

The 83rd Field Artillery finally snapped a long losing streak when Lt. John Lackey led the losers, and ended Lawson field howlers 3 to 1 last Monday at the Post alleys.

The Second battalion basketballers of the 23th Infantry regiment elevated themselves from third to first place as a result of consecutive wins over the 99th Field Artillery and the First battalion courtmen last week. The regimental round-robin basketball tournament, League play is now in the final week of competition. The tournament is expected to end Friday when the quintet with the most wins will be crowned champions.

Until the latter part of the second week, the 1st battalion led with a comfortable margin, but losses to the spirited 99th and the rejuvenated Second battalion loopsters dropped them into a two-way tie with the artillerymen.

The Second battalion got off to a rather slow and dismal start, and it seemed to be the opinion of many spectators that the race for the homestretch would be between the First battalion and the 99th. The smooth team's court talent to the team, the Second Battalion loopsters, dropped them into a two-way tie with the artillerymen.

Facced by an array of stars, the Second battalion knocked off the 99th, 47-30, Thursday night, and scored again in defeating the first place battalion five, 37-28.

Championship hopes of the First battalion rest with such stellar performers as Anthony Hardy, John Griener and Bill Wainwright. The 99th's comeback dreams depend greatly on the sharp-shooting Fred Turner, Leroy Vandenhorn and Bill Wainwright.

The combined medic and service company team, having dropped seven straight games, two for forfeiture, is out of the running now. From the four competing teams Coach Jones will select his regimental team. Thus far he has been greatly pleased with the showings of the prospective candidates.

Ordnance Man Surges Higher As Loop Artist

Although the 328th Ordnance rank deeper and deeper into the lower division in the Post Intramural Basketball league, their sharp shooting forward, Albert Ratner, continued to lead the way as far as individual scoring is concerned.

When the Ordnance quintet went down last week in a surprise 33-32 loss to the 78th Engineers, Ratner clicked for 13 baskets and a free throw to boost his season's total to 121 points. For the seven games that Ratner has participated, the fast moving Ratner has averaged 17.3 points, a fine record, especially playing on a losing ball club.

Out In Front

Ratner's success has been remarkable this season. Since he began shooting for the 328th, Accurate Al has tallied nearly half his squad's points, and has managed to keep well in front of all other contenders for scoring honors.

Georgia Coach Lauds Benning Football Team

Wally Butts, head coach of the University of Georgia Bulldogs, paid his yearly visit to Fort Benning Sunday, and was on hand to see the Doughboys whip, the Cherry Point Marines 53-7.

It has always been the practice of round Butts to stop at the Post after the Georgia-Auburn game, and he always makes it a point to look over the Fort Benning gridders in a hope of finding additional talent for his Bulldogs.

Since this was the first time the cagey Georgia mentor had seen the Doughboys in action this season, he was quite impressed with the fine team that Butch Kendrick has gathered. He made it a point to congratulate Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel and head coach Eute Kendrick on the Doughs' fine squad.

Butts took particular interest in three Benning gridders who saw heavy duty against the lether-necks Sunday. Blistering Bill Turnmella, act center and line backer of the soldier eleven, received first mention, and Butts hopes to have the bulky center at Georgia next year. Jim Mitchell, leading Benning quarterback, and Eddie Roberts, hard-charging alternate fullback, have also been offered scholarships at Georgia.

Turnmella worked out with the Bulldogs for one quarter, but wasn't able to see action with Georgia because of his call by Uncle Sam. Mitchell and Roberts are both Georgia boys, and have high hopes of attending the university next year.

205th Truckers early in the week. Bob Myers hit 16 times that evening to total 32 points for the game. His splendid performance sent Myers up to a fourth slot and only two points below Ken Nowles of the 15D, who was idle this week.

Long Bob Henderson, shifty trooper forward who has sparked the battalion's nine-game winning spree, was held to a lone basket against the AGF in their 43-27 win, and left him a long second to the leader. Henderson now has a total of 86 markers to his credit. Another hooper to climb for a berth with the top 10 was But. Buton of the Lawson field flyers, who chalked up 24 points when the flyers downed the 328th 52-41. His total now reads 49.

Jewish Soldiers Plan Meeting For Tuesday

Jewish servicemen at Fort Benning are invited to a meeting next Tuesday, Nov. 25, at 8 p. m. in the hospital chapel to discuss the possibility of a weekly get-together. It was announced this week.

Rabbi Joseph Weiss will sponsor and lead the group, and refreshments and hostesses will be provided by the Jewish Welfare board. Transportation for the Tuesday meeting will be furnished from the Infantry Center chapel at 7:45 p. m.

Ice hockey established a new attendance record during 1945-46 when more than 2,000,000 fans witnessed the 150 league games.

An increasing number of women are taking up the study of law while the usual number, of course, continue to lay it down.

Better Service At Health Club

A complete reorganization and streamlining for better service is fast making the Health club one of the most popular features of the Y. M. C. Program. It has been announced.

A modern steam room has been added where members may relax in the comforts of a steam bath. In the newly organized club, ultra violet rays work infra-red heat lamps have been installed for the comfort of members. These curative lamps prove beneficial to many football players suffering from muscular ailments.

Professional masseurs are now available also.

The facilities of the Y. M. C. A. Health club are made available to the personnel of Fort Benning whether officer or enlisted man.

WIN PROMOTIONS

Pfc. William E. McCasling, Service company 37th Infantry regiment, has been promoted to technician fifth grade, and Cpl. James C. Holmes, also of Service company, has been promoted to technician fourth grade.

THE BAYONET

Vocational School Reopens Jan. 19

With less than a month left in the autumn quarter, plans have already been outlined for the winter session of the Infantry Center's vocational night school, which will open January 19, 1948.

A curricula of 26 courses will be offered in the next quarter, plus any other courses unit commanders feel are needed and provided enough interest is shown in the subject to justify a course.

Approximately 1,200 students are expected to be registered for the winter quarter, which will run only two nights per week, instead of four as in the past. The 26 subjects, including a new complete course in Army administration, will be offered two hours per night, two nights per week for ten weeks.

Previously only enough wives of military personnel were admitted to the school to bring the classes up to full strength, but it has been announced by Capt. Willard E. Chambers, Infantry Center information and education officer, that all wives are invited to attend any course they choose in the next session.

Serving as a new found source in aiding the soldier in the newly established career plan, the school's purpose also is to offer commanders of all echelons a facility to assist them in maintaining a reserve of trained personnel for all their activities.

Several courses will be dropped and several new ones have been added in the winter session. The most popular subjects appear to be typing and auto mechanics with the language class in Russian receiving added interest.

The following subjects are on the agenda: Typing, Shorthand, Bookkeeping, Review Arithmetic, Basic Mathematics, Algebra, Trigonometry, English grammar, Russian (spoken), French (spoken), Spanish (spoken), German (spoken), Psychology, Instrumental Music, Commercial Art, Sketching, Mechanical Drawing, Cabinet making, Auto mechanics, Plastics, Printing, Photography, Army administration, Army supply administration, Army correspondence, and American government.

Another Blaze Guts Building

A second fire in less than a week hit Fort Benning as flames gutted the enlisted men's Dispensary E, in the rear of Dispensary A, on Dilboy street, by Westwood avenue Saturday evening at 5:50 P. M.

The first fire Tuesday morning, Nov. 18, damaged the Airborne dispensary located on Indian Head road.

Flames that swept Dispensary E Saturday were believed to have started in the treatment room. The origin of the fire has been undetermined, and an investigation is being made.

Most of the damage, which was estimated at 75 per cent, was done in the middle section of the rectangular wooden structure, according to Fire Chief Gilbert A. Ward.

Four crews battled the blaze, one truck each from stations No. 2, 4, and 7.

Football Proceeds Augment Benning Chest Fund Drive

One of the best games ever played at Doughboy stadium, the Fort Benning-Fort Riley battle last Sunday, is all history now, and fans are looking forward to this Sunday's clash with the Jacksonville Naval station. Proceeds from both of these games will augment the Fort Benning Community Chest drive under way here.

Those who witnessed last Sunday's fray felt that they received more than their money's worth—it was really a great game for a great cause. Sunday's game with Jacksonville is expected to be another one of those thrill-packed encounters.

Reserved seats for Sunday's clash, which marks the final game of the season for the Doughboys, are going fast. Interest is mounting rapidly with a capacity crowd anticipated.

The public is invited to this big game, expected to be one of the best of the current season. General admission tickets will be sold for 25 cents to enlisted men and 50 cents for civilians and will include reserved seats sold for 75 cents.

Contributions continue to mount with more activities joining the 100 per cent contribution group of the Fort Benning Community Chest drive, now in its sixth week.

It will be Turkey with all the trimmings for military personnel of Fort Benning as they prepare for the feat of Thanksgiving. Enough turkey has been ordered to assure each man at least one pound of meat, quartermaster officials announced.

Prepared by the Quartermaster and approved by the War Department, the Thanksgiving Day menu is one fit for a king.

COLONEL ONTO P. BRAGAN ... Heads Special Services

Bragan Named Post's Special Services Chief

Col. Onto P. Bragan, formerly deputy chief of staff of the Infantry Center, has assumed his new duties as special service officer, replacing Col. Norman N. Winn who has been transferred to Korea, officials announced this week.

The new special service chief is no stranger to the job, having actively participated in sports and recreation at Fort Benning from 1924 to 1928, following his graduation from West Point in 1924. He played and coached football here during that time.

After his first tour of duty here, Col. Bragan left for an assignment in the Philippines, where he served at Fort McKinley and Baguio from 1928 to 1931. He later became attached to the 22nd Infantry division at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and moved with the division to Fort McClellan, Ala.

In 1936 Col. Bragan sailed for more overseas duty, this time to Hawaii where he served with the 19th Infantry division at Schofield.

Patriotic Services Planned At Gowdy

"Thank God for Thanksgiving" will be the theme of the huge Thanksgiving celebration to be staged Thursday, Nov. 27, at 9:30 a. m. at Gowdy field.

Non-denominational and patriotic in nature, and the first of its kind ever to be held here, the observance is outlined with a complete program with a number of choirs and musicians slated to participate.

All troops stationed at Fort Benning, Harmony Church, Sand Hill, and their families and guests, are enjoined to attend the observance, Infantry Center Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale said.

The Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist church in Atlanta and noted writer and author, will be the guest speaker. The Atlanta minister, a native Georgian, is considered one of the finest public speakers in the South. He is editor of a column which appears daily in the Atlanta Journal and also writes for other newspapers and publications, including the Miami (Fla.) Daily News.

The colorful ceremony will open with an invocation by Chaplain (Major) John Rafferty, the Infantry Center Catholic chaplain. The audience will then join in singing "America," accompanied by the 72nd Army band. The Thanksgiving proclamation will be read by Chaplain (Captain) Gerald L. Hayden, 25th Infantry regiment, followed by the tracing of the origin of Thanksgiving by Chaplain Hale.

The 25th Infantry male chorus and the Infantry Center chapel choir will render special numbers during the program. In the climax of the ceremony, guest speaker Dr. Harris will deliver his Thanksgiving proclamation.

The background decorations for the service will be furnished by color guards and guidon bearers from all units of the Infantry Center.

Thanksgiving Day, which has been declared a holiday for all civilian and military personnel on the post, will be the beginning of a long four-day suspension of duties for military personnel. The holiday extends from the Thursday, Nov. 27, through Sunday, Nov. 30.

Civilian personnel will also enjoy the long holiday, being excused from duty on Friday, Nov. 29, and charged to leave or loss of pay. They may also have Saturday off, provided they worked Wednesday afternoon, or they can take four hours leave, officials have announced.

Following the lecture in intelligence the day's itinerary will close with the team work course.

Colonel Austin, Aussie Officer, Benning Guest

Lt. Col. Maurice Austin, of the Australian Infantry, arrived here from Washington, D. C., Monday afternoon for a three day tour of the Infantry Center to observe the Infantry and airborne tactics.

The Australian officer will observe the latest infantry techniques and will witness demonstration of infantry methods and tactics.

Monday afternoon he witnessed a demonstration of anti-mechanized defense of a battalion. Tuesday morning he viewed a rifle company in a night attack and in the afternoon observed the troops in daylight patrolling and sub-caliber range firing.

Today Col. Austin will visit the Airborne section, where he will observe Airborne operations in the mountains. Col. Austin will sit in on a lecture of combat intelligence.

Following the lecture in intelligence the day's itinerary will close with the team work course.

Col. Terrazas Here Sunday

The Chief of Staff of the Bolivian Army, Lt. Col. David Terrazas, accompanied by three other high ranking Bolivian officers, is expected to arrive here Sunday, Nov. 30 for a one-day tour of the Infantry Center.

Accompanying Colonel Terrazas will be Colonel Hugo Ballavian, commander of the Military School of Bolivia, Colonel Alberto Crespo Campic, commander of the Small Arms school, and Major Sergio Sanchez Vargas, School of Weapons.

The South American plan to make a study of Infantry tactics and methods of instructions in their short stay here. Other stops on the itinerary of Col. Terrazas and his party are Brookings and Blair, Va.; Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.; Camp Croft, Colo.; Fort Leavenworth, Kans.; Fort Knox, Ky.; U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., and Washington, D. C.

TAKE AIRBORNE TRAINING

Four Philippine Army Men Tell Experiences

By DICK BARKEE

As the rain drummed on the shingled roofs of the Airborne battalion, four Philippine Army enlisted men told of their experiences with the armed forces in the Far East and of their expected plans after completion of their basic airborne course here.

The tough and wiry sergeants have plenty to talk about, holding the Presidential Unit citation with oak leaf cluster, the American Defense ribbon with battle star, the Philippine Defense ribbon with battle star, the Philippine Liberation ribbon with battle star, and the Philippine Independence and Victory medals.

Led by 1st Sgt. Rene G. Velez, of G-2, Philippine Army headquarters, the four men include T-Sgt. Mario G. Fortes, of Military Police command, Signal company, Philippine Army headquarters; S-Sgt. Napoleon De Los Santos, of G-4 section, Philippine Army headquarters; and Sgt.

Petronio Collado, of the First Field Artillery battalion, Quezon City.

Promoted in U. S.

Promoted from corporal after his arrival at Fairfield, Calif., Sergeant Collado served with the renowned "Volkmann's Guerrillas" in Northern Luzon throughout the Japanese occupation. Prior to this time he had served with the First Philippine division.

After the outbreak of the war in 1941, Staff Sergeant De Los Santos served with the Second Infantry regiment in the defense of Malabang landing field on Mindanao. On February 13, 1942, his unit withdrew to Digos Davao and held positions there against advancing Japanese forces until March 15. At this time they were again forced to withdraw to Pangasinan Cotabato where the Japanese landed on April 28.

In the battle which resulted, the Second Infantry had three casualties, the Japs had 800. This score was certified by the Japanese officers who took them in surrender on May 19, 1942.

Upon release from prison, Sergeant De Los Santos reported to the 18th Infantry regiment for guerrilla service in the region of Olan Cotabato on Mindanao. He then served in the liberation of Cotabato, Koronadal valley, and Bunyan landing field in June, 1944. Released from the 18th Infantry on October 13, 1945, he trained under the U. S. A. Training group and the Adjutant General Service School at Camp Murphy, outside Manila.

Technical Sergeant Fortes was with the 51st division under General Jones on Southern Luzon in 1941. Withdrawn from Tayabas to Bataan, he was with the armed forces there when they surrendered April 9, 1942. Participating in the Death March, he succeeded in escaping into the jungles through heavy rifle fire from his guards. Despite recurrent attacks of malaria and extreme malnutri-field Barracks until 1938, when he returned to Fort Niagara, N. Y., where he joined the 76th division. When World War II broke out, he was with the 8th division at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Before going overseas, the colonel served with the 77th (Statute of Liberty) and the 98th (Iriquois) Infantry divisions. While overseas 30 months he was with the 76th Infantry division in Europe as regimental commander. Coming to Fort Benning in July of this year, he assumed his new duties last year.

tion, he managed to make his way home after two months of jungle travel, and a walk of over 500 miles. Recovered, he joined a guerrilla unit on Sorsogon, in Southern Luzon.

In 1945, he joined the United States Army at Tacuban on Leyte and served with various units until Philippine Independence Day, July 4, 1946, at which time he was transferred to the Military Police command.

"We all like the States," First Sergeant Velez declared, "although this is the first time any of us have been here. The only thing your country is so big and so cold."

"That's true," Sergeant Collado continued. "We wear so many clothes, even indoors, and we still can't get warm."

But Technical Sergeant Fortes had something else to say about this country. "People are so friendly that I cannot feel like a stranger here. Even the system of government is the same as in the Philippines. So we certainly have been made to feel at home."

"That's right," stated Staff Sergeant De Los Santos. "You know, it has always been my ambition to come to the States, especially since studying American history in school. And knowing something about your country makes me like it all the more. I gave up my studies in college to take this course in Airborne training and to see your country. And I don't regret it at all. It's wonderful!"

Upon completion of their training, the four men will return to the Philippine islands to aid in the development of an Airborne unit similar to those of the United States Army.

COMPLETE COURSE

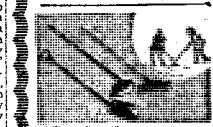

A total of 103 students graduated from the Airborne battalion's Company E Nov. 22 as qualified jumpers and glidermen, authorities said today.

POST UNIT DEACTIVATED
The Separation detachment, 3440 ASU, will be discontinued here effective Nov. 28, officials announced today.

PROMOTED TO SERGEANT
Cpl. Billy Cobb, Company B, Infantry school detachment, has been promoted to the grade of sergeant, officials announced today.

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of historic events, highlights of history that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between Nov. 21, and This Day, Nov. 26.

Nov. 21, 1877—On This Day, 70 years ago, Thomas A. Edison announced his invention of the phonograph. It was 61 years ago on Nov. 21, 1886, that Charles Francis Adams died in Boston, Mass. Adams was a brilliant leader in literary and political affairs and was once minister to England during the Civil War.

Nov. 22, 1916—On This Day, 31 years ago, Jack London, one of the most colorful figures in American literature, died at Glen Ellen, Calif. Exactly 13 years ago in 1932, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt met with President Herbert Hoover for a conference. On This Day, 12 years ago, in 1935, Capt. Edwin C. Musick began the first trans-Pacific airmail flight with more than 100,000 letters from Alameda, Calif., to Manila.

Nov. 23, 1765—It was exactly 382 years ago on this date that the court of Frederick county, Maryland, repudiated the Stamp Act. On This Day, 143 years ago, Franklin Pierce, 14th President of the U. S. was born in Hillsborough, N. H. On This Day, 13 years ago, in 1934, two incidents occurred which might have foreshadowed World War II. Philadelphia, Japanese Ambassador Saito stated that his country was going to give notice of its intention to terminate the Washington Disarmament Treaty of 1922. And France announced that Russia had offered her army as aid in case of attack by Germany.

Nov. 24, 1784, On This Day, 16 years ago, Zachary Taylor, 12th President of the U. S. was born in Orange county, Va. And 46 years ago Capt. Bailey K. French of the Army Medical Corps, made an important discovery regarding the prevalence of anemia in tropical areas.

Nov. 25, 1873.—It was 164 years ago on this date that the British formally evacuated New York after the close of the Revolutionary War. This Day, 112 years ago, Andrew Carnegie was born in the town of Dunfermline, Scotland. Later he came to America and became one of the world's richest men.

Nov. 26, 1727.—It was on This Day, 220 years ago, that Artemus Ward, the famous American General, was born at Shrewsbury, Mass. The General became famous during the Indian wars. On This Day, 123 years ago, the British sailed for Jamaica to attempt the capture of New Orleans. The ironical part of this battle was that it was fought after the peace had been signed. News traveled so slowly in those days that it was some time after the peace treaty had been completed before Gen'l Jackson received any word of it.

Post Chest Drive Booming Upward, Report Indicates

The scoreboard shows a comfortable margin and the barometer continues to zoom upward as more post activities joined the list of 100 per cent contributors in the Post-Benning Community Chest drive.

It was revealed this week that 85 per cent of the 34,400 ASU has contributed to the fund. Leading the 34,400 components is the Food Service School which has topped the 200 per cent mark in the last count of the donations.

The 100 per cent contributors in the 34,400 include the Central Examining board, Headquarters and Headquarters detachment, Section I, and the WAC detachment. A number of units plan to hold various activities to raise funds to boost the drive.

World Wide Photo. SHE'S A QUEEN—The cheesecake art has returned to normalcy. This is the pin-up girl is now the queen of the orange festival or any festival you can name. One of the 1947 crop of "queens" is blonde Shirley Buchanan, whose smile announced the 1947 Los Angeles boat show sponsored by the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce and promoted earlier this year by a group of marine builders.

Post Theater Guide

COMING ATTRACTIONS

ROAD TO RIO (comedy with music) with Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, and Dorothy Lamour. Hope, Crosby, Lamour. With this combination anything can and does happen as the boys promote themselves jobs in a band and try to get Dottie married. Recommended for family.

THE LAST ROUND-UP (western) with Gene Autry and Jean Heather. Autry finds himself in a fight to help Indians from being swindled out of the land. He uses a television broadcast as one means. Recommended for family.

CHRISTMAS EVE (melodrama) with George Raft, George Brent, Randolph Scott, and Joan Blondell. There's no Santa Claus in this one. An aged and eccentric woman with a fortune and no one to trust, sends for her three sons, hoping they will arrive by Christmas eve and save her from danger. Recommended for adult.

MY WILD IRISH ROSE (musical) with Dennis Morgan, Audrey King, and Arlene Dahl. A musical biography in technicolor based on the life and songs of the Irish singer, Chaucey Alcott. Recommended for family.

DEVIL SHIP (action) with Richard Lane, Louise Campbell, and William Bishop. There's plenty of action aboard a boat selected by a gang leader to be the means of getting members of his gang out of Alcatraz. Recommended for family.

KING OF THE BANDITS (western) with Gilbert Roland, Chris-Pin Martin, and Angela Green. The Cisco Kid, as usual, finds time for a song and a pretty girl between fights and jail sentences. Recommended for family.

Angel Reyes Wins Approval Here; Quartet Comes Dec. 1

Winning the approval of his audience with talent of the highest quality, Angel Reyes, Cuban violinist, opened the Fort Benning concert series Friday evening in the Main Post theater with a program which drew appreciative applause time after time.

Playing a beautiful Stradivarius instrument dating from 1725 and as he played the Schubert "Ave Maria," the "Hora Staccato" as arranged by Hefitz, and the Kreisler "Liebesträume." The program by Reyes marked a new event at Fort Benning as the first concert in a series to be given by the Fort Benning Concert association and the definite success of the first concert, on Friday night, points to a continuation of the series in future years. The series has already been arranged for this entire season, and December 10 members of the association will hear the Columbia Opera Quartet in the Main Post theater.

PLAYS HERE—Angel Reyes, Cuban violinist, was awarded Friday night in the opening concert of the season as he won high approval for his brilliant program in the Main Post theater.

given to Reyes for use in his concerts by Thomas L. Fawick, a well-known engineer of Cleveland, Reyes opened this program with the "Introduction and Allegro" by Kreisler, and immediately won approval as he proved himself capable of executing the most difficult music with ease and beauty.

Adding further to the enjoyable evening was the piano actistry displayed by Claude Jean Chisason, who accompanied Reyes and won hearty approval when he played three numbers including a Faure, a Beethoven, and "Gardens in the Rain" by Debussy.

After completing the regular program for the concert, Reyes completely won his audience when, with three encore he touched music more familiar to the listen-

Visiting Officers Feted At Several Dinner Events

Brig. Gen. Angel Solari and Major Faustino Pedrosa of the Argentine army, who were visiting the Post last week, were honored at a delightful party when Colonel and Mrs. Loyd Egan entertained at a dinner party.

Before going to the Officers' club for dinner the guests were entertained at the Boyet's quarters, and at the club Mrs. Boyd had arranged beautiful chrysanthemum in Chinese vases. Guests for this event, in addition to the Argentine officers, were Major and Mrs. Maurice Hatheway, Jr. and Capt. and Mrs. Leonard Bailey. The party had a real South American atmosphere as Mrs. Boyd is a native of Puerto Rico. Mrs. Hatheway is from Chill, and Mrs. Bailey is also from Puerto Rico.

Another evening during their visit the Argentine officers were entertained by Major and Mrs. Hatheway at a colorful dinner party at their quarters.

Rooms open to the guests were attractively decorated with pine leaves and red berries in Chinese and silver vases with the same decorations repeated at the table with the addition of tall tapers in silver.

Other guests at this party were Major and Mrs. Douglas Sugg, Mrs. Marcela de Alfaro, and Capt. Henry Pussineri from the Argentine army.

General Solari is the inspector general of infantry in the Argentine army and Major Pedrosa is the acting director of the Argentine States as the general's guide officer during his visit in the United States.

Col., Mrs. Meyer Here For Holidays

Maj. and Mrs. Abraham Pfefer have as their houseguests for the Thanksgiving holidays Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Jack L. Meyer of Bradenton, Fla.

The couple was honored at a buffet supper Sunday evening when Major and Mrs. Pfefer entertained at the quarters for a group of 20 friends. The hostess arranged the buffet table with yellow chrysanthemums and green tapers in crystal on a lace cloth.

The guests from Florida are enjoying visiting with old friends here. Colonel Meyer was retired about a year ago after serving as director of supply of the Quartermaster Corps on the Post.

Medical Ladies Have Lunch Meet

Ladies of the Medical department held their monthly luncheon at the Officers' club Monday afternoon when Mrs. C. Polk and Mrs. J. O'Hearn, Jr., were the hostesses.

Autumn leaves, fruits, and vegetables carried out the Thanksgiving theme for the event held on the sun porch and attended by approximately 30 ladies.

After the meeting the group attended the meeting of the home and garden group of the Woman's club in the main lounge of the club.

As he played the Schubert "Ave Maria," the "Hora Staccato" as arranged by Hefitz, and the Kreisler "Liebesträume." The program by Reyes marked a new event at Fort Benning as the first concert in a series to be given by the Fort Benning Concert association and the definite success of the first concert, on Friday night, points to a continuation of the series in future years. The series has already been arranged for this entire season, and December 10 members of the association will hear the Columbia Opera Quartet in the Main Post theater.

Airborne Section Dinner-Dance At Officers' Club

Officers and ladies of the Airborne section entertained Saturday evening at the Officers' club with a colorful Thanksgiving dinner dance in the main dining room.

The decorations featured fall trimmings in the Thanksgiving motif, and guests of Colonel Roy Lindquist and the section were Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Colonel and Mrs. Lloyd D. Brown, Colonel and Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder, and Colonel and Mrs. Charles H. Royce.

One hundred and fifteen couples enjoyed a dinner of real Thanksgiving style and music for dancing was furnished by an Army band.

Special events for the evening included the presentation of a wedding gift to Major and Mrs. David W. Lughungh, while baby cups were awarded to recent parents, including Capt. and Mrs. James J. Hatch, Major and Mrs. H. T. Mitchell, Lt. and Mrs. Barney Q. Hopkins, Lt. and Mrs. H. Sheppard, Lt. and Mrs. H. T. Riley, and Lt. and Mrs. Thomas Kennedy.

Members of the planning group for the dance were the officers and ladies of the Air Landing committee under the direction of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John L. Erickson.

Maj. Schillings Named President Of Sojourners

Major (ret.) R. B. Schillings was elected president of the Fort Benning chapter No. 8, National Sojourners, at a dinner meeting of the group Nov. 13 at the Polo Hunt club. Dinner was served by ladies of the Fort Benning Order of the Eastern Star.

Other officers named at the meeting were Lt. Col. George P. Colvin, vice president; Lt. Phelix Gersten, secretary-treasurer; and the trustees, Major A. Allen Gato, retiring president, for a three-year term; Col. O. P. Bragan for a two-year term; and Lt. Col. William D. North, for a one-year term.

Speaker for the evening was Major Carl E. Frisby who has recently returned from Japan and gave a very interesting talk on the Sojourners' visit to hold an open meeting for members and their wives and guests, Dec. 11 at the Polo Hunt club.

P-TA Sets Up Fund To Buy Supplies For Use At School

A fund of 150 dollars to be used for materials for the home economics, arts, crafts, music, and manual training classes of the Children's school has been set up by the Fort Benning P-TA. It was announced at the regular meeting of the group last week by Mrs. Albert C. Haley, president.

The meeting, held in the auditorium of the Children's school, was opened by Mrs. Haley, and the program chairman, Mrs. Frederick Bull, introduced Mrs. L. H. Garrett, director of the choir at the Infantry Center chapel, who sang a group of Scotch songs. She was accompanied by Mrs. E. A. Callahan.

The students in the sixth grade, taught by Mrs. L. W. Moore, presented a program after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, and their entertainment opened with a one-act play, which was followed by a piano duet by Carolyn Millican and Barbara Skaggs. The program closed with a choral reading with a patriotic theme given by the entire class. Jimmy Fitzgerald acted as announcer.

Benning parents and children have been invited to a bird lecture Dec. 4 at 8 p. m. at Columbus high school, it was announced, and at the same time Mrs. Haley revealed that the room prize for attendance at the last P-TA meeting went to the fifth grade, taught by Mrs. H. E. Maberry.

Miss Mary Brown, who was originally slated to speak at the November meeting, will speak here either in February or March, it was explained by Mrs. Haley, who said the change in date was because of the conflicting date with the Fort Benning of Angel Reyes. Mrs. Haley also revealed that the December meeting will take the form of a Christmas party for all children on the Post.

Communication Ladies At Bridge

Mrs. John W. Blaker was hosted at a dessert bridge at the quarters of Mrs. Arne Millican Friday afternoon for the ladies of the Communications section.

Mrs. Blaker and Mrs. Millican arranged the rooms with lovely decorations featuring bright fall berries and leaves in crystal.

Ladies attending were Messdames Paul Hamilton, John H. Van Vleet Jr., Orval C. Thompson, Abel Bangert, Carl E. Frisby, Robert P. Zeigler, Arne Millican, John E. Herrington, Richard E. Womer, Clarence A. Martin, John F. Gerstner, Joseph J. Ford, Roy W. Betts, Alan Swaim, and J. W. Blaker.

The next Communications section bridge will be held December 5 at the quarters of Mrs. Lewis W. Conway.

Costume Dance Given By Medics At Polo Hunt Club

A farmer costume dance was held Saturday evening in the Polo Hunt club by the officers and ladies of the Medical department.

Buffet supper and dancing were on the program for the evening, and before supper cider punch was served to approximately 90 guests. Music was furnished by the 26th Combat orchestra.

Prizes were awarded for the best costumes, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. William D. North took the honors with their mountaineer attire, which even included a milk bucket and lantern. Capt. and Mrs. R. C. Polk were also awarded a prize.

Carrying out the Thanksgiving theme, pumpkins and bright leaves were used about the room, and arrangements for the party were made by a committee including Capt. Norman Gofarbl, Lt. T. G. Johnston, Capt. Wayne Johnson, Capt. Ross Armand, Mary T. Bunch, and Lt. Edith Ansley.

Pan-Hellenic Sets Buffet Supper

Ladies of the Fort Benning Pan Hellenic association will entertain their husbands and friends at a buffet supper at the Officers' club on Wednesday evening, Dec. 3, at 7 p. m., it was announced today.

Wives of officers who are members of a national social sorority are invited to join the group, and are asked to call Mrs. W. Love at extension 2857 or Mrs. L. B. Ramsey at extension 4153 for reservations before noon, Tuesday, Dec. 2.

Glen Gray To Play For NCO Dance Sunday At Pine Lodge

Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra will play at the Post NCO Pine Lodge club Sunday evening, Nov. 30, from 7:30 to 11:30. It was announced today by M/Sgt. O. T. Outland, chairman of the publicity and entertainment committee.

GLEN GRAY—To play at Pine Lodge NCO club dance Sunday evening.

The five-piece orchestra, featuring Steve Harrington as vocalist, will play for the date originally slated for Vincent Lopez, and officials of the club expect this to be one of the outstanding dances of the year. Dress is optional.

The Glen Gray orchestra has played engagements in such well-known spots as the Palladium in Hollywood, Lowry's State in New York, and several motion pictures. The handsome leader of the Casa Loma orchestra was born in Roanoke, Ill., and graduated from the school at 15 after which he enlisted in the Army. After that he went to work for the Santa Fe railroad as a freight hustler, and in four years had worked up to the position of station cashier. During this time he formed his own band, "Spikes and the Jazzy Band," but doubling between the railroad and music couldn't foresee a future in either and went to Chicago, where music was the American Conservatory of Music. He wound up playing club jobs with Frankie Trumbauer, Bix Beiderbecke, and other jazz immortals of that period.

In 1924 he joined Jean Goldkette's Orange Blossoms as saxophonist, and in 1929 the band became the Casa Loma orchestra with Glen as president, saxophonist, and leader.

Mrs. Raymond Has Bridge Party For Miss Smith

A delightful dessert bridge of Friday afternoon was the event given by Mrs. Daniel A. Raymond at the Officers' club when she honored Miss Susan Anne Smith, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edward Ward Smith, who is visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Major and Mrs. Charles W. Ryder, Jr. from her home in Washington, D. C.

Guests for the afternoon were the honoree and Mesdames Charles W. Ryder, Jr., Edwin H. Marks, Jr., Douglas Sugg, Robert N. Edye, Paul Cooper, Harold B. Ayres, Warren E. Walters, Alan H. Strock, George S. Beatty, Jr., John T. Evans, Joseph V. Mosey, Frederick W. Harris, John M. Davies, III, Oscar B. Beasley, John C. Chapman, Matt C. Brisson, George W. Everett, William M. Linton, F. B. Jacobs, Charles D. McFarren, and Robert H. Bull.

Give Buffet Supper

Col. and Mrs. Earle A. Johnson entertained a few of their friends Saturday evening at their quarters when they were hosts at a buffet supper. Guests were Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Frank Ward, Col. (ret.) and Mrs. L. C. Wheat, of Williamsburg, Va., Mrs. Peggy Ward Groneweg, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. S. T. McDowell.

Since then the outfit has emerged as one of the nation's big-name outfits, and their recordings have put them at the top in that field. They have also established house records on cross-country personal appearance tours, playing leading theaters, supper clubs, and ballrooms.

All members of the Post NCO club and one guest with each Sunday evening dance, while each member will be able to bring two more guests at a charge of $2.00 per person. It was announced by Sgt. Charles Lowe, president of the club.

Several Parties Precede Concert Opening Friday

The opening of the concert series Friday evening was the occasion for several charming social events before the program, which featured the Cuban violinist, Angel Reyes, at the Main Post theater.

Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel had a group of friends from Columbus with them at the concert, and before going to the party enjoyed cocktails at the commandant's quarters. In the group were Mr. and Mrs. A. Hesse, Mr. and Mrs. Bass Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Manyard Ashworth, Edward Shorter, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Collier.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. A. Remus were hosts at dinner before the concert, and served cocktails at their quarters before taking their guests to the Officers' club for dinner, where the table was arranged with yellow chrysanthemums and yellow tapers.

In this party were the hosts, Col. and Mrs. Burton L. Lucas, Col. and Mrs. Julian Dayton, Col. and Mrs. Harry D. McHugh, Col. and Mrs. F. W. Gibb, Lt. Col. and Mrs. B. T. Ammons, and Miss Betty Lucas.

Dinner at their quarters for a group of friends was given by Col. and Mrs. Richard Sandusky when they had as their guests before the concert Col. and Mrs. H. A. Stewart and Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward.

Movies Slated For Week End

Free entertainment is in the offing for personnel of the 37th Infantry's First Battalion who remain on the post over the Thanksgiving holiday season. It was arranged by the Information and Education office.

Some of the finest movies available in the Army will be shown. Movies showing restricted combat films, comedies, and Army and Navy screen magazine films are to be screened.

Such big pictures as "Battle of Britain," "How To Get Killed in One Easy Lesson," "Don't Be A Sucker," "Battle of China," and "On To Bataan," will be featured. To many men who have already seen these pictures, the interest will be never because of having experienced many of these battle situations. To those who were not in combat, these films are an experience not found outside of the Army.

FOR 28 YEARS SERVICE—Miss Emma Ray Price, left, is shown as Col. Lloyd D. Brown, coordinator of training, presents her with a certificate honoring her 28 years' work at Fort Benning. New on retirement leave, Miss Brown, during her last assignment, was secretary in the office of the assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

the executive officer, Col. R. W. Lister, until she became secretary to Brig. Gen. Walter H. Gordon, then assistant commandant here. Her next assignment made her secretary to Brig. Gen. Paul B. Malone, and it was on the job there that she first met the man who was one of her bosses at the time she retired, Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard. He was then a first lieutenant in General Malone's office.

Later another change in assignment took the secretarial work of Miss Price to the chief of section, Major R. H. Fletcher, and after that she went back to post headquarters where she worked for Brig. Gen. Campbell King until she went back to the assistant commandant's office and then back to the post inspector's office for 11 years.

Secretary to Gen. Weems — In 1941 Miss Price again took over as secretary to the assistant commandant, and there worked Brig. Gen. George H. Weems until Col. Charles E. Johnson and Brig. General Shepard became her bosses.

Looking back over the years Miss Price recalls that when she first came to Benning she rode a train out from Columbus each day in a slow trip as the track transportation left from Union station in Columbus at 7 a. m. and made the return trip at 5 p. m. in the afternoon. This wasn't exactly good service, Miss Price explained, since the train had trouble pulling the hills.

There was only one road, and an unpaved one at that, in the early days, and the long-time secretary can recall when water several times came up in the car after a heavy rain. She was the first woman to have her own car to drive to work out here after she bought a Chevrolet back in 1920.

Without the conveniences of an Officers' club or cafeteria, pleasant little Miss Price says the girls usually brought their own lunches although a lunch room was set up down by the present location of the bank and the messes, sent soup, coffee, and sandwiches for the civilians.

The years have brought some rare experiences to Miss Price, whose home is in Columbus. With a sparkle in her eyes she recalls the time she worked all night here, and word arrived that the Post had been declared abandoned. This was just before the fourth of July so she, as well as several other civilians, worked all day the fourth and that night. But the work brought a reward. At a banquet for civilian employees the next week the hard workers were each given a 50-dollar bonus.

Recalling other events of her career, Miss Price said she was in the first office in the present Infantry School building and took the first phone call into the building when she was working with the post inspector in 1935. The 28-year employee was also first in another matter. She was the first female patient at the Fort Benning hospital, back in the spring of 1920 when she was taken there for treatment of a broken arm after a car accident. However, the Fort Benning hospital in those days was in a barn which the Army maintained at the Columbus City hospital.

Now on leave, Miss Price is taking it easy and plans to do just that for a long time.

Civilian Employee Retires After 28 Years Service

It's been lots of fun and doesn't seem like 28 years, Miss Emma Ray Price observed one day last week as she prepared to close her desk and go on retirement leave after more than 28 years of work at Fort Benning.

The little lady with the charming personality revealed that she started working for Fort Benning back in 1919, and about a month after her job started the post was moved to its present site from a location on Macon road.

Since that time she has been steadily employed at Fort Benning and has worked here longer than any other civilian employee.

In 28 years Miss Price has seen a lot of changes take place at Benning and during those years she has worked for a number of interesting people, who make it pleasant for her to look back over the years.

In the fall of 1919 the efficient little secretary, then working for the Quartermaster Corps as a secretary in the section under Major J. Paul Jones, took her civil service exam and became a permanent employee. At that time Major Jones and one other officer were the only officers at this location.

Changing from that job, Miss Price went to work for the post inspector, and then worked for Congratulations for Capt. Butch Kendrick and his magnificent football team are still being handed out around the Post, and it might be added that any such outward display of appreciation and admiration is certainly in order.

This week we will contribute most of this column to the Doughs, who spelled out a big "Defeat" for the much heralded gridiron performers from Fort Riley, Kansas, last Sunday, when the locals played their finest game of the year in spanking the Kansans 21-0.

All Fort Benning realized weeks ago that the Fort Riley tilt would be one of the biggest battles in Post football history, and a steady rain and a soggy field didn't discourage very many Fort Benning fans. A dew-dripped crowd of 6,000 spectators turned out Sunday and sat huddled together in the stands in complete awe when they watched the Doughs put on one of the most impressive examples of guts and determination ever staged by a Post team.

All Fort Benning had eyed that important melee from the opening days of the uncertain season, and all knew that the test with Riley on home ground might very well decide the standing of the Doughs in national circles.

There is no doubt today that the Doughs have reached their peak, and there is no doubt that the peak attained is a lofty one. No team, no, not even Quantico, could have humbled Fort Benning last Sunday—you might remember the date, it was Nov. 23. The Doughs proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that theirs was a well-earned victory. All who witnessed the unfortunate affair at Quantico, admitted that Riley was as formidable as the Marines had been. Benning simply played football—the type that manufacturers Americans.

It is difficult to attempt citing outstanding players. It wasn't a game of stars; rather, a game that each and every man was set to win—for that reason, victory was theirs. The forward wall was no less than magnificent. The thrust tactics, the barrage of bruising blocks, and the fight of the Doughboy team will not leave Doughboy stadium for some months to come. Bob Ward, particularly showed that he was a man to be watched in years to come. Ward thwarted Riley runners time and again with tackles that were made for keeps.

Riley was no ordinary football team. They were tough, and the team played to win. When men like "Wo" West are stopped, and "Jug" Fuson are taken out of plays, you may be sure that there is something more than luck involved. Riley is one of the strongest service eleveners in this nation. They have been decisively beaten, but their standing has not been diminished. They have simply been the proof that the Doughs are, and we may see real evidence when the final tab is taken, near the top, despite an unexpected setback by a group of Marines, Quantico, they said... but we wonder.

And Fort Benning fans are to be commended. Their spirit was beyond reproach, and the ball players can certainly be proud of the people for whom they play. You will admit, as I am happy to point out, that there was more noise, and more real, downright support last Sunday than has been the case in all the other games combined this year. It is spirit like the spirit displayed last week that makes a team WANT to win. Next week, I expect the crowd will be even better... the support even more commendable, if that is possible.

Capt. Ced Tallis brought his prospective careers together at the Main Post gymnasium night for the first practice session of the 1947 season. Tallis has a big job before him since he has so few days to prepare and so much new ability to whip into a team.

Only Bob Seibert, still busy with football, returns from last year's squad, and again Tallis will move or less have to start from scratch.

The Doughboys open against Howard college of Birmingham Dec. 5. The first game of the 33-game schedule is reported to be with one of the strongest quietests the Doughs will face this season. Actually, Tallis has only two short weeks to prepare for the initial test, and while he has that two weeks, many of the prospective court men will have less time since football season still has another date for the Doughs.

Sunday Kendrick's charges will wind up a season that can be termed nothing less than successful. Jacksonville Navy will put a strong eleven on Doughboy stadium, and if it is expected that top-notch ball such that played last week, is the sole key to another victory. Weather lending a more desirable picture, a capacity crowd will be on hand, so I suggest you get your tickets immediately.

In spite of the celebrations after the Riley victory, the Doughs have really gone back to work. There is no let-down on a Kendrick-coached team. One reason for all those wins, I might add.

ANOTHER TARGET—Don Sult (19), ace Doughboy tailback, goes high into the air to take a Ferrady pass in the tilt between Fort Riley and the Doughboys last Sunday. Sult added handily with his running, and passing to the Doughboys' spilling of the Centaurs 21-0. The Fort Riley Centaurs' Riley halfback, looks despairing on, and Bill Drapper (51), Dough flankman, and Carlton Wellborne (30), Riley right half, move in.

All Players Reap Praise in Victory

For the second time this year, the sports corner will not select a Player-of-the-Week since so many men shone in the smashing defeat of the Fort Riley Centaurs at Doughboy stadium last Sunday.

Rather than name any one individual, space will be given to the overall playing of the day's various outstanding stars. There wasn't a man on the squad that didn't deserve the honor, for every gridded had a big hand in the important victory.

Both the line and the backfield were dazzling, while the achievements of every man warrant mention. Sunday's game was not an incident won by any one man, but a combined powerhouse that clicked perfectly in spelling a much-vaunted Kansas aggregation.

Bob Seibert, who has been great in every Doughboy tilt this season, was superb both offensively and defensively. Seibert carried the pigskin over the goal-line twice but his play before the touchdowns were even more impressive. Seibert ran, kicked, passed, and bottled up Riley runners so effectively that the mud-riddled jersey he wore was an obscenity when the final whistle sounded.

Don Sult, a lad who has come up from the ranks of leading backs, was sparkling again this week. Last week Sult was the outstanding backfield performer, and is fast becoming the smoothest and most deceptive runner on the team. Sult is an excellent ball handler; that was evident against Riley.

Another back who deserved much credit was Don Ferrady, the aerial ace who knows how to carry a ball. Harry Sloan shone with this punt returns, while Wilbur Ross carried away for the Doughs.

Line play on the part of all the men who saw action was magnificent. Some have commented that it was the line that gave the margin of victory, more contented that was simply the Doughboy football team, we agree. Bob Ward, perhaps the finest punter in the history of the Doughboy football team, was dynamic in his defense. This and again the numeral "33" was wrapped around some unlucky Riley runner. We craved the Kansas forward wall continuously until his opposing guards were looking quite ripe to be pierced. Henry Houser, head coach of the Riley aggregation, said that Ward gave them more trouble than any other man on the Doughboy eleven.

Then there was Carl Meier, a rugged tackle if one has ever been seen at Fort Benning. Meier blocked a punt that netted the Doughs' second tally in the third quarter, but he recovered an important fumble in the first half, and he was in the Riley backfield more PAY DIRT BOUND—Eddie Roberts, Doughboy fullback, races forward after intercepting "Woody" West's aerial on the Fort Riley 35-yard line. Roberts ran with perfect interference, and no Kansson was able to get near the fleet soldier dreadnaught.

Scribe Selects Weekly College Grid Champs

Michigan is Rose Bowl bound, and will meet the mighty Trojans from Southern California at Pasadena Jan. 1. Alabama, the come-back eleven in the Southeastern Conference, has accepted the bid to the Sugar Bowl, and will probably meet the Texas Longhorns. The Cotton Bowl will surely have Southern Methodist with Penn State a likely opponent. The Orange Bowl is still a toss-up.

And that's about the picture for New Year's day as football winds up its topsy-turvy season Saturday. Many of the nation's leading gridiron powers wound up their schedules last week, but many of the grudge battles will be waged Saturday.

The biggest game of the day, in fact the game of the year, will be played at Philadelphia when the still mighty Army clashes with their ancient Navy rivals. Some 100,000 spectators are expected to turn out for the annual classic that never provides anything less than a heart-rending experience. The battle this year should be a gigantic display of genuine rivalry, but this scribe will string along with the Cadets.

Big Upsets

Last week saw some of the biggest upsets of the year. Tennessee surprised Kentucky, Maryland exploded for three touchdowns, spank Vanderbilt, Northwestern pulled one out of the hat in down-

23 Right, 6 Wrong

Again this week those nasty upsets clipped the record, but we managed to pull through with 23 right and 6 misses. This week, although the schedule is even spicier than last, is the week that should see some surprising scores since so many of the battles are inter-sectional and ancient rivalry games. We gave you our call on the Army-Navy scrap, so let's get underway with the balance of the final Saturday's roster of football.

Two of the most noteworthy games of the last act of the gridiron drama will take place right here in the South, one in our own back yard, Georgia Tech's once-beaten Jackets meet Wally Butts

Bulldogs at Grant field in Atlanta Saturday. Rain or shine you won't be able to get a hair through the crowd. It is predicted that people will be hanging from the trees. If Georgia pulled another LSU stunt, they could tick Tech, but we don't expect it so the nod goes to Tech. Connerly and company clash with their State rivals for the Southeastern Conference title. Two things are at stake—pride and a championship. It will be Mississippi over Texas. Alabama will have no trouble in downing Miami, and LSU should take that Notre Dame-peeled Tulane. North Carolina State will be our long shot to slap Virginia, while William and Mary gets the go-ahead with Richmond.

South Carolina should prove too much of a match for Wake Forest. Tennessee is going to get our vote over Vanderbilt. That team has benten me for the past two weeks—it's about time to get on the band wagon, I suppose.

The Southwest has three games with SMU to add another, when they beat TCU. Rice to wander over Baylor, and Texas to clip A&M.

Notre Dame and Southern Cal have a week's rest before they clash at Los Angeles. That's the game to watch. But there are a few tips from the Midwest and we'll cover them briefly. Arkansas over Tulsa, Oklahoma over A&J, Kansas State to fall victim to an oncoming Florida team, and Oregon State to snuff at Nebraska.

And while Army and Navy are thrashing each other, Boston college should be taking Holy Cross. Maryland should be licking N. C. State—it's permissible to chuckle if you like. Penn is our choice, and you can see why, to take Cornell, while West Virginia rates the favorite over Pitt.

Rutgers, team that has come out of the dim dark past this year, will defeat Brown. Rutgers hasn't had a decent football team since Sherman marched through Georgia, but this is their year. They have only been beaten once, that was a close one with Columbia; 13-6, if I'm not mistaken.

Quintets

score more than eight points, the little fellow was all over the court, demonstrating a baseball brilliance which was something to behold.

Brown, of the First battalion, was without a doubt the coolest player on the floor. His caginess and professional antics roused in the fans but baffling to the opposing players, who were left guessing and bewildered each and every time he resorted to such trickery.

Due to the Thanksgiving holidays and the rescheduling of three of the games to be played over the tournament, which was scheduled to end last Friday, will in probability be carried over to the first week in December.

won the honor, as a starter for his recent performances. Roberts, always that on the ground and in the air, will be ready as always. And Sunday, nearly the entire squad of champion Doughboys will play their final game for Post fans. Many of the team are headed for assignments with big universities.

The Doughs and the Flyers from Jacksonville have played some like foes this year. Just for the sake of a few figures, a comparison of scores might be instructive. Jacksonville slayed the Cherry Point Marines early in the season 37-0. The Doughs eked out a first tilt 2-0 decision, but came back two weeks ago to smash the Leathernecks impressively 53-7. Fort Jackson's Red Devils, far from Devils when they played here, were thumped 45-0 by the Naval Air station. The Doughs took a pair from the Jacksonville 30-0 at the meeting and 29-0 the second time the two teams met.

While Jacksonville is not honored to be among the undefeated, their squad is a rough and rugged organization. Pennsylvania Navy fell before the Flyers 7-6. Pensacola is reported to be another strong service team.

Jax Has Talent

Jacksonville is not suffering from lack of talent. The biggest noise on the Jacksonville roster seems to be a lad called everything but his given name, which is, incidentally, Jack Maney. He has been written as everything from a head slapper to the "Human Lawn Mower." Maney is the break-away man on the Jacksonville team, and is also an ace pass receiver.

Jacksonville uses a razzle-dazzle offense with a fast moving passing attack. Although Jacksonville's backfield is underdrick's runners, their line is just about equal with the Doughboys. From a modified Notre Dame shift, Maney uses a remarkable success with their quick opening attack.

Kendrick still fears a passing

WGBA to Broadcast Cadet-Middle Game

The long rivalry between the West Point Cadets and the Midshipmen from Annapolis will come to a head Saturday when the two service teams tangle in Philadelphia.

Columbia's new radio station, WGBA, will broadcast the tilt where over 100,000 speculators are expected to be in attendance. WGBA has been broadcasting all the Doughboy games from Doughboy stadium this year.

attack, and has been emphasizing that part of defense all week. "Woody" West, who stole the show for the losing Fort Riley team last week, connected for a few passes last Sunday that nearly spelled pay dirt for the visitors. Kendrick has tightened his back-up, and that has done much to prevent over-the-line passing that has hurt the Doughs during many engagements. But, as all know, the best defense against a passer is a rushing line, and Fort Beanning's football team has one of the most pugacious lines in this section of the country.

Should Beanning take this game from the Flyers, and they will take the field as the favorites, Fort Beanning will have a chance to annex another service championship. Their standing in the South and the Midwest has been cinched with wins over the most formidable teams in those particular sections of the country.

Lawson Flyers Hit Win Streak

The Lawson field Flyers have hit a winning streak by chalking up wins for the past four games. Last Thursday night in the last game of the Fort Benning league they outplayed the 501st Parachute battalion, 54 to 30.

Under the capable leadership of Capt. W. W. Smith the Flyers have developed themselves into a strong team. But Bufton has been high scorer in a number of previous games and has always been well supported by Seiser and Baker.

Captain Smith has announced the entry of the Flyers into the industrial league of Columbus. He states that the boys are out to bring first place honors to Lawson field.

AIRBORNE CLASS OPENS

Airborne Basic class No. 6 opened here Nov. 17 with five officers and 93 enlisted men enrolled for training, officials have announced. Two of the five officers are Greek.

Tech Scout Sees Doughboy Victory

Dick Jones, scout for Georgia Tech's Yellow jackets, paid a visit to Fort Benning Sunday with football in mind.

Having witnessed the Doughboys' victory over the Riley aggregation, Jones was busy trying to find out about ball players for Tech next season.

Nothing definite has been learned about any scholarships that might have been offered and accepted. Jones was seen in a rather chummy confab with tackle Dick Groninger during the intermission.

DOUGHS SMASH BRAGG AND ANNEX CROWN

"And the best is yet to be," so says the Fort Benning-Doughboy volleyball team that clinched the Third Army tournament at Augusta, Ga., last Wednesday with an overwhelming victory over the defending champions from Fort Bragg, 15-5, 15-7. The newly-crowned victors never found themselves in trouble at any time during competition.

The Benning aggregation came through three consecutive matches without any team scoring more than seven markers, and in the first game, the Doughboys clipped the 1946 champs 15-3 in the most lopsided tilt of the tourney.

But the team that journeyed to Augusta was an unheralded group of eight game men. Their Army duties confined them to work in the reproduction plant, and all eight hail from Company C, 15D. Their arrival at Augusta was expected, but they were lowly seeded in the tourney, and the defending champs expected little trouble

Burniston's Keglers Leading in Lawson Bowling Competition

Last Wednesday night found John Burniston's Keglers leading Jim King's ten-pinniers three games straight in the Lawson Field enlisted men's bowling league. John Burniston's team is standing in first place at present having won nine games and lost three. Joe Durkay's team is running a close second, winning seven and losing two. Jim King's team has won five and lost seven, and in the cellar, Shirley's team has won three and lost six.

The game between Durkay's team and Shirley's team, scheduled for last Friday night, was cancelled due to the many men on furloughs and passes. The scheduled game will be played at a later date. The Lawson field enlisted men's bowling league has submitted an entry to the Bowling league at Fort Benning. The league has been planning to begin operations sometime during the next month.

152 GRADUATE TODAY

Airborne Basic class No. B-4 will graduate today with 152 students slated to receive certificates of proficiency. Graduates will be transferred to the 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C., around Dec. 2, it was announced.

Tom Ewing, Bill Taylor, George Hill, and Ledlow Truman, complete the volleyball roster. A handsome trophy was presented to the team, while each player was awarded individual tokens for his splendid play. And so, Fort Benning has added another Third Army crown to their long victory belt. So far this year the Doughs have captured the track, baseball and volleyball laurels, while Benning teams have copied second prizes in Harvey Allen, Lenwood Green, swimming and softball.

DOUGHBOYS OF 1922—Football was popular at Fort Benning even in 1922 as this picture of the 1924 battalion stationed here in that year. Names of the players were not available. This photograph was provided The Bayonet through the courtesy of the Army Field Printing plant.

Airborne Cagers Take Loop Title

Captain Herbert Bench and his sharp shooting paratroopers were resting comfortably Tuesday night after swamping the 766th Tankers for the second straight year.

The Airborne quintet elicited merry along through ten consecutive titles, and finished two seasons without a blemish to their enviable record. For two years now, no trooper court aggregation has been beaten by any opponent in league competition.

It wasn't the hot fire of Long Bob Henderson this time, but the accurate shooting of veteran Bob Kinard and able Bob Flynn. Kinard romped during his first half to tag the loop six times, and added a pair of baskets in the final stanza to boost his evening's total to 16 pointers. Flynn chipped for five baskets, and a foul shot for second honors with 11 markers.

Although there are still a few games to be played, the Airborne's copping of the crown is secure. Since the trooper five is the only team that weathered the rugged schedule without a setback, no other team can even break for it, since every other squad in league competition has been beaten at least once. Only the crowning of the victorious battalion sees remains, and that will come sometime this week.

Battle For 2nd Place
While the troopers sat out to another championship, the remaining teams were battling it out for second place honors. The accurate shooting of stellar performer Bob Myers wasn't enough for the 501st Parachute battalion, and the Main Post army dropped another notch lower in the standings when favoring Alvin Albert Rainer paced his 325th Ordnance campatriots to a 41-36 decision over the 501st. Rainer ran his yearly point total to an un-

Juniors To Play Intersquad Tilt

Fort Benning will have its own little Army-Navy Saturday, when the Junior Doughboys split ranks for an intersquad tussle at Doughtboy stadium. Kick-off is set for 10 o'clock.

The Cadets, coached by Capt. Joe Kelly, and the Middies, led by Sergeant Macklin, will begin the first of annual tilts between the two juvenile elevens.

Saturday's games will conclude a successful season for the "Juniors" who have been playing ball since the early days of the war.

The parents have equipped the kids with a very sharp looking group of net-sized privileges.

Regular officials have expressed their desire to officiate the game, particularly Monk Myers and Colonel Davis.

It will be an interesting and thrilling game, and all are invited, Captain Kelly said. Admission is free.

Mitchell Probably Out For Jax Tilt

Jim Mitchell, ace Doughtboy quarterback, may be out of action for the important Jacksonville Navy game to be played here Sunday.

During the vicious battle between Fort Riley and the victorious Doughs last week, Mitchell was pretty badly shaken up during a hard tackle in the third period.

Mitchell has been a big fire in the Doughs' defense, and his loss for the final tilt of the year will be felt sorely. Mitchell is headed for the Georgia Bulldogs this fall.

Artillerymen Clip ISD Bowlers

The 83rd Field Artillery battalion chalked up another win when its officer bowlers outpointed the strong aggregation from the ISD last Saturday, 2:133 to 2,051.

The 83rd took one point for each game and the 4th for totaling 14 to add four markers for the Artillerymen with a match average of 152, while Lt. "Ike" Silcox, former Army ace mound performer for Captain Herbert Bench's championship Doughboys, led the losers with 140.

Officers Stage Turkey Shoot

Last week the officers of the Skeet club staged a Turkeyshoot as a prelude to Thanksgiving Day. Three brackets were formed following a two-round qualifying fire, and winners and runner-ups in each bracket were awarded handsome Thanksgiving Day birds for their accuracy.

Major B. T. Larson took the laurels for the first bracket after a close battle with three other opponents. Larson was involved in a three-way tie, but finally clinched the Turkey with a 22-point score.

Lt. Col. Hoffmeister copped the first place honors in the second bracket while Major Milotta defeated his opponent to win the third.

AN OATH FOR THE LAST TIME—T-4 James F. Rafferty re-enlists in the Regular Army by extending his three-year term to a five-year hitch to complete 20 years. Sergeant Rafferty is being sworn in by Captain Philip S. Grant, assistant adjutant of School Troops.

Sgt. Rafferty Leaves Army In Two Years

With the extension of his three year enlistment to a five year hitch, T-4 James F. Rafferty of the 37th Infantry regiment will in two more years have completed 20 years of active service in the U.S. Army.

Serving with the 165th Infantry regiment in the campaigns of the Gilbert Islands, Marshall Islands, Marianas and South Philippine liberation, he was awarded the Bronze star for exemplary action in combat. He also wears the Purple Heart.

His son T-Sgt. Robert Rafferty was killed during a bombing mission over the Bonin islands in the Pacific. He has two sons still in the service, T/Sgt. Harry, who is in the Air Force, and T/Sgt. R. T., who is stationed at Brooks General hospital, Fort Sam Houston, and who is expected to re-ignite soon.

Sergeant Rafferty is now assigned as first cook of Headquarters and Service company. Born in Cheyenne, Wyoming, in 1900, he later moved to Montrose, Pennsylvania, where he attended school at Montrose high school.

I had sworn to be a bachelor;
She had sworn to be a bride;
I guess you know the answer;
She had Nature on her side.

Sergeant Claims Highlanders Don't Wear Silk Undies

The age-old question, "does a true Highlander wear lingerie under those kilts?" was answered with an emphatic no today by a man who should know, after wearing them for five years.

First Sgt. Jerome E. Kelly, of infantry non-commissioned officers class No. 2, an ex-member of the First battalion Blackwatch, Royal Highland regiment, joined this regiment at the age of 17 and served with the Highlanders for nearly five years, seeing Europe both as an officer and enlisted man.

Sgt. Kelly, a Vermonter, prefers to wear pants as prescribed by the U. S. Army, "especially," he added, "in this Georgia weather we have been having lately."

Sgt. Hall Is Assigned To Field Artillery Unit

S-Sgt. Thomas L. Hall has recently been assigned to Service battery, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, officials have announced.

Sgt. Hall, who recently returned from Germany where he was on duty with the Eighth Constabulary squadron, served during the war as a member of the 68th Infantry division. He has been assigned duty as ammunition sergeant with the 83rd.

Birds Awarded 14 Golf Winners

Fourteen plump, tender turkeys will decorate the tables of a like number of expert officer golfers who matched strokes last week in the Annual Turkey tourney staged at the Officers' club golf course.

Winners in the various flights were awarded the coveted Thanksgiving Day birds. No final match was played in accordance with the usual rules, and winners in each flight were awarded turkeys.

Major Bill Wikoff, one of the foremost linksmen in Post golf circles, triumphed over three opponents to cop laurels in the first flight, while Major D. C. Landon went on a turkey trot to spill his opponents in the second. Major M. Brown had a tough time defeating Lt. Col. C. W. Davis, but finally edged the game contender 1 up. And down in the fourth flurry, baseball's Capt. Herbert Bench surged over his turf foes to win himself a meal Thursday.

Capt. Bench was the runner-up man in the recent Airborne tourney won by Lt. Col. Monk Myer, former All-American quarterback from West Point.

Lt. Col. A. Mastalis scored a smashing defeat in the final match of the fifth flight in downing Major Charles Ryder, 7-4, while Col. C. E. Beauchamp, another "hinnin" at the golf course beat out Lt. Col. S. Warren 2 and 1.

Major D. D. Dumlop knocked Major H. T. Mitchell out of the running 3-2 for his turkey.

Maj. General John W. O'Daniel, Post commander, lost his hold on the Thanksgiving day award when Col. W. Archer spilled the general in a tight match in the eighth flight.

THE 20,000TH ENLISTEE—Pfc. James H. Webb, of Russellville, Ala., shown here, (right), taking the oath administered by Major Allen E. Cato, becomes the 20,000th man to enlist at Fort Benning since October, 1945. Formerly with the 8th Army.

Pfc. James H. Webb served overseas five months with Headquarters detachment at the Sugamoji prison in Tokyo. He reenlisted here November 20 as a private first class, and will be assigned to the Army Security Agency.

Army Broadens RA Requirements

The Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force announced today that eligibility for competitive forms of active duty (leading to appointment in the Regular Army or Regular Air Force) have been broadened. The change was made in Reserve, National Guard, and Army of the United States units.

The new policy permits officers who are high school graduates, and who may have two years of reserve, to enter an Educational Department that is established in many of the college education branches required.

The next competitive tour of active duty starts Jan. 15, 1948. Officers may be up to 37 years of age except medical, dental, veterinary and Judge Advocate General officers who may be 32 years of age, chaplains who may be 34, and medical aviation corps candidates who may be 35.

The deadline for applications is Nov. 30, 1947. More than 400 vacancies in the Regular establishment may be filled from those entering the tour commencing in January. Officers on active duty should submit application to the Adjutant General through their commanding officer, and officers not on active duty should apply direct to the Adjutant General.

Two School Troops Men Attend School

Two School Troops men left this week to attend Helicopter Mechanic School at Keesler field, Miss. Lt. Robert J. Wilson, Headquarters and Headquarters company, 78th Engineers Battalion, and Pfc. Robert C. Small, Headquarters company, 501st Parachute Battalion, are the first students from Fort Benning to attend the school.

The two School Troops men are qualified aircraft and engine liaison mechanics, and upon completion of the course will also be qualified as helicopter mechanics.

Three Detachment Men Promoted During Week
Three members of the Infantry School detachment's Company C and one member of Company H were promoted here last week, officials have revealed.
Those receiving promotions in Company C were:
Cpls. John H. Dohrn and Frank Rodriguez to sergeant and Pfc. Alfred C. Harvey to corporal.
Pfc. Albert C. Stagg, Company H, was promoted to the grade of corporal.

Chaplain Praises Airborne Students
Likened to a difficult and untried journey, one on which many start but not all are able to go all the way—such is the parallel found in the Basic Airborne course here.
Class No. 5 of Company C Airborne battalion, has now passed two weeks of the course, and according to Chaplain Theodore R. (Captain) Owens, the morale of the men is exceedingly high and their determination unusually strong.
Chaplain Owens, who comes in contact with his men from day to day goes on to say, "In Company C we have a group of men representing a cross-section of the country. They are cheerful, witty, industrious, energetic and alert. Therefore, with these very fine qualities, plus the painstaking care and interests shown by the officers, we feel that each and every man of our company will prove an asset to the unit to which he will be sent after he completes his course."
The unit now has covered two of the required six weeks.

82nd Lays Claim To Benning Units

An overall reorganization and consolidation of units of School Troops slated to be completed by January 1, 1948, is pending following the completion of plans in the reorganization of the 82nd Airborne division, it was officially revealed this week.

Reorganization of the 82nd Airborne division at authorized strength under the new tables of organization and equipment for airborne and infantry units has been directed by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of Army Ground Forces. This change will affect units of School Troops here, with plans expected to develop as soon as the new table of organization as issued by the War Department is received.

One infantry regimental combat team, including an infantry regiment, field artillery battalion and an engineer company, plus a tank battalion less one company, will be stationed at Fort Benning as part of the 82nd.

28th Affected

The First Battalion, 28th Infantry, which is stationed here, will be attached to this regiment in place of the organic battalion which will be carried at zero strength. The units of the 82nd stationed at Fort Benning will assist in certain demonstrations for the Infantry School in addition to their primary mission of conducting their own training, according to the announcement. All other units of the division will be stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The reorganization of the famous 82nd Airborne marks the first time since the end of World War II that a division has been manned at its authorized strength. The headquarters for the division will be at Fort Bragg, N. C., with Major General J. M. Gavin commanding.

Negroes Fill Spaces

It was revealed that approximately 17 per cent of the 16,000-man division will be Negro troops. They will form five airborne units, including one airborne infantry battalion, one field artillery battalion, one anti-aircraft artillery battalion, and one tank battalion at Fort Benning. The First Battalion of the 28th Infantry here at Fort Benning. One service unit, the 28th Army Field Service company, will be stationed at Fort Bragg.

Most of the 28th Infantry 82nd Airborne units will be stationed at Fort Bragg.

Scouts Gather Toys For Yule

In keeping with the spirit of Christmas, as well as giving aid to those who need it to make their holiday a little brighter, the Boy Scouts of Fort Benning are collecting broken toys to distribute to needy families.

Those families on the post possessing any broken or discarded toys are requested to call Scoutmaster Sgt. Henry Duffield at 5818E. The toys will be picked up, repaired, and repainted for distribution to needy families on and off the reservation, the Salvation Army, orphanages, and any service men's families in Columbus that need help. The scoutmaster's office is located in Doughboy stadium.

A total of 187 scouts are registered here on the post. The regular monthly pack meeting at room No. 137, 215, and the new pack will be held Friday night, Dec. 12, at 7:30 p. m. at the Polo Hand club. Awards will be made and handicraft for November will be displayed. Lt. Col. Lawrence C. Brown, cub master of the new pack, will be in charge of the meeting.

Other cub - masters include Lt. Col. John Stanley of Pack 137, Lt. Col. Robert Carl of 215, and assistant cub-masters are Maj. Joseph Fleish of 215, Maj. Frederick Kent of 137, and Lt. Col. Standford Webster of the new pack.

Bolivian Group Completes Post Inspection Tour

Lt. Col. David Terrazas, chief of staff of the Bolivian army, accompanied by three other high ranking Bolivian officers departed by plane from Lawson field Tuesday morning after a one-day tour of the Infantry Center.

The Bolivian party observed the latest infantry methods and instructions and witnessed demonstrations in infantry tactics. Making the tour with Col. Terrazas were Colonel Hugo Ballavian, commander of the Military School of Bolivia; Colonel Alberto Crespo Carpio, commandant of the Small Arms school; and Major Sergio Sanchez Vargas, School of War. Lt. Col. Samuel R. Knight acted as tour conductor.

Colonel Terrazas and his party started their one-day tour off Monday with a conference with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commanding general of the Infantry Center. Following the conference the South Americans visited the office of the coordinator of training.

After a tour of the Airborne section where they viewed the latest methods and equipment used in Airborne operations, the Bolivians visited the Communications section and the Automotive section.

Monday afternoon the party viewed various demonstrations, including rifle and machine gun hand grenades, flame throwers, range firing, and recoilless weapons.

Scheduled to make stops at many other U. S. installations, the Bolivians will also visit Brookley field, Ala.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.; Camp Carson, Colo.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Fort Knox, Ky.; U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.; and Washington, D. C.

Bradley Expected To Arrive Sunday

DO YOU KNOW THIS MAN?—Paul Gordon Love, 22-year-old veteran, is missing from the University of Illinois, Galesburg Branch, and it is believed he might be at Fort Benning suffering from amnesia. Love is 5 feet, 7 inches tall, weighs 140 pounds and was last seen October 7 in Galesburg, Ill. He has dark brown hair and eyes.

Weather Outlook

 Saturday—Partly cloudy. High 70. Low 35.
 Sunday—Partly cloudy. High 65. Low 30.

LAMB RETURNS TO POST

M. Sgt. Robert E. Lamb has returned to Fort Benning and the 758th Tank Battalion following an assignment on the West Coast. He was formerly battalion sergeant major and his new assignment is battalion time keeper.

GETS KEYS TO CITY—Gen. Omar Bradley, who will be here next week, is shown above receiving the keys to city of Birmingham, Ala., from Maj. Gen. John Persons, Alabama National Guard commander, during Armistice Day celebration there. Gen. Bradley assumes duties as U. S. chief of staff around the first of the year.

Plans One Week Tour Of Center

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, newly appointed U. S. Army chief of staff to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, is scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning Sunday for a one-week tour of the post.

Appointed last week as the new chief of staff, Gen. Bradley who has served for the last two years as head of the Veterans Administration, will assume his new duties effective around January 1.

The four-star general's visit will be the beginning of his re-survey of the Army department's facilities.

Former Infantry School commander here, Gen. Bradley last visited the post in December, 1946, while head of the Veterans Administration. He was an instructor from 1929 to 1933 at the Infantry School when he was then a major, serving under assistant commander George C. Marshall, then a lieutenant colonel, later chief of staff, and now Secretary of State. He graduated from the Advanced Infantry School course here in May 1925.

Emerging from World War II as one of the country's most outstanding and popular military leaders, Gen. Bradley served as commander of the famous 12th Army group in Europe. Bradley, who wears four stars, has long been known as "The Doughboy's General." He was called back to this country from Europe in August 1945 to take over the veterans agency. His appointment to succeed Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, who is resigning to accept the presidency of Columbia University, has been expected from most quarters and has met with popular approval.

Graduating from West Point in 1915, the new chief of staff became the first of his class to become a brigadier general when he took over as commandant at the Infantry School in 1941.

Gen. Bradley, who will arrive Sunday with his wife, will be here one of the Infantry Center during which he will depart to continue his tour of U. S. Army installations and to study the present setup in preparation for his new assignment.

Review Of Troops Set For Monday

Gen. Omar Bradley, newly appointed Army chief of staff, will review Fort Benning troops at 11:30 a. m. Monday, Dec. 8, at French field. The public is invited to the review, Infantry Center officials said.

Lt. Col. Maurice Austin, Australian Infantry attaché, left Fort Washington, D. C., Wednesday, Nov. 28, following a three-day tour of the Infantry Center during which time he observed infantry and airborne tactics.

The Australian officer witnessed a demonstration of anti-mechanized defense of a battalion on his first day here Tuesday morning. He viewed a rifle company in a night attack, and in the afternoon he observed troops in daylight patrolling and sub-caliber firing.

Following a visit to the Airborne section Wednesday, where he observed airborne methods and operations, Col. Austin viewed a reinforced rifle company in attack in the mountains and sat in on a three-day combat intelligence. The three-day tour closed with the team work course late Wednesday afternoon.

MCCARTHY RECENT VISITOR

Capt. Joseph J. McCarthy, representing the Food Service Schools branch of the Quartermaster General, Wash., D. C., recently completed a three-day visit to Fort Benning during which time he coordinated training at the Food Service School and acquainted instructors with the new policies and procedure.

Pair Honored In Ceremonies After 20 Years

Master Sergeant Ned C. Coleman and 1-Sgt. Harry N. Chase were honored in retirement ceremonies at Stillwell field Dec. 1, after completing 20 years of Army service.

Sgt. Coleman entered the service in 1927 with the United States Navy. After a three-year term with the Navy he enlisted in the Army in 1930. For the next four years he served with the Eighth Engineers Border patrol at Loredo, Tex., and then was sent to Hawaii with the Third Engineers.

He returned to the states and served the next five years with the Fourth Engineers at Fort Benning. After serving with the 60th Aviation Engineers in Puerto Rico in 1941, he was transferred to the Engineers. After a year with the Combine Maintenance for Advanced Infantry training at Maxey Tex., he was sent to the European occupation corps near Hanau, Germany.

Sergeant Chase, who entered the service in 1919, served during combat with the Seventh Infantry regiment of the Third division throughout the campaigns of Fedella, Africa, and Rome-Arno, Italy as first sergeant of a rifle company.

Most of Sgt. Chase's enlistment was spent overseas. He served with the Seventh Infantry regiment in Alaska, followed by duty with the 15th Infantry regiment in China.

000 spaces recently allotted to AGF units will be filled by Negro troops under the existing policy.

The 82nd Airborne was first activated in March 1942 an infantry division but was redesignated an airborne division in August of the same year. It had its first training under the command of General Omar Bradley at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, and later the division moved to Fort Bragg, N. C. to complete its training there before leaving in April 1943 for Casablanca.

One of the most famous of all units of World War II, the 82nd Airborne division participated in the invasion of Sicily, Naples, Battle of the Bulge, invasion of Holland, landed in Normandy on D-Day, and served for a while in the occupation of Berlin.

Cogswell Graduates

Capt. William C. Cogswell, Headquarters, 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, graduated Nov. 24 from the Air Transportability Course No. 3, it was announced this week. Captain Cogswell has been a member of the 83rd since October 1946, and is now on leave prior to an overseas assignment to Jinzen, Korea.

Underwood Is Named Recruiting Convasser

S-Sgt. Seaborn J. Underwood has been named recruiting convasser at Lawson field, replacing S-Sgt. Arthur E. Gilbooley, according to Capt. James E. Seever, base recruiting officer. He will assume his new duties on or about Dec. 1, and will be working in the Alabama area.

Sergeant Underwood recently re-enlisted, and has four years previous service with the Air Force. Up to the present time he has performed the duties of chief clerk in the recruiting office.

5,000 Gather On Post For Holiday Festivities

With "Thank God for Thanksgiving" as the theme, approximately 5,000 people gathered to give thanks at the huge non-denominational Thanksgiving celebration staged Thursday morning, November 27, at Gowdy field.

The first of its kind ever held here, the awe-inspiring observance, patriotic in nature, attracted troops stationed at Fort Benning, Harmony Church, Sand Hill, and their families and many out-of-town guests.

The first of its kind ever held here, the awe-inspiring observance, patriotic in nature, attracted troops stationed at Fort Benning, Harmony Church, Sand Hill, and their families and many out-of-town guests.

Members of all religious faiths participated in the program, and the ceremony was considered one of the finest of its type ever staged, with the stress on the fundamentals that have made America great.

Dr. Pierce Harris, guest speaker and pastor of the First Methodist church in Atlanta, delivered an inspiring and interesting address in the climax of the program.

The colorful ceremony opened with introductory music by the 72nd Army band, followed by the invocation by Chaplain (Major) John Rafferty, Infantry Center chaplain.

The 25th Infantry regiment male chorus rendered a special number, "Stout Hearted Men," followed by the Infantry Center chapel choir with "We Gather Together." Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, then introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Pierce Harris.

The audience again joined in song with "America the Beautiful," accompanied by the band and the program came to a close with the benediction by Rabbi Joseph Weiss, Auxiliary Jewish Chaplain. Background decorations for the service were furnished by color guards and guidon bearers from all units of the Infantry Center.

School Troops Unit Reveals Promotions

Sgt. Lolens Tauton, Company A, 75th Tank battalion, has been promoted to the grade of staff sergeant, it has been announced. Other recent promotions in Company A included Pfc. Herbert Williams to technician fifth grade and Pfc. Kenneth Welch to corporal.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

THE EXILE (action drama) with Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Maria Montez, and Paula Croset. The central figure is England's Charles II and the story takes place during his exile in Holland, with all the swashbuckling action and sword play that has become essential to a plot of this type. Recommended for adult.

THE GANGSTER (melodrama) with Belita, Barry Sullivan, Akim Tamiroff and Joan Loring. The psychological reactions of a partly penniless hoodlum trying to escape retribution for his past misdeed. Recommended for adult.

WHISPERING CITY (British—mystery melodrama) with Paul Lukas, Helmut Dantine, and Mary Anderson. Dissatisfied with a verdict of accidental death, a newspaper reporter probes the circumstances around the death and produces startling results. Recommended for adults.

NIGHT SONG (romance plus music) with Dana Andrews, Merle Oberon, and Ethel Barrymore. Merle Oberon furnishes the encouragement and inspiration needed by blind composer Dana Andrews in order to create the music he is capable of producing. Recommended for family.

THE CHINESE RING (mystery) with Roland Winters and Louise Currie. Charlie Chan's reputation as a detective receives a jolt when he finds a murdered girl in his own office. Recommended for family.
WILD HORSE MESA (western) with Tim Holt, Nan Leslie, and Richard Martin. Wild horse hunters, horse thieves, and murderers are the principals in this story of the finding and capturing of one of the largest herds of wild horses roaming the mesa. Recommended for family.

Holiday Week Offers Variety Of Activities

As every enlisted man on the Post gorged turkey and cranberry sauce on Thanksgiving, celebrations and observations went on in Chapel No. 3. Gala affairs marked the season in every activity from Sunday, Nov. 23, to Sunday, Nov. 30.
 Thanksgiving Sunday was observed by services in the Infantry Center chapel and in Chapel No. 3 in Sand Hill. Episcopal Thanksgiving Day services were held in the Infantry Center chapel with Chaplain Russell O. Kirsch officiating. Two Catholic masses further marked the day of prayers and gratitude.

A community service of thanksgiving was held Thanksgiving morning at Gowdy field with prayers of hope and optimism keynoting the occasion.
 A lighter note was struck by Service club open houses on Thursday evening, where mince pie, fruit cake, and coffee supported those who were still hungry after big turkey dinners.

At Service Club No. 1, games appealed to a great majority while the 25th Infantry chorus gave their first concert of the season at Service club No. 2, completing the evening with a dance. The holiday weekend continued with gala dances at Service Club Nos. 1 and 4 on Friday, featuring refreshments and door prizes. Over five hundred enlisted men crowded the floor as both clubs knew capacity attendance.

The first battalion of the 37th Infantry celebrated the holiday from duty with free Army movies from 8:30 to 9:00, these shows attained a total of over 270 attendance. So successful were they that plans for their continuance have been inaugurated.
 Saturday was marked by football games between the Little Bantams, won by the Bantams after a four-quarter battle. Saturday afternoon, the 29th Ordnance battalion team concluded its season with a game with Warner Robins field, Ga.

Sunday, the last day of the holiday week-end, was the date of the much awaited till between the Fort Benning Doughboys and the Jacksonville Flyers, both teams playing in half a victory. The game concluded a long and successful season, the Doughboys

Hogan Is Recalled To Duty At Lawson

S-Sgt. William Hogan, of Lawson field, a former bombardier-navigator with the Eighth Air Force in England, has been recalled to active duty as an officer and leave the base for a new assignment at March field, Calif. This week, base officials announced that Hogan had returned here.
 Originally commissioned in December 1918, he served overseas for 15 months and left the service as a captain in February 1946. He received service at Chanute field, Ill., last August and the following month he was ordered here.

TWO ARE TRANSFERRED

1st Sgt. Herston H. Cofer and T/Sgt. Gerald W. Dotson, 756th Tank battalion, have been transferred to the Infantry School detachment officials said today. Sgt. Cofer, prior to his transfer, in charge of the battalion's dispatch section, while Sgt. Dotson was assigned to the personnel section.

Columbia Opera Quartet To Be Heard Here Dec. 10

A combination of trained voices which have won acclaim from audiences and critics all over the country, will be presented at Fort Benning next Wednesday, December 10, when the Columbia Grand Opera Quartet appears here to perform the second concert of the season for the members of the Fort Benning concert association.

The feminine side of the quartet, which will be presented at 8:30 p. m. in the Main Post theater, is composed of Edna Phillips, brilliant young coloratura soprano who stepped from her desk as head billing clerk to star billing as soloist with Toscanini, and Helen Olheim, noted mezzo-soprano.

Featured on the male side of the agenda are Arthur Kent and William Hain, both of whom are well-known throughout the country for top artistry in their field. Baritone Kent won the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air in 1939 and even before that had appeared with the Steel Pier Opera company, the St. Louis Municipal opera, and the New York Oratorio society as well as with the NBC and National Symphony orchestras and the New York Schola Cantorum.

William Hain, tenor, has appeared for successful seasons as a soloist with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra, and has appeared innumerable times with the Boston symphony as well as many other major orchestras. He is equally well-known for his radio work and has been featured on "Great Moments in Music," "The Bell Telephone Hour, Hammerstein Theatre of the Air, the Squibb program, Philco Hour, Chevrolet Hour, Palmolive Hour and "Music of Worship."

Memberships in the Concert association which will allow the members to attend the remaining four concerts to be given this season are still available in a limited quantity, it was announced by Col. (ret.) Ralph E. Tibbets, who says that memberships are being sold for the season at a cost proportional to the number of concerts. Information concerning these memberships can be had by calling extension 3947 or 3249.

The quartet to be heard here next week has already been presented in Columbus under the sponsorship of the Three Arts League and the reports of the program there give promise of this being one of the outstanding presentations of the season.

Miss Latimer Watson, music critic on the Columbus paper, said the program "was one of wide popular appeal, sung by artists whose personalities immediately endeared them to the audience."

The program abilities of the quartet should satisfy every music lover, with pieces ranging from "Sous le Dome Spais" from "Lakme" to numbers from "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan in the repertoire of the artists.

Bright Christmas Candy Canes Used At STR Lunch

With a Christmas motif neatly and colorfully tied with red ribbons, ladies of the Student Training regiment held their monthly luncheon Tuesday afternoon on the porch of the Officers' club with Mrs. Richard J. Dial as chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements and Mrs. E. Sullivan, Mrs. John H. Nicholas, and Mrs. Francis E. Griffin assisting.

Red and white striped candy canes predominated in the bright decorations and the entire table was arranged to follow the theme with pink streamers diagonally crossing the table to represent a candy cane. The centerpieces were of cedar greens with candy canes in place of tapers in the centers and the greens were decorated with snow and red berries and tied with red ribbons.

The place cards and name tags also carried out the theme and were made of candy canes.

Mrs. Nicholas presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Roy E. Gray presided at the luncheon table in the absence of Mrs. Charles Easton. Places were laid for 28 guests.

Later in the afternoon several tables of bridge were in play and the tally cards featured candy canes.

Oh! My Aching Bag!

Cried Baggy - the Bag-Type Vacuum

"No wonder your bag aches" said FILLER QUEEN, the different vacuum. "Your pores are clogged with dust and you've lost suction. With me it's different. I have no dirty bag to replace. Instead, my sanitary cellulose filter traps all the dust and it's swept to the canister. That keeps me breathing properly all the time."

"No wonder you always do such a grand cleaning job," sighed Baggy enthusiastically.

Lawson NCO Club Plans Activities For December

M-Sgt. Robert H. Brightwell, secretary of the Lawson field NCO club, has announced that a varied program is being prepared for the Christmas season.

The regular Saturday night dance will highlight each week's activity with the entertainers furnishing the music for the entire month. The "Georgians" have accepted the engagement to play for six months with the club but will continue to play throughout the month of December.

Beginning December 7, members of the club will be honored with a Sunday afternoon tea dance.

Extensive plans are being made for a children's party to be conducted sometime just before Christmas. All children of members of the club as well as the children of the enlisted men of Lawson field will be guests.

The club has announced that Captain Claus Peterson will act as officiant at this party, and will distribute the gifts from a tree to all his little guests.

Party At Quarters Fetes Guest Here From Bradenton

Mrs. Henry McMurry, of Bradenton, Florida, who is visiting her father and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McMurry in Columbus, was honored Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. Peggy Ward Greeneweg entertained at a dessert bridge party at the quarters of her parents, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward.

Two tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon, and the beautiful centerpiece for the silver table featured bright yellow chrysanthemums in a silver bowl.

Ladies attending the delightful event were Mrs. McMurry, Mrs. Paul Cooper, Mrs. Jack Street, Mrs. W. Sausser, Mrs. William McNulty, Mrs. Lawrence Brown, Mrs. Harry C. Brown, and the hostess.

Parents Visiting Col., Mrs. Mastalir

Guests visiting Lt. Col. and Mrs. M. J. Mastalir for the Thanksgiving holiday and leaving next Sunday to return to their home in Harrisburg, Pa., are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Bingham, the parents of Mrs. Mastalir.

Tuesday morning Mrs. Mastalir hosted her mother at a pleasant informal coffee held at her quarters. In addition to Mrs. Bingham the guests were Mesdames C. U. Knaub, D. M. Moore, C. S. Handley, B. H. Cole, H. H. Walker, J. B. Davidson, M. J. Dugan, and L. C. Browa.

Clever Ideas For Christmas Decorations Heard At Meet

In one of the most interesting meetings of the year, approximately 100 members of the home and garden group of the Women's club got new ideas for holiday decorations when they heard Mrs. Theodore Hill and Mrs. Gwenn Epton, of Columbus, speak.

Mrs. Frank Ward, chairman of the group, introduced the two ladies, who are representatives of the Women's club in Columbus, and Mrs. Hill opened her talk with a description of the Christmas feeling with a background of soft colors and bells. To complete the holiday atmosphere, the ladies presided in the lounge joined in singing "Jingle Bells."

Stressing the idea of carrying out the theme through the entire house as well as the decorations, Mrs. Hill's first topic concerned the decorations for the front porch. Mrs. Epton agreed to this by showing how to make a wreath with a bent saw hanger, and finished it with a bright red bow and tree bolls.

Other suggestions for the door included the use of a cluster of bells with a bow, pine cones, an old musical horn polished and tied with a bow, and smilax over the entrance.

Mrs. Hill suggested the continued use of a color scheme on the mantel decorations as she told of the possibilities of using three wreaths over the fireplace, greens on the mantle, and the stringing of tinsel over a mirror. Another clever suggestion was to paste colored cellophane over a mirror with a star cut in one corner.

The use of a shadow box was also discussed and illustrated with a scene set in a picture frame. Mrs. Hill said that an old frame or a grape box could be used with greens, tiny figurines, or candle figures, and a painted background for this decoration.

For the traditional Christmas Airborne Ladies Have Lunch Event

The Airborne ladies held a pleasant luncheon party at the Officers' club with the table set for 33 guests. Mrs. Robert L. Milam was in charge of arranging the menu.

Mrs. Little, Mrs. Raymond Nielsen, and Mrs. Robert Zeigler.

Bright fruits and magnolia leaves made the centerpiece for the beautiful table, while the leaves were used with marigolds as streamers on the main table, and to decorate the wine table.

Several tables of bridge were in play later in the afternoon.

the speaker suggested sprinkling the tree with kitchen spices to give a holiday odor. The use of fancy cut cookies to decorate a tree for children was also mentioned, and Mrs. Hill explained how trees could be sprayed various colors or made from chicken or copper wire.

Illustrating ideas for table decorations, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Epton had set several tables in the lounge with clever arrangements for the holidays. These included settings for breakfast, lunches, and dinners with colorful ideas carried out.

The secret of frosting windows was told as Mrs. Hill set to let a bottle of opened beer become stale, put it in a window, and toss open salt on it.

To complete the program the speakers talked about the decoration of a child's room and suggested decorations for the walls, mirrors, and lamp shades. Mrs. Hill gave the basic ideas for making a tree from construction paper and decorating it with colored paper tape.

Mrs. James W. Love was the winner of the current competition for the submission of household hints and the hints from the last meeting were displayed on a bulletin board. Mrs. Love suggested the use of scissors in the kitchen to aid in many tasks.

Much interest was displayed in the table of items which various members of the group are making for Christmas gifts and a large group of ladies participated in the white elephant table exchange.

Assisting Mrs. Ward in arranging the table were Mrs. Charles Knaub, Mrs. Julian Dayton, and Mrs. W. R. Lynch.

Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Gibson and her son came down from Kannapolis, North Carolina, for the holiday, while Mr. and Mrs. Bost were here from Atlanta, Ga.

Christmas Motif Seen At Luncheon

Ladies of the Infantry School detachment held a holiday luncheon Tuesday afternoon at the Officers' club with a small Christmas tree brightly decorated making the timely centerpiece for the table set in the Palm room. Mrs. Edward G. Walsh and Mrs. William Curran were co-hostesses for the event attended by approximately 15 ladies. Later in the afternoon several tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. Harry Walker of LaCrosse, Wisconsin, was a special guest at the luncheon.

Pre-Holiday Event

Col. and Mrs. Wiley H. O'Mohundro entertained at a formal party the evening before Thanksgiving when they had a buffet supper at their quarters with cocktails served before dinner. The table was beautifully decorated with a centerpiece of harvested fruit arranged on a tray for the Thanksgiving theme and white tapers were used in crystalandelabra on the Canton linen party. Fifteen couples attended the

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL SAYS:

"Dealers Handling Kaiser-Frazier Cars Offer the Highest Trade-In Allowances"

"I hope that's true of our dealers everywhere!" says Joseph W. Frazier

I don't know that all of the more than 4,000 Kaiser-Frazier dealers are offering "highest trade-in allowances," as reported by the press, but I sincerely hope so. For personally, I feel that the used-car allowances being made by many automobile dealers today are far too low.

We have constantly urged our dealers to offer fair trade-in allowances, based on what cars will bring when they are re-sold, less the cost of handling and reconditioning.

Such fair practices, we tell our dealers, will build for them sound and continuing business.

Before you come to a decision on your next car, I hope you will find out what your Kaiser-Frazier dealer will allow you on your old car. Dealing with him, you'll not only receive fair treatment on both sales and service, but you'll get the most modern automobile built today.

Five CMH Winners Feted At Legion Meet

Col. Suggs, holder of many combat medals and ribbons, who was at Pearl Harbor on that fateful day Dec. 7, 1941, introduced the medal winners, reading their citations which covered some of the bitterest fighting of World War II.

Lt. Col. Charles W. Davis, of Montgomery, Ala., received his honor on January 12, 1943, on Guadalcanal, when he was then a captain in the 25th Division, distinguishing himself by "gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life and beyond the call of duty in action." When two leading companies of Colonel Davis' infantry battalion were caught in a cross fire, he volunteered to carry instructions to them and on the next day led an assault on the Japanese position that had the company hemmed in from all sides. Col. Davis is now an instructor in the Academic department of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., where he received his award in July 1943.

Lt. Col. Malby, of Sumter, S. C., was awarded the Medal of Honor on November 26, 1945 as a member of the Fourth Infantry division in Europe. On November 20, 1944, Col. Malby, then commander of the Second battalion of the Eighth Infantry, found his unit confronted by a mine field. He crossed the mine field alone and led his men in fire, destroying booby traps and other

Critic Praises Opening Performance Of Chorus

By AL WISE

Scoring a smashing hit during their debut performance, the sixteen-voice 25th Infantry male chorus, featuring a well balanced repertoire of classics and sacred numbers, thrilled a large attendance of music lovers with a sparkling concert Thanksgiving afternoon in Service Club No. 2. The affair was presented under the auspices of the Service club hostess, Mrs. Kate L. Trent.

First, full credit for the excellent performance of the chorus, as later expressed by Col. Le Grande A. Diller, 25th Infantry commanding officer, goes to T-Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson and Sgt. Willie M. Brown, director and associate director, respectively, and T-3 Troy M. McCall, Jr., pianist-accompanist. The group's extroverted phrasing and tonal quality immediately captured the imagination of the audience which was highly enthusiastic in its approval throughout the entire presentation.

Serving prominently on the guest artist spot was T-Sgt. John S. Williams, well-known concert pianist, who was given a thunderous ovation at the close of his interpolation of Grieg's Piano Concerto. Sgt. Williams then played A. Emmett Adam's "Bells of St. Mary's". Vocal embellishments were served by Sgt. Willie M. Brown, baritone, who scored with Kern's "Ole Man River", and during his encore highlighted with Blanchard's immortal "Without a Song". The popular piano duet team of P-Sgt. John H. Williams and T-3 Troy M. McCall, Jr.'s, treatment of Peter De Rose's "Deep Purple" was enhanced by cleverly interspersed variations.

Down for this action he was awarded the Medal of Honor on August 23, 1945. Thirty-four years old, Capt. Bolton hails from Huntsville, Ala.

World-Wide Bible Reading Program Is Now Underway

All Protestant personnel of Fort Benning are encouraged to cooperate in the world-wide Bible reading program from Thanksgiving to Christmas. Chaplain Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center Chaplain, announced today. This is the fourth year this program has been followed.

The concentrated Bible Reading Program resulted from an idea planted by a young Marine in Guadalcanal when he wrote his mother that they joined invisible hands by simultaneous daily reading of the Bible, of which the Bible reading plan was the outcome.

The 1947 theme is "One World, One Book" and illustrates the idea that if there is to be one world, the full foundation on which it can rest is the one book.

Chaplain at Fort Benning has more than 5,000 program on which are listed the Bible reading beginning November 27 and finishing December 25. These may be secured at the chapels and performed on the men's own time.

Doughboys Tie Navy Flyers As Post Grid Season Ends

Field Goal Try Is Inches Short

Harold Lutz, talented Doughboy left end, made a brilliant attempt at a 23-yard field goal in the waning seconds of a bitterly fought ball game at Doughboy stadium Sunday afternoon, but the well booted ball fell inches short of its mark, and the local eleven was held to a 14-14 tie with the bruising Jacksonville Navy Flyers.

It was sixty second of nervous tension for the better than 7,000 sun-kissed spectators who waited impatiently to see which team would finally pull the winning punch. As the Doughs gained momentum in the final half, it looked as though the Kendrick charges might turn the tide, and knock off their ninth victory of the season.

But while two great lines battered and hammered each other to the point of near exhaustion, two great backfields charged and recharged in an attempt to produce the necessary finale to the hard pressed melee. Bracing ankles by such an as Harold Lutz, Harold Haberman, and Bob Ward brought local rooters to their feet time and again, but the Dough stalwarts were equalled by the ferocious line play of Jacksonville dynamo, Vince Anania and Jim Pawloski.

Navy Scores
Jim McQuary, passer and line bucking tailback on the Flyer eleven, broke the sparring match early in the second quarter, when he pitched to Freddy Vince Anania for a touchdown. The play was beautifully executed, and Anania put on a burst of speed to travel the remaining 34 yards untouched. Buckster scored accurately, and Jacksonville went out in front.

But the initial touchdowns came after minutes of rugged football that saw the Doughs hold firm after an interference ruling had given the Navy field with at the Doughboy 21. The Doughs started a drive of their own by moving the ball to the Flyer, but the attack fizzled at midfield and Bob Seibert was forced to kick. It had been Seibert and Ross doing most of the carrying in the first quarter, and Seibert took one of the most determined shows local fans have seen. The honerishing 490-pound Seibert, lashed at the Flyer line time and again and seemed unstoppable most of the afternoon. It was the smart thinking Seibert who pulled one out of the hat to give the Doughs their first lead, when the going was tough, through the Jacksonville wall.

Cutri Eaves Tds.
Little Cosmo Cutri returned to his style of past games against the Navy, clicking off respective runs of 26, 38 and 29 yards not only carrying his teammates downfield for their tying marker, but scoring it himself with a 32-yard jaunt around left end. Cutri flew across the turf with such rapidity that his own interference had difficulty in staying ahead of him.

Harold Lutz, Harold Haberman, and lanky Art Hyman were superb from their end positions, making impossible tackles all the afternoon, while the middle linemen Bob Ward and Carl Meier played havoc on their line breaking thrusts into the Jacksonville backfield.

From start to finish, the ball game was in balance, and both squads fought valiantly for the lead.

The Doughs struck pay-dirt in the second stanza when a Flyer muscled away the Benjamin eleven the ball 21 yards from pay dirt. Doughboy power began to show when Art Sebante belted for four down the middle only to be blocked by the hard-running Wilbur Ross who scooted to the line for a first down at the five. Eddie Roberts bulled his way for two more, and a rousing penalty carried the Doughs inches from the final marker. But some anxious Doughboy jumped the gun on the following attempt, and the Doughs were set back five yards. Kicks from Point Again, Roberts tied the middle, but there was no admittance for the Georgia-bound fullback Bob Seibert, who had been given a test, was rushed into the fight as Bob Seiborn called time. Seibert who had picked up yardage from the opening gun, was expected to make the try, and the entire Jacksonville squad was pitted against him. Quick thinking pulled a rabbit from the Doughboy hat, for Seibert chose Ross to tote, and assigned himself the blocking assignment. Ross cooperated well, and raced untouched for the score. Lutz split the uprights with the all-important kick.

A costly fumble on the Doughboy 29 set up the last Jacksonville touchdown which came late in the second canto. It was Jim McQuary carrying the 15, adding 12 when he hit meteoric Jack Mancoo for a first down and the three yard rush led to the one, where McQuary carried over. Buckster again converted on a half ended with the Flyers out in front 14-7.

Butch Kendrick gave the old "one, two, and half time, and the Doughs took the field for the second half looking like a rejuvenated group. The Doughs presented an early threat as the third quarter got under way when Bob Seibert stole Loco's pass on the Navy 26. But Vince Anania pulled Perrody down for a ten-yard loss, and Mitchell lost the ball on a fumble as the threat died at midfield. The Flyers began to move anew, but again were held as the Doughboy line dug in. Buckster was called to attempt a field goal on fourth down, but the ball was off the target, and the Doughs took over. The remainder of the period saw both teams fight vigorously for possession as the ball changed hands continuously.

Pick Up Cutri
But little Cosmo Cutri and bolting Bob Seibert sparked the Doughs' great comeback as the Benjamin eleven began to pick up power in the final quarter. After returning McQuary's kick to his own 29, Cutri slashed off tackle for eight, and Seibert picked up a first down, going for six more yards. Handoff to Seibert sent Cutri on his way, and the mousie-like seaback sidestepped tackle after tackle before being intercepted earthward after galloping 26 yards.

Harold Lutz surprised the defense with the old Statue of Liberty play and belted five more yards to the 32. Seibert called for a triple reverse on the next play, with Cutri appraised the last man to hold the ball. Cutri performed well, confusing the entire Flyer team as he began his long 32-yard jaunt for the goal line. Untouched, the California comet cut the Jacksonville goal marker with the touchdown that ruined the Jacksonville stadium grew deathly silent as Jim Mitchell carefully split the ball in piece for the talented Lutz, who hadn't missed a conversion in six games. But Lutz suffered little from the tension and tied the score with a perfect boot through the uprights.

Second Guessing

By RALEIGH GREENE

Sixty minutes of Sunday, November 30, 1947, will long be remembered at Fort Benning. The sixty minutes referred to, of course, was the time necessary for the game between the Doughboy and the bruising Navy team from Jacksonville.

And such a battle as was witnessed by Post fans was a fitting climax to a rugged campaign that saw the local eleven embark as a youngster aggregation and close their season as champions. The record of eight wins against one loss and Sunday's draw gives a poor and obscure picture of the magnificent job Coach Butch Kendrick and his praise-worthy wards have completed; it was a job well done, one that can be admired, and rightly so, by all interested parties.

But as all good things must come to an end, Fort Benning bids another farewell to a great football team and a great coach. Not only to Butch Kendrick and the team go the best wishes but to his entire staff. And it is literally a farewell, for Kendrick, Lt. Tom Kennedy, the manager, and Lt. Halstead are all preparing to leave Fort Benning. Kendrick and Kennedy are set for a trip across the ocean, while Halstead will be discharged from the service before the other grid season rolls around. The team, for the most part, will not be seen playing at Doughboy stadium again. Most of the younger members of the squad are due for discharge, while some others will journey with their coaches overseas.

It has been my pleasure to cover the Doughboy games, and I would like to run over briefly one or two of the year's outstanding plays. These, of course, are merely personal opinions, but give a vivid picture of the determination and fight the Doughs showed all season.

Perhaps the biggest boost to the team came in the initial hit when the soldiers staved off a last second Cherry Point rally to eke out a 2-0 win. Picture the seconds left in the ball game, and the opposing team two yards from a touchdown. Picture in your mind the thoughts of the linemen and backer ups whose job it was to stop the inevitable pass—an assignment with the odds against you; but the Doughboys did it. I remember that play as I sit here pounding out these words. There was the Trippi-like performance of ace passer Tom Perry who literally took minutes before tossing a touchdown pass to Wilbur Ross against Fort Sam Houston. Interference had long dispersed and Ferroy was alone amidst a cloud of Warriors. Shaking, faking and scowling back and forth, he finally ridded himself of the much sought ball. It struck home with another six pointer. Last, but perhaps first among the outstanding plays of the year, was the smart bit of quarterbacking by Bob Seibert when the Doughs tallied their first marker against Jacksonville. Eddie Roberts had crossed the goal, but a penalty nullified the score. Two plays gained nothing and Seibert and Kendrick probably were convinced the burly fullback would try the middle. But he chose the blocking assignment with Ed Ross the ball—it worked, and Ross scored. There you have it—three plays, and all worth remembering.

But the curtain has now fallen and there will be no encores, only the curtain call. Each and every Doughboy has been a star in the football drama.

Tomorrow night at 8 p. m. Ced Tallis will introduce his 1947 edition of the Fort Benning basketball team at the Main Post gym. Howard college, a strong court-minded school from Birmingham, Alabama, will act as guests when the Doughs launch their 33-game schedule.

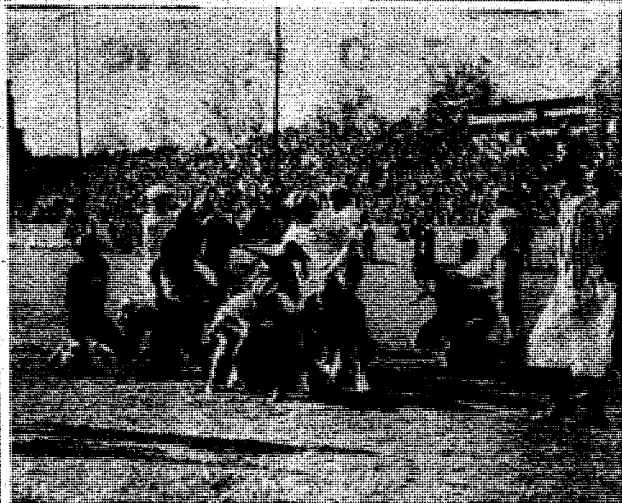

If you will remember, Tallis led the Doughs of 1946, to the Southeastern All-championship and runner-up in the State tourney and Seventh Army tournament. Only Bob Seibert returns from last year's great quintet, but Tallis is confident that with hard work, his team will again be called "great."

The squad will be manned by standouts from the Post Intramural league, and will be further strengthened by valuable additions from the football team. The starting lineups should run about like this: Bob Ward and Lyle McCauley at forwards, with Herb Beach, coach of the baseball team and the newly crowned Airborne basketball team that won the Post crown last week, at center. Harold Haberman and Bob Kinard will get the probable berths at guard.

The Doughs will make their second showing Tuesday night when they tangle with the Phenix City Tigers. I don't think a Phenix City team has beaten a Post team at anything in years.

I might mention the fact that the Quantico Marines meet Jacksonville's next week's Gator Bunch for the Eastern States championship. Moose Stewart sat in the press box at the game Sunday, together with a big part of his coaching staff, to "see some dogs on the Florida coast." The thing was over the night before last, and he remarked that if Jacksonville played the same brand of football against his team Sunday an overwhelming victory was in the bag for the Leathernecks. Quantico, Virginia, "is going to find that score—an particularly anxious to see how things come out.

This boy Buckster from Jacksonville is reported to be one of the finest after-touchdown artists in service football. He may be, but I think we had one better—Harold Lutz. Remember that name, you'll more than likely be hearing it next year—from Alabama perhaps.

YES AND NO—Eddie Roberts is shown crashing over the Jacksonville goal line Sunday when the Army and Navy battled to a 14-14 draw. Although Monk Meyer had signaled that Roberts had scored, the play was called back when the Doughs were detected off-sides.

Bullets Smash Pro All-Stars In Thriller, 13-6

By BOB PHILLIPS

Breeding along with a nine-game winning streak the semi-professional Chattanooga All-Stars hopes of a perfect season were dealt a fatal blow Sunday afternoon as results of a 13-6 loss to the high-reared Bullets.

Previously the pros had never been scored on or tied, neither had they faced the relentless attack of the victory-crazed Bullets who battered them from goal post to goal post. A pigskin audience of approximately 1,500 paid customers eagerly watched their home eleven suffer their first loss of the season as "Jumpin' Cliff Bradford ran them dizzy in leading the Bullets to this well earned triumph.

The All-Stars took a 6-0 lead in the closing minutes of the first quarter on a sustained drive which netted 80 yards. Lovinood, who spurned the losers' offensive drive, plunged over from the 5-yard line for the score. Odell Kennedy, who along with Jeff White played a greater portion of the game in the All-Stars' backfield, broke through to block the try for extra point. A 27-yard punt return by Phil Trindler opened the second period. Bradford and Nick Nickerson moved the oval to the 50-yard line from where Bradford kicked out of danger to the Chattanooga goal. On two plays the All-Stars moved out to the 20. On the next play Bob Murphy crashed through, scooped up an enemy fumble, and scampered the rest of the way, only to have the officials nullify the play by ruling the ball dead. Unable to score the ball went over on downs, and the Bullets found themselves in a mid-field squawk.

On the second play Quarterback Rudie Langston, who generated the team masterfully, sent Bradford a jumping-off left tackle. The eel-hipped Arkansan squirmed through the line, bawled to the right where he picked up perfect blocking and hopped, skipped, danced and jumped his way to pay dirt. To add more glory to his spectacular play he kicked the extra point putting the Bullets up front to keep. The half ended with the battling soldiers holding a one point lead.

Seconds after the third period opened the Bullets turned up on the All-Stars' 8-yard line when Williams ran down to recover a fumble by the losers' safety man. Unable to punch across again, they yielded the oval to the opposition. The rest of the quarter this time Francis Johnson subbing was highlighted by the kicking of for Kennedy pulled one down on Atlas Jones and L. Leftwich. The Tennesseans' 40 yard line.

The All-Stars came near taking Two Bullet passes failed and Jones over the lead when mid-way inked to the 25. A series of passes the fourth quarter C. Stanton moved the ball to the losers' 35-dashed 40 yards to the 50-yard yard mark from where the Bullets stripe Kennedy pulled the Bullets buckled down and took the ball out of danger when he leaped over on downs. Jones' boot went high into the air to intercept an out on the one-foot line. With but enemy pass on his own 20-yard 30 seconds to play Horace Northline, Bradford kicked to the 20, cut leaped high to snag another The All-Stars were desperate with All-Star pass on the 15 yard stripe aerials and the Bullets were equal-land after juggling the oval a bit, desperate in snugging them, raced over for the final tally.

CALIFORNIA COMET—Cosimo Cutri, fleet soldier seaback, races towards the midfield stripe as Jack Mancos (10) and Vince Anania hurry to the scene. Cutri skirted 23 yards on the long jaunt that set up the (ying touchdown that Cutri himself tallied with a 32-yard spur. The Doughs deadlocked with the Navy eleven 14-14.

Benning Gridders End 1947 Season

BY RALEIGH GREENE

The curtain came down on the final act of the Doughboys' football drama last Sunday afternoon as some 7,000 nerve-strung fans stayed to the final whistle quaking in their seats as the local eleven fought valiantly for a vinal victory, but failed with a last second field goal attempt to end in a 14-14 draw with the vaunted Jacksonville Navy Flyers.

Fort Benning and her loyal supporters turned out solid to bid farewell to Butch Kendrick and his impressive soldier football team, and thrilled to the crushing tackles and bruising blocks as the Doughs fought their way from behind twice, and nearly walked away with another victory.

It was the tenth and final game of the 1947 season, and gave the Doughs a record of eight wins against a lone loss and Sunday's tie. And over a period of two gridiron seasons the Doughs have come through 22 hits with only one loss and one tie.

Representatives from many big schools and important military and naval installations were on hand to see two great football teams fight it out for a much-sought victory.

The Doughboy team of the current year has proved to be one of the most improved elevens in the country. Butch Kendrick embarked on a doubtful sea back in August, and surrounded himself with a group of youngsters as far as a winning football team is concerned. Hard work and determination marked the progress of the Doughboys march toward championships, and the Doughs wound up their season as just that — a championship football team.

Names, which were just names before Sept. 28 of this year, have burst into the headlines, and caught the eyes of interested parties. Practically every man on the varsity squad has been offered desirable scholarships to fine schools about the nation. Butch Kendrick has turned out a championship team, and has nurtured potential All-Americans in his own right.

Skepticism was high in Post circles as the Doughs departed for Cherry Point to meet the Marines in their initial encounter. Cherry Point was a weak team, but on Sept. 28, the Doughs managed return game with the Post eleven and departed much the worse for wear. Cherry Point, a team that had held the Doughs to an early safety, was thoroughly smashed when Kendrick loosed his potent power to send the Leathernecks back to their North Carolina base, wessping from a 57-7 spanking. Fort Sam Houston had been another reported power house, but the locals dealt them a 53-0 shellacking as the score board rated high and higher.

Play Finest Game

But the game eyed by all faithful supporters was the Fort Riley melee played here a week ago. Rumors had it that Fort Riley was the team in the west. They were studded with former college stars and All-Americans; their record was impressive. A sellout crowd was expected for the grand affair, but a week of rain had left Doughboy stadium a quagmire,

Cherry Point came back for a

and a drizzling rain kept some fans at home. But 8,000 shivering spectators weathered the weather to see the much-discussed game. They were not disappointed, for the Doughs, in playing their finest game of the year, knocked off the faunted Centaurs 21-0, and so annihilated one of the foremost service elevens in the nation.

It has been a good year for Post football. It has been a remarkable year, when consideration is given to the team that began a rugged season. Doughboy ambles have dashed across 1,890 yards as well as picking up 1,196 through the air. Although running has been the main method of attack, soldier aerial artists have had a special season of completions. Led particularly by Bob Seibert and Don Perrody, the air attack has clicked for 67 completions in 130 attempts to boost the team's total yardage gained to 3,086, or an average of 309 yards per game — not a record, but an impressive figure.

Reserve strength accounted for the Doughs' unusual array of power. Kendrick could conscript two able lines at a call, while three complete backfields were always available. While he made it a point to start a regular team, he also made it a practice to substitute freely in order to conserve on stamming.

Excellent Line

The great play of backs like Bob Seibert, Don Perrody, Don Suit, Eddie Roberts, Wilbur Ross, Jim Mitchell, Bob Sealloran and Cosimo Cutri will not be forgotten. Benning backs had a great deal of everything.

Fort Benning had one of the finest lines in this section of the country. Averaging a neat 200 pounds, the Dough line together with the backing up of Bob Seibert, Bill Tuminnella, and Jim Mitchell turned many games into routs. Such stellar performers as Harold Lutz, who has won his fame as an after-touchdown perfectionist and pass receiver, and Harold Haberman, bruising on defense and glue-fingered when taking a pass, were two of the finest flankmen to invade a Fort Benning football field. Carl Meier and Dick Croninger were stalwarts of much ability, while the guard work of Bob Ward, Jack Seybold, and Bill Lyman was superb.

But the line that alternated was manned by capable men too. Doug Scovitt, Art Hyman, John Judd, and Lyle McCauley were excellent line performances from their relief spots. George Crimmel, and Lyle McCauley were excellent tacklers. Charlie James, Leonard Pfeifer, and Bill Tatum were a continuous threat to the starters at tackle. Bill Austin, Bob Herick, and Bob Cottey were familiar names to Doughboy fans, and will be remembered for their fighting spirit.

Golf Tournaments Mark Holiday

Golf, golf, and more golf marked the Thanksgiving celebrations here on the Post Wednesday before the day of gratitude was marked by the Blind Bogey tourney, while Friday and Saturday saw top linksmen matching strokes in the Sweepstakes and Flag tournaments.

Merchandise prizes were presented to the winners of the various flights, with each group of flights having different amounts depending on the skill of the golfers.

Highlight of the Thanksgiving celebrations featured the Pot O' Gold won by Lt. Col. S. Webster and Lt. Col. M. Bristol. The point of the match was to get the ball nearest the spot where brick, new five dollar bills had been embedded. The golfers, unaware of the possible prize were called to a halt at a certain point on the green, and measurements were taken to judge what man had placed his ball nearest the gold mine.

Maj. A. D. Decker, Maj. W. E. Walters, Lt. P. Bouchard and Lt. Col. S. H. Webster took prizes in the Blind Bogey matches, while Lt. Col. Maness, Capt. D. S. Grant, and Col. A. P. Diller topped the laurels in the sweepstakes held Friday.

Besides the Pot O' Gold winners, Lt. Col. C. Davis, Lt. Col. T. B. Roelofs, Maj. A. Roebcke won profits in the Flag tourney.

Football Mentors Depart To Pacific

Capt. Butch Kendrick, head coach of the victorious Fort Benning Doughboys, and Lt. Tom Kennedy, manager of the squad, said their last goodbyes to the Post this week, and made final preparations for their departure overseas.

Both men started with the Doughs early in August, and it was the fine work of the Dough mentor that aided so much in making the Doughboys the championship eleven that they are today.

Picking up where former Coach Billy Meeks had left off, Kendrick embarked with his young team on one of the most rugged schedules any Doughboy eleven has faced in many seasons. By his determined work with the team, Kendrick deserves much credit in the team's fine record of eight wins against a lone loss and Sunday's draw with the Jacksonville Flyers.

Kendrick and Kennedy are both airborne officers and saw action in Europe during the war years. Kendrick came into the Army as an officer and requested Airborne training that he later completed here. Following his graduation from the school, the soldier coach joined the 313th Parachute Infantry battalion and travelled overseas with that outfit as a part of the 17th Airborne division. During the operations over the Rhine river, Capt. Kendrick was wounded and was later returned to the States after hospitalization.

The efficient business manager of the team was also associated with Kendrick in his work in Post football, and was a member of the famed 101st Airborne division. He jumped in Normandy with the "Screaming Eagles." During the battle of Normandy, Kennedy ran afoul of mines and was seriously injured. He later recovered from his wounds and was assigned as an instructor in the Airborne battalion. In August he was assigned to the managerial job with the Doughboys.

Louisiana State university is Kendrick's Alma Mater, and the burly trooper officer was well known in his football days with the Tigers. Kendrick played varsity fullback from 1936-40, and was captain of the team his senior year. Later, he did some coaching after his entry into the Army in the latter part of 1940, but his first real success came this year with the Doughboys.

Lt. Kennedy left Fort Benning Wednesday and plans to spend a month in New York, leaving for Camp Stoneman. Kennedy has hopes of seeing the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena New Year's Day. He will leave for Korea sometime in January of next year.

Georgia Teams Get Bowl Bids

For the most part the Bowl picture for New Year's Day is complete as the college football came to a resounding close. Only the Notre Dame-Southern California clash at Los Angeles Saturday, and the LSU-Tulane encounter here in the South remain to be played before the regular season.

Alabama has been pitted against the Longhorns of Texas in the Sugar Bowl, while the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech have accepted an invitation to meet once-tied Kansas in the Orange Bowl at Miami. Southern Methodist, Southwestern Conference champions, will tangle with undefeated United Penn State in the Cotton Bowl, and of course, power-laden Michigan meets Southern California in the Bowl of Roses.

Georgia came through with a bid from Jacksonville's Gator Bowl; the Bulldogs' opponent will be the fast improving Maryland eleven.

George week, as the past week is conveniently termed, sometimes was a blistering finish to an already red-hot football season. The year of change, when every player was to be an All-American, has practically come to a close. Most of the All-American teams of 1947 have been chosen by the foremost sports writers of the land, and undoubtedly, and probably to the disappointment of many, only eleven men can make a first string All-American squad.

Army and Navy held their ancient rivalry game at Philadelphia, but there wasn't anything much to see except the excellent performance of Rip Row, and the Middies' old-haunt, fumbleitis. Penn played Cornell, and their traditional Thanksgiving Day encounter, while Holy Cross did it for the fifth time, and Boston College 20-6. It was the fifth straight year that an underdog Holy Cross team had clipped the ears of the Bostonians. Tennessee, a 10-0 comeback team here in the eleven, and the once vaunted Wildcats from Kentucky, while little old Rutgers, enjoying its second season since Sherman marched through Georgia, surprised Brown.

TCU nearly pulled off the upset of the year against SMU, but Donk Walker saved the day, and got his mates a draw. Seconds go to, 20 to 0, to be exact, the Mustangs tallied the tying score, and the blenheim of defeat was spared them. By tying with TCU, they finished one-half a game ahead of Texas, who had been beaten by SMU early in the season 14-7.

Mississippi clinched the South-eastern Conference title in a runaway over State, and Frank Charlie Connerly was just too much for the team that upset the Rebels last year.

The question today is what team will capture the National Football crown—Notre Dame or Michigan? Two people have discussed these two mighty elevens since the infant days of the season, have tried to figure which of the two was the better. I think that the Southern California one will be the deciding factor, for they wait long for the choice. The Irish tangle with the Frojans Saturday. Frank Leahy knows what the comparative scores of the game Saturday, and the score of the Rose Bowl will be the medium of appraisal for the National crown. Of course, I am going on the assumption that both Notre Dame and the Wolverines will defeat Southern Cal. Leahy will try to score as many points as possible against the West Coasters as will Michigan. It's a choice I'm glad that this controversy is possible to make. But it might be interesting to feature a few, and they are probably meretricious comparisons. Had Michigan played the Irish the day they eked out wins over Minnesota and Illinois, I believe the game would have ended in an Irish victory. But on the other hand, had Michigan played Notre Dame the day the Irish clipped Northwestern and Purdue, I believe the count would have been reversed. So there you have it... which team is your choice?

Our record for the week ended like this: 18 correct, 10 loss, and a pair of ties. That finishes the year with an average of 81.5—not bad—but not good. But one college nosed this corner out as did SMU, and Maryland's failure to score on N. C. State was surprising.

We still can't figure out why North Carolina didn't get a bid to

'Little Doughs' Lose To Baker

Completing a tumultuous season the "Little Doughboys" lightweight version of the Benning team met a strong Baker Village team Saturday morning and were humbled in a tight pitched battle, 13-7.

The Baker Village Bantams defeated the Little Doughs after three quarters of evenly matched ball, steam rolling down the field for the final tally.

An earlier scheduled competition between the Army and Navy "Middies" Army-Navy play-off between the two squads of the Little Doughboys, ended in a materialized when team members were absent over the holiday weekend.

Capt. Joe Kelly, coach for the Little Doughs during the season, stated that the team expects to continue with athletic enterprises, going into basketball this winter.

Marine Coach Scouts Flyers

Moose Stewart, head coach of the Quantico Marines, was on hand at Doughboy stadium to see the local battle to a draw with the Jacksonville Flyers last Sunday.

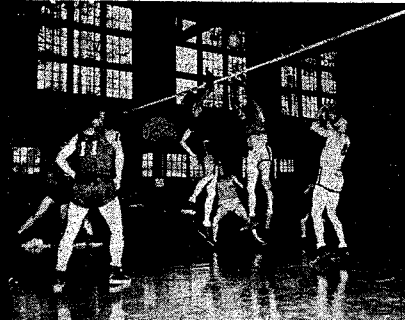

Stewart was on a scouting assignment looking over the Navy team. Quantico meets the Jacksonville eleven in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl for the East Coast Navy championship.

Little impressed with the Navy aggression, Stewart remarked that if the tars played the same brand of ball against them Sunday that they played against the Doughboys, a victory for the Marines was in the bag.

5 Men Are Assigned To Post's Food Shop

Recent assignments to the Food Service School include T-4 Robert L. Young, S-3t Ralph G. T. Claverie, C. Wood, and Cpl. William H. Walker.

As soon as their period of orientation is completed, they will assume duties as practical and theoretical instructors in the school.

SOLDIER FULLBACK IS VOTED STANDOUT

The final week for football at Fort Benning has ended, and with the task of pointing out the week's outstanding grider is before us. A poll of individuals, who watched the last game at Doughboy stadium Sunday, selected the soldier fullback, Bob Seibert for the second time this year.

Ordinarily the same man is not chosen twice, but Seibert's magnificent play against the tars from Jacksonville warranted the selection beyond doubt. Seibert won the year's first honors for his outstanding playing against the Cherry Point Marines in the season's opener.

Seibert is a familiar name among the fans of athletics from Fort Benning. Sunday marked his final appearance as a Doughboy grider, and ended two seasons of varsity football for the burly fullback. Seibert played with the Service champions of 1946 and was a mainstay in the Doughboys' march of victory this year.

Fine Kicker Seibert, who was considered a fine kicker and big-dogger runner, finished the season as perhaps the finest all-round backfield man on the squad. Seibert's kick has been a great defensive weapon this season, and his punts have averaged 40.3 yards per try. During Sunday's game, the 190-pound fullback kicked a total of six and averaged a neat 43 for the afternoon. Seibert's performance as a line-backer has been superb, and he has distinguished himself as being one of the hardest hitters on the squad.

Fusing is a skill that has developed in Seibert this year. Last season, Seibert was used for running only since there were such fine aerial men on the team. But this season Seibert has been given many more assignments and has proved to be an accurate chucker. Along with Bob Scallern and Jim Mitchell, Seibert star fullback carried the job of signal calling, and it was Seibert who named Moss to run the Jacksonville game when the entire Jacksonville eleven expected a smash through the middle. This play was probably the smartest done by the field general this season. The play

Carolina, a school that is coming up in the football world.

With three more years ahead of him in collegiate football, Bob Seibert should go a long way in the game. During two seasons with the Doughs, he has been very busy carrying any type of job on the gridiron, a prerequisite for a college star.

Seibert has never dazzled the crowd with long touchdown jaunts, or bursts for long gains. His running has been confined to the tough place—the middle of the "fox" line. But there have been very few occasions when Seibert hasn't picked up yardage. He has made more first downs than any other man on the team. A man that is good for three or four yards any time is a man considered indispensable.

The Doughboys' defense was strengthened considerably by Seibert's line-backing, while his offensive blocking was second to none.

Marriage isn't a word. It's a sentence.

Doughboy Cagers Ready For Opener

College Quintet To Meet Local Squad Friday

The shuffle of fast moving feet and the thud of basketballs resounding off live rims will usher in the basketball season tomorrow night when the Doughboys of 1947 meet a strong Howard college of Birmingham in the initial engagement of the 1947 schedule. The season's opener will get underway at the Main Post gym at 8 p.m.

Coach Ced Tallis, who has had little time to whip his new squad into shape, will have a group of 21 skilled courtmen on call tomorrow evening, and expects to throw his entire strength into the battle that promises to be one of the toughest encounters the Doughs will have this year.

Howard college is a small school that has concentrated its athletic expansion in the field of basketball, and has always put out one of the finest court aggregations in the South. Led by Beaumont Sparks, a six-pound, six centner, the collegians are expected to put a fast moving, accurate shooting team on the floor to face the locals.

Try For Varsity

Tallis has been working feverishly this week in a hope of finding a winning combination, but will try to work all his men tomorrow in order to find a varsity string.

The Doughboy squad is a picked group this year from the football team and the Post Intramural quintets. Capt. Herb Bench, who led his trooper five to another Post basketball crown, has been looking fine at the pivot post position, and is thought the starting berth at center. Bob Ward and Lyle McCauley, both members of last year's championship Airborne quintet, are Tallis' choices for slots at forwards. Both Ward and McCauley were stellar performers on Dutch Kendrick's fine football team.

Harold Haberman and Bob Kinard are slated for the starting assignments at guard.

The probable starting lineup of the Doughboy team is solid Airborne. Bench and Kinard played with the Post champions this season, while Haberman, Ward and McCauley were varsity stringers on last season's quintet.

Seibert To Play

Bill Tatum, former Wake Forest star, standing 6'4 1/2", will be Bench's alternate at center, with Doug Seibert, and Bob Seibert, the second and third letterman from last year's squad, standing in for McCauley and Kinard.

Many prospective courtmen have come from the grounds to the hardwood floor. Harold Lutz, Bob Scallion, and Paul Bonair are all vying for spots on the varsity five.

Albert Ratner, high-scoring mite sized forward from the 328th Ordnance Battalion, has been playing with the team, and is expected to lend hands with his floor shooting. Ratner led all other intramural scorers during league competition, averaging 20 points per game.

Ernie Kern and Slat Nash have been added from the 76th Engineers, and are improving daily. Capt. Tallis said,

In addition to the men mentioned, Tallis will have such standouts as Harold Cousins, former All-State forward from New Jersey, Sherwood Myers, scoring leader from the 501st Parachute Battalion, Paul Myers and Lloyd, ace basketkeepers of the ISD, "Long Bob" Henderson, leading basket maker on the trooper quintet this year on the Post crown, and Hugh Weber, who played a year with Texas A.M.

The 1947 edition of the Fort Benning Doughboys will be a fast moving, well coached team. Ced Tallis hopes to make up for his lack of height with a fast moving, smooth ball handling club, and has voted some confidence that his team can finish the season as another champion. Tallis coached the 1946 team, and led the Doughboy five to the Southeastern A.G.F. crown last year.

83rd Bowlers Lose To 25th

The Keglers from the 83rd Field Artillery veered off the victory road last week when the bowlers from the 25th Infantry smashed the officer-artillerymen, 2,251 to 2,184 in the Post Officers' bowling league.

The 83rd copped one of the four possible points by virtue of winning the second game of the three-game match.

High scorer for the winners was Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill with a match average of 167, while Lt. Richard W. Call took top honors for the losers with 160 for his three games.

Sport Quiz

(A.F.F.S.)—Just for a change, this week's quiz is a true-false affair. How many of the following statements are correct?

1. The "bat trick" is an expression taken from golf slang.
2. The National League's most valuable player for 1947 was Johnny Mize slagger.
3. Albie Booth is an immortal Harvard halfback.
4. Charlie Keller was the Yankee "bust" in the recent World Series.
5. The Stanley Cup is the award in the National Hockey League's annual play-offs.

ANSWERS

1. False. It is hockey expression applied to someone who scores three goals in one game.
2. False. It was Pittsburgh's Bob Elliott.
3. False. He played for Yale.
4. False. He was injured and did not even play.
5. True. 6. True. 7. True.

ISD SMOTHERS AGF; COPS SECOND HONORS

The fast moving quintet from the ISD clinched second place honors in the Post intramural league when they thoroughly ripped the former contenders from AGF's board No. 3 last week by a lopsided 70-15 count.

The defeat of the Ground Force five marks the ninth victory by the detachment boys, and during their ten-game schedule the ISD dropped only one game, and that was the league opener to the champion trooper aggregation 37-23.

Reaching the peak of perfection at the midway point in league competition, the ISD swept on to nine consecutive victories, and chalked up some of the most impressive scores during the intramural play. The victory over the Ground Force team was one of the biggest surprises of the year, for the AGF was regarded as one of the strongest teams in the league. They had dropped close games to some opponents, and had shelved many highly vaunted quintets during competition.

Capt. Joe Walker's boys were a smooth functioning, fast moving team, and had three fine courtmen to strengthen their ranks. Team captain Ken Nowles finished the season among the league's top scorers, and led the ISD basketeers in tallying more than 80 points in ten games.

Lloyd Watson, ace forward and fine defensive player, steadily improved during the season, and touched his peak in hitting the hoop for 23 markers against the 78th a week ago. Paul Myers, a fast guard, dropped many honors with the ISD and led all scorers against the AGF when he dropped in 12 baskets and a free throw for a night's total of 25 points. Both Watson and Myers will be playing on Capt. Ced Tallis' Doughboy quintet this season.

It was the second year that the team finished behind the heralded trooper team, but the fruits of their fine performances were reaped when the team received a handsome runner-up trophy.

Bombers Drop Tilt To Flyers

Defeated by a strong aerial attack, the 328th Ordnance battalion team lost their last game of the season to the Robins field Flyers Saturday afternoon, 26-6.

The only score made by the Ordnance Bombers came as the result of a thirty-five yard off-lackle punch by Johnny Kauchak. Outstanding plays by the Flyers kept the ball in Bomber territory most of the game.

Noteworthy among the performances turned in by the Ordnancemen was the well-executed line work of Right Guard Leonard Ebben whose skill in breaking up opposition plays won the plaudits from his team members and the spectators.

Handbills announcing gladiatorial snows turned in by the Rome were posted on public buildings and sold in the streets several days before the event.

Friendship Train Arrives Tuesday

Gen. Bradley Ends Visit On Saturday

The Christmas Friendship Train will arrive at Fort Benning Tuesday, Dec. 16, to collect canned goods and other perishable foods for the needy families of Columbus and vicinity, officials said today.

With the slogan, "Load the train with food for the underprivileged," Tommy Tucker, of radio station WDAK, originator of the idea, told Fort Benning children about the train and its purposes during a meeting held in the school auditorium last Tuesday. He urged them to help fill the train.

Holidays Begin December 20 For Military

A prolonged 15-and-one-half day Christmas-New Year's holiday, the longest of the year, is in the offing for Fort Benning military personnel, Infantry Center officials have announced.

Beginning at noon December 20 until January 3, 1948, all duties except the necessary administration, guard, police, and fatigue duties will be suspended.

Personnel who will spend their vacation off the post will begin streaming from the reservation Dec. 20. Those who remain on the post for the holiday will have light duty, performing only necessary work to keep the post operating.

Operating on a reduced scale the military offices will function from 9 to 12 a. m. daily except Sundays, Christmas, and New Year's Day.

It was further announced by the Department of the Army that personnel completing training at either training divisions or service schools, during January or February, who are scheduled for immediate assignment overseas and who take the Christmas leave will not be granted the normal preembarkation leave.

French General To Survey Post

General Charles E. Mast, director of the Institute of Higher Military Studies of National Defense and Economy of War, French Army, is scheduled to arrive here today for a two-day tour of the Infantry Center.

Accompanied by Lt. Col. Marek Paul Homo, staff officer, French Army, General Mast is conducting a tour of U. S. Army installations for the purpose of learning as much as possible about the operation of the Army high level school system.

General Mast and his party are chiefly interested in the organization of the U. S. school and training system and in stages of U. S. national defense as applicable to his country.

It is anticipated that in addition to General Mast and Colonel Homo, Lt. Gen. Maurice N. Mathenet, French military attaché at Washington, D. C., will also be included in the party. Gen. Mathenet was one of the larger group of military attaches who visited here last month.

Gen. Mast and his party are also scheduled to visit Washington, D. C., New York, Army, Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.; Fort Monroe, Va.; Langley field, Va.; Maxwell field, Ala.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; and aircraft plants in Los Angeles, Calif.

This affects every family at Fort Benning," Mr. Tucker stated. "The Christmas Friendship Train will collect food for the needy families of the community, so that they, too, can have a very merry Christmas."

The concept of the Christmas Friendship Train began when Mr. Tucker and Henry East also of WDAK, realized that while a great deal was being done for the hungry in Europe, little thought was given to those of this community.

The train is now sponsored by the Family Service Bureau and the Muscogee County Board of Public Welfare.

"So," Mr. Tucker continued, "we want to ask your help in loading the train with canned goods and other non-perishable food. You could read the letters we have received about needy families here in Columbus, you would know how we want you all to give as much as you can to help fill the train."

He mentioned two instances of underprivileged families that had come to his attention through work with the Friendship Train. In one case, the father of five children had suffered a stroke and was completely unable to work. In the other case, a father of nine was earning only $20 a week for feed, clothe and house his family.

The streamlined, 65-foot miniature train will carry children from the Fort Benning grade school for a short tour of the post, conducted by uniformed engineers and firemen and escorted by military police officers.

After appearing at the school, the Christmas Friendship Train will travel to the Post Exchange Center where it will await donations of food from shoppers for the rest of the day.

First member of the Hawaiian National Guard to attend classes at the Infantry School, S-Sgt. Francis Bento finds the United States to his liking, but falls fully into to appreciate the weather in Georgia.

Now attending a Motor Mechanics course at the Tenth Company, Student Training Regiment, Sergeant Bento's home unit is the Hawaiian National Guard, stationed at Hilo, Hawaii.

Although Sergeant Bento is a true Hawaiian, his guard unit includes men of nearly all races, the majority having seen Regular Army service. Responsible for the maintenance of a large motor pool in his home unit, he formerly served with the 29th Infantry regiment in Honolulu, Hawaii, totaling seven years in his country.

Sergeant Bento has his own orchestra in Hawaii, himself playing the Hawaiian steel guitar.

New Army Head Now Conducting Nation-Wide Tour

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, newly appointed Army chief of staff, who arrived at Fort Benning Sunday afternoon, is today observing infantry training methods and techniques at the Infantry Center in the commencement of his reinduction into Army life.

Conducting a nation-wide tour and survey of the Army department's facilities, the new chief of staff, who served for the last two years as head of the Veterans Administration, is scheduled to depart Saturday to continue his tour.

The four-star general is at present attached to the office of the chief of staff who will be sworn in as chief of staff following the expiration of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's term of office. Gen. Eisenhower is resigning the post to accept the position of president of Columbia University.

Arriving a little earlier than expected, Gen. Bradley, driving his own car, with his wife from Fort Jackson, S. C., was officially greeted Sunday by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander.

Thursday Gen. Bradley will have a full day of visits to various units. Beginning at 8:30 a. m. he will visit the Food Service School, where he will inspect the post. See BRADLEY on Page 2.

Tour Regional Hospital Here

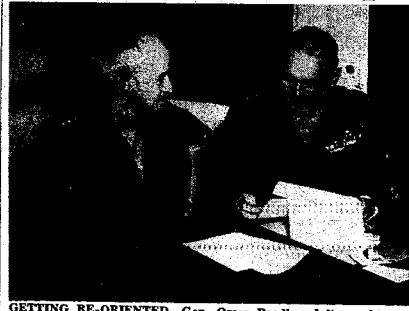

Officials of the Veterans Administration and State Department of Veterans Service from Alabama and Georgia heaped high praise on the administration of the Fort Benning Regional hospital following their tour here last Thursday.

Making a routine survey of the 50-bed facilities for ex-GIs of Alabama, Georgia, and Florida treated at the hospital, the group commended personnel for their cooperation in handling of veterans.

The hospital here provides a minimum of 50 beds for treatment of sick veterans. On occasions this capacity has been increased to 75 for treatment of "emergency cases." Forty veterans are in the hospital during the tour.

There has been a 150-bed allotment during 1946 but this was cut early this year, and there are indications that another allotment may come soon. Treated here are veterans from Northern Florida, Southeast Alabama, and Georgia.

Capt. R. P. Czaga conducted the tour after the visitors were greeted by Col. William D. North, commanding officer of the hospital during the absence of Col. Saunders, director of the Alabama Department of Veterans Service; Col. W. L. Carbine, Co. 1st Service Battalion of Veterans Service; and Col. W. L. Carbine, Co. 1st Service Battalion of Veterans Service. Fred L. Tucker, Veterans Administration Insurance Office, and Capt. W. H. Wiers, VA office manager in Columbus, also accompanied the group.

Officials Reveal Latest Reorganization Plans

Fort Benning is in the process of losing several of its outstanding and major units as a result of the reorganization of the 82nd Airborne division which is expected to be completed by January 1, 1948. According to plans revealed by officials of School Troops, the reorganization will take place in the near future and will constitute the reorganization, consolidation, and absorbing of units here by the 82nd Airborne division.

The 37th Infantry regiment, which was activated here August 8, 1946, will be reduced to zero strength, and the personnel will all be transferred to the 325th Infantry Regiment. The 325th, now a part of the 82nd Airborne will be reduced to zero strength at Fort Bragg, N. C., later this month, and will be moved to Fort Benning less one battalion.

The second battalion of the 25th Infantry, stationed here, will keep its unit designation but will be attached to the 325th to complete the organization of an infantry regiment.

The 78th Engineer Combat Battalion will also be reduced to zero strength. Personnel of the battalion will form Company C of the 307th Engineer Combat Battalion, which is an organic unit of the Engineers were redesignated from the 129th Engineers May 1 this year.

Another unit affected by the change-over is the 83rd Field Artillery Battalion, which will be reduced to zero strength and its personnel transferred to the 318th Field Artillery Battalion, completing the 325th Combat team.

Hollingsworth Serving As Chief Projectionist

In addition to his other duties as airborne customer, Capt. Roy Hollingsworth of Company C, Airborne Battalion, now performs as chief projectionist for his organization, showing one free movie a week.

Tuesday night, the featured film "When the Lights Go Out Again" with Jimmy Lydon. Other shows planned include "Boys of the City" with Jackie Cooper, and "Maxie Rosenbloom" in "Harvard Hate I Come."

Drive For Toys Progressing Well

Progressing in the Christmas drive for broken and discarded toys for needy families, Fort Benning's Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts continue to seek the generosity of post families.

According to Sgt. Harry Duffield, scoutmaster, the annual campaign for renovated Christmas toys is continuing very well, but he believes every family on the post can do more for those less fortunate than themselves.

The search for more toys will continue this week as Sgt. Duffield plans to distribute a mimeographed letter to the parents of Fort Benning children through their school.

This way is to be aided in the post. Boy Scout Troop 127, and Cub Scout Packs 127, 137, and 215 will call for the old toys, to make them as new, and to display them to deserving families on and off the post, to the Salvation Army, orphanages, and to any others that may deserve aid.

"We feel very strongly about this drive," Sgt. Duffield stated, "and consider that we cannot do too much. While the donations already received here have been very generous, I wish to voice an appeal for even greater efforts on the part of parents on the post. We want to ask them to consider their children as being in need of Christmas, and then I want every parent to give as much as they can."

Progress Noted In Training Film

Smooth progress has been reported by the eleven photographers from the Signal Corps Photo center, Long Island, N. Y., who are shooting and compiling data here for a training film on traffic control.

The unit, under the supervision of Major Gene R. Welch, arrived the middle of last month to work with the provost marshal's office on the project.

The local Military Police detachment, was chosen by the provost marshal general's office and the Department of the Army in Washington, D. C., because of the detachment's excellent record in traffic control technique.

Work here on the film, which is produced to illustrate technique of point control of traffic, is scheduled to be completed next week. Film director is James Cullen Landis, well known juvenile actor of silent screen days, who was granted leave from Sierra, Inc. of New York City, to work with the Army in this film. Capt. William T. Conner is technical advisor.

Others included in the group are Philip Kandell, William T. Richardson, Stanley T. Swed, Charles E. Hemingway, John Harrigan, James Gariand, and Elysa B. Sukoff.

of the JSD mess and Headquarters, 3440th ASU. At about 9:35 a. m. he will be at the Colored Service club, then the Colored NCO club, from where he will proceed to the student quarters. After inspecting Bigglesville mess, he is scheduled to pay a visit to the Station hospital at 10:30 a. m. followed by a trip to Sand Hill area, where he will inspect the 25th Infantry regiment.

To See Demonstration
In closing the week's schedule here Gen. Bradley will witness a demonstration of infantry weapons and fire power at Hook range Friday morning.

Wednesday morning the "Doughboys' General," inspected Army Ground Forces board No. 3, and later toured the Airborne section. The other visits Wednesday were to the Communication and Automotive sections of the Academic department. That night he attended the Community Concert at the Main Theater.

In a press conference held in the commandant's office Monday, Gen. Bradley was quite free with his answers to all queries of newspapermen.

The amiable successor to Gen. Eisenhower was very strong in his support of the Universal Military Training program. "We can't get away from the fact that we are part of the international situation. We should never again be isolated," Gen. Bradley declared. He went on to say "If we are to take part in international affairs, we must have something forceful to back up our arguments until the United Nations arrives at a better solution." Military Award To Col. Chase

Lt. Col. Charles H. Chase, instructor in Air Transportability at the Infantry School, will be awarded the Military Williams Order in the Degree of Knight Fourth Class by the Netherlands government this afternoon, officials said today.

Making the presentation will be Col. R. Roos, Netherlands military attache from Washington, D. C. The ceremony will be held at 2 p.m. at the Infantry school building.

Col. Chase is being awarded the decoration for participation in Holland operations while with the 506th Parachute Infantry regiment of the famous 101st Airborne division.

Final Squadron F Delegation Leaves For Turner Field

The final group of men in Lawson field's Squadron F left here for a permanent change of station to Turner Field, Ga., last Friday. Squadron F was transferred to Greenville Air Base, Greenville, S. C., last August, but was retained at Lawson field on detached service to assist with "Operation Combine."

Shortly after the tactical maneuver was completed, the first unit of men was transferred to Pope field, N. C., and a few weeks later the second group of men was sent to Bergstrom field, Tex.

With the transfer of the rear echelon, consisting of 30 enlisted men, to Turner field, the base will be without a Negro outfit for the first time since the later part of 1943.

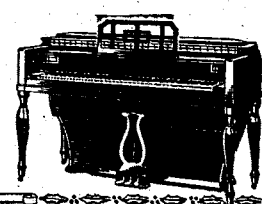

THIRD ARMY MOVES

Third Army headquarters closed its offices in Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 3 and moved to Fort McPherson, Ga., Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Third Army commander, has announced.

HUMES

What would Christmas be without "Adeste Fideles", "Silent Night" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing"? Why, music is the very essence of the Christmas spirit. . . . the natural expression of this season's emotional significance. That's why the gift of a Winter & Company Musette is so undeniably appropriate. Never before was there a piano combining such beauty and musical perfection as this fascinating modern console.

Chief Nurse Berninger Leaves Local Hospital

Lt. Col. Alta Berninger, chief nurse of the station hospital, will leave Fort Benning for an assignment in Germany on Monday, December 15, it was learned today. Major Edythe Turner, assistant chief nurse, will accompany her.

To report to Camp Kilmer Replacement depot Jan. 7, 1948, Col. Berninger is preparing for her fourth tour of foreign service in her 26 years of Army service.

Trained at Bellevue hospital in New York, she entered the Army in 1921 for service at Walter Reed new artillery battalion will remain in the location now occupied by the 83rd Field Artillery battalion.

Brazo Troops Here
Also being reduced to zero strength is the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion. A unit of paratroopers will arrive soon from the 82nd to assume their duties as demonstration troops, replacing the 501st in this capacity. The paratrooper unit will be rotated every three months, according to present plans.

The 788th Tank battalion will remain as a unit. A cadre will be transferred to the 325th Infantry to help organize a tank company, while the remainder of the 788th will be filled to full strength, less one company.

The 264th Truck battalion will not be affected as a unit by the new reorganization plans, but one company, the 663rd, will be reduced to zero strength.

Col. Charles H. Rowe, present commander of School Troops, will assume command of the 325th Infantry regiment. Lt. Col. Harry M. Cizzard will remain as his executive officer.

Gavin Commands
The reorganization of the 82nd Airborne marks the first time since World War II that a division had been elevated to its full wartime strength. The headquarters for the division will be at Fort Benning, N. C., with Major General J. M. Gavin commanding.

One of the most famous of all units of the past war, the 82nd is known as the "All American" division. Activated during World War I as an infantry division, the 82nd was reactivated in March 1942, but was redesignated an airborne division at Camp Claiborne, La., under the command of Gen. Omar Bradley.

After training for a time at Fort Bragg, the famous unit left for Casablanca in 1943, and later participated in the invasion of Sicily. This was the first time in U. S. military history that a complete airborne division was used as a unit.

In September 1943 the division parachuted behind Allied lines in Italy; troops were ordered to take part in the defense of Alvalle in Italy, and then moved on to extend the east flank of the Fifth Army.

The 82nd participated in the invasion of Normandy on D-Day and as battle progressed stopped the German army at the Maas River in Holland. From here the unit cut through Von Rundstedt's army in the battle of the bulge.

General hospital. Later service included duty in the Philippines, Hawaii, and at Fort Benning from 1922 to 1925, where she recalls only six wards in the local hospital and a total of 20 nurses on the staff.

On December 7, 1941, Colonel Berninger was stationed in Alaska, where she remained until 1943 with the 83rd Station hospital at Fort Richardson, near Anchorage. She has been stationed at Fort Benning since November 1943.

Now in charge of 31 nurses at the hospital, Colonel Berninger expects to arrive in Bremerhaven, Germany, by the middle of January.

Major Turner, assistant to Colonel Berninger, entered the Army Nurse Corps February 17, 1942, and was stationed at Fort Benning until 1945. Prior to this time, she received training in Atlanta, where she served as surgical nurse in the operating room at St. Joseph's infirmary.

In 1945, Major Turner left the United States for France, where she saw duty at several installations. Upon her return to the United States, she was again stationed at Fort Benning.

In the absence of Colonel Berninger and Major Turner, Captain Gladys Moore will serve as acting chief nurse at the hospital here.

Engineers Erect New Traffic Signs For Motor Safety

Another step in keeping Fort Benning modern, as well as adding to the safety of motorists, has been undertaken by the Post Engineers who began work this week in replacing all traffic and directional signs with a new reflector type.

Some of the signs have already been erected, while many more will soon spring up throughout the Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas, engineer officials said.

Made of steel and set up in a concrete base, the new signs are a permanent structure with reflector face easily visible at night. Signs have been erected around outpost No. 1 and along Vibbert Street on the Main Post.

The project, which calls for no parking, directional, and stop signs, will take a month to complete, according to officials.

Christmas Friendship

Next Tuesday Fort Benning will have another opportunity to show its generosity when the Friendship Train arrives to collect Christmas food parcels for the needy families in this community. In the past America's most complete Army post has made a remarkable record of philanthropy, and it is the sincere hope of The Bayonet that Fort Benning will again open its cupboard as well as its heart to make some unfortunate family group a little happier at Christmastime.

The appeal for food is being made by the Family Service Bureau and the County Board of Public Welfare in Columbus to the children at the Post Children's school. But this appeal can be successful only if the parents of Fort Benning cooperate by providing their children with the canned goods and other non-perishable foods essential to fill the miniature train.

The Bayonet believes that the idea of the Friendship Train on a local scale is just as important as the National Friendship Train, which has recently completed its tour of the United States gathering food and clothing for the suffering masses in Europe. We believe that everyone in this community will spend a far happier Yuletide season if there are no hungry families in the county. All of us here at Fort Benning know that we will have plenty of food to eat, warm clothing to wear, and comfortable homes and barracks in which to spend Christmas; but, even in this land of plenty, there are, unfortunately, many who lack those basic comforts which all Americans have come to expect as their birthright. We can, however, assure those in need a far happier Christmas by giving freely to the Friendship Train, by letting those who need good food receive a token of our good will.

Let's fill the Friendship Train to overflowing. We feel confident that if we give more than enough to fill the train once, its sponsors will be happy to make a return trip.

Welcome Gen. Bradley

Fort Benning is always glad to welcome the Doughboys general, Omar N. Bradley, the genial, shy commander of the war-time 12th Army Group in Europe. We feel that this man, who has always performed his duties with calmness born of confidence in mankind, belongs to Fort Benning, having at one time commanded the post as well as having attended the world-famous Infantry School here.

For the past two years General Bradley has won the praise of veterans and government officials alike for his superb handling of one of the world's largest organizations—the Veterans Administration. And now the esteem in which he is held by our government is again being proved by the fact that he has been appointed Army Chief of Staff, the highest honor that can come to a military man in this country.

General Bradley's manner of speaking can put anyone at ease. He speaks quietly and softly and without a trace of hesitation. He endeared himself to a host of newspapermen last Monday morning when he answered all the questions fired at him quickly and quickly. He almost makes reporters forget that they are in the presence of a great military leader because he gives the impression of merely being a member of a discussion group.

Fort Benning is always happy to have General Bradley visit, whether it be on a purely personal basis or for the purpose of, as it is now, "re-learning" the Army. So The Bayonet joins in extending a warm welcome to the future Chief of Staff.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL

To you American people, stockholders in your American Red Cross, you have reasons to be proud of the achievement of your organization in 1947. Let me give you the high lights of some of the services performed by the organization during the past eleven months.

Red Cross disaster operations in 1947 reached the highest peak of the last decade. Within the first seven months of this year, approximately nine million dollars was allocated for disaster relief. Four-fifths of that sum was expended in the following serious catastrophes: The Texas City explosion-fires; the Oklahoma-Texas Panhandle tornadoes; the June floods in the middle west and several eastern states; and the September hurricanes that lashed 27 counties of Florida and 23 counties of Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana. The greatest fund allocation for the above mentioned disasters was $2,250,000 for families in the hurricane areas.

In volunteer service more than 25 million hours of service were recorded for the year, the equivalent of 8,562 persons giving a full eight-hour day of service 365 days during the year.

Service to veterans through Home Service handled 2,029,007 cases concerning veterans and their families, and gave them financial assistance totaling $6,214,000.

In Red Cross Claim service field directors in Veterans Administration offices during the past fiscal year handled 1,085,000 cases.

Out of a total of 6,947,000 cases served by Red Cross chapters nearly 1,838,000 were to servicemen and their families. Red Cross chapters through Home Service rendered financial assistance in the amount of $12,483,000. Stemming from the original Congressional Charter, the Red Cross program of service to the armed forces continues to be one of the most important services rendered by the Red Cross. A total of 2,400 Red Cross representatives are still engaged in the program with the Army.

During the past year, first aid, water safety, and accident prevention not only extended its well established program of certified courses, but also expanded its activities to a broad program of public education. Under this program a peak number of 470,000 certificates were issued. Three hundred and forty-six thousand first aid certificates were issued and a total of 61,000 accident prevention certificates were issued.

During 1947 the Red Cross units in colleges grew rapidly to 227 units on 107 campuses, 37 universities, 109 colleges, 32 teachers' colleges, and 49 junior colleges.

Junior Red Cross, consisting of high school students only, numbered 19,000,000 students, and made possible a program of educational rehabilitation in war-devastated areas.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Chaplain By L. Taylor

With the return of the blessed Christmas season we send you this word of greeting in the name of our Lord whose birth we commemorate.

The tender harmonies of the carols we love so well, still speak their message to our hearts. As we look back over the difficult days through which we have passed, we approach this Christmas season with renewed courage and determination to make the coming years more pleasant and happy for the whole world.

We are mindful of the many changes through which we are passing, but amid these changes, Christmas comes with added emphasis upon the sublime truth that God so loved us as to give His only begotten Son as His Christmas gift.

May this Christmas drive back every fear which may envelop us, and permit us to see a Guiding Star in the heavens and hear the angelic chorus from above sing "Peace on Earth and Good Will to All Men."

Let us wish for you the indwelling of the spirit of Christ. May peace and joy from Him fill your hearts, and may the consciousness that you are His give you great courage for the coming year.

Assuring you of our abiding love and with every good wish for the season and the coming year.

The wedding cake had its origin in Roman times when the bride and groom together ate cake made of salt, water and flour. The cake has become more and more elaborate through the ages, culminating in the highly tiered pastry of today.

An early method of smoking required a small boy and a roll of tobacco two or three feet long, as thick as a man's wrist. The tobacco was lighted and the boy puffed smoke into the faces of a group of men who made tunnels of their hands and inhaled it.

The first patent for a shaving mug was granted on May 1, 1860 to Thomas E. Hughes of Birmingham, Pennsylvania, and from that time until 1940, a total of 64 U. S. patents were granted for shaving mugs.

This Day

Editor's Note: This series, which presents a review of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between Dec. 5 and This Day, Dec. 11.

December 5, 1787—On This Day, 163 years ago, Martin Van Buren, eighth President of the U. S., was born in Kinderhook, N. Y. It was on This Day, Dec. 5, in 1839, that Gen. George A. Custer was born in New Rumley, Ohio. A greater fighter during the heyday of Indian massacres, Gen. Custer, with 264 men, was killed in the battle on the Little Horn river, which has since become legend.

December 6, 1777—Exactly 170 years ago, France recognized the independence of the American colonies. On This Day, 63 years ago, the Washington Monument in the Nation's capital was completed. And 59 years ago, in 1889 Jefferson Davis, the ex-president of the Confederacy, died in New Orleans, La.

December 7, 1787—On This Day, 200 years ago, the state of Delaware approved the Federal Constitution of the U. S. It was on This Day in 1941 that the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor in the sneak punch that started the U. S. in World War II.

December 8, 1805—On This Day, 142 years ago, the Lewis and Clark Expedition reached Fort Clatsop in Oregon, and began to build its winter quarters. On Dec. 8, 1941, Pres. Roosevelt appeared before Congress to ask for an immediate declaration of war against Japan.

December 9, 1848—It was on This Day, 89 years ago, that Chandler Harris, author of "Uncle Remus," was born in Putnam county, Georgia. On This Day, 73 years ago, Ezra Cornell, founder of Cornell university, died at Ithaca, N. Y.

December 10, 1817—On This Day, 130 years ago, the state of Mississippi was admitted to the Union. In 1839, 49 years ago, the Treaty of Paris was signed, ending the Spanish-American War.

December 11, 1816—It was exactly 131 years ago on This Day that the state of Ohio was admitted to the Union. Twelve years ago Captain Albert W. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson awarded the Hubbard Gold Medal for reaching the highest altitude attained by man. The two Army Air Corps men soared to a height of nearly 14 miles in a stratosphere balloon on Armistice Day, 1935. And it was on This Day, six years ago in 1941, that Congress declared in response to President Roosevelt's message that a state of war existed between the United States and Germany and Italy.

Lawson Shows Recruit Film

The recruiting office at Lawson field has instituted a new type recruiting program for the months of December and January, according to Capt. James E. Sever, recruiting officer.

Field contact canvassers are visiting the various high schools in Georgia showing the Army film "The Top Club," an hour and a half in length, depicting the overall description of the European Theater of operations, Capt. Sever states that the picture is invaluable to students in high schools from a historical standpoint, and has had a wide appeal to history teachers in all schools.

On Wednesday, Dec. 10, the high school zeblun. A preview showing of the film was held also on Dec. 10 at Thomaston high school. The Chamber of Commerce president, the American Legion commander, the Veterans of Foreign Wars commander, the National Guard commander, the superintendent of the school, and members of the Thomaston high school faculty were invited to view the picture for approval to be shown in their various organizations.

Air Force To Use AF Instead Of RA

In the future men enlisting or reenlisting with the Air Force will use the AF instead of RA as part of their serial number, according to Lawson field recruiting officer.

The change is in keeping with the Air Force's newly won autonomy, and was inaugurated at the base last Friday. The first man to have the AF placed before his serial number was S-Sgt. Clayton Rodgers, of Columbus, Ga., a veteran of three years service with the Air Force and a graduate of the Aircraft Mechanic's school, Columbus, Miss., who reenlisted for three years.

Lecturer On Stage, Screen, To Talk For Woman's Club

Following tradition, the Christmas general meeting of the Fort Benning Woman's club will be held December 15 in the Polo Hunt club and as a special feature, Joe Callaway, young actor and director of stage, screen, and radio, will be the speaker.

"Broadway Play by Play" will be the topic of Mr. Callaway's talk, and the program promises to be one of the most interesting of the year as he brings to the platform a rich background of the stage, screen, and radio. He has been called the best young lecturer in the theater today. He is also an associate professor of speech at Michigan State college, while his duties there have allowed him to continue his professional activities as guest director with the Blue network and as a lecturer and critic. At Michigan State he is also director of radio education.

The Monday meeting will start at 2:30 p. m., and the club will be decorated by the hospitality committee under the direction of Mrs. Hamilton Thorn with Christmas reds and greens as the motif. The committee in charge of the decorations includes Mrs. Charles Royce, Mrs. Wallace M. Hale, Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, and Mrs. James Stevens. Other ladies working on arrangements are Mrs. Gilbert T. Collar, Mrs. William D. North, Mrs. L. A. Diller, Mrs. H. A. Stewart, Mrs. O. P. Bragan, and Mrs. Jack Davies.

Mrs. Robert Hill, president of the Woman's club, this week said that wives of officers who are newcomers on the post are cordially invited to membership in the Woman's club, and can call Mrs. D. F. Buckland at 3454 for membership cards or secure them from committee chairmen by attending any of the group meetings.

In addition, there will be a table at the Monday meeting with one of the membership committee in attendance for those who have not yet joined. Members are requested to pin their cards on themselves at each meeting and attendance is restricted to members and their houseguests.

Mrs. Hill has also reminded the ladies that they are invited to attend Holiday House which is being given at the Woman's club building in Columbus.

Maj. Mrs. Brown Entertain At Party

A nice holiday party was the cocktail event given last week by Major and Mrs. H. C. Brown when they entertained for approximately 80 friends in the Palm room of the Officers' club. Light refreshments were served in silver, and silver and white tapers were burning in silver candelabra. The two punch bowls were nestled in white and silver pine cones and holly wreaths while holly was used all around the room.

The refreshment table was beautifully done with red ribbons and cones around the silver candelabra, and holly formed the centerpiece.

TO SPEAK TO WOMAN'S CLUB—Joe Callaway, who has played with the famous Globe Theater company, will speak at the general meeting of the Woman's club Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the Polo Hunt club.

'At Home' Given By Davidsons Sunday Evening

One of the most pleasing events of the holiday season was the "at home" held Sunday evening by Lt. Col. and Mrs. James R. Davidson.

Cocktails and light refreshments were served, and the rooms were softly lighted by violet cream tapers burning in silver candelabra, while a silver service was used on the serving table which was beautifully laid with a point velvet cloth. Holiday greens, holly, and red berries completed the decorations.

Guests were Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins, Col. and Mrs. Ray Ross, Col. and Mrs. John C. Bizzard, Mrs. Lloyd D. Brown, Col. and Mrs. L. A. Diller, Col. and Mrs. E. A. Johnson, Capt. and Mrs. Charles H. Royce, Col. Robert N. Hill, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. Peggy Bennett, Lt. Col. and Mrs. O. Connor, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles Gayles, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Michael Paulick, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Emil F. Eschenburg, Lt. Col. Charles Johnson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Hamilton, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William D. Cone, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Boyd, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. F. East, William D. North, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry Grizzard, Mrs. R. C. Gerbook, Lt. Coy. and Mrs. William O. Blanford, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. C. Hicks Jr.

Guest From Pa. At No-Host Event

Miss Ruth Shrader, of Freeland, Pa., is visiting Lt. and Mrs. J. J. Ford, and was among those attending a no-host dinner party last week at Fritchett's Fish camp. Miss Shrader, sister of Mrs. J. W. Blaker, Miss Shrader and Lt. N. D. Rogers.

In the no-host party last week were Maj. and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, Capt. and Mrs. Wisdom Stewart, Capt. and Mrs. Arne Millican, Lt. and Mrs. J. J. Ford, Capt. and Mrs. F. Blaker, Lt. and Mrs. J. W. Blaker, Miss Shrader and Lt. N. D. Rogers.

Wed By Chaplain
Miss Helen Raabe, of Philadelphia, became the bride of S. Sgt. William Selby, November 22, with Rev. J. C. Wallace, pastor of the Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, officiating. Sgt. and Mrs. Kelley Lawson fielded Women's club members gathered for a monthly business meeting on the sun porch of the Base Officers' club. Mrs. Robert J. Clark, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Wilfred Hinman.

The ladies decided to entertain with a Christmas party the afternoon of December 15 in the club's small lounge. Hostess for the event will be Mrs. Fred Z. Gearhart. A varied program of entertainment was planned, and refreshments will be served. An entertainment of Christmas tree, brightly colored candles, and autumn leaves and greens were chosen to carry out the holiday decoration theme in the lounge.

Instead of exchanging Christmas gifts at the party, members voted to make individual donations to their welfare fund to be used for providing Christmas cheer for some needy family. Mrs. Alison Nolan, welfare chairman, was appointed to select and distribute the club's Christmas gifts to the family.

Among the ladies present were Mrs. Gilbert T. Collar, Mrs. Treaschko, Mrs. Fred Z. Gearhart, Mrs. Byron E. Trent, Mrs. Robert Clark, and Mrs. Malcolm Sponenbergh.

Original Costumes For 'Hard Times' Seen At AGF Party

Officers and ladies of AGF board No. 3 and their guests were entertained at one of the most original parties of the season Saturday evening when Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. C. Peters and Capt. and Mrs. Martin Colley, were co-hosts at a "hard times" celebration held in the Officers' quarters.

Mrs. Patrick Armstrong and Capt. Robert J. Frost took prizes for their costumes with Mrs. Armstrong wearing a hand-made gown of burlap and matching footgear. The prizes were jars of baked beans attractively wrapped for the occasion.

The basement and first floor of the Peters' quarters were the scene of the party where the decorations were in keeping with the theme, and refreshments were served in large tin cans covered with numerous labels giving the name of each guest and a comment on his or her costume.

Ping-pong was played in the basement where further entertainment was furnished by the electric train set-up loaned by the Peters' youngsters. On the main floor various card games were played, and vocally inclined guests gathered around the piano.

Cadre Club Plans Saturday Dance

The Airborne Cadre club will sponsor a dance Saturday evening at 8 p. m. with music by the Starlighters, who will be accompanied by First Sgt. Eddie Bright, president.

At the same time Sergeant Bright reminded members of the club located in the airborne area at Lawson field, that game night is being held each Tuesday evening from 8 to 11 p. m.

Mrs. Conway Has Party At Quarters

Mrs. Lewis W. Conway was hostess for the desert bridge party for the ladies of the Communications section Friday afternoon at her quarters when four tables were in play. Special guests were Mrs. James Anders and Mrs. Donald Dunlop. Refreshments were served from a table beautifully decorated with a miniature Christmas tree and little angels.

AT LITERATURE AND ART MEETING—Mrs. Ralston Cargill, of Columbus, left, shows some of her beautiful paintings to Mrs. Ralph Hobbs, of Cataula, at the meeting of the literature and art group of the Woman's club. Mrs. Hobbs gave the ladies a highly interesting talk concerning the selection of reading material.

Books Displayed, Discussed At Meet; Paintings Admired

Ladies who turned out to a meeting of the literature and art group of the Woman's club Monday afternoon were well rewarded as Mrs. Richard Sandusky and her co-chairman, Mrs. William Rhinehart, arranged another of their varied and interesting programs with Mrs. Ralph Hobbs, of Cataula, Ga., as the guest speaker.

Tying in her talk with the attractive book display, arranged by Miss Ethel Clayton, of Columbus, Mrs. Hobbs' informative discussion gave the group guidance in the selection of reading, and was particularly appropriate at this season as a help in Christmas shopping. Her emphasis was on children's reading and how to lead them into reading of the proper type.

Parents and others can encourage this by offering books on subjects the child is particularly interested in at the time, Mrs. Hobbs said, as she also spoke of comics and the great hold they have over children. Giving her listeners a new slant on this particular problem, she said editors are improving the contents of the strips so the children unconsciously a b o r b some worthwhile values along with the entertainment.

The display of paintings by Mrs. Ralston Cargill, who points under the name of Anne T. Cargill, was a highlight of the meeting. Her beautiful flower and bird pictures were arranged about the small lounge of the Officers' club, and were enthusiastically admired by all who saw them.

Mrs. Cargill was commissioned by the Garden club of Georgia to portray the wild flowers of this section of the country and her works are so technically perfect and authentic that they have been used in a wild life conservation project, and are now at the University of Georgia for display.

Following the meeting the ladies were invited to view the paintings as well as the book display which was furnished by the White Book store in Columbus.

Miss Frost Weds Pfc. New Dec. 1

Miss Peggy Frost, of Columbus, became the bride of Pfc. Stanley New December 1, when the ceremony was solemnized in the First Presbyterian church in Opelika, Ala., with Rev. A. C. Wetlied officiating.

Private New, a member of the 505th Parachute Infantry regiment, 82nd Airborne division, is attending the radio repair course here.

The couple will make their home in Columbus until the groom completes his course and they return to Fort Bragg, N. C.

Third Graders Entertain School At Yule Program

With a Christmas program for the holiday season, members of the third grade at the Post Children's school No. 1, entertained the other students Tuesday morning in the regular assembly held in the auditorium.

Under the assembly program, each class, presents a program in rotation, with the various classes furnishing the entertainment once every ten weeks.

The Tuesday program, under the direction of Miss Susan Colquhoun, was made up of skits taken from popular books, as characters from "Little Women," "Peter Rabbit," "Little Black Sambo," "Hiawatha," and "Tom Sawyer" appeared in costume and told what they would like to find on their Christmas tree.

For this holiday program the stage was decorated with Christmas trees. To complete the presentation the 42 third grade students sang carols.

TRAVELERS FROM FORT BENNING—Major and Mrs. John J. Fray appeared on the "Welcome Travelers" radio program when they stopped in Chicago recently. The couple had breakfast at the Hotel Sherman where they were interviewed by Tommy Bartlett, emcee of the program, and were given a sightseeing tour of Chicago, had lunch at a well-known cafe, were presented gifts from a leading store, and entertained at a theater during the evening after the interview.

Mrs. O'Daniel Hostess At Tea To Fete Mrs. Bradley At Club

Mrs. Omar N. Bradley, visiting, Fort Benning this week with her husband, General Bradley, was honored at a beautiful tea Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. John W.

O'Daniel entertained in the main hall of the Officers' club from 4 to 6 p. m.

The holiday theme was carried out in the lovely decorations with red gladioli and white chrysanthemums arranged on the tea table, which was overlaid with a lace cloth. Tall white tapers burned in silver candelabra, and the 110 guests were served tea and coffee at either end of the long table.

Ladies invited to pour during the afternoon were Mesdames: Reuben E. Jenkins, John C. Blizars, D. B. Buckland, Diller, Charles Royce, W. H. O'Mohun, Roy E. Lindquist, and Irvine C. Scudder.

General and Mrs. Bradley were feted Monday evening at a formal supper party given by General and Mrs. O'Daniel at the commandant's quarters. Sixty guests attended the event.

'Caisson' Ride Grets Arrival Of Mrs. Sciolia

A colorful artillery custom was revived on the Post Friday evening when newlywed Capt. and Mrs. Ralph A. Sciolia were given a caisson ride.

According to the old custom, when an officer is married, the bride and groom ride a caisson drawn by a team of flashy horses from the chapel around the post to the newlywed's quarters.

Modern-day changes saw Captain and Mrs. Sciolia seated on improvised seats slung along either side of the tube of a 100 mm howitzer drawn by a truck. The entire outfit was gayly decorated with various colored crepe paper streamers and large signs front and rear bearing the familiar legend "Just Married."

The ride ended at the Officers' club, where a cocktail party and reception were held to meet officers of the 83 Field Artillery battalion and their ladies to meet the bride and welcome her to Fort Benning.

Captain and Mrs. Sciolia were married November 23 in Philadelphia, Pa. The bride is the former Miss Clara B. McCarthy of Lowell, Mass.

The couple returned to the Post Friday afternoon after a wedding trip through the eastern states to Daytona Beach, Fla. They will be at home at 15 Allison Benning Park Homes.

The Trio, to play from 7:30 to 11:30 p. m. Sunday, comes here from Atlanta where they are playing in the Blue Room at the Imperial hotel.

Wade Creager, leader of the group, plays the guitar and has played in the Cafe de Triumph in Paris as well as on the S. S. Paris. Johnny Goering plays the piano with the group and Billy Galloway plays bass. Galloway started cutting records for Decca when he was a 12-year-old, and is now employed by station WAGA in Atlanta.

Games will be played at the club Sunday evening between 6 and 7 p. m. before the dance.

Santa Promises Visit To Children During Yule Party

Students at the Post Children's school No. 1 and their sisters and brothers will be entertained at the Main Post theater December 19 with a party which promises to be complete with the arrival of Santa, it was announced this week by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wallace M. Hale who is in charge of the event. The party is being made possible by Community Chest donations.

Christmas carols for group singing will be featured on the program and color cartoons will be shown as part of the party which will include a talk on safety to be given by a representative of the provost marshal's office.

The arrival of Saint Nick will be the climax of the afternoon party which starts at 6:15 and gifts will be distributed to each of the youngsters.

Background music with a Christmas theme will be furnished by the 72nd Army band. Other children on the Post will also be entertained at Christmas parties with one scheduled for Service club No. 4, and another at the Sand Hill Service club. Chaplain Leonard Ellis and Gerald Hender will be in charge of these programs.

Lawson Briefs

The transfer of Squadron F to Turner field last Friday pulled some A-1 clerks out of headquarters, according to Stat Control, Special Order and Military personnel sections, who lost one man each. The change took S-Sgt. Toxie Bridges, out of personnel, T-Sgt. Franklin M. Brown, out of stat control, and special order lost Cpl. Roy Farnell. All three men were known for the diligent and conscientious manner in which they performed their duties.

Their former co-workers wish them best of luck with their new assignments at the fighter base. Filling the vacancy in Stat is S-Sgt. Early D. Tarwick; Cpl. James O. King has taken over Farnell's job; and Pvt. Hector V. Dalton has replaced Brown.

Cpl. Robert Garner, who handles the Air Force Aid society office for individual services, reported in last week after 27 days in his hometown in Washington. For transportation to and from home he thumbed the airplanes. Lt. Edwin T. McDonald has taken over the base athletic office, succeeding Lt. Clement M. Malone.

1st Lt. Thomas B. Nash, a former Jackson AAB, Miss., master sergeant who was recalled to active duty as an officer recently, won the base athletic office, succeeding Lt. Clement M. Malone. Lt. Thomas B. Nash, a former ETO in 1944 and wears the DFC and the Air Medal with three clusters. He has also served in Alaska. The lieutenant, a graduate of the Air Force Aircraft Maintenance school, Wichita Falls, Tex., will work with base aircraft maintenance. Another crew member last week was Lt. Raymond F. Thompson, whose former station was Straubing, Germany. The recent returnee was placed with base operations. He claims Greenville, Miss., as his hometown.

Moody to technician fourth grade; T-5 Douglas O. Stokes to sergeant; Pfc. Robert N. Johnson, Edward Spearman, Lee Webster, Jr., and Robert J. Williams to technician fifth grade; and Pfc. Rudolph M. Patton to corporal.

Five promotions went to members of Headquarters company, including Pfc. Howard M. Roe to corporal, and Pfc. Walter D. Talley, Sr., Leonard Rees, William H. Searcy, and Robert V. Perry to technician fifth grade.

Other promotions were Pfc. Delbert C. Powell, Headquarters and service company, to technician fifth grade, and Pfc. Owen E. Vanderver, Company B, to corporal.

Sunday Designated Universal Bible Day

Sunday, Dec. 14, designated as Universal Bible Sunday, will be the climax of the World-Wide Bible reading program with emphasis being placed on Bible reading.

In its fourth year, the concentrated Bible Reading program, from Thanksgiving to Christmas, resulted from an idea originated by young Marine on Guadalcanal when he wrote his mother that they join hands invisibly by simultaneously reading the Bible.

Gilbert Carlton Wins Promotion To Tec 5

Protestant chaplain of Fort Benning, who have more than 5,000 programs on which Bible readings are listed, will emphasize the program in sermons Sunday.

Pfc. Gilbert L. Carlton, Company C, Infantry School detachment, has been promoted to technician fifth grade, it has been announced.

At the same time it was also revealed that Cpl. Frank D. Krueger, Detachment headquarters, had been promoted to the grade of sergeant, and Pvt. Wallace C. Thompson, Company A, had been promoted to private first class.

Magic Show Set For Theaters During Holidays

As special holiday entertainment for all military personnel and their families, Gene and Jo, magicians, will make three appearances on the Post next week with all performances to be given without charge to the military audience, it was announced this week by the special services office which is sponsoring the program.

Lawson field personnel will have the first opportunity to see the fast-moving show when it plays in theater No. 3 at 8:23 p. m., December 16. The following evening the show will be given at the Main Post Theater at 8:30, and the last showing will be December 18 at 8:30 p. m. in the Sand Hill theater.

Gene and Jo and their company are making four appearances at Army and Navy bases in this country and come here highly recommended from their previous engagements, it was reported by Col. O. P. Bragan, chief of special services.

Adding novelty to the program, a group of Mexican Chihuahua and the smallest group of dogs in the world, will appear in the well-costumed show.

Couples Entertain

With red and green colors of Christmas featured in the decorations, Major and Mrs. H. T. Mitchell and Capt. and Mrs. Elden Campbell entertained last week with a gala cocktail party for approximately 150 of their friends at the Polo Hunt club.

Colored lights, brightly decorated Christmas trees, mistletoe, and greens and wreaths carried out the Yuletide theme, and silver serving dishes and candelabra completed the festive arrangement.

Troops To Get New Type Milk

A solution to the problem of beverage milk for troops in the Far East has been found by dairy experts of the Quartermaster Corps, the Army announced today.

Mechanical recombination of the solid ingredients of milk with butter, oil and water will produce satisfactory beverage milk, experts reported, and plants necessary for the new milk-processing system are planned for Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Guam, and Okinawa, where Army dairy men have found the country unsuitable for dairy farming. The dry ingredients, it was pointed out, can be shipped from the United States and stored without deterioration, and the new process assures a highly acceptable beverage.

The Milk Industry Foundation, acting with the Army in research on the reconstitution of dried milk, has interested a number of American dairy firms in the program. Sites and buildings in the Pacific area will be furnished rent-free as long as the entire output of the plants is delivered to the Army.

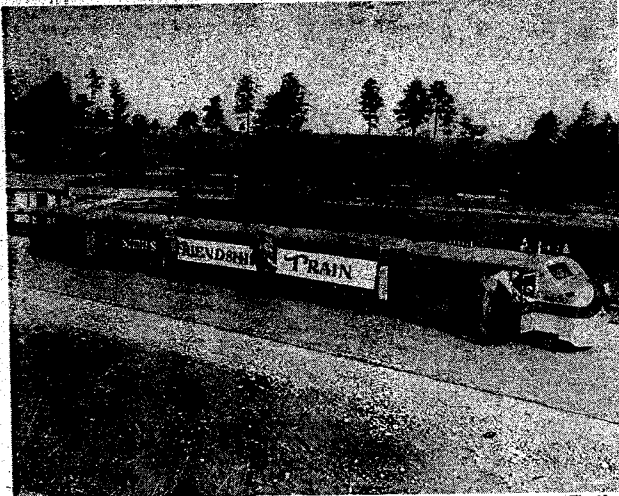

Lack of fresh milk in the Pacific area has long been considered a major morale problem due to the average soldier's liking for milk. In Europe, an adequate supply of fresh milk has been established through arrangements with Danish dairymen.

College Five Trips Doughts In Opener

A slow starting Doughboy quintet came back remarkably in the second half last Friday night at the Main Post gym, but was unable to overcome an eleven-point advantage, dropping its season's opener to a smooth working Howard college five, 43-40.

The little-practiced Doughboy cagers were slow getting off, and found themselves with a ten-point deficit in the first five minutes of the thrilling shoot-out. The fan-filled stands sent forth a sigh as the Tallis men were outtraced behind the collegians 15-5 in the opening minutes of the hard-fought battle. The sharp shooting of Joe Daugherty, Howard forward, and Buford Maddox, ace collegiate pivot postman, kept the Birmingham five in the lead throughout the first half, and gave their team a comfortable 22-15 margin at the intermission.

Capt. Ced Tallis, enjoying his second season with the "best" court men, smoothed out the team's difficulties as much as he could at half time, and a rejuvenated Doughboy quintet was ready when the referee sounded his whistle for the last half.

Howard Haberman, ace Benning and equally capable as a baseline teamer, and Howard Myers, tricky little Dough forward, to keep the locals within firing distance of Howard's aggregation, but Buford Maddox tallied twice as did Daugherty and Sparks, and Howard fell behind as the ten-minute period crossed the clock, 36-25.

But Tallis' team was anxious rabbit out of the hat in the form of a jackrabbit forward, "Long Bob" Henderson, and the lanky forward was fast to make his presence felt on the court. Behind the fleet floorman, the Doughs moved within three points of Howard, and, for the remaining three minutes of the game, both squads fought furiously. Howard held his lead, and the Doughs to capture the same.

Henderson put on a splendid exhibition for the 500 court fans making every second of the two quarters he played count. Shooting with expert precision and guarding opposing cagers adeptly, Henderson was the chief impetus in moving the locals to within one point of the till winners. After "Long Bob" had pulled out a nice shot through the hoop and added another from the foul line to bring the count to 36-25, the Howard coach began to get shaky and spent the balance of the game inquiring about the Doughs.

Things were tight at this stage and minutes remaining had divided to two, a technical foul called on some over-enthusiastic Benning foul added another to the Howard aggregation, and Joe Daugherty dropped in a long one from the corner to pull the collegians out of trouble temporarily. But Sherwood Myers and Bob Henderson each tallied a basket, and Herb Bench gave the Doughs another from the foul line to bring the score back to the tight category. Seconds before the whistle tolled, Buford Maddox spun and spent the spheroid sailing toward the hoop—his five was accurate, and the Howard five finished three points better than their soldier foes.

Henderson, Myers and Harold Herberman played excellent ball for the Doughs with Bob Henderson leading the scoring, averaging with 14 markers. Buford Maddox followed the lingo forward with 13.

Soldier Cagers Drop Close Tilt To Phenix City

The last moving Phenix City Tiger cagers shook off a 26-26 intermission deadlock and handed Ced Tallis and his Doughboy basketekers their second straight loss of the season Tuesday night at the Central high school gym, 52-45.

The versatile shooting of veteran Fred Haines, a former Georgia Tech star, set the Tigers on the victory road. Haines topped all other scorers for the evening, plying in eight baskets and adding three more from the foul line. The tricky Phenix forward faked, shot, dribbled, and passed with expert skill, and emerged as the outstanding figure of the hard fought game.

Bowmen Select New Officers; Mays Governor

The Fort Benning Bowman have a new champion. Lt. J. E. Elliott's former record of 122 points for the year 1946 was announced by Lt. Col. John L. Hitchings, former club governor. McWilliams, member of the 78th Engineer battalion, joined the club at its conception, and has been one of the finest marksmen in the ranks of the bowmen, Col. Hitchings said.

Col. Hitchings further announced the election of officers for the coming season that were balloted at the Screening Center December 10.

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel was chosen honorary governor for 1948, while Lt. Col. Richard J. Mays replaced Col. Hitchings as the club's governor. Capt. M. E. Elliott, former champion marksman, takes the reins as vice governor. Lt. J. B. McWilliams was elected shooting master, and Capt. Charles W. Kilpatrick became the new hunt master. Mrs. M. E. Elliott is the new secretary-treasurer.

3rd Army Bowling Meet Opens Jan. 13

The 1948 Third Army bowling tournament will be held here beginning Jan. 13 and ending Jan. 15. The tourney will be staged at the Main Post bowling alleys, and any one interested in trying out for the Post Kegler team should report to Capt. Milligan at the Main Post alleys Saturday at 1:30 p. m.

- Which one of these football acres is not a sophomore: Ferd Nadenery, Charley Justice, Ray Evans, Lynn Dorsett?
- Eddie Store is a former Columbia immortal; the place where Bobby Thompson, Scottish Giant center-fielder, was born; the first player to use a firstbase man's glove?
- What do Bobby Jack Stuart, Army ace, and Glenn Dobbs, professional gangster, have in common?
- Who is Vern Garstner?

- Evans, a senior, and key man in a fine Kausus backfield. Ray was playing ball in college back in the days of Tommy Hutson, but a long hitch in the Air Force interrupted his career.
- Eddie Store is to ice hockey what Babe Ruth is to baseball.
- Dobbs was one of the finest backs in Tulsa university's history, while Stuart played at the same college before transferring to West Point.
- Vern Garstner was the outstanding man on the sensational Utah basketball team last winter, and is a good bet for All-American honors this year.

Phenix Takes Lead

Phenix jumped to an early six point advantage, but Harold Haberman dumped two through the hoop, and Sherwood Myers found the basket once to bring the Doughs to a 15-15 count as the first quarter ended.

It was a battle between Haines and Haberman in the second canno. The local's whistle sounded at half time, the two quintets were all tied up.

Bob Seibert, making his first appearance with the Tallismen began to find the circle during the third stanza, and kept his Doughboy compatriots in the running until Lamar Windsor, shifty little Phenix forward, teamed up with Haines to pull out in front of the Doughs 43-38 as the third canno closed. Phenix City began to employ a shifting fast break in the final half, and took a lead that was never threatened.

Marksmanship Falters

Doughboy marksmen faltered midway in the last period, and the Tigers systematically proceeded to rack up basket after basket, as the Doughs fought vainly to regain their game balance.

Most of the scoring of both teams was divided between teammates. Bob Seibert and Harold Haberman took the tally honors for the local with 12 markers apiece, while Lamar Windsor ran second to the deadly Haines with 13.

Artillery Keglers Upset Troopers

The Post Officers' Bowling league roused its eyes last week when the lively talented Field Artillery, Keglers upset the Airborne battalion team 3-1.

The total number of pins downed by the artillerymen amounted to 2,236 while the troopers fell far short of the mark in taking second honors with 2,103.

High spot for the three-game match was the final end game in score for the first game when the 83rd rolled a total of 873 points. High score for the winners was Lt. Richard W. Call with match average of 55, while Captain Robert Kitz paced the team in close second with 184 for his three games.

Men may be superior, but you never see a smart girl marrying a dumb man because of his shapel.

Local Basketekers Face Tough Week

One of the strongest teams the Doughs will face this season downed a reluctant Doughboy five last Friday night, 43-40, but the locals were hard at work this week under the capable tutelage of Ced Tallis shaping up for the next seven days' campaign that will see the Tallismen pitted against four formidable court aggregations.

Because of football's late finish, Tallis had little time to whip his squad into shape and as a result the Doughs were late getting started against the Howard college quintet last week. Although the collegians captured the tilt, Tallis' sharp shooters were beginning to get more accurate as time went on, and as the game's end neared, Howard found themselves in plenty of trouble.

A completely new team has been selected by the coach this year since the entire squad, with the exception of Bob Seibert, has left the Post. Seibert himself is due for discharge before many more days. It is too early to speak of the possibilities of another sweeping season for the Doughs since the time allotted to practice has been so limited. Against Howard in the second half, the Doughs were completely different court five, and looked like a winning ball club.

Bob Henderson Key Man

Bob Henderson, a scintillating forward from the Airborne battalion, was the key figure in the locals attempt to turn the tide their way in the debut, but, unfortunately, Henderson played less than two quarters. Sherwood Myers, a star from the 501st Parachute battalion, and Harold Corzari also looked good with Henderson. However, Haberman, who played with the Airborne team last year but devoted all his time to football this season, looked promising against the collegians, and may become one of the finest cagers on the team.

Actually in the opener the Doughs were weak, in many compartments and their lack of height put them at a definite disadvantage. Ball handling was for the most part shaky, and with the exception of Herb Bench and Boney Bonair, the floor play was far from what Tallis hopes to have.

But considering that the Doughs had only ten short days to convert themselves into a team, their play against Howard was excellent. Ced Tallis himself remarked that he was pleased and quite surprised that his squad did as well as it did.

Over the week end and during the off days, Tallis has been drilling his courtmen steadily in their ball handling and deceptiveness. Tallis is more concerned about smooth play setting up pins than any other big phase of the game.

Carrying a total of 21 men on the squad, the coach hopes to be able to call on three complete teams at any time, and thus conserve his ace strangers who will be needed in the tougher tilts.

Tomorrow the Columbus Manufacturing company five will be guests at the Post gym. The mill team usually puts a highly skilled quintet on the floor, and should provide plenty of competition for the locals. The Doughs travel to Oglethorpe university Dec. 15, and return home to tangle with the Phenix City Tigers in their second meeting.

After this week's series of duels, it will be easier to see just what can be expected from the team this season. Tallis will probably start Haberman and Bob Henderson at the forwards, Herb Bench at center, with Boney Bonair and Bob Kinard at the guards.

Second Guessing

By RALEIGH GREENE

I had planned to devote this column to discussions of the Louis-Walcott fight, the Notre Dame-Southern Cal game, and a short discourse on the Quantico Marines' smashing victory over the Jacksonville Tars last Saturday.

Unfortunately, but on the other hand, fortunately, I will give almost all the consideration to the last subject mentioned in the foregoing paragraph. My reason for doing this is simply because an unsigned letter was received a few days ago chiding me for my underestimation of the Quantico Marines and my indulgence in praising the Fort Benning Doughboys of 1947-football, please.

"Our grapes" was the exprobration by the anonymous writer in reference to any of the mentions I made of the Quantico Marines. In fact, I wrote with a commendation and mention of the Marine team has been made. But so much for the remains, and now on with a short reply to the diligent penman who seems greatly harassed by the minimizing effects of anything I have written of the Virginia leathernecks.

I only wish you, singular or plural as the case may be, had affixed some sort of a signature to your letter, as I would have been pleased to print it for you. We are not so thick headed to look up any controversial literature. This is not a chide, but rather a suggestion for any further disagreement that you may have with me.

Yes, if you will read The Bayonet today, you will notice that there is an article on the Quantico-Jacksonville game—that the story explains that as a result of the decisive victory over the Tars that Quantico has a right as a claimant to the National Service championship. And I will also bring to your attention that said article was written and submitted to the editor for publication before your disapproving but unsigned letter was received. Now, you will have to take my word for this or call the editor.

You enclosed statistics of the Quantico-Parris Island skirmish that the Marines won 27-13. After looking over the count, I bow to you in that Quantico did completely outplay the South Carolinians.

It seems to me that you are wounded by my opinion that the Doughboys were not a team that could be appraised in ten points, inferior to your Quantico Marines. If this is so, then I shall reiterate that I don't think, and never will think that Quantico is 56 points better than Fort Benning.

If you will take a little time and read through the script for The Bayonet, and especially that written for the Columbus papers in regards to the Quantico eleven you will notice that anything I might have said pointed to the fact that Quantico was among the nation's top service teams, that they were to be one of the toughest foes on the Doughboy schedule, and that if any team was capable of breaking the Doughs' winning streak, it would be the Quantico Marines. You have read some . . . but not all, my dear writer and critic.

As for the schedule. You claim the inferiority of the Benning schedule to that of Quantico. I question you this time. Is it the fault of the A&R office that sectional teams are not on a par with the Fort Benning Doughboys? Are we supposed to scour all about the country and garner the best ten teams we can possibly find? Come now, isn't that asking a little too much?

The Doughs played teams from many states. True, they romped over many of their opponents, and the fact that they did and lost so completely to Quantico may make them look little else, but when you criticize the schedule, I think you're going a little haywire. I've seen the roster of games that Quantico played . . . I am no more impressed than I was before I received your letter.

Your basketball schedule is much tougher—in fact the two can't be compared, since Quantico is signed to play some of the top-notch teams, service and college, in the country. I don't believe you have to worry about the court season this week.

But I realize that your letter was mailed in good faith, not to be caustic, but rather to be instructive. I always appreciate any such outward signs of differences, but I would rather you signed such letters since other sports fans might be interested, too. Letters that are not signed by the writer, cannot be printed—if they are signed they will be printed.

And incidentally, I wish your Marines all sorts of success when they meet the Marine Base team at San Diego, California, for the U. S. Navy championship.

There's plenty of discussion about the Louis-Walcott decision, but it looks as if the Brown Bomber is safe for awhile, anyway. How ever, there is little doubt that the two fighters will meet again, Louis has always managed to come back strong in the second meeting with his opponents during this time—and this again, perhaps Louis is about finished. Remember the Dempsey-Lumley controversy? You might take this for what it's worth—your hurt, was your money almost blindly that a contender must decisively defeat the champion before he can annex the crown. Louis, though, million dollar gate that is bound to be when the two swap again.

Are the Irish Football's Best?

By RALEIGH GREENE

The little acorn has certainly grown into the great big oak tree, but there was no Fall at the University of Notre Dame this year, until record in 17 loss and sometime previous years. Saturday's smashing 38-7 victory over the vaunted Trojans from the West Coast, Southern California please, plants Notre Dame firmly in the national football champions for the second consecutive year. Notre Dame, in spite of the loud wailing of stultic Frank Leahy, staged one of the most impressive routs of the 1947 season, and showed that when it was necessary they could completely out-manuever, out-gain, out-smart, and out-anything else. By scoring 38 points and holding the Trojans to a lone tally, Notre Dame made a record as far as the old-a-a rivalry between the two schools; it was the biggest score ever amassed by either squad in the long series.

104,853 See Game

It was necessary for the Irish to go all out at Los Angeles' Coliseum Saturday, not because they were particularly to impress the 104,853 spectators, but rather because everyone in the nation knew that the Irish were the score of the Notre Dame-Southern Cal game, the Rose Bowl score would be the national championship in choosing the National champ.

If you may think that this is a boost for the South Benders and that we are in the outstanding first string tackles, pulled tops in this corner, but Tech placed another

Notre Dame. It happened, and rightly so; that the Irish placed four men on the All-American aggregation, three on the first team and one on the second.

Perhaps the biggest blow to the agreed-on choices was our pick of Army's Rip Rowan on the varsity eleven. Rowan actually netted more yardage from scrimmages than the great Doc Blanchard of the Academy.

So after much resourcefulness and diligent study of the gridiron warfare, via newspapers, magazines, commentators, headlines, by-lines, and just plain old chattering publicity, we arrived at our daddies of 'em all for the nation's top-riders. And, after all, every paper has its All-American, so why shouldn't we?

Elaborate Banquet Ends Grid Season

Fort Benning and the Post commander, Maj. Gen. J. W. O'Daniel, bade a colorful farewell to Coach Butch Kendrick and his remarkable Doughboy football team when an elaborate banquet was given at the Polo Hunt club last Thursday night in honor of the team.

Nothing was spared in making the huge eat-est one of the biggest shows of appreciation ever given an athletic team on the Post. The Polo Hunt club was decorated handsomely for the occasion, and the menu offered the guests what second to none.

appreciation to the coaches, the team, the general, and all who had helped the club this season.

Bob Seibert, ace fullback, Wilbur Ross, stellar halfback, and Harold Lutz, outstanding Doughboy end and after touchdown artist, also made short speeches.

Following a very inspiring talk given by the general, in which he emphasized his personal appreciation as well as the appreciation of the Post to the team, Capt. Robert "Butch" Kendrick addressed the Post commander as the No. 1 Doughboy and presented him with a white football with the autographs of each gridder and coach.

Among the guests at the banquet were, Col. John C. Blizard, Col. Daniel P. Buckland, Col. Irvine C. Scudder, Col. Charles F. Boyce, Col. La Grande A. Diller, Col. Wiley H. O'Mahundro, Lt. Col. Edgar O. Hobbs, Lt. Col. G. W. Wilson, Maj. George S. Beatty, Maj. Charles E. Dunn, Capt. William Fanning, Capt. Cedric N. Talis and Mr. Harrell.

Butch Kendrick, making his last farewell, addressed the general and his squad, and in a few short sentences paid the greatest tribute any aggregation could ever receive from a man. He remarked that he hoped that when his two sons reached the age of football players, his boys would be of the same caliber as any one of the team's members. Capt. Joe Sheppard, line coach, and probable head coach of next season's eleven, further went on to voice his opinion that the Benning boys were tops. Lt. Halstead and Pete Demetros, the other coaches, gave short speeches to the guests and the team.

REGIMENTAL COURT MEN CAPTURE FIRST LAURELS

BY BOB PHILLIPS

The First battalion basketball team of the 25th Infantry regiment topped 10 out of 12 games played to emerge champions of the 1947 regimental round-robin basketball tourney held recently at the Field House.

In winning the championship, the First battalion five had to come from behind and fight like Trojans to hold off the threatening Second battalion quintet, who held down the top spot during the tournament, for a week, by defeating both the 99th Field Artillery battalion and the First battalion on successive nights.

The Second battalion hoopers took second place with eight wins against four losses. The 99th cagers, whose fast breaking and superior brand of ball labled them as the team to beat during the opening days of the tourney, could do no better than establish an even 50-50 mark by winning six and losing the same number.

The lowly Medical Service company five was never able to hit the win column and wound up as cellar dwellers with a tournament record of no victories and 12 defeats.

The championship cup, which was held by the Fourth battalion, 1946 champions, passed over to the First battalion, while the 1947 second place Second battalion quintet took possession of the runner-up cup held by the First battalion last year.

The newly crowned champions, coached by Lt. William H. Penner, employed a well balanced fast breaking, smooth clicking crew of talented stars in winning the highest honors awarded to the best team in the regiments' hoop-logging game.

The star studded championship team included such outstanding cage personalities as Floyd Skillern, whose shooting accuracy made him high point man of the tournament; John Griffey, an expert at making long set-shots from the most difficult angles; Ed Hansberry, a fast and accurate player; Anthony Hardy, the team's ace pivoter; Redding, whose overhead shot gained the plaudits

Brawny Bulls Best Buffaloes

By BOB PHILLIPS

A repeat performance took place under the arc lights Saturday night at Memorial stadium as the fast-fighting Bulls of the 25th Infantry blanketed the Oldenburg Buffalo eleven 13-0 in the annual Pearl Harbor pigskin classic.

Meeting on the same turf last year the soldier griders shut-out the Buffaloes by a 2-0 score. The victory marked the final contest of a twelve-game schedule for the 1947 season in which the Bulls filed a record of four wins, one tie, and seven losses.

All the scoring in Saturday night's war for gridiron supremacy came in the first and second periods. A mighty fight was tossed into the Bulls' hopes of victory in the early minutes of the first quarter when Budie Langston yarded a punt which was recovered by the enemy on the winners 40-yard mark. This break was short-lived, however, when Bob Murphy, who has broken a habit of stealing loose balls, broke through and pounced on the oval, which was loosed by a 27-yard around on the opposition's 27.

Jard line
Kennedy Fares Way for TD
Standing in mid-field after Adams Jones buffered to Freddie Adams of the Buffaloes to lead the game away out of the mitts. Oedie Kennedy, the Bulls' half-sized pivot star who always turns up at the right time, stepped down the field like a flash, recovering on the one-foot stripe.

Adie Jones, the strong-legged fullback plowed through the center of the line for the score. Ed Williams took the lead for Jones for the point after TD.

The Bulls' lost an array of feet-footed backs who were expected much to the excitement and thrills of the evening's gridiron menu of vicarious thrills. The field running, pass interceptions, and bone-crushing blocking. Bill Beasley, a gaelic boy in his own right, gathered in a dummy pass on the 50-yard line half-way into the second period, and streaked to the end before being cut off by Fast Stepping Phil Tindrell, who ran like a jack rabbit all through the game, shook himself loose for a 10-yard gain to the 25.

On the next play Bill Beasley broke into the open. He darted 25 yards to cross the goal line before an eye could be blinked. The try for extra points was made and the Bulls led 13-0 at the half.

The last two quarters went scoreless, but were highlighted by the Buffalo passing combine of Adams and Grant. Three times the duo, with Adams doing the chunking and Grant or Brinson on the receiving end, completed series of 25, 27, and 21 yards. Each time the great Bullet forward wall rose up to push them back on their heels.

Horace Northcutt added his bit to the hilarious and thrill-packed fourth period also. The goose-stepping Bullet halfback turned in the longest run of the evening. Getting off on his own 25-yard line, he tore out around the left side of the line with knees bobbing up and down and a bouncing rubber ball and the swiftness of a B-29, eluded three would-be tacklers, and finally flew 40 yards to the Buffaloes 35 before being headed by two Columbus defenders, who were only wearers between him and paydirt.

Benning Mites Close Season With Banquet

Last Thursday evening, a Father-Son football banquet, marking the completion of the first Junior Doughboy football season, was staged in the Sand Hill Officers' club.

Prior to being seated at the handsome decorated banquet table, each member of the team was individually introduced to Maj. Gen. John G. Daniel, Infantry 7th P. M. commander.

The festive board was set under a gridiron atmosphere through the medium of footballs and miniature goal posts, which were attractively arranged. Immediately after assembling at the table, Glenn J. Danner, principal of the Post Children's school, who acted as master of ceremonies, introduced the squad and Capt. Peter L. Kelley, team coach, upon their successful season, and further emphasized that it takes more than 11 men to comprise a winning football team. General Daniel, who is an ardent advocate of athletics, narrated his very early football days, the absence of equipment, and advised the potential All-American aspirant to capitalize on the wealth of equipment and coaching now available to them.

Following the general's address, Neil Stillinger presented the team coach, Capt. Kelley, with a fountain pen and pencil set as a gift from the squad in appreciation of his services as their coach. A presentation of a fountain pen was made to Sergeant Markland in absentia. Robert Lindquist and Young Funderburk then led a cheer for Kelley, and the banquet concluded with the Doughboys Mites singing "America the Beautiful."

Final Skirmish In Loop Contab Friday Night

Play in the Airborne battallion's basketball tournament moved into the semi-final stages today, and the last moving troopers from Company G meet the cagers from the winner of the Company E and Company D tilt tonight at the A Stage gym at 7 p. m. in the semi-final feature.

Last Friday night, Company G turned on the heat to eke out a 23-20 decision over the Charlie company basketekers, but lost out Monday evening to Company E's aggregation, 45-38.

Company E's victory over Company G gives them the spotlight in the other tilt in the semi-finals when they clash with Company F in the evening's second attraction. The latter fought its way to the semi-final level by virtue of a 20-22 victory over Headquarters and the other company last Monday night.

The final game will be played tomorrow night at the A Stage gym, and is set to get underway at 7 p. m. Immediately following the championships will be a game James J. Hatch, commanding officer of the Airborne battalion, will make the presentation of awards.

Quantico Tops Navy Gridders

The Quantico Marines proved their power and a right to the National championship by routing the Saturday night in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl, when the hard charging Virginia Leathernecks belted the Jacksonville Tars 35-12 to clinch the Eastern Navy crown.

It was the outstanding play of Joe Barock and Bill Dorsh, former Annapolis stars, that provided most of the highlights of the one-sided affair that saw the Marines jump to an early lead. Jacksonville, the team that deadlocked the Doughs two weeks ago, 14-14, in the final game of the season, Stewart's highly trained and touted Leathernecks, and went completely astray against the superior Quantico team.

The star-studded Devil-Dog eleven compiled the ninth Dough for the unbeaten ranks midway in the season with a 56-0 rout at Quantico. The crushing defeat clinched the Doughs' winning streak at 17 straight.

There is little doubt now that Quantico will be proclaimed the National Service champions of 1947.

One of the earliest recorded uses of stained glass windows occurred when the Bishop of Reims rebuilt the cathedral there in the tenth century.

Bob Ward Reaps Gridiron Laurels

The play of one lineman on the Doughboy football team—Bob Ward—was so outstanding above everyone else that he has been elected by his team coaches as the team's captain for 1947, and has been further honored in that the fighting line stalwart has polled the most number of votes as the Player-of-the-Year.

For the first time in many years, a lineman has been awarded the distinction of being the first Doughboy on the team—the No. 1 performer. In choosing the year's grid hero, the perspective merits every position were taken into consideration.

The fact that Bob Ward has won this special honor will not come as a surprise to many Post football fans who have seen the dynamic guard paralyze opposition line backs in his superb performance in the great Doughboy line has not gone unobserved. Bob's superb snap-play of the soldier backfield, who was adept in every duty of a backfield man, ran a close second to Ward and was named the team's honorary captain. Seibert was named Player-of-the-Week twice during the regular season.

Although Ward will never play another football game for the Doughboys, his attachment to his teammates and coaches will be remembered. Quiet by nature, Ward never sought to make a few statements about the men he played beside and about the mentors who coached him in speaking of the team he said: "The best bunch of men I have ever had the pleasure of playing with—there were no egos in the squad, and that's the reason we had such a successful season." But his praise for the coaches was no less admirable, for in speaking of Butch Kendrick, the head man in the coaching department, Ward commented, "Best fellow I ever met."

Because Ward was a lineman, his association with Joe Sheppard, Benning line coach, was close, and in summing up Sheppard's work with the forward wall, Ward lauded the line mentor with, "One of the finest line coaches there is today."

Football is not new to the distinguished stalwart. In his high school days at Thomas Jefferson in Elizabeth, New Jersey, Ward won All-State honors for two of his three years in the game. Following his graduation in June, 1946, many schools were anxious to annex his talents, and he received fine offers from such notable schools as Notre Dame, Penn. Duke, and Florida.

But there was more to Ward's athletic accomplishments. The basketball court Ward won mention on the All-State team, and played with Jefferson for two years. On the track field, he copped the Union County chamampionship in javelin, and holds his school record with a hefty toss of 179' 0".

Entering the Army in August 1946, Ward took mechanized cavalry basic at Fort Knox, Ky., and later came to Fort Benning for airborne training. A student in Company K, he graduated with his wings in December of last year, and commenced his climb to the top as an athletic figure on the Post.

Many remember Ward as the line guard at Russ pool during the summer months, and many others recall the fine showing he made during the Airborne basketball team last year. The Airborne cagers went on to win the Post championship as they did this season.

During the football season, Ward shone in every game with his hard tackling and great offensive and defensive blocking, and was a lad that many opposing runners dared not tread on.

Ward wore his red jersey, showing the big 33, and his blue one, flashing the massive 68, people began to notice his number more in the Doughs' opposing team's backfield than in the line.

The day the Doughboys deadlocked the Jacksonville Navy team 14-14, Ward bid farewell to Army football. After much consideration, he has chosen the Crimson Tide of Alabama as his college home, and will enter the university in March.

Local Trooper Seeking Berth On Olympic Team

By WALTER MURPHY

Most any afternoon now about 2 o'clock a long body driven by two powerful legs makes its way, sometimes slowly, sometimes quickly, around the cinder path that hems in the football field at Doughty stadium.

The body and the legs belong to Sgt. Jack Luse of the Airborne Battalion, Student Training Regiment. They form a combination of drive and rhythm that are due to make a bid for fame in sprint events at the 1948 Olympics in London.

Given expert coaching and punishing boot with tough Luse, Luse's chances in England next summer will be tops.

Enter Army

His track career is tangled with training and a break in a long and war, wounds, and accidents. At the age of 17 he turned in a 9.8 official time for the 100 at Holmes Junior college in Goodman, Miss., but this was 1942, and Luse promptly traded his spikes for parachute boots. He was assigned to the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment, jumped in Normandy and Holland, and saw further action in Bastogne, Alsace-Lorraine, Central and Southern Germany. In Holland he was hit in the leg by shrapnel. At Bastogne he froze his feet and received a German sniper's bullet through the face. His "lettuce" includes two Purple Hearts, two Bronze Stars, and the French and Belgian Fourrageres.

When peace came to Europe it took Luse a period of 24 hours to dig out a pair of old spikes and shorts and find a pasture in which to limber up. The finals of the Army Olympics, held at Nuremberg, Germany, in early August, 1945, saw Luse and the Third Army track team stent the show. Luse clipped off 9.4 for the 100 to nose out clearly Edwards, former University of Indiana star, shaded the field by three yards to take the 220 in 21.8, and brought the 220 and 400 relay teams in to decisive victories.

Muscles Tighten

Luse went from Nuremberg to shipside and separation. Family responsibilities put him to work in a foundry, where his tightened muscles refused to propel him along the cinder path for the 1946 season.

He rejoined the Army in October, 1946.

In 1947 further misfortunes delayed Luse's "comeback." His training program stopped abruptly on March 12 when, on a routine jump, both his parachutes malfunctioned. Result: a multiple fracture of his left arm. A little girl who caught herself in his traction wires in the hospital, and a careless boy on a bicycle accounted for two bad re-breaks. Luse, himself, in a premature attempt to strengthen the arm, loosened a metal reinforcement plate. That ended last fall. Luse is running again, training hard and full of hope. The old stop-clock gave him a 9.8 a month ago, then a couple of 9.7s, and this week a 9.6.

He looks great. Except for a long scar he carries on his left arm, feet that turn a little purple in cold weather, and an involuntary off his helmet in the Bulge) you'd take him to be fresh out of junior college and just a bit younger than his 23 years.

"What does he want? First he'd like to spend Christmas with his three-year old daughter. That he's sure of doing. Second, he'd appreciate it if old man hard luck kept his distance until after the Olympics. That's asking quite a favor. Last, he hurts for a top notch coach. That will take the $4 dollars, a twitch which blinks his eyes every few seconds (caused by a German artillery shell that bounced

Former Aviation Cadets Resume Flight Training

War-time-qualified Aviation Cadets, whose hopes for pilot's wings were ended by the 1944-45 curriculum, may be eligible soon to resume flying instructions from the Air Force. The Lawson Field Cadet Examining board learned this week.

The tripling of the pilot training program in 1948 from the present 1,000 to 3,000 cadets a year makes it possible for the Air Force to offer flight instruction to many cadets who had qualified, but were not commissioned during the war. Men in this special category may be reinstated in Aviation Cadet classes if they can pass the Air Force physical examination and have these additional qualifications:

- 1. American citizens, between 20 and 28½ years of age, unmarried, and have had at least two years of college study, or can pass a test measuring the equivalent. These applicants will not be required to take the USAF's qualifying examinations now given to new candidates for cadet training.

Men previously qualified for Aviation Cadet training should write directly to U. S. Air Force headquarters, Washington 25, D. C., Attention: Aviation Cadet Section, or contact the Lawson Field Cadet Examining board at telephone 9312.

While in training, aviation cadets receive monthly pay of 75 dollars plus a ration allowance of one dollar a day. Cadets' uniforms and equipment are supplied by the Air Force, and a 10,000 dollar life insurance policy is underwritten at government expense for all cadets in training.

When commissioned as second lieutenants, USAF Reserve, they will receive monthly pay and allowances ranging from 336 dollars for single officers to 372 dollars for married officers. They must agree to remain in service for the duration of the emergency plus six months or for three years, unless sooner relieved, and can compete for Regular Air Force commissions. A bonus of 500 dollars a year is paid to reserve officers on active duty in the USAF in lieu of the retirement compensation earned by Regular Air Force personnel.

Negro Vet Studies Radio

S-Sgt. Crawford P. Ashley, assigned to the Student Training Regiment's 10th Company while attending Radio Repair course No. 1 here, is a former member of the 48th Signal battalion, one of seven Negro signal battalions in the Army during the war.

Sgt. Ashley crossed the English channel on D-Day with the 48th, landing in Normandy in the third wave. The 48th made the invasion with the First Army and maintained backhead communications for three days.

The 48th continued to move forward providing communications until a halt was called at the beginning of the St. Lo breakthrough to regroup supplies and carry out maintenance.

The battalion then joined the Third Army and went on through Rhineland and Germany, earning the unit citation for its work. Sgt. Ashley remained with the unit all during this period and was on occupation duty at Nuremberg and at the end of the course.

Sgt. Sanchez Named Intelligence Non-Com

T-Sgt. Fided H. Sanchez has recently been assigned to Headquarters, School Troops, as Intelligence NCO of the S-2 section, it was learned today.

Sergeant Sanchez was a platoon sergeant with a heavy machine gun unit of the 94th division in the campaigns of Adennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe. He joined the School Troops organization from occupational duty with the Fourth Cavalry Reconnaissance group.

TWO PROMOTED

Cpl. Thomas E. Mize, Detachment headquarters, 1st Infantry School detachment, has been promoted to the grade of sergeant. It has been announced. Also promoted to sergeant was T/4 Kenneth J. Nowels, Company B, 152d

Furst. He was awarded the Bronze Star for "meritorious performance of duty."

Sgt. Ashley is a member of the 25th Infantry regiment's First Battalion and will return to his organization as communication chief at the end of the course.

Post Weapons Seen In Show

Lt. Harry A. Buzzett, Sgt. Robert C. Cleveland, and Cpl. John H. Dohrn, all members of the 83rd Field Artillery battalion, have returned to the post following a week's temporary duty at Tyndall field, Fla., where they participated in a static display of artillery equipment.

On exhibition from Fort Benning were a 105 mm howitzer 57 mm recoilless weapons from the Infantry Center's weapons section. The show was in connection with Operation Seminole which was conducted on Florida's Gulf beaches near Tyndall field.

Included in the display at the base were German V-2 bombs, types of modern equipment. Approximately 15,000 civilians attended the showing and witnessed the beachhead landings of Combat Armored division, which came over from Texas by LST and other type of landing craft during the operation.

The Second Armored landing was supported from the air by planes of the U. S. Air Force, Navy Air Force, and Navy aircraft from an aircraft carrier anchored offshore in the Gulf of Mexico.

Get Bronze Stars

The Bronze Star medal has been awarded to two men of the 37th Infantry regiment recently, it was learned today. T-5 Merle T. GETS CITATION—Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, left, president of Army Ground Forces board No. 3, is shown here, pinning the Army Commendation ribbon on Capt. James F. Greene Jr., member of the board. The ribbon was awarded to Captain Greene during an informal ceremony Dec. 8 in recognition for his work as a member of Task Force Williwaw from July 1945 to June 1947.

Receive Medals

Three former combat veterans, now assigned to the 37th Infantry regiment's Company B, have received Bronze Star medals, it was announced today. Receiving the medals were Lt. Zeb V. Delancey, executive officer of Company B; Pfc. Arthur W. Bittner, and Pvt. James B. Rosser, Jr.

Lt. Delancey was awarded the Bronze Star medal for "exemplary conduct during combat in the European Theater on or about March 21, 1945, while serving with the 844th Infantry regiment, 87th Infantry division." He participated in the Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Germany campaigns. Lt. Delancey also holds the Purple Heart.

Pfc. Bittner served overseas in Europe and received the Bronze Star medal for service with 22nd Infantry regiment's Company B, Fourth Infantry division. Pfc. Bittner participated in the invasion of Normandy, and campaigns in Northern France and the Rhineland.

The Bronze Star medal was awarded to Pfc. Rosser for "exemplary conduct" April 3, 1945, while serving in the European theater of operations with Company C, 23rd Infantry regiment, Second Infantry division." Pvt. Rosser took part in the Rhineland campaign.

Capt. Joseph W. Lewandoski, former military personnel officer at Lawson field, has been named Base S-1, succeeding Maj. John J. Moore, who was ordered to the Personnel division, USAF Headquarters, Washington, D. C., last week, officials announced today.

A Pennsylvanian, Capt. Lewandoski entered service in 1941 and received his commission at Ft. Benning in 1942. He participated in the Ranger Training program at Camp Forrest, Tenn., and left for overseas in December, 1943. As a member of the Third Central Postal Directory, he participated in the African campaign and the Anzio beach landing. After being hospitalized twice with shrapnel wounds, he returned to the states in November, 1945.

The captain, a graduate of the Air Forces Personnel Management instructor's school at Keesler field, Miss., reported to Lawson field in December, 1946. His decorations include the Purple Heart, Combat Infantry badge, Bronze star and the ETO ribbon.

Radio Repair Class Establishes Hobby Shop In Unit Area

The members of Enlisted Radio Repair class No. 1, 10th company, Student Training regiment, have organized another interesting out-let for their enthusiasm in radio work by establishing a radio hobby shop in the company area.

The shop was set up by Pfc. Royce A. Currie and Pfc. George A. Park, and a great amount of interest has been displayed by members of the class in this hobby and considerable progress has been made in designing, constructing and testing various items of equipment.

One item of particular importance, an audio oscillator, was constructed from junk and salvage parts at a total cost of 26 cents. This instrument is used to increase code speed and proficiency in sending and receiving messages, and has proved particularly helpful to many users with their home built sets. Many interesting messages and programs are received from both foreign and domestic stations, and shortwave reception has been particularly successful on 80, 75, 40, 20, and 10 meters, officials said.

The final objective of the majority of the men taking part in the radio hobby shop is to receive an operator's license.

Campbell Is Assigned To Artillery Battalion

Cpl. Arthur L. Campbell, veteran of the 287th Observation battalion in the Pacific, has been assigned to the 83rd Field Artillery headquarters battery for duty with the survey section, it has been announced.

While overseas, Corporal Campbell participated in the battles of Okinawa and Leyte. He wears four battle stars and a bronze arrowhead on his Pacific theater ribbon, Purple Heart, and two battle stars on the Philippine Liberation ribbon.

City To Retain 2 USO Clubs; Plan Dedication

Despite the official end of USO—United Service Organizations—benefits formerly provided in Fort Benning will still have the today by organizational representatives.

With the end of centralized control of the six member agencies, original status—the 11th Street and Fifth Avenue clubs becoming Army-Navy YMCAs. This has been made possible by the aid of surplus funds allocated to member agencies in communities where the need for service to military personnel still exists, officials said.

The 11th Street USO was established in early 1940 at the request of Fort Benning officials through the cooperation of local civic leaders. One floor was rented in that year and a second in early 1941. Before the end of the year, the building was purchased and improvements begun.

Make Improvements

A $55,000 deferred maintenance project of overhauling and redecoration has just been completed, including the addition of a new front to the building and the remodeling of the 150-man dormitory. The "Y" now includes four floors and a recreational cellar.

During the week end, 15,000 men were welcomed by the 11th Street USO every week end. The

Instructor Gets Dutch Decoration

Lt. Col. Charles H. Chase, instructor in air transportability at the Infantry School, was awarded the Military Williams Order in the Degree of Knight Fourth Class last Thursday by Col. R. Roos, Netherlands attaché, in behalf of the Netherlands government.

Flying from Washington, D. C., for the presentation, Col. Roos awarded the decoration at a ceremony in the commanding general's office.

Col. Chase was presented the award for the successful defense of the town of Uden, Holland, from German attack on Sept. 25, 1944. Col. Chase was commander of the garrison at Uden at the time.

Hailing from Portland, Maine, the colonel is a graduate of West Point, class of 1933. After serving at various installations in the U. S., he saw service in the Philippines from 1930-1941.

During World War II he was with the 806th Parachute Infantry regiment of the famous 101st Airborne division in the European theater, participating in the Normandy, Holland, Ardennes, and Central European campaigns.

Among other decorations Col. Chase has received are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with oak leaf cluster, and several other foreign awards.

Valuable Gifts Await 1st Baby Born In 1948

Approximately 100 dollars in merchandise goes to the first baby born at Fort Benning in 1948 in the fifth annual Baby Derby sponsored by Columbus merchants in cooperation with The Bayonet.

Inaugurated in 1944, two girls and two boys have walked off with the prizes as the first child born at the Regional hospital here. A host of prizes awaits this year's winner.

Paul Oliver Neely, son of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Vincent T. Neely, was crowned Mr. 1947. Weighing seven pounds and six-and-one-half ounces at birth, last year's winner was born at exactly 30 seconds past midnight, which is the record of the derby so far.

The first winner of the annual derby was a daughter, Sabra Ann, born to Sgt. and Mrs. Archie Milano. In 1945, it was a girl again who walked off with the honors. Miss 1945 was Patricia Mary Holtreiter, daughter of Cpl. and Mrs. Joseph O. Holtreiter.

The first boy to be crowned was the son of M-Sgt. and Mrs. Joseph V. Jaeger in the 1946 race. Vincent Joseph Jaeger, the winner, did not arrive until 11:50 a. m. January 2, 1946, in the most prolonged birth since the derby was inaugurated. The six-pound, nine-ounce boy arrived a scant 32 minutes ahead of the next arrival.

Hospital attaches here report at 109 expectant mothers registered at the maternity ward, with several new arrivals expected to put in an appearance late this month and around the first of the year.

70 Graduate Saturday

Despite delays by bad weather in the past two weeks, Company D of the Airborne battalion expects to complete its jump training this week for graduation Saturday. Approximately five officers and 160 enlisted men are slated to receive their wings at the end of the week.

Yule Holidays To Begin Here Next Saturday

The long annual Christmas holiday begins in earnest at noon Saturday December 20 as thousands of Fort Benning Military personnel will be streaming off the reservation for the 15-and-one-half-day respite from work.

Duties and details will be forgotten until January 5 when the work day resumes. All except the necessary administration, guard, police, and fatigue duties will be suspended.

Personnel who remain on the post will work very little, performing only those tasks necessary for the administration of the post.

Operating on a reduced scale, military offices will function from 9 to 12 a. m. daily except Sunday, Christmas, and New Year's.

As troops partake of a meal fit for a king on Christmas Day, with turkey and all the trimmings, the spirit of Christmas will prevail through the post, with mess halls, service clubs, Officers club and NCO clubs and other buildings, decked out in traditional holiday decorations.

Special Entertainment

Special entertainment is in the offing for those who remain on the post during the holidays, with Yuletide programs scheduled for service clubs, NCO clubs, and Officers clubs. The Officers club will feature buffets, dinners, and special parties, while the NCO clubs will celebrate the Yuletide with parties and dances.

Christmas Day will be open house at Service club No. 1, with exchanges of gifts, special music, Christmas carols, and Santa himself, headlining the program. The holiday atmosphere will prevail in Service club No. 1, beginning Friday when the weekly formal dance is presented.

While sports will come to a standstill for the most part, the Airborne battalion has thrown its doors open to members of other units to take advantage of the program offered by the Airborne Welfare and Recreational office during the holiday. The facilities at the Airborne gymnasium will be open to all Fort Benning troops.

O'Daniel Scheduled For RA Promotion

Major Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center command, has been recommended by the Department of the Army for promotion to the permanent grade of major general. It was learned here today.

At the same time it was also disclosed that Brig. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, president of the Army Forces board No. 3, and Brig. Gen. Whitfield F. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, had been recommended for the grade of permanent brigadier general.

most describes the plans of the chaplains at Fort Benning for the military personnel. Chaplain Wallace M. Hale, Infantry Center chaplain, describes Christmas plans as ranging all the way from decorations to religious services. Chapel services here at the Infantry Center chapel will emphasize the spiritual qualities of the holiday season on Sunday and Christmas Day.

Many of the Christmas festivities as outlined by Chaplain Hale will center around the Infantry Center chapel. Special services on the Sunday preceding Christmas, featuring the Infantry Center chapel choir, will open the holiday season. On Sunday morning the choir will feature a group of carols and on Sunday evening

Rain Hampers Bradley's Visit

Inclement weather and continuous downpours threw a wet blanket over the week-long visit of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, but the newly appointed Army Chief of Staff nevertheless got a good start in his re-indoctrination into Army life during his tour of the Infantry Center last week.

Conducting a nation-wide tour and survey of the Army department's facilities, the new Chief of Staff arrived here Sunday, December 7, for a one-week tour of the post, during which time he observed Infantry training methods and techniques. He departed Friday morning, December 12, to continue his tour.

The wet weather threw a damper into Gen. Bradley's first prepared public appearance as he was scheduled to review Fort Benning troops Monday, December 8. A gigantic parade and review was re-scheduled for the following Wednesday, but again it was postponed and was finally cancelled.

At present attached to the Office of the Chief of Staff, Gen. Bradley will take over his new duties as Army Chief of Staff, duties following the resignation of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who is expected to give up the post sometime early next year, to accept the position as president of Columbia university.

Christmas Menu

Another one of those famous Army holiday dinners is in store for military personnel of Fort Benning as Uncle Sam spares no efforts in appeasing the appetites of the troops on Christmas Day.

 Army and civilian officials. City and county officials consider the project of sufficient importance to request its continuance after the end of USO, according to Gordon H. Kitchens, executive secretary, one of the three full-time professional staff workers.

Many facilities of the YMCA branch include Arthur J. McClung, program director, and Corinne Fraser-Noel.

Under the program of the Fifth Avenue Army-Navy YMCA, colored soldiers may take advantage of handicraft shops, libraries, dances, games, dormitory space for 120 men, and recreational and personal comfort facilities of all kinds. A total of 30,000 Army personnel pass through its portals every month.

Members of the committee of management of the club, composed of outstanding members of both races, include Chairman Maywald, T. C. Reeves, vice-chairman T. H. Brewer, secretary B. F. Young, and Wilbur Glenn, treasurer. Also on the committee are Willard Register, Rev. Mack Anthony, Rev. H. I. Bearden, K. O'Daniel, P. L. Taylor, John I. Sconiers, Rev. T. W. Smith, C. W. Darshel, T. C. Reeves, Rev. S. Douglas, Floyd Francis, Roy S. Eubanks, D. L. Metcalf Sr., and Gordon H. Kitchens.

Engineers Urge Electricity Curbs

Extravagant use of electricity on the post, which has been evident the past month, may become so serious as to result in the loss of jobs for some civilians, it was revealed today by post engineer officials.

Attributed to carelessness and negligence, electricity is not being as economically used as it should be in offices, buildings, and family quarters on the post, it has been noted.

Given an over-all allotment for the operation of the post, post engineers strive to keep within the limited availability of funds, but the excessive use of electricity is straining the fund to the extent of increasing the power bills, which entails the purchase of certain items necessary for the maintenance of the post, officials said.

The curtailing of purchase of these items that are used in required maintenance and repair throws men working in those departments out of jobs.

It has been pointed out, officials said, that lights in family quarters are being used exclusively and unnecessarily. With the cooperation and assistance of all military and civilian personnel on the post, the extravagant use of electricity can be curbed, they said. Failure to do so may result in the loss of jobs for civilians, post engineers warned.

RECEIVES FOREIGN DECORATION—Col. E. Roos, left, military attache from The Netherlands embassy in Washington, D. C., presents Lt. Col. Charles H. Chase, instructor in the General section of the Infantry School, with the Military Williams Order in the Degree of Knight Fourth Class, Col. Chase was awarded the decoration for the successful defense of the town of Ugen in Holland where he was garrison commander during World War II. Standing in the background, from left to right, are Col. Fay Ross, General Subjects section chief, Col. Charles E. Beauchamp, head of the Training Literature and Visual Aids section, and Col. Burton L. Lucas, Weapons section head.

 the Candlelight Communion Service will be held, featuring the Youth and Junior choirs.

In keeping with the spirit of Noel, all choirs, plus members of the Teen-Age club, will sing carols Christmas eve at the home of the commanding general, post exchange, Station hospital, Officers club, Service club, and the Main theater.

Santa to Visit

The more festive side of the Yuletide season will be emphasized by the chaplains in the organizations they sponsor. Santa will pay his usual visit to the youngsters on the post as they gather for various Children's parties. The kiddies in the Main Post will gather at the Children's Christmas party to be held December 19 at 3:15 p. m. at theater No. 1, while Chaplain Leonard A. Ellis heads a children's party at Chapel No. 3 on Christmas eve. Chaplain Gerald L. Hayden, of the 25th Infantry regiment, has a full program outlined for the youngsters in his area.

The Teen-Agers at Brat Barracks will celebrate Christmas with a formal dance, receiving line, floor show, and refreshments. Plans are being made to keep Brat Barracks open throughout the holiday season.

Chaplain Robert P. Canis, Station hospital chaplain, is planning a life-size manger scene in the hospital area. A choir of officers, nurses, and enlisted men from the hospital will furnish the music for a special candlelight musical service Christmas Day for hospital personnel and patients.

Christmas In America

As we approach the Christmas season, all of us, regardless of our religious beliefs, begin to feel what has often been termed "the Christmas spirit." Somehow and for some reason, we seem to throw off our early morning dispositions, and everyone, even those whom we dislike heartily, becomes a friend.

Christmas in America is made up of customs from many countries. We have borrowed most of them to make our Christmas perhaps the most colorful observed in any Christian nation.

In England Christmas calls for family reunions, gifts, carols, parties and children's pantomimes. During the period of austerity through which England is passing at present, a great number of these customs have necessarily been abandoned, but some are still retained through family gatherings, carols, and Christmas cards which depict the former way of celebrating. We still practice these customs here in the United States, and God willing and man helping, we will continue to do so for many years to come.

Scandinavian countries celebrate the Nativity of Christ with huge feasts and warm hospitality. Their celebration begins with the traditional Christmas Eve supper, followed by family worship around a Christmas tree and singing. Later gifts are exchanged. Of course, everyone attends early church services before the big Christmas dinner. Although the results of the last war will see a decline in the massive celebrations in some of these countries, we in America will not lose any of the splendor which we have adopted from them. We don't have a big meal on Christmas Eve, but most of us exchange gifts that night, attend church services, and sing carols. Here again we may see how we have adopted other customs to aid us in the celebration of the birth of Christ.

Germany observes Christmas much as we do with home festivals and attendance at church. This year the German people will probably have very meager festivals because of the lack of food, but here in America our tables will be filled to overflowing with a bountiful harvest.

In The Netherlands and Belgium there are two great holidays for the children. Children's Day comes on December 6 when they leave their wooden shoes outside the door for Saint Nick to fill with toys and sweets, while December 25 is set aside as a strictly religious holiday. We don't observe December 6, but Saint Nick does visit our children for the same purpose on Christmas Eve.

France's Christmas celebrations are much like our own as well in that they are centered mostly in the Catholic churches, great feasts on Christmas Day, and family reunions. France, like Germany, will not have many big feasts this year, but perhaps with our help their tables will be a little fuller this year than they have been for a long time.

And so it goes in all countries, including Mexico, Brazil, and other nations south of the border. We in the United States are more fortunate than most nations because we can still celebrate Christmas the way the others would like to. Still, no matter where you are in a Christian country, Christmas is always the season for good cheer.

Gal: "What a wonderful development you have, do you play baseball?"
"Yes, and may I ask, were you ever on a track team?"

Speaking about a girl who has been "planted" here by the Red Cross, he said: "She's been turned down so many times she ought to feel like a best-spread."

It's funny how a woman can spot a blonde hair on a man's shoulder at 15 feet, and yet she can't see a telephone pole until she wraps the family car around it.

The average man's arm is 26 inches long. The average woman's waist is 27 inches around. Ain't that wonderful?

"Now that he's back—his'ree's justing me so that I haven't even got time to make my girl friends jealous."

Cowboy Jack and Mollie, riding in the old wagon, were stranded with a broken down horse. Seizing the opportunity, Jack began:

"Mollie, my kisses are exhilarating, invigorating, thrilling."
"When git out and kiss that horse so's we can git home," said she.

Your Red Cross

BY MURRAY E. HILL

Last week we were glad to present some impressive figures covering the services rendered by your Red Cross on a national and international scale. This week we desire to offer to you what we think is an impressive report concerning services rendered by your Red Cross at Fort Benning during the past eleven months.

For instance, in spite of the low number of military personnel stationed here, 48,901 individuals presented their problems to the Red Cross.

Of this number, 6,336 were men being separated from the service, who were aided in their problems of filing claims.

Ninety-two dependents living on the post were rendered financial assistance, and 478 dependents living in other communities were given assistance at the request of the local field office.

A total of 1,601 other requests were made to chapters for various kinds of services for the soldier or his family.

We received 4,678 requests from chapters who were representing families concerning servicemen here. We cleared 1,683 emergency furloughs, and made approximately 500 loans totaling around $12,000.

To handle this vast number of cases it took a total of 37,140 committee hours. Of these, 7,128 were wires and 29,211 were letters.

The above figures only cover services rendered to unattached soldiers and their families stationed here.

We are indeed proud of the services rendered by the Red Cross girls at the hospital and call your attention to the following figures:

During the past eleven months 1,561 individual patients were served at the local hospital. Forty-eight social histories were secured and written up for medical officers that they might be able to diagnose the case better.

Assistance was given to 128 families of patients in the hospital. All a total of 276 dependent soldiers and their families stationed here.

Sixty-four patients, too ill to participate in Red Cross activities, were given individual recreation.

One hundred and twenty-seven word parties were held and 175 parties were held in the recreation hall. In addition to this, 102 parties were arranged by other agencies in Columbus. An average of 20 young girls were brought to attend these parties.

Three hundred eighty-one first run pictures were shown on the wards to bed patients. Seventy-two pictures were shown in the recreational hall. These in the recreational hall are the full size commercial pictures, and those shown on the wards are first run feature pictures.

Your Red Cross has had a very busy year.

Certain crabs have their shells covered by a forest of growing seaweed and sponges, which are aptly "planted" here by the Red Cross, and which afford a very effective camouflage, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

In Egypt the bull was so sacred that its birthday was celebrated and after its death it was mummified and buried in a tomb.

Maypoles, which were offensive to the Puritans in England, were declared by the parliament in 1644.

The word shanty or chanty, meaning a song of labor, is thought to come from the French word "chanter," which means "to sing."

GI Humor

"Yup," said the guide to the honeymooners, "they's ben many a young couple go up that mountain and never come back again."
"Gee, what happened to them?"
"Oh, dunno—went down the other side, I guess."

"The garden hose, the cabbage, and the toilet paper," said the man.
"Yeah, I'll bet the hose came out in the long run."
"Nah, the cabbage came out at ketchup, and the hose was still running."

A sailor with about five hash-marks was sitting in a restaurant with his wife. He was busily devouring a large dinner while his wife sat by looking out the window. A curious waitress inquired if the wife was hungry, and she replied: "Yes, I am, but I have to wait until Henry finishes with the teeth."

"Is Dr. Scadds a man of scientific distinction?" asked Miss Smith.
"Yes, indeed," answer Miss Brown. "He has so many college degrees that he sends in his card you can't be sure whether it is his name or a problem in algebra."

For a long time the dentist had been trying to collect a set of false teeth which he had put a good deal of effort for an excellent set of false teeth.

"Did he pay you?" finally demanded his wife after many attempts at collection.
"Pay me?" exclaimed the infuriated dentist. "Not only did he refuse me, but he threw the eufroetry to gnash at me—with my teeth!"

"So," sobbed Ilma Kropokin Vashinovichsky, "Ivan Ninespot died in battle. Did he really whisper my name as he passed on?"
"He did his best, lady," was the reply, "he did his best."

This story comes from an army camp. The private had been waiting patiently at the post hospital for the doctor's report, which finally arrived.

"Look," gasped the soldier. "Whatever's wrong with me, gimme it straight. No long scientific names."
"All right, private," said the doctor. "You're a lazy slob."
"Thank you sir. Now could I have the scientific name I've got to report it to my sergeant?"

"Howkins!" it understand that the physicians held a consultation over the case, but I see you are still alive."
Robbins: "Yes, I have since learned that the vote stood two for me and one against."

Doctor (to Pat's wife after examining Pat who had been run down by an auto): "Madam, I fear your husband is dead."
Pat (leebly): "No, I ain't dead yet."
Pat's Wife: "Hush, Pat, the doctor knows better than you."

THE GREAT GIFT

By Chaplain L. A. Ellis

As the best loved season of the year comes around once again, in every heart, in every home, and in practically every land, public and secret purchases and preparations are being made. From windows and doors of homes can be seen hanging appropriate Christmas reminders. People can be seen hurrying to and fro in city, town, and country, getting ready for Christmas. In schools and churches children learn "pieces," rehearsing songs, and preparing appropriate Christmas plays. Even the smallest "tot" in home and school is croaking Christmas Carol and singing wonderful and unrecognizable tributes out of paper and paste, or with needle and thread; for everyone must have Christmas gifts to put on or under "the tree!"

Yet, somehow, along the way, we sometimes forget really to listen to and think of the words of the Carol as we hear and sing!

"How silently, how silently, The wondrous gift is giv'n! So God imparts to human hearts

The blessings of his heav'n!" We must not forget that the real reason for Christmas is not just putting gifts under "a tree."

We must not forget the most important gift of all—God's gift of His Son to us.

This year, as Christmas approaches, let us stop a bit to think and remember that with God's unspeakable gift. He gave us spiritual riches far greater than all the gold and silver the kings of the East could bring. And may we say with St. Paul in II Corinthians 9:15, "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift."

In Siam the white elephant is believed to contain the soul of a dead person. In the city of Siam, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica. The animal is baptized and fed and, at death, mourned like a human being.

To start research on the atomic bomb a fund of $6,000 was made available in February, 1940, and according to the Encyclopedia Britannica. This was the beginning of the $2,000,000,000 expenditure necessary to complete the bomb.

The word "pencil" originally meant a small, fine-pointed brush used in painting. The finer camel's-hair and sable brushes used by artists are still called "pencils," and the word is derived from a Latin term meaning "little nail."

A burial custom of the Igeoret tribe of Luzon is to place the dead in a sitting position until the body is stiff, and then put it in a cave grave.

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the ninth in a new series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between Dec. 12 and This Day, Dec. 18.

DECEMBER 12, 1745 . . . On This Day, 202 years ago, John Jay, chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, was born in New York City. It was 46 years ago, in 1901, that the first radio signal was sent across the Atlantic. In an old barracks near St. John's, Newfoundland, Marconi heard the clicking, tapped by an operator 2,000 miles away at Poldhu, Cornwall.

December 13, 1777 . . . On This Day, 170 years ago, the Inspector General's Office was established in the U. S. Army.

In 1862, 85 years ago, the Union Army was defeated in the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., by the Confederates under General Robert E. Lee. A total of 16,000 men on both sides were lost in this battle alone, and not an inch of ground was gained.

DECEMBER 14, 1799 . . . It was 148 years ago that George Washington died at his home in Mount Vernon, in Virginia. . . . On This Day, 126 years ago, Alabama was admitted as the 22nd state in the Union. . . . And in 1936, just 11 years ago, an airplane seven miles distant was detected by the first time by pulse echo radar.

December 15, 1791 . . . Just 156 years ago this date, the first ten amendments were added to the Constitution of the United States when Virginia ratified them. . . . On This Day in 1890, John G. Sittling Bull, the last of the great Indian chiefs, was killed by Indian police as his tribesmen attempted to rescue him from arrest.

DECEMBER 16, 1773 . . . On This Day, 174 years ago, a group of about 60 men in Boston threw $90,000 worth of tea in the ocean, and thus was born the "Boston Tea Party". . . . And 82 years ago, in 1865, the U. S. warned Napoleon III of France that the presence of French troops in Mexico would no longer be tolerated. They were withdrawn.

December 17, 1807 . . . On This Day, 140 years ago, the American poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, was born in Haverhill, Mass. . . . Exactly 41 years ago in 1902, Orville Wright made the first flight in an airplane at the Kill Devil Sand hills near Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. He flew for 120 feet and remained in the air for 12 seconds.

DECEMBER 18, 1861 . . . It was exactly 82 years ago that the 13th Amendment was added to the Constitution of the United States. This Amendment abolished slavery in the U. S. . . . On This Day, six years ago, President Franklin D. Roosevelt wrote and placed in the White House Archives a letter to ask the man who would be president in 1958 to honor the heroism of Capt. Colin P. Kelly Jr. of the AAF by granting an appointment to West Point. It is that year to Colin P. Kelly Jr. that the United States owes a payment of the heroism in 1911 of Capt. Colin Kelly who became No. 1 hero against the Japanese

I LOVE TROUBLE (detective story) with Franchot Tone, Janis Carter, and Adele Jergens. Franchot Tone, a private detective, gets into plenty of trouble when he is hired to probe the unknown past of his client's wife. Recommended for adult.

THE FUGITIVE (drama) with Henry Fonda, Dolores Del Rio, and Pedro Armendariz. The militia had killed all the priests in the country but one because the new order had no place for them. This is the story of the remaining one and the man-hunt conducted to track him down. Recommended for adult.

THE SWORDSMAN (action drama) with Larry Parks, Ellen Drew, and George MacReady. Eighteenth century Scotland is the setting for this colorful technicolor story of a 100-year-old feud between two clans. The action is paced by much swordplay and hard riding. Recommended for family.

LINDA BE GOOD (comedy) with Marie Wilson, Elyse Knox, and John Hubbard. Joining a burlesque show to get material for a book she is writing, turns out to be very complicated when the writer's husband finds out about it. Recommended for adult.

Brats Barracks Notes

BY TED MARELAND

Brat Barracks is humming with activity these days.

A skating party was held Saturday night, Dec. 6. A bus took the boys and girls to Idle Hour park, and on the way Mrs. Lily Garrett and the kids sang Christmas carols. This was interrupted by an attack of water pistols. Bill Maurer, Elvin Kreilick, and Bobby Rosebaum were the water pistol villains.

At the skating rink everything was all right, except for several accidents. Bill Maurer hit the floor all night, and always managed to drag poor Bobby Luke or someone else down with him. The skating party was a success, and Mrs. Garrett announced that the club possibly will have a skating party once a month.

Friday night, Dec. 12, the club had a game party, and prizes were awarded. A movie was shown, and the night passed with peace and quietness.

Saturday night, more water pistols hit Brat Barracks. Cpl. Walter Zukula managed to confiscate the weapons, and stop the battle which was going on between several unmentioned boys.

A formal party will be held next Friday night. The sponsors will be Major and Mrs. C. W. Markland and Col. and Mrs. D. A. Rosebaum.

During the Christmas vacation there will be Christmas parties. The party will be held Christmas Eve, and Mrs. Garrett and the "Brats" or shall I say "Angels," will go caroling about the post.

New Year's Eve there will be another party, after which we will go to the Chapel for midnight New Year's Eve Watch Service. Brat Barracks is open for membership to all teen-agers of Fort Benning.

Mrs. Bradley Is Feted At Lunch

Mrs. Omar N. Bradley, who was on the Post last week with her husband, General Bradley, was honored Thursday at a delightful luncheon at the Yuliana Tea Garden in Seale, Alabama, with Mrs. Arthur Lynch as hostess.

The room was attractive with burning logs in the fireplace and Christmas greens. The table was centered with ivy ring that encircled sprays of holly and mistletoe, and red tapers burned at either end of the arrangement.

Ladies attending the event were Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Mrs. Lloyd D. Brown, Mrs. Fay Ross, Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. Edgar Mayo, Mrs. R. Curtis Jordan, Mrs. Jack Ellis, Mrs. Edward Everett, Mrs. A. H. Chapman, Miss Latimer, Watson, and the hostess.

AT FIRST DIVISION PARTY—Specially decorated cakes were used to picture the assault landing at Oran, Africa, at the party held recently by the Fort Benning branch, Society of the First Division.

1st Division Has Party Marking Africa Landing

Members of the Fort Benning Branch, Society of the First Division, recently held a party at the Polo Hunt club to commemorate the First Division's assault landing at Oran, Africa.

Forty members and their ladies enjoyed the evening of entertainment, which opened with a dinner followed by a movie titled "The Fighting First," a pictorial history of the First Division in World War II. Immediately following the movie, members, dressed as natives of North Africa, moved among the group passing out eggs, oranges, and other items, and Lt. Edward Pastreszynski won first prize for the best costume.

Dancing and games completed the evenings of entertainment for which the decorations were in keeping with familiar North African scenes.

Tentative plans were made to hold the next gathering in February with a Mardi Gras celebration. At the same time members were urged to contact all newly arrived former members of the First Division and tell them of the society organization here.

Service Club No. 4 Has Holiday Plans

A series of interesting social events for enlisted men, their families, and friends at Service Club No. 4 was announced today by Mrs. Myrtle Liggins, hostess.

Friday evening there will be a formal Christmas dance starting at 8 p.m., and Monday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. a special concert of Christmas music is on the program.

From 3 to 5 p.m. the day before Christmas there will be a Christmas tree party, and Christmas evening a card party has been scheduled from 5 to 8 p.m.

Quartet Well Received Here In Balanced Opera Concert

The Columbia Grand Opera quartet, appearing as the second program in the concert series being presented by Fort Benning Concert association, won warm approval and hearty applause when they gave a top performance here last week.

Composed of Edna Phillips, soprano; Helen Olheim, mezzo soprano; William Hain, tenor, and Arthur Kent, baritone, and accompanied by Archie Black at the piano, the group sang selections from the more familiar operatic

Col., Mrs. Ross Entertain Friends

Entertaining at their quarters Saturday evening, Col. and Mrs. Fay Ross had a group of their friends in for buffet supper and an evening of bridge and rummy games.

Using the colors of the season, Mrs. Ross decorated with greens and reds around the rooms, and the beautiful centerpiece for the buffet table featured white coral used with red berries, green vines, and white tapers.

Guests for the evening were Col. and Mrs. Charles E. Beauchamp, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert N. Skaggs, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Allen L. Peck, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Ramsey, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles U. Knapp, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Theodore H. Andrews, Major and Mrs. Jack B. Street, Major and Mrs. John T. Evans, Mrs. E. F. Owsley, and Richard Owsley.

Colonel Skaggs won first prize at the bridge tables, while Colonel Andrews took first place at rummy.

Miniature Tree Seen At Luncheon

Ladies of the Weapons section enjoyed their monthly luncheon last Friday at the Officers' club when a miniature Christmas tree with colored lights formed the centerpiece for the long table set for 28 guests in the Palm room.

Gaily wrapped presents added to the color around the tree, and greens were used as streamer with bright tree balls the length of the table. The place cards were also marked with red and green Christmas trees.

Following the luncheon for which Mrs. W. D. Wise Jr. and Mrs. B. B. Hughes were the hostesses, several tables of bridge were in play in the small lounge.

holidays from the University of Kentucky, where he is a sophomore and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Friends of Mrs. Preston Gordon will regret to learn that she suffered a leg injury when she fell down the steps in front of her quarters Tuesday.

Major and Mrs. Joe V. Morey will leave Sunday for Hackensack, N. J., where they will spend the holidays with Mrs. Morey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lamb. They expect to return January 10.

Scuders Have Christmas Buffet

Col. and Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder were hosts to a group of their friends Saturday evening when they gave a holiday buffet supper at their quarters, with approximately 30 guests attending.

A red and white motif marked the decorations with red gladioli used in the living room and an attractive arrangement of red apples and white gladioli on the buffet. The centerpiece was a setting of white camelias with red tapers in silver candelabra.

Miss Stilling Hostess At Tea Marking Birthday

Miss Suzanne Stilling, daughter of Major and Mrs. Cecil Stilling, was hostess at a tea Saturday afternoon when she entertained at the quarters of her parents to mark her sixteenth birthday.

Approximately 20 guests attended the event for which the decorations in a Christmas motif with red tapers used in silver on the table overlaid with a maderia cloth.

Lawson Ladies Have Annual Christmas Party

A charming Christmas setting arranged in the small lounge of the Lawson field Officers' club formed the background for the Lawson field Womens' club annual Christmas party Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Fred Z. Gearhart served as hostess. Assisting with the arrangements were Mrs. Fred G. Henry and Mrs. William Woodyard.

Cedar sprays, autumn leaves, and holly ties with colorful ribbon bows decorated the walls and outlined the windows. A large, brightly trimmed Christmas tree occupied one side of the room and the refreshment table, laid with a white floor-length lace cloth, was placed against a side wall. Clever arrangements of greens, gold and silver tinted pine cones, and holly formed an attractive base for burning red tapers which decorated each end of the long table. Crystal trays filled with bright Christmas cookies and a punch service completed the table arrangement.

Instead of exchanging presents members placed gifts in a Christmas basket which will be presented to a needy family on Christmas Eve by the welfare chairman.

The afternoon's entertainment program included Christmas music and bridge.

Coffee Club To Meet

Members of the Block 12 coffee club will meet this morning at the quarters of Mrs. Albert A. Jacobs for a holiday party which is to be complete with a Christmas tree. Members have drawn names and will exchange gifts.

Airborne Battalion To Have Holiday Party On Dec. 29

Lecture On Broadway Plays Wins Approval At Club Meet

Definitely winning the enthusiastic approval of his audience, Joe Callaway, young actor with experience on the stage, screen and radio, delightfully entertained ladies of the Fort Benning Women's club Monday afternoon at the annual Christmas tea held in the Polo Hunt club.

Mrs. Irvine Scudder, program chairman, introduced the speaker, and explained that his talk—"Broadway, Play After Play"—was coming as a Christmas present to the ladies of the club.

And the Christmas present was a happy choice, much appreciated by the large group of ladies who attended. Mr. Callaway charmed his audience completely as he opened his talk on current Broadway hits with a few of his experiences while playing stock exchange roles, and then gave a few lines from "As You Like It." After a few words concerning the work of the Broadway critic, the young actor, who is also an associate professor of drama at Michigan State college, mentioned one of the lighter Broadway plays, "The Teahouse of the Moon," and completed that phase of his talk with some highly witty lines from a play he had bought from the book of the same name.

Brings Laughter
Going into a more serious play, and completing it with an extremely well-read example of satire the lines, the speaker discussed "The Tenth Muse," as he said he considered it too long and not up to the standards of some of Eugene O'Neill's plays.

Bringing gay laughter from the ladies, Mr. Callaway completed his discussion of "The Tenth Muse" with a short scene from the revived play, and continued his talk about the revivals now playing with some comments and lines from "Love for Love."

Going on to plays concerning the recent war, the speaker picked "Command Decision" as the best, and explained the plot of the show which was such good reviews. As another work concerning the war, he dealt with "All My Sons" which took the critic's award last year and explained that it concerned civilians during the war. Climaxing this section of his talk and explaining his rendering was the closing lines of the highly dramatic play.

In talking of plays dealing with realities, Mr. Callaway mentioned "Born Yesterday" and said it was a "three-act lesson in citizenship" which was well-written and above average.

Called for Encore

Concerning current musicals, he mentioned "Call Me Mister" as one of the best, and one played entirely by ex-G.I. Scout troops. Going on from this he took up "Man and Superman," which he made particularly interesting with a dramatic presentation of a combination of lines from the role currently being played by Maurice Evans.

"The Tenth Muse" was included in the plays Mr. Callaway mentioned, and after talking about that play, the speaker concluded with some words about "State of the Union" and a highly dramatic presentation of some of the lines concerning politics as given in the play which is now being made into a movie.

The warmth of the applause of the ladies brought Mr. Callaway back for an encore which was a Browery (a version of Hamlet) and again brought sincere applause.

Christmas Mottif Used

Immediately following the talk, tea was served at the far end of the room which was beautifully decorated for the Christmas season. Smiax was used around the door with a wreath in the center, and the small stage in the club was outlined in greens with a large green wreath at the back, trimmed with silver and red mistletoe leaves. The arrangement on the piano featured red tapers in a cluster of silver pine, and Christmas greens used with red tree balls.

Mrs. Hamilton Thorn and Mrs. O. O. Wilson were in charge of the arrangements, and the tea tables were beautifully done with the silver service set at either end, while the centerpiece was Christmas green used with red tapers and red tree balls.

Ladies invited to serve at the tables overlaid with lace cloths were Mesdames John O. Daniel, Frank Ward, Lloyd D. Brown, Burton Lucas, John C. Bizzard, Sandra Erickson, Richard Sarnowski, Irvine C. Scudder, D. A. Rosebaum, J. A. Nichols, Julian Day, and John D. Frederick.

In a short business meeting before the enjoyable talk, Mrs. Jane Weisheit, an reporter, were given by Mrs. J. V. Morey and Mrs. Harry Van Tuyl. Mrs. Weisheit reported on her report, school, said that a building has been secured and the school will be enlarged to accommodate 70 children about February 1. Mrs. Van Tuyl reported on the activities of the Trading Post and told of the financial standing of the project as well as announcing a special sale.

Cubs Presented Awards At Meet

Cub Packs 127, 137, and 215 of the Fort Benning Boy Scouts held their monthly meeting last Friday at the Polo Hunt club. The meeting was highlighted by the showing of a film, "The Cub Scout in the Home," and the awarding of badges earned during the previous month.

Those winning wolf badge insignia and status included Tommy Shire, Cyril Settles, Jerry Gilmore, Randolph Smith, and John Beauchamp. George Knaub received a gold arrow for his wolf badge for extra service.

Robert pins were awarded to Billy Short, Paul Cooper, Ernest Peters, Ricky W. Brown, Dennis Van Costen, Mike McCormick, and Tommy Cole.

For a year's service, service stars were awarded to Douglas Dial, Gordon Singles, Bucky Haley, Robert Blandford, John Kennan, Tommy Short, Cyril Settles, Jerry Gilmore, Sammy Morrissey, and John Beauchamp. A service star indicating three years' service was awarded to Frank Redmine.

Making Of Gifts, Birthday Party At Brownie Meet

Members of the Brownie troop, meeting last Thursday at the Scout cabin, had a busy afternoon, as they made Christmas presents for their mothers, and were also entertained at a birthday party given by Capt. and Mrs. J. E. Halprin for their daughter, Linda Jane, who was celebrating her seventh birthday.

Individual cakes, decorated with green and red icing on white, were served to Brownies of the troop headed by Mrs. Roy E. Gray and assisted by Mrs. Carl E. Frisby. The girls enjoyed their party in front of a roaring fire by candlelight.

Attending the meeting were Linda Jane Halprin, Linda Brown, Sandra Erickson, Laure Cone, Marie Kortum, Sally Boneau, Bernice Byrne, Rebecca Dawson, Nancy McGee, Nancy McHugh, Nancy Palmer, Betty Anne Mays, Sandra Wright, and Nancy Minor. This was the first meeting for Betty Anne Mays who has just qualified as a Brownie.

The Brownies will take part in the Christmas program being given Thursday by the P-T-A.

Neighbors Gather For Celebration

Officers and ladies living on Sigerfos road had a delightful Christmas party Saturday evening when they gathered at the quarters of Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. E. Nelson. The party also celebrated the fifth wedding anniversary of the Nelsons.

Residents of Sigerfos road who gathered for the Dutch treat affair were Mrs. Doris W. and Mrs. W. E. Osborn, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Walden J. Alexander, Major and Mrs. E. A. Kreidler, Colonel and Mrs. Nelson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. George T. Colvin, Major and Mrs. W. W. Wise, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Albert C. Haley, Mrs. H. A. Alexander, and Chaplain John Rafferty.

Christmas decorations marked the lovely buffet table and the group exchanged gifts after drawing for names, and also presented Colonel and Mrs. Nelson with a gift of wood to mark their fifth anniversary.

Mrs. Ernest G. Barbee was hostess for her bridge club Tuesday afternoon when the group met at the Block 12 Non-Commissioned Officers' club. Playing were Mesdames Elmer Silverthorn, Russell Sisto, Harvay Allen, Grady Tole, Ewald Knuth, Arthur Hill, C. B. Copus, and the hostess.

Couple Leaving For Vacation Trip Feted At Bridge

Capt. and Mrs. Malcolm Sporenbergh were hosts at an informal bridge party Saturday night when they entertained at their quarters on Blessing street in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Merton V. Smith, who are leaving on a vacation trip to California.

Attractive arrangements of evergreen and red tapers were used for decorations.

The guest list included Lt. and Mrs. Irving Levine, Capt. and Mrs. Fred Z. Gearhart, Capt. and Mrs. James Sever, Mrs. Ivana Hale, Mrs. William Woodyard, the honorees, and the hosts.

Youngsters To See Santa Wednesday

Santa will visit the Block 12 Non-Commissioned Officers' club Wednesday evening at 7 p.m.; it was announced this week and all members of the club have been asked to turn in the name, age, and sex of their children before the visit.

Another holiday event will be the dance at the club Saturday evening with all members and their guests invited.

Holiday Greeting Seen On Table At Lunch Event

Ladies of the Communications section held their monthly luncheon Friday at the Officers' club with Mrs. John W. Blaker and Mrs. Clarence A. Martin Jr. as hostesses.

The table was beautifully arranged with tall red tapers in pine clusters made with red berries and long-needed pine sprays as the centerpiece. Streamers of greens with red berries were used the length of the table. Guests were seated by drawing letters and matching the letter and color of those placed on the table spelling out "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year." Place cards were also marked with the holiday greeting and decorated with sprigs of holly.

The guests for the event, which included bridge later in the afternoon, were Mesdames Paul Hamilton, John H. Van Vliet Jr., O. C. Thompson, Athel Engart, Carl E. Frisby, Lewis Conway, Robert Phelps, John Herrington, John Gersting, W. L. Hill, A. Millican, George M. Roper, A. Mouldenhauer, Allan S. Waim, Richard Womer, Robert Zeigler, John Ford, and the hostesses.

Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Roper were newcomers to the group. Mrs. Hill is a new bride in the group and comes from Eckley, Pa. She and Lieutenant Hill are now living in Columbus. Captain and Mrs. Roper with their children are living in Baker Village.

The next luncheon meeting of the group will be held January 30.

Mrs. Thompson Wins First Prize At Bridge Party

Mrs. J. V. Thompson won first place prize in the advanced group at the colorful Christmas party held last week at the Polo Hunt club by the bridge group of the Woman's club.

Mrs. D. D. Blackburn took second place in the advanced group, while Mrs. W. J. Coushlin was third. Mrs. M. F. Dean took first place in the intermediate group, while Mrs. E. B. Converse was second and Mrs. J. J. Sullivan third. Mrs. Adlen Scullion won the cut for the prize offered in the beginners group, and a special prize for the afternoon was awarded to Mrs. Ralph Koby.

Many new members attended the Christmas meeting and 23 tables were in play. The decorations featured smilax and magnolia leaves with the traditional red and green shades of the season.

The next meeting of the group will be January 13 at 1:30 p. m. at the Officers' club.

Palm Room Scene Of Dinner Given By First Battalion

The Palm room at the Officers' club was the scene of the formal dinner party given Saturday evening by the First Battalion officers of the 37th Infantry regiment, Officers of Company D were in charge of arrangements.

Cocktails were served before dinner from a bar decorated with a holiday motif, and later in the evening the couples enjoyed dancing.

Individual cards marked places for approximately 45 guests at the long table. The decorations featured holly and pine cones used with burning green tapers.

The staff of Headquarters, 37th Infantry, and their ladies were special guests for the event, and these included Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack M. Duncan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry M. Grizzard, Major and Mrs. Elmer G. Owens, Major and Mrs. Harold Green, and Major and Mrs. Maurice Hatheway.

Pre-Holiday Dance At Sand Hill Club

A pre-Christmas dance has been scheduled at Services club No. 2, Sand Hill, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Girls will attend from Columbus, Tuskegee, Opelika, and other neighboring towns.

Music will be furnished by the 25th Infantry orchestra, and the auditorium will be decorated with a holiday motif.

RETURN FROM PRE-HOLIDAY VISIT—Mrs. Fred G. Henry and her six-month-old son, Edward Frederick, who with Colonel Henry returned recently from Butler, Mo., where they visited the colonel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry, are pictured here. Mrs. Henry is the former Miss Penelope Critchlow of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Col. Mrs. Davis Entertain Sunday At Cocktail Party

Very gaily celebrating the holiday season, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Kermit Davis feted a large group of their friends Sunday afternoon when they gave a cocktail party in the small lounge and Palm room of the Officers' club.

Background music furnished by a pianist added to the holiday atmosphere with Christmas tunes. A sugar plum tree centered the buffet table, and purple berries tipped with silver, and green tapers in silver candelabra also were used in the decorations.

Approximately 100 guests enjoyed the party held from 5 to 7 p. m. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. D. E. Bensley and Mrs. F. C. Cooper. Mrs. Bensley arrived Sunday to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Oscar B. Bensley. She is from Gainesville, Fla., and will be here through the holidays.

Mrs. Cooper is here to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Paul Cooper. She arrived last week from her home in Gainesville, Tex., and will also be here through the holidays.

A moment later he reconsidered. "As you were, men. That can't be done. Hips down."

Bride Returns With Capt. Carter

Miss Helen Pollock, of Medina, N. Y., became the bride of Capt. Charles J. Carter this fall, and has returned to the post with her husband. Capt. Carter graduated November 27 from the associate advanced course No. 1 at the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla.

The couple now live at 34 Fox Ave. He is with the 83rd Field Artillery battalion as liaison officer.

P-T-A To Sponsor Mrs. Gearhart Party For Students Entertains Group Of Post School

The Parent-Teachers association of Fort Benning will play host to the students at Children's school No. 1 this afternoon when the annual Christmas party will be held in the school auditorium under the direction of Mrs. Robert N. Skaggs, who was announced by Mrs. Albert C. Halsey, president.

The party is slated to get underway at 3 o'clock this afternoon. All parents are invited to the program which will feature a Christmas tree and a visit from Santa, who will have gifts for all the children. No regular business meeting of the P-T-A will be held this month since the party is being given it this place.

Ladies heading committees working with Mrs. Skaggs, are Mrs. Paul Cooper, Mrs. E. F. Easterbrook, and Mrs. William H. Mikkelsen.

All children of the school, under the direction of Mrs. Bert Santori, music teacher, will participate in the program, and special parts will be given by Girl Scouts and Brownies.

Mrs. Fred Z. Gearhart was hostess at a bridge party last Thursday afternoon when she entertained a small group of friends at her quarters on Eleasing street.

Attractive arrangements of green Christmas wreaths and pine cones were used in the living room, and the tables and accessories for the bridge tables carried out the holiday motif with cheery red and green Christmas designs.

The guest list includes Mrs. Malcolm Sporenbergh, Mrs. Byron E. Trent, Mrs. James Sever, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Ivan Hale, Mrs. Merton V. Smith, Mrs. William Woodward, and the hostess.

On Friday night Captain and Mrs. Gearhart entertained with a bridge party honoring Capt. and Mrs. M. V. Smith and Capt. and Mrs. R. J. Clark, who are leaving on a Christmas vacation in the next few days. Also in the party were Lt. and Mrs. Irving Levine.

Christmas seals were invented by a Danish postal clerk, Anton Holmboe, in 1905, as a source of revenue for an anti-tuberculosis society. Their use spread to the other Scandinavian countries and to the United States.

High School Students Present Xmas Program

An audience of fond parents and friends enthusiastically received a program of Christmas music presented by the Columbus high school band and choral groups Tuesday night in the school auditorium.

Special band arrangements of Christmas selections by John T. Lee, band director, antiphonal singing by male and female voices and carols by boy sopranos were included in the program.

Miss Mary LeBow, high school vocal instructor, directed the choral groups. Numbers on the program were announced by Miss LeBow or Mr. Lee.

Special Version Arranged
His selection on the Christmas music program was a special version of "Jingle Bells" arranged by Mr. Lee and played by the entire band with novelty spots by various members of the group. The number was played with sureness and style and the audience wildly applauded its performance.

Opening the concert, Miss LeBow asked that the audience stand and join the band and entire chorus in singing "O Come All Ye Faithful," followed by repetition of the Lord's Prayer.

"The First Noel," one of the loveliest of the traditional carols was sung in a unique antiphonal arrangement by the boys' chorus seated on the stage and answered by 250 girls' voices from the balcony.

Both Groups Join
The band next rendered a special arrangement of "Silent Night" by Mr. Lee.

Xmas "Jesu Bambino" was sung by the girls chorus, and followed by a capella arrangement of three carols, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," by the female voices.

Both the boys' and girls' choral groups joined in singing the gay Christmas melody, "Deck the Halls With Boughs of Holly," against an unusual antiphonal arrangement.

"God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" and "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" were given by 44 seventh and eighth grade boy sopranos singing in unison.

Program Concluded
Mr. Lee's novel arrangement of "Jingle Bells" followed.

The program was concluded with an arrangement of the old Franciscan anthem, "Lo Now a Rose" sung in beautiful harmony by the girls chorus.

The audience was again invited to join in singing "Joy to the World," accompanied by the band.

Miss Mary Bory Murray was accompanist for the choral groups. The stage was appropriately set for the Christmas concert by gold and silver stars which studded the backdrop of sky blue. Large "candle" candles were placed at either side of the stage and a border of holly design decorated the balcony rail.

Miss Mary Goddard, art supervisor, was in charge of directions. Miss LeBow expressed appreciation to the First Baptist church and several grammar schools for the use of choir robes and announced that 40 robes had been ordered by the Columbus high school P-T-A for the use of the choral groups.

CFA Girl Chorus Heard on Radio

CFA's all-girl chorus was heard in a program of Christmas music in the regular weekly broadcast of the Christian Fellowship association's radio workshop Wednesday at 10 p. m. over radio station WRBL.

The program originated from the CFA home, 1428 Second avenue.

The chorus is composed of about 30 voices and is directed by Mrs. Hugh Roberts Jr., Miss Gertrude Handley is accompanist.

Included on the program were the traditional carols, Christmas spirituals, and secular music. The radio workshop, which presents weekly programs over WRBL, is directed by Mrs. W. Murton Page and Mrs. Edna Scott.

The broadcasts are a public service feature of WRBL.

Admiral Nimitz Spends Tuesday Night In City

Former Admiral of the Fleet, Chester W. Nimitz, who retired from the Navy Monday, slipped into Columbus Tuesday night with his wife and daughter, Nancy, en route to his home in San Diego, Calif.

Registering at the Plaza Hotel Courts, 2115 Buena Vista road, Adm. Nimitz and wife and daughter then went to the Colonnade for dinner about 8 p.m.

Immediately after dinner (about 9:30 p.m.) the former Navy head returned to his rooms at the Plaza and retired for the night, saying he wished to leave about 6 a.m. Wednesday to continue his trip toward California.

Unrecognized at First
W. P. Robinson, manager of the Plaza Courts, said that he did not recognize the prominence of the man whom he had registered.

"In fact I did not know until Mr. R. Woody, manager of the Colonnade restaurant, called and asked if I had a C. W. Nimitz and family stopping at my place," Mr. Robinson said.

Mr. Woody said that they were seated in a booth at the Colonnade and Mr. Nimitz and his family sat down in the booth next to them.

"We did not recognize them either," Mr. Woody said, "but some Army captain seated at the bar asked if it wasn't Admiral Nimitz."

'Very Nice Man'
Arthur Brooks, a Negro waiter of the Colonnade who served Mr. Nimitz and family, said that the former Navy top officer was a "very nice man."
"He told me that he was going through Texas and stop there for some kind of a convention," Brooks said.

Mr. Robinson said that he gave Mr. Nimitz a map with U. S. highway 80 marked on it when he said that he was going to travel by car, stopping at auto courts, along the southern route to California.

While in the Colonnade, where he and his family ate Southern fried chicken, Mr. Nimitz was requested by several persons for his autograph. He signed his name for an Army captain who recognized him, and several others present as "C. W. Nimitz, Fleet Admiral, USN."

He left an autographed matchbook engraved with "C. W. Nimitz, Admiral of the Fleet, U. S. Navy," with the management of the Colonnade.

Adm. Denfeld Successor
The 62-year-old wartime Pacific commander, who was the hero of thousands of enlisted men of the Navy, apparently left Washington Monday. Obviously trying to avoid publicity while driving to his West Coast home, Admiral Nimitz plans to stop throughout his trip at auto courts.

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP TRAIN AT BENNING—When the Christmas Friendship Train came to Fort Benning Tuesday morning, it was greeted by children of School No. 1 with large bundles of food for the needy. It is pictured here in front of the school with a part of the food on the street alongside it.

Yule Friendship Train Collects Food For Needy

With the ecstatic shrieks of children and the clanging of the silver bell atop the locomotive, the Christmas Friendship Train moved off on its initial tour of Fort Benning Tuesday morning.

"Freight" consisted of a vast mound of canned and dehydrated foods donated by the children of the Fort Benning Children's School for the Christmas celebrations of the less fortunate. The passengers were the children themselves.

The 65-foot train was started on its mission of generosity and cheer when Henry East and Tommy Tucker, of radio station WDAK in Columbus, realized that while food was being shipped overseas in vast quantities the home community was not being considered. The Friendship Train was the result.

After completing its highly successful MF-escorted tour, the Friendship Train moved on to the Post Exchange grocery, where shoppers were to be asked to fill the train with donated foodstuffs for the needy families of the community.

Muscogee County Faces Big Task

Muscogee Commissioner Cliff Livingston said Tuesday the county faces a big task in "staying within" the budget in 1948—but he believes it will be done.

Commission is scheduled to adopt its budget for next year in regular session Wednesday. Mr. Livingston, who has continually stressed all this year the need to stay within the budget, said the county would start the year with from $5,000 to $10,000 of its 1948 operating funds already spent for 1947 expenses.

The commissioner estimated between $835,000 and $870,000 would be available in tax money and bonds for county expenses. The bonds are set up for road, sewer and water projects. The 1948 tax levy was 14 mills. Additional funds will be derived through fees and court fines.

CMH Winners Join Legion

Fort Benning's five Congressional Medal of Honor wearers were presented their 1948 membership cards in the Charles S. Harrison post No. 35 of the American Legion recently. Legion officials announced this week.

The five local officers include Col. Douglas Suges, Lt. Col. George M. Mabry Jr., Lt. Col. Charles W. Davis, Capt. Orville E. Bloch, Capt. Jack L. Treadwell, and Capt. Cecil H. Bolton. They were guests of honor at the last meeting of the post in Columbus.

Following the meeting at the Ralston hotel, Legionnaires conducted the officers on a tour of their new home at 1400 Third avenue in Columbus.

Post No. 35 maintains a full-time adjutant and veterans advisor; arranges for the sick and wounded to be admitted to veterans hospitals; buries veterans and their wives in the Legion plot and covers their graves with suitable markers; and provides relief for charitable purposes, officers of the organization said.

Fort Benning personnel have been invited to become members of the Columbus American Legion post, and those interested in further information may contact George O'Brien at the American Legion home of telephone 2-2345. The home is open daily from 2-11 p. m.

To Beautify Victory Drive

Beautification of Victory Drive from here to Fort Benning will be studied by a citywide committee, including garden club representatives, working in conjunction with Benning authorities, Chamber of Commerce board of directors decided Tuesday.

The motion to appoint the highway beautification committee was passed by the directors at their monthly meeting at the Ralston hotel, after Director T. G. Reeves had pointed out that elaborate beautification plans were formulated for the highway by post engineers.

Money for execution of the Victory drive project eventually will have to be raised through civic groups after state highway commission approval has been granted, Mr. Reeves pointed out. He added that Major Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Fort Benning commander, has asked "moral support from the Chamber at present and anticipated "a more active part" to be played by the Chamber later.

The provision to include Garden clubs on the committee was made after Director M. R. Ashworth noted that the clubs might disapprove the plans drawn up by committee on which they were not represented.

"The question is, when the plans are made public will the garden clubs approve of it or will we get in a squabble," he said.

After declaring that future difficulty could be eliminated by making garden club representatives part of the committee, Director Walter A. Richards, mayor of Columbus, proposed that the

Yuletide Provides Rest For Doughs

After the Doughs tangle with Alabama's Craig field tomorrow night on the Flyer's court, Ced Tallis and his basketweavers will retire from the limelight in the Benning sport's world, and join forces with the rest of Fort Benning in celebrating another merry Christmas.

Tonight at 8, the Tallismen make their final appearance of 1947 at the Main Post gym when they meet Fort Jackson's Red-Devils in the first All-Army tussle of the infant season. Jackson will roll into the Post sometime tomorrow morning.

Seventeen days of rest may be the thing that the Doughs need. Tallis has been frantic for practice time and this lull between the years could very well turn into the time necessary to get the local quintet into the shape of last year's squad. After the long holiday, the Doughs will be hard to test, playing continuously until early in March, and Tallis is determined to come through this season with a better than satisfactory record.

During January, the Doughs will be playing every other day, and such a schedule necessarily requires that the team be in the best possible shape. February will bring the Doughs face to face with two tough tournaments, the Southeastern AAU and the Third Army tourney. Both meets will be staged off the post.

Lose Two

After two close losses, the first to Howard college and the second to the Phenix City Tigers, the Doughs paralyzed the Columbus Millers last Friday night, scoring a 46-32 victory for the initial win of the season. But even against the Millers, the Doughs looked weak in many departments, and could not claim an undisputed superiority until late in the duke. The Doughs have yet to invade the half century mark in their scoring, which never gets started until the second quarter. This is fast becoming a characteristic of the soldier five.

Tallis has exhausted himself in an effort to smooth out the Dough-boy ball handling which has been pathetic many times. Wild passes and too much dribbling have slowed up the Doughs' attack. If the Benning quintet does more passing and less dribbling in their first two games, there is little doubt they would have belted both opponents since they were able to match shots, but their speed was lacking early.

Faulty Passes

The cagey Benning mentor has been an advocate of the passing and fast breaking team, and has worked with that thought in mind this season. But faulty passes and ill-performed floor combinations have lost the ball all too many times.

Height is also wanting on the local quintet as a result floor foes have been able to control the back board, and this slices the percentage of Doughboy basket efforts. Harold Haberman seems to be the only steady man right now, and is consequently the only sure starter when the whistle blows for the opening legs-up. In three games, Haberman averaged ten points to lead all other teammate competitors, and has proved invaluable for his floor and defensive work. Bob Seibert has not been up to his old stuff of last year, but has been picking up in the last few games. Doug Scovill, who worked out with the squad last year, found his way to the varsity as a result of the fine performance turned in during the "B" string game last week. Scovill has a deadly one arm shot from any angle that has been hitting the hoop regularly. Bob Ward and Bob Kinard, still getting under way, have also been picking up, but haven't reached the peak they made last year.

Locals Swamp Miller Cagers For First Win

Harold Haberman again stole the scoring honors for the Benning quintet as the Doughboys slashed the Columbus Manufacturing team for their first victory of the season at the Main Post gym last Friday night.

Although the Doughs got off to a slow start, the locals began hitting the hoop early in the second canto, and plugged away methodically at the Millers in capturing their initial win to avenge the two losses that greeted the Doughs on embarking into the 1947-48 schedule.

The Doughboys led most of the way and outpaced their Columbus opponents in all departments. Haberman took high point honors for the Benning crew, tallying five times from the floor and once from the foul line. He was ably assisted by the sharp shooting and superb defensive play of Doug Scovill and Harold Lutz.

On the Columbus side, Buddy Wright and Fred Hurston tied for high point laurels with nine markers apiece. Wynnham proved one of their best players on offense and defense.

In the preliminary tilt, the Doughboy "Bs" clipped the 37th Infantry 37-17.

Shirey Called Youngest Staff Sergeant At Post

Members of the Student Training regiment's Eighth company claim they have the youngest staff sergeant—William Shirey—in the Army at Fort Benning.

Sgt. Shirey is only 19 years old, and his friends say that he looks much younger. They further claim that it is always necessary for him to keep his Class A pass handy at all times to prove to military police that he is really a staff sergeant.

DERBIN REENLISTS
T/A James F. Derbin, formerly a member of Anti-Tank company, 37th Infantry regiment, has re-enlisted for duty with Company B, 756th Tank battalion, as supply sergeant.

Second Guessing

By RALEIGH GREENE

A few weeks ago I was looking through some old newspapers and wartime Bayonets, and it was very interesting to note some of the big names and big events that filled the news-light at that time. Of course, everybody who has been here any length of time recalls some of the former Post fans. More stars have, perhaps, passed through the portals of Fort Benning than any other installation in the nation.

We have all heard so much about Notre Dame's great Johnny Lujack this year that I thought it might be worthwhile to note that the Irish star played against the Doughs here in 1943, while his brother, Al, was a basketball coach on the Post during the war years. If I'm not mistaken, the Lujack family boasts more than its share of champion athletes.

Back in 1945 when the Doughs began their long win string, which was snapped miserably this year at 17 by the Quantico Marines, Johnny Lujack, a big figure in football, accompanied the Fort Pierce gridders to meet the Doughboys at the Post stadium. Lujack was at the time, playing quarterback for the Pierce eleven, and that day at Doughboy stadium, Johnny Lujack and his compatriots took a 40-6 shellacking from the local soldiers. That's an interesting point, I think.

And then there was Al Lujack who won himself All-America honors as a sharp shooting forward on Georgetown's mighty quintet in 1941. Al Lujack, the less publicized brother of Johnny, was also a star gragger at the Pennsylvania university.

Did you know that the Doughboys of 1944 conquered the once vaunted Great Lakes team that had defeated National football honors by downing Notre Dame? It's difficult to get one's mind off football these days.

Ced Tallis has been doing some dreaming of late. Being short of material this year, Captain Tallis has been keeping his fingers crossed for a miracle. . . something like another Bill Miller. Tallis has grieved time and again that he was just not to get somebody to take the pivot-post, but to this time no such standout has shown himself. Tallis has always centered his offensive assault about a good pivot man, and found this year that no such man is available.

It was funny how Miller happened to find his way to Tallis and the Doughs last year. It was just another day of practice, and the situation that prevails this year was the same problem with which Tallis was faced. He just didn't have a man to work from the middle. As practice lengthened into a wearying affair, a rather good looking, lean-like Kentuckian walked in and calmly remarked to the worried coach, "I play basketball, I'm a center." Miller was a center, indeed, and he was also the $64 answer to Tallis' question. No sooner had Miller taken his place with the other four stars than the Doughs looked like a different ball club.

Coach Tallis has been patiently waiting around the gym since late November for the same thing to happen again. For heaven's sake, if there is anybody who can fill the assignment, please show your humble self.

The Doughs are definitely picking up. Their rebound work, which has been so miserable, has shown much improvement, but there is always room for more of the same. Shooting is also getting more accurate, but the looks still seem a little reluctant about shooting. Too many shots are being wasted from distance past the circle when it would be as easy to pass into the basket. Tallis has continued to work feverishly with his best break that showed its first signs of effectiveness against the Phis City Tigers last week.

It's still early to criticize or praise the sound since a slow start was expected. The capable coach is eyeing the tournaments in February, and if the quintet can make a good showing against the real competition which will be on hand at the Third Army and AAU meets, their season will be called "successful."

All we've heard about baseball recently has been the trading going on among the various clubs and the big news, first publicized by Walter Winchell, that Leo Durocher was back at Brooklyn. But we have some startling diamond news for Post fans, and particularly the different organizations that will be represented in the Post league. Watch out for the ISD team this year. Most of the players from last year's squad will be back playing for the detachment, plus some very important additions. There'll be Chick Shiver, Wootie Burt, Bill Brooks, and Blenny Burnett from last season's great team. All four of those men show as Doughboys. There are also about ten other performers from last year's team boys, has joined the ranks of the postmen on Herb Bench's Dough-George Dickson, the spunkiest center-fielder on the team. And in a few weeks, we'll publish a real list of ISD ball players for you.

I understand that if the rains keep up much longer, the A&P office plans to hold a racine regatta sometime in January.

Doughboys Shine, But Are Defeated

Fort Benning's Doughboys played their first champion-like basketball game Tuesday night at Atlanta, but Terry Brennan, collegiate forward, broke a last second 64-64 deadlock with a game-winning over Ced Tallis' rapidly improving Doughboys.

Outscored, but certainly not outguffed, Tuesday night's edging gave the Doughs a record of three losses against a single win which was capped last week when the Tallismen trounced the Columbus 64-61. A. Z. Johnson, sparkling Ogelthorpe forward, tallied his eleventh basket of the evening and added one from the foul line to knot the score. It was the accurate fire of Johnson, who led all scorers with 24 markers, that kept the collegians out in front. As the game's end was bellowed from the

Corizis Stars
Harold Corizis, New Jersey's gift to the Post team, and Doug Scovill, who won his way to the varsity last week, provided most of the starring for the Doughboys. Corizis led the locals with nine baskets, some of which were dropped in from impossible angles, while Scovill accounted for 15. Along with Harold Lutz and Bob Henderson, Scovill and Corizis did a magnificent job beneath the basket, taking off the rebounds. Tuesday's game was the first in which the Doughs have been able to handle their rebounds smoothly.

Harold Haberman, the lad who has been the key figure in the last three Doughboys ties, was out of the game before the first half ended. Haberman was tagged for five fouls before the intermission but managed to chalk up eight points for himself in the short time he saw action.

The skirmish at Atlanta was a thriller second to none, as both quintets fled away at each other, neither team ever being more than a four-point advantage. It was again the foul shots that defeated the Doughboys. Ogelthorpe connected for 15 of the 22 foul shots allotted them, while the Tallismen managed only to hoop four of the 13 they were given. However, the soldier five completely outscored the collegians from the floor, making 69 points to their 58 markers.

Ogelthorpe Leads
The game reached a crescendo the minute after the starting whistle sounded, and the intensity of the determination of both teams was never relaxed for a split second. As the intermission came around, the university cagers were out in front 33 to with the jam-packed stands in a frenzy.

On they fought in the last half and when the two-minute signal was given the Doughs were on top last horn of the night, the referee's whistle sounded, and pointed a devastating finger at one unfortunate Doughboy who was detected fouling. Terry Brennan, the ultimate hero of the night, held the margin of victory as he stood nervously at the foul line. The game was officially over. But Brennan did make his shot, and the university five had triumphed.

LAWSON QUINTET LEADS LOCAL CAGE CIRCUIT

In first place in the Y. M. C. A. league, the Lawson field team played good offensive and defensive ball for the Fliers. Haines played in the lead for the moving, well-coordinated teams in the past, and are still undefeated.

On Tuesday night, December 9, the Fliers quintet scored a 52-25 win over the Cataula Athletic club. Button, sharp-shooting center for the Fliers, tallied a total of 29 points for the Lawson five during the game.

In a game played Wednesday night, December 10, in the Lawson field gym, the Fliers outscored the Phenix City Tigers, 50-31, establishing them as one of the outstanding teams among local cagers. Button was in good scoring form, while King and Livingston played good offensive and defensive ball for the Fliers. Haines played in the lead for the Phenix City Tigers. The Tigers led at the half with a 26-24 score, but fell behind during the second half, when the Fliers made three quick field goals. During the game played last Friday night between the Fliers and the Bibb Manufacturing team of Columbus, King took the lead, scoring 21 points, and had very good offensive and defensive support by Livingston and Seier. The Lawson Fliers were five points behind the Bibb Manufacturing team until the second half, when they took the lead and thrashed their opponents with a 58-28 score.

The Fliers will suspend play December 19 until the Yuletide season is past, at which time they will resume their place with the Y. M. C. A. league.

Forward Tops Local Cagers For Score Lead

Doughboy basketballers have been picking up well in the scoring department, and to date, four local cagers are vying for top honor in the basket-making standings.

In four games the Doughs have averaged almost 50 points, although they have dropped three of their four outings. Against the Oglethorpe university courtmen, Harold Corizzi tallied nine times from the floor to pass Bob Henderson for second place. The sharp shooting Harold Haberman continues to set the pace for his teammates with 37 points. Although Haberman was called out of the recent duke before he finished the first half, he managed to pilot eight markers to retain his lead.

Local Student Gets Private Pilot's Okay

Hobbies cultivated by men while in the Army often pay off in civilian life, and S-Sgt. Gordon E. King, 10th company, Student Training regiment, intends to make this true in his case. After 500 hours of flying time as a passenger in transports and gliders, Sgt. King decided, after coming to Fort Benning for the infantry School's communication course, to enroll in a flying school at a local airport under the GI bill.

He soloed after only about 10 hours of dual instruction, but continued flying, putting in the necessary hours for a private license. He passed the examination during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Sgt. King is assigned to the 35th Glider Infantry regiment at Fort Bragg, N. C., and will return there following completion of the course. After his discharge from the Army, he plans to return to Wisconsin, and, as a commercial pilot, "haunt tourists about the northern lake district."

POST BOXING PROGRAM SLATED TO START JAN. 6

The boxing program, as outlined by the Post Athletic and Recreation office, will embrace practically every division in the books, and will feature anything from bantamweights to heavyweight in one of the largest pugilistic programs ever seen at Fort Benning.

The Post athletic officer, assisted by the officer in charge of boxing, who will be designated by the A&R office, will be in charge of arrangements for the training and matching of boxers for contests with other posts and services, and of the conduct of all Post boxing competitions.

The officer in charge of boxing will be organizing a school for all officials. Any man appointed as an official will attend these various schools.

All participants in the Post boxing program will be categorized into different divisions depending on their weights. In the division there will be nine classifications starting with the bantamweights, who consist of fighters not over 118 pounds, and rounding off with the heavyweights, who tip the scales at any point over 175. Other divisions, and their weight order run as follows: featherweight, junior lightweight, lightweight, junior welterweight, welterweight, middleweight and light heavyweight.

The Post tournament will consist of four complete rounds, and there will be a like number of play-offs to determine which boxer will win a spot in the tourney. Each fighter in every division, who scores a certain required number of points, will have a chance to fight at least once.

Activities will get into full swing about January 6, and all men interested in boxing should report to the athletic officer.

Battalion Tells Holiday Plans

Although many of the sports activities will be de-emphasized during the Yuletide holidays, the A&R office has worked out a program of athletics for all those who will remain on the Post for some or all of the long vacation.

In addition, officials of the Airborne Battalion have announced that the A Stage gym will remain open during Christmas for all men of the battalion as well as other units who may wish to take advantage of the many facilities that will be offered there.

The gymnasium will be open from 2-4 p. m. and from 6-8 p. m. However, this will not hold on Dec. 24, 25, and 29, which nights, and on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1, at which times the gym will be reserved for New Year's celebrations.

Activities offered include basketball, volleyball, boxing, and wrestling, and all equipment will be issued to parties who request it.

Special encouragement will be given to those men who are interested in participating in all men of the battalion boxing program. The first bouts are tentatively scheduled for January 16.

Bullets Feted At Festive Feed

BY BOB PHILLIPS

The NCO club of the 25th Infantry regiment was the scene of an elaborate and merry-making banquet last Friday night, honoring the regimental football team which climaxed a season in which the Bullets recorded a record of four wins, one tie and seven losses out of a 12-game schedule.

Major John A. Deveaux, regimental chaplain, who emceed the occasion, opened the evening's festivities with a prayer. By way of preliminaries he introduced Capt. Carl A. Griffin, A&B officer; Lt. Lloyd D. Jones, coach; Lt. Edward Williams and John Suggs; S-Sgt. Jesse Owens, assistant coach; Howie Langston, quarterback; Jefferson White, the team's oldest member—age, 38; and Pfc. William Seymour and Herman Moss, trainers.

Despite the losses suffered by the team, Chaplain Deveaux lauded them for their gallantry in battle, stating that they fought like champions. Lt. Jones, the team's capable coach, praised his charges for their sportsmanship and as one of the best disciplined and hard working elevens he had ever had the privilege of working with. Col. LeGrande A. Diller, regimental commander, was the honored guest and main speaker. In a brief talk he commended the team on its excellent sportsmanship, urging them always to "play hard, play for Jesus, but play clean." Others showering the Bullets with praises of approval for their play during the season were Lt. Col. Everett W. Duvall, regimental executive officer; Lt. Col. Arden C. Brill, commanding officer of the First battalion, whose inspiring remarks were lauded with the phrase "Thank you for a good showing"; Lt. Col. John J. Deane and Major R. C. Stump, commanding officer, 89th Field Artillery battalion.

COMPANY E CAPTURES AIRBORNE COURT CROWN

The Airborne battalion's basketball tournament came to a roaring climax Friday evening at the A Stage gym when the rallying eagles from company E neatly surprised and tripped Company D, 30-24, to annex the trooper D championship for the 1947-48 season.

Three hundred spectators jammed the stands to see Company D sink three baskets in the first three minutes of the bitterly fought duke. It looked as if the show was all Company D at the outset, but Jean P. Vann rallied his Company E hopsters sinking one basket and adding three shots from the foul line to climb to a one-point deficit at the end of the first quarter. They continued the onslaught with three more markers and a free throw in the second stanza to hold a comfortable 12-6 margin at the intermission.

The third frame saw a nip and tuck contest, each side scoring three times and leaving Company E on top at the start of the last period, 18-12. Company E was threatened only once again when their opponents tallied a pair of baskets and a free throw to trail by only three points, 20-17. Company E, however, promptly came back with two baskets and coasted over the finish line with a nine-point advantage.

Company E gained the right to play in the finals by trouncing a decimated Company F squad 47-24 in the semi-finals and noosing out Company A in the first round 45-38.

High scorer for the new champions was Lurie Cook with 11 points to his credit in the final first. Player-coach Vann was probably the most valuable player in the tournament. Although not a high scorer, his speed, alertness, and cunning on the court, his sportsmanship and the fact that he was the moral nucleus on the Company E quintet makes him outstanding.

A lieutenant putting his men through calisthenics gave the order: "Hips on shoulders place."

Bowling News

BY J. W. GODWIN

Try-outs for the Fort Benning bowling team got off to a fast start last Wednesday with 18 of the Post's top keepers vying for a slot on the eight-man squad. The team is being selected from the highest averages rolled during the try-outs.

Captain Arne Millican expects to have a top notch team in shape for the Third Army tournament which will be staged here Jan. 13-16, 1948. A host of competing teams are expected to take part in the meet, and noteworthy teams include Fort Bragg, the Florida Military District, Fort McPherson, and Fort Jackson.

Fort Benning is the defending champion in this tournament, in virtue of a victory in the Seventh Army tourney held last year at Fort McClellan, Ala. Another defending champ, probably competing for Fort Benning, will be Lt. R. E. Zeigler of the Airborne battalion, who will be trying for his second All-Events and singles championships. Zeigler and John LaRue, of the ISD, topped the doubles championship last year, making it a clean sweep for the boys from Benning.

The Main Post bowling alleys are crowded every night during the week with the Post Intramural and the Officer's league in full swing. At the Lawson field alleys, two other leagues are also being rolled. Also bowling at the Main Post several days a week are members of the Fort Benning Woman's club and ladies of the Brock 12 NCO Club.

DO YOU KNOW?
(1). The official estimated number of bowlers in America? (Ans., below)
(2). The estimated odds against a person ever rolling a perfect game of 300.
ANSWERS:
(1). 16,000,000. (2). 294,000 to 1.
HERE'S ONE FOR THE BOOK.
Is it possible for one person to bowl eight strikes in one game, keeping all balls on the alley, and not get a score of 100 or better? (Yep, it's possible. Go ahead, challenge you lead out on that one, I'll give you the answer next week.)

Sports Curtain Falls On Benning Athletics

Bells and choral voices will soon be heralding the arrival of Christmas which has become the most celebrated and revered festive season in this country. These bells and choirs ring out in proclamation of the great day, and the entire world will pause, forget its agonies, to welcome another Yuletide season.

As this season draws nearer to us, it would seem fitting to lower the shades on another great festive season which has seen one of its finest and most successful years. We are speaking here of athletics at Fort Benning, and will review at this point the outstanding achievements of Doughboy athletes during the past year.

It might be asked just why Christmas time has been chosen rather than January 1. The answer is simple since basketball will still be in its infancy when the New Year is beckoned. Football ended the cycle of Post sports activities, and as it is usually the starting point of the season's whirl of sports, it is also the final chapter in the nation's athletic circles.

It would be rash to say that the year 1947 was the greatest in the history of sports at Fort Benning, but it would certainly be in order to comment that the closing year has been the most eventful in the world of sports, not only in our own back yard but throughout the country.

Great Year
This was the year of "great things." There were to be the surprise surprises, and if we took only the Louis-Walcott fight, we would be safe in saying that the prediction was right. Brooklyn, with all its gusto and fire, bowed to the New York Yankees in the World Series. The Series of 1947 was probably one of the most bitterly fought and most enthusiastically attended of the previous match of league teams.

Then there was the football season which was right. Brooklyn, Notre Dame and Michigan, literally dominate the scene. There was the All-American team that named more than its share of honor students, and almost a year, indeed, when every man was an All-American. . . only so many teams could win naturally. Even the best fell unexpectedly.

But while all this was going on, Fort Benning too was having its big days; and there were some small ones, to be sure. Coach Billy Meeks, who had led his 1946 gridders through an unblemished season, won the station's Service crown, had retired from Army life, and had taken a coaching job with Maryland's Old Liners. The team for the most part was dispersed and there were no prospects in sight for the coming year.

Tallis Heads Basketballers
Ced Tallis was appointed head coach of the Doughboy basketball team, and Tallis immediately went to work whipping his new squad into shape. Tallis was All-American John Nance from Army with Tallis, but classes soon proved too much for the basketballer and he was lost to the team. For three games, the Doughboys struggled along. They lost one. One day a lad whose name was Bill Miller walked in and announced he, too, played ball, and, to be sure, he did. From that point on the Doughboys racked up victory after victory. They became Southeastern AAU champions and lost out in the finals by a single point for the State crown. The season came to a spectacular close with 33 wins against 9 losses.

Baseball and track were then beginning to take the limelight. There were activities other than the major sports, too. Boxing, tennis, volleyball, and bowling were in vogue. A big boost from the Post A&R office, and the athletic program at Fort Benning was planned on an even larger scale.

While the Airborne battalion was making its way to the Post championship in the baseball department, Capt. Francis Naughton was prepping his cinderman for the journey. Naughton was ably assisted by Andy Lamar, a graduate of West Point, where he had been on the track. By constant coaching and training, the Post cindermen exploded one Saturday afternoon to belt the Fort Bragg runners at the Post track and capture the Third Army crown.

Baseball Thrilling
Baseball season on the Post was a thrilling one, for time after time local fans were brought to their feet to see Herb Bench's Doughboys come on and hand trounce some vaunted foe. There were games such as the one that the Post diamondmen won from Parris Island, 13-12, in the 10th inning. Trailing 12-4 in the sixth frame, the Doughs came rolling back with a barrage of hits from her old standbys like Blondy Burnett, Woodie Burd and George Dickson. The Third Army tour-ament, won by the Doughs with a 4-3 decision over the Fort Bragg team, was perhaps the most thrilling tourney staged at Gowdy field in many a season. The Doughs, starting slow, dropped their first match to the same team they defeated for the championship, but went on strong from that point to humble every other opponent.

Herb Bench and his boys won 26 of their 32 games, and defeated last year's Georgia State champs on three different occasions. It was another great season of Post athletics, and another fine group of men took their places with the immortals of Fort Benning.

Through the summer as the Post team surged through many games, other men on the Post were relaxing in the warm Georgia sun and cooling themselves in the clear waters of Russ pool. Russ pool was also the scene of the Post swimming meet that was won by the 501st Parachute battalion.

Golf Meet Here
One of the biggest events of the year was the All-Army golf tourney staged at the Officer's Club course. Linksmen from all over the world, in fact, golfers travelled from the most distant spots on the globe, to participate in the first Army golf tournament. Capt. Ed Moseley, a sharp shooter, ever cool performer, outlasted a game Joe Worthington for the crown that was coveted by some 200 anxious greenmen. Never before had such a spectacular event been recorded in the annals of Army history, and because of its great success by the tourney's first host, Fort Benning, the All-Army tournament has become a permanent part of Army athletics.

Volleyball, intramural leagues in softball, baseball, swimming, tennis, and others had been completed, and it was time for the big sport of America, football. Capt. Robert "Butch" Kendrick was selected to lead the Doughboy gridders this year, and was assisted capably by Capt. Joe Sheppard, Ted Heststead, and Sgt. Pete Demetrios. The Doughs played a ten-game schedule with a youngster squad, but Kendrick, through intensive drilling and hardening up, whipped his eleven into one of the toughest football aggregations the Army had the pleasure of hearing about. The Doughs continued Billy Meeks' undefeated record, but one bleak day in Virginia a power-house Quantico Marine team routed the Doughs 56-0, and clipped their winning streak at 17 straight. But the Doughs came back remarkably, tripping one of the mightiest Army teams in the nation, Fort Riley. Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Post commander, commented at the banquet given for the ball team that the Riley victory gave him more pleasure than any other game all year. The Doughs ended their season with a 14-4 deadlock with the Jacksonville Naval Fliers.

Briefly, and all too briefly, we have skinned some of the highlights of the great year of 1947. Sports at Fort Benning improved and were augmented through the fine work of the Post A&R office. Athletics have become a major part of activity at Fort Benning, and the boys from Benning continue to set the pace in Army athletics.

NEHI TRIPS FLYERS WITH 37-35 UPSET

The Lawson gymnasium was the scene of a five minute overtime thriller Monday night when the Nehi bottlers, rapidly rounding into playing condition, tripped the mighty Lawson Flyers 37-35.

At the end of four nip and tuck stanzas both quintets were deadlocked at 33-33, and a five minute extra session period was decided on.

Monday night's surprising victor was Nehi's third consecutive win and averaged a previous 55-44 triumph at the hands of Flyers in a YMCA league game. Total losses to date are two, the other by the Phoenix City Tigers. However, Lawson holds a 55-51 decision over the Tigers, who in turn, downed the Post quintet, 52-45.

Although Nehi trailed 15-12 at the termination of the first stanza, they came back strong to take a quick lead in the last half.

Cowley, a new comer to Coach Dale Ballet's Nehi crew, was top man on his quintet. He racked up 11 points and was crowded closely by Laiche, who scored nine.

However, high honors for the night fell to Lawson's King, a forward, who scored from nearly every square foot of the wooden floor. Winding up with 20 markers, he outdistanced his teammate at center, Button, who tallied seven. Button has paced the Flyers in several recent games, scoring 17 in the previous game with Nehi and tossing in 29 against Cataula in the Y league.

Coach Ballet used twelve of his squad against the eight Flyers who saw action.

Nehi meets the Airborne officers Tuesday afternoon at 5:45 at the Airborne gym and will play a regularly scheduled game in the Y league Thursday night.

Airborne Student Boasts Adventuressome Career

Jumping from airplanes is nothing new to S-Sgt. Marvin Sprague, a student in the Airborne battalion's Company A, who made a jump last February in the general vicinity of the South Pole and has made several free falls from balloons, beachcrafts, and cargo planes.

Sergeant Sprague spent six years in the Navy, most of it on the high seas. His job as parachute rigger made him a key man with the Pacific Task Forces, where he saw more water than land, the land being principally small islands.

"I enlisted in the Army," he observed, "so that I could live in the United States for a while, and be near my wife and daughter." Sergeant Sprague hails from Mokenca, Ill.

"That South Pole jump," he admitted, "was one of three we made on Admiral Byrd's Antarctic Development Project. We were experimenting with the dropping of air rescue equipment, including sleds and dogs. The dogs didn't seem to mind it at all. Two of them actually went out the door under their own power. I was just a little on the nervous side, myself. You see, that's the only static line jump I've ever made."

With Admiral Byrd, whom Sergeant Sprague came to know personally, he left Norfolk, Va., on Dec. 2, 1946. Taking advantage of the "warm" months of January and February in the Antarctic, they undertook extensive explorations and experiments, which, in addition to enlarging the picture of Antarctic geography, will go a long way towards making future expeditions into the little known regions of the North and South Poles safer and more efficient.

His knowledge of life saving methods, parachute rigging and jumping made Sergeant Sprague particularly valuable in the air rescue experiments that Admiral Byrd was pushing with a view of speeding up help to exporing parties in distress.

Admiral

According to Sergeant Sprague's account, Admiral Byrd himself is a man of very rare qualities. A firm enemy of red tape, a believer in man-to-man contact in issuing instructions, he holds his team of explorers and scientists together in a compact, cooperative and understanding bond by a combination of subtle discipline and diplomacy that makes him admired and respected in almost a religious sense, Sergeant Sprague said. His nerve knows no limits. His consideration for others is a trait that is in constant evidence. Those who have worked with him on his expeditions swear that they would never risk the hazards of Polar travel except under his guidance. His sagacity and his advice are available to all, irrespective of rank or position. He's democratic. "He even washes his own mess gear," pointed out Sergeant Sprague.

The Antarctic Development Project, with Sergeant Sprague aboard, dropped anchor in the Potomac on April 25, 1947, writing finis to Admiral Byrd's latest exploit and to Sergeant Sprague's Navy career. As an Army paratrooper he hopes to lead a quieter life.

Sgt. "Don't talk like that, there's a lady present."

'SIT OUT' WEATHER

Delayed in their graduation by weather which prevents the completion of their training jumps, the 88 enlisted men of Company C, the Airborne battalion, joined this week with their two student officers in "sitting out" the citation until their expected graduation date, December 17.

Popular 25th Chorus In WRBL Radio Show

BY AL WISE

Fresh from several concerts following their successful debut performance at Service club No. 2 on Thanksgiving afternoon, the popular 25th Infantry male chorus will participate on a radio station (WRBL's Christmas Eve program). The singing infantrymen will be heard from 11:15 until 11:30 p.m. Dec. 24.

Originated upon the request of Col. Le Grande A. Diller, commanding officer of the 25th, the choristers were recruited and formed into a unit by Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson, director, who was assisted by Sgt. Willis M. Brown, associate director, and T-3 Troy McCall, Jr., pianist and accompanist. Rehearsal periods on the basis of five nights weekly occurred for some five weeks prior to the debut performance.

Featuring sacred numbers, all-time favorites, classical and semi-classical hits, the Soldier singers now have a well balanced repertoire for future concert dates. Additional highlights are heard in T-Sgt. John E. Williams, concert pianist, Sgt. Willis M. Brown, baritone vocalist, and T-3 McCall, who, besides vocal offerings, serves with Sgt. Williams on the two-piano team.

A vast background of musical talent and experience is possessed by the chorus' supervisors. Sgt. Patterson is a graduate in music from Houston college, Prairie View college in Texas, and has too advanced work at Hampton Institute. Widely known in Texas musical circles, Sgt. Patterson taught piano and organ music in public schools, and at the time of his induction in 1941 was organist and director of the Olivet Baptist church 75-voice choir in Houston, Tex.

Associate director Sgt. Willis M. Brown sang for five years with the famed Tuskegee Institute quintet prior to entering the service. He organized, managed and directed the Fort Benning Reception Center choir during the war years. T-3 pianist-accompanist Troy M. McCall, Jr., graduated from Livingston college as a music and dramatic art major. Before coming into the service, he taught music appreciation and dramatics at Price high school in Salisbury, N. C.

back because I want to get ahead and the Army provides that opportunity. Good pay, food, promotions, thirty days a year furlough and everything else a girl could want. I plan to stay in until I retire.

Nurse Edenfield received her Regular Army commission October 28, while the other three nurses became permanent members of the Army Nurse Corps on October 9, 1947.

Three Detachment Men Awarded Promotions

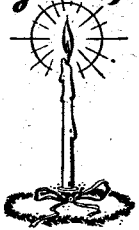

T-5 Oliver F. Thompson, Company B, Infantry School detachment, has been promoted to the grade of sergeant, officials have announced.

Other promotions last week in the detachment included Cpl. Fred L. Virgil, Company B, to the grade of sergeant, and Cpl. Madison H. White, Company A, to technician fourth grade.

right, are First Lieutenants Mary J. McCall, Sammye Edenfield, Edith Ansley and Mildred A. McCally.

Benning Nurses Tell Why They Like Army

Recently sworn into the Regular Army, four nurses from the Gator state report that they wouldn't trade their khaki careers for any other work. First lieutenants, all they plan to remain in the Regular Army Nurse Corps until their retirement.

Sister Mary J. and Mildred A. McCally of Tampa both trained in the Gordon Keller Nursing School of that city. Mary graduating in 1941 and Mildred gaining her diploma the following year.

Both sisters enlisted in the Army in September, 1943, and were assigned to Camp Blanding in their home state. Service followed with the 195th General hospital in Europe, with the two girls traveling from the Normandy beaches through France in October 1944.

Sisters Reenter ANG
Discharged Feb. 22, 1946, they remained together as they reentered listed Nov. 1, 1946, in Tampa. Now stationed here, they proudly wear the ETO campaign ribbon, and American Theater ribbon, and the Victory and Occupation medals.

"We reenlisted in the Army Nurse Corps because we missed any the strong companionship of our co-workers," Mildred stated when asked why she had returned to military service.

"Yes, and the Army offers more opportunities for advancement than civil nursing ever did. We never knew that we'd be far better off in service than out," sister Mary Florida, continued.

With the two sisters were their associates, Lieutenants Edith Ansley and Mildred A. McCally.

ley and Sammye Edenfield, who are also members of the Regular Army Nurse Corps.

Christian Life Tough
"Take my case as for example," Nurse Ansley remarked. "I took training from 1935 to 1938 in the Florida State hospital at Chattahoochee. After I became a graduate nurse, things were still pretty tough in civilian life.

"I joined the Army in February, 1943, enlisting at Camp Rucker, Alabama, where I received my basic Army training. Then the Army provided me with a six-month course in anesthesiology at Lawson General hospital in Atlanta."

After her special training, Lieutenant Ansley returned to Camp Rucker, where she remained until May, 1945, when she went overseas with the 303rd General hospital to the South Pacific.

"I saw service on Guam, Tinian, and Saipan," she continued, "and returned to the States from Saipan for discharge. After ten months of civilian life, I found I didn't want any more of it and came back into the Army on March 10, 1946, for the security of an Army career."

"I hadn't seen Sammye—Lieutenant Edenfield—since we took training together in 1939. I met her again here at Fort Benning after being sworn in at Panama City, Florida."

Gets Surprise
"And was I surprised!" Lieutenants Edenfield exclaimed. "I hadn't seen each other for all those years and then we met in the Army. That's one reason we all like it so—you always know the people you're working with, and they are all your real friends."

Sammye Edenfield, of Tampa, spent a year at Camp Blanding, Fla., before going overseas with the 54th Station hospital. Her training was also at the Gordon Keller Nursing School in Tampa, where she graduated in 1940.

"After 18 months in Africa, with the 5th Station hospital, I joined the staff of the 98th Evacuation hospital, and served with them in Italy, France, and Germany. Experiences overseas are unforgettable, but I learned a great deal more about medicine than I could have ever learned in any other way."

Discharged from the Army after the conclusion of hostilities, Lieutenant Edenfield returned to the ranks the next year, and has been stationed at Fort Benning since March 10, 1947.

Unusual Name

"My name is unusual, I know. But, you see, I was the fourth girl without a boy in the family so my family named me after my father, Sam, anyway. That name has caused me plenty of grief since then, including draft board letters."

After receiving two notifications to report, which I ignored, received a third which warned me that the police would call on me if I refused the third request. "I thought I'd better go."

A block-and-a-half line greeted her as she approached selective service headquarters. After several exhausting hours, she finally reached the supervisor to be greeted by the lines, "You can't come for your husband; he'll have to come for himself."

"With so much trouble about my name," Nurse Edenfield continued, "I have unofficially changed it to 'Violet' among the nurses here. They can't very well confuse that with a man's name." When asked why she has returned to the Army after receiving her discharge, Lieutenant Edenfield stated, "I like the Army, and I think the Army likes me. At least, it's given me all the things I want—companionship, a place to hang my toothbrush, security, and the opportunity to travel. I came

Plans Afoot To Bring 325th To Full Strength

Plans to bring Lawson field's 325th Troop Carrier squadron (Reserve) up to full operating strength for the first time since its activation last summer were revealed last week, following a conference of 14th Air Force reserve officials and Lawson field officers.

The 325th, which was assigned to the field to provide inactive training for approximately 400 reservists in this area, needs both pilot and administrative officer to get its new training program in full swing, officials at the meeting announced.

If the squadron is successful in reaching full strength, it will be assigned its own aircraft from the airbase at Marietta, Ga., they added.

Air reservists interested in inactive training are requested to contact Major John Wretschko, base S-3, at telephone 2701 for further information concerning application for training with the 325th. Selection of officers for vacancies in the organization will be made on the basis of ability, background and interest.

To join the 325th former Air Force officers must have the following qualifications:

Evidence of reserve commission; personnel orders placing officer on flying status; complete a 64 physical examination; possess Form 5 (flight time record); and have orders requiring regular and frequent aerial flights.

Rated personnel of the 325th will be required to fly a minimum of 48 hours a year, portions of which will be night and instrument flying.

Present at the meeting were Lt. Col. James H. Bickersstaff, commanding officer of the 54th Troop Carrier group (Reserve), Marietta Air Base, Ga., of which the 325th is a squadron; Lt. Col. A. S. Sanchez, 302d wing flight surgeon, Marietta Air Base; Lt. Col. Fred E. Henry, Lawson field executive officer; and Maj. John C. Wretschko, base plans and training officer.

Lawson Field Dramatic Group Ends Auditions

The newly organized Lawson field dramatic group has completed auditions for its first radio production, and will begin rehearsals the first week in January, Lt. Louis H. Button, group director announced this week.

The group's major presentation this winter will be a series of 15-minute radio skit, dramatizing historical incidents in the lives of famous aviation pioneers, entitled "Man's Fight to Fly." Rehearsals for the series, which will be heard weekly over a local radio station, beginning in January, will start immediately following the holidays, Lt. Button said.

Among the group's members is Sgt. Paul Walsh, writer-actor, formerly with the Springfield, Mass., Catholic theater, the Springfield playhouse, and the Chicopee players. He has appeared in such famous stage plays as Eugene O'Neill's "Ah Wilderness" and in "Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

French General Completes Tour

General Charles Emanuel Mast, Director of the French Army's Institute of Higher Military Studies of National Defense and Economy of War, departed by plane from Lawson field last Friday morning, following a one-day tour of the Infantry Center.

The French military leader was accompanied by Lt. Gen. Maurice Mathenet, French military attache from Washington, D. C., and Lt. Col. Marc Homo, French Army staff officer.

On a 17-day tour of military installations, the French officers hope to learn as much as possible about the operation of the U. S. Army high level school system and the training system and studies of national defense for application to the French Army.

Arriving here about noon Thursday, General Mast and his associates were met with a guard of honor and greeted by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander.

Following a conference in General O'Daniel's office, the Frenchmen paid a visit to the office of the coordinator of training. After inspecting the Airborne section of the Infantry School, the visitors witnessed demonstrations at Bickford range of rifle and hand grenades, rocket launchers, flame throwers, and a special demonstration of mortars and recoilless weapons at Patton range.

An official dinner at the Officers club late Thursday evening climaxed their stay here.

Gen. Mast and his party will proceed to Maxwell field, Ala. in their next stop of a nationwide tour. Other stops to be made include the Armed Forces Staff college, Norfolk, Va.; Fort Worth, Texas; Presidio or Monterey, Calif.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Langley field, Va.; Washington, D. C.; New York City; and aircraft plants in Los Angeles, Calif.

501st Personnel To Be Absorbed By Three Units

One of the outstanding units of Fort Benning and the Army fell by the wayside this week as the 501st Parachute Infantry Battalion was reduced to zero strength, following the reorganization of School Troops.

Originally a part of the famous 101st Airborne division, the 501st was reduced to zero strength December 15, with the personnel being equally distributed among three organizations.

The organizations absorbing 501st personnel were the 82nd Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C., Headquarters and Service company of the Airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C., Headquarters and Service company of the Airborne Battalion and the Infantry School detachment of the Infantry Center. In addition to the personnel, commanding officers of these units were also transferred.

Major Royal R. Taylor, commanding the 501st, who came to Fort Benning in January, 1947, has been assigned to Company C of the Airborne Battalion here.

Captain Woodrow W. Millsap, former commander of Company A, was transferred to the 11th Airborne division in Yokohama, Japan, after a 45-day leave. Capt. Frank L. Lillyman, formerly commander of Headquarters company, has been re-assigned to the Airborne Battalion.

Captain Magnus T. Smith, 501st executive officer, has taken over his new assignment in the Academic department of the Airborne section of the Infantry School while Lt. Harry H. Stephenson, liaison pilot of the battalion, was transferred to Headquarters and Headquarters company of the 325th Infantry Regiment as liaison officer.

Other reassignments find Lt. Charles J. Kling, former adjutant of the 501st, and Lt. John J. Klish, troop information and education and athletic and recreation officer, both assigned to the Airborne Battalion.

A descendant of the 101st, the 501st came to Fort Benning in August 1946.

Fat Man to his Barber: "What's the idea of charging me more for a shave?"

Barber: "You have two chins, Sir."

Four Officers, One Civilian Cited By Army

In a ceremony last Saturday morning, three Bronze Star medals, an oak leaf cluster to the Legion of Merit and an Army Commendation ribbon were awarded by Major General John W. O'Daniel, post commander, in his office in the Infantry School building to four Benning officers and one civilian.

Colonel Frank Ward, of the Academic department, received an oak leaf cluster for his Legion of Merit for "duty performed as assistant chief of staff and chief of staff in Executive Headquarters, Peiping, China, from April 1946 to February 1947." The headquarters was set up by General Marshall on his peace mission to China to carry out agreements between the Chinese national government and the Chinese Communist party.

In his capacity as chief of staff, Colonel Ward became chairman of the partite Combined Chiefs of Staff to develop methods for the solution of problems which had developed between the Nationalist government and the Communists.

Colonel Hamilton Thorn, of the Infantry Center, Captain John Sadler, of Company H, the Airborne Battalion, and Thomas E. Wynne, of Wart Springs, Georgia, received the Bronze Star medal.

In the citation read by Gen. O'Daniel, Col. Thorn was awarded the Bronze Star for duty performed as regimental commander while in the New Hebrides Islands from April, 1942 to June, 1943. Captain Sadler served as unit commander with the famed Volkmann's Guerrillas on Northern Luzon, and was awarded the Bronze Star for "outstanding service from June, 1945 until November of that year."

Mr. Wynne, former Signal Corps master sergeant, was invited to the Infantry School for his award of the Bronze Star by Gen. O'Daniel. He formerly served in the China-Burma theater with General Stillwell.

Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth Ward received the Army Commendation ribbon for "outstanding duty in the Aleutians from July, 1943 until July 1945." Serving under Amphibious Task Force Nine until July, 1944, he participated in the organization of G-3 section, Headquarters, the Alaskan department, with headquarters at Adak, until his return to the United States the following year.

G. Fuller was named mess, supply, and motor officer.

Completing the list of officer assignments, Lt. Macon L. Bostick, formerly of Company A, has been transferred to the new company as platoon commander.

1st Sgt. Harley B. Harmon, formerly of Headquarters and Service company of the 78th, has been assigned as first sergeant to the new unit of the 307th, while P-Sgt. William C. Slinson becomes mess sergeant.

They laid him out in the station house floor, and the doctor examined him, while the cop who had brought him in stood by. The doctor finished and rose. "That man's been drugged," the cop went white and shivered. He said: "That's right sir. It's my fault, I drug him six blocks."

A man and his wife were suffering from seasickness while their young son seemed to be enjoying the situation. Finally, the mother mustered courage and voice enough to say: "John, I wish you would speak to Willie."

The father, unable to lift his head, said feebly: "Hello, Willie."

Engineer Unit Transferred To 307th Battalion

The 78th Combat Engineer Battalion has become the second organization of School Troops to feel the hatchet in reorganization plans, being reduced to zero strength as of December 15.

Personnel of the 78th have been transferred to Company C of the 307th Engineer Battalion, which is one of the several new units organized recently as a result of the reorganization.

Captain Frank J. Martinez has been assigned to the newly organized Company C of the 307th as company commander. Lt. William R. Chaires and Lt. Edward A. Cox have taken over new duties as platoon commanders, while Lt. Hiram

'Doughboy's General' Meets With Non-Coms

Literally discarding traditional formality, General Omar N. Bradley met in informal discussion with a representative group of non-commissioned officers here Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 10, to collect the views of enlisted men.

A low murmur of conversation filled the halls of the Infantry School as a lone staff car rolled to the steps of the building and a quiet, dignified man, wearing shined rimmed glasses, descended. His smile was cheerful despite the storm filled skies overhead. Four stars glistened on his shoulders.

Entering the building, General Bradley, next chief of staff of the United States Army, was presented to more than 30 non-commissioned officers, who met and freely aired their opinions with him.

As each man entered the conference room in the Infantry School building, General Bradley was presented to him, and inquired concerning the man's past experiences in the service.

"These men are old-timers in the Army. They know what makes it click," General Bradley said in a statement to reporters after the discussion. "At present I am trying to find out what the soldier thinks about in the field and what personal problems exist. For example, I want to get the enlisted man's reaction to the uniform and what he thinks of the proposed changes in his dress. These are critical times. In the post-war years, we are faced with the problem of reorganizing the Army so we carefully developed a few years ago. Instability is the theme of our situation now, and we want to learn what the enlisted men, who get the first-hand information, are thinking. I want to get this information directly from them. If the Army has faults, we want to cure them if we can."

General Bradley completed his inspection tour of Fort Benning last Friday and departed for Fort MacPherson, Ga. He plans to make another trip of inspection of Army posts after Christmas.

Signs Named To Head Base Personnel Office

Lt. Frederick K. Signs, Squadron A adjutant since his arrival at Lawson field last October, has been appointed base military personnel officer, officials have announced. He succeeds Capt. Joseph W. Lewandoski, who was appointed base S-1, last week. Commissioned in May, 1945, Lt. Signs served in Germany during 1946-47. He left the service last June and was recalled to active duty as an officer in October. He reported to Lawson field from Memphis AAF, Tenn.

NOW IN FOURTH WEEK

Company A of the Airborne Battalion entered its fourth week of training Monday with 15 officers and 91 enlisted men practicing controlled jumping from the 200-foot towers and learning how to pack parachutes.

Burges Reenlists As Staff Sergeant

James C. Burges, of Moultrie, Ga., has reenlisted in the Army Sixth Air Force in the Panama Canal Zone for 17 months as a staff sergeant. It was announced this week by the School Troops recruiting office.

He attended Cooks and Bakers School at Fort Jackson, S. C., and later attended Mess Sergeant school at Maxwell field, Ala. He Burgess served with the 16th Fighter Control squadron of the 37th Infantry regiment.

... and the stockings were hung by the chimney with care—

Eisenhower Sends Yule Greetings To All Troops

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, has sent the following Christmas greetings to United States troops throughout the world:

"On this third Christmas since the end of the war, I greet you—men and women of the United States Army—who serve the cause of peace in stations across the earth.
"Your mission bears close identity with the spirit of Christmas, for you seek to maintain a world in which men of good will may dwell and earn their livelihood in peaceful security at all seasons of the year. The goal is still attainable, though it is more difficult today, among many millions there is fear. But the spiritual and material strength of our country preserves the hope that out of the morrow shall come better things. You are part of that strength. By your service, by your performance of duty, you help sustain the faith that right and justice and law, prosperity and fruitful living shall again be mankind's portion and that charity among men shall again reign.
"This Christmas is the last in which I shall have the privilege of official association with you. But at this season of every year to come, I shall recall with deep personal gratitude how you and those who served in our wartime forces made possible the rebirth of Christmas peace. And this year I wish the day may be, for all of you who have honorably worn the American uniform, a merry, happy one, and that the months ahead shall be filled with blessings."

Gen. O'Daniel's Message

The approaching Christmas season and its attendant respite from the strains of our workaday world gives us time to pause for a while to celebrate with our families and relatives and to enjoy ourselves to the fullest extent possible.
As Americans we are able to do this, because we live in a land of plenty, where the last war failed to strike down our capacity for production. As soldiers of the United States Army, I shall be proud because we have earned, as a result of our efforts during the past twelve months, a right to enjoy the joyous Yuletide season.
During this period all of you have done a fine job. It has been a period of recovery from a war-time status to one of peace, and you have been called upon to test your characters as soldiers and as men. You have acquitted yourselves well.
My very best wishes to each of you for a Very Merry Christmas and a Joyful New Year.

JOHN W. O'DANIEL
MAJOR GENERAL, U. S. ARMY.

Col. Collar's Message

TO: The Military and Civilian Personnel of Lawson Field
With Christmas and its accompanying holiday season drawing near, thoughts of good fellowship and joy replace for a time the cares of the world; and with this season of happiness there comes the need for renewed caution to preserve the health and happiness of every member of the families so dear to each of us.
At no time during the year are the rates of accidents and tragedies so high as at Christmas and New Year, for it is this season that is devoted solely to relaxation and the enjoyment of the things most precious to each of us. Let us remember that the holidays will be far happier for everyone if we will devote a fraction of our time and care to the safety of those dear to us and dear to others.
With this thought in mind, and with the splendid record of a year of achievement behind us, my sincerest wish is that each of you will have a Merry Christmas, and a happy, prosperous, and healthy New Year.

Newspapers' Message

To Fort Benning personnel:
We extend sincere Christmas Greetings.
Another year has slipped by, and our associations with each other continue to cement our friendship more closely. It is good to have you as a neighbor. May we always be good neighbors in the community.

Friendship Train Hailed As Success At Benning

BY DICK BARKER
Bayonet Staff Writer
As the children excitedly discussed their impending trip, the locomotive's bell clanged, food supplies mounted, and the crowds gathered.
"Was the initial trip of the Christmas Friendship Train at Fort Benning. The pupils of the Fort Benning Children's School No. 1 were to ride on a conducted tour of the post in the four-car, 65-foot miniature train—for the benefit of needy families in the community.
The lines of school children emerged from the building, each one holding cans and boxes of food. The pile grew steadily larger as the classes climbed aboard.
The kindergarten was first. The two teachers had their hands full as the chaos of sixty-odd kids piled into the cars and shrieked their delight at riding on a Christmas train."
The cab was occupied by Joel Amerson, who drives the train regularly at Idle Hour park in Alabama. An Army and Navy veteran at 19 years of age, Joel seemed to take the causeless clamor of the children in his stride.

"I'm used to them," was his rejoinder.

Local Instructor Selected Typical Peace-Time GI

T-Sgt. Jimmie W. Hallman, recollects weapons instructor at the Infantry School, has been selected by the Department of the Army as a typical peace-time soldier, and his Army biography along with his photograph, is being used on recruiting posters throughout the United States. It was learned here this week.
While stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., last May, Sgt. Hallman was ordered to Washington, D. C., to be interviewed and photographed for the Army's recruiting campaign. At the same time approximately 200 other soldiers were interviewed for the same purpose. Since then Sgt. Hallman's picture and notes on his Army career have appeared on posters in Washington, Florida, Texas, and in numerous newspapers. Life magazine has also interviewed him, and RKO-Pathé newsreel company.
Sgt. Hallman entered the Army March 23, 1939, at Orlando, Fla., which is also his hometown. He saw duty with the Third Cavalry from 1940 until 1941 at Fort Meyer, Va., and with the 124th Infantry at Fort Benning for a part of 1941. He later joined the Parachute School here, and upon his graduation became an airborne instructor.
The 24-year old sergeant went to North Africa with the 82nd Airborne division in 1942, serving with the unit until he was wounded in Italy. He then joined the 36th Infantry division for campaigns in Italy, France, and Germany. Wounded again, he was hospitalized, and eventually returned to the States for further training.
Sgt. Hallman was discharged July 17, 1945, and reenlisted Feb. 11, 1947, at Fort Benning. Following assignment to Fort Jackson, he entered the Adjutant General's School at Camp Lejeune and came to Fort Benning Sept. 13, 1947.
The young sergeant wears the Distinguished Service Cross, Purple Heart medal, Silver Star, Combat Infantry Badge, ETO ribbon with seven battle stars, Victory medal, Good Conduct medal, American Defense ribbon, and Pre-Per-Harbor ribbon.

Friday Ceremony Honors Officers

A battle steamer was awarded to the 37th Infantry regiment and three officers were decorated by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, post commander, in presentation ceremonies at Stilwell field Friday.

Colonel Irvine C. Schleder, commanding officer of the Student Training regiment, was presented the Legion of Merit by Gen. O'Daniel for service in the Philippines during the ceremonies. The citation from the Department of the Army read:

Citation Read
"For exceptionally meritorious service in the Philippine islands from 4 March to 17 May 1942. As commander of the Cebu forces and as chief of staff of the Visayan Force he exhibited outstanding leadership and organizational ability which materially contributed to the courageous defense by the United States Army."

Also awarded the Legion of Merit was Lt. Colonel John J. Deane, assistant G-1 of the Infantry Center. While divisional adjutant general with the 36th Infantry division, "Col. Deane's service during the period of August 1, 1943 to July 14, 1944, in the Italian theater, was distinguished greatly to the success of his unit."
Captain Samuel W. Foster, assistant for the 37th Infantry Center, was awarded the Bronze Star medal for "meritorious service with the First Army in the European Theatre of Operations from June 1944 to May 1945." His citation read:

Gets Bronze Star
"As administrative officer, First Army, he inaugurated and improved facilities for the dissemination of counter-intelligence information from all echelons and aided in effective military security throughout the First Army area."
"Captain Foster's knowledge of counter-intelligence and military censorship matters were of great assistance during the planning stage and throughout the campaign."

In an address to the massed band of School Troops, General O'Daniel emphasized the necessity for care and responsibility in the conduct of the individual soldier during the Christmas holiday.
"Many of you are representatives of the Army and that the Army is judged by your conduct and appearance," he said during

New Airborne Unit Stationed On Post

Recently organized at Fort Bragg, N. C., Company K of the 504th Airborne Infantry regiment, 82nd Airborne division, has been transferred to Fort Benning and is now attached to the 325th Infantry regiment.
Entirely qualified in parachute jump training, the company's primary mission at Fort Benning is to provide the airborne phase of tactical problems of the Infantry School requiring demonstration of airborne capability. The company's commanding officer, Captain Clarence H. Armstrong.
Rotation of airborne companies of the 82nd Airborne division will return Company K to Fort Bragg March 15, when they will be replaced by another unit of the regiment.

UMT to Triple Post Population

Strength of Fort Benning personnel will almost triple if the Universal Military Training bill passes Congress. Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, stated before a Rotary club meeting in Columbus last Wednesday.

Predicting an additional 23,000 personnel to the 12,000 currently stationed at the post, the two-star general told the assembly that over 1,000 of the additions would be officers and that 65 per cent of them could be expected to have families with them here at Benning.

However, in estimating personnel increases, General O'Daniel was careful to emphasize that it was not definite that Fort Benning would be selected as a training center for the UMT program if the legislation is passed.

He also urged feeding the peoples of western Europe this winter—"so that they will be attracted to the strong man, America."
"We feel that the world could be democratic if the peoples of liberated countries desired to so run their countries," he asserted. "We must help them to be democratic... to prevent another war."

Vocational School Planning To Open Dramatic Course

The Infantry Center's vocational school is contemplating opening a dramatic workshop course in January provided there is enough interest among Fort Benning troops. Lt. John Cunningham, school director, announced today.

Lt. Cunningham said ladies are especially urged to enroll with the school for training in the course, and pointed out that all types of dramatics, including make-up artists, stage property men, stage managers, scenery painters and directors, in addition to actors, will be accepted.

Plans call for the complete casting, production, and direction of a play, and it is hoped to present the play selected by the students in the Main Post theater, he said.
Anyone interested in such a course should contact Lt. Cunningham at the Troop Information and Education office, the Infantry Center, or telephone 3052 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Bayonet, City Merchants Sponsoring Baby Derby

The first baby to be born at Fort Benning in the year 1948 will be greeted with approximately 100 dollars in prize money as well as with the title "Mr. New Year."
The first annual baby derby, sponsored by the city merchants in cooperation with The Bayonet, was inaugurated in 1944. Since that time, the derby has been a popular event, and two girls have received prizes as the first child of the year to be born in the Stillwell field area. Similar prizes are awarded against the winner of this year's race.
The year's winner, Paul Oliver Neely, arrived at the record-breaking time of 30 seconds past midnight. Son of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Vincent T. Neely, he weighed sevence and six-and-one-half ounces as he became Mr. 1947.

The first winner of the annual derby was a girl, Sandra Ann Milano, born to Sgt. and Mrs. Archie Milano. The year 1945 saw another girl take honors as Patricia Mary Holtfreiter was born to Cpl. and Mrs. Joseph O. Holtfreiter.
First boy to be crowned, Vincent Joseph Jaeger was born to M-Sgt. and Mrs. Joseph V. Jaeger, Jr. He weighed 7 pounds 12 ounces the wife just a scant 32 seconds before the next arrival.
In Hospital authorities here report that approximately 50 expectant mothers are registered at the maternity ward, and expect their children during the holiday season.

Sand Hill Units Reveal Yuletide Holiday Plans

By AL WISE
Personnel from the 25th Infantry and 999th Field Artillery remaining at Fort Benning over the 15 and one-half holiday period, will have ample recreational activities to engage them during the year's longest period of inactivity. Only necessary duties such as ward, mess, and unit administration will be maintained.

Sunday, December 21, was marked by the regular church services and open house starting at 5:30 p. m. in the Service club, where carol singing was enjoyed by a large attendance. Starting at the regular hour, 6 p. m., a large number of worshippers heard evening vespers in Chapel No. 3. Beginning at 8 p. m. Monday, the 25th Infantry band inaugurated a new feature by marching through the area and serenading the respective battalions.

Conducted under the supervision of Mrs. Valerie H. Deslandes, area director for the USO-YWCA, a delightful seasonal party was given Tuesday by the enlisted men's wives arts and crafts club.

A one-hour concert in the regimental chapel from 11 until 12 a. m. will be presented by the 25th Infantry male chorus on Wednesday. Under the direction of Chaplain John A. DeVeaux and, Gerald L. Hayden and Mrs. Katie L. Trent, the annual Christmas party for children of Sand Hill personnel will be held in the Service club starting at 3 p. m. This is but one of the many benefits received from the annual Community Chest contributions.

The remainder of the day will be highlighted by the illumination of decorations throughout the area at 7:30 p. m., serenade of battalions by the regimental band beginning at 8 p. m., Christmas carolling by the 25th Infantry male chorus at 10 p. m., and Protestant service in the regimental chapel from 11-12 p. m. From 11:15 through 11:30 p. m., the 24th Infantry male chorus will be featured over radio station WRB's Christmas Eve program.

Christmas morning, Col. Le Grande A. Diller and Chaplain Gerald L. Hayden will visit personnel of the 25th Infantry and 999th Field Artillery who are at the post hospital. Inspection of various unit messes will start at 12:30 p. m., and for the remainder of the day special activities in the Service club, 25th Infantry, and 999th Field Artillery NCO clubs, and the Patten House and Pine Lodge Officer's clubs will entertain members and guests.

For the remainder of the holidays, a varied program has been planned.

VANDEEVER TRANSFERRED
Cpl. Owen Vandever, Company B of the Airborne battalion, has been transferred to Headquarters and Service company of the battalion, officials said today.

the support of the Muscogee County Welfare board and the Family Service bureau, which sponsored the enterprise.

As the brakeman climbed atop the car, Engineer Amerson found the cord to the bell, and once again its call pealed over the school grounds. Confusion exploded as the cry, "All aboard," came from beside the train, and the colorful caravan moved into the stream of traffic.

Powered by a 1941 Chevrolet truck motor, the driver's seat resembles nothing more or less than a rather cramped truck cab, except the gear shift appeared behind the driver's right shoulder. The military police escort raced their motorcycle as the train moved up the street towards the Infantry School. Behind the cab, the clamor continued.

"Hi... hello... there's Mommy!" were heard as the passengers greeted startled pedestrians. "Foot, foot, foot, foot yours!" Reclamations, bickering, singing, laughing, and above all, shouting... the Santa Claus Special was on its way.

Sing Carols
Despite the chill weather, teachers of the seven grades soon had their classes merrily singing Christmas carols and winter songs as they rolled happily along. "Jingle bells, jingle bells... drifted across the crisp air.

As the Friendship Train swung around the Infantry School, so that General O'Daniel could see the expedition, conversations within the cars continued on a great variety of subjects and at an exceedingly rapid and confusing rate of speech. "I brought cans of milk, soup, and apricots," one little girl stated matter-of-factly.

"Everybody's waving at us," said another.
"Let me see if I can see my daddy."
"I can't see a thing." This last was from a little fellow sandwiched between two teachers and well away from the windows.

Tour Hospital Area
Toothless grins spread into a dawning response as the cry came again, "All aboard!"
Final and crowning touch occurred as the train rolled through the hospital area. One little girl said, in all seriousness, "What are we going here for? I'm not sick."

After that, any other comment was anti-climax.
After successful completion of the children's rides, and the collection of vast quantities of canned goods, the Christmas Friendship train moved on to the Post Exchange grocery, where donations were received from Christmas shoppers for the rest of the day.

The result of the day's campaign for food for underprivileged families; almost $500 worth of groceries contributed by Fort Benning, and a schoolful of happy children, remembering their ride on the Christmas Friendship Train and awaiting next Christmas so that they may ride again.

the holidays, carry yourselves as soldiers and adults," he said.

"While I am here, I want to compliment you all on the magnificent job you have done here in the past. The 37th Infantry regiment is being inactivated next month, which will be hard for all of you. But in changing to the 325th Infantry, you remain with a fine outfit with a great record."

"The 325th Infantry regiment carries a name of great distinction, and has an outstanding record of achievement during the war. As members of the 325th Combat team, as you will be after the first of the year, I hope you will do all within your power to make it a going concern and a fighting team."

Following the address, School Troops passed in review, before General O'Daniel and the decorated officers.

Infantry NCO Course Completes Tenth Week

Infantry Non-commissioned Officers' course No 2 has completed its 10th week of training, and, following the holidays, will have only eight weeks before graduation, officials said today.

The students, during the past two weeks, have received instruction in field problems and tactics.

VOL. 7 COLUMBUS, GA., DEC. 24, 1947 NO. 15

The Bayonet is published by the Ledger-Examiner Company as a civilian enterprise in compliance with Par. 4, W. O. Circular 484 (dated Dec. 1944) in the interest of the officer and enlisted personnel of Fort Benning and continues to all units that make up Greater Fort Benning.

The Freedom Train

As 1947 draws to a close, and as we go to press for the next to last time this year, we can't help but look back on the past twelve months with a feeling of pride and thanksgiving.

Few Americans have been hungry or cold. No one has been denied the right of free speech. No one has refused the right to worship God in his own way.

To make us more conscious of our heritage and our freedom, there is coming to Columbus next week, the Freedom Train, a long streamliner in which is displayed all the famous documents through which we have gained the right to be called the greatest nation on earth.

Guarding these documents, and at the same time symbolizing the strength and power of the U. S., are members of the United States Marine Corps. To see these young men and these documents should be enough to make us swell to the bursting point with pride and love of country.

The Bayonet hopes that all of you will make it your duty to visit the Freedom Train when it arrives in Columbus December 30.

Your Red Cross

By MURRAY E. HILL

Christmas is the magic word which means it is time again to gather family and friends around the hearth. These days "hearth" may mean a steam radiator; or a pit in a cabin floor; or the day room of a veterans' hospital; or perhaps a real old fashioned fireplace with a grate log.

The Junior Red Cross will see that children still suffering from the aftermath of war will have holiday remembrances from American boys and girls. In this country the Red Cross is doing everything to make sure that children in both Army and civilian hospitals, on Dec. 25, will also hold a special meeting.

Plans include Christmas parties as well as entertainment in brightly decorated wards with Red Cross volunteers in attendance. Hundreds of bushels of fruit, hard candies, nuts, fruit cakes, and other Christmas refreshments will be distributed.

Not forgotten either by your Red Cross are the residents of homes for the aged, orphan, mental institutions, and hospitals for blind and crippled children. Many will share the excitement produced by Red Cross chapter workers.

This year your Red Cross will distribute to hospitalized servicemen and veterans enough Christmas cards for each patient to receive five for his personal use.

Junior Red Cross boys and girls will brighten the holidays of children who would not otherwise have reminder of Santa Claus. Toys made in the schools of American children will re-create the spirit of Christmas for many a child in a displaced persons camp, an unheated school room, or an orphanage.

Your own Red Cross at Fort Benning wishes to extend to all on the post a merry Christmas and a very happy New Year.

HOLIDAY OR HOLY DAY
By Chaplain R. F. Canis

Birthdays are usually the occasion for celebration and merry making. The birthday celebrant is honored with parties, gifts, greetings, and other felicitations on the anniversary of his birth.

Yet, there is one birthday celebrated each year with almost complete disregard for the One whose birthday it is. For weeks most of us have been busy shopping, writing Christmas cards, who made Christmas possible, in one community the Merchants' Association has even suggested that the carols played on the streets and in the stores, during the Christmas shopping season, include only those of a non-religious nature, such as "Jingle Bells," "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," and others. It is all just a modern version of the old, old story. Christ is crowded out. There is no room for Him in the inn at Bethlehem. There is no room for Him in our lives today. All we want is Santa Claus—the holiday version of Christmas.

How, in the Name of Christ, can such a thing be? Christmas was first a Holy Day. It was a Holy Night, when Christ was born. He was a Holy Child of Bethlehem whose birth the angel choir heralded. We can never forget His will to men, until we make His Day a Holy Day and open our hearts to Him saying, "Come into my heart Lord, Jesus, as I have in my heart for Thee." Make Christ a part of your Christmas planning, your Christmas living, your Christmas giving, and your Christmas worship. Go to church somewhere on Christmas Day.

"That's a hot number," the steer said with a wink as the glowing branding iron was applied to his shoulder.

This Day

Editor's Note: This is the tenth in a series of This Day which presents a chronicle of American events, highlights of history, that mark each day in the narrative of our nation. Today's column recalls the events between December 19 and This Day, December 24.

DECEMBER 19, 1776. . . On This Day, 171 years ago, The Commonwealth Journal published "The Crisis" by Tom Paine for the first time. Later published in pamphlet form, it stirred American patriots like no other book. . . On This Day, 170 years ago, in 1777, General George Washington established winter headquarters at strategic Valley Forge, 22 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

DECEMBER 20, 1791. . . It was 156 years ago on This Day that Samuel Slater started the first successful cotton mill in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. He was born in 1768 in England. . . On This Day, 144 years ago, in 1803, W. C. C. Claiborne, Governor of Mississippi Territory, took formal possession of Louisiana for the United States. . . In 1860, 87 years ago, South Carolina seceded from the Union. . . Lincoln refused to withdraw Federal troops from Fort Sumter, S. C. The first shots were fired that threw the nation into its terrible Civil War.

DECEMBER 21, 1620. . . On This Day, 327 years ago, the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, Massachusetts. . . It was 19 years ago, in 1928 that Congress authorized appropriations of $165,000,000 for the construction of Boulder Dam.

DECEMBER 22, 1775. . . It was exactly 172 years ago that the Continental Congress appointed Captain Ezekiel Hopkins as the first American Chief of the Continental Navy. . . On this day, six years ago, in 1841, Prime Minister Winston Churchill made a surprise visit to the President of the United States to confer with President Roosevelt on problems of World War II.

DECEMBER 23, 1889. . . This Day, 58 years ago, marks the death of Henry W. Grady, famous orator who did so much to cement friendly relations between the North and South after the War Between the States. Grady was an Atlanta, Georgia, product. . . It was on This Day, 40 years ago, in 1907, that the Army Signal Corps issued specifications and called for bids for the Army's first airplane. . . On This Day, 34 years ago, the Federal Reserve System was established.

DECEMBER 24, 1814. . . Exactly 133 years ago today the treaty of Ghent was signed by the United States and Britain, ending the war of 1812. . . And it was on This Day, 96 years ago, in 1851 that a fire swept through the Library of Congress and destroyed some 30,000 volumes. . . On This Day in 1938, nine years ago, the Declaration of Lima was signed by the delegates to the International Conference of American States, at Lima, Peru, making way for solidarity of the Americas against the rising menace of Nazism.

Colorful Birthday Celebration Fetes Miss Bangert Saturday

Highlighting the holidays for the young set was the gala party given Saturday at their quarters by Major and Mrs. Athel Bangert to honor their daughter, Judith Kaye, on her fourth birthday.

The afternoon event featured games for the young guests with prizes, and a special feature was the visit from Santa who dropped in to find out what each guest wanted for Christmas.

A brightly decorated Christmas tree was featured in the living room, where balloons hung from the walls, and in the hall the youngsters were greeted by the colorful sight of paper hats hung on the walls. The hats were given as favors. Cookies cut as fancy figures for the holidays were arranged on the table and each guest was given a box of the sweets to take home.

The sun porch was arranged as a small restaurant set with five small tables, and a pink and blue color scheme was used with paper napkins, streamers covering the walls, and special cloths all in pink and blue shades. The huge birthday cake of pink and blue, marked "Happy Birthday to Judith," was served with ice cream and more favors.

Guests for the afternoon were the honoree, Judy Dixon, Debbie Dixon, Jackie VanVleet, Bobbie Urban, Jackie Urban, Tommy Stephens, Robert Bull, Ann Thomas, Sharon Owens, Earl Wells, Billie McDowell, Susan Nicholas, Jenny Cardona, Gladys Brock, Fay Brown, Penny Evans, Danny Benton, Johnny Farnell, Susan Ayers, Randy Ammons and Bobbie Meyer. Mrs. Robert Bull assisted with the arrangements.

Walters Entertain At Aperitif Party

Entertaining approximately 80 of their friends, Major and Mrs. Warren Walters were hosts at a gala cocktail party, Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 7 p.m., in the Palm room and small lounge of the Officers' club.

Silver and blue made the effective holiday color theme, and the serving table was beautifully arranged with a centerpiece of silver pine cones and needles with tree balls. This motif was repeated in similar arrangements about the rooms. Blue candles were used in the silver candelabras and the punch bowl was arranged on a table decorated with the silver and blue theme.

ENACT CHRISTMAS STORY—Students at Children's School No. 1 told the Christmas story in their annual pageant presented to a capacity crowd in the school auditorium for parents and friends last week.

Annual Christmas Pageant Given By Students At School

The students of Children's School No. 1 presented their annual Christmas pageant in the school auditorium last week when, to a capacity crowd of parents and friends saw the highly successful program given under the direction of Mrs. Bert Santori, music teacher.

Piano accompaniment was furnished by Suzanne Doran and Peggy Edris. Miss Edris also acted as narrator for the Christmas story which was given in six scenes with George Godfrey, Douglas Dial, Cyril Settles, and their assistants taking care of the scenery and stage properties.

Elizabeth Corvin played the part of Mary, and the role of Joseph was played by Jimmie Sutherland. The three kings were Billy Shannon, Neil Davis, and David Kent, while the shepherds were Douglas Dial, Jimmy Dunne, and John Stanley. The angel trio was composed of Donna Mae Griffiths, Ellen Milfin, and Jean Gibb.

Singing in the angel chorus were Jo Ann Hennis, Barbara Young, Ann Thompson, Carol Sue Thompson, Ellen Waite, Thesia Gray, Barbara Dobrosky, Margaret Huff, Sharon Smith, Susan Mikelsen, Judith Greene, Patsy Young, June O'Mohundro, Carole Millikan, Borden Wilson, Corinne Follenore, Mary Catherine Merrill, Freida Shulte, Auline Overton, Barbara Bernard, Elsie Bonifay, Marcia Kelly, Georgie Ann Lee, Merline Maudis, Josette Outlaw, Laura Greene, Margaret Greene, Ray Jones, Pat London, Betty Raymond, Carole Roelfs, Lee Woodham, Suzanne Doran, Barbara Beasley, Katherine Lou Moore, and Dorothy Rodemeyer.

Col., Mrs. Walker Hosts At Buffet Held At Quarters

Col. and Mrs. G. C. Walker entertained at a delightful buffet supper at their quarters last week in celebration of the holidays when their guests were served earlier and the guests found a real Christmas tree on the sun porch.

The traditional decorations were beautifully carried out with the mantel arranged with tinted pine cones, pine boughs, green moss, and green tapers in silver candleabra. The buffet table was set with tall red tapers held in apples made into candleabra and the same decorations with holly around the red apples appeared on each of the small tables.

Guests for the evening were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Donald Thompson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. C. Peters, Major and Mrs. Warren Waiters, Major and Mrs. Harry Brown, Major and Mrs. Carl Sachs, Major and Mrs. Harry Fields, Major and Mrs. James Terry, Capt. and Mrs. Allen Peters, and Capt. and Mrs. Robert Frost.

Nursery School To Enlarge; Aid Asked For Renovation

In answer to many requests, the nursery school will be enlarged to accommodate more than 70 youngsters by the beginning of February. It was announced this week by Mrs. Joe V. Morey, chairman of the committee.

A new building has been secured for use by the school which is entirely self-supporting, and when the nursery will be located at the end of Lumpkin road in a triangle with Blessing street in a building which was formerly used as a barracks for War

A charge of seven dollars per month is made for the students. The nursery, for youngsters from two through five years of age, operates five days each week from 9:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. Parents must furnish transportation for their children.

Mrs. Morey has asked that any surplus toys be turned over to the nursery after Christmas, and said that any donations of books or furniture for the new building would also be appreciated.

String Ensemble Heard At Party Given At Quarters

With a string ensemble furnishing Christmas music, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joe Lambert entertained with an ekgnog party for a group of friends at last Sunday.

Guests were Col. and Mrs. J. A. Nichols, Col. and Mrs. John Frederick, Mrs. G. Cabell, Col. and Mrs. L. C. Boineau, Col. and Mrs. John C. Blizzard, Col. and Mrs. Harry VanTassel, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry Grizzard, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph Toke, Lt. Col. and Mrs. David Shore, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Luther, Mrs. Robert Robert, Mrs. L. Cabell, Col. and Mrs. P. F. Cassidy, Capt. and Mrs. O. P. Plant, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Pearce and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Starlin.

Mrs. Cabell is the mother of Mrs. Frederick, and is visiting on the Post during the holidays. She is from Fort Smith, Ark.

Announce Birth

Sergeant and Mrs. George Monkhouse announce the birth of a daughter, Theresa Cayol, on December 10 at the Station hospital. Mrs. Monkhouse is the former Miss Theresa Middleton, of Detroit, Michigan. Sergeant Monkhouse was formerly a member of the 501st Parachute Infantry battalion, recently deactivated at Fort Benning.

Eastern Star Has Party Following Regular Meeting

Members and guests of the Order of the Eastern Star No. 278 had a pleasant Christmas party last Thursday evening following the regular meeting.

A beautiful Christmas tree was the center of decorations in the recreation hall, and the tables were covered with white and green cloths with holly down the center. The punch bowl was also decorated with holly.

Gifts were exchanged with names drawn from the tree and each member revealed the name of her secret pal of the past year.

Mrs. Kermit Griner, worthy matron, was presented with silver candleabra by the members, and the worthy patron, Harry Bridges, was presented with some shrub to set out around his new home.

A special guest for the evening was Mrs. Ethel Moncrief, worthy matron from Columbus.

Assisting Mrs. Griner on the arrangements were Mrs. Richard V. Jasco, Miss L. Jenkins, Mrs. C. W. Hutchison, and Mrs. William E. Gunn.

Holiday Tea Dance Of School Troops At Polo Hunt Club

Officers and ladies of School Troops held a pleasant holiday tea dance Sunday evening from 8 to 9 p. m. at the Polo Hunt club when a light buffet was served and music was furnished by Sgt. Ben Corrie and his orchestra.

Approximately 185 guests attended, including Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Jr., and Mrs. H. P. Groesbeck, Jr., Col. and Mrs. John C. Blizzard, Col. and Mrs. Walter Johnston, Col. and Mrs. Wiley O'Mohundro, Col. and Mrs. Daniel E. Buckland, Col. and Mrs. J. A. Nichols and Lt. Col. and Mrs. O. O. Wilson.

Headquarters company and Service company of School Troops were sponsors of the event with Capt. Claude Keogh and Capt. E. C. Navarree in charge of arrangements.

Greens and Christmas lights were used about the room and the buffet table, in the shape of a U, was beautifully arranged with red tapers, pine bark and silvered pine cones used with bright tree balls on the white cloth.

Phenix Cagers Smash Lawson In 59-54 Win

A previously unbeaten Fort Jackson quintet was caught in the middle of a lightning knot at the Main Post gym last Thursday night, and the hapless South Carolinians were belted thoroughly, going down before a strong and improved Benning five 51-42.

A jack rabbit forward, Doug Scovill, provided the thrills for the skimpy crowd of spectators as the new edition of the Doughboy cagers caught fire in the second-half, playing their first colossal basketball of the infant season. It was the fast-moving Scovill who led the evening's scores with an impressive total of 21 points, but his play on the floor, passing, faking and defensive job, were no less dazzling.

Last night's duke gave the Doughs their second win in six outings, while the victims were handed their first defeat in as many tries. The Doughs held the lead practically every minute of the final canto, and in the last 12 minutes of the game, the Doughs mounted an almost insurmountable margin.

Scores Nine Times

Doug Scovill tallied nine times from the floor, and added one from the foul line, sinking shots from every conceivable angle. Scovill, who worked his way up the chief shooting wizard on Ced Tallis' crew, and, as a result of his fine exhibition Thursday night, he moved to the top spot in the individual scoring standings. Harold Haberman and Bob Kinard shared some of the evening's honors, Scovill standing out mainly for their terrific defensive play.

For the first time in the history of the ball game, the lead exchanged hands a number of times, but Harold Lutz sank one from the middle to give the Doughs a 23-23 advantage at the intermission.

Harold Cortizi and Scovill connected first in the last period to stretch the locals' lead, but a sharp shooting John Hamdin, who came from the court corners, dropped a pair through the hoop to put the South Carolinians back in the ball game. At this point, Scovill and Cortizi really began to pour on the heat, and by the time ten minutes had run out, the Doughs held the Jackson team by a 49-39 margin.

Win Not Surprising

The Dough's victory, after seeing the team work the first half, came as no surprise to the hands full of court fans, but the rejuvenated efforts of the Post team than Ced Tallis led last season, passing, faking and shooting with such adeptness that the doughs had a hard time keeping last stanza.

Doughboy defense tightened in Basketball has often been called a game of revenge, and the revenge that the Phenix City Tigers got Thursday night was sweet indeed. The fast moving Alabama quintet avenged a previous 55-51 defeat at the hands of the Lawson field Flyers when they dumped the same five 59-49 at the Phenix City gym.

The Tigers managed to turn back both the Post quintet and the Flyers Wednesday night. Phenix City eked out a 50-43 over the Doughboys at the Main Post gym.

Phenix eased away after battling nip and tuck with the Flyers for better than a half. It was the sharp shooting of Fred Haines and Peden that enabled the Tigers to pull away late in the third period. At the intermission, the Phenix team held a 28-21 advantage, and midway through the third stanza they still close at 33-30. Bob Kinard on the steam and won hands.

At the end of three complete periods the Tigers held a ten-point margin, and managed to hold that same lead until the final whistle. A fast breaking offense enabled the Phenix cause consistently, coupled with the offensive work of Haines and Peden and the defensive play of Jackson, Haines and Peden finished in a tie for scoring honors, each tallying the even's laurels with 22. His running mate, King, also was a high scorer with 13.

Tiger Five Bests Benning Courtmen

A hard-fighting Doughboy quintet miscued on a last second "dream play" and allowed the Phenix City Tigers to chalk up their second consecutive victory over Ced Tallis' crew, 45-43, at the Main Post gym Wednesday night.

A hard-fighting Doughboy quintet miscued on a last second "dream play" and allowed the Phenix City Tigers to chalk up their second consecutive victory over Ced Tallis' crew, 45-43, at the Main Post gym Wednesday night.

The Doughs fought valiantly to avenge last week's setback by the Alabama five, Wednesday night's defeat marked the locals' fourth loss in five outings.

With six seconds remaining in the ball game, Bill Weber, Ben-throw department the Talliamenning pivot postman, tipped off to had picked up, for they made him a perfect lay-up shot at the basket. The ball fell in the hands of the prospecting final hero, balancing itself precariously about the steel ring and finally dropping into the hands of an expectant Tiger. The tilt ended almost immediately and the game put another feather in Phenix City's hat.

Dough In Spotlight

But even in defeat it was a great and memorable night for Harold Haberman, shifty Doughboy guard. Haberman faked and passed his way to glory in the bitterly fought end and stole the spotlight for the evening's performer. His excellent play on the floor marked by expert passing, faking and defensive work, showcased the efforts of every other member who participated in the exciting basketball brawl.

Fred Haines, star Tiger and former night's scoring honors, captured the bucket for five baskets as well as connecting for one from the foul line.

Harold Lutz and Doug Scovill stood out for their exceptional defensive play in taking the ball off the backboard and for their rebound shots. Scovill netted the laurels in the doughboy scoring, collecting nine markers.

The first half was a nip and tuck affair with the intermission ending with the Tigers out in front 24-23. Seconds before the halftime was sounded, Harold Lutz scooped a Tiger pass and returned it into another score for the Doughs.

Show Improvement

Although the Doughs wound up with another defeat, a marked improvement was noticeable in the Dough's passing and faking which has been so wanting in previous games. Also in the free

Announces Plans For Yule Sports

The 325th Infantry regiment's athletic and recreation office has arranged an active program of sport activities for the holiday season. It was revealed today by Lt. Martin B. Roller, athletic director.

Volley ball and touch football will be organized on a company level, with teams competing in a tournament playoff, and these winners entering a tournament to determine the regimental champions.

Trophies will be awarded to both the battalion championship and the 325th regimental tournaments.

Second Blessing

BY RALEIGH GREENE

Sports activities will have a long ago for the next two weeks, what with Christmas tomorrow and New Years for eight days away. However, the A&R office has outlined a complete program of holiday sporting facilities for all those who remain on the Post over the long holiday leave period.

I dare say that there is scarcely a day in the Benning calendar that some sports fan isn't taking place, and that alone is a feather in the athletic office's hat. During this past year, that office has done a great deal for Post sports, and has ideas of an even bigger program for the approaching season in 1948.

With the exception of the multitude of Bowl games that will be played January 1, most people in this country will forget their usual interest and lay aside their individual worries and anxieties, to turn their thoughts, interests, and energies to the celebration of another Christmas.

No other feast in the American year is more revered or anticipated than the Yuletide season. No matter what the lot of a person—a family, a city, state, or even a nation, their minds are devoted to making each Christmas a better and happier one.

This is not a year of universal peace and happiness. Unfortunately there are too many people and too many nations that will only know that Christmas is here because they have a calendar. To all that year, more than ever before, most of the world will be looking for a Messiah much like the one the Hebrews yearned for nearly 3,000 years ago. The humble scene in Bethlehem seems very remote at times, but this year, this Christmas, it will be a living symbol of hope to millions of our earthly brethren.

We, here in America, who enjoy the comforts of a home and family cannot actually picture or realize the widespread poverty and want that prevails today. Even those who have been sent to New York and help assist cannot get the true impression for, although they are there with the people, they do not lead their own miserable lives.

Christmas has become very much of a child's day, one on which he can receive many gifts from Santa Claus, one in that he can remember all the days of his life. For others it has become a day, a period, of folly and mirth. Much of the real significance of Christmas and its ideal have been lost, long ago. But if we could journey to the score of countries in Europe, we might regain much of the ideas we had when we lived for ideals, not put up with them.

Doesn't sound much like second guessing, but then again we could be guessing if things will ever get straightened out. Edward R. Murrow, nomenclature on atomic energy not long ago. He remarked that Lillenthal was a man who knew, despite the power of science, that the true peace would never be realized unless people turned to the basic Author of life and peace. Here you can do your own second guessing.

We have been asked to give to such things as the Community Chest, the Freedom Train, CARE, and many other worthy organizations that assist the poor and destitute. All these institutions are doing great work; just listen to the radios and read the quotations of the poor humans who have been the recipients. But if you don't feel that you are in a position to give material things, just say a little prayer tomorrow. — no one is so poor or helpless that he can't pray.

So in closing let me wish every one, not a Merry Christmas, but a joyous one.

Back to a few quick remarks on sports. Lt. Col. Jessie Wheeler, of the 24th Transportation Truck battalion, rolled a near 252 in the playoffs for the Post bowling team last Wednesday night. Of course this isn't an official record, but such a score, official or not, is certainly worthy of note. The official high in league scores, incidentally, is a 236, bowled by an expert Kegler from the Infantry School detachment.

Boxing is really going to be a big thing next year. The Post A&R office has outlined a complete program for pugilistic artists, and all those who are interested in working out for the team should make themselves known to the Post athletic officer. Remember, boxing gets underway here on January 6.

Flyer Court Five Avenges Previous Loss To Goo-Goo

The Lawson field Flyers bounced back into form Wednesday night and avenged a previous 42-35 setback by clipping the Goo Goo quintet 49-40 in an overtime tussle at the Lawson gymnasium. Bob Livingston, top-notch Lawson courtman, led the evening's scorers with a total of 16 markers, while Benny Register, publicized

Columbus athlete, collected 12 for the losers.

With the score tied at 43-43 at the game's regulation end, Livingston made a foul shot to put the Flyers ahead. Livingston sank a long one to put the flyers in front 46-43. Jones and Gable and the Goo Goo once again to lock the court, but a tip from King was good for the winning margin.

If you'll look at the word "Business" you'll see that it's better "U" and "I" in it—and if either one is left out there wouldn't be any business. And if you'll look at the word again, you'll notice that the "U" comes before "I"—and there's a lesson in that, too.

Basketball and its Benning cagers began a long 17-day rest last Saturday. The holiday vacation will be the first break the Doughts have since the season started early this month.

While the soldier courtmen are getting their well-deserved rest, the Post gym will be undergoing some renovations, and may be scheduled January 1. Plans have been made to install glass backboards in the gym, and if enough of the new back boards will be ready for use. However, they will definitely be up before the season is over according to the A&R office.

The season thus far has been slow getting started, and the team took seven games really to get underway. Against Oglethorpe the locals put on the best show of point-making, but the score, 65-64, shows that neither team had much to boast about as far as defense goes. Yet, in their win over the Fort Jackson quintet, sharp Tallismen lightened in the last 19 points, while the Doughboys rolled up nearly twice that amount. It was the best game the Doughs have played since their 30-20 defeat, and their marked improvement was very noticeable to the skippy crew of spectators.

Play 35 Games
Scrambling to get ready for a 35-game schedule, the Doughs just didn't have any time to prepare themselves for the continuous grind of basketball. Tallis had a handful of new high jumpers, but had never seen action on the same team. He was without any of his championship players of last season, and had to start from scratch with the new team. Howard College was just a little too big for a first game, but the Doughboys surprised their mentor in losing by only three points.

Actually, when the team began its long schedule, it was a poor array of basketball players. There was little unity on the team, which was expected, since none of the players had ever participated in a game before as a team. Through diligent practice and coaching, however, many of the weakest points have been eliminated. Passing was a big headache for Tallis during the opening tilts, but many of the rough places have been smoothed out since. Backboard work and handling the rebounds was also a vulnerable spot in the Doughboys' game. The opposing opponents managed to control most of the rebounds, and consequently, put down the Doughboys' high-boy shots. That department, however, now shown a marked improvement and there is a lack of height on the team, the aggressiveness of the individual players has picked up considerably. All in all Tallis has improved his squad 100 per cent, and January should see the team working much better.

When the Doughs return from the hoop-la-la of Christmas and New Year's, a man-sized job will await them. Opening on January 5 against the Tyndall field Flyers, the Doughboys will face a complete schedule. The toughest game will come in January since most of the service teams will make their appearance here during that month.

Cortiz: Holds Lead
Beginning January 12, the Doughs will play seven games of the same number of days, and will be meeting better than four teams a week. That's an average which demands plenty of conditioning and stamina.
To talk to Doug Scovill, Harold Haberman, and Harold Cortiz for most of the team's point-making. All three men are running nips and tucks for the scoring leadership, and while Cortiz now holds the top spot, Scovill boasts the best game average since didn't play with the varsity until the third game.

Haberman is perhaps the best ball handler Tallis has. He is steady shot, and is better than expert with his passing and faking.
All three have been outstanding in their defensive work, out from under and the basket. Bob Kinard, Harold Suttz, Bill Weber, and Bob Henderson, round off what would be called the varsity. Kinard is a shrewd basketball

Bottler Quintet Clips Troopers

Nehi's fast-moving and up-and-coming Bottlers added another to their list of impressive wins Tuesday night at the Airborne gym when Coach Dale Bailet and his crew manhandled the Airborne officer's quintet 40-8.

The Bottlers, who have lost but two games in Lawson field outings, took control of the tilt at the opening whistle, and put on such an exhibition of power that the troopers were never able to come close. Nehi had a wide 21-3 margin at the intermission, and coasted from there to their easy victory.

Bailet called each of his 15 courtmen for the duke, and, of those, Flynn, Duval, Roberts, and Pachie were the most outstanding. Stevens, Hyman, and Flash were the best the airborne group could put on the floor. All three men stood out for their fine defensive play.

The Nehi five unexpectedly upset the game in Lawson field outings last week and began their climb to the top in the YMCA

Doughboy 'Bs' Spill 37th Five

Last Wednesday night the Fort Benning Doughboy "B" cagers trimmed the fighting 37th Infantry five at the Main Post gym, 56-22, in a preliminary to the Doughboys' tussle with Phenix City. It was a ball game that saw the lead change hands time and again with the coaches managing to come out on top at the intermission, and going on to win the game. However, the main point of interest in the game, aside from the tuck and tuck battle, was the spectacular play of an attentive Doughboy who was so much in the game that he tallied baskets for his opponent's squad as well as his own. The "wrong-way Corrigan" score happened midway in the third period when Sherwood Myer went up for a rebound, and struck the spheroid so violently that it raved back to the board and dropped casually into the bucket.

Dan Halstead called every one of his courtmen for the duke, and while the scoring honors were close, Slater Nash, a 17-year-old forward, led the winners with 13 markers. Frank Weaver, the right half-postman, followed for eight behind with 12.

Although the Infantry-men got off to a fast start, holding a six-point advantage at one time, the Doughs came back strong in the second canto to mount up a 22-12 advantage at the intermission. Williams and Weaver, the right half, again began to threaten in the third quarter, and gave the Doughs back their money from that point on.

Philips Recalls Bullets Contribution To Sports

BY BOB PHILLIPS

With the year 1947 hastily coming to a close, everyone seems to be reflecting, reminiscing and generally well trying to recall for the purpose of the records the outstanding happenings during the last 12 months.

The end of each year such compilation and recollection of events seems to be the order of the coming one. With such in mind and in keeping with the custom of Teachers college, Grambling, Clark, Morehouse, Morris Brown, and Benedict, the month of March saw them reach the peak of their basketball brilliance by emerging champions in the Twin-State and Annual Recreational basketball tournaments, both held in Augusta, Ga.

Hailed as the greatest quiet in the history of the regiment, the fast-breaking basketball talent with such basketball talent as Norman Skinner, from Columbia university; Freddie Travis, the diminutive "Flash" from N. C. State; James Green, the great pivoter from San Francisco State; Bill Parker, the sharp-shooting south-paw, who came up from Hampton Institute; Johnny Coaxton, ace guard, formerly of Fairkege Institute; Moses Graham, Union university; Gordon Burke, I. C. Smith college; John Dunn, Tenn. State college; and John Griffey, a pro cager, formerly with the Cincinnati Clippers.

Good Boxing Team
With the passing of basketball the peak-busting game of pugilism took the sporting spotlight with first Lt. James Jones as the helim. After his jaw-breaking maulers met and smashed the daylight out of the 325th Parachute Infantry battalion team, they later found that they had punched themselves into the opponents for the rest of the year, and had to confine their slugging to regimental lists during the remainder of this tournament. The second battalion pugilists rode to the top as regimental champions. The memories of such mitt-slashing artists as Howard Williams, George Wardell, Hank Williams, Norman Clarke, Claude Wilborn, Billy Gray, William Jacobs, Billy Williams, and George E. Lee, will linger long in the minds of fans who attended the weekly boxing shows of the regiment.

The advent of spring saw the Bullet athletes take to the cinder lanes. Again Lt. James Jones, under the coaching chores, and again his harriers came through with flying colors. They won three meets, not including the Annual Tuskegee Relays, the Bullet's mercury-footed representatives Alabama State Teachers for third place in a quadrangle meet at Tuskegee April 12, finished fifth ahead of Fisk, Alabama A. & M., and Talladega in the Third Annual Relays held at Montgomery April 19, and outpaced Fisk to take third place in a quadrangle meet held at Nashville, Tenn. May 10. The Bullet thinties teamed with the Doughboy runners in the Third Army Field and Track meet held at Fort Benning in May to help swamp the Fort Bragg track by a comfortable margin, contributing to the Bullets' success.

Lawson Drops Tilt To Goo-Goo

A former All-State football player, Benny Register by name, teamed with the sharp-shooting player-coach, Ed Wolf, Tuesday night to give the Goo-Goo cagers a decisive 42-25 victory over the faltering Lawson quintet, who in the YMCA league game on the association court.

It was the second setback of the week for the Lawson quintet, who were surprised by Nehi last week when the Bottlers tripped them, 37-35, Tuesday night's defeat gave the Goo-Goo five a wider margin on their hold to the league lead.

The winners, battling for a 12-18 advantage at intermission, puffed away in the second half, and at one time built up an 11-point lead over the once-vaunted Flyers.

Although it was not surprising that the Goo-Goo triumphed, the way it was done by Wolf and crew was very surprising. The first half was nip and tuck all the way, but the Columbus quintet suddenly jerked out of hand and raced to a commanding lead in the second half of the final stanza. With less than two minutes to go, Goo-Goo held a 11-point advantage with a 40-29 count.

Wolf, former Columbus high school star, was the leading scorer in the tilt with 12 markers, but was followed closely by Benny Register, who breast of five long ones in for 10 points. Button, accurate in every game this season, topped his team's scoring with 11.

given opponent a rough going-over and said that it would be the least out of order to state that those of us who witnessed and kept well abreast of the sports activities of the regiment can boast of the fact that such activity experienced one of its greatest and most successful years in the history of the 25th Infantry. It is therefore my purpose to give a quick run-down of the achievements of the Bullet athletes during this out-going year.

Jones Named Coach
In early December Lt. Lloyd D. Jones, a graduate and star athlete of Tuskegee Institute, was appointed top coach of the Bullet basketball team and quickly rounded up a star-studded quint which romped through the season with a record of 25 wins in 39 outings. Topping some of the best teams in the business, the Bullet basketballers were a feared and respected outfit of ballhawk warriors.

Yes, sports in the 25th Infantry regiment, augmented through the splendid aid of the regimental A & R Office, have had a grand and glorious year. We are no prognosticators, pushed out so far as to predict just how the Bullets will advance along the winning trail during the coming year. In the words of the folk-crook, who growled back "We ain't no prophets," but "Bother, beware," the Bullets are in the posse with a flock of talented athletes who promise to give any

SCOVIL LEADS AVERAGES; CORIZZI HIGH IN SCORING

Capt. Ced Tallis is getting his 1943 edition of the Benning basketballers back into shape, and in the last three games, the Doughs have managed to take two, running their game average up to 49.

Although the Doughs are still short of the scoring accomplishments of last year's squad, Tallis hopes to see his team improve even more and end up with a 60-point average last year with a 60-point average better than 60 markers per duke.

Harold Haberman, who led last week's scoring, dropped to second place, relinquishing his top spot to Harold Corizzi, who scored 13 points against Fort Jackson Thursday night. Corizzi now has a total of 53 points for six games, while Haberman falls behind with 52.

Doug Scovil, who has been distinguishing himself as the point-making wizard, dumped in 21 points to lead against the South Carolinians, and as a result pulled his total up to 50. Scovil will probably be the man on top come January. Scovil's game average is higher than any other Doughboy. Havrils played in only four tilts, he has netted 12.5 markers per game.

FORMER ORDNANCE MAN NAMED TO POST AT A & R

Lt. Irving Levine has been assigned to the special service office as the assistant athletic officer, it was announced recently by Col. Otto P. Bragan, chief of special service.

A well-known figure in Benning sports circles, Lt. Levine is the man who made the 325th Ordnance battalion a recognized outfit in Post sporting circles. Levine was assigned to the 325th on his arrival here Nov. 27, 1946, and in less than six months acting as the battalion athletic and recreation officer had made the Ordnance outfit into an all-around athletic group.

His change from "civies" to chad came in May of 1941, and after his initial training was assigned to the Fourth Armored division that was stationed at Fine Camp, N. Y., at the time. From the life of tankman, Levine went to Officer Candidate school at Fort Knox, Ky., receiving his commission in January of 1943. Four months later, the assistant athletic officer was overseas where he returned to his original branch, the armored. Joining the 1st Tank battalion in Africa, Levine fought with them until the war's end when he was re-assigned to the 325th Ordnance Heavy Mechanized company.

Returning to the States in November of 1945, Levine took his discharging a few months later, returning to civilian life in January of the following year.

During the war, Levine was decorated with the Purple Heart with one cluster, the Pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon, the American Defense ribbon, the European theater ribbon with five stars and arrowhead for action at Salerno, Anzio, and Lake Comacchio. He also holds the Victory medal and Occupation ribbon.

Hailing from Long Island, N. Y., Levine played high school basketball and tennis, and was a member of the basketball and wrestling squads as a college student at the Polytechnical Institute of Brooklyn.

During his Army career, the former tankman has devoted most of his time to coaching various athletic teams.

He re-entered the Army in September of 1946, and after duty at the 325th was assigned as assistant athletic officer.

Nursery School Students Entertain With Yule Play

With their parents as guests, youngsters of the nursery school, sponsored by the Fort Benning Woman's club, entertained Tuesday evening at the Officers' club when they presented a program of Christmas. The play was presented with a visit from Santa and refreshments served later.

The affair was held in the small lounge and in the Palm room at the club, and the ladies in charge were William V. Church, Mrs. P. O. Gordon, Mrs. Stanley Rubin, and Mrs. T. Andrews. Mrs. Joe Morey is in charge of the project.

Approximately 100 parents attended the play, and the appearance was highlighted by the distribution of stockings filled with candy and treats.

Each of the youngsters appeared in costume, and the program included the enacting of the Christmas story and a scene showing Christmas complete with a tree.

Gay Nineties Party Given By Co-Hosts

All the color and fun of the gay nineties were enjoyed Monday evening by the guests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Allan W. Strook and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Howard D. Balliet when the two couples were co-hosts at a party at the Polo-Hunt club.

Approximately 200 guests attended the costume affair, and each of the officers was presented with a mustache at the door, while the ladies received red garters.

Games, "played with 'play' money, and dancing were features of the entertainment, while a highlight was the music furnished by a bar room quartet, including Lt. Col. William H. Blakely, Lt. Col. A. E. McCormick, Lt. Col. O. Connor and Col. Frederick W. Gibb.

Greens about the room and a Christmas tree suggested the holiday theme, while the decorations marked the gay nineties motif. Guests were served cocktails, hamburgers, and coffee.

SANTA VISITS TOTS—Santa completed the program given by the students at the Nursery School last week when he visited them in the small lounge of the Officers' club after they had entertained their parents with a play. All youngsters at the school took part in the program, and wore special costumes.

Airborne Students Find Mess Attractive, Pleasant

A student coming to Fort Benning for airborne training finds a number of pleasant surprises, but the one that probably gives him the biggest jolt is the culinary establishment which caters to all men who pass through Headquarters and Service Company, the Airborne students' receiving unit.

The student's first impression as he enters the mess is, naturally, that he has blundered into the wrong place. Facing him is a large, warm, attractive hall filled with small four-place tables and comfortable individual chairs. After the first shock, the future paratrooper begins to absorb the full picture.

Here the windows are framed with lightly shaded curtains. There are table cloths, silverware, and condiments, all neatly arranged on each table, and pictures on the walls. The general picture is that of an intimate club dining hall.

On such occasions as Thanksgiving and Christmas, dinners are truly served in banquet style. The abandonment of the bare mess table-bench combination was accomplished mainly through the efforts of Capt. Edward M. Harrell, company commander, and S-Sgt. Arthur M. Milks, mess steward, assisted by S-Sgts. Robert Harris, Clarence Harrison, and Rufus G. Lynch, all first cooks.

The usual problem of a receiving company mess—continual change in strength of the company—is also present here, varying from 20 to 200 men with little or no advance notice. Despite this, however, Headquarters and Service Company's mess is well-known for its exceptional cuisine, cleanliness, and service. At the recent inspection by the Army department's food service supervisor, Headquarters and Service Company's mess won an uncounted rating of superior.

Volunteers Sought For Scout Troops

Fort Benning Boy Scouts are in need of assistance from volunteers who would be interested in serving in the Boy Scout movement, Scoutmaster Harry Duffield revealed this week.

Den Mothers, to aid in the work with Cub Scouts, are needed to devote one afternoon a week to the program, while men of sufficient interest are sought to work as assistant scoutmasters with Troop 127, and with a senior unit of Air Scouts, Sea Scouts, and Explorer Scouts.

"If we can get the volunteer workers we need," Sgt. Duffield said, "our program of training and scout advancement will be greatly improved. I hope every parent with children in scouting will indicate their interest in such service."

IN RADIO BROADCAST TONIGHT—The 25th Infantry's male chorus will be heard tonight from 11:15-11:30 p.m. over radio station WRBL. They are pictured above around the piano during a rehearsal.

Chorus To Sing In 2 Concerts

Music lovers of Fort Benning and vicinity will have an opportunity to hear the 25th Infantry male chorus on two separate occasions, Wednesday during an 11 to 12 a.m. concert in Sand Hill Chapel No. 3 and at 11:15 to 11:30 p.m. Christmas Eve broadcast over radio station WRBL.

The chorists will be under the direction of T-Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson, who will in turn be assisted by Sgt. Willis M. Brown, associate director and baritone soloist, and T-3 Troy M. McCall, Jr., pianist-accompanist.

Included in the group are: Sgt. Robert L. Renfro, Sgt. Willie McMullins, T-4 Fred Dowd, Pfc. Hills Norris, Jr., Pfc. Cordell Moses, first tenors; Sgt. David A. Johnson, Sgt. Joseph T. Peterson, Sgt. Joseph Malachuk, Cpl. Freddie Batham, second tenors; T-4 Sgt. Franky G. Lumpkins, T-4 Samuel Rawls, Pfc. Walter Perry, T-3 Thomas Brookins, baritones; T-3 John F. Vaughn, Cpl. Mervin G. Smith, T-5 James E. Phillips, T-3 Ashley, Cpl. Harry H. Williams, Cpl. Lester B. Leonard, Pfc. Perry Lewis Williams, bass section.

School Troops Get Letter Of Praise From Gen. Gillem

A letter of commendation on the performance of School Troop units during the Armistice Day parade in Birmingham, Ala., was received from Lt. Gen. Alvin G. Gillem, commanding general of the Third Army, last week, it was announced today.

"For the outstanding appearance, conduct, and bearing of the Fort Benning troops participating in the Birmingham parade on Armistice Day, November 11, the personnel are to be commended," the letter stated.

"It is hard to believe that the participating troops had marched from Fort McCallen to Birmingham on the morning of the parade, over wet and muddy grounds. Because of the splendid showing of the troops, enlistments have increased and interest in the Army has grown in the area, the letter concludes."

Detachment Men Earn Promotions

A total of eight enlisted members of the Infantry School detachment's Company A were promoted this week, officials have announced.

They include Cpl. William F. Warner to sergeant, T-5 William T. Havron to technician fourth grade, Cpl. James C. Shearer to technician fourth grade, T-5 Ruben L. Wilson to technician fourth grade, Pfc. Duane J. Herzberg and Sherman C. Booth to corporal, and Pvt. Leslie E. Merrill and Lay K. Van Kirk to private first class.

Other detachment promotions during the past week include Cpl. John J. Wyatt, Company C, to sergeant, and Pfc. Murry E. Stevens, Company B, to corporal.

Bullet Ceases Publication Here

Published for a full year to the exact day, this week marked the suspension of the popular semi-monthly publication, The Bulletin, official news organ of the 25th Infantry Regiment and the 99th Field Artillery Battalion.

Known for 20 years as the official news weekly, The Bulletin was published through the years up until 1942, when the regiment left for the southwest Pacific with the 93rd division.

Its reactivation occurred here during the Christmas season last year, under the supervision of Capt. Irving Pahl, who was given the go ahead signal by Col. Robert L. Dulaney, then commanding officer of the 25th.

The initial issues were mimeographed, but during the early part of 1947 the paper was expanded to four pages, tabloid size, and was published weekly for a five-month period. Later, due to diminishing regimental strength, the paper was published twice monthly.

The Bulletin's circulation covered nearly the entire globe, such as EPO, Southwest Pacific, and to the greater majority of states. Early in the summer, Capt. Pahl was transferred to the South Carolina Military District at Columbia, S. C., and his post of editor was assumed by 1st Lt. Willard C. Stewart. The staff included S-Sgt. Robert Phillips, S-Sgt. Joseph Cussmer, Pfc. Hills Norris, Jr., and Pvt. Allyn E. Wise, Pfc. Thomas C. Brantley and Pfc. John Carter were regimental photographers and film lab technicians.

RIFLE PRACTICE

To provide an opportunity for practice in marksmanship, the First battalion, 325th Infantry Regiment, will maintain its small-bore rifle range during the holiday season. Instruction will be provided by S-Sgt. Ferdinand Eysel, Company A. Eysel has over 16 years experience in competitive marksmanship firing.

Trooper Anderson Boasts Background Of Varied Interests

LEAVING ARMY — 1st Lt. Thomas H. Murphy, Information and education officer for School Troops, is scheduled to leave the Army Dec. 31. He will be replaced by Capt. Charles Kilpatrick.

The Airborne battalion has many men with interesting backgrounds, but Company, G's sandy-haired Pfc. Clarence H. Anderson has one of the most varied, having been a Marine, a champion boxer, and a university student all in the space of a few years.

Anderson, who hails from Dayton, Ohio, enlisted in the paratroopers last July after spending two and one-half years in the Marine corps. During this time he was on duty with General Carlson's Second Raiders and entered Guadalcanal with the second invasion wave.

He spent seven months overseas, was discharged in October, 1943, at which time he entered Ohio State university, where he majored in architectural drafting.

Since Anderson had boxed some back in 1939 and again during his "hitch" in the Marine corps, he reentered the boxing field at the university. He was awarded the Southern lightweight championship in 1941, and from that triumph went on to the Chicago semifinals. As a Marine, Anderson won the Farris Island division boxing cup in 1942.

Collect Rebuilt Toys For Yule

Climaxing a successful campaign for contributions of toys for needy children's Christmas celebrations, the Fort Benning Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts have announced that they have collected a truckload of rebuilt toys for gifts.

The four-week canvassing program involved the donation of thousands of toys to the Boy Scout organization here on post and the refashioning of these toys by the scouts themselves for distribution in the locality on Christmas Eve.

A three-quarter ton truck will carry the toys from Scout headquarters in Doughboy stadium to the deserving families of the vicinity who would otherwise be unable properly to celebrate Christmas, Scoutmaster Harry Duffield said.

Airborne Class Enters 4th Week In January

Airborne class B-6A will enter its fourth week of training Jan. 5, 1948, with 15 officers and 90 enlisted men as students. It was announced this week.

During the week just before the holidays began, members of the class learned how to pack parachutes, jumped from the 250-foot control and free towers, and took the physical fitness test. After the holidays, the students will begin their jumps from aircraft.

Army-Navy 'Y' Publishes Newspaper

From the mimeograph presses of the Army-Navy YMCA in downtown Columbus comes a newspaper, "Our Serviceman's Observer," which presents news and features of occurrences connected with both "Y" and Benning activities.

First appearing in 1945 as a two-page booklet, it expanded rapidly into a more complete and coherent paper, totaling eight pages by July, 1946. Published by a volunteer staff of three, the weekly Observer now includes the calendar of events at the "Y," a weekly editorial, feature articles, and news of post and town activities for the enlisted man.

Editor of the paper, Madelyn Balint, is assisted by a managing editor, Ken Rosa, and a reporter, Louis Artuso. The Observer is now seeking further volunteer assistance from enlisted men and civilian guests of the club.

Clerks Graduate From Post School

Graduation exercises were held Friday afternoon for students of the Infantry Center's Typing and Administration school, with 42 men qualifying for clerical duty on the company level.

Located in the Vocational School area, the duty-hour courses are run for the purpose of instructing men, selected by unit commanders, in typing and the administration of company records. The next class will begin January 5, 1948.

Catholic Order Ends Mission

A Catholic Mission for all Catholic personnel stationed here was held at Chapel No. 4 last week. Sponsored by Chaplain (Major) John Rafferty, Infantry Center Catholic chaplain, the mission was preached by the Rev. James P. Clune and the Rev. Francis Donoghue of the Redemptionist Order.

A primary feature of the mission was the daily instruction given to children of Fort Benning personnel. At the conclusion of the week's observances, Father Clune, a former Army Chaplain who served in Africa and Europe, paid tribute to the families of Fort Benning and to Generals Omar Bradley and John W. O'Daniel, who offered their assistance in the organization of the program.

Despite wet and stormy weather, the attendance at all services was outstanding, according to Chaplain Rafferty. The chapel was crowded with worshippers every night.

Duffield Lauded For Scout Work

Sgt. Harry Duffield, scoutmaster of the Fort Benning Boy Scouts, was commended by the Muscogee county district committee of the Boy Scouts of America, in their final meeting of 1947 last week, for his service with scouting at Fort Benning.

Meeting in the office of the Georgia-Alabama Boy Scout council, the group passed unanimously the resolution which lauded the scoutmaster.

"That Sgt. Harry P. Duffield, scoutmaster at Fort Benning, be commended for his fine work which has resulted in the largest number of Boy Scouts ever obtained at the post, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the regional executive of Region Six, and a copy sent to Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of Fort Benning."

It takes a raft of money to keep a business afloat these days.

THE BAYONET

Events Of Past Year Reviewed By Bayonet

In the 12 months of the year Nineteen Hundred and Forty-seven, many changes occurred at the world's most complete Army post. The changing events of the year have all been faithfully recorded in The Bayonet and now, as the year draws to a close, we present, in capsule form, the news in review.

January, 1947

Fort Benning was selected as training post for the Army Ground Forces Reserve Corps training program. Pine Lodge, new post-wide NCO club, was officially opened January 10. Paul Oliver Neely, son of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Vincent T. Neely, won the annual Baby Derby as he arrived only 30 seconds after midnight to become undisputed holder of the title "Mr. 1947." Army Ground Forces commander, General Jacob L. Devers, visited Fort Benning. Furlough fares for enlisted men ended January 30, 1947.

February, 1947

The Academic department announced plans to train over 2,000 officers and enlisted men in the year 1947. Part of the 25th Infantry Combat team left Fort Benning for duty with the 24th Infantry regiment on occupation duty in Japan. Brig. Gen. William M. Miley, deputy commandant of the Infantry School, left for his new assignment as commander of the 11th Airborne division in Japan. The Fort Benning March of Dimes campaign concluded its annual drive for funds with over $11,300 collected for the national foundation. The Ninth Air Force's mammoth Air Indocination show began. Fort Benning Doughboys won the Southeastern AAU basketball championship.

March, 1947

The Infantry Center's vocational school opened its second semester with over 800 students. The last selective service personnel still in the Army were to be released by the end of June, the Army announced. Army Week was planned for April with the theme "A strong America for Peace" as the keynote.

April, 1947

Baseball season opened as the Airborne regiment and Infantry School detachment clashed in a late-afternoon contest.

Fuller To Show Winning Photos In Washington

Among the 125 photographs by Army personnel on duty in the United States slated to be displayed at the National Guard Armory in Washington, D. C., Jan. 3 through Jan. 8, will be two submitted by Lt. Hiram G. Fuller of Fort Benning.

Lt. Fuller won two first places in the Fort Benning contest, and Third Army competition and received one honorable mention.

The exhibition, which will include winning entries in elimination contests conducted by Army Ground Forces at Army installations in this country preliminary to the world-wide Army Photography contest, will be open to the public daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Photographs displayed in the Army Ground Forces exhibit will be entered later in the World-wide Army Photography contest sponsored by the Office of the Chief of Staff, War Department of the Army, scheduled to close on January 12, 1948. The world-wide preliminary award also to personnel in overseas theaters and Air Force commands.

Entries in the Army Ground Forces national preliminary award contest are classified in four different categories. They depict the mission and duties of the Army at a military installation; the Army off duty; foreign countries and peoples; general pictorial photographs of still life and animals. Portraits are also in the general pictorial category. On January 5, General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of

Chorus To Appear In Concert Jan. 23

The 25th Infantry's male chorus will appear in concert Jan. 23 at the Main Post theater, supplementing the current Community Concert series, it was announced this week by officials of the Sand Hill unit.

The chorus group made its debut Thanksgiving afternoon at Service club No. 2. The chorus was formed by T. Sgt. Arthur J. Patterson, regimental organist, assisted by Sgt. Willis M. Brown and T-3 Troy M. McCall Jr.

1948 Winner Of Baby Derby Due This Week

Winner of the fifth annual Baby Derby at Fort Benning, sponsored by Columbus merchants in cooperation with The Bayonet, will be awarded a total of 33 gifts with a value of approximately 100 dollars, contest officials said today.

Rules governing the selection of the winner of the title Mr. or Miss 1948 provide that the child must be born to an enlisted couple; doctor's certificate will be required as evidence that the child is actually the first one born after midnight Dec. 31, 1947. In the event that twins are born, the first-born shall be considered the winner, officials announced.

Inaugurated in 1944 the Fort Benning Baby Derby, which was inaugurated in 1944, has paid dividends to two boys and two girls as the first children of the New Year. A similar plate of awards awaits the winner of this year's contest.

Hospital attaches here have revealed that almost 50 expectant mothers are registered for deliveries Jan. 1, 1948. The official announcement of the winner will be made by hospital authorities as soon as it can be determined, doctors said.

Gifts to be awarded the lucky baby who wins the title include two cases of Royal Crown Cola; car servicing at Rad's Garage, Riley Spear Motor company, Hammock's Auto Service, and Waller's Auto Service; automobile accessories from Foremost Auto stores and B. F. Goodrich company; and service at Baker Village Beauty Shop, Baker Village Shoe Store, and Phillips Cleaners and Dyers. Radio merchandise will come from the W and M Radio Service company.

Expressly for the baby will be accessories from Lane-Rexall Drug store, Benson Hardware

University's City Extension Opens On January 8

Registration for winter quarter courses in the University of Georgia's Columbus extension, which opens Jan. 8, 1948, must be accomplished between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. Jan. 5-6, at Jordan Vocational high school, it was announced today by W. R. Alexander, university representative in Columbus.

During the fall quarter 250 students were enrolled for courses. Mr. Alexander said. Of that total 100 were Fort Benning soldiers, and 70 were ex-GIs in the Columbus area. Ages ranged from 16 to 67 years, he revealed.

Credit for courses in the university extension can be transferred to any institution of higher learning in the world with no loss of credit. Each course carries five quarter hours of resident credit, Mr. Alexander pointed out.

Courses are offered Monday through Friday nights. On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays the first period begins at 7 p. m. and ends at 9:30 p. m., while the second period begins at 8:45 p. m. and ends at 10:15 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday night classes begin at 6 p. m. for the first period and at 8:20 p. m. for the second period.

The faculty is appointed by the University of Georgia and includes Travis Kirkland, John

THOUSANDS VIEW FRIENDSHIP TRAIN'S DOCUMENTS

Thousands of people from Fort Benning, Columbus, and surrounding communities visited the Freedom Train yesterday, seeing many of them for the first time, the documents through which the United States has achieved the world's greatest democracy. The long streamliner, which steamed into Columbus Monday opened its doors to the public at 10 a. m. Tuesday. The train remained on display until 10 p. m. last night. The Freedom Train had on exhibit the most complete collection of American historical documents ever assembled at any one time. Probably the oldest document on display in the famous case was Christopher Columbus' letter, printed in Rome, Italy, in 1493, describing his voyage to the Americas. Other documentary highlights of the American heritage include such items as the faded manuscript Abraham Lincoln held while delivering the famous Gettysburg Address in 1863 and the original manuscript of the Pennsylvania Charter of Privileges signed by William Penn in 1701. Other history-making documents on display were a manuscript copy of the Declaration of Independence attested by Benjamin Franklin and Silas Deane and in 1777; the original manuscript of the early printing of the Constitution; the original original manuscript copy of the Bill of Rights, dated 1789; the Northwest Ordinance of July 13, 1787; the original manuscript of the Star Spangled Banner in the handwriting of its author, Francis Scott Key.

The official American copy of the Declaration of Independence with the United States' ratifications annexed and the first signed copy of the Charter of the United Nations also were aboard the train.

The documents are guarded continuously by uniformed members of the United States Marine Corps, submitted to the King of Prussia

Events Of Past Year

Easter was observed by 3,000 at Sunrise services at the Campbell King Horseshoe Bowl on Easter Sunday. General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower were outstanding guests.

The School Troops parade ground was re-named Stilwell field in a simple dedication ceremony April 15 honoring the late General Joseph W. Stilwell, China-Burma-India theatre commander.

The Airborne regiment became part of the Student Training regiment as overhead and overlapping personnel were eliminated.

May, 1947

Over 100 National Guardsmen arrived for further training at the Infantry School.

Post swimming pools opened, drawing large crowds for the first days of the season.

A royal delegation from Egypt visited Fort Benning for a tour of the post as cannons fired a 15-gun salute.

The baseball crown and pennant for the first half of the diamond contest was taken by a strong team from the Airborne battalion with a perfect record of 16 wins and no losses. A USAFI Registration Center was set up on post to supply "over-the-counter service" for Army personnel.

June, 1947

Fort Benning's railway repair shop closed as the post organized a mobile repair unit to tour the entire South.

Cadets from the United States Military Academy at West Point toured the post in special studies of the instruction of the Infantry Center.

The post tennis team swept a Third Army championship as it defeated teams from Fort MacPherson, Fort Bragg, and Oliver General hospital in the finals at Fort Bragg.

Fort Benning's Separation Center, which had processed approximately 650 officers and 13,000 enlisted men since it opened October 10, 1946, closed June 30 to operate as a separate division for officers and enlisted men stationed here.

July, 1947

Col. Sinju Pu Hsiao, Chinese military attache, spent seven days in touring the world's most complete Army post.

Maj. Gen. F. W. Festing, director general of the British Army weapons development section, saw Fort Benning in a whirlwind tour.

Highlighting the observance of Independence Day was the 49-gun salute to the Union, one gun for each state, by the Infantry Center flagstaff, near Stilwell field. A holiday was approved for all but essential personnel on post.

A granite monument was dedicated on the original site of Camp Benning, at the intersection of Macon road and Dixon drive in Columbus.

Defeating the 328th Ordnance team, the Airborne battalion became the undisputed champions of Fort Benning's 1947 baseball season as they took the post championship two years in a row.

The 1947 Fort Benning Doughboys opened their season with a 16-6 victory over the Silvertown Mills team from Thomaston, Georgia, and followed it with a 21-5 triumph against the Columbus Manufacturing Company's team.

August, 1947

First championship golf tournament ever to be held by the Army was played on the Officers' club course with over 200 golfers competing for individual and team prizes. Captain Edward Mosely was crowned the first All-Army Golf champion.

Gone from Fort Benning were the sound of the hunter's horn, the click of the polo mallet against the ball, the stir and bustle of riding classes and horse shows, as 112 military mounts went under the auction block at the post stables and all equestrian activity on the post ended.

UBSIGHT PARK WEST FOR THE TIME BEING AS THE WARDEN'S DEPARTMENT as the Columbus Housing Authority terminated its leases.

September, 1947

Approximately 10,000 students, both officers and enlisted men, have been scheduled to attend classes at the world's most complete Army post during the 1947-1948 academic year. Brig. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, announced.

Operation Combine opened September 29, as infantry, artillery, tanks and planes demonstrated how cooperation between various tactical units would serve to accomplish any mission.

The Doughboy baseball team tripped the Fort Bragg nine 4-3 in Third Army tournament play-offs to capture the Third Army championship title.

Opening the 1947 football season, the football Doughboys achieved a close 2-0 victory over the Cherry Point Marines.

October, 1947

An enrollment of more than 12,000 soldiers was reported as the Infantry Center's vocational school began its second term.

The most complete display of Army equipment and weapons in the history of the United States Army was placed on exhibition at the Chattahoochee Valley Exposition in Columbus.

A post-wide Community Chest drive was inaugurated by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel.

A total of 39 military and air attaches, representing 31 nations, observed infantry training techniques and methods at the Infantry School.

November, 1947

After amassing 17 consecutive victories, one of the longest winning streaks in the country, the football Doughboys were defeated 58-0 by the Quantico Marines.

Ten Fort Benning units were represented by men and equipment in Birmingham, Alabama, in a parade at one of the South's largest Armistice Day observances.

A huge Thanksgiving celebration was held at Gowdy field with the theme "Thank God For Thanksgiving."

December, 1947

General Omar N. Bradley, newly appointed U. S. Army chief of staff to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, arrived at Fort Benning for a one-week tour of the post.

The Christmas Friendship Train arrived to collect food-stuffs for underprivileged families of the area.

Christmas holidays began December 20 as personnel streamed from Fort Benning for the 13-and-a-half-day relief from work.

On The Chest Drive

The following is a message of appreciation from Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, Infantry Center commander, to all Fort Benning personnel who contributed to the Community Chest Fund:

"I wish to thank all the military and civilian personnel of Fort Benning who contributed to the Fort Benning Community Chest Fund for their contribution and to express my appreciation to all Commanders and Community Chest Representatives for their wholehearted cooperation in the collection of contributions to this most worthy cause.

JOHN W. O'DANIEL Major General, U. S. Army Commanding"

Make The Army Better

It has been a full year at Fort Benning. We have had many new methods of training introduced, many distinguished visitors, and a full social life. We have in addition received notice of the soon-to-be instituted "Army career plan", and have had established here a vocational school, designed to aid in preparing soldiers for the career plan.

All these are things of the past, however, and the New Year will bring with it many more new ideas, ideas based on experience and study of military and civilian experts with an eye toward making the U. S. Army even more progressive, even better, and even stronger.

The success of these new ideas and untried plans will depend to a great extent upon the attitude of troops at Fort Benning. If we do not exert all our energies toward making them worthwhile, they will certainly fail.

Forrestal's Greeting

With the world in a state of uneasy truce, striving and hoping for peace, it is particularly fitting that at this Christmas season we should be thinking of the future of peace and the guiding principles for which He lived and died.

Truman Sends Greetings

At this Christmas season, I extend my warmest greetings to the men and women of the Armed Forces of the United States. In May your Christmas be a happy peace, as in your year, wherever you are stationed.

Royal Sends Greetings

I am happy to wish a Merry National security and to world Christmas and New Year filled peace should give you special satisfaction greater opportunities to help during the Yuletide.

BACK HOME

Bill Mauldin, who gained fame and fortune as a GI cartoonist during the war, has published his second book, Back Home, since getting out of the Army.

Mauldin pulls no punches when he describes the actions, as he sees them, of professional politicians, bigots, the Jim Crow law, and veterans' organizations.

The young cartoonist, who claims he grew up in the Army, uses this book as a means to "get something off my chest." Although many people in this country have branded Mauldin a Communist, the reader will, after finishing the book, realize that he definitely is not.

One of the most delightful chapters in the book is his lampooning of used-car shysters. His treatment of this menace to our standard of living is merciless, and he expresses in drawings what many of us think but do not have the courage or wit to put into print.

Some of his drawings are funny, some are tragic; but most are cleverly done. He pans crooked congressmen, left-wing dilettantes, professional red-baiters, and party-line parrots in sharp, stinging pictures.

SAYING GOODBYE TO 1947

BY Chaplain Wallace M. Hale There is something sad about saying goodbye to the old year. There are many new things that could have been done in 1947 that we failed to do; and, yet, we attempted to many new things for which there had been no rules in our book.

In the old year was the scene of an America and Americans trying to readjust themselves after they had got out of an economic debacle, probably higher than any other nation had ever seen. They were the big problem of trying to get back down to solid ground after having billions of dollars worth of war contracts flooding the pocketbooks.

In the old year a great many people were stepped on, and, yet, the veteran received more help than any other soldier in the world had ever received when he came back from combat. Industry produced more than ever, more houses and developed more radios than most other nations could even imagine.

But in all, there was one great major weakness, and that was in the matter of faith. Millions were so busy taking care of "No. 1" that they forgot that the only economic system that helps us build the adequate answer to the time-old question: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Christus has come and gone, and the answer has been given to us by word and music in a manner that never forgets. The only course ahead is one of trust, peace and hard work, realizing that it helps us and hurts another who should have been helped, we took the wrong highway.

A tired businessman arrived after a hard day at the office. He had lost a lot of money on a business deal, and he had left without giving notice. His wife had taken the car and run off with another man. His knee shot would end it all. He went slowly upstairs, opened the bathroom door, pulled out the bottle, and took one.

Some are tragic; but most are cleverly done. He pans crooked congressmen, left-wing dilettantes, professional red-baiters, and party-line parrots in sharp, stinging pictures. There are 200 pictures of our present world and over 50,000 words about why and how he drew them.

Bill Mauldin's Back Home is vigorous as well as being joyful.

Eggnog Served At Party Given Sunday Afternoon

At a pleasant egg nog party marking the holidays, Capt. and Mrs. Patrick E. Watson entertained Sunday afternoon at their quarters when they had a large gathering of their friends call between 3 and 5 p. m.

A large Christmas tree was featured on the sun porch along with mistletoe and holly, and the mantle, also decked with greens, featured tall tapers burning in a log candle holder. A beautiful gold Japanese screen was used in the dining room, where holly berries and red tapers in silver candelabra decorated the punch table which was overlaid with a lace cloth. Large poinsettias in the living room and dining room completed the arrangements.

Guests included Col. and Mrs. Douglas Sugg, Col. and Mrs. Paul Cooper, Col. and Mrs. Charles Pence, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. F. Easterbrook, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. V. Thompson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. K. A. Base Librarian Is Hostess At Party For Yule Season

Lawson field personnel who remained on duty December 24 were guests at a Christmas eve open house at the base library when Mrs. Cecil Stillinger, base librarian, entertained in their honor.

Guests were served Christmas cookies and coffee in the main room of the library, which was cheerily decorated in the holiday season with large red candles, wreaths at the windows, and centered with a base library snow- and tinsel-covered Christmas tree.

During the afternoon guests enjoyed Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and other Christmas stories and music.

New Year's Party To Highlight Social Year Of NCO Club

Members of the Lawson field NCO club have received attractive individual printed invitations to an informal buffet dinner-dance New Year's eve from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m. This affair will be the highlight of the holiday festivities at the club which will be furnished by the 19th dance orchestra.

The same theme for decorations will be used for the New Year's party as was used at the Christmas party with the exception of a large sign over the door in the main ball room, wishing everyone a "Happy and Successful New Year."

Christmas Ball At Lawson Is Highlight Of Social Season

The Dawson field Officers' club celebrated Christmas with its annual Christmas ball on December 20 with approximately 150 guests present. Lt. Ben Fern, club officer, was in charge of all preparations.

The ball, one of the most important social events of the year for the airmen and their ladies, was held in the club's main lounge against a background of slender, brightly trimmed cedars, snow-capped mirror windows, garlands of greens interspersed with Christmas lights, and clusters of holly. Guests were seated at small white covered tables arranged around a beautifully decorated Christmas tree.

Enhancing the charm and splendor of the gala occasion were the ladies' lovely formal and the officers' tuxedos. Among the ladies attending were Mrs. Gilbert T. Callar, in a gown of blue silk print trimmed with silver sequins; Mrs. Fred G. Henry, wearing a strapless gown of black silk fashioned with a black net cape and embroidered with silver stones; Mrs. Louis Moran, in a gown with gold accessories; blonde Mrs. Edward Hanel, in red velvet with matching head ornament; Mrs. Jerome Schweickert, whose red tulle formal was fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt; Mrs. Wilfred Hinman, stylish in black net with silver sequin yoke; Miss Peggy Scott, wearing green tulle with full ruffled skirt; Mrs. Byron E. Trent, attractively gowned in pale pink net with bouffant skirt and off the shoulder bodice of silver fabric; Mrs. Harry Grover, lovely in black flared style with a wide shoulder strap of various shades and Mrs. M. L. Elmore, in white tulle and jersey. Mrs. Robert Clark wore a black velvet with white lace and black elbow-length gloves; Mrs. Joseph Lewandowski chose black draped silk and attractive up-swept hair style; and Mrs. Malcolm Spangenberg wore a black formal skirt with a short flared jacket of green wool. Mrs. Thomas Duffy, Mrs.

Clayton Suttelle, Mrs. James Sever, Mrs. E. T. McDonald, Mrs. John Wretschko, and Mrs. H. B. Taylor were attractively attired in fashionable gowns styled in the new look.

Among special guests at the ball were Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Erickson and Maj. and Mrs. Irwin Edwards, of Ft. Benning, who were the guests of Col. and Mrs. Fred O. Henry, Capt. and Mrs. Grover O. Henry, Capt. and Mrs. H. R. Elmore, of Bolling Green, Ky., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry, of Columbus, L. W. A. Russell, 99th Field Artillery Battalion, was the guest of W-O and Mrs. H. B. Taylor and Maj. and Mrs. Schweickert had as their guest Miss Pat Burke. Capt. John Keller was host to a group of officers and their ladies of Fort Benning, which included Maj. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan, Capt. Edward McCabe and Miss Hilda Chambliss, and Mrs. Lee Lockwood, of Columbus.

Music for the event was presented by the Southern Cavaliers.

McCanns Give Christmas Night Party At Quarters

Christmas night was the occasion of a pleasant eggnog party when Capt. and Mrs. James G. McCann entertained for a few of their friends at their quarters.

Refreshments were served from a silver punch bowl on the table overlaid with a lace cloth and surrounded by holly. Red tapers in silver candelabra and other holiday decorations completed the arrangement.

Guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Stanton, Major and Mrs. William Vivian, Major and Mrs. John MacIndoe, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Martinez, Capt. and Mrs. Phillip Heinmiller, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Charlton, Capt. and Mrs. Roy Coleman, and Mrs. Larry Deal.

Col. Mrs. Royce Have 'At Home'

Col. and Mrs. Charles H. Royce were "at home" Christmas afternoon to a few of their neighbors when they served eggnog.

The rooms, open to the guests, were decked with Christmas greens with the serving table, overlaid with a lace cloth, featured a silver punch bowl surrounded by red berries and red tapers in silver candelabra.

Birthday Party Honors Sue Griffin Christmas Eve

Capt. and Mrs. Francis E. Griffin entertained their daughter, Sue Ellen, Christmas eve afternoon when they gave a party at their quarters honoring her second birthday.

Highlighting the event was the visit of Santa, who was assisted by Capt. Leo B. Sullivan, and each of the guests received a present from St. Nick. A brightly decorated tree was the center of the decorations, and a miniature Santa with reindeer was used on the mantle with red tapers. The table centerpiece was of cedar greens tied with red ribbons and used with red tapers. The place cards were candy canes which were given as favors.

Ice cream and cake were served, and the guests, in addition to the honoree, were Johnny Cole, Tommy Cole, Robert Phelps, Trudy Clisson, Larry Matlock, Connie Tilton, Linda Kay Frost, Fred, Karen Phillips, Kathy Kickerson, Elmer Dickerson, Susan Nicholas, and Johnny Nicholas.

Guest For Holidays Feted At Eggnog Party At Quarters

Honoring Mrs. Sadie Bowles of Washington, D. C., who was here for the holidays, Major (USMC) and Mrs. Carl Sachs held an at home for a group of their friends Friday evening.

Eggnog and cookies were served to approximately 70 guests, and the serving table added to the holiday atmosphere with a centerpiece of red Santa boots filled with holly and surrounded by greens and magnolia leaves. The table was covered by a lace cloth and held the crystal punch bowl. Holly greens and gilded magnolia leaves were used with pine cones throughout the house.

Mrs. Bowles is the mother of Mrs. Sachs and visited through the holidays, leaving Sunday.

O'Daniels' Guests Honored At Buffet

Honoring the guests of Major General and Mrs. John W. O'Daniel, Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Groesbeck Jr., of New York, and Misses Rita Wilson and Nell Wilson, of Newark, Del., Col. and Mrs. Irwin S. Scudder entertained at a holiday buffet supper at their quarters Friday evening.

Christmas decorations were used about the rooms and the table, which was arranged for 24 guests, featured a centerpiece of silver and red with an arrangement of large and small tapers.

Santa Is Visitor At Lawson Field

Approximately 50 children greeted Santa Claus at the Lawson field Officers' club Christmas party when the club and the Lawson field Women's club entertained at a Christmas party with Santa Claus as guest of honor.

Entertainment for the party, which took place from 2 to 4 p. m., included movie comedies and refreshments. The youngsters were presented gifts of toys and Christmas stockings from under the beautifully decorated Christmas tree by Santa, and later gathered around him to sing.

Army-Navy 'Y' Plans Dedication Sunday

Civic leaders of Columbus will speak and high ranking military dignitaries will pay tribute Sunday when the Army-Navy YMCA of Columbus will celebrate its first birthday amid pomp and solemnity.

But of the 14,000,000 brave Americans who weathered the long war years in defense of peace, only a hand full of those who know the real story behind Sunday's dedication services will be on hand. For while the thousands of this nation's citizens that passed through the gates of Fort Benning remembered the old Eleventh street building as their second home, those civilian soldiers have returned to their individual ways of life and are now scattered over the 48 states.

Some, however, will be on hand Jan. 4 at 4 p.m. as the newly renovated and decorated edifice is dedicated to those who fought and to those who today are carrying on the vital job of preserving the peace—the peace time, post-war Army.

Tells Plans
Floyd Francisco, executive secretary of the local "Y" organization, said Saturday as he spoke of the colorful career of the club. "This building is a far cry from the simple tent a handful of soldiers and a YMCA secretary put up on the Benning Post back in the fall of 1919."

Mr. Francisco disclosed plans for the dedication services at the Saturday meeting, and revealed the week-long celebration that will come as a prelude to the special rites.

"It's an announcement we've wanted to make for a long time," the executive secretary said, "and we're not forgetting the ones who through the years have made this building a possibility."

Although the Army-Navy YMCA-USO served a most important function during the war years, and though it will be remembered for that vital function by the numberless acres of world war warriors who now wear the discharge emblem, it was evolved with the realization that Fort Benning troops, in war or in peace, needed a permanent YMCA unit.

Praises Citizens
A move towards that end was accomplished when the first tent was erected in anticipation of the arrival of the First division, which was slated for rugged life under canvas that winter.

Shortly afterward, orders from Washington forbade any civilian organizations on the Post, and it was then that the Columbus and Muscogee county citizens began an earnest push for a permanent building.

"That first year of operation," Mr. Francisco said, "was financed almost wholly by local contributions, and even in the years afterward, Columbus and Muscogee county citizens continued to give us wonderful support."

In August of 1940, the present building was an old warehouse, but the YMCA committee chose it as a suitable location for the worked-for dream, and took a lease on the first floor. Soon after the second and third floors were rented.

Finally, on the day after Christmas, 1941, the building was purchased from F. C. Reichl. Mr. Francisco replaced Henry Sims as executive secretary in January of 1943 and began work on an enlarged program.

Dreams Realized
"We operated a round-the-clock program," Mr. Francisco commented, "and for months on end a constant stream of servicemen came through these doors. These old floors saw a lot of jitterbugging, and finally we had to put up a scaffolding in front of the building to make it safe."

Today, all the hopes and dreams have been fully realized, and the three floors are completely redecorated. The Eleventh street YMCA is ready to enter its full peacetime role.

The program opened December 29 with a concert and entertainment from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. The following day, a variety show was held from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. The tonight Spot Rivers will play for the annual New Year's Eve dance.

Tomorrow will feature a special events evening from 7:30 to 11 p. m., and Sunday will be the day for the grand opening with the special program of dedication planned from 3 to 5 p. m.

Special invitations are being sent to the various units on the Post, and the men of the 328th Ordnance battalion, Headquarters 20th Medical group, G-2 Board No. 3, 319th Field Artillery battalion, 56th Tank battalion, and

Seven-Year Vet Joins Post Unit
Pfc. James D. Nolan, veteran of seven years Army service, was recently assigned to the 204th Truck battalion's 33rd Transportation Truck company, officials have announced.

Pfc. Nolan went to the Panama Canal zone in 1938 following his basic training, returning to the States in 1940 where he was discharged. He reentered the service in 1942, and joined the 231st Searchlight battalion at Camp Edwards, Mass., going overseas with the unit in 1944.

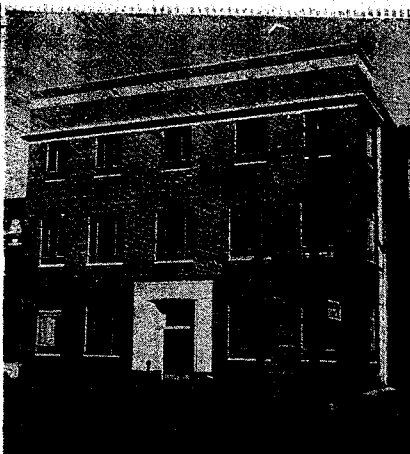

He was again discharged in January 1946 after having been awarded the European theater ribbon with one battle star, Good Conduct medal, American Defense ribbon, Pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon and Victory medal. Pfc. Nolan re-enlisted last November.

Sand Hill Unit Reduced In Strength Last Week

Reduction of Service company, 25th Infantry regiment, to zero strength last week brought to a close one of the outstanding units of the organization. Personnel from the unit were engaged in important duties at regimental headquarters, regimental supply, as overhead personnel in the regimental motor pool, and other headquarters sections. Both commissioned and enlisted personnel have been transferred to other units. The company was commanded by Capt. John C. Robinson.

165 GRADUATE
Despite two weeks of wet and stormy weather, Company D of the Airborne Division completed its airborne training Saturday. Receiving wings were 160 fully qualified enlisted men and five officers.

Williams Assigned New Duties Here

S/Sgt. Robert H. Williams, Service company, 325th Infantry regiment, has been reassigned to the 3440 ASU, Section No. 1 for duty with the Post A & R office, officials said today. Sergeant Williams entered the service in 1940, serving 23 months with the 51st Coast Artillery in San Juan, Puerto Rico. He was then returned to the states and commissioned a second lieutenant here at Fort Benning. He served with the 31st Infantry division in the Pacific until November, 1945, and was released from active duty in February, 1946. Sergeant Williams reenlisted as a staff sergeant at Keeler field, Miss., and has been working in the School Troops A & R office.

C., Jan. 1, beginning at 2:30 p. m. The game will be played in Columbus at Memorial stadium. It is sponsored by the Columbus Exchange club.

ANNOUNCE PROMOTIONS

Pfc. Sam Cunningham and William H. Colbert, Company A of the Airborne battalion, were promoted last week to technician fifth grade, officials have announced.

HYSON PROMOTED

Cpl. Ralph Tyson, Battery B, 83rd Field Artillery battalion, has been promoted to technician fourth grade, it has been announced. Air Stewards: Will all the passengers please fasten their belts before we land. Mac: I'm sorry, me'am, but I wear suspenders.

Mathis Assigned To Trucking Unit

S-Sgt. Henry L. Mathis, former member of the 24th Infantry regiment, has been assigned to the 204th Transportation battalion's 686th Transportation Truck company, officials have announced. Sgt. Mathis entered the Army for the first time in 1936, and, following four years duty with the 24th, he was assigned to the 366th Infantry regiment at Fort Devens, Mass. He joined the 42nd Signal company at Camp Atterbury, Ind., in 1943. Joining the 44th Signal company later, Sgt. Mathis left the States for Europe, remaining with the unit overseas until the end of the war. He was discharged in October, 1945, and reenlisted last November 3.

Personals

Guests of Col. and Mrs. Irvine C. Scudder for a brief visit during the holidays were Mrs. Scudder's mother and aunt, Mrs. Ada W. Jones, and Miss Adna Worrell of Alamo, Tenn. The ladies left Monday for St. Petersburg, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Blake Jr., drove from their home in Kansas City, Kansas, and are spending the holidays with Capt. and Mrs. F. A. Blake Jr.

Major and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby drove to Maxwell field during the holidays to visit Col. and Mrs. E. S. Chickering and Col. and Mrs. C. E. McHenry.

Cadet Bob Ward, home to visit his parents, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward had as his house guest last week Cadet Mercer McC. Doty, of Birmingham, Alabama, who was here for the debutante party in Columbus. Both cadets are first classmen at the United States Military Academy and will graduate in June.

Guests of Capt. and Mrs. F. E. Griffin over the holidays are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lee, of McAlester, Oklahoma. Christmas day the Griffin's were hosts at a delightful dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Lee and Capt. and Mrs. Leo B. Sullivan as guests.

Col. and Mrs. Logan W. Boyd spent the Christmas holidays with Colonel Boyd's brother and his family in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Open House Fetes Guests Of Bullocks

At an open house at their quarters Sunday, Capt. and Mrs. Marshall E. Bullock honored their houseguests, Capt. and Mrs. G. I. Kealey, of Washington, D. C., who arrived Saturday and will be here until after New Year's. Approximately 50 guests were in between 7 and 9 p. m., and the house was arranged with Christmas decorations with greens, holly, ribbons, and tapers on the mantle. The table held a centerpiece of bright fruit interspersed with holly, and completed with white tapers in silver candleabra on the lace cloth. Egg nog were served with light refreshments.

Luncheon Honors Guests During Holiday Season

Honoring two holiday guests on the Post, Mrs. Earl Holton and Mrs. John Keatley, Mrs. Peggy Ward Groneweg entertained at a delightful luncheon at the quarters of her parents, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward, at west. Mrs. Holton, with her husband, Lieutenant Colonel Holton, came down for the holidays from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, to visit her mother, Mrs. Harriet Weeks, Captain (USN), and Mrs. Keatley came from their home in Alexandria, Virginia, to visit her mother Mrs. Mary Dinsmore. Both of the girls, based on the Post formerly.

For the holiday luncheon Mrs. Groneweg had arranged the table with point Venice covers, and the centerpiece featured a red candle board with red tapers and holly. At each place the guests found a place card made up as a miniature wreath of greens tied with red ribbons, and the individual favors were white satin sachets.

The guests in addition to the honorees, were Mesdames Ann Strock, Martha Brown, Murray Cheston, III, Henry McMurria, and Frank Ward.

Bragans Entertain At Holiday Party

Col. and Mrs. O. P. Bragan feted a group of their friends Friday evening when they entertained at a cocktail party at their quarters for approximately 30 guests.

Christmas decorations were used throughout the rooms, and the serving table, overlaid with a lace cloth, featured a centerpiece with a huge red candle surrounded by pine cones, greens, and bright tree lights. Refreshments were served from a crystal punch bowl.

Holiday Party At Officers' Club

Celebrating the holidays with a cocktail party, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Donald Blackburn were recent hosts to approximately 200 friends at a party in the small lounge of the Officers' club.

The decorations included smilax and huge pine cones around the room. The serving table was overlaid with a lace cloth featuring smilax down the sides. One corner of the table was set with bright tree lights with little shades that turned, and the other side was set with a snow scene featuring three snow men.

California Guests Honored At Several Holiday Events

Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Charles Sargent of Pebble Beach, Calif., who are the holiday house guests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William E. Moore were feted at two delightful events during Christmas week.

One evening the Moores honored their guests at a colorful buffet supper at their quarters, and the following evening the hosts again feted their visitors at an eggnog party from 4 to 6 p. m. There were about 50 guests at the eggnog event.

For the buffet supper, which was a formal party, the centerpiece on the table, overlaid with a beautiful cloth of lace and cut work, was made of gilded and silvered pine cones from California used with white tapers in silver. All the rooms were decked with holiday decorations, and the guests enjoyed visiting during the evening and also gathered around the piano to sing some of the traditional Christmas carols.

Guests for the buffet were the honorees, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Reuben E. Jenkins, Col. and Mrs. Leon E. Lichtenwaller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tilley, Col. and Mrs. Walden Lewis, Col. and Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. Peggy Ward, Groneweg, Col. and Mrs. John D. Frederick, Mrs. Mary Dinsmore, Col. and Mrs. C. W. Pence, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lee Wallace, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lee Wallace.

Colonel and Mrs. Sargent, the parents of Mrs. Moore, plan to visit until the middle of January. They are not newcomers to the Post since Colonel Sargent was stationed here from 1926 to 1922 and again in 1932-33.

College Set Feted At Buffet Party Followed By Dance

Members of the college set home for vacation were entertained Saturday evening when Miss Jan Blizard and Miss Helen Moore were hostesses at a formal party which started with a buffet supper at the quarters of Col. and Mrs. John C. Blizard.

Later in the evening the party, including approximately 24 guests, went to the Officers' club for dancing.

The buffet table was attractive with decorations featuring holly from the state of Washington, and the traditional red tapers. Holly silver leaves were used throughout the rooms.

Miss Sachs Feted At Tea During Visit With Thorns

Miss Nancy Sachs, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward L. Sachs, was honored at a tea Monday afternoon at the quarters of her hosts, Col. and Mrs. Hamilton Thorn.

Miss Sachs, who formerly lived on the Post with her parents, is visiting here during the holidays from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where her father is now stationed.

For the delightful event Christmas decorations were used around the rooms.

Guests for the tea were Misses Betty Davidson, Betty Skaggs, Jessie Westerman, Harriet Grizzard, Martha Adams, Mickey Cardona, Peggy Mole, Mary Jane Sullivan, Susie Stillinger, Anne Buggan, Jean Goss, Joan Goss, and Louise Stewart.

Give Yule Party

Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. J. Deane entertained several of their friends at a cocktail party Christmas eve at their quarters. Christmas decorations were used about the rooms.

Guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. John R. Grollemund, Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Luther, Maj. and Mrs. P. C. Dean, Maj. and Mrs. Carl E. Frisby, Maj. and Mrs. Lee Miles, and Capt. and Mrs. Marshall E. Bullock.

Hostesses Told For Coming Meets

The roster for the luncheons to be given the ladies of the Communications section through May, at which time the list will be announced again, was given this week when it was revealed that January 30 Mrs. Lewis W. Conway will be the hostess with Mrs. Robert P. Zeigler as co-hostess.

Other ladies in charge of luncheons will be Mrs. J. J. Ford, February 27, with Mrs. Arne Millican and Mrs. George M. Roper as co-hostesses; Mrs. Carl E. Frisby on March 26, with Mrs. Robert E. Phelps, Mrs. Arne Millican and Mrs. R. E. Wommer as co-hostesses; Mrs. John Fletcher on April 30, with Mrs. William L. Hill, Mrs. Allan Swain as co-hostesses; and Mrs. John F. Gerstner on May 28, with Mrs. Patrick J. McDonnell and Mrs. Arthur Moldenhauer as co-hostesses.

The Communications section ladies will have a bridge party January 4 at the Officers' club with Mrs. John Fletcher as hostess.

Col., Mrs. Cone Entertain Friends

Christmas afternoon Lt. Col. and Mrs. John D. Cone entertained at their quarters when they had a pleasant eggnog party to entertain about 40 of their friends on the post.

The holiday decorations featured red, green, blue and silver colors throughout the rooms, and the centerpiece of the table, overlaid with a hand crocheted cloth, was made of bright tree balls with blue and silver bells hung from the chandelier.

Guests and Mrs. Cone will leave the post late in January for Norfolk, Va., where he will be a student at the Armed Forces Staff college.

Floor Show Set At Post NCO Club

A dance and floor show will feature the New Year's Eve celebration at the Post Non-Commissioned Officers' club Wednesday evening when a four-act show of comedy, musical numbers, and dancing will get underway at 11 p. m. Dancing will start at 8 p. m. It has been announced by a club official.

Van and Arrvola will start the special show with comedy and dancing and they will also conduct the program, which is to include numbers by song stylist Ramona, Marian Reinhardt doing tap dancing and Charlotte Bishop playing the accordion.

Col., Mrs. Dayton Eggnog Served At Party Showing Yule Decorations

A pleasant eggnog party was given Christmas eve by Col. and Mrs. Julian Dayton when they entertained a group of their friends at their quarters.

Holiday decorations were used throughout the rooms, and the mantle was attractive with a little tree in the center flanked by a clever setting of old-fashioned crystal cake stands filled with bright tree balls. Miniature trees were used to carry out the same theme throughout the rooms, and the crystal punch bowl was surrounded by greens and red berries. The table also featured greens, red tapers in crystal, and more of the gay tree balls.

Celebrating the holiday season with an eggnog party, Major and Mrs. Elvino A. Krelick entertained at their quarters Friday evening for a group of friends.

The punch table was attractively arranged with greens, red tapers in silver and a silver punch bowl on a lace cloth. Green smilax, red berries and holly were used to carry the Yule theme throughout the rooms.

Guests for the event were Lt. Col. and Mrs. C. C. Coulbourn, Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. J. Deane, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Grollemund, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Walden Alexander, Mrs. H. A. Alexander, Major and Mrs. Patrick Dean, Major and Mrs. Otis R. Glenn, Major and Mrs. John Dutton, Capt. and Mrs. William L. Rucker, Mr. and Mrs. James Sherif, Major and Mrs. Curtis Markland, Capt. and Mrs. Marshall Bullock, Lt. and Mrs. Hubert Odum, and Lt. and Mrs. Harold Funke.

Holiday Guests Honored At Party Marking Season

Honoring Capt. and Mrs. Harold Simmons of Chamute Field, Ill. who were guests for the holidays, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. C. Means entertained just before Christmas with a delightful eggnog party at their quarters.

Capt. and Mrs. Simmons, the brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Means, were here for two weeks as guests of Col. and Mrs. Means, and left Saturday to return to Chamute Field.

Guests, in addition to the hostesses, were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lee Wallace, Major and Mrs. Gardner Williams, Major and Mrs. LeRoy Brown, Major and Mrs. John Farnell, and Major and Mrs. John T. Evans.

Open House Fetes Holiday Guests

Honoring their holiday house guests, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry M. Grizzard had open house at their quarters Christmas night when approximately 30 of their neighbors were in for eggnog.

Visiting for the Christmas season were Mrs. Grizzard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wuest, Jr., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Col. Grizzard's sister, Mrs. H. H. Adams, of Abilene, Texas, and her two daughters, Martha and Jane.

Bright Christmas decorations were used throughout the room, and the punch table featured a centerpiece of Christmas ornaments in a crystal bowl.

Red Cross Does Gift Wrapping

Climaxing a full year of service on the Post, the Red Cross was busy during the Christmas season wrapping packages for persons who wanted to mail gifts beautifully wrapped.

Mrs. Walter Johnson was in charge of the ladies doing the work, and assisting her were Mrs. James V. Thompson, Mrs. John Wright, Mrs. John C. Blizzard, Mrs. John Davies, and Miss Jane Blizzard.

Bowl Tilts Football's Farewell To Season

BY RALEIGH GREENE
Bayonet Sports Editor

Officially, football for 1947 has come to an end with the exception of the conventional games that have been termed post-season tilts or bowl games. Actually all the grid schools in the nation have wound up their regular schedules, but conventionalities have been done away with, and there will be very few football centers and players that won't be having something to do with a New Year's Day classic.

It has got so bad of late that bowl sponsors have had to invite some of the most off-beaten teams in the land to act as hosts and guests at their particular January 1 classics. Big universities and colleges that have a reputation to uphold will not accept bids to little-publicized bowls. They can't afford it.

Take unbeaten, once-tied Penn, one of the greatest teams in the United States. Invitations were, of course, sent out to Penn, but would they accept? Naturally not. They would not take on some mediocre team, much less a sure loser. North Carolina turned down a bid to the Gator Bowl that will now feature Georgia and Maryland.

Must Ask Someone

You can well understand when the good teams won't play, somebody has to be asked, but as a result the prestige and honor of getting a bowl bid is greatly reduced. Today, practically any team that has won at least one football game is eligible for a bowl bid. Too bad is all that can be said about it.

In spite of the ridiculous number of games New Year's Day, the old stand-bys, the outstanding classics will be played, and some fine teams will be participating. Another football season has indeed come to an end, but football hasn't yet left the minds of any fans. More people will turn out this year than ever before in the history of the game. Talk about the money that will be dished out in the next Louis-Walkert fight—it will be plenty, but it won't even make a dint in the sum collected by any one of the major bowl games.

Then too, there will be more All-Americans on the field than ever before. Of course, Notre Dame and its team will be listening to the radios or attending the games, so that will at least cut down the number of vaunted players. There were very few men on the Notre Dame football starting eleven that weren't named on the nation's All-American team, but that isn't too much of an honor. After all, everybody and his dog got a shot at picking the team of the year.

South Has Best

The best games of the day will be played in the sunny South and the less sunny Midwest. Alabama, a team that finished sixth in the nation's standings, will meet once-beaten Texas. Alabama, a slow starter, finished in a blaze of glory, and finally lived up to its pre-season publicity. Had Harry Gilmer begun the 1947 season in the same superb fashion that he ended his college career, there is little doubt that the ace aerialman would have polled a first place on practically every All-American team in the land. Alabama will face a tough foe, Texas, equipped especially with the versatile Bobby Layne, who put on a great show, and went battle furiously against every Alabama threat if there are any. The Longhorns dropped only one tilt during the season, and that was a 14-13 decision to Southern Methodist. That lone loss didn't hurt the Texans too much.

Two air-minded All-Americans will be running the show at New Orleans, but the opinion is, and we agree, that Alabama will have a little too much for Texas. There are men like Terry and Wenzel on the Alabama team that gives the Crimson Tide the margin of choice. And should Harry Gilmer, who incidentally had the best passing percentage in the land, be up to par, he will outshine Layne. We pick Alabama by one touchdown in the game that may prove to be the most bitterly contested fracas on Bowl Day.

Picks SMU

Another Texas team, Southern Methodist, will play host to a strong Penn State team at Dallas—another excellent match; another in which anything could happen. Dock Walker, the sharper thing in Texas, is the big-wig on the SMU eleven. He more than anyone else saved his lung from fading out of the undefeated ranks. TCU nearly pulled the biggest upset of the year, perhaps in a decade, when they deadlocked the Mustangs 1919 in the season's finale. Penn State doesn't have a backfield stand-out. Steve Sahay, the All-American guard, is the only man that really got the building from the sports fans, but a team that goes through a rugged season undefeated and untied must be a few men that know what to do with a football. Penn State, an aggregation that has a host of capable ball players, who work simply as a team—that was the reason for their success. If a winner must be picked, we'll pick the former, SMU.

Michigan will meet Southern Cal. Southern Cal may get a few glimpses of the Wolverines as the game's start, at the intermission, and once again when the shooting has stopped. The shooting will come mainly from the sensational Bob Chappuis, but bolting Bob will get plenty of help from stars like Bumps Salt, Ben Mann and a number of others. Notre Dame just had a good time, and thrilled nearly 100,000 spectators doing it. Michigan is no less a great team than the Irish. It's a pity they didn't clinch the title. Plenty can be said for Len Waldorf and his Pacific Coast crew, but Southern Cal just isn't on a par with the best teams in the nation. Michigan should take the Rose Bowl without too much trouble. Fritz Crisler may come up moaning about his fears, but don't believe him—he knows what he's got, and he has, furthermore, admitted it on more than one occasion. We'll pick the Wolverines by four touchdowns, and add that it could end up worse for Southern Cal than that. If the Trojans score, it will surprise this corner.

Tech Over Kansas

Take a look at the Orange Bowl classic at Miami; that's going to be a dilly. Everybody in this section seems to think the Yellow Jackets will have a fairly easy time of it. Let me point out that Tech wasn't too impressive on some occasions, and they certainly played a lighter schedule than Kansas did. However, Bobby Dodd will have his Techmen in top shape for the important game, and will also have George Mathews back in the line up. Mathews will give Tech much of the power and break away chances they lacked toward the end of the season. Kansas has never won any one of the four major bowl games they have participated in—constitutes a prophetic hoodoo, indeed. But Ray Evans is no man to laugh at and underestimate. Kansas is stronger this year than it ever has been before, and they will be very much in the ball game. But Tech will get the nod in a close race. Let it be repeated, the Orange Bowl will be a dilly. Yet, it's too bad that North Carolina couldn't go. That would have really been one for the sports writers to rave about. Georgia meets Maryland at Jacksonville's Gator Bowl. Both teams have lost their share of games. Johnny French was hurt playing against Tech, but Butts says he'll be ready to roll for the Bulldogs—they will certainly need him. This lad Gambino must be a real threat. He frightened the Tarheels for four quarters, but Georgia played for good a ball game against Tech to go into the game as the underdog. It will be Georgia.

Lanier Underdog

Right here in Columbus, Lanier of Macon will tangle with the North Charleston power-house at Memorial stadium. This year the annual Peanut Bowl is predicted to break last year's record and everything points to just that. Some 3,000 tickets have been sent to Charleston fans alone, and an even greater number can be expected to come up from Macon. When you add the vast crowd that will be home-folks sitting in on the game, you pretty well fill Memorial stadium. Lanier was the comeback team of the G.I.A.A. and battled Richmond Academy of Augusta to a tie in winning the bid to the Columbus classic.

Christmas trees are beginning to wilt now, but most folks are forgetting the past Christmas and making last-minute preparations for the big New Year's celebration that will reach its peak about the hour of midnight tonight.

Yes, another New Year rolls around, and is predicted to bring various and sundry forms of tidings. It will be a gala night for many, but, for many others, it will be a regretfully restful one.

Here on the Post, especially at the ISD, things will be a little different tonight. North Charleston high school, guest at Columbus' own Peanut Bowl is spending a few days at the detachment, and are honored guests of the Post. Tomorrow at Memorial stadium, the South Carolinians, powerful in their own right, will meet the GLAA champions, Lanier high school of Macon for the Peanut Bowl crown of 1948. In addition to the two fine teams that will tangle at the stadium, a capacity crowd of some 17,000 fans are expected to file through the gates to witness the annual classic.

But let's pause briefly and take a look at the facilities made possible for the North Charleston team. C. O. Wilson, detachment commander, has made every possible effort to make the Fort Benning guests as comfortable and as happy as possible. Elaborate barracks have been made available to the team, and Col. Wilson, with the aid of his company commander and other assistants, has decorated a separate dining hall for the Peanut Bowl gridders. Not only is the dining room an impressive sight as far as the decorations and various pennants are concerned, but the detachment has arranged at every moment for their guests. As is Col. Wilson's policy, guests of the ISD will be served nothing short of the best.

So, if you wish to see a real living example of Southern hospitality, just journey to the ISD and take a look at what the detachment has done for their Charleston visitors.

Last year, when one of the Peanut Bowl eleven was the guest of the ISD, the visiting team wrote a long letter to the detachment and its commander. This year the ISD has even made a more complete job of making their visitors feel honored.

Such a show of hospitality and generosity is a credit to the Post, the detachment, and particularly the U. S. Army as a whole.

But a little bit about the game itself. Who will win? What will be the score? Never having seen Charleston play, I am in no position to discuss their good and bad points. I did see Lanier play one game in Columbus. At the impressive sight they had not reached their peak, but they did look like a fighting ball club. As you know, Lanier was the black horse in the GLAA, the surprise "surprise" of the play-off.

I have only one basis for making an opinion, and the grounds on which I base my opinion is that comparing scores is the poorest way in the world of estimating a football team. Incidentally, I figured out one day how Florida should have been the Southeastern champion. . . . wait now; by comparing scores, I said. So you see it really carries little weight.

But we will bring three scores to your attention so you will have a little easier time of forming your own ideas. Richmond, who was tied by Lanier in the playoff 6-6, deadlocked Charleston high school 0-0. However, North Charleston, Lanier's foe in the Peanut Bowl, smashed that same Charleston high school 42-0. You can take it from there.

The Peanut Bowl of 1948 will probably surpass all others in style and impressiveness. You'll never score your afternoon as "wasted" if you decide to come out for the classic.

We'll see you next year, but until then, let me wish each and everyone a happy and prosperous New Year.

ISD Considered Tops In Post's Baseball Circles

Although baseball season is still many weeks away, it's never too early to mention something that really sounds good. You may consider a good thing in Benning sports circles this year, you must include the ISD baseball team that will see action under Capt. Jim Walker in a few months.

Last season the detachment ball team finished second to the once-beaten troopers from the Airborne battalion, and then boasted some of the finest diamonders the Post had last year. But this year, the ISD has been strengthened by three former big leaguers, who will have these in addition to the old stand-bys.

Back this year will be Woodie Burt and Blondy Burnett, two of the best sluggers on Herb Bench's baseball team last year. They will be back with the detachment along with "such notables" as Herbert Laure, Lefty Lechner and Doughboy hurler, George Hill. Ike Silcox, the hero of the Third Army tournament that the Doughboys won, and some others who played with the ISD.

George Dickson, star center fielder on the Doughboy nine who formerly played with the Airborne team, has joined the ranks of the ISD and will add plenty of gusto to the squad this year.

Capt. Joe Sadler, formerly a White Ball player for Columbus, Ohio, will be causing plenty of trouble for opposing batters because of his plating. His battery mate will be Lefty Lanier, Wiley Wheldon, and Bill Orton, a re-enlistee who pitched for the Doughboys two seasons ago.

Walker announced that the detachment nine will really be facing a rugged schedule. They are slated to play Montgomery and Selma of the Southeastern league. Atlanta of the Southern league, teams from the Georgia-Florida league, and Columbus' own Cardinals.

Walker hopes to get practice in the week after New Year's, so that the team will be in top shape when the intramural season opens late in March or early in April.

Just a few tips to the baseball teams that will face the ISD. Look over their roster and all will agree that the detachment team would be a tough bunch to beat this year.

Two barbers named Wood and Stone were standing on a street corner. A pretty girl passed by. Wood turned to Stone, Stone turned to Wood. They both turned to rubber and the girl turned into a beauty shop.

MORE SPORTS SLATED FOR BENNING PROGRAM

Christmas holidays brought about a partial stalemate in sports activities about the Post, but the athletic and recreation office was kept busy outlining a new athletic program for the Post that now has ten new additions to its list of sports events.

The New Year will see the sports roster filled with many more phases of athletics.

Table tennis, horse shoes, hand ball, badminton, checkers, chess, cribbage, bridge, pinocle, and pool have been added to the long list of sporting events available to Post personnel. Competition in these recently announced past-times will be at company, battalion, and post levels. The finals and semi-finals in the Post tournaments are slated to be staged at the Post gymnasium.

Play within the companies began Dec. 17 with table tennis and chess, ending Feb. 1. Horse shoes and cribbage wind up Feb. 10, hand ball and bridge, Feb. 20 and badminton and pinocle on the first of March. Checkers winds up Jan. 20, and pool March 10. The battalion competition will start the day that company play terminates, and will have its own conclusion ten days later. Post tournaments will take up from that point, and crowning of the various champions will take place ten days later. Prophies will be presented to the winners and runner-ups in the Post tournaments.

Koncir Replaces M-Sgt. Madden

S/Sgt. Paul M. Koncir, 325th Infantry regiment, has been appointed to the School Troops information and education office to replace M/Sgt. James M. Madden, who has been transferred to the 3311th Army Service unit in Jackson, Tenn., where he will serve as a National Guard instructor, officials announced today.

Sgt. Koncir, formerly of Company C, 37th Infantry regiment, entered the Army at Fort Benning in 1939. In 1941 he was sent to Camp Gordon, Ga., where he aided in the activation of the 84th Infantry division. He served with the unit during the campaigns of Central Europe, the Ardennes and the Rhineland.

Sgt. Madden, who entered the Army in 1938, served as platoon leader with the 337th Infantry regiment of the 85th division during the Rome-Arno campaign.

Brimms Leaves For New Post

Lt. Robert A. Brims, assistant individual services officer at Lawson field for the past 17 months, will depart today for Alaska where he will take up his new assignment as special service officer for the Alaskan Air Command on January 3, officials announced today.

A veteran Troop Carrier, Command transport and glider pilot, Lt. Brims entered service in 1942. He served at George field, Ill., as an evacuation and ferry pilot, and came to Lawson field from Greenville Air base in July, 1946. His hometown is Phoenix, Ariz., and his wife is the former Miss Quendanel Roddy, of Lubbock, Texas. During his tour of duty at Lawson field they have resided at Benning Park homes.

Red Cross Has Four-Day Meet

Plans for closer cooperation between the Red Cross and the military were discussed at the annual Red Cross field directors' four-day conference in Atlanta during the middle of December. Murray E. Hill, Fort Benning Red Cross field director, announced today.

During the conference, which was attended by representatives from 27 military installations, plans were made for the coming year, and the delegates were oriented on the operation of the new National Blood Bank, which will cost the Red Cross 50 million dollars during the next 12 months, Mr. Hill said.

Over 200 representatives from Red Cross field offices held a critique on their activities during 1947, putting special emphasis on disasters. In making plans for greater cooperation with the military, Red Cross officials emphasized activities in the event of disaster, he revealed.

Course Reopened

Having undergone renovation, the Sandhill golf course was reopened during the holidays to a large attendance of votaries and their civilian guests.

1st Lt. Joseph Watson, club officer, T-4 Elmhurst Ivy, T-4 John Gray, and Cpl. George Gore supervised the several weeks of renovating which included work on the greens and fairways.

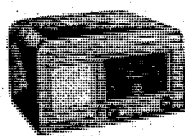

Sunday, 23 officers, 47 enlisted men, and 14 civilians players highlighted the activity.
